Experiment

A starting note on this story: It was sketched over a period of about 6 months while I was working 50 hours a week at my regular job, so it's a little incoherent at times. 'Nuff said! Now on to the story.

The action takes place in a secret underground lab, where a government scientist is studying the captured Cyberwolf, taking him apart to see how he ticks. Unfortunately, a secret evil Super-Operative has decided to use Cyberwolf for her own nefarious plans. She orders Cyberwolf to take care of the scientist "permanently". When things go wrong, it's up to the evil Super-Operative to take matters into her own hands, using VX-9, an experimental poison gas to solve the pesky problem. This will leave someone else to clean up the mess.

That "someone else" soon arrives - a mysterious figure with his own experimental ideas. The interactions from the Protean Alpha particles and the VX-9 gas causes an unexpected reaction destroying the lab.

Footnote: Some people may recognize the mysterious figure as Dr. Zubotnik. And there are rumors that the woman levitating out of the wreckage is one of the super beings in my books.

Gorilla Love

In this sequence Countess D'Villiana has decided to solve her Energy Lass problem permanently with the help of her pet, Gorilla. The Gorilla having become attached to Energy Lass after their many encounters becomes enraged by D'Villiana's plan, and becomes Energy Lass's rescuer.

Turning on D'Villiana, he is about to give the evil one a taste of her own medicine, when she is rescued by the Mad Hatter's Hench Bunnies.

Without pistols a girl has to use the tools at hand.

Adventuress has just unloaded both barrels.

Western Shootout

Shootout introduces a new villain, Gunslinger. Starting out on top of the situation, Energy Lass finds the tables quickly turned. Coming to, she finds that Gunslinger is about to teach her a traditional western rope dance. While her victim is struggling, Gunslinger is startled by an unexpected noise. Ambushed by Psychotica, Gunslinger gets in a fight, her wild shot hitting the rope hanging Energy Lass. Nude and helpless without her Energy Harness, Energy Lass runs for it, leaving Gunslinger at the mercy of the now vengeful Psychotica.
