Dear diary this is Emily I'm no longer living alone on this piece of land because as you know I purchased a horse yesterday.

His name is Marvin,

today I spent all day setting everything up for his arrival.

It's not much but he now has a little padic and shed to call his own with enough space to graze and move around freely to his heart's content.

I do however have to admit...

it's not as easy going with him as I thought it would be,

you see when I went to The Stables yesterday the other horses seem so friendly and welcoming it made me immediately connect with them with Marvin it's a bit different.

he seems very stubborn and doesn't listen, sometimes I feel like he's even ignoring me on purpose, maybe I'm just overthinking.

He probably just needs a bit more time time to get to know me in his new home.

Dear diary this is Emily it's the middle of the night and I can't fall asleep I actually just came back home from a walk to clear my head...

on my way I also checked by Marvin to see how he's doing he was fine I think...

he does this thing where he lets his penis hang out and I'm not exactly sure why it.

It's probably just natural and they do that from time to time but...

I can't shake the feeling that he does it on purpose when I'm around,

like he dropped it the second I arrived and I could literally watch it extend almost as if he wanted to show me he almost got me tempted to... ummm...

Never mind anyway he's a horse.

That whole thing is obviously stupid to think about right but I also remembered the farm where he was from... ummm...

There were no female horses now that I think of it I didn't even see any women maybe he's not used to be around girls, is that why he is so weird with me I'm probably overthinking once again but it would...

explain a few things oh well time will tell and I should try to get some sleep.

Good night dear diary...
