Rick took several more deep breaths, this time thinking about football - a bunch of burly men hitting each other, without spherical objects or phallic clubs to muddy the mental waters.

It helped. A bit...

"Jim..." Rick finally said, his voice ragged with conflicting thoughts and emotions as he took a step backwards...

...and she stayed right with him, actually leaning into him and letting him drag her into the hallway, her slender arms unable to wrap all the way around his broad back, but holding on with determination nonetheless.

"I thought I'd use 'Jade', actually." She said, somewhat pointedly. " 'Jade Kim', though, of course, that's not my legal identity... yet." Rick swallowed, heavily. "Whatever you want to call yourself, you're still you. You're still really a guy... and I can't do this."

He didn't know what he'd expected as a reaction - but it certainly wasn't a surpassingly knowing chuckle. She let him go, taking a step back.

"I don't think you've been paying attention to me." She said - then, in acknowledgment of just how much attention he'd been paying, at least to her body, corrected herself: "At least, you haven't thought through the implications of what I've been saying."

Which was true enough - Rick was having a hard time thinking at all. At least, with his brain... "What... What do you mean...?" He asked, hesitantly.

If she weren't so cutely sexy, the responding grin would have been described as 'wicked'.

"I wanted to make damned sure you'd have to, um... 'help' me." She said, dark eyes flashing. "That's the whole point. I set this whole thing up so that you just can't refuse me what I want..."

...and then she began to strip.

"What are you doing...?" Rick asked, weakly, as he removed the poorly-fitting sweater and tossing it negligently aside, her bra-clad breasts thrust proudly outwards. Even though he'd already seen her completely naked, damn near memorizing every inch of her, the sight of more of her perfect, muddy-gold skin was still making his perspire.

"Isn't that obvious, Rick?" Jade asked, coyly, her dainty fingers going to the waist-band of her jean shorts. "I'm seducing you." "No..." Rick croaked, taking a trembling step backwards - and bumping into the wall. "You.. You can't..."

"I dunno..." She said, casually, pausing her rather mundane 'strip-tease' to point on dainty finger towards a certain part of Rick's anatomy. "Part of you certainly seems to think that I can..."

"But... But..." Rick stammered in lieu of any rational argument...

...but she treated it like a request, slowly swiveling around and - oh, Dear God above! - actually rising up on tip-toe, silky hair hanging like an ebony veil for her to peer sensuously through as she looked over her narrow shoulder, watching his reaction as she slowly pushed her shorts down - having gripped the waist-band of her panties as well...

...which meant that the perfect, firm curves of her spectacular new buttocks were sensuously revealed as she pushed the fabric over the swell of her hips and let it slide smoothly down her sensuously-contoured legs and fall to the floor.

Rick whimpered.

"You like my ass...?" Jade teased, lightly sliding her fingers across the smooth skin of her firmly rounded buttocks. "My firm, sexy, woman's ass? Don't try and deny it - because it's not just a woman's ass, but your fantasy woman's ass..."

Tint feet tired of maintaining her balance against her top-heavy structure, she sank back to a flat-footed stance, still peering over one shoulder coyly.

"It must be a woman's ass..." She said, softly, seductively. "After all, look what's on the other side..."

She swiveled, slowly spreading her legs as much for support as for erotic effect - though it served both purposes equally well, and Rick's gaze was helplessly drawn to the most definitely feminine folds of her new cunt, nestled in her small patch of dark pubic hair...

...some of which was glistening with drops of liquid, visually verifying her arousal. This time, the sound was halfway between a whimper and a groan.

Oddly enough, the thought of simply closing his eyes never occurred to Rick. As a matter of fact, the short, broad-shouldered red-head hadn't even blinked recently...

"Look how hot and wet I am..." She said, and her voice was heavy and throaty as she slid those perfect hands of hers across the smooth swell of her hips, sliding tantalizingly down either side of her moist new womanhood. "Look at the tight, wet cunt of your fantasy woman, ready, willing, and eager to accept the one cock in the world that will give her the most pleasure..."

One finger flicked lightly across the swollen pearl of her clitoris, and she gasped, a purely feminine sound of sexual needs and pleasure, unlike any sound produced by even the most adept female impersonator.

"Oh, but as perfect as my hot, wet cunt is, it's not what makes me your ultimate fantasy..." She said, huskily, and Rick's eyes were helplessly to do anything but follow those hands as they slid slowly upwards, the index finger of her right hand leaving a faint, glistening trail across her flawless flesh as it slid up the taut flesh of her trim stomach, rising up into the shadow of those massive breasts - and then her hands followed the contour of the massive bra, sliding upwards and outwards to push her bra-encased breasts higher and tighter, forcing more golden-tan cleavage to show.

"These are what you could never, ever find on any other woman..." She said, giving her huge new endowments a light squeeze. "These are what make me your Ultimate fantasy "

Slowly, her hands slid away from her massive breasts, sliding back downwards, riding over the crest of her tiny waists to disappear behind her back, her shoulders rotating to thrust her chest out enticingly.

"All you have to do is accept it..." She said, her voice a tantalizing whisper. "I'm all woman now, Rick. I'm Jade Kim, your fantasy woman brought to life - and not only am I willing to have sex with you, I'm actually begging to. Why fight it? Why not just give in? Why not reach out, undo this one, little clasp and let yourself enjoy?"

Rick stared at her, mesmerized by her sensuality, trying to cope with the thought, emotions and desires thrumming through his body as he stared at the golden-bronze vision that his roommate had turned into, so near and so willing...

"Please..." She moaned, her voice edged with erotic frustration...

...and it was the final straw.

Rick's hands rose, and before he was truly even aware that he'd made his decision, he found them adroitly popping the clasp on the bra.

A size too small for the massive orbs of breast-flesh that it contained, the bra literally popped open, setting her massive new breasts free. The dark nipple that tipped each rounded mound was fully engorged, tantalizing, teasing, practically begging for attention...

..and Rick was completely incapable of refusing.

Jade gasped as Rick's hands cupped around her massive new breast, desires stronger than any she'd ever felt thrumming through her new body as he caressed her massive, firm breast, gently and hesitantly at first, then with growing confidence and expertise.

"Yes..." Jade moaned, closing her eyes in pleasure at his touch, the interaction between the chemical structure she'd given her new skin and his own body-oils causing his touch to be exquisitely pleasant, more so than it would have been for a 'normal' woman. "Ummm... That feels so good..."

It felt even better when he bent his head, licking lightly at her engorged nipple...

...then taking it between his lips, lightly sucking on it...

The sensation was indescribable. There was just no reference in the new woman's experience to compare the wonderful sensations caused by Rick's mouth as he lightly sucked on her full, sensitive nipple - and then, lightly, began to 'nibble' at it, using lips rather than teeth to add pressure.

"Oh..." She moaned, her hands going to his pants, enjoying his attention to her massive new breasts as he continued to fondle them, switching the attention of his lips from one nipple to the other. "Oh, Rick, yes..."

Having her breasts played with felt even better than she'd hoped when she'd finally decided to go through with this scheme - much better as a matter of fact, enough so that it washed away all the lingering doubts and discomfort she'd been hiding from Rick.

As good as it felt, though, and as much as she was sure she'd love having long bouts of breast-play in the future, right now she wanted - no, because of what she'd done to herself to ensure she'd go through with her plan, she needed - something more.

With one motion, she yanked his pants and underwear down to mid-thigh, allowing his cock to spring free, swollen and throbbing in the cool air.

"Fuck me, Rick..." Jade begged, hungrily, her arousal almost physically painful - and yet wonderfully pleasurable, all at the same time. "Please, fuck me..."

Rick, now running more on hormones than on intellect, was far past the stage of objecting. With moments that would have been comically eager and awkward at any other time, he kicked his way out of his pants as he pressed himself against Jade, turning his hips so that his almost-ready-to-blow cock wouldn't rub against the silky-smooth flesh of her thigh as he pulled her towards his bedroom, his hands now wrapped around her tiny waist to fondle the firm muscle and delightful layer of 'padding' that made up her buttocks.

Lost in their own rampant sexual needs and wants, neither one actually noticed the trip to the bed. Even if their lives had depended on it, they couldn't have told somebody what, exactly, had happened between the hallway and the bed, or how Jade's opened bra and the rest of Rick's clothing had been taken off. All they could remember was touch and taste, feel and fragrance, sound and sensation. The world seemed to consist only of smooth, golden flesh rubbing against milky skin, of two sets of lips touching and parting, tongues intertwining, hands roaming over each other's body and their own as they slid onto the bed.

Though they were making all sorts of sounds, none of it was actually 'discussion' - yet, for all that, their bodies were communicating everything that needed to be said - at least, that was what Jade had to assume, since she didn't recall the actual process that led up to it, but she was very, very aware of the act...

...as Rick's hard cock slid slowly and firmly into her sopping wet new cunt.

"Oh, God.. yes...!" Jade moaned, thrashing beneath Rick in pleasure at the incredible, fulfilling sensation. "Oh, I'm so close, Rick.. Fuck me! Fuck me now!"

It wasn't like Rick had any other plans. Eyes closed and head rolling back and forth in intense pleasure, Jade's first sexual experience as a woman was literally done blind - but that only allowed her to experience the physical sensations all he more strongly as Rick eagerly rode atop her, his weight balanced far forward on one arm of that his free hand cold roamed and caressed her massive, spherical breasts as they writhed rhythmically atop the bed, the squeaking springs unheard as they moaned and gasped together.

She felt the warm flesh of his hand, damp with perspiration, as it slid over her breast, touching and squeezing.

She felt the sharp bursts of pleasure and mild pain as the hand slid over her nipples, 'flicking' them in unplanned, unnoticed sadism - and yet the brief, dull pain of sharp pressure wasn't only not subsumed in the pleasure also generated by Rick's touch, but actually a strange source of pleasure in and of itself, something similar to the way it felt to lightly bite your lower lip - which Jade was also doing, though she was completely unaware of it.

She was more aware of the overwhelming sensation. The one of being fucked like a woman - of being fucked as a woman.

It felt... it felt as if she were hollow. As if her entire body was one empty husk lined with incredibly sensitive pleasure-receptors, and Rick's cock was not just filling her cunt, but filling all of her. It was as if his thrusting cock was making her whole, completing her in a very primal way...

...and causing unbelievable physical pleasure as well, the strange sensation of being hollow-and-filled meaning that the sensations didn't seem to be spreading through her body so much as they seemed to be generated throughout her body, the cock filling her cunt seeming to steadily grow to fill more and more of her with pleasure - and the pleasure was increasing as she was 'hollowed out' more and more to make room for the 'expanding' organ thrusting into - and, seeming to her, through - her body...

...until it seemed to her as if that massive, thrusting head reached far enough inside her to touch a nerve-bundle in the center of her brain, making a direct neural connection between body and brain that became a painless white explosion of orgasmic pleasure.

The scream she let out as her first female orgasm hit her went unheard by either, the flexing and writhing muscles of her new cunt more than enough to push the already-on-edge Rick over the edge, his own orgasm a split-second behind hers...

...and a split-second before the second orgasm that slammed through her body, somewhat weaker, but longer and somehow more 'mellow'...

...but not nearly as 'mellow' as the third, almost unnoticeable orgasm - the one that immediately connected to a slowly fading afterglow of pleasure, much like the sensation one might feel after finally sitting down after a long walk, and actually directly related, since it was a 'simple' case of hard-used muscles relaxing - but this 'pleasant relaxation' was much, much stronger, and much more localized... except for the fact that it still felt like her new cunt ran up through her entire torso.

It wasn't until Rick, panting, rolled off of her new body that the mental dimensions of her new womanhood began to creep back towards reality.

"Oh, God..." Rick moaned, collapsing beside her.

Even in the midst of the slowly fading pleasure, a pang of worthy speared through to Jade's slowly-reawakening intellect, and she looked over at him...

...to find him looking back at her, a tentative smile on his lips, his eyes both hesitant and hopeful...

"You were fantastic..." She said, truthfully, and felt relief wash over her as the hesitant look in his eyes faded away, signaling that she'd successfully 'hooked' him. Though he might have the occasional bout of disquiet over the fact that she'd once been a man, it wouldn't be enough to counter the pure - and, in many ways, unreasoning - lust he felt for the living version of his own fantasy woman.

Felling physically, emotionally and intellectually satisfied, Jade snuggled up to her lover and new boyfriend, still finding that she, to, had lingering 'homophobic' emotions - but, thanks to some judicious tampering, her own hormonal system more than compensated for that, as well, and she felt a smug self-satisfaction at having planned ahead enough to make this so damned easy on her. Her new body was one-hundred-percent genetic female, physically indistinguishable from the genuine article - though, of course, not every 'genuine' woman suffered from both hormonal nymphomania and hypercomastia.

Yes, indeed, the new woman, with her huge, round breasts and tight, sensitive cunt was as 'real' as a woman could get - in body.

Given her male upbringing, however, it didn't occur to her until much, much too late that it was possibly to make something too perfectly realistic - and by the time she realized that it probably would have been for the best if she'd made herself infertile, the strange and powerful hormonal changes of pregnancy had kicked in, making her incapable of making any sort of rational decisions about the situation...

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: When a wanna-be witch comes to her next door neighbor and ask for his help practicing spells, he has no idea it is going to lead to him living his life as a female.

Final Exam

By Gunslinger

Sarah blushed - something she wasn't accustomed to doing, but which Peter thought she did most prettily, the flush bringing color to the dark-haired young woman's flawlessly pale, milky skin.

"I... I need your help." She admitted, slowly.

To say Peter was surprised was an understatement. Not only was Sarah hardly known to admit needing help from anybody at all, if Peter had ever stopped to consider if-and-when she would ask for help, he would be pretty far down the list of people he'd think she'd turn to. Not that they were enemies, exactly - it was just, as neighbors went, they weren't particularly...well, neighborly. He, tall and broad-shouldered, was a twenty-four year old 'jock', while she was a slender, pale twenty-one year old 'Goth'. They had very little in common - including schedules, since she was definitely a 'night owl', and while he still occasionally partied late into the night, he was mostly a day person.

So, to come home from work Friday afternoon and find her not only already up and about during daylight hours, but waiting for him in front of his apartment door was more than a bit unusual. Her statement, however, was downright amazing, and Peter's bushy eyebrow rose in surprise.

"Well, uh, Sarah..." Peter said, working through his faint sense of shock. "What is it I can do for you?"

Usually quite self-assured and reserved, her furtive glances were out of place. She pursed her dark-painted lips, and inclined her head towards the door to her apartment. "Uh.. can we discuss this inside?"

Peter nodded, and followed her to the door of her apartment, which she opened just long enough for them to slip inside before closing it, almost as if she were afraid of the sunlight 'contaminating' the room.

This was the first time Peter had been in her apartment - but it was more or less what he'd expected. Black was the predominant color in her decor, and there was very much a Gothic feel to the furnishings and finishings.

"So - what's up?" Peter asked, letting himself being lead to a heavy wooden chair with deep, dark-purple velvet cushions. He sank into it, and watched as she sat in a matching chair across from him, her black-painted nails fidgeting nervously with the hem of the short, leather skirt that displayed her pale, fishnet-stockings clad legs.

Taking a deep breath, she finally managed to get her gaze to meet Peter's hazel eyes. "Peter, I'm... a witch." She said.

Peter pursed his lips. He looked the short, elfin-like girl up and down, from the mop of short, black hair to the toes of her knee-high black leather 'combat'-style boots.

"I see." He said, finally, his voice neutral. "Do you mean, like, a real, card-carrying 'cast a curse' witch?" Her blush increased - but she nodded.

"Yeah - well, that is, almost. You see, that's what I need your help with..."

"Oh...?" Peter asked, carefully. He wasn't quite sure what to make of her claim, and he was quite carefully reserving judgment - for the moment.

"To be a full-fledged witch, I need to pass the final test." She said, blush deepening. "It's sort of a three-in-one test. Truth, Trust, and Power."

"Truth, Trust, and Power?" Peter repeated, carefully. She seemed too intent - too honest - for this to be some sort of elaborate gag... so either she was completely insane, or this was - to her at least - the truth.

She nodded.

"Truth - because I have to take the risk of revealing myself to a 'Normal' - a person with no connection to other Mystics, like myself." She explained.

"Ah - and that's where I come in." Peter said.

"Partially." She agreed. "The other two parts are 'Trust' and 'Power' - because, once I have proven to you that I am what I say I am, I have to get your willing agreement to let me cast a spell on you. That's the whole test, you see - Find a Normal, convince him, and Enchant him. If I do all three, I pass."

"Okay..." Peter said, slowly. "Uh, I hope you won't be offended, Sarah... but I'm not sure I'm convinced, yet. I mean, I'm sure you believe you're a 'real' witch, but..."

"That's still part of the 'Truth'." She said. "See, it's sort of a test of judgment - because, once I prove to you I'm an apprentice witch, we'll see if my judgment about how you'll react is correct."

Taking a deep breath, Sarah lifted her hands in front of her and began to chant in an oddly low, hollow-sounding voice. Bemused, Peter watched her...

...and then started, violently, his jaw dropping and his eyes widening in amazement, as a glowing ball of blue-green flame began to form between her out-stretched hands.

There were no hidden gas-pipes feeding the flame - her leather bodice-style top left her slender arms bare to the shoulders. The ball of flame wasn't an illusion or projection - it cast of a bright, blue-green light, and Peter could feel the heat radiating out from it.

Heat that stirred Sarah's short mop of dark hair, but didn't burn the flesh of the pale hands just an inch away from either side of the flaming, hissing, burbling ball.

Suddenly spreading her fingers wide, Sarah barked out a command in that strange, harsh language she'd been chanting in - and the ball of flame vanished, and she tensed slightly in her seat, her dark eyes watching for his reaction almost fearfully.

"Holy... shit..." Peter breathed, unconsciously shaking his head from side to side - and then, slowly, a faint smile formed on his lips. "I bet that comes in handy for lighting cigarettes..."

Sarah returned his smile, her tense shoulders relaxing. "So.. you believe me, then?"

"I.. guess I have to." Peter said, still trying to wrap his mind around the fact that magic - 'real' magic - actually existed. It seemed impossible - but Peter himself would admit that he was an uncomplicated man. He didn't understand electronics or electricity, and to him the workings of a television or computer were practically 'magic' - but it didn't bother him. He didn't care if he didn't understand how something worked, as long as it did. His own eyes had just shown him what certainly appeared to be witchcraft - and, understand it or not, he wasn't going to start disbelieving his senses now.

"You're not freaked out? Panicked?" Sara pressed.

"A little." Peter admitted, wryly. "This isn't exactly an everyday thing for me, you know? Thing is, though - you haven't changed. Oh, you can do things I didn't know, until just now, that you can do - but if you were going to do 'bad things' to me with it, you could have done it any time you wanted, whether I knew about it or not. So..."

"So... you trust me?" Sarah asked, almost breathlessly. "I mean... you'll let me put a spell on you?"

"Whoa, slow down." Peter said, raising his hands. "I'm still trying to wrap my head around the fact that it's possible for you to really put a spell on me. I'm not quite to the point of agreeing to it."

"Oh." She said, crestfallen.

Peter sighed. "What type of, uh.. 'spell'?"

She blushed, slightly. "Actually, the only spell I know, with the requisite power to qualify, is the transformation spell."

"So, what exactly is it that you're asking of me?" Peter pressed.

"Uh..." She said, blush deepening. "I, um.. Well, can I turn you into a dog for the weekend?" "What?" Peter blurted out, shocked.

"Well, the spell takes roughly twenty-four hours to 'set'." She explained. "At that point, it becomes as if the new form is your 'natural' one, and the effort, which lessens during that day, is finally gone completely. Then I need at least another day to 'rest up' enough for the change back. You see, once the new form has set, it takes just as much effort to change you back as the first change did to change you in the first place."

"You want me to spend the weekend as a dog?" Peter demanded.

"Well, it doesn't have to be a dog..." Sarah said, with a sigh. "I just figured that would be easiest. I mean, I could make you a cat - but the bigger the change in mass, the harder the spell is. A big dog would be a lot easier. Something else, say, and ape, with just about your own mass would be easiest of all - but an ape would attract a lot more attention than a dog would, don't you think?"

Peter, however, was shaking his head. "I'm sorry, Sarah - but no way. I'm not spending three days as a dog. I know it would help you... but I just can't agree to it. I mean, not being able to talk, not having hands.. hell, what about going to the washroom? You can't actually expect me to go down to the park and use a tree, now can you? It's just out of the question!"

"Please, Peter...!" Sarah said, all but begging. "If I fail this test, I can't try it again for at least a year. It's the rules - and it started as soon as I told you who - what - I am. Please, if you turn me down, I'll fail!"

Peter felt sorry for her - but not that sorry. "No, Sarah - I just can't agree to it."

"An ape then?" She asked - begged. "You'd have hands, and you could use the toilet - we'd just have to keep you hidden, out of sight, and..."

"I.. don't think so." Peter said, genuinely regretful. Sure, he didn't owe her anything - but he didn't like to see her suffer, even if she was just one step up from a perfect stranger. "I... I guess I'm just too used to being human. The thought of even just being an ape, unable to talk... doesn't feel right."

Sarah looked like she was going to cry, pulling even more on Peter's guilty feelings - and then her eyes brightened.

"Uh.. there's another choice..." She suggested, her tone of voice decidedly delicate. "I mean, something that would still qualify..." "Oh...?" Peter asked, carefully.

"Instead of a change of species.. a change of gender..." Peter gaped at her.

"You want to turn me into.. into a girl?" He blurted, shocked.

"You'd still be human!" She pointed out, quickly. "You could talk, you could even go out in public... if you wanted to. I mean... would it really be such a big deal?"

Peter just continued to stare at her, shocked. "Please?" She quite literally begged.

"Just.. give me a minute..." Peter said, awkwardly, trying to deal with the new thought that had just been introduced. She fell silent, giving Peter a chance to think it over.

His immediate impulse was to tell her to go to hell... but the longer he thought about it, the more he realized she wasn't really asking all that much of him. Certainly, he was less than sanguine about the idea - but it wasn't like it was going to hurt him in any way.

Indeed, a lot of the negative feelings came from the thought of being 'seen' to be less masculine - but it wasn't like she was asking him to wear a dress, where anybody who looked at him would see Peter, acting feminine. If this spell thing really worked, then he'd be a woman in women's clothing - and though the thought of that might make him uncomfortable, he knew nobody else but Sarah and himself would know of his 'perversion'...

...and that, of course, interested up some intriguing ideas.

After all, he was basically being offered a chance to see what life was like for a woman - without any possibility of getting 'caught' at doing it.

It took him nearly fifteen minutes to come to that conclusion, and he still felt somehow 'dirty' for even considering the idea of willingly letting somebody 'steal' his masculinity and leave him a 'mere' woman...

...but, mixed in with those disquieting emotions and thoughts was a certain sense of... guilty excitement, made all the more enticing by that 'forbidden' aspect of it.

"I guess..." He said, slowly, "...as long as you are absolutely positive that you can change me back - and that nobody else will find out about this... well, then, I guess I could, you know, deal with being a.. a woman... for a few days."

"Oh, Peter - thank you!" Sarah gushed, completely abandoning her usual reserve as she almost literally threw herself into his arms for a long hug of gratitude...

...and even as he enjoyed feeling her lean, lithe body in his arm, Peter couldn't help but feel his was making some sort of horrible, horrible mistake.

* * * * *

"Are you ready...?" Sarah asked, finishing the last of her lengthy preparations.

Laying on a small velvet-covered divan in the middle of an intricately-drawn series of designs on the floor of the apartment, Peter was desperately tempted to say 'no', and back out now. Dressed in a pair of loose-fitting boxer shorts and a thick terry-cloth bathrobe, his heart was pounding a mile a minute at the idea of letting himself being turned into a woman - but, on the other hand, he'd just spent the last hour and a half calling a few friends and claiming he was going out of town for the weekend, and taking care of all the other preparations for a 'missing weekend'.

"I... guess so." He finally agreed.

"Then let's do it!" She said, with completely understandable - but, to Peter, nevertheless excessive - enthusiasm.

Lighting the tall taper candles placed at strategic points around the designs on the floor, Sarah - now dressed in a long, flowing black velvet gown - raised her arms towards the ceiling and began to chant in that low, guttural voice she used when performing a spell.

As she chanted, Peter had his own part to play in the casting of the spell. Though she was providing the actual magic to achieve the transformation, it had to be a 'willing' change on his part - part of the 'safety measures' instilled within the world of witches. Though it was somewhat relaxed for more powerful and mature witches, whose judgment on using magic on unwilling subjects was a little more trustworthy, for an apprentice witch it was utterly absolute. After all, otherwise an unscrupulous witch could choose to interpret a person's agreement to allow for something the person never intended.

That being the case, it was up to Peter to actually determine the form he'd wear for the next three days, to ensure that there was no possible way Sarah could 'screw him over'. As she chanted, he closed his eyes and concentrated on building as detailed an image as possible of the woman he'd become.

It seemed like such an easy thing to do, when she'd explained it to him. He'd come up with a rough idea of what woman he'd like - well, no, not 'like', but would be willing to be. Some tall, well-muscled 'female body-builder' type, one who was only barely female, but not looking anything like Peter, so that nobody would have any chance of making the connection.

Now, however, laying on the divan with Sarah chanting and his heart pounding, he found it much harder than he'd expected, his mind wanting to flit all over the place. As he felt the magic encircling him growing in power and needing an outlet, he struggled to force his mind to concentrate on the image he'd decided on...

...but, even as he was considering the mental image, his undisciplined mind began to run away with him.

At first, he barely noticed it, too busy focusing on the mental image of the 'female body builder' he was planning to become. Oh, certainly, he was aware of himself thinking about how ugly the image he was creating was, to him - but he didn't think about the fact that he was thinking about it, because he agreed completely with himself. Female body-builders certainly weren't his 'thing', and he'd never actively tried to 'fantasize' one before. No, when he was imagining a female form, it was usually something more like...

Before he could catch himself, before he could even realize what exactly he was doing, his mind slipped naturally into more familiar channels, and the mental image he was struggling so hard to create instead slipped towards one that was no trouble at all for his mind's eye to 'focus' on - being one much more pleasurable to his sense of feminine aesthetics. Then, it was entirely too late - as the magic suddenly took hold.

It was nearly indescribable - and certainly the strangest thing Peter had ever experienced. Somehow, it felt almost as if his mental image had become 'liquid', and was oozing outwards from his mind and through flesh and bone that liquefied as it passed. The magic itself felt like a cold heat that melted his body, and then a warm freeze that resolidified it - into the form he'd been holding in his imagination.

A form far different then the one he'd intended to hold.

"Oh, shit..." Peter-who-was-no-longer-Peter sighed as the change finished, knowing without having to look that he-who-wasn't-a-he had screwed up. Even the sensations coming from the newly feminine body and the sound of the newly feminine voice were redundant verification - for the new woman was well aware of the figure she'd been imagining at that last, crucial image, and it was about as far from the 'unpleasant' image she'd been attempting to form, against her own 'judgment'.

After all, nothing in the new woman's past had ever led her to try and discipline her mind into fantasizing about a female body unattractive to her. Of course, nothing in her past had been geared towards imagining herself as that woman, either - but, undisciplined, her mind had ignored all the repercussions of the form, and just went for the 'eye candy' pleasure of it.

"Whoa..." Sarah said, sounding a bit tired. "That's... quite the body you chose for yourself..."

"This wasn't the body I was planning on." The new woman said, wryly, as she pushed herself into a half-seated position and looked down at her figure with a sigh. "My.. imagination sort of got away from me. My brain is sort of trained to imagine female bodies.. but this type, rather than the one I was planning to give myself."

"Oh..." Sarah said, blushing brightly. "You have, uh... interesting tastes."

"Yeah, I know..." A blush of her own on her new face. "Can we, uh... try again?"

Sarah hesitated. "I.. I don't have the strength to let this transformation 'slip', then start a new one." She said, face working with motion. "If.. If you tell me to let you change back, I will, of course... but then, I'll have failed..."

The new woman almost went ahead and demanded to be changed back into a man... but something stopped her. Several something's, actually, not the least of which were pride and guilt.

This wasn't Sarah's fault. It had been Peter's job to decided on the form and hold the image of it in his-then-her mind...and so, she'd gotten what she'd deserved, as uncomfortable as it might be. It had been her mistake - and she was going to have to live with it, at least for the next three days.

"No..." She sighed, not without some wry humor. "This was my own fault, and I'll just have to deal with it."

Pushing herself the rest of the way into a seated position, Peter shook her new head and looked down at the female form she was going to be inhabiting for the next seventy-two hours.

It was quite the form - and, even though she'd never wanted to be inhabiting it, the new woman couldn't help but find it 'sexy', despite her discomfort - for, of course, she was seeing it through the lens of her own taste in feminine flesh, and it was, of course, just about her own idea of a 'perfect babe'.

No - that wasn't quite true. Even Peter would admit that the type of woman he-then-she had imagined wouldn't make a 'real' good girlfriend, in reality. No, this was strictly the body of a 'no repercussions, no past, no future' fantasy woman.

It showed.

She was pure seductress.

The word best used to describe her would be 'lush' - from the lush fall of her thick, rich wave of mahogany hair, to the lush curvature of her body. She was, most definitely, 'a whole lot of woman' - not in the sense that she was fat, but in the sense that her curves abounded. Her waist, which would have been 'thick' on any other woman, was made narrow by the wide flare of her broad hips below, and the scope of her full, heavy breasts above - breasts that, though lacking the spherical perfection of implants, were remarkably firm for their 'natural' size, and only barely kept from being 'too much of a good thing' by her equally broad shoulders, made feminine by the overall well-padded curves of her figure.

Her legs were also well-packed and full - but also long enough to keep from looking 'thick', or worse, 'sturdy' - instead, they were quite sexy, especially leading up to the incredibly full, firm ass that would have looked ridiculously huge on a slimmer pair of hips.

Her face, also, was a study in lush sensuality, with a broad chin and sharp nose that would have been 'big' or even 'masculine' on any other woman - but with her broad cheek-bones and dark, sultry eyes, she instead had a sort of 'Sophia Loren' sexiness, especially with full lips that, once again, answered to the description of 'lush' - as did the long lashes framed her heavy-lidded sensual eyes.

Her nationality was hard to pin down, but it was undeniably a full-figured Mediterranean look, with dusky skin adding a hint of the exotic to her seductress looks. It was the look of a woman designed - not just for 'mindless sex' - but to seduce men, easily and without any self-consciousness or cruel intention, into highly enjoyable sex.

In short, just the sort of 'fantasy woman' Peter had long dreamed about, one who enjoyed sex and would willingly - even happily - entice her lover into giving her the 'pleasure' of pleasing him sexually...

...and now it was the body she was wearing.

"Well... this is going to be interesting..." the new woman breathed, running her hands over her smooth, softly-firm flesh, so unnaturally smooth and silken beneath her question hands. "I guess it won't kill me to stay like this for three days, though."

"Oh, Peter - thank you!" Sarah gushed, amazed - and happy - that the new woman wasn't going to break the deal and go back to being a man after finding herself in an unexpected sensual body. The slimmer woman flew into the half-naked new woman's arms for yet another thank-you hug...

...and the new woman had to bite down on her full, rounded new lower lip to keep from gasping in pleasure as the other woman's body pressed against her own.

It was purely physical. Peter's mind hadn't been 'messed with' at all - but, as in her fantasies about this time of woman, her new body was designed for pleasure, and that's what it felt. The press of Sarah's chest against her own, full bust, the touch of the other woman's warm skin against her - all of it caused considerably more pleasure than she'd expected, and her body reacted as could be expected of a fantasy woman's body - it became aroused, her thick, frank nipples standing at attention and a warm and very pleasant moisture building in her crotch.

"You're welcome..." She said, awkwardly, unsure how to cope with the incredible ease and speed with which her new body became aroused.

"I'm just so happy, Peter...!" Sarah said, not yet noticing the new woman's state of arousal. "Oh, hmm... Peter doesn't quite seem to fit you anymore. I mean, if we do go out in public, and people hear me calling you 'Peter' - well, it would sound a little weird, wouldn't it?"

"I.. guess so..." She agreed, not really paying all that much attention. Instead, she was busy 'experiencing' the strange pleasure of being an aroused woman. She felt guilty enjoying the sensation - but that didn't mean she didn't concentrate on enjoying it.

"How about..." Sarah said, disengaging from the new woman and tapping her chin as she stared thoughtfully off into space. "Petra. How does that sound...?"

Sarah lowered her gaze, eager to see the new woman's response to her suggestion...

...and then she blushed and looked rapidly away.

Blushing herself, the new woman quickly pulled her hand out of her now-straining boxers and hastily wiped her moist fingers on the hem of the bathrobe that hung, parted, over her full, firm breasts.

"Sure, Petra would be fine." She agreed - more to move past the awkward moment than out of any real affinity for the new name. "Great idea, Petra I'll be."

"Oh, okay, good..." Sarah said, awkwardly - and then, face flushing even deeper red, she turned her gaze back to the newly-renamed woman, a thoughtful pucker to her lips. "You seem, um, to be... enjoying your new body."

Peter/Petra's blush deepened too. "Oh, well.. um.. Like I said, it's sort of my fantasy-woman's body...and I'd always fantasized it as being, uh... highly sensitive, and..."

She trailed off, embarrassed - but though Sarah's blush was as deep as ever, the look in her eye was nearly wicked.

"Would you like to... experiment?" She asked, her eyes tracing up and down Petra's lush new form. "I mean, I'm not really into girls, but if you'd like..."

Petra stared at the witch in shock - then her flush deepened as far as it could possibly go...

...and she, slowly and hesitantly, nodded.

"It might.. be " She said, barely able to believe that, mere minutes after being turned into a voluptuous, sexy woman, she was actively seeking out a sexual experience, even if it was with another woman - but, feeling the sensations she already had, eager to find out what it could feel like if more directly explored. " interesting."

Having been honest when she said she wasn't 'into' women, Sarah's movements were a little hesitant, a little self-conscious...

...but then again, so were Petra's, so it all balanced out.

Slowly and deliberately parting Petra's robe to reveal her lush new body, Sarah leaned forward, hands sliding up to the firm globes of Petra's new breasts before sliding back down and around, ending up behind her back - as the pressure of her hands on Petra's tits was replaced with the pressure of her own, considerably more modest bust-line as she leaned in for a long, deep kiss - one that expressed all her gratitude for what Peter/Petra was doing.

By the time Sarah broke the kiss and began slowly working her way downward, caressing, kissing and licking the new woman's dusky body, 'self-conscious' was the last thing either of them were, so caught up in the moment that any sense of shame or embarrassment was only something being filed away in the backs of their mind to be remembered later.

For Petra, this high sense of arousal was a combination of her body's new sensitivity, and her amazement at her first sexual experiences as a woman - and for Sarah, it came from finding herself more unbelievably turned on than she thought she possibly could be by the 'kinky' thought of making love to a man she'd transformed into a woman.

When Sarah's slow, southward journey ended with her pushing down Petra's boxers and apply a quick, supple tongue to a thoroughly moistened womanhood, Petra was seriously wondering why every woman on the planet wasn't just a lesbian.

Two sets of silky-smooth skin, one pale and one dusky. To soft, feminine voices making soft sounds of pleasure. Two pairs of breasts, one large and one more modest.

Smooth legs.

Gentle, delicate hands. Full lips.

Silky hair...

...and the moist, highly sensitive slits with their pink little pearls of pleasure... Time lost all meaning.

* * * * *

"God God...!" Petra sighed, softly, sprawled limply across the divan, dark eyes wide in reverent shock. She stared at the ceiling, barely capable of absorbing, much less believing, how utterly sated her body was, a deep sense of utter satisfaction that left her feeling incredibly relaxed, yet not at all tired.

"Yeah." Sarah agreed, feeling much the same way.

Letting her head roll to the side, Petra brushed a lock of thick, mahogany hair from in front of her eyes and stared at the clock on the wall in disbelief.

"Three hours?" She said, stunned. "We've been having sex for three hours?" "Yeah." Sarah repeated, in a dreamy tone.

"Wow..." Petra breathed. "There's something no man, no matter how virile, could claim..."

In the odd mental state that accompanied her physical satisfaction, she slowly reviewed the constant lesbian pleasures of the past three hours - including more orgasms than she could conveniently count.

"I never knew how incredibly... all-encompassing a woman's orgasm is!" She muttered - still incredibly bemused to be ABLE to make such a claim, truthfully. "For a guy, it's a lot more... localized."

"Really?" Sarah asked - herself bemused to be having a 'girl talk' with somebody who could provide a first-hand account of a man's sexual experience.

"Yeah. In fact, it's actually more intense..." Petra stopped suddenly, and shook her head. "No, that's not right. There's probably the same total amount of pleasure, but for a guy it's all in his cock, so it's more... 'concentrated. But it's also over a hell of a lot more quickly."

"Tell me about it." Sarah said, a bit bitterly - and then she blushed in a most becoming manner.

Looking at each other, the two women - one life-long, the other of a considerably more recent vintage - burst out laughing.

After they took turns having a shower, the women had a late dinner, then settled won to watch some TV - normal, everyday actions.

Actions made new and exciting for Petra by the fact she was doing them in a woman's body, feeling the sensations a woman would feel...

...and, surprisingly, new and exciting for Sarah, who still couldn't believe how arousing she found it to be 'playing' with a transformed male.

Some time later, by unspoken mutual consent, the TV was shut off, and they headed off to the big bed in Sarah's bedroom...

...and after she'd been most thoroughly - and intimately - introduced to Sarah's little pink plastic friend. The two women drifted off into a deep, exhausted sleep of utter contentment, still entwined on sweat-dampened sheets.

* * * * *

When Petra awoke, she was alone.

Yawning, she climbed out of bed and, naked, pattered around the apartment, wondering where her lesbian lover had gotten too - but more interested in being pleasantly bemused by being able to claim a lesbian lover than she was by worrying about Sarah.

Besides - wherever Sarah might have gone, she'd left that delightful little pink dildo behind....

Petra, so recently Peter, was still quite capable of feeling more than a little ashamed to be fucking herself with Sarah's hot-pink plastic phallus...

...but not nearly so much as to stop herself from doing it, still amazed to find how responsive this new body of his was.

Of course, it was somewhat more than the 'average' woman's body would be - but it wasn't even close to being outside the 'known' range. The easy and strong arousal of her body was simply at the other end of the spectrum from, and no more uncommon than, women who were 'frigid'.

Not that Petra particularly knew or cared about that - all she knew was the fact that everything was 'new and different' simply increased the somewhat guilty pleasure that she felt, emotionally, in enjoying the uncomplicated pleasure of her body, physically.

When Sarah returned, it turned out she had been shopping. She'd purchased a half-dozen outfits at a second hand store, 'guesstimating' the new woman's dimensions from a combination of personal experience with women's sizes and a highly detailed, if untechnical, series of 'hand measurements', based on having touched every square inch of Petra's new flesh at one point or another.

Not one of the outfits had pants, or even shorts. Just dresses and skirts and blouses.

Petra didn't mind putting on the dress Sarah urged on her - but had to be somewhat convinced to try the shoes with the two-inch heels, 'just to see' the entire effect...

...which, some time later, led her to not-quite-reluctantly letting Sarah 'do' her hair...

...and, after that, getting made-up was almost a given. Several hours later, she stood in front of the mirror.

She wore a tight-fitting crushed-velvet dress in dark, faded 'Old Gold', with nude nylons and brown pumps with a three-inch heel. Her hair, pulled up high on her head, in turn spilled down in thick rings past a face carefully made up to accentuate her full lips and dark, mysterious eyes.

It was agreed that it made her look unbelievable 'hot'...

...which, in turn, lead to nearly an hour's worth of careful look for that final effect being all-but-torn from her body as they once more wound up on the bed, pale and dusky bodies writhing in consensual pleasure.

* * * * *

This isn't natural." Petra said, with a yawn, as they 'cuddled'. "You weren't interested in women, and while I was, it was a guy - and yet, here we are, a day later, having spent more then half our time since I became a woman having wild, passionate sex."

"Are you complaining?" Sarah asked with a tired giggle. "Not at all." Petra admitted.

A moment's silence went past, and Petra thought Sarah had drifted off to sleep - then:

"You're 'set', you know." Sarah said, softly. "It's been a day. By this time tomorrow, I'll be strong enough for the second transformation spell."

Petra considered that.

"Well, then - let's not waste any time..." She said - and, this time, she was the one who began kissing, licking and caressing her way towards a moist, warm womanhood...

* * * * *

The next day, some time between their slower, more... 'loving bouts of sapphic sex, they found time to go out for lunch.

It was, surprisingly, Petra's idea. She wanted a chance to go 'incognito' in public - not that she went unnoticed, by any means, not in that ensemble they'd agreed was so hot.

But nobody knew that this hot babe was, 'really', a guy, and that's what made it so deliciously delightful - more then enough to make up for the slow roil of Petra's stomach as she, admittedly illogically, awaited someone to 'unmask' her for the fraud she was.

No one did, of course...

...but they had an incredibly close all in the alleyway behind the restraint when, excited and aroused far beyond what she would have believed possible by her 'kinky' jaunt out into the world as a woman, Petra had dragged Sarah back there for some public sex.

Scared, excited, shocked, guilty and unbelievably aroused by the near-miss, they retreated - rapidly and not-quite-decently to Sarah's apartment...

...and made wild, unfettered love until, late that night, it was agreed that it was time for Peter to reappear in the world of men.

* * * * *

Peter's eyes all-but-rolled back in his head, and he moaned in deep pleasure as the warm, softly-firm lips wrapped around his cock brought him to orgasm. He twitched, his hot cum jetting thick and fast into the willing, waiting mouth.

"God - that feels fantastic!" Peter gasped, leaning his head forward to peer down. "No wonder guys love getting blown so much." He added, after a second.

"I always enjoyed it." Petra admitted, licking the last of the cum from her full, lipstick-clad lips, the rising and settling herself on her boyfriend's lap to claim a quick kiss.

Peter's hands, almost on their own, went to their accustomed positions - one helping hold Petra on his lap while not-coincidentally squeezing her magnificently full ass, the other coming up to lightly play with one equally magnificent breast.

"So - how did it go?" Petra asked. Peter chuckled.

"Well, they admitted I passed the test - but I can't be admitted as a fully accredited witch while I'm still a man." Sarah-as-Peter said. Petra laughed.

"Well..." She said, pausing for another kiss... while sliding a hand down to grasp the cock of her old, male body, still feeling that incredible arousal at fucking 'himself' even after more than a month. "...it'll just have to wait, then."

Peter's cock began to harden.

"I'm still nowhere near skilled enough to do the transformation spell." Petra continued - while pressing her full breasts against her old, male body's hairy chest.

"When I made that agreement, that I'd become Peter and stay 'you' until you learned enough witchcraft to transform us both back into our original genders, I thought I'd be spending a hell of a lot of more time tutoring you." Peter said, trying to sound firm - and failing, even as a certain part of his new body became firm. "Instead, I spend all day pretending to be you at your job - and then, when I get home, you're all hot and ready to trot. If not for the limitations of the male organ, we'd never get anything done..."

Petra, smiling mysteriously, swung her dusky, shapely leg around, momentarily bracing her weight on Peter's broad shoulders. "That's because I'm in absolutely no hurry to change back." She said, huskily...

...and then happily impaled her warm, wet, wonderful womanhood on her lover's hard, throbbing cock.

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: A detective on the job looking for a gender change clinic, agrees to change bodies with a female doctor, to meet his clients needs.

Final Gambit

By Gunslinger

The twenty-fifth floor of the Harriman was as large as the floors below it, but considerably more expensive, as it was the penthouse level, large and spacious. It was unusual for that much area to be taken up by a single company. The floors below it all housed at least two, and on the twelfth there were eleven companies sharing the same floor.

So it was unprecedented that the 'corporation' housed on that floor - 'Results, Incorporated' - consisted not of a few dozen industrious staffers, but a single man.

But that was the case. Not that the other tenants - or even the landlords - of the building knew how many people did or didn't work on the top floor. Everything about the nebulously-named company was mysterious - who worked there, what they did, or how much they made doing it. They couldn't even glean a clue from the clientele - the penthouse had a separate ground-floor lobby that led to an express elevator to the top floor. As soon as 'Results, Inc.' had moved in, that ground-floor lobby had become a high-security enclave with heavily tinted windows, forestalling any attempt to discover anything at all about the unusual company.

And the man who lay at the center of all this mystery was Jonathan Kirkland Tyler.

Tyler wasn't an imposing man, physically. Although he was well into his forties, he didn't appear a day over twenty-eight. He was a few inches above average height, but slightly on the slender side in build, a fact mitigated by years of demanding physical exercise that had built up his musculature to a fair degree. Interestingly, he had never set foot inside a gym - the bulk came from the sometimes- excessive physical strains of his work.

His hair was worn short but stylish, and it was black across the top and back, shading into a dark brown at the temples. Aside from a brief period in the seventies, he always kept his face clean shaven. The face itself was neither ugly nor terribly beautiful - but imbued with a rugged, masculine cast that some women seemed to find attractive.

But his eyes...

His eyes could turn a woman's knees to jelly or a brave man to a coward. They could see to the core of your soul, winnow away the chaff and pass judgment on what was left. They could be set anywhere from 'stun' to 'disintegrate'. His eyes made John Tyler a God.

They were... Gray? Gray Blue? They were the color of an iceberg in a storm-tossed ocean. They were a metallic, depthless gray that had no equal in the world. And in the case of John Tyler, the old saying that 'eyes are the windows of the soul' was the simple truth.

Tyler's business - Tyler's life - was built around one, simple concept:

Get it done.

No matter how unlikely, unfeasible or impossible a job was, Tyler's singular skills guaranteed the completion of whatever task he took on. John Tyler wasn't just a man unaccustomed to failure - he was a man completely unfamiliar with either the concept or reality of failure. Not once in his long and varied career as the performer of the impossible had he ever, once, experienced failure.

And when your skill was procuring, solving, finding or fixing the impossible, you could ask for any fee you wanted - and get it. Tyler asked for a lot.

And got it.

John Tyler was seated behind the massive hand-crafted desk that was the centerpiece of his office. It was a huge semi-circle of solid wood, carved from a single piece of a Giant Sequoia. Even the drawers had been carefully cut from the trunk, shaped in one piece each, then returned to the same hole they came from, their grain and pattern matching so perfectly the rest of the highly-polished wood that someone unfamiliar with the desk would have a hard time even finding them. The massive, priceless desk was but one of many extremely valuable items or artifacts that he possessed - but was arguably the most useful, as it he used it daily, his expensive - and not commercially available - computer resting atop it's close-grained surface. It was this computer that gave off a muted 'beep', indicated that somebody was endeavoring to gain access to the ground-floor lobby.

Tyler was in the middle of reassembling a Barrett Light Fifty, a sniping rifle chambered in the massive fifty caliber shell. Although his gaze rose to the monitor, his hands never paused in their skillful re-assembly of the weapon.

The monitor blinked, splitting into a four-window view. The upper right indicated the status of the active security systems - defensive and offensive - indicating that all were on-line and ready.

The lower left window presented a fiber-optic feed from the high-resolution camera above the door. In remarkable color and clarity it displayed the short, somewhat pudgy man who was standing outside the door, dressed in a conservative and very expensive Saville Row suit. The man, who was starting to bald, also wore a pair of gold wire-rim glasses, and the resolution of the picture on the 35 inch monitor was good enough that Tyler had no problem identifying the watch on the man's wrist. Not the more trendy Rolex, it was a gold and platinum Cartier, with clear diamond chips for each of the numerals - except the four cardinal positions, which were black diamond.

Tyler was unimpressed by the $135,000 watch - many of his past customers had wealth to spare. The fact that the watch was of the less trendy, but higher quality make did intrigue him.

The lower right window shoed an image from almost the exact same viewpoint as the camera - but it was a completely different display. A combination of X-ray, Gamma, ultra-sound and infra-red, it displayed a ghostly picture of the man's innards, as well as every item that he carried, weather or not it would have been visible to the human eye unaided.

The pen in the inside jacket pocket was clearly defined, as was the cell-phone, the suspenders, the wallet - and the small steel pin in the left shoulder.

Finishing his work on the rifle, Tyler lay it aside, out of sight, and hit the F7 key, which unlocked the first door to the lobby. The pudgy newcomer stepped through the automatically controlled door, which immediately slid closed behind him.

The unknown man now stood in a 'man-trap'. A small room with two doors, both of which were under Tyler's control. They were made of three layers of poly-carbonate 'bullet-proof glass' capable of stopping almost any round - except for the massive fifty caliber. The doors were held closed by their hydraulic mechanisms, which were providing over two thousand pounds of pressure to keep them closed, ensuring that they couldn't be forced open. The rest of the room was made from titanium, kevlar, and more poly-carbonates. In short, anyone in there was effectively neutralized. They could only leave when Tyler willed it, and in the direction Tyler wanted. The room could even contain an explosion in excess of three-hundred pound of C-4 plastique.

Hitting another key, Tyler activated the two-way intercom, and spoke a single word in a voice totally devoid of any inflection. "Yes?"

The clarity of the intercom was remarkable - it was as if the man was standing right beside Tyler, not many stories below. His words were repeated with remarkable fidelity.

"Mr. Tyler? My name is William Desmond. A mutual acquaintance of ours suggested that you may be able to assist me with a rather... unusual problem I am having."

Immediately, Tyler's estimation of the pudgy man rose. Despite the man's less-than-inspiring physique, he had guts. Most of Tyler's possible clientele were rattled by know, but Desmond spoke calmly, strong without being blustering, and very straight-forward. He even offered his real name - at least, according the voice stress recorder built into the system, which was right about eighty-two percent of the time.

More importantly, Tyler's instincts told him it was true - and his instinct's reliability rating was damn near one-hundred percent. But, instincts notwithstanding, Tyler excelled by covering every base.

"Did our 'mutual friend' give you anything?" Tyler asked into the microphone.

"Of course." Desmond replied. "Oh - and I was told to say 'The Dog Barks at Midnight' when I show this." From his inside pocket, he withdrew a small, black card with embossed gold letters and held it for the lens to see. The business card bore only the words 'Results, Inc.' - no address, no other name, no phone, fax or cell number - just those two words. Therefore, anyone carrying it had to have been given it, as well as instructions what to do with it.

More importantly, the special sensor in the man-trap registered the tiny strip of depleted uranium thread in the card that indicated two very important facts - one, that it wasn't a forgery. Second, the very specific pattern of the threads indicated who had originally owned the card. The computer automatically scanned thirty-seven different databases, including the police scanner, for the slightest hint that the original owner had been blackmailed, injured, or in any other way coerced into giving up the card and information. In less then three seconds, the computer 'bleeped', indicating that the search had come up clean.

"Mr. Desmond, if you will be so kind as to leave your cellular phone on the small shelf to your right, I will let you in."

The pudgy man complied, then calmly entered the express elevator when Tyler let the doors slide open, and rode in silence up to the penthouse.

Tyler leaned back in his custom-built chair and propped his feet up on the desk as the elevator doors slid opened and deposited Desmond onto the Persian-rug-over-oak floor of the expansive office.

Gesturing to the comfortable leather chair on the other side of the desk, Tyler greeted his new client. "Have a seat, Mr. Desmond, and tell me what I can do for you."

Desmond took the proffered seat, appearing completely at ease.

"To tell you the truth Mr. Tyler, if our mutual friend hadn't been so quietly unshakable in your abilities, I wouldn't be here right now." Desmond said, leaning forward slightly. "From what I've been told by many other, supposedly highly reliable sources, what I'm after doesn't exist."

Tyler smiled tightly. "Then you've come to the right place, Mr. Desmond." Tyler said with utter assurance. "The impossible is my stock in trade."

Desmond nodded, then went directly to the heart of the matter with no apology or embarrassment at all in his tone or manner.

"Mr. Tyler, I am of the firm belief that nature made some sort of horrible mistake when I was born. By all rights, I should have been born female - or so I believe."

Tyler nodded. "And I can assume that Sexual Re-assignment Surgery is a poor facsimile of what you want?" "That's right. And, according to all the 'experts', there are no other options." Desmond said.

"However...?" Tyler prompted.

Desmond leaned back in the seat. "There have been some rumors - very vague, unspecified rumors, mind you - that someone, somewhere, has perfected a perfect process for changing genders. The rumors seem to indicate that, whatever the method, it is being with-held due to fear of Government interference due to illegal, 'immoral', or otherwise unacceptable methods."

Tyler considered his client, then wrote a figure on a small slip of paper and handed it across.

"For that sum, I will locate any and all possible methods of achieving the results you seek, rate them for feasibility, and, if necessary, advance them to the point where they will achieve what you find acceptable. The price is non-negotiable, payable upon successful completion of the task."

That caused Desmond to look somewhat startled. "Nothing up front?"

Tyler smiled his tight smile again. "Mr. Desmond, I only receive payment if I succeed. However, I should point out that yours is by no means the most 'impossible' task I've asked to perform - and I have never, ever, failed to collect my fee."

Rising, Desmond leaned forward, hand outstretched. "Then we have a deal." Tyler leaned forward and solemnly shook Desmond's hand, sealing the bargain...

...and his fate.

* * * * *

After Desmond's exit, Tyler started where he usually started such assignments - the computer.

His computer, itself unavailable to the public, also had access to many other computers that couldn't be accessed by the general public. Without the knowledge or agreement, Tyler's computer could link directly into the computer files a wide variety of sources, including the Central Intelligence Agency, The Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Pentagon, The National Security Agency, all State and Federal data-banks, The Department of the Treasury....

...and other computers world-wide, in Japan, China, England, Canada, Australia - and, amusing to Tyler, the main computer of the RVS, the down-sized - but still formidable - successor to the KGB.

Using a special interface of his own design, Tyler began his search for clues, using an intuitive heuristic Artificial Intelligence to winnow through the millions of files and find ones that corresponded to Tyler's search parameters, then combining all of those files into a single, comprehensive document that provided Tyler with his starting point for tracking down what he needed.

Unsurprisingly, the search included the Internet. That connection yielded a whole field of fiction that Tyler could discard, untouched. Likewise, all the references to SRS, hormonal therapies, and other 'conventional' methods.

Perforce, he left in the 'outlandish' techniques, as any of them might be the 'mythological' source of the rumor. Tyler was more than aware that many of these myths came from some kernel of fact - over-blown, distorted or mis-interpreted, but there.

This was by no means a quick process - it was spread over two weeks. Although, to the casual observer, Tyler would have seemed to be working leisurely, he was actually working at a frenetic pace. Tyler had long ago learned the near-vanished art of efficiency - gaining the maximum results with the least expenditure of energy. Hunching over a keyboard and pounding heavily at the keys didn't make the data come any faster than sitting back in the chair, typing casually, and sipping Irish Coffee while waiting for the screen to reload, which was Tyler's deceptive-looking method.

So, two-weeks of winnowing away the chaff passed by. Most times, when the chaff was removed, what remained had to be discarded, proving to be something totally unrelated to his objective.

Which is why Tyler sat forward with sharp interest when the computer 'bleeped' and gave a 'solid' hit on an obscure para-psychology journal entry from a half-decade in the past. Gently, Tyler ran his long, supple finger along the glowing line of time on the computer monitor.

86% Confidence - 'AP & OBE vis a vis Transference of Basic Electro-Psyche Patterns' With mounting interest, Tyler read the document from beginning to end - then again.

The title wasn't nearly as unrelated as it might first appear, he learned. AP & OBE were shorthand for Astral Projection and Out-of- Body Experiences. The rest of the title was the clincher - simply put, it indicated the article's main thesis, that if the AP subject encountered the 'empty physical body' of another AP subject, he/she could then enter that body, 'possessing' it. In short, their mind would reside in another body - and there was no reason, according to the article, why the second, 'new' body couldn't be of the opposite gender.

The article was written by one 'Dr. L. Meehaghn', and interestingly, a footnote indicated that though the paper had been published, it had never been presented. Moreover, the author, who had a few other published works before that article, apparently never published anything afterwards.

Satisfied, Tyler logged out of the search interface he was in, and brought up another. The next step was to find this 'Dr. L. Meehaghn', and find out whether the work was purely theoretical, or if there had ever been any empirical evidence...

* * * * *

Tyler pulled his black Hummer 4x4 up to the gate that was the only break in the monotonous ten-foot tall gray concrete wall surrounding the estate registered to L. Meehaghn.

In locating the address - no easy chore - he's discovered that the 'good doctor' was an enigma wrapped in a riddle and tied with a bow of questions trimmed in mystery. Nobody knew anything at all about the recluse.

The wall seemed the perfect metaphor. No attempt had been made to make it more attractive or less obvious. It was a tall, blank barrier designed for privacy - and nothing else.

It was a self-imposed exile that Tyler planned to break.

Leaning through the window of the wide vehicle, Tyler pushed the annunciation button on the intercom beside the massive steel gate. Several long minutes passed, and Tyler waited patiently, staring directly up into the unblinking lens of the security camera mounted atop a post, making sure that the occupant was aware that he had no plans of leaving.

Finally the intercom clicked on. A voice emerged - a strange, low, warbling voice that Tyler immediately identified as being produced electronically. As privacy went, this Meehaghn person was truly determined.

"Go away. Dr. Meehaghn isn't seeing anyone today." The eerie voice said. Tyler wished that he could read the inflections of the unaltered voice behind the facade.

"From what I understand, Dr. Meehaghn isn't seeing anyone, anytime." Tyler replied calmly. "Nevertheless, I need to speak with the doctor, regarding a research article published in ninety-two. I'm extremely interested in some of the ramifications behind it - and I'm not prepared to accept a brush-off."

"Go away." The voice repeated. "I'm not interested in talking about any of my work."

Well, that verified who it was at the other end of the intercom. And the crackle of the intercom being turned off verified the obsessive desire for privacy.

Not that it was going to stop him, of course...

* * * * *

The late-night breeze was brisk and chill as it stirred the trees inside the walled Meehaghn estate. The somewhat eerie light of the full moon lit the grounds in a silvery glow that glinted off the broken glass and loops of concertina wire embedded in the top of the stark, forbidding concrete wall that sealed off access to the grounds...

...or was supposed to, anyway.

From high above the moon-silvered estate, the lonely drone of an aging, twin-engine plane droned on as it flew along its approved flight-path from one airport to another. Oddly enough, this particular aircraft, a DC-3, had flown from the local airport to one farther north and to the east, so that the flight-plan to El Secunda airport would take it through this particular patch of sky.

Which is why, with a soft, muffled thud, Tyler dropped from the sky, his all-black jumpsuit and black parachute all but invisible against the night sky.

Performing a PLF - Parachute Landing Fall - to cushion the impact, Tyler then lay perfectly still for a moment, waiting. An earlier recon of the estate from a helicopter, using extremely high-powered binoculars and an infrared sight, had allowed him to pick out the cameras and motion sensors. Now, he waited to insure that he'd landed where he'd wanted to, in the blind area of the detection equipment. Like many security systems, this one had the common failure of only looking towards the perimeter - once past that zone, it was essentially useless.

Once he was sure he'd landed where he wanted, Tyler quickly gathered his 'chute into a ball and stuffed it under a convenient bush after unclipping the pack. Silently, like a shadow, he moved towards the house, keeping out of direct line of sight with the windows, cameras and motion detectors, until he reached the back door.

An efficient - and illegal - 'Lock-aid' gun, used by police forces to gain entry, made short work of the triple-locked back door. Tyler then used a special RF-meter/induction transmitter to bypass the security system's sensor on the door, and slipped inside.

For a fair sum of money, Tyler had been allowed to study the architect's plans of the house, and so knew the basic layout. The only other obstacles would be furnishings, which - of course- were not on the builder's plans. To overcome that, Tyler pulled on a pair of night-vision goggles and turned them on. By the eerie green image provided by the heavy goggles, he moved with assurance towards the stairs, and the master bedroom. A heat-sensor sweep of the house from the aircraft had verified the location of the only person in the house - the mysterious Dr. Meehaghn, presumably.

Nearing the door, Tyler slowed and slipped off the night-vision goggles. A sliver of wan light under the door indicated that the 'good doctor' slept with the light of the en suite bathroom turned on all night, which would provide all the light he'd need.

Silently, he opened the door slowly, and crept into the room. His dark-adapted eyes made the light spilling from the bathroom more than sufficient to make out the figure on the bed. Sometime during sleep, tossing and turning had pulled the covers away, leaving Meehaghn lying nude on the bed.

Tyler stopped and gaped, everything suddenly becoming clear. Dr. Meehaghn was a woman. Of that, there could be no doubt.

She was short, about five-foot even. But much of that height seemed to be taken up by the long, silky, incredibly sexy legs that led upwards to the gentle curve of her womanly hips. That gentle curve became a sudden drop-off as her hips gave way to an incredibly pinched waist, easily the slimmest waist that Tyler had ever seen.

Looming above that slender waist was a pair of huge, firm tits that seemed simply enormous on her petite frame. Unlike the silicone-enhanced breasts of many women, Meehaghn's weren't spherical masses that poked impudently up from her reclining figure. Due to their remarkable firmness, the actual breast itself was amazingly round, even reclined, but they didn't thrust from her chest like they were beach-balls glued in place, but hung naturally, looking vaguely like tear-drops - the round, spherical breast pulling down from the narrowing flesh that supported it.

Her face was a study in simple sexuality, with a pert nose, pointed chin and amazingly full lips, all capped by a thatch of short, bright golden hair.

Tyler understood why Meehaghn had never presented her papers in person, and why she wanted her privacy. From her work, it was obvious that she was talented, intelligent and ambitious. Yet, she had the body of some teenager's wet-dream. No colleague would ever be able to take such a woman seriously, no matter her qualifications or intellect.

This changed his plans slightly - although in execution rather than goal. Silently, Tyler retreated from the room...

* * * * *

"What the hell...?"

Tyler smiled his most engaging, 'harmless' smile. "Good Morning, Dr. Meehaghn. Coffee's ready, breakfast will be a few more minutes."

"Who the hell are you!" Dr. Meehaghn asked angrily. Well, as angrily as possible in a high, breathy soprano with just the faintest hint of a lisp. She drew her plush, salmon-colored bathrobe tighter around her, and ineffectually tried to cross her arms of her massive bust.

"Jonathan Tyler, at your service." Tyler said with a gallant bow. "I stopped by yesterday to speak with you. If you'll recall, I warned you that I wasn't going to accept a brush-off."

"How did you get in..." Meegahgn started, then shook her head. "Never mind, I'm calling the cops." She headed for the phone. On distinctly uncomfortable look graced her sensual face when she picked it up and found the line dead.

"I really wish you wouldn't" Tyler said, mildly. He held up a hand soothingly. "No, don't be afraid - I'm not going to hurt you. I didn't even cut your phone line - I just unplugged the junction in the basement. You can reconnect it anytime. I just wanted to slow you down for a moment so we could talk."

She was eyeing his muscular physique warily, and subtly worked her way to the other side of the counter, ready to bolt at any moment. "About what?"

Tyler finished preparing the breakfast and placed it on the table, along with some coffee. "Sit down and have some breakfast. While you're eating, I'll explain."

"I'm not hungry." She said flatly.

Tyler sighed. It looked like this was going to be difficult.

Meegahgn's eyes bulged and she gasp/screamed as Richard drew the nine-millimeter Glock from the belt holster behind his back and chambered a round. The expression changed to one of shocked confusion as he placed it on the counter and slid it across to her.

"I told you I wasn't going to do anything to hurt you. Perhaps that will make you feel safer." He said, seating himself at the far side of the table.

She picked up the gun, and Tyler was mildly surprised to note that she did so confidently and competently. Then in one smooth motion she lined the gun up and pulled the trigger.

The Glock jumped in her hand, driven backwards by expanding gasses as the small lead projectile left the muzzle at slight above the speed of sound. In a fraction of a second, it had transited the distance, and plowed through the layer of fabric and deep into the innards of the target.

"I think you're going to need a new couch." Richard said mildly, sipping his coffee.

Meegahgn looked surprised. She'd assumed the gun wasn't loaded, or it was loaded with blanks. Now, a confident look sat on her face as she settled into a chair across from Tyler, the gun pointed firmly at his head.

"Talk." She commanded.

Tyler nonchalantly sipped his coffee - and proceeded to explain everything without any misdirection, gloss-overs or blanks. The truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth.

"...shut the door to your room, and came down here and grabbed a couple hours of sleep on your couch. Then, I woke up and started breakfast, and waited for you." Tyler finished. He looked down at the bottom of his empty coffee mug. "Can I get a refill, Dr.

Meehaghn?"

Meehaghn looked at him steadily for a moment - then put the gun aside, and slid the coffee pot across the table. "The name's Linda." She said, accepting his story. It would be very hard not to - his straight-forward, obviously honest telling of it saw to that. "That's a hell of a lot of money your client is willing to pay."

Richard looked at her steadily. "Yes, it is." He cocked his head. "All right, I'll bite - how much." "Describe your client for me." She replied in a non-sequiter.

Tyler shrugged, and did so, pulling every detail from his near-perfect memory. When he was done, she shook her head. "No, no good."

Tyler blinked. "Excuse me?"

Linda looked at him bitterly. "You have no idea what it's like to go through life like this. The reason I started that research in the first place was in the hopes of trading bodies with a less.. well, with another woman." She snorted. "But even then, I'd be stuck living their life - and the two short-term test subjects I tried had lives that were shit. Being a woman in this society is hell on Earth." She sighed. "So, I was thinking. Your client would need a female body to transfer into. I thought of switching with him myself - after all, he's obviously rich and successful. I wouldn't mind being male." She made a face. "But I want a strong, healthy body..."

She trailed off, suddenly staring at Tyler shrewdly. "...like yours." She finished slowly.

That came as a shock to Tyler - and not many things did. "I beg your pardon?" he asked, unsure whether he'd heard right.

Linda smiled as wolfishly as possibly with her sensual features. "Here's the deal. Assuming that your client can find a willing - willing, mind you - woman to switch to, I'll do the transfer - on one condition. You and I switch as well."

Tyler set his jaw. "You have no idea what you're asking." He grated. In his work, he'd faced danger, death and injury without flinching - but this was simply unthinkable.

Linda cocked her head, and her soprano voice held longing and despair. "I do, actually. I've lived my life as a cartoonishly-sexual woman, never taken seriously. I'm smart, I'm determined - but no-one, male or female, ever gets past these..." She looked down at her massive tits. When she looked back up, her voice had become somehow both pleading and commanding. "Well, I'd given up. Now, I have some hope again - as you, I could have a real life. We're both reclusive, secretive people with no close friends or family to notice the switch. And, if I can't get that body of yours, I don't have any reason to help your client, so..."

Tyler gaped at her. Switch bodies? Live the rest of his life in her outrageously sexy body? But he'd never, ever failed a client...

Seeing the indecision - and more importantly, the consideration - on his face, Linda said "I'll give you twenty-four hours. Come back tomorrow to agree - or don't come back at all." She smiled slightly. "And there's no notes, equipment or secret you can steal to do this without me - just my knowledge, which you can't get without that agreement."

Slowly, Tyler stood, a slightly stunned expression on his face, and left the house, walking slowly down the long drive to the gate, then the two blocks to where he'd left his Hummer.

He came back exactly twenty-four hours later, a set look of resigned determination on his face.

* * * * *

"So - what do we do?" Tyler asked as he helped push the two couches in Linda's living-room closer together.

"Well..." Linda said, straightening. "You're part is simple. I inject us both with a mix of drugs that causes extreme relaxation, and a mild trance state. Then we lay down - naked - on the couches, holding hands. At that point, I'll do the hard part of inducing AP in both of us, because I have experience." She looked at Tyler. "You're client is going to have a harder time. He'd going to have to take a six-month training course from me on how to induce AP so he can do the transfer. You're lucky - I already know how."

Tyler nodded wordlessly. He was 'eager' to get this over with, before he changed his mind.

Twenty minutes later, he lay naked on the couch, trying hard to think of nothing at all as the drugs kicked in. He began to drift in and out of a dream-like state, the world around him fading away as he sank deeper and deeper....

All of the sudden, there was a tremendous pulling sensation, and Tyler felt like he was adrift in a vast sea, all bearings and directions lost. He frantically began to flounder about, and - like a ship-wrecked sailor finding a life-boat - felt himself make contact with a 'vessel' of some sort. Desperately, he hauled himself in...

And opened his eyes with a gasp. His face was turned to one side, and he found himself looking at...

...himself.

For a moment, Tyler merely stared at his own masculine body, which was staring back at him. Tyler could feel the odd senses that indicated that the transfer had been made, as quickly as that. He was - now, and forever - in the body of Linda Meegahnn.

Tyler... No, he corrected himself. As far as the world was concerned, from now on, she was Linda Meehaghn - and she might as well get used to thinking of herself like that.

Linda slowly sat up, feeling the shifting of her enormous new endowments. It was a decidedly strange sensation, but one that she figured she was going to get used to. She looked over at the other couch, where 'John' was sitting up, running his hands over his muscular fit body in awe. Linda couldn't help but feel a twinge of jealousy - only a short while before, that trim, fit - male - body had been hers. Now she was relegated to this ridiculously endowed form.

"Well, Linda - it's not so bad, is it?" John asked, looking down at his strong, muscular hands. "Sure, that body isn't as strong as this one

- but it's fit, healthy, and very, very sensitive." He made a face. "I didn't realize how sensitive until I switched. Your - my - body's senses seemed faint to me. It's odd."

"Oh, trust me - I find it odd too." Linda said, swinging her new long, smooth legs over the side of the couch. She understood what John meant - just the feel of the air over her long, smooth legs seemed excessive, heightened - and not exactly unpleasant.

At almost the same moment, the two of them rose from the couches to their new feet.

John, unprepared for the power of his new legs, practically sprang from the couch, taking a few steps to regain his balance as his momentum pulled him forward.

Linda rose - and staggered forward, arms wind-willing as she tried to catch her balance, thrown off by the weight of her enormous new endowments and her radically altered center of gravity. For a few moments, it looked like she was going to do it, but then tipped over against the arm of the couch John had been laying on, bracing herself with her long, slender arms. Slowly, she straightened, feeling the weight and pull of her huge new tits, and trying to figure out how best to handle it.

John was chortling from where he stood, and Linda crossed her arms over her impressive bust - then quickly pulled them away as they made contact with her engorged, highly sensitive new nipples, sending a bolt of pleasure through her body.

"What's so funny?" She asked. It would have been 'irritably', but her high, breathy new voice did poorly at expressing that, as did her new, sensual features. It came across more 'pouting' - and slightly erotic.

"We look like a couple of drunks." Jack replied with a chortle - almost a giggle - that was completely new to that body.

Linda blinked, then smiled faintly, seeing the humor in it. Had anyone been watching, and not knowing what had just taken place, would have seen two nude people - one handsome, muscular man and the other a overly sexy, enormously endowed woman - staggering around the room.

Still, despite the humor in the situation, it still wasn't easy for Linda to accept. This wasn't exactly how she had envisioned her life as turning out...

"So, now what?" Linda asked, moving carefully to keep her balance. Her new body's center of balance was going to take some getting used to.

"Well, getting dressed would be a good idea." John said, picking up the pile of masculine clothes at the end of the couch. He began to pull them on.

With a mild grimace, Linda followed suit. It felt very, very strange to put on such feminine clothing, despite the fact that it now matched her new body. The clothing wasn't excessive sexy, but was undeniably feminine - the plain cotton briefs and matching, custom-made 34-EEE bra, the white blouse, the black knee-length skirt, the simple black pumps with a one-inch heel...

Oddly enough, one of the oddest things of the situations was the buttons - the simple fact that the buttons on the blouse were reversed gave her a moment's trouble. Suddenly, it truly struck home that every little detail in her life was forever altered - even such simple things as buttons...

...or going to the bathroom. Although the sensation was different that what she was used to, there was no doubt about the fact that her bladder was signaling - quite frantically. With a sigh, she headed towards the bathroom.

Sure enough, even going to the bathroom was a radically different experience. It wasn't so much external - merely sitting to pee - but internal, how it felt. Another small thing that was now part of her life.

She returned to the living room, and found John lifting pieces of furniture, delighting in the strength he'd gained - and she'd lost. Setting her jaw - which only looked 'cute' in her new form - she tried to ignore the demonstration of how weak, how helpless, how... feminine her new form was.

"Why don't you put that down - we have to get back to my..." she paused, and corrected herself. "...your office, so I can show you how to be me. You - I mean... I might not have anyone who can tell that I'm different - 'Linda Meehaghn' is practically a hermit. But 'John Tyler' has a business to run - and one client in particular waiting for a response."

John smirked. "All right, keep your... skirt on, Linda. I'll go upstairs and through some of your clothes into your suitcase, while you get your purse so you have your I.D. with you. It's in the front closet."

Linda gritted her even white teeth, reminding herself that this was literally a dream come true for John - and, if she did try to kill him, he'd break her into a dozen pieces. She should know - she could have done it when she was him. While John went upstairs to pack, Linda grabbed a coat and her purse, taking a quick inventory of the items inside. She cringed at the make-up, but sighed, realizing that she'd probably have to get used to wearing some, at least - sooner or later.

Otherwise, there was the typical things - driver's license, birth certificate, health and social insurance cards, credit cards, keys - everything that told a modern woman she was a real individual. And now, it was all hers. She made a mental note to get the PIN numbers for the two banks cards - and to practice 'her' signature.

"Ready, gorgeous?" John said, coming up behind her, lugging a pair of suitcases. "Funny. Very funny." Linda said, slinging her purse over one shoulder.

"Actually, I mean it..." John said, sounding intrigued and mildly amused. "I've seen that body thousands of times in a mirror, and it did nothing for me - now..., well, considering the erection I get looking at you..."

Linda's eyes instinctively dropped to John's crotch, then quickly looked away from the bulge that was straining his pants. Even more discomforting was the frisson of... arousal?... that shot through her new body at the sight.

Disquieted, she said as brusquely as possible in her extremely feminine new voice. "Let's go." The ride back in John's Hummer was a quite one.

* * * * *

Step by step, Linda led John through the different disarming and unlocking codes that would get him into 'his' office, explaining everything in detail. She reflected that she'd have to make up some sort of user's manual for the system. She'd never needed one, having been the one who designed and installed it, but it wouldn't do for John to forget how 'his' system worked.

Once in the combination office/apartment in the penthouse, Linda showed John around, ending the tour of the sumptuous accommodations in the kitchen.

"Wow, I'm really living high off the hog, aren't I?" John said with a smile. "I could get used to this." He opened the fridge and poked around.

"Hey - caviar." He said, pulling out the small container. "You can have this - I can't stand the stuff." "Really?" Linda said. "Try some."

Making a face, John tried a bit - then laughed. "Of course - I have your taste buds now." He looked thoughtful. "I guess we'd better make up a list of likes and dislikes for each other, so we know what to order in restaurants."

"There's a lot of things we're going to have to help each other learn." Linda replied, slumping onto a chair, and wincing as her huge tits bounced with the motion. "I'm not going back to 'my' life soon - you and I are going to spending a lot of time together for the next little while."

Linda was surprised by the response that brought - John flushed a bright, vivid red - something that Linda couldn't remember ever have doing as Tyler.

"What?" Linda asked, confused.

"I... uh, was hoping... um... that you wouldn't be here long." John stuttered. "Why?"

If possible, John's flush intensified. "I, uh, sort of wanted to, um, try out my new body... with a woman..."

Now, Linda found herself blushing. Because the thought of sex with somebody who, until recently, had been the same gender disgusted her, she had assumed....

"Oh."

John took a deep breath. "Well, I guess it can... will have to wait." He seemed incredibly disappointed by the thought.

Linda put that aside. "Luckily, this line of work is one where you don't have to deal with customers day-to-day. That gives us some time to get you up to speed." She sighed. "God, I need a drink."

"Good idea!" John said, enthusiastically. "I'll get us a couple...." he stopped and looked around, then asked, abashed. "Uh where's the bar?"

Linda sighed. "Sit down - I'll get it." Walking over to the concealed bar, she said. "You like Glenlivet - but what do I like?" "Fuzzy Navels."

That stopped her. "Excuse me?"

John chuckled. "Orange juice and Peach Schnapps."

"Oh. Right." It sounded odd to her, but it turned out to be exactly what her new taste buds preferred. Carrying the drinks over, she sat beside John, and handed him his drink.

John knocked the Scotch back in one shot, with a grin. "Habit, huh?"

Linda looked startled, then laughed. Out of habit, she had, indeed, poured a 'Lady-size' drink for John, whom she still subconsciously thought of as female, regardless of the extremely masculine body.

Linda finished her Fuzzy Navel, and John went to get them refills. She was somewhat startled when he returned with, not only the drinks, but a hand-rolled cigarette with a certain, distinctive odor.

"Where did you get that?" Linda asked, looking at the joint.

John shrugged. "I have a small supply, for 'medicinal' purposes."

"Yeah, right." Linda snorted. "Well, since this is 'your' place, I guess you can light up if you want."

John looked startled. "Oh - it's not for me. Unless you smoked, this body would probably cough it's lungs out. It's for you." "Me?!"

John grinned. "I told you - medicinal purposes. How's your back?"

Linda had been noticing the sharp pain at the base of her spine for the past two hours or so, but had said nothing. Now, it dawned on her that the reason for it was simple - she was carting around these massive tits. No wonder her back was in pain. And, though it seemed odd to take marijuana for it, John had been in this body for all those years, and must know the best treatment. Reluctantly, she accepted the joint and lit up, discovering that her body accepted the harsh smoke with little complaint.

She was just finishing the rather large joint, and a third Fuzzy Navel, when John, returning with another drink, tripped and spilled a large amount of Scotch on her. The alcohol felt freezing to her soft skin as her clothes were soaked in it.

"Why don't you get changed." John suggested, helping her up - but he must have been drunk, because he somehow managed to wedge his shoe against her, snapping the short heel off. With a muffled curse, Linda kicked the shoes off and padded for the spare bedroom where 'her' clothes were, her feet feeling cold against the wood floor. With each step, she wobbled slightly, the combination of three 'Man-sized' drinks and the large, laced joint having a most definite effect on her diminutive body. It seemed to take forever to reach the bedroom, and when she did, she stood still for several long minutes, trying to recall: A) Why she had come in here, and B) Why she was so cold.

Finally, her fuzzy mind managed connect the two, and she clumsily undressed. She took off the blouse, cursing the small buttons, then dropped the skirt. She peeled off her panties and bra...

...and several minutes later, reluctantly removed her hands from her enormous tits. Massaging them felt great, but she was shivering in the chill air. She opened the suitcase - after three tries - and began to pull on the top set of clothes.

First, the lacy black bra that barely enclosed her huge tits. Her massive, engorged nipple poked through the sheer fabric, and her fingers skittered lightly across them, causing her to gasp in pleasure before taking her hands away.

Next, the lacy black French-cut panties. For some reason, she found herself sliding her hand across her new mound, shivering at the sensation, and feeling the dampness of her crotch, which seemed to be burning with an inner fire.

Over the undergarments, Linda pulled on the tight black silk dress, fumbling with the buttons. Satisfied, she looked around blearily for shoes.

All she could find was a pair of black platforms with a nine inch heel. Shrugging, she stepped into them, and jiggled and swayed back to the couch, enjoying the movement of the air over her silky legs. She sat - collapsed - next to John with a giggle. The fact that John was sitting, naked, on the couch, lightly stroking a throbbing erection didn't strike her as odd in her condition.

"God, I feel, so... weird." She giggled, not realizing her full, soft new lips were looked in a mindless grin. Absently, she began to stroke her huge tits. "I didn't know pot could make me feel so... good..." she said, leaning back on the couch and closing her eyes as her hands caressed her massive, silk-clad mounds.

Suddenly, the pleasure redoubled, and she moaned softly as John's strong, firm hands began to caress her huge globes as well, particularly her huge nipples. Knowing just what Linda's body liked, her expertly massaged and fondled her huge tits, lightly squeezing her swollen nipples, causing her to moan.

Leaning forward, he pressed his lips against hers.

Drunk, stoned - and affect by the Exxstacy John had laced her drinks with - Linda let her lips part, and slid her tongue into John's mouth, kissing him tentatively. It soon turned from tentative to passionate, and she let him pull her half on top of him, his skillful hands massaging her firm, full ass as they kissed hungrily. Those hands occasionally slid down her silken thighs and shapely legs, but always returned to her firm, sensitive ass as their tongues intertwined in passion.

Linda's mind spun with the pleasure she was feeling. She was too far gone to truly understand what she was doing, and the Exxstacy made sure she was too horny to care - all she knew was that it felt very, very good.

Soon, John leaned Linda back and gently undid the buttons on her dress, slowly and sensuously sliding the sheer material off her body, causing her to shudder in pleasure. His hands then went to her bra, and he let it drop to the floor.

Easily, he lifted her petite form. She wrapped her long, sexy legs around his waist and he licked and nibbled at her full, dark nipples as he carried her into the bedroom, gently lowering her to the mattress.

Now, he slid off her sopping panties, exposing her hot, wet cunt. Slowly, he licked and kissed his way down her body. Reaching her crotch, he teased her excited clit with his tongue, causing her to buck her hips, and cry out in pleasure.

Working his way back up her body, he lay atop her - then rolled over, pulling her on top. Gently, he guided her into a crouching position

- then bucked his hips, impaling her on his large, hard cock.

Linda cried out, and when he let his hips lower, she sank down with him, then used her sexy legs to pump up and down. She bit her full, sexy lower lip to keep from screaming out in sheer ecstasy as she mindlessly rode the cock that only hours before had belonged to her.

John moaned at the new sensation, and fondled Linda's enormous, bouncing tits as she rode his thick cock, gasping in pleasure.

Linda had never experienced such pleasure as the waves of ecstasy that thundered through her body. Each one, impossibly, was stronger than the last, and she began to call out John's name as she increased the length and speed of her stroke, trying to maximize her pleasure.

Then it happened. Her rhythm went haywire as her co-ordination went out the window as the synapses in her brain were over loaded by the orgasm that smashed through her. She screamed, sweat dripping from her huge nipples, as her whole body shook with pleasure.

Then a second orgasm, a little weaker than the first, burst through her, and once more her cunt went into a spasm - this one pushing John over the edge. He called out as he shot his load deep into her cunt.

Linda rolled off John's softening cock. Thanks to the drug, she wasn't even close to being satisfied, no matter that it had been the most intense sexual experience she'd ever felt> Frantically, one hand began to work at her huge, round tit while the other slid between her legs and began masturbating her cum-filled cunt.

After laying for a few minutes, savoring the power of his new body, and the difference in sex, John got up and padded to the guest room. Rummaging through the suitcase, he picked out an item and returned.

Linda took the large black dildo easily, inserting it into her sopping cunt hungrily, and frantically working the long, thick, cool plastic phallus in and out. Another orgasm rocked her body, causing her immense endowments to jiggle, but she didn't stop, needing much, much more.

Watching the outrageously sexy body he'd been born with frantically fuck itself quickly got John hard again. This time, he wanted something else. Walking to the side of the bed, John gently pressed his cock against Linda's full lips.

Not aware of what she was doing, Linda accepted the cock deep into her mouth, sucking and licking the hard erection like a lollipop as John gently face-fucked her. She continued masturbating furiously through the whole thing, and as fate would have it, reached orgasm just as John came again, shooting a load of salty, thick cum into her mouth. Unthinkingly, she gulped the liquid down, what she couldn't swallow dribbling from the sides of her full lips.

John needed a break. Leaving Linda fucking herself with the dildo, he went to grab a shower, and a couple more drinks.

Over the course of the night, he took her in the ass (painfully/pleasurably), tit-fucked her, and had her jack him off onto her massive tits before he'd fuck her again.

* * * * *

SIX MONTHES LATER

Detective Lonigan shook his head. "I figured she must be a pro - dressed like that, doing what she was. So I arrested her and her john in the alley, brought them in."

Wilmer, the D.A., shook his head as well, and looked over at the young woman on the bench.

She was short, but with the most immense tits either men had ever seen, despite her diminutive stature. And, given the free view she'd given them while trying to seduce them, they appeared to be real.

Lonigan sighed. "I'd like to catch the bastard who did this to her. A continuous overdoes of Exxstacy until she's a nymphomaniac - what a bastard."

Wilmer agreed, but since Miss Meehaghn refused to name the person, there wasn't much they could do. The person in question was listening to the conversation, while she massaged her huge, leather clad tits.

Despite her helpless need for sex, Linda's mind was clear. She was disgusted by what her body forced her to do to keep from going mad - but also had to admit that sex felt incredible in this body. But that didn't mean she was going to forgive John for doing this to her.

She now knew that it had been a set up. John, eager to get a male body, had been willing to do anything for it. So she'd found William Desmond, who also wanted to change genders, and turned him into unwitting bait but making sure that certain rumors got to him, anonymously of course.

And Tyler had fallen for it. But, now that she had his body, wealth and business, she didn't want 'her' in the way, and so had done this too her.

Linda could have told the police what had happened - at least the drug part. They'd believe that.

But Linda wanted her own revenge. She'd procured a supply of Exxstacy of her own. And she knew 'trap-doors' in the security systems that would get her back into the building.

Her plan was simple - she was going to drug John to the gills with Exxstacy, then literally fuck him to death. She'd had plenty of experience and practice in the last few months, and she was sure she could do it.

After all, Linda Meehaghn wasn't used to failure...

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: When a guy finds a computer that has fallen from a car in an accident, he is surprised to find that it has the power to transform the user into a female; unfortunately he doesn't really know how to control it.

Finders, Keepers

By Gunslinger

Bemused, Tommy slid the laptop out from under the bush in his front yard, slowly turning it over in his hands.

Sitting back on his haunches, the muscular, dark-haired young man looked down at the computer in his hands, then over his shoulder at the street behind him, then back to the laptop again.

"Well, I'll be damned..." Tommy said, a smile slowly rising to his swarthy face.

Looking around a second time, this time to see if he was being observed, Tommy quickly shoved the laptop inside his loosely-tied bathrobe. Ignoring the morning paper he'd been groping under the bush to retrieve, the broad-shouldered young man darted towards the front door of his small bungalow, a broad smile riding on his narrow, sharp-edged features as he ducked inside his house and shut the door behind him.

"Finders, keepers..." He chuckled to himself, kicking off his worn and sprung moccasins and heading for the tiny living room of his old, pre-ward bungalow.

Letting his bathrobe fall open to reveal the hard-muscled body clad only in a pair of black boxers, he placed the computer on the coffee table sitting beside the black leather recliner that was the only other piece of furniture in the austere room, aside from the entertainment center holding his big-screen TV, DVD player, PS2 and Xbox.

Scurrying over to the black drapes hanging in the window, he pulled them aside and peeked out the window at the intersection upon which his corner-situated house abutted.

Still embroiled in an argument with the driver of the flat-bed wrecker's truck the man dressed in a badly rumpled Armani suit hadn't noticed Tommy's actions. Waving his hands wildly, the disheveled man gestured at his Lincoln Navigator, it's front-end crumpled from the impact with a telephone pole.

"That's what you get for dropping the car to drive the cell phone..." Tommy smirked. Shaking his head and chuckling anew, Tommy let the drape fall back into place. He then strolled over to survey the prize that had obviously been thrown free of the luxury SUV during the accident.

Aside from some turf that had accumulated on the corners from it's skidding across the lawn, the laptop seemed basically untouched. Even as he cleaned the dirt and grass off the computer, Tommy could imagine the laptop's flight - an almost flat trajectory, almost like a well-thrown Frisbee, onto the soft surface of his lawn, where the light friction of the dew-damped grass had slowed it enough that the branches of the bush had caught it without any hard, damaging impact.

As far as Tommy was concerned, that made the laptop 'fair game'. Though Mama Bertoni hadn't raised any thieves or career criminals, Tommy's grasp on the finer points of the law was a little loose, especially when it came to property ownership. Anything left behind or misplaced was fair game to him - and the laptop fell firmly into the category.

Shucking off the bathrobe and dropping into his comfortable leather chair, Tommy pulled the laptop onto his lap and ran his fingers proprietarily across its lid.

"Wonder what you're worth..." Tommy mused, then frowned slightly, and slowly looked the lap-top over, flipping it over in his hands as he gave it a complete once-over - twice.

There didn't seem to be a maker's logo anywhere on it. The black plastic casing was generic and unmarked.

"Damn - probably some cheap knock-off made in Taiwan..." Tommy muttered, grimacing. "Well, let's see if the damned thing still works."

Resting it on his knees, Tommy popped open the top and folded it perpendicular to the keyboard built in to the lower half of the device's casing.

"Built in speakers, built in camera, fifteen inch LCD screen..." Tommy catalogued, eyes flicking over the lid portion before dropping to the lower section - and then he blinked. "What the hell...?"

The standard keyboard he'd expected to see was missing. Instead, there was a series of small dials and switches, with only a few keys - not alphanumeric, but oddly labeled in acronyms and condensed forms that meant nothing to him.

Muttering to himself, Tommy reached out and pressed the one control he did understand - the power button.

The LCD screen flared to life, booting up incredibly quickly - not into any standard operating system, but into some time of custom interface obviously made for this computer. A square 'window' took up half the screen, while the other half held spaces for some sort of indicators, currently blank.

Almost as soon as it booted, another window popped up, overlaying the rest of the screen with a message: CURRENT USER PROFILE NOT FOUND.

CREATE NEW PROFILE? (Y/N)

"Hmm..." Tommy said, stabbing out at the key marked 'Y'. "Why not?"

The laptop hummed - and then the message window disappeared, to reveal the main screen again. The square window taking up half the screen was no longer blank - it now showed a live, real-time view of Tony's own torso and head, obviously fed in from the little camera lenses mounted into the lid.

A small little window opened over the other half of the screen, the still blank indicators, with the message:
EXTRAPOLATING. PLEASE STAND BY...

There was a little indicator bar beneath the words, and as Tommy watched, it slowly 'filled' from left to right, taking about two forty seconds or so.

When it was done, the little advisory disappeared - and the live camera view changed, 'zooming out' to show a slowly rotating three- dimensional representation.

A representation of a human body:

Tommy's body.

"Whoa..." Tommy said, eyes widening as he took in what certainly appeared to be an anatomically correct nude three-dimension representation to himself.

Manipulating some controls, he found he could zoom in and out, as well as slow, speed up, or stop the rotation - and from what he could see, the 3D version the computer had somehow created was dead-bang perfect, aside from missing a small scar on his left shin.

"Damn - that's a pretty neat trick..." Tommy said, grinning.

Another small notice had appeared at the bottom of the indicator section of the screen, asking if he wished to adjust or save the new 'profile'. Tapping the 'SV PRFL' key listed as one of the options, Tommy then looked at the controls with fresh eyes, beginning to understand the function of some of them.

Clicking on the 'LD PRFL' key did, indeed, bring up a 'LOAD PROFILE' screen, which showed a dozen or so 'thumbnail' pictures, of which Tommy's was the upper right-hand side one, labeled with a '001'.

Looking over the small, low-resolution pictures, Tommy's bushy eyebrows rose, and he pressed '008'.

The machine whirred - then the larger, more detailed image popped up in the bigger window, and he gave a low whistle as he played with the visual controls.

It was a naked woman - or at least the 3D representation of one.

'She' was sort of a generic woman - completely average in every way, neither ugly nor pretty, neither tall nor short, and shown with a basic, straight-hanging jaw-length style of medium-brown hair.

Drumming his fingers on a bare part of the casing, Tommy looked over the controls, then began 'fooling around' seeing what they did. What they did was alter the image on the screen.

Not knowing which keys and controls did what, he hit them at random, playing around with them and watching the effect on the screen, trying to get a feel for what did what, and how.

After about twenty minutes of playing around, he got the hang of using the controls - and set about creating a new 'woman'.

When he was done altering the figure on the screen, he smiled, one hand slipping between his legs to lightly stroke his semi-rigid cock through his silk boxers as he eyed the 'hot chick' on-screen.

She was a tiny, delicate little slip of a woman. Though an over-all description of her might have included the word 'girlish', it didn't mean that she wasn't all woman. From slim-yet-feminine hips that supported a taut, pert ass to a lovely, full-lipped face surrounded by a thick fall of rich, deep red hair that hung just past her shoulders, she was definitely fully grown, but delicate. More 'elfin' than 'girlish' - except for the bust Tommy had given her, which was more than just merely 'full'. Especially on her short, slender figure, the basket-ball sized breasts, each tipped with a large, thick pink nipple, looked enormous.

Chuckling, Tommy saved the 'profile' - then looked at the next option that popped up, asking whether he wished to continue modifying the profile, or 'apply' it, whatever that was.

Shrugging to himself, Tommy reached out and hit the 'APPLY PRFL' button - then started to gasp in shock.

That's as far as he caught - because the flickering blue-white beam that had shot out of the 'camera' had immobilized him completely. He couldn't so much as blink as the beam wrapped itself around his body...

...and changed him.

There was almost no sensation at all attached to the change that swept over his body, the beam leaving him numb as well as motionless - but, when the beam released him a scant minute later, there were a whole host of sensations to be felt.

New sensations. Feminine sensations...

"Holy shit!" Tommy screamed, leaping up from the chair - and he heard it emerge in a sweet, feminine tone even as he - no, most definitely she - scrambled away from the computer.

As she scrambled, her huge, artificially round new tits jiggled and swayed and bounced in the most distracting manner, while her hair whirled and brushed against her slender, fine-boned new shoulders. Her attempts were further hampered by her boxers sliding down her long, slender legs, now too big for her smaller, slimmer form.

"I'm a fuckin' babe!" Tommy screamed, hands shooting up to cradle the massive, heavy tits threatening to pull her off her tiny, dainty new feet. Leaning with her full, firm ass against the wall, she held her shuddering new bust in tiny, delicate hands much too small to even come close to encompassing her massive new boobs, trying to keep them from shaking and shivering.

When her massive new bust had finally stopped bouncing from her hasty movements, she let go of them - and slowly sent her slim, long-nailed new fingers sliding downwards across the silky-smooth skin of her slender new waist to the light down of dark red hair trimmed in a 'V' between her legs.

Her fingers grazed the soft, slightly moist flesh of her new vaginal lips - and she screamed again, yanking her hands from her new womanhood and staggering across the floor against the bounce and sway of her ridiculously over-sized breasts. Decidedly top-heavy, she was amazed she could move at all, especially with a strange sort of familiarity, as if her body would have no problem with coping with her new boobs if she'd just stop fighting it's natural instincts and move in feminine manner, rather than the masculine one she was still trying to make use of - but she had no plans to do any such thing.

Grabbing at the computer, she pounded hard on the key to load profiles, found her recently recorded male one, and hit the 'apply' button...

...and a minute later, was sighing with relief as he cradled his familiar manhood in both hands. Picking up the computer, he prepared to hurl it against the wall...

...then stopped dead, a smile slowly coming to his face as a thought occurred to him.

Sitting back down, he gingerly placed the laptop on his knees, handling it like alive grenade. Being extremely careful to keep his fingers away from the 'apply' button, he pulled up the profile he'd saved of the woman he'd just briefly been - then carefully began tapping keys he hadn't understood the purpose of until he'd realized what the device he'd found could do.

When the new options came up, he began working on the 'mental' settings. Once satisfied - and with a wolfish grin on his face - he pulled up some of the other options, working away for more than an hour to get everything just right.

When he was done, he carefully put the computer down on the coffee table, walked over to the phone, and picked it up. Quickly, his fingers punched out a sequence of numbers, and he listened to the ringing on the other end.

"Steve? It's Tommy - and don't hang up." He said, the shark's grin still on his face contrasting with the slightly contrite tone in his voice. "Look, about this silly feud we've been having - I think it's time to put an end to it, don't you...?"

* * * * *

Warily, Steve stepped a single step past the threshold, watching as Tommy pushed the door shut behind him and stepped back.

"I'm glad you came..." Tommy told the lean, well-toned blond. Gesturing towards the living room, Tommy cocked his head. "Come on in."

"Okay..." Steve said, still wary as he followed Tommy deeper into the house. The fair-haired young man kept his eyes focused on Tommy's bathrobe-clad body, almost expecting him to whirl and lash out at him - though, their 'feud' had never been a physical one.

He still wasn't sure if Tommy was sincere about the idea of a digital fight to end their feud.

Tommy's proposal over the telephone had been simple - and simplistic. After nearly two years arguing over who had been 'right' that night at the bar, Tommy suggested they 'duke it out' - via one of his fighting games on the PS2.

It seemed silly - but, of course, the whole feud was a little silly. Who was right or wrong really didn't matter - because it was their arguing over it that had chased away the girl they'd both been dating, who thought they were BOTH 'immature macho assholes' for having made a bet to see which one would 'get' her.

Now, Steve looked around, still half-expecting some kind of trap...

...and his eyes fell on the open laptop sitting on the coffee table.

It wasn't really a laptop, but something else, he noted vaguely - but it was only a passing thought, as he was busy staring at the 'woman' presented on the screen, slowly rotating to show all of her aspects.

"Damn, man - what the hell is this...?" Steve asked, stepping closer. He eyed the woman spinning on the screen, a slender, petite and ultra-buxom red-head clad in a short, tight black leather mini-skirt, an emerald green tube-top barely big enough for her huge rack, and black platform high-heel shoes. "This is pretty cool!"

"You think that's cool...?" Tommy said, unobtrusively stepping well out of range of the 'camera' on the computer. "You should see what happens when you hit the 'APPLY PRFL' button..."

Steve looked up, eyes narrowing. His mouth tightened slightly, and he looked more carefully at the computer, looking for some sort of trap.

"What is it?" Steve asked, slowly.

"It's a 'character maker' for the fighting game." Tommy explained, feigning a casual voice as he gestured at the game displayed on the big-screen TV. "Hit that, and it transfers into the game."

"Really?" Steve asked, buying the story. "Cool!"

He reached out and hit the button...

...then frowned.

Tommy also frowned - as absolutely nothing happened.

"There's some sort of error message on the screen." Steve complained. "shit!" Tommy swore, with feeling. He came closer...

...and had just enough time to see the error message window go from 'UNKNOWN USER - PROFILE NOT AVAILABLE FOR REPLACEMENT' to 'USER PROFILE FOUND - APPLYING REPLACEMENT PROFILE'.

Tommy didn't even have time to swear as the beam reached out and enveloped him. Steve, however, did: "Holy shit! What the fuck...!"

He watched, wide-eyed, as the blue-white beam enveloped his swarthy nemesis - and then his jaw sagged as Tommy seemed to sparkle, his image fading - then coming back 'in focus'...

...except it wasn't Tommy any more.

It was the massively-endowed delicate red-head from the computer screen.

The beam snapped out of existence, and the huge-breasted red-head looked around, shock written on her heart-shaped face as she slowly looked down at the massive cleavage that kept her from being able to see her delicate, high-heel clad feet or long, black-nylon clad legs.

"Oh, shit!" She swore in a richly sweet contralto, hands flying to her massive bust-line. "It changed me...!"

With a smooth, supple, and super-sexy sway to her hips, she walked with sensual grace atop the slender, six-inch tall heels of her platform pumps over to the computer, lightly biting down on her incredibly full, ripe lower lip as she stared down at it.

"Shit... which one's the load profile...?" She muttered to herself, almost absently sling a hand down to rub back and forth across the taut leather covering her crotch. "Should have memorized these things before I chose to make her illiterate - but it wasn't supposed to happen to me, dammit..."

Steve blinked - and then his face began to harden as he realized what was going on. Not 'how' - that was still a mystery, though it was obviously the computer that was doing it. 'What', however, was blindingly clear.

"That thing was supposed to turn me into a woman!" Steve shouted, grabbing the slender shoulder of the tiny, huge-breasted woman Tommy had become. "You were trying to trick me into becoming what you now are!"

"It was just a joke, Steve!" She snapped - then, as if just realizing she was doing it when a small moan escaped the back of her throat, quickly yanked her hand away from rubbing, hard, over her crotch. "Damn, I shouldn't have made her so horny, either..."

"Oh - really horny and illiterate?" Steve asked, shaking her. "Yeah, 'just a joke', right? What else did you plan to do?" "Look, just tell me which button loads a profile..." The feminine Tommy requested, gesturing at the computer.

"We'll see!" Steve said, snatching up the computer. Easily avoiding the tiny woman's belated grab at the computer, Steve backed away, eyes dancing over the information on the screen.

He stopped dead, shocked - then, slowly, a smile began to form on his face.

"Well, well, well..." Steve chuckled, looking over the list of 'changes' Tommy had loaded into the new woman.

"Look, just change me back " Tommy pleaded in her high new voice, hands going up to begin squeezing her massive, round new tits - and then she yanked them away with an angry mutter.

"What's wrong?" Steve taunted. "Having trouble controlling yourself Brandi?"

The huge breasted-new woman jerked when Steve used 'her' name - and for good reason. "Oh, shit, you bastard " She breathed - because the use of 'her' name had been a trigger.

The trigger that, for all intents and purposes, turned the new woman into Steve's slave. Tommy had set it up so that the first person to use that word became the woman's new 'master' - a person who she couldn't possibly disobey.

"Hey, if it's good enough for you to have been planning to do it to me " Steve chuckled, eyeing the woman staring at him with a horrified expression on her face - while unconsciously caressing one massive breast with her long-nailed, slender new hands. Her other hand started down towards her crotch, her arousal so painful that she couldn't quite stop herself...

...but Steve could.

"Stand perfectly still." He instructed her, smiling. "Make absolutely no effort to get yourself off."

"Yes, Steve " She replied, helpless to disobey. As he surveyed the computer, she had no choice but to stand there, body throbbing with unmet desire.

"Not a bad starting place " Steve finally said, looking her up and down as he tapped away at the computer. "Of course, I prefer blondes - and extremely dumb ones at that. 'Illiterate' is a good start, but I think you'll be much more entertaining as a brain-dead bimbo whose only concern is fucking and sucking "

"Oh, God, Steve - please, no..." Brandi begged, her body literally trembling with something that had gone far beyond 'desire' and well into 'need'. "Don't do this to me..."

"Well, I'm not going to - yet." Steve said, grinning evilly. "Before I completely mind-wipe you and erase 'Tommy' off the face of the earth forever, I'm going to have some fun with you..."

He tapped some more at the keyboard - then gasped and shivered as the light hit him.

When it passed, Steve was completely naked - which allowed Brandi to stare at the massive, thick cock Steve now boasted.

"You still have your own mind." Steve said, lightly stroking his massive organ. "Though I now control you, it's still your mind I control - so that will make this all the more satisfying..."

"What are you going to make me do?" Brandi asked, fearfully.

Steve laughed. "Oh, that's the delicious part - I'm not actually going to make you do anything. However, if you decide, of your own free will, to give me a blow-job - then I promise I'll fuck you long and hard."

Brandi stared at him in horror.

"No..." She breathed. "No, I.. I won't do it!" "Your choice, babe." Steve said, chuckling. She shivered in a mixture of horror - and lust.

Her body was crying out for satisfaction - satisfaction Steve had ordered her not to give herself. An order she couldn't disobey - no matter how desperately tried to.

With a low, despairing cry, she threw herself to her knees in front of him, tears blurring her vision as she reached out for his massive cock.

"That's it, Brandi - I always knew you were a willing little cock-sucker." Steve chuckled as the huge-breasted new woman forced herself to wrap her hands around the base of his massive, throbbing shaft - then open her warm, wet mouth wide, and envelope his cock with it.

Disgusted, she began sucking his cock - very well.

After all, she'd programmed this body with all sorts of sexual skills - skills she'd planned to have female Steve use on male her.

Now, turn was turned about, and part of her could dimly appreciate the irony of it - even as she fought to keep from sobbing as her desperate craving for sexual satisfaction drove her to suck 'eagerly' and 'willingly' on Steve's warm, massive organ.

"Oh, yeah, that's good..." Steve sighed as her hands and lips worked away. "You're a good little cock-sucker, Brandi. A great little cock-sucker."

Between her skills, and her desperate need for relief, it wasn't long before she brought him off - and, according to his gasped instructions, helplessly swallowed every damned drop of the hot, salty, disgusting mass of cum his cock pumped into her mouth. It practically seemed like a never-ending flow of disgusting man-seed, and yet she had no choice but to dutifully take every little bit of it into her...

...which earned her the 'prize' of letting him fuck her brains out.

What disgusted her the most about that was the fact that she was actually, desperately looking forward to it...

"C'mon, fuck me!" She half demanded, half begged, hating herself for saying it even as she hurriedly stripped out of her clothes so he could do it to her. It was humiliating, it was horrifying, it was disgusting - and she needed it.

Desperately.

Which was why, knowing this, Steve teased her. He insisted on foreplay.

"Come on, baby - I need time to get ready..." He insisted, despite the fact that his modified cock was already hard again., Instead, he pawed at her, playing with her new body with an evil grin. He fondled her, and caressed her. He licked and squeezed her nipples, fondled and kissed her massive tits. He ran his hands up and down her smooth, sexy legs, and over her pert, taut ass...

...and all of this drove her already unbelievable arousal to even higher states of torture, leaving her to deal with the utter humiliation of begging him again and again, ever more desperately, to fuck her.

Finally, he complied - and she hated him for making her want it so desperately, but hated herself even more for giving in to that desperation...

...but most of all, she hated herself for loving every damned second of it. She loved it as his huge, thick cock slammed home into her tight, wet cunt. She loved it as he thrust into her, hard, over and over again.

She loved thrashing on his massive organ, screaming out in pleasure, as he fucked her brains out.

She loved it all, every damned second of it...

...but most of all, she loved it when he brought her to a screaming, writhing, twisting orgasm better than anything she'd ever experienced in her life.

She hated loving it all - and she hated finding herself already craving the intense pleasure, over and over again, despite being humiliated and horrified by what she'd done, and what she'd let happen to her.

Trying to control both her sobs of disgust and her shivers of joy, she slowly dressed as Steve sighed in pleasure at the long, hard fucking he'd just given her - and then, pulling himself upright, he walked over to where the lap-top sat on the table next to the chair.

"Good-bye, 'Brandi' - hello 'Bambi'." Steve said, with an evil chuckle. Reaching out, he hit the 'apply' button on the computer...

...and, in the barest instant before being enveloped, had just enough time to realize that he'd forgotten to re-load the 'Brandi' profile after having set up his own profile to enlarge his cock.

He didn't even have time to scream before the beam enveloped him.

A second later, the person in Steve's spot blinked and looked around in confusion.

"Gee, I feel kinda weird..." She said in a breathless little voice, huge blue eyes blinking in confusion. She was nearly a dead-ringer for Brandi.

Her hair, however, was a bright, brassy golden blonde - and though the face was nearly identical to Brandi's, the vapid expression on it went well with the sky-blue eyes that practically screamed 'bimbo'. Even her clothes were the same - except for the color. Her nylons, shoes and skirt were white, and her tiny tube-top was sky blue.

The new woman giggled.

"Hey, Brandi." She said to the staring, huge-breasted red-head 'twin'. "I'm Bambi."

"Bambi, you have to use the computer..." Brandi said, urgently, gesturing at the lap-top sitting beside the huge-breasted blonde... "Oh, I don't know how to use 'puters..." Bambi said, with a brainless little giggle. "Besides, they're so boring."

Brandi, though mildly grateful to be spared Bambi's brain-dead fate, was horrified to realize that the new woman was even less capable of turning them back than she, herself was. She wracked her mind for a solution...

...and then Bambi rose, giggled, and said: "C'mon, Brandi - let's go find ourselves some handsome studs to fuck!"

Different body or not, this woman was the direct 'descendant' of Steve - and the 'mind control' was still in place. Helplessly, Brandi said, "Yes, Bambi," and followed her blonde bimbo 'twin sister' off to a life of constant sex.

Sex which Bambi, not knowing better, would enjoy every minute of - while her 'sister' would spend a nearly identical life in pure, hellish realization of her fate.

* * * * *

"Hmmm..." Sergeant Larry Danvers said, thoughtfully. "What have we here..."

Reaching into the property box from the station's evidence room, the police officer pulled out one of the items from unsolved cases now earmarked for sale at the police auction.

A glance at the evidence tag on the computer indicated it was from a now year-old missing person's case, and that it appeared to have no direct connection with the case. Intrigued, the officer turned the laptop over, looking in vain for a maker's logo or tag, and then shrugged.

If it was a no-name piece of shit, he wasn't interested.

"Aw, somebody will buy it at tomorrow's auction..." Danvers muttered to himself. Dropping it back into the box, he picked up the box and carried it over to the table holding the sorted items that would be auctioned away the next day, and didn't give it so much as a second thought...

...until, two weeks later, he found himself logging the self-same computer back into the property room as possible evidence in yet another missing person's case.

"How the hell can a computer have anything to do with missing people?" Danvers asked himself, aloud. Sitting alone in the dimly-lit evidence locker, Danvers popped up the lid and hit the power button.

The LCD screen flared to life, booting up incredibly quickly - not into any standard operating system, but into some kind of custom interface obviously made for this computer. A square 'window' took up half the screen, while the other half held spaces for some sort of indicators, currently blank.

Almost as soon as it booted, another window popped up, overlaying the rest of the screen with a message: CURRENT USER PROFILE NOT FOUND.

CREATE NEW PROFILE? (Y/N)

Danvers hesitated - and then reached on blunt finger out towards the 'Y' key...

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: A young male tries to escape the all girls before they change him; a young she-male tries to escape; a young woman tries to escape...something strange is going on.

Finished

By Gunslinger

The older, 'box-style' Chevy Caprice drew up to the large, wrought iron gate set into the red-brick wall. The uniformed driver of the vehicle rolled down his window to talk to the guard manning the small guardhouse at the gate.

Tim looked on with sullen disinterest for a moment, then let his gaze wander along the wall. Despite it's 'decorative' look, he immediately noted that it would be a bitch to get over - the seven-foot-high brick wall was surmounted by wicked-looking six-inch long wrought-iron spikes with barbed heads, set closely together. And the main gate looked like it's stop anything short of a main battle tank. With a grunt, Tim read the brass plaque inset into the pillar beside the gate.

'The Barclay Finishing School - Est. 1995'

The muscular, sandy haired youth shifted in the back of the car, trying to get comfortable - a difficult task, since the hand-cuffs were fastened behind him, forcing him to half-lay on his side. The ill-fitting blue coverall and heavy, cheap shoes didn't help either.

As the Chevy was allowed onto the grounds, and began heading up the long driveway, the nineteen year old youth vowed again to get back at his parents for this. It was his fucking life, and he could do what he wanted. His parents had no right to have him declared a 'ward' until his twenty-first birthday - then promptly ship him off to this 'special school' to fix his 'problems'. It was like all the other time - when they'd sent him to military academy, to special Juvenile schools, all that other crap. But he'd gotten through those places without being broken into some preppy little obedient wimp, and he'd get through this one too. Hell, they were all basically the same.

Or perhaps not.

Tim's eyes widened as the car moved up the long driveway. Crossing the large lawn, wandering with that certain look that almost all student had while on campus, were pairs of girls, about his own age. Some really good-looking ones, too. Tim's lips curved up in an unpleasant grin - all the other schools he'd been forced to attend had been strictly segregated - but apparently not this one. In fact, the girls he saw on campus seemed to out-number the guys he saw almost ten-to-one.

The car pulled to a stop in front of the sprawling brick building - and Tim's dark, sly eyes became thoughtful. Unlike the other schools he'd been forced into, this one didn't have that 'institutional' look - instead, it was a large, elegant building in a Victorian style. Hell - there wasn't even any bars on the damned windows! The youth smirked as he looked over the low-security building - getting out of this place might turn out to be easier than he thought. Looking around at the young women crossing the campus, though, he had to amend the thought - he might want to stick around for a little bit.

The doors to the building swung open, and three people emerged. One was a regal-looking woman, dressed in a conservative tweed skirt-and-jacket combo that couldn't hide her shapely figure. Flanking her, as if an honor guard, were two tall, muscular youths. They waited as the Security Guard who'd transported Tim brought him out of the car. Tim stood, sullen, to one side as the two goons flanked him, and the elegant woman signed for him, allowing the guard to climb back into the Chevy and head back down the road. The woman then turned to Tim.

"Good morning, Mr... Rusk, isn't it?" She said, cool yet polite. "Welcome to the Barclay Finishing School for Young Ladies. I'm the head Mistress, Elizabeth Barclay - but you may use my title, and call me Mistress."

Tim sneered. "Like hell, I will. And what the fuck's with this 'for Young woman' shit? You fuckin' blind, lady?"

Tim's insolence didn't even phase Mistress Barclay. "I assure you, my vision is quite perfect. You'll understand everything shortly." She turned and headed back into the building, and the two goons escorted Tim in after her. Still handcuffed and flanked by two youths whose musculature matched or exceeded his own, Tim decided not to put up a fight - yet.

The two goons led Tim to a room marked 'Nurses Office'. He was led inside, and pushed to a sitting position on a bench.

The nurse, a slender, intelligent looking Asian woman, looked over her patient. "Ah - our new arrival. Hello, Timothy - I'm Doctor Chu." She prepared a hypodermic needle as she spoke.

"Hey - what the fuck is that?" Tim asked, struggling to rise. The two goons held him fast, their large hands holding him in place as the doctor approached.

"It's a sedative, so that we can prep you for the procedure." Tim's eyes widened. "What procedure?"

She smiled. "Why - turning you into a young woman, of course."

Tim screamed and struggled - but he was no match for the two youths while fettered, and they forced him down and held him as the oriental woman injected him in the shoulder. Tim's frantic, horrified struggles slowly faded as the drug took hold - and darkness claimed him.

* * * * *

"Well?" Liz asked Chu, looking down at the limp figure on the table.

"Everything looks good." Chu replied. "We'll do the initial surgery and keep him sedated until he's well enough to be put in the harness. Then we'll hook him up and put him in the tank. Hopefully, the mental changes will take hold by the time his body is ready - but you have to recall that we only have a seventy-percent success rate."

Liz sighed - she'd seen the thirty percent who's mental conditioning hadn't taken fully - they'd emerged from the tank, and had been insane within twelve hours. They'd been forced to mind-wipe them, which made them useless for anything.

"So - which scenario do you want for Timmy here?" Chu asked, needing the information before she could even begin.

"Hmmm... is twenty-two Alpha possible?" Liz asked. Chu considered Timmy's form and frowned. "Hmmm... marginal. How about two Alpha?"

"Two? We haven't used that for ages." Liz protested - it was once of the first scenarios, and rather unsophisticated.

"Well, how about eight theta?"

Liz cocked her head. She didn't like going higher than beta, but... "Very well - make sure he's firmly under, then proceed." Liz ordered.

* * * * *

Tim paused atop the branch that extended over the wall, then lowered himself until he hung from the position. Bracing himself, he let go and dropped to the ground below, knocking the breath from him.

Rolling to a sitting position, he caught his breath, listening for the sounds of pursuit - he heard nothing. He stood, brushing himself off. He frowned in distaste as his hands ran along the clothing he wore.

Thanks to a faulty valve on the anesthetic, he'd managed to escape after knocking the doctor and her two assistants unconscious - but the only clothing he'd been able to steal was one of the woman's outfits.

At least he'd been able to keep his own shoes, he thought wryly, looking down at the clunky footwear. They'd been in a corner, obviously unfit to dump down the incinerator chute that had consumed his other clothing.

Uncomfortably Tim lifted the skirt of the pale pink dress and adjusted his cock in the uncomfortable confines of the lacy white panties he'd been forced to take. Despite having to make his escape in such clothing, he was glad he managed to do so before they'd started any procedures on him.

Getting his bearings, Tim struck out through the woods, moving through them with no clear idea where they'd lead - as long as it was away from that nuthouse, he was happy.

Half an hour later, Tim broke through a line of scrub and found himself on a back road of some sort. Looking up and down the pitted, two-lane strip of asphalt, he picked a direction at random and began walking, feeling supremely stupid in the frilly pink dress.

Fifteen minutes passed, and the sun began to sink below the trees that lined the road, casting him in shadows. Immediately, Tim began to feel chilled, especially on his bare legs. The strengthening wind ruffled the hairs on his legs, sending shivers up and down his spine.

Then he heard the sound of a motor coming up the hill behind him. The flare of headlights over the hill announced that the vehicle was seconds away.

Unwilling to be caught by another person in such a state, Tim ducked into the woods. He listened to the sound of the vehicle as it approached and passed the road in front of where he lay, then fade off into the distance.

Shivering in the chill of early evening, Tim knew it was only going to get worse. Looking around, he decided that he should probably see whereabouts he was.

He moved a little deeper into the woods, craning his neck until he found what he was looking for - a nice, tall tree that soared a dozen feet above the surrounding treetops. Gritting his teeth, he began to climb the tree, hoping that when he reached the top he'd be able to see a house or something - preferably, a house with a clothesline out back where he might snag a change of clothes. He hauled himself up another branch, tearing the skirt of the dress, then...

...paused atop the branch that extended over the wall, then lowered himself until he hung from the position. Bracing himself, he let go and dropped to the ground below, knocking the breath from him.

Rolling to a sitting position, he caught his breath, listening for the sounds of pursuit - he heard nothing. He stood, brushing himself off. He frowned in distaste as his hands ran along the clothing he wore.

Thanks to a faulty valve on the anesthetic, he'd managed to escape after knocking the doctor and her two assistants unconscious - but the only clothing he'd been able to steal was one of the woman's outfits.

At least he'd been able to keep his own shoes, he thought wryly, looking down at the clunky footwear. They'd been in a corner, obviously unfit to dump down the incinerator chute that had consumed his other clothing.

Thankfully, Tim lifted the skirt of the pale pink dress and lightly ran his hand over his cock in the comfortable confines of his lacy white panties he'd been also found, stuffed into one of the shoes. At least he hadn't had to wear one of those awful, baggy briefs the woman was wearing. Despite having to make his escape in such clothing, he was glad he managed to do so before they'd started any procedures on him.

Getting his bearings, Tim struck out through the woods, moving through them with no clear idea where they'd lead - as long as it was away from that nuthouse, he was happy.

Half an hour later, Tim broke through a line of scrub and found himself on a back road of some sort. Looking up and down the pitted, two-lane strip of asphalt, he picked a direction at random and began walking, feeling supremely stupid in the frilly pink dress.

Fifteen minutes passed, and the sun began to sink below the trees that lined the road, casting him in shadows. Immediately, Tim began to feel chilled, especially on his bare legs. The strengthening wind sighed across his silky smooth legs and caused a brief shiver. It was almost enough to make him wish they'd gotten as far as implanting body hair on him.

Then he heard the sound of a motor coming up the hill behind him. The flare of headlights over the hill announced that the vehicle was seconds away.

He hesitated, unsure what to do, and then it was too late - the vehicle crested the hill and was upon him.

The late-model sedan came screeching to a halt beside Tim, and the driver, a muscular young man a year or too older, opened the door and stepped out of the car.

"Well, well, well..." He said, eyeing Tim with distaste. "What have we got here? Some perverted little pansy?"

"No - it's not like that!" Tim protested, backing away from the young man.

"Oh, really?" The man asked, scathingly. "I see some sick young guy wearin' a dress. You know how we deal with sickos like you around here?"

Tim, sensing what was to come, lifted his arms defensively. It was a reaction that was fortunate - because the man's arm lashed out and, instead of crushing Tim's nose, merely knocked him to the ground...

...knocking the breath from him.

Rolling to a sitting position, he caught his breath, listening for the sounds of pursuit - he heard nothing.

He stood, brushing himself off. He frowned in distaste as his hands ran along the clothing he wore. Thanks to a faulty valve on the anesthetic, he'd managed to escape after knocking the doctor and her two assistants unconscious - but the only clothing he'd been able to steal was one of the woman's outfits.

At least he'd been able to keep his own shoes, he thought happily, looking down at the two-inch high heeled pumps. They'd been in a corner, obviously unfit to dump down the incinerator chute that had consumed his other clothing.

Thankfully, Tim lifted the skirt of the pale pink dress and lightly ran his hand over his cock in the comfortable confines of his lacy white panties he'd been also found, stuffed into one of the shoes. At least he hadn't had to wear one of those awful, baggy briefs the woman was wearing. Despite having to make his escape in such clothing, he was glad he managed to do so before they'd started any procedures on him.

Getting his bearings, Tim struck out through the woods, moving through them with no clear idea where they'd lead - as long as it was away from that nuthouse, he was happy.

Half an hour later, Tim broke through a line of scrub and found himself on a back road of some sort. Looking up and down the pitted, two-lane strip of asphalt, he picked a direction at random and began walking, feeling supremely stupid in the frilly pink dress.

Fifteen minutes passed, and the sun began to sing below the trees that lined the road, casting him in shadows. Immediately, Tim began to feel chilled, especially on his smooth, silky legs. The strengthening wind stirred his mane of long, silky blonde hair, causing a brief shiver as the silky strands brushed over his smooth neck.

Then he heard the sound of a motor coming up the hill behind him. The flare of headlights over the hill announced that the vehicle was seconds away.

He hesitated, unsure what to do, and then it was too late - the vehicle crested the hill and was upon him.

The late-model sedan came screeching to a halt beside Tim, and the driver, a muscular young man a year or too older, opened the door and leaned out of the car.

"Well, well, well..." He said, eyeing Tim with an odd look. "What have we got here?"

"Uh... hi..." Tim said, awkwardly, knowing the picture he must present to the bulky young man. "Look, um..."

"Rick - Rick Farnsworth." The young man supplied.

"Hi - I'm Tim Rusk." Tim replied, feeling silly. He searched for a reasonable explanation for his condition - and one came to him. "I was seeing a young lady - without the knowledge of her father. When he got home, I had to get out of there, and the first thing that was handy was, uh..." Embarrassed, he gestured at the frilly pink dress covering his muscled figure.

"Hmm - sounds like you got out just in time. Loosing your dignity ain't nothing compared to what you mighta lost if her daddy had caught ya." Rick said with a grin.

"Yeah." Tim agreed. "I don't suppose I could get a lift, huh?"

Rick shrugged. "Well, I'll give you a lift to the edge of town - but that's it. No offense, Tim - but I wouldn't want anybody to see you with me."

"No problem." Tim agreed. He climbed into the passenger side, and they headed off.

True to his word, Rick pulled to a stop a hundred yards or so on the far side of the bridge that crossed the river before the town.

"What you do, Tim," Rick suggested, "Is take this railway bridge across - that'll keep you out of sight for a while. Once in town, though, you're on your own."

"Thanks." Tim said, grateful to the young man.

As Rick pulled away, Tim carefully walked across the trestle bridge, not letting his heels drop into the spaces between the ties. Reaching the other side of the bridge, he found himself screened in by a thin strip of trees that blocked the unsightly tracks from the town proper.

Listening carefully for any sign of life, he approached the line of trees. Not hearing anything, he pushed aside the branches and...

...found himself on a back road of some sort. Looking up and down the pitted, two-lane strip of asphalt, he picked a direction at random and began walking, feeling supremely stupid in the frilly pink dress. The four-inch tall heels on his shoes clicked reassuringly on the pavement, letting him know that at least something's were still all right with his world.

Fifteen minutes passed, and the sun began to sink below the trees that lined the road, casting him in shadows. Immediately, Tim began to feel chilled, especially on his smooth, silky legs. A gust blew up his skirt, and he was glad that he had also managed to save his lacy panties, so that he could tuck his cock back, as usual - with those ugly boxers, it would have been hanging loose in the breeze. The strengthening wind stirred his mane of long, silky blonde hair, causing a brief shiver as the silky strands brushed over his smooth neck.

Then he heard the sound of a motor coming up the hill behind him. The flare of headlights over the hill announced that the vehicle was seconds away.

He hesitated, unsure what to do, and then it was too late - the vehicle crested the hill and was upon him.

The late-model sedan came screeching to a halt beside Tim, and the driver, a muscular young man a year or two older, opened the door and leaned out of the car.

"Well, well, well..." He said, eyeing Tim with an intrigued look. "What have we got here? A young man in trouble?"

"Uh... hi..." Tim said, awkwardly, knowing the picture he must present to the bulky young man. "Look, um..."

"Rick - Rick Farnsworth." The young man supplied.

"Hi - I'm Timmy Rusk." Tim replied, feeling silly. He searched for a reasonable explanation for his condition - and one came to him. "I was seeing a young lady - without the knowledge of her father. When he got home, I had to get out of there, and the first thing that was handy was, uh..." Embarrassed, he gestured at the frilly pink dress covering his slender figure.

"Hmm - sounds like you got out just in time. Loosing your dignity ain't nothing compared to what you mighta lost if her daddy had caught ya." Rick said with a grin.

"Yeah." Tim agreed. "I don't suppose I could get a lift, huh?"

Rick shrugged. "Well, I'll give you a lift to the edge of town - but that's it. I already got me a girl friend, and I wouldn't want her gettin' jealous."

Laughing, Tim agreed. He climbed into the passenger side, and they headed off.

True to his word, Rick pulled to a stop on the far side of the bridge that crossed the river before the town.

"What you do, Timmy," Rick suggested, "Is go to the bus station. We ain't got nothing against you types of guys, but it's best not to hang around." He dug into his pocket and pulled out some cash. "Here's twenty-five bucks - that'll get you to the next town, where you can find some of your kind to help you."

"Thanks." Tim said, grateful to the young man. He hoped he remembered the fake names that the bisexual community used as covers for their 'safe houses'. It had been a while since he'd needed to use one.

As Rick pulled away, Tim headed across the bridge, swaying gently atop his heels. He still couldn't believe the arrogance of his parents, sending him to 'recondition' him into a straight male - in this day and age!

Angry at his parents betrayal, Timmy was lost in his own little world - so the sound of the train's horn startled him. Wryly, he looked over at the train trestle, where the light of the locomotive...

...announced that the vehicle was seconds away.

Tam turned and positioned himself - balanced on one five-and-a-half inch heel, the other leg gently cocked to show it's shapely contour. Tam stuck out one thumb, it's carefully filed and polish nailed pointing in the direction he hoped to catch a lift in.

The late-model sedan came screeching to a halt beside Tam, and the driver, a muscular young man a year or two older, rolled down the window and looked out of the car.

"Well, now." He said, eyeing the dress where Tam's hormonally-grown breasts stretched the stolen dress "What have we got here? A young she-male in trouble?"

"Hi..." Tam said, engagingly. "My name's Tam - Tam Rusk." "Rick - Rick Farnsworth." The young man supplied.

"Nice ta meetcha." Tam said, pleasantly - he had plenty of experience at appearing interested in complete strangers. "I don't suppose I could get a lift, handsome?"

Rick smiled. "Well, I'll give you a lift to the bus station, if you'd like. If you need it, I can spare enough to get you to the next city..."

Laughing, Tam waved one slender hand. "Naw - I'm sure I can find a way to cum up with the cash..." He climbed into the passenger side, and they headed off.

True to his word, Rick pulled to a stop in front of the brightly lit bus station. "Here you are, Tam - right to the door."

Throwing the muscular man a wink, Tam slid from the car. The pre-op waited until the 'Good Samaritan' had driven from sight, then swayed down the dark alley beside the bus station, wishing she had he normal clothes instead of this stupid pink dress - when working en-femme, there was definitely something as 'too much'.

"Psstt.." A voice whispered, and he turned to find a unshaven man eyeing her padded tush. "You, uh... workin'?"

"That's right, honey." Tam said, smiling. "You 'uh... lookin' for somethin'?" The man looked around, furtively. "Thirty-five."

Tam pursed his red-glossed lips. "You a special delivery with a reach around, or a blow?" The man flinched. "I ain't into that other stuff - just..."

Tam smiled. "No prob, baby - I'm easy " He giggled, and accepted the crumpled bills from the man.

Sinking to his knees, Tam unzipped the man's pants. He made a show of being excited, but that's all it was - a show. Blowjob, to Tam, where just another way of making a living, not particularly fun - especially with a guy as nasty as this one.

Still, he acted like he was enjoying it as he enveloped the man's cock with his surgically-inflated lips and began to bob his head up and down. His slender hand encircled the shaft at the base and worked in rhythm, while he swirled his tongue around the man's head.

He didn't stint on technique, but he also didn't draw the act out. Soon enough, he was swallowing the man's sticky cum, pretending like it was the most wonderful thing he'd ever tasted.

As the man scurried away, Tam heard the low, diesel growl of an engine. Swaying atop his heels, he hurried towards the terminal, hoping he had enough time to get a ticket. It might be iffy - the bus was already pulling...

...to a halt beside Tami, and the driver, a muscular young man a year or two older, rolled down the window and leered out at her.

"Who, baby " He whistled, drooling at the way her huge, firm GGG-cup tits strained the front of her tight red dress. Tami leaned against the car, displaying more mouth-watering cleavage.

"Hi there, handsome." Tami purred, feeling the familiar lust rising in her - damn but she did love her work.

"Rick - Rick Farnsworth." The young man supplied.

"Nice ta meetcha." Tami said, pleasantly indifferent - who cared what their names were? "I'm Tami." Rick was practically drooling. "Uh, if you got the time "

Laughing, Tam waved one slender hand. "Honey, if you got the cash, I always got the time "

When Rick flashed some green, Tami jiggled and swayed to the other side of the car atop her 'Fuck- Me Red' platforms with seven inch stilettos. Climbing in, she made sure to let this guy get a good look at her long, sexy legs.

Rick dropped the car into gear and busted the speed limit into town, pulling into a cheep motel. Tami waited in the car, idly stroking one sensitive tit as he paid for a room, then climbed out and used her 'business' walk to the room, letting Rick know he was getting the best.

Once inside, with the door closed, Tami let Rick slide down her dress. When he was sliding it down her legs, she leaned forward, burying his face in her awesome cleavage as her hands worked at his belt-buckle and fly.

Within seconds, she was falling backwards onto the bed, dragging him on top of her. Her cunt was already sopping wet, and she wanted him now - and guys loved hookers like her mainly because they didn't have to - excuse the expression - 'dick around' with foreplay.

Eagerly, the muscular man mounted her, his hands going to her tits as he drove into her hungrily, pounding with a heavy rhythm.

Tami made all the requisite sounds - but could tell where this was going. Disappointment flooded her as she proved out to be right - the guy was so horny he came in no time, shooting his load and pulling out quickly, long before she was satisfied.

Well, she didn't get paid to be 'real' - when she felt him starting to come, she put on the 'best orgasm of my life' routine, leaving him feel like a real man, instead of like the pathetic 'quick-shot' he was.

As he headed out, having given her a night's lodging and fifty-five bucks, Tami considered going out for an hour to see if she could do better - but it was late, and she would probably only get a few guys wanting back-seat blows. Although her mouth watered at the thought of the tasty cum, she was more concerned with her own unsatisfied desire, and she merely lay in the bed and masturbated herself to sleep, hoping that she'd get lucky tomorrow and find a guy who could go the distance...

* * * * * "Well?"

Chu smiled. "Perfect."

The two women watched as Tami's body was lifted out of the sensory deprivation/Virtual reality tank. Six months of work had sculpted her, body and mind, into the perfect cum-hungry whore, with no memory of ever being male - or at this institution. Before she awoke, she'd be taken to the hotel that she'd 'gone to sleep' in 'last night', and all the necessary props would be left for her to continue 'her' life as she remembered it.

As the unconscious ex-male hooker was taken out, Liz turned to Chu. "Who's next?"

Chu smiled. "Actually, we have an interesting one - one of the self-committed."

Liz 'hmmmed' - although it was rare, due to the secrecy of the institution, it did happen.

"Wait, there's more - you should see what this guy wants. We're going to have to do a whole new program up for him."

"Really?" Liz asked, interested - that was a rare thing.

"Yes - come, I have to let you hear it from him." Opening the door, she leaned out. The secretary at the desk looked up.

"Angela, call the front desk." Chu said. "Have them send up Mr. Zink."

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: One man's experience as he is transformed by his sister using high tech surgical equipment into a blonde bimbo.

Flashback

By Gunslinger

With a faint electronic whine, the automatic door began to slide open on it's track. As the heavy, metal-framed glass started to retract, a gust of the cool night air swept into the lobby, seeping across the body of the person stepping out into the late-summer night.

The heat of day but a fading memory in the pavement and rocks, the air carried with it a hint of the approaching autumn, it's force itself stronger then the summer zephyrs as the cooler air masses created stronger winds.

Though the air was evenly distributed across the body over which it flowed, clothing deflected or altered it's effect - and more then anything, it increased the texture of the breeze as it swept across the fine mesh of the flesh-toned nylons that covered the smooth, firm flesh of the legs...

Teeth grinding in a hate-filled clench of unbearable irritation, he stumbled into the bathroom.

Driven near onto insanity by the relentless irritation, he slapped at the wall-switch, bringing bright light to life, light that reflected off white-tiled floors and walls, creating a harsh reflective glare that bit hard into his eyes.

Staggering into the small, echoing chamber, he raised his eyes briefly to meet those of his reflected doppelganger in the mirror above the sink.

Fine-featured face curled about itself in a grimace, it was the face of a man on the fine edge of madness.

Letting his gaze drop from the tortured gaze, he stared in hatred and frustration at his arm.

Every hair on the arm stood at rigid attention, up and away from the body it was attached do. Driven my the force of the electrostatic generators in the walls of his prison, each hair not only rose away from the body as if each individually being tugged in slightly painful grip - but they also each individually vibrated, in a cumulative effect that created an endless torment of itching.

Pulling his red-rimmed eyes from the arm, he let his gaze re-focus on a few, otherwise innocuous items on the ledge of the bathtub - items that, for him, were as a torturer's tools.

A package of razor blades, and an 'economy-size' bottle of depilatory.

They were the items that had sat there, mocking him, since the first hour of his imprisonment here, now followed by thirty-six more such intervals of time - each one of which had grown longer in his mind as sleep and peace of mind were denied to him by the incessant itching-pulling-twitching of every hair on his body.

A package of twenty powder-pink disposable razors, each twin-bladed pivoting head mounted atop a padded, contoured grip designed to fit a feminine hand. A large, silver-colored plastic bottle containing a creamy substance designed with the needs - or wants - of a woman in mind.

Simple items, commonplace in so many North American homes. Items he'd so confidently sworn he'd never use.

Items that, now, he reached for with hands he had to uncurl from clenched fists of humiliation and rage...

..as, from the ceiling-mounted speakers ubiquitous to every room in his not-so-gilded cage, her laughter rolled out in electronic amplification...

The swirl of wind also brought with it some friends - broad, parchment-thin leaves, still summer-green and soft, that the wind pulled unresisting from the branches of the overhanging tree near the entrance.

The trio of leaves swirled into the door upon the wind, seeming almost alive as they fled the cool darkness of the night for the light of the building, each floating fragment of fragrant greenery tracing the unseen currents of the wind - and sliding, with soft caress, across and around the pinched midpoint of the hourglass figure. So fine were the leaves upon the summer breeze, they seemed to dance and dally across the amazingly slender waist, as if playing upon the supple smoothness of the abdomen's tiny circumference...

For the tenth time in as many minutes, he hesitantly stretched a hand out towards the 'nutrition bars' stacked in a neat pyramid of foil-wrapped foodstuffs in the center of the table.

Unlike the previous nine repetitions of the movement, however, this time he did not snatch his hand back, instead gingerly touching the outside of the plain-wrapped bars, then gently wrapped the hand that terminated the smooth, unsullied arm around the object.

Above, her voice continued to mockingly extol the virtues of the bars. The virtues of their balanced nutrition and vitamins, so conducive to weight loss. The virtues of their flavour and texture.

The virtues of the extremely powerful female hormones each bar was liberally laced with.

Hormones equal in unadvisedly high strength as the will-weakening sodium pentothal that tainted the water that had been his sole source of sustenance for the past three days.

Hand quivering from more than just hunger and fatigue, he held the bar before his eyes, mind fighting both sides of a battle as he contemplated the unassuming packaging that contained the food he'd so long denied himself.

Slowly, with awkward coordination brought about partly by shame and partly by exhausted hunger, his fingers worried at the plasticized aluminium until it parted, exposing the granola-like bar within.

Even the faint smell the bar produced was enough to start his mouth to watering, and he lost all sense of hesitation, as well as civilization, as he crammed the bar between dry lips - and found the granola-like bar even harder and dryer than he'd expected.

Jaws working frantically, mind nearly overwhelmed past thinking by hunger, he began gulping large draughts of chemically-enhanced water to ease the chore. Crumbs of food and rivulets of water trickled off his denuded chin to sprinkle down across the heavy leather corset that had found himself wearing when he'd awoken from his drugged slumber in that first hour. Still straining as tautly over his slightly diminished waist as it had the first instant he'd awoken, thanks to the small, self-powered motors that held each binding in a self-tightening grip, the flesh-colored garment left no gap from liquid or fragment to enter, actually compressed to the flesh of his waist in a water-tight bond by its taut snugness.

Managing to lubricate the now-sodden mass of hormone-laced grain and granola, he felt his constricted stomach rumble and churn for a second - and then, awakened after too long being denied, it demanded more.

It was a demand he couldn't bring himself to ignore, hand almost involuntarily reaching out for another bar - as her voice slid into another damnable laugh...

As the door continued to yawn ever wider, muscles began to tense in preparation of movement. In the intricate synchronized ballet of muscle necessary for even the simplest movement, sinew and flesh from every appendage began to tense or loosen in the simple expectation of movement, shifting weight and balance to allow motion without succumbing to the never-ending effect of gravity.

Muscles in the slender arms began to bunch under the silky-smooth skin, preparing to swing them in counter-rhythm to the scissoring of the long, well-shaped legs in their nylon enclosures. Muscles within the denuded column of the neck tensed in preparation of keeping the head fixed in relative position against the slight sway of smoothly rounded shoulders that would occur.

Under the taut fabric caress of the short, tweed skirt that clung like a second skin, the taut flesh of a firmly packed and artistically rounded posterior subtly shifted shape as new tension arose from the muscles within. The full, delectable shape of the inverted heart that went from tiny waist to just-less- then-too-full buttocks took up the tension in even strain, cocking slightly in a way that only further emphasized the quite literally unnatural shape and size of the photogenic posterior...

Beset by exhaustion and befuddlement, by drug and by wild hormonal swings, he staggered about the room, struggling to keep watery knees from collapsing to the cold metal of the floor.

Cold metal that would burn as if on fire, should bare flesh come in contact with the electrified metal sheeting that made up the floor.

Four days without sleep. Four days of growing exhaustion and confusion as the powerful hormones now flooding his weakened system added their voice to the dulling of the wits that the hypnotic sedative brought. A dulling and confusion that had only increased with an ever-increasing consumption of a coffee more laced with a synthetic vitamin complex to soften and smooth skin than it was with the desperately desired caffeine.

Only the strange, oversized 'shoes' that clad his feet kept the electrical current below at bay - and even that exacted a terrible price, as the spring-and-tensioned-metal laden shoes continuously and now agonizingly compressed the feet inwards while simultaneously pressing ever-upwards against the arch in a curve.

Muscles from calf to thigh screamed in addition pain at the forces that were tiring them to raggedness even as they toned and shaped them into new contours, adding to the horrors of the 'shoes' - shoes that he dare not remove, though they were not fasted upon his feet.

Shoes that he could only remove if he were no longer standing on the electrified floor - and shoes that had, before, seemed a much less permanent horror than the only seat in the prison he was in.

Now, brought to the edge of collapse by a combination of factor, he had no choice. Rather than face the agony that his increasing number of missteps and spills had given him ample samples of, he staggered wearily over to the single seat.

Jaw clenched in humiliation and self hate, he gingerly lowered himself in to the custom-designed chair.

He gasped as the not-quite-painful sensation of tiny needles was transmitted through the muscles of the gluteus maximus - needles that provided electronic stimulation to the muscle even as it injected tiny fat cells to increase mass.

Sitting back in the chair, savouring the first real rest since sitting in the temporarily unpowered bathtub for his hair removal, he told himself that he'd only sit long enough to rest his leg muscles.

It was a futile attempt, as exhaustion caught up with him, carrying him away to the sound of her humming Braham's 'Lullaby'...

As the door slid to a mechanically smooth stop against its rubber-coated backstop, a foot lifted.

It was done with only the simplest of thoughts - yet the complex physical events that occurred to do so were numerous. The entire body had to shift to maintain balance as the weight was transferred, if only momentarily, from a two-point connection with the ground to a single one.

Well-shaped and well-defined muscles of the smoothly rounded calf and tautly firm thigh tensed in sensual synchronization as the leg lifted a few inches from the ground while swinging forward in a smooth, regular curve that also pulled the wide hips into an equally smooth two-axis sway and swivel.

Traveling a few inches forward, and in a heel-to-toe line with the other foot that caused a much more emphatic swivel-sway-and-sip then absolutely necessary, the foot returned to the ground with a graceful transfer of weight - even as the other foot began it's own mirror-image repetition of the same movement, only now with the added complexity of arms that had begun graceful swings to counter-balance the movements of the womanly hips.

Of the total complexity it took to move the human body, it was an added layer of precision and agility that the entire manoeuvre was completed on the relative-to-mass tiny points of contact provided by the inwardly sloping three-inch platforms and metal-tipped seven-inch spiked heels of the black, rounded-toe pumps enclosing the slender, highly-arched feet...

Slowly, trying to focus a mind befogged by drugs and massive hormonal fluxes, he pushed himself off the 'chair', slipping his feet into the 'shoes' as he blinked sleep from his eyes.

He was all-too-aware of the way his larger, reshaped posterior felt as he removed the pressure from the fuller, fleshier derrière - but he was even more aware - and humiliated - by the strange, 'loose- swivel' from his expanding hips.

There had been great glee as well as pride in her voice during the explanation of the pair of surgically-implanted 'hydraulic arms' within his pelvis, slowly pushing outwards on lightly fractured bone in an endless series of breaks-and-heals on a micro-scale, slowly expanding the hips beneath their smooth coating of flesh.

Each 'arm' was roughly the size of a surgical pin - and the four in his pelvis were far from the only ones. There were also such 'micro-hydraulics' in his legs, feet and fingers, slowly lengthening the bones within - while very similar, but differently utilized, micro-hydraulics were working at narrowing his shoulders and hands.

Denied any clock or watch, and with a mind steadily more confused and bemused, he'd lost all track of time, and so no longer had any inkling of the duration of his seemingly endless torment - but he knew it had been long enough for the relatively slow process to show marked changes in his body.

Slow enough to be kept to nothing but a dull ache in his bones, the process was also slow enough for him to 'naturally' acclimatize to the actual changes - but the overall alterations were nevertheless a constant presence in his humiliated, horrified mind as he continued drawing further away from the person he had once been.

A person that, at times, now seemed like little more than a half-remembered dream - and, at other times, was as real and immediate as if this had been but an instant.

Usually when it struck her as amusing to point out what was being done to him, and why, and how...

Slender, arched feet slid into the 'shoes', he began to step away from the horrible, horrifying, and terribly necessary piece of furniture that was his only haven from the electrified floor...

...and his foot lifted right out of the 'shoe'.

He stared numbly at the dainty foot for a moment, befogged mind trying to incorporate this new situation. Slowly, he understood that the internal and external alterations had finally altered his foot to the point that the now-fully-constricted shoes wouldn't fit. Perhaps, over the past few days, or eons, they had been growing looser, but his drugged brain, coping with the constant influx of images from the plexi-protected monitors in every room, hadn't managed to pass that information on to his conscious mind - what little of it there was.

Slipping his foot back into the shoe, he numbly began shuffling towards his 'breakfast' of hormone- laced bars,, sliding his feet instead of lifting them.

] By the time her reached the bars, his legs ached horrendously from the awkward movements he was using. Teeth gritted against the pain that still managed to make it through his drugged mind, he began to reach for his ration of mind-and-body altering edibles...

...and his eyes fell on a pair of objects he'd defiantly thrown into the corner on the first day, after her boasting that he'd soon be wearing them.

For along moment, he simply stared vacantly at the 'classic' pumps with their five-and-a-half-inch heels...

Slowly, he shuffled over to them and awkwardly bent down to pick them up, not afraid of touching the floor accidentally thanks to the 'insulation' provided by the long fingernails he hadn't been able to trim since this whole thing had begun.

Setting the shoes upright on their slender heels, he slowly straightened, sweeping his long, tangled mass out of his face as he rose - and, to the sound of her mocking laughter, transferred his feet from the blocking alteration shoes into the slender pumps, feeling as light as feathers on his altered feet...

With the second step, the doorway was finally cleared - and the night was shattered.

Like a cascade effect, the first, lone flash-bulb that went off was followed by two more in quick succession - then a half dozen more in a string that led smoothly into an irregular, unending series of eye-popping white strobes of light against the darkness as the dozen or so photographers clustered near the end of the walkway snapped one photograph after another in a frenzied explosion of flashes.

The actinic white strobes were all aimed at the single individual exiting the building, a cascade of white explosions. They flared, dimmed, and flared anew in irregular patterns that picked dozens of different highlights off the focus of their beams.

Soft, diffuse highlights off the short, tight skirt and the tight, tied-off white short-sleeve blouse. Sharper highlights off the smooth, creamy skin exposed by the skimpy outfit. Sharp, high-contrast highlights off the leather of the shoes and the belt that encircled the diminutive waist - and off the matching hot-pink gloss lipstick that covered the full, bee-stung lips and the equally glossy polish that coated the long, oval nails that tipped each long, slender finger...

He stared with horrified fascination at the 'spigot'.

Time had become a myth, a story you told children. Time, as measured intervals, didn't exist. There was simply an endless 'now' - a 'now' that was imbedded in a world of change and humiliation and helplessness, never-ending and never-denied.

The 'now' he'd been in for some time had not included water, nor food. His drug-laced supply had been cut off, gradually allowing his mind to clear somewhat - though hunger, fatigue and fear denied him full use of faculties further diminished by the unending barrage of images displayed on the wall-sized monitors that lay in every room, bombarding him constantly with their content.

Even now, with hunger and thirst gnawing at him, he couldn't tune out the images of flesh on flesh, of bobbing breasts and hard phalluses and warm, willing orifices...

...and, worse, he was no longer quite sure whether these images were completely external, for even when he closed his eyes the continued to play in his head, the never-ending barrage having penetrated a drug-steeped mind and filled it with its own never-ending series.

He knew what was happening to him. His mind, though not as clear as it might have once been, was cleared then in current memory, and the humiliation and horrors being done to him were sharp and clear and easily discernable. He knew he was fighting a rear-guard action, struggling against a horrible fate - and he also knew that he wasn't struggling as hard as he could have.

He was... surrendering. One step at a time, he faced battles that should have been fought unto death - and, instead, sooner or later, he gave in.

Like now.

Shaking with newly re-emphasised shame at what he was letting happen to him - what he was doing to himself - he lifted his shaking hands to the camera in the corner, displaying the fire-engine-red fingernail polish that he'd applied to each long nail.

There was a pause - and then her crooned words of satisfaction were overlaid by the soft thump as a small slot beside the mirror delivered a small, metallic tube.

Hating himself for what he was doing, he did it anyways. He reached out, picked up the tube - and then, slowly and with reluctance, pulled the top half from the bottom, revealing the chisel-tip of the richly red lipstick.

He looked at his slimmer face in the mirror, seeing the changes already wrought in his countenance by hormones - and then, with a grimace, he brought the tip of the lipstick up to his narrow lips, and began to coat them in the slip, distinctively-scented cosmetic.

It was an inexpert job - but it was good enough for the task at hand.

Her instructions on how to operate the new 'spigot' had been quite clear - explicit, in fact. Body shaking in humiliated, impotent rage, he now obeyed them, his dry mouth already anticipating the life-sustaining liquid it would provide.

Disgusted - but nevertheless 'willing' in a horrifying, perverse way - he wrapped his newly-slicked lips around the highly detailed metal phallus, feeling them compress over the curved head and onto the 'vein' ridged shaft of the smooth metal, even as more of the highly-detailed texturing made contact with the palms of hands that wrapped around the object's shaft.

Eyes closed, small tears of shame he could ill-afford to waste standing in the corners, he began sucking the metal phallus as he began bobbing his head and working his hands at the same time.

With each bob-and-thrust, a squirt of warm, but deliciously clear, water jetting into a mouth so dry that it simply absorbed the liquid without the need to swallow.

Absorbed the liquid - and the drugs and hormones it contained.

Hating himself for feeling gratitude for the liquid that was received in such a humiliating way, he nevertheless worked harder, eager for more of the life-sustaining liquid...

...even as the micro-needles in the shaft, activated by the pressure of his lips, worked at injected micro-fat into his lips to pump them up into full, pouty perfection for the job.

Or, to use her description - cock-sucker's lips...

Full, perfect cock-sucking lips 'naturally' curved into a warm smile that dazzled the photographers, the center of attention lifted a slender hand in acknowledgment.

On it's way, the slim hand paused to flip an errant lock of the elaborately styled bottle-blond hair away from one eye made vivid electric blue by colored contacts.

The motion of the arm created other motions. The action, like all others in the universe, had an equal and opposite reaction - part of which was an increase of tension on the flesh just below the arm.

Tension that was then transferred and translated into the flesh surrounding it, causing the full, round breast to shift and move, pushing higher and tighter within the skimpy confines of the bow-tied blouse...

Hesitantly, 'she' stepped into the room, balanced easily atop the high, slender heels.

Lips curved in an approximation of a smile as 'she' assumed a pose she knew from long indoctrination that 'her' companion would find pleasing, even if her didn't acknowledge 'her' presence in any visible way.

The man - a broad, shoulder, dusky-skinned man who's amazing endowment was made obvious by his nudity - had simply been there when she had been roused from a sleep induced by drugs fed into her water supply.

He'd simply stood by and laughed as she had gone into hysterics when she discovered what had been done to her during her drugged sleep. Laughed as she had screamed over the firm, orange- sized implants that had filled out the much smaller mounds the hormones had created - and laughed as she broken down into helpless sobs as her long-nailed fingers had run over the new womanhood surgery had created for her.

Some while later, as the man had munched placidly on a ham sandwich chased by a bottle of cola, shed' tried to attack him, to finally act on the long-bottled hate, humiliation and rage...

...and had ended up on the ground, writhing in agony, as her electronically amplified voice explained about the small electronic device implanted within the pain center of the brain - the device programmed to recognize certain 'unwanted' behaviour, including anything aggressive - or anything the least bit masculine.

The man had then proceeded to ignore her completely, explaining that 'sissy-girls' like her were all right, in their place, especially useful for 'earning their daily bread' by sucking cock - but he'd never let such a poorly-endowed, unattractively styled and coiffed woman like her have that pleasure...

There'd been no other enticements.

The floor was no longer electrified - though, with her highly altered feet, more then a few minutes of walking bare-foot, without the support of high heels, was excruciating.

There was now furnishings - but nothing to do while sitting or laying on them, since even the TV's were dark and silent now, and her new companion ignored her completely.

The spigot still worked, and the water it dispensed was now just that - pure, clear, unadulterated water, as much as she wanted to 'suck' from it.

There was even more granola bars, these ones undrugged, unaltered - and flavourless.

Time was still a nebulous thing, so she had no idea how long it had been since she'd awoken to find that the final transformative surgery had taken place - but it had been long enough for the boredom to eat away at her mind as badly as the drugs and hormones had, before.

Now, stepping into the room where her sole companion was reading a book, she slowly walked over to the machine in the corner - the machine she'd been using regularly for the past little while, between times when she was dressing, styling, and making herself up to avoid unnecessary pain.

Hating herself for doing this, but wanting - needing - to do it anyway, she slowly opened her blouse, reached out - and carefully connected the small needles tipping the plastic tubing to the fill-valves under each armpit.

Once again, saline started pumping into her expandable implants - and the man expressed his approval of her actions.

As she willingly inflated already enlarged breasts, she simply stood and accepted what she was doing, disgusted but docile as she gave in to a fate she now knew that she'd never be able to avoid.

She waited until the skin of her bosom was stretched painfully taut over her implants before shutting off the machine and turning to face the man.

He smiled - and ripped chapter three out of the book he was reading, offering the third instalment of the book for the third repetition of her skills.

Submissively, her swollen, taut breasts swaying painfully, she'd walked over and sunk to her knees before him.

Simulating emotion, she'd let her brain wander off into fading memories of happier times as she applied spigot-taught skills to the task at hand, wrapping her cock-sucker lips around his rapidly hardening cock, her hands rising to caress and fondle his throbbing shaft with growing skill.

Trying hard not to think about what she was doing - and failing miserably - she proceeded to give him a long, skilled, and intensely pleasurable blow-job.

Swallowing the thick, salty load of cum he provided her she carefully licked his cock clean - then, again feigning happiness, she stood, and accepted from him her chapter, and a sandwich and a bottle of cola, which she carried back with her into the other room to enjoy in peace...

"Well, gentleman..." Linda Sinclair announced from her position on the podium, getting their attention only because the curvaceous figure upon which they were focused had joined her there. "As you know, it has been exactly one year since my late, lamented brother Thomas' plane went down in a storm over the Atlantic. Though I did inherit the fortune his pornography magazine had accumulated for him, allowing me the chance to finally build and staff my own plastic surgery clinic, the fact that his body was never recovered denied me closure in the matter - and so, today, on the anniversary of my dear brother's passing, I achieve that closure with the assistance of this wonderful woman, who not only was must first patient, but who has chosen to legally change her name to honor the memory of a person she's never met, a person whose passing made her very dreams possible through my use of the funds. May introduce - Miss Tammy Sinclair!"

The tall, leggy blonde with the basket-ball-sized breasts straining against her blouse waved at the clapping reporters, he amazingly full lips curved in a smile as she let the man eye a tall, shapely body as every inch perfect as modern science and surgery could create. From the high-heeled shoes on which she balanced with a dancer's supple grace...

"That's it, my little slut - dance for me!" Julio demanded, the heavy beat of the music overlaying his words as she strove to perfect her 'stripper' routine out of both a need for physical activity and the promise of a full four-course meal after three days of being denied any other 'offers'...

...to the long, toned legs further emphasised by the nude nylons she wore over their smoothly contoured and highly erotic curves...

"Strut your stuff 'Tammy'..." Linda's amplified voice crooned as, struggling to avoid pain, she strove to master the task of mopping a floor while wearing extremely high heels - and still managing to be seductive and sensual...

...to the wide hips and amazing ass in their tight wrapping of a skirt that was just barely long enough to his her womanhood...

"You're not convincing me, slut..." Julio said, as he fucked her hard and long.

"I love being fucked...!" She'd cried in simulated passion, striving not to cry out in pain from his uncaring, self-centered sexual gratification. "Please fuck me harder. Treat me like the little slut I am..."

...past the tiny waist that sat in the shadow of her enormous, round breasts...

"I'm so glad you love my huge boobies...!" She'd cried in a convincing simulation of sincerity as she rode atop his reclined body, 'eagerly' fucking him. "I love having huge tits that make men want to fuck me. I'm a fuck-slut and a cum-whore, and anything that makes men want to have me fuck them and suck them makes me happy..."

...to the beautiful face, surrounded by it's mane of golden hair, she was every inch a tribute to unfettered sexuality.

"I'm so glad that Miss Sinclair let me do this..." Tammy said in her high, clear voice. "If it wasn't for her brother, I'd never gotten this wonderful body that I love so much, with it's tiny waist and wonderfully big, round boobies. Every time I let a man fondle or fuck me, I'm gonna think of Tommy Sinclair!"

The speech was scripted, under threat of pain - yet, in it's own way, it was absolutely true...

The unwillingly feminized new 'cum slut' followed Linda to the limousine that waited them, the photographers snapping more photos for the woman who had helplessly issued a press release earlier detailing her plans to use her 'wonderful new body' in the adult film industry. The 'two women' climbed into the back of the limo, one athletic and proud, the other overtly sexual with hyper-inflated breasts that she'd be compelled to enlarge whenever possible to 'further enhance' her career.

As the door of the car swung shut, Tammy looked at her sister. Though denied the ability to suggest in any way that she was anything other than the sex-loving blonde bimbo she was being forced to betray, there was still enough 'play' in her enforced new life to ask the question that had haunted her throughout:

"Why are you doing this to me...?"

Linda looked thoughtful - then answered truthfully, with a wicked grin. "Because I can..."

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: With his skill an imitating a female voice, he is hired to be a female sex expert, little does he know that he is going to be transformed into the sexual creature that he has pretended to be.

For The Record

By Gunslinger

His open bathrobe hanging loosely around his tall, angular frame, Jeff Edmondson padded barefoot across the kitchen, the cold tile floor doing as much to help rouse him to full wakefulness as the mug of steaming coffee held in his long-fingered hand.

Taking a tentative sip at the fresh-brewed coffee, the lanky, dark-haired young man made his way through the combination living/dining room of his cozy, well-kept bungalow, angling towards the desk resting in front of the broad bay window that took up most of the front wall.

By nature, Jeff was more of a nocturnal individual, and his lifestyle allowed him plenty of opportunity to indulge in his own rhythms. The heavy 'blackout' drapes that were a permanent fixture on his windows kept out the mid-afternoon sun, lending a dark and almost mysterious air to the neat interior of his home. Dropping his lank body into the comfortably worn leather executive chair in front of the desk, Jeff pulled out the top right-hand drawer and used it as a foot rest, leaning far back in the chair and stretching his long, bony legs out in front of him.

Tapping on the mouse button to wake up his computer, Jeff let the blue-white light from the screen provide all the additional illumination he felt the dimly-lit room needed. Opening up his mail program, he quickly began scrolling through the collection of electronic correspondence, quickly picking out the ones forwarded to him from the magazine he free-lanced for. Saving their attached texts to the hard-drive, he minimized the mail program and opened up his word processor, which was set up to take about half the screen.

Opening up a second program that filled the other half of his electronic desktop, Jeff took another sip of his coffee as he went back into the word processor and pulled up the first attachment he'd saved from that day's mail, dark eyes quickly tracing the glowing white lines of text against the blue background.

Grunting, Jeff shook his head and closed the window, pulling up the next letter. This one he read over twice, the second time with a thoughtful look on his sharply-featured face.

"Yeah..." He said to himself, quietly. "Yeah, I think this one will do..."

He read the letter through a third time - this time, in fits and starts, pausing after every few sentences to tap out a line or two of his own at the bottom of the document. By the time he'd finished, he'd formed a rough first draft of a response that he then went over, muttering the words and phrases to himself to get a feel for the sound of the response.

Only when he was happy with his 'script' did he pull the microphone resting on the desk closer to his face and activate the second program up on the screen, a recording program. Clicking on the 'record' button, Jeff began to dictate his response into the computer.

Had there been a hypothetical observer standing in the living room, watching Jeff's actions, they would have been utterly amazed - for what emerged from Jeff's lips was decidedly at odd, both in content and in quality, from anything you might imagine coming from the bony young man's mouth.

It was explicitly sexual - in a feminine vein. One that matched fairly well with the high-pitched, almost giggly falsetto voice Jeff used in dictating the letter.

It was a fairly good imitation of a feminine voice, one that would almost pass as coming from a woman 'on first pass'. It was the sort of skill Jeff was sort of proud of, in a guiltily embarrassed sort of way. His sheer ability to mimic all types and tones of voices was what had driven his previous career as a voice-over artist for commercials and cartoons - but, though it was also what had gotten him his considerably more lucrative gig, it wasn't quite good enough for his new 'audience'.

Which was why, after he finished recording his response, he began 'tweaking' the recording, using the filters built into the recording program to make his own 'pretty good' imitation of a 'bimbo voice' come out utterly perfect. By the time he was done, almost nobody would believe that the clear, sweet soprano had it's origins in a man's voice.

All of which was exactly the point, of course. If the subscribers to the porn site Jeff was working for had any idea that it was a man answering their letters, they would have been outraged.

Jeff certainly understood this point. He, himself, was less than comfortable 'impersonating' a whole host of women, and certainly didn't tell anybody what he was doing for a living, and not only to keep the site's subscribers from ever finding out. Though he liked the pay and loved the freedom this sweet little job gave him, had had no intention of letting anybody find out that he played a slew of 'porn princesses' for a living. Though guiltily proud of his ability to do the work, Jeff still found it hard to believe that he was doing this for a living - or that the company had hired him, for that matter.

In fact, the company hadn't initially been looking to hire 'him' - they'd just tracked down the 'J. Edmondson' who'd been the sweet, girlish voice on a commercial they'd heard. Always looking for women to provide voices to the fictional women supposedly part of the 'sex staff' on the site, it had been a routine measure - until they'd met the person behind that voice, and had been amazed to find it belonged to a tall, almost painfully thin young man.

A young man they'd been extremely hesitant to offer a position to - until one of the staff members at the site pointed out that, unlike any of the other women they were constantly hiring for the work, Jeff didn't just have one voice, but a whole repertoire of them, meaning they could hire one person to do the work of a dozen. Even paying Jeff three or four times what they paid any of the 'real' women would still result in significant savings.

With finances involved, their initial hesitation at even approaching him with the offer became nearly desperate desire to talk him into working for them, and in the end, it had been the money that had won him over, as well.

In fact, it was the offer of even more money that had convinced him to agree to another proposal from the site - one that had him glancing ever more frequently at the clock in the bottom right corner of the screen as he worked to get through his usual collection of letters.

Finally, knowing he wouldn't be able to get any more of them done, he closed down the word processor, leaving only the recording and editing software up. Nervously drumming his fingers on the desk, Jeff wondered if it was too late to call the whole thing off.

The answer, of course, was 'yes'. He knew full well that the time to say 'no' had been a month ago, when he'd first gotten the call from the website administrators. In fact, he'd been sorely tempted to do just that - but the extra money had been tempting, too, and he'd agreed.

Now, with the site having built up excitement for their new 'Ask the Sexpert' segment, it was far, far too late to back out.

There was just slightly less than an hour before Jeff would be playing a sex expert - a female sex expert, answering live, instant-messaged questions from the site's subscribers. From the website's point of view, it had already been a success, with a good number of new subscribers signing up to take advantage of this new monthly feature on the site - but that only meant that Jeff would be all the more screwed if he 'wimped out' now.

Pushing up from the computer, Jeff began anxiously pacing back and forth across the living room floor, trying out one 'voice' after another, looking for the right one to use. Though, like his recorded responses to e-mailed letters, he could use some filters to alter his own voice, he wouldn't have the time to electronically fine-tune the voice to perfection. He was going to have to use an 'on the fly' method, where the filters, though helpfully, would have to be set at the beginning and left alone for the rest of the hour during which he/'she' would be taking questions. More of the onus was directly on him, and his ability to imitate a female voice - as well as answer questions without lots of time to think about them.

Nervous sweat growing in ever-increasing production, Jeff drew closer and closer to the appointed moment - and his mind conjured up more and more things that could go wrong. By the time he sat down at the computer and opened up the browser window through which he'd see the questions submitted by the site's members, he was a nervous wreck, wiping his sweat-slicked palms repeatedly on his bathrobe as he waited for the first question to be posted.

Though, in retrospect, it could have been predicted, it took Jeff by surprise, and almost panicked him out of doing this. In the very first instant that the 'hot line' went active, nearly a dozen questions popped up in a row, having been pre-typed and then copied into memory by the user so that they could just paste and send in an attempt to be the first one to post. The sight of those dozen questions suddenly appearing on the screen made Jeff's heart pound all the harder, and it took a conscious effort of will to keep his butt planted firmly in the chair.

Taking a long, deep breath, Jeff stood on the precipice - and then threw himself off.

"Hello, and welcome to Sex Central's 'Ask The Sexpert'." Jeff said, hearing the only mildly enhanced smoky, sultry voice he'd chosen echo back to him through the large headphones he'd donned to monitor his own voice. "I'm this month's sexpert, Jessica Blacke, and I was planning to say that the Hotline is open - but, as you can all see, some of you are 'premature inquisitors'..."

That little play-on-words was sort of the turning point. As scary as it had all been before Jeff had started, somehow actually doing it made it easier. Feeling himself begin to calm down as he heard how realistic and natural his seemed to sound, even to his own ears, he moved right on to the first of the mass-posted questions.

It was a question about hair color, asking if 'she' had tried different colors, and if so, which she preferred, and what color hair she had now.

Jeff gave it a second's thought, then answered.

"Well, of course, blondes do have more fun..." Jeff joked in the sultry, slightly husky voice that was much easier to maintain than the higher tones he could have used. "They're easier to find in the dark! Seriously, though: I've tried different hair colors, but I prefer my natural shade, and that's what I'm sticking with - Rich, glossy black hair."

It was one of the tamer questions - and Jeff was glad it was the first, because it let him/'her' get into the swing of it before having to tackle the more 'personal' questions.

Questions that left him blushing as he answered them as a woman would, in a woman's voice - and not just any woman, either, but a highly sexual one.

That was what the subscribers wanted, after all - and the fact was, as a man, he had a better understanding of what they wanted to hear than a woman might. It meant that, as perverted as it all seemed for him to be saying certain things to an audience he knew was male, he found himself enjoying it. Playing up to these unseen men's expectations was.. well, fun. Perverse, shameful, and awkward, of course, but the more 'she' answered the questions, the more fun it was to play what was, in a way, one huge practical joke on the unsuspecting audience.

One question after another, 'Jessica' answered them all, getting right into it and making up the answers 'she' figured they wanted to hear on the fly.

How high were 'high heels', and what was the highest 'she' could wear, comfortably?

"It's all relative, of course." 'She' answered that one. "Your average woman finds five-inch heels really high, and gets out of them as soon as possible - because they're used to wearing lower ones. When you wear high heels, and only high heels, consistently, they become as comfortable as flats. I, myself, almost never wear anything lower than six-inch heels, and on certain occasions, even higher..."

Clothing?

"Leather." Was the firm, sultry answer. "I just love the look and feel and smell of leather. Something about being enclosed in tight- fitting leather just makes me feel so very sexy..."

Her opinion about breast implants?

"They're great. I've got implants, myself..." 'She' told her audience, then switched to a larger shovel to keep piling on the bullshit. "In fact, I only meant to have the one enlargement surgery, but my bigger, firmer breasts got me so much more attention that I ended up going back... again, and again. It's almost... addictive..."

Was there such a thing as too much make-up? What's the sexiest thing to wear in the bedroom? Best position - for the guy, and the girl? Spit or swallow? Girl-girl as opposed to guy-on-girl? Threesomes? Foursomes? Moresomes? Orgies? Dildos? Most public place she'd had sex, most unusual, most common, favorite?

As the audience grew more and more confident, the questions got more and more outrageous - and Jeff answered them all, making it up as he went along, blushing furiously at the words coming out of his mouth - and enjoying it all.

So much so, that the hour seemed to literally fly by, and when 'she' said good-bye and logged off, it was with a sense of disappointment that it would be a month until the next one.

Closing down the browser window, Jeff hesitated - then went ahead and closed down the recording program, as well. Though 'on a roll' after the semi-live interview, his throat felt sort of raw from maintaining that 'Jessica' voice for so long, and he decided against answering the rest of the mail he'd put aside. He'd take care of it later.

Pushing back from the computer, he stood up and stretched, deciding it was time to go out and get some fresh air - so to speak.

Heading into his bedroom, he quickly dressed in his usual, comfortable ensemble - a faded, well-worn, and comfortably baggy pair of black jeans and an equally well-worn blue cotton work-shirt. Sitting on the edge of his rumpled bed, he quickly pulled on a pair of socks, then retrieved his wallet from his dresser and tucked it into his back pocket before heading out to the front door.

Slipping his old denim Levi jacket from the peg on the wall, she shrugged into it while stepping into an old, battered pair of eminently comfortable brown leather moccasin-style boating shoes.

Jiggling the jacket, Jeff heard the jangle of his keys deep in one of the voluminous pockets. Satisfied, he pulled open the front door and stepped through, listening for the 'click' of the self-engaging lock as he pulled the door closed behind him.

Not only a night-owl, Jeff was also sort of anti-social, preferring solitary pursuits and his own company to that of the usual hustle and bustle of modern life - but that certainly didn't mean he was a hermit. He just liked to limit his social interactions to situations he was familiar and comfortable with. To that end, he had a few 'hang outs' where he went when he felt like being with other people, and it was to one of these that he decided to go. Turning the frayed collar of his old denim jacket up higher around his neck to foil the cool, late-afternoon breeze, Jeff struck off in the direction of the neighborhood bar and grill, a small, comfortable pool room whose patrons were mostly regulars, people he already knew and who knew him.

With so much of his six-foot-two height taken up in his long, stork-like legs, Jeff set a deceptively casual pace that actually ate up quite a bit of ground, letting him move quite quickly while appearing to merely amble along.

As he strolled towards Mike's place, Jeff's mind kept returning, almost against his will, to the 'interview' he'd just done. Even now, he couldn't believe some of the things that had come from his mouth. Only the fact that none of the listeners had the slightest clue that it was really a man, using a sexy woman's voice, answering their questions had made it possible - but, of course, Jeff knew who was really giving answers that had included a 'honest discussion' about 'her' favorite types and positions of sex, and even the memory of what he'd said in that sexy, smoky voice was enough to renew the blush that had been nearly constant throughout the guiltily enjoyable session.

As the sun began to set behind the tall buildings at the city center, long shadows interspersed with the golden-red glow of sunlight spilled out across Jeff's path, heralding the coming of his beloved night. Even the slowly increasing chill of an autumn evening couldn't kill his good spirits as he reached Mike's Bar and Grill.

Just as he stepped under the overhanging green-and-white awning that shaded the old wood, brass and glass door, the big neon sign above him sputtered into life, and Jeff grinned as its garish red-and blue glow filled the gathering twilight with a purple spill of light.

Pulling open the old-fashioned door, Jeff stepped into the smoke-laced interior of the bar, leaving behind the somehow sterile world of the day-time city.

Mike's Bar and Grill had been opened in 1922, and remained in constant operation since. Though occasional work had been done to update the fixtures and facilities of the bar, its general décor and atmosphere hadn't changed in all the years, and Jeff practically breathed in the ambience of the dimly-lit bar done in a heavy, art-deco style.

The majority of the light came from two sources - the long, stained-glass fixtures mounted above each of the three pool tables, and the collection of glowing neon beer signs mounted strategically on the walls of the old bar. With heavy, geometrically-patterned oak and mahogany complemented by dark red vinyl that matched the felt on the pool tables, the room was not only dimly lit, but seemed to soak up the ambient light. Against this backdrop, the dozen or so patrons in the bar were little more than darker shadows that only resolved themselves into individual people when you got close enough to them.

Smiling to himself, Jeff crossed the dark hardwood flooring to the impressive bar, complete with old-fashion brass foot-rail and tall, high-backed red vinyl barstools. Slipping comfortably atop one of the well-worn stool, Jeff held a hand up to draw the bartender's attention.

"Hey, Jeff..." Gary, the bartender, said as he ambled over to the end of the bar. A big, bullish man with a shaven head and a long, drooping moustache, Gary gave off the vibes of the biker he'd once been, and served both as bartender and bouncer during the evening shift. "The usual?"

"Yeah, that sounds great." Jeff agreed. "Nodding, Gary pulled open the door to a small under-bar fridge and pulled out a bottle of Bud, popping off the cap with well-practiced ease and setting it in front of Jeff. With a running bar-tab that was one of the biggest selling point for the regulars, Gary didn't even have to hang around to collect for the beer, allowing him to head off to serve one of the other regulars in one of the booths, waving an empty bottle in the air.

As Gary ambled away, Jeff looked around as he reached out to grab the beer, trying to identify which of the usual crowd was there tonight. Spotting a few faces of people he liked to play pool against, Jeff lifted the bottle of beer to his lips and took a long pull.

A thin trickle of the cold brew ran down his chin, and Jeff idly wiped at it as he rose from the stool and started towards one of the regular opponents he'd spotted. His mind already on other matters, he barely noticed the fact that, despite not having bothered to shave yet today, his chin lacked any sign of stubble.

Mark, the short, broad-shouldered older man Jeff approached, was agreeable to the thought of playing some pool. As the older man went over to the table and began his finicky ritual of racking the balls 'just right', Jeff took another long drink of beer as he looked over the selection of cues on the wall. Choosing one, he pulled it off the rack and walked back over to the table, where Mark was just finishing the task of setting up the table.

"Your break..." Mark said, by virtue of the fact Jeff had paid for the first game. Gesturing with an arm to conceded the table to his younger opponent, Mark went off to choose his own cue.

Leaning forward over the table, Jeff lined up the cue over the bridge of his spread hand...

...and then stopped dead, staring at the hand.

Or, more correctly, at the long, dark-red painted nails that tipped the finger of each hand.

"What the hell...?" Jeff asked himself, setting the cue down on the table and lifting his hands in front of his face to study them. Hesitantly, unable to believe what his eyes were reporting, he drew the fingers of his left hand over the nails of his right - and tactile senses agreed precisely with visual ones, the smooth, glossy surface of the two-inch long nails running under his questing fingers.

Eyes darting left and right in confused embarrassment, he brought his hand to his mouth and tried to bite off one of the nails - but it was like trying to bite into steel, his teeth aching as they refused to even mar of the surface of the nails inexplicably gracing the tip of each of his fingers.

"This is fuckin' impossible..." Jeff tried to tell himself, pulling his finger from his mouth and staring in confusion at the undamaged nail...

..and then he became aware of Mark turning back towards him, cue in hand, and Jeff hastily jammed his hands into the pockets of his jacket, not wanting anybody else to see the feminine nails somehow tipping his fingers.

"Jeff? Something wrong?" Mark asked, gesturing at the table. "It's your break."

"I, uh... just have to hit the can, first..." Jeff muttered in confusion, keeping his hands firmly in his pockets as he began heading towards the hallway beside the bar that led to the bathrooms. "Look - why don't you break this time? I'll be right back..."

Before Mark could say anything, Jeff hurried off towards the bathroom, his whirling mind still trying to come to grips with the impossibility of his long, painted nails.

Reaching the small bathroom near the end of the hallway, Jeff was glad to see that both urinals and both stalls were unoccupied, leaving the bathroom solely to him. As the door swung shut behind him, he walked over to one of the sinks and pulled his hands out of his pockets, holding them up between him and the grimy surface of the mirror, able to see the nails from both sides simultaneously.

"It just isn't possible!" He argued with his reflection, staring at the nails. As usual, he hadn't exactly paid any attention to his own nails on a general basis, so he couldn't pinpoint exactly when they'd changed, but he knew they hadn't been this long when he'd been typing on the computer, or getting dressed - he was sure he would have noticed if they had been.

Somehow, between leaving his house and lining up the pool cue, his nails had grown longer and somehow been painted in a dark, glossy-red enamel. He was sure that they were longer and painted, because even the closest scrutiny of each nail showed no sign of them being applied acrylic nails - which, though still incredible, would have at least made what had happened a sort of possibility.

After all, it was theoretically conceivable that he'd suffered some sort of fugue or blackout, during which he might have, for some reason, applied fake nails - but how the hell could his nails grow longer and paint themselves without him noticing?

He tried a second time to bite through one of the nails, something he should have been able to do without much trouble, as a nervous habit of biting his nails should have proved - but, again, the nails resisted his effort.

Taking a deep breath, Jeff placed the tip of one dark-painted nail on the porcelain edge of the sink, raised his other hand in a clenched fist, and brought it down sharply on his outspread hand...

...and had to clamp his lips tightly shut against a short scream of pain as a sharp agony flared from his finger, then subsided into a dull ache.

Shaking his complaining hand at his side, Jeff smiled grimly at the sight of the broken nail laying on the edge of the sink. It was possible to break them after all, no matter how tough they'd seemed. Preparatory to going through the pain of snapping each nail in turn off before anybody could see the feminine nails he was impossibly sporting, he lifted his hand to see what sort of damage it had done...

...and stared, dumbfounded, at the perfect, undamaged nail tipping his still throbbing finger.

Glancing back down at the sink, he verified that there was, indeed, a broken nail laying there - and yet, at some point between snapping the nail off and checking his hand, a new nail had grown black to replace the broken one, right down to the colored paint coating it.

"No.. No, it isn't..." He began to deny, to himself - then stopped dead, stunned anew, as he looked up to confront his own reflection. On a face that looked unnatural pale from the shock, the dark gloss-red lipstick contrasted all the more sharply.

Lifting a trembling, long-nailed hand to his face, Jeff scrubbed as the coating of waxy lipstick looking decidedly out of place on his thin lips. When it refused to come off, he hurried over to the closest stall and grabbed a fistful of toilet paper to scrub at his lips. Still vigorously scrubbing at the inexplicable lipstick, he went back to the mirror to check on his progress - and the toilet paper slipped from surprise-loosened finger as he stared wide-eyed at the black eyeliner and heavy mascara serving to draw attention to eyes framed by long, thick eyelashes below thin, arched eyebrows.

"No, no, no...!" He told his reflections, holding his hands up in a warding motion. "No, this.. this isn't right..."

His mind whiled, besieged with improbabilities and impossibilities, tugged this way and that by fear and confusion and a desperate sort of denial - but first and foremost was the thought that he didn't want anybody catch him looking like this. In the nearly incoherent fragments of thought whiling in his mind like debris in a tornado, that was the one, clear thought he could hold.

Staggering - both figuratively and literally - Jeff turned towards the bathroom door, only to go rigid in shock as he saw it begin to open.

In a move of unthinking desperation, Jeff threw himself into the nearby stall and hauled the door closed, slipping home the bolt just as the bathroom door finished swinging open and the sound of footsteps on the tile floor provided echoing announcement to somebody's entrance.

"Jeff?" Mark called, coming over to the closed stall door and knocking on it. "You in there?"

Jeff's brain spun almost uselessly, meaning that the answer that popped out was almost instinctive: an annoyed 'Do you mind? I'm on the toilet...'

It slipped out of it's own volition, without conscious thought - so it didn't stumble to a halt in the increased shock he felt when he heard the feminine tones it emerged in.

"Um... Oh." Mark's voice said, awkwardly. "Uh.. Miss? This is the men's room..."

Jeff didn't answer - he was too busy trying to deal with having heard the answer he'd given emerge in a smoky, seductive female voice.

Not just any female voice - the one of 'Jessica' on the porn site. Not the one he'd mimicked, but the electronically enhanced one - the one that it shouldn't have been physically possible for his throat to produce.

Just like it shouldn't have been physically possible to grow long nails, or acquire make-up.

"Well, um..." Mark said, slowly. "I'll... just go stand at the end of the hall and make sure nobody else comes down here before you're done."

Jeff heard Mark leave - and wondered, distractedly, when it would register on Mike that Jeff, who he'd come into the otherwise unoccupied bathroom to find, had 'vanished'...

...but it was just an idle thought, quickly lost in the confusion and shock he was feeling. Relief at not being seen the way he'd inexplicably become warred with horror over the sultry feminine voice that had emerged from his lips, unbidden.

Opening the door to the stall, he stepped forward - and managed to catch himself on the edged of the stall door before he fell over.

Braced against the opening, leaning forward, Jeff looked down - and saw that he'd almost tripped over the cuffs of his baggy black jeans.

Cuffs that hung loose - as if he'd lost four inches or so of height.

"Stop it...!" He said, an edge of hysteria in the feminine voice he couldn't get rid of. "It's enough! Stop it!"

His plea to the unknown and unseen power or force behind these strange events ignored him - as his sense of balance once again shifted, this time upwards.

His too-long cuffs now hung free of the floor once more - since they were only four inches or so too long, while the slender stiletto heels of the gloss-back leather pumps he was inexplicably wearing were a good six inches tall.

Gasping, Jeff flung himself from the stall, consumed with one thought, and one thought only - getting out of public before people could see what was happening to him. The thought of being home, in the supposed safety of his own house, became paramount, and the thought that he'd have no more explanation or control over what was happening to him didn't even matter. Just the thought of getting home did.

Jeff lunged for the door to the bathroom. Despite never having worn high heels in his life, he was somehow balancing easily atop the slender, spike-like heels of the shoes enclosing feet that should have - had been - too small for them. Jeff barely noticed this fact, the only thing important to him being that he was able to move well in the heels, rather than simply falling off them as he'd half-expected. All other consequences and implications that came from being inexplicably skilled - nearly comfortable - in high-heeled shoes were completely irrelevant.

Even as he reached his damnably long-nailed hands out to pull open the door, Jeff felt something else changing - his hair. He could feel it spilling down the side of his face and across his shoulders, growing longer at an incredibly rapid rate. It seemed to be growing, not from the roots, but the tips - there was no 'pulling' or shifting sensation that would have come if the extra length was being added right at the scalp rather than at the end of each hair.

On the jittery edge of pure hysteria, Jeff threw open the door, turned to the right, and bolted for the door that led out into the alley behind Mike's.

* * * * *

Hearing a sound, Mark turned - and caught sight of the woman he'd been talking to in the bathroom.

It was only the briefest of glimpses, more a quick series of impressions than a real, good look at the woman in the darkened hallway.

The smear of lipstick against her pale face before she turned her head away, her luxurious, wavy mane of dark hair falling like a curtain around her face.

The sense of her high heels, more from the sharp clicking against the floor than from seeing them. The smooth, supple sway of her boyishly trim hips as she darted gracefully for the door to the alley...

...and then she was gone, her graceful exit so hasty as to strongly express the shame she must have felt over being caught in the wrong bathroom, making her too embarrassed to come into the bar-room and 'face the music' from her gaffe.

Shaking his head, Mark walked down to the bathroom and pushed the door open.

"So, Jeff - that was a bit..." He started - then stopped dead and began to frown as he surveyed the two empty stalls, the pair of unoccupied urinals.

There was no sign of Jeff...

* * * * *

Gasping for breath, more from near-panic than from effort, Jeff stopped at the edge of the alley, peering out at the now-darkened street.

As he stood, half-shielded by the wall he was almost desperately hugging, Jeff felt a strange sensation - the feel of a breeze moving over his ankles. Almost without thinking about it, he glanced down...

...and watched, wide-eyed, as the cuffs of his pants continued to retreat up his legs.

That wasn't the only thing that was happening - even as the fabric grew shorter, exposing more and more of his legs, it was growing tougher and heavier and smoother, changing in character - and shape, flaring out on the inseam side.

Not only that - but his socks were 'chasing' his pant leg, sliding up his legs with a strange, slithering feeling - and becoming darker, and of a finer, thinner material.

"Stop it!" Jeff demanded irrationally of his changing clothes. Reached down, he grabbed the hem of the now knee-length garment and began pulling down on the morphing clothing. It was as futile as it was irrational, his long-nailed grip being pulled steadily upwards as the garment continued to change - and then his fingers flew open in shock as he belatedly registered the fact that the hand boasting such long, feminine fingernails was, in and of itself, slender and feminine.

He stared at the woman's hands that now graced his slimmer, finer-boned wrists - while his pants finished becoming a tight-fitting black leather skirt that fit snugly over his narrow hips and flat ass, pushing annoyingly tight against his 'package'.

Below the mid-thigh hem of the tight-fitting skirt, his long, bony legs were displayed by the black nylons his socks had become - nylons clinging silkily to legs completely denuded of any hair.

With a breathless little scream of horror and negation, Jeff pushed himself away from the wall, barely noticing the nature of his jacket changing as he hurried with an unwontedly smooth grace down the street, desperate to get home.

He ran - and as he ran, the changes continued.

The skirt, taut across his body, still stayed just as taut - allowing for the fact that his hips and ass were expanding. Even though it remained identically snug across those expanding body parts, there was a part that it was growing looser over - his crotch.

"God, no...!" Jeff sobbed in his hated female voice, as he felt his cock somehow withdrawing back into his body...

...while his chest was doing just the opposite, expanding outwards in fits and starts under a shirt that was, itself, in the process of changing.

By the time Jeff reached the door to his house, he bore no semblance at all to the man that had left - because she was a completely different woman.

A woman who, without even looking, knew she conformed exactly to her own description of 'Jessica'.

A sobbing, horrified woman who, after digging frantically in the pockets of the leather jacket that hung open over her tight-fitting leather bustier, realized she didn't have any keys for this house.

The keys, like the wallet containing the identification for the man she'd so recently been, had simply vanished.

"No!" She screamed. Yanking open the coat whose pockets she'd gone through, she began vainly patting at the tight-fitting top that hugged her slender new waist like a corset, it's built-in cups supporting the weight of her obviously surgically-enhanced new breasts - the big, round, volley-ball sized tits identical to the ones she'd claimed to love in her 'interview'.

"Oh, god - I'm a woman!" She sobbed, slumping against the door...

...and then suddenly jerking straight upright, turning, and walking away.

It wasn't her idea. She'd had no plans to do it, and hadn't actually given her hated new body any commands to move. Instead, it took it entirely upon itself to begin walking - walking with a sexy sway to her wide, swiveling hips that made her full, firm ass move enticingly under the tight-fitting sheath of her skirt. A smooth, sexy glide that made the sensuously curved muscles of her long, shapely legs flex and contract sensuously beneath the silk sheath of her nylons with every single step her dainty, high-heel-clad feet took.

A sexy, provocative, confident stride that caused her big new tits jiggle within the tight-fitting leather cups that only nominally contained them.

A sexy, supple stride - that she couldn't stop, her hand rising, unbidden, to flick the long, glorious mane of midnight black hair from her now beautiful, sultry face, revealing her faint smile on the full, bee-stung lips she claimed to have on the internet.

She was 'Jessica', in every line and curve of her body - and now in her motions and movements, as well. The first, unplanned motion of turning and walking was unintentional - but now, with every sexy step, it was a mixture of something outside of her, and something within her - as she struggled against the strange, horrifying 'shifting' sensation going on in her mind.

As her body and clothing had changed, so now did her thoughts.

She fought a silent battle within the confines of her own mind - and felt herself slowly losing.

The feel of the tight black leather encasing her body had horrified and disgusted her - but now, with every passing moment, she found herself slowly enjoying it more and more. She didn't want to enjoy it, hated enjoying it - but couldn't stop steadily more powerfully interpreting the exact same sensations as 'pleasant' rather than 'humiliating'.

Her huge, firm, silicone-pumped tits, thrust outwards from her chest, didn't change one bit - but struggle as she might, she found her appraisal of them shifting from 'grotesquely over-sized' to 'delightfully firm and round'.

"No!" She shouted to herself, trying to fight the shifting thoughts and emotions trying to conform to the things she'd claimed for herself on the internet. "I'm not Jessica Blacke! I'm... I'm "

Eyes widening in horror, the new woman realized she couldn't remember her old, male name.

It wasn't like her thoughts had been wiped clean, leaving her as 'Jessica' in every detail. She knew she'd been a man just a short while ago - but she couldn't remember what her name had been.

She couldn't remember exactly what she'd looked like, either. With growing horror, she tried to summon up the memory of what she'd looked like as a man - and came up blank.

Though her memory of being a man was clear, it was undetailed, without form. She could remember no details at all about her previous, male life - not even where it was that she'd lived, though she knew she'd just been there scant minutes ago.

Stopping and swiveling with a grace she hated being proud of, she looked back down the street she'd been walking on - and though she knew, intellectually, that she was only yards away from the house she'd lived in as a male, nothing looked the least bit familiar to her.

She was standing in the middle of what she knew to be her own neighborhood - and yet, she was completely lost.

She wanted to shake. She wanted to break down and cry. She wanted to use the long nails she'd never asked for to claw at her own face and body in anger and frustration of what had been unwillingly forced upon her...

...but she couldn't do that, because she 'loved' how sexy and feminine she was, just like she'd told all the wonderful men who'd listened to her internet broadcast.

The fact that she knew those feelings and emotions about 'Jessica', body and personality, were imposed on her, directly at odds with what she should be - and wanted to be - feeling as a recently male victim transformed unwillingly into the woman she now was, didn't lessen at all the effect of her altered emotions.

She 'thought' she should be disgusted by her 'freakishly big' tits - yet 'felt' excited and proud of them, only upset when she applied the unflattering term to them.

Likewise, though she knew she'd never wanted to walk sensuously in high, slender heels, when she attempted to walk with an almost stomping, masculine stride, it felt horribly, horribly wrong, awkward, uncomfortable - and when she let her body go back to the smooth, sensual glide, it felt right.

It felt... good.

It felt... perfect.

"I have to do something!" She told herself, fighting her own emotions, the ones that 'rewarded' her for being 'Jessica'-ish, and punished her for doing anything masculine. Struggling - and failing - to ignore her altered emotions, she tried to come up with a plan of action...

...and failed miserably at that, too.

Standing on the sidewalk, assailed by emotions he didn't want, Jessica heard a vehicle pull up beside her - and honk it's horn. She turned and looked - and gaped.

It was a van - but a van like none she'd ever seen.

It was painted gloss black - and had been 'stretched'. Converted into a limousine, to be exact, with black tinted windows to match it's gleaming midnight flanks. As Jessica watched, one of those windows slid downwards - to reveal the face of a coolly beautiful young woman, her face topped by a tightly tied bun of dark brown hair.

"Hello, Jessica." The woman said. Jessica started.

"How did you know my name?" She asked - which felt completely natural, while even as her intellect tried to insist that it wasn't her name, really.

"I'm the one who did this to you." The woman said, calmly.

"You did this to me?" Jessica asked, stunned. "You bitch! I'll kill you...!" Jessica knew that it was the 'right' response - but it emerged without heat.

'Jessica' didn't hate the woman who'd done this to her - she liked her! Despite what her intellect knew was a horrible fate, her emotions made her feel happy that the woman had done this to her.

"My name's Lindsey." The woman introduced herself, opening the door. "Why don't you climb in, and we'll talk about this?" Jessica hesitated - and then climbed into the van.

Her intellect wanted to know how and why this had been done to her, and if there was any way to reverse it - and her emotions felt almost fawning towards the 'wonderful' woman who'd made her so 'perfect', and it felt disturbingly 'right' to get into the van with her.

She wasn't alone. Flanking her on the wide, black leather bench seat were two men dressed in black jeans and tight-fitting turtle-neck sweaters of the same midnight hue. Though they weren't twins, the men might as well have been, with the same muscular, manly build and close-cropped hair of varying color.

They flanked Lindsey on the backward-facing bench seat - and across from them, on the back 'wall' of the vehicle's spacious interior, were two more 'near clones', equally male-model-handsome and well built. Lindsey gestured for Jessica to sit between them...

...and she did so, struggling against what she was feeling.

The four men's eyes were devouring her in avid silence - and though she knew she was 'disgusted' by being ogled by men, she felt pleasure at their attention.

Just as, knowing she'd been a strictly heterosexual male, she nevertheless found her emotions noticing the men as very sexy - very attractive.

"So how and why did you do this to me...?" Jessica asked - not in the angry demand her intellect insisted would be appropriate, but in an almost awed tone, marred by her helpless distraction by what her brain was insisting was grade-A prime 'hunk' filling the van with their masculine musk.

"I have a friend." Lindsey said, sitting back in her own seat as the limo-van began to move. "Though I didn't approve of what she did for a living, when I heard she was fired, I felt sympathetic. She was, after all, my friend. When I found out that she'd been fired to be replaced by a man "

She trailed off, significantly - and Jessica, startled, realized that there was, in fact, one detail of her old male life she could still conjure up - what she'd done for a living.

She could remember every detail of the 'interview' she'd done, even how embarrassed she'd felt - though those same memories now brought completely different emotions to life when she reviewed them, making her feel...

Horny.

The thought of what she'd said, that had made her feel perverted and ashamed and guilty - with just a bit of perverse pride and pleasure - now made her new womanhood moist with excitement and pleasure.

"Since that's how you saw fit to describe yourself, I thought I should make sure it was the literal truth..." Lindsey said, grinning as she watched Jessica squirm a bit on the seat, dealing with thoughts and emotions intellect insisted were sick and wrong and bad, but her emotions and body insisted were good - very, very good indeed.

"Please, change me back..." Jessica begged - poorly, since her emotions screamed in horror and disgust at what her intellect insisted she must desperately want. "Please, I.. I don't want to be a woman..."

"You don't?" Lindsey asked, one eyebrow raising - while she nodded at the men flanking the buxom woman squirming in wonderful/'hated' arousal.

Jessica gasped as the man to her right put a hand on her nylon-clad leg and began to caress it. Gasped - in pleasure.

"Stop it..." She said, weakly, making a motion with her hand, a vague attempt to interrupt a touch bringing her great physical and emotional pleasure.

Her attempt failed before even really getting started - because she gave out a long, low moan of pleasure as the man on her left slid a hand onto the taut leather encasing her trim waist - and slid it upwards to cup one round, firm tit.

"No... I.. I don't want this..." She moaned in pleasure, her head rolling to one side as the pleasure of the men's questing hands only increased. "I... I don't want to... enjoy this so much..."

She tried again to stop what was giving her so much pleasure, this time managing to grip the wrist of each man's roaming hand in one of her own, and began lightly pushing them away. Though they didn't really resist, it was still a battle - as the pleasure suddenly decreased and her body and emotions screamed at her to let the men continue...

...and then the one to her left leaned over, pressed his lips against hers, and began kissing her - passionately.

Her grip weakened and loosened in the face of the unexpected, pleasurable motion - and the men's hands returned to fondling her body.

She was lost in pleasure, whipped back and forth by her directly opposing thoughts and emotions. She felt pleasure thrumming through her as roaming hands not only fondled her body, but began to undress it, touching here and there between unclasping buttons and tugging zippers and...

"No!" She gasped, trembling with desire as she managed to force herself to push them men away. Her huge new breasts heaved with desire, freed of their confining leather prison as she sat on the set clad only in her heels and hose, flushed with sexual cravings her mind insisted were sickening - no matter how good they made her feel.

"I'm a man!" She said, shuddering in disgust at the forced admission. "I don't want to be turned on by other men! I don't want to enjoy being sexy and female! I don't want to love the thought of having sex with men! Turn me back! Turn me..."

Her voice trailed off as she found her gaze being drawn from the cool, wryly amused face she'd initially focused on - to the crotch of the man to Lindsey's right.

The man who'd unzipped his pants, revealing a large, thick cock that he'd lightly stroked into full, throbbing erection.

"I.. don't want to be turned on by the sight of a man's... delicious.. thick.. beautiful cock..." Jessica managed to force herself to say, in a somewhat vague tone, her eyes seemingly locked on the man's hard cock. "I... want to be.. a.. man..."

"Really...?" Lindsey asked, dryly. "Wouldn't you rather stay a sexy woman - so that men like Rob here will let you suck their cocks?" "No..." Jessica said, weakly, shaking her head - without tearing her eyes from the cock that seemed to fill her entire universe.

Vaguely, she heard a soft click, and the muted hiss of black magnetic tape - and then a voice. Her own voice.

'I don't know why some women make such a big deal about sucking cock.' Her recorded voice explained. 'In fact, not only don't I mind it - I enjoy it, myself...'

"It's a lie..." Jessica said, weakly, sliding off the seat and sinking to her nylon-clad knees in front of the man. "I.. was just saying what the guys wanted to hear..."

'A warm, throbbing cock in your hands...'

"When I was saying this, for the interview - I was disgusted by what I was saying..." She explained in a distracted tone, watching her hands wrap themselves around the big, throbbing joystick the handsome, hunky man was offering her.

'...so big and thick and hard, proving how sexy he finds you...'

"The thought... sickens me." She muttered, licking her full, ripe lips hungrily. "Just holding this wonderfully big, thick cock in my hands makes me want to kill myself in horror."

'...practically begs you to show off your skills as a cock-sucker!'

"I practically threw up at making such a sick, disgusting, ridiculous claim," Jessica sighed - and then moaning in pleasure as she wrapped her full, sensitive, cock-sucking lips around the man's delicious shaft of man-meat.

'I'm proud of my skills at sucking cock. I've worked long and hard to get as good as I am, and I feel proud - happy! - to know I'm giving a man as much, or more, pleasure than any other woman has or will.'

She slurped and licked and sucked. Hands and tongue and lips, all working in sequence. Sometimes she bobbed, sometimes she stroked - and all of it caused pleasure, and pride, and excitement, all of which she knew - KNEW - was wrong and sick and horrifying and disgusting...

...and all of which felt utterly wonderful, forestalling her attempt to follow the logical conclusion that came from knowing for an indisputable fact that she should stop.

'More than that, there's the best part of sucking cock...'

Fighting the waves of pleasure, she slowly, almost painfully pulled her mouth back down the shaft, struggling against pleasure and desire to force her full lips to open, slowly managing to pull her mouth off the wonderful cock giving her so much pleasure...

'...the wonderful, delicious cum! I just love the feeling of warm, gooey jism sliding down my throat!'

...and he came, a jetting spurt of thick, salty cum gushing into her mouth.

She swallowed, intellectually horrified by the knowledge of another man's cum in her throat, shivering with delight. 'It feels great - and tastes even better!'

The last, weaker spurt didn't quite make it, some of it splattering against her lips, the rest trailing dripping down onto her tits - where she hastily scooped it up, licking lips and fingers clean with a low moan of enjoyment.

"Mmm... I loved sucking your cock, but only because she made me love it..." She told the man, before leaning forward to lick the last dribble of delicious dick-juice from his slowly sagging cock. "I know how horrible it is that I couldn't stop myself from doing it - no matter how much I loved it, and want to do it again..."

'I think most women are afraid of pleasure. That's the only way I can understand these women who don't want men touching them.' Her voice responded to another question from the interview - as the two men who'd been sitting beside her, now naked themselves, slid to the floor next to her and took up fondling her - with greater intensity.

"Please, make all this wonderful pleasure stop..." She asked Lindsey, putting an arm around one man's neck so she could draw his lips down to lick and suck the fully erect nipple on her wonderfully huge, round, sensitive tit. "Get rid of my big, sexy tits so I don't have to put up with loving men fondle and squeeze and suck them!"

'It's not like being fondled and touched causes pain - it feels wonderful! Why would any woman want to make a man stop giving her pleasure?'

"I want to be a man again, so I can't feel so happy, so excited, so pleased by what these handsome studs are doing to me..." She told Lindsey, letting herself be eased to the floor as one man continued fondling her sexy tits. The other man slid his hands between her sexy, man-attracting legs, and she cooperated in spreading them wide, resting them on his broad shoulders as he slid between them.

"Change me back so I can stop desperately wanting to turn men on with my perfect, sexy body, so that can give me all that pleasure I crave..."

'Oh, god, yes - all sorts of pleasure, and being admired, even touched, is only the tip of the iceberg...'

"Yes...!" Jessica screamed as the man thrust forward, filling her hot, wet cunt with his hard cock. "Oh, you sick bastard, yes! I'm really a man, you hot stud, and I never wanted a hot pussy for you to fuck me long and hard in! Long and hard, stud, that's what I know it's wrong for me to want, no matter how good it feels for you to pump my cunt like the stud you are! Please, don't fuck me, fuck me, fuck me like the horny little slut I am, stud!"

'There's getting fucked. A huge cock filling your cunt, driving you to orgasm - the best of the best.'

She thrashed, thrusting her hips to increase the depths and power of his hard, fast stroke, screaming in ecstasy at being filled and pumped.

'Why do most women think 'slut' is a negative term? It defines a woman who knows what feels good, and refuses to pass on something that feels good.'

Shimmying and shaking, waves of pleasure crashing down on her, her fragments thoughts tried to find something to give her leverage, something to give her the strength to stop from letting this man give her all the wonderful pleasure she hated loving so much.

'In fact, I'll tell you truth...'

She couldn't do it. She couldn't give up the pleasure of her approaching orgasm, no matter how sure she was of the fact that she should do so. Helplessly in the grip of the moment, she shivered, shook and screamed her way to orgasm, her shouts of pure pleasure nearly drowning out her recorded voice:

'...I've just never learned to turn down all that wonderful pleasure men can give me. I'm just so happy to be a woman, and a sexy one at that, so that so many men are willing to give me that pleasure.'

Slumping under the man as the orgasm ripped through her and began to fade, she looked around, a dazed look in her eye...

...and then smiled vaguely as the man atop her rolled away, making room for his partner to slide between her legs, ready for some sloppy seconds.

"Please..." She murmured to Lindsey as she reached down and began guiding the man's throbbing cock towards her sopping wet cunt. "Please, I loved getting fucked so much, I can't get enough, I love being a sexy women who can suck and fuck men practically any time, any where - please, just kill me."

As Lindsey laughed, low and cruel, Jessica began squeezing and fondling her own, wonderfully huge tits, screaming in renewed pleasure as she was penetrated yet again, all to the soundtrack of her own recorded voice.

'There you have it. For the record, I'm a cock-loving, sex-hungry slut - and proud of it! I'm Jessica Blacke, saying so long for Porn Central's 'Ask The Sexpert'. It's been fun - but now it's time for me to go out and get laid!'

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

© 1997 - 2016 TGstories.

Stories on the "Public Access" pages may be Copyright by individual authors.

Home | Membership | Terms & Conditions | Privacy Policy | Contact

SUMMARY: After finding a magic medallion, one man decides that his change into a woman is an improvement, and grants his friend his eternal devotion.

Friendship

By Gunslinger

Spinning the Frisbee on the end of one blunt finger, Gary shot a quick glance at the old oak and elm trees lining the backyard, gauging the wind by the rustling movement of the leaves.

"O-o-okay..." The heavily muscled young man said, grinning. Dressed causally in a pair of ragged cut-off shorts and a well-deserved muscle shirt, Gary's grin contrasted sharply against his deeply tanned skin and his sandy brown-blond crewcut hair as he called enthusiastically out to his friend. "Wha-wha-watch this one, Juh-Juh-Jay!"

Swinging his hand around in fast, tight circles, the amazingly broad young man increased the spin on the plastic disk - then, with a quick flick of one thick wrist, he sent the Frisbee scything out in a long, broad arc, running dangerously near the brush-covered slope of the ridge that formed the east edge of the property line before it's rotational component caused it to arc back towards middle.

Jason Fairfields, standing near the back edge of the lot, watched the spinning red disk finish it's wide curve and swoop back towards him with nearly eerie precision. Behind the slightly rose-tinted round 'granny' glasses that, along with the scraggly beard and the matching dark-brown ponytail of hair, went with the 'hippie' look he affected, his dark eyes narrowed in concentration as he reached out one bony hand to grab the Frisbee...

...when a sudden gust of wind kicked up from the south, sending the disc into the tree-line behind him.

"Duh-duh-duh-damn!" Gary swore, watching the red plastic vanish into the interlocking boughs of the old-growth forest that practically surrounded Jason's new house. "Suh-Sorry!"

"Not your fault, buddy!" The tall, lean young brunet called back, turning to peer into the woods. "I'll go find it. You grab us a couple of cold brewskis, 'kay?"

"Shu-sure thing, Juh-Jay!" Gary called back, as his lanky, awkward-looking friend headed towards the trees. Conscious, as always, of his fairly fine-boned and angular body, Jason was dressed in jeans and a baggy, long-sleeved tye-died shirt, much better suited for avoiding scrapes and scratches in the woods than his friends skimpier attire.

As Jason's form disappeared into the trees, Gary turned and headed into the house that they'd just finished moving Jason into. While not exactly a palace, the wood-framed old house in the woods at the edge of town was Jason's, free and clear, bought with carefully saved money from Jason's job as a free-lance writer.

No mean feat for a twenty-four year old man, and far more than Gary, with his 'career' doing heavy-lifting 'Joe jobs' like construction, could claim - except that Gary didn't really think like that. After all, he and Jason were best friends, and had been since they'd paired up against the ever-present bullies in high-school, where he'd been considerably less muscular, just another kid with a stutter, and Jason had been mercilessly teased about his 'girlish' looks.

Now, they were the best of friends, and what one had, the other had - so, despite the fact that Jason owned this house, and Gary was renting an apartment near what downtown their small Kentucky town could claim, both were shared residences.

Now, grabbing a couple of beers from the fridge, Gary headed back out towards the back-yard, where they'd been fooling around after a dinner cooked on the barbecue. Pushing open the wood-framed screen door, Gary stepped out onto the slightly sagging back porch, quickly catching sight of his tall friend striding across the somewhat unkempt lawn in the reddening light of the late afternoon sun.

Though he carried the Frisbee in his left hand, hanging by his side, Jason's attention was focused on something he was holding near his face in his right.

"Fi-fi-find s-something...?" Gary called, spinning the top off his beer and collapsing onto one of the white plastic chairs on the back porch.

"Yeah..." Jason said, nearing the back porch. "Some sort of... medallion, or something..."

Climbing onto the porch, the slender young man walked over and dropped into the chair beside Gary - causing considerably less of a 'thump' than his shorter, but considerably more massive, friend. Tossing the Frisbee aside, Jason gratefully traded the metal disk for a cold beer.

Looking at what he now held in his hand, Gary frowned and slowly turned the dark, almost pewter-colored object over in his hands. About the same diameter of a pop-can, and about a half-inch deep, the dark metal object had a strange raised design that was mirrored on either side - except for the 'writing'.

It wasn't writing, not as Gary recognized it, but he didn't know what else to dub the strange-looking symbols. On one side of the small disk, the symbols were sharp-edged, angular - but on the other side, the symbols, while retaining the same basic shapes, were smooth and flowing.

"Wha-what-what do you th-think it is...?" Gary asked, taking another pull on his beer.

"Dunno." Jason replied, with a shrug of his narrow shoulders. "Thing is... I think it might be silver. Tarnished badly - but silver."

"N-n-no shit?" Gary said, surprised. "It m-m-m-might be w-w-worth some m-m-money, then." "Yeah - if it is silver..." Jason said.

Putting the beer down on the planking beside his chair, Gary cupped the object in his left hand, then began vigorously running his thick thumb in a tight, circular motion over a spot on the exposed face of the object...

...and then he twitched a gasp.

"Damn th-th-thing gave me a sh-shock..." Gary said, shaking his right hand loosely in the air...

...and then he gasped again, louder - as he began to change.

"Gary?" Jason said, jerking halfway out of his seat. "Gary, what's wrong...?" Gary didn't answer - as he shivered violently. He wasn't in any pain - but what he was feeling was decidedly strange.

It was equally strange to watch. Dark eyes nearly bugging out behind his glasses, Jason could only gape like a landed fish as he watched the not-inconsiderable body-hair slough off the heavy muscles of Gary's arms and legs.

Muscles that were becoming somewhat smoother, more softly contoured in a...

...in a feminine way, they both realized at the same second, with shock. Less than ten seconds after getting 'zapped', Gary had finished changing.

One broad hand slapped quickly to the denim covering the crotch - and Gary's eyes widened even further behind longer lashes. "I-I-I'm a wo-wo-wo..." Gary stuttered in a deep, husky, but undeniable female voice. "A wo-wo-wo... a girl!"

Making an inarticulate sound, Jason stared at his feminized friend. Then, blinking, he shook his head sharply. "The medallion!" Jason shouted. "Rub it again!"

Catching on, the muscular new woman nodded, then quickly began rubbing the same spot with a slightly smoother thumb now tipped with a somewhat longer nail.

"Nuh-nuh-nothing's h-h-happening!" Gary shouted, frantically, in that husky new voice. "The other side!" Jason said, urgently. "Try the other side!"

Flipping the medallion over, Gary began to polish the side with the angular symbols - then gasped in relief as the strange tingling shock ran through his female body.

Seconds later, Gary slumped back in his seat and thrust the medallion away from him in a convulsive gesture. Though all his body hair was still gone, laying in a fine drift at his feet, his masculinity was restored, and he clapped both hands over the reassuring bulge in his crotch, trying to convince himself that he was okay.

"Wha-what the f-f-fuck was thu-that?" Gary demanded.

Carefully, like a man handling an unexploded bomb, Jason picked up the tarnished silver disk, now with a somewhat brighter spots on either side.

"It's impossible..." Jason said, shaking his head. "Yet I just saw it happen. Almost like "

"M-m-magic." Gary finished, his voice now becoming as awe-struck as his friend's as the initial panic passed.

"The smooth-edged symbol side makes a person female.. and the other side makes a person male." Jason said, slowly, as he flipped the medallion over in his fingers. "It's... 'activated' when you rub it."

They stared at each other, stunned...

...and then Jason began to chuckle.

"Wha What's s-so fuh-fuh-funny?" Gary demanded, crossly.

"Man " Jason gasped out, between chuckles. "You were uuug-ly!"

Gary blinked - then, remembering the sight of his smoother bust still slab-muscled and thick 'feminine' limbs, grinned ruefully. "Th-that-that bad?" He asked

"Worse." Jason assured him. In his mind's eye, he once again saw the squat, broad-shouldered, heavy-featured woman his friend had been for a short period of time - and laughed anew. "Worse the a female Russian Olympic athlete on steroids."

"Suh-sorry I was s-s-so of-fensive luh-looking." Gary retorted. "Muh-Maybe you should tru-try it!" Jason chuckled. "Yeah, as if "

Gary, however, was looking thoughtful. "Nu.. No, I'm serious, J-Jay. I th-think you should tr-try it." Jason blinked. "Huh?"

Gary grinned wryly. "How oft-t-ten do you thu-think anybody guh-guh-get's a ch-chance to see wh-wh- "

"...what it would like to be the other sex." Jason finished for him. Looking decidedly uncomfortable with the thought, he nevertheless didn't reject it out of hand, giving it fair consideration.

"Well...." He said, slowly. "I don't know..."

Gary shrugged, not going to push it - the rose up out of the chair, one hand brushing one last time against his crotch - just to make sure.

"I guh-gotta g-g-go." He said, grinning ruefully. "Suh-some of us have t-t-to work in the morning."

"Yeah..." Jason said distractedly, tucking the medallion into a pocket and walking his friend to the front door. "I guess I'll talk to you tomorrow, then."

"Yuh-yeah." Gary said, putting his now-empty bottle of beer on the table just inside the door, and grabbing his keys. He paused, then grinned up at his tall, lean friend. "You can tuh-tuh-tell me all ab-b-bout the experiments you d-d-do tonight with that th-thing..."

He pointed at the pocket where Jason had slipped the medallion, grinning knowingly. Jason flushed brightly - but even before he opened his mouth to refute the implication, he stopped himself, knowing he couldn't do so with certainty.

"If anything happens, you'll be the first to know - as always." He finally said.

"Yuh-yhu-yeah, riii-ght." Gary smirked. "Th-this from the g-g-guy who uh-uh-almost got electrocuted touring a h-hydro plant because he 'juh-just w-wanted a c-c-cl-closer luh-look'."

Jason blushed brightly at the memory of the incident - and had to conceded that he was 'curiouser then the average bear'. "S-s-see ya..." Gary grinned, heading out the door.

Still blushing, Jason waved and shut the door - then, quite deliberately, slipped the medallion from his pocket it and lay it beside Gary's abandoned bottle.

Turning, Jason refused to even look back at the medallion as he headed off towards his new study to finish getting his computer set up and, hopefully, to get some writing done before turning in for the night.

In other words - just a normal, everyday, uneventful evening...

* * * * *

Growling in frustration, Jason pushed away from the accusing white glare of the blank page of his word processing program and stared angrily across the room at the darkened wall.

After more then an hour of trying, and failing, to get any writing done, it was time to admit the truth: He couldn't stop thinking about that damned medallion.

It was like some Siren's call, echoing through his mind. Though the thought of using it was not only 'vaguely distasteful' in a homophobic sort of way, it was especially shameful to him - he, who had spent too much of his formative years being teased about how effeminate he looked, to be thinking about something that would only increase that shameful condition.

Still, Gary had been right. With his innate - and quite powerful - curiosity aroused, there was simply no way that Jason was capable of concentrating on his writing. Not with the possibilities, no matter how emotionally disturbing, that the medallion presented still unexplored.

With another muttered curse, Jason pushed his high-back office chair away from the desk and rose to his not-inconsiderable full height.

"Why the fuck am I doing this...?" He asked himself, rhetorically - even as his feet guided themselves towards the front hall, and the medallion that awaited him.

Picking up the medallion from where he'd left it, Jason turned and headed into the living room.

Despite being old and somewhat rundown, the white-washed old farmhouse had several very attractive features - and the living-room was one of them. Not only did it share the ten-foot high ceilings that all the first floor rooms shared, and the upper story rooms lacked, but the living-room - the center-point of family gathering in the house's original inception - was spacious, comfortable, and boasted a highly-polished hardwood floor.

The single largest room in the entire house, it was the one that had looked the most empty after they'd moved Jason's fairly meager belongings. To help 'fill out' the room, he'd supplemented the furnishings with some of the stuff that had made up his guest room in his old apartment - one of those things being a full-length mirror framed in 'brass'-coated plastic.

It was to this mirror that Jason slowly walked, his steps hesitant as he alternately tried to talk himself out of this - and into it. Finally coming to a halt in front of the mirror, he fidgeted for a few seconds - then finally made up his mind.

"well, if I'm going to do this..." he told his embarrassed-looking reflection, "I might as well do it right."

Placing the medallion on a nearby end-table, Jason slowly and hesitantly undressed. Each item of clothing was folded neatly and laid carefully aside - not out of any innate neatness, but as an excuse to prolong the moment, to put off the actual act he was dreading/anticipation.

Finally, his body was exposed to the blank stare of the mirror. Every angle of his too-thin body was exposed, every knob, joint and just of his thin, too-prominent bones displayed under their thin, pale coating of flesh.

With a deep breath, Jason picked up the medallion, centered himself in front of the mirror - and rubbed his thumb firmly across the tarnished finish of the side bearing the smoother, curved symbols.

It all happened too fast for him to take it all in. instead, it occurred in a series of rapid flashes as his eyes darted from one point of his changing body to another.

A brief glimpse of his cock starting to shrink in on itself.

A quick look at his face, where bones were thinning even further as his beard came out in clumps.

A fast view of his legs, becoming even finer in design even as the two-angular lines were being softened by the layer of fat he was acquiring...

...and then the changes were done, and the new woman was left gaping at the over-all body she'd just acquired.

"Holy shit...!" She gasped at herself, so stunned that the sweet feminine tones registered only subconsciously. "I.. I... I'm... gorgeous...!"

The woman reflected in the mirror stared back with equal shock at her originator, dark eyes tracing over the same curves and lines as the original.

Whereas Gary's hard-edged muscularity, somewhat feminized, had only served to emphasize how poor of a woman he made, Jason's effeminate built as a man became stunningly sexy beauty as a woman.

Her face, previously narrow and too angular, had softened slightly - into a vision of stunning loveliness. The too-prominent, almost knife-edge cheek-bones were now high, wide, and well-defined on a triangular-shaped face that came to the delicate point of her slim jaw. Above that jaws lay a pair of full, beautiful lips lurking beneath the small, snub nose that had looked so ridiculous on the male face, but was now perfect on her new visage.

Flanking that cute new nose was her eyes - her hug, dark, doe-like eyes, framed by long, luxurious lashes.

Her entire face, so laughable before, was now a stunning example of accessible beauty - not the cool, haughty beauty of a fashion model, but an open, warm beauty like that of Sandra Bullock or Allysa Milano.

That lovely, delightful face was mounted on a long, slender, swan-like neck - that in turn led to a body that could have been the subject of Jason's most enjoyable wet dreams.

She was tall. Very tall - for what had been tall for a man was even more-so for the woman she'd become - but she wasn't the least bit out of proportion.

Oh, no - anything but.

She was lean and slender and supple, with legs that seemed to go on for ever - but, in reality, only existed between the slender ankles leading to her dainty, high-arched feet and the trim-yet-feminine hips that swelled before the wasp-like waist above.

Her shoulders, ever narrow, now looked perfect on her feminine frame, supporting her long, slender arms and their tiny, long-fingered hands - and also leading down into a slender, shallow rib-cage.

A slender ribcage that not only led down into a waist a mere sixteen inches in diameter - but that supported a full, round, and mouth- watering pair of breasts.

On any other woman her height, those breast would have been merely 'big' - but on her slender frame, those round, taut mounds were something more than 'big', boarding on 'huge'.

They were also utterly flawless.

Like ripe cantaloupes, they rode high and firm on her chest, thrusting roundly outward and tipped with large, pink nipples that sat slightly higher than center-line, poking impudently towards the ceiling. Pressed tightly together as they jostled from room on her narrow ribcage, the breasts would never need a push-up bra, naturally forming the most delectable cleavage even as their remarkable firmness gave them, a taut, out-thrust upper slope that blended smoothly into her shoulders, while the bottoms of the breasts formed perfectly rounded shapes that seemed designed for being cupped in large, masculine hands.

Tall, slender, and busty, the new woman could be either elegantly beautiful or cock-stiffening sexy, depending on the clothing and make-up she might choose - while, naked and unadorned, she looked the coltish, cute-sexy part of the mythical 'girl-next-door' every red-blooded American male wished they had.

It was the image of a woman whose very presence would have given Jason a raging hard-on...

...except nestled between those long, slender thighs of hers was a perfect example of a tight cunt, defining Jason's new gender even as she stared incredulously at her new form.

"This is... too weird..." She said, and now that delightful charming, feminine voice registered, making it even weirder. The medallion still rested in her hand, and she flipped it over, preparing to rub her slimmer, longer-nailed new thumb over it's surface and change herself back to the slim, effeminate man she'd been her entire life...

...and then stopped.

Slowly, she eyed her form again, forcing aside the shock and the shame and taking herself in with a cooler, clearer eye. She looked at her long, shapely legs - and compared them to the gangling limbs of her manhood.

She eyed her slender, attractive arms, and considered them in light of her pipe-stem awkward male limbs.

She yes her face, a vision of attractive beauty, and compared it to the awkward-looking visage she'd always seen...

...and was forced to admit the hard, uncomfortable truth.

Aside from the massive, taut breasts and the lake of a penis, this female body and her male one differed only in a matter of degrees.

Just as Gary, as a squat, muscular, and ruggedly handsome man had become a squat, muscular, spectacularly ugly woman, so did Jason go from a gangly, funny-looking man to a stunningly lovely woman - with relatively little change, over-all.

All her old tormentors had been right - she was more a woman than a man, physically. The same attributes that made her so awkward and funny-looking as a guy were the same ones that combined to make the sexy/elegant vision of womanhood she was now gazing at.

It was an uncomfortable truth, one that made her not only shocked and ashamed, but mildly queasy - but it was also a truth that she knew that denying would only make worse. As a man, destined to be male, she had done what little she could to make herself masculine in a sort of defensive mechanism - and if she abandoned this chance to examine womanhood from the inside, simply because she was too pretty for her own liking as a woman - well, then, in a very real way all those bullies and hooligans of her younger days would win, making her forego her very real and very present curiosity out of an instinctive need to be ashamed - to shy away from - anything the least bit feminine about herself.

Taking a deep breath, Jason forced herself to lay the medallion aside. It was a tougher act then she'd expected - not all emotionally, either.

As she turned and leaned over to lay the medallion down on the same end-table as before, she felt the muscles in her newly slender waist pull with her twisting motion - a pulling that extended down into the much fuller, firmer and shapelier muscle of her firm, pert new ass.

At the same time, she felt her large new breasts shimmy and sway from the motion, surprisingly weighty as they shifty and pulled outwards under the force of gravity as she leaned forward, the top-heavy aspect of her new form forcing her to be much more consciously aware of the shift and play of the muscles of her new body as she had to pay attention to keeping her balance on her slimmer, more daintily formed feet.

She was also too-sharply aware of the way the twist caused her taut, shapely new thighs to press together without her now-missing ball sack 'getting in the way', so to speak.

After having acknowledge that the physical transformation was basically minimal, consisting mostly of a new, softening layer of subcutaneous fat under her smoother, softer skin, it was quite disturbing to discover just how much of a difference in sensation those minor changes made.

The most immediate and noticeable change, however, came from the heft and motion created her by her large, melon-like new breasts - and it felt most decidedly strange to be 'happy' that her new tits were so big - because the undeniable 'major' change of her breasts was considerably less disturbing to think about than the major differences in sensation caused by the otherwise minor alterations of her frame.

High, heavy, and set so proudly jutting from her chest, her new breasts acted considerably on her center-of-balance, and effect hardly canceled out by her somewhat fuller hips and her considerably fuller ass. As she straightened and turned back to once more consider her reflection in the mirror, she spread her long, sexy new legs further apart, to better support herself on the smaller base her slimmer feet now provided for her.

Legs spread wide, her huge breasts jutting firmly forward, she almost looked like she was trying to come-on to herself in the mirror...

...and the sight was more than enough to tell her still-masculine sexuality that it was time to be 'turned on'.

A low, damp warmth, disturbingly pleasant, began to form in her abdomen, sending slight shivers of shameful pleasure up her slimmer spine.

Hesitantly, with wide-splayed fingers and her fuller lower lip held lightly between her even white teeth, the new woman Jason had become gently pressed her palms against the newly smooth skin of her hips and slowly began drawing the upwards and inwards.

She shivered slightly in pleasure - both real and 'imagined'. Real, because the feel of her soft hands over soft, taut skin did, in fact, feel good - and 'imagined' because, in her mind, it was her old, male hands sliding across the soft, taut skin of this gorgeous woman.

Both pleasures only increased as her hands reached the bottom curve of her heavy, round new breasts and lightly cupped the delightfully firm masses - both pleasures increased, and so did her growing arousal.

"I really shouldn't be doing this..." She whispered, huskily, to her reflection - but she didn't stop, her hands rising higher on her firm new breasts, now lightly squeezing the tautly giving mass of her sensitive new bust.

Almost as if in a daze, she heard the low, feminine sound of arousal growl in the back of her throat - and the knowledge that 'he' was making a woman give this sound overrode the reality that it was her giving it, and the emotional aspect of the pleasure only increased.

Slowly, she removed her hands from her achingly sensitive breasts. "This..." She told herself in the mirror, "...is really perverted."

Despite agreeing completely with what she'd just said, both curiosity and arousal moved her - and she adjusted the mirror so that she could still see herself as she walked over to the couch.

As she walked, she looked over her shoulder - and felt the warm, damp heat in her crotch increase at the sight of that full, pert ass swaying gracefully from side to side with the smoother, more toe-to-heel swivel-stride she had to adopt to help counter-balance the swaying of her firm and oh-so-delightful new breasts.

She hesitated when she reached the couch, thinking about what she was considering doing.

"This is really twisted." She told herself, firmly. "You turned yourself into a woman - and the sight of yourself, the feel of your new body under your hands, is getting you turned on faster and more thoroughly than you've ever been turned on as a man."

She knew why, too - because, despite how strange, perverted and 'homosexual' this felt, creating a certain level of emotional disgust at how easily she was 'playing woman', the truth was that she'd never been this comfortable around a 'real' woman, her negative self-image and her general awkwardness serving to greatly limit her male sexual experience. Though hardly a virgin, his sexual exploits were few and far between - and all marked by a hesitant uncertainty in action.

More than that - because of his own self-doubts, reinforced by all the 'less than manly' taunting of his youth, all his sexual experiences had been marred by a certainty, true or not, that he was failing to live up to the expectations of whatever woman he had been with.

This time, 'he' was the woman - and there was no awkward man to 'screw it up'.

Turning, she slowly lowered her firm, full new ass to the cushions of the couch and looked at the image in the mirror.

The image of a horny, big-breasted woman sitting on the couch, her long, sexy legs spread wide to reveal a cunt that was obviously moist and aroused.

"Aw, fuck it." She told herself...

...and giggled slightly as she took her own advice to ignore her misgiving quite literally - and slid one finger tentatively into the warm folds of her damp new cunt.

"Oh...!"

The sensation was... incredible.

It was much like it had felt, as a man, to run a finger over the hyper-sensitive head of his cock... except the same amount of sensation was compressed into the much smaller size of her new clit, making it seem relatively more intense...

...and that particular level of sensation came only after ejaculation as a man, was occurring right at the beginning of arousal as a woman.

Eyes fixed on the image in the mirror, she slowly leaned back into the couch, finger beginning to work in and out of her sopping new cunt as her free hand, almost of its own volition, began rising up to play with the sensitive mounds jutting from her chest - and the even more sensitive nipples, now fully engorged, that tipped each rounded tit.

'There's got to be something severely wrong with me...' She thought to herself, hips twisting under the rising pleasure her frantically working finger was generating. 'Less than ten minutes as a woman, and I'm quite happily finger-fucking myself while groping my own tits - and enjoying it...'

Her finger increased pace and pressure in her new cunt, and was joined by another, then a third as she tried to work her thrusting fingers deeper into her cunt, to add the longer, lower, more steady waves of pain from her tight inner walls to the sharper, shorter burst given by the friction across her clitoris.

Moaning in pleasure, her free hand squeezing and fondling her tits, she let her head roll back, not even bothering to pretend that it was the 'male-sexual' sight of the woman in the mirror that was the cause of the emotional component of the pleasure she was feeling.

Now, she was able to rebut her earlier thought. Now she understood that the earlier doubts, the 'homosexual' feelings, were lingering by-products of her upbringing that had no basis in reality.

The answer as to why she was doing what she was doing, why she was indulging in her new sex and sexuality, had nothing to do with 'hidden homosexual desires' or some-sort of emotional-byplay of having been an effeminate man.

She was busily finger-fucking herself as a woman for the same reason she'd masturbated as a man: It... felt... great!

It felt even better a second later, as she screamed incoherently through her first female orgasm, body writhing and twisting with the force of the wave of ecstasy that slammed through her.

Gasping and blushing, she pulled her sopping fingers from her even wetter cunt, and waited for the trembling after-shocks of the intense pleasure to run through her.

Again, the orgasm hadn't actually been stronger than that of a male - but more concentrated, more internal - different, and by virtue of that difference, new and exciting...

...on top of a male sensation that, familiar as it might have been, was quite exciting to begin with.

Feeling somewhat ashamed of what she'd just done, notwithstanding the fact that she recognized the shame as being society-instilled, she pushed herself up from the couch - and ruefully looked back at the large wet spot on the cushion.

She might have the body of a sexily elegant young woman - but she was still a bachelor at heart.

She flipped the cushion over, then - on sexy legs a trifle unsteady - walked over to where the amulet sat.

"that was... interesting." She said to herself as she picked up the amulet - already knowing that she'd occasionally be 'experimenting' with it more often.

She blushed deeply as she realized she was wondering where, in town, one might buy a dildo...

Still flushed in embarrassment and the memory of sexual pleasure, she flipped the medallion over and began to polish the 'male' side of it...

...then gasped as the room shook with a low, angry roar. Light bulbs blew out in a shower of sparks - but darkness didn't descend. Instead, blinding radiance flared to life as something - someone - coalesced into being in the center of the room.

How dare you!

The voice was like a dozen voices, half male and the other half female, played at tremendous volume - and filled with rage.

Trembling in shock and fear, unable to look at the angry being sharing the room with her, the still-female Jason staggered back, lifting a slender, feminine arm over her eyes to cut the radiance flowing from the powerful creature.

How dare you take advantage of this gift to feel the pleasures of womanhood - and then try to abandon it once satiating yourself!

"Please...!" Jason cried out in fear to the enraged supernatural being. "Please, I didn't know,... I didn't understand... I just found the medallion... I didn't... please... mercy..."

There was a long pause - and then the voice spoke again, this time in a tone of reflection.

Long have I been a slumber. My disciples have long ago returned to the earth, their purpose and their lore forgotten in the world of men, my Instruments laying forgotten and unguarded. Yes, you meant no disrespect, no blasphemy...

Jason felt hope begin to flutter beneath her firm new breasts - and then the voice continued speaking.

Nevertheless, the Covenant has been entered into - and then attempted to be broken. The rules must be followed. Hope vanished in new, raw terror, and Jason trembled.

"What.. What are you going to do to me...?" She asked - whimpered.

This is the way of the Covenant. The Voice said. When you choose to become female, you give up your manhood to become my handmaiden, forevermore to be female. In return for entering my service as a female, you receive a boon, a wish of your asking, as recompense for the sacrifice of your old, male life. If, however, you wish to break the Covenant, to become male once more now that you have felt the pleasures of womanhood, you must pay the price, and forevermore be impotent as a male, unable to father children or receive sexual pleasure.

Considering the ramifications, Jason could see the lure of this arrangement - for one could give up their gender in return for a granted wish, but could not return to their original gender without a price.

There was, however, one very important question to ask before she could even consider the options being presented to her. "What..." She asked, hesitantly. "What does your handmaiden do? What.. what would I have to do if I accepted this Covenant?" The Voice told her...

* * * * *

Gary nearly side-swiped Jason's beaten-up old Camry pulling into the driveway after the mad-dash to his house after work.

The muscular young man didn't even notice how close he'd come to wrecking both cars. Indeed, all he noted about the incident was the fact that Jason's car was there at all, indicating that his friend was home.

Forgetting anything as mundane as shutting off the car, Gary pushed open the door and hopped out, without having to handle a seat- belt he'd forgotten to buckle in the first place. Made awkward by excitement, he bounded up to the front door and slammed his way inside, the old fame house shuddering with the unintended force with which he hurled open the door.

"Jason!" He shouted, hurrying down the hallway. "Jason, you won't believe it! You won't believe what happened to me...!"

At the end of the hallway, he caught a glimpse of motion out of the corner of his eye, and began to turn towards the living room.

"Jason, I'm not stut..." Gary began - then gave lie to his statement as he gaped, his voice becoming weak and disjointed. "tutt-ter- ring..."

Then his breath ran out and his voice ran down, and he simply gaped.

Laid neatly out on the floor in a concentric display was an array of feminine clothing - an array that seemed to include every general style and 'look' possible, from 'prudish' at one end of the spectrum to 'slutty' at the other, with everything else in between.

It wasn't the array of clothing and matching accessories Gary was gaping at, however - it was the person who stood in the exact center of this display who he couldn't tear his eyes off of.

She stood barefoot, her back straight and her arms by her side, and despite the array of feminine finery surrounding her, she was dressed in the closest thing to 'neutral' as you could find - a simple, unadorned mid-gray cotton dress that hung to just below her knees and was designed neither to hide nor enhance her figure - and yet couldn't help but show that the tall, slender, dark-haired woman was stunningly beautiful. The lower portion of her legs were smooth and shapely and delightfully defined, and even the generally shapeless dress couldn't completely hide the full, firm breasts that lurked beneath it.

She was stunningly sexy and beautiful in figure - and in face, with a lovely visage surrounded by a wealth of dark hair hanging straight and simple to frame the face that was looking at him with a huge, happy smile and sparkling, doe-like eyes.

"Yes, I know..." She said in a warm, rich voice flowing with a strange sort of wistful joy. "Oh, I am so happy for you, my sweet beloved master."

"Wha...?" Gary stammered - then, taking a second - and equally enjoyable - look, a sort of recognition dawned. "Jason.. is that you?" "Yeas, my dear master, I am the woman who used to be a man known as Jason." She said, warmly, still unmoving.

"Master? What's with this 'master business..." Something else she'd said managed to make its way through his stunned - and unwillingly attracted - mind. "Wait.. what do you mean, 'you know'? I haven't been able to reach you all day.."

She... flinched.

"I'm so sorry, master." She said, in a breathless rush. "I was out buying clothes because I did not know how you would wish me to dress. I am sorry I was not able to answer your call, and you may punish me however you may wish, as always. As to how I knew about your wondrous, happy day - it is because that was the boon I asked The One Who Is Many for."

Gary blinked, shook his head, and held up one lifted finger.

"Oooo-kay, I'm pretty sure I missed something there." He said, slowly. "You used the medallion thing to become female, that I get. Going shopping for female clothes - well, that kind of makes sense, too, though I know I wouldn't have the guts to go out in public as a woman, if that's what you did. As for this other stuff, the 'master' bit, and punishing you, and this 'One who is a bunch' stuff... what's that all about?"

"The One Who Is Many is the great and powerful being of whom the Medallion is an instrument for." She explained. "Having used the Medallion, then experience a female orgasm, I unknowingly entered into a Covenant with the One Who Is Many, who offered me a choice - become male again, but unable to ever have an erection or to ejaculate, or to remain female - and be granted the wish of your stutter being gone. As for calling you 'master', Master - that is because, as a handmaiden of The One Who Is Many, I had to bond to a man, so that I may serve him completely and utterly. In giving a man my complete and total subservient devotion and providing him with all the pleasures he may ever wish, I am fulfilling my task of showing subservience to the very gender and pleasures I abandoned to become a woman."

Gary felt a cold sensation run through him as his stomach clenched, and he staggered backwards, eyes wide in horror. "To.. To get rid of my... my stammer..." He, well, stammered, "You.. you're stuck as.. as a woman.. who has to obey me..." His throat worked convulsively, and he unconsciously shook his head in denial.

"Oh, God..." He moaned, horrified to think of his friend - his best and truest friend - reduced into some sort of.. of slave girl...

...and then she laughed, a clear and tinkling sound - and said: "No, you silly twit." Gary blinked, and felt the cold, leaden ball in his stomach slowly begin to relax.

"I.. don't understand." He said, cautiously.

"I am a woman now, for the rest of my life. That's the part of the deal that I - willingly and consciously - decided to accept in exchange for you losing your stutter." She cocked her head slightly, her smile widening. "Don't worry. Though I'm still a little, uh... 'weirded out' by it, I decided that life as a stunningly beautiful woman might be better than that of a funny looking - and, if I'd refused this, impotent

- man. As for the 'has to' obey part - not exactly. You see, it's not, uh... it's not 'ingrained' or 'implanted' in me that I have to be your little slave. It's more of a.. a religious thing. You know, like how you're supposed to obey the Ten Commandments? Well, to please The One Who Is Many, I'm supposed to try and be as pleasing to you, my willfully and willingly chosen 'master', as I can possibly be."

Gary's jaw just about hit the floor.

"You.. you're supposed to... and I... We..." He stammered out. "Uh, Jason.. I don't know if I can..." She sighed, and lifted her hands to stop him there.

"I know - it's more than just a little, um... 'weird'? 'Perverted'? 'Sick-in-an-exciting/sexy-sort-of-way'? The thing of it, sweet beloved Master Gary, my dear - while The One might usually be the same sort of absentee deity you might expect, It/They have been 'resting' for a few centuries now, and all It/Their other adherents have vanished - and so, for the time being, It/They are paying very close attention to me and my 'worship' - and the more I please It/Them, the more good fortune and happiness It/They are going to heap upon my - our - heads. Get it?"

"Umm..." Gary said, trying to wrap his mind around it. "So, if.. you willingly and eagerly try to please me in every way you can..."

"...good things will happen to us." She finished, nodding. "You know - health, wealth and happiness - the usual blessings of a benevolent God."

"Oh..." Gary said, nonplused.

"Let me put it this way..." She said. "You see these clothes I bought, Master? I could have put any of them on, hoping they'd please you..." She was staring to blush, but forged ahead" ...but that would have been 'willful'. However, if you ask me to wear any of these outfits, and I obey... that's subservient, and counts towards pleasing the One Who Is Many."

"So my part in this deal.." Gary started, uncertainly.

"Is to ask me to do things that would please you. As often as possible. That would give you as much pleasure as possible..." She finished, her eyes now sort of sliding about the room as she blushed deeply. "Anything that would please you, my beloved master.... anything."

Despite her deep, hot blush, she managed to bring her eyes to meet his - and the accent she put on the word 'anything' left no doubt as to the topic being discussed.

Gary swallowed heavily. "You can't be suggesting "

If possible, her blush deepened - but the woman who had been Jason nodded slowly and firmly. "I.. I can't... You couldn't... you wouldn't..." Gary stammered.

Still blushing, she smiled. "Gary, we've been friends now almost forever. We like each other, we trust each other - and not only am I know going to be female for the rest of my life, but we'll experience nothing but good things if we can get past this... awkwardness... and find ways for me to do something I've been willing to do in spirit, if not necessarily in this particular manner, all this time - make you happy."

"You mean it..." Gary breathed, shocked. "You.. You really do mean it." "I sure do... Master." She replied.

He shivered. "Look - please, stop calling me 'master', okay?"

"Of course." She said, a bit pointedly - a familiar sound, despite the change in voice, the tone the same as the one Jason had always used when Gary failed to grasp something Jason had considered obvious. "I'll be happy to call you by whatever name or designation that pleases you - just as I'll be happy to answer to any name or designation the would be your pleasure to use."

The little light bulb went on over Gary's head.

"I'd be pleased if you would call me Gary, the same as always." He said, finally getting how easy some of the 'small pleasures' could be - as long as she held back from doing them until he asked her to.

"Of course... Gary." She said - and then shivered. "What...?" Gary asked, quickly, concerned by the tremor.

"Oh..." She said, her voice a bit husky. "I should have mentioned - one of the 'blessings' is that, whenever I 'give in' to your wishes, it feels... very good, physically."

"Oh." Gary said - then, in a stunned voice, "Oh!"

She smiled, the fading blush renewed. "Uh... yeah. It feels.. really good. Speaking of which - is there... anything else I can do that would please you?"

She hesitated, flushing brightly - and then pointedly lowered her gaze to his crotch, and even more pointedly, theatrically, and suggestively drew her long, supple new tongue across her full new lips.

Gary blanched, then flushed brightly, one hand clapping protectively over the stirring in his crotch. "Oh, no..." He said, hastily. "No, no, no..."

She looked at him - and on that sexy, female face was Jason's ironic expression. "That wouldn't please.. wouldn't pleasure... you, Gary?" She asked.

"Well, yes.." Gary stammered, shaking his head. "But, I mean, no..."

She shrugged - quite purposefully doing it while pulling her shoulders back, making her breasts stick out all the more, the firm, full globes well-defined within the dress.

"Well, is there something else you'd like to do instead...?" She asked, slowly walking towards him - with a slow, slinky kind of stride. "I mean, I'm sure I could find something you'd enjoy, but it wouldn't be nearly as.. enjoyable.. unless it was something you asked for."

She was using that pointed 'get it?' tone again - and Gary knew exactly what she was driving at. He just couldn't believe his until-recently male friend was so... willing? ...eager? ...to do any of it.

Suddenly, only a hands-breadth away from him, she dropped the 'vixen' act - and despite now being a gorgeous woman, the body- language and facial expressions were so familiar, that Gary was almost looking at his old friend again.

"Look, Gary - I know how weird this all is. Trust me, I know." She said. "Here's the thing, buddy. You know I've always felt like, well, a failure as a man. Now I'm going to spend my life as a woman, and, weird as this all is, I'm sort of really excited about being able to be a success as a woman - if I can be. So, even though my.. divine purpose, I guess, is to give you the pleasure you may ask for, I would take great, personal pleasure if you could help me feel like a success as a woman, make me feel as if my new life as a female is going to have all those things I was lacking as a man - you know, being found attractive, having somebody want me and want to be with me, that sort of thing..."

Gary gaped at his transformed friend - and finally understood. Her old life was gone.

Everything was tied up in her new fate. She'd willingly given herself over to it, because it seemed to be the only thing offered to her to take.

Her past was, for all intents and purposes, inaccessible to her. She could hardly call on any old acquaintances, rely on any old markers that 'Jason' happened to hold, because she could no longer be Jason.

All she had was him.

She was desperately, painfully - even obsessively - afraid of being rejected by him.

Gary understood that this was a deep psychological situation. that her self-image would be defined by his next words or actions, that she'd almost literally placed her own sense of self-worth in his hands.

Given all that, there was only one thing he could think to do...

"You know what would please me...?" Gary said, hesitant but determined. "What would please me more than anything else in the world?"

"What...?" She asked, breathlessly, eyes shining as she awaited his first real command, awaited to hear what she was worth to him in this new body she would be wearing for the rest of her life.

"The same thing that always makes me happy." He said, throwing that 'What? You don't know?' tone of voice right back at her as he began to grin. "The thing that will now and forever bring me great pleasure: Seeing you genuinely happy."

It was a command.

A command she could obey.

A command that would give pleasure and accrue blessings to obey. A command... to do whatever it was that she wanted.

"Oh...!" She gasped in a small voice, one hand rising to her full lips as her eyes widened and became misted with tears of stunned joy. "Oh, Gary..."

Then she grabbed him by the head and proceeded to kiss the hell out of him. He'd never experienced a kiss even close to this one before.

It was passionate - yet tender. Demanding, yet gentle. Hungry and giving, eager yet consciously restrained for the maximum pleasure.

It was... mind-blowing....

...and that was just the first bare second, before her hands slid down behind him and she pressed her warm, soft, fully-feminine body against his and lightly, erotically began to grind herself against him.

Gary gave up 'thinking' in exchange for letting all of his mind cope with simply experiencing the incredible, passionate embrace of a woman who'd just given herself over to him, body and soul.

If their lives had deepened on it, neither one could have later said how long the kiss lasted. While it went on, time seemed to stop, stretching out to the infinite, to allow them to truly enjoy the infinitely pleasurable kiss - yet, the instant their lips reluctantly parted, it seemed as if it had lasted but an instant.

"Oh, Gary..." She said again, a low husky tone, her eyes boring into his as a wickedly little smile played around her lips. "You've made me sooo happy..."

Her body twitched against his - as she almost came from the wave of pleasure that accompanied her 'submissively' obeying his wide- open command for her to be happy.

"You know just about the only thing that could make me any happier...?" She asked, the wicked grin widening. "Doing something to show my bestest friend in the world just how much I love, respect, and appreciate him..."

"Well, I..." Gary started to demur... but she placed one slender finger against his lips to silence him...

...while her other hand unzipped his pants and set Mr. Happy free to stand at rigid attention. Slowly, she slid down onto those perfect, dimpled new knees of hers.

"You.. Don't have to do this..." He gasped, as he felt one hand encircle the base of his throbbing cock. She smiled up at him.

"I know." She said, simply. "That's just it. Whether I do this or not makes no difference to the wonderful pleasure your choice has allowed me to experience - so doing it anyway lets you know just... how.. I.. feel..."

Before he could reassure her that he didn't need any sort of demonstration of affection to know, she wrapped his cock in a very warm, very mobile, and very eager mouth.

If what she did was an expression of affection, then she loved the living shit out of him.

Pleasure was thrumming through her as she set to work on her first blow-job - but it was the pleasure created by being able to, now and forever, obey the command for her to be happy. She didn't have to give this blow-job - and she knew it.

Nevertheless, despite the feeling that this was 'sick' and even homosexual, she threw herself into the task of sucking her best friend's cock with a will.

She wanted to do this. She wanted to give Gary this pleasure. His choice, his willingness to give up a sort of control over a woman he obviously found damned sexy, for the sake of friendship, made her feel wonderful inside - a feeling that had nothing, and everything, to do with the physical pleasure given to her.

She wanted to respond by giving pleasure back to her friend - and so she gave herself over completely to the task of giving Gary the most mind-blowing, most utterly incredible blow-job he'd ever had.

She might not have any experience - but she had plenty of enthusiasm, and an insider's knowledge of what felt really, really good - and she used it to it's full extent.

"oh, dear GOD!" Gary cried, wide eyed, as his knees suddenly began to feel weak from the incredible pleasure she was causing him

- and that only encouraged her to redouble his efforts.

One hand, made slick by quickly spitting on it, rest near the base of his cock, working in short, slow thrusts - while her other hand lightly drew her finger along the throbbing vein running the length of the underside of his manhood before two fingers lightly 'tickled' the same vein, then returned to the stroking...

...while her mouth, closed over his cock, made short, swift thrusts back and forth while her tongue curled and slid over the engorged head of his penis...

...while she hummed Roger Miller's 'King of the Road' as loudly as she could.

Overwhelmed by pleasure, Gary's brain couldn't handle controlling his body, and he slumped to the floor...

...and she followed him down without even missing a stroke.

Even as she happily, eagerly, and joyfully gave her best-friend/boyfriend the blow-job of a lifetime, the new woman was quite clearly aware of the fact that she'd basically let herself go sort of crazy.

After all, insanity was defined as dealing with a supposed reality incompatible with true reality - and by letting herself become the sort of eager fuck-and-suck happy woman she was quite willingly dedicating herself to being, she was operating under an obvious and clearly seen 'mistaken' reality.

She'd been somewhat of a failure as a man during the male portion of her life, and now that she was female, she wanted to be as 'perfect' a female as possible...

...and even though that her mental image of female perfection was the male fantasy of a beautiful, sexy woman who loved dressing in figure-flattering and -revealing clothes and who loved sucking and fucking cock as much as a man loved getting sucked and fucked, she didn't care. That was her own internal, male mental image of feminine perfection, and so what if not many women in the world would share it as their own personal identity?

She wasn't them. She was herself, and she was going to hold true to what she'd always held in her own mind. She was going to be the sexiest, most sexually eager woman she could possibly be...

...because being that woman, for Gary, was what made her feel happy.

She had always liked Gary. Liked him a lot... but her ingrained 'homophobia' kept her from ever consciously equating that deep trust and affection from equaling 'love'.

Now she was a woman - and she could 'love' Gary - in every way it was possible for a woman to express her love to a man. Though it still felt strange and weird and a little sick to be doing any of this, she knew that those feelings would pass in time - because she couldn't be happier than she was now, eagerly and enthusiastically sucking Gary's cock. The thought of any other cock even touching her in any way would have made her want to throw up - but this wasn't any other cock. This wasn't even just a cock - this was a part of Gary, a part she could make to give fantastic pleasure to the one person who'd always been there for her, who she could rely on, who she could trust and respect and, yes, love.

As far as she was concerned, this blow-job she was giving the one and only person who'd ever truly liked her in any form or gender was the least she could do...

Okay, she knew that objectively that made her downright nuts, having tied up all her self-image and self-worth in her new gender - but, the thing was, everybody did it. Everybody on the face of the planet understood the mechanism she was operating under - for who didn't feel happy when they did something nice, something 'special' for somebody whose opinion mattered to them? Oh, she might be taking it to extremes - but you didn't see Gary complaining about it, did you?

Well, sure, Gary was actually flopping on the floor like a landed fish, grunting and wailing incoherently because she was providing him with more pure pleasure than he'd ever experienced before in his life - but it wasn't a complaining sort of orgasmic grunting, now was it?

With that happy thought, Gary screamed out an incoherent six-syllable word consisting solely of vowels, and pumped a hot load of cum into her eagerly waiting mouth.

'See what a wonderful woman I make?' She thought to herself contentedly as she eagerly gulped down the thick, salty goo...

...and considering that her male-generated ideals for a perfect woman included one who happily gobbled down the cum from - and only from - the man she loved, there was actually nothing all that insane about her having that thought.

"Oh... Oh, wow..." Gary gasped, unable to believe how good it felt to have had her suck him off like that. "oh, oh, oh wow..."

She rose up from between his legs like a goddess rising from the waves, a tiny drop of his recently-expended cum dangling from her perfect, lower lip.

"name me..." She said, huskily, her body literally trembling with her desire to make up for a lifetime of failure as a man with her own, peculiar vision of feminine perfection. "Give me my new female name - give me the name of your lover, Gary."

He swallowed nervously. He knew he'd been right about her need to avoid rejection as a female - but he wondered if it was far worse than he'd feared, if she'd gone completely around the bend after realizing she was 'doomed' to a life-time of womanhood.

"What...?" He said, shakily.

She sighed, her mouth quirked as she looked at him sardonically.

"I can just see you as introducing your new girlfriend as 'Jason' when we go out." She said - and then a stricken look crossed her lovely face, and she blushed, looking down. "I mean... if I am your 'new girlfriend', Gary..."

Well - crazy or not, this new woman was his best - his only real - friend, and she was in pain. "Of course you are... Jayne." Gary said.

Her head snapped up, and a smile blossomed.

"Jayne..." She said, savoring the word. "My name is... Jayne."

Gary really did think that she might have been driven crazy by being made female - but it wasn't an insanity you could treat, was it? After all, the 'underlying cause' couldn't be corrected...

...and if 'Jayne' was going to spend the rest of her life as a sexy, lithe, completely nuts woman, the one and only thing her best friend could do was make sure she was a happy nutcase.

Which meant whatever she wanted, she got - and that was all there was to it. "Oh..>!" Jayne gasped - then smiled. "A blessing already..."

Gary followed her happy gaze - and was amazed to see that Mr. Happy, despite a completely brain- and ball-draining blow-job, was still standing ready to go.

Giggling, Jayne slipped off the gray dress, exposing a body even more perfect than Gary had imagined - and lay back, spreading those long, luscious legs of hers with a happy smile.

"Make love to me, Gary." She asked in a contented voice. "Make love to me... my love." Oh, well - a life of sacrifice wouldn't exactly be without rewards...

"Anything you say... my love." Gary replied with a smile, as he rose and looked down at the gorgeous, somewhat crazy woman who was obsessed with being a - his - perfect little woman.

After all, all she was really looking for was his approval...

...and so Gary grinned, positioned himself between her oh-so-willing legs, and proceeded to approve the hell out of his eager little minx.

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

Summary: When he thought up the internet scam of having guys pay to date a woman who didn't exist, he didn't count on the mysterious bottle of perfume that changed him forever.

Full Cash Value

By Gunslinger

Gleefully, Jack typed in his bank-card number and password, then clicked on the 'submit' button. As the screen momentarily went blank, preparatory to loading his on-line banking information, he sat back in his chair, rubbing narrow hands together eagerly.

Running at a mere 56k speed, his modem seemed to take forever to load the page as he quite literally held his breath - but when the screen finally finished loading, displaying the account balance, he let that breath out in an explosive, exuberant cry: "Yes!"

Pumping a fist in the air, Jack drummed his feet against the anti-static plastic mat covering his carpeted floor, spinning the swivel chair around as he crowed out his excitement. He indulged in huge grin, displaying crooked, nicotine-stained teeth that did little to improve upon his narrow, acne-pocked face as he shimmied and jittered in the chair, belting out a badly off-key rendition of 'We're in the money'.

As his burst of exuberant energy faded, Jack pushed back the greasy, tangled mass of mud-brown hair that has gyrations had caused to fall in front of his face, revealing narrow-set brown eyes that glittered with a sort of feral intelligence. The wide grin fading into a tight, smug smile, he turned the chair back to the humming computer, ragged fingernails clicking off the worn keys as he entered another website into the browser's address bar.

As the big, garish graphic text loaded, he drummed the fingers of his left hand impatiently on the battered and scarred surface of his computer desk, his right hand almost habitually reaching for the can of Pepsi cola balanced precariously on a stack of old porn magazines. Taking a long pull to empty the can of it's lukewarm contents, he negligently tossed it over his shoulder, barely hearing the clatter as it landed among it's brethren of discarded containers.

As the page finished loading, Jack's eyes danced past the familiar text to the little counter at the bottom - and he chuckled again as he watched the numbers change before his very eyes.

A quick glance at the clock on the wall told him that the deadline was only twenty minutes away - and, from the counter on his website, it was obvious there was a rush to get their entry fees in before the 'contest' closed.

Still smiling smugly to himself, Jack let his eyes go back over the website he'd designed and set-up, eyeing the huge, brightly-colored lettering advertising the raffle of a 'Nite With A Nympho!'.

Then he looked down past the counter, at the small, six-point lettering filling the very bottom of the screen - quite purposefully, below the 'scroll line' of a monitor set to 1024 x 768 resolution.

"The large print giveth, and the small print taketh away..." Jack chuckled to himself, wondering how many of the people putting in their ten-dollar entry fee had bothered to even read the disclaimer - and how many of those who had read the fine print had entered anyways, out of desperation.

After all, you'd have to be pretty desperate to still sign up, if you fully understood that your entry fee was non-refundable, and guaranteed you... absolutely nothing.

Which was exactly what Jack was planning to 'give away'. Before he'd even begun his little Internet scam, the scrawny, angular young man had been extremely careful to study all the applicable laws - so that he could find the nice, comfy little niche for his scam among the 'loopholes' lining the Nevada state laws on the matter.

Not the least of which was the fact that he'd not only never made any guarantees of any sort, express or implied, but he'd also never made any 'unfactual' statements. He'd never actually identified any woman by name - and never actually claimed that such a woman actually existed. The entire tenor of the website could be seen in the oh-so-carefully worded 'come-on' plastered across most of the front page, where the much smaller lettering formed the words 'What would you say to a...' before the big lettering of 'Nite With A Nympho!' - which was a question, and not a statement that could possibly be construed in any way as being legally binding.

"...and my teachers all said I'd never make anything of myself." Jack muttered to himself, pushing up from his chair and looking around the nearly twenty year old house-trailer he called home. It had suited his purposes well enough, especially since he wasn't exactly fastidious about minor little things like hygiene or appearance, and he liked the fact that he was located on an isolated bit of land, with a small creek that provided year-round water to the low scrub brush and limp-looking trees surrounding his home. It would serve him well for another year or so - which was as long as he figured he'd need it.

This raffle scam would net him somewhere in the ballpark of five grand - not a fortune, but certainly not bad for a month's... well, 'work' wasn't quite the right word, now was it? In any case, he had another eleven such schemes all set up and ready to go, all variations on the same basic theme, and if they all did roughly as well, he'd walk away with a good fifty-to-sixty thousand dollars. All of which worked out just about perfectly - since that money was all pure profit, coming in during the year's time he'd be receiving his disability benefits for the 'back injury' he'd faked. With that money covering his minimal living costs for a year, and his schemes building up a nice nest egg, he'd come out of this whole thing laughing his ass off, 'semi-retired' at the age of twenty-four. He'd already earmarked twenty-five grand of the money he was expecting, to buy into a porn production company that was practically guaranteed to return about twenty-five hundred a month - which worked out to about the equivalent of working full-time for about fifteen bucks an hour, but without any of the inconvenience of actually having to work.

For Jackson M. Weber, life was good.

Best of all - he was 'untouchable'. He hadn't gone off on his plan in a some half-assed way, but had been damned careful. Not only had he made sure that there weren't any actual, actionable promises on the website, but he'd spent the hundred bucks to register with the Nevada State Tourism Board, and had set up the website under the aegis of the state-funded department to help 'poor, injured workers' such as himself find useful pastimes during their forced inactivity. Since he'd made it clear that the winner had to be physically present on the day of draw, and that it wasn't open to residents of Nevada, he'd demonstrably pulled in nearly five hundred 'tourists' to the state, with the money that came with food, lodging and other expenses. Given that, the Tourism Board would actually help protect him, as long as he wasn't found guilty of doing anything illegal - and, of course, he'd been damned careful about that.

The thing of it all was - it was just so damned easy! You simply played on desperate men's lustful imaginations, then stood back and let the money roll in.

All it took was a few, simple 'props'. Stuff he'd bought for a total of about another hundred bucks or so. He'd taken pictures of each of the items against current newspaper, ostensibly to provide 'scale', and posted them in his website - and, if people wanted to assume that these items, being offered up as 'runner-up' prizes belonged to the 'nympho' they were gunning to win as the Grand Prize, well, that was up to them, wasn't it? After all, nowhere on his website did it actually say such a thing. The items, all bought second hand, were exactly what they'd been advertised as on the website: previously worn garments, still carrying the scent of their owner's perfume.

"Which reminds me...!" Jack said, snapping his fingers.

Navigating through the clutter of garbage filling the frailer, he made his way to the cramped little bedroom at the very back of the trailer. The items he'd bought were laid out on the bed, atop cut-open and folded out garbage bags.

Since he'd bought them, second hand, they were 'previously worn' - and since he'd legally purchased them, he was their owner.

To make that statement on his website completely accurate, all he had left to do was spray them lightly with some perfume he'd purchased, which was, of course, 'their owner's perfume' - and if the people who would be getting these items made some assumptions that weren't accurate, well, that wasn't his problem now, was it?

Grinning to himself, Jack picked up the cheep-looking bottle of perfume he'd bought at this strange little back-alley shop in Reno. It was a flimsy bottle, bearing the hand-written label that identified the scent within as being called 'Metamorphose', and Jack handled it like it was a live bomb, hoping the stuff didn't smell too rank. After all, he'd purposefully set out to buy the cheapest perfume he could find, and this stuff had cost him all of one whole dollar - so there was no telling how bad it smelled.

He turned towards the bed...

...and tripped over a pile of dirty laundry in the middle of the floor.

Time seemed to slow down, giving him plenty of time to observe, but no time to react, as the thin-walled bottle left his hands, flew across the length of the cramped space, and impacted against the vent grill of the air-conditioning unit set into the wall.

The bottle shattered, shards of glass flying out in a bloom of glittering shrapnel - and, instantly, a heavily-scented vapor all-but-burst through the room, propelled by the chilled air issuing from the AC unit.

Almost immediately, Jack's eyes began to water. The scent, surprisingly, wasn't all that bad, a sort of semi-floral, musky scent that would have actually been quite arousing in a very base, obvious way - if it had been present in a smaller amount. As it was, the alcohol-based fumes of the perfume rapidly became overpowering in the enclosed space, filling the entire trailer in a matter of mere seconds, and making Jack cough, eyes watering furiously.

Stumbling, he edged around the bed, careful not to step on any of the glass, and batted at the controls of the air-conditioner, until it finally died. Coughing, he fled the bathroom, making a bee-line for a door he could barely see, tripping over every pile of trash and junk along the way. Finally, after what seemed a perfume-enshrouded eternity, he managed to find the door and all but throw himself out into the heat of the mid-day Nevada sun, gasped in and wheezing as he wiped furiously at his eyes.

It took nearly five minutes for him to stop hacking at the scented fumes he'd inadvertently drawn into his lungs - and, even then, the powerful scent of the perfume continued to haunt him, the odor having seeped into the very fibers of his clothing.

Grimacing, Jack peeled off his torn and frayed jeans and once-white t-shirt, glad that his trailer was in such a private location. Walking over to the creek, he quickly rinsed the clothes out, hanging them on a scraggly branch to dry - but the scent still hovered strongly about him.

Hesitantly, looking around nervously despite the fact that there wasn't around for miles, Jack peeled off his socks and underwear as well, finding that the strong scent pervaded them as well. Rinsing them out, he hung them beside his other articles of clothing, feeling decidedly ill-at-ease standing naked in the middle of his dusty, arid 'yard'.

Even then, the smell wasn't completely gone. Though diminished, it still hung around him, at a level that wouldn't have been all that bad - if not for the fact of his recent 'overdose', where even the lesser level of odor was making him feel somewhat light-headed.

Grumbling to himself, Jack carefully waded into the deepest part of the generally shallow creek, lowering himself to a seated position on the sandy bottom of the small pool. Quickly but thoroughly, he began to wash himself, eager to get the smell off his skin and out of his hair.

He started with his hair, soaking it and sweeping it back, then leaning back in the pool and bracing himself on one elbow as he used his other hand to repeatedly scoop up water and work it through his hair. Using his fingers like a comb, he splashed handful after handful of water into his hair and brushed it through, trying to rinse practically every single strand of hair. When he was finally satisfied with that, he sat up, his dripping mane pulled back from his face and hanging in a wet 'tail' down the middle of his back.

Using both hands now, he began scooping up more water from the sluggishly-flowing creek, splashing it over himself and scrubbing at his body...

...and then he began cursing, loudly and volubly, as he watched his body-hair wash away with the water sluicing off his skin.

"No wonder why the stuff was so fucking cheap!" He shouted up to the uncaring blue bowl of the sky. "What the fuck did she use in that stuff? Battery acid?"

Grumbling, he went back to washing the odor off his skin as best he could, grimacing as every swipe of his hands sloughed off another strip of dark, slightly curly body hair. When he was finally finished, he rose out of the creek, water dripping from skin completely denuded of its previously thick mat of hair.

Worst of all, the quick wash hadn't completely eradicated the scent, even though it had completely removed all of his body hair, leaving his skin seemingly abnormally smooth and silky. Of course, that was just an 'optical illusion', given what his mind and hands expected to see and feel when he ran his fingers across his newly denuded skin - there was no way his skin had really become so tautly smooth and soft. Still, it was a feminine illusion made all the worse - and all the more humiliating - by the faint, but definitely noticeable feminine fragrance that refused to completely vanish.

Shaking his head and mumbling angrily to himself about his bad luck, Jack stalked towards his trailer, water quickly drying on his naked skin. Reaching the still-open door to the trailer, he leaned in - and winced anew at the stronger scent still hovering inside, despite the open door.

Oddly enough, the perfume's character seemed different in the trailer than it did on his skin. On his flesh, it was more musky, while it made the trailer seem more floral-scented, almost like one of those floral air-freshener sprays.

The type that Jack wouldn't have used, not even if somebody had pointed a gun to his head.

Sighing, he looked around the trailer, knowing that the scent couldn't have sunk too badly into the basic material of the trailer's interior, most of which was one form of plastic or another. Even the thin carpeting was of a plastic-derived fiber. For the scent to still be as annoyingly strong as it was, it must have sunk into the more porous materials present.

Breathing shallowly through his mouth, Jack darted inside to the small kitchen area, and quickly grabbed the box of garbage bags under the sink. Working quickly and indiscriminately, he started shoving just about everything in the trailer into the plastic bags, not bothering to sort it out. As each bag was filled, he'd carry it outside, taking deep breaths of the reasonably fresh air as he lugged the bag close to the creek, a good distance away from the trailer. Dropping the bag in the low, yellowing bushes near the edge of the creek, he headed back to the trailer to repeat the process, planning to sort through the open bags later, when some of the smell had dissipated, and he could go through and decide what to wash in the creek and what to just throw away without feeling like he was going to gag.

Working his way slowly through the trailer, from front to back, he basically emptied it of every scrap of paper or cloth, not to mention any of the 'real' garbage - not out of a sense of cleanliness, but just because it was easier than separating trash out from his belongings, since his hurried flight from the trailer had effectively intermingled the separate stacks and heaps of his 'pile system'.

Almost all of his clothes, what there was of them, were piled in various states of 'dirty' in his bedroom - and it was there that the scent was still the strongest, so Jack resigned himself to be nude awhile longer as he gathered it, and his bedding, into a bag and hauled it out to near the creek.

The only items he didn't bother to bag-and-drag were the 'props' for his little scam - because, planned or not, they were now scented more or less like he wanted them to be, and he didn't want to remove that odor, and have to buy another bottle of perfume. Instead, he simply stuck them into a drawer in one of the built-in little nightstands beside the bare-mattress bed.

He ducked outside for some more fresh air, again feeling disturbingly exposed in his nudity, despite the remote surroundings of his trailer. As he shook out muscles ill-used to actually performing physical labor, his hair, which had dried in the Nevada heat, fell in front of his face...

...and this time, his cursing was done nearly at the top of his lungs. It was bleached to a silvery-gold platinum blond.

Running out of breath before he ran out of suitable curses, Jack leaned forward, bracing his hands on his knees and staring angrily at the extremely light-blond curtain hanging in front of his eyes, vowing to go 'have a word' with that weird old crone who ran the shop where he'd bought the obviously home-made perfume. Whatever she'd used in that stuff was so strong that just the vapors bleached thick hair and removed finer hair, and he couldn't believe she could get away with selling such a thing.

Straightening, he tried to push the damnably light-colored hair back out of his face, not wanting to look at it any more - and found that, as it had dried, it had also become quite curly, refusing to sit back out of his face like he was used to it doing. Instead, it now wanted to hang around his face, framing it in thicker-looking masses of big, loopy curls.

Redoubling his vow to extract some sort of vengeance on the bitch who'd sold him the perfume, Jack angrily re-entered the trailer - and swore, loudly, at the strong, floral scent still hanging in the air.

Though he didn't want to, the smell still so powerful in the enclosed space made him do something he really didn't want to do: Clean.

Muttering a steady stream of curses under his breath, he fished a rarely-used bucket and sponge out from a cupboard, and filled it with lukewarm water and some dish soap.

His cursing went from 'under his breath' to 'top of his lungs' as his first swipe at the wall peeled off a huge section of the nicotine- yellowed white paint he'd always just assumed was the original color of the trailer, revealing a pastel pink hue beneath.

Face red and the cords on his neck standing out with the force of it, Jack screamed out his anger and frustration at the woman who'd made and sold him the perfume that was turning out to be much, much more trouble than it could possibly be worth.

"You goddamn stupid bitch, your fucking perfume damn well eats the paint right... off.. the... fucking'... WALL!"

By the end of the nearly insane bellowing, he was screaming as hard as he ever had in his entire life - and on the last word, there was a strange sensation in his throat, almost a 'snapping' sensation, accompanied by a brief but powerful flare of pain before vanishing into a near numbness.

Gasping, Jack put on hand to the base of his throat.

"What the fuck was that...?" He asked himself - then winced. "Fuck!"

The shouted obscenity brought the pain back, full force, and he gasped anew - then frowned and, in a quieter tone, began mumbling new curses.

He must have overstrained his vocal-cords or something - because his voice was now softer, huskier, and higher-pitched.

Slowly, grimly, he went to work washing out the trailer, more and more of the paint peeling off to reveal the light pink that lay beneath. The fact that the same vapors also seemed to serve as a wonderful cleaning agent, making all the other surfaces he cleaned sparkle almost like new, was small comfort - because, by the time he was done, the trailer might have looked nearly brand-spanking new, but it was a feminine-looking 'new'.

Since he'd removed all cloth in the trailer, including the cushion covers and drapes, it was beginning to go from just 'warm' to 'hot' as the sun streamed in the bare window. Still upset over his strained voice, Jack fished out several sets of sheets and blankets from their storage space. Still wrapped in their original plastic shrink-wrap, and this not 'infected' by the faint floral scent still hanging around the trailer, they were parting gifts from his step-mother when he'd moved out - and there was a damned good reason why he'd never used them.

Grumbling at having no choice but to use them now, he tore open the packages - while making a mental note to trim his nails. Never fastidious, he'd always let his nails get so long as to be a nuisance before trimming them - but he didn't realize how long he'd let them get. More than that, their usually ragged edges were now smooth, which he guessed happened by the rough edges 'self filing' as he'd worked - but at least the long nails made it easy to tear open the plastic, even if it didn't make it any easier to have to use their contents.

The white flannel 'hospital' blankets with their pale blue trim at either end he cut in half and used as drapes, excepting the one that he put on his bed, at least hiding the wildflower-patterned sheets and pillowcases beneath it. Unfortunately, there was nothing to hide the matching sheets he draped over the couches and tucked into position, as well as using one as a table cloth, only serving to enhance the 'feminine' tone of the trailer, making him squirm in emotional humiliation.

That done, he carefully and painstakingly washed out the grill of the air conditioner before tuning it back on and closing the door to the trailer, needing to bring down a temperature that was getting uncomfortably warm, even for his nude state.

With the trailer so warm, and tired of all the work, Jack decided to leave getting his now-dry clothes by the creek until the trailer cooled down enough to require it.

He sniffed the air - and sighed, realizing he couldn't tell how effective the entire process had been. He couldn't even tell how much of the perfume remained on his own body, his nose having been exposed to both scents long enough that it was filtering them out of his consciousness.

He shrugged, wearily. Though there was probably still a scent to the trailer, if he couldn't really smell it, then it didn't bother him too much - not nearly as much as the feminine appearance of his home did.

Sighing at a good chunk of a day wasted, he walked over and dropped into the chair at his computer, wanting to see the final tally for his 'raffle'...

...and frowned in confusion at what was up on his screen, the 'mail sent' message of his web-based e-mail service. How had that happened?

Shaking his head, Jack figured that his cleaning must have hit the 'mail' button on his enhanced keyboard, bringing up the website, which he used the 'always remember me' setting to avoid having to log into every time. After that, he must have hit some other keys that had replied to an email, though it was probably a string of gibberish - not that he could tell, because the program didn't automatically save outgoing mail, so he had no way of checking what had been sent.

He could see who it had been sent to, however, and he looked at the header...

"What the hell...?" He asked himself in that damned quiet, high-pitched smoky voice that was the best he could manage, frown deepening.

The message had been sent to an e-mail account called 'bigboybros@hotmail.com' - but that wasn't what had really caught Jack's attention.

The sender name should have been that of his account name: Jak036.

"Who the hell is 'JuggiJacki', and how the hell did I get into her account?" Jack wondered, staring in the confusion at the screen.

Shaking his head in annoyance, he pushed the thought aside, deciding it was 'just one of those things'. Clicking the mouse on the address bar, he typed in the web address for his on-line banking page, then entered his memorized card number and user password...

...and got an error message.

Sighing in annoyance at the screwed-up day he was having, he typed in the card number and password very carefully, checking to make sure that the caps lock wasn't on or anything - and got another 'invalid number/password' error.

Swearing to himself, Jack tried to calm down. If he entered a wrong combo a third time, he'd be locked out for twenty-four hours, and he didn't want to go through the hassle. Pushing himself up from the chair, he headed back to the bedroom to get his wallet, so he could just double-check and make sure he was entering the card number right - even though he was pretty sure he was.

Reaching the bedroom, he looked on top of the built-in dresser - and cursed again at seeing no sign of his wallet. Though he couldn't believe that he would have tossed it in a garbage bag without noticing, there seemed to be no other explanation - he was positive that his wallet and keys had been sitting on the dresser next to the cheap black vinyl purse that was one of the 'props' for his scam, yet that purse was the only thing now occupying the faux-wood surface.

Deciding it was time to get his clothes anyway, Jack lifted the drape he'd recently hung to look outside - and frowned when he saw dusk was busily settling across the landscape, already clothing the shrubs and bushes in shadow. He'd need a flashlight to find anything in the garbage bags - and he seemed to recall throwing his sole flashlight in one of those self-same bags.

Well, he'd just go grab the clothes he'd washed out earlier, and worry about his wallet and keys - and bank account - in the morning. He could...

Stopping in mid-motion as he began to let the drapes fall back over the window, he lifted them up again - just in time to be dazzled by the glare of headlights sweeping across the window as a vehicle pulled into his 'yard'.

"Shit! Now what!" Jack demanded of the universe, watching as the vehicle's lights died, revealing that they were mounted on a pick-up truck of unknown make and model, little more than a darker shape in the growing darkness.

A second later, more light was shed on the scene as the doors opened - and Jack watched as a couple of huskily-built young men climbed out of the cab. In the light provided by the dome light of the cab, Jack could easily tell that the two men were related, both with stocky, muscular builds and sandy hair. They looked to be about two or three years apart in age, the younger of the two boasting a goatee to go with the close-cropped hair nearly identical in shade to the longer, nearly shoulder-length thatch of his older brother.

They were nearly identically clad in blue-jeans and t-shirts, the older brother's was a tight-fitting gray 'Gold's Gym' shirt, while the younger wore a baggier black one with a band logo on it.

Jack watched, annoyed at the intrusion, as the two young men approached his trailer - and then the younger one pointed, drawing the elder's attention to the partially-lifted drape.

"Shit." Jack grumbled, letting the drape fall - but damned sure they knew somebody was here, so pretending the trailer was unoccupied was out of the question. Of course, he could just ignore the knock coming on the door at that very moment - but, somehow, Jack didn't think the two tall, broad-shoulder burly young men would like being ignored, and Jack didn't really want to find out what they'd do if riled.

Of course, Jack also didn't want to find out what they'd do if he answered the door naked. It was his legal right to do so, and it might even convince the guys to leave without bothering him any further - but, on the other hand, it might piss them off.

The big problem was, Jack didn't have any clothes in the trailer. It was all outside, near the creek, and there was no way he could get to it without being seen.

The knock sounded again, more insistently - and Jack suddenly realized that there was, in fact, clothing in the trailer.

He hesitated, grimacing at the thought of wearing the only available clothing - but the third knock was even more insistent, almost demanding, and though Jack couldn't make out the actual words the brothers were saying to each other, there was no doubt that the tone of them was angry.

Yanking open the drawer in the nightstand, Jack quickly hauled out the bundle of scented 'props' and hurriedly spread them out on the bed.

Sighing in annoyance, he tossed the black, six-inch-heeled pumps to one side and picked up the pair of leopard-skin patterned spandex pants. Making a face, he bent over and stepped into the tight-clinging material, pulling the Capri-style pants up his thin, bare legs. Pulling them all the way up, he grimaced again - this time, as the material fit almost painfully snug over a bulge they were never designed to handle.

Shaking his head as the definitely insistent pounding came on the door, rattling the trailer, he did up the wide, black vinyl belt that was part of the pants, then tossed on the blouse. It was a thin, white cotton 'wrap-around' blouse that would have left a deep, plunging 'V' if he'd bothered to pull it closed, but he just let it hang open, cursing the big, lace-trimmed 'bell'-style cuffs of the stupid shirt.

He certainly had no intention of putting on the too-small pumps with their slender, six-inch high heel...

...which is why he was utterly stunned to find himself doing so.

"What the hell...?" HE gasped, unexpectedly finding himself sitting down on the bed and watching his long-nailed fingers as they grasped the shoes and pulled them on feet that should have been too big to fit into the shoes. Somehow, the shoes slid on as easily as if they belonged there - despite the fact they hadn't gotten any bigger.

Which meant, somehow, his feet had gotten smaller...

"It's not possible..." Jack tried to convince himself - even as he found himself rising, balancing atop the slender heels as if he had a life-times experience.

"Wait.. this can't be happening..." He argued with the universe - as he began walking towards the front of the trailer, moving with a hip-swiveling swaying stride he'd never used in his life, and shouldn't have been able to use now.

"Stop. Stop!" He demanded, hearing anew the high, smoky - feminine - tone of his own voice... as something began to happen to his body.

It began to fill out.

He could feel it happening, something like the way you felt when you'd eaten too much - but not in his stomach, but in varying amounts all over his body.

Staring down at himself in shock, he watched as the blouse pulled itself as close to closed as it got - leaving a nice, wide 'V' neckline for him to watch mounting masses of flesh sprouting from his chest.

Fleshy masses that looked surprisingly like...

"Tits!" He gasped, one hand flying to his chest - as the other went to the seat of his pants, which was rapidly filling out with firm masses all its own. "My ass...! No, this can't..."

He tried to scream as what 'could not' be happening became painfully clear to him actually was - but he couldn't get the scream to leave the throat that, itself, was changing.

It was less than twenty feet to travel, from the bed to the door - but in that twenty feet, Jack changed, completely - and there was nothing he could do to stop it, no way he could express his horror as his body achieved new - and unmistakable - configurations.

"I'm coming...!" He heard his new voice say as he neared the door - but, then his body paused to take a look in the mirror near the door, and Jack knew it wasn't 'he' who was coming.

It was 'she'.

The woman who smiled back at him in the mirror as full-bodied - not fat, but 'firmly packed', with a round, open face with huge, brown eyes and full, plump lips. She had wide shoulders and a deep, broad ribcage - but it didn't look the least bit 'mannish' on a tall frame with even wider hips.

Incredibly wide, rounded hips - that were big enough to keep the huge, round, outthrust ass now straining the spandex pants from looking ridiculously out-of-scale with the rest of her body.

Her broad, deep, tall body was also just barely enough to handle the huge, round tits now filling out the close-fitting bra - and everything else about her was built to the same lush scale, from legs that weren't 'long and thin', but long and almost comically curvaceous, but taut and toned despite all that flesh. The only fat in her body was the slightly thicker-than-normal layer of feminine fat that smoothed the lines of her 'farm girl' body, and that in her big tits - and, not a whole lot there, even, since for their shape and size, they seemed to be mostly saline, pumped up to a step just this side of ludicrous, even on as much of a body as hers.

Every single thing about her, from her lushly-built body to her massive mane of platinum-blond hair, from her over-done make-up to her over-inflated tits, was done as if she'd purposefully set out to be 'as much' as she could, everything taken to its most extreme.

She was a walking, talking, tautly-sheathed sex-bomb, her entire, taut-skinned curvaceous body seeming as if it were struggling to contain the pure sex pumped into it at great pressures. 'Good enough' wasn't 'good enough', not for the woman in the mirror - this was a woman who was all about more, more, more! - in everything.

This was the woman Jack had inexplicably become.

This was the woman who helplessly threw open the door to 'her' trailer and felt her full lips curve up into a hungry, 'gimme-gimme!' smile.

"Hi, boys..." She heard her sexy, hungry new voice purr, helplessly. "I'm Jacki - and I'm so glad there's two of you who won me for tonight "

...and the most horrifying thing about the situation was that it wasn't just words being forced, unwillingly, from her new throat - it's what popped out when she opened the door, saw two men that she suddenly found herself as being little more than eye-candy delicious life-supports systems for cum-producing cocks, and felt a sudden, intense craving rip through her with a force that left her literally shivering with a sort of delightful, obscure pain.

She couldn't help but 'come on' to these two guys, and the fact that it disgusted her didn't matter. The fact that she hated the thought of doing any of the incredibly vivid things now running through her mind wasn't important. Even the fact that just the thoughts she was having, much less the idea of actually doing them with, to, or by anybody sickened her wasn't part of the equation.

Every aspect of the fact that she didn't want any of this to happen paled in the face of how desperately she needed it to happen.

Even in that single instant when she'd opened the door, it had slammed through her and left her feeling hollow, feeling completely empty inside, incomplete and desperately needy. In that single instant, she understood the root of it, recognized the nearly mind-bending power of this sensation that she was absolutely nothing, that she was useless, that she didn't have any right to exist - unless she was doing her utmost to pleasure a man.

The fact that she could see this for what it was, knew it wasn't true, hating even having the thought - couldn't break through the feeling, the utter, soul-crushing despair at the thought of not doing the one, 'single' thing that gave her any right to exist.

Which was why, to her utter horror and despair, she'd found herself saying what she'd said - willingly.

Which was why she willingly invited the two young men in, leaning forward as she did so to give them a great view of her massive tits

- and why, as she did so, she could simultaneously hate having tits at all, and yet desperately hope that they enjoyed seeing her huge, fake tits.

At the edge of all this, making the situation all the more horrific, was the knowledge that she could stop this at any time. That she could back from the brink of that core obsession that was doing this to her, that she could refuse to be the woman that this completely negative self-image was trying to force her to be...

...as long as she was willing to accept the fact that once she'd done so, she'd either go stark, raving mad, or fall into a suicidal despair so deep that only death would release her.

She tried to tell herself that either insanity or death would be far, far preferable to living the type of life she'd be condemned to live if she followed the delusion that only think that earned her a right to go on living was to please men - but, even as her male ego screamed in horror, it couldn't quite push that thought through to action, her mind shying back from that particular brink, leaving her to 'willingly' follow the dictates of her new nature.

"Mmm..." She cooed, running a hand up each of the brother's arms. "You're so big, and strong, and handsome..."

"I'm Ted, Jacki..." The older brother introduced himself, eyeing her with a grin, and gestured at his brother, "...and this here is Matt."

'Just let yourself go crazy!' She pleaded with herself - but couldn't bring herself to do it, and instead pushed her lips into a warmer, hungrier smile as he forced herself to look at the two guys crotches and lick her lips, hungrily.

"Matt, Ted... cum right in..." She said, without any subtlety, striving - and failing - to convince herself she wouldn't be a completely useless waste of life if she didn't make herself do everything she possibly could to make these two men happy.

When the guy's gazes and leers and crude comments told her they liked her tits, she tried to tell herself that nothing bad would happen if she told them to get lost - and instead, tore open her blouse and said how much she liked guys who appreciated huge tits.

When Ted wanted a blow job, she tried to say she'd rather die than suck another man's cock - and was still striving to say it after the long, skilled blow-job that ended with her swallowing his disgusting load of salty cum, telling him how much she loved the taste of it.

When Matt 'suggested' she take off her pants so he could give her a good, hard fucking, she tried to convince herself that she wouldn't really go insane if she refused - while bent over the counted and begging him to do her harder and deeper.

She couldn't do it. She couldn't refuse these men anything that might pleasure them, and she couldn't stop herself from letting her use her as they saw fit, all the while pretending that everything they wanted to do with her - to her - was her idea...

...and worst of all, as she went to make some coffee while the men took a short breather, all so that they'd have plenty of energy to use and abuse her all night long, was the knowledge that this horrific, humiliating night wasn't something that was a one-time thing.

She was now 'Juggi' Jacki - and this was her life, and she'd be letting men do anything and everything the wanted with her body from now on.

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: When two buddies find a strange gizmo in the basement of their building, one of the goes through drastic changes and likes it.

Fully Automatic

By Gunslinger

"Just what the hell is it, anyway?" Luke wanted to know, walking slowly around the eclectic conglomerate of surplus-store parts with raised eyebrows.

"Well, I'm not exactly positive..." Rick hedged, heart pounding with excitement. "...but take a look at the main control."

Luke hesitated, eyeing the barely-restrained grin on his pudgy friend's face, obviously wondering if he was being set up for something. After all, the twenty-one year old was fairly short and slender, and hence, quite often the target of practical jokes...

...but, then again, pudgy and pimply, like his fair-haired best friend, were also 'triggers' for the sadistic streak in your average bully, so Luke figured Rick wouldn't be trying to pull a fast one on him.

There really was something about this weird machine they'd found under a tarp in the basement storage room of the apartment building they were living in.

The central portion of the 'device' appeared to be an old dentist's chair, wired and tubed up almost beyond recognition. Strolling around this monstrosity of circuits, cables and plastic tubing, Luke examined the simplistic control board, focusing on the large slider- style control that was the major feature of the board.

The center position, at which the slider knob was currently sitting, was marked with a zero. Outward in either direction, the hand- labeled gradients were marked in percentages, each running up to 300%, marked 'Max.' at either end...

...and on the left-hand side of the scale was the astrological sign for Mars, a circle atop a cross, and on the right-hand side was the sign for Venus, a circle with an arrow pointing upwards on a forty-five degree angle.

The signs for Mars and Venus - also used as the symbols for male and female, respectively. "Does this mean what I think it means...?" The pale, dark-haired young man asked, stunned. "I think so..." Rick agreed...

...and the two young men slowly began to smile at each other.

They'd certainly never expected anything like this when they'd agreed to clean out the cluttered old storage room in exchange for a reduction in their rent. The current owner of the small three-story apartment building had bought it nearly ten years ago, and even then the storage room had been so cluttered with accumulated junk that you could barely get in the door. With more important things to do around the building, he'd just locked the door and left it - until Rick and Luke, a little low on funds, had asked if there was any way they could 'work off' some of the rent, when the storage room had jumped to mind.

They'd just spent all day yesterday hauling junk out of the room, sorting it into two piles: 'worthless' and 'worthwhile'. The worthless junk went right out into the big dumpster, but the other stuff, with some value left in it, had been taken to a pawn shop for whatever cash they could get, which was split with the building's owner.

That had gotten most of the room cleaned out - revealing that it had originally been set up as some sort of workshop. Today, they'd begun going through the tools, assorted electronic and mechanical spare-parts, and the odd assemblages that had been laying under the junk that was now mostly disposed of. Luke had been off hauling a load of 'maybe sellable' items up to their apartment when Rick had finally gotten around to pulling the dusty old tarp off the large object in the corner of the room - and revealed this odd contraption.

"Well..." Luke said, nervously. "Do you think it actually works...? I mean, did it actually do what we think it was built to do, and if so, does it still work now, after sitting down here for god knows how long?"

"There's only one way to find out..." The chubby blond suggested, digging a meaty hand into the pocket of his pants and emerging with a quarter. "Heads or tails, buddy?"

Luke started, almost instinctively beginning to shake his head in denial - and then he stopped himself, curiosity overcoming sensible caution.

"Heads." The slender brunet said, his throat suddenly dry.

With a surprisingly deft flick of his chubby thumb, Rick sent the coin spinning into the air, then caught it and slapped it flat onto the back of his right hand. The two young men took deep breaths - then Rick slowly lifted his hand.

"Heads it is." Rick declared in a strange mixture of relief and disappointment. "In you go, buddy-boy."

Luke hesitated, heart pounding in both excitement and fear - then, slowly, he walked stiffly over to the machine, navigated past some plastic tubing and a bundle of cables, and lowered himself onto the padded surface of the chair.

"I think 'step one' is obvious..." Rick said, walking up to the chair and holding up the padded leather restraint straps hanging from the 'arm' of the chair.

"Are... Are you sure that's really necessary?" Luke asked, wincing at the quaver in his voice. "They're here for a reason." Rick pointed out, logically. "It's up to you, though..."

"Okay, okay - strap me in." Luke sighed, after a moments thought.

Nodding, his hefty friend did just that, buckling up the leather straps at ankles, wrists, waist and neck that would hold the person almost completely immobile. Next, he picked up the tube-bedecked object hanging on the arm of the chair and held it up for Luke's inspection.

Luke grimaced at the obvious purpose, but nodded and opened his mouth, allowing Rick to put the mouthpiece between his lips and buckle it into place around his face.

Thankful that the unknown designer of the strange machine had made it mostly self-evident what to do, Rick began strapping what appeared to be electronic induction electrodes into place. They were grouped into bundles and attached to 'pressure cuffs' that strapped around each upper arm and each thigh - a task made easy given the cut-off jean shorts and dark blue tank-style top Luke was wearing.

Minutes later, everything seemed to be hooked up the way it was supposed to be, and Rick walked around to the control panel, located on the right-side of the machine, facing outwards.

"You ready...?" Rick asked his extremely nervous-looking roommate - and after a seconds hesitation, Luke nodded and gave a thumb's up, about the only motion allowed by his restraints.

"Let's try... 50%." Rick suggested, and got another nod from Luke.

With trembling fingers, the tow-headed young man pushed the slider over to the hand-marked position for fifty percent on the male side - then hesitated, heart pounding as if trying to escape his flabby chest, before finally reaching out and flipping the big breaker- style switch into the 'on' position.

A low wining hum, more felt then heard, began to rise - not in volume, but in pitch. Starting out as a rumble, it rose through the octaves towards a quavering vibration, while, one by one, other sounds kicked in - bleeps, clicks, whirs, and the unmistakable 'chug- chug' of pumps.

His eyes fixated on his friend, watching with nearly paranoid intensity, Rick waited for anything, good or bad, to happen - and, after a very long minute, frowned, as nothing seemed to be happening.

Sitting in the center of the electro-mechanical monstrosity, throat working as he kept swallowing whatever was being pumped in measured dosages into his mouth, Luke was wide-eyed, sweating and pale - but he kept flicking a thumb up to assure his friend that everything was all right.

Sighing, Rick closed his eyes and rubbed at the bridge of his nose before opening them again...

...and started.

Something was happening!

It was happening so slowly and steadily that it was hard to notice the change until you looked away and looked back again - but Rick's previously skinny build was definitely more taut and toned and fit... and Rick was definitely taller, his skimpy clothes tighter on a bigger, taller, more muscled frame.

As Rick watched, a huge shit-eating smile coming to take up residence on his face, his previously nerdish friend became steadily more studly.

By the time the machine finally kicked off, about four minutes after it started, the young man Rick unstrapped from the chair was a handsome, athletic example of manhood, still resembling his 'original' self enough to be recognizable, at least in facial features, but considerably 'enhanced'.

In fact, Rick judged, Luke was now exactly half as much again as the man he'd used to be.

"Holy shit, it worked!" Luke crowed, running his hands over his taut, athletic new frame - and, blushing, across the now-taut fabric of his jeans. He hesitated, blushing deeply, then turned away from Rick and unzipped his shorts.

He was still blushing when he turned back - but smiling like that canary that ate the cat. "Exactly half as long again as it used to be!" He declared, both proud and embarrassed. "My turn!" Was Rick's immediate - and enthusiastic - response.

"You bet!" Luke agreed. "Uh.. you're gonna half to either undress or get changed though..."

Rick blinked - then realized his more-handsome friend was right. Unwilling to show off his flabby body any more than necessary, Rick was wearing full-length pants and a long-sleeve denim work shirt, which would have made placing the pressure cuffs impossible.

He hesitated - then, blushing deeply but unwilling to waste the time it would take to go upstairs and get changed, he began stripping down, until he was standing in nothing but his 'tighty whities', his face flaming.

Moments later, he was strapped into the machine just as Luke had so recently been. The now much-more athletically built brunet walked over to the control panel and flipped the switch, and the machine began to hum, whirl, click and chug industriously...

...and then, accompanied by the noxious smell of burning plastic, sparks began to shoot from the control panel, and the symphony of electro-mechanical noises became a cacophony, increasing in pitch and speed.

"Holy shit!" Luke shouted, shielding his face from the sparks flying from the control panel - as Rick began making awkward chocking noises as he struggled to swallow the vastly increased amounts of the nearly tasteless warm liquid being pumped into his mouthy, while his body began to involuntarily shiver and shudder in the restraints as the inductive electrical field running through his flabby frame increased...

...except that his frame was becoming steadily less flabby.

"I'm coming, buddy!" Luke cried, starting towards the chair to unstrap his helpless friend - then stopping with a grimace as he watched the moving mechanical levels, gears and pulleys between him and the chair, now running with buzz-saw speed and ferocity, barring all access.

Luke's eyes went from the rapidly whirring machinery to his nearly naked friend...

...and he gasped, feeling as if he'd been hit by a lead weight, as he saw the changes Rick had undergone - and was still undergoing, at a rapid pace.

The weight seemed to be melting off his frame - a frame that was getting steadily slimmer and more finely built. That fat, however, wasn't 'melting' to the floor - but seemed to be sucked through his slimming, shrinking body towards his chest, where it was accumulating in a pair of firm - and unmistakable - mounds that were pushing outwards from a chest that was rapidly losing all its hair.

Yanking his stunned gaze from the tits rapidly swelling on his friend's chest, Luke met Rick's eyes in the middle of a slimming, feminine face that golden-blond hair was rapidly pilling around.

"I..." Luke started, unsure if his steadily more feminine friend was even aware that the machine had run haywire into the feminine mode - then decided it didn't matter, not at this second. "I'll find the plug!"

Turning, Luke frantically began searching for the machine's power source, quickly lost from Rick's limited field of vision.

A field of vision, however, that was enough to let him look downwards at his chest - where he could see what was causing the strange sensations he was feeling from that locale.

Rick was damned well aware that the machine wasn't making him more masculine. Even as his body shuddered and shook, strange sensations flowed through him, sensations that could only confirm the rather emphatic evidence of what his eyes reported was happening to his...

No.

To her chest.

From somewhere out of sight, Luke let out a victorious cry - and the machine clanked, creaked and died, the sudden shut-down of the electrical field returning control of her muscles to the new woman.

Stunned, feeling as if in a daze, she slipped her tiny, slender new hands easily from the restraints buckled to the size of her old, fat wrists. She lifted them in front of her face, staring at them, marveling in a sort of disconnected way at the incredibly fine-boned fingers and wrists, the slender hand, and the long nails now adorning each finger tip.

Being careful because of those extremely long new nails, emotions not yet having come even close to catching up with her radically different new situation, Rick removed the straps around her completely reshaped face and spat out the mouthpiece. She was just finishing lifting her tiny, dainty new feet out of the ankle-straps when Luke skidded to a stop in front of her...

...and gaped.

The person in the chair bore absolutely no resemblance to his friend, Rick.

No, that wasn't quite true. There were a couple of 'minor' things that were familiar in the radically reshaped woman staring back at him with a stunned, lost look on her new face.

The incredibly thick, full-bodied mane of silky hair that seemed to explode from her scalp before falling down past her incredibly full, heart-shaped new ass was still the same shade of golden blonde as always, and those huge eyes, framed by long lashes and set in a heart-shaped face of feminine beauty, were the same shade of summer-sky blue.

The rest of her, however...

Rick, as a man, had been of about average height and above-average weight - neither of which described the woman Rick was now gaping at.

She was tiny. From her height, her incredibly fine-boned build and the youthfully smooth, taut skin that sheathed her new form, you might have pegged this unlikely feminine vision as being all of sixteen years of age, barely topping out at four-seven with a flawless, creamy complexion women the world over would have killed for.

Her actual figure, however, was defiantly fully matured...

Her wrists and ankles, hands and feet were all incredibly delicate, 'girlish' in their tiny proportions - but the smoothly curved arms and long, supple legs they were attached to were perfectly toned with the shapeliness of a woman in her early twenties, one who paid extremely careful attention to fitness without being into muscle-building...

...the way a dancer might be, for instance.

Those long, slender legs rose to a pair of wide, well-rounded womanly hips that amply supported a full, tautly-rounded ass before curving sharply inwards to a well-toned stomach on a waist that couldn't have been more than fifteen inches around, incredibly slender even for her diminutive stature.

Her ribcage was long and slender and well-shaped - and almost completely hidden behind the spherical bulk of her massive new breasts, riding high and firm on her chest and seeming almost eager to lead the way, each soccer-ball-sized sphere of flawlessly smooth skin tipped by a long, fat pink nipple standing at full attention atop it's diminutive areola.

Atop the long, slender column of her neck, surrounded by that massively thick, glossy wave of blonde hair, her heart-shaped face boasted a tiny, upturned nose that was flanked by a pair of huge blue eyes, while the slender, pointed jaw-line below the wide, high cheeks was the perfect setting for the incredibly full, bow-shaped lips now slightly agape in an expression of shock.

Shock, not so much from the physical fact of being female, which her whirling thoughts and emotions hadn't had time to work out how to react to - but at the way the sight of Rick affected her.

The way her huge, bright-pink new nipples had instantly stood at attention while a incredibly enjoyable sort of 'frustration' took the form of a moist fire that flared in her crotch and rapidly spread through her body like a wildfire. Electrical connections seemed to sparkle and fizzle into life between her nipples and her crotch, and those connections carried megawatts of pleasurable current as her heart began to pound and her mouth went dry.

She was suddenly, powerfully, overwhelmingly aware of the fact that she was now emphatically female - and Luke was most definitely male.

"Oh.. My..." The new woman gasped in an incredibly high, sweet soprano, already huge eyes widening behind their incredibly long lashes. "Oh.. oh... no..."

"Rick..." Luke forced through a tight throat, swallowing heavily as he anticipated pure hysteria as the situation sunk in for his newly feminine friend. "Rick, I.. we..."

"She was still staring at him - and as Luke watched, stunned, her big blue eyes slipped downwards, her slender, pink tongue unconsciously appearing to lightly lick her incredibly full, pouty new lips as her eyes fastened on his crotch for a long, hungry second

- before she gasped and hauled her gaze away, the blush showing like a beacon on her incredibly clear skin. "Oh... dear." She said blinking and shivering in a sort of strange wave of guilty pleasure. "Oh dear, oh dear..." "Rick...?" Luke said, confused, and wondering why she wasn't well into a well-earned hysterical tantrum.

"My.. My hormone production - female hormone production - seem to have been... massively increased." She paused, blush deeper then ever as the ramifications of that rocked Luke back on his heels - and then she looked down at the massive, round tits thrust from her chest...

...and giggled!

"Among other things." She noted, full lips curving upwards in a smile... as her hands rose upwards and oh-so-teasingly tweaked her own fat nipples, causing her to shudder and gasp...

...and then one hand slid down from her huge bust to the briefs straining over her womanly hips - briefs whose crotch was quite obviously damp.

Briefs that she slid her dainty new hand into - and began to rub over her new womanhood, gasping and moaning. "Rick!" Luke blurted out, shocked.

"I.. can't help it!" She moaned in high-pitched lust, biting her full lower lip as she continued pressing her stroking hand down on her cunt for the wonderful pleasure the pressure caused, her other hand teasing and caressing her own huge tit. "I... I'm just so horny!"

She was caught in the grip of the new sensation her hyper-endowed new body was providing her. Somewhere in that mix were all the negative emotions and thoughts about her sudden new feminine status - but they were tiny shouts in the wildness, lost in the overwhelming desire and pleasure her body was shivering in the grip of.

Her radiant blue eyes suddenly flared with realization, and she stared at Rick.

"Fuck me." She said, so matter-of-fact that the impact of the words themselves took a second to register on Luke. "What...?" He demanded, wide eyed.

"Fuck me!" She repeated, now in a moan of desire.

"No! I.. I can't!" Rick declared, holding his hands up defensively - while, struggling against the confines of it's denim prison, his cock struggled to put lie to his words, his physical arousal at having this new woman demand he pleasure her oh-so-obvious.

"Fuck me, Luke - I need it!" Rick demanded hungrily, hands working all the more feverishly on her new form as the originally extremely enjoyable sexual frustration continued to grow, becoming less enjoyable and more demanding - but it was the physical pleasure of what her hands were doing that forced the new woman to amend her statement to full truthfulness: "I want it, Luke! Please, fuck me!"

"You.. Your hormones are screwing up your thinking!" Luke blurted out. "You... You don't really want to..."

"Yes... I... DO!" She informed him with so much intensity that he took a step backwards, as if expecting lightning to spark from her suddenly flaring eyes and smite him dead.

It was an easy metaphor to arrive at - for, in that moment, she appeared a Goddess. Tiny frame held rigidly straight, questing hands momentarily stilled, face and eyes supernaturally intent, she was a sexual deity, more pure, powerful femininity crammed into a tiny, shapely package then Luke had even imagined could ever exist.

Eyes still filled with distilled intensity and lust, face cast into sensual lines of pure, willful intent, she removed her hands from her new body and walked towards him - slowly, with a stride that was somehow completely implacable while also being mind-numbingly graceful and sensual.

As she approached him, he slowly began to back away. Equal part fear and lust filled him, each one more powerful than any previous experience as he almost unthinkingly retreated in the face of the suddenly eerily composed, awesomely sensual woman who stalked him as he edged backwards out the door and into the hall.

"Rick..!" Luke squeezed in protest, still retreating.

"Rikki... no, better yet, Vicki." She informed him in the eerily composed tone of pure sexual desire, her eyes seemingly alive with an intense blue flame. "I want you to call me Vicki."

"Wha.. What...?" Rick stammered, his stunned retreat very slowly losing him ground to the sexual Goddess advancing on him. "But, But..."

"I want you to call me Vicki - and treat me like a woman." She told him, eyes burning into his with frightening intensity as he numbly began climbing the stairs he'd backed up to. "A very sexy woman."

"Buh.. buh.. buh..." Luke tried again, vocal skills rapidly deteriorating.

"I want you to want to see me dressed in sexy clothes that show off my body and turn you on, and I want you to want to touch that body, and have me touch you, kiss you, fondle - and be fondled by - you." She told him. "But most of all - I want you to want to fuck me."

"I.. You.. guy..." Luke gibbered, helplessly.

"I don't care if I'm a woman now!" She informed him with utter conviction in her high-pitched new voice. "When I saw that machine, I thought it was finally over - no more being fat and lonely and so damned horny all the time, with maybe two mercy fucks a month if I was lucky!"

Her lips moved up in a smile of such lustful intensity that 'Little Lucas' went from middlin' hard to doing an impression of an iron bar.

"I thought being a more masculine man would let me be more popular, more sexually active, more happy." She said, licking her lips with a palatable hunger. "Sure, I don't even like the guys a more masculine body would have made me more popular to be around, but I was willing to put up with hanging around brain-dead morons whose idea of fun is fighting over a funny shaped pig-skin ball so they can run up and down a field with it, because they seem to be the type of guys who get all the action."

She licked her lips again, and moaned, and Rick suddenly realized he'd run out of room to retreat as his back slammed into a door - the door to their apartment, he realized with a sort of numb surprise, realizing belatedly that Rick.. Vicki ...had been guiding his stunned retreat.

"Well, no I don't have to hang around assholes in the hopes of getting laid three or four times a week." She informed him, drawing ever closer. "Now I can spend all my time with a guy I'm already the best of friends with - and get laid as many times a day as he's physically capable of handling."

She took the final step, pressing her lushly appointed new body firmly against his, her tiny new hands stroking his hard cock through his shorts as she stared up at him, grinding her huge tits against his stomach.

"Sure, I'm more horny right now than I ever was in my old, male body..." She told him, breathy voice lustful. "I realized, however, that in this body, I have a chance to do something I could never do before: actually satisfy all the lust I feel."

She licked her lips again.

"All I have to do is get you to fuck... me...!"

Then she twisted the doorknob, and their weight caused the door to fly open and they stumbled into their apartment. "Fuck... me..." She moaned, slamming the door shut behind her.

"Fuck me." She insisted, reaching down to grab her underwear and latterly tear the sopping garment off.

"Fuck me!" She demanded, yanking open his shorts to reveal his enlarged cock straining at the underwear inside. "Fuck me!" She pleaded, grabbing his hands and hauling them to her huge new breasts.

"Fuck me!" She begged, using her grip on the wrists of his almost uncontrollably fondling hands to draw him towards the bedroom. "Fuck me!" She cried, yanking his shorts and underwear down to expose his rock-hard cock.

"Fuck me!" She screamed, falling back on the bed, luscious new legs spread wide to reveal her sopping wet new womanhood, ripe and ready for penetration.

"FUCK ME!" She implored, hands squeezing and caressing her diamond-point nipples as she shivered in intense arousal, very nerve in her body crying out for satisfaction - and every synapse in her brain willingly accepting, even embracing, the idea of that satisfaction in her new form. "Fuck me, Luke! I want to be your huge-breasted girlfriend, I want to be your sexy little nympho, I want to be the woman I am, but most of all I want you to fuck me, right now, right here, as hard as you can, just fuck me...!"

It suddenly registered on Luke's confused mind that he was standing at the end of the bed, nearly naked and sporting the longest, thickest, hardest erection of his life, while the most luscious piece of 'tits and ass' he'd ever seen squirmed in utter arousal, playing with her massive tits as she quite literally begged him to fuck her.

So he did.

Letting himself go, letting 'Little Lucas' take control, Luke peeled off his shirt, climbed up onto the bed - and sighed in sweet surrender as he obeyed her chanted mantra to 'fuck her' by letting her spread her welcoming legs wide and accept his eagerly-thrust cock deep into the warm, wet confines of her tight new cunt.

"Oh, yes...!" She screamed, showing remarkable flexibility as she pulled her legs wide and high, slipping her arms behind her knees to help hold her raised and spread legs apart, while still letting her hands reach her huge bust line. She shivered in intense pleasure at being filled with his huge cock, all emotions and sensations agreeing, emphatically, that this was what she wanted.

As he began thrusting, it got better and better. The almost-painful level of desire began to transmute into ecstatic pleasure as it was finally met, and she writhed and squealed in delight as he fucked her, just as she'd begged him to do.

Leaning forward, shifting his weight to his arms, Luke picked up the pace and depth of his strokes, trying to meet her demands of 'harder, Luke, harder!'

Those demands soon turned to incoherent gasps, moans and screams of pleasure as the rising tidal wave of intense pleasure and satisfaction took up more and more of her brain, pushing out such inconsequential things as coherency as she was soundly and rapidly fucked towards the first female climax she was so desperately eager to experience.

Her hands squeezed and caressed her huge, bouncing tits, her eyes now closed as she shrieked out in purest pleasure, soprano counter-point to Luke's deeper grunts of enjoyment as she pounded away at her tight, wet cunt, his face screwed up into an expression of enjoyable intensity as he entered the home stretch towards his own rapidly building climax.

He hit his own climax, pumping his load of cum deep inside her new womanhood - and an instant later, she screamed gloriously as she reached orgasm, body thrashing and writhing in intense, mind-blowing pleasure...

...and then she let go of her legs, letting them whip down to encircle his waist, and in one convulsive movement displaying startling strength in her tiny frame, she rolled them over, so that she was on top of him, his slowly softening cock still buried in her cunt.

A cock that stopped slowly softening as she began rhythmically rocking atop him, a motion as much forward-and-back as it was up- and-down.

Her movements were slower, more gentle, and incredibly graceful, not like the frantic pounding he'd given her - because with her immediate needs met, this one was 'for fun', performed long and slowly and with loving attention to detail, a teasing smile on her full lips and a glitter of humor in her big blue eyes as she gasped in low pleasure as she rode him sinuously, enjoying his fondling of her tits almost as much as the slowly sexual rhythm she'd set on his once-more rigid cock.

It was a short eternity before his second, shorter-yet-sharper orgasm, and pleasurable eternity for him as her cunt worked his highly- sensitized cock, her body shivering every few minutes with longer, softer, gentle orgasms that were every bit as enjoyable despite their reduced intensity.

Finally, his cock feeling pleasantly abused as it rapidly collapsed under the strain of his second orgasm, she rolled off of him and snuggled up beside him, huge tits pressed into the side of his chest as he reached his arm around her, stunned by what had happened and confused about how he should feel about having just fucked his feminized best friend.

"That.. was really what you wanted...?" He asked, guiltily.

"Yeah." She sighed, snuggling closer with a giggle. "Good thing, too - because I couldn't have stopped myself if I'd tried." "What?" Luke demanded, suddenly worried anew at the thought of 'taking advantage' of his helpless friend.

"Oh, the desire to have sex my body was giving me, I could have resisted... Not that I wanted to." She told him, with a naughty giggle. "it was the knowledge that, while giving myself the intense pleasure I wanted, I could also give my best friend in the whole world great pleasure that made it irresistible."

Lifting her head, Vicki smiled at him.

"With any other man, I could have resisted the urge to have sex, picking and choosing when and with who - but not with you." She informed him, leaning forward and giving her stunned friend - and now, lover - a quick but passionate kiss. "I wanted to have sex, solely for my own sake - but when I see you and know that the 'selfish' desire to please myself with sex could also have a 'selfless' purpose of pleasing you - well, what happened next was almost... automatic."

"I.. see..." Luke said, stunned - and guilty. "But.. you really did want to do that?"

"Did, do, and will." She confirmed, with yet another fetching giggle, as she slapped him on the stomach. "Think about it, silly: Pleasure, wonderful pleasure, all I could ever want - while also doing something very nice for my best friend in the whole wide world."

Frowning, he considered her words, still worried that he'd done something terrible wrong - not in the 'perverted' sense, while a slowly fading part of his mind still insisted on pointing out at the moment, but in a moral sense...

...and then he gasped and his eyes went wide as realization hit.

Giving oneself pleasure while also pleasing somebody you cared very much about...?

That didn't just describe what had gone from her side - but exactly happened with him! That moment, at the end of the bed, realizing that he could have sex with the woman on the bed, and give her the pleasure she was demanding while getting some of his own - that had been exactly the mirror-image of her own situation...

...and, he too, had responded practically 'automatically'.

In fact, just thinking about it now, his cock, pleurably tortured as it was, struggled to become erect again...

The didn't discuss it. They didn't even stare into each other's eyes for wordless communication. As if of one mind, they simply did it, shifting around on the bed until Luke's questing tongue could tease the swollen, dripping clit just in front of his face while her warm, full, and oh-so-willing lips and long, supple tongue went to work on his enlarged new cock.

It was practically an automatic response.

One that would prove to be most mutually beneficial - not to mention exquisitely enjoyable - for quite some time to come...

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: Because Brad was discovered cross-dressing during his college years, he is now blackmailed into playing a game where he eventually turns into a super-slut nymphomaniac.

The Game Of Revenge

By Gunslinger

For the fourth time in as many minutes, John slowly turned the piece of ...paper?... over in his hands, searching for some clue as to who sent it - and why.

The muscular, almost offensively handsome young man with the shock of dark hair and neatly trimmed goatee had just arrived home. As usually, he topped off a long, hard day at the automotive parts plant where he worked by stopping in at the local watering hole and downing a drink or three with his car-pool buddies. Thankfully, today he wasn't the driver, so he'd been able to drink.

Dragging with a combination of fatigue and a slight alcoholic 'buzz', the big, broad-shouldered man had walked up the driveway to his small, neatly-kept bungalow, grabbed the pile of mail in the box, and went inside.

Buried among the bills, advertising circulars and junk-mail, John had found 'The Letter'.

That's how he thought of it, capital letters and all. After all, it was unusual enough to warrant a 'title', rather than a mere descriptive phrase.

The first odd thing about The Letter was the fact that it didn't come in an envelope - or, rather, it was it's own envelope, the sheet of 'paper' folded in three and sealed on the back with a blob of wax over a twisted red ribbon, the wax bearing the imprint of a signet. On the front, in broad italic letters, was:

Master Jonathan A. Mandlewood, 16, The Greenbriar Court,

The City of Dearborn, The State of Michigan

The United States of America

There was no ZIP code, nor stamp.

Jonathan had stared at The Letter for a moment, wondering who sent it. it looked extraordinarily fancy, and it struck John as more 'Wedding Invitation' than anything - but he didn't know anyone who was engaged, and any of his friends who might be getting married 'post haste' wouldn't be the sort to send out such fancy invitations.

Putting the rest of the mail aside, John had taken The Letter into the living room, along with a glass of white wine. Placing both the wine and The Letter on the end of the table, he'd taken a quick shower and slipped into his most comfortable bathrobe before returning to the living room.

Sitting down on the comfortable, if worn, armchair, he picked up the wine and took a sip before picking up The Letter.

It seemed almost a crime to break the wax seal to open The Letter. Digging through the drawer in the end table, he found a nail file, and used it to carefully separate the wax seal from the rest of The Letter without ruining it. Placing it aside, he carefully unfolded The Letter.

It wasn't normal paper. It was somewhat thicker and heavier, but with a smoother finish. It didn't seem to be parchment, either - or not the commercial paper caller 'parchment' that could be bought for fancier letters. No, it was smoother and more supple than that.

Opened, The Letter revealed itself to be handwritten in a tight, cursive Italic script, like a form of calligraphy, though it wasn't one of the more common ones that John had seen here or there, before. Taking a sip of his wine, John sat back and began to read The Letter...

...and found himself slowly leaning forward in the seat again as the words registered on his mind. Master Jonathan,

We know your secret. The shameful thing in your past that you have so successfully hidden these many years. Do not bother yourself with trying to determine who 'we' might be - it doesn't matter in the least, not at the moment. However, here is what does matter;

If you wish to keep you shameful secret from becoming public knowledge, you will do as instructed. Should you follow all our instruction, precisely and on time, then we will make no attempt to distribute the information about your past that we hold. If, on the other hand, you attempt to balk us in any way, certain letters will be delivered to you employer, your closest friends, and other selected individuals.

Enclosed with these letters will be copies of a Polaroid photo taken on the Twenty-First of September, Ninteen-Nintey-Two.

If you do not wish for this to happen, you will be at the phone-booth at the corner of Twenty-first and Western at precisely ten-twenty tonight. You will answer the phone when it rings, and follow the instructions you are given. Should you not be there to answer the phone, then the letters will be sent.

The Letter was unsigned.

It also had John bathed in a cold sweat. There should be no possible way for this Letter to be in his hands - or rather, for it to say what it did. Nobody was supposed to know about what had happened on that day, eight years ago. The only people privy to that occurrence were in equal jeopardy from exposure as he was, and he couldn't believe any of them could be so cruel as to use that knowledge in this way, even if it did turn out to be 'nothing' but a practical joke of some sort.

If somebody else had found out, however...

John swallowed nervously, then downed the rest of his drink without tasting it, his eyes unfocused as he stared at the far wall. Then he turned the paper over in his hands, hoping it would give him some clue as to who was blackmailing him with his own, shameful, past.

Aside from the dire and dreadful message written upon it, The Letter remained mute.

His hands trembling slightly, John put The Letter down, then hurried off to his bedroom to get dressed. Given the details given in the Letter, he couldn't take the risk that this was all some hoax of horrible joke.

He had to do what it said.

* * * * *

John approached the phone booth nervously, glancing around in worry.

The phone booth was in an industrial section near the harbor. The place was dark and silent, and the cab driver had dropped him off two blocks away, refusing to leave the more brightly-lit section, obviously fearing some sort of foul play. The walk to where the battered phone booth sat, isolated and near the shore, had kept John's already keyed-up nerves on a knife's edge.

Now, almost shaking from the adrenaline high, John stepped into the phone booth, glancing at his watch.

Finding he still had two minutes, he nervously lit a cigarette and began to smoke it while he waited for the phone to ring...

...and almost had a heart attack when a crackling voice suddenly spoke. 'John - look in the shelf.'

With a startled exclamation, John dropped the cigarette - then, hands shaking, groped in the small, dark space where a phone book should have been. Instead, his fingers came across something else, and he extracted it.

He found himself holding a small walkie-talkie, taped to the back of which was an envelope.

'You are being watched right now.' The small radio advised him, making him turn around and scanned the darkened buildings, wondering from which vantage point he was being seen.

'Do not open the envelope.' The voice said, sternly. 'Pick up the phone and call your girlfriend, Melissa. Tell her that you really need to see her, and that you want to come over.'

"But..." John protested - but to thin air, not keying the button on the two-way radio. Lips tightening, he put the radio down on the shelf, picked up the receiver, and dropped a quarter in the slot. When he heard it ring through the dial-tone, he quickly punched in his girlfriend's phone number.

"Melissa?" he said, quickly, when there was an answer. "This is John - please don't hang up..." She ignored him, and hung up anyway. He cursed.

He and Melissa had recently had an argument, and he'd thought this might happen - she was usually pissed at him for a good three days when they fought. Sighing, he picked another quarter out of his pocket, and tried again.

"Please, Melissa - I really need to..." He tried - but that was as far as he got before she hung up.

He paused, then turned around in the phone booth and lifted his arms in a 'what can I do?' gesture, hoping for some instructions from his invisible tormentor.

They came through the small radio.

'Call Steve. Tell him you really need to talk to somebody about your life. Sound upset.'

Not understanding - but afraid to refuse - John dropped more change into the phone and dialed another number.

He got his best friend Steve's answering machine.

"Uh, Steve? You there?" John said, knowing that Steve sometimes used his machine to screen his calls. "Look, it's John. If you're there, pick up - I really need to talk to somebody, and Melissa won't even listen to me. Steve? Steve.. you there? Come on - I really need to talk to somebody."

He waited until the machine 'clicked', indicating it had run out of time and hung up on him. John hung up the phone, wondering what was coming next.

Whatever he might have thought it would be, this wasn't it.

'Call your mother.' The radio told him - and John had to stifle a hysterical giggle at the strange turn that had taken, when he had some unseen black-mailer commanding him to do what his mother was always nagging about. Picking up the phone, he dialed '1-800-COLLECT', and gave the information. The phone began to ring at the other end...

'Hang up!' The radio commanded, suddenly, startling John anew. Even as he heard the phone being picked up at the other end, he quickly disconnected and racked the receiver.

'Good - now open the envelope.'

Wondering what the hell that was all about, John opened the envelope and pulled out the contents...

...and felt his heart freeze as he stared at the small plastic bag that contained the photo.

In the photo, his younger self looked as horrified as he did now. The John in the photo was wearing nylons, high-heels and a dress, and beneath the garish red wig he wore, his face was heavily made up...

...and his gloss-red lips were wrapped around another guy's cock.

John had been experimenting with cross-dressing at the time. Nothing serious - just every couple of weeks, when he was bored, he would try dressing up, in the 'safety' of his own apartment...

..except that a couple of would-be frat boys, being initiated, had had to sneak into the apartment of one of the last-years football team and steal their jersey. They had chosen John's apartment, thinking he was out - because he hadn't answered the door or phone while in drag - and had caught him.

That had been bad enough - but worse was the photo. They'd had a camera and had taken a picture of him in drag - several pictures, really. It was a Polaroid instant camera, and they only had one copy of each photo - and they'd made a deal with him. They'd trade him those eight photos, which he could destroy - in exchange for this photo. They had sworn they'd give him back this photo after he threw his weight into getting them into the Frat - but they'd broken their word, mainly because the photo could be used against Marcus, the guy shown getting 'blown', though it had been posed rather than real.

In any case, John had lived in mortal fear of that photo being released - and now he held the original copy in his hands. He wished he could believe it as the only copy, but...

There was something else in the envelope as well - a letter. John unfolded it, and began to read it...

...and realized, with horror, that it not only seemed to be in his handwriting, but it was a suicide note, explaining how he couldn't 'live the lie' anymore...

...and he was getting his fingerprints all over it!

Before John could react to the horrified realization, he heard a strange 'phhht' sound...

...and felt a sharp sting in the back of the neck. He whirled around, startled,...

...and felt the strength draining out of his body. He tried to tear up the suicide note and the photo - but his body betrayed him, limp fingers dropping the damning 'evidence' to the floor.

As he slumped, helpless, against the side of the booth, he watched a black-clad man in a ski-mask come into sight and bend over his now inert body. Helpless, John could only watch as the man carefully picked up the note and the photo with his gloved hands, and place them on top of the phone itself, where it could be seen easily.

Now a black van pulled up, and the side door slid open. Two more masked men emerged, and dragged John's limp body towards the van... as he watched the first man pull the phone off the hook and let it dangle. As the darkness began to close in on John, he watched the man dial 9-1-1...

...and then fell into the arms of Morpheus, knowing - but not understanding why - he'd just helped stage his own apparent suicide...

* * * * * DAY 1

'Wake up, Johnny! Time to wake up!'

John groaned, the amplified voice cutting through the peaceful oblivion of sleep and reverberating around inside his aching head, triggering echoes in pain. As the brassy, electronically-distorted voice repeated its message, he hauled himself the rest of the way to unwelcome wakefulness and opened his eyes, squinting against the florescent glare from the lights inset into the ceiling, behind wire-mesh cages. Oddly, the first association that jumped to his groggy mind was the lights that had been mounted in his old high-school - then his brain began to catch up to reality, and he sat up with a start, looking around.

He was in a room he'd never seen before in his life - and he didn't figure he'd ever seen one even close to it, since it was such an unusual design.

It appeared to be about a hundred feet long, roughly, and maybe twenty, twenty-five feet wide. The ceiling was some sort of metal, and the walls... well, the walls appeared to be plastic-covered LCD screens, huge ones that took up most of each wall. Strange, swirling patterns were currently displayed on these screens, like psychedelic screen-savers. They made his eyes ache after looking at them for just a few seconds - but, being everywhere, it was hard to ignore them. Even when he pulled his eyes away from them, he could see them out of the corner of his eyes, and they wanted to drag his eyes to watch the ever-moving colors and shapes.

Shaking his head, he focused his attention on the rest of the room, such as it was.

Most of it was empty. At the far end of the room was a door - a pretty normal looking door, all things considered. The floor that filled most of the empty, slightly echoing chamber was a strange, shiny reddish-gold material that took it several seconds for John to recognize as some sort of copper-based metal, new-penny bright.

The back end of the room - where was now was - was formed out of a raised platform of what appeared to be plywood. Running the width of the room, the platform was maybe ten feet wide, and it's raised surface held a small 'bathroom' in the corner, unprotected by any walls, and the bed on which he was currently laying, the warm, climate-controlled air making sheets (which the bed didn't have) redundant...

"What the fuck...?" John said, looking down at himself. Slowly, he ran his hands over his smooth, bare skin - which was definitely strange, all things considered.

Sometime while he was sleeping, he'd been shaven completely, from head to toe. Running a hand over his chin verified that his facial hair was also gone, leaving behind flesh that was so smooth and soft - even more so than it had been when he'd tried cross-dressing, and had (rather ashamedly) shaved his legs and arms. Now, he couldn't feel - or see - the slightest hint of stubble.

'Like it, Johnny?' the brassy voice - which had fallen silent when he'd stirred - blared out, disgustingly cheerful. 'Looks good on you, doesn't it? Laser hair removal, depilatory and electronic follicle repression. As smooth as a baby's bottom!'

"Wha.. What's going on here!" John demanded, confused, scared - and angry. "Who are you! Why are you doing this to me!"

'Oh, come on, Johnny!' The voice chuckled. 'Don't be such a poor sport - all we're doing is playing a little game!'

"Oh, yeah?" Johnny said, annoyed. "Well, I don't want to play, damn you! Let me go!"

Another brassy, distorted chuckle. 'But, Johnny - that is the game! Right now, you're in a very specially constructed 'building' set up in an abandoned mine tunnel, with you at the very deepest end. Surrounding you is rock, lots and lots of rock, leaving no way out but to go through the series of chambers constructed between you and the mine entrance - and, no, I won't tell you how many rooms. Don't want you to be able to judge your progress... it's more fun this way, you see.' The voice gave another chuckle. 'All you have to do to win - is to get through all the chambers and leave. That's it.'

John laughed, without humor. "Why do I have the feeling it's not a simple stroll out?" he asked, swinging his denuded legs over the edge of the bed and pulling his naked body upright. He shivered - but it had nothing to do with the carefully controlled temperature. Being nude was uncomfortable enough - but, right now, he felt naked, and more than just unclothed - defenseless, helpless, with no control over his own situation.

It was a feeling he didn't like.

'Quite right, my perceptive little toy!' the voice said, grating on John's nerves. 'Each chamber has it's own little... shall we say, 'problem' to solve? To solve this room's problem, I suggest you go take a look at the east wall - where, by the way, you'll find the food and drink dispensers.'

Walking over to the end of the platform that didn't contain the bathroom, John looked first at the two items built into the wall.

There was a little slot that obviously came from somewhere above, and was too small to allow his hand fit up it, much less a chance of escape - it looked more like a candy machine's dispenser.

The other part was a 'tube' that would be the drink dispenser... but it wasn't just any tube. In shape, it resembled something - a large, erect penis, formed out of black plastic.

"No way!" John shouted to his unseen tormentor. "I'd rather starve!"

'Up to you, Johnny...' the voice said, undismayed. 'I guess you're not going to like the way out, then!' Looking further down, Johnny saw...

...the highest-heeled pair of women's shoes he'd ever seen. Made of bright-pink leather, the shoes had a complex series of straps to hold it to the feet, with little 'lock' connectors where they would join. The shoes boasted a two-inch white-plastic platform that sloped inwards at the bottom to a small little pad, and stiletto heels that had to be at least nine inches tall, maybe more.

"What is this?" John demanded. "Some sort of sick joke?"

The voice didn't answer, and John looked around, angrily. Shaking his head, he decided he wasn't going to play this perverted person's little 'game' - he was getting out of here, right now.

Angrily, he began to storm towards the door at the far end of the room...

...and the instant he stepped off the platform, he began to jerk and writhe, screaming in agony as the electric current flowing through the metal floor arced through his body, his hair standing on its end as he twitched and flopped around on the floor, agony searing through abused nerves.

It took an eternity for him to make his twitching, writhing muscles obey him, to fight through the agony and the overriding muscle twitches, and drag him back to the platform. As he pulled himself off the metal floor and lay in a puddle of sweat, pain still twitching through his abused nerves, the brassy voice laughed, and laughed, and laughed...

* * * * * DAY 4

Feeling weak, feverish, and light-headed, John stared up at the ceiling, where the lights glared mercilessly down at him.

With a moan, John rolled over on his side again, staring at the swirling patterns on the walls, letting them run through his mind as he tried to drift, using the soothing patterns to pull him into his one refuge - sleep.

But it was a refuge that he'd abused too much already. Each day, the lights dimmed to nearly nothing for exactly eight hours before flaring back to life, and that would have been a good sleep schedule - but John had been trying to sleep as much of the time as he could, and - despite being weak and dehydrated - he was all slept out. Worse - he was slept out without getting rest, because that brassy voice taunted him at random times, dragging him out of what sleep he did get, except during the eight hours of darkness when it was silent and still - too silent, too still, reinforcing his loneliness, his inactivity.

Groaning again, John more tumbled from the bed then rose from it, feeling shame flood through him as the weakness of dehydration forced him to crawl rather than walk across the platform to the food dispenser. Pushing it with one hand, he was 'rewarded' with yet another nutrition bar - Strawberry Shortcake, this time.

Unwrapping it, he stared at the pastry-like bar.. and knew he could not choke one more of them down. Though there seemed to be an endless variety of them, keeping him from becoming sick of the flavor, they all had similar, dry textures - and his mouth and throat were parched, his tongue thick and heavy in his mouth.

Almost against his will, he found himself look at the phallic drink dispenser.

"It.. it's not really a cock.." He mumbled to himself, renewing a debate he'd been having with himself for almost two days now. "It.. it's just to shame me. If.. if I don't drink, I'll die.. and then he'll win."

Slowly, painfully, John dragged himself up the wall. Gasping with weakness, he wrapped his hands around the phallic tube where it joined the wall.. then slowly, hating himself, he put his lips around as little of it as he could and still create a vacuum-seal. Then he began to suck...

...and a flood of warm, fresh water flooded into his mouth. It was probably just standard, everyday water - but nothing had tasted sweeter to him than that liquid filling his mouth, and he gulped at the mouthful he had, finding that his mouth and throat seemed to absorb the liquid before it could reach his dried stomach. He sucked hungrily, desperately at the 'cock' again, tears or relief streaming down his silky-smooth cheeks...

* * * * * DAY 7

Sitting on the bed, John slowly turned the shoes over in his hands, looking at them for the hundredth time.

'Oh, aren't they sooo sexy, Johnny?' The voice said, laughing. 'You just can't wait to strap those babies on, can you?'

John ignored the voice as best he could - when it was the only sound other than his own voice, it was almost tempting to listen to it, out of sheer boredom.

Despite the fact he'd been eating and drinking regularly and was feeling stronger, he still felt light-headed, mildly confused all the time. As best he could figure, it might be the first signs of 'cabin fever'

- he'd never been utterly alone for a week before, and had no idea how it would affect him.

It was all just another good reason to get out of here. It had taken him this long to realize that, taunting aside, the voice didn't want him to put on the shoes. No - the voice was relying on his own inhibitions and the fortified ideas from 'reverse psychology' in the taunting to keep him from doing something so 'humiliating'. The voice wanted Johnny to lose. To remain, trapped here until he died - despite having the means to escape at hand.

Well, Johnny was damned if he was going to let his unseen tormentor win. A careful examination had revealed that there was nothing else he could use to 'insulate' himself from the electrically charged floor - even the wrappings on the food-bars were a form of tinfoil. The bedding was attached to the frame of the bed, and the fabric was too tough to rip with his bare hands.

There was no other choice - if John wanted out, he'd have to wear the shoes.

There was more than one problem with them, though - but the one that bothered John the most was the design. A 'strappy' style of shoe, the shoe would fall off his feet unless the straps were connected

- and there was no release on the connector. Once strapped in place, they'd be stuck there until he could cut them off, and he didn't have the tools to do that. The straps were designed for his feet, with no 'excess' that he could tie together in a knot to hold them in place.

Grimacing, John lifted his right foot and held the platform, spike-heeled sole against his foot, finding the shoe to be on the small side - but only a little.

Putting his foot down, he began to buckle the straps together, hating himself...

'Hey.. what are you doing!' The brassy voice said, sounding alarmed. 'You're not really putting those on, Johnny... are you?'

Smiling slightly at the consternation in the amplified, distorted voice, John buckled first one shoe, then the other, into place, wincing slightly at the pressure from the too-tight footwear.

Carefully, he pushed himself off the bed, swaying as he struggled to remain upright...

...and promptly fell over.

The voice laughed.

'You'll never do it, Johnny!' It declared, laughing. 'Those are ten-inch heels and a quarter-inch platform where it actually touches the floor! You'll never be able to walk in them well enough to avoid falling - and just think what'll happen if you fall in the middle of the floor...!'

Grimacing, Johnny slowly pulled himself erect, hanging on to the bed... and began to practice.

* * * * * DAY 32

"Ha!" Johnny shouted up to ceiling. "See, you can't beat me! I'm gonna win!"

He sat on the bed, taunting his tormentor, who was silent. Shaking his head, Johnny tried to focus on what he was about to do - no easy task, all things considered.

As the month had rolled on, he'd found himself becoming more and more.. eccentric. More easily distracted, especially by the rolling, swirling patterns on the walls, almost hypnotic by their motions and shades. His mind wandered often, and it was harder and harder to recall details of a life that was only a month backwards in time - alone, trapped underground, time had seemed to lose all meaning, and he wasn't quite sure if his count of 'days', as determined by the light-cycle, was correct anymore.

It didn't matter, though. It might have taken him a month - more or less - to get to this point, but he was ready. He refused to surrender. He was going to get out - no matter what it took.

Pushing off the bed, he began to head for the door at the far end of the room, stepping off the platform with only the slightest hesitation.

Balanced atop the slender spike heels of the shoes that were now like second nature to him, Johnny began to walk towards the beckoning door, moving with the easy grace the eight hours of practice a day had given him. In fact, he thought he probably could have attempted escape earlier - but the thought of falling while in the middle of the room had haunted him, and he'd continued to drill himself to walk easily and confidently atop the slender heels and tiny sole of the shoes. Now, he had his stride down pat, and easy swaying walk that let him balance atop the high heels as if he was born wearing them, and even the pain of them cramping his feet was second nature, barely noticed.

When he'd started, his feet would ache, his legs would ache from the unaccustomed pattern of strain put on them - but wearing the shoes 24/7 had mean he'd been used to them, even for such things as bathroom runs in the middle of the night, which meant (with the eight hours of 'practice'), that he actually spent about twelve hours a standing or walking in the shoes. After all, the other hours he was awake, there was nothing to do, anyway - more then once, he'd spent time just pacing, for something to do.

All of it paid off as he moved across that electrified floor and to the door. Victory welled up inside him as he opened the door...

..and stepped into another chamber.

For a second, Johnny felt like crying. So intent had he been on getting through this door, he'd all-but- forgotten that that had been but the first chamber through which he'd have to pass.

Now, he looked around with dismay at what awaited him...

The chamber was smaller then the one he'd just exited. Aside from the door he'd just passed through, there was a bed, a bathroom, and a food and drink dispenser - though they were both slightly different.

What really caught his eye, though, was what lay at the other side of the room. The first item was a strange-looking machine, from which a garment hung.

Slowly, walking over to it, Johnny picked it up and turned it over in his hands - and found it to be a corset. A white leather-and-canvas corset that wasn't the 'decorative' type sold in most places, but a heavily 'boned' one - and the machine it had been hanging off of was an automatic lacing machine, designed to draw the corset as tight as possible.

The other item of interest was the framework to one side, which was positioned in front of a shape cut into the wall. On closer look, the shape was that of an exaggerated hour-glass figure, an image of somebody Johnny's height and built, but with a waist that, according to the measurement on the wall, was a mere fifteen inches...

'Like it, Johnny?' that brassy voice taunted. 'To ride the 'sled' through that opening, you'll have to fit the opening's size. Too 'thick', and the steel edges of that wall will cut you to ribbons...'

Tightening his lips and refusing to answer, Johnny walked over to the food and drink dispensers...

The drink dispenser was similar to the old one - but was covered with a soft layer of foam rubber, over the hard plastic. Still black and lacking detail, it felt more 'real' then the cold plastic one he'd started with - but he barely noticed as he took a long drink of the warm water it dispensed, already knowing what dehydration felt like, and eager to avoid it.

The food slot... lacked an activation button. The old one had dropped a food bar in the slot when the door was opened, but this one was empty and remained stubbornly so.

"Don't worry, Johnny - it does work..." his unseen tormentor laughed. 'However, it'll only respond to your voice when it sounds like this...'

There was a pause - and then a computer-generated voice that was obviously based on Johnny's real voice, but raised in pitch.

'Hi! I'm Joni Juggs!' The computer-simulated voice said, too brightly. 'Please give me what I really, really want!'

Johnny was horrified. "I can't sound like that!" He protested. "Even if I could, I wouldn't!"

'Your choice!' the voice said. 'The computer says that, with practice, you can match that falsetto soprano - and that voice, saying those words, are the only thing that'll get food from the dispenser.' The voice laughed. 'The good news is - the less you eat, the sooner you can get that corset down to fit through the gap...'

Johnny refused to answer the taunting. Taking a little more water, he ankled over to the bed and dropped down on it, trying - and failing - to ignore the swirling patterns on the LCD walls of this room.

Suddenly, a thought struck him, and he quickly rose from the bed and hurried to the door, which had swung shut on a simple sprig-mount system. He pulled the door open...

..and shivered as a wave of cold air washed through the opening.

'It's minus twenty in there, now...' The Voice laughed. '...and the food and drink dispensers are turned off. Feel free to go check for yourself, if you want.'

Shivering, Johnny slammed the insulated door, then headed back towards the bed. He needed to think...

...as well as he could, his head feeling as if it were stuffed full of cotton, that is.

* * * * * DAY 48

"Hi! I'm Joni Juggs! Please give me what I really, really want!"

There was a second's hesitation - then the machine spit out a food bar.

Eagerly, Johnny scooped up the wonderful little bar, unwrapped it, and gobbled it down, nearly moaning in pleasure.

He considered getting a seventh bar from the machine - but decided against it. Though it felt good to be eating solid food again, two weeks without food had shrunk his stomach and he couldn't eat that much - even though he wanted to.

Washing down the bar with a long, long drink from the dispenser, he ankled gracefully over to the lacing machine and backed into it, positioning himself correctly before hitting the button.

Of course, the painful tightening he went through every day was having it's effect, even if it seemed such a little one, each and every day, as it compressed his waist ever smaller. He was confused, dazed, light-headed - he wasn't sure whether he should feel proud or not when the machine's window displayed his new measurements. After all, this was his waist his was shrinking down to a minuscule diameter...

...which meant that he'd be able to escape this living hell, and beat his unseen tormentor at his own game.

Shaking his head, Johnny paused to check the read out - eighteen and one-quarter inches! - then walked over to the bed and sat down, facing the wall...

...which was no longer just a swirling pattern. Though there seemed to be a swirling under-tone of static or something, the display now showed TV shows, with the commercials removed. The sound came through the same hidden speakers as the brassy, taunting voice.

The shows were usually soap operas, with the occasional movie thrown in, mostly low-brow comedies that were brainless and mostly jokes about sex - but it was a welcome diversion, none the less.

Crossing his legs, Johnny tried to get comfortable as he let himself get into the show that was playing....

* * * * * DAY 69

Johnny glanced at the glowing red LED display on the lacing machine out of habit, the glowing, floating numerals barely more then pretty lights in his now-constant confused state. Thoughts seemed to slide in and out of his head with little lasting impact, his attention span down to keeping track of the characters on the TV shows he watched.

Swaying atop the extreme heels on the shoes without consciously aware of the motion any long, Johnny walked over to the dispenser. No shame reached his emotions as he used the correct pitch without any conscious thought at all, bringing forth yet another food bar.

He ate it quickly, washing it down with some more warm water from the spigot/dildo attached to the wall, then started back to the bed to watch some more TV...

...and his brain finally made the connection.

Eyes widening in shock, Johnny gasped - the hurried back to the lacing machine to stare at the still- glowing numerals.

"Oh, boy!" He chirped, in the high-pitched voice he used instinctively now. "I did it! I can get out of here!"

Hurriedly, he ankled his way over to the device that was covered in a light coating of dust - the 'sled' that would convey him out of this cell.

It's design was pretty simple, but it still took Johnny a long time to get strapped into it. Several times, he forgot what he was doing, his mind loosing focus to the point that he'd begun unstrapping himself again so he could watch his shows... then memory had 'clicked', and he'd returned to the task at hand. Finally, though, he was fully in place in the framework of the straps, locked down so securely that he couldn't move so much as a millimeter in any direction.

Which was a good thing - because a few minutes after being fully strapped into the frame, the sled began to move, gliding forward on the tracks imbedded in the person-shaped hole in the wall that matched the person-shaped sled that perfectly fit his new figure. He held his breath as it glided into the opening, feeling the smooth, slick metal actually lightly touching his body, so tight was the fit.

The ride seemed to take an eternity, and eternity during which he was afraid to breath, in case it would exceed the extremely tight tolerances of the opening...

...and then the sled once more entered the light, reaching the end of the fairly short tunnel and setting him free. As the straps fell away, Johnny stepped casually off the frame and into the new cell, unaware of the easy grace with which he moved, or the way his leg-muscles had been smoothly re- shaped by constant use of the extremely high heels... just as he was unaware of certain other things that should have been worrying him. With his 'cabin fever' limiting his concentration and attention, he wasn't emotionally capable of dealing with the impact of certain facts - like the fact that his cock had shrunk considerably during the past two months, or that he never got an erection anymore, voluntary or otherwise. Likewise, the fact that his nipples seemed swollen and sensitive didn't really bother him

- indeed, he wasn't even consciously aware of the fact, his shortened attention denying him the opportunity of remembering exactly the way his body had been before this had all began. Indeed, in his swirling, confused mind, his life outside the cells seemed like a dream, half faded in the mists of memory, weak and unengaging.

'Well - so you managed to get your waist small enough to fit through the slot, Joni.' The brassy voice said, dissatisfaction evident even in the distorted tones. 'So what? You've still got a long way to go to get out of here, and you'll never get through all of them. I'm still going to win.'

Johnny's mind might be confused and whirling - but one thing that still stood bedrock-firm was the thought that he was going to get out of here.

"Just try and stop me..." Johnny said, his habitual chirping soprano ill-suited to supporting the uncharacteristically firm tone he used. "What's the game in this room?"

The amplified voice laughed. 'Take a good look around, Joni. I'm not making it easy for you anymore. You got to figure it out for yourself.'

Frowning, Johnny looked around then new cell. It was, once again, a pretty plain-looking room, with a food-slot and a water dispenser.

He didn't consciously register the fact that the dispenser was a little more detailed, with ridges simulating veins in the plastic below the layer of the padding.

He did notice, however, the make-up table in the corner, fully stocked with a variety of make-up. Mounted around the outside of the mirror were a half-dozen computer images of his face, surrounded by the longer, thicker mane of hair that his head now sported after two moths of unimpeded growth.

However, the images had been computer modified - to show them fully made up, with lipstick, blush, and all the rest of it, perfectly done.

Frowning, Johnny looked at the six computer images, then looked around for a clue how this was to work - not an easy thing to do with a clouded, befuddled mind. However, he finally managed to make the connection between the images and the plexi-glass plate set into the wall next to the door.

Mounted behind it was a camera, and beside it there was a row of eight buttons and a digital display. The buttons were numbered from one to six, and the a red and green button bore, respectively, 'stop' and 'start'. When 'Start' was pressed, the digital display showed a thirty-minute countdown. Pressing any of the numbered buttons during that countdown caused a loud, dissatisfied-sounding buzzer to sound... and the count-down reset, only this time it would start at twenty-nine minutes... then twenty- eight...

Johnny stopped at that point, making the connection. The system was set up to unlock the door only if he got the six make-up schemes on his face within the time allotted. If he screwed up any of the schemes badly enough that the computer rejected it, then the next time he tried there would be one less minute to work with.

Screw up enough times, and he just wouldn't have enough time to change his 'face' six times, no matter how perfect each one was.

Right then and there, Johnny decided to show his unseen tormentor something. He wasn't even going to try the door lock until he was positive he could get the make-up done correctly...

* * * * * DAY 112

With a muffled 'ca-chunk', the locks on the door released.

"Yippee!" Johnny squealed, bouncing cheerfully atop his heels, much the way a lot of the woman that had been on the TV recently seemed to be doing. The soaps had slowly filtered out to be replaced with very sophomoric movies, featuring many buxom blondes, and Johnny didn't even realize he'd picked up a lot of the mannerisms of the women on screen as he practiced getting the make-up perfect.

He even walked with a similar sort of bouncy, swaying stride as he walked through the just-opened door.. and into the next cell in line. He barely noticed as the door swung shut behind him, locking in place - he was too busy looking around the new room, searching for whatever task had to be completed to get out of this new room. As he looked around, he thoughtfully tapped one hand against his gloss-pink lips... and used the other to idly massage the small, somewhat conical mound of flesh that had formed beneath his perpetually swollen, sensitive nipples, a habit he'd picked up somewhere that he found oddly comfortable.

It wasn't too hard to figure out what the necessary task to escape this room was, for all the taunting of the brassy voice. After all, there was the wardrobe full of a range of clothing, and the scanner beside the door - and the dozen pictures mounted beside a full-length mirror, each computer-altered photo showing him in a different outfit, with matching make-up.

Sighing, Johnny grabbed a quick bite to eat, then blinked at the sight of two liquid dispensers, one on either side of the food dispenser, both of them a dark, artificial red in color and covered with realistically shaped 'veins' and tipped with a realistically formed 'head'.

The one on the right gave off the same warm water as always... but the one on the left gave out a warm, somewhat salty liquid that was thicker than water. It wasn't exactly anything special... but after eating those damned nutritional bars for so long, the new and different flavor tasted like ambrosia in Johnny's mouth.

He took several long drinks from the new dispenser, washing the slightly salty liquid down with water, before heading off to bed. Morning would be good enough to start the new task... after he watched a show or two, perhaps.

* * * * * DAY 146

With the same muffled sound of locks releasing that the last door had given off, the door to this cell swung open, and Johnny swayed through.

His face was carefully made up, surrounded by a wealth of dark hair that kept falling in front of his mascara and eye-shadow rimmed eyes. With a sigh, he flipped it out of the way, not even noticing that he used the same gesture as the women on TV to do so. His body was clad in a short, pleated white skirt and a tight, powder-blue short-sleeve sweater with a mock turtle-neck. Of course, under the ensemble was the corset, and he wore the shoes... but he was also wearing a pair of frilly powder-blue panties and a matching training bra, since the scanner seemed to incorporate a fluoroscope that could tell what he was wearing beneath the outer layer of clothing.

Yet again, it wasn't too hard to figure the trick to getting through this door.

"Well, duh - it's, like, so obvious..." Johnny said, unaware he was speaking out loud, and not even hearing the ridiculously high-pitched, slightly lisping voice he'd come to regard as his own, the one he'd originally used lost in the mist that seemed to fill his brain these days. With a roll of his eyes, he surveyed the easy-to-figure-out system necessary to open the door to this cell.

The room was filled with hair-styling equipment. Scissors, dyes, and all the rest - and, mounted above a large mirror, was yet another computer-edited photo of Johnny. This one showed him dressed in a certain outfit, his face fully made up - and his head surrounded by a curly mane of brassy blonde hair.

Sighing, Johnny decided to get something to drink before starting 'practicing'. Walking over to the two liquid dispensers on the wall on either side of the slot, she eyed the two pink dispensers with their realistic shapes... and then knelt in front of the one on the right, wrapping her lips around it and sucking on it for some of the tasty, salty liquid...

...but nothing came out. Frowning, she sucked harder on it, grabbing it in frustration... and was surprised to feel the softer rubber coating move over the harder plastic, something that had never happened before. Underneath, she felt several small differences in the plastic, seeming to indicate that there might be a switch under there somewhere.

Still sucking, she began moving her hand up and down the shaft, searching for the button... and was at last rewarded with a flow of warm, salty substance. It was even thicker and saltier than the last room's supply... and she found that she enjoyed it better that way. It was much nicer - though there wasn't nearly enough of it.

Sighing, she requested a food bar from the voice activated machine, washing it down with a drink of water from the equally difficult water dispenser, then went over to the styling section to begin practicing on her hair.

She wasn't even aware of the fact she was humming to herself as she worked...

* * * * * DAY 166

The door swung open, revealing Joni, made up and dressed exactly as the picture hanging on the wall. A tight black leather skirt encircled his hips, and a white spandex crop-top covered the A-cup bra beneath. His carefully made-up face was surrounded by a wealth of golden curls as he stepped through the door, balanced atop the extreme heels he didn't even notice anymore...

As the door swung shut unnoticed behind him, Joni stared in amazement at the new room he found himself in - because he'd never seen one like this yet.

First of all, it was larger than any of the previous cells. However, that wasn't nearly as amazing as the fact that there wasn't one other door, but three - one on each wall of the room.

More than that... the layout of the new room was completely different than any of the other ones. It wasn't as 'featureless' as the other cells had been. Instead, it had been done up to look like a cul-de-sac street. The door behind him merged into a wall that was ornately 'decorated'. Like the backing of Letterman's Late Show set, the wall at the back of the 'alley' had tiny models and painted backdrop so as to appear as if it was the 'open' end of the alleyway.

At the 'end' of the alley was a night-club entrance, right down to the neon sign above, and a banner advertising that it was 'Ladies Night'.

On the right was a door, beside which was a sign that read:

KUT-RITE DISCOUNT PLASTIC SURGERY KLINIK

Beauty on a Budget

No Appointment Necessary Easy Payment Services Available

It took Joni nearly ten minutes to figure out the sign, brow furrowed in concentration as he carefully sounded out the words.

On the other side of the 'alley' was the entrance to a 'building' labeled as The Broken Arms Hotel, with a small sign indicating 'Weekly & Monthly Rates Available'.

The 'Sky' was hidden by an elevated train platform whose stairs were part of the back-drop behind Joni.

It wasn't exactly the most realistic looking representation - about as good as a set in a play, say. However, with Joni's constantly more confused thoughts and trouble thinking, he nearly believed he was outside for the first few seconds.

Shaking his head, he looked carefully around, a rather vapid-looking frown forming on his features as he tried to figure out what he was supposed to do, and how he was supposed to get out of this one. It was harder and harder for him to think anymore, so he focused what brain-power he had left on the quest that had obsessed him for the past five and a half months - escaping this 'game'.

Finally, hesitantly, Joni swayed forward, walking to the end of the 'alley' to try the doors of the 'Night Club'.

It swung open... and Joni gasped and fell back as he encountered the first person he'd seen since his imprisonment in this twisted maze.

It was a tall, broad-shouldered and massively muscled man with swarthy skin, a much-broken nose, and a shaven head. He glared at Joni with dark eyes so intense that Joni took a step back, afraid he was about to be beaten to a pulp.

"What the fuck do you want?" the man growled in a voice every bit as threatening as his appearance. "Uh... to get in...?" Joni ventured.

The man snorted. "hell no - this is a class joint, bitch, and you're too damned ugly and flat-chested. This is your first warning, bitch. I'll give you one more warning if you try coming in again - but the third time, I'll beat the crap outta ya and put you in traction for a year. Now get the fuck outta my face!"

He slammed the door, and Joni recoiled, heart pounding from the near-violence as he tried to work out how he was supposed to get past the barrier...

'Ugly and flat-chested...' Joni muttered to himself in his high-pitched soprano, gently rubbing his small, firm mounds through the top he wore, thoughtfully.

Turning, he made his way to the Kut-Rite Klinik. He pulled open the door, elated as it opened under his now long-nailed hands...

..and found himself in a reception room, dominated by a huge, sandy-blond man with muscles equal to the night-club bouncer's, dressed in white, medical-looking clothing.

"Yeah?" He asked, politely enough, easing some of Joni's fears.

"Uh I wanted to ask about, like, plastic surgery?" Joni asked, frowning in concentration as he struggled to keep his vague, slippery mind focused on this important task. "Uh, like, the guy at the end of the street said I can't go in the club 'cause I'm too ugly and flat chested, like, you know?"

"Well, I'm sure we can help you, Miss ?" HE trailed off expectantly, then simply waited the several minutes it took Joni to get the hint.

"Oh! My name!" Joni said, making the connection. "It's... Uh, it's "

He frowned. He should know his own name, shouldn't he? Then, like a light dawning, it came back to him, and he giggled over the fact he'd actually forgotten it for a moment.

"Hi! My name's Joni Juggs!" He introduced himself.

"Nice to meet you, Miss Juggs." The man said, politely. "Now - facial surgery is one hundred dollars, and so is each cup size of breast enlargement."

Joni's smile turned into a sullen pout. "oh, Geez - I don't have no money, you know. How much did you say I needed?"

The man sighed. "Well, a hundred for your face, and, say, a total of three hundred for your chest - so, four hundred dollars, altogether."

"Oh..." Joni said, still pouting. "Couldn't you do me a favor and do it for free...?" The man's polite smile vanished, and he rose from behind his desk, bellowing.

"Get out of here you dumb bitch, and don't come back until you have some goddamn money!"

Scared, Joni spun and dashed from the room, running across the 'alley' and into the lobby of the hotel, heart pounding.

The man in the lobby of the hotel was short, pudgy and balding, with a big cigar clamped between his teeth. He was also dirty and smelly, dressed in rumpled suit pants and a once-white undershirt now a dingy gray and marked with stains.

"Hey, there, Miss." He said in a friendly tone. "Howya doin'? Need a room?"

To Joni, the guy didn't look like a slob - he looked heavenly, the first guy who didn't look ready to pound him into a puddle. However, his question caught Joni off guard and made him think.

"Oh, gee - like, yeah, I do!" Joni said in startled realization. Unlike the other rooms, there was no bed, at least none he'd seen - and no bathroom, and no food or liquid dispensers.

"Fine, fine - always glad to have a beautiful, sexy woman stay with me." The guy said with a grin, and for some reason it made Joni feel very good to hear that all the hard work learning how to dress and do his make-up and hair was appreciated. Then she felt a sharp pang of pain as he continued talking: "...even if you are a little flat-chested for my taste."

Unconsciously, Joni whimpered.

"No matter." The chubby guy said, grandly. "So, how much money you looking to spend?" "Money?" Joni said, startled... and then, helplessly, found himself crying, unable to stop as he spoke rapidly through his sobs. "I haven't got no money and the guy across the street yelled at me because I don't and I just went in 'cause the other guy said I was too ugly and flat-chested too and all I want to do is get outta here and I can't go unless I can go through the doors, except my tits are too small and I don't have any money and..."

"Whoa, whoa!" the pudgy guy said, holding up his hands. "Don't cry, miss! I can help you!" Joni looked at him shyly. "You can?"

"Sure!" the guy said, grinning. "I need a maid here, anyway. Tell you what, I'll pay you twenty bucks a week, plus room and board."

Joni frowned. The words sounded familiar, but he couldn't quite... "Room and board?" "A place to stay, and food and drinks." The guy said.

"Gee!" Joni said, smiling brightly. "That, and money too? That'd be great!"

"Good." The guy said. "But you gotta promise that you'll wear the uniform, and do your hair and make-up every single day. If you're gonna work for me, you gotta look your best - or I'll fire you, and you won't have no place to stay and nothin' to eat and no money. Okay?"

"Okay!" Joni agreed, eagerly.

"Well, then you're hired." The guy said. "My name's Bob. What's yours?" "Hi!" He said, brightly, happy to have found work. "My name's Joni Juggs!"

* * * * * DAY 236

Her pay clenched in her hands, Joni swayed across the street.

The past ten weeks had seemed to drag on - but for all that, she'd been relatively content. Part of it was being with people again. Not only was there Bob to talk to, but also Alice, the other hotel employee. A cute blonde, Alice was the cook who worked in the basement, and she'd befriended Joni, glad to have another girl on staff to chat with.

For some reason, that had bothered Joni... but she'd gotten over it quickly, since she couldn't quite remember why it would bother her. After all, she had a hell of a lot more in common with Alice than with Bob, so it was only natural, right?

Also, she got a great new outfit to wear. It turned out Alice had magnetic keys to take off Joni's shoes and corset. It had seemed wonderful at the time - but as soon as they'd been removed, Joni had found it problematically. The corset was a take-it-or-leave-it sort of thing, even though she felt half-naked without it... but her feet really, really hurt when she tried to walk without shoes.

It was okay, though. The shoes with her new maid's uniform had heels almost as high and thin, and she could take them off when she didn't need them on to walk - which was great, because she could wear the black nylon stockings that went with the uniform. She'd been a little hesitant to wear them, at first, but both Alice and Bob told her how sexy her legs were in nylons. That had worried her a bit, too, until Alice pointed out that sexy legs were better than unsexy ones, which only made sense, right?

With the clack shoes and nylons, there was also a tiny, fluffy black skirt and a tight black silk blouse, plus a white, frilly little apron and a matching cap-thingee that went in her hair. Both Alice and Bob said she looked really, really good in the outfit, which made Joni feel all warm and tingly inside.

Best of all - she'd got paid! Though it would make her sad to leave her new friends, the most important thing in her whole life was getting out of this 'maze'... though she was kinda vague on why it was so important to her. It was really, really hard for her to remember what life was like before she came here - but she knew that getting out was the one constant in her life, the one thing she remembered perfectly well from the entire time in her.

Now she had some money, too, so she could pay and go! She walked into the Klink with a big grin on her gloss-pink lips.

"Hey!" the muscular guy behind the counter said, angrily. "I told you...!"

"I've got money!" Joni announced quickly, grinning happily as she put the bills down on the desk. "See? Now I can get bigger tits and be made pretty. Alice and Bob say that I'll look really good with bigger tits. All the time they tell me how good it is that they won't let me in the club 'cause my tits are too small. Bob and Alice say that 'bigger is better', and I'm lucky to be getting big tits! Alice is a double-D cup, and she's so happy with her tits. That's what I want - nice be double - or maybe triple - D tits, so I can feel all good about them, like Alice."

The guy was counting through the money - and now he looked up, no longer angry.

"Well, you've got some money here - two hundred dollars, Joni." He told her. "But, to do your face and tits would take at least four hundred. You've only got half of what you need."

"Half?" Joni said, upset. Her own tits had been growing a bit, and now she was wearing bras that said 'B' cup on them... but it would take forever for them to get big enough on their own, even if she did her face and got little tit-bigger things. But... it seemed to be taking forever to get money, too. "Can't you do it for half price, please...?" She begged the guy, pouting.

He looked thoughtful. "Well, we do have a special... but you don't want that." "Why?" Joni asked.

"Well, it does your face... but it also gives you a cunt, makes your hips and ass bigger, and gives you really, really big tits. See, we've got these stuff that are so outrageous that nobody wants them, so we're trying to get rid of them that's why it's so cheap."

Joni frowned in thought - thinking made her head hurt, and always took so long. "But, for two hundred I'd get a pretty face, and bigger tits?"

"Yup - and more."

Joni didn't care about anything else - it was being pretty and bigger-titted that mattered. "okay - I'll take it!"

"Well... if you're sure..." HE said, putting the money somewhere and leading her through the door at the back of the room. He walked her over to a wall.. and she giggled.

"Your wall has tits!" She giggled. Indeed, it did - mounted on the wall was pairs of tits, going from real little ones up to real big ones.

"These are the implant sizes we have, to show you what's available. However, the special means you can only choose some of these..." He gestured at some of the tits, all of which were bigger than Alice's tits, and rounder, too. In fact, they were even bigger and rounder than the ones on the girls from the movies. Joni remembered how the guys in the movies always got excited by women, and the bigger and rounder a girl's tits were, the more excited they got...

"These ones!" Joni said, pointing to the ones all the way at the end. "Are you sure...?"

Joni paused, something seeming very wrong about it. Sure, they were really big and all, but for some reason something about them bothered her... then she shook the feeling off. "Bigger is better!" She said, happily. "I want these ones!" "Okay..." the guy said. "Just follow me...!"

Grinning and giggling, Joni followed him through the doors marked 'Surgery'...

* * * * * DAY 308

Joni Juggs awoke feeling supremely happy. For a minute, she just lay in her bed, not sure why - then she remembered.

She was all healed from her surgery. It was finally time for her to go through the next set of doors - and that was the most important thing in her life, getting out of here, so of course she felt wonderful.

With a squeal of delight, Joni got out of bed, delighting in the feel of her gorgeous, huge bobbies moving with her motion. She knew they were wonderful because everybody told her so, and 'bigger was better' - and hers were really, really big. It was so nice to have big, round boobies, the kind men got all funny over. Alice agreed with Joni about how great big titties could be - and how nice a 'pussy' could be. For some reason, Joni had found herself crying when she'd found out that little, limp piece of her had been taken away... until Alice had told her how wonderful it was to have a pussy. It was even better than having a cock, the things Alice said guys had... and Alice said the thing Joni used to have looked a little bit like a really small cock, but it couldn't have been, because it didn't get all nice and hard like the man-thing Alice talked about... did it? Joni couldn't seem to remember. Anyway, it didn't matter, because Alice said that really good cock were like tits, 'the bigger the better', and that thing Joni used to have had been really small and limp and useless, so it was better to have a really nice pussy like the one the doctor had given her.

Happy, Joni went to her closet and got the nice 'going away' present Bob and Alice had got for her - some new clothes that fit her new figure, which was good, 'cause none of her old stuff came even close.

She started with a pair of panties. Bright red, lacy and very, very small, they barely covered the nice new cunt she'd gotten - and slid up between her really firm, full new ass cheeks she'd gotten, with barely a string sitting over the really wide hips that she'd gotten now. It was okay, though - Alice told her that the better you looked, the less you wore, and everybody said that Joni was the sexiest, so she had to wear the least> it was only fair, Joni guessed - since she looked so sexy, she had to show it off so the guys could enjoy looking at her, just like in the movies.

Along with the panties she had a bra - a really, really big one, red and lacy too. It really didn't do much to hold her tits up, but that was okay - her tits were so big and firm they didn't need much help. The half-cup bandeau bra was just for looks, anyway. With a big grin, Joni pulled it in place around her huge new tits, which wasn't easy since each one was bigger than a basketball, and really big and round and firm. They were perfect, and Joni just loved her big, round tits - and they felt so good to play with, too, even though they'd hurt an awful lot when she'd first gotten them. Now they just felt really, really good.

Next, Joni pulled on the black nylons they'd gotten for her, thinking how much better they made her legs look - and her legs looked a lot better even bare, thanks to the stuff the doctor had done to them. The doc had also done something to her feet, so that she now wore a much smaller shoe, though they were just as high heeled - which was good, because everybody told her how sexy she walked in them, and that was a really good thing.

Next, Joni pulled on a red leather skirt over her wide, full hips and really great ass, tightening it with a white leather belt around her really, really small waist. A black spandex 'T-shirt' with a really low neck went on up top, showing off a lot of the great tits she had.

Then she went to work putting on her make-up, loving the way the lipstick felt as she put it on the really, really full, pouting lips the doctor had given her. He'd also made her nose a lot smaller, and done something to her eyes that made them look a lot bigger, all nice and soft and sexy, he said. Nobody would be able to resist her big, brown 'doe eyes' Alice said, and that sounded like a good thing.

Brushing out her long, golden hair, Joni finished up by putting on some of the jewelry they'd got for her, then headed downstairs. She hugged Bob and Alice good-bye, loving the way it felt to push her tits up against both of them, then she headed out onto the street and walked to the doors of the night- club, loving the way her huge new tits swayed and bounced with every step she took.

The big guy at the door smiled when he saw her, swinging the door wide open. As Alice had told her to do, Joni took a second to stare at the guy's crotch, then smile brightly at him. Alice said it was very important to do that, so she did.

"Well, now - why don't you come right in..." The bouncer said, and Joni grinned even wider - Alice was right. It worked real good.

"Like, thanks... Stud." Joni said, like Alice told her.

"No prob..." the bouncer said, grinning, as he led her inside.

The 'club' was small, dark and empty - but Joni wasn't really worried about the club itself, as it was only a means to an end. As confused as her thoughts had become over the months, she still knew that her ultimate goal was to get out of this 'maze', to win the game - and so this was only an 'in between' spot, and anything that happened in it (like getting huge, firm tits or a nice new cunt) were only secondary concerns, something she needed to do in order to achieve her final goal.

She followed the bouncer into the small, dark room - and another man stepped out of a door marked 'Office'.

"Who do we have here...?" the man, who was a rangy, raw-boned man, asked. For some reason, he looked vaguely familiar to Joni, but she couldn't quite make the connection that would explain why.

"She wanted in, Mr. Lockhart." The bouncer explained, with an ashamed look. "I know we aren't open, but... well.. she kinda, uh... 'persuaded' me..."

"Really?" The man asked, raising an eyebrow. "Well... What is it you want, Miss?"

Joni grinned and pointed to the door at the back end of the club, the one marked 'Exit'. "I wanna go out there."

The guy who the bouncer had called Mr. Lockhart frowned. "Well... I don't normally allow people to use my back door..."

Alice had explained to Joni how to handle this. Apparently, there was a way to get guys - and sometimes women, though that was more difficult, according to Alice - to change their minds.

"Well.. I'd really appreciate it..." Joni said... and her eyes not only locked onto his crotch, but she stepped forward and let an arm trace down his chest, while pulling her chest back to make her chest even more prominent.

"Oh, really...?" Lockhart said, in an odd tone of voice. "You'd really appreciate it.. how much?"

Joni knew how to answer that, thanks to Alice. "How much would you like me to appreciate it?" She asked, lightly running her fingers over the taut material staring over her wonderfully huge new tits.

Lockhart grinned. "Well.. why don't you start with Brad her. I'm sure he'd love a blow job..."

"Okay!" Joni said, brightly - Alice had explained about this, and it didn't sound like any big deal. With a big grin, she turned to face the guy Lockhart had called Brad. "Wanna play with my tits first, or anything? You know, uh.. whatchamacallit..." She frowned for a second, then remembered what Alice had called it. "Four-play?"

"Well, sure..." brad said. Stepping forward, he gripped her - and pushed his face towards hers.

She almost recoiled.. then remembered, and let her lips open and her tongue slip between Brad's lips. She didn't remember if she'd known about 'kissing' before this whole thing had started, and part of her seemed upset that she'd do it - but as soon as she'd started, she found it felt really good, and so she didn't have to work hard at all to respond to what brad was doing, letting her tongue play in Brad's mouth as his hands removed her T-shirt and played with her huge tits, which Alice was right about - it felt really, rally good.

Then, finally, he broke the kiss - even though she wouldn't have minded doing it for a little longer. Anyway, Alice had explained to her what to do, so she did it - smiling at Brad, she slowly sank to her knees and reached out to unzip his fly. Sliding his underwear down revealed that he did indeed have a cock - and it seemed big enough, at lest the size of the liquid-spouts that it so resembled. Since Alice had explained it to her, it was easy for Joni to pretend that the thing near her face was one of those dispensers, and she let her full, soft lips envelop it.

As she did so, she felt Lockhart pulling her ass upwards, so that she was standing bent over. She felt a moment of fear - then remembered something else Alice had talked about, and the fact that he was pulling down her skirt and panties seemed to confirm it.

Yup - there his cock was sliding into her cunt - and Alice was right, it did feel good...

With the big cock pushing in and out of her new cunt, creating wonderful new sensations, it was hard to concentrate on the big, hard cock in her mouth - but she struggled to do so, anyway, even as moans of pleasure built in her throat.

Then the two men seemed to stiffen at the same time - even as she felt the most powerful shudder of pleasure yet thunder through her body> even as she shook in the grip of the pleasure, she felt Lockhart dumping some stuff Alice called 'cum' into her cunt.. while Brad 'cummed' in her mouth.. and her eyes opened wider in amazement as the wonderful taste registered. Eagerly, she gulped down the wonderful flavor of his 'cum'.

"gee...!" She said, straightening. "that was great, uh.. sex..?"

"that's right - sex..." Lockhart provided as everybody re-arranged their clothing. "Did you enjoy it. Joni?"

"Oh, yes!" Joni said, brightly. "I'd love to id it again right now, but Alice said it took guys awhile to get ready for it again."

"That's right." Lockhart said. "But what if I told you I knew a place where you could not only have lots and lots of sex, but guys would pay you for it - and that if you say 'yes', I can take you outside, and you'll win the game..."

"really?" Joni squealed. "that'd be great!"

"Okay, then. Follow me..." Lockhart said. Opening the door marked 'Office', he lead her inside - then to a door at the back of the small room.

When that door was opened, it revealed a bright light that made join's eyes squint. It took her a second to realize what she was seeing... outside. Step through that door and she'd win. So, she did... and felt a wonderful surge of victory as she finally beat the game. She was outside. She'd won...

...and she had no idea what to do now. Her old life was barely remembered in the foggy mist that had enclosed her mind. She couldn't recall anything before ethos 'game', and little of what had happen during it...

...but Lockhart had already told her he had somewhere she could go, and where she could get lots of these wonderful 'sex' thing.

"Just get in the car..." Lockhart said, pointing to a big black limousine parked down the hill. "I'll be right with you, the we'll go to this place where you can have sex..."

"OH, goody!" Joni squealed, delighted, as she hurried down the hill towards the car...

* * * * *

Marcus Lockhart watched the huge-breasted, slim-wasted, cum-crazed nymphomaniac he'd turned John into run it the car, and smiled.

He turned back towards Brad, who stood in the unmakes steel-clad dowdy set into the side of the mountain where the old nine was located, now owned by Lockhart Industries.

"Well.. I'd say that went well.." Marcus said, blandly. "using an old acquaintance I had something against made for a safe test-case. How are the follow-up 'super-sluts' coming?"

Brad grinned. "We've got one in room three, and we're just starting one in room one."

"great, great.." brad said, heading towards the car. "Step up the [preparation of the facilities in Utah, Arizona and Nevada - I want full productivity in six months. We'll make a fortune off women who'll do whatever we tell them to do, eagerly and happily.'

"yessir...!" Brad said, all-but saluting, as he pulled the door shut...

* * * * * DAY 1

'Wake up, Danny! Time to wake up!'

Dan groaned, the amplified voice cutting through the peaceful oblivion of sleep and reverberating around inside his aching head, triggering echoes in pain from the obviously drugged beer that the black-clad men had bought for him at the bar...

THE END

 BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: After gettng stabbed, a gangster staggers down an alley and finds himself falling into an establishment where he is transformed into a stunning babe.

The Getaway

By Gunslinger

Ron gasped as Snake, true to his nick-name, uncoiled like a striking Viper, burying all eight inches of the steel K-bar knife deep into the lanky red-head's side.

Ron, not expecting the thrust, clenched his teeth in pain as the force of the thrust threw him backwards across the cat-walk high in the chemical factory's dark-shrouded interior.

Snake smiled wickedly at the shocked look on Ron's face. The muscular, dark-haired man savored Ron's shock and surprise as his bright-red arterial life's blood created a spreading stain on Ron's shirt.

"Sorry, Ronny boy, but you've outlived your usefulness." Snake said with a tight grin. Jerking his head, he told his companion, a massively muscled, bald-headed man with ebony skin, "Go ahead, Bulldog - finish him off."

The massively muscled man flexed his huge biceps and approached Ron, whose mind was still trying to cope with the fact that the man he'd been carrying money for was having him killed.

His temporary confusion cost him. Bulldog reached one powerful hand out and viciously squeezed the wound, causing stars to explode in Ron's vision.

Easily, the powerful black man lifted Ron off the catwalk and turned to throw him to the factory floor, two stories below. Pivoting on one heel, the man thrust outwards, propelling Ron over the railing...

At the last instant, Ron whipped out with one hand and grabbed the other handle of the gym bag containing the three hundred thousand dollars he'd just delivered. As his momentum carried him over the railing, he was secure in the knowledge that Snake wouldn't let go of the other handle, and let Ron plummet to his death.

He was half-right. Snake would never intentionally let go - but, surprised by Ron's lightning quick grasp, Snake was unprepared, and before he could tighten his grip, the bag was yanked from his hand.

All three players screamed the same word at the same time as realization hit. "No!"

Then Ron, grasping the bag of money, plummeted down...

...into a vat of liquid. The chemical-smelling, warm liquid enveloped him, breaking his fall and saving his life - for now.

Spluttering, Ron surfaced and stared up at where Snake and Bulldog were gaping at him. Heaving himself over the side of the tank, knowing that they couldn't get down here in time, Ron took a second to turn and add insult to injury, despite the throbbing pain of the potentially fatal wound in his side. He just had to get in the last word.

"A pleasure doing business with you!" Ron called, forcing maniacal good cheer in his voice. Then, half running, half limping, he fled the factory, dripping wet with the unknown chemical soup.

Ten blocks later, he ducked down a dark alley, breathing heavily. The wound in his side was bleeding heavily, and his vision was fading in and out. He needed to find a place to hole up.

Staggering down the alley, he found a door marked "Ladies Only Fitness - Delivery Entrance."

Looking around to make sure that Snake and Bulldog hadn't caught up, Ron reached into his sodden clothing and extracted his lock-pick. Seconds later, the door sighed softly shut behind him.

Staggering through the darkened gym, Ron at last found the locker room. Staggering inside, he dropped the thankfully water-tight gym bag on the floor and painfully stripped off his soaking clothes. Staggering into the showers, he turned on the tap...

...and nothing happened. The water was shut off somewhere.

"Shit..." Ron murmured. Turning, he left the shower, the air cool on his naked, damp body.

He really needed to find something to stop the blood flow - but he felt so weak, so tired. Sagging to sit on one of the benches, he decided to rest for a second and regain his strength.

Just rest for a second.... Not even laying down, like he was doing now... and he certainly wouldn't close his eyes, like this... Seconds later, Ron was enveloped in the darkness.

* * * * *

Darkness slowly parted as Ron struggled towards consciousness. Sensations flooded to his groggy mind - the hard bench beneath his back, the dull ache in his lower back from the night spent on the hard surface, the strange, heavy feeling on his chest, the cool tile against his left foot - all these things and more impacted on Ron's mind.

But amazingly, it was what he didn't feel that had the biggest impression. He felt no pain from his side. The dull aching throb or the sharp, piercing pain he'd expected to feel when he awoke - if he awoke - was missing. Despite the multiplicity of odd sensations that informed him that there was something wrong with his body, not one of them, aside from the lower back, could be even vaguely described as 'pain'.

Slowly, Ron opened his eyes and stared blankly up at the acoustic tiling of the ceiling, waiting for the bolt of pain he should feel. When it simply refused to materialize, Ron slowly rose to a sitting position, pushing against the strange weight on his chest, and looked down to where the wound was - or should be.

For a few seconds, he simply stared down. What he saw was so radically different from what he'd expected - what he should be seeing - that for those long seconds his mind simply refused to process what he was seeing.

He couldn't see the area that he was stabbed in - because there was a pair of immense, firm, swarthy breasts in the way. Firm, proud, and tipped by large, dusky nipples, the mounds were a creamy chocolate color, with smooth, immaculate skin. In fact, the same silky texture and mocha-color as the curvaceous, feminine legs that lay across the bench, one hanging off the side so that the dainty foot rested upon the cool tile floor.

Then it registered.

""Holy fuckin' shit!" Ron yelled - and was shocked to hear it emerge in a smoky, vibrato contralto. Startled, he involuntarily jerked - and tumbled off the bench, to land on a posterior that felt considerably more padded than it had been last night.

Shocked, Ron scrambled to his feet, staring at the smooth, feminine arm that helped lever him up. Staggering with the unfamiliar balance and center of gravity of his body, he stared down at the petite, long-nailed hand that tipped that arm.

"A dream - it's some fucking dream!" Ron muttered, wincing at that feminine voice - but he didn't believe his own words. The heft and weight on his chest, the air moving over smooth skin and - disturbingly - a sensitive, odd-feeling crotch, and the cold tile against his feet

- all this argued that this was, in fact, not a dream.

Looking around frantically, Ron caught sight of somebody from the corner of his eye and all but leapt back, banging into the lockers before realizing that the 'person' was merely a full-length mirror against the wall.

Shocked, Ron gaped at the reflection. Slowly, numbly, he walked towards the mirror, feeling his hips swivel and sway in an unfamiliar way, and the weight on his chest jostle and sway with each step.

Reflected in the mirror was one of the most stunning black woman Ron had ever seen.

Her dainty feet were attached to trim ankles that led upwards to even more shapely legs. Long, toned and well-curved, the legs were smooth and satiny, the flesh a rich shade of slightly reddish brown. Those amazing legs met at the dark triangle of her crotch, and the vertical slit that was nestled in the short, neat patch of hair.

Wide, womanly hips led upwards to a remarkably slender waist, before swelling to the ribcage that supported the almost spherical, practically matchless breasts riding on her chest.

Her shapely arms led to slender shoulders that tapered into a long, swan-like neck. A neck that supported a broad, exquisite face. Her mouth was amazingly full and seductive above her strong yet feminine chin. Her cheekbones were both broad and high-set, giving her an exotic, strong look without diminishing her femininity the least. A mane of curly, richly auburn hair surrounded that face in a cloud that hung down past her shoulders and obscured her well-formed ears.

She was a stunning, sensual example of dusky femininity. The only discordant note was the panicked look in her large, dark liquid eyes. "Oh..My..God..." Ron whispered in shock. "I... I'm a woman!"

For several seconds he merely gaped at his reflection, his slender fingers hesitantly sliding to his crotch to confirm that he no longer possessed his cock.

"I... I..." Ron stammered to the empty room, staggering to a seat on the bench. Slowly, it trickled through to his stunned mind that this must have been caused by his fall into that vat of - whatever it had been.

For several minutes he merely sat on the bench, staring incredulously at his radically altered body. His stunned gaze went from his slender arms to his amazing tits, then down to his long, shapely legs.

Only, none of this was his. His indicated 'being possessed by a person of masculine gender' - and one thing was now utterly clear to Ron - never again could the term 'his' be correctly applied. No - the legs, the tits, the cunt - they were hers.

Ron might have sat there in stunned, horrified shock if it hadn't have been for the sound of a garbage truck passing through the alley outside, the heavy thrum of it's diesel engine faintly penetrating the walls of the locker room. That's when she realized that, despite the unbelievable thing that had happened during the night, she was still alive, healthy - and, if she merely sat here, going to end up in jail when the staff arrived in the morning and found her here.

The thought of jail - of just trying to explain to the cops who she was, much less what she was doing here with three hundred grand, was enough to snap her out of her daze and get her moving. Self preservation came before grief over her lost man-hood - otherwise, she'd have plenty of time to ponder it while she rotted behind bars.

Even though she felt dazed and disconnected, Ron's survival skills, honed by years of hard experience on the streets, were as sharp as ever, and those skills carried her along. One look at the pile of clothes on the floor told her that there was no way she could fit into her old masculine attire - this body was fuller, and considerably shapelier, than her old one - she'd need to find some clothing as a first order of business.

Looking around, she spied a metal rod propped up in one corner - apparently a part of a towel-rack or something, but it would suit her purpose. Picking up the metal rod, she approached the bank of lockers and, picking one at random, began to pry it open.

Immediately, another difference in her body became obvious - this female body, while amazingly fit and limber, was not nearly as strong as her male one had been. Bracing her long legs on the locker, Ron grunted with effort as she hauled on the rod.

Finally the door popped open and Ron, gasping, let the metal bar drop to the floor with a clatter as she began to rifle through the jimmied locker.

She couldn't care less about style or accessories - Ron was just looking for clothing that would fit her altered body.

Stored in the locker was a white spandex body-suit with high-cut thigh and spaghetti straps - at least, that's what the catalogue the owner had purchased it out of had called it. To Ron's eye, it looked like a white one-piece swimsuit. Likewise, the jean skirt was merely a jean skirt to Ron, not a lightweight, pre-faded denim mid-thigh skirt with side-button detail.

Ron was exactly 'up' on women's fashions.

But it was clothing, and that was all Ron cared about. Quickly, she stepped into the body-suit and pulled it up, grimacing at the way it slid up the crack of her spectacular new ass and settled tightly against her sensitive new crotch.

It was a struggle to get the straps onto her slender new shoulders, as the garment hadn't really been designed for a woman as stacked as she was - but the spandex was also fairly elastic, and managed to cover Ron's new endowments, even if it did mold to them tighter than she'd like.

Next, Ron pulled on the denim skirt, wishing it was longer. She wasn't exactly proud of her desirable new legs, although she found them sexy - if they weren't hers, that is. The skirt fit taut over her womanly hips and bounteous, spectacular ass, making it a struggle to fasten the lower three buttons - but the top button hung almost loose. The original owner of the skirt had been nowhere as shapely as Ron now was, and the skirt was loose around her slender waist. With a sigh, Ron solved that problem with the slender white leather-belt in the locker.

For footwear, Ron was relieved to find a pair of white women's sneakers. They fit a little loosely, being about a size too large - but Ron solved that with a pair of thick black socks that padded the space adequately when she pulled the shoes on over them and tied them tightly.

Dressed, Ron started to turn from the locker - she stopped, and eyed some of the items in the locker, considering.

The black sweatband was a comfort consideration. Ron's long, thick mane of wavy, dark auburn hair kept falling in her face, which was annoying. Using the sweatband, Ron pulled the hair off her forehead.

As for the jewelry...

Despite the fact that Ron had three hundred thousand dollars to her name, her larcenous nature couldn't pass up the watch, bracelet, necklace and earrings in the locker. To her eye, they were good-quality gold, and Ron wondered what they were doing in a gym locker - the owner didn't wear them while working out, did she?

(Actually, the owner, a business woman, kept them there in case she was late, and had to run from the gym to a meeting, a fact that most women could have figured out - or sympathized with. But Ron was too new to the female life to catch nuances of that sort.)

At first, Ron considered just dumping the jewelry in the bag - but then figured she might as wear it, so it wouldn't get lost in the pile of bills. Quickly, she put on the watch, bracelet and necklace - then stopped, considering the earrings.

Small gold pendants with what appeared to be Tiger's Eye in the center, the earrings were clip-ons. Ron considered them for a second, then mentally shrugged and clipped them onto her small, well-formed lobes.

The last item Ron took from the locker was a last-minute consideration - a large, black faux suede purse with a shoulder strap. It looked big enough to contain the cash, and Ron thought it might be a good idea to transfer it. She was certainly unrecognizable to anyone who might come after the cash, but Snake knew what the gym-bag looked like, and Ron didn't want to take any chances.

Quickly, Ron transferred the money, finding that the bundles fit in the purse fairly well. Slinging the big black purse over her shoulder, Ron quickly retraced her steps to the door, stepped into the alley, and let the door latch shut behind her as she looked up at the early- morning sky.

The immediate danger over, Ron began walking slowly down the alley, her mind spinning. She was free, healthy, and fairly well off financially, and there was no way that Snake or his cronies would ever track her down, not looking like this.

But she was a woman - a goddammed nigger chick.

Out of immediate danger, Ron's mind was once more free to spin helplessly in circles, always coming back to the incontrovertible fact that she was now a woman - and would be, it seemed, for the rest of her life.

Shuddering slightly, Ron felt a wall of despair threatening to fall over her mind and crush her. She could keep it at bay, but was unable to banish it, and the longer she dwelled on the thought of spending her life as a female, the closer the dark wall came.

Out of self-preservation, she forced herself to stop considering the more distant future, and concentrate on taking things a step at a time.

And, she was surprised to find, the first step was breakfast. Somehow, after such an incredulous thing as being transformed into somebody else, such a prosaic thing as hunger seemed almost anti-climatic. But despite the changes in her life, there was no doubting the signal her stomach was sending her.

Focusing on that simple, every-day need helped stabilize Ron. Taking a deep breath, she calmed herself, and set off in search of breakfast.

Even walking was a new experience - her new body moved so differently than her old one. She would have expected to walk in a man- like stride, that being what she was used to - but the way her ass and hips swiveled were different, and she had to alter her stride, or put up with having her large tits jiggle and bounce distractingly. By using a shorter, more graceful glide, she could reduce - but not eliminate

- the sway of her new tits with every step. Somehow, that inescapable sensation of her large tits swaying slightly with each step summed things up - it was a constant, if fairly small, reminder of the changes that had occurred.

Trying to adjust to the feel and balance of her new body, Ron walked into the small corner diner that she'd almost literally stumbled across as she walked aimlessly.

The woman behind the counter looked up as Ron walked in and settled somewhat awkwardly onto a stool in front of the glass-fronted display/dining counter.

"Can I get some coffee - and whatever the breakfast special is?" Ron asked. It was going to take some time to get used to hearing that exotic, mellow contralto that emerged whenever she spoke, so dissimilar from her old voice.

"Sure 'nuff, honey." The older, slightly worn-looking peroxide blonde said. She turned to the opening in the back wall. "One egg on horseback, side of taters."

Turning back to Ron, the woman picked up the coffee pot of the warmer and filled the mug. As she did so, she leaned forward and spoke in a low voice.

"I may be just you and I, honey, but there ain't no need to advertise." Ron blinked. "Huh?"

The waitress gave Ron an odd look, and nodded downwards.

Blushing, Ron caught on, and shifted position, crossing his legs at the knee. He realized that a natural woman would have noticed the glass that allowed anyone on the other side a look.

"Sorry - without my first cup of coffee, my mind's useless." Ron said, covering her goof. She was starting to realize just how many little things separated men and women.

The bottle-blond waitress, however, smiled. "Yeah - I'm like that too. Once answered the door half-naked 'cause I was still asleep on my feet." Winking at Ron, she turned to grab Ron's 'Egg on horseback' - a steak and egg breakfast with a side order of hash-browns.

Ravenous, Ron dug into the meal, only pausing to sip from the coffee now and then.

He was only half-way through the meal that she discovered that she was slowing down. She had started off as hungry as she'd been for a long time, yet she was already feeling full. Amazed, she stared down at the food still left on the plate, realizing that her new body simply didn't require as much fuel as her old one.

"Can I get a refill?" Ron asked, gesturing at the mug with her fork.

"Sure, honey." The peroxide blonde replied, topping off the mug. "You sure started off like you were starving, but now you ain't so eager. Something wrong with your steak?"

Ron smiled. "No - my eyes are just bigger than my stomach. Everything's fine."

Suddenly, the realization of what had just occurred hit Ron. The way the smile came easily to her full, soft new lips. The complete lack of self-consciousness dealing with the waitress. For a few minutes, she'd been so caught up in simple day-to-day life, the fact that she was now living it as a woman had been forgotten.

No - not forgotten. The weight of her exquisite tits, the cool air on her hairless, shapely legs - all these were constant reminders, not letting her forget. It was more like...

...it didn't matter? Although her male ego tried to reject this answer - hell, being turned into a broad had to matter, right? - the thought had the ring of truth to it. No matter the color, gender or appearance of a person, life was life, to be dealt with moment by moment.

Ron had never been much of a philosopher - living on the streets and surviving on petty crime didn't leave much time for introspection. But in that moment, a brief, shining insight burst into Ron's mind.

She had a chance to start life over.

Sure, she was 'cursed' to spend the rest of her life as a woman. But, she was fit, healthy, financial well off - and free of her past life. No- one could possibly connect this exotic mocha beauty with the rangy red-head she'd once been.

Slowly, she went back to eating, her mind trying to deal with the new thoughts in her mind. She'd thought she'd glimpsed her future earlier this morning - but it was as if 'being female' was a huge wall. It had been all she could see, and it had threatened to crush her.

But she was starting to understand that there might be other things beyond that wall. Maybe - just possibly - even... good things. If she could just force herself to look.

Finishing the meal, she placed the fork and knife on the plate, mind still whirling with new thoughts - the most startling of which was that living life as a woman might not be a fate worse than death.

"That be all, sugar?" The waitress asked, breaking into Ron's reverie.

Looking up at the woman, Ron was startled to suddenly see her as a person - not just a woman, or a waitress, but a real person, with thoughts, feelings and dreams.

"Excuse me, miss..." Ron asked impulsively. "This might sound weird but - have you ever had any regrets in your life? Even things that you couldn't possibly control - like who you are, the life you were born into?"

The waitress' eyebrow rose. "Kinda early for philosophy, isn't it?"

Ron shrugged. "Please. Humor me."

The blonde sighed wistfully. "Honestly? 'Bout the only thing I truly regret is Tom Parren." She smiled at Ron. "Cutest guy in my junior year in high school. I had a crush on him the entire time - and I was too afraid to ask him for a date. He probably would have said no - I was a gawky girl - but..." She sighed again. "...he might have said yes - and I'll never know."

Ron was hoping for some insight that would help her face the future - but this wasn't it. She opened her mouth to thank the waitress...

..who was still talking.

"Although, to be completely honest..." The waitress continued hesitantly, lowering her voice. "I also wouldn't mind looking like you. I'm not ugly - but it'd be nice to be stunning."

Ron smiled. "Thanks." Reaching into her purse, she extracted one of the fifties from the bundles of cash that bulged the suede shoulder bag.

"Keep the change." Ron told the startled woman, then got up and left. The waitress's words had helped her to make up her mind.

No matter what she looked like, she was alive and healthy, and she was going to try to make the most of her life, irregardless of her gender. She'd been given a second chance - and she was going to take it.

The first step, as Ron saw it, was to get some new identification that matched her new body. It should be a simple matter - she had one or two connections that should prove useful in that.

Twenty-five minutes and a cab ride later, Ron was standing in the back of a darkened shop that he'd once heard Snake mention, in passing. In fact, it had been the invocation of Snake's name that had gotten her in, like some magic incantation that had made the small, nervous man with the face of a weasel open the door.

"Okay - dat take's care of da pic'shure. So, now I need ta know what name ya want to put one de I.D." The ferrety man - named Eddie - said, bobbing his head nervously.

Ron had been considering that on the way over. She wanted something that would be easy to remember. "Veronica." She said in her husky new voice. "Veronica Mae Eastman."

Eddie nodded and set to work on the immigration Ron had asked for. Veronica seemed like a safe name - she could use 'Ronnie' as a nick-name, solving the 'forgetting her own name' syndrome.

And the immigration card and paperwork was a stroke of genius. By claiming to be a new arrival from the Lower Antilles Islands, which were a possession of the US, it would explain her lack of history or previous identification. Better yet, in six months, she could take the paperwork and ID to a government office, and would be issued full American Citizenship if she passed the written test - at which time, she'd receive, free of charge, a complete set of authentic, government-issued identification documents, including her Naturalization certificate, passport and ancillary items. She wouldn't be able to drive until she took her driver's test - but when she passed that, she would get a real, genuine driver's license as well. Unlike faked ID, it would be in the computer system, and absolutely unbreakable as ID. She would legally be another person altogether.

Taking the finished ID, she sweetly thanked Eddie and paid him off - a rather large amount, but she could afford it. With a smile, she headed out the door.

Her smile faltered as she walked down the alley way. Her heart thundered in her chest as Bulldog and Grant, two of Snake's goons, came down the alley towards her. Their eyes were fixed on her...

...chest?

Ronnie almost laughed as she realized - of course - that they didn't recognize her. They were chest 'checking out that rack', as she was sure they would have put it.

Flashing them a smile, she jiggled and swayed past them, putting an extra little 'oomph' into it, practically flaunting herself in front of them, secure in the knowledge that no matter how hard they stared, she was safe.

Leaving the alley, she looked for a cab to flag down. Her plan was simple - catch a cab to the bus terminal, head to a new city, and start over with a new, quietly law-abiding life.

Before she saw a cab, her eye was caught by the sign outside of a woman's clothing store, and it occurred to her that she could use some clothing. Crossing the street, she ducked into the store.

Only as the door closed behind her did she realize she didn't have the first clue about buying woman's clothing. "Can I help you, miss?" the sales lady asked, coming up behind her.

"You sure can. I'm new to America." Ronnie said, slightly uneasy. "What's in fashion for somebody like me?" She could almost see the dollar signs flash in the sales-woman's eyes. "Come right this way, dear "

* * * * *

Ronnie came out of the store with a decidedly odd feeling.

She was dressed in what she felt was 'acceptable' clothing, given her odd situation. It was feminine yet not overly so, at least to her taste.

A dark-blue denim skirt hang to just above her knees, while a black t-shirt with scalloped lave collar covered her torso neither excessively loosely or tightly. A pair of black sandals with a simple one inch block heel encased her feet - all in all, a simple, basic outfit.

It was odd enough to be wearing it - but even odder to think she looked good in it. It had been a surprise to look in the mirror and find she liked the way the outfit looked on her. As a guy, the thought of dressing in woman's clothing would have been ludicrous - but in her new form, there was absolutely no doubt that she like the way she looked.

In fact, she was admiring herself in the reflection of a store window when she found herself flanked by two muscular, tough-looking men. Bulldog and Grant.

"Miss..." Bulldog rumbled. "We just came from Eddie's, and he mentioned you used Snake's name to get in. Well, we called Snake - and he doesn't know you. We think you should come with us."

The rather mildly phrased suggestion was emphasized by the snub-nosed .38 in Grant's hand, and Ronnie, her heart beating a thousand miles a minute, let herself be led to the car that pulled up to the curb. Clutching her shopping bag fiercely, she remained silent as the car drove to Snake's place, and the two muscular men led her inside.

Veronica's heart beat a thousand miles a minute as Bull-dog and Grant escorted him into the room where Snake half-sat on the bed, propped up against the pillows.

"Hey there, sweet thing." Snake said, eyeing Ronnie.

"Who are you, and what do you want?" Ronnie bluffed, trying to keep fear from her voice.

"Who am I?" Snake asked, dangerously gentle. "That's funny, I thought you must know me - after all, you used my name to get your fake ID" Snake uncoiled from the bed with dangerous languor. "So, tell me. How did you know to use my name - and where the hell did you get the money to pay for the ID?"

Well, there was an easy way to explain both of those away. It was embarrassing, but....

Ronnie forced her full, sexy lips into a slightly contemptuous grin. "C'mon, baby. Look at me - you mean you can't figure out how I earned the money? As for your name - one of my Johns told me to use it at the place. I didn't even know it was a name. I thought it was some sort of password."

Snake eyed her thoughtfully. "That's still a hell of a lot of cash, even for a ho'. And, I ain't seen you around, and I'm pretty well aquatinted with the local talent."

'Oh, shit - think fast, Ronnie.' She thought to herself.

"I just got into town. Starting fresh and all that - that's what I wanted the ID for. I had some problems with my man back in well, where I'm from. I needed a new life." She forced her grin to become sultry, almost challenging. "As for the money - I'm not your average street whore. I'm top-class, and you pay for what you get."

Snake looked the gorgeous, mocha colored woman up and down.

"Really?" he said in a tone that made Ronnie's stomach turn. "Tell you what - I'm not quite convinced. So, here's the deal - you prove your talents on me and Bulldog here. We're satisfied, we'll pay you your top dollar. You don't convince us - well, you and I might need to have a little talk."

Have sex? With Bulldog and Snake?! Ronnie wanted to puke. Of course, she knew the alternative.

Without visible hesitation and with an apparently causal air, she replied. "Don't need to threaten me, Snake-boy. You got the cash, I do the job."

Snake smiled thinly. "Good. Grant - get back to work. Bulldog and I can handle this." Grant eyed Ronnie's sexy figure. "But, boss "

Snake's cold, almost reptilian eyes narrowed. "Yeah ?"

Grant swallowed nervously. "Have fun." He said weakly, then left quickly.

Snake smiled at Ronnie. "Okay, sweet-cheeks. I don't like sloppy seconds, so, save the real McCoy for me. Otherwise, just make sure you make my friend real happy. Now get to it."

Mentally cringing, Ronnie nodded. "Sure thing, babe." She turned to a grinning Bulldog.

"So, big guy, what is your taste?" She asked, forcing both a sensual voice and a sexy smile. It took some willpower to step close to Bulldog, and sensuously run a hand down his chest to the growing bulge in his pants. Keeping the smile firmly in place, she gently squeezed his hardening cock. "A blow-job " She suggested, mentally wanting to vomit. Thankfully, she pulled her hand away from him and used both her hands to squeeze and lift her firm round tits under the t-shirt. "...or a tit-fuck, perhaps " she continued, coyly.

"no - I've had my eye on the sexy ass o' yours, baby." Bulldog rumbled.

"Oh, God - no..." Was Ronnie's sickened thought, but she kept her smile in place. "Oh, so you've noticed " She forced herself to say, sensually. "Some guys think it's my best feature "

"I like it "

This was like a nightmare brought to vivid life. Yet Ronnie knew it could get worse - a lot worse. Although death might seem like a viable alternative, the truth was, sex with these guys was less then a momentary - if disgusting - occurrence. Because if she didn't meet their standards, they wouldn't just kill her - they'd rape her first> So her option wasn't sex or death. It was sex - or sex, then death. With those odds, she had to force herself to play along, no matter what.

At least she got some time to work up some nerve by stalling. Smiling she pressed herself against bulldog, letting her firm tits mash pleasantly against his chest. When Bulldog bent his head down, Ronnie closed her eyes, and began kissing him. Pretending that she was kissing Becky Levaré, a gorgeous girl he'd dated for awhile, he kissed Bulldog as erotically as she could as she slowly unbuckled Bulldog's pants and slid them down, followed by his underwear. Bulldog was 'returning the favor' pulling off her new skirt and simple black panties, exposing her firm, sexy ass and dusky new womanhood.

Then there was no more time to stall safely. Turning around, she bent over the bed, spreading her legs. Taking a deep breath, she forced herself to do more then just accept it - she had to make it seem like this was what she wanted, what she did often...

"Okay, big guy, let's see if your cock measure's up to the rest of you..." She said sensuously, fighting the bile in her throat. "Stick that big, hard cock deep into my ass, baby."

Then she felt Bulldogs big hands on her hips, and it took every bit of her concentration to keep her ass from clenching involuntarily as she felt the head of his cock slide across her dusky ass cheeks..

...and plunge deep into her.

"Ohhh God... yes!" Ronnie screamed. She had to scream as the huge cock slid into her, feeling like it was going to rip her open, and it was all she could do to make it sound like a scream of pleasure instead of pain and disgust.

Bulldog grunted as his cock entered her tight ass. Bending over, he reached around and began to none-to-gently fondle her tits - as he began bucking his hips in and out her virgin ass.

"oh... yes.. harder!" Veronica cried. "Faster!" She was dealing with the situation by a simple expedient - saying and doing the exact opposite of what she wanted to. The more humiliated and disgusted she was, the more aroused she acted. The more it caused pain, the more she pretended it was pleasure. She had to release her emotion somehow, and this was the only safe way.

And, Bulldog responded to her words, slamming his big cock into her, driving it like a jack-hammer. Ronnie's sexy, taut ass jiggled with each thrust the muscular man made, and sweat steamed down both of their faces as Ronnie 'urged' him on, forcing herself to sound like she was in the throes of ecstasy.

"You're so big... it feels so good... don't stop, never stop stud. Harder, harder, harder!" Veronica screamed - and realized something in the mist of her humiliation and pain.

The sooner he came, the sooner it would be over.

Immediately, she began bucking her hips in syncopation with his, driving his cock in and out of her ass faster and deeper than he'd been able to. Bulldog groaned as her taut ass slammed erotically against his crotch harder and faster, driving him over the edge.

"Yes! Fill me!" Veronica screamed, and the sound of her voice wasn't wholly faked as his cum gushed into her ass - it meant that her first - on hopefully, last - ass fucking was drawing to a close.

"That's it..." She cooed as Bulldog withdrew his cum-slicked cock with a wet 'slurp'.

"Hey, man - there ain't no shit..." Bulldog said, staring down at his cock in surprise. "Every other time I butt-fucked a babe, there was shit!"

Veronica was straightening up, trying to ignore the burning agony of her stretched ass as if it didn't exist. She realized that she had never had to shit yet in this new body, and her ass was as clean as a whistle.

"Yeah - I give myself enema's after every shit." She said, making it up as she went along. "Like I said, a lot of guys like to ass fuck me, so I keep it real clean, baby..."

Then, forcing herself to repress any thought or emotion, she slowly sank to her knees in front of him and forced herself to smile sensuously up at him. "...so I'd enjoy this more." She said - and forced herself to lick his cum-covered cock clean. She had to convince these guys she was better than the average hooker to explain her 'higher price', and so had to do every little thing she could.

"Well, Bulldog - that the best ass-fucking you've ever had?" Snake asked as the muscular man got dressed. "Well, it's right up there." Bulldog said. "And she certainly is a lot cleaner than any other ho I've fucked." Snake smiled. "Okay - go help Grant."

As the big man left, he turned his attention to Veronica. "You're cleaner, okay - but Bulldog didn't sound like his mind was blown. I thought you were spectacular?"

Ronnie shrugged. "Hey, I offered the blow-job. There's not much you can do with an ass-fuck, Snake." The man smiled. "Well - convince me, then..."

Veronica forced a smile. "Count on it..." Approaching him sensuously, she moved pulled her shirt off, letting her firm, sexy tits, jiggle freely, and kicked off her sandals, leaving her dark, sexy body naked.

She climbed onto the bed, and positioned herself so the her full, firm tits hung over his face, while her face was even with his chest.

"Why don't you suck on these babies while I get you ready?" She suggested, and Snake took her up on the offer, fondling and sucking her glorious tits as she undid his pants, and slowly undressed him.

When Snake was completely naked, she began to lick and kiss her way down his stomach, bringing her full, sexy lips closer and closer to his cock. At the same time, snake licked and kissed his way down her body. Reaching her crotch, he teased her clit with his tongue - in response to the fact that she was lightly sucking on his large, throbbing cock, licking at the head, then sucking it part-way into her mouth, thoroughly lubricating it while Snake helped her cunt get ready. She had to admit - it felt really, really good. But the thought of what she was doing still disgusted her, and she wanted to get it over with as soon as possible.

Working her way back up his body, she ended up stretched full-length on him, her dusky, sexy body pressed against his, his hot throbbing cock pressing into her thigh as she stopped long enough for a deep, sensual kiss. Then, sitting up astride his crotch in a crouching position, she positioned herself carefully - then dropped her hips, impaling herself on his large, hard cock.

Ronnie cried out in a mixture of real and feigned pleasure. As his hands rose to fondle her tits, she ground her crotch into his a little, then used her sexy legs to pump up and down. She licked her full, sexy lower lip and moaned erotically - and mostly honestly - as she rode the cock that belonged to the man who had tried to kill her.

Snake moaned at the wonderful sensation of the gorgeous black woman fucking him with abandon, and fondled Ronnie's gorgeous, bouncing tits as she rode his thick cock, gasping in pleasure.

She drove herself up and down with wild enthusiasm, little of what was faked as she got caught up in the pleasure of womanly sex. She felt Snake begin to shift as he neared orgasm...

And Veronica lowered herself, doing only small, slow thrusts, just enough to hold Snake at the edge without driving him over. "Oh... God... What are you..." Snake gasped, his balls churning with cum as Ronnie kept him at the edge of orgasm.

Carefully, not breaking her rhythm, Veronica leaned forward until she was laying atop Snake. Instead of an up-and-down motion, her slow motions were now a gentle rocking motion back and forth on his cock as she pressed her tits against Snake's chest and began kissing his neck and chin.

"Ah... ah..." was all Snake could manage, hovering at the edge. He was experiencing that 'almost there' sensation, the incredible, fantastic sensation - yet, instead of lasting a second or two, Ronnie was stretching it out, to the point where Snake was almost driven insane by the sheer pleasure of it.

"Beg me..." Veronica said huskily> She'd discovered that, not did this physically feel good, but it felt great emotionally to be atop Snake, with him literally at her control. She knew, right now, he'd do almost anything, and she wanted to hear him beg.

"Please..." Snake begged. "Oh.. God.. it's too much."

Slowly, Ronnie dragged herself back into an upright position- then suddenly began pistoning up and down on his cock like a human jack-hammer.

Instantly, both of them shot over the edge and into full-blown orgasm, screaming in unison as their bodies shuddered in pleasure.

And through it all, Ronnie continued pounding up and down on his highly-sensitive cock, drawing out his orgasm longer than he'd ever known.

Finally, sweat coating her magnificent body, Ronnie slowed down and gently pulled off of Snake.

She was somewhat surprised to discover that she might consider sex again in the future - with the right guy and or guys - not scum like Snake. It was... enjoyable.

Snake propped himself up on a muscular arm, eyeing Ronnie's dusky body as she slowly covered it. He smiled, almost dreamily, an expression that looked odd on his hard face.

"God, babe - you're fuckin' amazing." He chuckled at his pun. "You know just how to please a man."

'And wouldn't you be shocked to know how I know what a man likes.' Ronnie thought, repressing a grin. "Glad you enjoyed it, Snake." She replied in a husky voice, building up his ego. She was eager to make a clean escape. "I hate to be greedy, but..."

"Yeah, right babe." Snake replied. Picking up his wallet, he flipped it open.

"Do me favor?" Ronnie asked, seeing the thick wad of cash inside, and wanting to get away as quickly as humanly possible. Snake looked up. "What's that, babe?"

"Pay me what the other guy owes me? You can collect from him later - it'd save me some trouble." She flashed him her most sultry, pleading smile. 'Come on...' She thought, mentally urging him to comply.

"I don't know..." Snake replied.

Ronnie struggled to keep desperation from her voice. "Hey - you can make a profit. He won't know how much you paid - charge 'em extra, keep the difference. Play this right, and it could mean that it was a freebie for you last night."

Snake smiled at the thought. "Yeah - I like it." Counting out a wad of bills, he handed them to her. Tucking the cash down her prodigious cleavage, Veronica picked up her shopping bags and turned towards the door.

"I'll be seeing you again, real soon, sweet-cheeks." Snake said. "You can expect a lot of business from us, babe."

Veronica didn't even have to think about her reply. "I'll be looking forward to it, Snake." She lied. Anything to get out of here. Opening the door, she paused, struck by a thought. Turning, she looked back with a sultry, mischievous smile.

"It was a business doing pleasure with you." Ronnie said, then walked out into the morning sunshine, heading for the bus station, and a new life in a new city.

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: As part of a Fraternity pledge, a somewhat nerdy guy sneaks into a sorority posing as a girl, little does he know that he about to be transformed into a full fledged sorority girl.

Getting In

By Gunslinger

Feeling like a complete idiot, Jeff Gainesboro stepped out of the shower stall, shivering at the way the cool air moved over his pudgy body.

The shiver and the feeling of idiocy were directly related, and had absolutely nothing to do with the temperature of the air - but the connotations that came from the strange new way the air felt as it caressed a body he'd just completely denuded of every follicle of body hair.

Turning, the nineteen-year-old freshman looked at himself in the mirror hanging on the back of the bathroom door, his thick lips twisting wryly as he surveyed his pale and now denuded body.

"I look like a freakin' slug..." He muttered to himself in that damnably soft voice of his, his blue eyes narrowed in distaste as he looked at himself. In that sort of grey area between 'big-boned' and actually being fat, the athletically disinclined young man's body carried a fairly even coating of flab over it's entirety, with only a little more of it concentrated at his waist in a slightly sagging pot belly. From the top of his crew-cut blond hair to the tips of his size-ten feet, all five-foot-ten of him was one basic series of undulations, the pinchable inch of extra fat denying his body and face any real definition - which had been how he'd come up with this plan, as embarrassing and ridiculous as it was.

"I could stop..." He muttered to himself. "I could not go through with it. Nobody would know what I was planning to do..." Even as he told himself that, though, Jeff simply didn't believe it. Not when he was this close...

His entire life, Jeff had been a social outcast. Growing up an orphan raised by a maiden aunt who didn't even own a television, he'd failed to pick up the sort of 'common background' that television had given all the other people of his generation - while, relying on books for entertainment, had become the much-despised 'bookworm'.

Now, however, Jeff finally had a chance to gain some measure of popularity - albeit a small chance. After all, the Omnis, the biggest frat on campus, weren't all that excited at the prospect of having him as a member. They were, however, willing to at least give him a shot, even if not a particularly good one, in a chance for him to prove them wrong...

There were a total of four pledges for the Omnis - and there also just happened to be four Sororities on campus, which had given the Omnis the idea for their little initiation test. Each prospective pledge had to somehow beg, borrow or steal two identifiable personal items from their assigned sorority house, proving that they had managed to somehow get inside.

Jeff's assignment was the Tau house - the most difficult sorority to 'pull something on', from everything Jeff had heard. In fact, the rumors made the Tau girls sound downright creepy, in a way - whenever any sort of prank or plan was attempted on them, they always seemed to know what was going to happen, and were ready to counter it in the most embarrassing way possible.

That was why Jeff hadn't confided in anybody about his plan - well, that, and to keep anybody from knowing that he was going to spend an evening in drag...

With another sigh, Jeff turned away from his reflection and continued with his preparations. Carefully toweling himself off, he placed himself in front of the sink and, grimacing at himself in the mirror, pulled his make-up bag out of its hiding spot under the sink.

The pledges had each been given a week to complete their task. Most of the pledges had rushed their attempts, in hopes of having surprise on their side - though nobody on campus knew who was pledging to what house, one or two attempts from each pledge would quickly alert each sorority what to watch out for.

Jeff, however, had spent the entire week preparing for his attempt tonight, on the last night, weighing preparation and the lulling of his target into a false sense of security against the advantage of surprise. Among the other preparations he'd performed during the past six days, he'd secretly been practicing certain skills, including doing his make-up - but that didn't mitigate the embarrassment he felt as he carefully did his face.

Indeed, the very fact that he could apply make-up so skillfully was an added sense of shame...

He started with the 'easiest' part of the charade - slipping in the zero-prescription 'sample' contacts he'd gotten, changing his watery blue eyes into a deep, hazel brown.

Then he had to move onto more 'feminine' things - and so, as he began applying the pastel purple eye-shadow, it was on a face that was flushed a red only a few shades lighter than it had been during his very first - and badly botched - attempt.

After the eye-shadow was applied, his pudgy but surprisingly dexterous hands carefully peeled his last pair of long, thick false eyelashes from its waxed backing and carefully set them in place, framing his now dark eyes with artfully long, luxurious lashes.

As quickly as possible while still getting it right, he moved on to applying the heavy, semi-gloss burgundy lipstick, further enhanced by the black lip-liner he carefully blended into the rich, purple-red shade - all in keeping with the advice he'd gotten from the book he blushing checked out of the municipal library, allowing him to subtly alter the contour of his somewhat flabby male lips, instead making them look like full, nearly pout female ones.

With the smooth, pale complexion of a true bookworm, no foundation was needed, and only on the garish, 'distract the eye from the actual face beneath' make-up scheme made the use of blush necessary, the careful use of three different shades of pink creating the illusion that his cheekbones were higher and better defined than they really were.

Looking in the mirror, Jeff had to ruefully admit that the total effect was that of a rather pudgy young woman doing her utter best to enhance what features she had.

With that done, Jeff headed out to the living room of the small off-campus apartment, where the rest of his 'costume' awaited.

The most expensive, and difficult, part of the costume was the mail-order latex prosthetic kit he'd had rush delivered from a theatrical supply house. Thankfully, there'd been enough of the foam latex mix for him to have three attempts - the first of which had been pretty bad, the second of which had been acceptable, and the third of which he'd saved for the actual attempt.

Now, with exceedingly careful movements, he began to apply the adhesive to the inside of the fake breasts he'd formed from the flesh-like latex, slowing to a near crawl as he oh-so-carefully spread the glue on the paper-thin feathered edges of the artificial bust.

Having bought a second full-length mirror for tonight's preparation, Jeff stood in front of it and carefully applied the 'falsies' to his chest, being exceedingly careful with the latex applications.

Looking eerily real, right down to the painstakingly formed and painted nipples atop domed areola, the breasts Jeff had formed soon rode on his rib-cage. With their finely feathered edges carefully blended into his actual skin with a make-up that matched both his natural skin-tone and the painstakingly matched shade of the breasts, it would have taken an incredibly close look to determine that the triple-E breasts weren't actually 'real' - though, with a grimace, Jeff noticed that these ones looked more 'fake' real than 'natural' real.

His second attempt had been damned near perfect. Between his build and the fact he was trying to force any viewer to accept his supposed femininity, he'd created a pair of big, saggy, pudgy-girl breasts. Unfortunately, this time around the latex had foamed up a bit ore while curing, making them firmer and rounder than he liked, more like implants than the naturally saggy shape of fat-filled breasts...

"I'll just pretend I'm wearing a push-up bra..." Jeff muttered, shaking his head.

The next item to be pulled on was the second-most expensive, also rush-delivered... but, this time, from a 'adult specialty house'.

It was a corset. Actually a fetish item, it was heavy, gleaming black leather - but it had high-tension straps that could be done up by the wearer, and that's what Jeff needed as he hauled away on each strap with all his strength as he buckled himself into the painfully tight garment, constricting his pudgy male waist down to a dimension more pudgily feminine, while also creating the impression that his hips were wider than they actually were.

Taking only the shallow breaths the corset allowed, Jeff finished getting dressed in the clothing he'd carefully chosen from second-hand stores as far away from campus as possible.

First came a pair of exceedingly tight panties, chosen specifically to help with the masquerade. Carefully tucking his cock back and up between his legs, he pulled the high-hipped panties into place - then tugged at the elastic he'd previously exposed, tying it into knots on either side to firmly hold the panties in place, so that there was simply no way they could slip down.

The dress he pulled on was made of a stretchy 'crushed velvet' type of material, so deep purple as to be nearly black, and very much a 'gothic' style dress. Though the ankle-length skirt flared out at the very bottom, it clung tightly from just above his knees upward, helping magnify the impression of slightly pudgy femininity - especially since the high neckline of the dress boasted a black nylon mesh insert that exposed about a fifth of 'her breasts' through its only faintly obscuring fine weave. The mesh rose all the way up his neck, completely hiding the Adam's apple that had been only barely discernable due to his own layer of obscuring fat.

The footwear for the outfit was the 'granny boots' he'd found in his size - black leather ankle-boots with a two-inch stacked heel he'd spent the past week secretly practicing in. Now, very awkwardly due to the dress and the corset, he pulled the boots on, then rose to stand in them with a skill that he regretted having.

Almost finished, Jeff had only a few final touches to add to complete the illusion.

There was the wig that he lowered over his own close-cropped honey-blond hair. The massive, wavy mane of back hair piled high upward before cascading down around his face and shoulders, helping hide the breadth of his shoulders and the thickness of his neck.

Then came the jewelry: A ribbon-mounted cameo that went around his nylon-encased neck, a woman's watch that went on a similarly nylon-enclosed wrist, and a pair of big, 'silver' hoop earrings that clipped on.

With that done, Jeff no longer had anything else to keep him from the worst and most embarrassing part of this plan, the part that he hadn't been able to bring himself to 'practice' - actually having to go outside and face the world.

Picking up his purse, also purchased from a second-hand shop, he dumped his make-up into it, filling it with 'feminine clutter'. There was a couple of items already inside: His keys, a small bottle of perfume, and the only 'identification', a student library card he'd done up on the computer in the name of Virginia Hadstone.

Pulling the small atomizer of perfume from the purse, 'Ginny' gave several hard squeezes on the top, then quickly stepped through the cloud of faintly floral-scented perfume. Tucking the bottle back into 'her' purse, she took several deep breaths, letting the 'trigger' finish its work - since, as an added touch, she'd also been self-hypnotizing herself over the past week, using the smell of that perfume as a trigger mechanism to help her think 'feminine thoughts' - or, at least, what she'd thought would be feminine thoughts, her unfamiliarity with women requiring quite a bit of guesswork.

Finally, as ready as she'd ever be, and as nervous as a long-tailed cat in a room full of rocking chairs, Ginny headed for the door, her mind almost silently repeating the post-hypnotic mantra she'd instructed it to mutter in a continuous loop.

Peering through the 'peep hole' in the door to make sure she was unobserved, Ginny eased the door open and quickly stepped out into the hallway, moving with an embarrassing grace atop the short heels. Quickly pulling the door shut behind her, she headed down the hallway, face mildly infused with red as she wondered if any of her neighbors had happened to catch her leaving.

Since there was absolutely nothing she could do about it, she tried to put the thought aside as she headed down the stairs. Thankfully, her apartment building was just barely off-campus, and located near the corner of the campus on which the Tau house stood, meaning that - even slowed by the heels and the perhaps slightly over-feminine walk she'd practiced - it was, at most, five minutes away.

It was five minutes that seemed an eternity. She had, of course, planned for this to all take place after dark, so she had the dim autumn night to hide in, as well as considerably less people she'd have to pass - but for all that, she felt as if each of the seven people she did pass were secretly laughing at her behind her back, only pretending to find her unremarkable until she was safely out of ear-shot before laughing and twittering and promising to tell all their friends about the little 'queer boy'.

The fact that all seven were complete strangers, people she didn't even recognize as having seen here or there before, did nothing at all to alleviate the thoroughly illogical feelings.

After a five-minute eternity, Ginny reached the door to the Tau house, climbed the flower-lined steps...

...and stopped in front of the door, a moment of clarity breaking through.

'What am I doing...?' The young 'woman' asked 'herself', stunned. 'I'm dressed up as a woman, standing at the door to a house full of women who seem pleasant enough, planning to steal something from them so that I can join a group of guys I don't particularly like anyway...'

'She' could still stop. Nobody had recognized 'her' on the way over, paranoia aside. 'She' could simply go home and forget about all of this, about doing something that conscience insisted was wrong, all in order to become part of a group of people who shared not one single interest with 'her' own.

'She' could stop... and go back to a lonely, boring life.

Almost as if by it's own accord, even before her mind had been able to reach a final conclusion, her meaty hand rose and fell against the polished oak of the door, sending a reverberating sound echoing through the foyer beyond.

The door popped open so quickly that it was downright eerie, as if the trim little honey-blonde woman had been standing just inside the door, waiting for Ginny to knock - which must simply be more paranoia, since it was impossible, of course. Still, the so-quick appearance of the stunningly cute/sexy elfin blonde, a warm smile on her lips, took Ginny by surprise, and she had to physically restrain herself from taking a step back from the slender young woman dressed in the sweater-vest in the house colors, and bearing the Greek letters upon it's front.

"I knew it!" The petite blonde exclaimed, taking Ginny further aback, and making her heart pound in fear. "There's always one girl who waits until the very last second to think about pledging!"

Breathing a mental sigh of relief, the portly girl forced a weak smile to her heavily coated lips, certain that the woman had accepted the first-look impression Ginny had wanted to portray - and, better yet, had even supplied a valid reason for Ginny to get access to the house, something Ginny herself hadn't been able to arrive at, having planned to 'wing it' as best she could.

"I'm Tammy..." The bright-eyed blonde said, warmly, gesturing the taller, heavier-set 'girl' into the foyer of the sorority house. "The newest pledge from last year, and official 'greater' for anybody planning to pledge - and, just so you don't worry you've missed your chance, Tau hasn't accepted anybody this year. They're very picky."

"Uh... I'm Ginny - um, Virginia Hadstone." Ginny managed in the face of the blonde's unrelenting perkiness.

"Hey, Ginny - nice to meetcha..." Tammy said, brightly. "I soooo hope you get in to Tau house. It's just so much fun, an' all. I still can't believe how lucky I was to get in last year. Why, when I was were you are right now, coming up to the door to pledge, I was..."

The blonde's eagerness slipped for a second, a faintly puzzled blank look slipping down over her features, as if she felt there was something she should remember, but couldn't quite place her finger on it.

"Is... something wrong...?" Ginny asked, concerned.

Tammy spoke in a slow, almost monotone voice: "Uh, no... I... just can't seem to remember exactly how I felt coming to pledge - or even how I chose to pledge Tau..."

Suddenly, the petite young woman shivered violently, shook her head twice, sharply - then smiled brightly at her guest. "You're going to love Tau house!" She said in a strange little sing-song tone of voice. "I know I love being a Tau girl!"

She blinked again, a slight furrow crossing her brow, and then she shook her head again, her smile fixed and not quite matching the look of mild confusion in her eyes.

"Come on..." The blonde said, closing the door hesitantly, then gesturing down the hallway. "Kara LaVoi is the one you need to talk to..."

Nervously, Ginny followed the remarkably attractive young woman down the hallway. As they passed an open archway that lead to the living room, Ginny glanced inside - and suddenly felt even more conspicuous, seeing the three other Tau girls watching some soap-opera type show on TV.

All three were as remarkably sexy as her guide, albeit in different ways. Ginny had heard the rumors about the Tau girls, of course, and how popular and 'friendly' they were - but she'd always taken the Omni's descriptions of the girls with a large grain of salt, assuming they were 'talking up' the girls to make themselves look better.

"Kara...?" Tammy said, leaning through a heavy, iron-bound oak door into a room. "There's a new pledge here to see you." "That's fine, Tammy - you can send her in..." A rich, surprisingly deep female voice said from within the room.

"Sure, Kara." Tammy said, her upper half still invisible behind the partially opened door. "Uh - you know something weird? I was telling Ginny - the new pledge - about the night I pledged, and I realized that I couldn't actually remember that night. Isn't that weird...?"

Raising one eyebrow, Ginny waited to see how the unseen head of Tau house would respond to the perky blonde's babbling - but, oddly enough, she didn't, or at least not so Ginny could hear.

A moment later, Tammy held the door open, a huge and apparently heart-felt smile pasted onto her face. "Go right in!" She said in an intently bright sing-song tone. "You're going to love being a Tau girl!"

Ginny tried to thank Tammy for the assumption that she'd be accepted as a pledge, but the lovely young lady didn't seem to hear her, that huge grin still plastered to her face as she bid Ginny a vague good-by and walked - drifted, really - off towards the living room.

"You'll have to forgive Tammy..." The rich voice said from within the room. "She can be a little bit... spacey... after a drink or two. Please, come in."

Ginny complied, stepping into what was obviously a study - a fairly small, intimately cozy room lined with book-shelves. It's only furnishings were a trio of very comfortable-looking high-backed leather chairs clustered around a low table in the center of the room.

Sitting comfortable - almost commandingly - in one of the chairs was a tall, lovely woman with Mediterranean features and a wealth of long, straight black hair framing a face of strong, yet beautiful, features. Her lithe, toned body was dressed in a simple-yet-elegant black dress, and subdued silver jewelry glimmered here and there, matching the belt of beaten silver around her trim waist.

"Please, close the door and make yourself comfortable..." Tara said in that incredible voice, gesturing at the seat nearest her.

Nervously, feeling worse then ever at the thought that she was here specifically for the purpose of stealing from women who were showing her such hospitality, Ginny did as suggested, ending up perched nervously on the edge of the chair.

"Please - won't you have a drink...?" Kara said, pouring a few finger's worth of a ruby-red liquid from a decanted on the table into a small, finely-cut crystal tumbler and passing it to Ginny.

Though not particularly anxious to befuddle herself with alcohol, Ginny took the proffered drink and took a polite sip - and then smiled weakly at her hostess, taking another, longer sip at the delicious, somewhat fruity liquid inside the glass, which didn't seem to have much bite to it - some sort of fruit wine, perhaps, rather than a harder alcohol.

"It's quite good..." Ginny admitted, with a third sip that tasted even better then the first two. "What is it...?" "Old gypsy recipe..." Kara said, gesturing vaguely at herself. "Something of a secret, you see..."

"Oh..." Ginny said, finishing the liquid, and not arguing as Kara took the glass and refilled it, this time nearly to the top - the entire time, her dark, deep eyes fixed on Ginny's face.

"I have the odd feeling that you're not quite like the rest of the pledges I've seen over the years..." Tara said, handing the glass back.

Remembering the stunning attractiveness of the other Tau girls, Ginny blushed and shrugged. "No, I guess not - I'm sorry to have bothered you..."

With a feeling of relief at having her crisis of conscience so resolved, Ginny started to rise - only to be waved back into her seat by one commanding hand.

"Oh, I didn't mean to imply anything like that..." Kara said, smiling kindly. "Actually, I was referring to personality. As it happened, many of our rare pledges are rather.. focused.. on certain things. Not to put too fine a point on it, if those girls were men, some of what they do might be seen as being date-rape, they are so... um, 'eagerly focused', if you take my meaning..."

Remembering some of the Omni stories, Ginny blushed anew and nodded - though she wondered about the odd smile playing on her hostess' full lips.

"I guess it's lucky for all concerned that they aren't men, then..." Kara said, the odd little smile growing a bit wider. "Still, what they were primarily concerned with was 'getting laid' - and they certainly don't have any problems in that direction, so they got what they wanted, did they not?"

"Well, yeah, I guess..." Ginny mumbled her agreement, hiding her embarrassment with a long sip of her drink.

"Well, enough about them..." Kara said, dismissively. "Why don't we discuss you, and your pledge into Tau. We must be careful, mustn't we - after all, you certainly wouldn't want to find yourself pledging into a house full of people you really don't want to associate with, just for whatever 'fringe benefits' that might come from it, now would you...?"

Shaking her head slightly, Ginny shifted uncomfortably in her seat, suddenly feeling very thick-witted and dull. Realizing that the 'fruit wine' must be considerably stronger than she'd assumed, she put the glass down - but even that was difficult, her head spinning as she tried very, very hard to focus...

"What would you be willing to do to be popular, I wonder...?" Kara said, her voice low, hypnotic. "Would you pretend to be somebody you're not, just to become popular - and for how long, and how intently?"

"I..." Ginny said, trying very hard to concentrate - but the world seemed to swirl around her, and it was hard to remember what she was doing here, what was happening - hard for her to even remember who she was, the world nothing but a kaleidoscope of color and sounds, without form or meaning.

"What would you do to be popular...?" Kara's voice floated out of the swirl of color and darkness. "What would you do...? What would you..."

* * * * *

"...like another drink?"

Ginny blinked, and shook her head, trying to clear it.

"What...?" She asked, confused, looking around herself.

"I said, 'Would either of you like another drink?'" Dave Anson, one of the Omni boys, said, shaking the half-empty champagne bottle he held.

"I would...!" Tammy said, brightly, from Ginny's right. "How 'bout you, Ginny - another drink to 'get in the mood'...?" As Tammy giggled at the heavy innuendo in her tone, Ginny blinked at her, then glanced over at Dave in confusion.

She was sitting in the hot-tub in back of the Tau house, the hot water swirling and foaming around her bikini-clad form as she leaned back comfortably. Tammy was sitting to her right, and Dave to her left, the three of them apparently alone in the warm, whirling water.

"I.. don't think I should..." Ginny said, slowly, mind spinning as she tried to figure things out. Her memory seemed so... hazy. In fact, there seemed to be something in the back of her mind screaming that there was something very, very wrong - but she couldn't place her finger on it.

"Are you sure...?" Tammy said, teasingly, as she accepted the champagne flute Dave handed her. "I really think you'd have a lot more fun if you 'loosen up' a bit more..."

"That was what you were planning, isn't it?" Dave prompted, with a warm smile. "I do seem to recall you definitely suggesting the champagne to help 'loosen us up' when you suggested the idea to Tammy and I..."

"I suggested this..." Ginny said, confused, still trying to connect 'now' to any linear past - and finding absolutely no past to link to, aside from that vague and undefined feeling of unease.

"Sure you did..." Dave said, sharing a glance with Tammy. "You don't remember..." Ginny didn't answer, instead taking a long moment to take stock of her situation.

Looking down, she watched the water foam and froth at just about nipple level, a teasing, tingling, wonderful sensation as the water vibrated against the masses of breast-flesh packed tightly into her purple bikini-and, again, she felt that strange feeling of discontinuity, as if she were seeing herself for the first time...

...but that was ridiculous, wasn't it? She must have seen herself thousands - hundreds of thousands - of times, from every conceivable angle. She shouldn't feel the least bit surprised to see her full-hipped, voluptuous body, one that carried a few extra pounds, but carried them very well - especially with an extra four cup-sizes worth of saline implants to push her sagging B-cups out to a delightfully full, firm D cup, looking like a pair of flesh-colored volleyballs thrust from what had once been a somewhat too deep ribcage below somewhat too wide shoulders, detractors now minimized by the wonderfully huge breasts she'd been so eager to get so that the guys at Omni house - like Dave - would like her...

She frowned again, staring down at the deep cleavage of her chest, holding on tightly to the one memory that had just resurfaced - the strong memory of herself planning to get a pair of big, fake tits to help make herself more popular...

...and remembering feeling ashamed and embarrassed about planning to do that - and yet she must have gone ahead and done it, because those huge, round tits were now riding on her own chest...

"Ginny..." Tammy prompted, drawing the dark-haired woman's fuzzy attention away from her own massive rack and to the slender, shapely young blonde....

...who leaned over and kissed her. Passionately.

For a second, Ginny resisted, feeling that this was all going to fast, before she had a chance to actually decide to do anything - but it all felt so good.

So very good...

She started to reply to the kiss, her tongue delving deep into the warm willingness of the other girl's mouth - and she only stiffened slightly, and made no effort to stop it, when Tammy gently undid the bikini top and tossed it away, giving her slender hand access to one massively full, firm breast, her hand gently massaging and caressing it, fondling and squeezing it in the most pleasurable manner...

...and which was matched by the sensations coming from her other side as Dave began fondling her other huge, round breasts.

Gently, Tammy broke the kiss - then, with her free hand, slowly pushed Ginny's face away from her own, and towards Dave - who leaned forward and resumed the kiss, even as Tammy withdrew her own hand from Ginny's massive breast, and let Dave had the fun of taking one huge tit in each hand.

Ginny stiffened, no longer returning the kiss, her mind trying to cope with this. Kissing Tammy had felt good, physically and emotionally, and both hands on her breasts had created pleasure - but for some reason, this didn't feel right, having a handsome man kiss her and touch her in such an openly sexual way...

"Go ahead, Ginny..." Tammy whispered in her ear. "Let yourself go... Enjoy yourself... Enjoy Dave "

Hesitantly, Ginny began to return the kiss, finding physical pleasure in touching and being touched, kissed and being kissed - even though, emotional, there was something about this that bothered her...

...and then Dave was slowly lifting himself from the hot-tub, breaking the kiss and the fondle as he moved his hands to her shoulders, holding her down as he lifted himself to a seated position.

Inches from her face, his cock thrust from his crotch towards her, throbbing with his desire.

"Suck it, Ginny..." Tammy said in her ear, taking up the fondling of Ginny's huge breasts from behind while the buxom, dark-haired woman stared with a mixture of revulsion and hypnotic fascination at the organ throbbing so close to her face. "Guys love girls who suck cock - it'll make you more popular than you ever imagined..."

"I..." Ginny stammered, staring at the organ, as if hypnotized.

Slowly, Dave scuttled his buttocks further forward on the edge of the hot-tub, his cock growing closer to her full, partially open lips.

"Guys will want you around all the time..." Tammy whispered, enticingly. "They'll buy you nice things, treat you nice, ask you out to all sorts of nice places and pay for the privilege - and all you have to do is one.. little.. harmless. Thing... for them."

The cock gently pressed against her full, firm lips, its head warm and throbbing as it slowly inched into her mouth, its warm slickness pressing slowly over her tongue.

"Suck his cock, Ginny - I promise, it'll make you more popular than you ever imagined..." Tammy whispered, still fondling Ginny's huge tits...

...and Ginny yanked her mouth away from the cock, pulling away with a look of confusion on her face. "No, I don't..." She stammered, trying to sort out her strange, undefined feelings.

"It's okay..." Tammy said, gently pulling her back, and down, practically reclining the buxom woman in her tiny lap as Dave started to slide back into the hot-tub. "You can do that later, for another time, perhaps - we've got something else that you'll enjoy as much as Dave. You don't have to become a slave to man's pleasure to be popular - you can become a slave to your own, instead..."

Smiling eagerly, Dave reached under the water and spread Ginny's knees, slowly positioning himself between them... "No, no I don't even know you..." Ginny protested, weakly, as Dave moved into position to fuck her.

"You'll like it, Ginny - you'll love it, just like I do..." Tammy whispered in her ear, holding her tighter.

"Guys don't like a cock-tease, Ginny." Dave said, leaning forward as he untied the thin bikini bottom that was the only barrier between his cock and her warm, wet pussy. "We both know you want it, that you're hot and horny. We both know you'd enjoy it, getting fucked good and hard - so why turn me down, and be hated? Why not give in to your own pleasure, and popularity...?"

Pulling her sopping bikini bottom from the pool, he tossed it aside, and prepared to thrust himself into her...

"No!" She cried, as firmly as her swirling head allowed, wresting herself from Tammy's grip and scrambling to get out of the hot-tub. "No, I don't want this!"

"You lying bitch!" Dave said, angrily, grabbing her wrist and hauling her back into the water. "You do want this! You're horny, and you know it. Even know, you're wondering how good it would feel to have my cock fuck you - so don't be a cock-teasing bitch and pretend you don't want it when you do..."

"No - I don't want you!" Ginny shouted, struggling to get free as her mind began to rapidly clear. "I don't want just anybody to like me, and I don't care whether... weather a bastard like you likes me, or a slut like you, Tammy! I won't do this to be popular - I won't!"

"Oh, you're going to do it, you cock-teasing little bitch..." Dave snarled, struggling to get her knees apart, with Tammy's willing help.

"Oh, you'll like it so much..." Tammy whispered in her ear, brightly. "Soon, you'll be a helpless little cum-craving slut, just like me - and just like me, you won't help but like it, because it'll feel so good, and you won't be able to stop yourself from sucking.. and fucking.. everybody!"

"No!" Ginny shouted, struggling. "Stop it!"

"Oh, no fucking way, bitch..." Dave grinned, evilly...

"I believe she said 'stop...', didn't she?" Kara said, firmly, from the edge of the hot-tub, staring down with narrowed eyes.

All three occupants blinked, the moment a frozen tableau with Ginny only a quarter of an inch away from being penetrated...

"What... But I.... Wait, something's wrong..." Davina stammered, confused, as she helplessly found herself letting go of Ginny and awkwardly climbing from the pool, her tiny little body burdened by both her unbelievably huge, round, medicine-ball-sized breast and the outrageously huge strap-on dildo she wore. "Kara, what.. what's going on, this.. this isn't right..."

"No, it isn't..." Kara agreed, firmly, walking over and unstrapping the massive plastic phallus from the tiny, huge-breasted woman's crotch. "You know that you shouldn't steel Mistress Lana's toys like this. It's for her to use on you and Tammy..."

"We know..." Tammy and Davina chorused, even though it was as if it was hauled unwillingly from their mouths, odd expressions of confused fear on their faces. "We're bad little submissive sluts, and we should be punished by being forced to suck lots and lots of disgusting male cocks..."

"Well, if that's what you think you should do..." Kara said, with a sort of dark humor...

...as Tammy's eyes lit up in bimboish excitement, and Davina's in utter horror. Despite the different reactions, the two women both scampered off with the same apparent glee to get ready for their night of punishment.

Standing beside Kara, arms crossed over her huge, heaving chest, Ginny stared up at the athletic woman with a look of mixed awe, fear and reverence.

"You..." She said, stammering. "You..."

"Changed you into a girl, yes." Kara said, with a touch of apology in her tone. "You, however, came into my house pretending to be one - and planning to steal from me, if I'm not at all mistaken. Given what you seemed to be willing to do for popularity, I thought sure our little 'motivation testing' spell would have turned you into a 'happy' little slut of some sort, as it did to most other imbibers. You're desire not to accept some form of fate resulting in near-constant sexual activity caught me quite of guard, I must say..."

The buxom new woman gaped at the self-described gypsy, her mind still spinning despite having gotten her memories back the instant Kara had shown up - there was still just so much 'impossible' events occurring for her to mentally catch up that quickly.

"I.. wanted a new life..." She said, numbly, to shaken to even think of trying deception or evasion. "I knew what I was doing was wrong, but figured any new life would be better than my old one, even if I had to do things I knew were wrong to get it..."

"...but, in the end, you couldn't go through with it." Kara finished for her, with a sigh. "Just as you wouldn't have actually been able to go through with the theft, if I'd been less impatient - or less sure - of myself, and let you work through it without resorting to my magic."

She gestured - and suddenly they were seated again in the study. Ginny - her body still emphatically and unmistakably female, but now dressed in a version of her original 'crushed velvet' outfit that fit her new form - now dry and warm and, physically, comfortable.

"I regret to admit that power does, indeed, corrupt..." Tara said, softly. "For that, I apologize. I had originally come here, sequestering myself in a house of only women, because I have little interest in men, sexually - but I fear that, since the only men I have seen since coming here tend to be ones trying to get into the girl's pants, I have allowed myself to become thoroughly prejudiced, painting all men with that same brush - and using the same 'punishment' on all those men. As you have seen, those other ones, like Dave - and, of course, Tim, who you know as Tammy - deserved their fate... especially since, before long, they truly and honestly become happy with it, getting all the sex they want. You, however.. are not like them, something I commented on without truly believing it. I am sorry, 'Ginny' - and, of course, the instant you step through the front door of the house, you will once more be male, with no memory at all of what has happened here."

"I... See..." Ginny said, slowly, looking down at the deep cleavage displayed by the mesh neckline of the dress. "What... What if I don't go out the front door...?"

"Don't go out the..." Kara started, confused - and then, she blinked, realizing that she'd merely replaced one set of assumptions with another set. "Are you saying...?"

"I.. never really gave it any thought before, because it was never really an option..." Ginny said, slowly, still hardly able to believe she was saying this, her mind awl. "You have just presented me with a whole new option, one that I really haven't had time to truly consider, much less... 'test try'. I... I'm not sure I want to pass on it until I have some sort of chance to take a stroll on the 'greener grass', if you know what I mean."

Kara gaped, stunned - and then took a deep breath. "Okay, let me make sure I have this straight, so there's no confusion - you want to remain female? At least for awhile, until you can see what life would be like, as a woman?"

Biting her lower lip and flushing, Ginny nodded. "I know, I know- I feel so... weird, upset, ashamed? Maybe even perverted? even saying it - but I also feel excited. I mean, I already know that my life sucks as a guy, and I also know that you've given me that

'escape hatch' to go back to that life, if I choose... but, even though, emotionally, I have a hard time accepting it, intellectually I know there's every chance that I might find more of a life as a woman - and I'd like the chance to try, if you don't mind..."

Kara looked thoughtful for a moment - and then, with a look of concentration, waved a hand in the direction of the front door - and then, with a deeper look of focus, made a slow gesture that encompassed the whole house.

"There..." She said, with a tired sigh. "Not only have I removed the spell on the front door, but I've released all the once-male 'Tau Girls' from their enforcement spells. They're still female, but with no particular compulsions on them - and no memory of their male lives, something that they'd appreciate if they could, if you know what I mean..."

Thinking of 'Davina', Ginny thought she did. "You... didn't have to do that, you know."

"I think I did." Tara admitted, ruefully. "Thanks to just happening to be a decent human being, despite the handicap of being born male, I'm no longer so arrogantly self-confident. Besides - you might want 'normal' women around you to help you adjust to your new, if perhaps only temporary, life... as the newest member of the Tau Sorority."

Though still unsure about this - but still feeling about three-hundred-percent better about it than she'd felt about lying, cheating and stealing to get into a fraternity of guys she didn't even like, Ginny smiled back hesitantly.

"As far as anybody knows, you're a new girl on campus - and were raised by ultra-strict, ultra-conservative parents, which will help explain away any... idiosyncrasies... you might display." Tara said, kindly. "Now, what type of female body would you feel more comfortable in, Ginny? Certainly one less, um... 'endowed'..." Tara flushed slightly, something she hadn't done in a long, long time. "I must confess to have a personal preference for buxom women..."

Looking at the slightly blushing woman who'd as much as announced herself as a lesbian, Ginny looked down at the huge breasts so firmly filling her dress...

"Well..." Ginny said, flushing brightly. "I really don't have a preference, and if you get some sort of enjoyment out of seeing me this way...?"

Kara blinked. "Are you sure...?"

Ginny looked at Kara - and then began to giggle.

"I've decided to try being female, which is weird enough, and so far the most 'long-held-fantasy' part of this is that an extremely beautiful woman finds me attractive - except that she's a lesbian gypsy witch who likes my big, fake tits." Ginny said, around her giggles. "I'm not sure of a damned thing right now - but I do know that I won't feel any less, uh, 'weird' about this with smaller breasts, so yes - if you like them the way they are now, then let's keep them this way, at least for now."

"You're willing to keep them... because you like the fact that I find them sexy...?" Tara asked, very slowly and distinctly, sure she'd heard wrong.

Ginny was flushing brightly - but she met Tara's gaze with a long, level look as she slowly nodded.

"I may be female now..." Ginny said, her voice husky, "...but I still have my male sexual preferences, and I find you extraordinarily attractive - and, unlike with Tammy, I'm actually interested in, um..."

She swallowed nervously and waved a hand in the vaguest manner - but Tara managed to catch the drift of her thought. "Are... you sure...?" Tara asked, hesitantly.

Ginny hesitated - then grinned broadly, still blushing brightly. "Hell, no! - but let's do it anyway."

Tara looked long into the new woman's eyes, making sure - then slowly began to smile herself as she rose and sensuously approached the buxom new Tau girl.

A wave of a hand was all it took from the gypsy to remove their clothing, leaving both their bodies bare as she leaned in close for a kiss - a long, slow, deep kiss, not as demanding as the ones Dave and Tammy had forced upon Ginny, but one that was even more pleasurable.

Slowly, Tara's hands traveled downwards to the firm, round breasts she'd given the new girl, her strong-yet-slender fingers moving lightly over the taut, soft skin.

Pulling her lips slightly from Tara's, Ginny grinned.

"I enjoyed the physical sensations of what Tammy and Dave were doing..." She whispered, throatily. "It just didn't feel right, emotionally - but this does..."

Leaning in for one quick, almost hard kiss, Ginny then placed one hand on top of the taller woman's head - and began easing her downward.

Tara didn't resist - at least, not until her lips were level with Ginny's nipples.

Closing her eyes and sighing, Ginny let the gypsy fondle her massive new breasts, feeling very weird indeed about the whole situation - but enjoying it nonetheless, as the warmly expert lips of the lesbian witch worked her fully erect nipples...

...and then slowly slid further downward, needing no more prompting from Ginny.

Letting her head loll back, the new woman slowly spread her smooth new legs wide open, leaving access to a new womanhood that was already warm and moist, ready for what was to come.

With an expert touch, Tara gently pressed her hands against either side of Ginny's new womanhood - then gently eased one thumb into her sopping cunt, even as she leaned forward and lightly licked her engorged clit.

Ginny gasped, hips bucking slightly - but she did nothing to stop Tara as the experienced woman began rolling her thumb with light pressure at the bottom of her cunt, as if rolling her thumb for a fingerprint blotter - while all the time, her lips and tongue were licking, teasing and nibbling at Ginny's clit.

Her own hands coming up to her massive new breasts, the new woman began to gasp and moan in a continues string of pleasure as the other woman's expert ministrations continued, the thumb now giving way to a finger that worked in and out to the now less-steady oral action...

...and then, finger and lips were removed, to be replaced with the feeling of a thick, smooth plastic dildo sliding deep into her sopping cunt.

Ginny gasped and her eyes flew wide open, not having expected this - but she didn't ask Tara to stop as the athletic woman began to rhythmically work the plastic phallus in and out of her eager, ready womanhood.

Quite the opposite...

"Yes..." Ginny moaned, amazed at the pleasure she was feeling. While not actually greater then the pleasure sex had brought her as a man, it was definitely different - and that made it more exciting and enjoyable... "Oh, yes, Tara - harder...!"

The witch complied, the dildo working faster and harder as Ginny squeezed and fondled her own massive tits, writhing in pleasure...

...until her first female orgasm ripped through her, leaving her twitching and screaming in pleasure, her hands suddenly claming on her new tits, hard, in instinctive reaction.

Slowly, as Tara withdrew the dildo, the orgasm faded down into a warm, pleasurable haze, and Ginny smiled down at the gypsy. "A girl could get to like this sort of thing..." Ginny said, warmly.

"I know..." Tara said, holding up the dildo she'd just used on Ginny - which, right before the new girls eyes, become longer, magically transforming into a double-ended strap-on dildo.

"Feel up to round two...?" Tara asked, grinning wickedly...

...and Ginny grinned back, and reached for the dildo.

Yes, indeed - A girl could most definitely get to like that sort of thing... THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: When his ex-girl friend, who is a witch, gets her revenge and changes him into a sex starved bimbo, she may give a choice of which life he wants to lead.

Getting It

By Gunslinger

As he led the hooker towards his motel room, Bryan couldn't help but keep looking back over his shoulder at her.

It wasn't to make sure she was following him - after all, he was going to be shelling out quite a bit of cash for this little bit of 'entertainment'.

No, it was because he couldn't keep his eyes off her tits. Her huge, round, oh-so-wonderfully-fake tits.

Brian's cock was already harder then it had any right to be, throbbing painfully in the confines of his jeans - all because of those tits.

It was those tits that had caused him to pick her up, and it was because of those massive, fake tits that he was going to fuck her brains out.

Bryan was honest enough with himself to know he was a pretty screwed up individual - not that it showed in his 'public persona', of course. One of the major advantages of being aware of your own insanity was the ability to keep it hidden from the general public.

Which was why, to the world at large, Bryan Steadmuller was a vaguely handsome self-made man. At thirty-two, he was a bonafide millionaire, though as far as the rest of the world knew, he was frugal with the money he'd made off a few patents he'd sold.

Everybody who ever met the slightly pudgy, sandy-haired young man with the perpetual smile on his round, pleasant face all said the same thing - that Bryan was an extraordinarily friendly man who was also remarkably kind and polite - especially to the ladies.

Which was true, to a point. After all, in the circles he moved in, they were indeed 'Ladies', or at least reasonable facsimiles thereof, and Brain's very strict, very proper mother had made sure that her son would always be polite to a lady.

However, there were other women in the world, and not all of them fit the criteria for being a lady...

...which is how Bryan had come to have his little psychotic fetish.

In the presence of your average slender, lovely young lady, impeccable and modestly dressed, Bryan couldn't even get it up.

Take that same woman, strip her down to just her underthings, and the best Bryan could do was make gentle, nearly submissive love to her - which he did while pretending that he liked doing so, since it made his social life easier.

After all, he couldn't very well ask your average well-bred lady to wear slutty clothes and extreme high-heels, plenty of make-up and adopt a slutty attitude - though that's what it would take for Bryan to be able to fuck more or less with abandon.

Of course, there were certain women out there who already met those criteria, and so Bryan sought them out when he wanted to indulge in his urges...

...but he'd never found any woman even as close to 'perfect' as this hooker was. Just seeing her had been enough to unleash the near-bestial man within Brain's pleasant-looking body.

She was the antithesis of a 'Lady'.

She wasn't particularly pretty, really - which helped. Indeed with her somewhat too-strong features, she'd 'made up' for it by applying her make-up with a trowel - bright-red lipstick, rouge, heavy fuchsia eye-shadow and plenty of mascara and eyeliner.

Her shoulder-length hair wasn't only blonde, but a lusterless, much-bleached platinum blonde that fell around her face in ungainly waves.

She wore clothes that no real 'lady' would ever even think of wearing: A pair of thigh-high black leather boots that not only had seven- inch high stiletto heels and a two-inch platform, but boasted huge, unsubtle chromed zippers up the outside of each, so perfectly garish and unlady-like. Her ragged jean shorts not only clung to her almost over-full hips and huge, round ass like a second skin, but they were so high and tight that they practically traced the outline of her cunt.

Then there was her top. Her tight, white spandex crop-top.

The one molded to her wonderful massive, unbelievably fake, terrifically whorish tits.

No 'lady' would consider doing such a thing to her body. These breasts weren't just 'big' - they were grotesquely huge, each one like a flesh-colored basketballs somehow merged with the woman's chest. Barely contained within the straining fabric of the top, these breasts were massive, magnificently firm tits that could only be thrust from the chest of a complete and utter slut...

...which ever single aspect of her entire being declared her to be, right down to the over-exaggerated sway of her walk, which not only made her huge, round bubble-butt sway and dip with each wide sway of her full, rounded hips - but also, quite purposefully, made those massive, fake boobs jiggle and bounce, as if they were eager to escape the confines of the tiny top that barely contained them.

Fingers trembling, Bryan unlocked the door to the cheep, scuzzy hotel room he'd rented. As he led the huge-breasted hooker into the unit, he still couldn't believe his lick - Priscilla, his current girlfriend and a 'proper lady', had been called out of town unexpectedly, and he'd just started cruising the streets. Usually, his search for release was a well planned affair, and he usually went well out of town for his search, occasionally even as far as Reno and Vegas - but, recently, Priscilla had been more 'clingy' than usual, and it had been much longer than usual since his last fling, so he'd found himself throwing caution to the winds, and prowling his own home turf...

...and despite the risks to her public person, he was glad he had - for otherwise he wouldn't have found this perfect, huge-breasted, unlady-like whore.

"Come on in..." Bryan said, drooling over her wonderfully ridiculous tits as she jiggled, swayed and bounced her way into the room atop her whorish high heels.

Closing the door, Bryan quickly locked it - then turned right back to the huge-breasted blonde sharing the room with him, his eyes tracing over her fantastically slutty form.

"God, I'm gonna fuck your brains out..." Bryan promised with a wicked grin.

"Oh, you like what you see, huh, big boy...?" The hooker cooed in a husky, come-fuck-me voice that was as patently fake and as wonderfully slutty as her surgically-inflated tits. "My body got your engine revving...?"

"You bet..." Bryan said, taking a step towards her, feeling the 'inner him' he usually kept so tightly contained starting to slip loose. "I'm gonna fuck your brains out, you cheap slut."

"Oh, that's so flattering..." She said in that bored-yet-sexy voice of hers. "You want my body, don't you big boy? Go ahead, hunk, say it - say you want my horny, big-titty whore's body..."

"Yeah..." Bryan grunted in eager agreement, his cock like a throbbing bar of iron in his pants as he took another step closer to his rented pleasure-maker.

"Say it..." She teased, sliding her hands over her bare belly and lightly across the massive tits thrust so ridiculously far out from her ribcage. "Say it, hunk..."

"I want your horny, big-titty whore's body..." Bryan said, hungrily...

...and the world seemed to spin around him, and when the momentary vertigo passed, he blinked - and found himself staring at.... himself.

"What the fuck...?" Bryan demanded of the look-alike of himself, standing near the unit's door...

...only to hear a husky, 'come-fuck-me-if-you-want' female voice emerge that drove home the realization that the Bryan standing across wasn't a 'look-alike' - and that he wasn't looking at himself:

She was.

Looking down, Bryan felt the waves of much-bleached hair caressing her over-stated cheekbones as her long-lashed eyes widened and her over-full, over-painted lips dropped open in disbelief.

She was staring down at the massive, artificially round tits she'd been drooling over - but she'd never imagined she'd be seeing the huge - and surprisingly heavy - boobs from quite this angle...

"Why, what do you think happened, darling?" 'Brian' asked, sarcastically. "Just the usual - once again, the high-and-mighty Bryan Steadmuller got what he asked for..."

The tone and timbre of the voice was Brian's - but the cadence and speech pattern was not. They were, however, familiar...

"Pr.. Priscilla...?" The huge-breasted whore housing Brain's persona said in that damnably whorish voice, stunned. "But... how... why...?"

"Just correcting a minor mistake, my dear..." The man answered, the tones of Priscilla's mind spilling out in the sound of Brain's own voice. "You see, I come from a very... interesting family, and we have a few little... quirks. As it happens, I know all about your little 'business trips', because I've been watching every move you make in my crystal ball. I just decided to correct a mispronunciation you keep making while telling the cheep whores your fuck about your 'stuck up girlfriend'. You see, you kept pronouncing it as 'bitch'..."

The huge-breasted new woman gaped at the image of her old body, even the massive weight from her huge new bust momentarily forgotten in the shock.

"You're a... witch?" She gasped, barely hearing the bored/horny voice of her new form.

"One of my ancestors barely missed being stoned at Salem." The witch in Brain's body said, smugly. "We've sort of kept it quiet after that - except for when good enough reasons came up, like now."

The new woman staggered back, until her bubble-butt pressed hard into a wall, feeling like two fully-packed, highly-sensitive feather- down pillows grafted in place. "But... I.. You can't..."

"Oh, yes - I can." Bryan said, bitterly, the familiar lips curling in a cruel smile that the original owner had never worn. "You see, I like being a woman, and so I'm going to change myself back at the end of the evening. That means you have until I get bored of this male body to 'help' me decide who should vanish - Bryan Steadmuller..." He jerked a thumb at his own body, then swung the hand around and pointed at the stunned new woman. "...or Brianna Bobbies."

The newly-christened Brianna gaped at the man playing at being Bryan Steadmuller. "You.. You don't mean..."

"Oh, but I do..." Bryan said, sitting down on the edge of the bed. "You be a good little whore, and do everything I tell you, and I'll switch out bodies back before becoming myself again. Otherwise, I use this body to become my normal self again - and leave you just like you are."

Brianna gasped, horrified. "You.. You can't do that...!" Bryan didn't answer.

He didn't have to. Brianna didn't even need a mirror to feel the new and undeniably feminine sensations of the body she wore - the over-full packed sensation of her huge new ass, the swish of bleached hair surrounding her face, the feel of tight denim pulled almost painfully tight across her new - and disturbingly moist - cunt...

...and, above all, the heavy, jiggling weight of her massive new bust, all of which argued that Bryan could.

"Don't be shy on my account..." The man on the bed said, cruelly, crossing arms over an admirably flat, male chest that the huge-breasted whore longed to have. ""e both know how eager you are to get your hands on those huge, fake boobs of yours, so go right ahead... Brianna.""

"Priscilla... Please...!" Brianna sobbed a broken plea.

The man's face hardened. "My name for now is Bryan!" He snapped - and then a cunningly cruel look returned to his face. "Of course, if you're not yet comfortable with playing with your huge titties in front of a man, I can give you plenty of time to work up your nerve. How does a whole lifetime sound to you, Brianna...?"

Shaking in both horror and humiliation, Brianna bit her full new lower lip - and tasted the waxy flavor of the garish crimson lipstick she wore.

She closed her eyes - and felt her long, thick lashes flutter against each other.

She took a long, deep breath - and felt the near-painful compression of the straining spandex over her massive and damnably sensitive new boobs as her chest expanded.

She couldn't bring herself to believe that this was happening - yet she couldn't dismiss it either, for the consequences would be feeling these sensations forever...

Hesitantly, eyes still closed, Brianna lifted trembling hands and lightly touched her new fingers to the taut fabric covering the sides of her massive, spherical new breasts.

The new sensation assaulted her, unwanted pleasure mingled in the with horrified humiliation she felt as she hesitantly traced her long, blood-red new nails over the taut fabric.

"Oh, come on - you can do better than that." Bryan said, in disgust. "Grab those huge boobs of yours! Squeeze them! Play with them!"

Eyes still closed, body shaking in disgust, Brianna did as instructed, forcing herself to grip more tightly to the unwanted bust, feeling the firm give of the fully-packed tit-flesh behind the stretchy fabric as she squeezed them together and lifted them up. Even as they bulged up and out the top of the spandex garment, threatening to spill free from its confines, she shuddered at the pleasant sensation her touch was creating even as she was newly amazed at the sheer mass of the huge, saline-pumped tits.

"Work those boobs, baby..." Bryan taunted. "Show them off, play with them..."

Sliding the palms of her slender new hands until they were centered on her massive new tits, Brianna squeezed, hard - and gasped at the pleasure that thrummed from her swollen chest, causing the low warmth in her crotch to increase, a disturbingly pleasant damp, slick sensation.

"Still not taking the top off...?" Bryan snorted. "Gee, maybe you're ashamed by how tiny your boobs are..."

Brianna's eyes flew open and she let out a strangled gasp as, beneath her hands, her already freakishly huge tits began to grow even bigger.

She gasped because of the strange sensation of internal pressure that occurred as they started to swell.

She gasped because of the external pressure as the already straining crop-top grew even tighter over her swelling mounds. She gasped... because it felt fantastic.

"What.. are you doing...?" Brianna gasped, squirming uncomfortably as the rising wetness of her crotch increased with the growing pleasure in her breasts, even as she hurriedly moved to yank off her tightening crop top.

"Oh, I thought if your breasts were going to be bigger, they should also be more sensitive... whoa, lookit those puppies!"

Brain's gasped was the result of Brianna's desperate struggle to remove the now-too-small crop-top. With a soft 'pop', the taut fabric had finally cleared the center-point of her bulging bosom, and finally came free - leaving her massive, now-enlarged tits free.

As Brianna tossed the top aside and gaped down at her enlarged bust, her massive new tits - each now the size of a medicine ball - jiggled and bounced once, twice.. and then settled back against her ribcage, still impossibly firm and round, and now even more impossibly huge.

"Better..." Bryan snickered. "Now, go on - play with your huge, sensitive new tits..." Whimpering low in the back of her slimmer new throat, Brianna reluctantly obeyed...

...and then was shocked and ashamed by how hard she had to maintain that reluctance, as pleasure flowed from the manipulation of her hands on the tautly soft flesh of her enormous tits.

"Feels good, doesn't it?" Bryan said, with a cruel chuckle. "Go ahead, really do them over - grab those nipples of yours and tune in Tokyo, baby..."

"I..." Brianna gasped, hands kneading the smooth, firm flesh of her huge, heavy tits with unwanted passion. She brought her fingers in towards the small nubs of her nipples tipping each ridiculously over-inflated breasts, and hesitantly let her long nails make failed attempts to 'tune' them. "I.. can't..."

"Let me help..." Bryan suggested...

Brianna gasped as her nipples suddenly swelled outwards between her lightly-questing fingers. Suddenly, the pincers of thumb-and- forefinger on each hand found themselves full of warm, this, erect nipple...

...and the new whores knees nearly buckled at the pleasure that emerged as she squeezed them tightly and began to pinch, twist and tweak them energetically.

"No... Too... pleasurable..." She gasped, trying not to feel the amazing pleasure from her hyper-sensitive new nipples - and failing miserably.

Being a woman was bad.

Being a huge-breasted woman with tits the size of medicine balls and nipples each as thick and long as her pinkie finger was worse.

Finding some sort of pleasure, especially a type of pleasure easily the equal of any she'd ever felt as a man was the most humiliating, the most disgusting, the most... disgustingly enjoyable of all.

"Oh, look - my huge-breasted whore's getting all horny from playing with her big ol' titties..." Bryan said with patently false compassion.

It was true. She didn't want to feel this way, but she couldn't help it - playing with her newly-swollen tits and nipples had gotten Brianna sopping wet, the taut fabric covering - and slightly pushing into - her tight new cunt was rubbing across her swollen clitoris and causing her disturbingly pleasant female arousal to increase in power.

Almost against her will, Brianna found one of her hands sliding off her massive, super-sensitive tits and gliding southward, to where a frustrating, wonderful, painful pleasure begged to be satisfied...

"Ah, ah..." Bryan said, warningly, as Brianna's hung, trembling with both shame and need, undid the buttons of the skin-tight shorts. "You bring yourself off, and you stay female..."

Fingers poised near her sopping, needful new cunt, Brianna gaped at Bryan.

Smiling, the man slowly peeled off the shirt and pants he'd undone while watching Brianna play with herself - and revealed a leaner, harder body than had previously been there...

...and a longer, thicker cock than it had ever possessed before.

"Of course..." The muscular, better-endowed Bryan said, mock-thoughtfully, as he exposed his hard new figure. "If you were to ask very, very nicely, maybe I'd be willing to help you out with your little problem..."

"No..." Brianna gasped in horror at the thought, the shame and disgust finally strong enough to allow her to yank her hands away from her damnably sensitive new body and it's 'perverted', feminine sexual craving.

"Suit yourself..." Bryan said with a shrug, reclining back on his elbows on the bed, his thick, throbbing eleven-incher thrust up in the air.

Keeping her hands away from her over-exaggerated new body, Brianna tried to think about baseball, ice-hockey, and other non- sexual sports...

...and failed miserably.

Female arousal wasn't anything like male arousal. It was internal... and self-sustaining.

She was already painfully horny, and even as she tried to calm herself down, she found her hands wanting to rise back up, touch her hideously sensitive new body, play with her gorgeously grotesque tits...

...and finger her hot, tight, sopping-wet-and-painfully-ready to the much-needed release of orgasm. "...please..."

"Hmmm?" Bryan said, feigning hearing problems. "What was that?"

"Please..." She repeated in a voice filled with anguish at the humiliation of what she was doing. "Please, I'm... I'm so horny..." "I see..." Bryan said, thoughtfully. "Are you suggesting that I might be able to help? In what way, pray tell...?"

Biting her full lip at the shame of being forced to ask for this, explicitly, Brianna's desperate arousal gave her the impetuous needed to say such a disgusting thing: "Please... I.. I need to be fucked..."

"Oh..?" Brian said, thoughtfully. "Who's asking, for what, and why...?"

Choking back a frustrated, humiliated, enraged sob, Brianna forced herself to give the answer her tormentor wanted to hear:

"Please, your huge breasted little whore is so horny..." She managed to force herself to say - to admit - to him. "Please, I want... I want to fuck your huge, thick cock. Please."

"well, if you're desperate enough to beg..." Bryan said, pointedly, slithering back on the bed, huge cock throbbing invitingly, calling to Brianna's hot, wet, painfully ready cunt.

"Please, I need to fuck you huge, thick cock!" She said, feeling something inside her tear as she threw her humiliation to one side and gave full throat to her hot, hungry needs. "I need you big, thick man-meat in my tight, wet cunt! I need my pussy filled with your massive cock! I need it so bad! You big-titty whore needs to be fucked...!"

Bryan waved a hand...

...and Brianna staggered back with helplessly sensual steps atop her high, slender heels as she realized with disgusted horror what had just emerged from her full, feminine lips.

"It's amazing what a woman will say when she has three times the normal hormone production of your average woman, isn't it?" Bryan said, casually.

"What the fuck did you do to me...?" Brianna demanded, stomach rolling in disgust at how easily she'd almost given in to 'perverted' lusts, how much she'd actually wanted to fuck a man...

...to act like the huge breasted whore she appeared to be.

"You... You had me begging... to fuck you...!" She gasped in horror, revolted at the thoughts and desires that had been housed in her hyper-aroused mind.

"Oh, don't worry - I wouldn't fuck you." Bryan said, snidely. "I'd never fuck a woman with such itty-bitty tits. I only like women with really big boobs..."

...and then he waved a hand again.

A renewed wave of desperate sexual need his her - but this time she was aware of it's source and it's power, and her mind gibbered in disgust at the urges it brought forth as her huge nipples went as hard as rock and she began to pant in desperate lust.

"Please... no..." She begged, her entire body crying out for satisfaction. She was literally trembling from the force of her desire, her body crying out for release.

"Stop it, please..." She begged... as, helpless to stop herself, she began lightly stroking the outside of her firm, full thighs. Stroking that was getting steadily more powerful - and moving steadily inwards on her legs towards her crotch.

"God.. so.. horny..." She gasped, struggling to control her hands...

...and failing.

"Please.." She gasped, knowing what she was doing - and, unlike before, having to force her way through that befogged realization. "Please.. I... I need... sex..."

Bryan didn't say anything, simply staring at her with a wicked expression - while one hand lightly stroked the massive, throbbing cock she couldn't tear her eyes off.

She sobbed...

...and gave in.

"Please, make my tits bigger..." She begged in object submission, lowering her head to hide the 'unmanly' tears leaking down her cheeks. "please, do whatever you want to me so that I can fuck your thick, hard cock. I'll do anything, let you do anything to me, as long as I can filly my hot, wet cunt with your cock."

"That's more like it... whore." Bryan said, with satisfaction...

...and Brianna gasped and shook with hideous pleasure as her already massively out-sized breasts swelled even larger.

They were freakish masses of round, firm breast-flesh thrust with perverted pride from her ribcage. Each one was as big and as round as a small beach-ball, and each was tipped by an equally huge, erect pink nipple.

They were massive. They were huge.

They were...

"Gorgeous!" Brianna cried, with a giggle. "Oh, thank you Bryan, my huge new bimbo-boobies are so beautiful!" She hadn't wanted to say that - but she couldn't help herself.

Even knowing that it was something Bryan had done to her mind didn't lessen the near-ecstatic emotional pleasure she got from seeing - touching - her wonderfully gigantic new titties. They were so big and slutty and whorish, just the way she loved them to be, and waves of pleasure thundered through her at having such sluttish, bimbo-perfect boobies like that all her own...

...even if she knew that, just a minute ago, they would have horrified.

""Thank you, Bryan - thank you!" She found herself helplessly driven to say - as she scampered eagerly towards the promised cock for her sopping wet and oh-so-eager cunt.

'My god - I'm a huge-breasted, sex-obsessed bimbo...!' She thought to herself with a frisson of horror - and yet she couldn't stop herself, couldn't use that knowledge to even begin and tame the imposed desires and thoughts Bryan had placed in her body and brain.

When she eagerly threw herself on top of the bed and entered her first sexual liaison as a female, it was in the form and with the function of a sex-crazed slut.

She would have needed to take the time to remove her boots to get the shorts off - so, in a burst of desire-driven strength, she simply ripped apart the thin swatch of tattered cloth separating the legs of the garment, allowing her to rip it free and expose her sopping wet cunt.

"So very horny!" She told Bryan brightly, the excess of hormones flooding her body acting like drug on her mind, blowing away the ability to form complex thoughts.

All she was thinking about was sex. Sex was all she was, all she wanted, and all she needed. What had come before, what may come later - none of this had any space to be held in the simple, sexually-driven mind of the massive-breasted woman who eagerly straddled the man on the bed. Her thighs, slick with the juices running from her over-aroused new cunt, spread wide - and she only had one more thing to say to the well-endowed man beneath her before she started:

"Play with my big bobbies, Bryan!" She said, with a mindless giggle of anticipatory pleasure...

...and then, without thought or hesitation, she impaled her ready cunt on all eleven inches of his man-meat, taking him right up to the hilt.

'Who thought getting fucked by a huge cock would feel so good?' she asked herself, the closest her hormone-addled mind would get to recognizing the humiliation and horror of having sex as a woman. 'God, I love a huge, thick cock in my cunt!'

It only got better.

Using skills she didn't know she had, she began to ride atop the recline man, thrusting herself eagerly atop his rigid, throbbing love- pole - and squealing in mindless sexual delight at the intense pleasure her super-sensitive cunt created from the slick friction. With each hard, eager thrust, her wonderfully gigantic bimbo-boobs bounced and jiggled heavily - even as a bucking Bryan did his level best to maintain some sort of contact with the enormous tits that not only filled, but overflowed, his grasping hands.

"Fucking, fucking, fucking...!" Brianna cried, cheerfully. "Fucking a huge thick cock!"

She increased the pace and power of her thrust, eyes now huge and mindlessly bright, as vapid and empty as the huge grin she wore on her face.

"I love cock!" She screamed in joyous realization. "thank you for making me a big-boobed bimbo, Bryan! Thank you for letting me fuck a thick, huge cock! Thank you... mmm.. thank.. you..."

Coherent speech became the next casualty of her degrading intelligence as the rising pleasure demanded more and more from her steadily less-capable mind.

Her movements became instinctive, frantic and steady, her hips bucking and thrusting wildly as she gasped and moaned while staring mindlessly out into space, the small corner of her mind still capable of doing anything other than receiving the intense pleasure monitoring the increasing nearness of her first, wonderful female orgasm...

...and a bare instant before it hit, a gasping, writhing Bryan waved his hand.

Brianna's mind returned to her as her hormonal high instantly vanished, allowing her unaffected male mind experience the full and awesome power of it's first female orgasm for itself.

She screamed in mingled orgasmic pleasure and horrific dismay as her returned mind registered the sensations she was feeling - the heavy, almost painful thumping of her freakish tits as she still - helplessly - thrust herself atop Bryan in a near-instinctive need to maximize and prolong the horrifically wonderful pleasure she was horrified to be feeling.

Even as the orgasm overwhelmed her, turning her into a shuddering overabundance of orgasmic feminine flesh, disgust and shame at what she'd just done - what she just so enjoyed doing - flooded through her, tearing her internal male self-image and savagely wounding his residual male pride.

As the last, shuddering waves of orgasm ran through her body, the new woman collapsed off of Bryan and curled up on the bed, sobbing in disgust at what she'd done...

...what she'd enjoyed...

...what some awful, perverted, traitorous part of her wanted to do again.

After several long moments while she fought to maintain her tottering sanity, she became aware that Bryan had climbed off the bed. Blinking her tear-laden lashes, the huge-breasted woman looked up...

...and realized with dawning horror that Brian was dressed, and heading for the door.

"What.. where..?" The horrified, disgusted woman said, stunned. "You.. You can't leave! You can't leave me like this!"

Bryan grinned. "Actually, I enjoyed sex as a man so much, I'm no longer in an all-fired hurry to go back to being female - especially since, as Bryan, I'm now wealthy, as well."

"No..." The mammoth-breasted blonde gasped in horror. "Please... don't leave me like this..."

Bryan started to sneer - then paused, a thoughtful look coming into his eyes...

...and a cruel smile coming to his lips.

"I'll tell you what..." Bryan said, slowly. "I could use a huge-breasted mindless bimbo slut - but not a screwed up man in a woman's body who hates her new life. So, I'll give you a choice: You can have your mind permanently altered to be my eager little cock-loving slut, and I'll take good care of you... or I can leave you with the body you had when you first became Brianna, and your original mind, and you can live your life like that, alone..."

She stared at him, horrified by the choices presented to her - and not sure which fate was worse.

Loosing herself in the body and mind of a huge-breasted slut, mindlessly happy but... well, no longer really a person. Or a man's mind trapped in the body of a big-titted whore...

"Tick, tock..." Bryan said, impatiently, thoroughly enjoying the look of twisted despair on Brianna's face. Closing her eyes and taking a deep breath, Brianna considered the options - then came to a decision. Opening her eyes, she looked Bryan full in the face, and opened her full new lips to give him his answer... THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: Three homeless men find themselves transported to a different place and a different time.

Ghosts Of Christmas Past

By Gunslinger

The old house creaked and moaned softly, almost as if alive, it's aged and worn wooden bones and plaster skin giving voice to more the a hundred years of experience and memories. Whatever pleasant memories may have been, though, they were superseded with the travails of the present, the low moan of the cold December wind thorough warped and ill-fitting windows creating a sound that was chilling and melancholy.

It was even worse in the attic, where the insulation was the oldest and thinnest, and the small vents to allow air flow did just that, a cold stream of air whipping and twisting the flames atop the trio of candles that struggled to light the cluttered, claustrophobic loft.

The three men in the room were poorly dressed for such a cold location, their clothes tattered and frayed. Though chronologically young, each of the three men's faces bore a world-weary look that could have made them as old as the house in which they stood, their skinny shoulders bowed under the weight of their woes as they searched through the collection of once-prized items in search of something to burn.

"Geez, guys..." Ron said, slumping down on an old sea-chest and looking around sadly. "Somehow, burning any of this stuff doesn't feel right..."

Jack, the dark-haired 'leader' of their little group, looked up with a sad smile of his own. "Yeah, I know what you mean." He looked out over the sea of boxes, crates and chests. "There must be a century worth of memories in here."

"Come on, guys." Alex said, pulling the tattered toque of his long, greasy blond hair and running his fingers through the tousled locks. "I know it feels lousy - but this place is gonna be demolished in a week or two. If there was anybody in the family who was gonna collect this stuff, they would have already."

"I... guess so." Ron agreed, grudgingly.

The old, abandoned Victorian home had seemed a godsend to the three young men. In their mid-twenties, all three had ample experience with coping with winter, having been on the streets for a decade. They'd slept in Goodwill Drop-Boxes, on sewer and subway grates, anywhere they could find shelter from the cold, unforgiving world around them. Sometimes, when they were really desperate, they sheltered at churches or homeless shelters - but only in the final extremity.

They were too afraid of getting caught.

It had been when they were fifteen. The three of them had been out in the woods, Jack having stolen a couple of his dad's cigarettes. He'd been the only one with a parent at all, though his dead-beat and drunkard dad was barely a parent. At least he didn't live in the foster home the other two shared, though it was a matter of locale and freedom rather than quality of life.

They'd been heading deeper into the bush to try their first cigarettes, like so many other youths did in their time - when they come across the most horrific thing of their young lives.

They'd stumbled across a corrupt pair of cops, just as the cops were executing some guy. Seeing one of the cops gun down the man with a large-caliber pistol, the boys had cried out in shock - and the cops had seen them, and taken off after them. The boys had run, as the cops shot at them... and then the cop in the lead had tripped as he'd drawn close to Alex, and fallen on top of them. They'd struggled...

...and, somehow, Jack had ended up with the gun in his hand... and a dead cop at his feet. The second cop, his service revolver empty, had taken off - but the boys had known what would come next. They'd watched enough cop shows to know that the gun that had killed the guy in the woods was the one Jack had killed the cop with - and now it had Jack's fingerprints on it. The second cop would claim it was the boys who did the killing - and it would become a case of the boys words against the cop's.

Maybe in the movies, the truth would come out and the boys would be free - but this was real life. The boys had been on the run ever since - after all, there was no statute of limitation on murder...

"Hey... how about this?" Ron asked, holding up a bundle of paper. "What is it?" Jack asked.

"Uh... here, look." Ron said, handing the top piece of the bundle over.

It turned out to be an envelope. On the outside of the aged parchment-style paper was the address of 'Mr. Brown, Esq.', and inside was a sheet of paper with elegant cursive writing - an invitation to a Christmas party, at the address of the house they were in.

"Huh - I guess they were planning a party one year, and it didn't happen." Alex said. "Musta been a long time ago, considering how old these are."

"Yeah, well, I have the feeling that there's a lot of things that haven't happened in this house for a long time." Jack said, sadly. "God - wouldn't it be great to actually be able to have a Christmas party here?"

"Yeah..." Ron said, a catch in his voice. "A Christmas tree... some eggnog... presents..."

"Christmas dinner..." Alex chimed in. "Turkey and stuffing... Mashed potatoes..."

The three of them paused, glancing away quickly to hide the glitter of tears in their eyes from each other. Though they tried to seem tough enough to outlast this life they'd fallen into, certain times of the year were very hard - and Christmas was the worst. For ten years, none of them had been able to live the storybook Christmas - yet all of them could remember Christmases of when they were young.

Maybe they weren't storybook Christmases, but they'd been good times nonetheless, and the memories were bittersweet to the homeless boys.

"Well.." Jack said, clearing his throat. "Let's... lets find something else to burn. Some of the glasses in this box are wrapped in old newspaper. That should do it."

Putting the pile of invitations down on top of the chest, they gathered up some yellowed newsprint and tramped downstairs.

Gathering some of the dry old wood objects they'd also collected, each of the boys headed off to their 'bedroom' for the 'night'. They hadn't found the house until late, and they had waited even longer before risking the light of candles through the glass, and now it was nearly dawn before the boys finally headed off to bed.

Alex had the 'Parlor', a large room filled with heavy, once-ornate furniture that was slowly rotting away. Starting a fire in the fireplace along the wall, he gathered up with least deteriorated throw-pillows and cushions, and formed himself a bed in front of the fire place, pulling his tattered Army Surplus blanket over himself as he savored being truly warm for the first time in much too long.

Jack was also savoring the warmth. He was bedding down in the kitchen, where there was an old-fashioned wood stove, in which he'd started a fire. Sliding into the old sleeping bag he'd managed to scrounge, he balled up his jacket as a pillow and settled in, the smell of wood-smoke fragrant and comforting in the darkened old house.

Ron also felt nostalgia tug at his memory from the fragrance of wood smoke as he curled up on top of the billiard table in the study. The small, darkly-ornate room also boasted a bar, but Ron's luck had held true, and there was no booze left. Still, opening the tops of some of the empty decanters added the faint fragrance of long-gone Scotch and sherry to the room, and it was to these combined odors that he slipped into blessed sleep.

* * * * *

The wind slackened in the night, a deep calm falling over the entire area as the weather fronts moved on, leaving the night clear and still, if frightfully cold. Elsewhere, police were rounding up street people by the paddy-wagon full, to avoid any near-Christmas deaths do to the extremely low temperatures. They searched the usual haunts of the homeless - but it never occurred to anyone to check the old house on the edge of town, which had lain empty for the past dozen years.

High above where the boys slept, twitching and moaning from nightmares that never quite went away, the pile of invitations stirred. Though no wind moaned through the vents at each end of the long loft, they danced and shivered as if in a breeze...

...and then, suddenly, to wing. As if borne atop an unseen, unheard wind, the aged envelopes fluttered the length of the room and through the octagonal vent at the north end, fluttering off into the deep, still night, as the old house continued to murmur to itself with contentment.

* * * * *

Alex was having the usual nightmare, in which gigantic trolls, dressed in bizarre police uniforms, were chasing him through a forest that never ended. The branches seemed to grab at Alex, trying to hold him in place so that...

Slowly, something began to intrude in his dream, Something that didn't fit. Music. Somehow, bright music was filtering through the forest.

Slowly, the nightmare slipped away as Alex slowly rose from the depths of sleep, towards consciousness. But even as the darkness of the sleep transitioned into the flickering firelight that signaled wakefulness, the music didn't fade away. Indeed, as

Alex came fully awake, he even recognized the tune. Scratchy and tinny, it filled the room with the unmistakable lyrics of 'Deck the Halls.'

"Wha...?" Alex said, his heart starting to pound in 'fight or flight' instinct. Quickly, he tossed off the tattered blanket and rolled off the pile of cushions, coming quickly to his feet and glancing around.

He stopped, suddenly, his breath catching in his throat.

The room was filled with a strange, eldritch light. It was as if a faint, luminous mist was filling the room - but it did more than just great a faint golden glow that filled the room, it also seemed to transform the room itself.

Gone was the tattered drapes that had framed the windows. In their place hung rich burgundy velvet drapes, held open over the gauzy white curtains by gold-colored ropes. Gone was the mold old furniture - in its place, perfectly kept antique furniture filled the room, heavy and tasteful and expensive.

The far wall was taken up by an old-fashioned cherry-wood cabinet, open to reveal an expensive stereo system. No longer 'top-of-the-line', the stereo equipment had been exactly that when it was new, and it seemed impossible for the two-year-old sound system to be producing such a tinny, wavering sound.

Suddenly, the light began to swirl and dance, rippling in ways that created patches and swirls. Where it gathered in thicker banks of luminous mist, the images of the furniture were brighter, more solid, more... there, somehow.

In the thinner patches, the 'real' room showed through, dingy and dark and decaying.

Slowly, the swirling began to slow, forming a recognizable 'form'. Within minutes, the room was divided by a shimmering, wavering curtain, like a sheen of golden water. On one side, the room was brightly lit by electricity that didn't even exist in the 'real' room, the furniture clean and new and 'real'. The music on that side of the room had filled out, become rich and strong, sounding every bit as it should from the stereo system that was only half in existence.

The other side of the room was as Alex remembered it. Cold and lifeless, except for the small fire that burned in the half of the stone hearth, mirror on the 'other' side by a carefully laid fire that burned brightly and almost redundantly in the heated room.

Alex gaped at the room on the other side of the shimmering curtain, the one that was so warm and inviting. He was standing in the 'real' room, only inches from the dividing line. Hanging in mid-air, perfectly on the dividing line and as if surrounding an invisible shape, was an outfit of clothes.

Women's clothes.

"What the hell..." Alex whispered to himself in shock. Slowly, hesitantly, he reached out and touched the shimmering wall of golden light.

It gave slightly at the touch, like rubber... but only so far. It served as an impenetrable barrier between the room he stood in, and the one that beckoned from a place simultaneously so close, yet so very far away.

"Jack...?" Alex called, loudly, afraid to glance away from the warmly inviting room beyond the barrier, as if it might vanish. "Ron...?"

There was no answer. The house lay silent and still, as if he were completely and utterly alone.

Slowly, Alex moved down the shimmering curtain, until he stood exactly where the outfit hung in mid air. From this close, he could see something startling; the outfit was only half there. It sat directly on the dividing line, and the back half of the outfit was missing, hanging empty and open like some sort of three-dimensional cut-away drawing.

The outfit looked to be quite classy - and expensive. From where Alex stood, there was no doubt that the outfit was worth more money than he'd ever dreamed of having at one time.

The very bottom was the front half of a pair of black leather boots. Though they were knee-high, and the angle of the sole indicated they had heels of some height, these were not 'slutty' boots. They were expensive, soft leather, and very elegant looking. Tucked into these boots was an equally elegant, expensive pair of black leather pants - well, the front half of them, anyway.

The shirt that hung in mid-air above them was white silk, and on the inside - the side facing him - he could see the bra that hung in position. The bra was white and lacy, and pressed its C-cups against the silky fabric as if they were filled. On the outside of the shirt was the front half of an expensive black leather jacket that was thin and light - a fashion statement rather than outerwear.

A pair of what appeared to be silver and diamond earrings hung in mid-air at the right height. Half a pair of earrings, that was. Alex swallowed nervously, and looked around again.

"Guys...?" He called, without much hope of an answer. There was none.

Swallowing again. Alex nervously took a step closer, until he was right up against the place where the clothes bisected the barrier. Then, slowly, he reached out his right hand...

...and slid it into the sleeve of the shirt. Here, his hand moved easily, no resistance meeting him as he pushed forward. As he watched, wide eyed, a hand emerged from the lacy white cuff at the other end...

...but it wasn't his hand. This hand was slender and feminine, tipped with medium-length, light-pink nails. The slender fingers slid easily into the silver rings that hung in mid-air.

Though the slender, feminine appendage bore no resemblance to Alex's own hand, he could feel the rings as the fingers slid into them, could feel the warmth of the room beyond the barrier.

With a gasp, Alex yanked his hand back. The rings remained exactly where they were, in mid air, as Alex stumbled back from the barrier and stared down at the same old hand that had always graced the end of his wrist.

Alex turned to look at the doorway, tempted to go find the guys... but, somehow, he knew what was being offered her - however impossible as it was - would vanish if he left the room./ Though he didn't understand how or why, Alex knew that some force or magic was offering him a choice - and if he were to leave the room, his choice would be made.

Practically shaking with a mixed-up array of emotions, Alex looked at the shimmering vision on the other side of the barrier. Of the warm, bright room... whose price would be hid very gender.

Alex swallowed nervously, finding his mouth dry. Then, taking a deep breath, he closed his eyes...

...and stepped forward, arms outstretched. He felt his hands slide into the sleeves of the shirt as he had to 'step up' into the halves of the boots. He felt his chest press forward into the fabric of the blouse...

...then he was struck by an instant of vertigo as he stumbled forward a step, moving completely across the barrier.

In that instant, the music surrounded him, strong and alive and 'real', while the blessed, comfortable warmth of the room rushed in to caress his body.

Or, rather, her body. Because, with even that little motion, Alex could feel the new sensations as her long, toned muscles flexed to keep her balanced atop the four-inch heels of her boots. The faint odor of her own, expensive perfume surrounded her, and her earrings jingled slightly as her head swung about.

Gasping, Alex let her new eyes pop open.

There was no sign of the shimmering golden barrier. Instead, she stood in the middle of a whole room, one that was warm and alive. Turning slowly atop her slender new feet within her high-heeled boots, she found that a undecorated Christmas tree sat in the other corner, beside the closed parlor door.

Replacing the faded painting that had hung there before, a large, gilt-framed mirror hung over the fireplace. Alex, stunned, stared at the reflection that gazed back at her.

The woman Alex had become was, quite simply, gorgeous.

She had a slender, supple body under the fashionable, expensive clothes. Balanced easily - almost contemptuously graceful - atop the slender heels on her boots, Alex's new body managed to be both haughty and friendly all at the same time.

Her face was warm and classically beautiful, with well formed cheek-bones, an elfin jaw, and a fine-bridged nose that upturned slightly at the end. Long, blonde hair was kept in check by being pulled up into a sort of 'top knot' formed by her own braided hair, before the braids gave way to loose tresses that spilled from the 'knot' and down to her shoulders.

Her full lips were covered in pink lipstick, and Alex could taste it as she nervously licked her lips before speaking. "Oh, my God..." She said, and heard the warm, sweet soprano that fit the body so well.

Feeling faint, she walked over to the couch and sat down, her new body moving gracefully despite the unsteady feeling of her masculine soul. As she lowered her pert, taut derrière to the couch, she noticed the black leather purse resting on the coffee table. It was the same soft, expensive leather as most of the outfit she wore, and Alex had no doubt that it was 'her' purse.

Reaching out one delicate, feminine hand, she picked up the purse and opened it to extract the wallet that was inside.

The first thing that caught her attention was the thick layer of cash in the billfold section. Stunned, she flipped through it, finding there had to be at least two thousand dollars in cash, not to mention the credit cards - which, like the ID she turned to next, were made out in the name of 'Alexandra Kincaid'.

Looking back at her from her driver's license was an image of her new face. "I..." Alex said, stunned. "I don't even know how to drive!"

Even as she said it, though, she knew it wasn't true. Just as she knew how to walk in high heels, just as she found she knew about make-up and fashion, she realized she even knew how to drive a car - especially her sporty Jag, though she'd switched to her Range Rover for the winter and...

"Oh, my god...!" Alex said, realization setting in. "I.. I'm rich! I'm Alexandra Kincaid, the twenty-one year old heiress to Donald Kincaid."

It was strange. They weren't exactly 'memories', per se. Alex remembered who she had been and all her memories of being the male Alex were intact - but everything she needed to know about her new life was also in her mind, as if she'd read a biography of Alexandra, and remembered it all...

"I... think I could get used to this..." Alex said to herself, with a slowly blossoming smile. Slowly, she rose from the sofa, feeling the new and different sensations from her feminine body and finding them... not unpleasant.

She began to hum softly with the Christmas music on the radio as she walked over to the tree, looking at the open boxes of ornaments that surrounded it.

Feeling supremely content, Alexandra Kincaid began to decorate the tree like she did every year, for the first time in a decade...

* * * * *

The hard floor against his back woke Jack from a sleep that, while deep, wasn't all that restful to begin with.

Blinking up at the ceiling, Jack wondered why his back was sitting directly on the floor. An instant later, as his brain came up to speed, that worry was forgotten - and he gaped at the flood of light that filled the room. Impossibly, the kitchen was brightly lit, as if lighted by electric lamps.

Jerking upright with a startled curse, Jack shot to his feet - then came to a screeching stop at the sight of a room completely unlike the one he'd fallen asleep in.

Oh, the room itself was basically the same. It was still the kitchen, and the layout of the room was the same - but everything looked bright and new, gleaming in the light of the overhead lamp. Bowls of food - obvious a feast in the late stages of preparation, from the looks of it - lay all around, though Jack couldn't smell any of the associated odors that he might have expected.

And, standing at the open back door, a man with a big crate marked 'Wine' was just coming in.

"Who... What..." Jack stammered in confusion, waiting for the man to cry out, or the owner of this impossible feast-in-production to appear...

...but nothing happened. The delivery man didn't even move.

In fact... he didn't move at all. He seemed as frozen as a statute.

Stunned, Jack took a longer, slower look around, his mind trying to make sense of it all.

The back door was wide open, so there should have been a cold breeze coming in - but there wasn't. The room felt completely neutral, temperature wise.

Jack should have been able to smell a mouth-watering array of odors - yet he didn't.

Slowly, Jack walked over to a bowl full of mashed potatoes. Though they looked creamy and delicious, no odor rose from them - and when he touched it with his finger, the soft contours of the food felt as hard and immobile as stone, though it wasn't that cold. Neither was it warm. It was the exact same 'non-temperature' as everything else.

Slowly, Jack walked over to where the delivery man stood on the doorstep. He was holding a dolly on which rested a crate of wine, and in one hand held a clipboard. Past the immobile man, the early-morning scene was as dead still and silent as the kitchen, nothing moving so much as an inch.

Floating in mid-air, just above the clipboard, was a pen.

Stepping closer, Jack stared at the delivery form. The pen hung poised, as if about to sign a name. The spot in which it was positioned was next to a printed name - 'Jacqueline Kramer-Kincaid'.

Staring at the name, Jack felt a strange certainty. Somehow, he knew that this was an offer. That somebody - something - was offering him a chance to leave his own life, and step into the frozen one that surrounded him. The only thing he'd have to do is give up his old life... and old gender.

Stepping back from the clipboard, Jack looked around at the brightly-lit kitchen. It was a homey, domestic scene, warm and cheerful. It looked so warm and inviting - yet, right now, it was as solid and immutable as stone, something he could never be a part of.

Jack stood, thoughtful, considering. He knew what his life had been like until now, and he knew what it would be like if he continued living the way he had. He had no way of knowing for sure what a new life - as this 'Jacqueline' - would be like.

But it had to be better than this, didn't it?

Stepping forward again, Jack reached out - and grabbed a hold of the pen.

A tingle shot through his arm. As Jack watched, stunned, his hand became slimmer, more dainty, the nails growing longer as the change made his wrist narrower and more feminine. The change rushed upwards along his arm, moving faster than he could follow...

"Thank you, Miss Kramer." The delivery man said, taking the pen from Jackie's hand and pushing the crate into the corner. "No... Thank you..." Jackie managed to say, hearing the words emerge in a rich, cultured contralto.

"You have yourself a merry Christmas, Ma'am." The deliver man said, tipping his hat. Jackie didn't respond, trying to cope with the flood of new 'memories' as she slowly walked over to the small mirror and stared at her new face.

Thirty-eight year old Jacqueline Kramer-Kincaid, second wife of the late David Kincaid, was absolutely stunning. Long, rich black hair hung in waves around a face that was beautiful, intelligent and willful. The peasant blouse she wore showed off her slender shoulders and a hint of her B-cup cleavage before hanging over the corset underneath, that was barely needed to pinch the extra two inches from her normally sixteen-inch waist.

A long, full black skirt hit the incredibly long, shapely legs of hers that had caught Dave's attention when he first saw her working as a showgirl in Vegas, and her black leather pumps with their six-inch heels peeked out from beneath the skirt, also revealing the toes of the black nylons she wore.

"Good Lord..." Jackie breathed, staring at her sensuous, full-lipped visage in the mirror. "I'm a woman and twelve years older..." then, slowly, those full, sexy lips curved into a smile. "But I'm single, gorgeous, and rich."

Humming happily in time with the faintly-heard Christmas music coming from somewhere else in the house, Jackie went back to the cooking, expertly and confidently working on recipes she'd never known in her life...

* * * * *

Two sharp, crisp clear sound brought Ron out of his sleep. The sound was unmistakable - the sound of ice cubes dropping into an empty glass.

He was sleeping poorly, barely under and far from the deep REM sleep. He was half awake at the sound of the first cube hitting the bottom of a glass - the sound of the second one hitting the first pulled him all the way out of his sleep, and he sat bolt upright.

The study he was in was brightly lit and fashionably furnished. Everything looked new and expensive, and the tattered, torn felt beneath him had become new and undamaged.

All of this was noted peripherally, though - because Ron's attention was riveted to the bar.

Sitting on the bar was a galls, in which two ice cubes rested. That was the least amazing thing, though - because, as Ron watched, wide eyed, a pair of bottles were pouring themselves into the glass - without the benefit of any human hand. As he watched, wide eyed, the drink continued to mix itself, until a tiny umbrella appeared and nestled itself into the glass, while the bottles returned to the now-full line- up of such bottles behind the bar.

"Guys...?" Ron called, tremulously, as he slowly slid from the pool table. Hearing nor response from anywhere in the house, he slowly approached the freshly-mixed drink laying on the bar.

The drink was a bright pink in color, and was resting beside an open book of bar recipes. The photo in the book matched the drink on the bar to perfection, right down to the style of glass. The heading on the page was 'Pink Lady'.

Straightening, Ron looked around slowly, even walking behind the bar to search for wires. As far as he was concerned, this had to be some sort of elaborate practical joke...

...right?

Finding nothing to explain the inexplicable events, he returned his gaze to the open book beside the drink - and then leaned closer, noticing something decidedly odd.

The recipe didn't include any 'normal' ingredients.

"One part femininity...?" Ron read, aloud, in confusion. "One part sexuality? Add Wealth and Intelligence to taste? Remove masculinity and stir well? What the hell...?"

Suddenly, as if a gust of wind had come into the room, the pages of the book began to flip rapidly, until they settled on a new page - and this one was labeled 'The Fugitive'.

Startled, Ron took a step back from the book - and then two more, as he noticed that the drink on the counter had suddenly changed to match the illustration in the book.

"Holy..." He muttered. Taking a couple steps forward, he picked up the book with trembling hands, and snapped it closed. The glass on the bar was now empty.

Still shaking slightly, he opened the book to the first drink listed - a 'African Queen'. Instantly, the drink on the bar was that of the one in the book.

Ron stared at the drink for a long time. Somehow, he knew what was happening - and he knew what drink he chose would affect the rest of his life - if it was his life after he drink, that was.

Looking down at the book in his hand, he began to slowly page through it, looking at the drinks listed, along with their ingredients.

Finally, he set the book down, staring at the page he'd chosen. He knew that he might be making a huge mistake. Maybe he should have limited himself to the original two options - his old life, and the 'Pink Lady'. Maybe that's what... whatever was doing this... wanted. But, he knew what it was that he really wanted, and the drink that now sat on the counter should give it to him... if he was right, that was.

Taking several deep breaths, Ron reached out, and grabbed the drink. Before he could change his mind, he brought it to his lips and drank it, quickly...

* * * * *

Smiling with satisfaction, Jackie brought out the last of the items and lay it on the huge table taking up most of the dining room. "Well... this isn't bad at all..." She muttered to herself, grinning broadly.

She'd only been female for maybe two hours - but she was adapting well to her lifestyle as a woman, at least as far as it went. She wasn't hungry or cold or scared. Though her new body felt strange to her, it didn't feel bad - in fact, it was more sensitive than her old body, and in such pleasant circumstances, that meant more pleasure rather than more pain. The smells of the food she was cooking seemed sharper and more appetizing, for instance... and she had no way of describing just how good holding a warm bowl of mashed potatoes against her chest felt as she carried it into the dining room, the warmth seeping through her blouse into her highly sensitive new nipples...

She was just beginning to blush at the thought - when she was startled by the sound of a doorbell ringing.

Her doorbell, to be exact. Blinking in surprise, she almost unconsciously undid her apron and hurried out of the dining room into the hall...

...and almost bumped into a beautiful young blonde woman coming out of the study.

Jackie felt the oddest sense of 'doubling' as she recognized the woman... twice. Part of her knew that this gorgeous young woman was her step-daughter, Alexandra - yet, in the same thought, she realized she was looking at Alex, or what her old friend had become.

Alex/Alexandra, for her part, was gaping back, experiencing the same strange sensation. Then the doorbell rang again, and they shook their heads and headed towards the front door. "Where's Ron...?" Alex whispered.

"I don't know, dear..." Jackie said, not even noticing as she threw the endearment in. "I think the question would be 'who is Ron...'?"

They didn't have any more time to discuss their missing friend, however, as they had reached the door. Sharing a nervous look with her 'step-daughter', Jackie opened the door...

...to reveal a very handsome young man standing on their doorstep with a puzzled look.

"Um, ladies... He said, awkwardly, his eyes gravitating between one stunningly beautiful woman and the other before settling on Alex. "My name's Jason... Jason Brown... and I, uh... got this in my mail..." He held up an invitation that both 'women' recognized.

"Oh!" Jackie said, then smoothly sequel into, "You're a little early, Mr. Brown. That's all right, of course, Come on in."

"So... I am invited...?" He said as he hesitantly stepped inside. "Uh, no offense... but I'm pretty sure I would remember having met either one of you before..."

"Oh, we've never met." Jackie said, warmly, the answer coming into her mind the way her 'history' had - and she suddenly understood everything. "However, I understand that your father knew my father - Robert Kramer?"

"Oh, yes, of course!" Jason said. "He used to live here! He used to hold a big Christmas party for his neighbors, before he passed on." "That's right." Jackie said, glancing at Alex, wondering if she knew, too.

"You could almost say that the house itself was just waiting for the chance for another..." Alex said with a grin, and Jackie knew that Alex knew, as well.

"Well, I..." Jason started to say - but was interrupted by the sound of the doorbell. "Excuse me..." Jackie said, starting forward.

"Sorry, Madame... I was... how you say, 'powdering my nose'...?"

The incredibly sweet, heavily French-accented voice was accompanied by the tip-tap of high heels, and both of the new women turned...

...to gape, slack jawed.

Jason didn't notice their sudden surprise, however - as he was too busy gaping himself, staring wide-eyed at the woman jiggling and swaying towards them.

She was... sexy.

That was more than just a simple description - it was the definition for what she was. The woman walking down the hall seemed to exude sexuality from every pore.

She was short, and almost 'petite'. She had the slender build, tiny waist, delicate features and dainty appendages of that definition - but her long legs by themselves were enough to defy the general usage of the term.

Then there was her chest. Oh, yes... her chest...

'Buxom' would be fairly accurate - in the way that calling the Grand Canyon 'a hole in the ground' would be.

This woman's chest was... spectacular. She was dressed up in a very sexy version of a French Maid's uniform, the short skirt amply displaying her long, sexy, nylon-clad legs atop her black platform shoes with their eight-inch heels. However, it was the white-lace-trimmed bodice of this garment that drew the eye - because of the way it strained over a spectacular pair of EEE-cup breasts.

These breasts were... amazing. Incredible. Spectacular. They were firm, and round, and almost unbelievably firm - without being 'hard'. No, they were pillowy and inviting, and jiggled delightfully with each step.

They could have been artificial - but, then, how would you explain the equally massive nipples that made such impudent bulges in the satin of her uniform? Tipping large, thick, pink aureole whose upper curve was just visible above the lacy rim of the neckline, these nipples were 'naturally' equal to the massive breasts they surmounted.

Her cleavage...

Lifted up and out by the bodice-style neck-line, the cleavage was almost too perfect - but not quite. A near-perfect 'Y' shape, it retained just enough imperfection to make it 'believable'.

With breasts like that, you could be forgiven for gaping mindlessly at the glorious, milky-white orbs - except for her face...

Surrounded by masses of mahogany-brown hair, her face was... sensuality distilled. Her eyes were dark, so dark that they seemed all black, and were surrounded by long, thick lashes. In that, they were similar to Jacqueline's eyes - but while Jackie's eyes were sultry and seductive in a challenging manner, this woman's eyes were huge, limpid pools of base carnality - they were too 'simple', too clear, to hide any hidden agendas.

These dark, carnal pools framed a nose that was a tiny, pert snub, just enough to perform the function of breathing - without distracting the least from her mouth.

Her mouth - her full, rose-bud of a mouth. Those pouty, firmly-soft bee-strung lips that practically begged to be kissed. That soft, sensuous mouth that seemed ready to break into a welcoming smile at the slightest provocation... With a face like that, you could loose yourself in her limpid eyes...

...but only at the risk of missing her ass. Mounted on her wide, womanly hips, hips designed for child-bearing, her ass was equally full and firm, begging to be touched, to be fondled. You could spend a life-time alone on that ass... if you could resist the urge to dip downwards to the long, incredibly shapely legs. The black nylons, complete with the seams running up the back, only served to enhance those spectacular, jaw-dropping legs. You could stare at the way her long, shapely legs scissored as she walked, dainty ankles rotating eve-so-sensuously...

...but then you'd miss the way her huge, firm breasts jiggled ever so delightfully... No wonder the trio started - they were trying to decide where to let their eyes settle.

While they were staring, she ankled and jiggled and smiled her way right past them, to get the now-forgotten door. She twisted the knob in a way that was oh-so-sensual... and said "Bonjour!" to a handsome, older man who was gaping, wide eyed, at the vision of sensual femininity before him. "Right this way, monsieur." She chirped, brightly. "Dinner is ready... is it not, Madame Kramer?"

It took a second for Jackie to realize that this... woman was speaking to her.

"Oh - yes." She said, shaking her head. "Just put everything out, as a matter of fact."

"Then why don't I see you ladies and gentlemen to the table, and I will escort the other in as they arrive...?" The woman said, smiling brightly.

"Yes. Of course..." Jackie said, struggling to regain her mental balance. "Thank you..., uh..."

The maid smiled brightly. "Veronique De La Martinique Aux Provinciales..." She said, quickly and fluently, as if introducing herself to the guests, rather than her 'mistress'. "However, Like Madame Kramer, you may call me 'Ronni'."

That left Jackie and Alex gaping anew as their considerably transformed friend led them to the dining room...

* * * * *

"I think I ate too much..." Jackie said with a laugh, sliding her hands over her tiny waist. "If I'm not careful, I'm going to lose my girlish figure..."

'Did I just say that...?' Jackie thought to herself in surprise. Deep down, she knew that some fundamental changes were taking place. Though she clearly recall her life as a man, a new - and feminine - viewpoint was slowly coming into focus.

The thing was - it didn't bother her in the least.

After a magnificent turkey dinner, complete with all they trimming, they'd retired to the parlor for some after dinner drinks. Now, it was growing late and most of the guests had left. Now it was down to the three girls, plus Jason, an older gentleman named Dale, and two teenagers who seemed hopelessly smitten with Ronni. It was the most wonderful evening Jackie could remember having in her entire life. Even before she'd had to go on the run, her life hadn't been this simply luxurious and comfortable. Maybe she was a woman now - but that seemed to have it's good points, as well.

It also seemed to be sitting well with Alexandra. Being rich, beautiful and comfortable seemed adequate recompense for being female. Her viewpoint was also sliding into the feminine range, judging with the comfortable way she was handling the attentions of Jason. Then again - Jackie was obviously Dale's center of attention, and she found that she wasn't exactly screaming in horror at having a handsome man pay attention to her.

Neither her nor Alex's sudden comfort with being female held a candle to Ronni, though. Jackie still couldn't believe what Ron had become - it was obvious that she was vigorously enjoying flirting with the two young men. She was definitely more than just 'comfortable' with her new gender - and sexuality.

"Well, I really should be going..." Dale said - very reluctantly. Jackie rose, elegantly, and started walking him to the door.

"I, uh, wanted to tank you again for inviting me..." Dale said, awkwardly. A widower himself, it was obvious that he was out of practice and trying to find the right way to bring up the subject...

Jackie was only very mildly surprised to find herself solving it for him. "Not at all, Dale - I enjoyed having you here." She smiled, easily. "Perhaps we should try something a little more... intimate. Dinner together, perhaps?"

"I'd like that." Dale said, blushing slightly. "I'll give you a call..."

"Of course.." She agreed, easily, finding that she was really looking forward to it - and what might come from it.

Then, out of the corner of her eyes, she caught a faint golden glow above Dale's head. She looked up - and saw a sprig of mistletoe that hadn't been there a second ago.

"My, look at this..." She said, gesturing upwards. Dale glanced up - and when he looked down again, Jackie leaned forward...

The kiss wasn't hard nor energetic - but slow, and passionate, and very, very pleasant. A life on the run didn't allow for romantic entanglements, and Jackie enjoyed the feeling of the masculine arms around her tiny waist, and the warm, willing mouth upon her own.

Out of the corner of her eye, Jackie noticed Alexandra giving Jason a similar treatment under another newly-created piece of mistletoe... and then closed her eyes and gave herself completely to the kiss.

"Call me." She said, huskily, when they finally broke the kiss. "Soon." "I will." Dale promised, softly.

The two new women watched their potential boyfriends leave, then shared a knowing look with each other. "Merry Christmas, Alex..." Jackie whispered.

"yes - and a very Happy New Year..." Alexandra grinned back.

"Excuse Moi, Madame..." Ronni trilled behind them, and the two women turned to face their buxom, sensual friend/maid.

"It is quite late, and Monsuiers Smith and Jackson..." She gestured at the two starry-eyed young men "...arrived by l'autobus. Perhaps they may stay the night in the guest room?"

Jackie's new 'memories' brought up the layout of the house, and she opened her mouth to point out that Ronni herself was living in the 'guest room'...

...then, blushing, realized that was exactly the point.

"Perhaps.." Jackie said, hesitantly. "Can I speak to you for a second, Ron..ni?"

"Of course, Madame..." Ronnie replied with an easy smile, jiggling and swaying with Jackie into the den.

"What happened to you, Ronni?" Jackie whispered, still finding it hard to believe that whatever benign magic had done this to Alex and her had chosen this outrageously sensual form for Ron.

The new maid quickly explained the process, and the choice she'd been allowed to make. "You mean... you chose this?" Jackie said, amazed.

"Not quite, Madame." Ronni admitted. "I was allowed to choose my lifestyle. This body... was not quite what I expected. However... I find it most pleasant, and would not trade it now for all the world."

"Really?" Jackie said, amazed - then realized that she, too, felt completely comfortable with the new her, and wouldn't trade it either. "Well, if this is what you want - then go ahead."

"Merci, Madame." Ronni said. Swaying atop her high, spike heels, the new maid headed into the hall and collected a young man in each slender, feminine arm and headed for the stairs.

"Oh, by the way..." Jackie called, and Ronni turned. "What... what drink did you have?" Jackie asked.

Ronni smiled brilliantly. "Why, an Orgasm of course, Madame." She laughed, a high, delighted sound. "Joyeux Noel, Madame et Mademoiselle."

As she headed up the stairs, a young man tucked under her arm, Alexandra turned to Jackie with a wry grin. "Why do I have the feeling that she'll have a very Merry Christmas whether or not we wish her one?" She asked.

"Come on, I'll explain it to you over a drink." Jackie said, with a grin. "It's probably nothing but there's a drink recipe book in the Study that I'm just dying to check out "

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: One poor soul gets his redemption from Santa Claus, but it is not quite what he expected.

The Gift

By Gunslinger

'Twas the night before Christmas, and all through the town, the people were scurrying from the snow falling down...

Hands numb with cold, Lee hugged the old Salvation Army parka tighter around his emaciated frame, desperately trying to preserve what little body heat he had.

It was a losing battle.

Even if the old, badly-worn parka had a working zipper, which it didn't, it wouldn't have helped much. Though Lee's thick, matted mane of greasy black hair might have served in place of a toque, and his equally thick and unkempt beard replaced a scarf, the rest of him was leaching precious warmth to the cold wind as fast - or faster - than it could be produced.

His tall frame, once sleekly muscled, was now wasted, without that layer of body-fat that retained heat. Even with the viscous wind to his back, the stick-like legs inside the filthy, pathetically thin trousers barely had the strength to hold him upright, and not nearly enough to generate the activity needed to keep him warm. Even had his legs been up to the task, his feet would have balked - without socks, they were clad only in torn sneakers held together with duct tape, and his feet were like two unfeeling blocks of ice grafted to the ends of his scrawny legs.

It was Christmas Eve - and, barring a miracle, it was the night that Lee Greenfield was going to die. The most amazing thing was - now that he was right up against it, Lee found that he wanted to live.

It was ironic, in a pathetic sort of way. Ever since the industrial accident that had left him a eunuch, he'd let death stalk him, unconcerned. Indeed, he'd made it clear to any who cared to listen that he'd rather have had the malfunctioning machine take his life, rather than his manhood.

It seemed that everything in his life had been tied to that bit of flesh between his legs, as if his penis had been the very center of his life. His loving and devoted wife, having always wanted children, had divorced him, while all his so-called friends had promptly abandoned him now that he wasn't the 'handsome, virile' man he'd once been - at least, so it had seemed. It wasn't until now, slowly freezing to death beneath a highway overpass, that he understood it was his bitterness and self-hatred that had driven them away, not his castration.

Too cold and exhausted to go any further, Lee collapsed against one of the rough concrete pillars that supported the bridge, unable to feel the hard texture of the support through his cold-numbed skin.

Too late, he finally understood that his friends hadn't abandoned him - he had driven them away. Though any of them, even the wife that had so desperately wanted children, would have stood by his side if he'd asked them to, he'd instead let his life become a self- fulfilling prophecy, his belief that a lack of a penis made him less than nothing...

...leaving him with less than nothing.

Just as he'd realized, much too late, that his friends and family would have helped him, had he let them, so did the realization that he wanted to live come too late. Though he struggled to rise, to continue on to a homeless shelter that would provide life-sustaining warmth, food, and respite, his wasted body finally repaid the neglect he'd shown it, refusing to move.

Slumped against the column, body slowly going numb, Lee stared out at the swirling, driving snow...

...and blinked, as an apparition appeared out of it.

At first, Lee was sure it must be a vision, a hallucination created by a dying mind - but the vision grew nearer and clear, resolving itself into a living being. A man, his rotund body clad in garments as bright red as his rosy cheeks, and trimmed in fur as white as his long beard.

"Ho, ho, ho - what have we here?" Santa called out in jolly surprise, coming to stand in front of Lee with an avuncular look on his smiling face. "A poor soul, alone on Christmas Eve...?"

As if unaware of the dying twenty-nine year old man's mortal position, the heavy-set man in the Santa Claus costume crouched in front of Lee, still smiling brightly.

"And what do you want for Christmas, m'boy?" Santa asked, with a chuckle. "New clothes and shoes? Or perhaps, a nice, warm bed to sleep in?"

Staring at the improbable vision before him, Lee was amazed to find himself neither enraged or outraged at the man's callousness. Instead, oddly, lee felt a strange, profound trust for the man before him - and it was that strange feeling that made him want to answer honestly the question that was asked. Even as he felt himself dying by degrees, lee found himself turning over the man's offers in his mind - and, surprising even to him, rejecting them as being insufficient.

Even as his life faded in the cold winter wind, Lee was amazed to discover that there was something that he wished, even more than life itself.

He wanted - redemption.

His own life was lost to him - even if he should continue to breath, and to think, and to function, all that had once been dear to him was gone.

What Lee really wanted, more than anything, was a chance - a chance to spare somebody else from ever having to fear the same despair he himself had felt, a chance to keep another human being from ever feeling the extreme indifference to their own mortality that he had felt.

Hovering on the edge of death, seeing life more clearly than he ever had before, Lee tried to explain this to Santa - by all he could give out was a feeble, wordless croak.

Somehow, impossibly, the red-clad man seemed to understand - for, even as the darkness washed over him and stole him away, the comforting words chased him down into oblivion:

"A noble wish, m'boy..." Santa had said. "A noble wish, indeed."

* * * * *

The were playing Christmas music in Heaven.

Which, in and of itself, made perfect sense. After all, Christmas was a religious holiday, a true 'holy day', and you couldn't get much more holy than heaven, now could you?

The part of it Lee found confusing was how he in any way rated getting past the pearly gates - and yet it must surely be heaven, for how else could one explain him feeling warm and comfortable - not only in the sense that he seemed to be laying in an extremely comfortable bed, wrapped in warm and extremely soft blankets, but that all the familiar aches, pains and hungers he'd felt incessantly for so long seemed to be gone?

The air gently caressing his face was redolent with rich, heady fragrances - cinnamon, and coffee, and the comforting scent of a wood fire that went with the muted crackle and snapping of burning wood. Most amazingly, Lee didn't feel the sharp, painfully cramping of a long-empty stomach that the scent of cinnamon should have brought, but instead, a sort of low, anticipatory pleasure.

It seemed the most natural thing in the world to open his eyes, so Lee did so. He could have been looking at a print of 'Ye Olde English Christmas'.

His point-of-view was from within the comforting embrace of a real, old-fashion four-poster bed, complete with canopy. Not the light- and-airy brass four-post beds sold today, but an old-fashioned one of heavy, intricately carved dark walnut, with heavy, deep hunter green drapes on all sides, currently pulled back and tied off to reveal a room that matched the bed itself - a wood of plaster walls with half-height wood panels, with deep-set windows whose leaded glass lay in diamond patterns. A room right out of some 'Stately Home of England' - right down to the beautiful, and obviously expensive, Christmas decorations that gave the room an air of festive elegance.

Given the elegant, refined air of the room, the individual sharing it with Lee was all the more startling by contrast.

Oh, not in appearance, exactly. After all, the man, about Lee's own age, was dressed in a pair of dark-gray trousers and a white button-down shirt, his trim body and carefully styled mop of reddish-brown hair looking agreeably stylish for the decor of the room. Now, it was the slender man's manner that seemed so out-of-place in the air of refined elegance.

He was, quite literally, moving on tip-toe, with exaggerated movements of care and silence that looked more caricatured than real. In the corner near the bed lay an extraordinarily comfortable-looking armchair, beside which stood a beautiful antique end-table upon which rested a tray that held a coffee and a plate with a cinnamon bun on it. As for the chair itself, the blandly handsome man was oh-so-carefully laying what appeared to be a dress over it's back, moving with such exquisitely exaggerated care that the wasn't so much as even the faintest rustle of fabric. The man's face was as intent as that of a bomb technician defusing a live explosive, as if the slightest sound would bring hideous consequences...

...which almost seemed to be the case, for Lee tried to speak to the intent young man.

All that emerged from Lee's through was the faintest, highest-pitched squeak, barely audible - and yet the man jumped and spun as if hearing the trumpets of doom being sounded. His face went through an interesting array of expressions - first going so frighteningly pale that Lee was sure that the man was going to pass out, then quickly running to a bright, nearly florescent red.

"I... I... I..." The man stammered, wringing his hands. The flush, impossibly, deepened, becoming almost purple, as he jabbed a hand frantically in the direction of chair and table. "Coffee! And, because, naked, for you... Dress!"

Lee could only stare as the man began to beat a hasty retreat. His blue-green eyes couldn't seem to decide where to look, darting about the room - but never to where he was going, causing him to back into one piece of furniture after another, leaving a small path of upset furnishing and dropped ornaments as he retreated towards the door, looking as if he expected the sky to fall on him any moment - and, perhaps, as if he'd welcome such an event.

Reaching the heavy, carved-panel door, the man desperately grappled with the ornate brass handle for a moment before finally managing to work the simple lever.

"Sorry!" The man blurted out - and then he was gone, closing the door behind him. Perhaps this wasn't heaven, after all.

Lee, not having the faintest clue as to how to take any of this, quite simply decided not even to try, and instead, pushed back the silk sheets and down-filled comforter that covered his body...

...only to discover that it wasn't his body they covered.

For a long moment, Lee simply stared at the slender, lovely hands that had pushed down the covers to reveal a slim, equally feminine body.

A body that was not only undeniable feminine, but undeniably lovely. Smooth, silky skin covered a shapely feminine form that seemed to be nearly flawless - especially if you liked your women busty, for the body Lee now possessed was most certainly that.

In the back of her mind, Lee wondered if she shouldn't be panicking, perhaps screaming in horror or trying to recoil from her new body in disgust - but it was a moot intellectual question, since she didn't feel the least bit panicky. After all, she had expected to 'wake up dead', so to speak - and, if not dead, then at the very least, still as a malnourished homeless man in a body that never stopped aching.

Instead, she found herself in a warm, safe haven, feeling well-fed and healthy. The fact that it was in a feminine form that she was experiencing this was, by far, anything but 'horrifying'. Surprising, yes - even downright shocking. Confusing, inexplicable, and strange, without a doubt - but not horrifying.

As the obviously high-end sound system elsewhere in the house began playing 'White Christmas', Lee carefully drew her feet out from the bundle of covers pushed to the end of the bed. Pausing for a second, she eyed the dainty, well-formed feet she now possessed, still bemused - but unafraid - of the strange transformation she'd undergone.

Swiveling on a firm, full new derrière that felt like a well-packed pillow that had somehow become part of her, the newly feminine Lee swung her slender, smooth legs over the edge of the bed and carefully rose to those dainty feet.

She was somewhat amazed to find it felt completely natural. Her form and balance were completely different, and she'd expected to find moving in it awkward and unfamiliar - but, although it certainly felt different, it also somehow felt natural, as if she'd been moving and standing and walking in this feminine form all her adult life.

She walked over to the table bearing the enticing continental breakfast - and, as she moved, found her body 'instinctively' gliding with a smooth, gracefully easy feminine stride, her womanly new hips swaying and dipping in a way her old, male body could never have quite managed. With every step, her full new bust, so amazingly firm and enticingly full, bounced and swayed tautly, and a silky curtain of unseen hair brushed her shoulders and bare, smooth back, so lighter and silkier than the heavy, tangled mane of before.

Despite these, and thousands of other tiny but undeniable differences that each and every movement revealed, nothing felt truly 'strange', all of it still feeling 'natural'.

"This is... strange..." She said, softly, to herself - and was somehow not terribly shocked to hear the comment emerge in a bright, feminine voice.

Picking up the cinnamon bun, she - rather daintily, though she didn't notice the fact, consciously - began to nibble on it, occasionally sipping at the coffee, as she eyed the clothing that the strange man had laid out for her.

From it's cut and sizing, it seemed if it would fit what she'd seen of her new figure, and she wondered how the man could know her size, when she herself did not - but considering that she'd inexplicably woken to find herself female, it seemed but a small mystery, all things considered.

The dress itself was lovely, if somewhat old-fashioned in design. It most closely reminded the new woman of the type of 'formal' dressed you'd expect to see in a movie made in the Fifties - dark red velvet, with a scalloped neckline and a plunging back, and boasting a slit that ran all the way up the outside of the right leg. Indeed, Lee had no problems mentally envisioning the dress being worn by the likes of Vivian Leigh, say, or Jayne Mansfield - though neither of those silver screen goddesses had quite the same measurements that she now boasted.

In addition to the dress, there was all the necessary accessories. A pair of black nylons, seamed up the back and with a matching garter belt to hold the old-fashioned stocking in place. There was also a pair of shoes, classic pumps with a five-inch heel, and which were covered in a velvet that matched the dress itself.

There was also a pair of black panties, and a matching demi-cup bra, designed more for 'show'; then for support, especially considering the size that was on the label that curiosity had driven her to take a look at.

The bra was labeled as being a 36-DD.

"Whoa..." Lee said to herself, somewhat stunned - as she lifted the open bra up and placed the cups of the front-closing undergarment against her chest, finding that they cupped and held her breasts as if custom-tailored to do exactly that. "Quite the bustline, girl..."

Standing there, with the bra held in place over her breasts, she only needed to clasp the three metal snaps to put it in place - and so she did so, with a strange little frisson of guilty pleasure at enclosing her firm, spherical breasts in the lacy embrace of the stain brassiere.

Having put on the bra, it seemed only logical to draw the matching panties up her long, slender legs and settle them in place around her womanly hips, the smooth material lightly pressing against her perfectly-formed new womanhood - and that, of course, led to her pulling on the smooth nylons to enclose her legs, which necessitated putting on the garter belt to clip the nylons into place...

...and since she'd gone that far, she mentally shrugged and pulled on the form-fitting dress, letting its smooth fabric caress her slender hips, full derriere, and outthrust breasts.

It wasn't until she'd completely finished dressing herself, even stepping easily and comfortably into the shoes, that she'd realized what she was feeling.

Lee was enjoying herself. The thought - the action - of dressing herself in the feminine finery made her feel... happy.

It wasn't as if her mind had been altered or change in any way. She wasn't feeling some sort of 'imposed' pleasure at wearing women's clothing, nor was she 'thinking like a woman'. No, the simple fact was that it had been too long since she'd worn clean, comfortable clothes of any sort. Regardless of the fact that the clothing was undeniable feminine, it fit well, was warm and comfortable - and, even more, it was soft and silky in a way that even the most comfortable male clothing she'd ever placed on her old body had ever been.

She was enjoying wearing the clothing for the simple fact that it felt good, physically.

The only 'strangeness' about it was how easily she could stand - and, upon attempting to do so, walk - in the high, slender heels of the matching pumps.

With a graceful, feminine stride, Lee made her way in to the room's en suite bathroom - where she found herself gazing at her new reflection in the mirror, amazed at the stunningly beautiful woman who looked back at her.

Tall and slender, with a supple toned body and a face of exquisite beauty - the very image of her new self took her breath away. The face of an angel - and a body that made you want to sin...

"Holy crap..." She said to her reflection, stunned. "I'm... perfect!"

Stunned, she brushed a silken lock of raven's hair from her face, her dark green eyes wide with amazement.

Being made female was one thing - to be made a stunningly beautiful, and sexy, one, another thing completely. Instantly, the realization that men would find her sexually attractive struck her with a sort of roiling dread that was more than mingled with a high, powerful sense of... almost anticipation.

After all, it had been two years since she had been capable of feeling sexual pleasure, and she wasn't too stupid as to not realize that sex, for women, was at least as pleasurable as it was for men. While there was guilt at the 'homosexual' aspects of feeling excited at the prospect of one more feeling sexual pleasure, even as a woman, there was nevertheless a real and powerful sense of interest - for not only could she feel sexual pleasure again, but in a form she'd never imagined herself being able to feel.

She shivered - and not from the cold. Nor was any chill to be blamed for the fact that her large, thick new nipples stiffly rose to excited attention, thrust into the soft stain of the bra that very barely managed to cover them, beneath a dress that was similarly 'just enough' to keep the new barometers of her sexual arousal concealed.

No, no chill indeed - for her cutely dimpled new knees went slightly watery at the powerful sensation of moist heat that was suffusing her, beginning within her abdomen but rapidly spread outward to fill her with a formless longing that, though demanding, was nevertheless enjoyable in it's own right.

"Oh, my dear lord..." She whispered in near shock,. Amazed to find that feminine arousal, in and of itself, provided more pleasure than the hydraulically-driven demands of male arousal. Though her new body - and, with guilty honesty, her 'old' mind, she admitted - desired the release orgasm would bring, the anticipation of pleasure wasn't frustrating or pseudo-painful, as it had always been for her as a man, but actually... quite enjoyable.

"No wonder women act the way they do..."S he muttered to herself, amazed to find that the major 'psychological' differences between men and women was actually driven by such a 'small' thing as the manner of sexual arousal.

Men, of course, were 'damn the torpedoes, full speed ahead' types, no matter how baroque their maneuvers to achieve that goal. They needed to be, since their arousal demanded it of them. A woman's arousal, however, enjoyable in it's own right, and not as external to the sense-of-self, could be 'played with', giving a woman much more room with which to bargain.

With the thoughts running through her mind, and the arousal running through her body, Lee suddenly found herself thinking of the man who'd been in the room, the strange man who'd beaten such a hasty retreat at her awakening. Though she'd liked to have thought that she'd suddenly thought of him in gratitude for the food and clothing provided her, she couldn't pass that lie off to herself, realizing full well that her train of thought regarding her new sexuality and the possibilities that it brought had called him to mind.

She flushed, brightly, stunned at the easy acceptance she'd give to the thought of 'experimenting' with her new sexuality - and with the very first man she'd meet as a woman, no less - yet still unable to force the decidedly intriguing thought from her mind.

Two years, three months, and some few odd days - that's how long it had been since Lee had experienced sex. In fact, it had been nearly that long since he'd experienced the touch of any other human being, aside from that necessitated by medical care, or the random brush of a person passing. Even those had faded, the medical care with his supposed healing, and the brush of people who had avoided the 'smelly bum' which he'd become.

Now, looking at her stunning reflection in the mirror, Lee knew that very few men indeed would trouble themselves to avoid touching her new form and figure...

..and that realization only increased the weak-kneed feeling of arousal that suffused her.

Still with a faint blush on her well-defined new cheeks, Lee gave her reflection on last look - then headed out of the bathroom, thence the bedroom, in search of her host.

Heading down the hallway, she found herself facing a window that looked out onto the grounds of what was obviously a small and elegantly-kept mansion. To her surprise, it was dark out - meaning it was either a mere hour or so after her 'death' as a man in the underpass, or it was a whole evening past. For a minute, she found herself wondering which it was, which lead to the thought of how it might have come to pass - but her own arousal, and her own intrigued interest in her new sexuality, took precedence over such intellectual exercises. Driven by body, rather than mind, she headed down the oak-banister stairs to the floor below, from \which rose the soft sound of the Christmas music that filled the house.

Stepping into the first-floor foyer, she followed the music to the door top her right - and there found her prey. Standing, with his back turned to her, in front of the stereo system, he was flipping through a series of compact disks, obviously trying to chose a new CD for when the current one finished.

"Hello, there..." Lee said, somewhat surprised to find her arousal had transformed her feminine new voice into a somewhat husky, breathy-sounding tone that was incredibly evocative.

It had somewhat of a different effect on the intended recipient however.

"Eeep!" The russet-haired man yelped,. Dropping the CD-case as he spun. Eyes a s wide as saucers, he took a few shambling steps backwards, paused, then managed a few swaying steps forward again - putting him in more or less the same place he'd been before he'd attempted either retreat or advance.

"I wanted to thank you..." Lee said, gliding forward with a new seductive nature to her step, unplanned but instinctive. Her mind worked rapidly. "My name's... Leanne."

"I, uh and.. you..." the man - which, she noticed with more then passing interest, was actually quite handsome - was made nearly comical but his stammering attempt at even a simple introduction. "We, and I - found.. my... for you..."

Stopping in front of him, Lee - Leanne - couldn't help but smile at the man's antics, realizing with assurance that the man was one of those poor unfortunates who could barely bring himself to even look at a woman, much less talk with one. She'd met a few of the ultra-shy types in high school, and knew they could be geniuses in all sorts of ways, but completely inept in dealing with women, usually much to their despair...

...and with that though, Leanne suddenly understood.

Her request, her wish - this was it, made real. A chance to keep another human being from feeling despair - and though she still didn't understand the magical mechanism that made it all possible, she understood the intent and the reason behind it.

To overcome the despair that he felt at being unable to deal with women in any coherent fashion, this poor man need a woman who could - would - be somewhat aggressive, yet thoughtful, pushy yet giving...

...and most of all, a woman who had no 'past entanglements' that could interfere in what, for this confused and social incompetent man, was already an incredibly difficult situation.

Leanne, of course, had no past whatsoever. No 'family' that this man would have to someday meet, no other friends or past lovers with which he'd have to deal. She was his romantic 'carte blanche', a woman who could be anything he needed...

...if she was willing to be so, for him.

She was - for, as a consequence, she could also redefine e a whole new life for herself through him. She needed only to look around her to know that it could be a very comfortable life, indeed.

"Leanne." She said, more firmly, taking a few steps closer to him - and, expected, he paced her, step by step, keeping that same buffer zone between them.

Just as she'd planned - as she continued backing him towards where she wanted him. "One word answer, my handsome host..." She said, smiling warmly. "Your first name is...?"

"Juh...Jack!" He blurted out, as she stopped moving - and, consequentially, so did he, standing in the doorway between the living room and the den beyond.

"Pleased to meet you, Jack." She said warmly - then, quite pointedly, looked up.

Jack, blinking, did likewise - and found himself staring at the mistletoe hung in the doorway.

Before he brought his eyes back down, he suddenly found himself holding a warm double armful of lithe, supple woman, her full lips only a few inches from his face - as was her well-displayed bosom.

"Well, Jack - tradition says we have to kiss..." She all-but-purred...

...and before he could dispute tradition, she wrapped one slender arm around his neck, and proceeded to kiss the hell out of him, while pressing her lush body tightly against his.

Part of her was amazed at herself, doing such a 'disgusting' thing - but the rest of her was just enjoying all the wonderful sensations that came from holding a man tight, and kissing him hungrily.

It felt even better after a short period of time, when he started hissing her back, his arms hesitantly slipping around her slender, supple form to hold her tight.

She let herself become lost in the kiss, in the pleasurable dance of tongue against tongue, the wonderful friction of body against body, separated only by the layers of thin cloth.

OF course, she thought to herself dreamily, it would feel even better if the clothes weren't there - and, instead of rubbing against each other, he was rubbing within her, in the way that only a man could rub within a woman for that wonderful satisfaction she was feeling the urge to fulfill...

Part of her was very concerned at how easily she'd taken to womanhood - but she didn't care. After so long alone and bitter and without any form of comfort from a fellow human being, she was more than willing to act the part of a 'slut' in order to feel such wonderful pleasure, to feel the touch of a man on her soft and sensation skin...

Breaking off the kiss, she leaned back and smiled down at Jack. "Please tell me you're a virgin..." She whispered.

Jack blinked, and flushed - and nodded.

"Oh, yes..."S he moaned in pleasure. "My fantasy is to find a man who hasn't learned any bad habits from other women - then 'train him up' right, teaching him the correct way to make love to me. Show him how he should fondle my huge, firm tits. Teach him how to caress my smooth, soft body. Instruct him how to fill my tight, wet cunt with his hard, throbbing cock. Are you willing to be my student, Jack? Are you willing to let me teach you how to fuck my brains out, again and again?"

Jack gaped at her, swallowed heavily - and nodded, frantically.

"Come with me..."S he said, with a chuckle, "...and then you'll cum with me..." Taking him by the hand, she lead him towards the stairs she'd just come down.

'Less the fifteen minutes..' She thought, somewhat delirious. 'Fifteen minutes as a woman - and I'm going to let a man fuck me...' Instead of guilt, she felt... pride.

She felt happier then she'd felt in longer then she could care to remember...

...and shortly, she felt even happier, for as they entered the bedroom she'd so recently left, and she quickly began to undress him, he hesitatingly returned the favor - and the look of appreciative desire that came from gazing on her naked body made her tremble in delight.

"I'm also going to teach you how to by sexy clothes for me, if that's okay..." She heard herself saying, her mind in some strange sort of fog where she spoke without conscious decision to do so. "I'm, going to show you how to treat your live-in lover and willing little sex-slave... okay?"

"Live in lover...?" Jack said, stunned. "But,... we hardly know each other.. you... I..."

"I know all I need to know." She said, surprised to find it was the truth. "I know you're going to be kind and caring, aren't you?" "Yes." Jack said, easily enough, though he was flushing a bright red just from being naked with her.

"That's enough..." She said - and then pulled him with her to the bed, where she spread her legs invitingly. "take me, Jack - make me your woman..."

It was the 'woman' that mattered more than the 'your' to her - but Jack read it another way, and the man too shy to every approach a woman, had one offered to him on a silver platter.

It was an offer he couldn't refuse....

* * * * *

Not without some regret, Leanne carefully eased herself out of her slumbering lover's embrace.

Slipping from both the warmth of Jack's body and his bed, she picked up the heavy dressing gown and slipped it around her slender, and oh-so-wonderfully sensitive new form, tucking the ends tightly together and crossing her arms over it just below the curve of her full new breasts. Thus hugging herself, she gently padded over to one of the diamond-paned windows, leaning forward to get an unobstructed view through the leaded paned.

The heavy snow, which had begun the night before, had finally settled down into only the lightest, stillest fall of tiny crystals. The town, laid out almost like a map from Jack's house on its hilltop, lay in peaceful slumber, transformed into a postcard scene by its undisturbed mantle of crisp white snow.

Softly, her voice but a whisper, she sent her gratitude out into the darkness beyond: "Thank you..."

Turning, she let the gown slip from her smooth shoulders as she headed back to bed. She moved with the same silent grace as with which she'd risen...

...and into the soft silence of her slipping back into Jack's embrace, the voice from darkness of the Christmas night, though faint, was clear and unmistakable, as was the faint, silvery sound of sleigh bells that underlay his words:

Merry Christmas to all, and to all a good night!

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: When the girl next door has to face the desires of her life long friend, an Xbox gone astray leads to changes for both.

Girl Next Door

By Gunslinger

Bob watched as she slowly licked her unbelievably enticing lips. Above a dark eye that glittered brightly behind the lenses of her glasses, one finely-arched eyebrow rose, and the face so enticingly framed by the loose bangs of her other-wise swept-back, thickly- waved up-do of auburn hair cast itself into lines of pure devilment.

"You can be on top..." DeeDee said, her rich voice so low and utterly arousing...

...and then she laughed, a trilling sound so sweet and pure that it could remind Bob why he tortured himself like this even as a wave of almost physical longing swept through him.

With a rueful smile, the darkly tanned, athletically-built blond easily caught the video-game controller the unbelievably luscious young woman tossed to him, not the least bit upset at the way his eyes almost helplessly took in the interplay of the muscles beneath the incredibly flawless skin that enclosed her lean, oh-so-supple body.

The fact that he found her the most utterly, enticingly, unforgettably sexually attractive girl on the face of the planet was hardly news to DeeDee, and not just because it was a view shared by a good many of the young, (and not so young), men in the small Wisconsin town.

Bob Altman and Deirdre Deacon didn't have secrets - at least, not from one another. They'd been friends since long before the whole 'boy-girl' thing had even been a factor, back when the nickname 'DeeDee' hadn't, (understatedly), referred to the ripe and incredibly perky breasts now filling out the incredibly lithe, slender young woman's tight, midriff-baring blue 'Superman' t-shirt, distorting the famous red-and-yellow logo in the most mouthwatering way. Aside from 'just' being neighbors, they had lived in houses that were exact mirror-images of each other - which put the windows of each of their bedrooms less than ten feet from each other across the narrow alley separating the two houses. The only nine-year-old kids in the neighborhood, both new to town when their parents had relocated to work at the newly-opened factory, they'd become playmates, then friends, then best friends - before they'd each hit puberty and turned out to be exceedingly fine examples of their respective genders.

As it turned out, their ten-year friendship was strong enough to bear even that burden - the burden of Bob's helpless, hopeless desire for a girl whose type of supple, busty body was not only the thing that fueled his fantasies - but hers as well.

Now, long legs toned by her years as a gymnast propped up on the edge of her desk, taut, trim ass encased in red satin shorts comfortably perched in her high-backed swivel chair, DeeDee gestured with the incredible inherent grace of hers.

"Ready to kick some alien ass, Bobby-boy?" She asked in her rich, sweet contralto voice, the faintest hint of a southern accent making it all the more exotic.

With a long-suffering sigh at the lesbian who was the only person who got away with calling him 'Bobby', the handsome nineteen- year-old smiled and nodded, forcing himself to drag his eyes from her trim, petite figure to the top half of the divided screen showing on the TV hooked up to her X-BOX.

Together, playing cooperatively, they started 'kicking alien ass', supporting each other's back in the videogame world while they did the same thing emotionally in real life, discussing each of their current relationship problems - which, in a sort of wry joke the universe was playing on them, were nearly identical:

Woman trouble.

The 'dating pool' was fairly small in the rural town, all the more so for DeeDee, whose major source of sexual encounters were girls just 'experimenting'. In a town where everybody knew everybody, and all the girls - straight and lesbian - talked to each other and amongst themselves, Bob and DeeDee's extremely close friendship caused a sort of strange jealousy, no women coming close to being 'more important' to either of the friends than they were to each other...

...which had put the two usually quite sexually active friends smack-dab in the middle of a dry spell.

Despite everything, nobody wanted to 'get serious' with them because of the unspoken assumption that a man and a woman who were so close to each other would somehow, some way, end up together.

"It's getting so bad..." She confided, ruefully, "... that the straight girls are starting to experiment with each other."

"At least they're willing to give it a try." Bob remarked - and then his eyes went wide and his hand rose to slap closed, much to late, over his mouth.

DeeDee stared at him, aghast, every bit as stunned as Bob himself to hear how bitterly that comment had unwillingly slipped from his lips.

"Bob..." She said, her voice hurt beyond all measure, "You know if I felt even the smallest, slightest, tiniest bit of sexual attraction to you, in any way, then I would.. 'experiment', if for no other reason but to make you happy, but... Well, would you be willing to do something that goes against your own nature, just to help a friend?"

Bob bit his lower lip - then slowly nodded.

She eyed him doubtfully, the trust in him she'd always considered unshakable suddenly rattled.

"Okay, let me see if I've got this straight." She said, slender eyebrows arching. "You're saying that, if our positions were reversed, you'd be willing to try something that holds absolutely no interest for you, just to please your friend?"

"Look, DeeDee, I didn't meant to say it that way." Bob said, holding up his hands. "I never would have..."

"Hey, but you did." She said, firmly, the shock of 'betrayal' over somebody she'd always trusted implicitly suddenly indicating that maybe he wasn't quite as utterly and completely honest with her as she'd always been with him emerging as anger. "I want an answer, Bobby-boy. If everything was exactly reversed - if you were me - you, as me, would have sex with 'you', finally fulfilling all those fantasies 'you' had, simply to make 'you' happy? Is that what you're saying?"

Bobby hesitated, seeing her direct an emotion at him that he'd never experienced from her before, and although he wanted to avoid the conversation, he couldn't lie to her, couldn't evade her question. Not her. Not DeeDee.

"Yes."

"Bullshit!" She snorted, her gorgeous face taking on an angry hue. "I can't believe you have the balls to flat out lie to me - to me - like that!"

"No, DeeDee, it's true..." Bob tried to convince her.

"Not even close!" She snapped, enraged all out of proportion because it was Bob who was lying to her like this. She'd had plenty of men try plenty of ways to get her to 'experiment', solely for their own pleasures, but she'd never thought Bob felt that way. "I know you better than anybody else on the planet! How do you expect me to believe you'd be so utterly selfless as to do something that goes against everything in your nature, just to make a friend happy? Nobody's that nice, not even you!"

"Just to make a friend happy?" bob said, his own anger beginning to smolder. "Is that what you think this is about? Just 'getting some? Damn it, DeeDee, I've been completely head-over-heels in love with you even longer than I've been nut-bustingly in lust with you. Hell, yes, if I were you, and I knew how desperately my bestest friend in the whole world wanted to at least give it a shot, to take that one chance and, if nothing else, finally kill off that last, tiny, heart-rending bit of hope - yes, I'd do it!"

"Oh, right!" She snapped, almost unable to believe this was really happening, that she was in a full-blown argument with somebody she'd never even had one hard word to say to until today, but unable to stop herself from doing it. "If you were me, with no interest at all in men, and I were you, constantly fantasizing about 'your' hot little body, sporting wood practically every time 'I' saw 'you', you'd go ahead and do everything 'I' ever dreamed about, just in the tiny little off chance that 'you' might have been wrong all these years, and might actually enjoy it after all? Oh, come on! That's the biggest load of bull-shit I've ever heard! I can't believe you're trying to pawn it off on me! For God's sake, Bobby - has this whole 'bestest friend' bit been just in the off chance I might actually like you enough to force myself to do something completely against everything I feel, and have sex with you?"

Just as she didn't truly understand just how painful his desire for her was, Bob failed to understand just how sickened and frustrated she was with the fact that men, in general, couldn't accept the fact that she wasn't even the slightest bit interested in them, sexually. To him, that last bit came out of nowhere, slashing at him like a knife.

"No!" He gasped, shocked and deeply hurt that she could question his friendship like that. "DeeDee, I swear it's not like that!"

"Oh, I wish to God I could believe that your friendship IS so strong that you'd do 'anything' for the other person." DeeDee said, bitterly, her faith shattered by the doubts about him that she couldn't help herself from suddenly feeling.

"I wish to God I could prove it to you!" Bob said with heart-felt intensity, feeling like crying for the first time in years at the distrust in her eyes. "Oh, I wish to God I could just make you understand..."

It was at just that very second that the X-BOX suddenly let out a strident electronic crackle, the sharp odor of burning circuitry filling the room...

...as Bob and DeeDee both shouted as their bodies helplessly shivered, shock and shuddered in the grip of the electrical current flowing through their bodies from the controls still in their hands.

The brief electrical jolt faded as blue-gray smoke puffed up from the ruined game console - but for the longest time, the two of them sat stock - still, simply gaping at each other.

Finally, as if in a dream, DeeDee let the controller drop from her slender hands, her fingers slowly comic up almost of their own volition as, without taking her staring eyes of Bob's muscular figure, she hesitantly cupped the big, perky tits tenting her tight T-shirt.

"Holy shit..." She gasped, accent gone from her sweet voice, which spoke in a cadence subtly different from any that had ever emerged from those sweet lips. "It.. It happened. I'm.. you!"

Bobby, staring back at her, slowly shook his head like a man coming from a fog.

"This... This is how you see me...?" He asked, a faint trace of the south in his stunned voice. "I mean, I always knew I was pretty hot, but in your eyes... Holy cow! And my tits...!"

He gaped at her firm, pointed-dome chest - and she also glanced down...

...and blinked, suddenly finding those 'perfect' breasts a little too large for her slender ribcage, the same fullness that had always been a turn on now looking to be a bit 'too much of a good thing'. In fact, she noticed with a blink as she eyes her form, it was as if she were seeing her body through a distorting lens, at once subtle and profound.

Through her eyes, her feet, in their pink-and-white sneakers, looked to be a little larger then before, and her legs seemed a bit more 'gangly' then 'long and slender' - exactly the sort of self-image that might cause a girl to take up gymnastics in the hope of adding some tone to coltish legs.

Stunned, DeeDee turned her gaze from a 'flawless' body that now seemed to host a hundred imperfections - and gaped anew at the man sitting across from her.

The guy who, in a mirror, had always been slimly athletic, broad-shouldered and handsome...

"I don't look like that." DeeDee told Bob, pointing a slim finger at him almost accusingly. "I am not 'a walking wall of muscle' - and I am NOT that hairy!"

She paused, then smirked in an expression never before seen on that pretty face. "My cock, however, is really that outlandishly huge." She commented.

Bob snorted involuntary laughter.

"Look at it from my point of view." He pointed out. "Knowing what I find physically attractive..."

DeeDee cocked her head thoughtfully - then snickered, getting it. After all, all she had to do was list what was 'wrong' with Bob's body if you used the one she was in as the measure of perfection.

"I still can't believe just how incredibly sexy you..." bob started to say - then he suddenly stiffened...

...as he stared down at what was busily stiffening.

"That's what getting a hard on feel like?" He gasped in shock, staring down at the visible tenting in his pants. "Holy crap! It's so... so... concentrated!"

Hesitantly, he reached down and poked one blunt finger at it, the way you might poke a snake to see if it was alive.

"I feel like somebody's shoved a balloon under the skin of my crotch and is inflating it with warm water!" He gasped/complained. "I mean, getting aroused for women is sort of a warmer, all-over sort of thing. This is every bit intense - but in a much smaller area, and not.. not nearly as enjoyable."

"You mean you enjoy walking around horny?" DeeDee asked, incredulously.

"It's... kinda nice, actually. I mean, sure, it feels good to 'relieve' the tension - but the tension itself is pretty pleasant, too. At least, for women. This.. this isn't fun at all. In fact..."

Blushing, he shifted position, hesitantly slipping a hand down his pants in a futile effort to find a good position for his now rock-hard member.

"It just hangs out there!" She complained, frustrated. "It's like it's an afterthought, or something, stuck in the way. Good grief - how the hell do you put up with this damned thing...!"

"By thinking about the alternative." DeeDee reported with a wry grin. Bob blinked - and chuckled dryly.

"The old 'fate worse then death', huh?" He asked, eyeing DeeDee's lithe female form. "Well, is it? That bad loosing... this thing?" He jerked a thumb in the direction of his crotch - and grimaced.

"I can see why guys are thinking about it all the time, though." He said. "the damn things just so... there. At least a pussy's unobtrusive, most of the time, never getting in the way or changing it's size and shape and malleability on a whim, and... oh, hell! What is with this thing!"

"This is all your fault!" He accused her. "It wouldn't be doing this if you weren't so damned..." He broke off, an odd look coming over his face as he realized what he was saying.

An odd look also came to rest on her face.

"Your right..." She said in the tone of voice of somebody either strangling a laugh or a scream. "It is my fault - and I guess I'd better take care of that."

Slowly, she rose from the chair, slender hands going to the hem of her tight shirt. In one fluid motion, she pulled it up, exposing big, pointed tits so firm they'd been spared the indignity of ever being imprisoned in a bra...

"What are you doing...?" Bob screeched.

"Taking care of a, ahem, 'little problem'." She said, blushing furiously but still amused.

"Not with my body, you're not!" Bob said, shielding his crotch. "You keep it away from this.. this.. thing!"

"Well, then, you'd better take care of it yourself." DeeDee said, smirking, as she made a universal back-and-forth motion with a cupped right hand. "trust me, the longer the pressure goes on, the worse it gets."

"You've got to be kidding!" He blurted.

"Nope." She said, shaking her head. "Leave it long enough, and the 'relief' is almost as bad as the 'pressure'."

"Hey, I've seen you sporting wood for hours while hanging out with me!" He retorted - then blushed, eyes going wide. "Oh..." he said in a very small voice.

"Yeah, well..." DeeDee said, shrugging uncomfortably. "I'm sort of.. used to it."

Silence reigned supreme - then Bob looked at the half-naked woman standing in front of him, and cleared his throat, nervously. "You were serious all along, weren't you?" He asked. "I mean... about what you said."

"Yes, I was." She agreed, easily.

"You.. have absolutely no desire to do it?" "None." She agreed, even more readily. "But..."

"But I know you'd like it." She pointed out, with a shrug. "Besides - how bad could it be, really?"

"You'd..." Bob said, blushing, groping for words.. then settled for jabbing the forefinger of one hand into the loosely fistled other. "Sure."

"...and...?" Bob continued, this time raising the fisted hand close to his mouth and pushing his tongue into his cheek. "Plenty of women have, and it hasn't killed them - or me..."

She smirked, eyeing bob's crotch in a way that made him blush even more deeply.

"Well, uh " He said, licking his lips nervously as he considered the not-to-pleasant pressure that was more insistent then he'd ever believed had been the case. "I, um "

"Why don't we start 'small', and stop whenever somebody cries foul?" Deirdre suggested, reasonably - as she swayed her pert ass over and plopped it down on his lap, carefully avoiding extra pressure on what she knew from first-hand experience to be an extraordinarily sensitive organ. "A little light kissing and fondling to get 'in the mood', shall we say?"

Bob hesitated - then slowly brought his big, strong hands up to cup her breasts.

"Oh, that's pretty nice." DeeDee said, eyebrows shooting upwards - as her nipples began to tighten.

"I have a certain amount of experience in this - and I know exactly what these tits like " Bob pointed out with a smile, teasing and squeezing her nipples with a gentle firmness before letting his hands slowly explore outwards over her taut skin...

...while leaning in for a kiss.

A kiss that started very hesitantly, at first, but slowly deepened into something stronger, more 'interactive'...

...and, to both of their surprise, right on past hat into something passionate. Something almost hungry.

When they finally broke the kiss, DeeDee was blushing brightly.

"I.. think I'm.. getting turned on." She admitted, embarrassed. Bob took a deep breath of air through his nose - and smiled.

" 'Think'?" he teased.

"Okay - I'm getting turned on..." She admitted, as his hands continued to roam over her body. "Uh... I think I have to take back what I said earlier."

Bob's hands stopped, and he looked crestfallen. "Oh. Of course. Well, I complete understand if you're not willing..."

"Not that..." She said with an embarrassed giggle, blushing all the more brightly. "I meant about not having the least bit of desire about it..."

"Oh." Bob commented - then, "Ohhhhh...!" the sat still for a second, looking at each other. "Then, uh, should we...?" Bob suggested, awkwardly. "Yeah - I mean, if you think..."She replied.

Both faces beat red, they looked at each other a minute longer, trying to make sure they were both suggesting the exact same thing without having to put it into words.

Slowly, DeeDee stood up - and began stepping out of her shoes, hands going to the waistband of her shorts.

Blushing every bit as brightly as she was, Bob also slowly and awkwardly undressed, almost palatable embarrassed by the big, hard cock standing at full attention.

They stood in another brief pause, looking at each other, each making sort of tiny, nervous gestures towards the bed until, finally, they slowly and awkwardly shuffled over to it.

"So, should I...?" Bob started, then stopped. "Or, maybe you should..."

"Well. I guess we could..." DeeDee started, herself - she sighed with a wry giggle. "Aw, hell. Here..."

Turning, she walked away from the bed, startling Bob - until she reached the high-backed swivel chair, which she jammed into the gap in the desk, which held it firm. Bracing her arms on the back of the chair, she leaned forward, legs spread.

Peering over her shoulder, she smiled nervously. "Easier?" She asked.

"Uh.. Yeah." Bob said, sweating despite the cool air - but his cock showed no sign of the hesitancy he felt, and he slowly shuffled across the room.

"Are you, uh, ready...?"

"About as much as you are, I'd say." She chuckled dryly. "Physically yes, emotionally no - right?" "Amen, brother!" Bob said, fervently - then, smirking: "I mean, 'sister'."

"Well..." She said, awkwardly. "I guess you can figure out what to do..."

"Yeah." He agreed - but hesitated a moment longer before oh-so-slowly leaning in and pressing the throbbing head of his cock lightly against her exposed mound.

He waited a second to see if she was going to change her mind - or he, his - and then began pushing it into the slippery, conforming confines of her warm, moist womanhood.

She gasped sharply.

"Sorry, sorry!" He babbled, starting to withdraw...

"No!" She said, sharply - then, in an embarrassed tone, less forcefully. "I mean 'no, it was because it felt good'..." "Really?"

A long, long pause - then, quietly: "Yeah. Really good."

He hesitated - then resumed pushing into her, admitting to himself that it did, indeed, feel good.

He continued until his cock was fully sheathed in her inviting cunt - then, a little less hesitantly, began to withdraw - which made she shiver and gasp again, obviously in pleasure...

...and he concurred. It did feel good.

It felt even better on the second, faster repetition. Even better on the third, harder...

...and better on the fourth...

...fifth...

..sixth...

"Holy.. Shit...!" He gasped, hips bucking almost of their own accord as his body let him know it could do this just fine without any help from the intellect. "It.. feels.. so..."

"...fantastic!" She gasped back, wriggling on the end of his cock, panting as her hips also did their own little dance without needing any input from her. "Don't stop, oh, don't... stop...!" there was absolutely no danger of that.

Bob's body seemed to have a mind of its own - which worked well, since the mind inhabiting that body didn't have the first clue as to what he was doing...

...but was damned happy to be doing it, original doubts notwithstanding.

Thrust and counterthrust - each of their bodies working hard with primal instincts to increase the pleasurable friction of damp cunt enveloping hard cock, minds almost redundant other than as sensory organs to experience the wonderful pleasure thundering through each of their bodies as they continued their age-old rhythmic dance, incoherent sounds of pleasure ripped from each throat as they experienced new and wonderful pleasure both like and unlike anything they'd ever experienced before. What had once been long and rhythmic became sharp and intense, and what had been sudden and well-defined became steady waxing and waning waves. Nerves tingled and synapses fired in patterns producing pleasure no more intense than any they'd ever felt before, but completely unlike in form anything they'd previously experienced, the novelty of the experience making it seem all the more intense than it really was.

"Yes, oh God, yes...!" She screamed.

"Fuck, yeah!" He agreed, hands braced on her back as he humped wildly at her, face contorted in pleasure. "Shit it's so.. concentrated... All.. right there..."

"It's all over!" She screamed, tits bouncing and swaying beneath her with each hard thrust. "I feel completely filled - and I love it! Harder! Fuck me harder!"

If it had been humanly possibly, Bob certainly would have complied - but his sweat-slicked body was already performing at peak efficiency...

...and it was both more wonderful then she'd ever imagined being penetrated could feel, and yet the satisfaction of being filled was somehow making all the more aroused even as the act she was supposed to relieve arousal was being performed.

"Harder..." She begged, not understanding. "Fuck me harder..." She pleaded, not knowing.

"Please, harder!" She screamed, not realizing...

...until the orgasm hit, and she learned that, for women, the more 'not enough' the journey was, the 'more than enough' the destination.

For men, the pleasure just built and built until it broke the dam and then drained away...

...but for a woman, a long, slow, steady 'build' gave pleasure at the time, but lessened the impact of what now hit her with all the force that had built up by the hard-and-hungry rhythm she'd demanded from him - and she was completely unprepared for it as it slammed into her like a runaway freight train.

Even as he came inside her, her knees buckled from the force of the mind-blowing orgasm that slammed into her, an orgasm not limited to the brief span of time it took to empty the hydraulic reservoir it took for a man - an orgasm, a series of orgasms, that blacked out thought and intellect and emotion, leaving her with nothing but mind-warping ecstasy as she collapsed to the floor screaming out in mindless, orgasm pleasure at what was ripping through mind and body, stripping away all hints of civilization from her and reducing her to a quivering primordial lump of post-orgasmic pleasure.

Carefully, Bob helped a still-shuddering DeeDee into the chair and stepped back to wait until the post-orgasmic glow faded.

"that was... intense..." She breathed, vacantly - then shook her head. "I mean - for a novel experience, you know. Oh, speaking of which... how do we change back...?"

"I don't know." Bob admitted. "In fact, I guess I really didn't think about it..." Then he went deathly pale as he realized what else he hadn't thought about. "I didn't use a condom!"

"So? Aren't you on the..." She started - then stopped, blanching, as she realized it was hardly the sort of thing a lesbian usually had to be worried about. "Oh, crap..."

"Hey - 'Hun'reds and hun'reds a time, ain't nuthin' happen a'tall'... right?" Bob tried to reassure her, smiling sickly...

...and sometimes, you got shot down with the first salvo.

* * * * *

"Don't touch me!" DeeDee said, sharply. "Do... not.. touch.. me...!"

"Sorry dear!" Bob said, hastily yanking back the hands he'd held out to help her.

Maneuvering oh-so-carefully under the weight of her nine-moth-swollen belly that protruded enormously from her slender frame, she walked - waddled - carefully over to the kitchen table and delicately lowered herself into the chair.

"Twins!" She said, darkly, staring at Bob. "You never mentioned that twins run in your family!" "Your family, dear..." Bob tried to placate her.

"Whatever!" She snapped, unbuttoning her maternity blouse and peeling it off. With a gasp that turned into a sigh of relief, she released the front-closing clasp on her bra and let it swing open, freeing her milk-swollen EEE-cup breasts to sway heavily from her delicate ribcage, nipples dribbling a thin white flow.

"I'll get it..." Bob said in hurried response to the low, steady look she gave him, and hurried to grab the breast-pump out of it's nearby storage. "Do you want me to..."

"NO!" She all-but-snarled, grabbing the pump out of his hands and applying the cup to her starboard nipple. "You touching me is what got us into this mess, remember?"

"Um.. I seem to remember you being an oh-so-willing participant in that, actually - along with the several dozen times afterwards, when I went out to by the condoms that it turned out we didn't need, anyway. I fully understand why guys hate wearing them, now..."

"Oh, zip it..." She said, irritably, suctioning one mammary gland empty of it's heavy weight of milk - Bob also hadn't mentioned that 'her' side of the family were milk cows, producing ridiculously early, and in ludicrous quantity.

The fact that 'mom' had been a C-cup before her pregnancy, but had stayed a DD afterwards was also quite worrisome...

"Well, then, I guess you'll just have to bear the consequences of that particular action you refused to give up.. until recently, that is. You are still planning on doing that after the twins are born... aren't you?"

"You know damned well I am." She muttered, darkly. "Just don't think for a moment that just because I'll be just as sexy and just as lustful as a mother as I was before this happened, don't think for a minute that it means I forgive you for doing this to me. You're going to pay for it - by doing as much of the child-care that's humanly possible for a 'mere' male to handle."

"hey - not my department." Bob said, breezily, with a teasing smile. "That's something us 'lesbians' never concern ourselves with, right?"

"If I'd known ahead of time, I would have waited until after you'd had at least one child before switching bodies with you." "Hey, if I could share this burden with you, I would - swear to God..."

* * * *

The doctor wondered why the father passed out during the delivery, but the couple wisely decided not to explain to anybody that for ten minutes - just long enough for one of the births - mommy and daddy had each had a brief and not necessarily nostalgic visit to an old and familiar 'place'...

...but they were the only couple in the history of the world who, during the infrequent argument, the wife never brought up the 'you can't know' ace-in-the-hole to use against her husband.

It wouldn't have worked. THE END

 BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: After he is caught embezzling by a rival crook, she uses a new serum on her captive to change him into a bimbo so that he will give her the code to the loot.

Giving It Up

By Gunslinger

With a slow, deliberate stride, Elizabeth paced a steady circle. On the discolored concrete of the old factory floor, her four-inch heels tapped out a metronome-like beat as she circled, her lovely face cast in lines of disappointment.

"My, my, but haven't you been a naughty boy...?" She said, quietly, continuing to circle like a stalking shark. "Embezzling nearly twenty million dollars from the company funds - tsk, tsk..."

Pausing in front of the man she was speaking, Elizabeth lightly tapped one perfectly manicured, blood-red finger against firm, full lips of the same color.

"Oh, but you were a smart one, weren't you, Patrick?" She said. "Rerouting the funds during the end-of-week settlement, giving yourself a full fifty-six hours before the loss would be noticed. Very, very smart - why, that's the way I would have done it..."

With the lightning speed of a striking snake, the shapely blonde lashed out, bringing the palm of her hand across Patrick's cheek in a stinging slap.

"In fact, that was exactly the way I was going to do it..." She snarled, her lovely face distorted in anger. "...until some pathetic worm of an accountant beat me to it!"

Slowly, she composed herself, her face settling into a faint, comradely smile.

"We're much alike, Patrick, you and I..." She said, softly, sliding her hands over the curvaceous body beneath her black jacket and skirt. "Our bodies are our disguise for the deviousness intelligence of her minds. When people look at me, what do they see? Not another human being, perhaps even one capable of outsmarting them. They see long, blonde hair, toned legs in heels, and a pair of double-D breasts. That's what they see, Patrick - and when they look at you, they see a tall, scrawny accountant in a button-down shirt, peering myopically at the world through a pair of glasses that nobody ever notices have zero-prescription lenses. All part of the disguise, isn't it...?"

With a theatrical sigh, Elizabeth shrugged. "Unfortunately, Patrick, my admiration of you doesn't extend far enough to let you walk away with the money. I mean to have it, you see. Not that I don't appreciate the effort you went to in stealing it - indeed, I'm grateful, in my way. After all, I'm going back in to work Monday, and will work the entire week, just another stunned drone of an employee, until my scheduled vacation starts the following week. Having played the part of the sexy-but-ditzy blonde secretary, I was relying on that to deflect suspicion - but it will be so much better when they discover you missing, along with the money. Best of all, since you really did steal it, even the best forensic accounting will point to you, and not me."

Slowly, Elizabeth leaned in closer to Patrick.

"The only thing I need from you, my dear, sweet Patrick..." She cooed seductively, tracing the tips of her fingers along the red mark her palm had left from the slap, "...is the password to the numbered account in Lichtenstein that you transferred the money to."

Her slender fingers curled around the edge of the black leather strap that ran down the side of his face, bisecting the slap mark. Pulling back on the tension-release on the small metal reel, she pulled the red rubber ball-gag from Patrick's mouth.

The lanky, angular brunet coughed as the gag was removed, making gagging sounds in the back of his throat as he worked his tongue and jaw.

"Fuck you, you numb cunt..." Patrick replied, his voice hoarse - it had been more than four hours ago that 'Lizzy', as her ditzy alter-ego at work was known, had knocked on the door of his apartment, ostensibly to ask him out to dinner. He, like everybody else at MonoCorp, had been fooled by the buxom blonde façade, so she'd had no problem slipping him the needle that had had paralyzed him long enough for her two brawny assistants to man-handle him down to the van, where the restraints and ball-gag had been put in place.

"Oh, I think not..." Elizabeth said, releasing the tension bar and letting the internal spring yank the gag back into place. "Indeed - 'fuck you', my dear Patrick..."

Stepping back, she crossed her arms over her full chest and stared cruelly at her captive. Naked, he was spread-eagled on a large X frame attached to a rusting iron girder that supported the lofty roof. Helpless and at her mercy, he was displaying quite a degree of self-confident defiance, knowing that she couldn't kill him if she wanted that password...

...but, then again, there was always the proverbial 'fate worse than death', now wasn't there.

Dark eyes narrowed in helpless fury, Patrick watched as three men appeared out of the darkness that reigned supreme beyond the bank of work lights that lit his body. Two of the men were great masses of muscle, the pair that had dragged his limp body to the van. The third was a short, scrawny little man with a tangled beard on his weasel-like face, dressed in a disreputable-looking lab coat.

"Frank and George you've already met..." Elizabeth said, smirking, as the muscular men began to set up various pieces of decidedly medical-looking equipment around the X frame. "This is Doctor Martin Waltham. Dr. Waltham has developed a rather remarkable serum, which he was using in his plastic surgery clinic - until the authorities found out. It seems that certain... side effects... that Dr.

Waltham found extremely positive were seen in rather a more negative light by certain people." The defrocked doctor grinned evilly as he began laying out some equipment.

"You see..." Elizabeth said, smugly. "Dr. Waltham used his serum to, shall we say, 'enhance' a woman's feminine attributes... and then took advantage of the fact that the serum also commensurately enhanced the woman's hormonal production. In short, Dr. Waltham found himself in the business of producing nymphomaniac sluts who couldn't resist fulfilling his every desire.

While the good doctor found the situation eminently acceptable, the women didn't seem nearly so thrilled."

"A shame, really..." Waltham said, oily, as he hooked up a polygraph - a 'lie detector' - to Patrick's immobile form. "Still, I must admit that I never really consider subsidiary applications for my serum until Elizabeth asked me what would happen if I gave the serum to a man."

"The answer..." Elizabeth said, through a shark-like grin, "...is 'the same thing that happens to a woman' - since, if enough of the serum is given, that is exactly what you will become. A woman - with an uncontrollable sexual need."

Eyes widening in horror, Patrick attempted to struggle against his bonds - but it was a useless attempt, over a dozen leather straps holding him firmly in place as the doctor hooked him up to an elaborate IV.

"Actually.." The doctor commented, leading the tubes to a machine connected to a laptop computer. "It is not a single serum, but a complex mixture, and the final effect is determined by the percentages used. I'm sure, with enough trial and error, that we can find a particular mix that will... persuade you to cooperate."

As Frank and George wheeled a three-way mirror in front of him, Elizabeth took up the explanation. "Now, what we are going to do is this..." She said. "Under your left forefinger is a small button.

Whenever you feel like telling us the password, press it, and the serum will stop flowing. Now - don't think you can keep pressing it. You see, we've hooked you up to a polygraph, so we'll know if you lie to use - and if you do, we'll restart the serum at twice the dosage, and keep doubling it every time you stop the process and lie. I should mention that the serum also has another, um... negative effect. You see, as the hormonal production increases, it creates a sort of 'hormonal intoxication' that makes thinking steadily more difficult. That's just at the standard dosage, of course. At, say, quadruple dosage, you'd almost be guaranteed to become incapable of thinking about anything but satisfying your new sexual cravings - but since the mind will only be impaired, not physically damaged, you'd still be capable of dredging up the password out of your memory."

Grinning, Elizabeth stepped out of the way of the mirror, leaving Patrick's field of view.

"I'll let Dr. Waltham explain the changes that are occurring to your body as the serum takes effect." Her voice said, out of sight. "I should mention that the serum works quite rapidly - so I wouldn't suggest taking too long in deciding to give us the password. You might not like the results..."

With a low hum, the machine began pumping the mix of exotic chemical compounds into a horrified Patrick's bloodstream.

"You'll feel a low sort of warm tingle running through your body..." Waltham said, out of view behind the mirror. "That's completely natural..."

Patrick was, indeed, feeling that sensation - and he strained against his bonds, screaming into the ball-gag...

...but carefully keeping his finger clear of the button.

"Now, you'll feel an itching sensation across your skin..." Waltham said. "The serum sort of works from the outside in, so the first visible effect occurs when the skin becomes smoother, softer, finer. Now, as a sort of 'side effect' to that, the follicles tighten. Eventually, this creates the finer body hair of a woman, but the immediate effect is that all the existing body hair falls out..."

Patrick's skin began to crawl - and while it was partially a physiological reaction to the horror he felt, it was mostly the effect of the serum - for, even as he watched, his reflection in the mirror stared bug-eyed back at him as the hair began to slough off his body, 'popped out' of their place by the constricting pores.

"Perhaps you are not yet noticing a slightly giddy feeling, and a certain amount of difficulty focusing your mind..." Waltham said. "Don't worry, though - the hormonal effect has barely begun, and those sensations will shortly become clearly noticeable, despite your... agitated... state."

That was the understatement of the year, as Patrick's body was actually thrumming in the restraints, looking almost as if her were being electrocuted as he tensed and relaxed every muscle in his body in an effort to find some weakness in the bonds.

Every muscle in his body - except those in his left forefinger.

Through the gag, he began to whimper - not just in humiliated horror, but in pain.

"Ah yes - the unavoidable discomfort." Waltham said. "It's to be expected, really. After all, the skin is tightening dramatically over your penis and scrotum. In a few moments, if not stopped, the skin of the scrotum will tighten enough to press your balls back into your body. Interestingly enough, as the cock shrinks, the nerves within are compressed, creating a higher sensitivity-per-inch ratio. The smaller it gets, the more powerful an orgasm you will be capable of. If you choose to stop soon enough, your penis might be half the size it was - but the sex will be twice as good. If you don't choose to stop... well, you can just imagine what it will be like, all those nerves packed into the tiny nub of your new clit..."

The 'crawling' sensation across his skin strengthened - and became deeper...

"Ah... now the serum has started to effect the subcutaneous layer of fat..." Waltham said, with satisfaction. "Now we're heading into territory where it will be harder for you to walk away still 'male', should you choose to quit soon. As you see, the layer of fat is starting to thicken, smoothing the curvature of your muscles to a more feminine contour... but the fat of the breasts is especially affected. Why, you're already a cute little A-cup now! Oh, but don't feel bad about being so under-endowed... you'll get bigger."

He laughed, cruelly.

"Up top, at least - as you can see, your cock, already significantly shorter, is now also getting thinner. It won't be long until your crotch is completely flat - after which, it will begin forming a crevice. One that will look remarkably like a vagina - and function like one, as well. Oh, you won't be a 'real' woman, and will have no internal plumbing... but nobody but a doctor would know."

The whimpering through the gag was now equal parts humiliation and pain - but his finger stayed well clear of the button.

"My, but aren't you a stubborn one...?" Waltham commented. "The serum is now moving into the deeper structure, the muscles and ligaments. Not that it's stopped affecting the layers outside of it, of course - as you can see, your breasts are coming along nicely. You must be a full D-cup now, perhaps a tad larger... but because gravity hasn't had time to effect them, they're still remarkably firm. Indeed, one might think them silicone implants - if not for the fact that your nipples are growing apace..."

Another chuckle.

"Enough on you double-D's - or are they triple D now? I think they are... Let's talk about your ligaments, shall we? As you can see, they are tightening, which is helping to shift the configuration of your bones and muscles towards the center of each muscle mass. This means that the 'edges' are drawing back from the bones, which has the effect of not only defining the muscle mass itself, but also thinning the points at which the ligaments attach, such as the ankles, wrists, neck, and so on. As you can see, this has the effect of making such points look slimmer and daintier... while the compacted muscles provide a delightful tautness under the still-thickening layer of contour-smoothing fat. Why, just look how shapely your legs are becoming, the muscle 'pooling' in the calves and thighs, while thinning at the ankles and knees. Lovely, my dear..."

Breathing heavily through the nose, Patrick was struggling not to push the button - but it was no longer simply a struggle of will power, which in itself was becoming more difficult. No, it was something else...

"You're probably noticing some muscular strain." Waltham said. "With tightening muscles and ligaments, the 'natural' position your body will want to assume is changing. For example, your hands will now feel most comfortable when wrapped around something... oh, say something about the size and shape of a cock, let's say. Likewise, the changes in your jaw muscles, besides making your cheekbones look higher and more prominent, also mean that your mouth will naturally want to form a sort of 'O' shape, lips pulled back over your teeth - much like if you were preparing to suck a cock, come to think of it..."

The gag no longer felt so uncomfortable - and Patrick now knew why...

"Whoops! There goes the cock! Look at that crotch, perfectly flat aside from your little 'clit'. Don't worry though, my dear girl - it's already beginning to form that false vagina I mentioned, and that will go well with those wonderfully melon-like breasts sprouting from your chest now... though, of course, they're still growing..."

Another devious chuckle.

"Where was I...? Oh, yes - those tightening ligaments. Aside from the changes I've noted, there's also the feet. They, too, want to 'curl inward' - which means that the arch is being forced into a higher curve. Why, even now, I bet that you wouldn't be able to wear anything less than four inch heels without discomfort - and those ligaments are still tightening..."

The pain continued to grow - and sink deeper, though it was now beginning to be noticeably 'muffled' by the strange fog filling... his? her...? ...mind - even as strange, unwanted sexual thoughts began to tease the edge of that befogged mind.

"Ah, we're entering the final stage..." Waltham said, with great satisfaction. "Welcome to womanhood, Patti. Feeling those hormones now, are we? Oh, yes, your internal orgasm are being affected now. Your glands are being altered, secreting more and more powerful female hormones - while the nerves attached to the pleasure center of your brain are becoming less resistive. In fact, it could quite honestly be said that the now want to fire. You know how it feels if you stop masturbating when you're right on the edge of orgasm? That 'I've got to finish it' feeling? Well, you'd better get used to it, because now every pleasure-sensitive nerve in your body will feel that way, constantly, until you satisfy them. Of course, it's only at the 'minor annoyance' stage right now, but it's getting stronger..."

Patrick - or Patti - squirmed... no longer only in the grip of humiliation, but now in the unwanted grip of new needs, as her body began to demand sexual attention. Her still-forming new cunt was the worst of all, almost literally begging to be filled - but her mouth, ass and tits all ran a close tie for second, with every other square inch of her body coming in a third. Even her eyelids wanted to experience some sort of pleasurable caress...

...and, even as her befogged mind began to envision all the ways that men could provide her body with the pleasure it now desired, her slimmer finger jammed downward on the button.

Instantly, the pain faded as the changes stopped, and the tension release on the ball-gag was triggered, allowing it to drop from her fuller, fat-engorged lips...

"Aragon..." She sobbed, hearing the higher-pitched voice that the tightening of her vocal chords had created. "The password is Aragon..."

Then the new woman, still helplessly thinking of her new need for pleasure, began to cry.

Eyebrows raised questioningly, Elizabeth looked over at Dr. Waltham, who was surveying the scroll of paper from the lie detector.

Slowly, a broad smile crossed the doctor's narrow features, and he gave a thumbs-up. It was the truth.

"Good." Elizabeth said, shortly, turning to Frank. "Get her off there, and into those sleazy clothes we got at the second-hand shop - whatever fits her well enough. Take her into the city and dump her on some street corner. Maybe our little Patti can make herself a living as a street whore. Meet us at the rendezvous point in two hours."

As Frank and George began to man-handle the new woman towards the van, Elizabeth turned back to Waltham.

"That gives you two hours to pack up what you can, and smash anything you can't." She said. "There's several cans of gasoline in the back room. Make sure this place has an unfortunate accident before you leave - understand?"

"Yeah..." The disreputable doctor said, sullenly, not liking it, but seeing the need. "Good. Two hours then."

Striding firmly upon her four-inch heels, Elizabeth made her way out of the factor and out to her white Mercedes convertible. Bringing the efficient little German machine to life, she put it into gear and pulled out of the parking lot, careful not to squeal the tires and leave any possibly traceable new tread marks on the scarred and cracked asphalt of the parking lot.

Twenty-two minutes later, she pulled into the parking lot of a small house she'd rented with false identification. Set off by itself near a lake, the small bungalow was a vacation property, over-priced for its meager square footage - but suitable for her needs.

Climbing out of the car, she quickly let herself into the bungalow, where she went straight to the living room. She started the process of having the computer she'd placed there booting up, then went into the small kitchen and quickly poured herself a celebratory glass of the champagne in the fridge while the computer finished starting and automatically connected to the internet via the high-speed cable line that had been the deciding factor in choosing her safe-house...

...which was a good thirty miles away from the other house she'd rented, where Waltham had been staying, and where the three morons would meet, thinking she'd be waiting for them there.

She'd never had any intention of sharing any of the money. Though she'd had one plan to double-cross her 'partners' in place, this gave her a much better opportunity, since she could 'take her vacation early', since, even with that suspicious action, all the evidence would point to the missing accountant, especially since he had authorized access to the system, and she didn't.

Taking another sip of champagne, Elizabeth logged onto BankNet, drumming her polished fingers on the desktop as she quickly navigated through the Swiss-based network to the Banc du Lichtenstein. Entering the account number, she tabbed down and entered the password that 'Patti' had finally given up after all that 'persuasion'.

The account information began to flash up on the screen, and her eyes traced down the lines...

Blood draining from her lovely features, Elizabeth stared at the monitor, her eyes locked on the balance of funds, the minimum necessary to keep the account open: 1,000 Euros.

"No..." She whispered, shaking her head in negation. "No, no, no!"

She looked at the time of the money transfer out of the account - less than five minutes ago.

It was blindingly obvious what had happened. Patrick had already arranged to have some confederate transfer the money out as soon as the standard 'hold' on the funds to verify them had been removed. He'd held on to the password as long as he could to give his unknown partner time to move the funds - and if she hadn't stopped for the glass of champagne, she might have still beat him to it...!

Rising to her feet, she grabbed up her keys and sprinted for the door, throwing it open... "Going somewhere...?" Dr. Waltham asked, unpleasantly.

"What..." Elizabeth stammered, as Frank grabbed her and hauled her aside, allowing George to slip past. "How...?"

"You don't think we actually trusted you, did you?" Waltham asked, mockingly. George reappeared. "She's already transferred the funds, Doc."

With growing horror, Elizabeth shook her head. "No! No, it was empty! Patrick must have done it, must have had somebody else who transferred the funds for him as soon as possible..."

"Right..." Waltham said, sarcastically. "Sure he did..."

"No, I'm telling the truth...!" Elizabeth screamed, as they began to drag her towards the van.

"Now, now - it's not nice to lie to your friends..." Waltham clucked reprovingly, then heaved a false sigh. "Oh, well. I guess it's just lucky that there was no 'unfortunate accident' at the old factory. I'm sure you'll tell us where the money is... eventually."

Eyes widening in horrified realization, Elizabeth began to writhe frantically in Frank's unbreakable grip.

"Of course..." Waltham said, thoughtfully, as he prepared the injection that would paralyze her. "The serum does work much more effectively on a woman than a man. If you don't decided to tell us the truth, quickly, you might just end up with tits so big that you won't even be able to stand..."

Then, as she screamed mindlessly, he slipped the needle home...

* * * * *

Impatiently, Luke paced back and forth in the hotel suite, pausing every now and then to check his watch.

Patrick was nearly two hours late.

Already, they'd missed their scheduled departure time. In what was undeniably a brilliant move, they'd arranged to have the money transferred to Lichtenstein - and then, against all apparent logic, back into the United States.

It wasn't nearly as crazy as it seemed, however. The money wouldn't even be noticed as missing until Monday morning - and by then it wouldn't matter. The whole purpose of the little razzle-dazzle with the cash was to hide it's origin from the financial institution in the US.

Despite the oddity of it all, it made perfect sense.

Luke and Patrick weren't planning to hide out in Bolivia or the Caymans, like so many other 'sudden millionaires'. No, they'd set themselves up a nice little scheme, using Luke's connections and the money Patrick had stolen.

They were going to Cuba.

It was a country that had no extradition to the US - and, better yet, the American dollar went further there than anywhere else in the world.

With Luke's connections, they'd already set everything up. The bulk of the money wasn't to be taken as cash, but as trade goods - all the things they'd need to set up an island paradise in Cuba, with the full blessing of the Cuban government - for a percentage, of course.

By going through Canadian brokers, they'd avoided hassle, and even now an entire ship full of electronics, food stuffs and other necessary luxuries was en route to Havana. Indeed, the broker had been given a fund to draw on, so that regular shipments would arrive for the next five years, not only allowing he and Patrick to live in the lap of luxury, but endearing themselves to the Cuban government, who was even now eagerly anticipating the first 'payoff' of new cars and - more importantly - air conditioners.

The problem was - Luke and Patrick had supposed to have been ferried out to board the ship as it sailed past. Instead, they'd missed it, and now they had to wait at least another two hours until another Canadian ship went by...

..assuming Patrick showed up by then, Luke thought worriedly.

Then a knock sounded on the door to the suite, and Luke's taut muscles relaxed as he hurried to the door and opened it...

"Who the hell are you...?" He blurted out in surprise, staring at the strange visitor standing outside the door.

He had an near-flashback to a scene from the movie 'True Lies', in which the character played by Jamie Lee Curtis was supposed to act 'sexy'. Though dressed considerably different than the character in the movie, the tall, boyishly-pretty woman in the doorway had the same lean-hipped, long-limbed sort of physique, - and she exhibited the same sort of 'awkward sexiness', balancing uncertainly in a pair of white pumps with a six-inch heel that did very nice things indeed to the long, well-toned legs that disappeared under the hem of the short, purple spandex mini-skirt.

Jamie Lee Curtis, however didn't sport the massive, obviously fake tits that the woman with the almost mannish mop of brown hair outside his door did, however, The size of basketballs, her huge tits were amply displayed by the too-tight hot-pink spandex crop-top she wore, barely big enough to cover the surprisingly huge nipples she boasted, and Luke wondered how the plastic surgeon had managed to enlarge her nipples to match her impossibly huge, round, fake...

"Luke, it's me - Patrick..." The woman nearly sobbed in a slightly husky, 'I want to get fucked' voice.

"What is this - some sort of joke...?" Luke said, annoyed. "Did Pat tell you to do this? Where is he...?"

"Aragon!" The woman gasped out, one hand balled loosely at her crotch, lightly rubbing the fabric. "Precious!"

Luke performed an almost classic double take. While Patrick might, conceivably, use the first password as part of some sort of prank, since the account was now practically empty, the second password would access the trust-fund account they'd be drawing on for the rest of their lives...

Luke's eyes widened, and he took a longer, harder look at the woman's face. The woman's somewhat boyish, if not unattractive face.

The woman's boyish face, which if you imagined it being less lean, with less defined cheeks and slimmer, less full lips, would have looked exactly like...

"Patrick...?" Luke said, slowly, stunned. "What...? How...?"

Pushing her way into the suite, the new woman shoved the door shut behind her, already gasping out the bare-bones of what had happened to her, shame at being seen like this by her friend warring with unwanted needs her body was demanding - needs that she was forced to explain to Luke, since they were one major reason for her giving in and saying the password, and oh god, she was sorry, and did he get the money in time, and...

"Take it easy..." Luke said, still trying to wrap his mind around the thought that his friend had been transformed into a huge-breasted nymphomaniac of some sort. "I transferred the cash. It's all there..."

"Thank God..." The new woman sobbed, awkwardly ankling her way to the couch atop the unfamiliar heels that she no longer could walk without. "At... at least I'll be a rich, horny, huge breasted woman..."

"Let me get this right..." Luke said, slowly, walking over to where she sat. "You're, like, uncontrollably horny, all the time? Even right now? At this very moment... you're thinking about having sex...?"

"Yes..." Patti gasped, shivering. "Please, Luke - don't talk about it. Talking about it only makes it worse..."

"I need to understand, though..." Luke said. "I mean... if I said something like, 'God, I love your huge tits, you cum hungry little cock-sucking slut', what would that do to you..."

"Ohhh..." Patti moaned, hungrily, unwillingly rolling her arms back and thrusting her enormous chest further forward, even as unbidden images of herself wrapping her lips around a hard, throbbing cock filled her mind. "Oh, God... Luke... Stop it.. It's making me feel... want..."

She trialed off, struggling for control of her own bemused mind.

"I see..." Luke said, thoughtfully, sitting down on the couch beside her. "What if I were to start fondling your leg - like this... and say something like; 'It gets me so hard when you moan and whimper like a horny little slut'...?"

"Oh, please, stop..." She moaned like a horny little slut, writhing with unwanted pleasure as he fondled and stroked the taut contours of her reshaped leg. "Oh, mmm... Stop, Luke.. God, it feels so good.. you're making me so horny... Why.. Why are you doing this to me...?"

Luke feigned a surprised look. "If we're going to spend the rest of our lives together living in our house in Cuba, I want to know what type of woman I'll be living with. Now, tell me - what if I were to say I love your huge, round tits, and would love to squeeze and fondle them..."

"Luke.. no..." She moaned, as her hands moved towards her top.. then, slowly, almost painfully, pulled away as she fought the cravings Luke was inducing in her.

Reaching out, Luke shoved his hands under the thin band of a top, shoving it up and out of the way in one smooth motion - then squeezing her huge tits.

"Oh, God, yes...!" She cried in pleasure - followed a split second later by a cry of humiliation: "Oh, God, no...!"

"I see..." Luke said, with mock gravity. "Now, the big question. What if I were to tell you that you had two choices: Either come to Cuba and live a life of luxury as my eager little cum-slut girlfriend, or stay here, penniless, and end up as some sort of whore, or worse. Would that be enough to get you to beg me to fuck you?"

"Luke... why...?" Patti managed to gasp out, both hands urgently rubbing at her crotch.

"Come of it, lady." Luke sneered. "I don't know what's going on, but I don't buy your story. You don't feel like you used to be a man just a couple of hours ago. I don't know what game Patrick is playing

- but I'm willing to see just how far you're willing to go with this stupid game. So what's it to be? Are you going to tell me what this is all about, and drop the charade? Or do you want to keep insisting that you're Patrick, somehow 'magically' turned into some sort of huge-breasted nymphomaniac who's willing to be my personal whore for Patrick's share of the money...?"

Despair wanted to settle into the transformed man's mind, knowing that he'd never be able to convince her hard-headed friend of the truth - but it couldn't take a firm foothold against the raging sexual desires she felt, the ones that made her decision practically preordained...

"Fuck me, Luke - fuck your cum-craving little whore long and hard..." She cried, flushed with disgusted shame and urgent desire. "Fuck me like the slut I am...!"

Grinning, Luke lifted her long, toned legs and hauled her skirt off in one swift motion, revealing the tight, wet cunt that lay below, without the interference of anything as mundane as panties.

"Nice cunt... for a guy..." Luke laughed, as he used his grip on her ankles to swivel her into a better position on the couch, spreading her legs wide. "Come on, slut -let me hear you beg for my big, hard cock."

As he let go of her ankles to start peeling of her clothes, Patti complied, letting her desperate arousal give her the strength to push through the veil of horrified disgust at what she was doing: "I want to be fucked hard by your big, thick cock, Luke. Shove your hard cock into my hot, wet cunt, and fuck me like the whore I am..."

"You bet, babe..." Luke grunted, climbing up onto the couch, his cock hard and ready as he eased between her spread legs. "Keep talking, titty-girl. Let me hear you..."

"Oh, plunge your cock into me, stud...!" She cried - and he obeyed, with no finesse at all, simply slamming his throbbing organ into her to the hilt...

...and as it slid across the hyper-sensitive nub of her new clit, she screamed in horrific pleasure.

"Fuck me.. Fuck me hard..." She moaned, no longer forcing it at all, her mouth running on its own as she tried to cope with the mind-shaking pleasure that came from having a man fuck her.

Physical pleasure, that was - for, though her body craved what Luke was doing to her, plunging into her again and again in hard, practically vicious strokes, her mind was filled with horror and shame and disgust at being fucked. Fucked, as a woman - and not just as a woman, but as a whore, nothing more than a receptacle for Luke's animal lusts.

Which, of course, was what she'd agreed to become, the hard, overwhelmingly pleasurable fucking she was getting at the hands of her friend nothing more than a way of 'sealing the deal'...

"God, yes...!" She cried, trembling in an overwhelming pleasure she'd never wanted to experience. "Fuck, yeah, oh, yeah..."

"You... loving this... buddy-boy...?" Luke grunted, nearing orgasm.

"Yes.. yes.. yes..." She repeated, helplessly, nearing her own orgasm. "Oh, God....

YEEEEESSSSSSS!"

Her voice soared through the register, hitting the high notes with effortless ease as her body trembled in the grip of the most intense orgasm of her life, and orgasm ten times more powerful than any she'd ever felt before, a wave of ecstasy that washed through her entire body, momentarily becoming the entire universe...

...and an ecstasy that she wished she'd died rather than ever had to experience, for it marked her for what she'd become - a huge-breasted horny whore who hated loving what she was doing...

* * * * *

EIGHT MONTHS LATER

"Oh, yeah, baby " Luke moaned in satisfaction. "You're still the best cock-sucker in the whole world "

On her knees on a small foam pad in front of Luke's chair, Patti continued working the long, slow strokes of her full lips and skilled hand, her tongue dancing over the head of his cock.

Her feet, clad in black platforms with nine-inch heels, were curled up under her taut ass, her long, tanned legs spread to allow her to steadily work the dildo in and out of her cunt to the same languid rhythm with which she was working Luke's cock.

With ever slow bob of her head, her long, carefully styled mane of blonde-dyed hair swayed in gentle rhythm - matched by the gentle sway of her huge tits in the scant confines of her custom-made KKK-cup bikini top.

"Swallow it, babe " Luke instructed her, softly, a second before he pumped a load of warm, thick cum into her mouth, body stiffening, until - spent, he slumped limply back into the chair. Very limply.

Licking her full lips, Patti slowly rose to smile down at a stunned Luke who was struggling to move - in vain, since the paralytic agent the man who'd snuck up behind him, unnoticed, had injected him with rendered him helpless.

"Luke, meet Dr. Waltham " Patti said, gesturing with her free hand while the other one continued working the dildo in her cunt. "You're going to be getting to know him very, very well...

"Oh, yes, indeed " Dr. Waltham chuckled. "After Patti here gave me a call, explaining that she'd spent the past eight months trying to convince you of the truth, so you'd stop making her be your 'willing' whore, I was more than happy to accept her flat-out, no-fucking-around-this-time offer. I'm here to prove to you that she was telling the absolute, literal, and unvarnished truth - in exchange for which, I get paid a flat-rate fee of eight million dollars. After being certain I'd lost all chance of laying my hands on the money, which I would have split three ways, anyway, I'm more than willing to accept this deal - especially since, after I finish changing you, I get to keep you for my own personal whore..."

"Speaking of which..." Patti said, after a series of sharp gasps that finished her work with the plastic phallus. "I believe there's still the other part of our bargain..."

"Of course..." Dr. Waltham said, as he shifted Luke fully onto the wheeled chaise lounge, and began to push it towards the gate, outside of which a very specially equipped van was waiting. "Liz, dear - come say hello to your new girlfriend..."

Waltham, pushing the immobile Luke, disappeared through the gate - and as he loaded Luke inside the van and pulled away, Elizabeth stepped through the gate, gently closing it behind it.

"Hello, Patti..." She said in a high, breathy voice, her blue eyes revealing the immense force of will that it took the incredibly strong-willed woman to maintain coherent thought in the face of a dose of serum that would have reduced most women to mindless bimbos.

"Hello, Lizzy..." Patti replied, eyeing her massive breasts, even more ridiculously giant than her own rack.

"Thank you for letting me come be your girlfriend..." Elizabeth said, unconsciously licking her incredibly full lips at the sight of the dildo Patti still held.

"Of course." Patti said. "We've both spent the past eight months as 'sex slaves' to men we'd trusted

- and while we're unendingly horny, it's just for sex, not necessarily for men. In fact, given a man's... limitations... two women with a strap-on dildo can get more done..."

"Speaking of which..." Elizabeth said, fondling her massive new rack. "Okay..." Patti said, huskily. "...but I get to be on top..."

THE END.

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: During a fantasy, one guy finds that his twin sister has used a magic wand to transform him into the bimbo in the picture that he was lusting after.

Goddess

By Gunslinger

Sullen, slate-gray clouds, pregnant with a rain not yet delivered, scudded low and fast in the fast of an ever-stiffening wind. Lonely and forlorn, the gusting wind hooted mournfully across the landscape, drawing forth whirling dust-devils and to scamper and play across the track-like back-country roads, before throwing themselves to the side to be impaled up summer-gold shafts of wheat and barley.

No such golden stalks adorned the long-abandoned fields lying like a castle moat around the once-elegant two-story red-brick farmhouse. There, the wind had to be satisfied with howling through the once-delicate, now-decaying fretwork that adorned eaves, pitches and joists, and playfully tugging at the worn and wind-depleted shingles adorning the swaybacked barn and equally decayed carriage house.

At window and door, warping wood and crumbling putty gave entrance to the whistling wind, allowing it to skitter and dance with short-lived, but energetic joy. Hair and fabric, paper plain of brightly glossy – all such ephemeral objects briefly became a plaything for the inquisitive wind.

Milford Redman Allen barely noticed the long-familiar sensation of an intruding wind re-thatching his tousled mop of rust-red hair. Out of habit so long-honed he was unconscious of the action, he spread the long, lean fingers of his left hand across the glossy, brightly- colored pages, holding the magazine open against the brief, playful gust.

Licking the thin lips that lay beneath the bushy, tangled moustache, the tall, lean young man continued staring at the magazine balance on his knee, dark eyes bright and unblinking as his right hand slid under the tattered hem of his loose-hanging denim work- shirt, and under the fraying string holding his grease- (and less savory fluid-) stained sweatpants around his lean hips.

A small sound, halfway between a gasp of pain and a moan of pleasure, emerged from the throat of the six-foot, two-inch redhead, and his hand began working the almost painfully erect – and surprisingly small – cock in his stained Jockey shorts.

The scene itself wasn't really all that unusual, and aside from minor details, was probably being repeated hundreds of times across the country at the exact same instant. Nearly anybody, no matter how licentious or prudish, would have known exactly what they were seeing the instant they lay their eyes upon the scene – except that there was one, small detail that might have come as a small surprise.

Though plenty such material lay scattered around him on the couch, floor, and coffee-table of his living room, the magazine Milford 'Red' Allen was jerking off to wasn't a 'skin mag' of either the hard- or soft-core variety.

The scantily, yet 'street legal'ly-clad image of the woman adorning the page had never appeared in any such magazine – and indeed, had adorned very few other magazine pages of any stripe, and none of those few other images had been even as scantily-clad as this one.

The magazine that so firmly held Red's fixed – or, better, 'obsessive' – gaze was merely a June, 1988 edition of a cheaply-printed magazine, published under the auspices of 'The Business-Owner's Association of Feather, Nevada'.

The unimaginatively-named 'Feather BOA' was a ten-page publication that existed solely to (hopefully) entice potential guests and gamblers as to that month's attractions and items of interest. Amongst the various items within the June, 1988 edition was a half- page, full-color advertisement that held Red' interest. In garish, neon-pink letters against a pastel-blue background, the advertisement promised: "4 ONE NITE ONLY!!! LIVE SEXXX ACTS PREFORMED ON STAGE!!! LIMITED SEETING AVAIL!!! BOOK NOW!!!"

(Feather, Nevada, was that kind of place.)

The garish, misspelled, all-capital, declamation took up the top third of the advertisement. In considerably smaller letters, spelling accuracy impossible to judge, the performer's name lay at the very bottom of the ad. In the space left between lay the image upon which Red's never-tiring eyes once again feasted.

The image of a woman – to Red, the epitome of a woman; of all woman, everywhere. The image of... a goddess.

No – A Goddess. His Goddess.

Eyes locked on her memorized form, Red felt the burning, boiling sensation in his loins. Taking his hand off the magazine spread open at his knee, he shimmied down the waist-band of both underwear and sweatpants, hissing as fabric briefly pressed against throbbing flesh. He reached quickly for the always-handy box of Kleenex...

...and, horrified, didn't make it before he came.

"Nooooo!" Red screamed, horrified as his seed splattered out – and fate, chance, or the hand of a dark god was against him, for that spray of thin, salty liquid could not have been consciously aimed more accurately for the final effect.

Eyes wide in disbelieving shock, he watched his cum splatter all over the all-but-irreplaceable image of his Goddess.

Numbly, he groped for tissues, knowing the futility of the act even as he did so, knowing the thin, cheap paper was soaking up his spunk, the ink was...

His Goddess moaned.

Red stopped dead, only the rise and fall of his chest, the slight bristling of his unkempt moustache stirred by his breath, hinting at any life in his tall, lean form.

It wasn't possible. It was... was a picture! It couldn't... It moaned again – she moaned again...

...and the never-changing image rippled slightly, and a third, low moan of undeniable pleasure emerged from those divine lips, and Her eye, always half-lidded, always staring into a distance, shifted to look up out of the picture at Red.

"Oh, yes..." She half moaned, half spoke – and though he had never heard it before, never even heard it described before, that voice coming from the magazine was exactly the one he knew his Goddess would possess.

"Yes... that's just what I like..." She sighed sensuously – and those lips, those impossible lips, curved into a seductive smile. Then, before Red's wide, unbelieving eyes His Goddess reached out, dipped to finger in his man-seed splattered across her somehow-no-longer-merely-printed skin, and she almost lovingly brought those fingers to those heavenly lips – and sucked them clean.

'I've gone plum crazy', Red thought numbly to himself.

"Mmm... that's what I love " She informed him, with a naughty giggle, going back for seconds. She tasted him for a second time, then shimmied her celestial body around in the image, actually grabbing hold of one of the redundant exclamation points to pull herself up and look out of the photograph at him.

'Yup – crazier than a shit-house rat ' Red decided.

"It feels so good to be... wanted. To be... desired " She purred up at him. "That's what a body like this is for – the only thing a body like this exists for. To be admired by men, desired by men. To arouse them, to please them, to pleasure them "

Her tone changed, becoming coily kittenish, as those lips moved into a sensual mock-pout.

"You do desire this body don't you, Red?" She asked. "You want to touch it, to feel it – to watch it writhe in pleasure, to make it writhe in pleasure – that's what you want, isn't it?"

Red stared down at Her, numbly, still trying to tell himself this was impossible, that it couldn't be happening. Her pout deepened. Despite his intellectual disbelief, his cock began to stir.

"That is what you want, right?" She demanded, petulantly. "You want to have this body fulfill it's purpose – you want this body to pleasure men, to fuck again, to suck again, don't you?"

Dumbly, Red found himself almost unwillingly nodding. His cock was hard as the proverbial rock.

"Then say it, Red..." She purred smiling wickedly. "Say it..."

"Yes..." Red started to reply, voice hoarse with lust – and then, the world exploded.

He screamed, in a hoarse voice rapidly rising in pitch, and bones crackled and popped like fireworks – and well should they complain, for they were doing things no human bone had a right to do: compressing in on themselves; shrinking and slimming.

Height flowed from him like water from a broken vase. A second, much higher-pitched scream was pulled from his throat as if felt as if his feet had been caught in a vise, mercilessly crushing and compressing his broad spatulate feet into something small, something slender, something dainty.

The same, ruthless vise was at work at his waist, crimping it sharply inwards – but, as if that extra mass needed to go elsewhere, it felt as if he was being stretched on a rack as his hips swelled outwards. Even as shoulders and ribcage became slimmer, flesh began to bulge and mound on his chest.

Body hair hung about him in a fine cloud as it drifted out of shifting and refining pores, while the hair atop his head rapidly grew longer and lightened in color. Surrounded by the down-spilling hair, his face felt as if it were being pounded by a blacksmith's hammer, flesh and bone being worked into a newer, decidedly more delicate design.

Red screamed one more time, this one a classic horror-movie scream in high soprano and then the pain vanished as rapidly as it had come, leaving in its place a disturbingly pleasant ache that him and throbbed, filling a transformed body with a warm, somehow hungry yearning...

The new figure in the living room very slowly drew itself upright. Tiny feet, half-hidden in the cuffs of the now overly-long sweatpants, uncertainly moved across the creaky old wood floorboards.

Though the legs of the sweatpants hung in loose folds over shorter legs, they were strained skin-tight over the wide-flaring hip and tautly rounded, out-thrust new ass that swiveled and swayed outrageously with each hesitant, mincing step.

With that hip-swinging, ass-swaying, mincing little step, the new figure housing the mind and memory of Red Allen made its way over to a cloudy, brass-framed oval mirror mounted on the wall of the front hallway. Red had mounted it himself, and naturally he'd mounted it at a comfortable height for him to take a quick glimpse to make sure his hair was properly slicked down, for the infrequent times he was running into town.

The Red Allen who'd mounted that 'comfortably positioned' mirror had been six feet, two inches tall.

The Red Allen now standing before that self-same mirror had to reach out one dainty hand, slender fingers tipped with long nails, and hold onto the wall for balance as she rose up on tip-toe to see her new face in the mirror.

For several long minutes, the four foot, ten-inch tall young woman did nothing but stare at the heart-shaped face staring back at her from the mirror. Thick strands of wavy, cornsilk-blond hair hung in front of that face, but not nearly enough to disguise the huge, cornflower-blue eyes, the pertly upturned nose, or the amazingly full, bee-stung lips that now hung loosely open in a dazed expression of shock.

It was a memorable face – a recognizable face.

It was, in fact, the face of the woman in the magazine, right down to the smallest detail.

With that exact-same look of dazed incomprehension on her new face, the woman Red Allen had become lowered the gaze of those huge, vivid blue eyes to stare down at her blue denim work-shirt...

...or, rather, at the truly impressive pair of high-set, artificially-round breasts that presumably had given his Goddess her moniker – and which were now straining within the confines of the new woman's shirt.

"Oh, my God!" she squeaked in her crystalline new soprano, "I.. I.. I'm Suzi Sillycone!"

A sudden, cruel-edged peel of girlish laughter yanked the new woman's attention away from her over-inflated new implants. Head snapping to the side, she stared uncomprehendingly at the tall, lean-bodied redhead standing on the stairs, laughing herself silly.

"Muh... Milly?" The new woman stammered. "What... Why...?"

"Oh, but don't you just look so cute?" Millicent Blanche Allen giggled. Red's twin sister – whom Red had passed without even noticing on her way to the mirror – was standing on the third-from-the-bottom step of the steep old staircase, and one hand was braced on the banister to keep herself balanced as she let mirth shake her tall, toned body.

In her other hand was... a stick.

A highly-polished stick, delicately carved stick.

The type of stick you'd more properly have to call... a wand.

Realization struck the tiny, delicately-built new woman with the wide-flaring hips and huge, surgically-enhanced bust, and she gaped at the tall red-head on the stairs.

"You!" The new woman gasped in that damnably high-pitched, girlish new voice of hers. "You did this to me!"

"You bet your sweet ass I did!" Milly snarled, face twisting like some rabid animal's... and then her face smoothed with the same eerie speed, and she giggled girlishly; "...and such a sweet new ass it is, sis – so big and round and pert on that tiny little body of yours...!"

The new woman's huge, apparently mindless blue eyes locked onto Milly's dark ones – and, with dawning horror, Red realized that Milly had at some point gone completely and utterly mad. She was insane, completely off her rocker, 'crazy as a shit-house' rat...and somehow the owner of a magical wand that could make her warped will become reality.

"You...!" She suddenly snarled, her lips drawing back from her teeth and her madness shining in her eyes. "All you cared about was... was... her! It, I should say – not a real person, but what you imagined the person in some photo would – should – be like! Some brainless, helpless, useless excuse for a human being – useless, of course, except for one thing, the one thing she... she disfigured herself to make all the more obvious. Not a person, but a sex object, a sex toy... and it's all you could think about! The house slowly rotting around our ears, the last of Mom and Dad's insurance money slipping from the bank, and no matter how much I begged you to help, you just say in there jerking off to the one thing in the world that mattered to you, something that wasn't even real...!"

With the same lightning-quick shift of mood insanity brought, she was all smiles and giggles again.

"Well, she's real now! I made her real, just like you wanted... just like you asked for! I used this..." – she wiggled the wand – "...to make that stupid little picture ask you if you wanted that body, and you said yes – and, hey, wonderful sister that I am, I gave you what you wanted! How happy that must make you!"

Even as Red parted her full new lips to reply, Milly wiggled the wand again – and, too late, Red realized it wasn't just for emphasize.

Rather, 'Suzi' realized that fact, for it was Suzi's words that replied, not Red's: "Oh, yes, I'm, like, soooo totally happy to be a tiny little huge-breasted bimbo! Giggle I've, like, always dreamed of having a uselessly tiny, girlish little body, but with an exaggerated hourglass figure and, like, totally ridiculous over-pumped fake titties so that all the boys would know that I did this to myself on purpose, and now I do! After all, it's not like a silly, 'useless' girl like me would ever imagine becoming anything else but an empty-headed little living fuck-doll, y'know? Like, thanks totally, sis! Giggle"

Horried, the new woman heard those cheerful chirpy words pour unwillingly forth from lips now turned up in a huge, brainless smile – and realized, with even deeper horror, that she was now standing straight up, shoulders pushed back to emphasize her huge new tits, bouncing lightly and girlishly on her toes.

Acting, as well as talking, just the way you would expect 'Suzi Sillycone' to do.

"Well, of course, sis!" Milly said, too-brightly. "I couldn't leave you in a body you didn't want... a body you hated..."

Her too-bright tone became brittle, her smile fixed and twisted; "...a tall, skinny body – a boyish body, with not tits or hips... a body no boy fantasized about, about just like your bro..."

She broke off suddenly, giggling manically, and the mad gaze that had turned inwards suddenly speared Red full-force.

"Since I gave you that wonderful new fuck-bait body, sis, would you do something for me?"

"Like, totally! I'd do anything for you!" Red heard herself – heard 'Suzi' – assure Milly – then was horrified to hear 'Suzi' add, with a giggle: "I'd, like, so totally do anything for anybody!"

"I know you would, sis..." Milly assured her, her voice threatening rather than agreeable. "I know you would." Milly giggled manically again – and waved the wand.

The ill-fitting male clothing encasing the tiny, overly-curvaceous body of 'Suzi Sillycone' began to writhe and shift. Red watched in giggling, smiling horror as it re-formed itself quickly into a tight, low-cut hot-pink dress with a very short, very 'poofy' petticoated skirt that flared sharply over her flared hips, barely concealing the tiny white-lace French-cut panties that appeared to, in turn, barely cover her new womanhood – not to mention to ride up between the firm globes of her out-thrust new ass.

Her huge new tits strained mightily against the skimpy fabric of the pink dress – and they became all the more prominent when the tiny, frilly, and generally purely decorative little apron appeared, tying itself breath-takingly tight around her tiny waist. A pair of hot-pink 'fuck-me' pumps appeared on her tiny feet, slender heels pushing her seven calf-aching inches higher, and her hair gathered itself up into a hugely bouffant mass of pale-blond curls that seemed to add another seven inches to her negligible height before spilling down her back in a silken cascade of curls. Perched cutely in the mass high-piled atop her head, a tiny little lace-trimmed pink maid's cap appeared, and her gaze went helplessly to the pink-feathered duster that appeared in one tiny hand whose long nails were now adorned in glittering metallic-pink polish.

"Oh, aren't you so pretty...?" Milly asked in that all-to-bright tone of voice – and the new woman found herself turning to once again face the mirror...

...only, with the wiggle of the wand, this mirror was a full-length one, just the right for the new woman to take in her altered appearance.

The cute legs, calves enhanced by the sky-scraper heels on her pink pumps and the extremely short nature of her skirt. The wide hip supporting the rounded globes of her barely-covered ass. The oh-so-cute little apron. The massive breasts straining a top that displayed a truly stupendous amount of cleavage. The cute little cap nestled among pale-blond curls...

...and the name embroidered in white thread on the aggressively out-thrust slope of one unrealistic firm, spherical tit:

Bimbo-Rae Boobiedahl

'Oh, dear God...' The newly re-christened Bimbo-Rae thought to herself in horror, even as she squealed in delight at her reflection. Then, helplessly, she wandered off atop her towering heels to clean house.

Actually, the duster she held did it all - and more. She had to wiggle and jiggle around, waving it, but Milly had endowed it with magical properties - when she ran it across something, it came out the other side not only clean, but in perfect repair - and usually significantly 'upgraded'.

Still it meant she had to mince through the entire house, hideously aware of the swing and sway of her broad hips. Helpless to ignore the massive amount of movement in her huge tits as she bent, twisted and wiped. Unable to ignore the weight of her massive head of hair, the low ache in her calves for the extreme heels, the sound of her own mindless giggles...

...but worst of all, by far, was the indisputable fact of a slowly growing craving.

It had been with her when she'd first been transformed, but she hadn't known what it was, and forgotten about it momentarily in the minutes that followed. As she jiggled, bounced, and swayed around the house, however, she couldn't ignore the steadily growing, somehow pleasurable painful... yearning. A yearning that, while at first unidentifiable, unfortunately didn't remain that way.

She began thinking about sex.

She didn't want to, and when the first few vague thoughts occurred, she pushed them easily away. She'd catch herself thinking about her massive new tits, not just perforce noticing them as any motion made her do, but thinking about, in general, how as a guy she would have loved to touch tits like that.

She'd catch sight of her reflection, and tell her she had no business remembering how, as a guy, she'd dreamed of lips like that wrapped around her cock.

A breeze would stir her skirt, and she'd have to remind herself that she no longer had a cock to put in the tight pussy that lay beneath.

At that point, she still didn't realize what was happening. She should have figured it out by the time she was having more generic thoughts, random thoughts of a cock being sucked or a pussy being fucked, without specifically considering which one she was placing herself in the role of - but, then again, the fact that the thoughts came more often and lasted longer might have explained what she didn't consider the shift in content.

By the time she found herself constantly, consciously imagining a huge cock between her lips, or in her pussy, or hands on her tits, it was entirely too obvious to ignore.

Horror warred with desire in her mind, but no trace of either state showed on her vapid, giggling countenance. Nobody looking at her could know the war being fought behind that blank slate, a war between her 'real' thoughts and the newly imposed need to please men that Milly had forced upon her. By that point, her thought process - if you could call it that - was running something along the lines of:

'...oh god, no, I can't stop think it's about time I find a man to shove a huge cock deep inside my mind, these thoughts just keep going to wrap my perfect cock-sucker lips around a big problem trying to keep under control filled with hard, throbbing headache from fighting not to give him a world-class fuck, why can't I stop myself from behind, his cock filling my tight little bitch do this to me...?'

Sometime later, Bimbo-Rae Boobiedahl finished 'cleaning' the house.

That was exactly who finished the task - for when she stood, bemused, looking around with a dazed expression on her face, no trace of Red's own thought-patterns were to be found in the now-constant mental litany of sexual acts she was going to perform. If not for the mental control of Milly, pulling her string like a puppeteer controlled a marionette, she would be sitting in a corner somewhere, drooling - that's how little 'real' thought was happening behind that vacant expression.

Instead, she cocked her head, the way a dog might do when listening to a sound no human could hear, and with a little giggle she headed towards the now-immaculate stairs. She minced down the stairs, and into the living-room...

"GawdDAM!" the rough-looking sandy-haired man standing beside his sister said, jaw dropping.

Not that Bimbo-Rae recognize the second person in the room as 'her sister' - such advanced thought was far beyond her. Just as Red would have known the blond to be Mark Holmes, the thirty-something year old man who ran the garage in town, whereas Bimbo- Rae's identification ended simply at 'man'. In her state - or lack-of-mind state - she was incapable of even distinguishing one man from another... but she knew what a 'man' was alright.

"Like, hi! I'm Bimbo-Rae Boobiedahl!" She introduced herself - a 'pre-programmed' response that she was unaware she was even performing. Smiling rapidly, she stood there, tits out-thrust and mind empty, blankly awaiting some indication of what the 'man' wished of her.

At that moment, Bimbo-Rae really was 'the Goddess', the 'perfect female' - nothing but a mindless husk, nothing but overly feminine body and unthinking, obedient sex-drive.

Reluctantly, Mark tore his gaze from the tiny bimbo before him to look over at Milly Allen, who called him up and told him the most unbelievable thing - but a think he had, and still feared to, believe:

"Anything...?" Mark asked.

"Anything." Milly assured him, with a manic chuckle.

Licking his suddenly-dry lips, Mark turned to look at the bimbo standing blankly before him. "C'mere, baby..." He said, half-hoping, daring to believe...

"Okay!" She chirped agreeable, then wiggled that ass over to stand in front of him. Mark hesitated a second - then reached out and began squeezing her unbelievably huge tits.

She stood there.

She just... stood there. A little giggle escaped those full lips, but it seemed in no way connected to anything Mark may or may not have been doing.

"You enjoying this, honey...?" Mark asked her, a puzzled look on her face.

Her response was immediate, a knee-jerk reaction, and totally uninformative: "Okay!"

He hesitated a second - then tore the top half of her dress downward, bunching it at her tiny waist and exposing her huge tits to the world... and she did absolutely nothing but stand there, smile fixed on her blank face.

An wicked smile rising on his own face, Mark went to work on her tits with a will, doing whatever he wanted to do, not worrying if it gave pleasure or pain to the tiny woman - and, if it gave either or neither, he would never know, for her expression never changed. A few times her posture or position did, however - always 'agreeably', a direct response to his own actions, in order to facilitate whatever it was he was trying to do. Mindless as she might have been, she was 'pre-programmed' to please, so she wasn't just a inanimate toy, but an obediently responsive one.

"Strip..." He commanded her a bit later, his voice husky with desire - and she quickly and obediently complied, removing the dress and apron, but leaving the shoes and that cap on. The quick-strip was, of course, accompanied by a chirped "Okay!"

"Now, fuck me silly!" he commanded her - and she obeyed. Oh man, did she obey!

He'd never experienced anything like it - never even imagined it. Though completely complacent, the only thought in her head was pleasing him, and that was her only goal. Not for a single instant did her own pleasure come into the equation, not once did her own needs, wants, or whims matter - but, thoughtless as she might have been, she was programmed with an incredible range of sexual skills, and she used them all. Pace and pressure, rhythm and timing - she brought him to the brink, then slowed it down and held him there. She teased him, she pleased him, and she seemed not only to have skills galore, but stamina to burn. It went on what felt like damn near forever, her body rubbing against his, sometimes bringing his attention to her huge breasts, sometimes to her firm ass, sometimes making him drift in pleasure while she worked him. It went on and on, almost to the point where delicious pleasure would edge into pain...

..almost.

Somehow, she knew right where that line was - and an instant before she reached it, she unthinkingly pushed him over the edge, bringing him to the most satisfying climax in his entire life, seeming to drain him in oh-so-many different meanings of the word.

"Damn...!" He swore, shaking his head in disbelief as he stared at the vapidly smiling bimbo still astride him. "I don't think I ever came so long and hard in my life...!"

"Oh, I'd say that was just about average for you..." A voice said, and Mark started - he'd forgotten that long, tall drink o' water, Milly Allen, was here. Had she just sat there the entire time, watching? Creepy... especially with the crazy-looking little grin on his face. Still and all, she'd invited him over, promising just this thing, and she'd delivered - how or why she was pimping this bimbo out, Mark didn't know, but he wasn't going to blow the chance for a rematch.

Eventual rematch, he thought ruefully, looking down at his more-than-sated manhood.

"Damn girl, when my pecker starts workin' again in a week or so, I'll have to see what you can do with those lips of yours!" He told Bimbo-Rae... who, of course, said that was 'Okay!'

"I think you'll find when you have a huge-breasted little bimbo around, you can get hard practically right away..." The tall, creepy cunt said, with that weird little grin.

"Doubt it..." Mark grunted, sourly - but damned if he didn't feel a slight stirring in Mr. Happy even as he denied the possibility. "Well, we'll put that to the test as soon as I get back...." Milly said, standing. "Bimbo-Rae, come with me into the kitchen..."

"Okay!" Bimbo happily agreed, mindlessly following Milly into the kitchen - although she was unaware that was what she was doing, as it was just a programmed response to obey. All her empty little mind was full of was the man she was leaving behind as the door to the kitchen swung shut behind them and...

Red desperately tried to scream, but Milly had thought of that. The horrified woman, newly returned mind flooded with the realization of what had just happened, could do nothing but whimper...

...and even as she whimper in horror and disgust, the most horrifying and disgusting things about her memory of mindlessly fucking the brain out of a man where the memories of how much she'd... she'd...

...LOVED IT.

That wasn't an intellectual response, nor an emotional one - it was purely a physical one. Her body was tuned to enjoy pleasing men on so many levels, from the straight-forward physical sensations, but also to much deeper, and horrifying ones.

Like a drug addict needing his fix, she'd felt... empty, incomplete, painfully hollow - until she'd been pleasing Mark, getting her 'fix'.. and even now, in her horror and disgust, she still, helplessly... wanted that. She didn't want to want that... but that made it no less true. This new body craved the chance to please men, and while she was satiated now, that craving was still lurking, and it would grow.. and grow.. and grow - and the worst the cravings got, the better it would feel to satisfy them.

"My God, Milly - how could you!" Bimbo-Rae whimpered. "... to your own brother...?"

"Brother?" She snarled, madness dancing in her eyes once more. "It was genetics, stupid, simple fate, nothing big or noble or... or... important that turned out to make us twins, nearly identical in looks and background and anything else that matters, and... oh, no..."

The 'oh, no' came out in an odd little tone of voice, and shock briefly pushed insanity at bay as she looked down at her body. A body that was already beginning to change.

"I.. I didn't...!" She protested, in a voice getting higher in pitch.

Without thinking, she'd begun angrily gesturing while she'd ranted at him, emphasizing the two of them... in short, she'd been waving the wand while she spoke the words 'make us twins, nearly identical in looks and background and anything else that matters'...

...and the unthinking, unknowing, uncaring power in the wand had obeyed.

Just as, the mindless magic deciding the rapidly altering woman had reached a critical point, it obeyed an earlier command, a safeguard the then-almost-sane Milly had put in place to keep the soon-to-be-female Red from possibly turning the magic against her

- a command that the wand couldn't even be held by 'a big-titted little bimbo'.

The wand forcefully yanked itself from her shrinking hand, 'throwing' itself through the kitchen door.

"No!" Milly-becoming gasped, and jiggled after the wand in steadily rising heels. As her clothing shifted around her, she pushed through the kitchen door....

...and mindlessly continued walking forward atop her sky-scraper heels. Desperately, her mind screamed at her body to pick up the wand, to change herself back - but her blankly grinning body ignored her, following the same 'background' she'd programmed into Bimbo-Rae.

The major difference being that, while she was fully programmed into instant, subservient obedience, she hadn't had time to 'prime the pump' into complete mindlessness, as was fully aware behind her blank, emerald green eyes as she knelt gracefully in front of where Mark had fallen into a light doze.

It had been ordained - by her, herself, promising to 'put it to the test' when she got back. So, the instant she'd stepped through the kitchen door, she'd been committed - and so, now, she lowered gloss-red, pouting lips, and 'willingly' wrapped them around Marks' cock, which replied by - as she'd magically assured it would - rapidly hardening.

It didn't take long for the incredibly sensation of a building orgasm to pull Marki from his doze.

"Damn, Bimbo-Rae!" He gasped, amazed, as he once again gushed long and hard in response to her ministrations only to find himself gazing down at a massive bouffant of red-hair.

"No, silly!" The red-head giggled as she finally finished swallowing the last drop of his massive load of cum. Grinning brainlessly, she straightened and gestured at one monumental breast straining against her red satin maid's dress – indicating, Mark figured out a second later, the words embroidered in white thread:

Slut-Marie Boobiedahl

Considering it for a second, wondering if he'd been out long enough for the tiny bimbo to dye her hair, Mark finally gave a shrug and a grin.

"Hell, babe – I don't care what you call yourself " He said, pulling the (apparently) completely willing woman closer as his cock -

'Almost magically', he thought - began to harden again, "You've got the body of a goddess "

* * * * *

Some distance away, a woman with the same unrealistically curvaceous figure was walking down the side of the road.

With the transformation of Milly Allen into Slut-Marie, the 'immediate' control over the woman who had once been Red Allen had vanished. That was not to say everything in her mind, much less her body, had gone back to the way it had been - no, like the changes to her body, certain 'pre-programmed' things about her personality were apparently permanent.

Nevertheless, the incredibly short, stacked blonde was extraordinarily happy, given the circumstances - for at least she was able to act for herself, within those limitations, rather than playing to a demented script...

She was ankling her way down the side of the road in the same pair of excruciatingly high-heeled pink pumps she'd been wearing - none of Milly's shoes had come even close to fitting her tiny, dainty new feet. Truth be told, since the magically-bestowed skill and gracefulness in even such extreme heels was another one of those permanent changes, the new woman was only mildly annoyed at still having to wear the shoes.

Though the skill was now permanent, the enforced way of walking Milly had insisted on thankfully wasn't - a combination that meant that the new woman was striding briskly (yet, of course, gracefully) along the road-side. Though her build ensured it was a sensual, hip-swaying stride, it wasn't the over-done wiggle-and-bounce the mincing step previously enforced upon her had mandated.

Aside from the maid's dresses, the only clothes in the house had been Milly's and Red's, and while neither was exactly suitable for the matched women the siblings had become, Milly's had at least offered a place to start.

What had once been a pair of jeans designed for a tall, trim-hipped woman had been cut down into a pair of shorts that stopped in a ragged hem just above an incredibly cute pair of knees. The new woman might have possessed remarkably wide hips and a full ass for one of her height, but that meant the pants designed for a lean, tall woman 'merely' fit tightly across those new attributes, rather than painfully confining them.

A thin white belt, also once Milly's, cinched the otherwise loose waist of the jerry-rigged shorts tight to her tiny waist.

Her massively thick mane of pale-blond hair no longer confined to the ludicrously overdone bouffant, it now had been pulled back and quickly bundled through a doubled elastic before being allowed to fall in a nearly cape-like mass of blonde curls that hung to the top of her swaying ass. This makeshift ponytail swayed with each step she took, the pendulum arc of the curled mass rendered off-center by the battered backpack slung over one slender shoulder. In it was a few more pairs of make-shift shorts, every dollar that had been in both Red's wallet and Milly's purse, a few easily-consumed and long-keeping foodstuffs... and every work-shirt Red and Milly had owned.

Any other type had been completely impractical for a woman with a bust as big as hers, if said woman was going to do any significant amount of walking. Which was why she was wearing one of them now, a black-brown-and-red tartan-pattern cotton shirt... tied in a knot just below the generous amount of cleavage and creamy-white tit-flesh it displayed. It might have been more revealing than the new woman was really comfortable with, but it served its purpose as a make-shift bra. That was a matter of necessity, to reduce the amount of jiggle, bounce, and sway that inevitably came with each step she took.

A spray of light suddenly swept across the low clouds, and her tiny thumb rose in an ages-old gesture even before the 'bodacious blonde' looked to see what car was traversing the gray-clad afternoon landscape.

It was a battered mid-70's Ford LTD station wagon, driven by a young man with longish brown hair. He pulled the car over next to her - and, inevitably, his eyes went first to the massive breasts so enticingly displayed.

"Uh... need a lift...?" He stammered - hardly original, but his entire mind was hardly on conversation.

"Yeah - anyplace you can take me would be great." She agreed - her voice still high and girlish, but without the vapid smile, giggling, or any other of the 'bimbo' mannerisms.

"Sure, hop in..." He agreed, almost indecently quickly.

"Great." She told him. She walked around and slid into the passenger's seat. "I'm John - John Cooper..." said, holding out a hand.

She introduced herself... well, sort of. What her brain insisted she say was something else, but she had enough of her mind back to modulate it as it emerged so it sounded an awful lot like 'Baimba-Rae Boo'bdddahl', which - as she'd hoped - sounded like a mildly southern-accented way of saying: "Bambi-Rae Baudell..."

"Nice to meet you, Miss Baudell..." John said, shaking her hand delicately, then starting to withdraw it to reach for the shift lever - and so, he was surprised when she held tight to it, rather than let go. He glanced at her questioningly.

"I... have another favor to ask, in addition to just the right..." She said, with a sigh, and he looked at her with more than a hint of distrust.

"Yes...?" He asked, slowly, as she released his hand again.

She sighed again, hating herself for feeling the tingle, anticipatory pleasure that ran through her body. "Can I suck your cock...?" She asked in a resigned tone.

John gaped at her, unable to believe he'd heard her correctly.

Given one of the other 'permanent' things she was going to have to live with was her need to pleasure men, Bambi-Rae had no choice but to take his stunned silence as a 'yes'...

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: Filled with despair over the loss of his girlfriend, one man blindly heads into the woods where he encounters a strange force with brings a new life.

Gone A'wandering

By Gunslinger

It wasn't until Josh unzipped his battered old flight jacket to get at the pack of cigarettes stashed within the silk-lined inner pocket that he realized just how late it had gotten.

Though the snow on the ground was mostly melted into a swampy soup of mud by the warm days that had shed the bitter chill of true winter, spring had yet to take a real hold on the land. Not only did the grasses and trees remained dormant, clothed in their drab gray and sere brown winter hues, but the fading memory of the winter lay sharp in the nights.

It was this sharp chill that was carried by the restless stir of wind that slipped in through the open jacket to caress the tall, slender man's chest, pulling him out of the half-daze in which he'd fallen.

His blue-gray eyes blinking like that of a man just woken from a long, deep sleep, Josh looked around himself with a new eye to his surroundings. He lit the cigarette, cupping his hand around the flame of the lighter to protect it from the breeze that ruffled his untamed mass of dark hair, and realized that his mindless 'stroll' had carried him nearly four miles down the muddy country road, his legs and feet carrying him along without any input from his numb mind.

Taking a deep drag on the cigarette, Josh looked at the landscape surrounding him, the fallow fields and the woods and stone walls that edges them painted in the somber red-orange hues of the approaching sunset, and wondered if one of these days he just might not continue walking, ever further from the whitewashed wood-framed farm house that was just that - a house, not a home.

He'd started walking that day, three weeks ago. Just a short walk, that first day, 'to clear his head' - and clear it had been, for he'd walked in the mindless daze of the shell shocked. Every day, the stroll was longer, but the haze stayed just as thick on his mind, even now. Even three weeks after Connie had left him.

'Since you drove her away...' His mind insisted in filling in, bitterly, in a voice, cruel and twisted, that was nevertheless his own.

The very voice from whom he was trying, in vain, to flee. The voice that was, mercifully, silent during his walks - but that spoke up, loud, clear, and bitterly right, whenever he let himself think again.

Turning, Josh looked back down the undulating dirt road, towards where the white farmhouse sat out of sight, if not out of mind. The simple clapboard house that was supposed to be the home and hearth of newlywed happiness, but had instead turned into the site of shame and pain the day before the wedding that had not = ad never would - happen.

Suddenly, the thought of walking all the way back to that house didn't seem worth the trouble. Worse, it seemed as if it were a waiting dagger, waiting to slid into his gut and twist cruelly the instant he stepped across the threshold he'd never had the chance to carry his bride across.

The thought that entered his head in that moment was, on the face of it, insane - and yet it didn't feel/insane. If let... right. He wouldn't go home tonight. He wouldn't go anywhere tonight, but stay out here, in the woods.

The very fact that the nights were still bitter enough that the risk of death due to exposure was still a valid threat only made the idea seem more perfect, more crystal-clear right, almost Old Testament.

He would put his life in the hands of a God he wasn't quite sure he believed in, and then, perhaps, should he survive the night, it would be a sign - a sign for him to let go of the guilt and pain gnawing at his heart like a rabid wolf...

...and if he didn't survive the night, well, then, he wouldn't have to worry about the pain anymore, now would he?

To his right, the land sloped down away from the road, an unplowed and untended stonewall-edged filed leading to the woods crowding close to the fieldstone barrier at the rear of the field, as if eager to reclaim the once-cultivated land for their own.

On the left, however, the woods pushed close to the edge of the road, somehow deeper and more primeval then the tamer woods flanking the field to the right.

Without another thought, Josh turned and entered the tangled undergrowth bordering the road to his left, pushing through into the deep shadows that lay beneath the boughs and boles of the old-growth trees.

He should have paused just inside that line of darkness, letting his eyes adjust to the instant twilight, but instead he pushed forward, running the risk of breaking a leg in an unseen sinkhole or finding some other treachery to lame or kill him almost with a kind of relish, laying his fate - his life - into the open arms of random chance with a sort of dark glee. The branches of the trees poked and pricked at him, and though the heavy leather of his jacket and the stiff denim of his jeans shielded his legs, there was every chance of a way- ward branch blinding him at this pace - and he knew it, knew it well, but didn't let him slow him at all as he pushed deeper into the tangled woods, eagerly seeking something his heart cried for and his head shuddered to name.

Onward he ran, trying in vain to outdistance the demons that rode him like a steed...

...and then, in a clearing he burst into without warning, his eyes found the light they were craving.

The shifting, pulsating light spread out from the eerie, coruscating curtain in front of him, like a fragment of the aurora borealis brought to earth. A strange, rippling curtain of light that had no earthly business being where it was, an eldritch bit of magic spun out of the primeval woods themselves.

Had he 'put on the brakes' the instant he'd seen the eerie, impossible curtain stretched across his path, perhaps Josh might have been able to come to a skidding halt just before he hit the shimmering curtain.

Perhaps.

He didn't even try.

In a burst of nihilistic joy, Josh all-but-threw himself into that shimmering, unearthly glow...

...and felt nothing but blessed release as the gathering darkness claimed him for it's own.

* * * * *

The very first thing Josh felt when he awoke was completely out-of-keeping with the surroundings in which he woke. With the warm feel of early-morning sun streaming in a window accompanying the sweet silence somehow enhanced, rather than broken, by the sound of birdsong, the fading cool of the evening warmed by the rising sun in a warm, languid moment of relaxation, Josh's first, coherent emotion was starkly at odds with the external surrounds.

He felt outraged. Cheated.

For one, glorious moment, he'd known blessed nothingness, and now to awake to the familiar feel and smell of his own bedroom in his new-yet-memory-haunted farmhouse left an icy core of outrage within him. It wasn't fair, he thought, not fair that he'd been led to believe it was all over, then awaken only to find it was still all the same...

...and then the fog of his deep sleep cleared, and it registered that his body was insisting, rather forcefully, that everything wasn't the same.

Rather, the body he wore was insisting that - because those sensations were insisting that it wasn't the lean, lank body he'd always called his own.

It was a million things that Josh couldn't possibly have described in that moment - yet the very fact that he felt them was more than enough. Only when something was 'wrong' with your body did you truly become aware of it. It was similar to what happened with smells - surrounded by any smell long enough, the brain grew numb to it, and it no longer registered consciously. Likewise, the very feel of your own body was so familiar as to be forgotten - until something changed.

Well, something had changed. Radically.

All of this - from waking, to outrage, to the certainty that the body containing the persona previously known as Joshua Redman - took, perhaps, all of two whole seconds.

In the next scant second, even before sitting bolt upright to stare down at a altered physique, Josh knew what the change was. The gaping stare, accompanied by a stifled, breathless, high-pitched shriek, was only the 'icing on the cake'.

Josh was a woman.

Eyes wide in a mix of shock, horror and disbelief, the new woman stared down at the way the simple flannel nightshirt was tented out over her full, round breasts, more than a hint of creamy cleavage displayed by the pink-trimmed neckline of the garment. The arms that rose upwards were slim and smooth, only that fine downy hair of a woman covering them as they conveyed slender, feminine hands tipped with long, well cared-for nails to her prodigious new bosom, to lightly squeeze the softly firm flesh in the faint-and-dying hope that it was some lingering dream.

It wasn't. the somewhat familiar sensation of hands being filled - nigh on to over-flowing, in this case - with firm, warm breast-flesh under a thin layer of fabric was undeniable - as was the completely new sensation that came from the breasts themselves as she squeezed her firm new endowments, then yanked her hands quickly away, startled - and disturbed - at the strange sort of singular pleasure the touch had caused, even in her confused and unhappy emotional state.

"This... This isn't possible!" She gasped to herself, her crystal-clear new soprano voice trembling as she made the patently false statement. Improbable, yes - but every sense, every sensation, denied the impossibility of the situation, no matter how much her 'logical' mind tried to convince her that what she was experiencing couldn't possibly be happening.

"I... I'm a woman..." She said, next, this time a sort of wary, unwanted awe tingeing her voice as she considered the inexplicable situation.

She could have told herself that she'd never, ever even so much as wondered what it would be like to be female - but it would have been a lie. After all, any man born of woman sometimes wondered just how green the grass was on the other side of the gender fence, though how emphatically a person wondered that ranged from mere, guilty musing to something more emphatic, depending on the wonderer.

Josh, personally, had used the 'socially acceptable' dodge of dressing up as a woman one year, the same excuse many a man had made use of to get away with 'trying on' a female persona without substantial risk to their masculine self image, not to mention the social response that would have come from cross-dressing any other time of the year.

Also like many men, that was as far as Josh had ever gone - at least externally, where it could be seen. He'd still occasionally wondered what it was like for women - especially in the post-coital afterglow, when a particular woman seemed to have enjoyed the sexual intimacy on a level he'd never have understood...

...or, at least, so he'd always thought.

This particular situation had never even crossed the then-male mind.

For several long minutes, the new woman considered going into utter hysterics, letting herself work off some of the raging emotions in the hope that, afterwards, some sort of sense might come to her, both intellectually and emotionally - but the chances of that happening seemed very slight indeed, for she knew that she was simply unprepared for this particular situation, and no amount of hysterical screaming or denial would make it more logical, nor make it go away.

However it had happened, he was now a she - and she would have to cope with it, no matter how poorly or reluctantly.

With that in mind, the new woman pulled off the covers that hid her lower half, trying to view the situation as objectively as possible - despite the highly subjective emotions and thoughts leaving her in a confused state of being.

Reveled by the hem of the 'shortie' nightshirt were a pair of smooth, slender legs that, at another time and from any other perspective, she would have found quite attractive - but knowing that those long, slim legs were her own changed the emotional reaction a little bit, just as the sight of the full breasts tenting her nightgown had.

"Why couldn't I be flat-chested an unattractive...?" She asked thin air, wincing internally at the sweet sound of her new voice. Being female was one thing, and bad enough at just that - but somehow, being an attractive woman was worse, as if there were somehow 'degrees' of femininity, rather than it being an all-or-nothing situation.

With a sigh, she swung those damnable cute legs over the edge of the bed and pushed herself upright - and the very action felt unnaturally natural, for though she was commanding the new body what to do, it seemed to have a mind of its own when it came to how to do it - namely, in a smoothly graceful way as emphatically feminine as the body itself.

She turned, slowly and hesitantly, towards the mirror mounted atop her old bureau - and the slow motion with which she moved her head let her rather numbly notice something about her surroundings.

It was her room.

Not 'his' room, as she'd thought before the new gender had caught her attention. Though it was the same room, with the same basic furnishings, the décor had subtly but undeniably changed. Lace doilies now sat on previously bare nightstands, and a vase with flowers sat beside a brass-trimmed old-fashioned wind-up alarm clock that had replaced the simple, utilitarian battery-powered one Josh had owned.

It was a hundred-and-one little things - but, taken in the aggregate, the effect was glaringly obvious. This was a woman's bedroom...

...and then the mirror finally came into her field of vision - and the woman who had been Josh Redman forgot the décor as she stared at herself in the mirror.

The genetic mix that had turned out this woman were obviously the same ones that had created Josh - but the net differences meant that the 'family resemblance', though present, was muted.

She was still tall and lean, with a raven's sweep of hair above Atlantic-shaded eyes... but the total effect of the hundred-and-one differences was even more pronounced in her new body than the décor issue.

She was tall and lithe, with slender yet womanly hips and long, well-toned legs. Though the garment she was wearing was hardly the most flattering thing she could wear, her supple figure made it good enough to show that her waist was slim and her shoulders slightly broad - all the better suited to carry the weight of her full breasts, which were quite large, yet equally firm.

Given that she'd never had breasts before, they seemed to be outlandishly huge to her, at least 'internally' - but her eyes couldn't lie through inexperience, and the firm breasts were more grapefruit than the melons they felt like to her senses. Nevertheless, they would have been prize-winning grapefruit, round and firm and out-thrust with a nearly spherical perfection that made them look much larger than a domed version of the same sized breasts would have seemed.

Given the noticeable out-thrusting of the somewhat strained top across the highest portion of her new rack, her nipples were in keeping with the heroic proportions of her new endowments...

...and that was just the right word for it.

From the lean, lithe, and emphatically feminine shape of her new body to the startling, powerful beauty of her full-lipped and large-eyed new visage, she brought to mind the figure of a comic-book heroine. Not the rather undetailed ones of the Golden Age of comic books, but the 'better than human' heroic figures of modern comic book art, well-toned without being any less the feminine for it, and with breasts so firm and fully formed as to seem nearly designed to catch the eye, even in such a simple garment.

She wasn't just 'attractive' - she was, quite literally, stunning...

...and she also seemed to be the better part of a decade younger than her old, male self, certainly no more than twenty-two or -three years old.

Josh Redman, heart-sore and despairing, runs madly through a forest, right into a aurora borealis that has no earthly business being there - and not only wakes up female, but younger and gorgeous...

...or maybe Josh Redman, wandering mindlessly down a country road, was hit by a drunk redneck in a pick-up, and this is his afterlife.

Mind benumbed by the shocks piling atop one another, she slowly shakes her head. Maybe she's dead, or maybe she's crazy - but all of this feels real. Weird, impossible, slightly sickening - but real.

Still stunned, she hesitantly reached out and picked up the brass-trimmed black leather pocketbook sitting on the top of the bureau, her fingers strangely familiar with the task of opening the clasp and slipping the driver's license out.

Jessica Redman. Age 22. Five feet, nine inches tall - a lot of that in her legs, apparently.

Still feeling like she'd been hit over the head with a marshmallow hammer, Jessica slipped the license back into place and lay the pocketbook gently down on the dresser. Turning with the slow, deliberate motions a almost-drunk person might use, her mind and emotions churning useless in an endless cycle, she slowly made her way out of the room, eyes cataloguing the feminine hints in the décor she passed without it truly registering on her mind.

It was a lot to deal with, one thing after another 'sneaking up' on her on top of the last three weeks, during which she'd run mostly on auto-pilot...

...so she could be forgiven for missing all the 'clues', the noises and scents and other indications that she wasn't alone in the house.

All in all, descending the narrow back staircase that led directly to the kitchen, her mind was still on the 'internal', rather than the 'external'...

...right up until the instant she stepped off the bottom step, rounded the small protrusion of the stairwell wall - and found herself looking at the tall, broad-shouldered man standing at the stove, in the middle of cooking up some scrambled eggs.

"Oh, hey honey...!" The sandy-haired man said, an easy smile on his face...

...as he lay the spatula aside and walked over to where she stood stock-still in shock.

That shock paralysis held even as he wrapped his well-muscled arms around her and leaned in for the kiss. A kiss that she let him take, to stunned to reject him, and with no thought of returning it.

Frowning, he leaned back, still holding her trim body in his brawny arms. "What's wrong, honey?" He asked, true worry showing in his dark eyes. Jessica didn't even know where to begin to answer that...

...especially since she 'recognized' the sandy-haired man.

Just as she could see her male self in the beauty reflected back by the mirror, so could she see Connie in the rugged features of this almost offensively handsome man.

Somehow, just as she'd become female, this... 'world' had a gender-reversed version of Connie - except, in this topsy-turvy world, they'd obviously never had the all-out argument that had ended their relationship on such a bitter note.

After all, the male version of Connie was physically incapable of 'accidentally' getting pregnant, and so the bitter acrimony the then- male Josh had put into his baseless accusations never happened.

"Honey...?" The male version of Connie prompted, concern deepening.

"I'm... not feeling myself this morning..." She heard herself said, bemused at the utter truth behind the innocuous phrase.

Shockingly, she found herself desperately fighting the urge to giggle at the basically mundane outer aspects of the situation. To a hypothetical observer, it would have been a scene of newlywed hominess, with no sign at all of the undercurrents - the undercurrents that were the sole providence of the gorgeous new 'wife' of the scene, for whom everything was turned upside down.

He blinked - and then grinned, slyly.

"See...?" He said, a subtle undertone to his voice. "That's what I get for foregoing our usual morning 'pick me up' in order to let you sleep in."

His hands, encircling her waist, slid south - and cupped the firm flesh of her buttocks in unmistakable meaning. "The eggs are burning..." She heard herself say, still too bemused to actually think.

Startled, he looked over his own broad shoulder - then muttered a curse and released her in order to deal with the charring eggs. Jessica, meanwhile, was trying to cope with the obvious intention her 'husband' had offered.

She found herself wondering what the hell his new name was - but it was a secondary thought, something to distract her mind from the thought of having sex with a man.

A man who she knew the female version of, just as she herself had been male. A man who was her husband, and so permitted to assume the sexual aspects of matrimony.

A man she was seriously considering letting go through with the proposition. Part of her couldn't believe that she was thinking this...

...but it was a very small part indeed.

Part of it was curiosity. After all, she had wondered what sex must be like for a woman, and this was a chance to find out.

More than that, it was with 'Connie'. Obviously, this male version didn't know about the alternate universe where he was female, and 'Jessica' male - but Jessica knew, and somehow that made it less 'perverted', since they'd had sex when the gender roles had been the other way around.

The vast majority of the urge, however, came from the simple fact that, as a woman, she could sort of just 'go along'. Sex was a situation that didn't demand much in the way of thought, really, being an act so primal and basic that the body could do well enough on her own. Somehow, the thought of just laying back and submitting, letting this new man - her husband - take complete control was enticing...

...as was the promise of pleasure implicit in the concept.

She'd been female for all of what, fifteen minutes? Yet, here she was, quite seriously considering given up her male ego, albeit in an emphatically female body, and having sex with a man.

There was the real reason for not turning her husband down, of course- the reason that was both tiny, and huge. This might indeed, be real - and her life. The one she'd have to live.

Was she going to turn her husband down forever? Claim she'd suddenly decided to take a vow of chastity? One thing Jessica knew for certain: She couldn't tell him the truth.

So, when the man whose name she still didn't know finished tending his brunt eggs and turned around, a smile on his lips that spoke lustful volumes, she found herself smiling back at him.

It was another case of her body knowing what to do - and in the state she was in, she just let it walk along what were obviously well- worn byways of the mind. Along with the body, she'd obviously inherited whatever skill, habits and experience 'Jessica' supposedly had in this version of the universe, and it was almost as if she could sit back and be a passenger in her new body, letting whatever happened, happen.

"Kenny will make you feel like yourself again..." Her husband promised in a low, throaty voice, and she was happy to finally have a name for him - even as he stepped close and embraced her again, his hands going back to her full ass as he pressed himself firmly against her, kissing her with more passion this time.

She let her body go ahead and kiss him back - while she 'rode along' with it, feeling the sensations her body felt. The pleasure.

The kiss seemed to go on forever and she wasn't quite sure if it was the 'forever' of a dream, or a nightmare...

...all she was sure of was this it felt good. Almost... right, somehow.

Her mind was in more of a confused muddle than ever, part of her hardly daring to believe that any of this was happening - that she was letting any of this happen - but her body had no qualms at all about what was happening, or where it was going.

It was going in a direction that her body quite eagerly agreed with, if the slow warmth low in her belly and the way her thick, firm nipples came to sudden, pleasurable attention was any indication.

Finally breaking the kiss, Kenny took her hand and gently led her towards the stairs, smiling back over his shoulder at her - and she felt herself smiling back, her whirling mind simply riding the hot-and-ready stead of her eagerly feminine new body, let herself be drawn into her new, feminine life with no struggle whatsoever, part of her willing mind as eager as her randy body to experience what was sure to come.

She was disappointed.

The trip up the stairs was marked by the clothing her husband shed on the way, piece by piece and bit by bit. Oddly enough, her wide eyes and pounding heart both seemed to note every article of clothing as it came off, exposing more and more of his well-muscled body, but the exact when and where of her own nightshirts removal was a mystery. All she could be certain of was the fact that they reached the bedroom stark naked, the cool morning air only fanning the flame of her desire as her husband led her towards a bed that suddenly loomed very large indeed in her mind's eyes.

It was just about then that she truly began to realize that this new life she was embarking on could actually be enjoyable - perhaps considerably more so than the male existence part of her was still mourning the loss of.

The next few minutes gave her even stronger reasons for her to believe so.

First there was another kiss - and she discovered that body-to-body, with no clothes in the way, made the kiss even better. Incredibly, the wonderful, pleasurable frustration she was feeling rose even more, her arousal more enjoyable for its own sake than the 'hydraulic pressure' she was used to as a man.

It only got better.

Pulling her directly over to the bed, still wrapped in the embrace of his strong arms, Kenny shifted position as they sat on the edge of the bed, and began to nuzzle her full, firm breasts, his warm mouth working to one, fully engorged nipple, the stubble on his upper lips tracing fiery lines of pleasure across her own silky-smooth skin - and then that was lost in the increased pleasure of lips and tongue as he nibbled and sucked on her full nipple...

..while he eased her down on the bed, hands sliding down to spread her silken thighs for better access to the source of the liquid fire that filled her.

Before she could have second thoughts, before the male part of her mind could force her to forego what was to happen, he'd shifted his own position - and his hard, ready cock slid easy and familiarly into the tight, damp embrace of her new womanhood.

Pleasure she'd never imagined flooded her - not purely physical pleasure, but emotional and intellectual pleasure, a sense of something so right that she couldn't fight it.

So she didn't.

Indeed, her body, operating on its own, because a willing - even eager - participant, hips moving to maximize the wonderful sensations.

Sensations that only became more wonderful as he tenderly, but firmly, began to thrust into her, the wonderful, fulfilling sensation of his cock sliding into her counterbalanced by the teasing sensation of withdrawal...

...over and over again...

...faster and faster...

"Yes..." She heard herself gasp, head tossing in increasing pleasure. "Oh, yes, Kenny, harder!"

That wasn't her animalistic body controlling her voice - it was her mind, wrapped in the increasing layers of intense, incredible pleasure.

She was having sex, as a woman...

...and loving it.

"Yes!" She said, now screaming instead of gasping, her body writhing in wonderful pleasure as her husband fucked her 'for the first time', but with all the long experience of knowing what she liked. "God, Kenny - fuck me hard!"

He did. Hard - and yet, somehow, tender...

..and with ever-increasing pleasure.

Pleasure that led to the most heartstopping, earth-shattering orgasm she'd ever experience, different in taste and texture, duration and location, from anything she'd had as a man - anything she'd even dreamed of as a man.

"Yes...!" She heard herself scream to the heavens, unable to lie even to herself in the extremis of incredible pleasure. "I love being a woman...!"

Then it was over, the afterglow of a 'good' orgasm washing through her with renewed heat as her husband slumped to the bed beside her, one strong hand coming up to gently caress her full breast.

"I kinda like the fact that you're a woman, myself..." HE said, with a chuckle. "Works out well, I'd say."

Smiling rapidly up at the ceiling, the new woman nodded, enjoying even the slow, fading afterglow of her first female orgasm. She didn't know how or why this had happened, or how she was going to pick up the threads of a life she knew nothing about...

...but somehow, those questions seemed small compared to the answer to a long held query that had always haunted the back of her male mind.

Now she knew exactly how a woman felt during - and after - sex...

...and she knew, even if offered the chance, she could never go back to being a 'mere' man again. THE END.

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: When an alien space craft lands right near an isolated ranger post, one of the rangers takes some shots at it only to discover that the aliens decided he needs to be less aggressive and more feminine.

The Gone Ranger

By Gunslinger

'It was a dark and stormy night...'

Frowning, Richard Farrand turned his attention away from the knobs, dials and switches on the radio transceiver that was currently 'transceiving' nothing but hissing static, and eyed the other man who shared the small, wood-walled building with him.

"I beg your pardon?" Richard asked, both the slightly raised eyebrow and the more-than-slightly frosted tone indicating that he was not a man to be disturbed by trivialities or frivolities.

Both tone and look bounced right off Peter Reichs' armor of youthful self-confidence. With a shrug of his lean shoulders, the younger of the two men gestured towards the large, supposedly 'unbreakable' double-layer Lexan windows that gave out onto a sweeping panoramic view.

" 'It was a dark and stormy night'...", Peter repeated. "You know - from that comic strip. What the dog was always writing. C'mon, Rick - you know what I mean..."

Richard - who hated being called 'Rick' - frowned thunderously, and drew himself up to his full height with an imperious expression on his face.

It was a look he was well-suited for.

While both men wore the same beige-on-beige uniform of the United States Forestry Service, Peter's hung limply on his bony frame, and he preferred the shorts and 'ball-cap' variant that, while USFS approved, struck Richard as highly undignified.

Richard, on the other hand, wore a crisply-pressed pair of uniform trousers with the 'original' long-sleeved shirt with it's more subdued markings. Though his short-shorn, gray-flecked wheat-blond hair was currently uncovered, when he wore his hat, it was the old- fashioned 'Smokey the Bear' version that was standard issue for Forest Rangers almost since the service's inception in 1905.

In fact, the original uniform bore a remarked similarity to the uniform of a United States Marine Corp non-commissioned officer - which wasn't surprising, since similar versions had also been issued to Army and State Police personnel, it being a bureaucracy- designed and government-approved project.

The fact that Richard E. L. Farrand bore a remarkable physical, (and psychological), resemblance to 'Gunnery Sergeant Hartman' from Full Metal Jacket, simply meant that he wore the uniform with considerably more presence than most Forest Rangers ever managed to project.

With the heavy rain picking a staccato rhythm on the corrugated metal roof, rolling barrages of thunder vying with the wailing wind to see which could shake the little stilt-mounted building the most, Richard opened his mouth to point out just how insipid and redundant Peter's comment was...

...but never got the chance to issue the reprimand, for just then, an intense actinic light split the night, it's blue-white beam rivaling the eye-searing intensity of the lightning, but remaining fixed and steady.

"What the fuck?!" Peter shouted, his voice higher-pitched than normal as he skittered his chair backwards from the desk. One leg caught on an uneven floorboard, and the chair tipped over backwards, sending him sprawling across the floor. Not even feeling the pain from the impact, the brunet lifted his head just enough to let his hazel eyes, wide with shock and fear, peer over the desk at the inexplicable sight.

Richard Farrand, on the other hand, remained standing, stock-still and with his backbone as straight and rigid as ever as he directed a murderous glare out the windows.

Silently - or, at least, quietly enough that no noise could compete with the storm - the strange, ovoid craft hung motionless about a dozen feet above and a half-hundred yards east of the Ranger's station. No markings or windows marred the gleaming metal surface, and though there was no visible signs of anything any human would recognize as propulsion, it remained utterly motionless despite the heavy, varying blasts of wind that swirled about it.

Almost as old as the 1930's-era building, virtually untouched over the years except for the routine monthly cleaning, the bolt-action

.303 caliber rifle had originally been provided in the extremely unlikely event that 'crazed animals' attacked the Ranger station. Now, Richard swept the ancient rifle from the wall, yanking open a desk drawer with his other hand to extract a fist-full of gleaming brass rounds. Slamming one into the breach, he worked the bolt as he strode manfully towards the door, his dark eyes filled with wrath.

Yanking open the door to the ranger station, he struggled out against the influx of wind and rain that quickly soaked and chilled him to the bone. Ignoring the immediate physical discomfort, he calmly lifted the rifle and, paying attention to the weather only inasmuch as it affected his accuracy, began calmly firing aimed, measured shots at the obviously alien craft.

* * * * * "Consensus?" B'oRt-hnk, mission-commander, trilled the question.

"Primitive chemical-powered weapon." Ghn'athk, mission-observer replied. "Inconsequential."

"Concur." Mission-specialist Dracht-'k agreed readily.

On the main visaudio repeater, the watched the spindly, four-limbed creature continue its harmless 'attack' until its supply of ready projectiles was depleted - and then the creature brandished the primitive weapon as one would a club, making it quite clear it still wished to continue an obviously hopeless conflict.

"This creature seems quite aggressive." Ghn'athk observed.

"It is a masculine creature." Dracht-'k stated knowledgeably. "They are notably more aggressive than the feminine creatures." B'oRt-hnk considered the matter for a moment.

"Such aggressive nature is likely to indicate this creature's further attempts to interfere in our mission. Though we require less than one-thirtieth of a revolution of this planet to do so, and it is unlikely the creature can provide any real offense, it is nevertheless best to reduce all known risks, no matter how small. Options?"

"Genetic, physical, and hormonal transmutation of the creature towards a more feminine - and, hence, docile - state." Dracht-'k squeaked with assurance.

"It is a very aggressive creature..." Ghn'athk observed.

"Then it should be made very feminine," B'oRt-hnk commanded...

* * * * *

Suddenly, as Peter watched wide-eyed over the edge of the desk, a red-orange light flared forth from the silently hovering craft. Smaller than the actinic light-beam, but no less intense, it enveloped the form of Richard Farrand, so bright that his figure became little more than a black silhouette cast against it.

With a cry of shock and... something else that Peter couldn't immediately identify, Richard suddenly convulsed, hands unintentionally going into spasm and allowing the rifle to fall to the forest floor, fifty feet below. For three endless seconds, Richard shivered and shuddered in the grip of that eye-searing reddish light - and then he was suddenly propelled back through the open doorway, as if hit by a giant, but foam-padded, fist.

Then both lights, red-orange and blue-white, suddenly died out, and the mysterious craft vanished silently into the night, once more leaving the storm dominant.

Hesitating a few heart-beats to reassure himself the alien craft had indeed moved off, Peter then rose and hurried across the room. His first destination was the wildly swinging door, and he had to put his narrow shoulder into it before he could close and latch it, cutting off the storm's ingress into the now-chilled station.

Only after the door was firmly secured did the young Ranger move hesitantly towards the sopping wet figure huddle on the floor, shivering violently.

"Rick...?" Peter said, hesitantly, his mind filled with Hollywood-inspired ideas of 'pod people', mind control, and alien parasites that took over their human hosts. "Ricky-boy... is that, y'know... you?"

"Now that..." Richard gasped, struggling to pull himself into a seated position, "...is a phenomenally... stupid question... even by... your standards."

"Yeah, it's you." Peter muttered to himself, dryly. "Uh... are you, um... okay?"

"No!" Richard gasped, body still shuddering - but, now that he looked closer, Peter realized it wasn't the 'wet-and-cold shivers' he'd originally assumed they were.

In fact, rather than 'simply' twitching muscles, it looked as if it was Richard's flesh that was writhing and rippling.

"What the hell is happening to you...?" Peter demanded, shrilly, now thinking of monstrous mutations and alien infections.

"How the.. fuck... should I... know?" Richard ground out, his voice hoarse with intense sensation... but it didn't quite sound to Peter like the voice of a man in tremendous pain, oddly enough.

"If it hurts real bad, I can get you some..." Peter's mind quickly catalogued the scanty medical supplies available, and he finished, rather lamely, "...er, aspirin?"

Richard didn't even bother to reply to the asinine offer - any more than he bothered to explain that it wasn't intense pain he was feeling.

It was intense pleasure.

Though he struggled manfully to face it every bit as stoically as if it had been pain, asserting his iron will for control over it, Richard couldn't quite block the sheer intensity of it from his system. Though fear, confusion and horror touched his emotions, just as he would have had the same situation occurred with pain instead, it was nevertheless muted - for who had experience in suppressing pleasure...?

Then his control slipped. Just for an instant - but long enough for him to moan in such a way as to make it quite clear that the intense sensations rocking his body and mind weren't pain. The sound, so unexpected, also sounded... a bit too high-pitched, a bit too soft, to be coming from old 'Iron-Spine Farrand'. It caused Peter to do an almost comical double-take - and look much more closely at the older man...

...except, with shock, Peter realized that Richard didn't look nearly as old as he had before. Indeed, the craggy face with its deep-etched lines was becoming steadily smoother, the skin even more softer, right in front of Peter's stunned eyes.

"My GOD!" The brunet shouted. "You... You're getting younger!"

"Wh... What?" Richard gasped, shivering in the grasp of rolling waves of pleasure that rocked his body. He knew something was happening to his body, something radical - but, being on the inside of that change, couldn't see the transformation nearly as well as Peter.

He could, however, hear every bit as well, and to both men, the observer and the observed, there was something fundamentally different about the tone, pitch, and range of the voice that asked the gasped question.

Peter's wide eyes, barely under directed control of a stunned mind, flicked rapidly and almost randomly over the figure shivering on the floorboards before him. With each glance, they took in a different sight, small vignettes of the changes Richard's body was undergoing:

Wheat-colored hair, now without a trace of gray, no longer close-shorn as it continued to grow out of the scalp at a hideously accelerated rate...

Nails pushing steadily further outwards on fingers themselves becoming slimmer, more delicate...

A once-strong, sharply defined jaw-line smoothing and softening, even as the lips above became fuller, more firmly soft...

Trousers, now loose at the waist and both loose and overly-long at the angle, nevertheless pulling ever-tighter across hips and ass...

...and then there was the shirt, baggy and too large - everywhere except... "You... You're... You are..." Peter stammered, helplessly.

"Can't... breathe!" Richard cried - in a soft, high-pitched, and somehow delicate-sounding voice. Delicate hands flew to the taut-stretched shirt, and slender fingers wormed their way between straining button and pulled. Thread gave and buttons flew, and the shirt burst wide open, freeing the compressed flesh within.

Beneath the beige shirt, Richard wore a white 'wife-beater' undershirt... but it was as soaked as the rest of the clothing, and left no doubt at all as to what the twin masses of flesh, already large and steadily becoming more so, were.

"You're a girl!" Peter finally managed to blurt out.

Richard, looking down in a mixture of horror and willed disbelief, suddenly clamped altered hands over the still-swelling mounds, as if to physically force the burgeoning masses of flesh back inwards - and then a look of dawning realization slid across a still-changing face, and hands frantically flew to the front of the pants. They scrabbled for a moment, then finally got the fly open, and Richard - leaning forward to see past the swelling mounds obscuring more and more of the downward view - yanked the elastic waist-band of the serviceable white boxer-shorts outwards and stared down at what lay within.

A split second of stunned silence...

...and then the unmistakably feminine figure on the floor screamed in abject horror.

* * * * *

Peter paced nervously back and forth in the center of the room, hiking boots clomping on the wooden floor. Mumbling to himself, he walked with his head down, but lifted it to shoot occasional, worried looks towards the door closing off the only partitioned section of the otherwise one-room structure.

Then, after what seemed an eternity, there was a soft 'click', and the door swung open so that an emphatically feminine figure could hesitantly step out, slender hands clasped nervously at the waist.

Though he knew it rude, and in this particular situation, even perverse, Peter couldn't help but stare.

Topping the new figure was Richard's 'Smokey Bear' hat, now sitting lower on the smaller head. Not a fashion statement, it was worn simply as a 'head band' that would keep the nearly ass-long mane of wheat-blond hair, straight and silky, from continuing to fall into her face.

The face that, shadowed by the brim of the hat, was oval in shape and delicate in nature, almost 'girlish'. Dominated by the big, dark-brown 'doe eyes, it also boasted well-formed lips and a delicately-formed nose.

Peter's spare pair of beige shorts were fit ultra-snug across womanly hips and a full, firm ass that filled them to the point of being taut as a drum - but the belt around the slender waist had been reefed in hard to take up the slack of the waistband. Silken-smooth legs, shapely but, given her diminutive stature, in a way that was more 'cute/sexy' than 'hot/sexy', were made even more 'cute' by the heavy pair of socks and brown leather hiking boots enclosing her dainty feet.

As a man, Richard had already been a half-foot shorter than Peter's 6-foot, two-inch height. Now, however, the woman looking at him with a nervously uncertain expression was no more than five feet tall, and perhaps even a little less...

...which only served to make her massive new bust-line even the more impressive on her petite frame.

Each easily as large as a soccer-ball, the breasts were so new as to as yet defy gravity's onslaught, standing as firm and round as the finest over-pumped silicone spheres of an 80's big-bust star. Unlike those massively enhanced women, however, the new woman's breasts were 'natural', (at least in a certain sense), and boast nipples keeping every bit to the epic scale of her new endowments. Since there was no shirt available that would button over them, the short-sleeved shirt that held the massive mounds was tied in a bow, displaying a deep 'V' of firm spheres of flesh and a canyon of cleavage.

"Uh... So, how are you feeling Ricky?" Peter asked, at a loss for anything more meaningful - and then, wincing, quickly corrected himself: "I mean, uh, Richard."

The petite-yet-buxom woman directed her doe-eyed gaze at him... and, for a couple of seconds, did nothing more. She was trying, very hard, to think.

It wasn't easy.

She'd taken an abnormally long time in the bathroom to pick through the meager supply of clothing and get dressed. Peter had thought she'd been 'hiding out' in the bathroom, taking time to work up the courage to come out, but that wasn't true at all. The simple fact of the matter was, coherent thought of any sort was only marginally in the new woman's grasp.

Part of it was the new - and startlingly pleasurable - sensation her new body insisted on transmitting to her brain. It was hard to keep one's mind on a single train of thought when various parts of the body kept piping up, seeming to say 'Pay attention to me! See how good I can make you feel!'

That, in and of itself, would have been merely annoying - if not for the fact she felt dazed and dreamy, almost as if stoned or drunk... or, maybe, stoned and drunk.

It was from the massive amounts of hormones running through her system, but she had no way of knowing that. All she knew was she had to turn a remarkable amount of her attention to even the simplest of cognitive functions - like Peter's words.

She took his words in reverse order, the newest first - and, slowly, realized what he'd been saying.

'They're both kinda my name, just different.' She thought to herself, dreamily. It took a second longer for her to realize that using the both of them had indicated some confusion on Peter's part - and another second to realize that the shorter one was probably easier, especially since she was having a hard time keeping her own name in mind, as well.

"Ricki's fine..." She finally said.

Peter blinked - and a frown of worried confusion crossed his brow.

Her answer had not only been delayed, but it had been spoken in a very soft, very hesitant tone, almost like a question rather than a statement.

As if in verification, her dark eyes worriedly searched his.

"I mean... isn't it? Okay, I mean?" She asked, he soft, soprano voice clearly worried. She knew she wasn't thinking very well since she'd been 'zapped' and 'girlified'... but Peter should be thinking okay, so if there was a problem...

"Sure, sure..." Peter replied, quickly - not out of any logically reasoned response, but simply to reassure the nervous and obviously confused woman that Richard had become. "Ricki's just fine."

Ricki sighed in relief and, rather tentatively, smiled at Peter. Tentative or not, her face made it a remarkably sweet, engaging smile. However, the fact that she simply stood there, doing nothing but continue to smile at him, was slightly unnerving.

After a few seconds of silence that was awkward for Peter and seemingly not even noticed by 'Ricki', Peter cleared his throat, and renewed his question about how she felt.

The smile dimmed slightly, and Peter's worry over Ricki's condition deepened significantly as he saw her struggle with what, after all, should have been a simple question.

"I don't know..." She finally replied, in the soft, uncertain new voice of hers. "It's like, I feel really, really good... but I feel kinda weird about feeling good, I guess."

She paused for another second, marshalling what little thoughts she could.

"The not-so-good is like, kinda inside somewhere." She tried to amplify. "The really good stuff is all the outside feeling, though."

Peter gulped at the obvious, and to him, frightening diminishment of intellect her words conveyed, and then carefully prompted her for clarification: "You mean that emotionally, you're upset, but physically, you feel... er, 'okay'?"

She considered this gravely for a few seconds - and then she shot him an incredibly high-wattage smile as...

...as...

...as she bounced up and down on her toes, clapped her hands together in delight, and giggled! "That's right!" She cooed in her high-pitched voice. "You're like, just soooo smart now, Peter!" 'No - you're just so dumb...' Peter thought to himself, horrified...

...and, to his humiliation, more than just a tad aroused by this quintessential bimbo bouncing in front of him, her huge new bust threatening to pop free of their make-shift halter.

Then, in an instant, her smile vanished, to be replaced with a petulant little frown. Balling her cute little hands into fists, she planted them on her womanly hips and let out an annoyed 'huff' of air.

"What is it...?" Peter asked, wondering if some of 'Richard' had finally managed to get through to 'Ricki'.

"My boobies!" She announced in a peevish tone, instantly dispelling Peter's first assumption as she pouted prettily. "They're bugging me again."

"Your... breasts.. are bugging you?" Peter asked, carefully - then gaped as she almost absently reached up and began massaging her massive tits through the fabric of her shirt.

"Yeah - they keep begging to get played with, but I can't make them feel good enough." She complained. "It's like it's not me they want to..."

She stopped dead - and Peter could almost see the light bulb go on over her head.

"You can play with my big boobies and make them happy!" She announced, suddenly throwing him that thousand-watt smile again. "That's what my boobies want!"

At least.. she thought maybe that was what they wanted. For some reason, she wasn't quite sure. It was just so damned hard to think since she'd been girlified. Of course, both Peter and her knew she was like, incredibly stupid now, and couldn't think well, so if there was something wrong with her thinking her boobs wanted Peter to play with them, he'd tell her how stupid the thought was.

...right?

"You... want me... to play with your... boobies?" Peter asked - very slowly, very carefully.

Ricki's smile dimmed momentarily. Why hadn't he just said 'yes' or 'no' - and then her smile brightened as she realized he was just doing what he'd done earlier. She was so stupid now, she couldn't say things right, like when she'd tried to explain how she was feeling. Peter was just clarifying things.

"Oh, yes!" She assured him, vigorously. "Please won't you make my huge new boobies feel good, Peter? Please? Pretty, pretty please...?"

Peter stared at her massive bust line. Looked into her pleading eyes.

Back at the staggeringly sizable spheres she was still massaging.

"I guess I could do something..." He finally managed, in a strangled tone.

"Oh, thank you, thank you, thank you...!" Ricki gushed... as slender fingers undid the little bow-tie holding the shirt closed. It swung open, exposing her massive new breasts in all their uncovered glory.

Swallowing heavily, Peter's shaking hands reached out and hesitantly touched the smooth firmness of her magnificent tits.

"Oh, my boobies want you to play with them much more firmly than that!" Ricki informed him - and rolled back her shoulders, thrusting her huge mounds more firmly against his questing hands.

Peter - a self-admitted 'tit man', basically lost it at that point. Breasts exactly like that he'd long dreamed of were in his hands, and the woman they were attached to was literally pleading with him to play with them. Compared to that, whatever the woman might have been or wanted a few scant hours ago had no meaning...

"Oh, yes... my boobies really like that..." She cooed as he threw himself into his work. As his hands continued to fondle and squeeze her magnificent mounds, his lips joined in, kissing the way across the surface to take short, quick sucks at her nipples before moving on.

She continued urging him on, enjoying the intensely pleasurable sensations his hands and lips were generating... but, slowly, her smile began to fade.

Something felt... wrong.

Ricki couldn't quite put her finger on it herself, and she was loath to interrupt Peter's impassioned work to ask him help her figure it out, but the sense of wrongness was growing stronger by the second, and she...

Then Peter's lips suddenly rose from her nipple and, instead, pushed hard against hers. The move surprised her, and she froze for a second, train of thought completely derailed.

'Oh - a kiss. He's kissing me.' She finally realized - and then, a second later, '...and I'm supposed to do this...'

She did this, and it felt so really, really good that she did that with her tongue, and pretty soon they were kissing pretty hot and heavy, the fact that Peter's hands were still groping her huge tits all the time making it even more pleasurable. At some point, she lost her hat, which meant her hair kept trying to get in the way, and the need to keep pushing it aside kept what little mind she retained busy while they kissed.

Gradually, though, that sense of wrongness re-intruded on her attention, and once more began to wonder what it was...

...but then Peter, as if knowing what her body was asking, took his hands from her mostly satiated breasts and started answering her firm, round ass' pleas for attention, and she once more forgot what she was thinking about.

'Maybe that weird feeling is because of how all hot and melty I feel down there...' Ricki thought to herself a little while later. 'I almost feel like I'm melting inside, but it feels all really good, and yet somehow bad at the same time. Could that be it...?'

Devoting what little attention she could from Peter's hands and lips as they moved around her body, she considered the problem. 'Pussy. That's what that feeling is - my pussy is all horny and wants attention.'

Some time after that...

'Cock. That's what a horny pussy wants - a hard cock inside it. Now where can I find...?'

Then she looked down - and giggled happily, because Peter - who was, like, soooo smart - must have known her pussy would get horny, because he'd unzipped his pants and make his cock all hard and stuff, so it was, like, ready for her.

"Put your cock into my pussy..." She breathed hungrily. "My pussy wants you hard cock in it."

For some reason, she wasn't quite sure what this was all about, or how it would feel, which seemed kind of strange. If she knew a wet pussy needed a hard cock, she must have done it before... right? It was just soooo hard to remember things like, you know, a few minutes ago and stuff, much less a really like time ago, like a couple of hours. Maybe that's what felt 'wrong', because she was just soooo stupid, like, a complete ditz, and couldn't think good and remember what she was supposed to do with a horny pussy and stuff.

In fact, like, it was... even more hard-like to, you know, what's it called...? Oh, yeah - 'think'.

But, like, it was, like okay and all and stuff, 'cause Pete, he was, like really smart, and knew stuff, so she didn't have to 'think'. Which was, like, really good, cause when he put his hard cock in her wet pussy, she kinda stopped thinking at all for awhile. Instead, she just 'felt' - felt how wonderful it was to get...

What was it called again...? Oh, yeah - 'fucked'.

'Fucking' was wonderful. Though she wasn't, like, think not so good for this now, she was, like, so totally reminding herself to remember she liked 'fucking'. It felt, like, totally, like, great!

'Like, even me can, like, 'member what to do for fuck!' she somehow managed to think as Peter's cock plunger hard and fast into her hot, tight new womanhood. 'In, out, in, out...'

In fact, in sing-song like soprano tones, she was saying just that, out-loud, memorizing 'how to fuck' - but she didn't even notice.

Then even the mantra of 'in, out' became much too hard to remember as her orgasm hit her unbelievably pleasure-sensitive body and tore through her nervous system like an unstoppably powerful tsunami of ecstasy.

Arms braced on the desk she was bent over, massive tits gyrating and bouncing with Peter's every thrust, Ricky mindlessly creamed her way through her unbelievably intense orgasm...

...and, because he was behind her, Peter didn't see the momentary look of horrified comprehension that crossed her face.

All incredibly intense sexual needs momentarily sated, hormones briefly at lowest ebb as super-productive glands took a moment to regroup, the mind inside the body got a brief respite...

...and Richard E. L. Farrand stared in horror out of Ricki's eyes.

"Oh... my... god..." He whispered in her breathless, high-pitched voice, unnoticed by Peter as that sick pervert of a partner spasmed and dumped his load into her transformed - and now violated - body...

...but the last part of the realization was given in a full-throated scream:

"I'M A BIMBO!"

Panting, Peter blinked, and slipped his slowly softening cock out of her sopping new cunt.

"What?" He gasped, narrow chest heaving with the exertion it had taken to keep up with her - at first, Ricki had seemed unsure what was going on, but once he'd been inside of her, she had set the pace.

She remained stock still for a few seconds, the muscles of her back and legs corded, tensed... and then she slowly relaxed, straightened, and turned around.

Her face bore a look of puzzled distraction.

"I..." She said, trying to recapture a thought that even now was sliding away.

"I... have huge tits..." She muttered, half to herself, looking down at the massive boobs jiggling slightly with each breath. "You sure do." Peter agreed, with a smile.

Yes, she did. They were right there. So her thinking she didn't (hadn't/wasn't supposed to...?) have tits was silly.

"I.. I'm really, like..." She paused, searching for the word she wanted from a quickly diminishing vocabulary. "...stoo-pid?"

"Dumb as a rock." He agreed - well, she didn't know what the phrase meant, but his smile and tone seemed to mean she was right.

"...and Ricki really loves, um, y'know... fuh-king!" She finished, brightly. That must have been what the thought she'd been chasing was, because she (very dimly) remembered reminding herself over and over again while in and out.

"That's right - and all of that does make you a bimbo!" Peter assured her, thinking he'd figured out her reason for yelling that out - she'd had an 'epiphany'...

"Bimbo...?" She said, smile slowly fading as she tasted the word out and tried it on for size. She considered...

"No! Ricki not a bimbo!" She said, eyes flaring with sudden anger. "Ricki really horny, and Ricki's pussy love Peter's cock. Ricki have huge booby and Ricki really, like, stoo-pid, but Ricki is not uh... um, y'know... bim-boh!"

Peter blinked in surprise at her sudden vehemence - and obviously, also steadily declining vocabulary. "You're not...?" He asked, very carefully.

"No! Ricki is no bim-boh...!" She declared, firmly, "...until Ricki give Pete-cock good ... uh... bo-jop?"

She frowned over the word, and shook her head, then looked at him questioningly - while holding one hand in front of her mouth and moving it back and forth rhythmically.

"Blow-job." Peter provided, more than a bit numbly.

"Yeah! Yeah! Buh-lo job!" She agreed, giggling. "Ricki buh-lo job Pete, then Ricky be bim-boh! Yes? Yes?" "Oh, yeah, definitely..." Pete agreed, nodding even more numbly.

Ricki didn't know 'definitely' - it was, like, totally to, like, long - but she understood 'yeah' and the nod.

"Rik-ki be good bim-boh!" She assured him amid a flurry of giggles as she knelt in front of him, eager to get rid of the one thing disqualifying her from what obviously was her life's calling. "Pete do think-stuff for Rik-ki. Take care Rik-ki. Rik-ki just for fuh-king and boo-bies and buh-lo jobs. Rik-ki, like, goood bimbo!"

"Ricki best bimbo..." Peter assured her with a sigh, as her warm and oh-so-eager lips closed gently around his limp cock...

...but she didn't even bother to process her words. She couldn't spare the attention-span for it.

Much more accurately, he couldn't spare the attention span - because her sudden and final drop in intelligence came from the tiny kernel of self that was still Richard 'stealing' the bulk of what little of their shared intelligence remained...

...and used it to make sure that he/she/they would never, ever remember who they/she/he 'really' was in that brief interval after orgasm when thought and memory would forever be damnably possible.

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: A third world dictator plans to use a secret serum that will transform American men into women.

Great Plan

By Gunslinger

Deep in a bunker, many meters below the arid desert soil, the heavysset man known to his followers as 'the Mustache' stood in front of a large mirror, straightening every crease in his olive-drab uniform, making sure that his gold braid loop was properly positioned on his left shoulder, giving his black beret that 'just so' tilt...

...and, generally, preening himself - though he'd never admit that, of course. Just as he'd never admit that he was aware of the nickname his troops had bestowed upon him - if he ever had to take 'official' notice, he'd have to kill a few people to maintain his image as a ruthless dictator. Truth was - he rather like the nickname.

He did have a great mustache, after all...

There was a gentle, hesitant knock on the doors of the great, luxurious chamber in which the Mustache resided, and he hurriedly turned and seated himself behind the big, expensive desk in the corner, ostentatiously removing his silver-plated pistol from his holster and laying it on the desk.

"Come in!"

There was a short pause that walked the fine line between respect and hesitancy - then the door swung open, revealing the white-coated figure of his chief researcher. The slender, mousy-looking man dashed across the rich Persian carpet and knelt in front of The Mustache's desk.

"Oh, Great Leader - I come bearing wonderful news."

The Mustache smiled thinly. "Speak, Hakkim - and may your words please me..." He lay a hand on the gun, enjoying the sight of his underling's tremors.

"Oh, Great Leader - I have finally developed a way to bring the humiliation you so desire onto the people of that filthy country, America." Hakkim said, in a rush. "I have developed a wondrous new weapon - a chemical that will cause the ultimate humiliation of all!"

"Have you...?" The Mustache asked, softly, hefting the gun as if admiring it. "Tell me.. does it kill my enemies, slowly and painfully?"

"Oh, no, Great Leader - it does something much better than that. It lets them live a long and healthy life..." "What!" The Mustache roared, rising to his feet and aiming the gun at his subordinate's unprotected head. "...as women!" Hakkim finished in a rapid squeal.

The Mustache's eyes widened as the words stuck home - and he slowly began to smile.

"Yes - the ultimate humiliation, indeed, Hakkim." He chortled. The thought of being a woman, one of those weak, useless creatures... it was a perfect fate. "Show me the data on your test subjects!"

Hakkim trembled. "G... Great Leader... There had been no test subjects, yet." The Mustache's eyes narrowed. "What?"

Hakkim was visibly trembling, and he licked his lips nervously. "The compound... only works on those who are fair-skinned... None of our people would be affected by it..."

The Mustache nodded. "Ah - good thinking, Hakkim - this terrible weapon cannot be turned against us. You will be commended for that... if this compound does what you say it will."

"Oh, it will, Great Leader..." Hakkim said - but he seemed more nervous then ever, despite The Mustache's commendation... "What is it, Hakkim. What have you not yet told me?"

Hakkim took a deep breath. "On my own... I have sent a small team into America itself, to use the serum on an unsuspecting American."

The Mustache eyed his scientist. "Then you'd better hope that it will work, and this unnamed American is changed as you have said - or I will let you live."

Hakkim trembled even more at those words - he knew what they meant. If he failed, he would live...

..if being blind, deaf and dumb and in constant pain could be called living....

* * * * * "Ow!"

John looked over, his dark, expressive eyes showing surprise. "What is it, Chris?"

The sandy-haired youth rubbed his neck, ruefully. "Wasp, I guess - I slapped the sucker away, but he already bit me."

"You're not allergic, are you?" Dave asked, looking up from the burgers he was tending on the barbecue.

"Don't think so." Chris said, settling back into the chaise lounge and picking up the beer beside him on the deck. "Just an annoying interruption on a nearly perfect afternoon, I guess."

The three youth were enjoying the gorgeous late spring afternoon, sitting around Chris' pool. Though it was still a little chilly for swimming, they could enjoy the sunshine and clear day, especially after the long winter. The two dark-haired youths - John Cooper, with his long, straight hair, and Dave Augustino, with his curly locks - had gone 'whole hog', wearing tank-top tees and shorts. Chris, on the other hand, was a little less casual, wearing a longer pair of khaki shorts and a beige summer-weight short-sleeve button down shirt, plus deck shoes.

None of the trio noticed the dark van parked in the alley just behind Chris's yard, and none of them had noticed the muzzle of the dart- gun that had slid out to fire the small dart that had hit Chris. With the tinted windows, the youths certainly couldn't see the video camera aimed at them, operated by a pair of swarthy men.

+ + +

"He is drinking an alcoholic beverage, just as the doctor specified." The older one, a threatening looking man with an eye-patch, said with satisfaction. "That will make the effects more pronounced, and allow the effect to take place faster."

"Oh...kay." His younger companion said, face screwed up in confusion. "That's good... right?" Rolling his eye, the leader of the little team bent back over the camera, cursing very quietly to himself.

+ + +

Scratching at his leg, Chris frowned.

"You know..." He said, sitting up and swinging his legs over the side of the chair. "Maybe I am allergic, after all..."

His friends turned to look - and blinked at the sight that confronted them. Chris was scratching madly at his body, as if he was itching uncontrollably (which he was) - and, everywhere his fingers rubbed over his body, body hair fell out and floated towards the ground.

"Geez - that's weird." Was Dave's considered opinion. John shot him a disgusted look, turning his attention back to his friend. "You okay, buddy?"

"I... don't know..." Chris replied, frowning. "I feel... weird..." "Well..." John started - then his eyes widened. "Holy shit!"

Dave's eyes also widened, and his jaw dropped - but no sound emerged as the two dark-haired youths stared.

Chris didn't have to ask 'at what?' - because he could feel (and, shortly, see) the reason - as his hair started to grow at an incredible rate. It was as if his hair wanted to make up for the loss of his finer body hair - it practically exploded from his head, long golden tresses of fine, silky-blond hair spilling downwards, breaking like surf over his shoulders and cascading over his brow until a huge, thick mass of silky golden hair hung almost to his waist.

"Hey, who turned out the lights!" Chris cried. Reaching up, he pushed the hair out of his face and tossed it behind him - except for a lock that he held in his fingers, to stare at in disbelief.

"Who... some allergy." John breathed, stunned. "Yeah, I think I've heard of this..." Dave muttered. "Really?" Chris asked, surprised.

"Yeah - it's called the 'Rapunzel Effect'." Dave cracked.

"Oh - that's some help, you nit-wit." John said, punching his friend in the shoulder.

"Well, I don't think..." Chris stared - then gasped and his hands flew to his throat as his voice rose rapidly in pitch with each word. "Whoa..." John whistled.

"Testing, testing - one, two, three..." Chris tried, hearing the words emerge in a high, feminine tone with a clear, trilling sound. "Holy shit - you're voice, dude!"

"Testing, testing..." Chris said, again - then launched into a verse of 'Natural Woman.'

"Hey, cut that out - it's freaking the hell out of me!" Dave objected, shuddering at the mismatched sight of his long-haired friend singing in a clear, high-pitched woman's voice.

"Show-off." John muttered. "Look - there's something weird going on here..."

"No shit, Sherlock." Chris rebutted, standing up. "This isn't like any allergy I've ever heard of." "Well.. how do you feel now?" John asked.

"I still feel..." Chris started - but he definitely didn't need to finish that sentence, as the answer became very self-evident.

Suddenly, his body twitched and he stumbled forward a couple of steps as his legs twitched and writhed - then began to change, rapidly reforming themselves.

In the space of a few minutes, what had once been lanky, hairy, knob-kneed legs had become a long, slender, smooth set of sexy women's legs, with deliciously curved calves, silky thighs - and cute, dimpled knees. Below much slimmer ankles, his feet had become smaller and daintier, and he stepped out of a pair of shoes now much too large for his altered feet. She winced and grabbed the back of the lounge for balance, raising herself up on tip-toe. All three of them stared down at her altered feet, and the high, well-defined arch that made standing flat-foot nearly impossible.

"Whoa...." Chris said, staring down at his feet. "This is..."

Then the radio beside him finished its current run of advertising - with the DJ blaring out - 'And now, a perennial favorite, especially with the warm weather raising hem-lines all over town. Here's ZZ Top, with 'Legs'...'

Snarling, Chris grabbed the radio and tossed it into the pool, producing a short-lived (but spectacular) spray of sparks and crackling- snapping-sputtering sounds. As he performed his act of pitching, he - and his friends - couldn't help but notice how slender and dainty the hand gripping the radio was - especially since each finger was tipped with a long nail.

"I know this is bad, bud... but don't panic..." John tried to calm his friend.

"Whose panicking?" Chris asked, calmly, struggling to maintain balance on his tiny, arched feet. "But.. I.. You..." John said, gesturing at the radio floating in the pool.

"Oh, don't mind that." Dave said, walking from the barbecue to the garbage can near the back door. Lifting up the lid, he exposed a dozen or so battery-powered radios in various states of destruction. "Chris just can't stand ZZ Top, that's all."

"Oh..." John said, with a shrug. "Well, you learn something new every day..."

"Whoops...!" Chris called, feeling a strange shudder running through his body. "Something's happening...!" His friends turned their attention back to him...

...as hips and ass began to swell. His shorts groaned as the pressure on them began to mount, the flesh inside expanding sidewise over a widening pelvic bone, while the flesh of his ass began to fill outwards, becoming firmed and fuller...

"Oh, shit...!" Chris cried, trying to get the tightening khaki material off - a difficult task with the long nails now on the tips of his altered fingers.

"Shit!" He cried, even as his hips continued to expand - he'd managed to get the button undone, and now the zipper slowly slid open under the pressure.

"Chris...?" Dave asked, startled by the vehement shout of his usually good-natured friend.

"I broke a nail." Chris grouched, holding his hand up and looking ruefully at the offending nail. "Damn - now I look all out of balance..."

With a 'zzzsshripp' sound, his shorts gave up the ghost and slid down to pool around his arched feet, revealing a pair of Hanes boxer-briefs, now pulled skin-tight over her ass and hips - and clearly revealing that he no longer possessed the technical right to call himself a 'he'.

"Shit - your cock is gone!" John said.

Chris looked down, with a frown. "Damn!" She slid a hand down the front of her shorts, her fingers running over her altered crotch. "Well...?" John asked, hesitantly. "Is it.. I mean... Do you have...?"

"A pussy!" Dave called, pointing at the tabby cat that streaked across the yard, chasing a squirrel. He turned back to his friends, then blinked. "Hey - whatcha staring at me for?"

"Never mind..." John sighed, turning his attention back to a blushing Chris.

"Look, buddy - this isn't exactly normal. You're turning into a woman, for god's sake."

"Yeah - and one with great legs, too." Dave said, staring at the shapely gams. "Though, a nice pair of nude pantyhose would look good on ya, too."

"Dave, you moron..." John said, rolling his eyes. "Black pantyhose would really bring out the definition on her legs." "Yeah - but lace-top nylons..." Chris started - then shook her head. "look, this is all a little off topic. Right now I..."

That's as far as she got - because a funny expression crossed her still masculine face, and she looked down at her chest. The light-weight fabric of her short-sleeve shirt was beginning to bulge outwards.

"Opps - here we grow again." Chris said, as the mounds under the shirt passed a firm B-cup, and kept swelling. Her enlarging nipples and aureole were becoming more and more visible through the fabric as they grew darker and larger, pushing up against the thin material by the force of her now-grapefruit-sized breasts...

...the ones that showed no sign of slowing as they entered the 'small melon' range. The material of her shirt drew taut over her swelling bust, and began to strain. The thread holding the buttons onto the light-weight fabric began to groan as the pressure behind them continued to grow.

"Uh... guys...?" Chris said, nervously. POW.

The top button snapped free of the shirt, propelled by the pressure of the still-swelling mounds behind it.

"Ow, my eye!" John yelled, clapping a hand to his face as the button ricocheted out into the pool. KA-PING - a second button let loose.

"Hit the deck!" Dave screamed, diving for cover. "Incoming!"

CRACK. WAP-ZING. TOINK. Buttons flew from the shirt, bursting free of the fabric and flying out into the yard, exposing a pair of swelling breasts that were already the size of basketballs - huge, firm, round tits topped with equally large, thick nipples.

+ + +

"Ahhh!" The older man stared in surprise as his younger associate dived under the table built into the back of the van, cowering in fear. "You moronic offspring of a camel-jockey and his mount!" Eye-Patch swore. "These walls and windows are bulletproof!"

"I know!" His younger associate said, trembling. "But are they button proof?"

Mumbling - a little louder this time - Eye-Patch returned his monocular gaze to the small LCD screen on the cam-corder.

+ + +

"Holy shit, man - they're huge!" Dave gasped, staring at the enormous, firm, beach-ball-sized breasts thrust proudly from his friend's hairless chest. "They've gotta be - I dunno, GGG, HHH cups, sumthin' like that!"

"Don't be ridiculous!" John snapped. "They're at least a MMM cup!"

"Uh, guys..." Chris tried to interrupt. Prying her huge tits apart, she stared down the massive chasm of cleavage and watched as her waist slowly began to shrink in on itself, becoming smaller and smaller.

"No way - no tits are that big!" Dave said. "I mean, compare a set of B's to a set of DDD's, and you gotta figger..." By now, Chris was the proud owner of a wasp waist, further emphasized by her full, wide hips.

"Here, look!" John said, handing Dave a picture from his wallet. "This is my holding the tits of Mandy Mountains down at the Booby Trap. Now, she's billed as an MMM cup. Look how my hands look on her tits, and watch this..."

"Guys..." Chris tried again - as John walked around behind her. Wrapping his arms around her, he cupped her huge new endowments in his broad, strong hands.

"See?" He said, triumphantly, not noticing the way Chris stiffened in shock and surprise - and shivered in pleasure at his touch. "Um.." She said, hesitantly, surprised by the pleasure of his touch.

"Naw, look - your hands are in a different place then in the photo." Dave said.

"Here - tell me when it looks the same." John said - and started moving his hands around on her massive - and highly sensitive - new tits.

Chris shuddered again, making a low moaning sound in the back of her throat as her friend's hands roamed her massive tits. Her eyes slowly slid shut - even as the lashes on the eyelids grew longer and thicker, and her eyebrows finer and more arched.

"It still doesn't look the same!" Dave complained.

"It's the nipples - Chris' nipples are a hell of a lot bigger then Mandy's." John said. "Here.."

He tried to cover Chris' enormous, engorged nipples with his hands, squeezing and kneading them as he tires to hid the nipples, and the entire aureole.

He lips - filling out into a full, sensual view of femininity beneath a shrinking nose - slid apart and she slowly licked them while making a soft sound, a cross between a moan and a sigh.

"Yeah, well - everybody knows that strippers over-boast about the cup size." Dave retorted. "Maybe, but..." He looked down. "Chris, what are you doing?"

What she was doing was slowly sliding her body up and down against his, her hands sliding up and down his bare leg while her transformed face lay against a much slimmer shoulder. At his words, she snapped upright, blushing furiously.

"I was.. scratching." She said, defiantly.

"Oh." John said, nonplused, as he stared at the gorgeous face his friend now boasted. "Hey - you look all woman, now!" "Yeah - and I guess your bladder must be smaller - you wet yourself." Dave said, pointing to a large damp spot at Chris' crotch.

"Yeah - smaller bladder..." She mumbled - trying to kick away the tabby cat, which had acquired a sudden interest in her, little pink nose sniffing the air frantically.

"Look - I think this calls for some professional help.." John said, looking at the short, gorgeous, hugely-endowed bombshell his friend had become.

"Good idea!" Dave said. "I bet the bartender at the Booby Trap is an expert at judging..." "I mean a doctor, numskull!" John said, slapping Dave up the right side of his head.

"Ow!" Dave said with a hurt look, rubbing his head. "Okay - I guess doctors would know sizes, since they do the implants..."

A second later, he was rubbing the other side of his head, as the new woman drew back her hand.

"You're right - I need to see a doctor." She said, struggling to stand under the twin (or quadruple) handicaps of her high, arched feet and her huge tits.

"I think I sprained my wrist." She glared at Dave - her new form making the look seem sexy and 'come hither', rather than threatening.

Neither of her friends decided to point that out to her as they climbed into Dave's Corvette convertible - with her trying desperately to hide her huge tits with a shirt that was too small to reach all the way across. She had to settle with crossing her arms over her huge nipples...

..which became an especially intriguing sensation as the car started to move, and her tits began to shimmy and shake with the car's vibrations.

+ + +

"Quick, quick - follow them!" Eye-Patch instructed his younger cohort. "Okay!" He cried, throwing himself into the drivers seat.

Vrooom, vrooom... screechhhh...!

"What the hell are you doing?" Eye-Patch screamed as the younger man bounced up and down in the seat of the parked vehicle, twisting the wheel frantically and simulating the sounds of a car with his mouth.

"Oh - I can't really drive." The younger one said, blinking. "Daddy won't let me."

"Aaargh...!" Eye-patch screamed. Throwing the young man out of the seat, he brought the van to life and peeled out after the trio in the convertible.

+ + +

"Oomph!" Chris gasped, trying to squeeze her enormous new tits into the too-small bright-yellow crop-top.

When she'd entered the emergency room, she'd almost started a riot. After a quick examination by a doctor, some clothes had been scrounged for her. The white patent leather shoes she was wearing, with their one-inch platforms and seven-inch heels, fit fine and helped her with her balance. The cut-off denim shorts were a little tight on her otherwise bare hips and ass, but fit tolerably well. The crop top, though...

The doctor had gone off to fetch a specialist, while the transformed man and his two friend waited in the curtain area. Now, that curtain was swept back - and the doctor entering the area had to gasp and clear his throat a couple of times before regaining his composure at the sight of the enormous tits confronting him.

"Um, hello, uh.. Chris. I'm Doctor Vannigun. I was asked to come down for this psych consult, and..."

"Psych consult?" Chris asked, jumping to her feet - which caused her huge new tits to perform some interesting movements. "Whoa, wait..."

"Look, miss... we just want to help you..." the psychiatrist said, stepping forward. "Now - tell me about being a guy...?"

"Guy?" Chris asked, shaking her head, "Oh, no - you must have misheard. I said I was a ... a Goy! Yeah, that's it - I was forcibly converted to Judaism this morning, you see..."

"Judaism?" Dave asked John, sotto voce.

"The worship of Judy Garland." John explained, whimsically.

"Oh " Dave said, nodding in comprehension - then frowned. "People do that?"

"Come on, you idiot!" John said, grabbing his friend's arm and dragging him in the direction Chris was heading, making her less-then- elegant escape.

"...Hasidic Jews, scary as hell dressed all in black, you know " She rambled on, long-nailed fingers fumbling to pull the crop-top into position over her massive tits. The spandex groaned in protest at the mistreatment.

John and Dave dashed past her - and as they went by either side, each one slid an arm under an elbow, yanking her off her new high- heels and out the door.

"Yoinks!" Dave called as they snatched the new woman and dashed for the car.

+ + +

"I'm gonna tell daddy!" The young imbecile whined, from the passenger seat - where Eye-Patch had use duct-tape to secure him in place, his arms at his sides.

"I don't give so much as a rat's ass about you, your daddy, or his entire misbegotten line, back to your ancient fore-fathers! May Allah leave you and all your father's other offspring incapable of having children!" Eye-Patch yelled at his dim-witted passenger as he peeled rubber following the corvette out of the hospital's parking lot....

...only to come to a shuddering halt scant inches before the automatic arm that lowered after the sporty convertible. Grumbling and cursing, he began to pat his pockets for 'correct change'...

+ + +

"Great!" Chris said in her high-pitched, feminine voice as the rest of her equally feminine body slumped onto the lounge in her backyard. "What am I gonna do now? Nobody will believe us!"

"Gee - I don't know." Dave said.

"At least you make a living on-line, where how you look doesn't matter." John offered, lamely. "Yeah - otherwise you might have to get a job like a stripper, or a porno star." Dave said.

"Yeah - come to think of it, you do look like Tommi Titans, from Vixens Video" John said, looking off into the distance with a thoughtful look.

"Oh, yeah - the one from Big Bust Sorority Girls?'" Dave said, a goofy grin forming on his face. "God, is she hot - and sexy, too. Remember the way she fondled her tits in the first scene, hands sliding all over them, slowly at first and then faster? She looked like she was really, really enjoying herself, too..."

Chris's angry gaze faded as she began to recall that move. Hesitantly, he hands came up and peeled up her crop-top, duplicating the actions as she re-ran the hot, sexy scene in her head.

Her friends didn't notice, as they continued to exchange 'favorite scenes' from her movies. "Oh, oh - and the scene where she was trying to wipe some ketchup from her pants, and ended up rubbing herself..." Dave was saying...

Now lying back on the lounge, eyes closed and lips pursed in pleasure, Chris let one of her hands slide from her huge mounds and down to her crotch, where it unzipped her shorts and slid inside...

"God, she was so damned hot!" John said. "I mean, remember 'Vegas Vixens', and that scene in the suite...?"

Chris was biting her full, lower lip now as she moaned, low in her throat. Her hand - warm, wet juices flowing over its - was moving almost frantically at her crotch as her body's already incredibly high hormone level shot through the roof...

...then she happened to open her eyes - and found herself staring at the two raging hard-ons her friends sported as they continued to reminisce about the incredible sex tapes.

With a growling sound, Chris leapt from the lounge and threw herself on John, her long-nailed hands flying to his crotch and tearing down his shorts to set free his large, throbbing cock.

"Wha..!" John said, startled - then shut up as Chris enveloped his cock with her warm, willing mouth. Wrapping one hand around his balls, she used the other to work his shaft as her head bobbed up and down, her tongue swirling over his swollen, throbbing head.

"Wow..." Dave breathed, staring at the sight of Chris - now a gorgeous, sexy broad - standing beside John's chair, bent at the waist so she could slurp at his cock hungrily. "Uh.. mind if I...?"

"Mmmmph-mphmm-mm-mm-mmmph!" Chris replied, wiggling her ass in the air, juices from her over-excited cunt running down her legs.

Dave took that as a 'yes'. Walking around behind her, he pulled her shorts the rest of the way down, positioned himself - then plunged his cock into her hot, ready cunt and began thrusting powerfully.

The three friends staying in the same rocking, undulating pose as they sucked and fucked.

John came first, gushing a load of hot cum down Chris' throat. She slurped and sucked at it eagerly, getting most of it down her willing throat - and leaving her free to scream in ecstasy as she came to an orgasm, her new cunt tightening around Dave's cock and forcing him to spill his seed deep into her.

As the incredible sexual desire that had held her slowly faded, she stood, pulling herself free of Dave's slowly softening cock and looking at her suddenly very embarrassed friends in confusion.

"Oh, my god..." John said, eyes bulging. "What have we done?" "We.. we.." Dave stammered.

"Did something horrible, something awful." Chris supplied, eyeing them narrowly...

...then dropping into John's lap. "You didn't do any foreplay, and this lips just beg to be kissed, and this tits just beg to be fondled." "Huh?" Was John's brilliant reply.

Chris shrugged, causing her huge tits to bounce. "Well, if I'm gonna be stuck like this - and super horny all the time - I'm gonna need somebody to keep me... 'satisfied'. I wouldn't have chosen this fate, if it had been up to me - but since I'm stuck like this, and have no legal identity anymore, I'm gonna need a lot of help from you guys to get things I'll need for my new life. I might as well get used to repaying you the only way I can."

"this is.. too weird..." John said, slowly.

Smiling, Chris... no, she decided - Krissi - pushed her huge-breasted, lushly feminine body against his and smiled up at him, slowly licking her full, seductive lips.

"Are you saying 'no', John?" She asked, hungrily.

John and Dave shared a look. "Well, since you are our friend, I guess we should do whatever we can to help..."

* * * * *

As the covert surveillance tape of the subject came to an end, the Mustache clicked the button that shut off the wide-screen, high- resolution television and brought up the lights in the room. Slowly, he turned his dark eyes towards his scientist.

"Oh, Great Leader... I have failed..." Hakkim said, trembling.

If he'd made excuses, The Mustache would have shot him dead, but...

"No, Hakkim - you weapon worked exactly as you said it would." The Mustache allowed. "You could not know that these Americans are so depraved, so Godless, so... alien as to accept - even revel in - such a thing."

Since the American's unpredictable nature was his greatest excu... explanation of the little set-back they'd dealt him, this only served as excellent proof of his often-repeated statements.

"However - we have other means with which to serve them their due. Come with me Hakkim."

The scientist obediently followed his leader as The Mustache led the way to a hidden door in the far wall, and through it to a corridor that led to a large underground room...

Hakkim gasped at the sight of the dozen missiles assembled on their launchers, and The Mustache delighted in the sound - once more, he'd proven that he could get things done.

Even if they'd had to cut corners on these missiles, what with all the UN inspectors poking around. Like the ignition systems, for example...

Refusing to sigh, The Mustache knelt next to the long, coiled fuse that lay on the floor and led to the underside of the rocket. "We shall make the world tremble with our might!" He swore, with a fiery tone. "Hakkim - give me a light!"

"Yes, oh Great Leader!" His underling said, tossing something to him. The Mustache instinctively reached out and caught it...

...then stared down at the cold bottle of American beer that he held, condensation dripping down the famous red-white-and-blue label. "No, no, you idiot...!" The Mustache screamed, infuriated. "...a Scud light!"

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: During WWII, a German in the English army is recruited to pass as a woman to enter German territory.

The Greta Escape

By Gunslinger

Stalag XI

Southwest of Aachen, Germany May 12th, 1942

Flipping open the gray oil-cloth kennkarte just dropped on the rudely fashioned table which served as his desk, Colonel Williamson's right eyebrow climbed steadily upwards as he eyed the inside of the six-by-four inch identity card.

"What, exactly, is this, Corporal Sykes...?" The colonel asked.

He asked it in the almost inhumanly calm, controlled voice he used only when one of the men nominally under his command 'screwed the pooch'. Despite the general shabbiness brought to his uniform by nearly three years spent as a prisoner of war, the RAF officer wore it with a dignified pride that was only enhanced by the clipped, cultured tones of his blue-blood British accent - an accent almost sharp enough to draw blood as he swung the kennkarte around to display it to the Army Air Force non-com who, a second ago, had been grinning with smug triumph.

"Aw, hell!" Sykes swore, his normally pale face going nearly the same shade of red as his carrot- shaded hair. "I lifted the wrong goddamn papers!"

"So it would seem." Williamson said, acridly, tossing the kennkarte down atop the small pile of matching personal documents the red-faced corporal had gone to great lengths to steal from the commandant's office. "We wanted an example of the identification papers of Oberst Von Scheerboch's driver - not his secretary. These are useless."

Flushing even deeper at the tone of ultimate disappointment with which Colonel Williamson delivered the last, Sykes picked up the secretary's identification booklet and looked at it, his face a mask of mortification.

I couldn't help myself. After all his bragging, after all the work he'd gone to, the almighty Sykes had screwed up.

I laughed.

"What's so all-fired funny, Jerry?" Sykes demanded, eyes shooting daggers at where I was sitting cross-legged on my bunk, contents of my latest Red Cross parcel spread about me as I tried what luxury to indulge in first - chocolate or a cigarette.

Though I felt a surge of anger at Sykes' use of the derogatory nick-name - it wasn't my fault my parents had been German, after all - I simply shrugged and decided on the coffin-nail, slipping the Lucky Strike between my lips and lighting it was a show of complete indifference. Only after I'd taken a long drag on the cigarette and blown a plume towards the rafters did I condescend to answer the angry question.

"You are." I said, smirking. "A shining example of American Ingenuity at work."

"Screw you, ya dumb canuck." Sykes shot back. "I don't see you doin' much to get anybody out of this camp."

"Left-tenant Baumann has contributed his fair share to our efforts, so far." Williamson chided Sykes, putting that inimitable British spin on my rank as he cut our budding argument off at the knees. "Just as you have, Corporal."

Rifling through the other papers on the desk, Williamson picked up the Reispasse - the Nazi passport.

"This, however, is not completely useless." The Colonel said, holding the small booklet up. "It appears that Fraulein Sturm has herself a travel authorization to enter Switzerland."

Despite the fact that us Canadians shared a lot of history with our Brit friends, right down to the fact that my RCAF uniform was almost a direct copy of the one the Royal Air Force had issued Williamson, I couldn't tell whether it was an honest comment, or some of that reserved British wit to polished for us crass colonials to get - and besides, arguing and teasing were some of the few entertainments that Herman the German allowed us poor POWs to engage in. I saw another opportunity to take a pot-shot at Sykes, so I took it.

"Sure." I cracked. "Put a wig on Sykes here and stuff a couple of oranges under his shirt, and he can jaunt off to the Alps and pass the intel we've picked up from the guards on to British Intelligence."

"Hey - you'd have a better chance than I would." Sykes retorted, diving into the fray with relish. "You look more like this Greta Sturm dame than I do..."

Suddenly, Sykes pulled almost classic double-take, looking down at the kennkarte, then back up at me with a stunned look on his face.

"A heck of a lot more..." Sykes said, in an odd tone.

Being fairly short and fine-boned earned me about as much teasing as did my German ancestry, my defense that it made the otherwise cramped cockpit of a Spitfire fighter positively roomy for me notwithstanding. I opened my mouth for one of my standard come-backs to the joshing about my size and build...

...only to be brought up short by the Colonel, who spoke but one word: "Quite."

It was the thoughtful tone in which it was spoken, accompanied by a steady, contemplative gaze, that sent shivers down my spine.

The shivers only got worse when the Colonel tossed the Reispasse over to my bunk. I made no move to touch the passport - but I couldn't help but glance down at it.

It had quite naturally fallen open when it had landed - and there, inside the front cover, was indeed the photo of Miss Greta Sturm, the Commandant's new and as-yet unseen secretary.

A woman who could have passed as my sister. My twin sister.

"No." I said, immediately, before anybody could suggest the unthinkable - and then, catching the looks on the faces of the twelve-man escape committee gathered around the colonel; "Hell, no!"

"Le-tenant Baumann - Martin..." The Colonel said, his use of my first name immediately making my hackles rise. "Let's just kick this one around a bit, shall we...?"

* * * * *

"No, no, no...!"

"Come now, Lieutenant..." O'Connell chided. "The only copy of a travel pass we have is issued on behalf of the Deutsche Stenografenschaft Hafum. We have no idea what any other travel pass looks like - and you can guess how many chaps there are in the German Stenographer's Union."

I ground my teeth - and not over the flight engineer's thick brogue, either. At least he could correctly pronounce my rank...

"Look..." I ground out. "My answer is the same as it was last week when the whole, crazy idea was brought up: No!"

"But, Martin," Williamson said in an oh-so-reasonable voice. "The whole point is that in the past week it's become steadily less crazy."

"Roight!" O'Connell, the forger, agreed too damned brightly. "We copied Greta's documents word- for-word, stamp-for-stamp... and gave her back the forgeries. You'll have iron-clad original documents that will take you right into Switzerland. It's a bloody get-out-of-jail-free card, boyo!"

"Yeah - in a goddamn skirt!" I came back, looking down at the photo of the sharp-featured but not unattractive woman in the kennkarte - the one that looked too damned much like me for comfort. "This will never work!"

"But it will." Williamson said, firmly. "Miss Sturm is new here. The guards know her well enough - but not intimately. She is so conscientious that she works late every night - but to varying times. She leaves mostly by the east gate, but she has twice used the west gate. You even speak German like a native! In another week or two, the guards will know her too well for this to work - but this Friday... You can just walk right out the gate, Martin!"

"Yeah!" I raged. "In high heels!"

Angrily, I shook the footwear that Sykes had 'liberated' from one of the female Russian prisoners on the other side of the compound - a pair of dark brown pumps with a cylindrical heel that must have been at least a good four inches high, if not more.

"Look, lad..." O'Connell said, losing his patience. "Just put the bloody things on, and see if they fit or not!"

My lips tightened - and then, angrily, I yanked off my boots and began to jam one of the damned pumps onto my foot.

"The socks, Martin..." Williamson sighed.

"Aye." O'Connell added, with a badly suppressed grin. "I don't think heavy woolen flight socks are quite the in thing with pumps this year."

Staring daggers at the smirking Scotsman, I peeled off my heavy, shapely gray socks. Then, with hard motions that I'm sure betrayed how I felt about this whole thing, I slid the pump on...

The damned thing fit.

Not perfectly, since my feet were apparently a bit wider than Fraulein Sturm's were... but certainly well enough.

"Good, good - now the other one." Williamson prompted. "Take a bit of a stroll, Martin."

Slipping the other pump onto my foot, I rose to my feet and angrily stomped down to the end of the room, and back.

I half-considered faking a fall - but the truth was, I'd always had a pretty good sense of balance, and the boys had seen me creep over thin boards and over taut wires during midnight escapades in other abortive escape attempts to know it.

Besides... I just couldn't bring myself to do it. Even if the other guys hadn't caught on, I would have known I'd deliberately muffed it - and I just couldn't live with myself to do it.

"Hardly ladylike - but you'll improve." Williamson said, chuckling. He turned to Sergeant Lee, our resident tailor. "Now, what about clothes, make-up, and a wig?"

"Well, the clothes won't be a problem." Lee said, tapping his lips thoughtfully. "The wig might be a bit more troublesome, but I'm sure we can come up with something..."

"Good, good..." Williamson said - then looked up at me, expectantly. "Well, lad - don't just stand there. Go ahead, practice, practice..."

As the colonel went back to discussing my feminine fate with his team, I began to pace back and forth, teeth grinding together with every damnable, feminine 'chick' those heels made on the wooden floor.

* * * * *

Heart pounding, I wiggled my way through the cramped confines of the dark, narrow tunnel, feeling the coil, moist air against my skin even as the good wishes of my comrades-in-arms echoed in my ears.

I couldn't believe I was doing this.

Ahead of me I pushed the tightly wrapped bundle holding my - Greta's - clothes and documents, protected from the dirt that was being smeared into my skin, clothes and hair.

It was thoroughly uncomfortable in every way - and yet I was still dreading the moment when I'd leave the tunnel and have to assume that feminine identity.

No matter how much I dreaded it, however, the moment came soon enough. I felt the tunnel slope up underneath me, and a minute later I broke out into the cool, crisp evening air.

With just my eyes above ground, I carefully looked around, grateful to find that the tunnel emerged right where it was supposed to - beneath the wooden floor-boards of the washroom abutting the building housing the commandant's office.

Pausing, I listened carefully - and was relieved to hear nothing but my own adrenaline-fueled panting.

Slowly and carefully, I pushed against the floorboards above me - and, having been previously loosened by the team that had dug the tunnel, they slid out of place easily, creating a hole just barely large enough for me to squeeze through.

Just barely - but enough, which part of me regretted greatly. It would have made the perfect excuse to call this all off.

With a sigh, I carefully crawled out of the whole - then, laying the bundle aside for the moment, quickly ran to the door and locked it, ensuring that no guard would wander in at an highly inopportune moment.

That taken care of, I almost gave in to the urge to simply curl up and wait until some sort of miracle occurred to keep me from having to not only put myself in mortal risk - but to do so in the most utterly humiliating way possible.

Which would have been completely understandable - except that I've never been what you'd call terribly religious. Though it's true that there are no atheists in a foxhole, there were the occasional agnostics, and I couldn't see myself waiting for divine intervention from a God I wasn't even sure existed.

With a sigh, I put aside my hesitation - and much of my own self-image.

Unbuttoning my dirt-smeared shirt, I started the water in the sink running, and set about the task of cleaning myself up.

Even that reasonable simple task was less-than-comforting - considering that the skin I was washing was too smooth for my own liking. I've never been a terribly hairy man to begin with - but a session with every razor my barracks mates could come up with, under their laughing, teasing 'help', had left me as smooth as a new-born babe's bottom all over.

I mean, you get used to not having any privacy at all in the stalag - but that particular shower was perhaps the most embarrassing thing I've ever had to undergo, even though I knew my fellow prisoners were all really rooting for me, not just to get these important tidbits of intelligence out, but because of the boost of morale that would come from just one of us making it out of Nazi-held territory.

Hell, that was one of the reasons I couldn't quit. As bad as the thought of what I had to do was, I couldn't ignore the fact that, in a very real and heart-felt way, my fellow prisoners envied me.

Despite the cost of this bid for freedom, I knew any one of them would wish that it could be them.

In a strange way, I felt an odd thrill of pride that I was the one 'feminine' enough to pull this off - and that brought up 'conflicted emotions', believe you me.

Still, it provided a sort of cold comfort when I'd finally exhausted milking every spare second I could justify from cleaning up, and had to get on with becoming Greta.

Cold comfort - but comfort nonetheless, and I was glad to have it.

I started off with my 'underthings' - or, at least, a reasonable facsimile of feminine undergarments. Since no eyes but mine were ever to see them (for damn sure!), they only had to conform to the right basic shape, and nothing else.

I started with my 'brassiere' - which was basically the corners of a pillow, over-stuffed with the padding the Jerries gave us, and with ribbon bands to hold my 'breasts' into position.

Just my luck, our Miss Sturm was a perfect model of Aryan perfection, figure-wise. The slender waist I already had, even if it were an inch or two bigger than Greta's hourglass perfection - but now I also had to mimic the classic 'buxom blonde' ideal, and that included these damned foam 'breasts', to damned prominent for my liking.

Then again, I would have preferred that Greta was as flat as a board, so it was really 'too big vs. even bigger', if you take my meaning.

So, I ground my teeth and strapped my perfectly pointed 'breasts' into position on my chest, carefully arranging the straps as I'd been showing, making sure that there was no chance of my new bust shifting at the very wrong moment.

'My bust'. Jeez.

My recruiting officer never mentioned anything even remotely like this...

Next came my 'bloomers'. Ugly enough to scare a warthog, but functional, with more pillow-padding to round out my hips and derriere.

Damn - why did Greta Sturm have to be a looker?

There was absolutely no problem tucking Little Johnnie and the Twins up out of the way - if Johnnie had ever been less interested in standing at attention, it was long before puberty and long since forgotten.

Next came the silk stockings. More than just a luxury in war-torn Germany, they were the 'big ticket' of black-market trading in the Reich, nearly impossible to get - yet somehow Sykes managed to come up with a pair.

I asked him where he got them. He said, "Don't ask."

Even the Great and Mythical Sykes couldn't come up with garters to go with the stockings - but that hardly mattered, since most women couldn't anyway. I simply used the same expedient used by women the world over since the war cut down on supplies of elasticized material: I used strips of adhesive tape.

Not that I was exactly driven wild with excitement as I taped the disturbingly smooth, comforting silk mesh to my even more disturbingly smooth thighs. Sure, my heart was racing - but it wasn't from any sort of pleasure.

I was now holding on to that 'cold comfort' with a death grip.

Next I pulled on the clothes that Lee and his team had ginned up for me.

First, a stiff cotton blouse in the correct beige shade of the Woman's Worker Auxiliary - or, at least, as close as several dippings in a tea-and-coffee mixture and repeated washing could get it.

Lee assured me that it would run or bleed, should I be unlucky enough to get caught out in the rain. He hoped.

Which would have been disturbing, if it wasn't for the fact that it was a moot point - since the padding giving me my feminine curves would swell and sag if soaked.

Staying out of the rain was one of my many priorities...

Next came the skirt. In the style Greta wore, it was tight-fitting and hung to my knees, emphasizing my 'full' hips and derriere - something of which Greta was justly proud, but I was less than enthusiastic about.

Unfortunately, I was supposed to be Greta - and so I had to dress as she did.

So, I had to wear a figure-flattering skirt and a tight blouse that emphasized my ersatz figure - and I had to put on those damned shoes I'd been practicing in.

Man - I don't know how women wore these things day in and day out. I mean, I appreciate the effect heels had on a woman's legs and stride - but damn, these things killed your feet.

It was something I'd never really thought about or known - and I wished I still didn't. Ignorance really is bliss.

I'm pretty sure I was blushing in shame at this point, but I didn't bother looking in the mirror to verify it. The less I had to look at myself, the better - so I placed the wig Lee's team had fashioned from the shorn hair of the Russian prisoners on my head by touch alone...

...and then looked in the mirror to make sure it was correctly positioned - since I had to look at myself in the mirror to put on my make-up, anyway.

Make-up. Me.

I shivered...

...and then, just as I'd been practicing - with plenty o 'helpful' advice from my barrack's mates, you can be sure - I applied the ersatz lipstick Lee had concocted, then carefully applied the long, fake lashes made from carefully curved moustache hairs donated by the colonel himself.

The funny thing was - I wasn't sure whether to hate or like the fact that mirror now revealed what appeared to be a somewhat sharp-featured, but undeniably attractive, young German woman.

Then again - considering the fact that my life and limb, not to mention the hopes of all my fellow prisoners, rested on my ability to pass myself off as the woman I appeared to be, I guess I was, grudgingly, happy.

It was a damned strange thing to be 'happy' about, if you ask me... Taking a deep breath, I tried to steel myself for the ordeal ahead.

Bad enough that I'd have to go outsize and pass myself off as a nazi. I had to pass myself off as a female Nazi - and do so convincingly, which meant I had to keep from following my urge to try and hide my 'femininity'.

Turning from the mirror, I quickly shoved my dirty clothes and the discarded bundle down into the hole I'd been 'reborn' from, keeping only my identity documents with me. Slipping them into the waistband of my skirt - where any good woman would keep them, Sykes had informed me with a knowledge tone that was probably half bull-crap.

Replacing the boards, I straightened, self-consciously smoothed my skirt - and walked to the door.

Unbolting that door might just have been the hardest thing I've had to do, harder then going into combat.

Taking my first step out into the world was twice as hard.

Here I was, a dumb Canadian flyer who'd foolishly volunteered to transfer to the RAF, walking 'confidently' out into the middle of a Nazi prison camp compound, pretending to be a Nazi stenographer/secretary - and female, to boot.

I doubt you'll find it at all surprising to know that my heart was going a mile a minute as I approached the west gate.

The 'real' Greta was still working, and according to Security, Captain Marks, she didn't look like she was going to be done any time soon.

So, this was my window of opportunity - and I couldn't show any of the fear I felt inside, nor the shame, nor the humiliation.

Instead I had to walk, back straight and an appropriately feminine sway to my padded hips as I approached the two bored sentries standing at the gate.

Mentally bracing myself, I took a metaphorical deep breath that I dare not take in real life, and forced a politely disinterested smile to my lips, made artificially full and enticing by the 'lipstick' Lee had concocted.

"Guten abend." I said, forcing my voice into a higher, softer tone - considerably softer, little more than a whisper, though one that carried.

It was the 'safest' tone out of the ones I'd tried - and it was my damnable luck that it was also the most 'charming'. I just hoped that my charming 'good evening' was all it would take to get the two sets of barbed-wire wooden gates to open.

No such luck...

"Guten abend, Fraulein." The right-most guard said, politely enough. "Zeigen Sie Ihren ausweis, bitte."

The fact that he was asking for my identification papers should have scared me even more. Oddly enough, it didn't, since he was asking for them in the bored, faintly apologetic tone of a functionary performing a task - instead of screaming something about the 'faggot' prisoner trying to escape in women's clothing.

"Ja, ja, ja..." I agreed, trying desperately to sound as equally bored as I slipped my kennkarte out from waistband and handing it over.

It took every ounce of my self-position to look calmly disinterested as goon number one checked 'my' kennkarte... and I noticed the other one noticing that tension of my muscles.

Namely - the way the tension combined with the effect of the high heels to emphasize the curves of my calves.

Okay - so here I was, being ogled by a man who was obviously enjoying the view... and because it meant I wasn't about to be shot for trying to escape, I felt good about this.

It felt even 'better' when the other goon stared at 'my tits' while handing my identification back - because it not only meant that I had both of them fooled into believing a woman, but had them believing I was a specific woman, one Greta Sturm, and permitted to leave.

"In ordnung." The practically drooling guard said, waving a hand to the guards manning the outer gate, even as his own partner swung open the inner gate. "Sie können passieren."

"Danke." I thanked him, in that whispery feminine voice I was using.

Head held high, back straight, a feminine sway to my padded hips, I walked right out the 'front gate' of the prison camp.

I couldn't help it. Even though I should have been thoroughly humiliated to be entering 'the big wide world' as a woman, and scared silly to do so in the heart of Nazi Germany, the overwhelming emotion I felt was... pride.

I was proud to be passing as a woman - an attractive woman at that, especially considering the reactions of the guards at the outer gates, who made no bones about the way they were eyeing my faux-feminine form.

I guess I must have some of the ham in me - because I couldn't help adding an extra little wiggle to my hips and a flip to my hair as I paraded right between two of the guards paid and ordered to keep me in, the smile on my gloss-red lips having nothing - and everything - to do with the man-to-woman way they were watching me walk out of the gate.

All in all, I was surprised to find that the stark terror I had been expecting never hit - overwhelmed instead by this strange, thrilling pride at pulling this 'perverted' charade off.

In fact...

I was enjoying it.

In that sort of guilty, trembling, heart-pounding sort of way. You know, the way you felt when you were doing something dangerous-yet-exciting.

It was the exact same feeling that had prompted me to take on half of Hitler's Luftwaffe in my Spitfire. The exact same feeling that had led me to take up flying in the first place, and the same feeling that I'd been denied ever since being taken as a POW.

It was... exhilarating.

I'd certainly never counted on feeling this way. I would never imagined that I'd want to feel this way about pretending to be a woman - but here I was, experiencing this queasy/exciting/scary/fun sensation that left me feeling intoxicated.

Lost in trying to cope with the mix of emotions the situation caused, the couple of miles between the camp and the train station went by almost unnoticed. Even the damned high heeled shoes couldn't break through the swirling mix of emotions.

It came almost as a surprise to find myself walking up the wooden steps up to the well-lit platform of the station...

...and my being lost in coping with my emotions might just have saved my life.

For the last ten minutes, I'd been half-aware of the fact that I'd been walking beside a local train shunted off onto a siding while being refilled with water.

A train full of Wehrmacht soldiers, dozens - hundreds! - of them, all of them armed, and all of them watching me.

Since I'd only been half-aware of them, and because I'd been... um, 'enjoying' the feminine sway I was using, part of me concentrating on doing it, I hadn't even had a chance to show any fear or unease that might have given me away. In fact, it allowed for the perfect response when I did finally become aware of it - because the train started to pullout just as I mounted the platform, and the soldiers cheered and hooted, making remarks that ranged from admiring to crude...

...and so my startled reaction and deep blush were perfectly in keeping with how any woman might react to such blatant, overwhelming male attention.

Thankfully, it also let me 'hide' some of my nervousness - oh, all right, nervous excitement - as I approached the station window.

I'd passed the first test, that of leaving the compound, so I was reasonably sure that I could pass for who I was supposed to be...

All right, all right, damn it! So I was enjoying passing for the woman I was supposed to be. Happy? Anyway - this was a little different.

The documents I had were 'real', and so as long as I could successfully pass as Greta Sturm, it should be fine - except that this one document, my travel pass, had been altered for today's date, rather than a week from now, when the real Greta was scheduled to go.

Even if the station master 'bought' me being the woman I purported to be, I might still get caught over the forged date...

So, I was glad I had my 'embarrassment' to hide my nervousness in as I approached the bored- looking station master and slid my papers through the window to him.

"Wie heissen sie?" He asked, flipping open my reisepass, and checking my travel permit.

"Greta Sturm." I replied, in the voice that I was - damn it - actually coming to enjoy emerging from my own lips. Who knew I could make the same sound I would have paid good money to hear a 'real' woman use for me?

"Hmph." He grunted. A sallow-faced old man with a balding pate framed by a shock of white hair, he was the type of man who looked permanently disgruntled with his lot in life - with a disposition to match. "Wo gehen sie hin?"

"Genf - in der Schweiz." I replied - without bothering to point out both name and destination were on the travel permit. After all, he was checking to see if I knew where I was supposedly going, and who I was. He stared at my documents a moment longer - and then grunted, stamped my travel pass and passport, and slid them back across the sill to me.

"Wann fährt der Zug nach Genf ab?" I asked, politely. "Zu jeder vollen Stunde." He replied.

I glanced quickly at the clock. If the train to Geneva left 'on the hour', as the station master had said, then it was supposed to be leaving in less than ten minutes...

...which meant that the train just puffing its way into the station must be mine.

Talk about lucky timing. No wonder why the station master was so blasé - it looked as if I had planned exactly this.

A jerk of his head and another grunt from the station master affirmed my assumption that this was the right train - and he even considered to sourly wish me 'bon voyage': "Glückliche reise."

"Danke." I replied, keeping my papers in hand as I accepted the boarding pass he slid across the counter, knowing I'd have to show them to the conductor.

With a grunt, he pointedly snapped open today's issue of Das Reich and went back to reading the paper.

Still, despite the gruff demeanor, he'd been polite and efficient - and I had the general feeling he was usually neither...

...with a man.

It was amazing - it was like just being female... well, being seen as a female... opened doors like some magic key. No searches, no hard questions - while the Germans and I didn't share very many things in common, the 'right' way to treat a woman was one of the things we did... and I was on the receiving end of that treatment.

Smiling to myself and shaking my head slightly in bemusement, I turned from the station-keeper's window...

...and found a grizzled Wehrmacht soldier standing right behind me, papers in hand as he waited for his turn at the window.

The strange thing was - I wasn't particularly scared. Nervous, sure, but not as terrified as I would have expected to be...

...and then my heart leapt into my throat as I was graphically reminded of the risks and life-or-death consequences of an escape attempt.

Not on my account - but because I recognized the 'soldier' standing there, trying hard to hide the near panic in his eyes... with limited success.

It was one of the Russian POWs.

Oh, I didn't know him by name, nor had I ever spoken to him - but I'd seen him in the compound, a young man made prematurely old by the rigors of war, with a gimp leg and a scar running down the side of his face, just barely missing his right eye.

The Russians had their own chain of command in the Stalag, and though we traded with each other, we didn't really discuss anything like escape plans with each other - and, apparently, the Russians had also chosen today to try and get one of their members out...

Our eyes widened simultaneously as we recognized each other - or, as I recognized him, and he 'recognized' me as the commandant's secretary. His face started to go pale...

I didn't even really think, so much as react. I reached down and snatched the papers from his loosening grip as he prepared to give up, sure he was caught.

I took a quick glance at the papers I held as I turned back to the window, gratified - if somewhat surprised - to find that the Russian POW network was as efficient and meticulous as our own - or perhaps more so, depending on how good this Wehrmacht travel pass was. In any case, a quick glance noted that the photo matched the 'Sergeant', and that the uniform he wore was a good likeness, with the correct rank tabs.

So, taking both our lives in my newly-manicured hands, I smiled disingenuously and acted the part of an officious 'civilian' who, like many, somehow thought that made her superior to anybody serving in the army who wasn't an officer, and presented the papers and pass of 'my escort', Feldwebel Heinrich Shultz.

It was an almost instinctive act - and it worked better than I could have possibly imagined. The station master, seeing what appeared to be a veteran soldier given the ignominious duty of escorting a pretty but perhaps empty-headed woman on a trip, barely gave me a second glance as he rubber-stamped the travel permit and slid across a boarding pass so that the two of us would share a coach room.

The fact that the train had pulled in and was disembarking passengers only added to the station-master's urge to get this over as quickly as possible. Moments later, I was handing 'Schultz' back his papers.

"Folgen sie mir." I said to him, imperiously - hoping that his German was good enough to understand my command for him to follow me.

Whether it was his German, or whether he just understood the tone, he followed me as I lead the way to the train car - and he even recovered himself enough to hold open the outward-swinging door on the carriage and help me step inside.

The carriages were of a style popular in Britain, with each room having an outside door allowing direct access to the compartment. Settling into our seats, we remained quiet, 'Shultz' eyeing me uncertainly, until the conductor had come by and made a brief check of our boarding passes to ensure we were allowed on the train.

Minutes later, the train pulled out of the station - leaving us in comparative safety as the train gathered speed towards the Swiss border.

"Danke, fraulein." He said - in reasonable, if not perfect, German, explaining why he'd been chosen for the attempt to escape rather than a more mobile man.

Still - he was damned near petrified. Good German or not, I wondered how he thought he could pull off the charade, tense as he was. He looked about ready to die of congestive heart failure...

...while I was actually enjoying myself. All the more so for being so good that I wasn't only getting myself out, but getting another prisoner out on the strength of my 'performance' alone.

We spent the long, boring ride to the border more or less in silence - while I grew steadily more alarmed at the way 'Shultz' grew steadily more agitated the nearer we drew to the border.

Suddenly, helping him didn't seem like such a good idea. I'd tied my fate to his, because if he were caught, the SS was sure to pay much closer attention to his traveling companion.

A scrutiny I might not survive. Literally.

By the time we pulled to a stop at the SS checkpoint on the German side of the border, the last few yards of Reich between us and freedom, he was flushed, sweating and trembling - and I was feeling real fear for the first time since I'd walked out of the compound. Up and down the train, SS officers were opening each compartment and asking for papers - and one look at this 'soldier' and they'd know something was up.

So close I could almost taste freedom - and my companion practically had 'guilty!' stamped on his forehead.

As the SS officer drew steadily closer to our compartment, I did the only thing I could think off... I threw myself into my companion's arms, and proceeded to kiss the hell out of him.

It was the only thing I could think of. I didn't even had time to be ashamed or disgusted - I just did it...

...so you can imagine my surprise when, after a stunned second, 'Schultz' began kissing me back - and turned out to be good at it.

Really good at it.

That's how the SS officer found us when he yanked the door open - me practically wrapped around the 'Sergeant', engaged in a passionate lip-lock that were both obviously very much participating in.

My heart was pounding, and I prepared to let go of 'Schultz' and act suitable embarrassed as I handed my papers to the officer, hoping the embarrassment of the situation would explain and nervousness 'Schultz' might show...

...except 'Schultz' showed no signs of letting go.

Which worked out just fine - since, with a man-to-man wink, one soldier to a grizzled veteran, the SS officer gave a brief salute and continued on, not even bothering to check our papers.

I couldn't believe our luck. The single, riskiest part of the plan - and we'd waltzed right through it. In fact, the whole 'kissing' technique worked so well, I stuck with it - just in case.

Right through the checkpoint - and a goodly ways into Switzerland...

...just to be on the safe side.

Well, Schultz and I parted ways in Geneva, and I have no idea what happened to him, since I wrangled passage on an England-bound steamer on my own - but that's the crux of the story. That's how, in skirt and heels, I managed to leave the heart of the Reich, outwit the Wehrmacht and SS, and sail away to freedom...

...and enjoy every minute of it. THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: After winning a legal suit to join an all women's gym, one man finds himself captive at one of the gym machines as he is literally turned inside out and remade as a submissive Asian woman.

The Gym

By Gunslinger

Humming to himself, Barry headed down the steps towards the gym's entrance. Today was his first day at the new gym - and he was looking forward to it.

Because it had taken him six months to get the court to let him join.

Even after all the headaches, the muscular, handsome lawyer still got a kick out of the whole thing. It had first started as a joke - the tall, broad-shouldered lawyer had been looking for a new gym when his old one closed. He'd gone through the Yellow Pages, copying down addresses to check out, when he'd come across the add for 'Miss Fit's Health Club' - an overly-cute title for a women's only gym.

That's what had gotten Bartholomew Robert McNeil thinking. After all, women had challenged all-male gyms, and won. So, he decided that he was going to fight the system for 'Men's Rights' - and he had won, too. The court had decreed that the gym had no choice but to allow Barry a membership, if he so choose. And, just to piss of the dykes and bitches who used an all-female gym, he'd done just that.

Now, feeling cocky and smug, he stepped through the doors to the gym where he was now a member and took a look around.

Empty.

The entire building appeared to be empty, from what Barry could see. Not just the gym area, seen through the set of double glass doors at the end of the lobby, but the entire building itself. There was no sign of employees, patrons, custodial staff - not a single living person except himself.

Barry grinned slightly to himself. The Fema-Nazis who ran and used the place had obviously decided to make his victory a 'moot' one. If he had the right to 'intrude', then they were going to deny him the chance to ogle them.

However, the joke was on them - Barry really didn't care. A 猠er all, most of the patrons of a women's only gym were lesbians and feminists, and he really didn't find hairy, mannish women a 猠tirac猠tive. The point of this li猠tile exercise hadn't been to ogle their unlovely flesh - he just wanted to teach the damned bitches a lesson. If the end result was that he got to use the gym by himself, so much the be猠tier.

Heading into the change room, Barry tossed his gym bag onto a bench and slowly stripped down, eyeing the faintly feminine decor of the room. He had to admit that, if nothing else, this gym smelled better than the ones he was used to.

Pulling off his somber black suit in favor of a pair of red shorts and a white T-shirt, the muscular, russet-haired man slid his bare feet into a well-worn and faded pair of Nikes and headed out to the main are of the gym, where several thousand dollars worth of machine gleamed under the fluorescent lights, idle and almost antiseptically clean. For the first time since the broad-shouldered man had gone to a gym, there was no delay whatsoever to use any machine - he actually had a pick of what he wanted to use, in what order.

He began to wander through the various machines, surprised to find very few that he was familiar with. It wasn't just the brand-names were different - it was the fact that each machine had been designed specifically for women, and so had differences that ranged from subtle to confusing. There was even one or two that completely mystified him.

He walked over to one of the completely unknown machines, a strange device in chrome, pink and white. He tilted his head and read the lettering running up the side of the machine in 'futuristic' italic letters.

"The Body Bender," He read aloud, a hint of amusement in his deep, rumbling voice. He leaned closer to make out the smaller lettering beneath. "The Complete Full-Body Workout Machine to Re-Shape the Figure from Head to Toe."

Shaking his head and snorting, Barry straightened and eyed the odd-looking machine. Moving around, he could see that it had a computerized LCD display and controls that were labeled as to a complete workout session. Shrugging his massive shoulders, Barry awkwardly slithered into the embrace of the complicated machine, having to shoe-horn his massive frame into a design that didn't consider such a figure being placed in it. Finally, he managed to get fairly comfortable in the white- and-pink vinyl padding of the chair that lay at the center of the machine.

Reaching out with a thick, blunt finger, Barry hit the big green button marked 'Init.' Immediately, there was a rising hum and various parts of the machine moved slightly in preparation. Startled, Barry almost leapt from the machine as the seat he was sitting in suddenly came alive, shifting beneath his massive form...

...and around it. The padding moved until it formed a headrest at the top that gripped his head and held it lightly in position. More padding lifted, shifted and moved, and Barry - who, bemused, let the machine do its work - soon found himself strapped into the machine, basically held in its embrace.

Then the machine let out a muted beep - and went to work.

Just as Barry felt an odd prick in the base of his skull, a recorded voice began to issue from speakers somewhere. He recognized the voice as belonging to the bitch who owned the gym - Terri? Tommi? No - Teddi.

"Mr. Martin - you stupid, stupid man." Her recorded voice said with contempt - and he felt a stir of anger.

The next words turned it into a stir of fear.

"We bet on the fact that you'd be stupid enough to use a machine that you knew nothing about at some point during your workout - and here you are, caught in the web of our revenge. You didn't think I'd just quietly let you get away with this, did you?"

Barry tried to extract himself from the whirring machine - and discovered, with horror, that not only couldn't he move his body - he couldn't even feel it. There was no sensation at all in his body.

"Don't bother trying to struggle." Teddi's voice said, smugly. "You've already been injected with a combination paralytic agent and anesthetic. We briefly considered leaving the anesthetic out completely - but nobody deserves to feel the agony that what comes next would cause."

Now Barry was truly scared - what the hell was going on?

"Even though you can't feel it," the voice continued, "right now your body is being cut into by a thousand precision-controlled lasers. These lasers are cutting away skin and fat and muscle, tissue of all sorts - even bone. However, they won't even singe your nerves, organs, veins and arteries. No - you'll still be alive when they finish cutting you down to almost nothing.

Barry was horrified by what he was hearing. It didn't seem possible - they couldn't really do that to him...

...could they?

The sickly-sweet odor of burning flesh almost sent him over the edge in full-blown panic.

"Oh - don't worry." The voice continued. "We're not going to leave you as a set of disembodied organs."

A minute or two passed, then the odor faded a bit. Barry realized that his hearing had changed, becoming less distinct, and that he was no longer blinking at all.

Because he no longer had ears, or eyelids. His eyes and eardrums were now completely unattached from their anchors.

The voice continued.

"By now, you are nothing more than your exposed brain connected to your organs. Everything else is gone, and the little that is left is being held in place by special bursts of air, carefully regulated with the right humidity and content to avoid any damage. To an onlooker, you'd be a gruesome sight, disembodied organs apparently floating in mid-air."

The machine's humming took on a different tone.

"Now a skeleton is being created in place around your organs. It's made of a synthetic poly-carbon polymer that is both lighter and stronger than naturally occurring bone - and is filled with living bone- marrow that matches your blood-type."

Barry was now listening to those words as a sort of life-line to keep him from mindless insanity. He was hovering right at the edge of complete break-down, and only the effort of deciphering the word - as horrible as the message was - was the only thing keeping him barely sane.

"Now - a layer of synthetically created muscle tissue is being added, as well as other tissues. Certain organs and nerve endings are also being moved and relocated to fit the profile of your new figure."

There was a couple of minutes, during which all Barry could hear was the odd sounds of the machine at work.

"Now, the final work is being done. Artificial skin is being applied, new glands are being emplaced, and artificial hair and nails are being created. Which means that it's time to do the other part of our little vengeance."

Before Barry could even wonder what that meant, a screen of some sort dropped into position in front of his immobile eyes. Strange colors and patterns began to swirl on the surface...

Too late, he realized that they were, quite literally, hypnotic. More than that, an unfelt needle was dumping large amounts of a hypnotic agent into his bloodstream. Before he even realized what was going on, he was in a deep trance, his mind disconnected from reality as new information was fed directly into the unguarded depths of his subconscious mind.

* * * * * "nnnn...."

The groan was low and deep, made by somebody lost in the depths of a nightmare that refused to break.

"Nnnooo..."

Definition and coherency began to form as the figure stirred, nearing wakefulness. "No!"

The scream was ripped from his throat as he struggled to sit bolt upright, heart pounding in his chest and eyes open wide at the memory. But even as the denial was torn from his throat, he knew that it wasn't a denial he was capable of making.

Or rather - that she was capable of making. Because the scream came out in a rich, undeniably feminine voice, and even as she truly began to register her surroundings, new sensations assaulted her mind, proving that this was no nightmare - but that the horror was real.

With a tremendous burst of energy provided by adrenaline, she forced herself upright against the heavy, padded restraint across her chest, feeling new sensations flood her as she tried to come to grips with the realization of what had been done to her. She looked down...

For an instant, her mind went utterly blank as she stared at the incomprehensible sight of the most massive pair of tits she'd ever seen - thrust from her chest. That was the 'padded weight' that had hindered her movement, and now she merely gaped down at the huge, firm breasts, the size of medicine balls, that thrust proudly from her chest. They were a rich, yellowish-bronze color, and tipped by enormous, dark nipples that were swollen in the cool air. The weight of them pulled forward at her slender body, despite the fact they were incredibly - impossibly - firm. They were the most unbelievable pair of tits she'd ever seen, as big as some of the hyper-inflated silicone orbs of 'big-tit' men's magazines, and they were attached to her chest.

"No..." She sobbed, shaking her head in vain denial. "Please, of God.. no..."

She heard the words come out in a high, almost girlish soprano, and that only made her useless denial that much pathetic. The motion of her shaking her head caused a sensation on her shoulders, like a fine silk being drawn across them, and she realized that it was the touch of her new hair across her shoulders. Nothing her body was experiencing was 'right', from sight to sound to touch - everything conspired to prove to her that she was no longer who she'd once been. She was now a woman, right down to the huge, firm tits she'd been sentenced to life with. She was no longer...

Her panicked horror mingled with confusion as she tried to summon the thought. She no longer resembled her old self...

The horror and panic began to redouble as she realized that she couldn't remember who she was. Or, perhaps, who she had been, as she no longer bore the same identity. She knew that this body wasn't hers, that she had been a man who'd been transformed into a woman at a gym, by the vengeful owner... but she couldn't bring to mind which gym - or even which city the gym was in. She couldn't remember what her 'real' name was, or what 'she' had looked like, or done for a living. Although she knew that this was all wrong, the opposite of what had been, no detail of her old, male life would come clearly to mind.

"She began to tremble in the horrified realization that much, much more than 'just' her body had been stolen from her - her memories, her 'true' identity had been taken from her as well, leaving her with nothing but the knowledge that she was trapped in a hugely endowed body of the wrong gender.

She slumped back against the headboard of the bed, feeling her huge tits sway and bounce with the movement as she struggled against the overwhelming horror and despair that threatened to engulf her. She didn't know who she had been,. Or who she was supposed to be now. She knew her old life had been stolen from her, but the person responsible had covered the tracks by wiping her mind of the details. She couldn't get help, comfort or revenge - she couldn't even give a name to support her claims of having been male. There were no connections left to her old life, leaving her only with the new life - the life that she didn't want, the one that horrified her. But they weren't happy just stealing her old life and giving her a new one - nor was simply making her female satisfying enough to them., they'd had to make her a female with tits the size of watermelons...

She realized she was hyperventilating, and closed her eyes and struggled to control her breathing as she realized that she had no idea about the new her. All she knew was that she had massive, incredibly spherical tits, and that had been enough to trip all her breakers and shut down her thought processes. Now, she realized she didn't know a single other fact about the new her, or even her surroundings.

"Okay, get a grip.." She told herself in her girlish new voice, wincing at the sound of it, and the fear and trembling in it. But she needed to think clearly for whatever the next step would be.

For example - her immediate thought had been that she just wanted to die. That was still a viable option - and, in fact,. Seemed the best option at the moment. A knife, a bathtub, some warm water - and she'd be out of her misery before it barely started.

Maybe she would, maybe she wouldn't - but before she could do anything, she had to be able to function at least a little, or she'd simply lay here and whimper.

Opening her eyes, she didn't let herself look back down at her body yet, not ready to deal with that. Instead, she let her eyes wander around her surroundings, taking in her locale and the sights she could see from the bed that she'd awakened in.

It was a bedroom. An obviously - almost insultingly - feminine bedroom. The walls were painted a pale off-pink, and adorned with various prints and paintings that were bright and almost disgustingly cheerful. The furniture was inexpensive, but new and fairly nice, all of it white with pink trim. A large set of double accordion slat-faced doors were on her left, presumably the closet, and there were two doors to the right - presumably an en suite bathroom, and the door out of the room.

There was also a large, 'brass' framed free-standing full-length mirror in the corner near the presumed closet. The sight of that mirror decided the new woman on what her first, coherent action would be.

Fighting against the drag of her massive tits, she forced herself upright and swung her legs over the bed...

...and almost fell flat on her face as she pushed onto the floor. Because she'd severely misjudged several things.

In that instant, she understood a lot.

She was absolutely tiny. It had been hard to tell from the bed, but now that she was standing, everything seemed to loom over her. Stunned, she walked slowly towards the mirror, finding her body walking with a feminine, easy grace, as if she'd done this her whole life.

She stopped in front of the mirror and took stock of the body she'd been sentenced to. She was Asian.

She couldn't remember her old body, but didn't think it had been oriental, because of how surprising the sight of her new race was to her. The change in race and gender, however, didn't completely explain the loss in height - even for an oriental, she was tiny, about three-six or -seven. She had the slender, supple body one would expect, if you ignored the tits, and something about her face, with its high cheeks, pointed jaw and large, dark eyes struck her as 'Japanese'. A long, silky mane of black hair trailed down her back.

"Oh.. my.. god..." She said, stunned, surveying herself in the mirror. The fact she hadn't realized how tiny she was had thrown her estimate of her breast-size off. They were actually about the size of volley-balls, but - in scale - would have been the size of medicine balls on a larger woman. As it was, the dusky breasts were still absolutely massive on her tiny frame.

Judging her age was impossible for her - she could have been anywhere between sixteen and thirty six, the slim, supple body and Japanese features throwing her off. She stared at her new self in despairing shock, understanding just how cruel her fate was to be...

...or, so she thought. As she gaped at her new form, a sharp trilling sound filled the room, causing her to start and almost drop dead of shock, scared silly.

The phone rang twice more, then there was a 'click' as the answering machine kicked in.

The first thing she heard was.. 'her' voice, sounding incredibly self-conscious and almost disgustingly cute.

'This is the machine of Sukinara Komotusdi. I am not for to answer the phone, and so please tell the machine your name and phone number when it beeps. When I am able again, I will call you again.'

Thank you.'

There was a short pause, followed by the beep - then a male voice...

'Miss Komotusdi, this is Robert Mackenzie of the INS. I'm just calling to remind you that your visa expires as of noon today, after which time you must return to Japan. I'm sorry that you have been unable to find work here in the United States, and remind you that you are welcome to re-apply for a new visa in the next calendar year. I hope you'll visit this fine country again at that time. Have a nice day.'

It took a second to register... then the world began to gray out and, without any recollection of falling, she found herself sitting on the floor in front of the mirror, struggling to hold onto consciousness as the true, terrible state of her predicament sank in.

She was a woman. A Japanese woman. A Japanese woman with huge tits, no memory of her real life

- and about to be deported 'back' to Japan, where she didn't know the language, culture of social life.

She was still absorbing this when the phone rang again. She listened, numbly, to 'herself' repeating the message, then another male voice came on the line.

'Miss Komotusdi? This is Mark Denheim. I'm calling about your add in the paper. If you're still looking for domestic work, I believe I may be able to help. If you're interested, please come to 738 East

Oakhorn Road before noon today. I hope to see you.'

Closing her eyes and taking a deep breath, she... Sukinara.. decided that this was the end of the line. Before she'd let herself be deported, she'd fall back on the Japanese tradition of Seppaku - it seemed fitting, after all. Once she'd killed herself, all her problems would be...

She shuddered as a sudden conviction, so streaming as to be undeniable, came over her. She couldn't kill herself.

Not 'she didn't want to kill herself' - couldn't. She knew that her mind had been played with, and now understood that that 'escape clause' had been stolen from her.

She was stuck.

Fighting back the urge to break into tears at the realization, she forced herself to her feet and turned towards the closet. There was still a slim hope, even if it was rather pathetic - if she could find a job before noon, she could stay in the States. She didn't want to live life as a hugely-endowed Japanese woman - but with no other choice, it was infinitely better to live it in a country she was familiar with than in a foreign one.

Opening the closet, Sukinara...

She frowned. If she was stuck as a woman for the rest of her life, she didn't want to have to deal with that entire name every time. Suki - yes, that was better.

...Suki looked inside and frowned at the 'girlie' clothes inside. She searched for something more unisex, but there wasn't anything like that available. Frowning, she sighed and gave into necessity, picking the most 'acceptable' outfit she could find.

Grimacing, she pulled on a pair of plain white panties, a task made awkward by her huge tits. Those same tits were shortly restrained in a massive white bra, over which she pulled a fuzzy pink sweater. She wasn't happy with the color, but it was long-sleeved and had a turtleneck, and so was the most 'concealing' piece of clothing available.

She pulled on a white cotton skirt that hung - as far as she was concerned - too short, only barely reaching her disgustingly cute knees. She pulled on a pair of white knee-socks that just barely disappeared under the hem of the skirt, then looked around for some shoes.

All she found were high heels.

With no other choice, Suki picked the least objectionable, a pair of 'Mary Janes' with a two-inch heels. She slid her tiny - dainty - feet into them and buckled up the strap, then looked around.

Walking to the two doors, she tried the right-hand one and found it to be the bathroom. Making a face at her reflection in the mirror, she opened the other door and found it lead to a short hall leading to the rest of what turned out to be a small apartment. 'Her' purse was sitting on the table beside the couch.

Inside was money - a fair amount - plus ID, which informed her that she was living in Las Vegas, and that she was twenty-three years old. She also learned that she didn't have a driver's license, which explained the lone key on the key chain.

Frowning, she searched for the phone book, then called for a cab. She decided it was just as well - after all, she didn't know her way around Vegas.

When the cab arrived, she slid into the back seat and gave the cabby the address from the answering machine, trying to ignore the looks that he was giving her, as well as the similar looks from people passing by. It wasn't easy to ignore, but she certainly didn't feel up to dealing with that right now. All she wanted to do was get a job so she could stay in the country, then work out how to deal with her new life once that major task was done.

The address turned out to be... a mansion. It was a huge house in the new-age style, all white stucco and chromed windows in a bewildering array of box-like shapes and levels that nevertheless conveyed the expense of the house.

Getting dropped off at the gate, she pushed the button on the intercom, and the same voice as on the answering machine asked her identity. When she announced herself, the gate swung open, and she hurried up the driveway, her heels clicking on the asphalt and her huge tits jiggling and swaying, reminding her all-too-sharply of her new state of existence.

The man who opened the door was a tall, broad-shouldered man with a shaven head, who looked decidedly out-of-place in the mansion and the tailored silk suit he wore. He looked more like a wrestler or bouncer than a millionaire, though his vice spoke of some degree of education.

He invited her in, introducing himself simply as 'Mark'. He led her to a large, richly Spartan living room, then gestured for her to take a seat on the couch. She did so, nervously and disgusted - he hadn't torn his eyes away from her the entire time, and odd, speculative look on his face as he mentally undressed her.

He sat on a chair and stared at her for a few more seconds in silence, then spoke.

"I'll be blunt." Mark said, tilting his head. "I'm looking for a very... special employee. One who will be much, much more than a mere maid or servant - yet also more servile than you could imagine."

"Excuse me?" Suki asked, stunned.

"I'm looking for a willing sex slave." Mark stated baldly, and the idea was so outrageous that, for a second, it didn't register. Then it did, and she gasped and flew to her feet, stunned, disgusted and outraged.

"What?"

He shrugged, completely unfazed by the understandable reaction. "I'm looking for a woman who will marry me, to be exact - with the understanding that she's to be my willingly little wife, eager to please me in all ways. I don't plan on ordering this woman about - I expect her to catch any cues I give, and do her best to keep me happy. A woman to be a combination maid, secretary and slut. I won't pay you cash, per se, but I'll lavish you with everything you could possibly want - jewels, gifts, vacations, clothes. Everything."

"Y... You're crazy!" Suki blurted out. Mark shook his head. "not crazy - dying." "Huh?"

He spread his hands. "I have an incurable - and, I should point out, non-virulent - medical condition. Sometime within the next ten months - a year at the outside - I'm just going to keel over dead." He paused. "And my wife will inherit everything."

It became clear to Suki all of the sudden - he wanted to spend his last months in as close to utter bliss as possible, in exchange for which he'd leave everything to his widow.

"I..." Suki started to refuse.. then stopped dead as the thoughts tumbled through her head. If she did this, she'd end up rich. Filthy rich, from the looks of things...

...and, if she married him, she'd gain US citizenship, and never have to worry about being deported. If she married and then divorced anytime in the first five years, it would look fishy to the INS - but if her husband died of a medical condition, that was another story. She'd be here in the US, living in the lap of luxury. She wouldn't ever have to leave the estate - she could spend the rest of her life here, not having to deal with the outside world, not have to expose her new form to 'public' scrutiny.

But the cost - the cost of it was to be a little slut for the amount of time that Mark was alive...

But what else did she have? It was nearly ten o'clock. In a little over two hours, she'd be an illegal alien, and sooner or later she'd get caught - and sent 'home' to Japan.

Suki slumped to the couch, her mind whirling. Mark remained silent, letting her think it over, having expected some reluctance - he had no way of knowing just how reluctant Suki was, or why, of course.

But, reluctant or not, she had only one other choice - since she couldn't kill herself, it was either take this, or let herself be sent to Japan.

"I... I'll do it." Suki whispered, eyes closed and trembling.

Mark's voice was gentle. "I can't accept that sort of reply. I want a woman who can at least pretend that she is supremely happy in this lifestyle, who wants to be here and doing what she can to please me.

'Oh, God - please, just kill me now.' Suki prayed silently. But no bolt of lightening reached from the heaven to strike her down.

Opening her eyes, she took a deep breath and - painfully - forced her bow-like lips into the semblance of a smile. "Oh, mark honey..." She said in a passable imitation of excitement, while struggling to keep her bile down, "Marry me and make me the happiest woman in the world. I want to live my life making you happy!"

* * * * *

Money may not buy happiness. But it can purchase pseudo-enthusiasm, if spent lavishly enough.

Which is how it came to be that less than two hours after her unwillingly willing acceptance, Suki was being led towards the master bedroom of her new marital home, a fake smile pasted on her face, belied by the glazed, scared look in her eyes.

She was dressed in a decidedly unusual wedding gown. A quick side-trip to her apartment had yielded the outfit, while allowing access to the movers hired to transport her stuff while she was wed. the outfit consisted of all-white clothing. A long, white wrap-around skirt with lace trim was parted at the side to show off a leg encased in white nylon. A white silk camisole top served as the upper half of the wedding dress, and a veil and a pair of white pumps with six-inch heels completed the rather hasty-looking outfit. She had quickly applied make-up at Mark's insistence, finding the skills lurking in her reprogrammed brain.

Then it had been off to one of Vegas' famous 'quick wedding' chapels, and then back to her new house...

...and the honey-moon bed.

The new woman's heart was pounding as her muscular groom guided her towards the master bedroom. She wanted to turn and run from the house, screaming - but knew that she couldn't. She couldn't even just 'go along' with this, letting Mark do whatever he wanted while she tried to close her mind off. Instead, she had to fake being thrilled, eager and willing. She had to play the role assigned to her, now that she'd made the agreement. She couldn't back out - the threat of mere deportation wasn't the sole threat looming over her now. No - if, at any time, she failed to live up to the 'role' she was supposed to play, all it would take was one phone-call from Mark, and not only would the marriage be annulled, but she'd spent two-to-five years in prison for fraud before being deported - as the INS would charge her with that crime, claiming she had 'seduced' Mark into the marriage so she could stay.

She reached the master bedroom, and Suki felt sure she was going to pass out from the panic she was feeling at what she was going to have to force herself to do.

"Why don't you change into something more... comfortable, honey?" Mark suggested, and Suki forced a smile. She had to force herself not to sprint to the bathroom and lock the door behind her, buying herself a few minutes.

The bathroom was actually one of two en suite bathrooms the master bedroom boasted - a his and hers arrangement, each one connected to a separate walk-in closet. Shaking - literally - Suki forced herself to undress and pick out a 'suitable' wedding-night ensemble. It was an effort to force herself to put on the white lace merry widow and white seamed nylons, but she did it.

Closing her eyes and taking a deep breath, Suki tried to gather her courage to go through with this. On impulse, she opened the medicine cabinet behind the mirror and began pawing through the bottles.

Mark had no real use for a 'hers' bathroom, and the items in the cabinet were obviously 'storage' stuff, some of which looked old enough to have belonged to a previous owner. Suki rummaged through, hoping to find...

Her tiny, golden hand emerged with a large plastic bottle marked 'PROMAXIDE HCl', with a maker's logo and smaller writing below and on the back.

She looked at the bottle with interest. The name didn't mean anything to her, but the word 'tranquilizer' jumped out. She turned the bottle to read the section of the label listing dosages and uses.

'Chlordiazepoxide HCl/Chlorpromazine HCl (60%/40%) For relief of anxiety, tension, agitated depression and confusional states.'

"That's me to a 'Tee'." Suki said softly to herself, continuing to read.

'For Low-Level anxiety - consume white (X-stamped) portion of pill. For sudden High-Level Anxiety attack, consume orange (Z-stamped) portion of pill. For Chronic/Neurological Anxiety, consume entire pill. Effects last seven to eight hours. Do not exceed more than three doses per twenty-four hour period.'

Unscrewing the metal lid, she pulled out the wad of cotton inside the neck and looked at the almost full bottle. Tilting it - having a hard time holding the large container in one hand - she shook a single pill into her tiny palm.

Popping the two-tone pill into her mouth, she chased it down with a tumbler of water, then sat on the toilet sit with her eyes closed, breathing deeply.

A few moments later, she felt a comfortable warmth spreading through her body as the drug took effect. As the name suggested, the tranquilizer made her feel more tranquil, taking the edge of her emotions and easing her tension. Within seconds after it took effect, she was feeling slightly disconnected from reality, as if she were watching it on TV rather than actually living it.

Smiling dreamily, She rose with a smooth, supple grace and headed for the door, more drifting than walking.

Opening the door, she paused for a second and looked at the large bed, where Mark was waiting for her. In the back of her mind, she knew that she was still panicked and disgusted - but it didn't seem real, and didn't matter. She strode slowly towards the bed with that same fluid grace, a full - if somewhat vapid - smile on her gloss-red lips.

Pausing at the end of the bed, she posed for her husband, raising her slender arms and running her fingers through her hair, then suggestively sliding them back down her body, pausing for a moment to fondle her huge tits before continuing down to massage her crotch.

"Wow..." Was Mark's response.

However, she hadn't done it to arouse Mark - she'd done it simply because it had felt good to do so.

Slowly, she pulled herself onto the bed and slid across the sheets to where Mark lay, nuzzling her chin against his bare chest before closing her eyes and pressing her lips firmly against his, kissing him slowly and passionately. Again, this was an utterly selfish act, guided by a sort of distant intelligence. She knew she was supposed to have sex with him, and so was doing so, but doing it as a way to feel pleasure herself.

The odd thing was - despite her apparent emotions, she was barely feeling anything at all. She knew, deep down, that she was disgusted by what she was doing, but she couldn't feel it emotionally.

Instead, all she felt was a sort of warm urgency centered in her crotch and spilling through her body, along with her knowledge that she was supposed to please Mark.

So, when Mark - still kissing her - reached behind her and undid the snaps holding her merry widow in place, she not only didn't protest, but moved her body to allow easy access. With no emotions to interfere, she was 'comfortable' with what was happening, as long as it felt good, physically.

And it did - it felt really, really good as he tossed the flimsy garment aside and began massaging her huge, firm tits.

Moaning low in her throat, Suki let her husband roll her on her back, his hands still on her massive, engorged nipples. She spread her legs wide as Mark broke the kiss and moved backwards to position himself.

Then he found the right position, and thrust his manhood deep into a cunt that she now realized was hot, wet and ready.

She moaned in pleasure as she was penetrated for the first time. Mark was only average in his endowment, but she was so small compared to him that it felt huge, filling her completely and utterly - and it felt wonderful. She continued to moan in a dreamy, sensual way as he began to thrust into her, her body moving in a slow rhythms to increase the pleasure of her first sexual experience as a female. In the back of her mind, some part of her was screaming that this was wrong, but it was an intellectual knowledge only, and distant at that - emotionally, she felt almost nothing, and the actions felt very, very good, physically. Not only was there no incentive to stop, she wanted to feel this pleasure whenever she could - and the fact that it kept increasing only reinforced that desire.

She felt fantastic.

Mark was panting now as he plunged into her, fucking her with long, hard strokes that pushed her closer and closer to the edge, until she finally fell over, screaming as the orgasm hit her, causing her body to twitch and writhe in ecstasy. She'd never felt anything as purely pleasurable as this, and for a second her mind was utterly blank as she absorbed the intense power of her orgasm.

Then she was in the warm, golden afterglow, and Mark tensed, emptying his cum into her before withdrawing and settling onto the bed next to her.

"God.. that was good..." He said, panting slightly. "Mmmmm..." She said, dreamily, smiling. "That felt.. fantastic."

Rolling over, she pressed her tiny, huge-breasted form firmly against his chest, one hand sliding between her legs to gently massage her crotch as she rested her head against his chest.

It was in that position that they drifted off to sleep.

* * * * *

Suki awoke the next morning, and blinked quizzically up at the ceiling, wondering where she was. Then she became aware of the sensations of her new body, and of the presence of Mark beside her...

...and memory flooded back.

She barely made it to the bathroom and shut the door before she was leaning over the toilet, dry- heaving at the memory of what she'd done so 'willingly' last night.

And how much she'd enjoyed it.

Collapsing onto the toilet, she found herself shuddering with disgust and horror at what she'd entered into. To spend a year as the perfect little wife, like the one Mark had been so captivated by last night. To be the willing concubine to 'another' man, when she'd been a man herself so recently.

She didn't know if she could handle it.

She took several deep breaths, trying to get herself under control. It was too late to back out. She had to deal with it.

Of course, she'd 'dealt' with it all right last night...

Lips pursed in thought, she pushed herself from the toilet...

Then, in one decisive movement, shook another pill out of the container.

A few minutes later, once more delightfully detached from her emotions, she slowly sauntered out to the bedroom and looked at Mark, laying on the bed in a spread-eagle position.

Deciding that she should probably wake her husband, she slowly walked to the bed and slid up on it's surface. Then, pulling the blanket away from his naked form, she lowered her face over his crotch.

Tossing her hair over her shoulder, she began to lick and kiss his cock, which twitched and began to swell. Keeping her weight on one hand, she used the other to fondle the swelling cock as she continued her oral ministrations.

By the time it was fully erect, Mark was mostly awake... so he was able to fully enjoy his wife's delightful method of waking him up as she enveloped his cock with her warm, wet mouth and began to give him an incredibly long, leisurely blow-job.

* * * * *

ONE YEAR LATER

"Honey? Honey, are you in here?" Mark called, walking down the hallway towards the indoor pool.

"Hmmm.. yeah, lover, I'm in here..." his wife's slow, sensual voice responded, drawing him into the room.

She wasn't in the pool itself, but sitting in the hot-tub, the heated water swirling around her naked form. As he saw her, Mark had to stop and admire her, and once more give thanks for his incredible good luck.

It was obvious that what had started out as a marriage of convenience had become so much more, so very quickly. Any doubts that he might have had on that score had been settled, once and for all, after a cure for his illness had been discovered 'in the eleventh hour', and he'd offered to release her from the 'contract', now that the terms had changed. She'd refused by treating him to another one of her unbelievable blow-jobs, swallowing his cum as if it was the finest thing she'd ever tasted - and, for all Mark knew, maybe it was. She certainly never seemed to tire of it, or any other sexual act she could possible perform on or for him.

The year of marriage seemed to have done her good as well - or at least changed her, for what mark considered the better.

Slipping out of his clothes, Mark crossed to the hot-tub and slid in beside his wife, claiming a long, passionate kiss. As he did so, he couldn't help but notice her massive tits pressing into his chest, her enormous, swollen nipples firm and hard.

Now, Mark had thought that she'd had the most enormous tits he'd ever seen on an Asian, and had assumed that they were 'fake' - but he'd come to the conclusion that it must be a genetic 'problem' she had. Although he'd never asked her, and she'd never volunteered information, the way her tits had increased two or three cup sizes in the past year and began to lactate gave mute testimony that no surgeon supplied the masses of breast flesh that he so enjoyed every day.

He also assumed that the same genetic situation was responsible for the fact that she looked different then when he'd first met her. One thing was her tits, of course, but equally amazing was the color of her skin. It had taken him awhile to notice, as the day-by-day change was small, but one day he'd found himself noticing that her skin was the most incredible shade of golden brown that he'd ever seen in his life. Likewise, her huge, dark eyes seemed even bigger and more liquid than ever - and more enigmatic, as it was impossible to read anything from those huge, limpid, dreamy orbs that seemed to be all iris and pupil.

"How was your day, honey?" He asked as they broke the kiss.

She smiled - she seemed always to be smiling that same, dreamy smile, as if utterly content at all times - and kissed his neck. "I did some cleaning in my bathroom." She said. "Say... can you throw out the garbage I left in the bag?"

"Sure, honey." Mark told her, knowing that she tried to keep herself to doing too much strenuous work per day - the drag of her incredibly firm tits would cause backaches if she didn't spend most of her time...

..well, most of her time fucking or sucking him,, to be blunt. She didn't seem to have any urge to develop a social life, go out anywhere, meet new people - she just wanted to stay home and do things that - as she put it - 'felt good'. It struck Mark as an almost Buddhist sort of philosophy, one that he'd adopted whole heartedly, hoping to achieve her content serenity. He hadn't, yet - but he was getting there.

Claiming another kiss, Mark pulled himself from the water and towed off quickly before wrapping a thick robe around his body. He padded barefoot toward the bedroom, carrying the clothes he'd shucked off in one arm.

Dumping his clothes in the hamper, Mark picked up the garbage bag outside the bathroom...

...and an old-fashioned pill bottle fell out.

Sighing, Mark bent over and picked up the bottle, shaking it and finding it empty. He looked at the bottle, vaguely recalling that there were several of the thousand-pill bottles of the same stuff in Suki's medicine cabinet, although he didn't know if they were full or - like this one - empty.

Curiosity got the better of him, and he carried the container over to the desk in the corner and sat down, jumping onto the Internet.

He typed in the name of the drug into a medical search-engine, and waited for the reply.

It had just begun loading when Suki's voice carried through the hall. Not catching the comment, Mark turned his head away, just as the screen blinked and displayed a block of text:

PROMAXIDE HCl - (Longley Pharmaceuticals) FDA Approval, 1968. FDA mandated ban, 1981. NOT FOR USE IN UNITED STATES. Immediate Side Effects may include drowsiness, dry mouth, and changes in libido. Long-Term Side Effects may include lactation in females, emotional distancing, increased dermal sensitivity and skin pigmentation and/or ocular changes.

"What was that, honey?" Mark called.

"My tits are so full and heavy." His wife's languid voice came back. "Why don't you help me with the pump... the we can curl up on the couch and watch some TV."

Mark grinned - his wife's definition of watching TV included spending the commercials either sucking him off, kissing him, or having him fondle her luscious body.

Not even looking at the screen, he shut down the computer, tossing the immediately-forgotten bottle back in the trash as he headed out to the living room and his eager-to-please wife.

* * * * *

AUTHOR'S NOTE: Though I have changed the name and maker of the drug listed, as well as exaggerated the speed with which it takes effect, the drug itself is (was) a real drug, with the possible side-effects that are listed.

BACK TO FUN ZONE

© 1997 - 2016 TGstories.

SUMMARY: One hacker finds a big surprise when he tries to gain access to a porn site that has high level security.

Hacked

by Gunslinger

Taking a sip of the steaming coffee, Louis Zinnerman hesitated a second, considering adding another sugar-cube and another dollop of cream to the beverage, to help kill the inherent bitterness that came from making instant coffee...

...and then he considered his low reserves of cream, sugar and cash, and decided that he'd rather be able to have a second lousy cup of coffee later that evening than just one half-palatable one now.

With a grimace, Louie took another sip of the muddy-brown liquid, willing to accept the bitter taste and acrid aftertaste in exchange for the boost the caffeine provided. With no hurry, he padded out of the kitchen...

...and directly into his bedroom.

Louie lived in a small 'bachelor' apartment in the basement of a post-war tenement building, a pain little apartment that hadn't been much to begin with, and had gone steadily downhill since the Sixties. Basically, one twenty-by-twenty room with a small kitchenette in one corner and a small closed off bathroom in the other, the apartment was cramped, poorly lit, and redolent with the faint odors of more than half a century of tenancy.

It was also, however, dirt cheap - and that was the most important feature, as far as Louie was concerned - well, that, and the fact that the building had been rewired in the mid-eighties for cable service, probably the last building within blocks to have done so - apparently, during the eighties cable had somehow managed to become a 'basic necessity', even in such a run-down building as this.

Frankly, Louie couldn't have cared less about the audiovisual capabilities of the television cable - he didn't even own a TV. Instead, he sank all his under-the-table earnings on his computer equipment, and it was for the high-speed Internet access that he'd wanted - and gotten - a place with cable hook-ups.

Aside from a small bed covered with army-surplus blankets, and a footlocker of the same origin, the rest of his apartment was taken up by the huge old wooden desk he'd gotten at a garage sale - and the computer equipment on, under, and around it, since his set- up consisted of three networked computers capable of performing a wide variety of tasks simultaneously, even though there was a bottle-neck in terms of monitors, of which Louie only had the one. Currently, the monitor was showing the image generated by his proxy computer, a 'dead-end' computer set up to allow untraceable access to the Internet - which he was 'stealing', having used his not-inconsiderable skills to set up a false series of 'cut-outs' in a provider's computer, so that his account was hidden even from the provider - and thus, wasn't billed, the usage being lost in the transfer-packets of the cut-outs, tacked on to the usage details of actual customers to hide his activities.

It was a complicated set-up that had taken much time and skull-sweat - but considering Louie made his meager living as a hacker, it was simply a basic necessity to keeping himself out of jail.

The fact that life in jail couldn't possibly have been worse than his own rather pathetic existence had never even occurred to the skinny young man.

Louie Zinnerman wasn't exactly the 'introspective' type...

Dropping his painfully skinny frame into the battered old lawn chair he used, Louie negligently put the chipped mug down on the floor beside him, the coffee that slopped over the side only adding to the large, long-standing coffee-stain in the carpet. Pulling a home-rolled cigarette out of the pocket of his once-white T-shirt, Louie tapped it against the desk to tamp down the mix of cigarette tobacco, pipe tobacco and marijuana that filled the paper cylinder - and whose composition varied, depending on how much cash he had to spend at any given time.

Putting the end of the cigarette between his barely-existent lips, Louie began rummaging around in a drawer for a working lighter, simply tossing the dead ones back into the drawer as he went. He finally found one that had just enough fluid left in it to provide a small, flickering flame, and he quickly puffed the cigarette into life, tossing the lighter back in among its brethren and nudging the drawer closed with his knee...

For a second, he thought he'd closed the drawer too hard, and that the shudder through the desk had made something metallic within the heavy furnishing go 'bing' - but the sound he'd heard wasn't a dull metallic clank, but an actual bell sound, one he'd heard hundreds - maybe of thousands - of times before.

So, it wasn't a lack of recognition that had made him wonder about the sound's origin. It was the timing.

"What the fuck...?" Louie muttered to himself, distractedly running his fingers through his greasy mane of dark hair as he stared at the computer screen in confusion.

Louie's computer was a Windows-based platform, for the most part, though he had heavily modified many of the programs within the OS, and even written quite a few new ones when the need arose. It was one of these programs that had 'dinged' at him, indicating that it was finished the task he'd given it.

The thing of it was, it was a task Louie had only set it to do before starting to make his coffee - and he'd estimated at the time that the program would take anywhere from an hour to all night to accomplish its function. Oh, sure, given what the program was designed to do - namely, bypass the security of pornographic sites - there was always the possibility that the new program would simply 'get lucky' on the first few tries...

...except that Louie, wanting to give his newly-upgraded program a real work out, had set it to the supposedly impossible task of hacking into Megafantastic.com, a new and supposedly incredible site that was rumored to have some sort of security protocol, the likes of which had never been seen.

Well - given the fact that he'd hacked into the site in under twenty minutes, rumor appeared to be just that - rumor.

Just to make sure that it wasn't a glitch in the program, Louie told his program to perform one of it's pre-programmed tasks - and, with a simple click of the mouse, the proxy shunted the connection to his most powerful computer, opening his browser and sending the log-in information to the sight even as it sent the command to the automated switching-box he'd built, switching the monitor feed to the right computer. The screen flickered, then came up with the web-browser open and loaded into the login page of www3.megafantastic.com.

Somehow, Louie had expected something more from the site - the page that was displayed was so simple and austere in it's design that it looked as if it had been created by a neophyte designer: White Courier letters on black background, with a data-entry field and two 'check'-boxes.

WELCOME TO MEGAFANTASTIC MEMBERS AREA

A Division of Witchwood Enterprises.

Please enter Search Parameters

☐ ☐IMAGES ☐VIDEO

Click here for Search Help.

ADVISORY: Unauthorized Users will be persecuted.

Dark eyes narrowing slightly in puzzled thought, Louie leaned forward, his bony fingers flying rapidly over the keyboard as he entered two words into the data field: blonde lingerie.

Picking the 'Images' box, he clicked the Search button...

...and the screen flickered, coming up with a list of twenty-five clickable links, each one consisting of a filename, a file size, and a date - a basic Virtual Directory listing, aside from the few lines of text at the bottom of the screen and the repetition of his search description at the top of the page in bold. The first line below the left-aligned listing of files was a clickable link, allowing a user to proceed to the 'Next 25 Matches'.

The final line, however, was the one that caught Louie's eye and made him stare at the screen in disbelief: 3,245,653 Matches found.

"No way..." Louie muttered to himself in disbelief, absently transferring his cigarette to his left hand to tap it into the empty pop-can he was using as an ashtray, his freed right-hand dipping down to bring the cooling coffee up for a quick sip. Not even tasting the bitter liquid, he cocked his head thoughtfully, setting the coffee aside again to allow him to randomly click on a few of the links.

Tall women. Short women. Fat women, thin women, women alone, women with men, women with women. Women with groups, mixed and homogenous, and even women with toys, animals and even more outrageous 'accessories'. Women involved in softcore poses and raunchy hard-core shoots...

...and in each image, there was at least one woman with blonde hair, and at least one person in lingerie - and the people wearing lingerie weren't always women, either.

Grimacing, Louie clicked the 'Back' button until he was once more at the search screen, then he clicked on the 'Search Help' link. As he read the simply-formatted text of the help file, his disbelief grew even more.

"Understands basic English...?" He muttered, slowly shaking his head. "Up to five hundred words? Complete sentence recognition...? They gotta be shittin' me - no way they could get a computer to do that!"

Determined to prove to himself that the site wasn't nearly as powerful and comprehensive as the simple, dry text of the help file seemed to indicate, he clicked the 'Back' button...

...and a dialog box popped up over top of the search page:

PASSWORD DUPLICATION DETECTED

POSSIBLE UNAUTHORIZED USAGE

CONTINUED UNAUTHORIZED USAGE WILL RESULT IN PERSECUTION DO YOU WISH TO CONTINUE?

[YES][NO]

Louie snorted in disgust. This was the 'high-security' of the site? A warning - and the choice to continue? Shaking his head, Louie clicked the 'YES' button, clearing the dialog box - then he sat back and stared thoughtfully at the search page, considering what to put in to really push the site's supposed capabilities.

With a grin slowly spreading on his narrow, hard-edged features, Louie leaned forward and began to type rapidly, a machine-gun-like burst of activity that lasted only long enough to make up a few words.

Finishing with his spuriously-created description, Louie chose both the 'Images' box, then clicked the 'Search' button...

"Yeah, I knew it..." He muttered, looking at the screen that had come up. Just like before, the top of the screen repeated the search he'd given it - but there was no list of files below, no 'Next 25 matches' - and, now directly below that bold-faced repetition of the search parameters, was the result count he'd expected:

0 Matches found.

Finishing his smoke, Louie reached down for his coffee - and then, realizing that he wasn't going to be up nearly as late as he'd first thought, decided he might as well add that extra cream and sugar to his coffee.

Rising, the dark-haired young man turned quickly enough that the hem of the army-surplus jacket he wore in lieu of a sweater flared out, eager to make the quick round-trip to the kitchen and back so he could 'play around' with the site a little more.

As a matter of fact, he turned around so quickly that he didn't have a chance to see the sudden swirl of mist that appeared on his desk, a small globe of smoke-like vapor that quickly contracted in on itself - and, impossibly, solidified, becoming a digital video camera connected to his computer.

Unaware of what had just happened behind his back, Louie started to hurry towards the kitchen...

...and went flying, the coffee mug sailing in a parabolic arc to slam into the wall as his hands instinctively flew outwards to break his fall....

"What the fuck !" Louie gasped - a reasonable question, considering what had prompted it was the fact that the arms that had shot into his field of view were nothing like the ones he should have seen.

No, the ones he saw was smooth and slender, with narrow wrists that lead into slender, narrow-fingered fingers, each of which was tipped with along, hot-pink nail.

In short, they were the type of arms that would look right at home on a woman...

...which probably explained the fact that the question had come out in a vapid soprano tone, finished with a giggle. Well... maybe not so much 'explained' as 'complimented'....

There were other indications that something was very, very wrong here. Like the fact that the feminine arms that had braked his fall with less strength than he'd been expecting, meaning he'd banged his chest hard against the floor...

...which was funny, because his chest should have still been a good foot above the floor, consider the way he'd landed.

Louie rolled over onto his ass - and even that was strange, his ass feeling as if he'd rolled onto a pair of small throw pillows that were somehow transmitting the feel of the floor underneath them - while a heavy, somehow living weight shifted on his chest - and the sensation of movement came not only through his chest, but the weight that was on his chest...

...which was pretty reasonable, actually, because a instinctive glance downwards revealed that he now boasted a huge, incredibly spherical pair of...

"Boobies!" Louie said, still in that high-pitched, feminine tone. "I.. I got really big boobies!"

Something about the way he'd phrased that sounded wrong to his ear - but, for the life of him, he couldn't quite put his finger on it...

Perhaps 'For the life of her' would be more accurate though - since the body he was staring down at was most definitely feminine, as far as she could see - and she could see a lot, since she was 'dressed' in an outfit that left very little indeed to the imagination...

Hot pink platform shoes with nine-inch tall stiletto heels and two ankles straps a piece.

White nylons enclosing long, shapely legs all the way up to her creamy new thighs - thighs that were framing a small patch of platinum-blond pubic hair, shaved into the shape of a heart.

A heart that was surrounding what was most definitely the folds of a tight, wet little cunt.

Not that it was easy to see that cunt - because there was something blocking her downward view - or rather, two 'somethings' - her breasts.

Her massive, enormous, incredibly firm JJJ-cup beauties, each tipped with a wonderfully sensitive, fully engorged nipple, just...

"..begging to be licked and sucked..." She murmured, not even hearing herself - or really noticing that she'd lifted her tiny little hands to caress her massive new endowments with a slow, steady stroke that bespoke years of familiarity that she shouldn't have possessed. "Big ol' nippies on big, round boobies... giggle..."

With a strange movement that might have looked awkward if it weren't for the familiarity with which she performed it, Lulu worked against the massive drag of her fantastic boobies to pull herself upright, now balancing easily atop the heels that had caused her fall in the first place...

...and, with a steadily dropping IQ, she wasn't nearly smart enough to realize that standing easily atop the heels was something that should have bothered her - much less the short, 'sissy' stride she used when she began to walk towards the kitchen, her full, hot- pink-glossed lips curved into a huge, brainless grin that was mirrored in her huge, empty blue eyes.

"Gee - I took a fall... giggle" she said to herself, not realizing that she was vocalizing what little was going through her mind as she jiggled and swayed into the kitchenette, hands still lightly playing with her massive new endowments. "I wonder how that happened..."

The really strange thing was - she hadn't forgotten who she really was. She was aware that she'd been male only a few moments ago - but was simply too stupid for it to have any real impact, not letting her 'worry' about it. In fact, at that very instant her IQ had passed the 92 mark, and was still trending downwards as she went to the fridge and pulled out a can of pop.

By the time she puzzled out the pull-tab, her IQ had swept past 85, still falling...

...so it's not surprising that she didn't think about the fact that, while the physical layout of her apartment remained the same, the decor had changed radically.

As a matter of fact, her apartment looked like it had been decorated by Barbie on Valentine's day. Red, pink and white was the scheme, and - if you ignored the profusion of high heels, sex toys, and pornographically-inspired articles of clothing strewn about - looked like it might belong to a particularly 'Girlie' eleven year old girl.

This was not to say that that she didn't notice the changes - it's just that, with a severely limited mental capacity, it just didn't mean anything to her - just like the changes to her own body and psyche. Everything had been one way a while ago, and now everything was different - but what little mind she had was focused on each instant as it occurred, leaving no real time for introspection or prognostication.

Then again - Louie-slash-Lulu had never really be one to think about consequences or causality as a man, either - this was just taken to extremes...

Wiggling, jiggling and swaying, she turned and headed back towards the living-room of her tiny, girlish apartment... and even though the hand not holding the can of pop was still fondling her huge boobies, she didn't think anything in particularly about the fact that they were slowly swelling under her gradually lengthening nails - no more than she noticed the other changes going on in her body...

...and mind...

...and...

* * * * *

"Okay - got the cash?" Dave asked as they approached the door to apartment 2B. "He likes to get paid up-front for his work."

"Sure." Mark responded, easily - though, out of instinct, the skinny black man reached into the pocket of his jeans to make sure he had the money they'd brought to pay the hacker for this month's 'Top 100' - hacked passwords for a hundred high-end sex sites.

"What the...?" Mark said, eyes widening - but while the tone was one of shock, it wasn't shocked dismay...

...because, while he did find the money still safely shoved into his pants, his hands also touched something else. Something that was supposed to be in his pants - but not nearly as far down into his pants.

Namely, his cock - which, unnoticed, seemed to have at least tripled in size, though still remaining flaccid.

"What...?" Dave asked, concerned, thinking it was a problem with the money - but even as he was asking, he was knocking on the door of the apartment - which meant that there was no time from Mark to explain before the door swung open, and...

The two men stared, jaws dropping, at the... individual who'd opened the door. It was most definitely a woman. Of that, there could be no doubt at all.

Both men, as if somehow mildly telepathic from being best friends since grade school, did the exact-same 'once over' double-take - for the third time.

They both started at the floor - or rather, at the footwear that was on the floor.

The hot-pink platform pumps. The ones with the eight-inch high inward-sloping platform, which meant that the part of the rounded- toe shoe that actually met the floor was scarcely larger than a quarter, flaring outwards as it rose upwards to the still-diminutive upper section, which was clear plastic - as was the impossibly tall, thin sixteen-inch high heel that each shoe boasted, matching the six clear-plastic straps that started at the ankle of each leg and step-laddeered upwards over the white lace nylons that enclosed the longest, shapeliest pair of 'Dancer's Legs' that either of the men had ever seen.

Each of those lacy leggings was topped by a white-lace elasticized section that boasted a big, pink satin bow at the back, each bow nearly two inches across, and about a third of that high.

Big, pink satin bows - that matched the ones that graced each of her incredibly slender wrists, as well as the smaller ones that ran every inch or so down the thick French-braid ponytail of platinum-blond hair that hung from her head, the color of the bows exactly matching the shade of lipstick that painted her full, grinning lips, nestled under a tiny snub of a nose that was flanked by two huge, empty blue eyes.

Not that either man particularly noticed her eyes. In fact, each man had a hard time getting that high up, since it required going on up past the massive, incredible rack that the woman boasted.

Her breasts were, quite simply, enormous - each one roughly the size of one of those really big inflatable beach-balls you could buy. Instead of the multihued plastic of those inflatable objects, however, this woman's breasts shared the same incredibly smooth, milky flesh as the rest of her body - excepting her huge, engorged nipples, which seemed to naturally share the same hot-pink shade as her ribbons and shoes.

Almost lost in the shadow of those enormous, globular chest-melons was a tiny little wisp of a waist, seeming much too tiny in diameter to support her hyper-exaggerated hourglass figure - and hourglass it was, since her hips were wide and womanly, so much so that they passed right into the realm of 'caricature', right along with her outrageously oversized breasts and cartoonishly 'Bimbo'- like facial features.

Wide, rounded hips that supported and equally exaggerated ass, incredibly firm and round and taut - and, fronting that ass, a tight little cunt...

...that was literally sopping wet, leaving beads of dew-like moisture in the neatly trimmed patch of pubic hair that surrounded it.

Pubic hair trimmed into the shape of a heart - one that perfectly matched the other 'hearts' she boasted, the platinum-blond of her hair matching the 'white gold' that each heart she wore was made of.

The Three hearts of descending size that made up each of the earrings she wore. The chain-linked hearts that formed the necklace she wore.

Even the small little hearts that hung from her pierced nipples.

In other words, the woman standing in the doorway was an over-exaggerated specimen of femininity - one that topped six feet without the incredibly high heels.

One so freakishly feminine that neither of the men would have found her ridiculously proportioned form the least bit sexy...

...if not for the fact that she was also pumping out enough pheromones to give an entire monastery erections.

It certainly worked on the two men standing in the door. One black, one white, one short and one tall - and yet the bulges that formed rapidly in their crotches were damned near identical...

Massive.

Since each of the men now sported what looked like a six-cell Mag-Lite shoved into their pants, the huge-breasted specimen of femininity couldn't help but notice it, her vapid blue eyes sliding from one massively bulging crotch to the other.

"Oh... What big cocks..." She said - no, she giggled, her words actually musical and syncopated in brainless laughter as she stared mindlessly at the massive erections.

Other than her comment, she made no move at all to do anything else, neither inviting them in, nor making any reference at all to the fact that she was standing half-naked in front of two very, very aroused men. In other circumstances, the men might have come to the conclusion that she had no real interest in them...

...but hormones are a foreign substance in the blood stream, acting in many ways like alcohol - and the young men's bodies were pumping enough hormones into their bloodstream to get them royally 'drunk'.

"Oh, baby..." Mark said, eyes wide and hands lightly stoking his bulging crotch. "You're going to get fucked like you've never been fucked before..."

"That sounds fun...!" She giggled in response to the mental image that conjured up - not that it was necessarily the one the two guys thought it was...

...not that they cared.

They stepped forward, and she took a few jiggling, hip-swiveling steps back, her brainless smile still in place, seeming to say she didn't mind the men letting themselves into her apartment.

"Come to papa..." Dave breathed, his broad hands flexing eagerly as he approached, the height difference putting him at just about eye-level with her massive breasts.

She just stared at him, stupidly - not that she had another look handy in her repertoire. Basically, she looked like she couldn't quite comprehend what was going on...

Dave reached out and grabbed her tits.

"Oh - that feels so good...!" She said, immediately - a simple declaration of what ran through her mind, a statement of physical sensation - but, of course, Dave took it the way he wanted to take it, and he continued to kneed her massive breasts - at least, as much of them as he could fit into his hands at one time.

Mike, meanwhile, scooted around the two of them, hurriedly stripping as he walked over to the pink-and-white bed against the wall. Naked, he stood up on the bed, his massive cock hard and throbbing as he made eager 'come here' gestures at Dave over the huge-breasted bimbo's shoulder.

Dave complied, pushing her backwards until the back of her long legs touched the bed.

"Bend over, baby..." Mike hissed from behind her - and she complied, as if knowing what he had and mind and willingly agreeing. It never occurred to the guys that maybe she was just doing what she was told, without recognizing it's significance...

...then Mike grabbed her hips, pulled her slightly back, and slammed his own hips forward, burying his huge cock into her cunt.

"Oh, God - you're huge cock is filling my tight, wet cunt!" She cried - which was a statement of fact, but could be easily misconstrued as something else. In any case, Mike was already thrusting his massive organ into her, hard and fast, in steady rhythm...

...and since the sensations were, in fact, sexually pleasing, she began to make sounds of pleasure - indicating her physical status, of course, not her emotional one - but the guys didn't know that...

"You want it harder, slut...?" Mike gasped out.

"Oh.. God.. No...!" She gasped back, her huge eyes unable to get any wider anyway, her musical voice simply unable to reflect anything but a brainless giggle, despite whatever pleasure - or pain - she might be feeling. "You're so big...!"

Mike took that as compliment, rather than complaint.

Grabbing her head in his hands - which took a stretch - Dave yanked her further over, bending her incredibly tiny, flexible waist until her massive boobs were pressed against her own thighs...

...and her mouth was just about level with the massive cock that thrust outwards and upwards when Dave unzipped his pants. "Isn't the biggest damn cock you've ever seen...?" He asked.

"Yes..." She answered - and, of course, the thought that she might simply be too stupid to do anything but answer the question truthfully never entered Dave's mind.

"A cock this big should have the fat, cock-sucking lips of a slut around it, shouldn't it...?" He teased her, waving the cock near her mouth...

...and when she agreed with him, gasping between moans of physical pleasure, he didn't consider that, maybe, she was answering a question without even thinking to apply the situation to herself. Even a complete idiot could figure out that having a huge cock waved in you face and that question asked meant a specific thing...

...unless, of course, the complete idiot also never consider the thought that she might find herself in that situation, after giving what might just be the simple answer that, yes, there was a part of her that thought the same way he did about what massive cocks were good for - in general, rather than specific.

Since none of this occurred to the very horny young man, he simply shoved his cock into her mouth, cramming it between her full, gloss-pink lips, which - given the girth of the monster organ - couldn't help but be tightly wrapped around his cock. Since her hands were braced on her knees to keep her from keeling over, he was even considerate to start bucking his hips, saving her the trouble of involving herself in the blow-job by the simple expedient of face-fucking her.

"That's it, baby..." Dave moaned, feeling intense pleasure from her stretched lips around his cock, the shaft sliding over her cramped tongue, and the head actually entering the back of a throat that simply wasn't equipped with a gag reflex. He pushed harder - and his cock actually slid into her throat, making speech impossible for either of them as her well-muscled throat closed tightly around his cock, like a second cunt...

...and, coincidentally, keeping her from complaining about what was happening to her.

Again, the thought that such an obvious living fuck-toy might want to complain about two huge-penises men fucking her silly never crossed either of the men's minds.

Instinctively, the two men shifted rhythms until they met one that best suited both their needs - and in doing so, had her huge body rocking in such a way that somebody who forgot to consider that she'd have enough problems just balancing in that position, much less struggling might think she was cooperating eagerly with the two men.

"Ughhh !" Mike cried, orgasming, his huge cock actually filling her cock so tightly, and generating so much warm, thick cum that he slipped outwards under he back-was, splattering half his load all over her huge, round bubble-butt, leaving this globs tracing down her long legs...

...while Dave, whose orifice had more room, pumped a load of warm cum directly into her stomach before yanking his huge cock out of her throat...

...and she dropped to the floor on her back, legs spread, massive bust jiggling and swaying.

To the two men, who found to their happy, horny, and almost as brain-dead delight, it looked like an invitation - not like a woman who'd lost her balance, and whose legs were spread because her stretched cunt would just hurt to much to press her legs together...

...and when she didn't complain at all, only making giggling little sounds in her throat as Dave dropped between her spread knees and slammed his huge, ready cock into her cunt, while Mike slammed onto her torso, burying his also-ready organ between her massive boobs, it didn't occur to them that maybe Dave's throat-fucking had hurt her vocal chords in some way, leaving her unable to make any sounds except moans and grunts and sighs, all in high-pitched giggly tones that sounded happy.

It certainly didn't occur to any of them to look over at the computer, with it's unblinking electronic eye taking all of this in...

...while, on screen, just below the short description Louie had typed in to test the concept-recognition software of the site, a filename appeared, consisting solely of the description Louie had entered and an extension:

An_Utter_Fucking_Bimbo.mpeg

...and, below that, the matches-found changed from a '0' to a '1'.

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

Summary: She was a dark and stormy Knight...

Hackett's Dictum

By Gunslinger

Her face darkened with fury, Dr. Teri Knight stormed through the halls of the Baldrige Medical Research Center, her hazel eyes burning. Those few researchers unfortunate to cross her path took one look at her countenance and wisely found pressing business elsewhere.

Her long stride quickly carried her to the innocuous looking door whose smoked glass partition read 'Nicholas T. Reilly, Psy.D., B.Sc., M.S., Ph.D. - Dept. Of Behavioral Sciences'. Without breaking stride, Teri's hand lashed out and barely managed to turn the knob before the bulk of her body reached the threshold, causing the unoffending door to blast open as if with an explosive charge. It rebounded off the wall on the other side, the glass partition dissolving into a spray of silvery shards that rained onto the deep-pile carpeting.

Nick Reilly, having poured himself a coffee from the Melita machine on the credenza, was halfway back to his desk when Teri burst through the door, and so lacked the protection of a thick piece of furniture between himself and the enraged Amazonian.

"Is this some kind of JOKE?!" Teri bellowed impressively. She threw a bound document that unerringly intersected with Nick's coffee mug. The steaming beverage scalded the psychologist as the mug and document succumbed to gravity and dived for the floor. They barely hit when Teri's final steps left her looming over Nick, murder in her eyes.

The two antagonists couldn't have been more mismatched. Teri, tall for a man, much less a woman, possessed a muscular physique that strained the seams of her masculine-cut suit and lab coat. A strong jaw and Roman nose presided under her shaggy cut of straw blonde hair. Her somewhat stunned target, Nick, was a slender, diminutive man with regular, strong features and a shock of rich, red hair that revealed his Irish ancestry before his richly accented voice confirmed it.

Perhaps the only thing they did share in common was the fact that both scientists enjoyed having sex with women. Ironically, it was the lesbian who had the more active sex life of the two.

"I see you got a copy of my research paper." Nick said mildly, his pale blue eyes blinking through a pair of horn-rimmed glasses.

"Female Homosexual Re-orientation Via Behavior Modification: A Cure for Lesbianism?" Teri snarled as the shorter researcher took a step back. "Yes, I did receive a copy."

Nick prudently retreated behind his desk. "There's no need to take any of this personally, my dear Doctor Knight", Nick sniffed. "The paper merely outlines the steps of my program to cure feminine homosexuality in those unfortunate enough to be afflicted with it."

Teri braced her arms on his desk and leaned forward. "AFFLICTED with it? It's a choice of lifestyle, NOT a disease!"

Nick calmly removed his glasses and began to clean them. "I'm afraid I quite disagree. In Britain, it still remains in the texts as a mental health problem. Agreed, it is not usually referred to as such these days, but it is still listed none the less. In fact, your own American Psychiatric Association held the same view until the early '70s, when they - regrettably - decided to strike it from the books."

"Look, you pompous, arrogant ass. I read your little paper, and I'm shocked. The actual content aside, that is the most unethical program I have ever seen. Not only does it use brainwashing and torture techniques, but as a sample 'target sexual object', the man that the hypothetical patient would be brainwashed into 'wanting' is practically a letter-perfect description of you!"

Nick shrugged unsympathetically. "SOME specific male archetype must be used - I see no problem with using myself for this." Replacing his glasses, Nick leaned forward and stared balefully at Teri. "In any event, it does not matter - not only have I submitted it already, but my grant has been approved, and I'm all ready set up to begin a test program as soon as I can get a volunteer." He grinned maliciously. "Perhaps, in the interest of science, you'd like to be the first lesbian I cure."

For a brief, endless second, Teri was positive she was going to ram the little weasel's teeth down his throat. Hanging onto her raging temper - barely - she turned and stalked out of the office, Nick's mocking laughter trailing after her.

* * * * *

Carla Ludwick sighed as she came through the door of the apartment. "Well, he wasn't lying," Teri's long-time lover said ruefully. "He's got a lab set up out in the boonies, all set up and ready to go. He's resigned his fellowship at the Center, and is heading down there next Wednesday."

Unlike Teri, who held a Psychology degree in addition to her M.D., and was therefore provisionally a member of the Center's Physiology Department, Carla hadn't received a copy of the paper. Being a member of the Pharmacological and Organic Chemistry departments, the first she'd heard of it was Teri's ravings at lunch. But since Carla had the better contacts over at Administration, she'd been the one to confirm Nick's claims.

"I can't believe the little scumbag got a grant." Teri said. She shook her head, "Who'd agree to fund THAT project?"

Carla sighed. "There's still plenty of assholes out there, Teri," she said, wrapping her arms around the taller woman. "and that includes RICH assholes."

"Cure lesbians." Teri snorted, returning her more feminine lover's embrace. "I wish I could 'cure' that little rat's heterosexual tendencies. See how he'd like it."

Carla laughed shortly. "Hey, good idea. The way the labs set up now, you COULD run a guy through the program. It's designed to make a lesbian not only sexually desire men, but also acquire stereotypical feminine tendencies. Hell, the way Nick has it set up, a guy would turn into text book transsexual..."

Her voice died in her throat as she felt Teri's muscular body go tense. She looked up to find her Amazonian lover smiling evilly down at her. "Oh, really?" she purred softly, showing her teeth in a grin that held no humor at all.

Slowly, Carla returned the same smile. "Yeah, really..." Thoughtfully, she picked up Teri's copy of the paper. "And I think I a few of our friends will be willing to lend a hand - in the interest of 'science', of course." She moved towards the phone, only to be stopped by Teri.

"Just a minute." She said, eyes narrowed. "I have to call in a favor from an old...friend first." With that cryptic remark, she picked up the phone and dialed a long-distance number.

Confused by Teri's odd comment, Carla listened to Teri's end of the conversation - and slowly, the sharp-edged smile crept back onto her face, and she chuckled cruelly.

* * * * *

Nick straightened with a grimace, one hand on the small of his back, and closed the trunk of his Cadillac. He'd had to work for an extra two hours to clear up the paperwork he'd let slide before he'd officially been finished at the Center. Then, after a hour break for dinner, it had taken another two hours to pack up his things and transfer them to his car. But, at last, he was finished, and ready to head home for a well deserved nights rest.

Then, after a day of relaxing, he'd head up to his new lab, and begin his search for 'volunteers'. Nick had to smile at that particular euphemism. As that muscle-bound lez Teri had demonstrated this afternoon, most dykes didn't WANT to be cured. So, Nick was going to find a couple of wealthy, powerful men who's daughter had slipped off the 'straight and narrow'. Such men could afford lawyers good enough to get the wayward daughters declared non compos mentos and committed into his care. He'd guarantee their fathers to cure them of their perversion - but of course, the fact that he was going to include fucking the girls brains out as part of his 'treatment' would be left unmentioned. And with the mental conditioning, the girls wouldn't say anything about it either.

With a half-grin on his face, Nick unlocked the door to his car. He was so engrossed in his little fantasy, that he failed to sense the darker shadow that separated from those at the edge of the parking lot. Swiftly, the dark figure moved forward.

Before Nick had a chance to reach, a gloved hand clamped over his mouth, and Nick felt the prick of a hypodermic needle enter his buttock. Seconds later, everything went dark, and the last thing Nick heard was the sound of his keys slipping from his unresponsive hand and clattering onto the pavement.

Moving quickly, the muscular man, dressed in Army Surplus fatigues dyed black, scooped up the keys while manhandling Nick's limp form into the passenger's seat. He climbed into the car and shut the door, extinguishing the dome light. Before starting the car, the man quickly pulled off his shirt, revealing a white T-shirt emblazoned with a sports logo. He reversed the removed shirt and pulled it back on. A few hours work, done months ago for another job, had made the shirt reversible, with the inside - now facing out - a reasonable facsimile of a sports jacket. As his final precaution, the man dribbled an airline bottle of Scotch on Nick's lips and shirt, completing his cover story in the unlikely event an officer pulled him over.

Disposing of the tiny plastic bottle, the man dropped the car into drive and pulled out of the lot. Maintaining the speed limit, he checked a notepad with directions written on it, and turned the metallic gray Caddy onto the highway.

* * * * *

Teri looked down at Nick's naked form with satisfaction. Her old 'acquaintance' - a mob 'fixer' she'd supplied anti-impotence drugs to on the sly - had come through beautifully, keeping the diminutive scientist under the entire ride up to his own lab, in the foothills of the Appalachian Mountains. Now, Nick's unresisting body had been strapped into 'the Chair', a custom made device of his own design. And Teri, plus the dozen odd women who'd also taken 'leave of absence' from the Center, were about to turn this lab, and its technology, back on its creator.

She turned to Carla, who was idly brushing her long black hair with her left hand, while her right worked with a medical calculator - actually a small computer - to work out correct dosages for Nick's body weight. "You almost ready, Carla?"

Carla nodded absently, jotting down a row of figures. "Just finished...now." She said, smiling triumphantly. "Let's get started, shall we?"

With a smooth motion, Teri slid into the pedestal mounted chair in front of an elaborate computer console. The computer was already up and running, and Carla leaned over her lover's shoulder as Teri brought up the main menu on the touch screen.

"All right," Teri told Carla, waving at the screen. "Our dear Dr. Reilly has already programmed the complete program, step by step, into the computer, using a generic model. All we have to do is change the specifics, then from that point on, follow the instructions the computer gives us."

Carla nodded. "Seems easy enough."

Teri deftly prodded the screen, running through user-friendly menus until the screens she wanted came up.

"First things first - our 'subject'. We take a full body photo of Nick and place it in the scanner..." she said, matching actions to words. "...like so, then we digitize it. This is the 'Start' image, his current 'self visualization.' Next, we take a copy of the image into this program here..."

With surprising dexterity for such large hands, Teri pulled the image up in the specialized graphics editing program. Quickly, using many of the numerous pre-sets, Teri altered the photo to a more feminine image without really altering the basic form."

Carla blinked. "Well, who knew that Nick would make such a good woman?" she asked rhetorically. With just the minor modifications the program introduced - mainly a more feminine hairstyle, make-up, and redistribution of fat from the waist to the ass and chest - Nick's photo was surprisingly feminine. Since he was slender and somewhat short to begin with, the altered photo looked like a slim-hipped young woman, aside from the penis dangling between thighs digitally altered to look hairless.

"Next, we alter the 'target sexual object' parameters" Teri said, smiling. "He entered his own data as the default. I don't want him horny for some techno-weenie. So, a little editing of the stats..." she typed rapidly "...and when we're done, he - or rather, she, will be attracted to stereotypically 'Manly' men."

Rubbing her hands, Teri punched in the final few pieces of data needed by the machine, then saved the information, and with barely constrained glee, gently tapped her finger against the on-screen button marked 'begin program'.

The screen flashed, and in the bottom left a time popped into existence reading 'Elapsed Time: Day 1 00:00:01'. The seconds swept upwards as the screen filled with text.

Step 1: Surgical Implantation a. Subdural Hormonal Regulators - Implanting

The two women watched with fascination as two robotic arms moved from the sides of the Chair and positioned themselves at Nick's nipples. Tiny lasers sprung to life, making small, clean incisions at the edge of the areolas. Tiny 'fingers' then moved into place, inserting soft oblong 'packages' under the flesh.

The implants consisted of several items. The first was filters, designed to remove testosterone from the blood stream. There was also several artificial glands that produced estrogen, progesterone, and spironolactone, and provided measured doses into the 'cleansed' bloodstream. One of the alterations Teri had made to the program was the inclusion of an extra artificial gland, placed directly into each nipple, greatly enlarging Nick nipples. The extra gland would dump large amounts of hormones and chemical 'aphrodisiacs' into the blood stream whenever the nipple was stimulated.

Finished the procedure, the arms' laser's focused to an infinitesimally small beam and closed the wounds perfectly before withdrawing. Due to the extra mass implanted, two firm, almost perfectly spherical domes thrust from Nick's slightly hairy chest - almost perfect A-cup breasts, topped with large, dark nipples. Teri and Carla shared a look of satisfaction.

The screen had changed, the word after step A going from 'Implanting' to 'Complete', and step B - Subdural Transponder - popping up.

Again, the Chair did the 'dirty work', implanting a tiny device in Nick's back, where the spine met the brainstem. Powered by the body's own electrical impulses, the tiny device was electronically linked to the main computer.

Satisfied that the surgical steps were complete, Teri acknowledged the computer, which brought up the next screen. Step 2: Aversion Therapy

Waving two assistants over, Teri unstrapped Nick and lifted him onto a gurney, which the other two women wheeled away. "Well, he'll sleep for a couple hours yet. What say we grab some lunch?" Teri suggested.

Carla eyed her suggestively. "Maybe after" she said, huskily, her fingers playing with the buttons on her blouse. "Thinking about what we're doing to him is getting me all worked up..."

Teri smiled hungrily. "Me too," she whispered, and picked up her unresisting friend and carried her into their private office. Nick, being a psychiatrist, had furnished it with the inevitable couch, and Teri intended to put it to good use.

* * * * *

Nick came back to consciousness slowly, like an exhausted diver swimming for the surface. Twice he rose far enough to almost reach the sunlit glow of the waves before sliding back into the depths. The third time, he made it, his eyes fluttering open as his confused mind tried to recall where he was, and how he'd gotten there.

"Well, well, well. Sleeping Beauty awakes." A sarcastic voice echoed from a speaker in the corner of the room, directly below a camera. That placed Nick instantly. Having designed the lab, he recognized one of the treatment rooms - a cell, actually - that he'd designed.

He recognized the voice, as well, and his memory of the abduction came back.

"Teri, you little bitch, what in Hades do you think you are doing?" he asked angrily, sitting up on the bed. The movement caused an odd sensation in his chest, and he glanced down.

He gasped at the sight of a pair of firm, small breasts with thick nipples sprouting from his narrow chest. Hesitantly, his hands rose to touch them. The instant his fingers made contact with the enlarged nipples, the glands inside dumped a 'hormone cocktail' into his system causing him to flush as a slow wave of chemically induced pleasure swept through his system.

"Good Lord!..." Nick gasped, yanking his hands away. He felt...aroused, yet his limp penis didn't so much as twitch. "Tsk, tsk. You don't even recognize the handiwork of your own designs." Teri's voice chided. "Poor little Nikki."

Nick paled as he realized what was in store for him. "No!" He shouted at the camera. "You can't do this..." Teri's voice cut him off, as cold and unyielding as a glacier. "I can. And I will."

Nick glared impotently at the security camera, then looked around at the gilded cage he'd constructed.

Designed to look like a moderately expensive apartment, the suite held a few design oddities. The first, of course, was the camera system. The entire lab compound was wired with dozens of cameras that covered every square inch, and were tied into the main computer.

Then there were the doors - every single door in the building was a hydraulically operated sliding door, tied into the main computer. There was no way of forcing or unlocking any of the doors if they were closed to a person by computer command.

The next noticeable design feature was the fact that the entire lab was heavily mirrored. A profusion of unbreakable mirrors, most of the floor-to-ceiling, abounded everywhere.

The final, least noticeable design feature was the fact that the computer tie-in controlled ALL 'housekeeping' functions - right down to the bathroom fixtures. Unless a person was given computer clearance to do so, he - or she - couldn't even go to the bathroom.

A quick look in the closets and dressers revealed much what he expected - all clothing in the suite was feminine to one degree or another, and looked to be roughly in his size. He shut the dresser drawer with a bang, and looked at the mirror that sat behind it.

Angrily, Nick surveyed the small breasts riding high on his chest in the mirror, with their disproportionately large - hell, huge - nipples. "Like them, Nikki?" Teri's voice taunted him from the speaker.

"Stop calling me that, you numb-assed dyke." Nick snapped back angrily.

A wall of pain enveloped him. Agony roared through his nerves as he collapsed, twitching, to the soft carpet, his brain threatening to overload.

Finally, the pain vanished, leaving him gasping for breath.

"Now, that's not ladylike speech, Nikki dear. In case you haven't figured it out, I've programmed the computer to use the subdural transponder to punish you for being aggressive or abusive. I'd suggest you avoid that in the future. And as to your name, from now on Nikki IS your name, and you had better get used to responding to it."

With great effort of will, Nick managed to hold back the curses that sprang to his lips. As much as he wanted to curse this bitch to hell, he couldn't stand another session of 'punishment' like the last one. He settled for angry silence instead.

Teri's amplified voice laughed. "That's right, Nikki - if you can't say something nice, don't say anything at all. I'm glad to see you're a quick learner."

Nick glowered at the camera, hate and shame eating a burning pit in his gut, knowing that her ability to torment him had been provided by - himself.

"Oh, Nikki darling, I want you to listen up - this is very important." Teri's voice cooed from the speaker. Nick was quickly coming to hate the sound of her voice.

He was surprised when another voice came over the speaker. It was a bright contralto, rich and feminine with a hint of huskiness. "My name is Nikki Rielly" the voice said, sounding delightful with its bright Irish accent. "This is my speaking voice from now on."

Teri's hated voice replaced it. "That, my dear Nikki, is a computer simulation of what you should be capable of imitating. Rather cute, isn't it? Well, you had better learn to imitate it quickly - because from now on, it's the only voice that I, my staff, and most importantly, the computer will accept from you. Oh, and learn how to be polite - you'll need to."

With that, everything - literally - shut off. The room was dropped into pitch blackness as the hum of the ventilation sighed to a stop.

In the well of darkness, Nick set his jaw stubbornly, and carefully felt his way to the bed. Easing himself up, he stretched out. The dyke could do what she wanted, but he refused to play her game.

He changed his mind within two hours. The boredom of laying in the dark, unable to sleep, was bad enough. But slowly his bladder began to signal a need to empty itself. For several minutes, as the pressure grew, he considered just pissing in the corner, but he couldn't make himself do it, knowing he'd have to give in sooner or later, or live in a room full of his own piss and shit.

"Lights on." He finally gave in, trying to match his voice to the simulated one he'd heard. Even to his own ears it sounded false.

For the next half hour he struggled to get the pitch and tone just right, while the pressure in his bladder painfully grew. He was sure he was finally matching the sound close enough, but still nothing happened, and he was quickly becoming desperate. Then he remembered Teri's last remark.

"Lights, please come on?" He asked in a near perfect imitation of that delightfully exotic, damningly feminine Irish voice, and was rewarded with the room's light snapping back on. Swiftly, he made his way to the bathroom, once more politely asking the door to open in the same voice.

Once in the bathroom, he quickly found that Teri had covered all the bases. The toilet seat cover had been spring-loaded to snap shut. The only way to urinate was to sit down and piss, like a woman. Face burning, and struggling to contain several choice expletives, Nick emptied his bladder.

He forgot for a second when he finished, and ordered the toilet to flush using his male voice. When nothing happened, he sighed, and tried again in his newly acquired feminine voice, and instantly the toilet flushed. Red-faced at the shame of giving in, Nick went back into his room.

The rest of the day was uneventful. Teri left him alone in peace, allowing him to semi-relax. The television, like everything else, was voice controlled, and required him to speak in his feminine voice to use it. The same was true of nearly everything in the apartment. When six o'clock rolled around, the small phone beside his bed rang, the kitchen calling to ask what he wanted for dinner.

He goofed twice. He used his male voice - and they hung up. When they called back, he used his female voice to order pizza and a beer - only to be told that such a meal wasn't 'lady-like', before they hung up again. The third time, he got it right - a salad, a small steak with a backed potato, and a glass of white wine. If it wasn't for his gnawing hunger - having nothing to eat for the past 24 hours - he would have refused to answer the phone after they hung up the first time. But once more, a simple biological imperative broke his commitment to not giving in, and as he ate his meal, Nick burned with secret shame.

* * * * *

The days that followed were a kind of living hell for Nick/Nikki. Despite his continuously renewed pledge not to give in, day by day Teri and Carla eroded into him. With Teri taking the day shift, and Carla the night, they slowly chipped away at his masculinity piece by piece.

At the end of the first day, Nick first learned of the new nightly routine he'd follow. Tired, he'd rolled into bed - only to be jerked out again by slow, pulsing waves of dull pain. Not agonizing, but still very painful.

That's when he learned what they wanted from him. Every night, he was to do two things. The first was to take the plastic, one-use syringes they'd stocked in his bathroom, and inject measured amounts of destabilized fat cells into his breasts, ass, and lips. The fat cells would set overnight, slightly expanding the areas with each dose.

Secondly, they turned off the heat in the room and turned the air-conditioning on full-blast - unless he climbed into the huge vat of skin cream in the bathroom, and soak himself completely in it for twenty minutes.

He refused at first. He huddled on the bed, his body shivering from equal bouts of pain and cold. As the hours passed by, the temperature continued to drop, and the levels of pain slowly increased.

Finally, at half-past midnight, half-delirious from pain and mostly numb from cold, Nick staggered out of bed. It took him twenty minutes to force his pain-wracked mind to recall why he couldn't open the bathroom door, finally managing to politely ask in a feminine voice.

Numbly, he injected himself as proscribed, climbed into the vat, and sighed as he felt the cream - kept luke-warm by heaters, enfolded his frozen skin. Twenty minutes later, he climbed out, rinsed under a warm shower, dried himself, and collapsed on the rapidly warming bed, drifting into a deep sleep, during which he had nightmares of being chased by a muscular giantess, while he slowly shrank.

As the days followed one another, so did the 'lessons'. The second day, the computer was instructed to keep him in low-level pain until he used a depilatory to remove all hair below his eyebrows, except for a patch at his crotch. He endured that for almost six hours before giving in. That night, he resisted his 'nightly routine' for two and half hours before giving in. Through the day, anger and shame warred with despair and fear as his emotions, heightened and confused by the new hormones flooding his body, whipsawed his emotions back and forth.

Day three, and the he was advised that the computer would provide him with pain whenever his now-perpetually limp penis was visible. This time it took only minutes before he used a pair of frilly panties to keep his flaccid cock tucked up between his legs, leaving the crotch smooth and feminine looking - especially with his slowly swelling breasts on his hairless chest. A few painful shocks when he forgot quickly got him into the habit of ensuring his useless cock was never visible. This time, his nightly resistance was token - a mere forty-five minutes. When he finally curled up in bed, he helplessly cried himself to sleep, great racking sobs he couldn't control. He didn't even realize he was instinctively crying in high-pitched feminine sobs.

On the third day, he was left somewhat to himself, the only edict from 'on high' being that he watched soap operas during the afternoon. While they could - and did - ensure that the TV was on, and set to the right channel, during this time, he stared at the TV blindly, not paying any attention - until boredom overtook him, and almost helplessly, he began to actively watch the programs, his brain starved for activity. What he didn't know was that the shows had been 'doctored' - heavily laced with subliminal messages that, in conjunction with drugs in his system, caused him to respond with pleasure at the sight of handsome men, and negatively, almost enviously, of the women. That night he made no effort to avoid his nightly routine, distastefully injecting a little more fat into his slowly expanding bust, ass and lips. Thanks to hypnotic programming, he didn't consciously remember his extremely vivid, erotic dreams - fantasies - featuring a fully female him and several of the men from the TV.

* * * * *

"How's our little 'project' doing tonight?" Carla asked Teri as the muscular woman rose from the chair. Teri stretched out the kinks in her muscles and smiled.

"Tonight, he didn't even hesitate to use the syringes and cream vat." She reported with satisfaction. Carla smiled. "Great! We're really moving along."

Teri laughed. "That's probably because he thinks he's 'humoring' us, just sliding by. He's too impressed with his own genius to think anyone could improve upon it."

Carla laughed and slipped into the vacated chair to take the night duty. "Yeah. He came up with this project completely by himself. If he'd consulted a pharmacologist - like me - he would have learned that his basic program, while sound, could be reinforced. With, oh, say somatic hypnotic drugs."

"Like the ones we're slipping into his food?" Teri asked, feigning surprise. "Amazing. Of course, he also missed the power of subliminal messages while the subject is sleeping."

Carla smiled and held up a CD. "What, like the ones recorded on this?" she asked, imitating Teri's surprised innocence. She slipped the CD into the player and turned it on.

The two women looked at each other, then broke out laughing. "The poor bastard." Teri chuckled. "He has no idea."

Carla chuckled back. "And not knowing it's happening, makes it even MORE effective." She agreed.

* * * * *

Nick awoke the fourth day with a now familiar sense of dread. Sliding off the bed, he stretched and looked critically in the mirror, dismayed with what he saw.

Having been jolted out of sleep once when his panties had slipped during the night and given the ever-vigilant computer a hint of his flaccid masculinity, Nick had taken to wearing a black lace bodysuit to bed, whose tight tension kept his cock safely hidden. Now, surveying himself in the mirror, he felt the familiar shame well up.

The nightly injections were, themselves, quite small. Nevertheless, they were accumulative. Already, his ass, which received the largest nightly dose, was considerably fuller, becoming decidedly shapely. The female hormones were aiding that, redistributing fat cells from his shrinking waist to his ass and - as much as he hated to say it - HIS tits, which were firm and round, and now nudging a B-cup.

His lips were also fuller. His face had been strong featured to begin with, with a straight nose and high cheeks over a rounded chin, but hadn't been particularly masculine. His eyes were slightly too large and his nose slightly too small. Now, with his fuller lips, it looked amazingly feminine. Cute, rather than sexy or beautiful, but still, decidedly feminine.

The special nightly cream bath was having an effect too. His skin was softer, smoother and more supple - even the face. Instead of a 28 year old man, he looked like a 20 or 21 year old woman. The cream was also making his deep red hair softer and fuller, like a conditioner.

"Good morning, Nikki" Teri's voice echoed out, breaking his inspection. He turned to the camera. "Good Morning, Miss Teri." He replied. He'd almost choked on that requirement on day two, but pain was a quick teacher, and now it rolled naturally off his tongue in the lovely feminine lilt he now used without even thinking about it.

"Well, I think it's time you started wearing something during the day other than panties. From now on, you must let the computer put you in a corset, and you must wear heels all day. Also, loose the glasses - there's some contacts in the bathroom for you."

"Not likely, Miss Teri. I'm not going to do that." Nick had found he COULD talk back to his tormenter - as long as he did it politely, in a female voice, and without swearing. It wasn't much, but it was better than nothing.

"Fine, Nikki. As always, everything you do is your choice. We always allow you the option to refuse as long as you want. You just have to live with the price of refusal."

True enough. Technically, he had done everything out of his own free will - except for coming here and having the implants, that is. If he was willing to spend the rest of his life in utter agony, he could disobey Teri completely.

"What price would that be, Miss Teri?" Nick asked, sighing.

"Well, the floors are all now being cooled with liquid nitrogen. Within a few seconds, all floors will be so cold as to cause frostbite within minutes. You could climb up on the bed - but I'm afraid the frostbite would get you the first time you tried to make it to the bathroom.

Also, no corset is okay - but then we'll have to stop feeding you to trim down your waistline. Finally - no contacts, no lights. In ten minutes, if you're not wearing them, the lights go out. The only way to get them back on is to put in the contacts - and have you ever tried that in the dark?"

Already feeling the floor chilling beneath his feet, Nick grabbed a pair of boots from the closet and climbed onto the bed to pull them on. The smallest heels in the closet were two and a half inches, but at least the thigh-high black leather boots he'd picked had a block heel, rather than a spike. Pulling them on, he carefully sat on the edge of the bed and for the first time in his life, carefully stood wearing high- heels.

He wobbled slightly, but the block heels allowed him to balance fairly easily. He headed towards the bathroom, forced to move slowly in his new footwear, and well aware of the ten-minute deadline.

The contacts turned out to be colored. Laying in the holder, they were a golden yellow. But when he removed his glasses and carefully placed the lenses in his eyes, the mirror informed him that they turned his watery blue eyes into a vivid jade green. Nick sighed, and carefully tottered back out into the other room. He ignored the computer controlled corset lacing machine, and sat on the bed. Pulling off the boots, he flipped open a book, and went back to reading the only supplied literature in the room - 'bodice ripper' romances.

Later, watching his soaps, his hormone driven emotions shot into sheer anger at missing an important scene while in the bathroom. He thought he could use the washroom and get back during the commercial break, but his unsteady stride in the boots slowed him to much. For the rest of the day, he paced around the room while watching his shows, getting used to the feel of the heels, and acquiring a longer, steadier stride. He was completely unaware - consciously, at least - that while he was watching the show, he was fantasizing about giving blowjobs to every man that appeared on screen. He was equally unaware that he was hungrily licking and sucking the index finger of one hand, while the other massaged one of his budding breasts.

* * * * *

Teri watched the high-resolution color monitor as it showed Nikki's movements. His stride had evened out, becoming a long, feminine movement, supple and graceful, that did truly intriguing things to his fuller, firmer ass. It wasn't quite perfect yet - there was still some wobbling, especially when turning - but it was getting there.

And in that outfit, with his cock tucked away and with small, firm, huge nipples breasts half-hidden by black lace, anyone walking in and not knowing would assume the person on the monitor was a young, vaguely attractive woman. One who was caressing her own tits while lewdly simulating oral sex with one finger.

Teri laughed. And when, hours later, hunger got the better of him and Nick allowed the machine to lace a corset painfully tight, further emphasizing an hourglass figure, she laughed even harder.

But it was Carla who laughed hardest of all while her subliminal messages caused him to enact, while asleep, several sexual fantasies, right down to having him, in his most erotic voice, beg various TV characters to 'fuck my brains out'.

* * * * *

When Nick awoke the next morning, he felt scared. Very, very scared, terribly vulnerable - and crushingly, helplessly alone. To his shock and dismay, a trickle of tears began to move down his softer, feminized cheeks almost the instant he awoke.

What he didn't - couldn't - know, was that these emotions were created by an extra strength hormone and drug 'cocktail' in last night's dinner, and a massive bombardment of subliminal messages while he slept. All he felt was the terrible power of the hypnotically and chemically induced emotions, augmented by the stream of female hormones produced by his pert B-cup breasts.

He almost panicked at the feeling of being utterly alone. Pulling on the boots, he rose easily on the heels and stood, twinges of pain coming from the marks left by the dreadfully tight corset he'd worn yesterday.

Suddenly, he realized that if he asked for breakfast, a female guard would deliver. He wasn't hungry for food - but for company he was starving.

For the first time since his torment began, he did something eagerly. Without realizing the import of what he was doing, he quickly pulled a pair of panties and a corset from the closet. Shucking off his nightly bodysuit, he pulled on the black lace panties, keeping his almost forgotten cock clenched between silken thighs and out of sight while he switched clothes. Then he pulled on the heavy leather corset, and stepped willingly - eagerly - up to the lacer.

The computer controlled device sensed him, and quickly tightened the corset around his waist. The corset's built in cups cradled his breasts, sending shivers of pleasure through him as it contacted his enormous nipples.

If he'd stopped to think, he would have realized that the act which, last night, had been demeaning and terribly painfully, he now submitted to with breathless anticipation. As the garment clenched his waist to a remarkably small circumference, all he felt was elation at the chance of company. Anything to beat the torment of loneliness that assaulted him.

"Miss Teri?" He called in a sweet, accented voice, looking at the camera. At the other end, Teri chuckled at the grin that was unconsciously plastered on Nikki's face, and feigned boredom when she answered.

"What is it Nikki."

Nick unconsciously slid his hands - which were noticeably more feminine - along the smooth sweep of his enhanced figure and said "I'm ready for breakfast now."

"Oh, I thing we'll forget about breakfast today. Have to watch your figure, you know." Teri said, leaning forward and watching the monitor intensely.

Hope can do many things. Including dropping you into an even deeper hole when it was snatched away. The crushing loneliness and insecurity slammed down on Nick in an instant, and for a few brief seconds, he completely lost control. Not even really aware of what he was doing, he began to cry in huge, tearing sobs.

"But...(sniff)..Miss Teri, I...I'm so LONELY!" he told her unthinkingly, before bursting into renewed sobs.

"You ARE?" Teri feigned surprise. It wasn't easy - her huge smile threatened to come through in her amplified voice. "Well, I'll make you a deal, Nikki."

"Yes, Miss Teri?" Nick said, dabbing at his tears, hope kindling behind his feminine bustline.

"If you get yourself all dressed up - nice, feminine clothes, make up, do something with your hair, the whole nine yards - then I'll let you come out and spent the day out with us. But, you must be PERFECTLY feminine - one, JUST ONE hint that you're not a perfect woman, born and bred, and back you go."

"I...I..." Nick stammered. His masculine side struggled to rise through the hormonal roller coaster rushing through him.

"It's your decision" Teri told him. "If you decide not to, I won't punish you - no pain, no freezing floors, nothing. It completely up to you. Just...If you want to, get ready, and the door will open for you."

* * * * *

In the control room, dead silence reigned. While the bulk of the staff watched on a huge repeater monitor, Carla slid into a chair beside Teri's at the main console. She sipped at a cup of coffee, her face worn from the night before's marathon session of subliminal hypnotic programming.

They'd argued whether or not the time was right for this. The computer said it was - but both lesbians had their reservations. This was the end of Stage One, the big test. If Nick didn't go for it, if he held out, there would be no going on to Stage Two. Without fear of punishment, without further prompting, Nick had to choose to do this. And the longer he held out, the less drugs would remain in his system as they flushed out. This was a once-only test.

So, in silence, they sat...and waited.

* * * * *

Nick sat on his bed, shivering uncontrollably, despite the warm temperature. Inside his own mind, clouded with drugs, hormones and posthypnotic suggestions, his own 'sense-of-self' remained strong, and fought against this with great effort. Slowly, his mind spiraled in on itself, trying to seek an answer.

It was two hours later that he slowly rose from the bed. Or rather, his body did. It was a robot like motion, not really directed by the mind that was locked within itself. He was barefoot as he rose to his feet, but didn't even notice that the floor, rather than being ice cold, was warmed to a pleasant temperature.

Moving as if in a dream, he slowly made his way to the bathroom, and turned on the shower. Undressing, he stepped into the stall and began to mechanically wash his altered body. Out of sheer habit, his cock remained safely out of sight.

Without even realizing it, the shower took nearly an hour, most of which was spent mindlessly fondling and caressing his altered anatomy, especially his breasts.

That's where he was when he finally snapped out of his daze. Huddled in the shower stall, gasping for breath as his feminized body shook with conflicting emotions, and his slender hands brought pure pleasure from his massive, thick nipples.

Slowly he dropped his hands by his side and stood straight. The conflict in his mind had been settled - and settled decisively.

"You bloody bitch." He hissed through his teeth, his voice low, but strongly masculine. "You nearly had me there, didn't you. Well, others have underestimated Mother Reilly's boy Nicholas before."

He took a minute to compose himself. With the running water and the subsequent steam, the shower was the one single place that he wasn't being observed. It was the one flaw in the surveillance system.

He should know. He designed it.

And that's what it all came down to. Teri and Carla, and whoever else they had with them, had gotten a weeks grace period. The sudden shock of being abducted, of awakening undergoing his own program, albeit heavily modified, plus the unexpected drugs and hormones, had thrown him off balance. But now, he was once more on the level, and it was time to set things straight.

Nick realized that it was a test - would he knuckle under and be an obedient slave from now on? Or would he fight it, refuse - and be blasted by agony until his mind overloaded?

Well, if the smug bitches outside thought this horrid loneliness - which, even knowing it's origin, he still felt - would break him, they were too damn complacent.

So, show them what they want to see.

With calm, cool deliberation, Nicholas T. Reilly, Psy.D., B.Sc., M.S., Ph.D., once more fully in control of his renegade emotions, regardless of the fact that he still felt these powerful urges, began his deliberate campaign.

His first step, before stepping out of the shower, was to affix an insipid grin on his face, utilizing his new, fuller lips to their full advantage. With this expression firmly fixed for the benefit of those spectators, he calmly crossed the room towards the closet, simulating breathless anticipations.

His choice of clothing to those watching seemed to be random snatch and grab, but in truth, he'd carefully thought out his selection before even arriving at the closet. He'd mentally considered many factors - the distastefulness of wearing feminine clothes, the durability and dexterity available and last - but certainly not least - what clothes were most likely to lull Teri and company into a false sense of security. Before he'd even opened the closet door, he'd realized there was no one outfit that would meet all his parameters, run through the choices in his mind, and picked the best compromise.

All the watching staff saw was the feminized man cross the room swiftly, open the closet 'eagerly', and pull out an outfit at 'random'.

Quickly and economically Nikki dressed. Having decided that he - she - would have to play the role of a woman to a 'T', she had started to think of her self in the feminine - a bit of method acting to improve her chances. i.e. - if she thought feminine, she'd act feminine.

That's all there was to it.

Swiftly, with seeming eagerness, she donned her chosen outfit.

The first part was underwear - a lacy bra and brief combo in very feminine pink. Since it wouldn't affect the outcome in the least, she went with the most feminine - and, thus, most 'disarming' - set in the drawer. A matching pink corset, in canvas and lace, went around her waist, and was drawn tight by the machine.

Over this went a tight, short dark gray denim skirt with attached suspenders over a tight, light gray denim tank-top. It wasn't her first choice - jeans and a sweatshirt - but was more likely to lull Teri, and the fact that it revealed her legs and midriff didn't really matter. Besides, she looked DAMN cute in it.

Plus, it made her choice of footwear seem obvious - a pair of brown suede calf-high boots over knee-high socks. The boots had a two inch block heel, and unlike the black leather boots, a hiking sole - very important.

A brief stop to look in the mirror. Intended mostly for misdirection, Nikki had to admit the outfit looked good on her slender, athletic frame. Kind of a 'Girl-Next-Door Goes Camping' theme.

Next, came the makeup. Although she had never actually used it herself, Nikki had seen it on many other women, and now racked his brain for what looked good. He went with the minimalist approach - a pale, green eye shadow, mascara, and a ruby-red lip-gloss. After a moments hesitation, she added a hint of blush, and long, red, Lee press-on nails.

Finally, jewelry. Although it seemed she flicked through the box randomly, in fact Nikki carefully chose the items that would fetch the most money in a pawn shop. Long, gold hop earrings, while demeaning, were more valuable then studs. Likewise, a gold crucifix around her neck on a thick chain. Several gold, and a couple of silver bangles on her right wrist, and a gold and diamond watch in her left. Finally, a 24K gold tennis bracelet on one ankle, inside the boot. It was a risk - the watchers might wonder why she'd wear a piece of jewelry that couldn't be seen - but she judged it was worth it.

Finally, one last look in the mirror before heading to the door - and ultimate success or complete failure.

Tall, soft boots encasing shapely calves. Soft, silky thighs disappearing beneath a skirt that hugged her full, sexy ass. A deliciously slender waist, emphasized by a black leather belt. Average sized but remarkably firm round breasts clearly shown through the tight crop-top. A pleasant face with full, smiling lips and large, enticing emerald-green eyes beneath a short mane of glorious red hair in a shaggy - but feminine - style.

Perfect.

* * * * *

Teri smiled as the door, prompted by computer recognition that Nikki had fulfilled certain preset conditions, slid open. With a burst of smug pride she watched as Nikki - HER creation, stepped out of her cell, a hesitant smile on her face.

"Do...do I look okay Miss Teri?" Nikki asked hesitantly, smoothing her denim skirt nervously with long nailed hands.

Teri would have preferred the 'bimbo' look with spike heels, micro-mini skirt, etc., but decided to be magnanimous in victory. "You look lovely, Nikki." She said condescendingly. "Come on, let's go get that breakfast you wanted."

Nikki smiled warmly. "Great" she chirped happily, falling in just behind Teri as they headed down the hallway. They passed several closed doors, and entered the staff cafeteria. It was the only cafeteria in the complex - the design of the lab called for all food to be delivered to the cells for the 'subjects', so no high-security cafeteria existed solely for them. Which Nikki counted on.

Most of the staff was gathered in the room, grabbing a bite to eat in celebration of the success, and many of the all-female staff welcomed the new she-male into their midst. The staff of slightly over a dozen consisted solely of lesbians and/or feminists, and all were condescending to her, some consciously, others completely unaware of their own patronizing attitude.

All of which Nikki was counting on. All that remained was a desperate hope - one lone chance in a million that relied on one random, unpredictable factor.

And he got it.

Because of Nick's Irish upbringing, she had a great fondness for a hearty 'meat and potato' meal. So, when she'd stocked the lab, that's what he'd gotten for provisions.

Whether or not the women had never gotten different supplies, or merely chosen to use some of his stock, she'd never know. And didn't care. Because, sparkling in the silverware bins were the long, sharp steak knives she'd kept on hand.

When they reached the line at the steam trays, Nikki was fully prepared. The insipid smile on her face remained fixed in place as she swung into action.

There was no way she could take the heavily muscled lesbian in a fair fight - so she didn't fight fair. Teri never even saw the large, restaurant-sized bottle of Heinz ketchup that collided against her head, the thick tomato paste blending with the darker arterial blood from her wounded scalp. As she collapsed like a puppet with its strings cut, Nikki was already turning, a steak knife in one hand, which was quickly imbedded into the thigh to the only woman near enough to make a grab. Grabbing a second knife as backup, Nikki sprinted for the door, her bootheels smacking against the linoleum as she put every ounce of speed into a long, powerful stride, crossing the threshold into the control room - and applied her last, secret weapon.

In her male voice - which she had to consciously switch to - she shouted "Override Alpha Tango - Execute!"

It was an emergency code, programmed into the computer, embedded in a deep, hidden program. It couldn't help her before now, because it had to be used IN the control room - but it had an immediate effect as the base code lines, recognizing its master's voice, operated as planned.

Every single door in the complex slammed shut and locked, with the exception of a direct route outside, which sprung open. At the same time, two compartments opened on either side of the passage - the one on the left, a clearly visible locker, disgorged a backpack, while the hidden one on the right revealed a holstered gun. Snatching up the cache, Nikki sprinted out to freedom bare seconds before the pre-programmed sequence shut and locked the last few doors. The program would refuse to release ANY locked doors for eight hours - giving her a head start.

It was an emergency program put in place in case of a police raid, and Nikki was glad she'd had the foresight to program it. As she slowed to a walk, she finally came to a stop at a ring of red-painted stakes that encircled the compound at a hundred yard radius, and sighed, contemplating the final hurdle to her escape.

As a final security measure, Nikki had programmed the transponders with a safety measure. When they last signal with the main computer - that is, went farther than one hundred yards from it - they activated a final command. If, after three tries, it could not reacquire a signal, it self-destructed, leaving only a tiny, unidentifiable lump under the skin.

But before it did, it sent on last code. Not to the main computer - but to the hormonal implants in the breasts. Rather than producing measured, timed doses of hormones, they would begin a constant flood of the female chemicals.

It was a last-ditch security measure that Nikki had been particularly proud of - but, then again, she'd never anticipated being the victim of it.

With a sigh, she took three steps forward, and after a second's delay, felt a brief, dull pain as the chip in her spine self destructed.

Shaking her head, she began to hike towards the nearest highway. She'd have to find someone she could get to undo the changes wrought on her body - but that wouldn't be easy, or fast. And with the constant barrage of hormones that now flooded her body, time was of the essence.

As she walked, she quickly checked the gun - a Colt Model 1911 .45 - to ensure it was loaded, before going to slip it into the pack. That's when she discovered that it wasn't the emergency pack she'd had ready 'just in case'.

Well, it was the pack itself - complete with the small bankroll hidden in the straps, and the hidden holster for the gun on the bottom, which she promptly put to use. But whoever had found the back had emptied out his travel kit and used it for their own purposes - and since the staff at the lab was exclusively female, it wasn't surprising that the small pile of clothing was feminine, as was the toiletries. What was surprising was what had replaced the boxes of food and extra ammunition she'd store - various vials and syringes of medical compounds. Mostly figure altering ones.

"Someone not happy with their own figure, smuggling out compounds to improve it." Nikki muttered, replacing the boxes in the backpack.

With a resigned sigh, she shouldered the pack, reflecting that it was probably for the best, considering her current condition - there was no way she could pass as a man right now, anyway.

Two hours later she finally met up with the secondary highway, and began to hitchhike along side, sticking her thumb out for the infrequent vehicles that whizzed by. She'd already removed almost all her jewelry and stashed it in the backpack, so as to make herself less tempting for thieves.

The constant flow of hormones was already having a definite effect, causing wild mood swings - extreme euphoria at the sight of a car on the horizon, wild hope as it neared, then anger and frustration as it hurtled past - all mixed in with the uncomfortable awareness that some of the vehicles must contain men - and the thought aroused her. She pushed that aside, refusing to deal with it. At the same time, she found herself throwing a little something extra into her feminine motions, trying to be more enticing. She consoled herself with the thought that it would make getting a ride that much easier.

It was almost two more hours before she lucked out. At first Nikki thought the rig was just whizzing by, like the others - then the hiss of airbrakes caused her to turn and jog towards the slowly stopping truck. Tractor trailers don't stop on a dime, and she had to jog to where the rig had finally come to rest.

The cab door opened, and an older, heavy-set man wearing a faded denim shirt and a CAT ball cap leaned out, eyeing her lithe figure. Inexplicably, Nikki felt a mixed rush of shame and pleasure at the obvious fact the trucker liked what he saw.

"Hey, miss, y'all need a lift?" the driver drawled, smiling politely.

"Yes, if it's not a bother." Nikki replied, still trying to cope with her runaway emotions.

The driver smiled at the sound of her exotic, accented contralto. "Sure, hop on up, miss. A little comp'ny is always 'preciated."

Thankfully, Nikki climbed into the rig and settled into the passenger seat, placing her back-pack between her legs. (Which, she noticed with guilty pleasure, the driver seemed to enjoy looking at.)

"Hi. I'm Jerry, but my handle's Tex." The driver drawled, extending a hand. Nikki took it and - to her great surprise - giggled. "I'm Nikki."

Surprisingly, she found Tex amazingly easy to talk to - he kept up a steady patter of conversation without asking any embarrassing questions, and slipped in a steady stream of compliments without once being crude or obnoxious. As the miles rolled away beneath the Goodyear's of the truck, Nikki caught herself, several times, enjoying spending the time en femme without guilt - feeling completely and utterly natural about what was going on.

These periods were always followed with bouts where Nick would briefly resurface. Like a submarine, Nick's own, masculine persona would come close enough to take a look around. Finding it unsafe to be Nick at this time and place, it would once more submerge into the role of Nikki - protection not only against his own discomfort with his altered body, but a necessary survival trait. If any red-blooded man found out that the 'cute girl' he was chatting with was really a 'sissy boy', things could get ugly. At very least, Nick/Nikki would lose his/her free ride. So Nick shut up and the Nikki fly on autopilot.

Finally, as night was falling, Tex skillfully guided the big rig off the highway and into a well-lit truck stop.

"Well, this here is where I switch routes. I figure iffin' you come in with me and let me buy y'all dinner, when I leave you should be able to fin another ride headin' just 'bout any way ya wanna go."

Nikki smiled. "That's kind of you - but you don't have to buy me dinner. You've done enough for me already."

Tex laughed. "Hell, rather than ride alone for six hours, I had a real beauty, with a voice I could listen to for hour, keep me company. I figure I owe you one."

'Take the meal' Nick's mind said coldly, and Nikki's persona translated it by smiling broadly and accepting with a laugh.

Tex treated her to a steak dinner. Afterwards, at his suggestion, she washed up in the bathroom, leaving her pack with him at the table. When she got back, he was gone, his rig lost in the night. But there was money on the table to cover dinner, and a folded piece of paper on her pack. She opened it.

Dear Nikki,

I figured you wouldn't take money from my own hand, so I had to fox you into taking it. Sorry I couldn't say good- bye.

By the way - hitching rides ain't safe, especially for a pretty young thing like you. Now, I didn't ask what your problem was, it ain't any of my business. But there's two different bar and grills in the area. One's about 3 miles east, the other three miles south. With this letter, you should be able to get a job at either one. I know the owners of both, having been a regular customer at each. Maybe I'll see you around.

Tex.

The money 'he foxed her into taking' dropped into her palm - nearly six hundred in cash.

"Damn right you wouldn't understand my problem" she thought wryly - yet for some reason, she felt infinitely sad, as if she'd lost something vitally important.

With a sigh, she swung the pack onto her shoulder and headed out, still trying to control her rampaging emotions. She didn't notice any of the appreciate looks her backside drew from male customers as she walked out.

* * * * *

The door burst open and the woman staggered into the room. It took her three tries to get the door closed behind her, and the attempt to drop the key onto the dresser failed miserably, leaving it on the faded green carpet. The woman, dressed in a tight denim skirt and a white T-shirt, kicked off her black pumps with five inch spike heels and awkwardly struggled out of her clothes. Naked, she staggered over to the bed and collapsed on it, muttering angrily to herself.

Nikki had no intentions of spending the rest of her life as a female. Even leaving the lab, she had a plan, simple in theory - find a competent researcher and have them reverse what had been done to her. Simple in theory - but more complex in application.

Nicholas Rielly had a lab, fully stocked with all he'd need - not Nikki. Besides, said lab was now in the hands of the very people who'd done this to her, and they weren't likely to reverse it. Since these same people had come from the Center where she'd worked before that, she was also unwilling to contact anyone there, not knowing who she could trust.

So that left finding an unconnected doctor - which would take money. A lot of money. Which she didn't have.

So, that left very few options. With very few job openings for a woman who wasn't, with no I.D., Nikki had no choice but to try one of the two places Tex had referenced for her.

So, she'd found this apartment. Old and somewhat threadbare, it was clean, and more importantly, cheap. Actually, it was an old motel, charging one-fifty a month, whose 'kitchen' consisted of a beer fridge, a microwave and a hot plate - but it was warm, dry and affordable. Paying for two months in advance, she'd moved her meager belongings in.

The next day she'd picked one of the Bar and Grill's at random. Walking in, she'd talked to the owner, a 'good ole boy', who'd hired her on the spot, but refused to make any sort of promises.

So started her two-week sojourn in hell.

First of all, there was the patrons - raucous, crude men, mostly drunk, who couldn't seem to keep their hands to themselves. They seemed to enjoy stealing every opportunity to touch or fondle Nikki's ass, and hit on her every chance they got. What disgusted her the most was the fact that she found herself guiltily enjoying the attention, the caresses, the long looks at her slender, shapely legs and firm ass. She hated them for doing it, and she hated herself for liking it - and she caught herself 'encouraging' it, again and again, with a sexy strut, a provocative look, and other things driven by her ridiculously high hormone levels. Almost every night she'd drift off to sleep, only to wake up, fondling her own body and coming out of some fantasy that both repulsed and aroused her.

Then there was the competition. Goldie, the other barmaid.

Practically a stereotype, the woman was a bottle blonde with hair so big it seemed to defy the law of gravity and two much makeup. At least thirty five, Goldie was on the plump side, her heavy thighs and less-than firm ass crammed into ridiculously tight jean shorts. Her shirts were all tailored to display her DD breasts, which Nikki was willing to bet had never seen the inside of a bra.

But the damn woman got nearly all the tips, just for allowing the guys to ogle her droopy, but large, tits.

Desperate, Nikki had started wearing more provocative outfits, spending the few tips she did get on a pair of spike heels to enhance her assets - well, her ass, at least.

But, while she drew more guilty/pleasurable attention, money remained as elusive as ever. Her emotional free-fall continued, raging hormones amplifying every sensation - lust, shame, anger, pleasure, pride, shame - everything.

Then, today, the last straw fell into place when the owner had informed Nikki that he couldn't pay her. He offered her the equivalent in bar credit, but no cash at all. She'd promptly called the second place Tex had mentioned, and the other owner had agreed to hire her, sight unseen - but she'd have to make her own tips, competing against the other waitress.

Goldie's sister, Tisha.

Then Nikki, anger, despair and frustration revved up to obscene levels, had made her mistake - she took advantage of that bar credit and got rolling, stinking drunk.

Now, laying on the bed, her mind was submerged in a fog of booze, chemicals and hormones. Staggering, she rose to her feet.

"Gotta be sexy for tips?" she asked the wall angrily - and fuzzily - "Fine. I'll give'm sexy. "I'll blow their damn eyes right outta their heads. See how they like the new'n'improved Nikki. How 'bout that?"

Still muttering angrily - and drunkenly - she staggered towards her back pack.

* * * * *

The next morning dawned disgusting bright and cheerful. Having forgotten to adjust the blinds the night before, Nikki, suffering from the most monumental headache she'd ever had, slowly came to life as a single beam of sunlight shone directly into her reddened eyes.

After about the twelfth beer, everything from last night was a blur - a few moments of passing clarity in a sea of lost memories.

Nikki groaned and catalogued her condition. One head - ready to explode. Lips that felt like they were both as big and as dry as the Sahara desert. She must have fallen down some time last night, hard, on her ass, which felt tender, and...weird.

And somebody was sitting on her chest. Without opening her eyes and exposing them to the probably lethal beam of sunlight, Nikki struggled against the weight on her chest to become upright, windmilling her arms for balance. Out of the path of the light, she opened her eyes and blinked blearily at the full-length mirror opposite her.

She stopped, standing stock still, her mind spinning as it tried to make sense of what she saw.

"Oh, dear God, tell me I didn't..." she whispered. But there was no denying what the mirror revealed.

For the first time since the transformation, her nipples didn't look ridiculously out of proportion. That was because jutting defiantly from her narrow ribcage was a large pair of almost perfectly spherical, firm tits. They were firm, creamy expanses of breast flesh, perfect DDD's.

Now she remembered her decision to go Goldie 'one better.'

What's more, her already shapely ass had been expanded into absolutely mind-blowingly perfection. Likewise, her lips were now remarkably full, soft and seductive.

Other than that she was the same. Cute, Irish woman with large, cheerful green eyes and a pert nose below a cute, shaggy mop of flaming red hair. Only now, her slender, boyish figure wasn't boyish in the least - just 'slim and stacked'.

To her horror, Nikki found herself...proud of her figure. Lewd thoughts danced through her hormone soaked brain just thinking about how men would react to the sight of her...

She squashed the thought mercilessly - and all others. Right now, she had to go to work. She had to earn money as a barmaid, so she could afford to get this - all of this - undone.

And she squashed the feeling of dismay that tried to form at the thought.

The first order of business was to get dressed. Unfortunately, there was going to be some unforeseen complications in that seemingly basic function.

Having jumped from a B to DDD cup in one drunken night, none of her bras would fit. Her panties did - but became almost thongs, the material sliding between her perfect ass cheeks. She pulled on her denim skirt with difficulty, and it clung to her teardrop shaped ass sensuously.

For a shirt, she had a man's denim shirt picked up from the Salvation army. Tying the bottom allowed her to support her new endowments, while lifting them and displaying a tantalizing view of a magnificent cleavage.

"Well, if this doesn't get me tips, nothing will." She murmured wryly, slipping into her spike-heeled pumps. Bending over to retrieve her key, she almost toppled over from her changed balance, but righted herself, and headed out to her new job.

Hailing a cab, she had the driver take her to 'The Beer and Beef', her new place of work. The poor man seemed to have trouble concentrating on the road, his eyes wandering to the rearview mirror constantly. Nikki felt a burst of guilty pride when he refused payment at the end of the trip, and struggled unsuccessfully to squash it.

Swaying sexily on her heels, Nikki entered the bar. Instantly, a hush fell over the few patrons in this time of day, their eyes going to the stunning woman in their midst. The look on Tisha's face was almost enough to make the whole thing worth while.

From there on, it got better. The owner of the bar stared fixedly at her chest during the brief 'interview' - then promptly fired Tisha. With no competition, and a body to die for, her tips were astronomical. Not only did she have spectacular tits, but an awesome ass and great legs, and the men used any excuse to touch her - and 'apologized' with cash.

Nikki knew she should be disgusted with this attention. She should hate the way men leered at her, fondled her on the sly whenever they could, tracked her every movement with their eyes filled with lust.

Instead, she was getting almost painfully turned on.

She couldn't help herself. Her hormonal overload caused every feeling to peak - and all this attention made her feel unbelievably feminine and sexy. Every night she struggled with loathing at how she was acting, the way she moved seductively, the way she flirted shamelessly, displaying herself and fantasizing continuously about the men around her. And every day she did it again.

And the money rolled in.

* * * * *

Nikki walked out of the 'Beer and Beef', locking the door behind her. The late night wind gusted briefly, feeling deliciously naughty on her nipples, pushing impudently at the thin silk fabric of her skintight green blouse, and across her nylon covered thighs where they disappeared under her black leather mini-skirt.

Moving with a sexy stride in her seven inch spike heels platform shoes, Nikki moved towards the road, watching for a cab to flag down. Before one hove into view, a van pulled into the lot, and a familiar face smiled from the driver's side window.

"Hey there, hot stuff." Richard, one of the regulars smiled at Nikki. Despite the evening chill, he wore a T-shirt that showed off his muscular, bronzed body. "Need a lift?"

"I'd love one, Richard." Nikki replied with a smile. She hopped into the passenger seat, and Richard dropped the van into gear and headed towards Nikki's new, swanky apartment.

"You sure do look good in that." Richard complemented her, causing a pleasurable tingle to chase up and down Nikki's spine. He pulled into the parking lot of the building and killed the motor.

"Thanks." Nikki smiled, her hand reaching for the door handle - then stopped, as Richard nonchalantly reached over and began to fondle her full, firm breasts.

"Ohhh..." Nikki moaned softly as pleasure flooded her body. Something in her cried out, unheard, as Richard gently guided her onto the mattress in the back of his van and opened her blouse. He kissed her, and she returned it hungrily as his strong hands worked on her firm bosom.

"Yes..." she breathed as his lips moved down to her nipples, causing even more hormones to flood her body. Slowly, he lay back and unzipped his jeans, allowing his hard, thick cock to spring free. At the sight of his shaft, hypnotic programming deep in her brain came to life, taking control.

Without even thinking about it, Nikki encircled his throbbing cock with her full, sensual lips. Her long-nailed hands began to caress his shaft and balls as she hungrily, mindless gave her first ever blowjob with all the skill and panache of a veteran cocksucker. She savored his musky flavor as her supple tongue danced over his engorged head and veined shaft, until she was rewarded with a spray of hot, salty cum which she eagerly gulped down. The programming ensured that she thought it was the most incredible tasting substance she'd ever had, creating an instant craving for hot, delicious cum as often as possible.

"Now, let's see your beautiful pussy, gorgeous." Richard said, reaching for her skirt.

"Yes..." Nikki moaned - she pulled away, wide eyed. "NO!" Desperately, she buttoned her blouse and all but dived from the van. Richard watched her flee in confusion, wondering what he'd said or done wrong.

* * * * *

Horried, Nikki staggered up the stairs to her apartment. She couldn't believe what she'd just done - and yet, she wanted to do it again. And again.

Worse, she'd almost blown her secret. But the thought of Richard fucking her was driving her mad with lust. She couldn't think straight. Fumbling, she opened the door to her apartment. Stepping in, she let the door swing shut and turned on the light.

And stopped dead.

"Well, it look like Stage Two was an unqualified success, wouldn't you say?" Teri asked Carla conversationally, eyeing the disheveled, sexy figure standing in the doorway.

"Hmm, I'm not sure. We could test it again." Carla said meditatively, smiling at the third person.

Tex shrugged. "Hell, I don't mind putting it to the test." All trace of his bogus accent had vanished. "Now, where did I put that list of 'triggers'?" He rummaged around, coming up with a list from a deep pocket.

"But. But." Nikki stammered, stunned, as the three people smirked at her.

"What, you haven't figured it out?" Teri chuckled. "The whole escape - it was a setup. This was Stage Two." She turned to Tex. "Why don't you try some of the hypnotic triggers we imbedded in her."

Tex checked the list, then fished a twenty out of his pocket. "I'll pay you to dance for me." He said clearly.

And as her body was flooded with hormones, Nikki saw things clearly. The instant he'd said those words, she'd become overwhelmed with a desperate, irresistible need to arouse this man before her. Helpless, she began to move, swaying sensuously as her hands slid over her own body. Soon, her tempo picked up, and she moved in an erotic ballet, slowly undressing in the most seductive, cock-hardening way she could. She couldn't help herself. She needed to do this, or she'd explode from the sheer lust rampaging through her body.

And when she finished, Tex unzipped his pants. At the sight of his thick, rigid cock and engorged head, she once more lost control, practically diving at his crotch with her desperate need. Soon, she was gulping at his spray of semen flooding her warm mouth, trying desperately not to spill a drop.

"Oh my god, what am I doing?" Nikki sobbed as she pulled away, a trickle of cum running down her chin and dropping into her cleavage.

"What, don't you enjoy it?" Teri mocked cruelly - and Nikki could only nod in shame. "It's too bad you were our first subject" Teri continued. "We've much refined, strengthened, and shortened the whole process."

"Well, what do you want to do about Stage Three then?" Carla asked Nikki, who slowly looked up to meet her eyes.

* * * * *

Robert J. Fowler nodded politely to the waiter who handed him his scotch, and settled further back into the padded leather armchair, enjoying the quiet sounds circulating throughout the Benton Hill Country Club. At forty five, he still was vigorous and healthy, with a thick, regal mane of silver hair.

The sounds suddenly changed, murmurs rising and falling, and Bob frowned at the disruption of his orderly little world. Brushing the creases from his expensive, tailored suit, he leaned forward and glanced around trying to pinpoint the cause of the change.

He spotted her immediately. Dressed in a long, flowing gown of emerald green crushed velvet, she walked - no, floated - across the room. Her large firm breasts pressed firmly outward at the sweetheart neckline of the dress, and elegant diamond pendant nestled in her remarkable cleavage. With each step, the side slit of the dress hinted at her shapely, nylon clad legs and emerald green pumps.

Suddenly, she caught his gaze, her large, expressive green eyes meeting his, and he glanced away in momentary embarrassment. He had been gaping at her divine form like a love sick schoolboy.

When he looked up a gain, he was amazed to find her striding towards him, her long, glorious mane of red hair waving out behind her as she approached. Helplessly, his eyes slid down to where her firm breasts swayed and bounced invitingly with each step, the tore his yes away as she arrived at his chair.

"Mr. Fowler, isn't it?" she asked, her rich contralto voice lilting with and enchanting Irish accent. Bob cleared his throat. "Yes, that's right. Look miss, I'm sorry if I was..."

She smiled slightly, her full, red lips curving, and Bob's voice died. "Mr. Robert Fowler, Chair of the Baldrige Medical Research Center?" she asked huskily. Bob felt his cock stirring in his pants at the tone in her voice.

"Uh, yes." He managed.

The mysterious woman smiled seductively. "I believe I owe you a debt of gratitude, Mr. Fowler." "Huh?"

"You are the man who provided the funding for Nicholas Reilly, are you not." She asked, lightly licking her lips.

Comprehension dawned. "You mean you... He.." He cleared his throat nervously. "I haven't heard from Dr. Reilly in some time. I didn't realize his project was in operation."

"Oh, yes, it is completely operational - and effective." She said, taking a deep breath that did amazing things to her dress. "And I feel I owe you for who I am today. I really, really want to...reward you." She licked her lips again.

Bob stood quickly. "My car's this way."

Nikki followed Bob to his car, sliding into the passenger seat beside him. She lightly caressed his knee on the trip to Bob's townhouse. After he unlocked the door, she led the way up to his room, allowing him to take in the view of her spectacular ass swaying with each step.

No words were needed. As they entered his room, she tuned to him, head tilted upwards and full, sensual lips slightly parted. He eagerly stepped into her embrace, and they kissed hungrily, tongues intertwining as they undressed each other.

Soon Bob was completely naked, and Nikki dressed only in garters, nylons and heels. With a gentle push, she had him lay on the bed. Eagerly, she straddled him, her new, perfect cunt already glistening. Then, with a gasp, she impaled herself on his hot, throbbing cock.

She rode him slowly, her leg muscles lifting and dropping her with a slowly increasing rhythm. At first, his hands fondled her firm, taut ass as she threw her head back and bit her full lower lip at the sensations flooding her body. Soon, his hands moved to her spectacular tits as her speed increased. She began to cry out in ecstasy as she neared the threshold of her first female orgasm.

"Do...oh!..you like...yes!..big tits, Bob?" gasped out as she rode his cock with increasing passion. Bob grunted. "yeah."

It was almost time, Nikki realized. New nerve endings were firing as the incredible waves of pleasure hurtled towards a peak. "Really, really...OH, God!... HUGE tits?" she asked, driving with intensity.

"Uhn, Yeah." Bob managed.

And then she came, waves of pure ecstasy wracking her body. She cried out loudly as her fabulous figure twitched and shook. Her spasming cunt pushed Bob over the edge, and he pumped his cum deep into Nikki's new womanhood.

He never felt the needle.

* * * * *

Robert J. Fowler slowly climbed back to consciousness, his body feeling decidedly odd, and sending him signals his confused brain couldn't translate. Slowly, he blinked his eyes, and to his shock, found himself in the Boardroom at the Center, sitting in his seat at the head of the table.

The other five members of the board were also present. They were blinking and shaking their heads, as if they too had just awoken from an inexplicable slumber.

Bob blinked and looked down - and gasped.

He was staring into a chasm-like cleavage between two massive tits. His own. The hands on the armrests of the chair were slender, dainty and decidedly feminine.

"Where am... What..." A voice from the other end of the table drew his eyes to one of the other board members, looking around in confusion. He saw Bob and gaped in shock. "Bob? Is...is that you?"

As if that was some sort of trigger, Bob found himself helplessly moving. With graceful, sensuous movement, he rose, stepped onto the chair, then onto the wooden table.

He could see himself no, in the full mirrored wall. Or rather, SHE could see HERSELF.

Her tiny feet were encased in black leather pumps with an ankle strap. The six-inch spike heels clicked lightly as she moved to the center of the table, and somehow she walked as sensuously in them as if she'd been born in heels.

Black nylons with seams up the back encased absolutely spectacular legs. Just above her knees, a tight silk skirt in pearl gray molded itself to her full hips and incredible ass. A black leather belt cinched tight around her unbelievable 18 inch waist.

A white silk blouse tried valiantly to contain her massive, enormous mass of breast flesh. Her gigantic, firm, globular tits strained the blouse almost to the breaking point. Her face, like her amazing body, seemed to belong to an 18 year old - smooth, silky and firm. Her features were as full, ripe and sexual as her figure, and a massive mane of silver hair framed her youthful face and trailed down her back. Helplessly, she found her glorious lips parting, and she spoke in a voice that stiffened every cock in earshot.

"My name is Bobbi Bimbo" she said helplessly, huskily, "and I'm a nymphomaniac sex slave."

As her renegade body began an unbelievably erotic strip tease, she found she could control her own voice again. "Please, somebody help me. Make me stop." She begged in her rich, erotic voice. "That woman from oh, YES!" she moaned as her hands fondled and caressed her now bare breasts. "woman from the club."

Helplessly, she had climbed down from the table, and was now approaching a board member.

"John. Please, help me. You have to urp!" And then she said nothing else as her full lips encased John's thick, throbbing cock and began to suck hungrily.

Through a mirrored partition, Teri watched with satisfaction as Bobbi Bimbo went to work pleasuring each of the members of the board. She turned to Carla with an evil grin.

"So, who should we do next "

The trouble with trying to solve the world's ills is, quite often, the cure is worse than the disease.

Dr. Wm. Hackett, (1895 - 1963)

THE END...

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: Cursed by a group of witches, one man finds that each lewd thought he has about a woman transforms his body to match his own thought.

Welcome, dear Reader, and well met. Come in, come in - I've saved you a chair by the fire. The comfortable one, new enough to be fashionable, but old enough to be 'broken in'. I should know - I've spent a good many hours breaking it in myself, and from it's comfortable embrace have heard many an interesting tale. Why, just last night, over a bottle of fine spirits (much like the one I hold at the moment,) I heard a fine yarn indeed...

Oh - would you like to hear it? Very well - I'd be happy to oblige.

This little tale was passed on to me by a friend who swears that it's true, and happened to the brother of a collage roommate of his second cousin, twice removed on the mother's side- or some such. Personally, I put little stock in such assertions. Life may be stranger then fiction... but fiction is usually more entertaining.

And, as impossible as it may seem - may contain even greater truths. Life can be funny that way, sometimes.

In any case, the 'hero' (a misnomer, if ever there was one) of this little story is a young man by the name of Jerry Connell, or so I was told. Quite the unsavory character, it would seem, with a never-ending supply of anger, disgust, and cruel indifference to his fellow man...

...and woman.

It would seem (my friend said) that this nature of his was what got him into quite a spot of trouble - and earned him some...

Harsh Lessons

By Gunslinger

"Take that, you little..." Jerry grinned nastily as his fingers 'blipped' across the controller of his Playstaion, whipping his ostensible 'Ice Cream Truck' around the arena, looking for the last, remaining target.

Since his driver's license had been revoked, he'd taken his aggression out on the video-game's computer-generated opponents - while imagining that the driver of every vehicle was either the whiny little bitch who'd called the cops on him, the cop who'd arrested him, or the judge who'd yanked his license.

He was just lining up the final shot on the motorcycle - driven by the CHP officer, in his mind...

...when there was a swift 'rat-a-tat' knock at the door.

The twenty-one-year-old blond's head whipped towards the direction of the front door for a second, out of instinct, then he turned back to the game....

...just in time to watch the motorcycle launch a second missile that finished him off.

"Fuck!" Jerry swore. Tossing the controller side angrily, the well-built youth pushed himself up from his position in front of the couch, and stalked angrily towards the front door of the apartment.

"This had better be damned important!" he shouted as he neared the door. "If you're a fuckin' salesman of Jehovah's Shit-Ass, I'm gonna !"

With an angry motion, Jerry yanked the door open...

...and stared at the empty passageway. Angrily, the blond looked towards either end of the short hallway, listening for the sound of a door closing, or somebody clattering down the staircases. Not hearing anything, he stepped back into the apartment and began to close his door...

...when he caught sight of a package laying in front of his door.

Looking around again, Jerry knelt and examined the package. A fair size - about the size of a computer's 'box' - the package was wrapped in plain brown Kraft paper, sealed with packing tape. The top bore bold, block letters in magic marker, spelling out his name and address (GERALD P. CONNELL, 228 APPALOOSA WAY, APARTMENT 5B), with no return address.

Grumbling to himself about the lost game - but curious about the package - Jerry reached out and grasped the package...

...then grunted with surprise at the weight. Putting a little extra 'oomph' into it, he picked it up and re-entered his apartment, closing the door behind him.

"What the hell are you?" Jerry asked the package rhetorically, as he carried it into the apartment's kitchenette. "And who the fuck left you?"

Pulling out one of the cheap and worn aluminum chairs around an equally cheap two-seat table, he dropped the package on the worn Formica surface with a thump and stared at it for several seconds. Finally, with a shrug, he reached behind him and hauled out the 10-in-1 Pliers/toolkit/knife he kept on a leather holster on his belt.

(Where he'd kept his kick-ass .44 Magnum, before that other incident...)

Flipping open the knife-blade from the handle, he slid the highly-honed piece of metal under the flap at the end of the package and carefully drew it upwards, slicing the waxy paper from top to bottom. Laying the knife aside, he ripped the paper away.

What lay revealed was... a wooden case, with mildly tarnished brass hinges at the... top? side?... and a clasp opposite of them.

Flipping open the clasp with a grunt, he flipped open the lid - and found himself staring at a series of closed 'drawers' or chambers, each with a small brass pull-knob. These were inset about a quarter inch from the top of the lid, and that space was taken up by a plain Letter-sized manila envelope, with no markings of any sort on it.

Frowning in mild confusion, Jerry removed the envelope and looked inside, finding a single sheet of parchment paper neatly folded inside. Removing the paper and unfolding it, he held it up to better catch the light as he read the message written on it.

Mr. Gerald Connell, (it said)

This letter is to advise you that you have been tried, in absentia, by the Council of Sisters, and found guilty of numerous crimes against womankind - not to mention other members of your own sex, as well.

Despite the severity, frequency, and sheer volume of your offenses, we will not pass summary punishment on you. The Council has never done so in its thousand-year history, and will not do so with you. However, be warned - as is our custom, we have placed you on probationary status for the next twenty-four hours, starting from the moment this document is read.

During the next twenty-four hours, a series of interlocking 'spells' have been placed on you. Should you do anything at all that is detrimental to any Sister - that is, any woman at all - you will suffer an appropriate punishment - and the scale of punishment graduates upwards, with each offense.

Be advised - each step of the punishment is permanent. Should you pass the probationary period only partially 'reformed', then that is how you will remain, though nothing else will change. You will not be able to undo what has been done to you by any means, medical or scientific.

Be further advised - there is no 'limit' on the interlocking spells placed upon you - no upper 'ceiling' that would end any changes. As many transgressions you may commit during the next twenty-four hours, that is how many changes you will undergo, each change fitting the nature of the offense you committed.

"What the fuck...?"

Frowning in confused anger, Jerry tossed the note aside, and tried opening one of the various-sized compartments.

It wouldn't budge. None of the compartments moved so much as a millimeter, not even when he tried prying at them with his knife - which wouldn't even scratch the wood's surface.

"Fuck it!" Jerry said, loudly, grabbing the sides of the box and throwing it...

He grunted loudly when the box refused to budge. Cursing loudly, he tried to move it - and only succeeded in dragging the little table around.

"Very god-fucking-damn funny!" He shouted at the ceiling. "Fuckin' contact cement on the bottom of the fucking box. Hilarious! I'm laughing my god-damned ass off!"

He continued to swear loudly for several minutes....

...when his neighbor, that old slant-eye bitch, began banging on the wall that separated his kitchenette from the mirror-image one she had in her apartment.

"You crazy man!" He heard her whiny, accented voice yell through the thin wall. "Always you shouting! You stop, or I call police again! Crazy man!"

Jerry's eyes widened in disbelief - how dare that slant-eyed cunt yell at him! Hell, he had to put up with the awful smells that came from her apartment when she cooked that Korean crap she called food, didn't he?

"Shut up, you old fart!" Jerry screamed back. "This is America, ya dumb cunt, and if I want to "

He would have gone on screaming - at great length and volume, with a rife description of family background and personal habits - if not for the fact that, halfway through his tirade...

...his voice began to climb in pitch.

Eyes wide, Jerry fell silent, hands flying to his throat in shocked, confused disbelief.

"Wha... what's wrong with my voice ?" He asked himself, horrified - and winced at the tone it emerged in, somewhat higher than his normal voice, sounding as if he was trying - and nearly succeeding - in imitating a somewhat low, husky, female voice. "I say you crazy man! Maybe I call police!" the woman from next door yelled.

"Shut up, you..." Jerry started to shout back, mind whirling...

...but he shut his mouth with a snap as his voice rose a bit - not much, but enough to be noticeable.

"What the fuck's going on?" Jerry asked himself, hating the semi-feminine sound of the higher-pitched, mellower-toned voice that slid through his lips.

Shuddering in confusion, he scrambled over to the table and hunted around for the discarded sheet of paper, holding it up to re-read the words written upon it.

"No... no way..." Jerry said, horrified and wanting to disbelieve - desperately. "This... isn't possible. I can't be! Shit like this isn't real!" He looked around, frantically - and found a 'logical' explanation for what was happening - or seemed to be, at any rate.

"The box!" He told himself triumphantly, in his altered voice. "It must have a hallucinogen of something in it!"

Walking over to a window, he opened it a bit, to air the place out. Then he threw a black T-shirt over his 'wifebeater' undershirt, tucking them hastily into his jeans. Pulling on his 'shitkickers', he stuffed his wallet and keys into the pockets of the blue-and-yellow nylon jacket he threw on, pulled his faded ball-cap over his close-cropped blond hair and left the apartment, thundering down the stairs.

Outside, he took several long, deep breaths, then spoke quietly to himself...

...and winced at the sound of his still higher-pitched voice.

"Takes time to clear the bloodstream." He reassured himself in a mutter. Pulling his smokes out of his jacket, he lit one up while wondering what to do for the next little while, since he wasn't going back into his apartment until he thought whatever gasses the box might be giving off had cleared.

Finally, he decided to go to the mall's food court and grab a bite to eat. Nodding to himself in satisfaction, Jerry hitched up his pants and set off in the direction of the mall, once more cursing his lack of a license.

A couple of blocks from his apartment, he saw a woman leaving a store, a bag of purchases in hand. About forty or so, the woman was a little heavy-set, and under-dressed for the weather in a sleeveless dress. As Jerry continued walking, he was almost parallel with her when she lifted her arm to hail a taxi - and exposed an underarm with an abundant supply of pit-hair.

Jerry shuddered and took a step back, a disgusted look on his face as the woman glanced over in response to the motion, caught by her peripheral vision.

She rolled her eyes and looked disgusted at Jerry's reaction, then turned her back on him and climbed into the cab as it pulled to the curb...

.but Jerry was no longer paying attention to the woman. instead, he was looking confused as a strange tingling ran over his body> He glanced down - and stared uncomprehendingly at the pile of fine hair that covered his boots.

Then a thought occurred to him - and he yanked up the sleeve of his jacket. Horrified, he stared at a perfectly smooth, hairless arm.

"Oh, fuck - this ain't happening." Jerry told himself, wincing at the sound of his voice. Glancing around, he ducked down the alleyway of the store and hid behind a dumpster, using the cover of the narrow alley and the dumpster to unbuckle his belt and unzip his pants, pulling them down with one hand, while the other lifted his shirt.

The flesh revealed was perfectly, utterly smooth. His stared in horror at the smooth, soft flesh that greet his disbelieving eyes. He even ran his hand across the flesh - and shuddered.

He'd tried various hallucinogenic substances in his life - and had never seen one that could create this level of realism without any of the 'dreamy' sensation. Under his hand, his skin felt as smooth and denuded as it looked, and that was...

"Oh, God - what the hell are you doing? Pervert!"

Startled, Jerry whirled - and promptly went sprawling into the muddy puddle that ran down the center of the alleyway, as having his pants down to his ankles was hardly conducive to quick movement.

From his undignified sprawl, he looked up at the thin - scrawny - brunette who was half-way out of the back door of the store, a garbage bag - obviously destined for the dumpster - in her hand.

"What are you - some sort of sicko?" She asked Jerry, looking at him like a bad piece of meat.

"Look, you dumb cunt..." Jerry started to reply, instinctively - then rolled onto his back and clapped both his hands over his mouth, eyes wide in horror as he head his voice climb higher in pitch with every word.

The woman shook her head in disgust, then turned to face back into the store. "Hey, Deirdre!" She shouted. "You'd better call the cops - there's some sort of weirdo in the alley, half naked."

Still horrified by the sudden lack of body hair and the higher-pitched voice, Jerry wanted to do lots of things at that moment, not the least of which was beat the dumb bitch's head in. At the moment, though, discretion definitely seemed the better part of valor. With awkward movements, he managed to get to his feet and yank his pants up. Zipping up, he dashed down the alley in the direction opposite if the way he'd entered, hastily buckling his belt. When he reached a juncture between that alley and another one, he took a left, then turned right when it spilled out onto a street, finally slowing to a walk once he felt he was safely away from where the cops might arrive.

"No, no - this isn't happening..." He told himself in a mutter that sounded disquietingly feminine. "...this can't be real. No way."

He didn't notice the odd looks - and wide berths - other pedestrians were giving him. he wouldn't have been surprised, though - after all, he was a soaking wet man stalking down the street, head down, and muttering to himself in a voice that sounded like a low-pitched woman's voice.

Absently, he fished into his pocket for his smokes - and grimaced when he extracted the sodden, useless pack. With a muffled - and feminine-sounding - curse, he whipped the pack against a handy wall, ignoring the looks of passer-bys as he glanced around for a convenience store. Spotting one at the corner, he hurried across the street, ignoring the blaring horns and screeching brakes as he darted through the traffic.

Reaching the store, he went in and walked up to the counter.

"Can I... who - did it start raining or somethin'?" The slightly pudgy blonde woman at the cashier's window lifted herself part way off the stool on which she sat and leaned forward to look past Jerry and out the window - having mad a natural assumption at seeing a sopping wet man walk into the store on a day that had been perfectly clear when she'd come into work an hour ago.

However, the instinctive movement also did something else - it put a pair of large, fleshy breast only inches from Jerry's face, almost completely displayed by the way the loose top she was wearing dropped open.

Jerry, almost as instinctively, stared at the display of milky-white breast-flesh presented to him....

...then gasped as he felt a strange sensation run through his chest.

"No!" He gasped - and the feminine voice it emerged in drew the woman's attention as mach as the startled exclamation....

...then she uttered a wordless exclamation of her own, dark eyes going as wide as saucers as she stared at the same place Jerry was - down at his chest.

Which was slowly pushing outwards, as if somebody had hidden a pair of balloons under his T-shirt and was slowly inflating them. From the way it felt, though, Jerry was damned certain it wasn't balloons - he could feel the added mass being added to his chest, as well as the increasingly different sensations that were transmitted through his new...

...he swallowed thickly and forced himself to think the dread word...

...boobs.

The sopping-wet shirt clung well to the well-defined mounds, outlining them as they stopped growing - at about a D-cup, a part of Jerry's mind insisted on informing him. Instinctively, his hands flew to his chest - and he gasped as his bare hands were filled with wet-shirt covered tits, a sensation he'd felt before and could never mistake for another...

He'd never felt that sensation from the inside, however...

"What the fuck !" The cashier exclaimed, staring.

Jerry, wide-eyed, glanced up at the cashier, and managed the most logical comment the situation provided for. 'eep.'

"Look, mister..." She said, eyeing him with a decidedly odd look. "I don't know what the gag is, but either you buy something, then leave

- or get the hell out right now." Stunned, Jerry stared at the woman...

"Cigarette..." Jerry said, in a strangled - and high-pitched - voice. Having (very reluctantly) come to the conclusion that what he was experiencing was real - if horrifying - he grudgingly refrained from calling her the name that hung on the tip of his tongue.. and forced out: "Please."

The woman continued to eye him with extreme suspicion as she complete the transaction.

Carrying the new pack of cigarettes in his left hand, Jerry wrapped the open ends of his coat around his torso with his arm over it, crushing his new tits against his chest and hiding them somewhat. With a dazed look, he walked to the front of the store like a bad B- movie zombie, his eyes wide and his jaw slack as he stepped out for the store and walked to the corner of the building and stepped into the doorway that lead to the apartment above the store. Somewhat sheltered by the inset entranceway, he turned until he was hidden in the corner and opened the pack.

It took him four tries to get the cigarette lit, his hand was shaking so badly. One it was finally going, he once again minimized the breast thrust from his chest and faced out of the doorway, staring blankly at the building across the street.

"Okay, okay - this is real." He muttered to himself in a stunned voice. "I don't know how, but some group of bi women have managed to cast some sort of fucking spell on me." He nodded slowly to himself. "Okay, so I admit that I ain't exactly Sir Lancelot. I treat the c treat woman the way I see they should be treated. I admit that. But it's not like the women I meet are exactly saints themselves - I just treat them like they deserve, the stupid "

It took a monumental effort to reign himself in from the tirade that so desperately wanted to break loose. Taking a deep breath, he forced himself to steady down.

"Okay, Jerry - get a hold of yourself." He told himself, wincing with every womanly-sounding word that emerged. "Now - you've got to keep it together. You can outlast the bitches who "

He winced as his voice climbed slightly, then continued - carefully. "...who did this to you. Watch what you say, watch what you do, for twenty four hours. Just hold it together, and don't let them win. You can do this. Then - I'll go to a doctor, have 'em cut these things off, see what they can do with my voice - I'll be okay. Just hold it together. That's all."

Finishing off the smoke, he ground it underfoot, and headed out of the doorway with his head down, shoulders hunched and arms crossed over his chest to hide the new tits that thrust from his now hairless chest into the chilly wet fabric of his T-shirt...

...which was causing his new nipples to stiffen, which - along with the pressure of his arms against his full new bosom - felt decidedly odd.

Trying to ignore the sensation, he focused on his plan - such as it was. Now that he knew that this was (horribly) real, he figured he had to get home, lock himself in - and just do whatever it took to keep his mind off women. Play video games, for instance. If he could last out the twenty-four hours at home, alone, he should be okay - out her, on the street, he was in too much danger.

Lifting his head, he glanced around in hopes of finding a phone booth...

...and found that he'd been walking behind a woman. One in a tight white leather skirt that molded oh-so-nicely to the delectable ass that was swaying so pertly and delightfully with every step her high-heeled little feet took...

"oh, shit!" Jerry cursed, yanking his eyes away - but it was too late. Even as he hauled his staring eyes from the woman's sensual ass, he grimaced in pain as his ass and hips expanded, filling his 'comfort-fit' jeans almost to the bursting point, the denim fabric now skin-tight against his full, firm new ass and womanly hips.

At the same time, he felt his shoes become looser as his feet shrank down to a smaller, slimmer - more feminine - proportion.

"I beg your pardon?" the woman asked, huffily, mistaking the cause of the comment - then she stopped and gazed with a puzzled expression at the person who'd made the comment.

"What the hell are you?" She asked, in a disgusted tone of voice. Turning around, she revealed herself to be a very attractive brunette with a trim body and a coolly beautiful face. Now her dark eyes, behind small, silver-rimmed glasses, traveled up and down Jerry's body.

What she saw was... a person of indeterminate gender, gaping at her while.. it's hands were feeling around the hips and ass that strained the skin-tight jeans it was wearing. It looked mostly masculine, especially the face and short hair - but it spoken in a voice that sounded mostly feminine, it had the wide hips and full ass of a woman, and a pair of breasts were quite visible under the wet black shirt it wore...

...as obvious as the bulge that pushed against the skintight jeans covering it's crotch.

"I..." Jerry stammered, avoiding looking at the woman's trim body at all cost and fumbling for words I his altered voice. "What the hell's wrong with you?" She sneered. "What... are you one of those sissy faggot boys or something?"

That snapped Jerry's eyes back onto her, narrowed in anger. Nobody called Jerry Connell a faggot or sissy! "Look, you stupid bitch..." He snarled, the constrained anger of the day rolling forth at this target - and he loved the way she flinched back from him in startled fear. "...I'm no sissy, and if you don't shut up, I'll give you a nice fat lip and a matching pair of black eyes..."

Jerry's rage had burst free so powerfully that he didn't even notice his voice climbing higher and higher in pitch as he yelled at her - but he shut up, horrified, as he felt the sensation of his lips becoming fuller and more feminine - while his vision was suddenly altered by his eyes becoming darker and more expressive as the lashes grew longer and thicker.

Realizing what he'd just done, Jerry gasped in horrified shock, altered eyes flying wide and now slender, arched eyebrows shooting upwards in shock.

"Oh, fuck..." Jerry shouted to a now very confused woman - and he turned and yanked open the door to the store he was currently beside, seeking refuge inside before things got out of hand. As he blundered blindly into the store, he could hear the woman drawing breath to respond - and he knew that if he was there to hear whatever remarks she was planning, he'd probably loose it again - and make things much, much worse.

Staggering to a stop in the center of the store he'd entered, Jerry looked up to find the cashier and ask to use the phone to call a cab...

...and found himself staring at a pair of big, bulging tits straining to burst free from the skimpy clothing that barely contained it. Jerry, making a horrified squeak, tore his eyes from the cover of the video in front of himself - and found himself staring at another, equally lewd box-cover.

He'd walked right into the middle of a XXX-rated video store.

"Can I help..." The man behind the counter began to ask the strange looking person in the center of the store... When she screamed in a high-pitched, panic-stricken voice.

Stunned into silence, the cashier stared, eyes widening, as the person's long-lashed eyes snapped shut and she staggered towards the back of the store....

...as she began to change.

The cashier began to make an odd, gibbering sound as the ... woman's? hair began to cascade down her back from under her ball- cap, while her face seemed to writhe and change. It was hard for him to notice exactly how the face was changing - because he was staring, instead, at her chest - which was billowing outwards rapidly, her tits thrusting ever larger against the wet fabric around them, pulling the front of the shirt higher and higher as the fabric tried to cover more and more area. As it rode up, it exposed a waist that seemed to be shrinking in on itself....

...then the strange person's changes stopped, as she continued to stagger around, eyes squeezed painfully shut.

"Door!" She shouted in a high-pitched voice rife with panic. "Out... I have to get out..!" Her slender, long-nailed fingers flew to her crotch and she screamed shrilly, smashing into a display rack and knocking it sprawling as she bashed around, making a whimpering sound in the back of her throat.

Stunned and shaken, the cashier dashed out from behind the counter. Hesitating, he forced himself to reach out and grab her arm. "This way.. the doors this way.." He said, hauling on her arm - and staring at the huge tits that were now barely covered, the wet cloth reaching just inches below the prominent nipples that poked from her volleyball-sized tits.

The woman was obviously having trouble balancing against the sudden weight of her big, spherical new tits, and she was sobbing and moaning as the cashier hurriedly guided her through the store-room and out the back door.

The woman staggered off the step, hands now inside her jeans and groping at her crotch.

"You're.. outside now.." the cashier stammered, trying to figure out what the hell was going on.

The woman's eyes popped open - and the cashier recoiled slightly from the mad-sad-crazy-panicked look in her huge, bright blue eyes.

"Cunt!" She shouted at him in a tear-filled soprano. "I've got a cunt!" She tried to look down at her hands, and found herself gazing at the upper slope of those huge, round tits - and she gasped again. "..and tits! I mean... big fucking tits!"

Shaking his head, that cashier muttered "The hell with this." Pulling himself inside the store, he closed and locked the back door, then went into the main area and began fixing the display rack, trying to convince himself that nothing at all had just happened.

For Jerry, that was a harder task. Stunned, horrified, disgusted and afraid, he...

...no, Jerry thought with a shudder - now, it was 'she'. She staggered down the alley, tears dripping from her eyes and increasing the humiliation she felt at the sudden shift in gender.

"Damn you..." She sobbed, not even knowing the person she was damning - the unnamed, unknown person of people who had done this to her. "Damn you all to hell.. I don't deserve this..."

She almost smacked into a wall, and stopped dead while she looked around, ready to snap her eyes shut at the slightest sign of anything that would make the situation worse.

She was at the dead-end of the alleyway. The alley wasn't all that long, and it turned a ninety-degree angle at the very end, where it came up against the brick wall of an old commercial-industrial building that had been gutted by fire some time ago. She was standing in the shadow of the looming brick shell of the building, right where the inset loading dock sat under a five-foot-deep overhang of brick arches.

Not willing to brave the streets, Jerry found herself staggering awkwardly towards the worn stairs leading up the three-foot height of the loading dock, seeking shelter in the shadows of the dock itself. The weight and bounce of her new tits made it awkward, as did the fit of her boots on her now-small feet. Staggering up the steps, she headed to the back corner of the graffiti-covered loading dock...

...and, in the deepest, darkest shadow, found a door. Pausing, she pulled it open.

She had no idea what the room had been when the building was in use. It was fairly small - but somebody had put the space to use. A cracked mirror hung on the far wall, and a mattress and box spring were supported by a series of wooden crates. Another crate, upended, had a board nailed to it to serve as a table, and a Coleman lantern, some matches, and a half-dozen empty booze bottles littered its pitted and scarred surface.

Not caring whose space it might be, Jerry saw it as a refuge from what was happening to her, and staggered inside. Pulling the door shut behind her, she fumbled in the pocket of her coat and pulled out her lighter. Using its flame to guide her, she used one of the long wooden matches to light the Coleman lantern. Since she had the lighter out anyway, she fished out the cigarettes and lit one, placing the pack and lighter on the table while she concentrated on absolutely nothing else but enjoying the cigarette. For five minutes or so, she escaped her problems completely while she smoked the cigarette down to the filter. Reluctantly, she butted the smoke out in a tin can obviously used for that purpose - then, hesitantly, hating to look but needing to know, she approached the dusty, cracked mirror to look at her transformed body. Peeling off her wet clothing, she tossed it over a rope hung down the side of the room to dry, then licked her lips nervously and looked her nude reflection full-on in the mirror.

An odd 'parody' of a sexy woman stared back at her.

She had been changed by her own actions and reactions, the changes centered on the parts of a woman that she had focused on. The parts that she had more or less 'ignored' had changed less than the rest of her, creating a woman far from her own 'ideal'.

Her face, for example - the lips were amazingly full and sensual, and her eyes were big, blue, and vapid-looking, right down to the long lashes that surrounded them.

Her face, itself, however, was still somewhat squarish, and her nose was only slightly changed, looking large - but not freakish so - on her altered face.

Her head was surrounded by a silky mane of brassy blonde hair - but the shoulders that hair cascaded over were broad, for a woman, though not as broad as they had been. Her arms were smooth and feminine in appearance - but a well-muscled version of femininity.

Her entire body reflected this mix, leaving her looking like a tall, broad-shouldered, athletically-built woman - with big, round tits, a spectacular ass, and the face of an athletic bimbo.

"Oh... my.. God..." She said to her reflection, hearing the high-pitched voice that emerged from her lips - so high and breathy it seemed incapable of voicing any intelligent thoughts whatsoever.

In shock from her transformation, unable to deal with herself right now, Jerry numbly walked over to the mattress on the crates. Though a faintly musty smell rose from the bed, she ignored that and climbed into it, laying down in the rumpled sheets and pulling the worn but serviceable comforter over her altered body.

Leaning over, she turned off the Coleman lantern, then lay back against the big foam pillows, closing her eyes. "I'll just sleep..." She told herself, numbly. "And when I wake up, it will all be over..."

She actually meant that she was planning to sleep past the twenty-four hour deadline, so that nothing else about her would change...

...but part of her was also desperately praying that she'd wake up and find that this had all been some sort of horrible nightmare.

Laying there in the dark, Jerry tried to shut her mind down completely. So much had happened in such a short space of time, she couldn't cope with it - she just wanted to drift into the warm safety of sleep and forget about it. But that was hard to do - because she was all-too-aware of the sensations from her altered body. She was aware of the way her fuller, firmer ass felt underneath her. She was aware of the weight of her new tits as her chest rose and fell with each breath. She could feel the long, golden mane of hair around her head and shoulders. She could feel the way her smaller, long-nailed hand felt as it slid across her smooth new crotch. She was aware of the way her big, firm tit felt under her other hand as it fondled and squeezed it. She was aware of the way her fuller lips felt as her tongue...

What!

Gasping, Jerry yanked her hands away from her body. Without even thinking about it - without even being consciously aware of it - she'd begun to fondle herself, one hand fondling her new tits, gliding over the firm-yet-resilient surface and lightly teasing her swollen nipples. Cupping and lightly squeezing her huge tits as her other hand slid down her flat belly to the vee of her smooth new crotch, lightly gliding over the outer lips of her new cunt before pausing - and sliding a finger deep inside the warm, wet embrace of...

"What I am doing?" Jerry gasped to herself as her finger penetrated her new womanhood, her other hand working longingly at her new tit. She was feeling herself up - and about to masturbate.

Horrified and disgusted, she hauled her hands away from herself again, her finger cooling rapidly as the juices coating it cooled in the air... then warming equally as fast as she slid it deep into her cunt, thrusting it - then another one - deep into her cunt, sliding them with delicious friction across her highly sensitive new clit.

"Wha.. what am I doing!" Jeri asked herself, her voice near panic as she continued to finger her new cunt, almost frantically. "What am I... Why.. I.."

Slowly her voice calmed, the high-pitched panic giving away to a warm, mellow soprano. "..I... it.. oh, yes.. that feels goood"

Full, soft lips curled in a dreamy - and vapid - smile, Jeri continued to finger-fuck herself, moving her hips in rhythm with her hand as her other hand roamed over her altered body, fondling it.

"Oh, this is wonderful..." She moaned to herself, with a small giggle, as she grew nearer and nearer to orgasm. Her eyes had slid shut, and she was making the bead creak with her rhythmic motions - completely and utterly lost in a daze, no longer truly conscious of what she was doing.

Then she moaned, loudly, as a relatively 'weak' orgasm ripped through her body, and she slowed her hand until it eventually stopped. With that now-wet hand still between her legs, she curled up into a ball, her other arm across her new tits, and drifted off to sleep with a big, silly grin on her new lips.

* * * * *

"Who the fuck are you, and what the hell are you doin' in my John-joint!"

Angry voice. Angry female voice - and it was directed at him. Jerry stirred - but something in his half-awake mind insisted that everything would be much better if he stayed asleep. Besides - for some reason he didn't feel well.

Then whoever was disturbing him shook him. "Get you ass outta my bed, bitch - I've got work to do. This ain't no fuckin' Motel Six!"

Jerry had started the slide back into blessed oblivion - that pulled him back towards the surface. "Get lost, you brain-dead bitch..." Jerry muttered, half asleep....

...then she stiffened and her brain froze as she registered the high-pitched voice that had started the instinctive insult - and the even higher-pitched one that had finished it.

Horried, her eyes popped open, and Jeri rolled over...

Black woman. Just barely this side of thirty, but in fairly good shape - which was easy to see, as she was half naked, in the middle of changing out of the simple jeans and T-shirt she'd arrived in. In hand was her 'working clothes', defining her 'profession' - Tight black leather skirt. White spandex crop-top. Knee-high black leather boots.

Jeri barely notice what was in her hands - as her eyes had instinctively gone to the woman who, because of the height of the bed and the woman's own height - was practically shoving her bare - and obviously saline-enhanced - chest, flat stomach and crotch into Jeri's face.

Big, round, firm tits and - framed by the open fly of the jeans - a neatly trimmed cunt, only inches away from Jeri's staring eyes...

"Oh, shit - no!" Jeri screamed in her high-pitched new voice, slamming her eyes shut...

...but it was too late. Presented with a nearly nude woman on display, she'd instinctively leered, like always - and it was time to pay the price.

"What the fuck !" the black hooker shouted, dropping her stuff in shock and scrambling back from the bed. She'd pulled the comforter off the woman sleeping there when she'd come in - and so was in a perfect position to watch as Jeri's already big tits suddenly swelled outward, running through the alphabet of cup-sizes as she went from the size of volleyballs, right on past basketballs, until they finally stalled on a size just a bit bigger the medicine balls - and almost as firmly spherical, with enormous, cold-engorged nipples thrust from their bright-pink aureole.

"Oh, fuck - this shit's too weird for me." the black woman said, back peddling. "Take the damned bed!" Turning, the hooker fled - half naked - out into the night.

Leaving Jeri alone.

With her further transformed body.

"No " She moaned, gasping a choked sob at the high-pitched voice it emerged in. Her hands hesitantly went to her chest, and another sob escaped her as her hands felt the massive, round surface of the tits under her hands...

...a sob that turned into a soft sigh, a small smile forming on her lips as her hands began to caress her tits, lightly squeezing and fondling them.

Then she stopped and frowned in confusion, slowly pulling her hands away from her massive new tits. Awkwardly, she rose from the bed and walked over to the mirror.

"My God.." She breathed, staring at her self wide-eyed. I.. I'm a freak!"

She shifted her gaze from the mirror to her breasts themselves, then back to the mirror.

"I look so... weird." She said to herself. "I mean - not really, I guess. I guess I look like a normal woman... except "

Slowly, she smiled and struck a sexy pose. "Except for my huge, gorgeous tits. Mmmm.... they're so perfect " She slid her hands across her massive tits, smiling at her reflection...

...then gasped, and snapped her gaze from the strangely seductive reflection in the mirror. "What the hell am I doing?" She shouted at herself in her high-pitched, bimbo-ish voice.

Even as she asked herself the question, she knew the answer - and it made her shudder.

The 'punishments' were piling on top of each other. Not only was her body changing, every time she did something 'degrading' to women - but it was also affecting her mind. It was making her act the way 'Male Jerry' thought a woman like 'Female Jeri' should act.

What was really frightening her was the fact that she was having a hard time telling which thoughts were from 'Jerry', and which ones were from Jeri.

Her mind was a roiling mass of confusion, conflicting and diametrically opposed thoughts struggling for precedence, with her having no way to differentiate between the 'real' thoughts and the 'imposed' thoughts. It was as if there were two, equally loud, voices yelling instructions at her, a garbled noise that thundered through her head and made it throb.

"What's happening to me?" She asked, plaintively, though she - partially - knew the answer to that. She could remember something about a letter, and some sort of curse...

...but the thought was swept away in the sea of confusion. She couldn't hold onto any coherent thought at all, her mind skipping and jumping about randomly, drowning in a sea of conflicting ideas and thoughts.

Confused and scared, Jeri was near the edge of panic, and could only think that she had to get home - though that was a fleeting image that was hard to focus on as if home was an idea more than a concrete location.

Looking around, she realized that she was naked, and that there was clothing to be had. She gathered up all the clothing and put it on the bed....

...then stared at it, dumbly, for several seconds. Then she whimpered.

The different parts of her brain were urging her to put on the 'right' clothing, not the 'wrong' clothing - yet both parts were shouting equally loud, and she couldn't decide which one was the one to listen to - and she certainly couldn't put on all the clothing.

"What...?" She asked herself, out loud, nibbling at her lower lip. "What do I wear?" Then - inspiration!

"I'll wear what I was wearing before!" She said, giggling at her own genius. Ha - she wasn't as helpless as she thought. Now.. if she could only remember what she was wearing...

Closing her eyes and sucking on her lower lip, she balled her hands into fists and concentrated really, really hard....

..and a momentary flash came to mind - of the blue jeans.

Relaxing with a smile, she grabbed the jeans and began to put them on. It turned out to be a real struggle - they were so incredibly tight

- but she finally managed to force her way into the second-skin-like pants.

"Goodie!" She applauded herself, clapping her hands together in glee - she was doing it! She was beating whatever had been done to her.

Now, what else ?

Another bout of really, really hard concentration.. and she saw something white...

Frowning, she picked up the two white articles of clothing and looked at them doubtfully, trying to ignore the diametrically opposed screaming in her mind as to which one was the right one.

First, she tried on the tank-top like undershirt and it was nearly impossible to get on over her huge, firm tits. In fact - it was so distracting, trying to get in on over her tits, that she ended up spending several minutes in mindless fondling of her massive...

"No! I shouldn't do that!" She told herself, firmly, yanking her hands away from her tits. "I shouldn't do that because "

Then she stopped dead - and stared at her reflection in shock.

"What.. which.." She stammered, shaking her head. She knew that her body wasn't the same as it was before. She'd changed, somehow, in the past little while - but she couldn't remember exactly how she'd changed, or what she'd looked like originally.

"Oh.. my.. god !" She said, wide eyed. "Who am I?"

Frightened at the prospect of losing her identity, Jeri closed her eyes and tried to bring back an image of who she'd been, originally.

Images flashed through her brain, random and chaotic... and then she remembered the most recent event, her horror at having her...

"My tits grew!" She said, in relief - although she didn't have a clear image of who she had been, she was sure that she'd had smaller tits that had grown. She could remember her smaller tits, crammed into that white garment she vaguely remembered.

Since this one obviously wasn't intended for tits at all, it must be the other one!

With a smile, she pulled on the crop-top, finding that it fit very, very tightly and left a lot of her tits hanging out the top, sides and bottom - but it stretched enough to fit her, and was obviously designed to hold tits.

Relieved to be getting a handle on things, she looked at the rest of the clothing, concentrating hard.

There were two pairs of boots - but that wasn't that hard to decide, since only one pair came close to fitting her. Smiling cheerfully, she quickly pulled on the black leather knee-highs, and zipped them up.

"Whoa..!" She said, wobbling as she rose to stand on the six inch spike heels. For a second she was scared she'd made the wrong choice, and almost changed them - then realized that her much, much bigger tits would be pulling her off balance.

"Silly me!" She told herself for doubting such obvious logic as the fit.

Using a strip of fabric torn from the useless undershirt, she tied her hair into a pony-tail to keep it out of the way, then pulled the pony tail through the hole at the back of her ball-cap and put it on. Picking up her lighter and cigarettes, she looked in the mirror and smiled at the reflection that looked back...

..then frowned, remembering she shouldn't be proud of the way she looked, because it wasn't 'really' her.

"Oh well." She told her reflection. "I can't remember what else they changed... but these tits look great, even if they are a newsun... nuse... pain in the ass!"

Turning - carefully - she left the room, letting her hips and ass sway and rotate to help counter-act her huge new tits, forcing her to take short, mincing little steps. She had to stop walking completely to light up a cigarette, or she would have fallen over.

Leaving the alley, she turned the corner - and almost ran into two handsome young men walking down the sidewalk.

"Well... hello there!" The one on the right said, staring at her chest. His friend was doing that too - he just didn't seem up to speaking. Which was okay, since any guys as incredibly hot as...

"Oh!" Jeri exclaimed, hand flying to her lips in fear. "Something wrong?" the one on the right asked.

Jeri almost went into a full blown panic - then suddenly relaxed and smiled. "Oh, silly me - It's women I'm not supposed to have sexy thoughts about!"

The guys shared a look. "Because that would be lesbo?" the one on the right asked.

Jeri blinked, and struggled to concentrate - then smiled brilliantly. "That must be it! Gee, why didn't I think of that. It makes sense!"

A thrill went through her at knowing - again - why this punishment was being done to her. She must have done something lesbian, and now they were trying to teach her not to have those perverted thoughts again....

..or something like that.

"So " The one on the left - who had dark hair, while his friend had blond hair, but not the same color as hers, 'cause hers was a lot lighter - and longer, though they might not know that because they hadn't looked behind her and might think she had short hair and...

"What?" She asked, realizing that the dark-haired one had said something. the two guys were looking at each other oddly, but the dark-haired one repeated his question without any sign of being upset. "I asked where a gorgeous creature like you was off to on a night like this."

Jeri's grin faltered, and she frowned. "I'm going... going..." She held up a finger. "Wait, I know this one... just give me a sec "

She didn't notice the yet another look the two guys shared.

"Home!" She said with a triumphant smile, snapping her fingers. "I'm going home!" "Where's that?" the blond one asked, carefully.

"I... don't know " Jeri admitted, shoulders slumping.

"Does it say where, on you identification?"

"Yes!" Jeri said, happily - she was so lucky to run into a couple of studs who were not only incredibly handsome, but amazingly smart...

"Oh - I don't seem to have it with me."

"Do you remember your name?" the brunette asked.

"Silly!" Jeri told him, shaking her head. "Of course I know my own name - it's Jeri Connell."

"Hi, Jeri - I'm Mark, and this is Don." The blond said, gesturing, then he suggested "Why don't we check a phone book for you address?"

What a great idea! Jeri was so lucky to find these helpful guys. They were so smart - and built, too, with perfect, muscular bodies and - judging from their crotches - cocks that...

"That would be great!" She said, stepping between the two guys and sliding a hand around each of their waists - she didn't want to loose such a valuable resource before she was safely home. They were obviously really on the ball.

The walked arm-in-arm towards the phone booth on the corner - and she couldn't help but notice the way they were staring at her huge tits.

"Oh... my tits.." She said, apologetically, as the guys flushed and looked up. "I did something recently, and now I'm a lot bigger then I was before."

"Oh..." they said, a little nonplused.

"I.. guess they look freakish, huh?" Jeri said, looking down at her awesome chasm of cleavage.

"No - I like them." The blond's (Matt? Mike? Something like that) reassurance was intermingled with "Hell, no!" from the brunette. (Ron? John?)

"Really?" Jeri asked, lighting up. "They're a real pain in the ass and everything - but do they really look good to you?" the two guys shared a look. "Well - honestly, we're tit guys. most guys would think they're to big - but we love them."

Jeri giggled at her luck. Whoever was doing this had made her tits really, really big to punish her, making guys disgusted by her freakish tits - and she was lucky enough to find guys who liked 'em big! Guess the.. whoever was responsible for this wasn't as smart as they thought!

The blonde one looked through the book, then looked up. "Oh - there's only one Connell listed - a 'G. Connell'." Jeri blinked. "Oh - Jeri's a short form, for..."

They waited for a second as she struggled with the thought - then the blond suggested. "Geraldine?" "I guess so." Jeri said, with a grin. "So - how do I get home?"

"Well..." The brunet suggested, "We have a car parked down the street a ways. We'll give you a lift." "Great! Thanks Matt!"

"Uh.. Mark." The blond said, slowly, then again, with more emphasis. "Maaark." "Oh - right." Jeri agreed, looking at the brunet. "Uh... Don?"

"Right!" He said with a huge grin - and a certain look at Mark, who rolled his eyes.

* * * * *

"Oh, I'm so glad!" Jeri said, holding the ID. Card that confirmed that they had 'broken into' the right apartment, after all. Mark had displayed amazing agility, climbing up the five sets of balconies to get in through the window that had been open a crack - for several minutes, he'd been hanging precariously as he'd forced the window open enough to get in and unlock the front door.

They'd begun to worry at the sight of the living-rooms 'decor', which didn't seem to indicate any trace of her presence - but this had reassured them all. Though she couldn't remember how the wooden box had ended up on the kitchen table, a quick check through its little compartments had revealed jewelry, credit cards, a wad of cash - and her ID.

She knew who she was, finally - though the picture worried her slightly. It looked mostly like her, but there were several differences that finally filled in some of the blanks about what had changed about her - like this big nose she was now cursed with.

She figured she could have a plastic surgeon take care of that, though. "So.. I guess we should.." Don trailed off, expectantly.

Jeri blinked, trying to figure out what he was waiting for.

"You should what?" Jeri asked, confused, still unable to think clearly. Not wanting to upset such helpful, handsome hunks, she quickly added: "But whatever it is you 'should - it's fine with me."

"Huh?" Mark asked.

She grinned. "You guys are so nice to me, helping me and everything - and you're really good looking, too. Since I don't know what to do, now that I'm home, whatever you guys want to do is fine."

The guys shared a very long look.

"Uh.. what if we wanted to.." Don started...

Mark nudged him in the ribs, sharply. "...hang around?"

"Sure!" Jeri said, happily. "Sit down, get comfortable - I'm just gonna put this away." She picked up the wooden box and headed off towards the bedroom. Stepping inside, she walked over to the dresser and placed the box on it, then decided she might as well change into something more comfortable, if she could find anything that would fit.

Walking over to the closet, she slid it open...

..and stared in confusion. "What the...?"

Worriedly, she flipped through the clothing inside - none of which matched her body in any way. A ribbon of fear ran through her at the thought she might have screwed up, after all - in the entire apartment, only the box and its contents seemed to be hers.

Worried, she looked around the room for another confirmation that this was her place, and not somebody else's.

Almost frantic, she was groping under the bed when her hand encountered something, and she yanked it out into the light. It was a magazine.

A porno magazine.

For a long second, Jeri stared at the cover, uncomprehendingly, seeing the picture of a man and woman posed very suggestively.

Two different messages clamored in her brain as she stared almost mindlessly at the image - then, slowly and numbly, began to flip through the pages...

* * * * *

"You moron - she said she would do anything!" Don complained, keeping his voice low.

"C'mon, man - you know she's too stupid to know what she sounded like she was saying!" Mark argued.

"Maybe - maybe not!" Don rebutted. "You heard her talk about how handsome we are - and do see the way she dresses? The way she walks? The way she talks? So, she's a little on the tall and broad-shouldered side. She'll never win the Miss America pageant. But she's got a killer bod, boobs out to here - and she's a god-damn gen-u-wine bimbo!"

"I..." Mark started to reply - when the sound of high-heels clicking on the faded linoleum floor indicated that Jeri was returning. The guys turned, expectantly...

..and their jaws dropped.

The woman who mincingly jiggled and swayed into the room looked a lot like Jeri - but there were things about her that were considerably different, too.

She still wore the same leather boots as before - but now they were folded down at the top, coming to mid-calve...

..and displaying more of the incredibly long, sexy legs that the jeans she'd been wearing before shouldn't have been able to make look so 'merely nice' before.

She was now wearing a pair of jean cut-off shorts - that hugged her hips and ass like a second skin. Hugged hips and ass that seemed even fuller and more womanly than they had in the jeans.

Her waist, previously on the somewhat thick side, was now tiny - absolutely infinitesimal, and since she was still wearing the same crop- top as before, it couldn't be an illusion created by different clothing.

Her massive, gigantic, incredibly round tits seemed to be about the same - but, then again, if they'd been any bigger she probably would have fallen over. The shoulders above those massive tits, though, seemed significantly slimmer, softer, more gracefully feminine - as did the arms attached to them, and the long, slender neck above them. The neck that was topped by a heart-shaped face that bore the same amazingly full, sensual lips and huge, empty blue eyes - but now posted a tiny, pert little nose. Her once largish ears were now small and dainty from where they peeked out of her now-loose - and utterly massive - mane of platinum-blond hair.

With short, almost silly-looking steps that caused her huge tits to jiggle and sway outrageously while making her hips and ass 'work' spectacularly, she moved across the room to where the guys sat, stunned.

"Hi!" She said, smiling - and there seemed to be no trace of intelligence in her huge blue eyes or her high-pitched, gigglish voice. "Will you kiss me?"

Mark managed to find his voice - sort of. "Uh..."

That seemed to be enough of an answer for Jeri - as she seemed to melt into his lap, smiling up at him while she waited, expectantly. Mark didn't disappoint her. Bending his head, he kissed her - hesitantly, at first, then with growing passion.

She responded.. incredibly. He'd never experienced a kiss quite like it in his life. She was always following his lead, never trying to 'take control' of the kiss, seeming to be quite content with simply trying to make the kiss he was giving her the most utterly pleasurable one he'd ever had.

She succeeded.

When they finally broke for air, she giggled. "I just wanted to be kissed." She shrugged, to truly intriguing things to her torso. "I don't know why, but it seemed like it was the most important thing in the world all the sudden."

"Oh..?" Don managed.

"Yup." Jeri smiled. "Aren't my tits fantastic?" Don blinked. "Uh..."

"Wanna play with them?" she asked, giggling. It turned out that he did.

After he'd fondled them for a while - while she occasionally lifted his face from her tits to accept a kiss - she turned to Mark. "Say - I give really good blow-jobs. Let me show you "

As it turned out - and as both men would later attest to their friends, at great length, she did give fantastic, enthusiastic head....

..and tit fucks...

..and she was great in bed - in every position....

When they finally stumbled out of her apartment in the wee small hours of the morning, it was almost a frantic escape from her apparently insatiable, gleefully sexual appetite, their cocks utterly depleted and unable to provide any more of what she so obviously craved.

As they climbed into their car, Don looked over at Mark with weary satisfaction. "See? I told you so."

"Oh, shut up."

* * * * *

Jerry stirred, wincing at the light that streamed in the window - he must have slept halfway through the morning, something he almost never did.

Feeling groggy, confused, and extremely strange, he wondered if he'd gone on a bender last night. If so, he figured he must have gotten laid, because he could smell the scent of sex in the room, even half-asleep.

Groaning, he sat up...

..or, at least, tried to. there seemed to be something on his chest.

Blinking, he forced himself into a sitting position, wondering why he felt so weak...

..and found himself staring down at an absolutely enormous pair of tits.

"What the ?" He started to shout - that his mouth snapped shut at the sound of the incredible, high-pitched, feminine voice the words emerged in.

Shocked, his hands flew to his body - and, roaming over the smooth crotch and huge tits, found that he could no longer claim it as his. "Holy shit!" He screamed. "I've got a cunt! And tits! Huge tits! Gigantic.. firm.. tits "

Slowly, his voice slid quieter and quieter, as she began to smile.

"Huge, gorgeous, made-for-making-men-happy tits!" She finished, with a giggle. Smiling happily and thinking about all the wonderful sex she'd had last night, Jeri tried to make her mind work in some sort of semblance of order - thoughts of fucking and sucking kept intruding on her attempts to think. Still, she managed to make a rudimentary plan for today - go shopping for sexy clothes to get men hot, find a job as a stripper - and fuck and suck any cock she could along the way.

Giggling happily, Jeri headed for the bathroom to take a long, warm shower and masturbate - not realizing that she was doomed to experience the first few, groggy moments after waking as 'Jerry', before her personality (what little of it there was) re-established its hold on her.

That was the plan that the Council of Sisters had set up, sure that Jerry's nature would condemn him to this fate - though, not even they knew just how far the transformation would go. When they checked in on her a week later - after tidying up the loose ends of 'Jerry's' disappearance, not that anybody really cared about one less scuz-ball on the planet - they found they outcome not only satisfactory, but eminently just. If they'd set it up so that the new Jeri never knew who she'd been, it wouldn't have been nearly as effective. So, they'd made sure that the confusion and conflicting thoughts she experienced all day long would be missing for those first few minutes every day, so that he'd get to experience the horror of the punishment each and every day of her life.

However m- powerful as they may be, the Council wasn't omnipotent, and they couldn't have possibly foreseen the outcome of this particular punishment...

* * * * *

SEVEN YEAR LATER

Cursing in the echoing silence of his 'pretty little' head, Jerry struggled to hold on for an instant longer, hoping - against hope - that today would be the day he finally made the break-through he so desperately needed in the living hell of his shadowy life.

For the first year or so of his new life, Jerry's few moments a day as himself had been spent in horrified realization and disgust. He'd gone through every stage of emotion one could think of through those years, in the few minutes he had each day to be 'him'.

However - over time, like anything else, the horror and disgust began to pale. Not vanish, or even diminish - he just grew used to them. To the point that he began to be able to plan, to expect each morning's few moments of 'life'. Jerry wasn't wiped away, after all - he was just limited to a few moments ever day of life.

He began to put this odd, shadowy existence to use.

His first, half-coherent action had been an attempt to kill himself. For two and a half months straight, he'd struggled to reach the kitchen

- and a nice, big knife - before loosing himself to 'the bimbo'. He'd never succeeded.

Which, now, he found to be a good thing - as, since then, he'd been working on a new plan. One that he desperately hoped would work.

If only...

Then, once more, he felt himself swirling away in the confusion of Jeri's mind, and he hoped...

"Hmmm.." Jeri blinked with a smile. She'd never realized how unusual her mornings were, always seeming to wake up in the middle of something - something her lovers remarked on, the few times they'd been able to wake up so 'early' after a night of her 'attentions'.

So she wasn't really surprised to find herself holding what seemed to be a scrap-book. She even knew about the scrap-book, as it was the one she kept in the drawer beside her bed, with all sorts of hot photos she'd collected of herself and her lover(s) at the time.

Then she frowned in confusion as she saw what she was looking at. She had been filling the book from the front, of course - though, with her, nothing was 'of course'. The book, however, was open to the very last page.

There was writing on it, written in what appeared to be a dozen different pens, with the occasional pencil thrown in, as if the writer had switched writing implements ever two dozen words or so. There was also two pictures in the page, both of a man she thought was kinda hunky-looking.

Shrugging, Jeri leaned forward and tried to figure out what all the writing was about, thinking that one of her lovers might have left it - and hoping it would have the phone number of the hunky guy in the picture.

Instead - it seemed to be a bunch of stuff about a few years ago. It started off with 'remember when?', and - frowning - she managed to bring back vague memories of some of the stuff it mentioned, especially Mark and Don...

..her first lovers? That's what the words said, and she couldn't remember any guys before then, but surely it...

She continued reading, glancing up at one point to frown at the wooden box she kept her jewelry and stuff in, then going back to her laborious reading, full lips working slowly as she waded through the word on the paper, trying to force herself to remember all the stuff it kept hinting at.

When she reached the bottom of the page, she tried to figure out what the letter was getting at - but she just couldn't. It didn't make any sense to her.

Nor did it the next morning, when she woke with it on her lap again. Or the next.

Or the next. Or the next.

She tried to ignore it - but on the fifth day of ignoring it, she awoke with it scotch-taped to her tits, which had hurt to pull off, and big black letter had been written on the cover telling her that it wouldn't stop until she got it.

So, she studied that damned letter again - and still couldn't figure it out that day. Or the next.

Or the next... Or the...

Or...

She certainly wasn't up to keeping track of the days, so there was no way she could know that it was nearly eight months later. What she did now was that she'd read the letter so many times over that it had slowly begun imprinting itself on her vaporous mind. Where other things had a tenuous grip at best, the letter had managed to make a foothold through sheer repetition...

..to the point that it was almost as good as a normal person's comprehension would be, after reading it once.

On that fateful day, she was frowning over the letter again, as usual, working it out in her head, re-dredging up the memories for the millionth (well, two-hundred-and-forty-second) time...

...when something, finally, clicked - and her huge, bright blue eyes showed comprehension for the first time in ages as they flew to the pictures and made the vital connection.

For the first time in seven years, nine months and twelve days, Jerry and Jeri 'met' - and, in that one, blazing instant - united. "I'm him!" She shouted. "I mean... I'm me! I am Jerry Connell! I am a man!"

A man... trapped in the body of a huge-breasted, incredibly sexy woman.

A body that had come to enjoy, immensely, the attentions of men - but could no longer take pure, innocent pleasure from sex.

The body of a woman whose only marketable skill was being a stripper - but who would no longer find the job new and exciting and mindlessly unrepentative every day.

The seven years of Jeri Jugg's life merged with the alert, fully functioning mind of Jerry Connell, tempered by seven long years of a shadowy half-life where 'he' had been forced to experience (and, in a way, come to terms with) 'his' new life - without ever having to live that life or consciously perform any of the actions that it consisted of.

"Oh... shit..." She said, now-alert eyes widening in shocked comprehension at what, exactly, she'd done to herself - as, for the first time, both personas in the outrageously proportioned body merged into a single, coherent - and intelligent - mind.

Slowly, with a shocked look, she put aside the scrapbook and rose to her feet. Walking across the frilly pink-and-white bedroom in her new apartment, Jeri approached one of the numerous full-length mirrors in her room, and stared at her naked, mind-boggling, over-endowed sex-pot body. Slowly, hesitantly, she raised her hands to her huge tits, remembering all the joy these massive tits - her entire body - had given her. Seven years as dulled the edge off her horror and disgust, allowing her to view the new sexuality of her new gender with equanimity, even anticipation - but that mindless, innocent enjoyment of it was gone, as was it with every aspect of the life she'd inherited. She could still take pleasure in life - but, like every one else on the planet, she would now be forced to 'see' the bad with the good, to know and understand the implications of everything she did - to face reality, instead of living in a mindless - but happy - fog.

" 'Behold, the man has become like one of Us, knowing Good and Evil...' " she quoted, softly, the pensive tone sounding definitely out-of-place in her soprano tones. " '...therefore the Lord God sent him out from the garden of Eden.' "

Then, slowly, a smile formed on her full lips - a wicked, intelligent smile unlike the ditzy, mindless one that had resided there for so very long.

"I think it's time I re-negotiated my contract." She told her reflection, striking a sensual pose unlike her usual, good-natured-but-loose-jointed mincing. "This is one blonde 'bimbo' who's about to become veeeeery smart..."

Jeri laughed, a full, rich sound that managed to be more - and less - than the ditzy giggle she'd used for the past seven years.

A laugh that redoubled and filled with irony at the realization that she had, indeed, learned her lesson - she was finally able to see how she'd behaved, how she, as a man, had treated women as nothing more than sexual objects...

...and she was about to use that knowledge, turning it about and applying it to her own, feminine life so she could become a very wealthy woman.

As I said - life can be funny that way, sometimes.

Well, I hope you've enjoyed listening to this little tale as much as I've enjoyed telling it. Now, though, the fire is down to its embers, and the bottle to its dregs. It would seem a perfect time and place to let this scene draw to a close, and wend my way home.

Perhaps, sometime, we shall meet again.

I have another tale you might find of interest, then....

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: After making a casual remark, a young man finds himself in the company of the devil who has decided to transform him into a woman on Thanksgiving day.

A Hell Of A Day

By Gunslinger

"Alex..."

"Mmmpph ?"

"Alex time to wakey-wakey!"

Grawning (A mixed groan and yawn), Alexander Bartholomew Greyson stretched his hands over his head and stretched his muscular arms across the headboard as his eyes flickered open....

...and he sat bolt upright, his dark eyes widening in alarm. "Who the hell are you, and how the hell did you get in here!"

The man sitting in the chair positioned at the end of the bed smiled, revealing unnaturally white, even teeth. "Right on both counts." He replied enigmatically, his voice smooth and deep.

Alex's eyes narrowed, and he flexed his arms overtly. Although the olive-skinned stranger in the tailored suit appeared to have an athletic build, with wide enough shoulders and a trim waist, he was no where close to Alex's massive muscularity - aside for the lack of an accent and the fact his hair was a deep russet (now in disarray from sleep), Alex could have been an 'Arnie' clone, with massive muscles and a square-jawed face. Despite the odd circumstances, Alex was now past that initial fright, and beginning to feel a little more confident.

"What's that supposed to mean?"

"A thousand pardons - allow me to introduce myself." Somehow, despite the fact he was sitting. The stranger managed to convey the impression of a deep bow. "I am The King of Hell, the Prince of Lies, the Fallen Angel - Lucifer."

Alex blinked, then smirked. "Hold on - you're saying you're the devil?"

The darkly handsome stranger spread his hands. "Satan, Beelzebub, Apollyon, Belial, Leviathan - I have a thousand names and more. But to answer the basic premise - yes, I am the Judeo-Christian anti-deity who is popularly viewed as a horned, red-skinned beast who rules the nefarious underworld."

Alex snorted. "Riiiiight. And I'm a three-toed sloth."

The dusky man in the Saville Row suit shrugged. "If you wish."

There was no puff of foul smelling smoke, no flash of light, no mysterious hand movements - just a few seconds of queasiness and an odd, tingling sensation as Alex felt his form writhe and reshape itself...

...into a three-toed sloth.

Then, after a few moments to allow Alex to truly comprehend what had just happened, Satan negligently flipped his wrist - and in seconds it was once more Alex's usual mass of muscle that housed his spirit.

"Holy shit!" Alex screamed, scrambling as far back in the bed as he could, his muscular legs continuing to push him even farther back, even though his back was flat against an oak headboard that would take a Mack truck to break - much less the wall behind it.

"I can't think of any religion that worships feces, per se," Satan said urbanely. "And I think you can take my word on it - I'm sort of an expert on religion."

"You... you're..." Alex stammered.

"The Devil - yes, we've been through this."

Alex began to calm down - not despite Lucifer's enormous powers, but because of them. If the Prince of Darkness had simply wished to destroy him, Alex reasoned, then he would have already. "What... what do you want?"

"You could say that I'm here because you invited me." Satan said with a wry smile. "Wha...?"

Satan cocked his head. "Last night you and your girlfriend, Jenny, had an argument. She was planning to go visit her parents, as today is Thanksgiving - and you... 'suggested' that she should invite them here instead, so that you could enjoy a turkey dinner yourself. She was rather... upset."

"Yeah..." Alex agreed, remembering Jenny's explosion at the 'short notice' of his proposed plan.

"As she stormed out, you said - and I quote," Here, Satan's voice changed, matching Alex's tone and inflection perfectly, like an eerie tape-recorder. "'I wish to Hell I knew why women need so much more time to do stuff than guys'." Satan's voice changed back to its regular tones. "That's why I'm here - to show you why being a woman can be more complicated than you know."

Lucifer then glanced at his wrist, where an expensive Cartier watch was secured. "We'd better get started - it's almost six, and you have a long day ahead of you."

Only now did Alex register that the light coming in the window was the pearly-gray of pre-dawn. He could be forgiven his lapse in attention - after all, other things had been (and still were) on his mind.

"I.. I don't understand..."

Then he felt a strange sensation - and gasped as strands of deep auburn hair tumbled in front of his eyes. His hair, rather short just seconds ago, was now a long, tangled mass that hung in snarls and clumps halfway down his back, and over his forehead.

"Like I said - you're going to find out why being a woman is so complicated. You are going to have to spend today doing all the feminine things that a woman getting ready for Thanksgiving dinner would have to do." Satan grinned narrowly. "I'd say the first order of business is your hair - not only is it annoying and in the way like that, you should also get it started as soon as possible to make sure that you 'do is ready and dry by the time dinner rolls around."

Alex, scrunched up at the end of the bed, just stared wide-eyed at Lucifer. The Lord of the Flies sighed. "Look - one way or another, you're going to do this. Do it 'voluntarily', and I'll just make you really, really upset. Force me to do it the hard way, and after midnight tonight you'll be spending an eternity in Hell. Your choice."

Alex practically levitated from the bed. He had no doubt that Satan meant exactly what he said - and no matter what embarrassment or 'torture' Satan had planned for him today, he'd take it over an eternity consigned to the bottomless pit. He pulled a robe on over the pajama bottoms he was wearing and shifted nervously from foot to foot, watching Satan for instructions - or any sign of irritability.

One simply did not annoy the Prince of Darkness with impunity, after all.

"Very Good." Satan said, approvingly. "I thought you were a fast learner, Alex."

Alex swallowed nervously. As impossible as it all seemed, he had the Prince of Darkness 'teaching him a lesson' - and that was a powerful incentive to pick up things rapidly.

"What... What am I supposed to do now?" Alex asked, hesitantly.

Satan smiled urbanely. "I have given you the knowledge you will need to do your hair, and Jenny has left enough implements here to allow you to do so. Also..." Satan made a mild gesture, and Alex winced and stumbled as he felt something within his legs shift, "...you should have your legs, like any woman who had a 'formal' event coming up would."

Alex swallowed, and was aware of a blush rising in his cheeks at the thought of what he was being asked to do - but the threat of what would happen if he didn't do it was worse, especially since Satan had already made it clear that, willingly or not, he was going to end up doing it anyway. It was far, far better to 'give in' and avoid an eternity of Hell than to fight. With a bitter taste in his mouth, Alex padded out of the bedroom and down the hall to the bungalow's sole bathroom.

Closing the door behind him, Alex shrugged out of the robe and peeled off his pajama bottoms. His lip curled at the sight of his legs - or what his legs now looked like, for they weren't the same ones he'd had only a short while ago. Although they were still covered by the usual dark mat of body hair, the contours of the legs under that matting was undeniable feminine, looking decidedly out of place between his masculine hips and large feet. There was no wonder he'd stumbled when they'd changed - his thick torso was now supported on slender, shapely feminine legs instead of the pillar-like muscular male ones he'd had so recently.

A look in the mirror revealed his head of long, auburn hair. Not only longer, it was also silkier and softer, with brighter highlights and a smoother texture. Even in its current state of disarray, you could tell that it was hair that most women would die for - and shame swept through Alex at the thought that he had hair that so many women would envy. It wasn't the sort of 'compliment' that would reassure you average, secretly insecure man.

Alex wasn't truly surprised to discover that - as soon as he thought, consciously, about it - he did indeed possess all the knowledge an average woman would have on how to fix his hair. Making a face, he decided to leave that aside for the moment and shave his legs. As disquieting as the thought of doing so was, part of the impetuous to do so was based on his male interest - the legs looked pretty damned nice under the layer of hair, and despite the fact they were now his legs, he was interested in seeing how they looked smooth and feminine. It was disgusting, but understandable - no matter how close a person was to a woman, the woman's body was still inviolate except by her permission (excepting, of course, the men who viewed rape as an 'acceptable' pastime, or woman as property) and the thought that he could basically do whatever he wanted was an oddly powerful; feeling. He couldn't force a woman to shave her legs because he wanted to see how sexy they were - but he could shave his new legs to do so, no matter the fact that the sexier they were, the more uncomfortable for him it would be.

Alex started a tub of water running and dug around in the stuff Jenny kept at his place, finding her feminine shaving gel and some pink razors. Testing the water in the tub with a finger, he sighed and sat on the edge of the tub, nerving himself up for the act...

...and there came a pounding on the door. "Come on, Alex - I need to get in there." Satan called through the door.

Alex's eyes flew wide at the (theologically stunning) thought that Satan needed to take a leak, but he obeyed quickly, jumping up from the tub and throwing the door open...

"Geez, Alex - what are you doing?" Satan asked, shaking his head. "But.. you said..." Alex stammered, confused.

"Look - I'm just giving you the experience of being a woman - including the guy banging on the door when you're trying to get ready. When you do it to Jenny, does she actually let you in?"

"But... you're Satan, and..." Alex explained, feebly.

Lucifer rolled his eyes. "Alex, if you think that the mere fact that it's the King of Hell demanding to be let in would actually make a woman who's in a rush to get ready give up the sole bathroom in the house, then you don't know a damned thing about women." Speaking slowly and distinctly, he pushed Alex back into the bathroom. "Think of yourself as a woman. I'm going to bang on the door sometimes, I'm going to say all sorts of things - but you have to get ready for tonight, and me - being the damned ignorant male - haven't given you enough prior notice. So, it's my own bloody fault that you need the bathroom and can't let me in. Got it?"

"Uh... yeah..." Alex agreed, closing the door and locking it in mild confusion. He hadn't even thought about it, but it was true - Jenny never would have opened the door like that for him. He'd never really thought about it from the other point of view, though.

Now - he had no choice. That was the whole point of what was being done to him. He could now 'appreciate' the irony that had made the Devil grant his 'request' - Alex had wondered why women needed so much time to get things ready, and now he was going to find out, no matter what. Everything he was going to do until midnight was going to give him insight into the female life - so he'd have to stop taking things for granted, and 'go with the flow' as best he could.

Which, unfortunately, meant that right now he had to shave his altered legs.

Making a face, Alex resumed his position on the side of the tub, the cold porcelain quickly chilling his bare ass and balls, His usually unusually large cock shriveled under the twin assaults of the cold and the feminine acts he was doing, and his face stayed a steady red in embarrassment as he picked up the gel and razor and proceeded to slowly, carefully and awkwardly remove the hair from his new legs.

When he finished, he stood up and looked at his feminine new legs in the mirror, and grimaced as he realized he'd been right - the legs from the ankle to the thigh were really shapely female legs. There's many different kinds of 'shapely' when you're discussing female legs, and the ones he now had weren't the supermodel-long sexy, or the seductively-muscled dancer sexy. Instead, they were the 'too- cute' sexy - legs that were so smoothly, perfectly, flawlessly accurate to the mythical 'average woman' that they were like legs that might be on a statue or in a air-brushed painting. They were incredibly sexy simply because there wasn't one single definable flaw in them.

Shaking his head at the half-hearted, ingrained response his mind made to the sight of such sexy legs, Alex ignored Satan's demands to be let in (because 'he had places to go, dammit'), and set about to doing his new head of hair, his fingers awkward and stiff in shame at what he was doing.

Out of self-defense, he'd picked the easiest of the 'implanted' styles in his new knowledge - or, more accurately, the easiest of what his new knowledge told him was fancy enough for the occasion. Something like a pony-tail just wouldn't do.

Instead, he sighed and picked up the curling iron. Working with skill's he'd never thought he'd have, he picked an imaginary line that led over his head from about the front of each ear. From there back, he set about to turning the hair into a mass of loose curls. It seemed to take for ever, and the smell of the hot hair was one that he so associated with females that he almost felt like there was a woman in the room with him - but it was just him ,doing something he classified as feminine, and never thought he'd be doing in his life.

Once he'd gotten the mass of hair set into the curls, he pulled all the hair back as tightly as possible to the very back of his head, about where a ponytail would start. Carefully, using the handle of a comb, he pulled out a section and let it fall forward, where it flopped over his eyes, stretching from the outside of each eyebrow or so. This was the hair that he had left straight.

Taking a powder-blue plastic clip with teeth-like protrusions , he fastened the rest of the hair back, where it now spilled down over his back. He then lifted the mass of hair upwards, so that it covered the clip, and used a silver object similar to an expansion watch-band to hold a mass of curls to cover the clip before spilling the rest back down, where it hung just below his shoulders.

The final step was taking a pair of scissors and cutting the hair spilling forward in a straight line just above the eyebrows.

It was odd for Alex - who had never really paid much attention to hairstyles at all - to notice that the effect was actually rather nice for the color and texture of the hair.

If only it wasn't his own...

Foregoing the pajama bottoms, Alex pulled on the robe and stepped out of the bathroom, where Satan gave him an approving look.

"Very well done." Lucifer congratulated him. "Now - you'd better throw on some clothes and hurry out to buy the stuff you'll need to cook a first class turkey dinner."

Alex was aghast. "You mean - I have to go out like this?"

"Not quite..." Satan said with a thin grin that Alex didn't like at all.

His foreboding feeling turned out to have solid basis. He felt a strange sensation, and glanced down and gaped as he watched the robe rustle as his hips widened and his ass expanded. The hips took on that smooth, slightly doubled curve of feminine proportions that even an unusually wide-hipped man didn't have, and an awkward maneuver with the mirror in the bathroom and a hand mirror let him observe a firm, tear-dropped feminine ass that was undeniable feminine in shape - delectable so.

"Hey...!" Alex started - then shut up fast, before saying anything to the powerful Prince of Lies that he'd surely regret. Probably instantly.

"But wait, there's more!" Satan said in a tone of voice that was identical to that of the man on the late-night infomercials. "Order now, and we'll throw in the breasts absolutely free!"

"Breast!" Alex exclaimed - then a strange pushing sensation at his chest drew his attention to the mirror. He watched in open-jawed embarrassed horror as the hair on his chest dropped away. Under the place where the hair had once sat, his nipples quivered, then began to expand. His once vestigial nipples thickened and lengthened as the aureole expanded, until a pair of frankly feminine nipples rode on his denuded chest. Immediately, the flesh beneath them rippled and began to swell outward, hardly larger than mosquito bites at first, but quickly growing to what Alex estimated as either a large A-cup or a small B-cup in size, only slightly smaller than the size of an average teenager's breasts.

Alex swallowed, and opened his mouth - but didn't say anything. Already, beads of nervous sweat were forming on his hands, and his face was a deep, embarrassed shade of red - but he dare not say anything. Swallowing nervously, he went into the bedroom and looked for something to wear, feeling like a complete and utter freak - which wasn't far from the truth.

Quickly, he pulled on a pair of boxer-briefs, which stretched enough to fit over his new hips and ass - but were tight, reminding him of the new contours he possessed. Over the underwear he pulled on a pair of dark green track pants, which had been loose fitting on his old body, and still were on the legs - but now clung tightly to his ass and hips. The dark color helped hide the contours of his body a little - but not enough for Alex's taste.

Of course, if he'd had his way, the contours wouldn't have been there in the first place.

If nothing else, he was 'lucky' in the chest department - a dark blue sweat-shirt with a hood hung loosely enough to completely hide his new tits from view - but not to allow Alex to forget they were there, as he shuddered at the sensation created with every breath as his large, much more sensitive nipples moved over the pebbly surface of the sweat-shirt's inner fabric.

Throwing on a pair of sneakers and grabbing his wallet and keys, it took Alex a few minutes of deep breathing at the front door to work up the nerve to go outside. In a quick dash, he headed for his car - and immediately discovered that his new hips and ass made a definite alteration in his stride. From an observers viewpoint, it wouldn't be all that noticeable, but from the inside, Alex was well aware of the circular, hip-swinging motion that his new hips demanded - as well as the uncomfortable pressure on his cock with every step, the new motion of his stride not allowing him to find a comfortable position for his 'little buddy'.

Then he was in the car, and bringing the engine to life. It felt weird to just sit down, as if he were sitting on a pillow - although he knew his ass was about as perfectly shaped and sized as possible, it felt enormous to him, from the inside.

Doing up the shoulder-restraint seat-belt was a new adventure - as it's preset position didn't take in account his highly sensitive right nipple, where the strap sat. One shudder at the pressure on the suddenly erect nipple - both painful and pleasurable at the same time, and disgusting to Alex either way - and Alex quickly readjusted it to sit closer to the center, away from the small masses of flesh that made up his sensitive, perky new 'teacup' tits.

Putting the vehicle into gear, Alex pulled out of the driveway and headed off, purposefully aiming the hood of his car towards a distant supermarket where he'd never shopped before - and would never shop again. For now, that anonymity is what he needed.

As he drove, his nervousness at being in public like this increased, and he briefly considered just driving on, and on - but he was pretty sure that Satan would find him, no matter where he went. So, he pulled into the parking lot of the supermarket, took a deep breath, and climbed out.

The place was packed. All late Thanksgiving shoppers - like himself - the crowd was both a blessing and a curse. A blessing, because there was such a chaotic flow of people that all people could spare was quick glances at the others making up the flow of humanity - and a curse, because of how many people there were to take those quick glances, and then the inevitable double-take at the sight of a muscular-looking man with wide hips and full ass packed tightly into sweatpants, and with a full, carefully styled head of hair.

Carefully styled feminine hair.

Entering the mall, incredibly self-conscious of his every movement, Alex picked out a cart and began to force his way through the eyes, watching what the rest of the crowd - oddly enough, mostly male - were picking up. As soon as he noted that many of them headed over to the frozen-food section to groan at the sign that indicated that all the Savarin Turkey Dinners were sold out, Alex realized that these weren't the right role-models for him, not in this situation. Instead, he turned his attention to the few harried-looking women in the store...

...and was shocked silly as he realized something. They were almost exactly like him.

Well, not really, of course - but the truth was, he could tell that the devil wasn't dragging him far from the truth of womanhood - because most of the women were dressed in 'thrown on' clothing, but had hair that was either carefully styled, or in curlers and the like. They also had very harried looks on their faces as they moved with purpose through the store - unlike the milling men - and Alex waited until another woman came in the door and followed her around, picking out almost the exact same items as her. She was so intent on her own work, she never glanced back at him - but Alex was stuck in permanent 'blush' mode at all the looks he was getting from the other shoppers.

Then he almost had a heart attack when he reached the frozen turkey section - and it was empty.

"To aid or last minute shoppers..." A voice was calling on his left, and he turned towards it to find a store employee addressing a small throng of mostly female shoppers. "...we have defrosted the last of the turkey we had in stock, so as to save you time. We have a very small selection, and we ask you to bear with our staff..."

Turning from the man, Alex hurried over to the counter where four harried-looking employees were trying to cope with the rush. Alex was aware of each passing minute as he waited his turn, and even more intently aware of the people pushed around him, pressing against his altered configuration. He got a supremely startled look from one woman who accidentally brushed her hand across his chest

- then she hurried away, tossing looks over her shoulder until she was lost in the mob.

Alex barely reacted - you can't soak a river, and he was at his current limit for embarrassment at the situation.

"We only have a limited selection left, we'll see if we can help you, what size do you need." The man at the counter droned out, obviously having repeated the line countless times in the mere hour since the store opened.

Just Alex - and Satan, assuming he ate... "The smallest one you have, please." Alex asked self consciously. "We have limited..." The man started - then gaped at the apparition in front of him. "What?"

"I want the smallest turkey you have left." Alex stated firmly, aware of the other looks he was getting - and supremely relived to be stared at for something other than his appearance.

The man behind the counter smiled broadly. "You just made my day." Reaching down to the bottom, where the 'least desirable' turkeys were, he hauled out the one at the very bottom of the stack. Every year, these ones were the last to go, the ones that the customers - having waited until the last possible second - complained bitterly over being forced to take. Knowing the grief that unloading these damned 'mini-birds' would be, the employees actually came to hate the damned things - until now.

Instead of an irate customer demanding a size that they hadn't had in stock for days, or whining and complaining, this was the first customer whose order they'd been able to fulfill. Who cared how weird the person was - they were a great customer.

"One six-and-a-half pound turkey." The man said with a grin - then his features dimmed slightly. "Uh.. it's pre-stuffed, if that's not a problem..."

Most people had their own 'secret recipe' for stuffing - but Alex was ecstatic, since he didn't know a damned thing about stuffing.

"Perfect!" He said, grabbing the bird and dropping it into the cart. Turning, he hurried to the checkout - then waited for the line to run through so he could pay for his purchases and get back to his car.

The wait in line was actually longer than it took him to drive back home. Alex walked into the house, carrying the groceries...

...and Satan grabbed him around the waist, spun him around - and kissed him firmly. "Stop it!" Alex cried, shoving Lucifer away in a spasm of disgust.

"Hey - what's with you, baby?" Satan asked - and his eyes glittered dangerously. "That time of the month?"

Alex swallowed, and forced himself to push the emotions brought about by being kissed by another man into a corner of his mind. "I... have to get dinner started." He managed to keep his voice fairly even - but it was a struggle. "Otherwise, we won't be eating Thanksgiving Dinner until tomorrow."

Satan dropped the act. "Fast thinking, Alex - I give you extra credit for that." He paused. "However..."

Satan didn't like being balked - not even in the little things. Alex gasped and dropped the groceries, hands flying to his chest as he felt that pushing sensation from inside again. The sweatshirt slowly pushed outwards, and he tried in vain to hold the growing masses of flesh in - but it was a useless exercise. The sensation stopped after a second, the once-loose and concealing garment now stretched taut over what had to be triple 'D' cup tits that pulled heavily downward on Alex's chest. He felt all awkward and off balance from the combination of large breasts and wide hips, and the fact that he could feel the breasts from the inside, feel the sensation of them straining against the shirt, and see where his enlarged nipples were tenting the fabric that was rubbing across them with entirely too- much pleasurable sensation didn't help a bit.

"Woman have to deal with having those things in the way, Alex - so, you do to." Satan said with a thin smile.

Looking up at the clock, Alex saw that it was only eight-thirty in the morning, and heaved a sigh of relief. There was still plenty of time before dinner, and he knew now that that panicked reaction to get things done in time was just a 'buffer against Murphy's Law' as his Dad had used to call it.

"I'd better get things going." Alex told Lucifer, now playing at the 'rushed for time' routine, seeing that he had at least a good nine hours to go. "I mean - do you now how long it takes to cook a turkey?" then he stopped, eyes widening at his own flippant question. "Um... do you know how long it takes?" he asked, hesitantly.

Back in the 'boyfriend' role, Satan held up his hands. "All right, all right - I get the picture. I'll leave you to your cooking." He wandered away, leaving Alex in a mild panic - he had no idea about turkey-cooking times and temperatures.

Then something from a movie he'd once saw came to mind, and he hurried the groceries into the kitchen. It was an interesting journey, with his unfettered new tits jiggling and bouncing distractingly with each step, his larger nipples sliding over the inside of the now-taut sweatshirt. He then picked up the extension in the kitchen and dialed the operator. In an embarrassed tone, he described his problem - and the woman at the other end laughed and helped him, asking the weight of the bird and suggesting that three-to-three-and-a-half hours would do the trick.

Relaxing, now that he knew he still had plenty of time, Alex made a detour into the bathroom, where he peeled off the sweatshirt and eyed the large breasts now thrust from his broad rib-cage. They were amazingly firm and round, with only a slight 'natural' droop that made them look less like silicone implants - an impression reinforced by the equally large, thick nipples that graced the mounds. Alex felt a surge of lust at the sight, as they were the most utterly perfect breasts he'd ever seen - despite the fact that they were hanging from his chest.

Hesitantly, he reached up and touched the globes softly - then slid his hands over the silky surface, testing the heft of the firm mounds, and amazed at the sensitivity of the flesh - much less of the large nipples. When he pinched them lightly, he had to bite his lower lip lightly at the amazing sensation that resulted...

Then Satan's hands slipped around him from behind and cradled the tits. Alex stiffened and opened his mouth to express his revulsion at having a man touch him....

"Well - I guess you had a little time to spare, after all " Satan said in his 'boyfriend' voice - and Alex was forced to clamp his mouth shut, unable to come up with an excuse to let himself out of this. Swallowing back the revulsion, he forced himself to not react as the Prince of Darkness began to fondle his new tits, looking over her shoulder to 'enjoy' the sight of them in the mirror. "Does this feel good, babe?"

"Mmmm... yes " Alex replied - but the reply wasn't nearly as mechanical and fake as he would have liked - because it did feel good - really, really good. Despite the emotion turmoil he was in, Alex simply couldn't lie to himself that it felt physically enjoyable to have Satan's strong, broad hands playing with her new tits and tweaking his now-erect nipples as...

..as his cock unwilling stirred in his pants, brought to life by the touch of Satan's hand on his tits, and the feeling of Satan's pelvis against his new, feminine ass. The fact that he was getting an erection at another man's touch, no matter how unwillingly, was one of the most utterly humiliating things Alex had ever experienced, even worse then just having the tits to begin with.

And there was not a damned thing he could do about it.

With no choice, Alex let himself 'enjoy' the touch while forcing his mind to wander off into nothing, ignoring the actual cause of the pleasure while enjoying the sensation.

Finally, Satan dropped his hands, finishing with a quick - and humiliating - pat on Alex's tear-drop shaped ass.

Left to himself once more, Alex - his 'blushing' circuits apparently burnt out - looked down at the sweatshirt, then figured 'what the hell' and left it off. Walking from the bathroom bare-breasted, he was bemused to find that just having large breasts that were allowed to hang free actually felt kind of good - he'd never experienced a portion of anatomy that was inherently pleasurable. Even the most highly sensitive part of his body - his slowly softening cock - had to be manipulated. The bounce of every step, the 'reassuring' weight, the air over the smooth flesh and erect nipples - all these things made the breasts inherently enjoyable.

He quickly discovered that they were an enjoyable nuisance when he began to set the table. They tended to get in the way of across- the-chest arm motions, but even that was pleasurable, as his arms pressed against the sensitive flesh of the breasts - and the times when the motion brought it across the nipple itself caused him to pause for a moment as he inhaled sharply at the touch. It took him three times as long to set the table - and not all of that was just because he was busy digging out the good china and silverware...

...which led him to having to dig up the good serving platters, which led to the realization that he'd neglected to pick up any wine. He closed his eyes and counted slowly to ten as he realized that he'd have to venture out into public again, but this time there would be no hiding the firm, round tits hanging from his chest.

Steeling himself, he walked into the living room, where Satan was sitting like a couch-potato in front of the TV.

"Uh... I have to go get some wine." Alex stammered. "I, uh... don't supposed you'd consider, um - going for me? Or, maybe, um..." He paused and looked down at the enlarged tits riding from his chest.

Lucifer looked up. "Oh - no problemo, babe - let me give you a hand." He waved a hand negligently in Alex's direction..."

Alex gasped as he felt a wrenching sensation across his face. "What the...?" He gasped - and stopped at the sound of the feminine voice that emerged. Tits bouncing, he rushed into the bathroom - to confront the feminine face that stared back from the mirror above a slender, feminine throat.

It was a cute feminine face, nothing more - but it looked a little out of place over the broad shoulders and chest he still retained. However, it matched the hair above it, and the voice was sweetly feminine. Alex grimaced, but knew that nobody would really consider the 'woman' as anything unusual - while the body was a little odd in its mass distribution, it was well within the norms, if not beautiful.

With a deep, heartfelt sigh, he pulled the sweatshirt back on over the sensitive mounds of his breasts, and shot a look at the clock as he headed out, figuring that he'd be back by no later than ten o'clock - with plenty of time to cook the turkey.

He was only off by five minutes, on the short side. Oddly enough, as uncomfortable as wearing a feminine face was, it was reassuring to think that he no longer looked like a freak or a transvestite. He received a few looks, but most were centered on his new bosom - and while being viewed as a female was disquieting, the mistaken impression that he was fully female was infinitely better than the alternative, even if one drunk took the liberty of 'complimenting' her 'nice hooters'.

Getting home, Alex stuck the white wine in the fridge to chill, and opened the red wine to allow it to 'breathe' - both on the suggestion of the man at the wine store who'd helped him pick them out, after admitting that 'she' knew nothing about wine.

Turning his attention to the groceries he'd purchased earlier, Alex set to work assembling the dinner, feeling his stomach growl at the sight of the food. He didn't bother to fix himself something to tide him over, figuring it would be a big dinner - and he also figured that the extra time would be handy, as he knew little about cooking, and would need the extra time to dig out the recipe book and make sure everything was going all right.

Following instructions to the letter, he started the packaged grave base, then began to peel the potatoes for mashed potatoes. He'd barely begun when he heard Satan's tread behind him in the kitchen - then a low chuckle.

Alex winced - more in humiliation than pain - as his hands, arms, and shoulders reshaped themselves. His hands became dainty and feminine, with long, even nails tipping slender fingers. His arms became smooth and soft as his shoulders shrank in.

Immediately,. The potato peeling became more difficult. He'd never realized how quickly arms could become tired by simply holding themselves up, his extra strength offsetting the mass of his arms. Deprived of that, he had to stop often to rest his arms as he peeled the potatoes with a little peeler.

Even worse was the fact as it was taking three times as long to do the job. The long, oval nail got in the way, and he was constantly forced to work carefully and attentively as not to damage them - as he knew that something unpleasant was probably in the works if he should break a nail. After all, women worried about that, and in this situation, he'd be forced to worry about it too - although for totally different reasons.

He'd already resigned himself to the knowledge that Satan was intent on making his appearance totally feminine by the time it rolled around to eating dinner, and he'd find any excuse to change another part of Alex to match the lessons he was learning. Truth be told, he was learning exactly what his unmeant wish had stated - he now knew why women took longer to get things done. One of the major factors was an awareness of their own appearance. Men usually didn't worry about things like how doing something might make their nails ragged, or how standing a certain way over a pot might allow steam to ruin their hairdo - but in these enforced circumstances, Alex had no choice but to pay attention to these 'trivial' matters, and thus gain a new 'appreciation' of all the little things women went through in day-to-day life, acerbated by the fact that this was going to be a 'formal' occasion.

More than anything, though, it gave him a new appreciation as to how good a man had it, and he looked forward to getting this day over with and getting back to his own body, so he could enjoy the 'simple' life of a man.

Everything was well in hand, the turkey just in the oven and everything else simmering or soaking, or whatever they had to be doing, by two in the afternoon. Which meant that everything would be ready to eat at five thirty, and this nightmare would be over - and he had the time between now and dinner to 'relax', as nothing else had to be done.

Satisfied, Alex went into the living room and dropping onto the sofa, felling glad Even better, there were no further excuses for any more changes to his body - at least, not until right before dinner, when Satan would probably make up something. Still, it meant that he'd get this time without having to put up with further feminizing, and he found himself wondering what masturbating might feel like while fondling his own tits...

"So, should I wear a suit, or a tux?" Satan said, drawing Alex - blushing - from the odd line of thought. "Excuse me?" Alex asked, nonplused.

"The dress you're wearing for dinner - how fancy is it?" Satan asked with a twinkle in his eyes - and Alex sat bolt upright, his face going pale.

"Dress?"

Satan shrugged. "Of course - you are going to make yourself 'presentable', aren't you? Dress, heels, make-up, jewelry - you know, the very minimum for a Thanksgiving dinner."

Alex's stomach dropped. "Oh - shit!" He swore in his new voice. "I.. I don't have anything... acceptable." He managed to get out, flushing at the thought of wearing women's clothing - and make-up, and...

But it was an obvious oversight, now that it was pointed out to him.

"You'd better hurry and buy something." Satan said, gesturing to the front door - and as he did so, Alex felt strange sensations crawling all over his body, and knew there was to be no temporary reprieve after all.

He felt his waist and chest being 'crushed' as they shrank to more feminine dimensions. In the case of his waist, it was to an 'enviable' feminine proportion, practically non-existent. At the same time, he felt his feet being altered into ones that would be more at home in the 'heels' that were mentioned.

And, to his horror, he felt that pressure in his chest as it swelled out even further. He gasped and shot a dirty look at Satan as his tits grew even bigger, ending at a massive size, like a pair of flesh-colored medicine balls hanging from his reduced ribcage - and almost as heavy. They went from what he considered to be nearly perfect to 'porn-star' huge - and he was amazed at the solid weight of them.

Like before, the nipples also swelled outwards, and unlike a porn-star with surgically enhanced tits sporting nipples sized for her original breasts, these were massive, with no loss of sensitivity.

Alex's mouth worked as he fought the urge to say something he'd regret. His body was now completely feminine in appearance - with the sole exception of the incongruously large cock dangling between his soft, smooth thighs. That was the first thing he'd check as the changes had stopped, and he'd sighed in relief.

Now he took a deep breath - which seemed more work than usual, as his ribcage had to expand against the weight of the massive, GGG-cup tits that hung so amazingly spherical from her chest, the massive nipples standing straight out in the cool air.

"Better hurry." Satan suggested, and Alex - now angry as well as humiliated - escaped the room before he could make matters worse by saying anything.

Picking up the sweatshirt, Alex began to pull it on - and immediately found that the garment was in no way intended to fit somebody with tits the size of medicine balls. With great effort, he got it on - but while the back of the garment hung all the way down to the loose waistband of the sweat pants, the front only came down to the bottom of his massive new endowments, straining to cover the massive globes as much as they did.

Mentally cursing, Alex headed out to his car.

Climbing in, he angrily yanked the seatbelt on - then cried out in mingled pain and pleasure and loosened it somewhat. It had already been set to fit in his then-much-smaller cleavage, by his tits now stuck much, much further out, and there wasn't enough slack in the fabric of the sweatshirt to allow the belt to nestle into his massive new cleavage. Likewise, his tits now literally sat in the steering wheel, and he had to adjust the seat before he could drive.

His anger carried him all the way to the mall and inside before he realized what the few shoppers saw when he entered. Immediately, shame washed over him as eyes turned to follow the progress of the massive-breasted woman incongruously dressed in ill-fitting men's garments. The way his new tits bounced and swayed erratically with every step, threatening to burst from the cloth prison that bound them, didn't help at all.

Reaching the chain department store that was the mall's anchor, Alex had no trouble attracting a saleslady to help - every eye was on 'her' as 'she' entered, many with a startled or disapproving look.

'Can I help you miss?' The saleslady asked.

Alex sighed. "Uh - yeah. I lost all my clothing, and I need something to wear for thanksgiving dinner." He said, making up the 'explanation' on the spot.

The saleslady sighed. "I.. don't know what we've got that will fit." She admitted.

It turned out that the shopping trip was 'easy' - Alex didn't have much choice in what he ended up walked out of the store dressed in - it was the only ensemble that had fit.

It wasn't a dress, but a long, black skirt over black nylons, and a pair of simple black briefs. The top was a black lace cami-style halter, with long straps designed to tie at the shoulder and lacing down the side that allowed him to lace it so it fit his huge bust. A matching black leather purse and a pair of black suede pumps with three inch heels completed the ensemble.

He was hideously embarrassed by the high-heels, but had no choice. Even worse was the fact that he 'knew' how to walk easily in the heels, causing his tits (unfettered by a bra) to sway sensuously as he moved with a feminine stride that emphasized his spectacularly feminine body, with it's wasp-waist and huge tits well displayed by the form-fitting clothing.

At least he'd gotten out of having to apply make-up - by trading it in for the silent shame of sitting at the cosmetics counter and paying the beautician to do a make-over. Although he had been given all the skills necessary to do his own make-up, he didn't want to, and this was much easier. Beside, he talked the saleslady into a small discount on the silver earrings, necklace and bracelet he'd bought.

Discovering that his new, feminine ear were pre-pierced wasn't even surprising.

Thankfully, by the time he got home, he'd cooled down enough that he wouldn't say or do anything stupid - after all, he only had to endure this ultra-feminine body during dinner, and thanks to his trip to the mall, it was only fifteen minutes before everything was ready.

He walked into the house, and Satan was waiting for him by the door.

"Wow - looking hot, babe." He complimented Alex, leaning forward and kissing him. Having made up his mind to do whatever was necessary to last out the last forty-five minutes or so that was left, Alex closed his eyes and accepted the kiss, putting a minimum return effort into it and trying not to think about what was going on, or how it felt to have his huge tits pressed firmly into Satan's chest.

Breaking off the kiss, Lucifer leaned back to eye Alex again. "I especially love the way that skirt and those heels show off those great legs of yours."

Before Alex could answer, there was the strange sensation of rising as the shoes changed, now a pair of black suede pumps with a six inch spike heel. At the same time, he felt the air movement over his stocking-clad legs as the skirt crawled upwards to end just above the knees.

Gritting his teeth, Alex forced himself to thank Satan for the complement, then set about serving dinner.

It was no easy task. The huge bust he now possessed got in the way, and balancing atop the spike heels, even with the implanted skills, made it a chore. But the food was finally laid out on the table, and they settled into the chairs to dig in.

Alex, despite the embarrassment, shame and anger, was starved, and he filled his plate, his stomach growling. Spearing a large piece of the slightly dry turkey, he lifted it to his full, red-glossed lips....

...and couldn't fit it in. His lips would only open part way.

"Got to watch that girlish figure of yours." Satan said with a grin, and Alex had to fight the return of the anger he'd felt. Instead, he forced himself to slowly and methodically cut everything in small enough pieces to fit into his mouth, cursing his long nails every step of the way.

And his tits didn't help, as he had to sit in an awkward position to keep his new bust out of the gravy on his mashed potatoes.

Finally, Satan sat back with a satisfied sigh, signaling that the 'festive' dinner was over. Although he was still hungry, Alex lay the fork aside, eager to return to manhood.

"Say, Alexandra - after you're done clearing the table and washing the dishes, bring me a beer, wouldcha?" Satan asked, rising heavily and heading towards the living room."

"Hey!" Alex said, startled and angry. "What about " He gestured towards himself.

Satan looked back. "Oh, yeah - get comfortable, by all means."

Before Alex could reply, there was a sudden rush in his chest...

...and the poor top didn't stand a chance as, in the space of an instant, his tits went from GGG-cup size to a freakish MMM-cup size. The tiny scraps of cloth fluttered about his high-heeled shoes as he barely managed to keep from falling over from the weight of his massively enlarged tits, with their gigantic nipples.

"Hey!" Alex exclaimed, outraged. "I didn't..."

Satan gestured again - and the tits swelled even larger. It was 'only' two cup sizes or so, but Alex's new bust was the size of those huge beach-balls, and felt like they weighed a ton each. At the same time, Alex felt the sensation of his hair suddenly growing longer at the back, until it reached past his spectacular, feminine ass.

"Yes?" Satan asked in a deceptively pleasant voice.

"Michelob or Coors?" Alex asked, head bowed. Anger, shame, disgust - all of these emotions, still roiling in him, took second place to his instinct for self-preservation. For a second he'd forgotten who he was dealing with.

Satan laughed. "Surprise me."

Turning, he finished his interrupted journey, and Alex turned to his own private hell.

His massive new bust made even the simplest task a major undertaking. He couldn't see downward past the massive globes, and had to contort into awkward positions to pick up the plates from the table. Already, his smaller back muscles were groaning in protest at having to keep his body upright against the drag of his massive new tits, and life became a series of annoyances as he laboriously cleared the table, wiped it down, and rinsed the dishes. For the first time since he'd owned it, Alex found the dishwasher to be poorly designed - especially for one so unbelievably endowed as he currently was. But any woman would find the particular make and model he had unthinkingly purchased a bit of a pain - and Alex cursed out the unknown designer with every plate, fork and glass he loaded in, filling the space between the spoken curses with silent ones for Lucifer.

Finally finishing the tedious task, Alex grabbed a beer from the fridge and carried it into the living room to hand it to Satan, then stood expectantly to one side.

"Thanks, babe." Satan said, casually. He reached out and grabbed Alex by one slender wrist and pulled him onto his lap, putting the beer aside and kissing him passionately.

Alex - remembering what happened after the last 'minimum enthusiasm' kiss, returned this one with all the artificial passion he could muster.

The Satan smiled at Alex - and Alex had to repress a gasp or any other noticeable reaction as he felt what could only be his cock pulling into his body.

Or, her body. With a newly formed cunt, Alex was now - physically - a female.

"Say babe - how 'bout a little fun?" Satan asked with a leer.

Alex wanted to vomit - but from the expectant look in Satan's eyes, she knew that Satan was just waiting for her to refuse, to 'drop out of character' - any excuse to make this worse, or to force her to do it anyway and then claim her soul.

Although every fiber of her being cried out in horror, disgust and anger, Alex forced herself to smile. "Mmm... sounds like a plan..." Alex saw a twinkle of anger at being balked - but Satan's smile widened and he winked. "Great."

Picking up the new, huge-breasted woman, Satan carried her to the bedroom. With every step closer, Alex's urge to scream, to flee, to beg grew - and she fought tenaciously to keep herself from doing so, knowing that, no matter how bad things seemed right now, they could always get worse.

A lot worse.

Tossing her on the bed, Satan began to strip out of his suit, and Alex forced himself to undress as well. "You ready, baby?" Satan asked, drawing her eyes to him...

...and she nearly choked on the gorge that rose in her throat at the sight of his massive, rock-hard cock throbbing between his legs. Dusky to begin with, the long, thickly veined organ was nearly purple in its erection, and was bigger than Alex's own, now missing cock had been.

Instead of vomiting, Alex spoke through clenched teeth.

"Take me, stud..." Every word forced out through an unwilling throat. And Satan did.

Jumping onto the bed, his hands reached out to roughly fondle her huge tits as he positioned himself. Closing her eyes, Alex forced herself to not say or do anything at all, but be limply responsive, a mindless...

..fucktoy.

That's exactly how Satan used her.

Alex had to bite her lip to keep from crying out in a mass of tangled emotions as Satan rammed his massive cock deep into her cunt. Pleasure, pain, humiliation, shame - all of these things flooded her as Satan, with an evil grin, began to fuck her, long and hard.

It didn't take long before most of those emotions were driven farther back by the rising tide of pleasure that ran through her body. It disgusted Alex to enjoy getting fucked hard by a huge cock - but the pleasure of being filled, the sensations of sexy - all of these were undeniable.

Satan laughed as he continued to fuck her closer and closer to her first orgasm. She lay on the bed, her body shuddering under his thrusts, her huge tits bouncing as he drove into her. She helplessly began to moan in pleasure, her head tossing back and forth in unwanted ecstasy as he drove her closer and closer to the brink...

...and then completely over it.

Shamefully, she screamed affirmation and pleasure into the air as her body writhed in the grip of the intense orgasm> She tried to stop her pleading for it, harder and faster, but couldn't - and Satan complied, pushing the orgasm higher and faster, following the first with another, impossible more powerful one - then by a third that cause her to stop thinking all together, screaming in primal ecstasy as her body shuddered under the force of him cumming deep into her now sopping wet cunt. Her body was soaked with sweat as she flailed on the bed, lost in pleasure, and Satan withdrew his massive, glistening member from her cunt - and he was still cumming, like a firehose. He laughed and kept cumming, spraying her body with streamers of cum as she continued to mindlessly scream in pleasure, his hands rubbing the slick, warm liquid into the silky flesh of her massive tits and increasing the pleasure that rocked her body by manipulating her now sperm-slicked nipples that were almost painfully hard.

Finally, the orgasm died out and she slumped back onto the bed after arching her back. Shame and humiliation swept through her at the thought of the way she'd been a second before, and her skin crawled at the feeling of being coated in cum. It dripped from all over her body, slicking her hair and running in streams down the sides of her breasts.

"There you go, Alexandra." Satan laughed. "I have to say - it's been enjoyable." Alex looked up at the grinning devil. "I'm glad you enjoyed it." She said, bitterly.

Satan ignored the Sarcasm. "In a few seconds, you are going to fall into a deep, dreamless sleep. When you wake up, it will be this morning again - but instead of me being here, it will be your once-angry lover sharing your bed. No fight happened, because the whole Thanksgiving dinner thing would have been planned ahead of time, and all the things to make it will be here."

Alex sighed in relief, knowing that even the residual shame that somebody might connect him with the weirdo at the supermarket this morning would be gone, as it had never happened. Satan was even patching up the relationship - and Alex had to admit that he'd been wrong, in the first place. As awful, as degrading as today had been, it had been informative - and he had to admit - privately - that, as emotionally damaging as getting fucked had been, it had also been the best sex he'd had in a long time.

Which wasn't saying much, he thought wryly. Jenny was an okay girl - but a little too wholesome for her own good.

"So, before I go, here's your prize for getting through today like a trouper." Satan said, surprising Alex. "I'm going to grant you one wish." Alex blinked. "Really?"

Satan nodded. "Yup."

Considering the line of thought he'd been deep in an instant ago, the wish popped out of his mouth without thinking, and he felt a vague disgust with himself even as he said it. "I wish that my relationship with - heck, all my future relationships would be more... sexually orientated."

"Granted!" Satan said before Alex could retract his impulsive, selfish wish - then he simply vanished. 'Oh well...' Alex thought as a deep sleep pulled him down. "It'll be fun, at least..."

* * * * *

Shrugging off the curtain of sleep, Alex blinked and stretched in the early-morning light streaming in the window...

...then stopped dead and slowly, with a horrified expression, looked down.

Tenting out a sexy black lace teddy was a pair of enormous tits that looked very, very familiar.

In that same slow motion, Alex turned his... her head and looked at the sleepily smiling person in bed with her.

Alex - or, as his mind seemed to insist, Alexandra - could see Jenny's features in the face of the massively muscled man beside her. It was as if the person Jenny now was - Jerry, Alexandra's mind told her - was the massively masculine twin brother of the no-longer- existent person Alexandra's second set of male memories knew as Jenny.

In that one, horrified instant, Alexandra realized that the Devil had tricked her - or she had tricked herself. Because the 'prize' wish hadn't been in addition to getting changed back - it had been her chance - her only chance - to regain her old life.

And she'd blown it in her lustful urges...

...which were now turned in the opposite direction. Although she remembered everything about being Alex, she also remember her life as Alexandra, an uninhibited, huge-breasted woman who loved to act, dress and be sexy. Not cheap-slutty sexy. She didn't fuck anything with a cock. But when she was in a relationship, like she was with Jerry...

"Hey, gorgeous..." Jerry said, sleepily - and Alexandra helplessly found herself kissing her boyfriend with mild, early-morning passion, while he fondle one of her massive tits.

Then, with even more horror, she found herself doing something she 'remembered' doing a hundred times before...

...peeling back the covers, she slid around on the bed to where Jerry's massive morning erection stood tall, and slid her full lips over his stiff cock. With her 'skills' - well honed by 'experience' - she began to suck his cock with abandon, knowing that when he came, she'd 'eagerly' gulp down his 'delicious' cum with a smile on her lips.

As she lay there, her huge tits resting on Jerry's knees, her head bobbing up and down with abandon, and her cunt already sopping wet with the thought of the sex they'd have later, she found the oddest thought flitting through her mind.

Considering the day, she should have 'Given Thanks' before allowing herself the 'pleasure' of sucking Jerry's cock....

Then the male part of his brain began to scream, knowing that she was to spend the rest of her life unable to stop herself from being the huge-breasted, sex-loving Alexandra because the Prince of Lies had once more found the lustful weakness of a mortal soul.

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: In answering two roommates' wishes for their other roommate to be more helpful around the apartment, one fortune teller decides that their messy roommate will be much more "helpful" as a female roommate named "Chrissy"

Helpful

By Gunslinger

Part One

Oddly enough, even though he was still looking for work in the field, all that computer training he'd signed up for - and taken - had an unexpected 'fringe benefit' that Matt had never really appreciated until recently. Due to his financial situation, he'd sold his car to get some cash and save money - and so had been forced to wake up early each morning to get to his seven a.m. computer classes on time. His body had adapted to that cycle, and though he was finished all his computer training, he still habitually awoke at the same time... and since he was no longer dashing about, frantically getting ready for class, he was able to sit in the kitchen and enjoy his first cup of coffee while watching the late summer sunrise outside the apartment's big patio windows - one of the advantages of getting one of the ground-floor apartments at the rear.

Matt didn't look like the type of guy who sat around and enjoyed the sunrise - or the type to take computer training, for that matter. At six-foot-seven, he was a veritable monster, with thick slabs of muscles on a beefy, broad-shouldered frame. With his head shaved down to mere stubble (to hide his early receding hairline) and with a small, neatly trimmed goatee, Matt looked more like the prototypical bouncer - which he'd been before his back injury which happened during a bar-fight he was trying to break-up and had put him on compensation. That's when he'd decided to take computer classes - and to everybody's surprise (including his own), he'd turned out to have a real knack for computers.

It was odd, but that injury had probably been the best thing that had happened to him. He'd had a pretty tough life up until then, in many senses of the phrase - not only 'tough' because he was the only son of low-income single mother, but also in that he'd always been 'tough', playing out the 'macho' routine people expected of a muscular guy, just to avoid unnecessary 'confrontations'. All his jobs had been 'muscle' jobs, from working in factories to his jobs as a bouncer. The enforced 'idleness' of the injury had allowed him to discover his talent for computers, as well as an enjoyment for well-written fiction, mostly fantasy type novels. It was as bemusing to him as it was to the people who knew him that this big, sandy-haired bruiser was a 'book-loving computer nerd'.

Which was how he found himself truly enjoying a morning sunrise out of the windows of his apartment when the phone rang, jarring him out of his drowsy contemplative haze.

Annoyed, he glanced over at the phone on the wall to see what the Caller ID had to say - but the solid red light above the screen indicated that one of his roommates had already answered it - probably John, since Chris wasn't exactly a 'morning person'.

His assumption was validated a moment later when John came into the kitchen, his long, dark hair tousled from sleep and his eyes still heavy-lidded. Though the same age as Matt, that was about all John shared in common with his roommate. Shorter than Matt by a good eight inches, John had the whipcord-lean physique of a runner, all rawhide muscle on a lightly-built frame built for speed. Darkly tanned and with a face that was lightly scarred by bad acne when he was in high school, in the twelve years since then he'd gone from a skinny, pimply 'nerd' to a real lady-killer - not only had his obsession with such sports as horseback barrel-racing, mountain-biking and white-water rafting given him a lean, tautly-muscled body, but his lean build and mildly scarred face was darkly handsome in a rugged, craggy, 'Young Clint Eastwood' sort of way - one that went well with his mostly quiet, yet intense, nature.

"Morning." Matt said, eyeing John's casual - and comfortable - 'just-thrown-on' ensemble of jeans and a baggy blue sweatshirt. Matt was also, by nature, a 'casual' guy, but because of his job-hunting, was forced to get used to more formal clothes. Currently, he was dressed in dark gray slacks and a white dress shirt with the top buttons undone, needing only a tie and jacket to complete his suit.

"Yeah, it's a hell of a morning!" John said, grinning. "Wait 'till you get a load of this. You know how the phone rang a couple of minutes ago? Well, it was the cops - they've found my car."

"Cool!" Matt said, grinning as well. The day before yesterday, John's prized Candy-Apple-Red Trans-Am had been stolen. The officer who'd responded had been doubtful about John's chances of getting his car back, and John had spent the past two days in a pretty pissed mood - understandably so.

"It gets better." John said, holding up a hand. "Okay, the guy who stole it? He wanted it for himself, see? So, he not only stole it - but he put four brand-new top-of-the-line sports tires on it, with new rims and caps... and he put in a real kick-ass stereo system. Since all this stuff was bought, not stolen - the cops have the receipts - they're just gonna leave it on. Not only am I getting my car back - but it's in better shape than it was when it was stolen!"

"Damn!" Matt said, grinning back at his ecstatic friend. "That rocks!"

"Yeah, I know." John agreed, filling a mug with the fresh-brewed java and dropping into one of the other beaten-up chairs around the kitchen table. "I mean, if you're gonna get your car stolen, this is the way to..."

Suddenly, a high-pitched screech echoed through the apartment, yanking the two young men to their feet out of a basic primal instinct. They shared a startled look.

"That sounded like it came from Chris' room!" Matt said, startled.

John snorted. "That explains the scream. If some chick came home with Chris she musta been really drunk, and she just woke up and realized what she'd done..."

Before Matt could respond to his friends overly-cynical comment, a second scream ripped through the muggy air of the apartment... and this one trailed off into something that sounded suspiciously like sobs.

Matt eyed his friend. "I.. I think we'd better go check. Just... just to be on the safe side, you know?" John sighed. "Yeah. I know."

Feeling awkward - this wasn't an everyday situation, and they weren't quite sure how to handle it - the two roommates made their way to the closed door of their third roommate's room. They hesitated outside, faces screwed up in anxiety and mild confusion, the sounds of feminine sobs coming clearly through the closed door. They weren't just sobs, either, but deep, heart-wrenching sobs, ones of utter horror and despair.

John, who was usually pretty hard on Chris, muttered to Matt. "Even waking up beside Chris wouldn't make a woman sob like that."

Matt's sandy eyebrow rose, and then he took a deep breath and quietly opened the door to Chris' room, feeling awkward about invading Chris' - and his unknown female companion's - privacy. Beside him, John crowded in almost under his thick, muscular arm, wanting to see what the hell was going on.

As usual, Chris' room was a mess. Dirty and clean clothes received equally treatment... except for the fact that the piles of clean clothes stacked everywhere were folded, whereas the drifts of dirty clothes were unsorted and unkempt. The room didn't smell disgusting or anything, but it had a sort of 'musty' smell from being closed up all the time, overlaid by the faintly bitter smell of old incense.

It wasn't that Chris was a slob, exactly. The room was 'untidy' rather than 'dirty', and the furniture, while mismatched and battered, was clean. It was just that Chris, while a nice enough guy, was more than a little... 'out there'. He almost seemed to walk around in a daze.

Given the fact that the almost painfully skinny young man kept his long, shaggy mane of golden-blond hair pulled back into a ponytail, had a scraggly beard and mustache, and habitually wore jeans and baggy, faded tie-died T-shirts and peered out at the world through a small pair of silver-rimmed 'granny glasses', it was understandable that many assumed Chris was a anachronistic 'hippie', a pot-head with fantasies of communes and flower-power.

Nothing could be further from the truth. Though both his roommates - John especially - liked to rag Chris about untidy habits, they'd be the first to admit the truth - Chris was damned near the smartest man they'd ever met. The problem was, he was also highly 'absent- minded'. With a genius-level IQ and a very quiet personality, Chris seemed to know just about everything, from fixing and upgrading computers to the most esoteric facts and figures. He was unbeatable at games based on Trivia (when he could be bothered to play them), and he could figure out every 'Whodunit' ever filmed or written, usually in the first twenty minutes. He was also a whiz at using, building and programming computers, as well as repairing and modifying almost anything electronic. He was a young man who knew everything... but noticed almost nothing. With his mind always focused on deep, heavy thoughts, the real world sort of... escaped him. In fact, there was a story his roommates loved to use to describe him. John and Matt had been throwing a sort of 'get-together', and about a dozen people were over. Chris, as usual, had been cloistered in his bedroom-slash-workshop... except he'd wandered out, mumbling to himself and turning a piece of damaged circuit board over in his chemical-stained hands. Still puzzling over the electronic component, he'd poured himself a cup of coffee (forgetting to put the cream and sugar away when he was done with them) and wandered back to his room...

...without even noticing the 'party' in progress, or any of the people who spoke to him. So lost was he in his own concerns that he missed it all completely. Given this sort of abstracted state of mind, even his somewhat put-upon friends and roommates, despite their semi-good-natured complaints, understood why he never offered to lend a hand to tidy up the apartment, much less his own room. He quite simply didn't notice the fact that anything needed to be done - even if the other guys were in the middle of a major spring-cleaning, and he had to walk around them and their cleaning accouterments to get to his room.

Not that he didn't pitch in. If there were no more clean glasses, he'd do all the dishes and put them in the drying rack, just to get one clean one for himself - but he never remembered to put away the dishes. Same thing when he vacuumed, or dusted - he'd do the work, if it got to the point he 'noticed' it... but then he'd just leave whatever he'd been using to clean with wherever it happened to be when he finished. Left to Chris, entirely, the apartment would have been 'clean' - even sanitary - but untidy.

It was this same sort of absent-minded behavior that 'impinged' on Chris' social life... or, rather, it's damned-near lack of it. Not that he didn't have the usual male urges - it was just that they quite often got lost in the 'urgency' of another deep thought. Besides... who wanted to date a guy who could, quite literally, forget about you for weeks on end... even if you were in the same room with him the entire time?

So, despite the fact they were used to living with Chris' oddities, neither of his roommates was at all prepared for the unusual situation they found upon opening the door.

The room was still a cluttered mess, furnished with second-hand, clean-but-beaten furniture... but the room's sole occupant was a lovely, buxom blonde woman about their own age.

She was butt-naked.

The covers on the bed were shoved down near her dainty, well-formed feet, her long, shapely legs stretched out and spread apart, exposing her neatly-trimmed patch of golden pubic hair... but her slender, cute/shapely hand covered her actual cunt. Her waist was nice and slender... and currently shuddering with the force of her deep, wrenching sobs.

Her trim stomach wasn't the only thing shaking with the sobs. Her breasts were large and firm and round - nearly spherical, in fact, evocative of the firm, ripe, honeydew melons they so closely resembled in size. One of them was semi-concealed by her other hand - but the other one was freely visible, as was the large, thick pink nipple.

She had the sort of perky, heart-shaped face that would, under other circumstances, fall naturally into a bright, sunny expression. It was all-but-mandatory, given the configuration of her high, well-defined cheekbones, pert nose, and full, mobile mouth. However, there was no trace of any perky, bright-eyed happiness in her current expression.

It was, in fact, an expression of unmitigated despair, her long-lashed eyes scrunched painfully tight, her full, supple lips slack, her tousled, silky mane of golden hair falling about a lowered, pain-tightened face.

"Uh... Miss...?" Matt said, ashamed of intruding on a woman so utterly naked - and not just physically, but emotionally, as well - which may have been worse. She was certainly cute-and-sexy, and under other circumstances would be a true joy to gaze upon... but the heart-wrenching anguish on her face, the despair that shout from every slumped curve of her quivering body squashed any incipient arousal such a firmly-rounded body might otherwise have engendered. "Are... are you.. uh, all right?"

Matt more-or-less expected her to shriek, yank the covers up to her chin, and shout at them to get out. Instead, her eyes snapped open and she stared at them incomprehensibly for a second - then stretched her arms out, imploringly.

"Matt! John!" She cried, anguished. "Look... look what's happened to me...!"

John's "How did you know our...?" Was mingled with Matt's uncomprehending grunt of surprise as they stared, somewhat wide-eyed, at the cute-sexy (and very naked) blonde on the bed.

"Guys!" She said, her otherwise crystal-clear contralto voice rough with emotion. "It's me... Chris!" The two roommates stared at each other, then back at her - and it was Matt who voiced the thought. "That... That's impossible!"

"I know!" She keened. "But... it still happened! I.. I'm a... a.. a woman..."

Then she broke down again, her body once more wracked by those deep, wrenching sobs.

Still shocked and stunned by her unbelievable claim, Matt turned to John for confirmation of his initial statement. "It... It couldn't be... right?"

John, however, had noticed something that had escaped both of them until now - and when he spoke, it was in an oddly strangled tone, eyes seemingly as large as dinner plates.

"The room...!" He managed through a tight throat and suddenly dry mouth. "Matt... look at the room...!" Matt, confused, turned back to the usual clutter... and slowly his eyes widened as his jaw sunk.

It wasn't the same room. Given that it was as cluttered as expected, and that there was a naked, buxom woman on the bed, Matt could be forgiven for missing it at first... but now that he took a good look at the room, there was no doubt that it had changed.

The furniture was still pretty beat-up, second-hand stuff... but it wasn't the same stuff.

The dresser, once battered, brown-painted and boxy, was now a poorly-cared-for 'antique' bureau, with faded brass hardware and boasting a big mirror that the other chest of drawers had lacked. It was reasonable well-matched in color and style (and condition) by a pair of end-tables flanking a matching bed.

In fact, all the furniture in the room matched, something the original furniture hadn't even pretended to do.

It was more than just the furnishings that had changed, however - there was also the 'clutter'. Though as messy as expected, what the mess was comprised of was completely different.

Women's clothing. A purse. Several pairs of high-heeled shoes, and even more 'loose' single shoes. The watch and other personal effects negligently scattered over the top of the dresser had been replaced by a small, overflowing jewelry 'caddie', as well as keys on a completely different key-ring.

The computer was the same, but the desk it sat on was different... and pushed into a corner. Where the desk had 'originally' sat was a make-up table with a small chair and an oval mirror. The usual litter of feminine 'beauty' products was scattered across its surface, including make-up, hair-spray and perfumes.

Even the paint on the walls was different. Instead of the original, not-too-well-applied flat beige, it was now a somewhat 'warmer' shade of off-white... and the baseboards (where visible) had been sanded down to the bare wood, then covered with a light oak varnish that matched the 'new' door-frame and shelf-like lintel... which hadn't been there yesterday.

Matt stared at the room, seeing it anew, and then slowly began to shake his head, not even aware of the motion.

"But... but it would take days to redecorate the room, repaint it..." He muttered, numbly. "The paint and varnish can't be fresh, because then I'd smell... but it couldn't be done in one night, anyway, even if moving furniture in and out didn't wake me..."

Hesitantly, he reached out and touched the door frame.. and found the varnish not only to be completely dry... but a bit dusty. Which meant that the room had, indeed, changed somehow, overnight. If it was possible for a room, and all it's contents, to change overnight, then the obvious derivative conclusion would be...

"Cuh... Chris...?" Matt said, in a strangled voice. "Is.. Is that really you?"

The sobbing woman on the bed managed to get a fragment of control and look up at them, her startling deep blue eyes brimming with tears.

"Yuh.. yes!" She managed to sob out. "I.. I don't know what happened! I just went to be last night, like always... and when I wuh-woke up.. I looked like... like... like this!"

Whatever Matt was going to say in reply was lost in a sudden heavy clatter - or maybe a rebounding 'thud'. Whatever classification of sound that noise was, it was the sound of John hitting the floor.

He'd fainted dead away.

* *

"John! Buddy... wake up! C'mon, man - you're starting to worry me...!"

John moaned softly and let his eyes flutter open... to find himself staring at Matt's unlovely face. From the feel of the wooden 'spines' digging into his back, he was sitting in one of the chairs in the kitchen... an opinion confirmed by the fact that the table was digging into his side, and the smell of coffee was almost palatable.

Blinking, John straightened and closed his mouth, working up some saliva. "Man... what happened? I musta passed out or somethin', 'cause I just had the weirdest dream, where Chris was a..."

That's when Matt stepped back a bit... and John found himself looking at the back of a shapely, slender woman with a full mane of richly golden hair. She was wearing an attractive one-piece outfit that John didn't know what to call: the bottom half was a pair of not-too- short-but-delightfully-tight denim shorts... yet sewn directly onto that was a sort of.. short sleeve shirt? Make that a no-sleeve sort of vest-thing. Yellow with blue 'plaid' striping, it was barely-there at the back, little more than a band that was narrowest at the small of her back, flaring larger at either side to form a vest-style front... something John was able to see, as she turned around to hand him a cup of coffee, revealing that the sewn-on 'vest' top had a fairly low neck-line that revealed a delightfully milky expanse of cleavage. Indeed, the outfit matched her perfectly - bright and chipper and sexy in a quasi-innocent way.

Under her airy, stylish mane of perfectly coifed golden hair, the woman's face was the same one as in his 'dream' - except it was beautifully and perkily made-up, with a hot-pink gloss lipstick and barely-noticeable purplish eye-shadow.

"Trust me, John..." the cute-sexy woman said, handing him the coffee... and in doing so, getting that delicious cleavage pretty damned close to his face, her incredibly firm, round mounds only inches away from his bulging eyes. "...it's no dream."

"Buh... buh-buh-buh... but..." John stammered incoherently, the hand holding the (thankfully) half-full coffee mug shaking violently. "But... but..."

"But... this is Chris." Matt said, gently, looking a little wild-eyed around the eyes himself. "Krissy, actually, from what I understand... though my driver's license says 'Christine' on it..." "I.. I don't understand..." John managed, looking at Matt in what amounted to a plea.

"Neither do I, really." Matt admitted, slumping heavily into one of the other chairs. "After you passed out, Chris... Krissy... practically broke down, and I went to, uh... well, try and reassure her, though I don't know how. We found her ID on her dresser, and we decided to come out here and try and figure it out... but, uh... She couldn't leave the room."

"Huh?" John asked.

"Well - not looking like I did, anyway." The now-female roommate filled in, handing Matt another mug of coffee. "It was really weird, but I felt like leaving the room looking as mussed as I did would be... wrong." She frowned slightly - and John had to remind himself forcibly that this sexy blonde was, apparently, really his old friend and roommate, Chris. "It wasn't that it felt wrong in the 'I'm gonna break the law' sort of way, but like I'd be in burning agony if I left my room looking like that. I had to get myself looking... uh, 'pretty', I guess, before I could leave..... and when I did, I, uh... well "

She was blushing now - and even that looked damned cute on her.

"I, uh... Well, I felt really... good. Happy. I don't know why - but I feel a sudden sort of happiness when I, well, do something 'good', I guess. When I make myself look nice. When I tidy up. When I get somebody coffee, too... which is why I got you each a cup." She sighed. "It's weird. I'm not happy waking up to find out I'm now a woman, and I'm worried and scared and horrified.. but I still feel really, really good when I do something..." She fumbled for a word. "Something... helpful, I guess..."

It was as if a huge, painless hammer had slammed John in the nose, setting off a burst of pure white light that nobody else could see. He could practically hear the 'click' as it all came together in his mind.

"Holy shit..." He said, suddenly breathless. "Our wishes!"

Big, bulky Matt and slender, shapely Krissy, as unlike in face and figure as one could imagine, both contrived - unknowingly - to create the same expression of incomprehension on their respective faces. On Matt it looked brutish - on Krissy, it looked almost intentionally cute.

"Huh?" They asked, in what turned out to be a remarkably pleasant chorus.

John was sitting bolt upright, staring at them in shocked comprehension. "Last night - we went to the carnival. You guys were trying to cheer me up, remember? And we stopped in to see that old Fortune teller. She told us that she 'saw' each of having one of our 'wishes' come true?"

Matt's jaw had dropped open as he, too, saw the connection. "Holy shit! You... you wished that you'd get your car back!"

John nodded. "Actually, I said that I wished I'd get my car back 'in better shape then ever'... and the cops called this morning to explain about my car!"

Suddenly, Matt's face went pale and fish-eyed in horror as he remembered the second 'clue' that had made the connection for John - his own wish.

"I wished... I wished that you would be more helpful...!" John said in a thick, hoarse voice. "Oh, shit, man... I musta done this to you somehow! I mean, I was just joking and all, and I didn't know this would happen, but... oh, shit, Chris, I'm so sorry..."

The buxom new woman had a look of horror on her own face... and then, almost involuntarily, she began to chuckle, catching the other two off guard.

"No, Matt..." She said in an odd tone of voice. "You might have given me this no-longer-inexplicable need to be 'helpful'... but I did this to myself..."

In passing, both John and Matt noticed that the phrasing was quintessential 'Chris', and without even realizing it, the last of their doubts slipped away. However, all of this was on the subconscious level as they looked at their newly feminine friend in confusion.

Her strange chuckles grew louder, and she spoke between them. "You see... I wished... I wished that... there'd be a gorgeous blonde in my bed when I woke up this morning..."

Then her strangled chuckles slid through the emotional spectrum, becoming deep sobs as she slumped into the third chair at the table.

* *

Even as his... no, her... damnably shapely elbows hit the table and her sobs rose towards full force, Krissy struggled to get a hold of herself. She'd been through enough shocks today - in the past forty minutes or so, actually - to know that this wasn't going to help. Indeed, if she let herself give in to her despair, she might slide into a spiral of depression she might never escape - and as bad as things were, she wasn't willing to 'surrender' herself to mindless, black despair - at least, not yet.

Who knew what she might be willing to surrender herself to if it should turn out that there was no way to undo this thing that had happened? The guys had no idea how hard this was for her, though they probably thought they did, vicariously at least.

At least Matt had a slightly deeper understanding of the situation she was going through. He'd been present - and conscious - when she'd almost hysterically called her (well, Chris') doctor, hoping for an appointment and the receptionist had recognized her...

...as Krissy! She'd almost fainted herself at being addressed by the diminutive - and almost too feminine - form of her 'new' identity. A couple of other quick calls, including one to his/her parents (that must have left them confused) had verified that, as far as the world outside this apartment was concerned, she was - and always had been - Krissy. Right last name, right age, right address, even a similar first name... but 'wrong' gender - though, given her current appearance, maybe that was 'right' gender. It felt strange, but she was actually a bit appreciative that everybody except herself and her roommates 'remembered' her as Krissy... it was oddly 'reassuring' that nobody would be able to 'catch' her being a woman, because nobody except the three of them ever remembered her as a man.

Still, even Matt didn't know just how bad it was.. because the very worst part of it was so disturbing that she didn't even want to mention it, as if that might somehow make it more 'real' than it already was.

She was finding her roommates - her friends, her buddies... attractive.

She certainly didn't want to, of course. After all, despite her most-definitely-female body, she was, to her own mind, male, and that was 'sick' - yet that wouldn't dispel the fact that she did, indeed, find them attractive. She now noticed that they were most definitely masculine, and handsome each in their own right. Though she didn't want to, she couldn't help but noticing their masculine presence, the way they moved and talked.. and finding it attractive.

Much, much worse was the fact that she found it... pleasurable. That was even more of a shock... but she couldn't help it. It was like the burst of pleasure she felt when she did something useful or pleasing... a sudden, unarguable burst of pleasure that just felt so damned good. Every time she was consciously aware of herself looking at either one of the guys in 'that way' - the way a sexually-active woman looked at a handsome, sexually-viable male - she felt herself become warm and very comfortable, with a very pleasant tingle thrumming through her body and an emotional haze of unwarranted happiness and contentment spreading through her mind.

She also felt that burst of pleasure when she noticed one of the guys looking at her 'that way'... and, as much as she was disgusted by it, she found herself almost unconsciously doing things to feel that 'easy-to-obtain' pleasure. Like the way she'd all-but-shoved her tits into John's face. She hadn't planned it, wasn't consciously aware she was going to do it - but, as she moved to give him the cup of coffee, she'd almost absently thought about how good it would feel to have John look at her tits..

and had then found herself acting on the impulse, and feeling a wave of pleasure from the torn, desiring look that crossed his face with her firm, disgustingly delightful bust so close.

In fact... she was feeling pretty good right now, just thinking about it. Her sobs had tapered away, and a faint, dreamy smile was forming on her full, kissable lips as she found herself in a mild day-dream, fantasizing about the way it would feel if she didn't just put her tits near John's face, but actually removed her clothes and pressed her nude, glorious body against his naked, muscular one, lips pressing together as she...

With a small gasp, she forced her eyes open and she stood up, quickly, feeling the heat in her face.

* *

Matt was still trying to figure out if he should pat the woman his friend and roommate had become lightly on the shoulder in empathic commiseration when her sobs slowly faded away, and she let out a soft, regretful sigh. A second later, she sighed again... but it didn't sound quite the same...

Then, suddenly, she almost bounced out of her chair, a flush spreading across her fair-skinned face as she forced a bright smile to her full, oh-so-damned-kissable lips.

"Well..." She said, too brightly and too loudly. "Now that we know what caused it, we can figure out how to reverse it, right?"

He and John shared a long, considering look. Surely she must know that she might be stuck like... but why bring that up, until all other possible 'remedies' were tried. Sure, she must know - but why remind her? After all, she was the one being forced to be a woman, and in more than just body, since she was 'forced' to dress as a woman before she could so much as leave her room.

"Okay, so I guess we go see the fortune-teller..." Matt said. "Why don't I call and find out what time the bus goes by, and we'll get ready..."

"Hang on - why don't you guys stay here, and I'll go get my car?" John suggested. "Then we can drive down there."

Krissy laughed nervously... no. No, she didn't laugh... she giggled nervously, which both guys found disconcertingly attractive, coming from this bright-eyed, perky blonde girl that they were forcing themselves to remember wasn't really a woman... well, she was, of course, but she had the mind of a guy, and that made being sexually attracted to her not only wrong, but sick...

...didn't it?

Disconcertingly, it was a question that was occupying way too much of Matt's attention.

"I think I'd go crazy just sitting here, waiting." Krissy explained, nervously. Oddly, she seemed to vary between wanting to look the guys in the eyes when she spoke, or being unable to look at them at all... or something. Her eyes were all over the place, and the way she stood and - cutely, damn it! - bounced on her toes, hands clasped behind her (oh-so-firm) ass revealed a nervousness that went beyond the anxiety of waking up and suddenly finding herself the wrong gender. It was almost like the nervousness of a fourteen-year-old girl contemplating being alone with a guy for the first time. No, not quite - like she was going to be alone with a guy she liked - at least, that was the way it struck Matt, who had a younger sister, and...

...and, damn it, that was just crazy. He didn't really understand women - and especially not women-who-had-been-men. He was just latching on to a mental image from his own past, one that had no bearing on the current situation...

No. No of course it didn't. There was no way it was in any way related - and he certainly wasn't wishing that it was the thought of being alone with him that was making her act like a curious, nervous young virgin wondering how to act around a guy she really liked, and wondering if he was going to...

No. No, it was nothing like that.

"Well, why don't we 'split the difference'..." He suggested, wondering if his own voice sounded as weird to them as it did to him. What the hell was wrong with him, anyway...? "Why don't we all take the bus to the Impound Lot to pick up John's car. Besides, it's closer to the fairgrounds than we are, so there'll be no back-tracking..."

"Yeah - yeah, that's a great idea!" Krissy exclaimed... and, once more, Matt had to forcibly remind himself who was really inside that buxom, sexy female body. 'Krissy' and 'Chris' were the same age, with the same birthday... but she had the lush, flawless body of a perfect nineteen-year-old dream, with the silky skin of an sixteen-year-old... and, personality-wise, she seemed to sway between an intelligent (and, damn it, sexy) woman her 'real' age of twenty-five... and a fourteen year old girl, new to womanhood and everything it had to offer - and even that 'acting' was cute!

"I'll just call the bus..." Matt started to say...

"No, no!" Krissy interrupted, brightly. "You go get ready, both of you. I'll call and find out when the next bus is due." She smiled almost angelically, vibrant and alive.. and oh-so-feminine. "Go ahead, guys."

Matt blinked - then realized that it was that damned compulsion he'd laid on her. Sure, he hadn't known he was doing it, hadn't believed his 'wish' would come true... but it was still his fault, and he could hardly do anything to make her suffer because of it, could he?

"Sure, Krissy." Matt said, shooting John a look. "Come on, John - let's go get ready."

Gripping his somewhat confused friend's arm, Matt spoke in a low voice, explaining to John about the depth of the compulsion - and the way the rest of the world apparently knew 'Chris' as Krissy...

* *

As the guys left the room, Krissy felt an oddly-mingled emotion - equal parts relief... and regret.

Whatever changes had been made to her to make her attracted to guys made her feel profoundly sorry that she'd 'let go' of a chance to be sexy and feminine in front of them, to appreciate them and have them appreciate her...

It was a disconcerting sensation, and she tried to ignore it as she picked up the phone and dialed the automated scheduler at the bus terminal, punching in the four-digit 'extension' for the stop closest to their apartment.

As she punched in each number, she felt that warm, uncritical happy glow expanding. By the time she heard the computerized voice reel off the next three bus-times, she was positively giddy.

Walking down the hallway and shouting through the closed doors of the guy's rooms that they had ten minutes made her actually shiver with physical and emotional pleasure. Being so.. useful felt fantastic. Wonderful. Amazing!

It was probably because of this giddy 'high' that she did what she did when she got to her room and caught sight of herself in the mirror. In might have been the giddy, happy feeling - or it might have been the fact that she knew how to keep it going...

* * * * *

"Okay, come on..." John said, stepping out of the bathroom.. and finding Matt stepping out of the door of his bedroom, only inches away, wincing at John's shout.

"Sorry - didn't know you were standing right there." John apologized. "Where's Kris "

He stopped - because Matt's eyes had suddenly gone wide, and his jaw had dropped. Frowning, John turned around...

...and unconsciously mimicked Matt's expression as he stared at Krissy.

She'd changed. Oh, not physically, just her clothing but even then, it was almost like he was staring at a whole new person.

Somebody who was, and always had been, female.. and knew it, too. "Like it?" She asked with a warm smile, twirling on one heel.

"Wha.. wha.. wha " Matt said, and John agreed with him.

The heel she'd twirled on was at least five inches high, and belonged to the white leather pump she wore. It's mate enclosed her other foot, as well.

The twirl she'd performed made the flowing knee-length skirt rise up in a twirl, briefly - and tantalizingly - displaying the white cotton briefs below. The white skirt was part of the dress she wore - a dress similar to the one worn by Marilyn Monroe in 'Some Like it Hot', except that this dress was cinched tight around Krissy's waist wide a wide black spandex belt with a double-curved 'circle' clasp... and this dress displayed a lot more cleavage in its V-neck, firm bountiful breasts that were mouth-wateringly perfect.

"Uh " John managed, having to forcibly tear his eyes away from the gorgeous woman standing before him, matching white purse held lightly in one ring-bedecked hand.

"Oh, it's all right, guy - I know you want to drool." She laughed, brightly. "Go ahead and drool - I won't blame you." Matt managed to finally turn his sounds into a coherent word. "Why?"

She laughed again - and the sound was just so damned attractive "Well, I realized that maybe it will be as easy as seeing that fortune teller. Then I'd get my own body back and I'd probably spend the rest of my life kicking myself for not taking this chance to see just how 'hot' I can look." She grinned. "That's why I know you feel like drooling - because, going through my wardrobe and looking at myself in the mirror, I picked the dress that I drooled over - which is the whole idea " She fluffed her skirt and tossed her head in a manner so feminine that it nearly made the guys forget who she was. "I just wanted the chance to ogle myself every time..

* *

" I walk past a mirror." She said, brightly, lips curved into a sincere smile that masked the lie.

The truth was, she'd started out getting dressed this way out of a 'voyeuristic' impulse.. but once she'd seen just how hot she'd looked, she'd found herself thinking about how the guys would react...

...and that had been it. Even now, lost in a daze of pure pleasure from how sexy she was, she felt tinges of regret and disgust.. but they were buried beneath an avalanche of pleasure.

Even the fact that she was finding both obviously-aroused men so damned attractive couldn't eclipse the pleasure she was feeling.

In fact.. she was doing things to 'reinforce' that pleasure, consciously imitating actions and stances she'd seen 'real' women use, making herself more feminine. Even as part of her hated herself for doing it, for 'giving in' to the urge to be more feminine, another part of her still-powerful mind had made the until-then unnoticed connection.

She was female, now - and what could be more 'helpful', more 'useful' to John and Matt than being sexy and sexual?

'Oh, shit... I'll have to watch it..' She thought to herself, struggling to 'tone it down' even though a very large part of her didn't want to let go of the pleasure she was feeling. 'Obviously, this... 'magic'? Yeah, I guess it is.. anyway, this magic took the wishes 'literally'.. and, so, I'm 'rewarded' for doing things that the guys find 'nice' and I bet that would include having sex with them. In a very real way, I'm now geared towards Matt and John's sexual desires. No, not just sexual.. all of them. I'd spend my life in a mindless, happy daze if I lived to serve their every whim.. including the sexual ones. Since I don't want to be a mindlessly happy 'slave', I'll have to be careful...'

It was a good thought, a safe thought - but a surprisingly hard one to keep in the fore-front of her mind.

She was a woman, physically, and she had the normal female hormonal system... and the added level of arousal she was feeling being around two 'viable' males was an additional sensation, one that made her feel weak and overly-warm and nervous... and yet, for all that, was still a surprisingly - and powerfully - pleasurable sensation.

God - she felt great! She shouldn't, not after being turned into a woman. And definitely not after 'willingly' acting more feminine and sexy

- and most definitely not from getting turned-on by her friends Matt and John...

...but she still felt utterly ecstatic, nonetheless.

She blushed. To cover her confusion and unwanted 'good' feelings about the guys, she said: "All right - do either of you guys have enough spare change for my bus fare, as well? I seem to be short on loose change..."

Matt and John frowned slightly and looked at each other.

"Uh... Krissy?" John said, confused. "Why don't you just use your bus pass?" "Bus pass? What bus pass?" She asked, confused herself.

"The one you always use." Matt supplied, less-than-helpfully... but, too him, it seemed to explain it completely.

"Guys, I don't have a bus pass..." She said, opening her purse and looking inside it just to make them happy. "I hardly even leave the apart... holy shit!"

Stunned, she lifted out the small blue-plastic 'folder' she'd discovered in her purse. Opening it, she found herself looking at the annual photo-card at the top, with her 'new' face in the photo - and the monthly pass in the lower half.

"But..." She stammered, eyes going wide as she looked at the two guys. "How.. how did you know I had a bus pass?"

Matt frowned. "Huh? Well... You just always get a bus pass, Krissy. Every month. So you don't have to keep lots of spare change on hand in case you decide to go out..."

"No..." She said, shaking her head and feeling her stomach tighten in fear. "Guys - that's not what 'Chris' does - that's what Krissy does..."

Matt's jaw dropped. "Wait a second... how...?"

"The.. the spell, or whatever it is!" Krissy said, her heat pounding her gut feeling like a lead ball. "Maybe it's because you guys know me so well, or were closer to me, or something... but you're beginning to change! At least, your memories are. You're beginning to be like everybody else - who only remember me as Krissy, and a history that never happened!"

"Shit - you mean we're gonna forget who you really are?" John said startled. "We're gonna think you were always a girl named Krissy instead of a guy named Krissy..."

"Chris! My name was Chris..." Krissy said, nearly panicked. "Oh, God - I don't think I can handle this alone... and that's exactly what I'll be if you guys forget me, too."

"Well, then..." Matt said, firmly. "I guess we'll have to reverse this before it happens, wont we...?"

Something seemed to melt inside her, and Krissy felt a surge of relief at his strong, confident words... and something else. Something similar to 'affection'... but stronger. That part of her feeling she struggled to push as far back as possible.

"Well then - let's go." She said, unaware of the warm, melting smile of gratitude she gave Matt... and wondering why he was blushing slightly.

"Uh, yeah..." He mumbled, and the three of them gathered up the last things they needed and headed out. At the door, Krissy almost panicked at the thought of going out of the apartment like this, as a woman. Suddenly, she became hyper-aware of the cool air moving around her bare legs, of the easy and graceful way she was balanced atop a pair of dainty, high-heeled pumps, of the weight and shift of her new, spectacular breasts. While getting ready to go, she'd found herself using skills she hadn't know she'd had, just like when she'd done her make-up and hair for the first time. It was an odd sensation, finding you knew things you didn't know you knew - and feeling a measure of relief that you did, no matter how shameful it was, because without those new skills she wouldn't have been able to leave the room, much less do anything else.

Still, leaving the apartment was a frightening concept to her, even if she could walk easily in the shoes she was wearing and pass herself off, quite convincingly, as a woman. The fact that nobody else remembered her being a man made that part easier, actually - but it was also the crux of the newly-discovered 'time limit' problem. Being able to walk out in the world without being seen as a freak or tranny or something was one thing - being completely alone in this horrible situation was something else.

They got to the stop near their apartment with perfect timing - the bus was already in sight when they arrived, and pulled up to the curb a moment later - which gave Krissy a sudden, almost overwhelming burst of pleasure at being so 'helpful' as to get them there on time...

...and that feeling doubled and redoubled when she saw the appreciative glances men were giving her.

So it wasn't just John and Matt's whose unspoken approval could make her feel good - but theirs was, by far, the most powerful. It was disconcerting, but Krissy was just damned glad she didn't feel so powerfully attracted to - so powerfully aroused by - other men as she was by her friends.

Not that she was at all comfortable with being incredibly attracted to her friends, mind you, no matter how good it felt. Likewise, she wasn't really happy about the burst of pleasure she got from seating herself between them on the long bench running down the side of the bust, feeling their masculine presence on either side of her and all-to-aware of the fact that either one could just sort of look over and get a great view of mouth-watering cleavage.

She certainly wasn't happy about the rush of sexual pleasure she got when they actually did it. Blushing furiously, to be sure, but they couldn't seem to help themselves, ogling her lush, sexy body shamefully - but at great length...

She was ashamed to find herself 'posing' to maximize how attractive she was. She felt waves of shame and disgust at her actions - but the 'good' sensations it created were far more powerful, enough so that her will was eroded. She'd catch herself doing something... flirtatious, and she'd force herself to stop... and then find herself doing it again, unrealized.

The entire ride was like this - bouts of flirtatious actions interspersed with sudden, shocked bouts of ashamed behavior... but as the trip went on, those bouts of shame grew less frequent, and shorter, as she found herself 'getting used' to acting sexy and feminine.

When they arrived at the impound lot, she and Matt stood outside the front gate, studiously ignoring each other, their faces wearing matching blushes. She was desperately struggling to get her rampant emotions back under control, and was grateful to Matt for 'ignoring' her until she could get a handle on the unwanted - but oh-so-pleasant - emotions and sensations she was experiencing.

Trying to calm herself, she tried to empty her mind, to clear her thoughts completely. It really didn't help her state-of-mind much.

The impound lot was on the edge of town, and it was a warm, if slightly breezy day. It was 'little' things - like the weather - that you would tend to ignore if you world - and body - had suddenly and completely changed on you one morning. However, with her mind 'empty' the weather suddenly became almost painfully obvious...

She was suddenly very aware of the way the cool-yet-pleasant morning breeze felt, moving over the silky bare skin of her calves. Of the way that breeze shifted the light material of her dress, sensuously gliding the fabric over her knees and lower thighs. Of the tension of the fabric over her full, firm ass.

She also noticed the way her black spandex belt, cinched tight around a deliciously slender waist, was absorbing the warmth of the sun... where it wasn't in the shadow of her firm, ripe globes of firm, delectable tit-flesh. The cool air was also affecting her by causing her nipples to stand at full attention, clearly visible through the white material of the dress, as she'd neglected to wear a bra...

No. No, it wasn't quite chilly enough for her to react that way. Indeed, judging the temperature was difficult, because she felt overly- warm.. and somewhat weak-kneed. No, those feelings - and the erect, highly sensitive nipples - had to have a different cause.

Could it be from the fact that Matt was standing so near to her? Even if he was studiously ignoring her, she knew he was attracted to her

- and her to him, even if she didn't want to be. She was aware of how masculine he was, how muscular - and handsome. He was also so kind, and strong, and caring. He'd probably make a fantastic lover - strong, yet careful not to hurt her as he thrust into her, over and over, his muscular body looming over hers as he brought her to the height of ecstasy...

She suddenly became aware of the fact that she was staring at him, slowly liking her lips as she contemplated what being fucked by her best friend would feel like. Shame suddenly roared over her - and it was (barely) enough to override the rampant arousal that she was feeling.

Thankfully, at that moment John pulled out of the gate in his bright-colored sports car, and she was able to collect herself as they piled into the car. Not trusting herself to sit too close to either of the guys, she slid into the back seat while the guys took the front seats - even though Matt was 'gracious' enough to offer her the front seat, and she almost hated him for the sudden wave of affection his gentlemanly offer created.

"It's great of both of you to come with me to pick up my car." John said, pulling out of the lot. "I'm glad to get it back."

"Well, it was no big deal." Krissy said, uncomfortably. "After all, we had to come this way to get to the fairgrounds, anyway." John frowned. "Fairgrounds? What would we want to go to the fairgrounds for?"

Krissy's heart skipped a beat. "Don't you remember? We have to go to the carnival and find that Fortune Teller - the one who did this to me."

* *

John blinked and shared a confused look with Matt.

"Did what to you, Krissy?" He asked, confused. The sudden look of panic that crossed her pretty, perky face only deepened his confusion.

"Oh, my God...!" She gasped. "John.. John, don't you remember who I am?"

Now his confusion seemed to be a bottomless pit. "Uh.. yeah, of course I know who you are, Krissy. After all, we've been sharing an apartment with you for the past three years."

"Oh, God, no..." She moaned, sounding close to tears.

"Krissy? Hon - what's wrong?" Matt asked, concerned, twisting around in his seat to look at her - and surprised to see a look of mingled joy and pain cross her face at his usual term of endearment.

"Oh, God - you guys don't remember who I used to be!" She said, tears trickling down her smooth, milky cheeks. "You don't remember me being a guy before yesterday..."

"A guy!" John said, shocked. "What on earth... Why would you think you used to be a..."

He stopped, confused, and shot another look at Matt - who's own confusion mirrored his own.

"Uh, John..." Matt said, awkwardly. "I know - know - that we've lived with Krissy for three years now... but do you actually remember anything we did together? I mean... I know we went to the carnival last night with Krissy - but can you remember the three of us there?"

"Uh..." John paused, eyes widening as he tried to 'see' last night in his memories. He also 'knew' that all three of them had gone - but...

"Shit..." He swore, jaw going slack. "I... I remember you and me, Matt... and some - some other guy. I remember talking to him as if we were all friends... but I don't recognize him. I don't know him..."

"That was me!" Krissy said, urgently. "Guys, I know this is confusing... but do you remember the discussion we had this morning? Before leaving?"

Both guys suddenly twitched. Everything that had happened since waking up this morning was clear and easy to remember. They remembered being surprised at finding Krissy in her own bed... although they were no longer sure why. Well, they had an idea... because they also remembered...

"Something about our memories being changed!" John said, startled. "Wait a second - are you saying that we're 'remembering' things that never happened?"

"Yes - and it's getting worse!" Krissy said. "We have to get to the carnival and find the Fortune-teller... quickly!"

John didn't recall why it was so urgent to do so, or what exactly had happened last night... but he did remember agreeing to take her to the fairgrounds, even if he didn't know why it was so urgent.

"Okay, okay - we're going." John told her. "Just relax, honey-buns - everything's going to be okay..."

* *

Heart pounding with fear and expectation, Krissy leaned forward as the Trans-Am rounded the last corner before the fairgrounds...

...and felt her heart squeeze painfully tight at the sight of last night's carnival half-dismantled. Many of the bigger rides were in various states of deconstruction, and many of the smaller ones were already on trailers. Sweaty, grubby 'carnies' were busy tearing down the carnival to the trip to the next town.

"No..." She moaned. "No - it can't be too late! I need to see..."

Then she stopped dead, horrified, as she realized that she couldn't remember why she was here.

Oh, sure, she knew that it was because she wanted to be male again. She just couldn't quite make the connection between her current, female state and her old, male one. What had happened to her? How had she become a woman? She couldn't remember... but she could remember that it seemed very, very important to come back to the carnival for some reason. She'd been convinced that coming back here would be able to turn her back into...

Into...

TO BE CONTINUED

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: The continuation of how one fortune teller answers two roommates' wishes for their other roommate to be more helpful around the apartment by changing him into a female roommate named "Chrissy."

Part Two

"Oh, God... It's happening to me, too...!" Krissy said, wide-eyed in horror as she realized she could no longer remember her old, male name.

"What's happening to you, Krissy?" Matt asked, looking back at her in concern. "Are you feeling okay? First you insist we drive you out here... and now this."

Krissy stared at him... and felt a shudder of something unpleasant pass through her as she noticed, yet again, just how cute Matt was. Why should she get discomfited at finding such a virile man so attractive...?

Wait. Wait, maybe that odd shudder of revulsion had something to do with why she was here. She was here because something had happened to her. She was a gorgeous, sexy, happy young woman now, but sometime in her past - and not her distant past - she'd been...

...a guy. That was it. Though she could no longer remember when or how it had happened, she definitely recalled a time when she'd been male, and these guys had been just 'buddies'... which is why being sexually attracted to them now felt weird.

Of course, she couldn't tell them that. They wouldn't understand. Whatever was happening to her mind was already happening to them, and it was much further advanced the what was happening to her. As confused and disjointed as her own memories and thoughts were, her 'explanation' would be even less coherent to them.

"I... I just need to get out and walk around for a bit." Krissy said, hoping against hope that something would reach out and spark a memory that would clear this all up. "Can you let me out, please, Matt?"

"Sure, honey - anything you want." Matt said, a kind and cute as ever...

Wait a second... why was she 'remembering' him as being a kind, attentive guy, obviously attracted to her but restraining himself for her sake... when she couldn't actually remember any incidents that would have created that 'impression'?

It.. it had to be another 'false' memory... but that didn't lessen how she felt about him.

Struggling to keep what was 'real' firmly in mind, even as the 'evidence' to support it was slowly drained from her ever-changing mind, Krissy climbed out of the car and looked around, wondering where to begin.

Scarred and confused - but no longer sure why she felt that way - Krissy began to wander the partially-dismantled fairgrounds, trying to retrace the half-remembered path she'd taken last night...

* *

"Uh, John...?" Matt said in a low voice, trailing a discreet distance behind Krissy as she looked around with a cute frown of puzzlement on her face. "I.. I think there's something wrong with her..."

"Oh, she'd acting a little weird..." John said, grinning. "But trust me - there's nothing at all wrong with her..." Matt glanced away from Krissy to look at John - and had to fight the impulse to deck him.

John was eyeing Krissy lasciviously. Not that Matt could blame him, really - after all, Krissy was cute and sexy, especially in that dress she was wearing. Of course, she always dressed like that - she loved to emphasize her body, and it showed in the perky little stride she used, causing her smooth, sexy legs to scissor delightful, her nicely rounded hips rolling and swaying in a way that caused her skirt to sway pertly. It was just as enjoyable experience from the front, since it did.. intriguing things to her firm, mouth-watering tits...

However, what created the 'urge-to-kill' in Matt wasn't the fact that his friend was admiring Krissy. Just about any guy who saw her did that. No, what really pissed Matt off was the fact that John was constantly trying to seduce her, even though she'd made it clear when she'd moved in that she wasn't looking for any 'entanglements'. As sweet, sexy and eager-to-please as she was, she wasn't quite ready to get involved with anybody, seriously - and 'casual sex' might screw up the relationship she already had with them, which was a pretty damned good one. Krissy was sweet and sexy and incredibly helpful, eager to fulfill their slightest needs and whims... except sexual ones. For that, she always went out and found some nice-enough guy who was looking for some friendly-yet-'meaningless' sex.

Although, to be honest with himself, Matt had to admit that a large part of his anger wasn't at John's boorish behavior. It stemmed from a sort of jealousy. Though he despised John for continuing to 'harass' Krissy, the truth was he was unbelievably attracted to Krissy - and it was more than John's purely sexual attraction.

Matt was afraid that he'd fallen madly, deeply, head-over-heels in love with Krissy. No other woman could meet the new standard for 'perfection' that Krissy had set for him. Everything about her was perfect, body and soul, and no other woman would ever measure up...

...and his ideal woman wasn't interested in him. It was slowly driving him crazy - but what could he do about it? Move out, so as not to be tempted? That would only deny him the pleasure of seeing her every day. Try and take their relationship further? Against her wishes? Regardless of whether his attempt succeeded or not, he'd never be able to look himself in the mirror afterwards...

...or perhaps if he succeeded, he would be able to. That might have been what scared him the most - that he was willing to sell out his very values - the core of his own self-worth - for the chance to be with her.

* *

Krissy stopped and stared long and hard at the purple tent, trimmed with black fringe and tassels. A banner, gold thread stitched on purple, advertised 'Fortunes Told, Palms Read - find your Future!'

Yes. Something about this place was more than familiar - it touched that core of urgency deep inside her, though she could no longer recall what was creating the urgent, fearful sensation.

She turned to a carny working nearby. At least, he had been working before - now he was just ogling her shapely body, and she felt a shiver of pleasure run through her at his obvious enjoyment of her firm, supple body.

That was her curse, of course - she had an incredibly low sense of self-esteem, and desperately needed approval. She knew it was sort of sick to be willing - nay, desperate - to do just about anything and everything to satisfy men - but she couldn't help herself...

She needed to be needed.

"Excuse me." She said, brightly, causing his eyes to lift from her cleavage to her face. "Uh... do you know where the fortune teller is?"

"Madame Zaruski?" The carny asked, smiling at her. "No - she'd not part of the show. She just showed up opening night with a proof-of- payment for rental of that spot. I think she's got it until tomorrow night, even though we're moving on. She usually shows up by about seven..."

"Oh..." Krissy said, disappointed. "Well, I guess I'll have to come back later. Thanks anyway..."

"Oh, my pleasure..." the man said with a meaningful grin - sending another surge of pleasure through her. She turned away...

...and spotted John and Matt looking at her.

Matt's gaze was adoring, and kind - yet restrained. More friendly the lustful - and that made her want him all the more. She had to fight that urge, though, because it would be wrong to have sex with him... though she wasn't quite sure why. After all, they'd both enjoy it, and she knew that she found him attractive, above and beyond her desire to please all around her. No, her urges towards him went deeper than her unmindful need to be 'helpful' - and she wondered why she just didn't give in. She knew it felt weird for some reason, but she couldn't recall exactly why. She couldn't even recall why she hadn't given in at any of the opportunities that must have presented themselves, what with her living with him and all... then again, she couldn't even remember there being any such 'opportunities', though there must have been. For that matter - she couldn't recall any of the details of their lives sharing an apartment. She knew for a fact that they were roommates... but she had no clear memories of any time spent together with them, which was weird...

John, on the other hand, was looking at her with naked lust - and she shivered. If he ever got it into his head to 'demand' sex... she wouldn't be able to help herself. If given with enough 'force', she'd comply with any order a man gave her - the raging 'need' she felt would force her to, whether she wanted to or not. She hoped it never, ever came to that - because, aside for that 'need', she didn't particularly like John. She wasn't sure why - after all, no guy could be snide or rude to her - but she felt as if he had constantly belittled her... which wasn't possible, was it?

The problem was, she just couldn't remember. That was why she was here. She wasn't sure how or why, but this fortune-teller had something to do with her not being able to remember things, and she hoped Madame Zaruski could make things right again.

Well - she'd have to wait until later for that.

"We're going to have to come back tonight." She told the guys. "She's not here right now."

"Hmm... Well, I guess we might as well head home." Matt said. "I don't know about you guys, but I'm starved - we haven't had breakfast yet."

"You guys mind taking the bus home?" John asked. "I didn't plan on going into work today, because I hadn't planned on having affordable transportation. Since I got my car back, I might as well go in, though."

"Oh, sure." Krissy said, quickly, before Matt could berate him - after all, dropping them off at home would have taken him only a few minutes out of his way. Still, Krissy was glad to get rid of him - he still made her feel uncomfortable, with his open - if unspoken - desire for her. One wrong 'command' from him...

"We can grab a bite to eat before we head home." She said to Matt, calming him after John's boorish behavior. "there's a great place for breakfast just down the street, and then we can catch a bus home."

Matt shot John a dirty look, then finally sighed and smiled at her. "Sounds like a plan, hon." "Great. John - we'll see you tonight."

"Looking forward to it, babe." John said with another lustful grin, then he turned and headed towards his car.

"Shall wee?" Krissy asked, brightly, slipping her arm through his and trying to ignore the twin twinges of disgust and desire. "Well - of course, Madame..." Matt said, gallantly, and they headed off towards the restaurant...

* *

Matt was floating on air.

He'd just spent the most enjoyable morning - and most of the afternoon - that he could remember ever having.

It had started with breakfast. Oh, the food was pretty good and the service friendly and efficient - but it had been the fact that it had been with Krissy that had made all the difference. Whatever her problems had been, she'd seemed to forget them - mostly. There was a few times when she'd looked confused, and once or twice ashamed, but for the most part she'd been her usual perky, flirtatious self, and spending time with a gorgeous, perky woman who is amazingly cute, funny - and, not to mention, busty - was a hell of a way to enhance a simple meal.

On their way home to the apartment they'd had to transfer busses - and the transfer point had been at a mall, and she'd decided she wanted to 'hang around' the mall for a bit. He'd volunteered to keep her company, and it had turned into one of the most enjoyable experiences in recent memory. They'd window shopped, and chatted. They'd seen a movie at the in-mall theater, then did some more 'serious' shopping. Once or twice, she'd even come out of the dressing room to model something for him, asking him his opinion - and, as usual, she picked stuff that looked damned good on her, showing off her lush, perfect body, so he'd been able to assure her - honestly - that she looked great.

It was almost a shame when the day had ended and they'd caught a bus back home. She'd trundled off to her room with her bags of new clothes and shoes, et cetera, while he'd kicked off his shoes and dropped onto the couch with a content sigh. About the only thing that hadn't been perfect was the ever-present knowledge that nothing 'serious' could ever happen between him and her - but even that hadn't been enough to put a damper on a hell of an enjoyable day.

Leaning back in the couch, Matt considered going for a beer - but decided to just sit and relax for a bit. Feeling a bit guilty, he knew he could get Krissy to grab him a beer when she came out, and while he felt sort of bad about 'taking advantage' of her by asking her to fetch him a beer, she'd assured him enough times that she actually enjoyed doing it, and who was he to steal pleasure away from her...?

Hearing the gentle tip-tap of high heels coming down the hall, Matt turned to ask her to grab a beer for him while she was up...

...and stopped dead, jaw hanging loosely.

"Like it...?" She asked, slowly turning in a full circle to give him the 'whole enchilada'. Matt made a strangled sound in the back of his throat as he continued to stare.

The shoes were white-and-pink. That is, the eight-inch high heels and the three-inch platform were white. The three thin straps that crossed her feet and wrapped around her ankles were pink... as was the small bows at the very back, just behind her slender, graceful ankles.

From the top of those bows to the hem of the short little skirt, Krissy's legs were bare... and she had long, shapely legs that suffered not at all for the effect of the high heels, accentuating the graceful curve of her calves.

The skirt was white, and sort of frilly... or maybe 'poofy' was the right word. Matt wasn't exactly up on women's styles, but he approved of the skirt, whatever it was called. Aside from the fact that it very barely came down below her crotch, it resembled a skirt from the Forties or Fifties... as did the tight, fuzzy hot-pink sweater she wore, clinging oh-so-delightfully to her full, firm breasts.

Her hair had been pulled back into a tight ponytail held in place by a big pink bow, and her make-up scheme went along with the whole 'Fifties' look as imagined by a porn director, perhaps. She looked both girlish and seductive, a mix that sounded odd until you met

Krissy, who - despite being buxom, perky and flirtatious, was about as far away from a 'bimbo' as you could get. After all, she was damned near a genius, with an amazing aptitude with computers, electronics, and trivia but she was also a beautiful woman, which kept her from becoming the stereotypical 'absent-minded genius' by a large stretch. "Unghhhh " Matt said, again, unable to tear his eyes away from her.

She smiled, showing dimples. "I'll take that to mean you like it..." She said, slowly - and cutely/seductively - gliding closer....

...closer...

...until she settled on the couch, right next to him. As if automated, his head had swiveled to keep his eyes locked onto her supple form, and now he found himself staring at her from only inches away, unsure where he should let his eyes settle.

"You look... great " He finally managed, lamely.

"I know " She said, smiling in a way she'd never used with him before - and lightly running one hand over his thigh. "But what do you think of the outfit?"

"Huh?" Matt said, startled. His mind was sort of locked in neutral, and he tried desperately to think of what she meant by her seemingly discordant pair of comments - because she certainly couldn't have been...

"Hmm.... Don't feel much like talking, huh...?" She all-but-purred. "That's fine with me "

Then she kissed him. She.

Kissed. Him.

Matt's brain shut down completely - but he'd had this little scenario enough times in his fantasies that his body was already well-trained in reaction, and he enfolded her in his arms.

She moaned, softly, and snuggled into him - just like in his dreams. Just like in his dreams, she kissed him, slowly but passionately, and he kissed her back the same way. Just as in all his dreams, his hands slid - hesitantly - to her firm, taut ass and began to massage it - and, without words, she made it very clear that she liked it... It took a sheer force of will to pull his lips away from hers. "Krissy..." HE said, huskily. "I... We..."

"Shut up." She suggested, kissing him again. "I'm tired of denying myself, Matt. For three years I've been around you. From the first day, I found you sexy and exciting - and with every day after, I found more and more to like about you. Your warm, and funny, and kind, and oh... so... sexy! ...and I want you to make love to me."

"Oh..." He said, numbly. "Okay..."

* *

If she hadn't been as turned on as a platoon of Marines on leave, Krissy might have smiled at Matt's rather obvious confusion. After all, she was hardly able to believe that she was doing this, herself.

It had all started while they were at the movies... Well, no, that wasn't true. She'd found Matt handsome, sexy and kind for ages. The straw that had broken the camels back, however, had been at the movies.

They'd decided to see the movie on a whim, and had bought some of the last tickets for that particular showing, finding themselves relegated to the less-than-ideal seats in the back of the theater... the type of seats that teenage kids quite often waited to get, on purpose, so they could make out. It was this thought that had lead Krissy to begin imagining her and Matt 'making out'. She'd begun to imagine - in vivid detail - what it would feel like to have Matt's strong arm slide behind her slender shoulders, then (after a 'decent' amount of time), his hand would slip downwards, under her armpit, to massage one of her full, firm breasts - 'copping a feel'.

Then she would have moaned softly, leaning closer to him, turning her face up to be kissed in the darkness... It was a pleasant fantasy, one that sent chills down her spine and got her more weak-kneed than ever...

...but what had made her decided to seduce Matt wasn't the thought of how good making out with him would feel - but the knowledge that he'd never do it unless she let him.

Krissy knew she was sexy. She'd never have dared to come into the theater with somebody else, if she weren't willing to have sex with the guy. After all, it would only be natural for a guy - like John, say - to at least try and make out with her... and she simply could not refuse, regardless of whether or not she truly wanted to have sex with the guy.

With Matt, however...

The simple fact that she knew Matt was capable of not having sex with her made her want to reward him for his self-control... and the way she really, really wanted to reward him was with herself, finally fulfilling all those pleasant little fantasies about him.

Oh, sure, there was some sort of 'warning' nagging at the back of her mind, trying to tell her that this was very, very wrong for some reason - but she no longer cared.

She wanted him.

The fact that he'd hesitated... Well, she knew he found her sexy. There was no doubt about that. No, he hadn't tried to stop her for his sake, but for hers - and his hesitation proved that he really, truly cared about her, and that made her want him all the more.

"Why don't you take off my sweater, Matt..." She suggested, urging him onward. "There's nothing under it..." "There's a hell of a lot under it!" He protested, and she grinned at him...

...as his strong, sure hands gripped the lower edge of her tight-fitting (and itchy, damn it!) sweater and, in one smooth motion, pulled it off over her willingly uplifted arms.

"Yes..."S he purred, as his hand dropped the sweater, then cupped around her to support her, his big, warm, manly muscles pressed firmly around her slender waist...

...and his warm, supple lips on her large, engorged nipples.

Matt sucked and licked her nipples, gently, then began to spiral out along the surface of her firm, round breasts, kissing gently as he went along, first one breast and then the other - all while Krissy moaned, softly, at his eager, skilled touch.

At the feel of his cock hardening under her, however, she shivered in anticipation.

"Oh, Matt.... I've wanted this for so long..." She moaned... then frowned slightly, knowing that the words felt true - yet couldn't actually remember...

"Me, too..." Matt said, huskily, disrupting her train of thought and dispelling her hesitation. She bent her head down to be kissed again... then suddenly broke off, wide-eyed.

"Ohh, Matt - I want you so bad..." She said, hesitant-yet-arousing. "...but I almost forgot... do you have a condom?" Matt winced. "No... I don't."

She hesitated, torn. The reason for her sudden attack of sexual safety was the simple fact that she couldn't remember if she was on the pill or not.

But, even if she wasn't, what were the chances...? Oh, God, she wanted him and now that he was ready for her, the old 'urge' to be useful kicked in, and she couldn't stop herself - not that she really wanted to...

"Then don't worry about it..." She whispered, reaching for his pants...

...and he gently - regretfully - grasped her wrists.

"No, wait..." He gasped, face flushed with arousal and voice heavy with lust. "I... I can't let you take the risk, honey. I don't want to risk ruining your life with an unwanted pregnancy. I.. I'll be right back..."

Considering how much he wanted her, how long he'd wanted her for, and how close he'd been to getting her, it took a tremendous amount of will-power to do this... and that made Krissy all the more sure that it was right to bring their relationship to a whole new level - even if she did have to wait for him to get back from the corner store...

However...

"Oh, Matt, thank you..." She said, huskily, appreciating him more than ever... then she smiled, wickedly. "But I can't let you walk down to the store like this, can I? Besides, I'm sure that this won't get me pregnant..."

Then she licked her lips very slowly, while her dainty fingers unzipped and unbuttoned his fly, then slowly peeled his pants and underwear down to his knees.

Then, with a final, wicked smile at him, she sank to her knee, leaned forward - and moaned softly as she took his hard, throbbing cock into her mouth...

* *

Matt moaned again, unable to believe the incredible amount of pleasure Krissy was giving him.

He knew she had some pretty strong sexual urges, and indulged them often enough. She was sexy, and very sexually active - yet, somehow, not a 'slut', as she still kept a perky, almost girlish innocence about her most of the time.

Not now, though. While still absolutely perfect in Matt's eyes, Krissy employed every nuance, every technique she'd perfect through frequent and dedicated practice. Matt had never known a blow-job could be this utterly mind-boggling. One hand held his balls - but it didn't just hold them, but gently massaged them... while her other warm, feminine hand was wrapped around the shaft of his cock, doing a slow, rhythmic pumping motion - while her lips and tongue worked at a quicker counter-point, her head bobbing up and down as she made small sounds of pleasure in the back of her throat.

So skilled was she at varying her rhythm and pace to keep him on edge, it seemed at first that he'd never cum... and then when she finally pushed him over the edge, it seemed as if he'd never stop.

"Oh, God..." He moaned, with feeling, as the last of his warm seed went down her willing throat and she began to lick him clean. "That was... amazing!"

"I'm glad you liked it..." She said, smiling, as she pulled his pants up and did them up. "After all, I can't send my man out unsatisfied."

Matt grinned at her sharply possessive tone - he didn't mind it at all.

"I'll be back as fast as humanly possible..." He said, kissing her on the cheek...

...and then all but sprinted to the door, grabbing his wallet and keys on the way out.

* *

Closing the door behind Matt, Krissy grinned, then gathered up her discarded sweater and ankled her way down the hall.

Her first stop was the bathroom, where she brushed her teeth and gargled thoroughly with mouthwash. She didn't actually enjoy the physical act of sucking cock, and especially not the musty, salty taste of cum - but she did love the pleasure it gave to her men, especially Matt, so was willing to do it, happily, for men she cared enough about...

...though she couldn't recall, specifically, who else - other than Matt, of course - she'd cared enough to blow. Oh, sure, there must have been dozens, considering her level of skill... but who were they?

Shrugging it off, she grabbed a bottle of baby-oil and made her way into her bedroom.

Dropping the fuzzy sweater neatly on the bed, Krissy quickly shimmied out of the rest of her clothes, including the shoes. Picking up the bottle of baby oil, she squeezed a small amount of the clear, thick liquid into the palm of her hand, shivering slightly at the touch of the cool liquid on her skin.

Slowly and sensuously, she began to oil up her body. Usually, she'd wait and let the guy do this, because it was great foreplay - but she'd save that for next time. She wanted Matt, bad, and she didn't want to delay once he got back.

Once she was done, she paused to admire her smooth, oiled body in the full-length mirror, turning slight to admire the way the oil brought new highlights to her skin, further emphasizing her supple body, long legs and large, firm breasts.

Then, feeling delightfully wicked, she 'dressed'.

White, fine-floral-lace thigh-high nylons with seams up the back. A floral-embroidered white satin-and-lace 'corset' with big, ribbon ties down the front. It had dangling garters that she clipped on to the nylons, but left her crotch and breasts bare.

Undoing the big pink bow from her hair, she shook it loose and then tied it into two, loose 'tails' on either side of her head, held in place by white ribbon that matched those of her corset.

The final touch was a pair of platform shoes in a sort of 'Mary Jane' style, only much sexier. They were white leather, with a three-inch platform and nine-inch heels, and had a strap that ran over just in front of her ankle.

Knowing Matt would be back any second, she hurried out to the living room and dimmed all the lights, letting the sunlight of late afternoon provide a sort of golden-orange lighting through the big windows that fronted the patio. Having them wide open like that meant that somebody could see in, if they happened to be walking through the woodsy area behind the building - but that made it all the more delicious for her.

Smiling, she settled on the couch and 'posed' herself - one leg straight, the other bent at the knee and angled inward, 'demurely' hiding her crotch, while she crossed her wrists at her breasts, each hand covering the opposite nipple. Willing her pounding heart to slow a little, she took several deep breath to calm herself while she waited...

It didn't work. She felt like a schoolgirl, all giddy and excited, afraid yet eager. She'd had sex more times than she could count, yet she almost felt like a virgin, ready to do it for the very first time...

Krissy frowned, confused. Was this how it had felt the first time? She knew she had issues, especially sexual one, but what sort of.. of slut was she, not being able to remember the first time she had sex...?

The frown grew deeper - then her eyes widened in shock as Krissy realized that she couldn't remember any of the guys she'd had sex with. No matter how hard she tried, to couldn't bring up one name, face or image of a previous lover.

Then a connection was made. She'd been sure something was wrong with her that morning. She clearly remembered the panic, the conviction that something was wrong - though she couldn't remember what, exactly, it had been. Just that it had something to do with the carnival last night...

...the one that she couldn't actually remember going to. With a start, Krissy realized that she couldn't clearly remember anything before this morning. She 'knew' things about her past - or thought she did - but didn't have any clear memories to go along with them.

What the hell did it all mean...?

Well, whatever it was, now wasn't the time to worry about it. She'd almost forgotten about the Fortune-teller, Madame Zaruski, but now that it had come back to her she filed it away in the back of her mind. Right now, she didn't care what the oddity in her past was - she just wanted to make sweet love to Matt...

Then, as if her thought had summoned him, the door swung open - and there he was...

* *

Matt took one step into the apartment - and then his brain registered the image his eyes were providing him.

He closed the door behind him - but slowly, mechanically, without being consciously aware of it. All his conscious thought was focused on the image before him....

She gleamed. Gold, copper, brass and bronze were the materials that made the incredible, perfect figure he stared at. Even the white of her 'clothing', such as it was, was turned to rich, red-gold by the light of the dying sun streaming in from the windows. Demure-yet-sexy, she lay with a small, slightly tremulous smile on her firm, full lips while she gazed at him in simple adoration.

Then she spread her arms wide, letting her leg slide down and away, and gave him a full, sweat smile while her glorious, bell-like voice rang out, low and husky.

"Come to me, lover..."

Matt would never have any conscious memory of moving towards her, or undressing. He couldn't say whether he undressed himself, if Krissy did it, or if it were a cooperative effort. As far as his memories were concerned, he stood there for an eternal second, gazing at her utter perfection - and then he was naked and in her arms, kissing her passionately - if awkwardly - while helping her get the condom he'd bought onto his already hard, throbbing cock.

Her breath was minty-fresh. He found himself bemused to notice this one detail, and then she was laying back on the couch, legs spread in an invitation as old as time, and matched by the welcoming smile on her lips. Somehow, he found himself in position over her, and he felt the light, faintly nerve-shivering sensation of her nails digging lightly into the marbled flesh of his posterior thighs as she urged him to thrust forward...

He did - and all conscious thought ceased.

* * * * *

The exact instant she felt the muscles in his thighs bunch to begin the thrust, she thrust her own hips upwards in a slow, steady thrust - while quickly-but-gracefully rolling her hips from side-to-side, 'vibrating' as he penetrated her.

He cried out in pleasure at a technique he'd never even known existed, her tight, wet cunt holding his cock in it's warm, firmly-supple embrace while she 'shimmied' her way up it's length - and then rocked her pelvis back-and-forth on the back stroke, creating a new and exciting sensation.

It wasn't only Matt who received incredible pleasure from this exercise, of course - it also had it's effect on Krissy...

"Oh, God, Yes...!" She cried out in passion and desire, finding her body moving almost of its own volition, not needing conscious guidance in this long-familiar (if unrecalled) act.

Which was good - because all conscious thought had stopped the instant of his first thrust, whipped away by a wave of too-long-denied pleasure thrumming through the hyper-sensitive nerves of her glorious, gorgeous body.

"Harder..." She gasped, not even aware of the plea - but aware of the effects that occurred when Matt obeyed her, increasing the depth and power of his strokes even as her own hip motions became more frantic, less finely controlled.

She barely heard herself call out his name, and his responding shouts were only vaguely heard - but she felt a warm rush of emotional pleasure nonetheless, bucking and writhing under his firm, masculine body. Even in the throes of passion, he was gentlemanly enough to remember to keep his not-inconsiderable weight off her as much as possible, distributing the rest of the load evenly - and wonderfully

- across her body as he carefully modulated his own physical strength so as to maximize pleasure without causing pain.

As they made love with wild, wonderful abandon, she heard him say something else, but the rising tide of pleasure washed it through her mind without registering its meaning.

The pleasure continued to build and build, growing ever stronger...

...and then she came.

Her voice rang out clear and sharp, a sweet trilling cry of pure pleasure as her body - her nerves overloaded with pleasure - writhed and jerked under Matt's hard, thick body. She didn't hear the cry, or register the shuddering, however, as her brain simply couldn't get those signals through the roaring flood-tide of ecstasy that was drowning all other sensations, even as Matt twitched and jerked above her, reaching his own, spectacular climax.

Then, sheathed in sweat and baby-oil, they slumped on the couch, Matt using the last of his immediate energy to push himself a'kilter, so as not to crush Krissy below him. They lay there, letting the flood of orgasmic pleasure slowly drain away...

...and as the flood waters of pleasure receded, she found the words Matt had spoken lodged in the driftwood of her mind... and she tightened her arms around him in sudden emotional pleasure that was almost as overwhelmingly powerful as the physical pleasure she'd just felt.

"Oh, Matt - I love you too..." She said, voice thick with emotion - and then they were kissing, and it seemed as if it would last forever...

...right up until the champagne bottle shattered over Matt's head.

Krissy screamed and recoiled as Matt rolled limply off the couch - and John, not content, kicked the limp, bulky figure in the ribs, hard.

* * * * *

A red rage thundering through his head, he barely heard Krissy as she shouted his name, shrilly, as he kicked Matt's limp figure again, hard.

"Bastard!" John swore in a viscous, hoarse voice, angrily whipping the dozen long-stemmed red roses he'd bought onto Matt's limp body.

The second time Krissy screamed his name, it registered - and he swung his flat, viscous gaze onto the lying bitch.

He was barely aware of his now-empty hands curling into fists, drawing the muscles of his arms taut under the tux he'd rented. "So what happened to 'no affairs with roommates, bitch?'" He snarled, stepping over Matt's limp body and looming over her. "No, John, it's not like that...!" Krissy tried to protest, wide-eyed.

The thunder running through John's head intensified.

"Don't you dare tell me that!" He screamed, spittle flying from the corners of his mouth. "I decide we should celebrate me getting my car back, get all dressed up, buy flowers for you and champagne for all of us, and then get home to find you and Matt fucking... on... the... COUCH! So don't you dare try and tell me this 'isn't what it looks like!'" His voice had risen to a shrill, thunderous screech. "It's damned well exactly what it looks like!"

Then, suddenly, he straightened and - with deceptive calm given lie by the murderous look in his eyes - smoothed the rented tux over his trim chest. When he spoke again, it was in a voice that sounded almost neighborly.

"So, how long has this been going on?" He 'casually inquired'. "How long have you been fucking Matt behind my back?"

"No, I..." Krissy said - and, almost causally, he back-handed her. It wasn't terribly hard, but she went dead silent, eyes widening in horror as she stared at him.

"Don't bother lying, slut." He said, again almost casual. "That's what you are, aren't you? A slut? You fuck men all the time. Tall men, short men, white men, black men - you don't care. Oh, no, not you - you're an equal-opportunity cock-sucking slut. A big-titted bimbo who'll fuck anybody and everybody..."

Then, just like 'that', John the maniac was back, his eyes afire with a look of insanity and the cords on his neck straining as he screamed at her at the top of his lungs.

"...except ME!"

Krissy stared at him, trembling, as he once more became preternaturally calm, looking down at the cuff of his jacket and picking off an imaginary piece of lint.

"Well, that's all going to change." HE said, eerily composed. "You see, I'm gonna fuck you like you've never been fucked before. I'm gonna fuck you so long and hard that you're gonna beg me to stop - and I'll..."

He never finished the sentence. Instead, he let out a shout of shocked anger as he suddenly flew backwards, rolling backwards over the coffee-table and bouncing off the floor, struggling to his feet...

...as Matt rose from the ground like an avenging god, blood streaming from the lacerations on the back of his head.

"You bastard..." Matt growled, one arm pressed close to his side, where John had kicked him. The blow to the head hadn't actually knocked him unconscious, but had stunned him. He'd been immobilized - temporarily - by the blow, but had been aware of everything John had said or done... and now he was as rage-consumed as John was, his ham-like hands opening and closing rapidly. "You lousy bastard..."

Matt leapt towards John, and Krissy screamed again as they slammed together and vanished through the doorway into the kitchen, landing out of her line of sight in a loud clatter. There was muffled cursing and scuffling sounds, followed by several banging sounds as their bodies slammed off of table, chairs and cabinets...

...and then there were two separate, yet equally enraged - shouts of triumph, and the combatants came into view once more, their careful 'dancing' around each other putting them back in front of the doorway.

John's face was a feral grin, and he was bent low, his body held loose and ready, like a snake about to strike. Matt's face was a study in cold fury, his eyes as hard as flint as he moved with power and grace, half-turned towards his opponent to minimize how much of his body was exposed...

...and each of them held a long, wicked-looking knife taken from the knife-rack. Matt's was slightly shorter, but had a wider blade, while John's was longer and thinner.

"No...!" Krissy screamed in horror, barely able to believe that, somehow, this was happening - as the two men lunged at the same time, uncoiling with fearsome energy, those gleaming knives lashing out...

...and then they stopped.

They didn't 'stop fighting' - they just stopped. As if they were actors in a movie that had been freeze-framed. Faces still locked in snarls, the two men hung poised, John actually about a quarter of an inch off the floor from the force of his spring.

Each one's knife rested on the other's chest, the point of each blade directly above the other's heart. "What...?" Krissy said, stunned and shocked.

"I'm sorry, my dear..." A voice said - and Krissy screeched and rolled off the couch, staring at the old, dusky-skinned woman standing in the corner, wearing strange-looking robes in black and deep purple.

"Who.. who are you...?" Krissy gasped.

The woman's sorrowful eyes locked onto Krissy, and she sighed. "I am Madame Zaruski... and I fear this is all my fault." Krissy blinked - then made the connection. "You - you're the fortune teller!"

"Yes." Madame Zaruski said, slowly walking over to where Matt and John were frozen, looking the two men over with a sad, sad look. "Although my ability to foresee the future did not allow me to see this outcome."

"I.. I don't understand what's happening." Krissy admitted.

The older woman sighed. "You are not as you once were, child. Until this morning, you were not... not nearly as attractive."

"Oh." Krissy said. "I.. I was wondering about that. I was wondering why it took me so long to 'give in' to my desire for Matt. I guess, before, I wasn't attractive enough for Matt or John to be interested in me."

An odd 'almost smile' flickered across Madame Zaruski's face. "Something like that, my dear." Then the faint glimmer of amusement was gone. "However, I didn't see where it would lead. You see, I did not actually change history, only people's perception of it. Too late, I realized that - had this happened 'for real' - John, unable to take being around a sexy woman who didn't want him, would have left. You and Matt would have become lovers long before this. However, by simply altering memories, Matt remembers being hopelessly in love with you for years, and John remembers being frustrated for years - and these 'false' memories feel real enough to each of them that it affected them, and this is the result. In a 'real' history, where you were always like this, this never would have happened. There would have been some bitter words before John finally left... but not this."

You... you're not going to change everything back, are you?" Krissy said, swallowing nervously. "I mean, I don't actually remember what I was like... but I know that Matt and I weren't madly in love with each other. Maybe I was in love with him... but I wasn't attractive enough, or something."

"Or something..." Madame Zaruski agreed with a dead-pan face that seemed to hide another flash of amusement, one that quickly faded. "Changing everything back would be easiest, my dear."

"Please, no...!" Krissy begged, wide eyed. "Please - please find a way to undo this without breaking up Matt and I..."

The old woman looked sadly at Krissy, eyes dark and mysterious. "The only other option is for me to grant each of you another wish, and then try and arrange it so that the granting of each wish somehow works out so that this does not happen."

Krissy looked at the old woman's face... then nodded. "Okay. What do we do...?"

Madame Zaruski slowly turned back to the frozen men in the kitchen, her face unreadable as she waved an arm...

All three of them gasped as they found themselves sitting in Madame Zaruski's tent, a crystal ball in the center of the round, purple- draped table. All three were fully dressed, and sitting shoulder-to-shoulder with Krissy in the middle. Across from them, Madame Zaruski was looking at them intently.

"What the fuck...?" John said, angrily. "What the hell's goin' on! I can't move!"

Krissy tried - and found that she, too, was locked into place, each muscle frozen. She was awake and aware, able to breath, speak, see and hear... but she could not move. From the exclamation of surprise from her other side, it seemed Matt was in the same predicament.

"Silence!" Madame Zaruski commanded, sharply - and the two guys, who'd juts begun to swear at each other viscously, fell silent. Even Krissy felt her throat lock up, robbing her of the ability to speak.

"I am about to grant you each one wish." Madame Zaruski said. "You will only be able to speak in order to define your wish." Her dark eyes fixed on Matt first. "Speak your wish."

Matt's lips moved... but nothing came out, meaning he'd been about to say something other then his wish, perhaps ask a question - from the look on his angry, confused face, he hadn't been aware of what was happening while he and John had been 'frozen'. After a few seconds, however, his face became thoughtful. Silence reigned for a good five minutes as Matt worked things out for himself - and he finally spoke.

"I wish that Krissy and I could be free to love each other without any interference from anybody - especially John." He said, finally. Madame Zaruski nodded, then turned her eyes to Krissy. "And you?"

She swallowed nervously, already knowing what she wanted. "I wish that Matt and I would not only be happy together, in the future, but will have memories of being happy in the past, with no memories of either my old life, when we weren't lovers, or of what happened in this 'revised' history that lead to this fight."

The faintest look of approval flitted across Madame Zaruski's face as she nodded - and then it hardened as she turned to John. "What is your wish?"

John had obviously taken the time he'd had to work on his wish - and his rage. When he spoke, his voice was laced with venom, and Krissy, horrified, realized that he intended to try and screw everything up with his wish. With mounting fear and horror, she could only listen as John opened his mouth and started speaking...

"I wish..."

* * * * *

"Oh, darling - I miss you so much..." Christine breathed into the phone, leaning back against the headboard and looking idly out the window of their penthouse apartment.

'I know, honey.' Matt's voice came through the phone, though he was so far away from her. 'I miss you too - but somebody had to come see this client.'

"I know, I know..." Christine told her husband with a sigh. "I know it's important, and I know we'll be together again in a week - but I still hate to be separated from you, darling."

Matt chuckled in a low tone. 'We're just a couple of old softies, sweetie. We spend every waking moment together whenever we can, are madly in love with each other, have a great business.... and a week-long trip drives us nuts...'

Christine had to smile dreamily at that. It was true - they had just about the perfect marriage.

Christine and Matt had first met in high-school. Back then, Matt had been a massive mountain of muscle, the prototypical 'jock' - while she'd been scrawny and knob-kneed, her girlish body refusing to 'fill out' like that of all the other girls. She'd consoled herself with the fact that she was doing phenomenally in school, being a damned-near genius... but that still didn't make her feel better about her lack of a social life.

Matt had come to her, originally, for tutoring. Though not a 'big, dumb jock', he'd been having some problems, and she'd agreed to help him.

Then something neither had expected happened. The more time they'd spent together, the more they'd found they enjoyed each other's company. Soon, they were all-but-inseparable... though, for Matt, she was just a 'really good friend' - while she had a deep and almost painful crush on this strong, handsome young man.

Then two things happened while they were in college together. The first thing had been a 'blessing in disguise' - Matt had been injured while playing football, and had discovered that it would be years before he'd be able to play again. Lost and 'set adrift' after growing up as a 'sports machine', he'd turned more and more to Christine for support, even going as far as joining her computer classes to be around her warm, supportive personality...

...and to everybody's amazement - including his own - it turned out he had a real flair for computers, one that was equal-to-but-different than Christine's own 'flair'.

The second thing that happened was that she'd discovered she was a very 'late bloomer' - but, as if to make up for the delay, Mother Nature let her bloom quickly - and with a vengeance.

Within a year, she was barely recognizable. She went from thin and flat-chested to slender, supple and gorgeous. Guys who never even noticed her before began to flock around her, practically begging for dates...

...but she knew there was only one man for her - and by this time, Matt knew that there was only one girl for him. The most wonderful thing of all, though, was the fact that Matt had first told her that he loved her just before she'd begun to blossom. Indeed, it was almost as if she'd suddenly become this stunning creature just because he had said those magic words - and she would be able to live the rest of her life secure in the knowledge that it wasn't just her newly-fabulous body that Matt loved.

They'd married two days after graduation - and had gone into business for themselves. Between them, they knew everything there was to know about computers, and most of their work could be done at home. Their business quickly prospered - while their own love grew deeper and more powerful, each barely able to stand being separated from the other.

Christine couldn't believe how utterly wonderful her life had become... and she supposed that the occasional absence of her husband was a small thing in the wonderful, dream-like life she lead.

"I'll be counting the minutes until I get home." Matt promised. "I have to go, honey - but I'll call you again in the morning." "Okay..." She said, softly. "Matt - I love you."

'I love you too.' Matt said, emotionally. 'I'll talk to you soon...'

Then even his voice was gone, and Christine hung up the phone with a sigh. Staring out the window at the city skyline, she ruefully admitted to herself that it wasn't just being away from the 'love of her life' that was so annoying - it was also the fact that she'd more-or- less gotten accustomed to having somebody satisfy her sexual needs at the drop of a hat. The truth was, half the projects they worked on could have been finished in half the time - except they quite frequently found themselves making hot, passionate love instead of working. Though they'd been married for almost five years now, they still acted a lot like hormone-ridden teenagers, unable to keep their hands off of each other. A whole week of semi-chastity... (with just her collection of occasionally-used dildos, vibrators, and other 'aids')

...wasn't easy on her.

She smiled wickedly, and thought about the custom-made dildo Matt had given her last Valentine's day - the one that was a copy of his own cock. Though, of course, not as wonderful as his own, living member, it was an acceptable 'substitute', and she was just reaching towards the drawer where she kept it...

...when the doorbell rang.

She sighed, then grinned and rolled out of bed, swaying atop her high-heeled 'mules' towards the front door. Since there hadn't been a 'buzz' from the lobby, it meant that it was somebody from inside the building - and she had a pretty good idea who it was.

She was right. Swinging the door open, Christine smiled at the person on the other side.

"Hey, Joni - come on in..." She said, stepping aside and letting the other woman into the apartment. "Thanks..." Joni said on her husk, sensual voice, walking - almost flowing - into the apartment.

Christine knew she was sexy, in a perky, cheerful way... but she sometimes envied Joni, with her almost palatable air of pure carnal pleasure. Everything the dark-haired woman did was erotic, even when she wasn't trying. Her voice could give a comatose man a hard-on, and her sensual, feline glide could kill a guy with heart-problems.

Joni's body was firmer, more toned than Christine's. In fact, she was almost 'muscular' - but in a supple, almost feline way that was almost painfully feminine. Her legs were long and incredibly shapely - dancer's legs, which wasn't odd considering that Joni made a living as a stripper.

She was 'sex', packaged in the body of a woman. Her toned-yet-feminine body was darkly tanned, and her long, flowing black hair surrounded a face of carnal challenge that few men could resist, with dark, challenging eyes and incredibly full, sensual lips. She was almost unrealistically fit and toned...

...including her massive tits. Each one was the size of a medicine ball, thrust from her chest so firmly and roundly that they were near- [perfect spheres, despite the fact that they were natural, rather than surgically enhanced. Each one was tipped with a large, dark nipple, which wasn't exactly a secret - since Joni refused to wear a bra, her unbelievably toned body and regimen of exercise keeping them from 'drooping'.

"It happened again..." Joni breathed, licking her full, gloss-red lips unconsciously as she remembered. "It's as if I can't control myself." "This is the third time this week..." Christine mock-scolded Joni - then grinned. "Come on, let's find you something."

The lean-and-sexual stripped followed Christine towards the bedroom - a common enough occurrence.

Joni wasn't just unbelievably sexy - she was also unbelievable sexual. She was, quite literally, a nymphomaniac. Aside from working, sleeping and eating, it sometimes seemed all she did was fuck and suck a nearly endless parade of guys. The only problem was, Joni had a sort of strange 'habit' - she would always rip her panties off, tearing them to shreds, rather than remove them more carefully. She claimed it was because she just couldn't wait to fuck guys, and it was the quickest way to get them off - but she went through five or six pairs of panties a day. She tried to keep a supply of panties around her apartment, but several times a week she'd find herself without any panties.

"Who's the lucky guy tonight?" Christine asked, opening her drawer and sorting through the available selection of panties. Both women wore the same size panties, and Christine glanced at the black leather skirt-and-vest combo Joni was wearing, trying to pick the best pair to give her.

"Actually, it's two guys - the twin brothers I was telling you about..." Joni said, licking her lips again. "they have the biggest damn..." "All right, all right..." Christine giggled. "I don't need to hear the details. Hmm... how 'bout these?"

She held up a pair of lacy French-cut black panties, and Joni took them with a slow, seductive smile.

"Perfect..." She all-but-purred. Swiveling atop the nine-inch tall heels of her platform shoes, she started towards the door with her mouth-watering stride... and then paused, just as Christine knew she would.

It happened every time. At first, Christine had found it annoying that Joni did it every single time she came to visit, yet had finally begun to 'ignore' it. Like the panties, it was as if Joni just couldn't help herself. It was as if she had to say the same stupid line every single time

- and this time was no exception. Even as the incredibly sensual woman spoke, Christine 'tuned out', barely hearing the much-repeated phrase.

"Hey, Christine, I hope I'm not making Matt jealous - after all, it can't be easy for him, knowing that an unbelievably sexy, well-endowed person is getting into your panties..."

* *

As the huge-breasted female body he was trapped in turned and headed off to its rendezvous with a couple of horny twins with huge, thick cocks, John's trapped mind screamed over and over again in the silent, empty vaults of his own, life-long prison...

'This isn't what I meant...!'

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: After getting lost in a snow storm, one man is rescued by a reclusive woman, who explains how she was a one time a male; the rescued man decides that he wants to see what it would be like to be a woman also.

Hermit

By Gunslinger

With a whispering cry of despair, the pre-dawn February wind swept over the log structure, rattling the windows in a spray of driven snow torn from the tall pines and firs surrounding the lonely structure.

Shivering in the early-morning chill that permeated the wooden structure, Nikki quickly gathered up her long, unkempt mass of reddish-brown hair, pulling it back and wrapping an elastic around it in a rudimentary ponytail.

Wrapping her heavy, quilted blue house-coat tighter around her tall, strong frame, she tightened the belt around her slim waist, persevering as much warmth inside the garment as possible. Pausing for a second to rub her strong hands together, she winced as she reached out and wrapped one hand around the icy-cold metal of the wrought-iron poker, while her other hand turned the equally icy metal handle on the door of the old, cast-iron stove's firebox.

Quickly, the tall, ruggedly-built woman stirred new life into the embers still glowing from the fire of the evening before. Once small tongues of flame were lapping upwards from the renewed bed of embers, she loaded a few of her steadily diminishing supply of logs into the fire box, then swung the door closed again, letting the fire begin building.

As she waited for the fire to rise enough to allow her to begin making her first pot of coffee for the morning, the buxom auburn-haired woman quickly and efficiently laid a new fire in the stone fireplace that dominated the rustic main room of the cabin. Soon a small but growing blaze was laid in the hearth, the crackling golden flames already beginning to drive the chill out of the air, reinforced by the growing warmth from the old stove.

Satisfied, she walked across the room, re-entering the small corner of the structure designated as the kitchen. Using the red hand-pump mounted at the sink, she filled the battered old blue- enameled 'camp pot' percolator with the icy, clear water of the cabin's artesian well. Adding some of her diminishing supply of rough-ground coffee to the metal basket portion of the old percolator, she placed the top on the metal container and carried it over to the stove. Using the little implement supplied for the purpose, she removed one of the round metal covers from the stove, placing the percolator in its place, where the round base fit perfectly on the ledged rim, exactly as it was supposed to. With its metal bottom exposed directly to the heat of the fire, the water began to warm rapidly, and the fragrant promise of coffee began to fill the cabin.

Waiting for the coffee to begin perking, Nikki walked over to the counter near the sink, leaning her toned body against the wooden surface as she gazed blindly at the ghostly reflection in the window.

A strong-featured but not unlovely face stared back at her, its dark eyes filled with melancholy as she yes her broad-shouldered, slim-build, offset by her prodigious bust and slender waist. Even the bulky robe couldn't conceal the taut, lithe build of her Amazonian body, so supple and powerfully feminine, buxom and brawny at the same time.

Another gust from the rising storm outside rattled the window in its wooden frame, pulling her sad gaze from the reflection to the white-on-gray scene outside the cabin. Lit in the steely light that came just before a dawn that would be hidden by the low, scudding clouds, the scene was in tremulous motion, the branches of the heavy forest all bowing before the force of the rising wind...

...except for the small section of growth that was moving perpendicular to the force of the storm sweeping in from the east.

Eyes widening in shock, Nikki watched as a human figure, swaddled in a black-and-yellow snowmobile suit, staggered out of the forest, seeming to move as much from the force of the wind as under its own power. Staggering, head down, the swaying, staggering figure drunkenly navigated the snow-filled drainage ditch that edged that side of the property, seemingly unaware of where it was, or where it was going. Shoulders hunched against the wind, the figure was leaning heavily against a long section of a downed tree limb, relying heavily on the make-shift crutch as it concentrated on placing one foot in front of the other.

Stunned, locked in position, Nikki could only watch as the figure staggered to a stop, finally seeming to notice that the clearing was too smooth and perfect to be natural. As she watched, the figure lifted its head, exposing a hooded face covered by a thick scarf and a pair of goggles. For a long second, the figure simply stared at the cabin - and then, as a gust of wind swept over, simply toppled over, to lay unmoving in the blowing snow.

With that, Nikki's paralysis broke. All her own concerns suddenly shoved aside, she didn't even think about her desire for perfect, perpetual privacy as she hurried from the kitchen. Running more on instinct and adrenaline than conscious thought, she kicked off her fur-lined slippers and shoved her feet into the heavy boots kept near the door, even as she yanked an old army parka off its hook near the door.

Muttering cursed to herself, she struggled to get the zipper pulled up over a bust that the garment was never designed to cover. Finally getting the heavy coat zipped, she yanked open the plank door

- only to have it immediately torn from her grasp by the wind.

Ignoring the swinging, banging door, Nikki headed toward the downed person, snow already crawling over the person's suited figure. Yanking a pair of leather linesman gloves from the pockets of the parka, Nikki slipped them on hands already going stiff in the bitter mountain air.

Slogging through the uneven snow, Nikki reached the side of the immobile man in the snow. At this close range, there was no doubting the figure's gender, and for a moment sheer panic nearly managed to derail Nikki's instinctive good intentions as she stared down at the tall, heavily-built man sprawled at her feet.

The spell lasted only a few heart-pounding seconds, during which her mind spun terrible - and highly improbable - considerations - and then she shook her head, freeing herself from the unlikely consequences of her actions, and she grabbed the unconscious man under the armpits.

Though the man certainly was no bantamweight, Nikki herself was a whole lot of woman, and her long, well-muscled legs and toned, strong arms had no problem dragging the immobile man across the yard and into the cabin. Unceremoniously dumping him onto the floor near the door, she stepped back outside just long enough to grab the handle of the wind-tossed door. With a powerful heave that was as much body-eight as muscle, she hauled the outward-opening door closed against the force of the wind.

She latched and barred the door, cutting off the howling wind and the bitter chill it brought with it. Tearing off her gloves, Nikki quickly knelt and hauled the man's snow-impregnated scarf away from his lower face, her fingers sliding across the cool, slick flesh of his neck as she felt for a pulse along his jaw-line.

A few heart-pounding seconds later, she sighed in relief as her fingers registered the steady beat of his pulse. Even as she sat back on her haunches in relief, the man coughed and began to stir.

Moaning, the man propped himself up on an elbow and lifted one hand, pushing back hood and goggles to reveal a mass of dark hair and piecing emerald eyes that went well with his chiseled chin and hawk-like nose.

"Thanks.." He half-gasped, voice hoarse and roughened by the cold air he'd been breathing. "I was doing fine right up until I twisted my ankle... and then I really began to worry."

Fear, uncertainty, and near-panic at having another living person talk to her, and a man at that, after nearly four months of blessed solitude hit Nikki like a fist - and, in a form of emotional alchemy, transmuted into anger.

"What the hell did you think you were doing, wandering around in the mountains at night?" She demanded, her strong contralto voice filled with unwarranted anger. "You could have been killed, you bumbling idiot!"

The man, apparently about her own age of thirty, suddenly looked much young as he responded to her outburst with an abashed, boyish grin.

"Gee, sorry mom." He said, in a theatrical tone. "I won't do it again - I promise."

"This isn't a laughing matter...!" She flared anew. "What sort of idiot goes snowmobiling in the mountains at night?"

"Actually, I wasn't..." The man said, dragging himself into a sitting position and unzipping the front of his suit. "I was on my way home last evening when this buck jumps out in front of my truck. I managed to swerve - but I ran off the road, tearing out the back axle of my truck and totaling the trailer and snowmobile. I spent the night in my truck, with the engine running for heat, hoping somebody would come along, but nobody did. When I finally ran out of gas, I started walking - but then this storm rolled in, and in the blowing snow I managed to fall off the edge of the road and down the embankment, twisting my ankle in the process. There was no way I could climb back up to the road on a twisted ankle, so I started off cross-country - and wound up here."

"Oh..." Nikki said, anger draining out of her as quickly as it had arisen. "Sounds like you had a hell of a streak of bad luck."

"You could say that." He agreed. "By the way - I'm Gary. Gary Owens." She hesitated perceptibly before replying tersely: "Nikki Graves."

She ignored his outstretched hand, and Gary's boyish grin dimmed slightly as he let his arm drop.

"Well, Nikki - I'm very pleased to meet you, under the circumstances." He said, warmly. "If not for you, I might have frozen to death."

"Umm.." She replied, her previously fierce gaze lowered as she became awkward and uncomfortable, all too aware of the man sharing her 'private retreat' with her, knowing what he must see and think as he looked at her. "I, uh, got some coffee on... you could probably use a cup."

"Yeah - that's be great." Gary agreed, more then slightly taken aback by the auburn-haired Amazon's sudden shy, awkward mood. As she quickly rose and headed towards the kitchen, as if eager to get as far away from him as the confines of the cabin would allow, he shucked off the overly-warm suit, using a nearby wall to pull his well-muscled body erect, balancing on his good leg.

Standing so close to the now fully-burning stove, Nikki not only almost unconsciously shucked off her parka and boots, but also the heavy housecoat. It was almost because of, rather then despite, her mind dwelling on the fact that she was no longer comfortably alone that her body followed her current habit of making herself comfortable, and so she barely registered anything amiss as she did the same thing she did every morning, shucking down to her blue-and-white stripped flannel pajamas as the cabin warmed to a comfortable temperature. It wasn't until she turned to carry the coffee over to her unexpected and unwanted guest that she realized what she'd done.

Unsurprisingly, Gary's eyes flickered across her tall, rangy body, pausing momentarily at her most salient feature - the full, firm bust straining the buttons of her flannel top, each nearly spherical, cantaloupe-sized breast clearly delineated by the over-stressed top.

Nikki's face went beat-red, and she all-but slammed the two mugs off coffee back on the counter as she quickly yanked the over-warm but figure-muffling housecoat back on, letting it hang loosely around her body to even better disguise her shapely form.

"Sorry - I didn't mean to stare..." Gary apologized quickly, having no trouble figuring out that Nikki was more then just a tad body-conscious. He cleared his throat uncomfortably, then changed the topic: "If I could just use your phone..."

Hesitantly, her eyes averted, Nikki crossed the room and held out the mug of coffee, keeping Gary at a little arm's length away as she replied in a voice barely loud enough to be heard: "Don't have one..."

"Oh..." Gary said, nonplussed, as he wondered what was up with this woman. As she went over and settled on the far end of the rustic-looking couch, still not looking at him, he cast about for some topic of conversation.

His eyes fell on a photograph on the stone mantel. It had obviously been taken in front of this very cabin, and showed a rangy man in jeans and a red plaid flannel shirt, his bearded face split in a wide grin as he held a shotgun with obvious pride-of-ownership.

"Whose this...?" Gary said, gesturing at the photo of the auburn-haired man who bore such a resemblance to his awkward hostess. "Your brother?"

She remained silent for a long moment, so much so that he thought she wasn't going to answer. Then she did reply, in a voice so low that at first Gary was absolutely certain he must have heard wrong, prompting him to say: "Pardon me...?"

"I said..." She repeated, in a louder, but quavering, voice, head turned away. "That's me." Gary, flabbergasted, couldn't think of anything to say.

Finally, her face a deep red, Nikki turned to look at him, though her eyes still wouldn't meet his. "It isn't what you think."

"I... I'm not really sure what to think at all." He said, honestly, still stunned by the revelation. "It wasn't by choice!" She said, sharply. "I didn't want to be a woman!"

"Oh..." Gary said, still unsure what to make of all this. "How...? I'm sorry, I shouldn't..."

"I worked at a nuclear power plant." Nikki said, bitterly. "There was a sort of... accident. Most men would simply have been rendered impotent, but apparently I'm a genetic oddity, XXY rather than XY. Most people born XXY are feminine, and go through life considered women - but I was apparently male, with male genitalia, and raised that way."

Gary stared at the buxom, strong-yet-feminine woman, then looked back at the photo, finally seeing how the rangy 'all male' man could, with a relatively few changes, make up this Amazonian example of womanhood.

"With my body no longer producing male hormones..." She said, tightly, "...it suddenly decided I was a woman, after all. I went through a sort of... second puberty, one that went ahead and made me a woman - with a vengeance."

She gestured despairingly at the loose fabric draped over her prodigious bust, then let her hands slump dejectedly by her side.

"So now you know." She said, with a palatable bitterness. "You're in the presence of a genuine, honest-to-god freak. When you get out of here, you can call the National Enquirer - 'I was rescued by a Big-Titted Sex Changing Freak!' It'll make you famous..."

"You're not a freak...!" Gary denied, almost instinctively.

"Oh?" She asked, bitterly. "I'm a person who was born and raised a man, now with the body and hormones of a woman, right down to the irrational mood swings. So, I'm not a 'real' man or a 'real' woman, and the gender people see me as is the one I'm not comfortable with."

"Well, um..." Gary mumbled, not knowing what to say, but wanting to find some way of defusing Nikki's deep bitterness.

"Oh - I tried 'being female', like the psychiatrist suggested." Nikki said. "You know, leaning how to be a woman so that my actions and nature would match my appearance, so I wouldn't be a 'freak' - but it didn't exactly go well. I felt... well, like a guy pretending to be a woman. I guess you can imagine what that might make me feel like - so I stopped, and decided to just come up here and get away from the world, so I didn't have to 'pretend' to be either male or female, but could just be myself."

"I'm... sorry..." Gary said, knowing it was horribly inadequate to the situation. "I... I wish there I was something I could do to make you feel more comfortable with my being here..."

"Well, there's absolutely nothing." She replied, dejectedly. "Of course, you could always dress in my 'girly clothes' - at least then you'd be just as uncomfortable as I am..."

It was a flip comment - but Gary's response wasn't. "All right." He said, firmly.

Nikki blinked. "Excuse me?"

"If it would make you feel even the least bit more comfortable, I'll dress in women's clothing." Gary said, blushing.

She eyed him thoughtfully. "You're serious, aren't you?"

He shrugged, his blush deepening. "I think I understand how you feel - but dressing as a woman would give me a better insight into how uncomfortable you feel 'looking female' in front of me, and if it will make you feel better..."

Nikki considered the offer. Gary would obviously have to stay until the storm stopped. Not only that, but they'd have to wait until her next scheduled grocery delivery, when a truck from town would deliver her order of food and other necessities, on which Gary could catch a lift into town.

It might be as long as week - and Nikki had been planning to spend that entire week feeling horribly uncomfortable in the presence of this man. If Gary, however, was feeling just as embarrassed and ashamed as she was...

"Okay..." She said, nodding slowly. "Okay - let's do it."

Gary blinked - but, with a hesitant smile that belayed his deep blush, he slowly nodded. "Okay..."

Squaring his shoulders, Gary gestured for her to take the lead - and Nikki was surprised to feel a strange sort of tingly excitement run through her at the thought of 'femming up' this manly man, making somebody else experience a taste of what she'd had to go through since the accident. It was more than enough to allow her to overcome her hesitancy and walk over to him, giving him her broad shoulder to lean on as she led him towards the cabin's bathroom.

"Now, to start with, we've got to get this ugly body hair of you..." She said, feeling giddy at the thought...

...and his sudden stop nearly pulled them both off balance. She glanced over at him, realizing her excitement at the thought might have made her go too far, too fast.

"Did you... shave?" He asked, awkwardly. "I mean, I was being honest when I said I was willing to get a taste of what you were going through, but..."

Nikki completely understood his hesitancy - and, for the first time since the accident, and especially since her highly embarrassing attempt to 'be female', she was glad that she'd used that depilatory, and her hair hadn't grown back - since it allowed her to talk this man into it.

"Actually, it's using a depilatory to remove your body hair." She said, choosing not to mention that it had been a few months since her one-and-only time using the hair removal gel, and that the effects had lasted that long on her. "Your own little caveat sounds fair - I'll only make you do things I do, and taking off the body hair is one of the things..."

She felt like smiling in victory despite her own embarrassment - for it struck her that, as uncomfortable as she was, Gary was even more uncomfortable with this as she was. No matter how much she wished otherwise, she actually had some experience in this whole 'feminine' thing - but it was all new and embarrassing to Gary....

...which was why this strange situation felt so exciting to her.

Leading Gary into the bathroom, she gestured at the old-fashioned claw-foot bathtub along the wall. "Okay, you're going to have to undress and hop in "

As Gary slowly began to unbutton his shirt, she turned and sorted through the cabinet under the pump-action sink. He watched her, moving slowly and putting off this highly shameful act as long as he could - but she emerged from under the sink not only holding a plastic bottle similar to a shampoo bottle, but with an eager grin on her face.

It was the grin of somebody enjoying herself - and, aside from the fact that it made this strange man/woman all the more attractive, it was also a smile that Gary felt was probably missing in her life for far too long. It was for the sake of the smile that he hesitantly took the bottle of hair depilatory - despite the fact that the amount of time it had taken for her to find it at the back of the cabinet probably indicated that this wasn't part of her usual routine.

"Go ahead and follow the instructions..." She said, the words spilling eagerly from her lips. "I'll go get the buckets of warm water you'll need to rinse yourself off..."

As she left the room, he slowly finished the task of undressing, then stepped hesitantly into the tub, holding the bottle of depilatory.

Following the instructions on the box, he began to apply the thick gel to his body, shivering from more than the chill air in the bathroom as he applied the hair remover.

The proscribed time later, Nikki bustled back into the room - and her cheerful, happy demeanor, so different then the awkward, bitter women he'd first met, made him considerably less upset about his naked, gel-covered condition.

In fact, Nikki was so excited about this perverse little game they were playing, it didn't even occur to her to be uncomfortable being female, and in the same room as a naked man. In fact, she displayed no hesitation at all as she helped him was off the depilatory, her hands scrubbing his skin to pull the loosened hair from his skin.

Moments later, he stepped from the tub and accepted a towel from her, his now-smooth skin beat- red from the tips of his toes to his eyebrows, the last body-hair left anywhere on him.

"Okay..." Nikki said, practically bouncing on her toes in excitement. "Now let's get you dressed."

Blushing furiously, hands held cupped over his crotch, Gary awkwardly followed Nikki into her bedroom, where she'd obviously spent time sorting through her closet of 'girlie clothes'.

Nearly giggling in excitement, Nikki gestured towards the clothes she'd laid out on the bed - a simple floral dress, a pair of nylons, and undergarments.

"Go ahead - get dressed..." She urged him, eyes sparkling - and he realized that she was really 'getting off' on this. Whether it was because she was getting to pass some of her 'curse' onto somebody else, because she was doing something with another person after so much solitude, or both, she was obviously having more fun then she'd had in far too long - and that was reason enough for Gary to go through with the humiliation of dressing in women's clothes.

Still blushing furiously, he sat down on the edge of the bed and accepted the pair of white cotton panties she handed him.

"Here you go..."S he said, practically bubbling over with excitement. "None of the bras I have would fit you, but these panties should..."

Dimly, he noted that she hadn't used the phrase 'my bras', but let it pass as he struggled into the plain white panties.

"Great, great..." Nikki said, enthusiastically - and, still blushing, Gary wondered if the ex-male knew that she was basically staring directly at his crotch. "Now the nylons..."

Finding himself getting excited by Nikki's excitement, Garry basically sat back and let her do the work, balling up the nylons and quickly sliding onto the newly-smoothed legs.

As she helped him put on the nylons, Nikki found something a little strange going on: She was getting turned on.

In fact, she was getting sexually excited over.. a man! Well - a man she was feminizing.

Still, it was a new sensation. Though she wasn't exactly a virgin, having made fairly good use of the several dildoes she'd brought out to the cabin with her, Nikki couldn't remember actually being sexually attracted to anybody, male or female, since the accident.

Though disquieting it was also quite... enjoyable.

For a moment, the realization of what she was feeling almost drew her up short - but then, something very strange happened to her.

She thought about the life she'd resigned herself to, living away in the middle of nowhere, with no human contact - and it suddenly didn't seem nearly as bearable as it once had.

In fact, it seemed downright shitty.

She had been unable to accept her feminine status because she hadn't been able to see herself as a 'real' woman, and she was no longer able to be a 'real' man - but now, as she helped Gary into the dress she'd picked out, she realized there was a third option, one she'd never before considered:

Accept being a 'freak'.

Neither and both, female and male, the best of both worlds - involved with other people of 'mixed genders'.

Before, she'd always views transsexuals and transvestites as being 'perverts' - but, given her situation, she realized that she should have reviewed her old views from her new perspective, understanding that gender roles and outlooks weren't as hard and fast as she'd thought...

...and then not only peace could be found out in those new and different area - but excitement. Even.. fun!

Standing back, she looked at Gary, a blushing man dressed in an ill-fitting dress and nylons, looking like the worse excuse for a woman she'd ever seen...

...but the fact that he'd been willing to do this, the fact that he'd let himself be made even slightly 'feminine', to voluntarily blur the gender lines, turned Nikki on more then she'd ever imagined possible.

She looked at Gary for a long moment - then spoke her mind.

"I haven't had any sex with anybody since the accident..."S he told a rather startled Gary. "Can I fuck you?"

"Um... 'scuse me?" Garry stammered.

She blushed, herself, but told the truth: "Seeing you in a dress is turning me on. Would you be willing to lay back and let me.. be on top?"

Gary hesitated - then grinned. "I seem to recall saying that I'd be willing to do anything you would do, so I guess..."

That was as far as he got - because Nikki took his acceptance as all she needed. Growling low in her throat, she all but attacked him, shoving him back on the bed as she hands slid along his smooth, nylon clad thighs.

She was a man in a woman's body, fondling the smooth skin of a man in women's clothes - and eager to have sex with him.

She should have been appalled...

...but she was excited, knowing that this, however 'perverted', offered her another option to a bleak and unexciting life.

She shoved the dress up and yanked the panties down - but quickly slid forward on him, blocking her view of his crotch so that all she saw was the upper portion of him, still dressed in his feminine clothes.

"Yes.." She whispered, taking full control of the situation, glad that Gary was willing to go along with it, letting her - dressed in her mannish pajamas - play the dominate role to his unfeminine femininity.

Almost as if it was the past, the woman in men's sleepwear thrust herself down on the person in women's clothing, almost able to image that she was once again male, and impaling a woman with the cock she no longer possessed...

..but the sensations were like nothing she'd ever felt as a man, and even more then anything she'd ever felt, playing with her plastic penises.

"Oh, yes!" She cried, burying her suddenly damp crotch to the hilt. "Oh, wow..." Even as she road atop him, she was imagining him in makeup, and a wig...

...and it was getting her even more turned on, even as she fucked his brains out.

Gary wasn't exactly inexperienced with women - but he'd never, ever had a woman literally throw herself on him, and the fact that this particular woman used to be a man was definitely secondary to that fact.

So, it didn't so much as phase him as she tore open and began fondling her large, firm breasts.

"Look at my tit!" She cried, squeezing her large nipples as she fucked him hard and long. "Don't you wish you had tits like this? Big, round tits you could fondle and squeeze any time you wanted? Tits you could squeeze and play with at will...?"

Actually, he'd never really given it any thought - but watching her squeeze and fondle those big, round tits, Gary suddenly found himself just a little bit envious.

"Oh, God..!" Nikki moaned, throwing her head back - and orgasming, just from the mental image of implanted tits thrusting big and round and gloriously fake thrusting from his masculine chest.

She came long and hard, crying out to God in pleasure - but Gary wasn't ready to go, not even with her cunt tightening around his hard cock, so she continued to thrust and bounce her way to another orgasm - then, incredibly, a third one before

Gary couldn't handle it any longer, and let his own load gush deep into her cunt, the first man to fill the new woman with a thick wad of cum...

...and she loved it. She loved playing the male role, while being filled like a woman, being both and neither at the same time.

Gasping, she collapsed beside Gary - and, in the warm afterglow, realized what she'd just done, flushing furiously.

"Um..." She said, pulling slightly away from him. "I... I'm sorry. I.. sort of got caught up in the moment."

There was a long pause - and then Gary, blushing just as furiously, rolled on one elbow and looked down at her.

"What would..." He asked, hesitantly. "What would putting make-up on me get you 'caught up' in...?"

Nikki looked at Gary - and then slowly began to smile, a rich, erotic smile that left little to the imagination.

"You're... getting off on this, too...?"

"It's kind of hard not to get caught up in you excitement..." Gary admitted, sheepishly. "Well, then..." She said, reaching for him. "Why don't we find out..."

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: After stealing vast amounts of money, one man will go to any length to stay hidden; little does he realize that his former company is behind his changes.

Hidden

By Gunslinger

Freedom was in sight, and Nick had just begun to feel unstoppable as he started down the corridor towards the exit - when a sharp hissing sound turned the thrill of victory into the thrill of fear, thin plumes of mist rapidly filling the corridor with a metallic-scented spray of gas.

Even as Nick pushed his broad-shouldered, muscular body forward on pure force of will, he felt his head begin to spin and his vision begin to grow fuzzy. Almost instinctively, he curled his muscular arms tighter to him, cradling the package of money he'd just stolen closer to his flat, taut abdomen. Even as his thoughts began to grow hazy and vague, he struggled to remind himself how much the package contained, the two-point-two million dollars in untraceable money that would make his life perfect - if he could just hold on to it.

His limbs felt leaden, and his brain seemed to have difficulty focusing - but he was still moving forward, albeit very slowly, his big body slumped against the wall for support as he staggered towards the beckoning exit.

'Oh, damn.' Donna Lewin's voice crackled over the PA system, sounding surprisingly calm by this turn of events. 'The knock-out gas doesn't seem to be working on you, Mr. Cranston. I guess that must be because the dosage is designed for a normal man - while you're so much more than that, a tribute to pure masculinity.'

Each of the amplified words seemed to spear through his ears and directly into his befogged mind, the clarity of the words a sharp contrast to his blurry mind. Still, however fuzzily, Nick had to admit she was right about him - tall, broad-shouldered and heavily muscled, his strong-jawed face framed by a long, loose mane of blond hair a la Fabio or Kevin Sorbo's portrayal of Hercules, he was as utterly manly as manly could get.

'That's how we'll catch you, you know.' She said. 'Not by you spending the money, oh no - by simply looking for the most masculine person we can find. We'll ask around, saying 'have you seen an incredibly masculine person?', and people will direct us right to you. We'll follow the trail you see, going from one place where they do the most incredibly masculine things to another incredibly masculine place, following the trail of somebody who only knows how to think and act in the most masculine way - and at the end of the trail, we'll simply arrest the most masculine person: You.'

Like bolts shot from a metaphysical crossbow, each of her words slammed into Nick's whirling mind and lodged there, making it even harder to concentrate as he staggered to the exit. When he'd first planned this job, it had seem so difficult - because why would a currency clearing-house owned, operated and staffed almost entirely by women hire a man like him? Sure, he had no convictions on his record, but those three rape arrests he'd skated on by...

When they'd actually hired him, it had seemed so easy. They not only put him right on the shift he wanted, but one working right in the counting room - and then, tonight, his 'partner' had called in sick, and rather than insist upon the two-man rule, they'd let him work the shift alone.

Now, however fuzzily, Nick began to wonder if maybe it was impossible for him to succeed at this...

'Yes - we'll catch you!' Donna's voice taunted, as he reached the doors and began to push through them into the clear, chill night air beyond. 'You're just too masculine to get away with it!'

Head spinning, Nick pushed his way outside and began staggering slowly across the parking lot, glad that they had relied so highly on the knock-out gas defense that they apparently hadn't bothered with any other form of external security. His head slowly beginning to clear from the effects of the gas, he slowly gathered speed as he left the premises, heart already pounding in a mix of fear and victory as he carried his prize off into the night.

Quickly ducking through two blocks worth of commercial-industrial buildings laying dormant for the night, he outraced any pursuer that might be shadowing his footsteps...

...but he couldn't outrace Donna's words in his mind. No matter how desperately he attempted to shut them out or deny their validity, they refused to be quieted. Even as he fled with his prize tucked close under his arm, the thoughts refused to be silenced - and their tenacity began to worry him.

What if he couldn't get them out of his mind - because they were accurate?

Wasn't he the manliest of men? Tall, tanned and toned, with cleft chin and rippling muscles? The type of pure manliness that turned heads and rendered him eminently memorable?

Though he'd had to use his real name to get the job, he'd thought it wouldn't matter - with a little over two million dollars in the big canvas bag he carried so tightly, he could by a new identity, start a new life...

...but now he wondered if it was possible, after all.

Was Donna right? Was he simply too much man to simply vanish into the night? No matter how hard he tried to quell the thought, it refused to die.

In fact, it was now so blindingly obvious that he found it hard to imagine that he hadn't realized before how hard it would be for him to vanish. The change of hair-style and growing a goatee, as originally planned, couldn't hide his oh-so-masculine appearance - any more than it would hide his rightfully macho-manly lifestyle.

Troubled by these thoughts, wondering how he could have been so blind to the obvious for so long, he approached the spot where he'd left his car parked before the beginning of his shift...

...and felt a cold shudder run up his spine as he fished his keys out of the dark-blue coveralls he wore.

His car. HIS car.

He'd been oh-so-very careful never to mention this car. He'd ridden the bus to work every single day, made the occasional comments about saving up enough to buy a car, made damned sure that none of his co-workers had seen him today, the one day he'd taken the car out of storage and brought it here. In fact, he'd parked it here two hours before his shift, then walked several blocks down to a diner on his normal bus' route for dinner before boarding the bus, so that anybody who happened to see him get off would remember him taking the bus, same as always.

Now, suddenly, he found himself wondering if all that careful misdirection had been useless.

Sure, none of his coworkers had ever seen his lovingly maintained 1968 Dodge Charger R/T, painted a rich Midnight Blue and kept in utterly mint condition...

...but the very reason that he loved the car so much was that it was so fundamentally him. Powerful and masculine, exactly the right car for a stud like him - and, suddenly, Nick wondered if that was a trap just waiting to spring on him.

He could almost hear Donna Lewin's call to the police: 'No, officer, I didn't see the car he left in - but knowing Nick Cranston, it's probably a midnight blue Dodge Charger. The 1968 Road and Track model.'

No - no, he couldn't take his car. No matter how much it would hurt to abandon it, taking it would be like driving a neon sign announcing that Nick was inside.

Frantically, Nick began to look around, hoping against hope for some alternative means of transportation to appear before the inevitable pursuit could arrive.

The gods of larceny must have been smiling down on him, offering him at least a small abatement from the handicap that came from being just so emphatically himself - a Mustang.

A hot-pink Mustang.

A hot pink, convertible Mustang - with it's white top down to expose it's white leather interior.

"Thank god for dumb cunts..." Nick muttered under his breath, hurrying over to the definitely un-him car. Careful not to touch the actual car, in case it was wired with a security system, he flipped down the visor - and a set of keys fell right into his hand.

A woman dumb enough to keep her spare keys in the visor of a convertible with the top down, parked on a darkened side street.

Life was good.

Unlocking the car to disable any security system that might have been active, Nick slide behind the wheel and brought the five liter engine roaring to life. Even as he slammed the car into gear and peeled rubber away from the curb, glad at least there was a real engine under the hood of the 'Barbie-mobile', his finger was jamming at the button to raise the roof...

...and nothing happened.

Perhaps the dumb cunt who obviously owned this car wasn't as completely brainless as he'd first thought, since the convertible apparently wasn't, at the moment - but still, leaving the keys so easily accessible, much less parking the car where she had, rated a eight on the dumbcunt-o-meter.

Still, he was left with a problem - he was too damned visible. The whole point of taking a car so out of character for him was camouflage - and here he was, clearly visible driving around in it.

His heart began to thunder, and he glanced anxiously over at the bag of cash he'd tossed on the passenger's seat.

Minute by minute, the thought that he was just too damned noticeable was getting stronger - and with it, the certainty he was going to get caught.

He had to do something.

He had to find some way to camouflage himself...

...but how in the name of hell did you hide so much utter masculinity? Not necessarily the exact image of it, but the intense quantity of it. Cuter his hair, grow a goatee - he'd still be uber-masculine.

Gnawing on his lower lip, he fled down darkened back-street - until he spotted a momentary resting place while he formulated the next step in his plan..

Quickly, he veered off the empty road and into the lot of the darkened gas station, closed hours earlier. Guiding the hot-pink car around behind the station, to be invisible from either of the streets on whose corners the station sat, he shut down the engine, the certainty that he'd be easy to track growing even more concrete in his mind.

Drumming his fingers on the wheel, he wondered what to do next. Finally, more out of a lack of inspiration than any real plan, he leaned over and popped open the glove compartment in the faint hope that he'd find something in the owner's manual that would indicate he was somehow misusing the incredibly simple mechanism for the convertible roof.

Instead, he found something more interesting.

The registration - tucked in a little plastic envelope with the owner's driver's license and a credit card.

Both the registration and credit card were in a company's name: BeautiCorp.

The driver's license, by an amazing quirk of fate, was issued to one Nicole LeFemme, and boasted a photo so bad that it could have been absolutely anybody at all - as long as that person in question had a full head of flame-red hair.

There were also a couple of business cards listing N. LeFemme as a Sales Agent for BeautiCorp: To Help You Be The Woman Of Your Dreams.

Intrigued, Nick climbed out of the car and took the keys with him as he walked around to the back and popped open the trunk.

Inside was a suitcase - and several 'samples' cases for whatever it was BeautiCorp reps sold. He flipped open the cases...
...and gaped.

Oh, he suppose part of him had expected the make-up samples, the hair dyes, the false nails and eyelashes and assorted other beauty products.

The breast forms and 'cheater' body-shaper panties, corsets and other 'figure enhancers' in the second case were somewhat more of a surprise...

...but the third and forth cases dropped his jaw.

He had no idea there were 'traveling saleswomen' for things like breast implants, for god's sake! Not just that, but every medical, pharmaceutical or off-the-shelf product conceivable.

Well, nobody couldn't say the BeautiCorp line wasn't comprehensive...

Staring down at the array of items in front of him, Nick felt the germ of an idea slither into his brain, practically out of nowhere.

At first, as it flitted across his gray matter, Nick shivered in revulsion at the thought - and then forced himself to stop and reconsider the distasteful idea.

After all, the whole problem was that he was too much who he was, making him too noticeable, to memorable...

...and the thought that had just slithered across his mind was the least like him as any thought he'd ever had.

He stopped, party of him wanting to reject the idea out of hand - and it was that very urge in itself that decided him.

After all, it was the last thing anybody would ever expect from him.

Having to bite his lower lip, his every move stiff with revulsion over what he was doing, he used the car's tire-iron to achieve access to the closed station's restroom - and then he lugged the suitcase and the four large sample cases into the room and closed the door behind him.

The next hour and a half passed in a veritable orgy of self-disgust as he forced himself to go through motions that sickened and shamed him to his very core - and the fact that they did made him sure he must be on the right track.

So, it was with an odd mix of utter self-disgust and pride that he eyed the final effect in the mirror.

"Hi..." He said to his reflection in the grimy mirror, trying for the highest pitch his voice could manage, speaking softly to minimize just how bad the final effect sounded. "My name is... Nicole LeFemme."

He grimaced.

The long, fake lashes framing the eyes beneath poorly applied violet eye shadow were as ludicrous as the long fake nails on his fingers - but the dress fit well enough over the falsies and body-shaping panties that, along with corset that was making it tough to breath, approximated a feminine figure beneath a neck-to-ankle dress that also covered arms from wrist to wrist.

He made a lousy woman, a very masculine woman - but at least the dye had turned his hair the same improbable cherry-red shade as the blurry ID photo, and he... 'she', she amended mentally with a wry grimace - appeared to be just that.

A very muscular, mannish woman. God knows there were enough real dogs out there for 'her' to make this passable until she managed to find something better...

...right?

Still feeling that 'her' basic masculinity shone through the improvised costume, 'Nicole LeFemme' headed back out to the car, a gnawing certainty that capture was lurking just around the corner eating away at confidence and replacing it with a fear so strong it was edging towards full-fledged paranoia.

Except, of course, people really were after him.

Her, she amended quickly, an unwanted rose of mindless panic blooming in 'her' gut at the instinctively masculine thought...

...the sort of masculine thinking that 'she' was almost unreasonably certain would be her downfall, and so must be avoided at all costs.

Putting the car into drive, she pulled out of the lot, looking for a place to hide not just from her unknown pursuers, but her own masculinity.

Originally, 'she' had planned to put as much distance between herself and the scene of the crime as possible - but with each passing moment, the scanty nature of her poor disguise became more obvious, and the chances of capture grew in her mind until they seemed overwhelming. Trying to escape in this manner was impossible - but she was also somehow utterly certain that she was on the right track.

The problem was, no matter how disgusting it was for her male ego - which she didn't have, she reminded herself quickly - she hadn't gone far enough. All it would take was for the skirt on the dress to ride up as she got out of the car, exposing her hairy leg, and she'd be caught.

She needed to do something - fast.

An hour later, she checked into a fleabag motel on the edge of a small town nearby, signing in as 'Nicole LeFemme' with a desk clerk who was watching the TV and, thankfully, barely batted an eye in her direction as he accepted the cash and pushed the room key across the cigarette-burned front desk.

Letting herself into the room, 'Nicole' quickly lugged the cases in to the room before hastily locking the door from prying eyes she felt were certainly out in the darkness, waiting for the slightest sign of her masculinity to shine through her improvised disguise and bring ruin down upon her.

Her heart was pounding so hard in his - her - chest that it felt that it must rip right through, bursting through her falsies - tits - and flop around in the floor. His cock was a shriveled peanut.. no, no, no cock, no she had a cunt, right?

Desperate, mind whirling, feeling as she were suffocating, she almost desperately tore open the cases, looking for - needing - something to dim the panic that flowed through her body like a living force, eating her up from the inside out.

She couldn't breathe. She couldn't think.

They were coming for her.

They were going to find her because of her unmistakable masculinity, and They were going to...

She gasped, unable to contemplate the horrors of being caught. Literally incapable, mind shying away from the unimaginable horrors if she were to be found out.

She needed something - anything - to make her safe. She needed to hide her masculinity.

Frantically, she tore through the cases, barely noticing the BeautiCorp logo stamped on all the products, her mind even less interested in the small print advertising the company to be a subsidiary of Lewin Industries Incorporated as she desperately searched for a remedy to the adrenaline- pounding panic that made rational thought all-but-impossible.

Finally, she fled to the bathroom, baring in her arms several plastic bottles - bottles of 'permanent' hair removal gel, bottles of powerful skin creams to soften and refine, bottles of bath oils and beads to improve skin tone and color.

Frantic with haste, unreasoning fear in complete control, she desperately applied all the lotions, potions and notions as per their instructions - but even as incriminatingly masculine body hair clogged the drain and she ran hands over newly smoothed skin, the diminution in fear was only marginal.

It wasn't enough. It wasn't nearly enough... Frantic, she rummaged through the cases again...

Extra strength female hormones. Yes, maybe that would help. She'd just mix some up as according to the instructions...

...no, better make it double strength. Just in case. Triple strength might be better though - wouldn't it...?

Twenty minutes later, IV bag hanging from the lamp and dripping into her veins, she sat in front of the mirror, re-applying make-up over and over again, seeing each attempt badly flawed as she desperately strove for the skills a woman would have in applying make-up...

...and didn't even hear herself repeating a mantra over and over again, changing pitch and inflection in an unconscious effort for a feminine tone:

"I am Nicole LeFemme. I am a woman. I have always been a woman. I like being a woman. I like doing feminine things. I like looking feminine at all times. I am Nicole LeFemme. I am a woman..."

* * * * *

Hunger finally penetrated the insomnia-induced blur that swaddled the now-ever-present panic just barely held at bay, forcing her to pull off the highway and into the parking lot of the gas-station- slash-general-store.

How long had it been since she'd last eaten? Last slept?

She didn't know. She couldn't remember - and it didn't matter.

Freedom mattered. She had to remain free. She couldn't let Them catch her.

Before she left the car, she instinctively checked herself in the extra-large mirror she'd installed on the visor, barely aware she was doing it, so habitual had it become.

Face perfectly made up - check. Breasts, still sore from the B-cup implants she'd forced under the skin.. what, a week ago...? ...pressed up and together by the push-up bra under the white cotton blouse. Silk scarf hiding the huge, can't-be-missed, seen-from-a-mile-away Adam's apple that even the thought of could spark utter fear - in place, though looking a bit ratty since she was afraid to remove it under any circumstances.

It was as good as she could manage - but she still felt the panic threatening to break through at the thought of how much masculinity still shone through... through who she was, which was an unfortunately masculine woman, and that was all, right?

Right.

Taking a deep breath, Nicole turned off the car and opened the door, swinging one denim-clad leg out and placing the sandal on the pavement. The matching leg slid out, and she rose to stand atop the two-and-a-half inch stacked heels of the shoes, carefully mainlining the feminine poise she'd practiced so hard in... what, had it been a hotel just outside Denver?

It didn't matter. Time, distance, action, thought - all blurred and slipped away. The moment was all - remaining in the moment, remaining free.

She headed towards the store, adding a little twitch to the ass encased in the body-shaper that helped hide her... her extra-large clit, that's what it was, though thank god the hormones were making it smaller now, just as they were making her ass larger and firmer, her waist tighter and trimmer.

Yup, it was just her, Nicole LeFemme, and unfortunately masculine-looking woman working hard to make herself more attractive, that was all, she told herself again and again as she wiggled her way into the store and quickly bought some quick nourishment in plastic packaging. She barely even noticed herself leaning forward as she paid for the purchases, making sure the clerk could not see the flesh displayed in the oh-so-carefully-arranged blouse, proving there was really breast-flesh in there, and not flesh-colored falsies.

Still, it took a real force of will to interact this much with somebody who might see... might see how ugly she was and... tell the wrong people, people who might... might mistake her for some guy they wanted to catch, and so might mistakenly inflict upon her the horrendous fate he deserved, and which she, Nicole LeFemme, didn't.

She had to keep herself from fleeing from the store in the justifiable panic she felt, making herself appear unconcerned as she made her way out to the car.

Had she been 'made'? Had somebody realized she was.. that is, had somebody mistakenly assumed she was really a man in disguise, because how disgustingly masculine she was?

She.. she needed to do something. Fast. In case the wrong people, with the wrong ideas tracked her down, she had to have more immediate evidence she was the wrong person, not the person they were looking for, so obviously not that man that they wouldn't have to investigate her any closer...

Struggling against the urge to scream in the fear almost overwhelming her, Nicole quickly headed out again, unconsciously nibbling on the food with what she unconsciously hoped with great desperation was feminine grace as her long-lash framed eyes scanned the passing scenery for an agreeably obscure motel...

Hormones. She definitely needed some more hormones, maybe mixed up even a little bit more strongly than last time...

...and if her tits were so barely tender, maybe she should force a few more CC's of saline into the adjustable implants.

After all, what complete-natural woman who was just cursed to look so masculine wouldn't want to have bigger tits...?

* * * * *

With a purposeful stride nevertheless tempered by an innate grace, the tall, aristocratic blonde entered the rear portion of the vehicle that, from the exterior, seemed to be nothing more than a very large - and very expensive - customized motor home built on a bus chassis.

The interior of the motor home, however, seemed to have been decorated' by the same gentlemen responsible for the interior of NASA's flight control center in Houston. Manned by a team of four, the high-tech electronic nerve center of the rolling multi-spectrum surveillance center was kept at a cool ambient temperature by air conditioning provided more in the interests of efficiency in the electronic devices than comfort for the human occupants.

"Well...?" The slim, coolly lovely blonde asked in a tone of voice accustomed to getting answers, slipping easily into the high-backed black leather swivel chair at the furthest end of the room, hand already outstretched for the mug of chamomile tea being slipped into it by some nameless flunky.

"Everything is going beautifully, Ms. Lewin." The man responsible for the vehicle's operation said, shaking his gleaming shaven head in admiration. "I can't believe how much of an effect a single dose of compound 741-22 had on the subject. Less than four months and..."

The supervisor trailed off, at a complete loss of words for what the final effect had been. "Yes, it did work out fairly well, didn't it?" Donna Lewin said, smugly.

As one of the four richest people in the United States - and the richest woman - it hadn't been difficult at all for her to commandeer aspects of her far-flung empire to make this moment come to pass. From using her cash clearinghouse to lure the bastard in, to the - highly illegal - use of an experimental mind-altering serum from one of her biochemical divisions, and even absconding with this state-of-the-art surveillance vehicle and its staff from her extremely circumspect private investigation and security company - all of it leading up to this very moment.

The moment when she got to savor the full fruits of her revenge upon the bastard who'd not only had the temerity to rape her niece - but who had gotten away with it, scott-free.

Ms. Donna Lewin, sole owner of Lewin Industries Incorporated, and its many subsidiaries, was hardly the type of woman to take that sort of thing lying down.

She'd enacted revenge on her niece's behalf - and the time had come to take a more personal interest in the final act, one that would be more inherently satisfying than the 'progress reports' her staff had been supplying her with as they'd followed the tracer-equipped car they'd left out for bait as it had crisscrossed the country.

On the wall in front of Donna, six large, color flat-screen plasma monitors showed various views of the interior of the apartment rented out to one Nicole LeFemme - and the fact that she'd felt 'safe' enough to finally settle down and rent an apartment had been the last condition, the one that had triggered her presence here today.

"How long ago was the surgery...?" Donna asked of the nameless flunky, a tight smile on her lips.

The lackey quickly consulted a clipboard before replying: "Two weeks ago. The... subject... has shown amazing recuperative powers. Usually healing from this type of surgery takes much, much longer."

"You can thank Kwik-E-Heal for that." Donna said, with a grin. "A product proudly developed by Lewin Industries, to be available sometime in mid '08, assuming the FDA approvals go through in their timeliest fashion..."

"...and they don't find out about any unauthorized, unwilling testing on human subjects." The flunky risked.

"What?" Donna said, feigning shock. "Why, the subject was most willing - after some highly illegal mind-control implanted a desperate, overwhelming, and completely uncontrollable need in him - ah, her."

The chance for further banter between them vanished, however, as on the wall of display screens that covered almost every single nook and cranny to the apartment, the door to the one room not under surveillance - the bathroom - suddenly swung open.

"God lord..." The flunky breathed, stunned, never having seen the subject before that very instant. "That used to be a guy...?"

Even Donna, who'd seen photos of the subject taken through a telephoto lens during surveillance, was stunned by the sight - for the still photos didn't but hint at the apparition who walked out of the bathroom.

No, not 'walked' - glided.

Naked but for the now omnipresent high-heeled shoes she wore, platforms and heels adding an addition ten inches to her already impressive height, the nearly unearthly creature moved out of the bathroom as if floating atop a cushion of air, feet lifting and falling in a strict heel-to-toe pattern and wide hips swiveling, but high-held head neither dipping nor rising so much as a millimeter atop her perfectly straight spine, that age-old perfection that used to be taught by balancing a book upon one's head.

Perhaps very, very discerning eyes might have noticed a faint edge of roughness to the bone structure beneath the silky flesh of the creature on the screen, might have caught the subtle signs of a heavier foundation - but it would have been the sharp eyes of somebody able to force their way past the initial first, second and third impressions of the creature they were seeing.

'Tall' would have been impression number one, and it would have been dead accurate - after all, in addition to the figure's base height and the extra height of the platform-soled high-heel shoes, surgery had been performed to lengthen both arms and legs an additional two inches - a sort of pleasant 'unreal' proportional change that added significantly to the second impression of 'slender'.

Again, it was an odd combination of fact and fiction, of being lied to by one's eyes, for the shoulders were actually quite broad, as were the surgically-widened hips, and the circumference of certain parts of her body at hip, bust and shoulder, would have been larger than expected - but on such a tall frame with such long, slender legs and arms and such a slim, wasp-like waist, 'slender' still reigned, helped along by surgery that had shaved the neck down to a swan-like column while removing a certain masculine protuberance.

The third impression could have been expressed in many different ways, and all of them would have been accurate...
...if understated.

"Zaftig" was the most polite - and the least informative. 'Pneumatic' was better, and 'stacked', while a touch crude, better still - yet none of them even came close to describing the truth, any more than describing Death Valley at the height of summer as being 'hot and dry' truly conveyed the infamous conditions that had earned that wretched place its justifiable name.

Of course, given the artfully surgically-created heart-shaped face surrounded by an improbably lush, impossibly red mane of hair that surmounted that curvaceous figure, most peoples' initial impression was exactly the same one ripped, unthinkingly, from the flunky's lips:

"It's Jessica Rabbit!"

Indeed, if the curvaceous cartoon chanteuse had been brought miraculously to life, this would be her.

It was more than a passing resemblance - one made abundantly clear as the incredibly supple figure on the screen opened up a full-sized armoire and emerged with a glittering, sequin-bedecked evening dress that she shimmied and slid her body into, complementing it with a pair of purple opera-length silk gloves.

Properly attired, she sway-glided her way over to the door of the apartment - and carefully scrutinized her reflection in the mirror beside the door, using make-up stored in the small table below it to touch up purely imagined flaws in her make-up for the next ten minutes, while her audience watched her unlikely figure with rapt attention.

"Well, now we know what, exactly, our 'good friend' Nick considered the height of femininity." Donna said, with something that was half a smile, and half a smirk.

When the knock on the door finally came, it was rendered in faithful clarity through the many microphones secretly installed in the apartment and reproduced through the Dolby-Digital sound system in the motor home. Putting the make-up away with a careless grace, the tall, buxom figure opened the door to disclose a grossly ordinary man standing outside, his dark hair beginning to thin and a noticeable paunch under his causal shirt.

A noticeable bulge of another sort quickly became visible in his pants as he stepped across the threshold, eyes riveted on the vision before him as he responded to the invitation to enter that had been issued in a smoky/sexy voice somewhat different from, but every bit as right for the body as, that which Kathleen Turner had provided for the on-screen version.

In what might or might not have been a surprisingly short period of time, both her and he were stark naked, in the bedroom, wither writhing and thrashing below him in what certainly appeared to be utter enjoyment, her smoky voice urging him onward until he finally spent his load into what he had no way of knowing was a surgically created womanhood, just as he probably didn't realized her 'earth shattering' orgasm was completely faked.

It was, by anybody's estimate, a surprisingly short time after that when she led him to the door, telling him to mention to all his friends about just how good she was, how 'feminine' she was - and then double-locking the door behind him as he left.

As soon as he was gone and she was alone in the apartment whose drapes she'd shut shortly before disrobing, a look of utter horror and complete self-disgust washed across her surgically flawless face.

None of that colored her voice, however, as she spoke - loud enough that anybody eavesdropping outside her door could have heard her.

"Oh, how I love getting fucked!" She exclaimed in a sleepy, utterly content voice directly at odds with her expression of somebody who wanted very badly to vomit. Her customary grace eluding her, she staggered towards the kitchenette, moving like a robot gone haywire, eyes wide with horror. "Having a big, hard cock in my... it's just so feminine!"

The unseen onlookers watched the staggering female figure as it unlocked a secret compartment in one of the cabinets, sliding it open to reveal a canvas bag filled with quite a number of large denomination bills, despite the dent put in it by all the surgery she'd had performed on herself.

"Just like lots of women - women like me - I like a smoke after a good, hard fucking!" She told thin air, extracting but a single bill from the pile. She also pulled open a normal drawer, from which she pulled a pack of cigarettes, and ashtray, a shot glass, a lighter, and a small bottle of gin. "Just a post-coital drink and smoke, just like lots of women."

She poured herself a shot - and dipped the rolled up bill in the fluid before dropping it into the ashtray. Taking the shot of liquor in a quick gulp, she lit the cigarette - and touched the burning end of it to the alcohol-soaked bill, setting it ablaze. She watched it burn as she puffed idly on the cigarette, not really inhaling.

"Just smoking my after-fuck smoke..." She said, to 'herself'. "That's all..." After the bill had burned down to ashes, she ground out the cigarette.

"Us women are just so neat..." S he said, picking up the astray. "Certainly wouldn't keep a smelly old cigarette butt laying around - I'd better flush it away."

She disappeared into the bathroom, emerging a moment later to the sounds of a flushing toilet.

"Every day." The team supervisor informed Donna, gesturing at the screens. "On the days she works as a waitress, she gives her address to one lucky guy, invites him over, and has her 'post sex smoke', burning exactly one of the 'incriminating' bills."

On the monitor, 'Jessica'/Nicole/Nick was cleaning up.

"On her days off, it's as many guys as she can pick up and fuck, one bill burned per 'orgasm'." The supervisor continued. "At this rate, we estimate nearly eight months before she can erase every last bit of the 'evidence' of the crime, and hence her old life. After that... well, we've got a poll going as to whether she becomes completely chaste, or whether the occasional bout of paranoia will force her into a less-hectic but still relatively regular sex life."

"Either way..." Donna said, grinning, as she contemplated her victim's current fate, helplessly forced to have sex with men to bolster her feminine status and as an 'excuse' to disguise her burning of the evidence. "I think justice is well and truly served, gentlemen - at least in this case..."

Turning, she looked over to the man in charge of Team Beta, here at her insistence: "What's the status on that slimeball lawyer who got Nick off...?" She asked.

The man grinned wryly, pulling out photos of somebody who looked surprisingly like Danny DeVito in drag.

"That 'sexual harassment' paranoia you had your planted secretary put into him is working just as well as you'd hoped," He reported, "...and the 'gender sensitivity training' is going along splendidly "

THE END

 BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: MY STORY IDEA IS:Teacher uses drugs to turn sexy high school girls into sex kittens (whores) that he can use to make money. His technique is to have the basketball team captain who is the #1 hunk of the school to seduce and get the girls into drugs whether they want to or not. The teacher does well until one day a girl ODs. It turns out that the girl is the daughter of a local geneticist who has been experimenting with advanced genetic transformations. When the geneticist discovers who was responsible for his daughter's death he uses his technology to turn the teacher into a member of his own stable of student hookers which is being run by the basketball team captain while the teacher is "temporarily" away. Revenge is sweet because now everything that he put his students through he must experience himself. Add a little hypnosis so he must act exactly the way he would expect the girls to under the same circumstances.

Hoist

By Gunslinger

The world whirled around her, light and dark and sound and fury.

Pain flared in her right shoulder as she slammed into a lamp-post and spun around, then more pain flared as she tumbled to the hard pavement, head spinning as she stared up at the unknown lights and shapes above her. A million thoughts, needs and emotions fought for dominance as her mind struggled to make sense of what it was 'seeing'.

Suddenly, a human shape moved out of the darkness, forming itself out of the swirls of lights and colors, and meaningless sounds reached her ears as she felt hands help her back to her feet. The touch of the male hands brought something flaring to life in her - which triggered disgust and fear, and she shoved herself away, the face of the Good Samaritan instantly vanishing back into the meaningless mass of shapes and colors around her as she staggered away.

For an eternity, she staggered along, her high-heels wobbling and treacherous as she struggled to keep moving, her body signaling to her confused mind that there was something very, very wrong.

Then, a shape loomed out of the fog that gripped her mind, and she staggered towards it like a drowning person making a last, desperate attempt for the shore.

* * * * *

Frowning, Martin Richards headed for the front door, his right hand wrapped around the handle of the brass poker he'd grabbed from the set he kept on the hearth of the fireplace. When he'd heard the heavy 'thud' against the front door, all the concerns that had been in the back of his mind about the slowly sinking quality and morality of his neighborhood had come flooding to the forefront, and now he very cautiously opened the front door, the poker coming up to ward off any danger...

"Linda!" Martin cried, the poker dropping from nerveless fingers at the sight of his twenty-year-old daughter sprawled on the step, her eyes huge and unseeing as she sobbed soundlessly.

Wrapping his arm around her, Martin lifted his daughter and carried her into the living room, laying her on the couch. Confusion and fear ran rampant through his mind - confusion only amplified by the uncharacteristically 'sexy' clothing she wore, the unusually heavy, garish make-up, and the now- mused elaborate style of her hair.

"Linda... Linda, can you hear me?" Martin begged his blank-faced daughter, taking one of her hands in his and looking at her uncomprehending eyes. "Linda - it's daddy."

Slowly, comprehension began to seep into his daughter's face. "D...Daddy?" She said, slowly and thickly. "Daddy... please help me.. I can't... can't think..."

"Oh, baby..." Martin sobbed, pulling her into an embrace - and gasping at the incredibly rapid patter of her heart. "What happened to you..."

Slowly and thickly, she began to tell him, spilling out the story in an incoherent fashion.

When he heard the word 'pimp', his blood began to boil - but the word 'drugs' caused him to go cold with fear. He tried to disengage himself from his daughter to call for an ambulance - but she was holding him in a death grip, and she continued to spill out the story, no longer truly aware of what was happening to her, every ounce of her mental will being focused on coherency.

It was all too coherent as she spilled out the whole story, her staring eyes slowly losing their look of conscious comprehension and becoming glassy and blank as the last sentences slipped through heavy, numb lips.

Moments later, her eyelids slowly slid closed, and her ragged breathing slowed...

...and stopped.

Wailing, Martin collapsed over the inert form of his daughter, then - desperately - pulled away from her and ran blindly towards the lab in the basement, and the medical equipment he kept there...

* * * * *

"So, then he looked at the board again, and said..." Mark good putting an especially brainless look on his goatee-bearing face. "'Uh Caesar Romero?'"

Dodgeson broke out in laughter and slapped his younger colleague on the shoulder. "Come on, Mark - you're making that up!"

Mark Benson held up a hand. "Swear to god, Jerry - he actually "

A knock on the door top the teacher's lounge stopped his oath of veracity, and Tom Garret leaned his broad-shouldered physic around the door. "Professor Benson?"

"Excuse me " Mark said to Dodgeson. "Duty calls."

The older-gentleman nodded, and Mark rose from the couch and joined the college's star quarterback in the hall, walking beside him a they headed down the darkened hallway of the faculty building.

Looking around, Mark let the smile drop from his face. "Well - did you find her?"

Tom shifted his weight nervously. "Uh... not yet."

"You idiot!" Mark hissed angrily. "How the hell did you let this happen?"

Tom held his hands out. "Hey? How the hell was I supposed to know that a girl as hot-looking as that would be a virgin?"

Mark glowered - but Tom was mostly right. Still, that didn't make him feel any better - not with everything that hung in the balance. Not only was his secret - and very lucrative - little side-line business in trouble, so was his job and his freedom.

If anybody found out that 'Good Old' Professor Benson was running a prostitution ring, with female students as his 'working girls', he'd be 'screwed, blued and tattooed', as the old saying went.

"Damn it!" Mark swore, pacing back and forth in front of his flustered 'recruiter'. The whole thing had seemed like the perfect plan when he'd begun, eight months ago.

The plan had come to fruition when Mark had received his position at Canlor Collage - and access to the campus supply of chemicals, and a lab in which to work. On the pretext of familiarizing himself with the school's equipment, he'd spent three long, busy nights with his heart in his chest while he'd worked on synthesizing a very, very large supply of a very certain drug.

Proestrogen Pentobarbital.

PEPB was a drug with many properties - all of which Mark had found essential for his plan to work.

The first effect that PEPB had on its users was a common one to many drugs - Euphoria. Once ingested, the liquid caused a four-to-six hour 'high', during which the user felt... good. No matter what was happening to the user, it was all viewed through the euphoric filter of the drug's effect.

But that first high was just the tip of the iceberg - because what Mark really counted on was the withdrawal effect the drug had. Being barbiturate-based, the drug was highly addictive. But unlike most drugs, its withdrawal phase was completely different.

As the user came down from that euphoric high, two separate things happened.

The first thing was that the user became 'suggestible'. Pentobarbital is one of the drugs related to Sodium Pentothol - also known as 'Truth Serum'. The users of PEPB coming down from that initial high found themselves very... agreeable.

And because it was a hormonal based barbiturate, it had a very definite effect on the female hormonal system as the drug's high faded. The user became very, very horny.

Mark had synthesized large batches of this drug, then had gone about finding the perfect recruiter for his little plan - but he hadn't had to look far. Tom Garret was 'made to order' for his little scheme.

Handsome, confident and a real Ladies Man, Tom also had a complete lack of morals and scruples. When Mark had quietly brought up the proposal, Tom had jumped in enthusiastically.

Much sought after by the status-conscious girls on campus, Tom had started asking the more attractive members of the female populace out on dates. Dates on which he'd slip them their first, rather high dose of PEPB - leaving them so drugged as to be in a giggling stupor.

After that, the women were hooked - and the only supply of PEPB available was through Tom and Mark - who charged a hefty fee for it. A fee too great for the girls to afford...

...except, of course, Mark offered a 'way out' - prostitution. The girls could work for him as hooker, and he'd take the cost of the drug out of the money they earned - and, as increased incentive, Mark played it 'fair' - if they managed to earn more than the exorbitant flat-fee rate for the drug, the girls even got to keep the surplus.

Now, none of the girls would normally have submitted to Mark's suggestion - but, under the circumstances, he'd never had one refuse. Though some had held out longer than others, eventually the desperate craving for the drug won out - and, considering that the longer they went without the drug, the more helplessly aroused they became, turning to sex as a source of money came almost as a relief.

It had worked perfectly... Until Linda Richards had come along.

At first, it had worked out exactly as planned - Tom had talked her into a date, ended up back at his place with her - and gave her the first, high dose of PEPB. When she'd awoken in his room the next morning, she'd been feeling that desperate craving and helpless arousal, and Tom and Mark had explained the new 'reality' of life to her.

What nobody had known was the Daddy Richards' little girl Linda was still a virgin. That had added enough 'backbone' for her to push past the suggestibility while under the drug, and she'd held off joining the ranks of Mark's girls much, much longer than anyone ever had.

Too long - even as she'd dolled herself up to give in, her body had been awash in unbelievably high levels of hormones. Hormones, despite being produced naturally in the body, are nothing more than drugs - and she'd had a massive overdose of them in her system, thanks to the withdrawal reactions from the PEPB. In fact, if she'd been given a blood test, it would have found that 1.4 percent of her blood was pure hormones - an incredibly high level, equivalent to being roaring, falling down drunk.

It was in this state that she'd staggered from her dorm-room last night - and vanished.

One of the other 'working girls' had called and reported Linda's apparent 'submittal' to the plan, then subsequent disappearance - throwing the fear of God into Mark.

Or, rather, the fear of the law - for if Linda ended up in the hospital and had her blood tested - as they were sure to do - they would begin to wonder why an unusual - and highly illegal - drug like PEPB was in her system. And if Linda - who was now highly suggestible - should answer the questions they were sure to ask her...

"Look.." Mark poke Tom in the chest, emphasizing his words, and getting rid of some frustration through the action. "You stay here, keep the rest of the girls going - I'm going to call the Dean, explain that a family crisis has come up, and I need an unspecified amount of time to take care of it."

Tom blinked. "Uh.. okay."

"I..." Mark said, dragging Tom towards the doors at the end of the hall. "...am going to look for our missing girl. Chances are, she's probably in the city morgue, so that's where I'm going to start."

Tom shrugged. "Okay - but what if she's not there?"

Mark's eyes narrowed as he glared at his partner in crime. "One way or another, before another day passes - she will be."

Tom's face paled, and he took a step backwards. "hey - when I started this whole thing, you never said anything about killing anyone!"

Mark's lip curled. "Look, stupid - if anyone finds out what we're doing, it's a long, long stretch in prison. Do you really want to be some three-time loser's 'bitch', Tom?"

Tom shook his head mutely.

"Good - now go make sure that the others are one the job - they better damned well be making money for the risks I'm taking."

Turning, Mark stormed through the doors at the end of the hall and was gone.

* * * * *

Five hours later, Mark was about ready to concede that he might need more help on this - as if there was anyone in the world he could trust for this task. Not even his so-called partner could be trusted with this sort of thing. He'd picked Tom mainly for his popularity with the women on campus - he certainty didn't have the right sort of mentality for this sort of work.

Pulling the '95 Explorer to the side of the road, Mark gnawed nervously on a knuckle, trying to piece together what he knew into a plan of action.

All sorts of people had seen Linda at first - he'd been able to track her movements for the first hour, as her hormonal overdose had gradually strengthened into a delusional state. Then she'd no longer moved with any sort of 'sane' objective, and she'd began to wander - and it was in one of those twists and turns that he trail had gone cold. She'd wandered down a back alley, and had been seen going in

- but nobody had noticed her exiting any of the three ways out of the alley, and that's where he'd lost her. Now time was running short - and he was fresh out of ideas.

The sound of his cell-phone ringing jerked him out of his frustrated consideration of his future, and he pulled the small device from his jacket and thumbed the button.

"Benson."

"Professor Benson?" An unfamiliar voice came through the ear-piece, faintly marred by the crackle of static. "I've been trying to reach you for the past hour or so."

"I'm sorry..." Mark said, struggling to sound 'normal'. "Who might you be?" "My name's Martin Richards - I'm the father of one of your students."

The pit of Mark's stomach dropped, and ice ran down his spine.

"Oh, yes - Linda's father." He said, forcing the words 'nonchalantly' through a throat gone suddenly dry. "What can I do for you tonight, sir?"

"I got the strangest call from Linda about an hour ago, and I'm worried sick." Mr. Richards said. "She... wasn't making much sense. I think she was... drunk, I guess - all slurred and incoherent. But she was saying something about needing something, and it sounded to me like what she was asking for was a 'drive' somewhere."

'No,' Mark's mind filled in. 'She wouldn't have been saying 'drive' - she would have been saying she needed a drug.' Mark knew that the father was involved in medical research of some sort, and it sounded to Mark like Linda - desperate - had tried to get her own father to supply the drug her body craved.

The sound of Mr. Richards' voice in his ear pulled Mark's mind back to the conversation.

"...course, I asked her where she was - and she babbled something back. I didn't understand any of it

- except your name. I thought perhaps you might know where Linda is. Is there some sort of big party going on tonight that you've heard about, or anything that might tell me where my Linda is?"

Mark's tense nerves relaxed slightly - Mr. Richards', as yet, wasn't suspicious of anything - he just thought his daughter had gone to a party and got roaring drunk, and wanted a ride home.

"No, I can't say that I do." Mark replied. "I'm sorry, Mr. Richards - I wish I could help. Your daughter's a bright, cheerful girl, and very popular among her classmates. I couldn't begin to guess which one of them would be throwing a party tonight that she might be at."

There was a short silence, then: "I see. Mr. Benson..." "Mark, please - Mr. Benson was my father."

"Very well, Mark - I was wondering if I could ask a favor of you."

"Of course." Mark said, eager to be done the conversation so he could get back to his search - now that he knew he had 'competition', the pressure had just shot through the...

"Could I ask you to come by my house and wait with me for a bit?" Mr. Richards asked, surprising Mark. "You see - my car's in the shop. If Linda called here once, she might call again - and I will feel a lot better if I could send you to pick her up."

Mark had to keep his jaw from dropping - salvation had just been handed to him on a silver platter. If Linda did call, or somehow show up, at home, he'd be there to make sure that her story didn't implicate him in any way. And if something less... savory should befall Linda, and she was found by the police - well, what better alibi could a man have? The police would be sure to discover that he'd been asking around about Linda - but the time couldn't be precisely pinpointed, and with Mr.

Richards' unwitting testimony...

"Certainly, if it's make you feel better." Mark replied, trying to sound sympathetic, rather than gleeful. Then, as if the thought had just hit him... "You live down in the Oaks, don't you?"

"Yes - Twenty Six - Thirty Five East Elm Street."

"Well..." Mark replied, 'thoughtfully', "I have to travel right through downtown to get there - would it make you feel better if I ask around while I'm down there? A lot of her classmates like to go to the bars and clubs down there, and I could find out if any of them had seen her tonight - I might even get lucky, and end up bringing her home."

"Would you?" Richards' asked, relieved. "I don't mean to impose - but it would make me feel better." "Of course." Mark agreed. "I'll see you in.. oh, about half an hour, then?"

Getting an affirmative reply, Mark hung up the phone and lean back in the seat, fishing out a cigarette as he began to 'waste' fifteen minutes on the deserted back road while simulating his supposed trip.

Having killed enough time, Mark put the vehicle into gear and headed to the address he'd been giving, carefully timing his driving so that when he reached the street the address was on he sped up and screamed down the street, watching addresses. When he spotted the right one, he slammed on the brakes, throwing himself forward in the restraints in a conspicuous display of a man in a hurry. He slammed the Explorer into reverse, wincing as he purposefully ground the gears, then backed into the driveway in a deliberately sloppy parking job.

Shutting off the vehicle, he dashed towards the front door of the house, which - as planned - was already open, Mr. Richards having heard his noisy arrival.

"Sir..." Mark panted. "I was talking to..."

Strangely, Mr. Richards didn't step forward, but rather took three or four steps back into the foyer, forcing Mark to follow him in, the heavy oak door swinging shut behind him on its own weight.

"...some students downtown, and they said..."

Richards held his hand out in a time-honored gesture, and without even thinking about it, Mark reached out to shake the distraught father's hand, still spilling his carefully planned story.

He didn't catch the glint of the hypodermic needle until it was too late - the needle slid home in the flesh part of Mark's palm, disgorging its contents into his bloodstream.

"What the...?" Mark stammered, staring down at his hand, then looking up... Into a face filled with rage.

"This is for what you've done to my Linda." Martin said, spitting the words out at Mark. "But..." Was as far as Mark got before the injection took hold.

Suddenly, the world began to waver in and out of focus, and he felt all the muscles in his body go slack, leaving him standing in a slumped position, his jaw sagging slowly open as his upraised arm fell limply to his side. His eyes became wider and glassy as he began to feel disconnected from the world, as if he were floating in a void, watching what was happening through the glass windows of his body's eyes - a helpless passenger, unable to control his body. He tried to send it commands, but it did little more than twitch and sway in a drunken manner... then even that stopped as the stupor deepened.

Even though he was conscious and aware of what was going on, it was in an unemotional state - it was as if he didn't care what was happening. Or, rather, as if he didn't have the energy to care, just as he lacked the energy to make his body move. Intellectually, he knew that this was very, very wrong and that he was in deep trouble - but it didn't summon up enough emotional power to move him, in the most literal sense.

"You... you.. bastard!" Martin hissed, obviously unable to find a word vile enough to describe the slack-jawed man who stood blankly before him. "I'm going to make you pay for what you've done - do you understand me?"

Somewhere deep inside, energy flowed through Mark - the energy that came from a sudden, overpowering need - a need to answer the question.

"Yes... I understand you..." Mark replied, thickly - then, with that, the energy ceased, and he once more stood limp.

Martin's face made a motion that would have been a smile if it was full of fury and hate. "You do realize what I've given you, don't you?"

"Yes..." Mark replied, thickly. He'd been given a Pentothol-based barbiturate, similar to PEPB - but, considering the lack of a 'high', it was definitely a different version.

"Follow me." Martin ordered, and with shambling, uncoordinated movements, Mark did as he was told. Obeying the instructions from Mr. Richards, he walked into the living room and slowly, numbly undressed before sitting on the couch, naked.

"I've give you a brand-new drug, never before used on a human being - I though it would be ideal for you as a test case." Martin told the slack-jawed teacher, his voice filled with horrible glee. "It's GEPPBAC... Gen-estrogenic Pentaphenobarbital Autonuclide Carbide. Do you know what that is?" mark tried to answer - but before he could work it out, Martin answered for him. "It's a genetic- manipulation formula. Basically, it's your own 'whore-maker' formula, in a suspension that isn't chemical, but genetic. Rather than affect the body and then clear the system, your body starts producing it 'naturally' - so, you might find yourself craving odd foods, as your body will need a supply of the chemicals to produce it."

Martin's awful smile widened. "But that's just half of it - because there's more that it does. The basic formula was designed to combat cancer - basically, a seek-and-destroy chemical reaction that would replace the cells of the 'abnormal' growth with the pattern from the genetic material dissolved in the solution." Martin laughed, leaning forward. "Well, you want to know what I did with it? I went out and picked three young ladies, and paid them for a small scrapping of tissue - then I mixed all their samples together and put them in the serum." His voice dropped. "It should be interesting to see what you look like after your body finishes it's four-way fight between the different genetic codes the serum is trying to 'repair' into a single, viable one."

He laughed. "That is - if you survive the procedure. We should know before long."

Deep inside, Mark yearned to do something - but he just couldn't seem to summon up the will-power to do anything he hadn't been told to do. Instead, he merely sat there, staring blankly ahead.

It started as an uneasy feeling in his stomach - a slow, rolling boil that began to churn and grin. Then a faint ache began to spread through his body, as if he'd worked out too hard and was suffering from the after effects.

The discomfort continued to grow, spreading throughout his body and increasing in power as the pain began to build. Unwillingly, a tiny whimper escaped from his throat as his drugged mind began to lose control of the body that housed it, the force of the growing pain overwhelming even the hold the drug held over him, pushing him back from the comfort of sane - if drugged - thought towards the darkness of primal responses.

Within an hour, Mark was on the floor, screaming, as his body was wracked by the most intense pain he'd ever experienced in his life, every nerve ending screaming with agony as the cells and structures of his body were forced into new shapes and configurations.

He screamed long into the night - but his throat gave out long, long before his body ceased to writhe and twitch in horrific, utter agony.

* * * * *

"My, my, my - you seemed to have survived. The question is - how did your brain fare the transition?"

Slowly, fuzzily, Mark forced his eyes open from the deep and utter sleep he'd succumbed to when the pain had finally faded from his tortured form. He stared up at the figure looming over him, his brain feeling as if it were running through syrup as he tried to place himself in reality.

"Richards..." Mark finally said, his voice emerging thin and weak...

...and a rich, feminine contralto.

It took a second for the fact to register, then Mark's brows drew closer in confusion, and he pulled himself upright on the couch, feeling strange sensations course through his body...

Only it wasn't his body - a fact he discovered when he glanced down.

Since he was in a sitting position, the first thing his eyes found where the two firm domes rising from his altered chest - two large, firm breasts, the skin covering them a rich mahogany tinged with ocher. Past the firm, bounteous mounds lay a pair of long, smooth legs of the same color.

Mark blinked down at.. herself, mind slowly and thickly trying to make sense of what she was seeing. "I..." She said, thickly. "I'm... a woman?"

"Oh, yes - quite definitely." Martin told her smugly. "And quite a woman, I must say."

Closing her eyes, Mark brought a hand to her face and rubbed the bridge of her nose - and barely avoided poking an eye out with his lengthened nail. "Nnnn.... No... I'm not a woman..." She said, trying to get her brain to pick up speed. "I'm a man."

"Not any more, my dear." Martin assured her, pointing to a full-length mirror that had been brought into the room. "See for yourself."

Mind struggling to get up to speed, Mark staggered off the couch, feeling awkward and uncoordinated as her body moved in ways that she'd never experienced before. With a light, careful step, she approached the mirror, finding that she had absolutely amazing balance and exquisite grace in her new body, a product of brand-new muscles and nerves that were sharper than she was used to.

She stopped and stared in amazement at the image reflected in the silver-backed glass.

The woman staring back was of two obvious genetic heritages - Black, and Hispanic. Her skin was the color of cappuccino coffee, tinted with a slight hint of copper, and was a gloriously smooth, unblemished expanse from head to toe.

Toes that graced small, dainty feet that led upwards to slender, shapely ankles. Those ankles merely joined the dainty feet to even more shapely legs, which seemed to stretch upwards forever, their long length formed into smooth, toned contours of feminine perfection before swelling out into undeniably womanly hips. Those hips supported a firm, full, heart-shaped ass that was nearly the epitome of all female asses, with the Negro side of her heritage providing the fullness that would have been too much on a woman who lacked her 'Spanish' child-bearing hips to make a perfect balance of form and function. Nestled between the golden columns of her soft, shapely thighs was the cleft of her womanhood, nestled in a patch of dark pubic hair.

Above the smooth, feminine swell of her hips, her waist pulled ever inward, forming an hour-glass shape that was almost infinitesimal, a slim waist that she could almost lock her slender hands around, before flaring outward again into her slender ribcage, which supported the most perfect pair of breasts she had ever seen.

A firm set of triple-D cup beauties, they were not so much 'spherical' as dome-like, rising sharply from the plains of her chest to form two perfectly formed domed mountains whose peaks were surmounted by small, chocolatey aureole bearing large, thick nipple that were frankly feminine.

Her arms and neck shared in common bond the same long, slender attributes and smooth skin that emphasized her golden-copper body. Atop that swan-like neck was a face that showed both sides of her new heritage. Her lips were amazingly full and soft, below a smoothly sloped nose that flared upwards slightly at the top. Her high, clearly defined cheeks framed a pair of dark, smoldering Latin eyes framed by long, thick lashes, and the entire heart-shaped face was surrounded by a massive mane of curly hair that was an incredible shade of deep auburn, with flashing highlights of flame red.

The vision was the that of the most utterly perfect woman mark had ever seen. And it was her.

"Nnnnnn..." She moaned, low in the back of her new throat - then lashed out, sending the mirror crashing to the ground, where it shattered. "Nooooo!"

Turning, she lashed out mindlessly, fury, hate, disgust and fear all roiling within her new body at what had been done to her.

Then she brought her new, long nailed hands up to her face, to tear at the smooth skin of the horrible
- and horrible perfect - female form in which she'd been trapped....

...unnoticed, martin had stepped forward at her first outburst, and a needle had slid home in one perfect butt cheek. Now, before she could perform the furious, horrified act of self-mutilation, she felt the drug take hold. As her volition drained away, it was with an anguished inner scream as she felt her freedom - her manhood, her life - slipping away with her will power.

"Sit down " martin ordered. Helplessly, the new-formed woman did as she was told.

"I think you're beginning to see what my revenge on you is." Martin said. "But, unlike your victims, you have no need to have a 'pimp' to supply you with the drug you crave. No, your body will produce it itself, given the correct type of 'raw material.' Do you know what material that is?"

"No " Mark's richly feminine new voice said.

"It's a rather uncommon protein string. However, there are two 'common' sources for this protein. One, I'm afraid, is available in the rather expensive Beluga caviar that you can buy. The other is in the seminal fluid of the human male."

Deep inside, a shudder ran through Mark's imprisoned mind.

"Now, you see " Martin continued. "Unless you ingest this protein, you'll become steadily more and more aroused - and the only way to keep from overloading on this arousal would be to satisfy your urges. So, you see, your choices are simple - you can have somebody fuck you often, to keep your desperate need from growing too great. Or, you could suck down a few loads of cum to keep yourself in check - and, I'll add, that would produce a nice 'high' for a bit afterwards. Of course, you could just eat a doze fifty-dollar jars of caviar a day but where are you going to get six hundred bucks a day?"

"I don't know " Mark replied, numbly.

"On the contrary " Martin laughed. "I think you could figure out a way."

Leaning forward, the medical researcher eyed his prisoner. "Now, on to more important things, while you're still under the influence. Tell me - what's your name?"

"Mark Benson " Mark replied.

"No - it's not. You are not Mark Benson. You cannot answer to that name, and you can not say that it is your name - you have not, never have been, and never will be Mark Benson." He paused. "What's your name?"

'Mark Benson!' She screamed in the silences of her mind... but the words wouldn't route through to her mouth. Instead, a puzzled look crossed her face. "I... I don't know."

"Your name is Maria. Maria Louisa Belledame." He paused again. "What's your name?" "Maria..." Mark - Maria - answered thickly. "Maria Belledame"

"And where were you born and raised, Maria?" "New York City." Maria answered.

"No - you've never even been to New York City." Martin informed her. "You were born in Taunton Parish, Louisiana, and raised in New Orleans "

* * * * *

An hour later, the door to 2635 East Elm Street swung open, and Maria Louisa Belledame was unceremoniously forced out into the world.

"No !" She cried, banging her fists on the door. "Don't do this to me!"

Martin's voice was muffled by the thickness of the door, but the words themselves were clear enough to understand. "I have no idea who you are, Miss - but if you don't leave immediately, I'm calling the cops."

Marcia raised her slender hand - then stopped, a sharp image of her trying to explain something - anything - to the cops springing to mind. She had no identification - no history, really - and she'd been 'programmed' to never reveal what had happened. In fact, all she'd be able to tell them was her 'life story', a fairly detailed account of something that had never happened.

Not that her memories had been altered in any way - oh, no - Mark was buried deep inside the new form she wore, horribly aware of what was happening to her. But, thanks to her drugged mental conditioning, she'd never be able to break out of her new, imposed identity as the twenty-one year old woman who had run away from New Orleans to escape her past - and the nick-name she'd gotten after giving into her urges and fucking a whole football team.

Shivering at the thought of what she'd been 'programmed' with, Maria turned away from the door, breathing quickly as she faced the same old world - in a whole new way, one that she'd never thought she'd have to face it in, and certainly not one she wanted too.

Of course, Martin had taken care of that, too - no matter what, she couldn't actively seek death or injury - indeed, the girl 'once known as the Cajun Cum Queen' was helplessly dedicated to leading a long, healthy life, and programmed to try and preserve and 'flaunt' her looks as best she could under any given circumstances.

Her body being the only thing of worth that she possessed.

Not that she'd been pushed out in the world naked - no, she owned exactly one set of clothes, those that she was wearing now - and, given a choice, clothes she'd never have put on. But she hadn't had a choice, nor would she in the future - her 'taste' in clothing had been very carefully inserted into her vulnerable mind.

So, from now on, she'd wear clothing similar to the ones she was wearing now.

Gracing her dainty feet were a pair of black leather ankle boots with six inch flared heels, before her legs rose bare and smooth to disappear under the hem of the mid-thigh length black leather skirt she wore - since she 'liked' clothes that showed off her legs and ass. A black leather 'vest' clung tightly to her upper torso, the bottom half held tight against her slender waist by the built-in tie-back of the vest, while the 'vee' of the neckline displayed a delicious view of her cleavage, hinting at what the leather garment contained.

Over all, she wore a knee-length black leather jacket, and she now rapped this tightly around her body, hating having to wear such revealing, sexy clothing. Perhaps the worst part of it was, martin hadn't messed with the inner core of who she was, hadn't made her over to act and walk like a slut - or even, really, dress like one, as the clothes were sexy without being cheap. Even her make-up was tasteful - which had taken her most of the time in 'programming' to learn how to do.

No - although she had to wear feminine clothes, all the actions she would take would be hers and hers alone - and that would make anything she ended up doing a thousand times worse, because she would do them 'voluntarily', rather than out of simple programming.

Fighting back the sudden urge to start crying, Maria pulled her purse - black leather, of course - higher on her narrow shoulder and started walking slowly away from the house, having no idea where she was going to go. It was five or six o'clock in the afternoon, and she was a woman without... anything. Anything other than her body, and a need which would grow endlessly until it was satisfied, or drove her insane. Even now, Maria could feel the faint inner... need. Like a small, gaping emptiness that needed to be filled.

In short, considering the time of day, he was probably feeling exactly what all the 'working girls' he'd drugged were feeling - and faced with the same choice as them. Let the need grow, face the terrible craving of withdrawal.. or find what she needed to satisfy the craving.

Maria knew what all the girls - except for Linda - had chosen - and shuddered, swearing to herself that she'd let herself go insane before she took the 'other route' out.

Walking in the heels wasn't as hard as Maria had thought it would be - part of it was the fact that they were flared heels, rather than stiletto. They started wide, narrowed in the center, then flared back out into a broader base, looking sort of like a comic-style bone. But the vast part of it was the new reactions of her body, which had more inherent grace and balance than her old male one - compared to her new body, her old one now felt as if it had been an ungainly elephant, and she was a gazelle.

Not that she wanted to find anything good about her new form, of course.

Keeping the leather jacket wrapped tightly around her new form had another, benefit as well. By keeping her arms crossed on her chest to hug the coat tightly shut, she was supporting her breasts. Though incredibly - almost preternaturally - firm, they still had mass and inertia, and without the support of a bra they would have shifted and bounced slightly with each swaying - damnably feminine

- stride she took. Her pose kept that from happening, but she was all too aware of the feel of her slender forearms pressed firmly against the bottoms of her firm domes, and how pleasurable a sensation that was.

She was aware of a thousand other new sensations of her condition, as well. The way her longer, finer hair moved in the slightest breeze, necessitating that she occasionally reach up and brush the long, silky mane out of her face. She was aware of the feel of gloss-red lipstick on her lips, and the faint taste of it when she licked those full, soft lips she now claimed - shamefully - as her own. The way her longer lashes felt every time she blinked. The way the air moved across the silky skin of her legs. The way her fuller ass and wider hips moved in a swivel-sway motion with every step, and the way the underwear beneath the skirt slid slightly over her new, smooth crotch.

And, of course, she was all-too-aware of the slowly building warmth deep in her abdomen and the slow, steady sensation in her nipples as her body began to become helplessly aroused, slowly building towards the state that she'd sentenced so many girls to, and now dreaded for herself.

Trying not to think about that - or anything, really - Maria continued her aimless wandering, felling the darkness welling up at the hopeless future that spread out before her. She understood, now, what she'd done to the girls, but what had been done to her was much, much worse. He'd 'merely' forced the girls into doing for profit something that they must enjoy doing anyway - and how bad could that be. After all - they were only women. Weak, pathetic creatures who only existed to serve and service men, the true lords of all creation.

Man like who she used to be. But she'd been horrible demoted from the ranks of nobility to a commoner, dropped from the God-given heights that males enjoyed to the depths of womanhood. She wasn't really a woman, born and bred to serve a certain place in the scheme of things - no, she'd been forced into that new role, and she wished that Richards had stolen her memories of her old life, as they only served to torment her further, reminding her of what she'd lost. Now she was like any other woman - stupid and useless and vain, a slave to the whims of fashion and emotion and the whims and needs of men.

Stopping - fighting back the weak, emotional tears that were the legacy of femininity - she looked around, and found herself in an older part of downtown, near a coffee shop. Only now did it register that she'd been walking for a good two hours, and that night had fallen. She was cold, hungry, and broke, with no home or friends to go to - and a steadily rising tide of lust thrumming through her body.

Plus, she discovered - her feet hurt.

Head down, face wreathed in misery, Maria pushed open the door to the coffee shop and went in, sinking into a booth with a grateful sigh.

"hi, there."

Startled, Maria whirled to stare, wide-eyed, at a handsome young man leaning across the back of the seat that conjoined the two booths. From beyond the ebony youth's visage, another handsome youth

- this one Caucasian - was also looking at her from the other side of the table in the booth.

"Uh... hi." Maria said, wincing mentally at her accursed voice that fit very sexy, feminine body all too well.

"Place is pretty dead tonight - we were expecting some other friends to show up, but they never did." The dark-skinned youth said, with a grin. "Since we don't have anything better to do, we've just been hanging out - maybe you'd care to join us."

There it was - right off the bat, the first men she'd met in her new form (other than passing in the street of course) were already looking to put her to good use and fuck her brains out.

Swallowing thickly, Maria opened her mouth to refuse...

"Yeah, join us." The other youth called. "Matt here wouldn't usually ask a stranger - but you look like you could use a couple of friends..."

'A good fucking', Maria translated.

"..so why not join us? Have a cup of coffee, maybe a bagel, chat - just relax and take a load off."

Closing her eyes, Maria shook her head. "No, I... I just came in to rest my feet. I..." She swallowed again. "I can't afford to buy anything."

She heard a shuffling, creaking sound - and when she opened her eyes, she found herself staring across the table of her booth at the 'concerned' looks on the face of the two youths.

"Oh - don't worry, it's on us." The black youth said with a smile. "It's a small price to pay for the company of such a lovely lady." He held out a hand. "I'm Matt, and this tall drink of water..." He gestured at the tall, rangy brunet, "...is Randy."

The other youth flushed. "A name - not a condition."

'Yeah, I bet.' Maria thought, but timidly took their hands and introduced herself with her new name, feeling the words - laced with the 'Cajun' accent Richards had forced on her - slip through her soft, sexy lips, sounding oh-so-inviting to the young men.

It didn't matter of course - who actually listened to what a woman said, for God's sake?

She ordered her some food - a bagel, some soup - and coffee. Grateful for the food - but knowing what the guys expected for their 'generosity' - she ate ravenously, trying to ignore the sensations that were building in her body.

"So - what brings you to this little coffee shop?" Randy asked, sipping at his coffee.

Maria considered the question - really considered it. She was almost squirming in her seat now from the raging desire she was feeling, and she knew what it would take to end the sexual torment she was feeling. Despite her earlier promise to herself, she knew she couldn't hold out - that had been a fantasy, back when she hadn't known how powerful the urges could get. No wonder women were the way they were - how could anybody expected to be logical and in control of themselves when they were ruled so much by emotion.

For example - even though she hated these guys obvious attempts to pick her up, hidden behind 'concern' and 'friendship' and 'generosity', she still couldn't help but 'like' them, due to the fact that she now had the body and hormonal system of a woman - it was skewing her viewpoint more then she thought possible, the chemicals her body was creating as a fully-functional female creating emotions she didn't want to deal with.

Like the fact that her body was finding the two men very, very attractive - her mind found the thought disgusting, but her body definite approved of the men, craving what they so obviously wanted from her.

And since she doubted this place served Beluga caviar...

"I was looking for somebody to give a blow job to." Maria admitted in a quite voice, shame obvious in her face and poise.

Randy spluttered, spewing coffee. "What?" he was closely echoed by Matt.

Maria lowered her head. "I have..." Oh, God - if only she could tell somebody the truth, find help - but she'd been forbidden to, and just couldn't "...a hormonal imbalance. It creates... well, intense sexual arousal. The only way to ease my... problem is to have sex of one kind or another."

The two men shared a look. "You're kidding, right?"

'I wish', she thought, shaking her head. "no - I'm serious." She paused, then decided to 'flesh out' the story with some of 'her' background. "that's why I left New Orleans.. I... went too long without any, and my.. private problem became very, very public quite suddenly." She paused. "I.. people started calling me... 'The Cajun Cum Queen'... because I can't help myself. The longer I go without sex, the more I need it - until it gets to the point that I'm just out of control."

The 'tale' was told in utter shame, and she just wanted to curl up and die - but part of her was thrilled to get it out in the open, to admit to her problem and begin her search for relief...

God! She was so horny she thought she was going to burst! Her cunt was sopping wet and she could feel a heat running through her body that had nothing to do with the ambient temperature. Her nipples were erect within the leather containing her perfect tits, and she kept thinking just how damned sexy she looked, and what a woman's body was made for. It didn't matter that she was a man, deep down in her soul - she had the body of a woman, and so she was trapped in a woman's existence, where she only lived to fulfill the carnal needs of men. Her body was designed that way by evolution, every cell of her new form designed to make her ready, willing and eager to fuck - and it showed. Though, mentally, she was utterly disgusted by the thought of having sex with men, her body was all-too-ready for it, and she now understood that withstanding the needs and designs of her body were simply impossible. All she could do was try and keep herself satisfied so it didn't build up too much.

"Let me see if I've got this straight...." Matt said, carefully. "You... need sex?"

She nodded, downcast. "My... my body never stops producing hormones that other women only produce when they're aroused, I.. I'm always aroused... physically. It doesn't matter what I'm doing or thinking about, or if I'm actually interested in... you know. It's just that my body craves it, and the longer I go without, the worse it gets." She looked up. "Try.. try to imagine that, for me, sex is like cocaine. Not having any causes withdrawal symptoms - and that's what I'm feeling right now."

Matt's face took on an odd expression. "So, what you're saying is... mentally, you don't particularly care for us. We're not... attractive, to you. It's just your body's craving that made you talk with us... right?"

"Not exactly..." Maria said. She didn't really care about hurting their feelings - but now that she'd committed herself to the disgusting realization that she 'had to have it', she didn't want to search out anyone else to meet her craving. She didn't know if she could last that long. "Out of all the guys I've ever met, I think you guys are at least as equally attractive, interesting and sexually enticing as any I've met."

It was a safe answer, being true - since she didn't want to have sex with any men, and didn't really find any man attractive, they were as equally attractive as any other. But the point was, it was utterly true, when you looked at it like that, and the sincerity of the statement came through. The two youths shared another look. "Look, Maria... we both find you very, very sexy..."

'Here goes.' Maria thought - as much as she hated the thought of what was about to happen, at least it would end the increasing sexual desire thrumming through her, urging her to fuck anybody.

"...but we can't just take advantage of you because you have a... hormonal problem." Maria blinked, sure she'd heard wrong. "What?"

Randy nodded, slowly. "Yeah - as much as this is almost like a fantasy come true, it isn't fantasy - it's real life. We couldn't live with ourselves if we... pushed you into something you didn't want, just because it was something you needed. I mean - there must be something you can do, or somebody you are, really, interested in that can help you. We'd be glad to give you a lift..."

Maria felt as if she'd entered some sort of surrealistic world - they were actually arguing against fucking her absolutely perfect body? Having been a man, she knew that she had the most stunningly perfect body outside of a centerfold - and she matched or exceeded most of them, too. The guys should be falling all over themselves with the chance to fuck her. Instead, they were acting like characters from a book or movie, where the supposed 'men' actually cared about a woman's feelings and desires.

Every time Maria had come across such obviously unrealistic characters, he'd snorted and thrown up his hands, mentally. It was obvious that it had either been written by a woman or directed at woman, feeding the fantasy that there were really men like that out in the world some where. Of course, Maria had always known that was bullshit - all you had to do was be a man to know the truth. He'd used women his entire life after learning the truth about life at his father's knee, and while some women obviously held to that myth of men who actually treated women as equals, Maria had forced enough women into his 'service' one way or another to know that they knew the truth...

But what if there really was guys like that? Oh, sure, there couldn't be many - and if she'd met them as a man, she would have been disgusted by their obvious weaknesses. Probably been raised by their mothers almost exclusively.

But - in this situation, finding such a rare set of mama's boys might be ideal. Imagine - men who would actually treat her like she was almost still a man. Actually try and.. well, talk to her. Not just satisfy her sexual needs, but actually treat her as if she was a real person, instead of the mere woman she really was...

Did she dare hope...?

Did she dare let them get away without finding out...?

All this passed through her mind in an instant, then she was speaking.

"No, no - don't get me wrong!" She said, forcing every ounce of 'sincerity' into her voice that she could muster. "I think you guys are kind, and funny - and handsome. If I was normal, I'd be finding a way to ask you out on a real date - but, because I'm not normal, I have to move things a lot faster than I would otherwise." She saw doubt - doubt - in their faces, and was once more faced the surreal nature of the situation - having to convince somebody of something that she didn't really want to do anyway. "Look - you're right. I could find somebody else - or I could have found satisfaction long before now." She gestured down at herself. "Look at me, and tell me this - if I was just looking for that physical satisfaction, do you think I could walk out on the street right now and pick up a guy who would love a one-night stand with no complications?"

"Well... yeah." Randy admitted.

"But I don't want that!" She said. Wracking her brain, Maria let herself fall into the emotions that her female body was forcing on them. "Look - don't you think I've wished I could have a relationship with a man - a real relationship? But one man can't meet the needs of my body, and I'm forced to.. to lower myself to meaningless encounters. All I want in life is.. is a way to be almost normal. To satisfy the needs of my body for sexual gratification, but also fulfill the needs of my emotions, of my mind and soul - to find people I can care about and who care about me, where it wouldn't just be about the sex. Do you understand?"

She couldn't believe she was actually able to come up with this load of crap. It must have been hidden down in her mind, after-effects of all those 'women' movies where women actually believed that a 'real' relationship was possible, and that there was men out there who actually wanted more than pure, uncomplicated sex from a woman.

But these guys must be half women themselves - because they seemed to be buying the load of crap she was shoveling as fast as she could.

"And.. you think we could have that sort of relationship - that's why you're still here?" Matt asked. "You think that we can.. make some sort of threesome? Where you'd be a... a girlfriend to us both?"

"Look - you said that you and he were roommates and best friends, right?" Maria asked, almost going insane. All she wanted to do was get fucked - but if she could get into a situation where she'd be treated better than the 'sex toy' all women really were, then she should try and grab it. "So - don't you think that you could still be friends with each other, if you were also friends - or more than friends - with me?"

"I.. I guess we could give it a try." Randy said, looking at Matt. "What do you say, buddy? We have a spare bedroom, and I wouldn't mind letting her stay - and if it worked out that it was something more than that, long term - I'm willing to give it a go. I don't think it'll destroy our friendship."

"Yeah.. Yeah, I guess we could at least try." Matt said.

Maria wanted to run all the way back to their place, fuck them quickly, get a good night's sleep - then run off in the morning, sick at what she'd done. But she knew that she'd only have to do it again, and if she could find a 'steady supply', then it was worth the extra work - so she forced herself to hold on, to walk between the guys with an arm around each of their waists and acting as if she were actually enjoying their company, as if she cared anything at all about them.

They reached the guys' apartment, and she got the grand tour of the place - 'pleasantly surprised' by the accommodations. It turned out that the two young men worked at a fairly large corporation and made a good chunk of money, and were rooming together because they preferred to, not because of monetary concerns. The apartment reflected the fact that they were each spending as much as they would have if they'd lived separately, with three large bedrooms, a great view from a floor-to-ceiling window in the spacious open-concept living/dining room, a deep-pile carpet throughout.

They ended up on the couch, with Maria sandwiched between the two guys. Despite her utter disgust at the situation, she was forcing herself to 'play along', acting as if there was nowhere else in the world she wanted to be right now but between these two guys.

Meanwhile, her mind and emotions were in an uproar.

She'd finally conceded the truth - that her 'punishment' at Martin Richards' hands was to need sex. There was nothing she could do about that - except to satisfy that craving. The truth was simple - she was stuck as a woman, and she could either give in and be a woman who had sex often - or she could hold out, go insane from the sheer hormonal drive, and end up being a crazy woman who had sex often. So, she'd chosen the lesser of two evils, and decided to satisfy her needs...

...but, as 'logical' as that was, intellectually, now that push came to shove it was very, very hard to deal with. Part of her, right now, wanted to just fuck the guys and get it over with, and that part of her was chaffing at the delay. But another part of her didn't want to do this at all, and would rather use the whole 'enjoying the guys' company' thing to delay the inevitable.

So, she was locked between the two poles of her wants and needs, and she finally had to force herself to move in one direction or another based on the guys response - she couldn't just do this 'efficiently', jumping right into it - she just couldn't bring herself to do that.

Instead, Maria leaned to one side and lifted her face up to Randy in the age-old posture of a woman waiting to be kissed.

The fact that she was doing this disgusted and shamed her - but it was the first 'hurdle' to get past her own ingrained disgust at the thought of having sex with a guy. If Randy didn't kiss her, then she wouldn't be moving on to something more intimate with him - and if he did kiss her, it would be his decision moving the thing forward, not hers. Either way, it wasn't her jumping into the sex, but 'merely' responding to the men. As utterly disgusting as that was to her, at least it was easier for her to handle the thought of merely 'going along' with being seduced rather than being the one actively seducing.

Randy kissed her.

Pulling her body closer to his, he pressed his lips firmly against hers. Closing her eyes, Maria tried to forget that it was a man she was kissing, while in the body of a woman. Instead, she imagined that she was once more a male, and that she was kissing - well, 'herself'. Letting that fantasy play out behind her closed eyelids made it much easier to bare, and she even got so into the fantasy of kissing a 'gorgeous babe' that she found the kiss becoming deep and passionate, almost as if she were actually enjoying it.

The kiss finally ended - and for the first time since she'd met the guys, she finally got around to removing the jacket she'd kept hugged so tightly around her body.

The guys eyes nearly popped from their heads.

They'd known that she was absolutely gorgeous - but that was based mostly on her face, and the fact that the body under the coat was obviously 'acceptable', as, if she'd been too fat or too thin, or otherwise 'oddly' proportioned, it would have shown even with the concealing nature of the coat.

But now she removed the outer garment and tossed it aside, revealing her long, incredibly sexy legs to their view, as well as the slender waist that sat beneath the glorious golden cleavage displayed by the leather vest. She had the ultimate hourglass figure, and the guys now knew about it - and they were stunned.

"Matt... I don't mean to be rude.. but could you excuse Maria and I for awhile...?" Randy 'suggested' to his friend. Matt got the subtext of the message clearly, of course - Randy was asking if it was all right with him if he put the 'first moves' on the gorgeous woman he'd just kissed.

The amazing thing was - Randy and Matt actually were good enough friends that the thought didn't bother Matt. Matt would have given Randy the shirt off his back, and vice versa - so there was no animosity at being 'second' in this - after all, it was Maria who had chosen who she would kiss first.

"Sure. I'll be in my room, reading, if you need anything." Matt paused, then grinned. "You kids have fun."

He wandered away, leaving the two of them alone on the couch. When Randy reached out to her, Maria forced her lips to curve upwards in a welcoming smile, as if this was 'really' what she wanted to do, rather than just what she needed. Having seen the place, having learned how well off the guys were, she knew the truth - if she screwed this up, she'd be back on the street looking for sex to satisfy her, and a place to live. No matter what she might find, it couldn't be 'better' than this.

In short, this was the best she could possibly hope for in the hell that her life had become, and if she didn't want to fall even deeper into that hell, into something worse, then she'd better 'play along' and make sure that this was where she stayed.

So, she kissed him again, pressing her body against his, her hand sliding down his shoulder in a 'caress', while his hand wrapped around her and pulled her even tighter against himself, his kiss deepening - and she forced herself to match it.

Pulling back slightly, she 'smiled' at him, her long, slender fingers reaching for the buttons on her vest. Slowly - to buy time rather than tease, though he didn't know that - she undid the vest and slid it from her shoulders, displaying her firm, round globes to Randy's eager gaze.

"God! You're.... perfect..." Randy said, softly, his hands coming up to her chest and caressing her firm, round tits.

Maria sucked in her breath at his touch, sucking her full lower lip between her teeth in a show of pleasure that was partially feigned - it did feel good, physically, as Randy lightly fondled her firm mounds, his hands moving with assurance and skill to fondly and stroke her tits, and play with her swollen, erect nipples.

"Oh... that's goood" Maria moaned, 'faking' enjoyment, though - of course - she was disgusted by a man touching her, making pleasure run through her body by massaging the firm, sexy, sensitive tits that she didn't even want to have. With his hands still on her tits, she leaned forward and kissed Randy again, then rise upwards on her knees, bringing his face down to her breasts, closing her eyes and voicing her 'pleasure' as he began to lick and nibble at her thick, full nipples.

Meanwhile, she forced herself to slide her hands down Randy's chest to his lap, where she slowly unzipped his pants and reached inside to stroke and fondle his rapidly hardening cock, disgusted and shamed by what she was doing, but pretending it's what she wanted to do - s if it was she enjoyed doing.

Then she slid off the couch. Forcing herself to smile up at Randy - rather than what she really wanted to do, which was turn and run - she slid her hands across his thighs, and lowered her head slowly as she moved his clothes out of the way and leave his now hard and throbbing cock thrust into the air.

Then, with one last 'delaying tactic' - looking up with a smile and saying... cooing 'Mmmmm it looks so yummy ' - she opened her mouth, bent her head, and started giving her first blow-job.

Closing her lips around the warm, slightly musky-tasting shaft, she applied a light suction and let her tongue roam over the cock, lubricating it. Wrapping her hand around the base of the cock, she forced herself to act as if she'd done this many, many times before, struggling not to be sick at what she was doing.

Then she began to bob her head up and down, her tongue tracing swirls over the head of his cock as her full lips slid up and down the slick shaft.

She faked intense enjoyment of the act - as if anybody could ever actually enjoy sucking cock. As if the feel of her lips moving over the surface of his cock was as enjoyable as she was pretending it was. As if anyone could really find the sensation of something in their mouth, like a warm, thick 'popsicle' kind of fun. As if anyone would find the slightly musky taste of the cock sort of.. nice. As if anybody could actually gain any enjoyment from bringing intense pleasure to another person, and actually care enough to try and make the experience as enjoyable as possible - as fun as possible - for both of them

No - it was all an act as she moaned low in the back of her throat and put 'eagerness' into her motions. Nobody could possible enjoy sucking cock.

And when Randy moaned and began to cum, she had to do even more acting. Because, it wasn't as if anybody actually felt a burst of pride at being incredible talented at bringing a man pleasure. And it wasn't as if she really did love the feel of the thick, warm, salty cum flooding her mouth. It certainly wasn't possible that anybody would gulp it down with the enjoyment she was 'acting' out - after all, cock-sucking was utterly disgusting.

Nobody found it an intensely satisfying, fulfilling and incredibly fun thing to do. And certainly nobody would already be looking forward to doing it again.

No - that was just an act.

Just like her 'enjoying' the aftertaste of the cum was an act. She didn't really like it so much that she didn't want to wash it out of her mouth, but she had to pretend that's exactly what she was feeling, as she cuddled up next to Randy and forced herself to pretend she loved the feel of him against her as they talked for a bit, his hand lightly stroking her smooth leg.

Finally, she'd decided she'd had enough of the crap she was feeding him about what she liked and what she wanted out of life, and excused herself. Slipping off her boots, she rose from the couch and faced the truth - she'd just been putting off stage two of what she needed.

Now, she padded down the hallway that led to the bedrooms and knocked lightly on Matt's door.

Here a muffled 'come in', she paused... then, with a sigh, slid off her skirt and sodden panties, tossing them across the hall into 'her' room before opening Matt's door and walking inside, her gleaming golden body naked from head to toe. Of course, the whole 'I love my sexy body and want to turn you on with it' act was just that, and act - she wasn't really incredibly proud of having the most utterly perfect body she could possibly imagine.

Just like she acted like she was 'flattered' as Matt sat up in bed, eyes widening as he took a deep breath and said "wow..." in a stunned voice.

"What...?" She asked, 'teasingly'. "See something you like... because I know I do..." She leered theatrically at Matt, who was sitting in bed with a sheet over his lower half and his muscular, ebony torso bare.

"Uh..." Matt stammered.

Maria forced herself to 'laugh' as if she was actually enjoying the moment. "Loosen up, Matt - we're going to be good friends, remember? Just let yourself feel comfortable with me." She posed to show off her body, as if she really wanted to make him admire it. "I promise that I won't do anything you're not comfortable with."

She pointed to the door. "In fact - if this is a problem for you..." She began to head towards the door, part of her hoping that he wouldn't stop her...

"No...!" Matt said then blushed at the vehemence with which he'd said.

Somewhat disappointed, Maria forced herself to hide it, turning back with a smile. "I'm so glad you stopped me, Matt - if you'd actually let me leave, I would have been utterly devastated.", "She lied. Forcing herself to move with a sexy stride, she walked back to the bed and slid onto it, laying sideways and propping herself up on one elbow. She slowly slid a hand over his smoothly muscled torso. "So, 'friend', what should we do to while away the evening? Discuss literature, perhaps?"

Matt grinned with humor and embarrassment.

"Or " Maria said, her hand sliding down to the rather large tent made in the bed sheet over his crotch. "...maybe something else ?"

She lightly grasped the bulge, and Matt gasped slightly. "Oh an idea?" She 'teased him - then broke out 'laughing'.

"Relax, Matt." She told him, giving him a quick but 'passionate' kiss as she 'grinned' at him. "I like you and Randy - I really do. I like spending time with you, like talking with you - and if my little 'problem' can bring people I like pleasure... well, then I'd have to say it stops being a problem, and becomes a benefit. Wouldn't you agree?"

Matt blinked. "I.. never looked at it that way."

Maria nudged him in the ribs. "See? I know that people are kind of trained by society to be 'hung up' about sex - but it's an attitude I can't afford. It's something I need to do, and all too often, in the past, it's been an odious task I've had to force myself to do. For the first time in.. in as long as I can remember, I'm actually excited by it again, actually looking forward to it - because it's a way of showing you and Randy the way I feel about you, and returning to you some of the pleasure that just being around you gives me."

Leaning forward, she kissed him again - and this time, he responded. Enthusiastically.

His arms came up and began to caress her back, sliding down to fondle her as she pressed her full mounds into his chest. She flipped the sheet out of the way, and - guiding herself with her hands - swung a leg over his, set herself in position...

...and eased herself down onto his large, thick cock, gasping as the rigid, throbbing organ filled her hot, wet cunt.

"Oh, God..." She moaned, pushing her head back in 'pleasure' at having a man's cock fill her cunt. Slowly at first, she began to move her hips, flexing her long, toned legs to drive herself up and down on his cock, moaning at the exquisite pleasure it brought.

She began moving faster and faster, moans becoming gasps, which became words of pleasure as she rode Matt with long, deep, graceful thrusts, fulfilling her need and feeling the intense pleasure that thrummed through her body with each thrust.

"oh... god... yesssss..." Maria moaned, most of her brain overwhelmed by the pleasure that seared her nerves - while what was left was amazed at the fact that anything in her new existence could possibly feel so damned good, even if it disgusted her... and the fact that it felt good was disgusting as well.

Finally, she came - and it was like a freight train of ecstasy running through her body, shaking her with the power of her female orgasm.

Sated - and then some - she slumped down against Matt's sweaty body and rolled off, not even noticing as she slipped and arm over his chest and snuggled into him, lost in the warm afterglow of the orgasm.

"Wow..." Matt said - having had to do little more than accept the pleasure of Maria's sexual athletics.

"yeah... wow..." Maria agreed, drowsily. She turned her head up and kissed the bottom of his jaw, then slid away from him, feeling... something as she moved from his warm embrace.

"Well..." she said, feeling awkward. "I.. I'm going to grab a shower then hit the sack - it's been a long day." She paused. "See you in the morning, I guess."

"Yeah. In the morning." Matt agreed, then lifted his chin. "And... welcome home."

Maria didn't know why she felt a strange thrill run down her spine at the words, finally deciding that it was the surprise of the words that caused the sensation. Blowing Matt a kiss, she turned and padded off towards the bathroom, her mind still trying to settle on a single emotion regarding how the first day of her 'imprisonment' in Maria's life had turned out.

* * * * *

ONE YEAR LATER

"Mmmmm... why don't you just forget about work, and come back to bed..." Maria asked sensuously, licking her lips in a suggestive manner.

Randy laughed. "You say that every morning, Maria."

"I mean it every morning, Randy." Maria said, sitting up in the bed and running a hand through her mane of sleep-mussed hair.

Randy walked over and kissed her, tasting the salty aftertaste of his own cum in her mouth - Maria's method of waking him up beat an alarm clock any day. "I know you do, honey." Randy assured her. "And I'm sure that Tammy-Lynn means it every morning when she says it to Matt."

Maria grinned. "You're kidding."

"Nope." Randy said, finishing tying his tie.

Maria laughed. "So they're in Matt's room right now probably having this exact same discussion?" "Yup."

Maria shook her head in disbelief. Less than a month after she'd moved in with the guys, she'd found that either one could satisfy her needs on a daily basis, and had - in the end - more-or-less chosen Randy over Mark. That would have been a problem - if it hadn't have been for Tammy-Lynn.

Tammy-Lynn was a pneumatic blonde that Matt and her had met at a party they'd gone to. She had been as nervous as hell, as it had been one of her few times out 'in public' - but then she'd ended up in conversation with Tammy-Lynn Greyson, who was so bubbly and perky that she'd forced Maria to enjoy herself through sheer force of will.

Unfortunately, Tammy-Lynn had enjoyed herself a little too much. Almost pathologically outgoing, the tiny blonde with the southern accent seemed completely unable to turn down any offer of anything, including drinks - and nearly every guy at the party had wanted to get her a drink. By the end of the evening, the tiny blonde had been so drunk that she'd passed out. Maria had searched Tammy-Lynn's purse, but had been unable to find anything that had an address on it, and nobody at the party knew it either. So, they'd brought her home.

The next day, Tammy-Lynn hadn't woken until long after the guys had gone to work. Maria had driven her home...

...then taken one look at the 'apartment' she lived in and insisted that Tammy-Lynn move in with her until she could get back on her feet.

The room had been a real shit-hole. Tammy-Lynn had made some attempt to pretty the place up, scrubbing and disinfecting thoroughly, putting extremely well-used but clean furniture in it, hanging bright drapes and having plants in the tiny room - but the place had still smelled awful, there had been stains on the carpets and walls - and the entire floor had shared one utterly disgusting bathroom at the end of the hallway.

More than anything, Maria's sudden burst of 'sympathy' had come with the thought that she, herself, might have ended up in a place like this - and that had been enough. Matt and Randy had been surprised to find that they had a new guest, but had taken it with good grace and made her feel welcome.

She'd returned the friendship with a vengeance. By the time Maria ended up finding out she enjoyed spending more time with Randy, Matt was already smitten with the perky blonde, and things had worked out more than just fine - Maria and Tammy-Lynn had turned out to become as close friends as Matt and Randy, and although they had marked preferences about the guys, nobody got their noses out of joint if they 'switch hit' once in a while. All in all, everything had worked out better than anybody had a right to hope.

Now, as Maria slid out of bed and walked Randy towards the door of the apartment, she almost bumped into the tiny (in some ways) blonde as she escorted Matt towards the door.

"Have a good day at work..." Maria started the now-ritual phrase.

"...and we'll make sure you have a better night." Tammy-Lynn finished with a giggle, speaking in a southern drawl so deep as to be nearly unintelligible to anyone not as used to it as her three roommates.

The boys waved and headed off, and Maria pushed the door shut, then turned and slipped an arm around her diminutive companion's waist.

"Well - what should we do today?" Maria asked Tammy-Lynn, after a pause for a quick kiss.

"Well, honeychil', we got a whole eight hours to our little ol' selves." Tammy-Lynn giggled. "That just might - might - be 'nuff time to wash these honeys." She fondled her tits through the silk negligee she wore, and Maria laughed.

Tammy-Lynn was a short, slender blonde woman who would best be described as 'elfin'. Long, long legs lead to slender hips and an ass that, if not as 'sexy' as Maria's, was almost inhumanly 'cute'. Her hands and feet were tiny, dainty little things, and her waist was so infinitesimal as to almost be non-existent. She had a face that had a pointed chin, a tiny snub nose, full, bow-shaped lips - and the biggest, bluest eyes anybody had ever seen. The entire package was crowned with a mane of long, platinum blonde hair that fell halfway down her back. Everything about the petite woman was built to the same tiny scale...

...except her tits. Her massive, firm tits, the size and shape of volleyballs, whose huge, thick nipples made it clear that they were 'all natural', as their owner boasted.

"Well, we could..." Maria started, with a grin... then wound down, an odd, puzzled expression coming over her face.

"Maria?" Tammy-Lynn asked, concerned. "Are you..." Then her own face took on an expression exactly the same.

Then both women grunted as if pole-axed, reeling backward until they found individual piece of furniture to hold them up, as memories artificially repressed were released by a 'time-lock' command. Memories of the rest of their instruction, of seeing the other person in the house of Martin Richards as he showed them the form of his daughter on a gurney, a machine detoxifying her blood as a respirator helped her breathing...

"Pr.. Professor Benson..." Tammy-Lynn gasped, staring at the gorgeous golden woman who was staring back with the same horrified look.

"Tom..." Maria/Mark whispered, mind spinning in confusion and conflicting emotions. Slowly, she sank to sit on the floor, her voice thick as she spoke. "Oh... my... God..."

Now both men could remember the rest of what had gone on in the house. Mark/Maria could now remember finding Tom in the living room when he'd obediently followed Martin's instructions. He could remember the two of them being led to the basement, where they'd been shown Linda recovering from what they'd done to her. They could now recall giving Martin the names of all the other girls, so they could be 'rescued' as well.

And they could remember themselves picking out the bodies they now wore, describing them in complete detail as Martin asked each of them to describe their own fantasy woman.

They could remember more, too - like the fact that most of what they remembered of that day was 'false' memories. Martin hadn't given them new names and personalities - they'd picked ones for themselves, choosing names and backgrounds that matched their fantasy women. They had then been given the command that had made them forget, until now - and one other one.

Martin had instructed them to 'lose' themselves in the roles of the women they now were. As time went by, they'd become less and less who they were, and more and more the person they thought they should be. They'd been instructed to lose all their inhibitions, and use their 'programming' as an excuse to keep them from getting too guilty about letting themselves do and become whatever they wanted to in their new life. Effectively, the real personalities of Mark and Tom had been locked away in a small vault in their minds, and what had gone through the first couple of days of transition had been forced-disgusted versions of the inner personalities that had gone ahead and become whatever they'd wanted. By the end of the third month, every trace of Mark and Tom was gone from their lives, replaced by new personalities - those of Maria and Tammy-Lynn.

Now, those original personalities had been set free, exactly one year to the minute - to face the truth behind the year's punishment they'd suffered.

Everything they'd done was... voluntary. They hadn't picked men at random - they'd found men that they liked. Their false persona had kept them from feeling 'bad' about it at the outset, by allowing them to blame it on their 'forced needs' - but the truth was, they'd made the choice openly and freely - just as they had everything else. Every aspect of their new lives was based on one simple principal - whatever they wanted. All the subterfuge of the 'programming' had been to get down, past the layers of society- and parent-instilled senses of 'right and wrong', to get around their ingrained feeling of 'homosexuality' if they sex with men, to avoid all the blocks between their true self's desires and the real world.

Now all that programming just... vanished. And in an instant, two personalities merged into one in each of them. The woman they'd become merging with the man they'd been.

"I... We..." Tom/Tammy-Lynn stammered, trying to find words to express what she was feeling. She looked down and stared at the huge tits thrust from her chest as if seeing them for the very first time.

Mark/Maria understood - she was feeling just as confused. Part of her was screaming that everything was all wrong - that she was a woman, and that she'd let herself become a 'real' woman, actually falling in love with a man and willingly fucking and sucking him whenever she could.

Another part of her was remembering how good her new life felt. How wonderful it felt to snuggle up to Randy, to make love to him, to talk to him, to go out with him, to suck his...

Mark/Maria began shaking, holding her hands against her head as her mind tried desperately to integrate the two halves of her personas. One male, one female. One uncaring, cruel, the other one cheerful and loving.

But the one that had been so uncaring and cruel had been that way because that had been the way he'd been treated - raised by a father who was abusive to him and his mother, who'd 'taught' him that each man was the only important thing in his life, and everything else was just there for his benefit or to cause trouble for him. Mark had come to believe that as being the way of the world, the only life there was to live....

...but Maria hadn't had that upbringing - instead, the year she'd lived her entire life in had been one in which she and other people had lived in a state of 'grace', each one doing their best to make the others feel good.

Utter selfishness - and utter generosity. Exact opposites - and her mind struggled, having to choose what to believe now, what to live with.

Shuddering and shaking, the two year-old women lay n the floor of the apartment, trying desperately to drag a coherent personality from the war-zones of their own minds....

* * * * *

"So the Cabby looks thoughtful a second " Matt told the story, barely able to keep as straight face as he unlocked the door to the apartment. "and said.. Holy crap!"

It took Randy a second to realize that it wasn't part of the joke - then he looked around the apartment, and he blinked.
"Whoa "

Their apartment had been redecorated.

Though the women had lived with them for a year, they'd barely made an impact on the apartment itself. In fact, aside from being fantastic company, they could almost have been ghosts - they hadn't had any personal belongings, and aside from their surprisingly small wardrobes and the few items in the bathroom, you would never have known that anybody had moved in with them.

That had just changed.

New furniture replaced the so-so furnishings that the guys had bought just to have someplace to sit, and now.. things filled up surface space. Like most men, Matt and Randy had never bothered to buy much in the way of decorative items - though they'd spent a small fortune on the 'home entertainment system'.

Now, a glass coffee-table on a marble pedestal sat beside the white leather couch in the center of the room. On the couch were black silk pillows, and the end-table bore a colorful vase with filled with flowers.

"I'm afraid to find out how much this cost " Matt said to Randy, slowly putting his keys down on the small table that now sat inside the door, adorned with three thick candles of different heights tied together with dried rush-grasses. He looked at the gold-framed oval mirror hung over the table, then looked around the apartment again, noticing the sudden profusion of mirrors that had become part of the decor.

"Starting to regret giving them credit cards?" Randy asked, swinging the door shut behind him, looking equally stunned.

"I thought I heard your voices..." A warm, rich voice said, and as drawn by magnets, the two men's heads swiveled to the end of the hallway as Maria emerged.

Their jaws dropped.

They were used to how she usually dressed. Neither woman were - or had been - clothes-horses, and Maria usually wore a short skirt and a tight top, simple, sexy, yet somehow managing to avoid cheap or slutty. Her hair, a gorgeous curly mane, she paid little attention to...

..or had.

Now, the woman before them could have been somebody else altogether.

A pair of black velvet pumps with gold trim enclosed her feet, and the slender, gold-toned five-inch heels pushed her heels upwards, emphasizing the curves of her perfect calves beneath the black nylons she wore. Nylons that disappeared under the knee-length burgundy skirt she wore that hung loose around her well-shaped knees and rose to cling tightly but elegantly to her hips and ass. Above the skirt was a white silk blouse whose front didn't meet in the middle to be buttoned, but rather was two triangular sections, the right one of which crossed over to clasp at the left hip with a gold clasp, creating a pleated collar that fell into a 'vee' that displayed a tasteful hint of her cleavage.

Her face was exquisitely made up, and her hair had been elegantly and professionally styled. A pair of small, gild-rimmed glasses rested on her nose.

"Maria...?" Randy said, stunned.

She grinned easily, crossing the newly redecorated apartment with a strong-yet-sexy stride. "Hi, honey." She said in a very becoming, husky voice, kissing him passionately - yet somehow different then she usually did. It was more... decisive, rather than her old 'just kissing' sort of kiss. Like she'd told herself 'I'm going to kiss Randy now, and do a hell of a job at it.', rather than 'going with the flow'.

"I.. hate to ask..." Matt said, looking around. The real question on his lips was 'what the hell's going on', but what he said was his second question: "How much is this setting us back...?"

Maria grinned at him - and even that was different. Instead of the usual sort of.. well, almost 'mindless' grin, this one was almost wicked, and her eyes showed more...

...more...

...personality? then usual in the grin. "You're right - you'd hat to know." Matt 'gulped'.

,aria laughed - and it was a rich, full sound, again somehow more... personable then the rather giggly one she usually used. "It's all right, though - you don't have to pay for it."

"I don't..."

"Gentleman..." She said, taking a couple of steps backwards. "I give you the new head of personal shopping at LaTourney Boutique on Fifth." She spun in a slow circle, showing off her new look.

"You got a job?" Randy asked.

Maria grinned - again, with more then just a simple grin in the expression. "What? You expected Tammy-Lynn and I to spend all day, every day to sit around and just wait for you guys to get home?"

She wiggled her finger at him. "Since you refuse to just stay home all day, you've brought this on yourselves."

"I... don't mind." Randy assured her, shaking his head. "It's just.. this is all so.. sudden."

Maria sighed with a grin. "I guess you could say that Tammy-Lynn and I had a revelation this morning. We... we discovered we weren't happy with what we'd become. We were... caricatures."

"Uh... come again?" Matt asked. He kind of like the way the girls had been...

Walking with her new - and damned sexy - stride to the couch, she sat down and leaned forward to pat the new chairs on the other side of the low glass coffee-table. Sharing a look, the two men sat down.

"Tammy-Lynn and I used to be... very different people then the ones you know." Maria said, obviously looking for the words. "Something happened this morning that.. rather sharply brought back the memory of who we'd been before we met you - and we found that we didn't like them very much. We had been very self-centered, very... well, almost cruel, I guess. Uncaring."

The two guys shared a look, finding it hard to believe.

"Then..." Maria continued. "We realized that we'd swung too far the other way in compensation when we met you - for the past year, we've had no opinions, no desires - we just lived each day doing whatever we could to stay just the way were. Which was.. well, 'two-dimensional' is the best way I can explain it."

The guys had to admit that it was a fair description of the extremely uncomplicated personalities the two women had.. or used to have.

"The realization of what we'd allowed ourselves to become almost drove us insane." Maria said, quite calmly, startling the men. "We didn't think we could live with what we'd become - and we found that we couldn't live with what we'd been before, either. We were almost ready to just.. give up. Let our minds snap under the confusion and self-disgust."

"What.. what happened?" Matt asked, trying to deal with all that had apparently happened in the space of a few short hours.

Maria grinned. "A few things. The first one was - each of us realized that we're utterly gorgeous." "Huh?" Randy asked - then blushed. "Not that I'm arguing, but..."

Maria laughed. "This might sound weird - but Tammy-Lynn and I each think that our own body is the most utterly perfect female body in existence. Do you know how much of an ego boost there is right there, in not being able to find a single flaw in your own body?"

'Once you get past the mind-block of dealing with being a woman...' She didn't add - they wouldn't have understood that at all.

"Second - we realized that we were incredibly happy with you guys. You might find this hard to believe, too - but neither Tammy-Lynn nor I find any other man on the face of the planet sexually interesting anymore."

The guys blinked - that was there ego-boost of the day. Maria didn't explain, of course, that they had never found any other man sexually exciting, either - and the only reason they found these guys exciting was that, having already 'sampled the wares', so to speak, they were already 'hooked'.

Besides...

"We also realized that we had no idea what we'd do if we didn't have you guys anymore." Maria continued. "We realized that you were the only people in our life that we've ever come to truly like and respect."

She paused, then took a deep breath.

"We never told you this, but Tammy-Lynn and I knew each other before we 'met' at the party..." "Well - that explains why she moved in so quickly..." the guys thought at the same time.

"...and we had been... well, partners in Crime. Tammy-Lynn and I..."

"Speak the Devil's name..." A voice said from the foyer, dragging all three eyes to the front door as Tammy-Lynn swung it shut behind her and took off the trench-coat she was wearing... they guy's jaws dropped and their eyes almost popped out of their heads.

Tammy-Lynn was wearing denim. But it wasn't the sort of outfit you could pick up anywhere - because it consisted of a micro-mini denim skirt, with a pair of denim-patterned spandex 'suspenders' that barely covered the nipples of her almost completely exposed tits. White leather 'Cowboy' boots with six-inch stiletto heels graced her feet, and a holder with a chrome-plated cap-gun sat on each hip, held up by a wide leather belt cinched tight around her tiny waist. A white ten-gallon hat was tossed on the small table, obviously part of the 'outfit'.

"These are my working clothes." She said with a grin. "Y'all lookin' at the new feature dancer down at 'The Booby Hatch' - Boobs Cassidy, The Cum-Dance Kid."

"You... you're kidding!" Matt stammered in laughter.

She struck a pose. "Nope. I'm packin' a pair of forty-fives..." She hefted her huge tits with a grin. "...and shoot with a pair of thirty-eights."

In an admirable fast-draw, her hands dropped to her 'guns' and whipped them out for a quick pair of shots before reholstering them.

"Actually, this is just the outfit I wear in my second job as waitress there." She said, pulling off the holster and letting it drop beside the table. "For my three-times-a-day act, I got a more 'demure' set of cowboy duds that's more enticing to see me strip outta." She walked over to Matt with a smile. "I gotta warn you, though - spending all day getting drooled over makes a girl very... very.. horny..."

She snuggled into Matt's lap with a wicked grin. "So - what're we jawin' 'bout?"

Maria nodded. "I was telling them that we knew each other, way back when - and that we had done something wrong, and a man caught us and decided to punish us."

"Yup - twice, as a matter of fact." 'Boobs' agreed. "The first one was pretty bad, 'though we didn't realize it 'till today - he basically made us live out what we'd done to some other girls."

"Oh?" Randy asked.

Maria nodded. "This isn't easy to say - but for the past year, we've basically been hookers - trading sex for a nice place to live and the comforts of 'home', rather than money."

"Hey, now...!" Matt protested.

"No - it's true, and you don't have to feel guilty. You guys were being nice, and didn't know that, deep down, we were just taking advantage of you..." She paused. "Well, that's how it started, at least. See, that's one of the things we had to face this morning - our 'faked' interest in you has been very, very real for more than eight months now. that's one of the things that almost drove us over the edge - having to deal with the guilt of what we'd done to you, even if you didn't know it."

"But that's all over now, of course - that's one of the reasons we got jobs." Tammy-Lynn took over. "We need to build a sense of self-respect again, to begin to like ourselves. So - the jobs, the redecorating - these are all things we need to do, to start really 'living' again."

Randy nodded. "I understand - and I can't say that I'm upset. As much as we've come to like you girls, as much as we care for you - you were kind of... 'two-dimensional'. Our relationships might be a little more complicated now - but I think that could be a good thing, to."

"We hope so." Maria added.

Matt was frowning slightly in confusion. "Hang on - you said you were punished twice - what does that mean."

Maria sighed. "Well, the second one just started, really - as of this morning. And it'll probably last the rest of our lives."

Randy looked worried, as did his friend. "What - what is it?"

"The cruelest, most devastating punishment of all." Tammy-Lynn said, sharing a deeply meaningful look with Maria.

"Yes." Maria agreed. "You see, he took a couple of cruel, uncaring, heartless pieces of sub-human scum... and gave us a conscience."

The two men frowned slightly - then their eyes softened as they realized just what punishment that was. It was a curse and a blessing - and even though the women might never do anything even slightly 'wrong' in the future, they'd spend the rest of their lives atoning for something that - at the time - they hadn't even thought was 'wrong'.

"Well - this is enough deep, meaningful conversation for one night." Tammy-Lynn said, breaking the rather gloomy silence that had settled over them. "Me'n Maria got ourselves jobs - doesn't that deserve a little celebratin'?"

Matt smiled. "Yes, I'd say it does."

"Good - then us 'ladies' will get changed, and you can take us out to dinner." Maria said.

Matt leered theatrically at 'Boobs Cassidy', wagging his eyebrows. "I don't know - I think you look fine as you are."

She laughed and slapped him lightly on the arm, then followed Maria towards the hallway, a big grin on her face.

Before, the two women had been forced by an outside 'programming' to act as if they 'enjoyed' their new lives. Now, an inner force that was much stronger would make sure they lived out the rest of their lives in their new identities...

...and the fact that they found that they actually did enjoy every aspect of their new lives, including the near constant sex, in no way did - or ever would - silence the tiny voice each of them heard, a nagging, horrified voice that tried to tell them that what they were doing was sick, perverted, disgusting. No matter what happened in life, they'd have to push past that small voice to get on with enjoying what they had.

The voice of the man they used to be - and the never-ending horror of what he had brought down on himself....

"For 'tis sport to have the engineer Hoist with his own petard."

-Shakespeare, Hamlet, III, 4

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: Feeling lonely, one collage man accepts an invitation from his female friend for a vacation, only problem is that he is to take the place of one of her female friends who has canceled.

Holly And Ivy

By Gunslinger

You want to know the most ironic thing about the whole affair? I, quite literally, asked for it.

It all started on December fifteenth. Well... not really. I am - or, rather, was - a history major, and I can tell you that things like this come about from a chain of things. But the fifteenth was the day I set everything in motion by opening my big mouth, so that's where I'll start.

It was coming up on Christmas, and the Campus was clearing out faster then a Chinese Fire-Drill. My roommate had already packed up and headed south for the holidays, and everyone else was either following him towards the sunshine, or resigned themselves to spending the holidays with their family. The only people who weren't busy preparing to abandon the town was a few 'shut-ins', people with no friends, family or money.

What really frosted my balls was the fact that I was one of these 'poor unfortunates'. Face it - being a Polish kid who's six-seven, skinny enough that slipping through manholes covers is a serious danger, and having no athletic abilities whatsoever doesn't exactly add up to 'Mr. Popularity'. Tack on thick Coke-Bottle glasses, a funny accent, and the sort of personality that makes a person decide to become a historian in the first place, and you get a first-class out-cast by university standards. That took care of the 'friends' - and being an orphan who had no relatives at all took care of the 'family'.

Since the Holiday Season is worse then usual for folks like me, I was pretty down in the dumps - so I did what I always did in that type of situation.

I went to visit Holly.

Holly Iverson was much, much more than my best (and only) friend. Oh, everybody on campus knew Holly - the girls all wanted to be her, and all the guys wanted to date her. She was gorgeous, sure - hair the color of spun gold, an hour-glass figure with an extra hour thrown in up top, and legs that went on for ever, and then some. Guys catching sight of her ass wiggling past in the summer had been known to faint (from lack of blood to the brain...), and those blue eyes could reduce a man to protoplasm in seconds.

But that glorious chassis housed a brain that was as equally astonishing. She was a triple-major, and that barely put a strain on her. She was the top in her class in every class she had, she was a cheerleader and spirit-team captain. She was involved in the yearbook, the campus radio station, the student parliament and everything in between. She was so ultra-perfect that she could let her natural compassion show through - being seen with the likes of me couldn't even put a dent in her popularity or image. She was the spirit of Mother Teresa housed in the brain of Einstein, in the body of a teen- aged boy's wet dream.

So, just the sight of her could perk up my spirits - and more. Even though I knew that our friendship would never become anything else, I couldn't help but fantasize sometimes. And, on that particular day, I opened the door to her room to find her busy packing for her holiday trip. She was bent over, her back to me - giving me a eye-popping view of her perfect, firm ass in it's short little plaid skirt.

Then, having heard me open the door, she spun around on her toes - allowing me a mouth-watering view of her cleavage, the creamy swell of her triple-D breasts clearly visible from my point of view. I knew I was gaping, and started to blush furiously.

"Hey - it's the proverbial Ten Foot Pole!" Holly said and quickly bounced to her feet - which caused two firm, round parts of her anatomy to bounce in a very, very fetching manner. She gave me a quick hug - and laughed at my embarrassment.

"Relax, Harry - sit down and cool off." She said with her bright smile, and I grinned in embarrassment and sat on the one chair not in use as a 'staging area' for her packing work. Holly knew the type of effect she had on me - and men in general - and refused to become upset with me for ogling her like that. In fact, she took it as a kind of compliment, coming from 'a nice guy like me', as she put it.

"So - come to help me lug my stuff down to the station?" She asked with a smile. "If you are, you're nearly six hours to early - although, miracle of miracles, I'm nearly done packing."

I admitted that I hadn't - I told her the real reason for my visit.

Immediately, her smile vanished, to be replaced with a look of commiseration - and, dammit, that looked as cute as hell on her too. But I knew she was sincerely sad for my, which helped, and she sat down on the bed and patted me on one knobby knee, 'tut-tutting' and making me feel better.

That's when I opened my big mouth.

"I wish I was going to Washington too, instead of moping around the campus for the next two weeks."

Holly sighed. "I wish you..." Then she wound to a halt, and odd look coming into her eyes. "Hey - wait a minute. How would you like to come to Washington?"

I rolled my eyes. "Yeah, right. Not only has the open lists been filled for a month now, I couldn't afford it even if there was space left."

Holly held up a hand. "no - wait a second. There was a last minute cancellation this morning. It's past the refund date, so it's already paid for, and we've actually been looking for somebody who wouldn't mind a free trip - but everybody has already made their plans, and nobody wanted to change them."

Hope soared. "Really?" I exclaimed. "I can't believe somebody dropped out - what happened?" "Her boyfriend proposed."

"Well, I can see why...." I came to a screeching halt. "Wait a second You mean the opening is on the girl's bus."

Those damned dimples appeared as she grinned, skewing my judgment. "That's right." "Well - that's no help." I groused. "The opening is only useful to a woman."

"Yup."

She didn't say anything else - just stared at me. I blinked - then caught on. I began to flush bright red. "no - no way, Jose. Don't even think about it "

She winked. "Hey, come on - haven't you ever seen that Marilyn Monroe movie?" "no way am I " I started hotly.

"Besides - I think it would be a riot having you for my roommate for two weeks." That brought me to a halt. "Uh your roommate?"

She laughed. "Of course - you don't think I'd just 'throw you to the wolves', do you? I'd be with you every minute, to help keep an eye on you."

"Uh, well I " I hesitated, actually considering it - then shook my head. "Naw - there's no way I could pass myself off as a woman."

She made a gesture with her hands. "Actually - I think you can, with a little help. But you'd have to decide really, really quickly - we only have a couple of hours, and would have to get started right away."

No. I couldn't.

Then again - two weeks with Holly, right by her side. Sharing her hotel suite....

...seeing her in her skimpy unmentionables...

"Uh... what do I... what do I have to ?" I asked, blushing - and, laughing, Holly set about making me into a woman.

I can't describe most of what she did, because I'm not even close to her level of intelligence. All I know is that it was 'a little something' she was working on for her dissertation.

It was a compound that could add flesh to the human body. Primarily to enhance women's busts, but also for various other cosmetic purposes. Since I had such a skinny body, she thought it would be perfect for me.

The first step was both simple and complex - getting rid of my body hair. I did this with two packages of those pink Bic razors, lots of women's shaving cream, and a bottle of Nair. Meanwhile, Holly ran out to get a few things while I denuded my body of its thin layer of hair. I'd never been particularly hirsute - but it felt damned strange to get rid of all my hair. The very feeling of the air moving over my now bare skin was definitely different - and for me, very embarrassing.

When Holly returned, one of the things she had brought was a CD she'd borrowed from a friend. It was one of those 'subliminal training' things, this one designed to make the listener (who would, normally, be female) to feel more confident in herself, more comfortable with her femininity and place in the world. A 'self-help' thing, in other words.

But it, by itself, wouldn't be enough to help me get over my awkwardness of what I was doing, as it wasn't nearly that powerful - which is why Holly had also raided the drug-supply of the medical building for a powerful hypnotic agent. She injected me with this and had me lay on the table in a trance while the CD played into my ears via headphones. While I was out of it, Holly went to work on my tall, skinny nude body - and I was glad for the fact that I was unconscious at the time, because modesty and embarrassment would have probably made me forget the whole thing if I'd been fully conscious at the time.

When I awoke - it was to a whole new body.

And, as soon as I sat up, I knew that something had gone wrong.

Now, when Holly had told me that there was a way to make me look like a woman, I was under the complete assumption that it would be as an unattractive woman - but she tried to 'reassure' me that I could look quite feminine.

Now, for a guy to be told that he could look like a 'great' woman, that's not what we want to hear. I'd made sure that she understood that I wanted to be just feminine enough to pass without undue notice.

So, when I sat up and felt the heavy weight on my chest, I was concerned - and when I looked down and saw two massive, medicine-ball-sized breasts thrust firmly and roundly from my chest, I was flabbergasted.

"What the..." I asked - barely even noticing the way my voice sounded, higher and definitely more feminine.

Holly blushed. "Sorry..." She said. "Somebody came to the door, and it took me awhile to get rid of them. By the time I got back - that's how you were." She sighed. "It takes a minimum of twenty-four hours before I can undo the extra addition - and it might get you talked about if you suddenly dropped a half-dozen cup sizes while in DC

"But... but... they're huge!" I exclaimed. "I mean... how big are these things?"

"Holly shrugged. "As best I can figure, you're in the triple-'G' range - and I don't have any bras big enough for that. I'm afraid that you're going to have to go braless for the next few weeks."

Well, I didn't have to like it - but, oddly enough, I found myself acting as if I was proud of these massive, heavy tits - once I was over my initial shock, that was. Don't get me wrong - even if they felt great when I touched them and their artfully sculpted, massive nipples, I was really that enamored with them. It was a 'side-effect' of my 'programming' - I was forced to act proud of my body.

And a feminine body it was. With the work that Holly had done, I would have been a tall, slender, 'cute' young woman with long black hair and a cute, if not terribly memorable, face. That was what the plan had been for, after all - but the mistake with the tits really threw off that look, as the eye was inexorably drawn to those massive mounds and, to a lesser degree, to the 'sexier-than-I-wanted' ass - which I now also had to act as if I was comfortable and proud with.

Holly then spent an hour teaching me the basics of make-up and jewelry, so I could be more comfortable with my new persona. I flatly drew the line at having my ears pierced, so we went with clip-on earrings, but other than that I learned all the necessities of how to get myself ready for public as a woman - including getting dressed in some of the clothing she'd scrounged for me.

My outfit for that day was simple - a pair of white, cotton briefs, a white cotton blouse and a black skirt that hung to just above my knees. Originally, the set had been planned with a bra, but with my massive new chest, that was out of the question - as it was, the blouse barely buttoned over my huge tits, and the material strained disturbingly tight over my new bust, outlining my massive new tits and the large, thick nipples they boasted. And I couldn't even act shy or ashamed about the look, but proud.

I also put on my first pair of high-heels. In the form of knee-high leather boots with a slight platform and four inch spiked heels. It was awkward as hell, and I spent quite a bit of time just trying to get used to walking passably in them - thankful that I couldn't manage anything slightly sexy in the form of a stride, but getting enough competency to look natural. They turned out to be no real big deal, compared to the way walking made me feel - it felt so very strange to adjust to the way my fuller ass swung and sway, and the way my huge tits shifted and bobbed with every step.

Of course, there was much more to the masquerade than just the clothes. There was my voice, for instance - while in my trance, Holly had slid a special plastic tube down my throat, over my vocal chords. It cut off the lower range of my register, leaving me with a higher and weaker voice - not that I was a masculine bullhorn to begin with, which was one of the mild shames I'd had to live with my entire post-puberty life. Then there was my 'vagina'. It was disturbing not to look in the mirror and see my cock hanging between my legs - and equally disturbing that I couldn't see my crotch at all without a mirror, thanks to my massive tits. But as odd as it was, I wasn't worried - after all, it wasn't permanent. Using a special compound, Holly had 'softened' the flesh of my entire pubic area - then pushed my balls up into my body, creating a (disappointingly) small bulge similar to that of a 'real' woman. It felt strange, like there was an internal pressure, but it did the job. She also forced my cock back in on itself, carefully shaping the then-malleable flesh and letting it set so that it looked just like a cunt. It was the exact same, of course - my head was now all the way back at the back of my 'cunt', whereas the woman's clit (which it looked like I had, but was really part of the base of my shaft sculpted to look that way) was at the front. Also, I wouldn't 'lubricate' or cum like a woman - not that I was planning to find that out, of course.

There was also the contacts that she got for me. Not only did it allow me to dispense with the thick, horn-rimmed glasses I usually wore, it changed my usually watery blue eyes into a rich, startling green.

I also got long, red fake nails to make my hands look more feminine, and we carefully chose a new persona for my while I practiced walking, the disconcerting 'click-click' of my heels keeping time.

We finally decided that I should play the part of 'Ivy Holliczenistan', a Romanian exchange student. There was no way anybody would be able to tell that my accent wasn't right, and it would help explain all sorts of things that otherwise could trap me in my story.

As the hours seemed to race by, I was getting more and more nervous about my impersonation - but was acting more and more in character. I couldn't help it - as we fleshed out 'Ivy', my programming forced me to act the way she would act, to say the things she would say. Or, rather, to act and talk in the way I thought she would. I'm sure you've been in the situation where you've thought that you could do or say this or that, but various things - modesty, embarrassment, good judgment - held you back. Well, I no longer had that luxury. The instant a thought occurred to me. like 'If I were really Ivy, I would probably' - then I'd do it. I couldn't help my self, and that loss of control was even scarier then looking like a woman.

Then the fateful moment came - it was time to go. We gathered up our luggage and called a cab to take us to the terminal. The head of the Women's bus didn't even question my being there after Holly talked to her, and I had no way to show my near panic as the programming denied me an outlet. We handed off our luggage to be loaded (mine was all borrowed, of course), and then it was time to join the other girls, who were already on the bus.

It was a really weird, split feeling as we handed off our luggage and climbed on the bus. I was nervous and uncomfortable and embarrassed - but thanks to my hypnotic programming, I was completely unable to act that way. I was driven to act in a 'confident, feminine' manner, 'consistent with the woman I appear to be' - just like the self-help CD specified. So, I climbed aboard the bus with a genuine-looking smile, following Holly's luscious ass, and immediately fell into a type of easy camaraderie that women shared.

Men would never have been as open and easy with one another as these girls - and presumable, all women - were. Even though we'd just met, it was as if we were somehow old friends, just because I was a 'girl' like them.

Now, of course, programmed or not, I didn't know enough about women to do a perfect 'act' as a woman - far from it. In fact, I started making small mistakes from the very first second. But that's where my 'cover story' of being an exchange student came in handy - anything unusual I did, even right down to the way I moved and sat, was attributed to being part of my background as a 'Romanian' - and the girls immediately set out to correct all these flaws.

It was mortifying to be instructed in the 'feminine arts' - but my 'persona' took to them like a fish to water. In no time I was soaking up tips on how to sit, how to talk, how to move - with promises of much more thorough instruction after we were off the bus. When the talk slid easily into the discussion of the best ways for me to attract guys - and which guys to attract - I felt like dying of embarrassment.

Instead, I giggled and joked along, apparently not only completely comfortable with the discussion, but somewhat excited - just as the woman I appeared to be would have been.

I was amazed to find that women, when by themselves, were much more explicit about sex than men ever were. Not crude - their language was cleaner than most guys at a ball game - but very, very detailed and passionate. The best way to do this, the nicest way to get that, how good this felt or how bad that tasted. I was also amazed at how much they knew about what a guy liked, whereas most guys (myself included) really didn't know a damned thing about what really turned a woman on.

Interestingly, although they had an amazing grasp of what men liked, there seemed to be an unspoken agreement not to use that knowledge too efficiently. It was like I'd walked in on the middle of some ages-old game or contest, and all the women in the world were in on it, finding little ways to manipulate men and try to play little games and tricks.

By the time the bus pulled into the Washington Terminal that afternoon, I understood that that was exactly what it was. I'd had no idea that this was going on beneath the surface of women's Machievellian minds. From the covert glances that I got from Holly, I understood that, once I was male again, I was to pretend that this had never happened - I wasn't to abuse the sacred trust that had fallen on my by finding out this secret. I also now understood why women had such disdain for the true 'sluts' out there. Not women who just liked sex, but the ones who liked it so much that they didn't even play the game at all. After all, this was the most primal, basic currency women had to spend.

Men's sexual urges were hydraulic in nature, making them much more driven than even the most nymphomaniac woman. So, women had to ensure that they would never 'give away' the 'cure' for that need without securing an emotional investment of some sort first. Oh, sure - women made mistakes all the time, letting themselves be fooled into the belief that the investment was there when it wasn't, and a million other ways. But it was the effort that counted over all, with the actual finding of men willing to 'pay the toll' being the grand prize.

It was a revelation that left me stunned - even if I wasn't able to show it.

Then I stepped off the bus - and into full immersion in the art of being female - because the guys from the other bus were waiting for us, to help us take our luggage to the hotel and settle in.

Now, you might remember that one of my original goals had been to be as 'unremarkable' as possible, for many reasons. One of those being to avoid the attention of men. Now, that plan hadn't worked out exactly as planned, especially with the screw-up that gave me the pair of huge, firm tits that strained the fabric of my blouse. Still, I hadn't made any conscious preparation for dealing with guys, and even the rather explicit talk on the bus about getting me laid hadn't made me face the possibility of men being attracted to me - I was so deep in denial on the subject that I would have needed an elevator just to see daylight.

So when the short, muscular guy offered to help me with my bags, actually seeking me out rather than being one of the guys who waited to be paired up with the 'dregs', I was shocked silly.

Not that it showed, of course.

He introduced himself as 'Steven W. Garret, at your service' - complete with a little bow. He was one of those short guys who was as wide as he was tall, bulging with muscles in places that I didn't even have places. Despite his small stature, I found myself realizing that he was actually quite handsome, a strong, friendly face under tousled sandy-blond hair and a good-natured type of personality.

Of course, even as I introduced myself with a smile, using my alias as Ivy Holliczenistan, I wanted to run and hide from this situation. But the programming was too strong - instead, I reacted as a woman who found a guy cute would react.

I was horrified. I'm no idiot, but somehow this situation had never dawned on me - although, in retrospect, it was incredibly obvious. By cutting a corner by using that self-help subliminal CD, which was tailored towards normal, heterosexual women, I'd guaranteed that I would appear to have the same interests, urges and actions of a confidently heterosexual woman, no matter what my inner thoughts and feelings really were.

I really didn't know what to do - as Harry, that was. Maybe that was the worst part - a part of my brain I couldn't shut off kept deciding what 'Ivy' would do - and that's what I did. As we walked the two doors down to the hotel, I laughed and giggled and joked and talked, giving every indication of a young woman having fun with a guy who was doing his best to be charming. It was obvious from the first second that I laid eyes on him that he was trying to 'make time' with Ivy - and Ivy was responding! I was horrified, disgusted, embarrassed, ashamed - and a thousand other mixed emotions that I couldn't express, hidden under a false facade.

Only (and this made it a thousand - a million - times worse) it wasn't a complete facade. I had never been popular, had never had this kind of attention lavished on me, never had anyone interested in me before - and part of me was enjoying the attention, and was 'eagerly' playing along, willingly helping that rogue part of my brain that was now in control of a body that, while mine at heart, no longer looked like me at all.

So, when he invited me to dinner - I agreed.

I couldn't help it - and a part of me didn't know if I wanted to help it. Holly was surprised, of course - but she had no idea just how deep and strong the programming in me was, thinking it was my own choice to 'play in character'. She couldn't know that the programming was so strong that I couldn't break out of character at all, even when I was alone with her. When she pulled me into the bathroom to make sure that I was comfortable with this, she couldn't tell that it was still my programming (making me act like a young woman having 'girl talk' with her best friend) that responded instead of the real person inside Ivy's huge-busted body.

So Steve and I double-dated with Holly and a foot-ball hero named Luke. I was mortified inside as we laughed and joked over dinner, helpless to stop flirting outrageously with Steve the entire time. Holly quickly became concerned, wondering what the hell I was doing - she even dragged me off to the bathroom a couple of times. But (in character) I assured her that I wanted to do this, and there was even that damned grain of truth as I explained that I found it exciting to have attention lavished on me. Knowing my solitary, sad existence, Holly came to believe that I was willing throwing myself at Steve, eager to become involved in the strangest homo-sexual relationship for the next two weeks, just to get the attention I'd been denied my whole life. As smart as Holly was, she was emotional enough to believe that I would do that so eagerly, quickly and willingly - but, then again, women had always been more 'touchy-feely' than men, and on top of that, she knew the statistics on the number of college students that experimented with bisexuality at this age, and so actively joined in on my 'game', not knowing that she was adding to my torture as she asked leading or provocative questions that my new controlling persona answered with a giggle and a wink.

I was all too aware of every step of my seduction of Steve. The way I stood and walked and moved, drawing attention to my feminine body and its firm, full ass and monumental tits. I unbuttoned the top two buttons on the blouse to display mouth-watering cleavage. I applied more lipstick and perfume. I found excuses to bend over in front of him, excuses to touch him and have him touch me. I tossed my head to throw my hair about my face, I kept looking at him out of the side of my eye and glanced away with a smile when he caught me, I pursed my lips with each bite I took - these and a thousand other little 'tricks' that the girls had taught me on the bus ride down and never believed I use. Now, I was using every one for the maximum effect, and it was no surprise to anyone in the group - not even me - when I invited Steve back to my room. Holly - believing that this was what I wanted - even 'helped' by arranging to spend the night in Luke's room. Which, I'm sure, was a decision with an ulterior motive on both of their parts.

So, in no time, Steve had paid the headwaiter of the restaurant a hefty sum for a take-home bottle of bubbly and two glasses, and we were in my hotel room on the couch, finishing the last of the bottle and feeling a little tipsy.

Even now, I'm not sure how it happened. We were sitting there, in companionable silence - then suddenly...

...I was kissing him. That's right - even though I'm still fuzzy on how it really got started, I clearly remember that it was I who initiated that kiss, pressing my lips against his, lightly at first - almost hesitant.

Then his strong arms slid around me, and the kiss deepened, becoming more passionate.

I was horrified, disgusted - and enjoying it thoroughly. Although the admission struck me to my very soul, it was true - no matter how disturbing it was to admit the fact, physically the kiss was nothing short of spectacular. Our tongues danced with slow passion, deep and tender, and he gave everything he had in that kiss - and I was responding in kind. I'd never had much experience in kissing, and certainly never one as long and passionate as this. Yet, even though it was a 'him' instead of a 'her', in every other way it was the type of kiss I'd longed for, and deep inside I felt warm and secure and desired - which only drove my inner turmoil deeper and stronger, confusion that I couldn't even begin to express roiling around in me. My stomach was turning over and seemed to be inhabited by a colony of butterflies - and yet, only a tiny portion of that was from confused disgust. Much more of it was from nervous anticipation and even - mental shudder - delight.

Then his broad, strong hands were fumbling at the buttons on my over-filled blouse - and I not only did nothing to stop him, but I shifted myself to give him easier access without having to break our passionate lip-lock. As his strong fingers undid the pearl-colored bits of plastic, I cursed the hypnotic controls that kept me from being able to stop - while filling hideously guilty for enjoying every instant of what was happening.

Then he had my blouse open, pushing it gently back to expose my huge, perfect breasts to the gentle glow of the candlelight.

"Steve " I found myself whispering, my voice husky with simulated emotions - I thought. "Please - tell me you like how I look "

"I love how you look, Ivy..." He whispered back. "You.. you're gorgeous".

I felt the strangest flush of warmth at the realization that he meant it. He really, really meant it.

Then my hands were full of the soft flesh of my new breasts, and I lifted the medicine-ball sized globes in offering to him. He accepted, his strong hands cupping the firm masses of flesh as he bent his head. He lightly squeezed my new tits, and I shuddered - then I had to bite my lower lip to hold in a soft moan as his thumbs made small, circular motions on my now-engorged nipples, sending bolts of pleasure through my system.

There was no holding back the second moan when his lips and mouth found those nipples though. Sucking gently on my swollen left nipple, he continued to fondle and caress the taut mound of my right breast at the same time, and new emotions and sensations flooded me at the touch. It felt fantastic, better than anything I'd felt in a long, long time....

...and I lost it completely. Ivy, my new persona, took over completely, reacting in exactly the fashion that any young woman with a handsome young man would.

Smiling at Steve, I slowly slid downward to my knees in front of the couch, my long-nailed fingers going to his waistband. Unzipping his fly, I reached in and extracted Steve's now-hard cock. I was amazed at the size of it, and deep inside felt a pang of shame at my old, rather pathetic male appendage that was now serving a completely different purpose.

With one last smile at Steve, I bent my head and took his cock into my mouth. Using every tiny trick that I'd ever heard of, I proceeded to do my best to give him the most incredible blow-job in history, bobbing me head rhythmically up and down his shaft as one hand worked his balls. I teased him mercilessly, bringing him to the edge, then slowing down.

Finally, he couldn't hold back any longer - he came in my mouth, and I eagerly swallowed his hot, salty cum, feeling it slide down my throat in a wave. Licking my lips clean, I leaned back.

"So, lover-boy..." I cooed. "How quickly do you think you can be ready for this?"

And I pulled off my skirt and panties, revealing what appeared to be a completely natural cunt.

His reply came in the form of lifting me in his strong arms and carrying me into the bedroom. Laying me on the bed, he hurriedly undressed and climbed on the bed, his cock already hard and throbbing again. With a whispered endearment, he positioned himself between my legs...

...and penetrated my 'cunt'.

I cried out, arching my back as he filled my, straining my artificially-formed womanhood to the limit. I'd become so excited by the blow-job that I'd oozed pre-cum, and I was lubricated enough that there was no pain, only pleasure. He began to fuck me hard and deep, and I screamed out in pleasure at the sensations. It might not be as good as it was for a woman - but it was better than anything I'd ever had and I writhed in pleasure.

We came at almost the exact same instant, and he had no way of knowing that all the cum that gushed around his cock and down my legs wasn't his. And I was in no position to tell him as I gasped in pleasure at the intense orgasm that ripped through me - and I found that my only regret was that I couldn't experience a true woman's orgasm.

Panting slightly, Steve rolled off of me and said. "Well, pretty damned "

* * * * * "...cool, huh?"

Feeling disoriented, I blinked at John, then looked around the room, trying to get my bearings back. Looking down, I saw the sim-suit covering my own broad, almost overly-masculine body.

Then the worlds seemed to steady down.

"Holy shit, John - that was fuckin' amazing!" I said, shaking my head in disbelief. "It all felt so.. real. Like I really was 'Harry' - and then 'Ivy'. I don't fuckin' believe you made this thing for me, man!"

My best friend grinned and flushed. "Hey, I figured that I owed it to you. I mean - I really freaked out on you when I first found out that you were a transvestite, man. I mean, my best friend, the big foot-ball hero - a gay cross-dresser? Blew my mind... and I guess I blew up on you. So this is my way of saying sorry, buddy."

I held up my VR-gloved hands. "Hey, man - you may have reacted badly at first, but you've dealt with it better than most people have since then. My Dad still hasn't talked to me since I came out."

I looked over at the jury-rigged VR machine he'd built me for my Christmas present, still shocked. When I'd come home and found this monstrosity - eight Pentiums modified, jury-rigged and wired together around a strange-looking chair - sitting in my guest bedroom, I'd been upset. Now, I didn't care if it was an eyesore. It was just goddamn unbelievable.

"So - no matter how many times I run it - while it's going, I won't realize I've done this before?" I asked.

"Yeah - but there's a lot of variation in the program. That was just the basic routine - you can alter some of the physical parameters for Harry/Ivy, change the local, even have sex with two or three different characters. The time-limit's a bitch - but you don't want to get hooked on the game and starve to death in VR, right? So - the fifteen-hour limit is kinda necessary. Just make sure you shit and piss before going in."

"man - this is just... un-fucking-believable." I said again. "Really, man - I don't know what to say."

"Hey - no problem. This thing's gonna make me a fortune soon, but I can't even begin to market it yet." John said.

"Why?" I asked, amazed - this thing blew everything else on the market and in production completely off the map.

Contriving to look ultra-innocent, John said "Well - there's some silly law that says I have to talk some poor sap into using it for at least five hundred hours total so I know it's safe "

"You moron " I laughed. "Well - unless I get tired of the damned scenario, you'll have no trouble getting those five hundred hours racked up. Three or four months, I think, and you'll have them."

John laughed. "Hey - why don't we get something to eat and rest up. Then tomorrow I'll show you why I'm sure that you won't get tired of the machine."

"Oh, don't do this to me." I begged. "What is it?"

Holding up a box of CD-ROM's, he smiled. "The second VR program for the machine - how would you like to be a businessman that pisses off a witch with a sexist comment?"

I smiled. "Hot damn, buddy."

I sprang for pizza - it was the least I could do for a friend who'd given me the best god-damned Christmas present any transgendered person got, short of free, complication-free surgery.

But damn - I can hardly wait until tomorrow....

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: When the tables are turned, one man finds that he has become victim to the same altering chemical as his latest victim and she has plans for his transformation that he is not going to like.

Horrificed

By Gunslinger

Idly scratching his scalp through his sleep-tousled mane of wheat-blond hair with one hand, and his other wrapped in a near death-grip around a mug of coffee, Matt Layton staggered into the bathroom.

His lean, somewhat sharp-featured face, never more than moderately handsome in the best of times, was contorted by a wide, jaw-creaking yawn - and the fetid, whiskey-scented breath that he exhaled after the yawn only served to confirm the massive hangover indicated by his red-rimmed, blood-shot brown eyes.

Reaching towards the mirror-fronted medicine cabinet above the sink, Matt winced at the slightly green-tinted, unshaven face reflected back at him in the mirror. Late last night - or, more accurately, earlier this morning - Matt had gotten back from a 'sales convention' in Las Vegas. At least, that was how he defined his monthly trips to anybody who bothered to ask. Aside from everything else he did during the weekend trips, Matt drank almost constantly - but, at thirty-one years of age, his body was considerably less happy with the after-effects of a weekender bout than it had been at twenty - or even twenty-five, for that matter.

Fishing three extra-strength aspirins and a Dramamine from the cabinet, Matt carefully didn't look at his reflection a second time as he shut the cabinet and quickly downed the quartet of pills, followed by a healthy slug of the strong, bitter black coffee. Leaving the half-emptied mug sitting on the sink surround, Matt shrugged out of his thick terry-cloth bathrobe, and plodded barefoot across the cool tile floor to the large, roughly triangular-shaped shower stall taking up the one corner of the large bathroom. Pulling open the translucent door, he stepped inside.

The Plexiglas enclosure was large enough that it took more than a full stride to reach the corner where the taps were located. Behind him, he heard the door swing shut.

Somewhere amidst the pounding of his 'morning after' headache, the vague thought formed that he couldn't recall the shower door ever having sounded quite like that when it shut... but it was a small concern, and he didn't chase after the thought. Instead, he just reached out, hands closing around the white plastic of the Victorian-style taps. He twisted them sharply, and the three shower heads, one in each corner of the stall, came to life.

What gushed out of the gleaming chrome-plated shower heads, however, was not water.

It was somewhat thicker than water - almost like a gel, and considerable force was behind it, making it squirt out of all three showerheads in thick, gooey streams.

It was a sort of pale golden color, almost like liquid honey, but its odor was slightly metallic, the faint scent rapidly filling the enclosure.

It was an unusual, slimy substance - and one that Matt was all too familiar with.

"No!" He shouted, yanking the taps back and forth - but they turned much too easily in his hand, no longer attached to the wide-opened valves that had obviously replaced the original faucets behind the tiled wall.

As thick streams of golden glue splattered over him, matting his hair and running down his slender body, Matt turned and staggered towards the shower door, his footing uncertain on the now-slick tile under foot. He reached the far side of the shower stall and shoved against the thick, Plexiglas door

- but it refused to move, even when he began battering against it with his body. It was locked.

Someone had turned his shower into a trap.

"No!" He shouted again, this time with something close to a sob, as he battered himself against the unmoving door. The entire purpose of the three-head system was to provide such an even spray that the user could be anywhere in the large stall, and even move about, without ever completely leaving the spray. There was no place in the stall he could go to avoid the gushing goo...

He continued uselessly throwing himself against the door for a moment, until his feet slipped out from under him, and he went sprawling. The drain in the center of the stall floor had obviously been closed off, and the thick gel-like substance was already nearly a foot deep. Spluttering, Matt slipped and slid through the thick substance, shouting and cursing in a hysterical tone of voice.

He had good reason to be hysterical - after all, Matt, more than anybody, knew exactly what the substance he was thickly coating his body was, and what it could do.

What it would do...

...to him.

"Lemme out...!" He shrieked, panting as hard as if he'd just run a mile flat-out. "Gotta get out! Gotta! Before... before " had a hypothetical observer been present at the strange scene being played out, they might have been forgiven for misunderstanding Matt's next words. For one thing, the acoustics weren't exactly ideal, given the strange, 'splattery' sound of the goo as it continued to gush. Then there was the somehow almost organic sounds of Matt's movements through the goop - sounds that might have been written out as such comic-book type oddities as 'sploosh' and 'glorp' and 'splut'.

In any case, the hypothetical observer might have thought they heard the slender blonde shout out the words 'before I'm horrified!'

Which probably would have left our good friend, the hypothetical observer, scratching his hypothetical head in hypothetical befuddlement.

Now, on the other hand, had said observer been aware of the fact that the 'goo' was, in fact a semi- organic, synthetic, oxygen-rich, sucrose-vitamin-protein 'base', as well as the fact that the base existed to transport and nourish billions of microscopic (or 'nano-size') machines, and was fully aware of what the 'nanobots' were constructed/programmed to do, than he might have been able to figure out what it was that Matt had really shouted.

As may be - that shout was the last even vaguely coherent sound Matt made for some time, as after that, he gave up coherency in favor of mindless shrieks of sheer - and, yes, horrified - panic.

Eventually, the screaming ended, to leave only the sound of the gushing goop filling the stall - and that, in turn, also ended eventually, leaving the bathroom in a complete silence that last for several hours.

A silence that, in the end, was broken by the 'tap, tap, tap' of high heels striking tile floor.

Without a doubt 'high' was the correct description of the slender, six-inch black spike heels adorning the gleaming black-leather boots. Fitted with a continues series of buckles and belts running up the outside of each boot, the 'footwear' could be - and was - carefully adjusted to be the next best thing to a second skin of supple leather, reveling just how well-toned and shapely the legs were that the boots enclosed from foot to thigh.

A short stretch of 'fishnet' separated the black leather of the boots for the matching material of the 'panties' the woman wore, the thin straps of the bikini-style garment riding across her broad, well- rounded hips. Above that, her naturally slender waist was further compressed by a many-buckled corset in the same style as the boots. The same styling continued on with the opera-length gloves that rose almost to well-toned shoulders, and with the buckled 'neck corset' surrounding her slender throat. More fishnet material 'covered' the flesh between corset, collar and gloves, doing absolutely nothing to hide her full, dusky, and quite remarkably firm bosom from view.

Above the collar lay a face of ultimate sensuality. Likewise dusky of tone, the broad-cheeked face was surrounded by a thick, curly mass of raven's-wing black hair that hung nearly to the small of her back. Her lips, full and sensual, were glossed a deep red, and long lashes veiled her dark, seductive eyes as she gazed at the shower stall, now filled to the ceiling with the thick goop.

In the center of that brim-filled enclosure of golden slime floated the Matt Layton - and as the woman entered the room, the figure began to thrash and writhe, mouth opening and closing in an utterly futile attempt to scream through the thick, highly-oxygenated sludge filling his lungs and throat.

"Hello, Matt..." the leather-clad woman said, a mocking tone in her rich, throaty voice. Lifting her right arm, she revealed herself to be holding a small device of some sort in the gloved hand, and now she pressed one of the buttons mounted on the unit.

At first, nothing seemed to happen. It took a minute or two for the slow drop in the fluid level to be noticeable. Slowly draining through the now-opened floor drain, it would obviously take some time before the stall was completely empty.

Rather than simply stand there and wais, the exotic, leather-clad woman walked over to the far corner of the room, where a chair was nestled behind the bathroom door. Pausing long enough to peel off the leather panties she wore, she settled herself into the chair, and passed the time masturbating.

Though the motions of her leather-clad fingers in her moist womanhood ran through the gamut from nearly tender to downright frantic, the look on her face as she masturbated repeatedly was far from one of pleasure. Indeed, the twist of her mouth indicated distaste - and the look on her dark eyes as she stared continuously at Matt's thrashing form was barely short of murderous.

Eventually, the last of the thick golden liquid had drained away. Kneeling, bent over, in the center of the stall, Matt hacked and coughed thickly, slowly - and quite unpleasantly - emptying his lungs of the thick, embryonic-like fluid he'd been 'breathing' for the past few hours.

Grimacing in distaste, the leather-glad woman pressed a second button on the control. When the shower heads came to life, Matt started with a low, thick cry of fear - but what spouted from the shower heads this time was, in fact, water. The cold water sluiced down over Matt's soon-shivering body, cleaning away the last of the goo that coated his body - and, with it, the last of Matt's body hair, firmly embedded in the golden slime. When the water finally cut off, Matt climbed awkwardly to his feet, denuded body almost blue with chill.

"Charlene... you bitch...!" Matt forced out through chattering teeth. "Get me.. some antidote... right now!"

"Oh,. I think not..." The woman addressed said, coolly, as she pulled her panties back into place around her womanly hips. She stared at Matt with a sneer. "...and, it's Mistress Charlene to you, slave!"

Matt's jaw dropped.

"What...?" He stammered, shaking his head in confusion. "No - you have to obey me, bitch! You have to!"

"Once upon a time, I was Charlene Cassidy." She told him, with an evil chuckle. "After my research into medical nanites was perverted and turned against me by my lab assistant, Matt Layton, I was his helplessly obedient whore-mistress. He forced me to not only service men who wanted to be dominated, but to use my dominating personality to pseudo-willingly capture more women to add to your stable of whores. Those orders - to keep adding more, and a wider variety of, whores still have to be obeyed... and, as you can see, I'm obeying them. After all, as Matt Layton made abundantly clear to me, I'm now - and forever - 'just' Mistress Charlene, obedient slut-bitch whore-mistress."

She sneered at the figure in the shower stall - who stared back with the horror of dawning realization on his face.

At the time, he'd just wanted to make the humiliation deeper, had wanted to drive the fact of her enslavement home. Only now, in retrospect, could Matt see the effect on the orders he'd given her to always obey 'Matt Layton' - because, as he'd made it abundantly clear to the woman who'd once been his boss, you stopped being the person you once were after being 'whorified'...

...a process which he, himself, had just undergone.

Well, the initial stages of, anyway - and that had been bad enough, to know that every cell in his body was now home to a tiny machine that could alter it. That was bad enough, since anybody could accidentally 'program' him, now that he was vulnerable... but he hadn't considered the possibility that one of the few people in the world who knew about the nanites could consciously and decisively make use of it.

All of which culminated in an apt understatement:

"Oh, shit..."

"Precisely..." Mistress Charlene said, smugly. "No - step out of the shower and dry yourself off. You will make no effort to harm me, run away, or do anything you think I might not want you to do."

As she spoke, she pressed yet another control on the device she held, and helplessly, matt moved to obey as the nanites filling his brain tissue re-routed neural activity around the parts of his mind that controlled what was nebulously defined as 'free will'.

"How.. how did you...?" He stammered in shock, even as his hands grabbed up a thick, fluffy white towel and began to run it over his naked, shivering body. After all, his programmed mind assumed that boasting about how she had beaten him would qualify as something she would want...

He was right.

"Matt so enjoyed taking a woman who used to be an ethical medical researcher and turning her into... this." She said, waving a gloved hand at her sexy body. "Well, I was ordered to 'pervert' the men I dominated, having them do things for me they never would normally have considered. Given that, I could - and, obviously, did - purposefully seek out clients who I could then dominate into setting this up. I'm not aloud to 'hurt' Matt Layton... but he never specified that I couldn't order men to do something he might not want. Oh, certainly, it couldn't be done so that I would initiate it, that was outside of the bounds I was given - but it was Matt, himself, who activated the trap, not me.

Which brings us back to... you. The person who might once have been Matt Layton, and so protected from me, but who is now..."

She trailed off, grinning wickedly. Indicating the thick, fluffy white bathrobe he'd discarded what now seemed an eon ago, Charlene ordered him to pull it on,. Which he did obediently did.

Turning, Charlene strode from the room, looking back over her well-toned shoulder. "Come, slave..."

Helplessly, the man who had been Matt Layton could only obey.

* * * * *

He had the entire drive into Las Vegas to consider his incipient fate.

Dressed only in the bathrobe that felt entirely too soft against his recently denuded skin, he had nothing to do but think. Mistress Charlene had ordered him to get into the car, and he'd fought with every fiber of his being to refuse, to run away... and, had, instead, simply walked out the front door of his house, down the walkway, and climbed into the car. As per Charlene's orders, he's sat down, buckled himself in - and, from that point on, remained 'still and silent' as she drove towards the bright lights Sin City.

He was as utterly helpless to resist as... well, as Charlene had been when he'd 'captured' her.

It wasn't a pleasant thought - but, then again, none of the thoughts he was having were pleasant.

What made the situation so truly horrifying was that he knew what was to come. Oh, not the individual details, but the over-all picture was utterly clear. Perhaps, to some people, the 'unknown fate' was what they feared the most, but in his case, he knew his fate all too well - and, deep inside, past the 'block' that kept him from acting on free will, he wanted very much to scream.

Oh, he wasn't an idiot. In fact, in many ways he was nearly a genius. Before giving it up to become a 'pimp', he'd been an up-and-coming research scientist, 'apprenticing' at a biomedical research lab.

He would have liked to think that it should mean he was smart enough to come up with a way out of this... but Charlene was at least as intelligent as he was, and she hadn't been able to escape her own fate.

She had, however, found a way to make him share in it - and the fact that she'd had them leave his house and then locked up behind them without bothering to take a key pretty well guaranteed that this wasn't just some desperate bid to scare him into giving her, and the other whores, their freedom.

This wasn't about release - this was about revenge...

* * * * *

Less than twenty-four hours after leaving The House as king of all creation, Matt returned to it as a helpless slave.

That's how he thought of it - 'The House', complete with the capitals. If you didn't know what it was, it wasn't a terribly impressive building - of indifferent architectural design, its one even vaguely remarkable feature was that it was fairly large. It had been fairly expensive, and he'd begrudged the cost, taken out of the profits his 'girls' were making him... but 'House girls' could not only charge more, but it made things easier and safer in the long run. Up until then, he'd been running his slowly expanding stable of girls as street-hookers, and aside from the downsides that came from that, there had always been the trouble of 'recruitment'. With The House, he'd been able to set up - or, rather have Charlene set up - a facility in the basement.

Still struggling - and failing - to impose his own will on his actions, he had no choice but to follow Charlene up the flag-stone path to the front door. Somewhat whimsically, he'd had it painted red after purchasing the house. Now, wishing he was allowed to at least shudder in anticipatory horror, Matt was led through that familiar door, and into the whorehouse whose purpose had gone from 'possession' to 'profession'.

The foyer/lobby and the sitting room were empty of clients. Though it was still a quite early Monday evening, that would have been surprising - if not for the fact that Matt knew the house didn't do business during recruitments, to lower the chance of detection. Since he'd already been 'dosed', he didn't really need to be taken down to the basement facility. Instead, obeying Charlene's orders, he followed her past the staircase leading to the upstairs rooms, and down a short hallway and through the door into the den that had been designated as the 'Employee's lounge'.

There, all the rest of his girls were waiting for him.

Including Charlene, he had a total of ten, and now, as they laughed and jeered at the person who was no longer their owner and boss, he was led to stand in the center of the room. The furniture had been rearranged for this momentous occasion, and once Charlene sat down in the chair reserved for her, he was completely encircled by the ten women.

This was it - the moment of truth.

His hair and nails would be the only thing he could be sure would remain the same, because the nanites couldn't do much with the 'dead' material. They could encourage increased, rapid growth of the living portions, but the effect wouldn't be immediate.

His bone structure was a little more malleable. It would actually stay the same, in terms of total weight of bone, by the nanites could stretch it or compress it, altering his shape considerably.

It was the soft tissue that the nanites could work the best on, however. It could increase or decrease soft tissue mass by a full fifty percent either way, allowing for a very wide range of variations indeed.

He wished he could beg. He wished he could plead.

He wished he could promise to release them all if they'd just release him. He wished...

...he could do absolutely anything at all.

Instead, he simply stood there, helpless and docile, awaiting his future's fate...

...and then Jenny, who was currently The House's 'biggest' girl at DD, and very popular with the clients, grinned evilly and held up a hot-pink bra with the largest cups Matt had ever seen.

* * * * * The door to the bedroom began to swing open.

Desperately, the individual who had until very recently been Matt Layton struggled against the control of 'her' brain, fighting to break free of the neural pathways the nanites had established - the pathways that ensured complete, utter, and unforgiving obedience, the pure submission to others that was 'her' fate.

It was an utterly futile struggle. 'Her' body caught in complete control of 'her' paralyzed mind, 'she' couldn't even have an involuntary 'panic attack' over the knowledge of what was to come. The massive, round tits on 'her' slender ribcage continued to rise and fall with the same, calm rhythm, and no sweat sprang from the smooth brow of 'her' altered face.

With a huge, brainless smile helplessly curving 'her' full, hot-pink new lips, 'Maggie Mountains' watched as her first 'john' entered the room.

He was an unremarkable man, in his mid-to-late thirties, reasonably muscular but carrying a bit of a belly. Dressed in a pale-blue button-down shirt and darker blue trousers, both of polyester, he could have been a janitor, or a delivery man, or any one of a hundred other like professions. He looked a trifle nervous, licking his somewhat over-heavy lips, his brown eyes darting around the room before finally coming to rest on her emphatic figure.

As per her orders, Maggie could do nothing at all, but simply sit there and watch him, 'her' tiny new hands curled in her lap.

"Uh... hi." He finally muttered.

'She' said nothing, huge blue eyes staring into space. He swallowed nervously. "They said you... that is, uh "

'She' did nothing. Said nothing.

Was nothing...

...but a toy for any man's pleasure.

"You see ?" Charlene said, stepping into the room, then closing the door behind her. "Exactly as I said. She doesn't have two thoughts to rub together. The penultimate bimbo, utterly compliant, without any of her own thoughts, urges or desires to get in the way of pleasuring you."

Walking sensuously over to the chair in the corner of the room, Charlene lowered herself into its embrace, crossing her boot-clad legs at the knee. With a graceful wave of her arm, the dusky-skinned woman indicated Maggie.

"Go ahead - tell her what you want to do."

"Uh, yeah " The man muttered, with a weak grin. Looking decidedly awkward, like a man waiting for the punch-line of a prank, he faced Maggie and spoke, his voice overly loud and his tone uncertain: "Come here!"

Maggie fought - and failed. Without any noticeable hesitation, 'she' rose from 'her' position on the bed, moving with a strange, somehow almost mechanical grace as 'she' walked across the room, 'her' wide hips swaying and swiveling. 'She' came to a stop in front of him, staring 'mindlessly' at his chest, (which was about where 'she' came up to), even while the male mind trapped within the emphatically curvaceous new body silently screamed and gibbered and begged.

Shooting a glance at Charlene - who made a 'go ahead' gesture - the man licked his lips again before issuing his next, slightly more authoritative command: "Undress me."

Maggie, of course, did exactly as 'she' was told - no matter that 'she' would rather die than obey. Still smiling brainlessly, 'she' helplessly removed the man's clothing one article at a time, showing no disgust, no anticipation - not even any apathy. 'She' simply and unemotionally.. complied.

"Well..." The man muttered, eyebrows wising, as 'she' knelt to remove his socks.

"Well, well, well..." The man said, with a chuckle as, still kneeling in front of him, 'she' finished the job by pulling down his underwear for him to step out of - which put 'her' staring with that vapid gaze directly at the limp cock hanging inches in front of 'her' reshaped face.

Considering that, the man's next command was more or less pre-ordained. Starting to feel confident that Maggie was as brainlessly submissive as 'she' was touted to be, the man reached down and ran his fingers through 'her' for-now short mass of wheat-blond hair... and told 'her' to suck his cock.

Seconds later, Maggie knew things 'she' had never wanted to know.

What it felt like to reach out and take hold of another' man's limp cock near the base. How it felt to wrap incredibly full, softly firm lips around that same cock.

The feel and taste of that cock in her mouth as gloss-slick lips and supple tongue began to work it into full erection.

The nanites couldn't give 'her' skill. Just as 'she' was wearing hot-pink sandals with negligible heels until 'she' could, over time, work her way up to the highest spike-heeled platform shoes, so would 'she' need time to become a truly skilled cock-sucker.

'Her' efforts, amateur as they might have been, were more than enough to serve the purpose of getting the man hard, however - and that, for the moment, was good enough for him.

"Okay - stop..." he said, his voice a bit breathless and husky.

'She' obeyed - literally, simply freezing in place. Chuckling, the man had to extract himself from 'her' enclosing mouth, his throbbing cock thrust proudly from his crotch.

"Get up. Get undressed." He ordered, gesturing at the bed. "Get over there and bend over."

Helpless to refuse, 'she' did as 'she' was told. Rising from 'her' crouch, the unwanted flavor of cock in 'her' mouth and on 'her' full lips, Maggie obeyed exactly as ordered. Standing in place, 'she' took off 'her' massive 36 GGG-cup bra and let it drop to the ground, then peeled out of the straining pair of matching, frill-trimmed panties. Enormous new bust jiggling and swaying, 'she' turned and walked over to the bed.

"Bend over and spread 'em, babe - I wanna stick it in!" The man told 'her', flushed with desire - or, at least, physical pressure.

'She' had no choice. Helplessly, 'she' leaned forward, impossibly round tits dangling from 'her' chest as 'she' spread 'her' shapely new legs.

Walking to stand behind 'her', the man reached out to grasp 'her' wide-rounded new hips, carefully positioned himself - and thrust his hard, saliva-slicked cock deep into 'her' tight asshole.

As the hard organ slid deep within 'her' virgin orifice, there was a little bit of pleasure and a little bit of pain, but what there was most of all was pressure, as 'her' unusually malleable flesh molded itself tightly around the intruding organ.

Moaning in pleasure, the man began to thrust into 'her', pumping hard.

'Her' body shook with the force of the hard ass-fucking 'she' was getting. 'She' bounced slightly on 'her' toes with each deep, fast thrust, and 'her' massive tits bounced and swayed widely as they dangled, almost painfully heavy, from 'her' chest.

Every once in a while, he reached forward, leaning over 'her' full, rounded ass so that he could give 'her' huge, unrealistically firm tits a good, hard squeeze - but mostly, he contented himself with fucking 'her' tight, slick asshole, working himself towards the pleasure he wanted.

To a stunned, screaming, and helpless male mind trapped within an outrageously proportioned body, it seemed to last an eternity, but in truth it wasn't very long at all. Grunting heavily, the man picked up speed and intensity for a few almost convulsive strokes, and then he arched his back and cried out as his cock exploded deep inside 'her' ass...

...and, exactly as 'she' had been programmed to do, Maggie reached orgasm at the same time.

As his cock pumped an average-sized load of cum deep into 'her' body, 'her' own cock, a piece of masculinity as outrageously proportioned as the rest of 'her' body was, femininely, all-but-exploded, a thick stream of warm, gooey cum blasting from the massive organs and spraying and splattering all over the black rubber bed sheets that covered 'her' bed.

"Man...!" the 'john' said, his cock slipping from 'her' tight ass with a slurping sound. He turned and walked over to his pile of clothes to get dressed. "That was wild!"

"I'm glad you enjoyed it." Charlene said, with a smile, as the man quickly pulled on his clothing. "I hope you'll spread the words to your friends. We're fairly new, but as you can see, we're well on our way to becoming the ultimate in a 'full service' bordello."

"No shit." The man said, glancing over to where the massive-breasted she-male whore was still bent over the bed.

Charlene glanced back as well. "Clean that up." She ordered Maggie.

That order had a specific meaning - and, with no choice but to obey, the huge-breasted creature who, even worse than being made into a female hooker, had been turned into an ultimate freak, bent down, opened 'her' outrageously full lips and began licking up 'her' own warm, salty cum from the bed sheets.

Behind 'her', Charlene opened the door, let the man out - and then leaned out into the hall, and with a tone ripe with smug satisfaction, called out;

"Next!"

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: A magic spell cast over a group of unwilling women is broken, and the master finds that he is now submissive bimbo willing to perform for men.

House Of Despair

By Gunslinger

Though his hard-planed face revealed nothing, Dominic D'Angelo's nerves quite literally tingled with excitement as he threaded his way through a minefield of rusting cans, broken bottles, and other pieces of urban debris that littered the patchy growth surrounding the decrepit old house.

There was nothing in the world that turned Dom on more than visiting 'the girls'.

Warped and weathered wood creaked underfoot as the lean, swarthy-skinned young man climbed the steps and crossed the sagging porch. Sheets of plywood, baring the faded remnants of 'Condemned' signs, covered all the windows, but the sheet that had replaced the shattered front door had been fitted with hinges and a looped hank of frayed nylon rope. Grabbing hold of the make-shift handle, Dom pulled open the door, wincing at the squeal of the old spring that kept the portal shut the rest of the time.

The high-pitched screech of the rusted spring was an effective annunciation of his presence, but there was no outcry from the inhabitants within. The sound of a TV was vying against a static-filled bray from a cheap radio, but neither sound was nearly loud enough to mask the thumping of his booted feet across wooden floor, much less the sound of his entry. The very fact that there was no sense of consternation as he entered a house that wasn't his only made that tingle of excitement all the more delicious.

Though creaky and in shabby disrepair, the house was still quite structurally sound, despite being officially condemned. Heavy boots thumping across bare, warped wooden floor, Dom made his way down the short hall flanking the flight of stairs leading up to the second floor - and found all three of the house's inhabitants in the 'Great Room'.

The name was a joke, of sorts. Originally, the first floor of the house had been divided into kitchen, living-room, dining-room, and study... but those original walls were long gone, their support functions taken up by TelePosts - rust-red extendable metal support columns, ugly as sin but effective. Now, aside from the walls flanking and supporting the stairs that formed the entrance hall, the entire first floor of the building was an open area with vaguely-defined areas for specific functions.

'The girls', as Dom invariable referred to them as a group, glanced up as he entered. Whatever the names on their birth certificates might have been, none of the trio used it now, and it wasn't really all that surprising, for there was little in common between the people they'd once been and who they had now become.

The names they now used were patently artificial - and, being so, completely suitable for the three women, for they themselves were hardly in their natural state. At first glance, somebody might have mistaken Rayne, Summer and Jewel for, if not triplets, then at least relatives, for there was a marked resemblance between all three. Though varying a few inches in height, they were all tall, with lean bodies that ranged from 'thin' to 'athletic'. The hair worn in three differing styles was the same shade of unnatural black, which was unsurprising, as it had come from the same batch of dye. The tight-fitting and/or skimpy clothes they wore were likewise communal property, as was the heavily-applied starkly-colored make-up each wore... and, for that matter, everything else the three women owned. Jewelry was cheap and garish, and shoes invariable high-heeled, and all three sported obviously enhanced busts that strained to escape clothing designed to show off the matching DD-cup endowments.

Though there was a variance of six years in the three women's ages, nobody would have known it from looking at the girls - and would have found it hard to accept that the oldest of them was only twenty-six.

Not that they looked old, really... but 'well used' was certainly an apt description. Truth be told, though Dom often made use of the three, sexually, he didn't find them nearly as physically attractive as they'd been when they'd first arrived in the city, fresh-faced and innocent.

What really turned him on, what got the old crank turning, what fired up his engine - was the utterly dead, incurious look of hopeless indifference they turned upon him as he entered the room.

It was this utter, uncaring despair and not the indifferently-offered and -performed sexual favors that led Dom to keep the three women as his own, personal harem... for the sexual arousal and satisfaction he got from them had nothing at all to do with their bodies, and little enough to do with their uncaring willingness to perform, other than indirectly.

He supposed he could have offset the cost of keeping in them in food, booze, pot and smokes by whoring them out... but that would have lessened the 'pure' flavor of what it was that he did want from them, and so he bore the cost of keeping the girls around with utter equanimity, for it was utterly worth it for what he got in return.

Utter bliss.

The bliss they provided him was unintentional, and they didn't even know he was getting it - for he had certainly never explained to them how he was feeding, quite literally, off their despair.

Not that he could have completely explained it, even if he'd had the urge, for he didn't understand how it all worked himself. All he knew was that it did work, and that it provided him an ecstasy that went much farther than mere physical sex ever could - and that none of it would have been possible if luck, fate, or the universe had not seen fit for him to find The Thing.

Not what anybody would call terribly imaginative, that was how Dom referred to it in his head, complete with capital letters: The Thing.

In speaking, it was 'his pipe', said with an uncaring little shrug.

Hanging in it's accustomed place on the leather thong around his neck, The Thing looked like nothing more than a small, stubby little pipe, intricately carved in ivory so old as to be almost brown, inset with a gleaming orangish-yellow metal along it's broad bowl and short stem.

In fact, when he'd discovered it, Dom had believed it was a pipe, and that's what the girls still believed it to be - which was unsurprising, since he not only had never disabused them of the notion, but made use of the fact that it could actually be used as such.

Unslinging the tattered backpack from one shoulder, he placed it on the old cable spool used as a coffee table. Filled with that week's 'supplies', it clanked, gurgled and rattled, and the three women drew near to sort through it.

As they did, Dom settled on the couch and withdrew The Think from under his shirt, and began to pack it with his 'special mixture'.

About an even mix of pipe tobacco and pot, his 'special mix' also included a very small, but potent amount of a non-toxic chemical who's sole purpose was camouflage. As he lit it with a wooden match, the mixture immediately began producing a fog-bank of dark smoke that swirled around him.

Used to the cloudbank of black smoke his pipe produced, the girls didn't even look up as he began puffing on the pipe... and, as always, also failed to notice what the smoke-screen was hiding.

Mingled in with the smoke was some darker, thicker substance, swirling and hard to differentiate from the smoke... but had somebody bothered to look closely enough, they would have seen that it seemed to be seeping from the very pores of the three women, and with each draw on the pipe, it was pulled through the bowl and down the stem into Dom's lungs.

Only the cast-iron immobility of his hard-angled face allowed Dom to hide the wave of ecstasy that set off tiny explosions of pleasure in his brain. More intense than any sexual orgasm he'd ever experienced, yet completely contained within the pleasure center of his brain without any physical component, the incredibly pleasure waxed and waned with every draw he took, The Thing somehow sucking the actual despair out of the women.

In a way, it was a kindness, for his weekly visit left them feeling slightly better about life and their places in it when he left... but he was farming them for that despair, and he was always careful never to take too much, which is why he'd set up a stable of three women, rather than just milking one. As it was, the hardest part was keeping himself from drawing too much - he'd never even come close to testing the limits of what The Thing could do, and had no intentions of ever doing so.

Fate, however... had different ideas.

How much despair was drawn from the women was regulated by how tightly he squeezed on a small button hidden in the carving - like a pressure-operated valve. As it was, he had to squeeze down on it with nearly all his might to get that thin trickle he 'stole' each week...

...but, this week, as he fought the urge to loosen his grip and, in turn squeezed harder, the carved valve under his fingers broke clean through with a sharp little 'snap'.

Instantly, the valve, which had never been open more than a tiny fraction, snapped fully open.

Dom barely had enough time to register what had happened... and then it was much too late, as his entire body seemed to freeze in position ,unable to move so much as fraction of an inch.

The thick 'smoke' issuing from each of the three women suddenly seemed to explode out of every pore. In an instant, all three women were hidden from sight, surrounded by seething, writhing columns of what might have been mistaken as dense black smoke, if not for the fact that the roiling columns remained in place around each form instead of rising.

For perhaps three or four seconds that seemed to stretch into infinity in Dom's perceptions, the clouds began thicker and denser...and then three very confused women stumble out of the writhing masses of palatable darkness.

"What's going on?" A blandly-pretty, fresh-faced young blonde demanded, looking around in fear and confusion. "Where am I?" Similar questions were being voiced by the other two young, innocent-looking women.

Dom recognized them, and recognized them well - for it was 'the girls', each of them looking as they had when he'd first seen them, right down to the clothes they were wearing... and, from their reactions and questions of each other, with their memories 'rolled back' to that time, as well, for they recognized neither each other nor Dom. Instead, afraid and confused, they fled hurriedly from the room, the house, and within hours, the city...

...and, therefore, nobody was present to witness what happened next.

The three columns of writhing 'smoke' began to spin clockwise around Dom, the masses slowly diffusing until Dom seemed to be in the center of a jet-black funnel from some strange tornado. There was no wind at all, and not a single piece of litter was disturbed by the swirling funnel's spin around where Dom sat, helpless...

...and then the dark, spinning mass imploded, slamming into Dom in the literal sense. The universe vanished.

Time, space, even ego stopped having any meaning whatsoever as pure, unadulterated ecstasy took over Dom's existence. There was nothing else but pleasure so intense that it even ceased to be perceived as pleasure, for there was nothing to compare it to.

It had no duration. It was an eternity in and of itself, no matter how long it might have actually lasted in objective, measurable time....

...and the cohesive entity known as Dominic D'Angelo ceased to exist.

* * * * * Sense-of-self return, not slowly and vaguely, but with an almost audible 'thump'.

It was the sound of a consciousness falling from the heights of ecstasy to the deepest depths of utter despair...

Granted an unknown and unknowable visit of pure, perfect pleasure, the simple return to mundane reality was enough to overwhelm all the senses, to totally occupy the mind. Shown the briefest view of heaven, reality itself could seem hell in comparison, and for the first few moments of renewed ego, there was nothing to be seen, heard, felt or known that for a moment that ego had known the purest ecstasy - and had been rudely returned back to reality.

As persona and personality returned, for the first time since childhood Dom felt like crying. Moistness filled his eyes, and the beat of his own rushing heart filled his ears. His sinuses burned, his lips quivered, and his chest felt heavy, as if enclosed with bands of steel...

...except, that as the initial surge of disappointment faded, that last symptom refused to fade with the others.

As the dark wave of despair loosened its hold, allowing other concerns to register, that fact made itself known, and, with a frown, Dom looked downward.

For at least four solid seconds, seconds that seemed to stretch out into an eternity, Dom quite simply refused to believe what he was seeing. His eyes were registering it with perfect 20/20 vision. His brain processed the information, interpreting the nerve impulses correctly, neurons firing to provide all the detail and implications that memory contained in order to place the visual stimuli in proper context - and for those four eternal seconds, he just refused to accept it. Regardless of what his eyes said, despite the sensations that confirmed the visual perception, he wouldn't believe it.

After all, he just couldn't, couldn't, be seeing... "Tits!"

The word exploded from his lips, propelled more by sheer shock than by the breath he suddenly couldn't seem to catch - and even that single word, short and sharp as it was, nevertheless was recognizably higher and somehow softer than it should have been, undeniably more in keeping with the impossibilities his eyes were reporting...

...except - was it 'his' eyes that were reporting it? For what the eyes saw were a pair of extremely large and undeniably firm breasts, the upper slopes bared by the plunging curve of dark red material. At the point of the visual horizon, the taut-stretched red fabric was further distended by the shape of large, frank nipples pressing against the material. Framing the creamy view of deep, well-rounded cleavage was deep, glossy black hair falling in casual disarray on either side, spilling over the slender straps holding the tank-style top in place.

Past the view-filling display of prominent pulchritude, the hem of a black leather skirt was just barely visible in the shadow of the impressive bust, and beyond that hem lay a pair of knees, each incased in black fish-net stocking. Past the bent knee could be seen the tops of black leather boots rising to just below that nicely turned knee.

All in all, a view that, along with the feminine sound of the cry that had burst into the air, argued that it was 'her' eyes that were reporting it.

"My god - I'm a woman...!" Dom shrieked, bolting to her feet - and if there'd been any doubt of the veracity of her screamed observation of the obvious, it came in that movement.

It carried her up - to stand atop the slender five-inch stainless steel heels of the gleaming leather footwear encasing her lower legs.

It caused the hem of her tight leather miniskirt to ride up slender, fishnet-enclosed thighs, pulling it tight across womanly hips and a firm ass.

It caused her huge new breasts to jiggle and sway, practically threatening to burst from the skimpy confines of her tank-top.

It caused the chromed hoop-and-chain earrings to jingle nosily at each ear, while the silky mane of glossy black hair swirled about her head and shoulders.

She was tall and lean and athletically built, well-toned without being overly muscular. Her hips were trim yet womanly, her derriere firm and pert. Her breasts, large and artificially round, were like a pair of honeydew melons on her long, lean torso, packed into a tight fitting top that bared her flat belly and showed off the silvered ring piercing her navel.

Her face, surrounded by a long, silky mane of straight black hair, was also longer and lean, with a narrow blade of a nose and gloss- red lips. Heavy eye shadow marked long-lashed eyes so dark as to appear almost black. Not even close to being beautiful, it was nevertheless an attractive face, leaning more on open if indifferent sexuality rather than softer sensuality.

In short, the woman Don had become was the synthesis of everything 'the girls' had left behind. Their innocence, their softer sides, their hopes and dreams and loves, all had departed with the renewed women when they fled - and what was left behind was now everything that made up the new woman standing in the center of the ruined room, hands tipped with long, blood-red nails running in disbelief over her long, lean new form.

In body - and in brain. Years of despair, of making themselves 'sexy' in exchange for the substances that masked or attenuated the despair for short periods of time. Years worth of skill walking in high heels, of moving in bored patterns of seductiveness, of almost indifferent attempts to incite lust - years worth of all this was distilled into the new woman, and it was magnified thrice over by being the extract of three separate women.

With a cry that expressed only a small amount of that despair, the new woman slumped almost boneless back onto the couch. For a long time, she stared sightlessly up at the ceiling, contemplating suicide.

The fear of death, and what may or not may beyond, was as strong in her as a woman as it had been as a man - she could toy with the idea of killing herself, but she knew that she couldn't go through with it, which only added to her deep despair as she knew she was condemned to an entire life time of this.

Of being....

...a woman.

After a while, she moved - but with the slow, almost indifferent movements of a person in no hurry to get anything done. Nothing would change. A minute from now, an hour, a day, a year... it didn't matter. It would all still be the same.

It didn't matter. None of it mattered.

Almost numbly, she reached out and wrapped a slender, long-nailed hand around a bottle of cheap whiskey and drew it to her. With every motion, she felt the shift and weight of her hug, melon-like new breasts - and even the hate and disgust and horror she felt at the feminine sensations was somehow muted by despair, for it was what she'd feel every time she moved from now on. The only thing she could do was cut those horrible new additions to her biomass off - and self-mutilation was as impossible for her to carry out as self-termination.

That was the crux of it, she thought to herself, glumly, as she spun the top off the booze and sent it sailing across the room. She took a long, deep slug of the amber liquid, welcoming the burning as it splashed down her throat. Enough booze, and she'd be numbed to her condition - enough 'numbness'. Over time, and perhaps she'd manage to 'unintentionally' drink herself to death, which was the best she could hope for. Male or female, she was a self-centered person, and causing herself physical distress or pain was beyond her, for in her view of the universe, she was forever the star attraction, even in a feminine fate. She would eat when she got hungry, for she had never learned to deny herself, and she couldn't starve herself to death. She would sleep when tired, would bath occasional, would in general take care of the new body she hated to possess - for she didn't know how to accept discomfort. She'd trapped three women in lives of despair because all she knew how to do was gratify her desires - and now, no matter how much she wished otherwise, she still desired to live, still desired to avoid pain or discomfort whenever possible. In that, she had trapped herself in the same situation she had trapped 'the girls'.

Two-thirds of the bottle later, Dom's flat, incurious stare slowly shifted from the opposite wall, dead eyes swinging towards the source of a sound that had vaguely penetrated a haze formed more of apathy than alcohol.

"Who the fuck are you...?" She finally asked, her voice husky and almost emotionless as she stared at the two young men standing in the warped doorway.

One of them was of about average height, but bulky and broad-shouldered, and it was clear he used the same half-inch-long electric razor attachment on both reddish-brown goatee and the hair on his head. The second man, taller and leaner, had a narrow, acne- scarred face and surprising electric-blue eyes, his sandy-blonde hair hanging causally long and loose around his narrow shoulders.

"I'm Josh, and this is Chris." The bulkier of the pair said, gesturing to first himself and then his lean friend with the kind of casual arrogance that youth brought.

The introduction barely registered on Dom - the question had been more habit than any actual interest. Who they were, what they wanted - she couldn't really care less.

The same habit made her offer her own name, even as she was lifting the bottle to her lips, cutting it short on the final syllable.

"Hey, Dominique, nice ta' meetcha." Josh offered, brain naturally interpreting her answer in the way that suited what he was expecting, given what he saw. He tried a boyishly engaging smile, failing to notice it went by her without any more of an impact on her than his mistaken assumption about the name she'd given. "So, where are Rayne, Summer and Jewel?" "Gone."

The two young men blinked at the curt answer - but took it in stride, for it wasn't far different then what the three women they'd expected might have said, in a similar situation.

"Oh..." Josh said - obviously the more outgoing of the two, and hence the spokesman. Chris, for the main part, seemed content to just stand there, trying to exude intensity with the self-important and mostly self-deceiving persona that only he truly bought.

"Uh.. the girls, they, uh... sometimes smoke a joint or two with us." Josh finally said.

Completely disinterested, Dom shrugged, and gestured at the pot on the spool/table in front of her.

"Knock yourself out." She said, uncaring, She went back to contemplating the bleak existence fate had thrust on her.

The two guys shared a look. Rayne, Summer and Jewel had been less than enthusiastic, to say the least - but this chick was... well, about three times worse.

Still, if she didn't mind if they smoked her pot...

Since she was slumped in the middle of the couch, the guys really had no choice but to split up, one sitting on either side of her. Barely even seeming to notice their existence, the tall, lithe woman with the massive tits just took another hit of the bottle as they guys made themselves comfortable, pressing against her slender-but-buxom new body from either side.

Rolling up a joint, Josh sparked it to life. Taking a long, hard hit on it, he then held it in her direction. When she made no move to take the fragrant tube of dried green material, he passed it across her to Chris - and in doing so, only somewhat inadvertently pressed his arm across her spectacular new bust line.

Aside from moving the bottle out of the way so that his arm didn't impede her ability to take a pull, Dom didn't react in any way.

As Chris took the joint, Josh started to bring his arm back to his side - and then with a noticeable hesitation and an obviousness he didn't even aware he was telegraphing, he instead 'just happened' to let his hand come to rest on one fish-netted knee.

Again, the buxom raven-haired woman didn't react.

Not that Dom didn't notice the hand on her knee... but compared to the fact that she was now the life-long owner of a feminine knee, what did having a man's hand on it matter? She wasn't enjoying his touch - well, not more than on the faintest, purely physical level - and it was certainly nothing she would ever have asked for... but then, she'd never asked to be turned into a huge breasted woman, either, now had she?

The hand remained there until the joint was passed back across her, with Chris this time taking the opportunity for a quick press of the forearm across her tits - and again, she didn't react. Josh used the hand he'd had on her knee to take a quick toke, while supposedly 'unobtrusively' shifting in his seat on her right-hand side... and laying his right hand on her right knee. Then, when he passed the joint back to Chris, it was done by passing it behind her head... and once Chris had taken it, Josh 'just happened' to drape his arm around her neck.

She took a last pull on the bottle, then tossed the empty receptacle aside.

When Josh's hand dipped lower, now pressing firmly against the mostly-bare upper curve of her big, firm left tit, she made no objection.

So he was 'copping a feel'. She had to put up with just having those huge tits, with their weight and their movement and their sensations. What could one little added, slightly pleasant sensation matter?

It couldn't. It didn't.

Nothing mattered any more.

Abandoning what he thought had been 'subtle', Josh slid the hand down inside the top, cupping the massive, firm breast and giving it a light squeeze.

Dom barely even blinked.

"Do you mind if I do this?" Josh prompted, a bit unnerved by her continuing lack of response. "No." She replied, dully. "You can do anything you want. I don't care."

The two men's eyebrows rose at the declaration.

"So..." Chris said in open disbelief, "If I wanted to bend you over that table there and fuck your brains out - that would be just fine with you?"

She didn't want to get fucked... but, deep in the black depths of despair, getting fucked seemed to hardly matter enough to even worry about. In her mind, she was already 'fucked', and but good. Waking, sleeping, sitting, standing, smoking or fucking - it really made no difference, because she was always going to be female, no matter what it was she was doing, and nothing she could do would ever change that fact. How could she possibly care what was done to her in addition to that, when just contemplating the misery of a feminine fate took up all the disgust, horror, shame and fear she had to give?

"Whatever." She said, the definitive 'non answer' that neither agreed nor disagreed, but left it open to the listener's own predisposition.

There was absolutely no doubt that Chris and Josh took that as permission. For a second, they both stared at her incredulously, then shift that incredulous gaze to each other...

...and then, slowly, they began to smile.

In what seemed next to no time at all, they'd stripped her down to nothing but her boots and stockings - and while she didn't help, she didn't resist, because she just couldn't bring herself to care. Two pair of hands eagerly pawed at her body, and the only movements she made were to position herself more comfortably for the changing pattern of groping. Hands on her ass, hands on her legs, hands on her massively round boobs - it was humiliating and sickening and disgusting, but a mere drop in the bucket compared with having the very body they were groping.

"Wait, wait..." Josh gasped, and Chris rose and took Dom's hand, planning to pull her up from the couch. "Before you have a go at her, I want this slut to suck my cock."

"Go for it man..." Chris said, with a little shrug. Rolling up another joint, he lit it up and stood off to one side, lightly stroking his already hard cock to keep himself ready.

"Suck me, slut - suck me off good!" Josh told her.

That, by itself, wouldn't have caused her to suck his cock, because she didn't care enough to even go to the effort of leaning down - but when he took his hand and pushed her head down into his lap, she didn't resist. Opening her mouth, she let his hard manhood between her gloss-red lips.

Since it was easier to comply than argue, she surrendered and did what he'd asked, wrapping one hand around the shaft of his cock and bracing herself with the other as her head bobbed up and down - but her motions were indifferent, almost mechanical, as she didn't care if he really enjoyed it or not. She was just doing what she had to in order to get it over with - and when he finally came, spurting his hot, thick man-juice into her mouth, the simplest thing to do was swallow his cum.

"Shit - a blow-job's a blow-job, I guess." Josh said, letting her sit back up. "Good enough, but not worth writing home about." Dom, quite literally, couldn't care less.

Then it was Chris's turn. Unresisting, she let herself be pulled up from the couch and moved towards the cable-spool 'table'. "Wait." She said, dully...

...and then she pulled a battered and grimy cushion from the couch and placed it over the table, caring more about being comfortable than she did about what she was getting comfortable for. Almost submissively, she let herself be bent over the table. She moved to keep her huge tits from being squashed by leaning far enough forward that they hung over the table, but Chris had to put his hands between her thighs and gently spread her legs wide, because she couldn't even be bothered to do that much for him - just as she couldn't be bothered to resist the motion that left her spread-legged and ready.

Seconds later, Chris's cock plunged deep into her tight new cunt.

The physical sensations she'd experienced from their groping had been just enough to get her body to work up some lubrication, though she was hardly fully aroused - but sopping wet or barely dry, it would only have mattered had it been immediately painful, since that's the one thing she wouldn't simply accept unresistingly. As it was, though, there was a certain amount of pleasure - so she simply held up her hand before Chris got going.

"The joint?" She suggested, dully - and Chris passed it to her.

Her face completely blank, she took a hit on the joint as Chris began to fuck her.

She didn't moan or gasp, or thrash or writhe. The only motion came from the natural rocking action that came from Chris's pounding rhythm, causing her huge tits to bounce and sway. Calmly smoking the joint, she unresistingly let herself be fucked hard and fast, making absolutely no effort to 'get involved'.

Even her orgasm, when it hit brief but sharp, didn't cause her to cry out, for compared to the pleasure she'd gotten in 'sucking despair', it was little enough - and compared to the mind-altering pleasure that had come during the transformation, it was nothing at all. She simply continued smoking as Chris worked himself to his own orgasm, pumping his seed deep into her womanhood.

"Damn - a 'dead-ass' fuck." Chris half-complained, pulling his slowly softening cock free of her and turning to look for his clothing. "You could have put a little effort into it, bitch."

She didn't even bother to shrug in response as he pulled herself up from the table, feeling the new sensations of being a 'well-fucked woman' - and not caring.

"Whatever." She repeated, numbly.

"I 'spose it's a 'better than nothing' fuck." Chris admitted. "If you can't get better elsewhere, it'll do."

"So you really don't care if we fuck you, or have you suck us off?" Josh said, still trying to wrap his mind around the depth of her utter indifference. "I mean - can we come back and fuck you whenever we feel like it?"

She shrugged - and then, the only thing she did care about spoke up in her mind, and she said: "As long as you keep me in booze and food, you can do whatever the fuck you want with me."

So deep was her despair, so certain of the utter horror of her new fate, it actually seemed a good deal to her - and the irony of that only added new flavors to her despair, for he'd brought 'the girls' around to believe the exact same thing, back when she'd been a man.

"Cool..." Josh said.

"Uh..." Chris said, glancing over at Josh. "What if we wanted to send some of our friends by, too?"

"Whatever." She replied, again, slowly starting to dress.

As the two men grinned at each other, visions of 'pimping her out' to people dancing through their minds, Dom slumped back on the couch and reached for a cigarette, barely noticing as the two men left.

As the shadows lengthened into nighttime, Dom just sat on the couch, smoking, drinking, toking and passively waiting to fuck or suck whatever men came along, the only thing an obvious 'cheap whore' like her was good for.

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: While two buddies watch a movie, the events on the screen start to happen in real life, and one of the guys finds that he is being transformed into a bimbo to satisfy his friends needs.

Hyde Bound

By Gunslinger

My best friend turned me into a huge-breasted, cum-craving little bitch.

Oh, Gary didn't mean to do it - as I said, we are best friends, and we'd never do anything to hurt each other on purpose. (Unless you count the 'harmless' pranks best buddies pull on each other from time to time...)

So, you have to understand, what happened was accidental and unexpected; neither of us was the least bit prepared for it, much less the unavoidable consequences that came out of it. You need to understand that, in order to understand how things turned out the way it did.

It also helps to understand that neither Gary nor I was exactly part of the 'social elite': to put it bluntly, Gary was a nerd, and I was a stoner. Part of the problem was, neither Gary nor I fit the 'Hollywood Stereotype' of those roles - in fact, I looked more the part of 'Hollywood Nerd' than Gary did, what with me being on the short and slender side, with short but perpetually unkempt black hair. Of course, I tended to the baggy jeans and equally baggy 'stoner band' t-shirts of the stereotypical stoner, but that was as close as I got.

As for Gary... Well, there was good reason why he looked like the All-American, Corn-Fed Farmboy; that's exactly what he was. Tall and broad shouldered, but 'stocky' rather than overtly muscular, with his sandy crew- cut and guileless blue eyes, he looked like he should fit the stereotype of 'Strong as an ox, and almost as smart'. Therein lay the problem - although Gary was a powerhouse, physically, he was also very intelligent; between his looks and his slow 'redneck' drawl, however, people simply couldn't accept that he was anything but a 'big, dumb oaf'.

So.

I'd dropped by Gary's place to hang out and get high. I lived in a cramped apartment, but Gary had his own place, a tiny little bungalow where we could smoke up without worrying about the unmistakable odor of pot seeping out into a communal hallway or anything. We'd played a few cooperative games on his console, scarfed some pizza and chugged some beers, and now we were sort of chilling-together-separately, that particular state of doing our own thing that would have been rude in a group of acquaintances, but was companionably comfortable among good friends.

Gary was curled up on one end of the sagging old couch, reading a massive old book that could only be properly termed a 'tome', while I was contentedly puffing away on a thin joint, watching a 'T&A' movie on the TV.

Maybe you've even seen the flick - Dr. Jeckyll and Mistress Hyde? If not, the storyline - what little of it there is

- was simple enough: Tall, blonde 'Amazonian Ice Queen' researcher Tanya Jeckyll creates a serum that releases her alter ego of man-hungry dominatrix Tanya Hyde.

The same 'actress' (a former female wrestler, playing what she hoped would be her 'breakout' role) played both versions of Tanya - glasses, no makeup and shapeless clothes for Jeckyll; a wig, plenty of make-up, lots of leather (including a very tight corset) and some prosthetic 'tits and ass' for her transformation into Mistress Hyde. I'd seen it before, and frankly, both actress and the character of Dr. Hyde were too mannish for my tastes... but I thought the heavily made-up and costumed Mistress Hyde was marginally hot enough to waste a couple of hours while getting good and baked.

The movie was just getting to the part where Jeckyll was about to inject herself, when Gary started mumbling, trying to work out phonetically whatever he was reading in that tome of his. I only half noticed his chanting at the time, leaning forward on the couch as the actress prepared to give herself the injection that would transform herself into Mistress Hyde for the first time...

Now, if this was a Hollywood-type story, I'd now tell you something amazingly, visually stunning happened. Lightning, or dancing sparks, or eerie glows - you know, cool 'special effects' kind of stuff.

Nope.

One second, I'm simply watching the scene, and the next, I say - say, mind you, not scream or shout, but say - "ouch", and look down... to see my own right hand holding a large syringe, just as the last of the glowing pink liquid it contained was injected into my left arm.

Now I did shout - namely, "what the fuck...?!" as I yanked the syringe out, letting it drop to the floor - while my head snapped up to stare at the screen.

The screen where, a second before, I'd watched the actress just about to inject herself with an identical- looking syringe... and where, now, she was going through the motions of having done just that.

When I say 'going through the motions', I mean it - she was miming finishing an injection and putting the syringe down, for her hand was empty.

Which, my mind noted a bit numbly, made perfect sense, since her syringe full of serum was now resting on the floor of Gary's living room - empty of serum, of course, since that had gone... into me.

Having heard me shout, Gary lowered the book and looked at me in concern as I slid off the couch, dropping to my knees on the floor and sweating profusely.

"Ryan...?" he asked, with only mild concern - adequate for what his highly limited perspective on what was happening, I later realized, but seemingly grossly understated at the time. "Ryan, what's wrong...?"

"The needle..." I gasped, feeling as the blood running through my veins was slowly beginning to boil.

"Needle...?" Gary parroted in perfectly understandable confusion - and then the confusion deepened into a frown as he caught sight of the large - theatrically large - metal-and-glass syringe on the floor.

All things considered, I can't really fault Gary for making several assumptions at that moment - after all, I was a stoner, and though he'd never seen me shoot up or do any hard drugs... well, the truth wouldn't have spontaneously occurred to any rational person, now would it?

"From the movie...!" I tried to explain, sweat dripping from my brow. "It was in the movie... and then it was in my hand - in my arm...!"

Then I cried out, pitching forward onto my hands and knees - as, with a horrible liquid-crackling sound, my hips expanded slowly and very, very painfully wider.

"What the...?!" Gary exclaimed, book dropping to the couch as he bolted to his feet. The painful expansion was still going on as he gaped - and anger and frustration washed through my pain as he had the temerity to ask: "Is this... some sort of... joke?"

In retrospect, it certainly wasn't an unreasonable question - I simply wasn't aware, at the time, of his gaze swinging back and forth between me... and the TV, where the actress was going through the exact same transformation.

"No... fucking... joke...!" I gasped out - and then cried out again, as with a wet, creaking sound, my spine arched and my pelvis tilted sharply, thrusting my ass upwards more noticeably.

An ass that, with a strange hissing sound, slowly began to inflate outwards, each buttock becoming both larger and rounded.

It felt unbelievably, incredibly weird to have my ass growing larger, rounder, and firmer - but it wasn't actually painful, and that allowed me a little more latitude to realize what was going on around me.

Which was why I was able to then realize the source of Gary's confusion about the reality of the situation - for I realized suddenly that the same things were occurring both on-screen and in reality at exact same time, and the exact same pace.

So, as 'Dr. Jeckyll' screamed and flopped violently onto her back, that small part of my mind not too busy registering sudden renewal of agony wasn't the least bit surprised.

It was this same, small fragment of my mind that both noticed, and agreed with, Gary's 'logical' assumption - which was why I also wasn't really surprised as he lunged at the TV. After all, if the same thing was happening both on- and off-screen, it must be connected, right?

Well, it was, to be sure - but not in the way Gary thought, so when he shut off the TV, the effects of the serum now flowing through my body didn't stop. Even with the movie shut off, my memory of the time I'd seen it before was good enough for me to have a rough idea of what to expect next.

Somehow, though, I don't think it makes sense to say 'so I wasn't disappointed'...

I simply wasn't surprised when I suddenly jerked hard to first the right, and then to the left - each jerk being accompanied by a crunching noise as my waist suddenly narrowed on that side.

I felt like a puppet - and for good reason. Just as in the movie, I found my hands moving to run over my suddenly much slender waist... which, of course, was really designed to push the fabric tight enough to show the viewer that the waist now was much narrower.

In the movie, this was because the close-up was actually of a certain fetish model with a nearly impossible waist diameter, a tiny dimension that was later poorly approximated by the actress by way of a corset. In my case, however, it was very much real. Oddly enough, given my much slimmer build than the Amazonian actress, my newly slenderized waist was much closer to a 'realistic' dimension than the fetish model's measurement would have been on the actress... but it was still remarkably slender.

Those thoughts, however, came later - for after having caresses my newly hourglass waistline, I helplessly lifted those hands up, so I could helplessly watch as my short nails slowly grew longer, accompanied with the inevitable, appropriate 'sound effect'.

Gary, now kneeling beside me, was making a strange choking sound as he watched all this happen, clearly desperate to help me in some way, but at a complete loss as how to effect aid.

Then he gave a little shriek and scampered back in a shuffle - because I cried out again, back arching as I'd slapped my hands, with newly lengthened nails, to the floor on either side of me.

The cry was one of pain, as my leg bones were stretched as if made from toffee. In the movie, the 'special effect' of her legs getting longer was probably done simply by having somebody off-screen tug her skirt slowly upwards, making it look like her legs were growing longer. For me, however, it was anything but simply acted agony as my legs really did become proportionately longer.

I slumped back down, panting... and then, with a sensation giving me warning, tucked my chin to watch as my chest began to expand.

No - not my chest. My breasts.

It happened fairly slowly, and helplessly my hands rose to cup the swelling mounds pushing my black, band- logoed t-shirt steadily outwards. Accompanied by the 'sound effect' from the movie, sounding like a hose filling a bucket and a balloon being inflated, my once-flat chest steadily filled out into unmistakable twin spheres, clearly recognizable by the way my hands helplessly kept the fabric taut to better display the growth.

"Holy shit, Ryan... you're turning into a... a girl!"

I had to remind myself that Gary hadn't seen the movie - all of this was coming at him cold. Besides - I was pretty sure he was wrong. I wasn't turning into a woman.

Given what my broader hips did to my once-baggy jeans, now straining tautly across my crotch, I was pretty sure I'd already been turned into a woman.

I twitched, letting out a low moan punctuated with a few gasps of pain - reactions to the series of sensation that ran up through my body, from the tips of my toes to the top of my head. The creeping, crawling sensation from my scalp was the final sensation, and I let out a sighing moan of distressed relief as I realized that the transformation was over.

A second later, Gary hesitantly spoke: "Ruh... Ryan? Is... is that you...?"

"Yeah, it's me, Gary." I replied with a sigh... and, hearing the unmistakably female voice I'd responded in, managed a very dry chuckle, before adding: "More or less."

A moment's silence, and then: "But... what the hell happened?"

Gary's bewildered voice was practically plaintive, and I let out another bone-dry chuckle as I started to sit up - and then 'oofed', as I hadn't adjusted for - nor really been prepared for - the weight of the proudly round, huge breasts thrust from my ribcage. God, they were heavy! My second attempt got me sitting upright, and I stared down at the massive tits for a second before dredging up a very wry smile.

"Help me up onto the couch, Gay..." I said in that damnably feminine new voice of mine, "...and I'll walk you through it."

Rather hesitantly, Gary complied, perching very gingerly beside my altered body, as if whatever had happened to me might be contagious. Despite his wordless sound of protest, I picked up the remote control and turned the TV back on, using the movie - which Gary had never seen, and hadn't really been watching - to help flesh out the story.

"But... you don't look anything like her...!" Gary protested at one point. "I mean, sure, her tits are big, but yours are huge...!"

Suddenly realizing that he was looking directly at the huge tits in question, he quickly yanked his gaze away from my chest, blushing furiously.

I hesitated for a few seconds. I had already figured it out for myself, but I had to find the best way to convey that understanding to Gary.

"Gary - would you say that her tits are as big as, say, volleyballs...?" I finally asked, pointing at the screen. Gary glanced at the movie, and slowly agreed that yes, they were about that big.

"So, with that as a comparison, how big would you say mine are...?" I finally said, wincing at referring to 'my tits'.

"Well, they're about as big as, er...." Gary stammered, having to force himself to gaze directly at my chest... and then his eyes widened. "Uh - volleyballs!"

"Yeah." I agreed. "See, we both took the exact same serum, so the exact same changes happened to us - but they happened on two different... let's call it 'base figures'. She started out as a tall, muscular blonde, and ended up as a tall, muscular blonde with an hourglass figure and volleyball-sized tits. I started out as a short, slender guy - and ended up with hips, waist, ass and tits all exactly the same size of hers, so it's much more... emphatic on my smaller frame. Same with the hair - hers is just past her shoulders, while mine is now nearly down to her ass... but they're going to be the exact same length in inches, if you see what I mean."

"Yeah, I guess I understand..." Gary slowly drawled. "But, what I still don't understand is how any of this could happen in the first place!"

Suppressing a sigh, I went through the sequence of events, waiting for him to catch the clue I'd already recognized - and knew in a second when he did, because his face went dead white.

"Oh God! I did this to you!" He gasped, eyes widening in shock. "The book I was reading... somehow, it made it real!"

"Yeah, that's what I figured, too..." I agreed, sliding a little closer to him on the couch. "I was intently focused on that syringe on the screen, eager for it to be used - and you read off a 'spell' that made my intention, my desire, come true... if not in the way I wanted or expected..."

"Um... Ryan...?" Gary said, looking back and forth between me and the TV. His voice was hesitant - one could almost say 'fearful'.

"Yes, Gary?" I replied, scooching a little closer.

"You, um... seem to be taking all of this, er... rather calmly." He nervously replied, eyes briefly riveted on the actions of 'Tanya Hyde' on the screen.

"Well, I've seen the movie before - I quickly figured out that the serum was doing the same things to me as to the character. Everything change that was going on with the character, in the story, was going to happen to me." I explained, cuddling up close to him with a low, wicked smile.

"A//the changes..." I clarified, with a throaty chuckle - while running one long nail down the front of his shirt. "Er, Ryan..." Gary started to say.

"Call me... 'Ryanna'..." I purred my long-nailed, feminine hand having traced down his broad, masculine torso - to gently cup the crotch of his jeans.

"Ryan...!" Gary squeezed, trying to scuttle back from me - right up until my gentle 'cupping' became a very tight 'grasp'.

"I said, 'call me Ryanna'!" I growled. "In fact, 'Mistress Ryanna' would be better..."

I'd never actually heard anybody say 'eep' before...

"You're the one that did this to me..." I growled. "You're the one that turned me into a huge breasted woman - a woman with a craving for cock, a compulsion for cum. One that only goes stronger the longer it's denied, until the point where it becomes physically painful - not to mention the 'side effects'..."

I gestured at the screen, where Tanya Hyde was staggering down an alleyway, a look of desperate hunger on her face.

It was the part of the movie where she'd just escaped capture and enforced isolation for 'observation' - and at least some of the staggering had to be from the gargantuan tits hanging from her chest, not to mention the risk of tripping over the curtain of blonde hair that dragged on the ground behind her...

The overinflated lips were, like the massive tits and only marginally smaller ass, prosthetic makeup effects... but the waist was spliced-in from that fetish model via greenscreen effect, all to play to the storyline; that the effects of the serum were ongoing, held in check only by one substance on earth.

"So, you see - I not only want your cum, I need your cum... and you are going to give it to me!" I informed him in my most threatening tone - and then relaxed both my body and my grip, giving Gary a slow, warm smile that visibly threw him off-stride.

"Besides..." I purred, throwing one leg over him and swinging my body around. Straddling him, I planted my hands on his broad shoulders, pinning him in place on the couch.

"It's not like your new duties are the proverbial 'fate worse than death' now, is it...?" I asked, with a teasing little pout.

"Ryan..." He protested, weakly - and fury boiled through me, filling me with the urge to claw him for the impertinence of using that name, after I'd ordered him not to!

...but he was my best friend, so I reined the urge in. Instead, I leaned forward, quite deliberately pressing my stupendous new bust against his chest as I whispered one word lovingly into his ear: "Ryanna..."

Then I kissed him.

A long, slow, but nevertheless hungry kiss. He 'passively resisted' for a few seconds... and then, slowly, almost against his will, Gary began to cooperate in the kiss.

Taking my hands from his shoulders, I reached down and grabbed the hem of my shirt... and when I finally broke the kiss, I leaned back and - in one graceful movement - peeled my shirt off and tossed it aside.

"Mmmm... Quite the pair of tits, aren't they, Gary?" I asked, teasingly, as I reached up to cup and fondle my new endowments. My large, thick nipples - an almost shockingly bright pink against the pale orbs of my milky new breasts - were already fully engorged, looking for all the world like a pair of pencil erasers atop my domed, equally pinked areolae.

"...and the best part?" I teased him, pausing to lift one huge breast high enough to give my nipple a light, quick suck. "These are not only a pair of tits you are allowed to touch, but ones that I demand you play with. Often. At great length."

Let go of my own boobs, I reached down, grabbed Gary's wrists, and - meeting little in the way of resistance - brought them up until his big, strong, manly hands rested lightly on my wonderfully big, sensitive new boobs.

I shivered in delight at even that light touch - just as I was expecting, given the way the actress in the movie reacted whenever her tits were touched by a man. It certainly hadn't felt this good when I'd touched them myself...

...and it only got better when Gary began to actively squeeze and fondle my firm, round new boobs. "Yes..." I hissed. "Like that. Just like that. I like it like that..."

...all while my own hands were busy working my way out of my now skin-tight jeans and the poorly-fitting briefs beneath.

I then lifted myself up - and leaned forward, shoving my new tits right in Gary's rather stunned looking face.

"Suck them, Gary!" I commanded - and he complied, which felt so wonderful, that I actively had to concentrate on my intended purpose for that particular movement; unzipping Gary's pants and pulling them and his boxers down.

Gary was a nice enough guy, but he didn't get an awful lot of action with the ladies... and, as I shifted so that I could peer down past my own stupendous rack, my eyes widened in both shock and delight, and a distant part of my brain felt sorry for all those girls who would now never get a crack at my hunky love-slave.

Gary was, quite simply, hung.

"Oh, my, yes..." I breathed, appreciatively, still looking at the massive cock that was - unsurprisingly, given the foreplay - already hard. It throbbed in time with Gary's rather rapid heartbeat, and I was almost sorry to take my eyes off such a magnificent specimen of manhood.

Almost - because I was taking my eyes off of it so I could brace my long-nailed new hands on Gary's broad shoulders... and lower my dripping wet and oh-so-desperately-ready womanhood down onto that massive manhood.

"Oh, fucking shit, yes...!" I cried out in delight as my sopping cut slid smoothly - but with oh-so-delightful friction - down over his throbbing man-meat. "Yes, yes, yes, you fantastically hung stud, you - YES!"

Slowly at first, I began to ride that wonderful cock filling me so perfectly, steadily increasing the speed with which I rode my best friend's huge cock. I was expecting this part of it to feel fantastic from the sound the actress had made, off-screen, when she'd had sex... but she must not have met a character that was supposed to have been as hung as my wonderstud Gary, because she'd never sounded orgasmically happy just riding a cock.

Not like I did as I shouted and screamed and cooed and moaned, thrusting hard and fast atop my best friend, my massive new boobs bouncing wildly. Fucking my best friend felt fantastic...

...but not as good as the orgasms did. Yes, orgasms - plural.

Three of them, each one better than the last...

...and none of them holding a candle to the intense pleasure that exploded through me when Gary shot a load of cum deep into my pussy.

Remember, the 'Hyde Serum' was geared towards cum; fucking - or sucking, for that matter - was just a highly pleasurable way of getting what was now, for me, a drug. Like taking a huge hit of a fantastic drug, Gary's cum practically blew my mind, and for several minutes I simply lay against his broad chest, his slowly softening cock still in my sopping cunt, staring off into space with soft, sighing moans of ultimate contentment.

Of course, it couldn't last - eventually, I rolled off of my man-slave and ordered him to roll me a joint. I had to snap at him to put him into his place when he mistakenly thought it would be a shared joint, but as I said, Gary isn't as stupid as he looks - he learned quickly. We sat in companionable silence, each of us smoking a joint...

...and by the time we were done, he was quite ready for me to slowly kiss my way down his body, dragging my huge boobs across his sweaty skin, until I was kneeling between his spread legs, warm mouth encircling his once-more hard cock. I made sure to make it last as long as I could, using ever mystically-acquired skill to keep him at the edge for as long as possible, so that when I finally let him cum, he blew such a huge load of wonderfully thick, warm, delicious man-juice down my throat that I blissed out for nearly ten straight minutes...

...and the incredibly long build up and the blessed relief of release had Gary almost as blissed out by the blowjob as I was.

My best friend turned me into a huge-breasted, cum-craving little bitch... and we're both enjoying it immensely.

end

Back to Stories

SUMMARY: A broke young man takes a bet that he can pass as a woman, only when he falls and hits his head, he forgets his old male identity.

I'll Bet

By Gunslinger

The whole affair started on a Saturday evening in late April, if memory serves. As on most Saturday evenings, I was ensconced in a large leather armchair in the study of the Explorer's Club, a New York Times open before me, and a scotch and soda close at hand. The paper, as it often was, was open to the financial section.

I was not really perusing the quotes, however - the news would have been not only depressing but completely irrelevant to me now. Some bad investments had all but eliminated my assets, and what I was actually doing was...well, absorbing the atmosphere of the club, I suppose. I had been a member of the club since my eighteenth birthday, having gained admittance to the most exclusive gentleman's club in New York at the behest of my father, who had been a member, as had his father before him. Such long and repeated familiarity had grown into a contented habit that caused me to take the club for granted. Now, with myself practically penniless and unable to afford the rather hefty dues for the next year, I was determined to renew my appreciation for the club while I could.

A warm fire was crackling in the large stone hearth, throwing its radiance and warmth into the cozy, dim study. Drawn close to the fire, in their accustomed positions, were two of the oldest members of the club, Mortimer Greene and Wilfred Fairbanks. Both old money scoundrels who had never worked a day in their life for the vast sums of money they had at their disposal, they were much given to trading large sums of money for entertainment in the form of odd and extravagant wagers on the most outlandish concepts. Just last month, they had paid a young fellow a fair sum of money to wear nothing but clothing that was some shade or other of green.

Additionally, every single article of clothing - including hats, - must be one size too small. They had wagered on whether or not he would last all week in face of the ridicule he was sure to receive, as well as the discomfort of the clothing. (He hadn't)

With nothing better to do, I kept my gaze on the paper, and mentally tuned an ear to their conversation. Fairbanks was speaking, his slow, heavy voice rolling on with a grandiose pomposity.

"...absolutely preposterous, my dear Mortimer. You can not expect me to believe that prior to his wedding night, the young man in question had no idea at all that his intended was actually a man. The whole concept is ludicrous. No man could pose as a woman that successfully for any length of time."

Greene's thin, reedy voice sounded indignant. "I did not ask you to believe it, I was merely reporting what the paper said. However, since you bring it up, I happen to believe that a man could do so, if, for some reason, he set his mind too it."

"Poppycock!"

Greene sighed. "Look, don't bandy this about too much, but I - unwittingly, you understand - invested in a medical laboratory that turns out to cater to these...people. Apparently, they have some rather advanced techniques to...well, you understand."

"Perhaps, physically, it could be done." Fairbanks admitted grudgingly, "I, myself have noted that not all women are comely, so I suppose a man could successfully look the part. But what I am referring to is the actions, the persona. No man could emulate a woman's every nuance enough to pass for long periods of time."

Greene's voice sharpened with interest. "Oh? Would you be willing to wager on that?"

Fairbanks' voice held the same note in its tones when he replied. "What have you in mind, old friend?"

"Well," Greene explained "I'm sure that, for a fair sum of money we could find a volunteer. We would provide a whole new persona for the fellow, plus the money. They would have to sever all contacts with friends and family of course - we would have to be the only people who know who 'she' really is, you see. I'm sure, considering how much I've invested in them, that the medical laboratory would be willing to do a temporary...makeover. Then, this fellow spends, say, two months like this, and we see..."

It was at this point that I found myself considering what they were saying. The thought of masquerading as a woman for two months was rather offensive and unappealing...but, the two men were known to spend considerable funds on such wagers. Enough, perhaps, to sustain my lifestyle for some period of time...

I brooded over it for several minutes. As distasteful as the concept was, my other option was to find gainful employment. While I was still quite young - twenty-seven last October, - I had never before had to work for an income, and the idea of having to do so was also distasteful. Worse, unlike the two-month period of the wager, such employment would be ongoing, possibly for many years. It was, I suppose, a case of the lesser of two evils.

Folding my paper and putting it aside, I leaned forward and cleared my throat gently. The two gentlemen stopped their discussion and turned to face me.

"Excuse me," I said, "But I couldn't help but overhear your discussion. Frankly, the concept of it interests me." A lie, but I did not wish to disclose my financial situation.

"Oh?" Greene asked, looking surprised. "How so, young Witherspoon?"

I shrugged. "As you may or may not know, I performed several times with my University drama department. I played the lead for Hamlet in my final year, you see. The whole thing interests me for the theatrical aspect of it - basically, what you are proposing is the single most difficult role an actor could face - a challenge that my thespian ego could not pass by without comment, I'm afraid."

"Are you saying that you would be willing to take on the duties of the test subject for our little experiment?" Fairbanks asked.

"Well, I had been planning to visit my holdings in Bolivia, " I adlibbed, "there seems to be a good chance to increase the profits this quarter..."

Fairbanks waved a hand airily. "Pish and tosh, young...William, is it? Same as your father?" I nodded and he continued. "Bolivia is but petty cash, hardly worth bothering about. At most, missing this journey would lose you, what, two hundred thousand?"

That number danced before me as lure as I realized what was in the offing. Two hundred thousand wasn't a magnificent sum, but would keep me comfortably for at least another three years. "Yes, give or take that." I said, feigning indifference.

The two men traded a glance, wordlessly agreeing something. Greene took up the bartering now.

"Very well, let us put it at an upper limit of two-fifty. Would you be willing to partake of our little wager if us two matched that amount?"

Now that I was actually standing on the cusp of it, the idea loomed larger - play the part of a woman for two months? Even for another three years of leisure? No, I could not go through with it. I opened my mouth to turn them down - only to realize that Greene was still speaking, having not noticed my hesitancy.

"...paid in either cash, or if you prefer, you may take it as shares in our investments. Perhaps, you may take Wilfred's two hundred and fifty as cash, and mine as the stock - diversify, as it were." He smiled at his own small witticism.

My mind reeled as I realized what they had actually offered. When he had said that the two of them would match that amount, he meant each! Five hundred thousand dollars!

What's more, it was a well known fact that Greene's investments averaged about fifteen percent annually. If I took him up on that option, I would have a quarter of a million in discretionary cash, plus an income of slightly more than three thousand dollars a month - enough to support me, and probably more than I could earn from a job.

The answers to all my problems - with one catch. However, no matter how odious it appeared, it would only be for two months - and nobody else would ever have to know about it.

"Very well. I'm your man. Or woman, as the case may be." I said, making my decision. I stretched my hand out, and we three solemnly shook on the deal.

* * * * *

Being as the bargain had been struck on a Saturday evening, I was left with time in which to think, seriously, about my agreement of participation.

From the moment I agreed until nine o'clock on the morn of Monday, I was in a veritable tizzy, considering and reconsidering, until my mind was tied in the mental equivalent of knots.

As that may be, I am a man of my words, and when nine of the clock rolled ponderously about on that fateful morning, I was standing upon the curb of my apartment, awaiting my conveyance. Fortunately, Wilfred and Mortimer had suggested that they give me a ride to the clinic. My own chauffeur had found gainful employment elsewhere when my fortunes declined.

Their vehicle arrived precisely at nine, and I entered without visible hesitation. Already, I was preparing myself for what was to come, so my conversation must have been preoccupied and barely civil. For the life of me, I can not, even now, remember a single word said the entire time.

The clinic turned out to be one of those depressingly modern buildings in the less attractive 'business' areas of the city. Due to the status of one of the clinic's prime backers, we were allowed access to the building through a less obvious entrance.

The doctor was a depressingly plebian type, a not young yet not old woman with the most horrendous shade of orange hair. She obviously thought she was being 'understanding' about the situation, but I found her to be condescending - and tedious.

"Now, Will," - she had not only taken the liberty of using my first name, but using that odious derivation of it - "I realize this is uncomfortable for you. But, this clinic operates - and quite busily - on the fact that many men do this permanently and willingly."

"That may be," I said, somewhat stiffly, "but I only wish to... 'be womanly' for two months. I assume you can do something that is only temporary?"

She nodded. "Of course. Before we do any surgery, we always make a potential client go 'en femme' for six months, to make sure that this is really what they want to do. So, we have a very realistic, non permanent method of going 'en femme'."

It turned out to be so. Taking me into one of the suites, she began my temporary, regrettable - and profitable, if all went well - transformation into a woman.

It began with hair removal. One of the more obvious differences in the genders is the lighter, finer body hair of the woman, who is usually also less hirsute than the male.

Obviously, my hair could not be thinned. Therefore, the 'good doctor' used the simple expedient of removing all body hair using a technique called 'Electrolysis'. A very odious procedure - especially since it required full nudity. However, it didn't take all that long.

After removing the conductive gel used - a rather unattractive mess, as it contained the hair - I was 'allowed' - ordered - to shower off the remains.

Next, a skin softening agent was used, again, all over my body. I was given an unusual garment, made of latex I believe, that covered me head to foot, and was filled with the softener. As the only thing left exposed was my hair, that was what was worked on while I 'steeped' in the gel.

A professional hairdresser - I certainly hope so, at least - trimmed my hair into a short, yet obviously feminine hairstyle. I had been genetically orientated towards very full, very light hair, a full bodied style in near-white.

When the stylist was finished, my hair had become a very deep, vibrant shade of red, styled loose and feminine. I must admit, the color was very, very attractive, as was the - thankfully - easy to maintain style.

Now, through lifestyle and habits, I maintained a slim body. Apparently, that, and the lack of 'overt musculature', as the doctor put it, seemed to be more than acceptable.

Having removed the latex covering and having had a second shower, I was ready for the next stage - well, physically, if not emotionally.

The next step was application of the new 'breasts' that I would wear over the next month. According to the doctor, they were 'far advanced over average mail-order or mastectomy breast forms'. I have to take her word on the subject as it is one I know nothing about.

However, I can attest to the fact that the ones I received were extremely realistic.

First, the doctor selected a size for me. She decided, to 'enhance' my femininity, to use breasts that had a five inch difference between the ribcage measurement and the measurement across the nipples. This, apparently, would make my bra-cup a double D.

Just that thought - my bra size - was unnerving. The way these breasts worked was tedious.

First, the realistically textured forms, complete with nipples, was placed into a dye-injector. Next, a special 'camera' took a color sample of my chest and matched the forms to the exact shade.

Next, a special cream was applied to my chest. It was a multipurpose compound. Besides it's adhesive qualities, it also made my chest extremely, highly sensitive, as well as greatly enlarging the pores, allowing my body heat to leave through the area.

The forms were then put in place. They were the correct weight and texture, and as the weight settled on my chest, I wincing at the unfamiliar balance they gave.

They were fixed in place, the super fine edges smoothed to a seamless finish. The material they were made of absorbed my body heat and became the exact same temperature as the rest of my skin. Also, with the heightened sense of touch on my chest, and the special 'pressure transmitting' material the breasts was constructed from, 'my' breasts had a sense of touch as realistic as any woman's. They looked, felt and reacted like real breasts, with two exceptions - they would never lactate, and the realistic nipples were unable to become 'aroused'. Otherwise, they were indistinguishable from the genuine article.

A similarly constructed device, looking like flesh-colored underwear, was put in place. Again indistinguishable once in place, the 'vaginal girdle' made it appear that I had a womanly vagina, and a womanly derrière. I'm sure that the doctor found it humorous, as she purposefully picked 'an absolutely perfect ass', to use her words. Remarkably full and firm, in a tear-drop shape, it was perhaps the most shapely feminine rear end I had ever seen - and, it was on me.

Additional 'arti-flesh' was used on my now denuded legs.

The next step was the 'corset'. Like the breasts, it was a material indistinguishable from flesh. Incredibly thin, the material nevertheless had a very high tensile strength, and once in place, it compressed my waist uncomfortably, making me gasp for breath.

All of this would be worn for the entire period. It was as good as real, never needing to be removed, nor treated specially. The last to be done, physically, was my face. This took the longest, and the work of two of their artisans.

Using cheekpads, more 'arti-flesh', hair remover, and other items, they reshaped my face. They gave me higher cheekbones and a more pointed chin. They smoothed my eye sockets, making my eyes look - more sultry? Unfortunately, yes. These dark, 'smoldering' eyes lay below my new eyebrows, thinner and arched. The 'arti-flesh' was bonded around my lips, making them fuller, and firmer, without any decrease in sensitivity - in fact, a noticeable increase.

Even I must admit the outcome was a tribute to their creativity. I surveyed my new self in the full-length three-way mirror.

My reshaped legs were extremely shapely, the calves perfectly curving from slender ankles to shapely knees. Above that, firm, full thighs rose to my slender hips and full derrière.

That damnable invisible corset cinched my waist in dramatically, before giving way to my feminized chest, from which thrust two large, spherical breasts, like domed islands from the oceans.

Below my styled mane of flame-red hair was a face so strikingly beautiful, that I found it hard to believe that it did, in fact, belong to me. In short, the mirrors reflected as beautiful specimen of femininity that ever existed - and I was she.

What followed next was a device which, when inserted - painfully, I may add - down my throat, raised my pitch to feminine tones. Once in place, I could not feel the object, nor did I have to do anything but speak, to hear my voice emerge in a warm, rich contralto, completely unlike my male register, and undisputedly feminine in nature.

Then I was supplied with several lessons. In the proper way to apply cosmetics. In the best colors and styles of clothing for this figure. How to sit, and how to walk.

Speaking of walking, I was given my first set of feminine clothing - including the shoes. If given a choice, I would not have picked the ensemble, but I had no real say in the matter.

A gold and purple dress, quite tight, and with a very high hem, went over the plain white cotton panties I was given. The dress molded itself to my shapely form, emphasizing every curve and asset.

And for shoes...

They were purple. The heel wasn't actually a separate heel - it joined to the sole, narrowing before becoming thicker at the back of the heel. They rose four inches in height.

The shoes were awkward to walk in at first, but not excessively so, as the design made it easier to balance, while still looking feminine. According to the doctor, once I got used to these, I could switch to a five-inch block heel, then a six inch stiletto, and find each transition relatively easy. It was an assertion I did not intent to test.

At this time, the two sponsors of the bet finally had a chance to observe what they had wrought - and were thoroughly amazed at my transformation. So much so, in fact, that it took some time to convince them that I was actually who I said I was, rather than some fraud.

At this point, I was set up with my new identity. In specific, that of Cynthia Hart. I was provided with new identification, some cash and a modest bank account, and an apartment in the central section of the city, fully furnished, complete, I was told, with clothing, grooming and hygiene products, and personal items.

I was, theoretically, prepared for my two-month ordeal. Emotionally, I was still uncomfortable with the whole deal.

So, I climbed into the vehicle provided for this persona - a Mazda Matai, and set out to begin my new life, such as it is.

At the doctors recommendation, I stopped at a store selling various goods of an erotic nature. As awkward as it was to enter the store, the doctor had suggested I pick up a CD that is available. Actually, one of a series of CD's, on which various women are, as she put it 'performing aural sex.' - an hour and a half recording of a woman speaking fantasies. The doctor said that listening to this would help me get the rhythms and patterns down for my new female voice.

Taking the CD, I drove to my apartment, and climbed the stairs - twice, actually. Unfamiliar with climbing in my new footwear, I slipped and fell, banging my head quite badly.

Well, now I have disrobed, and am preparing for bed. I end this recording for now - a running account of what is occurring. I plan on laying in bed, and listening to that CD before I drift of to my slumber.

* * * * *

The shapely, stunning 'woman' clicked off the pocket recorder and reclined back in bed. 'Her' body, clad in a silky nightgown, was slim and stacked, and even laying down, 'her' breasts were distractingly ripe and full. Trying to ignore the sensation the silky fabric created as it slid over 'her' breasts, 'she' slipped on a pair of headphones, and lay back.

Immediately, unwillingly, 'she' fell into a deep sleep - or perhaps trance is more accurate. Caused by the blow to 'her' head, William's synapses fired en masse, blanking his conscious mind. Just as the brain steadied, the CD player clicked into operation.

'Oh, hi there handsome.' The sexy voice on the recording cooed. 'I'm glad to see you. I was getting soooo lonely '
Absorbing every word, every nuance - every thought - the newly created woman's blank mind began to fill....

* * * * *

"uhmmmm"

The sound was erotic - the sound of a sexually excited woman. For a second, I wondered where it was coming from, but ignored the question in favor of the wonderful sensations from my chest, erotic flashes that ran through my body. Again, that sound came - and I sat bolt upright in stunned realization. As I moved, my abdomen ached, feeling to tight, almost painful.

I was making that sound.

I gaped at the unfamiliar surroundings I found myself in - a femininely decorated bedroom that I recognized nothing about. But the shock of waking up in the wrong room couldn't compare to the shock of waking up in the wrong body.

Because, pushing - hell, straining - at the front of a silky pink nightgown were two large, firm breasts - hanging from my chest! And that wonderful sensation was from my own traitorous hand fondling that tit! But damn, did it feel good.....

With a jerk, I forced myself from fondling these impossible endowments, and tore off the nightgown, to be greeted with the sight of a slim, sexy female body.

How the hell had I been turned into a woman! I wasn't a woman, for God's sake, I was a man. I was...

...was...

I sat, stunned, realizing with a mounting horror that I couldn't remember my own name. I struggled to recall it - and couldn't.

I couldn't remember, clearly, anything before waking up. All I knew - and I was absolutely certain of it - was that I wasn't a woman. Well, I was, obviously, one now. But I wasn't supposed to be one.

There was something really, really wrong here.

Desperately, I cast around for something to grasp onto, a fact, a hint of what was going on. I stumbled from the bed, trying to adjust to the unfamiliar and unwelcome weight on my chest. I searched the room, ignoring the sensual jiggle and sway of those endowments - while, guiltily enjoying the sensations.

I found a purse that yielded up identification - for 'Cynthia Hart'.

I stopped dead, confused. Who was she? The name didn't ring any bells - and I couldn't be the stunningly attractive woman shown in the photo...

...could I? Confused, I walked to a full length mirror, and got my first good look at the body in which I was trapped.

Yes, I was that unbelievably gorgeous creature. I found myself becoming aroused at the sight of this stunning, sexy woman reflected in the mirror, unable to believe it was actually, somehow, me.

Her - my - legs were long, and sexy...

<I love to wear really high spike heels, because they make my legs soooo sexy - and I love to flaunt my legs...>

...and they'd be mind-blowing in heels.

I stopped, frowning. What had I thought how they'd look in heels? Then I sighed - it was true that heels would make them even sexier - and, as a male, I probably thought of that naturally. I continued to survey my new figure, with it's slender waist...

<All the guys tell my how thin my waist is, but, like all women, I don't think mine is thin enough. I want it really slim...>

...although, I could stand to loose some weight. It was nice and all, but it could be thinner. Then there was the tits. Firm and round, they were at least a D cup, and I thought...

<I love having big tits - they make the men go wild. In fact, I want them as big as they can get - I'm going to get them pumped up every time I can...>

...that if I saw them on a woman - a real woman, I mean, not me - they'd be nice - but they were a little small. They could be bigger and sexier.

But none of this explained how this could have happened to me. How had I ended up in this body. I went back to the purse, looking for more clues - and found nothing.

I stood still, mind spinning. Somehow, the impossible had happened. I - whoever I was - had been changed into this sexy woman, and lost all my past - and hers. I would need some help to figure this one out. But, where could I go for help with a problem like this?

Well, I suppose the first step was getting dressed. With a sigh, I headed for the bathroom, and started the shower running. Stepping under the spray, I began to lather up, my hands sliding across my large - but not large enough - tits...

<Oh, I love to play with my tits. I fondle them, slowly and sensuously. Then, one hand begins to slide downwards, across my stomach, and between my legs. Slowly, one finger circles my cunt. Then, it enter. Slowly at first, but faster and faster, I...>

...masturbated frantically, biting back the screams of ecstasy as I came to a thunderous orgasm and went limp - wondering why the hell I'd just fucked myself.

And overwhelmed by how incredibly good it felt. I had to force my hands away, stepping out and drying quickly as I re-entered the bedroom, crossing over to the closet. I tried to ignore the fact that I'd just experience an orgasm as a woman - and enjoyed it.

But the memory kept returning.

Standing, naked, in front of the closet, I looked over the selection with a critical eye. I wanted something that I'd be comfortable wearing - emotionally, more than physically. I needed something like...

<...I always were the sexiest clothes, to make men drool...>

..the tight black spandex dress with the silver lame sides. Huh?

Why do I want to wear that - but damn, it will look good on this body. And it can't hurt to wear it, can it?

With a confused shrug, I pulled on a pair of French-cut bikini briefs, then the dress. Admiring how great I looked in the outfit, I walked over to the make-up table, and expertly applied my makeup.

Expertly? How the hell did I learn to do this? For that matter - I'd slipped on a pair of pumps with a four inch heel with the dress without even thinking about it - and was walking in them as if I'd been doing it my whole life!

I sat down with a thump, trying to figure out what the hell was going on here. I was so confused - I had no idea where these strange skills and thoughts were coming from. What was happening to me?

Confused and scared, I stumbled out the door. If I knew all these skills, then maybe I really was a woman - a woman who is going crazy. It's the only explanation that made any sense.

Down the hall, three guys - on black and two white - were moving into an apartment.

<Fuck them. Fuck them all. That's my philosophy - I just love to fuck, and can't get enough.>

Instantly, I was hornier than I'd ever been before. Helplessly, I walked forward, knowing I intended to fuck the guys brains out, but unable to stop myself.

The four young men stopped dead at the sight of a drop-dead gorgeous woman standing in the doorway.

The one in the lead, a tall, muscular black, blinked. "What the. . . - Who are you?" he asked dumbly, his eyes locked firmly on my tits.

"Cyndi. And I want to fuck you all..." I moaned, helplessly aroused. As his friends watched enviously, I led him to the couch and sat him down. Slowly I pressed her full, soft lips against his and passionately kissed him. His large, sure hands peeled off my dress, and my tits bounced free. He began to caress and fondle my large globes.

Slowly, I slid downwards, my hands pulling his track pants and underwear down. In his case, the myth of black cock size was true, his dark, throbbing tool sprang out, huge and thick.

Smiling, I began to give her first blow-job. My technique was nothing special, but he wasn't about to complain. I enveloped the head of his cock with my warm 'willing' mouth, then simply used my hands, wrapped around his dark, hot cock, and eagerly jerked him off.

Within very short time, his cock twitched, sending a spray of hot, salty cum into my waiting mouth. I swallowed hungrily. I stood and turned. "So, who's next?"

Soon I lay on the cushions of the couches, which had been lain on the floor. My body was glistening erotically with sweat as I moaned in the throes of orgasmic delight. One boy, an intense look on his face, was pumping rhythmically into me, trying to make himself last longer than The other man, whose muscular body was perched atop my body as his thick cock plumbed the depth of my cleavage.

The first man lost. He cried out as he cum, dumping his hot cum into my sopping cunt. He was followed seconds later by the other, who stiffened as his hot, cream jism gushed out between my magnificent globes and spattered my face.

<Don't waste a drop.>

I sat up and began to lick the salty liquid from my full, red lips.

Deep inside, 'the man' had given up the fight as the power of the orgasm had swept my body. I must have been going crazy, thinking I was a man. My skills and urges proved the truth.

Hell, the only reason I had that conviction was because of my deep conviction that I'm not woman ENOUGH.

* * * * *

The woman manning the front desk of the clinic watched as the door opened and a woman...wiggled her way inside. "Can I help you miss?" the nurse asked, arching an eyebrow.

"Oh, I certainly hope so..." the sexy, sensuously clad woman cooed. "I'm tired of being this...thing. I want to be a real woman, damn it. You know, slender waist, big tits, sexy ass and cunt - that sort of thing."

Cyndi smiled at the nurse and gently caressed one of her tits.

The nurse thought this was as womanly as they got, by shrugged and asked "What's your name?" "Cyndi - well, Cynthia Hart."

The nurse typed the information in the computer - and was surprised to find a match, which linked to another file named 'William Fairbanks'. A quick perusal, and the nurse understood. William had come in for a 'pre-operation tryout' makeover. The nurse nodded, and punched in the new info, saying he'd returned to finish the operation.

"Of course, my dear" the nurse said, rising. "Just follow me..."

* * * * *

1 YEAR LATER.

"Gentlemen, put your hands together, for the one, the only - SINN SATIONAL!"

The light went down as the spotlight hit the stage. It highlighted the curtains at the back, which rustled, then parted to reveal the club's headline dancer.

She was a sexual vision as she strutted out onto stage.

Custom-made 'ballet boots' in black leather elevated her atop 9 inch spiked heels. With an unbelievably erotic strut, her long, sexy legs and spectacular ass moved in ways certain to arouse any male of any species.

Her firm, full ass was wrapped in a tight French-cut bikini. Her impossibly slender waist led the eye up to her enormous, globular tits, encased in a massive HHH cup bra of lace and sequins.

The crowd went wild as she began to move erotically, enticingly on stage, her body gyrating, her long, red hair whipping, as she went through a routine that seemed impossible with her massive, firm tits.

Finishing her set, Sinn donned a sexy black dress, and began to 'work the floor'.

It was the two old geezers in the corner that were waving her over the most. With her unbelievably huge tits swaying, she walked over in a cock-hardening strut.

"Hell, gramps, if I lap dance for you, it'll probably kill you." Sinn said erotically. "Actually, we don't want a dance. Just to talk to you a bit." The older, larger one said. Shrugging, Sinn sat down. "What's on your mind?"

"Do...do you enjoy this life?" the skinnier one asked.

Smiling, Sinn unclasped the top of her dress and let it fall. She gently began to fondle her massive tits. "Hell, ya... I love showing myself off - and it ensures I have no shortage of hot fucking."

Both men shifted uncomfortably, trying to suppress their rising dicks.

"Yes..." the skinny one said. "Well, we want to give you this - it's a half-million in cash." Sinn blinked. "Just for talking to you? What's the gag?"

"No gag. We just feel we owe it to...you."

Sinn sighed, but accepted the briefcase. "Okay. But you realize, I'm going to have to ask you to come up to my room. One of you has to titfuck me while I suck the other guy off. You get to decide which of you does what."

With that, she began to head for the door, not even bothering to look back to see if they were following. They were.

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: After he discovers a mysterious statute on his newly bought property, Mike is slowly transformed from successful writer into successful actress.

Idol Thoughts

By Gunslinger

Part One: The New House - The Discovery - Cleaning - The Glow

The lowering clouds scudded overhead, threatening rain in the very near future, and Mike Reynolds wrapped his jacket tighter around him, wishing he'd worn something heavier. His somewhat unkempt mane of black hair whipped in the rising wind, occasionally obscuring his ice-blue eyes. Beneath the denim jacket he wore a black T-shirt and a pair of blue-jeans, and the rising wind seemed to cut through his solid, large-boned body. Thankfully, the hiking boots he wore kept his feet from feeling the sudden drop in temperature.

He looked back in the direction of his house, across the wide grassy meadow, and briefly considered heading back. Then, he turned his back on the house and entered the tree-line of the forest, following the poorly defined game trail.

The forest was actually one of the major reason's he'd bought the house. As a writer, he often went on long walks, using the time to do some of his most creative writing, and the forest seemed a tailor-made environment for that. The incredibly low price of the house had been the other deciding factor - it was small and isolated, a twenty-minute drive from the small town that was nearest, and was still cluttered with the belongings of the previous owner. He knew if he went back, he'd face a whole day of cleaning the mess.

Once in the forest proper, the gray light of day was blocked by the trees, dropping him into a world of perpetual twilight. Continuing to follow the trail, he forged deeper into the forest, his mind already lost in an a wealth of creative thought. He walked, lost in his own world, occasionally stopping to light a cigarette with the same pre-occupied air. In his particular state, he almost walked by without seeing it. There, buried in the undergrowth, was a weathered stone store-way, obviously hand carved from some dark, igneous rock, and covered with intricate carved letter in a language Mike couldn't identify.

"Holy..." Mike whispered to himself. "What the hell is this doing here?" He leaned closer, looking into the stygian blackness beyond the doorway. He looked around, trying to fix some landmarks in his mind. "I'll have to come back sometime with a flashlight" he thought to himself. "It'd be cool to see what's down there."

The weather decided the issue for him swiftly. While he'd walked in a daze for the past hour, the wind had been getting stronger. Now, it increased dramatically, howling through the trees and ripping away branches. The skies opened up in a clap of thunder, and hail the size of dimes began to pelt mercilessly from above. Hurriedly, Mike grabbed up an armful of branches, and ducked into the dark opening.

Inside, the gloom enveloped him, making it impossible to see where the doorway led. The chill wind continued to howl outside, but fortunately the doorway sheltered Mike from the worst of it. Digging his Zippo from his coat pocket, Mike carefully coaxed the end of a branch into life as a make-shift torch. By using two dry branches and two green ones, held in a bundle, he manage to control the flame. Almost as an after thought, he also lit a cigarette, then examined the passage he stood in.

It continued a distance, on a slight downward slope, obviously hewed from the rock of the small hill behind the doorway. It turned a corner after about fifteen feet, and Mike, his curiosity aroused, rounded the corner. He gasped as he was confronted by an ornate door, apparently covered in beaten gold. A wax seal in a second, unrecognized language, bridged the crack between the door and its frame. Mike stared incredulously at the whole thing, visions of lost treasure dancing through his head. Finally, he embedded his torch in the soft sand of the passage, and pulled with all his might on the door, which slowly swung open, dragging a swirl of dust.

The first thing Mike saw when he looked inside was two half-burned tallow candles, covered in dust, resting on a little ledge just inside the door. He picked them up, blowing the coating of dust away, and lit them from his trusty lighter. Replacing one on the ledge, he held the second one high, and entered the room.

For an instant, he felt disappointment, seeing the bare stone walls and empty floor. But something on the far side of the room reflected the candle-light with a gleam, and Mike walked forward. Suddenly, he sucked in his breath in surprise. On a crudely carved stone alter rested a foot high statuette. Carved from jade, and inlaid with gold, it's ruby eyes sparkled back at him, seeming almost alive in the dance of the candle's flame. It depicted some sort of man/beast - or, perhaps woman/beast. Two horns crested a squat, snorted face with elongated fangs gleaming from the muzzle. The torso sported four arms, the top two muscular and masculine, the bottom two slender and feminine. A quartet of breasts, each with ridiculously enlarged nipples, thrust from the chest of the sculpture, but nestled between the powerful legs was a large, thick penis with enormous testicles. A tail rose from the back of the sculpture.

The quality of the carving was uncanny - every detail, no matter how tiny, had been perfectly rendered in the stone. Placing the candle on the alter, Mike carefully lifted the cold statue from its bed of dust, grunting at the surprising weight of the thing. Carefully cradling the item in one elbow, Mike took the candle and retraced his steps, pausing only to put out the second candle and the torch, and push the heavy door shut with his butt.

Back at the entrance to the underground... whatever, Mike was pleased to see the hail-storm was dying. Gently resting his new acquisition beside him, he sat down and slowly savored a cigarette, mentally trying to estimate the worth of the statue. By the time he was done, the storm had run it's course, and Mike hefted the treasure for the hike home.

By the time he got home, night was falling, and Mike's arms, back and legs were protesting. The small but weighty statue seemed to have gotten heavier with every step taken, and even with his exultation of finding it, he was glad to put it down on the kitchen counter when he got inside. Stretching, Mike looked around and sighed. The place was still the mess it had been when he left this morning, and it depressed him.

The previous owner had been a recluse, as well as a pervert. The man's brother had had the man committed to a mental institution, and sold the house cheap, complete with his brother's old belongings. The eclectic collection filled the house to the rafters. The living room was walled, floor to ceiling, with shelves holding a vast collection of porn movies. The only other furniture in that room was a big-screen TV, a VCR, an easy chair and a small table. The main bedroom was lined with magazine racks, arranged in alphabetical and chronological order, holding a vast array of porno mags. But the real 'show-stopper' was what had been the dining room... and was now a museum of sorts. Every item on display had been carefully arranged, labeled and artistically lit. Boasting a variety of items, Mike had been unable to resist giving it a look. A variety of wigs, labeled 'Wigs used in the movie 'Invasion of the B-Girls' '. A variety of women's footwear 'Compiled from Playmate of the Months'. A make-up table, complete with make-up, 'The table used by Demi Moore in 'Striptease' '. Women's clothing. Women's lingerie. Sex toys, bizarre props, weird devices.

Exhausted by his day, Mike turned off the lights, stumbled to his bed, and fell into a deep, dreamless sleep.

* * * * *

The sunlight streaming through the window finally prompted Mike to roll groggily from bed. Stumbling into the kitchen, he sloppily set up the CoffeMatic, and listened impatiently as it burbled. His eyes fell on the jade statue on the counter, and his brow furrowed in concentration until he recalled where he had gotten it. Mike wasn't much good at anything, including thinking, until he'd had his morning dose of caffeine, liberally laced with sugar. Finishing his first cup in a few scalding gulps, he poured a second cup to savor slowly with his first cigarette, and studied the statue in daylight.

The craftsmanship of it was even more evident in daylight. Even the hair surrounding the base of the penis was excruciatingly detailed. Once more Mike's mind whirled as he tried to estimate its value. Hefting it, he carried it into the living room, and placed it on the small table beside the easy chair. Then, still dressed only in his Jockey briefs and white undershirt, he set about cleaning the place up.

He had already decided to leave the set-up 'pervert selection' alone for now. As depraved as it was, at least it was tidy. Mike's main worry at the moment was several boxes cluttering up the floor of the living room and bedroom. Plopping into the easy chair, he dragged the first box beside him, opened the lid, and began to sort through it. He was not surprised to see the item on the very top was a video cassette, labeled 'Busty Blowjob Babes - Vol. 6.' Mike was certain if he checked the racks he would find 'Busty Blowjob Babes' Vols. 1-5, neatly arranged and labeled. Sighing, he laid it aside.

What was under it caught him a little by surprise though - 'Muscle Magazine's Power & Sizzle'. He picked it up, and began to flip through it, finding it full of lingerie clad, steroid filled female body builders. Mike wondered who actually found the freaks exciting. He started to close the magazine, intending to toss it on top of the 'Busty Blowjob Babes' tape.

Suddenly, a deep green glow filled the room. Mike's head whipped around, and he stared at the statue, which was filled with an eerie green inner light, so bright he had to squint. Awe and fear began to rise in him... then vanished, as he fell into a strange, emotionless daze. Slowly, his eyes returned to the magazine he held, which his hands had opened randomly to a page. He found himself looking at a flat-chested, grotesquely over-muscled blonde ludicrously dressed in a red negligee and matching heels. A strange tingle began to wash over Mike in slow, throbbing waves.

A strange pulling sensation prompted Mike to lower his eyes and stare vacuously at his crotch. The tight fabric of his underwear seemed to slowly deflate as the pulling sensation grew stronger. His eyes wandered unthinkingly to his legs, where he disinterestedly watched as all his leg hair fell out, to settle in a small pile at his feet. His gaze slowly rose and refocused on the picture of the female body builder, and he stared mindlessly at it as the green glow continued to fill the room.

The glow, and the accompanying daze, lasted for about ten minutes. As the glow faded, Mike's mind returned, and he yelled "What the fuck!", and hurled the magazine away. Clutching at his empty crotch, he stumbled towards the full-length mirror in the bathroom. A constant, unthinking litany of "Oh my God" issued from his mouth, but Mike didn't even realize he was saying it.

Even in what he wore, a look in the mirror revealed nothing obviously amiss. An observer would notice almost nothing different about Mike, aside from the smoothness of his legs. But, ripping off his clothes, Mike revealed what he feared most. In place of his penis, a very female vagina nestled between his smooth thighs, and two tiny, almost non-existent breasts rode high on his chest. Stunned, Mike slumped back onto the toilet. "Oh my God.." he whispered, his voice only slightly changed. "I'm a woman.." And a spectacularly unattractive one at that, he thought. He felt a terrible rage building up inside him, bushing aside the shock and horror, and he stormed back into the living room, his face contorted in rage. "You!" he screamed insanely at the statue. "You did this.. to me!" Enraged, he reached forward, intending to smash the statue to bits. The instant his hands touched it's surface, a powerful shock ran through him, hurtling him back, and knocking him into blessed unconsciousness.

Part Two: Realization - Trip to Town - The Glow Returns

Slowly, Mike struggled back to consciousness, prodded by a dull throbbing ache in the base of his spine, and a signal from an over- taxed bladder. He opened his eyes and staggered upright, his vision fading in and out. The motion made his bladder protest even more strongly. The graying light from the windows informed him that it was late afternoon - he had been unconscious for more than seven hours. He stumbled painfully into the bathroom and splashed cold water in his face until things steadied down, then with great trepidation, looked at himself in the mirror.

There was no change in his body since he had passed out. He was still female. Staring at his naked body, Mike was very aware how ugly a female he made - he again realized that, fully dressed, no one could tell he'd changed. But he knew yes, he knew, and it sickened him. Unable to ignore his bladder any longer, he turned to the toilet.. then sighed and lowered the seat. Blushing, he sat down and urinated for the first time as a woman. Wiping himself with toilet paper, he flushed the toilet and stood. With a much steadier walk, he left the bathroom, eyeing the statue with distrust and fear as he headed towards the kitchen. He'd phone a doctor...

He stopped with a jerk, almost falling, as he realized that there was no phone service to the house. He's just moved in, and hadn't gotten around to it yet. He'd have to drive into town to talk to anyone or make any phone calls. He became instantly, intensely aware of his nudity, and shivered. Turning back around, he went into his bedroom and hurriedly dressed in the clothes from yesterday. He was slightly surprised to find that, although his clothes fit perfectly, he seemed to have a size smaller feet. He debated pulling on a second pair of socks, then recalled his tennis sneakers by the back door - he'd had them for years, and they were - had been - a size too small. Now, Mike blessed the fact he'd never thrown them out.

He was passing through the living room to get the shoes, and he glanced with hate at the idol.. and reality hit him. Grunting, as if he'd actually been punched in the stomach, he collapsed into the chair. He stared, wide eyed and unseeing, at the statuette.

"Dear God how am I going to get anyone to believe this?" he asked himself in a horrified voice. He'd always been a loner. He had no close friends. His parents were both dead. Hell, he'd never even been in the hospital, and had hated going to doctors. He had no conclusive proof that he'd been male, aside from his I.D. - and faced with the story he had to tell, any listener would assume he'd found it easier to go through life as a normal looking male, rather than an ugly woman. If he persisted in his 'crazy' story, they'd look him up and throw away the key. Probably in the cell next to the previous owner of this house. Mike was shocked to find he was very close to tears.

Unwilling to try disposing of the idol, and needing to get away from it, Mike pulled on the tennis shoes - which fit perfectly - and grabbed his car keys. He needed to head into town for groceries anyway, and he needed to think over his - unique - predicament. The twenty minute trip each way should provide ample time to think. He hoped.

* * * * *

Pulling up to his house two hours later, he sat in the car and smoked a cigarette as he watched the last sliver of the sun disappear into the distant treeline. A deep dread of the idol still nestled in his stomach, and he hesitated to re-enter the house. Yet, for some reason, he also felt that he HAD to.

The trip into town had gone fairly well. He'd managed to buy his groceries and various sundries using a check and his I.D. He'd had cash, but had done it to quell his fears. They'd accepted him as 'Mike Reynolds' without question. For the same reason, he'd dropped by the real-estate office. The realtor, Jerry DeNutry, was the only person in town who'd met Mike before. He also didn't seem to notice anything wrong with Mike, except asking him if he was catching a cold. Jerry thought Mike sounded a 'little stuffed up'. Mike had gone along with the assumption.

Yet, the entire time he'd been gone, he'd begun to feel a strange... homesickness? That wasn't quite right, but the longer he was away, the stronger the strange want to return home became. Mike had hovered between testing how long he could last before it got overwhelming with heading home immediately. It had still been nothing more than a very vague urge when he headed home, deciding he didn't want to find out - yet - what would happen if he tried resisting it.

Finally, with a sigh, he turned off the ignition and climbed out of his aging LandCruiser with his back of groceries, and let himself into his house. Leaving the groceries on the table, he moved quickly into his room, not even glancing at the idol. Once he had the door shut behind him, he sat on his bed and pulled out a pad and paper and a pen. Trying to lose himself in his work he started to write.

By almost nine, the boredom had got the better of him. He found himself unable to put anything worth keeping on the paper, and the bed was surrounded with a flurry of discarded pages. Finally, taking a deep breath, he ventured out into the living room. Almost gingerly, he lowered himself into the armchair, eyed the statuette, and steeled up enough courage to pick up the remote that lay beside it. He flipped on the TV, and began to channel surf.

He spent an hour watching Voyager, a show he enjoyed, and was pleased to find he'd managed to lose himself in the episode, not even thinking about the idol once during the whole hour. Likewise, another favorite of his, E.R., managed to hold him similarly engrossed until eleven. Then, with the news taking most stations, he began to flip through the channels for something else to watch.

He'd stopped briefly on an infomercial for an exercise machine when the idol flared to life again, once more sinking Mike into a daze. The same, pulsating waves of tingling washed over him as his thoughts and emotions drained away. Unable to look away from the TV, he couldn't see what new alterations were being made to his body, and in his current state, was unable to care. He merely sat and mindlessly watched the infomercial for the half-hour period the glow lasted. When it finally died, Mike simply, quietly, passed out.

Part Three: Weight Loss - A History Lesson - The Autograph

Mike awoke the next morning, stiff from sleeping in the chair all night, with his body feeling odd and unbalanced. He kept his eyes closed and took deep breath for several minutes, trying to work up the courage to look down. Somehow, despite the odd feel of his body, and his previous experience, he felt as if it wasn't real until he looked. Finally, he opened his eyes and stared straight ahead, not looking down.

"Fuck it" he said, flinching as a distinctively female voice emerged. "This is too much to deal with before coffee."

He levered himself out of the chair (much easier than ever before) and headed for the kitchen. Despite the unusual feel and balance of his body, he moved easily and naturally. He had to hold his jeans up with one hand, or they had a tendency to slide down to his hips, where they'd stop. He ignored it. As he set up the machine, he found his eyes following the smooth, slender sweep of his new arm to the equally feminine hand that graced it. He poured the first cup, and gulped it down as he strode to the bathroom.

He looked at his body clothed for a long moment, then slowly, methodically undressed. He stared at the unfamiliar nude body reflected in the mirror, the light up a cigarette. He studiously ignored everything while he savored his first smoke of the day, carefully keeping all his emotions in check. When the cigarette was down to its filter, he tossed it in the toilet, then turned and looked in the mirror again.

Quite a bit of Mike's face was in the face of the woman looking back at him. It was more slender, almost eleven, and softer, but the same ice-blue eyes looked back at him. His hair had remained roughly the same, now a shaggy mass of dark black hair, short and uneven around the face. He was about the same height, but was much more slender, especially around the shoulders. His hips, about the same size as before, looked wider on the slimmer frame. His breasts were larger, but still quite small, an A or small B cup, tipped with little nubs or nipples. Though definitely female, he wasn't a stunner - he barely made cute, in a tomboyish sort of way.

Surprisingly, he found it easier to .. well, not accept, but handle, the second transformation. It was not only less of a sudden shock, but he was able to reign in his panic, knowing it wouldn't do any good. He walked, naked, into his room, and looked for something to wear. Since he was the same height, a pair of old blue jeans, that had been tight in the legs, fit well enough, if he used a belt to hold the waist up. There was a delay while he punched new holes in the belt for his diminished waist. As for a shirt, he found a blue dress-shirt that fit well enough, nicely hiding his breasts from sight. He left it untucked.

He headed back to the kitchen and got himself a second cup of coffee.. and stopped dead. There, beside his keys, where he'd left his wallet last night, was a small, simple brown clutch purse. With trembling hands, Mike opened it and dumped out the contents.

It contained the same items he'd always kept in his wallet, and the same amount of cash as he'd had last night... but now, all the I.D. feature a photo of his new, feminine features, and carried the name 'Michelle Reynolds'. He found himself gripping the edge of the table as his sight began to gray out, and in his new voice he repeated over and over "I will NOT faint I WILL NOT faint"

Finally, the feeling passed. He sat, stunned, for a few minutes, then carefully, methodically prepared a breakfast of bacon and eggs. He ate them all with a cup of coffee, had another cup with a cigarette, and finished with some orange juice. He put away the groceries from yesterday, then went to the bathroom. After calmly using it, he stood up, turned around.. and vomited repeatedly into the toilet, until he hung clinging to the bowl, helplessly alternating between cursing and crying.

* * * * *

Mike cleaned himself up and began to look through the hose, inventorying his life. His old year book held a photo, much younger, but definitely the female face he now had. Instead of 'Boys Football', it had listed 'Girl's Volleyball'. Mike figured that made sense. The closet where he'd put the two cartons of books he'd gotten published was somewhat of a surprise - it now contained five cartons, most of which were romance novels. He wasn't surprised.

Needing additional verification, Mike decided to pay another visit to town. Even the tennis shoes wouldn't fit any more, but a pair of sandals with adjustable straps did the job. And, they even went with his outfit. He smiled grimly at the thought. He scooped up his purse(HIS purse?!) and keys, and stepped outside, only to find a brand-new Range Rover had replaced his aging Toyota. He shrugged, got in and started it.

As he got to town, he had to stop and wait until a fit of shaking passed. Over night, the small, sleepy town had been replaced with one twice it's size, looking as if it had always been there. When he was able to drive again, he was forced to drive almost aimlessly until he located the realtor's office, now larger and located in a different building. He walked in and asked the receptionist to see Jerry DeNultry.

He was escorted to a larger, more upscale office and shown in. Jerry looked up from his desk and smiled at Mike. "Miss Reynolds! I wasn't expecting to see you today! How can I help you?"

Mike felt a chill run down his (newly slender) back at the greeting, but had come prepared for the situation. He forced what he hoped was a convincing smile. "Well, Mr. DeNultry, I just wanted to thank you for all your help." Mike reached into the purse and pulled out a book he'd put in before he left. A paperback thriller, written by 'Michelle Reynolds', and a New York Times bestseller (according to the cover). "I thought I'd give you a signed copy of one of my books"

Jerry's smile widened. "Why, thank you. That's very nice of you." He came around the desk to claim the book, flipping it open to read the autograph. "To Jerry, the man who really moved me. Love, Michelle" Mike had written it based on other signed copies he'd found.

"Thank you Michelle" Jerry said sincerely. He placed the book on the desk, then opened the door. "Let me escort you out." He slipped one hand behind Mike's back and gently guided him to the front door, thanking him again. As they reached the door, Mike was shocked as Jerry's hand slid down his back and light caressed his new, feminine ass. Mike managed to not react in any way.

"Please," Jerry called after Mike, "Please feel free to stop by any time, Michelle"

Mike pretended he didn't hear him, and drove home rapidly, berating himself for the wording of the autograph. It was obvious that Jerry had misconstrued it, and Mike simply didn't know a graceful way of informing him. He resolved to avoid Jerry completely in the future.

Part Four Decision - Writing - Bigger and Smaller

Mike had a full lunch at a small diner on the edge of town (it hadn't been there yesterday) before heading home. A odd sort of stillness had settled over him, causing him to accept that his life had changed beyond his ability to retrieve. As he ate, he searched deep inside for the hopelessness and despair of suicide - and didn't find it. He found shock, anger, despair, confusion, and even awe, but above all, he found the drive to go on, regardless. It felt odd - scary - to face life as a woman, but he found he preferred the thought to death.

As he pulled his new Rover up to the front of his house, he was again aware of the odd 'homesickness' he'd felt before, but he'd been gone for less time this trip, and so he still did not know what would happen if he left for an extended period. He also found he still didn't want to find out yet.

He decided to try writing, and sat down in the easy chair with a pad of paper and a pen. He spent several hours futilely trying to get a start on a mystery novel, and failed miserably. Another hour was wasted attempting a mystery short story, which, early in his career he would knock out with monotonous regularity. That also failed. Frustrated, he spent a few hours watching TV and nursing a few beers before bed. He used the toilet emotionlessly, brushed his teeth, and climbed naked between the sheets. It took some time to drift off.

* * * * *

The next morning, he awoke with a very slight hangover - those few beers had hit harder than he'd expected, due to his reduced body mass. He made his morning coffee and lingered over a cigarette, then decided to just go ahead with what he'd been putting off - a shower.

He steeped nude into the stall and adjusted the water the way he liked it.. then turned it a few degrees cooler, surprised to discover the heat bothered him. Slowly, he began to lather up, sliding the bar of soap over his new body. He slid the bar of soap across his soft, supple new skin, then used shampoo on his hair. After rinsing his hair, he began to rinse off his slick, soapy body, his feminine new hands sliding up and down the toned flesh. He lingered for a second on his new ass, then his hands slid up and began to slide across his small, pert breasts. Slowly, he closed his eyes and tilted his head back as his fingers began to massage his erect, sensitive nipple. One hand continued to caress his nipples, as the other slowly slid down, across his smooth stomach, between his silky thighs, and....

Mike's eyes flew open and he pulled his hands away, roughly shutting off the water. Getting out, he toweled off quickly and got dressed in an out fit similar to what he wore yesterday. Leaving his hair damp, he crawled into the easy chair, closed his eyes, and concentrated on writing - anything at all. Soon, his face softened, and his eyes opened as a small smile surfaced. His pen began to fly across the page as words rose from the depths of his mind, and he began to write.

He wrote all day, lost in the world he was creating, breaking absentmindedly only twice - once for a quick washroom-and-snack break, the other to get more paper. Finally, long after midnight, when he had to fight to keep his eyes open, he laid his writing aside, stumbled into bed, and fell into a dead sleep. Had he known, he'd been mildly amused to find he still snored.

* * * * *

Mike blinked at the too-bright sunlight streaming in the window, then blearily checked the clock, surprised to find it was nearly noon. Still dressed from last night, he hauled himself out of bed and made coffee. Taking his second cup, and cigarette, into the living room, he spied the notepad laying where he'd left it. He picked it up where he'd left off, to see how it looked in the cold light of day and a chill ran up and down his spine.

"But Eric", she gasped, full, ripe bosom heaving beneath her gown. "You know I'm married. It would be wrong!" She turned her face away, her raven tresses swinging in the wind. Eric stepped from the doorway, his depthless green eyes locking on to hers. "My darling Catharine, you know I could never hurt you." he said, his voice seeming to reach in and surround her wildly beating heart. "Tell me to go, not to see you ever again, and I will." he promised. She gasped at the thought, and the truth washed over her. "No, Eric, I can not live without you. I beg of you, if you really love me, take me! Take me now, my darling one!" Eric's strong, manly arms grasped her slender waist as he carried her to the bed. He...

Mike tossed the pad onto the floor, shivering. HE had written THAT? It.. just wasn't possible. A dark fear began to steal through him, that maybe... NO! He did not find men attractive. Jerry's touch had sickened him. He still liked women! Didn't he?

Mike tried to stop thinking about it.. but how could he really know? Maybe it had happened AFTER Jerry No! He sat for a minute, trying to calm himself. Then, an idea, so simple, stole over him. He jumped out of the chair and went into his room. Without even looking, he grabbed the first porno mag that came to hand and returned to the chair. This should tell him in a minute whether or not he still found women attractive. He looked down at what he held. 'Playboy's Petites'. He opened it up, and began to flip through the pages. Almost immediately, he felt a sense of relief. He DEFINITELY found some of these women attractive. He found it odd to feel so.. different.. as he got aroused, but he was definitely getting turned.....

Suddenly, the idol flared once more into life, and Mike re-entered a daze. He stared at the picture of the woman as the tingling began to build. Emotionlessly, he watched as his perspective of the room shifted as he slowly settled deeper into the chair. In a disinterested way he realized he was getting shorter - considerably shorter. At the same time, his shirt began to tighten across his chest.

After fifteen minutes, he came out of his daze, the magazine tumbling from his fingers. Slowly, he took off his clothes and, head held high, walked into the bathroom.

Again, his face and hair remained about the same, but he'd lost almost a foot of height. His new body was more feminine still, and a pair of C-cup breasts thrust from his chest proudly. He had no worries about his sexuality - his new body, from its firm, proud tits to his absolutely spectacular ass was turning him on, and he watched as his larger nipple swelled. He slowly sank to sit on the toilet, and his dainty hands (with longer nails) rose to lightly touch his new breasts. Slowly, he began to fondle them, paying attention to his nipples, which were even more sensitive than before. Little bolts of pleasure began to run from them as he continued to fondle his new endowments. "Oh, what the hell" he decided in his new soprano voice, and stood up. Still caressing himself, he went into his bedroom and lay on the bed. Closing his eyes, he visualized he was male again, doing this to a woman who looked the way he did now. His hands began to explore his new body, its firm tits, its flat stomach, the silky legs. Slowly, one hand approached his wet, hot cunt.. and he slipped a finger inside.

His eyes flew open, then he closed them again as he began to work his finger inside his pussy. He began to moan as erotic new sensation flooded his female body. He bit his lower lip as a wave of pleasure swept over him as he experienced his first female orgasm.

He took a long, hot shower, spending a lot of time on his shapely new breasts, wondering where, exactly, one found lesbians. The thought of another woman doing these things to his body aroused him again, and he had to stop before it went too far. He also realized he'd have to go shopping for clothes. None of his would fit anymore.

Emerging, naked, from the shower, he crawled into an easy chair that seemed much larger than before. He flicked on the TV and began to flip through the channels. Suddenly, the statue began to glow again, and he found himself watching MTV's Fashion File from beginning to end as the tingling ran through him. Finally, it subsided, and he hurried to the bathroom - to find absolutely nothing had changed. He checked twice, just to be sure.

"Whew." he sighed. "That was odd, but I'm not complaining." He went back into the other room and looked at the idol. "Guess you can't work more than once a day, huh?" he said to it. He sighed and decide he might as well do his shopping - if he could find something to wear into town, that is.

Going into the 'museum', he began to look through the clothes for something to wear. He finally settled on something he thought would fit - a white C-cup bra, necessary because the blouse was white silk, and he didn't want his nipples on display. A pair of black jeans which were quite tight, but wearable, and a pair of black pumps with a two-inch heel, the only footwear in the house that fit. He was slightly worried about the heels, but wasn't surprised to find he could walk in them easily, with a smooth, graceful stride.

Grabbing his keys, he began to leave.. and suddenly, felt horribly, horribly exposed. He frowned and re-entered the bathroom to check himself. He looked fine - except, his face. It was so... plain.

In a flash, he realized what had happened. Sighing, he went back into the museum. As he passed the idol, he muttered "Alright, so you CAN do two things in one day." Seating himself at the make-up table, he looked over the array - and found he knew exactly what to do. Expertly, he applied a light blush, some eyeshadow, a subdued eyeliner, and an equally subdued lipstick. Dropping the lipstick in his purse, he decided to make sure nothing else was going to crop up, and ran an inventory of his house - and got a surprise.

His I.D. had changed to match a new height and weight... but the name had changed too. It now read 'Michelle LeCroix'. For a few horrified moments, he wondered if he was no married - but he quickly discovered the truth. His boxes of books were now press clippings, for the actress Michelle LeCroix, who had changed her name on coming to Hollywood. Mike sighed. Being a semi-famous actress wouldn't be too bad, he decided.

Outside, he got another surprise - the Rover was now a Corvette. Lowering himself into the candy-apple red car, he decided he could get used to this, too. He was also pleased to find that the road had become paved, which shortened the trip into town... especially when you were doing ten miles over the limit. He smiled.

Part Five: Shopping - The Bar - Slut-Bitch

Mike returned after a marathon nine-hour shopping spree. Once again, the city had been even larger, and offered a wider range of boutiques and specialty women's shops. He had found himself window shopping for an hour before he'd entered the first store. He had started shopping, and found himself enjoying it immensely, and he had finally stopped only when that undeniable tug to go home had gotten strong enough to be annoying. It took several trips to lug all his purchases inside, but finally he had everything in and put away. He had changed into a simple white dress that came to his ankles, enjoying the feel of the soft fabric next to his skin.

He sat in the easy chair for a few hours, watching TV, until the 11 o'clock news came on. The entire time, he lightly stroked his body through the silk fabric of the dress. He turned the TV off, and started for the bedroom... then stopped, as a naughty thought came into his mind. Blushing furiously, he went into the museum, then went into his room.

He pulled off the dress and lay on the bed, slowly fondling his body, focusing on his firm breasts. When he became thoroughly aroused, he picked up the object from the museum - a slender, pink dildo. Slowly, he inserted it and began to masturbate, his body rocking in time with the thrusts. The orgasm, when it came, was much more powerful than the first, and he continued using the dildo until he came a second, weaker time. Sighing, he rolled over and dropped off to sleep.

* * * * *

He awoke the next morning with a plan in mind. He started with his customary cup of coffee and cigarette, then headed for the bathroom for a shower.

He took the slim dildo with him, and was under the spray for nearly half an hour, partially washing, partially using the small dildo to great effect, sliding it erotically over his firm, shapely body before sliding it with a slight gasp into his hot, wet cunt. He drove it in and out, feeling his vaginal muscles squeezing the plastic as she worked up to an orgasm, her body shuddering with the pleasure.

Next, she climbed out and dried off, then sat in front of a mirror, and carefully did his make-up, paying close attention to every detail, enhancing his pretty features. With the same care, he picked her clothes. A pair of tight blue-jeans that clung to his legs. A Tight black T-shirt over his large, braless breasts. And a pair of black leather thigh-high boots with a 3 inch heel.

Smiling at the image presented in the mirror, he grabbed his purse and headed out the door. A short, fast drive into town, and he pulled up to the first phone booth he found. In no time, he found what he wanted, listed under 'Specialty Clubs and Bars.' Fifteen minutes later, he pulled the sporty car into the parking lot of a local lesbian bar and climbed out, and anticipatory smile curving his full, gloss-red lips.

Inside, the bar was smoky, a heavy pounding beat more felt than heard. He lit a cigarette in self-defense, and began to cruise around. Immediately he discovered that about seventy percent of the women he wasn't even interested in looking at - too fat, too thin, too dyke. .

. He walked up to the bar and ordered a beer, and sat on a stool, sipping the cold Heineken, waiting to see what developed.

Before too long, he heard a stool next to him creak, and he turned to appraise his new neighbor. His gracefully arched eyebrows rose, liking what he saw. He held out a slender, long nailed hand.

"Hi. I'm Michelle" he introduced himself.

"Cori" the other woman replied. She was a tall, muscular black woman with a long mane of dark hair. She was muscled, but still feminine, with large, firm breasts in a tight, dark red spandex crop-top. She wore blue-jeans and a pair of black leather 'combat boots' with a custom 1 1/2 inch heel. Her eyes were dark, liquid, and long lashed. She eyed Michelle, and asked in her rich, erotic voice. "Have I seen you in movies?"

Michelle nodded. "Yeah. I'm an actress" he 'admitted'.

"I thought I recognized you," Cori said, a slow, sensual smile forming. "You looking for a little bit of fun?"

Michelle returned the smile. "Oh, I might be able to fit you into my busy schedule." he said slyly. "Care to go for a ride?"

Cori nodded, and paid for both of their drinks. Michelle stood, and Cori wrapped on strong ebony arm around Michelle's waist, and walked with him out to his 'vette, climbing in. Michelle started the engine, revving it for a couple of seconds. He leaned over the gearshift, and Cori's lips met his in a long, deep kiss. Then, he dropped the car into gear, and floored it.

Accompanied by the distinctive smell of burnt rubber, the sports car squealed out of the lot, sliding onto the road and accelerating like a bat out of hell. Michelle set some sort of land speed record as he aimed the red bomb on wheels home. Cori held on tightly, her face split by a dazzling grin.

He led her inside his house, and she eyed the 'decor' with pursed lips. "Quite a collection you have here," she said to Michelle, looking at the displays in the 'museum'. Idly, she ran one long, black finger up and down a large, black, strap-on dildo, and turned to him, an erotic question in her eyes.

"Later," Michelle said, wrapping his arms around her "it'll be your turn. Right now . . ." He took another, smaller strap-on off the wall, this one double-ended. He led Cori into the bedroom.

Slowly, erotically, they undressed each other. Michelle freed Cori's ebony breasts, leaning forward to suck lightly on her large, dark nipples. Cori moaned softly, and removed his shirt, her long, dark fingers caressing Michelle's creamy globes. They finished undressing and fell into the bed, their naked bodies entwined, light on dark, as their full lips met in passionate hunger and their hands moved over each other's soft, silky skin.

Michelle broke the grip, and picked up the dildo. Sliding then end up into his damp cunt with a gasp, he fastened the straps. Pretending he was male again, he positioned himself, and slid his 'dick' into Cori and began to thrust.

The fiction that he was male was hard to maintain - with every thrust his large, firm tits bounced on his chest, his nipples engorged and sensitive. The little moans of pleasure he made were very feminine, caused by the feel of the dildo sliding in the slick confines of his pussy. He watched Cori's face writhe in pleasure as he drove her closer and closer to orgasm. Finally, Cori screamed as her body was rocked by ecstasy, and a few seconds later Michelle's own, much weaker orgasm followed.

They lay together, the dildo still connecting them, as the gently kissed each other's lips. Then, Cori gently pulled away. She undid the straps holding the dildo on him, and took it with her as she padded into the other room. Several minutes passed before she called for him.

He entered the room, and stooped dead, his nipples swelling as the low heat in his crotch became a roaring fire. Cori was an erotic vision of black-on-black. Her feet and legs were encased in Michelle's spike-heeled black leather boots. A black leather corset, cinched deliciously tight, pinched Cori's waist into an exaggerated hourglass below her dusky round breasts. And strapped to her crotch, thrusting proudly from her silky, muscular thighs, was the large black dildo.

Cori approached him with a slow, sensuous strut, her eyes gleaming. She backed him against a wall, her muscular arms braced to either side of him, 'trapping' him in place. Cori forced her lips onto his, kissing him hungrily, almost viciously. Their firm breasts pushed erotically against each other, and Michelle began to fondle Cori's firm, full ass.

Cori moved her hips, and Michelle gasped as the smooth plastic filled her sopping pussy. Cori's hands grasped his full ass, and she lifted him against the wall. He wrapped his long, silky legs around her full, dark hips, and began to toss his head in pleasure as Cori began to pound the dildo deep into his cunt.

It was the most incredible sensation he had ever experienced. He didn't even notice his head whacking off the wall as he moaned and begged for more, his hot, wet vagina spasming as he built towards climax. Finally, in a wave of ecstasy, a thunderous chain of orgasms shook his petite body, and he screamed unrestrainedly as he shuddered and writhed.

Cori didn't stop. Still bucking her muscular hips, she lifted him from the wall and carried him into the kitchen. Laying him on the table, she climbed atop him, and began to increase her incredible, driving rhythm. She brought him to another series of teeth-rattling orgasms as she pounded him into the table. And still, she did not stop.

Michelle learned how powerful Cori truly was as over the next two hours, she continuously drove him to the heights of pleasure over and over. He quickly lost track of how many different positions, how many orgasms he thundered through, his brain turning into nothing but one giant mass of unthinking pleasure as Cori worked the tireless plastic dildo in a thousand subtle ways. When the muscular black slut-bitch finally released an exhausted Michelle from his orgasmic torment, he rode the diminishing afterglow down the long tunnel towards sleep.

Part Six: Reassuring Cori - The Club - Birthday Presents

He awoke the next morning, laying on the living room floor. Slowly, he sat up, wincing as he did so. His entire body was stiff and sore, with bruises on his head and ass, and rug burns on his shoulders, knees and elbows. But the worst was the pain from his over-used vagina. His silky legs were covered with the dried residue of the unbelievable session of lesbian lovemaking.

Stiffly, he set the coffee maker in operation, for now ignoring the note next to it, and awkwardly to a long, hot, soothing shower, pulling on his softest silk negligee after gently toweling himself dry. He returned to the kitchen, avoiding the shattered sugar bowl that had been on the table, and now lay in a thousand glittering fragments on the worn linoleum floor. Taking the note and his coffee, he eased himself into the chair next to the idol and lit a cigarette.

Dear Michelle, (the note read)

That was obviously your first time in that bar. Otherwise, you would have known what you were getting into with me. Because it was your first time, I took it easy on you, but you're probably still feel sore this morning. This isn't for everyone, I know, and if you're not interested in a rematch, I'll understand. But I hope we can still be friends. I'm catching a cab back to town - one of my regular 'catchers' is waiting for me. If you want to talk, or get together for lunch or a movie, call me - 621-2764

Cori (p.s. - I love the way you drive!)

Michelle grunted - Cori took it easy on him? It was an interesting experience, and incredible while it was happening, but the aftermath was another matter. And she had lovers who did this regularly? Thinking it over, he realized that the pain wasn't really that much worse than a really bad hangover, and in college, he'd willingly gotten royally pissed often enough, knowing exactly how he'd feel the next day. He supposed it was the same sort of thing.

Not willing to do anything to strenuous, he decided to just sit and watch some TV. He picked up the remote, and flipped the TV on, flipping through the late morning shows, looking for something to watch. Finally, on channel 22, he found the 'Channel 22 Midday Movie' logo flash up, and he decided to see what was coming on.

Almost the instant the title flashed on the screen - "Fraternity Vacation" - he knew that whatever paranormal intelligence that resided in the idol wouldn't pass this up. He was right - the idol flared to life, and he was once again sunk into that emotionless daze that announced it's power.

The daze lasted for the longest time yet, the entire two-hour length of the movie. He felt his body slowly changing during the course of that time, slowly altering itself. The pain of his(her) body also faded, and he(she) felt the idol's power moving through his/her mind, changing thought patterns he/she'd held for her entire life. She found herself sliding emotionlessly into a new, more feminine mind frame. Her thoughts, memories and personality were left basically untouched, except for a new, more complete acceptance of her femininity. It was the wealth of new feminine skill and habits that the idol introduced into her brain. She also watched without reaction as the room around her seemed to writhe and change.

Finally, the glow faded as the end credits rolled across the screen. She blinked as it released her from the daze, and performed her now ritual re-evaluation of her changed life.

As always, it started with an exploration of her body. She got out of the easy chair and walked to the bathroom to survey her new body in the full-length mirror. She was mildly surprised to find few changes - her previously C-cup breasts had swelled into D-cup size, and her lips had become fuller, and more sensual. Other than that, she was physically unchanged.

A survey of the house turned up some new changes. Apparently, her popularity had increased with her bra size - her reviews were more numerous, and for larger roles bigger-budget films. The house was cleaner than before, with more expensive furnishings, and a phone was installed. To her shock, the house itself was actually larger - each room was approximately twenty percent bigger than it had been before. Her bed had gone from a single to a queen size.

The note from Cori - well, not exactly from Cori - had also changed. The paper and the handwriting had remained the same, but the text of the message had changed:

Dear Michelle, (the note read)

You got really drunk last night at the bar, girl. Otherwise, you would have never asked me to show you why I was a lesbian. Because I was drunk too, I took you up on the offer, but we're probably both feeling sorry this morning. It isn't for everyone, I know, and if you're not interested in a rematch, I'll understand. But I hope this won't hurt our friendship. I'm catching a cab back to town - I'm too ashamed of myself to face you this morning. If you want to talk, or get together for lunch or just cry or yell at me for taking advantage of an old college friend who've I've fantasized about for years, call me - 621-2764

Corinne

(p.s. - I'm sorry. But I love you, and last night was a dream come true. Please, forgive me.)

She read the note over. Obviously, Corinne had been a friend for years, and was still a lesbian. Since her new body wasn't sore, Michelle deduced that last-night love-making - from Corinne's memories - was a slower, gentler, more. . . friendly encounter. Michelle found herself becoming aroused at the thought, and she picked up the phone and dialed.

The phone was answered by a machine, and Michelle left a message asking Corinne to meet her at the mall's Food Court at one o'clock. Having given herself plenty of time, Michelle took the opportunity for a long, hot bath, her hands caressing and fondling her firm new breasts. She had brought her cigarettes and coffee in with her, and her sensual bathing lasted until the water cooled enough to be uncomfortable. She hopped out, feeling refreshed, and towed off. She carefully did her make up, considerably less subdued. Eyeing herself in the mirror, she mimed blowing a kiss to herself. Smiling to herself, she dressed in a tight black spandex dress that clung enticingly to her new curves, and a pair of matching heels. She was heading out the door when a thought occurred to her - she went into the museum, and picked out a page-boy cut wig in a gorgeous shade of red. She pulled it on over her own close-cut hair and admired how she looked. Swinging her purse over one slender shoulder, she trotted out to the 'vette and brought the engine roaring to life. As she sped down the highway, she noticed the city had changed again - just down the hill from her house, a college had sprung up, it's campus thronging with students.

Pulling into the slightly larger city, she found herself glad she had given herself lead time. The mall had changed location, and it took a half-hour of asking pedestrians for directions before she finally located it. She felt like her ego was about to burst - nearly every person, male and female, she'd asked for directions had recognized the 'famous' actress, Michelle LeCroix.

Humming to herself, she parked the shiny red sportscar, and headed into the mall, her firm ass swaying enticingly beneath the form-fitting dress.

Although she was fifteen minutes early, Michelle was surprised to find Corinne waiting for her. As the black woman stood and waved to catch her attention, Michelle eyed her appreciatively - Corinne was still remarkably fit and athletic, but had lost quite a bit of her muscle mass in the last change. Not that she realized it, of course.

"Hi, Corinne" Michelle said, giving the black woman a brief, but sincere hug. "Glad you could make it."

They sat down. "Look, Michelle..." Corinne started nervously. Michelle laughed and took one of Corinne's hands in both of hers. "Look, love," she said sincerely. "Last night was a wonderful new step in a deep, important friendship. I don't begrudge a thing. And, although I'm not looking to make a steady diet of it, I certainly am more than willing for a second go - and, after that. . . "

Corinne smiled, relieved. "Great. So we're still on for night-clubbing tonight."

Actually, Michelle had really hoped for a replay of the lovemaking she'd never experienced last night, but wasn't about to push. She faked a smile. "Of course, wouldn't miss it for the world."

"Great!" Corinne replied. "By the way, love the hair girl. Really chic." She pronounced the word like Chick, instead of 'sheik', and Michelle winced slightly.

"Thanks" she said wryly. "So, what do we do between now and tonight?" Corinne looked surprised. "Shop for something hot to wear, of course."

The next few hours were spent going through the mall, looking for the 'perfect' outfit for tonight. Michelle found her 'look' early - a gold lame dress that hugged her like a second skin, and matching pumps with a 3 1/2 inch heel. For accessories, she picked a gold necklace with a pendant heart that hung in the cleavage displayed by the low-cut dress, plus a gold bracelet, a gold anklet, and a pair of long gold and silver earrings. A silver chain belt was fit tightly around her waist.

Corinne was harder to please. She ended up buying a black denim skirt that fit tightly and encased her hips and legs until just above her nicely dimple knees. The top was a black spandex crop-top with netting in a two inch wide stripe down the middle and sides, displaying the cleavage created by the tight-fabric pushing her dusky globes together. A pair of black leather strap sandals with a 2 inch heel adorned her feet, and subdued pewter jewelry completed the look.

With time to spare, they grabbed a quick bite at the food court, then headed back to Michelle's house. They had decided to leave the car there and take a cab, so they could both drink. They had almost two hours to kill.

"So, how about a shower before we get ready?" Michelle asked nonchalantly. "Sure" Corinne said. "Sounds good. So, who gets the first turn?"

Michelle's smile widened. "Who said anything about taking turns?"

Corinne's eyes widened, and she giggled. Michelle took her by the hand and led her into the bathroom. She started the water running, then slowly began to undress Corinne, taking her time, and lightly kissing her every few minutes. Corinne was a little stiff at first, but soon loosened up, and reciprocated both undressing and kissing Michelle.

Soon they stood under the spray of warm water. Michelle produced two bars of soap, and they began to lather each other's body, not hurrying. Their kisses deepened, becoming more passionate. Slowly working her way downward, kissing her friend's silky body, Corinne knelt, grasped Michelle's buttocks, and pressed dusky lips against her ready cunt.

Michelle twined her fingers in Corinne's hair as her friend's long, supple tongue began to work inside her womanhood, causing Michelle to gasp softly in pleasure. A long, slow orgasm built, more a wave than the sharp firecrackers she'd had before, but equally pleasing.

She eased her friend to her feet, then repeated the process in reverse, pleasuring her dusky companion eagerly, tasting the sharp tang of her friend's juices anoint her probing tongue. When Corinne's hips bucked into orgasm, she finished, and slowly stood. They finished the shower kissing, and rinsing each other's body off, paying special attention to each other's engorged, flushed nipples and firm, round breasts.

They dressed in their new outfits with unneeded, caressing help from each other, and did each other's make-up. They smiled at each other as Michelle called for a cab to pick them up. Then, she and Corinne walked into the museum to pick out a wig for Michelle.

"What about this one?" Michelle asked, holding up a simple, shoulder-length chestnut 'do.

Corinne smiled salaciously. "No girl, go all out tonight" she urged, holding up the most ridiculously overdone wig in the collection - a long, curly, massive wig of platinum blonde tresses. Michelle protested, but Corinne wheedled her into trying it on. They headed towards the full-length bathroom mirror so Michelle could see the whole look.

As they passed through the living room, the statue flared into bright green life. Dazed, Michelle watched without emotions as the room rippled and changed. A second bedroom appeared between the bathroom and her room, as the bathroom expanded becoming larger. Michelle's mindless gaze shifted as her body began to change, and she watched her dazed friend changed.

The clothing stayed the same, but the body inside of it changed under Michelle's gaze. Corinne's dark, full breasts began to expand, passing through D-cup, DD, DDD, EE, and halting at last at an enormous F-cup, the spandex top changing to contain her massive new endowments. Idly, Michelle thought that they could now share bras, as her own breasts grew to the same incredible measurements. The wig fused to her head, the massive mane of pale hair becoming her own. She felt a warmth spread through her body, centering on her breasts and crotch. The glow faded, and the two massively endowed women were released.

"Hey, roomy," Corinne said brightly, unaware of any changes. "I hope that cab get here soon." She sighed and stretched languorously, doing interesting things to the mass of flesh inside the crop-top. "I am soooo ready to party."

'So, we're roommates' Michelle said, jiggling and swaying to the bathroom, staring in horror at the enormous tits threatening to burst from the top of her over-strained dress. She couldn't believe the idol would do this to her. "Uh, Corinne. " she said hesitantly. "I'm not sure . . ."

" 'Corinne'?" The stacked black woman snorted, tossing her head. "Mikki, what has gotten into you, girl? Only my momma calls me 'Corinne'. And Don't tell me you're backing out of you're own birthday club-hopping."

Mikki forced a smile. " 'course not." She said, seeing no graceful way out of that one. Until minutes ago, her birthday was still months away. "I meant the outfit." She said, somewhat lamely.

"Girl, in that dress, you're the very goddess of. . ." Cori began, cut short by the sweep of headlight through the window, and the sound of a horn. "Come on girl, that's our cue."

Sighing, and shooting the idol a dirty look, Mikki followed her friend out the door, trying to get used to the momentum of her massive, heavy breasts swaying with every step. They climbed into the cab, and the cabby had to force himself to keep his eyes on the road the entire drive, finally depositing them outside of the club, Koko - Yo's.

The two massively endowed women swayed and jiggled into the club, men's heads turning to follow their passage. The heavy, driving beat of the dance music shuddered through her body, sending little ripples through her huge globes. Mikki was fairly sure that none of the men could describe her and Cori's faces if their lives depended on it.

"Mikki" a voice shouted over the din. "Over here!". Cori nudged her, pointing. "There's the guys."

The 'guys' turned out to be their boyfriends. A tall, slender black man was Cori's date, handsome in a 'basketball' type of way, long and lanky.

Mikki's boyfriend turned out to be a handsomer, more muscular Jerry DeNultry. He smiled at her, and handed her a beer as he slipped an arm around her slender waist and gave her a peck on the cheek. "Hey, you look great, Mikki." He said sincerely - looking her in the eye, rather than the cleavage. Mikki was impressed. "Thanks" she said, finding herself flattered by his sincere affection. She took a nervous pull at her beer.

The foursome found a table at the edge of the dance floor, and a second round appeared before them. Mikki finished her first quickly so as not to fall behind. She was surprised to find her heart pounding as Jerry snuggled closer beside her.

They sat and talked for awhile, smoking and drinking. Because it was her birthday, Mikki was being supplied drinks by the other three, and didn't realize just how much she was drinking. She found herself beginning to relax, and found herself enjoying herself - the three companions had the easy, familiar camaraderie of long friendship. When they decided to head out to the dance floor, Mikki took a deep breath and let Jerry lead her out onto the floor.

Dancing was truly an unusual experience - every gyration caused her mighty endowments to shake, sway and bounce in the most interesting way. Several male dancers within eyeshot fell over their own feet as their concentration suddenly broke in the face of such overwhelming feminine attributes. Mikki found herself giggling at the sight.

Finally, they left the floor, sweating from the exertion. "So, you ladies ready to head out?" Cori's date, Brad, asked. Mikki nodded, her head starting to ache from the driving music. They headed for the door, Jerry going ahead to get the deskman to call a cab for them.

They stood on the sidewalk making small talk until it appeared. They piled in, and headed to the apartment that it turned out Jerry and Brad shared. They paired off and sat on the couches, turning the TV on for background. Mikki found it slightly difficult to catch her breath.

Jerry leaned over, his lips pressing firmly against hers. She hesitated for an instant - then closed her eyes and gave into the inevitable, opening her full lips and letting his tongue enter her mouth.

Despite her fears, she wasn't repulsed - the kiss was as wonderful as any she - or he - had ever felt, and she began to respond, sliding her hands behind his neck and kissing back hungrily. Her body shivered in pleasure as his strong hands lightly caressed her hard nipples through the dress. It felt so. . . good. Inside her head, she held a brief, last ditch argument with herself - then pushed her enormous breasts harder against his hand, enjoying the warmth of his contact.

Slowly, he peeled off the straps of her dress, pulling the top of it down, allowing her enormous, firm breasts to spring free. On the other couch, Mikki saw that Brad and Cori were ahead of them - her enormous, dusky tits were not only hanging free, nipples erect, but Brad was undoing her skirt. Then, all thought of the other couple vanished as Jerry's warm mouth enveloped her enormous, highly sensitive nipple.

She entangled her fingers in his hair and moaned as his lips worked on her right breast, while his hands massaged her other. The sensation was wonderful. She never wanted it to stop.

"Mikki. . . " she heard Cori moan, and Mikki opened her eyes, focusing on her friend.

Cori was naked on the floor, her heel in the air, as Brad slowly, teasingly worked his hard cock in and out of her soaking pussy. Cori smiled languorously, then wiggled her tongue suggestively. To Mikki's surprise, Jerry lifted her to her feet and peeled off her golden dress. He guided her to where Cori lay, and lowered her down into a crouch over Cori's face. Mikki gasped as Cori's tongue entered her pussy and began to flick over her sensitive, wet clit. Jerry knelt in front of her, his hands returning to massage her huge tits as he kissed her lovingly.

Mikki pulled away from his gentle lips. "What. . about. . you?" she gasped, waves of pleasure rippling through her cunt.

"Hey, babe" Jerry said softly. "It's your birthday, so it's your party. Cori told us about your occasional suggestion that you two try each other, and thought this was the perfect gift to give you." His hands continued to tease her nipples as he spoke.

Mikki blinked. Jerry was passing a chance for sex for her sake? Through the steady throbs of pleasure, her mind locked on the selfless act's sheer kindness. She couldn't just leave him unrewarded. She'd never be able to live with herself. "Stand. . . uhhnnnn. . . up, Jerry" she moaned. Mystified, he did.

She stared at the bulging crotch of his jeans in front of her face, psyching herself up - then reached out and unzipped his pants, pulling them and his boxers down to his knees.

His flushed, hard cock, sprung up. It was somewhat larger than Mikki's had been when she'd been Mike. It throbbed slightly with each beat of his heart. Slowly, her small hands touched it, feeling it's flushed heat in her palms. Slowly, she caressed the veins along the shaft, her hands coming to rest cupping and lightly fondling his balls. She leaned forward, and for the first time took a hard, ready cock into her mouth.

It slid between her glossed lips with a satisfying warmth. Her tongue hesitantly, slid along the penis filling her mouth, then she began to suck on it lightly, her tongue gaining courage as it began to work Jerry's head and shaft with building enthusiasm.

Brad, seeing what she was doing, changed his pace, and, leaning close to Mikki's spread thighs whispered to Cori, 'Wait until I say.'

Mikki was fully into her first blowjob, enthusiastically working on her technique. Her mind ran over everything that, as Mike, she had enjoyed, and applied it to her new experience. She felt his testicles contract, and squeezed lightly and thrust her lips tightened around his shaft. Brad, who had been watching intently, shouted now, and drove deep into Cori.

All four came simultaneously. Brad started the chain, shuddering as his hit cum gushed into his coffee-colored girlfriend. The thrust triggered her own orgasm, and she screamed her pleasure into her roommate's cunt. The vibration of her powerful voice and her frantically working tongue set off Mikki at the same instant that Jerry's cock jerked and he came.

Mikki writhed in orgasm as the hot, salty liquid filled her mouth. She tried to swallow the entire load, but the task was impossible, cum spurting from her lips and dribbling onto her immense breasts in a stream. The quartet gave one final shudder, then fell apart, collapsing on the floor.

"Thanks, love" Jerry whispered, lightly stroking her mane of hair. Cori dragged herself to where Mikki lay, and began to lap at her cum- splattered tits, causing bolts of pleasure to radiate from her stimulated nipples.

Part Seven: Mikki discovered the most perfect 'alarm clock' in the universe.

It started as she slowly arouse from her dreamless sleep. A warm, pleasant sensation radiated from her nipples where Jerry was slowly, teasingly licking them to erection. His hands were slowly working up and down her satiny skin, their warmth sinking into her soft flesh.

His hands then rose and began to gently kneed her gigantic, firm tits as his mouth met hers in a long, tender, loving kiss.

Gently, he began to roll into position above her, and she dreamily spread her soft, silky thighs for the first time to accept a man. Careful to keep his weight off of her, he gently placed her slender ankles atop the smooth, tanned skin of his muscular shoulders. Slowly, his hard cock entered her rapidly warming vagina.

She gasped, and wrapped her long-nailed hands around his wide neck as the head of his penis entered her cunt. With smooth, steady strokes, Jerry began to make love to his overendowed girlfriend.

She moaned softly as he started out slowly, his cock sliding over her clit with intensely ecstatic friction. His rhythm slowly built, sending her towards a crest of pleasure. Mikki began to move her hips to take him deeper inside him, stunned at the new sensations filling her body. She began to toss her head side to side, gasping his name as he built her closer and closer to the ultimate moment - then slowed, easing her down a bit. She gasped.

He continued to work the cycle gently, lovingly, each time the wave of pleasure growing as her cunt become more and more sensitized. Finally, as his own climax neared, he increased his speed for the last time.

When the climax came, it was an unbelievable string of intense orgasms that shook Mikki's body and mind. Her enormous tits quaked as she screamed his name, her clenching muscles milking his seed from his gushing cock. Finally, the orgasms subsided, and she slowly rode the afterglow down, his lips tenderly pressed against her own. Certain sounds from the next room indicated a similar, but more energetic, occurrence.

Mikki and Jerry showered together, kissing and touching each other softly. It turned out she kept some clothes in his closet, and dressed in white lace panties and bra, a pair of worn white jeans, that clung tightly to her hips and firm, rounded ass, and a tight, brilliant canary yellow T-shirt. She was awed to find the bra marked '58 F'. She slipped her feet into the shoes from last night, the only thing she had for footwear. Thankfully, they matched her outfit. Her pale hair, still damp, was no longer wavy and bouffant, and the tresses hung all the way down to her shapely calves.

The four of them ate breakfast together, a friendly, laughter filled occasion. Mikki enjoyed the easy banter with Jerry's arm firmly wrapped around her waist. The nagging sensation to return home had been obscured by their lovemaking, but was now the strongest she'd ever felt it, almost approaching the threshold where it would pass from annoyance to pain. She had no trouble talking the guys into giving her and Cori a lift home, and slightly after noon, they arrived at Mikki and Cori's house.

Mikki sighed softly in relief as she crossed the threshold, and the pain vanished. "So, what do you guys want to do?" Cori asked, smiling at Brad.

Brad looked thoughtful. "How about a game of Trivial Pursuit?" he suggested. The suggestion was roundly acclaimed, and the game was brought out and set up.

As they played, Mikki found herself in the warm embrace of friendship she'd never experienced as a lonely young man. She glanced at the Idol, resting unassumingly on the tiny table beside the easy chair, wondering how and where it had come from, and what sort of intelligence it commanded. Then, her turn came up, and she returned to the game.

Several hours later, they finally finished amidst shared laughter and friendly insults. Technically, Brad won, but it was obvious that none of them were experts in trivial knowledge.

"How many GOLF BALLS are on the moon?" Mikki giggled. "I didn't know there was even one, much less THREE of them."

Jerry laughed easily. "Huh. . . guess you could say that the astronauts returned to Earth without their balls." Cori leaned over, grimacing, and slapped him playfully on the arm.

"That's awful." She said with mock severity. "Everybody knows it's not the balls that count - it's the size of your club." Jerry threw up his hands, surrendering. "Okay, I give up." He declared. "Cease fire."

Mikki grinned as they put the board away and headed into the living room - and the idol flared to brighter life than ever before.

This time was different - Mikki felt no daze as she, and her friends, began to change. Slowly, they all shed years, becoming younger, and stopping at roughly twenty- to twenty-two years old. Cori's breasts remained the same immense size, but her hips widened and she became a little more muscular again, making her breasts less outrageous - but still huge. Her clothes became a deep purple, crushed velvet dress with matching pumps.

The guys stayed about the same except for their age, and their clothes, which reformed into tailored tuxedos. Mikki though Jerry looked gorgeous in his.

She herself began to change, her body altering as well as her clothes. She looked at the glowing statuette, squinting, and watched in wordless amazement as the idol slowly faded from existence.

Jerry looked at his watch. "I hope you girls are ready" he said, with mock aggravation. "We don't want to be late for our grad party."

"Just a second" Mikki said, shocked to hear it emerge in a lovely, lilting Irish brogue. She ducked into the bathroom, and closed the door. She surveyed her new self - her permanent self - in the mirror.

A full head of glorious red hair surrounded a smooth face that, for the first time, bore no resemblance to the man she had once been. Glorious, emerald green eyes regarded her from a face that was pretty, in a strong, intelligent way with a firm chin and full lips.

A gorgeous silk dress in elegant black clung to her body and fell to her shapely ankles, a slit up one side allowing her to bare one spectacular leg. Her new body was tall and somewhat rangy. Dressed as she was, she looked stunningly elegant, with slender hips, a wasp waist, and firm, DD breasts. Yet, with her wider shoulder and toned body, she knew in a pair of jeans and a baggy man's shirt, she would be the essential, almost tomboyish outdoors woman.

Slowly, she left the bathroom, walking with a firm, authoritative, yet graceful feminine stride. She smiled brilliantly at her friends. "All right, I'm ready" she announced marveling at the cadence and accent in her new voice.

Jerry snapped his fingers. "Oh, I almost forgot." He said, reaching into his pocket. His face had begun to turn a ruddy shade, and his casual tone was to obviously affected. Slowly, he removed a small, velvet box, and knelt before Mikki, whose heart had suddenly flown to her slender throat and began to flutter alarmingly.

"Mikki, my love, my life" Jerry said softly, removing a ring from the box as Cori and Brad watched, simultaneously stunned and ecstatic. "Will you do me the honor of agreeing to become my lifelong companion, the bearer of my children? Will you become Mrs. Marianne DeNulty?"

Mikki looked down at Jerry's adoring face, and thought of her life as a lonely, marginally successful writer with no close friends and no hope of marriage. Silently, in her inner heart, she blessed the intelligence behind the idol, thanking it for choosing a point to be in her new life where she could experience her own wedding to a loving, handsome man.

"Yes, I will" Mikki sobbed. And, to the applause of her friends, the young, healthy, beautiful, and unimaginably happy woman bent and kissed her fiancé.

THE END...

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: When a young writer goes to a bar to socialize, he meets up with a woman who performs witchcraft and transforms the writer into her "plaything."

If You Could...

By Gunslinger

Part One

With almost comical concentration, the slender, sandy-haired young woman sitting on the floor very carefully rolled the thin, fine Zig-Zag paper around the dried green buds inside, bringing the slender white tube up to her lips to lightly lick the faintly yellow strip of adhesive to seal it closed. Pulling it back from her lips, she stared at it for a long moment, assuring herself that it looked right. Placing the finished joint on the edge of the ashtray, she looked around the room, then began to frown.

"Greg...?" She called, uncertainly.

"Coming...!" A voice called back. A second later, the voice's owner came into view. Slightly above average height, the young man with the shock of dark hair and the full beard was carrying two large glasses of fruit punch. Dressed in a pair of baggy jean shorts and an even baggier gray sweat-shirt, he looked almost too comfortable for words. "Just thought a couple of drinks were in order, Chrys."

She smiled. "Good idea. C'mon, siddown..." She patted the spot beside her, and Greg very carefully handed her one of the glasses before lowering himself to the floor with the same exaggerated care.

Greg grinned rather foolishly to himself. As a writer, his social life wasn't exactly 'jumping', because you had to find friends who understood that there were weeks when you were writing up a storm and didn't want to be bothered at all, and then there were the weeks when you were 'blocked', and almost desperate for distractions to get your mind off the frustration of not being able to write a word. So, Greg was very happy indeed that Chrys, who he hadn't seen in almost three years, had dropped by unexpectedly. It was also nice to be sitting so close to a warm, feminine body - even though Greg knew, rather regretfully, that nothing could possibly come of it. Chrys and he had hashed that one out years back, in what (at the time) had been a hideously embarrassing situation for Greg, who'd tentatively tried to see if the friendship they shared could move in a certain direction... and had found out that Chrys was a 'semi-bisexual lesbian', to use her own words. Though she occasionally slept with men she found almost overwhelmingly attractive, her main interest was in other women - and, regretfully, she'd had to inform Greg that she just didn't consider him as one of those men. Greg, of course, knew he wasn't any 'stud' - though not unattractive, he was rather bland looking. His body was reasonably fit, and not fat - but lacked any serious muscle mass or definition. His face wasn't ugly - but it wasn't particularly handsome, either, lacking any features that were really outstanding. As he joked, he had a nose-shaped nose and lip-shaped lips on a face-shaped face, which was about as accurate a description as any - if not for the beard he'd grown, practically in self defense, he would have looked like a computer mock-up of an 'average' Caucasian male.

Of course, they'd got over the rough patch that the misunderstanding had caused, and had remained strong friends, even when Chrys had moved away. To see her again was... well, wonderful.

Neither Chrys nor he were 'serious' users. In fact, it was one of the things they shared in common that made them such close friends - both Chrys and Greg had an allergic intolerance for alcohol that kept them from drinking. So, when they really wanted to celebrate something, they would share a couple of joints. Even when they'd lived in the same city, that had only been two or three times a year, and this was the first time in three years that Greg had touched the stuff - and they were kind of making up for lost time, both of them very 'mellow' indeed.

Which, of course, brought them into the situation of conversations that - in other circumstances - would be downright strange. Even as she lit the last joint of the evening, Chrys continued the one they'd been on...

"Yeah, so like I was saying..." She said, then paused for several long seconds, passing the joint over. Then, with a rush of expelled air, she continued. "...Janice got me into Wicca, taking me to this neat little shop down on the Boulevard. I never realized being Wicca could be so comfortable... I don't wear anything but natural clothes anymore, except for work..."

She reached down and grabbed the hem of her off-white, natural-cotton dress (which Greg thought she looked absolutely great in), and rubbed it over Greg's lower leg, exposed by the jean shorts he was wearing.

"Hey, that's nice.." He agreed, passing the joint back. "So, what's it like, being Wiccan? You worship flowers and trees and stuff, right?"

Chrys giggled. "Not quite - Wiccan worship the forces that shape nature and the world around us. Lots of people think we worship Mother Nature, which is kinda right, because what they think of 'Mother Nature' is part of what we worship - Gaia, the Earth Spirit. You know - the fundamental forces that shape the world."

"Cool..." Greg said, a bit vaguely. "So, the whole, you know, 'magic' thing about Witches.. uh, Wicca.. is just hype, scare tactics by non-Wicca?"

"No, not exactly..." Chrys grinned. "Wicca says that if you can get in tune with Gaia, you can, kind of, control the forces around you. The way Janice explained it, the forces are like strings, laying all around us, and if you can learn to 'play' them, like a guitar, you can change the tune of the world around you."

"Oh - like what?" Greg asked, taking a long sip of the drink to kill the 'throat tickle'.

Chrys shrugged. "Like anything, if you know how." She giggled. "C'mon, Greg - what would you do, what Majick would you perform, if you could? You now, just about anything at all?"

'Cast a spell on you to make you fall madly in love with me...' Greg thought, regretfully, his feelings for Chrys not diminished in the least. He didn't say it, of course - her friendship meant a lot to him, and by tacit agreement, they pretended Greg had never, ever told her of his feelings for her - which was hard on him, but something he was willing to do in order to keep the relationship they did have, as close friends, intact.

Instead, he began to blush as his 'second' answer came to mind. In a few seconds, he was almost as red as the juice in the glass he held.

Chrys caught the look, and grinned. "C'mon - spill. What would you 'Majick' up, if you could?"

"Well..." Greg admitted, still blushing furiously. "I, uh... I'd like to see what it would be like to, um... be a woman..."

Chrys, who was mid-way through taking a sip of her drink, spluttered, spraying fruit punch over an inoffensive plant. "What?"

Greg - practically fluorescent - shrugged. "Yeah, well - I guess most guys wonder, you know, what it would be like..."

"You're serious, aren't you?" Chrys asked, with a giggle.

"Geez - I'm sorry I said anything..." Greg muttered, embarrassed.

"No, no!" Chrys protested. "Actually, I think that's really kinda neat! I mean, most guys would never admit, even to their closest girl-friend, that they're, you know...curious. I think it's really sweet and brave of you to admit it. To tell you the truth.... the thought is kind of a turn on for me..."

Greg blinked. "Really?"

Chrys giggled again (something she only ever did when she was stoned.) "Yeah. I mean, I really like you - but you just don't do it for me. Imagine the fun we could have if you were a woman, though - and a hot little number to boot.

Greg blinked, his cock - not realizing it had been offended - stirring in his shorts. "Really? The thought of me being a woman... turns you on?"

"Yeah..." Chrys said, seductively. "Not only would getting my hands on you, as a sexy woman, really get me off - but do you know how turned on I'm getting just imagining you, as a woman, learning to seduce men to see what it feels like...?"

Greg's blush, impossibly, brightened. "Hey, c'mon - that's not what I meant!"

"Liar!" Chrys accused, with a laugh. "If you have ever wondered what it would be like to be a woman, you've thought about what having sex as a woman would feel like..."

"Hey, I...!" Greg started - but Chrys knew him too well. "Okay... but that doesn't mean I'd actually, you know, try and find out, even if I was female..." He grimaced. "That would just be... too weird."

"Yeah... right..." Chrys said, sarcastically, cuddling (platonically) up next to him and closing her eyes. "I can just see it now - me, teaching you how to be a woman, how to act and dress and all... playing around with you myself, while teaching you how to get men to do just about anything you want..."

Greg, closing his eyes, cuddled up more firmly against her, putting his arm around her - and letting himself imagine that this position was more than platonic, as he rather vaguely went along with the hazy day-dream she was lost in, more interested in savoring the feel of her body next to his.

Before either one was aware of it happening, they'd drifted off to sleep, arms wrapped around each other's body as they slumped to the floor.

* * * * *

Greg was just beginning to wake up, slowly and dimly - when Chrys' scream yanked him all the way to full (if confused) consciousness.

His eyes snapped open, and he found himself laying on the living room floor, staring up at a shocked- looking Chrys, who was gaping at him. He felt odd all over, but what little thought he gave it was half- formed assumption about sleeping on the floor - the majority of his attention was taken up by Chrys.

"Wha...!" She stammered, her brown eyes wide and unbelieving. "Who... who are you! How did you get in here! Wh... what's going on?"

"What do you..." Greg started to ask, confused...

...then stopped in utter shock and confusion at hearing the voice that the question was emerging in. Gasping in disbelief, Greg's hands flew towards his throat...

...only to be stopped by something in the way. Something on his chest, something firm-yet-giving that pushed up against the T-shirt he wore.

Something that transmitted the sensation of being hit by his arm through his body's nerve network, as if connected to him.

Suddenly, Greg became very, very scared to look down.

"Chrys..." Greg asked, that oddly-pitched, all-too-wrong voice quavering. "Wha... what do I look like to you right now?"

Chrys' eyes had, amazingly, gone even wider, and now one of her hands flew to her mouth. "G... Greg? Is... is that... you? But... you... you... you're a woman!" She gasped, an odd almost unwilling grin slipping across her face. "Oh... My... God...! You... you're the woman I imagined you being, last night...!"

Almost unwillingly, Greg found his eyes dropping downwards...

"Holy shit!" The new woman screamed in a high-pitched soprano, altered eyes widening in shocked horror - or horrified shock - at the sight of her once-baggy sweatshirt now straining tautly over massive protrusions...

Breasts. Though her mind didn't want to accept it, there was no denying that filling out the shirt was the most enormous pair of breasts Greg had ever seen - though never from this particular angle before.

Beyond the out-thrust curvature of that staggering bust-line was a pair of legs... a pair of dark, bronze-copper legs that were shapely enough (for a woman) and completely unlike the legs that 'should' have been sticking out of the shorts - smooth, slender, and all-too-feminine.

"What the hell happened to me!" Greg shouted in horror and fear, hearing the knife-edge of panic in the new voice that she already hated the sound of, though she would have found it 'cute' in other, less bizarre circumstances.

"Calm down, Greg, calm down...!" Chrys urged, her grin widening. "I... I must have... 'pulled some strings', so to speak..." She giggled - and that made Greg jerk as if she'd been slapped.

"This isn't funny!" She shouted, hysterically. "You've changed me into a woman!"

"Hey, hey remember you asked me to!" Chrys pointed out, holding her hands up defensively.

Greg opened her new mouth to answer that ridiculous charge, new finger coming up to emphasize the devastating point and then the new woman stopped dead in that pose, brain vapor-locked on the response.

Chrys burst into gales of laughter at the sight...and Greg chuckled. Only it sounded more like a giggle... which sparked another one, a longer one that lead to a richer, deeper one...

"I guess I did, didn't I?" She admitted, still chuckling. That quickly faded though, counterbalancing the panic and shock until she was more-or-less on an even keel again... with the obvious fact that she was now female to deal with.

"I still can't believe it..." She said, staring down at her body and noticing how fine-boned she now was, from her slender, dark-skinned hands to her tiny, dainty new feet. Compared to the obviously petite body, the gargantuan breasts straining her top were even more outrageous, making her shake her head in disbelief... which caused the new sensation of silky hair flowing across the back of her neck, restrained by it's own mass and inertia, now that it was considerably longer. "What the hell do I look like, anyway?"

"Well, come on - take a look in the mirror." Chrys said, helping Greg to her feet. It was surprisingly easy - Greg had expected to feel severely off-balance, yet she found herself moving with an easy grace that was disconcerting in it's very comfortable and causal nature.

Following Chrys, the new woman padded to the bathroom - and stopped when she saw her reflection in the mirror.

"This is what your fantasy is...?" Greg asked, stunned, tilting her new head and staring at herself.

"Well, you have to admit it's a woman I wouldn't meet in 'real life'." Chrys pointed out, which was true enough - Greg couldn't imagine there were many people out there who looked the way she now did.

She was Asian - a tiny little 'China doll', with the slender, supple build and lack of stature that was more stereotypical than actual. Her entire body was small and dainty, from the tip of her tiny toes to the silky black hair framing her pretty, exotic face.

The only thing not fitting the image was the massive breasts straining at the sweater she wore. They were enormous, about the size of medicine balls - on her tiny, slender frame, they defied both gravity and the imagination, and she found herself wondering once again how she could even be standing upright, much less moving easily and gracefully, considering how incredibly top-heavy she was.

Her eyes were dark and mysterious, tilted upward in an Oriental fold that made them very exotic indeed, thought and motivations unreadable behind the long, dark lashes...

"I look like Lucy Lui..." Greg said, shaking her new head. "Well... not exactly - but close. Except smaller and slimmer... and with a lot bigger tits."

"Hey, what can I say?" Chrys asked, with a grin. "I was just... fantasizing, you know."

"Yeah - 'fantasy' is right..." She murmured, turning to either side and eyeing her massive new bust in profile. "How on earth can I still stand upright with these... things hanging from my chest?"

Chrys grinned. "well, the way I imagined you included some stuff, so I guess that's how you came out, complete with being 'supple and graceful', like I imagined..."

"Great..." Greg muttered. "now - how about imagining me back?"

"Oh, come on - let's not be too hasty. Why don't we... try you out?" Grinning wickedly, Chrys reached out and slid one hand across the fabric-covered curve of one enormous tit.

"Stop that!" Greg exclaimed, pushing her hand away and breaking the disturbingly pleasant contact.

"Don't be that way..." Chrys said in a sensual tone of voice she'd never used in Greg's presence before. "Come on, gorgeous - gimme a kiss..."

Greg opened her mouth to argue... and, shocked, found herself leaning forward, sliding her bronzed new arms over Chrys' shoulders as she bent down... and they kissed.

Greg had often fantasized about kissing Chrys - but never like this. Certainly not as a huge-breasted Asian girl... and certainly not 'uncontrollably'. She just couldn't stop herself from kissing Chrys with a long, slow passion, their tongues dancing passionately as their lips pressed together.

Chrys finally broke the kiss, something Greg was unable to do... and the new woman staggered backwards, eyes going wide.

"What the... I couldn't help myself!" She exclaimed, stunned. "What.. What's happening?"

Chrys laughed. "Well... I sort of imagined that my 'fantasy girl' would be sort of a sex-slave, having to do whatever I told her to do..."

Greg gaped at her. "What?!"

She waved a hand, in dismissal. "Oh, come on, Lay Me - it's no big deal." Greg blinked. "What... What did you just call me?"

She laughed. "Lei Mee Soon - that's the name I thought of for you. Kinky, isn't it?"

"Chrys, what are you talking about?" Greg demanded, as angrily as her high-pitched new voice would allow. "This isn't some sort of game... this is my life we're talking about!"

"Oh, relax." Chrys said - and, unwillingly, Greg found tense muscles relaxing, as ordered. "This is my fantasy. I can do whatever I want. It's no big deal, Lei Mee."

"What's gotten into you, Chrys...?" Greg demanded... or tried to. Her brain sent the words - but what emerged was 'What get in you, Clis?'

Chrys laughed as Greg gaped in shock. "God, that pidgin English is so damned cute. I'm glad I thought of it."

Greg - Lei Mee - blinked at her unconcerned reaction... and, horrified, realized what was going on.

It wasn't him being affected by the inadvertent magic. Well, it was - but only peripherally. The magic wasn't focused on her, it was focused on Chrys. Chrys hadn't 'pulled the strings' to make Lei Mee female, directly, but to live out her fantasy - and so the magic was ongoing.

In short - Chrys was still in a 'dream state', having a sexual fantasy while her mind was still 'asleep', and as in all dream fantasies, little things like 'reality' and 'consequences' didn't matter. Though she seemed to be wide awake, in truth she was still sound asleep, her body only walking and talking because she was dreaming it was. She didn't realize any of this was real...

"Clis! This no d'weam. This real! You wakey-wakey now!" Lei Mee shouted, desperately, trying to get through to the warm and considerate woman whose consciousness lay in a dream-state inside her animate body. "You must wakey, Clis!"

Chrys laughed, her head thrown back... and a part of Lei Mee's mind felt a flash of insight. This wasn't the waking Chrys he knew, but the strong, dominant, care-free woman she wished she could be, the woman she secretly thought she was...

...and Lei Mee felt the sense of panic subside. This was a decidedly unusual situation, one she'd never imagined herself in - but Chrys, waking or sleeping, facing the consequences of her actions or ignorant or reality, was the woman he secretly loved, the one he'd trusted implicitly enough to bare her very soul to. Come what may, Lei Mee was willingly to take the risks...

...for Chrys' sake. Because Lei Mee felt her heart ache at the sight of her care-free laughter. The waking Chrys rarely laughed, and only giggled when stoned. As warm and tender and caring as Chrys was, she had never been 'exuberant' - until now.

"God - that is just the sexiest voice!" Chrys said, the impact of the words not having registered. "Come here, you sexy thang!"

It was an order, and Lei Mee had to obey it - but this time she didn't try to fight it, willingly stepping into Chrys' embrace, letting the taller woman hold her, bodies pressed firmly together as they kissed - and this time, Lei Mee let herself enjoy it thoroughly.

It was...wonderful. Even the unsettling sensation of having huge breasts to press firmly against Chrys' stomach was pleasant, once she allowed herself to see past the 'stigma' of being a 'man with tits'. The kiss, like the last one, was warm and passionate, not forceful or painful... something Lei Mee should have realized the first time. Whether 'unwilling' or not, she was being treated right by Chrys.. and once she allowed herself not only accept the situation, but revel in it - it was fantastic. This time, she felt genuine regret when Chrys broke the kiss.

"Damn - that was a good one, Lei." Chrys complimented the new woman. "Thankee, Clis." Lei Mee grinned back. "Me like kiss, too. You good kisser, Clis."

"Lot's of practice, honey..." Chrys grinned, taking Lei's tiny, dainty hand and slowly leading her towards the bedroom with a sensual stride that Chrys had never evinced in her waking life. This was her fantasy, and she could be as sexy as she liked - and, having placed absolute trust in her innate kindness and consideration, Lei was able to appreciate it as she entered the bedroom that should belonged to 'Greg'... only, since this was Chrys' fantasy, the bedroom had changed to reflect what she wanted. Completely without any planning or force of will, the world around her was changing instantly to conform to her fantasies, and Lei no longer feared anything as Chrys' slender, feminine hands began to pull the gray sweater off of Lei's tiny new form.

Raising her arms, the new Asian woman let Chrys remove the garment, grinning, as her huge new tits jiggled and swayed from the motion.

"God, are those suckers huge..." Chrys grinned.

"You like my big tit, Clis...?" Lei asked, letting herself get into her fantasy. Reaching up, she lightly fondled her own massive, dusky mounds, closing her almond-shaped eyes and moaning in pleasure. "They soo good, Clis. You want play with them?"

"You bet..." Chrys agreed, licking her lips. Quickly, she pulled off her beige dress, revealing a body that was naked beneath, and that gleamed as if lightly oiled - both of which were figments of her fantasy made real without the need of conscious consideration. Sitting on the bed, she watched as Lei eagerly, willingly came and sat next to her. Chrys reached out, her hands cupping Lei's huge bust - and the new woman closed her eyes and moaned again, finding Chrys' expert touch infinitely more pleasurable than her own had been, as Chrys began to fondle and squeeze her massive mounds.

Who knew it could feel so good to have tits? And nipples...!

Lei let herself fall back on the bed as Chrys continued to fondle - and now suck - her massive, round globes of tit-flesh. They were gargantuan, but the extra size seemed to serve as an amplifier for the pleasure, the sheer weight of them on her chest adding a sort of warm-comfortable feeling all on its own, like huddling up with a couple of body-temperature pillows that were softly-firm pressed to her chest. But this big, round 'pillows' also transmitted the caressing sensation of Chrys' hands and lips to Lei's brain, making her body slowly writhe on the bed in pleasure.

Then Chrys' began moving up her body, kissing her neck, then her chin, then her lips... and then she continued sliding upward, until her moist womanhood was positioned above Lei's face.

"Do it, Lei..." Chrys moaned. "lick my cunt..."

Letting her legs slide farther apart, Chrys lowered her cunt to Lei's face - and out of a mixture of compulsion and willingness, the new Asian began to lap at the wet cunt pressed against her lips, striving to provide pleasure for the sandy-blond above her, listening to the sound of Chrys' moans to find out what was right and what was wrong with her techniques as she 'ate hair pie', tongue darting in and out of the wet orifice, lips nibbling at the swollen clitoris. Her hands rose and wrapped around Chrys' ass, pulling her crotch more firmly to her face as she continued to lap and nuzzle reverently.

"Oh..!" Chrys gasped, hips bucking lightly. "Not bad, for a first timer..."

Then Chrys' began to slide back down Lei's new body, pausing to kiss Lei's lips and taste her own musky flavor before continuing on downward. She paused for a few minutes at Lei's enormous bust, making the oriental woman moan with pleasure again... then continued downward.

"Let a pro show you how it's done..." Chrys murmured... then buried her head in Lei's lap, her hands caressing Lei's taut, bronze thighs as her tongue went to work with a deft touch.

Lei gasped as the pleasure assaulted her, unlike anything she'd ever felt before. It wasn't more powerful than masturbating as a man had been, but it was different, somehow more personal - a void being filled, being teased and touched in a way that was emotionally satisfying as well as physically pleasurable. More gasps and moans slipped from the new woman's lips as she continued to wriggle on the bed.

Then it happened - a sharp, sweet burst of pleasure that made her gasp and shudder. It wasn't the most powerful orgasm she'd ever felt, far from it - it was like when she was a young man and had been so 'keyed up' that she'd come in her pants, the lack of direct stimulation to her cock making it a fairly weak orgasm. Unlike then, however, this orgasm didn't 'vanish' as soon as it happened - instead, a warm, pleasant glow seemed to fill her, the orgasm strengthening desire rather than sating it as she sighed, feeling a deliciously naughty damp warmth in her crotch.

"Oh, that sooo nice, Clis..." Lei sighed... then had to giggle at the stereotypical voice she was 'cursed' with, sounding so much like a porn-movie soundtrack. All that was lacking was the cheesy music, heavy on the bass.

"Ummm... I'm glad you liked it..." Chrys said, licking her lips as she came up to snuggle against Lei's tiny new body, one hand lightly teasing a huge, erect nipple as she lightly kissed her.

"This fun, Clis..." Lei admitted willingly, smiling at her friend and lover.

"If you think this is fun, wait until you see what I have planned next..." Chrys said with a grin. She lightly slapped Lei's belly and rose from the bed. "Come on, let's find you something appropriate to wear."

"Ap-opiate?" Lei asked, frowning. "What we do, Clis?"

"We're going out..." Chrys said, sorting through a closet full of clothes.

Lei felt a shudder or anxiety pass through her. The thought of leaving the privacy and 'safety' of the house scared her.

"Come on - put this on." Chrys said - ordered - and, doubtful or not, Lei had no choice but to obey, rising gracefully from the bed and drawing neared to the closet, where Chrys was waiting to show her the ensemble 'Lei Mee Soon' would be wearing when she debuted to the world...

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: The continuing saga of how an innocent writer goes out to socialize and is turned into a sexual "plaything" by a woman whose special powers do not stop there.....

Part 2

Lei Mee Soon approached the closet where Chrys stood with a mixture of self-conscious trepidation and nervous excitement.

Which was completely understandable, all things considered. After all - this time yesterday, Lei had been Greg, a physically unremarkable young man with an equally unremarkable life, slipping through life without friction in a sort of self-content daze with ups and downs that tended to even out. Though a writer by profession, Greg/Lei could never have imagined that she would find herself in this situation.

As she walked towards the closet and the outfit of clothing Chrys had chosen for her to wear outside, she was all-too-aware of her altered body. The world seemed to loom around her, her new Asian physique considerably more diminutive - a fact that made the incredibly huge, round breasts thrust from her tiny, bronze-copper chest seem even bigger. The cool air moved over the massive, impossibly firm mounds, causing her large, dark nipples to become fully engorged, thrust from the apex of breasts that swayed and jiggled with every step of her smooth, slender new legs. Her long, silky-black hair fell around her slender new shoulders as her tiny, dainty feet carried her closer to the woman who was, quite literally, creating this scenario out of her fantasies. Not truly 'awake', Chrys - a self-proclaimed 'witch' - had unconsciously tapped into the Ley Lines, the magical 'strings' that filled the ether, controlling reality around her as she was locked into a dream-state that made all of this seem as unreal as any other dream. If she'd wanted to, Chrys could have fantasized clothes right onto Lei's outrageous new figure, but her fantasy seemed to include having Lei dress herself, and so Lei was going to have to do so. She trusted Chrys, waking or sleeping, but that was a matter that soothed her nerves rather than making any real difference - this was Chrys' fantasy, and whatever she wanted would happen, whether Lei was willing or not.

Something she kept firmly in mind as she looked at the outfit Chrys was holding out to her.

"What do you think, Lei?" Chrys asked with a grin, apparently awake and alert, a magical effect of her still-sleeping mind dreaming that she was awake and alert. She hefted the clothes on the three-piece hanger a bit, holding it out to the tiny, dusky-skinned woman she'd inadvertently turned her long-time friend into.

"Is very nice, Clis..." Lei said with a grin that was part play-acting and part magical control through Chrys' fantasy. The imposed, stereotypical 'Asian' accent now in her voice further made her high-pitched voice as unreal as her impossible physique.

Reminding herself that Chrys wouldn't let anything truly bad happen to her - and remembering how good it had felt in bed with her, fulfilling a long-held fantasy of her own, in a twisted way - Lei took the clothing that was offered, and began to dress slowly.

She started with the underwear - white panties that would have been 'plain cotton' if not for the bright pink lace trim at the waist and legs. They were small enough - and 'girlie' enough in design - that they could have been a little girl's panties. Lei drew them up her cute, smooth legs and settled them into place, feeling the smooth/soft fabric across her moist, still-sensitive cunt and swollen clitoris, reminders of what had occurred so recently.

Next came the bra. Like the panties, it would have been a 'girlish' design, matching the panties in color and style - but no 'young woman' would ever have a bra so incredibly enormous. The difference between the slender, short straps and the massive cups of the undergarment only reinforced the incredible nature of her magical figure. The bra was one of the types that could be clasped at the front, which was a relief - Lei didn't want to have to contort herself to try and get the bra done up. This made it easy to put the supposed 'foundation' garment on. The bra actually did nothing to lift, separate, support or otherwise enhance or effect her massive, unrealistically firm tits. It was just so much 'window dressing'.

Next, Lei pulled on the frilly, lacy white blouse, her slender fingers carefully slipping each button through its hole as she felt the smooth, crisp material of the shirt move across her smooth, dark skin.

The next article of clothing was a black skirt. Like the rest of her ensemble, it was 'girly', and would have looked more innocent if not for the fact that the otherwise pretty basic skirt barely covered her panty-covered crotch when she put it on and secured the built-in, silver-buckled 'belt'.

Sitting on the edge of the bed, Lei took the white nylons off the little hanger at the bottom of the three-piece rack. Since this was magical fantasy rather than strict reality, Lei wasn't all that surprised to find that she knew just how to pull the nylons on easily and smoothly without damaging them. They were sheer, white stockings that came up to her thighs - the white lace that rimmed the elasticized top of each hose sat just below her skirt's hem, revealing about an inch and half of bare skin between the two.

Next came a fuzzy pink sweater, a cardigan that - once put on over the blouse - revealed a wide white triangle, the material straining over (and emphasizing) her massive bust, the buttons only able to be buttoned once below the massive mounds lurking beneath the blouse.

Chrys looked her creation over, and grinned. "Looking good, Lei. Just a few things to finish up. First, the shoes..."

Reaching back into the closet, she extracted a pair of white pumps with three-inch-high platforms and ten-inch-high heels. The sky-scraper 'stripper' shoes would have been incredibly high for any woman but with Lei's tiny feet, the shoes were actually 'ballet' style. Because the heel-minus-platform was about as high as Lei's feet were long, she'd actually have to stand on tip-toe atop the tiny circular platform that was at the toe, rather than the sole, of the shoe.

"I no can wear!" Lei exclaimed, instinctively. "They too high, Clis!"

"Sure you can..." Chrys said, handing the shoes over and, whether or not she wanted to, Lei found herself pulling them on, realizing that if Chrys wanted her to be able to walk in the shoes, then she'd be able to. Still, it felt both strange and somehow perverted to slip her tiny new feet into the incredibly high-heeled shoes. Shoes that were, in and of themselves, completely feminine. Sure, her outrageous frame was about as feminine as you could get, so the ridiculously high-heeled shoes actually matched, in a way - but Lei's mental image of self-identity was still male, no matter her current body, and the shoes felt fundamentally 'wrong' in a way that the rest of the outfit didn't.

"Okay - now just some make-up and jewelry, and you'll be ready to face the world..." Chrys said, with a grin. Lei knew that arguing would be a waste of time, so she let herself go ahead and do what Chrys was 'imagining' her doing, not fighting the unbidden knowledge that came to mind, leading her to the makeup that was now on a small make-up table with an oval mirror.

With new-found skill, Lei quickly applied some red lipstick and mascara, trying hard to maintain a sense of mental equilibrium in the face of the all-too-feminine actions. Being female was one thing, bad enough in and of itself - but acting female was something else. After applying the make-up, Lei found herself putting a string of 'pearls' around her neck, and big white plastic hoop earrings through her suddenly pierced lobes.

Turning, Lei found that Chrys was fully dressed - as if by 'magic', Lei thought wryly. She wore a simple off-white dress with slightly warmer-colored embroidered accents, simple yet lovely on her supple body. She looked nice, but not eye-catching... which Lei did look, which meant that anybody seeing the two of them out there in the big, wide world would notice the huge-breasted, otherwise petite Asian girl, and probably wouldn't be able to describe her companion if their life depended on it.

"That's perfect..." Chrys complimented her. "Are you ready to meet the public, babe?"

'No...' Was the word that came to mind and tried to reach her red-glossed lips... but what emerged was "Yes!".

"Great. Come on!" Chrys said, with a smile. She led the way towards the front door, and Lei helplessly followed her, forced to take short, prissy little steps in the impossibly high heels, a gait that Lei thought of as a 'sissy' type of walk. However, the fact that she could move at all in the incredibly high, thin heels was amazing enough, 'sissy' stride or not.

As they grew closer to the front door, Lei's diminutive heart beat more and more furiously, and if had been possible for her stride to falter, it would have. In a scant moment, she would leave the 'safety' and privacy of the house, present herself for the world to see. Though she knew that nobody could know the truth, an irrational part of her mind insisted that the instant she stepped out the door, crowds would gather and point, seeing her as a man 'dressed' and 'acting' like a woman, her outrageously feminine body notwithstanding. It was irrational, illogical, ridiculous - but that didn't mean its effect was any less, and Lei wished she could just curl up in a corner somewhere and wait until Chrys regained her senses and changed her back into the man she'd been.

However, that wasn't an option - she had no choice at all in the matter. In fact, her short, prissy steps and huge grin made her look excited, eager - when in fact her mind was in a roiling turmoil as she stepped out of the shelter of her house and into the bright sunny day of the world beyond.

As they left the house, lei was surprised to see that a cab was waiting for them in the driveway. However, despite the emotional roller-coaster she was on, despite the circumstances, the 'false' smile on her face became genuine for a moment as she saw the confused look on the cabby's unshaven face. Obviously, he'd been pulled into the 'spell' that Chrys' unconscious mind was weaving, and he'd found himself compelled to drive here, without knowing how or why. In spite of everything, Lei managed to find his expression amusing as she followed her now-taller friend to the back of the bright yellow vehicle and climb inside.

Chrys didn't give the driver any instructions - at least, not verbally. That real grin under the pasted-on one Lei wore surfaced again as she heard the driver mutter a surprised obscenity as he helplessly found himself putting the car into drive and pulling out of the driveway, not knowing where he was heading. Chrys, on the other hand, had seemed to miss the driver's startled reaction to 'mind control' as she turned to Lei.

"I think we're going to have some real fun today, lei." Chrys said, and Lei wondered what 'fun' was defined by under these circumstances. Somehow, she didn't think she'd find it as openly enjoyable as Chrys was going to. Still, she trusted Chrys to not endanger her or cause any sort of permanent, lasting damage. The worst that she could expect was something mortifyingly embarrassing - and nothing could be worse than the way he'd felt when Chrys had gently refused his attentions when she had been male. Besides - nobody would know it was 'him', Greg - they would see the 'Lei Mee' body she was currently wearing, and that was all. Somehow, that provided a slight but positive form of 'anonymity' - though she'd be the one in the circumstance, she wouldn't 'really' be the person everybody thought she was, which was something.

Not much... but something was better than nothing, and since Lei really didn't have any say in the matter, she resolved to enjoy whatever she could of the day - like her recent 'lesbian' encounter - and just grin and bear whatever humiliations she might have to suffer through in the meantime. There was really no other way to handle it, other than to struggle in vain to avoid all of this, and that was most likely to cause her a nervous breakdown if she did. She'd simply have to 'go with the flow', and handle whatever emotions the 'flow' caused at any given moment.

The very confused cab driver pulled the bright-yellow vehicle into the parking lot of a long, low building, set on an expensively landscaped lot abounding with long, rolling lawns of verdant green and carefully maintained hedges and shrubs.

"Here we are, Lei." Chrys said, opening the door to the cab and sliding out without bothering to pay a very confused cabby. This being a fantasy, little things like monetary concerns didn't occur to the 'sleep-walking' witch, and Lei paused for a second.

Leaning forward, she whispered to the driver.

"This is very c'fusing. Is okay. You come my house, later, I pay you for ride. Okay?"

Not getting an answer from the stunned driver, Lei popped open the door to the cab and slid out, shutting the door behind her - which required more 'muscle' in her diminutive new form than it would have as a man, one of the many 'minor' things she was still trying to adapt to about her new body.

His role done in this little 'dreamscape', the cabby's 'spell' wore off, leaving him free to do whatever he wanted. What he did was probably quite understandable - he stepped on the gas and threw it into drive, transmitting the torque of the screaming engine to the drive-train, sending the rear wheels spinning against the pavement, laying a strip of smoking rubber down behind him as he rocketed forward and out of the lot, away from the women related to the unfathomable events that had just occurred.

Chrys didn't seem to notice any of this on a personal level, it not being 'important' in the fantasy she was having.

"Come on, Lei Mee - let's not stand out here all day." Chrys said, eyeing the extravagant building with a grin. With no real choice in the matter, Lei nodded and followed her taller friend towards the glass-and-hardwood doors of the building...

"Clis, no go so fast..." Lei begged her friend, who was striding eagerly towards the building, long legs and short heels making her step easy and quick while the tiny body Lei now wore struggled atop the ballet-shoes she was wearing. Chrys glanced back...

...and without any sensation of 'movement', the two women were standing just inside the building, side by side. Lei nearly toppled over, having been in mid-step at the time of the sudden transition, and she was barely able to catch herself, the massive drag of her most definitely top-heavy form nearly spilling her across the marble flooring of the building.

Standing with his back turned towards them was a tall, slender older man dressed in a dark suit, his silver-gray hair elegantly swept back in an elegant leonine mane.

"Excuse me.." Chrys said, politely enough. The man must have been startled, since there was no sound of the doors opening or closing, but none of the showed as he smoothly turned, revealing a face whose lines were set into a civilized sneer that somehow managed to be servile without being subservient. The 'dark suit' turned out to be a tux, perfectly clean and with creases so sharp they looked lethal.

"Yeeees?" He said, slowly, looking Lei and Chrys up and down slowly, his expression speaking volumes. He had a faintly British accent that was so perfectly smooth and cultured that he seemed to embody everything 'civilized' about the English.

"We'd like a table for lunch." Chrys said, ignoring the man's oh-so-slightly raised eyebrow, which spoke volumes.

"I'm so sorry, Madame, but this is a private club, and unless you are a guest..." The Maitre D' started - and, just as smoothly civil, continued on. "...I'll be happy to show you to your table."

Lei was thoroughly impressed - obviously, that wasn't what he was planning to say, yet he didn't so much as bat an eyelash as the unbidden words slipped from his lips. Even as he turned to lead them to their 'waiting table', he moved with calm assurance, as if having his free-will hijacked was an everyday occurrence. Lei, who felt sympathy for the poor man, did notice the way his muscles tensed under the tux, revealing the desperate struggle he was putting up to regain control of his wayward body... but none of the showed in his face or voice as he politely escorted the women into the dining- room of one of the most prestigious - and exclusive - private clubs in the country.

The large, elegantly decorated room was less than half-full, the cavernous area filled with the low sounds of people eating or talking... all of which died out as the clientele of the exclusive establishment caught sight of the women new entering. Or, rather, of one of the women. Despite her less-than-formal attire, Chrys wouldn't have received this kind of response had she been alone. No, the cause of the sudden silence, of the eyes swiveling towards the doorway was Lei.

She wanted to shrink behind the nearest marble column. She wanted to run from the room as fast as her impossibly high-heeled shoes would let her. She wanted, at the very least, to blush furiously at the sudden attention focused on her tiny, hugely-endowed form.

She was unable to do any of that as she followed a grinning Chrys and a stone-faced D' to a table that was smack-dab in the center of the room, visible from every corner.

"I assume this will be sufficient?" The D' asked...and Lei blinked, because the snooty way he'd asked could only mean that it had been completely voluntary. Chrys had 'imagined' him agreeing to show them to a table, and doing so - but she hadn't specifically 'imagined' him not speaking at any other point, and so he'd been able to talk.

It was the fact that he'd decided to use that ability to make what was more-or-less a sarcastic 'joke' was what amazed lei. Having experienced, first hand, the loss of free-will, she was amazed to find somebody handle it so easily. Of course, he didn't have the added 'handicap' of waking up to find he'd suddenly grown outrageously massive tits.

"This will be fine." Chrys replied, one eyebrow raised. "Thank you."

The elegant, self-controlled man looked them up and down again. "Your attire is - barely - acceptable, Miss - but might I suggest that next time your... 'companion' find something a trifle more... understated?"

"This is no my choice, Mister." Lei told him, quickly. "Me no choose at all... you know."

Was that the tiniest of knowing smiles that touched the corner of his otherwise expressionless lips? "In that case, Miss... my condolences."

Without having so much batted an eyelash at the incredible, impossible circumstances, he bowed ever-so-slightly to Chrys, somewhat more extravagantly to Lei, then headed briskly back to his station near the door.

"He get paid much, I think." Lei said, watching him go. Cursing the 'cute' stereotypical accent forced upon her, she turned to Chrys. "Why we here, Clis?"

"Why, for lunch of course." Chrys replied, with a slow and meaningful wink. "Go ahead, have a seat."

Lei did so, looking around at the patrons of the very exclusive club, who were still watching her - though not as openly as before.

The clientele of the club was mostly male, and mostly young - which explained a lot. This was obviously the type of place the very wealthy 'playboy' set hung out, mingled with women of their own social strata.

It was a high-class, very moneyed singles bar. The 'meat market' of the millionaire set... and Lei felt a cold shiver run up her spine at the thought of why she might be here.

She glanced over at Chrys, and found her slowly surveying the room, a thoughtful look on her face. Quickly, Lei scanned the room as well, looking for whatever it was that Chrys was...

"yes... Yes, they should do nicely..." Chrys said in a hungry tone of voice that thoroughly worried Lei. "Come on, Lei... let's socialize..."

Helplessly, lei found herself rising and following the sandy-blond 'bisexual lesbian' as she walked over to a table where to almost offensively handsome young men sat.

The one on the right was blond, dressed in tennis whites that showed off a tanned, fit body. A white cable-knit sweater with a blue-red-and-green collar was tied around his broad shoulders, and the white teeth that showed as he smiled casually were almost too perfect. His companion, dressed in an off-white silk shirt and dark gray slacks, was almost equally handsome, though he wasn't as 'All-American' muscular, and his dark hair was pulled back into a ponytail. His dark eyes were locked on the same point of interest as his friends... Lei's massive, jiggling bust.

"Hi!" lei helplessly chirped, brightly. "Lei Me!"

"That's her name, boys." Chrys said, smoothly. "You'll notice I didn't say 'just her name', though."

"Hmmm..." The blond one said, sparing a glance at Chrys before eyeing Lei thoroughly. "I'm Devon, and my friend here..." he made a graceful gesture that looked so perfect he'd probably practiced it for hours at home before using it in public. "...is Kyle."

"I'm Chrys." Chrys identified herself. "The table we have is awfully large for just the two of us..." "Please, you come with us." Lei found herself saying, brightly. "I want you both, please..."

Both men's eyebrows went up, and they shared an easy grin.

"Well... I suppose we could spare the time..." Devon said, easily. "We've already eaten, though. We're not hungry." Kyle added.

"I'm not hungry, too." Lei found herself telling them - though, in fact, she was nearly ravenous. "Clis eat, we sit an' talk-talk, maybe?"

"Well, Chrys... Are you hungry?" Kyle asked, grinning easily as he looked pointedly towards the door. "the food here's pretty good... but expensive, and not all that filling. Perhaps we'd be better off... elsewhere."

"Oh... I'm not all that hungry, either...?" Chrys said, grinning in return. "Did you have someplace in particular in mind?"

"We go home, Clis." Lei said, unwillingly. She turned to the guys. "Cute guys come too?"

"I certainly hope so..." Devon said, sotto voce, earning him a quick glare from Kyle, who grinned and accepted more urbanely.

"That sounds very nice, ladies." Kyle said, rising. "Did you drive yourselves here?" "No, we cabbid it." Chrys said, and Devon grinned even more widely.

"Not a problem, ladies - we'll take my car." He made a 'follow me' gesture and headed towards the door. Everybody followed, smiling and eager... even though, in Lei's case, it wasn't 'real'.

'Oh, God... how can I get out of this?' She thought, miserably. 'Chrys is going to make me have sex with... with a guy!'

Figuratively, she took a deep breath - in truth, she was chatting in broken English with Kyle, though she wasn't paying any more attention to what she was saying than Kyle was, his dark eyes fixed on her bobbing, swaying tits as she walked.

'Well... I guess women find sex enjoyable, if it's done right...' She consoled herself. 'Maybe... maybe it won't be that bad at all. They don't know I'm really a guy, so nobody will know... and it's a chance that other men never get...'

Still nervous as a long-tailed cat in a room full of rocking chairs, she slid into the Hummer that Devon owned, heart fluttering like... well, like a virgin about to have her first sexual experience.

The idea surprised her... what she was feeling was actually 'natural', if you looked at it that way. The metaphor had just popped into her head, but it helped settle her mind and emotions to a surprising degree. After all, she was afraid, awkward, unsure, not really looking forward to the emotional turmoil, but willing to admit that the actions themselves would probably feel very good indeed. Given that, she wasn't all that far from any other woman, emotionally it was as if she were a 'natural' woman with a more lesbian bent in her sexuality...

...just like Chrys. There was a thought for her to mull over...

However, she never got a chance to do any 'mulling' because she felt Kyle's hand gently touch her knee. It might have been a gentle, somewhat hesitant touch but it rocked Lei's mind like a powerful roundhouse blow.

A man had his hand on her knee !

...and it didn't feel utterly disgusting. Oh, it wasn't terribly enjoyable, physically or emotionally... but it didn't want to make her vomit. It was just a light pressure, a slight warmth, resting against the smooth fabric that encased her cute little knee. A pressure that began to feel a little more physically pleasurable as it began to move, the hand slowly, gently rubbing her knee, feeling... feeling quite nice, especially when it explored a little more, sliding up to her skirt, now touching bare flesh of taut, smooth thigh as the fingers disappeared beneath the hem of her short, black skirt...

...and she slid her legs a little further apart to allow easier access. Not because Chrys made her do it... but out of an instinctive action to increase the pleasure of his touch, to let him grope a little higher, knowing the pleasure would increase if he just went a little further...

'This is wrong!' She told herself, shocked. 'I'm actually encouraging him! I should slam my knees together, stop him cold... but Chrys is planning to introduce me to sex, and I can't stop her. Being 'cold' wouldn't stop it from happening, but it might make Kyle feel bad, and Chrys might 'force' him to have sex against both our wills. Why should I make this any harder than it needs to be, since I don't have a choice...?'

Instead of slamming her knees together, she spread them even wider, giving tacit approval to Kyle, whose hand slid deeper into the shadow of her skirt...

...while his other hand slid into her sweater and began gently caressing her massive, bra-and

SUMMARY: Two roommates try out spells from a famous 16th century "Book of Power" and begin with experimenting with gender change.

An Immoral Book

By Gunslinger

Chapter I: Tom

Shivering violently as the chill drizzle was lashed by the even chillier wind, Tom rushed the last few steps across the parking lot to the minimal wind-break of the small 'patio' of his ground-floor apartment, rummaging through the big pockets of his leather flight jacket for his keys.

A usually unprepossessing man of average height and build, Thomas Duncan O'Neill was now an eye-catching sight - the way a shivering, pathetic-looking wet dog would be eye catching. He was soaked through, his dark-brown hair now looking nearly black, slicked across his head and over his face, where it seemed to merge with the sodden strands of his full beard. His tan slacks, leather 'bomber' jacket and the sand-colored shirt beneath were all equally sodden from the miserable fall weather, and only his feet remained dry, snug within the black leather Garrison boots he wore.

If only the boots weren't so damned uncomfortable...

Damp, wrinkled fingers chilled and awkward, Tom managed to unlock and push open the big sliding glass door, stepping into the apartment with a sigh and quickly shutting the door behind him, cutting off the damp wind following him in. Leaning his ass against the thick plate glass, he bent over and fumbled at the laces of his boots, kicking them aside when he finally managed to get the tight-fitting footwear off.

Dripping, he hurried across the worn beige carpet of the living room and onto the vinyl flooring in the hall, where the water would be easier to clean up. The warmth of the apartment was seeping through his damp clothing - which was almost as uncomfortable as being cold and wet.

"Hey, Dick." Tom said as he passed by the door to the first of the apartment's two bedrooms. "You need the bathroom? I'm gonna grab a shower."

His roommate was sitting at the cheap press-board desk in the back corner of his room, his narrow back turned to the doorway. Though Tom had made no effort to be quiet when he came in, the slender, sandy-haired young man at the desk was obviously engrossed in whatever it was he was doing, and was startled by his roommate's words. His narrow, hawkish face jerked up and over, looking over his own bony shoulder and then his dark eyes went wide behind his stylish, silver-rimmed glasses, and his expressive mouth curled into a wide grin.

"Geez, Tom - you look like the proverbial drowned rat." Richard J. Entwistle said, with a chuckle. "Go ahead, get yourself warmed up and dry - I'll put on a pot of coffee while you're showering."

"You have no idea how good that sounds..." Tom said, gratefully.

"No problem." Dick said. "Besides - I've been dying for you to get home. I've got something I want to show you..." "Oh?" Tom said, one bushy eyebrow rising. "I'll be quick then."

Tom hurried through a warm, relaxing shower, acutely interested to see what his roommate had to show him. He'd roomed with Dick for nearly three years now, and the two of them got along famously which wasn't all that surprising, since they'd been friends since high school, more than ten years ago.

Both Tom and Dick were a bit 'odd', personality wise. Though both loved to read, neither was the stereotypical 'bookworm', each also having an interest in a few 'sweaty' hobbies, though they weren't the 'usual' sports. Dick, for instance, was a martial artist - and not just in the usually-used sense of the Oriental Martial arts, though he had studied Bo, Tae-Kwan-do and Karate. They'd been 'offshoots' of his real passion, which was fencing. Saber, epee, foil - Dick was remarkably skilled in all these forms of swordplay, his almost frightening speed more than making up for his shorter reach.

Tom had 'played around' with fencing - but was more of an 'outdoorsman', preferring camping, canoeing and horseback riding to the sword. Like Dick, however, he had a real interest in history, mythology and the occult, both in fiction and - at least supposedly - non-fiction. Sometimes their shared interest could earn them an odd look or two, especially when they hit the big used-and-rare book sales and walked up to the cashier with armfuls of books that many might have thought 'evil' or 'Satanic' - but both young men agreed with Oscar Wilde, who had once written: 'There is no such thing as a moral or an immoral book. Books are well written or badly written. That is all.'

After a vigorous toweling off that left him feeling almost like a whole new person, Tom wrapped a somewhat thread-bare - but eminently comfortable - blue terry-cloth robe around himself. Dropping a dry towel on the floor, he stepped on it and 'shuffled' his way up the hall toward the kitchen, sopping up the trail of water he'd left behind when he'd come home.

Reaching the damned-near-invisible 'kitchenette' of the apartment, Tom poured himself a cup of coffee and added a dollop of cream. Tossing the damp towel over the handle of the stove, Tom carried his coffee out into the living room, where Dick was sipping at his own coffee and looking down at the object on the coffee table in front of him with nearly paternal pride.

"Draw up a chair, Tom, and take a look at this." Dick said, gesturing at the large, leather-bound book laying on the coffee-table next to their lap-top computer. Placing his coffee on an end-table, Tom slumped down into the big, soft couch with a sigh, then leaned forward to survey Jack's latest acquisition.

As soon as his eyes took in the faded gilt lettering on the cover, he felt his own blood begin to rush.

"Jesus Christ, Dick!" he said, staring at his smugly grinning friend. "How the hell did you get your hands on this?"

With a lofty expression, Dick folded his slender fingers across his chest and leaned back. "The 'Vademecum Internictus', written by Albert Magnus in fifteen-oh-seven, Anno Domino, is one of the rarest of all so-called 'Books Of Power', a lesser-known tome in the same panoply as the much more infamous Necronomicon. Indeed, the Vademecum might be completely unknown, if not for the fact that a partial volume rests in the British Museum, so damaged as to be unreadable."

Tom rolled his eyes at Jack's reiteration of what, for him, was well-known history... but he didn't say anything, knowing this was Jack's way of 'leading up' to the story.

Catching his roommate's long-suffering look, Dick 'broke character' long enough for a quick grin and a wink before continuing on in the same Stentorian tones.

"No other copy of Magnus' famous - or infamous - work has ever been verified, though rumors abound of secret disciples spending their lives re-copying copies of the original manuscript, a new volume being produced every generation. Though no definitive proof of the copy being produced this generation has ever surfaced, there has been rumors that the past scribes of the Vademecum were, to all appearances, normal people leading what seemed to be normal lives, undetected by the general populace as they went about their trade as a butcher, a baker, or a cooper out in California during the 1800's, copying out the Vademecum after a hard day of making barrels. One who's family had no idea what he'd left behind, and whose great-great-grand-children eventually held an estate sale "

" on E-Bay!" Tom finished, triumphantly, knowing full-well where many of their best finds came through. "So - I guess you've been studying it ever since you got it."

"You bet - and it fits perfectly in with our theoretical model." Dick said, leaning forward with an excitement rare to the usually reserved young man. "Tom... I think we're ready to give it a try "

Tom's mouth dropped open as his heart seemed to stop in his chest. The two young men had been following a track that had never been tried before, or at least not to their knowledge - the idea that what was known as 'magic' was actually a very different and advanced branch of mathematics. One where the 'spells' were actually complex algorithms that allowed the alteration of selected parts of the universe itself through mathematical manipulation, with the 'magic words' actually being variables in the great equation. Together, they'd written a computer program to 'solve' select portions of that universal algorithm, but had lacked enough data to input...

...until now.

"You... you haven't tried it yet...?" Tom asked, his mouth suddenly dry. Could they actually have done it ?

"I was just finishing up the input when you got home." Dick said, obviously as excited as Tom was. "It seemed fitting to wait the extra couple of minutes until we gave it a shot."

"great!" Tom said. He scooted over on the couch until he was beside his more diminutive roommate, two sets of eyes fixed firmly on the open 'lid' of the computer and the LCD screen it housed. The program they had written was already loaded and running, presenting a portion of the vast mathematical equation in a visual form. Before, Tom had never seen more than thirty-seven percent of a 'chain', a branch shown in the visual metaphor they'd chosen to use - but now the section showing on the screen was at ninety-seven percent, almost completely linked in with the rest of the unseen graphic representation.

"What should we try?" Dick asked, his voice betraying his hopes and fears. "Because of computer power limitations, this is much as I can pull up at one time - it'll take a couple of hours to 'switch' the view, because of the number-crunching. Even then, this is a static view, rather than a dynamic one - we don't have enough power for a 'real-time' alter. Look..."

The smaller man gestured at the bottom right hand of the screen, where a timer was running. It showed '00:00:17:23'. The last set of numbers was scrolling, once per second, and Tom realized that Dick had added a timer for how long the screen had been 'paused' - rather than describing the section of the universe as it was, right now, the screen was showing what it had been like when the numbers had been crunched, seventeen minutes ago. The longer they took to decide what to 'edit', the more out-of-date the data would be, and the more unpredictable the results. After all, they were doing this via computer, and the GIGO rule applied - 'Garbage In, Garbage Out'.

"Hey..." Tom said, blinking. "How was magic done originally? There were no computers available...?"

Dick grinned. "Actually, I have a theory - the ancients used to 'pre-compute' the spell, allowing a lead time for however long it took them, on average, to work out a spell - which could have been years. That's why the 'pre-written' spells in the Necronomicon and other books don't have any power, now - they're miscalculated, being hundreds of years out of date."

Tom snapped his fingers, his agile mind jumping immediately on Jack's thesis. "Stonehenge! It's a 'slide rule', allowing fairly easy conversion of pre-calculated spells to the right time!"

"That'd be my guess... and since we don't happen to have our own Stonehenge handy, we'd better decide what we want to do for a test run before this set of datum gets to far behind." Dick said, jumping from the theoretical to the practical.

"Right." Dick said, frowning in thought. "Well, whatever we do for a test will have to be limited in scope, because of the computer limitation... and we'd better make sure it's something 'here', so we won't get any awkward questions..."

"That's a problem..." Dick said, and Tom lifted an eyebrow. The shorter man shrugged. "These spells don't 'lock on' to a location very well. In the 'equation', location is fairly vague - it's all in direct reference to 'life-force', which seems to be the point-of-reference for magic."

"So..." Tom said, thinking. "It's easier to specify a person than a place. I guess that makes sense. Then, I guess the safest thing to do is 'edit' one of us."

Dick frowned. "You sure that's a good idea? This is our test-run after all. What if we get an unexpected result?"

"That's why only one of us will try it." Tom said. "If anything goes wrong, we have an 'out' the ancients never had - we can save-and- restore the data, so we can revert to the original equation if we screw up."

Tom grinned. "Good thinking. So - are you volunteering?"

"I guess I am." Tom replied. "Okay, now - what's a good acid-test? I don't want to try becoming a fire-breathing dragon or a toad, but it should be something definitive..."

"A slight-yet-obvious change.... With 'slight' being a relative term..." Dick said, thoughtfully. "Hmm... Maybe an age-change?"

Tom frowned and shook his head. "No - I think that's too risky. What if we 'undershoot' or 'overshoot'? A spell that lands me outside of my life-span could be trouble. I mean, I'm not sure about God, the Devil and souls... but since I'm not sure, I don't want to take any risks. Life-and-death chances are out, thank you very much."

"Good thinking." Dick agreed. "So - what's that leave?"

Tom looked thoughtful - then grinned, snapping his fingers. "I've got it - a gender change."

Dick looked startled, then grinned himself. "Still human, about the same age - but a definitive change, nonetheless. Okay - let's see if we can do it."

Tom felt a wave of doubt pass over him as Dick began to peck at the keyboard. What if something went wrong? Hell - what if something went right? He'd be turned into a woman...!

...but, if things did go right, it would only be a temporary change... and he was as curious as the next guy, wondering occasionally what it was like to be female. Not that he wanted to give up his masculinity, not permanently - but it would definitely be interesting to see how the other side lived, so this 'short-term test' could also have some other 'fringe benefits'...

It only took a few seconds for Dick to make the changes - despite the mental bias of each gender, there was actually fairly little difference between them, physiologically speaking. Tom watched as his friend and roommate finished editing the equation - and then reached immediately for the enter key.

Tom's eyes widened and he opened his mouth to stop Dick, even as his body tensed in awkward anticipation. He wasn't ready...!

...and he also wasn't fast enough to keep Dick from pushing the button. Nothing happened.

Dick slumped, feeling like an idiot - it would take time for the computer to 'crunch the numbers', anywhere from a few minutes to a few hours. That would give him plenty of time to prepare himself for the change... except for the fact that he was now (figuratively and literally) on the edge of his seat, since there was no way of being sure when the computer would finish, and the spell would kick in.

"So - what do we do while we wait?" Dick said, sitting back and picking up his coffee.

"What's this 'we', paleface?" Dick dead-panned the punch-line of the old joke, then grinned, grabbing his own coffee. "Well, I guess we just sit and wait. I don't want to be doing anything, really, when the change hits - we don't know what it'll be like, so I can't know how I'll react."

"Oh - and if you knew exactly when and how it was going to happen, then your reactions would be a lead-pipe cinch to predict?" Dick asked with a knowing grin - and Tom had to grin back. He was now faced with a question not many people ever had to seriously consider - 'How should I react while/after being turned into a woman, magically?'.

Assuming everything worked like they hoped... well, as Tom half-hoped, half-dreaded. At the moment, he felt like he was on a roller-coaster, just cresting the top of that first, tall rise - excited and scared and slightly nauseous. The coffee, fine a minute before, tasted too bitter and thick, and he put it aside impatiently.

With desultory small-talk that held a nervous, disconnected edge to it, the two friends simply waited, passing the time. To Tom's ears, the old clock on the wall sounded unbelievably loud as it ticked away the endless seconds, the seconds that seemed to somehow be rushing at an unbelievably fast rate - yet, somehow, with eons passing between each thunderous 'tick'...

The irony of it was, Tom was so busy 'getting ready' for the change that when it hit, one hour and twenty-two minutes later, it came as a surprise. There was an instant's warning, a strange... 'thickness' to the air, as if unseen molasses was running over Tom's body, allowing him just enough time to gasp Dick's name...

..and then he changed.

Time seemed to come to a dead stop as Tom's perceptions suddenly became infinitely clearer. Though he alone could perceive it, the universe actually... shuddered, dragged to a screaming halt in the middle of it's routine business. In that instant, that 'pause' in time, the code that defined everything and everybody in the universe was altered, a tiny, minuscule change in the vast equation of the universe...

...and then time started again, billions of people unaware of the momentous event that had actually occurred in 'non-time', outside of the flow of the universe as everybody knew it...

...but it's effects more-than-obvious to the two individuals sitting in a ground-floor apartment. More 'visually' obvious to one, but more 'sensationally' obvious to the other, as they stared at each other across the coffee-table that held a average, every-day laptop computer that now just happened to be able to alter the universe itself.

"Holy shit...!" Dick said, gaping. "Tom... is that you?"

"I... I think so..." The figure across from him said, in a stunned voice that was, undeniably, feminine. She glanced down and spoke in a warmly feminine tone that, under the circumstances, was eerily composed. "Well, it certainly seemed to work. Lucky I was wearing just the bathrobe - since my clothes didn't change, this could have been very awkward..."

Then, as the impact of what she was seeing and experiencing finally got through, the woman on the other couch shuddered and slumped backwards on the couch, breathing heavily.

"I... I'm really a woman!" She gasped... and, without thinking, yanked the robe wide open to hesitantly touch the new flesh beneath. As an incidental effect, the self-exploratory disrobing also gave Dick quite an eyeful, even before he flushed deeply and yanked his eyes away from the naked figure of his feminized friend.

Despite the fact he was no longer staring at the woman Tom had become, however, Dick could still see the image of her in his mind - and there was no doubt at all that the spell had worked completely and utterly. Hesitantly, he shifted his eyes back towards Tom, the reality matching his memory as he tried not to stare.

There was some of the original 'Tom' in the woman who was hesitantly feeling herself up. Her hair was the same shade of dark brown - though it was a little bit longer and much softer, silky in fact. Likewise, her height and build hadn't changed all that much, making her a little on the tall side for a woman, with slim hips and broad shoulders.

Not that she looked the least bit masculine. No, the person sitting in Tom's place was all woman. Her build only gave her an 'athletic' look, supple and toned - even more so that Tom had appeared original, because the same muscle-mass, translated, seemed more pronounced, despite being hidden under a smooth layer of feminine fat that gave her tones, smooth curves. Her waist, though not model-slender, was trim and well-defined, and her legs and ass were, almost literally, mouth-watering...

...and nestled in a small patch of dark pubic hair between the taut thighs of those legs were the newly-formed lips of Tom's new womanhood, over which her not-dainty-yet-definitely-feminine fingers were slowly roaming.

Blushing furiously, Dick yanked his eyes upwards - which didn't help much, as they were now focused on a pair of melon-sized breasts, firm and round. The other short-nailed hand the new woman boasted was roaming over the softly-firm flesh of her smooth, creamy mounds, as if looking for something - and the hand paused as it hit the large, frankly feminine nipples her new breasts supported.

With a final effort, Dick yanked his eyes all the way up to the new woman's face. Too broad to be 'beautiful', it was still an attractive, open female face - in other words, about as inherently attractive as Tom's original, slightly bland face. It was even marked by the feminine versions of the 'character lines' Tom had boasted as a man, most noticeably the smile-lines around his now fuller, feminine lips and big, usually-cheerful dark eyes - eyes that were currently wide and slightly glassy in shock.

"Uh... Tom..." Dick said, blushing. "Maybe you should, uh... cover yourself up..."

Tom stared blankly at Dick for a second, as if the words were in a foreign language - and then the new woman blushed furiously, yanking the robe closed over her athletic, supple body. Even covered her firm, melon-sized breasts were obvious, not only pushing out the dark-blue fabric in an almost defiantly feminine way, but providing a awkwardly mouth-watering view of cleavage from the way the robe didn't-quite-close in the middle, never having been designed to handle this particular set of curves in it's expected owner.

"Oh, geez..." Tom said, hearing again the warm, feminine contralto that came with this body. "Sorry... It's just a bit of a shock..."

"I can imagine." Dick said, taking a deep breath. He managed a grin, even if it was a little ragged. "Well, now we know how you react to being turned into a woman. Typical male - just start 'feeling her up'..."

"Hey!" Tom retorted, shifting around to find a comfortable position - all her 'old standby' positions, the ones she'd once found most comfortable, weren't any good with her new body, especially given the fuller, more firmly padded derrière and the less-constricted crotch... and the reason why that crotch was less constricted caused a mixed emotion of curiosity and queasiness to roll through Tom. She diverted the thought by asking a question. "Why the hell are my tits so damned big? I mean, I can't really get a good look at myself, but I feel an awful lot like I used to, in terms of weight and balance and stuff... except for this tits..."

"Oh, well - you gotta remember that the equation was a little bit 'out of date'..." Dick said, forcibly pulling his eyes from where they'd - quite naturally! - focused, given the topic of conversation. "Though I set it up to turn you into the female version of yourself, there was still some 'variables' in the equation."

"Oh. That makes sense..." Tom admitted. Slowly, the new woman rose from the couch and stretched, trying to get a feel for the differences in the new body she wore as she moved one set of muscles after another. "The weird thing is, except for the weight hanging on my chest, I don't feel all that different. Even having a.. uh,..." She flushed, brightly. "...a pussy doesn't feel all that strange, at least not under these conditions."

"Well, your build and weight and height are all nearly the same - just redistributed a bit." Dick said. "After all, I didn't want to stray far from the original template - even your face is just a feminine version of your old one. Why don't you go take a look in the mirror?"

"Okay... as soon as you hit the 'reset'." Tom said, firmly.

Dick blinked. "So soon? I thought you might, uh..." He trailed off, afraid of giving offense.

Tom chuckled, her rich new voice well suited for the warm, friendly sound. "Oh, don't bang your head off a wall trying to be 'careful', Dick - it's still me inside here... and yes, I'm sort of curious. More than I'm curious about this body, though, is the fact I want to make sure I can change back - and we know I'll have this body for at least an hour after you hit 'enter', so I can, uh... 'experiment' a bit while the computer's processing, then get the relief of knowing we can reverse it. I think we can, hope we can, trust we can... but I'd like to be sure."

"Yeah - I guess you would. Sort of 'nice enough to visit, but wouldn't want to live there', huh?" Dick said as he re-loaded the original layout of the equation and 'advanced' the time-line to update it. He hit 'Enter', and the machine began processing the restored equation. "Okay - it's running the numbers now."

"Good." Tom said. "Now, if you'll excuse me - I'm going to introduce myself to myself."

Even walking out of the room turned out to be a 'learning experience'. Out of unthinking force of habit, the new woman tried to walk the way she'd always walked - as a man. She immediately discovered that the simple act of walking was defined quite a bit by body-type... and gender. Her first few strides - long, strong and firm - caused her new breasts to bounce and sway in a most pleasantly distracting manner - but one that would quickly become annoying, and then painful.

Pausing, the new woman tried very hard to convince herself that Dick would not snicker at her no matter how ridiculous those first few steps had to look - so it must have been the computer's hard-drive spinning... or something. Flushing, she took a deep breath and tried again, this time rolling her hips more and letting them sway side-to-side. The first few steps were awkward - though not as much so as her masculine attempt, and she quickly found there was a natural, easy rhythm that her body felt comfortable doing, even if the additional twist-and-swivel of her hips seemed strange to her. At least her firm, slightly-smaller-than-volleyball-sized breasts weren't bouncing and swaying as much, though there was definitely some motion going on under the front of her robe. She immediately understood why 'full-figured' women rarely went braless, despite what her masculine mind preferred. Then again, Tom like 'good sized' breasts, not overly large... though, as an odd side effect, Tom now knew why any fairly large-breasted woman either wore a bra, or tight clothing - it wasn't a statement of fashion or sexuality, but necessity. Something had to restrain all the extra movement of mass that Tom now knew to be very poorly located in relation to her center-of balance. Though not all that heavy in absolute terms, the fact that they were at the front of her chest, projecting out from the arm-of-movement for her torso, gave the inertia of her firm new rack extra 'oomph', especially when she turned her torso suddenly - like when she spun around to glare at Dick's facetious 'Work it, honey.'

"You're not helping, you know." Tom said, one eyebrow going up as she glared - blushing furiously - at her friend. "With tits this big and fairly slim hips, I really have to move my hips to counter-balance. It'd actually be a hell of a lot easier if my hips were wider."

"Hey - don't look at me!" Dick protested, raising his hands in mock-terror at the glaring woman. "I didn't specify those chest-melons of yours."

Tom's glare faltered as a quick, quirky grin crossed her fuller lips. Despite the strange situation, she was the same person inside as she had been as a man - and Dick was the same guy he'd always been. Despite some awkwardness generated by Tom's sudden gender- reversal, the same bond of friendship kept Tom from feeling 'alienated' in this strange body.

"I'll be back in a bit." The new woman said, turning away and continuing down the hall.

There was a full-length mirror mounted on the wall outside the bathroom, mostly used when the guys were getting ready for a date. Now - tuning back to make sure she was out of Dick's line-of-sight - the new woman spread her robe open and surveyed her temporary new body.

She wasn't a beauty queen - but she was definitely a fit, attractive young woman, with only the size of her remarkably firm new endowments pushing her outside the 'average' envelope for 'athletically cute'.

Looking at her similar-yet-somehow-radically-different face, Tom blew out a sigh. As a man, she'd found her somewhat limp hair forever flopping in front of her face, and her new, slightly longer mass of silkier hair seemed inclined to behave the same way. Tom reached up to push it aside...

...then paused and, quite consciously, tried that cute little 'flip of the wrist' motion he'd seen women use time and again.

She wasn't sure whether to be surprised or not when she discovered it worked beautifully. With her old hair, it would have - literally - 'flopped', falling back onto her face. Her new hair, however, was considerably finer, and a little more supple - and the movement threw it back, to settle gently into place, the moved section of hair not 'heavy' enough for its own weight to dislodge it again, as would have been the case with her old hair.

Mildly bemused, Tom turned her attention from her face and let her eyes drift slowly downward... while, awkwardly, letting her hands slide over her new body, the somewhat smaller, thinner appendages trying to get used to the feel of the smooth, feminine skin under them.

She started at her waist, slowly letting her hands glide over a slightly more trim stomach than she was used to. Pulling her somewhat more agile arms backwards, she let her hands lightly glide over her fuller, firmer ass - and was a bit surprised at how much more sensitive that part of her anatomy was.

For her male mind, slowly sliding her hands down to her legs was 'uncomfortable'. Not because she was fondling herself as a woman, an act that her male mind found as enjoyable as her female flesh made it feel, but because she was a female version of her male self - which meant her legs weren't shaved. The body hair was finer, and there was less of it, but Tom had the leg-hair to be expected of a twenty-nine-year-old woman who had never shaved her legs.

Leaving the flesh of her quite-shapely new legs, Tom let her hands glide upwards - to where her remarkably firm new breasts rode high and round on her chest, like a pair of flesh-colored honeydew melons.

If melons had been half as firmly soft as these, though, no store would be able to keep them in stock. Tom had to let out a soft - and, to her ears, embarrassingly feminine - sigh of pleasure as her hands once more roamed gently over her firm new endowments. The first time, she'd been somewhat numbed by shock, but this time she could let herself experience what having your breasts fondled felt like from the inside - and she could understand why women enjoyed foreplay so much. Fondling her breasts firmly-yet-gently (and mentally swearing never to try the 'tuning in Tokyo' nipple-twist on a woman again), Tom found herself getting aroused, partially by having her hands filled - overflowing - with firm, succulent breast-flesh... and partly because of what having one's breasts fondled felt like. It wasn't quite like anything she'd ever experienced before, the closed simile she could come up being having somebody lightly fondle his cock - though spread over a much large, softer surface, without any loss of pleasure.

Her nipples, now fully engorged, were on the same scale as her new breasts - and lightly fondling and very carefully pinching them felt much like somebody fondling and tweaking the end of a cock she no longer possessed, only shrunken and doubled and repositioned.

She was in no way amazed - but a little embarrassed - to find that her ministrations were causing a whole new set of sensations. Just minutes before, she'd claimed that her new womanhood didn't feel much different then it had when she'd had a cock, except for the fact that she was no longer 'hanging out'... but now there was a very different sensation indeed, a sort of liquid warmth that was underlaid with a sort of low, slow urgency that wasn't altogether unpleasant. In fact... it was quite damned pleasant, especially to somebody used to male arousal, where a building pressure, both psychological and hydraulic, made for a strong imperative. In the case of her new gender, however, there was no great 'Right Now!' need to the urgency, allowing it to be enjoyed in-and-of-itself... while leaving no doubt that, if left long enough, the urgency would rise beyond the Right Now! point that a male was at quite a bit faster... and, because of the way a woman's sexual equipment functioned, there was no 'automatic cut-off' in the form of unwanted or premature ejaculation. A woman's arousal could just continue to build until satisfied...

...which lead to an interesting thought...

Though she could feel herself blushing, Tom didn't hesitate in least, eager and excited to answer a question she'd bruited about more than once - to herself, of course - while she was male. Shooting a guilty-yet-eager glance over her shoulder, she padded into her bedroom, closing the door behind her and letting her robe slip to the floor. With quick, excited movements, she hurried over to her bed and lay back on it, pausing long enough to plump up her pillows and prop them against the head board, allowing her to lounge comfortably as her hands continued to tease and touch her full, ripe new rack.

Then, comfortably positioned, face a flaming red from the guilty interest, she let her hands glide slowly downwards, past her firm, athletic stomach to the light down on her upper thighs.

For a second, she merely pushed down lightly on either side of her new woman, trembling from an odd mixture of guilt, pleasure and anticipation. The pleasure surprised her - just a gently firm pressure on either side of her now-wet new vagina created a very pleasant sensation deep inside...

...but nothing compared to the way it felt as she slowly but firmly slid one finger into the moist confines of her new vagina.

She arched her back and gasped as her finger was embraced by the warm, wet walls of her new womanhood, her finger gliding smoothly-and-firmly across her new - and unbelievably sensitive - clit. She thought that her nipples had felt like the head of her old cock - but her new clit felt like the hyper-sensitive head of her old cock, the way it had felt just after ejaculating, so intensely pleasurable as to be almost painful - but not quite.

Gathering her lower lip into her mouth and lightly biting down with her even white teeth, the newly feminine Tom began to masturbate, her hips instinctively bucking in slow, undulating waves to match the easy, experimental touch of her finger as she gently - and erotically probed around for the method that brought the most pleasure for the auto-erotic action.

It wasn't hard to find what felt the best, her finger bearing down slightly on her clit with each 'up-and-out' stroke, followed by pressing deeper and straighter for the return thrust. Part of her was still 'separate' enough to find the fact that she was wishing for something large and longer to do this with rather embarrassing - but even more of her wondered what it would feel like to have a dildo in her hand, filling her new cunt the way it was begging to be filled...

The pleasure was building to climax, and Tom found that she was unconsciously gasping, sharp little exhales timed to her thrusts... and then the gasp became a long, drawn-out moan as she reached what was, quantitatively, a fairly weak orgasm, since she hadn't given her new female body enough time to 'warm up' for the full effect.

So, her first female orgasm was 'second rate' - it wasn't like she had an owner's manual for her new form. Besides - even 'second rate', an orgasm was an orgasm, and this one thundered through her and left her slumped in a pleasant after glow...

...as her finger continued to play with her even wetter womanhood. Suddenly, Tom understood the strange, feminine separation of 'good' and 'bad' orgasm. As a guy, she'd only experienced 'good' orgasms, and hadn't truly understood what a 'bad' orgasm could be...

...until now. though she'd just felt the sharp, painless explosion of an orgasm, it hadn't done anything to satisfy her still-low urge. Unlike a man, there was no definitive 'end' to sexual desire in a woman, just ebbs and flows. It wasn't too bad, now, but Tom could clearly see how a truly aroused woman getting a 'bad' orgasm would actually be worse off than when she'd begun... and hence, had something men didn't ordinary worry about, unsatisfactory sex!

Here she was, female for the first time in her life, having been female for all of - a quick glance at the clock on the night-table... - half an hour, and she'd already tripled or quadrupled her understanding of women. This wasn't the 'day to day' stuff that confused men, though Tom was sure she could discover the root of those, too, if she stayed female long enough - but what she'd already learned was stuff she'd never have been able to completely comprehend unless she'd done what she'd just done, pushing aside doubt and guilt to experiment freely with her new body and gender. The sheer volume of available information - and sensations that were created in 'learning' - was stunning.

It was with a guilty reluctance that the new woman extracted her finger from her sopping new cunt, smaller nose wrinkling slightly at the unmistakable odor of female arousal, somewhat less 'musty' in her case because she was 'squeaky clean' inside...

...which, with sudden realization, was why her breasts were amazingly firm. Though ripe and mature, they were 'brand new', and so hadn't suffered the adverse effects of gravity during a feminine youth she'd never experienced. Interesting...

...mulling over the implications that any new form a person chose through magic would be 'newly minted', Tom gathered up her robe and wrapped it around her body, pulling the door open...

...to find Dick 'lurking' beyond. Startled, Tom let out a little shriek... then, instinctively, yanked the robe closed again....

...then, blushing furiously, paused to perform the unaccustomed action of making sure that the upper half of the robe was closed, as well.

"What the hell are you doing ?" Tom asked, shame and shock making her snappish.

Dick coughed, obviously looking for the best phrasing - and then, shrugging, asked in a yearning voice: "What was it like?"

If it had been possible for Tom's blush to deepen, it would have. She stared at Dick - and realized that Dick must have wondered as much as she had, before finding out. She paused, some of the shame retreating as she considered the question honestly, unemotionally.

Finally, she shrugged helplessly, her voice rough with frustration as she said. "It's different."

She wished she could explain it better - but it wouldn't have helped. Dick simply didn't have a better frame of reference. "I'm sorry " Tom said, honestly.

"Well... I guess I can always find out for myself " Dick said, as Tom patted him sympathetically on the arm, then stepped into the bathroom for a second shower, cleaning up her new body.

It turned out that soaping up her new body was an interesting experience - and a pleasant one. Very much so... if her male mind was still a little 'grossed out' by the leg-hair she was sporting....

She paused, looking thoughtful. Bending over - itself an interesting experience, what with her new rack - she put the stopper in the drain. Stepping out onto the bath-rug, she dripped all over the tile floor as she rummaged around in the drawers of the cabinet until she found a package of blue disposable razors. Taking them back to the tub with her, she sat down on the edge - shivering violently as her firm new derrière touched cold enamel. With inherently more sensitive skin, Tom could see why women were more aware of air- temperature than men.

Using plenty of liquid soap in place of shaving cream, slowly and methodically (blushing furiously the entire time) Tom shaved off her unattractive leg hair, leaving behind smooth, slick skin that was 'agreeably' smooth and feminine - if pretty badly 'nicked', especially around the knees. Part of her was burning with shame at her voluntarily feminine actions. It was, thankfully, a fairly small part, ingrained homophobia instilled by society and, all things considered, completely outdated and inapplicable to her current situation.

Besides - all of her had to admit, emotional turmoil or not, that her long, shapely legs looked a lot better shaved...

Toweling off and letting the tub empty, Tom pulled the robe back on and stepped out of the bathroom. The way the apartment was laid out, there was a little 'alcove' where the two bedrooms sat, the 'end' wall at the end of the hallway holding the door to the bathroom and the section of wall on which the mirror was mounted. There was also a blank section of wall, about three feet wide, between the two bedroom doors, and they'd 'filled' that space with a gray-covered wood-armed-and-legged office chair they'd bought cheap. Now, Dick was sitting in that chair, polishing his glasses thoughtfully. When Tom stepped out of the bathroom, he rose and Tom felt guilty that she'd 'wasted' the time it had taken to do her legs, not even thinking about Dick.

The shorter man started to step past her, into the bathroom then, despite the obvious bladder pressure that was causing him to do the International I-Gotta-Go Dance, he stepped back and ran his eyes over her legs appreciatively.

"Shut up." She told Dick, who hadn't said anything with his voice. His expression was speaking volumes. He shrugged, apologetically, then ducked into the bathroom. Shaking her head, Tom headed out to the living room...

...then gasped as, in mid stride, her body reverted back to the male one.

Tom picked himself up off the floor, ruefully thinking how right he'd been to just sit and wait for the first transformation - even something as simple as walking was not recommended when magically changing genders...

"Gotta remember to put that on the warning label " Tom told himself with a grin, checking over his body to make sure everything was the way it was supposed to be.

It was including his leg-hair. All the effort he'd gone too, shaving his female legs, undone in a split-second.

"Hey, buddy - welcome back..." Dick said, from behind. "So how do you feel?"

"Well..." Tom said, as they headed out to the living room and dropped onto the couch. "It was.. interesting. Very educational, too - you have no idea how much I learned in the past hour. It's amazing, all the things we take for granted "

He trailed off, thoughtfully - and began to blush. "Uh, Dick... I was, uh, sorta thinking... Now that we're sure we can undo this "

"You want to spend more time as a woman?" Dick suggested, and Tom nodded.

"Well, buddy... I'm kinda interested to find out what being a woman is like, myself. I was thinking what would you think if both of us spent all day tomorrow as women?"

Tom gaped at Dick, surprised by the shorter man's willingness to trust them both to the good auspices of their program then realized how magnanimous his friend was being. If something did go wrong, being male didn't make it easier to fix, no matter what their gender- biased minds seemed to assume. What Dick was doing was putting himself in the same boat as Tom, to take the same risks...

...and learn the same things, so there was an upside to it. Besides they wouldn't feel so awkward around each other if they were both female.

"yeah. yeah, that sound's good." Tom said. "Tomorrow's Saturday, and we don't have anything planned "

" so, let's do it." Dick said, with a grin. He leaned over the computer. "This will take longer to set up, and to process. I'm going to enter a basic scenario - that both of us should be female. I'm going to have it pre-calculate, then run so as to kick in at about oh, say, six in the morning?"

"Sounds good." Tom confirmed. "Uh can you give me smaller breasts this time?"

Dick looked apologetic. "Actually, because of the pre-programming, I have no real say what we'll turn out like - just that we'll be human, female, and healthy. I figured those are the priorities."

Tom frowned. "I don't know if I like the sound of that "

Dick shrugged. "Well, then, we can sit up and wait for it to finish processing - then spend out day as women dog-tired from too little sleep."

Tom gave it some thought, then finally nodded. "All right - do it."

For some strange reason, both roommates had quite a hard time falling to sleep that night...

TO BE CONTINUED

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: The continuation of two roommates who try out spells from a famous 16th century "Book of Power" and experiment with gender change.

Chapter II: Tom and Dick

As his alarm 'bleeped' busily away, Dick squinted up at the ceiling and fumbled on the night-table for his glasses, wondering why the hell he was getting up so damned early on a Saturday...

...and then memory came flooding back, and the slender, sandy-haired young man practically levitated out of the bed. "Holy shit.... did Tom really turn into a woman yesterday?" Dick asked himself. "Or was it all a dream?"

No, it had really happened - and, today, Tom was going to be female again... while Dick would experience being female for the first time.

The thought of that generated what was most definitely a guilty thrill. Part of him couldn't believe he was going to go through with this. Not that he couldn't believe he was going to turn himself female - Dick found the idea highly intriguing, and was looking forward to it, to see what life was like for women. After all, despite the fact that he was fit, intelligent and considerate, he wasn't exactly a 'Studmeister', and women were largely a mystery in so many ways. No, what he had trouble believing was that he'd have the courage to walk out the door as a woman, to face the world in a body not his own. He thought it more likely he'd end up holed up in the apartment all day... and perhaps, as Tom had last night, get some (ahem) 'first hand' experience...

Grinning at the mental pun, Dick slipped his glasses on and slid out of bed. Not bothering to dress, he threw on his dark-green-and-red plaid bathrobe and wrapped it around his body - a body that would have surprised many of those women who'd turned him down for a date because he looked a little 'geeky'. Under his clothes, Dick boasted a lean, taut body honed by years of swordplay and other martial arts.

Stretching those taut muscles mightily as he yawned with equal vigor, the deceptively diminutive man padded out of his bedroom, moving with a cat-like grace he only used when 'preoccupied' - it was the sort of grace he used in fighting, but it had gotten him mercilessly teased when he was younger, since it looked 'effeminate', at least in the eyes of some of his peers. He could have dealt with those jeers by showing how 'effeminate' he was while kicking their asses, but that wasn't Dick's style. Just knowing he could kick the ass of idiots like that was enough for Dick to feel superior to (as he liked to think of them) the 'Neanderthalic Mass of Humanity'.

Somehow, Dick was not at all surprised to smell the rich, enticing smell of fresh-brewed coffee filling the air, indicating Tom was already up. If his own night was any indication, Tom had drifted off only after trying - and failing - to imagine what it would be like to spend a day as a biological woman. Dick thought it safe to make the comparison, even though Tom already had some experience 'en femme' - the truth was, Dick also had a hint of experience, though nobody but he knew about it... he hoped. He'd been young and curious and - given his build - able to fit into his sister's clothes, and one day when everybody else had been out of the house, he'd snuck into her room and tried on her clothes. In fact, nearly two months had gone by with him sneaking into her closet every chance he got, wiggling himself into her soft, feminine clothes, jamming his feet into successively higher heels... until a very, very close call one day had put 'fear' above 'curiosity', and he'd dropped his incipient cross-dressing habit.

Today, however... today it was going to be 'acceptable' to the rest of the world if he slipped soft, feminine clothing over whatever body he happened to get...

"Morning, Tom..." Dick said, ducking his head around the corner of the living room. His roommate was sitting with a mug of coffee in hand, looking at the count-down-clock on the laptop's screen. "How long have we got?"

"Eight minutes." Tom replied, practically trembling with nervous energy. "Hey, you know what's weird...?"

Dick had ducked into the kitchen to grab a cup of coffee, black, and didn't hear the question. When he came back out, Tom repeated it.

"You mean, besides sitting here waiting to turn into women?" Dick asked, with a grin, as he dropped onto the other 'arm' of the 'L'- shaped couch.

Tom grinned. "yeah, besides that." He rolled his eyes. "You know what this remind me of? Christmas morning when I was a kid "

Dick blinked. "Hey, you know - you're right. Getting up early, waiting impatiently, wondering what you're going to get...." He laughed. "Of course, I always knew what I was going to get. My parents were lousy at hiding the presents "

Tom made a theatrically overdone face of sympathy. "Oh, you poor, depraved child." "You mean 'deprived'." Dick corrected.

"With you sitting here, waiting to be a woman? Nope - I mean 'depraved'." Tom shot back. "As if that isn't the pot calling the kettle black." Dick retorted, with a grin.

"Hey, this is old hat for me." Tom said, loftily. "Been there, done that "

"...but you don't have the T-shirt to prove it." Dick countered.

"Hmmm... you're right." Tom mused. "I wonder how much it would cost to have a T-shirt made that reads: 'I used magic to turn myself into a woman, and all I have to show for it is this lousy T-shirt'?"

Dick laughed. "Why pay for it? We can 'magic' one up for free."

That stopped Tom dead in his tracks. After their 'test' of the magic computer program, he'd sort of focused on the gender-switching abilities of the machine as if that was all there was to it. Now, Dick and he shared a long, speculative looks at the thought of what else the machine could be used to do, now that they'd verified it worked...

"That's something to think about, now isn't it...?" Dick said, rhetorically, the possibilities parading through his mind.

"Yeah, I... - whoops! One minute warning!" Tom said, leaning forward and looking at the screen - then visibly forcing himself to relax, he sat back. "I'd suggest you put down the coffee..."

Dick followed Tom's example, and they tried to relax as best they could as the counter - seeming to take forever - wound down to zero...

...and then time came screeching to a halt, stretching out like taffy as changes 'rippled' through the two friend's bodies, completely altering them.

It was the second time for Tom, but the first time Dick had ever felt that strange 'molasses' sensation as the power wrapped itself around him and his physical 'equation' was altered by the calculations he'd input the night before. He couldn't see his own body as it changed, just as Tom hadn't been able to see his the night before - but, now, the two of them were both in this 'slow-time', and could see each other as the 'instantaneous' change that the rest of the world didn't even notice was slowed in the guy's perceptions, made visible as they were caught in the web of the 'spell'.

Dick watched, amazed, as Tom's body rippled and pulled, as if it were made of rubber. Bone and sinew and muscle shifted and altered as his own 'equation' was over-written by the computations of their computer, changing 'what might be' into 'what was'.

'Perception' became more subjective, 'reality' being defined not only by a new set of equations, but by how each of the men-becoming- women 'focused' on the event. From Dick's point of view, Tom's transformation seemed to start at the crown of his head and ripple downward, as if he was being doused in a liquid that transformed him as it went.

Tom's dark hair stirred as if in a wind, then quickly began to grow, fading to a lighter shade of brown as it ran down the back of his neck and pooled around his shoulders. While the hair spilled down, his face was also changing, the nose shrinking in on itself as the lips bulged out, firmer and more feminine. His cheek-bones pushed upwards and outwards, becoming better defined, as his jaw reshaped itself, achieving a smoother, more eye-pleasing curve.

His neck smoothed as his Adam's Apple retracted back. The shoulders beneath that now-feminine neck shrank in on themselves, becoming agreeably feminine as Tom's chest bulged outwards, pushing the blue terry-cloth further and further from it's staring position as breasts formed behind it. More than just the chest air was stirring under the robe, but Dick was unable to see the immediate effects, since those areas were covered. He could watch as Tom's legs writhed and became more feminine in contour, his hands and feet following a 'second' later...

...though this time and sequence was all subjective, since it was actually occurring in the instant between one second and another, a non-time that only the two friends were able to perceive.

From Tom's point of view, Dick's transformation occurred over his entire body in one steady transformation, legs reshaping themselves at the same rate as his face, hands slimming in time with his feet, shoulders and neck. Like Tom, Dick was covered by a robe, and all Tom could see was that which was bare - but it gave Tom enough to see the woman his friend was becoming, even as his own body changed...

...and then it was over.

"Holy shit...!" The woman who had been Dick said, in a stunned soprano tone that was only unnecessary verification of her new gender. Tom, having already experienced the 'point-of-view' transition, was more stunned by his - her - friend's change than her own, her newly-reshaped jaw hanging wide as she stared.

"God, Dick.... You're gorgeous..." Tom said in her new contralto voice, staring at her altered roommate.

It was true - Dick had become a 'fine figure of a woman'. She was actually an inch or two taller than she had been as a man, but even more slender - she had that fine, delicate build that many women dreamed of having, with slender wrists and ankles that matched a trim waist and swan-like neck.

A lot of her height seemed to be taken up by her legs - incredibly long, shapely legs that super-model and stripper alike would quite willingly have killed for. Her new face was 'cute-sexy', especially with Dick's silver-rimmed oval glasses perched atop her pert little nose. Her hair was still sandy-blond, but now it hung down to her slender shoulders, framing a face that could play angel or devil with equal facility.

"You're no slouch yourself..." Dick told Tom, shifting her gaze from her own, dainty new hand to her altered roommate.

Tom wasn't 'slender' or 'leggy' - at least, not like Dick. Instead, Tom now had a 'sturdy' female body that carried more weight than Dick's, but it was all in the right places, and very little of it was fat. Her face reminded Dick a little of the 'Roz' character of 'Frasier' - but the body was the firmly-packed body of a sexual athlete, her breasts easily as big as they'd been the night before, if not larger.

Dick looked like the proverbial 'All American Girl', leggy and slender and blond, the type every guy dreamed of screwing just once. Tom, on the other hand, had the toned, sturdy body of the school 'slut', the girl who knew everything about sex and - unlike 'Miss America', could go for hours at a time. Though completely different in build and coloration, each of the new women was incredibly sexy in their own way.

Of course, each of the guys thought the other one was unbelievably sexy, not having seen their own bodies yet. It was the woman Tom had become that first rose from the couch and - remembering last night - very carefully headed for the hallway mirror, letting her body find a natural rhythm for it's own stride.

Dick followed only a few steps behind. She moved with a supple ease that was part 'natural', and part 'controlled', Dick's feminine new body even more supple and graceful than her male one had been, letting her put all that martial-arts-born-grace to good use.

Too stunned and excited to worry about modesty, the two friends simply dropped their robes on the floor and jockeyed for mirror space, alternating their stunned gaze between the mirror and each other's body.

It was finally Tom who chuckled low in her throat, gaining her an inquisitive look from Dick.

"I guess my family must have genes for big tits somewhere in it's past..." Tom said, hefting her amazingly spherical new tits with her strongly feminine hands. The size of volley-balls, her huge, firm tits were a couple of cup sizes larger than last night, probably a FFF- or GGG-cup.

Dick blinked, then looked down at her own 'rack', a firm D-cup that fit her tall, supple body nicely, giving her a 'full' bust, but not one so... so 'in your face' as Tom's new attributes.

On the other hand...

Dick laughed, gaining an inquisitive look for her very own. "Oh, this is rich..." She explained, giggling. "The breast-man gets unbelievable legs and a mouth-watering ass, while the leg-main gets a monster set of hooters. Tom, ol' buddy - we've become each other's fantasy."

Tom looked startled - then, blushing, laughed at the accuracy of Dick's facetious comment. Retrieving her robe, she wrapped it rather defensively around her firm-fleshed new figure... while shooting another glance at Dick's long, sexy - and somewhat hairy - legs.

"So, uh... I guess the first thing we should do is, uh... shave..." Tom said, trying to get her mind off of how hot her best friend looked. "I mean, if we're going to be going out and everything..."

Dick grinned at her friend's shyness. Dick, herself, found the experience so far to be incredibly exciting - and liberating. Somehow, the fact that this wasn't, 'really' her own body made it easier for her to drop her inhibitions. She didn't feel the least bit self-conscious standing there ogling Tom's body. After all, it wasn't like she was doing something 'weird' and ogling a guy's body - she was ogling the body of a busty, sexy woman, which was just the way Dick liked them. What could be more natural...?

"Well, I'd suggest the first thing we do is pick new names." Dick suggested. "We'd get a whole lot of odd looks if we referred to each other as 'Dick' and 'Tom' while out in public..."

"You're right." Tom admitted. "Uh... I really hadn't considered it..."

"That's all right." Dick said, smiling - as she stepped through the door into the bathroom. "You can think about it while I shower and shave."

Then she shut the door and locked it. Tom stared at the closed bathroom door for a second - and then had to laugh. Shaking her head, the new woman padded back to the living room and settled onto the couch, reaching for her coffee. It came as a bit of a surprise to find that it was still hot - she had to remind herself that barely any time had passed, in reality.

Sipping at the coffee and mulling over the choice of her feminine moniker for the day, Tom stared out the sliding glass door. The sun was just beginning to make an appearance, tinting the sky orange while much of the view was still tinted the steel-gray of early morning.

Still mulling over what to call herself, Tom rose from the couch and padded over to the door, unlocking it and pushing it open to get a breath of the crisp, dawn air...

...and jerked back in shock as sunlight streamed in through the open door. The sound of traffic thrummed through the air, and a man dressed in a suit and in the middle of climbing into his car paused to gape at the sexy, robe-clad woman gaping out of her apartment door.

Tom's mind spun as she tried to figure out what the hell was happening. She shifted her unbelieving gaze between the view outside the open door, and the view through the other side of the glass door - which still showed early-morning sunrise. Hell, even the door she had opened was showing that - but pushed aside, as if the plate-glass door was actually in incredibly high-resolution TV on tracks.

With a small cry, the new woman reached out and slammed the door shut, trembling. "Dick!" She cried. "Dick, get out here!"

Only then did the new woman become aware that she slopped some coffee over the edge of the mug and on her hand. Cursing, she put the mug down and wiped her hand with the hem of her robe, completely oblivious to the fact that the drapes to the sliding door were open and she was exposing her naked crotch.

"What is it...!" Dick said, dashing into the room with an easy glide that looked almost feline in her new form. Her left leg was partially shaved, and foamy shaving cream dripped from her leg.

"The.. the door. Open it..." Tom said, shaking her head in confusion. "Something... something's wrong..."

Frowning in confusion, Dick walked over and opened the door... then paused. She took a step back and looked at the view through the other side of the glass door, making muttering noises to herself. Finally, she closed the door and looked back at her friend.

"Uh... Well, I figured out what happened..." Dick said, slowly. "Everything in this apartment is approximately two hours behind the rest of reality."

Tom stared agape at her roommate... then it clicked.

"The save file!" She said, snapping her new fingers. "When we 'reset' me last night, everything in that section of the screen was reset back to the original... including time!"

"Yeah." Dick agreed. "Don't worry, it's no big deal. When we're done tonight, we'll just advance the time-frame on the save file the right number of hours."

"Shouldn't we take care of it now?" Tom asked. "I mean... this is weird."

Dick shook her new head, her perky face having a heard time with the 'intellectual' expression Dick was instinctively trying to paste on it. "No - we'd have to load the file, apply it - making ourselves male again - and then wait for the machine to process us back into women. We'll just leave it until tonight."

"Okay, if you're sure..." Tom said, doubtfully, shifting her weight back and forth.... and then suddenly sprinting across the room....

"Hey! Don't even think about..." Dick shouted in mock outrage as Tom - laughing - dashed into the bathroom and slammed the door shut.

Dick, who'd started to chase after the firm-bodied new tom, paused halfway down the hall and looked at the closed door - the, theatrically, crossed her arms over her firm new bosom, turned away, lifted her nose with a sniff, and said: "Bitch."

Then, laughing, went out to the kitchen to wipe off her new legs - and maybe admire them a bit, hairy or not, while finishing her coffee. Dick might have like big-breasted women, but that didn't mean she couldn't appreciate a jaw-dropping set of legs when she saw them, even if they were on her.

They two roommates traded positions after Tom had finished shaving her legs, with noticeably less damage to them than from her first attempt the night before. As they passed in the hallway, they paused for a couple minutes discussing names for their new forms, finally deciding that 'Tonya' and 'Debbie' fit their respective new bodies well enough. After a few back-and-forth comments about each other's new figures, ('Hippie', Debbie snorted, looking at Tonya's wide, child-bearing new hips. The buxom brunette looked theatrically at the top of the blonde's head and slammed back with 'Same amount of woman - I'm just more compact.'). the two headed their separate ways, Tonya to get dressed while Debbie finished her interrupted shower-and-shave.

Sorting through her closet, Tonya realized that finding something to wear, for now, wouldn't be as hard as she'd feared. Sure, she didn't have any 'female' clothing, but as massive a change being a woman seemed, emotionally, it wasn't too big a deal, physically. Sure, her build and dimensions were different, but the basic 'layout' of her body was the same.

Because of her considerably wider hips, picking 'pants' was easy - she needed material that would stretch, and she had a pair of gray track-pants that did just that, molding to her full hips and now-flat crotch like a second skin, while bagging around the draw-strings at the ankles. A dark-blue University of Las Vegas, Nevada sweatshirt covered her prodigious new rack, which was further restrained by the one-loose heavy-weight white T-shirt she wore under the sweatshirt, no pulled taut over her melon-like breasts and ties in a knot just below to serve as a make-shift brassiere one that didn't do half the job of containing them as a real brassiere would have, allowing them more 'motion' when she moved then she was utterly comfortable with.

She pulled on a pair of athletic socks and then immediately discovered that her shoes would fit on her smaller feet like boats. Thankfully, her shrunken feet were close to the size that Dick's masculine feet had been, so she 'stole' a pair of his sneakers.

A look in the mirror revealed that she looked 'acceptable' - probably the way a woman born with a body like this would look if she were doing laundry, for instance. Still, even the baggy clothing and lack of make-up couldn't completely disguise her voluptuous figure, though the baggy clothes actually made her look chubby, rather than the 'firm and fully packed' her body really was. The newly renamed Tonya thought it a bit odd to find herself regretting that the outfit 'downplayed' her body - though her male mind was housed in it, that didn't change the fact she would have liked to see it better displayed, even if her own figure wasn't her 'idealized' female...

"Looking good, babe..." Debbie said from the doorway, making Tonya's head whip around... and then she blushed and pulled her eyes off of Debbie's slender, graceful body. After all, it was her best friend.

"So - think you can find something that'll fit your new body?" Tonya asked Debbie, and the blonde smiled. "Watch me..."

Tonya waited for Debbie out in the living room, sitting on the couch... and subtly fondling her own, full breasts. They were larger then she liked, from both the point of view of 'having' and 'preferring' - but they did feel pretty damned good when you lightly squeezed them.

"So.. what do you think...?" Debbie asked, entering the living room and 'striking a pose' - and Tonya's slender new eyebrow rose in surprise.

"Wow - you're really getting into this, aren't you?" Tonya asked, surveying her friend's ensemble.

Debbie took that as a compliment and grinned, slowly turning in place to better display herself - and Tonya was surprised to feel a faint tremor on envy run through her as she eyed Debbie, clad in tan slacks that clung like a second skin to her hips and ass, a white cotton shirt that molded itself nicely to her breasts, and a pair of leather Zapato sandals, the 'Old Roman' style sandals that could be adjusted to fit damned near anybody by tightening the straps.

It was so fetching on Debbie that it was only with a second or third look that you could realize she was wearing men's clothes. "Okay - so we're women, with women's names." Tonya said, standing up. "What's next?"

Debbie grinned. "Why, we go shopping, of course."

Tonya's stomach did a flip-flop at the thought of leaving the apartment while female.. but it was an equal mix of anxiety and excitement. Her grin was less sure than Debbie's, but there none the less. "Great. I'll call a cab..."

"Great. I'll grab us a couple of jackets..." Debbie replied.

When she returned with Tom's flight jacket and a 'Letter' jacket for herself, Debbie found Tonya looking at the phone with a decidedly odd expression.

"No soap." Tonya said, gesturing at the phone in frustration. "Our end's two hours in the past, compared to the rest of the world. You have no idea how weird that is... I'm trying to call somebody two hours in the future."

Debbie looked startled - and then laughed. "I can just see it now: 'Operator, can you connect me to two hours from now, please...?'"

Deciding to grab a cab on the way, the two women stepped out through the sliding door, finding it just a little disorientating to be stepping through time, even if it was a mental contortion rather than any noticeable sensation. Sharing a look, the two women made sure the door was locked and then set out towards the corner gas station, from which they could call a cab.

"Relax, Tonya..." Debbie suggested with a grin as she watched her friend all-but-slump along, shoulders bowed and eyes flicking from side to side, as if she expected an attack.

"Sorry..." Tonya muttered, making a visible effort to straighten up and walk 'naturally' - as a woman would, that is. "I know it's silly, but I keep expecting people to point and shout, you know...?"

"I'm sure it'll take some getting used to, walking around as a woman." Debbie said, sympathetically.

Tonya shot her an odd glance. "That's easy enough for you to say - you act like you haven't a care in the world. Admit it - you're not the least bit nervous."

"Oh, well, I'm a lot less nervous than you are, that's for sure." Debbie said with a grin. "to tell you the truth - I'm getting a huge kick out of this. remember, we can't ever match these bodies again. It's a one-shot deal, and we don't have to worry about anybody recognizing us, either from our 'male' lives, or in the future... so why not have fun?"

Tonya blinked, never having looked at it that way - but Debbie was right. As far as the world was concerned, they were non-people, with no past or future. Anything they did in the here-and-now would only have consequences in terms of emotional ones, not direct impacts on the future... because 'Tonya' and 'Debbie' wouldn't exist in that future.

Slowly, Tonya grinned. 'hell - maybe we should rob a bank. The ultimate 'getaway' scheme "

"Down, girl..." Debbie laughed. "Let's try to keep our 'experimenting' with being female complete legit." "You take the fun out of everything." Tonya 'pouted' theatrically, then laughed.

In very high spirits, the two friends reached the phone-booth at the gas station and called for a cab - then just stood around, taking in the people going by, and trying to watch those people watching them, without being noticed as watching the people...

It was sort of a futile attempt, despite the fact that they weren't dressed to best display their new, feminine charms. Debbie, especially, looked 'tasty' even without makeup or female clothing, and the guys who walked by seemed complete unable to do so without a 'once-over' that they probably did out of habit, barely realizing what they were doing.

Tonya started to get a feel for what women went through, however. She wasn't interested in being found 'attractive' to these guys, and those almost thoughtless looks made goose-bumps run up and down her body.

She noticed, however, that Debbie almost reveled in it - even shooting smiles at some of the guys. "What are you doing?" Tonya hissed, flushing, as her feminized friend flirted facetiously.

"Oh, relax." Debbie grinned back. "Don't you get it? This is fun. Think about all those times some hot chick ignored you when you gave her a once-over. We both know that I'm not going to actually do anything - so giving some poor schmuck a little wink and a grin will make his whole day, at no cost to me."

"Huh..." Tonya said. "Hadn't thought of it that way, I guess."

"well - here's our lift..." Debbie said, as a taxi pulled into the station's lot. "you ready to do a little shopping, girlfriend?" "No." Tonya replied with a grin. "But let's do it anyway."

"That's the spirit..." Debbie said, with a grin, as she climbed in the back of the cab. Tonya followed suit - wondering how on earth Debbie could take this change in gender so... so easily. Every nerve in her body was screaming at her that she was a 'freak', a man 'dressed up' like a woman, out in public.

Of course, her 'costume' was so perfect that nobody would ever know but that was 'logical', and had nothing to do with the emotions she was feeling.

Tonya did have to admit one thing, though:

This was exciting...

* * * * *

"Isn't this exciting?"

Tonya stared at Debbie, who was turning slowly back and forth to admire her new ensemble in the lightly mirrored glass of a store-front in the mall - and laughed, shaking her head.

"God, Debbie - you must be ninety-percent female or something." She paused and pointed downward. "How the hell do you stand in those things, much less walk?"

Debbie leaned over and looked down - at the black platform shoes she wore, shoes with a three-inch platform and eight-inch heels.

Thin straps wound around her heels and ankles, holding each tall, gleaming black shoe in place on her slender, feminine feet. The high, tapered heels did a hell of a lot to emphasize her incredibly long, shapely legs - legs further showcased by the black nylons the new woman wore.

"Actually..." Debbie said, with a grin. "I've had previous experience in heels this high. My sister had a pair, and I practiced in them after graduating from the next highest set of heels she owned."

Tonya gasped. "You.. you tried on your sister's clothing?"

Smoothing down the fitted black leather mini-skirt she wore, Debbie feigned a look of surprise. "Of course. After all - isn't that what women like us do when we're young?"

Tony laughed and shook her head again, finding it hard to believe this tall, slender blonde was the same person, inside, as the short, studious friend she'd roomed with all this time. If nothing else, this whole experience was showing Tonya a side of Debbie she'd never even dreamed existed...

...like Debbie's impeccable fashion sense. Debbie had practically walked straight to the outfit she'd bought, knowing exactly what would look good on her slender, feminine new frame - and she'd been dead-on about that. Black was her color today, looking anything but somber on her supple new body. In addition to the nylons and shoes, she was wearing a black leather skirt that clung tightly to her spectacular ass. Most of the skirt itself was hidden by the long, wasp-waisted black leather coat that looked as if it were practically tailored to her figure, especially her amazingly trim waist. Beneath the coat lurked a black silk shirt that covered her taut new breasts without the benefit of a bra - because, as Debbie had confided to her outside the changing room, it just felt so good.

Tonya hadn't had the slightest clue what to pick out for her day 'en femme' - and Debbie had also taken care of Tonya's outfit, practically ordering the bustier, firm-bodied brunette what to buy. Tonya had to admit that the 'complimenting' outfit of Debbie's own did look spectacular on her new body.

Like Debbie, Tonya was wearing a black leather skirt and matching jacket - but her skirt hung nearly to her knees, and her jacket wasn't form-fitting. The jacket was hanging open over a white turtle-neck sweater that hid the GGG-cup bra that tightly enclosed Tonya's impressive bust. Unlike Debbie, Tonya's 'nice' legs were bare, and she wore silver-colored sandal-style shoes with a four-inch cylindrical heel that was the 'best' Tonya could do, since she lacked her friend's experience with heels. At least the broader surface area of the round heel made it easier to balance, if no more comfortable - it felt decidedly awkward to stand around with her heel elevated four inches higher than her toes, an experience she had no masculine reference to, except for maybe walking down an inclined ramp.

Aside from the heels and (occasionally) the way the bra dug into the smooth, soft skin of her new shoulders, Tonya was surprised by how comfortable her new clothing was. Somehow, subconsciously, she'd expected women's clothing to be less comfortable than men's - sort of the same way she somehow assumed that being female was less comfortable than being male, she supposed. It was another illusion that was rapidly being dispelled - despite the many obvious differences between men and women, once you got used to the 'feel' of the other gender's body, the minute-to-minute life of one wasn't inherently more or less comfortable than that of the other - just different.

'Different', indeed. It wasn't just standing and walking in heels, or the low flush at the irrational thought of somebody pointing at her and laughing at the 'guy' wearing a skirt - despite all the evidence to the contrary. It was things like make-up, which Tonya was now wearing, courtesy of the woman at the cosmetics counter - for only $34.95 with the purchase of $40 worth of cosmetics. It also included hair-styling, which explained why both Tonya and Debbie were sporting a feminine cut to their hair. The hair cut didn't bother Tonya's male sensibilities as much as the make-up - mainly because the hairstyle wasn't as intrusive. Having your hair done in a feminine manner didn't leave a faint-but-definite odor of perfume hovering forever at your consciousness, a light fragrance that made you feel like there was a sexy woman hovering just behind you... when, in truth, it was you. Nor did a new hairstyle leave a slightly 'waxy' feeling on your lips that tasted of a certain and unmistakable 'lipstick' flavor whenever you licked your lips.

Still, Tonya had no choice but to admit the simple truth. Despite the (surprisingly little) physical discomfort, and the (even more surprisingly little) emotional discomfort, all that 'feminine primping' was well worth it if for no other reason than this:

"God, Debbie - we are hot..." Tonya said, not feeling wildly happy about the fact, but unable to deny the truth. "I mean, we are stone-cold-gorgeous."

"I'm gorgeous." Debbie said with a very theatrical, smug air. "you're simply 'sexy', my dear..."

"Oh, and those legs of yours aren't?" Tonya asked. "I know this sounds weird and all - but you, just being you, turn me on. You're, like... perfect."

Debbie looked Tonya over with a long, slow, seductive look that made her feel decidedly flustered.

"you're pretty hot yourself, girlfriend..." Debbie said in a strangely husky voice. "I wasn't going to say so, but... I've been thinking about how it might be if you and I..."

She left it hanging, and it took Tonya a second to catch her drift. Not because Debbie was in any way being subtle, but because Tonya's mind had been so far from that particular train of thought. When it did register, she flushed a sudden, brilliant scarlet and instinctively looked away.

Instantly, Debbie was contrite.

"I'm sorry..." the leggy blonde said, flushing as well. "I didn't mean..." "Would you...?"

Tonya's question was hesitant, and she was flushing brightly - but the long, slow look spoke volumes, startling Debbie.

"You mean...?" Debbie said, startled - then she began to grin. "Tonya, I've been sort of fantasizing about that body of yours ever since we first got a look at each other back at the apartment."

If it had been possible, Tonya's flush would have deepened. "Me, too - with you, I mean. I know it's a little bit weird..."

"Weird..." Debbie said, thoughtfully, tapping on slender, feminine finger against her full, soft lips. "lets see - we came up with a way of manipulating magic so that we can become women, then turned ourselves into a couple of hot babes and went out shopping, where we made our already hot bodies look even better by make-up and clothing. Hmmm... I wonder what could be wired about the situation "

Tonya snorted in amusement, Debbie, grinning, wagged her finger at her. "That's not very ladylike, you know." "Sorry." Tonya said, dryly. "I haven't much practice."

"Well, then... perhaps we should find a nearby hotel, rent a room... and, uh... 'practice'..." Debbie said, suggestively - causing Tonya's fading blush to flare anew.

Tonya's voice was tremulous but resolute as she said, "that sounds... interesting..."

Feeling as if she were in some sort of dream, Tonya followed her transformed friend towards the exit of the mall, barely believing that she was doing this. Part of her thought this was just plain wrong, that despite the fact that Debbie was the most stunningly sexy woman she'd ever seen, inside she was really 'Dick', her old friend and roommate.

She sure didn't look like Dick, though - and, honestly, Tonya just didn't care. The male part of her found Debbie incredibly sexy, to the point that Tonya wanted to do things to Debbie that she simply wasn't equipped for in this body. Some 'Lesbian' sex would be a damned good runner-up, though, and Tonya didn't care who's mind was in that luscious body of Debbie's.

No, wait - that wasn't true. After all, it was the mind of 'Dick', breast-man extraordinaire, who found Tonya's current form sexy. It was that mind that made Debbie willing - hell, eager - to 'fool around' with Tonya. Which suited Tonya just fine, memories of how good masturbation had felt in a female body. It must feel much, much nicer to have another woman 'helping' - and it wasn't like she was considering something as 'sick' as having sex with a man, for God's sake. This was going to be a girl-on-girl affair, and Tonya could handle that emotionally despite the fact that each 'girl' in the equation used to be male.

It was in that same, dazed condition, eager yet unbelieving, that Tonya let Debbie lead her outside to a taxi-stand, all-but-shoving Tonya into the back seat. The entire time she chattered away brightly, obviously not the least bit phased by what was happening, and leaving Tonya to wonder about Debbie. She'd had previous experience in dressing and acting female, in the privacy of her sister's room.

Obviously, 'Dick' had held closely-held desires, things that 'he' had never let slip through to be seen even by his closets friend - only, now, all those suppressed desires had been released. Though Debbie hadn't said so, and might not even realize it herself, she was much more comfortable as a woman than she'd ever been as a man, more outgoing, perky and chipper than Tonya had ever imagined she could be.

So, Tonya more or less shut her brain down and let the obviously-excited blonde take control of the situation, dragging the big-breasted brunette out of the taxi and into the lobby of the inexpensive hotel. Tonya stood by, blushing, as the guys in the lobby ogled her and Debbie - and Tonya watched Debbie eat it up, flirting outrageously with the guys while waiting for their key, making sly remarks that were thinly veiled sexual puns that could also be interpreted in an 'innocent' way if any guy had been foolish - or horny - enough to try and follow up the remarks.

Tonya, bemused, didn't visibly react when Debbie wrapped a slender arm around her waist and dragged her towards elevator - while not-quietly telling the blushing brunette what she wanted to do to her 'luscious body' and 'huge, gorgeous tits'.

Then they were in the elevator, the door shutting off the view of the staring staff and patrons...

...and Debbie all-but-threw herself on Tonya, her lips pressing against Tonya's with eager passion as her lithe body all-but-molded itself to her friend's more buxom form.

The kiss was... fantastic. It had been far too long since Tonya had held a woman in her arms, and she didn't care that the woman in question was her old friend transformed into a leggy blonde - nor did she care that she, herself, was now a big-breasted woman, transformed by the same magic. All that mattered was this what was happening felt really, really good. She kissed Debbie back with her own, rising passion, her new hands roaming her roommate's lithe, taut body - especially her spectacular ass, tightly encased in black leather.

'Holy geez...' Tonya thought, dreamily. 'All these wasted months. If only we'd been female from the start, we could have been lesbian lovers this entire time...'

The strange thing about the vagrant thought was - it didn't bother her at all. She would have figured it would have - but, given Debbie's 'aggressive' female persona, Tonya thought it would have been better had 'Dick' been born female to begin with. Though the thought of having sex with Debbie didn't bother Tonya, now, somehow the thought of 'Tom' having sex with Debbie was 'sick' - probably because it was too close to the thought of Dick having sex with Tonya, which just made the huge-breasted brunette shiver with disgust. She didn't want to have sex with a man - she wanted to have sex with Debbie, the leggy blonde babe of her dreams.

The door to the elevator slid open, but Tonya only noted it subconsciously, lost as she was in the experience of having a hot blonde writhing eagerly and willingly in her arms. It was Debbie who 'led' Tonya from the elevator - by the simple expedient of backing up. The buxom brunette followed more-or-less by instinct, trying to maintain the delightful pressure of their two bodies pressed firmly together.

Tonya had never realized just how good it could feel to have a pair of huge breasts on your chest pressed firmly into somebody else's warm, firm chest, causing a wonderfully firm, pleasant pressure that was full of promise and excitement.

Tonya felt a pang of regret as Debbie released her to unlock the door to their rented room. She giggled slightly, realizing how strange that pang would have felt a few days ago - genuine regret at being forced to wait before fondling her best-friend's body...

Almost out of habit, the body that image pulled up wasn't Debbie, but Dick - the lean, tautly-muscled body of a fit, graceful young man. Instinctively, Tonya started to shiver at the 'homosexual' thought...

...and then, almost unwillingly, imagined her body - her new body - entwined in his. She stared at the wall, stunned, at the highly-erotic image, realizing something that snatched her breath away.

Nobody would see anything the least bit wrong with the image she'd just seen - a man and a woman making love. Sure, she'd once been a man herself... but, right now, she was defined by the world as a woman. It wasn't an 'absolute' sense of 'wrongness', but a perceptual one - she had been thinking of having sex with men as 'wrong' because, in her own mind, she was still male. Which, as far as it went, was true, because she'd been raised male, living a male life - but wasn't she now biologically female. Hell, wasn't she dressed in women's clothing, her hair and make-up done in more-than-acceptable feminine fashion?

It was a stunning question, one that shook her world-view to its bedrock foundations... but before she had time to pursue the stunning thought, Debbie had the door unlocked and was once more in Tonya's arms, her very presence washing away any thought but that of the slender blonde.

They stumbled into the room in a tangle of long, smooth limbs, awkwardly closing the door behind them as they fumbled at each other's clothing while fumbling around for the bed, unfamiliar with the layout of the dimly lit room and unwilling to separate long enough to open the drapes or turn on the lights.

Finally, Tonya felt the back of her knees hit the bed. She paused for a second, hand firmly on Debbie's now-down-to-panty-clad ass, then lifted her arms to let the blonde peel off her sweater, revealing her firm, round breasts heaving with excitement within the confines of her heavy-duty cotton bra. The sweater was dropped beside the bed, and Tonya stepped out of her already-lowered skirt as she tumbled backwards on the big, squeaky bed.

"Oh - are these for me...?" Debbie asked with a giggle as she undid the front-closing bra and peeled it back, revealing Tonya's massive, softly-firm breasts in all their glory.

"only if you treat them right..." Tonya replied, huskily, stroking Debbie's long, nylon-clad legs. "here, lift up a bit..."

A second later, Debbie was clad only in nylons and heels, while Tonya was down to just the few 'essential' pieces of jewelry she'd bought - to wit, her silver clip-on earrings. She didn't even feel those earrings slapping against her shoulders as she tossed her head back and forth in pleasure as Debbie skillfully massaged and fondled her massive breasts and their huge, fully-engorged nipples.

Tonya's hands were busy with Debbie's legs and ass, and as they moved across the other woman's smooth-shaven cunt, she was simultaneously bemused by the fact Debbie had shaved herself there - and by the fact that there was a definite dampness on the gently wrinkled edges of her tight new womanhood.

A warm wetness that matched the one in Tonya's own cunt.

"God - I'm ready...!" Tonya said, huskily... and Debbie grinned and swiveled around, pressing that oh-so-shapely ass in Tonya's direction as her own face lowered...

Tonya gasped as she felt Debbie's fingers and tongue start to work expertly at her crotch. Part of her wondered when and how Debbie had become so skilled at the art of cunnilingus, but the thought was secondary to the pleasure that came through her new womanhood at Debbie's touch. Clumsily, She tried to emulate Debbie's expertise, her movements awkward by virtue of both inexperience and the wonderful distraction of Debbie's ministrations.

The two women squirmed and thrashed on the bed, heads working at each other's crotch. Tonya felt pleasure ebbing and flowing at Debbie's touch, and wished her mouth wasn't otherwise occupied as she wanted to moan in pleasure at the way Debbie's tongue flicked and licked expertly along Tonya's swollen clit...

...and then Debbie stopped. Catching her breath, Tonya pushed up on one elbow.

"What's wrong...?" Tonya asked, feeling surprised and a little hurt as Debbie rolled off of her.

"I'm sorry, Tonya - but this just isn't doing it for me." Debbie said, as she began to hunt around for her clothing, slipping off the bed - and leaving Tonya horny and unsatisfied.

"What...?" Tonya asked, incredulously.

Debbie sighed, pushing a strand of blonde hair back from her face as she looked around for her panties. "I still think you look incredibly sexy, and I love kissing and fondling that body of yours - but in terms of sexual satisfaction, I'm afraid I'm just not a lesbian. The more I tried to enjoy what I was doing to you, the less I did... it was like cold pancakes without syrup. I'm sorry."

Tonya stared - then sighed. "no, it's all right. It.. just didn't work." She paused, flushing...

...and then admitted her deepest, darkest secret.

"I, uh... I once 'experimented' in collage." She admitted. "My best friend at the time and I decided to see what all the fuss was about. We picked a night when nobody would be around, sat on the couch watching some 'straight' porn to, uh.... 'break the ice'... but when we tried, we just... couldn't."

"Willingness doesn't guarantee anything, does it..." Debbie said, grateful that her friend wasn't pissed at their lack of success. The leggy blonde pulled her skirt on, and paused. "Uh, I don't know quite how to put this, but... perhaps that old friend of yours might be more satisfying now than I would be."

Tonya's blush flared anew. "you're not suggesting..."

"Actually, I'm not trying to suggest anything to you." Debbie said, pulling on her blouse - and winding as she surveyed several popped buttons. "I, uh.. I'm still eager for some, uh... 'release', though -- and I think I'm going to really take this new gender out for a spin."

Tonya stared at her friend, stunned. "You mean - you're going to have sex with a guy?"

"I certainly hope so." Debbie said, grinning in a way that made Tonya wonder just how well one person could know another. Here she'd been living with Debbie's male alter-ego for years, and never even suspected this side of her. Oh, sure, Tonya had thought guiltily about having sex with a man - but Debbie was downright eager.

"Um... I'm afraid this is going to impact you, too.." Debbie said, slowly. "I really don't want to take the time to 'reset' this spell and then become female myself - so, uh... would you mind staying female until I, uh..." She paused, and Tonya saw her flush, brilliantly. "uh... get laid?"

Hmmm - well, eager or not, she was still nervous. Tonya sighed, realizing that Debbie wasn't acting as strange as she'd first thought: After all, as a man she'd been less 'enthusiastic', but Tonya now knew that part of this came from the fact that they were in the ultimate disguise, and the ever self-conscious 'Dick' didn't have to worry about future repercussions.

As for immediate effects, however... Tonya looked at her best friend, feeling the dull throbbing in her crotch, the slow heat that was still unsatisfied.. and found that mental image reform, of her entwined around a man's body - except that this wasn't Dick she was seeing herself entwined with, but a faceless man...

Pushing the thought away, Tonya began to dress.

"No, it's okay." Tonya assured her. "In fact, if you'd like, I'll come along and provide some 'moral support'."

"that's be great." Debbie said. "You weren't thinking of...?"

Tonya blushed, but answered truthfully. "I'm tempted.. but I don't know if I'm ready for.. that." "Oh. Well, don't push it. If you feel like trying, it's up to you."

"Thanks." Tonya said, dryly, looking around. She balled her hands into fists and placed them firmly on her womanly hips, breasts proudly out-thrust as she demanded. "All right - where the hell's my bra?"

Debbie stared at her - then began to giggle, helplessly.

Tonya stared at her giggling friend - and realized how strange that had sounded. Hell, if anybody had told her two days ago that she'd be demanding to know where her bra was...

That started her chuckling, too, and the two women finished dressing, their relationship made all the stronger for the odd - but exciting - situation they'd placed themselves in.

Once again fully dressed, the two women left the hotel room and their failed attempt at lesbianism behind... and as Tonya followed Debbie's pertly swaying ass, she found herself wondering if a failure at being a lesbian meant that there would be a success at being 'straight'.

Probably - if she could only figure out what 'straight' was in this particular situation.

Mind awlirl with dirty thoughts she wasn't quite sure were welcome or not, Tonya followed Debbie into the elevator, wondering why her mind had decided to lock onto the image of her new body kneeling before that faceless man, mouth wrapped around...

It was perhaps a quirk of fate that made Debbie choose those particular words at that particular time. In any case, Tonya didn't bother to explain why she'd gone such a brilliant red when Debbie, quite innocently, had pushed the 'G' on the elevator's control panel and intoned, "Going down..."

TO BE CONTINUED

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: The conclusion of two roommates who try out spells from a famous 16th century "Book of Power" and experiment with gender change.

Chapter III: Tom, Dick and Anything But Hairy

Tonya waved a hand at Debbie's inquiring glance and struggled to get herself under control before the elevator door opened. She managed it - barely - but there was still a certain redness to her face when they walked out of the elevator and into the lobby...

...a flush that gained strength at the startled, somewhat knowing looks the patrons in the lobby gave the two women - after all, they had hardly been subtle about their purpose for the room.

"Checking out already, ladies...?" the desk-clerk asked, rather openly ogling Tonya's impressive rack. The brunette's flush deepened.

"No - we've given the room a test-run and found it acceptable." Debbie replied, sweetly - but with a wicked smile on her lips. "We're just going out to find a couple of men who meet our high, high standards."

She said it sweetly, without the slightest hesitation or self-consciousness, and it took everybody - including Tonya - a second to absorb the meaning of those words... and then the guys gaped openly at them, jaws hanging as if unhinged and eyes bulging from their sockets.

Tonya's face was already as red as it could get, and she felt like slinking away, mortified... but, instead, she forced herself to grin, straightening her back so that her huge, round tits stuck out all that much further. She looked around the room with what she hoped was a thoughtful look.

"Yes - rather slim pickings around here, I'm afraid..." She said, trying hard to sound regretful... and understood why Debbie was getting such a kick out of her new feminine beauty when she felt a rush of 'power' at the men's reaction to her comment. God, being female had such a... liberating quality to it. Oh, part of it was the fact that 'Tonya' wouldn't exist in the future, so she didn't really have to worry all that much about consequences... but the other part of it was the male-born-and-bred knowledge that most men were putty in the hands of a beautiful women, willing to make complete fools of themselves for her attention.

Feeling a decidedly guilty rush of pleasure at her newfound ability, Tonya winked at Debbie and headed towards the door, the leggy blonde grinning and hurrying to catch up.

"Was that flirting?" Debbie asked, a wide grin on her gloss-pink lips. "It sounded an awful lot like flirting to me. I just want to be sure is all..."

"that wasn't flirtin', girlfriend..." Tonya said, easily, belying the rising flush. "That was diss'in. Diss'in big-time, girlfriend..."

"Ah - but you implied you might find somebody to meet your high, high standards someplace else. That's what it sounded like to me, honey-chil'..." Debbie giggled - out-and-out giggled, a crystal, trilling sound that went so delightfully well with her new body... and the 'hidden' persona that she was letting show while in it, the one Tonya hadn't even suspected when Debbie had been Dick.

"Well, one of us has to have high standards." Tonya retorted, feeling a little more comfortable with this banter. "From where I stand, it looks like you're ready to trip the first male that comes by. What, exactly, are you looking for in a potential lover?"

Debbie grinned. "Since this is the ultimate 'love-'em-and-leave-'em' routine, I'd take... anything."

Tonya opened her mouth to retort - but never got the chance, as a masculine rumble from their left drew their attention.

They'd just left the hotel, and were walking towards the corner. Leaning against the corner of the building was a short, swarthy man dressed only in a once-white undershirt, Bermuda shorts, and a yellow fedora-style hat with a bright red band. Though definitely underdressed for the October weather, he looked to be warm enough - and perhaps that came from the fact that much of his swarthy skin was covered by thick, dark hair that not only coated his arms and legs, but sprouted through the various openings of the shirt he wore, seeming to merge into the scraggly goatee-style beard he wore. His eyebrows, overly prominent above narrow, deep-set dark eyes, looked like a couple of furry black caterpillars resting on his face.

That basso sound was apparently the hirsute man's rendition of 'clearing your throat'. He grinned at the two women, his eyes having a hard time choosing between Debbie's derrière and Tonya's tits. He 'grinned' and doffed his Cuban, revealing long, greasy black hair.

"Afternoon, Ladies..." He said in a cigarette-roughened voice as he grinned oily at them. "How you ladies doin' today?"

Physically recoiling from the weasely-looking individual, the two new women hurried on, slender heels keeping a staccato rhythm with the lower sounds of thicker heels.

"Okay..." Debbie corrected, numbly. "Anything but hairy..."

Tonya looked at her - and then the two new women giggled together as they hurried on.

"You're serious about this, aren't you?" Tonya asked, with a feeling of near-disbelief. "You're just going to pick some lucky shmoe off the street, put the moves on him, and have sex with him!"

"That's about the long and short of it." Debbie confirmed. "What would you suggest I look for in a potential mate? Stability? Commitment? A good golf swing? What?"

Tonya blinked - then grinned. "Money. Definitely money. You could use the cash-value of a nice piece of jewelry or something." Debbie looked affronted. "What do I look like? A cheap whore?"

"No - a very expensive one." Tonya shot back, quickly.

"Hey!" Debbie said, turning up her nose. "I'm not the one with a stripper's rack."

"Hey - any self respecting stripper would envy me these babies..." Tonya said, hefting her new endowments. "Quite frankly, they'd be welcome to them, too..."

"Hmmm..." Debbie said with mock seriousness, tapping one slender finger against her pointed chin. "There's a thought: Entwhistle and O'Neill, breasts tailored for every occasion."

"We'd make a bundle." Tonya grinned. "Hey - why does your name come first?" "Alphabetical order, of course..." Debbie said, loftily - then giggled.

Tonya giggled right back. Debbie was right - once you relaxed and stopped waiting for the Universe to tap you on the shoulder for 'playing' at being female, this could be a lot of fun.

"Him, I think..." Debbie said, thoughtfully, pointing. Instinctively, even before her mind registered the meaning of Debbie's considering words, Tonya followed the pointing finger's sight-line.

She found herself looking at an older man. Not 'old' older, but older than the two transformed friends were - say, about thirty or so. Tall, with a rugged look that bespoke hours spent outdoors in some athletic situation or another. Lean and trim, he was deeply tanned, with a shock of dark hair and a surprisingly penetrating pair of aquiline green eyes. Dressed in tan slacks and a leather flight jacket, he was leaning casually against a street-lamp and quite openly and comfortably watching the women who passed by, a slight, engaging smile on his lips and an obviously easy banter, considering the way most women he decide to talk to laughed easily and openly at his witticisms.

Tonya couldn't find anything to say, except: "Why him?"

Debbie's eyes twinkled, but her voice was completely serious when she answered. "He looks like he'll make a good lover."

Not waiting for Tonya to respond, Debbie started across the street - and something had shifted in her stride. Though Tonya couldn't quite put her finger on what had changed, there was absolutely no doubt that Debbie was, to use a phrase. 'working it'.

"I wonder where she learned that..." Tonya said, irrelevantly - and then she followed Debbie, a few feet behind, and with considerably less 'oomph' in her walk.

Tonya was there for moral support - and because she was burning to see how Debbie handled herself, if she could actually keep her cool well enough to pull this off. She wasn't however, interested in 'joining in', and so she made it look as if she were slowly strolling towards the doorway just past the handsome man.

"Hi, there." Debbie said, grinning at the man as she walked up to him. "You look like you know the area pretty well."

"I should - I've lived around here my whole life." The guy said, with a grin, holding out his hand. "I'm Steve. What can I do for you?"

"Debbie." She introduced herself. "See, Steve, I'm stuck in town on an unexpected layover, and was wondering what sort of, uh... 'hot spots' you have around here. Something within walking distance of the hotel, where I can, uh... 'Socialize'..."

"Well, there isn't much..." Steve said, thoughtfully - and, blushing Tonya opened the door she'd arrived at, knowing that Debbie would have no problem snaring Steve - especially considering the long, appreciative look he'd given her as she'd walked up.

Looking around, Tonya realized her 'destination' was a bar. She hadn't actually paid much attention to what the building was, planning to simply wait a few minutes inside and then leave - but the sight of the dimly-lit room and the bar with the rows of bottles behind it suddenly made her think that a drink or two might go down very well indeed. Trying hard to ignore the speculative looks she was getting from some of the guys, the firm-bodied brunette walked to the bar and settled her well-rounded ass onto a bar-stool and (after a second's thought) demurely crossed her legs at the knee while asking for a Fuzzy Navel...

* * * * *

"Traveling light...?" Steve asked, looking around the hotel room with a raised eyebrow.

Debbie grinned and smoothly deflected the semi-question/semi-suggestion. "I told you it was a unexpected layover."

"Ah, yes - so you did..." Steve said. Debbie had to keep her grin from growing, knowing that the handsome, easy-going man's true worry was that she was a hooker, one who had a big, mean pimp nearby who would make sure he paid if he used her... 'services'. Of course, the truth of the matter would surprise him much more, but she had no plan to tell him.

"So..." She said, walking slowly closer. "You were volunteering to help me pass the time. What did you have in mind...?"

Steve looked her up and down - and grinned. She gave him a cat-like grin back... trying very hard not to show him how nervous she was.

Though Tonya might not have completely understood it, Debbie was every bit as nervous as her roommate. The difference was, Debbie was willing to go ahead despite her nervousness, projecting a false image while her heart thundered in her chest. The truth of the matter was, Debbie wasn't quite sure of herself enough to 'initiate' a sexual activity with a man, though she'd certainly been 'nudging' the hell out of people to get them thinking in the right direction. Like now - here she was, walking closer to Steve, moving her body with supple grace, playing every card in her hand - but he couldn't quite work up the nerve to kiss him. She was hoping - desperately - that what she'd done would be enough for him to...

Stepping that one step closer, Steve grinned and wrapped his arms around her - a trifle uncertainly, half-afraid that he'd misconstrued her advances, but willing to give it a shot. He hadn't misconstrued anything, however, and that 'excuse' was all Debbie needed to melt in his arms, tilting her head back a bit to let him bend his face to hers and kiss her, passionately.

With him 'initiating' the kiss, it was more than all right for her to kiss back, her heart pounding in mixed excitement and anxiety - with good reason, too. The phrase 'a virgin getting her first kiss' might have been a little skewed, given the circumstances, but this was the first time she'd kissed a man, so... her heart-rate increased as Steve began gently easing her towards the bed, but she made no move to resist - although, had Steve been paying closer attention, he might have noticed she didn't actively participate, either.

Then again, he did have other things on his mind at the moment...

With a soft sigh, Debbie let herself be tumbled back onto the same bed, for the same basic purpose, for the second time that day - but this time, it was in the strong, masculine embrace of Steve's arms...

* * * * *

"Excuse me, miss..."

Tonya wasn't trying to be rude - it was just that, despite all the... physical evidence, she was still having a hard time, instinctively, understanding that it was she being referred to as 'Miss'. The polite, nervous male voice that had spoken tried it twice, the second even quieter and more hesitant, prefaced with an awkward-sounding 'uhhh '

She'd heard it, in that her ears had picked it up as it was spoken - but her brain hadn't made the connection immediately, and she was in the middle of a sip when she realized a couple of things in the same instant; The voice had been speaking to her, and she knew that voice.

She suddenly found herself trying hard not to cough out the sip she'd taken, her throat having closed up momentarily as she'd realized she was being spoken too. Gasping as discretely as possible, she swiveled around on the stool, realizing several seconds had passed since the second time she'd been hailed. Her new eyes darted around, looking for the owner of the familiar tones - and spotting him, shoulders slightly slumped in on themselves, walking towards the back of the bar.

For a second, Tonya's heart seemed to stop as she verified that the person who had spoken was, in fact, the person she'd thought it was. It was Mark Tudwell, a well, an 'acquaintance' rather than a friend. A quietly-cheerful young man who was, generally, rather shy- if-game in public, nervous but friendly. Tonya, as Tom, knew Mark from work. A nice enough guy, if a bit too self-deprecating. But how on earth had he recognized Tonya...?

Then her heart began to beat as she realized that Mark hadn't recognized her, not as 'Tom' at least. Tonya should have known better, but deep-down she had an irrational fear, that people could somehow tell she wasn't 'really' female, but a guy in drag. Now, rolling her eyes, Tonya had to remind herself that she had the ultimate 'fool-proof disguise'. In her case, the old adage was quite literally true - her own mother wouldn't recognize her.

So... If Mark hadn't recognized her, why had he been trying to speak to her? Tonya didn't really know Mark all that well, but she knew him well enough to know he was hardly a Ladies' Man, hitting on women he met in bars. It was so out of character as to be ludicrous... at least, Tonya found the thought rather ludicrous.

Her curiosity piqued, Tonya decided to find out. Finishing her drink, the buxom brunette reminded herself to move gracefully as she slid off the stool and headed towards the back corner of the club...

...and then slowed a bit as Mike approached the washrooms. She hesitated, unsure whether to go forward and wait for him near the bathroom doors, or to go back to her stool...

...and then, as she watched, Mike walked right past the bathroom towards the back door of the bar, his shoulders still slumped with her 'cold shoulder' to him. Feeling like a louse, Tony hurried forward, catching herself just in time before she shouted his name - that would have taken some explaining, and she didn't have a lie on hand for knowing the name of a 'complete stranger'.

Her hesitation had opened his lead, and Mike had slipped out the back door before she could shout something else to stop him. Not wanting to leaving him feeling so dejected - and rejected - she hurried down the dimly-lit hallway, resolving to claim a hearing problem to explain why she'd 'ignored' him when he'd approached her. Throwing open the door, she stepped into the alley-way beyond...

...and slammed into somebody.

"Look, I didn't mean to ignore you..." She started to say, a bit breathlessly - and then stopped in shock as she realized that it wasn't Mike she was talking too, but the swarthy, hairy man from the hotel.

"I knew it..." the man grinned his oily grin, eyeing Tonya's huge rack. "Sluts like you jus' can't get 'nuff, can you?"

Tony gaped at him - which was the wrong response, as he stepped forward and pushed her roughly against the now-closed door behind her, pushing his lips roughly against her and thrusting his foul-tasting tongue deep into her slack-jawed mouth. About the same height as her, despite the heels, the smell, hairy man was wiry and surprisingly strong, and he held her in position against the door with one arm just below her neck, his other hand grabbing her sweater and rucking it up as he kissed her, hard and unpleasant. She'd just begun to struggled when he pushed the full weight of his body against her, her huge new tits pressed against his shirt as his other hand began to yank at the zipper of her skirt.

Realizing with horror that she was about to be raped, Tonya struggled harder - and, with growing horror, realized that the man had all the leverage he needed to pin her in place, his mouth covering hers and effectively muffling her screams for help...

* * * *

MEANWHILE, BACK IN THE APARTMENT...

Dick/Debbie and Tom/Tonya were smart, very smart - but nobody is perfect, and the two ex-men were no exception.

While they were out, gallivanting around, the stress on the space-time continuum had continued to grow, the two-hour 'gap' inside their apartment pulling on the very fabric that formed what Human Beings know as 'reality'. Unseen forces had begun to gather as soon as that time-lapse 'bubble' had formed, and had continued to grow as more and more time passed, bringing more and more pressure to bear on the 'discontinuity' in time. Like any good machine, the Universe had self correcting mechanisms to keep everything from falling apart - and, when the strain had become too much, the forces that had built up overwhelmed the relatively meager power of the 'spell' their computer had formed...

...and with an inaudible 'snap', the universe broke the no-time bubble and tried to 'patch' everything together. The fact that the 'easiest' way to do that was to backwards-edit reality to match the new one that the two men had created was in no way a 'vindictive' move against the guys for meddling in things they didn't truly understand.

It was merely a 'fringe benefit' to a living, breathing Universe that, quite frankly, enjoyed mutating the immutable...

(This story is brought to you courtesy of the fine people at Dewey, Cheetem and Howe, makers of Blancadent, the miracle toothpaste with Compound X-12 for effervescent cleaning power. Blancadent, the toothpaste for a new millennium. And now, back to our story...)

* * * *

Debbie moaned as Steve's strong hands slid over her nearly-naked body, touching with an expert caress that proved her 'feminine instincts' had been correct. She writhed gently beneath his firm body, excited by the feel of his warm, masculine flesh against hers as he kissed her, gently-yet-passionately... while gently moving her legs apart. Nervous and excited, Debbie smiled up at him as she eased her nylon-clad legs wide, her hands coming up to rest against his firm chest as he positioned himself over her...

...then felt the strangest 'shudder' run through her as time seemed to pause for an instant. In that instant, her every sense seemed to become incredibly clear as the universe ground to a halt - and 'new' memories flooded her mind. Memories that didn't replace her old ones, but 'mirrored' them, equally as 'real' as the original set, despite the fact that they were completely different.

Memories of growing up female. Memories of going through puberty, of discovering boys, of coming to enjoy her newfound beauty and sensuality. Memories that felt every bit as 'real' as her other memories, of being male.

Memories that had no problem explaining the simple-yet-expensive diamond engagement ring that now graced her slender, dainty finger. The ring that she 'remembered' Steve giving to her almost eight months ago. The ring that promised matrimony. The ring that spoke of their much-planned wedding, only three days away...

...and then, before Debbie could wrap her mind fully around the new memories, before she could comprehend the inexplicable thoughts and ideas that her 'female upbringing' had given her to match her no-longer-remembered-by-anyone-else male ones, her fiancé thrust his hips forward, and for the first time she felt a man's cock sliding into her wet-and-ready womanhood, felling as wonderful as she 'remembered' it feeling from all the other times she and Steve had made love...

Mind awash with confusion, two sets of memories, and pleasure, Debbie could only gasp as Steve filled her completely - and delightfully. 'Just like always', she moved her hips in response to his thrust, pulling his wonderful manhood deeper inside her, even as she was further stunned by 'new' skills from all the sex she remembered having. She gasped again, her hands tightening instinctively on Steve's shoulders as they settled into a rhythm, bodies moving gracefully together as if they'd done this many times before - which, one set of memories told her, she had - even though she didn't know why she had those memories, or what had happened.

"Oh... God..." She gasped, confused - and in incredible amounts of pure pleasure, their bodies moving in wonderful rhythm that created new sensations completely unlike anything she'd ever felt as a man. "Oh, Steve, I... I don't... this is..."

"I... know... baby..." Steve gasped, misunderstanding her as he built up speed and power, leaning forward to brace himself for better traction as he really got into the rhythm.

Debbie moaned low and sweet, closing her eyes and letting her head loll back as she shudder in ecstasy, no longer trying to figure out what was going on. She simply let herself slide into the rhythms that the inexplicable new memories provided for her, losing herself in the incredible feeling of being filled - and fulfilled, pleasure thrumming through every nerve as her wonderful, loving fiancée made gently passionate love to her, their bodies moving together like a well-oiled pleasure machine.

Gasping and unconsciously calling out Steve's name, Debbie spread her nylon-clad legs wider, bending them at the knees to allow more leverage to thrust her hips upwards in response to her fiancé's thrusts, pleasure thrumming and swirling through her entire body as an incredible intense, almost liquid sensation of ecstasy built in her new vagina.

"Oh, yes...!" She screamed, her body now bucking frenetically as she teetered right on the edge of orgasm. "Oh, God, Steve, yes! I love this, Steve, I love it, I love..."

Then it hit - a tidal wave of pleasure that completely overwhelmed her, shutting down higher brain functions as she shuddered in exquisite ecstasy, her gasping shouts of pleasure becoming a primal scream of orgasmic ecstasy as her body writhed and shuddered with the force of the orgasm that thundered through her - and now she had a reference to use if she'd ever wanted to describe the 'frozen time' during transformation, because the orgasm seemed to last forever as the rest of the world paused, a soundless white explosion of pleasure that overwhelmed her completely for an eternal instant before dopplering down into mere 'pleasure', her shuddering body going limp under her wonderful husband-to-be as he pumped his seed deep into her new womanhood.

He didn't collapse atop her, however, taking the time to ease himself to the side before slumping and gathering her in his strong, wonderfully masculine arms. Still confused by what had happened, overwhelmed by both the strange new 'reality' and the sheer pleasure she'd just felt, Debbie tensed at his warm, reassuring touch...

...and he immediately eased off, his hands practically hovering over her as he said, "Is... I something wrong, honey?"

Debbie's mind jumped into warp-speed at the question. She found herself comparing both sets of memories, male and female - and the answer was so blindingly obvious that when she spoke, it was with utter sincerity.

"No, Steve - everything's perfect..."

Then, with a very contented smile, the new women embraced her lover and snuggled close, inhaling the sweet masculine musk that he exuded and thinking about how wonderful it was going to be, married to this man...

...while part of her wondered what, exactly, had happened.

* * * * *

Tonya was just about to bite down on the offending tongue in desperation, the man's hand now pulling the zipper on her skirt down...

...when she was immobilized by a 'frozen moment' that was further incapacitating because of a flood of new memories that ran through her mind.

Memories that almost - but not quite - distracted her from the sensation of her body changing. She felt her body shiver and re-form, the weight of her huge breasts lifting from her chest even as her body conformed to the 'new' memories in her head...

...and Tom, stunned, tried to wrap his conscious mind around what had just happened, and the new memories he had in his head, overlaying the old ones.

"C'mon, Tom ' Juanita said, her incredibly full, red lips curving in a sexy pout. "Don' be teasin' me like this. You know I jus' can't help myself "

Tom simply stared at the person the would-be rapist had become, the person Tom's new memories insisted was Juanita, his nymphomaniac girlfriend. Tom stared at her, taking in every inch of her lush, swarthy body - the massive mane of thick, wavy black hair around a face of pure, heavy-lidded, full-lipped sensuality. Her long, gloriously copper-bronze legs perched atop the black 'Fuck Me' pumps she loved to wear so much. Her wide, womanly hips and delightfully slender waist, well displayed by the barely-there black leather skirt she wore...

...then massive, basket-ball-sized tits she boasted, proudly displayed now that her white crop-top was rucked up to allow Tom full access to her massive breasts and their huge, dark nipples.

Though Tom knew that this woman had been male only second before, at the same time he also 'knew' that she was a loving, devoted girlfriend who loved to cook for him, loved to clean the apartment, loved to do just about anything for him - and all she asked in return was the right to fuck and suck him more or less all the time.

The thing was, Tom had both sets of memories, one of the original past and one of the new past - but it was obvious that 'Juanita' remembered only the past that went with her new, super-lush body - and she actually did enjoy being a huge-breasted, cum-hungry little slut - but not just for anybody. No, she was only a slut for him...

"Oh... I know what you want, baby..." Juanita said, with a grin... and she slowly sank to her knees, her hands reaching out for Tom's rapidly hardening cock, already exposed from when 'she' had pulled 'his' zipper down.

Tom started to object, started to step back... then stopped himself, mentally shrugging and letting a big, shit-eating grin cross his face as his unbelievably skilled girlfriend rapped her full, sexy lips around his shaft and began to eagerly slurp away at his cock.

Tom had enough time to wonder what, exactly, had happened, and to resolve to track down Dick - or, perhaps, Debbie, since he didn't 'remember' ever meeting 'Dick' in this new reality - and find out what had happened...

...and then his cum-crazed new girlfriend's ministrations drove all other thoughts from his head.

* * * * *

Tom was smart, but he wasn't perfect - just like anybody else, he could - and did - make mistakes...

'Oh, God - what am I doin'...?' Juan(ita) thought in pure, unexpressed horror as (s)he 'happily' slurped away at Tom's cock, unable to control the actions that (s)he would happily have died before willingly performing. Yet (s)he had absolutely no say in the matter...

...and, even more horrible for the never-caught-by-the-cops-rapist was the knowledge that (s)he would spend the rest of whatever years (s)he had left doing more-or-less the same thing...

...yet even that wasn't the absolutely worst part of it as (s)he gulped down Tom's warm, salty cum - because (s)he was absolutely horrified to find that she was actually, really, honestly enjoying it. Her new body was super-horny, and super-sensitive... and, to her new taste-buds, cum was absolutely the most wonderful tasting substance in the universe.

Yes, that was the absolutely worst part, Juanita knew as she happily licked Tom's cock clean and put it away, rising to let him fondle her hideously pleasure-sensitive tits. It was the worst...

...because she knew that very, very soon she'd be fucking and sucking 'another man' willingly and eagerly.

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: A businessman acquires a serum that makes him immortal, but one of the side effects is that it also makes him female any horny.

Immortal

By Gunslinger

Tattered remnants of his clothing flapping in the cool night air, Brendan Prescott lurched and staggered through the woods in a poor imitation of a dead run.

Despite his head-long flight at the fastest speed he could manage in the torn ruins of his Italian leather loafers, his breathing wasn't particularly labored, nor his muscles straining with the effort. When his shoulder slammed into yet another tree unseen in the post- midnight darkness, he stopped neither out of fatigue nor from the pain of impact. Instead, turning to look back in the direction from where he fled, he leaned against the tree and fought to make his whirling brain catch up with where his nearly tireless body had brought him.

In the distance, the blue-and-red strobe of emergency lights competed against the lurid flickering glare of a richly-red, gasoline-fed fire. Unseen in the darkness, a thick cloud of smoke also rose from the flickering flames, marking a spot about half a mile away.

The spot where, running from the police, Brendan had lost control of his high-performance BMW coupe and had flown off the side of the road.

There was more than enough distance between the crash site and him, Brendan realized, that he didn't need to dash almost mindlessly through the woods. After all, it wasn't as if the police would be close behind him. No - the police swarming around the burning wreckage of his car would be waiting for the fire to die down so that they could recover his corpse - for, after all, there was no possible way any human being could have survived that crash.

Which was quite true, Brendan thought to himself with a smirking grin, as he turned away from the distant lights and began picking his way through the forest.

After all, he wasn't merely human any longer...

As he carefully picked his way through the forest, survivor of an 'fatal' car crash, the smile slowly slid from Brendan's face as he considered the situation in which he found himself thanks to his 'superhuman' status.

A self-made multi-millionaire, Brendan Prescott had made his fortune through buying out the debts of companies in trouble - then, when the debts couldn't be repaid, using the law to allow him to force the company to transfer assets to him with the nominal value of the debts, but that he'd subsequently turn around and sell at twice or three times what that nominal value was supposed to have been.

It had earned him a fortune - and, a little less than a month ago, it had earned him immortality.

The company had been called Genetex, and he'd seen nothing special in it as he'd employed his usual tactics... until the chief researcher, desperate to save his company, had offered Brendan something more valuable than money - a retrovirus that the company was developing that increased the body's ability to heal.

Hardly an expert in the field, Brendan hadn't understood the technical details the scientist had given him - but the end result was quite easy to understand.

Other than complete and immediate decapitation, the serum made a human being the next best thing to immortal. Not only did it 'turn off' the genes responsible for aging, but it allowed the body to heal almost instantaneously, so that injuries that would have been fatal before were now 'merely' a nuisance.

When the car had slammed into the trees at better than a hundred miles per hour and all-but-exploded, he'd been burned, crushed and mutilated... but the serum had long since radically decreased his pain receptors, so all he'd felt was a dull throbbing ache as he'd laboriously pulled himself, still smoldering, from the wreckage. A minute later, long before the following police cars had arrived in his speeding car's wake, he'd been up and moving through the woods. A few minutes later, he'd been all-but-healed. His skin, newly re-grown, was as soft as the proverbial baby's bottom, and he was completely hairless until the burned hair could grow back at a massively increased rate, but other than that he thought himself to be almost completely healed... though it was hard to be sure, since he felt...

It was hard to finish that sentence. He certainly wasn't in any pain, and he didn't feel 'bad' or even 'weird'. There was just something subtly different about how he felt as he made his careful way through the woods - but it wasn't that not-quite-definable difference that had wiped the smile off his face.

It was the thought that the same serum that had allowed him to survive the wreck was directly responsible for causing it.

When the researcher had proposed the serum in exchange for cancellation of the debt, Brendan had been understandably doubtful of the claims made. In fact, he'd only reluctantly agreed to the '30-day trial' the researcher had proposed - Brendan would take the serum and, if after thirty days, didn't think it was worth it, could come back for the 'antidote' and go on with his normal routine of stripping the company for assets.

Within days of taking the serum - or retrovirus, or whatever the researcher had called it - Brendan had known he wouldn't be going back for the antidote.

Almost immediately, he'd found his stamina and muscle tone improving. Though his lean body grew no more muscular, his overall fitness rapidly improved. Indeed, with relatively little effort, he could have packed on pounds of muscle, since the serum allowed for any exercise to have a greatly enhanced effect - but he'd never cared to have a 'body-builder' physique, and the fact that within a week of taking the serum he had the stamina and overall health of an Olympic-class athlete was good enough for him.

He'd also kept track of the way the serum had decreased his body's ability to feel pain - and, at the same time, a matching increase in sensitivity to pleasure. When you coupled that with the increased size and potency of his 'equipment', it had brought sexual experiences to a whole new height for him - and with an equally increased sex-drive, it was a height he was eagerly driven to reach as often as possible.

Of about average height, with a lean and lithe body and casually-styled golden hair and electric-blue eyes most women found 'captivating', Brendan had never had trouble attracting the opposite sex - and where charm and good looks failed, there was always his wealth to fall back on. As it was, he'd always had as many sexual companions as he cared to... until the ability and drive had been vastly increased by the serum, and he found himself 'falling behind', becoming annoyed with the time 'wasted' on the chase when he could have been enjoying the rewards.

The obvious response was, of course, hookers. No foreplay necessary, and he could certainly afford as many a day as he wanted. By the end of week two, he'd fallen into a routine of calling in a discrete 'escort' and having her use a wide variety of skills and methods to bring him to two or three relatively rapid-fire orgasms - which earned him status as a minor legend at the agency that sent the girls out, especially since he repeated this entire cycle three or four times a day.

Physically, he could have spent all day and most of each night doing nothing but getting fucked and sucked - but even with his enhanced sex-drive, he enjoyed the growing sexual 'need' between bouts, whereas constant, instant gratification of each sexual desire would have quickly jaded.

Everything had been going utterly fantastic... until today.

A business matter had come up that had required him to spend all day in a lawyer's office. Deprived of his usual sexual outlets, the sexual need had only continued to grow during what had seemed an interminably long day. It had been steadily harder to concentrate on the business at hand as both mind and body had cried out ever-more-strongly for sexual satisfaction.

The final straw in this particular situation had been the fact that the lawyer in question, though not up to his usual standards, especially in the endowment department, was nevertheless a fairly attractive woman...

Pausing among the trees, peering towards a light-source just over an intervening ridge, Brendan frowned as he put his finger on one of the 'oddities' about what he was feeling.

The lawyer's screams had brought the evening cleaning crew bursting through the door of the office, and he'd fled the scene of his attempted rape without having gained satisfaction. His run from the police had been performed in a haze of unsatisfied lust, his massive new manhood straining his pants and begging for release...

...and now he felt absolutely no desire at all, and the charred remains of his pants lay flat over his crotch.

"Guess there's nothing like a supposed-to-be-fatal crash to kill the mood..." Brendan chuckled weakly, the slightly puzzled frown remaining on his face as he pushed his exquisitely-tuned body into an easy run up and over the ridge.

Below him, the height of the ridge giving it the look of a scale model, lay a truck stop. Haloed in lights strategically positioned about the expanse of blacktop, the large multi-service building was a 'super service center'. One of the newer industries dotting America's busiest highways, like the divided interstate this one serviced, the establishment not only boasted full fueling and repair facilities for cars, trucks and busses, but also housed four nation chain 'fast food' restaurants, a sit-down, eat-in diner, a coffee/gift shop, a convenience store, and a small motel featuring by-the-hour cubicles. Even in the wee early hours of morning, that wide pavement meadow was strewn with vehicles of nearly every description, though still somewhat shy of being half of what it could hold.

Feeling relief at the multitude of possibilities such a thing present, Brendan started down the broad sloped towards the well-lit service center...

...and five strides into the descent, suddenly doubled over with enough force that he pitched forward, tumbling wildly down the rest of the slope to the bottom.

It wasn't pain that had caused him to double over, any more than he felt the normal pain a 'unenhanced' human would have felt from the bruising, perhaps even bone-snapping tumble. No, what had caused it was something different.

Hunger. Ravenous, overwhelming, feels-like-your-stomach-is-imploding hunger. It wasn't painful, but in it's own way it was nearly as incapacitating, as it felt as if his entire body was trying to collapse into an internal void that had opened up inside him.

Stunned, Brendan staggered back up onto his feet, staring across the wide expanse of lit blacktop at the building that housed enough food to feed an army... but would utterly refuse to serve him in his current condition.

His body was still rapidly healing itself, the cause of the gargantuan hunger as it burned up calories to regain it's full health. A quick touch told him that he had perhaps an inch of blond hair now crowning his scalp, and even thin eyebrows, though the rest of his body hair had yet to even begin growing. Another quick look revealed that his wallet and the contents within had escaped the brief fire he'd endured relatively unscathed - his credit cards were probably demagnetized, but there was nearly two thousand dollars in the bill- fold.

No, the problem wasn't physical or monetary - it was sartorial. His clothes, little more than charred rags, just wouldn't do. In order to feed the ravening hunger that was growing stronger by the minute, he needed to find something else to wear.

Almost desperately, he began to circle the outer extremity of the lot, trying to remain inconspicuous while he searched for some way of replacing his clothing. The hunger, building at an incredible rate, was making hard to concentrate - and the fact that his sexual drive was beginning to re-emerge wasn't helping matters. He felt light-headed and slightly confused, mind flitting between his rising physical needs - one of which was both so close and so far from satisfaction that it seemed likely to drive him crazy. If he didn't find something else to wear, soon, he might find himself as helpless to stop himself from barging into one of the restaurants and ripping food from patrons hands as he'd been to keep himself from assaulting the lawyer.

Then his luck kicked in - he came across a rusty old Ford station wagon, whose owner was either moving 'on the cheap', or was a gypsy. Not only was the cargo area filled with boxes and belongings, but the roof-rack was piled high and covered with a rope- bedecked tarp... and, partially protruding from the back corner of said tarp was some clothing.

Quickly, Brendan grabbed some articles, praying that the owner would assume they'd fallen or been blown out somewhere on the road. Clutching his ill-gotten gains, he back-peddled to a shadowed spot under some trees lining the parking lot, and quickly started to get changed...

"What the fuck...?!" Brenda gasped, staring in shock down at his crotch. It was completely flat.

There was no evidence of injury, which meant that the rapid healing was working away - but there was also no indication of his manhood.

"Oh - must not have gotten that far yet..." He muttered, remembering the brief 'sensation' on impact that, in retrospect, seemed to signal castration. Well, that would explain why he hadn't been horny during his run through the woods... and the fact that he was now fighting arousal as well as ravenous hunger must indicate that his body was rebuilding his sexual organs again, even if there was as yet no visual sign of it... right?

The thing of it was - as dismaying as it was to look down at his crotch and see nothing, even that couldn't override the incredible hunger that was taking over more and more of his attention. Pushing the whole thing aside as being momentarily irrelevant, he quickly finished dressing and stuffed his cash into the pockets of his 'new' jeans.

He was dressed, and that was good - but even as he hurried across the parking lot towards one of the fast-food chains, some part of him not swallowed up by his monstrous hunger was annoyed at the fit of the clothing. At first, he'd thought he'd been incredibly lucky, because the clothing seemed roughly his size, at least in terms of the lengths of pant legs and shirt sleeves... yet the man who owned this clothing originally must have had a very strange build, for the clothing didn't fit at all the way Brendan had expected.

As annoyingly tight as the clothing was in some places, it was loose in others... but the single largest annoyance was the boots, and not because they 'fit weird' - they were, quite simply, too small. At least, with diminished pain receptors, they didn't hurt... but he'd had to fight to get his feet into them, and the result was that he was forced to take shorter, more hesitant strides than he was used to.

Worse, they were cowboy boots. Never having worn cowboy boots before - or, for that matter, held a pair or seen a pair close up - Brendan hadn't realized the stacked heel was so tall. It had to be at least two inches in height, and that would probably have annoyed him enough to take them off and put his damaged loafers back on - if for the fact that he was so starving hungry that the thought of turning around and going back to where he'd left his own ruined clothes was unthinkable.

Tottering atop the blocky heels of the too-tight boots, Brendan made his way into the fast-food restaurant.

A small part of his mind suggested he go into the bathroom and get a better look at himself in a mirror, so he'd know what other people were seeing when they looked at him - but at this point, that small part of his mind was very small indeed. Just as when his lust had overridden his intelligence at the lawyer's office, now his hunger ruled his body, and he had to fight to keep from simply pushing to the head of the short line.

When his turn came, blissfully quick, he ordered five whole super-sized combo meals. If anybody was looking at him strange for any reason, he didn't notice - no more than he noticed how strangely soft and high-pitched his own voice sounded as he ordered. All he could think about was food, a craving made only all the worse by the smells that filled the fast-food place. He overpaid for the food and refused to wait for change, which was sure to garner him some strange looks indeed, but not the sort of thing that would cause anybody to get upset - though he retained just enough intellect under his hunger to take the food 'to go'. Ordering five meals might not have been all that strange, as he could have been buying for a family - but sitting down and eating five meals would have been noticed and remarked upon, and his survival instinct was just barely strong enough to allow him to avoid that. Instead, he took the paper bags full of food and scampered out into the night, heading for the closest 'dark corner' behind the buildings where, agreeable, he found a couple of picnic tables set out. Seating himself in the dark, he began to pull food from the paper sacks and gorge himself, not particularly caring about what he was eating as he chewed and swallowed as fast as he could. His nails - growing, like his hair, and the incredible rate the serum/retrovirus allowed - were long enough that they slowed him down some, but not enough that he was willing to pause and bite them down to a shorter length. Besides, while in 'hyper healing' mode, they'd only grow back as quickly as they'd already grown.

Finally, Brendan scarfed down the last bite of hamburger, chasing it down with the last gulp of cola. With his body using the food/fuel almost as fast as he packed it in, he wasn't 'full' - in fact, he was still somewhat hungry - but no longer ravenous. In fact, he was feeling that strange, almost dreamy sort of glow that came after assuage most of his body's most important needs, leaving him feeling pleasantly thick-witted and 'dozy'.

The partial sating of his appetite allowed him only to become more strongly aware of the previously lesser sexual urge thrumming through his body - as well as another urge, no less strong than the sexual one, but one he'd been unaware of because it had seemed part of his hunger.

It wasn't a completely unfamiliar feeling, as he'd felt a variation of it before, and it was quite close to feeling hungry - but it was, in fact, his body telling him he was hungry for something specific, something his body seemed to need that he hadn't gotten from the food he'd eaten. A missing vitamin, perhaps. Unfortunately, he was only aware that his body craved something, without knowing what it was - but, from his previous experiences with rapid healing, he knew he wouldn't have much trouble finding out. Once, during healing, his body had needed potassium... and when he'd walked past a bunch of bananas in the fruit bowl in his kitchen, the simple smell of the bananas had nearly driven him insane, and he'd scarfed down the entire bunch almost as mindlessly as the meal he'd just now finished.

Well - almost finished. Overwhelmed by his body's desperate need, such things as good eating manners had fallen by the wayside. Dreamily, he reached down with one slender, long-nailed finger and scooped a glob of mayonnaise from the canyon of his creamy cleavage, and with a soft moan of pleasure, slipped the long-nailed finger between his full, soft lips...

He fell off the bench.

No - jerking in reaction to the realization penetrating a dazed and dreamy mind, SHE fell off the picnic table bench.

"What...? How... Why...?" She stammered, struggling to fight through that heavy haze slowing and obscuring her mind. Like many things since taking the serum/retro-virus, it was a familiar effect that was greatly intensified - like the 'dozy' feeling after Thanksgiving dinner taken to it's extreme limit. It also had a somewhat muting effect on emotions - which meant that the confusion, fear and horror she felt wasn't as sharp-edged as it should have been, given the circumstances.

Her dazed mind, rather than focusing primarily on her body, instead decided to pick up on an 'irrelevant' issue - the clothing she was wearing.

The clothing which fit a lot better than it had before.

The clothing, she realized belatedly, that was women's clothing.

Jeans and a blue-and-white checked shirt, plus the cowboy boots. In the dark, driven with hunger, it was no wonder that she hadn't clued in on the fact that the clothing, unisex in general appearance, was women's clothing... but now her brain made the connection, simply because the clothing that had been so uncomfortable before was now uncomfortably comfortable on her newly feminine body.

"No..." She said, shaking her head and trying to clear her logy mind. "No, you're doing it wrong! You're supposed to be healing me back to a man... not a woman..."

Dimly, she realized that having been castrated in the crash must have somehow made her body 'think' it was supposed to be female, and that's how it was healing itself... but between the post-gorging doziness and the distracting sexual arousal and strange craving, it was hard for her to get her brain working.

As it was, she was barely alert enough to realize she should go to the bathroom of a different restaurant than the one from which she'd bought the food, just in case somebody both recognized her and noticed how her body changed. With a slightly swaying step, she made her way towards the restaurant nearby, everything seeming to both happen in slow motion and yet seem strangely sharp and clear - at least, whatever she was focusing on seemed preternaturally 'real', while everything else was lost in a strange mental haze.

'There's more wrong her than I know...' she thought to herself. 'I've never felt this way before - something my body is doing is different. This 'healing'... it isn't right...'

Well, she'd never experienced such damage before, to so much of her body, at one time. She had nothing to compare her body's current situation to - all she knew was that the way her body had 'chosen' to rebuild all that damage wasn't what she expected, or wanted it to do.

Ignoring some strange looks cast her way, she made her way through the restaurant to the hallway leading to the bathrooms. She paused at the door to the men's room, to let a man just emerging to clear the way...

"Uh, miss...?" The man said, looking at her oddly. "This is the men's room."

For a few seconds that felt like ages, she simply stared at him, not comprehending - then she blushed as realization struck her. Not out of 'embarrassment', as the man obviously assumed - out of humiliation at the fact that she was now in a situation where the men's room was the wrong bathroom for her new gender.

Muttering something inane, she swiveled with a half-stagger, and pushed hesitantly through the door to the women's bathroom.

Thankfully, it was currently deserted - she didn't think she could bring herself to enter an occupied women's bathroom. Regardless of whatever her body might make people assume about her, she still thought and felt like a man, and so would have felt like a pervert - still felt like a pervert, as a matter of fact, it was just that there was nobody around to see 'him' being a pervert.

Hesitantly, she approached the mirror...

...and only a quick grab-and-catch of the edge of the sink kept her from falling as a wave of dizzy faintness swept over her at the sight of her reflection.

A young woman gaped back at her.

Not all that long ago, Brendan had seen the movie 'Domino', starring Keira Knightley.

At the first glimpse of her new appearance, Brendan's first, wild thought was that she'd somehow become 'Domino Harvey'...

A second, longer look revealed that to be far from true, though the initial impression was understandable - there was a certain resemblance, especially in bold-yet-feminine structure of her new face, and the 'boyishly short' mop of hair that topped it.

There were, however, many differences. For one thing, she'd lost little of her 'male' height, and so she was quite tall, for a woman. Moreover, her hair was a rich, silky golden blonde, her eyes the same electric blue they'd always been...

...and though she had the same basic 'boyish' yet undeniably feminine build as 'Domino', Brendan was considerably better endowed than Keira was.

"No, no, no, no..." Brendan chanted in denial of what she was seeing reflected - yet even in that denial, found further evidence that it was real, in the unmistakably feminine tenor of her voice.

She was a woman - and, quite the 'looker', at that. Maybe not drop-dead gorgeous or stone-cold foxy, (not that she wanted to be either), yet undeniably very attractive in a 'cutely-tough' sort of way... and that was the real reason why, upon first glimpse, the 'Domino' connection had leapt to mind, for her male brain, upon first sight of her newly feminine body, had reacted exactly the same way as it had to the sight of Keira-as-Domino on the screen.

As a matter of fact, Keira-as-Domino had turned Brendan on - and so, logically, so should have the reflection in the mirror, perverse as that might have sounded...

...except she was already turned on, and only now did her hazy brain finally realize that, if she was the posses of a feminine body now, that warm, insistent sexual arousal she'd been feeling fro some time, growing slightly stronger with every passing moment, was a feminine arousal.

She was, in fact, a 'very horny woman'.

She thought about the male sex drive the serum had given her, as a man - and then translated it into the equivalent of what she could expect, as a woman.

It was more than an urge. It had been a need, one that he'd enjoyed... and so hadn't tried to fight it.

At least, until today. Placed into a position where his enjoyment of his hyper-sexuality had been delayed, he had fought it... and failed. It had led to him trying to rape a woman...

...and, she realized with growing horror, she was every bit as sure to fail at fighting her new needs, her new urges, which would mean...

...would mean...

...would mean...

SNAP!

* * * * * Pleasure... What was it...?

Sexual pleasure. Yes, that was it.

Was he... having sex with a woman...?

No, that wasn't right - he was a woman, now.

So - she was feeling sexual pleasure - pleasure from...

...from having a nice, big hard cock plunging back and forth within the elastic confines of her tight, wet pussy. That's what she was feeling.

God, it felt good!

He they just begun...? No, they hadn't, because she was getting real close to....

OH, GOD, YES!

God, getting fucked as a woman was spectacular. The orgasms - plural! - sending her body into writhing ecstasy. John really knew how to please her...

John ?

That was the name of the man who was now laying beside her, snoring as he slept. Sleeping? Hadn't they just been fucking?

No - that had been a little while ago. She'd 'zoned out' again - or, perhaps more accurately, a little while ago, she'd 'zoned in' and she guessed she was doing it again, right now.

Who was John? How did she know his name, that he knew how to really please her, when she couldn't remember...

No matter. Nothing mattered...

She was sitting up. Had she 'zoned' No, she just been trying to think how/where/when/why she knew John, and her body, used as it was to working without her conscious input, was doing it's normal routine. That was why she was now standing and wrapping a soft, pale-peach silk robe around her body, and...

Whoa! Were those her tits...? They were huge !

Well, yes - she vaguely remembered some of it now. How good it felt to have those huge tits fondled, and squeezed, and sucked - John wasn't bad, trying to please her, but he wasn't really a 'tit man' - he was better when it came to her legs, for instance. No, for real boob-play pleasure, Steve was much better, obsessed as he was with massive, round tits like hers...

Wait - Steve? Oh, yes...

Say - when did her hair get so long? It was also really thick, and so silken. Boy, did Gary ever love to run his fingers through her hair as she knelt before him, giving him those incredibly long, loving blowjobs he enjoyed so much. It had taken plenty of 'practice' for her to get so...

She sucked cock?

Yes - yes she did. Quite often, she seemed to vaguely remember - and, according to hazy memories, quite well, apparently....

She must have 'zoned out' for a bit, there - she certainly didn't remember actually getting dressed.

Was this what she wore now? Look at that reflection in the glass door - a pale reflection cast on the darkness of the night outside, perhaps, but enough to see that total drop-dead sexy blonde bombshell...

...that was her.

Strange - she both did and didn't remember the woman she was looking at - Dominoes? What did Dominoes have to do with anything? Why had she...?

Oh, right - Keira... but she hadn't looked that way for... How long? How long had it been?

Well, at least long enough to be so gracefully confident in towering six-inch spike heels like the ones she was in now, that was for sure. Not that those long, oh-so-shapely legs needed much help... but, like the back-seamed white nylons she wore, it didn't hurt, and the white skirt was just the right length that a hint of the garters holding up those stockings flashed enticingly now and again - something that really drove Freddy nuts...

Freddy...?

Oh, right - nickname for Frederica. Say, she was a hot little number of a bisexual, wasn't she...?

...though, of course, the same could be said about herself, now couldn't it? In fact, she was even 'hotter' than Freddy - but Freddy was more interested in girls than guys, though she did both, while she, herself...

What? Vague memories, half-formed images, incomplete thoughts.

Say - where was she, anyway? Nice house, not as nice as the mansion he/she/they had once owned, whenever it was that she'd... been a guy? Yeah, that's right, she'd once...

Outside? What was she doing outside...?

Oh - when did she start smoking? Ohhh - this wasn't tobacco. Huh, she'd never really done drugs before... No, she'd been doing pot for awhile, she guessed. It was also so... confusing. Hazy, fragmentary...

Oh - if she was feeling this way, she was 'zoning in' again... and that's why her body was smoking pot and sipping at a glass of cold white wine. Trying to stay calm....

Why did it/she think they/she needed help keeping calm? - at least when she 'zoned in', which she vaguely recalled as being something happening more and more often, and for longer periods of time.

Weird.

Not the situation - though it was, kind of - but how she was feeling. She felt weird.

Why?

Why did she...? Wait a second... WAIT A SECOND...!

* * * * *

Her eyes widened.

Her lips formed a perfect 'O' of shocked surprise.

Once again, as in times so many as to be uncountable, Brendan's consciousness rose to the surface, and he/she was momentarily aware of everything that had transpired, of where he/she was and what he/she had been doing. As with all the other times, this 'episode' lasted a bit longer than before, and drew a bit closer to full integration between mind and body....

"Brenda? Baby, are you all right ?"

...and once again she was interrupted, as she almost always was, for she was never ever completely alone - not with the almost dozen men and three women of her current crop of 'need providers' sharing the house with her.

She turned, staring at the handsome, half-naked man framed in the French doors of the patio. He took one look at her expression - and sighed.

"Brendan...? Is that you?" The dark hair man asked, very carefully - long experience had taught him, and all of the others in this strange situation, that the question could spark an episode of hysterics that would require powerful sedatives to resolve. This time, it only resulted in a sudden, spasmodic shudder in the tall, incredibly-endowed blonde.

Good - this was going to be one of her better 'episodes'...

"I... I " She stammered - her voice still as high-pitched and crystalline as ever, but with the totally different cadence and intonation that only came with Brendan's brief visits. "I'm a... a.. a bimbo! A nymphomaniac bimbo!"

"Just take it easy, Brendan." The man said, soothingly, holding his hands up and staying where he was - during an episode, approaching her could be a bad idea, with those long nails of hers...

"You're You're Marcus!" She blurted, almost accusingly - then her hands flew to her face, and she stared at him in horror: "I sucked your cock this afternoon!"

"Well, er " Marcus hemmed awkwardly - these 'discussions' with Brendan were never comfortable.

An answer wasn't required, however, for she suddenly grabbed at the straining front of her white bustier. "Holy fucking shit - my tits are enormous!" She screeched.

Marcus couldn't even begin to think of a reply to that - not that it mattered. Suddenly her head snapped up, and she stared at him:

"I enjoyed it!" She screamed accusingly at him - or, perhaps, accusing only herself. "No, no - I I loved it! I love fucking and sucking... get fondled... and tit-fucked... and... and "

Her voice trailed off, and she staggered back two steps, staring off into nothing with an expression of abject horror.

"I can't handle this." She said, her voice suddenly eerily composed as she continued to stare off into nothingness. Slowly, her expression began to smooth out, her face taking on a blank cast. When she spoke the words a second time, they were in a sing-song tone: "I can't be here... I can't handle this "

...and this time, when the familiar anger flared, Marcus just couldn't hold it back. After so many times, so many 'episodes', he finally let his anger burst through:

"Dammit, you selfish son-of-a-bitch !" Marcus shouted, ignoring the 'rule' and striding right up to her. He grabbed her by the shoulders and shook her hard, until her blue eyes locked onto his in shock.

"Sixty years!" Marcus shouted into her face. From somewhere inside, he heard the others being drawn to the noise of his shouting, and part of him felt guilty about facing them after this but a bigger part of him just didn't care.

Not anymore...

"For sixty years we've been taking care of this body while you cower away somewhere deep inside that mind!" He screamed at her uncomprehending face. "You're right - you're a huge-breasted, fuck-hungry bimbo! An airhead! We're lucky if you can remember something that happened as long as five minutes ago! Do you know how many times you've nearly burnt down the house ? Not to mention, if you weren't so damned quick to heal, you would have been dead or mutilated long ago! We have to watch over you every minute of the day! That's why I came out - we have all the doors wired to wake whoever's 'on call' to keep you from just wandering away again! You won't remember, you cowardly dip-shit, but we had the devil's own time cleaning up the mess left after you got hit "

"...by a Freightliner " She completed in a dazed tone.

Marcus' anger suddenly faded, and he stared at her in shock. "You remember that ?" He asked.

She shook her head - but it wasn't exactly a negation.

"Brenda doesn't - but I do..." She said in that same, dazed tone.

Marcus was aware of the rest of the 'Brenda Conversation Group' now clustered around the French doors leading to patio, but he couldn't turn to see the expressions on their faces - he couldn't have torn his eyes off of Brenda/Brendan's face if his life depended on it.

A face that, aside from brief, usually incoherent periods where it displayed horror and disgust, was showing something other than mindless blankness for the first time in over sixty years.

It was showing... appreciation.

"You've... taken care of me." She said, like somebody just recalling a long untouched memory. "You have to cook all my meals - when I try, I burn myself, or stab myself... it's not even safe to give me a fork. At most, a plastic spoon..."

Her voice trailed off.

"Yes, yes! That's right...!" Marcus encouraged her, barely daring to hope.

"Sex..." She said - and Marcus' heart seemed to freeze up at the word, because as soon as this came up, there Brendan went, diving back into the depths of the brain that, as a result, was left practically empty for Brenda...

...only, this time, her voice was neither hysterical nor eerily composed, but thoughtful.

"I... need sex." She said, slowly. "If you didn't give it to me, I would have left to find people who would have... people who wouldn't have taken as good care of me, probably. Even in the sex itself, you all... are gentle. I beg for it, and you give it to me.. but you try to make sure I enjoy it, too... even if I never thank you for it, or tell you what I liked or disliked... because, shortly after, I don't - Brenda doesn't - remember. But I remember... I remember all of it."

She blinked, and looked at him oddly.

"Fluid transfer." She said, suddenly - something that would have seemed incomprehensible to anybody outside the group, but that brought a wondering smile to Marcus' face.

This person, who looked just like the phenomenally stupid blonde bimbo he and the others had to take such careful care of, had just had a thought. Not something she'd been told, but something she'd just figured out.

Something intelligent - falling from those lips that rarely had said more than one-syllable words for over sixty years.

"Yes. Every kiss, a tiny dosage of the retrovirus entered our systems. That's why we age so slowly... and, yes, it's a hell of a payment for taking care of you and keeping all of this secret from the rest of society." Marcus admitted. "Still... You're there! A real person, with a real mind, not this... one dimensional caricature that is all that's left to inhabit this body when you leave. I admit, at first, the original group of men who took you in thought a brainless nymphomania bimbo who could make you live longer was heaven... but, as you know, they all eventually abandoned you, one by one, when it just got too... annoying to keep you safe and secret."

"But... you stayed..." She muttered, her gaze momentarily straying to the people breathlessly huddled at the French doors. "You all stayed. Day after day, week after week, year after..."

Her gaze suddenly snapped back to Marcus.

"If I stay... I'll still be a nymphomaniac!" She said - and her voice quavered. "I won't be able to help myself any more than Brenda could! I'll still be... be begging you to... to..."

"Yes - and you'll still 'love' it all just as much." Marcus interrupted in as soothing a voice as possible. "...but I don't want to love being a cum-addicted pleasure-obsessed fuck-slut!" She wailed.

Then Marcus said something that made her brain and emotions screech to a dead stop. "Huh...?" She grunted, sure she must have heard wrong, but no:

"How do you know?" Marcus repeated, softly....

...and then, oh-so-very-slowly, giving her every opportunity to avoid it, he leaned into her and gave her a softly gentle, but nevertheless deep and sensual kiss.

For the first two seconds of the kiss, she was as stiff as a board, her spinning mind wondering why she hadn't made use of the ample opportunity he'd given her to avoid the kiss. Then, the answer came into her mind, even as her body loosened up and she began to return the kiss with growing vigor.

She hadn't 'freaked out' at the strange new situation because it was neither strange or new. It was something she'd done uncounted thousands of times before, and something she'd enjoyed immensely each of the times....

...it was just that this was the first time she was consciously and knowingly 'involved' rather than simply operating on the instinct that had basically been all Brenda had to call her own.

Which, Brendan thought bemusedly to herself some eternal time later, was why this kiss was so much better than any of those other ones, because she didn't just 'accept' the kiss, but actively participated in it.

"Whew!" Marcus breathed.

"Definitely 'whew' " She agreed, a bit numbly.

"Brendan..." He started... and then stopped as one slender finger rose and pressed lightly against his lips. Then she smiled at him.

It almost caused his heart to burst - for it wasn't the brainless, vapid smile so often on her face, by a wry one, tinged with a very old pain.

"No - Brendan's long dead, killed in a car crash." She said - then quirked an eyebrow. "Good riddance to bad rubbish, I guess - I mean, I remember being him, and liking who I was, then... but I also got into this situation by trying to rape a woman."

"Uh... oh."

She smiled, more naturally this time.

"Guess this is kind of a cosmic justice, huh?" She asked. "Well, at least I was lucky enough to find some guys who don't think of women the way I used to, as a man - and you're right, to 'Brendan', the woman I've become would have been a dream come true, only I... he was rich enough he would have hired 'babysitters' to care for her when he wasn't fucking her..."

Despite her efforts to keep voice and expression light, almost amused, some of the effort showed through - it wasn't easy to take the person he'd always thought himself to be and cast him aside, no longer 'I', but 'him'...

...but, then again, she was no longer insane.

"Huh...?" Marcus said, with a blink, and she blinked back at him before she realized she'd spoken the words out loud.

"Insanity - it's being divorced from reality." She said. "...and I don't mean the way I... er, he was hiding out to avoid dealing with it. He hid, but still held on to who he was - that's why he couldn't face the truth. He knew what the retrovirus did to his sex drive, and couldn't face the feminine equivalent... but, face it or not, that's what happened. Hiding didn't stop it - I've still been a nymphomaniac all these years, only the insanity in trying to deny it was me meant I was a brainless one."

She took a deep breath, and tried another smile on her face, and if it was still a bit wry, that was okay - it was her smile.

"So, Brendan's gone... and, since I guess I'm staying around this time, so is Brenda. Neither of them were - could be - 'sane'. This is my body now, my life, and.. well, just like everybody else, I guess I just have to deal with it." She actually surprised herself with a small laugh, not knowing how wonderful it sounded to more than a dozen pairs of ears used to hearing a brainless little giggle.

"At least I have plenty of time to get it right." She said.

"So... If not Brendan or Brenda ?" Marcus asked, cocking his head.

She turned her face to the sky, taking a deep, cleansing breath as she washed the first pastel streamers of a new day stream across the sky.

"I think... 'Dawn' would be appropriate, don't you think...?" She suggested, with a small smile.

"Sure." Marcus agreed - but, then again, he would have agreed if she'd said they should all start calling her 'Mistress Melinda the Magnificent, Goddess of All Creation.'

After more than sixty years, the woman who could not only give the most incredibly sexual pleasure, but also prolonged life, was no longer a mindless, one-dimensional burden to be carefully watched and cared for every moment of every day. Now, this woman was a 'real person' - and while nobody yet knew whether they actually like the person she would turn out to be, not even her herself, it was the start of a long and much-delayed journey, and such a small thing as a name barely even mattered.

"Sooooo " She said, not without some noticeable uncertainty - and the courage to push through it to start living her new life. "This is all a little, uh, strange for me - especially in the fact that it isn't 'strange enough', since I remember everything Brenda did, whether I, uh, 'agree' with it or not. It's going to take some getting used to, and we'll have to kind of take it as slow as my hyper-active sexuality will allow "

...then she shrugged one shoulder, cocked her head, and directed a bemused gaze at the men and trio of women clustered at the French doors, even as she gestured with her hands towards herself:

"...for God's sake, won't somebody find me some comfortable clothes ?" She asked, plaintively. "I mean, the heels are bad enough, even if I've had more practice than I'd like to admit in walking in them but I swear! The bra is a torture device!"

"Welllll " A man she recognized as Steve, the 'boob man', said with a slowly dawning smile of lascivious bent. "You could always just take it off."

She frowned at him and then memories flashed through her mind, and slowly, her frown faded towards a thoughtful expression - and a faint, but undeniable smile.

"Why, now that you mention it..." She said, lifting her arms and reaching for the clasp at the back of her neck, " I supposed I could, at that."

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: A man who now finds himself a complete woman, tries to recall what happened to him and any memories of his past.

In A Fog

By Gunslinger

The sound of a deep bass growl startled Chris, and he gasped sharply, blinking as he peered around him in confusion. There was the soft sound of glass breaking...

He was standing on a darkened street corner, wrapped in the swaddling cloth of a thick misty fog. The deep growl was the engine of the city bus just now pulling away, belching black exhaust that rapidly diffused into the all-encompassing mists that soon swallowed the bus whole, leaving him shivering and alone on the corner. At his feet, a small puddle of liquid among some broken fragments of glass, and a small gleaming point of metal.

Had he just gotten off the bus?

It seemed that way - but he didn't remember it.

Frowning in confusion, Chris looked around again, trying to place where he was - or where he'd come from.

Nothing sparked recollections in his mind. His memory was as misty and as dense as the cold fog that enveloped him, leaving him only with a deep and nebulous feeling that something was wrong.

Confused, and a trifle frightened, he tugged the collar of his well-worn leather flight jacket higher up around his slender neck, shifting the strap of his battered and frayed olive-drab back-pack higher onto one slender shoulder. He looked around a third time, now trying to divine where it was that he was heading, but once more memory failed him, and he couldn't discern a direction that seemed to beckon to him.

Across the street, soft-focused in the fog, the neon glow of a coffee shop offered refuge from the chill damp of the night air, and Chris slowly began walking towards it, hearing the soft clicking of his heels swallowed up into the sound-absorbing mist as he made his way hesitantly towards the café, mind trying to find some sort of handle on the situation.

It didn't work. He could call to mind no clear memories - of anything. It was like his past was a completely blank.

Reaching the door to the coffee shop, he reached out to push it open...

...and paused.

Tilting his head slightly to the left, Chris looked at the outstretched hand, a mildly puzzled look on his face.

It was a slender hand, with smooth, pale skin. A delicate hand, actually, with nails that, at most protruded a quarter-inch past the tips of the finely-formed fingers - and were painted a pastel shade of pink.

It was his hand. Indubitable, since it was attached to the slender wrist that, in turn, connected to the arm hidden by the bulky leather of the jacket - and yet, he didn't recognize the hand. It was as if he was seeing it for the first time, with no other references to compare it too, no memories of ever having seen it before - and yet, nonetheless, a sense of... wrongness about it reverberated through him at the sight of it.

Still carrying a slight, puzzled frown, Chris mentally shrugged and pushed open the door and stepped into the bright, fluorescent-lighted shop, immediately feeling the welcome wave of coffee-scented warmth that enveloped him.

It was a typical mom-and-pop joint, small and chummy and meticulously clean - and as Chris slowly walked towards the stools fronting the counter, he wondered how he could 'recognize' what type of place the coffee shop was, without having any clear memories of ever having been in any type of coffee-shop before.

The waitress behind the counter was a big woman with hair so bright, coppery red that it couldn't possibly be anything but real. Her full, ample body shoe-horned into a spotlessly clean yellow uniform that clashed horribly with her hair and complexion, she nevertheless seemed to exude a sense of belonging in that outfit as she wiped the already antiseptic counter with a clean cloth.

"Evening, honey..." She said, her broad face lit by a bright smile even more warming than the fragrant air. "What can I get you?"

"Coffee, please." Chris requested - and then blinked.

That voice. That quiet, almost musical soprano - was that his voice? Again, Chris had no memory to compare it to - but it just didn't feel right.

"Sure thing, honey." The waitress said, heading over to the coffee-maker behind the counter. She poured a steaming mug full, and brought it over, placing mug and saucer in front of Chris, then adding a bowl of sugar cubes and small metal pitcher of cream.

"It's a fresh pot - figured I'd be selling a lot, night like this." The waitress said, with a smile. "That'll be a buck and a quarter, with all the refills you can take, honey."

"Thank you." Chris said, still bemused by the voice that emerged from his own lips. Pulling the back- pack from his slender shoulder, he placed it beside his booted feet, then fished a crumpled wad of bills from the pocket of his tight-fitting jeans, and peeled off two ones.

"Keep the change." He said, handing the money across, then reaching out from the cream and sugar.

'How did I know where my money was kept?' He wondered to himself. 'How do I know I take my coffee double-double? I know things - but I can't remember anything...!'

Warmed by the coffee and the atmosphere, Chris unzipped his oversized leather jacket and let it hang open, sighing slightly as the warm air caressed his smooth, delicate skin.

"So.. you a dancer, honey?" The waitress, a natural 'people person', asked as she strolled back over to her sole customer this quite evening.

"A dancer?" Chris replied, a bit confused. Nothing pricked at his conscious with the words, so he hazarded a guess: "No. No, I'm not a dancer."

"Really?" The waitress asked, gesturing in the direction of Chris' chest. "No offense, honey, but most girls with work like that are usually dancers. If you don't mind me saying."

"No, it's fine..." Chris assured her, hesitantly, as he almost instinctively followed the hand gestured to look down at his chest.

'I love my big, round tits.' Chris thought to himself. 'They make me feel sexy and feminine, and I love showing them off in tight clothing.'

He frowned to himself.

The thoughts had come out of nowhere, zipping across a brain still devoid of any memories that would have explained the motivation behind the sudden thought - but, more than that, the thoughts that had sprung, unbidden, to his mind were diametrically opposed to the greatly increased feeling that there was something very, very wrong with all of this.

A feeling that was stronger now, while he stared down at the firm, round melon-like mounds of breast-flesh packed into the tight-fitting, low-cut white spandex top he wore.

Breasts that he couldn't recall ever having seen before - so how did he know that he loved his big, round tits that made him feel sexy and feminine, which he loved showing off in tight clothing? Why did the thought also make him want to shudder, a cold, tight ball forming in the pit of his stomach?

None of this seemed to make any sense.

"I'm just going to use your rest-room." Chris told the waitress, grabbing his back-pack and heading towards the clearly marked door at the back of the store.

"Sure thing, honey." The waitress said, comfortably - and then, a half-beat later: "Uh, honey - wrong one..."

Chris blinked, looking at the door clearly marked with the international symbol for a men's room.

"Oh - thanks." Chris said, wondering why he'd almost instinctively headed for that door. He managed a wry smile as he stepped over to the other door. "You can see how much I need some coffee..."

With the waitress chuckling behind him, Chris pushed open the door to the women's bathroom and stepped inside.

It was a small bathroom, a single stall and sink. Placing his backpack on the counter surrounding the stainless-steel bowl of the sink, he took in the reflection from the mirror mounted above the counter.

A pretty, young woman looked back at him - and he didn't recognize her.

Tall and slender. Boyishly feminine hips and full, firm ass outlined by tight, faded blue jeans. Large, firm breasts, at least a triple-D, equally outlined by her tight white top.

Cute, elfin face boasting big, brown doe-eyes framed by long, soft lashes. A dark mop of pixie-cut hair.

None of it familiar.

Frowning, Chris opened up the back-pack and rummaged through it's contents.

Clothing - a pair of white-and pink sneakers. A pair of orange satin hot pants. An orange-trimmed white tank-top bearing an owl and the name of a nationally-recognized chain of restaurants.

A paycheck stub, a bus-pass, and some ID - all in the name of Christine Cole.

A name that somehow felt both oh-so-right and oh-so-wrong, just like the reflection of her own body. What was going on here...?

Shoving his.. her? ...belongings back into the backpack, Chris headed back out of the bathroom. There was another person in the coffee-shop.

A tall, toned woman dressed in all in black leather, with a coil of platinum-blond hair topping her coolly beautiful face - a face that turned towards the bathroom door as Chris emerged, forming a smile that never touched the eyes, and exuded no warmth.

"Christie!" The woman said, sweeping towards Chris with a powerful, feminine stride, the short heels of her black leather 'biker' boots ringing off the floor. "I was wondering where you got to!"

"I was cold, and wet, Karen..." Chris said, wondering even as she spoke how she knew the other woman's name, where she knew her from. "I came in for a cup of coffee to get warm..."

"Well, Steven and Michael are waiting for you at home..." Karen said in a chiding voice - and then, in a lower tone, for her ears only. "They'll keep you warm..."

"Of course.." Chris said, confused - but, for some reason, not wanting to show it. Somehow, letting Karen know about her confusion seemed.. dangerous, for some reason.

Obediently, Chris - Christie? - let herself be led out of the coffee shop, throwing a wave to the carrot-topped waitress with a strangely wistful feeling.

Outside, a gleaming black BMW idled at the curb, and Christie let herself be placed in the passenger's seat, wondering even as she did so why she was letting this Karen more or less dominate her. Again, it felt wrong - but it felt even more 'wrong' to confront Karen, to question her or her motives. It seemed almost ingrained in her to do what she was told, without question - no matter how disquieting it all was for her.

A short drive brought them to a brownstone townhouse looming in the mist, one of many such fine houses lining the upscale street. A faint sense of familiarity tickled at Christie's mind as she climbed from the car and followed the tall woman up the steps and into the marble-floored entry of the lovely old house.

Shrugging out of her jacket, Christie hung it and her backpack on the oak rack just inside the door, the motions coming more from a habit than from conscious thought - despite the fact that she still had no clear memory of having done any of this before.

That same split sense of common and uncommon ran through her as she entered the house proper, her feet knowing where to take her while her memory remained blank. In short order, she found herself entering a sitting room where two men, about Karen's age, sat in the comfortable leather furnishings that abounded.

"Here's our wayward girl..." the taller, slimmer man said, a somehow cold smile on his narrow, handsome features, Rising smoothly from his chair, the sandy-haired man in the expensively-cut casual clothes crossed the room to where Christie stood - and wrapped her in a rough embrace, pressing his lips insistently down on hers.

She kissed him back.

She wasn't sure why. Something about this whole situation felt very badly wrong, and she certainly didn't enjoy the hard, almost painful kiss - yet her body seemed to be operating once more out of habit she didn't know she had, kissing him back as if it were something she did often, something she was so accustomed to doing that she didn't even think about it.

It was all very disturbing - especially when, without letting her go, he broke the hard, almost harsh kiss - and began pulling her by the arm towards the seat he'd just vacated.

With the shorter, darker-haired other man watching with a strange grin on his face, the blond dropped into the chair, finally releasing her arm - only to reaching up and grab her by a new grip around her slim waist, pulling her roughly down onto his lap.

Something in her was screaming that she didn't want to do this, that she should argue, or fight back, or get up and leave, quickly - but even while that strange 'intuition' was tickling her mind, she found her hands going to the hem of her shirt and pulling it off in one smooth, graceful motion, once more performing the act as if it were purely habitual, baring her large, obviously surgically-enhanced breasts as an offering to the man who was obviously expecting that very thing, as his hands rose swiftly enough to start playing with her breasts.

He was enjoying himself - but making no effort to make sure she was enjoying it. His grip was uncaring, almost callous - not intentionally painful, but neither was he intentionally kind, It was as if she were just a thing, a toy, for him to play with - and play with her body he did, hands roaming at will, sometimes followed by mouth.

She was offended, and disturbed, and upset, the treatment seeming nearly inhuman - and yet, something held her back from expressing any of this, the tickling in the back of her mind balanced by a sense that it would be very, very bad for her to make a fuss over any of this.

She didn't understand any of this. Not what was happening, nor why - and, especially, her split feelings about it all, a sense of familiarity and resigned acceptance warring with concern and disquiet and even outright dislike.

Why couldn't she bring herself to do something, other than what her body seemed to be used to doing.

How often had she done this?

Had she liked it the other times? Had she been willing - or unwilling? Why couldn't she remember?

Why couldn't she remember why it felt completely natural, yet also uncomfortable, for her to be sliding off his lap, slowly kissing her way down his lightly-haired chest as the other man came up behind her and began to unzip her jeans?

Why couldn't she remember why she was scared to say anything about any of this, even though she was getting steadily more uncomfortable as her fingers started opening the sitting man's pants, even while the other man preluded her motions by pulling her own pants down.

Why couldn't she remember all the other times she must have done this before, since her body knew without prompting to step out of her pants, leaving her naked as he freed one man's cock, while the man behind her did the same for himself without her assistance.

Why was she stroking and folding a cock, lowering her face to his crotch so that her mouth could encircle his throbbing shaft with 'oft used' skills she couldn't remember learning?

Why wasn't she screaming and pulling away, as part of her so strongly wished to do, as she felt the other man's cock sliding into the confines of her moist, warm new womanhood?

Why was she having sex with two men...?

Why was she letting these two men have sex with her?

Why was she doing this, despite the fact that she felt uncomfortable - hell, even downright disgusted - by what they were doing to her, and what she was doing to - and with them?

Why was she skillfully sucking one cock, while another invaded her, plunging hard into a vagina not quite ready for it, as if her own feelings and desires didn't matter?

Why was she being used as a sexual plaything?

Why was she letting herself be used as a sexual plaything?

Why was she going ahead and using skills she didn't remember having, doing something her body seemed to think was familiar, even though she had no memory of it, making it seem as if this was all 'the first time'.

The first time.

THE FIRST TIME....

SNAP Fumbling. Uncomfortable. Awkward...

...but excited...

...and oh so willing. Darkness.

A confined space.

The smell of soft, supple leather. The backseat of a car.

Music, drifting on a breeze. Soft flesh.

Warm flesh. Clothing.

Soft sighs, soft giggles, gentle touches. Prompting, questing, touching.

WHERE?

A voice, speaking: "Yes, Chris.. no, just.. Yes, like that..." WHO?

"Oh, yes, Chris.. Yes - now, just.. mmm, that's right..." WHEN?

"Oh, God, Chris - harder! Harder, Chris!"

Thrusting, pressure building, and then.. release, sweet release....

WHO? WHAT? WHEN? WHERE?

WHO? WHAT? WHEN? WHERE? WHOWHATWHENWHEREHOWWHATWHENWHEREWHO...

Peggy Leanne Noonan.

The back seat of her father's car. After the prom.

SNAP

Memory flooded back, and Christopher Coleman lifted the feminine face surgery had given him and screamed in shock and horror even as his one-time business partner, Steven Willings, shuddered and sprayed a thick, gooey stream of cum all over Chris' face.

"Oh god !" He screamed, as his huge implants continued jiggling from the thrusting of Michael Lewis, the other partner. "I.. I'm a man!"

"Shit!" Karen, 'dedicated secretary', and the mastermind behind the plan to steal Chris' fortune, take over the company, and transform them into their obedient little slave said, heading towards the desk where she kept the supply of syringes filled with the mixture of hormones and drugs she called 'girlie juice'. "Grab her, boys - she must have skipped a dose "

The men complied.

"No..." Chris grasped, struggling futilely in the iron grip that held him-made-her. "No, please, Karen, I'm so sorry, don't..."

"Oh, don't cry, my sweet little creation..." Karen cooed, with a hard chuckle, preparing the syringe. "Just one shot of girlie juice, and all those nasty memories of being a man will go away, and you'll be happy again."

"Please - don't do this...!" Chris begged, watching with horrified helplessness as the tall, toned woman brought the needle to the immobile arm - and slid it into the exposed vein, depressing the plunger with smooth competence.

"Please..." Chris sobbed, slumping in the iron grip of the two men as the liquid began rushing through the bloodstream towards the heart.

"I.. I don't want to be Christie..." Chris murmured, thoughts becoming foggy...

...warm...

...almost embracing...

"How does my little Christie feel...?" Karen asked.

"I feel good..." Christie said, gaze unfocused in the effects of the drug that held her mind captive. She sighed, softly. "I always feel good..."

"That's the way we like it " Karen said, as Christie absently licked at the cum dripping from her face. " and that's the way we're going to keep it."

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: A man who thought he had attained perfection in mind and body, finds that his own inner thoughts are rebelling against him and changing gender and behavior.

In Search Of Perfection

By Gunslinger

Part One

With a soft, steady beat, the brass metronome arm swung back and forth, gleaming like spun gold against it's black velvet background in the steady glow of the candle that was the sole source of light.

The same candle whose glow reflected off the flawless brass perfection of the metronome also reflected off the flawless bronzed skin of the room's sole occupant, his hazel eyes open and fixated on the hypnotic rhythm of the pendulum arm.

Sitting cross-legged in the center of the living room floor, only the slow and almost eerily steady rise and fall of his chest kept Shawn O'Connell from being mistaken for a life-sized Buddha-posed statue carved as a monument to masculine perfection.

His body was assiduously kept perfectly free of any body hair, the better to display every line and every curve of the carefully built and toned musculature layering a body that genetics had given the perfect proportions of classical Greek statuary. Not the slab-side, awkward muscularity of a body builder, it was the smooth, perfectly taut musculature of a swimmer and runner.

His hair was the color of burnished copper, and the loose, shaggy, mane was not coincidentally similar to that of Kevin Sorbo, for the face framed by it also bore a resemblance to that of the man who'd played TV's 'Hercules'.

Though his eyes were open, Shawn wasn't seeing the metronome's beat, at least not consciously.

The effects of the carefully-prepared custom mixture of herbs, roots and certain leaves, developed over years from the base material available through mail-order advertisements in certain magazines, held him in a thrall that was only deepened by the self-hypnosis and a combination of various Eastern and Western meditation techniques.

With the same intense dedication and pure willpower that had turned his twenty-four year old body into physical perfection, Shawn was continuing the considerably more difficult task of reaching the same level of mental perfection. Already far beyond the level where he could possibly find any teacher with more skill or experience than himself, he was slowly forging into the uncharted depths of the inner, most primeval mind.

Already, he'd achieved a level of mental expansion far beyond what all by the most famed masters could claim.

Near-eidetic memory and near-perfect concentration - which had served him well in his quest for financial perfection, allowing him to be remarkably wealthy for a man on the sunny side of thirty.

That, however, was mere icing on the cake - though tasty enough icing, and something allowed him to indulge the other aspects of his life that his mental acumen allowed.

Though having a wide circle of acquaintances and many women who were willing sexual partner, he had no close friends or lovers - and so nobody knew the 'true' Shawn.

The sensualist.

If anybody bothered to give it any thought, they must have assumed that Shawn followed a carefully adhered to diet and exercise regimen - but it had been years before that had been necessary.

Now, his mind was so empowered and so self-controlled that he could not only regulate his own breathing and his heartbeat, one of the 'tell-tales' of mental enlightenment, but he could control his metabolism, hormones, and even fine muscle control on both a conscious and subconscious level.

He ate whatever he wanted, whenever he wanted, enjoying the tastes and textures and smells of food with the heightened awareness of not only the foods themselves, but his own body's reaction to them, every internal and external sense incredibly sharp, clear and detailed. He could literally feel the rush of sugars, the density of carbs, the texture of fibers - and take or leave any part of the effects he wished to.

He could drink as much alcohol as he wished, and only be as drunk as he decided to be - or instantly sober, if he desired. Hangovers were but a forgotten memory.

As for maintaining the perfect tone and musculature of the body he'd worked so hard to shape while still in the early stages of his mental expansion - he could have lain in bed, twenty-three and a half hours out of each day, and still never gained or lost a single ounce.

Still, for all his advancement, he was still short of his final goal: Perfection. Perfection of mind and body - and of lifestyle.

Which is why he was in the third hour of the longest, deepest, most powerful trance he'd ever entered, his sight turned inwards to the mental images rolling in cinematic perfection.

Mental images of when his perfection was complete - when his aura of perfection was so strong, so palatable, so overwhelmingly inarguable that women would throw themselves at his feet, willing - begging for the right - to do whatever he wanted them to do to please him.

The mental imagery was stronger then ever before, so much so that it was only one, annoying step short of a perfect simulacrum, and Shawn pushed just a little bit harder...

...and, instead of strengthening, the wonderful, sensual mental Eden vanished as he broke through a wall he hadn't even known, entering a new and previously untouched depth of his own mind.

For an eternal instant, he hung suspended in the perfect stillness of this new chamber in his mind, not attempting to summon anything consciously, but simply let whatever this new level had to offer come out on it's own...

...and when it came, it stunned him so much that his metronome perfect breathing quavered ever-so-slightly:

<I'm a monster!>

His own thought, in his own 'mental voice', overlaid with his own emotions - but of a flavor and tenor and meaning he'd never felt before.

Stunned by the self-loathing of that inner voice, his-and-yet-not, he instinctively pulled back past the barrier he'd inadvertently broken...

...and the voice/thought/emotion followed him into the wondrous maelstrom of sexual pleasure - and somehow, without altering it, nevertheless perverted it.

The women's expressions, previously of suitable adoration and worship, became mere masks of forced admiration over naked fear. His god-like manliness inspiring their devoted worship became open threat promising pain. Their pleased acceptance of his perfect manhood whenever and however he wanted it became something dark and twisted...

<Rapist!> The voice accused. <It's never overt rape, because I never imagine giving the women a chance to choose - but rape it is, and rape most foul!>

Bending his will to silencing the voice, Shawn began worming his way up through the layers of his mind - but the voice, with a will that matched/was his own, followed him, still accusing.

His self-assurance made arrogance. His certainty, self-absorbed blindness. His virility called chauvinism, his desire mere lust, his sensuousness only selfishness...

...and, with a deep breath like a man breaking the surface of a lake, Shawn fled to the welcome refuge of the reality of his own, conscious mind...

...and it followed him!

The entire episode had lasted but a mere second, occurring with the unmeasured speed of thought. Even as his eyes returned to life and his head sagged, he found himself looking at his massive manhood, still in full, swollen erection from the interrupt fantasy-turned nightmare.

The sight of his massive, throbbing cock momentarily pushed aside his confusion with pure pride at the once merely 'average' manhood that the sheer power of his mind had swelled to its current proportions.

Then, now slowed but not at all weakened by its transition from 'thought time' to 'real time', that voice spoke again:

<It's not a cock, it's a weapon, to belittle and degrade the two-dimensional, single-purpose concept you've reduced women to. You don't deserve to have it. In fact...>

The sudden sense-of-attention he felt, where the world seemed to shrink down to nothing but his slowly softening manhood, was familiar - but stronger than he'd ever felt it before...

...and before his horrified eyes, his manhood not only continued to soften - but to shrink, as well.

Fear swelled - and he had to force it aside as he struggled to focus the concentration of his well-honed mind on stopping what was happening to his manhood. He narrowed his focus to the fight...

...and managed to only slow the effect, not stop it.

He bent all the force of will at his disposal to the task...

...but the mirror-voice-persona-whatever within him somehow drew on more of it, continuing the slowed diminution of his manhood.

"This... can't be... happening...!" Shawn ground out between clenched teeth, fear and disbelief edging his usually controlled voice as he struggled - and failed - to stop the slow decrease of his manhood.

It wasn't that the part from somewhere deep within himself was wielding it's own mental ability - it was somehow commandeering the hard-won prowess, and even split in terms of pure 'force'...

...but, somehow, his 'mirror image' was wielding it with more focus, more precision, a sharper and somehow.. cleaner sense of purpose.

His - no, their cock continued to shrink, now a pre-pubescent boy's...

...a baby's...

...a mere nub atop a long, shallow indentation in the skin that looked almost like a...

"No...!" Shawn screamed horrified at the very concept of what he was seeing - and in that instant, emotion overcame concentration, and the slow process instead ripped past in an instant of sharp pain.

A mere instant of sharp pain - and now, instead of an oh-so-impressive manhood he could be proud of, he was staring in utter humiliation at what was unmistakably a fully-formed vagina.

A vagina that, no matter how he bent his will, he couldn't change - and not because the horrifying new 'other side' of his mind was actively fighting him, but because it had, somehow, put some sort of 'block' on it, a simple 'wall' that it didn't have to constantly concentrate on to maintain, but that the 'real' Shawn couldn't break even after focusing every ounce of his will upon it.

"No..." Shawn whispered in a near-sob of horror. "No, I.. I can't have a cunt! Give me back my cock! Give it back! How could you do this to me, you... you bastard!"

It was the near-instinctive curse that 'sobered' him...

...for it wasn't a separate individual who had done this to him.

It was himself - or, at least, a part of himself, from deep within his mind, far below the level of conscious thought.

Some deep, dark part of him that hated his conscious personality - and that he'd unwittingly brought to conscious life from the deep chamber where it had lain dormant for so long.

What was this part of him that hated him so much? Was it that part of people that could be self-destructive, or even suicidal? Was it some fragment of a very young version of himself, before he'd realized he was destined for perfection and had had silly dreams and hopes? What was it...?

Whatever this lost part of himself was, the only thing Shawn was sure of was that it had just stolen the lynch-pin to perfection and replaced it with the gaping cleft of weakness.

He'd been worse than merely 'unmanned', losing that which defined him as being one of the 'real' people, of which he'd been first among equals - he'd been reduced to one of the weaker sex, a mere simulacrum of a 'real' human being, despite the fact that majority of him still mimicked the form of one of them...

"No, dammit!" He said, shaking his head and quickly rising to his feet with near feline grace and stalking around the room in furious thought.

"You want me to think that way, don't you?" He demanded of that inexplicable, traitorous part of him that would be willing to do such a thing to the body that they shared. "You'd like me to back away from who I am, to think like you, wouldn't you?"

He could see it more clearly now that the initial surge of horror and disgust had faded slightly - as part of him, even with such radically different - and ridiculous - views, this other part had played on him with, trying to weaken his sense-of-self.

Well, it was a good try, driving right to the center of things - the very thing the 'real' Shawn would do, if the positions were reversed - which, in a certain strange sense, they were.

Well, this 'deformity' notwithstanding, Shawn was still really a man, and he wouldn't let himself be swayed by the horror, disgust and humiliation that the other had been right to assume this gambit would summon up.

Well, if this 'other' him thought it would stop him, it was wrong. Until he figured out how to overcome this situation, he wasn't just going to 'give up', and let shame and disgust determine his actions, as the 'other' him so obviously expected.

Blowing out the candles, Shawn turned on the overhead lights and padded off towards his bedroom to get dressed, put off by the lack of the familiar sensation of a magnificent manhood dangling between his thighs, but refusing to let himself be overcome by the understandable emotions that such a significant loss wanted to summon up.

Shortly, dressed in a pair of charcoal-gray tailored slacks and an off-white collarless linen shirt, Shawn eyes his figure in the mirror, seeing the same magnificent specimen of masculinity looking back at him, his deformity hidden from sight.

He was still painfully aware of what this renegade portion of his inner mind had done to him - but nobody else would be, further verifying the fact that he could continue living the life of the man he really was.

However, for the sake of the man he truly was, there was just one little thing to do...

Slipping a balled-up pair of socks into his pants, he carefully positioned it over the slight mound of his new womanhood, until once again the mirror showed every sign of the magnificent man he really was.

Satisfied, Shawn nodded at his reflection and headed out of the apartment.

He'd been invited to a party this evening, and though the very thought of going out into public was now enough to make his stomach clench, he refused to give into the urge to be off. After all, it was pretty damned obvious that this traitorous fragment of his mind disliked how he was living his life, and was striving to find a way to get him to change his ways - which meant that everything he did different from what he'd normally do would count as a victory for this bass-akwards bit of himself.

So, no matter how uncomfortable it might be for him to walk the wider world with his manhood missing, a constant tickle of fear gnawing at the back of his mind at the thought that somebody might somehow find out how badly he'd been 'lessened', Shawn was going to screw up his courage and force himself to act as if not one damned thing had changed.

Well - except for the areas in which the shameful change made certain things physically impossible, that was. Even as he pulled his Porsche up to the curb near the house hosting tonight's entertainment, Shawn was grinding his teeth at the thought of breaking his usual routine so far as to knowing he was going home alone tonight, something that hadn't happened in... well, longer then he could easily summon to mind.

Forcing the disgusted, angry sneer from his face, Shawn smoothed it into at least the semblance of his usual calm, well-deserved self-confidence, trying to pretend that the way the socks ground against the sensitive mound of his new cunt was the familiar sensations of his swaggering stride.

Though the awareness of what the perverted part of his brain had done to his perfect could in no way be forced out of the forefront of his mind, he managed to act as if everything was normal at the party, apparently enjoying the attention such a perfect man as himself deserved.

Perhaps it was some sort of strange coincidence, but not nearly as many women as usual were throwing himself at him. Even though this should have been a relief, from a certain point of view, he found a growing anger growing in him as these women ignored what, as far as they knew, was a perfect example of manhood.

Not that they weren't giving out all those usual signals, of course. After all, skirts were in evidence, and heels, and tight or low-necked blouses. Make-up and perfume and jewelry - all the signs indicating that the women at the party were 'on the prowl', eager to prove their raison d'être by pleasing men.

That being the case, they should have been flocking to him, more eager to do what they were made to do with a perfect man like him than any of the lesser men at the party - but, instead, these bitches were acting almost as if they way they dressed and walked, which obviously had no other purpose than to arouse men, had nothing to do with their obvious urge to please men.

Indeed, two separate bitches had the nerve to actually come up to him and, smirking, tell him how much more they 'enjoyed his company' tonight, now that he wasn't always 'hitting on them'.

Of course, it was just sour grapes, because he hadn't already lined them up in his usual queue of women he was going to allow the privilege of pleasing him - but, despite the fact that he wasn't currently capable of having them slavishly devote themselves to a manhood he was (temporarily, of course) missing.

All of which served to drive him towards a woman who obviously knew her place. She was a tall, striking brunette that Shawn knew and had 'flirted' with before, but her schedule hadn't allowed them to finalize their flirtations before. Of course, the woman named Kimberly had given her first her phone number, then her address, but Shawn hardly needed to go to any effort to 'track down' his next piece of action, and Kimberly - as well she should - seemed content to wait in line until the right time rolled around for her to service him. Kimberly made no bones about the fact that she knew her purpose in life, and who best deserved that pleasure. Kimberly kept eyeing his perfect form with a knowing smile, and her every mannerism and motion showed her awareness of her sexual purpose.

Which meant, intellectually, that he might have expected what did, in fact, happened - but, between being disgusted by the bitches who were pretending they didn't know damned well that they existed solely to please men, and his own determination not to let what that perverted bit of himself had done affect him, he walked right into the situation...

...as, while leaning close to him and cooing suggested ways she could fulfill her ultimate purpose into his ear, Kimberly slipped a hand down between their close bodies and slid a hand down inside his pants.

That was bad enough - but the stupid bitch actually pulled the socks out, stepped back with a cold laugh, and, in a carrying voice, remarked that he obviously wasn't even 'half the man' she'd hoped he was, while holding the socks aloft.

Carried upon a wave of derisive laughter, Shawn stormed out of the party, a cold relief in his gut that at least her questing hand hadn't been thorough enough to reveal the truth that would have made his humiliation complete.

Even though her actions had meant that the party-goers thought he was 'merely' less endowed than he really had been, instead of completely unmanned as he currently was, it didn't mean that Shawn was willing to forgive that bitch, Kimberly, for the humiliation at her hands.

As he squealed away in his German-engineered little car, Shawn swore he was going to punish her for her presumption to publicly humiliate him like that.

Unfortunately, he couldn't simply do what he most wanted to, at least at the moment - though he strained to regrow his magnificent manhood, that 'block' was still in full force, leaving him physically incapable of making her 'eat her words' - by swallowing the full length of his manhood.

Well, he wasn't going to simply let this stand until he did manage to undo what one part of his mind had done to him. If he couldn't force his real manhood upon her, he'd just have to find a reasonable facsimile to use, instead.

The task of going into a sex shop and purchasing a strap-on dildo was... humiliating.

If he'd still had his own manhood, he would have swaggered in, not caring in the least what the nothing behind the counter thought about a man buying a sex toy like that - and that's the way he presented himself, forcing himself to act as if he were still magnificently endowed.

He wasn't, however, and the humiliating knowledge of this fact meant that it took every ounce of will power he had to act as if he didn't care what the man behind the counter thought, a fine sheen of sweat beading his forehead as he grappled with the fear that the man might have some faint inkling of why a man like Shawn might require a plastic phallus, as unlikely as the chance the man would guess the truth might be.

Finally, he was able to retreat to his car, hating the sense of relief he felt at escaping that situation. It was a disgusting proof of how much he'd been lessened, of how the loss of his manhood unmanned him more than just physically.

Though, in appearance, he was still the same strong, perfect man he'd been, he was feeling fear and humiliation he would never have felt if he'd still be manfully endowed. It was this slit that made him weak, that gave him the emotional turmoil, fear, and weakness endemic to women naturally cursed with the 'bleeding cut' that his own, perverted part of his mind had forced upon him in an attempt to alter the actions and views he was rightfully entitled to.

Well, even if he had to fight against all the womanly emotions caused by the womanly genitalia forced upon him, he wasn't going to let it weaken his certainty in his own righteousness. Women - 'real' women, who nature had determined should be of the weaker sex - were put on the planet to serve men, sexually and otherwise. It was men who were the rightfully dominant gender, and he was the best of the best of masculinity - or, if not for what his renegade portion of his mind had done, he would be.

Which was why, despite the cold ball of fear in the pit of his stomach, and his disgusted hatred over the fact that he had to resort to the use of a fake phallus, he was still going to do the right thing, and teach the bitch, Kimberly, the proper respect for a man.

Pulling up on a cross-street, Shawn - despite the knot of fear given to him by the womanly weakness of his womanly body parts - smiled at the Gods of Manhood who were smiling down on his endeavor to teach Kimberly the proper respect for manhood as a nice, thick rain began to fall from the clouded-over night sky.

Sitting in the darkened car, Shawn killed some of the more than hour of waiting by fishing the plastic phallus out of the bag and taking it out of its clear plastic blister-pack. Though a 'mere' nine inches in length, nowhere as long and thick as his own, erect manhood had been before being stolen from him, the realistically-molded cock with its black leather straps radiating out from just in front of its plastic 'ball sack' should serve its purpose.

Though it both disgusted and shamed him to hold the poor replacement for his own missing manhood, he nevertheless enjoyed the righteous thrill at the thought of putting Kimberly in her place by ramming it into her again and again. Of course, he'd only be giving her exactly what she wanted, exactly what she lived for - but he'd be showing her to show the proper respect for men, letting them do it when and how they wanted to, instead of according to the 'desires' of a weak woman who would let the most ridiculous things dictate to them the idea that there was anything like a 'wrong' time to let men make use of their bodies for the purpose they were born to.

Finally, he spotted Kimberly's car, a silver Lexus, pulling away from the long line of cars parked at the curb, and he let it get a ways down the road before starting the Porsche and putting it into gear, inconspicuously following her through the winding residential streets.

She lived about fifteen minutes away from the house of the party's host, and said house turned out to be the last one in a cul-de-sac in a box canyon, the location and the large, treed lots providing an agreeable amount of privacy that further argued for the Gods to be smiling on him.

Pulling into a shrub-lined access drive that led up to the cellular phone microwave transmission tower sitting in the hills high above the canyon, Shawn watched as the bitch climbed out of her car and headed into her house, completely unaware of his presence.

Allowing her to get inside and spend some time getting ready for bed, Shawn contemplated the best course of action for a bit, finally deciding it was best to strap the dildo into place before he left the car. Having not yet done anything to draw any interest to himself, it was best to deal with the awkwardness of having the 'hard on' during the trip to the back of her house, rather than having to fool with putting it on after having broken in. After all, the instant he actually made entrance to the house was when the real risks began, and time became the most critical.

That decided, Shawn awkwardly lifted his butt off of the seat and slid both pants and briefs down to his knees - then lowered his butt back to the leather seating as he cursed under his breath and untangled the loose-hanging straps, realizing belatedly that he should have figured out exactly how they were designed to function when he'd been waiting for her to leave the party.

Figuring out how it was lashed into place, he began to move it towards his crotch to buckle it into its functional position...

<I'm not going to do this.>

His hands suddenly locked into place, the plastic cock he held moving not even an inch even though he was bending every ounce of his 'own' amount of willpower to finish the action he'd started.

"Stop.. it!" Shawn gasped out, angrily, struggling for control over his hands. "That... bitch deserves to... be taught a lesson.. and you know it!"

<She did nothing that deserves this. It was our own fault, still thinking of her as nothing more as a vessel to fulfill desires I made sure we no longer have the ability to force onto women. Now just open the window, toss that away, and go home. You need to understand, consciously, that women have all the rights you do, and you can't just use them any way you want and then discard them. They are thinking, feeling people too.>

"Fuzzy-thinking liberal bullshit!" Shawn shouted at himself, the hard muscles of his arms corded under his shirt as she struggled against the force holding him from finishing strapping the dildo into place. "Women are weak-willed and flighty! They don't really 'think', they 'feel', making decisions based on emotion rather than intellect. Hell, they have a cunt, a receptacle, not a cock! The very fact that it's possible to supposedly 'rape' a woman proves it! Men are designed to be the one with the ability to penetrate women, not the other way around! Now stop it! There's nothing wrong with making a woman understand she needs to be ready to satisfy a man at any time and place! Hell, women want to be filled, it's exactly what their body is made for, just as a man's is made to fill her cunt, or mouth, or ass! We're just teaching her that she doesn't get to decide when that purpose she'd made for gets fulfilled!"

<That's disgusting!> His rebelling other half said, sending waves of sickened emotion rolling through their body. <Just because women are, 'technically' formed in a way that makes them capable of accepting the organ of a man at any time, while a man's cock has to be in a state of readiness, doesn't imply that it's men that should decide when it's time for a woman - another person capable of making their own decisions! - should have sex!>

What clap-trap! It wasn't just stupid - it ignored the most obvious of facts!

"A pussy is a hole - and a hole is meant to be filled!" Shawn stated the obvious. There was the briefest of pauses...

<Very well...> That terrible, twisted, illogical part of his brain replied in a cold tone of disgust. <If that's how you feel...>

For a second, Shawn thought that this other part of him had finally seen the obvious... and then, eyes widening, Shawn watched his hands start to turn the strap-on around, aiming the business end of it toward his own crotch...

...in which lay the cunt that the other part of him had forced upon him. The unwanted tight little slit...

...which was beginning to tingle with a disturbingly pleasant sort of moist warmth.

The sort of moist warmth that a woman might feel as her waiting-to-be-filled prepared itself to serve it's function. The function that would have been fulfilled by the plastic cock now moving towards his now-damp warm cunt.

No - no, it had to be a bluff.

There was no way that any part of him was willing to let such a thing happen - to do such a thing to himself! It had to be a bluff - but that knobby head of that dildo was getting awfully close...

...despite the fact that a sheen of sweat had risen at the sheer amount of will he was bending to the task of stopping it. The task of stopping it - at which he was failing.

It was drawing perilously close to the unwillingly moist, supposedly 'aroused' womanhood forced upon him.

No - not close: It was actually nudging the lightly wrinkled lips of his damnable cunt, it's bulbous nose grazing the moist pearl of a clit he'd never wanted...

It was penetrating him! HIM!

Gasping and writing, he tried to whip his hips and pull the slowly plunging plastic phallus from his cunt - but despite his every effort, it was oh-so-slowly sliding into his womanhood.

He felt the pliable dampness of his new cunt spreading wide before the invasion of the cool plastic head, only to close so tightly behind the plastic penetrator that the sensitive walls of his cunt to feel the passage of every molded vein as it slid steadily deeper into his 'welcoming' womanhood.

"Stop it...!" He screamed, horrified that any part of this could do such a thing - and humiliated to feel unwanted physical pleasure, however mild, being generated by such a sick, fundamentally wrong action.

Slowly, inch by agonizingly humiliating inch, the dildo slid ever deeper into his cunt, until it was buried within him all the way to the hilt.

Only then did the opposing will of his despicable, perverted inner mind relent, and he gasped as he pulled hard, feeling an unwanted burst of pleasure as the dildo slid rapidly out of the embracing canal of his cunt...

...only to stop dead with the rounded head of it just inside his now-sopping womanhood, creating a damnably enjoyable pressure against his clit.

Then it once more began sliding into him.

Only - this time it was faster, though still quite slow. It was faster... because it felt good.

Humiliating, disgusting and horrifying - but pleasurable.

Pleasurable enough that some small part of his 'real' mind was siding with the intentions of that renegade portion, willing to endure such a humiliating thing as being penetrated in search of additional pleasure.

It once again reached all the way inside his tight cunt - and then again came swiftly forward as the other side let his own desire to withdraw it from that damned pussy yank on it...

...only to once again pause at the penultimate moment - and begin sliding into him. Even faster.

This time, he also fought it on the way out, trying to keep it simply buried in his cunt, willing to accept the humiliating proposal of being filled with a plastic cock rather than face the fact that he was 'pleasuring himself' in a feminine manner - but he was no more successful at that than he had been at stopping the shameful impalement in the first place.

In and out. In and out.

Each repetitive stroke faster than the previous one - as a horrible, feminine pleasure continued to mount. He was fucking himself, the way a woman would fuck herself - and some sick part of him was enjoying it!

"No!" He screamed again, near sobbing - and hating the weakness in him that would allow something as unmanly as tears, though that paled in the face of knowing that part of him would accept being a mere receptacle. "Stop it!"

His pleas were ignored, as the cycle continued - faster and faster, harder and harder.

As the pleasure continued to build, his hips began to move, driving the action harder, to increase that humiliating pleasure...

...and it wasn't that 'other' part of his mind doing it!

"I hate this!" He screamed out, not even sure if he was trying to convince the other side of his mind, or the 'real' side of it. "I don't want to be fucked like a woman!"

Now his hands were wrapped tightly around the base of the plastic dildo, slamming it into him with eager strokes while his hips bucked and bounced, waves of pleasure thundering through unwilling nerves at the sexual experience...

...and then he was writhing uncontrollably, neither part of his brain in control of their shared body, as an intense climax ripped through him, blotting out anything by the sheer fury of the orgasm.

The female orgasm.

"Oh, shit, no..." He moaned, trembling, as the intense surge of pleasure slowly abated, horrified to have not only penetrated himself in a feminine manner, but had to endure the disgusting pleasure of being penetrated, like a mere woman...

"Oh, shit! No...!" He swore, in anger and horror, as he looked down to find that, in the moment of shame after the orgasm, his other side had taken the momentary lack of attention to Buckle the straps of the dildo - fastening it into place inside his still twitching cunt.

He tried to undo the straps and remove the dildo filling him - but another 'block' had been erected, and he simply couldn't force his hands to obey that command. They'd go near the straps - only to flutter helplessly about them, never actually touching them.

That horrible other side of him had forced him to leave the dildo locked into place inside of him, leaving him still penetrated in the feminine manner.

He was still pushed back against the seat, hips raised, and the muscles in the supporting legs and back began to ache from the position. Finally, after several minutes of futile struggle, he was forced to admit that he couldn't break the block placed on his actions by that sick, perverted portion of him that was obviously raving mad, and he grimaced and cursed a blue streak as he grudgingly pulled his underwear and pants back up and lowered himself onto the seat...

...and gasped, wide-eyed, at the mingled pleasure and pain of the pressure of the dildo filling his cunt at that angle.

His fingers clenched into fists around the steering wheel, and he closed his eyes and took several deep breaths, struggling to control the dark, angry mix of emotions that rolled through him. Reminding himself that giving in to those emotions opened the way for that perverted other half of him to take an additional measure of control, he forced himself to put down the oh-so-reasonable mass of black anger and regain a measure of control.

Starting the engine, he put the car into gear and backed out of the access road and aimed the Porsche towards home.

"I'm going to beat you." He ground out at the perverted part of his mind that had just forced him to endure such humiliating pleasure - even as he trembled in disgusted rage at the sensations coming from his crotch as the vibration of the car's travel over the road was communicated directly to his damned cunt's nerve ending via the conduit of the rigid shaft filling it. "you're not going to get me to give up being the most perfect man I can be to be some weak-willed mass of 'politically correct' platitudes and attitudes. I'm right, and I know it - and nothing you can do will ever convince me to even act as if I'm not, much less change my mind."

There was no 'verbal' answer - but another wave of 'self disgust' rolled through him in response.

Gritting his teeth, Shawn forced the lid to remain tightly sealed on his emotions, knowing damned well that the emotional response was what his evil other half was going for.

Though the shock, disgust and shame of the vents of the evening had impacted his usually cool, logical thought processes - the ones that only confirmed that he was right about the inherent predominance of the male, for example - Shawn had already reasoned out the plan of his opposing 'personality'.

Aversion therapy.

By choosing things that were guaranteed to draw humiliation and disgust from any right-thinking male aware of his own superiority over lesser men, much less inherently inferior women, this other part of him was trying to use the extremely negative reactions rightfully caused by these situations to get Shawn not to think the thoughts or perform the actions that would drawn down this 'punishment' upon him.

Like spanking a child when they misbehaved - taken to the extreme.

Shawn, however, was no child, nor a dog. He was a man, more than able to think for himself and come to the logical conclusions from the obvious evidence that was every where around him.

He was not going to let some rogue part of him - probably one of those 'repressed childhood traumas' you heard about, exactly the sort of thing to cause irrational, insane behavior, and in all likeliness something caused by his mother - change his undeniably accurate worldview.

He was right - and he was going to find a way to beat this strange sort of schizophrenia.

Reaching the parking lot of his luxury apartment building, filled with a renewed conviction of his own righteousness, Shawn shut off the car and started to climb out...

...then gasped, and continued the action with exceeding slow, careful movements, the phallus filling his unwanted womanhood doing terribly pleasant things to the inside of him as he awkwardly began heading towards the parking-lot access door, only a dozen feet away but seemingly a hundred miles distance.

Every step caused the dildo to shift within his cunt, occasionally causing a burst of pain on certain angles, but mainly creating a damnable pleasure.

Finally, he reached the door and let himself through it - then gritted his teeth and slowly, leaning heavily on the wall, made for the elevator at the end of the seemingly interminable hallway.

Halfway there, he had to stop - to deal with the weak orgasm that ripped through his body.

A second occurred in the tenth-floor hallway, adding to the large, spreading wet patch soaking the front of his pants in conjunction with an unmistakably feminine order, and he was pleading with fate and all the Gods that nobody step out in the hall as he carefully made his way to his own apartment.

Only after he was safely inside, the door closed behind him, that he let himself slump in relief and begin fumbling at his clothing.

To his great relief - and the humiliation that came from being in a position at being able to feel that particular relief - he found his hands able to unstrap the buckles of the juice-soaked dildo, pulling it free with a disgustingly enjoyable wet 'plop' and dropping it to the floor.

He turned his mind inwards, hoping that this signaled the perverted part of him surrendering - but the block about returning himself to his former male glory remained, and nothing happened.

Exhausted by the (futile) efforts to curb his 'evil personality' throughout the evening, Shawn stumbled off to bed, shedding clothes as he went, the black despair and anger washing over him at the thought of all the humiliation he had suffered.

Despite physical and emotional exhaustion, the anger and humiliation that circled through his mind kept sleep from coming easily, and it was almost half an hour before his whirling, furious thoughts finally subsided enough for him to fall off into a deep, deep sleep...

...and, ten minutes later, his eyelids slowly rose back up to half-mast.

Oh-so-slowly he sat back up and slipped his legs over the edge of the bed, rising with careful movements and heading slowly towards the bedroom door.

He moved, not with the zombie-like motions films used to denote a sleep-walker, but with the light, careful movements a person used when trying very hard not to awaken a light sleeper.

With the same oh-so-quiet motions, he made his way to the next room down the hall, the one that served as his office for his personal real-estate business. Carefully settling his naked body in the cool embrace of the custom-made leather chair, he brought his computer out of sleep mode, holding his breath and waiting as the light from the screen flared.

A moment later, reassured, he carefully opened the browser to the always-connected high-speed internet and pulled up a search browser...

...and went shopping.

It took nearly four hours to find everything he wanted - or, rather, everything he wanted from stores that offered rush shipping (for a price) where he could also order the packages gift-wrapped with attached gift-cards.

Finally, satisfied, he tip-toed off to bed.

* * * * *

After spending the first ten minutes after waking from a deep, but surprisingly unfruitful sleep, in a fruitless effort to regain his manhood, Shawn grumpily rolled out of bed and prepared for a morning jog.

Slipping on a pair of red jogging shorts and a baggy gray Gold's Gym T-shirt, he clipped his 'exercise key' to the waistband of his shorts by the small metal 'clothes pin' designed for the purpose and headed down the hall to the elevator, sighing over the way the breathable mesh inner liner of the athletic shorts slid across his empty crotch.

Jogging in place while the elevator descended, he was warmed-up by the time the doors slid open, and he jogged out at a quick pace, heading for the front door.

As he jogged by the front desk, there was a startled oath and Leon, the morning concierge, emerged from the little mailroom behind the desk and called a greeting in a somewhat forced tone of politeness.

Ignoring Leon, Shawn quickly pushed through the brass-bound front doors and out into the cool morning air, self-confidentially darting across the road and ignoring the blare of horns as he entered the park across from his apartment building, angling across the grass to the paved path that wound through the grounds.

As his muscles loosened up, Shawn slowly increased his speed, trying to trade the burn of otherwise unnecessary energy for the swirling memories of his humiliation. Within ten minutes of hitting the park trail, he was moving nearly at a full-out sprint, feeling the welcome burn of heavy exercise sapping the dark emotions from his situation...

...until he caught sight of the trio of women on the path ahead.

They weren't jogging, nor even speed-walking - they were simply walking along, shoulder to shoulder, gabbing away obliviously as they took up the entire damned path.

Lip curling up into a sneer, Shawn kept pushing straight down the center of the path, with only the beating of his sneakers on the path as warning of his approach.

If the women took up the whole path and didn't bother to make room for people more justified in using it, well then, it was their own damned fault if they got run down.

He grew steadily closer to the oblivious women, the sneer becoming a taut, feral smile as he bore down on them...

...and then, just before he reached them, he suddenly stumbled. Shocked by the unexpected event, he tried to catch himself - and the body that he should have had complete, precise muscular control over spasmed, reacting improperly to what should have been corrective movements, and he ended up sprawling head-over-heels onto the grass beside the path.

"Oh, my!" One of the woman gasped, turning quickly to where Shawn was pushing himself upright on the grass. She crouched down on her haunches, her eyes quickly sweeping over Shawn's taut body. "Are you okay, miss?"

Black anger welled up, and Shawn glared at the woman and snarled: "Who are you calling 'miss'?"...

...in a fairly deep, husky, but undeniably feminine voice.

Face going rigid, the woman rolled her eyes as she straightened back up.

"Oh, I'm sorry for being concerned for your welfare, Ms." She snapped, hitting the last word with pure vitriol as she turned and rejoined her friends, stalking haughtily off down the path.

Shawn, however, wasn't paying attention to her - he was staring down at his chest.

Face falling into lines of disgusted anger, he distastefully lifted his hands, noticing their somewhat slimmer, finer structure as he brought them to the neck-line of his T-shirt and pulled it out to stare inside.

Pushed out from the taut pectoral muscles were firm domes tipped by larger, thicker nipples. Breasts. Firm - almost hard - breast that had to be at least a healthy 'B'-cup, if not a 'C'.

Letting the shirt fall back over the sickening sight, Shawn let loose a string of vile curses directed at his 'dark half', hating the husky- but-female voice it all came spewing out in.

With the worst of his immediate anger dispelled in the outburst, Shawn levered his still-muscular but somewhat finer-built body to the smaller feet swimming inside the sneakers, now understanding both the stumble and the inability to catch himself.

Still muttering curses under his breath, Shawn began walking back towards his apartment, lips curling into a grimace as the fabric of the shirt sway slightly over the taut new breasts and larger, more sensitive nipples he'd been cursed with.

As he walked, he kept his thoughts circling his anger, building it up higher and hotter and brighter...

...the better to drown out the fear he'd felt when he'd realized how quickly and easily his other half had performed the objectively minor but comprehensive series of changes.

Reaching the building, he slammed through the door and stalked towards the elevator.

"Mr. O'Connell!" Leon called, darting out from behind the desk - then doing a quick verbal back-pedal as he got a better look at the person he'd 'mistaken' for a tenant of the building. "Oh, uh, I'm sorry - I didn't know Shawn had a twin sister, much less that you were visiting."

"I'm Shawn!" He snapped at Leon...

...or, at least, tried to.

It came out, in an only slightly annoyed (and feminine) tone, as: "I'm Shawnee."

"Pleased to meet you, Shawnee. I'm Leon." The concierge said, with a flourish. "Um - some packages came for your brother, so I signed for them and put them just inside the door of his apartment."

Barely hearing Leon's comment, Shawn tried to say his name again, this time prepared and ready to cut himself off after the first syllable...

"Shawnee."

"Oh - Shaw*nee*." Leon repeated, trying to match her inflection on the name, almost a tightening of the throat on the second syllable. Shawn glared at him.

"Oh, go to hell." He snarled, then turned and stalked angrily off to the elevator, leaving behind a stunned concierge who tried to figure out how anybody could be so angry about a slightly mispronounced name.

The entire ride up in the elevator, Shawn tried to say his own name - and each time, his other side slid the feminizing syllable onto the end.

What scared Shawn was how easily it was done.

The 'other' was no longer a separate side of him, but had somehow smoothly integrated itself into his conscious mind, making use of his body as easily as the 'real' part of him did.

Reaching his floor, Shawn hurried down the hallway, even more shamed by the thought of being seen like this then he had the night before, and quickly let himself into his apartment. Kicking his shoes off near the small pile of brightly-wrapped packages by the door, he hurried towards the master bedroom, shucking clothes as he went.

Reaching the doorway to the bedroom, he paused and took a deep breath, trying to calm the fear and despair jumping in his gut. Stepping into the bedroom, he turned and looked at the full-length mirror.

A woman stared back at him.

Certainly, it was possible to see the 'resemblance' between her and Shawn. For one thing, they were the exact same height, with a very similar build - the woman's wrists, ankles and waist were a bit slimmer, the hips a touch wider, the posterior a bit fuller, but all were only 'minor variations'...

...except they looked radically different to Shawn's emotions, if not his eyes.

Her eyes - for the ones being used to gaze on this reflection were the ones in the reflection, the ones in a masculine-looking female face, to square-jawed to be 'pretty', but undeniably female.

Just as the rest of her body was. It wasn't a man's body with tits and a pussy tacked on. Though nobody would ever accuse her of being beautiful, and the term that would spring immediately to anybody's mind would be 'masculine', the reference to the well-muscled individual in the mirror would have been 'a masculine woman.'

"No!" She snarled in useless denial, looking around angrily as she tried to bury humiliation - and fear - in reborn anger. "No, goddammit, no!"

Grabbing a small, decorative metal statue from the dresser near the door in her slightly slimmer yet undeniably feminine hand, she reared back and hurled it at the hateful truth the mirror revealed...

...and felt a burst of renewed fear as she realized that she wasn't sure whether she'd missed the mirror completely because of her unfamiliarity with her new female form - or because the 'other' had taken control of her arm to deflect her aim with such smooth ease that she hadn't realized it was happening until she saw the effect.

Disgusted at looking at her tall, toned, undeniably female body, the new woman who could only identify herself as 'Shawnee' stalked towards the closet, eager to cover her shameful form in loose, baggy clothing. Hauling open the door to the walk-in closet, she reached for some clothing that would fit the bill...

...and found her hand unable to take a single item out of the closet.

It wasn't the muscle-locking struggle of the night before, though she threw just as much effort into this battle as she had that one. Instead, to somebody watching, it would look like that tall, flame-haired woman couldn't make up her mind, her hand sweeping along the clothes a few inches from the surface, unable to settle on any of them.

"What?" She shrieked at her hateful other half, hating how petulantly feminine she sounded. "You want me to walk around naked so everybody can see what you've done to me? What you've reduced me to? Well, I'm not going to do it, do you hear? I'm not going to let you win!"

Suddenly, she found herself walking out of the bedroom - though she'd given no command to thus hideously female new body she'd been cursed with.

The walk looked - and even felt - completely natural, despite the fact that she was struggling for control of their shared body. The only sign of that struggle was a tightening of the muscles in her face, creating a look of intense concentration - but that concentration availed her nothing.

She found herself 'carried' to the pile of boxes near the door - where her hands pulled one of the boxes from the pile and held it up to where her eyes focused on the gift card taped to the top:

For your first time: I hope this is as far as it has to go.

She waited a moment - but her traitorous body did nothing else, so she slowly and grudgingly unwrapped the box and opened it.

Inside lay some articles of clothing, and as soon as her eyes fell on it she immediately began shaking her head.

"No way!" She told herself, staring down at what lay in the box, and knowing now that her 'other half' had planned out this punishment should she do something 'wrong' again, at least according to the insane judgment of her crazed opponent. Had she waited before going on her run, these boxes would have been delivered, and perhaps would have served as fair warning as to what was to come - if she'd bothered to let it affect her.

"There's no damned way I'm wearing these!" She announced, firmly - though she felt the gnawing fear in her gut at the thought that her perverted other self could be strong enough to simply take over and do it anyway. "You may be able to control - and change - my body, but we both know that it wouldn't be 'me' doing it, it would be you! Maybe I'd be a prisoner in my own body, but you wouldn't have perverted my thinking!"

It was a defiant statement, and she felt satisfaction at making it - right up until her body began to move again. Towards the door.

While naked.

Her hands actually unlocked the door and started to pull it upon before, bathed in a cold sweat at the thought of walking the wide world like this, she ground her teeth together and gave in, marginally: "All right, damn you! I'll wear your fuckin' clothes!"

Hating herself for 'willingly' doing such a thing, but hating the thought of the forced consequences even more sharply, she fought down a wave of self-disgust and shame and slowly, angrily, pulled on the clothing from the box.

It was better than being naked. Barely.

The black spandex crop-top encased her dome-like new breasts like a second skin, marginally more close-fitting than the slightly thicker dark-gray lycra/cotton stretch pants that encased her muscular legs and 'boyish' hips.

The form-fitting clothing was bad enough, especially given the form it was fitting - but the shoes made her want to both gag and cry. They were black sneakers with white stripes and soles...

..and heels!

Oh, wide, easy-to-balance-on heels, only an inch taller than the two-inch 'platform' of the rest of the sole - but definitely heels, the sort that only a woman would wear. Worse, they were so damned... useless! Not high and slender and sexy, (Thank God!), but enough to make the shoes useless as real active wear.

The shoes were certainly bad enough... but the white ankle-warmers and the matching sweatband were entirely too much, exactly the sort of useless frippery you might expect from a.. a... a woman.

"All right, so now I'm a woman, and dressed in women's clothing..." She ground out to her other half, crossing her arms defiantly across her chest - then quickly yanking them back down in a wave of embarrassed anger, as they pressed against the taut mounds of her new breasts. "Now what? You're going to parade me around downtown like this?"

In response, her body once again moved of its own accord - but not towards the front door, but to her office, where it seated itself in front of the computer, opened up a word processing program, and opened a new file. The first thing her self-directed hands did was save the file - under the filename 'Diary.doc'.

Not even 'Journal', for goodness sake - diary!

Then, before her anger-narrowed eyes, her unwilling fingers began to type:

Thank goodness my brother is letting me use his apartment while he's out of town - and thank God he IS out of town. I love Shawn dearly, but he's... well, he's a self-absorbed macho asshole with a chauvinistic streak a mile wide.

"Very funny." Shawnee snorted angrily.

Of course, even though his letting me use his apartment until I find my own place makes things a bit easier, it doesn't lessen the whole 'new girl in town' syndrome. That's why I'm so excited about going down to the gym a couple of blocks from here. 'Working out' there will give me a chance to meet some of the local women and, perhaps, make some new friends...

"Friends? With women?" Shawnee demanded of the computer screen, incredulous. "You're joking! How can I be friends with.. with fuzzy-headed, emotional, illogical..."

Of course, rather than 'waste my time' getting to actually know some women and find out which ones I enjoy spending time with, maybe I'll just find a cute guy who likes their women... physical.

A cold chill ran up her spine at the open threat, and she had to fight back the urge to gag at the thought.

"No way!" She insisted, firmly. "I'd... I'd kill myself first. Kill BOTH of us, I mean - because you can't live without me, you son-of-a- bitch! Just remember that!"

On the other hand, maybe going to the gym is a waste of time. After all, I have my reliable 'plastic friend' right here. Maybe I should just stay in today and spend all my time...

"All right, all right!" Shawnee shouted, angrily. "I'll go to your goddamned gym and 'make nice' with the bitc... 'other' women!"

Her fingers rap-tapped no more words out on the screen without his will. Her body didn't rise from the chair and walk about without her permission.

She remained seated, still, waiting.

Waiting for her, of her own will and under her control, to rise and venture forth from the apartment - not as a man, nor even as a man made visually female...

...but as what people would see as being a woman - and who would play the part of being female, wearing female clothing, answering to a female name, and in every way knowingly foster the belief, in word and deed, that she was the female she appeared to be.

It was horrific - and, in the end, it was only the threat that much worse could happen should she refuse what was undoubtedly supposed to be a humility- and sympathy-inspiring punishment that allowed her will to overcome her righteous anger and disgust.

Body literally trembling in mixed anger and self-disgust, Shawnee forced her body to rise, head out of the office, and walk towards the front door of the apartment - and her first (and by-god ONLY, she vowed) time not only looking female, but by any measurable standard, being female.

Hesitantly opening the door and stepping slowly and stiffly across the threshold and out into 'public', Shawnee had to fight back the urge to throw up...

To Be Continued...

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: A man who thought he had attained perfection in mind and body, finds that his own inner thoughts are rebelling against him and changing gender and behavior. part two

Part Two

The walk to the gym was pure humiliation on the hoof.

Every step Shawnee took only served to remind her what people were seeing - a woman. The flex of her slightly reshaped buttocks with each step taken in the 'heeled' sneakers was the sensation a woman would feel - was feeling - as she walked. Beneath the tight material, the view of her buttocks and muscular legs were also feminine - as was the oh-so-slight jiggle in the taut, dome-like mounds lurking under her top.

She was a woman, moving like a woman, being seen as a woman - and doing absolutely nothing to dispel the feminine assumption.

The people she passed, looking at her, saw a tall, broad-shouldered and muscular 'masculine' woman, dressed in women's clothes and, in all other ways, purporting to be female.

It all made Shawnee want to vomit - but, instead, she merely ground her teeth as she stalked up the steps to the gym, disgusted and disgraced to be reduced - in all eyes other than her own, of course - to such a demeaning status.

Her, who had so recently been the closest thing to utter male perfection existent, reduced to the perceived status of a mere woman! She still found it hard to understand how any part of her, no matter how obviously insane it was, could possibly do this to 'themselves'.

Part of why her 'explanation' to the desk clerk about having just moved to town and wanting to find a gym came out through clenched teeth.

Paying the one-time 'test membership' fee, the person who'd helplessly had to give the name of 'Shawnee' to the clerk walked into the main part of the gym itself, trying very hard not to look as uncomfortable - humiliated - as she felt.

She caught a couple of the men she passed giving her looks of distaste - and couldn't fault them for it, knowing what they were seeing. It would actually have been a hell of a lot easier had she been downright ugly, a real bowser - but, unfortunately, she was merely muscular and masculine without being completely unattractive by the feminine standards by which anybody would now judge her. That only served to make it obvious that she wasn't trying to do anything to make herself more attractive, that her hair wasn't 'styled' to better suit her face, that she wasn't wearing any make-up at all to enhance her plain, square-cut features.

Since none of the men looking at her could possibly know the truth, they were seeing a woman who should have been trying to make herself more pleasing for men to enjoy, and who was failing to even attempt the task. In fact, Shawnee knew, they'd see her 'strutting' around the gym as if she were the equal of any man - which, of course, she was, but they couldn't possibly know that. They'd be seeing a woman putting herself far above her real status, and it sickened Shawnee that her other half was forcing her to be a living example of exactly the 'wrong' type of woman out there.

That, of course, was the point. Shawnee was well aware of his traitorous other side's insane view that women were 'real' people, the equal to men, and so it was obvious that the purpose of this exercise was to humiliate her while furthering that ridiculous, ludicrous, untenable position.

Well, even involuntarily made a walking billboard for improper femininity, she wasn't going to foster the illusion that women had some sort of right to 'mutilate' whatever attractiveness they were born with by doing any so as unfeminine as weight-lifting or heavy exercise. Though her overly muscular feminine body continued making a 'statement' that went directly against the oh-so-obvious truth, she'd do what she could to present the correct 'role model' for the women around her, and stick strictly to toning exercise.

Walking over to a treadmill, Shawnee put it on a relatively easy setting and began trudging along, trying hard to pretend as if she were utterly alone, and not in a gym full of people witnessing her unknown humiliation and unwanted 'bad example' to women.

As she strode over the endlessly repeating belt, Shawnee heard the conversation the two women on the next two treadmills to her right were having - and had to clench her teeth from reprimanding them for it, knowing damned well that her evil other half would think it cause for punishment.

It wasn't easy - not with the two women discussing business and politics as if anybody as inherently emotional and irrational as a woman should have any right to say how a company, much less a country, should be run. The way they blathered on about things they'd learned the 'catch phrases' for, but couldn't possibly even really begin to comprehend, Shawnee felt her blood start to boil.

It was a testament to his phenomenal, near-perfect willpower that she managed to keep from snapping at the women...

...which was why, when the woman closest to her turned as asked Shawnee's opinion on the topic she'd been discussing, Shawnee's answer was snapped back sharply.

"You have no idea what you're talking about!" She barked at them, with a sneer. "You have no right to even have an opinion on such a subject! Now why don't you stop blathering on about subjects suited for your betters, and find something useful to do!"

The pair of women gaped at her, stunned - then, as shock turned to anger, they quickly decided they had someplace else to be, and stalked off in a snit, bitten to the quick by the truth.

Muttering under her breath, Shawnee pounded over the unrolling black belt of the machine, trying to burn off the angry energy with exercise.

"Well - you're getting a real work-out!" A svelte, dark-haired woman said, taking up the machine on Shawnee's right. "Looking at you, though, I'd guess you're used to pushing yourself."

Suddenly realizing that she'd fallen into her customary, male-style work-out - and the bad impression it made given her feminine form

- Shawnee slowed her stride and took several deep breaths.

"Not really." She said, tightly, needing to correct the misinterpretation. "I was just... sort of angry."

"Oh." The dark-haired woman said, with a knowing look. Starting up her own machine, she began walking at it's easy pace, the muscles in her nicely-toned legs flexing with each step she took...

...and it suddenly struck Shawnee that the sight of those quite shapely female legs weren't affecting him the way it should have.

Shawnee had to struggle to keep from returning to the faster, angry pace as she felt the sort of smug humor she felt generated by her other side as she finally, belatedly, realized that her sexuality had been 'turned off'. Though still capable of intellectually recognizing the supple, dark-haired woman as being sexy, Shawnee no longer felt the physical or emotional types of arousal it would have previously created.

Struggling hard not to show any sign of the anger that came from having her 'rightful' male sexuality stolen, Shawnee tried to focus on what the svelte woman was babbling on about.

It was typical female blather. Half of it was mindless, talk-shows and romances and who-was-doing-what-to-who in entertainment. Mindless, but harmless - and the other half was about things like make-up and clothes and hair-styles, which was grating on Shawnee's ears, but not her senses, for it was quite right for a woman to think and talk about the best ways for her to increase her attractiveness so she could better please men. By the simple expedient of agreeing with the woman, no matter how insipid her comments, Shawnee managed to have a 'conversation' without actually having to try and echo that ridiculous blathering.

At least she had created the projected idea that she supported the dark-haired woman's purpose. As humiliating as it was to have to listen to this woman blather on, and appear interested, it wasn't possible for Shawnee, in her current situation, state the simple truth: That only 'another woman' would be interested in such mindless blathering and feminine esotery.

Finally, it was time for Shawnee to make her escape. Several times, she'd tried to leave, and each time her body had blithely walked onward, her other side firmly in control. It was only after 'enough time' had elapsed that she found her other side letting her turn and head for the door of the gym, her 'punishment' apparently completed.

Not needing to shower and change because of how close 'her brother' lived to the gym, Shawnee headed straight for the front door of the health club, eager to escape the humiliation that came part-and-parcel with looking-and-acting even as marginally feminine as she was in public. As her dark, twisted and perverted other side still held the inexplicable edge in accessing their hard-won mental powers, she had no say in the disgusting body she wore, no matter how much she wished it was otherwise. That, of course, was bad enough - but worse was the fact that this humiliation, this public spectacle, wasn't a forced performance that the other side could have made it. Though her other side could have controlled her like a puppet on a string, it had instead increased the humiliation by forcing her to do this 'willingly' - or face consequences that wouldn't only have been humiliating, but would have been in direct contradiction to what she knew to be the simple truth.

Well, no matter what happened, Shawnee wasn't going to let this twisted part of her psyche make her give up what she knew to be good and valid views on the world - what she knew to be the truth.

That, there, was the crux of it all - because this other part of him might be able to alter their shared body at will, then lock out her own ability to change it back. It might even have to power to make her do or say anything it wanted, it couldn't alter what she thought, not directly. No, all it could do was try and find things humiliating enough to try and force Shawnee to accept it's own highly twisted view of the world...

...and that just wasn't going to happen. No matter what.

Refusing to let the humiliation 'unman' her intellectually the way her other side had already done physically and hormonally, Shawnee stalked towards the doors, fighting not to let anybody see a woman exhibiting the type of pride that the person Shawnee really was inside had every right to exhibit.

Balancing out the humiliation of a 'man' having to walk like a woman against the risk of giving the impression that any woman had the right to walk with the pride of a man, Shawnee wasn't paying much attention to the mere women he pushed through as they stood idling near the door...

"Oh, well excuse us!" The woman, one of the ones Shawnee had snapped at earlier, said in exasperated anger. "I didn't realize I was standing the wrong way! Or maybe it's the way I'm holding my wrist that's not to your liking... or maybe it's just every little thing about me that's wrong, huh?"

Shawnee's lip curled.

"Look, why don't you just stop fucking around?" She 'suggested'. "Get down to what you're supposed to be doing - making yourself look and act more attractive!"

Not waiting for the bitch to respond, Shawnee whirled and pushed through the doors, taking a longer, more determined stride than she felt comfortable letting a woman assume, but letting her discomfort over that be overshadowed by her desire to get back to the comforting privacy of her apartment...

...and then she noticed the odd sensation rippling through her body.

The odd pushing-pulling-tightening-loosing sensation of her body slowly and forcibly being altered from within.

Her heart caught in her throat as her stomach balled in a humiliatingly unmasculine fear.

She knew that her other side could have done whatever changes it was forcing upon her incredibly quickly - which meant that this slow transformation was done solely for its additional humiliation factor.

Not wanting to find out what new humiliation was in store for her, at least not in public, Shawnee ignored decorum and appearances, and sprinted flat-out towards her apartment, not able to take the time to pay attention to the changes building up in her form as she cursed the impractical shoes that were getting steadily looser on her feet.

At a dead run, she burst through the doors to the apartment and blew past Leon, tearing open the door to the stairs and pounding upwards, chasing her echoes upwards in the concrete stairwell rather than wait for the elevator.

Feet now almost coming right out of the shoes with each step, her clothing tightening and loosening on various parts of her shifting anatomy, She reached her apartment door and frantically fumbled with the key until the door finally swung open, and she hurled her changing body inside...

...and the other immediately took complete control of her.

Not letting her see much of her changing body in it's shifting gaze, her renegade body went directly to one of the boxes still piled near the door and tore it open.

Shawnee was almost glad that the other had complete control of the body they shared - since that denied her the chance to inadvertently scream out in horror at the sight of the various sex-toys that filled the box.

Helplessly, she watched her slimming hands gather up some of items within - and then she headed towards the bedroom. "You're just not capable of learning, are you?" She heard her voice, steadily rising in pitch, demand as they headed towards the bedroom. "I give you every chance, provide you with plenty of motivation, and even give you a chance to see that what body you're in no way determines you to be 'more' or 'less' of a person - and still you have to treat... have to think of women as lower then whale shit!"

Even as this other part of her raved on, spewing her perverted world-view, Shawnee struggled to regain control of her body - realizing she'd made a horrible, horrible mistake.

Though knowing that this part of her was the 'insane' part kept buried far beneath her logical, perfect conscious mind, she'd still mistakenly believed that it was still part of the 'real' her.

That's why she'd been so shocked that any part of her, even this insane part, could do anything like reduce them to mere womanhood, physically - and she'd been certain that it had been 'hard' for that part of her, too.

Now she realized the mistake of that assumption.

This other side of her would do anything to further it's own, insane view of the world...

"Women are for sex, huh?" Her other side ranted through their shared mouth as they stripped out of steadily more ill-fitting clothes. "Okay, then - that's the way we'll treat us! Just the way you want!"

With The Other in control, their stomach couldn't even tighten into the cold ball of fear that Shawnee's intellectual horror should have prompted.

Fear - and a tiny, just-barely-there sense of gloating.

Sarcastically or not, being used against her or not, The Other was still agreeing to the utterly correct view of the world.

Still, that little bit of gloating didn't help much as The Other forced their shared body lift a slim, bright-yellow dildo up to their mouth and slip them between their shared lips.

Shawnee wished she could force enough control of her body-in-revolt to at least shudder in disgust as the licked at the little dildo, but she couldn't even manage that much.

At first, Shawnee felt relief as the dildo was pulled from their mouth, gleaming with saliva - then relief turned to horror as the hand slid back around their body in a motion that made their intention obvious.

It was something more hideous, more humiliating, more horrifying than having a dildo in their unwanted cunt, and Shawnee, an unheard scream unable to be voiced, bent every inch of her will from stopping this from happening.

A dildo in a cunt was feminine, and undeniably so - so, humiliating as it was, it wasn't as bad as something that could also be a homosexual action, like anal penetration. A cunt was designed specifically to be filled by a 'cock', but an ass was not necessarily strictly for that purpose.

Shawnee bent every ounce of will to stopping this from happening...

...and her arm slowed. Shaking with the force of the effort, it steadily slowed until it hovered, locked into position, the saliva-slicked snout of the simple dildo pressing lightly at the flesh of her slowly softening ass-cheeks.

For several seconds, her arm remained locked in this stasis, neither side able to gain an advantage...

...and then her other arm, which Shawnee had practically forgotten about, came up to their mouth - and slapped in place a type of gag, one with a short but very thick 'dildo' that filled her mouth.

The horror of having this pushed between her lips, forcing her mouth to be filled by a 'cock', momentarily broke Shawnee's concentration - and the little dildo slipped deep into her until-then virgin ass.

The hand at the dildo's base then released the dildo to rise up and help her other hand strap the dildo-gag into place...

...but not until it had first given the white plastic base of the dildo a quarter-turn to the right. Which caused the 'dildo' to do exactly what it was designed to do - vibrate.

It was slim - but felt huge inside her. Sickened and horrified, she felt it vibrating away in her ass, horrified to feel it filling her...

...and creating pleasure.

With the dildo-gag now strapped into place, the vibrator in her ass humming away to create humiliating pleasure, Shawnee found The Other laying their shared body down on the bed. Her legs - which, she was able to see, were a lot less muscular, smoother and more shapely - spread themselves as her hands, clutching the third and last dildo, moved steadily towards her exposed crotch.

Once again, she fought to stop what was about to happen...

...and didn't even come close.

In point of fact... some small part of herself - her 'real' self was helping The Other. Was actively helping to do this to herself!

Because... Because...

Because... a woman's cunt was supposed to be filled with a cock, real or plastic! OF COURSE!

The Other was trying to GET her to fight this!

By using her own disgust, The Other was trying to get her to deny what she knew to be right! At this realization, Shawnee knew that there was only one thing she could do.

One thing - no matter how disgusting or humiliating, how sickening or perverted it might be. No matter how much she might not want to do it, it was the one thing she HAD to do, or allow The Other to win.

So, self-disgusted, Shawnee stopped fighting The Other - and, instead, forced herself to assist in the act of filling her cunt with the big, thick, disgust-and-pleasure generating plastic phallus.

As The Other closed their eyes and had them lay back, legs spread and vibrator humming away in their ass, they fucked themselves with the dildo, plunging it in and out of her cunt with nearly violently thrusts, muffled grunts that could have been interpreted as either pleasure or pain being choked off by the dildo-gag crammed into her mouth.

She had no idea how long she lay there, frantically fucking herself with the dildo. Humiliation burned steadily in her, but she could do nothing but accept the self-disgust that came from fucking herself like a woman, because she knew that the very phrase 'like a woman' proved that it was the right thing to do.

For however long she fucked herself, she went through orgasm after orgasm - orgasms much heightened over the ones forced upon her the night before, due to the influence of the vibrator in her ass.

Orgasms that steadily, despite never losing their intensely enjoyable, intensely humiliating pleasure, became also more uncomfortable from the sheer repetition.

Even as the physical discomfort grew, so did something else...

...satisfaction.

Every utterly humiliating plunge of the dildo, every disgusting tremor of pleasure, all of it all served to prove what she knew, and what The Other had tried to deny:

That this female body was designed to be a sexual - and servile - plaything. It was the body's purpose - and, as Shawnee had come belatedly to realize, it didn't matter who (or what) inhabited that body, it was the body that mattered.

By accepting this, and by using her masculine force of will to force herself to accept the humiliation of following up thought with action, she was denying The Other's twisted version of reality.

The Other was trying to make a point: If there was a 'good reason' for a woman, any woman, not to act like one, then The Other would have an argument.

Well, Shawnee wasn't going to give her that satisfaction.

That's why, after The Other stopped making any effort to force her to do so, Shawnee forced herself to fuck herself to another orgasm before removing the dildo from her now-sopping and thoroughly throbbing cunt.

She then removed the dildo-gag and the vibrator, forcing herself to neither rush to do so, nor to fling them aside in disgust - because doing so would provide The Other with an starting point with which to argue there was good reason why any woman might do so.

Outside the window lay darkness, and a glance at the night-stand clock revealed that she'd just spent nearly nine hours frantically fucking herself.

For anybody else, it would have long ago stopped being humiliatingly enjoyable and become utterly agonizing, if not impossible due to exhaustion. With her perfect control over her own body, however, she was only slightly stiff, mildly tired, with a low and - oddly enough, not completely unpleasant - throbbing in her cunt.

All of this was 'interesting' - but of more immediate interest was the fact that, during the masturbation marathon, her body had been completely reshaped.

Uncomfortably, she slipped from the bed sheets sodden with her own juices, finding another not-totally-unpleasant sensation in her asshole from having been filled by the vibrator for so long.

Refusing to show the disgust that came with every oh-so-feminine sensation created by her now-utterly-feminized body, she walked over to stand in front of the full-length mirror and see what had become of her.

She couldn't help herself - she gasped in stunned amazement at the specimen of perfect femininity that stared back at her, as utterly flawless in feminine form as she'd once been in masculine form.

She was everything a woman should be, had every attribute that defined a woman as being a woman - and had them all in spades. Just as men should be tall, women should be short - and short she was, a mere four feet, nine inches tall.

No, not just 'short', for midgets were 'short' - this new woman staring back at her from the mirror was 'petite', and all that implied. The incredibly fine bone structure, leaving her so slender or wrist and ankle and neck, so delicate of finger and knee and foot.

Though short and slender, there was nothing the least bit child-like about her - indeed, she radiated an almost palatable sense of sexual maturity, though skin-tone and silken texture could have been that of an sixteen-year-old girl.

Though objectively diminutive, her lean, supple build would have made her look tall had there been nothing around to gauge her true height against. With long, shapely legs and a long, enviably slim waist supplemented by the smooth swell of womanly hips and a slender ribcage, she had the same basic build of that of the original Barbie dolls to a nearly life-like scale...

...with a few differences.

Unlike Barbie's 'innocent' heart-shaped face, this one was a delicate but femininely strong triangular face featuring full, bee-stung lips and dark, sensual eyes half-shadowed by long, dark lashes - the same general type of face that had made Sophia Loren a sex- symbol.

It was also a face that was surrounded by an incredibly thick, silken mane of ruby-red hair that hung in curls and waves over her slender, fine-boned shoulders and down to the top of her firm, heart-shaped and entirely mouth-watering new ass.

In fact, every inch of her silky-smooth flesh was mouth-watering, from the soles of her slender, dainty feet to the crown of her head, from her taut round ass to her perfect breasts, a pair of triple-D domes that thrust proudly from her ribcage, tipped with perky pink nipples.

She was... gorgeous. A living example of what a woman should be...

...which was the most utterly humiliating thing you could possibly do to somebody who was 'really' a perfect example of masculinity.

"Well, Shauna...?" She heard the incredibly erotic new voice this body came with ask her, "Are you ready to admit that what you look like shouldn't predetermine your actions?"

"No!" She replied, vehemently, unaware of the all-to-accurate impression of schizophrenia she would have created for anybody seeing her two-sided argument. "No, damn you! This isn't 'real'! I wasn't born into femininity like a real woman would be! That makes it different!"

Her anger once again morphed into disgust as The Other took control of their shared body.

"How the hell would you know?" She asked herself, disgusted. "Let's see what it's like to be the 'perfect woman' you've become, shall we?"

With The Other still in full control, Shawn/Shawnee/Shaina couldn't even argue as their shared body turned and - with a slow, sensuous stride just one bare step shy of parody - swayed seductively out to the waiting boxes in the living room.

No matter how much she struggled to regain control of her body, she could do nothing as it dressed itself in feminine clothing...

...put on gold jewelry, complete to earrings that her ability to control her body healed the wholes for almost as they were being pushed through her pierced ears...

...and even put on make-up.

"Well?" Her reflection taunted her, posing seductively in front of the mirror. "Isn't this the way a body like this should be dressed?" The worst of it was - if it hadn't been for the fact that the modified body was 'really' a man, it was.

She was even more hot!

The theme was 'Oriental' - and oh, did it work.

The dress was dark red silk, rising from mid-thigh to the high, Mandarin-style collar. One either slid, the skirt portion of the dress was slit high on the hip, and would have revealed glimpses of her panties - had she been wearing any.

Likewise, it was obvious her slender, buxom figure was going without benefit of a bra - because, rising in a widening 'V' from her waist was black mesh that revealed her perfect cleavage and even her shoulders before it merged with the back of the dress and the high collar.

She was balanced easily, sensuously, atop the six-and-a-half inch high heels of the red pumps she wore, her perfect and balance making it physically easy to stand and move in the extreme heels - which made it all the more humiliating that she could be so skilled in such feminine footwear.

"Well, you've convinced me." Her reflection told her. "You're never going to be convinced to change your views. So, if I can't change them, then I'll have to use them to disarm you."

She had no idea what The Other meant by that - until she felt the 'consciousness' of The Other beginning to pull itself in on itself, coalescing itself and, in a funny way, quite voluntarily committing 'suicide'...

...in order to 'win', for The Other gave up the ability to continue thinking in order to form a... a 'one way mirror' deep in the brain that now belonged solely to Shauna.

Who promptly gasped, eyes widening in horrified understanding - and unwanted desire, her body suddenly 'revving up' with a moist warmth centered in her crotch.

She gasped and struggled to break free of the cycle of thoughts running through her head - but she couldn't.

The Other hadn't been able to break her of her beliefs about the places of men and women in the universe - and, in 'dying', The Other had created a metaphysical 'mirror' that showed Shauna's body back to her in a constant, attention-drawing loop.

In that instant, Shauna became amazingly aware of her own body, every nerve and muscle and sinew...

...and equally intensely aware of the fact that she was a woman.

The knowledge that she was 'really' male paled next to the reflected image of her current gender - and because of her unshakable beliefs, she was flooded with an incredibly powerful urge to be the woman the her mind insisted she should be.

"No...!" She gasped in a taut whisper, dropping to her knees, assaulted by the ideas and concepts that she couldn't deny she believed was true - but couldn't convince her mind didn't apply to her. "Oh, God, please - no!"

She struggled to drive the whirling, powerful thoughts from her head - but she couldn't.

Her eyes fluttered open, and she saw herself in the real mirror before her - and whimpered anew at the fierce sense of satisfaction that rocked her at the sight of such a 'correctly' attired woman, dressed and made-up to perform her purpose in life - serving, and servicing, men.

"I'm not really a woman!" She screamed at the her reflection in the mirror. At her feminine reflection.

In a female voice.

The denial didn't do anything to lessen the barrage hitting her - it strengthened it, her unshakable beliefs all-but-rearing up and grabbing it in it's metaphysical teeth and giving her a good shake.

Gasping, her face contorted, she found herself climbing unsteadily to her feet. She didn't want to go out, didn't want to do anything at all to meet the demands her beliefs were screaming at her - but it was like a physical pressure crushing down on her, making it hard to breath, to think.

Heart thundering behind her new bust, head feeling as if it were being crushed in a vise, she stumbled out of the apartment, not able to think clearly enough to consider grabbing money or keys or anything else.

If a particularly observant psychiatrist had been watching her, he would have diagnosed what she was going through as an unusually powerful phobic reaction - and he would have been right.

Just as somebody with claustrophobia would have had a steadily more powerful attack until they were forced to escape the conditions that caused it, the beliefs in her mind forced her to leave the apartment, overwhelmed with the desperate, inarguable need to find men.

As she headed down the hall and into the elevator, the sense that she was doing something lessened the attack, and she slowly regained her poise, her body pushing itself into a sensual pose while her lips curved in a faint, seductive smile.

With her hyper-awareness of her own body, she was aware of exactly what she was doing - but trying to fight brought the attack whirling back to full strength, forcing her to back off, which made her painfully aware of what she was doing...

On the elevator ride down to lobby, she 'cycled' five times, from calm sensuality to shuddering panic, and back again.

When the doors opened on the lobby, she went into full-blown attack mode, struggling not to leave the safety of the elevator cab, as bad as the one in the room - and, like the one in the room, this one drove him out of the elevator.

Also like the attack in his apartment, being forced to act eased up the attack, giving her beliefs the power to make her move with sensual gracefulness, her very move a statement of her sexuality.

It was quite late, and this time of night there was no concierge. Moving in fits and starts that nobody saw, she made her way across the lobby and out the door. With every step, she struggled to stop herself - but what she was fighting against was her own beliefs, and the harder she tried, the harder she... tried not to.

It wasn't a split personality, like it had been with The Other. This was all her, not wanting to believe what he believed - and failing.

That's what made it so horrible - because, even though she didn't want to do this, she knew that she firmly and unarguably believed that this is exactly what she should be doing.

It was as if a law-abiding person got into an accident. The urge to 'run away' was strong - but the knowledge that it would be wrong to do so kept them there.

Likewise, though she hated what she was doing - but she couldn't stop doing it, believing it needed to be done...

...and with each repeating cycle, it got 'easier' to be what she knew a woman like her should be, and 'harder' to fight it - because more and more of her mind, humiliated as it might be, was coming to believe that this was exactly what she would be doing.

All of which served to explain what happened when she reached the corner.

The light was red, and pulled up at the corner was a beaten up old Dodge van, gray primer over gray paint. Sitting in the passenger seat was a 'good old boy', long unkempt hair under a dirty John Deere ball cap and an equally unkempt beard. Seeing Shauna wiggling and jiggling her way up to the corner, he leaned out the window.

"Hey, babe!" He shouted. "Show me yo' tits!"

She paused, shivering under the force of the attack...

...an attack that lasted only a second before her belief that any woman should obey men, 'eagerly' and 'willingly'.

Given that, it wasn't surprising that, no matter how much it disgusted her, she swiveled towards the van, undid the buttons running down the left side of the dress, and pulled it wide open, displaying her perfect feminine body to the gaping man's gaze.

"Holy shit!" He gasped - then grinned, eyes glittering, as she shuddered oddly, then smiled warmly at him, wrapping her dress back around her body.

"Hey baby, you want to..." He started to ask - and, even in the humiliation of what she'd just done, Shauna felt a burst of relief that whatever the man was proposing was in the form of a question, which she could refuse, instead of an order she couldn't...

...then the light changed to green, and the van started to move.

The dark-haired man turned quickly to whoever was driving the van, and it suddenly stopped - in the middle of an intersection that was, at this time of night, thankfully empty.

But there was no way of knowing for how long - which explained why the man stuck his head out the door and said, urgently, "Get in, babe!"

Phrased that way, she had no choice - and, after another brief shudder, she couldn't help but walk up to the sliding side door he'd jerked a grimy thumb at, pull it open, and climb inside.

"Hot damn!" The driver, as grimy and lanky-haired as the passenger, but blond, said as he put the van into gear and cleared the intersection. "You are one hot chick! I thought Buddy here was yanking my crank!"

Shauna shuddered - then smiled.

"I'm glad you like the way I look..." She said in a seductive voice - and it was true. His liking the way she looked gave her a wave of pleasure, because that was the purpose of anybody who was female - and, as that unbreakable 'mirror' in her mind insisted on showing, she was most definitely that.

Of course, she didn't want to be female, and didn't want all that came with it - but her own beliefs had never included what a mere woman might want as being the valid basis for anything, so she couldn't argue - no matter how desperately the screaming, shuddering, horrified 'real' man deep inside her wanted to.

The beliefs she held were much, much stronger than even the pure humiliated self-disgust that thundered through the core of her.

"So..." The dark-haired man, the one referred to as Buddy, said with a nervous lick of his lips, trying out his own personal form of 'discretion'. "You are what you think you are... aren't you?"

Deep inside, the man within squirmed in humiliation, because it was damned obvious what these two men assumed she was - especially since they'd happened to catch her 'on the street corner', literally. Now, the truth was, she wasn't what they thought she was, on so many levels it would have been funny, under other circumstances...

...but she couldn't say any of that.

She just couldn't - because no woman, no matter how they ended up that way, had the right to do that. It was the bedrock of her beliefs...

...and if her beliefs were wrong, then her entire life would have been wrong, and she couldn't accept that. No matter what.

"Honey..." She said, driven by her need to verify everything she'd lived her life by, "...I'll be whatever you want me to be." The two men shared a grin - and the blond driver pulled the van into the darkened alleyway between two buildings.

"How much to do the both of us?" The driver asked, sharing a look at the passenger. "I mean, at the same time, you know."

She looked them over, licked her lips slowly - and gave the answer she hated to give, that she was utterly disgusted to give, but that she was unable to help but give: "For a chance to do a couple of studs like you? Hell, whatever you think is fair."

She couldn't even say 'nothing' - because, as a mere woman, it wasn't up to her to set her own value, or lack thereof.

"All right!" Buddy crowed, hands going to the crotch of his grimy jeans and fumbling for the zipper bulging over his hard on, the driver mirroring his actions - as she, unable to stop herself, peeled off her dress again and 'assumed the position' in the middle of the van's cargo area. Legs spread wide with knees slightly bent, her torso leaned forward with her ripe breasts swaying gently, she braced herself with her left hand on the cold metal of the van's unpadded wall, her other hand left free.

The two men held a brief discussion as to who got what - and then Buddy, head bowed awkwardly due to the low roof, came to stand in front of her, While the driver worked his way around her and let his pants fall to his knees as he took up position behind her.

Just as she felt his hard cock sliding deep into her already damp cunt, she leaned forward and enveloped the blond's throbbing cock with her wet, warm, 'willing' mouth.

Flexing her knees slightly, she worked her hips in time with the driver's hard, rapid thrusts - while using her free hand to work the shaft and balls of the cock she was 'eagerly' sucking on.

She was being exactly what they wanted her to be - a cheap, easy whore. Though not really skilled at what she was doing, the men would never realize that, since her incredible control over her own body more than made up for the lack of skill as she sucked and was fucked, tits shimmying and shaking as she rocked in place.

There, in the van, being treated like a cheap whore - and responding in a way that only reinforced that treatment - she felt waves of humiliation and disgust roar through her even as she simulated the emotional pleasure that would match the actual physical pleasure that she couldn't help but feel as the driver plunged into her cunt with a hard, fast rhythm. Deep inside, the 'real' her was wallowing in self-disgust over being a woman being fucked by two cocks - but that same part of her was what was forcing her to go through with this, because to do anything at all to actually avoid this would completely invalidate everything she'd ever believed in her entire life...

...and that would be unthinkable. After all, if women really were people, if they had their own minds and the right to use them... well, that would have made her just about the worst type of user and abuser.

If - and of course, it was only a hypothetical 'if', she thought, as he licked at the cock filling her mouth - if that impossibility was true, why then - she'd probably be unable to live with facing that fact and would probably kill herself out of shame.

But, of course, this wasn't about that, and she didn't feel any urge to kill herself over the supposedly 'terrible' way she'd treated women in the past, she thought smugly as she brought Buddy to orgasm and quickly swallowed his disgusting load of cum just in time to pull her mouth free and fake an orgasm in time to the blond's own ejaculation.

After all, she told herself with assurance, fighting the urge to vomit up the disgusting, salty cum that seemed to be curdling in her stomach as she accepted the handful of bills the men pressed on her. If she'd been doing something wrong, certainly some part of her would have known it, like her conscience - and surely it would have found a way, at some point, to let her know she was wrong.

So, utterly certain she was right - and, therefore, had no right to be anything but the woman she now was - Shauna climbed from the van, wrapping her dress back around her oh-so-feminine body. Throwing a last wave at her first clients (or was it Johns?), she began wiggling and jiggling her way down the street, hating the certainty that something similar was going to happen again, but already knowing she wouldn't even shudder anymore - at least, not externally, where anybody could see it.

No - no matter how she felt inside, she'd never, ever let anybody even suspect the horror and humiliation that would forevermore be her constant companion.

She was much too perfect to show her weakness like that... THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: When a guy starts taking illegal drugs that he thinks is going to make him more attractive to woman, his plan backfires when he starts to transform into a sex craved female.

In Too Deep

By Gunslinger

Knocking on the door-frame of Dan's basement office, Mr. Williams stepped into the small, electronic-component strewn office and slowly and quite deliberately shut the door behind him.

"Dan." The office manager said, his voice sadly firm. "I think we need to talk."

Behind his desk, Dan shifted nervously in his seat, a blush rising to his face as he quickly slid the porn magazine out of sight in a drawer.

He was embarrassed to the point of humiliation.

.but he was hardly surprised.

Even as his boss nervously cleared his throat, obviously looking for a good place to begin, Dan's mind once more began to wander - but, instead of wandering to graphic, vivid sexual imagery as had been it's wont recently, this time his whirling, fuzzy mind managed to grab hold of a real, coherent thought - a memory.

The memory of the fateful night, just over two months ago, that this had all began.

* * * * *

"I'm tellin' you, man." The shifty-eyed, swarthy-skinned man said, jiggling nervously from foot to foot as he peered around the darkened street in a near-paranoid manner. "You gotta be real careful with these here babies. Cop find even one on you, they'll throw you in the deepest, darkest hole in the worst shit-hole of a prison they got, then throw away the key. You get me, man?"

Unable to speak because all the moisture that had previously been in his mouth seemed to have migrated to the hands he kept nervously wiping on his slacks, Dan bobbed his head nervously, the orange-white sodium glare of the sole lamp lighting the run-down section of urban decay flashing off his horn-rimmed glasses and momentarily hiding the wild, heart-pounding mix of fear and hope in his watery blue eyes.

Still looking around as if he expected the entire LAPD to come swooping down on the decaying street-corner, the leather-clad Latino handed over a bottle of pills.

"Remember, you do get caught, you don't know me." The dealer warned, viciously, his acne-scarred face tight. "I got lotsa friends, you know? You rat on me, and you won't be safe noplase. Got it?"

"Yeah - I got it." Dan managed, sweat trickling down from his crew-cut mop of sandy-blond hair and into his eyes - despite the cool evening breeze and the fact that he was underdressed in just a button-up short-sleeve shirt and grey slacks. "These, uh."

"They'll do what you want them to." The dealer - who Dan knew only as 'Quick' - said, smiling knowingly, looking like a lascivious weasel.

Nodded once more, Dan quickly stuffed the bottle of pills he'd just paid five hundred dollars for into his pocket, then hurried off down the street, to where hi five-year-old Hyundai was parked on the next block, in the parking lot of a coffee-shop.

Quickly bringing the egg-beater engine to life, he sighed in relief as he guided the less-then-gracefully aging car out of the parking lot and headed off towards the 'safer' part of the city, where he lived.

Even as he drove, his heart continued to pound - not so much in fear of getting stopped by the cops, though the thought remained in the back of his mind the entire way home, causing him to glance in the rear-view mirror ever seven or eight seconds, but out of hope that these pills might actually do what Quick had claimed they would.

Hope that he might actually get laid.

At twenty-seven years of age, Dan Freedman was practically a walking, talking stereotype - the stereotypical nerd. From the easy-to- maintain crew-cut to the horn-rimmed glasses, the short, slender, pale young network administrator was a whiz at computers - and a complete flop when it came to dealing with other people, especially those of the feminine persuasion.

There were many reasons for this fact, not the least of which was his almost pathological - and wholly pathetic - lack of self- confidence, the sort of thing that had led him to a line of work that required minimal human contact.

.and had resulted in him being a virgin as he neared the 'big three-oh', with no sign of it changing before he hit that milestone birthday.

Unless, of course, the powerful, FDA-banned pills now rattling in his pocket would do exactly what they were supposed to do.

Dan had found a reference to the pills while searching the internet. He'd actually been looking at the wide variety of pills available to enhance a man's size, duration, enjoyment, or any one of a hundred different aspects of sex - when he'd stumbled across a site that had included a notation on the powerful pill banned world-wide because of the 'secondary effects'.

Pills that, in studies during the approval phase, had turned out not only to increase the size of a man's organ and allow more frequent and more powerful ejaculations, but that also increased sex-drive while lowering inhibitions.

Oh, not that those effects were why it was banned - in fact, it was those effects that would have made it a sure-fire best seller. It was the two other effects.

The first being a 'high' roughly on par with that of marijuana - which might have been something the company could have worked around, if not for the second effect.

The increased production and potency of pheromones.

In short, the pills not only increased the sex-drive and lowered the inhibitions of the person using it - but of the members of the opposite sex encountered while on the pills.

.and since the pills were a 'lasting effect' drug, one where the effects were cumulative and permanent, rather than temporary, it was quite conceivable that a man who took enough of the pills could become almost literally irresistible to women, who'd find themselves getting incredibly turned-on in his presence, to the point where they'd almost be compelled to have sex with him, whether they really wanted to or not.

It was this that had caused the pills to be banned, with almost all of the stock destroyed.

.except for the lot of pills that had gone missing during transport.

The pills that Dan had painstakingly tracked down, until he'd bought the last batch of them off Quick this very evening.

Excited and hopeful and horny, Dan pulled into the parking lot of his small, brownstone apartment building and hurried out of the car and up to his apartment, eager to begin his self-designed regiment of treatment.

Since the drug had never even completed the testing phase once the risk of what could happened was recognized, there wasn't any sort of general guide as to safe dosages out there anywhere - but there was a guide for what might be a possible over-dose amount, based on the incomplete testing, and it was Dan's plan to take eighty percent of that theoretical overdose amount on a daily basis, which should leave enough margin-of-error for safety.

He hoped.

* * * * *

"Now, in the case of somebody so diligent a worker as yourself..." Mr. Williams said, slowly, having decided to start with a back-handed compliment to ease the blow of what he intended to say next, "...we always allow a certain amount of leeway, to accept and even accommodate some... eccentricities. Which was why I choose to overlook that period, starting about two months ago, despite the potential that it might lead to some sort of sexual harassment complications..."

Dan's blush deepened - even as his mind went back to those 'blissful' days, back when he'd been so happy...

* * * * *

"Oh, uh, hi..." Jessica said, an odd look on her face.

"Dan." He supplied helpfully, grinning back at her where he leaned at the wall of her cubical, arms crossed over his chest. "Just came by to see if you're having any problems with your computer that I need to know about."

"Huh...?" She asked in a faintly puzzled, distracted tone - as she tried very hard to figure out why her pulse was racing and a faint - but growing - moist warmth was forming in her crotch over being so close to such a nerdy, unattractive little man. "Oh - the computer. No, it's, um.. fine..."

Her voice trailed off as, almost of their own volition, her eyes began to wander towards Dan's crotch.

Watching her attention drift, Dan had to smile. After all, his 'service call' was completely unnecessary, merely an excuse for him to come to the cubical of the office's 'hottest' female employee, so he could enjoy seeing the effect that the past week's worth of drugs would cause.

Not that he actually intended to seduce Jessica - no, that would be crossing the line. He'd already decided to keep from 'dipping his pen in the company ink', which could lead to all sorts of unpleasant complications.

Since, however, the slow lowering of his inhibitions hadn't kept up with his increased sex drive, however, he wasn't quite to the point where could go to a 'meat market' night-club and pick up a complete stranger - though he knew that it wouldn't be much longer before he'd feel completely comfortable doing that, not with the way the pills were affecting him.

For the moment, however, he was just satisfied with the ongoing effects his steadily diminishing supply of pills was having on him. Like the fact that his once-insignificant manhood was now a full nine-inches long, and thick for that length.

