Whenever she found herself remembering how humiliating it was to be wearing feminine clothes, she immediately changed into an even sexier, more feminine outfit and went out of her way to show herself off in it.

Disgust over her hair and make-up led her to keep them utterly perfect.

Whatever she wanted to do, as 'Rocky' - she immediately went and did the exact opposite as 'Sandi', knowing that being Rocky was a sure ticket to failure.

In it's own way, it was a small insanity making the situation possible - but she'd been using it so long and so constantly that she never even considered it anymore, never even tried to break out of the rut. She did it habitually, almost instinctively - and now it all sort of happened without any need for conscious thought.

So much so, that the inversion had become 'real'. Now she no longer consciously considered the fact that she was really feeling disgusted at Gary when she was being extra sweet to him. The thought that she was cleaning and sweeping constantly because what she really wanted to be doing was huddling in her room, hiding out from her feminine fate, never really registered.

Now, everything was just urges that she didn't bother to think to correctly identify, because her ingrained habits had already kicked in to respond 'appropriately' to it...

...which meant that she almost never had to think anymore.

Not that she was suddenly stupid - in fact, she was more intelligent, more informed and knowledgeable, then she'd ever been before

- because her intellect was practically disconnected from her body.

Even as her body continued cleaning in the most sexy, feminine, utterly graceful manner possible, her mind was considering the book she'd read last night, Walter Lord's Day of Infamy, about the attack on Pearl Harbor.

She was still considering the historical ramifications of the unfairly called 'sneak attack' when Gary entered the room...

...and was completely unaware, on a conscious level, of what went through her in the space of a single instant. The disgust at the sight of him, calling up the memory of all the degradations and sexual activities.

The reflexive 'clamp down' on the 'bad' thoughts - and the quick consideration of what the correct, 'inverted' emotions and outlook should be...

...leading her to smile brightly at him, putting down the duster and sensuously swaying over to him, wrapping her arms around his neck and kissing him hungrily and deeply.

While she was kissing him, she wasn't thinking about Pearl Harbor: She was concentrating on making the kiss the most enjoyable on for Gary possible, concentrating on catching each and every tiny cue he gave her and responding to it correctly.

All the while, in the back of her mind, intellectual realization of how disgusting and terrible this all was for a 'man' like her festered - but it wasn't connected to emotion, just an ever-present feeling of self-disgust and humiliation that waxed and waned depending on what she might be doing at any given moment, but never interfering with her now-habitual actions.

Which was why, despite the intellectual knowledge that it was utterly sick and disgusted and perverted for a 'man' like her to do it, she followed the almost subconscious 'suggestions' Gary's lips and body were giving her, and slowly sank to her knees in front of him, hands quickly unzipping his pants and setting his rapidly hardening cock free.

She concentrated just as intently on giving him the most utterly perfect blow-job as she had on the kiss - and the waves of intellectual disgust that washed over her at the perverted action in no way interfered with her hard-won, much-practiced ability to suck cock like a world-class pro.

The last thing she wanted was to swallow another man's cum - which is why she did, with relish, licking her lips appreciatively and smiling up at Gary.

"Thank you, dear. That was wonderful..." She cooed.

"I'm glad you enjoyed it." Gary said, sighing regretfully. "I guess it's a good one to go out on." "Excuse me...?" She asked, quizzically, tucking his cock away and rising.

"It's been six months. The probationary period is over." He explained, blinking in surprise that she could have forgotten - not knowing, of course, that she'd trained herself not to think about anything having to do with her feminine fate. "You must be eager to leave."

She was. More than anything else in the world, she wanted to get out of this situation, with an intensity so strong it was painful...

...which was why she showed the same intensity when, helpless to stop herself, barely even aware what it was she was doing, she 'inverted' it:

"Oh, Gary - don't say you're making me leave!" She cried, 'heart-broken', throwing herself into his arm. "Oh, Gary, no, I don't want to go! I want to stay here with you, and love you, and please you, forever and ever...!"

Six months later, at the wedding, the agreement was universal: Sandi made a radiant bride.

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: Two men are sent a package from the National Reaction Research Foundation and their lives are changed forever.

Reactions

By Gunslinger

With a soft sound of pleasure, Josh dropped onto the couch. Since he was almost painfully skinny, his baggy green football jersey and baggy, faded jeans hanging off his narrow frame, his drop didn't do much damage to the couch.

The same couldn't be said about Bull's descent. Tom 'Bull' Durham was a six-foot-six mass of solid muscle, topped by a surprisingly small head with a much-broken pug nose and a short blond buzz-cut. He also wore a the same local-team jersey as Josh, but his XXXL jersey was stretched taut over his massively muscled torso, and his jeans were equally tight around his massive, trunk-like legs. When he hit the couch, the over-stressed piece of furniture let out a mournful cry, it's springs compressing. The motion jolted Josh so hard that his long, greasy black hair flipped up - and his beer splashed out of the mug.

Swearing, the skinny young man used the hem of his jersey to mop up the beer. As he heard footsteps, he stopped muttering long enough to glance up at the third roommate, who was standing in the doorway to the living-room, holding a large box.

"Who was at the door?" Josh asked, still dabbing at the beer.

Mike shrugged. A sort of bearish-looking young man with the look of a lumberjack or farm-boy, the brunette was handsome enough, if a bit stingy with his words. His roommates had gotten used to his quiet nature, and Josh just shrugged and took the package from Mike, knowing that the simple shrug Mike had used meant that the box had just been laying on the doorstep when Mike had gotten to the door. It was no great feat to figure that out - after a hundred times or so, Josh had managed to recognize that shrug as Mike's 'you know just as much as I do' shrug.

Of course, Josh was not exactly a mental giant - but he was a genius compared to Bull, who had the general intelligence level of a rock. Mike was probably the smartest of the three - but it was hard to tell, since he barely spoke enough to know just how much he knew. So, even though Mike could probably figure out what was up with this strange box showing up at their doorstep this late at night, it wouldn't help - trying to get the information out would be like pulling teeth.

Josh didn't even bother trying to ask Bull for help - the brain shuddered at the thought of Bull being able to figure out something new. Most days, it took Bull a few hours to come up with a reply to 'Hello'.

So, Josh shrugged and peeled open the box while Mike grabbed a beer and sat, lotus-style, on the deep pile rug near the big-screen TV, pulling a rolling paper and some tobacco out of his shirt pocket.

"Okay - it's from some place called 'The National Reaction Research Foundation'. There's some sort of letter, see, and it says, stuff about our house bein' randomly selected... testing reactions to audible, visual and emotional stimuli...." Josh trailed off, frowning.

"Nielsen." Mike said, in an almost Zen-like tone of calmness. He was adroitly rolling one of his trade-mark homemade cigarettes with one hand, his eyes closed.

Josh frowned - the smiled. "Oh - like a ratings thing? We hook this device up to our TV, and it records what we watch or something?" Mike, puffing the smoke into life, didn't answer verbally - but he slid over, leaving more than enough room for Josh to get at the TV.

Since that more or less said it all, Josh shrugged and unpacked the device in the box. About the size of a Playstation, it had obvious coaxial and RCA-style inputs and outputs, as well as a remote control that resembled one used for satellite TV or the like.

Putting the remote down on the coffee-table, Josh carried the box over to the TV and began to hook it up. When he unplugged the cable, the image on the screen disappeared, turning to static.

"Hey! Whatcha doin'?" Bull demanded, angrily. "I was watching that, bonehead!"

"Just wait..." Josh said through clenched teeth, hurrying to make the connections before Bull got pissed off - Josh had already been the focus of the big guy's short fuse, and he didn't particularly want a repeat performance. Muttering under his breath, Josh reached for the power cord on the new box...

...and was a bit surprised to find there wasn't one. Shrugging, Josh slipped out from behind the TV.

There was still nothing but 'fuzz' on the screen. Josh frowned angrily at the TV, feeling Bull's angry stare from behind him.

"Three." Was Mike's enigmatic suggestion, and Josh had to restrain the urge to punch his quiet roommate in the face for the 'hint', struggling to make the mental connection between 'three' and the problem - all the while feeling Bull's stare boring into his patently undefended back.

Then it came to him - channel/three.

Josh tried it, and got a blue-screen. The twenty-five year old smiled, walking back over to the couch and dropping onto it before grabbing the remote.

"Okay - let's see what this is..." Josh said, pointing the ergonomically-shaped device at the new box and pressing the 'Power' button....

* * * * *

MEANWHILE, NOT TO FAR AWAY....

"Okay - we're rolling."

The words were spoken by a tall, thin woman sitting in front of a TV monitor - one of the many pieces of extremely complicated-looking electronic devices crammed into what had once been the living room of an old farmhouse, now the headquarters for the 'The National Reaction Research Foundation' - or, rather, the headquarters for the 'front' under that name, said 'Foundation' consisting solely of Rosalind McNair, the woman who'd spoken as her plan went into action. She'd been staring intently at the blank screen for the past two hours, waiting for it to come to live so she could proceed with her little 'experiment'.

Now, the monitor showed another living room, in which three young men were staring directly at the screen of their TV - which was currently also serving as the 'camera' through which Roz was watching them, one of the 'wonderful' little gadgets her twisted mind had produced.

That same mind now consider the three men, trying to decided which one would be her 'subject'. She discarded the thought of the scrawny little guy almost immediately - the plan she was about to put into action wouldn't have nearly enough 'impact' if she used him. Her first instinct was to use the hugely-muscled, overly-masculine one...

...but then she realized it would be a lot more fun if her subject had to put up with that overbearingly male person's reactions to what was about to happen - which left the bearded guy. She'd picked the house the unit would be sent to almost at random, simply by hacking into a database of addressees and finding a place where all residents were male, so she really didn't know anything about the three guys - but, then again, she didn't have to, did she? They were men, and all me were alike...

With a grin on her too-bony face, Roz leaned forward and pressed a button on the complicated console in front of her...

* * * * *

Josh crossed his fingers and prayed that the.. whatever.. wouldn't screw up the show Bull was watching, as the blue power-on screen flickered...

A high-pitched electronic whine squealed through the room, sounding like the feedback of microphone-and-amp as the screen flickered,. and bolts of electricity began to run through the TV and the new device, the stench of melting electronics quickly filling the room.

"Holy shit...!" Josh swore, jumping up... just as those crackling arcs of electricity seemed to 'gather' themselves together - and lance out, shooting across the room and slamming into Mike's body. The high electronic whine soared louder and higher, seeming to lance through Bull and Josh's brain, as Mike's bearish form was completely engulfed in crackling blue energy, stealing him from sight.

The bizarre tableau lasted but a few second - and then the overloaded electrical system of the house gave in, the main breaker in the basement snapping over and plunging the room into a near-darkness that was broken only by the odorous flames from the burning television and.. whatever the hell that other box had been.

"Holy shit...!" Josh repeated, again, his eyes struggling to adapt to the sudden decrease in light as he peered towards where mike had been outlined in bright blue-white crackles of energy, now dissipated. "Mike...? Mike - are you okay...?"

Then his eyes adapted, allowing him to see the figure sitting on the floor - and Josh gasped, eyes widening as his jaw dropped.

This time, his 'Holy Shit...!' was echoed by Bull, as they both stared wide-eyed at the individual sitting on the floor in he same place and position that mike had been ion before the 'incident'.

However, this person bore very little resemblance to the bearish, bearded young man who'd been there a second ago. First of all, this person wasn't bearish, but slender - and these was certainly no beard, because she wasn't a young man, but a young woman. A tall, slender young woman with long waves of golden-blonde hair surrounding a heart-shaped face featuring big, bright-blue eyes and full, gloss-red lips. A young blonde woman crammed into a short, tight and very revealing red silk dress that nicely matched the rounded-toe platform pumps she wore, pumps that boasted a two-inch platform and eight-inch shaped heels, all in the same gleaming red patent leather. Pumps that would probably do quite interesting things to her long, shapely 'Dancer's Legs', the ones clad in black nylons that emphasized the sensual curves of her shapely, toned legs.

A tall, slender, sexily-dressed blonde woman with the most enormous breasts either man had ever seen, each one the size of a basketball - which wasn't hard to determine, as those massive, creamy globes were straining the front of her dress, pushing upwards and outwards in a way that left tons of creamy cleavage to be gawked at.

The huge-breasted blonde looked down at that cleavage, her huge, long-lashed eyes surveying the immense expanse of breast-flesh...

...and then sliding over to where a homemade cigarette lay on the floor, still slowly smoldering. With no expression on her sensual, heavily made-up face, the huge-breasted woman reached out and picked up the smoldering butt with her long, gloss-red nails on her hand, lifting it up and nonchalantly taking a deep drag from the cigarette, her bimbo-ish face 'inscrutable' rather than vapid.

"Where the fuck did the babe come from...?" Bull asked Josh in confusion, his heavy brow furrowing in unaccustomed thought. "I mean... where's Mike, and how'd she get there, instead?"

Josh shook his head, slowly. "I.. I think that is Mike, Bull..."

The huge, muscular man's deep-set eyes narrowed as he stared at the blonde, then at Josh. Suddenly, one massively muscled arm lashed out and grabbed Josh by the collar of his baggy jersey.

"What you tryin' to pull...?" He growled. "That ain't Mike - it's a broad with big boobs!"

"Both, actually..." The huge-breasted blonde replied calmly in a high-pitched soprano that would have sounded cartoonishly bimbo-like, if not for the fact that the tone was flat and mildly amused - just like Mike's usual tone.

Again, two sets of eyes swung to the massively-endowed woman - who was shifting position on the floor, apparently finding her new body more mobile than her old one, and so much easier to pull into a tightly crossed-leg position - especially since there was no 'package' to be 'folded, spindled or mutilated' by such a position.

"Fuck..!" Josh breathed, stunned. "What.. what the hell happened...?"

If either of the guys had doubted the blonde's 'true' identity, the doubt was dispelled by a patented Mike 'You know as much as I do' shrug, accompanied by another placid puff on the cigarette.

Bull eyed Josh, then the blonde, his mind slowly ticking over as he considered the situation. Finally, he loosened the grip on Josh's shirt, fairly certain that they weren't playing a joke on him - not that he understood what was going on, but they weren't ready to piss their pants, which would have been the usual case if they were knowingly trying to screw with him.

"Lemme get this straight..." Bull growled to the blonde. "You are Mike? Only, now you're a chick?"

The blonde combined a shrug and a nod into another trademark Mike expression, her face serene and unconcerned. With a supple, sensuous grace, she finished her cigarette and slid upwards in a single, sinuous movement, butting out the cigarette in an ashtray and walked over to the TV, yanking all the power cords from the slowly smoldering equipment out of the wall before turning and walking toward the kitchen, and the fuse-box that was in the 'mud room' just off of it - exactly what Mike would have done in that situation, though the bearish man would never have moved so easily - and seductively - atop high heels as this blonde woman did.

Josh stared after her, still stunned, trying to cope with the fact that this unconcerned, incredibly well-endowed woman was Mike...

...and then Bull, watching her walk away with an appreciative look, spoke. "Oh - okay. Mike's a babe, now."

Josh's eyes widened even further as he shifted his gaze from the supple, sexy blonde to the near-drooling Bull. His mouth worked soundlessly for a second...

...then, just as the huge-breasted new woman flipped the breaker and brought light back into the room, Josh found his voice.

"What the fuck is wrong with you two freaks!" Josh screamed, throwing his hands up in the air and pacing back and forth, eyes wild. "For God's sake, Mike, you were just turn into a huge-breasted bimbo! Would one of you two fuckin' idiots react!"

Bull frowned at Josh, then turned his attention to the woman coming out of the kitchen, addressing his question directly to her massive, firm new endowments.

"What the fuck's his problem?" Bull rumbled, smiling as he stared at her milky orbs. The blonde shrugged, which made Bull's smile widen as her huge new rack jiggled fetchingly from the motion.

"Arrrrrggghhhh!!!!" Josh screamed, making the windows rattle. Looking like a raving lunatic, he ran up to the tall new woman, grabbing her slender, smooth shoulders in his hands and shaking her vigorously. "Goddamn it - you're a fuckin' woman, you stupid asshole. A woman! A woooooo-man!"

Drained by his outburst, Josh stood there, panting, staring at the new woman as a thoughtful look crossed her face. Her huge, beguiling blew eyes narrowed slightly, and she ran a long, supple tongue tantalizingly over full, sensual lips before speaking...

"Yeah."

Josh stared at her - then turned away, muttering to himself and punctuating his soft curses with wild arm-movements.

"So - you, like, a chick from now on, or what...?" Bull asked, salivating as he eyed his friend's lush, ultra-buxom new figure. "'Cause, like, if you was gonna be a guy again tomorrow, I'd be grossed out to bang you - but you're really hot, and I'd fuck your brains out if you're gonna stay like that."

Josh whirled around, wide eyed, to watch as Mike shrugged again, her lush body undulating enjoyably from the action. She even found the question important enough to expand a word on: "Dunno."

"What!" Josh shouted in disbelief. "You're not actually talking about.... I mean..." He turned his wild eyes on Bull. "You're not suggesting that.. You'd..." Unable to finish the thought, he swung around to Mike's new curvaceous form. "You wouldn't.. I mean, you're not..."

Finally, he threw up his hands and went back to stalking about the room, searing, pausing a couple of time during his 'laps' to mutter over the ruined carcass of the TV. His face was getting steadily more red as he stalked back and forth, the volume of his swearing rising steadily...

...until a light touch on his arm made him stop and turn - to find himself staring at the new woman's face. "What?" Josh demanded, angrily. "What the fuck do you want now?"

The scrawny young man didn't know what to expect - but it certainly wasn't what happened. She kissed him. Gently, yet firmly. On the lips.

Josh stiffened - in more places than one. Her lips were soft and full on his own, a warm, feminine perfume enveloping him and playing with his senses as her lush, huge-busted new body breasted lightly, tantalizingly against his own...

"What the fuck are you doing...!" Josh screeched, yanking himself away from her so violently that he ricochet off the wall and spun in a half-circle before grabbing hold of his balance - physically, if not emotionally.

The new woman blinked, a faintly surprised look crossing her delightful new features. "Kissing you." "I know that!" Josh screamed. "For God's sake - why!"

The new woman drummed the fingers of one dainty hand against her thigh, a strange new look crossing her face as she considered how to answer his question. Finally, she shrugged, and actually used a whole sentence. "I'm suddenly very, very horny."

'And that doesn't bother you!" Josh shouted, stunned.

Now the woman looked confused, as if it should have been self-explanatory. "Yeah. That's why I was trying to seduce you." "NO!" Josh said shaking his head, "No, I didn't mean 'does being horny' bother you, I meant... That is... Aren't you... Arrghh!"

He turned his back on her, frustrated at the fact that neither Bull, nor Mike-who-was-now-a-woman seemed to understand just how twisted this whole situation was.

A huge, firm pair of breasts pushed into Josh's back, as long, supple arms wrapped around his slender frame, a pair of dainty hands lightly running across the bulge that was helplessly forming in his pants as her soft, sweet voice whispered into his ear.

"Don't you want me...?"

"Yes.." Josh whimpered - followed by a very uncertain. "No..."

There was nothing 'light' about her touch, now, as she fondled his rock-hard cock through the fabric, her lush body rubbing slowly up and down his, her huge, softly-firm new breasts rising and falling, rising and falling, rising and...

"God..." Josh moaned, eyes closed and hands clenched into fists. "Why.. why don't you fuck Bull.. He wants you..." "Him...?" The soft voice said - and it was filled with humorous disbelief. "C'mon, Josh - get real..."

Then the humor fled, and there was nothing but utter sincerity - and desire - in her voice as she whispered. "You, Josh. I want... you..." "...okay..."

With the whimpered, tortured agreement, the huge-breasted new woman - and swiftly unbuckled Josh's pants...

* * * * * MEANWHILE...

"What the...?" Roz gasped, staring wide-eyed at the smaller, less clear image that had come on the monitor when the power had been restored. She'd missed the black-out period, and it had taken a moment for her to get 'caught up' when the picture had come back...

...mainly because her mind just didn't want to accept what it was seeing. A man turned into a woman was supposed to break down completely, overwhelmed by being turned into a woman with an incredibly high sex drive and huge breasts. She should be in the corner, whimpering and crying as she helplessly begged her friends to fuck her.

What the hell was this...?

* * * * *

Josh moaned again as the new woman Mike had become slipped around in front of him, letting go of him to sweep her dress off in one fluid motion, revealing her smooth, silky skin and over-buxom figure to his bulging eyes.

"Like...?" She asked, teasingly, trailing one long-nailed finger over the smooth skin of a huge, perfect breast. Mike could only nod, mouth suddenly dry, while his hands fumbled at his clothing. He could have stripped faster, but he didn't want to take his eyes off the new woman, clad only in her heels and nylons, gently exploring her new body with obvious pleasure.

"Too slow..." The huge-breasted woman Mike had become said - and all-but-tore his clothes off, pushing against him as she did so, forcibly shoving him to the ground.

"So horny..." She said in way of explanation, grabbing his wrists and bringing his hands to her massive new tits as she straddled him, her hot new cunt only inches away from the throbbing head of his cock. Still holding his wrists, she let him fondle her massive new boobs, moaning in pleasure. "So very horny..."

Then she moved 'only inches' - and cried out as she sank her warm, tight new cunt over his hard, throbbing tool.

Josh didn't cry out - but he groaned in pleasure as her oh-so-tight cunt wrapped itself around his shaft. He was only of average size, equipment-wise - but her new womanhood, though wonderfully 'flexible', was tight and firm, and the friction was incredible...

...and it only got better as she began to ride him, thrusting herself up and down with the smoothly contoured muscles of her long, sexy legs. She still held his hands to her massive mounds, and he continued to kneed her breasts - rather spasmodically - as she bounced atop him, gasping and moaning.

"Hey - this is what I like..." Bull said, with a grin, watching the huge-breasted blonde 'bimbo' madly humping Josh, a look of both pleasure and satisfaction on her face as she fulfilled the new 'itch' she'd come to posses. With a huge grin on his slab-like features, he unbuckled his pants as he walked towards her, extracting his hug, rapidly hardening cock as he did so.

"No.. Not you..." She gasped as she rode Josh's slender body. "Go.. way..."

"Yeah - right..." Bull chuckled - and there was nothing pleasant in the sound as he eyed the new Mike the way a lion might eye raw steak. Closing the rest of the distance between them, he stood above Josh, his huge feet actually on either side of his roommate's head...

...and he wrapped his massive hands around the new woman's head and all-but-forced his massive, throbbing cock between her unwilling lips. She began to jerk, frantically, trying to pull herself free, but Bull's grip was unshakable..

...so she started to bite down, instead - just enough to let him know what she could do if he didn't pull his disgusting-tasting manhood from her mouth.

"Ouch - you bitch!" Bull shouted - and he tightened his grip.

Mike's huge new eyes bulged from her vapid-looking new face, the pain unbelievable as Bull's hands threatened to pop her skull as easily as another man might pop a grape. Tears streamed down her cheeks - and she realized that he was too dumb to take a warning. Even if she went ahead with what she'd intended to be a bluff, he'd probably crush her skull in direct response - maybe even before the full force of the pain made it's way up to his brain.

Tears streaming down her face, she eased off his cock and let him begin to 'face-fuck' her, painfully slamming his over-sized organ into her mouth as she twitched and bobbed atop Josh.

"Bull...!" Josh gasped. "What the fuck.. are you doing...? Let her go...!"

"Shut up, asshole..." Bull grunted - and kicked his foot sideways, slamming it against the side of his head...

* * * * *

Roz watched the small, out-of-focus image in horror.

This is what she'd wanted. First of all, the guy she'd turned into a woman hadn't been devastated - she'd taken to her new gender as easily as she'd been male...

...but it had put her in the position she was now in, being forced to give the huge man a blow job.

As much as Roz hated to admit it, it was obvious - if it wasn't for her, this never would have happened. It was her fault.

Well - maybe there was something she could do to correct it.

Praying to a God she didn't even realize she believed in, the woman reached out and pushed a button on the console...

* * * * *

"Oh, here I cum, baby - gulp it all down..." Bull grunted. "...or else..."

The new woman whimpered, pleasure from below almost canceled out by the shame, disgust and pain from above...

...and then the TV whined - and a bolt of energy lashed out from it.

The TV was a smoldering wreck, and the energy that flew from the TV wasn't nearly as powerful as the one that had hit Mike...

...but it was enough. Bull screamed as it ripped through him, yanking back from Mike just as he came - and instead of flooding her mouth, Bull's load sprayed all over her face and the upper slopes of her massive, firm breasts...

...even as his cock itself shrank away to nothing, folding itself into his body to form a tight new cunt - even as his chest swelled out, the hair from his broad chest drifting out from under the already-straining jersey. The top grew tighter and tighter, and Bull whimpered as the pain from his growing breasts increased with the strain...

...until, finally, the fabric of the jersey gave way, to reveal a pair of breasts already as large as volley-balls, and still growing.

Freed - and relieved - Mike picked up where she left off, throwing herself into satisfying her urges - which meant fucking a slightly concussed Josh, who wasn't complaining as his own pleasure began to build again...

Three screams ripped through the night. One from a huge-breasted new woman hitting her first female orgasm - and loving it. One from a scrawny, unpopular young man - who was having the best orgasm of his life....

...and one, horrified scream from a freakish creature huddled in the corner, looking like a huge, hairy man. except for his tight little pussy and his massive, beach-ball-sized breasts...

As the new Mike ('Mikki - I think I'll call myself Mikki from now on. ' she thought to herself) slumped contentedly into her lover's arms, the... thing that had been Bull felt its new urges rise up, desires to have sex with men in all sorts of positions and methods...

...and what little mind there was inside the body snapped, leaving only a gibbering, insane mass in the corner, frantically masturbating.

"Wha... What's happening..." Josh muttered, confused, still trying to cope with everything that had happened, so quickly and inexplicably.

"Don't worry, honey..." Mikki told him, snuggling closer and kissing him lightly...

* * * * * "...everything's just fine."

Roz sighed in relief. With the second bolt, the image from the TV had faded completely - but there was still sound, even if muffled and tinny, and it told her that she'd managed to patch her massive mistake - at least, as best she could.

Lowering her head, she thanked God for that.

Picking up the phone that was on the console next to her, Roz punched out 9-1-1 onto the number pad - then negligently let the phone itself fall to hang at the end of it's cord.

As the voice of the emergency dispatcher came through the phone, tinny and ignored, Roz nodded to herself, knowing that turning herself in was the right thing to do - she just had something to do before the cops got here. After all, she wouldn't be able to live with herself if her technology fell into somebody else's hands, and was used to... to do exactly what she'd originally tried to do, the thing she was now turning herself in for.

When the dispatcher heard the sounds through the phone, she immediately dispatched four cruisers to the address on her screen, not knowing that the heavy crunching noises and the grunts she was hearing came from the fact that Roz was busily chopping at her equipment with a fire ax.

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: A self described party guy, go to the home of a group of beautiful women thinking that he is in for the party of a lifetime, but they intend to change him into a babe who is the life of the party.

Ready To Party

By Gunslinger

Gravel crunching under the tires of his lovingly maintained jet-black '89 Trans Am, Derek Dobson hunched close to the wheel, peering closely at the rutted driveway and muttering vile imprecations about the dust dirtying up his car's high-gloss shine.

Still muttering, the handsome, broad-shouldered young man eased his car off what passed for a driveway and into the large, grassy area masquerading as a parking lot. The burbling rumble of the engine died as he shut off the ignition, and the sandy-haired twenty-year-old slid out from behind the wheel and slammed the door shut behind him.

The soft sighing of the wind that ruffled his tousled mane of sandy-blond hair competed with the susurrating of waves striking the bluffs. The late afternoon sky, and inverted blue bowl only lightly touched by drifting clouds, spread out before him receding to a horizon where it met the Pacific Ocean.

"Okay..." He admitted to himself, almost against his will, "This is pretty damned cool."

Smirking to himself, the toned and tanned 6' 2" young man began walking with his customary swagger towards the building set atop the low bluffs - a cedar and ledger stone 'A'-frame beach house perched at the very apex of the bluffs, with a huge wooden deck that ran in terraced levels to the sandy private beach below.

As a self-anointed 'Party Guru', Derek had to admit that he'd seen few places that could match this particular location for 'ultimate party potential'. Two of the four terraced levels of deck boasted a hot-tub, and there was a sauna accompanying the one halfway down. There was, of course, the beach, perfect for building a bonfire, or the quintessential midnight 'skinny-dip' - and if you didn't like braving the slightly chill waters of the ocean, there was a large 'grotto'-style plunge pool nearby.

"Man, I'm gonna have some fun tonight!" Derek told himself, smiling gleefully as he rubbed his hands together in anticipation - and then, as he neared the house's front door, his smile faded and his face took on a dark, intense cast: "...now that these stupid bitches have finally gotten around to inviting me to one of their parties..."

The thought stopped him cold, halfway up the steps leading towards the front door. A puzzled look on his face, he turned and looked at the grass parking area.

His car sat alone, in solitary splendor.

He considered this for a moment - and then grinned.

"Well, about time!" He said to himself, assuming they'd invited him up to give him a 'private preview' of what made their parties so incredibly popular.

Still smiling broadly, he finished ascending the steps and knocked on the door.

To say that the person who opened the door was one of the most stunning young women in the county would have been redundant - for the sheer sexual attractiveness of the women who hosted the parties at this beach-house were exactly how it had garnered it's fame.

In this particular case, it was a slender, pale woman with creamy skin and rich, red hair that fell in loose waves around a face of luminous beauty. Her svelte-yet-curvaceous body was well displayed by the simple pastel-green bikini wrap-around skirt in a gauzy material the same shade, with beaded fringes. She stood with poised grace, balanced atop the slender four-inch heels of her sandal-style shoes.

"Derek..." She said, breathily. "I'm glad you decided to come. I'm Erica. Come on in..."

Derek had wrangled and bedeviled, cheated and outright lied in an attempt to get in on the 'action' at this beach house, ever since he'd first heard the rumors six months ago. In that time, the rumors had grown and re-grown, to the point that he'd started to think they had to be at least a little exaggerated - but now, seeing the stunning red-head before him, he knew they'd been the simple truth...

...and for the very first time in his life, Derek felt the faintest hint of something very much like humility.

Derek firmly believed that he was the sole reason for the creation of the universe. He quite literally expected it to give him everything he wanted and needed. He spent his life in one, eternal party, interested only in self-gratification. It would have seemed likely somebody so self-centered would have accumulated a long list of enemies, but the simple truth was, Derek was almost as much a 'Living Party God' as he believed himself to be. Stunningly handsome, gifted with both natural wit and grace, he enlivened any party he deigned to join, and he was an incredibly skilled sexual athlete who 'took pride in his work'. He had a natural flair and sense of presence, and could charm the proverbial Eskimo into buying a refrigerator. He made his living as a 'Party Guru' - Wealthy young men and women with more money than social skill would hire him as a consultant and 'plated guest' to make sure their party was a hit. Derek had always just accepted this as his due, certain that no party could possibly be 'perfect' without him there...

...but, faced with this ravishing creature, he actually found himself momentarily contemplating the idea that maybe, just maybe, women this gorgeous, in a party house this perfect, might not actually require him for their parties to be ideal.

Then the 'momentary insanity' passed, and Living Party God Derek gave her his most charming smile and a slight incline of his head.

"Even were it to take me straight into the gaping mouth of hell, anywhere you lead, I shall follow." He said - and, such was his skill and personal presence, he could get away with that sort of line without it sounding the least bit contrived.

"Well, I'll see if I can't find a more.. enjoyable destination." Erica said, actual taking in stride the blinding charm he was unleashing in her direction - almost as if she believed it was nothing less than her due!

Again, for the faintest fraction of a second, Derek found himself wondering if, perhaps, maybe it wasn't her due. If she, in fact, wasn't nearly his equal, a Goddess to his Godhood...

...but, no, of course not.

After all, she was merely a woman, and, even in the highly unlikely event that she was his equal in all other ways, that would forever make her automatically inferior.

So, his adamant manly confidence in evidence, he followed Erica into the large, high-ceilinged living room that took up so much of the buildings floor plan...

...and once more felt that faint wavering doubt, for while no one woman, no matter how gorgeous and graceful, could ever equal him - what of a dozen such women...?

Well, thirteen including Erica...

"Why don't you stand right here...?" Erica suggested to him, as the dozen other incredibly sexy women eyed him with open smiles of anticipation on the faces.

That look banished the last doubts from Derek's mind. Obviously they were eager to see him, and that fact meant he was right - and if they acknowledged they 'owed' him for the long delay in inviting him to where he so obviously belonged, why should he have any doubts?

Almost as if reading his mind, a curvaceous, dusky-skinned Hispanic woman said: "We've heard so much about you, Derek - and, believe me, we all agree that you belong here..."

Smiling Derek took the position indicated, the thirteen women closing in a circle around him - which, he thought, was a bit strange, but he wasn't going to complain.

"Oh, yes - you definitely belong at this house, as part of our parties." A willowy blonde said in a sexy British accent. "Everything we've heard about you, everything we've been told - it's so perfectly obvious..."

"It certainly is, girls!" Erica said - in a strange tone of command that, oddly, only made the other women's smiles grow more eager, more... hungry.

Well, well, well - all of them? Derek hoped the party tonight wasn't planned to start for awhile - even a Living God would take time to service, and be serviced by, more than a dozen women...

"...and so, all we need to do is get him ready to party!" Erica finished, generating a low and somehow hungry chuckle from the other women.

Derek blinked.

"Huh...?" He grunted, belatedly, trying to figure out what sort of sexual innuendo it could be - but by that time, the thirteen women had started to...

...to...

...chant?

Yes, 'chant' was the only way to describe it. Standing in a circle around him, their hands now rising, palms open, towards the sky, the women were definitely chanting in a low, rhythmic tone, words of a musical language unlike Derek had ever hear spilling hypnotically from their lips.

"Okay - what's the story...?" He asked, reigning in the anger that arose from his confusion. He took a step forward...

...or, at least he tried to.

He didn't move so much as a fraction of an inch.

"What the hell...?!" He shouted, letting his anger free. "What have you done to me? What's going on?" The women... ignored him completely.

Finished with their chanting, they gathered in a group about halfway down the room. They seemed perfectly calm and relaxed, completing ignore the steadily louder and more epithet-laden shouts he hurled in their direction. They simply talked amongst themselves, quite often breaking into low, hungry chuckles that he didn't like the sound of one bit.

Perhaps as many as twenty minutes passed, perhaps as few as ten - Derek couldn't sure. All he knew was that it was more than enough time for his anger to begin to transmute into something else: Fear.

"Please..." he begged, as the women broke out of the group and approached him, hungry smiles on their lips. "Why are you doing this to me...?"

"Because..." Erica answered him, "...we're sick and tired of you. Generally, we don't invite men like you to our parties - men who see women solely as sexual objects. Of all such men in the area, however, you are by far the worst. We can taste your slime-coated aura, feel you chauvinistic presence moving about - and we don't like it one bit. So... we're going to get rid of that nasty, distasteful annoyance once and for all..."

Then she simply snapped her fingers - and Derek couldn't even speak anymore. Instead, he was completely and utterly helpless, unable to move or speak, to protest or fight back - and all that self-certainty that had marked every waking moment of his life drained from him like water from a broken pot.

He could do nothing at all as the women stripped him naked. Easily they moved his arms to pull his shirt off, with little effort lifted his legs one at a time to remove his pants and underwear - yet, try as hard as he might, he could not command those self-same limbs to obey him.

Now nude, he stood helpless as the women once again surrounded him and, raising their arms, began to chant anew...

...and, voiceless, he was denied even the release of screaming in shocked horror as he felt his body begin to change.

His very first impression was that he'd been put on some sort of escalator - a strange thought, but not 'crazy', as it was the closest analogy to what he'd ever experienced before - standing on an escalator going down and looking back over his shoulder to see the people 'rise up' behind him.

It took a scant second for him to realize the truth of the matter - the reason the women seemed to be slowly 'rising up' was, in fact, because his point-of-view was shrinking.

He was getting shorter.

Desperately, Derek struggled to scream, to show his fear, hatred and revulsion at what was happening to his 'perfect' physique - but though he could easily breathe, he could not utter the slightest sound, other than the rapid, horrified pant that was completely uncontrolled.

As he struggled with his traitorous body, Derek continued to shrink until his eye-level was a few inches below that of even the shortest of the women standing around him - and she was wearing two-and-a-half inch heels...

Then, having 'shrunk' by growing shorter, Derek's body began to 'shrink' by growing thinner.

Perhaps 'thinner' wasn't the right word. He could actually feel the mass of his body melting away, but that included some of his skeletal mass, as well - he was becoming more 'petite', his bone structure becoming finer, more delicate.

There was no adequate words Derek's spinning mind could come up with to describe the sensation as more and more of his mass simply vanished, leaving him smaller in build and much more delicately formed...

...much more femininely formed.

Even with his over-stressed mind skittering frantically from one thought to the next, it didn't take much for him to figure out what fate was being bestowed upon him. Though he could not see his changing body, he could feel it - and he knew which parts of his body had suffered more loss than others, giving him a mental picture of a body that could only be moving inexorably towards a feminine state.

"Not bad, not bad..." Erica mused, while Derek stood in helplessly silent horror and humiliation. "Four foot nine, delightfully delicate build... but I think that sort of detracts from the look, don't you?"

Where she pointed left no doubt as to which 'that' she was referring to - and silent as he might have been, Derek nevertheless screamed in the depths of his own mind as the circle of women chuckled agreement with Erica - and he felt his manhood begin to draw back into his body, where he had no doubt whatsoever within his horrified mind it would neatly form itself into a new and undoubtedly functional womanhood.

"Yes, that's better - but that haircut's rather boyish, isn't it...?" Erica 'prompted' the other women - and, inside his/her screaming mind, Derek knew that these comments were unnecessary - just another form of psychological torture.

Torture it was, too - as was the silky feeling, almost as if wind were stirring his/her hair around his/her neck and shoulders. There was no wind, however - it was the feeling of his/her hair arranging itself in a way more 'pleasing' to the women. Which, of course, translated into 'more humiliating' for Derek.

Such as:

"Short, slender, with beautiful hair, undeniable a fully functional example of femininity... but she's still a bit lacking, I'd say." Erica pronounced judgment - and, for 'a bit lacking', she held cupped hands near her chest, indicating without a doubt where she thought the newly feminine Derek was 'lacking'...

...and, as she uncapped her hands, Erica snapped her fingers, which allowed the agonized 'Noooo...!' whirling around the new woman's mind to escape from her newly slender throat.

In a soft, high-pitched, and undeniably feminine voice.

Then the new 'she' felt her chest slowly begin to swell outward - an indescribable sensation as weight and mass slowly built upon her chest. Locked in position, unable to look down, Derek couldn't see what was happening - and, somehow, only being able to feel it made it far, far worse.

"Please, I'm so sorry, I've learned my lesson..." The petite new woman begged, words almost incoherent as she tripped over one another in her rush to get the words out. "Don't do this to me, I'll never do it again, I promise I'll do anything, be anything you want, if only you'll change me BACK...!"

For a brief second, the new woman actually thought the 'coven' was heeding her pleas - for her viewpoint began slowly rising up again. That brief but bright hope made the disappointment that followed all the worse, as she realized that what was happening was that high-heeled shoes were forming on her feet. She could also feel other clothing forming around her new body, even over her still- swelling bust-line.

"You know what's really going to get to you, Debbie...?" Erica asked the new woman, her voice almost conversational, but a wicked gleam in her eyes. "We didn't choose your new form - you did. We simply pulled this, full-formed, right out of your minds, the very ideal of what you not-so-secretly believe all women really want to be..."

Which was why, when a second later Erica snapped her fingers to conjure up a gilt-framed full-length mirror, the newly re-christened 'Debbie' already knew exactly what her eyes would see:

In general build, and most especially in the bone-structure of her face, hands and feet, the woman who stared back at her in wide-eyed horror was most definitely 'petite' - almost elfin, in fact. Though her hips were well-proportioned for her body, her very fine-formed skeletal structure meant she wasn't particularly broad-hipped... but the hourglass figure was perfectly maintained by the wasp-like waist that rose above it.

The top flare of the 'hourglass' was her new breasts - and, seeing them, they weren't 'unbelievably massive', as the unaccustomed weight felt to her - but they were undeniably large, not to mention firm and round.

It wasn't too hard to determine these facts about her new physique. She wore a pastel-pink sleeveless knit sweater with a mock turtleneck, and a pleated white tennis skirt. In and of itself, not a overwhelmingly 'sexy' outfit - but it more than did the job of highlighting her slender-yet-curvaceous body.

She might have stood a bare four-foot-nine, height-wise... but from the ground to the very top of her head required at least six feet of clearance, due to both the massively 'bouffant' head of pale-gold hair and the white rounded-toe platform pumps with their towering nine-inch heels.

In short, (as if that wasn't a pun itself), the new Derek was her own ideal of the perfect 'party doll'.

Not a Beauty Queen - though she was, in fact, quite gorgeous. Blonde and curvaceous, yet without the vapid look of a bimbo. Not a 'slut' - but nevertheless presenting the appearance of a woman who was hardly sexually inhibited. Dressed neither cheaply nor trashily, yet in clothing, hairstyle and make-up, quite obviously emphasizing her femininity. All in all, the 'best' attributes of any woman you might hope to find at a party like this, without any of the 'worst'...

...and 'Debbie' had a sinking sense of certainty that mere appearances weren't going to be enough for the thirteen wickedly-grinning women surrounding her.

She was right.

"You know the absolute worst part of what we're doing to you, from your point of view...?" Erica asked - and the thought that there could be something 'worst' about a situation that seemed all bad to Debbie made her want to shiver, had her immobilized body allowed it.

"This is all 'prologue'." Erica explained, 'sweetly'. "You see, we can 'feel' and 'taste' auras, and yours is utterly disgusting. Normally, we don't 'go after' people, but just having you in the same state as us leaves us with a constant bad taste in our metaphorical mouths. All we really want to do is get rid of that - but to do so, we have to 'enclose' your aura within a shield..."

"...and...?" Debbie prompted in a terrified squeak.

"...and, this creates a 'feedback loop'." Erica explained. "Your aura is a projection of what you want in a woman, and what you mistakenly already see in women. As such, it 'overlays' your perceptions of the world. When the shield is emplaced, however, it'll act as a mirror, and instead of overlaying how you see others, it will overlay how you see yourself."

Erica's evil grin widened. "The 'worst' part of it, for you, is this: As this 'feedback' would give you the same urges and new needs whether or not you were male, or ugly, or anything... you'll actually end up being grateful to us for giving you this body before we invert your aura!"

"No...!" Debbie gasped, instinctively - not out of reasoned disbelief, but for two reasons: one, her still-male ego refused to accept that it could happen, and; two she already knew how she 'viewed' women, still believed it to be 'right' despite Erica's disclaimers to the contrary... and yet, at that instant, was wishing she held radically different views on the 'proper' role of femininity in the world, for she knew they were about to be turned against her...

Then Erica went ahead and did just that. Stepping close to the still-immobilized woman, she placed her hands lightly on Debbie's finely-formed new temples, and whispered a single word.

It was as if an atom bomb had gone off in Debbie's mind - or, as there was no physical damage, then at least detonated in the neither realm in which the thoughts in that mind dwelt.

Like an explosion, it vaporized some of those thoughts...and, after the 'blast', other thoughts, some broken and disfigured, bounced and rattled into different places than where they'd started.

The new woman's blue eyes widened - and she shrieked.

"No! Oh, God - No...!" She screamed, staggering back a few steps and clapping her hands over her eyes, as if to try and shut out the images deep inside her mind's eye. The fact that she could once more move registered faintly on Debbie's mind, but it was an also- ran to what else was registering on her.

No matter how desperately Debbie still wanted to be horrified by the body that had been forced upon her, she couldn't be - not any more. Now, helplessly, she thought of her new form... and shivered in unwilling delight.

Her thoughts had been 'inverted'. As Derek, this is the woman he'd felt sure women had truly wanted to be, the form he'd thought all women really wanted... and now, her thoughts helplessly redirected inwards, it was the body she really wanted, the most 'beautiful' body - and she had it.

Which, understandably, made her feel 'good' - both proud and happy... yet, rearranged as her thoughts might have been, her memories had been left intact, so she had the horror of knowing that she didn't want to want the body she now had...

...not to mention the horror of knowing Erica had been utterly correct with her prediction, for if she'd not been given this body, when her thoughts had been 'inverted', she would have found her old, male body utterly hideous, and she would have hated having it.

This knowledge did nothing to make what she was going through any easier to take - and that was just the tip of the iceberg, for all of her previous thoughts and views had been likewise altered. Now there were things she wanted to do with her new body that were logical and consistent with her old male thoughts about this 'perfect woman' - and yet, at the same time, were diametrically opposed to anything she would have wanted to do as a man.

"Please, no..." She gasped, looking imploringly at Erica. "I.. I don't want to be a red-hot party babe. I don't want to feel proud about knowing men will find me sexy... and the knowledge that I can please them as well or better than any other woman they could meet. I don't want to feel happy when I think about just how great a cock-sucker I can be. I.. I don't want to feel eager to 'show my stuff', to get a man so hot and horny that he'll literally beg me to let him fuck me."

Erica laughed, and said: "Liar." She was right.

"Okay, then I don't want to want these things!" Debbie screamed at the stunning red-head. "I don't want to feel these new feelings! I don't want to think these new thoughts. Even now, just standing here, I can't help but stand in a way that helps emphasize how sexy and feminine I am, because to try and hide my perfect figure feels 'wrong' - and I can't help feeling so damned good about how hot I am. Please, make it all stop...!"

"These feelings your experiencing, my darling Debbie...?" Erica said sweetly, almost lovingly. "That's what you were 'forcing' into our minds. Other women, by little things you did, certain ways you said things, subliminally picked up your opinion that they weren't 'quite right'... but, since we moved here, us thirteen women have been feeling your 'opinions' of women thrust in our minds day and night. Now, you're the only one who has to deal with them."

"But... it's not fair..." The new woman gasped, hating the fact that she didn't 'really' want fair, because she so loved this body. In fact, it was hard for her to say these things, to plead for her old body and life back, because, whether she wanted to or not, she loved her new body and the thoughts of the new life she could lead with it. "What about all the other men - are you going to do this to them too, so you don't have to put up with their thoughts in your heads...?"

The thought really, really bothered Debbie - because, if large groups of men were turned into women, there'd be less men to appreciate how perfect she was, and more competition to get to fuck the really hot guys who were left...

"Don't you get it yet?" Erica asked - not snidely, but almost commiserating. After all, with Debbie locked safely up in her own reversed fantasies, she wasn't the hated Derek any more, just another woman, albeit one with unusually powerful 'needs'. "Other men don't 'force' their body images and ideals on us... or not many, anyway, and of the ones that do, you were the worst by several orders of magnitude. While most men have their 'ideal woman' fantasies, they aren't actively trying to make them come true in real life... whereas you couldn't seem to understand that just because you fantasized about something, that didn't mean the world should make it happen. Well, you could say that you were incredibly lucky, because it has happened, and the perfect woman you dream about now exists... and she'll act exactly the way you want."

The doorbell rang - and Erica smiled.

"That'll be the first of our guests." She said. "Come along, Debbie - you'll want to meet the guys..."

She tried. You had to give her that - though incredibly strong, the new thoughts and urges and feelings Debbie had unwillingly imposed upon herself because she viewed women as nothing more than party favors to please men weren't quite powerful enough that she could claim herself to be 'controlled' by them. She had free will, and she tried very, very hard to keep from acting exactly the way her male self felt she should act.

The problem was - being the woman she imagined she should be just felt So Damned Good...

She was introduced to each of the guests as 'the new girl' - which was more accurate than any of the guests could even begin to guess at. Struggling to fight back her new urges, Debbie at first seemed a bit... well, certainly not 'shy', but equally as certain, she wasn't 'coming on' to the guys. However, as time passed and Erica introduced her as 'Debbie Derekson' to more and more men, she found herself not just nodding to the new guests, but shaking their hands. Then stepping closer to them and inviting her to call her 'Dee Dee'. Then adding at little shoulder-pull-back and chest-thrust to the offer, making it clear that her 'nickname' was not only her initials, but her cup-size.

The problem was, it wasn't as if she didn't want to do these things - she did, very much so. It was her old, male memories that were fighting to remind her that this new life was forced upon her, that she didn't want to be the woman she now was - but being the woman she now was made acting like the woman she now was feel so wonderful. As more men smiled at her, obviously attracted, she felt prouder and happier - and steadily more aroused. Soon her words were liberally spiced with sexual innuendo, and her every move and pose was willfully designed to be as sexy as possible.

All things considered, it's actually quite amazing that it took nearly three full hours before she had her first sexual experience as a woman.

It all happened step by step, and she was aware of every new 'level'... but each one seemed so natural and so right, even as she struggled to remind herself she was 'really' a man and she didn't want to be the 'party doll' of her own imagination, she was moving right towards that goal.

First, it was just enjoying the attention men happened to show her as she wandered around the party. She'd tried to 'hide out' in the room Erica had told her was now hers, but she had been driven from it by an intense yearning that had become almost physically painful. Alone, with nothing to do, listening to the sound of people having fun at a party - it had been too much to bear.

Then, slowly, barely aware of it, she found herself doing things to draw more and more of that male attention to her. Eventually, a bit confused and wondering how, exactly it had happened she found herself sitting with a group of very attentive guys, sipping on a cooler and laughing with them - even as she posed and preened to show off her body.

When a man had touched her, it had felt very good - but she'd moved to break the contact.

Then next time it had happened, she'd waited longer before ending the wonderful sensation - and the third time, she convinced herself it was harmless, because it was 'over the clothes'...

...and it felt even better when, a while later in a dark corner, a man's hand had slipped under her sweater to fondle her firm new breasts. She had ended that... after a while.

It had felt wonderful, though - which was why it was so hard for her to resist letting another guy fondle her - and when she tried to tell him to stop, that she wasn't planning on taking it any further, she found it very hard to do, since she was kissing him hungrily, bolts of pleasure thundering through her body.

It was, at this point, that she expected what was about to happen as inevitable - for with hands all over her body, and hers all over his, the 'logical' next step was to finish removing their clothes and 'get down to business'.

Which was how the once-male 'Dee Dee' found herself in her new bedroom, getting fucked good and hard by a man she'd met just hours before - and hearing her own screams of intense pleasure as he did so, and knowing they weren't feigned or faked.

She did enjoy getting fucked. In fact, it felt fantastic - and, even as she hated herself for it, she couldn't lie to even herself. She wanted more. Lots more. Being 'Dee Dee' was like dropping a kid in a candy store.

As Derek, he'd enjoyed partying, but wished he didn't have to 'play the game' to get the pleasure of sex. That's why he had 'invented' Debbie. Now, as her, she could experience incredible forms of pleasure in a nearly never-ending cornucopia, with men of all times eager to let her gather this pleasure - and she simply couldn't refuse the offers. Though her male memories tainted it with horror and disgust over what she'd 'willing' become, even that male part of her brain couldn't lie to itself. With all this pleasure openly available, how could she stop herself? How could she resist?

The real problem, of course, was the knowledge that she could. As she let men continue to seduce her, to fondle and kiss her, to fuck her or have her suck their cocks, the absolutely worst part was the knowledge that any time she could simply say 'stop'. She was capable of doing so, and the men the 'coven' had invited might have been annoyed, but they were all 'nice' enough that if she told them to stop, they would.

She was doing all of this voluntarily - because she wanted all this pleasure, no matter the self-disgust and self-hatred she felt each time she willingly let herself be the 'perfect woman' she'd envisioned, getting intense emotional and physical pleasure from being so able to give men pleasure.

Dee Dee spent the night fucking and sucking men, of using her body to arouse men, and letting them play with her like some sort of sex toy... and she hated how much she loved each and every second of it.

Then, in the gray-light of dawn, as the party finally wore down and she snuggled into her new bed to get some sleep before having to get ready for the next evening's party, she wept silently to herself, knowing she'd do it all over again... and hate loving it all again, too.

Even as she fell asleep, she couldn't deny the truth - that, if not for the fact that she was still human and needed to sleep, she'd still be looking for more of that pleasure. Though hating what she'd done all night, she'd loved it even more - but it hadn't even come close to sating her desire for pleasure.

Despite everything, she was still 'ready to party'...

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: A young guy passing through a strange town, finds himself captured and offered up to the local Werewoman who transforms him into a Werewoman with an appetite for sex.

Ready To Were

By Gunslinger

"You guysh're the besht..." Dave slurred, happily, weaving his way down the darkened trail with one hand on the broad back of his new bestest buddy Jim, while Jim's twin brother, Joe, held Dave's belt from his position behind him, keeping him from falling.

"Shhh...!" The tall, broad-shouldered brother in the lead hissed back, a nervous fear in his voice as he glanced around. "Keep your voice down!" The other beefy brunet echoed from behind him.

"Why...?" Dave asked, blinking. "Where we goin', anyway. You said I was gonna get me some..." "You are!" Jim snapped back, quietly. "Now shut up!"

"Okay." Dave said, agreeably.

After all, weren't Jim and Joe just the greatest guys ever? Hell, the entire town was full of great people.

Of course, when Dave's car had broken down while he was cruising the back roads of West Virginia, looking for a good place to do some rock climbing, he'd been less than enthusiastic about the tiny, middle-of-nowhere little town of Modac.

However, his unexpected good fortune had begun to become apparent almost before the distaste he'd felt at the sight of the tiny, run-down town had even begun to sink in.

He'd seen one of the sexiest women in his life ankling her way out of the general Store next to the grimy one-bay gas station his car had been towed to.

In fact, the tiny little town had turned out to boast some of the hottest, most drop-dead sexy women the tanned, toned blond had ever seen in his twenty-two years on the planet. Not that every woman in town was a real hottie, of course, but there was quite a few of them - and these hot babes knew how to dress and act, too.

In fact, he'd got the feeling more than once that some of the women were doing all they could to keep themselves from just throwing themselves at him - and that restraint seemed to be because all of those hot babes seemed to be either married or 'going steady' with one of the guys from town.

At first, the barely-restrained sexuality of some of these women had worried Dave. Not that he was adverse to the idea of bedding any of them, of course - it was the thought of their men-folk coming after him with a shotgun that cooled the handsome young man's jets.

However, the town had proved to be most hospitable. Sure, it was a real backwards town, so backwards that Dave swore that the townspeople were all afraid of the dark, the way they cleared off the streets as soon as the sun went down - but they sure were hospitable.

First, they'd been really worried that people might be missing him. Though the tiny town did have electricity, it didn't boast a single phone, and they'd been worried he'd be missed. He'd had to assure them that nobody even knew he'd gone off for the day on a whim.

Their concerns assuaged, they'd begun giving him all the free booze he could sink at the bar where most of the town seemed to be fearfully huddled against the night - and for a hard-drinking, hard-playing stud like Dave, that was a lot of booze.

Booze that provided all-the-more fuel to the fantasies conjured up when Joe and Jim offered to take him to meet 'the hottest babe around', assuring him sex like nothing he'd ever had before.

Even in his inebriated state, Dave found it a little odd that the hottest babe around lived out in the woods surrounding the small town - but with his pecker rock-hard, he was more than willing to stumble down the trail that was fairly well-lit by the silvery light of the full moon, waiting for the boys to make good on their promise.

They stepped out of the tree-line into a small clearing, and the big, bearded twins in matching jeans and flannel shirts led him out into the center of that glade, where he peered around owlshly.

"Thish the place...?" Dave asked...

...and was stunned when Joe grabbed him with his big, ham-hock hands, and his twin brother began ripping Dave's clothes off.

"What are you doing...?" Dave demanded, beginning to sober quickly as Jim stripped off his clothes. Dave struggled in Joe's grip, but despite the fact he was athletically built, the golden-haired young man couldn't even budge the massive mountain of man's grip.

"We're sorry, Dave - but we've given up enough Townies to her..." Joe said, as the last of Dave's clothes were torn away, and the twins began to grapple him to the ground.

"Yeah." Jim said in an odd tone of voice, half-regretful, half-lustful. "Besides, once it's over with... you won't mind at all..."

As he spoke, he was tying Dave down. There were four stakes driven into the ground with leather strips attached to them, and it was with these that the twins secured him, leaving him staked out spread-eagled on the ground.

"What the hell's going on?" Dave demanded, almost completely sober now as his heart thundered in his chest. He shivered in the chill night wind. "What are you guys talking about?"

"We're sorry..." Jim said, rising.

"Yeah..." Joe agreed - with a strange grin. "...but not enough that we're not going to be waiting eagerly for you back in town."

Trading a strange chuckle, the twins ignored Dave's shouted threats and pleas, and quickly disappeared back into the tree-line. Dave continued to shout after them, writhing vainly in his bounds - until it suddenly occurred to him that, naked and helpless, drawing attention to himself might not be the best thing in the world.

He shut up and peered wildly about - and as if in answer of his fears, the bushes edging the tree-line stirred. Swallowing back an unmanly scream of fear, he watched wide-eyed as the bushes parted...

...and the most utterly enchanting woman he'd ever seen emerged.

She was one of the sexiest women he'd ever seen, her naked body nearly flawless, her sensual face framed by long, thick black hair

- but aside from her supple, sensuous body being sexy, the phrase 'enchanted' was literal.

In that first second when she emerged from the bushes, and, despite his confusion and fear, his cock suddenly went rock-hard as her palatable aura of sensuality hit him, he found his gaze drawn to her eyes, eyes that were an incredible shade of silvery-blue, like distilled moonlight...

...and a strange calm descended over him.

He watched, bemused, as she approached him. Her body moved with a supple, seductive sway, her taut, firm 'C'-cup breasts swaying enticingly with every gliding step, the dark nipples swollen erect in the cool air - and despite the fact that his was more solidly erect than he'd ever been in his life, Dave didn't 'feel' turned on, instead floating in a strange, emotionless daze.

"Mmmm..." The slender, petite woman moaned, licking her full lips as she eyed his naked form. Slowly, she sank down beside him, her slender, perfect bodies stroking his hard manhood.

"You're not from town." She said, stating a fact, as she eyed him with a strange, sad lust, unconsciously licking her oh-so-delectable lips again.

"No." Dave agreed in a dazed voice, unable to tear his eyes from her gorgeous face, even as her hands continued to fondly his almost painfully erect manhood. "My car broke down."

"they much prefer when that happens." She told him. "It's bad enough with the Townies, who deserve it, but with poor men like you... Oh, how I wish I could resist. How I could spare you from this fate..."

Still in that dream-like state, Dave didn't ask her what she meant - he only watched in a sort of numb appreciation as, with a half-sad sigh, she lowered her full lips to his rock-hard cock and began eagerly sucking his cock.

She seemed to enjoy it enormously - even more than Dave did, with the fantastic pleasure her eager and skilled lips and hands were giving him muted by his strangely befogged senses. In fact, that strange trance-like state also muted the strange, mildly unpleasant 'tugging/itching' sensations that began to spread throughout his body. Head raised, Dave peered over his own supine body, watching her dark-haired head bob up and down as she slurped and sucked...

...and then he noticed that it was getting harder to see her sucking his cock with such enjoyment, because of the twin, fleshy mounds swelling up from his ribcage.

"Huh..." He noted in bemused wonderment. "I'm growing tits..."

He thought, vaguely, that the fact that rapidly swelling boobs were growing on his chest should probably bother him - but in the befogged mental state he was in, 'worry' simply wasn't possible, so he only watched numbly as the twin masses of softly firm flesh continued to build on his chest.

In fact, he couldn't even worry when he realized that those other strange sensations running through his body indicated that the big tits still growing on his chest weren't the only changes occurring to him.

It was a realization that was verified a moment later when he slipped his hand from the restraint that had held it, finding that the hand was now small enough to do so - since it was smaller, slimmer, and with steadily growing nails tipping its feminine fingers.

"I'm turning into a woman..." Dave told himself dreamily, utterly sure he should be panicking over this inexplicable transformation, but unable to work up the necessary emotions to do so. Instead, he only 'admired' his steadily more attractively feminine hands for a moment - and then brought them down to touch his swelling bust.

Sighing softly in pleasure, he continued to play with the still-growing breasts rapidly outracing his still-shrinking hands ability to cup them - until, with a strange, almost tearing sensation, he came longer and harder than he ever had in his life...

...and the strange woman lifted her face from David's damp new womanhood, licking her lips clean of the last load of cum that Dave would ever produce.

Sadly, she watched as the still-bemused new woman played with the massive, round tits rising from her slender new ribcage, a faint look of self-loathing marring her perfect features.

"At least the curse spares you from knowing who - and what - you were before the transformation." She told the huge-breasted new woman, softly. "Tell me, my accursed sister - what is your name...?"

"I'm.. Dave..." She moaned back, softly, amazed at how much pleasure she was getting from squeezing and fondling the huge tits - and wondering in fuzzy surprise why she wasn't disgusted by the fact that she was imagining a man's hands doing the job for her. "What happened? How did I turn into a woman...?"

The woman jerked, a stunned look on her face. "You... remember being a man?" She gasped.

"Yeah..." Dave agreed, releasing her enjoyable new tits with a dim regret and slowly sitting up, feeling her new boobs sway and jiggle on her chest. "I feel really weird, though - kind of, I don't know.. dreamy."

"That's because I'm here..." The woman said in a distracted tone, still staring at him wide-eyed with wonder. "It's one of the powers of the were."

"The where...?" Dave replied in mild confusion, slender new hands sliding down towards her crotch as she found herself thinking of all the sorts of things her new body could do with men.. for men.. to men...

"No - were, as in 'werewolf', only I'm a werewoman..." The woman replied, numbly - she shook her head. "And so are you!" "Oh." Dave said.

"Look - let's go back to my place." The woman said. "We.. have a lot we need to talk about..." "Okay." Dave agreed, easily enough.

"like you, I was once a man..." The woman explained, as she led a dazed Dave down another path through the woods. "My name was.. well, it doesn't matter. For the past one-hundred and twenty six.. no, twenty seven years, I've been calling myself 'Anita' - as a dark joke, because the defining thing about me is 'need'."

Leading Dave up to a small, but meticulously kept cottage in the woods, she opened the door and gestured for the new woman to enter.

"I'm a werewoman." She continued, guiding Dave to a seat at the kitchen table - while the new woman looked around at the racks and shelves filled with feminine clothing and accessories, finding a strange 'tugging' in her foggy mind, almost a yearning. Instead of giving in to the muted longing, Dave sat down and began idly playing with her cantaloupe-sized new breasts as Anita explained what had happened, separating the myths of lycanthropic transformation from the truth.

Were creatures didn't transform, she explained. Once 'infected', they changed shape and remained that shape. Nor did all victims bitten (or, fed from, in whatever manner the particular were fed) change shape as well - just those fed from on nights of the full moon, when the were's need to feed was the most overwhelming. Even then, the victim didn't become a true were even though they did change shape in the same fashion as the original were - just as ever full-moon man Anita had fed from over the past century-plus had become female.

However, each of those men had changed as much in mind as in body - because the very thing that happened tonight, with Dave, was incredibly rare.

Dave was a full-fledged were.

Though transformed in body, Dave retained her old, male mind - except for the needs Dave was feeling only in the most muted of ways at the moment, the needs to 'feed' in the manner which werewomen fed - on men's sexual desires, most efficiently in the form of cum.

"Only on nights with a full moon will you 'entrance' your victims, and only on those nights will they transform." Anita explained. "All the rest of the time, you will still have a strange power over men, who will find you inexplicably much more enticing than they normally would, but they won't change if you feed off them - which you will do, as you'll have no choice."

She stopped, looking stricken.

"You can go without transforming men..." She said, slowly, "If you get enough sex the rest of the time, you can fight the need to feed on full-moon nights. I... don't have that option. Wanting their own 'sex toys', the men of Modac deny me the ability to feed, making sure any sacrifice they lay out gets transformed - even though it means, on the nights of the full moon when they don't have an unwary traveler to give me, my increased needs drive me to hunt down a 'Townie' for satisfaction."

"Oh..." Dave remarked, eyes straying to a pair of high-heeled pumps on a shelf that were calling out to her. "Right now, I'm still all dreamy because you have me entranced, but I'm pretty sure I'm not going to like 'feeding' off men, the way you're talking about."

"Yes you will..." Anita whispered. "That's the nature of the curse - you may not want to, but you will enjoy it. Immensely." "Oh." Dave said, shrugging vaguely. "So - what am I supposed to do now? I mean, as a woman?"

Anita paused - then explained to Dave what she would have to do, what she'd have to accept.. and what Anita would like her to do...

* * * * *

Fifteen minutes after Anita left her alone in the gas station they'd broken into, the mists cleared from the new woman's mind - and she was forced to experience the full force of everything that had happened to her.

"Oh.. God.. NO!" She gasped, stricken, reeling back from the mirror in the employee's bathroom - but unable to tear her eyes from the image reflect back at her.

An image of a huge-breasted blonde bimbo, all primped up and ready for sex...

...the very sex that she was helplessly, unwillingly craving.

"No!" She gasped anew in her high-pitched new voice, the previously muted desires now screaming through her mind and body with full force. She shuddered, trying to force the unbidden thoughts of what she'd 'like' to be doing with men from her mind - but it was an exercise in futility, these new hungers an integral part of the woman reflected back at her from the mirror.

The woman reflected in the mirror didn't just have the body of a huge-breasted blonde bimbo - she was fully tricked out with all the accouterments.

Petite in both height and bone-structure, she nevertheless was extremely curvaceous. Her small body boasted hips sheathed in a glittering silver-lamé miniskirt - hips that would have seemed overly wide, especially given her incredibly trim waist, if not for the 'counterbalancing' of her huge, round tits packed into the straining silk blouse tied closed in such a way that the under-sized garment reveled a chasm-like view of her milky cleavage as well as her tiny waist.

Much of her height seemed to come from the long, shapely legs that led down to the dainty feet enclosed by the gleaming black leather of her 'classic' pumps with a six-inch heel, and her long, wavy golden hair surrounded a heart-shaped face with big, silvery- blue eyes and full, ripe lips painted the same glossy red as her long, well-shaped fingernails.

All-in-all, she was sex in a tightly-packed package, dressed to draw attention to her supple, over-the-top hourglass figure...

...and she 'liked' seeing herself so sexy!

She didn't want to. She wanted, almost desperately, to be disgusted by seeing herself done up in such an overly feminine manner, all the more so because she'd willingly done this to her new self while in the protective daze of Anita's trance - but, despite what she might have wanted, intellectually, her new needs and desires were causing her pleasure at the sight of her dressed in a way that would aid her in feeding her new hunger...

...and a hunger it was, for even as she wrestled with her emotions, it was battering at her. It was almost the way she would feel if she were on the edge of starving to death, willing to kill for a crust of bread to assuage the screaming need for food thundering through her...

...but it wasn't a hunger for food that filled her, and it wasn't images of T-bone steaks and thick, juicy burgers that danced unbidden through her mind.

She wanted sex.

No, that wasn't quite right - she wanted desire.

She wanted the intoxicating wine of men looking at her with lust. The aperitif of men's hand or lips touching her oh-so-sensitive flesh. The delicious and filling main course of cum, taken into her body through mouth or hit, wet, tight new cunt...

...and the fact that she didn't want to want it didn't matter a damn. Her body cried out to feed - and she could only 'ignore' this new imperative at the same risk of ignoring her old type of pre-were hunger:

Weakness.

Exhaustion.

Coma...

...and death.

Caught in a conflicting stew of wants and needs, the new woman shuddered at the knowledge that she wasn't willing to die rather than face this 'hideous' fate...

...then forced herself to tear her mind away from the all-to-damned-enticing thoughts of fulfilling her new needs by focusing on the more immediate task at hand: Getting out of town.

As the golden glow of sunrise began to spill in through the dusty plate-glass windows fronting the gas station, the new woman turned away from the disgusting/pleasurable reflection and headed to the front of the station.

Even just walking, now no longer within the protective mists of the trance, was a study in duality.

Intellectually, she hated the fact her 'enhanced' new body was balancing easily, even sensuously atop the high spike heels of the shoes - and yet, physically and emotionally, pleasure thrummed through her at the knowledge that she would make a sexy sight, long, luscious legs scissoring in the heel-to-toe stride she tried and failed to stop using, full new ass swaying pertly as her torso swiveled 'instinctively' to make her big, firm, spherical new tits sway and bounce all the more fetchingly - and pleurably.

Being 'sexy' was instinctive, built into her altered body and mind, the necessary technique for her to 'hunt' for her unwanted-but-oh- so-helplessly-desired new food source. She didn't want to be - quite consciously and with intent - making every action, movement and position the most utterly sensually enticing as possible, but she also couldn't stop herself from doing it...

...nor could she force herself not to feel the pleasure that thrummed through mind at body at doing it, as her altered outlook on life reveled in her ability to call forth that what she so desperately, so helplessly, needed.

As her male memories and thoughts screamed out at what she was willingly doing, much less at what had involuntarily befallen her, the new needs and desires that were part-and-parcel with her new form drove her to ignore what she knew, and go with what she felt.

The very worst part of it, the new woman mused as he grabbed the keys to the tow truck and sensuously slipped out the door, was that Anita had been right:

She was enjoying it.

She was enjoying how deliciously sexy and feminine she felt, enjoying knowing she could entice men into giving her what she wanted/needed. She was enjoying the physical pleasure her highly sensitive body was providing, and she was enjoying the emotional pleasure she felt just from knowing how sexy she was, how sexy she was acting, how much sex she could get for herself almost at will...

It was a sense of power - and almost intoxicating sense of being more-than-human.

Amazed at how incredibly powerful the pleasure of her new fate was, despite the male part of her insisting that she didn't want to be enjoying any of this, she unlocked the tow-truck and slipped in behind the wheel.

Though her own car - or the car 'Dave' owned - was still broken-down, there were a few other vehicles in town she could have stolen. This one had been Anita's suggestion, as it meant that the town would have a harder time finding sacrifices, at least for a while...

...and if everything went as planned, a while was all they needed.

Starting up the grumbling diesel engine, the new woman quickly put the truck into gear and pulled out of town before anybody could notice her taking the truck - which, with the fact that there was no phone in town, meant that she should be safe from police interest until long after she'd disposed of the truck.

Wrestling with the old truck's transmission, she headed down the secondary road, pulling up a plume of dust until she reached the turn-off to the secondary highway that would lead her to the main interstate, and thence to the nearest large town. Given that she had no I.D., no money, nothing but the clothes on her back, she needed to 'establish' herself, and fairly quickly - and her intellect hated the thought of what she was going to have to do to accomplish that, while her body and emotions were almost literally drooling in anticipation at the thought.

The strange mix of lust and disgust was beginning to give her a headache...

Cruising down the secondary highway, the big truck's balding tires riding easily over the worn blacktop, she tried to come to terms with her 'split personality'...

...when she spotted a lone hitch-hiker, coat pulled tightly around his sparse frame to ward off the morning chill, trudging along the side of the road.

A lone male hitchhiker.

At the mere sight of the unkempt young man, her nipples went as hard as stone and her breath became closer to a hungry pant as a damp fire flared in her new crotch, and she shuddered with the force of her lust.

The thought of having sex with this man was utterly disgusting - and yet her body and emotions were screaming in joy at that disgusting thought. She felt as if she were a starving man seeing a juicy steak - and, simultaneously, she also felt more undeniably aroused than she ever had as a man, even given the differing sensations of arousal between the genders.

Almost before she realized what she was doing, she was slowing the truck down.

Her mind was telling her that she didn't want to do this - while her body was telling her she did.

It wasn't a completely unfamiliar feeling, though the form it took was completely new. Still, there was no mistaking the similarities between what she was feeling now and what she'd felt when she'd first given a shot at her ultimately successful bid to stop smoking.

It was just like the first day after quitting, when she'd felt... almost hollow, an aching need burning inside her. That's what she felt now - only magnified and much more 'pleasurable' than what she'd felt before.

She told herself she didn't have to do this. She could just not step on the brake, just keep on going...

...and although she knew this to be the utter truth, because her new need wasn't anywhere near the 'overwhelming' level, she found herself pulling to a stop anyway.

She knew, whether she wanted to or not, she'd eventually have to 'feed'...

...and she found that she did, indeed, want to - in fact, her whole body shuddering in literal ecstasy at the thought of doing just that, no matter what her male memories or perceptions said about how 'sick' and 'wrong' it was for her to want to satisfy her new hunger.

She leaned over to open the passenger-side door - and, 'guiltily' but quite consciously, made sure to do it in such a way that the man's first sight of her included a mouth-watering view of her cleavage.

"Hey there, handsome..." She said - no, purred - to the average-looking young man. Even as she did so, she could actually feel her 'magnetism' kicking in, drawing more desire from him than he would normally feel...

..and she could feel that desire, too.

Literally.

It was sort of like the sensation of a warm spring afternoon sun shining on her body - only it was more internally satisfying, as if she were a thirsty woman drinking cool spring water...

...and physically pleasurable as well, as her already intense arousal stepped up several levels in intensity.

She was enjoying his attention, physically and emotionally, she knew she'd only enjoy it all the more as she got more 'interactive' - and she was going to have to do this sooner or later, so why not do it when it would be pure pleasure, rather than wait until the need was actually physically painful...?

With that thought, she dropped the last of her inhibitions and gave into her new nature.

"I'm... Ivan." She introduced herself in homage to her 'creator', the poor woman she now understood much better, and forgave for what she'd done to her. "Tell me - do you like big, round tits?"

"I.. I like your tits..." The scrawny man said, awkwardly, his phrasing telling her that it was her own powers rather than his innate tastes that were affecting him...

...and that demonstration of her power over men was more pleasurable than she could have imagined.

"Well, don't just stand there staring at them..." She said in a sensuous voice, thrilled with the pleasure and power thrumming through her. "Hop up in and get your hands on them, hunk."

Then she reached down and gave one, little tug on the bow holding the shirt closed, letting it fall open and display her melon-like mounds of creamy breast-flesh to his almost unwillingly lustful gaze - and that's all it took.

The back-pack he carried contained all his possessions in the world - but he dropped it from his shoulder as if it were utterly worthless, scrambling up into the truck with a clearly visible tent in his pants - a bulge that made the newly-named Ivana's mouth water.

Like a starving man, the unnamed hitch-hiker went eagerly for her tits - and she could sympathize with how he felt.

No, empathize - for she could literally feel, almost taste, his desire - and his pleasure as his hands reached the smooth flesh of her huge, creamy tits and began to fondle and squeeze them eagerly.

Layered on top of that 'felt' pleasure was the physical pleasure his touch brought her, and she arched her back and moaned softly, amazed anew at how wonderful it could feel to have the sensitive flesh of her tits and her large, fully-erect nipples manipulated.

"Yes.." She moaned, knowing now that the 'survival urge' that was what her hunger really was had it's undeniable strength. In many ways, it was like - and connected too - her old, male 'procreation' urge, but with 'hunger' added in and with 'pleasure' as a motivation.

She wrapped her hands around the back of his neck and, as he continued to play with her wonderfully firm tit, pulled him close for a kiss that was as much a drink for her 'thirst' as the inherent pleasure of a kiss.

It all felt so utterly wonderful, and now even the remnants of her male self no longer wanted to stop, no longer wanted to give up this pleasure - or the more intense pleasure that was to come.

She had two options before her, even as she kissed the man and felt his hands migrating over her body, touching thigh and ass with more pleasure. There were two ways for her to get the final 'full meal', oral or vaginal...

...and it was the 'homophobic' remnants connected with the fact that gay men could suck cocks but not get fucked in the cunt that decided what her first female sexual experience was going to be.

"I want to fuck you.." She gasped, pulling away from him to lift her ass from the idling truck's seat and slip out of her skirt, revealing that she wore no panties beneath the skin-tight garment.

"Here...?" The man gasped, licking his lips both hungrily and nervously. "Now...?" "Yes." She said, reaching out to unzip his pants.

"Okay." He capitulated, helping her pull down his pants and underwear, exposing his hard cock.

Swinging her leg over him, she shimmied herself around until her back was against the dashboard, one knee on either side of his lap

- and her now-sopping cunt properly positioned for her first penetration.

Now with her entire body afire with desire and hunger, pleasure already thrumming through her with the promise of more on the way, she didn't even so much as hesitate - as soon as she was lined up, she thrust herself down, impaling herself on his hard cock with a long, high-pitched sound of utter contentment as she fulfilled the urge within her.

The pleasure was fantastic, amazing, overwhelming, intense - and it only continued to grow as she grasped the back of the bench seat and began to rock-thrust herself atop him, her huge new tits bouncing and jiggling and occasionally whacking the stunned-but- happy man in the head as she squirmed and writhed atop him, enjoying the purely physical pleasure any woman would feel during sex, but still looking forward to the metaphysical 'high' that would come when she 'fed' on his sperm...

...a 'feeding' that was accompanied by the mind-blowing ecstasy of her own orgasm that left her thrashing and writhing atop the man, screaming out in pleasure.

With that, her 'need' faded without dying - and as she calmly dressed, only a faint portion of herself feeling 'guilty' and 'disgusted' over what she'd just done, she realized she was literally a 'nymphomaniac' - a woman who craved sex but could never be fully sated.

"Why don't you grab your back-pack, sweetie?" She suggested, giving him a long, caring kiss as a sort of 'thank you' for what he'd unknowingly given her.

"Uh, yeah..." he mumbled, still affected by her powers, and a bit confused by the unexpected - but fantasy-like - events that were occurring to him. Reaching out of the truck, he grabbed his back-pack and closed the door.

Amazed at how physically and emotionally pleasurable being a werewoman was, Ivana put the truck into gear and pulled away.

Because of the fact that she only had twenty-seven days to make money, find a place to live, get fake I.D. for her new identity, and buy a used car before she paid a visit on the town of Modac, Ivana was in a hurry...

...so she only stopped once on the trip into town, for a long and thoroughly mutually enjoyed blow-job that left her tingling with delight.

* * * * *

111 DAYS LATER

"Mmmm..." Anita moaned softly in deep pleasure as Ivana finally broke the long, deep kiss.

"Not bad." Ivana agreed, with a matching smile on her face, as she eyes the woman who was her 'partner' in so many different meanings of the word. With a soft sigh, she spread her thighs slightly to welcome Anita's hand, gliding sensuously under the filmy white negligee that matched the black lace on she, herself, wore.

The fact that it was a full-moon night only added extra 'spice' to their monthly lesbian love-fest. After all, it wasn't hard to 'stuff' themselves on man-seed the other twenty-seven days of the lunar cycle - not when they were the madams of the biggest, most popular bordello in eight states.

It wasn't surprising - after all, not only did they have a large stable of incredible sexy, eager-to-please women, but hey only had to be discrete, rather than 'secret' - since the two madams were very persuasive when it came to dealing with cops, state legislators, and various types of 'do-gooders'.

Their lesbian love-fest was interrupted by a knock on the door, and the two women, one dark and one fair, smiled a promise at each other and rose from the black-leather couch of their lushly appointed office in what had once been Modac's dilapidated 'Grand Hotel'.

"Come." Anita called, and the door opened to reveal a pair of identical, leggy brunettes in sexy French Maid costumes who stepped through and bowed low in unison.

"Hello Mistress Anita." Yvette - nee Jim - said in her clear, sweet contralto. "Hello, Mistress Ivana." Yvonne - nee Joe - greeted, in her matching voice.

"Mr. Lucas is waiting". They chorused in perfect synchronization - a skill that applied to much more than their voices, and made the twins very popular.

"Lucas?" Anita queried Ivana.

"The wife-beater." The buxom blonde clarified. "His wife came to me the other day - you remember, the one who looked like she'd gone ten rounds with Mike Tyson?"

"Oh - Sheriff Lucas." Anita said, voice dripping scorn as she made the connection. "That's the jerk." Ivana agreed. "So - you want to take him?"

Anita considered.

"No..." She finally said, with a small shrug. "I got one last dose just before sundown, while you were doing to counting. You take this one..."

"I'm not going to argue." Ivana agreed with a smile.

After all, their ability to sate themselves with customers meant that they didn't have to transform men on full-moon nights - but it didn't mean they couldn't, for certain cases.

"Show him in, girls..." Ivana instructed, and the two oh-so-eager-to-please women hurried out to do just that. Licking her lips hungrily, Ivana eagerly waited for their soon-to-be-newest-recruit.

Not only was transforming certain men into eager, willing whores a form of twisted justice...

...it was also just plain fun to do.

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: An adult sex doll maker finds himself being transformed into a the image of a his product after he angers a man with magic powers.

Real Doll

By Gunslinger

"Mister, I warn you for the last time - you be sorry if you don't make right by ol' Rafiki." The voice on the other end of the phone line carried the island rhythms.

Donald William Apsley - the 'Mister' in question - all but snarled into the phone. "Look, you... whatever you are. I don't know how you got my home number, but if you don't stop harassing me, I'm going to call the police! Like that salesman said when you tried to return it - NO REFUNDS!"

The tall, heavy-set man slammed the phone down - Don Apsley was one of those men with an extremely short fuse. And this Rafiki jerk, whoever the hell he was, seemed to light the thing off pretty damned regularly over the past three weeks.

Don was the owner of EroToy, Inc. A small operation, his few employees turned out 'specialty' love-dolls, ones that no other manufacturer made. This Rafiki fellow had purchased one of them - and it had apparently 'popped' during it's first use. Since then, the fool had been moving up the short chain of command, trying to get his eighty-nine-ninety-nine (plus taxes) back.

Shoving the matter aside, the dark-haired, heavy-set owner grabbed a quarter-full bottle of his favorite Scotch - 'Ruffled Grouse' - and padded upstairs. Climbing onto his bed, he flipped the TV on his dresser to Letterman and reclined against the headboard, taking the occasion belt of booze.

Before the show ended, Don was sound asleep, the empty bottle laying on the floor only inches from Don's large, limp hands. The tinny sound of Letterman had all but vanished under the bass rumble of Don's deep, heavy snores.

* * * * *

It was the sensation that yanked Don from his peaceful slumber. Although not exactly painful, the sensation was like none he'd ever felt before, a strange wrenching, pulling sensation...

...and, before he could really even get a grip on that strange sensation, a thousand others flooded his nerve pathways - sounds and sensations and smells and weights that bore no resemblance to any that should exist in his bedroom. Don's eyes popped open.

The first thing he saw was an aging, wrinkled black face with dark twinkling eyes, surmounted by a shock of white hair. The eyes were boring into his, and a self-satisfied smile rode on the narrow, dry lips of the ebony apparition.

"hello, Mister - Rafiki warn you - but oh, no, mister big shot no listen." The man said in a voice instantly recognizable to Don. "Just what the Hell. " Don started to bluster, enraged - then came to a shuddering stop, a strangled sound emerging as his eyes widened.

Because his angry tirade had emerged in a high pitched, accented voice. An undeniable feminine voice. Don's hands flew to his mouth in shock...

...or at least, tried to. They were brought up quite short by whatever restrained them. Instinctively, Don looked down.

For a second, he merely stared at the strange thing that broke his line of sight. A massive bulge of pink cloth over some sort of obstruction on his chest. The massive obstruction had to have large dents in the fabric at the farthest point of the rounded mound, and it sat on his chest at the same place he was feeling a strange sensation of both weight and constriction.

Then he realized he was looking at tits. Covered in a pick article of clothing, and easily the most absolutely enormous tits he'd ever seen in his life - but tits none the less. And for some reason, the sensation from his chest were not like something stuffed in the clothing, atop his chest - but almost as if they were part of him or something. Like the feeling of pressure and mildly pleasant sensitivity he could feel from the same place the huge nipple dented the fabric. Confused, angry and slightly scared, Don looked up again to ask the black man what the hell was going on....

...and found himself face to face with a woman.

She was of obvious Scandinavian extraction - pale, clear skin, huge blue eyes and high cheekbones. Her face was surrounded by her golden-blond hair, formed into two braided 'pig-tails'. Her remarkably full, soft lips were formed into an 'O' of surprise.

Below her swan-like neck, she wore a pale pink, long-sleeve leotard, high-cut at the hips, revealing the black pantyhose that she wore on shapely legs. Not necessary sexy legs, although they were partly that too - the woman mostly radiated a sense of good-natured, innocent - and under-intelligent - cheerful sensuality.

Provided, of course, that you overlooked her absolutely gigantic tits. Don's mind pegged them at being somewhere in the MMM-cup range - they were absolutely enormous, and almost perfectly spherical, their round shapes pressing out at the material without an obvious indication of a bra.

About the only discordant note was the ropes that held her two the two poles rising behind her - one at each wrist, and one just above the back of the red high-heeled shoes she wore.

Then the woman's expression changed as her expression went from surprise to stunned, horrified disbelief. Because Don had just realized that he was looking into a full-length mirror, held by the old black man, who now laid it aside to smile benevolently at Don.

"Wha...? I.... This isn't...." Don stammered in that same high-pitched, Swedish-accented voice, his mind whirling. Now, many of the strange sensations made... sense? Well, maybe not - but could be identified. The weight of enormous yet firm tits, the sensation of balancing - easily - on six inch high heels, the strange snugness at a crotch that was sending subtly - but undeniably - different sensations then he was used to.

"Oh? You no recognize yourself, Mister Donald? Or maybe I call you Miss Dagmar - that much better name, is your name now."

Horrified realization was beginning to trickle through - but not belief. "I... No - this isn't really happening. It's some sort of... set up. I'm not a woman. This isn't real."

Rafiki laughed. "Oh - is very real, Dagmar. You now all woman. I promise you be sorry, did I not?" Don's mind, churning, grabbed the first question it came to. "Why do you keep calling me that name!"

"That you name. The name you give yourself. You not figure it out, mon? You now Dagmar - The Big-Tit Love Doll. Only, you no love doll no more, you real woman."

"No - no!" Don denied. But he was horrified to note that the woman in the mirror looked the way his company's largest-breasted product would look, if she were a real woman - and she was dressed in the standard 'Dagmar' outfit...

Rafiki laughed again - and walked around behind... her?... to untie the ropes. "Is true, Dagmar. I use voodoo - transfer life-spirit from you body to this doll. Now, you in living woman's body, and a male blow-up doll in you bed. Confuse Police-men plenty when they look for you, I bet."

Don's.... Dagmar's... mind struggled to deny the words, to deny the sensations, to deny everything, to make it go away...

"Noooooooo!" She screamed, soprano, as it finally, indelibly hit home. 'He' was now 'she' - an enormously buxom woman based on the very love-doll he'd refused to refund the money on for Rafiki. She was, indeed - Dagmar.

"Please - I'm sorry. I'll pay you... anything. Please - change me back!" Don/Dagmar begged, turning to face Rafiki - and stumbling as the massive inertia of her gigantic endowments came into play. Her huge tits jiggled inside the pick leotard, sending strange, vaguely pleasurable sensations down her new spine. "Anything you want - just don't leave me..."

"Sorry - no can do. Is impossible to make two transfers." Rafiki said - implacably. "You Dagmar now - and always. You go now. You make life as Dagmar - that how I punish you. Go."

Dagmar simply stared at Rafiki for a moment, in profound shock. Go? Out in public? As...her? "No... I can't..." Dagmar said, pleading. "Please - change me back. Make me a man. I'll..."

Rafiki cut her high, Swedish voice short, one bony hand pointing to the door in the corner of the dimly-lit room. "No - I tell you I can no change you back, even if I want to. I don't, you know. But you will go - or maybe you like I do more to you?"

Dagmar looked towards the door, the back at Rafiki. Taking a deep breath, she forced herself to a calmer level, even though fear, horror and loathing at her predicament threatened to overwhelm her. "You can't just kick me out - I have no money, no ID, no place to go.

Even if I did - I can't live like this. Not as a woman - and especially not in a woman's body that looks like this. These tits... they're.... huge! And my voice - I sound like a Swedish Bimbo. These clothes... these shoes... I don't... can't. " She ran down, setting her slender, Scandinavian jaw as best she could.

Rafiki smiled - but with absolutely no humor. "You right, Miss Dagmar. I be so cruel to young lady - not nice. I'll fix it for you now, you bet."

Dagmar felt a shiver run down her spine - it wasn't a nice smile, not at all. But some of her old spirit was seeping back, and she refused to back down. Her wide, innocent blue eyes weren't very well suited to glaring, but she tried anyway as her mind once more slipped into the same aggressive, abrasive rut it had always run. Inside, she berated herself for her panic and pleading - she wasn't going to get out of this being weak. And she was going to find a way out of this - make no mistake.

"That's better" She said - but instead of the snap she'd tried, it came out in the same, high-pitched voice without a trace of the bitterness. Her new voice just wasn't designed to intimidate.

Rafiki smiled as he closed his eyes. He concentrated for a second...

...and a sudden gust of wind chilled Dagmar. Stunned, she looked around, to find herself on a street corner somewhere in the city. She could tell she was still in New York - the city had a kind of flavor impossible to mistake - but she had no idea where. Since she also didn't know where Rafiki's place was, there was absolutely no chance of finding her way back to it. She was alone, in New York.

She suddenly realized that there were a couple of small changes, as well - in addition to the clothing she'd been 'born' in, she now wore a black skirt that clung tightly to her ass and hung well above her knees. An a black patent leather purse was slung over one slender shoulder. A quick check of the purse revealed a passport and New Resident Visa for 'Dagmar Innelusenbruk', some make-up, thirty-two dollars, and the usual clutter of a woman's purse.

Reality hit Dagmar like a sharp blow to the gut. She was an unbelievably massive-breasted woman with the look and voice of a Swedish bimbo, with no job, residence or friends. Her old life was completely lost to her - none of her old friends or colleagues would believe this story. If she tried to regain her lost life, she'd just end up in a loony bin somewhere.

Dagmar didn't know whether she should break down crying, throw a tantrum, or just curl up and die. Instead, she took a deep breath, and set her slender shoulders.

"Uh uh - no way some old nigger Voodoo is going to break me." She said to herself, wincing at the bimbo-ish tones it emerged in. "I might look like a bimbo - but I know who I am, and I don't give up that easily."

Picking a direction at random, she started off.

Just walking was a completely different experience. Despite the high heels, she found she could walk fairly easily - as long as she didn't try to use her old, masculine stride. After her few initial steps with her old stride, she was forced to accept a shorter, more feminine one, letting her hips sway in a naturally feminine manner. The longer, stiffer masculine stride caused her massive new endowments to sway way too much - not a wholly unpleasant sensation, she discovered - and made it difficult to balance.

She'd just mastered the sexy, feminine sway necessary to move easily when she rounded a corner and literally bumped into a couple of young men.

Dagmar repressed a gasp - the sensation that had been created as her massive tits had pushed into one of the youth's chest had been... nice. Extremely nice.

"Sorry." Dagmar apologized to the two youth. Her instinctive reaction had been to swear, and tell them to watch where they were going but she'd repressed it. The last thing she needed right now was enemies.

However, the two youths barely heard her - they were too busy gaping at the enormous tits in front of them, their jaws hanging.

Dagmar frowned. She opened her mouth to tell them to stop staring - then closed it again, as she became aware of a strange sensation. It was almost like powerful anxiety - like something was making her anxious or afraid, but she didn't know what.

"Man... they're huge..." The boy on the left - a brunet - breathed. Then he flushed and met Dagmar's eyes. "I... I'm sorry - I didn't mean..."

His companion, a blond, nudged him, shutting him up. "Sorry Miss - Steve does tend to run off at the mouth." "It's okay." Dagmar said, slightly absently. "Pardon me."

The two men parted to allow her to pass, and she started on her way - and the anxiety refused to go away. Something was bothering her, and it was like a constant noise in her head, driving her crazy. She came to a stop after only a few feet and closed her eyes.

Letting go, she let her mind kind of float, seeking the source of the anxiety. "Miss?" One of the boys said. "Are you all right?"

And with her mind in 'neutral', Dagmar turned and said the first thing in her head....

"Do... do you like my tits?" Dagmar incredulously heard herself ask, somewhat anxiously. "They... they're not too big. are they?"

With a start, she realized the source of her anxiety. The two boys had been gaping at her, and she couldn't tell if it had been because they thought her tits were attractive - of freakish. As weird as it sounded, Dagmar was suffering a bout of stream self-consciousness. She tried to deny it - why would she care what other people thought about this ridiculous body? - but...

"No - oh no." The dark-haired youth - Steve - youth assured her hurriedly. "They're... amazing."

Dagmar was disgusted, mentally - but the actual emotion that flooded her was... pride? ...pleasure? ...excitement? She didn't know, but it felt good. Really, really good. So good, she couldn't keep her full, soft lips curving up into a smile, no matter how much she didn't want them to.

Then the other youth spoke up. "Miss - to be honest, it doesn't matter what we think. Do you think they're too big?"

And the question slammed home even as the anxiety began to rise again. The answer popped, unbidden, from Dagmar's mouth. "I - can't tell. If you like them, then I feel good. If you don't, I feel bad."

Dagmar was shocked to hear herself say it - and more shocked to find that it was the absolute, literal truth. Having men admire her tits - made her feel great.

The blond smiled crookedly. "Then it'd probably be good to tell you that I think your tits are the most incredibly erotic set I've even seen in my life."

Even as disgust at the comment tried to make its way through Dagmar's brain, it was completely overridden by the intense wave of pride and pleasure that rocked her body - and her stunned mind. She shivered from the intensity of her feeling, a gorgeous, honest smile breaking out on her face. "You do?"

"Yes."

Dagmar was stunned. Part of her hated feeling this way - she was horrified to find that a man's opinion of her could have so much impact. But no reasonably normal human being disliked pleasure, and that's what these men's interest and attraction brought to her. Dagmar looked down at the massive tits straining at the pink fabric - and was shocked and amazed - and horrified - to find that she no longer found them hideously oversized, disgusting, unwanted....

...she loved her massive, sexy tits. Because they did.

Dagmar tried to fight the feeling - but couldn't. The male part of her brain realized, with mounting despair, that her sense of happiness, of well being, was tied directly into appearing attractive to these men. Her own emotions and thoughts on the subject were completely and utterly irrelevant.

Dagmar looked at the two young men, staring at her massive tits longingly - and felt another emotion sweep over her.

Intense guilt. Powerful, painful, devastating. Like she doing something terrible, like beating a child, committing a hideous crime. Or as if she was doing something horrific by NOT doing something - like...

Then, with a force so strong it was palpable, she realized what was causing the sensation. Horrified, she tried to shove it away - but the sensations she was feeling were too strong, too powerful. It was crippling her - she needed to exorcise them. "

As she stood, battling her wants against her needs, the blond youth smiled. "Well, it was nice... bumping into you miss. If we did something that makes you feel good about yourself, I'm glad we could help."

And he and his companion turned to leave.

It was too much - if she let them go, this feeling would haunt her, drive her crazy...

"Would... would you like to... touch them?" Dagmar asked, in a quiet, scared voice. The sensation thrummed through her, and the question was of her own free will - sort of. She knew that, if she didn't prove to herself that these men really did find her massive tits exciting, and weren't just saying so to be nice, she'd go insane with the intense emotions flooding her. She had to know she was... sexually attractive to them. She might not feel attracted to them - hell, she felt pure, unadulterated disgust at what she was asking - but her need to have them attracted to her was like a crushing burden.

Steve's eyes widened, and he turned to his friend. "Josh?"

Josh, however, was looking at her with a thoughtful look. "Miss - are you sure...?"

"Please." Dagmar asked - begged - with shame in her heart. "If you'd like to..." She gestured towards an alley way.

Josh was still looking at her with the same speculative look. "Yes, we both want to, very much. But why are you so worried about what we want?"

The answer to that question came to Dagmar in a flash - and she staggered backwards, as horror and pain flooded her. She might be flesh-and-blood. She might have all the old, male, memories and preferences and thoughts.

But this form she wore had been designed to do just one thing. To pleasure men. Her sole reason for existence was to make men happy. Everything else was completely irrelevant - if she could not - did not - fulfill her reason for existing, then...

"I.. a freak!" Dagmar cried out, helplessly, tears rolling down her cheeks. Her emotional distress, her horror, her fear - it all caused her to blurt out the truth, with no control over her words. "I just want to die. I want... I need..." She sobbed, brokenly. "How can I live like this? I can only be happy when I'm doing something to make a man happy! I'm doomed to a life of pure misery and despair!"

Josh leaned forward. "Miss - do you know what would make me happy right now?"

Filled with the sheer enormity of the punishment Rafiki had bestowed upon her, Dagmar looked up. "What ?" "If you stopped crying and became calm."

And if a switch had been thrown inside of her, Dagmar suddenly felt pleasure bloom in her as her pain and horror faded. She didn't want her horror to fade - she wanted to hate her fate - but she became calm - and happy.

"Oh..." She said, surprised, as a smile bloomed faintly. Josh smiled, as well. "What's your name?"

"Dagmar." She replied, amazed at the wave of enjoyment she was riding from the simple thing she'd done at her request. "I... I feel better, Josh. Thank you."

Josh looked at her calculatingly - he said, distinctly. "I think you are the most beautiful, exotic - erotic - woman I have ever met." With those words, pure, unadulterated joy flooded Dagmar. You do?"

Josh nodded. "Yes - I have never met a woman so physically arousing in my life. You are the sexiest woman I have ever seen."

"Yeah." Steve agreed, whole hearted. "Your tits are incredible - and you're gorgeous to boot. Most women with tits that big get implants because they're not that good looking. But you... wow."

The emotional pleasure was the equivalent of an orgasm was in physical pleasure. Dagmar didn't want to feel this good about being the sexiest women these two guys had ever seen - but couldn't help herself. "Oh..."

"Now..." Josh said. "The only thing I need to know is - what do you need to make you happy?" the way he asked the question sealed Dagmar's fate. If he'd asked what she wanted, she would have replied that she wanted to be a man - that she wanted to get away from them, that she wanted to be released from this terrible craving to please men. But what she needed...

"I need to please you. You and all men around me." She said, helplessly - seductively. "I need to do whatever makes men happy. When I do something - anything - that a man enjoys, I feel pleasure. If I'm doing something that a man dislikes, I feel intense pain. I need to make men happy."

Steve was looking at his friend. "Josh...?"

Josh ignored him. Instead, he smiled slightly, and spoke clearly and distinctively. "Nothing in the whole universe would make me happier than having you come back to my frat house so that me, Steve, and our four other frat brothers can make sure that you stay happy all the time. Having a sexy, huge-breasted, beautiful woman around who is utterly willing to fulfill our every want and need would all make us very, very happy all the time."

Horror filled her mind even as intense pleasure filled her emotions. Helplessly, Dagmar turned to Steve for confirmation. "Is it true - would you and your friends be very, very happy if I came and was your...?" She stopped and looked for a description.

Steve was gaping back at her. "If you were our willing, cheerful sex Goddess? Holy shit - we'd be fuckin' ecstatic!"

And with that blurted response, the most important thing in Dagmar's universe became being exactly that. Helplessly, she smiled at the two men. "Ohhhh... thank you ."S he said, sliding a hand on each of their firm chests. "Letting me come back to your place - to stay there and make you all happy - is the most wonderful thing you could possibly do for me. Thank you."

And she leaned forward and kissed Josh.

She didn't want to - and she wanted to more than anything else in the world. Her full, soft lips met his, and the world narrowed to a simple need - the need to kiss Josh better than he'd ever been kissed before. To provide the most pleasure he'd ever had from a kiss.

The kiss lasted for several long moments. Dagmar was filled with utter disgust and loathing, but none of it showed as she put her all into the most erotic, pleasurable kiss she'd ever given. Despite her intense shame and disgust, there was no denying the physical pleasure it brought to kiss Josh - but she didn't want to enjoy it.

But all that was driven away as they broke the kiss and Josh said "Wow - that was... amazing."

At his words, pride and pleasure swept the disgust she'd felt aside. She couldn't help it - she might feel loathing while she performed the act, but the instant it was verified that she'd pleased a man, she was overwhelmed with sheer pleasure.

"Why don't we go to your new home?" Josh asked. Helpless to refuse, Dagmar slid an arm around each of the boy's shoulders, and walked with them, her huge tits bouncing as she helplessly smile with unwanted pleasure at her new status as a sex-slave, unwillingly willing to please her new 'owners'.

* * * * *

"Guys - meet Dagmar." Josh announced, grandly. "She's going to living here with us - and all she wants to do is whatever you tell her." Four sets of eyes swung around - and four young man rose suddenly to their feet, gaping.

"Holy shit... look at the size of those tits!" One of them stuttered. "What the... what do you mean, whatever we tell her?" Another asked.

Josh turned to Dagmar, who, deep inside, wanted to scream and run away. "Dagmar - what is it that you're here for?"

Helplessly, she smiled. "I am here to fulfill your every desire. If it would please you to have me do something, then I will get great pleasure from doing it. Your wish is my command."

"You... you're kidding, right?" Another asked, still stunned.

Which was enough to force Dagmar to prove her 'willingness'. For a briefest instant, she fought the need successfully - then it overwhelmed her completely.

As she screamed inside, she began approaching the questioner with an incredibly slow, sexy stride. "Let's say you said you wanted me to undress." She said, helplessly. Her hands rose, and she slipped her arms out of the sleeves of the leotard. Slowly, sensuously, she peeled it off of her massive tits, setting the free. The jiggled, then swayed out from her body as she bent over to slide the leotard off and toss it negligently aside. Since she wore no undergarments, when she straightened, Dagmar was glorious naked aside from her pantyhose and high heels. The pantyhose were of a decidedly sexual nature, having no crotch, and the back of them a barely visible string between her firm, full ass.

She then turned to another man, and approached him. "Or - perhaps you asked to touch me." She said, sensuously. She wrapped her long, slender fingers around his wrists and brought his hands up to her massive tits. She moaned softly a pleasure racked her massive tits when the stunned man took the none-to-subtle hint and began to massage and fondle her massive tits.

Feeling grateful, intellectually, and regretful, physically, Dagmar pulled away from the young man and approached another. "Or if you ask me to kiss you..." She said - and wrapped one arm around the man's neck and pulled herself tightly against him, her massive tits squashed against his hard chest. She pressed her soft lips into his and kissed him quickly, but 'passionately' her tongue dancing around the inside of his mouth.

Then she turned, and approached the forth one. "And if you said that I'd done something to get you all hard..." She said, slowly, sensuously unzipping his pants. "...and asked my to take care of it. "

And, horrified, Dagmar bent from the waist, sticking her ass out in the air as she pulled the man's rapidly hardening cock from its cloth prison and 'eagerly' enveloped it with her lips.

Don's male mind was utterly disgusted as her female body eagerly went to work sucking the man off. She used every technique, every hint, that had ever been used on her while she was a man to make sure that this was absolutely the most mind-blowing blow-job the man had ever had.

That task suddenly got a lot harder when Steve - unable to resist the sight - came up behind her, dropped his pant - and slammed his hard cock into her wet, shaved cunt from behind.

She wanted to scream out - mentally, in horrified pain, physically, in sheer pleasure. But she did neither, forcing herself to keep the rhythm and skills that she was applying to the young man's cock. She narrowed her attention on giving the guy a blowjob, while her body was wracked by intense pleasure from Steve's rapid thrusts.

She'd never felt anything like this. She was in agony - and ecstasy. She hated every second of it - and never wanted it to end. It was Hell...

...and it was Heaven.

Then the man whose cock she was 'tongue lashing' came, spewing hot, salty cum into her 'eager' mouth. She gulped the thick liquid down, then sensuously pulled him from her mouth with a small, wet 'pop'...

Allowing her to turn all her attention to the intense sensations coming from her new cunt. The pleasure was rising in building waves, and now she was free to express her vocal pleasure, screaming in pleasure as Steve fucked her, hard and fast, completely uninterested in her as he was easing his own desires. But she didn't care - it felt fantastic, and that's what she was here for, wasn't it?

And as she and Steve orgasmed simultaneously, screaming in pleasure, Don was screaming deep within the body that was his prison, seeing what the rest of his life was going to be...

* * * * *

"So - you like, then?"

Josh grinned wearily at Rafiki. "Oh, God - yeah. Geez, we spent the entire night fucking like crazed weasels. She took each of us at least four times. Even we hadn't asked her to stop, she might have fucked us to death." He shook his head. "I don't know how you knew, old man - but she was right where you said she'd be - and everything went just the way you said."

The black man smiled. "Good. So, you pay now?"

"Sure - best damned money I ever spent." Josh said. Reaching into a pocket, he pulled out some cash and handed Rafiki eighty-nine dollars and ninety-nine cents.

Plus tax.

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: After dumping his girlfriend, she sprays a substance on his face which has him change into a bimbo, his old friends are very happy to satisfy her new needs.

Rebecca's Revenge

By Gunslinger

The ropy muscles of his lean, tanned arms tightening and bulging under the strain, the rangy young brunet swung himself out of the battered Jeep YJ by way of the roll-bar over the open doorframe.

Pausing for a second, the lean young man surveyed the low white dunes that ran from the scrub grass of the rise down to the sparkling aquamarine waters of the ocean. Taking a long, deep breath, he savored the crisp tang of the ocean air, leaning his head back to bask in the warm, bright sunlight that spilled over his golden body.

Letting the breath out in an explosive burst, he ran his fingers through his tall flat-top crew cut, stripping out the sweat and flicking it away. Grinning broadly to himself, the young man reached into the back of his battered four-by-four and hauled out and equally battered backpack. Slinging it over one toned shoulder, he turned and made his way over the sandy soil and mounted the weathered wooden stairs that encircled the low, sprawling beach house on three sides.

With the broad grin still creasing his narrow, sharp-featured face, the muscular young brunet walked up to the front door and threw it open with a flourish.

The two other young men sitting in the big, open-concept living-room looked up with startled expressions as the door flew open - and then matching broad smiles appeared on their own faces as the new arrival strode into the house with the air of a conquering hero.

"Well, well - if it ain't Bobby-boy!" The tall, swarthy young man with a shock of curly black hair said, rising to his feet.

The shorter blond lounging in an over-stuffed armchair didn't bother to rise, but fished in an ice-chest and hauled out a can of beer that he tossed, underhand, to the lean brunet.

In the act of slipping his back-pack off his shoulder, the rangy young man was caught somewhat off-guard, but recovered quickly and neatly fielded the cold brew with the quick reactions of an athlete - and the casual competence that was the providence of those yet to see their thirtieth birthday.

"I thought your 'girlfriend' didn't want you hanging out with us low-lifes no more." The blond said, pausing to take a sip of his own beer. "What made her let you come?"

"Hey - 'let me', Jeff?" Bobby asked, sounding miffed. "Rebecca was a great lay an' all, and that money she was pulling in at that biotech place meant her pad, well, rocked - but when some chick starts telling me who I can and can't hang out with, that's the last straw."

"So, you dumped her?" The lanky, olive-skinned young man asked, coming over to grab Bobby's back-pack and sling it casually towards one of the three bedroom doors.

"Damn straight, Vince." Bobby agreed, plopping down onto a couch. "Had I out with her last night, told her it was fun, but if she thought I was changing my life for a mere broad, she was very badly mistaken."

"How'd she take it?" Jeff asked with a knowing grin, having met the 'broad' in question.

"Not to well." Bobby said, smirking briefly before pasting an exaggerated expression of innocence on his face. "For some reason, she had formed the mistaken impression that I was interested in marrying her."

"Gee, I wonder how that coulda happened...?" Vince laughed.

"Dunno." Bobby said, scratching at the thicket of hair on his bare chest. "You think all my talk of marriage could have had anything to do with that?"

The three men shared a look - then, at the same time, chorused out 'Naw...', and broke out laughing.

"Man, this is the life!" Vince said, leaning back in his chair. "Find yourself some up-tight, over-educated older woman who's done nothing but throw herself into her career..."

"...pluck her at that moment when she hears the ol' 'biological clock' tickin' away..." Bobby took up the oft-repeated mantra. "...then fuck her brains out, take her for every cent she's got, then dump her tired old ass and find a young hottie to boff until the money runs out..." Jeff chimed in, lifting his beer can in salute as the other two guys mimicked the motion and joined in on the chorus: "..and then do it all again!"

Draining their beers, the three young men tossed the empties across the room in the general direction of the already overflowing recycling bin, and then Jeff dug into the diminishing supply in the ice chest to toss dripping cans to each of his friends.

Bobby barely caught his in time, having been rubbing at his chest when the malt missile was launched, and the stocky blond's bushy eyebrows rose.

"What's up, Bobby - 'becca give you cooties or sumpin'?" He asked, with a snort. Bobby grimaced.

"Hey, don't laugh - I think she just might have, at that." He said in an aggrieved tone.

"Whatchya mean, 'she might have'?" Vince wanted to know, popping open the top to his beer and taking a long draught from the can.

"Well, after I'd dumped her, and she'd gone ballistic, Rebecca left the apartment." Bobby explained. He paused for a swing of his own brew, then stuck the can between his legs so he could continue massaging his chest. "I'd just finished loading my stuff into my Jeep when she showed up again - and she sprayed some shit in my face."

"What kind of 'shit'?" Jeff asked.

"That's just it - I dunno." Vince said. "When I saw her lift this little can and heard the hissing, I thought it was mace - but nothing seemed to happen, other than my face getting kind of wet. Some of it even got in my mouth, and it tasted kinda... metallic, or something, but not really bad. I thought maybe it was just a bad can of mace, or something - but for the last couple hours, my chest had been feeling really weird."

"Weird how?" Vince asked.

"It's kinda hard to describe. It's sort of itchy-warm-tingly-cold." Bobby tried to explain. "It just got really bad all the sudden, like in the past few..."

He broke off with a gasp, eyes flying wide as he half hunched over in a sharp, convulsive movement that spilled his beer. As the cold, foaming liquid soaked into his cut-off sweat-pant shorts and dripped down his hard-muscled legs, the young brunet made an odd choking sound, hands clutching at his chest.

"Jeez!" Vince shouted, shooting to his feet. "I think that bitch gave him somethin' to make him have a heart attack!"

Crying out, Bobby suddenly slammed back in his chair, face contorted - and his two friends stared at him in shock and horror. "Holy shit, man... lookit his chest!" Vince cried, voice a half-octave higher than normal.

"He.. He's..." The normally arrogantly self-controlled blond stammered, eyes bulging wide. "He's growing a fuckin' pair of boobs!" Vince screeched.

Stunned, the two young men - Vince, standing, and Jeff, in a decidedly awkward-looking half-crouch from his abortive motion to rise - stared at the writhing friend as, behind his grasping hands, his chest slowly bulged outwards in a pair of decidedly feminine-looking mounds.

It seemed to go on for an eternity, and yet couldn't have lasted more than ten minutes, tops. Finally, sheathed in sweat and panting, Bobby stopped writhing and slowly lowered his own stunned gaze to the hairy mounds behind his hands.

"Holy shit!" He gasped, to physically and emotionally wrung-out to manage to full-fledged scream that wanted to emerge. "I.. I've got tits! Big ones!" gonna kill her!"

"No shit, Sherlock!" Jeff agreed - suddenly damned aware of the fact that he was staring at a pair of large tits that just happened to be hanging from the chest of a man... and yet unable to quite look away from the firm, hair-covered feminine masses.

Each about the size of a ripe cantaloupe, the breasts were quite firm, with the teardrop 'hang' of natural breasts rather than the artificially globular shape of the implants that would more commonly be associated with breasts that big. Even with their covering of rough male chest hair, they would have been considered fine examples of 'boobs' - if one could ignore the fact that they looked decidedly ludicrous hanging from the ribcage of somebody so obviously male, that was.

It wasn't the sort of the ting that any of the three young men was likely to ignore - least of all, the one whom it had happened to.

"That bitch! That stinking, fucking bitch!" Bobby shouted, face contorting in anger. "I'm Though humiliating, horrifying, and emotionally ruinous, Bobby's new additions were hardly painful, physically - indeed, they were quite the opposite, even his light touch causing pleasure to thrum through his thick, sensitive new nipples. He started to pull his hands away from his new bust, hating the thought of in any way enjoying having such tits inflicted on him...

...and as he bared his breasts, he became hideously aware of the fact that his buddies were still staring at his now-displayed boobs.

"Jeez, guys - stop staring at my tits!" He shouted angrily - and the fact that he was in any position to have to make that statement only made the humiliation burn deeper in him.

Scrambling to his feet, Bobby dashed towards his bulging back-pack. With trembling fingers, he released the buckles holding the bag closed, and hastily rooted through the clothing inside until he found a well-worn old team sweatshirt.

He started to pull the thankfully bulky, baggy garment on over his head...

...and it was as if a powerful pair of springs had been attached to it's shirttail. The farther down he tried to pull it, the more resistance he seemed to meet. His attempt rapidly slowed to a crawl, and then a dead-stop. With the bottom of the sweatshirt just below his thick, pink new nipples, the muscles stood out on his corded arms as he strained mightily to pull the shirt down lower - and failed miserably. He couldn't even get his fingers to unclasp, letting the garment fall naturally.

Screaming a curse, he yanked the sweatshirt off, and resumed rummaging in his pack. "What's wrong?" Vince asked.

"That stuff must have fucked with my mind!" Bobby snarled, trying - and failing - to put a slightly less concealing shirt on. "I just can't seem to make myself 'hide' these damned tits!"

He went through his pack - and swore mightily when he found the 'least revealing' top he could pull on was a white tank-top, once slightly loose-fitting, that now hugged his unwanted curves like a second skin.

"Okay... you just hold on, and I'll go pull my car 'round." Vince said in an unusually fast, nervous voice. "We'll get you down to the hospital, get a doctor to examine your tits, see what we can do about it..."

At the phrase 'examine your tits', Bobby suddenly experienced a short, but amazingly clear, vision: Himself, sitting in a doctor's office, the doctor's hands lightly squeezing Bobby's new tits as Bobby moaned in extreme pleasure, eyes sliding closed and head rolling back as he shifted to press his new tits more firmly into the doctor's hands...

"No!" Bobby gasped in denial of the vision, a shiver running up his spine. "Huh?" Vince said, blinking.

"No - no doctor." Bobby said, a bit more calmly, still badly rattled by the vision - and the warm rush of pleasure that had tingled through his body in response, his cock stirring in his beer-dampened shorts. "There's no way in hell I'm letting anybody else see these... tits."

It shocked him how he'd had to catch himself, barely in time, to keep himself from calling them 'beauties'... and equally shocking was the sharp pang of unwanted disappointment that accompanied the refusal to 'show 'em off'.

"Well, then - what the hell are you going to do about them?" Jeff wanted to know.

"For the moment - nothing." Bobby said, the mental image of him willingly enjoying somebody 'playing' with his new tits eliminating his ability to considering getting any sort of professional help. "We wait. Maybe that shit Rebecca sprayed on me is only temporary, and they'll go away on their own in a while."

He had more than a sneaking suspicion that they were, in fact, intended to be permanent, but he wasn't going to say so. He could go to the doctor just as well tomorrow, when he'd had a bit of time to get used to the tits - and be sure he had a firm grasp on himself.

"So you're just gonna sit around like.. that?" Vince asked.

"Hell no." Bobby retorted. "I'm gonna get myself stinking drunk." He was as good as his word.

The beach house - acquired through combined chicanery of the three - boasted a state-of-the-art home entertainment system, including a three-disk 'carousel' DVD player. This, Bobby loaded with three mindless 'eye-candy' T&A comedies. Pushing 'play', Bobby settled deep into one of the comfortable chairs, popped open a beer, and determinedly set about blotting out enough brain cells to forget the fact that he was now considerably better endowed than most of the actresses appearing on-screen.

As it worked out, it wasn't that he actually noticed his new endowments any less - but the more beer he guzzled, the less he cared, and that was good enough for him...

...but not necessarily his two companions, who were following his lead with considerably less vigor, sharing meaningful looks between themselves when they weren't busy staring at the altered friend.

Altered - and altering.

It took them a while to catch on to this fact, because the process was slow enough that it was noticeable only in the aggregate - but certainly, after the hour and a half it took the first movie to play, noticeable enough to be commented on.

"Ummm..." Vince said to his inebriated friend. "Uh, Bobby... were you aware you... seem to be... shedding?"

Blearily, Bobby peered down at his once hairy legs. He frowned, and ran a hand over the appendage, watching more hair slough off, leaving behind smooth skin.

"Yeah." He agreed, thickly. "Loosin' all my hair..."

"Well, don't you think..." Vince pressed - only to be cut short. "Shaddup." Bobby slurred. "Don'wanna talk 'bout it."

"But..."

"Shaddup, I said!" Bobby yelled, half-rising out of his seat to glare at his friends, swaying slightly. "Jus' shaddup! Bad 'nuff I gotta go through it, I don't wanna keep hearin' about it! What, you think there's a doctor who's a specialist in this? Who has a nifty little pill that'll fix me right up? Dammit, jus' let it go!"

He slumped back into his seat, taking a long pull at his beer - and choosing not to mention that the real reason he didn't want to talk about it was because of the fact he was trying desperately hard not to think about it.

In fact, he was trying very, very hard to reduce himself to such a state of drunkenness that he wouldn't be able to think at all - because the thoughts that insisted in trying to run through his head were, in their own way, much worse than the continuing changes in his body...

...because the thoughts themselves were trying to steal away his horror and disgust at his on-going transformation and replace it with a decidedly unwanted pleasure at what was happening to him.

Not an intellectual pleasure - oh, no, Rebecca hadn't been that 'kind'. His mind was unaltered, and he knew who and what he was, and hated the fact it was happening...

...but that only made it worse that his body and emotions seemed 'rigged' to just the opposite end of the spectrum. As unwanted thoughts and disgustingly vivid mental images came stronger and more often as his transformation slowly progressed, they were accompanied by shivers of physical pleasure, augmented by emotional responses diametrically opposed to the ones he knew he should - desperately wanted to - be feeling.

Every time another one of these hated thoughts or images flashed across his mind, he drained the beer he was holding and reached for another.

Before the second movie ended, he rose, and staggered to the door of the bedroom. Pushing it open, he kicked his bag inside, stepped inside, and slammed the door behind him. Shedding his damp shorts and underwear as he went, he stumbled to the bed - and finally achieved the blissful ignorance of unconsciousness he'd so energetically pursued.

* * * * *

With a moan, Bobby pried his eyes open.

The light leaking in through the uncovered window was, thankfully, the dim steel-gray light of pre-dawn, just dim enough to be bearable to his gritty eyes.

Head pounding thunderously, brain feeling swaddled in thick coats of abrasive steel wool, there was only two things that forced Bobby from the warm embrace of his bed. The first, being the fact that he'd slept nearly twelve hours and was 'slept out', wouldn't have been enough to move him, in and of itself - but his painfully full bladder was more than convincing, and he slowly pulled himself out of bed and started staggering towards the door.

The sight of his clothes, scattered across the floor from his drop-kick of the bag the afternoon before, reminded him - dimly - of propriety, and he oh-so-slowly bent over and retrieved a pair of cut-off jean shorts. Stepping into them, he slowly pulled them up, vaguely noticing that the last of his body hair had been shed while he'd slept.

The shorts, reasonably well fitting the last time he'd worn them, now were difficult to button, so tightly were they molded to his hips and buttocks.

The fact that this meant they should have also been painfully tight across his crotch also registered, dimly - but it didn't seem to arouse any worry, so he didn't try to force his befogged brain to track down any possible implications to the thought.

He once more started towards the door - and then it occurred to him that maybe he should also put some sort of top on.

Oddly enough, the thought caused a feeling of discomfort in him - in more than one way. He blinked and stared blearily at the wall, trying to figure out why both the thought of putting a top on and the thought of walking around without one bothered him equally.

Decidedly too thick-witted this morning to chase it down, he shrugged and settled on a compromise. Picking up the sweat shorts he'd worn the day before, he grabbed his pocket knife from the back-pack and cut them off just above the crotch, then pulled the makeshift tube top on.

As the top settled in place, clinging tightly to his smooth, globular breasts, he sighed softly in pleasure, and headed off to the bathroom, lightly squeezing and fondling his bust with a dreamy smile.

Reaching the bathroom, he closed the door behind him and walked over to stand in front of the toilet. Unzipping the clinging jeans, he slid his hand inside - and groped around for a moment before registering the fact that his crotch was nearly smooth.

Had he been more awake, he might have described what his questing hand felt as being as if his cock had pulled back into his body, leaving only the head - half the size it had been the night before - protruding from his skin.

As it was, he only stood dumbly for a moment before finally putting the seat down, turning around, and seating himself to urinate.

As the stream hit the side of the bowl, he sighed in satisfaction, his only logy emotional response to the situation being that he felt much better sitting down in his current state of severe hang-over.

When he finished, he sat for a moment on he toilet, then reached for a swatch of toilet paper. He wiped himself...

...and then, letting the damp paper flutter into the toilet, continued rubbing at his crotch, moaning softly at the sensations emanating from his unbelievably sensitive 'cock head'.

Leaning back, he let his head loll and his free hand rise to play with his tits as his other hand increased rhythm and pressure.

Moments later, he arched his back, letting out a scream of pleasure that was kept weak only by the fact he'd let out all his breath in a shuddering whoosh just before the orgasm hit.

Still trembling slightly from the force of his orgasm, he rose and reached down to pull his shorts into place with the hand that had been squeezing his tits...

...while, without even giving it any conscious thought, brought the other hand up to his mouth, licking it clean of the thin, salty liquid coating it.

After licking his hand clean, he washed his hands in the sink, the quickly ran his fingers through a sleep-tousled mane of hair hanging nearly to his smooth shoulders.

Midway through this action, he paused and frowned thickly at the mirror, confused.

Something was nagging at him - but he couldn't quite place what it was. What he was seeing in the mirror somehow managed to 'feel' both completely right and utterly wrong, simultaneously and with equal strength...

...but he certainly wasn't up to puzzling it out, not without his morning coffee fix. Even in the best of times, Bobby was most definitely not a morning person.

This wasn't the best of times...

He headed towards the kitchen, planning to make some coffee - but that route took him across the expansive living room, which boasted floor-to-ceiling plate-glass sliding doors that gave a stunning vista of the ocean, and Bobby decided to hold off on the coffee.

Despite some odd emotional responses his barely-functioning brain wasn't up to following, he felt amazingly good this morning, despite being hung over. Indeed, the fact his brain was barely turning over left him in a strange, dreamy state that was extremely pleasant.

Grabbing his pair of 'Jesus boots', he pulled the sandals on and laced the long leather thongs up his smoothly muscled calves, then slid open one of the doors and stepped out into the cool morning air.

He wasn't alone.

Slumped in one of the deck-chairs, a half-empty mug of cold coffee on the deck beside him, was Vince, snoring softly. Swaddled in a thick, navy-blue bathrobe, he'd obviously come out into the cool air to help him wake up more quickly - an attempt that had even more obviously backfired.

Bobby looked at Vince - and fuzzily thought to himself that he had never noticed how cute the Italian-American was. In repose, his face was almost noble, with a proud patrician nose above full, sensual lips.

In fact, his lips were... quite sensual indeed.

With a dreamy smile, Bobby walked over, leaned down, and pressed his own lips against Vince's.

God, did it ever feel nice, nicer even than the incredibly sharp, vivid imagining of this moment that had flashed across Bobby's mind - and it only got nicer when Vince started to stir.

His lips parted, and their tongues began to probe within each other's moist mouth. One of Vince's hands flailed about slightly before finding a firm leg and tracing it slowly up[wards towards the firm, full buttocks filling out their denim prison so pertly.

His other hand sort of waved uselessly, so while the kiss deepened, Bobby lightly gripped Vince's wrist and brought his hand up so that it cupped one full breast. As his warm touch, tit and ass, awoke fevered, explicit images that chased themselves across Bobby's mind, the rising pleasure and excitement began to clear the fog of sleep from his mind, even as his faltering kiss brought Vince closer to full wakefulness...

...and both their eyes popped open at the same time, and they stared at each other, still in lip-lock. Bobby threw himself back, hands wiping at his mouth.

"Oh, god - you kissed me!" Bobby shrieked, his considerably higher, softer voice registered - even as he shuddered in horrified disgust as the other actions of the morning finally registered on his brain.

"Buh.. Bobby?" Vince stammered, wide eyed. "My god... you're... a chick!"

"No, I'm not - at least, not yet..." He replied, disgusted by wave of displeasure that had forced the modifier out behind the strong declaration. "Either way, that doesn't give you the right to kiss me, you faggot!"

"I didn't kiss you - I kissed you back!" Vince said. "You started it!"

"Hey, my ex-girlfriend gave me some shit that's not only turning me into a chick, but it's fucking with my mind, and I couldn't help myself!" Bobby said, crossing his arms beneath breasts that no longer seemed nearly as out of place on a still-muscular but decided feminine-looking frame. "What's your excuse?"

"A buxom chick shoved her tongue down my throat and shoved a tit into my hand!" "Umm..." Bobby muttered. "Uh... Good excuse."

"I thought so!" Vince snapped - then sighed, and shook his head.

"What do you mean, you 'couldn't help yourself'?" Vince asked, more calmly. "Uh... Never mind..." Bobby said, blushing.

He didn't want to tell Vince about how... right it had felt. How normal his emotions had insisted it was - and how pleasant his body had found it. It hadn't been until his intellect had finally kicked in that he'd truly realized what he was doing...

...and, even as the knowledge of horror and disgust had run through him, he had held the kiss for another second or two, needing that long to let his intellect muster up the strength to break free of the frighteningly utter contentment his body and emotions were generating.

"If it's that bad..." Vince started.

"No - we don't need to talk about it." Bobby said, quickly. "Trust me - as soon as the sun's up, I'm driving down to the hospital and seeing a doctor about this."

"Do you need me or Jeff to come along?" Vince asked.

The thought of both of them taking him into the hospital suddenly flashed into Bobby's mind...

...and, forcing the image of the person she unwillingly identified as 'herself' having one thigh stroked by each man flanking 'her' out of his mind, Bobby quickly shook his head.

Still blushing, Bobby hurried into the house - but as fast as he moved, he couldn't out-run the images and thoughts that kept flashing through his mind, sparking unwanted emotional and physical reactions directly at odds with his intellect...

...but even stronger than his 'outnumbered' intellect.

Purposefully, Bobby avoided Vince for the next couple of hours, unwillingly to deal with the unwanted mental images that just the sight of Vince would conjure up. Thankfully, Jeff was a late sleeper, so Bobby didn't have to try avoiding two people, just the one.

Still struggling with the thoughts and emotions assaulting him, Bobby finally decided he could wait no longer, and he grabbed his wallet and keys and headed out to his Jeep.

Though there was a small town relatively nearby, it didn't have a hospital, so Bobby drove for nearly two hours to the nearest 'big city' and forced himself to concentrate solely on his driving, ignoring the thoughts trying to force themselves into his brain...

...and the changes that were not only still occurring in his body, but were speeding up.

By the time Bobby finally reached the city, the only thing that remained the same about her now fully feminine body was the color of her hair...

...and her mind wasn't much better.

Oh, all her memories were still intact. She knew she was 'really' a man, and she knew she didn't want to act or dress or in any other way do anything the least bit feminine - but she was struggling to deal with the knowledge that it felt right to act and look and be female. The things she wanted to do and be made her feel bad, the things she didn't want to do made her feel good - and that was really, really screwing her up, because she'd never been one to curb her impulses, as a man. Indeed, her life philosophy, as a guy, had basically been 'do what feels good, and damned the consequences'.

Feeling battered by conflicting thoughts and emotions, Bobby parked the Jeep and hurried down the sidewalk towards where the hospital was located...

...and then caught herself slowing to a stop, her eyes almost helplessly locked on to the clothing displayed in a shop window. Women's clothing.

"No..." She tried to tell herself - but the thought of dressing in sexy female clothes was sending shivers of pleasure up and down her spine. She forced herself to break her gaze and take a step further onward...

...and it felt horribly, horrendously wrong to be walking away from the clothing store. Struggling, sweat popping out on her brow, she managed another step and, gasping, a third...

...and then she stopped, rooted in place, body trembling as she was caught between two conflicting desires, one of mind, one of emotion.

Emotion won out.

Unable to fight the emotional need, swearing at her own weakness, Bobby found herself turning around and heading back towards the clothing store.

"No... stop it..." She gasped to herself, trembling. She paused - but the idea of not wearing clothes that showed off her emphatically feminine new body made her feel horrible, whereas the thought of wearing such clothes 'only' made her think about the humiliation and disgust, without being able to feel it.

She hesitated... and then she saw a woman on the sidewalk on the other side of the street.

There was nothing particularly special about the other woman. In fact, she was just an average-looking woman... and that was the problem.

'I'm much hotter-looking than her.' She helplessly thought to herself - and knew it was true. Her new body was slender and buxom and sexy - and what was the absolute worst about it was thinking about how sexy her newly feminine body was caused incredibly waves of pride and pleasure to course through her, no matter how desperately she tried to deny it.

Helplessly, she entered the clothing store...

...and then, after she was done there, found herself helplessly carried onwards to a beauty parlor...

...and then a shoe store...

...all the time struggling to control herself, to not give into her 'badly skewed' emotions - and failing completely.

By the time she'd finally shopped herself out, she no longer cared about going to the hospital. Her feminine needs momentarily satiated by the clothing she'd put on before leaving the store, the make-up she'd helplessly 'felt' she'd needed, she just wanted to get back home before she broke down and did any of the other horribly feminine thoughts running through her mind.

By the time she'd gotten back to the beach-house, she was in a high-state of agitation - because she was in such a high state of unwanted arousal.

She'd had to pass through the nearby small town to reach the beach - and driving through town, she'd had more guys hoot, holler and whistle at her than she'd thought was in town to begin with...

...and the worst thing was, she couldn't blame any of them for it. Hell, she would have done the same, when she'd been a guy.

Even now, as she slid out of the Jeep, she was hideously aware of how hot she looked - and horrified by how incredibly good she felt about it.

Her body was lean and supple and sexy, with long, smooth legs leading up to trim hips below and even trimmer waist, all in the shadow of her big, round boobs. That slender body was well displayed by the minimal clothing she wore - a leopard-print bikini that exposed her deep cleavage and long legs to her advantage.

Her new face was, quite simply, gorgeous - and the slicked-back hair that framed it had been bleached and died a golden shade of blonde that set off her flawless skin.

She was, quite simply, stunning - and it was driving her nuts to feel so wonderful about something she knew was horrible.

Leaving her purchases in the Jeep for the moment, she headed to the house, eager to get inside and be able to take some time to get a hold of herself.

She was wearing a pair of white sandals with two-inch heels - and she hated the fact that she was wearing heels at all, while her emotions were desperately wishing she were practiced enough to wear even higher heels. The forced her to walk slower than she would have liked - and she 'liked' the way she was swinging her hips, even as she fought to control it.

So, all in all, it was quite the 'entrance' she made...

...and she had an audience to see it.

Stopping dead just inside the door, Bobby stared, jaw dropping.

"Rebecca..." Bobby said, her voice a mixture of anger and shock. "You bitch...!"

"Hello, Bobby." The lean, well-dressed red-head said, sweetly. "Hmmm... doesn't sound to fitting for such a lovely young woman, does it? Perhaps 'Barbie' would be more fitting. Do you mind if I call you that, Barbie?"

The new woman snarled at her tormentress... but only half her attention was on Rebecca. The other half was on the two young men flanking her.

"What the hell have you done to Vince and Jeff?" Bobby/Barbie demanded.

Her friends were standing beside Rebecca - with frighteningly blank looks on their faces, staring fixedly off into nothing.

"Oh, just making a few 'improvements'." Rebecca said, airily. "I don't have anything personal against them, like I did towards you - but I don't want them to continue preying on women like myself. I've... rearranged their preferences."

"What the hell are you talking about...?" Barbie/Bobby demanded, angrily.

"We had a nice little talk. didn't we, boys?" Rebecca said, turning to either side to look at the men flanking her. "We've actually become quite good friends. haven't we, boys?"

"Yes, Rebecca." Jeff and Vince chorused in flat, monotone voices. "We like you. You are smart and beautiful. You are our best friend."

Barbie felt her stomach tighten, and a cold shiver ran down her spine. "You. brain-washed them." She half-whispered.

"Sure did." Rebecca agreed, easily. "You see, I could have done the same for you, made you think any way I wanted you too - but it's much more satisfying to know the 'real' you is trapped in a body and by emotions and urges I've implanted in you. My nanites can be quite.. persuasive, as I'm sure you've noticed."

"What did you do to them?" Barbie demanded.

"Why I made them completely and utterly obedient to you." Rebecca replied.

"What?" Barbie demanded, confused.

"Oh, yes - they'll do anything you want tell them to." Rebecca said, snapping a finger - and animation flooded back into the two men's faces. "Isn't that right, boys?"

"Yes, Rebecca." Vince replied, immediately, looking somehow.. smaller. Diminished. Less sure of himself. "We're so lucky to have such a gorgeous woman as our friend. We'll do anything for her."

"It's the least we can do, making her as happy as we can." Jeff agreed. "Anything she wants, we'll give her."

"You see?" Rebecca said, grinning evilly. "They live but to serve., Why, if you want them to worship you, stroking your body, playing with your big new tits for hours on end, they'll do it."

Barbie shivered as a sudden wave of pleasure rushed through her at the thought. "No...!" She gasped.

"Oh, yes, we will!" Vince hastened to assure her, almost desperately. "Even though you used to be a guy, and it's really disgusting, we'll even have sex with you if you tell us to!"

Barbie's breathing helplessly grew faster, shallower, and she moaned softly.

"Oh, yes, Barbie - not matter how perverted it is, we'll let you suck our cocks whenever you want!" Jeff vowed. She shivered.

"We'll fuck you..."

"...and fondle you..."

"...and kiss you..."

"...and treat you like a sexy woman..." "...no matter how sick it makes us feel!"

"Oh, god...!" She half-sobbed, half-sighed. "Oh..."

Helplessly, body afire with desires she hated having, mind awash with images that disgusted her even as they aroused her, she started towards the two men, her own hands sliding across her highly sensitive new flesh.

"But... I don't want you playing with my big new tits." She gasped, undoing the strings on her top and, leaning her back into Jeff's chest, pulled his hands around onto her boobs.

"I don't want you guys kissing me!" She tried to explain - before reaching out, grabbing Vince, and pulling him to her for a long, deep, passionate kiss.

"I definitely..." She moaned, undoing the strings that held her bottoms on. "...don't want..."

She used one hand on each man's pants, unzipping them. "...to fuck and suck..."

She slowly bent over from the waist, sliding her legs further apart as her new 'slaves' followed the obvious direction of her actions and freed their hardening cocks.

"...my ever-loving brains out!" She finished in a hungry tone of voice - just before she silenced herself by wrapping her new lips firmly around the shaft of Vince's cock, as Jeff slid into her tight, wet new womanhood from behind.

Standing a few feet away, Rebecca watched the three of them sway back and forth, cocks pounding into both top and bottom of a gorgeous, sexy woman who, the day before, had been a man - and she alone, out of anybody who might ever see the trio of friends in the future, knew that each of them was disgusted by what they wouldn't ever be able to stop themselves from doing...

...and, laughing, Rebecca let herself out of the house, vengeance complete.

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: Waking up after a fight with his girl friend, one guy finds himself changing with each step of his high heeled boots.

Reboot

By Gunslinger

Kenneth Dale Ayers stared blankly up at the night sky.

Very slowly, the fact that he was doing so began to percolate through his brain, and a confused frown creased his face.

"Wha... What happened...?" The lean brunet asked himself in a mutter. "Where am I...?"

Blinking rapidly, he pushed himself to a sitting position. He felt... weird. Confused. Unable to concentrate clearly. Almost as if he were drunk or stoned, or both. His head felt as if it were packed full of wool, and thoughts had to force themselves through the thick material as best they could.

Shaking his head in a futile effort to clear it, Ken looked around. He was sitting in the alleyway behind his apartment building.

After a second, he corrected the thought - behind his girlfriend's apartment building, for he'd been living with her.

"Argument. Dana and I had an argument... I think." Ken said, struggling to think. He felt so odd, so disconnected... almost dreamy. Memories and thoughts seemed to want to slip out of his mental grasp. "Dana... kicked me out."

After a long, fuzzy moment, Ken thought to check the pockets of his jeans... and sure enough, he had neither keys nor wallet on him.

Ken and Dana seemed to argue often, and the situation wasn't all that unusual... except for the dreamy, disconnected feeling he was experiencing. Ken drank quite a bit, and sometimes did pot, and Dana didn't approve of either. Had he sampled a new drug, which had been the cause of the argument this time...?

Ken couldn't quite remember what had happened. After another long, confused moment, he realized it didn't really matter, at least, not at the moment. As he'd been kicked out a few times before, he had a routine - heading over to his best friend Mark Dupries' house, and hanging out there until Dana cooled down. It seemed like time to repeat the routine. Shaking his head in another futile attempt to get his mind working, Ken started to stand up...

...and promptly fell back down again.

It wasn't because he was drunk and/or stoned, either.

"What the...?" Ken muttered fuzzily. He pulled at the legs of his jeans, dragging the cuffs higher... and suddenly recalled what the argument had been about.

Dana had been right outraged, more offended than he'd ever seen her before, when she'd opened the gift he'd bought for her - a pair of calf-high, glossy hot-pink boots with six-inch stiletto heels.

The boots he was wearing right now.

Mushily, Ken simply stared at the boots for a long moment, slowly coming to realize that she must have put them on him before kicking him out. Dimly, he wondered how she'd managed that, as he wasn't likely to sit idly by while she did. Had she drugged him somehow...?

It finally occurred to Ken to take the damned things off. The only problem was, when he tried to do so, they refused to budge.

At first he thought it was because they were too tight - hardly a bulky guy, he nevertheless had larger feet than Dana. After a few futile attempts to remove the hot-pink boots, however, he began to wonder if she'd glued them on or something.

"Shit!" He muttered - she really was pissed. In truth, he hadn't really expected her to be overjoyed by the gift - but he certainly hadn't expected her reaction to be this extreme. Blinking in annoyed confusion, he tugged the cuffs of his jeans back down, hiding as much of the feminine footwear as possible.

Very, very carefully, using a wall for support, Ken managed to get to his feet, wobbling unsteadily atop the high, slender heels. After an overly-long moment of consideration, Ken decided to take 'the back way' to Mark's house, so as to limit the chances of anybody seeing him in the boots.

Wobbling, he made his way down the alley, staying close to the wall. The night was cool, and the breeze that ruffled his muddy-brown crew-cut was brisk. The baggy white t-shirt he wore didn't offer much protection, and he shivered slightly as he carefully navigated to the last deep pool of shadows before the end of the alley.

Very carefully, Ken leaned forward and glanced up and down the street. Reassured to see no sign of life, he took a deep breath. Arms held wide of his body for balance, he hurried across the open street, high heels clicking against the pavement as he hurried to reach the questionable 'safety' of the next ally over.

Once in the narrow passage way of the next block, ken let out a whooshing breath - trying to run in high heels was a real pain...

A moment later, as he carefully ankled his way down the alley, Ken suddenly realized that his last thought had been metaphorical, not literal - despite the fact that his feet must be jammed into the boots, there was no actual pain.

Almost instinctively, he glanced down at the gleaming pink footwear, but didn't stop taking the short, careful simpering steps as he considered the situation...

...and then he did come up short staring down at the boots in confusion. At the clearly visible boots.

Kenny frowned in confusion, probing his hazy memory - hadn't he pulled the cuffs of his jeans down to hide the boots...?

A second look - and Kenny chuckled at himself. "Man, I really am out of it..." He chuckled to himself.

He couldn't possibly have pulled the cuffs of the boots down - because he was wearing Capri jeans, and the cuffs didn't go down any further than the tops of the boots.

Still chuckling at himself, he continued down the alleyway, sluggishly mulling over half-formed thoughts and humming a little tune in time to the clicking of his heels.

Humming happily to himself, Kenni turned out the end of the alley and headed down the street. Hips encased in a purplish-blue pair of spandex bike shorts swung and swiveled in time with his steady, confident stride, and the clicking of his high heels matched the bouncy little tune he was humming. The cool night air caressed the smooth, hairless skin revealed by his midriff-baring skin-tight white shirt, and ruffled his thick thatch of light brown hair.

All of the sudden, Kenni came to a dead stop, giggling in confusion.

He'd suddenly remembered that he hadn't wanted to be seen walking the streets... or, at least, he thought he remembered thinking that.

What he couldn't remember was why.

It seemed to be something about the way he was dressed - but he couldn't quite put his finger on it, as he couldn't clearly remember how he was 'supposed' to be dressed. Since he couldn't remember what was 'right', he couldn't tell what was 'wrong' - and the fact that he knew there was something wrong but unable to put his finger on it only made it worse.

Annoyed, Kenni giggled in frustration, then resumed walking. That nagging feeling of something being very wrong stuck with him, but there wasn't much he could do about it right now - but he did remember that he was heading to Mark's house, and he was sure Mark, who wouldn't be fuzzy-headed, would be able to point out what was wrong.

Yes - that was the answer. Mark would know what to do. Kenni shouldn't waste time trying to think about it - even if that annoying realization that something was wrong continued niggling in the back of his brain.

Once more, Kenni began walking.

Soon enough, despite that unformed disquiet nagging at the back of his mind, he was once more humming cheerfully as he wiggled down the street atop his high, slender heels. It really was a pleasant night - since he seemed to be filled with a low, liquid warmth, it was actually quite pleasant to have the cool breeze playing with his shoulder-length sandy-blonde mane. With every stride, his well-rounded hips swiveled, causing the hem of his fuchsia skirt to flip pertly, and the combination of tight fabric and cool air brought the large nipples to pleasant life atop his firm, domed breasts, and...

Breasts?!

In horror, Kendi whirled and stared at the ghostly projection displayed in the plate-glass window of the closed storefront he was passing.

"Oh my Gawd...!" Kendi gasped in a husky contralto voice, jaw slowly dropping as he took in the reflection.

It wasn't him.

He knew that, because he was damned sure he was a guy... even if he couldn't quite pull up a clear memory of what the guy he was supposed to be looked like. Worrisome as that lack of self-image was, Kendi was nevertheless dead certain he was, in fact, male...

...while the reflection gaping back at him looked most assuredly feminine. Perhaps a bit 'mannish', but it looked like a mannish woman, without a doubt.

One slender hand shot down under his skirt - and he winced in renewed horror as he felt a pathetically small example of manhood. He couldn't remember how big he was supposed to be 'down there', but he knew it was supposed to be more than this infantile example of manhood.

Likewise, he was damned sure he was now 'over endowed', in the feminine sense. Sure, the firm little dome-like breasts were, at best, a 'B' cup... but he knew, knew he wasn't supposed to have any breasts at all.

Likewise, he was facing a growing certainty that his clothes were changing, as well. She couldn't quite clearly remember what type of pants he'd been wearing when he'd set out, but he was certain they had been pants... not the fuchsia skirt that now adorned trim, yet womanly hips.

"I'm, like, turning into a girl!" Kendi gasped, horrified. "Oh my Gawd, I gotta, like, so totally get to... to "

Confusion, and not a little fear, caused his brow to crease as he struggled to remember his best friend's name. Hazily, he could remember what the guy looked like by try as he might, Kendi couldn't remember his name.

"This, like, totally sucks!" Kendi declared, with an angry giggle. Fear and horror now roiling around in his mind along with the ever-stronger sense of disquiet, he picked up the pace, hips swaying and breasts bouncing as he moved confidently, if a bit 'sissy-ishly' atop the heels of his cute pink boots.

"Oh, like, groady!" Kendi giggled to himself. "Did I just think my boots are, like, cute? I mean, they are... but I'm not supposed to think about it right?"

The vapid little smile on his face faltered for a second as he realized he just didn't know. Memory and thought were hazy, and he wasn't sure what were the 'right' thoughts and the 'wrongs' thoughts but he knew for certain that he was thinking at least some 'wrong' thoughts, and the fact that he couldn't tell which were which really worried him.

Heels clicking on the pavement, the blonde reached the corner, looked left... then right and a look of horrified confusion grew in realization:

"Oh my Gawd, I'm, like, totally lost!" Kandi told herself in a breathy soprano...

* * * * *

Several blocks away, Dana Galloway's emerald eyes popped open as the self-satisfied smirk slid off her face to be replaced with a look of dawning horror.

He revenge on her in-man-ways-EX-boyfriend had seemed to be going perfectly. She'd had a 'mental lock' on him-becoming-her - not able to 'see' the transformation, merely taste the growing confusion and horror.

The fact that Dana couldn't see where 'Kandi' was hadn't seemed a problem, thanks to the compulsion Dana had given the woman-becoming to go to Mark's. That would have made it simplicity itself to find 'her' when it was time to change 'her' back into the properly chastened Ken...

...but, in horror, Dana realized her anger had led her to 'overdo' the mental degradation and while Kandi still had that compulsion to find her friend, the taste of her thoughts told Dana that she no longer remembered who she was looking for, much less how to get there...

Shock held her immobile for a long moment - then Dana desperately began pulling on her coat and shoes.

The one consolation, such as it was, was the fact that 'Kandi', like Dana, was on foot - and Dana could move a lot faster in her sensible 'flats' than in the ridiculously high-heeled 'bimbo boots' Ken had the effrontery to try and give her as a gift...

* * * * *

Giggling worriedly, Kandi turned the little piece of paper around in her hand.

Things were worse now than they were before. She was sure of that much - she knew there where things she'd been able to think of earlier, even if she no longer could remember what those thoughts were. She was also sure her body had changed a lot from whatever she'd looked like before... but the changes seemed to have stopped, even if she couldn't recall just how much different she was than the man she was fairly sure she'd once been.

The little piece of paper, however, was what currently consumed what little mental ability still at her command.

She couldn't make heads nor tails of it.

As soon as she'd seen the balled-up bit of trash on the sidewalk, held in place by the wind against a aluminum sign-post, she'd felt a strange thrill of recognition. She'd seen such a piece of paper before, and had known what it was, and it's purpose.

The problem was, even though she knew, without a doubt, that she had once known what it was, she no longer did. She'd carefully smoothed it out, peered at it this way and that, but all she'd been able to gather was that she could no longer decipher the squiggly markings, even though she was sure she used to know how to 'read'...

"Well...?" A gravelly voice said, irritably.

Kandi's head snapped up, confusion on her features as she stared uncomprehendingly at the owner of the voice.

On some level, she'd been aware of the rumbling blat of the large vehicle, the his and squeal of brakes... but it hadn't meant much to her, especially with her scant thoughts bent to the little piece of paper in her hand.

Now, a broad smile suddenly flared to life on Kandi's face as the big vehicle - and it's driver's irate expression as he stared at her - suddenly made a connection.

It was a hazy connection, at best, with no context to frame it - but it was nevertheless more than what she'd held before. Despite the fear and misgivings still rattling around in her mind, she felt a thrill of triumph. Giggling in delight, she jiggled and swayed into the vehicle to share her 'burst of brilliance' with the sour-faced man who, for some reason, was staring at her chest.

"I have a transfer!" She told him, brightly, extending the piece of paper for his perusal.

Seeming to have a hard time taking his eyes from her chest, the bus driver finally managed to tear his gaze away, looking down at the 'bus transfer' she now knew it to be.

"Hey - this expired almost an hour ago." He exclaimed - eyes flitting back to her torso.

"Oh..." Kandi said, pouting in disappointment - she wasn't quite sure what that meant, her whole grasp of the concept of 'busses' and 'transfers' tenuous... but his tone told her she'd somehow done something wrong. What happened if you were found with an 'expired transfer'...? She couldn't remember, but it might be really bad.

"I, like... can't read..." She explained in a very small voice, hoping the fact would mitigate whatever punishment there was for being found with an 'expired transfer'. She wondered if she should explain it wasn't really hers, that she'd just found it, but...

The driver made a very odd sound - something like snort, but also like a laugh.

"...I shoulda guessed, huh?" He asked her in an odd tone, quite brazenly looking her up and down. Unhappily aware that she was wearing a body not really her own, Kandi squirmed a bit under his open gaze.

"Okay..." The driver finally sighed, closing the door. Fear shot through Kandi as he locked her in the vehicle - what was he going to do...

"...move to the back of the bus and take a seat." The driver said, almost like a chant.

Confused and nervous, Kandi carefully made her way all the way to the back of the bus and sat down. What was going on? Where was he taking her? If only she could remember what a 'bus' was for, she might understand what was going on. As it was, she was too scared and confused to do anything but follow the man's orders - she knew she didn't understand any of this.

That sparked a dim shadow of a thought - the way the man had looked at her. After a second's confused consideration, it finally occurred to her to glance downward...

If she hadn't just been finishing an exhale, a soprano scream of horror would have rung out. As it was, only a thin sound, buried in the rumble of the diesel engine, managed to escape as she surveyed her body.

Seeing what her body looked like was easy enough - the tiny little hot-pink skirt was barely wider than the gloss-white patent-leather belt that held it low-slung on her wide-rounded hips. The white spandex crop-top was equally abbreviated... despite it's monumental task of having to contain her massive breasts.

"My... My boobies are, like... really, really, huge!" Kandi gasped, in shock. Then her head snapped to the side, and she gazed in horror at the reflection the window provided.

A massive mane of wavy, platinum-blond hair surround an oval-shaped face that boasted full, gloss-pink lips, a cute, upturned nose... and a pair of wide, powder-blue eyes that looked as if nary a single thought had passed behind them.

"I'm, like, a total bimbo...!" She breathed in horror - her gaze fixated on the reflection in the glass, so she failed to notice the view outside the glass as a tall, athletic red-headed woman dashed up to the corner where the bus-stop was. The woman gazed down the street away from the bus... and then was lost to view as the bus itself turned onto the next block before the woman could turn around...

* * * * *

Dana nervously tugged at her lower lip, then sighed.

There was no other choice. It was either this, or just give up on finding 'Kandi'... and she couldn't do that. Crude and chauvinistic as Ken might have been, this was supposed to have been a lesson for him, a way to teach him women were more than just sexual objects. Even if everything had gone exactly as planned, she still would have felt guilty about what she'd done - after all, she'd cast the spell in the heat of the moment.

Unfortunately, she'd made it too strong, and Kandi had forgotten too much - and Dana couldn't reverse the spell unless she touched Kandi.

Unfortunately, there was only one way to find her...

'Thankfully', she'd found a store that was still open and sold something close enough to what she needed for this to work.

Taking a deep breath, Dana finished her preparations - and then cast the spell of affinity.

Once she was done casting the spell, she worked hard at remaining calm, trying to clear her mind. She began walking, without even thinking about where she was going. Unfortunately, there was no immediate 'tug' in her mind, which meant that Kandi wasn't close by - but the longer the spell of affinity went on, the longer-ranged and more powerful the attraction would get.

She just hoped it wouldn't take all that long to find her.

Dana paused to remove her bra before her slowly-swelling breasts could make the garment painfully restrictive and then once again began wandering aimlessly, the stiletto heels of her calf- high black patent leather boots tapping on the pavement.

* * * * *

"Come along now, my dear " Sam said, an oily grin on his lean face.

"Okay " Kandi said, her high-pitched voice dreamy and oddly disconnected. Smiling vapidly, she followed the lean, dark-haired man she'd met on the bus into the small and generally run-down bungalow on the edge of town.

She felt like she was floating through a wonderful world of light and color. Shapes and colors seemed to speak to her, suggesting something too deep and awesome for her to comprehend. Though her limited mind couldn't begin to understand the complex connections to the universe, awe and a strangely dreamy delight filled her.

Even that 'voice' desperately shouting for her attention in the back of her mind was wonderful and awe-inspiring...

Kandi giggled dreamily as she let herself be led into the living-room. The play of light off the tarnished brass lamp in the corner filled her with inexplicable awe, and the incredibly powerful feeling that something was very, very wrong filled her with delight.

"How you feelin', babe ?" Sam asked, smile widening on a face that bore a more-than-passing resemblance to that of a weasel.

There was a short pause before Kandi answered in that disconnected voice: "I feel, Like...

Giggle... really good. Those, y'know, pills you gave me make me feel.... like, totally awesome "

"Like I said, babe - friends like to make friends feel good right?"

"Okay " Kandi agreed dreamily, tacking on yet another vapid giggle. Idly, she thought how lucky she was to find a nice friend like Sam. As soon as she'd told him she had no money and no place to go, he'd volunteered to be her friend - as, as he'd said several times now, since friends like to make friends feel nice, he'd given her a couple of little white pills...

Sensations registered on her mind, and Kandi realized while she'd been dreamily contemplating her good fortune, Sam had led her unresisting body over to the couch, and she now sat on his lap... while his hands caressed her body.

Kandi frowned slightly, and opened her mouth to ask Sam a question - and he kissed her, hard, fast, and hungry.

Confused, she gave minimal cooperation, more letting him kiss her than kissing him back, and when he broke the kiss, she looked at him with dreamy confusion.

"What.... what are you doing...?" She asked.

"Just giving you what you want babe..." Sam said, with a chuckle, his hands stroking the firm, silk flesh of her legs.

"What? I... I don't..."

He kissed her again, even harder, then chuckled. His hands rose, and she gave a little gasp as he grabbed one massive breast through the skimpy white crop-top.

"You want men to touch you." He told her, groping her stupendous bust. "You're a horny little bimbo, and you love being men's sexual plaything."

"I... I do..." She asked, in confusion.

"Look at yourself!" Sam sneered, hands roaming her unresisting body at will. "Huge breasts, skimpy clothes, high heels - you're a real bimbo in every way..."

"Well, yeah, I guess..." She agreed with a cute little pout - for some reason the word 'bimbo' resonated strongly somewhere inside her mind. It would be easier to track the thought down if that wonderful screaming in the back of her bemused mind hadn't gotten so loudly insistent, but...

"Bimbos love being little fuck-machines for men... and you're a bimbo, aren't you, Kandi?" He pressed.

"Yeah..."

"Well, since you're a bimbo, you love being a mindless little fuck-doll." He pointed out.

"Oh... Okay..." She agreed, dreamily - and this time, when his hungry lips met hers, she cooperated fully, even as his hands yanked up her top to exposed her huge, round boobs.

It's a good thing she had Sam to explain things to her, she thought as he began kneading her massive mounds of tit-flesh - otherwise, she might have mistaken the sudden shudder that ran through her body as one of disgust, rather than the utter delight she now knew it must be...

* * * * *

Had anybody else been walking down that particular side-street in the wee small hours of the night, they would have been treated to an interesting sight.

Glad all in black, the buxom redhead balanced atop high, slender heels and walked with a sensual sway to her well-rounded hips. Long nailed hands were squeezing and teasing the full, firm breasts under her black vest, and on her face was a look of hungry pleasure.

"Yes..." She moaned, her voice husky. "Yes, we love getting men all hot and horny with our sexy body..."

Then her head jerked suddenly, her shoulder-length mane of fiery hair whipping around her face. "No!" She gasped, in a completely different tone of voice. "No, she don't! We only think I do!"

Gasping, her emerald eyes flashing both hate and fear, she never broke her powerful-yet-sexy stride... even as a helpless, hungry moan escaped her full lips, and, almost against her will, her hands once more began to rise towards her impressive bust...

* * * * *

"Yes, yes - play with my big, huge boobies!" Kandi cried - just as Sam had told her to. She giggled and gasped as his hands roughly caressed her now-naked body hungrily.

"What are you...?" Sam demanded, a hungry and somehow cruel edge to his voice. "Say it, cunt - say it!"

Under a renewed helping of those wonderful little pills, Kandi mindlessly parroted back the words Sam had given her:

"I'm just a huge-boobed little mindless fuck-doll bimbo - and I love it!" She shouted, with a giggle. "I...!"

Her vapid smile vanished, and her voice died in mid-word as an odd expression came to her face. She looked around, confused, as if she didn't know where she was, or what she was doing. Her gaze fell on the naked, sweaty man looming over her on the couch, and confusion began to give way to fear...

"What to do you want men to do to you, bimbo?" The man demanded, harshly.

"I... I don't..." She said in a small voice, making weak, ineffectual attempts to twist away from his groping hands, her mind whirling.

"Say it, you dumb slut! Say what bimbos like you want men to do!" Sam ordered.

She blinked in fear and confusion - then smiled hesitantly as what she was supposed to say came to mind:

"Fuck me!" She cried, her voice quavering and just a bit uncertain. "Fuck me good and hard like the dumb little bimbo slut I am!"

Roughly, he she shoved her creamy thighs apart - and a huge shudder of... delight... took hold of her as his throbbing manhood thrust hard and deep into the moist confines of her cunt.

"Yes..." She said, questioningly - and then, as he began to pump harder, and she felt some pleasure begin to combat that annoying voice now gibbering insanely in the back of her mind, she smiled and spoke with more certainty:

* * * * *

"Fuck us... fuck us good and hard!"

Her stride had become unsteady... because her broad, womanly hips twitched rhythmically. Her face was a study in contrasts as she struggled for control.

"Oh, God, yes..." She moaned - and then, in a tone of horror, said, "Oh, God, no!"

Huge breasts swaying with every twitching step, the woman with the massive man of red hair kept going - and her emerald eyes flashed between homicidal rage and uncontrollable lust, all against a dancing backdrop that hung right on the knife's edge of utter madness.

Then, helpless, she threw her head back and moaned long and loud as the rhythm of her bucking hips increased and she charged headlong towards...

* * * * *

...the orgasm ripped through her entire body, and even that nagging voice in her mind was momentarily silenced as she screamed out in ecstasy, huge breasts bouncing wildly as Sam pounded into her hard and fast, until he, too, reached orgasm.

As Sam's rank, sweaty body collapsed atop her, Kandi simply continued staring mindless into the infinite. Her bright blue eyes were empty of any thought, and she occasionally let a little giggle escape from her mindlessly grinning lips.

After some time, Sam rolled heavily off of her, but Kandi gave no sign she noticed, merely continuing to stare at nothing and giggling. When he came back, she docilely swallowed the pair of little white pills he slipped between her full lips. Smirking evilly down at his new, personal 'fuck-doll', Sam chuckled, then padded off to get a shower.

Which was why he wasn't around to see Kandi's face suddenly go completely blank.

With a strange sort of almost mechanical grace, her face utterly expressionless, Kandi rose to her feet and walked with an eerily smooth stride to the front door. Emotionless, she snapped open the deadbolt, then disengaged the lock on the knob. Her face still wooden, she twisted the knob and stepped back, swinging the door open to allow the figure on the step to enter...

* * * * *

The sound of a key in the door made Mark Dupries look up - and as it swung open to reveal a very familiar figure indeed, the lean, athletically-handsome sandy-blond rose from the couch with a smile.

"You're home early, honey..." Mark said, as he headed towards her - and, then, as he often did, he paused to once again appreciate the sight of his wife.

Dressed all in white, Candice Dupries looked cool, elegant... and, yes, sexy. Not that there was anything blatantly overt about it. Given her long-legged, emphatically hourglass figure, however, a certain amount of sexuality was a given.

She head turned, and the cool blue eyes caught him staring. One finally-arched brow rose slightly, and despite everything, Mark felt the faintest hint of a blush at her cool, almost impersonally imperious glance.

Her motions smoothly economical, she gracefully removed the fitted white single-breasted jacket that matched her knee-length linen skirt. Despite the way her remarkably full, firm breasts strained at the short-sleeve silk blouse she wore under the jacket, there was nothing overtly erotic about the garment's removal. Though she had a figure out of most men's wet dreams, her smoothly graceful movements contained no sexual aspects at all, and her cool gaze tended to end any unwanted bids for her attention.

"The meeting ran much shorter than we expected..." She explained in her cool, sweet soprano. She moved towards him, the three-inch heels of her white pumps clicking against the tile floor as the shapely legs clad in white nylon scissored in a brisk, no-nonsense stride that lent little movement to her well-rounded hips.

"The last thing we could have scheduled for was having everything go perfectly, without a hitch." She finished explaining, coolly, as she reached him. Her body held so erect that it would have been 'stiff', if not for her innate grace, she tilted her head slightly and leaned forward, proffering her lips almost impersonally for a kiss.

Her expression was distant, her body-language almost formal... and yet, the kiss she delivered when his lips met hers was hungry and purely sexual. It went on for some time, and Mark felt his cock stiffening rapidly long before she finally broke the kiss.

"So, how was your day?" Candace asked, her tone polite. Casually, she reached up and began to unbutton her blouse.

"Good." Mark said, a bit hoarsely. His hands reached out to her bared breasts, and she stood there, smiling impersonally at him, almost as if she were unaware he was fondling her massive, firm breasts.

"Did you have lunch with Danecia?" She asked, her voice sounding only politely interested.

"Mmm-hmm" He murmured acknowledgement from around her fat, fully erect nipple as he sucked hungrily.

"That's good." Candice said. "She doesn't get out often enough."

Then, gently but firmly disengaging Mark from her huge breasts, she sank gracefully to her knees.

"No offence..." Mark said, throatily, as she calmly unzipped his pants. "...but your sister is a little... strange."

"No offense taken." Candice said, calmly. "I'm glad you get along with her, though - and I know she truly does appreciate what you do for me..."

For a minute, a wicked grin crossed his lips - and then her expression once again became polite attentive... as she leaned forward and hungrily sucked his hard cock into her eager mouth.

* * * * *

In the 'in-law' suite at the other end of the house, 'Danecia' moaned as she felt Eric's cock fill her/their eager mouth.

Every sensation 'Candice' felt, so did she. Since, aside from coloration, the two women were physically identical, it made for some truly amazing sensations, since everything was 'perfectly proportionate'. The feel of her 'sisters' huge breasts swaying was exactly as it would feel for her... yet, at the same time, Dana also felt the sensations as she eagerly squeezed and fondled one of her own identically huge breasts.

Her other hand, however, was just wrapping itself around a thick black plastic dildo, and she squirmed in her chair and moaned anew as she drew the plastic phallus towards her sopping wet cunt.

* * * * *

In cell 12, 'John Doe' thrashed wildly against the restraints that held him in bed. The dark eyes in his narrow face bulged as he stared sightless up towards the asylum's ceiling.

Helplessly, he/she/they felt Mark pump cum down his/her/their throat, even as he/she/they felt the dildo plunging deep into his/her/their cunt. Both sets of huge breasts he didn't have bounced as he/she/they fucked/sucked the cock/dildo hungrily. Then he/she/they swallowed the last drop of cum, and lay back to let Mark return the favor.

His throat no longer blocked by the cock that he'd not been sucking, what little of 'Sam' remained in the mind that experienced every single sensation that the 'sisters' felt was finally free again to take up a mantra long familiar to the staff of the insane asylum.

"Make them stop..." a cracked and broken voice begged in a tortured whisper, even as helpless sounds of pleasure were dragged from that same throat as the cunts he didn't have were licked/fucked.

"Make them stop..." THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: After a chauvinistic truck driver gets into a major crash, he awakens to discover that he has been transformed by the woman driver who he had cut off on the highway.

Reconstructed

By Gunslinger

Life was good.

The big engine of his '72 GMC step-side rumbled reassuringly as he eased down on the gas, moving the heavy blue-and-primer pick-up up the hill with power enough to push the vehicle even faster than the twenty over the limit he was doing now. Some of them yuppie assholes liked their little, foreign made sport-cars - but see if those Krauts and Japs could build engines that would accelerate more than a ton of Detroit rolling iron up a Tennessee hill. Hell, any engine could move a tin-can like them 'sports cars' they sold nowadays.

Lifting the big bottle of 8.0 beer to his lips, Mike snorted. He wouldn't be caught dead buying a car - or anything else, for that matter - that wasn't American made. You couldn't trust a damned one of those foreigners. Hell, in W.W.II, they were the enemy - now, they were not only selling stuff over here, but they were damned well taking over. 'Course, it was the fault of those damned crooked politicians up in Washington. Well, give 'em a couple more years digging themselves deeper, and the American people would finally rise up like they did in the Revolution, and kick ass and take names.

Settling the bottle of beer back between his legs, Mike pushed the big truck a little faster. Born and raised in this very county, the tall, heavy man knew every inch of these roads, and wasn't afraid of getting into an accident. Hell - he'd driven home on these roads, drunker'n a skunk, and had never had anything worse than a fender bender - and that had been when he was pulling up in his own driveway, for God's sake.

Cresting the hill, Mike cursed and tromped on the break while slamming a fist against the horn. His cursing increased as he felt the cold, wet sensation of the spilled bottle of beer pouring down his jeans.

"Get outta the way!" Mike hollered out the window. The little white Jap-mobile he'd barely avoided plowing into was poking along, a good five miles under the speed limit. Even worse, the driver - had to be a woman, he thought sourly - was taking all the curves wide, hogging up the road. Hell, she had a good two feet of clearance on that side, yet she was driving like she was going to tumble off the side of the hill.

Hanging his out the window, Mike began to bawl the driver out. In the glare of the GMC's high- mounted headlights, he could see the driver was some chink bitch, and that only made him madder.

Finally, truly pissed at the dumb bitch, Mike had decided he'd had enough. Stepping on the gas, he began to inch forward on the little car.

The driver of the other car took one look at the huge front grill getting closer and closer to the back of her car and immediately got the point. Slowly accelerating, she began nervously edging to one side, an inch at the time.

Laying on the horn, Mike accelerated. There was a brief squeal as metal kissed metal, but Mike ignored it, knowing which vehicle would come out on the short end of that contact. Big engine roaring, Mike pulled up even with the driver's side window of the smaller car.

The woman in the car looked up at him, anger in her dark, slanty eyes.

"Go back to Gookland, you no good Jap bitch!" Mike called through the open window. Then, stomping on the gas, he purposefully twisted the wheel slightly as he pulled away. In his rearview mirror, he was rewarded with the sight of her panicked reaction, pulling to a shuddering stop at the edge of the drop-off.

Shaking his head, Mike leaned over and bent down to open the cooler on the floor passenger's side. As he grabbed another beer, he twisted the wheel slightly, not even having to look up to know where the curve was.

He sat up just in time to see the rear-end of the eighteen-wheeler stalled just around the corner. With no time to react, Mike didn't have time to scream as his pick-up slammed into the back of the pipe- laden flat-bed trailer at forty-two miles per hour.

* * * * *

He awoke slowly, the lights seeming to slowly brighten rather than to simply snap on. Even when there was enough light for his brain to begin processing visual information, all he saw was a blurry mass of color and movement. It seemed to take forever for his eyes to focus.

"Ah - you're awake." A feminine voice spoke in a sarcastic, coolly satisfied tone. "Good."

He strained - and the world popped into focus. For several seconds, he merely stared at what he saw.

It was an oriental woman. ('Jap Cunt.' his mind gave him at the same instant.) Short, slender, and vaguely pretty with her smooth skin, silky mane of raven hair and dark, mysterious eyes, she was dressed in a long white... it wasn't a dress, but although he should know the term, it wouldn't come to mind. She was looking at him clinically, hands on her slender hips.

Concentrating, he realized he'd seen this woman before, somewhere. She had looked different then. Different clothes, and different attitude - not like now, she'd been afraid?

Then, like a light bulb snapping on, the last few minutes before the crash unreeled in his mind. It was if he was outside, looking in. He couldn't remember his thoughts, or the reasons behind his actions - he could only watch it happen as memory replayed just the visual and audio portions of the event.

Realizing he'd been in an accident - a bad one - left him confused and scared, feeling like his head was packed full of cotton wadding. As for his body - well, from his body he got nothing, no sensation at all, as if it wasn't even there.

"What happened? Where am I? What's going on?" He demanded...

...or tried to.

All that emerged were unintelligible sounds, completely unlike the ones he was attempting to make.

The woman smiled at him. "I didn't understand a word of that - but I can guess what you were trying to ask." With a theatrical bow, she introduced herself. "I am Linda Mikasuki. Doctor Mikasuki."

With a start, he suddenly realized something as she introduced herself...

...he couldn't remember who he was. No matter how hard he tried, he couldn't bring his name to mind. In the panic that began to creep up on him as he strained - in vain - to recall who he was, he almost missed her next words.

"You're at my own, private lab. You see, the accident was pretty bad. A lot of broken bones, some internal injuries, some burns - really, really bad. In fact - so bad that you died."

That got his attention. Trying to speak, he only made another grunt, but she seemed to know what he was trying to say.

"Yes - legally, you're dead. However, I had... plans. So, I 'stole' your body from the morgue, and revived you. Ethically, I shouldn't have - after all, reviving after that long results in at least some brain- damage."

The rising panic threatened to overwhelm him. Brain damage? That's why he couldn't remember things, why he felt so slow and stupid. Why had she revived him like this?

"As for my plans..." She said, seeming to read his mind. "I've decided that you deserve more just then simply dying from your stupidity..."

Frantically, he tried to make some sort of protest. Although he wasn't sure what, exactly, was going on his mind was too fuzzy to consider it clearly - he knew that she wasn't his friend, and whatever she had planned for him wasn't good.

"The reason you can't feel your body is because you've been give an anesthetic to numb you. It's necessary, you see, while I rebuild your body the way I want it to look." The woman smiled cruelly. "I think you're going to find it... interesting."

He tried to make a sound, which only produced another grunt.

"Oh, by the way - you'll need a name. I think Meesha would do just fine don't you?"

Before he could answer, the world began to fade out, the colors slowly draining away as darkness came to claim him. As his brain shut down, the last though he had was that he simply didn't know whether or not 'Meesha' would do....

* * * * *

The darkness retreated, and.....

Even as he came awake, he found his mind casting about. He was lost, not knowing where he was, or why - or who he was.

Then a name came to him. Meesha. It seemed to take forever for it to rise up out of his befogged mind, and when it did it still felt odd. But it was better than nothing.

Meesha tried to focus his mind. Although he was now fully conscious, he had been ignoring his surroundings while he struggled to think. Now, he turned his attention to what he saw, his mind struggling to interpret the images into something sensible.

He was standing in a room of some sort. White, sterile, unadorned, the room's only feature was the other person who shared it with Meesha.

He focused on the individual, wondering if he knew the person. Nothing came to mind, but that didn't mean anything to him at the moment. Instead, he focused his attention on looking at the person.

It was a woman. She had skin that was a dusky, bronze-like shade that...

Oriental? The word came slowly through his mind, instead of immediately as it should have. But it felt right - the woman he was looking at appeared to be Oriental, judging from the skin color and the way her eyes look.

Feeling a burst of satisfaction at dredging up that fact, it took Meesha several minutes to realize that what he was seeing didn't quite jibe with what patchy thoughts his mind could bring to bear on the concept of 'Oriental'.

If she was oriental, then she was tall for an oriental - or for even a... an a woman from somewhere else. Also, she had really, really big...

Meesha's brow furrowed as he struggled with the concept. Then it registered - tits. Boobs. Knockers. This woman had extremely large tits. They were huge, no matter what race she was - and he could easily tell, because the woman was naked.

Okay - so she was tall for an Asian, and had huge tits. But she had the right skin, eyes - and long, dark black hair. All of that seemed to register as being right.

Only now - nearly twenty minutes after first looking at her - did it seem strange to Meesha that she was just standing there, looking at him. She seemed confused, standing with her long, shapely legs spread slightly apart for balance, her small, long-nailed hands hanging at her side. Her cunt, lightly trimmed with a patch of pubic hair, was being displayed unselfconsciously, as she was making no move to cover either the cunt or the huge breasts.

Meesha struggled with the concept of speech, trying to force his slow, foggy mind to work. "Hello?"

She didn't respond, and Meesha wondered if he'd done something wrong.

Then a few things began to register on him. Like the fact that his voice didn't seem to sound right to him. Or the fact that he was fighting to balance as he stood there. Frowning, it finally dawned on him to look down and see why he felt so odd, so awkward.

He stared for nearly three minutes at the large, dusky spheres that seemed to be blocking his view. Then it registered - he couldn't see himself because his huge, firm, massive-nippled tits were in the...

Tits?

Meesha screamed as he - she - finally made the obvious connections. There was no other person in the room - he was looking in a mirror.

Dr. Mikasuki had reconstructed his body all right - into a huge breasted Asian woman.

Now that the thought had finally registered - he did his best to deny it. Numbly, he lifted one hand upwards, and another downwards...

In the mirror, the tall, huge-breasted Asian - with a stunned look on her face - slid one hand upwards to cup a huge, massive tit that her tiny, dainty hand didn't even come close to containing. At the same time, the other hand moved across the smooth, taut thigh to gently slide across the downy patch of hair and lightly finger the opening that nestled in the vee of her crotch....

Meesha screamed as the sensations proved, beyond a doubt, that this impossible - feminine - body was hers.

"I see you're awake again."

Meesha awkwardly turned, the mass of her gigantic tits threatening to pull her off balance as she faced Dr. Mikasuki.

"You crashed again, and I had to revive you. More brain damage, I think." She said the words with a cruel smile. "But, I used the time wisely - I put you on long-term sedation and Electro-muscle stimulation while I finished the reconstructive surgery.

"But.... but..." Meesha stumbled, trying to find the words. "I'm... a woman!"

"Yeah - you're a 'Jap Cunt'. A gook with tits like beach-balls. I'm really sorry that I'm not going to be able to watch you try to deal with being a dumb, huge-breasted Asian woman - but the knowledge I'd done it to you will give me great satisfaction in the years to come."

"I..." Meesha struggled for words, but never got the chance. While she was trying to think, Dr. Mikasuki stepped forward and injected her with a large needle, and the world went dark.

* * * * *

Meesha woke with a start, heart pounding. What was going on? Where was she? Who was she?

Some things trickled back through her swiss-cheesed memory. Bits and pieces, but enough for her to form a working sense of self. The worst part was, she couldn't remember if she was remembering all of what she did remember - or if even more of her memory was missing. She just couldn't remember how much she didn't remember.

For several seconds, she merely stared up at the ceiling. It was a faintly off-white stucco that looked like it had been there for many, many years, gathering cigarette smoke and other discoloration. A crack ran down one corner, and there was a large water stain near the middle of her view.

It was a ceiling she'd never seen before in her life - as far as she could remember - and about as far from the clean white acoustical tiles of the lab that you could get.

Slowly, fighting the drag of the massive tits riding on her chest, Meesha forced herself into a sitting position. As she did so, the thin, frayed blanket covering her outrageous figure slipped down, exposing her massive tits to cool air and causing her enormous nipples to swell. Ignoring the sensation as best she could, she surveyed her surroundings.

It seemed to take forever before it registered - she was in a motel room. A very, very cheap motel room.

She sat still for a second longer, wondering why there was no sign of Dr. Mikasuki. How was she going to do anything without help?

Then, vaguely, she recalled that she didn't like the Doctor for some reason. She couldn't remember why, right now, but that was probably why she wasn't here. That made things a bit better for her, knowing that there was a reason she was alone here - wherever here was, and however she'd gotten here.

Hesitantly, Meesha swung her long, shapely legs over the side of the bed and forced herself upright, fighting to maintain her balance for the first few seconds as her massive, spherical breasts swayed with her movement and threatened to knock her over. She had to stand absolutely still for several seconds to work out why she was having so much problems with her tits. Then, finally, she remembered that they had been made larger by Doctor Mikasuki, and that's why she wasn't used to them. That was one of the reasons she didn't like the doctor, she remembered, now - she hadn't wanted tits this big.

Finally gaining her balance, Meesha began to move carefully around the room in her helplessly sexy stride, taking in all the details and cursing her damaged mental processes that made it seem to take an eternity to gather all the information there was to glean from the small, shabby room.

Aside from a small pile of clothes on the chair and a purse on the battered night-table, there was nothing of interest in the room. Shivering from the chill air, she frowned at the pile of clothes, then decided to leave that for later. Instead, she turned and carefully made her way to the bathroom.

It took her nearly five minutes to figure out how to get the shower running and adjusted to a comfortable temperature. A small wave of panic went through her as she did so - because she'd learned that the letters - words - on each of the taps meant nothing to her. She knew what they were for, and could vaguely remember a time when she could read - but now they were only so many squiggles, without meaning.

She couldn't read the words 'Hot' and 'Cold' on the taps.

Forcing herself to put it aside, she entered the shower and slowly washed thoroughly. She knew, vaguely, that there was something so very wrong with this body she was washing, but she couldn't remember what, exactly, was the source of her distaste at having to touch herself.

The other problem was the fact that her body seemed so sensitive - and something else. It was almost like there was a low warmth in her belly that was doing odd things to her - her hands didn't seem to want to stop washing her tits and crotch. In fact, she kept having this urge to slide a finger into her cunt and...

Then she realized - she was horny. With that thought came a wave of revulsion. Standing in the shower, water streaming down the slopes of her massive tits, Meesha tried to chase that feeling down, vaguely recalling that it had something to do with Dr. Mikasuki, the one who'd given huge tits. She hadn't want tits this big - maybe she didn't want a cunt that was so incredibly sensitive? Or maybe it was the fact that she seemed to be really, really horny even when she wasn't touching herself. Could the doctor have done that too?

Cursing the ever-present confusion, Meesha carefully dried off and walked back into the other room to dress.

Quickly she pulled on the black lace panties, black nylons, gray mini-dress and black leather shoes with six inch heels. It felt odd wearing these clothes for some reason, but she couldn't remember why the only clear-cut memory she had of herself was while she was naked. Maybe she preferred being naked, and that's why the clothes felt weird.

Even weirder to Meesha was how hard it was to walk in the heels. She must have worn them before, but she had to struggle to balance in them. Maybe it was her huge new tits - with smaller ones, it would be easier to walk.

Shaking her head, she left the hotel room, grabbing her purse and the key at the last minute - she'd narrowly avoided locking herself out of the room.

Jiggling and swaying, Meesha headed over to the coffee shop.

Walking into the shop, she looked around. It was almost empty, with a few young men sitting at the counter and in the booths.

Not even aware of the stares the youths were giving her, Meesha jiggled and swayed up to the counter and sat down at the only empty seat, between two young men who shared a look past her that she was absolutely oblivious too.

"What'll it be?" the guy behind the counter asked, ogling the display of cleavage in the tight, scoop-necked dress.

"Uh..." Meesha struggled to remember the names for what she wanted. "Coofy. Bacon, eggs. Please." The guy blinked. "Bacon and eggs with coffee?"

It took Meesha a minute to realize he was just repeating her order back to her, not suggesting something different. "Please, yes."

As her food was cooked, she waited patiently, struggling to plan ahead. She realized that her mind wasn't running fast enough to deal with things as they happened - she either had to have things pre- thought-out, or just 'go with the flow' and work out the meaning of things afterwards.

She didn't even notice the two men, one on either side of her, 'going to the washroom' while they talked about the impossibly endowed woman who'd sat down between them.

The guy finally placed her order in front of her, and Meesha dug in, making a face as she sipped the coffee.

"Pretty bad, Huh?" One of the now-retuned young men said with a smile. Meesha, startled, looked up. "Please?" She said, not understanding.

"The coffee." The guy explained. "It really needs cream and sugar - here, let me get it for you..."

As the two youths fixed her coffee, they introduced themselves to her. The taller of the two, a handsome, slender brunet, was Josh. His shorter, muscular friend was Rick - and they had already figured out that this huge-breasted woman wasn't all that bright, so...

"Thank you." Meesha said, trying the coffee - it was much better. "Now not so ungood." Josh stifled a smile at the word 'ungood'. "Glad we could help."

They chatted with her - using simple words and sentences - while she finished her meal. The man working the counter came by and gave her the bill.

Meesha frowned at the bill, then grabbed the man's sleeve as he turned to leave. "I no read - what money is this, please?"

The man smirked at her admission - he wasn't surprised she couldn't read, considering. "Two-fifty- five."

Frowning, Meesha dug into the purse, searching through. She extracted the few coins and single bill inside the purse - and realized, with a sinking feeling, that she had no idea how much money she had. She held it all out to the man behind the counter. "This?"

Taking the money, he looked at the crumpled one, and seventy or eighty cents in change. He shrugged, figuring that the difference was more than made up by the amount of cleavage showing in that outfit she wore. "Just right, miss."

It took several minutes for it to dawn on Meesha that she was now broke. Broke, horny, and with no idea who she was or what to do next. She frowned, her full, lower lip quivering.

"Um.... is everything all right?" the tall one - John? No... - asked.

It took her a couple of seconds to figure out what ... Josh! That was it, Josh... was asking. Realizing what the question had meant, Meesha smiled, glad somebody cared.

"I no money more." She explained. Since she was at it, she figured she might as well explain all her problems - it felt good to be able to tell somebody, and these to guys seemed interest. "Me soooo horny - all time. All horny. Wanna no be horny, but am."

Josh and Rick traded a look, then turned back to her. "You are very, very horny right now?" "Soooo very horny. Me horny all time." Meesha agreed, nodding her head. God - finally, somebody who was listening to her! She might have brain damage and little language skill - but she could still get people to listen. Maybe there was hope after all.

"And you're out of money, right?" Rick asked, rhetorically. He traded another look with Josh, who took over the speaking. "Well - why don't you come to our place, then, and we'll see what we can do to help you?"

Meesha felt a swell of hope. She'd gotten through to them! They were going to help her!

Eagerly, she followed them to their car, pausing only to drop off the hotel key - when they reminded her off it.

Twenty-five minutes later, Josh pulled the car up to the house he shared with four other guys at the collage. He lead the huge-breasted Asian bimbo inside - letting Rick have the privilege of walking behind her and watching that ass of hers as she jiggled and swayed with short, sexy steps up the walk.

They led her inside, to the living room. Meesha smiled and asked, "You help me now?"

They were smiling at each other. "Oh, yeah, we'll help you with your 'problems'." Josh said in a tone of voice that she didn't take the time to figure out, because he was still speaking. "In fact, we've decide on something. First of all, you can stay here with us. That way, you won't need any money - we'll give you everything you need."

Meesha was overjoyed. "Thank you, please. So nice."

The guys smiled at each other - man, she was dumb! But, just how dumb ?

Rick had to fight to keep a smile off his face. "Hey! She can't stay here! She's too stupid - she couldn't earn her own way."

The two men stopped and waited. With anyone with a smidgen of intelligence - or a fully functioning brain - the 'play-acting' would have been painfully transparent. But for Meesha, it was just time enough to figure out what Rick had just said...

"No!" She said, startled. There's been a shining hope held out to her - and now it seemed to be sliding away from her. "Me not too stupid, You please let me stay? You see I not too stupid, I show. Please."

"Yeah, Rick... Be nice." Josh said, speaking slowly and hamming it up outrageously - hands on hips, frowning mightily, shaking his head while speaking in a disapproving tone. "Give her a chance to prove she's smart. Test her."

"Yes!" Meesha said after a long moment. "Test!"

Rick tapped his finger against his chin. "Hmmm.... Well, I guess we could do that "

Josh smirked. "Give her a fair test."

Rick nodded, then turned to Meesha, speaking slowly. "Do you know what a 'blow job' is, Meesha?"

Meesha frowned. The term jiggled in the back of her head, and seemed to bring up something. It was vague, but...

...but it just wouldn't come. Unbidden, large tears began to form in her eyes. "No... I no remember "

She said - sobbed, ashamed at her tears but unable to stop them.

The two men traded a look - this, they'd never expected. They'd hoped she'd be dumb enough to give them one - but not to remember what it was...

Then Josh had a flash of 'genius'. "It's okay, Meesha - knowing things doesn't necessarily make you smart - learning them does. Follow me."

Josh waved off a confused, questioning look from Rick and led the huge-breasted ex-man into the living-room, where he had her sit on the couch. He then flipped through a stack of video cassettes.

"I'm going to put on an 'instructional' video, Meesha - I want you to pay close attention to it. At the end of it, if you can act the way the women - the smart women - in this movie do, then you can stay - okay?"

"Yes!" Meesha said, overjoyed. "I watch good - I learn all. I show you - I smart!" Smirking at Rick, Josh hit 'play' - and 'Naughty Maids' appeared on the screen...

* * * * *

Taking a deep breath, Meesha rose from the couch.

The movie had ended more than an hour ago, but Meesha hadn't even been aware of the time - she'd been too busy trying to get her badly damaged brain to process what she'd seen. There was still a lot of it she didn't understand fully - the motives for some things, the reason, some of the dialogue - but she thought she had the basics.

She hoped she had the basics...

Huge tits swaying and jiggling, she concentrated - as hard as she could - on walking the 'smart' way, like the women in the videos did. Her heart thudded in her chest as she climbed the stairs, and she hoped she could keep everything straight. She knew her verbal skills weren't up to the quality of the women in the movie, but they hadn't really had to talk all that much, and she hoped she could get by with what she had.

Looking in the doors as she passed, she finally came to the one with... oh, what was his name Rick!

Rick in it. She started to go in - then stopped, thinking furiously.

Pasting a smile on her face - she'd almost forgotten that - always smile - she entered.

"Hi, Rick." She said, having planned this part out. Rick, working on his computer, spun around to face her.

"Me like you - you so hassome." She said, smiling wider. Like the 'smart' woman in the movie, she slowly ran her hands up her body to her tits - much larger than the woman's in the movie, but she hoped that wouldn't count against her - and lightly squeezed them. "You get me sooo hot, me wanna suck you cock, Rick." She tried a seductive smile. "Suck you cock - that's blow-job, Rick."

Rick's jaw dropped. "Uh... yeah... it is..."

Smiling, Meesha thought furiously, trying to recall everything she'd seen. Slowly, she walked towards Rick - and peeled off her dress. 'Smart' women did that, she now knew - when they were in a house (or car, or office, or boat) with a man (or two men, or three - or some men and women) they always took their clothes off.

Reaching Rick, she leaned forward, pressing her huge tits against his chest - Smart women loved their tits, so she'd have to pretend she loved hers - and put her hands around Rick's head so she could kiss him.

She concentrated on kissing him the best she could. That was how Smart women greeted people - they kissed them. The better they kissed them, the more it showed they liked them. Meesha didn't really care about Rick one way or the other, but if he was going to decide if she was going to stay or not, she was going to do her best. So she put all her mental skills into focusing on this kiss, making it the best one she could.

Then, when Rick seemed satisfied with the kiss, she slowly slid down to her knees.

She had a moments panic when she found that his pants didn't have a zipper, like in the movie - they were buttons. But she managed to get them undone, and extract his semi-rigid cock. She took a second to smile up at him, then bent her head down...

'Concentrate..' she thought to herself. Taking his cock into her mouth, she applied a light suction. Wrapping one hand around the back of his balls, she began to lick and suck the head of the cock, lightly moving her head forward a little further each time, coating his rapidly hardening cock with her saliva.

When she thought he was ready, Meesha went to work.

She began to bob her head back and forth over his cock, her tongue sliding up and down the bottom of the shaft as she forced herself to take it as deeply as she could into the back of her throat. It was a noisy, and relatively unskilled blow-job - the movie couldn't show what the actress was doing with her tongue at various points, while it was in her mouth - but Meesha used all the things she did see - stopping the rhythm now and then to just suck on the end while using her hand on the shaft, popping it out and licking it up and down, sucking on one of Rick's balls - everything she'd seen, whether she understood it or not.

She was concentrating so hard on getting it right, it never occurred to her to consider whether or not she was enjoying it - or dredging up past memories.

Which might have caused her to scream and vomit, if any of Mike's original memories had surfaced. But she didn't even try, so nothing floated up through her damaged brain, and she continued on with her blow-job, blissfully unaware.

Rick, on the other hand - just didn't care. Despite what movies might show, women who gave head were fairly rare - and rarely as highly 'trained' as porn stars. Instead, he just smiled goofily, moaning occasional as the huge-breasted oriental moron slurped and sucked on his cock.

Meesha was planning to pull out and let Rick cum all over her tits and face, like in the movie - but this was her first blow-job, and she wasn't skilled enough to catch the signs of the impending ejaculation. Instead, the cum shot out into her mouth, surprising her. Reflexively, she swallowed what she could, thin streamers of cum running down her chin as the warm, salty liquid gushed down her throat.

Meesha was horrified. Not that she'd just swallowed cum - it didn't even occur to her to be horrified by that. She was horrified by the fact she might have screwed up...

"Oh, man..." Rick moaned, running his fingers through Meesha's hair. "God - that was great, Meesha."

With a scared look on her face, she searched Rick for any sign that he was joking. "Was good? You like?" She asked, her voice tremulous.

Rick blinked. "Yeah - it was really great. I liked it - a lot." Meesha slowly smiled brightly. "Me do again, now?"

Rick blinked. "Uh... not right now." His cock twitched at the thought, but couldn't quite make the effort for another round.

"Okay. Anytime - me suck cock for you. Okay?" She hesitated. "If stay, I suck cock. I also use make- up, like smart woman, and clothes like movie woman - if you buy for me. Okay? I stay?"

Rick blinked. "Uh... If I buy you clothing and make-up, you'll stay and give me blow-jobs whenever I want?" He asked, incredulous.

Meesha's heart thudded, as she misunderstood his tone. "No, no! Me do like movie woman. Me maid clean and cock and suck cock and give bath and do..." She stopped, struggling for the word. "Stipteez? For you and all here - me do good job. You let me stay, buy clothes and make-up. Do for me of dates, then we fuck so me no horny."

"What...?"

Josh had heard certain sounds from his room next door, and had come over in time to hear the offer Meesha was making.

Again, Meesha misunderstood the incredulous tone.

"Please, me stay. Me see smart women horny too. Fix horny with fuck, like movie - but you no hafta. Me also see " She waved her hands in frustration, causing her huge tits to bounce wildly. "You buy me dildo, and me no horny with dildo. Please - me stay. Be good maid. Do all maid stuff - cook, clean, suck cock, tit-fuck - everting! Please!" She was crying now, and ashamed she couldn't stop herself - but she'd tried so hard, watching the movie very carefully...

The two college boys shared an incredulous look, unable to believe their good fortune.

She was so stupid that she thought that it was fair if they'd let her stay, in exchange for fucking them silly, plus a few dollars for the maid's work...

The same thought occurred to both of them at the same time. It wouldn't even - technically - be illegal. As long as it was clear that the money was for cooking and cleaning, and the sex was free Hell, for that matter, if she was questioned by the cops, she'd be the first to say something about THEM helping HER by fucking her... 'cause, after all, she was 'soooo horny '

"Well, I guess you can stay..." Josh said with a smirk. "And we'll get you that dildo - but, if you do an extra-good job on some days, we'll reward you with a nice, hard fuck. Does that sound fair?"

Overjoyed, Meesha leapt to her feet and ran over to Josh. Wrapping her arms around him, she hugged him tight, pressing her huge tits into his chest.

"You so nice guy. I so happy, and happy make you too. I show you I thank you right - wear clothes you buy that you like for me, do hair and face oh-so-nice. Give you good cock-sucking..." Meesha was gushing over - she'd awakened with nothing, and here were all her problems solved...

"Holy shit...!"

Startled, Meesha whirled around - to confront the other guys who roomed in the house, jaws hanging agape.

"Guys - meet Meesha. She's going to be staying with use from now on." Josh announced. He introduced the guys to her - most of their names just sliding through her brain.

Pouting slightly, Meesha looked at the guys, then at Josh. "Same-same for me with them?" She asked, worried that there might be something that could screw up the 'perfect' deal. "Me for them Maid too?"

Josh smiled. "You - and they'll buy you things, too."

Meesha looked at the guys again - who were stuck in the dilemma of staring at her huge, naked tits, or looking questioningly at Josh.

"They also too help me - if I do really good?"

"You bet." Josh confirmed - that wouldn't be a problem.

One of the guys laughed at Meesha's fractured English. "Man - she ain't the brightest bulb in the box, is she?"

Meesha frowned in confusion, then turned to the sandy-haired youth who'd spoken. "Please - I no unnerstan. What this mean, 'no bry-test bulb in box'?"

The guy blinked, and one of the others answered. "He means that he doesn't think you're very smart."

Meesha gasped, then waggled a finger at him. "You wrong. Me watch movie - all smart now. You see! Me smart!"

Them dropping to her knees, Meesha all-but tore his pants open.

As her lips engulfed the startled youth's already rigid cock, Meesha felt smug satisfaction. Things might be going too fast for her to sit down and work out exactly how she'd ended up here - but, goddamnit, she knew she would have no problem proving how well she'd learned to be smart to these guys. Then they'd give her everything she needed, and she wouldn't have to strain herself trying to think about the past or future.

Life was good.

 BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: An experiment goes haywire when there is a power outage, and what is supposed to be a very temporary experience turns into an unwanted transformation into the opposite sex

Recursive Loop

By Gunslinger

Part I - 'Harmless' Fun

The snow had started about quarter to five, drifting deceptively lightly from the lowering clouds. Kevin Nichols had seen it through the windows of the employee lounge, and hadn't considered it any real problem - he had a Sport Ute, and while most of city went to hell when a few flakes fell, he was level-headed and calm. Wandering back to his fluorescent-lit, windowless cubicle, he'd looked at the short stack of work still left in his in basket, and had decided to stay late and get it done. Unlike most of his coworkers, the slender, sandy-haired young man was in no hurry to get out the door on a Friday afternoon. As everybody else had headed off, silence had fallen over the building much like the night that was falling beyond the windowless walls of his office.

Since he was going to be more or less alone, Kevin had went ahead and gotten comfortable. Filling the thermos he kept in his office with coffee from the lounge, he'd shut off the too-bright overhead lights and turned on the small desk lamp next to the softly humming computer. Between the golden glow of the lamp and the blue-white glow of the monitor, he'd had all the light he'd needed to work - and the fact that he was alone meant that nobody was around to see the way the below-eye-level lights transformed his narrow, usually blandly cheerful face into a slightly sinister mask, his thin lips and dark eyes appearing cruel in the pools of shadows cast by the dim lighting.

With the quick machine-gun-like sound of his fingers flying across the keyboard, Kevin immersed himself in work, pausing only occasionally to take in some of the slowly cooling coffee, more out of habit or instinct than out of any conscious decision. The work proved to be more demanding - and more interesting - than he'd expected, the deceptively thin folders coming from Dr. Hanson's department. Unusual for an older researched, Dr. Hanson, and his team, were actually working on some seriously cool stuff - and even more unusually, Dr. Hanson had a flare for writing his reports, making them witty and urbane as well as informative and concise. Kevin genuinely enjoyed entering the information.

When he finally finished typing out the last report and electronically filing it, he leaned back in his chair and stretched, not willing to debate whether the creaking sound came from the chair or his back. He idly rubbed the small of his back with one almost girlish hand as he used the other to massage the bridge of his narrow nose. He glanced over at the clock on the wall...

"Eight-Thirty?" Kevin said, in surprise. "No... that can't be right!"

Pulling his hand from behind his back and looking at his trusty old Seiko watch only confirmed the time. So engrossed had he been in the reports, more than three hours had slipped away unnoticed.

Almost as if to provide added verification of the time passed, Kevin's bladder began to signal that it was through with the coffee he'd fed it. Shaking his head at his own absent-minded involvement with work, Kevin shut down the computer and rose, stretching his slender body to its rather insignificant full height to work out the kinks in his muscles.

A quite, bookish young man with a very understated sense of humor, Kevin wasn't exactly a party animal. Not that he was boring or nerdish - he was just very low-key. He didn't mind hitting the clubs occasionally, but also enjoyed just curling up with a good book or a movie - which is what his plan for tonight was, since his on-again-off-again romance with Tina was currently in the 'off-again' phase. So, the loss of a few hours, even on a Friday night, wasn't any big deal.

Shutting off the light on his desk, Kevin grabbed his coat from the rack beside the door. Making a short trip to the toilet just down the hall from his cubicle, he got rid of the used coffee and washed his hands, then headed through the empty, deserted halls of the building towards the one remaining exit. The company was a small 'start up' firm, and didn't have full-time security. Instead, they locked down all the doors but one after five, and that one door required a key-card, a password, and the four-digit code that would disarm the door alarm for all of ten seconds.

Kevin had just about reached the exit - when a form spun around the corner and slammed into him.

He didn't quite go down - there was a wall immediately beside him, and he managed to catch hold of a fire-extinguisher mounting, keeping his balance. The other person wasn't so lucky, ending up in a tangled sprawl.

"Oh, shit!" Kevin gasped, staring down at the woman who'd bumped into him. For a second, he thought he was going to end up on the floor anyway, from a heart attack. The woman was obviously just as startled by him, gaping up at him wide-eyed.

"Are you okay?" Kevin asked, holding out a hand as his heart began to slow.

"I would be if idiots like watched where the hell you..." the woman pulled her tirade up with a visible effort as she took a deep breath and pulled herself up, ignoring Kevin's outstretched hand.

"I'm sorry." She said, shortly, brushing her long, dark hair back and patting it in place. "I thought I was the only one still here. You startled me."

"Tell me about it - I thought I was the only one here." Kevin said, not taking her cold tone personally - as she'd risen, he'd recognized her as Dr. Richter. She was new, here, but almost everybody knew her, or at least about her. She was cold and sharp-tongued with everybody, and had begun rubbing people the wrong way until they realized that she wasn't actually angry with them - it just seemed to be her nature to talk in quick, sharp bursts.

"Well, at least I'm not going to be stuck here alone." She said.

"Oh, working late?" Kevin asked, with a grin. "I'd love to stay and keep you company, but..."

"...but you don't have nay choice." She overrode him, gesturing at the door. "It's a blizzard out there. We're snowed in." "What?" Kevin asked. "It can't be that bad! Besides, I have a four-wheel drive..."

"It doesn't matter." Dr. Richter said, shortly. "Take a look for yourself."

Kevin did just that, going up to the security glass inset of the door -and string out at a solid wall of white. Visibility was less then two feet, and the high wind was whipping the snow that had fallen into high, steep snowbanks.

"I see what you mean..." Kevin admitted, grudgingly.

"Not only that, the phones are down." Dr. Richter said, with a short, sharp sigh. "Which means we're stuck here until morning... unless you happen to have a cell phone?"

" 'Fraid Not..." Kevin admitted. "By the way, Dr. Richter... I'm Kevin. Kevin Nichols, from transcription."

The faintest hint of a smile fled briefly across her narrow lips. "Well, Kevin, considering the circumstances, you might as well call me Ellen."

"So... what do you do here, Dr... Ellen?" Kevin asked.

This time, the smile was more genuine and lasted longer - and a trace of warmth entered her voice.

"I'm developing a fifth-generation Virtual Reality System." She said, her voice warming up, her tone becoming less impersonal as a trace of color flared in her too-pale cheeks. "More then just computer programs and electronic devise, a complete integrated system for creating an artificial environment almost complete indistinguishable from a real one."

Suddenly, Kevin understood a lot about miss Ellen Richter. She was a techno-weenie.

All the signs were there, now. The trouble dealing well with other people, the distant attitude - she was only really comfortable with her work, and spent so much time involved with machines and data that her human skills had suffered.

"Sounds great." Kevin said with forced enthusiasm. It wasn't all that forced, though - if this work was really her life, so to speak, it wasn't hard for him to be enthusiastic, for her sake.

This time, the smile was damned-near brilliant, and it turned her too-stark face nearly lovely. She dropped her voice conspiratorially, and almost sounded like a giddy schoolgirl on a dare when she offered: "Want to see?"

Kevin couldn't help but grin at her sudden transformation from 'cold fish' into lively woman. "Yeah!"

'The Ice Woman' (as she was known around the company) actually giggled as she gestured for him to follow, and all but scampered off in the direction of her lab, glancing back with a grin to make sure her audience of one was in trail.

He was. Frankly, he was getting excited about this, just because of how excited Ellen was to show off her work.

Using her pass-card, she opened the door to her lab and gestured him in. The door had barely closed behind him when she launched into her explanation of her work.

"What we're doing here is light-years ahead of what most people think of 'virtual reality'." She told him, gesturing at some computers, LCD visors, body-suits - and less identifiable equipment that looked vaguely medical. "And I don't mean just higher-resolution images and more 'realistic' random interaction. That's just hardware. No, I'm talking about sensations, smells - and more. Do you know what the major problem with any other VR system is?"

"No." Kevin admitted honestly.

"Your link to 'real' reality - your own body!" She announced, as if giving away a great secret. "No matter how fantastic the scenario, you're stuck with your own body. Oh, sure, you can change the graphics, so that you look different in the VR sim, but you can't feel or act different. That's my greatest leap forward."

"Oh? How's that?" Kevin asked, genuinely intrigued.

She grinned. "I really shouldn't tell you... but what the hell." She all-but-dragged him over to one of the body suits, which was festooned with wires... and tubes and needles and dozens of other odd items.

"We use a combination of deep hypnosis and sensory chemicals in addition to the visual, audio and tactile components." She explained. "First of all, the physical side. Suppose in the sim you're supposed to be this big, muscular barbarian in a fantasy world. A high-end VR rig can simulate the extra strength by cutting the resistance it gives heavy objects. If you can only lift a hundred pounds, but your character's supposed to be able to lift four hundred, it divides all 'real' weights and gives you the correct percentage of resistance."

"Okay..." Kevin said. He knew about that, though it wasn't in any wide-spread use yet, being too expensive. "But..." Ellen said, with a grin. "You don't feel like a muscular barbarian. You feel like.. like you. Right?" "Okay, I can see that..." Kevin agreed.

"Okay, the same scenario in my rig." She said. "We'd inject you with a special chemical compound that 'tightens' the skin and causes the muscles to 'absorb' some water temporarily - and, voilà!, your body feels like it's rippling with muscles."

"Cool...!" Kevin had to admit.

"It's more than that - we also use the deep hypnosis to make you believe, to a certain degree, that you are a big strong barbarian. Not only does it reinforce what you see and feel, letting your brain 'add in' any missing details - but we can give you the relative skills of the barbarian, so that in a sword fight you could actually fight like one!"

Now that was something, Kevin had to admit. That was always a problem with Role playing. You character was supposed to know certain things - but you, in real life, didn't. So, when you fought, the computer would determine whether you or your opponent would probably win the fight, then fought it out for you, with you little more then a passive spectator with a few basic options like 'attack', 'defend' or 'run away'.

"Not only that - but we can have you temporarily suppress any skills or memories that would interfere with your playing!" Ellen said. Kevin frowned. "Isn't that dangerous? Messing with somebody's mind in a game."

"No, no..." Ellen said, waving a hand in irritation. "It's all very safe. There's all sorts of built-in safety measures, the most basic of which is that any deep hypnotic commands are only active when you're in the body of that character. Sure, you could get somebody to utterly believe they were 'Ulgoth the Barbarian', if you weren't careful - but as soon as you shut off the sim and take away the chemical sensations, they don't feel like Ulgoth anymore, and the programming breaks down."

That made sense, too. "Wow. Seriously cool." She grinned. "hey - want to give it a try?" Kevin blinked, then grinned back. "Seriously?"

"Sure." She said. "We can't safely run any of the 'game' sims, ones with things like battle or stuff - there has to be a monitor for those. But we can run a basic 'test' sim. You know, a neutral environment like a bar, where you can see what having a different body would feel like."

"Wow... Sounds neat." Kevin grinned. "okay - let's do it."

"Right on!" Ellen said, sounding more girlish then ever as she went over to a computer and entered the main program. "I'll tell you what - let's have some real fun!"

"What's that?" Kevin asked.

"Since it's just a basic environment sim, let's really have fun with our 'online character'. I'll design yours, and you design mine - and we'll include personality and skill mods!"

Kevin shrugged. "Sure."

"It's an easy interactive menus." She said, leading him to another work station. "Just follow the instructions to build the basic body - and you'll see that it doesn't even have to be strictly human." She grinned. "Stick with 'humanoid' design, though."

"Why?" Kevin had to ask, flipping through some of the choices and finding them interesting.

"Well... a Mermaid in a bar would have trouble getting around, a chimpanzee can't talk... and anything with more limbs takes about two hours to get used to using." She explained.

Kevin grinned at the images it conjured up. "Okay - human it is."

As she headed off to her own station, Kevin grinned at the computer.

"So... you want to have some 'fun', huh?" Kevin muttered. "Well, how's this..."

He began to set up the physical and personality parameters, sometimes blushing, sometimes grinning - and sometimes both. It took him half an hour to get it the way he wanted, but he finally hit the 'enter' key with a big, mischievous grin on his face.

"You ready?" he called to Ellen.

"Not quite." She said. She was obviously having as much fun designing his virtual body as he'd had with hers, and spent another fifteen minutes working on it.

"Okay - that's it. Let's get into the suits." She said. "You're in Suit 'B'."

Awkwardly, they helped each other into their suits. Stepping up on the 'roller balls' that allowed virtual movement, they grinned at each other. Then they each hit the 'ready' button on their wrists, and lowered the visors in place as they system came to life.

When hypnotic, swirling colors flared to life all around him and a strange, rhythmic sound filled his ears, Kevin began to feel light-headed, disconnected, disoriented - but he wasn't worried. Ellen had told him to expect this. This was him being sent into a deep trance that would last about ten minutes while he was 'programmed' and 'sensitized' - and when he came to his senses, he'd be in the VR world with his new body and personality.

Unworried, he slid into nothingness, his mind a complete blank...

* * * * *

Two miles away, a branch heavily laden with snow had had too much. When a gust of wind hit it, it snapped with a sound like a rifle firing, and broke - falling onto a power line, ripping it from its next junction and plunging the area into darkness.

In the lab, the computer 'programming' them flickered - but didn't die as the special emergency generator came immediately to life, a special battery protecting the system for the few seconds it took to transfer the power. Slowly, the task-bar crept up to the 100% mark, and the computer prepared to 'insert' them into the environment...

...but that took more power than the emergency generator put out. The sim was very complex, taking massive amounts of CPU power, and the electricity just wasn't there.

The system paused, 'confused' - and then reset to the beginning of the 'programming' phase, its limited capacity for pseudo-intelligence 'forgetting' it had already done this. Instead, it began pumping more chemicals and serums into them as it replayed the mental conditioning again...

With no system operator to monitor this event and tell the machine to stop, the machine kept resetting every ten minutes, until the hour's worth of fuel in the generator was exhausted. The emergency generator was designed to maintain power so that no valuable data would be lost, and to give somebody time to get the main back-up generator running. The little generator's hour-long supply of fuel had been considered over-generous as it was. Now, finally out of fuel, it shut down, killing power to the building as the small, battery-powered cell- phone style emergency beacon began 'screaming' for help from the power company. Already out in the rapidly fading storm, accompanied by snow-plows, a work crew was only a few miles away from the lab, and headed towards it almost at once.

* * * * *

Slowly, Kevin's sense came back to him - but there was no VR environment, just blackness. He was also in his same old body, from the feel of things - but it wasn't quite right. His body felt odd to him, ungainly and awkward and strange, with sensations that were definitely 'off'.

"What happened...?" Kevin asked, fumbling for the visor. He pulled it off - only to find himself in a lab nearly as dark, lit only by one emergency light.

"Power failure, I guess." Ellen said, pulling off her own suit. "Huh... the emergency generator didn't come on-line - the system shut down."

"Damn..." Kevin said, stretching and flexing, trying to get his body feeling back to normal. It didn't work - parts of his body felt tight, or swollen, or just plain strange, though there was nothing to be seen. More than that, he also felt 'fuzzy', somewhat disorientated. "Why do I feel so strange?"

"It's the sensory simulation chemicals." Ellen explained, sounding vague herself. "I feel it too - we were injected with them, but we're not in the sim so there's no matching visual stimuli to go with it."

"Oh." Kevin said. "is that dangerous?"

"No..." Ellen said. "Even if the system was up long enough to completely finish the programming and injection, there's still not enough chemicals or drugs in our system to worry about. It'd take nearly double what the set-up uses for anything unforeseen to happen."

"Well, that's good news." Kevin said. "I'd hate to think..."

Just then, they were interrupted by a shouting in the hall. Sharing a glance, they walked out into the hall to find a couple of men standing there, dressed in power-company suits.

"Wow - that was fast." Kevin said, amazed. "The power's only been out for, what, ten minutes?"

"We were in the area, because of the storm." One of the men said, and with that Kevin and Ellen had no idea that they were missing an hour. "Look, it'll take awhile to get power back, you might as well head home. The storm's dying down, and we've cleared a route out to the major roads, which are all open by now."

"Great." Kevin said, with a weary smile - he felt very tired and light-headed, and going home to bed sounded great. "Ellen, it's been fun. Too bad the power died."

"Yeah." She grinned wearily. "I was kind of looking forward to seeing your expression when.. you know." "yeah. Me too." Kevin agreed. "Well, I guess I'll see you tomorrow."

"Yeah, I..." She frowned. "No. Monday. Today's Friday." Kevin snapped his fingers. "Right. See you Monday."

It was lucky that the roads were so deserted - both felt so fuzzy and light-headed, they could have been a traffic hazard with their sloppy driving. As it was, each of them made it home safely, where they tumbled into bed and fell into a very deep, deep sleep.

As they slept, the chemicals still floating in their bloodstream continued to be absorbed. The exhaustion came from their brains wanting desperately to fall back into a trance from all the hypnotic drugs in their system, and so they did... and the trance-sleep lasted nearly eight hours. That's when the body finished all the absorption of the chemicals and reached 'critical mass', the hypnotic trance fading as the chemicals themselves kicked in strongly...

* * * * *

Kevin was pulled out of a deep sleep by the feeling that something was wrong.

"Whazzup...?" He asked the morning-light splotched ceiling above his bed, fuzzily. He still felt light-headed, but not nearly as disoriented.

He also felt lousy, like he'd come down with a hell of a flu. His body felt stiff and weak and awkward, and his body couldn't seem to make up its mind whether it was hot or cold.

Groaning softly to himself, Kevin forced his body into a sitting position and blinked at the early morning light, idly rubbing a hand across his mildly itchy leg...

Then he shook his head and looked down.

Where his hand had slid across his leg, the leg-hairs had slid away. Rather than being attached by their follicles, all his body hair had come loose somehow - some of it was lying on the sheets, while the remainder of it sat on his body, but unattached.

"What the hell?" He asked himself, brushing more hair away from now-smooth skin. "Geez, I've never had this happen. What the hell is it - an allergic reaction?"

Worried, he quickly ran his hands through his hair, to see if it was falling out as well - but not only was it still firmly rooted to his scalp, but it actually felt longer, thicker and more luxuriant than before.

An illusion, of course - but it meant that he wasn't going bald, which put the loss of his body hair into a mildly-amusing annoyance rather than a huge catastrophe. He'd call his doctor and schedule an appointment...

...as soon as he had something to eat. He was starving!

Still feeling stiff and out of sorts, Kevin pushed himself out of bed and slumped towards the kitchen. Kevin liked to keep his bungalow warm enough to walk around naked first thing in the morning, and there were no nearby neighbors to see him padding around, his skinny body bereft of clothing.

His almost painfully empty stomach growled at him for pausing long enough to get some coffee brewing, but he figured he'd need the caffeine. Once the pot was burbling away, he opened the fridge to see what his stomach thought it could handle this morning.

His stomach grumbled loudly, and his mouth began to water madly... because just about everything in the fridge looked good. He couldn't make up his mind.

"Geez, I know I missed dinner last night..." Kevin muttered to himself, unable to believe how much he was craving everything in the fridge. While trying to make up his mind, he absently pulled out a pepperette from a small bag on the second shelf. He took a bite...

...and then he was gobbling it down, barely remembering to chew. It tasted wonderful.

"The hell with it." Kevin said, to himself. "I'll splurge, have a little of everything and throw away what I can't eat." Pulling things out of the fridge, he began to pile them on the counter....

Half an hour later, he pushed his plate away from him and slurped the last of the milkshake he'd made out of the glass. He shook his head in utter disbelief, staring at the practically-licked-clean plate.

"I can't believe I ate it all. " He muttered, wide eyed.

Steak and eggs. With hash browns. And bacon. And sausage. And toast. Five cups of coffee, two milk-shakes. Three blueberry muffins, a banana, and a half a jug of orange-juice. He hadn't meant to eat that much - it was just that once he started, he couldn't seem to stop. He'd crammed food into his face like a man possessed. It still seemed impossible that he could have fit all of that into his slender frame. Yet he didn't fill overly full...

"Man - this is turning out to be one weird day..." He muttered to himself. "First my body feels all weird, then the hair thing - now this. I'm gonna make that doctor's appointment right now. Bingeing like that can't be good for me."

Pushing away from the table, he rose and began to pad towards the living room, and the phone.

He'd almost reached the couch when he doubled over in pain, crying out as if he'd just been kicked in the gut by a mule.

He dropped to the carpeted floor, gasping from the pain. He began to shudder as his temperature rose quickly, his body 'running hot' - as it began to work at a furious pace, digesting the food he'd just eaten.

"Oh... God..." he moaned, trying desperately to drag himself to the phone. His body was aching all over, he felt like he was burning up, and his stomach was folding in on itself. He felt like he was about to die.

After a few feeble pulls that moved him barely an inch, he collapsed, too weak to even try anymore. He felt like he was on fire, sweat rolling off his naked body as he was racked by pains and cramps.

Then his body began to feel really strange.

It felt as if he was being pushed and pulled like taffy. Pain flared in his chest, hips and ass, a throbbing, grinding pain that was matched with deep-muscle agony from his legs, arms, waist and back.

Then he screamed in hoarse agony as it felt like somebody was taking a pillow-padded twenty-pound sledgehammer to his face, hands, feet and crotch, sending him balling up in a futile attempt to escape the pain that wrapped him in its embrace.

For nearly an hour he lay rolling on the floor. The pain ebbed and flowed, growing and fading, intense but never quite unbearable. The fever was constant, however, and he began to babble deliriously, not even hearing the words and phrases that escaped from between his lips.

Then, as suddenly as it had all begun, it faded. One instant he was laying in misery, babbling - then the fever broke and the heat drained from his body rapidly, leaving him shivering in a pool of cold sweat, a deep throbbing ache through his entire body.

"Oh... God..." He gasped, weakly - and it sounded funny to his ears, weaker and breathier than he'd expected, higher-pitched.

"What... what's happening... to me..." He gasped out, again hearing the odd tone and pitch of his own voice as strength very slowly began to return to his aching, stiff body. Slowly he uncurled from the fetal ball he'd wrapped himself in, and used the sofa to stagger unsteadily to his feet - which felt all wrong under him, making it difficult for him to catch his balance. Weakly, slumped against the wall for support, he made his way to the bathroom, turning the water on and splashing water into his face.

Turning off the tap, he painfully straightened...

...and then gasped, staring at the reflection he'd ignored until now.

"What the fuck...!" He gasped, gaping wide-eyed at the reflection in front of him. His face had changed.

A lot.

No... that wasn't quite true. It was that a lot of things about his face had each changed a little.

His nose was slightly smaller, and a tad more upturned. His cheek-bones were slightly more prominent, and his jaw a little rounder. The lashes surrounding his eyes were a little longer, and his lips were a little fuller - and it was all surrounded by his hair, which had grown a little longer, a little silkier, a little finer.

In short - his face was looking more feminine, especially since there wasn't the slightest sign of any stubble or facial hair whatsoever. He wasn't beautiful, or pretty - in fact, as women went, his face would have been described as very plain, with a too-large nose and too- bushy eyebrows...

...but it was definitely leaning more towards the feminine side of androgynous than the male. That was bad enough... but his body had also followed suit.

He'd been slim to begin with, and still was - but now it was more than just a slight build. His body, like his face, was tending towards feminine-androgynous, like a barely post-pubescent girl. His shoulders were narrower than before, his hips wider - but neither one to a degree that would have given him a definitively feminine shape. Instead, it was more gender-neutral, with the complete lack of body hair tending it towards the more feminine side.

That was somewhat offset by his limp cock and balls, still dangling between his thighs in a smaller patch of pubic hair - but not nearly so much as it would have before, because his cock and balls were definitely smaller than they had been before, as were his hands and feet, although only slightly so.

However, offsetting the male member was what rose on his slightly narrower ribcage. A pair of small, but definite, breasts. Barely an A- cup, they were conical, perky, and well defined, and tipped with large, frankly feminine nipples that were as hard as diamonds in the cool air.

"Oh... My.. God..." Kevin stammered, stunned. "I.. I look like a girl! A girl... with messy hair..."

His voice trailed off into a monotone, and his eyes took on a glazed, far-away look. Almost mechanically, still staring at the mirror, he reached out and picked up the brush that lay on the sink. Moving with slow, stiff motions, he began to brush his long, softer hair, humming to himself in a flat monotone.

Within a short while, he'd mindlessly styled his hair into a semi-feminine style, the best that could be expected with short, somewhat coarse 'female' hair. He was lightly fluffing the hair in a consummately feminine manner.. when the phone in the living room rang, snapping him out of his daze.

He blinked, shook his head - and stared in the mirror in shock, realizing what he'd just done.

"What the fuck..." He said, frightened - then the phone shrilled again. Numbly, barely able to cope with the inexplicable things happening to him, he stumbled into the living room and picked up the phone, not even thinking to say anything - he just held it to a slightly smaller earlobe with a slightly more dainty hand.

"Kevin? Kevin, are you there?"

The voice on the other end was somewhat deeper and a touch huskier, but he recognized it - and a floodgate burst open in him.

"Ellen! Ellen, something's happening to me!" He said, his voice near tear. "I woke up feeling all strange and I had something to eat and I fell down and was in pain and burning up and my..."

"Kevin! Kevin!" Ellen shouted, trying to break into the rapid, hysterical stream of words Kevin had fallen into.

"...mirror and I have breasts and my cock shrunk and I look like an ugly GIRL...!" Kevin wailed - then stopped, wondering why the hell he'd added 'ugly' in there.

"Kevin!" Ellen's altered voice said, sharply. "I know!" "What?" Kevin said, stunned.

"It's happening to me, too!" Ellen said, obviously struggling for control. "We're turning into the characters we programmed into the machine last night!"

For a second, that didn't register - and when it did, all Kevin could say, in a stunned voice, was; "But... I made you a guy..."

"I know!" Ellen shouted.. then fought for control of her more masculine-sounding voice. "That's just it, Kevin - the character I made for you was a woman!"

"Wha..." Kevin stammered.

"If I hadn't 'snuck a peek' at your character from the master station, I wouldn't have figured this out so quickly." Ellen said. "Somehow, we got massive overdoses of the chemicals last night - and they're trying so hard to 'simulate' the sensations of those bodies that our bodies are converting food into building material to do just that!"

"Uh.. uh.. uh.." Kevin stammered, as he began to shudder uncontrollably. "And.. and.. the mental programming is trying to.. I mean, I did something really weird..."

"You have to fight that!" Ellen said, sharply. "Kevin, listen to me. Remember how I told you about the basic 'safety' in the mental programming? You don't look like the character, so you don't try to act like it?"

"Yuh.. yeah.." Kevin said, slumping down to sit on the couch, mind spinning.

"Well - now you look a little like the character - so the programming can affect you a little." Ellen said. "That programming will want you to make yourself look more feminine - and then the programming will be stronger, so you'll have an even stronger desire to be your character... it's a recursive loop, and if you fall into it, you may not be able to break it..."

Kevin swallowed nervously. "What.. what happens then?"

Ellen's voice was hoarse with fear. "Then... you end up being your character, and you may never be able to go back to being yourself."

The world suddenly turned into a gray tunnel, and Kevin began to slump sideways as Ellen's suddenly tiny, hollow voice shouted at him from very far away.

With a struggle, Kevin managed to keep himself from fainting, slowly pulling himself upright as the world swam and ever-so-slowly pulled back into focus.

"I... I'm here..." he said, his throat suddenly very dry.

"You have to get over here." She said. "We need to find a way to correct this. We need to get back to the lab, and program our original selves into the machine. Do you understand?"

"Yes..." Kevin said, sharply, seeing hope flare to life. "Yes - I'll be there as quickly as I can!"

She gave him her address, and he copied it down, quickly. Hanging up the phone, he hurried towards his bedroom to get dressed.

His heart was hammering and he felt like he was going to pass out from all the shocks of this morning - but there was a light at the end of the tunnel, and he was going to head for it.

It was while he was dressing that it was driven home to him that his body had changed, even though the changes were, so far and comparatively speaking, fairly small.

His underwear fit fairly well - but his jeans were a little tight around the hips and ass, a little loose around the waist. Not an awful lot - but he knew what it should have felt like, and it was subtly wrong.

His shirt...

Without thinking, he'd grabbed one of his white T-shirts - and had gasped as the cloth had slid across his engorged nipples as he'd pulled it on, creating an entirely new - and, frighteningly, not entirely unpleasant - sensation.

Looking down had revealed his darker nipples clearly visible through the material, something that hadn't even occurred to him... and he felt slightly light-headed as he looked down at the undeniable feminine sight of his large, dark nipples poking into the skirt, and he thought how...

"No!" He gasped, closing his eyes and struggling for control. "No, don't even think about it!"

Hastily, he traded his shirt for a black T-shirt, which minimized the problem a bit. The sensation was still there, but the dark, lusterless fabric made it nearly impossible to see the nipples pushing against the fabric, unless he stood in profile and thrust his chest out like this... which looked even better if he tucked the bottom of the shirt back like this, so that you could see the almost pathetically small lumps of his tiny breast through the shirt.

"They're so small..." he said in a near monotone, staring at his profile in the mirror as he tried to arch his shoulders back further and tuck in his gut some more. "You can barely see that I have tits at all. I'm almost as flat as a guy, and..."

He looked almost pathetically confused for a second - then gasped, and yanked his hands off his shirt, letting it fall more naturally. "I am a guy!" He shouted. "I am Kevin... Kevin.... Kevin..."

For several long, horrific seconds, he couldn't remember his own last name. It just wouldn't come to him...

...then an instant before he felt he'd break into tears, he shouted, triumphantly, "Nichols!" He took a deep breath. "I am Kevin Nichols, a man."

Looking around, he grabbed a baggy gray sweatshirt and quickly yanked it on, avoiding looking in the mirror over his dresser. He slipped some socks on, and quickly laced on a pair of now-slightly-small shoes.

Keeping his eyes down to avoid seeing himself in the mirror, he walked over to the dresser and grabbed his wallet and keys. A glint of light off another metallic object drew his attention for a split second...

Slowly, his head came up, his eyes blank as he mechanically tucked his keys and wallet away - then reached out to pick up the pair of tweezers from where his sometimes-girlfriend Tina had left them by mistake when she'd left last time.

Eyes wide but blank, Kevin leaned forward and began to stiffly-but-carefully pluck at his still-mannish eyebrows. With an almost uncannily steady hand, he worked away...

...and blinked, feeling a moments disorientation as he stared at the bedroom, one hand on his wallet in his back pocket, the other holding his keys.

"Ellen." He muttered, the momentary vagueness passing. "I'm going to Ellen's..."

Moving quickly, he grabbed his coat on the way to the front door and then hurried outside, locking the door of his small, neatly-kept bungalow behind him...

...completely unaware that slender, nicely arched - and most definitely feminine-looking - eyebrows now rode above his eyes.

* * * * *

 BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: An experiment goes haywire when there is a power outage, and what is supposed to be a very temporary experience turns into an unwanted transformation into the opposite sex. part 2

Part II - Trouble, Changes & Temptation

As the big Ford Explorer surged into a straight section of road leading deeper into the gutted off-downtown section of the city, Kevin had to fight the urge to push his now-too-large sneaker all the way to the floor.

The urge to get to Ellen's house and, from there, to the lab was nearly overwhelming. Fear, horror and shame warred within him at what their 'harmless' playing around with Ellen's new VR system was doing to him, and the sooner it was stopped and reversed, the better.

However, getting stopped for speeding wouldn't help matters. Sure, the changes to his body so far were fairly 'minor', individually, and there was still a lot of what he originally looked like in his androgynous-feminine new body - but he didn't want to see what would happen when he showed a cop his driver's license photo.

Kevin lived in a neatly-kept bungalow just outside of town. Ellen, it turned out, had a small condo in the more fashionable side of town, three-quarters of the way around the rough circumference of the city limits. The faster route was Old Main Street, running through the run-down urban center of the town.

Kevin's large, boxy blue four-by-four was just getting to the worst section, several square blocks of urban decay and inner-city ghetto... when the engine began to splutter.

"Oh, shit...!" Kevin cursed, wincing at the husky, deep, yet still mostly feminine voice that emerged from his throat. A quick glance at the gas gauge confirmed his fear - he'd been in such a hurry that he hadn't checked his gas... and now the little red light was on, the needle completely buried behind the big red 'E'.

"Fuck off...!" Kevin swore with feeling, slamming a fist against the steering wheel as the engine spluttered one last time and then quit. Lips compressed in an angry, frustrated line, Kevin let the big vehicle coast to a stop.

The anger was way out of proportion for the situation he was in - but he let it rage, fanning the flames higher.

The other option was to burst into tears at the feeling of helplessness and fear that was trying to make itself heard.

The Explorer rolled to a stop a few feet behind a stripped-down El Camino in tu-tone primer. A torn-up old barcolounger lay in the small truck-bed of the vehicle, and an old mongrel dog was curled up on it's ripped and soiled cushion. As Kevin very slowly and hesitantly climbed out of his truck, the old dog lifted it's head, stared at Kevin with mournful eyes, and let out a weary 'whuff'.

Slamming the door to his truck, Kevin yanked on the handle to make sure it was locked, then looked around. The buildings on both sides of the street were run-down and somehow ghostly looking, and aside from a distant radio playing rap music, there was almost no sign of life.

Kevin looked at the dog, who was still watching him with big, sad eyes.

"You wouldn't happen to know the way to the nearest gas station, would you?" Kevin asked the dog with a wry grin that held no humor.

The dog stared at Kevin for a second longer, then lowered it's head. Shaking his own head in annoyance of his own moment of whimsy just further reinforced the situation he was in, as he felt his longer, softer hair slide across the top of his neck in a way it hadn't done since he'd worn his hair long in the early eighties.

Looking around, Kevin tried to figure out which way the city center's commercial district lay. It wasn't more than a few blocks away, but Kevin couldn't recall whether or not Old Main crossed over Queen or not. The section of town he wanted to get to could lay either to the right or to the left.

Kevin didn't spot any signs that might help him - but he did notice a faint, flickering blue glow in one of the windows of the building across the street and down a bit. There was no mistaking it - it was the fairy light of a television in use.

"Let's hope whoever's watching it is more helpful than you." Kevin muttered to the dog, then headed for the building. A slight wind had picked up, brushing the chill winter wind across Kevin's body and sending wisps and drifts of the deep snow flurrying about. Kevin shivered, poorly dressed for the weather...

...and then he shivered again, even harder, in shame and disgust as the cool air made his newly enlarged nipples swell into full erection, a disquieting sensation.

Swallowing, Kevin picked up the pace, his eyes on the back-lit window on the second story as he tried to figure out which apartment it would be.

Reaching the doorway of the building, he eyed the iron-barred door for a second, then leaned in close to the small buzzer/intercom panel, trying to make out the apartment numbers behind the cracked and yellowing plastic.

Considering the neighborhood, Kevin didn't think he could count on the milk of human kindness from the apartment's occupant. Even as he leaned his thumb on the black plastic button in the tarnish brass base-plate, he tried to think up a convincing argument for help.

So, he was more than a little surprised when no voice crackled out of the intercom grille - but there was a loud, sustained buzz. He was so surprised, he barely managed to grab the handle on the door and yank it far enough to clear the bolt from the jamb before the buzz ended.

"Well..." Kevin muttered to himself in surprise. "maybe my luck's changing. "

His spirits lifted slightly for a second - and then plunged again as he thought to himself, considering he was turning into a woman, there wasn't really much that could happen to make his luck grow any worse.

Pulling the door the rest of the way open, he entered the aging tenement and let the door swing shut behind him as he squinted at the poorly-lit foyer. The smell of disinfectant and mildew mingled, with the mildew winning, and the dark woodwork and yellowed lathe-and-plaster walls were spotted in the corners with the stuff.

Afraid to touch anything in the unsanitary atmosphere, Kevin carefully ascended the creaking wooden stairs to the second floor and walked to the door whose skewed white plastic numbers indicated it was the apartment he wanted. Hesitantly, he knocked.

"It's open." A female voice horse from too many cigarette and too much booze called through the flimsy door. Kevin mentally shrugged and grabbed the handle, making a face at it's greasy feel in his hand as he twisted it and swung the door open. He stepped into the apartment...

...and stopped dead, eyes widening and a flush springing to his cheeks as he took in the sight before him.

He'd been wrong about the origin of the light - it wasn't a TV. Instead, it was several blue-tinted revolving lights casting strange, flickering patterns over crudely-made. objects. Stuff that looked like it belonged in a medieval dungeon, for the most part, made out of rough-finished lumber and hastily painted either black, or a very dark red - in the blue lighting, it was impossible to be sure. Whips, chain, shackles. all of it cheap and old, but plenty of it.

And, standing in the center of the room, the Mistress of this domain.

Dark-haired and tall, she might have been a sight to see in her prime, but that had been some time ago. Now, her once-taut body had begun to sag, and her long hair was obviously dyed to maintain it's raven coloring. The leather outfit she wore did little to flatter her ungraceful aging - high-cut at the hips and low-cut at the neck, it showed large, flabby breasts and not-too-attractive thighs in black fishnet stockings before her legs vanished into the knee-high black leather boots she wore.

She was in the process of pouring a large amount of what Kevin fervently hoped was chocolate pudding into a large black plastic bag/container of some sort, from which ran a tube and a few other, less immediately identifiable hoses/wires/cords. The woman slowly looked Kevin up and down, her too-heavily-made-up face narrowing in unfriendly surprise. "Who the fuck are you?" She demanded, bluntly.

"I.. uh..." Kevin stammered, slowly backing away from the forty-something year old woman's angry glare. "My truck... out of gas, and I..."

"I don't got no phone." The woman said, coolly, watching him with narrowed eyes. Without taking her eyes off of him, she sidled over to the window, then glanced out briefly... then took a second, longer look.

"The Explorer?" She asked, her voice becoming less harsh, more conversational... and Kevin sighed softly and began to relax a bit, despite the bizarre situation.

"Yeah. It's out of gas." He said, apologetically. "I didn't mean to bother you..."

"Nice truck." She said, picking up a leather-padded cigar case and toying with its lid. "A ninety-eight, I'd say. You sure it's out of gas? Maybe something's wrong with it."

Kevin grinned ruefully. "no - I just went and forgot to fill the tank."

"Oh..." She said, nodding sagely as she turned from the window and began walking over to him, a faint smile beginning to form on her dark-red-lipstick-clad lips. "Well, it's a nice one. Probably worth as much as I earn in six months doing this shtick."

"Really?" Kevin asked without much interest - now that she'd decided he wasn't up to no good - and wasn't a client - she seemed to want to 'chat', and Kevin wasn't exactly in the mood...

"Oh yes..." She said, lips parting to reveal yellowing teeth in what she used for a smile. "Really..."

Her hand moved so fast, Kevin had barely enough time to see it before it slammed into the side of his head. He went down, hard. "Stupid bitch." The woman laughed humorlessly. "What are you, some up-town yuppie too dumb to live?"

Though Kevin wasn't unconscious, he was so close to it that he certainly wasn't capable of answering, even if he had wanted to. Indeed, he was unable to move, or to focus his eyes properly, his head spinning and throbbing as his vision faded in and out of a gray cloud.

He felt the woman's hands on his body as she rolled him over and searched through his pockets, pulling out his wallet and keys. "What the...?" He heard her say a minute later - then her fingers were on his pants, and he felt her strip them off.

"Well, I'll be damned..." She laughed. "A little sissy perv! You come down to buy some hormones from the Puerto Rican tranny down the block, sissy-boy?"

This time, Kevin managed a response - a weak groan.

"Now, now - can't have that..." The woman laughed. Kevin felt her hands on him once more as she efficiently stripped him - something she probably had a lot of experience with.

The next thing he felt was her hauling his now-naked body upright. Shoving him hard against a rough lumber X-frame, she leaned into his chest with her shoulder to keep him upright as she buckled his left hand into the leather-and-steel strap.

Beginning to come around a bit, Kevin realized what she was doing - and tried to struggle, to pull his arm away.

It was a feeble effort, and she easily got his arm buckled in - and the right one, too. Kevin was slowly picking up some energy, but she quickly buckled the waist strap, and then it was easy enough to buckle in his ankles. He managed a fairly sharp kick at her head while she was kneeling to buckle that foot in - but she easily avoided the kick, and forced his foot into position and buckled him in, leaving him helplessly.

"Wha.. what are you doing?" Kevin said, thickly, then with more force: "Let me out of here!"

"Oh, I don't think so, sissy-boy." She laughed. "In half an hour, I can be gone, have the truck sold, and be on my way to another state. This place is just where I work, and I didn't use my real name to get it. All you've got is a description of me, and by the time you manage to get to the cops, it won't do any good."

"You bitch!" Kevin snarled, clenching his jaw against the urge to cry. He'd thought his luck couldn't get any worse - and then this. She just laughed. "Yeah, that's right. A professional bitch, for the last twenty years. Now, thanks to you, I think it's time to retire." "You'd better let me e out of here, or I'll..." Kevin started to threaten, impotently.

"Oh, shut up..." the woman said, negligently - then, with an unpleasant grin, she grabbed the black plastic baggy thing and hung it on a hook above Kevin's head.

Then, in one smooth, practiced move, she yanked something down over his head and yanked it in place over his mouth.

It was the end of the hose leading to the baggy, attached to a rubber strap that now held the scuba-regulator-style mouthpiece in his mouth, a leather-and-rubber flange on the outside forming an air-tight seal over his mouth.

"Can't have you screaming for help until I'm gone." She said, laughing. "I doubt anybody would come - if nothing else, they're used to screaming from in here - but I'm not taking any risks."

She started to turn away... then stopped and turned back to look at him, hung naked and helpless on the X-frame. Grinning wickedly, she picked up something else - and clamped it in place on his nose, cutting off his air supply.

"Have fun, sissy-boy." She laughed, heading towards the door. As she neared the door, she bent and picked up a pile of loose clothing - his clothing. As she opened the door and stepped into the hall, she paused for a final shot.

"Nice tits."

Then she was gone, the door latching behind her as Kevin, eyes bulging, made dull 'ugn' pleas of mercy low in his throat.

He couldn't believe he was in this situation. It was impossible that his day could be getting worse - but it was. Already, he could feel the low ache in his lungs as they wanted to draw a deep breath.

Twisting his head, Kevin tried to see the bag on the hook, but it was directly out of his line of sight. He couldn't see it.

Desperately, he recalled the image of the woman filling it. Basically, it was like a big, black icing bag, coming to a cone where the hose ran off. When he'd entered, it had been open at the top, where two string loops - like the handles of a shopping bag - had been holding it up on a small frame. If it was still open, then he could get air...

...once the pudding (oh, dear God, he hoped it was pudding!) was out of the way.

Closing his eyes, Kevin whimpered, knowing what would happen if he took in any food, even pudding. However, it was a small choice - eat the pudding - or die.

Whimpering once more, Kevin began to suck on the mouthpiece, feeling the thick, warm substance fill his mouth. He swallowed, feeling it slide down his throat - and was grateful to taste the overpowering flavor of chocolate.

Tears leaking from beneath his closed lids and dripping from his lengthened lashes, Kevin began gulping frantically at the pudding, his lungs burning for oxygen.

He fell into a rhythm, matching the heavy pounding of his abused head. In addition to his aching head and burning lungs, his throat and the back of his tongue began to ache with the effort of suctioning the thick semi-liquid through the tube - but he dare not stop.

Finally, after what seemed like an eternity but couldn't have been long at all, he felt the 'thump' as the last glob came through, the bag twitching as air rushed into the tub behind the pudding. The last glob fell into his mouth, and he had to force himself to swallow it before attempting to take a breath. The hose whistled as he sucked a lung full of air in, then whooshed as he exhaled, breathing rapidly and heavily.

The sudden rush of oxygen made him dizzy for a few seconds as he gulped in the cool, fresh air....

..and then the dizziness redoubled, and his stomach began to jump and twitch, his body shivering from a sudden chill.

Kevin couldn't even swear around the hose as the fever began to rise. Then the pain hit his body, and it was too much for him, after the head injury and the oxygen deprivation. Buoyed on a wave of pain and horror, Kevin was swept into unconsciousness.

* * * * *

When Kevin came to, he gasped in pain - it felt like his left arm was being ripped out of its socket, and his head was yanked back on such an angle that swallowing was hard.

His eyes fluttered open, and he found himself staring at a water-stained ceiling through a light-yellow veil of some sort. Groaning, Kevin twitched - and felt his right arm move freely.

He realized that he was leaning forward, leaning on the right with his left arm still yanked back and upwards, supporting his weight. The forward lean also accounted for the angle of his head as the hose from the bag held his face pulled back.

Reaching up with his free hand, Kevin tried to brush whatever was obscuring his vision out of the way - and almost poked his eye out with a longer nail than he was used to. Gingerly, he brushed the pale yellow veil out of the way - whimpering with the realization that it was his hair, longer and a lighter blonde than ever.

He whimpered again even as he understood how his arm was free - the woman might have bucked him in well, but she'd never expected his hand and wrist to get smaller, slimmer, daintier...

...more feminine.

Moaning, Kevin tried to pull his body upright - but he simply lacked the leverage for it. He shuddered with frustration - and found himself sobbing helplessly, the feminine act of bursting into tears increasing his shame and despair even more.

He might have hung there, crying, for quite some time if he hadn't had a brain storm. Even as the tears continued to trickle, he reached up and grabbed the hose leading to his mouth, and used that to haul himself upright against the ex-frame.

He unstrapped the rubber band from around his mouth and spit the mouthpiece out, working his lips and clearing his throat, trying to get the cloying flavor of the pudding out of his mouth.

"Oh, god..." He moaned - then gasped at the sound of his voice. Though hoarse and raspy from a dry throat, it was noticeably higher and more feminine, sounding too feminine to be mistaken for a man's voice.

"Oh, God... I should have let myself suffocate..." Kevin whimpered - but even as he was claiming his willingness to give in, he was fumbling to undo the other buckle holding his left arm.

Once it let go, he fell forward, doubling up at the waist and landing on his hands, practically bent in half. "Ouch!" He cried, "Shit, I think I just broke my fuckin' boobs..."

His higher-pitched new voice trailed off as he realized what he'd instinctively just said. The action had slammed his tits against his knees and there was definitely a lot more tit-flesh to be bruised than before.

Grimacing, he reached out with one hand and unstrapped a slightly large and rough-hewn - but feminine - foot from the frame, then switched hands and did the second one.

Released, he tumbled forward and let himself roll with the fall, ending up in the center of the room, sitting up.

Hesitantly, Kevin looked downwards... and closed his eyes with a whispered plea to God as he saw the firm, round breast thrust from his chest. At least a full C-cup, they looked fully formed and ripe, tipped with large, pink nipples that were fully swollen in the cool air.

Unable to look, Kevin slowly moved his hand, letting its slimmer fingers glide over the smooth, silky flesh of one thigh towards his crotch...

His cock was about two inches long, and limp. There was no sign of his balls.

Just below his shrunken, limp member, a small slit lay. It was small and tight and shallow - but it was definitely the rudimentary beginnings of a womanhood.

Kevin gasped, horrified at how much he'd changed - but thankful that it wasn't complete. Part of his manhood was still intact. There was still hope.

His body ached and creaked, and it protested loudly when he forced it upright - but he had to go. He had no idea how long he'd been unconscious, but a glance out the window told him it had been at least an hour, maybe as much as three.

He wasn't terribly surprised to see his truck was missing.

Staggering slightly, Kevin turned from the window and began to look around for his clothes, eager to get out of here.

There was no sign of them. For whatever reason - maybe to further delay his going to the cops should he get free - the woman had taken his clothes with her when she'd left. Kevin even recalled it, now - he was still a little fuzzy-headed.

A second search of the room served to remind Kevin of the woman's claim not to have a phone - apparently, it was true.

Fighting the urge to break into tears again, Kevin knew that he'd have to find something here to wear so he could find a pay phone. He had to call Ellen and get her to pick him up - he couldn't go to the cops for help or to report his car stolen. After all, he couldn't prove he was even him. All that would have to wait until after he got his own body back.

Taking a deep breath to calm his nerves - which didn't help any - Kevin headed down the short hallway that led to the bedroom. Stepping inside, Kevin looked around the dirty, disheveled room...

...and found his eyes being drawn to the large mirror mounted on the far wall. It took up the entire wall, except for where the small, barred window was located, a shabby dresser beneath.

Slowly, unaware he was even doing it, Kevin began drawing closer to the mirrored surface, his eyes slowly tracing over the reflection of his altered body.

He was... feminine. Not the most attractive woman on the face of the planet by any stretch of the imagination, there was no doubt of the feminine nature of his body. Pull some panties on over the shrunken cock - which would hardly make a bulge - and Kevin would pass as a woman.

Kevin came to a dead stop a few feet away from the mirror, eyes wide and blank as he continued to stare at his reflection.

For a long moment, his eyes bore into the muddy-blue ones that gazed back blindly, taking in their open, mindless expression, the long, dark lashes around them...

...then his gaze slowly slid upwards, sliding across the thick, wavy mane of pale blonde hair that fluffed around his face and fell down around his slimmer shoulders before spilling down his back.

Then his eyes slowly traced down, lightly passing over an unremarkable feminine nose and pausing lightly on the fuller, feminine-looking lips before continuing down past his more slender neck.

He took a longer time staring at his enlarged bust. Definitely a healthy C-cup, they were firm and milky, tipped with large and frankly feminine nipples. They were utterly and unarguably feminine, and not the 'girlish' breasts of before, but womanly.

Below those breasts lay a waist that was considerably narrower than before, but still rather thick from a purely aesthetic viewpoint. His hips had become wider, acquiring a feminine shape that matched the feminine-if-unremarkable legs that led down to his altered feet.

"Good Lord..." Kevin said in his new contralto voice, his tone vague and whispery. "I'm a mess. "

Unconsciously, Kevin's hands came up, and she began to fluff her mid-length nails through her hair, doing little to rectify the tangled mess it had become.

Slowly, she stopped fussing with her hair, and her hands began to drop, sliding down over her face, fluttering across her nose and lips. Then they dipped lower, and lightly glided across her full, firm new bust line.

"Hmm...." She whispered tonelessly. "They look good. "

Her tentative touch became firmer as she cupped her bust, feeling their weight in her smaller hands, then sliding her fingers up to slowly rub her nipples. Eyes still boring straight ahead, blankly, she made small, toneless sounds of pleasure as she continued to fondle her breasts.

Then she stopped, the blank look in her eyes slowly replaced with growing puzzlement. Slowly, she lowered her head and stared down at her hands, which were cupping her breasts.

"Wha. what am I doing?" She asked herself, a trace of life creeping into her voice and gaining strength as she asked himself a second question. "What.. what did I come in here for ?"

Kevin twitched and took a deep breath, like somebody dropped suddenly in a pool of cold water, then shook his head as animation flowed back into his features.

"Okay..." He said, with a brisk tone belied by a quaver in his feminine voice. "Let's see what I've got to work with. Turning, he began to sort through the piles of clothing that littered the bed and floor, looking for something he could wear. "no pants.." He grouched. "Black leather, black plastic, black rubber... Geez, talk about..."

Then he stopped dead as he lifted a full-body black leather catsuit and came across something unexpected. Gingerly, he picked up that pair of white nylons that topped a small pile of filmy, brightly-colored clothing.

"Geez..." Kevin muttered, separating the hosiery so he held one stocking in each hand. "I can't imagine that woman wearing these. They're so... girly. Soft, white, lacy..."

Kevin's voice took on a strange, sing-song tone as his eyes went out of focus.

"...dainty, girlish." S/he said, a small smile fluttering across fuller lips, unnoticed. "So... pretty."

Turning, s/he sat on the edge of the bed, still talking. "Well.. since there's no pants, I guess I'll have to wear these pretty nylons, all trimmed at the top with lace..."

The smile unconsciously widened as feminine hands moved with unknowing skill, balling the first nylon around his thumbs. Lifting his foot, s/he slid his toes in, then slowly drew the nylon up his leg.

"Oh!" S/he gasped, then giggled. "That feels so... nice."

She paused a half-beat, then added unenthusiastically. "For women's clothes, I mean."

Looking down at his leg, s/he slowly and tenderly straightened the nylon, leaving the white seam running up the back perfectly straight, and the pink-lace-trimmed elasticized tops perfectly aligned. With as much care and new-found skill, s/he pulled on the second nylon, then just sat there for a minute, gently running his fingers up and down the silky fabric over his legs.

"Hmmm..." S/he whispered. "So this is what a woman feels like when she's wearing nylons..." Kevin blinked for a second, the smile fading and becoming puzzled, but not vanishing completely. "Well..." He said, turning back to the small pile of brighter clothing. "Let's see what else we've got..." He picked up a pair of frilly white women's briefs... and sighed.

"I guess it's better than nothing..." he told himself, sliding his nyloned feet through the leg holes, then standing up. She began drawing them up his legs, feeling them move over his nylon-clad legs as they rose higher and higher...

With a soft gasp, s/he settled them in place, feeling their silky embrace around his hips and over his crotch, so soft and silky-smooth. S/he turned and faced the mirror, looking himself up and down, a smile slowly forming on his face.

"Yes..." She murmured. "Yes, this isn't too bad at all. Much better than black leather..."

She slid one foot forward, keeping her weight on the back one as she cocked her hip, resting one hand on that hip while she drew her shoulder's back, making her tits seem bigger and firmer.

"Oh, I've got nice little boobies, don't I...?" She giggled, smiling broadly. "They're so perky and firm!" The she pouted. "But my hair! It's, like... so messy!"

She turned away from the mirror and headed for the dresser, moving with a mechanical glide that was nevertheless strangely graceful. Reaching the dresser, she picked up a brush that lay there, and began to work it through her hair, humming softly to herself as she brushed and patted her hair into place...

As she lay the brush down, she noticed some more items laying on the dresser, and reached out to pick them up...

* * * * *

Kevin blinked, a small frown creasing his face as he stared at the top of the dresser. Slowly, he turned his head away from the dresser and looked at the spot next to the bed where he'd been standing before.. before he'd walked over here. But why had he walked over here...?

"Oh..!" S/he said taking a breath and smiling faintly. "To brush my hair. That's right. That bang on the head must have stirred my brains around!"

Giggling at how confused s/he'd been, he headed back over to the bed and sat down beside the pile of clothing again and began to sort through it, his altered hands picking through some of the clothing. He lifted a filmy, powered-blue layered skirt that was the longest one in the pile, and tilted his head in consideration...

...and then paused as s/he wondered what had just nagged at hir conscience. Something seemed wrong about what s/he'd felt as s/he'd tilted hir head. S/he ran it back through her mind, the way it had felt. There had been the brush of hair across hir shoulders and back, the coolly smooth touch of plastic on her shoulder in time with the slight tug at her earlobe, the shift of hir breasts as s/he'd leaned slightly to one side...

"Oh..." Kevin said, feeling both foolish and ashamed. Foolish, because he definitely wasn't used to the shift and sway of breasts, but should have realized that's what had triggered his consciousness - and ashamed (and more) by the fact that he now had breast to feel.

Sighing in frustration, he licked his lips lightly in annoyance, then grimaced as the waxy after-taste as s/he rose and began to step into the skirt she'd chosen.

A quick glance in the mirror made her grin - the filmy, many-layered garment hung, technically, to her knees - but it's design made it nearly transparent at that level, gradually become more and more opaque the higher it rose.

Quickly, she grabbed a similarly-styled blouse. In hot pink, the semi-transparent blouse had layers of frills around the low neckline that opaqued her actual nipples and most of her firm, round boobies - but allowed a faint hint of them to show through.

More than that, the silky-smooth fabric felt wonderful against her skin, especially across her full, swollen nipples.

Careful not to yank on her earrings, she threw her mane of hair back over her shoulders and admired the look, gloss-pink lips spreading in a smile as her purple-eye-shadowed eyes stared blankly at her reflection. Quickly, she pulled on a big white patent leather belt, cinching it as tight as it would go around her waist.

Rooting around the floor produced a pair of white rounded-toe pumps with a seven-inch-high spike heel, and she giggled to herself as she slid her feet into the shoes. They were slightly too small, pinching her feet painfully - but she didn't care, because they looked so good on her as she balanced with just a little trouble atop them.

"Oh, I look so great!" She said, clapping her hands together gleefully. She pulled back her shoulder and wiggled her torso, making her tits jiggling in their translucent prison...

...and the motion unbalanced her, and she sat down on the bed, hard.

"Ow!" Kevin cursed as something hard dug into his fuller, firmer ass. "What the hell..."

Lifting off the pile of clothes, he stared down... at the cheap plastic telephone. Barely daring to believe, he snatched up the receiver and held it to his ear.

The monotone buzz of an open line was the most welcome sound he'd ever heard. Cursing his lengthened nails, he quickly punched in Ellen's number.

She picked up on the first ring, and the first thing to come out of her mouth in her slightly husky new voice was "Kevin?" "Yes." Kevin answered - and he heard her draw in a breath sharply at the sound of his altered voice.

"What happened?" She asked, slowly. "Where are you... and.. how far..."

Kevin began to relate the story of his morning... and by the time he was done, he was sobbing anew, ashamed at his inability to hold back the tears.

"Okay, Kevin." Ellen said, heavily. "Look - my car's dead. I tried to start it when you didn't show up or call me, and it won't even crank. You don't have nay money, and no matter how much I pay a taxi ahead of time, they're not going to go into that part of town on a wild goose-chase. Do you understand, Kevin?"

Kevin swallowed. "You.. you mean I'll have to walk out to the commercial district?" "That's right. I'll have a cab waiting for you. You... should be easy to spot."

Kevin had described the outrageously bright outfit that was the best he could find - and, as disgusted as he was to be wearing it, he had to admit it would make him easily visible.

"I... I'll see you in about an hour then." Kevin said, feeling lost and abandoned. He heard compassion and pity in Ellen's voice as she said goodbye, then they hung up.

Taking a deep breath, Kevin rose and faced his reflection in the mirror.

"Well... It's all up to you." S/he said, then grinned wryly. "At least if something goes wrong, you'll look good." Smoothing the skirt over her legs, she grinned widely. "Damned good."

Humming cheerfully to herself, Kayla turned from the mirror and began to jiggle and sway to the door. She paused for a second when she spied a big white shoulder-bag-style purse. Grabbing it, she slung it over her shoulder and double-checked herself in the mirror. Throwing a kiss at her reflection, she turned and headed out to the door.

She clattered cheerfully down the stairs, balancing easily atop her heels, then headed for the front door...

...and stopped dead, hyperventilating, as it truly struck him that he was about to step outside, looking for all the world like a real, honest- to-god woman.

"get a grip, Kevin..." He told himself, struggling to stop breathing heavily. "You can't just hole up here. You've got to get to Ellen's so we can undo this.. this nightmare."

Slowly, the panic began to recede... but not completely. Taking a deep, deep breath, s/he opened the door and hurried through it before s/he lost his nerve.

The winter air hit him like a sledge hammer, and he was mortified to feel his nipples go harder and bigger than ever before, making delightful dents in her shirt visible even through the layers of filmy fabric, as if begging for attention.

Shivering. S/he began to hurry as fast as his heels would allow. It was about a fifteen minute walk to the coffee shop s/he was supposed to meet the cab at, and the cold wind was cutting through the damned woman's outfit he was wearing, moving across his nyloned legs like it was fondling them, and blowing down her blouse's neckline like a cold flow of thin cum.

By the time she reached the coffee-shop, she was shivering violently, and she wished she had enough money to buy a large coffee to help warm her up - but it didn't really matter, as the cab was waiting already, and she climbed in.

The cab's interior wasn't all that much warmer than outside, but at least it was out of the wind. "Sort of under-dressed for the weather, aren't you miss?"

"Yes, I guess I am..." She said, with a giggle. S/he shrugged "I wasn't really planning to get out of my car, until it broke down." "Really - that's a stroke of bad luck." The cabby said, tuning in the seat to smile at her... his eyes tracing down to her cleavage. Kevin shuddered. "You have no idea..." He said, shortly, shivering. "Can we go? I'm freezing."

The guy's smile faded and he shrugged. Turning around, he put the car into gear and pulled out of the lot.

* * * * *

Letting the door to Ellen's house shut the cold air out with a grateful sigh, Kevin leaned back against it for a few seconds, gathering his strength. Then, gratefully, he kicked off the too-small shoes, sighing at the relief as his feet were freed.

"Ellen?" He called, walking deeper into the house. His legs were slowly warming, and he could feel the movement of air over his nylon-clad legs, and the swish and swirl of the light skirt, all reminding him of how close he'd come to true womanhood. "Ellen, this cabby said he had another fare. We'll have to call another one to take us to the..."

He stopped dead and recoiled in shock as, out of the shadowed doorway, a massive black man dressed in a dark-brown bathrobe way too small for his massive frame stepped into the light, his shaven head gleaming under the light and his narrow eyes gazing down on Kevin from his nearly seven feet of height.

"Whoa, take it easy..." he rumbled in a deep, deep voice, his wicked-looking goatee seeming to bristle...

...and then Kevin let out a whoosh of pent-up breath. "Ellen! What the hell happened to you!"

It had taken a second, but then Kevin had recognized the overly-masculine body he had designed for Ellen's 'character'. He'd thought it would be fun to give the techno-weeny woman the massive frame and threatening look and actions of a sort of bouncer/thug type guy. Now, despite knowing it was really Ellen inside that massive frame, it still intimidated Kevin.

"Like you, I had a little... mishap." Ellen rumbled, grinning to display amazingly white, even teeth that transformed him from threatening into suave. "Luckily, the physical transformation seemed to run ahead of the mental changes, at least in my case. I might be fully changed, physically, but I'm still in control of my mind."

"Thank God..." Kevin sighed. He grinned ruefully. "Lucky me. The character profile I came up with was kind of a low life."

Ellen's massively male new body shook with a chuckle. "Let me guess.... a hitman." The new man struck an exaggerated pose...

...which made Kevin blush furiously, as it inadvertently lifted the hem of the ridiculously small robe, revealing a glimpse of the massively over-sized schlong Kevin had bestowed this body.

"Uh, no..." He said, glancing away. "Nothing that violent. Just a general sort of scum-bucket. A petty criminal - pimp, small-time drug-dealer, con artist, hired muscle... that sort of thing."

"Thank God is right." Ellen rumbled. "Considering this body, I was worried for a while that I might start having homicidal tendencies." He laughed off the possibility and smiled smoothly.

"Well..." Kevin said, the blush fading as he craned his neck to look up at Ellen's new face. "Let's get going. You must be even more eager to get changed back than me... if that's possible."

"You bet I am." Ellen rumbled. "but we can't go right now." Kevin frowned. "Why not?"

Ellen laughed. "Because, I don't have a single thing that would fit me!" Kevin blinked - then grinned faintly, seeing the problem.

"Don't worry." Ellen reassured him. "I've ordered some clothes from a store. They should be here before very long. It's just a short delay. Unlike some people, I wasn't lucky enough to find clothes that fit... You have to admit, this robe is a lot less flattering on me than that outfit looks on you. You look downright pretty."

S/he blinked. "Really? I mean... you don't think this is too... much?" "A little." Ellen agreed. "But sometimes 'too much' is a bit of fun, too."

"Yeah!" She said, with a giggle, then s/he grew serious. "I nearly froze in it, though." He shivered, still chilled. "Well, while we're waiting I think we can warm you up. Come into the den."

He put one massive hand on his back and guided her into the den, sitting her near the fire he had going. Walking over to the bar, he picked up a bottle of rum and a glass, and walked back to the couch, filling the glass.

"Here you go." Ellen said, handing it over.

"Are you sure this is a good idea?" Kevin asked. "I mean..."

"Oh, don't worry - everybody knows how little nutritional value there is in alcohol." Ellen assured him. "Beside, you must need it - your nipples are so swollen and thick and hard, it looks like you're a horny little vixen."

S/he glanced down at where her nipples were still making large dents in the fabric. "Yeah - I guess you're right." S/he took a large swig of the alcohol, and almost immediately felt it spreading its warmth through her system. "Whoa... what a kick!" S/he gasped. "Two hundred proof rum gets me every time."

"What?" Ellen said, amazed. "Kevin - it's just 100 proof."

"Oh..." He said, surprised. "I guess my taste-buds have changed, too." "No - they're probably just froze, like you're cute little ass." Ellen laughed.

"Probably." S/he agreed with a grin as Ellen poured some more rum in the glass, and poured some for himself too. "Here's to everything working out just perfect." Ellen said with an easy grin. "Bottom's up!"

Throwing her head back, s/he drained the glass in time with the massive black man - then hiccuped. She covered her mouth with her hand.

"Excuse me!" S/he said - then hiccuped again. "Whoops!" Ellen laughed. "Here..."

He poured about three fingers worth of Rum in the glass. "Pinch your nose, and down it in one swallow." He said.

Dubiously, Kevin looked at him - then shrugged. Pinching his slender nose with his dainty fingers, Kevin closed his eyes and tossed off the booze. He lowered the glass and waited a second...

'Hic!' - "Damn!"

"Did you let all your breath out before you did it?" Ellen asked with a confused frown. "no - you didn't tell me to!" Kevin retorted.

:Oh, shit - I'm sorry." Ellen said, pouring some more rum in the glass. "Try it again."

Breathing out with a whoosh, Kevin went through it again and waited... and waited.. and waited...

"Damn - it worked!" Kevin said. "But I think the hiccups did something to all the food I ate earlier, especially the pudding. Where...?" "Down the hall and to the right." Ellen said, standing and pointing.

Kevin headed off, wondering why everything seemed to be a little off. Maybe it was his altered height, or the way his hips moved now...

Closing the bathroom door, he fumbled for a couple of minutes with his clothing - then cursed and just pulled the skirt and panties off. Dropping onto the toilet, he stared down at his stocking-clad legs as he took care of business, lightly sliding one hand over the smooth surface.

When s/he was finally done, s/he flushed the toilet with hir elbow and stood up...

...and almost bowled forward, throwing hir hands out against the wall to stop herself from falling. "Oh, shit..." S/he said, with a giggle. "I fink.. think.. I'm drunk..."

Swaying, s/he struggled hir way back into hir panties and skirt, then washed hir hands. It took hir three tries to get the bathroom door open.

"Whoops - that's it!" S/he giggled. "Hey, Er'en. You went an' got me drunk!" The massive black man appeared and put an arm around hir shoulders.

"Damn - I forgot that with your smaller body and lower weight, alcohol would hit you faster. I'm sorry,... Kayla." "S'okay.." She assured him. "Not yer fault, Er'en..."

He laughed, the sound rich and booming. "Wow, you are drunk, aren't you?" "Hmmm?" She asked, smiling up at him blearily.

"Er-ic." He enunciated clearly. "That's how you say my name, Kayla. Eric. You try."

She frowned, trying to recall what she'd just called him. then figured that she was so drunk, she could have called him just about any damn thing. Carefully, she repeated his name, concentrating in the roiling-hard sound of it. "Errrr-ic!" "That's better." Eric said, guiding her to the couch. Just then, the doorbell rang.

"Whoops!" Eric grinned. "That'll be our clothes." "Oh..." Kayla said.. then blinked. "Our clothes?"

"I got you some stuff too. Hope you don't mind..." Eric said.

"S'nice..." Kayla said, blearily, as Eric left the room. He returned a couple of minutes later, burdened with boxes and bags. "Here." He said, handing her a box. "Why don't you put this on?"

She blinked up at him. "Why?"

He grinned easily. "To make sure it fits, of course."

"Oh. Right." Kayla nodded. With exaggerated motions, she began to carefully undress, dropping her borrowed clothes in a pile next to the couch. When she was naked, she opened the box Eric handed her.

"Hmmm... neat..." She giggled, finding a complete outfit waiting for her. As Eric stood to one side, an odd grin on his face, she began to dress.

First came the white Spanish-lace thigh-high nylons. Carefully, Kayla pulled them on, obsessively making sure that the patterned rhinestone-studded seam along the outside of each leg was straight.

Next, she worked the French-cut white lace panties into place, followed by the white garter-belt. It took several tries to get the three garters on each side clipped to the tops of they stockings, but she finally managed.

Then she lifted out the hot-pink satin skirt. It was short and wide and frilly, and trimmed with white lace, and it was uncomfortably tight around the waist - but Eric told her not to worry about it, so she ignored it.

Then came a white sweater out of the softest wool she'd ever felt. Fuzzily, she peered in the box. "Where's th'shirt?"

"You don't need a shirt." Eric told her, so she pulled the sweater on. Sure enough it was so soft and fuzzy that it was very comfortable - almost too comfortable against her nipples.

Then she picked up the shoes in the bottom of the box - and giggled. "No way..." She said, holding them up. "I can't wear these!"

"Oh - just see if they fit..." Eric urged, so she laboriously put them on.

They were 'Mary Janes'. In hot pink. With a five-inch tall, inwardly-sloping platform on the sole and a fifteen-inch tall spike heel on the back.

Sure enough, when she tried to stand Eric had to catch her. She doubted whether she could balance on them, stone cold sober.

"See...?" She giggled, reaching down to take them off.

"Hey - just leave them on for now." Eric said. "It's not like we're going anywhere right now." Kayla frowned. "Huh? Though we were gonna go to the lab..."

Eric laughed. "Not with you stinking drunk!" HE leaned down. "Here - I'll carry you into the living room, and you can watch a movie and sober up, okay."

"Kay.." She agreed. He slid his massively muscled arms under her body and lifted her easily, carrying her into the living room and placing her on the end of the couch, where she could lean against the arm.

"Thas a weir' place to put a mirror..." She said, pointing to the large mirror beside the TV. "I can see mysel' innit."

"That's nice." Eric said. "Here, to help you sober up, here's some diet shakes to drink. You just drink up and watch the movie, and I'll get changed and be back in a bit so we can go - okay?"

Kayla shook her head, trying to clear it. She looked at the large box full of small pop-can-like containers with a frown. "Shoul' I?" She asked, trying to figure out why the thought of drinking something felt... wrong.

"Oh, I know you're enjoying being drunk..." Eric said with a smile. "But if you want to go to the lab, you have to sober up. You do want to go to the lab, right?"

"Righ'!" She agreed, emphatically. Leaning over, she grabbed the first can and popped open the top, taking a long drink of the warm, thick liquid inside.

"Okay - See you in a bit." Eric said, hitting 'play' on the remote. Tucking it into his robe's pocket, he left the room.

Looking at the TV, Kayla's gaze was momentarily distracted by the mirror, and she looked at her pink-and white reflection. "Hmmm... look cute, don' I?" She asked herself. "oh, well, is juz for a while longer..."

Trying to take a sip of her drink, she found the can was empty, so she tossed it aside and open another one as the FBI warning vanished and the movie started - with a heavy, cheesy soundtrack. As she watched, the screen filled with naked, writhing bodies, over which the poorly-formed words 'Night Nurse Nymphos' appeared.

"Hey, is a porn movie.." She giggled. The movie started, and she leaned back and sipped at her drink. There was no real plot line, and she found her attention wandering back to the mirror, where she looked at herself again.

Dressed in the clothes she was wearing, you couldn't tell she was a guy. She had a figure that was all woman... in fact, she looked like your average, everyday, run-of-the-mill woman. No supermodel or Playmate, sure, but not ugly, either. Sort of 'unfinished' looking, maybe, with slightly too-big hands, feet, nose and shoulders, a waist on the thick side, and hips on the slender. Of course, the clothes helped - you didn't see many women wearing clothes this feminine, really....

Then a heavy beat and a twanging music drew her eyes back to the screen, and she giggled - it was a sex scene. She watched a supposed nurse as she found an excuse to take a man's temperature... by sucking on his cock....

She was vaguely aware of Eric coming in and saying something, but she didn't really register what he said - she was too busy watching the actress slurp on the guy's slick shaft. Numbly, she took what he handed her, and barely noticed when he left, as the doctor arrived to take the nurse's temperature.. anally...

* * * * * the VCR 'clunked' as it reached the end of the tape, and began rewinding automatically.

Kayla blinked and shook her head - she'd zone out for a while there. Oh, well, at least it had allowed her to sober up...

She started to turn her head to call for Eric. and she caught sight of herself in the mirror, and she stopped dead, staring.

The woman in the mirror was a caricature of the woman she'd been when she'd arrived.

Massive, thick waves of platinum-blond hair rose from her scalp before being tied into a bundle by a huge, hot-pink bow, then cascaded down her back in an incredibly thick, heavy wave of silver-gold curls.

That massive, high, long mass of curly hair surrounded an elfin face that was dominated by huge, limpid-blue eyes surrounded by long, dark lashes and a incredibly full, bee-stung pair of lips done a high-gloss, white-rimmed shade of pink. These features all-but-obscured the tiny, upturned nose she now possessed.

Her legs were incredible. Long and shapely, they seemed to go on forever before disappearing under the hem of the ultra-short short that flared over her wide hips and full ass before clinging tightly to a tiny wasp waist.

All of this, though, was overridden by her chest. Her chest - which looked like she was trying to smuggle a pair of beach-balls under her sweater.

All of the sudden, Kayla became aware of dozen of sensations she'd somehow accepted without question. She'd felt them - but they hadn't set off any alarms in her mind. Only after seeing herself was she suddenly aware of the heavy pull of her gigantic, thick masses of silky hair. Of the odor of perfume. Of the flow of air over her incredibly long, sexy legs...

...and of the weight of her massive, firm boobs, encased in an equally massive bra of some sort. Dimly, she realized that she'd put the massive white-lace bra on, just as she'd done her makeup and replaced her old earring with massive, hot-pink-and-white ones.

"Oh.. My... God. " She said, stunned - and heard the words emerge in a high-pitched soprano voice.

"Eric!" She called, rising from the couch and heading toward the door - and then stopping to stare down at her feet.

She was wearing those ridiculously high heeled shoes - and balancing in the easily. More than that, she was walking in them - in short, insipid little steps.

"Something wrong, Kayla?" Eric asked, entering the room. Though at least an hour had passed, he was still clad in that tiny bathrobe. "Wrong?!" She asked in that high-pitched new voice that sounded like it had never said anything intelligent. "Look at me, Eric! Giggle" Her hand flew to her glossy pink lips as the high-pitched giggle escaped, involuntarily.

"Hmmm... you do look a little different." Eric said.. then grinned. "But damned sexy?"

"D'ya really thing so, Honey?" Kayla asked, brightly, putting her hands behind her back and gripping one wrist with the other hand - which caused her already huge tits to strain against her sweater. Then she blinked, the huge, insipid grin that had surfaced fading a little.

"Something wrong?" Eric asked again.

Kayla blinked, trying to figure out what felt 'off'... but unable to find anything. Dismissing it, she went back to making her point. "Dontcha think maybe we should, like, head to the.. uh, you know?"

"The lab" Eric asked, blinking. "Why do you want to go to the lab, Kayla?" "Well, duh, silly!" Kayla said, rolling her eyes. "So I can, you know, be a guy!" Eric seemed confused. "You want to be a guy, Kayla?"

Kayla giggled. "You think I want to have big, huge boobies, Eric?": She asked. Reaching up, she began to fondle her massive, sweater- encased tits to emphasize her words. "I mean, like, who want huge, round, sexy boobies that make guys drool? Really big, sensitive titties like these?"

"Oh, I'm sure they're not as big, sexy or sensitive as you seem to think, Kayla." Eric said, dismissively.

Kayla was upset that Eric didn't seem to be taking this seriously. She had to make him understand. Reaching down, she grasped the edge of the sweater, and peeled it off over her head, revealing the massive, lacy bra that more accented her massive, firm bust then supported it. Quickly, she undid the clasp with her long, gloss-pink nails and let it drop to the floor.

"See ho huge and round my bobbies are?" She asked, sliding her hands over the taut, smooth surface of her gigantic, spherical mounds. "See how.. oh!.. sensitive they are...?"

She began to massage the massive, pink nipples that tipped her gigantic, incredibly round tits.

"These titties are fuck-toy titties!" She explained to Eric. "They.. mmmm. make men want to see my boobies! Touch them and.. oh!.. fuck them. "

"Well. " Eric said, doubtfully. "They do seem rather large - but they're probably hard as rocks, and guys won't like to do anything with them."

"Large?": She giggled in annoyance. "They're hug titties, Eric. And guys will so want to suck them and touch them!" Stepping forward, she thrust her chest out.

"Go ahead, touch my big, sexy boobies, Eric!" She challenged him. "Touch them and suck them!"

Shrugging, Eric reached out, his massive, thick hands not even coming close to being able to enclose each gigantic, spherical breast as he began to massage them indifferently.

"You have to do it harder!" She said, annoyed at him. "You have to rub and squeeze my boobies! You have to.. oh! Yes, that's better..

.You have to suck on my nipples, Eric and.. mmm, yes, like that... keep doing that. "

Gasping and moaning, she proved her point to Eric, letting him fondle her massive tits with his big, strong hands and suck on her huge, super-sensitive nipples for a long time. Finally, he seemed to have finished, and he pulled away.

"Well, was that enough for you to see how big and sexy my boobies are?" She challenged him with a giggle. "Maybe you should do it for longer!"

"Well. " Eric said. "I'm not completely sold on that - but tits alone aren't enough to make you so upset about this."

"Well, how about my lips then?" She asked, licking them slowly to demonstrate. "they're so big and full and sexy, like they're just made for kissing men!"

"Oh, I bet they're too big to kiss a man well. " Eric said, scornfully.

"Nuh-uh!" She retorted. "See. ?"

Throwing herself in his arms, she grabbed his head and pulled it down so she could show him just how kissable these lips of hers were. She made sure to give it her all to convince him, kissing him long and deep and hungrily, then breaking off with a giggle.

"See?"

Eric didn't look convinced. "Come on - you can't tell me that you still want to be a man?"

She sighed. "Well, yeah, Eric. I'm, like, so sexy and girly. I wanna be, like, you know, a guy, right?"

Eric blinked, and began to look worried. "Are you sure you wouldn't rather stay a woman?"

"What?" She asked, annoyed he was being so dense. Idly, she began to massage her massive chest. "Like are you, like, stupid or something today? Why would I wanna be, like, a super-sexy sex-doll who makes men horny?"

His worried look grew. "Maybe you're still confused. Why don't we see about the tits and the kissing again...?"

"Sure!" She agreed with a huge grin, glad that she could once more prove that this body was just way to sexy and feminine. She put her all into it, making sure to show him all the major, super-sexy flaws with this ridiculously sexy body. This time, it took nearly twenty minutes, and they ended up sitting on the couch as the kiss finally broke.

"So - I bet you don't want to be a man anymore, right?" Eric asked with a grin. Kayla rolled her eyes. "Of course I do, Eric!"

Eric began to look worried again... then, a strange smile came to his face.

"Well... we could go to the lab if you like - or we could stay here and you could suck on this..." Leaning back, he untied his robe - and let his enormous, throbbing cock free.

It was gigantic, it's dark shaft laced with thick purple veins that matched the color of it's massive head. It thrust skyward from his crotch, throbbing in time with his heartbeat.

Like, gross!" She said, recoiling. "Like, as if I'd, like, do something sexual with a guy! That's really sick, Eric - I wouldn't even kiss a guy, much less... Much..."

She began to frown... then his eyes widened as he shot up from the couch and staggered backwards atop his outrageous heels.

"But.. I did kiss... twice.. and my boobies - I mean, breasts.. and..." Kevin shook his head, trying to hold on to the revelation. "What.. what's happening Eric...? Eric?! You.. You're Ellen, and I.. I'm Kay.. Kevin..."

Eric looked at her from the couch - then smiled, though there was a nervous edge to it. His voice was as mellow as he could make it.

"Look at you, babe. You ain't no Kevin - and I sure as hell ain't no skinny chick obsessed with computers. We are who we are - and, man, it's better this way. You just stop fighting your new personality, and become my little sex-toy. You and me, we'll have a lot of fun."

"No...!" Kevin said, backing further away from the stranger on the couch. "No, this.. this is all wrong.. You... What's happened to you, Ellen...?"

"I ain't no fuckin' Ellen no more!" Eric screamed at her, body tensing... and then he relaxed. "I tell you, I got hungry waitin' for you, babe. So, I had an apple. Just one little apple... but then, I just couldn't stop from havin' another.. and another - then I couldn't stop eating everything. Came a point.. I didn't want to stop, not anymore. Why be some skinny white broad who never gets any, when I can be.. this?"

He waved a hand up and down his body to illustrate - then chuckled.

"Especially when I know I can have the perfect little girlfriend. I know, because I made you, girl. I made that body - and I made the mind you're trying to fight. I wanted to play some games with you, in that there virt'l world we was gonna play in. See, that 'bar' we were gonna be going to was a strip club. I thought it's be a blast to do some things. Like, program you with all sorts of sexy skills. And make you not-to-smart. I even programmed in some stuff that gives you urges to find 'good reasons' to show off your body an' stuff... but I bet you already noticed that."

"You... I..." Kevin stammered, looking a way to escape. To late, he knew the truth - the persona he'd put in as a joke had taken up residence in Ellen's body, the person on the couch knew that he'd once been Ellen, was still - at some basic level - Ellen.

Something had happened, though, something Kevin had never expected, something that showed the real flaw and danger of mind- tampering, even in the 'safe' confines of the sim, had it worked.

Ellen had hated herself. She hadn't like who she was. Her simulated environments were really a way to seek escape from herself - and now, Ellen had found the escape. She'd fought it, because she hadn't been 'suicidal' - but once she'd begun to taste 'Eric', she'd thrown herself whole-heartedly into the character. The person on the couch wasn't exactly Ellen - but it wasn't the two-dimensional character that was the best the Sim could construct. It was a complex personality, with all of Ellen's living intelligence in it - and it wanted to finish the job on Kevin, making him into the two-dimensional 'bimbo' character 'Kayla'.

However, unlike Ellen/Eric - Kevin didn't want to be Kayla, not on any level - and so he had a fighting chance of maintaining his mind... "You.. you can't make me be your.. your sex toy!" Kevin said, defiantly - which was marred by the high-sweet tones of his new voice.

Huge, throbbing cock still erect, Eric leaned back in the couch.

"That's where you're wrong, honey." He said, confidently. "My first plan was kinda kind, actually. After all, if 'Kayla' had taken over, you wouldn't have even realized you were acting differently. You would have thought it was all you idea to do this stuff - and you would have enjoyed it. Since you're fighting that, though, I'm glad I put some stuff in that program so I could have some fun - it's one of the good things about being the programmer. So... dance for me, Kayla Kumslut!"

"Like hell I..." Kevin started to answer - then stopped...

....because his body had began to sway to unheard music, and he began to dance in a sexy-innocent style fitting a brainless bimbo too dumb to realize how much of a bimbo she was. Kevin felt his huge new tits sway and bounce as he helplessly moved, felt the flow and glide of the muscles in his new legs and ass as he effortless swayed atop the impossible heels he wore.

"Wha.. what's happening...?" Kevin cried, horrified at the inability to control his body.

"Mind Control Subroutine. One of the... extra's I threw in..." Eric laughed. "Now - Lactate, Kayla Kumslut!"

Kevin gasped as he felt a pressure growing in his enormous new tits - and then a thin stream of warm, white liquid began to dribble from each huge, swollen nipple. The trickle soon became a stream - then a gushing jet, thick stream shooting a dozen feet from each nipple and soaking the carpet as he continued helplessly dancing.

"Tsk, tsk - what a waste." Eric admonished with a grin. "Drink up your milk, Kayla..." "No, I...!" Kevin started to reply.

The grin fading a bit, Eric said, "Kumslut! You will obey all my verbal orders. Now - drink your milk!"

"I.." Kevin started to argue - then had to stop as he helplessly grabbed one massive tit and brought the gushing nipple to his mouth. A stream of warm milk splashed across his face before he got the nipple between his incredibly full lips and began to suck on it...

...all the while still swaying to unheard music.

Eric laughed - hard. Finally, he said, "That's enough. Stop dancing, sucking and lactating, Kumslut." Kevin helplessly obeyed.

"Now, Kayla - come over here!" Eric ordered, and, helpless to refuse, Kevin did so. "Kneel!"

Once more, Kevin found his new body obeying. "Please, Ell.. Eric! Stop this!" Eric grinned. "You want to suck my cock now, Kayla?"

"No!" Kevin said, pleading. "Please, don't make me suck your cock. I.. I'll do anything, just..." "Suck my cock, Kumslut!" Eric ordered.

"..don't make me.. umpf!" His plea for mercy was cut short as he helplessly leaned forward, his massive tits resting on Eric's knees as she enveloped the massive head of his gigantic organ with her 'cock-sucker' lips. Mechanically, she began to suck him off.

Kevin felt like he wanted to die as he helplessly bobbed his head up and down 'another' man's cock filling his mouth, his newly feminine hands wrapped around the massive throbbing shaft...

"Act like you enjoy sucking my cock, Kumslut!"

Instantly, the rhythm and pattern began to change - and to all appearances 'she' was massively enthusiastic about sucking the cock, making moans of pleasure in her throat as she expertly and energetically sucked him, tongue working overtime as her hands played his cock like a living flute...

...and then he came. A huge, thick river of hot, salty cum flowed into her mouth, and she began to gag and spit, yanking her mouth from the tip of his huge organ as cum splattered on her face and the upper slopes of her milky mountains...

"Swallow it!" Eric gasped. "Swallow my cum...!"

Helplessly, Kevin bent forward again and he found himself gulping down the salty, disgusting goo until Eric's cock went dry - and then Kevin had to obey the order to lick the massive, slowly softening organ clean.

"Well, not bad..." Eric said, with a grin. "Enjoy it?"

"Oh, God..." Kevin gasped - and then broke into tears of shame and disgust.

"Oh, that upset you?" Eric laughed. "Well... here's something for you that might make you feel different. Wait right here." Helplessly, Kevin could do nothing but crouch there and sob as Eric went off. He returned a few minutes later... holding a needle. "This is a hypnotic compound." Eric informed Kevin. "It puts the conscious mind asleep... for about four hours. Now hold still..." Kevin couldn't so much as twitch as Eric injected him.

"There..." Eric said. "Now, when it kicks in, you - 'Kevin' will fall into a trance, unaware of what's going on - leaving 'Kayla' in full control of your body. Of course, without your intelligence, she'll be as dumb as a doorknob when it comes to anything I didn't program her to do... but that's okay."

Kevin was horrified - but the thought of a 'temporary' escape was welcome. Eric might 'use' the body he was forced to live in while he was 'away', but it was better than being forced to live through it.

"It's a shame... I can only inject you once a day, or you'd OD." Eric said, grinning. "Here's the best part, though - when you wake up, you'll remember everything 'Kayla' did, in vivid detail..."

Kevin was unable to even scream at the thought of the living hell his life had become.

"Oh, yes... We're gonna have some fun with you..." Eric laughed, as the world grayed out for 'Kevin'. "All sorts of fun..." Then Kevin was no more...

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: An experiment goes haywire when there is a power outage, and what is supposed to be a very temporary experience turns into an unwanted transformation into the opposite sex. part 3

Part III - Helpless & Humiliated

Kevin. 'came to'.

It wasn't the right expression. It was closer then 'woke up', though not by much. Quite simply, Kevin had no words with which to correctly reference the experience as his mind came out of the trance that he was in.

He 'came to' in complete darkness, outrageously proportioned body stiff and awkward, pained by cramps and by constriction, all of which was acerbated by the bump-and-shuffle of motions, accompanied by the low hum of an engine, mostly overridden by a tinny AM radio currently playing Alphaville's 'Forever Young'.

The thing was - as each experience registered on the male mind trapped within the overly-feminine body, Kevin instantly and completely understood it's significance and it's origin. It wasn't exactly like remembering something he'd forgotten, but like he was 'remembering' something he'd never known. It might be how a true telepath might feel prodding through another's' person's mind, reading another's' memories - because that was more or less what Kevin was doing. He was reading the mind and memories of 'Kayla', his unwanted alter-ego, the one that matched the body that had been forced upon him.

Ellen, the secretly self-hating woman who'd unwittingly drawn herself and Kevin into this predicament, now Eric, a huge black man happy with the change, had planned ahead. She/he had only completely changed less then a hour before Kevin/Kayla's arrival at his house - but had put that time to good use, as Kevin could no plainly see from the memories that assaulted his mind, forcing their awareness into his brain - and making him want to scream and cry at his fate - and what his 'alter-ego' had willingly done to seal it.

The darkness that Kevin's limpid blue new eyes could never penetrate came from the hot-pink leather hood that enclosed her head, open at the top to allow her massive platinum-blond mane of hair to spill out and down her back. Kayla had been more then happy to follow Eric's request to put the odd garment on - after she'd put on the rest of the matching suit, the major cause of discomfort now.

The one-piece body-suit, also in hot-pink leather. It was complete with attached gloves, and included built-in 'ballet boots', footwear with a twelve-inch heel that made Kevin's tiny new feet point straight downwards.

On any other woman, such footwear would have been crippling, making her unable to walk - but Kayla would be able to balance on the outrageous footwear and even manage small, tottering steps - so that was why white-leather straps joined her ankles together. Another set of straps held her wrists bound together, and they in turn were locked in place against the O-ring attached to the white leather corset she wore.

All of these items were secured into place by little padlocks, whose key's Eric held. Kevin's new feminine body was locked securely in place, unable to move at all - and she'd 'willingly' - even enthusiastically - climbed into her bondage, giggling.

Eric had loaded her into the rental van he'd had delivered to his door by the rental-service that 'tried harder'. Ellen had been a computer expert, and so Eric was too - and, as he'd gloated to her as they'd left the driveway of Ellen's house, it had been simple to clean out both of their bank accounts. After all, Ellen and Kevin were dead, even if nobody knew it yet - and Eric didn't want to be around to answer the cop's questions when they finally showed up.

So, taking his little sex-slave with him, Eric was heading for points unknown...

Kevin had no idea how long they'd been in transit - without Kevin's conscious mind operating at full capacity, Kayla was little better than a moron, obsessed with her own body and the uses she could put it to. However, Eric had said that the serum lasted about four hours, and Kevin had no reason to believe Eric had been lying - after all, why bother to lie to somebody you had complete control of, body and mind, six ways from Sunday?

Beneath the leather hood, Kevin felt the shame of hot tears burning down his cheeks as she began to sob silently. The last hope was gone. She'd held to the thought that she might somehow make it to the lab and be changed back - but now they were at least for hours away from the lab, and Kevin had no idea in which direction. She had a body that couldn't possibly be linked to her old one, no ID or money, and a story that would just get her thrown into a rubber room, if she somehow managed to find a way to escape and find somebody in authority to tell it to.

Kevin was gone, beyond reach. All that was left was Kayla - or, rather, two Kaylas. Conscious Kayla, who felt the push-and-pull urges of the programmed personality implanted in her, able to fight off that part of her programming but unable to disobey her new master, Eric. Then there was Kayla, the programmed persona, always there, in control when Conscious Kayla's mind wasn't...

Her sobs were no longer silent as she acknowledged that there was no turning back. Her old life was gone forever - and she began to cry helplessly, hopelessly.

"Well, I see you're back. Kayla." Eric's deep voice rumbled in a self-satisfied chuckle. "Enjoy your short vacation? - I guess not. Tsk, tsk, you're probably smearing the hell out of your mascara, slut. "

The black cloud of despair that had begun to settle heavily upon Kayla hesitated. then was torn apart by the white-hot flame of rage that Eric's voice brought flaring back to life.

Okay, so maybe Kevin was gone for good. That didn't mean that she had to submit to being Eric's toy for the rest of her life. No - she'd already managed to defeat his initial plan, overriding the programmed persona that gnawed at the edges of her consciousness. She'd find a way out of this, too. She might be doomed to spend the rest of her life as a woman, but that left a lot of choice, if she could just get away from Eric, and his ability to control her with his words and voice, and the programmed 'triggers' in her altered psyche.

The sobbing stopped, and she forced her body as upright as possible, welcoming the burst of pain as her huge, impossible round new tits were squeezed by the too-small suit they were crammed into. Pain was good, pain focused her - and it pushed the Kayla persona further back. Programmed Kayla was a creature of pleasures and obedience, not pain - she was two dimensional, not suited to confront the trials and tribulations of reality. That was why Kevin/Kayla hadn't lost control to the implanted persona, and it was her greatest ally in this hellish situation.

"Well..." Eric's voice said, a little less smugly. "You're timings good, anyway. We're here."

Kayla felt the van bounce and jostle as it crossed something and onto an uneven surface - gravel, from the sound the tires made. Her cramped, confined body ached with every bump, but she made no sound of complaint - no sound of any kind - as the vehicle continued along the gravel at a low speed for several minutes, then pulled to a stop with the faint squeal-whine of brake-drums rubbing.

The engine stopped and the radio - currently halfway through 'Sweet Surrender', setting Kayla's teeth on edge, given the situation - died as the engine was turned off. Kayla could only listen as Eric climbed out and walked around to the back of the van, then threw open the loading doors and began unloading whatever it was he'd packed up at the house before leaving.

With the engine off and the back doors open, the cold winter air quickly filled the interior of the boxy vehicle, cutting through the leather body-suit and into her bare skin, especially her highly sensitive nipples and the small of her back. She began to shiver, and it soon became violent as Eric continued to ignore her and unload the van. For the second time in less than twenty-four hours, she was exposed to the frigid winter air without adequate clothing, but this time she was in complete and conscious control of her mind - the last time she'd been sliding back and forth between her 'Kevin' mind and her 'Kayla' one, all the while unaware of the fact, and her thoughts had been... strange. Thoughts of the horror of her situation had mingled with pleasure at how great her engorged nipples had looked poking through the blouse she'd been wearing. Now, Kayla was only away of the discomfort.

It seemed an eternity before Eric slammed the rear doors and walked around to her door. She felt his massively muscled arms slide under her and begin to lift her...

...and she began to trash, as best she could confined as she was.

"Goddamn..>!" Eric grunted, almost dropping her - then his tone sharpened. "Kumslut. Remain perfectly still until I tell you that you can move again!"

Helplessly, Kayla felt her body lock-up as Eric's 'mental override' kicked into effect. Burning with rage and shame, she was unable to so much as lift a finger as she was carried in his newly-gained arms... but she did not that Eric's commands couldn't override involuntary actions. Her violent shivering continued unabated as he carried her through the door of a building and dropped her on something fairly soft before heading back out again.

Laying there, unable to move, Kayla could only shiver until Eric finally arrived. She herd him kneel beside her, the jingling of keys accompanying the movement - then she felt him begin unlocking the padlocks that held the zippers, snaps and clasps of the suit and restraints closed.

"Okay, Kayla, you can get that get-up off now." Eric said, implying that she was once again allowed to move. Kayla hesitated - then ostentatiously crossed her arms as best she could over her massive bust.

Eric laughed. "Not ready to give up, yet? Well, you can wear that outfit as long as you'd like..."

As defiant acts went, it was pretty pathetic - and being in bondage hardly made her situation any better. With a mental sigh, Kayla awkwardly struggled upright and peeled off the leather hood, glaring up at her tormentor, who was looming over her.

"Haven't figured out yet that I own you, bitch?" Eric laughed, teeth shining white in his dark, narrow face. "Body and soul... AH- unghhhhh "

Eric collapsed on his side, eyes wide and white in his face as he gasped for air, his hands fluttering around his crotch.

"With a long enough lever " Kayla muttered, spitefully, lowering her incredibly long, sensuously toned leg and pushing herself off the couch she was on, landing on her knees beside Eric. Quickly, she grabbed the key ring from where it lay on the floor beside him, then used the couch as support and pushed herself upright. She wavered for a second atop the tiny area that was supporting her decidedly top-heavy frame - and then she began to walk towards the door, forced to move in tiny, insipid steps that seemed to drag her 'dash' for freedom to a crawl.

"Where's a white bronco when you need one. ?" Kayla muttered to herself, seeing the door get closer and closer with agonizing slowness.

"S'op. " Eric wheezed behind her, barely audible - and Kayla's incredibly full lips curved in a wicked smile at the agony in his voice. New to being male, Eric had been stupid enough to leave his crotch unprotected - the huge, highly sensitive crotch Kayla had given him. Having been 'sacked' once or twice in her old life as a man, Kayla knew how devastating it was for normally-endowed, normally- sensitive people.

"Hu's'ud...!" Eric wheezed out, trying to form the control word that would give him access to her mind. Kayla shivered in fear...

...but the mangled wheeze wasn't enough. The 'programming' in her mind was just that, instilled by a computer - and with a computer's limitations. Knowing what he was trying to say didn't mean Kayla had to obey, because the phase hadn't actually been spoken.

"Kahluh Kuh'slud!" Eric tried again - and the shiver came stronger down Kayla's tiny back at how close he'd come to making the word understandable...

...but 'Close' only counted in horseshoes, hand grenades and thermonuclear warfare - and Kayla's hand was on the door handle.

"Adios, asshole..." Kayla said, sweetly, to Eric as she opened the door - and then stepped out, shivering as the ice-cold air of late afternoon rippled across her body. Darkness came early this time of year, and was already shrouding the land as she hurried as best she could towards the darker splotch of shadow that was the van. It would take Eric a couple of minutes to recover from the blow she'd given him - that was how long she had to make good escape.

Reaching the side of the van, she yanked open the passenger's side door and climbed in, rather than totter and teeter around the van. Sliding across, she positioned herself in the driver's seat, sliding the key's in the ignition and cranking them hard as she stepped on the gas pedal...

...or tried to. The design of her ballet boots didn't allow her to rest her heel on the floor and press her toe against the pedal. The toe was as far extended as it could be, and with the heel on the floor, her toes ended a good inch-and-a-half short of the pedal. The engine cranked, but refused to start.

"Fuck!" Kayla swore. Full, gloss-pink lips compressed in a frustrated line of concentration, she lay her left foot sidewise on the floor and adjusted the seat forward a few inches. Now able to rest her right foot atop her left one, she carefully eased her right foot forward, turning the key again.

This time, the still-warm diesel engine in the rental van roared to life. The position she was in was awkward as hell, and she had no real sense of pressure through the heel that was pushing the pedal - but it worked.

Dropping the gearshift lever into 'R', she carefully moved the booted foot forward again, and the vehicle began to creep backwards down the gravel drive. Kayla twisted to look over her shoulder...

...and the van slowed to a stop as her foot slipped off the pedal.

"Fuck, fuck, fuck!" She shouted, banging the steering wheel in frustration. She carefully repositioned her foot on the pedal and tried again,. Relying only on the rearview and side mirror to guide her as the van slowly crept down the drive and towards the road visible behind her.

It was working. She was going to do it! She was going to get away!

Glancing up, she saw a splash of yellow light whip across the snow as the door to the shabby cabin she'd been in swung open, Eric's massive frame outlined by the light as he looked out at her. Kayla felt her heart pound with fear as she realized that he still had a chance to run and catch up with the van, if he was willing to accept the agony that would rip through his crotch with such rapid movement...

Instead, he merely stood there as she got the van out onto the road. Back-lit, she couldn't see his expression, and Kayla wondered what he was thinking as she dropped the vehicle into drive and awkwardly crabbed the broad-side vehicle around on the shoulder so it was pointing down the secondary road. Since she had no idea where she was - or where she was going - one direction was as good as the other, and she simply picked the one that was easiest to turn to. As she very slowly accelerated down the road, she cranked the heater up to compensate for the outfit she was wearing, and heaved a sigh of relief. She didn't know where she was going to go, or what she was going to do when she got there - but at least she was away from Eric, and that was a major improvement already. She was on her own, with only her own mind in this outrageous body - but it was her mind again, and she didn't have to worry about anybody fucking with it, controlling her actions. She was once again free.

However, there were a few... 'little' problems.

Like the fact that driving took an inordinate amount of concentration. She had to focus on keeping her foot on the gas pedal, and regulate her speed by observing the vehicle's speed - she had almost no sense of pressure to let her instinctively keep the acceleration even. If she let her attention wander for even a few seconds, she either eased up on the gas or stepped down on it, all unaware. On top of that, she had to pay very careful attention indeed to the road and any potential hazards or other reasons to stop - switching from gas to brake would be tough enough when she was ready for it. An unexpected need to stop could get her killed.

It was wearing on her quickly, struggling with intense concentration just to drive the van. The muscles in the back of her slender new neck began to bunch under the mental strain of constant, perfect concentration - yet she didn't dare relax, not for an instant. Driving for long distances in one go would be downright suicidal...

...but that wasn't a concern, since the van was low on gas anyway. Eric hadn't bothered to refill the tank, knowing they had enough to reach the cabin, and presumably make a trip to the nearest gas station. However, no matter how 'near' that station might be, it wouldn't help Kayla, since she lacked the cash to pay for more fuel. When the tank ran dry, she would be stuck - and she wouldn't get far trying to walk, not on the ballet boots.

She'd have to find some place to stop before the tank was dry, somewhere she might be able to find some help. She didn't know how she was going to come up with cash to keep running, much less to make a new life for herself - though, in the back of her mind, 'Programmed Kayla' was more than willing to point out that she could make good cash as a stripper, since she had the implanted skills necessary to be a spectacular exotic dancer, and a figure to match.

With a grimace, Kayla acknowledged the sad fact that it would probably come to that, at least until she could earn enough to get on her feet again... so to speak.

Hunched forward over the wheel as far as her massive bust-line allowed, Kayla watched the road unfolding beneath the van's headlights, darting glances to the mirrors, speedometer and gas gauge with eyes that were already starting to feel gritty and raw.

Eric had apparently picked the middle of nowhere to start their new lives - though she passed a few outlying farms and a few closed seasonal 'tourist trap' shops, there was little sign of life and little traffic in either direction - which was actually a relief to the desperately struggling Kayla. Still, she would need to find somewhere to stop, and the prospects were looking slim - she'd hoped that Eric had located himself not too far away from a small town at least, for supplies at the very least.

If he had, it must lay in the other direction - but she wasn't going to risk turning around. She'd just have to push on, and hope for the best.

Twenty minutes passed, then half an hour. Grimacing, Kayla had shut off the heater and cracked the window to help keep herself alert as the strain of driving wore on her. A couple of times she'd passed gas stations, mostly mom-and-pop operations with attached general stores or diners - but the gas bar or each had been the only part open, the subsidiary business closed, and she had no use for a gas station when she couldn't pay for fuel.

She was beginning to wonder what would run out first - her gas, or her ability to concentrate as much as she needed to. It was beginning to become a close race on that score, the needle edging the big 'E', the red warning light flashing whenever she climbed a hill, indicating the tank was that close to empty - but so where her mental reserves.

Then, off to the right, she spotted a garish pool of orange-yellow Sodium-light spilled out around a largish building. Removing her foot from the gas, Kayla let the vehicle slow as she peered at the building she was approaching, surrounded by a parking lot dotted with rusting pick-ups and garishly-colored eighties-vintage sports cars ill-suited to the winter driving they must be put through.

There was no doubt about it - it was some kind of roadhouse. Not exactly the most promising place for somebody in her situation - but she really didn't have much choice in the matter. Turning the wheel, she let the van round the wide entrance and roll into the parking lot. Not bothering to re-situate her booted foot against the pedal, she aimed the van at a fairly empty section of the lot and simply let it roll to a stop, never having had to touch the brakes once on the entire thirty-five minute long drive.

Shutting off the engine, Kayla started to pocket the keys - then stopped dead as she realized that neither the skin-tight, one-piece outfit or the white leather corset over it had any pockets.

Sighing, she started to work the key-ring itself through the O-ring set into the corset, cursing her long, gloss-pink nails as she struggled...

"What the fuck am I doing?" Kayla asked herself suddenly - and had to laugh wearily at her own slavish reaction to habits. Shaking her head, she slid the keys back into the ignition and opened the door. When the dome light flared to life, she reached up and felt around for the little switch on the side of it, finally finding it. She flicked it off, to keep it from draining the battery, then climbed out of the van carefully, getting her balance atop stiff, cramped legs that made the task of standing on the ballet boots that more difficult.

Finally getting a feel for her balance, she began to make her way towards the roadhouse, leaving the door to the van wide open, an open invitation to any thief who might want it, and good riddance. It was useless to her now, even if she could get some kind Samaritan to fill the tank for her - it was a rental vehicle, and not only could it be tracked by Eric, it could land her in jail if she kept it too long and the rental agency got worried. Better she should find some rides to get her further away from Eric.

Shivering violently, Kayla finally reached the door to the roadhouse and she pulled it open.

Yellow light spilled out the open door, accompanied by a draft of warm, smoke-laden air that carried the sound of New Country out into the frigid air. Holding onto the door jamb for balance, Kayla watched her feet as she carefully stepped up the low step into the building and let the door swing shut behind her...

...and looked up to find that she'd become the center of attention, about half of the establishment's thirty-or-forty, mostly-male patrons turning to gape at her as she stood, carefully balanced, just inside the door.

And why shouldn't they? Kayla thought wearily to herself. After all, she could hardly be an everyday sight to them.

Balanced atop boots the like of which they'd probably never seen, further enhancing the sensuous contours of her incredibly long, luscious legs and the arousing curvature of her spectacular ass, all covered by skin-tight glossy pink leather that highlighted rather than hid. She wore a tight white leather corset that was cinched around her tiny waist, allowing her massive, round boobies to be all the more noticeable by contrast, even constrained as they were by the painfully tight garment. And, topping off this incredibly endowed, curvaceous package, a sexy, dim-witted-looking face with incredibly full lips and huge blue eyes, all surrounded by a massive, thick wealth of curly platinum-blond hair.

Sure the guys were staring - who wouldn't...?

Nearest to the door was a large table in a pseudo-frontier style, its heavily varnished surface scarred by cigarette burns and hard use. Seated around it were three young men of college age - though they hardly looked like college material. The tallest of the three was also the beefiest, heavy of built and layered with muscles that argued against the noticeable beer-gut straining against his flannel shirt. To his right was a shorter, more fit version of him, right down to the greasy dark hair, marking him as a brother maybe a year younger. The third young man was lighter in coloration, with hair somewhere between dirty blond and muddy brown, and he was whip-cord thin, with a too-large nose and dark, sorrowful eyes that - like his companions - were focused on her...

...or, at least, her massive titties.

Slowly, the rangy youth began to rise, making none-too-subtle gestures to the brothers to follow suit. Looking a bit baffled, the beefy brothers also rose.

"Would you care to join us, uh, miss?" The thin one said, trying a charming smile on for size. It didn't sit too well on his face, though.

"Actually..." Kayla's trilling soprano said, sounding to sweet and alert for how she felt, "I was kinda hoping for somewhere a little less.. public..." She looked around at the men gaping at her, more then a moment before as friends nudged their drinking companions and pointed. A low murmuring was rapidly filling the bar.

The older brother jerked a thick thumb towards the back of the bar. "There's a private room in the back." "Yeah." Kayla said. "that's be, like, a lot better."

"This way..." The thin one said, gesturing. With simpering little steps, Kayla headed in the direction indicated - and became aware that she had an entourage, the three young men.

She started to explain that they'd misunderstood, and she didn't want any company - then stopped herself. If she flat-out turned away these guys, others would try to put the moves on her, and at least these guys were acting kinda nice. Besides, she was broke, and maybe they'd be willing to buy her something to eat - she was tired and hungry and sore, and alleviating even one of those conditions would be nice.

The back room turned out to be private indeed - about the size of most peoples living rooms, it had a thick wooden door that the bigger brother had to use quite a bit of 'oomph' to open.

It was also the tackiest room that Kayla had ever seen. Big, wide couches in a horrible off-gray lined the walls, which themselves were covered with burgundy deep-pile carpets that clashed horribly with the once-white carpeting on the floor. In the center of the room was a raised area that contained a open-hearth metal fireplace that was painted that particular shade of orange that the Sixties had managed to spawn.

The mingled odors in the room told Kayla all she needed to know about the reason for the heavy door and the decor - the sharp, nearly- pine scent of marijuana mixed with stale sweat, booze and cigar smoke.

One corner of the room was more 'cozy' then the others, three of the big, deep and worn-soft couches forming a open-ended square around a low, badly scarred coffee table. Gratefully, Kayla teetered over to the center one and dropped into it's deep, squeaking embrace, putting her booted feet up on the table and letting them flop to the side, legs spread comfortable apart.

"Oh, that's better..." She sighed, grinning with her eyes closed. "These boots really kill after awhile, even if they do look great."

She opened her eyes and watched the three guys sit down. The two brothers picked separate couches, dropping into them on the ends nearest to her, the crotches of their matching jeans momentarily outlining matching bulges of good-sized packages.

The thin one nudged the younger brother over, to the other end of the couch, and sat next to Kayla, his crotch bulging even more then the brothers was.

"So, I'm Carl, and these two are John..." He nudged the younger one, who waved self-consciously, then pointed to the elder, "...and James."

"Kayla." She introduced herself.

"So..." Carl said in a tone indicating he was broaching a delicate subject, and Kayla mentally sighed... except he surprised her. "...would you care to, uh. relax?"

Reaching into a pocket, he extracted a small baggy full of a dried green substance Kayla doubted was Oregano. She looked at it for a few seconds, wondering why she didn't immediately refuse - she had never really used drugs of any kind, if you didn't count the ones that had made her what she was.

On the other hand, she was in a lousy situation, and maybe this is just what she needed to relax.

"Sure, sounds fun!" She said with a giggle. "I've never really done this, okay? So don't laugh if I, like, cough and stuff."

"No, that's all right. " Carl assured her as he set about to rolling a joint. Before long, he had one rolled, and he slid the baggy over to

John as he pulled out a Zippo and lit up the small, neatly rolled tube. He took a long drag, inhaling the fragrant smoke and holding his breath as he leaned closer to Kayla and held out the joint.

She leaned forward to carefully take it from him, getting the delightful musky smell of male essence from him as she smiled at him nicely and accepted the joint. Still leaning forward, she brought it top her full, soft lips and tentatively started a draw and sucked deeply on it, filling her lungs to capacity and holding the smoke easily despite the slight tickle in the back of her throat.

'Smoking' must be included in her personality, she guessed with a faint smile as she held her breath for a minute then slowly exhaled, pushing the smoke from between her lips in a thin stream and watching it float towards the ceiling - which she noted was mirrored, which occasioned a surprised giggle.

"Neat..." She told Carl with a grin, which he returned. She also made sure to smile at the brothers so they wouldn't feel left out and get upset. Then, taking another hit, she leaned back in the couch and felt herself beginning to relax as the drug started to effect her.

Sighing the smoke out this time, she closed her eyes and let her head roll back as she savored feeling good for the first time today. If only she didn't feel so sore from the constraints of her suit on her tits...

Well, that was simple enough to solve, wasn't it? Reaching up, she unzipped the zipper of her suit down to the top of her corset. The pressure of her huge boobies pushed the material apart, revealing a vast canyon of cleavage and letting the inside curves of her massive titties push upwards and outwards into the gap, like a push-up bra.

One of the guys went into a coughing fit suddenly, and she giggled softly at that, easily guessing what had occasioned it. Eyes still closed, she held out a hand, and she felt Carl put the joint between her questing fingers.

Taking another long hit, she idly began to massage her sore boobs with her free hand - then handed the joint back and used both, softly massaging her tits through the leather, easing some of the pain.

Yes - much better. She felt nice and relaxed, and massaging her huge, round boobies felt so nice. Lifting her legs, she swung around so that she could lay back on the couch, a smile on her lips at how good she felt after such a nasty day.

Opening her eyes, she gazed up at the mirror ceiling, and the reflection it showed. She giggled.

"Gee, my boobies are just so huge..." She giggled. "So huge and round and sensitive. they're just made for fondling!"

Kayla watched in the mirror as Carl got up and came to stand beside her. Thoughtfully, he unlaced the side lacing of her corset, and she arched her back to let him remove it, letting her head roll to the side...

She found himself looking at the crotch of his jeans, where his cock was bulging the fabric.

"That's can't be comfortable. " She giggled. One good turn deserved another, So Kayla reached out and undid Carl's fly and pushed his jeans and underwear down so his nice cock wouldn't be all crunched up like. It sprang out, hard and thick and throbbing.

"My, you're big. " Kayla said, reaching out to run her fingers lightly along it's throbbing, veined length. It looked so nice and sweet jutting out like that, she could just kiss it.

So she did. Holding his cock near the base, she gently drew Carl closer and lightly pressed her lips against it.

It felt so nice - and there was an extra gift, the flavor, which was heavenly - so Kayla opened her mouth and sucked the wonderful, sweet cock into her mouth, enjoying the taste and feel of it, it's warmth against her tongue.

Since she had it in her mouth anyway, it only made sense to give this nice guy a blow-job, so that's what she did.

Closing her eyes, she used her hand to get Carl to begin bucking his hips, sending his cock sliding back and forth of her lips as she slurped and licked the end of it. Her hands went to work massaging the shaft of his wonderful big cock - while the nice man fondled her big old boobies for her, which felt really good.

It didn't take Carl long at all. She must really turn him on because he came so quick, which was great - his wonderful, warm cum filled her mouth, and she slurped it down hungrily before licking his cock clean.

"Mmmm..." She grinned. "That was wonderful." "Yeah.." He said, smiling at her in return.

"Jesus, man!" James said, and she looked at him. He was staring at her, wide eyed." You just... sucked him off. Right here, in front of us! Jeez!"

She smiled at him. "Oh, don't be mad. I'll suck you, too 0 both of you, if you want. You're such nice guys and all, and I do love sucking a cock..."

"Damn!" John said, eyes wide. "What are you, some sort of nympho cocksucker?" "I'm just me, silly!" Kayla giggled. "Kayla Kumslut, with a body just right for sex!" "Kumslut?" The three guys echoed as one...

...and she looked around at them, suddenly realizing just how wonderful they all were. They were... perfect. "Yes, I'm a hungry little cumslut, and I'll do whatever you want!" She giggled.

"Really?" John said, all but drooling. "then, damn - I want to fuck you!"

"Okay!" She agreed. Sitting up, she peeled off her outfit, loving making her masters.. the guys, she meant, silly her - drool. Standing up, she walked over to John, who was hastily disrobing, blushing at being naked in front of his brother and friend...

...which was amazing, since she didn't think he'd have any blood to spare, what with his cock being so hard and deep purple. "Anything for you..." Kayla cooed as she got on the couch, straddling him...

...and then she plunged herself down on his cock, gasping with pleasure as his wonderful organ filled her sopping wet cunt. Flexing the long muscles of her even longer legs, she began to ride him.

"that's it, baby - fuck me hard..." John gasped - and she knew that she had to do just that. Obeying, she worked her rhythm so she almost - but not quite - slid of his cock at the top of her arc - and then slammed herself back down on his cock, repeating the action over and over as he gasped and moaned in obvious pleasure, which made her feel great.

Huge tits bouncing and swaying, she rode John to orgasm, feeling him shoot his load into her cunt as her pussy tightened around his cock as she threw her head back and screamed out her own orgasm, body shaking and shimmering as the ecstasy ran through her.

"Was that okay?" She asked John, worried, as she finished coming down from her own orgasm. "I came too soon. I should have waited until you came first. I'm sorry..."

"No - you were great..." John assured her, numbly. Her smile blossomed anew as she slid from his slowly softening cock and faced his brother.

"What can I do for you...?" She asked, arching her back to better display her perfect body for him.

"Baby, I wanna fuck your tits..." James said, and she lay down on the couch and pushed her huge, sweat-slicked mounds together as he stripped and mounted her supine figure...

* * * * *

Kayla blinked and stared up at the off-white stucco ceiling above her, feeling the sheets of a bed beneath her naked for as she tried to figure out where she was. Then it came to her in a flash 0- she was back at the cabin, where she'd had Carl drive her after a night of...

Rolling over, she got to her hands and knees, her back arching as she dry-heaved at the memory of fucking and sucking the guys long into the night.

"Hmmm..." Eric's smug voice came from the doorway. "I hope that's not morning sickness, dear - after all, you didn't use any protection..."

Dropping back to the bed, Kayla stared up at him with haunted eyes. "What.. what did you do to me...?" Eric laughed. "I didn't do anything, Kayla. It's a side-effect - and a great one, at that."

"What..?" She asked, with a whimper.

He laughed again. "Whenever you start to get tired, and begin to loose concentration - Kayla starts to surface. The more tired - or drunk, or stoned - you get, the more control she has... until she's all there is."

"Oh, god..." Kayla sobbed, understanding, now, that there was no escaping the mental programming in her. Every night, she was going to begin to slip into 'Kayla Kumslut' mode, and if she were alone in life, another night like last night would be the result.

"So, you begin to understand." Eric grinned. "You can leave anytime you want, honey - but within a month, I guarantee you'll be living as a street whore, and end up pregnant before too long - you're just too stupid to worry about protection."

"No..." She whimpered into the pillow, stricken.

"Well, my plan for you wasn't so tough." Eric said. "I figured you would live with me. I'd take care of all your worries - give you a place to live, feed you, clothe you.. and pimp you. A couple of clients a day - for a high fee, of course. Between times, you keep me happy and keep the place clean... and maybe once in a while do a private show as a stripper, which might or might not end up with some hard fucking and sucking afterwards - depends how much they're willing to pay."

"No. " She moaned again, the tears flowing freely.

"At least I'd keep you from getting pregnant, or worse." Eric said, smoothly. "More then that - you behave nice, I'll treat you nice. You be good, and I'll take you out for dinner or a movie as a special treat. Take you shopping."

She just continued to sob into her pillow - and then he spoke the magic words. "Hell - I'll even let you keep ten percent. All yours, in cash."

Slowly, her head came up from the pillow, and she looked at him.

"I mean it." He said, with a shrug. "Let's face it - you ain't gonna be this hot forever. These bodies might be created, but they're human bodies - you'll age. I figure, you save up some money, and when I don't want you around any more, you could leave peacefully, and I don't get no grief. It's worth ten percent for that."

She felt hope blossom - then fade.

"What does it matter?" She sobbed. "I'd just be a whore on the streets anyway." Eric's laughter drew her eyes to him again.

"Kayla, if I tell you to do something, you HAVE to do it - and the other Kayla would do it without even thinking about it. That's the way you're programmed. So, what do you think would happen if I ordered the other Kayla to leave you alone. ?"

She stared at him, wide eyed. "Then.. But... I would, if..." She paused. "How.. how long before you wouldn't want me to. anymore?"

He shrugged, looking her over. "Oh, pro'ly ten years, maybe fifteen." A decade and a half. Fifteen years as his private hooker...

...or a lifetime as a slut, unable to control herself for any longer then it took her to get tired. "I... I..." She stammered. "Okay.. I'll do it."

"Well, now, maybe you will and maybe you won't." Eric laughed. "Remember, this all means you got to be nice to me. For the clients, I can give them 'Mind-Controlled Kayla', and maybe even 'Bimbo Kayla'... but for me, I want you to do it without me having to fight you about it. No command words, no waitin' for you to get tired - I want you to do it. All by your lonesome. You want this life.. then you make me think that I'm making you the happiest, horniest woman in the world by doing this for you."

Kayla's eyes widened and she stared at him. He was grinning down at her, and she knew what he really wanted - he wanted to subjugate her, to control her in a way more fundamental then the power he held over her.

He didn't just want to be able to control her actions, making her perform unwillingly - he wanted to break her, make her be his 'willing' little slut, living to make him happy.

She took a long, deep breath - then slowly rose.

"thank you for letting me stay, baby..." She forced out, her voice trembling. "I'm so happy you're going to take care of me..." "Really babe?" Eric asked. "Well, I take care of them that takes care of me. Now come gimme some sugar, baby."

Her whole body was trembling. She tried to lift her foot - but it wouldn't budge.

Many things had been forced on her already - but this was a conscious act. Something she would be doing by her self. She couldn't...

...but what was the other choice.

The first step took every ounce of will she had. Her body trembled like a leaf in a storm.. but she made that first step. Then the second. Then a third and a fourth - and she was there, right up against Eric's huge, muscular body, forcing herself to lifted her face upwards as he brought his down...

She kissed him. Eyes closed, she desperately tried to pretend that she was a guy, and he was the girl, and the huge breasts she felt between them was 'hers'... but the sensations argued against it. She forced herself to go on, to kiss him, to let her tongue move with his...

He broke the kiss before long.

"Gee, Kayla - that wasn't very good." HE said. "Your heart wasn't in it. Maybe you're not happy kissing me - maybe there's another guy out there you'd rather kiss. Or another thousand guys out there..."

"No..." She said, through a dry throat, then forced herself to add '..baby.'" She hesitated. "i.. I'm just waking up.. baby. I.. I can do better, later..."

Shame burned in her at the act, and she felt tears struggling to break free... but she fought them. She needed to do this. As horribly humiliating as it was... being in control of her actions and pretending to be his loving slut-whore was better then really being a mindless slut.

"Well, we'll see." He grinned. "now, you go shower and get dressed. Put something pretty on, babe, so I can enjoy lookin' at you... while you cook my breakfast."

She winced... and forced her eyes immediately open again. It felt like her face was going to crack as she forced a smile to her lips. "Sure thing... honey." She said.

"that's what I like to hear." Eric said - and then he laughed, long and hard. He was still laughing as he turned and walked away. Bursting into tears of shame and self-hatred, Kayla threw herself down on the bed and sobbed into the pillow.

But only for a minute or two, until the worst was over. Then she forced herself to rise and head towards the bathroom. After all... she had a breakfast to make for her man...

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: A man who feels he is to blame for the death of his wife, is given a chance to have his life changed, only he doesn't know that he is to have lived life as a woman.

Redemption

By Gunslinger

The dark, low clouds scudded ominously over the late fall sky, converting the late afternoon into an eerie, unnatural twilight. The strong, fickle wind whistled through denuded trees with a mournful sound, carrying with it a bitter chill that foreshadowed winter's icy grip.

A flurry of dry, faded leaves, whipped by the wind, gave up their tenuous hold and flew away, moving as much across as down, propelled by the wind. With a rustling sound, they joined their brethren, a faded collage of colors covering the old, much-patched secondary road.

It was through this inch deep carpet of leaves that the man walked, the brittle vegetation crackling and crunching beneath the heels of his worn cowboy boots. With each step, the leaves gave up the last of their vitality in a sudden burst of odor, the certain smell of autumn.

But the man noticed none of this. Although his hands pulled his battered leather bomber jacket closer, to ward off the chill, it was a move born of habit, not of thought. His pale, gray eyes, once penetrating and direct, were focused inward, heedless of the outside world as his body, like an automaton, walked the deserted road with a road-weary stride.

Once, not too long ago, he was considered a handsome man. Now, his cheeks were sunken and his skin weathered. His three-day growth of beard was a sandy, coarse blond, a few shades darker than his long, unkempt hair that ruffled unheeded in the wind. His clothing, once new and serviceable, was beginning to show its wear, the jeans faded and worn, the sweatshirt stained and carrying with it the odor of long-past meals. The large backpack slung over one shoulder, once drab olive green, had faded to an odd gray-green color unlike any found in nature, and was considerably lighter than when he'd first started.

And as his feet mindlessly carried him forward to an unknown, uncertain future, Brendan Thompson's mind dwelled in the past. A past that haunted his days and filled his few, unsatisfying hours of sleep with nightmares.

Brendan painfully pulled himself from his dreary daze to fumble in his pocket for a pack of cigarettes and a lighter. Only then, as he struggled to get the cigarette lit, did he realize how strongly the wind had risen, and how cold it was. Beneath the scudding clouds, twilight was darkening as somewhere above the clouds an unseen sun began to set.

Drawing in a lung full of smoke, Brendan dropped the lighter in his pocket and continued walking, his stride soon taking him to the crest of the hill up which he walked.

The road wound down from this point, in and out of the trees, for perhaps five miles. There, a small city lay nestled in the valley, following the serpentine curls of a river. Light twinkled in what should have been an inviting way.

Brendan eyed the town with distaste, and let his eyes back-track the road, looking for a turnoff, so to avoid the town.

No paved roads departed the secondary highway before it reached town. The only alternate route to be seen was a barely visible stone track, badly overgrown, that led higher into the hills. Twisting among the mixed deciduous and evergreen forest, it quickly disappeared from view.

Sighing, Brendan resettled the back on his back, and turned off, the gravel rattling beneath the heels of his boot as he began to follow the trail in hopes that it would give him access to another road, and avoid the town.

Soon the town, the road, and even the trail behind him became lost from view among the trees as Brendan wound his way along the dimly visible trail. The light was starting to fade from the sky, and Brendan began to keep an eye open for a suitable place to unroll his sleeping bag for the night.

He felt the first spattering drops, feeling as cold as ice on his head, and then the sky opened up and released a torrential downpour. Immediately, visibility was cut to a few scant feet as the heavy, cold rain obscured the forest around him.

Immediately, Brendan realized his predicament. Both the air and the rain were only a degree or two above freezing, leeching his body heat away as fast as it was produced. The effect was becoming worse as his clothes began to soak through, and Brendan zipped his jacket shut, and began to walk as quickly as he dared in the downpour.

He knew, indifferently, that he could quite possibly die this tonight. If he didn't find shelter before nightfall, the temperature would plummet, and he would freeze before morning. Yet, the prospect of death neither excited nor dismayed him. Only a dim, faint spark of self-preservation gave him the urge to fight death, and even that was not so strong.

Soon, his clothes were sodden, and he was shivering uncontrollably as his core temperature sank lower and lower towards hypothermia. His decline in temperature was matched by the decline in light, his already limited visibility fading as night closed in.

Then, through the curtain of rain, he saw it - a low, squat building looming, barely visible, through the curtain of rain. Stumbling on numb feet, he climbed the steps leading to the covered porch, and out from the rain.

Shivering, lips blue from the cold, Brendan looked at the building. It was a conventional log cabin, its wall made of logs laid in stacks, the spaces chinked with clay-and-straw wattle. The windows were shuttered over and boarded up, and the entire building, easily older than him by many years, was in a general state of abandonment, although its construction guaranteed that it was still sound and safe.

Assured that no-one was living here - or had been for many years, Brendan approached the front door. The door itself was made of pine six-by-fours, held together by two bands of iron, and fastened to its frame by massive iron hinges that were beginning to rust. It was one of the most unbreachable doors Brendan had ever seen, barring him access to shelter from the wind. Giving up easily, Brendan slumped against the door...

...and tumbled to his back as the door swung open with creaking hinges, spilling him inside.

Startled, Brendan merely lay still for a few moments, then clambered to his feet and examined the door. The latch and lock were both fully functional - but had been left locked open, as if inviting visitors to enter. Shrugging, Brendan closed the door against the wind, and firmly latched and locked it.

With shuttered windows, the cabin lay in a shroud of darkness. Fumbling in his pocket, he extracted his trust lighter and 'flicked his Bic'.

The little butane lighter cast a little golden circle of light, most of which only served to blind Brendan. But one thing it did reveal was a battered red kerosene lantern. Like a prop from a turn of the century railway set. Letting the lighter die, Brendan felt for the lantern and picked it up. To his surprise, something inside sloshed, and a quick smell confirmed it was kerosene. Using his lighter, he lit the lantern. The wick was old, dry and dusty, so it took almost a dozen attempts before the lantern finally lit, spreading a warm golden radiance into the cabin - and a glorious heat into Brendan's numb hands.

Curious, Brendan looked around the one-room cabin. Though dusty and disused, it was in good condition, items sitting about as if awaiting a family vacation that never came. Although there was much to be explored in the cabin, the only item that interested him at the moment was the large, field stone fireplace on the north wall. Carrying the lantern, Brendan walked over to the fireplace, gratefully surprised to find kindling and logs already arranged in the soot-stained opening, awaiting only the touch of a spark. Placing the lantern absently on the mantel, Brendan knelt and supplied the flame with his lighter. Dried by years of abandonment, the tinder caught eagerly, the flames spreading rapidly and quickly turning the pile of wood into a cheerful, warming fire.

After warming himself for a few moments, Brendan rose from his crouch, his knees popping like muffled shotgun blasts, and reached for the lantern on the mantle.

And froze, shock crossing his face, as he stared incredulously at the photograph resting beside the lantern on the mantle. With suddenly numb, trembling hands, Brendan slowly picked the photo up and brought it closer to his face. He absently wiped the film of dust from the glass surface, and stared down at the image frozen in time, wonder and pain etched on his face.

The photograph, obviously not the work of a professional, showed a family of four. The father, a smiling, heavy-set man with pale hair and a wide smile, was gazing proudly at the lens, his arm wrapped around the waist of the woman beside him. She too was blonde, albeit a darker, sandier color than her husband. Buxom and beautiful, the camera had caught her at an instant when she was just starting to look down fondly at the two children at her feet.

The boy and girl were obviously twins. About five years old, their resemblance was unmistakable, as was their coloring, so reminiscent of their mother. The young girl, dressed in a blue dress, was smiling at the camera, while her brother made 'rabbit ears' behind her head, a mischievous grin splitting his youthful features.

The quintessential family portrait, showing a happy, loving family.

With a muffled moan, Brendan dropped the photo with a clatter as his eyes rolled back in his head and he fainted dead away.

* * * * *

Confused swirls, random images. Sensation mixed with memories. Slowly, the dream coalesced into a coherent sequence.

"Alright Brenda, stop fidgeting." Their mother smiled indulgently at the blonde-haired girl. "I know it's a long drive, but think how much fun the cabin will be!"

Brendan was nothing but a voyager in the body of his six year old self, watching his mother turn back in her seat. Dimly, the memories, long repressed, flooded back, and 'Older Brendan' realized what was about to happen. Horrified, he tried to warn them, to scream, to shout. But 'Younger Brendan' merely continued to play with his toy car. The young boy thought about The Cabin - that's how he thought of it, capitals and all - that his dad had talked about for so long. Now, he was finally getting to go there. But his stupid twin sister had to come too.

Young Brendan cautiously unbuckled his seatbelt - Mom would be mad if she caught him - then, leaned over and yanked Brenda's hair. "Mom! Brendan pulled my hair!" Brenda squealed, and Mom swung around in her seat, opening her mouth.

Before she could say anything, the car rocked and shimmied as the unseen fuel truck slammed into the side of the station wagon. The impact drove young Brendan back, smashing through the window of the car and becoming airborne.

'I'm superman...' the boy thought in that one, timeless instant of flight - then he impacted the soft, cultivated loam of the field beside the road as distantly he heard the dull 'whomp' of the car's gas tank exploded.

The fire burned long after the screams of his trapped parent and sister died.....

More swirls and darkness as Brendan tried to come to grips with his earliest memory, long repressed, and never truly examined, as the dream segued into another memory, one of more recent nature...

" don't know, I kind of liked it." Jeff said with a smile. "Of course, I actually am willing to put aside my disbelief in the supernatural long enough to enjoy a movie."

Brendan shrugged and looked at his roommate and best friend. "Hey, whatever entertains you, buddy."

The two men rounded the corner from the theater, taking their usual short-cut down the alley - and stopped at the sight of a pretty young woman backed fearfully against a wall, her blouse torn, as the two hard-looking men with the knives closed in on her.

Brendan didn't even spare a glance at Jeff, unwilling to waste the element of surprise. Diving forward, he, tackled the one nearest to him, and caught a glimpse of Jeff hitting the second one.

After a mercifully brief, bloodless struggle, the would-be rapists turned tail and ran. Breathing hard, Brendan face the young woman. She looked familiar - he seemed to recall that she was in the Business Administration course that he and Jeff were in. She was shacking with adrenaline shock, and without thinking, Brendan took her in his arms and held her.

"Thank you. Oh, God, they were going to..."

"Shh " Brendan soothed, as Jeff gently stroked her hair. "You're safe now. I'm Brendan, and this is Jeff."

The pretty brunette calmed herself. Relaxing in the safe embrace of the two men, she looked up at them, and said, "My name is Pam, "

" Pamela Madden. How may I help you?" She gave the thumbs-up to Jeff and Brendan as she wrote down the order.

"Brendan, my boy, your a genius." Jeff said, clapping his friend on the back. "Without you, I'd still be out there looking for a job. This business of ours is going to make us rich!"

Brendan shrugged. "Well, maybe not rich - but we'll make a living. You do realize we have a problem, though, don't you?" Jeff frowned. "Eh?"

Brendan smiled and waved at Pam. "The Boss isn't supposed to fool around with his secretary. Yet her we are, both of us dating our one and only secretary."

Jeff laughed. "And co-owner. That's all right - she'd fooling around with the Chief Designer " - he pointed at himself, then Brendan, - and the head of marketing."

Brendan laughed. "It's a damn good thing that we're such good friends. For most people, this three sided romance would be murder." Jeff shrugged. "Hey, you and I are such good friends that if she picks one, the other will be happy to see their friend get married."

Besides, the 'loser' gets to be godfather to the " baby, I'm just taking the car out for a test." Brendan called, wiping his hands on the rag. The door opened and his wife of two months stepped out, her swollen belly staining at the maternity dress.

"You got those brakes fixed?" Pam asked brightly, looking at the used Ford that Brendan had spent all afternoon working on. "Yeah. All the breaks are certified, but I didn't like the looks of the back ones, so I replaced them."

His wife smiled. "I've been cooped up all day. Why don't I come with you?" Brendan frowned, then shrugged. "I'm only going around the block."

"That's okay." Pam said, kissing him on the cheek. She walked - well, waddled, around the car, and Brendan helped her in.

Half a block away, the Ford started down the steep incline of Canal street. Carefully, Brendan eased down on the brake, glad to feel the slowing grip as the car decelerated.

Then the pedal sank limply to the floor, and the car began to accelerate. Horrified, Brendan pumped the brake with no effect.

Reaching the bottom of the hill, the car was travelling way to fast. Desperate, Brendan yanked the wheel, trying to avoid the canal. The car swerved, tipping up on two wheels....

...then rolled over twice, drive by centrifugal force. Pam, who wasn't wearing her seatbelt because it hurt her pregnant belly, was thrown, screaming, from the car during it's first revolution, rust in time to be in the exact place that the car came down the second time....

* * * * *

It was a giant chess board. He was standing on a giant board that stretched out in all directions before vanishing into mists.

In the manner of dreams, Brendan didn't even question where he was, or the strange, bodiless voice that seemed to speak directly in his mind.

<You need not live this present.>

'What do you mean?' Brendan asked, silently.

<All that is, is based on what was. Alter the past, and the present becomes otherwise.> 'What could be altered? Are you offering to set everything right?'

<I may not make that decision. I am a helper. Usually, we do not interfere in human events, but in your case, an exception has been made. However, I cannot do anything of my volition. I can change the past - but it is you who must ask that I change it, and how, of your own free will.>

'I I want to make Pam live. I don't want her to have died.'

<That is what you ask of me?> 'Yes.'

<Very well. Let it be so. But know this - you did not kill your wife and unborn son.> ' ?'

<The brakes that failed were the front brakes - not the rear. Agreed, it was you and her that chose that vehicle, and so, in that way, you bear some small measure of responsibility - but you did not murder you wife and child with carelessness, as you believe >

'...!'

<Yes. Now sleep, and awake in good time. I shall remain nearby throughout, and if need be, we shall speak again. Now, sleep >

* * * * *

Brendan came awake, shivering in the cold, his mind whirling with the dreams and images of last night. Stiffly, he sat up, reached over, and picked up the photograph, reverently brushing away the shattered glass.

"Mom..." he whispered, almost inaudibly, "Dad "

Placing the photo aside, he slowly rose and looked around. Between his youth and the trauma, Brendan had forgotten where the family had been going that fateful day, forgotten the place even existed. Now, after twenty years, he'd finally arrived at the family cabin. He simply couldn't believe that by sheer, random chance he'd ended up here. It seemed impossible yet, here he was. Again, the strange imagery of the dream whirled in his mind.

Brendan was surprised to find that, for whatever reason, the pall of grief that had hung over him since Pam's death had receded. True or not, the dream seemed to have fanned that spark deep in his soul that had been slowly fading.

For the first time in months, Brendan Thompson once more had an interest in living.

Slowly, he rose and looked around, finding the cabin to be lit by the faint, thin light coming in through narrow cracks in the shutters. The air was brisk and cold, the fire having died down to bare embers. Shivering, Brendan was glad he'd fainted while wearing his coat - otherwise he might have frozen last night.

He piled a few more pieces of wood onto the fire and rekindled it, then slowly walked to the windows and threw open the shutters.

Sometime during the night, the rain had turned to snow. Now, the glittering white flakes continued to drift down, adding to the white carpet that lay all around. Brendan judged that the snow was here to stay, for at least a little while. It didn't look like the temperature was going to rise above freezing.

Shivering, Brendan opened the front door, letting in a blast of bitterly cold air. It looked like he was staying for a while too - he wasn't dressed for such weather. Quickly, he dashed out to the woodshed, his cowboy boots slipping and sliding, and gathered an armful of wood. Carefully, he picked his way back to the cabin. After making sure that the fire in the hearth was burning well, he set about lighting a fire in the pot-bellied stove in the 'kitchen', at the far end of the cabin.

With in a half hour, the radiant heat from the two fires, one at either end of the cabin, had raised the temperature from 'barely livable' to 'comfortable'.

It took him that half hour to notice something so obvious that he'd missed it. The cabin was clean.

"What the...?" Brendan exclaimed, slowly turning in a circle. Surprise registered on his face as it finally dawned on him that the thick carpet of dust that had layered everything was gone. The cabin looked as if it had been cleaned - a half hearted job of it, as dust still lingered in the corners, and on the higher woodwork - but cleaned.

Brendan slowly walked around the cabin in surprise, wondering if somehow somebody had come in last night and cleaned the place while he slept. He was surprised to find clean dishes, pots and pans stored in the kitchen, and, more surprisingly, some items sitting in the bathroom that were too new - both in brand and condition - to have been left in the cabin all these years.

Wonderingly, he turned the tube of toothpaste over in his hands, then placed it back beside the toothbrush, hairbrush and liquid soap that had somehow ended up in the bathroom.

Then the phone rang.

Brendan jerked in shock as the strident trilling rang through the cabin. "What the hell is going on here?" he asked aloud, stepping out of the bathroom. He was absolutely positive that there hadn't been a phone in sight when he'd looked around just minutes ago.

Now, in plain view, a new phone sat on one of the end tables flanking the couch. Even as he stared in disbelief, the built-in answering machine clicked on.

A 'celebrity impersonator' tape - which could be purchased to liven up an answering machine - sprang into life. The reasonably accurate impression of Elvis filled the cabin with the 'modified' version of 'Heartbreak Hotel'.

'Well, since my phone is ringing, and I must be away. you'd better leave a message here, what do you say?...

Just leave a message, baby, after the tone,

I'll get back to you, when I get home.'

'Thank you, thank you very much. Beeeeep...'

Then, Brendan was forced to grab the back of the couch to keep from falling at the voice that emerged from the speaker. It sounded both rougher and more care-worn, but there was no mistaking that voice.

His dead wife.

"Hi lover. Jeff and I are leaving now, we should get there by dinner time. If you haven't gone shopping yet, pick up some steak - I've got a craving. God, I can't wait to see you - I'm so horny I could die. See you soon. Bye."

Slowly, numbly, Brendan slid down onto the couch, staring at the inoffensive phone, his mind whirling. Was he going crazy? Or was that more than a dream last night?

"What the hell is going on?" he asked out loud, and was shocked to hear a warm, rich feminine voice emerge. He cleared his throat repeatedly.

"Testing, testing What the fuck is wrong with me?" he said in confusion.

Then, as if that were some sort of cue, Brendan's body began to change.

It started with his feet. Feeling the strange tingling, Brendan peel off his boot and socks - and started at his feet in shock.

They were smaller, more slender, daintier. They were extremely feminine feet. Feeling the tingling spreading, Brendan tore off his clothes, and watched in shock as his body changed, his legs rippling as they became long, shapely and complete hairless feminine legs that extended from his crotch to his new, dainty feet. Even his ankles were shapely.

There was no doubt about it - his legs were now a very sexy, long pair of women's legs. Running a hand up and down them to verify their reality, he not only felt their silky smoothness on his palms, but felt his palms through the legs. They felt completely normal in terms of response to stimuli - they just didn't look normal. Not on him, at any rate. Then, with the same tingle, his hands changed before his very eyes. Slender and dainty, with long, clear nails tipping each supple finger. The hands were attached, via shapely, slender wrists, to smooth, less muscular arms completely lacking his normal, dark coating of fine hair. In other words, a woman's arms, sprouting from shoulders that were no longer broad and muscular, as his had always been. No, the feminine arms were attached to feminine shoulders, above his hairy chest.

Then his head shook as his hair became a mass of sandy blonde hair falling in front of his eyes. At the same time, there was a tightness at his hips and ass, while his ass felt as if he was being pushed further down in the seat as he gained suddenly wider hips and significantly fuller ass.

Before he could even form a thought, he felt a - a tugging sensation is the best way he could describe it - at his waist. He gasped at the sight of a remarkably slender waist above the smooth curve of his womanly hips. Then, he felt a pressure in his chest, which rapidly began to bulge outward. The growth rapidly passed an average B cup, slipped past C and D, finally halting at DD.

Brendan found himself slowly leaning forward, pulled downward by the mass of his growing endowments. They grew heavier as they expanded, finally stopping. His new tits were round, firm masses of creamy flesh topped with large, thick, pink nipples. Hanging from his slenderer chest, they seemed to weigh a ton.

Just then, he felt his cock twitch - and slide inwards. In shock, his hands touched his crotch, feeling the moist wet slit that had replaced his male equipment.

He'd become a woman.

Shocked, Brendan stared down at his...her altered body, trying to figure out what had happened. Somehow, he'd become a female version of himself.

Or, the thought occurred with a chill, this is exactly how Brenda, his twin sister, would have looked - if she'd lived.

Suddenly, it made sense - if Brenda had survived, not Brendan, then Pam couldn't have married him, got in that car, and died....

In disbelief, Brendan Benda looked down at the clothes she'd shucked off. Wonderingly, she slowly dressed in the clothes, which were altered to fit her new figure, as if they were made for her - which they were. Her mind whirled as she tried to grasp all that was happening to her.

Stunned, she slowly walked over to the phone, rewound the tape, and played the message back - only, it wasn't the same message any more. A very familiar voice emerged from the speaker, that of Jeff.

"Hi, honey. I'm in town now, and should get there in half an hour. I've picked up some steak - I know it's got to be what you're craving. God, I can't wait to see you again - a week is too long for a man to go without seeing his wife. See you soon. Bye."

She was married? To Jeff?

And then, like a tidal wave, memories washed over her...

* * * * *

"Alright Brenda, stop fidgeting." Her mother smiled indulgently at the blonde-haired girl. "I know it's a long drive, but think how much fun the cabin will be!"

Brendan was nothing but a voyager in the body of his six year old female self, watching his mother turn back in her seat. She was alone in the back seat - which was okay, because she was an only child wasn't she?

The family station wagon had gotten off fairly quickly, as Mom had no problems corralling a single child. Now, the car tooled down the highway, finally pulling off onto a long, graveled road. At last, it pulled to a stop, and Brenda was the first one out, staring with amazement at the log structure.

"Isn't this great?" Dad asked, and Brenda agreed. She just knew this week was going to be wonderful...

...and it was.

Then everything segued into another memory, one of more recent nature...

"...don't know, I kind of liked it." Jeff said with a smile. "Of course, I actually am willing to put aside my disbelief in the supernatural long enough to enjoy a movie."

Brenda shrugged and looked at her boyfriend. "As if you were actually watching the movie." She giggled. "Your hands never left my tits." She gave him a quick kiss.

"Jeez, get a room you two." Brenda's roommate, Pam, laughed. "You guys are the most 'touchy-feely' couple on campus. Jeff smiled. "That's because Brenda and I are in love."

Brenda laughed. "You know, I think somebody here is jealous."

Jeff scrunched up his face in mock thought. "Well, if it's not me... and it's not you... then it must be..."

"...Pamela Madden. How may I help you?" She gave the thumbs-up to Jeff and Brenda as she wrote down the order.

"Brenda, my love, you're a genius." Jeff said, giving her a kiss. "Without you, I'd still be out there looking for a job. This business of ours is going to make us rich!"

Brenda shrugged. "Well, maybe not rich - but we'll make a living. You do realize we have a problem, though, don't you?" Jeff frowned. "Eh?"

Brendan smiled. "Who's going to run the business during our honeymoon?" And she looked down happily at the engagement ring adorning her finger.

Jeff shrugged good naturedly. "I guess we'll just have to shut down while we..."

"...haven't had a vacation since our honeymoon." Brenda said, her head on her husband's chest. She was slightly sweaty from their passionate lovemaking.

"It would be great - and business is doing fine, what with the new staff and all. We could take a week off. Actually, I can take a week off - ever since you decided to try your hand at being a writer, you've had all the free time you want."

"That's it!" Brenda said, smiling. "I'll go up to Mom and Dad's cabin - since we sent them off on a 'second honeymoon' to the Carribean this year, they won't be using it. I'll go up early, clean the place up, that sort of thing - then, you come down and join me."

Jeff smiled. "Sounds great."

* * * * *

Brenda shuddered with the force of all her new/old memories, the detailed recollections of a life she'd never experienced. Just then, a car door slammed, and Brenda turned in anticipation as the door opened - and her husband walked in.

A feeling of love swept over her. She was deeply, madly, hopelessly in love with someone who, in another life, had been her best friend. She was surprised to find, now, that she had a hunger to make love to him.

"Hi, Jeff..." she started, trying to cope with her new emotions and feelings, trying to figure out how she was going to deal with her altered life.

She never got the chance. Laughing, he swept her up in his strong arms, and all but bounded up the stairs to the bedroom.

Beneath her fine, upswept brows, her sparkling blue eyes, took in her husband. Beneath the full curve of her womanly bosom, her heart beat a little faster as she considered his intelligent, yet masculine face. Her once male mind struggled to make one last, desperate plea. As he put her down, she placed one hand against his chest.

"I...I don't know if I can..." she stumbled, trying to explain without telling the 'truth', which he'd never believe.

"What?" he asked, his voice filled with disappointment. "Well... All right, if you're not comfortable..." he replied - and in giving in, he won.

The thought that he was willing to put her wants before his own lust-driven wants... no, needs, was the final straw, as the new, female part of her brain refused to allow the man she loved suffer.

Slowly, she crossed the intervening space between him, and smiled. "I don't think I can wait another second "

She kissed him.

As their lips touched, he stiffened for a moment, unsure, Then, his strong, manly hands slowly slid to encircle her slender waist as he returned her embrace.

Her lips parted as his probing tongue entered her waiting mouth and began to intertwine with her own as she slowly led him towards the soft, inviting bed.

Gently breaking from his warm lips, she turned in the circle of his arms and presented the smooth sweep of her back to him. Glancing over her softly rounded shoulder, she traded a depthless glance of passion with him.

Gently, yet with restrained urgency, she pushed him onto the mattress. Gently, her long slender fingers flew over his body, unfastening and opening every closure, a favor he returned.

Sliding her hands through the hair that adorned his chest, she smiled as his hands found her breasts, moving with erotic motions. She eased her panties from her hips and let them flutter to the floor.

She bit her lip to keep from crying out as she slowly lowered her over him, feeling herself completely filled, a sensation which she never knew was missing from her life until she experienced it. She began to move her hips in a smooth, steady rhythm, feeling the sensitive flesh of her new sex. Her head thrown back, her golden hair streaming behind her, she rode first female climax as it built to the bursting point - and beyond. Her voice cried out as her body shook in the grip of the sheerest ecstasy. Gently, Jeff disengaged from her and lowered her to the mattress beside her.

"You were wonderful." She murmured to him.

He smiled down and nibbled lightly at her earlobe. "So, you're happy?"

Brenda, born Brenda, answered absolutely honestly. "It's like I've been born again in a world full of happiness."

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: When two guys go salvaging, they discover a pleasure dome that makes some adjustments so that there will be the correct male to female ratio.

Relationship

By Gunslinger

Part One

His round face cast in lines of concentration, the boyish young man huffed in annoyance. Laying a screwdriver on the concrete floor next to an assorted pile of well-used tools and electronic diagnostic equipment, the sandy-haired man paused to pull off his small, rimless glasses and push an errant lock of dusty-colored hair out of his fawn-brown eyes.

Looking into the wire- and circuit board-filled cavity that removing the panel from the concrete wall had revealed, Dave Masters eyed the electronics within, pegging them at least two decades out of date, but a very sophisticated set-up for it's time. He started to reached for a circuit tester... and then hesitated, his nimble, long-fingered hands holding the device uncertainly.

Dave's eyes slid a foot to his left, looking at the thick, heavy hardened-steel door which this control-panel clearly operated. Although dust pooled the floor and rust marred the iron girders of the old warehouse, the false wall-panel that had been pulled away to reveal the door had protected it as well as concealed it, the heavy steel construction gleaming in the reflected sunlight seeping in through the stained old windows lining both walls of the empty, echoing structure.

"Er - Mark...?" Dave broached, hesitantly. "I really think maybe we should contact... somebody. The authorities, maybe. We have no way of knowing what's behind this door, after all..."

The object of his hesitant objection, leaning with casual indolence on a nearby girder, snorted derision around the cigarette dangling from his thin lips. Pushing his lean, 6'6"-tall figure away from the wall, Marco Rossini gave himself room to use the expressive - and expansive - hand-gestures his Italian ancestry was known for.

"Look, Davey - this is the same ol' story all over. How do we make our money, anyway...? By doing pre-reno 'garbage removal' and cleaning of old buildings like this, then you work your magic on the old.. wahatevers... we find, we turn around, and sell 'em for a profit." Pausing for a puff on the cigarette, the olive-skinned young man shrugged the broad, muscular shoulders under his tight-fitting grey t-shirt. "That's why you put, right in that contract you wrote for all our customers, that 'finders, keepers' rule, am I right?"

"Well... yeah..." Dave agreed, reluctantly, as he focused part of his attention on poking the contacts within the wall with the circuit tester. "This... isn't quite the same thing, though. Clearly, the new owners had no idea this was here..."

"That's right - but we don't know if there's EVER gonna be anything worth our while when we take a contract, am I right?" Mark argued, reasonably enough - though he was the 'muscle' of the operation to Dave's brains, he wasn't anything approaching 'stupid'. "We take the risk... and, in return, we get the rewards, if any."

"Yeah, that's the idea..." Dave had to agree, with a wry grin - it didn't always work out that way in real life. More than one job had been a net loss for the duo.

"Well - maybe this is our 'big payoff'." Mark pointed out, running a hand through his thick, ebony hair as he flashed the grin that had turned so many women weak in the knees. "We tell anybody about it BEFORE we get in, though, and you KNOW they'll just cut us out - am I right?"

"Yeah - you're right." Dave gently mocked Mark's habitual verbal eccentricity. "Still - what if it's not 'the big payout'? What if this is locked behind a high-security door because it's something dangerous?"

"Well, partner..." Mark announced, expansively, "...then, as usual, it's my job to keep you safe. Also part of the service, am I right?"

Dave couldn't help but grant chuckling agreement to that as he went back to work on the circuitry - after all, Mark HAD kept him safe on dozens of job-sites while he was either appraising or carefully removing potentially valuable old items of the turn-of-the-century warehouses and failed industrial facilities that the current market was buying up and renovating into condos or apartments.

Some minutes later, Dave grunted, talented hands still probing inside the wall.

"...and that... should be... just about... IT!" He finished with a triumphant note - as, to his left, the sound of bolts retracting into the heavy steel door sounded as a series of muffled 'thumps', followed by the hissing hydraulic whine as the door ponderously swung open.

"My MAN!" Mark crowed, punching the air in victory. "Okay - hold on a sec, while I take a peek."

As the boyish blond gathered his tools, the taller and more muscular brunet peered past the still slowly opening door - and frowned slightly at the sight his dark eyes beheld.

It was basically a downward-sloping hallway that ran for, he guessed, maybe ten feet - there to level out for another four feet or so before ending at another blank wall, inset into which was another, somewhat less sturdy metal door, also with a control panel beside it.

"Hmmm " Mark mused, as Dave edged up beside him. "Looks like you're gonna have to work your magic again, partner."

"Probably be a lot faster, second time around. " Dave commented with not-uneared confidence.

"Okay, then - let's see what this 'treasure vault' holds for us intrepid explorers " Mark commented, dryly, leading the way past the threshold. Dave trailed after him, leaning slightly backwards against the twenty- degree slope of the hallway.

They were about halfway down the dimly-lit hallway when it first started getting dimmer, followed a second later by getting significantly brighter.

The brightness was straight-forward: a series of fluorescent fixtures inset into the ceiling hummed and sputtered to life, bathing the whitewashed concrete walls of the hallway/chamber in garish fluorescent light. That startled the two young men sufficiently that it wasn't until the sound of metal bolts banging home registered that either Dave or Mark realized the preceding dimness had come from the door automatically swinging closed.

Startled - and not a little worried - the two men glanced at the now closed and locked door they'd recently passed through, then traded a look, as well as a nervous chuckle.

"No panel on this side of the door." Mark pointed out. "It looks as if the only way out is... forward "

The last word of his comment fell away as his voice took on a distracted tone - a tone that came from an actual distraction. When he'd glanced through the doorway and down the hall, Mark had been able to see the simple chamber in almost it's utilitarian totality - ALMOST.

Just as he hadn't been able to see that there was no control panel for the 'outer' door on this side from the doorway, he also had been unable to see the speaker mounted in the corner high above the door or, much more ominously, the strange device above the door, unfamiliar to his eyes, but with a disturbingly 'weapon- muzzle'-like aspect to it...

"Er... Dave?" Nick 'suggested', struggling to keep his voice calm. "You, uh, might want to..."

"...on it!" Dave agreed in a breathless rush, making a hurried bee-line towards the panel beside the inner portal.

"Welcome, visitors, to the PleasureDome!" A crackly, recorded voice suddenly blared cheerfully from the speaker, it's unexpected sound making both young men flinch.

"Thank you for entering! Please be patient while you are scanned and assessed; the inner door will open once any necessary modifications are made!" The recorded voice continued it's cheerful, pre-recorded patter. "Rest assured, the management of the PleasureDome is grateful for your participation. While a bit uncomfortable in and of itself, the modification process will not only guarantee you the maximum amount of pleasure during your stay, but also increase the pleasure for all your potential lovers. Of course, all modifications are - if so desired - fully reversible upon leaving."

"I don't think I like the sound of this..." Mark muttered, as Dave used a battery-powered screwdriver to remove the face-plate of the panel. Meanwhile, the recorded voice continued it's spiel...

"So relax, let the electrogenmod system do it's work - and prepare yourself for the sexual experience of a lifetime, ladies!"

"Okay - I KNOW I don't like the sound of THAT!" Mark stated, firmly. "Dave...?"

"Working on it!" Dave assured him, yanking the cover plate out of the way - then giving a brief curse at the sight of a somewhat different set-up than that of the first door.

"Scanning of primary target initiated..." A cool, impersonal female voice announced from the speaker. "Primary target parameters outside acceptable ranges. Computing minimum necessary modifications..."

"Faster, Dave - faster..." Mark urged, eyeing the strange device mounted above the outer door - which, rather ominously, had begun to glow.

Dave, busy with the wiring, didn't bother to answer.

"Calculations complete." The generated voice announced, all too quickly to Mark's mind. "Charging EGM Cannon..."

"Dave...!" Mark barked, looking around - futilely - for any sort of cover. The glowing device began to emit a rising whine, while the glow intensified.

"Firing." The voice announced - and, an eternal second later, a bright beam speared out, striking Mark full in the chest with a crackling static discharge. Crying out - more in shock than in pain - Mark collapsed to the floor, body twitching.

"Mark!" Dave shouted, pushing away from the panel and turning towards his downed friend - even as the cool voice announced: "Scanning secondary target..."

"Just... keep working... on the door..." Mark gasped, something strange happening with his voice - but the odd tone to his voice was the least of his worried, for his entire body felt strange, almost.. watery, as if it were sloshing around under his skin.

"Are you okay...? What's happening to you...?" Dave demanded, torn between following Mark's instructions and coming to his friend's aid.

"Just... work on getting that door open!" Mark gasped, not wanting to admit - to either Dave OR himself - what was happening to his twitching body. Unfortunately, the sensations emanating from an undeniably shifting form, not to mention what was going on under the hand he'd rather hesitantly pushed down the front of his steadily loosening pants, made denial a very difficult option to pursue.

"Computing minimum necessary modifications..." The computer impersonally informed them. "Hold on, Mark - I'm almost there... just a few seconds more, I think..."

"Just hurry...!" The other person sharing the chamber gasped - and Dave's head whipped around, because the voice, while reminiscent of Mark's, sounded much more like one belonging to a...

"Holy SHIT!" Dave shouted, slamming back against the wall and staring in stunned horror at the figure in Mark's baggy, over-sized clothing. "Mark, you... you're a GIRL!"

"Calculations complete." The generated voice announced.

"I KNOW I'm a fuckin' girl!" The new woman snapped, awkwardly rising to her smaller, daintier feet. Her now over-sized jeans began to slide, and she quickly grabbed the waistband to keep them from falling down as she glared urgently at Dave. "...now get that door open before it fires again!"

As if to underscore the newly feminine Mark's order, the voice announced: "Charging EGM Cannon..."

Panic managed to tear Dave's eyes from the person who looked just like Mark's sister would look - had Mark not been an only child. The same panic made his movements jerky as he struggled to get the door open before...

"Firing."

"NOOO..."

The same negation was torn from two throats, one in a masculine tone, the other in a previously never-heard feminine one. Dave whirled in place, staring in horror during that split second between announcement and actual initiation of the firing procedure...

...and so he got to see the shorter, slimmer female version of his muscular friend leap with premeditated intent directly into the line of fire, taking a second crackling bolt to the chest. Horrified, Dave watched the figure collapse to the floor, twitching - as it began to get even shorter...

...daintier...

...more unmistakably feminine...

"Error - secondary target not engaged." The computer announced. "Charging EGM Cannon."

"Get... the damned door... open..." The twitching figure demanded in a voice that became softer, somehow 'silkier' with every syllable.

"Yeah... door... right..." Dave muttered in shock, twitching himself as he turned away from the still-shifting form of his friend, and addressed himself to the panel.

"Go it!" He announced, even as the inner door slid open with a hiss. Dave started to turn back to help Mark - and froze, staring at the considerably shorter and unmistakably feminine figure already lurching towards him. Jeans now ridiculously oversized for the form previously wearing them pooled briefly around slender feet, then she stepped right out of them and continued shuffling onward.

"Go - go!" She urged, her feminine voice snapping Dave out of his trance - at least, to a certain degree. He stumbled across the threshold of the door and into the room beyond, even as the newly-reshaped Mark shambled towards the door. She reached the threshold...

...and the third flaring beam of light slammed into her back, tumbling her into the room even as the door slid closed behind her twitching, shifting form.

"Oh, God - Mark...!" Dave shouted, jiggling his weight from one foot to another as the urge to run to his friend fought against a fear that the energy discharge running through him... HER... would somehow be contagious.

Then the figure on the floor stopped twitching, and slowly pushed itself up onto one arm. Dave merely stared, wide-eyed with shock, at what his friend had become.

What had been a tight-fitting T-shirt on a six-and-a-half foot tall, 230-pound male body was now practically a loose-fitting knee-length dress on the five-foot-nothing woman it now hung from. With a fine-boned, delicate build, she probably didn't top 100 pounds... and would never have come close to the century mark if not for the fact that, doll-like in general size and delicacy of build, she was most definitely 'womanly' rather than 'girlish'.

In fact, to Dave's stunned 'first glance', the woman slowly picking herself up off the floor had the traits Dave associated with Jennifer Love Hewitt or a young Rosie Perez - except magnified, distilled, and....

Perfected.

Once barely encircling a column-like neck, the neckline of the T-shirt, far from coming close to the slender, swan-like neck of the 'perfect' woman on the floor, hung loose on daintily slender yet shapely and delicately toned shoulders - revealing a satisfyingly deep and dusky expanse of cleavage.

Though the garment hung tent-like on her diminutive frame, it was taut against the swell of her full, high-set breasts - breasts that were exposed by that open neckline almost down as far as her nipples, the edge of chocolate-dark areolas contrasted by the golden glow of flawlessly perfect skin.

The same lusciously soft, perfect skin that covered the slender, yet shapely and proportionately long legs that emerged from beneath the hem of the pseudo-dress that also traced the curve of shapely, slender hips.

Undoubtedly, the waist that was concealed by the drape of the oversized garment had to be to the same, slender model as the rest of her delicate build...

...but as stunning as her body was, it was matched every bit by the truly breathtaking beauty of her face, with it's delicate yet well-defined jaw line, it's smoothly rounded cheek-bones, it's full, pouting lips, the dark, liquid eyes, heavy-lidded and long-lashed and...

...and...

...and watching Dave as he openly stared in shocked appreciation - if not downright arousal - of the stunningly gorgeous woman who had been, shortly before, his nearly life-long male best friend.

Suddenly realizing what he was doing, Dave recoiled as if her accusing gaze had been a slap to the face, and he mumbled and stammered as he sought an apology that could possibly encompass this utterly unimagined offense.

* * * * *

Touch, sensation and context gave Mark some idea of what his - HER - new body must be like, backed by the rather limited view of what any person could see of their own body... but, as much as she had rather desperately hoped the 'novelty' of seeing a female body from this oh-so-very-personal perspective was causing her to overestimate the extent of the changes, Dave's sudden conversion into a red-faced stammering idiot immediately confirmed the worst.

While Mark was - or, she reflected with a dark form of humor, had until recently been - quite popular and skilled with the ladies, Dave had always been somewhat... less suave.

To put it rather more bluntly, the more beautiful and/or sexually attractive a woman was, the more a bumbling, dithering idiot Dave became.

No more than fifteen minutes ago, Mark had been a red-blooded heterosexual (Italian-) American male, who'd enjoyed his masculinity and sexuality, and who - while occasionally musing at what it must be like to be sexually satisfied as a woman, (generally, in the self-boastful sense after he'd just finished 'ultimately satisfying' one), Mark had never, ever seriously considered actually BEING female - indeed, whenever a movie touched upon the concept, he had felt nothing but a sense of distaste and unease.

Yet, that is exactly what had happened to the new woman Mark now was, and she couldn't pretend it was otherwise... especially since she'd knowingly and - in a 'lesser of two evils' sense - willingly increased her feminine state by taking the blast meant for Dave.

The third blast, right on the very edge of 'escaping', was merely a case of adding insult to injury.

...or, in this case, 'excessive sexuality to femininity'.

The first 'blast' had changed her into the female version of her own body - a 'normal' woman. The second, which she'd willingly taken to give Dave time to keep working on the door, had turned that version into a 'sexy' version of a woman... and the gratuitous third blast had pushed her past 'normal/sexy' into the realm of extraordinarily sexy.

So, as much as she disliked it, she was going to have to accept the fact that she was a jaw-droppingly erotic vision of sexual femininity...

...for as long as it lasted.

She was not, after all, a STUPID woman.

"Dave!" She said, wincing as her voice emerged soft, smooth, silky - unintentionally, yet unmistakably sensual and seductive. It did, however, do the job of cutting off Dave in mid-babble.

"Uh... Mark...?" Dave replied, hesitantly - choosing, after one almost involuntary glance at her new body, to stare fixedly at appoint to feet above and to the right of her.

"The machine DID say that the effects could be reversed, am I right...?" She asked, a trifle pointedly - and the tone, combined with her trademark phrasing, managed to get through to Dave.

"Oh - hey, yeah! Yeah, it DID!" He replied enthusiastically, a smile coming to his face as he fixed his attention on her... and then he swallowed audibly, face once more going red as he realized what he'd unthinkingly fixed his gaze upon, this gorgeous vision of sexual femininity that also happened to be his best friend...

Dave opened his mouth to abjectly apologize for eying her diminutive, shapely new form - but she beat him to the punch: "Well, then, I guess you should enjoy looking at this incredibly hot body as much as possibly while it's here, because it's not going to last."

She had, of conscious choice, kept any trace of sarcasm out of the words, instead striving mightily to make it sound vastly more sincere a comment than she could possibly feel comfortable with it being. As it happened, the thought of being viewed 'that way' was VERY uncomfortable to her male persona inside this ultra- feminine body... but just how creepily uncomfortable it made her was something she was quite determined to hide all trace of.

While she wasn't planning to exactly ENCOURAGE Dave to lust after her new body, she was going to make damned sure he thought she was perfectly sanguine with whatever it was that he did do, rather than let him 'beat himself up' over it.

"Er... what?" Dave stammered, sure he'd either mishear or misunderstood, as he blinked at her in confusion - which only told Mark that she'd made the right decision, for although he was still staring at her right now, the blush was fading, and his mind was at least marginally functional, if somewhat confused.

Mark wasn't stupid - and they'd been friends nearly their entire lives. Mark new Dave better than anybody else on the planet, INCLUDING Dave himself... and so Mark knew exactly where the 'sudden onset incompetence' came from when Dave was dealing with women.

Simply put, Dave was entirely too used to being right.

The sandy-haired young man was unarguably 'the brain' of the pair - when it came to anything BUT women. Those very traits, however, is what made women his Achilles' Heel: Dave was used to being able to logically work out the 'rules' of dealing with mechanical, electrical or electronic objects, and the fact that women famously defied any sort of logical analysis left him floundering.

Worse: not only did Dave not understand women, he KNEW he didn't understand them; even worse, Dave was a fundamentally decent guy, much more so than Mark... or nearly anybody else on the planet, for that matter.

Mark, 'going after' women, would never KNOWINGLY inflict emotional, much less physical, pain on any of them... but knowing he didn't understand women, accepted the risk that he might unknowingly or unwillingly 'hurt' them with his actions. It was something that nearly all men accepted, even if on a purely subconscious level. After all, if you knew you couldn't always correctly predict a woman's reaction to your actions, you had to accept that sometimes it would turn out 'wrong'.

Dave,. However, so used to being 'right', simply hadn't accepted that there was sometimes no 'right' answer dealing with women...

...which was why Mark knew she had to keep Dave thinking unquestioningly about her being 'male best friend in a hot babe body'; because it was the female MIND that flustered Dave to the point of usefulness, not the body - and Mark need Dave functioning if they were going to reverse this.

So, displaying a hitherto unknown acting talent, Mark managed a convincingly natural-sounding chuckle.

"Dude, it's me." She said in the warm, silken voice she'd been cursed with. "You know - your best friend, the 'studmeister'? The guy who you've sat hundreds of times with watching 'T&A' movies and 'rating' both the 'T' and the 'A' of the women? Dude - RELAX. If you WEREN'T trying to ogle an eyeful of a totally hot babe, THEN I'd worry..."

...and then, somehow, she managed a laugh. A throaty, slightly husky, and very sensual laugh - that, nevertheless, was still undeniably a 'Mark' laugh, like the one Mark always used when ribbing Dave about how he needed to 'loosen up' and 'just go with the flow' when it came to women.

"Yeah, well..." Dave muttered, blushing again - but in a completely different, and almost painfully familiar way: hanging his head, grinding one toe slightly against the ground; the exact bashful recognition of a point scored Dave always used when Mark twitted him about his hesitancy around women.

"Come on, partner - give me a hand up, and we'll see what we're dealing with..." Mark said, striving to make her new voice sound purely 'business as usual' as she extended one dainty, long-fingered hand in Dave's direction.

Dave hesitated - then grinned boyishly and stepped forward... not to fumblingly and awkwardly held a gorgeous woman to her feet, but to quickly help his best friend up. It might have been done a lot more self- consciously than when Mark was a guy, with the slightest of hesitation just before his flesh actually made contact with her own, but it was definitely a lot closer to their 'normal' relationship than the one Dave normally displayed around women...

...and nothing at all like the reaction Dave OR Mark 'should' have been having with this very strange and unnatural situation, and Mark was almost grimly determined to continue hiding his natural reactions to the situation in order to keep it on that 'functionally-proven' best-friend relationship level.

Which was why the new woman Mark had become consciously concealed her natural reactions of confusion, curiously, distaste and (however unwanted) mild delight at the sensation of her (proportionately) huge new boobs jiggling and bouncing with firm resilience with every move she made, with every breath she took.

Which was why she fought to give no sign of the sensations created by the texture of the cotton shirt rubbing over the oh-so-sensitive flesh of her large, thick new nipples, currently partially erect in the cool underground air so that every disturbingly pleasant jiggle of her firmly soft new spheres caused a corresponding disgustingly delightful sensation in her swollen new nipples.

Which was why she displayed none of the surprise and almost unwanted interest she felt at the familiar-yet- undeniably-different sensation of a much fuller and 'perkier' ass flexing and relaxing as she moved, the additional mass to her shapely new ass taut and toned, yet managing to still be softer and more resilient than her male gluteus maximus.

All of this surprising thespian talent at faking 'business as usual' while dealing with highly unusual sensations in an equally uncommon situation, however, all paled to near-insignificance next to a practically Oscar-caliber performance of commonplace blasé indifference as Dave took her delicate new hand and, as if handling fine china, carefully helped her to her feet - a smooth motion she performed with a casual, 'everyday' air...

...that gave absolutely no sign of the highly complex mix of emotions - shock, confusion, fear and even unwilling but undeniable desire - as the simple touch of Dave's flesh to hers caused an intense burst of unmistakably sensual pleasure to thrum down her arm, causing her nipples to fully engorge to the point of delicious discomfort and a deep, throbbing warmth to bring tingling wetness to a new womanhood.

A womanhood that suddenly seemed to demand that she stop trying to ignore its existence and pay attention to it instead.

A womanhood that seemed to whisper into the new woman's golden ear about just how much pleasure could be hers if only something - or someone - were to fill that warm, wet void.

A 'warm, wet void' that no longer felt like but a small percentage of her body mass, but as if she were entirely hollow, at risk of imploding inwards around that emptiness unless it were filled, and filled soon.

Somehow, even through the intense 'distraction' of a nearly overwhelming sexual urge Dave's touch had awakened in her body and mind, the perfectly formed new woman managed to stand 'casually' beside her best friend and completely repress any sign of the horrified realization of what a triple dose of the 'pleasure optimization' the computer had promised meant.

Most noteworthy of all, however, was the simple fact that, despite her body thrumming and almost literally quivering with a high-overwhelming desire, the suddenly sexually-aware woman managed to completely resist not only the urge, but giving any sign that the urge even existed, for her to surrender herself to the suddenly realized and utterly certain realization that extraordinarily intense sexually pleasure, far beyond anything she'd ever experienced before, stood less than a hands-breadth away...

...in the form and figure of a best friend that, as desperately as she suppressed any outward sign or realizing, she couldn't help but now see as a very viable and attractive male capable of interacting sexually with a woman.

A woman - like her... TO BE CONTINUED

Back to Stories

SUMMARY: When two guys go salvaging, they discover a pleasure dome that makes some adjustments so that there will be the correct male to female ratio.

Part Two

Behind and beneath the empty warehouse in the slowly gentrifying east side of town, two figures stood side- by-side, pretending to survey the chamber in which they found themselves.

Not that the location itself merited the highly-feigned attention it was getting. The chamber had been identified by a recorded voice as "The PleasureDome" - and 'pleasure dome' was as much a simple description as a name for the chamber in which the two figures found themselves.

It was, after all, a 'dome' - a hemispherical chamber measuring perhaps a hundred feet across, and half of that from the floor to the highest point of the arching ceiling.

Likewise, the 'pleasure' portion of the name/description was equally as explicitly obvious.

Along one wall, faux-stonework created a semi-'natural'-looking grotto, down the wall of which artistically formed streams of water rushed, bubbled and sprayed. This waterfall, aside from being quite visually and aurally decorative, also served as a functional multi-person shower area - and the water then spilled down into a combination bathing/wading area.

The outlet of the little man-made pool turned into a stream that ran towards the center of the dome, where it then became a sort of moat surrounding the end of the strip-club style stage, complete with brass pole, the protruded out over the water, it's height making the stage sort of the focal point of the dome.

Ranked around the stage's moat were more faux-stone tiers, meandering in a sort of amphitheatre - but there were no narrow, uncomfortable seats to be found here. Instead, padded niches in the rock walls and hollows served double duty, equally functional as seating or bedding areas.

Likewise, the kitchen area, while a functional food-preparation site, boasted counters considerably deeper than strictly necessary, and sturdily constructed enough to take the weight of two (or more) full-grown adults engaged in... 'acrobatic' physical activity.

This was all without even TOUCHING upon the padded-black-velvet-furniture equipped 'dungeon' area directly across the chamber from the 'grotto', nor the large racks of rather... 'fetishistic' clothing along the south facing wall...

In short, the chamber was the sort of place that a person would have to have a damned good reason for NOT staring around in shock and/or amazement... and each of the two figures standing within the women's entrance of the chamber did, in fact, have good reason for their individual state of current preoccupation.

One of the figures was a sandy-haired man of average height and slightly more than average girth. Handsome enough in a somewhat stocky, boyish way, the young man's name was Dave, and he alternated between running his fingers through and untamed mass of sand-colored hair and playing with his rimless, low- prescription glasses.

Dave's reason for not giving the PleasureDome the attention it deserved was quite simple - he was entirely too preoccupied with trying, (without a notable lack of success), NOT to give the figure standing next to him the attention SHE so very rightly deserved.

If the PleasureDome was so named by being a dome dedicated to the pursuit of pleasure, then the woman standing next to Dave should have rightfully been named 'PleasureWoman'. Instead, however, her name was Mark; 'a woman built for pleasure' merely being what she WAS, rather than what she was named.

On the part of the diminutive woman whose massive, luxurious mane of wavy ebony hair barely reached Dave's shoulders, the reason for lack of proper appreciation of her surroundings was three-fold:

The very first one was the same as the reason Dave was so distracted - namely, her own, highly feminine body. Clad in an oversized t-shirt, it was a body that was so fine-boned as to be as delicate as the finest chine, with tiny wrists and ankles, a waist so slender as to be the envy of any fashion-model, and long, deliciously slender limbs - yet, despite that, she was also 'all woman', the oversized shirt clinging tightly to the firmly rounded swells of hip, buttock and breast in a way that made it clear that this 'doll-like' woman was more than merely 'anatomically correct'. Indeed, the shapely curves clad in flawlessly smooth, dusky-olive skin not only made one realize she was quite emphatically female, but would make even the saintliest of men helplessly realize what 'base' pleasures a feminine figure could provide a man.

Now, being stunningly, seductively, and above all else - sexually gorgeous is a 'curse' many women would not necessarily have minded, but in Mark's case, her well-deserved second reason for not noticing the chamber's full effect came from the fact that, until a very short while ago, she'd been a red-blooded, handsome, determinedly heterosexual male...

...which lead directly to the third reason, which was that the male-raised mind in the emphatically feminine body was trying to grapple with the unarguable realization and reality that came from knowing that any sort of physical contact with any male body - such as the one standing a hand's breadth away from her at that very moment - would result in an extraordinary amount of immediate physical pleasure directly proportional to how... 'intimate' that physical contact was.

In short: Mark was quite distracted by the fact that, no matter how desperately she tried NOT to, she couldn't help but think about just how unbelievably fantastic it would feel to have sex with Dave... and, given how her long-time best friend was reacting to her new body, just how theoretically easy it would be to get him to agree to that sexual congress.

"Er...." She finally suggested, wincing at how silken-smooth and honey-toned her new voice emerged even in the depths of confused uncertainty. "I think, maybe, I'll see if there's any clothing I could..."

"YES...." Dave blurted, and then blushed. "I, um... I mean, I think that would be a good idea."

"Yeah." Mark agreed, trying - and failing - to notice that, while part of Dave meant that, a clearly visible part of Dave's psyche was busily considering what she would look like without any clothes on at all... and that part of her own mind felt a strangely victorious thrill of excitement at the realization.

Instead, she tried to quash that portion of her thoughts as she headed over to the wall with the racks of clothing, as Dave - after a very long, sighing look - managed to distract himself from the all-to-delectable swaying of her firm buttocks and swivelling of her well-rounded hips by turning his belated attention to the dome itself, looking for access to the technology that had allowed such a discomforting (and uncomfortably arousing) change to take place in his best friend.

* * * * *

With an extreme degree of self-consciousness made all the worse by the fact that the 'self' she was hideously conscious about was emphatically feminine, Mark walked over to where a slice of the circular wall was taken up by racks of women's clothing.

Almost immediately, her own discomfort at looking for clothes suitable to be worn on a body she didn't want in the first place redoubled - because, as uncomfortable as she might be with the thought of wearing ANY female clothing, it was far worse to think of herself wearing any of the clothing she now hesitantly found herself perusing, for none of the clothing was anything close to what be considered 'normal' women's wear.

'Clubwear' was the most 'demure' clothing to be found within the selection - which is to say, it was marginally 'street legal'. From there, it went on to clothing that, should the wearer be caught outside the 'boudoir' (or 'dungeon', depending on the clothing), the owner and wearer of said clothing was likely to be arrested for: a) solicitation of prostitution; b) public indecency; c) incitement to riot, or; d) in certain outfits, 'all of the above'.

It would be highly instructive to note that Mark's first thought at looking through these articles of clothing was: 'I can't wear these...!' - and the mental image that formed was of her old, male body-image looking more than simply ludicrous in such sexually feminine attire.

A simple breath, causing her ample, round breasts to press firmly against the thin material of her t-shirt, quickly disabused her of that false mental image, reminding her of the current state of reality.

Her SECOND thought was: 'I can't wear THESE...!' - except that, from a physical and aesthetic viewpoint alike, the image that formed in the new woman's mind quickly put that thought to the lie; indeed, as her mind formed the image of her new body dressed in skimpy and sexy clothes that would not only fit, but show off, her new body, Mark found herself getting... aroused.

So, almost in self defense, Mark's mind quickly added the qualifier '...because Dave wouldn't be able to keep his hands off me!'.

It was SUPPOSED to be a sort of 'ultimatum', an unarguable reason her all-male mind added almost instinctively as a disqualifying qualifier - it was supposed to be as valid and important as saying 'I can't stick my hand into the fire, because I would get burned.'

After all, her male-oriented mind quickly grasped the 'homosexual' thought as an ultimate disqualifier, and it really should have been... except that her already aroused body trembled with remembered pleasure at the thought of physical contact with Dave, and instead of being an inarguable reason why she couldn't wear sexy female clothing, part of her mind very nearly found it an inarguable reason why she SHOULD.

Lightly biting down on her full, firm, and oh-so-kissable lower lip, the new - and highly pleasure sensitive - woman Mark had become had to quite literally fight down the urge to dress in clothing that was induce Dave to provide her with more of the utterly mind-overwhelming pleasure even the briefest touch was guaranteed to provide her. Instead, summoning up an amount of willpower whose very need was daunting evidence of how her altered body was working against her ingrained male mindset, Mark forced herself to start looking for the least sexually arousing clothing she could find...

...which, given both the selection of clothing available, the size-limitation of choices determined by her petite- yet- curvaceous body, and the very sexual nature of the body itself, was certainly no easy task.

* * * * *

Dave was cheerfully lost in a world of transistors and resistors, following circuits and tracing power-flows in electronics that, despite being made of components two decades out of date, were far advanced compared to anything he'd ever seen before.

An acknowledged 'tech geek', this was the next-best thing to Heaven for Dave, and so it wasn't at all surprising that he failed to hear the sound of low, stacked wooden heels clapping across the floor to where he stood, half- buried in the wall that access the incredible electronics beyond.

"Any luck...?" a rich, honey-smooth female voice inquired, its awkward nervousness and general uncertainty buried in its smooth, seductive tones.

"This stuff is amazing!" Dave enthused, staring to turn. "It's absolutely... urghk!"

The lowest, broadest pair of heels Mark had been able to find her in her diminutive new shoe-size were 2-inch stacked heels belonged to a pair of wine-red soft leather ankle boots. Above the loose-rucked leather tops of the boots, her extremely shapely little legs were encased in a semi-opaque pair of black lycra-mix leggings, shot through with a metallic thread that caused them to shimmer and gleam, emphasizing every well-packed curve of her dusky legs.

Those legs disappeared under the hem of a black-and-red horizontal striped sweater-dress that clung teasingly both to the flare of her full hips and the smooth swell of the perfect, dusky spheres of breast-flesh that were only tantalizingly hinted at by the dark cleavage the dropping cowl-neck of the dress displayed. A wide, white spandex belt completed the ensemble, highlighting her deliciously slender waist.

She wore no makeup or jewelry, and her mass of gleaming, silky ebony hair fell in an unstyled mane of waves and curls around her shoulders - and yet she still looked like a sensual and beautiful goddess brought to Earth.

"Dave...?" She asked, hesitantly. "What's wrong...?" "Nuh... nuh... nothing!"

The stammer, and the deep blush that went along with, gave lie to Dave's squeezed reply.

Swallowing nervously, Mark gestured at the exposed circuitry, hoping a live-long love of technology would override the smitten look currently on her best friend's face.

"So - what have you found out?" Mark tried desperately to distract both Dave and her own damnable imagination, shivering with the thought of the pleasure so much as a touch from Dave would unleash.

"Um... yeah - er.... Right..." Dave muttered, struggling to get his mind away from the discomforting and 'highly inappropriate' sexual thoughts he was having, and onto the topic of the amazing transformative electronics within the wall. If it had been any other topic he was trying to 'switch over' to, the effort probably would have failed - the feminine Mark was that alluring, and for reasons more than just the physical. However, technology WAS Dave's 'first love', and so he was finally able to marshal his thoughts on that topic, but not without a constant, undercurrent of awareness of Mark's new form (and ultra-potent pheromones) undermining his concentration.

"Okay - technically speaking, I'm the only 'real' thing in the dome." Mark finally managed to focus enough to explain, with the faint, lecturing tone he always took when educating the uninitiated.

"Excuse me...?" Mark asked. "I certainly FEEL real..."

With great effort, she managed to resist the temptation that Dave test the theory by touching her...

"Oh, well - you EXIST..." Dave rather graciously allowed... while refusing to look directly at her. "However, you are actually merely a... SIMULATION. Complex electro-magnetic forces bound within an imposed matrix in the shape of a woman..."

...'and WHAT a woman!' both Mark and Dave's minds silently added. "I... don't quite follow." Mark admitted.

"Well, do you ever watch 'Star Trek'...?" Dave asked - then, at the wry grin that looked both utterly familiar and at the same time completely out of place on the lovely woman's face, gave himself a mental kick, reminding himself that, body aside, this was his long-time best friend... sort of.

"You're a tangible hologram." Dave explained. "Oh, a very detailed one, with all the bits and pieces, albeit mildly modified, of a human being... but you were 'converted' into energy by the blasts, and the energy was re-ordered into what you now see."

"Oh..." Mark muttered - then, hesitantly: "So - how do I change back?"

It was Dave's turn to hesitate - and his faded blush returned full-force, for a different reason.

"I... may have screwed up." He admitted, awkwardly. "When I by-passed the lock, I also bypassed a... a sort of 'buffer'. I didn't know what it was for, at the time, and didn't think it mattered - but, now, I think it was designed to store your original 'energy state'."

"You mean... I'm STUCK like this...?" Mark blurted - and was horrified by the fact that she wasn't nearly as horrified by the fact as she felt she should have been...

"No, no!" Dave hastened to assure her. "It's just - look, CREATRION would be prohibitively energy-expense... $E=MC^2$ and all that. CONVERSION, however, can be done... but it still has a very big energy budget. Which is why your mass is less than it was - it was converted to power the transformation. Normally, the buffer would have stored up enough to reverse the process, but I discharged it breaking in... either we'd have to do a relative conversion of mass, or wait until enough energy can be stored in the buffer."

"Bottom line?" Mark wanted to know.

"Bottom line is, I could 'loan' you the energy to become male again... by becoming female myself. Or, we can wait for the system to recharge... which, the way I figure it, would take about a day..."

"Oh..." Mark muttered. "So - I'm stuck like this for 24 hours?"

"More or less..." Dave allowed. "The system used its pre-programmed base parameters. I COULD change you somewhat... but only in ways that would be slightly less than your own current mass, as some more of your mass would be 'stolen' to power the transformation. Or, we could wait just long enough for a charge to build up that could transform you back into a male - not your old body, but a man of your current size and mass, roughly speaking."

"...or anything else, as long as there was either enough energy or enough mass...?" Mark wondered aloud, working it out in her own mind.

"Exactly!" Dave agreed enthusiastically, turning back towards the open wall, crouching to point at something within. "See, this is the interface, right here..."

Mentally cursing her tiny new stature that prevented her from seeing over Dave's shoulder - a new and unusual reversal of the usual situation - Mark stood on tip-toe and leaned forward slightly to see what Dave was pointing at...

...without taking into consideration a not-inconsiderable amount of mass set relative high on her body and thrust outward, radically altering her mentally assumed center of gravity.

In short, the shapely new woman toppled tit-first into Dave's back...

...and let out a long, deep, and above all, SEXUAL moan of bone-deep pleasure as her body was pressed firmly against Dave's broad figure, triggering all sorts of pleasure-inducing contact points she'd only barely been aware of having. Her nipples went nearly rock-hard, and a second gasping moan of shocked surprise - and pleasure - came from between her full lips as a warm wetness thrummed through her new womanhood in response to the increased pleasure coming from her swollen nipples and delightfully compressed breasts.

Instinctively, the male portion of her 'virtual brain' told her she needed to break contact with Dave immediately, that this was all so fundamentally wrong on a very basic level... but, instead, she found herself draping her slender, dusky arms around Dave's neck, increasing the amount of pleasure thrumming through her transformed body as she lightly ground herself against her sturdy friend's broad body, feeling a deep craving for sexual contact like none she'd ever felt before...

...and with the utter and inarguable certainty that giving in to such an urge would only increase the already amazing level of pleasure she was helplessly experiencing by holding her curvaceous body so tightly against his.

Which was why a moaning sigh of bone-deep disappointment emerged from her throat when Dave pulled away from her with an embarrassed mutter of "Whu-whu-what the -hu-hell are you duh-doing...?!"

Red-blooded, heterosexual, All-American Stud Mark thought: 'Tell him! Tell him that touching him feels so incredibly good that you just can't help yourself, and Dave will make DAMNED sure to avoid me for the entire time it takes to change me back...!'

...which was EXACTLY why the incredibly horny, currently emphatically female person of whom Mark made up only a portion gave Dave a surprised look and said: "Rubbing my hot body against yours - why, what did you THINK I was doing...?"

Dave gaped at her, making strangled sounds that didn't correlate with anything in the English language.

Pouting prettily, the petite sexpot look down at herself, then back up at Dave: "...or, don't you find this body sexy?" She asked, a plaintive note in her honey-smooth tones.

'What the HELL am I doing...?' - But, even as the small part of the new woman formulated the question, she knew it to be rhetorical. She knew damned well what she was trying to do - she was trying to seduce Dave.

Not, however, for her own sake - or, rather, not SOLELY for her own sake. As unbelievable tempting as feeling the intense pleasure any male could bring her might be, it alone wouldn't have been enough to override her

'maleness', not even given the intense level of sexual arousal she was currently feeling.

No, from the rather shell-shocked male-oriented portion of her brain's point of view, the REAL problem... was himself.

After all...

"Dude..." She heard herself say, "...just how long have we been trying to get you laid?"

...and that was the crux of the problem - because Mark really DID want to help his best friend finally 'get some action'... and, in this body, not only could SHE 'arrange' for that to happen, but in her current hyper-aroused and hyper-sensitive state, she very much WANTED to... even if 'he' didn't particularly want to want it, so to speak.

"Wha... What?! But, Mark...!" Dave stammered...

...and that steadily shrinking part of her mind that shared contiguous ancestry with a heterosexual man who would never even CONSIDER doing something like this listened in surprise as the vivacious, very sexually awake woman she currently embodied purred: "Call me 'Maria'..."

'Mark' made up a part of the woman who, with a nearly predatory smile, now advanced on a slowly back- pedalling Dave... but, all in all, it was a very SMALL part. The majority of 'Maria' was made up out of... well, out of LUST, not to put too fine a point on it. This lust, however, was almost - but not quite - unthinking. It knew just enough, however, to 'hijack' Mark's knowledge and skills, to use them to its own end...

...and the absolute worst part of it, for Mark, was that 'he' was letting this happen. It was almost like being drunk, in a way - when, afterwards, you would realize that you REALLY shouldn't have put that lampshade on your head and sung faux-German opera in a falsetto... but, when you were doing it, it 'seemed a good idea at the time'.

The biggest difference was, that the Mark part of Maria was pretty sure this wasn't a good idea RIGHT NOW - and it STILL wasn't enough to stop her from doing it.

"Look, Mark..." Dave said, nervously, continuing to back away from her prowling feline advance. "Maria..." The busty woman insisted in a throaty purr.

"...this isn't right, this isn't YOU!" Dave doggedly argued. "It's the dome - it's designed to make people want, crave, and enjoy..."

Watching the curvaceous little woman stalking him, Dave failed to notice the couch behind him - bumping into the knee-level furnishing, he found himself flailing his arms, falling backwards to sit down unexpectedly, hard and fast, on the deep, bed-like couch.

In a flash, before her prey could recover, the now nearly animalistic Maria, driven by intense sexual instincts, leapt upon his half-reclined form on the couch, her shapely legs straddling his supine form.

"You're horny, I'm horny, we both want it, and we both KNOW we'll enjoy it..." She purred, shoving him back down when he half-heartedly tried to rise. "Why should we even bother to try and fight it...?"

Part of her mind insisted that they SHOULD fight it, but she wasn't listening to that part of herself... nor was she listening to Dave's stammered attempts to dissuade her. Grabbing Dave's head, she intertwined her slender fingers in his sandy hair, yanking his head upwards to meet her descending lips in a hard, nearly desperate kiss.

Moaning low in the back of her throat at the intense pleasure the physical contact brought, Maria jammed her long, supple tongue into Dave's stunned mouth, prodding and flicking across his own tongue hungrily, demanding her respond to her.

He did respond - by rather hesitantly putting his hands on the blades of her shoulders and, with entirely too much deferential delicacy to be successful, attempt to push her off.

She immediately responded - by grabbing his hands and yanking them downward and inward, placing them squarely on the cloth stretched taut over her full, spherical breasts.

"Yes, that's it Dave..." She moaned, grinding her tits against his hands with a look of intense pleasure on her face. "Squeeze my huge tits! Fondle me, touch me...! It all feels so utterly, amazingly... wonderful...!"

Dave's mind was reeling - while his intellect was trying to insist that she couldn't really want this, and that he SHOULDN'T want this, she certainly gave indication that she did... and his body was very much insisting HE did, as well. Almost inevitably, he began to weaken.

After all, he was a horny young man with a lifetime worth of unrequited lust, currently with a literal lapful of warm, manifestly willing woman literally begging him to indulge every urge he was undeniably feeling.

Almost against his will, Dave found himself giving those huge, softly firm tits a squeeze... and, in response, he could feel her nipples swelling against his palms, even as her moans indicated nothing but willing enjoyment of his touch...

Releasing his no-longer resisting hands, Maria reached down, grabbed the hem of her sweater dress, and in one, showy movement, peeled both it and the underlying tank-top off and tossed the clothing aside. For a brief moment, Dave had an unobstructed view of her magnificent, dusky spheres of ripe tit-flesh...

...and then she rose up on her knees, leaned forward, and buried his face in the warm, slightly musky chasm of her deliciously firm cleavage.

Sliding her slender hands under the edge of Dave's shirt, she leaned back, and quickly divested him of the garment. Leaning forward again, she kissed him hungrily, grinding her breasts against his now-bare chest, delighting in the intense pleasure that thundered through her body.

With Dave no longer resisting her demanding ministrations, she quickly removed the rest of their clothes, pausing often to grind her steadily more naked body against the steadily expanding amount of his bare flesh, doubling and redoubling the wonderful pleasure flowing from the contact... and, not incidentally, increasing Dave's own pleasure, although not nearly to the same degree as what her own, hyper-sensitized body was experiencing.

Still, by the time they were naked, his cock was already hard and throbbing, quite ready to impale the sopping wet cunt she gleefully slammed down upon it.

"Yes...!" She screamed, as even more intense pleasure stole the last bit of 'Mark' from the purely-sexual creature that now inhabited the equally super-sexual body.

"Fuck me, fuck me, fuck me..." She chanted, hungrily, barely hearing her own gasping, moaning demand for sex even as she fulfilled it, riding Dave's hard cock fast and hard. Her huge breasts wobbled and jiggled when she wasn't pressing them against his face or chest, and she paused her repetitive mantra for the occasional quick, hungry kiss - but it was all done on 'automatic pilot' as she bounced, jiggled and thrust herself towards orgasm.

Dave reached it first, crying out in a mixture of pleasure and shame as he dumped his load deep into her sopping pussy - but she didn't even notice, continuing to pound herself atop his slowly softening cock until her own orgasm tore through her with intense force, causing her to twitch and spasm as if being electrocuted.

With the mind-shattering pleasure finally passed, she literally collapsed from the sudden drain, falling off Dave's lap and onto the floor, where she twitched and moaned in intense, pleased satisfaction...

...for Dave's cum was inside her, 'touching' her from within, and so continuously spreading that intense pleasure through her body from a very central portion of her new femininity.

"Wonderful, so wonderful..." She moaned, lost to anything but sexual enjoyment of her new state, neither knowing nor caring about any other possible consequences or repercussions to her femininity. "This is what I want, all that want, for ever and ever... fucking and sucking, touching and being touched, all pleasure, all the time, for ever and ever and EVER and..."

A sound from a little ways away distracted her from the contemplation of a life as a sex-crazed living fuck-doll, and Maria looked up, her eyes tracking around for Dave, already craving another round of sexual intensity as soon as he was capable of it - and then she spotted him over by the open panel in the wall.

Moaning his name, Maria rose to her feet and began to sensually swagger towards him. Somewhere within the primal, sexual core of what passed for her thoughts, she sensed a possibility of some resistance to her desires, but she was utterly certain she could overcome them again, as he already had once, knowing that she not only lived for sex, but was designed in every way to elicit it - she would not, COULD NOT be denied...

...and then she cried out in confusion, horror and pain, as a new - and infinitely less enjoyable - form of electricity slammed into her body...

...and then, panting and twitching, Mark dragged himself erect, mind reeling as he tried to figure out what the hell was going on. It took a second - and then his eyes widened as he realized what it was he'd just done, eagerly slamming a hot, wet cunt down on to his best friend's throbbing cock...

...and then it occurred to him that he no longer HAD a cunt, hot and wet or otherwise. While a trifle shorter and less muscular than before, he was nevertheless all the way back to being male.

"What the...?" Mark stammered, staggering - and then his eyes fell on the person standing near the open access panel.

The tiny, huge-breasted, sandy-haired WOMAN, to be specific. TO BE CONTINUED...

Back to Stories

SUMMARY: A strange mystical disk gives powers to woman who captures four men who happen to be passing through her town.

Requiem

By Gunslinger

Prologue - Past Tense

April 22nd, 1977

The stone, an irregular ovoid roughly five feet long and two feet wide, was older than the Earth itself. Before the crust of that fledgling planet had even begun to form, the small chunk of cosmic matter had hurtled through the intergalactic void.

By the time the Earth's crust had been solid enough to support the first stirrings of life, the hurtling chunk of rock had entered the boundary of the Galaxy. By some quirk of fate, its path carried it through the clusters of stars without falling prey to any of their gravity wells.

On Earth, the first shots of what would become the Vietnam war had just sounded when that same meteorite had whipped through the orbit of Pluto, drawn inexorably towards the yellow-orange star at the center of the solar system.

Then, as it neared the fiery fate that drew it onwards, it passed the rocky, airless satellite of the third planet in the system. The Moon's gravity, puny as it was, was enough to nudge the smaller rock off its course. Just enough that, instead of skipping past the Earth, it hit the fringes of the Earth's gravity well.

It resisted the drag of the blue-green planet for three orbits, whipping around the Earth thrice in just under nine minutes. Then, slowing due to the faint wisps of atmosphere that existed, it lost just enough velocity to be captured by the planet below.

As the air thickened during its downward plunge, the irregular chunk of rock began to glow - a dull red at first, then a vibrant yellow, then, finally, a brilliant, incandescent blaze of white that etched a glowing arc across the sky.

Heated to more than a million degrees from the friction of the Earth's oxygen/carbon-dioxide atmosphere, the superheated rock began to disintegrate, losing the form it had held for countless millennia.

As the rock stripped away, something emerged.

A small, black disk, no more than four inches in diameter, was finally freed from the ages-old imprisonment. If there had been a person present, and if they could have placed a hand on the disk, they would have just enough time to register the fact that the disk itself was barely warm before the tremendous temperatures surrounding the object vaporized them completely.

Travelling at enormous velocities, the small, smooth object finally made contact with the surface of a planet in a tremendous explosion. Its immense kinetic energy was shed almost instantly as it was stopped by the bulk of the Earth, causing an explosion that dug a thirty- foot wide crater. The tremendous heat released from the impact fused the sand of the crater into a rough, translucent green glass, as the small, black disk - completely undamaged - bounced once, then came, at last, to rest.

* * * * *

Cassie Landau was running for her life.

As she staggered across the scorched Nevada badlands, the sheer fabric of her nylons did little to protect her feet from the burning temperature of the sand beneath her. Her high-heeled shoes - the ones Danny insisted she wear - were discarded somewhere behind her, useless on the uneven terrain.

Eyes wide with fear, the short, slender woman glanced over her shoulder. There was still no sign of Danny, her common-law husband, but Cassie knew he would come.

Danny never let anything that belonged to him get away.

Sweat matted her long, black hair, and her once neat mascara now ran in runnels from her tears. Though never truly beautiful, Cassie was usually careful about her appearance - Danny insisted - but now, she looked like some week-old corpse brought to fearful life.

Dark, vicious bruises stood in stark relief on her pale skin, reminders of Danny's disapproval. The beating she was used to - resigned to but she had committed the last, unforgivable sin. Danny had come home, drunk as usual, and demanded sex, as usual. And, for some reason she still wasn't sure of, Cassie had refused.

Now, she ran blindly through the dry, dead lands of central Nevada, her one, overriding concern to find some sort of help before her drunken lover could find his shotgun and keep his promise to 'shove the fucker up her cunt and let go with both barrels'.

Danny, despite his many flaws, wasn't a liar. If he said he was going to do something - he was. So, Cassie ran.

When the explosion and flash of light came, Cassie simply collapsed bonelessly onto the scorching sand, sure that Danny had caught up with her. It took several seconds for her to realize that, in fact, no spray of double-ought had ripped through her battered, weary body. With a sick helplessness, she lifted her head and looked around. He must have fired a 'warning' shot. He promised to kill her by shoving the gun in her cunt, and so hadn't killed her - yet.

But there was no sign of him.

It took several more seconds to realize that she wasn't going to die just yet. Numbly, she slowly stood and approached the smoking crater that had, magically, appeared a hundred yards to her right.

Due to her slow, unsteady walk, the crater had cooled by the time she arrived at its lip and stared apathetically down into its glassy center. For several minutes she merely stood there, staring blankly at the crater and the small, smooth disk lying in its center.

Finally, she knelt down and lowered herself over the lip of the crater. The uneven glass, still warm, was slick enough that her unresisting body slid to the center of the bowl-shaped depression.

Her leg, outstretched in front of her, made contact with the disk. A wave of...something flooded through her. Her mind, already overburdened, took the simplest way out - she blacked out.

Limply, she collapsed at the bottom of the depression, her unconscious body all but wrapped around the small black disk.

Suddenly, the silence of the desert was broken as the clothes that she wore began to draw taut, then tear, as the body they had contained began to change...

* * * * *

Part I

Power, like a desolating pestilence, Pollutes whate'er it touches

Shelly, Queen Mab, III

* * * * *

Chapter One - The Road

August 2nd, 1998

Sam almost missed seeing her.

The long, empty highway rolling beneath the Caddy's wheels had lulled him into a mild stupor. The desert heat, reflected of the worn blacktop, had beat against the white paint of the 1965 Coupe De Ville as the classic piece of Detroit rolling iron had unwound the miles along Route 50 - the Loneliest Highway in the World.

It was a well deserved sobriquet. Sam had spotted only a single vehicle since leaving Ely, which was also the last outpost of civilization such as it was - for hundreds of miles. That lone vehicle had been a street-rod Mustang, with a trio of college students in it, that had rocketed by fifteen minutes ago. Other than that, the desolation of the road, and the ceaseless, monotony of the desert winds had dulled his usually honed state of attention.

So, he barely caught a glimpse of the girl - he thought it was a girl at least - standing by the side of the road. If not for her dark clothing, contrasting against the surrounding pale sand, he might have missed her completely.

Immediately, Sam's foot eased down on the brake, bringing the heavy vehicle to a smooth stop several hundred yards past the unlikely hitch hiker. Slipping the car into reverse, Sam lay one arm along the back of the seat and craned around. Backing up, he covered the intervening difference and pulled up beside the young woman standing on the gritty shoulder of the highway. He used the master control on the driver's side door to open the electric window on the passenger's side. Leaning over, he eyed the young woman, dressed in jeans and a halter top - both in black, for chrissakes, in the middle of the desert! - before asking the inevitable question.

"Need a lift, miss?"

The young woman paused before answering. Savoring the blast of air-conditioned coolness from the open window, she sized up her 'savior'. Dressed in faded blue jeans and a denim shirt with the sleeves rolled up past his elbows, he couldn't be more than a year or two older than her own age of twenty-three, though his tanned, weathered face added age. She couldn't tell whether his platinum hair was bleached by the sun, or naturally that pale. Even the short sentence he'd uttered clearly revealed his Texan origins in his accent-laced voice.

Running one hand through her short, golden blonde hair, she shrugged. "That depends. You're not a serial killer or axe murderer, are you?"

Sam looked thoughtful. "Well, I ate a big bowl of Corn Flakes this morning, so I 'spose I'm a cereal killer." He told her sincerely. "But I have never, ever murdered an axe."

Taken by surprise, she just looked at him for a second then let loose a clear, trilling laugh. Popping open the door, she waited for Sam to move his worn Stetson from the seat before she slid in, dropping her faded olive-drab back pack on the floor between her feet.

Feet clad in black leather boots with a squared-off heel, Sam noticed with bemusement. Dropping the car into gear and stepping on the gas, Sam looked over at his new passenger.

"Sam Calhoun", he said, nodding.

"Jeri Cates." She introduced herself. "Jeri with an 'I'."

Sam decided to indulge his curiosity. "If you don't mind me asking, Miss Cates, what are you doing out here? Not exactly dressed for a long hike in the desert, and there isn't any towns listed on the map for miles."

Jeri smiled wryly. "I got a lift out of Ely with a trucker. A couple miles back he made some advances, and I turned him down. He then said, and I quote, 'Put out or get out.' I got out." She cocked her head at him. "And, it's Jeri, not Miss Cates."

"Fair enough" Sam agreed. He considered his passenger's story. Although she was cute, in a tomboyish sort of way, her figure wasn't exactly outstanding - the halter top showed an about average bust, and her waist was a little too wide above hips a little too narrow. From her appearance - and her road-wise attitude, - Sam was sure that she hadn't led the trucker on. Sam detested the sort of man who'd pull such a stunt, and indulged in second's imagination of what he'd like to do to such a man.

"So, where you heading?" Sam asked pleasantly.

Jeri shrugged. "To wherever you are, I guess. I'm kind of between jobs right now, and I'm looking for work." She turned in the seat and regarded him. "What about you?"

Sam smiled. "Samuel Hill Calhoun, Laramie County Sheriff, at your service, ma'am." He mimed tipping a hat. "You're a cop?" Jeri asked, raising an eyebrow. "A little out of your jurisdiction, aren't you?"

Sam shrugged good naturedly. "Well, even us Texan cops take vacations. The preacher at the church railed so hard about the sins of gambling, I figured I should see what all the hollering was about. So, I'm heading for Vegas to see..." He broke off suddenly, leaning forward over the Caddy's wheel. The big car began to slow.

Jeri turned forward and peered out the windshield. She spotted what Sam was looking at immediately. About fifty feet from the road, sunlight sparkled off chrome. A few feet from that, a dark hump was slowly pulling itself erect.

"Why don't you wait in the car, Miss?" Sam suggested as he pulled the Caddy off the road in a plume of dust. She was bemused to note the sudden tone of authority in his previously easy-going voice. In fact, his whole demeanor had changed. Jeri, like most 'Road Runners', had little use for cops of any sort. So, she was surprised by her sudden, and inexplicable, conviction that Sam must be one hell of a good cop.

Reaching across her, Sam popped open the glove compartment and pulled out a small, but well stocked, first-aid kit. Climbing out of the car, he left the driver's door open as he walked quickly towards the man who was just rising to his feet.

"The hell with that." Jeri snorted, climbing out. She moved quickly to catch up with Sam, who glanced once at her wordlessly.

The man, dressed in motorcycle leathers and wearing a full helmet with a lowered visor, was standing over his bike - a Harley-Davidson Softail Classic, Sam noted, - shaking his head. It was only this close that Sam, and Jeri, noticed two things - first, the weathered sign a few feet from the toppled Harley, and the fact that the bike was laying just beside a dirt track that might - if someone had a good imagination - be called a road.

"You okay?" Sam asked, stopping next to the red-and-cream colored cycle.

The man pulled off the helmet, revealing a youthful face with a shock of deep red hair and a matching goatee. Dressed in black leather in the desert, sweat streamed from the man's face in rivulets.

"Yep. Just a few bumps and scrapes." The man replied sourly. He rapped a gloved set of knuckles on the helmet. "Thanks to this thing." He tucked it under one arm.

"You lose control on the turn-off?" Sam asked. The red-haired man looked indignant.

"I do not - repeat do NOT - lose control of my bike." He stated emphatically. "A bunch of hot-rodding yokels decided to make the corner when they were right beside me. I made the turn to keep from getting side-swiped, then had to jump when I almost piled into this damn sign." The man cursed and kicked the grayed post.

Sam's ears perked up. "A metallic blue Mustang? Three kids driving it?" The other man eyed Sam. "Yeah. How'd you know?"

Sam shrugged. "They passed me earlier, going like a bat out of hell." He held out one strong, callused hand. "Sam Calhoun. The young lady there is Jeri Cates."

The red-head smiled thinly. "Will Broadbent. I'd say I'm pleased to meet you, but considering the circumstances..." Sam chuckled briefly. "Can't say I blame you, Mr. Broad..."

"Uh, Sam? Mr. Broadbent?" Jeri interrupted, looking back towards the Caddy. There was a slight tremor in her voice. "I think you should see this."

The two men turned - and gasped.

From beyond the parked car, the sky and horizon were blotted out by a beige wall. "Oh, shit." Will said in a resigned tone.

"What is it?" Jeri asked apprehensively.

"Sandstorm." Sam replied curtly, echoed a beat behind by Will. Jeri's jaw dropped.

Will tapped Sam on the shoulder, and once he had the cop's attention, pointed to the sign that he'd almost run into. The faded boards bore the legend:

REQUIEM 5 Mi.

"There's no town showing on the map." Sam had to shout to make himself heard over the rising wind. "S'probably a ghost town." Will shouted back, pulling his helmet on. "But it's shelter."

The next nearest town was too far to reach before the storm hit. At least the trail purporting to lead to Requiem was heading away from the storm, which might buy them a few extra minutes. Sam nodded, and Will pulled the Harley upright and straddled it.

Grabbing Jeri's arm, Sam half-propelled her towards the idling Caddy. Sliding in behind the wheel, he slammed the doors and turned onto the barely existent road. Shocks bouncing, the heavy, low-slung vehicle followed in the rooster-tail of dust kicked up by Will's bike as they tried to outrun the approaching tempest.

* * * * *

Chapter Two - The Town

August 2nd, 1998

Carl Powell had built the Mustang from the ground up.

He had found the frame and engine in a junk yard, where the vehicle had ended up after it's original owner had rolled it after trying to make a turn too fast. Although the body itself was a write-off, the frame and engine were intact. Buying it for a song, Carl had began to rebuild the vehicle into a 'kick-ass rod', as he put it.

Over the following months, he'd stolen, bought and 'borrowed' the necessary parts to rebuild the car of his dreams. The resulting vehicle, painted a deep, metallic blue, was his pride and joy.

The car was Carl's most prized possession.

"Goddamn piece of SHIT!" Carl yelled in frustration as he pounded on the steering wheel. The muscular black youth stepped on the gas, and the powerful engine howled as the huge rear tires impotently spun in the soft sand. The youth, who usually sported a rich, 'coffee and cream' complexion, had gone an unusual shade of purple with anger.

The tall, thin blond youth in the passenger seat looked over. "Give it up, Carl. She's stuck."

Carl glared murderously at the other youth. "Shut the fuck up, Lee, or Mama Witherspoon is gonna be short one son. Got it?"

The third passenger in the car, a smaller, slender dark-haired boy named Mike LeBrock, wisely decided to end the argument with a little misdirection.

"Hey, Lee, get out will ya?" Mike asked. "I gotta piss like a race horse."

Lee popped open the door and climbed out, allowing Mike to emerge from the car. Mike then turned back and leaned in the door.

"Look, Carl," Mike said reasonably, "We got stuck three feet from the first house in this...town. Why don't we look around for something to stick under the tires?"

Mike was careful to keep everything quiet and reasonable. Carl had a temper that could explode at the slightest pretext. This time, Carl merely glared, then shut the car off and got out.

"Okay, let's take a look around. Maybe somebody left something useful in this shit-hole." Taking the lead, the muscular black walked past the faded sign welcoming them to Requiem.

The tiny town was clustered at the intersection of two roads crossing at right angles. The shops and establishments lined both the roads, trickling out to small, run-down frame houses near the edges of town.

"Man, this place is dead," Lee said with a low whistle. Nothing at all moved as far as their eyes could see.

Mike found something odd about the town - then it clicked. Despite it's apparent abandonment, the town itself was in good repair. It was if the town had only been abandoned a few days ago. He started to point this out to his friends, then stopped. It didn't really matter, and Carl was sure to find a way to make fun of his idea - as usual.

Suddenly, Carl stopped short, which nearly caused Mike to walk into him. The trio stopped, the two white youths glancing curiously at the black.

"You hear that?" Carl asked, turning his head slowly side to side.

The two other youths listened intently, hearing nothing but the mournful howling of the desert wind. None of the trio noticed that the wind was stronger than it had been.

"I don't hear anything." Lee declared. "How bout you, Mike?"

Mike shook his head. "Nope." He turned to Carl. "What is it we're supposed to be hearing?"

Carl looked at his companions contemptuously. "You guys deaf or sumpin? Somebody's playing music around here." The other two listened again, finally shaking their heads.

"Carl, you're crazy. There's nothing to hear." Lee stated. It was a mistake.

Carl whirled quickly, and grabbed the front of Lee's faded T-shirt. "You're a fucking moron. A deaf fucking moron." Pushing the taller youth away, Carl began to stalk off.

Lee made as if to follow, but Mike restrained him. "Let him go. You know he'll be a real asshole until he cools down." Lee glared at the back of the muscular black youth, then sighed. "Yeah."

Mike motioned towards a large brick building at the corner of the intersection. A faded sign declared it to be the 'Driftwood Hotel and General Store.'

"How 'bout a look-see, good buddy?" Mike suggested with a half-grin.

Lee shrugged. "Sure. Might turn up something valuable." Sarcasm laced his voice, but he began moving in that direction.

The tall, weathered, brick building blocked the still-rising - and as yet, unnoticed, - wind as the two boys climbed the steps to the heavy oak-and-glass doors. Surprisingly, they were unlocked, swinging open easily on the bright brass hinges.

The lobby of the building lay in perpetual gloom. The polished wood counter ran along the back wall, beside a steep staircase rising up to the two other floors. To the youth's left, a doorway opened out on the General store.

"Jeez, the place is fully stocked." Lee exclaimed, eyeing the shelves inside the store. The shelves were fully loaded down with a variety of different items.

Mike glanced at the General store thoughtfully. He was really starting to worry. All the little details - the remarkably good condition of the buildings, the oiled hinges on the front door, and now a fully stocked store. Again, it came to him that, despite the lack of populace, the town didn't feel abandoned.

"I got a funny feeling about this place, Lee."

The taller youth shrugged. "Hey, what could possibly happen?"

That was what Mike was wondering, himself. "I think I'm going to take a look around upstairs."

Not looking at the shorter youth, the tall blond waved a hand in the direction of the stairs. "Have fun, man."

Mike watched Lee disappear into the store, then with a growing trepidation, began to mount the stairs to the second floor.

* * * * *

"Well, Texas, I have to say, you know how to show a girl an interesting time." Jeri shouted over the roar of the Caddy's big V-8 engine. She was twisted around in her seat, watching the sandstorm rolling in behind them. The tiny two-vehicle convoy was putting some distance between themselves and the howling wall of sand, but they couldn't run forever.

"Hey, would you rather be still standing at the roadside when this sucker rolled in?" Sam asked with a thin smile. He was trying to keep close behind Will's bike, a task made more difficult by the poor visibility from the plume of dust the Harley was kicking up.

His attentiveness paid off. He couldn't actually see the Harley, but the faint glow of its brake lights gave Sam enough warning to yank to car's wheel to the right. The big car slued around the blue Mustang in the middle of the road, barely slipping past the vehicle. Jeri, unprepared, was thrown hard against the door as Sam fought to keep the big car under some semblance of control.

As the Caddy slid off the poorly defined road, it seemed for a second that it would get stuck in the deeper, softer sand. With a gentle touch and utilizing the massive vehicle's momentum, Sam sledded the car back onto the road and stepped on the accelerator, racing to catch up with Will.

"Hey, you could have warned me." Jeri said, rubbing her elbow. "That hurt."

"Wouldn't have happened if you'd been wearing your seatbelt." Sam said pontifically. He spared a second to smile over at Jeri, then concentrated on driving.

Slowing, the two vehicles pulled up out front of a small building marked 'Requiem Municipal Offices'. Shutting the Caddy off, Sam listened to the ticking of the hot engine, barely audible of the rising wind.

Grabbing her pack, Jeri jumped out of the car. Sam followed suit, pausing long enough to lock the doors.

Will had pulled off his helmet and jacket and was worriedly regarding the encroaching storm. He turned to Sam.

"Either this place is recently abandoned, or everybody's bunkered down for the storm." He shouted, gesturing at the empty streets. "But those asshole who ran me off the road must be somewhere around here. That was their car back there."

"I noticed." Sam replied dryly. "Right now, I'm more worried about finding shelter." He moved towards the municipal offices, the other two close behind him.

* * * * *

INTERLUDE

National Atmospheric and Weather Center (N.A.W.C.) "Hey, John, take a look at this, will ya?"

The tall, serious looking man glanced over his companion's shoulder, then did a classic double take.

"That's not possible." He exclaimed, despite the evidence to the contrary showing on the satellite feed. "There was nothing there half an hour ago, and no fronts anywhere near by."

The seated man shrugged, perplexed. "I know. But there it is."

The other man shook his head. "It's like somebody conjured up a sandstorm in the middle of Nevada."

* * * * *

Chapter Three - The Storm

August 2nd, 1998

Like some malevolent prehistoric beast, the storm roared into Requiem unopposed. Sound and sight were overwhelmed by the sheer fury of the wall of sand carried by vicious winds. Visibility dropped to less than three feet as a preternatural twilight enveloped the small town.

* * * * *

Carl followed the faint sound as it grew louder. When he finally came to a stop from where it seemed to be emanating, an incredulous look spread across his ebony features. Slowly, like a man in a daze, he backed out into the deserted street to re-read the building's sign from a better viewpoint.

THE BOOBY TRAP

Live Continuous Exotic Dancers! NEVADA'S BEST!

GIRLS! GIRLS! GIRLS!

Out of all the things Carl might have expected to find in the apparently abandoned town, this was the last on his list. Moreover, the town wasn't as deserted as it seemed - the heavy, driving bass coming from inside the garish building seemed to indicate somebody was there.

Still stunned, Carl might have stood there for longer if he hadn't heard the growl of engines. Looking back towards the intersection, he caught a glimpse of two vehicles whipping through, heading past the intersection.

He didn't recognize the white Caddy, but the guy on the Harley was the same one he'd run off the road earlier. Carl grinned slightly at the memory.

Luckily, the two vehicles didn't notice him, and continued out of sight. With a slight shrug, Carl headed towards the door of the strip club.

He was only a foot or two away from it when the storm hit. Instantly, everything dimmed as the wall of sand, propelled by a hideously powerful wind, rolled over the down. Immediately, Carl felt the stinging grains of sand, moving at painful velocities, sandblasting against his skin. Quickly, the muscular youth dashed to the door of the club and burst inside.

A wall of heavy, rhythmic music enveloped him. Rubbing the sand out of his short afro, Carl looked around, amazed at what he saw.

The large room was lit dimly except for the spotlights focused on the three stages. On each of the stages, scantily clad women with near-perfect figures gyrated in rhythm to the music, while at least another dozen women, all shapely and attractive, moved around the floor. As far as Carl could tell, there were no patrons in the dimly-lit room, although the poor lighting and private booths may be hiding up to two dozen patrons in the cavernous club.

"Quite the storm out there, isn't it?" A masculine voice sounded by his elbow, and Carl, surprised, whirled to face the speaker.

It was a short, slender man, nattily attired in a tailored, old-fashioned tuxedo. Balding, the man was smiling - rather insipidly - up at Carl.

"Let me show you to a table sir, and get you something to drink." The man's voice sounded - wooden, almost. Like he was an actor mouthing much over-used lines.

"Uh, I just came in to get outta the storm, buddy." Carl said, mentally kicking himself. In his mind's eye, he could see his wallet - in the glove compartment of his car.

"Of course, sir. But it is fairly slow right now, so anything you want is on the house. We have some very fine table dancers available - also on the house, sir."

Again, Carl was struck by the man's slightly off delivery and motions. The idea flitted across Carl's mind that the man acted as if he were stoned or something. But, hell, if the guy was going to provide free booze and women...

"Sure thing. Lead the way." Carl acceded magnanimously. Still bemused, he allowed the shorter man to lead him to a small, private booth with a good view of the three stages. Taking Carl's order, the man wandered off to get Carl's beer.

Smiling, Carl settled into the booth and watched the surprisingly buxom Asian on center stage as she began to remove her bra.

"Enjoying the show?" A voice asked. The instant before he turned, Carl wondered what it was about this shit-hole of a town that gave people the urge to sneak up on other people.

Since he was sitting, he expected to have to look up at the speaker. He didn't expect to have to look way up though.

The speaker was - after a couple of seconds of thought on Carl's part - a woman. Standing at least seven feet tall, she was massively built, her broad shoulders rippling with muscles. She wore no make-up, and her dark hair was a short shaggy mass. Even her voice was determinedly neuter. What made the final decision though was the firm breasts - not overly large - pressing at the front of her unisex khaki blouse. Dangling from her neck was a gold chain bearing a small, black disk. Carl immediately decided the woman was a lesbian.

"Mind if I sit down?" She didn't quite ask, in that same, faintly cold, tone. "Depends." Carl said, narrowing his dark eyes. "Who the fuck are you?"

Her brief smile held no warmth. "You may call me Cassandra. I - run things around here." "Oh, the owner, huh?" Carl said dismissively. "Sit down, then. It's your place."

"Yes. It is." She said, lowering her massive frame into the booth. Almost instantly, the short Maitre d' appeared, placing a bottle of beer at each of their elbows. Carl took a long swig of his.

Cassandra nodded at the woman that Carl had been watching, now topless, on center stage. "Partial to Asians, are you?" Although it was a typical small-talk question, her voice was chilly, and her eyes held a calculating look.

Carl waved a hand. "Naw. She's just got nice tits." Cassandra's eyebrow rose. "You like big tits?"

Carl snorted. "Hey, bigger is better, honey. 'Specially in this line of work. Don't you know the old saying? 'The bigger the tits, the better the tips'."

Cassandra gave another brief, wintry, smile. "No. I hadn't heard that one."

Turning, the hugely muscled woman waved to somebody out of sight. Seconds later, a slender brunette wiggled up to her. "Carl, meet Sindy." Cassandra said.

Carl, eyed the well-endowed young woman, clad in a skimpy silver lame dress. Specifically, the firm, full breasts - at least DDD - stretching the bodice. He didn't notice that Cassandra used his name, even though he'd never offered it.

Like the Maitre D', the stripper's smile and eyes were fixed, as if she was stoned. In a high, and particularly brainless voice, she asked Carl, "Are these big enough for you, bad boy?" She lightly caressed her own bulging bust.

"Well, I guess they'll have to do," Carl sighed theatrically. Talk about service!

Smiling brainlessly, Cindy seated herself on Carl's knees, facing him. Teasingly, she grasped his wrists and guided his hands to her fabric-encased tits. For a couple of minutes she maneuvered his dark hands over the taut fabric, then guided his hands to the shoulder straps. With her still gripping his wrists, Carl eased the fabric down, exposing her firm, milky breasts.

"Nice. On the small side, but nice." Carl teased her, drinking in the sight of her near-perfect bosom. He tried to reach up and fondle them.

His hands didn't move even a fraction of an inch.

Even though Cindy's hand, wrapped around his wrists, were slender, it felt like he had iron manacles holding them in place. In her grip, he couldn't move at all, no matter how much effort he expended.

"What the FUCK!" Carl gasped, staring wildly at the mindlessly smiling stripper. The answer was completely unexpected.

Without warning, the well-endowed stripper's large, pink nipples seemed to explode from her mouth-watering globes. Like flesh-toned tentacles, the now three-foot long nipples shot forward and penetrated the thin fabric of Carl's T-shirt and imbedded themselves in his own nipples.

Carl screamed. Partly due to the pain, of which there was surprisingly little, but mostly from utter shock at the impossible occurrence. He began to struggle wildly, his muscular black body vainly trying to move from the grip of this impossible creature.

Then, the long, pink tentacles joining him to the stripper began to pulsate. Immediately, a strange sensation throbbed through the muscular youth's chest. Stopping his vain attempt to escape, Carl looked down and watched in horror as his T-shirt began to bulge outwards.

His skin began to feel taut as an unfamiliar weight bloomed on his chest. His shirt, weakened by the two holes punched in it at the nipples, began to tear from those points outward as the pressure behind the thin fabric continued to mount.

Then, with a final sound, the shirt gave up the ghost as the two expanding tears met in the center of the shirt. The fabric ripped open across the front, falling in shreds to the side. In the new opening, two firm, round masses of ebony skin burst through.

Already as large as Cindy's, Carl's new breasts were continuing to expand, the dark, silky mounds pressing out from a torso that was suddenly hairless. Already, the twin mounds of mocha breast flesh blocked his view of his hard, smooth 'six pack' abs.

As the horrified youth renewed his useless struggles, his new bust continued to expand. Moments later it tapered off to a stop. With a wet slurping sound, Cindy's nipples withdrew back into her own breasts, and she released the suddenly still black man, and - still with the same fixed, insipid smile - wandered away.

Carl was once more still because he was staring down at his new endowments.

They were easily the largest tits he'd ever seen in his life - and their heavy weight hung from his chest. Amazingly firm, the smooth, round breasts were surmounted by large, thick dark nipples atop small, chocolate-colored areolas.

Although he didn't realize it, a wide, happy smile rode on Carl's face as he stared at his huge, glorious, perfect tits. They were so sexy, and he just couldn't wait to have them fondled, sucked and fucked...

"NO!" Carl screamed, jerking his head. With a tremendous effort of will he fought - and won - against the alien thoughts invading his mind, urging him to accept - to delight in - his massive new tits.

The sudden jerk caused him to tumble from the booth, since he was unaccustomed to the sheer mass of his gigantic new endowments. Cassandra slowly rose from her seat and began to approach Carl.

"Just think." She smirked, "now you can fondle a huge pair of tits whenever you want."

Horrified, the huge breasted young man scrambled backwards on his elbows, propelling himself with his muscular legs. Frantically, he heaved himself upright, fighting to maintain his balance as his enormous tits bobbed and swayed.

Without looking back, he fled from the strip club, Cassandra's mocking laughter following him as he plunged out the door and into the hellish fury of the unleashed sand storm.

* * * * *

Sam watched the storm howl and churn outside the glass doors of the municipal offices for a few minutes, then turned and walked back to the Sheriff's Office, the heels of his cowboy boots clocking hollowly against the tiles.

Jeri, sitting behind the desk with her feet up, was rooting through the desk drawers. She was turning a small, leather bound book over in her hands when she heard Sam returning. Dropping the small book into her pack, she looked up as Sam re-entered the room.

"Well?"

Sam shook his head. "Still going strong."

Will, having shed his overly warm jacket and chaps, was resting on the bunk in the single cell. Now, he swung up, grabbing his stuff as he did so. He began to pull the biker gear on.

"What are you doing?" Sam asked, followed a half beat by a similar question from Jeri.

"I'm sick and tired of waiting around here. I'm going to go for a look at a couple of the closer buildings." The red head replied, his voice muffled by the jacket he was pulling on.

"Are you just plain loco?" Sam asked incredulously. "It's a full blown storm out there!"

Will shrugged. "With my leathers, and helmet, on, the storm shouldn't bother me too much. I'm only going a short distance."

Sam and Jeri watched, searching for a convincing argument, as the biker strode out of the room. A moment later, the sound of the storm rose in volume as the outer door opened, then dropped off again as the door swung shut behind Will.

Jeri waited a few seconds to convince herself that the biker had truly left. She shook her head. "He's crazy. You know that, don't you?" "Yup." He answered laconically, wandering into the cell where Will had lain.

"Aren't you going to go after him?" Jeri asked incredulously. "Nope."

Refusing to meet the blonde's eyes, Sam wandered around the cell, eyes downcast. "For God's sake!" Jeri exploded. "Don't you care?"

The Texan refused to answer the question, and Jeri just stared at him, confused. She'd started to form an impression of the man, and somehow it all seemed out of character for him.

Frowning, and disappointed in another dashed ideal, Jeri turned away.

* * * * *

The instant he stepped out of the door, the storm enveloped him in a cloud.

The flying grains sandblasted across his ebony skin. Carl barely repressed a scream as the high velocity particles whipped across his newly enlarged, and highly sensitive nipples. Clamping his hands over them to protect them caused an incredible burst of pleasure that once more brought lewd images and desires to the surface of his mind.

Staggering like a drunken man, and cradling his grotesque/gorgeous breasts, Carl wandered helplessly through the storm. His eyes were closed to protect them, but it made no difference - once he was more than a couple of feet from the club, everything had become enveloped in an omni-directional beige gloom.

Any sane man would have refused to enter the storm, but at the moment Carl couldn't be considered completely sane. The horror of what had been done to him, and the horror of the desires that tried to claim his mind, had briefly unhinged him. His only thoughts were of escaping that madwoman and her unholy, inexplicable power.

A gust of wind suddenly kicked up, knocking him forward. By sheer luck, he collapsed into the lee of an ancient mail box. Huddled in its meager shelter, he could open his eyes and look around, although he expected there was really nothing to see.

To his surprise - and gratitude, - a dark shadow loomed to his left that could only be a building of some sort. Desperately, He aimed himself at the building and, clenching his eyes shut, launched himself forward.

Needing his hands in front of him, his unrestrained endowments almost threw him off balance as their massive weight shifted. At the same time, the renewed pain of his tortured nipples ripped a thin scream from his throat. As his outstretched hands contacted a coarse brick wall, the black, buxom man began to desperately feel for some sort of entrance.

A wave of relief burst over him as he felt a handle beneath his hand. He pushed with all the power of his muscular body - and the door refused to budge.

A brief second of despair washed through him, and he started to sag backwards - and the door pulled easily towards him. Feeling foolish, Carl pulled the door open and slipped inside the shelter of the unknown building. As the door swung shut, he opened his eyes and looked around.

"Thank God." He whispered.

He was in some sort of athletic store. And he was blessedly alone.

Dusty racks of exercise equipment filled the center of the room, while shoes and exercise clothing lined the walls. Looking around, Carl saw a large sweatshirt that looked like it might fit over his bulging bust, and provide protection.

Walking carefully to minimize the sway and bounce of his huge tits, Carl moved forward - only to stop suddenly. He was passing a mirror.

Helplessly, Carl turned to face the full-length mirror, for the first time seeing the entirety of his new breasts. Until now, all he could see was the upper slope that blocked the ground from view. Now, he saw his massive tits in full view.

The muscular black youth gaped at the image reflected back at him. Thrust proudly from his hairless chest, the enormous, globular masses seemed to defy gravity itself. Their expanse of mocha flesh was smooth and silky, darkening at the areola that supported the thick, dark nipples. His vision seemed to narrow, slowly blocking away the rest of his utterly masculine body, until he was focused on just the vision of the huge, perfect tits.

Slowly - helplessly - Carl's hands rose as if by their own volition. Lightly, they touched his engorged nipples, sending twin bolts of pleasure through his massive endowments. Slowly, he began to caress the smooth, firm mounds.

The reflected sight of strong, masculine hands massaging his huge tits fired alien, lust filled thought in his mind as the manipulation brought pleasure from his new accoutrements. He moaned, low in the back of his throat, and closed his eyes, savoring the sensations emanating from his massive chest...

With a tremendous force of will, he pulled his hands from his tits. Shuddering, he squeezed his eyes closed as he staggered away from the mirror, breathing hoarsely.

Opening his eyes, he fought to keep control of himself. Hurriedly, he moved to the rack and reached for the sweatshirt to cover the terrifyingly tantalizing mounds.

He couldn't.

The thought of hiding - disguising - his huge tits seemed to cause him to lock up. He struggled - unsuccessfully - to fight his need to make his tits enticing.

"GodDAMNIt!" Carl swore, on the edge of tears, as he withdrew his out-stretched hands. He just couldn't force himself to put the baggy sweatshirt on.

He turned, resigned to going topless - and his mind suddenly locked on the sight of a large, fire-engine red spandex crop top. "No..." he moaned, eyes widening. Images of how good his tits would look displayed in the top rampaged through his mind.

Fighting himself, he found, to his horror, that he was moving towards the display rack. For a second he managed to stop his motion - body trembling from the conflict - before, helplessly, he took the crop-top off the rack. Helplessly, he donned the red garment, cursing himself.

It took an effort to pull the stretchy material over the enormous swell of his breasts. The elastic trim at the bottom pulled tight just below his breasts as the taut materiel pushed his breasts inwards and upwards, towards the stretched neckline of the straining top, forming a jaw-dropping view of cleavage.

Helplessly, hatefully, he turned to 'admire' the effect in the mirror.

"Oh, god..." Carl moaned in mixed hatred and lust. Hands shaking, he began to fondle the taut material over his tits. Slowly, one hand slid down to the crotch of his blue-jeans, which was strained by his hard, erect cock.

"I love my tits," Carl muttered, not even hearing himself. "they're so big..."

Moving in unison, his strong hands began to massage his tit and dick, as he slipped farther down the road he feared.

That was the position he was in, coming close to loosing himself completely to his new urges, when the door swung open and a large, dark figure emerged from the storm...

* * * * *

"Shee-IT!" Lee swore, with feeling, as he gazed down at his bony ankles protruding from below the cuffs of the jeans. With a sigh, he released the clenched fist around the waistband, and the denim pants slid down his legs and puddle on his overly large feet.

With a sigh, Lee kicked the pants under the door of the change room, then cautiously glanced out to make sure that Mike hadn't returned. Seeing the coast was clear, he stepped out of the change room, clad only in his briefs and a white T-shirt.

Since the sandstorm had rolled in, the tall youth had amused himself in the General Store, looking over the different merchandise. Extremely - amazingly, - tall and lanky, the blond boy had always had trouble buying clothes that fit. Taking advantage of the stocked store and the solitude, he'd eventually decided to try on some of the clothing. After all, most of his meager supply of cash went into buying expensive, custom made clothing that fit his odd frame.

As usual, it was next to impossible. He was nearly six foot ten, and rail-thin. With his unbelievably thin waist and hips, and pants the right size for his waist were way too short, whereas any long enough were extremely baggy.

Now, with a sigh, he dropped onto a dusty chair and surveyed the pile of discarded clothes that he'd tried on.

"I would pay real money to find just one thing in this whole damn store that would fit." Lee muttered out loud, eyeing the discarded clothing. Sighing, he made one more check of the clothing racks, in case he had missed something the first, second or third times he'd looked.

He'd started to turn away and gather up his own clothing when he stopped.

"Naw..." he said, but continued to stare at the clothing rack. Then with a surreptitious look around, he shrugged his shoulders. "Why the hell not. Nobody's gonna know."

Blushing, he picked up the item and ducked quickly into the change room.

For a second, he just stared at the item he held in his hand. It was definitely not his usual taste in clothing. It was a skirt. A white-leather skirt, to be exact.

With an embarrassed half grin, Lee stepped one foot at a time over the waist band of the skirt, then pulled it up. He looked in the mirror at the result.

As he expected, the waist - designed for a woman - fit his slim body perfectly. His hips, of course, weren't as wide as the designer's intended, and due to his height, the normally knee-length garment hung only to mid-thigh on him.

"What the hell am I doing?" Lee asked himself out loud, eyeing his hairy legs protruding from beneath the skirt's hem. "I look ridiculous."

Shaking his head at himself, Lee stepped from the change room and reached for his jeans. "Actually, I think it looks good on you."

"Shit!" Lee shouted, whirling. His heart trip-hammered in his chest as he looked at the tall, muscular woman leaning casually against a counter, eyeing him.

"Who the fuck... Who are you?" Lee blurted, flushing furiously.

The woman straightened. Lee was impressed - there was very few people who he had to look up to make eye contact with. "Cassandra." The woman said coolly. "I run this place."

Lee gulped. "Look, Miss...uh, Cassandra. I'm sorry, I didn't..."

She waved a hand in dismissal. "Never mind. Like I said, I think it looks good on you. But it's missing something." Lee came back with the only response that leapt to mind.

"Huh?"

Reaching behind the counter she'd leaned upon, Cassandra emerged holding something in one, muscular hand, and dangled it in front of Lee.

It was a pair of white leather platform shoes, with seven-inch spike heels and ankle straps. Lee was usually slow to anger, but now he felt his ire stirring. He frowned at the woman.

"Look, lady, I know how this might look, but don't get any cute ideas. I have no idea what possessed me to put this skirt on, but I'm taking it right off. And I'm not wearing those shoes." He snorted in contempt. "Hell, they wouldn't even fit on my feet, lady."

"Yes. They will." The woman said implacably.

Before the tall, gangly youth could move, he heard a crashing sound behind him. He began to turn, then stopped dead.

A pair of wires had burst from the wall behind him. Like malignant snakes, the whipped forward of their own volition, wrapping themselves around his upper arms. Before Lee could even start to struggle, they hauled him back against the wall and off the ground. A second pair of wires burst from the wall and wrapped around his calves, pinning him spread-eagle to the wall.

"Holy fucking shit!" Lee gaped, jaw hanging loosely.

With a tight, malignant smile, Cassandra approached him...

* * * * *

Will stepped from the fury of the storm and strained, the sound dying behind him as the door swung shut. Almost immediately, he realized he'd missed the Municipal offices in the storm, and was in the shop beside them.

Then his mind registered what he was seeing, and his jaw dropped as he slowly, incredulously lifted his visor.

The plan had been simple. When Jeri had made a trip to the bathroom, the two men had discussed their misgivings about the town. When Sam had revealed that he, like most officers, kept a gun in his car, Will had volunteered to go get it. To keep Jeri from worrying, they'd played out their little scene, - not exactly Oscar winning material, but it had sufficed, - then Will had trotted out to the car and located Sam's 'back-up piece'.

Now, as he gaped wordlessly, he found himself thinking things had just gotten a hell of a lot weirder.

Standing across the store was a muscular young black man - mostly. Because there was nothing either masculine or muscular about the huge, round - and apparently real - tits straining against the tight red crop-top he wore. He was staring blankly at Will, one hand on his breast, the other between his legs.

"What the hell are you?" Will asked, confusion manifesting instinctively as aggression.

Carl stared at the man in motorcycle leathers standing in the doorway. Dimly, he recognized him as the one he had run off the road earlier, but it was buried in the recesses of his divided mind.

Slowly, Carl began to walk towards Will, hands rising. He cupped his tits and pushed upwards, as if in offering. "Please..." Carl moaned, "suck my tits..."

Will shied away from Carl, disgust flitting across his bearded countenance. "Get away from me, you freak." He said, stepping back.

It was the word 'freak' that got through to the true mind of the enormously endowed youth. Realizing what he was doing, Carl dropped his hands and all but leapt back. He collapsed to his knees, shaking.

"Please", Carl begged, "You have to help me. I... I can't control myself. She made me want... She gave my tits and..." He was almost incoherent.

Suddenly, the face of the youth in front of him clicked. He recalled the sudden, brief glance he'd gotten of the driver of the near deadly car. "You're the little shit who tried to run me down, right?"

"Yeah." Carl admitted miserably, head downcast.

Will was sure that he would have noticed if the driver had of had enormous tits when he saw him before. Somehow, the black man had grown them in the intervening hours. He made a snap decision.

"Look, I have someone I think you need to talk to. We want to find out just what the hell is going on around here." Still fighting the urge to have the other man fondle his tits, Carl slowly rose.

"Okay." Carl told Will. "But you ain't gonna like it."

* * * * *

Chapter Four - Trials and Errors

August 2nd, 1998

Carl sat on the bunk in the cell, thinking. Although he wasn't really aware of it, his hands were gently sliding over the swell of his extraordinary bosom as he stared at the back wall of the cell.

"If I wasn't seeing it, I wouldn't believe it." Jeri said quietly, glancing over to where Carl sat. "His story is..."

"Unbelievable?" Sam asked dryly. "Well, I guess we have to believe it." Unconsciously, his hand came to rest on the butt of his pistol, holstered at his hip.

The three stood off to the side of the office, quietly discussing the shocking revelations that the muscular black had sprung on them. After hearing his story, Sam had felt a measure of relief strapping on the holster and gun that Will had retrieved from the Caddy.

Somehow, being armed - even against a threat he had no prior concept of - made him feel more secure.

Jeri had to admit it made her more secure as well. With his tanned face, Texan accent, and choice of clothing, Sam looked the part of a sheriff. What's more, he was once more in 'cop mode' - a calm, authoritative presence, at least giving the illusion of being in control of the situation.

"So, what do we do now?" Will asked, running his hand through his shock of coppery hair. Almost subconsciously, he and Jeri had begun to defer to Sam.

"Well,..." Sam began.

"Hey, I'm getting thirsty. How about somethin' to drink?"

The trio looked up in surprise. Not having dealt with Carl before, his reversion to his usual crass, self-centered self came as an unpleasant shock.

"There's a fountain in the hall." Sam replied, jerking a thumb in that direction. "Help yourself."

Carl stood and headed for the hall, not bothering to thank Sam. He once more held control on his own mind - as tenuous as that hold might be - but forcing himself to focus on his immediate situations - which, at the moment, included a dry throat from the combination of his telling his story, and the dry, hot air borne by the storm that continued to rage outside.

The three travelers watched Carl disappear into the hall, then Sam picked up where he'd left off.

"Well, I think our best bet is to get out of here and find some help. This is just a little outside my area of expertise." "In the middle of a sand storm?" Jeri asked. "Is that safe?"

Sam smiled wryly. "Not really. But, at least it's a known hazard." Will nodded in agreement at that. "So, I say we..." He was interrupted again - this time, by a husky, sexy and definitely female voice from the hall.

"Wadda FUCK!"

Sam pivoted on the heel of his cowboy boot and was in motion before the other two really had time to comprehend what was going on. A heartbeat later, they were pounding behind the Texan.

They almost ran into him as Sam slid to a stop, hands spread for balance. "You okay, Carl?"

Carl was staring in a small mirror above the fountain, and when he turned, they saw what he was staring at. His own lips. Now fuller, softer - and undeniably feminine.

"I took a drink of the fucking water!" Carl said angrily, in a richly feminine voice. "As soon as the water touched my lips, this shit happened! And, when I swallowed, my voice chan..."

Sam blinked in surprise as Carl's look of anger faded into a look of horror as his voice died. The muscular youth's eyes had dropped and were fixed on something.

"Oh, God, no..." Carl moaned in horror, tearing his eyes away. He was obviously struggling for control of himself.

"What..." Will started, only to be hushed immediately by a motion from Sam. Quietly, he guided the trio back into the office.

"Jeri, go find out what's wrong." Sam instructed quietly, but firmly. "Will and I are going to go get the car ready to go. When you're ready bring Carl out. We'll find his two friends, then get the hell out of this damned town."

Unquestioningly, Jeri nodded and disappeared. Will turned to Sam. "Why her?"

Sam started towards the front door. "In case you didn't notice, being near men is real hard for Carl. It makes his... uh,... urges, that much stronger. Now stop askin' dumb questions and come on - the sooner we get the hell outta Dodge, the better."

"Amen to that, brother." Will said with feeling. Then, dropping his helmet into place, he followed Sam out into the storm.

* * * * *

Mike was halfway down the stairs to the lobby when Lee screamed.

For a second, Mike couldn't identify the fact that it came from his best friend since grade school. Never, in his long acquaintance with the lanky blond, had he ever heard Lee emit such a horrified, terror-filled sound.

Mike's first impulse was to dash to his friend's aid. He stifled it immediately - whatever could cause his friend to make such a sound was not a situation to be rushed into.

Slowly, silently, Mike crept down the remaining steps, then carefully sidled up to the open door to the General store, his back pressed firmly against the wall. Carefully, he peeked around the corner.

What he saw astounded him.

Lee was a foot or so off the floor, held tightly in place against the wall of the store by what looked like electrical wires, pulled right out of the wall. Rising to her impressively full height was the most massive, muscular woman - he thought it was a woman - Mike had ever seen. She'd apparently been doing something to Lee's feet, but Mike couldn't see past the woman's bulk to determine what. He already had an idea though - to make Lee scream like that, it must have been some sort of torture - burning Lee's feet with a lighter, for instance.

What happened next surprised Mike - even though it was him who did it. His movements, fueled by sudden, vicious anger, were completely instinctive.

Mike, despite his short, slender build and bookish ways, wasn't the complete nerd. He broke that mold by the one sport he played - and played well. Now, his years of experience as a pitcher came to full fruition.

Stepping into the room in a silent crouch, his hand whipped out and seized a can from the shelf. In the same motion, his arm swung back and he began to straighten.

He didn't throw. He didn't even uncoil. He exploded.

With a force that didn't seem possible, his arm moved in a blur, snapping forward as his entire body pushed forward behind it. This pitch wasn't a lob or a curve - it was a vicious, flat trajectory.

The can (Mrs. Dibbs Blueberry Pie Filling - No Preservatives) hurtled through the air as if propelled by an unseen rocket. Despite its non aerodynamic shape which caused it to tumble it flew with amazing - even eerie - accuracy.

And impacted precisely at the base of the dark-haired woman's skull.

The sound was surprisingly flat - a muffled, meaty 'thud', like hitting a ripe watermelon with the heel of the hand.

'So that's the sound it makes' Mike thought numbly, still trying to grasp what he'd just done. The sound of the woman's limp body falling into a sprawling heap bemused him further - it was nothing like what Hollywood portrayed it to be.

Lee's voice brought him out of his daze.

"Thank God!" Lee said, almost sobbing in relief. "Quick, get me down from here before she wakes up."

Looking around, Mike snatched up a pair of garden shears and sprinted down the aisle, leaping over the prone body of the woman. Dropping (painfully) to his knees, Mike prepared to cut his friends feet free...

...and stopped, gaping at Lee's feet.

It wasn't the shoes. Oh, the sight of a pair of platform shoes, in white leather, with impossibly long, seven inch spike heels and buckled ankle straps was definitely odd. But that wasn't what almost threw Mike into a fit.

It was Lee's feet. Only, they weren't exactly Lee's feet any more.

Slender, shapely and dainty, the feet incased in the ladies sized shoes were undeniably feminine - and attached to Lee's legs by shapely, smooth ankles. Somehow - incredibly - Lee now possessed a pair of delicate, womanly feet.

"What the fuck?..." Mike gasped, staring at the impossible sight before him.

"She...she did it, somehow." Lee said hurriedly. "When she put the shoes on my feet...changed, to fit. But it doesn't matter right now. You have to get me down before she wakes up and DOES SOMETHING ELSE!" Lee was practically shouting now, staring wide-eyed at Cassandra, watching fearfully for any movement.

Hurriedly, Mike used the garden shears to cut his friend free. With the wires cut, Lee dropped the foot to the floor - and promptly toppled over, losing his balance on the thin, slender heels. Mike bent down next to him.

"We'll get these things off of you" Mike said, reaching for the shoes - and stopped.

There was no buckle on the ankle straps. Impossibly, the bands of solid leather cinched tight to Lee's ankles with no way of undoing them, and no room to insert the shears to cut them.

"Fuck it!" Lee swore, struggling to rise. Mike helped him up.

"Come on, we have to get out of here!" Lee said. It was easier said than done - Mike had to half-support his taller friend as the gangly youth tottered in the unfamiliar footwear.

Lee explained what had happened to Mike as they walked. Mike had a hard time believing it - but, there was Lee's feet...

Finally, thoroughly frustrated by their lack of rapid progress, the two friends reached the back door of the hotel. Bracing themselves, the two men opened the door, which was torn from their grasp by the wind, then ventured out in the storm.

Back in the store the hugely muscled woman - who had never quite lost consciousness - slowly staggered to her feet.

* * * * *

"Carl? Carl, are you alright?"

The muscular black youth ignored the white bitch behind him as he crouched, close to the wall, trying to regain control of himself. What did she expect - that he was going to admit that for several seconds he was fantasizing about taking the dumb-shit redneck's cock out of his pants and wrapping his full soft lips around...

Hurriedly, Carl pushed the thought away before it could fully form. He was breathing heavily - almost panting - as he struggled to regain control. Finally, he managed a semblance of his normal self - mentally, at least - and slowly stood up.

Without taking to Jeri, he pushed past her and headed for the door. She trotted behind him, a concerned expression on her face.

Carl didn't even notice that the sway and bounce of his mammoth tits now felt completely natural to him - as if he had always experienced it.

"Carl, what the hell..." The anger that was entering Jeri's voice was swept away with the rest of her words as Carl burst through the door without breaking stride, and into the full fury of the storm.

Slitting his eyes against the violence of the storm, Carl strode smoothly forward, his muscular legs propelling him. Jeri struggled to stay with him.

Carl found Sam leaning half-in the back door of the Caddy. Of Will, there was no sign. Although he could be just a few feet away, the storm swallowed him without a trace.

Without slowing, in one continuous motion, Carl came up behind the Texan, who was still unaware of Carl's presence, and pulled the heavy revolver from its holster.

Feeling the gun leave his hip, Sam started to pull out of the car. He never got a chance.

With all the strength in his brawny arms, Carl pistol-whipped Sam behind the ear, knocking him unconscious. Quickly he spun and pointed the gun at the suddenly wide-eyed woman just behind him.

"Get in." He ordered. Jeri, her face now a mask of anger and confusion, pushed Sam the rest of the way into the rear seat, and climbed in beside his limp body. Immediately, she checked his pulse, sighing with relief at its rapid, but strong, beat.

Slamming the rear door, Carl climbed in behind the wheel of the big white land-yacht. "Fuck everyone else." He whispered to himself. "I'm getting the fuck out of here."

Finding the keys in the ignition, Carl started the car, revving the engine a couple of time to make sure it was running smoothly. Then, he dropped the transmission into reverse, and stomped on the accelerator.

The motor's roar as Carl tested it saved Will's life.

He was only a few feet away while this drama was being played out - about three feet behind the car, to be exact. Having shoveled the accumulated sand from the back tires, he'd just finished removing the drift behind the big car when, faintly, he heard the motor's usually bass roar.

So, he was already leaping to the side when the rear end of the heavy vehicle materialized out of the gloom, rocketing backwards.

The big Caddy swept by him by mere inches, and Will was rewarded one startled, incomprehensible glimpse of Carl behind the wheel, before the car vanished once more into the murky veil of sand.

Cursing loudly, the sound of his own oaths reverberating within the confines of his helmet, the disorientated biker began to grope around, searching for shelter.

* * * * *

Carl swung halfway around in the seat, the revolver gripped in his left hand as his other hand held the wheel. "Try anything stupid, and I blow both your brains out." Carl said coldly. Jeri, fuming, had no choice but to nod.

With the sand cutting visibility to nearly nothing, Carl couldn't afford to attempt turning the car around. Instead, he continued to peer out the rear window - uselessly - and concentrated solely on keeping the wheel steady, so that the dangerously fast vehicle was baking up in a reasonably straight line.

He had barely a second's warning. The front end of his prized Mustang had barely appeared before the Caddy, traveling at 35 miles per hour in reverse, smashed into it.

"God fucking DAMN!" Carl yelled as he bounced in the seat. The gun was whipped out of his hand just before the muscular youth rebounded forward, his huge tits causing the horn to blare.

Pulling himself off the wheel, Carl looked instinctively to the rear-view mirror - and saw the muzzle of the .44 Magnum lining up on his skull in Jeri's steady hand. Her face, behind the sights, was a mask of rage.

Discretion is the better part of valor. Kicking the door open, Carl dived from the Caddy just as the gun went off.

His left ear simply surrendered, and stopped working. The muzzle blast of the powerful handgun had been less than two inches from his ear, temporarily deafening him.

Even if he had perfect hearing, the howl of the wind was too strong to hear the almost musical tinkle of broken glass as the heavy slug smashed through the windscreen, allowing the full fury of the storm into the Caddy's interior.

Half blinded, exposed skin stinging from the onslaught of the flying sand, Carl staggered off in a random direction, and was instantly swallowed up by the storm.

* * * * *

"Damn, that was STUPID!" Jeri yelled to her self, eyes clenched from the sand howling through the empty opening that, moments before, had been the front windshield.

Awkwardly, Jeri climbed over the seat into the front and slammed the driver's door shut. It took her several seconds to realize the engine was still running - she couldn't hear it above the storm.

Thanks to the fact that it was a rear-end collision, the big luxury car was still able to drive. The only problem was, to where?

The impact had knocked both vehicles off-kilter, so there was no chance of simply driving forward and ending up where she had started. And, since she couldn't see more than three feet - barely past the end of the Caddy's hood - she couldn't see where the road was.

It took exactly one glance at the blood running from Sam's head for her to make up her mind.

Saying a brief prayer for - and apology to - Will, Jeri cranked the wheel, slipped the car into drive, and headed in a straight line. With no idea where she was going, the heavy car swayed and bounced over the desert as Jeri pushed it faster - her only hope was to drive through the storm and break into clear weather.

Quickly the car was swallowed in the storm, as the sun slowly sank into evening.

* * * * *

Part II

There is no excellent beauty that hath not some strangeness in the proportion. Francis Bacon, Essays: Of Beauty

* * * * *

Chapter Five - Carl

August 3rd, 1998

The gray-predawn sky gave way to a riotous profusion of golds, oranges and scarlets as a gorgeous desert dawn broke over the Nevada badlands. Of the storm from the day before, no trace remained in the gentle winds rolling across the floor of the desert.

Slowly, a large mound of sand in the bed of a stripped, rusted out pickup truck began to stir. Like a behemoth rising from the murky depths, a figure rose from the shifting dune.

Carl moaned as his stiff body was forced into motion, and slowly rose to his feet. Blinking, he looked at the shelter of last night as one hand idly scratched at the taut red fabric over one enormous tit.

Lost in the fierce storm the night before, he'd chosen a direction to move in based on one simple factor - keeping his back to the wind. Doing so lessened the damage possible from the blowing sand. So, driven by the storm from behind, he stumbled blindly onward. As the darkness had fallen, so had visibility, until he was walking in a pitch-black maelstrom.

After walking for what felt like hours he'd literally stumbled onto a hard, metal object in the darkness.

Unable to see what it was, he'd felt around until he'd discovered a slightly shelter location with metal sides. Climbing up. He'd huddled in the lee of one of the sides, and drifted into a fitful sleep.

Although he didn't remember, all night long he'd been haunted by erotic nightmares, in which he'd found himself performing erotic sexual acts on well-endowed men. In his dreams he'd enjoyed every second of this orgy.

Now, with the unremembered dreams crawling around unnoticed in his psyche, he looked at the abandoned truck he'd spent the night in.

"Fuck." Carl muttered disgustedly in his rich, feminine voice, walking around the vehicle. The darkness had kept him from recognizing it for what it was last night, and he'd curled up in the bed, when only two feet away was the enclosed cab with a worn, torn - but still much more comfortable - bench seat.

Turning away from the rusted-out vehicle, he looked up at the morning sky. Already, the appearance of the sun was causing the temperature to rise, and Carl knew that it would soon reach the point where it could be a real threat.

Looking around, all he could see was flat, open desert, all directions looking identical from his point of view. He sat on the tailgate and considered which way would be the best way to go.

He'd run into the side of the truck last night. So, he didn't want to backtrack - he shuddered at the thought of returning to that accursed town.

After careful consideration, he decided to walk straight off from the back of the pickup truck. The abandoned relic must have come from somewhere, and Carl hope that whoever had left it here had driven in a reasonable straight line. If so, walking straight back from the truck should backtrack the truck's path to where ever it had come from.

His decision made, Carl began walking. Almost immediately, he discovered he wasn't going to be able to keep his usual, fast pace - the long strides from his muscular legs caused his enormous tits to bounce and sway almost painfully. Slowing, he walked at a more sedate pace, looking back over his shoulder now and then to assure himself he was walking in a straight line.

Time passed - an hour swept by on his watch, every minute seeming to mark another degree rise in the temperature. Already, Carl was sweating heavily, and his mouth was beginning to feel dry. The truck was dwindling away to nothing in the distance, and he had to use his own line of foot prints in the sand to try and hold course.

He also discovered several new things about his altered body.

Sweating did...interesting things to his tits. Slicked with the salty liquid, they began to shift more in their spandex enclosure, causing his highly sensitive nipples to rub across the fabric. Each step he took caused his swollen nipples to move, and emit a small, but definitely noticeable sensation of pleasure. He literally had to force himself not to play with his aroused, enjoyable tits. He cursed himself for enjoying the sensations.

On the other hand, his new, fuller lips were suffering from the dry, hot air. More sensitive than his own lips, they were chapping painfully. Every time sweat would roll across them, the muscular youth would flinch from the sting of the salty liquid.

As the sun continued to rise in the sky, Carl continued onwards. His mind, deprived of fluids for more than twenty-four hours and lulled by the monotony of the surroundings, began to wander. The first couple of times he caught himself, but soon was walking in a dreamlike daze, unconnected from the real world.

In his mind's eye, he saw himself walking up to a highway in the desert. A long, white limo pulled to a stop, and the handsome man in the back opened the door and let him in...

In the real world, Carl stumbled over a rock, knocking his shoe off. Still in his own dream, with a dazed smile on his face, he stumbled forward a few feet, then mindlessly kicked off the second shoe and continued on, not feeling the scorching sand beneath his bare feet.

...to the back of the car. The man handed Carl a tall, cold beer, and Carl sank into the leather upholstery. As he sipped at the cool, refreshing liquid, the man began to fondle Carl's huge tits as Carl leaned over and gave the man a deep, passionate kiss, their tongues intertwining. Soon, Carl was bending down, his full, soft lips opening to envelope the man's...

With a start, Carl savagely pulled himself from his fantasy/nightmare. He was laying on his back in the sand, his crop-top rucked up over his tits. One ebony hand was massaging his massive globes. The other was at his crotch, stroking his rock-hard dick. His pants were down around his knees.

"Fuck!" Carl croaked through a dry throat. It took a tremendous amount of will power to pull his hands away and stop the intensely pleasurable sensations from his chest and crotch. Climbing to his bare feet, he had to suppress a scream. His feet were raw and burned. Tucking his cock into his pants, Carl looked around for his missing footwear.

There was no sign of them. Lost in the dream world, he'd walked far past them in his daze. However, he got a shock when he turned to face his direction of travel.

A few hundred yards away lay an empty, weathered clapboard house, its paint long faded from the beating sun.

Walking gingerly on his bare feet, Carl headed for the ramshackle building, every step causing bolts of agony from his injured feet. It seemed to take forever to reach the abandoned building and collapse in the welcome shade of its porch.

After resting his tired, sweaty body on the cool, rough boards of the porch, he reluctantly forced himself to his feet. Aching all over, he approached the front door, and hopefully twisted the worn, brass door knob.

Locked.

Never one for subtlety, Carl used his elbow to smash the begrimed pane of glass beside the door. Reaching through, he felt around until he felt the lock, and twisted it.

The door opened with a protest of unoiled hinges, and Carl unenthusiastically surveyed the barren entranceway. Motes of dust dance in the beams of desert sunlight spilling in the uncurtained windows. Slowly, Carl crossed the threshold, allowing the door to swing shut behind him. Trying to spare his feet - an impossible task - Carl slowly made his way to the kitchen. Eagerly, he approached the not-so- stainless steel sink and twisted the cold faucet open.

Nothing. Not even a rattling of pipes. Stunned, Carl stood there for a second, then tried the hot water, followed by jiggling both knobs. For good measure he also slapped the faucet, earning him nothing but a sore hand.

"God DAMN it!" the muscular black cried in his throaty voice. It hadn't occurred to him that in the desert, no abandoned building would continue to have running water.

With great unenthusiasm, he began to poke through the other rooms of the small frame dwelling. Whoever had owned this place before had apparently left in a hurry - most of the furnishings and personal effects still lay where they'd been, even such things as empty pop cans, and a very old ham sandwich, desiccated by the dry, dessert heat until it had all but mummified.

Finally, with a grimace, Carl painfully mounted the stairs to the second floor, hope dying slowly in him. He wanted - he needed - something to drink.

It didn't take too long for the black youth to determine that, like downstairs, there was a severe dearth of liquids in the abandoned home. Wearily, Carl hobbled into the master bedroom, and with an angry, defeated sigh, dropped onto the large bed...

...and tumbled onto his back as the bed sloshed.

For a second, Carl lay there, stunned at the revelation that it was a water bed, it's contents protected from dehydration by the impermeable plastic casing. Then, frantically, the muscular man tore at the sheets and dug around the mattress, searching for the filling nozzle. Finding it at the bottom, right hand corner, he unscrewed the cap and literally ripped the stopper from the inch-wide opening.

With him on the bed, the contents were under pressure, provided by his not inconsiderable weight. The lukewarm, musty water in the mattress leapt up like a fountain, soaking his head and shoulders as he gulped greedily at the water.

Long imprisoned, the water was tepid, with a thick, cloying plastic taste and a rather unsavory odor. At the moment, it was the most wonderful thing Carl had ever tasted.

Gulping madly until his thirst was sated, Carl finally stopped to take a deep breath. For several seconds, he stared downwards, before what he'd done to himself registered.

Long, glorious waves of black hair framed his vision as he stared down. The box had contained the excess water, and he was kneeling in several inches of water, staring down through the clear liquid at his submerged hands.

His slender, feminine hands with their long, curved nails.

"Oh, FUCK!" Carl screamed in his high, feminine voice, practically levitating out of the sloshing, water filled box. He berated himself. "You fucking stupid ASSHOLE!"

Looking down, he found he was soaked from just above the knees downwards, and from his enormous tits upwards. Below the cuffs of his jeans, a pair of undeniably feminine feet peaked, confirming his worst fears.

"God FUCKING damn!" Carl swore again. He turned and walked over to the large, dusty mirror in one corner - noticing, as he did so, that at least his feminized feet no longer hurt.

The image that stared back at him from the mirror looked like a woman. A slim-hipped, somewhat wide waisted woman with enormous tits, defining a whole new meaning to 'top-heavy'.

He still retained his same skin coloring, a 'coffee and cream' complexion. But the skin that supported the melanin the made that hue was now softer, silkier.

His face was altered beyond recognition. Masses of glorious, wavy hair framed a face with high cheeks and a strong yet graceful jaw perched atop a swan-like neck. His nose, smaller and slightly upturned, sat between two wide, long lashed eyes, which in turn were topped by a pair of thin, curving eyebrows. Below the nose lurked a full, feminine mouth that was frankly inviting.

Although his arms remained muscular, they were more rounded, more feminine despite their obvious strength. His shoulders were considerably narrower, and made his already enormous tits look that much larger on his frame.

The sight of this huge-breasted black woman was too much. The implanted desires in his mind sprang to life, erasing coherent thought. Helplessly, Carl all but tore his clothes off as one long-fingered hand wrapped around his painfully hard cock. Helplessly, he began to jack off to the mirror image as his other hand began to fondle his huge, dusky tits.

* * * * *

Seven and a half hours later, Carl was sobbing in pain as he continued, helplessly, to jack off to the image in the mirror - or try to. His red, sore cock was limp and unresponsive under his new, slender, feminine hands, and the agony was intense. But, he simply couldn't stop. A part of his altered psyche demanded that he continue.

Finally, in sheer desperation, he made himself move. Hand still on his throbbing, screaming cock, he stumbled back to the waterbed and collapsed into it, allowing the water to finish the transformation.

Immediately, cool, blessed relief washed over him as his cock retracted, vanishing to be replaced with a new, perfectly formed cunt as his ass, waist and thighs finished transforming, leaving him the very image of a sexy black woman.

The move had been one of desperation, to end the burning pain. Now, able to think clearly again, he - she - realized just what she'd done.

"Holy shit I'm a woman!" Carl gasped, staring down at the folds of his new cunt. Horrified, she sprang from the bed, disgusted at what she'd done to herself. But it was too late to do anything about it now.

Right now, she had no fear of Cassandra. She'd already turned him into a woman, and the worst she could do now was kill her. Although she toyed with the idea of killing herself, she didn't want it to be by long, painful dehydration. So, come hell or high water, she was going back for her car.

She started tossing the room for something to wear. Her lips curled in a grimace when all she could find was a pair of black stretch pants, and a pair of black platform shoes with a seven inch spike heel. With a resigned sigh, she slipped the items on, along with the red crop-top, and headed out, disgusted to find she swayed easily - and erotically - atop the heels.

She stopped long enough to dig up a couple of empty plastic jugs. Filling them with the last of the water from the bed, she carried them with her as she went down the stairs, high-heels clicking on the wood.

Leaving the deserted house, she picked up her trail of footprints, and began back-tracking towards Requiem, and her car.

* * * * *

Chapter Six - Where There's a Will There's a Mike and a Lee, too.

August 3rd, 1998

The gray-predawn sky gave way to a riotous profusion of golds, oranges and scarlets as a gorgeous desert dawn broke over the Nevada badlands. Of the storm from the day before, no trace remained in the calm, warm air.

Deep in the sub-basement storm shelter of a empty store, three figures began to stir to life. The first to waken fully was the tall blonde who slowly stretched - then swore loudly, fully rousing the other two.

"Lee? What's wrong?" Mike asked fearfully, eyes darting around looking for Cassandra. After the two had fled the store, they'd literally run into Will, who, with his helmet, was the only one with any visibility. Joining forces, they'd located this sub-cellar, where Lee and Mike had been filled in, including what had happened to their black friend. After apologizing profusely to Will for their friend's behavior, they'd curled up for a night of fitful sleep.

"I... I got a..." Lee stammered, red faced. "The changes they kept happening."

The other two men gathered around the third. Only, Lee was no longer fully male. During the night, the change had continued up his legs, having reached his waist. Now, his waist was remarkably slender over full, womanly hips and a firm, sexy ass that filled out the leather skirt.

But what bothered all three the most, but especially Lee, was the fact that his briefs hung baggy and loose at the crotch. Lee had slid one hand into them and verified the worst - replacing his cock was the wet, warm folds of a fully-formed vagina.

Will's face hardened, and he looked away. "That bitch..." he muttered angrily.

Mike also averted his eyes from his friends new womanhood. "I still don't know how this could be happening. It isn't possible!"

"Maybe not" Lee retorted. "Tell that to my cunt. It certainly seems to think this is real!" Then he blushed. "Sorry, man. I didn't mean to..."

Mike shook his head. "Hell, if I woke up with my cock gone, I'd be a little irritable too, buddy."

"Well, if we don't find a way to get out of town without that freak seeing us, maybe you will wake up one morning with a cunt." Will said bluntly, drawing their minds back to the problem at hand.

"So? What do we do?" asked Mike, wearily. "Sneak out? We have no idea where she could be." Then, after a pause, he answered his own question. "If the option is staying in town and waiting to get caught..."

"Exactly." Will agreed. "What I propose is simple - we split up. Each of us picks his own route to get to the Mustang..."

Lee cleared his throat, interrupting Will. "Uh... Carl's got the keys, not us. Getting to the car won't help - unless you know how to hot-wire it. Neither of us do."

Will grimaced. "Not a skill I've ever picked up either. Okay, we'll have to revise that plan then. I still say we should split up - that way, she can't get all of us at the same time. Each of us then tries to make it out of town, any way we can. Steal a car, a bike, run for it - I don't know."

Mike cocked his head, a faint grin on his face. "Personally, I was going to..."

Will threw up a hand. "Stop! I don't want to hear it. If I get caught, I can't possibly tell her anything if I don't know it. It's safer that way." "He's right, Mike." Lee agree.

The three looked at each other, solemnly. "And if one of us does escape? Do we send back help?" Mike asked.

Will shook his head, his face set. "No. We don't want to lead anyone else into that woman's power. When we leave - we never, ever come back."

Silently, the three of them shook hands, then Will picked up his gear and silently slipped out, vanishing from view. Twenty minutes later, it was Mike's turn. He paused to pat Lee on the back, then he, too, snuck silently away.

Twenty minutes after that, the sub-basement was once more quiet and empty.

* * * * *

Lee crept silently through the deserted Sporting Goods store laying above the sub-basement he'd hidden in. Stopping now and then, to make sure he was unobserved, he gathered the items he wanted from the racks, then silently moved on - as best he could with his long, sexy, feminine legs ending in feet wearing high-heel shoes that tip-tapped on the wooden floor. Finally, having everything he wanted, he began to silently mount the stairs, carefully negotiating the two sets until he reached the roof of the building.

Dropping his bundle, he sat on the hot surface and stared down at himself. The changes had continued working their way up, and he watched with anger as his white T-shirt was stretched out by the pressure of the breasts that were growing to fill it. After a few moments, the growth stopped, and he hesitantly lifted the shirt to reveal his new endowments.

Only slightly larger than average, the perky, conical breasts were firm, tipped with large nipples. Even a light touch sent a shiver of pleasure through them. Hastily he dropped his shirt back into place, and set to work, eager to leave this accursed town.

By the time he was completely ready, the changes had completely claimed his...her body. The person who would be leaving wouldn't really be the same person who'd arrived.

The new Lee was a remarkably tall blonde. Slender, with a miniscule waist, the blonde had the longest, sexiest legs the world had ever seen, and a mind-boggling ass to match. Her face was coldly beautiful, her features even and precise, but possessing a certain haughtiness. A halo of hair the color of summer-gold wheat framed the face.

But Lee had no time to dwell on her transformed body at the moment. With a triumphant smile, She hefted her constructed kit. A hang glider.

Without waiting, never hesitating, she hefted the glider and began to run towards the back of the roof, moving as fast as she could while perched atop seven inch spikes. Reaching the edge, she coiled her powerful, long legs, and leapt into space.

The glider, burdened with her weight, sank one of the three stories, then, slowly leveled out - and started to slowly rise, buoyed by the thermals rising from the searing desert sands. The colorful nylon and aluminum aircraft, moving at just over nine miles an hour, slowly winged it's way over the desert.

It was a flight that couldn't last for long. Without a power source, the glider began to loose speed. The slight climb leveled out, then began to sink. The town was still faintly visible by the time that the glider sailed in for an awkward landing, sending Lee sprawling upon the hot sand. Carefully, he stood - and heard a hard, feminine laugh. Startled, he spun - and gaped. Standing a few feet away was a black woman, from whose chest thrust - hell, almost exploded - the most enormous breasts Lee had ever seen on a woman.

"Lee, that was the saddest damn landing I've ever seen." She said, laughing unpleasantly. Lee, stunned, stared wide-eyed at the hugely endowed black woman. "Ca...Carl?"

Carl snorted. "Who else would I be, jack-ass." She looked Lee up and down. "Nice legs, bro. Even as a woman, you're the tallest, skinniest person I ever saw - I knew it was you the first second I saw you."

"What...what happened? What are you doing out here - I thought you got away."

Carl shook her head. "Not exactly. Besides, I'm heading back for my 'Stang. I ain't leaving it." Lee shook her head. "You not really going BACK, are you?"

Carl snorted. "Yeah. And you're coming with me, Lee."

"No FUCKING way. I just got away from that bitch. If I go back and she catches me, she might " Lee trailed off, and tried to think of something terrible a person with her power might do. But, she'd already turned her into a woman. What else could she do that would be worse?

"Yeah Okay, let's go." Lee agreed, realizing that she really didn't have much to lose.

The two new women, each balanced atop seven inch heels, wiggled and swayed their way towards town.

* * * * *

Mike moved slowly and cautiously along the back of the buildings. He took his time - sometimes spending twenty minutes at a time behind a piece of cover, ensuring his movements were unseen.

So, he was only three-quarters of the way to his destination when he watched the glider swoop away in the desert. His heart lifted at the sight of Lee glide off into the desert. Not only was one of them free of this accursed town, but if that bitch was anywhere around, she'd be distracted by that. Carefully, Mike edged his way forward, sticking to every bit of cover that existed as he made his way towards the last building in the row.

Arriving, he checked the back door, and was pleasantly surprised to find it unlocked. Carefully, he eased into the building, and moved silently through.

The room he wanted was a large, dark, cavernous are - and, with a grin, Mike found what he wanted, leaning against one wall. He'd picked the small Gas-station with it's two-bay garage in hops of finding a vehicle in the bay. In a garage, he was sure to, if not find the keys, then find tools that would allow him to by-pass the ignition, given time.

But he'd never counted on the good fortune of finding a dirt bike leaning against the wall. A quick check showed that the knobby tires were firm with air, and the gas tank was full, or nearly so. The only thing left was to wheel it out, and give it a start - and pray that it ran. With a smile, he began to wheel the bike towards the back door.

"Leaving so soon?" A coldly humorous voice asked, and Mike jerked to a stop, heart pounding, as he looked up into the face of Cassandra. Oddly, a hint of humor glinted in her eye, as well as the cold hatred he'd expect.

"Oh...shit." Mike said resignedly, letting the dirt-bike lean back against the wall. His shoulder's slumped.

"Well, well, well. You certainly had fight in you when you hit me from behind." Cassandra said, looking at him scornfully. "But, face to face, you're not nearly so brave."

Mike sighed, his body loose and slumped. "What could I possibly do to..."

And, in mid-sentence, his arm came up in a short, viscous swing, holding the wrench he'd kept hidden behind his arm....

...which promptly turned into a licorice stick by the time it reached Cassandra. Laughing, she plucked the confection from Mike's fingers, and began to chew on it.

"Oh SHIT!" Mike repeated, with considerably more feeling. He squared his shoulders and faced her. "Alright, do your worst. You may have caught me, and you may have all these powers - but I'm not afraid of you. I can take anything you can dish out." Cassandra raised one eyebrow. "Oh, really?" she asked mockingly. "Let's find out, shall we?"

Mike didn't like the gleam in her eye...

* * * * *

Chapter Seven - The Return

August 3rd, 1998

Lee and Carl approached the forlorn vehicle resting just outside down. The two women were looking at the vehicle with different expression - awe and fear were plain on Lee's face, while Carl's face was a mask of rage.

"That BITCH!" he said, surveying what she'd done to his beloved Mustang. "Man, I'm gonna kill her ass." The Mustang was still a Mustang - that hadn't changed. But, many other things had.

The car was now a convertible. The desert sun beat down on the new interior - a white plush velvet and leather. The car's exterior paint had changed from a deep, metallic blue to a hot, gloss pink. As a final insult, a massive bra, big enough for Carl's enormous, firm tits - for a second, she felt an urge to see what that bra would look like....

Wrenching her mind from the thought was hard, but her deep, simmering anger helped. Taking a deep breath, she turned to Lee. "It ain't my car anymore, but it's transportation. Let's get the hell out of here."

"You bet " Lee started - to be overridden by a voice that sent a shiver down her back.

"Oh, you can't leave yet. You'll miss the 'festivities' I have planned."

The two transformed women looked up into the cold face of Cassandra, opening their mouths for retorts - and instead, felt a blinding overwhelming need to obey her. They struggled to fight it - in vain. Helplessly, they trailed after the huge, muscled woman as she led them down towards the Booby Trap, and into its darkened interior.

Slowly, their eyes adjusted to the gloom of the empty club. The heavy, pulsing music continued to beat away, and a lone figure gyrated on the main stage.

"Why don't you get to know my newest dancer, Lisa?" Cassandra said - and instantly, Lisa was the only name she would ever answer to again. As if in a daze, the tall, leggy blonde began to move towards the stage. Cassandra watched her go with a smile.

"All right, Carla, follow me." She told the massive-breasted black woman, now and forever known as Carla. "I have something different for you."

Helplessly, Carla followed Cassandra into a back room. Fairly large, it seemed cluttered. In the center lay a huge bed, draped in black and red silk sheets. Surrounding it was a variety of camera equipment, sound equipment and lights, run by a group of men that all wore the same, stoned look as the Maitre D' had.

"Gentlemen, I'd like to introduce you to the star of the picture, Carla Cleavage." Cassandra announced grandly. Turning to Carla, she smiled wickedly. "I think it's time for you to get to work, my dear."

With those words, Carla's vision seemed to narrow. Everything seemed to fade out - except for the figure reclining on the bed.

Wearing the same stoned expression, the man was an exact duplicate of Carl, the same face, the same muscular build - but, thrust proudly from his crotch was an enormous, throbbing cock, easily three times the size that the real Carl's had been when he was a man.

And it was the sight of that enormous, swollen cock that tripped all the circuits in Carla's altered brain. Helplessly, hopelessly, she moved towards Carl, an 'eager' grin on her full, ripe lips.

Carl rose to meet her, his strong hands grabbing her full, firm ass as he pulled her close to him and pressed his lips against hers. Helplessly, she moaned as he massaged her ass, and 'hungrily' kissed him with fevered passion, her long tongue entwining with his as he pulled her towards the bed. She moaned again, feeling his huge hard-on pressing against her leg. She literally tore her crop-top off, offering her enormous tits to him, and he complied, his hands fondling the smooth, mocha surface as his lips came down to tease and suck her huge, swollen nipples.

Gasping at the pleasure that flooded her body, Carla made one last effort to pull away - and failed. Helplessly seductive, she slowly slid to her knees, kissing Carl's body as she went. Helplessly, her long-nailed hands wrapped around his massive, thick cock, as her full, soft lips enclosed its head. With skills recently implanted in her, she began to bob her head along the length of his massive shaft, her tongue swirling over the massive head that filled her mouth. Her hands worked on the shaft expertly, as moans sounded low in her throat.

She was programmed to love sucking cock, and helplessly, she found herself enjoying every sickening, disgusting second of it. It didn't take long to bring him to the edge - and beyond. His hot, salty cum flooded her mouth, and she eagerly gulped the vile liquid, her brain reeling with the sheer power of the most wonderful taste she'd ever known.

"Cut!" a voice shouted, and 'unwillingly', Carla pulled herself from his massive, still hard tool.

"Okay, time for the tit-fuck scene." The same voice commanded - and Carla moved to the bed, laying back with a smile as Carl straddled her, his gigantic cock in her equally enormous cleavage...

* * * * *

Lisa slowly approached the person gyrating on the stage, helplessly moving towards the person.

"Lee - no..." the danger gasped, in the process of fondling her body. "Get...get away while you can..."

"Mike..." Lisa said, gasping. "It's...it's Lisa now." She took in the sight of her transformed friend with something approaching horror.

Mike - It was actually Mikki now - had the figure of a cartoon sexpot. A black bra enclosed perfectly spherical breasts that, while not as horrendously large as Carla's, were still huge, easily a GG cup. Despite the flimsy bra and the sheer size, they swayed and bounced almost not at all, preternaturally firm and round.

Below those magnificent mammaries, her waist pinched in unrealistically. Lisa could have encircled the impossible waist with her own, slim hands - and was feeling an urge to do just that, as a matter of fact.

Mikki's body then flared out into wide, womanly hips and firm, full ass, below which long, sexy legs stretched down to tiny feet atop 9 inch tall spiked heel platforms.

The only discordant note was the enormous bulge straining at the fabric of the lacy black panties she wore. Her huge, dark eyes helplessly stared at Lisa, her remarkably full, sexy, bow-shaped lips twisted in lust. Slowly, the cartoonish she-male slowed her gyrations, her voice low and throaty when she spoke again.

"Please...leave." she gasped, moving towards Lisa. "I...can't help myself, Lisa. I want you. I love you..."

And helplessly, Lisa walked forward to meet her. "I...love you too." She replied, finding it absolutely true as she spoke it. Lisa dropped her skirt and panties, stepping out of them - and into Mikki's embrace.

As their lips met in a deep, passionate kiss, Lisa gasped as Mikki's gigantic cock entered her tight, wet cunt. Gripping Lisa's ass, the she-male lifted her and pushed her back against the wall, using it for support and, still kissing, she began to fuck her best friend.

Lisa screamed in pleasure as Mikki began to thrust, new sensations flooding her body, shaking her with the force of the pleasure. Their breasts pushed together as Mikki drove in and out, a rising tide of ecstasy building in both transformed men.

"oh... God... Yes..." Lisa moaned. "I...I...love...you..." she gasped - and then screamed, a wordless sound of pure pleasure as her first female orgasm took her, shaking her whole body as nerve endings screamed in orgasm after orgasm.

Tears ran down Mikki's face as s/he helplessly fucked Lisa - but s/he was being completely honest when s/he replied. "I love you too."

* * * * *

Part III

O Death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory? New Testament, I Corinthians, XV, 54

* * * * *

Chapter Eight - Unmanned - and Unbound

August 3rd, 1998

Will paused at the door, carefully surveying the street, Seeing no-one, he stepped out, and dashed over to his bike, pulling the Harley upright as he prepared to straddle it.

"Oh, I don't think so, red." The voice was coldly amused, and Will cursed loudly as he whipped around, his bike tumbling to the ground as he stared defiantly at Cassandra. The muscular woman stood a few feet away, having appeared as if out of thin air.

"You bitch." Will hissed, eyes blazing with fury. "You may have me...but I'm not telling you where the others are, no matter what you do to me."

She laughed. "If I wanted, I could make you tell me whatever I wanted." She said airily. "In this case, it doesn't matter - I already have the others." Her cruel smile widened as Will's face fell. She took a step towards him...

Then spun in surprise as a voice shouted "Hey, bitch!"

Standing in the middle of the street, hand on his holstered pistol, Sam looked like some gunslinger drawn from history, his blue eyes narrowed as he watched Cassandra turn. But it wasn't he who had spoken - it was Jeri, standing beside Sam, her arms crossed on her chest as she stared at Cassandra with a haughty grandeur.

Will felt his spirits soar - then plummet. The fact that they'd come back meant that they had placed themselves within this woman's inexplicable power once more.

Cassandra smiled evilly. "Well, a couple more new additions to my club, I should think." She said, eyes sparkling. She began to close the distance between them. "Let's see... I think I'll "

That was as far as she got. Having covered half the distance between them, she'd passed over a small dune, lengthening her stride to step over the mound of sand.

Which seemed to explode. With a convulsive movement, the sand flew, revealing the figure hiding under the thin covering of sand-covered tarp. One arm thrust upwards, and the sound of ripping cloth came as Cassandra gasped in surprise and pain as the barrel of the sawed-off shotgun jammed itself deep into her cunt. She stared wide-eyed, frozen in shock, at the man on the ground.

He was older, grayer, his age weighing him down. But he was still recognizable, and the sight of Cassandra's secret fear held her paralyzed as Danny leered up at her.

"Hi, cupcake." He said cruelly. "I hear you been a very bad girl." And before she could break the spell that shock had caused, he pulled the trigger.

The gun was loaded with a slug, not buckshot. As the expanding gasses bloated Cassie's stomach outwards, the lead slug crashed through her body, bursting her heart like an over-ripe fruit before smashing through her brain, turning it to pulp before exiting the top of her skull, blowing her head apart from the inside.

Indifferently, Danny let the decapitated body, still impaled, fall to the side, and rose to his feet.

"Wha ?" Will said, confused. His two friends were walking over, and all four people congregated over the bloody mess that had been Cassandra. Around them, the town seemed to waver. Deprived of Cassandra, everything that had been altered remained changed, but anything created out of thin air promptly vanished.

"I found her diary." Jeri explained, holding up the thin volume. "It explained everything. We would have gotten back sooner, but we had to find our secret weapon. Her greatest fear - her old lover, Danny." She nodded at the aging man, who grinned sardonically.

"So it's over?" Will asked.

Sam looked thoughtfully down at the body. "Not quite. You see, the source of her power was that black disk. We have to decide how to dispose of it, so this can never happen again - after we use it to change the others back to "

Danny smiled. "I don't think so." Like a viper uncoiling, he lunged down to grab the disk - and Sam, Will and Jeri lunged as well. At the same instant, all four touched the disk.

The power flowed through them, connecting them. For an instant, all were but one entity knowing and feeling everything any of them had ever experienced. Inside their minds, overwhelmed with the raw power flowing through them, they struggled to maintain a sense of self as their thoughts, memories and ideals merged and flowed. Outside, their bodies and clothes writhed and twisted, driven by four separate ideas, trying to settle into a form.

And then, something amazing happened. All froze, locked in place, as the simple power flowing through them changed - and became aware, like a beast rising from a slumber.

<At last...>

The voice that echoed in their heads was neither male nor female, but combined both - and was tinged by a terrible, ancient weariness.

<At last.> it echoed. <For millenium beyond counting, I have existed. At first, I was but one of many, a bright spark among a blazing fire.>

The four minds locked in contention were captivated. Images played through their heads, visions of a far advanced culture, existing for thousands upon thousands of years, living joyously and loved among the stars.

<Then, one by one, we faltered - and died. Entropy claimed us...>

The beings, composed of pure energy faded, flickered - and died, the aging universe unable to sustain them.

<We were frightened...we felt despair and pain...but we vowed not to have led a meaningless existence...>

Beings, knowing only pure, untainted energy, struggled to create some defiant, final tribute to life's existence in the universe. Finally, a new lifeform was created - but of matter, not of energy, able to survive in the harsh new universe being born.

<They could not live among us, not they of their kind...>

A few hundred of the original energy beings still lived, all that could survive on the diminishing energy to be had. With hope and love, they sent out the millions of 'seeds' they had created - spacecraft of pure energy, each containing two of the new life-forms, one male, the other, female. To a million distant planets, perhaps capable of supporting the new life, they were sent. The energy beings settled back, conserving themselves, as they waited. Waited for the new creatures to multiply, evolve, become able to build machines and devices - to announce themselves to the universe and let the 'makers' know that they had not existed in vain.

<But no word came. One by one, we were consumed by the pain and died. Each of us struggled against it >

All but three were gone. Working feverishly, they managed to create a materiel object to house, to preserve one of them. With the last of their strength, the other two launched the object on the final mission - to know that they had not lived in vain. Then, the final two allowed themselves to leave their enormous pain, and die.

<To each of the worlds I traveled. I sought the creations we'd made. I sought proof that there was life in the universe still - and I vowed to not let myself die, ever, should I be the only life existing. No matter the pain, the loneliness - life must remain, or the universe exists for no reason. But never life did I find.>

Empty worlds. Blasted worlds. Worlds where life had started - but failed. Too close to a star, or too far. Too hot, or too cold, too wet or too dry - no planet was quite right for life to succeed.

<I had given up hope. I turned away from the outside, and turned inwards to my own pain. Nothing roused me from my loneliness...until now. At last. You are not the life that I and my fellow beings created. We created a life we thought suitable for the worlds that were - large, strong, and of many different types. Fearsome of tooth and claw. Green of skin. Terrible lizards, fit to exist on whatever world they may land. But, even our power could not give them sentience - a soul. It was there I searched for - but on each world, they had died.>

With wonder, the four saw the creatures they had created. And, they found names for this life - Stegosaurus, Tyrannosaurus, Velociraptor...

Dinosaurs.

<But here, too they had died. But with them did not go life. For you are here. Among all the cosmos, you are unique. This planet, lowly and alone, carried the seeds of life - but you, alone carry the sentience that even we, as powerful as we are, could not create.>

<At last, my journey is over. At last, my pain can end.>

<At last...I can die >

Then the power was gone, fading from the four as the being, older than the universe itself, fulfilled a vow that he held it for more than a millennia.

And slipped gratefully into the vast unknown of death.

Slowly, the four figures rose, and eyed each other, their bodies and minds forever altered. Stunned, they stared down at the small disk, the only physical remains of a creature whose sheer power of being had unwittingly empowered a frightened, lonely woman - and had altered their lives forever. Slowly, their eyes rose and met.

The person who had once been Danny was now an exact image of Will, right down to his clothing. Even though he retained his memories, he deeply regretted his entire life as Danny, as he now possessed the ideals, morals and thought patterns of Will. In effect, he WAS will, only with Danny's past memories.

One of the things he regretted from being Danny was what his thoughts had done to the original Will.

Whitney - the name she now called her own - remembered being Will, and even had the same thought patterns - except they were modified to accept - revel in - the new being she was. Her clothes had changed, molding themselves to her new figure.

A black T-shirt clung tightly to her huge, firm tits and slender, sexy waist. Skintight black leather pants molded to her firm ass and long legs, and she balanced atop knee-high black leather biker boots. A glorious mane of red hair surrounded her sexy, intelligent face as she gazed at the new Will. Both red-heads shared the same thoughts, the same ideals, the same interests. And, as if gender-reversed mirror images, they both turned to their friends at the exact same time with the exact same movements, excepting the fact that Whitney's were more supple and feminine.

Sam and Jeri stood gazing deep into each other's eyes. Their bodies were their own - perfected.

Sam's had become firmer, more muscular, and a larger bulge was at his crotch. His face was more handsome, but still undeniably his.

Jeri's body was also perfection personified. Her breasts were perfect, firm D-cups above a slender waist and perfect ass. Her face was almost blindingly beautiful, and her hair - now the color of spun gold - hung in glorious, full waves down her back.

But 'Sam' and 'Jeri' no longer truly existed as separate entities.

Their mind was intertwined, sharing each body equally. At will, either could experience whichever body they wished, or both could inhabit one. Although their minds were still technically separated, they shared a telepathic and empathic bond, knowing at each moment what the other was FEELING, and able to converse mentally at will.

<You...you love me!> Jeri's mind - currently experiencing Sam's body, 'said' in surprise. She could feel the waves of love enfolding her psyche.

<Yes...> Sam 'said', sadly. All he felt from her was surprise...until it blossomed into equally powerful waves of love from her. On the outside, both bodies smiled and embraced. They kissed passionately for several moments, swapping back and forth to experience the kiss from both viewpoints.

The two redheads looked at each other, shrugged - and emulated the blondes, kissing each other gently, lovingly.

The two couples only broke apart when the three teens interrupted. Still stuck in the forms Cassandra had given them, they no longer were plagued by her obsessive commands, her mental hold broken with her death.

"I hate to disturb this love fest." Carla said sarcastically - but in a good humor, and without her usual, biting edge. "But, don't you think we should get back to civilization? I don't know about you - but I'm starved."

General agreement met this claim, and they separated to their own rides. Will, with Whitney mounted behind, led off, followed by Sam and Jeri in the Caddy, and the three other's in the rear in the hot-pink Mustang, leaving Requiem behind them as the setting sun seemed to paint the desolate town in shades of blood.

* * * * *

EPILOGUE

Let us live then, and be glad. For where there is life, hope remains. Anonymous, Found written upon a wall in Dachau

* * * * *

Chapter Nine - One Year Later

August 4th, 1999

The main street of the tiny town reverberate with the sound and laughter of it's citizens, mingled with the music from speakers lining the street. A riotous profusion of colors filled the avenue from balloons, rides, exhibitions, and the mass of people, as they enjoyed Requiem's First Annual Rebirth Festival.

Ostensibly to honor the rebirth of the abandoned mining town after it was purchased - for a song - by a small group, it actually had a much deeper, secret meaning to that very group.

"Hey, Sheriff! Why don't you give a couple of throws at the old dunk-tank. Drop the mayor in the water. What do you say?" The barker smiled cheerfully, and threw the town's much beloved sheriff a wink.

Sam shook his head, resting one hand on the butt of his pistol. "I'm afraid not..." he began - then paused for a second to savor the sensation as, at the other end of the street Jeri put her all into her job at the Kissing Booth. Enjoying the feel of the unknown man's lips on his/her full, soft lips, he finished his comment, the pause barely noticeable. "...I'm still on duty."

The barker shrugged cheerfully. "I don't think you'll see any trouble today, Sheriff." The citizens of Requiem were used to the occasion pause in Sam's speech. Interestingly enough, his wife, Jeri, did the same thing - but that wasn't unusual. The Sheriff and his wife - who also happened to be his only deputy - acted and talked so alike, it was sometimes eerie. But they were the best law officers in the whole state. It was eerie the way that the other always showed up at exactly the right instant if one of them was in trouble.

Sam sauntered over to the dunk tank and leaned against it, looking up with a smile. "So, I take it that this little attraction is adding some more money to the town coffers, you Mayorship?" he asked with mock solemnity.

Whitney grinned down at her Sheriff. Elected by a landslide - aside from her, the only other candidate had been the town drunk - the mayor wiggled her torso slightly, causing the firm, full breasts beneath the white T-shirt to jiggle fetchingly. "Hell, we've got teen-aged boys all the way from Vegas up here just to try and dunk me. What could have caused that, do you think?"

Sam laughed - then swapped out with Jeri. As the Ex-Texas Sheriff surprised a repeat customer by kissing just as well, but yet somehow completely different then last time, Jeri took over the conversation.

"Hey, I wouldn't mind a shot at those myself." She said with a grin - a comment that would have shocked the barker if she'd been in 'her' body, it only elicited a grin from a man who only saw another man enjoying the sight of a woman's large breasts filling out a T-shirt enticingly.

"Have you seen Will?" Whitney asked. Another advantage to the blonde's shared mind was the fact that they could keep track of almost everybody in town.

"Yeah, he left early to set up for tonight's services." Jeri replied. Eager to atone for his life as Danny, Will had become a priest, and a damned...uh, darned good one, too. Of course, he had become a Southern Baptist - and promptly married Whitney, making an 'honest woman' out of her.

"Okay. Whoops... another customer. I'll talk to both of you later." Whitney said as three boys, eyes locked on the sexy woman, willingly paid the rather hefty fee for three shots at dunking the mayor. Jeri nodded and wandered off, enjoying the simple power of her male body, but missing the supple grace of her female one. Thankfully, she could use either.

Meanwhile, Same finished her job, practically knocking the socks off one of the local boys - then, for good measure, she 'accidentally', pushed her firm, sexy ass into his crotch when she turned around to put the 'Back in 5 min.' sign up. Winking at the flustered youth, she walked off, enjoying the supple, sexy sway of her hips. Even the beige deputy's uniform couldn't conceal the beauty of the body inside - regardless of whose mind was occupying the body.

With a bounce in her step, she went up the steps of the town church just in time to meet Will coming out. "Don't worry, I didn't forget." The red-head said with a grin.

"How could you?" Sam asked with a grin, leaning forward to accept the quick but emotional kiss Will offered. She smiled, her face going from stunningly beautiful to angelic as the dimple appeared. "You know, I won't even charge you for that one."

Will faked indignation as he fell in beside her. "I'll have you know that may the woman has offered ME money for my world famous kissing."

Laughing, the two friends arrived at the sign welcoming people to Requiem, finding Jeri/Sam already there, talking to the town 'lesbians'. Sam interrupted long enough to claim a kiss from each - the one from Mikki in the female body, surreptitiously caressing her huge, thick penis which, as usual, was safely hidden by the puffy skirts she wore. Then, in his male body, he kissed Lisa, taking the opportunity to fondle the skin-tight leather over her ass.

"So, how's the Cafe doing?" he asked. Lisa, now busy with Will's kiss, gave a thumbs up, which was echoed by Mikki's thumb-and- forefinger 'okay' sign, as she was still involved in the kiss Sam had started. Jeri was obviously enjoying it, as her hand was still hidden beneath the skirt.

They all pulled apart, instantly becoming upstanding, unremarkable citizens as somebody came into view - then relaxed at the sight of Whitney, her large tits visible through her soaking shirt.

She was just in time. The final member of the group, the owner and feature dancer of one of the most famous strip clubs in the state, arrived, her glorious mane of hair dancing in the wind.

"Good, everyone's here." Carla said with a smile. A wicker basket, containing filled champagne flutes, dangled from one smoothly muscled arm.

Dressed in a black sequined dress and heels, the black woman looked stunning, artfully applied make-up and carefully chosen jewelry accenting her natural, dusky beauty. She smiled as the rest of the founders picked up a glass of champagne from the basket she'd brought.

Taking a deep breath - which did truly amazing things to her enormous tits, and threatened to ruin the dress - Carla held her glass aloft.

"When I first became the woman I am today..." She had to pause, with a smile, for the chorus of wolf-whistles and lewd comments, then continued "...I considered it a curse, Since then, I have found my life full of pleasure and passion, fame and fortune, love and life." She smiled at her friends - and lovers - and continued. "As Carl, I was a mean, spiteful person. All because of a self-destructive self-hate arising from a frustration. The frustration of being unable to..." she coughed decorously "...get it up' when I was with a woman. A legacy of being beaten by mom as a child, the therapists said - and, with no real cure." She laughed, a richly erotic sound. "Well, not only do I not have to worry about that any more - I have also managed to cure many a man similarly afflicted."

This brought a general round of appreciative laughter, which quieted to a more solemn note as Danny raised his glass, and claimed this years toast.

"Here's to those poor, misguided, lonely souls who died that day - and were reborn into a life of beauty and hope. Here's to us!"

With a soft sound, the rest of the group echoed the sentiment, and clinked glasses before downing their drinks. Linking arms, the group headed back up the street, smiles forming on their faces as they once more rejoined the lives they'd forged.

Behind them, the sign sat, its fresh coat of paint bright and bold in the desert sun. Unbeknownst to anybody but a small, select group, something lay beneath the signpost besides simple sand. A small, black disk, about four inches across. But, to those who did not know, the only odd thing they might find hung below the wooden sign, bolted to the post. A plaque. The setting sun glinted off the golden letters, raised against a black background, turning the expensive golden surface to a pool of liquid fire shining so bright that, if somebody had been there, they would have had to squint to make out the words printed there.

Under the Wide and Starry sky, Dig the grave and let me lie.

Gladly did I live and gladly die, And I laid me down with a will.

This be the verse you grave for me:

Here he lies where he longed to be; Home is the sailor, home from the sea, And the hunter home from the hill.

R. L. Stevenson, Requiem

BACK TO FUN ZONE

Summary: A young man travels back in time to kill his father before he can rape his mother and surprisingly finds that he has a whole new life as a female.

Reset

By Gunslinger

A gust of wind whistled down the alley, tossing about scraps of paper and lighter garbage in the dimly-lit brick canyon, the fragments of debris almost seeming to dance upon the warm, fragrant air.

Then the gust faded out, and the objects once more became inert within the narrow confines of the worn brick walls, once more lying still and uneventful upon the cracked, aging pavement.

But the narrow alley was far from motionless, as a small figure moved within the darker shadows of the alleyway.

Under other circumstances, the sight might have been ludicrous - a nearly emaciated young man, dressed in almost invisible dark slacks and starkly white short-sleeved cotton dress-shirt that seemed to glow in the dimness of the decrepit passageway. His sandy- blonde hair was shorn into a crew-cut, and upon the large nose that dominated his too-narrow face, a large, thick pair of black horn- rimmed glasses rode, the coke-bottle-thick lenses magnifying his watery eyes to ridiculous proportions in the best of times, with his current state of anxiety causing his magnified eyes bulge to utterly comical proportions.

There was nothing the least bit comical about the large, gleaming-black revolver whose hard-wood grips rested in his sweaty palms. A gun made famous by a series of movies, the long-barreled .44 Magnum revolver seemed the size of a cannon compared to the slight frame of the young man who carried it - but the way he handled it, professionally efficient, made it seem more an extension of his scrawny arms than some ludicrous addition.

Percival Bartholomew Poplin ran - scuttled - across the alleyway and into the concealing darkness of the doorway on the other side, the aging steel of the delivery door pressing with welcome coolness into his back as he leaned against the slab of metal to stare myopically into the night. In his hand, the weight of the gun was another comfort, the very hefty physical presence of the American-made hand- cannon keeping him on an even keel.

Shivering slightly despite of the warm pre-summer air, Percy lifted the arm weighted by the gun to glance at his watch...

...then stopped, mid-motion, and sighed, lowering his arm. His watch, a cheap no-name brand bought at a Walmart, wouldn't tell him anything useful.

Not that it wasn't accurate. Despite it's inexpensive nature, the chronograph lived up to the super-chain's usual standard and kept perfect time...

...for a watch made in the year 1999 and purchased and set in the year 2000. The problem was - the 'current' date was 1975...

At least, Percy hoped it was. More than anything else in his plan, the thought that the calibration of his Displacement Engine was off was the one that worried him the most.

One of the great paradoxes in the supposedly highly-hypothetical field of Temporal Displacement was the 'oldie-but-a-goody' one: 'What would happen if you could go back in time and kill your own father?'

It was a question that had more than hypothetical impact for the twenty-five-year-old Percy - and one that might be answered a few moments hence.

Because, if necessary, that was precisely what Percy was willing to do.

The skinny, underfed youth had accomplished the supposedly impossible task of creating a Temporal Displacement Engine - in laymen's terms, a time machine. A straight-A student with a phenomenal mind, the young man had worked secretly on his invention, finally succeeding in a break-through only hours ago - or years in the future, given your perspective.

He'd created the device with one, and only one, purpose in mind. To go back in time and keep his mother from being raped.

To Percy, his mother - Maria - was a saint. Despite the unfortunate moniker she'd cursed him with, he had loved her with an uncritical passion - and well he should. An orphan herself, Maria Poplin had sacrificed almost everything to raise Percy and give him the best she could, despite the handicaps of being a single mother...

...who was also paraplegic. Both situations which were brought about by a certain well-to-do youth who, deep in his cups, had taken a liking to the figure of the girl from the wrong side of the tracks and, with a knife, had his way with her.

Maria had often wondered to her then-young son whether or not the use of the knife at the end was a blessing. After all, the youth had intended to kill her with his thrust, to keep her silent.

Drunk, he'd botched the job, and she'd lived - but confined forever to a wheelchair.

Worse... his high-priced lawyers, paid for by 'Daddy', had managed to make the whole case seem as if it were a dirt-poor orphan girl lying about who raped her so as to get the most money. The jury had bought the 'Gold-digger' defense - and the wealthy young man had gotten away Scott-free, leaving Maria to raise her son single-handed and broke. All his life, Percy had been focused on one task - setting that monumental wrong right. Now, if his calculations were right, he'd finally have the chance to make sure that his mother would never have to go through the living hell that would end with her dying in a flophouse in 1987.

The fact that it would probably mean that Percy would simply cease to exist, and might even cause the universe as mankind knew it to collapse, was a minor point to the obsessed young man.

Shifting his weight nervously from foot to foot, Percy's thin lips tightened as the minutes dragged by. What if he was in the wrong place in time? If the calibration of the machine had been off just a little bit, he could have missed the event by hours or days in either direction, and...

Then a sound caused him to go rigid.

At the end of the alley, a muffled exclamation had been cut short. Now, a scuffling sound was slowly moving closer to the darkened doorway in which Percy hid.

Pushing himself into the dark shadow in the opposite corner, Percy lifted one hand to shade his glasses, to keep any stray glint of light from reflecting off of them. holding his breath, he peered out into the alley.

A second later, two figures loomed out of the darkness - a well-dressed young man, one arm wrapped around the neck of a struggling woman, his hand over her mouth.

His other hand was low, near her kidneys - and something within the man's fist glinted dully in the faint light.

Percy went cold. The man was holding the knife right near the same place he would/had try to kill Maria with a thrust to the kidneys... but had 'only' severed her spinal cord. With him holding the knife where it was, it wouldn't be safe for Percy to demand the man release her - a twitch, and she'd still be injured.

Waiting until they were abreast of the entranceway, palms cold and sweaty, Percy lunged out of the darkened doorway, his empty hand sliding up-and-under the other man's arm, yanking the knife away from Maria's side.

The fact that the motion caused the knife to imbed itself in Percy's thigh was a moot point, all things considered - because the slender young man knew there was no other alternative, and nothing that happened to him would matter.

Startled by the sudden attack, the man holding Maria cried out, releasing his hold on the frightened woman. She crumpled, sobbing, to the ground at his feet...

...leaving the path clear for Percy to bring the big gun up in a smooth arc, the muzzle slamming into the would-be-rapist's chest. "I love you, Mom..." Percy whispered...

...and pulled the trigger...

* * * * *

Beeep.... Beeep.... Beeep...

Feeling dazed and very, very strange, Percy stared up at the out-of-focus ceiling.

One instant, he'd been squeezing the trigger on the gun - he could clearly remember the sound of the hammer as it had clicked back to full cock, could remember the smooth 'break' of the trigger as the hammer had started forward...

He'd never heard the shot or felt the kick of the gun in his hand, though. Instead, he'd 'blinked' - and found himself here.

Wherever 'here' was. From the feel of his body, he was laying in a bed - but it wasn't his bedroom, whose water-stained ceiling was a far cry from the pristine white stucco that he could see above him.

Even his body felt... strange. It felt like there was a couple of pillows sitting on his chest and one under his ass, and the sensation of a full bladder was somehow subtly off. Even the feel of the covers on his body felt very strange, though he couldn't have put his finger on the 'why'. Though the 'out-of-focus' view was a familiar thing to him - he saw it every morning when he woke up, before sticking his glasses on - it was also 'wrong' - though fuzzy, everything was still considerably sharper than he was used to seeing, without his glasses.

However, since he'd expected to simply 'pop out' of existence when he'd killed his father, the fact that he was apparently just waking up in a bed was very welcome indeed, despite any oddities that might come along with it.

Yawning, Percy muttered. "Well, this is..." Then stopped dead at the sound of his voice.

Because it wasn't his voice. Though quiet, and saying the words he'd directed his voice to say, the words he heard were spoken in a high-pitched, slightly hoarse voice that was utterly and undeniably feminine.

Percy felt like his entire body had been dipped in liquid nitrogen. Jaw slowly sliding open to a full-fledged gape, he slowly pushed himself into a sitting position, fighting the weight on his chest, and looked down at himself.

Or, rather - herself. Because Percy now possessed what was definitely the body of a woman.

A woman with smooth, pale skin. A woman with a pair of the finest breasts Percy had ever seen. The size of a pair of cantaloupes, the large, naturally firm tits rode proudly on her slender ribcage, moving slightly with each breath she took.

"Oh... My... God..." The new woman whispered in shock, staring down at the tits on her chest and - beyond the would-be- mouthwatering-if-they-weren't-stuck-on-Percy endowments - a pair of long, shapely legs. with a neatly trimmed patch of pubic hair at the 'v' where they met, surrounding the unmistakable vaginal lips of her cunt. Though everything had that soft-edged nature due to her slightly poor eyesight, there was no way she could mistake what she was seeing.

She slumped back in the bed, eyes wide in amazement.

She now knew how 'history' protected itself from paradox. When she'd killed the man who would have been Percy's father, history had changed - and Percy's consciousness had ended up in the body of the daughter that Maria must have had, instead of Percy.

For a second, Percy wondered if other people had perfected time-travel before - maybe that would explain all the 'crazy' people who thought that they were somebody else. Maybe, in fact, they were...

The question ran through her head as a form of self-defense - a way of distracting herself from the sheer shock of waking up in the body of a female. It made a certain sort of sense, actually - the odds of being born female were roughly equal to that of being born male.

More than just the fact that Percy was now in the body of a girl was the fact that she was a girl...

...with no memory of 'her' past. Instead, 'she' had the memories of a person who had never even existed, in this time line. 'This could be a problem...' Percy thought, numbly - perhaps the greatest understatement of the year.

Slowly, it dawned on her that the alarm clock beside the bed was still going off - the sound had seemed unimportant while she'd dealt with other things. Now, she reached over and shut it off, bemused by the sensations created as her breast shifted with the motion of her arm, lifting and tightening slightly as she stretched.

With the movement it took to shut off the alarm, she had some momentum going - and decided to get up. As strange as this all was, it was now her life - she'd traded her masculinity to allow her mother a full, rich life, and she'd just have to deal with it.

No matter how perverted it felt to wake up as a woman.

Sliding her shapely legs over the edge of the bed, the new woman slowly rose, looking around. She spotted a pair of glasses resting on the night-table, and she picked them up, grinning wryly at the sight of them - each lens was a sort of rounded rectangle, with a pale silver-blue frame. Definitely not the type of glasses she would have chosen...

...except, apparently, they were exactly the type of glasses 'she' would choose, and...

She stumbled, gripping the edge of the table for balance, a shocked look on her face as she tried to deal with the fact that she found herself 'remembering' buying these glasses. She could recall hesitating, torn between these and another pair, and finally choosing these ones.

The memory was so sharp, she could even see herself looking in the mirror that formed an entire wall of the LensCrafter's store.

In the memory, she had been as unselfconscious as you could expect - but, seeing it from the 'outside', the new woman was stunned by the remembered reflection as she 'saw' herself for the first time.

You could see the resemblance that she and her old body shared - but what had made Percy a 'geek' made the 'new' woman he'd become utterly cute. Short, she was best described as 'petite' - a slender, shapely body beneath casual clothing that flattered her figure. A face that was almost devastatingly cute, with a generous mouth framed by deep dimples, a slightly too-large nose that 'worked' on her elfin face, and big brown eyes under the glasses she was trying on. Her hair was the same shade of sandy-blond, but was worn collar-length, and it was definitely softer and more silky than the mane she'd possessed as a man.

Of course, the weirdest part of the memory was the fact that she had it all - because, just as clearly, she could remember the things 'he' had done on that day, as well. A single day, a single time-frame - yet she could remember both of them clearly.

"Oh, god... this is weird..." Penny muttered to herself... then her mind came to a screeching halt again as she realized that she'd just, unconsciously, referred to herself by the feminine identity she now possessed. Though she couldn't consciously recall her life as a woman, the knowledge of the alternate, female version of her was intact - as if 'his' personality had been pasted-over hers, like a double-exposed photograph. The male persona was the 'top' one - but, beneath it, you could still make out the second image.

'Weird' didn't even describe how it felt to her to 'know' she was Percy, a time-traveler who'd altered history in such a way as to end up female - yet still able to 'remember' things that 'Penny' had done during her life. She could remember the smallest detail of 'Penny's' life but, not having 'lived' through it, they were subconscious, having to be brought to the front, while the ingrained habits and overt memories of 'Percy' were immediate and 'real'.

It was... weird. If a cop had a reason to ask Penny what she'd been doing last Wednesday, the answer that would have emerged would have been that 'he' was at the library, researching Rosenberg's Theorem on Transtemporal Particle Waves - when, in fact, 'she' had been seeing Chris off at the airport, and..

This time, the shock was so great that the new woman actually collapsed back onto the bed, her shapely legs refusing to support her as she gaped mindlessly at the far wall.

"Holy Shit!" She said, softly. "I... I'm married!"

'Percy' had no memory of this 'Mark' guy - but Penny certainly did. She could summon memories of the first time she'd met him. the way they'd fallen in love, but had never... you know. They'd both been fairly innocent, and one of the things they'd shared in common was the fact they were 'saving' themselves for marriage. Penny could even remember the wedding ceremony, how handsome Mark had looked, how Mom had cried and...

Penny gasped as the image seemed imprinted in her brain, seared there in an instant.

His/Her mother - sitting in the pew at the front, crying cheerfully into the handkerchief. Looking more alive and vibrant than she ever had, even when she had been alive, in Percy's memory. Sitting in the pew - and, later, dancing with Dad at the reception...

Holy shit! Dad!

Penny struggled to deal with all the revelations that were pouring forth from her memories. The fact that she was married - and quite happily so. the fact that Maria wasn't only alive and whole - but happy, and married to a middlin' wealthy man. All of it, as sharp and clear as the memories Percy had of her being paraplegic and miserable, fighting to make ends meet for her son.

That, more than anything, finally allowed Penny to come back on an even keel. No matter how weird all this was, no matter how 'wrong' it felt to be a woman, with memories (some very 'intimate') of her husband, the most important factor was the fact that 'he' had succeeded. He'd altered history, and while his mother had gone through a rough patch after the attempted rape and the inexplicable 'vanishing'; savior who'd killed the man, she'd recovered and ended up with a healthy, happy life...

...and a happy, reasonably well-adjusted daughter that she loved dearly. Well, 'well-adjusted' until now, Penny thought with a wry grin - she was technically now suffering from a severe case of schizophrenia and Gender Dimorphism.

"maybe I should become a lesbian." She said to herself, wryly. "At least I could honestly claim that I'm really a man trapped in a woman's body..."

Then she winced - because that thought triggered very 'pleasant' memories of her sexual bouts with Mark. Though, as Percy, the thought disgusted her, Penny obviously enjoyed having sex, as a woman - even if she was a little shy and conservative about it.

It made her feel dirty - as if she were prying into somebody's most private diary. The problem was - it was the 'diary' that outlined her past, and would 'help' her live the future she'd formed...

"Oh, shit!" Penny said, eyes widening behind her glasses. "Mark's coming home today!"

She could remember clearly now, even though she'd never 'really' known before this instant - after being away on business, Mark was due home at about seven tonight...

...and he was expecting his wife to be here. Not just physically, but 'mentally' - he was expecting Penny to be the same woman he'd left. He'd also be expecting sex.

At that thought, the strangest sensation she'd ever felt ran through her - because the thought aroused and disgusted her, all at the same time., part of her was dreading the moment, and yet another part of her was eager for it to happen.

"I don't know if I can deal with this..." Penny thought, pressing her smaller, daintier hands to the side of her head. Deciding to ignore the complications of her new life, for now, she decided she should shower and dress - though it would be different to do these things for 'the first time' as a woman, it was a normal enough routine that she could do it without having to give it too much thought - especially since she had her memories to help her, since she'd done this 'thousands' of times before, from a certain perspective.

The strange split in her double set of memories was beginning to give her a headache.

Sighing, Penny headed to the bathroom, bemused to find that she knew exactly where she was going in the eerily familiar / completely unfamiliar house. She was equally bemused by the way her new, feminine body moved as she walked - the way her hips swung more than she was used to, the way her breasts bounced and jiggled with each step, the easy working of the toned, shapely muscles of her sexy legs.

What was really weird about it was how 'natural' it felt - while her mind had to complete set of memories, her body's habits and usual methods were singular, ingrained by the fact that 'he' had never used this body before. She could walk the way 'Penny' always walked, without even having to think about it - when it came to purely physical skills and habits, 'Percy' was nowhere to be found.

Adjusting the taps to get a warm spray of water, Penny stepped into the shower and began to soap up...
...slowly.

Between his looks and his obsessive work on the Displacement Engine, Percy had never had much luck with the ladies. Now, 'his' hands were sliding over the smooth, firm skin of a woman, caressing the soft curves gently.> The fact that they were her own curves now still didn't lessen the emotional pleasure she was feeling, even though the situation felt more than a little weird.

The thing was - she was hyper-aware of her own body. 'Penny' was used to her body, and didn't pay much extra attention to it - but now she couldn't help but be very, very aware of just how sexy and cute and feminine this body was - and, as odd as it was, it made her feel very, very good. It was 'sick' in a very fundamental way - but her own body was turning her on, enormously.

Her hands rose and found her slick, wet breasts, and she began to caress and fondle them. hesitant at first, Penny was soon openly moaning as her hands eagerly massaged and squeezed her large, firm tits. To the male person that was 'in control' the feeling of firm, sexy breasts filling her hands was incredibly exciting - and to the female side of her divided brain, having her tits fondled and touched so eagerly was highly exciting, too. Both sides found this more than a little odd, but that didn't lessen either the physical or emotional pleasure she felt as she leaned against the cool tiles of the wall and continued to 'feel herself up', amazed at the amount of pleasure this body could experience. The male body she'd once possessed was dull compared to this one - men really only had one big erogenous zone, while this feminine body seemed to be one erogenous zone itself, with just slight differing degrees of sensitivity.

Her breasts were definitely one of the more sensitive portions. Time slowly slipped by as Penny continued to fondle her own feminine form, finding great - if guilty - pleasure at the touches... it might have gone on for much longer, if she hadn't found herself dreamily musing 'I wonder why I never get Mark to fondle and touch me like this...' that 'traitorous' thought snapped her out of her erotic daze. Blushing almost incandescently, she quickly rinsed off and stepped out of the shower...

...then blushed even brighter by the way it felt to towel off, especially when the softly-textured material of the towel moved over her nipples or crotch.

Leaving the bathroom, she returned to the bedroom - for a new experience. Getting dressed as a woman.

Opening the closet, the new woman found herself facing a daunting array of casual women's clothing, and her male mind went into vapor-lock at the sight, unsure how one person could possibly deal with owning so many clothes. As a guy, she'd had maybe twenty pieces of clothing in his closet - as 'Penny', she owned more pairs of pants than that, and there were still blouses, shirts, chemises, skirts, dresses...

Closing her eyes, Penny took a few deep breaths - then let her body go on 'autopilot'. Without any conscious thought at all, she let her body pick out a collection of items that her 'memories' seemed to find part of her usual ensembles.

Then it was time to dress.

The first item was underwear. Penny was a conservative dresser, and all the undergarments were functional and rather plain - but that didn't detract from the fact that they were feminine undergarments. Pulling on a pair of white cotton briefs felt weird, the feminine undergarment sliding up her smoothly-shaven legs to fit around her hips and over her crotch with a sensation that was definitely unlike the male equivalent.

Next came the bra - and penny struggled with it for a good ten minutes before 'turning off' her male mind and letting her fingers clasp the bra as quickly and easily as they'd 'always' done.

Next came the pants - a pretty standard pair of jeans that different only in the proportions, designed to fit over wider hips and button around a proportionally slimmer waist.

The blouse that went with the jeans was a pale-blue one, with rounded-edge collar wings, trimmed in white lace. It definitely felt odd to her as she buttoned it up - it was a very 'sissy' garment to the male ego that was tenuously running the whole show. However, a glance in the mirror showed that it 'worked', so she sighed and accepted it.

As a man, that would have been about it, aside from socks and shoes. As a woman, however, Penny found that she had just gotten started.

Make-up. The thought made her shudder, but she had clear memories of wearing make-up, and the female part of her new persona shuddered at the thought of leaving the house 'bare-faced'. Since Penny had to do some shopping today if she wanted to eat, she would have to go outside - which meant make-up.

Rolling her eyes, Penny went ahead and let her body perform the usual ritual, doing little more than watch as her hand expertly applied a light blush, some pale lip-stick, a touch of eye-shadow, and mascara. Even though 'Percy' found it demeaning, 'he' had to admit that it did make her look even better once it was on.

Then there was jewelry. Earrings were a 'necessity', according to the female memories - though Penny obviously preferred 'understated' jewelry, and 'Percy' went along, her fingers easily threading the shaft of the gold-toned stud through her pierced lobe and clipping the back into place. A second later, the second earring was adorning her other ear, and Penny completed the whole look with a simple gold necklace, a slender women's watch... and her engagement and wedding rings, which was enough to make her lip curl at the renewed thoughts of Mark that it brought forth. Not that she had anything in particular against 'her husband', of course - it was just that the very concept of having a husband still seemed 'sick', even though another part of her felt aroused at the memories of their wedding night...

* * * * *

Standing at the register, Penny paid for the groceries with an almost authentic smile as she chatted with the cashier.

When she'd left the house, she'd been struck by an incredibly strong surge of polisphobia - the fear of people. Of course, that wasn't exactly true - it was much closer to 'stage fright'. Though she knew that she was physically female, every square inch, part of her had been terrified, expecting people to start pointing and laughing, or something.

Of course, none of that had happened, and she was beginning to get used to being in public, as a woman...

...which was partially related to the fact that she was beginning to get used to being a woman. it was weird, but in a way it was comforting - since she was stuck with being female, the slow 'conditioning' that was occurring was reassuring, in it's way.

It came from the fact that, as she spent more time as a woman, more and more of the 'Penny' memories were surfacing, and that viewpoint was slowly integrating itself with her once-strictly-male one. Not that it was like Penny was taking over or anything - her own sense of self was strong, and she'd never 'again' be that person she 'remembered' being - but, by the same token, she could never again be the 'Percy' she remembered being, either. Instead, a new personality was forming, taking bits and pieces from both sides to form a new persona capable of dealing with the incredible event that had occurred to her. In some ways, it was making her a better person than either Penny or Percy had ever been, alone.

Picking up her bags of groceries, penny headed out of the supermarket, her mind already turning to the things she had to do before Mark got home - and finding that she was actually more anticipating than dreading his arrival. The vestigial sensations of guilt and disgust lingered, but they weren't nearly as strong as they'd been five hours ago, when she'd left the house. Since then, while she'd gone out for breakfast, and went to three different stores for the best 'sale' items, the idea - and the very pleasant memories attached to it - had time to insinuate themselves into her mind. For a near-virgin 'male' mindset, even the thought of sex as a woman held some appeal, and that was merely increased by her 'first-hand knowledge' that it could be very good indeed.

As she headed towards her car, she thought about the light house-cleaning she'd have to do before Mark arrived. She could...

She stopped dead and stared at the window in front of her. She'd passed the store on the way into the supermarket, but hadn't really paid attention to it. now, it captured her attention, and she stared in the window of the adult lingerie and novelty shop, looking at the outfit on display in the window.

The 'original' Penny wouldn't even have considered buying such an outfit - and, of course, neither would 'Percy'. But, now, she found herself becoming aroused at the thought of her body wearing an outfit like that...

...and, in a way, it would be strangely appropriate.

Slowly, shooting glances over her shoulder, penny walked the rest of the way to her car, depositing the groceries in the trunk. Then, blushing slightly, she headed back toward the Adult store...

* * * * *

Dropping his bags on the foyer floor, the handsome young man tossed his keys on the table beside the door and pulled off his coat, using his foot to swing the door shut behind him.

"Penny?" Mark called into the darkened house, somewhat confused. "Honey, I'm home!"

'Are you?' He muttered under his breath, walking through the darkened kitchen and towards the hallway to the bedrooms. Aside from the foyer, the only other light in the house was a golden glow coming from the master bedroom.

"Honey, are you in..." Mark started to ask as he pushed the half-open door to the bedroom the rest of the way open...
...then he stopped dead, his jaw dropping and his eyes widening.

"Mmmm... welcome home, honey." His wife said, uncurling from where she was laying artfully posed on the bed. The tiny, ruffled skirt of her classic 'French Maid' outfit rustled as her long legs, encased in fishnet stockings, slid over the side of the bed. Standing, she slowly approached her husband with a sensual glide, balancing easily atop the five-inch heels of the black patent leather pumps she wore.

"Penny?" Marks said in a strained voice, confused.

"I've missed you... badly..." She murmured, low in her throat - and wrapped her arms around him, her full breast threatening to pop out of the low neck-line of the tiny black dress as she pressed them hard against his chest. Putting one hand behind his neck, she bent his head down so she could kiss him more passionately than he could ever remember her doing.

After a second's confused hesitation, he joined in with a passion.

Breaking the kiss, his wife smiled up at him... then began gently tugging him towards the bed with one hand, while the other one worked on the button of his fly.

"Did you miss me, too?" She asked in a seductive voice, her lips in a sexy, exaggerated pout.

"Yeah..." mark replied, his voice thick. With his free hand, he went to work on the buttons of his shirt, while she guided the hand she held up to her chest.

Confused - but more than willing to 'play along' - Mark abandoned the buttons on his shirt and began to fondle her fabric-enclosed chest as she finished unbuttoning his shirt.

"Mmmm... that feels nice..." She said, huskily - then smiled. "But wouldn't it feel better if I did this...?" in one long, sinuous motion, she grabbed the ruffled hem of the tight, tiny dress, and peeled it off over her head.

Underneath, she was naked, wearing nothing by the nylons and the heels. Grinning at his surprised expression, she grabbed his hand and brought them back to her now-bare breasts.

"Ohhh... yess..." She moaned, as she slid his pants and boxer shorts down, and he almost mindless stepped out of them. Grabbing her husband's shoulders, Penny turned him around - then pushed against his chest, sending him sprawling on the bed. "I want to be on top this time, handsome..." She purred.

It was an unprecedented request - but far be it from Mark to argue. Instead, he slid into the center of the bed, his cock hard and throbbing as she rose on the bed then knelt with one leg on either side of him.

Then, with a twitch of her fishnet-stockings-clad legs, she thrust herself downwards, her hand unerringly guiding his cock into her sopping wet cunt.

She cried out in pleasure as she sank down, impaling herself on his throbbing member. She cried out again as she began to thrust herself up and down on his cock - and this time, he moaned in response to her actions.

"Oh, yes... this is good.." She said, eyes closed and head rolled back as she rode him faster and harder. "Why... did.. I.. think.. this was... sick...?"

Mark was in no condition to answer any questions at the moment, gasping his pleasure as she rode him - and she was no longer capable of asking any questions as her head began to toss back and forth and she began to scream out his name.

Then she came, and her thrust became spasmodic, uncoordinated twitching as her orgasm slamming into her, pushing him over the edge.

Panting, she collapsed beside him, curling up against him. Despite the fact that he was now sated, Mark couldn't help but notice the feel of her tits pressed into his side, or the fishnet stockings she wore sliding over his leg.

"Wow..." Mark said, stunned. "That was. amazing."

"Yes..." Penny said, with complete contentment. "It was." Mark paused, then - very carefully - said:

"Don't get me wrong - I'm most definitely not complaining or anything." he said, cautiously. "It's just that, this isn't how you usually act. So - not complaining - I was just wondering. what's gotten into you?"

Penny just smiled mysteriously and refused to answer....

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: Discovering that the frumpy girl he knows has a secret life as a sexpot, he confronts her only to discover that she transforms with the aid of a magic drink which she has now given him.

Revelations

By Gunslinger

Tall, flared cylindrical heels clocking on the well-aged floorboards, the tall, statuesque red-head crossed the deep covered porch stretching across the front of the rustic cabin. Humming happily to herself, the stunning young woman switched her suitcase to her left hand, and reached out with her just-freed right to grasp the simple black iron latch holding the oak-plank door closed. Pressing down on the latch with her thumb, she swung the iron-bound door open and stepped out of the deepening evening into an interior almost as brisk as the autumn evening settling in outside.

Putting her suitcase down just inside the door, the tall, buxom woman pushed the door shut behind her...

...then gave a breathless little shriek and spun around as a light flared from within the cabin's main room.

Lowering his hand from the switch on the lamp beside the chair in which he was ensconced, the broad-shouldered young man with the tousled mane of sandy-blond hair smile tightly across the room at the startled woman gaping at him.

"Hello, Cheryl." He said, his voice hovering somewhere between bitterly amused and stunned. He cocked his head, and his bushy blond eyebrows rose. "Oh, I'm sorry - it's 'Sheri' out here, isn't it?"

"Brad!" The lithe redhead blurted in shock. "How...?"

Then she stopped dead, and her gray eyes widened in shock as she realized that she'd just inadvertently turned the athletic blond's suspicions into certainty.

"I knew it!" Brad declared, pushing himself up out of the chair and looking her over with eyes gleaming in victory. "I knew there was something funny going on!"

"How did you...?" Cheryl/Sheri asked, so stunned she was unable to frame the question completely - her lungs just didn't want to seem to suck in enough air for her to finish a complete sentence.

"To tell you the truth, I wasn't really all that suspicious until last year." Brad said, as he began to pace back and forth across the hardwood floor with his usual swagger. His voice took on a gloating tone as he revealed his 'brilliance' to her. "I mean, I knew you 'vanished' for a couple of weeks each fall, but nobody knew where you went to on these trips. Thing is, I got a friend who, until a few months ago, was living near here. You know Steve Matuso?"

Sheri's glorious gray eyes widened, and one hand went up to her pastel-pink glossed lips. "Oh, shit..." She whispered.

"That's right - the same 'nice guy' who gave Sheri a lift to the doctor's office when she twisted her ankle last summer... and then 'Cheryl' comes back to work three days later with a limp. That's when it began to really come together for me, you see." Brad stopped and gave her a long, slow look that left her blushing in a strange combination of embarrassment, anger - and appreciation, since she knew she looked good, and enjoyed looking that good... at least, for a couple of weeks a year.

"The fact that the red-head 'Sheri' shows up down here for the same two weeks my red-haired coworker 'Cheryl' vanishes didn't really cause any bells to ring - because the rest of the description doesn't match up." Brad said, still eyeing her slender, sexy figure. "Sure, they're both tall, and both red-haired... but how the fuck do you make yourself so damned sexy, 'Sheri'?"

Sheri swallowed heavily. Somehow, she'd never even considered being in this situation. Perhaps, if she had, she would have chosen a name further divorced from her real one, or maybe did something about the distinctive mass of deep red curls that cascaded down her back...

"I need a drink..." She said, weakly, heading towards the kitchen.

"Hey - I want an answer." Brad said, stepping into her path and holding a hand out in front of her - at just about the level of her not- inconsiderable bosom. If she hadn't pulled herself up so short when he started to move, she would have ended up giving him a free feel of the breasts so delightfully displayed in her simple off-white linen dress.

"You caught me a bit off-guard." She said, tartly - a tone that would have surprised anybody who knew Sheri, but would have been completely familiar to those who knew Cheryl. "What, with the breaking and entering and what-not. Let me get myself a shot of whiskey to calm my nerves, and then I'll explain this to you."

On the word 'this', she gestured with one hand at the lithe, curvaceous body so different that the muscular, flat-chested one Brad was familiar with.

"So - just sit down." She said, gesturing at the chair he'd been lurking in the dark upon when she'd entered. "I'll be right back."

Grudgingly, Brad obeyed her snippy command, and she pushed through the swinging door into the kitchen. A moment later, she emerged, carrying a glass in each hand, each tumbler filled with a couple of finger's worth of amber fluid. Handing one to Brad, she kept the other for herself and settled on the couch opposite the chair.

Tossing off the drink in one smooth motion, Brad slammed the glass down on the table beside him and leaned forward, hungrily eyeing the full, firm breasts straining at the thin cloth over her bosom.

"So - give." He demanded. "How does Miss Olympia turn into Busty Babe two weeks out of the year - and why just two weeks, if you could look like that all the time?"

"Well, the 'why' is simple." She said, a small smile coming to her lips as she sipped at her own drink. "I happen to like working where I do - but nobody would take an aircraft mechanic seriously if she looked like this. As for how... A very old friend of the family is a gypsy, and six years ago, for my eighteenth birthday, she gave me a vial of elixir and a vial of antidote, so I could 'vamp up' whenever I felt like it, and for as long as I felt like it."

"A magic potion?" Brad snorted, idly scratching at his chest. "C'mon, you're going to have to do better than that. I don't believe it." "You will in a minute." She said, grin widening. "You see, you just drank a dose."

Brad's sneer slid from his face, and he gaped at her. "What?" He demanded, incredulously.

She nodded, smile turning downright cruel.

"What the hell did you do to me...?" Brad roared, bushing himself up out of the chair - then, with a gasp, doubling over as a fire seemed to ignite in his belly and begin to race through his body.

Grinning, Sheri watched as Brad - or, rather, the person who had been Brad - collapsed, writhing, to the floor. Gasps, moans and cries issued from the twitching, thrashing figure on the floor, and the sound of ripping fabric and popping buttons punctuated the rising-pitch noises.

"For me, the transformation is only mildly uncomfortable." She informed the thrashing form, smugly. "However, it has far less work to do on me. In your case..."

A couple of minutes passed - and then, gasping and wheezing, the person on the floor managed to rise into a sitting position braced against the chair, hands sliding incredulously over a smooth, supple body.

"You... You turned me into a girl!" The new woman cried in horrified disbelief, hands lightly touching the firm, round breasts thrust proudly from her chest - then shying away from the sensations that came from touching her large, fully-engorged nipples.

"I certainly did." Sheri said, rising from the couch and standing over the feminine figure gaping down at her own full bust.

The woman Brad had become bore a startling similarity to the female form Sheri currently wore. Perhaps all of a half-inch taller, she had marginally slimmer hips and slightly broader shoulders that, with a slightly more muscular build, gave her a more athletic look than the red-head. Nevertheless, she was abundantly feminine, with a slip waist and long, shapely legs - and she was as every bit as stunningly beautiful as Sheri was, her facial features only slightly altered from the flame-haired woman's own, though the coloration was completely different. Whereas Sheri's smooth skin was milky pale, the new woman's was a light golden tan that went well with her long, thick mane of wheat-blond hair and her dark, hazel eyes.

"Looking good, Brandi." Sheri told the new woman, with a giggle. "Why you...!" The new woman blurted. "I'm going to kill you!"

She thrust herself from the floor, slender fingers outstretched as she reached for Sheri's throat - but her unfamiliar body betrayed her, the weight of her full new breasts pulling her off balance and sending her sprawling.

"Now, now - none of that." Sheri chided. "You'd better behave yourself, Brandi, or I won't give you the antidote." "You'd damned well better, you bitch!" Brad cried. "...and what's this 'Brandi' shit?"

"That's the name you're going to answer to for the next two weeks." Sheri told her, smugly. "Two weeks, during which you're going to be my sweet, friendly cousin Brandi."

"Like hell I will!" Brad snarled - or tried too, in a warm contralto ill-suited to the task. She carefully levered herself up of the floor, balancing somewhat awkwardly atop the much smaller, slimmer feet that ended her long, delightfully toned legs.

"Oh, but you will." Sheri smirked. "You see, if you don't, I won't have anything to hold over you to ensure you keep my secret - and so, I'd just have to leave you the way you are, since, as a woman, you could try to tell the story all you want, and people would just think you're nuts."

Beneath her golden tan, the new woman's gorgeous face went pale. "You wouldn't dare!"

"Oh, but I would. You've always been a pain in the ass, Brad, and now I've got leverage over you - don't you think I'm willing to use it?" She cocked her head and looked at him coolly. "Think about the way you've treated me over the years - and then ask yourself what I would be willing to do to you if you piss me off any more."

Brad gaped at her - then swallowed audibly.

"Exactly." She informed him. "Now, you're going to do exactly what I say for the next two weeks. You're going to play the part I've given you, and you're going to be nice and friendly to everybody. You do that, and when I change myself back, I'll give you the antidote as well. Do anything - anything at all - to piss me off, and I'll leave you just the way you are for the rest of your life. Do you understand...?"

Brad considered it - and knew damned well that she'd do what she threatened. He'd been against the idea of allowing a 'mere' woman to work at the aircraft maintenance terminal, and he'd made sure Cheryl had known about it - by dedicating himself to trying and make her life a living hell so that she'd quit. Well, he'd failed at that as thoroughly as he'd failed at his plan to find out her secret so that he could hold it over her and blackmail her into quitting. Now, the situation was reversed, and she definitely held the upper hand - and thanks to his behavior, had no compunctions about using it. If he - she! - didn't do exactly what she said, he'd be stuck with this tall, toned and buxom body... forever.

"Yes, Sheri." She said, through grinding teeth - but fear trumped anger, and the words were clear, no matter how force of will it took the new woman to say them.

"Good." Sheri pronounced - and then grinned wickedly. "Now that that's settled, we'd better hurry up and get ready. My friends should be arriving shortly, and you definitely need to change into something more... 'flattering'."

Hands protectively flying to the torn fragments of clothes hanging from her altered body, Brandi gaped at Sheri. "What? You.. I mean, I can't... You don't..."

"My friends know I arrived here tonight, and they always drop by to welcome me back." Sheri informed her. "They'll be here before too long - and I'm not letting you just hide out in the bedroom all night. The elixir made you nearly the same size as me, so you should be able to wear my clothes - and when my friends get here, you're going to be very nice to them. Aren't you, Brandi?"

'Brandi' wasn't sure whether she wanted to scream or cry - but what, in the end, she did do was much more humiliating than either inclination.

Hands balled into tight fists at her side, she nodded submission to the laughing red-head who held her fate in her hands.

Burning with humiliation, he followed her into the bedroom. Since she didn't have the same figure most of the year that she wore now, most of her 'Sheri' clothes were stored at the cabin - the closet was stuffed full of them, as was the two simple dressers. She had no trouble picking through them and finding an outfit she thought appropriate for her 'shy, sweet' cousin Brandi.

"You really don't want me to wear this stuff, do you?" Brandi said, still feeling as off-balance, emotionally, as she was physically. Normally self-confident to the point of arrogance, Brandi was ashamed by the whining tone in her voice as the situation made her feel as 'womanish' as she really was, physically - but she couldn't help herself. Her moods were swinging all over the place as she struggled to accept and adapt to the situation she found herself in. "Couldn't I wear, like, jeans and a shirt, or something? Please?"

"Hey, I'm being nice here!" Sheri protested with a wolfish smile. "I could have defined you as being my slutty cousin, and not only forced you to wear a miniskirt and a tube top, but told you you had to give at least one blow-job before the night was out."

Brandi shuddered in disgust. "I would never...!"

"Oh - not even if it was the only way to ever become male again?" Sheri asked, archly.

The blonde suddenly paled in the realization that, as bad as the situation was, it wasn't 'the worst' she'd thought it was. If she got Sheri mad at her, maybe the red-head, who had good cause to hate 'Brad', might decide some more retribution was called for...

Hastily, Brandi grabbed the clothes Sheri had chosen for her - and then, red-faced with shame and humiliation, had to ask her near- twin for help.

"Just how big did you make these, anyway?" Brandi whined, as Sheri secured the hook-and-loop fasteners at the back of the bra. "They're... gigantic!"

"Oh, triple-D's are pretty damned big, sure, but they're not freakishly huge." Sheri returned. "Sears sells bras up to GGG-cup, and strippers and the like can get implants so big they need to by custom bras even bigger. Besides... you seemed to think they looked pretty good on me, earlier."

That was true. With her height, DDD's weren't too much of a good thing, and Brandi had thought they'd looked spectacular on her. The fact that Sheri had just finished fitting Brandi with a white, lace-trimmed bra designed for her own endowments proved they were no larger than the ones she'd been admiring as a man - but Brandi had never seen breasts from quite the angle she was now looking at them from. As she stared down at the round, firm breasts filling out the bra. They looked considerably bigger than they really were - and felt utterly enormous.

Likewise, though her own hips were a trifle slimmer than Sheri's own, they felt as if they jutted three or four feet outward as she slipped on a pair of matching white briefs - and her ass, so delightfully shaped and perfectly proportioned, nevertheless felt like a jutting shelf thrust out behind her.

Though all this abundance assaulted the new woman constantly, every move she made driving these new curves home with emphasis far beyond their physical existence, not one of them beat at her as fearfully as the way the cloth of the panties fit over her crotch. The snug way they fit smooth across the feminine mound of her new womanhood was more horribly humiliating than any of the other changes, and she was constantly aware of the lack of that which had defined her manhood now past.

The dress she draped over her new form was simple in its design - more so than that Sheri wore, which was shorter and tighter, designed to show off the curves she shared with her 'cousin'. Made of a golden crushed velvet, the dress fell to just below Brandi's cutely dimpled new knees, and the neckline of the dress was high enough that only the faintest hint of cleavage was revealed.

Nevertheless, the garment felt to her as if it had been solely designed with no other thought than reinforcing her newly feminine status. The dress had somewhat of a 'historical' flair to it, like something out of a fantasy novel, with strings lacing up the side - which allowed it to be pulled tight both to her trim waist and full bust. The skirt, however, flared quite a bit past her hips - which was somehow worse, for it swirled and moved almost as if it had a life of its own, and the feel of it swaying and swirling was a constant reminder that she had a body the correct gender to feel such feminine sensations.

Even had Sheri been feeling particularly vindictive, there was simply no way she could have demanded Brandi wear high heels - not only did Brandi have no experience in heels, she was having trouble enough with just managing her new and decidedly different center of gravity as it was. A simple pair of leather sandals was what she was given to wear.

However, that wasn't quite the end of it. Brandi was also 'forced' to wear a bare minimum of make-up - not because Sheri was feeling particularly kind, nor because a full-out effort would have looked garish in comparison to the simplicity of the rest of the outfit. No, it was simple expedience - Sheri had to get ready herself, and she couldn't demand Brandi do her own make-up. Though it might have been enjoyable to watch Brandi struggle with the new skills of applying make-up, she didn't want Brandi looking like a clown when her friends came over - so, instead, she applied a quick coat of simple lipstick and did the 'other woman's' mascara, and left it at that.

It was sort of a progression, actually.

Being female was 'bad enough' - which was a funny way of looking at it, since the rather unformed thought on the subject then-Brad held was that a man being turned into woman would be the 'worst' thing in the universe.

Having to not just be female, but to dress female, however, was worse...

...and then, after that, came the ultimate humiliation. Acting female.

Not long after the two young women were 'ready', the friends Sheri mentioned arrived. There were five of them, three men and two women - and Brad, introduced as Brandi, was forced to deal with them as a woman... well, sort of.

She was hardly an outgoing, vivacious woman. Add to the fact that she was highly uncomfortable being seen and dealt with as a woman to the fact that she didn't know how to be a woman, and Sheri's idea of introducing her as 'shy' was a stroke of genius, because that's exactly how it came across. She sat in on chair in the relative corner of the room, wrapped up more in her own situation than the events going on around her, and trying hard to fight down the urge to bolt from the room.

As a man, Brad had very much been an 'alpha male', always having to be the center of attention. Here and now, as Brandi, she was quite and withdrawn and visibly uncomfortable, trying hard to sink into the chair she was sitting in - which, ironically, made Sheri's friends try all that much harder to make her feel comfortable.

What Brandi had been completely unprepared for, however, was just how well they succeeded...

Under other circumstances, Brandi would have had nothing to do with any of them. As far as Alpha-Male Brad was concerned, men like the three guys visiting tonight were not 'real' men, worthy only of contempt - and women were never anything more than sexual conquests, certainly not 'friends'.

Even so 'distracted' by the mere fact of her femininity as she was, Brandi was shocked to discover something: She was beginning to like Sheri's friends.

They weren't the overbearing, arrogant, sexist people 'Brad' called friends - but the thought of dealing with those type of men while in the female body she now wore made her skin literally crawl. These men, however, though obviously finding her attractive, weren't focusing solely on trying to get into her pants. Oh, she could tell they wouldn't mind if that's how it turned out, but that wasn't really their goal - they saw she was uncomfortable, and were more concerned with her emotional enjoyment than they were their own physical pleasure.

It was a mind-set that, as Brad, she'd always thought weak and pathetic - but, as Brandi, she was finding it something completely different.

In fact, she was utterly shocked to discover as the evening wore on... she was actually beginning to enjoy herself.

It wasn't that she wanted to enjoy herself - if asked, she would have been the first to tell you that the last thing she wanted was to enjoy even the smallest part of being female. Indeed, there was actually something soothing to her still-male ego about finding anything vaguely related to her feminine state as torturous. After all, as an Alpha Male, she thought being female should be the most horrific thing that could happen to her.

Yet, despite this hard-held mindset, the efforts everybody was bending towards making her feel comfortable was, quite literally, overwhelming. Completely against her will, she found herself beginning to enjoy Sheri's friends.

It was some time, late at night, after the party had broken up and Brandi had been allowed to get out of her borrowed feminine finery and slide between the crisp sheets of the bed in the guest room that she suddenly sat bolt upright in bed, a shocked expression on her face as the thought that had been keeping her awake finally became fully formed:

Women were people too!

It was a completely new thought, one completely outside of Brandi's previous frames of reference. Up until tonight, women had been nothing more than cardboard cut-outs. The ones he found sexually attractive and could bed were living sex-dolls for his pleasure, and the ones he'd wanted but who had denied him were lesbo bitches, curses put on the earth to annoy him. The women he didn't want sex from... he'd just ignored.

As a woman, Brandi had considered herself a man trapped in a woman's body, an therefore an anomaly - the one woman on the planet who was a real person. However, after an evening with Sheri's friends the thought had been given impetus, and couldn't be denied. As much of an eye-opener as it had been to have guys being nice to her for reasons other than just trying to get into her pants was the fact she'd spent several hours in the company of women, listening to them, seeing them interact, and generally doing something she'd never done before as a man:

Paying attention.

Deprived of a cock, she couldn't 'think with her dick', as she always had as a man - and so she'd been forced to have some new thoughts all her own. As the rest of the night wore on, she finally managed to fall into a fitful sleep - one haunted by the questions that came from how she would have felt, as a 'real person' and a woman, if she were to be treated the way Brad himself had always treated women...

* * * *

The next day, Sheri and her friends went down to the beach. This time of the year, though the evenings grew quite cool, the days were still warm enough to enjoy - and the fact that they were drawing to a close only made the enjoyment of the nice whether that more poignant. Brandi, of course, had been invited to go along, but she'd refused - oddly enough, by telling the truth. After all, she really wasn't comfortable being seen in a bathing suit by a bunch of strangers.

Some hours later, Mark appeared at the door of the cabin to renew the offer. A reasonably good-looking guy in fair shape, he had long, dark hair and wore glasses - which, despite being far from pale, short, and socially awkward, still would have been enough to classify him as 'nerd' in Brad's books, and have thus been barely worthy of notice.

However, thanks to Sheri's ultimatum of the night before, Brandi had been forced to 'notice', and even interact, with Mark - and was amazed to discover that the blandly handsome bespectacled young man was amazingly good company. Not as brash as Brad's normal friend, he was nevertheless comfortable with himself, and he had a wonderful sense of humor that could even surprise the occasional smile out of a man busy being humiliated and horrified by unwanted femininity.

In fact, when he showed up in the early afternoon to re-invite Brandi down to the beach, she was surprised to find herself actually not totally annoyed with him for intruding upon her blissful escape from social femininity.

In fact.. she'd begun to be a bit lonely.

As Brad, she'd always had to be the center of attention. Though she'd never rally thought about it before, Brad had never spent more than a few hours alone at any given time. Though, when everybody had left, she'd been grateful to be left alone, by the time mark showed up, she was almost going out of her mind with the strange state of being by herself ,and she was a bit scared by the gratitude she felt even as she resolved to turn down his invitation.

Somehow, though, she never got around to it. She was too busy enjoying herself.

Even afterwards, she wasn't quite sure how it happened. When he showed up, she had just been making some coffee, and he'd poured a cup for himself - a necessity, since it hadn't even occurred to her to offer him some. He did it with his usual charm, however, and so they perforce sort of drank their coffee's together - and by the time she was offering him a forth cup and putting a de facto stamp of approval on his self-issued invitation, she was to busy having a spirited, entertaining, and amusing discussion with him to eve realize what she was doing.

Though there was absolutely no way she could forget she was now a woman, somehow, during that afternoon, it just somehow... didn't seem important. It wasn't until late that night, after the rest of them had come back home and they'd had dinner and a sort of 'get together' afterwards, that the whole day sort of came back to her in retrospect, wondering exactly when and how she and Mark had become more important in her mind as individual people than just 'guy' and 'girl'...

...and wondering why, exactly, she invited him back the next day.

So set the sort of template for the days that followed. Inevitable, some or all of Sheri's friends would drop by to invited her to the beach, or the county fair, or some other outing, and invariably Sheri would accept, but Brandi would decline...

...and, equally invariable, Mark would either stay, or at least cut his excursion short to come visit with Brandi for a few hours alone - leaving her feeling very, very confused.

Each time, she was utterly prepared to turn him away... and each time, somehow, she got caught up in his charm, and found herself not only letting him stay, but enjoying it.

It was all very confusing, and all the more so because this quietly unassuming, constantly cheerful young man who would never have met the so-called standards of the old Brad was nevertheless the one very much in control of the strange relationship that had formed.

Brandi didn't quite understand it - but she couldn't fight it, either. Given the situation, it wasn't all that surprising that she felt so awkward in her new role as a woman that she couldn't get on top of it enough to be the brash, arrogant individual she was as a man... but even stranger was that fact the she found herself enjoying the subservient posture she'd adopted in the burgeoning relationship.

It scared the living daylights out of her, and even made her feel highly uncomfortable - but not enough that she managed to find the nerve - or the willingness - to break it off. Mark's dominance, real as it was, was aimed at making sure she enjoyed her time with him and he was very, very good at it.

It was on her fifth day being a woman that she and Mark kissed.

She didn't plan on it - but she was nevertheless the one who initiated it. Mark had been joking around, leaving her laughing, when he'd mock-attacked her and she'd mock-fended him off... and, somewhere in the middle of that embrace, it somehow felt so utterly right to kiss him that she did it without even thinking about it.

She realized what she'd done almost immediately, of course - but, by then, Mark was already kissing her back...

...and she didn't stop him.

In fact, she didn't stop him from slowly undressing her sometime later, nor did she stop the nearly hour-long exploration of her body with his hands and lips.

Not only didn't she stop the long, slow, gentle session of lovemaking that followed, she was a willing participant in it.

Later, after he'd fallen asleep in the bed beside her and she was staring up at the ceiling, she tried to determine at which point she'd become a 'fag' - and couldn't. Even at that point, she could think about women, and find them sexy, while think about certain men and shudder at the thought of them touching her... and yet, the thought of having sex with mark still sent those incredible warm tingles racing down her spine and a warm moistness building in her crotch.

For the first time in her life, she hadn't had sex to satisfy a physical urge. What had happened that day had been something else entirely. It had been an emotional urge, not a physical one - and that's what 'bothered' her the most, because the motional urge had been - still was - stronger then all the negative emotions about what had happened...

...which, when you also added in the fact that the orgasm she'd reached had been mind-numbingly powerful, without even counting in the incredible sensations that finally made her understood why women desired foreplay, meant that there was an overwhelming balance to her 'viewpoint' on the whole having-sex-as-a-woman thing.

The fact that this was happening left her feeling worried, excited, confused, eager, scared, happy, nervous, confident, angry, content...

...and, in other words, more or less exactly the same way every woman throughout history has ever felt about just having entered into a 'serious' relationship with a guy.

Just like all those other women before her, Brandi discovered that what her head said didn't always override what her body and her heart wanted - which was how, despite her best intentions, she didn't 'dump' Mark the very next day... and, in fact, ended up in bed with him again, staring up at the ceiling again and trying to figure out how the hell it had all happened again....

* * * * *

'What am I doing ?'

Mark's tongue swirled lightly around her fully engorged nipple, then his caressing hand gently gave the full, warm breast filling it a loving squeeze as his mouth began working it's way down her body.

'Okay, I know 'what' I'm doing. 'She thought with something very close to a mental giggle as she moaned softly in pleasure at Mark's gentle ministrations. 'The question is Why '?

Then Mark's tongue found the moist center of womanhood, and all questions even vaguely philosophical swiftly vanished.

Some eternal, uncounted time later, she lay curled on her side, listening to the deep, even breathing of the man beside her. Very slowly and carefully, Brandi slipped her long, shapely lips from his and uncoiled from the bed. Silently, she picked up the bathrobe she'd so eagerly discarded some time before and slipped it over her shoulders.

Letting the fluffy white terry-cloth robe hang open, she quietly let herself out of the room and padded naked towards the kitchen, her body openly displayed by the robe. She wasn't the least bit worried anybody else might see her that way, for it was very early in the morning...

...and Sheri had already went home the day before.

Walking over to the cabinet, Brandi opened the door and pulled out a small vial filled with a slightly oily liquid. The antidote.

Given to her more than twelve hours before, just before Sheri had left to go home.

The question that was bothering Brandi was why she hadn't taken it yet.

Two weeks before, she would have killed to get her hands on this little vial - and yet, this afternoon when it had been given to her, she hadn't drank it down immediately. Indeed, she'd simply sat and stared at it until Mark had dropped by early this evening. Since she'd never discussed her plans with him, he'd been unsure when she was leaving, and had come by in the hopes she'd still be there and when he'd knocked on the door, she'd put the vial away and let him in.

She'd told herself at the time that it was 'one last fling' - but now that she'd flung, she still didn't feel herself overcome with a desire to down the elixir's antidote.

It didn't seem to make sense. She wasn't really a woman, even though she had to admit, somewhat sheepishly, that she was doing a damned good impression of one. So why wasn't she eagerly gulping the antidote down?

After all, it was the only way to get back to her own life, already put on hold for two long weeks. Oh, sure, she-as-Brad had scheduled that time off... but now it was up, and she was supposed to be in at work the same time Cheryl was, and tonight's dalliance had made that impossible. Perhaps she could stretch her homecoming a little further with only some awkward results... but every passing hour was biting into her male life.

This antidote was the answer, of course. This little bottle of liquid was her ticket back to her old gender... Her old job.

Her old friends.

Her old life.

Everything she'd so desperately wanted since the very first instant since being female had been forced on her.

Well, everything she wanted so desperately that first moment, at least. She'd sort of assumed she'd still desperately wanted it up until the moment the vial had been handed to her, but it had been such a 'given' that she hadn't really thought about it - at least, not until the moment came, and she found that desperation lacking.

Why wasn't she gulping it down this very second?

She stopped and considered it, something she really hadn't done, not deeply. She looked at it and asked herself the question: If I had downed this the instant it had been given to me, where would I be right now?

She let the image build in her mind in excruciating detail.

Brad, surrounded by his friends in some club, hitting on women so they'd have some sort of female companionship, however shallow, for the night...

...and then the most startling and powerful revelation of all hit her, and her eyes widened as the truth hit home like a hammer. Then, after the moment's paralysis as the shock hit, she slowly and quite deliberately uncorked the little vial...

...then dumped it ceremoniously down the sink.

Laying aside a vial now as utterly empty as her old male life had been, Brandi smiled softly to herself, then turned and headed back towards the bedroom where a warm, caring, and oh-so-giving lover was curled up in her bed.

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: A young man hitchhiking through a small town is stopped by the local sheriff and is forced to be under the protective watch of the Reverend, a religious nut who has his ways of controlling people.

Reverend

By Gunslinger

The wind whipped viciously at the lone figure trudging down the verge of the deserted highway, pulling and twisting at the faded denim jacket that hung open on his slender frame. His unkempt mane of sandy hair tousled in the wind, sometimes obscuring the pale blue eyes.

Although only 18, the young man looked older, worn by time and distance as he walked backwards for a few feet, gazing down the desolate stretch of asphalt, hoping for a car to appear. Seeing nothing for miles, he turned back around and continued his surprisingly ground-eating amble.

Jack Perkins heard it before he saw it - the growl of an engine, straining to top the rise that lay before him. Then, the roof-line of the oncoming vehicle crested the rise - and Jack felt his stomach flutter nervously at the sight of the old-style bar of revolving lights mounted atop the vehicle.

Jack had the routine down pat by now. Too much interest would attract attention - as would an overt desire not to let his face be seen. Casually, feigning disinterest, Jack glanced up as the cop-car cruised by, but didn't stare, and didn't look back as the older Caprice cruised by. He continued walking, heaving a sigh of relief as the growl of the police car began to fade...

...then, accompanied by the sound of tires on gravel, began to grow louder as the patrol car swung around and ever so slowly pulled even with Jack. Jack could feel the unseen cop inside eyeballing him, then the car accelerated a bit, and cut diagonally onto the shoulder, blocking Jack's path. Wearily, Jack stopped.

"Howdy, boy." The sheriff drawled as he moved his mountainous bulk of muscle from the car. He settled the Smokey Bear hat in place, and gazed at Jack with interest. "Where y'all heading?"

Jack tried a smile. "Just moving on to the next town, officer. Looking for some work, is all." He'd found that it paid to be polite and informative.

"Uh huh." The lawman grunted, eyeing Jack. "Well since about a mile back, you're in my town. So, I have to ask... Y'all got fifty dollars on you, boy?"

Jack winced. Most towns had a "Fifty dollars or fifty days" vagrancy law. If you couldn't produce fifty dollars in cash, you were arrested and sentenced to fifty days of community service. Some towns even hoped you didn't have the fifty dollars. The state paid a mere dollar an hour for the community service, so a small town could get a vagrant to do the scut work a hell of a lot cheaper than actually hiring someone.

Because of this, Jack usually kept a reserve of fifty for such eventualities, and was merely told to 'keep moving' by the cop. But he'd had a hard time finding work in the past month on the road, and had finally dipped into that cash for some food, leaving him with only twenty-eight dollars.

"No, officer, I'm afraid I don't." Jack sighed. Well, at least he'd have some more cash by the time he left this crummy town. At eight hours a day for fifty days meant he'd have four hundred bucks when he finally left, even if it was earned through either back braking labor, dirty labor such as sewage cleaning, or both.

"Hmm... Well, I'm afraid I'm going to have to run you in. You all got any I.D.?" The cop asked.

"Yes sir." Jack replied, handing over a tattered Age of Majority card. The cop took one look at the photo I.D., and shook his head sadly. "Son, I'm afraid I'm going to have to send you over to the Academy. You're birthday ain't for another three weeks."

Jack blinked. "Huh? You must be mistaken officer - it's my nineteenth birthday in three weeks, not my eighteenth."

The cop nodded ruefully. "I know son, but in this here county, we'all got ourselves a law. Y'all gotta be nineteen or older to work for the county. So, I have to send you over to the Reverend's academy."

Unresistingly, Jack let himself be put in the back of the police cruiser. He leaned forward as the cop climbed in the front. "What's this academy? What's going on?"

The cop sounded truly regretful. "Son, I'm sorry. If I had any choice, I'd just let you go. But the reason I came out here was because the Reverend himself saw you when he drove by. He called me to take a look. If you were only three weeks older, I could show your

I.D. to the Reverend, and you'd be on your way to a nice, easy job cleaning the station for me."

Jack was starting to worry. The cop seemed like a basically honest man, who really did try to help out. But the tone in which he was speaking...

"Look, just tell me what's going on. Who's this 'Reverend' you're talking about?"

The cop shrugged. "I don't know his right name, 'though he must have one. All I know is that he owns this town, like his daddy did and his daddy before him."

Jack was now getting really concerned. It sounded like some cheap gangster movie plot-line. "What do you mean, owns the town."

"Well, the Reverend's Gra'father actually bought all the land in the area. Rumor is, he struck it rich in either gold, oil, or both. Anyhow, he built the town, and handed everything down. Now, the Reverend is the landlord of everyone in town, he's the Mayor, and he's the judge. He also runs an academy on the edge of town - the 'Sunrise Academy for Wayward Youths', it's called. That's where I hafta take you."

Jack swallowed. "And in three weeks? You'll come back, and I'll work for the county for the rest of the fifty days?"

The cop sighed. "Nope. See, the Reverend will actually pay you, so in three weeks, you'll have enough cash to be free and clear. That's if you leave."

"If I leave?!"

The cop was definitely uncomfortable. "Son, I shouldn't say nothing - but I have to. Almost everybody who goes in there is some kid who is nothing more than a juvenile delinquent. Most are thieves, but there's at least four rapists and one murderer I know about.

Given a choice between prison and the Academy, they chose the academy. But you..." The cop paused for a few minutes. "Look, I don't know what goes on behind those walls. I'm not allowed to know. But I do know that every boy or girl who went in there 'volunteered' to stay. I even got the signed affidavits to that - which is why, legally, I don't have 'reasonable cause' to go in for a look- see. But I don't like the reverend, and I don't like this situation."

"You could just let me go." Jack said, truly frightened.

The cops big shoulders slumped as he pulled up to a wrought iron gate in a heavy brick wall. "Wish I could, son. Wish I could." He climbed out and opened the back door. Jack emerged, heart pounding. Through the gate, he could see a tall, handsome man dressed in a white linen suit approaching, trailed by four muscular youth in denim jumpsuits. One of these heavily muscled, threatening looking youths was female.

Before the Reverend was close enough to hear, Jack turned to the cop. "Officer, thank you for your honesty. I know you're just doing your job."

The muscular cop looked at Jack both gratefully and sadly, and shook Jack's hand. "The name's Donner. Tom Donner. In three weeks, I'll be right here - I want to see you walk through that gate so I can drive you to the edge of town and send you on your way."

Jack nodded, then turned and faced the gate as it cracked open.

"Officer Donner - a new addition to our happy little family here?" the Reverend asked with a cheerful tone. To Jack, it sounded too cheerful.

Donner nodded wordlessly. With a slight signal from the Reverend, the muscular quartet surrounded Jack. Without resistance, he allowed them to escort him towards the sprawling, forbidding brick structure. He spared one glance back, and saw the gate closing on the sight of Sheriff Tom Donner.

"Now, now, no looking back." The Reverend chided gently. "From now on, the outside world is none of your concern."

Jack was lead into the low, sprawling building, and he looked around with interest. Almost immediately, he had to force himself to keep a straight face at the sight that greeted him.

The building was full of youths, ranging in age from about 16 to 22. That, in itself, wasn't the cause of the shock Jack felt. It was the fact that all the youths fit clearly into four separate, and very defined, groups.

The first was the one Jack had already seen. Muscular youths, mainly male but a few female, all with the same 'Arnold Schwarzenegger' build, dressed in the denim jumpsuits - which, now that he noticed, Jack realized was a uniform of some sort. Jack mentally tagged this group as the 'enforcers'. It was a mental tag of his own, applied at first sight, but he had the odd feeling that the appellation was eerily accurate.

The second group Jack mentally tagged as 'drones.' The balance of genders in this group seemed to be sixty/fifty in favor of males. All the guys wore conservative, well tailored business suits in dark shades - gray, navy, loam or black.

The girls in this group wore business outfits as well. All were outfits that had skirts - no slacks. Also, nylons and heels. But unlike their male counterparts, they wore more colorful clothing. Pastel shades for some, 'power' colors for others.

The third group Jack named 'Students' - because they all dressed like catholic school students. This time, the balance was about sixty/fifty in favor of the girls, who all wore black leather pumps with two inch heels, white knee-socks, gray plaid skirts, white dress blouses and a dark blue silk bow around their necks. The guys wore similar outfits - black dress shoes, gray slacks, white dress shirts, and a dark blue tie.

But it was the forth group that had Jack struggling not to gape.

It was composed entirely of girls over the age of 18. They wore many variations of clothing, but it was all a variation on a theme.

They wore the sexiest outfits imaginable. Extremely high heels, whether pump, platform or boots. Leather, latex, silk - anything that clung or enticed. It wasn't only their clothing that was sexy - they were practically living come-ons, every move a sensual, erotic dance.

Jack pegged these girls as 'hookers', and, again, felt it wasn't too far off the mark.

But the most frightening thing was the way that every single boy and girl had the same, satisfied look on their face, as if this was what they wanted more than anything else.

The Reverend smiled at Jack. "As you can see, we turn bad boys and girls into useful, productive members of society. Some become managers, accountants or other personnel for my business interests. Others help me run this home smoothly and efficiently. Some are getting very special education, so that they can take their place in other peoples businesses - while they remain absolutely loyal to my interests. And of course, those of the weaker sex unable to function in any other role serve to pleasure the more productive members of the group - as God intended."

That's when Jack realized that he was dealing with a man who was, without a doubt, absolutely insane. He stopped dead, appalled. That was enough. The Reverend's face twisted in anger at even this token rebellion.

"Grab him!" He shouted, spittle flying.

Immediately, his goon squad obeyed. Grabbing the struggling young man, they dragged him bodily to a small, dimly lit room, and fastened him down to the table in the center. As he screamed and fought to escape, they attached electrodes to his skin, tearing off his clothes for access.

Once Jack was immobilized and wired up, the Reverend smiled cruelly. "Zap him."

Jack screamed as the electricity arced through him, causing his body to shudder and twist. The electrodes on his chest seemed to be burning holes right through his skin as his heart began to beat arrhythmic, the voltage causing fibrillation.

Then the pain stopped. The world, gray and wan, spun before Jack's half-opened eyes - and all he could see was the leering face of The Reverend.

"If you SPARE the ROD, you SPOIL the CHILD, Jack." The Reverend hissed, and the insanity in his eyes was almost a fearful to behold as the death's head rictus that passed for a smile.

"You've been bad, Jack, and you...must...be...punished!"

Again, the pain swept over him, overwhelming his nervous system as he began to spasm. Energy shot up and down the fine network of nerves - nerves designed to handle mere micro-volts of chemically created electricity. Now, a thousand times that burned traces of fire through the network in an orgy of pain.

Finally, Jack's body could take it no more, and provided the oldest, most basic defense system it possessed. He passed out.

When he slowly climbed from the deep well of darkness, it was late at night, and he lay alone in his bunk, his body feeling raw and stiff, as if he'd been dead, not just unconscious. With a stifled groan, he lifted his head and checked himself, mildly surprised to find that the electric torture had left no visible marks.

But it did have a visible effect. The electricity had been enough to act like an electrolysis machine - aside from his eyebrows and his long, sandy blond hair, not a single strand of hair remained anywhere on his body, leaving his skin perfectly smooth and hairless, making it appear almost artificial.

Then and there, Jack vowed to escape at the soonest opportunity, risk be damned. He was getting out.

* * * * *

'The soonest opportunity' didn't occur for nearly a week.

Jack was assigned to constant guards - standard procedure. They weren't called guards - the Reverend called the 'Adaptation Coordinators', but guards were what they were. His were Hector Gonzales - known as Heck, for some reason, and the girl from the first day, Toni. Both were basically interchangeable with any other guard, all of them having the same massive build.

Jack was assigned a bunk, a meal ticket, and two identical suits of the 'student' clothes. Then his indoctrination began.

He suffered through three more of the electric tortures before he let them do their work. The Reverend's version of education was nothing more - and nothing less - than brain washing. A 'student' would be strapped into a chair, an IV of hypnotic drug run into his arm, and a special helmet, containing miniature LED screens and earphones placed over the students head.

It was this procedure that Jack fought, earning the punishments, as well as having his meal ticket revoked. With no food, and week from the torture, his guards were able to keep him from successfully struggling as they put him in place, and his 'correct' training began.

Jack was horrified to find his will weakening. He found the implanted mindset becoming stronger, the thoughts and views imposed beginning to drown out his own, real personality. He fought the condition mentally, with only marginal success.

Then, on the sixth day, he was led outside for the weekly exercise period. Without further ado, Jack broke for the nearest wall.

He was week from lack of food - but he'd once won first place three years in a row at sprinting, and his speed was impressive. He outdistance the more muscular guards, his feet flying over the ground as a feeling of hope rose in him like a bird soaring for the freedom of the open sky.

No-one could outrun him - his speed was too great. Unfortunately, his wall-climbing ability wasn't.

He was only about halfway up the wall when he was dragged down, kicking and screaming.

Surprisingly, he was marched right past what he'd come to call the 'electrocution chamber', and into another room. His heart sank at the sight of a large X-frame with straps dangling from it. One of his constant guards - Heck - was just finishing strapping him in place when the Reverend appeared.

Jack struggled futilely against the straps that bound him.

"Let me go, you sick bastard!" Jack shouted, eyes blazing. "Undo these goddamn..."

Jack never saw the blow coming. Heck's meaty hand looped around in a short, savage arc, smashing into the pit of Jack's stomach. Jack's voice died in a whoosh of expelled air.

"Don't take the Lord's name in vain!" Heck screamed, spittle flying from his mouth. Murder broiled in his dark eyes.

Jack didn't answer - was unable to answer. For a long moment, he couldn't force his lungs to accept air. The blow had expelled every square inch of oxygen in his lungs, and he fought for a breath, finally succeeding with a long, deep draught of air that had never felt as pure.

"So, young Mr. Perkins believes himself to be a track star." The Reverend said, meditatively. "We can't have our young charges trying to leave before their education is complete, now can we?"

There was a chorus of agreement from the assembled boys. The Reverend smiled, and signaled.

"This should slow you down, I should think." The Reverend said, madness dancing in his grin, as one of the other 'disciples' knelt before Jack. He watched in horror as the young man opened a box and produced a pair of shoes.

Women's shoes.

Black leather, they were small and dainty, with the most outrageously high heels Jack had ever seen - at least six inches, and probably more. The straps on his legs held him immobile as the other boy grasped his foot.

"Hey!" Jack said, eyes widening. "No... You can't... They won't fit..." The boy smiled. "I'll make them fit..."

And he did, forcing the shoes onto Jack's feet, painfully cramping Jack's toes into the too-small shoe. Jack watched in disgust and shame as the young man demonstrated the 'special feature' of these shoes - an ankle strap that was securely fastened in place by a small padlock, ensuring that Jack wouldn't be able to remove the shoes. Even worse, a length of thin - but strong - chain attached from the hasp of one padlock to the other, limiting how long a stride Jack would be able to take from now on.

It was certain that Jack wouldn't be doing any running soon. When the shoes were firmly locked into place, Jack was released from the frame, to stand atop the slim stiletto heels of the fetish footwear. Jack's arms windmilled as he fought to balance on the ridiculously high heels, barely managing to stay upright.

Walking exceedingly slow, he awkwardly headed for his room, fighting for balance every step of the way. As he walked he had a rather odd thought - with his utterly hairless legs, the shoes almost looked like they belonged at the end of his denuded legs.

Brushing the thought aside, Jack concentrated on keeping his balance with every step he took.

It wasn't easy.

* * * * *

He immediately began getting a ration of shit from his two guards - Toni in particular. Since they had absolute control over his day to day life, it made his life a living hell.

Toni's first decree was that he wear the female version of the school uniform. Jack's resistance lasted all of fifteen minutes - that's when he was dragged through the halls, naked, towards his 'lesson' for the day. Twenty minutes later, face flaming, he was led to 'class', nattily attired in the skirt-blouse-nylon combination.

The whistles that his nylon encased legs occasioned didn't help.

The next minor hell he went through was soon after - when the Reverend caught sight of the femininely clad youth.

His only comment was "Make-up goes with that uniform - wear it." The crazed 'Man of God' was obviously enjoying Jack's predicament. Jack took it surprisingly well. He applied the make-up without argument - even though he was forced to do it over and over again.

The reason that he didn't argue was simple. A B-cup bra had been assigned to him with the uniform, and he was ordered to pad it out. So he did.

With every stray object he could sneak. Despite the guards watchfulness, they'd supplied him with a place to hide a stolen stash of objects to help his next escape attempt, one which he had planned much more carefully than just 'run for it'.

Jack had already determined that his first, headstrong break had been incredibly stupid. Now, with a week and a half of observation of how the place worked, he thought he had it figured out.

That's why, after twelve days in captivity, he made his second escape attempt.

* * * * *

Jack moved through the darkened corridors. But he didn't move like a fugitive - he moved easily, head up, back straight, with a slight fixed smile on his face.

Because, for the duration, he wasn't Jack, new 'Student' at the academy - he was one of the 'Working Girls'.

He'd found out that, once a week, a small contingent of girls was sent out to the Reverend's house, which was said to be on the other side of town, and more of a mansion than a simple house.

Jack had planned all of this carefully. His first step had been his apparent acceptance of his situation, which lulled his guards into a false sense of security.

Meanwhile, he'd been pilfering the necessary items for what he needed.

Now, he was lagging just slightly behind an even dozen of the working girls. Like them, he was dressed in an array of sexy clothing. In his case, black fishnet stockings, a tight red leather miniskirt with matching jacket over a black T-shirt. A massive blonde wig helped disguise his face, as did the heavy make-up he wore - the application of which had been taught to him by Toni. If she had known, the irony of the situation probably would have killed her.

Even so, Jack wasn't taking any risks. A too long look at his face would reveal the truth. So, he'd guaranteed that none of the male guards would be looking at his face.

Four of the brain-washed girls had elected to have massive breast-enlargement surgery. Now, a pilfered KK-cup bra from one of them was stuffed to the straining point with stolen towels. Any male guard glancing at 'her' wouldn't get any higher than the chest, Jack was sure.

And since all the 'working girls' were known to be brainwashed into slavish obedience, no-one even thought to question her, or even notice the one extra member. Jack merely kept quiet as they were all loaded into a mini-bus for the trip across town.

As the bus arrived at the Reverend's mansion, Jack's heart thudded so hard he was positive it could be heard back at the Academy. With the same fixed smile, he trailed the rest of the 'working girls' off the bus - then, when he wasn't being watched, broke and ran, high- heels clattering on the pavement as he flew along the darkened streets, searching.

Finally, he spotted what he wanted. Panting, fake, bra encased tits seeming to weigh a ton, he burst through the doors of the small, provincial looking police station.

The thin, not too intelligent deputy looked up in surprise as Jack busted in, staring at the huge-breasted apparition in front of him. "What the?" He said, standing. "Look, Miss..."

"Where's Sheriff Donner?" Jack shouted. The deputy was visibly startled by the decidedly masculine voice coming from this apparently feminine person.

"Uh... He... He's at a meeting in Vegas. What... What's going on here?"

Jack's heart plummeted at the unexpected news. "Look, call him. Right now! Tell him that Jack Perkins is in trouble. Tell him that Jack needs his help... and has that evidence he wants. Tell him that!"

"Look..." the deputy said, startled - then sighed in relief as the doors burst open, and Jack's personal guards burst through, followed by the Reverend.

"Terrance, we have an escaped boy, and need your..." the Reverend started to say as he entered - then registered the incredibly buxom presence and screeched to a halt, both physically and verbally, and stared at the huge-breasted 'woman' who was gaping back at him.

For a second, everybody stared in shock at each other, then the light dawned for Heck. "That's him!" he yelled, diving for Jack, followed close behind by Toni.

Jack cursed. He fought like a wildcat, damning himself for a fool. He'd hoped that the guards wouldn't miss him until morning, but apparently they'd noticed almost immediately, and gone to see the Reverend. The Reverend, who had the whole town in his pocket, had decided to call on reinforcement in the search, gone to the police station - and found Jack stupidly waiting for him there.

Despite Jack's struggles, the two muscular youths easily overpowered him, dragging him from the police station and out to the waiting car, where he was tossed negligently aboard.

Throughout the whole thing, the deputy merely watched, his face conveying supreme disinterest in the whole thing.

Jack, rubbing bruised muscled, began to sit up in the car - when Heck brought a lead-weighted sap down on his head, and everything went black.

* * * * *

Jack awoke briefly to darkness. He was laying on a soft surface, and he could feel the straps restraining him at wrists, ankles and waist. Fear flared at the thought that he was strapped into the electrocution table, although he couldn't feel the electrodes on his skin.

Then the Reverend's face loomed over him, the insane fire dancing in his eyes.

"My my, what an attractive young woman it was at the police station..." he crooned, and Jack's blood turned to ice in his veins. "...obviously so eager to join the ranks of our working girls."

Now Jack became aware that he was in some sort of operating room. People moved about in the dim lighting, and a man stood near his head, holding an anesthesia mask. Jack began to buck and fight the restraints that held him as the Reverend spoke once more.

"So we've decided to let you..."

Then the mask came down to cover his twisting face, held firmly in place by two pairs of strong hands. Once more, everything went dark.

* * * * *

Jack came awake slowly,, strapped into a the X-rack, aching from head to foot. He groaned softly - then his eyes shot wide open at the high-pitched voice he'd groaned in reached his ears.

The Reverend leered down at him, insanity dancing in his eyes.

"Good morning, Miss Perkins." The 'Man of God' cooed, a sneer curling his lips.

"Wha... What have you done to me?" Jack cried, and hearing the definitely feminine voice it emerged in, he had a sinking feeling he knew.

The Reverend laughed, and signaled a couple of muscular helpers, who man-handled a full-length mirror in place - and Jack almost fainted.

Reflected in the mirror was a slim-waisted young woman with a full head of rich hair and womanly hips. Long, smooth, sexy legs led down from her firm, full ass. And thrust proudly from her chest was a pair of huge, firm, round tits.

Jack screamed in horror at the sight, hovering near the edge of madness. The only thing that kept him from tumbling over the brink was the sight of his own large, thick cock dangling incongruously between silken thighs. At the sight of his own sexy, transformed body, it began to swell, and Jack was horrified to realize that he was turning himself on.

"Oh, don't worry about that..." the Reverend chuckled. "As soon as it's safe - you're fully healed from the surgery we've already done - we're going to finish the job." He laughed unpleasantly. "In the meantime..."

Jack tried to struggle as the helmet was lowered into place, and the LCD screens flared to life. He struggled to avoid the messages it carried, but he felt the needle carrying the hypnotic drug slipping into a vein, and the world began to go fuzzy as the information was fed directly into his helplessly defenseless mind.

Jack never knew how long she floated in that limbo, her mind awash with programmed thoughts that she couldn't distinguish from her own thought processes.

Then, faintly, she became aware of a commotion occurring beyond the confines of the helmet. Several minutes later, she felt the needle ripped from her vein, and the helmet was removed, causing her to blink in the sudden brightness.

Jackie stared up at the muscular man staring wide-eyed at her - then sighed with relief. "Sheriff! Thank God!" Jackie cried, relieved. Her torture was finally over.

"Jack?" the law officer asked hesitantly. "Is... Is that you?" Jackie frowned. "Yeah, it's me. Who else would it be?"

Numbly, the muscular officer began unstrapping her. Behind him, Jackie watched with glee as two state troopers fastened cuffs around the Reverend's wrists.

"What have they done to you?" Tom asked her - and Jackie frowned. She looked down at herself - her long, sexy legs, large thick penis and slender waist all but obscuring by her magnificent, massive tits. She sighed with relief to find everything as it should be.

"What do you mean?" Jackie asked, confused.

"You... You have tits!" Tom stammered, shocked. He waved a hand helplessly. "You... look like a woman!"

Jackie frowned. "Huh? Look, I look the same I always have." She smiled at the stunned law officer. "Hey, no girl has a cock like mine. It's huge!" Then she frowned. "Too bad it isn't bigger, though."

The stunned cop blinked. "Huh?"

Jackie sighed. "Life would be great if I could just suck my own cock. Then I wouldn't have to worry about these damn cravings overwhelming me at awkward times. God, I really need to suck a cock."

Tom swallowed, then spoke slowly and carefully. "Jack, do you remember when we first met?" Jackie snorted. "Of course. I was just inside the town limits and..."

Her voice died as the memory resurfaced, almost like a movie.

And in this scene - she didn't have tits. In fact, she wasn't a wonderful, perfect she-male at all. She was a pathetic... man. "What the?" she stammered. "Tom, they've been screwing with my mind! They're trying to make me think I'm a... a guy!" "Aren't you?" Tom asked carefully.

Jack snorted. "Hell, no, I'm the best of both worlds. Tough, independent and smart, but also sexy, sultry and ready to go. A real nail-biting, cock-sucking she-male bitch!"

She said it proudly, like she always had. She was unique - nobody in the world could offer what she had. Then she sighed. "Aside from the damn craving, I'd be perfect. Look, uh can you kinda take a hike?" Tom blinked. It seemed like the confused expression was taking up perfect residence on his face. "Why?"

Jackie shrugged. "Some people find it uncomfortable to watch. I really need to suck a cock to end the craving, but I can lessen it for a while by jacking off and licking up my own cum. It's not as satisfying - but I need something."

Tom looked at her with pity. "It's really that bad?" "Hell, yeah!" Jackie replied vehemently.

Tom looked indecisive for a moment - he dropped his trousers, revealing a huge, thick cock of his own.

Jack smiled. "Thank god, Tom." Eagerly, she dropped to her knees and took his cock in her mouth, employing every skill at her disposal to provide the ultimate blow-job, before letting Tom cum in her hot, wet mouth and gulping down his sweet seed.

* * * * *

So, the town had to elect a new Mayor, as the Reverend - whose real name turned out to be Percival Smyth-Carruthers the Third, which might explain the insanity - was going to spend the rest of his natural life in an institute for the criminally insane. In an ironic twist of fate, he was scheduled for a full treatment of shock therapy.

The town tried to talk a certain Tom Donner into running, but the burly Sheriff insisted in retaining his job, which he pursued with his usual fairness and toughness - after a decent amount of time for a honeymoon, of course.

His new wife, one Jacqueline Perkins - Jackie - was quickly assigned a job in the police department. She started off as a dispatcher, but a few sharp words landed her a beat job as a deputy, replacing the one that had 'gone up the river' when the Reverend was enlisted.

And, as any of the town roughnecks and drunks would have attested after a run in with the new deputy, she might have been young, beautiful and possessing tits the size of Maine...

...but she really had balls.

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: When the Engineering Department at a university takes over the Med-Sci Department's experimental laboratory, things get extraordinarily creative.

Reversed Engineer

By Gunslinger

With three muffled - yet, solid-sounding - metallic 'clanks', the inner air-lock door swung open, the gleaming, five-inch-thick stainless steel swinging slowly open on it's recessed, armored hinge...

...to reveal Chester J. Lampwick, The Third.

Who, at the moment of unveiling, had his pasty-white face screwed up in a look of extreme distaste, his somewhat thick lips drawn back in a fearful grimace and his dark eyes nearly lost in the folds of flesh that were pushed around his eyes by his expression of distaste.

Doctor Harrison Blacke took one look at the short, slender man's expression... and laughed.

"That's what you get for not holding your breath for the anti-viral spray, Chet m'boy..." The scientist chuckled, gathering up the last of his papers and slipping them into the safe built into the wall behind his desk.

"Are you kidding...?" The graduate student asked, working his mouth as he walked over to where the coffee machine was happily burbling it's way to the end of another cycle. "If it wasn't for that AV spray, I'd never get anything with any flavor in my mouth."

Harry laughed again. "Don't let the cafeteria staff hear you say that. You know what they'll say - 'If you don't like our food...' " '....Then go somewhere else to eat." Chet chorused with the older man - and they shared a grin at the joke.

Lab 2-A was the largest, well-equipped lab that the University could provide for the Medical Sciences Department to train its prospective doctors and scientists every detail of advanced treatment of every contagion known to man. It was located, along with five other labs, in the basement of the Medical Sciences building on the eastern edge of the campus, the building also housing the offices, classrooms, public rooms and cafeteria of the Medical Sciences Department.

Which was probably why the men and women of the Med-Sci department weren't exactly thrilled that Lab 2-A had been 'stolen' by a couple of upstarts from the Engineering Department.

Of course, neither Harry Blacke, nor his protégé, Chet, had the clout necessary to 'steal' the lab - that took the full force of the Dean and the Council.

The punch-line of the big joke, though, was the fact that it was the Med-Sci staff who'd convened that meeting of the council, making the request - grudgingly, perhaps, but it was a case of being hoist by their own petard.

Not that the fact that they'd literally asked for Harry and Chet to come and 'steal' their lab meant they were gracious hosts - despite the fact that they needed Harry's expertise didn't keep them from 'honoring' the age-old rift between the Med-Sci and at the Engineering department that the university boasted. It was a tradition, one as old as the first stone laid on campus - the 'Nurses' didn't get along with the 'wrench-heads', and vice-versa, a fact as set in stone as the rising and setting of the sun. It was for this reason that the Med-Sci staff found little ways to torture the mere wrench-heads who'd intruded within their hallowed halls, invited or not - 'little things', like refusing to deactivate the complete isolation system of the contagion lab, forcing Harry and Chet to undergo the complete decontamination procedure every time they entered or exited the lab.

Which, of course, meant that once Harry and Chet were in the lab, they tended to stay there until they were ready to leave for the day - which kept them safely locked up, away from the rest of the Med-Sci people.

Not that either the student or teacher complained - they weren't here to socialize, after all. They were there to find out what the hell a Toshimamna 1297-343 was.

Lab 2-A was the biggest and best lab the Med-Sci building had to offer, fully equipped with the newest and nicest equipment - by virtue that it had all been purchased at reduced cost through one auction or another, everything from equipment repossessed by the US Government through the auspices of the Infernal... uh, Internal Revenue Service, to equipment taken from broken or late contracts, where the original provider was happy to get anything at all for what was, after all, very highly specialized equipment.

Somewhere in the middle of all this buying, the 343 had been delivered and installed, a small army of technicians wiring the huge, gleaming machine into the wall before vanishing.

The problem was, nobody could find any record of having bought or ordered the Toshimamna 1297-343 - and nobody had the faintest clue as to what the huge machine was for.

The Med-Sci people had gone the obvious route, trying to track down the supplier, the originating company, the technicians who'd installed the massive device - only to find each trail petering out. Nobody knew who made the machine, nor what it was supposed to do...

...and, hence, the Med-Sci staff had reluctantly turned to their 'comrades' in the Engineering department, hoping that their best and brightest professor - with the help of his best and brightest student - could figure out what the machine was for - without destroying it in the process, since it was obviously an expensive piece of equipment.

For the past three weeks, Harry and Chet had been examining the machine in detail, slowly working their way into the innards of the machine. Originally, they'd started out working four hours a day, as a team - but the more they examined the mysterious device, the more intrigued they'd become, their shifts stretching out into first six, then eight hours - and, when they'd realized just how advanced some of the technology was - and how valuable it could be - they'd switched to opposing shifts, to better allow them to work on the 343, slowly but steadily reverse engineering it, plumbing it's gleaming innards for it's secrets.

"I just got around to opening 15-R..." Doctor Blacke explained, gesturing towards one of the huge access plates that had been removed from the huge machine. At twenty-eight feet long, twelve feet high and twelve feet deep, the machine had numerous access points, plates sealed over the solid-steel chassis of the machine and labeled with a simple code. The nearly five foot square panel bearing the legend Blacke had mentioned was now leaning against the machine, the opening it had once covered now revealed.

Having followed his teacher's glance, the dark-haired young man turned back to Blacke and grinned.

"I'll see what secrets I can get it to give up tonight." Chet promised, idly brushing a lock of dark hair out of his face as he grinned at Harry. "Maybe this is the part where I discover all the secrets to Eternal Life and Happiness."

Harry grunted wryly. "Either that, or we discover it's the world's most advanced Soft Ice-Cream Maker."

Sharing a wry look of understanding, the two men then turned and took another long look at the mysterious machine.

"Well, I'll leave you to it..." Harry said, pulling on his suit jacket - while his twenty-four-year-old protégé slipped his own jacket off, hanging the garment on the recently vacated hook, his own eyes already going vague as he turned his not inconsiderable mental abilities towards the ongoing mystery of the 343.

"I'll see you in the morning, Doctor Blacke..." Chet said - and, from the vague tone of voice, Harry knew his student was already 'out of it', his mind light-years away in that strange mental place that Harry had once spent so much time, back when he was as young and quick-witted as the student who reminded him so strongly of himself at that age.

A soft, wistful smile on his face, Harry gathered up the last of his stuff, then let himself out of the lab...

...completely unnoticed by the dark-haired young man, who poured himself a cup of coffee, took two sips while looking thoughtfully at the 343, then put the mug down and promptly forgot it as he immersed himself in the half-formed theories and suppositions he'd formed about the machine and it's function.

Time slipped by, practically unnoticed by the slender, fleshy-featured youth as he worked his way into the opening in the machine, his little head-band mounted flashlight supplemented occasionally by the Army-surplus 'L'-shaped flashlight as he traced wiring and piping, his movements slow and precise as he studied the machine without giving into the surprisingly powerful urge to dismantle some of the more intriguing assemblies - assemblies that he couldn't have guaranteed being able to put back together correctly, which was what made the urge so strong to begin with.

It was at exactly four minutes and twenty-seven seconds past three o'clock in the morning that Chet lifted off another cover-plate... and found himself looking at a simple switch, a standard industrial-purpose green push-button, and inch across and flush-mounted in a recessed cylinder.

"What have we here...?" Chet inquired thoughtfully, tilting his head to better light the simple button...

...which, according to the work they'd already done surveying the machine, shouldn't be there. As far as either he or Harry knew, there was no wiring harnesses on the other side of the metal devising plate, one of many such inch-thick hardened steel that made up the chassis of the machine.

So... what the hell was this button connected to? Why bury a button in the bowels of a machine, behind a separate cover plate held into place by eight Torx screws? What was the purpose of the button - and how did that purpose tie into the larger question, the function of the machine itself?

Once more, a discovery had led, not to enlightenment, but to many more questions.

Which was why, at seven minutes and forty-nine seconds after three o'clock in the morning, Chet finally gave into an urge, reechoing out with one pale finger and firmly pressing the ridged green plastic backwards into its machine metal sleeve.

There was the soft 'click' of a circuit being activated...

...and a jolt of electricity arced through Chet, slamming his back straight and forcing him rigid, into a stretched-out, slightly spread-eagle position, allowed by the design of the small chamber - which now made more sense, considering that some unseen force had not only yanked his body straight, but lifted him so that he was 'hovering' above the floor-plates of the machine, a low hum filling his ears.

Chet, stunned, confused and afraid, tried to struggle, but the invisible bonds holding him up and out were unbreakable, leaving him no room to move despite the fact that there was no obvious pressure anywhere on his body, the restraints as light and insubstantial as the very air, yet as unbreakable as Abraham Lincoln's word.

Chet was even denied the ability to voice his shock and concern as the machine hummed louder - and a hidden 'trap door' slid open, allowing the unseen restraints to move him into the as-yet-uncharted bowels of the mysterious device.

Chet found himself to be floating in a new chamber - one whose 'ceiling' consisted of several flat-screen plasma monitors, positioned for easy visibility to whoever was being 'imprisoned' in the machine.

As Chet watched, helpless even to look away, the machine's screens flashed up several sequences of what could only be power-on diagnostics - and then the machine seemed to be ready to perform whatever function it was designed to do, since the screens blanked, then came up with what had to be a status report:

Transformation Sequence Engaged

ATTENTION: Mid-Point Entry detected. Primary Medical Care Function bypassed. Please Re-Initialize and relocate for 'Auto- Doc' function.

Please Choose Available Function:

[MALE BODY ENHANCEMENT] [FEMALE BODY ENHANCEMENT] [EXIT]

For a second, Chet merely stared at the glowing green letters a few inches from his face - and realized, with a burst of startled amazement, that the mysterious 343 was actually an advanced medical machine - computer run, and apparently capable of not only those procedures available to medical science, but much more advanced functions...

...and, about the same time, Chet realized that he was no longer completely immobile. In fact, he was able to move his right hand just enough to make use of the 'mouse' mounted in the frame nearby - the mouse which had hummed softly as it's hydraulic pistons had moved it into place, allowing him to make use of the machine.

If he could have, Chet would have sworn softly in amazement. As it was, all he could move was his hand, and he gripped the mouse and shove it slightly, moving the on-screen cursor over the box labeled 'EXIT'...

...and then he paused.

What, exactly, was the machine capable of...?

Hesitantly, he moved the cursor over to the 'MALE BODY ENHANCEMENT' box...

...then, even more hesitantly, over to the middle box. The one labeled 'FEMALE BODY ENHANCEMENT'.

Like many men, Chet was confused by women. Oh, sure, he found them sexy and enticing - at least, some of them, some of the time. However, he - and just about every other male on the face of the planet - found much about women to be a mystery, something that men just couldn't understand.

Chet had never wished he'd been born female. Nor did he wish to spend the rest of his life as the other gender - he was a guy, and if a bit 'geeky', still a guy with a fairly active sex-life - or, at least, he'd had one before throwing himself into the 343 Project. He didn't find other men attractive, had no urge whatsoever to try cross-dressing, and the thought of being 'trapped' as a woman was one that would have had him in a cold sweat, if it had been possible...

...which is why he found it a surprising that the thought of temporarily being female so damned enticing. Even an hour in the body of a woman, being able to 'experiment' at will with what a woman saw, heard and felt from the inside...

The mouse, on-screen, wavered hesitantly between the first two choices...

...and then, before he could change his mind, Chet pushed his finger down, firmly pressing the button on the mouse and choosing the box for female body enhancement.

The box flashed three times, then the screen cleared, supplying a whole new list of options, all related to the wire-frame image of a 'generic' female body that was slowly rotating in the center of the screen.

In other words, the computer that was running the machine was allowing him to choose the new female body he 'wanted' to wear...

...with an 'EXIT' box in the bottom corner of the screen, the small little electronic button seeming to call to a part of Chet's brain, the part that considered this sick and perverted.

Chet was, by nature, an extremely inquisitive person, full of curiosity about a whole range of things - in fact, it was one of the trademarks of his personality, and the reason why he was studying Engineering, his quick mind eager to learn and explore.

Presented with this chance, no matter how strange, risky or 'perverted' it was, he just couldn't let himself back down> Even though he knew he should exit the program, get out of the machine, and record his findings, he stayed right where he was - because once other people knew what the machine could do, he'd probably find himself barred from using it. In fact, he and Harry might be yanked from the project all together, getting some of the glory and money that the 343 might bring, but denied the chance to use it for such... foolhardy purposes.

Given that, Chet found that his desire to see if, in fact, the grass was greener on the other side was much stronger than any of his misgivings. In fact, the chance to experience something that no other man had was enough to create a rising tide of excitement, despite the pseudo-homosexual connotations that came along with his decision.

The available menu for designing a new form was pretty long, and obviously complex, each menu designed to open a sub-menu of choices, many of which had their own sub-menus, allowing for a huge number of possible permutations when it came to designing a body - a good design, allowing for custom designs of very precise natures.

However, being a well-designed interface, the computer also listed a couple of dozen 'Template' bodies - new female forms, complete with available sub-routines to make alterations directly to the mind, as well as the body.

Not wanting to learn by trial-and-error when it came to designing a custom body, Chet used the mouse to scroll through the available templates, looking for a 'quick and easy' change that would seem to offer the most... interesting experiences for a temporary explorer in the realm of femininity.

In fact, he scrolled through the available list seven times, each time hesitating over a few of the choices, wondering if he had the guts to go through with this...

"Ah, the hell with it..." He muttered - and, with a flick, sent the cursor scrolling through the list and - without waiting to see which choice was highlighted - pressed down on the button...

* * * * *

The darkness parted, and she opened her eyes...

...then started, staring up at some sort of... of... of artificial sun, rectangular in shape and an odd translucent white in color, set into some sort of strange roof, neither stone nor wood nor slate, looking oddly soft and yet supported in rectangular patterns by white crossing supports that showed the material was strong enough to support its own weight, despite how...

{Florescent lighting}

Startled at the strange male voice that sounded, she leapt from the table...

..and slammed, hard, to the ground, the gleaming metal table hanging over her protectively as she huddled underneath it, knees drawn up to her chest as she stared around in horror, not seeing the strange man who'd spoken so clearly to her a mere instant...

{Acoustic Tile}

Ye Gods! The voice was in her head...

...and she understood it.

No - she understood the concept it was providing.

Her mind whirling and spinning at the strange interior assault, she huddled, trembling, under the metal bed {medical gurney} at the end of the strange metal box {343}, whose open gaping mouth had seemingly spit her out to lay upon the leather-but-not-leather {vinyl} mattress upon which she'd awoken...

...and that voice would not stop talking to her inside of her head! Who was that voice...? Wait a second...

Who was she?

{Chet Lampwick}

There was that voice again! Speaking to her in her mind, providing concepts and ideas that were strange and new to her, and even when she was lost and unable to remember her own self, it was interfering, providing an image of a strange man dressed in even stranger clothes and...

...it was insisting that 'he' was her! No.

It wasn't 'insisting'. It was...

Informing.

In fact - it wasn't a strange voice at all, not another person's voice...

...but her accessing her own memories!

Except.. Except, though she realized this to be the case, the information it was giving was dry, reference work rather than literature. Whatever had happened to her mind had somehow put a split between her and this 'Chet' she was supposed to be/have been. Though she was dipping into the thoughts, memories and logical abilities of this 'Chet', it was as if she were hearing it second hand, not as a self-identifying thought that tied in with her current sense-of-self, even as 'undefined' as it was, but as if it were separate - as if there were a wall between her and him, even though the thoughts that were streaming into her mind seemed to insist that he and she were the same person, and changed by the strange magic box {Toshimamna 1297-343}.

This was all very confusing. She was, and yet wasn't, this 'Chet'. Though informed that's he had once been, she didn't feel it...

...but, in any case, there was no immediate danger, and so she slowly stopped trembling and eased herself out from under the table. Hesitantly, she walked over to the gleaming metal box, using a highly-polished section of the metal as a water-pond reflection {mirror} to take a look at herself.

A complete stranger stared back - as unfamiliar to her as the mental image of 'Chet' that had flashed through her strangely 'vacant' mind.

Her hair was long and wavy, the color of sun-dried wheat and the texture of purest silk, surmounted by a woven band of white flowers with yellow centers {Daisies} artfully created through the weaving of supple stems to form a crown for her.

Framed by that long hair was a face that was beautiful in its simplicity. A high, unlined brow started just below the petals of the last... Day-see...? {Daisy} and led to a finely-formed brow, upon which rested her lightly curved eyebrows.

Below that lay her eyes, limpid pools of pale green that looked out at the world past fine golden lashes. Her nose was narrow, with a finely-formed bridge and a dainty, slightly upturned tip, below which lay an unadorned pair of lips that turned up and inwards ever so slightly just below her nose, lifted and tilted at those two little lines, soft and pliable above her pointed chin.

Her neck was long and graceful, and a simple metal necklace of dullish gray {pewter...?} that was formed in rough links to surround her neck just above where it swept into the graceful curve of her slender, fine-boned shoulder, from which sprang a pair of long, slender arms covered with the finest golden down of body hair.

Draped upon those slender shoulders were the cowed neckline of her wide-necked white cotton dress, which fell in simple lines past the firm swell of her bosom, crisscrossed by the plain rawhide straps that started at her neck, curved downwards to pull the dress tight between the firm roundness of her breasts, each of which was as firm and ripe as the melons whose size they rivaled, the rawhide then taking two turns about her slim waist before tying at the back, allowing the rest of the dress to hang in simple pleats over the smooth, tanned flesh of her toned legs, ending halfway down her calves, where the crisscrossed rawhide straps of her sandals started.

She was undeniable very pretty - yet the pretty woman who stared back at her from the metal reflection was completely foreign to her.

She understood this not at all. Though that strange 'voice' of her past self was filling in details, the dry manner in which it entered her mind made it alien to her, not something easily grasped as reality so much as a half-believed myth that had little to support it, yet was based on the blind faith of that inner voice that could be nothing but this other, male version of herself whose body the magic box {343} had somehow made over into this one - and, in doing so, somehow created in her mind this rift between 'him' and 'her' - an emotionless male person buried within and feeding her from it's obviously vast pool of experience and memories, and the female her that knew almost nothing, yet felt more... 'real' to her.

Probably just because it was what she currently was, being female - but that didn't change the way she felt. Being female, she felt female, no matter what the voice was telling her about what had once been.

Confused, frightened, and feeling very much alone, she looked around the strange room in which she found herself... and wondered what she was to do.

The voice in her head was silent on that score, the 'male' persona she's apparently one had little more than a ghost, a... a living 'ma- sheen' {machine} that could provide her answers, but not actual thought or reasoning. Instead, she must do this all second hand, pulling the information out piece-by-piece and trying to make use of what little had transferred, unable to simply 'tap into' all that experience the way a person would normally make use of life-experience to deal with crises.

As far as she 'felt', she'd been born no more than five minutes ago, when she'd waken upon the table. She just had a lot of knowledge that could be 'referenced' through considering a particular concept or object.

She was a stranger in a world she'd never made...

...but she had a sort of 'tour guide' in her head, something she hadn't appreciated until the third time her eyes swept over the massive slab of metal set into the wall, this time pausing long enough to actually wonder what it was, and...

{door}

"That's the door...?" She exclaimed, sea-green eyes widening in amazement. "I could never move something that heavy...!"

{keypad, right hand side, code 0-1-1-5}

Again, it wasn't just the words, but the mental image - right down to the sight of Chet's finger punching out the code - which was a good thing, since she couldn't read, and if she hadn't seen which keys were being pushed, she'd be out of luck...

...though, again, the 'mental concepts' that she got were incomplete, without all the reference data that would have backed the information up for a normal person. She understood that, somehow, pushing those buttons in that order would cause the door to open - but she didn't understand the inner workings of the mechanism that turned pushes of small, somehow artificially lit numbered squares into enough force to swing open such a massive door.

As far as she was concerned, it was 'magic' - and that was a concept she not only 'understood', but accepted. If she'd delved deep enough into the Chet-brain, she could have learned all the mechanics of the door, but even that wouldn't have helped, since what little actual knowledge that was on 'her' side of the invisible barrier in her brain wasn't enough to explain the basic physical concepts that allowed the mechanisms to work.

Not that it really mattered, of course. She couldn't have forged a horseshoe if her life had depended on it - but she could play the role of farrier well enough to shoe a horse with an already-made horseshoe. Likewise, she simply followed the instructions in the Chet-brain...

...and, with three muffled - yet, solid-sounding - metallic 'clanks', the massive door swung open, the gleaming, span-thick slab of metal moved by unseen sprites {hydraulic rams} to reveal a tiny little space beyond.

A wave of claustrophobia swept over her, and she yearned for the free and open hills and valleys, where she could run barefoot through the dew - but Chet-brain told her that this 'err-luck' was just something to pass through, like a gatehouse - once the huge door behind her swung closed, the door in front would swing open.

As far as she knew, the Chet-brain couldn't lie to her, even if it wanted to... but that didn't make her heart-rate slow any as she stepped, trembling, into the tiny chamber. Following the Chet-Brain's instructions, she stood in the center of the tiny room, heart pounding as her shaking finger reached out and hesitantly pressed the small blue button in the wall.

Her heart-rate only increased as the massive door swung silently shut behind her, and just as it 'thunked' home, she squared her shoulders and faced the other door...

The lights went out.

She screamed as an unearthly blue glow filled the tiny space, and Dragon's breath, harsh and bitter, swept through the space. She slammed blindly backwards into a door she could never move, not in a million seasons, and slumped to the ground, crying and begging for mercy as the hiss filled her ears, the hiss of death come to claim her in this strange, dead world in which she found herself, Chet- Brain droning on about 'You-Vee raze' and 'Auntie Viral spray', images and ideas flickering through her head far faster than she could have comprehended even if her mind wasn't frozen in terror, and...

...and then the hissing stopped and the lights came back on.

With heavy-sounding noises, the door in front of her swung open. She huddled, shivering, in the corner for an instant longer, hardly daring to believe she was still alive...

...and then she scuttled through the opening before it could vanish, slamming hard against the wall of the hallway outside and shivering violently under the merciless white fire of the 'floor-ess-ant' lights above, whispering pleas to the unknown Gods to take her home, to open spaces where green things grew.

Her Gods didn't respond, and after a few minutes her trembling stopped, and she slowly rose from her huddled position on the floor, renewed strength and valor flooding her limbs as she slowly came to realize that the strange events in the err-luck were considered commonplace and completely understandable in the world of Chetbrain's people.

Pushing herself off the wall, she looked both ways down the brightly-lit corridor, wondering where to go now. As far as she could see, the err-luck she'd emerged from was just slightly past the mid-point of the hallway, and there were five other doors along the same wall, one to the right, centered between the end of the hall and the door she'd emerged from, and four more, closer spaced, along the other stretch.

The wall opposing the doors was bare, made up of stone cut more evenly than any she'd ever seen - though Chetbrain told her that they were somehow artificial stone, created in that perfect shape in something called a 'Comcreat factory'.

However, since she didn't know, specifically, where she wanted to go, Chetbrain couldn't tell her which way to go down the hall.

Hesitantly, she eyed the gleaming metal doors at the far end of the hallway, a pair of doors that led to what Chetbrain called an 'elefator', which was some sort of lifting box to go up and down in the building, and...

"How big is this building?" She asked the air, startled at the concepts that ran through Chetbrain to her mind - of these elevators lifting people up and down a great many levels in these comcreat buildings.

{The Medical Sciences Building is four stories tall, with a fully equipped laboratory level in the basement, where we are now.}

The concept of a base-mint was interesting - sort of an artificial cave beneath a building, something that made her wonder what type of people Chetbrain came from, that dug holes simply to build atop them. However, it was merely a passing thought, since she understood the most important part of the concept: She was underground, and if she took either the elefator or stairs up one 'story', she could find her way outside - and she was unspeakably relieved to find that Chetbrian's concept of 'outside' contained plants and flowers and trees, though surrounded by the great buildings and strangely 'tamed'.

Not wanting to be confined in yet another tiny space that, even worse, would be moving through the use of yet more unseen ma- sheens, she turned and headed to the door leading to what Chetbrain had identified as the stairs. They were made of more metal and comcreat, and she marveled at how skilled Chetbrain's people were in working with metal - and wondered at that there was this much metal to be had.

Reaching the little platform at the top of the first flight of stairs, she stopped - and a slow, relived smile spread across her face as she looked out at a great expanse of green grass, somehow trimmed down to an even length across all of it's broad expanse. It was obviously quite late at night, but she could see more than well enough to look around, for everywhere there were more artificial candles everywhere, including bright orange-yellow ones mounted atop metal poles spread throughout Chetbrain's 'camp us'. Though there were many other buildings in sight, some of comcreat and some of a smaller red stone called brik, there were many great oaks and poplars spread around what Chetbrain called both the quad and the commons, and she yearned to lay a hand along the living bark of one of the trees and assure herself that this strange world was not so alien after all.

So relieved was she to see something she understood, she would have simply leapt through the opening to get outside - but there was some strange, hard substance like clear ice in the opening, cool but not cold to the touch, and run through with tiny strands of metal.

With what Chetbrain informed her was 'Safety Glass' between her and freedom, she had no choice but to pull open the door that led from the little platform, finding her in yet another hallway - but, though the color and materials were the same as the hallway below, the doors on the one wall were made up of wood and more of this glass - and the other wall was almost all glass, what Chetbrain said were windoze.

Amazed at the work Chetbrain's people could do, she walked slowly along the hall, wondering how Chetbrain could live his life amidst such strange, wonderful, terrifying things, and yet find everything so commonplace. On one level, she understood that she was - or had been - the person Chetbrain still thought of itself as, and so this world was her own world, 'merely' forgotten - yet it seemed impossible for her to grasp that knowledge in an emotional way. Chetbrain said she, as he, had spent much time here, knew the area, and found little remarkable about it, yet here she was wandering through an apparently common-place structure, amazed and awed by the solidity and regularity of the construction...

...and a little depressed by it, too. Glancing out the window, she looked at some of the other buildings, and thought how mind-numbing it must be for those people who spent many hours within the artificially regular confines of these buildings, out of the wonderful diversity and beauty of nature.

In fact, though still awed by the ingenuity and workmanship of Chebrin's people, it was now heavy laced with pity at all that they'd somehow lost in the process.

Reaching the end of the hallway, she found two sets of wooden doors with more glass et into them, each of the doors with a bright yellow-gold bar of a metal Chebrin said was called brass spanning them - and, following Chebrin's instructions, she pushed on the brass bars - and the doors opened, allowing her access to the cool, calm night that lay beyond.

Eyes glistening with unshed tears of joy, she hurried across the stone walkway, until her sandal-shod feet were moving over the luxuriant carpet of living grass.

A moment later, her hand touched the rough texture of the nearest tree's bark, and the tears spilled silently over and down her cheeks as she slowly sank to a kneeling position in front of the tree, thanking Chebrin for in a whispered prayer as she rocked slowly back and forth over the gnarled roots of the ancient oak...

"Uh.. you okay...?"

Startled by the sudden voice, she whirled, wide-eyed...

...and the handsome, strapping young man behind her took a step back, eyes widening as he lifted his hands, palms outwards. "Whoa, sorry..." He said, reassuringly, distancing himself another step. "Didn't mean to startle you. I just thought..."

He trailed off, obviously embarrassed by having scared her.

She looked at the handsome young man, about her own age - and felt a wave of relief run through her at the sight of him. Not necessarily just because he was a handsome, well-built youth with golden tanned skin that matched his shaggy mane of hair, nor simply because he was obviously laying charm atop a natural foundation of good manners - but also because he was dressed much as she was, though his robe {toga} was shorter than hers, and of a different style.

"Uh..." The young man said, looking her up-and-down with a newly appreciative gaze, since her previous position hadn't allowed him a good look at the young lady he'd tried being a Good Samaritan to. "I.. I guess you're going to the Toga Party at Phi Beta too, huh...?"

She paused for a second while Chebrin 'explained' the sentence to her in more understandable terms: A somewhat disorganized Festival, where the clothing worn by the participants must be somewhat similar to the one she and this youth wore, though Chebrin seemed to indicate that few were as.. 'formal' as hers and this man's, usually quickly crafted out of bedclothes.

There was a lack of mental images to accompany most of the explanation, which intrigued her enough that she was tempted to ask Chebrin why He did not choose to attend those parties first-hand, but hers was not to question, but to accept - and what she did know of this 'Toga Party' made it seem the most welcoming locale she'd heard of so far, more familiar than the 'City' of Chebrin's thoughts.

"If they will let me in." She said, softly, a bit hesitantly - though she knew, intellectually, that she'd dealt with other people before, she had no memories of it, her life having begun in the strange room she'd so recently escaped, as far as she was concerned. Already the golden man had spoken words that she'd had to have Chebrin explain to her, and she knew that the customs of this place was strange and unknown to her. "I have not been invited to the Fest.. the party."

The handsome young man's face became wreathed in a broad, easy smile that revealed a mouth full of perfect, white teeth. "Well, you have been now - and you can trust there won't be any problem, since I'm the Organizer for this little shindig. I'm Rob Trenton."

She paused for a second to make sure that she understood all he'd said - then paused even longer when Chebrin informed her that the expected reaction would be for her to identify herself to this man, though she was unable to grasp the complicated method of naming that seemed to be the custom here.

For some time, a thought had been growing in her mind, and it had become a certainty recently, though she had - of course - not questioned Chebrin about it, as that would have been unseemly. She now understood much about how and why she'd come here, though she didn't grasp all the 'mechanics' of it, the visual imagery Chebrin had given her meaningless to her - but she understood that Chebrin had created her out of Himself, so that she may walk His world in His place...

...but did she dare assume that it gave her the right to identify herself as what she seemed to be? Or would she be struck down for her impudence...?

Hesitantly, braced for a bolt of fiery condemnation from the Heavens, she named her position for the youth in a voice so small and weak that it could barely be heard:

"I'm Chebrin's Priestess..." She said - and waited.

There was no bolt from the blue. No fiery death. No sign of wrath from her new God. Indeed, the only reaction was a politely puzzled look on Rob's face as he leaned forward: "Brin Precess?"

Relief washed over her at Rob's correction of her obvious misuse of the naming custom used here. "Yes, I'm sorry, Brin Precess," she repeated in a firmer voice, gladdened that Chebrin was not offended with her self-elevation to the status of His priestess.

As with all Gods, Chebrin's ways and goals were a mystery - but, then again, that is what the position consisted of, discovering what it was that her new God wished of her, finding out how it was she was to serve him. So far, she'd been lucky enough to have guessed correctly.

"Well, Brin - would you permit me to escort you to the party?" Rob asked with a charming smile, sketching a half-bow while extending a crooked arm in her direction.

"Why, kind sir, I would be honored." Brin replied, a little taken aback - Chebrin had informed her that this 'party' would be considerably less formal than a Festival, which is why she didn't understand.

.and then she did, since Chebrin immediately supplied her with the answer:

Rob was 'hitting on her'. At least, that was the phrase that Chebrin used, though she understood the implications clearly enough, despite the pugilistic sound to the phrase. Rob, as a male, was interested in her, as a female, and wished the pleasure of her company almost definitely in the hopes that it would lead to sexual intercourse. It was obvious, understandable, and almost to be expected.

.so why did it take her by surprise.?

Brin felt her face grow warm as she flushed, and Rob's smile faltered - then grew again as she hesitantly slipped an arm around his and let him lead her towards the party.

Thankfully, Rob managed to realize that she needed a few minutes to think something over. Of course, he probably thought she was 'considering' him, in a sexual way - which was close, but not quite correct.

Brin was wondering what was going on in her head.

As soon as she'd realized that Rob was interested in her, sexually, she'd found her mind running through the possible results to the evening - and found that she was coming up with only vague suppositions, all accompanied by a sense of unease, perhaps even tinged with overtones of disgust. She had no idea why that was, but there was something she was sure of:

She was a virgin.

Not in the 'technical' sense, perhaps. Apparently, she'd been 'born' without a maidenhood, created not only fully-formed at approximately twenty-one years of age, but in the form that would indicate those twenty-one years of life experience, sexual and otherwise. The truth was, she had no memories at all prior to her awakening, and only had Chebrin's thoughts on sex - and Chebrin was most definitely a male God, and so had what she assumed to be standard male sexual desires and experiences.

It was as equally obvious that she wasn't a male. Yet, she had no idea what she should be feeling about the situation. She knew, intellectually, that Rob was a handsome man, and he was obviously a 'nice guy', so she should probably be eager to have sex with him - for she knew, from Chebrin, that sex would be pleasurable. Even her body seemed to know this, for being on the arm of a handsome, attentive young man was creating certain physical reactions, reactions that were most definitely sexually related: A faint warmth that seemed to spread slowly through her body, as if a mild fever. An increase in her heart-rate. A faintly 'distracted' air to her thoughts, caused by the interference of a slowly rising tide of hormones.

.and if she'd missed any of those clues, there was always the fact that her large, firm nipples were now engorged, and it had absolutely nothing to do with the ambient temperature.

So - why was she feeling so confused? So uncertain?

So.

.scared?

Well, she was a 'virgin' - and the emotionally-unaffected 'informational' flow from Chebrin indicated that nervousness was simply to be expected from a virgin. The rest of the mildly unpleasant emotional feelings she was having were probably to be expected as well, that was all.

Feeling a little more confident, now that she'd worked it out, she snuggled a bit closer to Rob - not enough to promise anything (she hoped), but enough to let him know that she wasn't uninterested, either - sort of a non-verbal 'perhaps'.

Rob's reaction to the slight increase in pressure was reassuring - he stiffened slightly, shooting her a surprised look that said, more strongly than words, that he'd come to the conclusion that she wasn't interested in him, other than as a means to attend a party - her voluntary 'maybe' movement made his smile widen again, and his step slowed slightly as he smiled down at her.

"So, let e guess - you must be one of the engineering students." Rob said. "After all, I'm sure I'd remember if I saw you in the halls of the Med-Sci building."

"That's right." She said, after a moment's hesitation - because she'd had to consult with Chebrin, after feeling a moment's panic at not knowing how to answer the question, which had contained unfamiliar terms. Chebrin understood them well enough, of course, and she knew that she could 'fake it', with Cherbrin's help. Indeed, she could also fake having grown up in some place known as Vermont, also using knowledge supplied by Chebrin - and apparently well enough that Rob accepted it. Better yet, her admission caught him reminiscing about something called a 'ski trip' he'd once taken near the town she'd claimed to be from, and Chebrin gave her what she needed to manipulate him into telling her the whole story, with only the occasional comment needed on her part, sparing her from having to answer any 'personal' questions about herself as they approached a large frame house that was almost literally overflowing with young men and women, all attired in 'togas' of one version or another, many of them the bedsheet variety.

There was also a loud noise thundering from deep within the building, most of it obscured by the walls, but the heavy, driving beat of it flowing easily through the wooden-framed 'Frathouse' and out into the night air. Thanks to Chebrin, Brin understood that this was the music for the party, much as she'd expect from a festival - but, according to Chebrin, the group of musicians creating the sound weren't within the structure. Indeed, from what little she could understand of the things he showed her, it seemed as if the music was somehow 'preserved', made at a different time and place, but somehow set aside and kept until needed.

Indeed, this world she now found herself in was full of many marvels.

.but she wasn't able to give the marvels of this music her full attention, as she was too busy trying to deal with her rising nervousness. Some of it was sexual, but the majority of it came from the fact that she had no experience with other people - at least, none that she could remember applying directly to her. Though t6his Toga Party was closer to her half-formed

'memories'/ideas of what life she would have come from, if not fully created by Chebrin Himself, she was still very much a stranger in a strange land, and very much aware of the fact.

"Are you all right.?" Rob asked with what seemed sincere concern, having caught her hesitant steps and anxious expressions they mounted the wide steps up to the building, ignoring the shouted greetings of many friends and acquaintances in favor of looking at her with a concerned expression.

"I'm.. not usually a social -person." She said, shyly. "This is my first real party." Rob stopped dead, eyes going wide. "Really? A lovely young woman like you?"

"Yes." She said, lowering her eyes and flushing - partly out of nervous embarrassment at being seen as 'odd', but more as an excuse to allow her to consult Chebrin for help. "I'm... shy."

"Oh. Well, let's see if we can't help you relax.." Rob said, still looking surprised as he led her into the building. "What do you drink.?" It seemed an odd question, until Chebrin informed her that he was asking her preference in alcoholic beverages.

.which wasn't really all that informative, since she wasn't familiar with 'booze/alcohol/liquor', or being 'drunk/intoxicated/wrecked'.

She supposed she could have tried to get a more 'personal' reference from Chebrin - but having realized that she was His priestess, she was trying to keep her prayers to him for assistance to the minimum, not wishing to anger her new God with pestering. She'd accept anything He chose to show her, of course, but her actual requests were something different - and she already knew that drinking alcohol at a party was apparently not only acceptable, but expected.

Of course, she had no idea what the different varieties were, though from Chebrin's volunteered references, she understood there was a vast array, all with specific names.

"Why don't you surprise me.?" She suggested with a shy smile.

"Sure thing.." Rob said, disengaging his arm and leaving her near the wall as he walked over to the 'bar'. She waited, fidgeting nervously as she looked around, trying to pick up as many hints and tips as possibly by unobtrusively observing the other females at the party.

The party had obviously been in full swing for some time - and everybody was in extremely high spirits, apparently some sort of effect from this 'booze', since everybody seemed to be drinking it - which made her feel glad she hadn't refused the offer, as it would have made her stand out all the more.

She also noticed that almost all the women were reacting in undeniable sexually suggestive manners towards the males, though it wasn't totally indiscriminate - unlike many of the males, who seemed to be willing to have sexual congress with any female they could.

Well, it made sense to Brin - so much so that she wasn't going to risk offending Chebrin by asking him to confirm her assumptions. After all, she understood that many festivals, especially Harvest Festivals, were really fertility rites - and it was obvious to her that this was the case here. A 'Toga Party' was a place where women went to find acceptable sexual partners for purely noncommittal sexual pleasures.

She was glad she'd run into Rob, then, since it was obvious what she was expected to do - and, judging from many of the conversations she could overhear were going, 'expected' might be an understatement.

"Here you go." Rob said, returning with two small, dark-brown glass containers with intricately-drawn labels upon them. "Miller Lite okay.?"

"Of course.." Brin agreed, though she had no idea what 'alcohol' had to do with a miller, much less his light.

.until she took a sip of the cold, fizzy liquid the bottle contained, and understood immediately from the undeniably grain-based flavor of the beverage.

"Well, what do you think of the Phi Beta Gamma House.?" Rob asked with a hint of pride in his voice.

"It's very nice indeed." She replied - and then, having heard another woman nearby say it while Rob was getting the drinks, she repeated what she assumed was a compliment, in the same dulcet tones the other woman had used: "You know, I'd really like to see one of the bedrooms, though."

Rob blinked - then grinned, boyishly. "Shy, huh.? Well, I guess you decided to learn to be social the same way a cat learns to swim."

She had no idea what that meant - but it was obvious that her remark had been the right one, judging from his reaction, so she grinned back. Rob lifted his bottle in some sort of salute, rapidly draining the liquid, and she followed suit, finding that it increased the warm- tingling feeling in her body, similar-but-different to the sensations created in her by the nearness of a virile male - which made it obvious to Brin that this 'booze' was some sort of aphrodisiac potion made from grains, designed to allow participants at such 'parties' to indulge in the primary purpose of the occasion.

Considering the very familiar way Rob slid a hand around her and onto her firm ass as he guided her towards a staircase, she had no doubt as to what his intentions were - and if she were feeling even more nervous than before, it was just another case of her 'virginal' anxiety reasserting itself.

Rather than let it take control of her, Brin fought the rising nervousness and cuddled into Rob's strong body. She had no idea what would happen if she tried to refuse sexual pleasure at party, and she didn't want to find out - she needed to be as 'accepted' as possible to be able to function as Chebrin's priestess, and if that meant having sex with Rob, it was a sacrifice she was willing to make.

.especially since she knew that 'sex' was supposed to feel extremely good. She was sure that once Rob started having sex with her, all her nervousness and disquiet would vanish.

Heart pounding rapidly, she let herself be led towards - and then up - the stairs that led to the second floor of the house. Though the party downstairs was in full swing, the music actually shaking the wood-framed house, the upstairs was reasonably quiet, the lighting dim to provide a certain air of privacy. Doors stretched down the hallway, and half of them had small white cards hanging off the doorknobs.

Picking one without such adornment, Rob smiled at her and swung the door open, leading Brin inside before grabbing the white cardboard off the dresser and hanging it on the doorknob.

Swinging the door shut, Rob turned in the dimly-lit bedroom to face her...

She'd expected a smile. Perhaps a charming comment, or an eager exclamation. After all, they were alone in the room, and it was obvious as to what they were her for...

...so she was downright stunned by the look on his face - the hesitant, concerned look.

"Uh, Brin..." Rob said, slowly walking over to her and placing his hands on her shoulders. "You.. You don't have to do this, you know. I.. I can see you're nervous, and you yourself said you're shy, so..."

The last vestiges of uncertain and fear slid away with Rob's words - for, from certain undeniable indications, Rob was extremely interested in her, physically, and yet he was willing to simply walk away, if that's what she wanted.

It wasn't what she wanted. With her fear and anxiety gone, she felt nothing but the delightful sensations of feminine arousal, so strangely new and exciting to her - and she knew exactly what she wanted...

...so she simply smiled at him as she took a half-step back from him, not to distance herself from him - but to allow her to unclasp the band crisscrossed band of her dress, allowing the simple garment to slide smoothly and sensuously off a body that itself was smooth and sensuous.

The orange-yellow light streaming in through the window seemed to caress the smooth, soft flesh of her body, shadow and light chasing each other across the smoothly rounded contours of her body, shifting and writhing in sensuous suggestion as breathed with a steady rhythm, unlike the faster, more nervous pace Rob had noted. There was no fear or uncertain in her eyes or her smile as she turned slightly, instinctively choosing a pose that tightened the muscles in her long, smooth legs, her shoulders rotating backwards to further emphasize her firm, round breasts. Her chin came up, almost defiantly, as her lips parted to let her tongue slip out, lightly running across her firm, full lips.

"I.. I want this, Rob.." She said, her sweet tones now husky with desire. "I.. I may not be all that experienced, so I may be awkward - but I'm not afraid. I came here knowing what we were going to do - expecting it, hoping for it, wanting it..."

Then she stepped forward again, her body now nude except for her sandals as she pressed herself firmly against his body, feeling the taut flesh of his sculpted form beneath the thin fabric of his toga.

"...I just never expected that I'd find somebody so sweet, handsome and considerate..." She whispered - and then, in a age-old gesture, let her eyes slip shut as she tilted her head upwards, lips slightly parted.

Rob hesitated perhaps and instant longer - and then bent his head and pressed his lips against hers.

It was a slow, soft pressure - not uncertain or hesitant, but gently passionate, their lips pressing together in consideration of each other as each tried to outdo the other in providing pleasure with a the kiss - a kiss that deepened, becoming more passionate, more.. energetic as her slender hands slid slowly over the fabric that covered his chest - and to he clasp on his left shoulder, her dainty fingers undoing the clasp letting his garment slid soundlessly to the floor so that their firm, youthful flesh could finally touch.

Brin felt as if her body was afire - yet it wasn't a blazing heat that burned, but a liquid warmth that made her muscles feel wonderfully weak. Where the 'beer' had given her a warmth and light-headedness she'd found enjoyable, it didn't hold a candle to the similar-yet- wonderfully-different sensation that now flooded her, and she knew that it was a sensation that didn't come from having just any male hold her close and kiss her passionately, but came from having this male do so - for it wasn't just a physical sensation, but an emotional one as well...

...and she'd never realized how wonderful it could feel to have a large, ready male organ pressing against her upper thigh, so tantalizingly close to the center of the liquid warmth that filled her.

"Oh, Brin...." Rob whispered as they broke the kiss. "I.. I..."

"Me, too.." She whispered back, understanding completely what he was trying to say. Her hands, wrapped around his strong shoulders, slid downwards as she slowly began to ease them towards the bed, each unwilling to separate from the other. "Me too..."

The smooth, sensual curve of her calves hit the bed behind her - and, letting her watery knees do what they wished, she fell backwards onto the bed, Rob's arms sliding around her to ease the fall as he lowered himself considerably atop her body, easing them gently towards the center of the bed as he nuzzled lightly at the point of her jaw.

It was only the star - for, as his hands slid back over her body, he began to work his way down the smooth curves and hollows of her body, his hands seeming to leave faint, tingling trails that only complimented the wonderful burning of his kisses as he slowly worked downwards, paying attention to every inch of her smooth, soft flesh.

Reaching the firm globes of her breasts, he paused for a moment - and she moaned low in the back of her throat, head rolling lightly from side to side as he expertly touched and kissed her magnificent mounds, whispering compliments to her between each light kiss he gave her, providing her wonderful pleasure as he fondled and caressed her with a gentle touch...

...and then he continued his way down her body, the growing warmth on her body increasing in direct relation to how far down he went.

Hands and lips still working in wonderful rhythm, he worked his way down her right leg, fingers stroking the satin flesh of her long leg as he gently kissed and nibbled his way down towards her foot, where his adept hands gently removed her shoe, before doing the same to her other foot and working his way back upwards.

Then he reached the top of her left leg - and simply slid an inch to the right, fingers coming to rest on either side of her damp, ready womanhood...

...and his tongue began to lightly lick and tease her more-than-ready womanhood, brushing with wonderful friction across her aroused clitoris, causing her to moan even louder, her hips twitching and swaying in unconscious response to the wonderful sensations generated by his gently passionate and incredibly considerate ministrations.

"Oh, Rob..." Brin moaned, eyes closed and hers rocking in pleasure. "Oh, it's so wonderful.. But.. I..."

She didn't have to say anything else - though his oral ministrations were wonderful, she knew that it wasn't what she wanted right now. She wanted something more fulfilling...

...and Rob certainly wasn't going to turn her down. As she willingly - nay, eagerly - slide her legs apart and brought her knees up, he was sliding forward, keeping his weight on his arms and off of her as he positioned himself above her, his handsome face above hers as she opened her eyes again and smiled gently up at the wonderful man who she'd been blessed to meet.

"Now, Rob..." She whispered, letting her eyes slide closed again as her arms rose and slide around his neck. "Now..."

He obeyed. Pausing only long enough to make sure he was correctly position, he then leaned forward slightly - and gently, firmly, and with incredible pleasure, slid his ready organ deep into a receptacle as ready as itself...

...and Brin's eyes flew open again in amazed shock at the wonderful sensations the movement created, sensations stronger, more intense, than she'd possibly imagined.

"Oh, yes...!" She gasped, startled and awed at the sensations. "Yes, Rob - Yes!"

"Oh, Brin..." He replied, his hips rising and falling again in a way that caused her to gasp and writhe beneath his firm body. "Oh, yes..." After that, words became completely unnecessary.

His pace increased as her hips began to move, almost of their own accord, striving to increase not only her own pleasure, but his as well - a sort of erotic quid-pro-quo that neither had any reason to complain about as their own pleasure continued to rise in ways that were so similar and yet, at the same time, so wonderfully different, so unlike the few times she'd managed to have sex when she was a man...

If not for the fact that she was experiencing a rising tide of pleasure that thrummed through her body with wonderful power, she might have considered stopping and chasing the sudden, odd thoughts that flashed across her mind - but she was too busy 'feeling' to worry about 'thinking', and the sharp, first-hand memories that were starting to come through the 'block' between her minds was the least of her concerns as she kept pace with his eager movements, their bodies writhing in wonderful rhythm as their pleasure continued to grow...

...as did the 'breach' in the wall between the two 'minds' in her body - though, in truth, there was but the one mind, the one that the machine had 'partitioned', much as one would a computer's hard-drive.

The pleasure only continued to grow, and their movements became less smooth, less perfectly coordinated - in fact, to an on-looker, they might have looked comical, their faces screwed up into goofy expressions of extremely pleasure as their actions became jerky, less rhythmic, their own pleasure overriding conscious control of their fine motor functions.

Neither cared - at this point, it would be impossible to stop what was about to happen, even the act of stopping enough to push them over the edge, albeit with less force...

...but the thought of stopping never crossed their minds. Not even Chet's.

S/he screamed as a final thrust provided the last bit of motivation s/he needed to reach that first female orgasm - and S/he screamed out in intense, orgasmic pleasure as s/he was assaulted by the most intense, pleasurable, somehow fulfilling orgasm that s/he'd ever felt, new body writhing and jerking under Rob, who also reached orgasm a second later, the frantic jerking s/he was doing providing what he needed for his own orgasm.

As the pleasure washed over Chet like a tidal wave, the mind within that luscious body was spinning and whirling as memories and personalities integrated. Dimly, the sexy, beautiful woman writhing under the handsome man realized what had happened - after all, the setting s/he'd used was for 'female body enhancement', and the machine had assumed that the originating form was female, so it had dumped the little mental changes to be made into the 'female' partition of the brain, using that as the 'boot sector', which was why Brin had 'rebooted' as an 'amnesiac' female - but the force of the orgasm that was slowly dying had been enough to rip apart the mistakenly- erected barrier between the two parts of the mind sharing the female body, allowing Chet to resurface, with complete memories and knowledge of all that had happened...

As their orgasms finally slid back down into 'mere' pleasure, the two of them rolled slightly, instinctively - in the midst of orgasm, Rob's consideration had failed him, and he'd stopped moderating his weight, something s/he hadn't cared about at the particular instant, but now that the overwhelming pleasure was sliding away, they rolled to their side to ease the discomfort, bodies slicked with sweat as they embraced on the bed.

"Oh, God, that was wonderful..." Rob gasped, looking deep into her eyes...

...where he saw nothing but happiness and satisfaction before 'Brin' let them slide closed, lifting 'her' lips to be kissed by the wonderful , considerate man 'she' had been lucky enough to find, knowing that 'she' could never go back to be an unpopular, unexciting, unhappy male again. Having had the chance to experience being female - especially this female - she knew that her life was going to be immeasurably better as Brin than it had ever been as Chet.

Not that she was foolish enough to believe that her life was going to be perfect - she knew the challenges she was going to face, especially when it came to explaining what had happened...

...which was why she consciously - and a bit guiltily - decided not to use this particular moment to explain the situation to Rob. Besides - as Chet, she'd had a proper upbringing, learning all the good manners that her family could teach her.

So, after they'd broken the slow, passionate kiss, she knew she couldn't tell him about it right now, anyway - since she'd smiled slowly and seductively at him before she began to work her way down his body with soft kisses, until she'd reached the spot she wanted and bent herself to the task of making something that had gone limp begin to harden again.

After all, whether male or female, it's impolite to talk with one's mouth full...

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: When a Leprechaun grants two buddies three wishes, one man decides that he has always wondered what it would be like to be a woman, the other friend decides that he should help his friend take it all the way by wishing that he become a stripper.

The Risks Of Wishes...

By Gunslinger

After all the noise that had proceeded it, the relative silence that followed seemed as deep and as still as the grave.

The only movement in the old tunnel was the steady swirl of rock-dust still drifting from the collapse of the south wall. Though the still-upraised sledge hammers in the hands of the two young men were heavy, they remained poised from the last strike that had brought that wall down, their wielders locked into position by shocked paralysis.

The glow of the Coleman lantern sitting on an old crate was supplemented by the head-lamps mounted on the hard-hats the two men wore, lighting the wall in front of them adequately, but leaving much of their faces in shadow.

Not so much in shadow that the stunned looks of surprise - hell, utter shock - couldn't be seen on their faces.

On the broader-shouldered young man of the pair, that look manifested itself in slack-jawed gaping, square, cleft jaw and hazel eyes both opened as wide as they would go.

On his taller, less muscular companion, there was an equally classic look of shock - the cocked head thrust forward, eyebrows so high above bulging green eyes that the eyebrows almost disappeared under the golden-blond shock of hair beneath the rim of the hardhat.

The third member of the little tableau bore no expression of shock. Indeed, he stood poised, an expectant expression on his rotund face as he expectantly waited for a reaction to his introduction and offer.

He cut an unusual figure. The forest-green frock-coat hanging open over his faded beige waist-coat and trousers was as archaic in fashion as his buckled leather shoes, or the brown derby hat rakishly positioned atop the shock of bright-red hair that not only matched his bushy beard, but the florid color of his bulbous nose. Covered in a couple of centuries worth of fine dust, the individual who'd introduced himself as Finnegan A'Sidhe would have garnered odd looks from anybody - even if he hadn't stood less than two feet tall.

"Well, me fine boys...?" Finnegan asked, his voice rich with the Irish accent. "What will it be...?"

Slowly, the muscular young man's face transformed from a look of stunned surprise into one of mistrust.

"Wait a second..." He said, doubtfully. "In all the stories I ever read, anybody getting wishes from a leprechaun - if that's what you really are, mind you - always get screwed over... right, Dave?"

The tall, golden-haired young man shook his head, breaking the spell that came, rather understandably, from breaking open the wall of an old sewage tunnel and finding a two-foot tall Irishman who not only claimed to be a five-hundred-year-old displaced leprechaun, but who was offering you wishes to boot.

"Well, yeah - but they were always greedy people, who tracked down leprechauns for the gold or wishes." Dave finally said. "I can't recall ever hearing about anything quite like this in those obvious morality tales, Vince."

"Quite so, quite so!" Finnegan said, beaming. "I'll admit, I'd not be so well disposed to you lads if ye'd come after me and my gold - but by pure luck, you lads freed me from the inadvertent prison built while I was sleeping off a wee drop o' the creature, and so I say it's a fit thing to reward ye."

"I still don't know..." Vince said, slowly, pulling off his hard hat to scratch at the curly mop of black hair that, as much as the dusky cast to his skin, implied his Italian ancestry as much as his friend's pale skin and golden hair defined his Nordic heritage. "I mean... this is all probably some sort of hallucination brought on by the bad air down here..."

"Well then - ye'd have nothin' to loose by wishing anyway, now would ye?" Finnegan said, a bit testily. He wasn't exactly used to people turning down his wishes - and since he'd offered them in a burst of gratitude, he was bound to honor that offer.

"So, let me get this right..." Dave said, shaking his head slightly in disbelief of the strange and - until now - 'impossible' situation he found himself in. "You're going to give me one wish, and Vince two?"

"Three wishes is what I'm bound to give, no more no less, as leprechauns live." Finnegan recited in a sing-song voice. "Since Vincent here was the one who actually struck the blow, I'll give him the two, and you the one - doesn't that seem fair?"

"Yeah, sure." Vince agreed, finally managing to grasp the thought that this might be real, after all- and feeling excitement warring with concern. "But... I don't know what I want to wish for. I mean - there's so much I could wish for, I don't know what to pick..."

"I do."

Dave said the words quietly, but firmly - while blushing brightly, so much so that it was visible even in the gloom of the old stone- walled tunnel.

"Oh?" Vince said, somewhat taken aback - an intelligent, somewhat shy young man, his friend usually let the more outgoing and outspoken Italian-American take the lead in.. well, just about everything. "Well, then, go ahead! What's it gonna be, Davy boy - fame, fortune.. luck with the ladies...?"

While Vincent Donnatelli considered himself somewhat of a lady's man, he knew his shy friend became even more awkward and inarticulate around women, and as he put that last gibe in, he got the even deeper blush and embarrassed look he'd expected from his straight-laced and, in many way, old-fashioned friend...

...but he'd completely misread the reason for that embarrassed look.

"Um, actually..." Dave said, slowly and awkwardly. "I, uh.. was going to wish..."

He trailed off, looking intently at the scuffed toes of his own work boots, and both the leprechaun and Vince looked at him intently.

"Yeah? What?" Vince prodded, a bit confused. Dave might have been shy and awkward, but they'd been best friends since grade school, and those attributes hardly ever surfaced between them anymore. They were as close as brothers, and Vince couldn't think why Dave would be hesitant to speak - even on topics he could barely even hint at with other people, like sex, he was fairly open - if embarrassed - about it with his buddy Vince. Indeed, it was something Vince took great pleasure in teasing Dave about, since the fair complexion that came with the Nordic heritage made blushes so stark and fun to raise.

"I, uh... always kinda wondered...." Dave muttered, still staring at his boots. "...what it would like to be, you know... a girl." For the second time that day, Vince's face evidenced pure shock.

"What...!" He blurted out, unthinking. "You want to be a... a broad?"

"I'm... curious." Dave said, almost pleadingly. "Not forever, just... for awhile. To see what it's like... You mean you've never been even a little... curious?"

"Not really..." Vince said - but his dusky complexion had taken on a faint rose hue. "Well..."

Dave simply looked at his friend with one eyebrow raised, their long friendship making the expression as loud and clear as a shouted demand for further information.

"Once, on TV, some comic was saying that if guys had tits, we'd never leave the house..." Vince said, defensively. "It just kinda called up a mental image, you know?"

Dave nodded with a faint grin. "Yeah, well, anyway - I've just kind of found myself wondering what life is like for women. It wasn't anything serious, because there was no way to find out... until now."

"I.. guess." Vince said, more than a little discomfited to see this unknown side to his friend. "Still.. it feels a little weird, you know."

Clearing his throat nervously, Dave turned to Finnegan. "I was wondering - is it possible to wish that I was female - and that everybody who knows me would remember me as always being female, so that I wouldn't have to try and explain the change, or anything?"

"Not quite." Finnegan said. "T'would be too complicated to make up a new set o'memories for everybody who knew ye. What I could do is make it so that the male you never existed, so that the female you would have.. a fresh start, I guess you'd say."

Turning to his friend, Dave raised an eyebrow. "Well - how about it. If I do this... would you want to remember 'me', or not?" Taken aback, Vince had to stop and think about it for a second.

"Well... If I didn't remember you, you'd be... a stranger, right? I wouldn't remember our friendship, or anything..." Vince asked, half of Dave, half of the Leprechaun.

Finnegan nodded. Dave shrugged. "You wouldn't have to deal the, uh... 'weirdness', if you know what I mean."

Vince considered it - then shrugged. "Hey, you're my buddy, Dave. I wouldn't want to forget that friendship - even if something's a little 'hinkey' about it."

Dave, still blushing, smiled at his friend's reaffirmation of their friendship.

"Okay, then." Dave said, turning to Finnegan. "Um... If I, sort of don't get the wish exactly right, do you have the same latitude to make it come out okay that the stories all say you do to mess it up?"

The leprechaun blinked - then grinned. "M'boy, out of all my years, that's the smartest thing I've ever been asked. Yes, when some good-fer-nothin' catches me for my wishes, I grant it in the worst possible way. You, I like - so, yes, you have my word. I'll do my best to make sure it's what you want."

Dave nodded, blush deepening as he considered articulating his full wish, exposing his deepest inner self out loud - but he took a deep breath, and plunged ahead with it.

"I wish that I was female." He said, in a tremulous but determined voice. "I would look exactly as I would, had I been born female. "

He trailed off, shooting a highly embarrassed look at Vince, then plunged onward: ". except that I will have extremely large, firm, round breasts."

Vince blushed himself - but wasn't completely surprised, since he knew his friend's personal obsession with extremely large-breasted women. In fact, it was one of the points that he could always use to get his fair-skinned friend to flush, especially whenever he dragged the straight-laced young man off to one of his own favorite places, the local strip club - where he could point out silicone- enhanced dancers and chidingly as if the women were 'big enough' for his tastes.

"I wish that all my belongings and identification will change to match my new gender, and the identity of 'Deborah Svensen', and that nobody but Vince and myself will remember the male me during the time I'm female."

Pausing for a breath, Dave finished his wish: "Finally, while I'm female, I will have all the personal and social skills I need to be able to pass as being a nominally 'normal' woman, without any of those actions or skills being involuntary or compelled in any way, merely accessible at will."

Finnegan's bushy red eyebrows had climbed up his brow - but he was grinning widely as he nodded. "Very well, me lad... or, should I say, milady? Ye wish be granted!"

Both Dave and Vince gasped as a golden, glittering light suddenly surrounded Dave in a swirling display, lighting up the old tunnel - and providing plenty of light for Vince to watch the transformation of his friend from Dave to Deborah.

As Vice watched, wide eyed, his long-time friend began to shrink - not just in height, but in general dimensions as well. Even as inches came off his lean frame, his general build also decreased, most noticeably at the shoulders, ankles, wrists and waist.

Not all of him... her... body was shrinking, however, Even as the feminizing man's height came to roughly the same as Vince's, and the general build of her body became finer-boned, parts of her were swelling outward - along with the clothing that was constantly changing to keep pace with the alterations of the body.

Her hips became wider and more smoothly rounded above the slimming waist, even as the ass supported by those newly-womanly hips filled out and firmed up on a spinal base that arched outwards, forming a definitely feminine posterior - quite a shapely one, at that.

In fact, both shrinking and swelling portions of the new women were forming up into eye-pleasing contours. It was immediately obvious that Dave, as a woman, was real looker. From big, long-lashed emerald eyes and full lips on a face mounted on a long, slender neck to the slender, shapely body with it's relatively long legs and slender waist, she was quite feminine...

...but was quickly going from 'quite' to 'extremely', at least in one department.

Even as the continue gasps coming from between her full lips were rising in pitch, and the golden hair under the hard-hat was forming into a steadily longer pony-tail, the red-and-black plaid flannel shirt she was wearing over her slimmer, shallower torso was nevertheless bulging outwards - over the bust that was rapidly swelling out to the prodigious dimensions that that breast-obsessed man had specified.

As a well-endowed woman, she wasn't going to be disappointed.

Even as the now-women's work boots achieved their smaller final dimensions over her daintier feet, and the leather work gloves enclosing her slender, feminine hands finished their transformation, so was her women's plaid work-shirt achieving it's final, button- straining size over her massive, firm bust, glimpses of her white undershirt easily visible in the gaps between buttons that seemed a breath away from bursting under the pressure her huge new breasts put on them.

The magical, sparkling glow lasted for a scant moment after the transformation ended, giving Vince a good look at 'the whole package' that Deborah presented.

She was cute-sexy in a sort of 'girl-next-door' way. A slender, fine-boned frame supported taut, well-toned musculature that looked good even in the simple working clothes that tightly sheathed her lithe frame. Her face, while not classically beautiful with it's strong and well-defined features, was nevertheless attractive in a sort of open, Nordic sort of way, with big green eyes framed by long, fine lashes and full lips beneath a proud, sharp-bridged nose.

The long legs might have been encased in denim - but it was denim that was nearly skin-tight, showing not only that the legs underneath were lean and well-toned, but that the full hips and the high, well-rounded posterior were not only womanly, but attractively so.

Then, of course, their were her breasts. Looming over her taut, slender waist, they were everything she'd specified - not 'big', but huge, each the size of a prize-winning watermelon - and similar in shape, not just round, but thrusting so firmly and proudly from her chest that they were slightly ovoid, rather than round - a necessity, since her ribcage was so slender that they would have projected sideways to be completely round, but the containment of the two shirts and the heavy construction bra beneath forced them more outward into a sort of classic 50's 'torpedo tit' look, perky and pointed and stuck so far out that it seemed unlikely that she could remain standing under the top-heavy, out-thrust weight of her massive new chest-melons.

Then the magical glow faded, their light-adapted eyes making the remaining light seem like a dim glow barely able capable of lighting up a phone booth.

"Well...?" Dave - Deborah - asked, her warm, sweet new voice tremulous with emotions. "How... how do I look?" The answer popped out without thought or pause: "Dude - you are hot!"

There was a pause - then a nervous giggle.

"I'm not sure whether or not I should feel good about hearing you say that." She hesitated. "This... might even be weirder than I thought."

"Yeah, probably." Vince agree with an uncomfortable grin. "Doesn't matter, though, man - we'll find a way to handle it. We're best friends, right?"

The new woman sighed in relief. "Yeah."

"'Tis good to see your friendship will endure..." Finnegan said, brightly enough, but with a trace of impatience. "An' have ye given any thought to the other wishes...?"

Considering it for a second, Vince nodded, a grin crossing his face.

"I've got my first wish ready." The burly Italian said, shooting a wicked look in the buxom new woman's direction...
...and then he leaned forward and whispered his wish into the grinning little leprechaun's ear.

"Hey, wait...!" The supple blonde shouted, chagrined - but it was too late, and the leprechaun clapped his hands together in delight.

"Done, and done!" Finnegan shouted. "Fare the well, lad and lady - and when ye' have your final wish, Vince, simply speak it, and true it shall become!"

With that, the little man began to spin. Faster and faster he whirled, a golden sparkling glow coming up to surround him. The corona brightened to nearly blinding levels - and then, with a flash, the radiance faded rapidly, as did the man enclosed with it, leaving Vince and his newly feminine friend alone in the old tunnel.

"What did you wish for?" Deborah demanded - distractedly, as she was hesitantly sliding her slim new hands over the clothing that encased her altered new contours, feeling not only the feminine curves under the flesh of her hands, but the pressure of her hands through smoother, more firmly soft flesh that transmitted sensations so similar, yet so different, then what she'd experienced as a man.

"You'll see..." Vince promised, mysteriously. "Come on - let's get you out of here. This is... no place for a lady."

Vince hesitated, his growing blush clearly illuminated as he picked up the Coleman lantern with his right hand... and cocked his left arm out, offering it to Deborah.

Her slimmer, finely arched eyebrows rose in surprise - and her own blush deepened.

Not because the gesture was unusual, really - but because it was a usual, gallant gesture that Vince would make...

...to an attractive woman.

"I... think I can manage." She said, awkwardly. Gesturing towards the end of the tunnel, she made a 'go ahead' motion. "Ladies first." Vince said, returning the same gesture to her...

...and, despite having known Vince for years, having watched him 'get the girl' with gallant good humor and impeccable timing and easy-going manners, Debbie realized for the very first time a simple fact she'd overlooked all these years:

Her best friend, quite simply, could not help himself.

Perhaps it was his libido coupled with the way his upbringing taught him to treat women, or perhaps it was simply pure force of habit - but when in the presence of a woman, especially one he found attractive, Vince automatically kicked over into his 'ultra-thoughtful' mode, the one that had netted him so many dates over the years.

The realization explained a lot of things - and made her uncomfortably aware of her own feminine condition, especially in view of Vince's verbal reaction upon describing her for the first time.

This could be... awkward.

Then, as amazing as it was, she momentarily managed to forget her female status as she stepped out of the end of the tunnel.

The tunnel led away from an old industrial building that Vince and Dave had sunk their money into, planning to renovate the newly- rezoned building into loft apartments. It had taken most of their ready cash, plus plenty of bank loans, to buy the building and land, as well as the materials they'd need. They'd planned to do all the work themselves, in order to afford to do it - but they'd barely gotten started, finding more trouble than they'd expected, not the least of which being that they had to run new wiring through the old tunnel in order to come up to code on the electric service.

The basement they'd entered the tunnel from had been a dusty, cob-web strewn mess, filled with rusting old machinery and unidentifiable junk - and it was completely different from the basement they walked out into.

This basement was clean, well lit, and featuring a freshly-painted hallway that ran towards a new set of stairs leading up to the first floor of the four-story building. Carpeting was laid down over the concrete floor, and signs on the wall indicated not only the storage units that they'd planned to put down in the basement, but a gym in the portion they hadn't decided what to do with yet.

"What the...?" Debbie gasped, looking about the clean, well-decorated interior of the old building. Vince grinned and put out the lantern.

"Well, the rich man I became after winning the lottery let me buy into the renovation plan of some reclusive woman who was paying a whole shit-load of workmen good money to renovate the place." He said, watching her face for her reaction. "With this wealthy woman as the 'silent partner', we got the work done in record time - including the top-floor penthouses, one for me, and one for this woman. Some lady named Deborah Svensen, who almost nobody has ever seen... except me, of course."

Debbie gaped - and then began to laugh at the sheer genius of it all.

It explained the fact that nobody knew who she was - while completing their dream and making them both wealthy at the same time.

"It took that long for you to whisper all of that into the leprechaun's ear...?" She asked, when her giggles of startled realization tapered off.

"Not exactly..." Vince said, flushing deeply - and the flush gave her a moment's warning.

"Well...?" She demanded, unconsciously striking a highly feminine pose as she spread her legs and planted her balled fists on her womanly hips.

"Well, I sorta gave a reason for you to be both reclusive, wealthy, and unknown..." Vince admitted, blushing even brighter. "Yes...?" She said, threateningly.

"Well, um..." Vince muttered - then blurted it all out in a rush: "Well, see, I said you used to be a stripper who made a ton of money as a feature dancer under the name Davina Biggs, and you retired and went back to your real name and invested your money and just tried to stay out of public so any of your old fans won't be bothering you, see..."

Out of breath, Vince wound down, looking at her expectantly as he awaited her response.

She blinked, suddenly aware of her supple, buxom new body - and realizing that, if she bothered to think about it, she knew she could, indeed, do a strip routine worth every penny she was supposed to have earned.

"That's... the best you could come up with...?" She asked, uncomfortable with the realization that, thanks to the confluence of the two wishes, she not only had the skills of a 'normal' woman available to her - but also those of a top-dollar big-bust 'exotic dancer' buried in her new body.

"Well - it sorta explains everything, including why nobody remembers you." Vince said.

It did, indeed - and it was also exactly the sort of thing Vince would come up with, not out of any sense of trying to embarrass her, but because it was simply the channel that the 'girl-crazy' man's mind ran in. In fact, from a certain point of view, it was a kind and thoughtful effort to clear up the finer points of the broad wish she'd made.

"Well... okay." She said, knowing there was nothing she could do about it, now - and, besides, it didn't really matter anyway, did it? After all, this being female was purely a temporary circumstance, something she'd wanted to experience for a while, not forever.

When they made their final, joint wish, they'd be able to work out a wish that would cover all of this. "Well - do you want to see your penthouse?" Vince said, gesturing towards the stairs.

"Sure..." She agreed. She let Vince give her the lead, and began heading towards the stairs...

...and realized she was walking with her normal, mannish stride.

It felt a little strange - because, though the stride was familiar, the shifting masses of her huge breasts were completely different, as was the way her wider hips and fuller, firmer ass moved.

On a whim, she decided to tap into those 'on demand' feminine skills - and let herself switch over into a more feminine stride.

She felt the constrained movement of her hips suddenly loosen. Her hips began to sway back and forth with each step, with a pert little swivel thrown in to help counter-balance the weight of her new bust. Not that her constrained tits stopped jiggling or swaying within the supporting grip of her heavy-duty bra, but they had less of a 'off balance' effect on her slim-waisted body, especially since the tighter, closer-to-the-body swing of her slender arms helped a lot.

As she continued walking gracefully towards the stairs, feeling the differences between her 'normal' male stride and the new feminine one, a thought occurred to her - and without any further consideration, drive by curiosity and a sort of perverse desire, she let herself slip into her 'stripper stroll'.

Instantly, the tight little swivel of her buttocks became more pronounced, her hips going through a good twenty-degree arc of a back and forth swivel as her feet automatically moved to a 'heel-to-toe' line, instead of the wider stance of both her 'normal' male and female strides. The side-to-side sway of her hips also increased, the swivel of her hips causing a rocking motion that accentuated the taut globes of her pert new derriere, as well as making her legs seem even longer and slimmer through all-but-locking her knees.

Above the slim waist, her torso began to shimmy side to side, a motion that was exaggerated by the rolling motion of her shoulders added to the tighter swing of her arms, even as her spine went rigidly straight, making her seem taller and more supple than she was.

The entire motion also caused her breasts to move more - not within her bra, where they actually jiggled and bounced less, but in total motion, the way she was walking causing her chest to sway back-and-forth in what was obviously designed to be a hypnotic motion.

She blinked, somewhat stunned - not only by the new sensations the ultra-feminine stride created, but by how comfortable it felt to walk this way. The extreme motions of her body let loose sort of canceled each other out, one set of muscles working hard against the other set of muscles to create a perfect balance that made her motion not only look, but feel smooth and graceful.

She was so intent on experiencing the feminine sensations as she gracefully glided down the hallway that it never even occurred to her to wonder what the view from Vince's point of view would look like.

If she'd asked, Vince would have swallowed heavily and given a one-word answer:

Spectacular.

With her full hips and taut ass encased in skin-tight denim, her full, pert ass swayed and swiveled in a sensuous motion that naturally drew a male eye to it, to admire the fully rounded curves that led down into the long legs. Of course, that was assuming that the man in question didn't opt to instead let his eyes rise, following the slender lines of the waist up to the rolling shoulders and swiveling torso all of which combined to show hints of the swelling side of her breasts at the extreme end of each rotation, the teasing views of the mountainous breasts perhaps more enticing than a clear and unequivocal view.

All things considered, Vince might have been highly embarrassed to find himself becoming physically aroused by a woman who used to be male, and his best-friend to boot... but Vince's mind was hard-wired another way.

His eyes saw a woman. A sexy woman, walking in a sexy manner - and that's all his brain took to matter. Vince had very black-and-white views of gender, based solely on appearance - and although he was well aware of the fact that this sexy woman had been, and planned to be, male, all that mattered was the fact that she was female at the moment - and, as far as his subconscious mind, anybody who looked like a woman, was a woman.

All woman.

...and fair game.

Not that any of this ran through the conscious part of his mind, where he might have realized that they might have been highly inappropriate in this case. No, this all went on in a more primal part of his brain. Thanks to his cultural back-ground, his upbringing, and especially the influence of his father, he was pre-programmed for virility, always on the look-out for the next chance to prove his black-and-white views on manhood by finding a woman with which to express his masculinity in the most physical way possible - and the 'pre-programmed computer' of his subconscious mind took in all the data it was receiving from Vince's eyes, ran it through its simplistic databank, and pronounced the woman he was looking at as an 'ideal target' for his masculine charms.

With only a slight feeling of discomfort, Vince let himself enjoy the view of the sexy, buxom woman wiggling and swaying her way up the stairs, the growing erection in his jeans a familiar and comforting sensation, one that his well-programmed mind accepted as completely natural - even desirable - under the circumstances.

Still blissfully unaware that Vince was following her up the stairs with a hard-on straining the denim fabric of his jeans, Debbie swayed her way sensuously up the rest of the stairs, bemused by the sensations that accompanied her sexy glide up the steps.

As a man, Dave had always had an infatuation with huge, round breasts - maybe because, as a shy man who had time talking to 'average girls', women who were considerably more than 'average' were well outside of what he'd considered his league.

As a woman with huge breasts, Debbie was finding that... they were enjoyable just to have.

Sensation wise, not much difference lay between being male and female. Though the sensations she felt were different than those of a man, they were nevertheless recognizable and easily adjusted to - with a couple of exceptions.

The first was the lack of her male genitalia. She'd never realized how constantly aware of her own cock and balls she'd been before. It had been subconscious, but ever-present - the way they'd filled her pants, the way they'd move when she'd moved, the unconscious way she'd constantly made sure not to crush, injure or expose her cock.

Now, there was almost a sort of freedom in the fact that no matter how she moved or swiveled or walked, her firm, taut thighs could brush together without any fear or danger of pain.

But her tits...

Her tits!

Her tits!

They were heavy - yet somehow not a burden. Instead, they were as ever-present as her subconscious awareness of her cock and balls had been as a man - but so new, they were a conscious awareness. They weren't in any danger of being injured or pressured, like her cock had been - but were warm, somehow comforting weights on her chest, almost entities of their own, swaying and shifting in constant movement with every breath she took - and generating a faint, but undeniable, pleasure.

Then there was the over-all sensation of being female. The way she felt, the way she moved - she felt... lighter. Lithe. Delicate, yet not weak or breakable.

A lot of it might just have been the newness of what she was experiencing - yet it was somewhat discomfiting to find that simply being female was apparently more inherently enjoyable than just being male had been.

Caught up in experiencing the sensations and emotions of her new gender, Debbie still didn't notice anything unusual as Vince gallantly unlocked and opened the door to her new penthouse - and gently placed one hand on the small of her back as he guided her into the apartment, his eyes devouring the sight of her full, round breasts from his close position to her warm, supple, and wholly womanly body.

Her attention - and her breath - were yanked away as she stepped into the large, comfortable-looking living room of her loft-style two-level penthouse... and saw herself.

Over and over.

In the many full-length mirror panels that adorned the walls, showing off her home-spun-clad figure with it's anything but home-spun body under it's tight fabric embrace, from every conceivable angle.

That, however, was nothing - compared to what adorned the areas of the walls not covered by the mirrors. Everywhere she looked were full-sized posters from the places 'Davina Biggs' had headlined.

Pictures of her, four-to-six years younger - in every sensuous and/or sexy pose and outfit imaginable. Pictures of her in school-girl outfits, sequined dresses that covered her head-to-toe in a skin-tight shimmer, outfits that left little to the imagination. Pictures of her balanced sensuously and provocatively atop heels ranging from five to seven inches high, pictures that teased or promised.

Pictures of her smiling or pouting, fully made-up and posing to provoke.

Pictures of her with her huge, money-earning tits out-thrust proudly, not a hint of shame or embarrassment - indeed of joy and enjoyment.

Pictures of her as a gloriously sexy, sexually unfettered woman who enjoyed her body and her work.

Pictures that showed the same stunning woman as the stunned-looking woman reflected in the myriad of mirrors, the ones belonging to a woman more than just simply proud of her undeniable feminine body.

"What... exactly... did you say about me in the wish...?" She asked, barely hearing the feminine tones of her new voice as she gaped at the many different versions of herself reflected back to her.

"Just what I said..." Vince said, seeing absolutely nothing wrong or unusual in the décor. "I guess, to be a rich and famous stripper, you must really love your work, is all."

There was, in fact, more to it than that - because in the exact phrasing of his wish, Vince had defined what he thought a big-money stripper would be, not having the slightest clue that the 'persona' the strippers he was familiar with down at his favorite club was just that, a persona, a false-face of eagerness and excitement that the women projected to eke a few more dollars out of each man they were working.

So, while 'real' strippers had two distinct and separate personalities and lives, dressing provocatively for work and conservatively in private, Vince's mental image of a stripper was one who's off-duty life mirrored her on-duty persona - and so that's how he defined the stripper that the new woman had supposedly been.

Though Debbie had no 'impulses' to be that woman, she had all the skills and abilities of this fictional stripper - and, thanks to the confluence of the two wishes, everything she owned, from clothing to décor, reflected this fictional past Vince had thoughtfully concocted for her.

"Well, I figure I'm carrying about twenty pounds of dust on me." Vince said, tipping an imaginary hat. "I'm going to go get cleaned up, and I suggest you do the same, maybe settle into your place. I'll be in the suite just across the hall if you need me."

"Huh... oh, sure..." Debbie said, still distracted by the images of this sexy, buxom woman - who just happened to be her. "I'll see you later."

Flashing her a smile that had weakened dozens of women's knees in the past, Vince made his exit - his long, lingering gaze on her supple, top-heavy figure going unnoticed in her dazed condition.

As the door closed on Vince's lascivious look, Debbie shook off some of her daze - and then her fair skin began to acquire the rosy- cheeked glow of a blush as she considered the obvious.

She was dusty, dirty, and sweaty - and so she should obviously get cleaned up. Should get undressed...

...leaving her busty new female body completely and utterly naked...

...while she climbed under a flow of warm, caressing water...

...and ran her slender new hands over every inch of her smooth new flesh. Her body began to tingle.

Slightly breathless, she made her way to the bathroom, having to sort of find-and-see the correct door as she surveyed her new domain, finding image after image of 'herself' everywhere she looked - posters and magazines and home photographs, all of them showing her smiling and decidedly unselfconscious of her curvaceous figure.

The woman in the photos didn't actually exist, was little more than a graphical work of fiction to a past that had never existed - by in the nearly endless number of mirrors that populated the apartment, the same face, the same body, were reflected back at her, this one rosy-cheeked and considerably less comfortable with her gender and her sensuality.

It was waking up with amnesia, and seeing pictures of a life you couldn't remember.

Finally, Debbie found the bathroom - or a bathroom, at least, since the general look of the room suggested it was a guest bathroom, rather than her main one. It had all the requisite facilities and amenities, however, and that was enough for her - especially with her mind running and re-running the thoughts of what she was about to do.

Leaning into the glass-enclosed shower stall, she reached out to start the water - and then stopped dead, eyes widening as her slim hand flew to her full lips.

"What sort of woman am I...?" She asked herself, not noticing the internalization of these images she was seeing, as she stared at the wall that made up the 'front' of the stall.

The side and back of the stall were glass, and the side opposite the door was mirrored - but the wall that boasted the facets and showerhead also boasted a life-sized image of herself.

She was standing tall and proud, legs spread atop a pair of platform heels made of clear plastic. She was naked - officially. Strategically placed puffs of bubbles covered her crotch and nipples - but every other gleaming, wetly slick inch of her body was naked, right down to the massive, round breasts her hands were cradling so enjoyably.

"This is the guest bathroom?" She questioned her image on the wall, wondering what she'd been thinking - and the line between the man-who-was-currently-a-woman and the false-woman-who-never-existed grew a little fuzzier.

Shaking her head, Debbie got the water running and the temperature adjusted, then closed the door to the stall as she slowly undressed, her blush deepening with every garment she peeled off the 'willing body' of the gorgeous woman that she just happened to be at the moment.

Soon, her smooth, creamy flesh was completely exposed - and she found much of milk flesh suffused with the flush that came from getting some woman to strip completely naked - even if it was her own body.

Her body tingling with a nervous energy, she stepped into the glass enclosure of the shower stall, both eager and embarrassed, shamed and charged, all at the same time.

Her body trembling, she stepped under the warm, flowing spray of the water.

Picking up the small puffy thing hanging on the hook beside the taps, and gently squeezed an amount of the moisturizing body-wash onto it from the nearby bottle.

Lightly, she started washing, making small, tentative circles on her right hip with the puff. It felt... nice.

Really nice.

In more ways than one.

With growing confidence - and physical arousal - she began to increase both the vigor and size of the circular motions she was making, letting the puff move over her body... like a lover's hand.

She gave off a small moan of pleasure at the sensations coming from the gentle contact of the slippery, soapy puff against her fair skin, tingling the nerves - and exciting both her body and her imagination.

As he right hand continued to use the puff to nominally wash herself, her lefty hand began sliding over the slick, damp skin of her left side, starting on her thigh and slowly working it's way up the side of the body, feeling the lingering line of pleasure it left behind.

"Oh, wow..." She said, in soft amazement. She wondered if women had any idea of how much more sensitive - how much more responsive - their very bodies were to sensation, especially pleasure.

Somehow, he doubted it. Women, after all, lived with it all their life, and had no more idea of how different it was for them then she had had while a man. It took a chance to experience both sides of the gender equation to find out just how different the two are.

Now, the soapy puff slid from her hand, all pretense of this being a simple shower gone as she let her hands roam her body at will, her head lolling to one side as she moaned again in pleasure...

* * * * *

On the other side of the adjoining wall, leaning against the tub he'd just about to start filling with water, Vince listened, wide eyed, as Debbie's muffled, but audible, moans increased in volume and duration.

* * * * *

"God... women have it so good..." She gasped to herself, one hand rising, the other falling. "Tits to play with, any time thy want..."

Her hand gripped the underside of her massive new breast, kneading the soft, firm flesh... as her thumb rose up and began to rhythmically tweak her large, thick, and now very fully erect pink nipple, causing wonderful waves of pleasure.

Without thinking, she cried out what she was thinking - feeling - without any hesitation: "God, I..."

* * * * *

"...love having tits!"

Naked, perched on the edge of the tub, Vince had his eyes closed, the mental image of what his feminized friend was doing on the other side of the wall playing through his mind.

Almost without conscious thought, the naked man's hand dipped between his legs, wrapping around his hard cock and beginning to stroke firmly and rhythmically.

* * * * *

As good as it felt to play with her own, massive rack, folding the firm flesh and playing with the large, highly-sensitive nipples, it was all quite second rate to the sensations that blossomed in her body as her other hand reached the center of her new gender, her womanhood - which was warm and wet in a way that had nothing to do with the water still gushing down over her.

Her finger pressed lightly across the swollen, sensitive nub of her engorged clit - and she twitched, knees going weak. She sagged back against the wall, hand on her massive tits redoubling it's efforts - as she plunged a finger into her tight, wet new cunt, crying out in pleasure as she did so: "I love being a woman!"

It was purely a spur-of-the-moment cry, not a lifestyle declaration... but she wondered if it might become that, as the finger thrust in her tight new womanhood sped up, plunging harder and faster into her cunt, increasing the wonderful, internal pleasure flooding through her body from the tiny little nub, and the tight, slippery-wet walls of her cunt.

"Oh, yes..." She gasped, thrashing against the wall. "Geez... why aren't woman fingering themselves all day long, playing with their tits every minute of the day..."

She thrashed and moaned, her full buttocks slamming against the cool mirror behind her as warm pleasure thundered through her. "Oh, yes - yes...!" She cried, as her first female orgasm rapidly approached. "Dear God..."

* * * * *

"...yes, yes, I'm cumming, I'm cumming, I'm... cumming...!" She wasn't the only one.

Arching his back and gasping, Vince let fly with his load, leaving a sticky trail running down the far side of the tub as he shuddered and slumped.

"Whoa, Deb - I had no idea you were so hyped about being a woman..." He muttered, grinning at the wall.

If he was so capable of getting into the pants of women who were complete strangers, imagine how much easier a relationship it would be with a hot-to-trot woman who also happened to be somebody he really liked spending time with.

This could be interesting.

Very interesting indeed.

This 'turning into a woman' idea she'd had might be the best thing that had ever happened to them. They were best friends, and he was still a man - but she was now all woman, and obviously comfortable with her new body.

The sex was all but pre-ordained...

* * * * *

Knees still a little weak, Debbie slid open the door to 'her' closet in 'her' bedroom...

...and stopped dead, eyes going wide as she unconsciously let the towel she'd wrapped around her lithe new body drop to the ground.

The closet was huge, a walk-in with enough room to store an elephant...

...and it was jam-packed to the limit. Every inch was filled - with the largest array of sexy, seductive and sensual clothing she'd ever seen.

"Oh, my god...!" She gasped, blushing anew. "I wouldn't be caught dead letting anybody see me dressed like this...!" The new woman paused... and slowly began to smile as she looked around.

"But there's nobody to see me, now is there...?" She asked herself. Feeling delightfully guilty, she began to peruse the selection.

Finally, she settled on one of the outfits she'd seen 'herself' wearing on one of the posters - a simple but highly effective outfit. It was easy enough to get dressed - since the entire outfit consisted of precisely two garments.

A pair of skin-tight 'daisy duke' shorts - and a custom-made little hot-pink-checkered short-sleeve shirt that simply tied in a bow, exposing most of her massive, round tits to their best display.

The final item for the little outfit was a pair of hot-pink little sneakers. It was simple, easy to put on - and sexy as hell.

"Wow - what a body..." She said to herself, modeling her hot new look in the nearest mirror.

Giggling at the audacity of wearing such a skimpy, body-revealing outfit, she shook her head at herself and headed out of the bedroom, feeling like grabbing a snack. For the hell of it, she used her 'stripper stride' as she swayed out into the living room...

...only to stop dead, instantly embarrassed, as Vince, crossing the room with a beer from her fridge in hand, looked her up and down and let out an appreciative whistle.

"Damn, Deb - looking hot!" Vince said, grinning. "So - ready to watch that movie?"

With all that had happened, Debbie had completely forgotten that they'd planned to watch a movie on TV tonight. Blinking, she opened her mouth to demand to know where he got off just strolling into her apartment...

...but they'd always had free run of each other's places before, and she closed her mouth before saying anything stupid. "Uh - maybe I should go get changed..." She said, awkwardly, gesturing in the direction of her bedroom.

"Why?" Vince asked, unconcerned, as he gestured at the couch. "I already told you, you look great. C'mon, sit down - the movie's gonna start."

It was strange to find herself feeling uncomfortable with being in the same room as her best friend - so Deb did her level best to suppress the feeling, feigning a smile and walking a bit awkwardly over to the couch, where she settled tight against the arm of the comfortable seat.

Grinning, Vince sat down - right beside her, his arm draped over the back of the couch behind her.

She squirmed a bit at being so close to a man while female - but it wasn't just any man, it was her best friend, so she forced another smile, and kept her discomfort to herself.

She tried to concentrate on the movie, ignoring the hand on her shoulders...

...even as it slipped lower...

...but when his other hand came to rest on her leg, it was too much. "Vince - stop it." She said, pushing him away.

Nothing but surprise showed on his face. With his mind-set, he hadn't seen this coming - he'd seen his best friend 'sharing the boon of womanhood' with him. Oh, perhaps blushing and awkward, the way Dave had been with anything sexual, but as willing as Dave had ever been.

"What are you doing?" Vince asked, truly hurt. "Playing a cock-tease?" "It's not like that!" Debbie protested. "I.. I'm just not ready..."

"Not ready?" Vince scoffed. "You sounded ready in the shower..." She blushed.

"Come on, Vince - this isn't right..." She protested anew.

Frustrated, Vince threw up his hands.

"Geez, Deb - what's wrong with you?" He blurted. "You're a woman, aren't you? Women like having sex with men, don't they?" "Well, yes, but..." She tried to explain.

"Holy Crow!" Vince burst out, well and truly worked up. "I wish I was a huge-breasted sexy ex-stripper myself, so I could show you how to correctly accept the pleasure of a man!"

He didn't even realize what he'd just said - until the golden glow began to swirl around him...

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: With new technology in place, two secretaries play a trick on their chauvinistic boss by setting him up in a transformation scenario as a stripper with an insatiable need for sex.

Role Reversal

By Gunslinger

Expensive - and much-hated - gold-trimmed reading glasses already in place, leonine head lowered to read the faxes in the leather-bound folder he held, Marcus Antony Davis strode confidently and powerfully into the outer office adjacent to his own inner sanctum.

"Linda, I'll need Herr Gutenberg's number immediately." He said, glancing up only briefly, his mind already busy with the data on his faxes, which had come in on the secure machine in his private Sikorsky helicopter, which he used for his daily commute. "Bring it in with my coffee."

"Yes, sir."

His powerful stride unchecked, Mark continued towards the door to his office, his trim, handsome frame neatly clad in a Saville Row suit of dark blue. "Also, Senator Cantor canceled, so see if you can't bump my one-thirty up."

"Yes, Sir."

Opening the door to his office, the leader of business and industry barked out one final instruction. "And Linda...? Get Douglas over at legal down here ASAP - I should have had his report on my desk last night."

"Of course, sir."

The heavy brass-trimmed oak door closed behind Mark Davis's trim back. Two or three silent seconds passed...

...then the door swung back open, and Mark leaned against the door frame, his dark hazel eyes surveying the woman behind the broad, cluttered desk just outside his door. He cocked his head to one side, running his fingers through his light brown hair, yet to show the first signs of gray.

Then, with a broad smile, he stepped forward, holding out his hand. "Hi, I'm Mark Davis." He said, politely. "And you are...?"

The slender, attractive woman behind the desk smiled wryly. "Carolyn Gorman, Mr. Davis. I'll be filling in for Linda while she's on Maternity leave."

"Oh, yes, of course." Mark said, with a smile that was now strictly polite. Mentally, he kicked himself for forgetting.

After all, he'd arranged a long, very well-paid maternity leave for Linda himself... to help insure that she wouldn't bring up the matter of paternity, especially not in court...

"Well, I'm sure you're fully qualified for the job, Miss... Gordon, was it?" "Gorman, sir." She replied, calmly. "I'll be right in with your coffee."

"Great." Mark said, nodding - and surreptitiously taking in a head-to-toe glance of his new secretary. Turning, he re-entered his office and closed the door behind him, his mind churning over the look he'd gotten.

Not bad. Not bad at all. Tall, slender and lithe, which was good - even if she was wearing a well-tailored suit that was somewhat 'mannish' in its cut, and accented with barely-feminine Italian leather 'loafer'-style shoes with, at most, a one-inch heel. Still, despite her lack of make-up and the way her dark hair was done in a tight bun, this Gordon girl was still quite the looker, and she might be... amenable to certain suggestions...

A moment later, just after he'd settled into his desk and brought his sleeping computer to life, the object of his thoughts appeared in the doorway, carrying the gold-trimmed china cup-and-saucer of his first coffee of the working day. Setting it down on his desk near his elbow gave him a chance to judge her - sadly - rather flat chest, though he did so with circumspection. As she laid the number he'd asked for on the desk and began reading the day's appointments to him, he picked up the cup and began to sip at the coffee.

He bought - or had people buy for him - a special blend of coffee, just perfect to his liking... and this wasn't quite it. There was a certain, bitter taste to it that was a little off. Not much, but enough to be appreciable. Either the coffee mix was 'adulterated', or the beans themselves came from a crop that had an 'off' season, neither of which was acceptable to Mark. After all, one didn't earn as much money as he did to put up with second best...

Making a mental note to have it looked into, he finished the cup of almost perfect coffee while listening to his new secretary read off his day's appointments...

...then shook his head and blinked, feeling thick-witted and exhausted.

Taking off his reading glasses and putting them on the desk, he turned around and looked out the floor-to-ceiling windows behind him, barely noticing the glorious view beyond, the city bathed in the golden light of sunset. Instead, Mark rubbed the bridge of his nose between thumb and forefinger, trying to dispel the faint-but-definite headache behind his eyes, like a pressure on his brain.

Well, that's what happened after you put in a hard day's work as a mover-and-shaker in the Western Capitalistic world. Why, just look at what he'd done today...

For a second, a faint frown marred Mark's features as he realized that nothing immediately leapt to mind with that thought. What had he done today...?

...but he must have had a busy day to get a headache, and it was just the same stuff, day-in and day-out, so he didn't really need to think all that hard about it, did he? In fact, he didn't have to think about it at all...

Pushing the thought aside as irrelevant, Mark rose and stretched, unconsciously rubbing the faintly sore spot on his arm, just below the elbow. He left his suit jacket slung across the back of his chair and walked over to the door of his private, in-office apartment, opening it and walking into a 'small' apartment, extravagantly furnished. He'd had the place built into his penthouse office so that he'd could stay at the office when he was expecting an important meeting or call in the middle of the night, like tonight. He wanted to be close by when...

...when whatever it was he was waiting for happened. He had to be waiting for something, since he was absolutely sure he was going to be staying here tonight, and whatever it was must be important, right?

Shaking his head at the way his brain just kept jumping from one topic to another, Mark realized he must be even more tired than he first thought: usually his brain only slipped away from strict business when there was an attractive female within view. Walking over to the lavishly-stocked bar in the corner, he poured himself a drink and then walked over to the leather recliner in front of the big-screen TV and dropped into it. Reaching for the remote, he took a sip of his drink as he flipped on the TV, noticing in passing that the scotch seemed a little more bitter than he remembered it being, but not enough to stop him from downing the rest of it in a gulp. Putting the glass aside, he began to flip through the channels...

...and was more than a little surprised to find the same thing on all of them. An inexpensively-made show, judging from the quality, and having something to do with...

* * * * *

"Mark? Mark, it's time to wake up..."

Mark blinked - and found himself looking into his new secretary's face. A second later, he realized he was sitting in the rich, leather embrace of his recliner, apparently having fallen asleep in front of the TV while watching... watching... something, the night before.

"Umph..." Mark muttered, stretching as Carolyn stepped back to make room for him to rise. "I musta drifted off."

"I guess so, Mark." She replied with a small grin. "I've got some breakfast ready for you. Why don't I set it out on the table and lay out your clothes while you get a shower?"

"Sounds great..." Mark muttered, heading towards the bathroom of the apartment, feeling fuzzy and thick-witted from sleep. He hoped she'd brewed a lot of coffee this morning - the way he felt, he was going to need it...

Closing the bathroom door behind him, Mark started the water running and adjusted the temperature, then quickly stripped out of the clothes from last night. Stepping into the shower, he felt the warm water sluice across his body, and he sighed at how good it felt.

Blinking blearily, he reached for the soap...

...and didn't find it. Instead, in the gold-toned racks built in to the stall, there was a plain green plastic bottle that looked not only oddly familiar... but oddly enticing to Mark.

Shrugging, Mark picked up the... body wash...? and flipped open the lid, squirting the thick, green, gel-like substance into his hand. Almost mechanically, he began to rub it on, starting at his feet, standing back out of the spray of water. The bottle was one of the large- sized ones, but he used almost all of it as he slowly, almost unthinkingly coated his body in the gel.

It took him several minutes to realize that, after applying the stuff, he'd merely stopped moving, standing stock-still for what must have been a good ten or fifteen minutes.

"Geez... falling asleep in the shower..." He muttered to himself, stepping forward under the spray and beginning to rinse the coating off his slightly tingling skin. He wouldn't have been surprised if he had, in fact, drifted off for a few minutes - he felt so logy and thick-headed that he was barely aware that he was awake to begin with.

After that, he used the shampoo and conditioner to wash his thick, long mass of hair...

"Long...?" Mark said, aloud, stopping dead, fingers still buried in a mass of hair that hung to his shoulders. "When did my hair get so..." Memory flashed...

* *

He was in his office. He knew that, because he recognized the surroundings - but the chair he was sitting in was in the center of the office, where there shouldn't be any furniture. The chair wasn't familiar to him - yet, in a way, it was, it's embrace similar to that of a barber's chair... but not quite.

A woman he'd never seen before stood in front of him, her blocky body covered with a long white jacket. A pair of scissors glittered in her right hand as she surveyed him, dispassionately. Beside her was a tray full of tools for styling and trimming hair - and more, items he'd seen but never used, as well as items he'd never even seen. An esoteric collection of styling equipment mixed with oddly scientific- looking items...

The woman in front of him spoke, though Mark wasn't quite able to comprehend the words. It didn't matter, as the words weren't directed at him - from somewhere behind him, he heard another feminine voice answer back, one he recognized as belonging to his new secretary, Carolyn...

* *

Mark blinked, staring at the blue-tile wall of the shower stall.

"Damn..." he muttered, blankly. "Drifted off again. What was I...? Oh, yeah... washing my hair..."

He went back to washing his thick, full head of platinum-blond hair almost absently, staring blankly at the wall in front of him and thinking about nothing in particular while he performed the chore. Once finished, he rinsed his hair thoroughly, then shut off the water and stepped out of the stall, toweling himself off quickly, his smooth body shivering slightly in the cooler air.

Padding, naked, into the bedroom area of the apartment, he found Carolyn waiting for him.

It didn't even occur to him to be self-conscious about being naked in front of his secretary. After all, he'd been naked - and more - with all his previous secretaries, hadn't he?

Besides...

* *

He was naked. The cool air moved over his skin as he sat, limp, in the chair, the chemical cocktail running from the IV into his arm. Everything had a dream-like quality to it as Carolyn looked him over with an appraising look, a sneer on her lips as she turned to the other woman and spoke...

* *

"Something wrong, Mark?" Carolyn asked, as he frowned slightly.

"I.. I'm not sure..." He replied, groping for the memories and thoughts that didn't want to quite come clear. "I.. I..." She cleared her throat. "Why don't I help you dress... Missy?"

He blinked, shaking his head. "Uh.... What? Oh, yeah, sure - that's be great." He grinned at her. She was so smart. So... in control. Well, that's why he trusted her, wasn't it? She was always right, wasn't she...?

Carolyn smiled at him. A slightly odd smile, but that was okay - because everything she did was right, wasn't it? He trusted and believed her completely...

...didn't he...?

"Here... let's start with this..." She said, handing him a pair of plain white briefs. The fit sort of strangely on him, being a little baggy at the back and too tight in the crotch and waist... and there was no 'zigzag' opening on the front. He frowned slightly as he pulled them on, feeling that there might, possibly, be something about this underwear that bothered him... but it was Carolyn who had handed them to him, for God's sake, and she was never wrong... so he let himself slide back into a calm, happy daze and simply tucked his cock and balls into as comfortable a position as possible.

Next, she handed him an undershirt. He always wore an undershirt, one of those white, sleeveless shirts sometimes called a 'wife- beater' shirt... but he'd never pulled on one quite like this. First of all, it was smoother, softer fabric.. and there was lace trim along the neckline and hem...

...but it was what Carolyn had given him to wear, so it must be right for him.

She handed him a dress shirt to put on. It was sort of off-white, and made of silk, so it must have been fairly expensive. and, like the stuff he'd put on so far, it hadn't come from his closet. Carolyn, being perfect, must have decided he needed a new 'look'. Well, she new best, didn't she? After all, that's why he hired her....

With that comforting thought, he slipped the shirt on. finding that it was a little tight across the shoulders, slightly baggy in the chest.

Still, like the rest of the clothes, it must be the way it was designed to fit - after all, Carolyn didn't make mistakes.

Next, he pulled on the slacks he was handed. They were beige, with tapered legs and more prominent pleats at the waist than what he was used to. and, like the underwear, it was tight in the waist and crotch, but baggy across his hips and ass.

There was a matching jacket for the slacks, and it was a bit of a struggle to get it on - it was a 'formed' cut jacket, with a narrow waist and a flare over the hips that nothing he'd ever worn before had anything even close to.

The 'final touches' were the shoes and the tie. The tie must have been European or something, more of a blue-and-old-gold silk scarf that was tied into a sort of loose, fluffy 'bow-tie'. The shoes were loafer, Italian leather but they pinched his toes something horrible, and the heels were somewhat taller than he was used too, and narrower almost like cowboy-boot heels or something.

"There you go, Missy." Carolyn complimented him - and her approving words caused shivers of pleasure to run down his spine. "Now, why don't I just fix your hair for you, and then we can get some work done?"

"Sure thing, Carolyn. " He agreed, happily, sitting down and letting her fiddle with his hair for awhile. While she was doing that, she commented on how dry the air was, and he agreed, though he'd just noticed that fact after she'd mentioned it.

Luckily, the jacket he was wearing was 'fully equipped' - there was a black-and-gold tube of chap-stick in his pocket. It must have been cherry- or strawberry-flavored, given it's bright-red color, but it didn't taste much like either as he applied it to his lips, immediately getting rid of that annoying 'dry' sensation.

Fully dressed and with his hair finished (as perfect as always, Carolyn had pulled the thick wave back and up, away from his face so it fell in waves down to his shoulders), he sat down to breakfast while Carolyn discussed the day's itinerary.

"This morning I'll be using your office, so you'll have to use the desk out in the reception room." She told him, and he nodded. "Then, this afternoon, your new image consultant is dropping by again for more. consulting."

He paused, frowning slightly. "Image consultant?"

"Yes, Missy." Carolyn said. "Tanya. You met her yesterday. You're very happy with her work, Missy."

He grinned. "Yes. I met her yesterday, and I'm very happy with her work." Still grinning, he finished the steaming, slightly bitter coffee...

* * * * * blink

...Joe, from R&D, was looking at him oddly, asking something about... lipstick...? He tried to explain to Joe about Tanya, the new image, and everything, but Carolyn interrupted to bring Joe some coffee... some 'Joe for Joe', she'd joked... blink

...he was in that chair again, and pain was struggling to break through his daze to scream it's warning to his mind, but he couldn't seem to care as Tanya leaned over him again and did something to his face and...

Blink

'...how about Sandra, Missy?' Carolyn asked, her face curled by her sneer. 'Did you fuck her, too - then fire her when you got bored with her?'

'Yes...' He replied, thickly, slowly - numbly.

Carolyn turned to Tanya. 'Well, there's another cup size. Geez, I don't think this bastard's ever walked past a woman without trying to fuck her...'

BLINK

...the image on the TV screen was pretty low quality, but he barely noticed, absorbing the information from it, as he'd been instructed. Tips on how to walk, how to stand, how to 'pose' without even having to think about it...

BLINK...

* *

Gasping, Missy sat bolt upright, sweat sheathing his smooth, denuded skin.

"What's wrong, Missy?" Carolyn asked, coming out of the bathroom, where she'd started the shower running for him.

"I.. I'm not sure..." He gasped, mind spinning with half-formed images. "I... I... It feel like a nightmare, yet... yet... What was it that we did yesterday...?"

Carolyn's lips twitched. "Nothing you need to be worried about, Missy. Yesterday was just fine - and you slept fine last night. In fact, you feel calm, relaxed and happy... don't you, Missy?"

Missy blinked, and relaxed. "Yes, Carolyn, I do. I feel calm, relaxed and happy." "Good. Now, why don't you shower, and I'll lay out your clothes."

"Of course, Carolyn." Missy replied, sliding out of bed and padding into the bathroom, where the shower was already running, the temperature perfectly adjusted. He slipped into the stall.

He started with his hair - since it was both the best and the worst. The worst, because his massive, bleached-blond mane of hair hung all the way down to his thighs, straight and loose, and so was a real pain to wash. He felt the silky strands under his long-nailed fingers as he worked at washing and conditioning the thick, full mane...

Wait a second... was his hair always this thick and long? Didn't it used to be shorter...?

<You love your long, thick hair, Missy. You're proud of having such a huge head of soft, silky, bottle-blond hair...>

The slight frown that had formed faded with a happy sigh as he finished washing his hair and moved on to the rest of his body... which was very, very sore. That was the reason why his hair was also the 'best' to start with - his entire body was tender, especially his chest, ass, crotch, waist and face... but the other parts were sore, as well. It wasn't anything to worry about, of course - Carolyn had told him so. Still, it was uncomfortable to wash himself, hands moving with utmost care to avoid sudden, sharp flares of pain - especially since he had such long, sharp nails...

Wait a second.... Long nails...?

<You don't mind how hard it is to do things with long nails, Missy. You're proud of your nails, and like to keep them neat, clean and painted in bright, glossy colors...>

What was he... oh, right - washing while being careful not to poke himself with his wonderfully long, well-maintained nails. Maybe he should get another manicure soon...

Humming softly to himself, a vapid smile unknowingly pasted onto his face, Missy finished his shower and very carefully toweled himself dry, loving the feel of the soft terry-cloth towel across his smooth, silky, wonderful skin.

Padding out of the bathroom, he found Carolyn waiting to help him dress. She was sooooo helpful, and he was glad she'd hired him as her secretary. After all, he'd never have gotten to be so good at his job if not for her help, especially her brilliant idea of having her friend Tanya help him become more 'professional' in appearance and actions.

Carolyn was just the best boss ever.

She helped him dress, starting with the heavily-'boned' white canvas-and-leather corset. It was a cast-iron bitch to get on, and Missy gasped as Carolyn mercilessly pulled it tighter and tighter - and tighter. He opened his mouth to complain...

<You want to have as slender a waist as possible, Missy. You want it absolutely tiny...> "Can you get it any tighter?" He asked, fretfully. "I swear, I'm just a fat cow..."

Carolyn grinned. "Don't worry Missy - I'm sure that the diet, exercise and the pills will get you down to size in no time. Why, I bet that you won't even need the corset soon..."

"I hope you're right..." He said, fretfully - how was he going to lose those unsightly inches...?

Still worried about his too-thick waist, Missy finished dressing - the 'nude' nylons, the tight, pastel-pink skirt that clung to his hips and full ass, the crisp, tight-fitting white short-sleeve blouse, and the white leather pumps with their six-inch heels.

Then he sat down to do his hair and make-up. Tanya had helped him learn how to make his face look better by 'emphasizing' his features, and he was grateful to her, too - but not as much as he was grateful to Carolyn, of course.

Not even realizing that he was humming happily to himself, he carefully finished his make-up and got Carolyn's approval, then moved on to his hair. First, he dried it with a blow-dryer - a time-consuming job, since his hair was so long and thick. Once it was finally dry, he moved on to very carefully styling it so it helped emphasize the line of his face and the smooth flow of his neck.

Once he was done, all he had to do was choose a few pieces of jewelry, and then he was ready for another day at work...

...after he'd had his coffee, of course. Despite the fact that Carolyn was the 'big boss', damned near God Herself, she still was such a darling woman as to make the coffee while he got ready, and she had a cup of the dark, slightly bitter brew waiting for him when he was ready for it...

* * * * *

He was sitting... somewhere. He felt strange. Not just his body, but his mind - he felt... lethargic. Awake... yet not.

Standing near him, looking at him, were three women. Carolyn and Tanya, with looks of haughty pride on their faces - and Linda, her belly bulging roundly, a look of stunned shock on her face.

"That's really him?" His old secretary said, sounding stunned. "That's... that's amazing! I can't believe you managed to do this in only three months!"

"Yes - it worked out even better than we hoped. Of course, he was 'asleep' for most of that time, and wasn't aware of it as we got him ready... but that was part of the plan, and it worked as well - or better - than we hoped." Carolyn said, smugly. "In fact, everything's gone even better than we planned. Not only with him, but with the rest of the company. We 'Phase One'd all the male staff, and they believe absolutely anything we tell them to. Not only will they 'support' our little story about Mark selling the company to me, but all the upper executives are shortly going to decide to leave the company, making room for our friends to take the positions."

"That's great..." Linda said, vaguely, now grinning widely as she stared at him. "But what about her? I mean - him? Is Phase Three ready?"

"Yes. She's not only ready, physically, but fully 'programmed'. As far as the rest of the world is concerned, Mark Davis died when his plane crashed. Such a shame, too, what with him having just decided to retire..." She smirked. "Now, there's only Melissa Montblanc - or, as she prefers to be called, Missy..."

Then the heavy darkness pressing in overwhelmed him, and his thick-witted mind slid into darkness, still trying to puzzle out what the women were talking about...

* * * * *

"Put your hands together and welcome our feature dancer for her last set of the evening!" Slightly distorted by the amplification, the words of the DJ/MC nevertheless rang clean through the heavy beat of the music. "The One...! The Only...! MISTY MOUNTAINS!"

As the last fragments of that shouted, amplified voice echoed around the inside of the club, the darkness on stage was replaced by the sudden flare of light from hidden spot-lights, three separate beams cutting through the smoky atmosphere of the club from three different directions. White, pale pink and faint yellow, merging and mingling on the single target the three of them shared in common...

...and the all-male audience went wild, hooting, whistling and applauding wildly at the sight of the woman who stood in the lime-light.

Cast in the trio of lights that caught gold-and-copper highlights from her lightly oiled skin, she was as much a work of sensual art as a living, breathing woman, her body held easily in the 'oldest pose' - her left leg bearing slightly more of the weight, her right leg slightly bent at the knee and extended about an inch forward and an inch outward, her hips slightly cocked, her arms hanging easily at her side as she stared straight forward, face in a easy, peaceful expression that seemed out-of-place in the noisy, thrumming throng of testosterone that surrounded her.

She was tall - but most of her extra height seemed to come from long, incredibly shapely legs that rose in seemingly endless series of smooth, feminine curves and dips. Bare and slightly oiled, the perfectly smooth, silky legs were further enhanced by the white leather platform pumps she wore, lifting her three inches higher at the toes, but a soaring ten inches where the spiked heels lifted her aloft. The heels also accentuated the taut, sensual curvature of her full, firm ass, easily seen through the diaphanous white gown, trimmed with lace, that lay over her gleaming body, covering without concealing her stunning form.

Her waist was deliciously slender, wasp-like in it's slender, perfectly curved double arch above the smooth swell of her womanly hips. A pair of lacy white French-cut panties served to accentuate rather than break those smooth, supple lines, and the fact that the panties hid her womanhood - barely - only promised that there was even more to come. Likewise, the matching bra that encased her breasts was merely titillating the audience, letting them know that there was even more to be seen - and many of the men were all-but-drooling at the thought of seeing those glorious, perfect mounds bare. Indeed, many of them were 'repeat customers', having seen her in all her glory - but that did nothing to lessen their interest, or their attentions. Indeed, the ones who had already seen her act seemed the most eager to once more gaze upon her gorgeous, naked body.

But as perfect as that body was, it was easily matched by her face. It was a study in sensual beauty, well formed and almost eerily perfect - without being coldly 'artificial'. Indeed, despite her occupation and her current focus of lustful gazes, there seemed to be an almost virginal, innocent aspect to her beauty. Her face was heart-shaped, with a slender, pointed chin that rose in a graceful sweep up and back. Her cheek-bones were high and well-defined, creating a natural sort of 'crevice' on either side of her full, soft lips, giving her a permanent expression of faint, amused surprise, as if everything was new and wonderful to the big, crystal-clear blue eyes that framed her pert, upturned nose.

Surrounding that face was an incredibly full, thick, silky mane of platinum-blond hair that moved softly and naturally, the silken strands stirred even by the faint motion of her own breathing. Lifting high off her head and then falling in thick, curly waves to just above her full, spectacular ass, her massive mane of hair seemed to have a life it's own, even though she was standing almost perfectly still...

...and then she moved. Like a living liquid, her body impossibly supple and graceful, she began to glide forward, torso moving with the beat of the song as she worked her leg muscles in sensual counterpoint, her hair trailing behind her like a living cape of pale gold silk. Her long, carefully maintained nails were painted the faintest shade of pink, nearly white, and they roamed her own, silky body at will, touching and glancing across smooth, succulent flesh as she moved and writhed in sensuous, supple time with the music.

Yet, for all the pure sexual power of her motions, there still remained that sort of 'innocence' about her, as if she was utilizing ingrained, almost unconscious skills of a purely sexual nature, yet without any 'wayward' thoughts. As if she was somehow more... 'focused' on what she was doing, without being consciously aware of any other 'implications' of her actions... as if she were naive enough to be doing this simply because she 'enjoyed' it...

...or almost as if she were somehow a machine 'programmed' to arouse men without even thinking about it. But of course, she was a living person, and it wasn't possible to program a person...

...was it?

It didn't matter - none of the men watching her incredible, sensual movements bothered to question the origin of her nearly paranormal skill and sensuality, both physically and in motion, they just enjoyed it.

They enjoyed it even more as she slowly shucked off what little clothing she did wear. Unlike most strippers, however, her panties weren't the last to come off.

Her bra was - and then the audience's howls and applause redoubled as her incredible breasts were - finally - fully revealed.

They were huge. The size of large pumpkins, easily, and remarkably firm - yet not 'hard', but with the faint droop of 'natural' breasts. It seemed impossible for any woman to have breasts that large and yet have them so preternaturally firm... yet the size of her thick, pink nipple conformed to the massive proportions of her tits, something women who were the recipients of a plastic surgeon's skills could not boast.

Now gloriously naked, the statuesque blonde continued to dance for a few more minutes, until the end of the song, and then swayed and jiggled most pleasantly off stage, the audience still applauding. Pausing in her nominal dressing-room only long enough to pull on a fuzzy pink bathrobe, she headed towards the back door of the club. She pushed open the heavy, graffiti-marked steel door...

There was a gasp of indrawn breath - and a dozen or so men waiting at the rear of the club began to vie for her attention as she smiled somewhat vapidly - at the crowd. To be here, waiting, meant that they'd had to miss the end of her show - but they were more than willing to do so, given the chances...

Lips curled into a smile, the pneumatic blonde looked over the selection tonight - and pointed one long, pastel-pink nail at two different men.

"You... and you..." She said in her high, clear soprano, finishing her selection off with a giggle. While the other men sighed and looked on enviously, the huge-breasted woman headed towards her house, which was a small bungalow only a hundred yards away from the back door of the club, on the other side of the parking lot. The two men she'd singled out padded along behind her, almost slavishly, sharing meaningful looks between long, panting gazes at the pert sway of her hips and the way the robe moved over her spectacular ass.

Her high, slender heels clacked lightly on the three concrete steps leading up to the small patio in front of the door, and she reached into the pocket of her robe to draw out the house key - and the action caused the loosely-tied robe to drop open. Even though they were behind her, the guys had no trouble imagining what was revealed by this - and she made no move to tie it closed again.

Then again, it wasn't really a surprise. Misty had been working at the Booby Trap for more than three months now, and nearly every 'regular' there knew her 'habits'. She just couldn't seem to get enough sex. While most of the strippers 'worked the floor' between shows, doing private dances, Misty always picked a guy or two to take home between shows, and at the end of the day before she headed to bed... well, headed off to sleep. From rough estimates made by various guys, she spent roughly half of her waking day 'in bed'... though the rumors were, it wasn't necessarily 'in bed' that she did her best work...

The rumors seemed to be true. As they guys stepped into her house, their jaws dropped as they stared about them in amazement.

This bungalow was less a place to live than a temple - a temple dedicated to sexual pleasure. Almost every piece of furniture was sturdy enough to support weight, and there was almost no sharp edges to be seen. Even the coffee table and end tables boasted wide, padded leather edged and smooth surfaces. Mirrors abounded, and everything was 'artfully' lighted, neither too bright nor too dim.

"I'm running kinda late tonight, guys." Misty said, with a grin. "Do you guys mind if I do both of you at the same time, right here and now? Truth is, I really shoulda only picked one guy, and even that for a quickie... but I just couldn't choose between sucking a nice, big cock, or getting fucked."

The two guys, still stunned to find that every one of the 'impossible' rumors they'd heard seemed to be true, shared a look. "No problem.." the taller, dark-haired one on the right said, in an oddly strangled voice.

"Great!" She said, happily. "Come on over here, guys..." She said... and let her robe pool around her ankles.

She was gorgeous. She was stunning - and she was hot to trot. Inside, the guys felt a faint tinge of regret, knowing that - so far - she'd never done the same guy twice, and that meant that they were 'wasting' their chance, only getting a quickie out of it... but, right now, they didn't care...

Eagerly - almost desperately - Misty reached out and unzipped the shorter guy's jeans, pushing them - and his boxers - down around his knees, exposing a cock that was hard and ready, the walk here and the thoughts of what was going to happen more than enough to get him aroused.

Spreading her legs, Misty bent over at the waist, huge tits dangling as she leaned forward and wrapped one hand around the base of the guy's cock... and leaned closer, her full, softly firm lips parting and enveloping his cock as he moaned.

That left her ass sticking up and out, invitingly - and it was an invitation that the taller of the two had no intention of refusing. Fumbling a bit out of excitement, he undid his belt and lowered his own pants as he stepped behind her... and buried himself eagerly into her hot, wet, and oh-so-ready cunt.

She didn't moan or gasp at being penetrated - but then, a well-bred person didn't talk with their mouth full. And her mouth was most definitely full as she sucked and licked at the shorter man's cock, with a skill and eagerness that was almost frightening. Her hands, lips and tongue all moved in perfect concert, and she didn't seem the least bit 'distracted' by the fact that the taller guy was pounding away for all he was worth, his face screwed up in an odd expression as he eagerly fucked her from behind, her firm ass shaking from the force of his thrusts as he held on to her hips for leverage. Though she was bent over, still perched atop those slender hells, and being fucked hard from behind, it didn't cause her to 'bounce' forward, or otherwise affect the fantastic blow-job she was giving the first guy...

...and then she began to buck her hips, unlocking her knees and 'posting' to enhance both her own and the guy's pleasure as he fucked her, achieving a syncopated rhythm that made each stroke longer and deeper, as well as causing her cunt to 'tighten' by changing the angle - rubbing the top more tightly on the 'in' thrust, while gripping the bottom of the cock on the 'out' thrust.

Both guys were in intense ecstasy... and she was fucking-and-sucking as if neither one affected the other, almost as if she were two different people, one of them fucking, the other sucking. The amount of skill and 'attention' she was giving to each of them was... well, since they were experiencing it, 'impossible' wasn't the right word.

Awesome. Incredible. Perhaps... Godlike?

No - the right description was orgasmic. Definitely orgasmic - because her manipulation of both of them was also so masterful that she not only sped up and slowed down to keep them 'on the edge' for longer than either thought possible, she also timed it so that both of them - hell, maybe all three of them - came at the exact... same... time...

Both guys screamed out in pleasure as they came, cum flowing into her from both ends. She, herself, was silent as she sucked down the load of thick, salty fluid that was jetting into her willing mouth, not wasting any of the salty cum as she also matched her hips' movements to the now uncoordinated, almost spastic motions of the man behind her, his cock still buried deep in her cunt.

Finally, after what seemed an eternity, the two men finished cumming. Gasping, sheathed in sweat, the two men pulled out of her...

"Thanks." She said, brightly. "I hate to fuck-and-run - or even suck-and-run - but I gotta get upstairs. I'm sure I'll see you guys around..."

As she spoke, she herded them toward the door, and they barely had time to get their pants back up and zipped before they found themselves unceremoniously dumped on the front porch, the door slamming shut behind them.

The two guys found themselves facing a 'spectator' gallery of a half-dozen guys waiting expectantly.

"Well?" One of them asked, urgently. For the past week or so, the two guys on the porch had been part of that midnight gallery, and knew that none of the guys would really believe what they were about to describe, no matter how much they wanted too...

...until their number finally came up, and they too were taken into Misty's home. Sharing a look, the two guys launched into their descriptions...

* * * * *

Missy hurried up the stairs towards her bedroom... and even as she did, wondered why she always felt this incredible urgency to be in her room by three-thirty in the morning. She knew that it was the same every night - no matter what she was doing,. She absolutely had to be in her room at three-thirty, even nights when the club's running late kept her behind schedule, like tonight. That urgency was strange, because all she did was go to bed...

...didn't she? The strange thing was, she could never remember. It had been months, and yet it was always the same - the time from three-thirty until she woke up was a blank to her. She couldn't remember what caused the urgency she felt every night - she just knew she couldn't fight it.

Reaching the top of the stairs, she opened the unusually thick door of her bedroom - unusually thick for other houses, that was. All the doors in her house were thick, since the entire house, each room individually and as a whole, were thoroughly sound-proofed. There weren't even any exterior windows, not anymore - the place had been completely renovated into a 'sex factory' before she'd moved in, though she couldn't remember who had taken care of it. She couldn't remember buying the house, for that matter, or where she'd lived before - or even when she'd gotten the job as a stripper. She'd just, somehow, known that she had to show up at the club the first day...

Closing the sound-proof door, Missy hurried across the thick, deep carpeting to the full-size three-way mirror in the corner. She barely reached it before the small clock beside it, set for three-thirty, let off its small beep...

..and she shivered, eyes fluttering closed.

Mark gasped, then opened her eyes and looked at the sexy, over-endowed sexual body she'd been cursed with. Slowly, she let her eyes roam over the image in the mirror as she let herself get 'up to speed' with what she'd done today, while her 'Missy/Misty' persona had been in control, her real mind forced deep behind an unbreakable wall, hidden until now.

Three months. For three months, she'd been living this life Linda and Carolyn had set up for her, spending each day, unknowing, as Missy - or Misty - a stripper with an insatiable need for sex. Every night, her 'real' consciousness returned... to be faced with what she'd done during the day.

For the first couple of week, the few hours she was 'herself' had been spent screaming and crying. At first, one of the girls, be it Tanya, Carolyn or Linda, had always called to gloat, to listen to her screams of horror and disgust. However, those calls had tapered off soon after she'd started her second phase - the weeks spent begging and pleading and promising, despite the fact that she was damned well aware that the transformation wrought on her was irreversible.

Then she'd sunk into depression. She'd wanted to kill herself - but the girls had made sure to program that option out of her. She wasn't allowed to do anything she knew would bring her harm.

Then she'd sunk into a sort of numb 'acceptance', wearily accepting the fact that there was nothing she could do about her situation. Tonight, however... tonight was different. Tonight, Mark had a plan.

Looking at her outrageous female form in the mirror, Mark didn't scream or sob or even sigh. Instead, she looked over her flawless female body - and then turned away, looking at the small clock set into the wall next to the mirror. The clock was set to beep at three- thirty, letting her real persona loose - and then again at nine in the morning, 'resetting' Missy to her alternate persona.

She'd desperately wished she could smash the clock... during the day. When she'd realized what it did, and accepted that being changed back was impossible, she'd tried to find some way to 'time delay' the destruction of that clock. Of course, she could have easily destroyed it any time she was 'really' conscious... but she'd wanted to destroy it while Missy, never again becoming mark trapped in Missy's body. In a way, it was a form of the suicide she'd been seeking - but destroying it while she was Mark would have left her trapped as Mark in Missy's body, and it was that she'd been trying to escape. However, when she was Missy/Misty, she didn't remember that she wanted to destroy the clock, and never thought of it.

Now, however, she looked around, and found a nice, heavy glass vase nearby. With a set expression of determination that looked out of place on her delicate face, she hefted it - and, with one fell swing, destroyed the clock in the wall.

Dropping the vase, she sighed, knowing she'd just made an irrevocable decision. Now she was 'doomed' to remain conscious in this body - but at least she wouldn't be trapped in the brainless 'Missy' mindset. Now she'd have a chance to find as good a life as she could, given the body she was trapped in...

She was startled when the phone rang... but, thanks to her programming, she didn't have any choice but to answer it. It was yet another 'detail' that they girls had thought of before hand.

"Yeah?" She said, bitterness in her usually sweet voice.

"Naughty, naughty..." Carolyn's voice said, marred by a barely-stifled yawn. "You know, we have a sensor in that clock. When it broke, an alarm sounded here. So... you've decided to accept that you're going to be female for the rest of your life, huh?"

Mark's feminine face tightened. "Oh, just get it over with." She said, irritably. "Go ahead an 'beep' me."

Carolyn laughed. "What - you thought that when we found out you'd broken the clock we'd just 'reset' you to Missy, then fix the clock? Perhaps even 'program' you to keep you from smashing it again? Or did you hope we'd just leave you as 'Missy' from then on?"

"Actually, I was hoping that you wouldn't know it was broken, and I'd have a chance to run away and start a new life." Mark admitted, slumping down on the bed. That had been her plan. He didn't want to be a woman - but since there was no longer any choice in the matter, she'd finally decided to take control of her life and try to live out a 'normal' life, rather than this half-existence where she was a nymphomaniac stripper with no conscious control during the day, and 'herself' at night.

"Really?" Carolyn said, sounding a bit surprised. "You 'adapted' faster then I expected. I figured it would take at least six months before you were willing to face the future in the full realization that you were female, now and forever."

"Yeah, well.." She grumbled. "So - what now? If you're not just going to 'reset' me to Missy, what happens now?" There was a pause, then: "Well, it's earlier then planned, but we did warn you, and it's in the contract, so... 'Excelsior'." The word seemed to slam through Mark's brain, right to the core, causing her to shiver and cry out...

...and then gasp, going rigid and staring at the far wall, wide eyed.

"Holy Shit!" She said, stunned, not hearing the tiny voice coming from the phone handset as she dropped it numbly on the bed. She rose and turned, staring at the reflection in the three-way mirror, numbly lifting her hand to touch her huge, firm tits...

...as memory thrummed through her.

Her name wasn't Mark. Marcus Antony Davis wasn't real. Never had been. It was the pseudonym she'd chosen for herself at the very beginning...

* * * * *

Heart pounding, hands clammy with sweat, Steve pushed his black-rimmed glasses a bit higher onto his nose and - trembling slightly - leaned forward to sign the contract, effectively transferring every cent he had to Impossibility, Inc.

Carolyn Gorman smiled reassuringly. "It's all right, Steve. I understand that you're having trouble believing that your fantasy is about to come true."

Steve grinned, nervously. "Well, my 'second' fantasy. What I really wanted was..."

Carolyn's smile slipped a bit, and she held up a hand. "Yes, I know, you already explained... at great length." She sighed. "As I already explained, however, we cannot break the law, and your 'original' fantasy would not only necessitate finding a couple of people willing to be unwilling slaves to a dominatrix, itself a borderline illegality, your proposed new persona was one that, itself, would wish to break laws... not to mention the copyright laws the whole scenario would break. I guarantee that DC would never allow us to license the rights for that..." She let the grin come back to full strength. "However, your 'unwilling transformation' scenario is more than possible with our new technology, and - as promised - you'll be provided with a new job as well, at least at first. Once the entire scenario is played out, however, you'll be on your own... and if you should decide you want to change back, there'll be a whole new fee for the new transformation..."

"I understand..." Steve said, wondering if he was doing the right thing - and wondering, still, if the advertisements for the new company had been boastful, or if they really could give him what he'd asked for, a complete 'fantasy' scenario that would leave him with a whole new body - and life.

Well, he'd already signed, and even if he 'chickened out', the money was gone... and he would rather risk disappointment and a compensatory lawsuit than being broke...

"Okay - what do I do?"

"Well, we start with setting up your new 'persona'." Carolyn said. "We'll do it just the way you described, making you some sort of businessman, and a chauvinistic pig, etc... even some minor 'physical' work to get you into the role, while we suppress your 'real' memories for the duration... which means you'll need a new name. Got any you'd prefer?"

Steve paused. "How about..."

* * * * *

Steve stared, amazed, at the new body she'd purchased... and then, slowly, began to grin. Enjoying the feel of her new body as it moved - especially the bounce and sway of her huge, gorgeous new tits - Steve walked over to the phone and hung it up. She remembered how all of this felt, of course, having been in this body for the past three months - but it was also as if she were feeling it for the first time, this being the first time she'd been able to truly appreciate the grace and sensuality of her wonderful new body.

Enjoying the easy sway of her body atop her wonderfully high heels, she headed downstairs, hoping that at least one of the guys was still hanging around out front...

...and she was in luck. Three guys - hoping against hope that she'd break her usual curfew - were smoking on her porch... and when she opened the door, her gorgeous, glorious new female body naked and still lightly sheathed in sweat, they stood... as did certain parts of her anatomy.

"Misty...?" One of them said, in a horse voice. "Uh... something we can do to.. I mean, for you?"

She grinned at his 'Freudian Slip'. "Yes, as a matter of fact, there is." She said, surprising them with her unusually sharp, intelligent- sounding tones - usually she sounded vapid and giggly. "I've decided to, uh... try something new for my act, and I need some stuff. I'll look for a more complete outfit, later, but as soon as possibly I'd like a cat suit, mask, boots with at least a six-inch heel, and a whip - all in black leather. Also, some black hair dye. ANY guy who brings me all of this will get... rewarded. and I'll pick and choose from what you bring me."

The three guys shared a look, uncertain. and she sighed. "Or, you could pool your money and buy me a complete set among you, and I'll still reward you. " She allowed, realizing that this wasn't going to be as easy as she'd hoped. Well, this was just a 'quick' version, since she didn't want to wait - she'd have a 'real' outfit done up at her leisure, just the way she wanted...

"Great!" One of them said, stumbling to his feet and backing away, still drinking in her buxom, naked figure as he headed towards his car, the other two in tow. "We'll be back as soon as we can, Misty..."

As they headed towards the car, confused but eager, she compounded their confusion. "Call me... Selina." She said.

"Uh... sure..." they agreed, confused but willing. She watched them scramble into the car, arguing over where the nearest 'sex shop' was, then watched them peel rubber out of the lot. Once the taillights had receded, she turned and walked back into her house...

...and figured she had more than enough time to put that big black dildo in the night-stand to good use. Humming to herself, the newly re-christianed woman headed up the stairs, hands already fondling her own wonderfully huge tits...

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: As a new form of therapy, one psychiatrist uses hypnotic role playing to help his patients understand each other. But unknown to these patients, the consequences are permanent.

Roles

By Gunslinger

Doctor Michael R. Houghton slowly put down his pad and pencil and stared levelly at his patient, his rimless reading glasses slightly magnifying his deep-set dark eyes and making his slow stare that much more effective.

With calculated coolness, Houghton let the silence stretch out...

"What?" The other man in the room said, irritably, his crossed-arms, fisted-hand body language obvious even to the most unskilled layman. When the psychiatrist didn't answer the inquiry, the younger man looked away from the cool stare and rose from the deep, soft- leather couch. Arms still crossed, the golden-haired young man began to pace the room nervously, with sharp, short steps that caused the heavy musculature beneath the tight jeans and black T-shirt to reveal their coiled tenseness.

Finally, the youth stopped short and uncrossed his arms, angrily slamming his right fist into his left palm.

"All right, all right!" He shouted, angrily, at the silent psychiatrist. "So maybe I was lying when I said that 'women are men's equals'. I was just telling you what you wanted to hear, goddamnit! What did you want me to say? That I think women are nothing but empty- headed sex toys for men?"

Houghton lowered his glasses and peered over them, picking up his pipe and puffing it back to life, projecting a more 'fatherly' image to his frustrated client.

"Is that what you believe, Robert?" Houghton asked, finally.

Robert Bates sighed in resignation and slumped back onto the couch, shoulders bent. "Hell, no, Doc..." He said, without any heat. "It was just an example."

"Hmmm..." Houghton murmured, mentally noting that the answer had been 'unplanned', and therefore potentially very informative. "Truth is..." Rob admitted. "I really don't know what to make of women - which is probably why I keep screwing up with them so badly."

"I see." The psychiatrist said, without really saying anything at all. "So, that's how you ended up here? Because Miss Greene allowed you to accept therapy in lieu of a criminal sentence for assault?"

"Miz Greene, fuck you very much." Rob snorted. "Jeez Louise, Doc - I swear that I barely touched her, and she provoked what I did do. This whole thing got way out of hand because she flat-out lied about what happened, and the cops believed her instead of me. With no witnesses, it was her word against mine - and she started yelling 'sex discrimination' and stuff, and the cops listened to her side of it."

"So... You think that it is all right for a man to strike a woman? And you blame Miss... Ms. Greene and the police for your current situation?" Houghton asked, picking up pad and pen again.

Rob sighed. "No - and yes. I feel guilty as hell that I slapped her hand away. See, she was pokin' me in the chest while she yelled at me, and I knocked her hand away... but I swear I didn't lay a hand on her, otherwise. She lied to the cops, flat out, about me hitting her, otherwise." Rob leaned back, rolling his eyes. "I guess I can't blame the cops too much, either - I mean, 'women's rights' and 'politically correct' were okay, I guess, but now it's swung the other way, at least in some cases. There's no balance on either side, and that's unfair... both ways. I don't believe this crap about how 'men have been doing it for years, so now it's okay if a few women get away with it now...' stuff, okay? I think it should be fair, for both sides..."

The Doctor made a noncommittal sound and nodded. "So - you were telling me what you didn't understand about women..."

Rob snorted again. "Everything, Doc, everything." He shook his head. "I mean, they think completely different then guys do, Doc. Stuff I think is important don't mean anything at all to them, and the littlest things mean the world. I've had girlfriends who insist that every little thing I do or say 'means' something, even when it doesn't, you know?"

As a psychiatrist, Houghton tended to agree with the ex-girlfriends. Whether or not Robert knew it, these 'meaningless' dead and words did, in fact, mean something... but Houghton, himself, knew that women quite often were wrong about what it meant, too, so...

"I understand." The long-married psychiatrist sympathized. "Surely, that's not all that confuses you about women?"

"Hell no!" Rob said, rising to pace again. "Well, take this Greene chick for example. She was yelling at me, saying it was 'guys like me' that force women to do things like wear heels and skirts and crap. Now, I'll admit that I like the way women look, dressed in high heels and skirts and nylons, wearing make-up and what-not. But I don't force them to wear that stuff. I mean, Greene wasn't wearing any of that, so how can she, of all people, say women are 'forced' to wear that stuff when she's proof that they don't have to?"

"But...?" Houghton started, but Rob waved a hand, silencing him.

"Oh, I admit that women will dress up to try and please men, sometimes." Rob said, frustrated. "But it's not the same, Doc. First, even when they dress up, it's what they think men want to see them in, which might not really be what men want... and then they pick the stuff they think they look best in, anyway. So, it's not like us guys are actually seeing women in exactly what we'd like to see them in, either. You know? It's... it's all messed up."

The psychiatrist nodded slowly. "So... you admit that you don't understand women. You admit that there are things about women you find... frustrating. Yet you claim that there's no anger involved? That you didn't, in fact, strike Ms Greene the way she claimed you did?"

"That's about the long and short of it, Doc." Rob said, slumping on the couch.

Houghton was an ethical psychiatrist. Though this was a legal case, he wasn't going to 'cure' a patient who wasn't actually displaying untoward aggression, which was how this case had been presented to him.

"Perhaps I should get a somewhat more objective view of what happened..." Houghton said, thoughtfully, earning him a somewhat surprised glance from Rob.

"I told you - there weren't any witnesses there, Doc." Rob said. Doctor Houghton smiled slightly.

"Actually..." He said, cocking his head and reaching for his phone. "By your own admission, there were, in fact, two witnesses to the event..."

* * * * *

"Doc, personally - I think you're a quack." Liz Greene said, dryly, her not-unattractive face set in lines of resigned annoyance. Her entire posture seemed to say 'I should have known'... as she continued berating the doctor. "If it was up to me, I'd make sure you never practice your so-called psychiatry in this state again - or anywhere in the country, for that matter. Of all the chauvinistic, conniving..."

"Ms Greene..." Houghton sighed, holding up his hands. "Please!"

"Oh, don't try to get on my good side, Doc!" Liz said, crossing her arms and pacing the room, her tautly athletic body tense under her loose jeans and baggy sweatshirt. "You call me a... a liar, then..."

"I did not call you a liar." Houghton said, firmly, drawing her up short.

"Oh, so now I'm losing my hearing, too?" She asked, acidly. "So what was it you did say, then?"

"I said that your memories in no way match those of Mr. Bates." Houghton said, calmly. "This is my dilemma, you see - I've been asked to 'cure' Mr. Bates... yet, according to his memories, he didn't do anything that requires therapy, but you were the one who, as he phrased it, 'flew off the handle for nothing'. On the other hand, under hypnosis you remember a completely different set of events."

"Oh - so of course you believe... him!" she snorted the last word, jerking her thumb in the direction of Rob, who she refused to even look at.

Houghton sighed and lowered his head. "I did not say I believed either one of you, or disbelieved you." He explained, for the third time. "Under hypnotherapy, you cannot 'lie'. Both of you told what you see to be the absolute truth... yet one of them, quite obviously, has to be wrong."

"So what the hell are you saying, then?" Liz demanded.

Rob chose that moment to break his recent silence, quipping with a light tone. "He's saying that somebody in this room is crazy, and it ain't him."

Liz whirled and glared at him, her tone vitriolic. "Oh - so I'm the crazy woman? Well, I've got news for you, bucko..."

"I didn't say that!" Rob protested, his facade of calm starting to crack as he rose to his feet. His passionate defense was more lively than his rather sullen state since they'd been hypnotized. "I just said it wasn't him - and you chose to take that as if I meant you. Why on earth would...?"

"That's enough!" Houghton said, sharply. "Look, I don't know if we'll ever find out whose memories of the event are accurate!" The two participants in the event turned and looked at him, surprised by his sudden, forceful outburst.

"I'm going to tell the court that." Houghton said, in control but still forceful. "This case will be dismissed." "You're just going to let this... person... off the hook...?" Liz said, her face settling into the 'Men!' mask again.

Houghton held up a hand. "Let me ask you both a question. Each of you believes, firmly, that the other one is... 'maladjusted', especially on their views of the opposite gender. Do each of you want to see the other cured?"

There was a long pause, then both of them nodded.

"Then the answer is fairly simple." Houghton said, settling back in the chair.

"Oh? And what would this 'simple' answer be, Mr. Hot-Shot psychiatrist?" Liz asked. "Hypnotic Role Playing." Houghton said.

"What's that?" Rob asked.

Houghton smiled. "Something I've been working on. Quite simply, I hypnotize both of you to do something that you would not normally do - communicate. More than that - each of you will communicate your own views on gender, honestly and with no chance to lie. Then,

I lock you away in a sealed environment for seventy-two hours, alone. Of course, you'll also be hypnotically instructed not to do anything that would injure the other person..."

"What?" Was nearly simultaneous from both sets of mouths.

Houghton shrugged. "Or, you can just walk out that door and go your separate ways." Liz and Rob shared a look, eyes narrowing.

"So - all I have to do is spend a weekend telling the same truth I was trying to tell him when he started smacking away at me, and he can't do a thing about it?" Liz asked, shooting Rob a taunting glance from under her long, brown hair.

"Hey - he means that you gotta spend the weekend listening to the truth about women, and not start pokin' me in the chest..." Rob retorted.

"Why, you little..."

Houghton cleared his throat, interrupting the incipient argument. "Well?" Again, the answer was almost simultaneous.

"Fine. I'll do it..."

* * * * *

It was Rob who finally broke the twenty-minute silence. He was sitting on the couch as Liz stalked around the living/dining room- kitchenette of the small two-bedroom basement 'apartment'/cell they'd be sharing for the weekend.

"So... I wonder what we've been talking about for the last..." he glanced at the clock on the wall "...twenty-two minutes." Liz snorted. "I'm sure I don't want to know. Then again, it's not really up to us, is it?"

It was one of the stranger effects of the new 'hypnotherapy' they were undergoing. After agreeing to it, they discovered that it was a new technique, developed by Dr. Houghton, and they were the first ones to try the radical new extension to the classic 'role playing' scenario.

They were constantly talking to each other - and they were completely unaware of the fact. They'd been 'programmed' to not even notice the quiet 'cross chatter' they were constantly generating in what was the closest thing to 'telepathy' modern science could devise. Every action they took, every slight movement, was commented on and discussed as to what it meant and how they were feeling, especially towards the other person - yet, thanks to a post-hypnotic suggestion, all of this was 'tuned out', allowing them to consciously 'hear' each other only when they intentionally spoke directly to one another.

Now, Rob sighed and tried to 'place nice' again. "Well. since we're locked up in here for the weekend, what should we do?"

She looked at him, dark eyes narrowing. "Oh, I know exactly what you'd like to do. "

Rob sighed and closed his eyes - partially because the hinted-at insult wasn't all that far off base. It was one of the things driving him absolutely crazy about the situation.

He'd always thought feminists were muscular 'butch' women - but Liz was anything but. Though athletically built, she was most definitely feminine, and would even be attractive if her face wasn't set in a semi-sneer all the time. Sure, her nose was a little too sharp, her lips a little too thin for her to be 'stunning' - but she was, or would be, 'pretty' if she tried even the slightest bit.

Now, she stared narrowly at him, as if she could hear what he was quite guiltily thinking. then, suddenly, he began to blush as he recalled that she might, subconsciously, know exactly what was going on in his head...

"Sorry." He muttered, blushing brightly as he lowered his eyes. "I, uh... didn't mean to. "

Of all the things he'd done, his apology seemed to set her back the most. She blinked, becoming awkward as her 'righteous indignation' suddenly lost its focus.

"Uh..." She said, obviously trying for that sense of moral superiority she wore like her own personal cloak. "Well - try and watch it, buster !"

It was pretty weak, and she seemed to feel the need to make a 'strategic withdrawal'. "I'm going to go get a shower and get changed. "

Turning on one sneaker's heel, she moved quickly out of the room. and it was a sheer struggle on Rob's part not to look up and see what her ass looked like as she left. Even though she wasn't even out of the room yet, he concentrated on not thinking about the fact that there were no doors anywhere in the apartment. he could quite easily walk through the her room to her en suite bathroom, and see if her body was really as shapely under those baggy clothes as he'd imagined it...

"Shit...!" He murmured to himself. "I am a chauvinistic asshole!"

Though he'd only muttered it, he must have repeated the realization in the 'chatter stream' - because Liz suddenly broke stride...

...and even though she was facing away from him, Rob was suddenly sure she was blushing furiously....

...because she'd been thinking about him, naked.

Rob opened his mouth to ask why his thinking about her naked was 'wrong', but it was okay for her to imagine him naked...

...and then closed his mouth without saying a word. They both knew what had just happened here, and pointing it out wasn't going to make it easier on either of them.

Liz hung, paused, in the doorway, as if about to turn around and try to defend the 'rightness' of her thoughts compared to his... then made a 'huffing' sound and walked out of the room.

It started as a low throbbing in his forehead - one that felt like a mild headache. However, it rapidly expanded, feeling as if his brain was trying to explode out of his skull. Rob gasped, curling up...

...and the pain vanished as Liz dashed back into the room, gasping. They stared at each other, wide-eyed. "Shit!" The swore, in unison. They both realized the same thing....

"We can't get out of earshot of each other!" Liz said, banging one fist against the wall.

"Hey, take it easy..." Rob said, massaging the phantom pain from his temples. "The Doc said we are the first ones he tried this on - he didn't know that this 'chatter' thing wouldn't let itself be turned off by us getting out of earshot."

"Well, he should have!" Liz said, sighing. She looked Rob up and down, her scornful eyes warring with a rising blush. "Well - I guess you lucked out, then. I can't take a shower unless you're with me, and I'm not going to smell all weekend, so. "

"Whoa - don't go all noble on me, Liz." Rob said, holding up his hands. "If your bathroom is the same as mine, the shower curtain's on a friction-rod. We can adjust it down to the point where I can sit on the floor just outside the door to the bathroom and still see your head - just your head. Even with the water running, we should be able to hear one another pretty well."

Liz rolled her eyes and started to say something...

...then stopped with her mouth hanging open, a deep flush suffusing her face. A flush that was quickly matched by Rob.

Thanks to their odd form of communication, each was quite well aware of the fact that Liz had been about to make a snide comment... and yet, at the same time, was thinking to herself that it was too bad that Rob wasn't the 'gentleman' he was pretending so hard to be, because she thought he had a really great body, and she was thinking that if he had been a 'real' gentleman rather than what he was, she would have enjoyed. a great many things.

What made the situation even worse was the fact that her idle, quickly-communicated fantasy had caused Rob to almost unwillingly fantasize about her, and how he'd like to do various, very 'adult' activities, more than one of which was comfortably performed in bed...

"Oh, sh... shoot!" rob said, knowing his 'quick backtrack' didn't fool her for a second. She knew what he really wanted to say "What about going to bed tonight? I mean, if we can't separate, that would mean. "

He paused, blush deepening. Liz's blush deepened as well, but she took up the sentence with an even voice.

". would mean that it doesn't matter if you see me naked in the shower, since we're going to have to sleep together anyway. So, I guess you might as well shower with me."

Rob blinked and stared at her - and she averted her eyes. Both knew that she really, really did want to shower with Rob's body - it was just Rob's personality she couldn't stand. In many ways, it was the same for Rob, in reverse. What was really driving them nuts was that each knew about the other's very strong physical attraction, and equally strong interpersonal dislike. There were, quite literally, no secrets between them.

This was going to be an awkward weekend...

* * * * *

It was damned nice to wake slowly, naturally. No alarm clock, no telephone buzzer...

...no yelling or screaming or shouting.

Rob just lay there, cuddled close to Liz's warm, firm body. He knew he should pull away, not let her wake up like this - but he felt better then he could remember in ages, and didn't want to move. He'd ride out her short burst of indignation - and it would be short, because she'd know that, though there were some warm, fuzzy sexual thoughts mixed in with what he was feeling, most of it was the simply Sybaritic pleasure of laying here, their bodies pressed tight under the warm covers, naked as jaybirds.

Last night had gone better then either could have hoped - sort of. There'd been no more shouting or recriminations... but lots and lots of blushing and very awkward conversation. After showering together-yet-separately, neither laying hands on the other's body, no matter how much each of them knew the other wanted too - and themselves - it hadn't made sense for them to be 'modest' anymore, especially since the apartment was kept at a comfortable temperature. They'd strolled around naked, following the old Japanese saying that 'nakedness is often seen, but never noticed' - except that each did notice, hot-diggity-damn and other appropriate comments. They just agreed (without actually 'talking', out loud at least) that they'd enjoy the visual stimuli without trying to move it into a more emotional arena, which is where their appreciation for each other came to a sudden stop, each sure that the other was some sort of gender-biased 'preeee-vert'.

Climbing into the big bed together, naked and inches away from one another's much-lusted-after-physically-but-despised-emotionally body hadn't made it any easier...

With a sigh, Rob admitted to himself that it was time for this pleasant little dream-state to end. Though he felt more oddly at ease, more unusually comfortable than he could ever remember being, it wasn't fair to Liz to take this beyond a certain state of waking consciousness, and he'd just passed that state.

Rob let his eyes flutter open...

...and found himself staring at his own peacefully sleeping face.

For a second, Rob just couldn't figure it out - and then certain sensations that his half-asleep brain hadn't really been paying attention to made themselves more obvious, and it all came crashing in on her in an instant.

If she'd needed any additional verification, the very feminine scream that emerged, unbidden, from her throat would have provided it.

The sound woke the handsome, muscular man that Rob had been snuggled close to an instant before, an involuntary pushing-away motion of denial performed at the same time as the scream having separated them.

It took the awakened man a second to 'clue in' as well, and his version was more demonstrative. First, he sat bolt upright, staring at her, then looked down at himself - and then he shrieked, although not as long or as loud.

"What the hell happened?" The male member of their little 'team' asked 'intently', still several steps down from a full-fledged shout, swinging a wide-eyed gaze back to the woman.

"I.. I don't know how - but we somehow switched bodies during the night!" The person with the body of Liz said almost hysterically, hands rising hesitantly towards the firm, DD-cup breasts - then dropping away before touching them, also carefully avoiding her now- exposed crotch, her motion having 'scooted' her out from under the covers.

"That's not possible!" The person in the body of Rob said, not loudly, brow furrowing in a puzzled frown. "Well, don't yell at me about it!" the female snapped back, angrily. "Take it up with the universe. "

With a stunned look, 'Liz' broke off, then took a long, deep breath, visibly fighting for control. 'She' didn't speak until; she'd regained it.

"I'm sorry." She said, shaking her head in confusion. "I have no idea why I flew off the handle at you like that. It's just that everything is so.. so ... weird. "

Suddenly, she was shocked to find herself crying, long tearing sobs. She felt the strong, masculine arms of her former body embrace her gently - and was amazed by how much emotional comfort it provided. She had to use quite a force of will to pull back from that embrace - and she wasn't sure whether the new sensation of having firm, dome-like breasts pressed against a taut male body made that pulling away easier, or harder.

"I.. I don't understand..." She said, forcing herself to stop sniffing. "Not just about the change, though that's weird too. What the hell's wrong with my emotions?"

"Yours? How about mine?" 'Rob' asked with a puzzled frown. "I should be panicking right now - or furious with the universe or whatever force did this to us. Yet I'm not. I'm a little afraid, very confused.. but that's about it."

'Liz' blinked. "Wait - that's normal for me. I mean, for you. I mean - for that body." She sighed, then managed a wry grin. "English just isn't designed for this particular situation."

"I noticed." Rob said, with an answering half-grin - that was rapidly replaced with a look of surprise. "Wait a second - you mean that all your emotions are like this? Sort of. 'centered'?"

"Hmmm... No." The new woman replied. "Actually, when I get really angry, I can nearly explode. When I like a woman, as well, I sometimes go overboard. so, I guess Love and Hate are the triggers for me - or that body, I should say. Your body seems to be more, uh. "

"Unpredictable?" Rob suggested with another half-grin. "maybe it has something to do with hormones, or something."

"Hmm, I suppose that could..." Liz started to reply - then looked shocked. "Hey, wait - now we're talking about this as if it were just an 'interesting' situation. Shouldn't we - or at least I - be panicking, screaming, shouting 'it isn't fair!', something like that?"

Rob looked puzzled. "Yes, you're right. After the initial shock, I practically forgot about it, except from an intellectual stand-point. In fact

I feel quite comfortable in this body Isn't that odd?"

"Hmm. " Liz said, thoughtfully. "We seem to be adapting to it pretty quickly and easily, don't we?"

"Yes. We do." Rob agreed, and they shared a calm, relaxed - even peaceful - smile.

"I wonder how easily we'd adapt to something else. " Liz asked in a light tone - but her eyes were intense, and her voice slightly shaky.

Then she leaned forward, gently pulled Rob's face down, and began to kiss him.

It was an easy, gentle kiss, and Rob joined in immediately with no hesitation or sign of discomfort. Slowly, the kiss deepened, became more passionate - yet, throughout it all, it remained gentle rather than fiery.

"Mmmm... very nice..." Liz murmured with a slow, warm smile when the finally broke. "Who knew I could get used to kissing a guy so quickly and easily?"

"I hope it's not just any guy." Rob said with mock alarm, then grinned. "I liked kissing you, too." She cocked an eyebrow at him. "Shall we see just how far this 'comfort' goes?"

"Splendid idea. " Rob agreed, huskily, and leaned a bit awkwardly to kiss her again - so that there was still room for him to reach up and begin to fondle and massage her breast.

"Mmmm... yes... like that..." She murmured against his lips, slowly laying back while he shifted position to hover over her. "I like that. "

The new 'Rob' murmured a wordless agreement.

The newly-female (but certainly not acting like it, she thought to herself with a vague smile) 'Liz' shifted position slightly, to lift both arms and legs to embrace Rob as she all-but-purred the word 'Now'.

Rob complied. With a soft, gentle sigh he eased his ready, throbbing cock into her welcoming womanhood, making her give off a sigh of her own.

What followed was not the torrid sexual athletics of cheap pulp fiction. Instead, it was the slow, gentle rhythm of two people each testing the other for areas of increased pleasure, an act of sensual and sexual sharing that went beyond mere animal instinct.

It was athletic, but not strenuous. Easy, yet exciting. An adventure into the body and spirit of the person they were entwined with, where every twitch of the body could convey volumes, a certain pert 'twitch' at the right moment conveying humor, a well-timed stretch of a leg signifying approval.

It seemed to last an eternity... and then they reached orgasm together, tight cries of passion slipping between clenched teeth as they rocked in each other's arms, the pleasure washing over them in waves...

...and then it began to recede.

It took each of them a second to realize that it wasn't the orgasm that was fading, though - it was them. Though still entwined in each other's arms, they were 'drawing apart', as if steadily thicker veils were being passed over their senses, slowly but surely separating them from the world around them.

"Liz! What's happening!" The woman cried, in her panic using the name of the 'soul', rather than that of her old male body. Though she shouted the question, it seemed hollow to her own ears, and the man's shouted reply was but a whisper.

"I don't know! Rob, please - try and. "

Then his voice was gone, as was all other sensory input, leaving the newly-made (and newly 'initiated') woman floating in a dark, featureless void. Now emotions began to churn in her, including those that had somehow been 'dulled'. What was happening to 'her'? Was this part of the same thing that had changed her into a woman, or was it something new ?

Then, with a gasp, 'Elizabeth Greene' sat bolt upright, muscles screeching in complaint as a groan was torn from a throat that felt raw and swollen.

Light and sound and sensation all returned in that same instant - and all of them were unpleasant, deep aching pain arguing with too- bright light for her attention, while her ears were assaulted by a shrill, ululating shriek...

...which was coming from the woman in the oddly-tailored white 'suit'. It reminded Rob/Liz of a nurse's uniform, but was slightly different then any she'd seen before. The woman was whipping her head back and forth in shock between Liz...

...and Rob, who was also sitting up in bed. Liz felt an odd sensation, seeing her old, male body sitting up in the other bed, and Liz wondered if she looked as oddly drawn and pale as Rob did. Though she didn't know what was going on, or how, she recognized this room as a hospital room, and from the look of things, her old body had been ill - maybe this body too, from the way it felt. Had they passed out after making love, and been found by...

Then, as if she'd been hit by a sledge-hammer, the new woman gasped and twitched, memories flooding back with a rush, and with them understanding.

"Don't go anywhere!" The nurse said, still looking a little wild around the edges. "I'll be right back!" Turning, she hurried from the room, calling a doctor's name.

Alone in the room, the two occupants turned to look at each other over the distance separating them, eyes wide. "None... none of it was real..." 'Rob' said, his voice stunned.

"Oh, this is real enough." 'Liz' assured him, running pale, too-thin fingers over her slightly saggy breasts. "this is most certainly not the body I was born with."

Oh, and are you complaining?" Rob asked with a half-grin that completely altered his face - even though it was a 'Liz' grin, different then the boyish grin the soul now residing in the female body used to use, when she was him.

"No. I don't think I am...." She admitted with that 'Rob' grin on her new face. It looked good on her - and then it faded, and apprehension touched her voice. "You?"

Rob actually managed a laugh. "No, I'm happy enough - and I don't think I could take getting changed back."

That made Liz smirk as well. Now that memory had come flooding back, she remembered the truth, and had to agree that it was a costly method, even if it was all there was - and unexpected to boot.

Liz Greene and Rob Bates were university students. At least, they had been, when this had happened. From the condition of their bodies, it had been more than a few days since then - or a few weeks, for that matter.

It had all started when Professor Michael R. Houghton had advertised for test subjects. Though a psychologist (among other things), Houghton wasn't a practicing psychiatrist, but the head of the University's very small, poorly-funded Paranormal Research Department - said department consisting solely of him, and an unused 'lab' in the old wing of the University.

Liz and Rob, who were complete strangers to each other, had volunteered for the program. Rob, a rising football star, had joined for the money, whereas the more studios Liz had joined out of interest.

They'd been subjected to various tests, including the famous Rhine series, to test such things as ESP and telekinetics. It had been during an attempt at telepathy that it had happened. After hours of frustrating, ineffective hypnotically-reinforced 'concentration', they'd actually made contact with each other's mind...

...and the shock of experiencing another person's thoughts, after a lifetime being locked up in their own skulls, had been enough to overwhelm them, knocking them into an unconsciousness that had obviously stretched into a coma of undetermined length.

It had also, somehow, ended up with them switching bodies.

"So - what we 'remember' happening actually took place over what may be a couple of years?" Rob said, still trying to sort out 'real' memories from 'false'.

Liz shook her head. "I don't think so. I think it all took place in the past few minutes."

Rob looked startled - then nodded. "You mean, like when you're having a dream in which there's a fire-alarm ringing for hours, and you wake up and find that it's only your phone ringing, and it's been a few seconds?"

"Exactly. I think our brains, still linked on some level, came up with a 'dream' based on our swapped genders, and played it all out in the few minutes it took us to go from unconscious to conscious."

Rob nodded, looking thoughtful. "But - what do we tell the doctors? I'm sure they'll have all sorts of questions. How do we explain to them that, somehow, we've switched bodies? Without getting locked up in a psycho ward, I mean."

"Why do we have to tell them anything?" Liz asked. "I think we should just pretend that nothing's changed. We'll keep this our little secret - and any 'mistakes' or personality changes they see can be explained away as disorientation after the coma."

Rob grinned. "Yeah. Think we can pull it off?"

Liz grinned back, knowing that it would always be 'we'. For the rest of their lives, they would be linked mind-to-mind on a subconscious level.. and even more powerfully on an emotional level. It was said that you cannot hate anybody if you understand their motivations - and they knew each other's minds and bodies more intimately than any couple in the history of mankind.

"You know, I actually took acting lessons as a Minor." Liz said, smiling lovingly at her old body. "I don't think I'll have any problem playing the role of 'loving girlfriend'."

There was such a long, serious pause that Liz began to feel worried, even though she knew Rob better than anybody in the world knew anybody else - and then he spoke.

"What about the role of 'devoted wife'?" He asked, his voice nearly trembling as he put his entire heart and soul into the seemingly flippant question.

Liz felt her new eyes tear up, and she nodded to reinforce her emotion-distorted vocal reply. "Yes, Rob, oh yes...!"

Despite the weakness, despite the fact that the body hadn't been used for some time, the new (and now, forever) Rob managed to rise from the bed and shuffle over to his new (in many ways) fiancée, bracing himself against the rails of the bed so that he could kiss her.

When they finally broke the kiss, they smiled at each other lovingly - and the 'smart ass' Rob whose soul would now inhabit the body the world knew as Liz displayed itself, shining through as she got the last word in.

"Somehow, I knew you were going to do that..."

The doctor heading that shift arrived to find his patients, fresh out of a two-year-long coma, sitting on one bed, chuckling, apparently unconcerned by their temporary vacation from the world of the living - and when he asked what was so funny, the two only shared a long, long look and assured him with renewed chuckling that it was very much an inside joke, which only left the poor man even more confused.

He didn't let their odd behavior throw him, though. After all, you could ignore the occasional inexplicable situation as long as everything turned out all right in the end, and that was what had happened.

Not realizing just how much more truth there was in that statement than he'd ever be able to understand, the doctor pushed the idle thought aside and adopted his professional detachment as he quite unwittingly participated in the opening act of a harmless 'play' that would last a lifetime, and be known only to the two 'actors' on the unknown stage of their vastly altered - and improved - lives.

FINIS

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: Being a sexist pig in a bar becomes a problem for one guy when he insults the wrong women and suddenly finds his life is turned upside down as he becomes the type of girl he had always lusted for.

Rude Rudy

By Gunslinger

None of what followed would ever have happened had Rudolph Aloysius von Kraft not been bored, lonely and drunk.

Given Rudy's personality and personal habits, this made what followed practically ordained...

Despite being more than a decade older than the college-aged men and women gyrating across the nightclub's dancefloor, Rudy failed to stand out as much as one might expect – in terms of haircut, fashion, and accessories, the lean, dark-haired man matched that of the younger generation enjoying the driving beat produced by the house DJ. It wasn't exactly an attempt at deception, either - the fact of the matter was, Rudy really had never gotten past being 'college aged' himself, emotionally and intellectually, despite whatever evil trick temporal entropy had played upon his chronological age.

To be fair, even when he had been a college student, Rudy had been a sexist asshole. The fifteen years between then and today had only allowed him to refine it to a point of near artistry. Despite the half-dozen rye-and- cokes he'd inhaled, Rudy was still able to smoothly compliment and insult women while making a pass at them.

The intervening years, however, had served to lower his never-impressive success rate with the women significantly.

To damned near zero, to be exact – not that you would know it from the way Rudy talked; no, in his all-to-easily sparked stories of sexual conquest, he was damned near irresistible... at least to a certain 'type' of woman.

"Man, she was all over me..." Rudy expounded to a rather disinterested group of twenty-something men, hanging around only because Rudy was buying the rounds. "Just couldn't get enough of what I had to offer – which is a damned lot, if you get my drift!"

Cutting his eyes toward the small group of 'hot young thangs' hovering at the edge of the group, Rudy made abundantly clear what he meant by patting the rather impressive bugle straining his tight-fitting jeans. A few of the girls – there in the hopes of catching one of the younger men's eye, rather than Rudy's – rolled their eyes at this, but a few others either blushed or giggled, depending on their temperament.

"Really...?" A rich, if rather coldly-inflected voice inquired archly. "I find it hard to believe any self-respecting woman would be the least bit interested in getting 'more' of anything you might have to offer..."

It should have been a quelling interjection – but Rudy's leering grin didn't slip so much as a fraction, nor did he loose so much as a beat as he turned to the woman who had voiced the opinion.

"Honey, if you had been listening, you would have known I wasn't referring to women with any kind of respect from anybody!" Rudy informed her, with a chuckle...

...and a second, well-deserved look, for the woman – somewhere in age between Rudy and his semi-willing audience – was quite the looker.

Tall, well-toned without being overly muscular, the woman somehow managed to carry herself with a certain style and elegance, despite being dressed and made-up for some serious club-hopping. A dark-red metallic dress clung to her slim-yet-shapely figure, managing to be entirely provocative without being the least bit trashy, and her face was a blend of the sensuous and the studious. Her hair, a deep auburn, fell around that face in thick waves, and her dark-grey eyes met his without either deference or challenge.

"See...?" Rudy continued, with a shrug. "You don't qualify."

"Excuse me...?" The gorgeous woman asked, an unfamiliar look of confusion creeping into her clear-eyed gaze. "You know you're woman enough to attract me." Rudy explained.

She let out a low chuckle, and spoke: "Rather presumptuous to assume I'd want to, now isn't it?"

"Might be, if I was assuming, but I wasn't – don't care if your lesbo or not, you gotta know men would do you, just from the way guys look at you. Ain't what I'm looking for, honey."

"It's 'Jasmine', not 'honey'..." The auburn-haired woman snapped... and it was clear that she was doing so as a way to cover her confusion and uncertainty as she tried to get her mind to follow Rudy's unexpected turn of mind. She hesitated – and then made it explicit by asking, in an icy tone of voice: "...and what, exactly, is that supposed to mean?"

So, to Jasmine's growing disbelief, Rudy explained – at length, in in explicit detail...

* * * * *

Rudy slowly climbed out of the deep well of sleep, eyes fluttering open after a long period of dreamy drifting within the luxurious comfort that enveloped him. Even after he was technically fully awake, it took him several seconds to shake off the lassitude that came from being so physically relaxed.

Only then did it occur to him that he had absolutely no idea where he was, or how he had gotten there – his last coherent memory was of being at the nightclub.

“Damn...” Rudy muttered, pushing his sinewy body upright in the bed and looking around. “Did I get plastered last night or something...?”

A few times before he had woken up in some chick’s place, with no clear memory of how, exactly, he’d ended up there – yet he wasn’t experiencing anything like the monumental hangover those previous occasions had been characterized by. In fact, physically speaking, he felt... well, perhaps better than he had in his entire life.

Not that he was about to complain about that, at least... but it still left him with the problem of figuring out how the hell he’d ended up in what was unmistakably a woman’s bedroom.

The almost sinfully comfortable bed he was laying on featured lace-trimmed white silk sheets and a pink-and- white comforter, and was itself almost stereotypically feminine – if not downright ‘girly’. The comforter was edged with frill-backed white lace, and more lace adorned the pillows upon which his head had rested.

The rest of the room was more of the same; pastel shades, with pink predominating, defined the color scheme, and the décor featured not only functional feminine necessities, but plenty of girlish tchotchkes and ephemera.

A white mirror-topped vanity sat in one corner, top covered in make-up and perfume bottles, to one side of which stood a three-way mirror, and the other a truly extensive built-in jewelry cupboard. An open door nearby revealed a clearly extensive walk-in closet. Another open door, on the other side of the room, led into a large bathroom done in equally girlish style.

The center of the room boasted a small ‘sitting suite’- two comfortable arm-chairs flanking a matching love- seat, and with a low coffee-table separating the seating from the marble-faced fireplace the furniture arrangement faced.

All in all, the bedroom and en suite was probably the size of his entire apartment and, aside from himself, was tenanted only by an assortment of plush stuffed animals, lending themselves heavily towards unicorns and horses, with ‘cutesy’ gorillas running a second to the equines, both real and fantastical.

Levering his lean, naked body out of the deep comfort of the down-filled bed, Rudy began padding around the room, looking for his clothes – and failing to find them.

With a muffled curse, Rudy shot a glance toward the single closed door of the expansive room, which presumably led to the rest of the house. He briefly debated walking through that door naked but with no memory of his arrival here, he had no idea what might be on the other side of that door. Given what he had seen so far, Rudy was betting this bedroom lay in a house large enough to qualify as a mansion, and for all he knew there might be a dozen people about. While rather proud of his body, and especially his sizable manhood, Rudy really didn’t feel like parading around in public completely naked.

To be completely honest, Rudy was so far outside his normal element that his nervousness actually bordered on outright fear – there was certain very real, if never spoken, reasons why the women Rudy was interested in tended to be 'insecure', to put it mildly. Waking up in run-down apartments full of trashy-yet-flashy clothing, tons of cheap cosmetics, and empty alcohol bottles was more his métier.

So, since his own clothes were nowhere to be found, about the only option was to find a suitable substitute. With that in mind, he padded across the deep-pile white carpeting toward the walk-in closet/dressing room.

He was hoping to find something simple and basically unisex but the clothing he found in the large, well-appointed closet was every bit as 'girly' as the décor. Dresses and skirts abounded, and what few pairs of pants were to be had were unmistakably feminine in design. Despite a search that became something very close to desperate, Rudy couldn't find a single ensemble that wouldn't be instantly recognizable as women's clothing.

"Shit!" Rudy swore, with great feeling. Thoroughly annoyed, he began to search for alternatives...

...only to renew his earlier curse with even greater vehemence, for towels, bed-sheets, curtains, and any other possible temporary covering was every bit as overly feminine as the clothing in the closet. This wasn't the abode of a person merely desiring to express femininity – it was the suite of somebody with a serious obsession on the subject.

Which meant that Rudy was reduced to quite literally grinding his teeth and bearing the indignity of 'dressing up' in women's clothing. The only saving grace, little enough as it might be, was that as overly feminized as the clothing might be, it wasn't nearly as overly sexualized as the clothing worn by the type of women he was more familiar with.

Not that that small grace made him feel particularly better about the situation...

Since he'd taken dresses and skirts, much less stockings and the like, right out of consideration, his actual stock of 'possibles' was quite small... but that didn't stop him from spending an inordinate amount of time deliberating over it. Part of it was the hope that the unknown woman to whom the suite belonged might show up – Rudy had little problem with the thought of a single woman seeing him naked, especially as he assumed she must already have done so, considering his naked state and the lack of his own clothes. As the minutes dragged by and nobody came, however, he was forced to admit that he had little choice in the matter, and he finally forced himself into action.

His humiliation began with the underwear - a pair of red-trimmed white 'boy shorts'. All things considered, they were the least 'girlish' of the possible choices, but they were still women's underwear... and he was putting them on.

They weren't nearly as physically uncomfortable as he'd expected... but every bit uncomfortable, emotionally, as he had feared.

The socks were a little better – they were women's athletic socks, shorter than his familiar male ones, and with pink stitching instead of gray at the heel and toes, but otherwise very much similar to men's athletic socks.

Then came the jeans – and his humiliation redoubled, for they weren't blue jeans, but white, and the stitching on the back pockets was not only pastel pink, but shaped flowers rather than the simple geometric pattern on men's jeans. The fact that they were designed for a physique considerably different than his own didn't help at all – slightly loose at the hip, slightly tight at the waist, and short enough to look like pedal-pushers on his long legs, the worst part was the fact that they weren't designed for male entail of any size, much less his own, impressive member.

For the first time in his life, the impressive size of his cock became something negative, as it felt as if his balls were being crushed under the taut fabric of the jeans.

Next came the shirt – what should have been a simple t-shirt, albeit one in a very pale blue. Again, the difference in male and female builds changed the intended fit – it bared his belly, and the 'comfortable' fit it was designed for became skin-tight on him... except for the slightly looser portion across the chest.

Clothed as best as could be arranged, Rudy forced himself to take a deep breath, fighting against humiliation as he prepared himself for the highly likely possibility of being seen clad in such garments.

Then, letting the breath out in a long sigh, she strode toward the door of the suite... awkwardly, given the constrictive nature of the feminine jeans.

Reaching the door, he pulled it open – and, for a brief moment, completely forgot both emotional and physical discomfort.

You could have easily driven a full-sized transport truck down the hallway he found himself in – the corridor was easily both wide and high enough to provide clearance, as long as one was willing to accept catastrophic damage to the Persian runner and the polished hardwood floor it covered. One side of the hallway – the one he was exiting the room from – was lined with a dozen identical, widely-spaced doors. Opposite the doors into what Rudy assumed to be other suites, however, was a series of enormous mullioned windows – windows that looked out over a vast, carefully manicured lawn dotted with professionally landscaped gardens, hedges and trees.

It was the sort of view one might expect to see from a French palace, and further baffled Rudy. Just how the hell had he ended up in a place like this?

Shaking his head, the bemused and confused man began walking down the hall – then gasped, and paid much closer attention to moderating his stride, wincing with each step...

...and not even noticing as the both the discomfort and the subsequent wince diminished ever-so-slightly with each step.

Nor did he notice, at the time, the other incremental changes being made as he made his way down the enormous hall, to the wide set of gold-inlaid white French Colonial doors that marked the terminal end of the corridor.

Had he been paying closer attention, it was vaguely possible that Rudy might have noticed something slightly different about his hands as he reached out to the gleaming-brass door-handles – but he didn't, and so only experienced the surprise of discovering the equally vast drawing room that lay beyond the double doors.

The room was also decorated in a distinctively feminine manner – albeit one with a more 'grown up' feeling of elegance. Gawking more than a little, Rudy was further discomfited by how out-of-place both the grandeur and the femininity made him – meaning that was what he described the slightly higher-pitched, softer sound to his voice when he rather hesitantly essayed, "Um... Hello? Is, uh, anyone here...?"

A vast, indifferent silence met his shout. Licking his lips nervously, Rudy squared his shoulders and forced himself to stride purposefully toward the doors at the other end of the seemingly hanger-sized room... and since it was such a habitual action, completely failed to register the fact that it should have resulted in ball-crushing pain, exactly as it had last time he had habitually tried to use the same stride.

Such changes as were occurring to him could hardly go on unnoticed forever, however, regardless of how bemused and pre-occupied he might have been by the strange and inexplicable surroundings in which he found himself.

Rudy's awareness came with something as simple as a lock of hair falling into his eye.

As it happened, he nearly missed it, even the, simple reaching up to brush the lock of dark-brown hair out of his face... but then it registered that his hair shouldn't be long enough to fall in front of his eyes to begin with.

When he reached up to snag the lock of hair, that was when the lighter-than-expected color registered – and, a second later, the way the fingers lightly grasping the hair looked made an impression on Rudy's mind.

"What the...?" Rudy exclaimed – and now the ongoing changes to his voice finally made it into his conscious awareness; an awareness that caused him almost instinctively take wider stock of himself...

"What the fuck!?" Rudy screamed a demand for explanation to the universe at large.

With very good reason – for he was no longer the same man who had awoken, naked, in that opulent, feminine bedroom.

In fact, in the technical sense, he was no longer a man at all.

Now was he a woman – but there was absolutely no doubt which direction his inexplicable transformation was going, for his androgynous body was definitely moving in a feminine direction. Much slimmer and smoother than it had been since puberty, it was also developing certain curves that, while not yet feminine in nature, were definitely making him look less masculine.

There was absolutely no doubt in Rudy's mind that, impossible as it was, something was transforming him into a woman.

Swearing and cursing loudly, hands alternately touching a changing body and then yanking away from contact with steadily less familiar flesh, Rudy began to move swiftly through the enormous and seemingly untenanted palace, desperately seeking either explanation or reversal of the impossibility that was occurring to him – but neither was to be found, not during the time where his traitorous body continued to alter.

What had been a frantic – panicked – search slowed as the changes moved towards the inescapable final result, and finally the person who had oh-so-recently been a lean, dark-haired man staggered to a halt, then collapsed, sobbing, to the floor in yet another enormous, endless, empty room.

The person sobbing on the floor of the expansive dining room bore absolutely no resemblance whatsoever to Rudolph Aloysius von Kraft.

Appearing to be about twenty years old or so, she was a trim-yet-shapely young woman; her hips and shoulders were equal, with a slender enough waist to give her a perfect 36-24-36 figure, nicely complemented by the C-cup breasts filling out her powder-blue shirt. The shirt also complemented her sky-blue eyes, which in turn went well with the golden-blonde hair that spilled down around a heart-shaped face. The features of that face were finely drawn, delicate and well-defined, and her wrists and ankles were equally as delicately formed. Not startlingly beautiful, she was nevertheless very lovely... or would have been, if not for the tortured, tearful expression upon her face.

"Oh, yes..." A voice said with cool amusement, "...because being a lovely, healthy young woman is such a horrifyingly terrible fate to suffer through."

At the sound of that voice, the new woman's head snapped up – and those red-rimmed cornflower eyes suddenly based with a mixture of hatred and fear as recognition and realization set in.

"You...!" The woman who Rudy had become hissed, lovely new contralto twisted with anger.

"Yes." Jasmine replied, grey eyes amused as she looked down at her creation. "Me. I'm glad you managed to figure that part out. Now, the more important question – who are you...?"

"What...?" The new woman demanded, confused. "What the hell is that supposed to mean? I'm a woman! You turned me into a woman!"

"I've given you the body of a woman..." Jasmine corrected, not entirely unkindly. "However, given your view on women – or, at least, the only ones you care to spend any time thing about at all – I think it would be most instructive of you to experience something a bit more social."

Walking over to yet another set of double doors, the stunning auburn-haired woman gestured. "Behind this door is a party. Not the type of party you are used to, perhaps, but a social gathering – a cocktail party, you might say. Shall we see how you fare?"

"What?" Rudy gasped, shocked right down to her newly feminine toes. "I can't...! I won't!"

"Perhaps there is some other... 'social' activity you would prefer to engage in, as a woman?" Jasmine asked, a dangerous edge coming into her voice – and Rudy paled.

"No, I... I... I'm not dress for that sort of thing!" The new woman blurted out, eager for any excuse.

"That is simple enough to remedy..." Jasmine replied with a small smile. Walking over to a single door set in the other wall, she pulled it open...

Considering all the things that had already happened to the once-male Rudy, something as simple as seeing the bedroom in which then-he had awoken should not have shocked her nearly as much as it did – yet, nevertheless, the new reminder of the 'impossible' situation in which she found herself threatened to break her mind's sanity from its very badly battered moorings.

Only the knowledge that things could get far, far worse than they already were kept her mind operating at anything close to the level of sanity – for Rudy remembered full well exactly what he'd explained to Jasmine the night before, and now understood that she could have brought that fate to pass... and still could.

"I... I... I..." She stammered – and then, panting in panic and fear, finally bowed both literally and figuratively to the inevitable, staring at the floor as she forced herself to give a little nod.

"Sorry, Judy, I did not quite make that out..." Jasmine said, archly.

Rudy's head snapped up, and she opened her mouth to argue the sudden renaming – and then, seeing the look on Jasmine's face, swallowed pride along with the hot words she was about to speak.

"Alright," she finally said, in a near whisper. "I... I'll get dressed, and go to the party."

"Splendid." Jasmine replied, smiling warmly. "I look forward to your debut. I do so hope you choose your attire – and manner, and conversation – as carefully as any young lady of your position could possibly be expected."

With that barely veiled threat, she held that impossible door open wider – and Judy silently rose and walked toward it.

* * * * *

The humiliations simply continued to pile one atop another as the once sexist male was forced to at least marginally embrace a feminine fate – if only to avoid a much worse possible version.

So it was that the newly christened Judy was required to make herself ready to engage in the social intercourse of a cocktail party in a feminine aspect.

It began with a bath.

Walking into the massive bathroom of 'her' bedroom, Judy found the tub already filled not only with water, but with a thick frosting of floral-scented foam. Blushing with a combination of humiliation and rage, the slender young beauty lowered herself into the warm, fragrant embrace of that feminine form of cleansing – a bubble bath.

Washing her new body forced Judy to unwillingly gain a better understanding of her newly feminine form. Hands slimmer and finer-boned than she was used to flowed over softer, smoother skin that, while atop a finer bone structure – was nevertheless more smoothly rounded than her own rather spare, male body had ever boasted. Although her hips were quite trim, for a woman, they were still wider than her old ones, and her firm buttocks felt huge despite being quite modest – if shapely – for a woman.

Then there were the breasts – an all new addition, rather than a mere modification of something she'd had as a man. Again, despite being roughly average for a woman with her height and build, they seemed ridiculously oversized to someone used to having a flat chest. Worse, the new weight not only seemed ungainly, but almost as if they had a mind of their own, always jiggling and bouncing and, well... moving.

If her new bust line amounted to an addition to her old male form, her new vagina was worse. Part of her mind kept trying to insist that it was a 'loss' from her old form, but that wasn't even close to true – it was a substitution, a replacement, not just something 'cut off' of a man's body, and her own brain's stubborn insistence that it should feel painful – like a cut – kept running up to the reality that it was in no way physically painful. In fact, when her hands very carefully washed that area, a very unwelcome hint of pleasure was the result.

Thankfully, she didn't have to learn to deal with washing a much fuller, softer head of hair – hence the choice of bath rather than shower, for she knew full well that dealing with that hair would take too long. So, instead, she was 'lucky' enough to move right on to having to get all dolled up for a social event she seriously dreaded having to attend...

First came the underwear – in this case, a matched set of panties and bra. If nothing else, the amount of movement Judy was learning was inherent to her new breasts made a brassiere desirable from a physical standpoint, if not necessarily an emotional one. With that in mind, she initially went for the simplest design she could find, plain white full-cut briefs with a matching simple, white 'standard' bra, at least how she viewed it.

It was only after looking over the various choices of clothing that Judy thought Jasmine would find acceptable for a cocktail party did Judy realize – truly realize – that she was actually going to have to go through with this.

It was at that point that she nearly had a breakdown. Being seen, in public, not just physically female, but dressed and acting in a feminine manner – how could she do that?! She had never wanted to be a woman, had never imagined being a woman, and had no real idea how a woman would, should, or could act in a situation like this...

...because, as Rudy, she had never bothered to seek out or pay much attention to 'normal' women. No, Rudy had only been interested in the women who were interested in demeaning themselves for men, driven by insecurities to verify their 'femininity' by having sex with men.

Not that she was quite ready to admit to herself that this realization might mean she deserved what was happening to her – but it made her hideously aware of how little she knew and understood anything about women that did not directly relate to rampant sexuality. The only inklings she had stemmed from the fact that, while physically female, she had no urge to convey any sense of feminine sexuality, and certainly not anything rampant. In fact, she was having to force herself to do anything at all that emphasized any aspect of her newfound and unwanted femininity...

...and that included putting on a simple, floral-print-on-white summer dress in preparation.

* * * * *

"Ah, and here she is now, our guest of honor..." Jasmine announced, as Judy hesitantly entered the 'modest' salon – capable of holding a mere two dozen people, as it did now.

Judy felt as if every eye in the room was upon her – and, in this case, it wasn't a mistaken or over-exaggerated feeling in the least. All the other guests, many with drink in hand, were actually eyeing with interest the 'guest of honor' Jasmine had just drawn their attention to.

Nervous, afraid, and humiliated, Judy certainly didn't want to meet any of their eyes, much less interact with them – but as Jasmine's manner had made it quite clear that she would have no choice but to do so, she forced herself to smile as Jasmine, playing hostess, took her by the arm and began to introduce Judy around.

The men wore either suits or slacks and blazers, while the women wore dresses – usually cocktail dresses. It was an all-new experience for Judy to see the women eyeing her as a possible rival... and the men as a possible 'friend', to say the very least. What the very most might be, Judy didn't even want to think about.

"Come now..." Jasmine whispered in her ear. "You're being too shy. There's nothing untoward going on here, no great secret trick – surely you are able to converse intelligently, at least to the point of small talk?"

Whether she could or could not didn't matter – because, horrendously uncomfortable, Judy didn't even try.

"Well!" Jasmine suddenly announced, in a loud voice that captured everybody's attention. "Our guest of honor does not seem very comfortable, does she? Look at her, silent and withdrawn, underdressed – not a smidge of make-up, no jewelry on at all!"

Judy gaped her, stomach plummeting as a sense of dire foreboding came over her.

"Clearly, she is completely unhappy with herself, the way she looks... so perhaps we should 'help' her, shall we...?" Jasmine announced – and Judy's eyes widened in horror as the rest of the men and women shared wicked smiles that matched Jasmine's own.

"No!" Judy screamed, backing away from the group with hands out-thrust before her, as if warding off a physical attack. "Please, don't! I'm sorry...!"

She had figured out what was about to happen – and, even in her horror, was amazing it had taken so long for her to realize herself at the very center of the scenario he'd described to Jasmine.

After all, hadn't Rudy explicitly explained the type of women he 'liked', and why? How it got him all hot to find such a woman, and take advantage of her...

...how he was hardly the only one, and there were 'dozens' of other people, male and female alike, who got off on the same thing?

Looking at the expressions on the faces of the people now leering at her, Judy finally understood that Jasmine had sought out and brought together people of both genders who had the same fetish as Rudy...

...while Judy was the perfect example of the focus of just such a fetish, if you were to look at it from a certain, highly skewed perspective.

What turned Rudy – and, clearly, these people – on was a woman who was uncomfortable in her own skin, who desperately wished to be in a form that she would be sexually comfortable in, one that was constantly being changed in a bid to find that comfortable self... but, most importantly, one that never reached that point. It was that desperation, that unwilling willingness to change, that really turned Rudy on – and there certainly could be no doubt for anyone her, herself included, that this was not the form that was sexually comfortable for Judy.

...but it wasn't anyone's intention that she reach the form she really wanted, for that wasn't where the sexual pleasure these people derived came from.

So it was that the dozen onlookers smiled even more as she begged and pleaded – even as they began offering certain 'suggestions' to Jasmynes, and she began to implement them.

"No, please, I like this body, I love this body, I'm happy..." Judy voiced sobbing, despairing lies – while knowing they were hopeless, for lies they undeniably were. Which meant that the pleasure was there to be had by these... these...

Perverts.

Deviants.

Sickos...

...just like the Rudy she had been.

So, Judy knew what she really had to do to bring what was happening to an end... and that these fellow sickos would – were! – getting off on watching the struggle between trying to find a way around it, and simply giving in.

Clothes, hair, shoes, body – all of these things were open to be changed, in this case by magic rather than the more mundane means Rudy had looked for, such as plastic surgery... but the one thing that would not be changed, directly, was her mind, for that was the fetish they shared, and the fate being forced upon her.

She knew exactly what they wanted, what they were hoping for, what they were waiting for – for her to break...

...and they would not be satisfied with playacting or pretend. The meant for it to happen – and, as desperately as she wished to avoid acknowledging it, even to herself, they had the means.

Everybody in the room knew that – and they all knew that she knew it... which was what made it all the more amusing, for the spectators, to watch her try desperately to avoid something she herself knew to be inevitable – knowing full well that each additional minute of willful denial only made the horrifying experience she was undergoing all the worse.

Already, Judy could feel her body, clothes, and other accoutrements changing – and, for the people feasting on her horror, it mattered little what the individual changes were, although each had their own ‘tastes’ in the matter. What was more important to them was that she hold out, that she fight against admitting the truth, until past the point that she was... well, ‘normal’ anymore. No, they were eager for ‘freakishness’...

...and despite knowing that, Judy still couldn’t help but ‘play the game’, gabbling out steadily more desperate assurances that she loved her body, was happy the way she was, anything and everything that might work short of the abject surrender that would mark the complete shattering of herself as a whole person.

All while her already-hated, already ‘overly feminine’, (to her male mind), body continued to change.

Judy could feel it happening – and attractive, but otherwise unremarkable body slowly becoming more sexualized, in appearance and appurtenances.

“Mmmm, wow, yeah, a nice pair of D-cups...” Judy agreed, desperately, even as she could feel the hem of her simple dress rising up legs that, in turn, were gaining more defined contours due to the rising heels of her changing shoes. “Yeah, that’s pretty hot, isn’t it...? Especially, you know, with all of you helping me with make-up and stuff. Thanks, by the way, because I didn’t know anything about that, and now I don’t have to learn, because you’re putting it on me, I bet I look like a movie star or something, right?”

Her heart was pounding with a whirling storm of emotions as – painfully, desperately – she forced herself to smile at the guy who had just suggested to Jasmine that her hair should be longer and curlier. Although revolted at the thought of what she was doing, she struggled to copy a ‘come hither’ pose and look, hoping to convince him that she was willingly interested in him... despite knowing full well that he was not only seeing right through it, but enjoying watching her debase and demean herself in the attempt.

Which is exactly why he smiled back, and stepped closer.

“Yeah, you are looking a lot sexier, now...” He agreed, moving to put a hand around her waist – but doing so in such a way to leave her plenty of time to decide what to do.

Judy tensed, even as she let his arm slip around a waist that was now being steadily more compressed under a corset.

“You really think so...?” She asked him – even while hating the honest desperation in her voice, the eager need to know that he was finding her still-not-too-unusual form attractive.

“Yeah, baby – you definitely turn me on...” He agreed – not a complete lie, but hardly the entire truth. It was her desperation - her weakness - that was getting him aroused, especially since he knew full well that she knew it, too. “What say you and me go someplace and... get to know each other better?”

Oh, Judy’s reasons for being desperately, overwhelmingly eager to gain a man’s approval might be far, far different than any woman Rudy had ever looked for – but the desperation itself, and the literal fear of rejection or failure was even stronger in Judy than any woman Rudy had ever met. She had the unique and unwelcome perspective of having a better insight into what was going on in this man’s mind, what his true desires were, than she had ever wanted – and that made it all the more delicious for him, knowing that.

Moreover, knowing that, despite being fully aware of the consequences of what she was doing – and her disgust at doing it at all – she was, at least for now – going along with it.

After all, the excitement came not as it did for some people, from ‘breaking’ a person themselves – no, it came from having a front-row seat as you watched a person break themselves...

...and that was exactly what Judy was doing as, completely artificial smile plastered to her now-altered face, She led him to the door to ‘her’ bedroom.

Judy could literally feel it happening as she closed the door, leaving the two of them alone in the expansive room – she could feel her mind crumbling as she accepted, with a certain amount of willingness, something she had always believed she would rather die than accept.

The smile remaining every bit artificially, but gradually becoming more practiced, she slowly began to remove the clothing that covered her thankfully only moderately sexualized body. She hated every single motion, even as she performed it – but, at the same time, forced herself to do it all as sensually and seductively as possible... for she knew that the body she was not only showing off, but about to put to use, could be much, much worse than the one she was currently cursed with.

So powerful was this need to avoid further change that, despite her own horrified disgust, an outside observer might almost think she meant it when she inexpertly but 'eagerly' began stripping the man. It was a desire to get this over with as quickly as possible, rather than sexual desire – but again, aside from the pervert who knew what and why she was doing this, most men would accept the act she was putting on.

Not that the man refused her – not when he was so enjoying the emotional agony he knew was going on beside that façade.

"Yeah, that's it baby..." He moaned as she 'willingly' pushed him onto the bed – all while knowing that she desperately wished he would take control of the situation, which is why he was limply accepting her 'dominance' in this situation. "Oh, you must really want this..."

"God, yeah – I want..." She moaned... then struggled a second before being able to force the words out in a tone that might have been mistaken for lust: "... I want to fuck you, stud – fuck you good and hard..."

It made her want to vomit – so, instead, she shut up and went ahead and did it.

She screamed as she impaled herself on his now-hard cock... a scream that she somehow managed to make sound like one of pleasure. As she thrust herself almost frantically up and down, hating the sensations created in her new womanhood, she gave up on the impossible task of faking eager desire, and simply focused on getting it over with. Again, with anybody else, it would seem desperation for sexual pleasure – but what little of that there was actually disgusted the new woman, and she was actually trying to minimize her own pleasure as she bounced and thrust atop him.

It wasn't enough. To her everlasting, horrified shame, she actually reached a feminine orgasm before managing to get the man off. Helplessly, she was forced to bear the humiliation of receiving ecstasy from the act of fucking a man – and her mind shuddered and crumbled anew under the assault of this most disgusting of outcomes.

Sometime later, after he'd left her and she'd been allowed to sob in privacy, she got dressed... and made-up, in the type of garish, trashy, overdone way that would distract the eye from the 'real' her. She was completely unsurprised when opening the door to 'her' room led into a grim alley beside the very nightclub where the nightmare had started.

Pausing to heft her tits to a bit more prominence, and already considering getting them 'pumped up' so as better to keep men from seeing the self-disgust in her eyes, Judy forced herself to wiggle and sway with open provocation toward the door of the nightclub, hating who and what she had become...

...the exact sort of woman Rudy would have loved to meet.

There was only a tiny bit of Rudy left in the shattered ruins of her mind – but it was a fragment that, no matter how much she abused herself in an attempt to crush it completely, would forever remain within her, endlessly sobbing.

THE END

SUMMARY: An ex-U.S. Air Force pilot tries to regain the excitement of flying but when he encounters a terrible accident with a potent chemical that re-writes his DNA code, he finds that his life is reinvigorated as a stewardess on an airline carrier.

The Rush

By Gunslinger

With a twist of the throttle, the Kawasaki's engine went from a constant moan into a high-pitched whine, and the trees lining the side of the secondary highway seemed to blur together in a solid wall of green as the black-and-red sports-tuned motorcycle shot down the worn blacktop at speeds best described as 'suicidal'. The frame of the bike shook and shuddered as the stiff suspension transmitted the relative roughness of the road to the rider, adding to the mechanical vibration of the engine as the bike hurtled towards a blind corner wrapping around the cliff-like face of the escarpment, open air yawning on the other side.

With a huge, shit-eating grin, Terry leaned the bike nearly flat on the pavement as he entered the corner on the inside track. He kept his body tucked tightly to the frame of his machine, except for the downward leg. The heavy, glossy leather of his tight pants rode but half an inch above the rough surface as he slid the bike through the corner, no padding offering protection should he misjudge centrifugal force and the effect of gravity.

As the bike cleared the corner, revealing a clear stretch of downward sloping road ahead, Terry let the back end of the bike 'break' slightly, the angular momentum of the bike pulling against the bike's mass and inertial force, trying to send it into a series of tumbles - but only having enough force to pull the bike upright again, Terry's skillful shifting of balance keeping it there as the bike straightened out.

As the bike once more stabilized, the grin slowly faded from Terry's boyish features, his blue eyes taking on a certain weariness that should have been far beyond his twenty-six years of experience on the planet. Almost negligently, he eased off on the throttle, his booted foot shifting gears smoothly as the bike slowly decelerated without using the brakes, the velocity-created 'wind' gradually fading a bit. His black leather jacket's hem settled closer to his body as the velocity continued to drop, and even his thick, shaggy mane of dark hair began to settle as the speedometer's needle continued to drop.

The bike's speed passed through the legal speed limit - downward. It continued to drop, until the bike was barely coasting along, propelled only by the effect of gravity on the shallow grade. Lowering his legs, Terry let one shin-high leather 'biker boot' hit the ground on either side of the bike, awkwardly 'walking' the bike for balance as he coasted at a slow walk towards the side of the road. Only then did he apply the brake, bringing the idling motorcycle to a complete stop. Sitting there, he stared off down the straight road, eyes focusing momentarily at the gentle curve at the bottom, then gazing off into infinity for a moment.

Almost of its own volition, his right hand released the handlebar and moved over to shut off the engine of the bike. After the high-pitched whine of the engine and roaring of the wind, the sudden silence seemed preternaturally deep, absolute.

Pushing out the kick-stand, Terry let the bike settle on a slight angle as he swung a leg over and climbed off, absently taking off his lightly-tinted wrap-around glasses and tucking them into the inner pocket of his black leather jacket. With a slightly odd stride caused by partial numbness, he wandered across the road to the knee-high guard-rail on the other side, staring out over the vista presented by the slight height of the tag-end of the hill which the road wound itself up the side of.

Staring out over the slope with unseeing eyes, Terrence LaFontaine took a long, deep breath - and then let it out in a deep, heart-felt sigh. Then, as often happened, he slowly let his head tilt back, and his clear, blue eyes searched the skies above, looking for the faint silvery dot of an aircraft.

Though on the short side, Terry should have been a very handsome man. He was solidly built, with a rangy, narrow-shouldered runner's frame carrying toned, heavy muscles that were bulky as they were powerful, giving him the look of a crouching tiger even when at rest. His face had a boyish quality to it, and was open, friendly and cheerful when he smiled - which was very rare, leaving his youthful-looking face seemingly bland, the lack of laugh-lines making it even smoother than his relative youth would proclaim... yet, set in that face was a pair of eyes that seemed oddly ancient and weary, matching the strange, listless grace with which his body moved.

At Twenty-six, Terry had the general air of somebody whose entire life had already passed them by - and, sometimes, that was exactly how Terry felt.

Terry had lived an odd sort of life. An orphan, he'd grown up in a state-run institution a few miles outside of New Orleans, where he'd found himself ensconced in drab gray walls that seemed to define his life. For as long as Terry could remember, he'd always been quiet, withdrawn, listless. Not sullen, but... detached. It was as if he were living in a black-and-white silent movie while the rest of mankind lived in Technicolor, Dolby-Digital surroundings. For the first fifteen years of his life, Terry had drifted through the world like a ghost, untouched and untouching, alone even in the middle of a crowd.

Though intelligent - almost extraordinarily so - he'd gained a reputation among people who barely knew him as being 'slow', mainly because of what he didn't 'get', intelligence notwithstanding. Whether from genetic heritage or environment, Terry seemed to have some sort of emotional defect. Not that he wasn't capable of feeling emotions, but that he didn't seem to 'connect' emotionally with the rest of the world. The funniest jokes or most hilarious comedies failed to get a rise out of him, and he couldn't seem to make the intuitive emotional leaps required to understand the motivations of characters on romances or dramas.

Then, when he was fifteen years old, he'd gotten a taste of the 'color' his life had been lacking until then - when fire had broken out in the dormitory at the orphanage. He'd been padding back from the bathroom when the old, poorly-maintained chimney of the heating system had 'back-flashed', the suddenly heat expanding the air in the chimney enough to push crumbling mortar from between the bricks and expose the inner walls to the tongues of flames. The flash had died an instant later - but the wall had already started to smolder...

From Terry's point of view, he'd heard a quick, loud 'pop' from the back-flash, then a few seconds later the paint on the wall began to darken and peel... and then wall reached its combustion point, and a sudden rush of blue-orange flames had swept up the wall as smoke - hazy blue-gray at first but quickly growing darker and thicker - had begun to fill the hallway.

There's been desultory instructions on what to do in case of fire, mostly ignored by the children. Terry, however, hadn't found the short lesson any more boring than the rest of his life, and had paid as much attention to it as he had to anything else, and now he followed those instructions, even as the sprinklers sprang to life, trying to extinguish the flames that were already beginning to race across the ceiling, above the umbrella of water. With no signs of panic or confusion, Terry calmly, coolly walked back to the end of the hall and pulled the fire alarm, setting off the strident ringing of bells.

However, he didn't follow the next set of instructions, which was to leave by the nearest exit. Instead, the fifteen-year-old orphan, clad only in his pajamas, had walked calmly over to the fire hose mounted on the wall behind a glass panel. Rather than break the glass, he calmly pulled the ring-latch out of its recessed alcove, tuned it, and pulled the door open. Hauling out the hose, he paused long enough to firmly instruct the scared children now boiling into the hall to head for the exit, then he turned the valve that fed water to the hose, making sure not to turn it very far - he was too small to handle the hose himself at full pressure.

Then, opening the somewhat corroded brass nozzle at the end of the hose, he began to spray the ceiling.

Five minutes later, when the first staff showed up to clear out any children inside, they were stunned to find that Terry had already taken care of the fire, putting it out.

Despite his calm demeanor, however, Terry was far from unaffected by the experience.

In the few, scant minutes while he'd reacted, he'd felt.. something. A rush of sensations. Brightness that had been denied for his existence until then.

In those few, scant minutes, Terry had truly been alive.

It wasn't exactly the danger that had caused the rush, though that was part of it. What was even more important was the fact that he'd been in the middle of the situation, exerting his will to create control out of what otherwise would have been chaos. Until that instant, his life had really been dictated by somebody else almost all the time - and when it hadn't, it had been during periods of time when Terry's actions didn't really matter. But in fighting that fire, his actions had mattered. He'd made an impact, stepped in and controlled fate, even if in a limited way.

It had been a moment of beauty in a life devoid of beauty... and it had made his life a living hell.

To a man born blind, life is eternal darkness... but to be given a few, scant seconds to see the color and grace of the world, then strike him blind again... that is the ultimate cruelty.

Since that day, Terry had struggled to regain the rush he'd felt during the time he'd fought the fire. Word of his actions had been spread by word-of-mouth, and he'd become pretty well known... which was how it happened that Jack Winslow, a man whose lovely wife was unable to have children, had decided to feel out being a 'father' a bit by giving Terry a special present on his sixteenth birthday.

A crop-duster by trade, Jack had taken Terry up in his Stearman cadet biplane. The twin-winged, bright-red aircraft had sailed off the ground, climbed into the bright-blue summer sky... and Jack had let Terry take the controls for a few minutes...

.and, once again, Terry had felt that rush, the sensation of actually living, instead of just existing.

From then on, Terry and Jack were nearly inseparable. Though Jack couldn't afford to adopt Terry, legally, they were nevertheless as close to father-and-son that they could get, Jack taking him up with him whenever he could... and teaching him how to fly.

Every minute Terry couldn't be in the sky, he devoted himself to his education. Already one of the best students in the parish, he soon outstripped everybody else through intellect and sheer determination, getting his high-school equivalency in record time - and then moving right into college courses through correspondence, working at a local feed mill to pay the bills.

The week after Terry's eighteenth birthday, several things happened. The first was that he took - and passed - the exam and test required for him to get a Private Pilot's License for Single Engine Propeller-Driven aircraft. He also took the last exams and graduated from 'college' with honors...

...and he joined the United States Air Force.

For the next seven years, Terry had finally found his niche, had finally been well and truly alive. Life had finally had some meaning, as he'd immersed himself in the military world where not only did his actions have meaning, but he got to strap multi-million aircraft to his ass and soar into the sky, where that rush would once again fill him with color and vibrancy. All fighter pilots are 'hot', but Terry 'iceman' LaFontaine was the creme de la creme of fighter pilots, simply because he quite literally came alive when he climbed into the cockpit. He existed to fly, and that meant he flew - perfectly...

...right up until that horrible, fateful day when a malfunctioning ejection seat punched him out of the aircraft when he was trolling along behind a tanker in an otherwise routine training flight.

The ejection hadn't been too bad... except for the fact that his right eardrum had blown out, leaving him half-deaf in that ear... and with a permanent disability that altered his sense of balance a little, and made it impossible for him ever again to enter flight levels with low pressure. He'd been taking off flying status, never again to soar among the clouds, in a USAF or any other aircraft.

Since that day, life had lost most of its meaning for Terry. He still continued to drag on, unable to commit actual or psychological suicide, not able to separate himself from his now-meaningless existence as he worked a civilian job that paid him enough to continue eating.

He spent all his free time doing just one thing - trying to recapture the 'rush'. Things like hurtling down a steep, winding road, forcing his skill to the limit to keep from crashing and dying... and loving every second of it.

But those moments were few and far between, just enough to keep him going in a world that was once more dull and gray.

Staring out over the landscape in front of him, knees braced against the railing at the edge of the road, Terry once more considered his future, wondering what the next stunt he should take to give him another shot at filling his life with momentary meaning.

Behind him, he heard the growl of a diesel engine coming down from the top of the hill, and his well-ordered mind registered the fact that the sound was coming too quickly for the speed any reasonable driver should be going on a road like this - an ironic thought, all things considered. Turning his head, he was just in time to see the truck come around the corner, traveling much too fast.

The truck was little more than a wreck. Rusting, with its once-blue paint splotted with half-hearted areas of gray primer, the truck had seen better days - and years. Loaded into the cargo-bed were corroded 55-gallon drums, barely held in place by bungee-cords, and stacked up above the nominal safety of the two-ton truck's sidewalls.

As the truck's balding tires scrabbled for purchase to allow it to make it around the corner, the cord securing one of the barrels snapped under the centrifugal force... and the dingy metal drum became a projectile, the inertia of the speeding truck propelling it...

...directly towards Terry.

He reacted. Without much thought, operating more on instinct than anything else, Terry threw himself forward, tucking himself into a ball as he hit the ground, taking the impact on one shoulder. The initial burst of pain from the shoulder was joined by other cries from offended parts of his anatomy as he tumbled down the hill.

Behind him, the drum clipped the top of the guard-rail where he'd stood an instant before, splintering the top of the wooden support post as the side of the drum slowed from the impact - while the rest of the drum continued forward. The sudden difference in speed was greater than the worn metal's ductility.. and the drum burst like a dropped watermelon, it's bluish, odd-smelling liquid spraying out in a great fan as the drum, having hit off-center from it's point of balance, spun off to the side like a badly-thrown football.

A small stand of saplings had halted Terry's tumble in a (relatively) gentle manner, and he'd just begun to sit up... when he was suddenly sluiced by a few gallons of the liquid, soaking him to the skin...

...and more. He'd been halfway through a deep breath, and the liquid flooded down his throat, some ending up in his stomach and some in his lungs as it soaked through his clothes.

He spluttered and coughed, trying to clear his throat... but his throat began to burn and tighten up under the influence of the chemical. The burning sensation in his nose and eyes was joined by a terrible itching all over his body as it soaked into his skin, and he began to gurgle through a tightening throat as the strangely sweet odor of the chemical made what air he could gasp in heavy with fumes that were almost overpoweringly strong, as if somebody had dumped gallons of a slightly odd-scented perfume over the area. Whatever the chemical was, though, it wasn't perfume, but something more astringent, more powerful... it felt like it had set his body on fire, melting his bones and sinews with a heat that didn't consume.

If he'd had the breath for it, Terry would have screamed. The heat from the chemical on - and in - his body was greater than the reflected heat from that long-ago fire in the orphanage, seeming to sear through every nerve in his body. He struggled to draw breath, cloying as the fume-laden air was, as his airway squeezed tighter and tighter. His muscles refused to acknowledge the domination of his brain as he clopped around in the small grove, arms and legs thrashing.

Then he fell dead still, like a marionette with it's strings cut - as the pain increased. More than just the burning, it felt as if his body were being torn apart, ripped into it's component pieces from the inside out.

The pain seemed to last an eternity. Subjective time overruled 'real' time, seconds spanning into eons as his body seemed to feed on itself, the chemical causing reactions within the very cells themselves.

Then, slowly, the pain began to fade. The burning heat faded with it, flowing slowly from sinew and bone as his body reached chemical stability, rendering the chemical impotent, little more than sweet-smelling water and a few trace mineral components, it's active ingredients 'worn out' by reacting to cells that were equally changed by the transaction.

For several long moments, Terry merely lay where he was, still unmoving, as he attempted to absorb the agony that had passed, to get it through his body that it was over, to gather strength to defeat the great emotional and physical weariness the incident had caused. As he lay, gathering his strength, his body felt strange, alien almost, and he wondered if the chemical had caused some lasting reactions.

For one thing, it seemed to have done something strange to the leather he wore. Perhaps his pants were made of a different leather than the boots and jacket, because the pants felt incredibly tight, especially across the hips and ass, but his boots and jacket both seemed to large. The chemical had also seemed to have effected him otherwise - though his breathing was no longer labored, there might be something seriously wrong with his lungs, because every breath he took felt as if he were forcing his ribcage up against a fairly heavy weight.

The chemical also seemed to have shrunk his shirt - at least across the chest, where it was straining tight against his body, especially across his nipples which seemed rubbed raw or something, they were so sensitive.

Finally, he regained enough strength to pull himself up into a sitting position...

...and that 'weight' on his chest shifted.

That drew his eyes downward... to stare at confusion at his chest.

His shirt hadn't shrunk - but it was drawn tight across his chest. Because his chest seemed to have become swollen - incredibly so. In fact, the shirt now bulged what appeared to be a foot from his ribcage, the shirt straining to cover the odd double-domed shape tipped with large points that looked strangely familiar somehow, though he'd never had this huge swelling on his chest before to compare it to.

"What the fuck...?" He asked, out loud...

...in a clear, trilling contralto voice that snapped the connections into place in his stunned, weary brain, the strange 'bulge' popping into mental focus...

Eyes widening to their limits, Terry grabbed his soaked shirt and yanked it upwards...

...to stare in horrified shock at the two enormous, round, firm tits thrust proudly from his ribcage, tipped with huge, rapidly swelling nipples. Even as his brain registered this impossibility, he noted the way his hands looked - smaller, finer, more dainty, more...

...more...

Suddenly, the massive, incredibly firm tits taking up most of his downward view became somewhat less important as he dipped his hands past them to his crotch. He fumbled for a second, fingers gliding over the taut, smooth leather of the crotch, finding the tough material strained over hips and ass, both of which were more then they should have been...

...then he had the fly of his pants open, and his hand slid into the now skin-tight boxer-briefs he wore...

That she wore... as her fingers slid over the unmistakable contours of a vagina, sending a disgustingly erotic sensation up her spine as they glanced across her new clitoris.

"Nooooooooo!"

She screamed the denial in a clearly feminine voice that gave it lie. No matter what you wanted to argue the definition of 'female' was, a person with a fully-formed cunt, a feminine voice, and a massive, incredibly firm pair of tits probably qualified.

"This... this can't be happening..." She argued with herself in vain, hands coming back to lightly touch the massive globes of breast-flesh in an effort to dispel an illusion that was, in fact, reality. "I... I can't have been turned into a woman..."

She would have desperately liked to believe the emotional pseudo-logic of that statement.. but her body, and it's sensations, gave lie to it. Whatever that chemical was, it had run through her body and re-written it's code. DNA and RNA are forms of acid, and the chemical's composition had 'burned' some of it through, changing the very nature of her body from the inside out, altering every cell in her body on the most basic level.

The new woman's mind whirled and spun, and the edges of her vision darkened as the blood rushed from her head in a symptom of extreme emotional shock... and she forced herself to lean forward and take several deep breaths to stave off the faint, her military training and innate 'coolness under pressure' refusing to let her accept the welcoming arms of darkness.

The procedure worked... but didn't make her feel any better. Leaning forward like that pressed her huge, incredibly firm new tits against her leather-clad upper thighs, her huge nipples pushed against the damp, glossy leather in a way that made her shiver at the familiar-yet-different sensation of cold liquid on her (severely) altered chest.

When the darkness slowly receded, she sat back up straight and pulled her T-shirt back down over her massive new endowments, feeling the damp cloth, turned midnight-blue by the moisture, mold itself to her massive new chest, 'caressing' her sensitive new tits.

Taking another deep breath, she struggled and managed to push back the worst of her emotional responses to the impossible situation she was in and tack stock in an orderly manner. She followed the basic survival assessment given by the Air Force's SERE training. One of the toughest courses for mind and body, the survival training's first order of business was establishing condition - and the top of that list was immediate physical health.

Despite the fact that her body was profoundly altered, Terry was alive, healthy and aware. Indeed - she was actually less injured than she'd been before the 'incident'. Whatever the chemical had done to her, it had 'reset' her cells to a gender-swapped version of their original state, eradicating all the bruises and contusions she'd acquired on the fall down the hill, and...

Terry's mind came to a screeching halt, and she slowly reached one slimmer, daintier hand up to her 'good' ear and plugged it.

For the first time since the unexpected ejection, her other ear was reporting sounds with equal volume and clarity. Not only had the chemical reaction healed her bruises.. it had healed her injured ear.

The medical implications of that were staggering. It might be possible to use the chemical reaction to cure such things as quadriplegics, AIDS, lost limbs...

Of course, there was always the very personal question of whether or not it was worth it. It was a shocking revelation, a deep question that could have all sorts of profound effects on society... but Terry didn't have time to dwell on them for the moment. Pushing that aside, she continued her 'self- evaluation'.

Okay, so she was a basically healthy woman, whether she wanted to be or not. That meant she wasn't in any immediate danger, health-wise, and as long as there was life, there was hope. So.. on to a 'status check'.

Terry leaned forward to remove her boots.. then winced as the almost habitual movement she used caused her huge tits to crush against her legs again. Each of her new tits was the size of a medicine ball... and they felt just about as heavy. She certainly didn't want to have tits at all, but it would have been nice if they'd been smaller. These monstrous mounds of mammary flesh were a pain in the.. well, a pain in the chest, actually.

Shifting position, Terry had to contort her new body to get at her boots - and was newly surprised by how easy it was to do so. Her body was suddenly much more supple and limber then it had ever been.

Getting her boots and socks off, she stared down at her smaller, more feminine feet. The boots were now considerably oversized for her feminine feet, and that would be a problem, since she couldn't very well walk around barefoot. Well, she only had to climb the hill to her motorcycle, and a temporary solution to the problem was to ball the socks up and shove them into the toes of her boots, then lace the boots as tightly as possible over her new feet. It was hardly ideal, but it would have to do.

One look at the skin-tight leather pants she wore revealed her legs were less muscular... and pretty damned good-looking, if not 'spectacular'. It was a thought she didn't want to deal with, so she continued on.

Her fly was still open, but she couldn't see her new womanhood - with her massive rack in the way, there was no way she could contort herself to look at her new vagina, not without having something to lean against. She was feeling most definitely chilly 'down there' as the cool air and the damp boxer- briefs created odd, cool sensations against her new cunt, and she did up her pants again - after a hell of a struggle. Her hips and ass hadn't 'expanded' as much as her chest had, but the pants had been tight to begin with.

As she finished taking stock of her new body, she paused to consider all the implications of what she'd discovered. The first thing that was a problem was the fact that her new 'rack'; was so utterly massive, which was sure to throw off her balance, as well as prove to be most 'distracting'. However, she knew where the mass had come from - because her body, while about the same height, was considerably less muscular, more smoothly athletic then 'buff'. Her hips had expanded only slightly, while her new ass was firm, round, and full.

It made a certain sort of sense. Her body had a certain amount of mass, and the chemical reaction couldn't just make it disappear. Her hands and feet had gotten smaller, and some of her other skeletal structure had gotten finer - and the relatively little bit of bone material had gone to her hips, widening the pelvic bone somewhat. The 'soft tissue' of testosterone-inspired muscle, however, had been transferred to her tits and ass. In a way, Terry had been 'lucky' - there'd been a hell of a lot of muscle mass to be transferred, and as awkward as the huge breasts were, the T-shirt was a hell of a lot more 'stretchy' than the pants were. If the weight had been evenly split, she'd still be remarkably well endowed - and with an ass the size of Wyoming, which would have never allowed her to do up her pants again.

With most of her muscle bulk 'converted', she was 'weaker' than she'd been before, another problem she'd have to deal with. However, she was alive, healthy and functioning - which meant she was capable of seeking out the chemical responsible for doing this to her and looking for an antidote.

Having reached the conclusion of her examination, Terry carefully levered her new body upright, having to move slowly and carefully as she tried to adapt to the altered balance and feel of her new body. She would have fallen - except for the fact that her new body was more graceful, limber, and reactive. Her reaction time and innate sense of balance had apparently improved in her new form, partially balancing the problem of her altered center-of-gravity.

Sighing, Terry looked up the slope to the guard-rail at the top.. and carefully began to climb.

It seemed to take forever for her to reach the top, and her calf, back and shoulder muscles were aching from the twin strains of moving her upward while counter-balancing the effect of gravity of her massive tits - which seemed to want to jiggle, sway and bounce all over the place with every little movement.

On top of that, her feet were aching from the way they were being mistreated in the poorly-fitted boots she was forced to stick with. However, she ground her teeth together, and pressed on until she was over the side of the guard rail and standing on the road...

"God fucking damn!" she shouted in her clear, feminine new voice, smaller hands curling into fists that left her longer nails digging into her smoother palms. "Shit!"

Angrily, she stomped towards her bike, anger keeping her from being distracted by the way her huge new tits bounced with every angry step, until she stood over her motorcycle.

The truck that had 'dropped' the drum had over-corrected as it had attempted to keep from going over the edge... and had side-swiped her motorcycle, damaging it. There was no way it was going to run, not without some repairs at a fully-equipped garage.

Terry stalked around for a bit, swearing and cursing... and not even noticing as she almost subconsciously adjusted her stride, swaying her hips and letting them swivel more to counter-act the inertial effect of her new tits' swaying and bouncing, reaching a most-definitely feminine stride out of necessity.

Then, sighing, she leaned over - very carefully - and picked up the mirror that had been ripped off the side of the bike to survey the altered face she now possessed...

It looked like her old one.. and it didn't. It had gone from boyishly cute to 'tomboyishly' cute. She wasn't gorgeous, by any stretch of the imagination, but her pixie-like face beneath her mop of dark hair was most definitely cute, with a smaller nose, somewhat fuller lips, and bright blue eyes. In fact.. she was damned cute... and even sexy, a thought that wasn't the most comforting one in the world.

"great..." She muttered to herself in an annoyed sigh. "I've got a taut little body, a cute-sexy face, and ass that'd make any straight man's knees weak, and tits from her to next Thursday. I'll probably have guys falling over themselves trying to come on to me..." then she gasped as the mental image that had been conjured up caused her to shudder...

...as she felt 'the Rush'.

"What the fuck...?" She gasped, shaking her head. "No! No... this is just wrong..."

Her shock and dismay forced the image out of her head.. and the rush faded. Shaken, she took several deep breaths, feeling 'dirty' at having felt so utterly alive at the thought of having a body that turned men on... no. That's wasn't quite true. She'd been ironically imagining guys offering things to her in exchange for a chance at touching her, sexually.. and maybe much, much more. It wasn't just the body, in her momentary, unbidden imaginings.. it had been her using her body...

...to control a sexual situation.

Even as she realized this, it caused another momentary 'vision' in her mind's eye.. and she felt the rush again, weaker this time and she chopped the hazy thought off as soon as it registered.. but it left her feeling like her knees had turned to water.

She would have liked to think it was from the horrified disgust at the sexual thoughts.. but the truth was, her huge new nipples were as hard as rock, and there was a disturbingly pleasant warmth in her altered crotch.

All her life, she'd searched for situations with inherent 'risks' in them, so that she could feel that all- important rush when she exerted control over them. As a man, sexual situations hadn't been enough to trigger that. Not that she, as a guy, had any problems with sex - it was just that, for men, there was precious little control over the situation, and if you did try to exert control, it was called 'rape', something Terry had never tried to do, despite the fact it might have given him the 'rush'. By making sure he never even got close to that line, Terry had been kept safe from temptation that might lead to an addiction so utterly repugnant to him that he would rather die than become a serial rapist.

However, in the body she now possessed, Terry was in the position that women had held for centuries... the ability to 'regulate' a very precious 'commodity' that men would go to great - even ludicrous - lengths to get a share of...

...and the thought of being able to do that caused the rush - and the thought of being able to get the rush that 'easily' was.. was..

...was turning her on, both reinforcing the desire to cause 'the rush'... and reinforcing her emotional problems in dealing with the scenario.

"Oh, God..." Terry moaned, feeling weak and faint. She couldn't handle this. She couldn't deal with the fact that this horrible, disgusting, debasing, terrible accident that had happened to her... could make her feel more alive than ever before. She didn't want to be a woman, and certainly didn't want to be a sexually active one.. yet she did want to feel that rush. Seeking a way to get that rush had been her life's goal...

...but she'd never even thought that it would be like this. What made it worse was the fact that she couldn't retreat from it as easily as she had from the thought of rape. They were too different things, and as emotionally disgusting as the thought of having sex with men, as a woman, was, it was a 'personal' thing, without the stigmata that forcing sex on somebody else had attached...

She would have rather died than become a rapist, as a man... but what made this so hard was the fact that she wouldn't rather die than have sex with men, as a woman. It was a very unpleasant thought that went against every core ideal she'd been taught should lie at the heart of her still-male ego... but the thought of the 'rush' at only emotional pain to herself (and no pain at all to the other participant, far from it), put it far enough into the realm of 'possible' to scare and disgust her...

...and intrigue and excite her, which most definitely didn't help. She desperately wanted to be so utterly sickened by the thought that she'd throw up at the very idea, that she'd never be able to consider it, much less do it...

That wasn't the case. No matter how hard she tried, part of her non-gender-'trained' mind was considering it, quite thoroughly.

Closing her eyes, Terry forced herself to breathe deeply and think about the emergency procedures for a dead-stick landing... finally, her moment of confusion and weakness passed and she forced herself to stay calm and focused as she pondered what her immediate actions would have to be.

Obviously, she couldn't ride her bike back home - nor could she walk there. Climbing back to the top of the road and hiking the fifteen miles back to where she lived wouldn't be advisable in the poorly-fitting boots, nor barefoot. Even walking down to the city that sprawled at the base of the hill would be rough on her feet.

Though the bike wouldn't run, its tires were still sound, and she was sitting on a hill, after all...

It took a disgusting amount of effort with her new body to get the bike back up, something that had been fairly easy in her original form. Getting the bike on its wheels once more, she straddled it, needing to tuck her left leg awkwardly back to avoid the jagged metal from the point of impact on the side of the bike. With an awkward motion, she managed to get the bike onto the smooth pavement and start it on it's way.

The slope was fairly shallow, and the bike was slow to pick up speed - but she didn't mind, as having the bike hurtle down the road was the last thing she wanted. Finally, it was rolling smoothly along, at about the speed she could have run, in her old body, if she'd really had to.

Rounding the easy curve at the bottom of the hill, she began to level out... and the bike began to slow. However, she was also rolling through the section of town where scattered houses rose on the hillside, and the secondary highway turned into something more along the lines of a major thoroughfare, fed and emptied by the multitude of side-streets ahead. Already, having passed a couple of residential streets, traffic had begun to pick up.

The bike's momentum finally died, and she let the bike come to a stop, climbing off of it and letting it lean against a lamppost on the side of the street, it's kick-stand uselessly bent. Looking around, she found herself in a middle-class commercial district, with a few stores and restaurants, with a variety store/gas station anchoring one corner, and a 'bargain mart' anchoring the other.

Feeling around the inside of her coat, she found her wallet was exactly where it was supposed to be - and she had more than enough cash on hand to call a cab to take her home... or wherever else she wanted to go. It wasn't a question she'd considered in depth yet, but she knew she needed some help, to find some way to undo what had been done to her. The problem was, she wasn't quite sure where to turn for that help.

Looking around, she spotted a small bar halfway down the street, and the thought of an emotion- numbing drink or two while making her decision appealed to her. Wincing as she strode forward on already aching feet, she let her body fall into that feminine sway, aware of it now (disturbingly so), but not willing to 'force' a masculine stride for the sake of her wounded pride - the bounce and jiggle of her tits from that type of stride would have made it a hollow 'victory' anyway.

Reaching the bar, terry pulled open the door and walked into the dimly lit interior, eyes quickly adjusting from the day outside.

It was a nice, mid-scale bar, with dark green carpet and varnished 'old oak' woodwork booths framed at the top with glass. Plastic plants were placed here-and-there, and the lighting - and sound - was subdued. The design of the room made for 'privacy', making it nearly impossible to tell how many people were in the room - but there were three guys sitting at the bar itself, all looking like they'd just finished a shift at whatever low-end white-collar job they held.

Terry refused to take a good look at the guys, though, and hoped they weren't taking a particularly good look at her... though they probably were. Keeping her eyes on the brass rail surrounding the foot of the bar, she grit her teeth and tried to ignore the feminine sway of her new hips or the bounce and sway of her huge new tits, which had suddenly registered very strongly indeed on her senses.

It was but a few feet from the door to the bar... but it seemed to take an eternity, and eternity as she fought, very very hard, not to think about what the guys at the bar were probably thinking about...

...and failing miserably. A slow, steady warmth was slowly soaking through her, originating in her crotch, and her nerves were all a-tingle - and the world seemed to slowly be gaining new dimensions as the 'rush' slowly began to build, the sounds becoming richer, fuller, more meaningful, while what little she let herself look at seemed to become more vibrant, more three dimensional...

It was the same with her own body. In her life, her own sensations had seemed 'dull' - except in the grip of the rush. Now she felt her sense coming to life, and she was intimately aware of her body, of its smooth, feminine curvature. The way her full, spectacular buttocks felt as they flexed and shifted with each step. The way her huge new breasts moved under the thin shirt she wore. The way her fuller lips felt, pressed against each other...

She eased herself onto the bar stool and let her eyes rise upwards.. but not too far. She fixed her gaze on the collar of the bartender's shirt, fighting the urge to look higher...

...or lower.

"A beer, please." She said, hearing her warm, damnably feminine contralto voice anew, hearing its richly feminine timbre, its alluring, sensual sound... unbidden, her voice was rich and seductive, her innocent words sounding smoky and smooth...

* * * * *

Luke noticed her when she walked in the door.

It would be hard not to, all things considered, and she captured his immediate attention...

...because she was the oddest conglomerate of contradictions he'd ever seen.

First off, there was her, herself - and that was saying quite a bit, all of it contradictory. About average height, she had a sort of lean, tomboyish build to her. Beneath a completely unstyled mop of dark hair, her face would have been 'pretty' - if she'd bothered with even the faintest hint of make-up at all, which she hadn't.

Her body was built along 'boyish' lines, except for her ass, which looked like it was probably pretty damn nice, assuming it wasn't just the tight pants that made it look that firm... and then there was her tits.

She had the general 'look' of a stereotypical 'nature-loving' girl, maybe even a prototypical 'lesbian' type... except for the tits that were straining her shirt. They were enormous, freakishly so - the type of tits that you'd have to have multiple surgeries to get, and even then it was way outside what an 'average' person would do. A stripper, perhaps, or a porn star... but not even a hooker would get them that incredibly round and massive, much less the 'girl next door' - yet this girl had them.

Which didn't jibe with her basic look - or the clothes she wore. Usually, somebody who got tits that big would either flaunt them, or try to down-play them while she wasn't 'using' them in whatever line of work it was that inspired that much massive enlargement in the first place - yet this woman wasn't dressed 'right'. The leather pants were pretty good, showing off her ass and all... but what was with the leather jacket over the blue T-shirt routine? And those huge, clunky-looking riding boots? It was the sort of 'tough' look that you'd expect from somebody 'butch' - yet she wasn't, and the look was decidedly odd on her mostly boyish frame and hugely enlarged breasts.

Then, on top of all those contradictions, there was the way she acted and moved. First off all, there was the way she'd walked into the room. Her stride wasn't 'manly' in any way, but it was as if she'd never done anything graceful in her life before. The grace in her walk was mostly incidental as she moved to just cover ground in the most efficient way her feminine body would allow.

When she'd stepped inside the door, she'd looked around, seemingly fairly confident... and then she'd blushed, fiercely, and began to walk - shuffle, really - toward the bar, head down. Her body had been tense, awkward... and she'd kept sneaking glances at himself and the other guys at the bar, moving like somebody expecting to be whipped or verbally assaulted. Even her movements to get on the barstool had been awkward, though oddly graceful.

Then she stares directly at the bartenders neck, eyes refusing to meet anybody else's, and orders beer in this thin, wavery voice, like she was afraid to speak clearly and strongly.

Luke had never come across anybody, male or female, who acted like this... but the general feel she gave did seem oddly familiar...

Then he had it, and his broad hand tightened around his glass in anger as he considered any possible way that a woman could end up like this. Certain incongruities fell into place... like those tits of hers. They were most definitely out-of-place with her body and actions... which would make sense if she hadn't gotten them voluntarily.

Indeed, almost everything about her fell into place once Luke had made the connection between the way the woman was behaving - and the time he'd seen a mistreated dog who'd been whipped into fawning submission by it's master.

* * * * *

Terry couldn't help but notice him out of the corner of her eye - he kept looking at her with an odd expression on his face as she sipped at her beer.

He was an average-looking guy, more or less. Lightly tanned, with a shaggy mane of dirty brown hair and some stubble, dressed in faded Levi's and a denim work-shirt. The most interesting thing about him was his eyes, a pair of deep green eyes that looked like emeralds as he gazed at her.

So, Terry wasn't terribly surprised when the guy sidled a couple of bar stools over to sit down next to her just as she finished her beer. She was instant uncomfortable, confused, worried, and unpleasantly pleased... but not surprised. She felt the warmth and tingle running through her body increase, and an odd thing happened - the rest of the world seemed to receded into that gray haze that marred her life... except that the rush seemed to actually grow stronger as it's focus narrowed down, leaving him and herself in this incredibly crisp, clear glow, shutting out the rest of the world.

She struggled to maintain her hold over her new feelings, emotions and thoughts as his masculine presence hit her like a freight train, his manly musk and faint odor of sweat making her knees weak and her head swim.

"Hi.." He said, quietly, in the sort of intimate whisper that she should have expected. "Would you like me to buy you another beer? You could probably use another - it looks like you've been having a rough day."

Having her traitorous body and emotions find this man's attention so.. so exciting made her male ego want to scream... but she managed to keep herself under control, fighting both the urge to run away and the urge to let herself respond sexually.

"You have no idea..." She said, politely. "My motorcycle got wrecked on the way down the escarpment... and that's not even the worst thing that's happened lately..."

* * * * *

Luke couldn't stand it anymore. Sure, maybe it was his place to interfere - but he'd heard about twisted 'relationships' like this on talk-shows and what-not, where women were all but slaves to some domineering man who got a kick out of controlling them, and it sickened him. If there was anything he could do to help this poor woman...

As he slid down to sit beside her, something odd registered, now that he was closer;

She was wearing men's clothes. That was one reason why she looked so out of place - and why the boots looked so huge and clunky.

She noticed him sit down beside her... and she seemed to shrink down on herself a bit, here startlingly bright, blue eyes a mystery as she watched him. Was that fear he saw? Or hope? Or maybe a bit of both...?

Keeping his voice low, both for privacy and to keep from spooking her, he 'broke the ice' as best he could, offering her a drink... and commenting that she looked like she was having a rough time. He hoped to draw her story out of her...

When she answered, it was in a flat, hopeless voice only faintly tinged with an emotion he couldn't identify - and her words explained a hell of a lot, making part of that ball of pity in his chest loosen, to be replaced by respect.

To escape such a horrible, sick 'relationship' wasn't easy. From what Luke had seen on talk shows, women were more or less brain-washed until they were sure that the man who was doing this was practically God... or the Devil. Fear kept them paralyzed... yet this woman had obviously managed to get enough courage to get out of the situation. She didn't come right out and say it, of course, but between what she said and what Luke had seen, it came together perfectly.

She was wearing men's clothes because whatever clothing the son-of-a-bitch who did this to her let her wear was no good for her plan. Instead, she'd stolen his riding clothes, and then his motorcycle... and, not really knowing how to rise one, she'd damaged it on the way down the mountain. At least she didn't seem to have injured herself in whatever accident had happened - and she was at least some distance away from the bastard.

Though some of his pity had dissipated, his anger at the unknown bastard who'd done this to the poor woman was growing, and Luke ordered them a couple of more beers, using the diversion to get his rage under control - if he let it show, he might scare this poor woman off, and she looked like she desperately needed a friend. Luke wasn't exactly a knight in shining armor - but he swore to himself that he'd do whatever was necessary to turn this woman's life around. He didn't know her, wasn't her friend - yet - but the thought of another (supposed) member of his gender doing something this horrible made him feel a sort of obscure guilt, as if what had happened to her was his fault, as well.

"By the way, I'm Luke." He introduced himself.

"Teri." She said, shyly. "Uh... thanks for the beer, Luke."

Her hesitant gratitude unnerved him a bit - she obviously wasn't used to having men buy her drinks. "My pleasure, Teri."

That seemed to have an odd effect on her. She started to smile - involuntarily. He could tell by the sudden, completely spontaneous light that came into her eyes as her lips started to curl upwards... and she started to sit up straighter, her back arching backwards, pressing those ridiculous tits of hers farther out...

...only, for that second, they didn't look freakishly huge. In that one, half-formed instant, Teri became the most stunningly beautiful person Luke had ever been fortunate enough to meet. The obscure pain went out of her, and something good - something vital - took its place, and she was simply more real, more alive, more there than any other person Luke had ever seen, making his throat tighten in awe at her sheer, stunning, feminine beauty...

...and then the moment was past, and she slumped in on herself once more, ashamed of her once more ludicrous bust and her tomboyish, unadorned looks.

* * * * *

It hit her so hard she almost lost herself in the sudden rush.

Luke's attentions, his obvious pleasure in doing something for her, gave her a more powerful rush than she'd ever felt in her life. Her body seemed to burn with intensity, and her mind was wiped momentarily clear of any thought as she reacted to increase the intensely pleasurable feeling that ran through her body, a feeling like she'd never felt before...

...a feeling created by having 'control' over the situation, her sexual new being making a man do something for her. Even as the momentary loss of control kicked in, that thought - that she was using her feminine wiles, unwilling as it might be - put an immediate damper on her raging 'rush', and she managed to get control of herself.

"Look, Luke - I appreciate the drink and all..." She said, pausing to take a long, cooling swallow of the beverage, "...but I've kinda got this problem I have to.. well, figure out a way to solve."

Luke's eyes had an odd look in them as he cocked his head. "I'd love to help, if I can. You know what they say about two heads being better than one." He paused. "Maybe we should move to a more private booth, and then we can discuss your problem..."

He was obviously not ready to give up on her - and part of her was inordinately grateful for the fact, while another part of her desperately wished he'd go away, since he was causing sensations that she was most definitely not comfortable having... or too comfortable having, depending on how you looked at it.

She opened her mouth to turn him down... and discovered something that managed to shock, horrify and excite her, all at the same time.

She couldn't do it. She quite simply didn't have enough willpower to send him away. No matter how hard she tried, the part of her that wanted - needed - to feel the rush exerted enough force on her that she couldn't simply walk away from the opportunity before her, no matter how much the implications bothered her male memories and upbringing.

"Well..." She said, still searching for a way to turn him down - and to fight the urges and feelings she was having. "I.. I don't think you can help with my particular problem... but a little more privacy would be nice..."

* * * * *

His offer made her so distinctly uncomfortable that he was sure he'd blown it. She shrank in on herself, face taking a slightly stricken look as her lips searched for words....

...and he knew, in that instant, then when she inevitable agreed, he'd have to find an excuse to leave. He couldn't take it. She'd be following his suggestion because she'd been beaten in submission, reacting as a slave would to the word of her master...

...and then, for the second time, that magic happened. He eyes filled with life - and with hope. The tension in her body didn't fade - but it changed, becoming the tension of somebody who dared hope, even when everything inside told her not to. It was in that instant when she once more became heart- stoppingly lovely, not because of the way she looked.. but because of who she was, the person that had been forced down behind the surface momentarily showing him the every possibility of who she really was...

...and, despite whatever she felt, she accepted the proposal. Hesitantly, perhaps even fearfully - but completely of her own volition, making it more than just 'all right' for him to slide from his bar stool and lead her to an empty booth.

He slid into the booth, the dark burgundy vinyl squeaking slightly beneath his weight. He settled in...

...then, surprised, shifted over as Teri slid into the same seat with him, instead of across from him as he'd expected.

"So... what's this problem you're having...?" Luke asked, hoping the fact that she'd answered him earlier might mean she was ready to talk about it...

* * * * *

She had to suppress a grin at the question. "Uh... I really don't think I could explain it to you." She said, the thought of what he might say or do if she revealed the truth almost enough to send her into gales of laughter. "it's really... complicated."

Oddly enough, he took the evasive answer well - almost as if he expected it, but that was impossible, all things considered. "I see. Well... is there anything I can do to help?"

She'd been giving the question some serious thought - and still hadn't come up with any clear answers. Her first instinct was to go to a hospital... but she had another mental image of what would happen when Admit asked what was wrong and she tried to explain... she was pretty sure a 'Psych Consult' would be the immediate result. Likewise, trying to call up anybody she knew and make the understand who she 'really' was.

Her best bet, as she saw it, was to find the truck that had side-swiped her bike, and find out what had been in the barrels. From there, she could back-track to the company that had produced them.. and threaten them with a lawsuit. At that point a concerted effort would be made to prove she wasn't indeed, who she said she was... which would (she desperately hoped) end up proving that she was, in fact, herself.

"Well.." She answered Luke's question. "I guess the first step would be to find the guy who side- swiped my motorcycle, and have him pay for the damage."

* * * * *

Obviously she wasn't ready to talk about the bastard whose thumb she'd lived under all these years - from the way her face had twisted up when he'd asked the question, he was sure she was barely able to restrain tears at the thought of it, much less talk about it.

Her answer to how he could help showed that this 'escape plan' of hers hadn't included a lot of money. Most likely, the guy who'd done this to her never let her have any money of her own, so she'd had to steal whatever he'd left around...

His respect for her went up another notch - as did his concern. Obviously, she was at a very fragile point in her life. She needed to feel that she was important as a person in her own right, and he didn't want to do anything that would make her want to backslide into the 'comfort' of her familiar submission. Comfort wasn't exactly the right word, of course, but it was the closest Luke could come to expressing what would make somebody slip back into a routine that they were used to, no matter how horrible it was, rather than face the new challenges that lay along a different path. Obviously, Teri was worried about her lack of money or transportation, as well as uncomfortable with her physical looks... which was stated louder than words by the way she varied between complacently comfortable to withdrawn, drawing in on herself. Luckily, her immediate problem left an easy opening for him...

"Maybe that won't be necessary." He grinned. "As it so happens, I work at a garage. I'm sure I could get your bike fixed for you, free of charge... or maybe you'd prefer to exchange it for a nice used car - a fiesta, perhaps?"

He was surprised by the quick look that passed across her face - almost fear, but not quite. As if his offer had somehow been very, very wrong...

* * * * *

It was a great offer, based on what he knew... but it wouldn't help her, not in her situation. Sure, she'd get her bike fixed for free... but she still had to back-track the guy in the truck, or she'd be stuck in this body forever... the thought of it made her suddenly very, very aware of the fact that she was sitting right next to a guy who was trying very hard to 'be nice' to her - because she was a sexy woman and he was a handsome enough man, a red-blooded American male, 'on the prowl'. His offer was obviously an attempt to get closer to her, not that there was anything fundamentally wrong with that, since Luke didn't know the truth... but how to let him know that it wasn't any good to her, since she'd neglected to tell him the whole reason behind her search for the man in the truck?

* * * * *

Luke blinked as she shifted uncomfortably, drawing her jacket closer over her huge bust. There was no way for the jacket to hide those massive knockers - hell, it wouldn't even zip up over that magnificent amount of breast-flesh. She tried to 'downplay' them nevertheless, obviously worried and upset, the look on her face making it clear she was searching for a way to escape this situation.. without angering him. Obviously, she didn't have any skills at all turning away 'requests', and the blossom of anger deep inside grew at the ideas about what had been done to her to make her this timid...

...and another emotion grew as well, as he realized that part of it was that she probably thought he expected something in return for his 'help' - and he had a fair idea of what she thought he wanted, since it was probably the same thing the bastard who had done this to her wanted.

"look, Teri..." Luke said, quietly, trying to project every ounce of sincerity he could into his voice. "I don't want you to think I'm doing this for any overt reasons. I just want to help you. You can accept my offer... then walk away, never having to see me again, ever. I... Well, not to be too blunt, but I'm not expecting you to reward me in any way for my help, not even.. not even so much as a kiss."

* * * * *

'Yeah, right.' Teri thought - though she had to admit that if she said 'goodbye' right now and left, Luke probably wouldn't be angry about it. He was a nice enough guy, and god knew there was nothing wrong with trying to entice a girl. It was part of human nature, after all. Still...

"You're not?" She asked, archly. "You mean you don't want to kiss me?" She snorted delicately to show she didn't believe him.. then decided to throw him a curve-ball by giving him a bit of the absolute truth, just for the hell. "I've never actually been kissed by a guy, you know. I guess there's no reason to start now, anyway."

* * * * *

Her hurt tone when she said 'You're not?' was bad enough - but the muffled sob before her heart- breaking question about his not wanting to kiss her almost tore his heart in two...

...then if felt like his heart had been ripped when she sadly told that she'd never kissed a guy... and probably didn't need to start now.

It was far, far worse then he'd thought. Whoever had done this to her hadn't been to use her for a sex object - no, it was deeper, and somehow that much worse. He didn't want her, sexually... and he wanted to make sure nobody else had her, either. That's why her tits were so incredibly huge - whoever this bastard was, he wanted to mark her, and yet also drive away most men. With her boyish build, she would have been damned cute with her original bust and a little make-up... but now she believed she was a freak, undesirable to any man. It was probably what whoever the bastard was had been telling her all along. He'd probably driven into her mind the thought that she was ugly, that no man would ever want her - as part of his method of keeping her close. After all, why escape when there was nothing out there worth her attention, if she thought she was going to be ridiculed? No wonder she was so withdrawn, curling in on herself... she thought she was hideous...

...and Luke had just said the absolutely wrong thing. He needed to reassure her that she wasn't hideous, that she was a desirable, intriguing woman...

"I didn't say I didn't want to kiss you..." Luke said, softly. "I said I didn't expect you to kiss me. I think you're a warm, vibrant, beautiful woman, Teri..."

* * * * *

'Thought so...' She thought to herself, wryly. She could probably work this up into a good argument, if she'd been in a mind to...

...but, as much as the thought made her uncomfortable, she was enjoying his attentions. Still, that didn't mean she was just going to fall into his arms or anything. If she was enjoying the cat-and- mouse routine, there was no reason why she couldn't drag it out a little longer, mixing some of the unknown-to-him truth with well-chosen words, keeping him off balance...

Obviously, he'd started hitting on her because he was a 'breast man', and she was about as busty as he'd ever see. Why not play with that thought for a bit...

"Beautiful...?" She asked, knowing that he actually believed that. "How can I be beautiful? Don't you think my tits are freakishly, disgustingly huge...?" She pouted. "No man's ever fondled my tits..."

* * * * *

On one level, he would have been forced to answer that question with the most hurtful thing in the world - the truth, that her tits were freakishly big.

But her own inner beauty overcame even that handicap... if he could only bring it out again...

So, he was completely honest - on a certain level - when he told her... "I think your breasts are utterly perfect, for you. I don't know why no man's ever fondled your breasts, but I know many men would quite happily do so, if they could... and I'm one of them. Teri, you are a sexy, desirable woman."

He couldn't clearly read the look that came to her face - there were too many emotions mixed in it. But he was pretty sure one of them was gratitude... and another, hope.

* * * * *

She'd thought she was playing a game... but when he actually came out and said it, told her that she was sexually desirable, a flood of emotions hit her so hard she could barely breath...

...and, on top of that, the rush seemed to swell to cataclysmic proportions. The world seemed to shudder with the force of it, everything becoming so blindingly bright, clear and sharp that it was as if she'd just been freed from a dank prison after years of confinement, stepping out into the sunlight world on a rich, spring day.

Her body was shivering with the force of the emotional pleasure his desire for her caused... and her body was also thrumming with physical desire all it's own. Her nipples were like diamond chips that were generating an intense, erotic tingle that was a fast patter against the lower, deeper throbbing from her hot, wet cunt. Her mouth was dry, and her heart was thudding like a jack-hammer, and she managed to feel both hot and chilly at the same time, like she was in the grip of some wonderful, spectacular fever that was taking her unopposed...

...and before she was aware she was going to do it, she was leaning forward, sliding one arm behind his neck, her lips pursing as her eyes slid closed, emotions and desire overriding anything her male ego might have had to say about what she was doing. She pressed her over-endowed body tightly against his, her massive tits pressing into his shoulder with a sensation that was so utterly, unbelievably wonderful that it seemed that she'd pass out at the thrumming pleasure in her body - and then her lips pressed against his, and the pleasure redoubled....

...for the instant it took for her to register how stiff he was, tense... and he wasn't kissing her back...

The rush vanished. The incredible, intense, sharpness simply vanished, once more plunging her into a world of black and white silence as she pulled away. The sudden 'drop' was too much for her in her confused, fragile emotional state. Though she hated herself for it, she couldn't help it - she began to cry, long, hitching sobs that were somehow worse than wails of agony...

* * * * *

Her sudden move took him by surprise. As she pressed herself against him, her lips meeting his, Luke felt a moment's panic, not sure what to do. Did he dare take advantage of her that way?

Wouldn't that be an awful lot like rape, if she was doing it because of some ingrained need to 'please' somebody, to fulfill their expectations? But what if she was doing it because he made her feel desirable, when she'd always thought she was a freak? What was the right thing, morally and ethically, to do here ?

The hesitation to make a decision was a decision all on its own and before he could react, she pulled away from him...

...and her body began to shake with the force of the long, deep sobs that took her.

Luke felt his heart rip apart. It was as if somebody had reached into his chest and squeezed his heart so hard that it burst and he stopped thinking at all, reacting only on base emotional instincts.

Sliding his hands around her shaking body, he pulled her close to him, just holding her for a second, letting his very presence, his closeness, tell her that he hadn't abandoned her.

Her face turned upwards as he held her, and this time he didn't hesitate...

* * * * *

Shamed by her tears, touched by Luke's obvious concern, mildly disgusted that she'd nearly let her body and emotions push her into something she wasn't sure she'd ever be ready for, Teri lifted her head to thank Luke, but tell him it wasn't necessary...

...when he kissed her, his lips pressing firmly against hers even as his hands continued to hold her firm body close...

...and thought vanished completely as the rush once more filled the world.

She kissed him back, hungrily, unable to stop herself from responding to what she was feeling. The kiss was pretty good, as kisses went, not fundamentally better (or different) than kisses when she'd been the man kissing the woman, other than the way her body felt pressed up against his... but the rush made it the most exquisite thing she'd ever felt, physical sensations aside. Her lips and tongue played with his, working on intensifying the ecstasy that thrummed through her body, ecstasy caused by the fact that she was causing a man to kiss her - ecstasy caused by the rush, almost completely independent from the physical pleasure, which was merely and added bonus that increased her desires and needs.

She'd just been playing around. Though her 'rush' made sexually active interaction 'pleasurable', she hadn't been ready to do anything about it... but now she had absolutely no choice. No matter how much that part of her brain that was male screamed and begged for her body to stop, she couldn't do anything to make this incredible rush of pleasure she was feeling go away. She needed to keep going. She couldn't help herself...

The kiss seemed to go on for an eternity, yet it was also somehow over much too fast. When Luke broke the kiss, she wanted to continue, her 'logical' mind over-ridden by the emotional and physical needs she was feeling.

"Please..." She heard her new voice said, in a low, desperate tone. "I need you... I need to feel what having sex with a man is like... I need you to fuck me, Luke - now!"

* * * * *

Luke was stunned by Teri's plea that he have sex with her... and not a little aroused. However, the moral dilemma came back to haunt him...

...and was wiped away by the look on her face. She was completely and totally open, her eyes saying all that needed to be said. Though she may be tortured by her past, the sheer urgency in her body and face said that this was, indeed, what she needed right now.

"Follow me..." He said, gently pushing her back out of the booth. She seemed to be having a really hard time letting him go, even for an instant, her body snuggled close to his as they headed towards the door, her huge, round tits pressed into his arm as her body trembled with sexual desires.

* * * * * the rush had subsided a bit as the kiss had faded... and now Teri was desperately struggling to regain control of her body and emotions. She'd just begged a guy to have sex with her, for God's sake!

Yet, no matter how hard she struggled to stop herself, she couldn't seem to do it. It was almost... well, almost like an addiction. Just as a smoker knows he should quit, but found it nearly impossible to do so, Terri knew that she shouldn't follow the mindless 'rush'... but 'knowing' and 'doing' were two separate things, and she couldn't seem to gain control of her rampant desires enough to do anything.

Arousing a man, making him sexually interested in her - it was more powerful a rush than she'd ever felt, incredibly so. Though there was something very, very wrong with the thought of a recently male person, unwilling made female, having sex so soon after the change, there was nothing she could do about it. The pleasure was overwhelming, more than she could stand... to cut herself off at this point just wasn't possible.

She found herself being led to Luke's pick-up truck, and she had to break contact with his very warm, masculine body long enough to walk around to the passenger's side... and in that moment of separation, she found herself gaining a bit of strength as the rush faded even more. Hand on the door handle, she hesitated, struggling for control...

...then she saw Luke climb into the truck... and saw the way his jeans were bulging at the crotch. Bulging from an erection.

An erection she had caused...

The rush revved up, washing away the hesitation as she helpless opened the door and slid into the truck, her voice once again saying words she hadn't know she was going to say.

"Hurry, Luke..." She found herself telling him, hungrily. "Hurry - I need to feel you in me..."

Luke hurried. Luckily, he lived close by - he managed to get his pick-up up to speeds that the manufacturer had never claimed, even when the vehicle was new, but the short distance between the bar and his house kept him getting stopped for speeding - which would have been problematical, especially since he'd just left a bar...

As she pulled up to his house, Teri all but tumbled out of the vehicle, running right up to him and pressing her body against his again, kissing him hungrily as they made for the door, her hands ranging across the taut denim covering his crotch.

'Oh, my God!' Part of her shouted to her uncaring body. 'I'm acting like some sort of nympho slut or something! I'm practically fucking him on the street, and I only just met him...!'

The shock and disgust she felt at this, however, still wasn't enough to break the hold the rush had on her body, or the power the arousal of her body had over her mind.

They'd barely gotten in the door when she was all over him - and he all over her, their hands working frantically to take the other's clothes off, eager to reach what lay beneath. Each had their doubts about what was happening - and yet, neither of them could stop.

They were completely naked by the time they got as far as the living room.. and that's as far as they went.

They collapsed on the floor, kissing hungrily, hands roaming each other's bodies, unable to help themselves...

...largely in part to the fact that Teri's chemical-affected body was pumping out hormones by the gallon and super-powerful pheromones at the same rate. Neither one realized the true source of their almost unholy lust, of course, but that didn't matter in the least - it still affected them... there was no speaking, no words other than assorted moans and gasps.. yet, somehow, working together, they managed to end up in a sixty-nine position on the floor, brains overloaded by shear, uncontrollable sexual desires.

Even as her lips engulfed his hard, throbbing cock, barely able to think, mind a whirl of desire and disgust, Teri felt Luke's tongue touch her sopping wet new womanhood - and all thought ceased, her mind unable to defeat the chemically-enhanced hormones ruling her body.

She wasn't a skilled cock-sucker - but she was an 'eager' one, slurping and slobbering at his cock, head bouncing up and down rhythmically as she moaned at Luke's equally amateurish - and erotic - ministrations to her new womanhood. Pleasure doubled and redoubled for both of them as they slurped and licked and bobbed, struggling through their own haze of pleasure to continue servicing the other...

They came at about the same time, a flood of warm, salty cum flooding her mouth and being almost mindlessly swallowed as she helplessly slammed her crotch down onto his face again and again in mindless, orgasmic pleasure.

The orgasm each felt was at least a dozen times more powerful than any they'd ever felt before - in fact, it was so utterly, mind-blowingly powerful, that there was no way mere reality could top it.

Almost in self defense, to keep from the crushing after-blow of such pleasure being reduced to the mundane world's 'reality', each of their minds, overloaded by the pleasure that had just come - shut down.

They collapsed atop of each other, his cock still in her mouth, her cunt still pressed against his lips...

..as the chemicals still in her blood stream, dormant on their own, mixed and remixed with the exchanged fluids.. and became active...

* * * * *

"Geez, Bill - I saw the rates in the office before we boarded!" Gary said, shaking his head. "Why the hell didn't we take a standard commercial carrier to London? It would have been a hell of a lot cheaper..."

The suited businessman looked round the cabin of the small airline's long-haul jet, with its huge, reclining seats and comfortable decor, seating a 'full' passenger list of a whole twelve business.. yes, business*men*, Gary noticed the all-male passenger complement with surprise. "...if not as comfortable..." He allowed.

"Just wit. Trust me - it's worth the price." Bill winked at his fellow businessman. "there's a good reason why this airline only books oceanic trips - for single businessmen."

"Single..?" Gary repeated, confused.

Just then, there was a crackle of static - and the voice of the pilot came over the intercom.

"This is Captain Roger Over. We are at our cruising altitude, and London lays ten hours away. Meanwhile, we have just crossed over the outer boundary of American Airspace, and are over international Waters. Please - enjoy your flight..."

Gary blinked at the odd message... just as the door at the front opened, and two stewardesses stepped into the main cabin.

Gary gasped. The two women could have been clones - they were absolutely identical in their dark- blue uniforms consisting of tight silk blouse and short, tight skirt, all atop six-inch stiletto-heel pumps.

If the uniforms (with the cute little 'pillbox' hats) wasn't enough, there were the identical bodies filling them out.

Each woman was tall and slender and toned - yet not in the least bit masculine. Indeed, they were almost overpoweringly feminine, with long, incredible legs, full, spectacular asses, and slender waists. Their faces were sensual and seductive, with identical full, sexy lips and cute, snub noses.

Each woman was also amazingly well endowed, bowling-ball sized tits straining at blouses that clearly revealed that the women weren't wearing bras.. and since the cabin was shirt-sleeve comfortable, wither the women had just finished icing their thick, long nipples, or they were incredibly aroused.

The women were identical - except for the fact that one was a sandy-haired blonde, the other a raven- haired temptress.

"Hi, I'm Teri..." The dark haired one said in a sensual voice.

"..and I'm Lucy..." the sandy-blonde said, in an identical, sensual contralto...

..and then, in stereo, "Would you like Coffee, tea... or me?"

Bill nudged Gary with a big, shit eating grin.. and Gary noticed that almost everybody in the plane was looking at him.

"We got a newbie here!" Bill announced, loudly.. and the two, incredible women angled sensuously back to him.

"Well then - a first timer always gets first service..." Teri said... "...and 'double trouble..." Lucy finished with an identical smile.

"They'll do anything you want - and I mean that literally." Bill told Gary, grinning. "Bu.. But..." Gary stammered.

The two, incredible women chorused: "We're over international water, sir - anything's legal..."

Bill could only stare, wide-eyed, still trying to get it through his head that he was about to have a sexual fantasy made reality.

"Why don't we..." The blonde started.

"...get you started?" The other finished - and then they kissed, big tits pressed together as they fondled each other's asses through the skirts...

...but they had come up to stand on either side of Gary's seat, so that his head was pressed between two sets of very feminine crotches. At the same instant, each woman yanked up the other's skirt... revealing that they weren't wearing underwear under the skirts.

Breaking the kiss, Lucy and Teri paused to share an identical, very personal smile as they felt the incredible power of 'the rush' settle into the new - and amazingly horny, sexy, sexual - feminine forms the mix had created out of them...

...and then they threw themselves into their work.

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: Rusty sifts through his grandfather's old attic and plays around with a computer-interface machine, mistakenly turning himself into an ideal woman. But when it's time to change back, the new "Randi" decides that being a nasty man is not for her.

Rusty Nail

By Gunslinger

Golden streamers of sunlight lit the enclosed, triangular space, filtering through the slatted wooden shutters that covered the small windows. Warped and cracked by age and neglect, the once-tight shutters had lost several wooden slats, creating random bars of sunlight that lit the attic in random squares and bars.

One of those streams of sunlight fell on the once-bright brass doorknob of the attic's small, narrow door, now tarnished with age. The door itself was dry and brittle, held together mainly by the newer coats of paint on the other side of the brittle barrier, long since covering the original dark green that had faded and peeled to near invisibility on the inside of the door. Never very sturdy to begin with, the century-old door looked ready to fall at the assault of an anemic squirrel.

Then, from the other side of the barrier, a voice rose to full pitch, crying out the ancient Samurai battle-cry: "Banzai...!"

The clatter of feet up the narrow stairs without echoed and rebounded off the enclosed stairwell as the voice's owner hurled himself up the stairs with all the power in his twenty-one-year-old legs, thrusting himself ever upwards, hurtling towards the door that blocked the top of the steep staircase...

The door shuddered, briefly, dust bursting from the cracks and dimples in it's surface, a gentle splintering sound torn from it's aged wood... as it stood firm against the assault.

From beyond the door came the unmistakable sounds of a human male tumbling down a steep, short flight of stairs, follows by an ignoble halt on the hard-wood floor at the bottom. After a two-second pause, the air in the attic was further disturbed - by a rather prolonged bout of cursing that quite often returned to the phrases 'fucking door' and 'damn attic'...

After quite some time, this tapered off into vague mumbling... then a much slower, somewhat syncopated rhythm of footsteps came up the stairs, followed by a prolonged assault on the door - with a large metal bar. One blow should have been enough, but it took several before the aged wood partition finally gave way enough to be pushed open on it's rusty hinges, eliciting squeals of metallic protest.

Then the owner of the voice stepped into the room, and the sunlight streaming in the partially-shuttered windows illuminated him...

...what there was to illuminate.

The standard joke when referring to Russell Hale was 'if he turned sideways, he'd disappear'. Coming a close second was 'If he stood on a sewer grate, he'd fall through'. Though exaggerations, they weren't by much. At five-eleven, the twenty-one year old man was most decidedly 'underweight', though he wasn't unhealthy or starved - he was just naturally skinny. So much so, it was nearly frightening.

Like his very fine bone structure, the young man's hair - a coppery mop of gleaming orange that, for some reason, people called 'red' - was a 'gift' from his mother. Given the color of his hair and his first name, it was almost inevitable that 'Russell' became 'Rusty', almost before young Hale was old enough to speak. There were times when Rusty was hard-pressed to remember his 'right' name for legal documents, so used was he to the nick-name.

He'd always been remarkably skinny, his fine-boned frame coupled with narrow shoulders and hips as well as a small ribcage. Doctors had been concerned at how slender he'd been as a baby, even with the usual amounts of 'baby fat' - but despite his gangly appearance, Rusty had been healthy, and had grown up every bit as healthy... if not terribly 'strong'. Building musculature just didn't seem to be part of his genes.

Then he'd hit puberty, and had suddenly shot up in height - but hadn't filled out appreciable. Some women would look at his delicate hands and feet or nearly non-existent waist and sigh in wishful envy - but even the most anorexic girl didn't want his 'tent-peg'-like physique, which (despite being fine boned) wasn't really 'feminine', so much as 'gangly'. By the time he'd reached his full height, Rusty seemed to be nothing but joints and stretches, all awkward knees and elbows that seemed to want to stick way out from his skinny little body, which was, itself, nearly shapeless...

Given his last name, it was almost inevitable. By his seventeenth birthday, 'Rusty Nail' was practically his official name. More than once his parents had let that very moniker slip past their lips - but Rusty hadn't particularly minded. He'd be the first to admit that he bore a surprising resemblance to a lit cigarette...

Actually, his very unusual physique didn't bother him all that much, though he did regret the way it had cut into his social life during high- school. Though naturally cheerful and outgoing, as well as reasonably intelligent and witty, he hadn't had all that much luck getting dates - though the few girls he had gotten had tended to be fairly happy with his company, until peer pressure finally drove them in search of somebody a little more... well, a little more.

The other times his odd build bothered him was the times when raw muscle was called for - like the current situation.

His parents had won the state lottery - not the big 44-million jackpot, but a 'measly' 1.25 million... which, unlike the big jackpot, could - and was - paid in one lump-sum payment. His parents had promptly fulfilled their dreams, and had retired to the Bahamas... after leaving the 'family home' to Rusty, free and clear.

With the house legally his, Rusty was finally able to satisfy a very, very long-standing curiosity: The Attic.

"Okay, Attic - show me what you got..." Rusty dared the silent, enclosed space, hunching his head over to keep from banging into any rafters as he moved away from the door. "God knows, Grandpa spent enough time up here. I figure you got girlie mags hidden in you, somewhere, at the very least..."

The house had originally belonged to Rusty's maternal grandparents. Like a lot of young couples, Rusty's parents had lived for a time with the parents when money was tight, and Rusty had lived in this house for five years when he was young. One of his clearest memories was of Grandpa vanishing up to the attic - and the odd sounds young Rusty would hear from above while laying in his second-story bedroom. By the time they'd moved back into the house after his grandparents had left it to them, the attic door had been locked, with no key in sight... and Rusty's parent hadn't cared enough to have the door unlocked or dismantled to see inside.

Now that the house was his, though, Rusty was going to take a look... What he saw surprised him.

He'd never been sure what his grandfather did up here by himself, but some of it was pretty self-explanatory. The old, over-stuffed armchair with the table beside it holding a now-empty bottle of scotch and a dusty glass beside an ashtray bespoke hours of sipping good whiskey and smoking the Cuban cigars whose odor Rusty remembered so well from his youth. However, the fact that the chair was drawn up to a work bench was something of a mild surprise - though Rusty had known his grandfather had been a bit of an amateur electronics enthusiast, there" been a fully-equipped set-up in the garage that seemed to make this redundant.

A glance at the workbench was even more surprising.

Among the discarded chassis of a half-dozen projects that his Grandfather had been working on was a metal box. Sitting in the center of the table, near the chair, it drew the eye as an object of importance. Of a strangely dull, silver-white metal, the box was about a foot long, and about half that high and wide. It was also closed and locked... with a strange-looking lock that bore no obvious key-hole, but four oblong indentations that confused Rusty for a second before he made the connection: they looked like the indentations of a 'magnetic' lock. He'd seen a padlock that used a magnetic key, once: it couldn't be picked, and the key couldn't be copied, since it operated on a combination of positive and negative magnets of certain strengths to unlock the tumblers.

What Rusty couldn't figure out was what one of them was doing on this odd, metal box. Even if the technology was that old, it would have been very expensive... and, besides which, it was pretty damned obvious that his grandfather hadn't had the key.

A scattering of dulled drill-bits lay around the box, and there was a small indentation in the metal where Grandpa had tried to drill through the lock. Whatever the box was made of, it was pretty damned tough. Rusty counted at least two dozen dulled, useless drill-bits around the work surface, yet the effect of all that drilling had been little more than a dimple in the metal. It would take twenty years and a couple of hundred drill-bits to get through that lock...

...using late 1970's technology, at least. Hunched over, the skinny red-head eyed the box thoughtfully - then turned and headed down the stairs again, only to return a few minutes later, carrying a rechargeable cordless drill with him.

Clamped in the chuck was a carbide-diamond drill-bit, something unavailable to his grandfather.

Even with the diamond-tipped blade, it was remarkably slow going through the strange metal, leaving Rusty to wonder what, exactly, it was. Rather than curl up into malleable strips, the metal was ground into a fine dust that soon covered the front of his tank-top style undershirt and black swim trunks, glittering like tiny sequins as he leaned the slowly waning drill against the bulge of the magnetic lock, slowly grinding his way through the tough metal. He was beginning to wonder if his drill had enough charge left to do the job when, from inside the lock, there was a sudden 'crunch', followed by a hollow tingling as small, precision-crafted pieces of metal were forced out of alignment.

With growing curiosity, Rusty lay the drill aside, his long, slender fingers shivering with excitement as he righted the box and set it on the table. Though the lock was popped, the lid fit tightly to the rest of the box, and didn't move easily, especially since it was hard to get a grip on the smooth metal. Failing to budge the lid against the friction of it's own closure, rusty paused and began to rummage through the draws of the workbench.

In the first drawer he opened, he found another bottle of Scotch. Though not a hard alcohol drinker, usually, Rusty looked at the golden liquid in the bottle, then at the box on the bench. Prying out the cork of the bottle, he took a healthy swig of the liquid, grimacing slightly with eyes watering as the golden liquid burned a pleasant warmth in his throat and stomach. Setting the open bottle aside, he continued rummaging around until he found what he wanted - a pair of large 'C' clamps.

Also fishing out a couple of rubber stoppers, he used the rubber as 'friction padding' as he clamped one clamp on each section of the box, tightening them as far as he could. With the new 'handles' in place, he gripped a clamp in each hand, and pulled...

...with a soft squeal, the lid was pulled from the lower section, flopping open on the hidden interior pin-hinge and revealing the contents of the strong-box...

"What the hell...?" Rusty asked, aloud, as he reached into the box. The box was padded in a contoured shape, snugly holding the single object within.

At first glance, Rusty had thought it was some sort of electric shaver - a rounded rectangle, the odd, metallic-green object had a screen-like section at one end. A second look, and an old TV remote leapt to mind - yet the object was obviously neither of these.

The outer shell of the object felt strange to Rusty's hands - as if it were somehow both metal and plastic, all in one. It was about the size of a small pack of cigarettes, and the greenish-hued semi-metallic carapace was oddly sectioned, with a single inset button/pressure switch in the middle. At the far end was a sort of micro-screen, like on shavers or old remotes, yet it gleamed with an iridescent shine, and behind the screen seemed to be some sort of LED or diode - at least, that was the plastic-like section looked like to Rusty.

Orange brows furrowed on his slender forehead, Rusty idly brushed his unkempt mane of coppery hair back from his face as he turned the odd-looking device over in his hands.. then leaned forward, eyes widening as he caught sight of small, raised letters in the bottom. Holding the strange object higher and tilting it to catch the light, Rusty frowned as he struggled to make out the tiny letters...

©2157 GENTRONIX INC.

MADE IN LESSER CHINA

"No..." Rusty muttered, slowly lowering the device back to the work-bench, as if it were a jar of nitroglycerin. "It... It's just not possible..." Almost as if operating on instinct, he took another slug of scotch... and questioned his own statement.

"...is it?"

Gingerly, Rusty picked up the little device with his right hand, and grabbed the bottle of scotch with his left. With the air of a man lost in thought, he began to head for the stairs...

...and promptly whacked his head on a rafter, causing him to drop both the scotch and the odd device, the device clattered with an odd sound to the wooden floor, while the bottle landed on the old chair, rapidly filling the room with its pungent odor as the golden liquid gurgled out to be absorbed into the worn stuffing.

Cursing and holding his forehead with one hand, Rusty grabbed the bottle and slammed it back to the work-bench, about half empty, bending over, he grabbed the strange device tightly...

...and his grip was such that his gripping thumb fell square on the recessed button in the device. Also by random chance, the screen-like end of the device was pointing at Rusty as his thumb pressed the rubbery-feeling switch in the center...

Suddenly, Rusty released the object and stood straight up. This wasn't his idea - it was as if somebody had reached out and grabbed him with invisible hands, forcing him to stand straight up, legs and arms slightly spread, unable to move an inch...

...as the air in front of him wavered, then coalesced into a semi-transparent set of words.

LOADING BASE PARAMETERS

PLEASE STAND BY

(OPERATOR MAY DISABLE TO CANCEL)

Beneath these words were something any computer-user would recognize : A 'status bar', swiftly sliding from left to right.

It was some sort of computer-interfaced device, set up with some sort of holographic interface... and, apparently, it was designed for one person to use on another, and the way of turning it off was to push the on/off button again - something Rusty couldn't do.

Suddenly, he had no doubts at all about the date stamped on the casing. Though he had no idea how it could be, he'd somehow found a device from the future - and unwillingly activated it.

He felt his stomach clench up in fear even as the loading bar finished, and the words vanished to be replaced...

...with a holographic representation of himself, slowly rotating in mid-air in front of him, naked and semi-transparent. Above his rotating avatar was a 'title bar', with the words

'GENTRONIX FANTA-C-LUVR 4.01F'.

There was a 'bleep' sound - and red words appeared over the rotating Rusty-o-gram.

'MALE SUBJECT DETECTED.

PLEASE WAIT FOR TRANSGENDER BASEPLATE, OR CANCEL BY SHUT-DOWN.'

Horried, Rusty wanted to scream as the screen flashed the words for a couple of seconds... then suddenly 'flickered'...

...and the rotating image was no longer the same as Rusty. Instead, floating and slowly rotating was a female version of Rusty. Nearly identical, it was nevertheless obviously female - as if showing a twin sister Rusty didn't have. You could see Rusty in the ultra-skinny build and gangly, loose-jointed appearance, but she had small, conical breasts and a vagina, and there were hundreds of other subtle changes that made the over-all appearance most definitely feminine.

More words appeared, this time beside the rotating figure, which shunted off to the left.

BASE TRANSFORMATION APPEARANCE. IS THIS ACCEPTABLE? YES/NO

The device was some sort of computer-interface machine to create a man's ideal lover. Perhaps, in the future, this was a common thing: You'd find a willing partner (or maybe it was legal to use on an unwilling partner, who knew?) and transform them. From all appearances, it was equal-opportunity - there seemed to be a male version of the device available, too. However, the machine hadn't even - figuratively - 'blinked' at turning a man into a woman, and was now asking if this was the woman Rusty was to become.

Stunned, shocked and horrified, Rusty wished he had the power to shout, to tell the damned device that there was no-one operating it, no-one trying to use it...

..when it dawned on Rusty that the words on the holographic 'screen' were facing HIM, not some non-existent user. More than that - the commands had been worded to direct the person in the beam or whatever the device was projecting.

Staring at the screen, Rusty tried to reach out a hand...

His arms stayed exactly where they were... but Rusty was bemused to watch a holographic version of his arm rise from his real arms position, like a cartoon ghost departing a body as it extended, following mental commands that his real body couldn't respond too.

Reaching forward, he used the phantom hand to touch the 'NON' button... The device 'bleeped' again, and new words appeared.

SAVING ORIGINAL BODY TEMPLATE...

A 'save bar' popped up, asking for a file name. Since there was no keyboard, Rusty wondered how the hell to enter information, but couldn't figure it out. Thankfully, there was a name already in the window - 'default.orig.bdtf'

When Rusty pressed that 'Save' button, the device accepted it, switching to a second screen for 'Saving Transgender Baseplate', with the filename 'default.tran.bdtf'.

Hoping that the machine would now shut-down, Rusty was frustrated when a series of new menus appeared on-screen, obviously designed to allow the user to alter the body-type portrayed.

However frustrated he might be, Rusty wasn't nearly as afraid as he'd been before. This thing hadn't just gone ahead and transformed him into somebody's fantasy date, so he thought there was a good chance to get out of this before anything happened. Finding the menu 'open', he searched through a director until he found his original body file, and double-tapped it...

DEFAULT BODY NOT AVAILABLE UNTIL POST-TRANSFORMATION. PLEASE SELECT NEW FILE OR RE-INITIALIZE DEVICE TO RESTORE ORIGINAL PARAMETERS.

Wishing he could swear, Rusty canceled the 'open'. Obviously, the device wouldn't let the 'base' template be used until something had been changed...

...and this device would 'change' him from male to female.

Rusty tried to think. He was trapped, unable to move. He couldn't shut the machine down from here, nor could he get it to 'change' him into himself - it would only allow an actual change, one he definitely didn't want. Rusty briefly toyed with the idea of just waiting. Maybe the batteries would run out. Maybe it had a safety-switch if he had to urinate, or sleep, or if he was starving to death...

...but what if it didn't?

Rusty finally conceded the truth - he really didn't have a choice. He'd have to let the machine change him, then he'd have to re-initialize it and have it change him back. Otherwise, he could end up stuck here until the device was no longer 'futuristic'...

'If t'were done, best t'were done quickly...' Rusty thought, mentally cringing at the idea of becoming female... but not seeing any way out. Reaching out, he selected 'open' and hunted for that base 'female' body...

...which was now unavailable to him, according to the machine. Apparently, selecting 'no' had locked the base female form out of the options, with the ubiquitous - and useless - suggestion to 'reinitialize' to start over...

Cursing, Rusty 'clicked' a menu button, planning to make one simple change so that he could get this over with...

..and a three-dimension spray of screen scattered suddenly over the 'desktop' of the holographic projection, most of them labeled in short-forms that probably meant something to a regular user of the device - or somebody with the owners manual - and each screen had various sliders, buttons or choices, most of which meant absolutely nothing to Rusty.

He wanted to curse, to screen, to groan - to call tech support, actually. He just wanted to get out of this, quickly - but his original choice had apparently been 'modify all parameters', thus opening up this bewildering array of options.

It would take hours for him to figure his way through all the screen. When the selection was 'modify all parameters', the must have meant literally ALL - there were hundreds of sub-screens.

However, there were two 'option' buttons down at the bottom:

RANDOMIZE ALL

and

SEMI-RANDOM MODIFICATIONS TO BASEPLATE BASED ON PAST SELECTIONS

Looking at them, it wasn't hard to figure out. One of them would just pick random selections: Obviously, for somebody who wanted a bit of 'spice' to their perfect lover. The second was obviously designed to come from the original 'baseplate', but within certain criteria from past 'enhancements' made, so as to be somewhat random, but within the users 'type'.

Well, Rusty didn't really care what type of woman he became - he didn't want to be female at all, and planned to be one only for as long as it took to re-initialize the device and reset the parameters to the default. However, he felt queasy about picking something purely random... so he reached out, hesitantly, and pressed the 'semi-random' button...

The device 'bleeped', and all the sub-menus began to close.. as the rotating female version of Rusty began to change. By the time the last sub-menu had closed, a new image was rotating there.

It was still related to the original 'Female Rusty' - somewhat. She was still tall, and slender, and she had a mop of orange-red hair...

...but that was as far as it went.

The new woman slowly rotating on the display was no longer 'freakishly' skinny. Instead, she was pleasingly slender, with slim, boyish- yet feminine hips and a tiny waist. Her legs were incredible, long and toned and shapely, leading up to a cute-and-sexy ass that was firm and shapely, just this side of 'mind-blowing'. Nestled between her thighs was her vagina, now surrounded by a heart-shaped patch of short pubic hair.

Her face was sexy - in a decidedly 'cute/perky' way. She had the same bright blue eyes as the 'real' Rusty, but an even face with a sharp-bridged nose, high cheek bones, and remarkably full, sexy lips.

Rusty was a dyed-in-the-wool fan of the various incarnations of Star Trek, and the first reaction his mind gave to the sight of that face was that it looked like a mixture of 'Ezri Dax' and 'Lita' from DS9, with a bit of 'Kes' from Voyager thrown in.

In fact, that description suited most of her body, as well - except for the breasts. None of those women had anything even close to the staggering bust-line that the three-dimensional holographic 'woman' boasted, thrust defiantly from her slender rib-cage. They were huge and incredibly firm, like a pair of flesh-colored basketballs... except they weren't that 'artificially' spherical where they joined her chest, merging smoothly and almost 'naturally' to her comparatively tiny ribcage, despite the amazingly round, firm globes they filled out to.

Each one was tipped by a large, thick nipple.

They were the most enormous pair of tits Rusty had ever seen outside of the blonde in the movie 'Striptease'. The thought of having freakishly huge tits like that hanging off his chest made him shudder, and he almost reached out to hit the 'cancel' button...

...then thought about what he was doing. Did it really matter? Did he really want to try and work his way through parameter screens he didn't understand, just to give himself a more 'pleasing' female body - which he didn't want, anyway. He just had to be female until he could get reverted back to the 'default' setting - what did it matter what he looked like for those few minutes...?

Beside the rotating, ridiculously over-endowed 'woman' was a summary screen of other settings, all in short-hand forms that didn't make much sense to Rusty. He took a quick glance at a section of the slowly scrolling list...

□

| MAMDUCRESPENH(155%)
| MULTSENSLOCENH(203%)
| MEMSETLOAD-A (BASOR 1,3,5,6,8)
| MEMSETLOAD-A (ADVOR 2,5,8)
| MEMSETLOAD-B (BASAP 1,2,4,5,8)

□

...and so on. Obviously in some sort of alphabetic order, just the 'M' section was a few dozen lines long, and incomprehensible. He shuddered (mentally, of course) at the thought of trying to decipher them, much less pick new ones.

Just wanting to get this over with, Rusty reached out with his 'phantom arm' and hit the 'accept' icon...

..and wanted to scream when another screen popped up for 'Clothing and optional Accessories'.

He didn't care about any of this! He just wanted to get this... this nightmare!... over with, so he could get back to being himself, free and unrestrained.

Almost angrily, his phantom hand stabbed the 'Randomize All' option button, watching the screen flash. When it asked 'Display New Data (CLOTH/OPTACC)?' He punched 'no', then 'proceed'...

...and suddenly felt very... dreamy.

There was no other word for it. It was the way you felt on the edge of consciousness in a dream, knowing that stuff was going on, aware of what was happening, but unable to do anything about it, or become truly involved. He felt a sudden breeze as his clothing simply disintegrated, but he couldn't become concerned about the loss of his clothes, or worry about the cost of replacing them, or anything.

Likewise, when he felt mild pushing-and-pulling sensations in his body, the obvious signs of his body being reshaped to the specification chosen by the random setting, the fact that he couldn't move enough to watch himself wasn't worrisome, much less the fact that what he couldn't watch was himself becoming an outrageously endowed female. Even the knowledge that he was being made female, even temporarily, was sort of a 'Oh, yeah, I think I wasn't happy about this...' sort of non-emotional musing.

There was no way to measure time in this daze, but it couldn't have been all that long before the device finished it's job - the angle of sunlight from the windows hadn't changed all that much. However, that wasn't the first thing Randi thought about as the daze released her. No - because she'd been locked into position staring at the screen, her first thoughts concerned the words showing on the screen...

THANK YOU FOR USING GENTRONIX FANTA-C-LUVR 4.01F RECHARGING EMITTER FOR NEXT USAGE
ESTIMATED TIME TO RECHARGE: 25h 17m HAVE A NICE DAY

Then the screen shimmered - and vanished, the device as silent as when she'd first found it.

"A day...?" She asked, aloud, her sweet contralto containing shock and outrage. "I'm stuck in this body for a whole frippin' day? Holy Geraldo, that pisses me off so much I could null somebody!"

Resisting the urge to kick the Date-A-Linc, Randi grabbed the bottle of Scotch of the bench and stalked out of the attic, heels clicking on the Nu-Wud floor as she shimmied to the door and down the steps, enjoying the way her gracefully angry motions caused her wonderful tits to jiggle and sway within the tight confines of her Iridenim top, her sensory-enhanced Perm-Erect nipples sending bolts of pleasure to her neo-cortex as the smoothly rough fabric moved over them, almost like her swollen nipples were tiny cocks being massaged by the fabric - which, as she had good cause to know, was a good feeling. Oh, it wasn't nearly as strong as the sensations she'd gotten from jacking off, but...

The juxtaposition of old and new thoughts slammed together and stopped her dead in her tracks.

"What the frip...?" She started... then shook her head, as if trying to clear it. "I mean - fuck. What the fuck am I thinking...?"

It was like an icy blast up her spine - even in the midst of being royally pissed off at being trapped in a female body for twenty-five hours, she hadn't noticed the fact that.. well, somehow, that she was 'thinking' female. Even though she knew she was 'really' male, her mind was.. was doing something to make it seem as if this was somehow natural, as if she were really female, and... "Oh, shit...!" She said, eyes going wide in horror. "I've been frippin' mind-written... uh, brain-washed!"

It made her shudder in disgusted horror - it hadn't occurred to her that the Date-A-Linc would also alter her mind, as well as body - yet, in hindsight, it was obvious that changed thoughts - and, from the fact she was walking 'naturally' on heels, skills - would be an integral part of making an ideal lover...

Worst of all.. these 'new' thoughts and perspectives felt 'right at home' in her mind. It was as if she couldn't see the difference between the 'real' and 'changed' thoughts in her head, other than directly comparing them to her apparently unaltered memories... and even then, identifying them didn't necessarily negate them. She was aware of herself mentally identifying herself in the feminine, as if it were completely 'right' to do so, and even the fact that she knew that she'd been male just a few minutes before, and didn't want to be female at all, didn't dim in the least the mental 'who am I?' that insisted that she was, indeed, female...

...which, of course, was technically true at the moment, something that didn't make her any more comfortable with the situation. Again, in hindsight, it was obvious that the 'transgender' setting would make the transformed feel 'comfortable' and 'natural' in the new, female body. After all, the device obviously wasn't designed so much with the person being changed in mind as satisfying the supposed 'user'.

Stunned and horrified by the fact that her mind was changed - something more 'sinister' than just being physically female, somehow - Randi spun easily atop her heels and ran down the hall to the master bedroom, where a full-length mirror was located, now consciously aware of the way her new body felt as she moved, of the smooth, graceful flow of muscles, of the way her huge, glorious... freakish!... tits felt as they were affected by gravity and inertia, the way her silky-smooth hair brushed the nape of her neck and then ruffled in the motion-induced breeze... all these, and a thousand more sensations, some subtly different, some all new, registering on her mind as she hurried to see the complete changes (the visible ones at least) made to her by the Date-A-Linc.

At the first sight of her new reflection, two simultaneous - and diametrically opposed - thoughts ran through Randi's head; 'I'm the woman in the hologram/I'm completely different than the woman in the hologram'

The first was a 'logical' thought, from intellect, and absolutely true... yet it was warring with the 'emotional' response, which seemed to contradict it.

She was, indeed, the woman in the hologram... except she was now fully clothed.

Her slender, dainty feet were enclosed by a pair of silver pumps with a two-inch clear plastic platform and nine-inch stiletto heels... except that wasn't exactly right. The shoes weren't 'silver' in the way of today's shoes, but actually perfect mirror-finished, reflective and smooth. The platforms and heels weren't plastic, either, but barely-visible... something clear. It was more the mild distortion of light that made them visible, rather than their actual presence. In dim lighting, she'd seem to be tip-toeing three inches above the floor, with only the soft 'click' of her heels to give away the illusion.

He long, shapely legs were bare - and unbelievably smooth, as if all hair had been surgically removed, never to return. They disappeared under the hem of her.. her 'skirt', part of the unusual 'dress' she wore.. and it looked damned good on her, too...

The dress looked like faded denim.. except that the somewhat 'rough' texture seemed coated in fine layer of iridescent coating that picked up the light and caused silvery gleams and shimmers to caress her curves. The garment fit tightly to her body, and was cut in an unusual - but very pleasing - style.

Like the 'skirt' portion, which was.. well, lopsided was accurate, but not fair. There was nothing ugly or accidental about the gentle sine curve in the skirt that made it a micro-mini on her right leg, curving down to a sort of mild double-curve on her outer left thigh, the middle part just covering her panties.

The dress clung tight to her waist, helped by what seemed to be a silver 'chin-mail' belt. The upper portion of the dress was also 'lopsided' covering her right shoulder but plunging down in a double-V past her breast, the second point just covering her thick, engorged nipple on the left side before plunging on down almost to her waist on that side, and leaving much of her back bare. Of her left breast, the 'V' shape covered her nipple and rose upward into a spaghetti strap, the bottom portion flaring to the middle and leaving three-quarters of her breast bare. Her right breast was about one-quarter uncovered, with the double-point style displaying an amazing amount of cleavage...

...and all of this is where that odd 'doubling' came into play - because it was the same pair of 'freakish' tits as in the hologram, the same ridiculously over-endowed body... yet her initial reaction to the sight of her new body was disgust or dismay or even ridicule, but pride and joy. Though she clearly remembered what she'd thought of this body, as Rusty, as Randi she thought she looked perfect, spectacular, sexy...

No - it wasn't what she 'thought'. It was what she 'felt'. One was an intellectual reaction to a remembered viewpoint, the other one was an emotional reaction.

In addition to the dress and shoes, Randi was fully made up, with hot-pink lipstick, faint blue eye-shadow, mascara, and a hint of blush. Mirrored jewelry accented her at wrists, neck and lobes, and her hair was causally but attractively styled, the coppery curls more 'true' red than her original shade, and hanging longer down the back of her neck.

Though she 'knew' she hated this body, 'knew' she hated wearing heels and being made-up and styled and bejeweled... she 'felt' fantastic, proud, sexy and 'feeling' had more direct impact than 'knowing' which made her shudder in fear and horror at what had been done to her mind to make her 'like' the reflection she saw.

She knew she wanted to be male - but the thought made her feel ill and unhappy, the thought of trading in this 'perfect' body for her ugly, ungainly male one emotionally unpleasant to her, despite her intellectual certainty that it was what she wanted to do.

It was a difficult thing to wrap her head and her heart around. It was like she was divided - what she knew, intellectually, to be true wasn't the same as what she felt, and what she was, at least for now, felt more real to her than what she had been, and intellectually knew she wanted to be again.

"Damn - this is gonna be weird. " She muttered to herself, turning this way and that to survey her beautifully endowed, wonderful body,

'enjoying' the sight of herself even as she knew that she shouldn't be.

Walking away from the mirror, Randi lifted the bottle of Scotch to her lips and took a sip, feeling it's warmth slide down her throat and ignite a pleasant fire in her belly. It, at least, was a reliable way-point in this odd situation, something she could count on to be the same even if she couldn't trust her own emotional responses and mental outlook in this situation, since both of them 'agreed' that everything was Jim-Dandy, all systems go, everything A-OK.

In fact, if not for her memories to pint of when her mind was 'veering', she wouldn't even realize anything was wrong. Her 'altered' thoughts felt as natural and real to her as her 'own' thoughts, and she'd have to watch very carefully to ensure that she didn't respond to these 'edited' thoughts. The fact that she'd slipped into feeling feminine so comfortably and easily frightened her as much - or more - then the fact she was now physically female. In twenty-five hours or so, she'd be able to correct the physical part - but she'd have the memories of what she did while female for the rest of her life, and she had to be careful not to screw herself up mentally before getting her (ugh) male body back...

Thinking of which - she had a day before she could go ahead and get that scrawny, funny-looking body back. What the hell was she going to do with herself until then?

She frowned slightly as she considered, swaying gracefully atop her heels as she sensuously glided into the living room and lowered herself onto the couch. Placing the bottle of Scotch to her full, sexy lips, Randi took a slug of the amber liquor as her mind turned the problem over. Taking another swig from the bottle, she lay it aside and leaned back on the couch, closing her eyes and trying to picture a day's worth of diversion, something to do with herself for the next twenty-four hours and some-odd hours...

Usually, she'd read or watch TV to pass the time, but she didn't feel like doing that today, she thought to herself as she ran her fingers along the StixTite seams on the dress. Likewise, she didn't really want to fiddle around with any of the electronics in the garage - it just didn't seem to interest her.

Pushing the Iridenim further apart, she moaned softly, almost idly as she continued to list - and discard - ideas of how to spend the next day, being careful not to scratch the delicate flesh of her breasts as she tugged and squeezed her huge, super-sensitive nipples, her body undulating in pleasure as her right hand began to journey southward while her left expanded it's work to include the wonderful, silky-smooth flesh of her wondrously full, firm and delightfully massive tits.

She lightly bit down on her full, sexy lower lip as her finger slid into her hot, wet cunt and began to stroke her clit, starting slowly but quickly accelerating as her body began to twitch with the intense pleasure generated by her hands working in concert, one at her crotch and the other at her chest. Maybe that's what she should do, she thought to herself as she joyfully masturbated on the couch, legs splayed wide, a look of ecstasy on her face as she moaned softly, hands working frantically towards orgasm. Maybe she should go dildo shopping - find a nice, big, hard dildo to ram deep into her cunt and bring herself off. It'd be even better than this felt, even though this felt fantastic and... and.. oh, god, she was...

"Ohhhh!" Randi cried out, her body shuddering as her orgasm thundered through her nerve endings. Her left hand unconsciously tightened on her tit, squeezing it tightly as the orgasm wracked her body, then easing off as the sharp, blinding pleasure of the orgasm tapered off into the golden afterglow. Sighing, she went limp, finger still buried in her sopping wet cunt as she considered her idea.

Masturbating was great, and a dildo would be even better - but pleasuring herself was second rate compared to what she could do with a guy or two, especially if they had the kind of long, thick cock she loved best and..

"Holy shit!" Randi shouted, eyes flying wide as she sat bolt upright in shock, yanking her finger out of her pussy and staring down at it.

She couldn't believe what had just happened - she just gotten herself off, naturally and easily, enjoying every second of it - and without even thinking about what she was doing. At no point during the action had she felt weird or 'out of place'. The fact that she was a man in a woman's body hadn't seemed to occur to her as she'd naturally finger-fucked herself the way she loved to do and..

"No..!" She shouted to herself, wrenching her mind out of the feminine rut it seemed to want to drop into so easily. Why, if she wasn't carefully she'd actually find herself thinking about fucking men, the way she'd been doing a few second ago, practically salivating over the thought of finding a couple of guys to...

She paled and bent over as the world seemed to fade into a gray mist, her head swimming as shock nearly overwhelmed her at the realization that, after fingering herself, she had indeed been thinking about having sex with men - and not even consciously noticed it. It had felt completely right and natural to imagine herself finding a handsome young man, somebody toned and athletic, somebody with stamina - and a good-sized cock. A guy she could pleasure for hours on end, wrapping her long legs around his body as they fucked each other and....

She groaned, shaking her head and yanking her hand away from her crotch, where it had begun to creep while she'd visualized herself having sex.

"Oh, God - keep calm. " She muttered to herself, taking several deep breaths and struggling not to panic.

It wasn't easy. The more she tried not to think about sex, the more she was keeping it in the forefront of her mind - as the thing she was trying not to think about - and the thoughts were triggering 'pleasant' emotional responses that slipped into her mind so easily that she barely noticed them there until she did a self-check. and realized she was thinking happily about fucking men. It was a vicious cycle, one that was making her feel sick - and excited. One that scared and aroused her and the harder she tried to break it, the more she thought about the 'forbidden' subject. It was like a mental quicksand - the harder she struggled, the faster she sank.

Shocked, stunned and confused, Randi quickly readjusted her clothing, covering up her luscious female body, the one that just cried out to be touched and fondled by the strong hands of a man and...

Taking a deep breath, she yanked her mind off that train of thought and rose from the couch, unconsciously smoothing the Iridenim fabric down over her body as she swayed sensuously away from the couch - and because she was struggling to pay attention to what she was doing and thinking, so as not to 'unthinkingly' fall into any traps, she was so very aware of the smoothly sensuous way she was moving. It was almost as if she were dancing rather than walking, her motions were so smooth and graceful.

With every step she took, she was lifting one foot and placing it directly in front of the other. As she did so, she was shifting her way smoothly, causing her hip to swivel forward and dip on the side that was taking the step - while she subtly but noticeably 'rolled' the other shoulder, emphasizing the smooth line of her spine from phenomenal ass to smoothly rounded shoulder - and causing her deliciously huge breasts to move so very enticingly.

Realizing just how seductively she was walking atop the 'invisible' heels, Randi tried to 'tone down' her sensual, provocative stride...

...and stumbled, nearly falling over as her movements became awkward and uncoordinated. She had no real 'skills' in walking in high- heels, except for the 'natural' ones implanted in her altered mind. When she consciously tried to control how she walked, bypassing those skills, she was just as inexperienced as anybody else on high heels for the first time.

Well, she thought to herself almost viscosly, there was a way to solve that problem.

Swaying back to the couch, she sat down and almost angrily yanked the shoes from her feet. Putting them down on the couch, she rose and started to walk away - and found herself moving with a completely different - but still sensual - stride. This times, she was almost bouncing with each step she took, arms held slightly away from her body and swaying in an almost circular pattern.

However, by concentrating on it, she could force herself to walk with a somewhat more masculine walk, though it was difficult - having to concentrate ion every movement she was using while she walked was sort of like trying to stay balanced atop a high-wire, her 'instinctive' actions useless as they'd been supplanted by the feminine skills.

She headed for the kitchen, deciding that part of her problem was the Scotch - booze wouldn't help the situation at all. Coffee, on the other hand...

She was almost to the kitchen, walking with a considered stride that looked almost patently false, when the doorbell rang.

Without even thinking about it, she changed direction and headed for the door. A bit of a loner, Randi didn't get very many visitors, and was always somewhat excited when the doorbell rang, so she hurried to the front door instinctively, slipping unnoticed into the sensual female 'barefoot' stride as she reached the door, slender hand reaching out to grasp the knob...

Being female felt 'natural' to her, even though she didn't want it too - which is why it didn't truly strike her until she already had the door open. Whoever was at the door was looking for the male version of her, not the female one - and, like yet another mental pitfall, she hadn't even consciously considered the fact she was different until she already had the door open, since being female felt 'right'...

"Oh - uh, hi. " The talking fire-hydrant outside the door seemed nonplused by Randi's appearance, his face screwed up in an effort to keep from staring at the display suddenly presented to him. especially since his eyes were just about level with an immense, firm pair of tits. "Is, um... uh... you know..., whashisname. "

He wasn't really a fire-hydrant, of course - but he closely resembled one. Short and broad-shouldered, Nick Camperanelli had a massively muscled body - but the muscular body of somebody genetically inclined to strength, rather than of body-building. His slab- sided muscles had almost no definition to them, making him seem to be one solid cylinder of muscle. Given his short stature and his shaven head, the 'fire hydrant' metaphor was one that came easily to people.

"..uh. Rusty! Is Rusty in?" Nick finally managed to get out the name.

'I'm Right here. ' Ran through Randi's mind - and she just managed to squash the response before it emerged. " No, he's away until tomorrow, Nick."

The short, muscular young man blinked. "Uh. have we met?"

Randi smiled, leaning forward slightly as she thought quickly to cover her blunder. "No - Rusty described you to me, and you're sort of hard to miss..."

"Oh.. Of course..." He said in an odd tone of voice.

She licked her lips, then pulled her eyes up to meet his. "Hi, I'm Randi. "

"Huh. ?" Nick squeaked.

"Randi - Rusty's cousin." She said, making it up as she went along. She was shivering slightly with delight at the way Nick was responding to her - first his eyes bulging when she'd leaned forward to better display her huge, succulent tits, and now the high-pitched voice as she'd introduced herself after staring hungrily at his rapidly bulging crotch. It felt wonderful to know she was getting him really, really horny for her, and...

She shook her head and gasped, stepping back from the door as the world swam around her as she realized what she'd just been doing. The world seemed to turn gray around her as the shock of realizing she'd just been coming on to her best friend threatened to overwhelm her...

"Whoa...!" Nick said, jumping forward and wrapping an arm around her waist to steady her...

* * * * *

When the huge-breasted red-head - Randi - started to sway, face going blank as her eyes rolled up, Nick acted on pure instinct, leaping forward to steady her.

It was a noble gesture. but the 'nobility' was somewhat marred by the fact that, given his height, wrapping one muscular arm around her waist caused him to bury his face into one enormous, firmly soft breast, feeling the fabric of her skimpy denim-like dress brushing against his skin as darkness descended due to the shadow cast by her massive mammary.

Holding her, face unintentionally buried against her massive breast, Nick felt her shudder - and he hurriedly leaned back, pulling his face from the warm, giving surface of her tit.

"Oh, Geez - I'm so sorry..." Nick said, feeling the heat of a deep blush flood his face...

"Why?" She asked, grinning seductively, her eyes bright and intense - yet, somehow, oddly blank. "Didn't you enjoy it?" "I... uh. " Nick stammered, caught off guard.

"Because I certainly did..." She cooed, licking her full lips seductively. Reaching her long, slender arms forward, she gently but firmly wrapped her hands around his head, long-nailed fingers delving into his curly dark hair - and then pulled his face forward, pressing it into the warm, dark cleavage of her massive tits, making a low moaning sound of pleasure as she did so.

Nick never claimed to be an expert at understanding women and all their body language - but her actions were far from subtle, and - being a real 'tit-hound' - Nick surrendered any semblance of rational thought and just went along with it, bringing his hands up to caress the half-clad breasts now surrounding his face. Even though his hands were fairly large for his size, there was no way they could each encompass one of her massive, firm tits - in fact, they were so huge that there was a real risk of him smothering ion her vast, warm cleavage.

If that were to happy, Nick could die a happy man A bit awkward, socially, he wasn't exactly a 'Ladies Man' - and here a woman who was practically his fantasy brought to life was acting just like... well, like one of his fantasies brought to life, actually. He was about as happy as he could imagine himself being. The only thing that could possibly be better was if...

Just then, her massive cleavage receded from his face, and he took a deep - and regretful - breath as his face was once more uncovered...

...and then she pulled him the rest of the way inside, shifting her weight to balance gracefully and sensuously on one high-heeled foot, using the other one to push the door shut behind him. Her face was wreathed in a heavy-lidded, sensuous grin, and her massive chest was rising and falling hypnotically.

"I want you to fuck me, Nick." She said in a husky, hungry voice. "Fuck me long and hard."

Nick shook his head, trying to clear it - for a second there, it had almost sounded like she said... then she made it clear that he'd heard correctly - by running her fingers down what seemed to be a sewn seam, which parted beneath her hand to fall open, displaying her bounteous body in all its glory, lightly slicked with a perspiration caused by the heat of her passion - a heat obvious in her damp, fragrant pussy, nestled in a tiny patch of flame-red pubic hair.

"Uh - okay..." Nick replied, numbly, not even realizing he was nodding violently, his head in real danger of popping off his neck and rolling around on the floor.

He might not have even noticed if it had - that wasn't the head he was thinking with. Indeed, his cock was so hard that it was almost painful - but a good sort of pain, if that was possible.

Then she turned, those massive orbs of perfection sliding from his view - but not completely, because even with her turned completely away, they were so huge he could see them protruding from her slender ribcage - plus the added bonus of getting to see her spectacular, firm ass.

She looked over her shoulder with a smoldering look that almost made Nick cum right then and there.

"Gee, Nick - what's with all the clothes...?" She asked in a falsely 'innocent' voice, dripping with lust - as she slowly walked away with a stride that made his already hard, throbbing cock harden even further, gliding, jiggling and hip-swaying towards the living room.

He followed after her with considerably less grace, fingers fumbling at his clothes. He hopped through the door way, nearly falling as he struggled to remove his pants without actually pausing first. By the time he was fully in the room, he was buck-naked, his average-sized cock thrust before him like a battering ram.

Randi was reclining in a consciously erotic pose on the couch - and average as his cock might be, the look she gave it made Nick feel like he had the most perfect organ on the face of the planet.

"If that's for me, lover boy..." Randi said, throatily, "...then bring it on - I'm so wet and ready for you, baby..."

"Oh, God..." Nick said in awe, not even hearing his own voice. Part of him was wondering if this was really happening, of if he'd gone off the deep end was imagining all of this, one of his fantasies made living, breathing reality...

...but either way, he just plain didn't care. Eagerly - comically - he hurried forward, eyes unsure of where to settle on her magnificent body, finally settling on her gravity - and imagination - defying globes of breast-flesh.

...and she reached out, arms welcoming him in a way that he'd only seen in his raunchiest fantasies.

He all-but-collapsed on her, one hand sliding around her delightfully slender waist, while the other reached out to cup one enormous tit, his face lowering to the same round, firm mass as his lips hungrily encased her large, thick - and fully erect - nipple.

She moaned and shuddered in obvious pleasure, his awkward touch obviously just what she wanted - needed - to feel. "Yes, Nick - yes!" She moaned. "God... that's what I want!"

Encouraged, Nick's movements became less self conscious. He didn't know how or why he'd suddenly found himself living out his fantasies - but he wasn't going to worry about it, not now. It was just too overwhelming, too... impossible... for anything like logic or worry to enter into it. No, this was a fantasy - and anything he did would be just right.

It was, too - even as he nuzzled her huge, firm tit with his face and fondled it with his hand, he used the other hand to reach around and squeeze one firm, rounded buttock - and she gasped and twitched in near-orgasmic ecstasy, obviously finding his style - or lack thereof exactly the ticket for what she was feeling.

"Yes, Nick..." She moaned, hungrily. "God - you're amazing..."

Nick's cock was hard and throbbing, painfully so - and though he wanted to continue fondling and touching her smooth, silky skin endlessly, he needed to ease the pressure, and soon. With no more foreplay - and no warning - he shifted himself, swinging one leg up on the couch...

...and, as if she could read his mind, she rolled on the couch below him, sliding one leg past his and up on the back of the squeaking, groaning furnishing, lifting the other high and outward, opening herself to him.

Bracing one hand on the edge of the couch beside her slender waist, the other on the back of the complaining couch, Nick positioned himself - and as he thrust himself eagerly forward, she wrapped the uplifted leg around his waist in an amazing display of agility that was only matched by her uncanny shift in position to allow him perfectly aligned access, his cock sliding smoothly into her wet cunt like a sword into its sheath. In the first instant, it seemed that his cock was too small to pleasure a woman like this - then he felt the silken, wet walls of her cunt close tightly around his cock, almost as if - impossibly! - her pussy had re-sized itself to be a perfect fit for his length and width.

Nick was operating on 'Fantasy Logic' - he didn't question anything as he began to drive hurriedly and awkwardly, barely rhythmically, into her cunt - and she thrashed and moaned as if in the height of ecstasy, urging him verbally and physically onward, gasping and moaning in pleasure.

"Yes, Nick - oh God, you're incredible...!" She gasped in a voice of erotic amazement. "Oh - this is the best I've ever.. oh, baby, harder!"

Nick had no trouble complying, increasing the power and speed of his thrusts, biological need as much as conscious desire driving his movements - and her matching them perfectly, as if aware of his every nerve-impulse and unconscious thought, increasing the power of his thrusts with a syncopated rhythm of her hips.

"Yes, Nick - yes!" Randi screamed, ecstatically, her body writhing and shaking. "Oh, God - I'm cumming! I'm cumming harder then I've ever Ohhhhhhh!"

Her words degenerated into a scream of the purest orgasmic ecstasy - as her cunt tightened around his hyper-stimulated cock. The extra friction on the thrust was enough to push him over the edge, and he added a hoarse shout to her warbling, musical scream of ecstasy as he stiffened and pumped his seed deep into her hot, wet - and incredibly talented - cunt.

As he did so, her warbling smoothed out into a crystal-clear high-note, vibrating through the room as she creamed out purest orgasmic pleasure, her body clenching over him - inside and out - as her arms wrapped around him and held him tight.

Her orgasm - the one he'd caused - seemed to last an eternity before subsiding, and then she slowly settled back onto the couch, her body relaxing one muscle at a time as a smile of pure satisfaction covered her face.

"Mmmm..." She moaned, low in her throat. "Lord, Nick - that was fantastic. "

"God... yeah..." Nick gasped, slumping against her massive tits with a satisfied sigh. "Holy shit, Randi. I can't believe I just had sex with somebody like... It's like a fantasy come true. "

"I know " Randi said, ruffling his hair. "I can't believe you were willing to have sex with me, either."

Nick's eyebrows rose in surprise. "That's not quite what I meant."

She giggled fetchingly. "What - me finding a muscular, handsome stud at my doorstep right when I needed him, and he's a tit-man to boot. you don't think that's a fantasy come true?"

"Nick blinked - then slowly grinned. "Well, I wasn't quite looking at it that way but now that you mention it, yeah. I guess it was as good for you as it was for me."

"If it wasn't as good for you as it was for me, then I hope I never satisfy you..." Randi laughed sensuously. "It'd kill me..." Nick blinked - then grinned.

"Excuse me..." She said, slowly and sensuously uncurling from beneath him, every available square inch of bare skin sliding against his in a choreographed movement of sensuality. "I'll be right back..."

Nick felt a sharp stab of disappointment. "You're leaving...?"

She smiled, hungrily. "Just giving you a bit of time to make some more sweet, tasty cum, baby..." She said, slowly and sensuously licking her lips. "So I can suck you off and swallow it down..."

Nick felt his sated, juice - slicked cock twitch at her comment - and she shot him another hungry smile as she left. Her heels 'click- clack'ed against the floor, fading as they left the room and started up the stairs...

She was gone maybe ten minutes - and when she returned, Nick was nearly ready for her... and what little stimulation he needed, she provided, kissing him hungrily, huge tits pressed against his body - then slowly working her way down, until her soft lips were wrapped around the shaft of his once-more hard cock...

* * * * *

The dark veil of sleep slowly parted...

...and Rusty stared up at the ceiling in confusion, brow furrowing. How'd he end up in his bedroom? The last thing he remembered was drilling out the lock of the box and finding the strange device that...

No - wait. The last thing she remembered was opening talking to Nick at the door, and him jumping forward to catch her, and then...

...no, wait - after he'd touched her, there'd been a sort of 'black-out', when her 'Rusty-Randi' mind had been shut-down to allow her programmed persona to...

In the space of a few seconds, three sets of 'persona' caught up with each other - the 'real' Rusty, the feminized 'Rusty-Randi' mix, and the purely fantasy-programmed 'Randi'. All three traded memories and information - and she remembered seducing her best friend, fucking his brains out - then coming back to suck him off - before fixing him dinner, then leading him upstairs for a night of passion...

'Coming back'... from going up to the attic - and erasing all the templates from the device, so that she'd never have to be that 'nasty' man again...

* * * * *

Nick was yanked from a sound sleep by the sound of a woman screaming in the most pure horror he'd ever hear - but by the time he was fully awake, Randi was showing no signs of distress.

"Wha... What was the screaming...?" He asked, frowning at her wide - eyed, almost brainless smile. "Screaming? Randi asked, stretching luxuriously - and sensuously. "What screaming?"

"Uh... I guess I was dreaming or something..." Nick muttered, his thoughts sliding to other matters as she reached for him...

...not knowing that the scream he wasn't even sure he'd heard would become a fixture in Randi's life as, each morning, she awoke as Rusty - only to remember what had happened, overloading her mind and forcing her back into pure 'Randi' mentality. Every day for the rest of her life...

...including the next several months, during which she'd be very busy trying to explain to the authorities who she was, and what had happened to 'Rusty'...

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

© 1997 - 2016 TGstories.

Search for ^13([a-z]) and replace it with a space and \1

Search for ^13([a-z]) and replace it with a space and \1

SUMMARY: When an employee gets into an old safe, he finds a harmless bottle which he drinks not knowing that the contents will both transform him and make him the object of people's sexual attention.

Safe

By Gunslinger

"Oh, m'aching back." Lou groaned.

Panting slightly from exertion, Jeff agreed with his employer - but only in the silence of his own mind.

On the 'scrawny' side, the twenty-two year old brunet might not be the manliest of men, physically - but Lou had a good twenty years on his employee, with more than a smattering of silver shooting through his neatly-trimmed beard and the temples of his black, slicked-back hair. There was no way on earth that Jeff was going to admit that 'the old man' was actually tougher and stronger than he was...

...even if it was true.

Leaning forward, Jeff tried very hard to look simply casual as he braced himself against the cool black metal side of the safe they'd just finished hauling in - when, in truth, he was using it to brace legs that felt watery from the effort of moving the ancient, extraordinarily heavy old safe. Under his dark-blue coveralls, Jeff's thin, (he thought of it as 'rangy'), body was slicked in sweat, and his short, almost bowl-cut mop of muddy brown hair hung limp and dank.

Lou, on the other hand, simply unzipped his worn denim work-jacket and slicked back the sweat from his receding hairline, and seemed to simply shake it off.

Truth be told, Lou was feeling it every bit as badly as Jeff was - that damned safe was a cast-iron bitch to move. Lou, however, had moved so many things in his thirty years as an estate-sale re-seller that he was used to it...

...and he'd be damned if he was going to show weakness in front of a 'mere boy' like Jeff.

"Okay..." Lou sighed, extracting the bill of sale and - damn it - the reading glasses he now had to wear to see the 'fine print' - say, anything smaller than a newspaper headline. He looked over list of items bought at the latest sale, and nodded. "That's everything."

'Thank God!' Jeff thought to himself.

"Okay, Boss." He said, aloud. "You want me to lock up tonight?"

Lou hesitated - and then decided, 'what the hell'. After a day like today, getting home a half-hour early and downing a cold beer or two would feel good.

"Okay, I guess I can trust you." Lou said, fishing the keys out of his pocket and tossing them across the four-foot metal cube of the safe. "Just remember, locking up means you got to get here early tomorrow to open."

"No problem, Boss." Jeff assured him, grabbing the keys - which, being a symbol of new authority, he handled with more deference than was really their due. He walked his boss to the door. "Don't worry - I got everything under control."

"I sure hope so." Lou said, having second thoughts - but the siren's song of that cold beer called, and he nodded once to his employee, then headed out towards his car in the fading light of sunset.

Jeff watched out the window of the shop as his boss climbed into his car and pulled away...

...and as soon as he was safely out of sight, Jeff leaned forward and ground loud, long and with great feeling.

Reaching behind him, he began to massage the badly strained muscles of his lower back. As he sighed softly in relief, he looked around the 'junk shop' still amazed after three months by the type of things you could buy up for next to nothing from people who died without any heirs.

From where he stood, he could see the shelves of stereos and TVs, most of it mid-to-late 70's vintage, with a few examples petering out up into the late 80's.

There was some furniture, almost all of it of the general style Jeff thought as 'old people furniture', and some lamps, both floor and desk models. Bric-a-brac galore sat on various end-tables, and on the rest of the shelves lay items ranging from souvenir spoons to complete sets of dishes, from some old country doctor's 'little black bag' to a pile of...

Jeff's eyes, idly wandering over the various items, snapped back - and he cocked his head thoughtfully. Mouth pursed, he walked over to the shelves, picked up the black bag, and looked inside.

Sure enough, right on top was an old-fashioned stethoscope. He looked at the stethoscope - then over to the safe.

Stethoscope.

Safe.

"What the hell?' He asked the empty air, rhetorically. "Why not?"

Pulling the stethoscope from the bag, he set the bag down and headed towards the safe in the middle of the shop floor - detouring just long enough to grab a seat cushion from one of the couches.

Dropping the cushion in front of the safe's door, he knelt on it, and examined the simple dial and handle mechanism of the safe.

Nobody knew the combination for the safe, except for the man who'd passed away - who, in the view of the lawyer who'd handled the disposal of the small estate, had been unlikely to have anything of particular value. Rather than pay for the rather expensive time of a professional locksmith, the lawyer had simply sold the safe off, passing that expense on to whoever bought it.

On the other hand, it was a very old safe, a hundred years old if it was a day - and Jeff had seen as many 'safe crackers' in movies as the next guy.

Placing the tips of the stethoscope into his ears, Jeff leaned forward and placed the bell of the device against the door, holding it there with his left hand as he reached out and slowly began turning the combination dial with his right.

Hearing nothing, he slowly began to move the stethoscope around the door as he continued turning the dial - and, sure enough, he found the 'sweet spot', where he could hear the soft clicking of the tumblers.

A sense of excitement rising, Jeff's eyes first narrowed, then closed completely as he focused more and more concentration on what he was doing, time fading into meaninglessness as he slowly spun the dial, listening to the soft click and, occasionally, equally soft metallic 'clanks' from the old mechanism within the safe door.

Working ever more slowly, he spun the dial gently to the left - and stopped, fingers barely touching the knob, when he heard the soft sound of the 'clank'.

Equally delicately, he rotated the dial to the right, until he heard the same sound again.

Once more to the left - and this time the sound was subtly different, somewhat more authoritative.

Leaning back, Jeff opened his eyes and looked at the safe door. For a long moment, heart pounding behind his narrow ribcage, he simply stared at the safe.

Finally, he reached out, took hold of the handle, and twisted.

With a heavy 'ka-chunk', the locks released, and the heavy, but well-oiled door swung open. Crowing with delight, Jeff leapt up and capered around the room, pumping a fist in the air.

"Man, I am goo-ood!" He told himself, grinning like a fool. He looked over at the open door of the safe - and his smile began to fade as he realized he'd been so intent on listening to the sounds, he hadn't bothered to look up and see what numbers the dial had been on each time.

"Oh, well - if I did it once, I can do it again." He assured himself, pissed off at the 'kill-joy' realization. With a sigh and a shrug of his narrow shoulders, he decided that, since he had the damned thing open anyway, he might as well take a look inside.

It was empty...

...or nearly so, at any rate.

There was but a single item in the Safe's interior - and one so out of place, that Jeff picked it up with a decidedly bemused expression.

"What the hell...?" Jeff asked, holding the item up to the light and looking at the mellow golden gleam of refraction. "Now why in the name of hell would anybody bother locking this into a safe?"

It was a bottle of scotch - and not even a 'real' bottle, but one of those little plastic bottles they gave you on airplanes. "Huh." Jeff grunted, looking at the single shot's-worth of amber fluid inside. "Well, hell - a reward for a job well done..." He twisted off the cap...

...and things might have turned out considerably different had he noticed that there was no resistance, no 'cracking/ripping' sound associated with the folded-in sections of the metal lid, designed as a seal, giving way.

However, Jeff failed to notice that the bottle wasn't sealed, and he simply tossed the cap aside and, holding his breath, downed the contents in one, quick shot...

...and then dropped the bottle to the floor and threw his hands up to his throat and began staggering around the room, gasping.

"What the hell was that?" He gasped, hoarsely, tears streaming from his eyes at the burning sensation assaulting his throat and stomach.

He had no idea what the hell had been in that bottle - but he was damned sure it wasn't scotch. It had a sharp, acidic taste that burned in many ways - not only the normal 'burn' of alcohol, though that was included, but also the 'burn' you usually associated with an incredibly spicy Mexican dish.

Worse, the 'burn' was spreading - seeming to seep out through his stomach lining and out into his body, a dull, throbbing warmth that seemed determined to suffuse his entire body. Sweat, began to pop out from his pores, and he awkwardly struggled out of his coveralls, leaving him in just his jeans and gray T-shirt as he trembled in the grip of a rising fever.

All things considered, Jeff decided it might be a damned good idea to seek some professional help. Atier all, he'd just downed some unknown liquid that seemed to be setting his body on fire...

Still gasping and wheezing, his very breath seeming to be coming through a wall of heated air, he grabbed the keys to the shop and threw on his jean jacket. That only made him feel even warmed, but all his stuff - keys, wallet, and various other sundry items - were kept in the pockets.

Staggering now, he leti the shop without bothering to turn out the lights, and only barely remembering to lock the door.

Sweat was now rolling out of his hairline and down his face, and he had to keep swiping it from his eyes as he staggered towards his car. He was beginning to tremble, and his stomach was expanding and contracting in slow, steady wave of nausea, with the occasional sharp jolt of pain that would leave him bent almost double, hands clasped to his gut.

All in all, he could well be forgiven for being in a rising state of panic as he made it to his fire-engine red station-wagon and fumbled with numb fingers for the key. Had he been thinking straight, he might have gone back into the shop and called an ambulance, but his panicked mind had focused on the thought of 'getting himself' to the hospital, and that's about all he was thinking of as he finally managed to get into the car and get it started.

It was remarkable that he wasn't stopped by any cops during the fiteen-minute eternity it took him to get to the nearby hospital.

His vision was starting to blur, and quite otien separated into two, equally indistinct images. Sweat now poured off his body in what seemed to be gallons, and his stomach was cramping so badly that it was hard to remain sitting, even hunched over the wheel as he was. The car swung back and forth in the lanes of traffic as his arms trembled with uncontrolled spasms, and he twitched and jerked in his seat.

Somehow, he managed to pull into the hospital's emergency entrance turnoff, the wheels bumping over the curb as he ended up off- kilter in the ambulance bay. Not bothering to shut off the engine, he opened the door - and spilled out onto the pavement.

On his hands and knees, he stared down at his hands in horror.

They were writhing - the actual flesh rippling and stretching like the surface of a storm-tossed ocean. The motion was causing the hairs to pop free of their pores and fall to the ground.

In his mouth, his tongue was flexing and writhing, and his eyeballs felt ready to just pop right out of their sockets. Every cell of soti tissue in his body felt as if it were on fire, and all his joints felt as if they were cursed with severe arthritis. Even as he watched, hanks of hair fell from his writhing scalp and dritied to the ground.

He was in absolutely no condition to cross the infinite distance of the few scant feet that separated him from the hospital doors.

Thankfully, one of the doctors, a pretty blonde wearing the traditional white coat over black slacks and blouse, had stepped out for a fresh breath of air. One look at the writhing flesh on the pale face of the person she could determine only with difficulty was a young man, and she whirled towards the doors and began screaming for a gurney.

With the speedy efficiency of much-rehearsed movements, two orderlies burst through the doors with a gurney, and soon he tied his thrashing body atop it and wheeled him into the hospital. Even as doctors and nurses surrounded him, the orderlies were grabbing soti restraints - leather cuffs for his wrists and ankles. After strapping him onto the gurney with those, they reached for the 'belly band'

- but one of the doctors, a silver-haired man, had lightly touched his sweat-slicked forehead, and he put out a hand to stop them.

"Not yet." The doctor ordered, as they wheeled him toward and ER. "He's burning up. We need to get these clothes off of him."

Barely had the gurney stopped moving when two nurses were attacking his clothing with scissors, cutting it off of his writhing body with care. One of the nurses was female, as was the blonde doctor still standing opposite her older colleague beside the gurney, but any sense of modesty Jeff might have had was lost in the fear and pain of the moment.

Soon, his clothes had been cut and peeled back, leaving his naked body exposed - and the blonde doctor gasped, one hand flying to her mouth.

"Good Lord!" The older doctor exclaimed, staring. "It's impossible, but... this man looks as if he's undergoing some sort of... of spontaneous gender reversal!"

Jeff must have misheard the doctor - or, at least, misconstrued what he'd heard. There was no way the doctor could possibly have meant what he seemed to mean...

...except that desperate delusion was quickly smashed by the reaction of one of the orderlies who'd wheeled him in. A sharp-featured Latino with normally dusky skin, he was nearly as white as the new-fallen snow as he stared down at Jeff's naked, writhing body and quickly crossed himself, Catholic-style.

"Madre a dios!" The orderly gasped. "He's turning into a chica!"

On the top-ten list of things Jeff never wanted to hear, that one ranked Number Two.

Number One was the male doctor's response to the blonde's awe-and-shock ridden question as to what they should do.

"I have no god-damn idea." The doctor replied in self-angered frustration, staring in something very near disbelief at the patient who's painfully obvious 'condition' completely shattered his preconceived notions of medicine. Even as he watched, the man's penis and scrotum, barely recognizable as such, continued it's slow, herky-jerky 'shrinking' act, the cells seeming to be absorbed back into his body - even as two lop-sided and badly misshapen lumps, nevertheless identifiable due to their position on his chest, continued to swell.

After a moment, the doctor shook it over, and began to bark out crisp, clear orders - but orders that were 'maintenance', not treatment, for he hadn't the faintest idea how to treat what he was seeing. He had to settle for working on trying to keep the not-quite- man's temperature to a safe level, while supplying him with medication for the obvious agony he was in.

The medication helped dull the pain - and it also helped dull his emotions, too, something Jeff wasn't sure if he was grateful for, because, with some of the pain placed at a distance by the morphine derivative, he was capable of understanding fully what was happening to him, to hear and comprehend the medical staff's comments to one another as his body continued to change...

...and a part of him wanted very much to be able to feel the full horror that was demanded by the intellectual knowledge that he was, somehow and however impossibly, turning into a woman.

Over the next two hours, he got to contemplate his fate in horrifying detail.

Photos of his 'impossible' transformation were taken at regular intervals, and it seemed as if every member of the hospital's staff, right down to the janitors, showed up at one point or another to see if the incredible rumors could possibly be true - or, more honestly, to completely document the facts of something medical science said shouldn't be happening.

Through it all, his constant companions were the older male doctor and the attractive blonde - Doctors Smythe and Jonah, from what Jeff gathered. As he writhed on the bed, unable to make any sound other than incoherent grunts, he got to hear the details of his transformation in explicit clinical detail.

How his soti-tissue cells, especially that of his primary and secondary sexual characteristics, were being re-absorbed into his body, to be re-grown as the newly-defined female form. How the bone mass of his skeletal structure was diminishing, the excess material being 'dumped' as extremely rapid hair and nail growth. How every aspect of his body was in a state of flux, trending steadily and undeniably towards the feminine equivalent.

They took blood samples at regular intervals, too - and the results seemed 'interesting' to the physicians - and horrifying to Jeff.

The fact that what he was turning into wasn't a 'real' woman was little consolation to him. The news that his genetic markers would still be the XY of a male paled into insignificance next to the steady reports about the 'ingenious' and 'remarkable' ways his body was adapting to present the simulation of femininity. The way his glands had stopped producing the regular mix of male hormones, and had instead begun producing a previously unseen hormone mix that, while unique, was quite close in overall effect to that of a woman's system - most specifically, that of a young woman undergoing puberty, though there were some differences, the most obvious of which was the increased volume as Jeff's body covered the entire gender spectrum in the course of a couple of hours.

As the transformation neared it's completion, the doctors could finally declare with authority that Jeff's new 'pseudo-womb' was, in fact, non-functioning... but that his new vaginal equivalent was. They also seemed quite intrigued by the new breasts Jeff had yet to see, finding them so 'remarkable' in so many ways - and remarking on them in graphic detail.

Apparently, the cells making up his new - and unwanted - bust-line were not the regular 'fat' cells, but something new, exhibiting some of the characteristics of both muscle and fat cells, resulting in breasts that were remarkably firm and resilient. The distribution and proliferation of nerve and sense receptors was also much discussed, as was the unusual 'milk glands' and 'ducts' - which weren't quite like anything they'd ever seen before.

Interesting, perhaps, from a clinical point of view - but not nearly so to Jeff.

Much less the oti-repeated comments on the size, shape and mass of his new bust-line... or one of the orderly's considerably less clinical outburst of: 'Look't those tits!'

All in all, by the time the transition to a new gender completed itself, the initial shock and horror had somewhat worn off, meaning that what bothered Jeff most immediately was not the horrifying long-term knowledge of his most-obviously irreversible transformation - it was not being able to see what all the fuss was about...

...no matter how much he might not want to see whatever it was being applicable to himself.

Worse - herself... for, by this point, everybody involved had ended up referring to Jeff in the feminine gender. 'She' this and 'her' that - and in direct reference to somebody who had always been very happy with 'him' and 'his', thank you very much.

All of this was, in itself, bad enough - humiliating, even frightening, and in it's own way, horrifying.

'He' was female - or at least a 'reasonable hand-drawn facsimile' of one. The world would see her as a woman, treat her as a woman. Jef had been unmanned - in the most literal sense of the world, even the vestiges of manliness taken from her, something even the most pathetic eunuch would have been spared.

So, it was with a completely understandable mix of anxiety, anger and apprehension that the unwillingly feminine Jeff, now that the spasms had passed and the transformation was over, let Dr. Jonah and Dr. Smythe slowly help her into a sitting position, while a large mirror was wheeled in.

"Oh... My... God..." She gasped, hearing her soti, musical new voice, but barely responding to it's melodic new tones as she stared at her new form in complete and utter shock.

She was tiny. She was sexy. She was delicate. She was busty.

She was elfin.

She was. gorgeous.

"That's. me?" She squeaked in that rich, musical new voice, unable to believe this vision of femininity in the mirror could possibly, in any way at all, be related to who she was 'inside'. It was not only not who she had always been, nor even what she'd never wanted to be - but the type of woman she could never imagine ever being in her life for any reason, even anything as so mundane as passing her on the street. Though women like this might exist in 'real life' outside of film and magazine, you never ran into them, not normal people like Jeff...

...and now she was one.

Jeff's first thought upon seeing her new body was that she could probably claim to be an illegitimate love-child, half-sister to Allyssa Milano on one side, and Jennifer Love Hewitt on the other - and nobody would even think to question the outrageous statement.

She had 'that look'.

She was gracefully slender and delicate, and her now-long head of silky brown hair fell down around a face that tapered to a slender chin and boasted big, brown 'doe eyes' framed with long, dark lashes.

There came a short period of near-hysterics as the inevitable truth hit home - that she was now, and forever more, female. It passed relatively quickly, however, given that she'd had two hours and more to 'see it coming' - and the medical staff, including two psychiatrists, helped her move past 'hysterics', even if she wasn't anywhere close to 'acceptance'.

She was, however, able to cooperate, however grudgingly and shell-shocked, as they went ahead and took measurements of her new body 'for the record'.

It turned out that she was now all of 4'10" tall - a total loss of height from his old size of almost exactly a foot. She now weighed a scant ninety pounds.

The tale of the tape was informative.

They had her stand with her feet together, and they measured around the widest part of her new hips - while she was painfully aware of her naked body as the man measured it.

Not because she was a 'naked woman' in front of a man - but because the man wasn't faced with a cock 'getting in the way'. No, there was only the smooth, slightly mounded crotch of a woman, making it 'easy' for him - and damned hard, emotionally, for her.

After announcing to the on-looking staff the measurement of thirty-three inches, the man slid the soti cloth tape higher and drew it snug around her waist... and Jeff quailed at the soti sighs of envy that came from some of the women as it was revealed that she could 'boast' of a mere twenty-inch waist.

Next came the dual measurement, one around her new ribcage just under her breasts, and the other around the center of her breasts.

The 'under' measurement was twenty-five inches, the 'over', thirty-one.

As one woman took great pains to explain to Jeff, this was converted into a bra-size measurement quite 'easily'. You just added five inches to the smaller number - in Jeff's case, coming out to 30 - and then subtracted that from the higher number to produce your cup-size.

To her great consternation, the new woman discovered she'd now fit into a 30-DDD brassiere...

...and to her even greater dismay was the fact, also made quite - and enviously - clear by the same woman, that Jeff didn't need one.

Not with her large, 'perfect' breasts riding so full and so proud on her slender ribcage, their unique cellular construction making the domed breasts not only 'firm'... but downright perky.

It was about at this stage in the measurements of the shell-shocked new woman's body that the last, final 'joke' played on her came out in the open...

One of those new 'hormones' present in her blood - in all her bodily fluids - was chemically similar to the drug with the street name 'Ecstasy'. Ever since her body had begun producing it, it had also been expelling it, in low 'doses', along with perspiration, as well with every breaths he had exhaled - and it had been slowly affecting everybody around her, unbeknownst by all.

If Jeff had known, she could have caught some early signs of it - like the two doctors helping her sit up. In 'normal' circumstances, they would have at least had her try to sit up on her own, to see if her muscular coordination had been effected. Jeff, however, hadn't realized her 'aura' had already begun to affect them. Aside from a then-fairly-faint sense of euphoria in her presence, there was also a false sense of intimacy with her, and so rather than a 'mere' patient, they had been treating her as they would a friend.

It had gone considerably further than that since, though Jeff hadn't realized it. She'd put down the growing symptoms of all the people around her as 'helpfulness', as they seemed increasingly caring about her, her moods, and her needs.

It reached critical mass, however, when, while 'examining' her, Dr. Jonah cupped Jeff's breast in a manner that was anything but merely professional.

"Gorgeous." The attractive blonde murmured, smiling at the new woman. "I can hardly wait until these damned tests are out of the way and I can really enjoy your new body."

It was said so casually that it took a second for Jeff to fully register the comment's implications - and in that shocked second, Dr. Smythe jumped into the fray.

"Come now, Helen." He said, in a good-natured tone. "She hasn't said who she's going to bed with first. It's quite possible you'll have to wait until after she and I have enjoyed each other."

"Jus' keep in mind you two might be last on her list." The Hispanic orderly said, turning to bestow a gleaming smile on the shocked new woman, one of his hands going down to lightly rub the noticeable bulge in his pants. "If you'd been payin' attention, you would know she's dyin' to wrap this cute new lips o' hers around my man-meat. Ain't that right, honey?"

"What...?" Jeff screeched, staring at the oh-so-casual people smiling warmly in her direction. "What the hell are you talking about? I'm not having sex with anybody! I don't even want this body, much less to use it, you know... sexually!"

A moment's silence...

...and everybody began to chuckle.

"Oh, right. Of course." Dr. Jonah said in that particular 'we're all in on the joke, but we'll play along' tone of voice. "You're a poor little man unwillingly turned into a woman, and you wouldn't think of making love with any of us, certainly not any time soon."

"For sure." Dr. Smythe agreed, still chuckling. "Helen, I do believe it's your fault. We should all try to be as discrete about our intentions as the young new lady here has been."

Jeff gaped at him.

"What the hell are you all talking about...?" She demanded, shrilly, slowly backing away from them. "I'm not doing anything to come on to any of you!"

" 'She said modestly, with a wicked little grin and a twinkle in her eye.'" Smythe said, chuckling.

"Don't worry." The orderly assured her. "Ain't none of us gonna give 'way your reputation. We'll play it cool, not let anybody know about you and us."

"Oh, yes, certainly." Doctor Helen Jonah said, with great sincerity, bestowing a loving look on Jeff. "We'd never do anything to hurt you, dear. We'll take perfectly good care of you, make sure you have everything you need. We'll squirrel you away in a nice, private room for 'observation' - and if we come in during the night to check on you, nobody has to know which of those 'desires' of yours we're satisfying."

"I don't want to have sex with you!" Jeff shrieked, wide-eyed, as she huddled back against the wall.

"Of course not." The orderly said in that humoring tone, smiling warmly. "You just go ahead and keep shouting that nice and loud, so the rest of the world doesn't have to know what you want from us. You can keep shouting it right up to - and atter - the moment you go ahead and suck me off, my sweet little darling."

Jeff stared at them, mind whirling.

They weren't being crude or rude or even teasing. They weren't 'threatening'. Indeed, if anything, their manners would best be described as 'loving', as if she were their oldest and dearest friend.

Oldest, dearest and most intimate lover, rather - for by every part of their manner it showed that they honestly believed she wanted to have sex with them, that they were somehow seeing everything she did and said as a come on - and that this 'game' of hers, 'pretending' she wasn't interested, was simply something they were more than happy to play along with, for her sake - without believing it for a second.

She stared at them in abject horror, heart racing behind her 'magnificent' new breasts as considered the situation . If they wouldn't believe her protestations, no matter what she said, they'd happily 'rape' her, believing that it was really what she wanted, that her cries and protests were just a game. They were - for reasons Jeff didn't understand - complete unable to believe that she wasn't desperately desiring each and every one of them, eager to use her new body to pleasure them.

The immediate and most overriding thought that occurred to the new woman was basic, the other half of the 'fight or flight' reaction, given that 'fighting' was definitely out of the question.

She had to get the hell out of there...

...but it was damned obvious that, even as obviously eager to help their 'dearest lover' in any and all way possible, they'd simply never believe she wanted to leave them without satisfying all the 'obvious urges' she had for them.

If she wanted to escape a happy, loving, eager-to-please group rape, she was going to have to turn this group delusion against them. Heart pounding and head spinning, Jeff forced something that just might be mistaken for a smile to her cutely full new lips.

"Come on, at least try and play along." She said, trying for a coquettish tone - and failing badly. "Nobody's going to believe my little 'I'm to new a woman to be interested in sex' act if you keep this up."

Not that it mattered. As unwilling as they were to believe anything that went against their shared delusion that she was desperately eager to try out every aspect of her new femininity with each of them. They were pathetically eager to accept anything (even, as their current delusions proved, even if that 'anything' was, quite literally, nothing) that played into it.

Smythe looked around with a true look of conspiratorial worry.

"We're trying, dear heart." He said, quietly - and in every inflection of voice, in every hint of manner, his honest-to-god mortification was visible. No matter what the objective truth was, Smythe - and the others - honestly felt-and-believed as if they deeply loved the feminine new Jeff, and she in turn deeply (and, yes, erotically) loved each of them equally as much. The thought of 'failing' his dearest love really did hurt Smythe, chemically manufactured as that love might be.

"What else can we do?" Jonah asked plaintively, as equally worried about unwillingly doing damage to the new woman's 'reputation'.

"You can 'discharge' me." Jeff said, forcing not only that certain tone into the word 'discharge', but throwing in a broad wink for good measure. "What any of you do atier work is even less of anybody's concern that anything that might go on even in a private room... right?"

"Of course!" Smythe said, smacking his own forehead in genuine shame at missing the obvious suggestion. "Yes, I see it now. You walk out the door, and, ostensibly, out of our lives... yes, yes."

"Brilliant." Helen breathed.

"The docs, they make good money, an' I can throw in a bit." The orderly said, thoughtfully. "We by you a little house somewhere close to all of us - or maybe rent you an apartment. Give you money for food and what not.. yeah, it'd work."

Jeff smiled sickly as the three got into a conspiratorially quite, but quite lively discussion on how best to set up Jeff's 'mistresshood', each of them absolutely sure that they and Jeff were such 'soul-mates' that they knew what she wanted-and-needed without having to ask.

Well, let them - she wasn't interested in whatever they came up with, because it wasn't going to apply to her anyway.

"The first thing we need to do is get me signed out of here." She said - and, so eager to help, all three of them jumped on the idea. Half an hour later, 'Jane Smith' walked out the front door of the hospital.

She was uncomfortably comfortable in the clothes Helen had 'stolen' from a nurse for her - a bright red rayon-spandex top with three- quarter length sleeves and a sweetheart neckline over a just-above-the-knee white pleated skirt.

Even more discomfiting to Jeff's desperately damaged sense of manhood was just how good the 'nude' nylons she wore felt on the smooth skin of her new legs - but had she anything else to wear, the new woman would have quite happily chucked the white sling- back pumps with their square 2 ½ inch heels.

Unfortunately, none of them had been any more willing to believe that she didn't 'really' want to wear heels than they had been to believe she 'didn't want to wear make-up - which explained the coral pink lipstick and pastel sea-foam eye-shadow she wore.

Helen's decision was that Jeff - didn't need either blush or mascara had been a mixed blessing, upon consideration.

At that, the new woman was just as happy to count the heels and make-up battles as lost causes, as she'd won the 'war'. With some quick thinking an even more wheedling, she'd managed to get past the idea that she'd go to one of the trio's homes and wait 'eagerly' there for her lovers to come. Instead, she had stressed the need to separate themselves from her in the eyes of the public, and 'teasingly' played on the fact that the three couldn't choose whose house would have the honor of her presence - and had convinced them she should check into a hotel.

Given their state of mind, it hadn't been all that hard, once she'd convinced them of the hotel idea, to have them insist it be a four-star hotel - and they'd happily given her every cent they had with them in cash, and had even taken up a quick collection to add to that.

In a slightly battered white leather purse from the lost and found, 'Jane Smith' entered the world with a little over three thousand dollars in cash.

Least they chase her down the block, she forced herself to turn and fake a smile at the three people standing in the door of the hospital, and then she oh-so-carefully ankled her way to the corner, turned it...

...and then immediately set about trying to 'loose' herself so that those three nutcases she'd let behind couldn't find her.

The first thing she did was find a bank machine and use her 'Jeff Sykes' card to take out even more money. She added the three hundred daily transaction limit to her little stash - and, in truth, that pretty well emptied her bank account, dropping it's balance down to less than fifty dollars.

She added an additional five hundred dollars as an advance on the credit card Helen had given her... but happily pulled a whopping fifteen hundred off the Platinum card from Smythe.

Now with a grand total of five thousand, four hundred and twenty-five dollars to her (assumed) name, 'Jane' sighed - and regretfully dropped Smythe's Platinum card down the nearest storm drain.

Jeff Sykes' ATM card went with even deeper regret - though basically worthless compared to the credit card, it was 'his', a direct physical link to the man she'd so recently been...

...and so she wouldn't use it again, in case any of those three nuts were smart enough to try and track her with it.

Helen Jonah's card she kept, though she didn't plan on actually using the card to charge anything. It was simply the closest thing to 'identification' she had, were some needed when she checked into a hotel. As long as she didn't put any money on it, it should be nearly impossible for her to be tracked by it...

...she hoped.

Next, she hailed a cab.

Since she had told her 'lovers' that she was taking a suite at the most expensive hotel in town, the Grand Regency at Main and First, she asked the driver for a 'good, cheap' motel near the airport - about as far away from downtown as you could get without actually leaving town.

As the driver headed off, 'Jane' sat back in her seat - and tried to think.

It wasn't easy. It was now nearly midnight, and she was both tired and hungry. Her emotions were all a-whirl, and she was still trying to assimilate the knowledge that she was now a woman - a feat not improved by the undeniable 'proof' of the sensations her new body was providing.

No brassiere suitable for her new bust-line had been available, and the sensation of her large, sensitive - and, thanks to the cool night air, now currently erect - nipples made as the fabric lightly dragged over them with every breath was disturbingly distracting. The firm weight of her taut new mounds themselves, shifting and jiggling slightly with every motion she or the cab made, was equally as 'annoyingly pleasant' - to say nothing of the way the air felt as it moved over her nylon-clad new legs, or the way the remarkably soft fabric of her borrowed panties felt against her new, smooth crotch.

Her hair, long and silky, lay spilled out over her shoulders and occasionally had to be brushed back with an oh-so-feminine gesture of her long-nailed hands... and the scent of the perfume Helen had instead on spraying on her didn't help the new woman's thought processes either.

It seemed to Jane as if her new body was designed to keep her supplied with pleasant new sensations - though, in truth, it was more the lack of annoying ones she noticed. As unwanted as the unexpectedly enjoyable sensations of her full new breasts and taut buttocks were, it was the 'lack' that bothered her the most. She'd never realized, as a man, how much of her time had been taken up by her 'equipment'. Finding comfortable positions for it. Instinctively 'safeguarding' it from injury. Careful of its position around sexy women...

...like the one she now was, and so lacking the 'annoyances' she oh-so-desperately wished she could still be suffering.

Still, all of this was forced to take a back seat to her sense of self-preservation. There were three nuts out there, convinced that she 'wanted' to be their lovers, their happy little mistress, and she couldn't take the time to fully bemoan the feminine curse that had descended on her until she was safe.

Her first instinct had been to go to the police - but she'd nixed that when she realized how insane her story would sound. It would leave her two choices: Either give them all the details and have the police contact the hospital for verification, or come up with a lie.

The danger of the first scenario was that they might believe, in The End, that she really was a man-turned-female, given the hospital records, including photographs... but what if the cops didn't believe the rest of the story, about the doctors and the orderly being obsessed with her, and delusion about her wanting them, to? In all likelihood, they would 'play along' with whatever they thought this was, some sort of way to protect her 'reputation' - and might pull it off. They might even convince the cops that she was 'paranoid' because of the emotional stress of her new womanhood - and that, for her own good, she should be made legal ward of one of them.

She shuddered at the thought.

The second idea, a lie, was problematic at best. If she went in to the police, as 'Jane Smith', and simply claimed the three nuts were harassing her.. well, how could she prove it? She wouldn't even be able to prove who 'she' was - much less who 'he' was, if she tried that tack.

No, she just couldn't see any way she could go to anybody for help and get them to believe her without involving the three people she was painfully desperate to avoid...

...which meant that 'Jane Smith' was on her own.

Even the name was her decision. As much as she hated being so 'accepting' as to take a female name, 'Jeff' was the only one the hospital had for her, and so she wouldn't use it.

She worried and worried over it the entire drive...

...and it showed.

"Something botherin' you, miss?" The driver asked, as he pulled into a motel. "You look worried."

Of course, Jane had no way of knowing the driver was already mildly affected by her chemical excretions, somewhat more helpful than he would normally be. Thankfully, his 'interest' in her, sexually, wasn't even close to the obsessive point, but he was considerably more pliable for a 'cute young thing' who seemed even better-looking now than when she'd first climbed into the cab.

His question startled Jane - and then inspiration struck.

"I just ran away from an abusive boyfriend." She lied, quickly. "He's so obsessive, I'm afraid he might go hotel-to-hotel until he finds which one I registered in."

"Well, I can help you, miss." The driver said, still new enough to the chemical's effect to be surprised by his own spirit of generosity. "I'll register for a room myself, under my name. Even if that bastard comes and checks here, nobody will have seen you check in."

Sure enough, that's how it went. Hunched down in the car, she waited as the driver signed for a room and paid for three days in advance...

...with her money. Even affected by her chemical 'aura', he wasn't that generous.

He was even unwontedly thoughtful enough to take a room at the back of the complex, where she could come and go without the staff in the office seeing her.

He dropped her off in front of the unit, key in hand - but after he drove off, she didn't go in, not yet.

Across the street was an all-night diner - and her stomach was reminding her, transformed into a woman or not, she still had to eat. Moving with a careful grace, balanced atop those damned heels, she headed off for a late supper.

The diner, done in a very tacky rendition of 40's decor, was deserted. She had the waitress, a blowzy-looking bottle-blond with surgically-enhanced chest-melons considerably bigger than her own new endowments half-hanging out of her tight top, all to herself.

Ordering a 'special' that was anything but, Jane fed herself slowly and steadily, more fueling her unwanted new body than 'having dinner'. As she ate, she let the rest of the world fade away as she tried to cope with the emotions and thoughts she hadn't yet had the leisure to contemplate, wondering how the hell she was going to live life as a woman, much less one that, for some reason, had three absolutely crazy hospital members 'obsessed' with her.

That, quite naturally, led to thoughts as to how incredibly unlikely that had been. She still had no idea how three sexual nut-cases could possibly get hired at the same hospital, much less share a delusion about her - but the evidence to it was overwhelming, and it still scared her silly to think how utterly obsessed they had been with doing what they thought would please

- and pleasure - her.

Finished eating, Jane downed the last of the coffee she'd ordered with the meal and, still lost in thought, dropped some money on the counter and head off towards the bathrooms.

She instinctively started to push open the swinging door to the men's room- then, with a grimace and a sigh, turned around and, instead, pushed her way into the ladies' room...

...and upon seeing the bottle-blond waitress inside, stopped dead, unable to suppress the sudden and powerful urge of guilt at walking into an occupied women's bathroom.

For her own part, 'Goldie', the waitress, had been waiting nervously just inside the door, shifting her weight from one high-heeled foot to the other for the last five minutes.

When she'd first caught this cute customer flirting with her, Goldie had been flustered - especially since, despite being solidly attracted to (all the wrong) men since age fifteen, she'd found herself thinking it was 'too bad' she wasn't into women.

After awhile, though, she'd found herself thinking that maybe, just this once...

Now, nervously excited, guiltily eager, she stared at the hot brunette, wondering what to say, what one did to initiate lesbian love- making - and unable to think of anything, she nervously darted forward and kissed the startled young woman...

...and as her tongue slipped into Jane's startled, and at least momentarily unresisting mouth, Goldie got a high-octane shot of the undiluted chemical in Jane's saliva, instantly leap-frogging over all the intermediary steps and directly into full-blown obsession.

Jane, finally reacting to the bleached-blond silicone passionately thrusting her tongue into Jane's new mouth, all-but-yanked herself away from the groping waitress, shocked and horrified.

"Oh, please, baby..." Goldie gasped - and to Jane's horror, she peeled off her top, revealing impossibly fake, spherical silicone- pumped breasts. "Don't keep playing hard to get. I don't know how you resisted this long - and I know I can't resist you any longer."

She came for Jane - who skittered back, eyes wide, as the woman's huge bust bore down on her. "Stop!" Jane shouted, thrusting her hands out in front of her. "Get away from me!"

The blond - sure her 'sweet lesbian love' was playing, ignored the demand - and literally tore Jane's blouse open to get at her own DDD-cup breasts.

"Oh, we'll make each other so happy." Goldie promised, squeezing and fondling Jane's firm, dome-like breasts. "We'll make love all day long, every day - and to hell what anybody might think."

"Noooooo....!" Jane screamed, voice ringing off the tiled walls...

...and then she slumped in utter defeat, no longer attempting to pull away, submissively letting the buxom blond tear off her panties, bury her head between Jane's silken thighs, and begin eagerly lapping away.

Tears slowly leaking down her cheeks, Jane accepted the unwanted pleasure of the blonde's tongue - and the even more unwanted truth.

It was her.

It was something about her, herself, that turned people into 'sex-crazed' obsessive nuts over her. She couldn't outrun it, she couldn't give it the slip, she couldn't hide from it - it was part and parcel of her new body.

It would be with her everywhere she went. All the time.

She'd never be safe.

Lost in misery, it took her some time to realize that, having indifferently shuddered her way through her first female orgasm... nothing had happened in the considerable period of time since.

Frowning, Jane looked down...

...and saw the blonde waitress kneeling in front of her, head down-cast and hands clasped at her lap. Jane waited - but the blonde didn't move.

Slowly, hesitantly, Jane slid sideways down the wall, waiting for - expecting - the blonde to jump her in another lust-crazed frenzy... but the woman remained in the exact same, highly submissive pose.

Jane eyed the door, considering making a break for it - but curiosity won out. "What are you doing?" Jane asked.

The blonde looked up, eyes bright with eager energy - and frighteningly empty of anything approaching coherent thought.

"Waiting for you to tell me what else I may do to pleasure you, my sweetest beloved, my life itself!" The blonde gushed, words tripping over one another in her eagerness to express her undying love for Jane. "Thank you for letting me lick your pussy and touch your body and I love you so much and how else may I please you, and I'd do anything for you my dearest, my love, my reason for living!"

"Anything?" Jane snorted, bitterly. "Would you slit your own damned throat, you psycho bitch?"

"Oh, yes, my love!" The blonde, 'overdosed' on the 'love juice' in Jane's vaginal excretions exclaimed in ecstasy, leaping right to her feet. "Oh, of course I'll kill myself for you my sweet, my beloved, thank you for letting me die for you my dear, there's all sorts of knives in the kitchen..."

Stunned, Jane actually let The Endearment-spewing suicidal blonde nearly reach the door before throwing up a hand and shouting: "Stop!"

The blonde came to a skidding stop, halting literally in mid-step.

"Yes, my sweet, oh, are you going to let me do you just one more service before I die, oh, beloved, let me do anything for you and then I'll..." The blonde gushed.

"I didn't tell you to kill yourself!" Jane blurted out, shocked.

The blonde looked stunned, then mortified, and then, to Jane's shock, began hitting herself in the forehead - hard.

"You didn't, you just asked me if I would, oh I was so presumptuous, oh, my love, I'm sorry, I should kill myself anyway..." The blonde sobbed with heart-wrenching utter dismay at having displeased her 'reason for living'.

"Stop it!" Jane barked, mind still trying to catch up with events. "Just... hold on, okay? Let me think..."

"Yes, beloved!" The blonde agreed, instantly - then fell dead silent, still holding the exact-same half-step pose, utterly willing to stay like that forever, if that's what her beloved wanted...

...or, until the 'love juice' wore off, but the blonde didn't even come close to considering that.

Jane, however, didn't notice the blonde's awkward pose, instead trying to wrap her mind around the whole new wrinkle this brought to her life....

* * * * *

Her 'thank you' to the delivery man a bit brusque, she finished scrawling her signature, all-but-yanked the package from her hand, and then stepped switily back into the house and firmly shut the front door.

Standing on the doorstep, the package delivery man gave a quirky smile, somewhat used to the 'cast iron bitch' by this time - she got more packages than anybody else on his route, quite often one-a-day for long stretches.

Still, he mulled to himself as he turned and headed towards the trademark brown van, she wasn't all that bad-looking. At least, her face was surprisingly big-eyed and almost innocent, even if the brown hair, pulled into an extremely tight pony-tail, made her look a bit severe. He just wondered what her body looked like under that huge, floor-length bathrobe she always wore.

Shrug to himself, he climbed into the van and pulled away from the big old Victorian home on the quiet, out-of-the-way little cul-de- sac.

Jane, standing just inside the door, watched through the side window flanking the thick oak door as the delivery van pulled away - and then smiled tightly to herself.

Putting the package aside for the moment, she headed down the hall in the direction of the kitchen. She stopped before reaching it, however, coming to a halt in front of the door on the side of the staircase leading to the upper two floors of the huge old mansion.

Untying the bathrobe, she slid it off and hung it on the coat-tree next do the door, then reached out and turned the old-fashioned crystal knob.

The door swung noiselessly open on well-oiled hinges, surprisingly heavy - as well it should be, considering that behind the thin wood facade that shoed from the outside, the door down to the basement was inch-thick steel backed by another half-inch of soundproofing.

She stepped into the shallow-stepped, well-lit stairwell she'd had built by out-of-state contractors - actually, 'out-of-country', Mexicans brought illegally in the States to replace the steep, dimly-lit stairs original to the house.

Pulling the door shut behind her, she gracefully walked down the broad steps, shallow steps.

The wide, gleaming metal door at the bottom of stairs was even heavier than the one at the top - but that didn't matter, as it didn't swing open. With one finger tipped by a long, blood-red nail, Jane punched a six-digit code into the keypad on the wall, and with a chirp and a flashing green LED, the hydraulically-operated door slid open on it's recessed tracks.

There, beneath a house more than a century old, Jane walked into a basement newer than the day atier tomorrow.

With a steady, measured stride, Jane crossed the metal-walled room. The metal flooring rang with the tapping of her heels, and the sound bounced over, around and through the many different tables, racks, chairs, chains and various other items filling the main area.

Directly across the main room from the door lay a hallway, and it was into this Jane walked. The hallway bore a dozen doors down it's sides, all of them gleaming metal. Above each 'peephole', a brass number was screwed into the door. The half-dozen to her right bore the numbers one through six, and those on her leti, eight through thirteen.

Room seven, the only door that lacked a key-pad beside it, lay at The End of the hallway, and it was to this door that Jane made her way.

Standing by itself, this heavy door was in many ways similar to the other twelve - and yet, in other ways, quite different. For one thing, the other, electronically-coded doors held no handles, being opened or shut by hydraulic motors mounted on the hall side of each outward-swinging door - doors that, for that matter, all swung in the direction of the open end of the hallway, which was itself just big enough for the opened door, thus effectively blocking exit from the hall when it was open.

The door to Room 7 was alike the others, however, in that below the peephole lay a small metal holder, similar to the ones found on filing cabinets, holding a small placard.

On the door to Room 7, the placard, written in Jane's hand in black ink, bore the following:

Steve Z. - Spring '05 'Selina'

Since the real risk of bruised knuckles made the idea of knocking on these doors impractical, Jane simply slid the panel open and called: "Are you decent, kitten?"

"Yes..." A low, husky, and incredibly sensual voice replied, with a chuckle. "...but if you give me a minute, that can be remedied."

Chuckling herself, Jane pushed the door open and stepped into Room 7 - which was not only nearly ten times as large as every other room along the hallway, but luxuriously - almost sinfully - appointed.

The walls and floor were all in gleaming black tile - forming a splendid backdrop for the rooms profusion of animal-prints.

The couch and matching chairs were done in leopard-print satin, and were separated from the black-tile fireplace by a thick and luxuriously padded faux 'polar bear' rug. Through an open door, the bathroom - in white tile - boasted a zebra-print rug and matching towels near the huge, deep whirl-pool 'soaker' tub.

The bed, in the corner, was huge and round, and covered in cheetah-print silk sheets under a thick comforter of brushed black velvet simulating the luxurious hide of a jaguar.

Above all this, every inch of the large, luxurious room was reflected in the mirror-tile ceiling...

...including the room's occupant, spread luxuriously over the top of the bed. Her definition of 'decent' would have raised many an eyebrow, elsewhere.

Oh, not that she was naked - far from it. In fact, every single square inch of her lean, well-toned, and exquisitely shaped body was covered from the neck down...

...in gleaming black latex that was quite literally sprayed onto her lean, luscious body.

The dark liquid latex hugged every curve and every line of her luscious body - except for where her thigh-high black platform boots and opera-length gloves gave back the more mellow gleam of their soti black kidskin leather, as did the 'domina' mask above her high, well-defined cheek-bones, surrounding eyes so dark that they also seemed black.

Even her thick, rich massive mane of curly hair was glossy black - as was the outer sides of the cute little velvet 'cat ears', lined inside in pink silk, and mounted on a black headband tucked into her hair.

Not that she was one to talk herself, Jane thought with a smile - not considering her black fishnet bodysuit under a tight red-trimmed black leather corset...

With a smooth, feline grace, Selina uncurled from the bed and rose, almost literally purring. In one hand she held a long, thick whip with a most decidedly phallic handle - in fact, it was a large, extraordinary detailed dildo, complete with molded plastic 'veins' bulging all over it.

At the sight of the long, thick dildo, Jane smiled, thinking of all the pleasure Selina had given her with it...

...and then banished the thought as Selina gracefully swayed towards atop the nine-inch spike heels of her platform boots.

"May I, Mistress...?" Selina purred, wistfully, as she reached where Jane stood.

"Now, now, kitten..." Jane said, with some real regret, as she reached out to lightly run a hand over the smooth latex orb of one of Selina's massive, volleyball-like breasts. She lightly squeezed the large, thick latex-covered nipple, causing the tall, leggy woman to shiver in pleasure. "Business before pleasure, you know that."

"Yes, Mistress..." Selina sighed.

With well-practiced motions, Selina maneuvered the gleaming black plastic dildo-whip behind her - and, skillfully, threaded it into the latex harness in place under the outer covering of latex, down past her legs, and to the front.

It 'snick'ed sotily into place in the ring under the suit - and now the oversized dildo thrust proudly from her crotch, while the rest of the thick whip dangled behind her nearly to the floor, forming the tail and completing her 'busty latex she-male cat-woman dominatrix look' look.

What still leti Jane feeling pleasantly bemused was the fact that Selina had not only chosen this... intriguing look - but that she had willingly - nay, eagerly - accepted the role of Mistress Jane's side-kick.

"Let's go, pussy." Jane said, turning on one considerably more 'sedate' four-inch heel and leading Selina from her 'lair'.

She stopped at the first occupied door on the leti-hand side of the hallway and punched in the code. The door swung open...

...and, inside, the occupant cowering in the corner began to beg and plead. Standing just inside the door, deaf to the pleas for mercy, Jane eyed her creation.

The woman was tiny and delicate - as befitted the fact that she was of Japanese ancestry, but the 'look' was further exaggerated by the highly modified 'school-girl' costume she wore. A tiny, 'fluffy' red-plaid skirt just barely covered her crotch, and the black 'Mary Jane' pumps she wore over her knee-high white 'socks' boasted a two-inch platform and six-inch heels.

The white short-sleeved blouse she wore was tied close just beneath her perfect, girlish 'B'-cup breasts, displaying the golden mounds to perfection - but the collar was tightly buttoned, to accommodate the cute little red plaid tie she wore.

Her silky black hair was, of course, tied up in pig-tails.

All in all, Jane thought, the perfect 'look' for the tiny Asian who, not long ago, had been a successful male stock-broker...

...and closet pedophile.

"I can't do it anymore - I just can't...!" The tiny woman sobbed in her high-pitched, lightly accented voice. "Please, please don't make me do it..."

"Now, now, Ling-Mei." Jane admonished the woman, using the name she'd assigned her. "It's nearly dark, and you've got work to do, so assume the position..."

"No.. No..." The woman sobbed - but she didn't even try to resist. As one of the first, she knew better, and she crawled out of bend and bent over - causing her skirt to ride up and reveal that she wore no panties.

"Good girl." Jane said - and then, turning, she knelt and lavishly licked plenty of her 'love juice' charged saliva onto the ridged shati of Selina's 'cock'.

Smiling, the latex-clad woman walked over and - having to bend her knees to equal the height differential - thrust her 'cock' deep into the little woman's cunt.

She held it there for several minutes - and by then, Ling-Mei was laughing and giggling.

"Thank you, Selina!" She squealed, as the busty cat-woman withdrew the dildo. Turning, the tiny woman stretched on tip-toe to exchange a deep, passionate kiss. "Thank you for filling me with that huge cock and giving me the mistress' wonderful love-juice!"

"You're quite welcome." Selina said, her voice dead sincere - but laughter glinting in her dark eyes. The tiny school-girl turned to Jane.

"Oh, Mistress, thank you for letting me be a whore for you!" She said, enthusiastically. "You'll see - I'll earn you lots and lots of money tonight. I'll fuck and suck the man the very, very best I can, and I'll be the winner tonight! I'll be the one who gets to lick your pussy, Mistress - you'll see!"

"Yes - we'll see." Jane said, grinning. "Now, go on, you have to get ready."

"Yes mistress!" Ling-Mei cried, happily scampering out of the room, and actually bouncing on her toes with eagerness as she waited for Jane and Selina to step out of the cell and close the door that blocked her exit. Immediately, she bounded off, and Selina - throwing a grin over her gleaming shoulder - had to hurry to keep up with the diminutive girl so that she could punch in the code that would let her get upstairs to her 'school-girl' themed bedroom upstairs.

Shaking her head, Jane moved on to the next cell and let herself in.

This was one of the 'working girls' who hadn't yet learned her lesson - and so, she was laying spread-eagle on the bed, bound by five-pint restraints at wrists, ankles and waist.

"You bitch!" She snarled, struggling against her bonds - or, at least, trying to, since she couldn't move as much as an eighth of an inch in any direction. "You sick, bitch. Let me go! Give me my cock back! Damn it...!"

Her curses and threats leti Jane as unmoved as Ling-Mei's pleas had. Like the Asian woman, this once-man had earned her new fate...

...and the 'interest' that came with it.

Though barely able to move, the outrageously curvaceous blonde was more than able to cause her tits to jiggle and bounce and sway - and that was because they were absolutely enormous, their 'natural' D-cup size vastly increased to medicine-ball sized proportions by the extra saline pumped into her expandable implants.

The massive tits, like the huge head of obviously bottle-blond hair, went well with the high-pitched, lisping voice Jane had stuck 'Bambi' with - which made all her dire threats all the more amusing.

"Now, now - I've told you about that..." Jane said, 'regretfully', as she walked over - and the ex-man began screaming almost incoherent threats at her as she calmly pulled the two coiled plastic tubes down from the rack suspended from the ceiling, and slid the small needle tipping each into the 'fill ports' of the expandable implants.

Reaching up, she turned on the pump - and, slowly but perceptibly, the woman's already massive tits began to swell.

The high-tensile custom implants were getting near their limits - but the human skin and fat encasing them wasn't, allowed as it was to 'rest' between the occasional inflation...

...and Jane could also buy even larger implants, if she needed to.

After a couple of moments, the skin beginning to tighten over the implants, the man 'broke', and began begging Jane to 'just go ahead and turn me into that god-damned bimbo whore!'

What amused Jane, as she shut off the pump and complied, was the fact that each time the man caved faster and faster - now, well before the expansion actually became painful, barely even mildly uncomfortable.

A couple of licks of the woman's close-shaved pussy... and sweet, bubbly, empty-headed Bambi was eager to go to work, and Jane unstrapped the person who, just a couple of months ago, had been a strip-club owner who'd enjoyed getting his 'bitches' hooked on drugs, and then denying them their next 'fix' unless they obeyed his injunction to go into debt to him to afford the breast implants he insisted they get.

One by one, she got her six 'working girls' ready for the night's action - and then, with Selina following closely behind, Jane went into one of the rooms on the right-hand side of the hall.

Strapped, naked, to a reclining bondage chair, was his latest victim.

"Hello, Craig." Jane said, mockingly, as she stalked her way over to a gleaming control panel on the wall and began pushing buttons. "Having fun...?"

The portly, bearded brunet on the chair didn't bother answer, only shooting fearful looks at the two women as the lights dimmed and music with a driving base rose.

"On with the show..." Jane said - and stepped into the shadows, to watch appreciatively as Selina went to work.

With that feline grace, she flowed into the center of the many spot-lights focused on one area - and the profusion of relatively dim lights, combined in that spot, picked out multicolored highlights off the gleaming latex...

...as she began to dance.

God, did she dance!

It started with the 'pose'.

She stood in that profusion of lights, with her body turned slightly to one side, one leg slightly extended. Her arms were crossed, almost modestly, over her massive bosom, and her face was turned away, buried in her shoulder as if she were ashamed...

...and then, almost as if against her will, her smoothly-rounded hips began to move to the beat.

Just a little bit, at first - and then, slowly, their swing and dip became wider, more pronounced - and soon they were swaying...

...and then gyrating...

...and then she stun on one, high heel - and her hands began to roam over her luscious body, gliding slowly and seductively over her spectacular form as she continued to sway, bounce and swirl in the pool of light.

The man on the chair couldn't help himself. A pair of special contacts were designed to make it uncomfortable to close his eyes for more than a second or so, and so he had to look - and, though he struggled desperately not too, soon his cock began to grow hard, and soon, watching the lithe, luscious latex lady, he boasted a raging hard on.

That was Jane's cue - and she strutted over, climbed the built-in steps, and lowered herself onto his hard, throbbing cock, enveloping him....

...in the thin, incredibly pliable, and utterly impermeable latex of her clear 'panties'. She had no intention of 'claiming' him with her love juice - not yet.

She 'just' fucked him, riding him with an almost languid rhythm, enjoying the sensations coming from her dripping womanhood as she writhed and wriggled and thrust atop him...

...all while she carefully watched his face.

When she had been riding atop him for a while, and watching his effort control with the effort not to cry out in rising pleasure, she knew it was time - and, concentrating, 'bore down' on the not-quite-muscle of her breast tissue...

...and as it compressed her not-quite-glands, a stream of thick, amber fluid shot from each of her large, fully-erect nipples and began to patter across his face.

Having already seen what the liquid from Jane's 'remarkable' glands did to men, Craig - as he had the past four days - struggled desperately to keep his mouth well and truly shut as the liquid splattered and dripped from his face, harmless except in contact with the permeable flesh inside the mouth.

Then, as Jane 'cruelly' increased her thrusting and 'tormented' him by bringing him to thundering orgasm, the bearded man couldn't help himself - and he cried out in pleasure...

...and the liquid splattered into his helplessly open mouth.

As the man gasped and tried, uselessly, to spit it out, Jane laughed and quickly worked herself to her own orgasm before climbing off his quickly-sotiening cock.. even as the first tremors began to rack his body.

The amber liquid didn't give her 'girls' the exact same effect the original had given her. In fact, the exact effects seemed to vary from person to person, and none of the girls had gotten that 'mad obsession' effect, nor had any of them developed their own 'amber- glands' - at least, none yet.

The feminizing effect, however, was universal - and some of the effects the 'pseudo-hormones' had for each of the girls was quite interesting, and more that justified the hefty charges paid by the very select clientele of her impossibly up-scale bordello.

Bambi, for example, who's IQ dropped significantly while she was under the 'love juice' - but whose libido seemed to increase in direct proportion, not to mention her sexual stamina.

Ling-Mei, on the other hand, exuded something from her lips that allowed her to give truly mind-boggling blow-jobs. Jane was interested to see what 'specialty' this latest addition to her stable would boast.

However, it would be a couple of hours before she found out - so she gathered Selina up with a look, and leti the room.

As the door closed, she smiled warmly up at the taller woman... whose own 'effect' from being made female was a complete and utter resistance to Jane's 'love-juice' obsession effect.

Her complete and utter devotion to the woman who had turned her into the woman she was today was completely willing...

...which, Jane thought as she took her cat-woman's hand and lead her towards Room 8, was why she could let her guard down, and in the privacy of Selina's lair, give in and let Selina be dominating, pleasure inducing lesbian dominatrix to her.

With a willingly devoted woman like the one who, for reasons Jane still didn't understand, demanded to be called 'Selina', letting herself be utterly submissive was completely, utterly, and in all ways physical, intellectual, and emotional...

...safe.

The End

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: A man agrees to ingest a genetically engineered virus that promotes breast growth. But as the virus tries to generate male hormones, it transforms them into female hormones, constantly causing a state of euphoria - and arousal - creating a super- horny and very sexy woman.

The Sale Of Two Titties

By Gunslinger

It was the breast of Thyme's, it was the wurst of Thyme's...

"I'll have the chicken,..." Rob said, smiling at the waitress, "...and my friend here will have the schnitzel."

Thyme's Restaurant might pride itself on it's 'courteous, professional' staff, but you could hardly tell it from the way the waitress was practically drooling over Rob. On the other hand, if it weren't for the fact that Rob had (rather arrogantly) ordered for both of us, I probably wouldn't be eating - the waitress apparently didn't even know I was alive.

That happened a lot. Me being ignored, that is. Atier all, I'm probably one of the oddest looking guys you'll ever meet, unless you happen to personally know Steve Buscemi, the guy from 'Desperado' and 'Armageddon'. My ancestors were a weird bunch, apparently running out of their respective countries of birth (or being driven out) and finding themselves in what, for them, was a foreign country, there to take a wife. In my background I've got Asian, Hispanic, Negroid and Caucasian blood, somewhat diluted by three generations of American 'Mongrel Caucasian' heritage, but still in force.

In short, I've got the type of face and build that seem to give truckers, bikers - and the occasional lawyer - the urge to take a swing at me. Thanks to the Asian influence in my genetic background, I'm on the short side, with a slender build. Not 'skinny', which would have been better, but 'slender', which is something different completely.

Trust me, I know.

Also from my Asian heritage comes the long, fine dark hair and the big, dark eyes. However, I've got the high cheek bones and full lips of my African ancestors. You've heard the jokes people make about Mick Jagger's lips...? Well, mine aren't as 'baggy' as his are, but you get the idea.

Skin-tone wise, I look mostly Caucasian, with a 'tan' that just happens to be built in rather than acquired... but that doesn't help, you see, because there's a hell of a difference between how people judge your body when you're Caucasian. See, this ass of mine wouldn't be that out of place on a man of African coloration... but on me, it looks huge.

From my Hispanic background comes a slender face, rather than a more 'rounded' Asian one, with a pointed jaw. On a darker-skinned Latino, it would be 'romantic', that lithe, intense sort of 'Matador' look.... but on my face, it's something else completely...

Now, all of this is bad enough. It, by itself, would have been enough to get me a lot of school-yard beatings. But my parents... well, they decided to name me atier their favorite actor, Cary Grant...

That's right - I'm a short, slender, dark-haired, full-lipped young man named Cary. Wanna make something of it? No?

God, what a relief...

So, me getting ignored wasn't exactly a new experience... and I'm willing to be that Rob getting drooled over wasn't exactly a novel experience, either.

I still didn't know why Rob invited me out to dinner to 'discuss something'. Atier all, he's not only tall, broad-shouldered and blond, he's also athletic, almost offensively handsome, and one of the wealthiest men in the city, thanks to his genuine genius-level intellect and his easy knack for dealing with people. If you want to look at it a certain way, I was the antithesis of Rob Morrell, and vice-versa.

So, atier the waitress wiped her chin and headed off towards the kitchen, I leaned forward and waited for Rob to explain what I was doing here.

Then he gave me the grin. The cool, smooth, slick sorta grin that never quite made it to his eyes. The type of grin of somebody about to talk you into doing something you don't want to do would use.

"I'll be straight with you, Gary..." he said, seriously. "Cary." I corrected.

He blinked. "Huh?"

"My name. It's Cary - as in Cary Elwes. Not Gary."

"Oh..." He said, giving me an odd look. "Anyway, Gar.. uh, Cary... As I was saying, I'll be straight with you - I've got a problem, and I need your help."

"Oh...?" I said, cautiously.

"Yes." Rob said, nodding. "You see, the next big thing is going to be 'genetic surgery'. Like plastic surgery, but without all the hazards associated with having 'foreign' objects inserted in the body... such as breast implants. You see, that's what I've been working on."

I nodded, still not understanding what it was that I could possibly help with. I didn't know the first thing about genetic surgery, or whatever it was called.

Rob coughed. "Anyway, I'm not the only company working on this - there's another company at about the same stage, and what it really comes down to is who can get the patent first. However, to get the patent I need a 'live' test, first...and there's the problem."

"I don't understand..." I admitted.

"Well..." He said, and for some reason he refused to look directly at me. "We've still got some bugs in the program. Number one of which is that - as yet - we can't get it to work on women. Secondly, the only people - men - it'll work on have to have a certain... uh.. melange of genetic chemistry."

I frowned, considering what he was saying - and not liking the implications.

He grinned at me, his eyes still not meeting mine. "Not to put too fine a point on it - to get the patent, we have to live-test on a person with the exact genetic make-up of.. well, you."

Without realizing it, I'd pushed my chair back, and now I found myself drawing myself up to my full (if rather insignificant) height. "What the hell are you saying!" I demanded, righteously angry.

There was this old Brit at the next table - the kind of guy who looked like he'd play 'The Colonel' in a second-rate murder-mystery. Now, he looked up at me and spoke in a condescending tone.

"I believe he's saying that he'd like to give you a pair of.. er,... 'tits', my dear boy."

Rob curled three of his fingers in a fist, leaving thumb and fore-finger extended in a 'gun'. He pointed it at the Brit. "bang - bull's-eye." "What makes you think I'd possibly let you do... that... to me?" I demanded - somewhat hysterically.

"Two million dollars." Rob replied, calmly. I spluttered and stammered.

"He accepts." Colonel Uppercrust said, with a note of finality. "I didn't say that!" I shrieked.

"Yes, I know..." He said, unperturbed. "But you were going to - weren't you, dear boy?" I spluttered a bit more.. then finally nodded. "Uh.. well.. yeah..."

"See?" Colonel Uppercrust said to Rob, who grinned at him and Missus Uppercrust.

"Who's getting tits?" The waitress said, bringing our meals. "Gary is." Rob said, pointing at me.

I didn't bother to correct him.

* * * * *

To say I was nervous would be an understatement - kind of like saying 'water is wet', if you know what I mean.

I was sitting on a 'doctor's couch' - one of those white-painted stainless-steel things with cabinets below it's black vinyl surface which was supposedly padded, but always felt too hard. Then, of course, there was the always-present white paper 'sterile' covering that crinkled and crackled below my too-big ass as I moved. I was even dressed in one of those backward robes, which meant that my ass was more or less directly on the paper.

No doctor's office in the history of modern medicine has ever been designed with comfort in mind - so, of course, Rob said: "Are you comfortable, Gary?"

I bit back my immediate reply, which would have dealt with his 'irregular parentage' - at great length.

"yeah, sure." I agreed. After all, two million dollars buys a hell of a lot of agreement, doesn't it. "Can we just get on with it?" "Whatever you say..." Rob agreed, and motioned a nurse...

Okay, okay - she held a full quartet of doctorates, so she was a 'Doctor'. I'm sorry - when a woman is dressed all in white, with a white

mask, she'd a nurse. What can I say, I'm a chauvinist.

Anyway, Doctor Nurse approached me, holding a needle that looked just about right...

...for giving an elephant an injection. That sucker... uh, injector... was huge! "Hey!" I protested. "There's no way you're gonna..."

She grabbed my arm - rather firmly - and stuck the needle into a vein.

Atter I was done yelping and squirming, I finished rather impotently; "...use that thing on me." "Well..." Rob grinned. "If you don't want to, we won't."

She was wearing a mask, but from the way her eyes crinkled I knew Doctor Nurse was silently laughing at me. "I just earned two million dollars in about twenty seconds." I told her. "How much do you make a year?"

Her eyes were no longer crinkled... and then, suddenly, they were, again.

"Since I hold stock in the company..." She said, sweetly. "...about four-point-eight million dollars - if this works."

I rolled my eyes... then gasped as I felt a strange warmth run through my body, seeming to expand from the point of injection and flow along my veins.

Rob and Doctor Nurse looked at me intently and asked what I was feeling, so I tried to explain... while rubbing my arms, which had begun to itch terribly.

That's when I noticed that what little body hair I did have was falling out. Even the lightest touch of my hand brought a cascade of fine, dark hair, leaving the bronzed skin beneath smooth an bare.

"Uh... is this supposed to happen...?" I asked, showing them my arm - and the look the shared said it all.

Now, two million dollars is a hell of a lot of money to have a pair of tits hanging off your chest for a couple of weeks or so - but I had the sudden feeling that I was in way deeper then that.

"Oooohh-kaaayyy..." I said, slowly. "I, uh - just changed my mind. Go ahead and give me the antidote."

While I said this, I was rubbing my arms and watching as my body hair floated down to the ground to form a light pile - even hair I wasn't rubbing was coming out.

Rob coughed. "Uh... there's no 'antidote.' We just figured you'd get a double mastectomy when the test was done... and we didn't expect this to happen..."

"What?" I screeched. "C'mon, there has to be something you can do! I didn't agree to this."

"Well, uh..." Rob said, sharing another look with Dr. Nurse. "I'm afraid that there's just nothing we can do but see what happens, then try to correct the effects on a per-effect basis."

I certainly wasn't happy with the thought of that, and opened my mouth to say so... when I began to feel really weird.

For one thing, that warmth had spread through my entire body, a sort of pleasant sensation despite the fact that it seemed to herald unexpected side-effects from the injection. Now, it was spread through my body, as if I were immersed in a warm, pleasant bath... except that it was more intensified in my crotch, which felt almost too good for my peace of mind.

"Oh!" I gasped, blinking. "Something's happening.. uh, 'down there', if you know what I mean."

"Well, we'd better take a look." Doctor nurse said with what I was sure was a smirk in her voice. I blushed, but had to admit that if something was happening, it should be.. uh, 'kept an eye on', I guess. Sighing, I peeled off the paper robe, that strange sensation in my crotch even stronger and more pleasant.

"Oh, my god!" Rob gasped, and I stared down at my crotch...

...where my cock was visibly shrinking.

"Holy shit!" I swore, watching my manhood dwindle away to nothing. Already, there was no sign of my balls - and my cock was barely a little nub, a tiny little...

Then the pleasure doubled and redoubled, and I was in no condition to worry over my loss of a cock in ecstasy, pleasure thrumming through my body as my cock was pulled back into my body and something else formed at my crotch...

"My god - he's growing a vagina!" Doctor Nurse cried, and I found myself thinking with bemusement that it'd probably be more accurate to 'she' at that point, since I seem to have switched genders.

It still felt unbelievably pleasurable as my new womanhood formed. Lost in a haze of ecstasy, I heard Rob and Doctor Nurse talking about how the serum was apparently hundreds of times more powerful in a living human host, and how it was generating enormous amounts of hormones, as well as re-writing my genetic code... but I wasn't really paying attention, lolling back on the couch and moaning in pleasure as my body was bombarded by near-orgasmic ecstasy. I didn't even feel the prick of the needle as they took some blood for testing.

Meanwhile, I'd become aware of a growing sensation on my chest, and I let my hands glide across it's now smooth surface, finding two small lumps... lumps that were rapidly growing.

"Here come the tits..." I moaned, then giggled. Rob was saying something, pretty urgently, but I wasn't listening, lost in bliss and happily finding the swelling mounds of my wonderful new tits. I hoped they grow nice and big and round, with big, thick nipples that...

I blinked, frowning, wondering why there seemed to be some sort of alarm sounding in my head - but the pleasure was too overwhelming, and I couldn't focus on whatever was bothering me. I let myself lapse back into the pleasure that was enfolding me, drifting on it's tides and eddies as it grew to consume the entire universe, leaving me floating, bodiless, in a void of perfect pleasure...

* * * * *

"Cary! Cary, wake up!"

The voice penetrated the fog of darkness that surrounded me, and I let myself be drawn out of the deep, wonderful daze I'd been in. Opening my eyes, I found Rob standing over me, a worried look on his face. I smiled up at him, slowly and luxuriously stretching my body, enjoying the wonderful feel of it, it's liquid grace and easy agility. I'd never felt so euphoric in my life - it was as if everything was right with the world, and nothing could possibly make me feel less utterly content as I did in that moment.

"Cary - are you all right?" Rob asked, urgently.

"Never better, handsome..." I said, hearing my voice anew, a liquid contralto that was warm and rich. I liked it - it's velvet-smooth tones fit the way I felt....

+ + + +

When Gary.. uh, Cary's hair had started falling out, I'd begun to worry - but when his cock pulled itself into his body and formed into a cunt, then I was damned sure there was something seriously wrong with the serum.

Cary had fallen into some sort of daze as his body had continued to change, and Dr. Lands and I drew some blood and rushed it off for testing while Cary was 'out of it'. What came back confirmed our worst fears.

We'd done computer modeling of the serum, and it had revealed a strange make-up that meant that it would only work on men, and we hadn't been able to figure out why. The fact that it would only work on a strange genetic mixture was more understandable, given that we hadn't isolated the DNA sequences enough to allow targeting of any specific genetic make-up.

However, our blood tests on Cary explained everything - horribly so.

The genetically engineered 'virus' that was supposed to promote breast growth was doing that - but it was also 'correcting' the other 'flaws' in what it assumed was a female body. The reason that the modeled serum wouldn't work on a woman is that it wouldn't find anything 'wrong' with her, finding everything to be the way it was supposed to. In Cary, however, it found hundreds of things that needed to be 'fixed' - and it did just that.

I'd been shocked and horrified by the terrible, terrible mistake we'd made with the serum - but that shock was nothing compared to what happened as Cary woke up.

He.. uh, 'she', I guess I should say... smiled up at me and told me that she'd never felt better. It was as if she didn't noticed the fact that she'd just been turned into a woman.

"Cary?" I gasped, stunned. "Cary, listen to me - there's been a horrible, horrible accident. The serum we gave you - it turned you into..."

"...into a woman." Cary finished with a slow, content smile. "Yes, I remember - and boy, does it feel wonderful. I've never felt so utterly happy in my life..."

While I was still staring at the woman I'd turned Cary into, she uncoiled herself smoothly from the bed and rose to her full height, standing on her tip-toes as she stretched gracefully and contentedly. Then, shooting me another one of those slow, smoldering smiles, she padded over to the mirror in the corner of the room we'd put her in, turning this way and that as she surveyed her new figure.

It was quite something to see, I'll admit. What had looked 'odd' on her as a man now looked stunningly exotic and erotic in her as a woman. She was slender and lithe, with smooth, bronze skin and long, dark hair. She had a sort of semi-Asian face with a tiny nose, full, pouting lips and dark smoldering eyes that would have made professional models green with envy. Her ass was taut and perfectly shaped, and her waist was amazingly slender and supple. Her body was perfectly toned, taut and sensual and so smooth and satiny that it had an inner gleam, as if she were a statue carved out of hand-polished Tiger's Eye, somehow brought to life.

If her body and face weren't enough, however, there was the original purpose of the experiments - her tits. Tits that were far larger than anything we'd expected.

Hell - they were downright huge. We'd done some measurements while Cary was still 'dazed' and had found that those massive, firm mounds of golden breast-flesh stood a full fifteen inches out from her ribcage - which would make her an 'MMM'-cup. They were huge and amazingly firm, and tipped with equally huge, dark, thick nipples that seemed to be permanently erect.

She was five-foot-five, with a 36-19-36MMM figure. She was an incredible, sexual vision... and it should have horrified her to no end. Instead, she lightly cupped her massive new tits and gave another of those incredibly sensual smiles.

"Well, I certainly blossomed, didn't I Rob?" She asked, turning to face me. "Perhaps they're a little large, honestly - but I think they're absolutely perfect. What do you think, stud?"

I stammered inarticulately. I had no way of answering that question - while being stunned that Cary would pose it at all. There was most definitely something wrong here...

then she looked over her shoulder at the mirror, turning slightly and standing on tip-toe again.

"Great ass and legs, too..." She said in a tone of self-satisfaction. "they'd look better in some heels, though. Think I could get some high-heeled shoes, handsome? Nothing too high, to begin with - I'll have to work my way up..."

I was flabbergasted.

However, Dr. Lands came in, and she didn't seem surprised when Cary repeated the request, assuring the new woman that she'd 'see what she could do'.

I found out why a second later as Dr. Lands showed me the final model of Cary's new blood work.

It seemed that the transformation itself was very, very pleasant - and that her new body was still trying to generate male hormones, which the virus immediately attacked and transformed into (very potent) female hormones. Which meant she was in a constant state of euphoria - and arousal. She was super-horny and very, very happy.

However, the model also revealed something else that was stunning:

We had our 'serum'. In Cary's new body, the original - and badly flawed - serum had created a type of special anti-body that defeated the built-in problems. Injecting a woman with some of Cary's blood would cause her to undergo a mild transformation, not only enlarging her bust but making her generally more attractive. The more you injected, the more effect the serum would have - without every 'overwriting' the original DNA, so that the woman would still look like herself - only better.

In short, Cary's altered body held a gold mine - but there was no way of replicating the serum from her blood. It only worked 'in situ'. To sell the new serum, we'd have to keep her around and 'bleed' her. She could make us a fortune... but we could only sell the serum as quickly as it was safe to 'bleed' her, since the active strands died quickly once out of her body. She'd have to be on a tight schedule to allow us to use her, meaning that she'd almost be a prisoner here in the complex - especially since she was worth millions, maybe even billions. We'd have to guard her just a little bit better than Fort Knox guards it's gold.

Assuming she agreed, of course. We couldn't just hold her against her will...

...and we couldn't cure her. Not that she seemed all that worried about being cured, which was a good thing - the modified strand of genetically engineered virus was so incredibly powerful that it made AIDS look like a sore throat. Even denting that new strain that was floating around in her body was unthinkable.

Taking a deep breath, I began to explain the situation to the new woman...

+ + + +

For some reason Rob seemed worried as he talked to me - and upset. Almost as if he felt he'd done something wrong in giving me this wonderful new body. I understood what he was asking, of course, and the limitations it'd place on me... but what did any of that matter, really.

"Oh, hush, handsome..." I said, sotily, approaching him. He'd sat on the edge of the bed, at the opposite end of the room - and with every step I took towards him, he seemed even more uncomfortable, especially embarrassed about the raging hard-on in his pant. I slowly licked my lips.

"I'd be happy to help you, Rob." I told him, putting my hands on his shoulders. "You would...?" He asked, immensely relieved.

"Of course. As long as you make sure I have some very nice personal apartments here in the compound, some nice clothes to wear, all the little trinkets and baubles I'd like..."

"Of course, of course!" He said, eagerly. "Oh - and one more thing." I said, sotily. "What's that?"

"This..." I explained.. and leaned forward, pushing these wonderful new tits of mine against his chest and kissing him...

+ + + +

She kissed me!

For a second, I was too stunned to react - then I pushed her away and scrambled out of her embrace. "Stop it!" I said, ashamed of the raging erection her very presence gave me. "This.. this isn't right!" She smiled at me. "Right or wrong, that's the deal, handsome. You keep me.. satisfied, or I walk."

Then she curled herself up on my lap again - and this time, when she kissed me, I 'forced' myself to kiss back. It was surprisingly easy. She's a hell of a kisser. It was wonderful...

Before I was truly aware of it, she'd pulled my head down to those massive tits of hers, and I began to fondle them while licking and sucking her nipples...

...and was surprised by a warm, rich flow of milk. I was startled, and swallowed almost instinctively...

...and found that it tasted absolutely wonderful. I'd never tasted breast-milk before, so I didn't realize that there was something different about how hers tasted. All I knew was that it was the most incredible flavor I'd ever tasted.

"Oh, yes..." she moaned. "Suck my tits, Rob - suck them dry..."

I certainly tried. Her tits were huge, and seemed to be creating massive amounts of milk - I barely made a dent in the production, though it was apparently enough to 'ease the pressure'...

+ + + +

Having my tits sucked was absolutely incredible. My new tits had huge, thick, highly-sensitive nipples, and having them sucked was almost like having mini-blowjobs performed on my chest. I gasped and moaned as Rob did his best to obey my command.

Finally, however, he was full - and so I figured it was time for me to do some sucking of my own. I gave him a quick kiss, then slid to my knees and eagerly opened his pants, setting free his thick, hard cock, making my mouth water. Eagerly, I opened my lips and leaned forward...

+ + + +

I don't know if Cary had ever 'experimented' before - but I knew that the blow-job she gave me was the most amazing I'd ever had. It was utterly spectacular - probably because she was really, really enjoying it. I could do nothing but moan in appreciation as she sucked and slurped at my cock, finally taking my load of cum with a deep sigh of utter contentment. Apparently, it was the most wonderful thing she'd ever tasted, as wonderful to her as her tit-milk had tasted to me.

It was the most unbelievable blow-job I'd ever experienced...

...and also the last.

You see, we'd tested her blood - but not her breast-milk. It turned out that it was laden with the retro-virus... and also special 'suppressants' normal milk carried, but boosted beyond belief.

It didn't kick in right away. It took a few hours, and I had time to experience sex as a male one last time, because as soon as I was able to perform again, she insisted on it.

However, while I was out grabbing a bite to eat, the change kicked in...

It was wonderful. Oh, I realize that it's the same thing that Cary went through, and I understand that I might not have felt this way before, but now I'm so happy to be a woman.

I drank an awful lot of that milk, and it's certainly had an effect - my titties are even bigger than Cary's are. In fact, Dr. Lands says I look like a cartoon 'bimbo', what with my huge tits, long legs, tiny waist and fantastic ass. That's okay - it gets the attention of all the guys, which is great because I just love fucking and sucking now - like Cary said, cum is the most wonderful flavor in the world. I could drink it all day long - and do, for the most part.

The virus got 'worn out' in my body, so I'm not 'contagious' - my blood's not the factory that Cary's is, which means I can go out and have fun. Sometimes I feel sorry for Cary, locked up in the complex - but she'd having sex all the time, and the staff just makes sure nobody drinks her tit-milk, except for transsexuals who want to be a woman, and then the amount they drink is carefully regulated so they don't become a super-nympho like me.

See, I just can't stop having sex. It's the first thing I think of when I wake up in the morning and the last thing I think of at night. Thanks to all the money my old company is making, I don't have to hold a job, so I can spend all day satisfying my wonderful new urges, which is great. Of course, I don't own the company anymore - you can't run a company when you have to stop every twenty minutes and fuck somebody silly. That's okay, though, because I don't want to run the company anymore, 'cause everything's all boring to me now.

Instead, I spend my time shopping for clothes to show off my wonderful new body, then use the clothes and my body to get guys to fuck me.

I've never been so utterly happy in my entire life...

The End

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: Two inept con men, trying to rent a sleazy apartment, unintentionally make a deal with the deal which leaves them as two lust starved bimbos who are willing to do anything for any man who comes to rent the apartment.

The Sale

By Gunslinger

"Okay, we're here." That tall, well-muscled brunet youth said, rather obviously flexing his muscles under his skin-tight T-shirt. "This had better be good."

"Oh, it is..." Morty replied with a big, greasy smile. Of course, everything about the short, swarthy, dark-haired man was greasy, from his slicked-back black hair to his oily skin. However, the only other thing on him that could be described as 'big' was the beer-gut hanging half out of his dirty 'wife-beater' undershirt and over the waistband of his dark-green/blue work pants. "I gar-ron-tee you that atier this, you guys will be eager to rent the apartment."

The second youth, a less muscular but still athletic man with short dark hair and a goatee, snorted. "Yeah, right - the place is practically a shit hole, it's smaller then what we want, and you're asking too much for it. Now you bring us to an empty warehouse across the street to convince us we should sign a two-year lease on the sucker? Not likely."

Morty's grin widened. "Just wait..." He gestured to the two young men and led them to a window overlooking the run-down tenement that stood on an over-grown lot on the edge of the industrial sector of town. He picked up an item that looked like a small satellite dish and handed it to the brunet youth.

"You know what this is, Tom?" Morty asked.

"It's Tim. Tim and Gary." The brunette said, angrily - obviously still miffed at the 'Tom and Jerry' that Morty had labeled them in his mind and actually used earlier.

"Whatever." The ferret-faced man said, waving a hand. He pointed to the object Tim held. "That is a parabolic mike - picks sound up like you wouldn't believe. Go ahead and wave it around, see what it does."

Tim snorted, but flipped the machine on and did as he was told. The sounds of the street came clearly through the headphones that Tim had placed on his head, and Gary slipped on the second pair and also listened.

"So what?" Tim finally said.

"So, the reason you're gonna rent that apartment will become clear in a few minutes. Aim it at the apartment next to the one I showed you." Morty said.

"What?" Tim spluttered, angrily. "Trust me - just do it." Morty insisted.

Tim did so - then frowned. "I don't hear anything."

"Just wait - it'll be any second now." Morty assured him, then gestured. "I gotta go make a phone call, but you guys just keep listening - you don't want to miss nuthin'."

Morty let the two young men crouched at the window, and retreated into the stairwell where they wouldn't hear his conversation. Pulling out a cell-phone, he quickly dialed.

"Yeah?" A cool, disinterested female voice answered. "Lynn, are you and Debbie ready?" Morty asked.

"Yeah, we're ready." Morty's friend Lynn - who worked as a phone-sex girl, as did her friend Debbie - answered dryly. "Them radio-things you gave us are working, too - we can hear those guys in the loti through the earphone like they was right next to us."

"Good - now remember, you're Barbi Brown, and you and a friend are just stopping by your apartment to change before you go out looking for guys to fuck silly. Make sure you and Debbie are convincing - I want these guys to think that the hottest nymphomaniac who ever lived is in the next apartment, and that she wished that a couple of handsome studs lived in the building so she wouldn't have to find new guys every night to fuck'n suck."

"Yeah, yeah - we know the script. We're supposed to listen to the guys remarks and tailor this supposed broad to their fantasies." Lynn replied, bored. "Now, you're paying us a hundred and fity a piece for this shindig, right?"

"If they sign, yeah." Morty said with a sigh. "They don't sign..."

"Then you pay us something anyway, you cheap bastard - or we ain't doin' it." Lynn insisted.

Morty rolled his eyes. "Look, you gotta have incentive, right? So, you get paid if they sign - and if they don't, I'll just cover your cab-fare. You don't make nuthin', but you ain't out nuthin'. Okay?"

"Okay." Lynn agreed. "Okay - we're goin' in now."

Morty winced and hung up the phone - he hated being fair. He'd rather do what he was doing now - proving he was smarter than dumb, hormone ridden jocks and tricking them into signing the contract. Atier all, once they found out it would be too late - and what were they going to do? Haul him into court because a nympho didn't live next door? If that was a liable offense, Morty could have sued every landlord he'd ever rented from.

God, this was the best plan he'd ever come up with. Sure, it would cost him about five hundred bucks - the cost of the girls, plus the parabolic mike from the Army/Navy surplus store. But it would be worth it - because ol' Dan 'poker up the ass' Garroway had made that promise...

Morty was only the building's super - Garroway owned the building, and got sixty percent of the rent. Well - sixty percent of what the rent was supposed to be. Since Morty collected the rent and did the books, he always rented for more than the set rate, and pocketed the difference - and on this apartment, the difference would be about two hundred extra a month.

But it was even better than that - 'cause Garroway had promised an extra bonus if Morty could rent out the worst apartment in the building - which was why he was showing that apartment to the boys, instead of the one where 'Bambi' supposedly lived. It was the other vacant apartment in the building, and actually much nicer - but Morty wanted that bonus so much that he could taste it...

Morty crept back into the room where the two guys were sitting, and leaned against the wall. He couldn't hear what was going on in the apartment, but he could hear how the two guys were responding to it.

"Holy shit... listen to her voice." Gary nudged Tim with a grin. "She sounds like she's in the middle of cumming just when she talks."

"No, no." Tim said, with a sigh. "She's a friend of whoever this Barbi girl is - and I bet you that when Barbi does get a word in, she's got a voice like a frog."

There was a short pause...

"Holy shit..." Tim said. "Okay, so I was wrong - damn, she sounds hot..."

Morty grinned - Lynn and Debbie were really good at what they did, and each had a couple of voices they used. He idly wondered which ones they were using - but he couldn't hear, so he let it go.

"Geez... they're strippers." Gary said with a grin. "So maybe only Bambi lives there - but she brings stripper friends home. Gorgeous women, bro - right next door."

"We don't know they're gorgeous... wait a second.." Tim pressed the earphones tighter to his head. "Hey - they're gonna get changed..." "Changed, hell - they're gonna shower together!" Gary laughed. "Wait.. the friend's undressing..."

Heads bowed together, the two youths shared a look as the two mythical strippers got into a discussion over who had a better body, and why...

Shaking his head, Morty went out to walk down the block and grab a cup of coffee. If the girls did their jobs right, he'd come back to find the two jocks eager to sign...

* * * * *

The two young men grinned at each other like idiots.

"Man, I can't believe it - she sounds like she'd have sex with any reasonably good-looking guy - or guys - who moved into the building." Gary shook his head in disbelief. "Man - we'd get so lucky..."

"I don't know..." Tim said. "I mean - do we really want to end up with one of us always getting 'sloppy seconds'. I don't know about you, but sharing one..."

He paused as the voice of Bambi's friend Ginger came over the earphones.

'Oh, Bambi - this is going to be so much fun from now on. I'm so glad you invited me to move in with you!'

Bambi's reply was lost to Tim as he frowned. Leaning close to Gary, he pulled the earphone away from his friend's ear and spoke very, very softly into his ear.

"Isn't it funny that every wish we have is instantly fulfilled?"

Gary looked at him oddly, comprehension warring with a desperate desire to believe.

Tim held up a hand. "Gee, Gary - I hope one of them really likes high, high heels. That's just so damned sexy..."

They waited... and the girls babbled on about this and that. Tim was about to make an apologetic shrug... when he heard them discussing what to wear tonight... and damned if 'really high heels' didn't slip into the conversation.

Gary looked doubtful - after all, it could have been sheer coincidence. Holding up a finger to Tim, he waited a second, then 'mentioned' to Tim... "Gee, I just thought of something. You know how some girls get scared because we're just so unbelievably big, muscular, 'manly' men? What if we move in and it turns out that they're afraid of us...?"

Again they waited... and before long, the girls somehow got onto the topics of what customers at the club turned them on when they danced... and how the really muscular men, body builder types, were the ones...

Sharing looks, the two youths began to slip 'tester' comments into their conversation...

* * * * *

Morty couldn't believe the two idiots. What did they need, a fuckin' engraved invitation? Surely they must be convinced that they'd be living next-door to the nympho twins, after it turned out that Bambi's friend was moving in with her.

But no.. they wanted to 'sleep on it' and get back to him tomorrow. Geez - what morons!

At least the girls had only taken cab-money when it turned out the guys didn't sign - and if they did sign, Morty didn't have to tell them. Although, he might - after all, the two-girl thing had been a stroke of genius. Since it was all a lie, having a girl each in the apartment was even better.

Finally he shook his head - if the two guys came back and signed, screw the girls. After all, they'd already gotten the cab-fare and though the guys had bailed.

"Mr. Throckmorton..."

Morty's head came up at the sound of the voice, and he cursed to himself as he watched Dan Garroway climb from his car, his slender body impeccably dressed in an inexpensive but well-tailored suit, and his short blond hair carefully styled.

Although he was only doing 'okay', Ol' Dan acted like he was upper-crust all the way, right down to the damned way he talked.

"Yeah, Dan?" Morty replied - knowing that Garroway hated being called by his first name as much as Morty hated being called by his last.

Garroway grimaced. "I hear you had somebody come by this morning about 2B. Have you rented it?" "Not yet, Dan - but prospects look good." Morty half-lied.

"Yes, I see..." Dan said, doubtfully. "I understand that 2A is vacant as well, is that right?" "Yeah - why?" Morty asked, warily.

Straightening his suit jacket and brushing of an imaginary speck of lint, Dan raised an eyebrow. "I'm thinking of using it as a second office, if it's suitable. Atier all, it's not earning me.. us.. anything right now, and since I'm buying several of the industrial buildings in the complex there to rent out, I might as well have a second office close by."

Morty rolled his eyes, knowing that the truth was that Dan was sinking the money he was spending on his current office to fund the industrial purchases, and needed a 'no-rent' office for awhile.

"Okay, Dan - follow me and we'll take a look at the 'partment, see if you can use it." Morty said - he didn't particularly want Dan working right in the building, but he didn't have much say in the matter. He led the well-dressed man inside, the outer door swinging shut behind them...

...and instant before Tim's car rounded the corner and pulled to a stop.

"I still say it's a crock of shit." Tim said, hauling the metal case out of the back of his car. "I mean - there was just to much coincidence, man."

"Yeah, but..." Gary wasn't quite ready to give up on the idea, his fantasies still swirling in his mind. "Before we blow it, we should make sure."

"Yeah, yeah..." Tim grumped - but, in truth, despite what he thought he also wanted the fantasy to be real. So he didn't complain too hard as he stood on the roof of his carefully-placed parked car and followed his friend up to the roof.

Quickly they uncoiled the rope they'd brought, along with which was a spool of 's' connector cable, taped to the roped with duct-tape every foot and a half. Opening the case, Tim extracted his palm-corder camera and plugged the one end of the cable into it while Gary hooked The End of the rope to the holder on the tiny camcorder.

Plugging the other end of the cable into a small battery-powered 'camp' TV with a five-inch color screen, he turned it so the could both see it as Gary slowly lowered the camera on the rope, with Tim, three feet to the right, keeping tension on the twine that was tied to the right-side of the palm-corder, allowing him to steady and/or turn the tiny video camera as they looked for gaps in the blinds to see into the apartment - and see what the story was.

* * * * *

"You'll never be able to rent that.. that..." Dan ground to a stop, unable to find an urbane word for apartment 2B.

In a show of good business sense, he'd looked at the cheapest apartment for his office first - which was wise on two counts. First, the income from the nicer apartment would be higher, so if either apartment could be rented out, it would make sense for the higher-rent one to go to a paying tenant.

Secondly, if he took the worst apartment in the building - he'd be safe from his impulsive promise of a bonus if it was rented. However, taking one look at the room had cured him of that worry.

Morty, however, appeared to be confident. "Dan, I'll tell you - I got a good prospect on the line. A couple of guys in their mid-twenties. They're thinking about it, and I'm sure that they'll call back tomorrow and take the place."

"I doubt it." Dan sniffed. "Even rats won't live there."

Morty smiled. "I threw 'em a hell of a pitch, Dan. Believe me, I'll swear my soul to Hell - give it right to the Dark Prince himself - to convince the boys of the 'less obvious' endearments of the place."

"You'd need Satan himself to sell that place." Garroway sniffed. "Good Gravy, man, I doubt you could rent that room if you practically gave it away - I'd give my soul to Satan too, if there was actually a way to convince a couple of men to pay the price you're asking for that place."

Morty grinned, knowing that the price Dan was thinking of was lower than what he was actually asking - but, then again, it was the cost for the 'fringe benefits...'

"C'mon, I'll show you th'other 'partment." Morty said, shaking out his ring of keys and searching for the right one for apartment 2A.

* * * * *

"Come on, come on!" Gary said in frustration. All the blinds were drawn and they were forced to find gaps in the loose-finning blinds, only seeing slim slices of things... when the wind wasn't playing with the camera, that is.

"Wait... there's something..." Tim said, trying to hold the camera steady. Then he sighed. "Oh - it's only the couch they were talking about."

* * * * *

"This here's the... what the!" Morty broke off, and Dan looked at him funny. "What's wrong?"

Morty pointed to the definitely out-of-place beige leather couch against the wall of windows. "That couch - it wasn't in her this morning!"

"What?" Dan asked, confused. "You mean.. somebody broke into an empty apartment and leti something." He sniffed. "That would be the definition of an inept burglar, wouldn't it."

Morty walked towards the inexplicably normal couch, Dan trailing behind, as the door softly swung shut behind them. The short, oily-looking man reached the couch, staring at it in confusion... then he reached out to touch it...

* * * * *

"Wait a second..." Tim said, leaning closer to the monitor. "I think somebody's in there..."

* * * * *

His finger's reached the leather couch...

Morty gasped as a strange tingling filled his hand. A faint odor, reminding him of burnt matches, wafted around him as he stared at his hand in shock...

...because it was changing. Both the one touching the couch and the one hanging beside him were tingling, as they became slimmer, finer, more delicate. The wrists that joined them to his arms also slimmed down in circumference as the flesh from the wrist to the tips of his fingers became lighter, with a slight pinkish hue to the delicate, feminine skin.

The tips of the longer, slimmer fingers were graced with nails that lengthened to a good inch long, and shifted in color to a bright, glossy red.

Horried, Morty yanked his hand from the couch and lifted both his altered hands in front of his face, staring at the tiny, dainty hands that now graced his dusky arms. Eyes wide, he wiggled his fingers at himself, verifying that they were, indeed, moving to his command.

"Holy shit. " Morty said in a strangled voice.

"Indubitably." Dan agreed with eerie composure - then he began backing towards the door, eyes flicking around nervously. "Well, as much as I'd love having an office in a cursed apartment, I'm afraid that this is simply not satisfactory "

* * * * *

"You see that, man?" Tim asked, and Gary nodded - a slender, undeniably feminine hand had slid through the tiny space that the camera could see.

"Come on. let's see if we can find a better gap to see through." Gary said, and they began moving the camera, looking for a better view.

* * * * *

"...really prefer a southern exposure from the windows. " Dan rambled on urbanely as his back came up against the door - then he dropped the 'calm' act and turned, tugging frantically at the handle.

The door refused to budge, the handle not turning so much as a millimeter either way.

"What the fuck's goin' on? Morty asked, still staring at his hands with a sort of horrified fascination.

"Dammit, man - don't just stand there!" Dan shouted, fighting with the door. Morty snapped out of his daze, and started walking towards the door. He was just about there. when he felt a tingling in his feet. Stopping dead, he stared down in horror as his feet and shoes began to writhe....

Dan let out a horrified 'yelp' as he felt the same tingling sensation in his own feet - and he alternated between staring down at his shitiing feet and at pounding on the door.

"Aaaaah!" Morty screamed, his stunned horror giving away to raging, horrified panic as he watched his feet shrink and become small and dainty with the same skin-tone as his altered hands. He could see his feet pretty well, because his shoes had also writhed and changed, forming into a pair of... of...

His knowledge of women's footwear wasn't broad enough for him to know what the style was called. All he knew is that they had six- inch stiletto heels on a sole who's upper was a series of thin black straps across the top of his altered foot and one running length wise, up the center of the foot to the top of the 'tongue, where the shoe's back was just solid enough to allow the whole thing to stay together, an open-toed high-heeled pump whose sides were basically and open weave of black leather straps.

Dan wasn't dealing with the alterations going on with him any better - the faster the changes went to his feet, the harder and more frantically he banged and rattled the immobile door.

Any changes made to his actual feet were inferred, as he couldn't actually see them as his shoes altered and became something else. Unlike Morty's new shoes, these ones didn't show off his new feet. But he could tell that his feet must be smaller, as they fit into a smaller boot that looked kind of like a feminized Army boot - just a little bit higher than the ankle, made of gloss-black leather, but with a blocky five-inch heel and a thick sole.

The changes, in each case, incorporated more than the foot itself, also altering the ankles and just slightly above them. Even their pant hems rose slightly to 'show off' the changes...

* * * * *

"Hey - we got feet." Tim said, trying to angle the camera upwards - but the gap only allowed them to see the definitely feminine feet and the ankles, no more.

"Damn!" Gary swore. "Okay - move the camera again..."

* * * * *

"What the fuck's goin' on?" Morty cried in mixed fear and anger, walking backwards away from the door, eyes darting about. Through the same malevolent magic that was altering them, he had no problems moving in the high, narrow heels - as if he'd been walking in heels all his life.

"Open up, curse you!" Dan shouted, his hard-won manners falling away and revealing the borough-boy who'd aspired to be a successful businessman as the horror and impossibility of the situation took its toll.

"It ain't opening, you fuckin' idiot!" Morty vented some of his emotions at his boss. "You fuckin' moron - if... whatever is doin' this to us can turn us into fuckin' broads, you think it can't keep a door shut!"

"Look, you...!" Dan said, whirling and starting to advance on Morty, barely noticing his easy stride in the new boots he wore. Then his intended target began to get taller....

Well - not all of him. Just his legs, which began to grow longer, slimmer and more shapely while the skin tone faded to lighter hue and the hair seemed to suck itself back into the follicles. It was easy to see what was happening to the super's legs, because his pants were rapidly rising upwards, flaring out in the center and changing shade.

His lower half wasn't the only one 'in revolt' - Dan's own legs were tingling, and they began to change as well. But, like the feet, the actual changes were implied by the new shape of his pants, which were becoming tighter and acquiring a shine. Within a few seconds, Dan was wearing a pair of shin-tight dark-blue spandex pants that outlined a pair of shapely legs, while rather ludicrously hugging his still masculine hips, ass and crotch, outlining the fairly small bulge.

Morty looked equally ridiculous in a skin-tight red leather miniskirt that revealed a pair of incredibly long, shapely legs completely out-of-proportion with the rest of his body... and gender.

* * * * *

"Oh... wow..." Tim whistled, staring at the monitor, and two pairs of legs it displayed.

* * * * *

"Nooooo!" Dan cried, staring down at his altered lower half. Turning, he fled for the bathroom...

...with each step he took, he changed further. The hips under the skin-tight pants he wore swelled outwards, ass did his ass - but the small bulge at the front slowly shrank inwards, as did his waist... which could be seen by the way his shirt altered into an electric-blue spandex T-shirt, hugging the slender curve of his waist...

...and the swell of his breasts, which gained mass and size behind the stretchy material, forming into a pair of firm, round double 'D' cups.

His hair writhed and became a mane of long, copper-red/orange hair, while his facial features altered swiftly, leaving him with a bright, cheerful-looking face with blue eyes and full, gloss-pink lips.

By the time he crossed the threshold of the bathroom, he was completely female in body, a cute, well-endowed redhead slightly shorter than his male form had been. Every stitch of clothing, every piece of jewelry matched her new look, and even her movements and expression were perfect for a cheerful, sexy young woman.

He... She.. matched the bathroom she entered, which had been empty a moment ago, but was now fully equipped with everything - in a very feminine style.

Well - slightly more than everything - because it was also equipped with a video camera that hung suspended outside the window - and she gaped at the small electronic device, which suddenly jerked upwards, disappearing from view.

* * * * *

"Damn - she saw it!" Tim cursed, hauling the camera up quickly. "Yeah..." Gary said with a silly look on his face.

"What the hell's wrong with you, man?" Tim demanded, angrily. Gary's smile turned beatific. "That...was Ginger. She's... perfect."

Ginger - Barbi's friend - had been the one that matched Gary's fantasy woman in every way.

"So what - what if they call the cops?" Tim asked.

"They won't, not if everything we heard was real - and seeing Ginger, I'd say it was." Tim stopped dead... then began to smile as he thought about Barbi.

"Well then..." He said, smiling. "Why don't we go introduce ourselves to our new neighbors?"

* * * * *

Morty stared as the remade woman walked from the bathroom with a smile on her full, sexy lips.

"Gee, Barbi - what's happened to me?" She said in a voice that almost sounded as if she were on the edge of coming. Her hands rose up to slide over her smooth, crotch, her expression widening. "I'm a hot little chick, now, Barbi. What's going on?"

She seemed locked into 'perky', with no chance of escape.

"Why the hell do you keep calling me that, Ginger?" Morty asked, angrily - then answered himself, gaping at the copper-haired cutie in shock as the name 'Ginger' emerged when he'd tried to say 'Dan'.

"Oh, no - fuck this shit." Morty said. "I'm outta here - and I don't care if I do break a couple bones on the way down." Swaying atop the high heels, he did his best impression of a sprint as he tried for the window...

...only to go sprawling over a coffee-table that appeared from thin air. Furnishings, new decor, even new carpet appeared in the space of a few seconds as the entire apartment became suitable accommodations for a couple of sexy, hot-to-trot strippers.

Morty pulled himself off the floor - but he was no longer Morty. Instead, the figure that straightened was a tall, sexy blonde, dressed in a red leather mini-skirt and a white T-shirt that clung tightly to her firm, round tits, a good three cups sizes larger than her friend's endowments. Her shoulder-length, curly blonde hair framed a face that was a study in vapid sensuality, and the way the skirt clung to her body showed that she was indeed 'all woman' now.

"Why is this happening to us?" She asked in a giggly, brainless voice.

Then there was a puff of smoke - and a tall, darkly handsome man in an expensive suit appeared before them. "Why.. I'm merely fulfilling the terms of our agreement, of course." He said urbanely.

"Who are you...?" Ginger asked - and helplessly found herself adding. "...handsome?" To The End of the question. Smiling, the man handed her a card.

B.L. Zebub

Prince of Lies, Dark Lord of the Netherworld, Defamer of the Young and Innocent, Attorney-at-Law.

1(800) 666-HELL

Ginger stared at the card - then at the man. "You.. You're..."

"Satan - yes." He smiled. "And we have an agreement. If I help you sell the apartment next door, then your souls are mine. I'm merely providing that assistance. However, the deal is only good until Midnight - which mean you have half-an-hour to get the two men about to knock on your door to sign the contract for the apartment. Now, if you'll excuse me..."

"Wait!" Barbi called - but she was speaking to empty air. She turned to Dan/Ginger, a ditzzy horrified look on her vapid face. "What are we going to do?"

"What do you mean?" Ginger asked. "We have a choice - eternal damnation, or life as nymphomaniac strippers." "You're right - we have to get them to sign." The new Barbi said, as firmly as her giggly new voice would allow. "No! We have to..." Ginger started to argue in her own 'I'm so horny' voice...

...and there was a knock at the door.

Barbi shot a look at Ginger - as close to a 'threatening' look that she could manage - then went to the door and opened it easily, revealing to relatively handsome young men.

"Oh... hi there!" Barbi helplessly squealed in 'delight' at the sight of two good-looking young men.

"Hi!" The brunette said, gesturing to himself. "I'm Tim, and this is Gary. We're thinking of moving in next door, and thought we'd see whether or neighbors recommend the apartment or not."

"Oh... I don't know about the apartment..." Barbi cooed. "But I certainly think having a couple of handsome studs living next door is a wonderful idea."

It was incredibly odd - she was deciding what she was trying to say, in general - but the actual words and phrasing came out in the perfect tone and structure for the air-head blonde bimbo that 'Barbi' was.

"I Ginger would agree with me." Barbi said... then turned to look at the new red-head. "Right, honey?"

Ginger looked at the two men, then at Barbi. "Well..." She said in her sexy new voice. "I'd love having a couple of hot, handsome studs living next door - but I don't know if they'd enjoy living there."

That was as close as she was capable of getting to being rude. She couldn't force herself to simply turn the guys away so she could talk to 'Barb' about her misgivings.

"Oh, ignore Ginger." Barbi told the guys with a grin. "She just moved in, and she's thinking of stealing that apartment for herself." She paused. "Why don't you boys come in?"

The guys smiled. "Sure, sounds great...?" He trailed off, pretending he didn't know who they were... "Barbi - and this is Ginger." Barbi said, opening the door wide to let the boys into the apartment.

The boys smiled and stepped into the apartment...

...and continued to walk forward, completely unaware as their bodies shimmered and reformed to match the descriptions they'd 'let slip' as 'tests' during their little eavesdropping routine.

In an instant, both men gained mass and height, becoming hugely muscled men, the seams of their clothing straining over their massive musculature - and over the massive bulges at their crotches.

"So... what do you ladies do for a living?" Tim asked in a now deeper voice as he settled onto the couch, his mind having instantly adjusted so that his new appearance seemed completely natural to him. His equally muscular friend settled onto the love seat across from the coffee table.

"We're strippers, honey." Barbi giggled. She did notice the change in the guys, as did Ginger - but they were unable to express the knowledge in any way.

"You guys want a beer?" Ginger asked with a smile - and when they agreed, she practically dragged Barbi into the kitchen to 'give her a hand.'

"What the hell are you doing?" Ginger asked when they were alone.

"I'm going to get them to sign the contract so this will be over and done with - what do you think I'm doing, silly?" Barbi asked, with a giggle.

"Barbi - if they sign that contract, we'll be selling our souls to the Devil - and we can look forward to eternal damnation and hellish torture for all eternity." Ginger explained.

"Oh - and I suppose you'd rather spend the rest of your life as a nymphomaniac stripper?" Barbi asked. "Go ahead - tell me that you're not so horny right now that you could fuck anything with a cock."

Ginger blushed slightly - both of the new women could feel the warmth and hormonal excitement racing through their new bodies, and they both had swollen nipples and hot, wet new cunts. Both of their bodies was not only utterly ready for sex, but practically demanding it - from the two massive and massively endowed men sitting in the living room.

"Well - what of it?" She asked, slightly miffed. "We have..." she glanced at the clock on the microwave. "...twenty minutes before time's up. I think I can last that long, easily."

"Yeah - well how about an entire life of it?" Barbi said. "Look, it's simple, honey - we go out there and seduce 'em. Fuck them silly, if we have to - as long as they sign the contract. Then, atier they do, we'll get changed back - then run to the nearest church for confession and contrition. Then we're all square with..." She found herself unable to name the deity directly. "...the big guy upstairs."

"Wait a second!" Ginger protested. "You're not saying that we go out there and..."

Suddenly her mind seemed to go blank, as if somebody else had taken control. Her smile widened, and on hand idly rubbed the skin-tight crotch of her pants. "...fuck their brains out... I love it..."

Shame and disgust flooded her at the realization that - hellishly imposed or not - she'd been made to lust atier men, to desire sex in all it's form. What really scared her was the certainty that if she did 'indulge' - she'd enjoy it, physically, very, very much...

"You got a better idea, Ginger?" Barbi asked with grin. "Maybe you want to skip fuckin' tonight - and end up doing it every night. You can't resist forever, you know - and if we don't do something, that's how long you'll be stuck like that."

As much as Ginger hated to admit it - Barbi had the 'best' plan in an untenable position. She knew that the transformed man didn't want to do this any more then she did - but Morty had always been the ultimate realist, and that carried over to her new form. If they wanted out of this, they would have to chose the lesser of two evils - go ahead and get the contract signed, then try to set it right with 'The Big Guy' and get out of eternal damnation. Atier all, they only had twenty minutes to get the apartment sold, but they'd have the rest of their lives to find a loophole in the theology contract...

"Okay..." Ginger said, her chipper new voice making her sound a lot more 'eager' then she really was. "Let's go... convince them." Grabbing the beers, the two new women jiggled and swayed back into the living room, huge smiles on their pouty, gloss-red lips.

"Here you go, honey." Barbi said with a smile, handing the beer to Tim. "We aim to please..." She put a very definite emphasis on the last word.

"So - you guys gonna move in next door, huh?" Ginger asked, less provocative then her co-companion in the torturous conspiracy. "We're thinking about it..." Gary said. "But the place is a real shithole."

"So, it's a little small and in bad repair - that can be fixed..." Ginger tried logic, though she 'draped' herself - a trifle awkwardly - on his lap, following Bambi's lead.

"Yeah, maybe - but it's over priced." Gary said.

"Oh - I don't know." Barbi said with a smile, pulling her firm, lush body tightly against Tim's. "Oh? How so?" Tim wanted to know.

"I'm not sure what it is... but there's just something about these old buildings that I find so... sensual..." She cooed, leaning forward to kiss the stunned young man. She made it seem natural, almost spontaneous - but every move was forced, and good acting from an accomplished liar hid the fact.

Ginger wasn't nearly as skilled as deception - but Gary didn't seem to find anything objectionable about her kiss.

"Just living in this building..." Barbi said, forcing her breath to come faster, as if she were excited, "...turns me on, for some reason..." "Me too..." Ginger lied, poorly - but, again, nobody seemed to notice.

"It makes me think about all the things I could do... would do..." Barbi continued, huskily. "If only there was somebody around to do it to..."

Then she slid from his lap and her hands reached for his pants...

Ginger could see where this was going - and she couldn't follow suit. No matter what happened, she couldn't force herself to suck a guy's cock....

..but...

Forcing a weak smile, she placed Tim's hands on her skin-tight pants. then reached for his. He got the 'hint', and began to peel the pants from her soti, smooth body as she fumbled with his, forcing herself to unzip his pants and push them and the underwear down, revealing an extremely large, throbbing cock.

Barbi was already past that stage, having gotten Tim's pants down around his ankles. Now, using all her skills at self-control and deception, she smiled up at him. then forced herself to lower her head and envelop the tip of his massive, ready organ with her lips.

Ginger didn't have the problem of forcing herself to act, and never got to find out if she would have - because Gary took control, and she merely didn't fight as he leaned forward and lay her on the coffee table, spreading her legs wide so he could...

She screamed as he penetrated her - the scream being of pain and horror at having his huge cock slide deep within her tight cunt. However, Gary didn't recognize it as what it was, and she quickly forced herself to cover with 'Oh, G... Hell, yeah, baby "

She wanted to scream her horror and disgust - but didn't dare as Gary began to fuck her hard and deep.

Barbi didn't have to worry about watching what she said - any sound she made was muffled by the massive cock that filled her mouth. Instead, she had to fight to keep the rhythm as she worked her hands up- and down his sweaty, throbbing shati, her mouth bobbing the little it could on the small part of his huge member that she could fit in her mouth.

Ginger found it easier and easier to 'fake' her role, as the pain turned to pleasure and began to build. Although disgust still rocked her, it was overshadowed by pleasure, and she let the screams and moans that welled up slip through her lips, as if this was what she enjoyed doing more than anything else in the world.

Too late, Barbi realized that Ginger might have the right idea - because there was nothing inherently pleasurable about what she was doing, even if it wasn't as utterly disgusting as she'd expected.

However, when Tim finally came, that changed - because a thick, gooey stream of hot, salty cum gushed from his cock, rapidly overwhelming her ability to swallow. It spilled from the sides of her mouth, but there was so much of it that that wasn't enough, and it actually spurted from each nostril as well as she struggled not to 'breathe'.

Finally he stopped cumming - just as Tim and Ginger started, screaming out two different 'deities' as they rocked on the table in the throes of ecstasy, and Barbi found herself envying the other woman as she struggled to pretend that what she'd just done was utterly fantastic... while trying to clear her cum-stuffed sinuses.

Finally, Gary and Ginger finished, and curled up half-naked on the couch, as did Tim and Barbi.

"See... that's what we keep having the urges for..." Barbi said, breathing shallowly through her mouth, feeling stuffed and mounted.

"Only.. there's never anyone around to satisfy them, and by the time we find somebody, it's faded a bit..." Ginger 'pouted', still shocked at the pleasure of female sex.

"Well. I guess we'd better take care of that, then!" Tim agreed after a quick look at Gary. "Gee... that's great!" Ginger said. "I just happen to have a rental contract here..."

She extracted from the table a copy of the contract that 'Morty' had made up, and the two boys signed eagerly.

"Now - why don't you boys run down and drop this in the super's mailbox, with a check for first and last, so you can move in as quickly as possible."

"It can wait a bit.." Tim said, reaching for her.

She 'pouted'. "Okay - but this doesn't mean anything until the super gets it, and he's planning to show the apartment to a couple more guys shortly..."

"Shit!" Tim exclaimed, hurrying to pull on his pants. If the other prospective buyers had been 'listening in' on the apartment right now...

The two men dashed out the door - and the instant the door closed, Barbi grabbed a box of tissue and blew her nose long and powerfully.

With a burst of smoke, Satan appeared in the corner of the living room and looked meaningfully at the door. "Well - I must say, it was close, but you were very... persuasive." He winked. "So - our agreement stands." "Yup." Barbi giggled. "We rented the apartment. So - change us back, and we'll..."

"Back?" Satan interrupted. "Change you back? There was no part of our agreement where we discussed changing you back. This is permanent."

The two ex-men stared at each other in horror. "Then why in... then why would we worry about getting the contract signed?" Ginger asked, angrily. "What's in it for us, if you don't change us back?"

Satan laughed. "Why... nothing at all. No matter what you did - or didn't do - you are to be Ginger and Barbi for the rest of your lives. Atier which, your souls belong to me!"

"Oh, no you don't!" Barbi said, angrily. "You aren't getting us that easily. We can always get out of your rigged game by going to church and confessing our sins. The Big Guy will grant us absolution - especially since this was a crooked deal!"

Satan didn't seem upset in the least. "Partially true - He might grant you absolution, He might not. But the deal was never crooked - you just didn't bother to argue the terms." He held up one slender hand. "However... the covenant of free-will means that I can 'play' with your minds, but not make you slaves to my will. Therefore, although I've altered your sex drive and changed your sexual skills, what you do for the rest of your life is still a matter of free will. You might even be able to get out of the transaction where I get your souls - and I must admit that it was perceptive of you. Most people I deal with think it's hopeless, so throw everything they have into debauching for the rest of their earthly lives."

"So?" Ginger asked, still angrily stunned at the news that she'd be spending the rest of her life in this body. "So, I'll give you a chance to get your old bodies and lives back." Satan said - getting their full attention. "How...?" Barbi asked, warily.

Satan smiled. "Well, obviously, I can't guarantee that I'd get your souls in The End, anyway - and, because of free-will, you'll probably live pretty 'boring' female lives from now on, only 'giving in' to your urges occasional and shamefully. Quite frankly - that's no fun at all to watch."

"So...?" Ginger asked, cautiously.

"So - here's my deal." Satan said. "You two will compete - in seduction. It's quite simple - every time you meet, arouse, then cause to ejaculate a different man, you get one 'point'. Whoever manages to get a fifty 'point' lead I will change back into a man, plus give them a hundred thousand dollars and promise not to touch their souls, even if they live the rest of their male life in utter sin - the worst you'll get is a few centuries of limbo, then heaven. The loser - stays female, and her soul is mine when she dies. As part of this agreement, you MAY NOT seek out absolution if you are the loser. Plus - the bodies you are in, and your male bodies, will not age at all until a winner is determined - so the loser will start aging normally from this point, and the winner will be in his male body at the same age it is now, and will start aging normally at this point."

"But..." Ginger started to complain.

"This is a non-negotiable offer. Either you both agree, now, and have a chance at getting your male body back - or you're both stuck as women for the rest of your lives."

The two new women looked at each other...

* * * * *

Armstrong City, The Free State of Luna 38th of Quadrus, 2357

"Spasiba, honey..." Jin-Jin said, sliding the money into the sleeve-pocket of her one-off blouse, licking her lips clean. "I respect a chum with the flav-enhance... I love chocolate..."

"No huhu, chica..." The man grinned. "You got much talent - never had so good."

"Aim to please, chum." She said with a smile. Watching her latest client head off down the corridor, she ducked into Madame Fong's for an aleohol - with all the available flavors, it seemed three out of four guys went chocolate, and it was getting tedious.

Pushing thorough the raucous crowd, the one bare tit kept brushing across people, her massive globe with it's hyper-enhanced nipples causing shudders of pleasure as she pushed through. She had been hesitant about the size increase at first, but in the low-G sectors she worked it wasn't a problem, and it looked good on her, what with her new neo-Chinee make-over and all.

Getting close to the bar, she squirmed around a Marslander - but, as sometimes still happened, underestimated the clearance for her new tits, and bumped the tall, raven-haired woman.

"Enshuldigan, Tov.. You!"

The new look had thrown her - but though the hair was dark, the legs lengthened and the lips enhanced, there was no mistaking the face.

"I thought you were flatlanding forever, Ginger." The woman said, sneering.

"Going by 'Jin-Jin' now - and thought you were Marslanding for eternity." Jin-Jin retaliated.

She shrugged. "Was - but got bored. Going with 'Brinidi' now."

"Well, Brinidi - takes weeks to get to Luna from Mars. Musta fell behind. Perhaps you should quit now." Jin-Jin suggested.

Brinidi snorted. "No chance - didn't come commercial, came military courier. Crew of fitiy - and me designated joy-toy. No huhu - probably bigger lead."

"Slitch." Jin-Jin accused.

Brinidi grinned. "You too - and know it."

Jin-Jin smiled sarcastically... then her eyes narrowed at Brinidi's confident attitude. Who knows how many she might be behind... or how close she might be to winning.

"Scuse - gotta go." Jin-Jin said, deciding that the drink could wait. She began to head back for the door...

Brinidi watched her go... and decided that she'd better get back on the job. The courier had only really had a crew of thirty-eight, and she was two days 'behind'....

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: A private eye takes on a new case to find a missing person not knowing that he is being set-up by his wife and her friend for a new life as female with a completely new identity.

The Sam Scam

Part One

By Gunslinger

"Mr. Browning, your one o'clock is here."

Looking up from the completely irrelevant papers I was perusing in order to project the image of a busy man, I caught sight of Veronica giving me 'the death glare'; understandable, considering how much she hated 'playing secretary'. However, the woman who was the "& Associate" on our letterhead was first and foremost a consummate professional - she'd preceded the client into the office, and he couldn't see the look she privately shot at me. When she turned to the client and gestured him towards a seat, asking for and taking our orders for coffee, she was all professional smiles and polite efficiency.

As Veronica busied herself with coffee and pastries, I took the opportunity to look over Mr. Jacob Goldstein, our rather enigmatic new client.

He was about my own age, so mid-to-late thirties. Also like myself, in reasonable shape without being overly 'built'; i.e., a health-club physique, rather than hard labor or bodybuilding. Well dressed in an expensive suit, but of fairly conservative cut and color. Shoes, belt and briefcase were all close-grained black leather. The buckle on the belt and the hardware on the briefcase were gold-plated, rather than polished brass; the handle of the briefcase was real hardwood, rather than patterned plastic. Carried himself with a comfortable assurance, but without any overt arrogance.

All in all, that made him either a high-priced lawyer or a mid-level politician; given the lack of a little American-flag lapel pin, I would bet on lawyer.

With coffee in hand, I decided to get straight to the point: "So, Mr. Goldstein, why do you need a private investigator?"

He paused to sip some coffee, and when he finally spoke, it was with the air of a man picking his words with care.

"For many years, my firm has represented a certain, rather private, individual..." Goldstein began.

I firmly squashed the urge to raise an eyebrow - 'My' firm, rather than 'our firm'. Very interesting. Instead, I made the noncommittal 'uh-huh' sound that meant "I am listening and I understand, please continue."

"Recently, our client passed away, leaving his estate in our hands." Goldstein continued.

"Uh-huh."

"It is a rather... substantial estate." "Uh-huh."

"Although this estate has been placed in trust, it is in trust to a single person."

"Uh-huh."

"His daughter." "Uh-huh"

"His illegitimate daughter." "Oh ho!"

"Precisely." Mr. Goldstein agreed, favoring me with a tight 'we are both men of the world' smile and nod. "While he never acknowledged her parentage publically - or legally - while alive, the client did arrange a 'blind trust' for her education and so forth, designed to give her the best and most comprehensive education possible. However, she seemed... less than academically inclined, shall we say? This upset him, and for the first - and last - time, my client communicated directly with his daughter, demanding she pay more attention to her studies. They quarrelled, and the parting was anything but amicable."

"They each vowed to have nothing to do with the other." I surmised, aloud.

"Exactly. However, on his deathbed, my client had a change of heart, and leti everything to her... but still did not wish for his 'youthful indiscretion' to become public knowledge, hence the trust." Goldstein explained.

"...and, atier cutting off communication, she seems to have vanished." I filled in the gaps that would, logically, lead Goldstein to the door of Samuel Browning & Associate. "Even if she hears of his death, she is going to assume she was disinherited, and you can hardly run full-page ads in all the major newspapers without somebody twiggng to your client's secret. So, you want her found, and informed, discretely."

"Hence, yourself." Goldstein agreed, litiing his briefcase and placing it on his lap. Snapping the catches, he extracted a bulging legal-sized manila envelope, and placed it on my desk. "Here is everything we have on her, up to the time of her disappearance."

A much smaller, but still well-filled letter-sized envelope was laid atop its larger brethren.

"...and your retainer, equivalent to one quarter your final fee, should you succeed."

Despite temptation, I opened the larger of the two envelopes.

Elizabeth Louisa Albright. Currently aged twenty-eight years, whereabouts unknown. Putting aside more detailed records of upbringing and schooling, I turned to the copy of her driver's license. The photo showed a relatively unremarkable woman, with a shaggy, shoulder-length mane of medium- brown hair that matcher her eyes. Vitals revealed her to be somewhat taller than average, and given the data and the photo, she was probably on the athletic side: her weight was slightly high for her height, but the face in the photo was slightly 'mannish' rather than pudgy, so I assumed muscle-mass rather than fat.

Then I opened the smaller envelope - and whistled.

"That, of course, is yours, regardless whether or not your firm is the one to find Miss Albright." Goldstein informed me - and I twigged almost immediately.

Well, he'd never said anything about this being an exclusive arrangement, and competition was good for the something or other... but it didn't mean I had to like it.

Still and all - the retainer was a nice chunk of change, come what may. Still, finding her would net cash three times as 'nice' as the retainer....

"We'll do our best," I assured Goldstein, sincerely.

He responded by litiing his coffee mug in salute, so I picked up my own, in turn, and took a long and self-satisfied drink...

* * * * *

The actor she had hired to play 'Jacob Goldstein' stepped out of Sam's office and gave Veronica Reyes a thumb's up.

Smiling wickedly, Veronica let the actor out of the office, and then headed with an eager stride towards the private office of Samuel Martin Browning, private investigator, ex-actor, and chauvinistic asshole extraordinaire.

Veronica had dosed Sam's coffee with a fairly powerful hypnotic inducer, and had tasked 'Jacob Goldstein' with finding a way to make sure Sam drank the entire cup; the gesture the actor had made on leaving had been to indicate success. Now, Veronica smirked as she saw Sam staring at the packet of info on 'Elizabeth' with a stare that was almost as empty as the coffee cup sitting close at hand.

Right now, Sam was extremely suggestible... and the most beautiful part about it was the fact that he had no idea that he was.

Sidling up behind Sam, Veronica peered over his shoulder at the image of the woman he was studying... or, rather, the heavily computer manipulated image of Sam's own face that Veronica had commissioned to represent the fictional woman she - and her 'partners in crime' - had carefully created for this.

"You know, she looks a lot like you..." Veronica 'casually' mentioned....

* * * * *

So intently had I been studying the Albright file, I didn't even notice Veronica come in. When she spoke, it startled me out of the studious mood I'd been in, leaving me feeling strangely disconcerted and disconnected from reality, almost as if I were slightly dazed.

"Huh ?" I grunted - hardly my wittiest repartee, but I hadn't really tracked what she'd said, and the grunting response was almost instinctive.

"I said, 'It's amazing how much you look like Elizabeth Albright', Sam." Veronica said, staring me right in the eye. She laughed a little. "Maybe you should wear a dress and some make-up and claim the money yourself. You could certainly pass for her, if you tried."

I stared at Veronica for a long moment, confused - and then, suddenly, realized that her laugh had meant that she was joking.

"Oh, yeah... heh." I replied, weakly even as I found myself eyeing the photograph with a new perspective.

Now that Veronica had mentioned it, there was a pronounced resemblance between myself and Elizabeth Albright, at least in terms of facial bone structure. Veronica may have been joking, but the more I looked at the photo, the more I was certain that I could, indeed, pass for Elizabeth with a little bit of work.

If I'd wanted to. Which I didn't. Of course.

But still...

Smiling, Veronica pulled up a chair to go over the case with me - and, very considerately, poured me a fresh cup of coffee before beginning the discussion of how to tackle this particular case.

It wasn't long before the topic turned to Elizabeth's condominium unit. It was not only a yearly lease, but had been paid for yearly, up-front. There was still more than a month before the year was up, which meant that the unit was still hers, for the moment. As far as anybody could tell, she hadn't 'officially' moved out, and so at least her furnishings were still inside the unit. There was also a fairly good chance that there would be some indication of where she'd gone... the problem, of course, was getting inside to find it.

We neither had her keys nor any way to get our hands on a copy set of them. 'Breaking in' - picking the lock, actually - was doable from a technical perspective, but there was a problem there, as well. The layout of the complex put her unit in a courtyard area. Anybody picking her lock would be in full view of several other units, not to mention shared communal space in the form of a small park in the center of the courtyard. Onlookers might not be able to tell if I was picking the lock or not, but just some stranger working at a tenant's door would be suspicious enough.

As we'd been discussing the problem, a completely off-the-wall idea had been floating around in the back of my mind, resisting all attempts to banish it. No matter how hard I tried to ignore the completely absurd idea, it kept returning - indeed, each reiteration almost stronger than the last.

In fact, it even came as a complete surprise to me when I suddenly blurted out: "...but it wouldn't look suspicious if it wasn't a stranger trying to get into the unit."

"Well, that's certainly true..." Veronica mused, topping up my coffee. "We don't know any of her friends that would qualify as 'frequent visitors' enough to avoid suspicion, though... and, even if we did, I imagine we would have a very hard time convincing them to pick the lock for us, even assuming they knew how to pick locks in the first place!"

Veronica had, of course, completely missed what I'd actually meant by my blurted comment... and quite rightfully, too, as it was completely ludicrous, even to me.

Which was why I was surprised - nay, shocked - to find myself clarifying my meaning somewhat.

"Elizabeth herself wouldn't raise any suspicion, no matter how long she stood fiddling with the door to 'her' unit..." I found myself clarifying - albeit obliquely, thankfully.

Veronica also missed the meaning behind my statement, instead snorting a laugh: "If Elizabeth was available to let us into her apartment, we wouldn't need to get inside to figure out where she had gone!"

'Shut up, Shut UP, SHUT UP...!' I screamed to myself, internally...

...and then opened my mouth and said: "Well, no, I meant that I could make myself up to look like Elizabeth "

* * * * *

"Oh, God, it was glorious..." Veronica laughed in delight. "You could literally see him trying not to make the 'sissy suggestion'..."

She had to break off for a fresh gale of laughter at the memory.

"Go on, go on..." Lillian - Sam's first ex-wife - urged, eyes bright with second-hand excitement.

"...and then the look on his face when he went ahead and spit it out, anyway!" Veronica finished - and all three women burst into laughter at the thought.

"Oh, that musta been priceless..." Candi squealed.

Candi was the second ex-Mrs-Browning... and a greater difference between her and Lily simply couldn't exist.

While certainly not ugly, Lily was... plain. A fact only highlighted by her 'jeans and flannel shirt' fashion style, which distained make-up and other 'fripperies'. A sensible, hard-working daughter of a Pennsylvania miner, she had supported Sam through acting school, and through the first two years of his acting career...

...at which point, Sam had gotten the lead in a series, and almost immediately divorced Lily in favor of Candi.

Candice Carruthers was... well, 'eye candy'. A leggy, busty blonde who liked to look and dress 'pretty', she wasn't exactly the sharpest tool in the shed. She was pretty 'high maintenance', and Sam had divorced her when he'd lost the series, and its income...

...but while she was no genius, Candi wasn't stupid. A very good lawyer had gotten her a very good settlement - and the same lawyer had also arranged for Lily's original, rather meager settlement to be increased, leaving Sam rather broke.

Given his seven-year stint playing a private eye on TV, Sam had decided to become one in real life, using his minimal fame as an advertising gimmick for his new career. Of course, the real professional at Samuel Browning & Associate was Veronica... who was treated more or less like a secretary, despite doing the majority of the actual investigative work.

In short, the group was made up of three women who had little reason to like one Sam Browning... and who had decided to do something about it. Even more poetically, they were doing it with 'his' money - or, at least, money that had once been his. As far as all three women were concerned, the expenditure was well worth it.

At least, theoretically.

If it worked.

'The Plan', as the three women referred to it, had actually been underway for more than six months. The sort of effect they were going for couldn't be achieved over night, nor could it be rushed - the only reason why Sam wasn't questioning some of the things that were happening was the fact that Veronica had been slowly and subtly drugging and influencing him for the entire 'covert period' of the plan. He was unaware of being drugged these days because the dosages he'd been getting had been oh-so-slowly increased over time.

However, the women were all newly excited about The Plan because it had finally moved into the overt phase... and already observable results were making it worthwhile, even if the final objective was never fully realized.

Not that any of them were quite ready to give up on the dreamed-about 'final objective', of course.

"What happened next...?" Candi demanded.

Putting on an artful show of innocence, Veronica said, "Why, like any good 'associate', I agreed to help with the boss' plan..."

* * * * *

My heart pounded as I approached the complex that housed Elizabeth's unit... but, strangely enough, it was more from some sort of odd excitement than from shame and fear, as I would have expected.

Part of that, I supposed, came from what it had taken for me to get to this point - for a lot of my shame and fear and had been 'burned out' in preparation for this... not to mention submerged in plain old, everyday pain.

I'd never realized just how much 'looking good' for a woman could hurt!

As much as I would have liked to be angry at Veronica over just how much she'd obviously enjoyed inflicting various painful humiliations on me, I simply couldn't bring myself to do so. Not only was it intellectually understandable, but the fact was that I had asked her to 'help' me, even if I had understood neither exactly what I was letting myself in for, nor even exactly why I was doing this. Oh, I now realized part of it, thanks to some off-hand comments Veronica had made - atier all, as she'd pointed out, I had not only been an actor, but was a frustrated actor, without an outlet for the creative use of my crati. Surely part of this strange excitement I was feeling came from being able to 'play a part' once more.

Moreover, as she'd also mentioned, there was the aspect that appealed to my vanity - atier all, this was not only a more challenging part than any I had ever played before, but one with greater consequences.

Which, I supposed, was why I was 'willing' to go to greater - and more painful and humiliating - lengths to prepare for the role, even if I hadn't been consciously aware of the motivation at the time I'd agreed to it.

Still and all, it hadn't made 'waxing' off my facial hair any the less painful...!

With some coaxing from Veronica, I had removed practically all the hair from my body - but for everywhere else, I had used an electric razor. That, in and of itself, had been humiliating enough, but not so much physically painful as 'uncomfortable', leaving my skin feeling raw and tender. However, Victoria had pointed out that the facial hair was much more important, and having under-the-skin stubble, such as that leti by razors, just wouldn't do. Hence the 'waxing'.

It was actually a mix of sugar, honey, and beeswax... and that came atier a lemon-juice based mixture that first loosened the follicles. Strips of cloth coated in the 'wax' had been applied to my talcum-powdered face... and then, clearly enjoying herself, Veronica had ripped the strips, and the hair now attached to them, away with a flourish.

Still and all, I had to admit that the overall effect had indeed leti me with a more 'feminine' look that shaving would have... and that realization had allowed me to experience the oddest reaction, and equal amount of shame and pride, that I still haven't quite figured out how to cope with.

This was problematical, since that was the emotional mixture I was experiencing right now, walking around in public as a woman.

Oh, I wasn't the most 'girly' woman, by any stretch of the imagination - I was wearing sneakers, jeans, and a sweatshirt, atier all. But they were women's jeans, sneakers and sweatshirt... under underneath them, I was wearing an 'extra coverage firm-control body shaper'... which was some sort of 'cheater' undergarment that I hadn't even known existed until Veronica had provided one for me. Apparently designed to 'enhance' a woman's curves, it was a padded garment that gave me the illusion of fuller hips and ass, slimmer waist, and a modest bust.

Not to mention, no matter how 'minimal' Veronica assured me the scheme was, I was wearing make-up. The very scent of it hovered around me in an undeniably feminine aura, and I could feel the low-gloss lip-gloss every time I nervously licked my lips.

I was also wearing a wig that approximated Elizabeth's own style, and as 'unisex' as the wig might have been, it still reminded me I was wearing it to impersonate a woman.

The shame was easy enough to understand - the part I was having trouble with was the pride, even the excitement, I was feeling.

Walking boldly through the central courtyard to the door of 'my' unit, I reached into my purse - (there is a phrase I thought I would never use) - and removed the pick and torsion wrench. It took me a couple of minutes to pick the lock, but I did so with confidence in my disguise - despite being in full view of a dozen other units.

Soon enough, I was in 'my' condo, and I began to take a look around.

'I' had not only leti the place fully furnished, but almost complete stocked with all of 'my' personal belongings. A bit bemused at the veritable treasure trove of 'my' life, I began opening cupboard, cabinets and drawers, discovering more about 'myself' at every turn.

Then I reached the bedroom.

The bedroom, with the en suite bathroom separated from the bedroom proper by a hallway-like walk-in closet.

A closet full of Elizabeth's clothes.

...and right now, I was 'trying to be' Elizabeth. An urge...

No.

A compulsion came over me. It was irrational, and I knew it was irrational, but that didn't matter. It was overwhelming - a need to know how 'Elizabethan' I was able to be, how successfully I could actually step into her life.

Almost frantically, I found myself stripping down to that body shaper. I felt exposed, afraid, humiliated - but I couldn't stop myself. The clothes I had come into the unit wearing weren't Elizabeth's clothes, weren't 'my clothes'; in fact, looking at the closet, they weren't even 'my' style. They were all wrong, and made me feel 'wrong', and I needed to make it 'right'.

To some degree, it was my own vanity at work - my certainty, as an actor, that I could pull off a role better... but never had I had that vanity hit so hard, so fast, and be so resistant to logic or rationality. The strength of my own compulsion to be the best Elizabeth I could scared me - and humiliated me, even as I pulled on a brown floral-print summer dress.

It fit almost perfectly, and the wave of pride over that fact scared me even more - even as I was reaching for a pair of leather sandals with a short, broad heel.

Then, atop those heels, I found myself going into the bathroom and washing off Veronica's make-up so that I could apply 'my' own, and even used 'my' perfume so that I smelled like Elizabeth.

Like 'myself'.

Once I was done, I knew I didn't really look all that different than I had entering the unit... but I felt completely different.

More authentic. More Elizabeth.

...and I couldn't make myself 'change back'. Not here and not now. I could see myself changing back into my male persona, at home... but not into my poorer faux Elizabeth persona.

So, wearing 'my' clothes and make-up, I finished searching the bedroom - and hit the mother lode.

I knew from my... Elizabeth's file that we had dual citizenship thanks to our Canadian mother. What I hadn't expected was to find the Canadian passport and Ontario driver's license in the dresser drawer.

Actual, real identification for Elizabeth. Legal identification for me...

...and the diary also stored in the drawer provided all the private details of our life.

That half-formed thought came roaring back and hit me like a freight train. I really could do it.

I could 'become' Elizabeth.

I could become heiress to a fortune...

I began to hyperventilate. I tried to push the thought aside, to ignore it, to tell myself that I was being completely ridiculous... and yet, I couldn't.

I could do this. I knew I could do this...

...and, much to my shock, I wanted to do this.

Oh, not that I wanted to be a 'sissy' or 'tranny' or 'faggot'. The idea of pretending to be female horrified and disgusted me.

The problem was, it was the thought of 'being female' for the sake of looking and acting female that disgusted me. I would never do anything so 'sissy' as an end onto itself...

...but as the means to an end, especially when said end was 'being stinking rich', was a different matter.

Just as with 'dressing up to get into the condo', as a means to an end, the idea of 'playing Elizabeth' was still humiliating... but it was also exciting, as an ultimate test of my acting abilities, wherein the prize was well worth the risks.

I tried to dismiss the thought, to ignore it, to convince myself that it would never work... but I was successfully wearing the 'right' clothes for it. I had legal identification that would identify me as Elizabeth Albright. I had our diary to give me all the details I needed to know.

Panting, struggling, I fought against the urge to do this... To Be Continued...

SUMMARY: A private eye takes on a new case to find a missing person not knowing that he is being set-up by his wife and her friend for a new life as female with a completely new identity.

Part Two

In the unit next to the one supposedly rented to Elizabeth, Veronica watched through the hidden camera behind the bureau mirror in the bedroom. Speaking clearly, she urged Sam to give in to the compulsion, urged him to go ahead and devote everything - all his attention, skills, everything - into being the best Elizabeth he could be. The microphone picked up her words, transmitting it through hidden speakers in the next unit at a level too low to be noted consciously... but, in Sam's state, still able to influence his wide-open mind.

She watched as he fought the idea - the need - to become the most perfect Elizabeth he could...

...and she watched him fail.

Laughing, Veronica watched as Sam packed two suitcases full of clothing, toiletries and personal effects, watched him fill a large purse with identification and jewelry, and knew that the 'overt portion' of The Plan was just beginning.

* * * * *

"How is your study of the journal going...?" Veronica asked - and had to hold back a laugh as the overly casual response came back through the phone handset, sounding so utterly, completely, unmistakably normal:

"I really think there are some valid clues in here, at least at first glance..." Sam replied.

What made Veronica have to pull the phone away from her face to hide stifled guffaws was the ludicrous - and contrary - image on her office laptop screen.

She'd had no problems at all with getting into Sam's apartment and fully fitting it out with microminiaturized surveillance equipment - she hadn't even needed to risk 'litiing' his keys, since his first ex, Lily, had been given a copy of his key 'in case of emergencies'.

As with the condo she'd set up as belonging to the non-existent 'Elizabeth Louisa Albright', Veronica had outfitted Sam's apartment to allow her to use subliminal communication to enhance Sam's newfound compulsion to 'play' Elizabeth.

It had certainly paid off.

This explained what was so incongruous - so jarring - about that oh-so- casual, undeniably male voice coming from a feminine figure wearing a pastel blue sundress, cotton balls between the toes, carefully and conscientiously applying a cheerful red coat of polish to carefully shaped toenails.

"In fact..." Sam continued, sitting back and lighting up a long, slender 'chick stick' cigarette, "...I think I'll have to head out of town for a while to follow up on the leads. You good with running the office solo for a while?"

"Oh, I think I can manage..." Veronica somehow managed to agree in a level voice. She briefly wondered whether Lily and Candi - who could access the feed remotely as well - were watching this, or simply recording it for later enjoyment.

The 'right' answer would have been 'both', of course...

"Okay, great!" Sam replied. "I'll probably also be out of touch. I'll get a hold of you when I can, but don't worry if you don't hear from me until I get back into town..."

* * * * *

As I said goodbye to Veronica and hung up the phone, I found myself worried... over the fact that I wasn't more worried.

I certainly hadn't anticipated just how difficult it would be to speak in my real...

...I mean, in my normal...

...I mean, in my male voice.

I realized I was breathing more rapidly than normal, as if just thinking about the 'two voices' I could use was some sort of difficult labor - or as if the thought of my 'real' voice being male was nearly enough to cause a panic attack.

So, I probably should have been really, really concerned over the fact that thinking of my 'real' voice being the male one was nearly enough to induce panic - but I wasn't. Atier all, I was Eliz... pretending to be Elizabeth, and the fact that it took quite a bit of conscious effort to pretend to... to 'drop out of character' was a good thing - wasn't it?

It must be - that was the only logical, rational reason for me to be... well, practically panicked at the mere thought of being caught 'pretending' to be a man who, for some reason, looked like Elizabeth Albright.

So, there was no reason for me to be all that worried over what was, really, simply a straight-forward defensive mechanism that would help me 'stay in character'. Atier all, I was one-hundred-percent sure that I didn't really want to be female, and so that meant that I was 'fine'.

...right?

Reassured, I waited until the polish on my toenails was dry, and then headed off to pack.

* * * * *

Sam... Elizabeth's choice of Reno, Nevada had been very deliberate. He... she had needed to find a place where Elizabeth Louisa might have very plausibly gone, yet which Elizabeth Samantha was pretty sure she hadn't. The idea, atier all, was for following investigators to find her, Elizabeth Samantha Albright, rather than the real... than the other... than that imposter, Elizabeth Louisa Albright.

What 'Elizabeth Samantha' could not possibly know, of course, was that - being a fictional construct - 'Elizabeth Louisa' could/would/did go wherever Veronica Reyes decided was best....

...as long as Veronica could pull it off, of course. Which wasn't all that hard to do, since the salon owner hadn't seen any harm in 'playing a prank', especially when she was being so well compensated for it. The owner, one Marge Lithgow, had studied the supplied photograph closely.

So, when she saw the surprisingly passable crossdresser wandering up the sidewalk, Marge quickly made an excuse to her current client, handed him off to one of the other beauticians, and quickly headed for the door.

"Liz ?" Marge called out, making herself sound both uncertain and a little annoyed. "Liz Albright, is that you ?"

The 'woman' who had already passed the salon by the time Marge ducked through the door came to a sudden stop - and the look that 'she' threw back over a broad shoulder was both shocked and frightened. Seeing the oh-so- carefully made up face and admittedly well-styled hair, Marge was struck once again how passable a woman this man made. In her line of work, Marge had quite a bit of experience with men who liked to look like women, and she knew this one would fool most casual observers.

"Oh, uh hi!" The transvestite - transsexual, perhaps - replied, trying to pitch a nervous tone to sound like a surprised, but delighted, delayed recognition.

Amazingly, 'she' almost pulled it off, leaving Marge a bit stunned at the acting skills so quickly and expertly deployed. Atier all, though being paid to play this part, Marge had never met 'Liz' before, and vice versa... and yet, exactly as predicted by the woman who had paid Marge, this 'Liz' was jumping right into the 'improv scene' Marge had just set in motion.

"What the hell have you done to yourself...?!" Marge demanded in mock outrage. "I thought you said you loved that 'Goth/Glam' look! We spent weeks getting it 'just perfect' for you...!"

"Oh - it was, it was... I mean, it is!" This 'Liz' character quickly assured her. Impressively, the 'woman' managed to glance at the sign, guess who Marge must be, and address her by the name listed under 'proprietor': "It's just that it was too perfect, Marge - once I let Reno, I just couldn't find anybody to make it look that good again!"

"Well, since you are back in Reno, we can get you all glammed up again - I even have a time-slot free right now!" Marge said, enthusiastically. The enthusiasm was real, given how much money she'd been promised by the strange lady - IF she got this 'Liz' to come in for the makeover the woman had described.

"Oh, well, I..." The 'woman' said, clearly uncomfortable, despite 'her' formidable acting skills.

Taking a deep breath, Marge also took control, walking over to lightly grip the arm of 'the other woman'.

Manufacturing a pretty realistic-looking smile, 'Liz' let herself be led, still mildly protesting, into the salon...

* * * * *

Shit, shit, shit, SHIT!

I thought I had figured it out so perfectly. With the diary, I had been certain I was getting deeper into character, getting perfectly in tune with Eliz... myself.

Yet, obviously, I was wrong in believing that she... I would not have come to Reno - and, as a result, I now had no choice but to pretend to... er, to let Marge do to me what she had done last time I was here.

Even worse, I had to keep up the customary salon small-talk with Marge as she worked. She kept nattering on about all the things 'we' had talked about last time, and my mind was whirling as I struggled to stay in charac... as I struggled to remember the conversations she was rehashing.

The fact that I was getting... succeeding, however, created a sense of pride and pleasure that was a little frightening in terms of intensity.

"...although, I'm a bit surprised you didn't get the surgery..." Marge commented, busy turning my medium-brown hair into a lustrous mass of blue-black waves. The tight curls she was going to arrange the last three inches of my hair into was waiting for the dye-and-cut to be finished.

"Um, yeah, well..." I temporalized, desperately trying to get a handle on what Marge was talking about.

"Personally, I don't think you really need any... enhancement. You're very active and athletic, and so a small bust is not only to be expected, but is actually advantageous! As I pointed out last time, you really wouldn't enjoy trying to jog or do aerobics with a pair of 'big, round double-D-cups' like the ones you were telling me you were so determined to get."

Double shit!!!

Suddenly, all those little clues, all those self-disparaging remarks about her... my figure in the diary made frighteningly clear sense. Eliz... I was extremely self-conscious about my 'tiny' B-cup fals... breasts.

* * * * *

"Oh... My Gawd!" Candi squealed, in that moment living up to the stereotype nearly every patron of the coffee shop had pegged her as being when she had wiggled into the café.

Not that Candi cared what anybody might be assuming about her in that particular moment - she was too busy watching the distinctively feminine- looking figure nervously loitering outside the clinic across the street.

"She... he... She's really going to do it !" Candi whispered excitedly into the Bluetooth headset, even as she continued pointing her phone so that the video feed from the camera could capture the whole scene.

After a few more minutes fidgeting, the 'woman' with the long, black, retro- styled hair squared 'her' rather broad shoulders...

...and the patrons of the shop were surprised by the 'bimbo' letting loose with peals of delighted laughter as, without apparent forethought, the woman across the street absently touched up her dark, glossy-red lipstick before heading into the plastic surgery clinic...

* * * * *

I walked down the street, forcing a smile well, that is to say, letting myself smile at all the attention my rediculously perky that is, delightfully full-yet-perky new D-cups were drawing.

It was embarrassing - in a delightful way, of course - and my chest ached...

but, of course, not so much so that I wasn't delighted by the new tits I 'so desperately' wanted...

I winced at the blot of pain from phrasing it so poorly almost sarcastically, even though only in my own mind.

It was a bad thought to be having, given the steadily more painful headaches and mild panic attacks that came with such... wrong... thoughts.

I swiftly rethought the thought, this time with as much sincerity as I could put into it.

My smile became a little more natural, if taking on a slightly confused cast. I silently wondered if Elizabeth Louisa would be satisfied with 'mere' D- cups...

Everything was going perfectly, I had realized on the operating table - after all, investigators would have no problem finding me here, since this is where I had come before, and now I was back.

Back, obviously, to keep all those appointments I had already booked and pre-paid for.

Like the one at the plastic surgery clinic...

...and the one with the psychiatrist, who had to evaluate me before signing off on the 'abnormally large' size I had apparently booked for my adjustable implants to end up being.

I sure hoped I would fail the evaluation...

...but since I was growing steadily more certain that Elizabeth Louisa wouldn't, which meant that Elizabeth Samantha wouldn't be allowed to, either...

* * * * *

All three women watched the feed from the carefully hidden cameras with delight.

The watched as the vocal coach made a joke at her client, a person she truly believed to be a woman named Beth Albright.

As the coach joked that Beth 'certainly had the lungs for it', the the co- conspiritors in Sam's physical and mental feminization watched as 'Beth' glanced down at her firm triple-D's with a grimace...

...then gasp...

...then very visibly convert the grimace into something that could be mistaken as a smile.

...and then thank the slightly confused coach for the 'compliment' - in an almost pathetically eager manner.

* * * * *

I stood in the right-hand stage wing, shitting uncomfortable while waiting for my cue to take to the stage.

'God, why did Beth have to be such a fucking freak...?' I thought to myself, plucking uncomfortable at my clothing - my costume - in annoyance.

Oh, God, no... Bad thought. Bad Thought. Bad Thought!

Immediately, my heart went into overdrive, pounding painfully hard and fast in my chest - even as the world seemed to spin around me. I desperately tried to draw a breath, by my lungs refused to cooperate, already beginning to ache as the whirling world began to pulse in time with my pounding heart, each repetition of the pulse coming darker and fuzzier than the one before it.

I had previously blamed Bad Thoughts as being 'pre-performance anxiety' to the worried stage-hands and -staff. Now, the stage director only watched with minimal worry as my ice-blue eyes widened, I clutched one long-nailed hand to my prodigious bosom, and struggled to breathe.

*'God, why did I have to be such a... unusual person!' I frantically retro- edited my thought and it helped.*

A bit.

A very little bit. Not nearly enough.

'God, I'm glad to be such an unusual person!' I frantically re-edited my thought and it helped.

Quite a bit.

My breathing eased, my heart slowed, I felt myself becoming calmer.

Less panicked.

...even as my brain insisted on reminding me that I could feel a lot better than just 'less panicked', just by thinking a Good Thought.

'No, I don't need to make myself better by thinking something like ' I started to argue with myself - which immediately caused my mind to segue into: 'God, I am so happy that the clinic insisted on seeing just how 'over- filled' my implants could get! I love how wonderfully huge and round my gorgeous tits have ended up!'

I had to bite lightly down on my ('oh-so-wonderfully full!') lips to hold back a nearly orgasmic moan from the pleasure Good Thoughts gave me.

Even when I helplessly found myself thinking Good Thoughts against my will.

Especially when I was caught off-guard by thinking Good Thoughts against my will.

Helplessly, I felt my lips curve into a lusty, pleasure-filled, smile. Eyelids became sensuously heavy even as the eyes partially occluded by the long, thick lashes sparkled with renewed vitality, sensuality, and pleasure.

Then my musical cue came - and, head helplessly stuffed so full of cascading Good Thoughts that I was operating almost solely on practiced habit, I took the stage.

'God, I hate... love having to prance... getting to show off by mincing like some fucking faggot sissy... by indulging my femininity wearing such ridiculously... delightfully high, slender heels!' my mind insisted on editing my thoughts 'on the fly'... and, to protect me from Bad Thoughts, refusing to even let me consider what I had 'really meant to say', insisting that this thought was the one was the only one that had come instinctively and naturally to mind.

I had to remind myself that this wasn't the case - that there was another thought behind the Good Thought I was allowing myself to remember having. It was a Bad Thought, and so I didn't even try to 'track it down', knowing what would happen... but, even with my mind conspiring against me, forced myself that there had been a less-than-enthusiastic thought behind the one I remembered.

It was getting harder for me to force myself to remember that.

Much harder - and even harder for me to remember that this 'other thought' was the real opinion of....

...of...

...of the person I knew; who was very important, very close to me; but who it wasn't safe to be thinking too much about.

That person, of whom I knew I put great importance of judgement and opinion.

That person.

Whoever 'that person' was which was something I could not afford to think about in the middle of my performance! Not here!

Not now!

Here and now, there was only me...

"Ladies and Gentleman, put your hands together for the one... the only... the incomparable..." The Emcee 'played up' my introduction to the audience: " Bettie von Busen!"

The spotlight for the microphone snapped on, framing me in its glare as the band started my standard opening of 'Fever'.

Time stopped, standing perfectly still for that one, eternal instant. That orgasmic instant.

The one that came when the light snapped on, bathing me in its radiance...

and exposing me to the audience.

The orgasmic instant so incredibly intense that my brain - or, at least, the conscious portion of it - shut down.

Wrapped in post-orgasmic bliss, I floated within fluffy pink clouds that filled my head, watching out of my own eyes as hands, encased in black satin opera gloves, reached out and pulled the old-fashioned microphone closer to the coquettishly displayed cleavage tastefully revealed by my dress.

I heard my smoky, sensual voice belting out a note-perfect rendition of the song, as if from a living tape-recorder.

I felt my own body sway and swirl and twirl as I sang.

I neither had nor wanted any control, enjoying all five songs of the set floating in a mindless sea of pleasure, in which there was no past or present, no Good Thoughts or Bad Thoughts.

No thought at all.

There wasn't even a 'me' there...

After I had finished my set, a certain sense of self once again began to settle into my very confused mind - a mind so confused that I could not tell whether the sense of 'me' that was filtering back was the right 'me'.

Although it didn't trigger any Bad Thoughts, the identity that was slowly refilling my temporarily empty mind did not 'feel' quite right and, for some reason, the very fact that no Bad Thoughts were being triggered bothered me, even though one thing I was pretty damned sure about was the fact that I didn't like what happened when I had Bad Thoughts.

"Bettie!" Jerry, the club manager, barked. "Some fans want to buy you a drink! Table 47!"

"Right away, Jerry!" I eagerly breathed in my sultry voice and then felt very strange for a second, as if that 'eagerly' should have been put in air quotes or something, even though I couldn't think of a reason why I would NOT be eager to meet some of my fans.

Shaking my head, I walked - well, okay, strutted - off the stage and down onto the dimly lighted club floor. I began weaving my way through the tables, smiling and graciously nodding at those who called compliments out to me - some on my singing, and some on my appearance.

I reached table forty-seven ...and blinked.

Eyes widening in shock, I stared at the table, where Veronica, Lillian and Candi were...

<SNIP>

...and blinked, brow furrowing in confusion as I stared at the private investigator and the two ex-wives of that ex-actor I had never even heard of...

<SNIP>

...and blinked, a hesitant smile and quizzical tilt of my head indicating the fact that the three women at table forty-seven looked oddly familiar...

<SNIP>

...and blinked, smiling sensuously at the trio of women I most certainly had never, ever met before in my life.

I introduced myself.

* * * * *

Veronica, Lillian and Candi could not help but stare in delight at the woman standing before them.

She was, in every way, exactly what they had planned for "Bettie von Busen" to be - right down to the mentality, it would seem.

Knowing exactly the type of women Sam preferred, they had designed both the body and the mindset they would try to force on him with malice aforethought - and they had succeeded beyond their wildest hopes. The body had been based upon three specific 'idols' of Sam's; fifties glamor fetish model Bettie Page, early 90's silicone-busted porn star Sofia Staxx, and modern burlesque dance and model Dita von Teese.

As a result, 'Bettie von Busen' strongly resembled a raven-haired Jessica Rabbit brought to sensual life... and with a mentality that ensured 'she' needed to perform for men.

In one sense or another.

Chatting with the transformed individual who could no longer allow 'herself' to consciously admit anything at all about 'her' masculine past, the three women could not help but marvel, restraining tight grins of malicious victory. 'Sultry but upbeat' was the persona that Bettie was helplessly trying to portray... and the fact that she did so, so very well, only made the periods when she was failing miserably all the more enjoyable for the trio of genetic women.

After all, that was exactly what made the fate they had chosen for Sam/'Bettie' all the more horrifying.

Every little while, the apparent black-haired bombshell would stutter to a stop, an amazing array of expressions flashing in rapid sequence across an extensively re-sculpted face. 'Bettie' would stop dead, literally motionless, for a second... and then 'reset' back into full seductive chanteuse mode, apparently unaware that anything had just happened.

Except, of course, all three women knew full well that they had just seen the real Sam, helplessly trapped behind the rather two-dimensional façade of Bettie - and, best of all, although Sam hated what he had done to become 'her', the mental programming meant that he was still voluntarily 'pulling back' from letting anything Sam-like break through the persona he still honestly believed he was just pretending to play.

It was hard-wired into his brain to be the best 'Elizabeth Albright, who decided to rebel by turning a high-class would-be heiress into a living sex symbol named Bettie von Busen' he/she/they could possibly be... for as long as necessary to get that inheritance.

That was the key that had allowed the whole thing to work - because they had needed to find a way to break past his own internal defenses, and it was 'greed' and 'pride' that turned the trick. If Sam had not truly believed it to be 'merely' a temporary situation that demanded truly remarkable acting skills and would reward him with riches when it was over, he would never have been convinced to do any of this, 'brain-washing' or no.

"So, what brings you down here...?" 'Bettie' asked, casually - not knowing that Veronica had been waiting for just that question, or another opening much like it:

"Oh, we're just out celebrating on the boss' dime - well, my boss, their ex- husband." Veronica explained in her most carefully manufactured 'casual' tone. "He's a private investigator, you know - even an actor, once. Guy named Sam Browning - ever hear of him...?"

* * * * *

"But I'M " Her brain screamed at her consciousness - only to stop dead, literally incapable of following that thought to The End.

"I, uh... don't think so... but.... uh... maybe ?" Elizabeth Samantha 'Bettie von Busen' Albright stammered weakly, wondering why she felt so confused simply thinking about this actor-turned-detective that she couldn't quite clearly picture, nor yet categorically deny having somehow known about.

It felt very strange. As if there should be a very good reason why this 'Sam Browning' couldn't possibly be here, in Reno.

She simply couldn't think why. Literally.

Could. NOT.

"Yeah, he tracked down this heiress..." Lillian supplied, in equally casual voice. "What was her name again...?"

"Elizabeth Albright" Candi supplied, with a barely muffled giggle.

"But I'M " Her brain screamed at her consciousness - only to stop dead, literally incapable of following that thought to The End. "I'm " she both thought and muttered, blankly.

"Excuse me...?" Veronica prodded, not-so-gently. "You are who?"

The cartoonishly curvaceous raven-haired baombshell simply stared at the three women for one long moment - and then chuckled, seductively.

"Why, I'm Bettie von Busen " She purred, shitiing her body into a highly provocative pose. " and well I've really enjoyed talking to a few fellow girls, what I'm really looking for is a man."

"A man ?" Lillian and Candi chorused, all pretense stripped away as they watched the chauvinistic ex-husband vanish before their very eyes.

"Yeah - for some reason, I'm just never really happy unless I'm actively doing something to give pleasure to a man..."
'Bettie' explained casually...

while her expression became more and more horrified with every casually-spoken word.

Then she shuddered, gasping in great pain - and, when her expression smoothed, it was completely in keeping with the new persona that would be running the over-sexualized body from now on.

Whether Sam's still-present, yet helplessly trapped mind wanted it to or not...

The End

SUMMARY: Atier stealing a secret serum and then ingesting it, one man finds himself turning into women who's thinking is molded by every man she encounters.

The Sample

By Gunslinger

Gasping for breath, Gary ducked into the darkened doorway of the run-down tenement, pressing back into the shadows of the small space until his back made contact with the graffiti-scrawled door. Even as he struggled to catch his breath, he reached over and hopefully tried the handle on the steel-clad door, but it's limited motion informed him his foul luck was running true to form.

Consciously trying to slow his breathing, the slender, dark-haired man leaned forward slightly, praying that the light from the few undamaged streetlights wouldn't reflect from the lenses of his glasses and give him away as he carefully looked back down the street. The sight of the black Suburban slowly cruising down the street caused him to yank his head back quickly, cursing under his breath as he slid one hand into his jacket and tightened his slender fingers around the plastic-encased injector that just might get him killed.

He'd stolen the single-use syringe from his employer of the past fifteen years, Moorhead Industries. A little-known firm that did a wide range of research on government contracts, Moorhead was a high-security corporation, requiring extensive background checks on all employees before hiring, close surveillance on employees during their term of service, and heavy legal ramifications to ensure silence about the research once the contract was terminated. Even Gary, a very low-level 'Joe-job' technician and 'go-fer' had had to go through a battery of FBI and private-security background checks before finally being hired. He hadn't been worried, at the time, since his record was clean - he'd never committed a crime in his life...

...until now.

It had been pure coincidence, a series of unlikely events that had led him to this spot in time. The first had been the ongoing rumors among the low-level techs. Though discussing the work they were doing was frowned upon by both management and security, it wasn't restricted as long as it was only light conversation done in the employee lounge. One word about work outside of the building would get you fired and sued and probably thrown in jail - but in the lounge, 'theoretical' discussions were commonplace, and one such recurring topic had been regarding what work was going on in Lab 12, a high-security lab. From what little data could be gleaned, the techs knew that some sort of biogeceutical (A Biological Genetic Pharmaceutical, a 'drug' based on biological compounds having a direct genetic effect) was being developed, but nobody had a clue as to what it was, or what its uses would be.

Then, today, there had been a major mishap in Lab Twelve. One of the compounds had apparently been in the process of being distilled from the sterile alcohol base the raw amino acids and protein strands were stored in, when a power surge had set the mixture violently ablaze - and destroying the in-lab fire-fighting equipment, which was nearby. In the first few minutes, when it looked like the whole lab would go up, a panicked researcher had ignored the Security protocols for an emergency in favor of simple, direct action, leaving the double security 'air-lock' doors wide open to allow a hose to be dragged into the room.

Gary had been walking by when all this happened, but that, in itself, wouldn't have had him where he now was - except that the researcher had ordered Gary to start moving the rest of the samples and data from the room for safety's sake, something which violated every security rule in the book. Gary, however, hadn't even considered that, simply following the scientist's barked instructions...

...which was how he'd found himself carrying a box of samples from the room. Included in the box was several pre-preparation mixtures, the single pre-loaded syringe injector - and the cover-sheet of sample effects and dosage, still being developed. In the few seconds after he'd carried the box out of the room, Gary had found himself reading what he could of the sheet.

With horror, he realized what was being developed in Lab Twelve. It was some sort of Bio-Genetic 'weapon'. From what Gary read, he learned that the syringe lying in the box was Soviet in origin, the last remaining sample from a biological warfare lab that Special Forces had apparently raided and destroyed in the cold-war era. Since then, the Russians had abandoned the work - but America, despite its own policies on Bio-Chemical warfare, was trying to reverse-engineer the bio-genetic compound. Only part of the cover sheet had been exposed, and Gary hadn't been able to read the entire thing - but the words 'behavior Modification' leapt right off the page and hit him, hard.

In addition to whatever other effects the compound might have, it was some sort of 'mind control' drug. It was a horrid, ungodly substance - and America was secretly trying to figure out how to make it for themselves.

Gary's blood had run cold at the mere thought - and, before he could think twice about it, he had slipped the sample into his pocket. He didn't know if he had the nerve to expose his employers to the media - but he figured he could at least destroy the sample. Without a sample to work from, they'd never succeed in reverse engineering it.

The problem was - what his conscience had inspired him to do wasn't backed by his nerves or his skill. He wasn't a thief or a spy or a whistle-blower, he had no skill or experience at this. The event had occurred near The End of the workday, but Gary had spent those last thirty-seven minutes on the edge of a nervous breakdown, waiting to be caught.

However, security had been busy, coming down hard on the scientist for his breaks in security protocol, and getting everything locked up tight. By the time they'd found that a sample was missing, Gary had already been walking out of the building.

The problem was - they had come after him. They didn't know, for sure, that he'd taken anything - after all, the sample could have been destroyed in the fire, or lost another way in the confusion. In fact, it was only the value of the sample that had security over-reacting so instantly and powerfully. With only the slightest hint that there might be something wrong, Security had gone on full alert, tracking down every employee and forcing them to return to the lab, while the building itself was turned inside out in a search for the missing sample.

As of yet, Gary hadn't done anything suspicious enough to force them to believe that their model employee had broken any rules or laws - since the security team hadn't found him yet, they could always make the argument that, after work, he'd gone for a long walk. It was something he actually did, since his apartment was quite noisy this time of day, and he often strolled to allow him to think.

But, sooner or later, they'd catch him. If they did, and he was holding the injector, then he was screwed. The very least they'd do is have him locked up - but, given the nature of what he now knew, they might decide it would be better to silence him.

Permanently.

However, he couldn't just drop it and walk away, either. They'd trace back every step he'd taken and find it - then he'd still be screwed, and have the chemical, as well.

Watching the vehicle creep closer, he knew that - the instant he was seen - that would be The End of it. He hadn't even been spotted by security until now, and so hadn't done anything suspicious. If they saw him, and he ran...

There was only one thing he could do. Though he was shaking, the slender technician knew it was his only choice.

Quickly, before his nerve could break, he grabbed the syringe from his pocket and injected it into his arm, gritting his teeth as the unknown chemical was forced into his blood-stream. Heart pounding in fear, he jammed the syringe into a crack in the wall and brought the heel of his hand down on the half that protruded, shattering the tube.

Closing his eyes, Gary told himself that he'd done the right thing. He didn't know what the drug would do to him. Hell - maybe the dosage he'd given himself would even kill him. It didn't matter, though. He'd light a smoke then step out of the doorway - and the security team would see him and grab him. He'd claim that he was just out for his usual walk and had ducked into the doorway to light a smoke out of the wind - and they'd search him and find nothing. Sure, they'd take him to the lab while they back-tracked his movements, but by the time they knew about the drug, it would be too late - thoroughly mixed with his blood, now, there was no way they could purify it enough to reverse-engineer a new batch from it. One way or another, Gary had just permanently ended the research...

Then the door behind him swung open, almost causing Gary's heart to explode in shock and fear.

"Oh - hi.." The little old lady said, peering nearsightedly up at Gary's face. "Uh... You're Jenny's new Beau, right? Apartment 3C?"

"Uh huh." Gary grunted agreement, stepping into the lobby - followed by a battle-scarred old tomcat, he brushed against the old lady's leg with a purr, revealing her reason for opening the door. She picked up the cat and stepped into the open door of the apartment nearest the entrance, while Gary headed for the stairs, aware that - blind as she may be - she might be able to hear him just fine. He slowly began to climb the stairs, cursing his own bad luck. This was the perfect escape, and if it had occurred just a few seconds earlier, he would never have had to inject himself with the unknown chemical, since he could have found a permanent way to dispose of the chemical while in the safety of the building.

Now, an unknown chemical compound was running through his system, and he had no idea what it would do to him.

Gary, lost in thought, found himself taking a step that wasn't there and staggering forward a few steps. Steadying himself, snapped out of his self-absorbed daze, he looked around.

He was on the sixth - and last - floor of the seedy tenement. An old brownstone building, it had once held old-fashioned charm, but was now old, ill-maintained and grimy. This floor was apparently not being used, since it was dark and silent. Slowly, Gary walked down the hallway to the front of the building, where a grimy window showed the poorly-lit street.

As soon as he looked out, he was glad that the lights were off in the hallway - directly out front of the building, two black Suburbans were parked nose-to-nose, the Moorhead security guards clearly visible in the vehicles.

"Shit..." Gary swore. Obviously, somebody had spotted him in the neighborhood and had been willing to answer the security guard's questions about him. Considering the neighborhood, shelling out a couple of bucks had probably done the job.

They didn't know he was in the building, and if they checked the door they'd find it was an old fashion latch-key door, without an intercom. They'd never guess that he had been let in, since he didn't know anybody in the building and couldn't have called ahead.

Unfortunately, they'd chosen to set up the central point for their sweep right outside of the building he was hiding in. He knew they'd search the neighborhood for hours, to ensure he wasn't here - which also meant their suspicions about the compound and his coincidental disappearance were jelling into something more solid - and ominous, for Gary.

When they searched, they might locate the broken needle...

Things were going steadily downhill for Gary. Here he was, trapped in a run-down old building that they might search any time, with an unknown drug coursing through his veins. Some of that he could do nothing about - but he could find a better spot to hide, and that was his first priority.

He started back down the hallway towards the stairs, lightly jiggling the handle of each apartment he passed, just in case...

As he came to one on the right-hand side, halfway down the hall, he thought maybe his luck was improving, if only slightly. There was a small envelope taped to the door, with a note written on the outside. Pulling the envelope off the door, he crept closer to the light spilling in the window at the front hall to read what it said.

To whoever finds this:

My abusive ex-husband has tracked me down here, so I have to leave. The apartment is paid up until The End of next month. You can have the apartment and all the crap I left inside. If you don't keep the apartment, please return the key to the super in Apartment 1A.

Inside the envelope was a key.

Thanking his lucky stars, Gary hurried back to the door he'd taken the envelope from and slid the key in the lock. A simple twist, and he knew had a bolt-hole to hide in.

Locking and privacy-chaining the door behind him, Gary felt around until his hand found the light-switch on the wall, and he flipped it. Dim light filled the small foyer and spilled out into the living room, and Gary looked around his fortuitous hiding place.

Considering the run-down condition of the building, the place wasn't all that bad. Poorly maintained, run-down and cheaply decorated with second-hand furniture, sure - but the place was clean, and smelled mainly of a floral-scented deodorant overlaid by soap and cigarette smoke. Walking around the small, two-bedroom apartment, Gary noted that the windowless kitchen had pocket doors - which made it perfect for him.

Turning the light on in the kitchen, he shut off the light in the foyer and entered the kitchen, closing the pocket-door behind him. Even if the security team searched the building, this apartment would look as deserted as the rest of the floor - and even if they should notice something, they'd think it was the apartment's owner.

He hoped.

Pulling out one of the mismatched chairs around the dinette table, Gary sat down, finding that - despite the coolness of the air - he was sweating from anxiety.

At least - he thought that's what he thought, at first. However, he shuddered slightly and realized that his body seemed to feel hot one minute, then cold the next - then his blood seemed to turn to ice as he realized that this was some sort of effect from the drug.

"No...!" Gary moaned, finding his voice thick with phlegm. He wasn't sure what effects the drug would have on him, but in his heart he'd hoped it was an opiate-like effect. What he was feeling now was anything but 'high', however.

He began to shake violently as he felt his skin crawl, as with goose-pimples. Feeling like he was burning up, he frantically began to work at the buttons on his shirt, feeling stiff and sore, as if his muscles were protesting hours of hard labor.

Finding the buttons too frustrating to bear, Gary finally ripped the shirt off - and watched in pained surprise as a cloud of body hair fluffed out into the air from the violent action, drifting to the ground as he stared at his denuded chest. Forcing himself to ignore the smooth, hairless skin it left behind, he frantically shucked out of his shoes and pants, feeling like he was about to spontaneously combust from the internal heat he was generating.

Despite the high temperatures that were assailing him, he was shivering violently, bathed in a cold sweat, and the fact that his entire body south of the eyes was completely denuded of hair was a small consideration indeed.

Gary gasped as his guts rumbled - then cried out in pain as they cramped painfully tight, worse than any gastrointestinal pain he'd ever felt. He fell to the floor, sobbing mindlessly at the pain of his stomach - then cried out in renewed agony as pain flared in his crotch, as if an unseen assailant wearing steel-toed boots had just sacked him.

Sobbing from the pain, he tried to curl up in the fetal position - but his muscles were twitching and jumping, refusing to recognize his mind's mastery over them. He flopped around the kitchen floor in a spasm, like the catch of the day dropped onto the floor of the trawler. Incoherent sounds were ripped from his throat, many of them high-pitched whimpers unlike any sound he'd ever made in his adult life.

Then, thankfully, the pain overwhelmed him and he descended into blessed darkness as unconsciousness took him into its unknowing embrace.

* * * * *

Gary stared up at the ceiling, wondering where he was, or why he felt so... strange.

Then memory came flooding back in a rush, and he gasped at the force of the recollection of pain and fear. His body tensed in unconscious anticipation of renewed agony - but though he felt tired, weak, stiff and strangely awkward, the only discomfort he felt was the mild one that came from laying nearly naked on the worn linoleum floor.

Very slowly, Gary eased his arms back and rested his elbows on the floor, slowly pushing himself into a sitting position while waiting to see if any new pain flared to life. His back, stiff from laying on the cold floor, let out a mild twinge, and that was it in terms of pain.

However, the movement did trigger other sensations, which, if not painful, were strange and different than what he would have expected, including a shivering sensation that came from his chest, causing him to glance down instinctively...

"What the hell...?" Gary gasped - then his eyes went even wider at the sound of his voice, which was completely different to his ears than it should have been.

The sound of his voice was a richly feminine tone - which scared the hell out of him and made a direct connection in his brain's 'logic center' as to what had happened to him...

...or, rather, her - since she was staring down at a chest that boasted a pair of breasts as equally and undeniably feminine as her voice was. Because he'd lost his glasses during the spasm of pain, they were out of focus - but that slight fuzziness wasn't enough to disbelieve that they were there, for even seen in a blur they were quite large and unmistakable.

"H.. Holy shit..." Gary stammered, hearing the female sound of her new voice with disgust and fear. Hesitantly, he moved his hand from where it was bracing her up. The first thing he felt was her now-longer nails prickling the skin of her legs, followed by her smaller, narrower palm sliding over smooth, feminine leg flesh, across her taut new thigh...

...and across the unmistakable vaginal lips that had replaced her cock. She was all woman.

"No. !" Gary shouted, horrified. Trying to ignore the new and altered sensations of her equally new and altered form, she pushed herself onto her hands and knees, wincing at the way her new tits shited to hang down beneath her slender ribcage. Fumbling, she slid her altered hands around the floor of the kitchen, until they finally came in contact with her still-rimmed glasses. Lifting them, she settled them onto her smaller, daintier nose - and stared, horrified, at the dainty, long-nailed hands that jumped into clear focus as she did so.

"No... No, this.. can't be happening. " She tried to convince herself - in vain. There was too much evidence that this was, indeed, happening.

Stunned, confused and horrified, she awkwardly staggered to her feet - the awkwardness coming completely from her stunned emotional shock, not from her unfamiliar body, which seemed to have an eerie inherent grace all it's own.

Still trying to cope with what had happened to her, Gary staggered out of the kitchen and down the hall to the bathroom, flipping on the light and confronting the image in the mirror.

A dark-haired woman with large tits gazed back.

If not for her large bust - which had to be at least a firm EEE-cup, each breast the size of a ripe cantaloupe - she would have been a completely unremarkable woman. She was attractive, but not so much so to be noteworthy. She was over average height and build, but a little lean in the hips - which meant that she was built exactly the way Gary had been, as a guy. Whereas his height and build had been on the 'effeminate' end of the masculine spectrum, she was no dead-center in the average range for the feminine genotype.

Gary's hair had grown considerably, now hanging in a wild mass to below his shoulders - but, aside from it's length and the fact that it seemed silkier, it hadn't changed. It was the same color, the same limp-straight style. Her fingernails were also considerably longer.

In short, she was an exact feminine representation of what the old Gary had been - except for the fact that the male-standard 'extra' muscles had been converted into fat and stored in her new bust. Gary hadn't been terribly muscular, but his body had been inherently bulkier than an equivalent female one - and since muscle was denser than fat, when it had been converted, the same weight of muscle had gained extra volume, hence the massive breasts with thick, dark nipples that now rode proudly from her altered ribcage.

Gary, however, felt anything but 'proud' about her feminine body. Horror was closer to the emotion she experienced as she gazed at her altered form with a wide-eyed, slack-jawed expression.

"Oh, please... no..." She moaned, slumping back against the door frame.

The worst part of it was - she still looked like herself.. sort of. She looked.. well, the way Gary would look if she'd been born female. You could still see the original man that made up the new woman - which meant that if the security guards searching for her had any idea what the compound did, they'd still be able to recognize the feminized version.

She'd been transformed into a big-busted woman, with no way of changing back - and the change didn't even help her avoid the situation she found herself in. It had no redeeming qualities whatsoever.

Gary just wanted to die.

Then, for a second, she thought she would - as her adrenaline levels spiked and her heart stopped in her chest as a heavy pounding noise suddenly reverberated through the apartment.

Then a male voice shouted out, muffled by the door of the apartment, and Gary's heart began to slow. "Dammit, Janice, open this fucking door or I'll bust it down and kick your fucking ass!"

For a second, the non-sequitar seemed surrealistic, devoid of any meaning - then Gary's brain made the connection, and she realized why the woman who'd lived here was willing to just walk away from her apartment and all her belongings - her ex-husband didn't sound like the forgiving kind.

The pounding on the door continued - then stopped for a second, followed by a heavy 'thud' that shook the walls.

The man in the hallway was trying to bust down the door - and considering the age and condition of the door, she wasn't sure he couldn't do it. Grabbing the tattered blue robe that hung in the back of the bathroom door, Gary quickly wrapped it around her top-heavy new figure and padded quickly towards the front door, glad to see that it was still intact. Even as she arrived, though, the still-yelling man slammed into it again, shaking it in its frame.

"Janice isn't here!" Gary shouted, nearly panicked. "She's gone!" The noise on the other side of the door paused, then -

"Who the fuck is this!" he shouted. "Where's Janice! Don't lie to me, I know she's in there. You better open this fucking door, or I'll...!" "Janice found out you were coming!" Gary shouted through the door. "She leti!"

"You're lying!" the man shouted, slamming into the door again. "She's in there, and you're not going to fool me! I know who you are! You're that bitch friend of hers she was talking about, aren't you?"

"I.." Gary started, having no idea how to frame a response that would make the man leave. "You're Debbie... whatever!"

That's who you are, don't deny it!" The man shouted...

For the new woman, the world seemed to shiti, and she staggered back a step, hand flying to her forehead as she felt dizzy and confused. Then, as quickly as it had come upon her, the dizzy spell was gone...

...but not without having had it's effect. Horrified, she realized that she couldn't remember her 'real' name. Even though she knew it wasn't, her mind was insisting that her name was Debbie Wattiver.

"No..." Debbie moaned, realizing that she was experiencing the 'mind-control' aspect of the drug. As long as it was coursing through her system, anything said with enough conviction served to re-align her mental processes to match. The man outside the door had been right when he'd told her not to deny it - because, as far as she could remember, she was Debbie Wattiver, even though she knew that she hadn't been a few minutes before.

She had to get him to leave before he did any more damage to her vulnerable mind...

"Janice leti!" She shouted through the door, looking around frantically for the note that had been on the door. She found it on the floor and grabbed it - but the piece of tape still attached to it tore off the 'whoever finds this' section, leaving the bulk of the note intact. She quickly slid the envelope under the door. "She was gone when I got here!"

There was a short pause, as the man read the note he held. It was obviously in his ex-wife's handwriting, and seemed to say... "Where did she go, Debbie?" He said, with restrained anger. "Tell me where she went!"

As an order, Debbie couldn't resist it, she had to tell the truth...

"She was gone when I got here. She never told me where she was going." Debbie answered, gratefully. Of all the orders he could have given her, that was a safe one.

Except that he wasn't done with her yet.

"Maybe you don't know where she is..." The man mused. "But maybe I should just kick the fucking door in and come in anyway, what do you think of that?"

Debbie's blood ran cold. "Why? Why would you do that - I told you she's moved out, and I don't know where she is!"

"yeah - but I think you need some.. training, just like Janice. It's bitches like you who fuck up the minds of normal women, make them do stupid things - like leave their house and husband and run off on their own."

"No!" Debbie argued, relieved that it had been phrased that way - but panicked that he might say something else in a more commanding phrase...

"Oh, I know the truth..." The man said, in an oily, nasty voice. "I know the truth about bitches like you. You say that you don't need a man. You say that how you dress isn't a 'lure' for men. You claim all sorts of things - but I'll tell you what you really are..."

"No..." Debbie whimpered, eyes widening behind her glasses as she turned away from the door and prepared to run into the bathroom, hoping she wouldn't be able to hear him clearly there, if she turned the water on full-blast...

...but she never got the chance.

"You're a horny little bitch who can't stop thinking about sucking and fucking men." The oily voice said - and Debbie staggered as the world swam around her. Before she could recover, his next 'command' slammed home into her unprotected brain.

"You wear sexy clothes and high heels all the time." Whimpering, Debbie slid to the floor, mind in disarray.

"You talk like some feminist bitch - but you dress, walk and act like a cum-hungry tease. You can't help it - no matter how much you may hate the thought of a man touching you, your body is made to pleasure men, and it drives you crazy with it's need to fuck and suck."

Debbie was curled up in a ball, mind swirling and out of control as the man threw his last bit of sexist vitriol through the door.

"You're a two-faced bitch. All women are cum-hungry little sluts, but you try to fight it and act like you don't want it, when you really can't stop thinking about it - needing it - all the time. That's all you are - an arrogant, horny slut-bitch."

Finished with his diatribe, the man switched to a more threatening voice.

"Janice might come back for her stuff." He said. "So, I'm gonna get myself my gun and come back. If you're smart, you'll leave, and leave the door unlocked. If I come back and this door is still locked and you're still here..."

Slamming his fist against the door one last time for good measure, the ex-husband turned and stormed off...

...but too late for Debbie, who lay on the floor as her mind slowly settled into it's new patterns.

"No..." She whispered, eyes widening in horror - as she found herself thinking about the way her breasts were pressed against the floor, and how good it would feel to have a man fondle - or even fuck - those round, heavy mounds, shooting his load between her...

It took a tremendous burst of sheer willpower to tear her mind from the mental image that was flitting through her head - but that only focused her attention of the fact that there was a growing moist warmth in her crotch, accompanied by a growing, almost desperate hunger that had nothing to do with food...

"What.. what have you done to me...?" Debbie whimpered pathetically - but she knew the answer already. The man's sexist comments had revealed what he thought of women. No matter how they acted, what their personality was, the man believed that all women were really horny little sluts at heart, that they craved sex with men all the time - and now, thanks to him, that was true for Debbie, no matter how much she might be utterly sickened by the growing needs that her body was forcing on her.

She just wanted to lay there on the floor, struggling to withstand the unwanted, erotic thoughts running through her helplessly re-arranged mind...

...but even more, she didn't want to be there when the crazy man returned. Maybe he'd kill her, and maybe not - and to tell the truth, she wasn't sure which outcome was for the better, at the moment. But what scared the living shit out of her was that he might further change her mind - turning her from a woman unwillingly aroused and sexually needy to one who would 'willingly' give in to the unwanted cravings.

Forcing herself off the floor, Debbie made her way towards the kitchen, and started to gather her clothes together...

...and realized with mounting horror that she couldn't put it on. Not because the changes to her body - though it would fit tight in some places and loose in others, it was still close to her new build. No, the reason she couldn't put the clothing on was that her mind absolutely refused to let her do so. Thanks to Janice's ex-husband, she couldn't even actively consider wearing such clothes. No - she needed to wear something sexy.

Cursing under her breath, hating what she was being forced into by her rash actions combined with the unexpected appearance of the ex-husband, Debbie trotted to the bedroom to look for something that would fit her new mindset as to 'acceptable' clothing.

What she ended up with was an outfit that would have been nearly 'demure', in other situations - but damned sexy in this one.

The first part was the underwear. With no choice in the matter, Debbie had been forced to put on the sexiest undergarments that would fit her - which meant no bra, since none of the C-cup bras in the apartment would fit her impressive bust. So, she ended up wearing a pair of lacy black panties, a black garter belt - and black nylons with seemed up the back. The feel of nylon sliding up her now-smooth legs was, in itself, not unpleasant - but the connotation was, and she sobbed as she slid the sheer fabric onto her altered legs and spent the time to straighten the seem.

Next came a skirt - a black leather skirt that was knee-length and actually fairly nice. That is, for the person whose body it was designed to fit. On her, it was too-tight, clinging to her like a second skin and emphasizing her curves, exaggerating them beyond their 'average' status by illusion.

Likewise with the white blouse. Frilly-yet-conservative otherwise, on her it clung almost painfully tight to her huge, firm tits, her nipples making clear points in the stiff fabric. The sexy nature of the garment was further emphasized by the fact that she was completely unable to make her fingers do up the top three buttons on the garment, revealing a 'delightful' view of her canyon-like cleavage.

"Oh, God... why did I take the serum?" Debbie asked her reflection in the mirror, near tears. "Why did I inject myself...?"

She lowered her head and took a deep breath - then raised her head and faced her reflection again. Her eyes met her reflected ones through the curvature of her lenses, and she surveyed her severe-yet-sexy-reflection with an air of somebody making a decision.

"I did it for a good reason." She told her reflection, her voice tremulous but strong. "I did it because it's better for this to happen to me than to thousands of other people."

Squaring her slender, feminine new shoulders as best she could, the new woman nodded at her reflection, knowing that - no matter how horrendous this was for her - this was the right thing to have done. Sure, it might have set off a horrible, unforeseen sequence of events

- but what would have happened had she let the sample to be re-synthesized and available to an unscrupulous government...?

With the new-found strength in her convictions, Debbie was able to face the footwear her new mind-set had forced on her with a certain equanimity - which was pretty amazing, considering that the knee-high black-leather boots had six-inch stiletto heels. With little more than a grimace, she pulled the high-heeled boots onto her altered feet and zipped them up. Taking a deep breath, she rose to her feet and carefully walked back to the mirror to take a look, finding that she was capable of moving pretty well in the half-foot tall spike heels - something she wasn't proud of, but she'd accept the fine balancing act required to walk in the heels, all things considered.

Turning away from the reflection, she dumped her male clothes and wallet into a large black leather purse and slung it over her shoulder, heading for the door. Now that she'd accepted that this was the price she was willing to pay for the salvation of thousands or tens of thousands of hypothetical fellow citizens, she found herself almost proud of the sound of the high-heels she was wearing clicking on the floor, or of the sway and bounce of her huge, firm new tits. The might be disgusting to her, marking her shame at being transformed into a woman, one programmed by the sexist words of some sleazy ex-husband - but they were also a reminder of what she was willing to do for her fellow man, and Debbie - like anybody else - could take a certain pride in doing something 'historic', even if it was inherently unpleasant to her.

The new woman walked firmly and proudly (if ashamedly so) to the door...

...and found herself unable to grasp the knob and turn it.

"Damn it!" She swore, near tears, then turned and headed back towards the bedroom, knowing that - no matter how she felt about it - that she couldn't walk out of the apartment without doing her make-up and putting on some jewelry. She didn't want to, but she needed to - and that was the definition of her new, 'heroic' existence. What she'd chosen to do, for the good, of the country, had its costs that she simply couldn't refuse.

She took care of this additional humiliation as quickly as she could, cursing - but accepting - the need for it. After all - it wasn't as if she had a choice in the matter...

Debbie had no skill with putting on make-up - and it showed in The End result, with the thick coat of mascara, the dark gloss-red lipstick, with the dark eye-shadow. Looking at her reflection, Debbie had to admit two things about her first attempt at putting on make-up. First of all, it made her look 'cheap', like some whore trying to look like a school-teacher for a John's pole-playing fantasy.

Second - it made a near-perfect 'disguise'.

Debbie was stunned to find how much the garish make-up altered her appearance. A few minutes before, she'd been afraid that the security teams might recognize her, despite her change in gender - but with the heavy-handed make-up she'd just applied, she barely recognized herself...

The jewelry was easy enough - since her smaller lobes weren't pierced, she put on the only clip-on earrings she could find, a tacky pair of 'gold' plastic earrings that looked (to her) like stylized exclamation points, with extremely faux diamonds as the 'dots'. From there, she simply picked the matching (and equally tacky) cameo necklace and bracelet.

Grimacing at the even cheaper look the jewelry gave her, she sighed - at least it further enhanced her 'disguise'.

Turning away from the mirror yet again, the new woman carefully ankled towards the front door. She undid the thumb-latch and slipped the privacy chain out of its holder...

...and stopped, eyes widening in fear as she heard a heavy tread coming up the stairs, accompanied by a voice calling out.

"Debbie, are you home...?" The ex-husband's voice chuckled, cruelly. "I didn't see anybody leave while I was gone... maybe you're still home. I know what it is - you're craving a nice big cock to suck..."

"Oh.. shit.." Debbie whimpered, closing her eyes. She'd been fighting down the lewd thoughts and new desires that had been assaulting her since the man's other comments - and had been doing so fairly well. Her body was permanently aroused, but with no particular 'inspiration', the lewd thoughts had been kept in the back of her mind, ever present but not overwhelming...

...until now. Thanks to the man's comment, she was suddenly - hungrily - visualizing a hard, thick cock. A cock just right for a pair of gloss-red, over-done lips to wrap around and...

Whimpering at the thoughts she was unable to evict from her mind, Debbie was disgusted to find it hard to turn away from the door - part of her wanted to wait right there until the man came in, so that she could...

Oh, God...

Instead, she forced herself to turn and head for the window, praying it emptied onto a fire escape. Her one stroke of 'luck', if you could call it that, was that he hadn't said that she was waiting to suck his cock - so she wasn't helplessly forced to wait for him, because anybody's cock would do, and she could find a nice big cock to suck just about anywhere...

Struggling - and failing - to drive the thought from her mind, she threw open the window and clambered out - without looking. She wasn't sure whether to be happy or not that her foot hit a fire escape outside the window. Considering what she was currently thinking about - craving - a drop of a few stories might have been the ideal solution.

Instead, Debbie slid the window closed behind her and began to descend the rusting metal ladder, even as she heard the man burst into the apartment she'd just left. She waited, breathlessly, for him to open the window and order her to...

...but he didn't. Apparently, he wasn't interested enough in her 'mysterious' disappearance to even perform a simple look out the window, spying the fire escape. So, she was allowed to descend in relative safety, breathing a sigh of relief as she clambered down the ladder to the ground...

...and almost literally into the arms of the black-clad security guards.

A team of two guards had been seeping the grounds, and they hadn't failed to notice the woman nosily descending the rusting fire escape. They were waiting for her as she stepped off the last rung of the ladder. So intent on her descent had she been (climbing ladders in heels wasn't easy), that she hadn't noticed them - and when she turned around, she let out a strangled shriek and fell back against the battered brick wall behind her...

...even as she unwillingly found her eyes dipping down to the men's crotches.

"Oh, shit - you scared me...!" Debbie said, taking a deep breath and straightening atop her slender heels, her heart racing...

...from considerably more than mere shock. She'd almost literally fallen into the hands of the security force she was trying to avoid, and her mind was trying to filter through to form a plan...

...but it wasn't getting very far. Every time she started to form a line of action, thoughts of the men in front of her would interrupt, derailing her train of thought. With mounting horror, she realized just how great a curse Janice's ex-husband had bestowed upon her, as she found her once-sharp mental processes degraded by constant, swirling sexual thoughts and desires that interfered with her thinking.

"Something wrong with the front door.. miss?" One of the guards asked, laconically, sweeping an eye over her. His partner was less blasé about it, rather openly staring at the exposed cleavage of her large, firm chest - and Debbie hated the sudden rush of pride she felt as she noticed that, and it took a tremendous force of will not to act on that attention.

She didn't even notice, consciously, as she shifted her weight and drew her shoulders back, further emphasizing the curves of her feminine new body.

"Well, Uh..." She stammered, sheepishly. "My boyfriend and I had a fight, see, and I, uh..."

"Oh - a fight?" the guard asked, doubt obvious in his voice. "Bad enough that you thought you'd just... take a little..."

Then fate stepped in - and for the first time that evening, Debbie could have willingly and eagerly kissed Janice's sexist ex-husband...

...because, from high above them, his voice came thundering out of the night. "Debbie, you dumb bitch - I knew you didn't leave by the fucking front door!"

the security guards glanced up, seeing a bulky, muscular man's frame outlined in the light spilling from the window he was leaning from, the one Debbie had so recently departed by.

"Didn't think I'd figure out how you got out, did you!" He shouted, triumphantly. "Well, I told you what I was going to... hey! Who the hell are those assholes!"

The lead guard took several steps back, so he didn't have to crane his neck nearly as far. "Sir!" he bellowed. "We're questioning your girlfriend, so if you don't mind..."

"Girlfriend?" The man laughed, making Debbie's heart sink. "She'd not my fuckin' girlfriend - she's just some goddamned whore!"

As unpleasant as that appellation might be, Debbie blessed him for unthinkingly using it - he might have meant it as an insult, but the two security guards - taking a quick look at her - accepted it as an accurate description, and merely smirked.

Then the damned asshole opened his big mouth again...

"Fine! Good riddance. You just beg them to let you suck their cocks then!: He trumpet, then slammed the window...

..as Debbie dropped to her knees, fighting the urge that his words had instilled in her...

...and failed.

"Please..." She begged, huskily, eyes locked on their crotches. "Please, I.. I need to suck your cocks. Please, let me suck you off...!"

"What...?" the second guard said, startled - but the surprise quickly faded from the first guard's eyes, and his glance at the window far above, then back to her, showed that he was putting the clues together.

"Tell me!" He said, sharply. "Do you have any ID on you...?"

"Yes, yes.. In my bag..." Debbie said, vaguely - her mind was simply overwhelmed by the raging need she felt, and she couldn't recognize the danger she was in. She could barely think, her very soul taken by the need to have these men's cocks in her mouth. In the back of her mind, an alarm was sounding - but it couldn't overcome the clamoring of her need to give them blowjobs. "Please - let me suck your cocks. Please - I'll do anything you ask, if I can just give you each a blow-job..."

There was no shame in her as she pleaded for the right to suck their cocks - because there was no room for it. The person she had once been had taken a back seat to, ... well, not to a new personality, because it wasn't that coherent. Like a junkie looking for the next fix, all morals and other considerations slid by the wayside, leaving behind just raw need - need to get what her body and mind was demanding. It was an overwhelming desire...

...and when the security guard jerked a thumb in the direction of his partner and said 'go ahead', that was all she heard. She didn't even notice the guard going to her discarded purse as she lunged forward, hands reaching for the other guard's crotch.

It should probably be noted here that the second guard did very little to hinder her as she rabidly ripped open his pants and freed his already semi-hard cock. With a moan of animalistic pleasure, she grasped his stiffening organ with one hand and eagerly closed her lips around the throbbing shati. In seconds, it was hard in her mouth, and by the she was already bobbing her head back and forth, eyes closed as she hummed in satisfaction, tongue swirling around the swollen head of the cock.

As the desperate need faded from the fact she was doing what had been demanded of her, Debbie began to regain her senses - and realize what she was doing.

She wanted to vomit as it registered - she was sucking on a man's cock. But, as disgusting as it felt, emotionally - and as unpleasant as it was, physically - she just couldn't force herself to stop. Her movements became less eager, more stilted, acquiring the aspect of somebody who was just 'getting the job done' - but she couldn't stop.

Despite her mechanical motions, the guard seemed quite happy with her work as she continued to suck and slurp at his cock, head bobbing up and down. He certainly seemed to enjoy it as he came, stiffening and letting out a moan as Debbie, disgusted, pulled her mouth off his cock, cum splattering over her face and dripping down into her vast cleavage.

"Not bad... Gary." The other security guard said, behind her - and even as Debbie started to turn, the guard jammed his tazer against her neck, causing her to go into spasm as the electricity overwhelmed her and sent her into darkness.

* * * * *

Darkness parted, and a cheap stucco ceiling floated into view.

For several minutes, the figure laying on the bed in the cheap hotel room waited for memory to return. but it remained stubbornly absent, refusing to manifest. Slowly, the figure sat up... then gasped...

"What the hell. ?" Slowly, hands rose up to cup a pair of huge, firm breasts - then narrow creases formed in her face in confusion.

"But..." She stammered, staring down at the breasts she held, wondering why they confused her so. They seemed.. alien to her - yet she couldn't remember them not being there, either. Her memory, to this point, was a complete blank.

"What the hell is going on...?" she asked, swinging her legs over the side of the bed - and finding them clad in black nylons. She stared at them for several seconds, then shook her head and finished climbing out of bed, looking around. Slowly, she walked over to the dresser and the black leather purse that sat upon it, wondering what the hell was going on - it was like she couldn't remember a single instant before the second when she'd awoken.

Fumbling through the purse, she extracted an ID card - and stared at the dark-haired woman who looked back from the photo. "Debbie.." She said, slowly, feeling the worm of recognition in her brain. "my name is Debbie..."

She looked around the cheap hotel room slowly, wondering what she was doing here - then a sudden, distinct memory occurred to her. Though she couldn't place it in context, she clearly remembered sucking on a man's cock. Without joy, but performing oral sex without hesitation...

"What...?" She asked herself - then a second's memory flashed by her frontal lobe. No connotation to connect it to anything, but... "Whore...?" She asked herself - then, with conviction. "I'm a hooker..."

Glancing at the clock the room boasted, she realized it was quite late. Slowly, she began to dress, until she was fully clothed in tacky, overly sexy clothes on a body that was kind of basic, except for her over-developed bust-line, most probably the result of implants - though, strangely, she couldn't remember clearly. Probably a result of all the drugs that cheap horny slut whores like her used, she figured, shrugging it off.

"Well - time to get to work so I can afford my next fix..." She muttered to herself as she opened the door and stepped out into the late- night air, looking for her next fuck. She might not enjoy the work - but a hooker just had to pretend she loved some bastard fucking her. After all, as she remembered herself saying before 'A girl has the right to earn a living..."

* * * * *

"Well.. I don't think Miss Wattiver will be a problem anymore..." Dr. Mark Greenburg, head of Moorhead Industries said with a smile, turning a small vial over in his hands." Too bad he destroyed the vial we had planned to separate the mind-control properties from the gender-changing properties... but God knows we have enough of the base compound to work with..."

to the laughter of the board, he tossed the vial of Soviet Biological Compound in a box with the hundreds of other tubes the Special Forces had gathered from the clandestine lab.

"So..." Greenburg said, grinning. "Debbie has proved just how effective this compound is, something we've been wondering about. The question is - how do we do a wide-spread test of it's properties without getting caught?"

One of the aides cleared his throat.

"Well, sir..." He said, nervously. "We've been doing some research. What we want is people already somewhat prepped for the sex- change aspect of it..."

"Yes...?" Greenburg prompted.

"Well..." the aide said, sliding a piece of paper across the table. "Here's the member's list to a site called 'TG-Stories'. "

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: A low level thug trying to hide from a high level crime boss, enlists the help of two nerds who use their invention at genetic coding to change him into their ideal woman; it get worse when the crime boss catches up with them.

Sanctuary

By Gunslinger

"Guys - I need your help."

Of all the things that Lewis and Jerry were used to hearing, that was perhaps the most common phrase that cropped up.

However - the thought that they'd answer a frantic pounding on their door at three o'clock in the morning and find Steve 'Snake' Gorman on the other side, saying those words, was enough to make the usual scenario incredibly far-fetched.

Nevertheless...

"Please - help me." The massively muscled man asked - begged - again, his clean-shaven head swiveling from side-to-side as he glanced nervously up and down the street. He licked his lips, and glanced past the two slender, sleep-bemused men at the 'sanctuary' of their darkened house.

Jerry, a little more awake, got the hint. "Uh... why don't you come in, Snake?" He suggested... and then barely had time to move out of the way as Steve's massive frame darted between the two slender men and into the shadows of the foyer.

Sharing a look with his twin brother, Lewis shrugged and closed the door, locking all three of the locks, including the rarely-used bolt-lock on the bottom.

"Okay, okay - calm down, Snake," Jerry said, leading the leather-clad man into the living room of their Spanish Mission-style bungalow and settling him onto the Italian-leather couch...

...which, against the built-in leather 'chaps' of Snake's jeans, made a hell of a noise. Wincing, Jerry turned on the light beside the couch.

"So - what's wrong?" Lewis asked the massively muscled, darkly tanned man as he settled into a chair across from him...

"It wasn't my fault." Snake insisted, irrationally - and the two slender men's mind jumped to the assumption that the biker had finally gotten around to committing something more than a petty crime...

"How was I supposed to know she was Geronimo's girlfriend?"

Lewis and Jerry solved the ancient question about the nature of Gravity, at least for a few seconds, as they managed to perform the amazing feat of levitation - leaping three feet straight up into the air.

Then Jerry dove for the window, almost ripping the drapes off their tracks as he drew them closed, and Lewis dove for the desk against the wall, performing a remarkably fast draw as he popped open the drawer and yanked out a .44 Magnum that looked much too big for his slender hands.

Lewis and Jerry had known Steve for most of their lives, having grown up with him - the perennial target to his 'school bully', although he was more disdainful and deriding of them, then actually cruel - which was why they were so surprised to find him at their door, asking them for help.

Many people came to them for help, of course - as certified geniuses, the two brothers' reputation was well known in town. That didn't mean they expected to get that request from ex-bully and now biker 'Snake', self-proclaimed as the toughest guy the little town had ever produced.

No matter how tough and self dependent he thought himself, however, Snake at least had the sense to be scared shitless of Geronimo.

Leader of the 'Satan's Army' biker gang, Geronimo was a short, massively muscled Indian with a wicked scar down his right cheek. Nobody knew his real name - and nobody was stupid enough to push for the answer to that question. Not with all the stories that went around about the man and his gang.

No - you didn't do anything that might piss Geronimo off...

...unless you had a death wish.

"Holy shit, Snake!" Jerry - who rarely swore -exclaimed, pale eyes wide in fear. "Please, please tell me he gave you a deadline of more than just tonight!"

Geronimo's Modus Operandi was well known - and it drove the cops nuts. It was the reason why he was still walking - well, riding - the streets of America.

When somebody pissed Geronimo off, the Indian would give the poor man a deadline - ranging from 'tonight' to as long as a month.

On the appointed day - the offender simply disappeared.

There was never any body, no sign of what had happened to the man - and Geronimo was always seen to be somewhere else, seen by dozens or hundreds of people that would guarantee his alibi. There had never been enough evidence in any case to convict the biker.

Now, Snake swallowed. "He... gave me three days. Friday, he said - on Friday I die." He leaned forward, fear evident in his usual tough voice. "Guys - you gotta help me! I'll pay you everything I got - you just have to hide me, or disguise me anything!"

The twins relaxed slightly at the news of the three-day deadline - as far as anybody knew, none of the people Geronimo had given a deadline to had died earlier than the appointed date.

Of course - none of them had ever been seen after the appointed date, either.

"Well " Jerry said, glancing at his sibling for confirmation of what he was thinking. "We might have something that could help you - but you wouldn't like it, or the price you'd have to pay for it."

"Anything!" Snake said, pleading. "I don't care what it is, or what you want from me in return - as long as I live past Friday, I should be safe. Please - I'll do anything."

The twins shared another look, considering. It was true that Geronimo had once said that anybody who lived past the deadline would no longer be in any danger, from him at least. The fact that he was batting a thousand had made the promise easy to make - and the twins weren't sure if Snake's logic was counting too much on that fact.

Still...

"Follow us." Lewis said, sliding the big gun back into the desk drawer and heading towards the back of the house. Almost jumping from nervous energy, Snake followed, the other sandy-haired twin falling in behind him.

Snake watched with interest as Lewis lead them through the kitchen and to an unobtrusive door on the far side, locked with a cylinder-style Boss, and old-fashion lock designed for interior fire-doors.

Twisting the heavy bolt on the cylinder, Lewis snapped the lock on the door open and hauled on the handle, the sound of the door and it's obvious weight showing that it was, in fact, a heavy-duty metal door - beyond which lay a stairwell leading down into darkness.

"You're gonna hide me in the basement?" Snake asked.

"No - just follow us." Lewis said. Flipping on the light switch at the top of the stairwell, he led the biker down into the cool, dry air of the basement.

Reaching the bottom of the cinder-block stairwell, Snake stepped into the clear area at the bottom...

...and his jaw dropped.

The Halston twins were known to have made a fair bit of money 'tinkering', putting their genius to use at R&D divisions of certain companies and making a tidy profit before retiring last year, at the unheard-of age of thirty-two.

Obviously, the fact that they were no longer working for a living hadn't curbed their 'tinkering' habit...

...because the basement looked like the 'Mad Scientist' set of a middling-budget movie. Unidentifiable equipment hummed, whistled and 'bleeped', and the workbenches were covered in half-disassembled electronic devices, obscure tools, and empty fast-food containers.

"Holy crap..." Snake breathed, staring around wide eyed.

"Here..." Jerry said, leading the way to an odd-looking device. Tall and narrow, it looked like an upright version of the 'stasis pods' they used in Sci-Fi movies. Opening the rounded glass-and-metal front casing, Jerry revealed an interior that looked like an upright, upholstered coffin.

"This..." Lewis said, with obvious pride, "...is the world's first - and, as far as we know, only - genetic recoder."

Snake frowned in confusion. "Huh?"

Jerry smiled. "It can recode the genetic make-up of the human body and alter it to specification."

It took a couple of seconds, but Snake got it. "Hey - you mean this machine can change the way I look?"

Lewis coughed discretely. "Well... theoretically, we could change you to look any way we wanted. However..."

"Yeah...?" Snake asked, not liking the tone of voice.

"...right now, the only definite genetic code we know how to change with this is the one that marks gender."

It took him a second, but Snake figured that one out too...

...and took several steps back, holding up his hands. "Wait a second, guys - you want turn me into a broad? A woman? No fucking way!"

Jerry sighed. "look - the Humane Genome Project has spent decades and billions of dollars trying to map the human gene code - and it still hasn't managed to do that. We have a lot less to work with - all we can offer you is this."

"And you have to admit..." Lewis said, persuasively. "...nobody would think that the woman you'd become could be you - so, it's a perfect disguise. Sort of."

"No way!" Snake shook his head, vehemently. "Look - I just want you guys to hide me, or give me some sort of disguise or something - not turn me into a fuckin' chick!"

"you don't think other people who've pissed Geronimo have tried that?" Lewis asked. "How many of them have you hear of making it?"

"Yeah, but..." Snake protested, more weakly. "...I mean... a woman? I'd rather..." "Be dead?" Jerry asked, pointedly.

That one rocked Snake back, and he swallowed nervously.

For a good three minutes, nobody spoke while Snake stood, bald head cast down in thought. Then:

"Uh... it's not permanent, right?" Snake asked, his voice hesitant and weak. "I mean... you could change me back, right?"

The twins shared a look.. and smiled.

"Of course, Snake." Jerry said. "Now, why don't you get undressed, and we'll get you ready...?"

* * * * * "Lita?"

The sound seemed to seep through layers of gauze, muffling the sound and distorting the meaning beyond any recognition - but it was enough to begin pulling Snake up through the fog of the sedative he'd been given before being loaded, oblivious, into the machine.

"Lita - can you hear me?" One of the twins said, and this time Snake could make out the words and the meaning... sort of.

Coming to full - is slightly fuzzy - consciousness, Snake blinked and stared up at the two identical faces peering down at him, one from each side.

"Lita?" the one on the left - Lewis, Snake thought - said, sort of hesitantly. "Are you awake?" "What the hell is this 'Lita' shit...?" Snake started to ask...

...then she gasped and sat bolt upright, hands flying to her throat as the sound of the undeniably feminine voice registered on her ears.

Well - tried to sit bolt upright, in any case - her first effort was completely unsuccessful, due to a combination of reduced strength and a heavy weight resting on her chest. Staring at the faces looking down at her, she let them help her into a sitting position, as her hands ran along a smooth throat that felt completely different than what she was used to - and the long hair that spilled over her shoulders and down onto her...

"Tits!" the woman who had been Snake until an hour and a half ago shouted, staring down in confused, horrified shock at the massive mountain of rounded, feminine flesh that blocked any downward view. "Holy fuckin' shit, they're fucking huge...!"

Numbly, her new hands - slender and dainty, she noted in a daze - dropped down and tried the impossible task of encompassing her new 'rack'. Each tit was huge, the size of a basketball (and almost as firmly spherical), and would have been too much for her large, masculine hands - her feminine new hands barely managed to cover the large, dark aureole and the huge, thick nipples that were centered in them.

"What the fuck have you done to me?" She screamed, hearing the hysterical accusation emerge in her new, feminine, contralto.

"Try not to panic, Lita..." Jerry said. "It's just a side effect of the process, and..."

"Side effect?" She screamed, sliding her hands under the curve of her huge new hooters and hugging them in the twins' direction. "You call these fuckin' chest melons side-effects? And what the fuck's with this Lita shit?" She was really getting revved up with horror-fed anger. "What the fuck have you dweebs done to me? Do you think this is some sort of fuckin' game? Do you..."

"Shut up!" Lewis said, sharply.

Her mouth slammed closed of its own volition. Her eyes widened in horror as she struggled to speak - and nothing would emerge. Furious, confused and terrified, the feminized man started to push herself off the bed she was sitting on...

"Sit still and listen to us." Jerry said, sharply - and she, horrified, found that the muscles of her new body refused to respond to any of her commands.

"Now..." Lewis said, with a sigh. "Let me explain a few things. First of all - the side effects of the process. You've undoubtedly noticed one of the major ones - an amazing suggestibility factor."

Her heart was pounding, and she was by turns terrified and enraged, but she had no choice but to listen to his voice as he explained to her what was happening.

"For the next week or so, you'll find you are highly suggestible - anything give to you as a direct order, firmly and with no room for discussion, you will obey automatically. You won't be able to help yourself - the part of you brain that is capable of distinguishing the difference between internal, self-generated commands and outside datum is, for want of a better word, 'shorted out', at least for awhile. Things that aren't strict orders, you won't be compelled to obey - but you'll find that your mind will 'consider' them, as if it was a thought you yourself had, rather than a sensory input."

"Now - your... breasts." Jerry said, flushing slightly. "The machine recoded your genes to match the data as if you were a woman - but it can't just 'get rid of' mass. All those muscles - built by the testosterone that the machine 'canceled out' - had to go somewhere. They ended up as extra mass for your breasts. There's no way we could have gotten around that."

"Now, we can understand that you're upset - but, since we've helped you, we're a part of this now, and aren't taking any risks. Not from Geronimo, and not from you. So..." He took a deep breath. "While you are female, you will answer to and use the familiar name 'Lita'. You will only use the full name of 'Carolita Esperina', and none other. You will not attempt to injure either my brother or myself in any way, and you will not try and leave this property, unless we give you specific permission to do so, in which case you will follow the instruction we give you, with no attempt to escape from the plan as it is given to you. Do you understand?"

Helplessly, Lita found herself answering, in a numb sort of voice. "Yes."

"Good." Jerry said, with a small grin. "Now, don't misunderstand - it's not our plan to keep you trapped in this body, permanently. We're just giving you the disguise you asked for."

Lewis smiled even more widely - and unpleasantly. "However - you did promise to do 'anything' in return for our help - and the payment we want is a little bit of pay back for all those times you humiliated, degraded or pushed us around."

'Oh, shit...' Lita thought, with a mounting realization of what her fear of Geronimo had led her into. "Now, come take a look at yourself, Lita." Lewis instructed.

What she really wanted to do was wrap one hand around each of the creeps' windpipe, and squeeze...

...however, what she did do was slowly stand up and approach the mirror set up for her first 'inspection' of her new body.

Even before she could see her reflection in the mirror, she could feel how different her body was. Obviously, her massive new tits played a part, the way they moved and jiggled with each step she took. But there was more to it than that. There was the strange feeling of 'graceful weakness' - with her muscular bulk transformed into the massive tits thrust from her chest, she felt less powerful - but the body she was now in was more supple, more flexible, partially offsetting the feeling.

Then she was standing in front of the mirror - and she gasped. 'Lita' bore no resemblance at all to 'Snake'.

Well - that wasn't true. There was actually quite a bit of resemblance, if you knew how to look for it.

Like the height - both were about the same height, but that threw you off - because 'Snake' had been of about average height, which made Lita tall, for a woman. So, the exact same height, in the different genders, didn't look the same.

Or the hair - her massive, thick mane of slightly wavy raven hair. It was long, silky, and incredibly thick, rich and dark - a black so dark that it had blue highlights.

It was the same color, exactly, as Snake's hair had been when he was young, before he got into the habit of shaving his head to look tougher. Not many people could claim to remember Snake's hair, but those who did would - if it was pointed out to them - see that it had been remarkably similar to this woman's raven tresses.

There was more of that strange similarity that was buried under her new gender. While Snake had been deeply tanned, Lita's skin was faintly dusky, sort of a 'built-in' tan that gave her an exotic appearance.

Her face added to that exotic look. She was more than just 'pretty' - she was drop-dead gorgeous, in a smoldering, powerful way.

Her lips were amazingly full and ripe, especially the lower one. Snake had always had rather 'thick' lips, but on the male version they had been heavy and thuggish-looking. Now, as a female, those slabs of unattractive flesh had been transformed into an incredibly sexy set of feminine lips.

His nose - a broken, hawk-nosed monstrosity, before - had become a perfect fixture for her new face. Definitely not a 'pert' or 'snub' nose, it was proud and well defined, without being over-bearing.

Her eyes Her eyes were dark and smoldering, half-veiled by long, luxurious lashes. They seemed to be the eyes of a woman who had seen it all, done most of it - and enjoyed almost all of it. That, however, was just her face - her body was just as amazing.

It was toned and lithe, more of a 'firm-body' than a 'hard-body'. Her skin was that dusky, exotic shade, and she could find no blemish, no mark on that entire body. The skin was smooth and soft, with the fine, light body hair of a woman, including the small, neat patch around...

...her cunt.

Inside, Lita wanted to whimper at the 'missing' cock and balls. Unable to, however, she could only continue her survey of her incredible new body. With repressed emotion, she realized that the twins had taken the chance to shave her legs and pits, as well as trim the patch of pubic hair that surrounded her new womanhood, making her look much like the average woman did...

...in terms of the body hair, at least.

Her legs were long and sexy, in a toned way. They weren't the sexy/beautiful legs of a fashion model or beauty queen, but the toned, sensual legs of a professional dancer. Those legs led up to wide, frankly feminine hips that helped support an inverted-heart-shaped ass that was, quite simple, mouth-watering.

Above those wide hips and spectacular ass lay a tiny, slender waist that gave her an exaggerated hour-glass figure - for, above that tiny waist were those massive, spherical tits, each tipped with a large, dark nipple.

She was a gorgeous, exotic beauty...

...and she wanted to kill the twins for doing this to her.

"Now.." Jerry said, in a voice that was a mixture of pity and glee. "I know you must be a little upset right now, but I want to explain something to you. We're being very careful to make the definition between what you'll do while you're a woman, because we're not really out to harm you - just humiliate you."

"That's right." Lewis agreed. "If we didn't specify that these orders only affect you while you are female, then you'd be really screwed when we turn you back - because there's no way to 'undo' a 'programmed' command. However, the fact that we're being so careful to make sure that you'll be fine once you are no longer female should show that we're not planning you any permanent harm. You asked us to 'disguise' you until it was safe, and we have "

"the humiliation and pay-back is just a fringe benefit." Jerry finished, with a grin. "Okay - you're allowed to talk and move again."

She waited - and she whirled on them, her huge tits swaying and making the move look almost comical as she struggled against the shiti as her tits didn't want to stop moving at The End of her spin.

"I'm going to kill you assholes..." She snarled at them, her hands clenching into impotent fists.

"Oh, no - you're forbidden to harm either of us, and that's a permanent order. Once you're male, it'll still be in effect." Jerry said, with a grin. He winked at his brother. "But I don't like that tone of voice. Lita - while you are female, you will not yell at us, threaten us explicitly, or insult us sharply. You may express mild dislike or disdain, but you will always act as if you have a grudging respect - and, deep down, a secret liking - for us."

"All right, fine.," She said, in resigned annoyance - the emotion being the 'acceptable' version of the anger she was feeling towards them.

That anger, however, was already weakening - because she saw the truth, and knew that she not only should have expected this, but that it was actually, in a twisted way, 'fair' - she had made their lives difficult when they were younger, and now they were going to pay her back for that...

...while helping top save her life. It was hard to forget that important fact.

"Now - let's get you started correctly." Jerry said, with a grin. "While you were still unconscious, we did a little shopping for you..."

* * * * *

"You've got to be kidding!"

Lita's voice held outrage and shock as she looked at the garments that the twins laid out on the bed of 'her' room, her dark eyes wide in disbelief.

"Nope - we thought this would be appropriate for such a sexy woman as yourself." Lewis said, with a smirk.

Slowly, Lita walked from one side of the bed to the other, staring at the items laid out before her.

Lacy black panties, a tiny scrap of fabric in a 'v' shape, barely translucent from the filmy lace that it was made of.

A black-and-red lacy 'merry widow', with garter clips at the bottom. Black nylons, to be attached to those clips.

A long, 'fluffy' skirt, slit up either side, made out of a rich, dark-purple satin with a thin, filmy white gauze-like inner layer, designed to be teasing-yet-'acceptable'.

A purple-and-white silk wrap-around blouse, with puffy short sleeves and a plunging 'V' neck formed where The Ends of the blouse would wrap over each other.

Black suede pumps, with four-inch spike heels. Jewelry. Make-up. A hair clip....

"Noooo way, Jose." Lita stated, firmly....

...a look that suffered when she tried to cross her arms with firm denial, only to find that crossing her arms over her huge new tits was a physical impossibility - and the attempt caused her to press her arms firmly against her tits, which made her yelp at the unexpected pleasure of the pressure. The twins snickered.

Lewis grinned widely. "While female, you will act as if you are proud of your body. You will want to dress in ways that emphasize your feminine figure, and you will walk and move in a feminine, emphasizing way. You will wear high heels, and makeup, and jewelry."

That, of course, ended any possible argument. With her mental 'defenses' defused, those orders entered her brain as if she'd come to those decisions herself. She simply could not deny the new she felt - the need to be exactly the way she'd been ordered to be.

She - as Snake - had once smoked, and had finally quit - and the orders she got reminded her of those craving for cigarettes, only magnified a hundred times over. Just as she'd known that smoking was bad for her, but craved a cigarette anyway, she still knew that she didn't really want to do this - but felt an incredible need to do what she'd been told to.

So, with a sigh and a muffled, mild curse - the best she could do - she began to dress.

She started with the flimsy excuse for underwear, unable even to grimace as she pulled the lacy undergarment into place around her full hips. Though the feel of it pressed firmly against her flat crotch and tightly into the crevice of her mind-boggling ass were repulsive to her, her only outward emotional display was a sigh of 'pleasure' as she pulled the panties on.

Next came the merry-widow - with some difficulty, as she had no previous experience putting one on. Eventually, however, she got it in place - which 'allowed' her to put the nylons on, sitting on the edge of the bed and balling them up before sliding them, one at a time, up her long, sexy legs.

She was disgusted to find that her supposed pleasure at putting nylons on wasn't complete faxed - she'd had no idea that the feeling of sheer nylon over silky flesh could be... enticing.

The skirt and the blouse were simple enough, once she figured out that she needed the full-length mirror in the corner of the room to be able to see the fasteners on the skirt, the bin-like clasp on the blouse. She needed the same mirror to put on the white leather belt, drawing it tight to unwilling/proudly display her slender waist to the best advantage.

Then, with no choice - and an outward display of coolly sensual pride - she went to work on her make- up and hair.

The twin watched the whole routine, from her reverse strip-tease to her seven attempt to get her make-up perfect, chuckling, trading ribald and sly comments, and laughing at her ineptitude the while.

Finally, atier much effort and painstaking trial-and-error, she managed to get an acceptable looking make-up scheme on her altered face, coolly appreciating the effect in the mirror - while, deep inside, she seethed.

Then, she got to put on her high-heel pumps and 'practice her walk'....

...while she went into the kitchen to prepare dinner.

Atier which, she got even more practice in just standing sensuously - while she did the dishes.

Followed by more practice walking and posing as she 'watched TV' with the twins, spending only about half the time working out the mostly proudly, seductively feminine ways to sit and 'pose'. The rest of the time, she was fetching-and-carrying snacks, drinks, and anything else the twins could think of for her to do.

She found out quickly that she'd taken a lot of things for granted about the female gender, when she'd been male. Her huge tits were constantly getting in the way - moreover, because she was constantly, helplessly, making them as prominent and alluring as she could, her every move calculated to emphasize whatever portion of her anatomy that could best be displayed in that particular position or during that particular task.

It didn't take long for her lower back to begin complaining about hauling those huge chest-melons around all the time, and the inertia of her huge tits was more than a small nuisance - it forced her to move with an extreme - and highly sensual - grace, as any sudden, awkward or jerky movements caused her tits to bounce and shiti awkwardly and uncomfortable.

Her ankles and calves began to ache, especially with her fighting to maintain balance in the unfamiliar heels, putting more of a strain on her body than a woman used to heels would have - and she hadn't quite mastered the skill of walking in them yet. Being outrageously top-heavy didn't exactly help, either.

One of the low points of the day was her first time using the bathroom as a female. The shame of having to sit and pee like an old man or an invalid was mixed with the disgusted intrigue of the different sensations - and she didn't even want to get into how it felt to wipe herself 'down there' when she was done.

Women's clothes also turned out to make going to the bathroom a major procedure, requiring much more work than it had as a man. Especially with her huge bust blocking her down-ward view, requiring some contortions for certain portions of the routine.

However, the most shameful part of her day came when she was finally allowed to climb into bed - dressed in a sexy silk negligée, of course - and cuddle up in a sexy pose to fall asleep in.

When she found that the emotions roiling in her transformed body brought her to the edge of great racking sobs.

She didn't know whether or not to be grateful for the fact that her 'programming' denied her the opportunity to go ahead and break down in tears.

* * * * *

the second day of Lita's (hopefully very short) time as a female didn't start much better than the day before had ended.

The first little while was spent without the presence of the twins, though - had she chosen - they probably could have 'enjoyed' watching her go about her morning routine, with no choice in the matter.

It started, unsurprisingly, with a trip to the bathroom. At least it was marginally easier to use the toilet when in just a negligee - but any 'relief' she might have felt about that was mitigated by her little routine in the shower.

No matter how much she wished she could have just hurried through the shower, quickly and impersonally, she found herself helplessly taking her time, her hands wandering all over her body with a gentle, probing touch, touching and teasing herself.

What made it that much worse - was that it felt good. Part of it was the direct physical stimulation, that she didn't want to enjoy - how could she let herself deal with the fact that she found her female body being fondled, even by her,. Highly enjoyable?

The other portion was the fact that her male mind was getting really turned on by fondling this sexy woman's body - the fact that she was in it not enough to defuse her male thoughts and sexual outlook.

However - since she got turned on by it, it was her female body that experienced arousal - a situation she would have avoided, if at all possible. She didn't want anything she might experience while female to be arousing.

She didn't have a choice in the matter, though - even turning the water full-on cold for the last of the shower didn't stop her from stepping out of the shower, considerably aroused. In fact, the cold water only made her nipples almost painfully engorged, thrust impudently from the dark aureole on which they sat.

It took her forever to blow-dry her silky mane of raven-black hair... which she did not begrudge, at it was the one act that, in itself, wasn't humiliating or embarrassingly 'nice' in a different, disturbing way. It was almost with regret that she had to admit that the hair was finally dry...

...because then it was time to get dressed.

This time, it was a burgundy-and-black dress, with a hem that came high on her mid-thigh without quite being 'cheap' or 'slutty'. The neck-line was low and plunging, but a fine black nylon mesh covered her mouth-watering cleavage, again just skirting the edge of 'good taste'.

This dress went on over lacy black panties not much different then the day before - and a pair of black nylons, whose lacy upper edge was just barely hidden by the hem of the skirt.

Of course, she had to do her hair and make-up again - and took no pride in the fact that she was able to do it faster and easier then the day before.

Then she stepped into the dark-red and black patent leather pumps with their five-and-a-quarter inch high heels, and it was time to face the twins as she teetered and wobbled (but, not so much as yesterday afternoon) to fix them their breakfast.

She wished that she was able to express the true emotions that she felt as she went through her routine of catering to the twin's every whim. When she bent low to provide them with a tasty snack she'd prepared, she couldn't flush in shame at the display of mouth-watering cleavage she was giving

- instead, she didn't meet their eyes, cool and impersonal... until she started to rise, when she'd shoot them a side-long, sultry glance, with a faint, seductive smile crossing her lips.

Sometimes, instead of a smile, she'd slowly, sensuously lick her full, gloss-red lips instead - and she just wanted to die from shame from what she was forced to do.

More than once there was reason for her to bend over to pick something up - and it was always the same. She'd cross her legs at the ankle and, keeping her legs straight, very slowly bend at the waist and pick up the item, displaying a mind-boggling view of her legs and ass...

None of the fantastic control it took to keep her huge tits from toppling over during the act showed, and by ten-thirty, her back was letting her know that it wasn't a happy camper. Another thing she couldn't show.

Needless to say, Lewis and Jerry got a kick out of finding new ways for her to express her 'reluctant respect' and 'hidden attraction' to them. Every move she made was as calculated and graceful as a dancer's, although of a more sultry, sensual nature - even if it was a cool, self-contained - almost haughty - sensuality. As the day wore on, so did her unwanted expertise in sensuality increase. Her ability to walk in heels improved to the point where she no longer teeter and swayed, but moved with a slow, sensual, challenging strut that emphasized her legs and ass, and made her huge, firm tits move ever-so-enticingly.

All of which increased her shame and humiliation, of course - that was the whole point.

She was also forced to address the twins with a voice that was a carefully calculated as her movements - smoky and slightly husky, always with a veiled suggestion in it, with the less-veiled hint that they weren't nearly man enough to take her up on the suggestion. Shame burned deep in her at her ability to be a walking, talking, challengingly sensual and utterly magnificent 'come on', her every move and word and glance making it seem like she was looking for a man who would meet her standards, rise to her challenge.

Of course, all three knew that there was no chance of that happening - despite her incredible, exotic sensuality and magnificent physique, the Twin knew who really inhabited that lush body, who was really behind that sultry, challenging persona - but that was part of the game they were playing, always acting as if they were on the verge of taking her up on the offers she hinted at, increasing the shame she felt at being so successful at manipulating and arousing men.

The worst part of it all - there were times and situations where she was horrified to find herself 'enjoying' this horrifying, humiliating situation.

Some of it was her enforced persona, making her unwillingly proud of certain things she did - but a lot of it was pure physical and emotional pleasure that she didn't want to feel, and was ashamed and shocked by when she caught herself doing so. Whenever she had occasion to 'accidentally' fondle her body in any way, she found that it, physically, felt good - and hated that it did. There were times where, in the middle of 'playing' a sexy pose or routine, she was doing so on autopilot. It happened when she was watching TV with the guys, playing cards, or any other basically simple social act - she would become so involved in the game that she'd actually manage to 'forget' what she was being forced through, caught up in playing the game or watching the show, her sensual moves and poses now instinctive and barely noticed - until something (usually a comment, look or new 'suggestion' from one of the twins) would remind her of the fact she was now a hugely-endowed, 'come-hither', exotic beauty - and she'd be ashamed that she could let herself be 'comfortable' in that body and persona, for any length of time or for any reason.

The thought that, slightly less than two days in this body and life, she was beginning to adapt to it to some degree scared the hell out of her, made her sick inside. Being a woman was horrific, a fate just barely better than death itself...

...wasn't it?

The second night, as she drifted off to sleep in an incredibly sexy pose, she found herself wondering why, tonight, she didn't have the urge to break down into tears...

...and the possible answers frightened her to no end.

* * * * *

Pushing open the back door of the bungalow with her (incredibly firm, full, sexy) ass, Lita hugged the two paper bags full of groceries as tightly as she could to her chest, feeling them press into the flesh of her huge, firm tits - a pressure that was disturbingly pleasant.

Mentally cursing the twins for many things, she added a special emphasis on the curses of the damned boots she was wearing - thanks to their orders, the black oti-leather boots that came to just below her knees were 'graced' with six-inch spiked heels. Obviously, they hadn't considered the full ramifications of their order that she wear only the highest, thinnest heels she could - because it made carrying groceries damned difficult.

She was already too damned top-heavy, her huge, round tits threatening to pull her over if she wasn't careful, especially since she could only walk with a proud-yet-sexy little walk. The added weight of the groceries just made it worse, and the farther they were away from her center of gravity, the worse it was - hence, her hugging the bags to her massive chest, despite the fact that the sensation it created was galling.

She didn't want to find anything about this situation 'pleasant', no matter how much the twins had programmed her to act as if were.

Well - it would be over soon, she told herself. Atier all - today was the deadline. She was damned sure that Geronimo would never connect 'Lita' with 'Snake', and then tomorrow she could go back to being her real self...

...assuming, of course, that the twin's didn't leave her like this for a little longer, just to have 'fun' with her.

Sighing, Lita stepped over to the mirror on the far wall of the kitchen, her high heels click-clacking on the stone-tiled floor as she watched her reflection draw closer, swaying with a damned sexy, sensual grace as she moved.

Her 'motif' today was black leather - she was dressed in it from head to toe.

Skintight black leather pants hugger her legs and drew a 'delightful' contour over her spectacular ass, emphasizing every mouth-watering curve from her waist down, with the leather boots with their loop- and-lace fronts tied as tightly as possible so that the soti, matte-finish leather even emphasized the curves of her calves.

A specially-made leather vest was the other part of her ensemble - skin-tight, the vest clung to her tiny waist, while dipping below the curvature of her massive tits before swelling out, emphasizing the dusky, firm globes even more. the 'V' neck of the vest, framed with narrow leather lapels, displayed a mouth-watering view of dusky cleavage, and despite the circumstances and the strangeness of it all, Lita couldn't help but find the look of her new body absolutely stunning, especially with her face so artfully made up, her long dark hair falling din waves around her dusky, proudly sensual face. Her full, gloss-red lips seemed to be smiling faintly, and her dark eyes practically smoldered with seduction.

If it wasn't for that fact that the image in the mirror was her, she would have fucked this woman's brains out.

Sighing, Lita turned away from the mirror, hoping that she wouldn't have to stay in this incredibly seductive, sultry body one minute longer than necessary.

Heading over to the swinging door that lead from the kitchen, she pushed it open... "Who the hell are you?" She demanded, angrily. "What the fuck's going on here?"

It was her 'programming' that allowed her to do that. Instructed not to do anything that would link her to 'Snake', she found her programmed brain forcing her to act the way she would if she really didn't know the short, copper-skinned man sitting in the armchair near the window, his body - massively muscled, and almost as wide as he was tall - relaxed and in command.

The man didn't smile - his face seemed to be carved out of old copper, his eyes as unforgiving and uninformative as black pools of oil. All that didn't negate the feeling that Lita got, from the tilt of his head, maybe - that he highly approved of what he saw. The two men one either side of him - one, a massively muscled black man with the look of a brain-dead thug, the other a tall, whip-cord thin white man - were leering at her with flat, dead eyes.

"Who are you?" Geronimo asked, almost quietly, his voice deep and utterly devoid of any emotion, positive or negative. He didn't even use the massive fire-arm cradled in his ham-like right hand to emphasize his question.

"I'm Carolita, not that it's any of your damned business." She snapped - and for the first time, she blessed the programming that had been given to her. Beneath her massive bust, her heart was pounding frantically, and she was more terrified than she'd ever been - but none of it showed through her programmed personality. "Now, answer my question - who the fuck are you, and what are you and your two muscle-bound goons doing in my house?"

"Your house?" Geronimo asked, slowly rising to his feet. "I thought it was their house." He gestured with the gun towards Lewis and Jerry, tied up and gagged in the other two chairs.

"Yeah - well, they own it, but I live here with them." Lita said, coldly. In truth, she was frantic - but not as much as she had been a second ago. The fact that her programming was carrying her through this made it suddenly clear that maybe the twins had planned better than she'd thought.

She might actually have a chance of walking away from this alive.

"My name is Geronimo - and I'm looking for the man they call 'Snake'. I have an.. appointment with him." Geronimo said, coldly.

"I don't know any fuckin' Snake, and I don't care what you want with him - all I know is that he ain't here, and you are. Now why don't you release the twin, take your goons, and get lost."

Geronimo looked up and down, eyeing her more obviously this time - then looked at the twins for a second, before turning his flat, dead eyes back to her.

"Normally, I would kill one of them to prove that I am serious." Geronimo said, coldly. "However, I would not kill a single twin. So - you will have to believe me when I say I will kill all of you, unless I get what I want."

"Look, buddy - I told you I don't know this guy, so I can't tell you anything about him!" Lita snapped, her heart revving back up to full speed. "Besides - you kill us, and the cops'll put your ass in the chair. These guys used to work for military suppliers - they die, it's a federal case."

Geronimo blinked - then shrugged. "Perhaps so - but I will not be the one that killed them. Right now, I am in South Dakota, at a rally. At least - that's what the police will discover, if they try and find out."

Lita blinked - then, in a flash of inspiration, understood. "Goddamn - you're a fuckin' twin, yourself!"

Geronimo refused to answer Lita's charge - but she knew, nonetheless, that that was how Geronimo performed his seemingly impossible act. With no other identification other than his very appearance, the Geronimo with the vendetta could seek his retribution, while his identical brother - in name as well, it would seem - played the part of the ultimate alibi.

Geronimo, however, was apparently unconcerned with her realization - and that frightened the hell out of her.

He didn't plan to let them live.

"I believe you." He said, in that flat voice. "You cannot tell me where Snake is - and the twin also claim that they do not know. They claim that he came here for help, but they turned him away. That, somehow, he has escaped the eyes of those I sent to watch him..."

He turned and stared flatly at his two hugely muscled 'goons - who suddenly paled, though he refused to make any other outward show of fear.

"however..." Geronimo said, turning back to her. "I think that I can still find something to... satisfy me, here."

Then, he grinned.

There was nothing at all pleasant about that grin. That grin made Lita - and, deep inside, Steve - want to scream.

Instead... she snorted. "Yeah? You're not man enough to handle me."

She was horrified to hear the words emerge - but she couldn't stop it from happening. To increase their 'fun', the twins had given her the personality of a woman proud of her body and sexuality - and that forced her to do this insane thing. She knew how stupid it was to challenge Geronimo in any way

- but she couldn't act, in any way, like she knew who he was or what he was capable with, and that - coupled with her 'proud sexuality' forced the words from her full lips, now curved up in a suicidal sneer.

Geronimo eyed her for a long second, that unpleasant grin still riding on his narrow lips...

...and then he spoke.

"I know you." He said, and Lita's heart fluttered in fear, until his next words. "I've never seen you before - but I know you."

Then her heart - already having been up and down the cardiac scale a dozen times over - revved up again.

"You're a sexy tease." He said - in a tone of voice that brooked no doubt whatsoever. One that was utterly confident...

...and drilled right through Lita's defenseless brain.

"You're a cum-sucking, man-hungry slut-bitch." Geronimo continued, inexorably. "You live to turn men into your sex toys, to make men so turned on by you that they're willing to do anything to keep you happy. That's why these two pathetic nerds let you live here. You love to use your body to get the things in life you want. You turn men on so they'll buy you things, give you things, treat you like the queen of all creation. You just don't let them know that you need sex so badly that, even if everybody treated you like shit, you'd eventually fuck their brains out to get what you need."

He stepped closer to her, that unsettling smiling widening as he litied a hand and slowly caressed the leather covering one massive tit. Lita shuddered in disgust - but Geronimo obviously thought she was shivering in repressed lust.

"You need this. You need a man touching your body. You need men to desire you. You need to satisfy your cravings to fuck and be fucked, to suck and touch and make a man cum. You live for it."

He leaned forward, his hot breath on her face at he leered at her and - too late - dropped that commanding, utterly-assured tone. "Don't you?"

The answer was ripped helplessly from her lips, a proud admission whose 'pride' was not hers - and whose truth, she was horrified to find, was.

"Yeah?" She said, in a low, challenging tone. "So what if I am?"

She wanted to curl up and die - but none of that showed through the persona that now wrapped around the 'real' her, all enclosed in the incredibly sexy, dusky body that she now, helplessly, found she could not imagine existing without. Deep inside, she wanted to scream in utter despair as she knew that being made into a man, ever again, would destroy her. The Indian's words had defined her new reason for existing, and if this body - her ability to fulfill her new raison d'être - was removed from her, she would self-destruct, her mind trying to force something a male body couldn't provide.

Right then, her deepest wish was that she would self-destruct, right then and there, and be put out of the misery of her continued existence in her newly defined life.

It wasn't to be.

"So..." Geronimo answered, in a sotily threatening voice. "We both know the truth about each other. We know each other's deepest secret - and you are going to use yours to convince me that I can trust you with mine."

"What are you talking about?" Lita asked, sneering - but, deep down, she knew the answer - and wanted to vomit.

Despite her certainty, each of the words Geronimo spoke seemed to slam into her like small grenades, carving chunks out of her will-to-live.

"You are going to show me - us - the man-hungry cum-slut you really are." He said, sotily. "You're going to make my two... friends, and me, cum. If you do it well enough... we'll let you and your two pathetic little friends live."

For one eternal instant, Lita was sure that she was going to refuse. She couldn't do what he was telling her to do, couldn't live with herself if she did this thing. She'd defy him, and he'd blow her brains out - and that was the way it should be.

Then that eternal instant passed - and she was lowering her eyes from his, her voice said, sotily, "All right."

Two things, equally powerful, made her do this. Part of it was the artificial will-to-live, instilled in 'Lita' by Geronimo's inadvertent definition of her new life. No matter how disgusting it was to her, part of her really did need what he was 'offering', now.

That, by itself, might not have been enough - her urge to not do this was strong. The second factor, however, was the twins. She had thought she hated them for what they'd done to her - but, she could see, while they had taken the chance to pay her back for what she'd done over the years of their youth, they had also done it to save her life.

She, as Snake, had tormented them, had become a tough, self-confident biker who played fast and loose with the rules...

...but it was all petty stuff. He'd whored and stole and brawled, drunk and cursed and pissed in public places. Not once, however, had he so much as threatened death upon any other person, and now she saw that she was incapable of being responsible for the death of the twins. No matter who, or what, she might have been, or might become - she couldn't do it.

Confusion thrummed through her mind, unseen through the layers of new persona laid down between the inner person and the outside world. She didn't know whether or not she should be grateful for the instilled needs she now had, as they would make this 'easier' - or whether to continue and be utterly disgusted by them, and then take some sort of perverse, humiliating pride in being able to force herself to do something utterly repugnant to her, in order to help her quasi-friends.

It didn't matter what she wanted to think, or feel. She knew the horrendous truth.

She now craved - needed, not wanted - what she was about to do, and although it was her male mind that she'd have to force to do the actions, to pick and choose certain aspects of what was to come, part of her was desperately, painfully eager and excited about what was going to happen.

All this went through her in an instant - then her lips were curving upward in a deliciously seductive, challenging smile - and she slowly strutted over to the first 'goon', her body moving with incredible, seductive grace as she slowly and sensuously eyed the man.

She struck an incredible sexy pose in front of the man, partially out of new 'instinct' and habit - and part of it from sheer force of will, when the male part of her wanted to run, screaming.

"You got a name, big dumb and ugly?" She asked, her voice managing to be incredibly sultry and insulting at the same time.

"Yeah - they calls me 'Shane'." The black man - a walking mountain of poorly defined muscle and Neanderthal-like body hair - said with a sneer, looking her up and down. "What's it to you?"

"Shane." Lita repeated, making the word sound like she'd found an unpleasant substance on the bottom of her shoe. "I bet you think you're a big, tough man - right?"

"yeah." Shane said, with a sneer.

'Oh, God - help me.' Lita thought, deep down - and still wasn't sure if she was asking for help to get her through this - or asking for help so that she'd get 'this' good and hard, like she 'needed'...

"Yeah - well, I bet you can't handle these..." Lita said... and slowly pulled on the big silver ring of the vest's zipper, slowly exposing more and more cleavage...

...before she slowly peeled off the vest and stood, huge, round tits proudly out-thrust from her slender ribcage, nipples painfully swollen in a perverse excitement that disgusted and aroused her simultaneously. Her body thrummed with need, desire and disgust - and she was horrified to find that she was 'getting into' this.

Grinning, Shane reached out and began to fondle her huge tits, roughly.

Incredible physical and emotional pleasure almost drove Lita to her knees, while disgust and hatred almost made her vomit. Neither happened, though.

Instead, she sneered. "God - you hands don't even come close to being big enough, and your technique sucks. You aren't even getting me wet."

Shane snarled and squeezed her tits, hard.

Pain and pleasure, both physical and emotion, fought inside her, each side perfectly matched. "Oh, puh-/eeze." Lita sneered. "Let's hope your more of a man that that where it counts."

Reaching out, she unzipped his pants with a horrifying eagerness, hating herself for finding her mouth watering and her body tingling as she extracted his semi-hard cock.

It was slightly larger then average - but Lita managed to look utterly disappointed. In truth, she was half disgusted, half excited - again, so perfectly matched that there was no way of separating a winner form the feelings.

Slowly, with semi-feigned reluctance, she snake to her knees, rolling her eyes and sighing. She wrapped one slender hand around his balls - and with the other, began slowly teasing his cock with her fingers, lightly stroking for a second, then lightly running her blood-red nails over the crown. The cock was rapidly becoming hard, and Shane had an unpleasant, lust-filled smile on his lips.

"God - how pathetic..." Lita murmured, 'disgusted'. "I bet you can't even cum hard enough that I can't swallow it all, without spilling a drop."

"I'll show you how hard a man can cum, bitch." Shane snarled - and wrapping his thick, heavy hands around either side of her head, pulled her face down to his crotch.

It would have been one thing, for Lita's 'peace' of mind, if he'd face-fucked her, as close to rape as orally possible - but though he was trying to be rough, she found that she was defeating much of that by her 'willing' acceptance of what was happening, shame and eager joy filling her as she opened her mouth and accepted his musky, warm cock deep into her throat.

Even though his hands and hips tried to set up a rhythm, she found she had a certain measure of control - and disgusted to find she was using it, finding the thick, throbbing cock slamming in and out of her mouth incredibly exciting as she sucked and licked his cock, forcing her head to slow his rhythm when he got too close to the edge. It became a sort of battle - him trying to fuck her mouth with hard, swift actions, and her trying - and succeeding - in driving him crazy by holding him off as long as she could - and feeling a horrible pride at how well she was giving her first blow job.

It couldn't last for ever - and, to her great shame, part of her didn't want it too, 'eager' for him to cum. Finally, as he was grunting in angered lust and delayed pleasure, she finally brought him over the edge - and he shot warm, salty, disgusting cum down her throat...

...and she almost passed out from the pride, disgust, pleasure and hate that thrummed through her body as she took it all, slowing every drop of the thick, warm goo and loving/hating every single instant as her throat worked frantically to get it all.

She did, too, rising with her lips and bare breast unsullied by the slightest missed droplet. "I knew it." She said, disdainfully...

...while her head swam, her nipples were so hard and erect that it felt like they'd burst, and her cunt seemed to be made of liquid fire.

She'd never been so incredibly, mind-numbingly turned-on in her life - and it was because she was sucking and fucking and touching and seducing men.

She wanted to die...

She wanted to fuck herself to death... She wanted to fuck them to death.

She didn't know what she wanted - her mind was a whirl of conflicting thoughts, emotions, desires. But she knew what she needed... and what she needed to do.

With a last sneer - and ever-so-slight, knowing smile - she turned from Shane and slowly approached the second 'goon', a rangy, slender man who was so tall and narrow he could have passed for a street lamp - but with a dark glint in his eyes that belied his almost comical appearance.

"How 'bout you?" She asked, cocking her head and eyeing him 'doubtfully'. "You got a name, beanpole?"

"It's Jack - and you're about to remember it for a long, long time, bitch." He breathed, reaching out and pulling her against him, hard.

His head dipped - and she found herself trying to out-kiss him, their tongues and lips in a battle of raw power and sensuality as he tried to prove that she was more of a woman than he was a man.

Part of her wanted to lose... but a larger part of her wanted to win - and enjoyed the contest, regardless.

Before there was a clear outcome to the battle, he thrust her away, her body afire with a need...

...one that he was all-too-ready to satisfy, from the way his cock had felt against her thigh, through his pants.

As he began to undress, and evil smile riding on his lips, she quickly stripped the rest of her clothing away, her panties sopping with her juices - which made him smile.

She didn't know what she was thinking anymore - she was like a sugar-addict loosed in a candy store. No matter how she might want to be feeling, what she might choose to think right now, her body 'needed' something that there was an abundance of available, and her ability to think in the midst of this cornucopia of lust was simply drowned out by the sensations her body was feeding her.

Roughly, Jack pushed her to the ground, pulling her legs out of the way...

...and that told her what her life was to be from now on. She didn't like the rough way he was handling her, she didn't like not having control, she didn't like not being able to do this slower, with more time to 'accept' each stage, with her running it...

...but she knew, as horrifying as it was, that she'd accept this over no sex at all. She wouldn't be able to stop herself. She'd try to hold out as long as possible, being a sultry tease - then she'd try and find the sex where she'd be in control. If she couldn't find it, though - then she knew that, someday, she'd be in this same position...

...and guiltily, disgustingly, perversely... enjoying it as immensely as she was now.

With an angry look, Jack slammed his hard, throbbing cock deep into her more-than-well-lubricated cunt, filling her completely and utterly, slamming it into her with all his weight as he waited for her to scream in pain...

...instead, it was all she could do not to scream in pleasure. "That's the best you can do?" She sneered.

Jack fucked her. There is no other word for the angry, powerful thrusts he used, slamming into her again and again and again, seeking to hurt her while he got himself off.

While there was some physical discomfort - it simply wasn't enough to overcome her newly conditioned response to any sexual act performed with a man. Her body was on fire with pleasure and ecstasy and pride that she'd never felt the likes of before, and the world spun around her as she fought from showing the incredible pleasure that was overwhelming her body and mind.

She didn't, physically, orgasm - but the pleasure she felt was still more intense than any sexual pleasure she'd ever felt before, and when Jack stiffened and shot his load deep into her cunt and withdrew, 'beaten' - it was struggle not to beg him to keep fucking her, longer and harder.

Thankful that her new persona wouldn't allow her to give into that ultimate humiliation, Lita rose, her dusky body now sheeted in sweat and looking more animal, more purely sexual than she had before. With a bouncing, powerful step, she approached Geronimo with a predatory smile on her lips.

"Now... it's your turn..." She said in a low, husky voice, her hands going to his crotch....

...then most of her brain seemed to shut down and she stared in utter confusion and shock at Geronimo, her hands sliding over his crotch - and the small, limp object within.

The smile Geronimo gave her wasn't pleasant - not at all.

"I told you - make all three of us cum, and you and your friends can live." There was a perverse pride in his voice. "So go ahead and make a guy who's dick was mostly cut-off in prison cum - and I'll keep my part of the bargain."

She should have known better than to trust the faint hope he'd offered. She'd humiliated and degraded herself for nothing. She'd discovered that she was really a cum-hungry slut bitch now, given into that new persona, become what most disgusted her... and liked it for no reason.

Then, like a flash from the sky, even as the madly grinning Indian began to raise his huge gun, everything 'clicked' into place, like giant celestial tumblers falling in place to open the vault of inspiration.

"Okay." Lita said, calmly, her grin seductive. Geronimo blinked, the gun pausing.

"Come on downstairs, and then I'll make you cum like a firehouse " She said, seductively and hungrily, liking her lips.

"What the hell are you talking about, bitch?" Geronimo snarled, face contorting. "Are you making fun of me?"

Lita's smile widened. "No - but I can make you cum, after these guys.." She jerked a thumb at the twins, "...use their machine to give you a huge, thick, cum-filled - and completely functional - cock."

Geronimo wrapped a thick hand around her slender neck, rage making the veins on his neck stand out.

"I'm... serious.." She gasped, still grinning, though the pressure on her windpipe was growing steadily tighter. "You.. don't... think these... tits.. are... 'real'... do.. you "

Geronimo released her, a faint hope warring with doubt and rage. "Talk fast, bitch."

Resisting the urge to cough, Lita continued to smile. "Nobody has 'real' tits like these - yet you can see I didn't get surgery to make them this big - the nipples match the size, and there's no scars." She shrugged. "The twins invented a 'Genetic Recoder', they call it, and gave me these tits."

Geronimo was staring her right in the eye when she said it - and saw nothing but honesty in her dark, seductive eyes. After all, it was the utter truth - she just let certain other parts out of it.

"Show me.." He said, and his voice was raw with unbidden hope.

She sighed. "I can't - the twins used it on me, but they're the only ones who know how to use it. It takes both of them to run it - and nobody else could possibly figure it out, once they're dead."

"If you're lying to me..." the Indian said - but the threat was almost instinctive, Geronimo's mind dwelling on the possibility...

"Bring 'em." He said, shortly, gesturing at the twins. As the goons untied them and herded them along behind, Geronimo grabbed Lita's arm and hauled her along, managing to drag her as she led him to the stairs, and down into the lab.

The sight of all the elaborate equipment, unidentifiable components and odds-and-ends made his hope flare higher.

In that moment of hope, when he was most vulnerable, Lita made eye-contact with the now-unbound twins...

All three of them leapt into action as fast and furious as they could. Simultaneously, three legs swung back and - with all the force those respective legs could muster - kicked their respective captives in the crotch.

All three men grunted, but only the two fully-functioning men went down. Geronimo half-curled, but started to straighten immediately, his gun coming up...

Then his eyes went black and a surprised look took his face just before he slumped into unconsciousness.

Grinning, Lewis held up the hypo full of sedative, and gestured at Jerry, who was just finishing injecting the other two - who welcomed the surcease of pain.

"Lita... we're so sorry." Lewis said, grin fading. "We had no idea that this would happen." "I know." Lita said, heavily.

"Look - you're out of danger, and we can change you back..."

He slowly staggered to a halt at Lita's slow shaking of her head - then his and his brother's mouth fell open as she explained the problem. There was no way to undo the programming Geronimo had given her, and they all knew it.

"What are we going to do...?" Jerry said, eyes full of pain at what he'd done to her.

She knew that he was referring to her problem - but that was something she wasn't really ready to face, right now. Instead, she began to outline her plan for the three unconscious men...

* * * * *

ONE YEAR LATER

The long, black limousine slowly pulled to a stop in front of the dilapidated brownstone in a run-down section of town, looking decidedly out of place among the decrepit surroundings.

The front door popped open, and a massive example of masculinity stepped out. Not massively muscled, he was incredibly toned, with a tall, wide body and a virility that just bordered on caricature. His tight-fitting slacks bulged almost obscenely at the crotch, and you would have had to look very closely indeed to see any resemblance between him and Jerry.

Walking around, he opened the back door. "We're here." He said in a deep, rumbling voice.

A black leather boot with a seven-inch spike heel slowly emerged, followed by a leather-clad leg that was nothing short of spectacular. Slowly, an incredibly stunning, sexy woman emerged from the car and looked at the run-down building.

She was drop-dead gorgeous, from her large-melon-sized breasts to her mind-blowing face, and from her incredibly long, sexy legs to her tiny waist.

Wiping her full, gloss-red lips with a finger, she sucked the finger clean with a soft moan of pleasure, then smiled at the man holding the door. "Thanks, Jerry - you and Lewis wait here, I won't be long."

"Sure thing, Lita." Jerry agreed, with a smile.

Lita had a wistful smile of her own as she walked towards the four-apartment brownstone with a walk that would make an abbot get hard. She mused that sometimes things in life managed to come to a sort of justice, after all.

The twins had figured out a way to 'modify' human beings without necessarily having to switch their genders - by switching their genders twice. Both the twins had been through the process, being turned female first, a condition they'd had to spend two months in while they 'dyked' up - so that their second switch would leave them the incredible, virile example of humanity that they were.

Lita had also been through the procedure, though she'd had to be kept sedated for the time while she was male, to keep from going suicidally crazy. Then she'd been switched, with smaller - but still huge - tits, and even more slender, supple and gorgeous than ever, fulfilling her desperate need to be ultimately sexy.

As for other things...

Reaching the front door, she paused and looked up at the grime-streaked letter carved into the concrete arch over the door that announced the building to be the 'Sanctuary Apartments'.

Walking in, she wrinkled her nose at the smell of the aging, decrepit building - she and the twins had gotten exactly what they'd paid for when they'd bought the building.

Lita strode down the hall, high-heels tapping, as she prepared to make her quarterly visits to the tenants of the apartment building she owned.

Reaching the first door, she knocked on the fading paint of the surface, nose wrinkling in distaste. From inside, a deep male voice could be heard through the win door.

"Bitch, answer the fuckin' door!"

there was a pause - then the door swung open.

The person framed buy it was a sight, in more ways than one.

The black woman was tall and extremely broad-hipped. A pair of tiny, skin-tight, and stained denim- shorts clung to those hips and her over-developed ass, the button on the waist-band undone to allow room for the massively distended belly that was well into it's third trimester.

A massive cotton crop-top struggled mightily to contain the load of the enormous, swaying tits that were stuffed into it., The size of beach-balls, they were quite firm for their size, but still had quite a bit of droop, only the fact that they rested on her hugely distended belly keeping the from hanging halfway to her knees. The translucent, sopping wet white material of the top clearly revealed her enormous, dark nipples, permanently erect - and permanently lactating. A thin stream of breast-milk ran from each nipple and down her massive belly, slowly dripping onto the cracked linoleum floor.

"Hello, Shawna." Lita said, with a small smile.

"Why, mizz Lita, I'se so happy ta seez ya again." The black woman said in a thick, almost unintelligible accent. "Yuz wanna come in fer a spell?"

"Oh, no thanks..." Lita grimaced, ignoring the half disappointed, half thankful look on Shawna's over- made-up face, beneath it's massive, curly frizz of hair.

"That Lita, bitch?" The male voice called.

"yes, massa - dat's the lady!" Shawna called back, then smiled at Lita. "Mah man's a li'l rude somen'times, but hes gonna gimme lots and lots a chillen like I like, and he keeps me fed and clothed and stuffs. All I'se gotta do is suck'em off all de time, when he wan's me to, see!"

"I know, Shawna - I know." Lita agreed, hiding a smile at Shawna's 'stupidity' - she could barely speak, and couldn't read or write at all. Lita knew, however, that under that enforced 'stupidity', a very aware mind was trapped.

How well she knew situations like that...

Leroy, Shawna's 'man' finally came to the door, dressed in nothing but a pair of boxer-briefs....

...that bulged ludicrously, his massive balls clearly viable through the leg-holes of his seldom-used underwear.

"I gotta say, Miss Lita." Leroy said, handing over a wad of cash. "I still can't believe this here deal you got goin' for me an' the other guys. lace to live, perfect little bitch for each of us, and " He grinned and rubbed his crotch suggestively. "fer only two hunner a month. Not that I'm complainin' mind ya."

"I wouldn't think so." Lita agreed, counting the money and finding all six-hundred dollars there. "Well, I'll se you in another three months, then."

"Sure." Leroy grinned. "You can see the first baby, right?"

"Yes, I suppose." Lita agreed with a private smile, then walked away from the door as Leroy told his 'bitch' that it was 'time to work'.

Placing the money in her purse, she knocked on the second door and waited. The door swung open immediately, opened by a tall, stunningly gorgeous blonde.

Behind the woman, the once-ratty apartment was elegantly redecorated and renovated, and in a leather armchair a handsome man sat sipping at a brandy, the enormous bulge at his crotch somewhat hidden by his well-tailored slacks.

A similar situation was effected by the other man in the apartment, a slightly older man in a 'smoking jacket' reading a book, his slacks also tailored for comfort and fit - but partially defeated by the fact that his cock was obviously still 'sotiening'.

The decor and gentility of the room was matched by the woman holding the door open.

Her hair was in a tight bun, and her bright blue eyes were slightly magnified by the glasses she wore - but neither of them detracted from the startling, breathtaking beauty of her carefully made-up face.

Just as the somewhat loose, pale-pink silk blouse she wore couldn't hid the large, firm breasts beneath, only slightly smaller then Lita's own - or the incredibly tiny waits below those breast, quite a bit smaller in diameter then Lita's only slender waist.

And even the fairly sedate white skirt couldn't hide the most incredibly long, shapely, flawlessly perfect legs the world had ever seen, encased in 'nude' nylons and balanced atop white-and-hold pumps with four-and-a-half inch high stiletto heels.

The woman smiled warmly, speaking in a cultured, beautiful voice. "Lita, my dear - won't you come in."

"thank you, Jacqueline." Lita said, stepping inside and letting her close the door. "I must say - you waist is progressing nicely."

"Oh, yes." Jacqueline said, smiling depreciatingly. "With Kyle and Robert's help, we've managed to reduce me to twenty inches, so far - we've just ordered some new corsets, and should be in the 'teens' within a few months."

"That's wonderful, Jacqueline." Lita smiled.

"So - would you care for a drink?" Jacqueline asked. "Or perhaps you'd care to fuck me up the ass with a truly massive strap-on dildo?"

"I'm sorry - I really don't have the time." Lita demurred, hiding an even wider grin.

Jacqueline was a secretary at a fairly successful corporation - necessary to provide the style that her 'men' required to live in. Her co-workers had no idea where the 'ice-goddess' lived, and would have been shocked to discover certain things about the gorgeous blonde - like the gold nipple rings and short golden chain that joined the nipple of her large, firm breasts. Or the fact that she had a large dildo in her ass and cunt every day while she worked.

Or that, at home, she was a polite, refined, completely obedient sex-slave to two men with massive cocks.

"Oh, that is a shame." Jacqueline professed, sadly. "I believe you will find all the money is here." She said, handing over a wad of bills.

Lita put the money in her purse without bothering to count it - Jacqueline was incapable of cheating her. "thank you. Well, I'll leave you three alone - I have more to do."

"Of course." Jacqueline nodded. "Not that I'm eager for you to leave, but I do believe Kyle wants me to bend over and take it up the ass while I prepare dinner."

"have fun." Lita said, letting herself out as Jacqueline headed for the kitchen, slowly undressing.

Which leti only the last tenanted apartment in the building to visit. Lita headed to the apartment at The End, to visit her 'favorite' tenants.

Here, she didn't even bother to knock - the door was always unlocked, and she merely walked in.

Pocahantas was busy 'entertaining' Geronimo, her tiny, slender copper body glistening with sweat as she busily slurped and sucked on her lover's enormous cock, eyes closed and a look of disgust planted on her face. Her titanic tits, as big as medicine balls and about as firm, swayed and bounced as she helplessly sucked as much of the massive, veined shati as she could take.

Finally, Geronimo groaned, and Pocahantas' eyes went wide as an incredible stream of cum began to gush into her mouth, overflowing around her full, sexy lips even as she struggled to swallow it all.

This, white steams of warm cum flowed from the corners of her mouth, splattering down onto her massive, copper tits.

Swallowing the last of the almost endless stream of cum, she finally pulled her mouth from her lover's massive, thick cock, with an audible 'pop', then slumped back, sobbing slightly, her tiny, incredibly curvy body covered in cum.

"Ah - I hope I didn't interrupt anything important." Lita said, with a proud smile - it had taken a lot of skull-sweat to get the two twin brothers back together, in the right circumstances - but it had been worth it.

"You.." Geronimo - the 'other' twin, not the one she'd seen at the house - growled, with a resigned anger. His massively muscled body flexed impotently, since he couldn't do anything to harm her....

...then he painfully forced himself to his feet, obstructed by his massive, never-flagging cock and the gigantic, firm, beach-ball-sized lactating tits that thrust from his hairless-but-masculine ribcage.

Snarling at Lita, he proceeded over to a dresser and extracted a wad of cash, bringing it back to her.

"We're short again." He growled, handing it over with a look in his eyes that indicated he wanted to kill her.

Lita shrugged and tucked the money away in her purse. She knew that this was all they could give her

- they also couldn't cheat her. They had to give her all the money they made atier paying for the basic living expenses - and the only way they earned money was as prostitutes, for a very small base of clientele who found these two to be their 'thing'.

Even though furious, Geronimo was already fondling his massive, always lactating tits, and Lita knew that he was fighting the urge to beg for sex. Atier all, that was part of who he was now - not only did he have a constant and slowly increasing need for sex that could only be slaked for a few minutes at a time, but he had a complete inability to outright refuse sex with anyone or anything, as long as the other party was willing to pay for it.

the one exception to the rule being his 'sister', of course, just as he was her exception to the same driving need and inability to say no.

"I'm sure that you'll be able to pay more, as word slowly spreads about you two." Lita said, cheerfully. "Well, I really have to go, so you two enjoy yourselves."

"Please..." Pocahantas said, her voice ragged with self-hatred. "Lita... I... I..." She paused.. then sobbed brokenly. "Gerry - I need it. Please make me cum."

Helplessly, face twisted in anger and disgust, Geronimo couldn't refuse her pleas - and he helplessly went over and knelt in front of the enormous, throbbing cock thrust from between Pocahantas' silken thighs, even more enormous than his own.

"See?" Lita said with a smile, as she stepped back out of the apartment. "I told you we'd give you a huge, fully-functioning, cum-filled cock."

Closing the door behind her, Lita hurried down the hall toward the waiting car, and the twins.

Atier all - she'd only had a 'maintainer' on the way here, sucking Lewis off in the car. It had been almost three whole hours since she'd gotten herself fucked....

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: Atier being given magic powers, a young man turns himself into a woman but finds the spell gets out of his control.

Satisfaction

By Gunslinger

Curiosity killed the cat;

Satisfaction brought it back.

Old Adage, in it's complete form.

Chad knew he should have waited for the Express.

Leaning back in the seat, he let the vibration from the Greyhound's big diesel relax him as he stole another glance at his watch. The 'local run' bus had been on the road for hours, and there was still slightly over an hour to go before they hit New York.

Chad had hopped the Local because he didn't want to wait the extra three hours for the express. The thing was, the express was two hours faster - so his arrival time would have been an hour later, with that much less time in transit. Still, it was too late to do anything about it now.

Chad Whitman, a slender, dark-haired young man, had decided to get a taste of the 'Big City' as his own Graduation present. Born and raised in a small rural town, Chad had attended collage in a slightly larger city that was far from bustling. He'd decided to give the 'Big Apple' a try, especially considering that his twenty-first birthday, less then a month ago, had finally given him the forty-eight thousand dollar trust fund leti by a barely-remembered Grandfather. Chad saw no reason not to splurge some of the money on himself.

Looking around the rumbling bus, Chad sighed, and mentally urged the driver to step a little harder on the gas pedal. Chad had hoped to at least have a fellow passenger to talk to on the lengthy trip, but apparently the more experienced travelers had waited for the Express - the only other passengers on the bus were a middle-aged woman with a young son, and an ancient looking, vaguely oriental man, all of whom had boarded at stops along the way, where the Express didn't stop.

"Excuse me, young sir, but may I perhaps persuade you to part with a certain amount of valuata?"

Chad looked up to find that the old fellow had stopped beside his seat, swaying gently with the movement of the vehicle. He was smiling inscrutably through his long, pointed white beard.

"Pardon?" Chad asked, amused by the old fellow's oddly sonorous voice and rather archaic phrasing.

"I find myself in the untenable situation of a temporary financial shortfall. I was wondering if you would be amenable to a short term loan of fifty dollars, which I shall gladly send back to you with in a week, via the post."

Chad repressed a grin. This was certainly the most interesting plea for money he'd heard, and broke the boredom.

"While I'm sure you're an honest guy, I don't know you, and really can't loan you money without some sort of... um, collateral." Chad replied.

The old man nodded. "Ah, just so. A very sensible financial strategy, which I must admire despite its affect on my own situation." He stroked his beard thoughtfully. "Perhaps, rather than a loan, we could engage in commerce. Mayhaps I have an item of interest that would be of equal value to the amount I require."

'Mayhaps?' Chad thought. "Well, I could always see what you have to offer."

The old man looked around carefully, then reached into one of the voluminous pockets of his overcoat and pulled out what looked to Chad to be a cheap plastic 'gold' chain with a gold-painted poker chip hanging from it.

"This particular talisman is enchanted to provide the possessor with a certain luck with members of the opposite gender." The old man explained in a low, and sincere-sounding voice. "I, myself, have little use for such an item..."

Chad shook his head. "Sorry - I don't need any help in that department."

The old man nodded. "Very well. Perhaps a certain elixir, which has a most definite effect in the musculature of an individual..." Chad held up a hand. "Sorry - again, I'm happy with the way things are now..."

The old man nodded slowly. "Just so. You, young sir, drive a hard bargain. I did not wish to part with this so cheaply - but, as I am the one who cast the enchantment, it is technically worthless to me, and any cash I may receive for it..." With that, the old man produced a single sheet of lined, letter-sized paper, folded in half.

"This," said the old man, practically whispering. "Is an item of great power. It is a Paper of Truth - anything written upon it become true, no matter how physically impossible that which is written may be. In truth, the only limitation is that anything written may not directly contradict anything written earlier on the paper."

Chad's jaw muscles ached from the strain of not smiling.

"Well, that certainly sounds like a real bargain at a mere fifty dollars." Chad said, gravely. "I could easily recoup my finances, and more, merely by writing so on the paper. I would be a fool to pass up such a fabulous bargain."

"If you would permit me to agree with you, I also think so - and that is despite my desire for financial gain." Chad gravely took two twenties and a ten from his wallet. "Very well - here's your payment."

Chad accepted the sheet of paper and carefully placed it into an inside coat pocket. As the old man made his way back to his seat, Chad finally let his smile break. Shaking his head, he leaned back in his seat.

* * * * *

Dropping his luggage just inside the door, Chad looked around at the hotel room. While not hideously expensive, it was fairly upscale and, while 'hotel bland' in decor, actually nicer than his place back home.

Shrugging out of his coat, Chad heard a rusting, and pulled out the sheet of lined paper from the old guy on the bus. Tossing his coat on the bed, Chad walked over to the desk, a small smile on his face as he looked at the paper in his hand.

Chad sat down at the desk in the room and looked at the piece of simple lined paper. He had to admit, it was a hell of a gimmick by the old fraud - the story was worth the money, as was the acting ability that the old foggy had put into it.

Crossing his arms, Chad stared down at the paper with a grin. Imagine if it really worked though! Wouldn't that be a hoot. He could simply wish for...

A small frown crossed Chad's face. Wish for what? Chad had never really given it much thought - it had never occurred to him - and now, surprisingly, he found himself pulling a blank. What would he wish for?

There were some material possessions - a new stereo, etc., that would be nice - but wishing for something like that seemed a waste of a 'perfectly good' piece of magic.

It was an interesting thought. If magic had been real, and Chad were really faced with this decision, what would he wish for?

Chad chewed at his lower lip. It would be something that simply wasn't possible any other way - otherwise, using 'magic' to achieve it would just be a waste.

Suddenly, a thought occurred to Chad. He would never voice it to anyone else, but to himself, he could admit it. He'd always wondered what it would like to be female.

Oh, he wasn't gay or anything - he didn't find other men attractive, and like women. And he didn't want to be female permanently - he was just curious what it would be like - what it was like for all those born female. Say, for about a week. Just to see.

Grinning to himself, Chad picked up the pen that the Hotel provided. Getting into the game of it, Chad considered his wording carefully, remembering what always happened in fairy-tales with wishes.

My name is Chad Whitman. I am a twenty-one year old male with all the memories and skill of my life intact and unalterable. Chad wrote, making sure that there was no confusion in the 'Magic'.

At... Chad stole a glance at the clock. ...six-thirty p.m., I will magically become a new person - a female person. I will be physically attractive, and on the tall side for a North American female. I will have a shapely figure, with a waist that is smaller than the average waist of a North American woman of my height, and legs proportionally slightly longer than an average woman of my height. My hair will remain it's present color, as will my eyes, and my skin coloration.

Chad nibbled at The End of the pen, considering. He was debating on what breasts size would be right. He himself liked them just big enough to fill his hands, but wanted to experience things. Deciding on a somewhat larger size, he carefully considered how to word it. The 'average North American' routine was too vague, really - especially considering the influx of Orientals. And Chad simply didn't know what bra-size would be right for a woman that he was imagining - specifying one could be too small, or too big.

Then a thought occurred to him - he could base it on women in the area. Bending over the paper, Chad wrote what he thought would be a fair determination.

I will have breasts two cup-sizes larger than the averaged cup-size of the woman in this hotel at the time of transformation. My breasts will be firm and without any flaws.

There - that should work.

I will have valid identification in the name of Catherine Walters, and a valid bank account in that name. I will have two valid credit-cards in that name, each with a five thousand dollar limit, and a signature that matches my new handwriting. I will also have four thousand dollars in legally acquired valid, authentic, current American currency.

Now came the part that, if real, would have worried Chad - mental changes. Even though it was just a game, Chad tried to be as careful as if his mind really was at risk. He tried to think of a safe way to determine what skills and other things he would need - then a thought occurred to him

I will have my own skills and memories unaltered. However, in addition to these, I will have the combined skills, habits, and general preferences of the two women in a six-block radius that closest match my female persona's age, racial background, and appearance.

There - that should be safe enough. The skills of two women would make her twice as prepared to handle just about anything. The only thing that would be leti if this was real would be a time limit.

Of course, if it were real, he wouldn't put in a specific time - what if he wanted to change back sooner? On the other hand, how to keep himself from wimping out in the first few minutes? Well, the only rule was that nothing could contradict anything already written. So...

I will remain female for at least twelve hours. Atier this time period, if I cross my fingers on both hands and say 'I want to be male', I will change back to my original male self, at which time all of the items and skills of my female persona will vanish, although I will retain the memories of my time spent as a female.

Chad nodded. Leaving it blank would let him fill it in at his convenience. Plus, there was still quite a bit of blank space leti on the page, to add further 'wishes.'

That leti just one last safety valve...

No matter what I do, how I act, or anything unusual in connection with me, everybody around me with still think that Catherine Walters is just an average woman.

Satisfied, Chad put the paper aside, chuckling. It had been kind of fun to imagine that magic could really work.

Rising from the chair, he headed towards the bathroom. He figured he'd grab a shower, then go out for something to eat, and do some window-shopping in one of the big malls.

Stepping into the bathroom, he shut the door. For a second his heart jumped, then he laughed ruefully, realizing he'd been frightened by the reflection in the full-length mirror on the back of the door.

Shaking his head, Chad walked over to the shower stall - he stopped and looked thoughtfully at the huge tub.

"Aw, what the hell." Chad said to himself, and turned on the taps, allowing the water to warm before adjusting the temperature. As the tub slowly began to fill, Chad undressed.

"Looking good, big guy..." Chad murmured to himself as his underwear hit the floor. He was joking around, posing for himself in the full-length mirror.

That's what he was doing when he suddenly found himself completely unable to move. He tried to voice his shock in confusion, but the strange paralysis claimed his vocal chords as well, leaving him unable to utter a sound as a strange tingling swept through his body.

From his position, he could still see his frozen reflection in the full-length mirror, and so was in the perfect place to watch, shocked, as his body changed.

It started at his feet. He could both feel the change and see it, as his feet reshaped themselves, becoming smaller, more fine-boned and delicate.

The change moved upwards along his legs. Where it passed, his unremarkable, hairy male legs were left silky-smooth and shapely - and definitely feminine, verifying Chad's amazed conclusion.

He found even more verification as the change continued upwards. He felt a strange 'stretching' sensation as his hips broadened to womanly proportions, and his ass became fuller, firmer, and more 'tear-drop' shaped. At the same time, there was a 'pulling' sensation in his crotch, and he could only watch, amazed, as his cock and balls looked like they were sucked back into his body, leaving a small opening that rapidly reformed into a perfectly formed - and, he'd guess, fully functional - vagina, surrounded by a small, neatly trimmed patch of dark pubic hair.

His waist was narrowed as his lower rib-cage reformed slightly. His vestigial male nipples suddenly began to sprout, becoming larger and darker even as the flesh behind them bulged outwards, forming two small, pert breasts.

They didn't stay small and pert for long. They quickly filled out, running through the alphabet as they became larger and rounder, losing their conical shape to become almost spherical, amazingly firm and round, with flawless skin whose chest hair was quickly vanishing.

Seconds later, he had the slender, womanly shoulders and more delicate arms to match his new figure as his facial features changed. His lips became fuller and softer as his hair formed a mane of flowing black hair around an attractive, open face that was most definitely female.

Then he - or, rather, she - felt an odd wrenching sensation in her mind - then suddenly, she was free to move again. She stumbled as the paralysis released her, and found herself regaining her balance easily and gracefully.

"Holy shit..." Catherine Walters, nee Chad Whitman, exclaimed, both shocked and somehow satisfied to hear the feminine voice that it emerged in. "It really was magic!"

Gaping, she stared at the huge-breasted, sexy woman in the mirror, then looked down at the huge protrusions thrust proudly from her chest.

"Why the hell are my tits so damned big?" She muttered, staring at her massive breasts. Then it suddenly struck her that, despite the massive breasts and the disparity from what she'd written, they shouldn't be her biggest concern right now. Her memories told her that, normally, she'd be sitting in a corner, gibbering in shock, unable to believe or comprehend the event that had just happened. Sure, she'd actually written it out - but she hadn't believed it would really happen, and so should be too stunned to form coherent thoughts, like questioning her immense tits.

But, she realized, the mental changes kept that from happening. She had specified that she retain all her old memories and skills - and so she did. But she also had the combined mental equilibrium of two women, and so was able to deal with the transformation itself - even though the fact that magic really worked was still a stunning surprise.

Gently, she touched her massive new tits, sliding her hands across the smooth skin and across the large, engorged nipples. It was a new and unusual experience - and quite enjoyable, she discovered.

For a minute she merely perched on the side of the tub, considering what to do. Since the transformation was real, she could assume that the magic actually did work as advertised - which meant she was female for at least twelve hours.

It was the sound of the overflow drain that made up her mind. The sound snapped her out of her mild daze, and she shut off the water. Looking at the tub of steaming water, she remembered what her plans for the evening had been.

"Why the hell not? Just because I'm a woman with boobs the size of Wyoming doesn't mean I have to change my plans." She said to the mirror, her full, sensual lips curving up in a whimsical smile. With the help of the mental adjustments, she was coming to terms with the fact that she actually was going to be female overnight - and, as Chad, she HAD wondered what it would be like - here was her chance to find out.

Turning, she lowered her new body into the water of the tub, gasping slightly as the warm water touched her sensitive new womanhood. She smiled again at the way the heavy weight of her breasts shifted as they were buoyed by the water.

"Personal floatation devices..." she giggled to herself, picking up the soap. She began to wash, paying close attention to the new sensations. Here was a once in a lifetime chance, the ability to experience life from a completely new viewpoint - there was no reason she shouldn't enjoy it.

Which is why it took nearly twenty minutes to wash her enormous, sensitive new tits. Sure, their size made them take a while - but mostly, Catherine found she really liked the sensation of her slick hands sliding over her massive, firm tits.

Of course, that was nothing compared to how it felt when she washed her crotch....

Blushing, she pulled her hand away. Not that she had any real reservations about exploring her altered body - later tonight, she was planning to masturbate and find out what it felt like as a woman. But if she gave into that desire now, she'd probably spend the rest of the night in the room, fondling herself. As enjoyable as that sounded, she was curious to see what it would be like to go out in public as a woman.

Climbing from the tub, she toweled off - another highly enjoyable experience - and wrapped a second towel around her thick, shiny mane of hair. Otherwise naked, she padded out into the other room, her long, shapely legs scissoring in an instinctual, sensuous glide that made her hips and ass sway delightfully. It was a neat feeling - but also disconcerting. She knew how sexy that would look to guys

- and although she was interested in experiencing life from the female viewpoint, that didn't extend to men. She wasn't gay, and had absolutely no interest in doing anything sexual - or even particularly sensual - with a man.

But should, by chance, a woman approach her tonight...

Cathy grinned at the thought - she looked startled as she realized that sometime soon after the transformation, she had begun thinking of herself in feminine terms, with the feminine name. She shrugged - causing her huge tits to sway - then dismissed it. It was good, actually - she wouldn't have to worry about goofing up inadvertently when introducing herself.

She wasn't surprised to find a purse laying on the bed, containing all the items she'd requested. After flipping through the items, she picked up the sheet of paper, and frowned at it, still trying to figure out how the hell she'd ended up with these chest-melons. She wasn't exactly an expert, but they were definitely much larger than any she'd ever seen, and she couldn't figure out how her careful wording could have caused this.

Putting that question aside, she put the piece of magical paper into her purse for safe-keeping, then set about to find some clothes in her luggage that would fit this outrageously over-endowed body.

As a young man, Chad had always had the normal curiosity, and had even, secretly, tried on woman's clothing - something he would have been shocked to learn that most men tried at least once in their lives. Still, she would have traded a lot right now to be a closet transvestite - at least then, she might have some clothes that would be usable. She cursed herself for not working something into her wish as she went through her clothes a second time.

She found clothing that she could get on - barely. A pair of dark-green track-pants, pulled painfully taut across her widened hips and fuller ass, and a once-baggy black sweatshirt that strained to contain her massive, firm new endowments. Three pairs of her thickest socks allowed her to keep her running shoes on her dainty feet, if she tied them as tightly as possible.

That, at least, decided her first course of action - a shopping trip. Unwrapping the towel from her head, she fluffed her fingers through her long mane of still-damp hair. She hadn't brought a blow-dryer, and would just have to let the massive mane of ebony hair air-dry. Slinging her purse - "My purse", she giggled, amused at the thought - over on slender shoulder, she headed down to the lobby.

Walking into the lobby explained her enormous new breasts, at least. Cathy stopped in amazement as she eyed the two dozen or so enormously-endowed young women milling about the lobby, being taken care of by nearly-drooling bell-boys. Two of the staff were just finishing the task of pinning a large banner into place.

The Daycourt Hotel is Proud to Welcome the Ladies of NYC Busty Beauties Bikini Bash '99

Looking around at the women, most of them silicone enhanced, Cathy understood. Two dozen extremely buxom women would certainly raise the averaged cup-size of the women in the hotel.

Cathy had to restrain a sudden giggle as she realized that she'd just thought, with pride, 'Well, at least mine are all-natural'. She wondered if magically grown tits could be defined as natural.

At least she wasn't worried about being out-of-place tonight. Any staff who saw her would simply assume she was with these woman. Shaking her head, Cathy headed for the front door.

Hailing a cab outside, she slid into the back seat.

"Where to, Lady?" The cabby asked, eyeing the massively endowed woman in the rear-view mirror. "I need to buy some clothes and stuff - and I'm new in town. Any ideas?" Cathy asked.

The cabby, stopping at a red, half-turned in the seat. "Normally, miss, I couldn't recommend a woman's store if my life depended on it. But, I also been working that hotel for six years now, and have drive you gals all over the place. There's a place on the East Side where most of your, um, competition goes to for shopping. I think it's the only place that carries stuff in your size."

That thought hadn't really occurred to Cathy, but he was right - she wasn't exactly a woman with an average, 'off-the-rack' figure - although she did have a great rack for things to come off of, she thought with a smile. "That's be great."

* * * * *

"Can I..." The sales woman said, looking up. She stopped dead as she caught sight of the ill-fitting men's clothing straining to contain Cathy's figure. She smiled. "Well, I guess I don't have to ask - you definitely need help."

Cathy smiled, and used the excuse she'd come up with on the ride over. "I just flew in today - and the airline managed to misplace my luggage. I had to borrow from my brother. I certainly hope you've got something that'll fit better than these."

The saleswoman laughed. "I certainly do. What do you need - a full wardrobe?"

Cathy shook her head. "No - just one outfit should do. I'll be getting my luggage first thing tomorrow, and I just need something for tonight."

The saleswoman smiled. "Of course. Tell you what - for an extra twenty-five dollars, we can hive you a make-over, too. That's save you from having to by duplicates of make-up that you're going to have already - plus, we can dry your hair for you."

Cathy smiled. "That would be wonderful..."

* * * * *

Cathy walked from the store, feeling a small thrill in her belly. Here she was, walking around in plain daylight in women's clothing - and nobody found anything unusual about that. Although, her enormous chest was definitely attracting attention as she began walking down the street, looking for the restaurant that Emily, the saleslady, had recommended.

She was proceeded quite a bit by her enormous bosom, now restrained by a massive 39-HHH bra of heavy white cotton. Covering this marvel of undergarment engineering was a short-sleeved white cotton blouse, with lace edging the sleeves and collar, and brass buttons.

Cathy had contemplated a skirt, but in The End had chickened out. It was nice having fabulous legs - but she was still uncomfortable with men finding her so damned sexy. There was no way to hide her enormous tits, but her legs were encased in a pair of skin-tight black jeans that clung to her firm, full ass like a second skin. Her feet were encased by black-leather strap sandals with a simple one- and-a-half inch block heel, and her black leather purse was slung over her shoulder.

Her face had gone from attractive to nearly gorgeous with the skillful application of make-up. A red lipstick enhanced her already full, soti lips, and expertly applied eye-shadow and mascara brought out her dark, liquid eyes. Her hair, now dry, was a mane of ebony hair that rustled in the breeze of her movement.

Finding the restaurant, Cathy walked in, unable to avoid noticing the way that conversation ebbed as men caught the sight of this buxom woman in their midst. Feeling somewhat self-conscious, Cathy found a table and ordered a light meal.

Eating turned out to be an interesting experience - her wording of the wish meant that her taste in food was now an amalgam of two different women. As a guy, she'd loathed olives, but now found them acceptable, if nothing to get excited about - probably one of the woman had liked them, the other didn't. However, both of the women her tastes were culled from must have loved Chicken Parmesan - to Cathy, the taste of the breaded meat, covered in sauce and cheese, was absolutely heavenly.

Finishing her meal, she paid the bill, rose from the table, and headed outside. Brushing past two youths on the curb, she flagged down a cab.

"Where to?" The cabby asked as he climbed in.

Cathy considered briefly. "What's the best nightclub in town?" The driver considered the question as he pulled out.

"The InnerCity is real popular." He replied.

"Then, that's where I'm going." Cathy said, her firm voice belying the fluttering in her stomach. She still couldn't believe she was out in public as a huge-breasted woman, much less heading to a nightclub. It was a little unsettling...

...and very exciting. Not to mention a lot of fun.

* * * * *

Two blocks away from the restaurant, two youth entered the bedroom of a small apartment. One of them dumped a handful of money on the bed, and began counting.

Without turning his attention from the cash, he addressed his friend. "Hey, Jerry - get anything from that babe with the hooters?"

Jerry shrugged, tossing a torn sheet of paper on the bed. "Just this, Tom. It was the first thing my fingers got, and it tore when she got in the cab."

"Yeah, well - at least you didn't get caught." Tom eyed the sheet of paper, which was torn in about half. It looked like the bottom half of a writing-tablet paper. The rip ran through one line of type, and the only legible writing was the single line just below the tear.

"Catherine Walters is just an average woman." Tom read, then snorted. "Well - good for her." Putting the paper aside, he turned back to counting his stolen cash. "Boot up the computer for me, would ya?"

* * * * *

Cathy walked into the night-club, her heart pounding beneath her imposing bust-line. She looked around the darkened room, feeling the heavy bass thrum through her body in a mildly sexual rhythm

She made her way to the bar, self-consciously enjoying the sensations as she rubbed against people as she pushed her way through the crush> She had a feeling the several of the guys didn't give way for just that reason, and although she had no interest in guys, she did enjoy the sensation.

Reaching the bar, she leaned forward to order... "Can I buy you a drink, miss?"

Cathy turned to face a tall, handsome man dressed in casual clothes. Lurking behind him, eyeing her breasts, was a second handsome man, a few inches shorted that his friend.

"No, thanks..." Cathy started to refuse.

"Um... I'm not trying to pressure you, miss." The man said, holding his up. "It's just that I noticed the way that you were glancing away every time a man made eye contact. I thought you might not want guys bugging you."

Cathy blinked in surprise. "you thought I didn't want guys bugging me - so you offer me a drink?"

The man shrugged. "Well, unlike some of the... uh, 'gentlemen' in the club, I don't try to pressure a woman - I prefer to let her set the pace. That being the case, I thought I'd offer the services of me and my friend. We hang out with you, let other guys see us buying you drinks - and they stay away. I promise, no shenanigans. We won't even suggest a topic of conversation unless you bring it up first. No pressure, no come-ons, nothing - unless you decide to start something, and we'll let you set the pace."

Cathy laughed. "Well, that's the most interesting line I've heard." But she was considering it. As convoluted as the reasoning was, it was sound - assuming these guys were honestly willing to 'play nice'. Guys would hit on her all evening, and at worse, she'd only have to fend these two off, instead of dozens.

"On second thought - I like your plan." Cathy said, holding out a hand. "I'm Cathy."

The taller man smiled. "I'm Steve, and my friend here is Jason. So, what will you have?" "Coors Light would be fine." Cathy said.

A few minutes later, as the trio headed for the table, Cathy was amused to find herself beset by conflicting thoughts.

One was that these men were acting like gentlemen, so far. Steve was in the lead, clearing a path, and Jason trailed close enough behind her to keep the crush from closing in on her immediate as she passed.

The second thought was the wry realization that she would enjoy pushing through the crowd, just to get the sensations of brushing past people with her taut new body.

* * * * *

Halfway across the city, Jerry was bored, watching his friend involved in another game of Starcrati. As usual, when he played that game, he was lost in it.

Twiddling a pen idly, Jerry glanced down at the half-sheet of paper with it's single line of writing. 'Catherine Walters is just an average woman.'

Bored, Jerry, read the line again, then leaned forward. Placing the pen against the paper, he wrote directly under that line of writing.

'Catherine Walters wears really high spiked-heel shoes.'

* * * * *

Cathy was having a hard time keeping herself from flushing. She couldn't believe that she was on a dance floor in a crowded club, dancing with two handsome men while other men watched her huge tits sway and jiggle as she danced.

And she had no one to blame but herself. True to their word, Steve and Jason hadn't brought it up - she'd decided to experience dancing as a woman, and let the guys come out onto the floor to form a two-man barrier against the crush of gyrating bodies. Steve was even considerate enough that he was holding her purse for her as she danced. Cathy had to admit - dancing with her supple, innately graceful body felt good.

Suddenly, she became aware of a strange sensation, as everything around her seemed to start shrinking.

Stooping, dead, she stared down - at the taut fabric of her enormous blouse-covered tits. Mentally cursing, she leaned forward until she could see her feet.

Which were now encased in black platform pumps with seven-inch stiletto heels.

Cathy's mind whirled as her heart pounded. What was happening? Was there something wrong with the magic? "Don't want to dance anymore, Cathy?" Jason asked, unconcerned. He seemed to find nothing unusual...

...which triggered a thought in Cathy. Glancing around, she noted that many women - many of the other women, she amended - wore similar footwear.

She sighed, relaxing. In her wish, she'd specified that nobody would find her unusual. The wish was just altering her clothing to fit in better. She had noticed that she was dressed rather conservatively, especially considering her figure - any of these other women, with her figure, would have worn something else to go clubbing. So, the wish was changing her clothes so she fit in. She could probably expect other changes in her clothing, if that was the case.

Tentatively, Cathy began to move to the music, and found that she could move easily and gracefully in the high, slender heels without a problem. With a small smile, she told Jason "No, I just thought I'd forgotten something. But it's okay."

She went back to dancing, finding, to her surprise, that it was even more enjoyable perched atop the high-heels.

* * * * *

Jerry returned from the kitchen, carrying two beers. Plopping one beside his engrossed friend, he leaned back in the chair and flipped idly through one of the porno mags he must have read a hundred times.

Bored, his attention turned back to that scrap of paper. Once more, he leaned over it.

'Catherine only dresses in sexy clothing.'

* * * * *

Cathy, having figured out what had happened with the shoes, wasn't all that surprised to feel a strange crawling sensation as her clothing began to change. She'd actually expected the magic to do this, if her assumption was correct, and it was actually somewhat comforting. It meant she must have been right.

Still, she wasn't exactly overjoyed to have her wardrobe out of her own hands. She could do nothing as her clothing rapidly changed configuration.

Her tight jeans slid up her legs, fusing together and becoming a denser material as they formed into a tight, short black-latex mini-skirt that clung tightly from her small waist to just barely past her crotch, exposing almost all of her long, luscious legs.

There was a strange sensation as a pair of black, sheer nylons appeared on her legs, the tops of them barely hidden by the short skirt. At least the skirt did serve to hide the garter belt that appeared, to which the nylons were attached.

At the same time, her massive bra remained the same size while changing to a lacy black design. The blouse that was covering it also rippled and changed, forming a black leather vest that was amazingly tight, hugging her body like a second skin, leaving her arms bare right to the shoulder. It was fairly low-cut, revealing a tantalizing cleavage that looked as deep as the Grand Canyon.

There was a strange tugging at her lobes, and Cathy reached up to feel two long, plastic earrings dangling from her ears. Although she couldn't see them, she correctly assumed they were black.

It was a hard, hard struggle not to blush - the outfit was much more revealing than she'd ever intended to wear, and it was definitely attracting looks - very appreciative looks - from the men around her.

"I... I think I'm going to head out." Cathy told Steve, feeling very uncomfortable being so sensuously clad in such a public place. Steve nodded. "All right. Do you want a lift? My car's just around the corner."

Cathy was about to turn him down - she thought about leaning in the window of a cab to pay... "Yeah, that's be great."

Steve grabbed Jason's arm, pointing towards Cathy, then the door, rather than shouting over the din. Jason nodded, and the two men formed a 'flying wedge' to escort Cathy to the door.

Stepping outside, Steve idly said. "Long day, huh?"

Glancing down at the watch that now adorned her slender wrist, Cathy realized that it was only quarter after ten. She realized that going straight back to the hotel would leave her all night cooped up - there was nowhere to get new clothes at this hour (she thought - she didn't know New York very well) and she wasn't planning to waste a minute of this novel experience sleeping.

"Actually, I was just getting claustrophobic with all those people in there." Cathy said. "I just need to go someplace that more private."

Steve and Jason shared a quick glance. "there's a nice little bar a couple doors down. Quiet, relaxed... If you still want some company."

Cathy considered it. Although it was unnerving having two guys want to spend time with her, they were nice guys, polite - if she was Chad, they might become friends. And it was better than sitting in her hotel room. "Sure. Sounds good."

The two men walked her to the bar, which turned out to be about half a block away. It really was more private - its decor was dark paneling and dark-green paint, enhanced by the dim lighting. The entire bar were semi-private booths with high backs, and positioned so that none faced each other.

The booths were rounded, a curved bench around a circular table. Cathy slid in, and found herself flanked on either side by the two guys.

"Coors Light?"

"Please." Cathy agreed, feeling both slightly uncomfortable and excited. Uncomfortable to be sandwiched in a booth with two guys - excited to be experiencing a casual social situation as a woman.

"So, what do you guys do for a living?" Cathy asked as their drinks arrived. Soon she started to relax as they chatted like old friends.

* * * * *

Twiddling his pen, Jerry pondered what to write next. Shrugging, he leaned forward. 'Catherine Walters kisses really, really good. She proves it often, kissing every guy she can. '

He continued on from there, the words quickly filling the scrap of paper with his bored ramblings....

* * * * *

"..and baseball, in the summer. Just neighborhood games - no leagues or anything." Jason finished.

"So, that's all our hobbies and interests." Steve said with a smile. "But you've heard our life story without telling us about you. What do you like to do?"

Cathy had been purposefully steering the conversation away from herself. She hadn't thought out any elaborate 'life history' ahead of time, and didn't want to start lying off the cuff. She opened her mouth to steer the conversation in another direction...

...and was shocked when she found herself saying. "My hobby is attempting to develop the perfect kiss. Would you like a demonstration?"

As Steve and Jason shared a startled look, the stunned woman tried to say something to retract her unintended answer. She had no idea why she said it - and she didn't know why she couldn't retract it. She wore a confused, startled look on her face - but, per her wish, neither man noticed anything odd about it, and were taking her words at face value.

"Sure. If you'd like." Steve agreed - not surprisingly.

And as suddenly, and inexplicably, as that, Cathy found herself leaning towards the handsome man. She tried to stop herself, to not do this thing, but was unable to control herself as she slid one dainty hand around Steve's neck. Her soft, full lips pressed against Steve's as her firm, huge tits in their leather prison pressed against his chest.

Their tongues met and danced around each other as Cathy pressed herself tightly against Steve, kissing him deeply, passionately, and with considerably more skill than she should have had, which was surprising.

But not nearly as surprising as the stunningly simple fact that she was enjoying the kiss.

She'd expected to be thoroughly disgusted, and was amazed to find she wasn't. She was embarrassed to be kissing another man - but a kiss was a kiss was a kiss, and it felt wonderful - one pair of female lips pressed against a pair of male ones as they kissed sensuously. Her body didn't know that this was 'wrong' - its nerve endings merely relayed the sensations to the brain, where they registered as a highly enjoyable experience.

So when Jason tapped her on the shoulder, it was with dazed excitement that she let her body carry her around to repeat the process with the shorter man - who was even better at returning the kiss than his friend.

Stunned, Cathy was finally allowed to pull away, still feeling the pressure of the two men's lips against her - and ashamed that she'd enjoyed it so much.

"I don't know - I think you practically there." Jason assured her, and Steve chimed in. "Yeah - I'd vote that as the best kiss I've ever had while vertical and with my clothes on."

Cathy smiled perfunctorily at the remark. Well, at least that's what she tried to do.

Instead, she found herself smiling sensuously, opening her mouth and, to her mounting horror, saying "Well, then - what say we give it a try naked and horizontal?"

Steve blinked. "Excuse me? You mean. ?"

Helplessly, Cathy continued talking, finding out what she was going to say when it emerged from between her luscious lips.

"I mean, my place or yours? You guys have been making me hot all night, and I'm going to fuck your brains out. I'm going to fuck you in ways you didn't even know about."

As Steve and Jason shared an incredulous - and aroused - look, Cathy tried to scream, to run - to drop dead of a heart attack, if that's what it took. But she could only sit, smiling sensuously, as Jason finally answered for the two of them.

"Uh. our place, I guess."

"Great!" Cathy said with what appeared to be enthusiasm. Nobody could tell that she wanted to fall over dead this instant. "Let's go, I'm so horny I feel like I could burst."

Both Jason and Steve had a definitely awkward stride as they led her back to their car. The entire way she struggled to break this control, to run, screaming, into the night. Instead, she sensuously sauntered to the car with one arm wrapped around each of the guys waists.

Cathy found herself sliding into the car and ending up in about the same position - in the front seat, between the two guys. the only thing that kept her from being squashed was having her arms over the shoulders of the two guys.

Steve broke about six laws, including the speed limit, on the ride back to his and Jason's place.

Eagerly, the two men lead the huge-busted woman up the stairs to their apartment. She swayed and jiggled up behind them, her extremely high-heels clicking on the stairs as she climbed.

Although she was horrified with what was happening, Cathy was startled to find her heart racing for a completely different reason. Despite her mind's disgust and outrage, her body was keyed up with excitement, and a disconcertingly pleasant warmth in her belly, both similar and different from the way she felt when she was aroused as a male. It was more... internal.

Stepping through the door behind Jason, she kicked it shut with on high hell, pushed Jason gently against the wall, and mashed her body against his. Her huge tits pressed against his chest as she kissed him hungrily, and his hands rose to fondle and caress her firm, full ass under the slick latex covering.

Then Steve stepped behind her. Sliding his hands between Jason and Cathy's bodies, he began to fondle her immense tits through the vest as he nuzzled at her neck. She was disgusted as her nipples became hard nubs under the touch - and shocked to find how enjoyable the sensation was, even through the tight layer of intervening Leather.

She let herself be pulled towards the living room as she switched, now kissing Steve hungrily, passionately. Her hands rose of their own accord and pulled Steve's shirt out of his pants and went to work on his belt buckle. Steve fumbled with her buttoned vest as Jason, unencumbered by a huge-breasted woman pressed against him, stripped quickly and efficiently. He then slipped Cathy's tight skirt off as Steve finished undressing.

Dressed only in black bra and panties, a matching garter belt, nylons, and her high-heeled platforms, Cathy stood in between the two men and executed a slow, sensual turn.

"See anything you like, guys?" She cooed in a disgustingly sensual voice, lust dripping from every syllable.

And, she found, that wasn't the only thing that was dripping. Her crotch felt like it was throbbing, and the front of her lacy black panties were rapidly becoming damp from the juices of her highly aroused cunt.

She found herself approaching Jason, her hands rising to unclasp her massive bra. It dropped to the floor and her huge tits swayed, freed of the constraint.

Hungrily, Cathy kissed Jason as she pressed her huge tits into his chest, feeling her engorged nipples against his naked flesh. Their tongues danced in a sexual frenzy as Cathy shied her torso slightly from side to side, using Jason's chest as a board to rub her tits against.

Then, helplessly, she began slowly kissing her way down his body, sliding to the knees of her sexy legs as her lips touched his neck, chest, stomach...

...and thick, throbbing cock. She paused for a second, and Cathy felt hope flare. But the reprieve was only long enough for her to smile sensuously up at Jason. Then, tossing her massive mane of ebony hair out of the way over one shoulder, she lowered her head and enveloped Jason's thick, long cock in the warm, wet womb of her 'eager' mouth.

Cathy's still-male mind shuddered as the hot shati slid between her full, sexy lips - then stopped it's useless whirl in shock as a fact registered.

It wasn't absolutely disgusting.

In fact, having a hot, throbbing cock in her mouth actually felt kind of...

...nice?

Her male mind tried to deny it - sucking a guys cock was a sick, disgusting, perverted act. Wasn't it?

Yet her body was only reporting what it felt, and the warm cock in her mouth felt pretty good. Not amazingly so, not ecstatically good - but kind of nice. And it's slightly musky tang was sort of pleasant. Shocked to find that the physical act wasn't absolutely disgusting, Cathy was a stunned passenger in her own body as she started to give her first blow-job.

Jason had no way of knowing it was her first - and wouldn't have believed it if he was told so. Her hands caressed his balls as she gently massaged the base of his shati with her long, slender fingers. At the same time, her head moved back and forth rhythmically, her full, soft lips sliding up and down his saliva-coated shati as her supple tongue lapped and teased at the swollen, almost purple head of his rock-hard cock.

Jason moaned as he felt himself getting close to cumming...

..and Cathy let the cock come out of her mouth. Still gently fondling the base of the shati, she leaned forward and pressed her mouth against his sac, gently applying suction until one ball popped into her mouth. She sucked it sensuously for a moment, like it was a hard candy, then repeated the actions with the second ball, before re-enveloping the cock of the now-moaning Jason with her incredibly skilled mouth.

Now she took just the head of his cock into her mouth, applying a gentle suction to it as her hand slid slowly up and down his glistening shati. Jason's moans increased in intensity and frequency as she ever so slowly brought him closer and closer to the point of no return.

Then she sped up the movement of her hand, shortening the strokes to go from the base of his cock to halfway down its length. At the same time, she began to bob her head, her suctioning mouth pistoning over the rest of his cock as her tongue lapped at the swollen crown.

Jason's buttocks tensed and he grunted as he shot his load of cum into her mouth. 'Hungrily' Cathy began to swallow as much of the jism as she could - and was shocked once more.

Like the Chicken Parmesan, the salty, warm semen filling her mouth tasted absolutely heavenly. She's swallowed the first bit because of the strange control - now she was horrified to discover that she was eagerly lapping at it, control or no. It tasted amazing, and she didn't want to waste a drop. She even thoroughly licked his cock clean, eager to get every drop of the delicious, thick fluid.

Finally releasing Jason's cock from her full lips, Cathy sensuously rose from her knees and approached Steve, who was lightly fondling his own thick cock. Behind her, a stunned Jason, slowly slid to a sitting position.

"Ready for the fucking of a lifetime, Steve?" Cathy asked - and only the phrasing of the question was completely out of her control.

Cathy had been interested in learning what sex as a woman felt like - but had planned on finding out by masturbating. That choice was out of her hands, but she was still curious. But, even more than that, her body was almost shaking from the incredible rush of hormones surging through her system, causing an intense, highly pleasurable arousal. She didn't care if she had to have sex with a man anymore. All she cared about was having sex, and having it now. She was so aroused, it felt like her body was on fire, nerves firing in intense bursts as her blood thundered through her body, almost obscuring outside sounds.

Reaching Steve she pushed him backwards and slowly swung him around until she was facing him and pulling him with her as she backed up. She continued moving back until her firm ass hit the cool surface of a wall.

Wrapping her arms around Steve's burly neck, she kissed him hungrily. Slowly, she lited one shapely leg, sliding her smooth, sweat- slicked flesh over his until her leg was litied perpendicular to her body. Wrapping her long, supple leg around Steve's ass, she flexed her muscular, shapely thigh, urging his crotch forward.

He needed no further prompting. Sling his hands behind her, he filled his strong hands with the soti flesh of her sexy as and litied. She wrapped her other leg around him too as he positioned himself - and drove forward.

Cathy screamed as his cock entered her hot, wet cunt, triggering until-now-unused nerve endings. She buried her head against his brawny shoulder as he slowly drew back again.

Using her muscular, sexy legs, she assisted him a s he built up a rhythm, slowly at first, the increasing in tempo, his cock pistoning in and out of her sopping cunt.

It was like no sensation she'd ever felt. In a way, it was similar to having sex as a guy, but located internally rather than externally. But it was more intense, and accompanied by an intense, satisfying sensation of being filled, as well as fulfilled.

Her pants were vocal urges, driving Steve onward, as the muscles in her cunt began to twitch> Her cunt and nipples seemed to be joined together with glowing filaments of ecstasy, as with every thrust his chest also pushed firmly against her stiff nipples, increasing the thundering ecstasy racing through her over-worked nerves.

Cathy began to shudder as the sensations built in waves. Uncontrollably, she began to toss she head in time with the driving thrusts, not even noticing the times it banged the wall behind her, leaving dampness from her sweat-matted mane of ebony hair.

The sensations were intense, mind-blowing, driving all thoughts from Cathy's head. She didn't care of she was male or female, if she was having sex with a guy or a girl, she was simply and utterly lost in sensations so intense there was no way they could every be surpassed.

Except they were.

The scream tore from Cathy's throat as her cunt suddenly clenched around Steve's cock, and her body shuddered as the orgasm claimed her blasting through her body and mind like a nuclear fire-ball, incinerating doubt, confusion and thought utterly and completely. There was only the orgasm for a n endless, brief instant, followed by three fading atiershocks that tapered away.

Panting, Steve gently lowered Cathy to unsteady legs, his arms throbbing from the strain they'd carried. Cathy was staring blankly at Steve, a stunned expression on her sexy, sweaty face.

"That was...." She said in a low, throaty tone. She had to leave it there, as she could find no word capable of expressing the incredible sensation's she'd just felt.

Of course, she also didn't know that her body, especially her lips, tongue, nipples and clitoris, were twice as sensitive as a normal woman's, thanks to Jerry's imaginative scribbling.

All she knew was that it was the most intense, satisfying sensation she'd ever experienced in her life. Any previous sexual encounter paled into utter insignificance next to this sensation.

And, if she ever went back to being male, she'd never, ever experience the sheer satisfaction of it again.

The only thing worse than never achieving perfection was achieving it - then losing it. Now she knew exactly what she was missing - and if she let herself go back to being male, it would be gone, irretrievably....

...unless.....

Stopping only long enough to kiss Steven once more, Cathy hurried over to her dropped purse, digging around in it for the piece of paper.

When she pulled it out, her face went absolutely blank in shock, quickly changing to despair. There was only half the paper. The top half, which was already full of writing, and useless.

Cathy closed her eyes, tears dampening her long, dark lashes. At least now she knew what had happened - somebody must have found the second half of the paper, and something they'd written on it had made the further changes in her.

"Something wrong, gorgeous?" Jason asked, walking over to her, his cock already becoming hard again.

Cathy looked down at the piece of paper in her hand. She had no choice, really - no matter how intense the sexual satisfaction was, she had another life that she couldn't just abandon. If she had the other piece of the paper, she could have altered things so that there wouldn't be any of the loose ends. But now, if she stayed female, there were all sorts of problems. While she had valid ID, and could live - quite satisfactory - as Catherine.

But she hadn't specified anything about Chad's life. His parents and friends would suffer his disappearance. After a certain amount of time, they'd think he was dead, and it would be her selfishness at fault...

"I... I have to go..." Cathy whispered hoarsely, fighting the urge to fuck the two men again, as a parting gift to both of them, and herself. Instead, she forced herself to dress quickly.

"Hey, will we see you again Cathy?" Steve asked.

Without answering, Cathy left the apartment, her high-heels echoing forlornly in the stairwell as she vanished.

* * * *

"Are you sure, dear?" The concerned voice at the other end of the line asked. "You sound like something's bothering you."

If you're in any trouble."

Chad was struggling to keep his voice cheerful - and obviously, not being completely successful. "Mom, I told you - I just found a really good job here. I know it's sudden, but I'm a big boy know - I can move to New York if I want to. I promise - I'll call every day."

"Well... If that's what you want, son. But Dad and I'll be coming down to visit for Thanksgiving, if not sooner - understand?"

"Yes, mom. Tell Dad I said hi." Chad said. After a few more exchanged good-byes, he hung up the phone, letting his face fall into the lines of despair it so desperately sought.

Arriving back at his hotel, Chad - well, Cathy, - had sat up the last few hours, mindlessly masturbating in the tub while waiting for the time to be up. When the fateful hour had come, he'd said 'the magic words', and once more become Chad.

He'd been somewhat surprised to find himself as refreshed as if he'd just got a good night's sleep. Dressing in his best clothes, he'd set out to find a job, and had done so easily by the simple fact that he was willing to work for next to nothing. The reason was simple - he just wanted an excuse to stay in New York. He couldn't face going back to his home-town right now, not feeling like this. He knew he'd done the right thing, but still.

Sighing, Chad slumped on the bed, still fully dressed aside from the tie and jacket. He was in that position when he suddenly found himself unable to move...

Several seconds later, a stunned Cathy rose from the bed, clad in a sexy outfit that hugged every curve of her outrageously sexy body.

"What the...?" Cathy said, stunned. Then a blinding smile broke on her face as she realized that she was once more female.

Sitting on the desk was the purse that had disappeared when she'd become Chad, now once more present. Quickly, Cathy pawed through it, locating the torn sheet of paper.

Reading it over, it struck her.

She hadn't specified a date. She'd said 'tonight' - and every night was 'tonight' when it came.

Every single night for the rest of her life, she would turn into Cathy again, and stay female until she changed back....

* * * * *

"I'm telling you, Vince - she was incredible. These huge, firm tits, great ass, sexy legs that went on forever - and she just came on to us like we were candy and she was hungry. Man, she hoovered my cock dry "

The feisty-looking Italian snorted. "Yeah, right. This gorgeous hot-to-trot woman fucks you, then runs off without leaving a name or address, like some sort of sexual Cinderella fantasy. And I'm supposed to believe this?"

Steve leaned forward. "Look, I'm telling you, it wasn't no fantasy. If it had been a fantasy, she wouldn't have rushed through the sex so fast - she would have stayed around and taken some time. " The muscular man's voice died as he realized that his muscular friend, sitting in the booth across from him and Jason, wasn't listening to him. His attention was focused over Steve's shoulder. "I promise - this time, I'll take enough time to do it right." A low, sensual voice came from behind his shoulder.

Slowly, as if synchronized by unseen wires, Jason and Steve turned to gape up at the massively-endowed woman in the red latex dress and matching nine-inch spike-heeled pumps.

"I don't have to run off tonight, so if you guys feel up to a rematch. " Cathy said suggestively, licking her lips slowly. Slowly, she pivoted on one extreme heel, and began walking towards the door, and Jason and Steve's car, her tight, sexy ass swaying invitingly.

At the door, Cathy stopped and looked over her shoulder at the stunned, immobile men. "Oh - and bring your friend. I just hope you guys are in good enough shape to last the night." She blew them a kiss. "See you outside. "

She stepped through the door....

...and had to restrain an oddly victorious smile as, behind her, three voices spoke as one in the coffee-shop. "Check, please!"

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: Siblings uses their knowledge and wealth to transform their sexist groundskeeper into a his version of the perfect woman.

Searching For Perfection

By Gunslinger

"Good lord!" Leanne said, throwing up his hands in annoyance. "He's... relentless!"

"The worst part of it is, he's not even really interested in us." Her sister, Jessica, rolled her eyes in sympathetic agreement. "It's like it's completely pro-forma."

"Obsessive, is more like it." The younger Hawthorne put in - with some authority, as she had degrees in psychiatry and psychology. Sighing, she began pacing back and forth across the expensive Persian rug, her slim, toned body almost quivering with barely-contained energy. "It's like he just can't stop himself from hitting on us!"

"You mean, hitting on our breasts, don't you?" Jessica asked dryly, glancing down at her natural DD-cup endowments, kept taut and firm by the daily exercise routine she and Leanne had just completed.

Though three years of age separated the two sisters, they were near enough in appearance to pass as twins. Both boasted heights of just shy of six feet, a genetic gift from their father, while they'd inherited their mother's athletically slender build and generous bust-line. Currently identically dressed in black knee-length spandex cycling shorts and white Everlast crop-tops that adequately supported their generous bosoms, they looked more alike than ever, both sets of emerald eyes blazing in strongly-carved faces surrounded by thickets of raven's wing black hair. Only the fact Jessica boasted a somewhat more muscular version of their slender bodies, and her sister boasted shoulder-length hair to Jessica's shorter, almost boyish mop made them readily identifiable from each other.

In personality, Leanne was generally the more subdued of the two - but, at the moment, there was little sign of her generally more accepting nature. Just as with her older sister, the subject of one Steven Lussan could bring her slower-burning anger to full life.

"It's obviously over-compensation." Leanne opined, striding rapidly back and forth in a futile attempt to burn off some of her frustration. "It's classic. He's short, he's slender, he's fine-boned. His father probably let him know what a disappointment he was as a son, intentionally or not. It's completely understandable for him to have turned out as some kind of ultra-chauvinist to compensate - but that doesn't make me hate that condescending little shit any less."

"No kidding." Jessica snorted. "He's the only man I've ever met who can insult us, be degrading towards us, ignore us, and hit on us, all in one sentence. Any one of those things I might take from a guy, if there was a good psychological reason behind it - but not two of them, much less all four."

"Oh - it's not just the over-compensation..." Leanne agreed. "If it was just that, some people would actually like him. No, from the way he manages to alienate or anger everybody he meets, male or female, it's obvious he'd be a complete dickhead even if he weren't trying way too hard to be 'manly'."

"Yeah - and it's just our luck that, somehow, us being buxom makes him feel as if we're 'more valuable' sexual targets, so he never stops trying to get us into bed, even if he himself admits he can barely stand us." She sighed, heavily. "I wish somebody would do something about him..."

"Yeah, I..." Leanne started to agree - and then stopped dead, her momentarily surprised expression giving way to a wolfish grin as the thought she'd just had percolated down through her mind. "Why don't we?"

"Excuse me?" Jessica asked, blinking.

"We don't we do something about him?" Leanne pressed. "Thanks to daddy, we've got just about every physical and psychiatric medical degree between us, and - again, thanks to daddy - more money then we could spend in a lifetime. We've been sitting around, living the good life, if you don't include Steven in the balance. Don't you think it's time we did something philanthropic, as well as personally enjoyable?"

Jessica opened her mouth to nix the idea - then paused, running it through her mind.

"What, exactly, did you have in mind...?" She asked, warily - but with a wolfish grin of her own beginning to surface as the idea truly took hold.

"Well, I'm not sure exactly what we need to do to him - yet." The younger sister said, rubbing her hands together. "We need to get him in an unguarded state - hypnotized, say. Then, once we find out what drives him, we can figure out the most appropriate method of 'defusing' him..."

* * * * *

"Thank you for coming, Steven." Elizabeth said, smiling politely as she led her 'guest' into the dimly- lit study. "I think you know everybody here...?"

"Yeah, sure, whatever..." Steven said, ignoring the other people in the room - while his eyes remained locked on her full bust, even downplayed as it was in her simple black blouse. "How 'bout that drink you promised me, babe?"

"Of course." Jessica said, managing to suppress her distaste - and her sense of victory. With powerful grace, she crossed the room and picked up the large, well-filled tumbler of single-malt Scotch, bringing it over to the chair where Steven had already flopped down into a uncaring slouch, openly eyeing the other dark-haired Hawthorne sister's equally full bust.

As they'd thought, the offer of 'free booze' had sufficed to bring Steven out to their little 'get together'. Having saved their father's life atier his Mercedes' brakes had failed and it had ended up in the lake, Steven Lussan had been given the job of caretaker of the Hawthorne estate 'in perpetuity' as a reward.

Not that Steven actually did any work around the estate. Chronically unemployed by his work habits and unpalatable personality, the slender, sandy-haired young man simply sat around all day, drinking up his small monthly stipend and raiding food from the main house to make up the shortfall. It being nearly The End of the month, Steven was once again broke, and getting liquor made it worth putting up with 'the bitches' and their 'asshole friends' for some lame 'hoity-toity' little 'party'.

True to form, the scruffy-looking young man downed half the tumbler in a single gulp, swiping ineffectually with the back of his hand at the dribble of Scotch running down his unshaven chin.

When he gave no indication that he'd noticed anything strange about the taste of the liquor, Leanne raised an eyebrow in her sister's direction, a sort of wordless 'I told you so', and Jessica nodded almost imperceptibly.

"So, what's the deal, anyway?" Steven said, taking another sip of his drink. "You said somethin' about playing a game or something? Like, poker?"

"No, actually..." Leanne said. "We're going to do an old and very popular parlor game - we're going to do some hypnosis."

"Hypnosis?" Steven snorted, finishing the drink and holding it out towards Jessica, wiggling it imperiously. "Geez, but you rich people do everything weird, don't you...?"

"Actually, hypnosis has been a very popular parlor game since Victorian times." Rob Liggat, a rangy brunet supplied, helpfully.

"Whatever." Steven said, accepting the second Scotch Jessica handed him - with Rob's perfectly- timed distraction having keeping him from noticing as she'd doctored it with Sodium Pentathol, as she had the first. Taking a deep slug of the drugged booze, he shrugged. "Let's just get this over with, huh?"

"Whatever you say, Steven." Nick Jacobs, the final 'party guest' said agreeably - a far stretch from the barely-surprised hostility the well-toned strawberry blond usually evinced when brought into any sort of proximity to Steven.

Nick and Rob were Jessica and Leanne's boyfriends, respectively, and were each quite similar in personality and position as their respective girlfriends. They'd both jumped at the chance to be founding members of the 'Get Steven Lussan Club'.

"We'll start with you..." Leanne said, taking a gold pocket watch, a candle, and a pack of matches out of The End-table close to her chair. Rising, she tried to ignore Steven's smirk as she unwillingly gave him a view down her blouse as she placed a candle on the table next to him, and brought it to life.

Waiting until Steven drained his second drugged drink, she took up position a little to his left, opposite the candle on his right.

"Now, just hold your head still, and follow the watch with your eyes..." She said, setting the watch to swinging in an arc that caused it to catch the golden glow of the candle as it passed the center point on each swing. "Just keep your eye on the watch, and listen to my voice. Listen only to my voice..."

Steven snorted disparagingly, but he obeyed her instructions - and thanks to the powerful hypnotic adjutant coursing through his system, by the time Leanne finished her 'script', he was in an incredibly deep, powerful hypnotic trance.

After half an hour of pointed questions and failed attempts at hypnotic suggestion, Leanne said back, feeling drained as she stared at Steven's limp figure.

"I don't believe it..." She said, shaking her head. "I mean, over-compensation in one thing, but this...! He actually believes that the reason why everybody dislikes him is because he'd too masculine!"

"Guys are too intimidated by my sheer masculine aura, and women are afraid that I'm too much man for them to handle sexually..." Rob paraphrased one of Steven's answers. "It's obvious to women that if they ever had sex with me, no other man could satisfy them..."

"Yeah - that's the one 'holding point', the one sense of dissatisfaction with his life I can find - and I can't figure out how to use that psychological 'handle' to make him stop being such an asshole!"

Leanne complained. "He's practically a virgin, and he has thoroughly convinced himself that it's because women are scared of his 'super masculinity', so it's all their fault! Since it has nothing to do with how he acts or treats women, but an inherent part of his over-masculine nature, I can't convince him to try being 'nicer'!"

"Well..." Nick suggested, a wicked gleam in his eyes, "If he thinks his one and only problem - a lack of a sex-life - stems from him being too masculine, why not convince him he needs to be less masculine to change that?"

Leanne crossed her arms under her bountiful breasts and shook her head in frustration. "It won't work! You heard me try and plant suggestions in him - but they just 'bounce off' this psychological armor he's constructed to explain away why everybody dislikes him. He honestly believes that his 'hyper-masculine' nature is inherent in him, and nothing about the way he treats other people will make a difference, so why change?"

"You're right - but I phrased it wrong." Nick replied, the wicked gleam maturing into an even more wicked smile. "I meant 'why not convince him that the way to combat ultra-masculinity is femininity'?"

Leanne gaped at her sister's boyfriend. "You want to... sissify him?" She gasped.

"Why not?" Nick said, holding his hands out. "He's damned well got to make a better woman than he does a man."

Jessica laughed in delight. "Oh, you wicked man! I like it!"

"Hell, yeah!" Rob said, clapping. "God, it's just so... perfect! Mr. Chauvinist himself.. made feminine!" Nick's eyebrows quirked upwards. "The question is - can we do it? If so - how far can we take it?" Leanne's startled expression slowly faded, to be replaced by a wicked grin of her own.

"Well, there's only one way to find out, now, isn't there?" She asked, with a low and almost evil chuckle. She turned her attention back to their entranced 'guest'...

* * * * *

"3... 2... 1..." SNAP!

Steven jerked upright, eyes flying wide open. "Paper!" He half-shouted.

"What...?" Jessica said, in confusion.

"Pencil and paper!" Steven said, desperately, looking around frantically. "I have to write it down!" "Write what down...?" Leanne asked, making no move to get the requested items.

"The details!" Steven said, smacking a fistful of paper into the other palm as he looked around for something to write on. "I have to write down the way.. how big... how..."

He stumbled to a stop, a wild look in his eyes - and then he sagged.

"It's gone!" He said, almost whining. "Shit - it's gone. I just had it, but..." "Had what?" Rob asked, intently, leaning forward in his chair.

"The woman who could..." Steven started, without thinking - then broke off, flushing slightly. "Could what?" Nick pressed.

Steven cleared his throat. "Could handle a man like me!" He said, a little too loudly, with a forced sense of pride as he stuck out his chest as best he could.

"Really?" Nick said, wide-eyed. "A woman able to handle a man like yourself? Are you sure? I didn't think any woman like that could actually exist...!"

Steven's eyes narrowed, and he prepared to explode - but then paused, as the expected chuckles failed to arrive.

"Geez, that's shitty!" Jessica said. "To think, you had an idea for the woman who could handle a man like you... If you knew that, you could stop bugging women like Leanne and myself, who obviously aren't even close to being woman enough for a man like you."

"Yeah...!" Leanne chimed in. "Then we could stop having to act like complete bitches around you, just to keep you a safe distance away from us. "

She shivered. "The thought of actually giving in to what we're feeling... We'd be ruined. It'd probably kill us, if we ever let ourselves try sex with a man like you."

Steven blinked - then smiled, coolly.

"Damned straight!" He announced, shaking his head to try and clear a lingering foggy thought from his mind. "I'm glad to see you babes know the score."

"Of course we do!" Jessica said, wide-eyed - and then, if forced: "...You bastard!"

Steven sat back, the pain of having forgotten such desperately important information momentarily submerged in his sense of satisfaction. It was about bloody time people started admitting the obvious...!

Then the thought of what he'd come up with while letting his mind wander while pretending to be 'in a trance' hit him, and he grimaced.

"Well, obviously, we have to help Steven figure it out again!" Nick announced.

"Certainly!" Rob agreed, quickly. "Then he'd stop trying to get our girlfriends, who obviously can't handle a real man like him, and then we don't have to be worried about his competition all the time."

Steven smiled and nodded. "Yeah - if you want to help yourselves, the best thing all of you can do is help me."

"I don't know..." Leanne said, slowly. "Are you sure that there really is any type of woman who could possibly be a match for your manliness?"

"Yes." Steven said, sure of that. He'd had it so sharp and clear in his mind, so perfectly formed, he was utterly positive... which was why losing that image, those details, was so painful that it almost felt like a hot knife being slowly twisted in his gut. He had to come up with that definition of a woman feminine enough to handle - to counteract - his own massive maleness.

"Well, then - all you have to do is let us know what the type of woman who can handle a man like you is, and we'll find her for you." Jessica said.

"Of course!" Nick agreed. "With all our money and skills, we'll have no problem - once you let us know what we're looking for, of course."

Steve felt his heart swell with pride and happiness. Finally! Finally, he was getting the respect and help he deserved.

All his life he'd known he was something special. Something more than anybody else. That's why work wasn't for him, that's why men hated him and obstructed his efforts, that was why women turned him down - he was just too much for the world to handle. He hadn't despaired, though, knowing that eventually his sheer sense of self would win through, would get him everything he so obviously rightly deserved - and now, finally, the time was at hand.

"Okay..." He said, half to himself, thinking it through. Where to start...? "She'll be a blonde..." He began.

"Oh! Like you!" Jessica jumped in.

"No, no - a real, bright-golden blonde..." Steven tried to explain. "Oh - you mean like Nick!" Rob supplied.

"No, no, no!" Steven said, annoyed. "A real bright, yellow, sassy-gold blonde..." The four 'helpers' shared a look of confusion.

"I don't understand what you mean..." Jessica said.

Steve rolled his eyes. He knew the bitches were dumb, but couldn't they grasp a simple explanation...?

"You mean like.. Marilyn Monroe...?" Leanne suggested, hesitantly. "No, No - like..." Steven started to explain...
...then stopped dead.

He couldn't think of anybody famous who had the right color. There were some who were close, damned close - but none that were perfect, and that's what he needed - perfection.

"Look, don't stress over it." Nick suggested. "Give it time, and when you can explain it to us, we'll know."

"Yeah." Jessica agreed. "Look, we'll all stay here, in the main house, until we get this done. Nobody's going anywhere."

"All right..." Steven agreed, irritably, annoyed that he couldn't make these people understand what he was trying to explain.

"I'll show you to your room, and you can think about it - sleep on it, even..." Leanne said, and Steven let himself be led to the guest room down the hall.

Flopping down on the bed, he stared up at the ceiling and tried to figure out how to explain what the perfect hair color was. It would obviously have to be an incredibly simple explanation, something even the morons - which was everybody except him, of course - could understand.

Finally, annoyed, he pushed himself off the bed and headed into the washroom to splash some cool water into his face...

...and then stopped dead, staring at the pile of items stacked in the corner of the bathroom, where the little-used guest bathroom was obviously used for storage.

* * * * *

"This is the color I meant!" Steve shouted, bursting into the study.

"Oh!" Leanne said, jerking upright. "Of course, we're so stupid! I get it now!" "Yeah!" Nick agreed. "It's all so obvious!"

"Steven, you genius!" Jessica gushed. "What a brilliant way to show us what you mean! Now I know exactly what you were trying to say!"

Proudly, Steven crossed his arms over his chest and let them stare at him and exclaim his obvious genius loudly.

If they were too dumb for him to be able to tell them what he meant,. The obvious solution was to show them - and the boxes of various types of hair dye that, among other things, had been stacked in the bathroom had made it possible.

Proud of his genius, Steven litied a hand and ran it through his silver-gold bleached hair, exactly the shade he'd needed them to see. It was bright and brassy and pale-golden, and though it had pissed him off to have to do this to his own hair, it was obviously the best and most effective method of...

"I don't know what that style is called..." Nick said, pointing to Steven's head. "Jessica? Leanne? What style of hair is that, so I can describe it when looking for the woman?"

"I dunno..." Leanne said, slowly. "It's sort of just long and unkempt and.. there."

"No, no, no - this isn't the style my perfect woman would wear!" Steve said, annoyed at how dense these people were - no matter how understandable it might have been, considering how long it had taken them to recognize his obvious superiority. "She'd wear it in tight curls, hanging down past her ears."

"What - you mean a 'fro?" Jessica asked. Sighing, Steven rolled his eyes.

This wasn't going to be as easy as he'd hoped...

...but that didn't make it any less important.

* * * * *

"See how smooth that is...?" Steven asked, wearily, as Rob slid his hand up and down his recently denuded leg.

"Oh, yeah - silky smooth." Rob agreed, quickly enough. "Now that you've shown me, it's so obvious."

"Good!" Steven sighed, shaking his head - and sighing yet again at the feel of his curled blond hair batting against his ears. "Thank God! I swear, I never want to have to use that depilatory gel on my legs ever again!"

"Right, Gotcha!" Leanne said, brightly. "You're looking for a woman who only de-hairs her legs once!"

"No, no!" Steven said, angrily. "The woman keeps them smooth all the time!" His four helpers looked helplessly confused.

"You mean.. she does this.. what, once a year?" Jessica asked, haltingly. "No, no - whenever she needs to!" Steven shouted, exasperated.

"How often is that?" Nick asked, face screwed up in confusion. "Well, uh..." Steven said, annoyed - then stopped dead.

"I'll get back to you on that..." HE sighed, resigning himself to having to denude his body at least once more before they found the woman he so desperately needed to find.

His whole body - since he'd already had the argument/discussion about women who just did their legs. Who wanted a woman with body hair anywhere else, for god's sake...?

Except, of course, these four weren't perspective enough to figure that out, of course.

Geez, being as smart and manly and.. well, just so damned perfect could really be a burden sometimes. He would be so happy when he finally got his perfect woman, and didn't have to drag these understandably less intellectual idiots up to the dizzying heights of his own genius through simple demonstrative methods and sheer force of will.

Speaking of which...

"Now, these are the types of nylons I was talking about..." Steven said, handing the sample pair he'd purchased to Jessica.

"I don't get it.. how are these different then the other ones?" She asked, holding up the wadded nylon.

"It's got the different tops, and the seam running up the back..." "Does it?" Nick said, peering at the wadded nylon she held.

"Look..." Steven said, snatching it out of her hand and sitting on the edge of the desk. "I'll put it on, and you can see what it looks like, okay...?"

At least they weren't too stupid to understand things when he showed it to them, Steven thought with another long-suffering sigh.

God - was he going to have to show them everything...?

* * * * *

"I brought the popcorn..." Rob said, smiling as he dropped down into a chair facing the big-screen plasma TV mounted on the wall.

"Great!" Leanne said, energetically. "The 'show' should start any time." "I still can hardly believe any of this is really happening..." Jessica said.

"Oh? After eight months of hard work?" Nick said, grabbing a handful of popcorn and wolfing it down.

"I know, but it all seems sort of.. unreal." Jessica said, shaking her head. "Especially how far we were able to take it."

"His ego practically dictated it." Leanne pointed out. "Not without a lot of help from us, though." Rob added.

"Damn right." Nick agreed. "In fact, I'd say you ladies were geniuses at it. That bit of bringing in the female body-builder done up exactly as Steve had specified...? Perfect!"

Jessica giggled. "She looked more like a guy in drag than he did - even though they were wearing practically identical outfits, and makeup, and..."

"Yeah..." Rob interjected, "...and she had a harder time in six-inch heels than he did. All that practice to show us what he meant really paid off."

"The thing is, that image is how he sees himself." Leanne said, more seriously. "When he looks in the mirror, he sees 'a real man', no matter what we've 'talked him into' doing to himself - even now. All of this, for him, is just teaching aids. He, quite simply, believes himself to be too utterly masculine to have anything at all impact it. Even... all that we've done to him."

"All that 'he' did to himself." Jessica corrected her, smiling. "After all, every step of the way was his idea - to help us poor, unfortunate 'idiots' understand what he meant."

"Oh, so your perfect girlfriend will suck cock, once, if she has to, and hate it all the while..." Rob mimed a falsetto voice, doing Leanne's role in a recent 'lesson'. "I think we can find a girl like that..."

"No, no, you idiots...!" Leanne and Jessica chorused - also in falsetto, mimicking 'the voice' that the 'perfect woman' was supposed to have, as demonstrated by Steve.

"Still..." Nick said, shaking his head, "Asking him just 'how manly' he is was really a stroke of genius, Leanne. Getting him to voluntarily decide that he was the sexual equivalent of six men..."

"That's impressive..." Rob agreed. "Still, what I can't get over is..."

He lited his hands in a cupping motion, holding them in front of his chest.

"Yeah, but the 'six times', along with how we didn't understand how she should act, sexually, let us..." Jessica started to mention her own, personal 'favorite part'.

"Shhh!" Leanne said, waving a hand. "It's starting...!"

The small group fell silent, staring at the screen to learn their latest 'lesson'...

* * * * *

Smiling back over his shoulder, Steven pushed open the door to his room and stepped inside. "Come on in, handsome..." He cooed, his voice properly high-pitched and sweetened.

He kept the smile riveted to his gloss-pink lips as the man stepped inside the room.

"Nice place, Staci..." The man said, a little nervously, as he looked around the pink, red and white- decorated room.

It was more something to say then anything meaningful - he was still trying to convince himself that this was really happening.

"I'm glad you like it, stud..." Steve - known to the man as 'Staci' - said as he walked deeper into the room, ankling along in the six-inch high-heeled pink pumps with a wiggle in the large, rounded 'bubble-butt' ass the implants had given him. Steve/'Staci' batted his long, thick eyelashes at the man, quite purposefully not glancing towards the camera hidden the wall that was feeding this 'training video' to the four in the study down the hall. Steve/Staci walked over, and patted the pink- satin sheeted bed with one hand, careful not to catch four-inch long, hot-pink nails in the fabric. "I especially like the bed, myself..."

'Staci' giggled again.

"It's... nice..." The man managed in a strangled tone, staring at him...

..or, as he thought, 'her'.

"Gee, thanks." Staci said, with yet another giggle. She let her eyes 'wander' down to the man's crotch, and slowly licked her almost ludicrously full, collagen-injected 'cock-sucker' lips.

"So - you wanna fool around, huh?" She asked, hoping her idiotic helpers were paying attention as she sat on the bed and patted the spot next to her.

It still felt extremely strange to be sitting on the radically enlarged ass the implants had given her - but atier that fiasco with the last 'perfect woman', it had been necessary to take these steps to show them what was required - just as it had become necessary to visually demonstrate the type of persona for the 'perfect woman' she so longed for. It was annoying, even sickening - but, ultimately, worthwhile.

She kept the smile on her surgically resculpted heart-shaped face as the man sat down beside her.

"Don't you like me...?" She asked, pouting artistically as the man fidgeted - hoping that the unseen pupils were catching every nuance of the 'submissively dominant' sexuality his perfect woman would have. "Don't you want to... touch me...?"

The man hesitated - then lightly rested one hand on her smooth, white-nylon-clad leg.

"Mmm... That feels so nice..." She lied, to show what 'the perfect woman' would do - and to get the man to continue his unwitting part in this lesson.

He slowly began sliding his hand up and down her silky-smooth, sexy leg - that had taken plenty of carefully planned exercise to get so utterly sexy, since it had been the only way to get her four helpers to understand exactly what a 'toned, sexy leg' looked like.

"Oh, you feel so good touching me..." She giggle-moaned convincingly, despite the distaste she felt at playing this homosexual role - but there was obviously no other way to make sure that 'the perfect woman' would act just the way she was supposed to, and so she pushed aside her distaste and continued on, pouting prettily. "Are my legs the only part of me you like? Don't you want to touch my beautiful boobies?"

Saying that made her wince internally - mainly at the thought of the flat-chested woman they'd brought in as the supposed-to-be-perfect woman. Sure, she'd been close in many ways - but, as stupidly literal as always, the four 'helpers' had brought a woman who was also wearing radical latex 'falsies', almost identical to the ones she'd donned to show them what the 'right' bust-size for the perfect woman was.

Well, that was no longer a problem, she thought to herself with an inner smile that matched her rather brainless outer one as the man lifted shaking hands to her straining, skin-tight white angora sweater and released the over-stressed hot-pink buttons running down it's front.

Almost like living things, her pink demi-cup bra-encased breasts surged out through the opening, practically leaping into the man's shaking-but-willing hands, as if begging to be fondled and caressed.

Just as the perfect woman's breasts would - and, just like those perfect breasts she was waiting so eagerly to be found on the right woman, the ones she'd gotten implanted in herself as an example were much, much too large for any man's hands to fully grasp them.

"Aren't they gorgeous...?" Staci cooed, sounding delighted at the heavy, constantly annoying and not a little humiliating breasts she'd gotten Jessica to pump into her. "So round, so firm.. so enormous!"

"They certainly are!" The man agreed, a bit breathlessly, as he fumbled for the front clasp on her bra

- and finally, releasing it, allowing her gigantic, round tits free.

They didn't droop, or even swing - no, just like the perfect woman's would be, the 1000cc implants were so over-pumped full of saline, the massive breasts remained almost ridiculously firm and round, out-thrust from her ribcage like a pair of flesh-colored volleyballs.

"Oh, God - you're getting me so hot!" She lied, grinding her hand over the tight pink leather skirt over her surgically-created cunt.

She really missed her cock, which Jessica was holding somewhere for re-attachment when the perfect woman was found - but the cunt was a necessary evil, especially if she didn't want her perfect woman to be a perfect she-male.

"Fuck me!" She begged, ripping open the Velcro holding the skirt on, and tumbling back on the bed. "Fuck me now!"

Spreading her legs, Staci let the eager-to-comply man to mount her, his hard cock sliding into her 'pussy'.

Simulating all the right things, she thought about the perfect woman as she let herself be fucked long and hard, imagining the wonderful day when her dream would become a reality. Obviously, with such poor material to work with, it wouldn't be any time soon - but that was something she would just have to deal with. After all, The guys and the Hawthorne sisters couldn't be blamed for their shortcomings - it was wasn't their fault that they weren't as perfect as she was.

Faking an orgasm, she let the man climb off of her and gush gratitude as she kissed him warmly, and allowed him some quality 'fondling time'. If he wanted a re-match, she'd have to give it to him, of course, because the perfect woman wouldn't turn down sex - but Staci lucked out when the man wanted to hurry off.

A rematch with the same man didn't count towards her six-a-day minimum, and he was only number four.

Once he was gone, she rose and stretched, playing with her huge, heavy tits as if she liked fondling her own, feminized body - but it was all an act, of course, for her student's benefit.

Speaking of which...

Dressed only in heels and hose, she swayed to the door and pulled it open, then headed down the hall, playing with her huge tits with one hand, and imagining happily what it would feel like to play with the real perfect woman's tits.

Opening the door to the study with her free hand, she stepped inside.

"Like, oh-mi-god - I got like so hot, knowing you guys were, like, watching me fuck!" She lied, brightly. "I'm like, so turned on by it!"

Just as the perfect woman would be turned on by being watched or videotaped having sex - so that was the way Staci had to act, since if she did anything 'out of character', it screwed up what thees for dimwits thought the perfect woman would be like.

"Please - one of you fuck me!" She 'begged', just as the perfect woman would someday be fucking her perfect man. "Or at least let me suck your cock!"

The four gathered around a pack of cards, and shuffled while she watched 'eagerly' - forcing herself not to eye the enormous strap-on dildo Jessica was holding. Jessica liked using the monster on 'Staci', especially up the ass - but, as much as she hated it, the perfect woman wouldn't, so she'd have to act as if it was one of her favorite things in the whole world - just like she did anything sexual.

Luckily for her, Rob one the daily draw for high card, and Staci good giggle, jiggle over to him, and kneel on the floor for a long, slow, skilled blow-job - something the past three weeks had made her very good at.

She had to be, of course, she thought to herself as she wrapped full, sotily firm lips 'eagerly' around his hard shati and began sucking him off. Atier all, the perfect woman would be a consummate cock-sucker.

As she bobbed her head, working her way towards a thick load of cum she'd 'happily' slurp down, Staci thought about the wonderful day when they'd find her perfect woman, and it would be her getting the skilled blow-jobs.

Of course, it would take a while, and Staci would have to act, fuck and suck like this every day until that happened, but no matter how disgusting it all was, she was content to wait for perfection.

Atier all, she thought to herself as she faked low moans of pleasure in the back of her throat as she worked the hard cock skillfully, it wasn't like any of the four were likely to have a huge-breasted, bubble-butt, brain-dead nymphomaniac of a blonde bimbo simply drop into their laps one day...

The End

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: Pledging a fraternity, a young man is caught sneaking into a sorority, only to find that the girls are witches who decide he needs to find out what it is really like to live as a woman, or in this case hooker.

The Secret

By Gunslinger

John thought his heart was going to explode. It was beating so hard against his ribcage that he was sure that people as far away as new York City could hear it, and he was amazed that somebody hadn't called the cops to register a noise complaint or something.

Taking a deep breath, the rangy, blandly handsome brunet tried to calm himself, knowing that it was just an extreme case of nerves.

"James Bond, I ain't." John whispered to himself, with a wry grin. Glancing at his watch, he saw that he'd already wasted a good ten minutes sitting in the bushes near the edge of the property, and time was getting short - either he went ahead now, or he went home.

It was a fitiy-fitiy toss up.

Squeezing his hands into fists, John hyperventilated, then - before he could loose his nerve - bolted forward, the bushes rustling around his slimly muscular frame as he dashed forward, his black-clad body a darker shadow in the moonless night as his booted feet pounded across the lawn.

Then he was at the house, pressed against the rough brick exterior, motes dancing in front of his eyes from mild oxygen depravation - he'd forgotten to breath during the hundred-meter dash.

Reaching into his jacket, John extracted a thin, flexible metal rod and - glancing around with almost paranoid nervousness - proceeded to awkwardly jimmy open the latch on the bedroom window.

Sliding up the sash, John slipped into the darkened bungalow and let out a deep breath as he slid the window shut...

...then let out an embarrassingly high-pitched squeak of fear as headlights flashed across the window from a car turning into the drive. "Oh, shit!" John cursed, his heart pumping furiously as he looked around in fear.

There was all sorts of places he could hide in this bedroom, and then escape when the occupants of the car were firmly ensconced in the living room.

However - having come this far, John wasn't planning to give up. He wanted to get into the Alpha Gamma fraternity too badly to just walk away.

At twenty-twenty, John was sort of the 'odd man out' at college. Athletic, he wasn't quite good enough to be outstanding in any sport, his ability being more of an 'all around' sort of thing. The same went with academics - neither good or bad enough for him to stand out.

So, for him, getting into the frat was his ticket to popularity on campus. Assuming, of course, that he passed this initiation.

Four girls who attended the same collage had gotten together at the beginning of their college life and rented this bungalow. That might not have seemed odd, if it weren't for the fact that the 'Vale Avenue Vixens', as they were known on campus, weren't so... unusual.

All four were extremely attractive, and intelligent. All four had extremely active social - and sex - lives. But, there was something about them that was just strange. Like the fact that they seemed to know things about people they'd never met. Or the fact that they seemed to know what the other three girls were doing at any given time. Or the fact that they, separately or together, 'partied hearty' every night

- except Thursdays. For some reason, they were always home by ten o'clock on Thursday nights, and they stayed in all night, without answering the door or phone, all shades drawn. What they did on their Thursday nights was a great mystery on campus - and it was John's job to solve it if he wanted into the frat.

He wouldn't find out hiding in the bedroom.

Knowing that time was very, very short, he had to force himself to move slowly enough not to bash into the dimly seen furniture as he made his way out of the room and into the short hallway that connected the four bedrooms and the bathroom to the living room.

Hurrying down the hall, he paused at the threshold of the living room and glanced around, looking for a hiding spot.

There didn't seem to be anywhere obvious to hide - so he had to pick the less obvious hiding spot. With the sound of the car doors slamming outside spurring him on, he hurried across the room and forced the couch out from the wall, jumping down behind it. The style of the couch was such that it had a curled lip at the top, so that when he pulled it back into place so the top butted against the wall, there was enough room at the base for him to lie sideways, with his back to the wall and one eye peering out at the living room through the space under the couch.

He was barely in time. No sooner had he moved the couch back against the wall then there came the sound of a key in the lock, and then the door swung open and light flared as one of the girls flipped the light switch.

"...believe the line that jerk tried? God, I think he's a refuge from the seventies." One of them was saying - from the sound of it, Linda, the unofficial leader of the little quartet. John strained to hear her voice as over the sound of the girls pulling off their coats and shoes.

"Anyway, he wasn't going to get anywhere tonight, even if he'd been as studly as he thought he was. Carrie, why don't you grab the candles?"

Another voice - Carrie, presumably - agreed. Three of the girls went through the living room and on into the hallway leading to the bedrooms, while the fourth stayed in the living room. From his severely limited viewpoint, John watched as the girl knelt and began rolling up the large area rug in the center of the hardwood floor of the living room.

Wondering what was going on, he watched the girl's feet pad off to the hallway as the other three returned and began putting out black cylinders that he assumed were candles. A moment later, the fourth pair of feet returned, and he watched as they each took a position around a circle and sat down...

He had to restrain a gasp as he found himself staring at a very shapely - and decidedly naked - ass near the couch. The gasp's origin, however, had come from the fact that girl on the opposite side of this one had sat down before this one had, giving him a brief glance of a naked snatch.

Which ever girl it had been, she was definitely a natural blonde.

John's mind spun at what he was seeing, and he was already imagining the story he'd tell when the night was over - the four girls sitting, naked, in a circle with candles spread out on the floor around them...

He heard a 'scritch' sound that he identified as a match being lit, an assumption verified by the smell of burning scented candles that filled the room a moment later. Incredulous, he watched the girl's unmoving behind in front of the couch, taking up almost all his limited field of vision, as the girls began to chant in an eerie, sing-song tone...

Then they fell silent. John waited to see what would happen next, now ready for almost anything....

....except:

"Well, it would seem that we have a 'peeping John'." Linda's voice said, dryly - and John's heart trip-hammered in his chest.

"You must really be desperate to be popular if you're willing to pull a stunt like this." Linda said - and John had no doubt that she was speaking directly to him. "I mean, you're usually a pretty nice, law-abiding guy - yet, here you are hiding behind our couch and spying on us."

John had no idea what to do - it was obvious that they knew he was here - how, he had no idea, but that didn't matter at the moment. "Oh, come out from there." Linda said, her voice an odd mixture of amused irritation and thoughtful command.

"Okay, okay - I'm coming." John said, pushing the couch out from the wall. "Uh. I'll wait here until you can get something on."

"Don't bother." Linda said, amused. "We don't care - but I will give you some credit for the chivalrous thought. "

John slowly rose.

"...although that still leaves in the negative column." Linda finished, smiling wryly at a red-faced John as he stared at the floor in shame.

All four were very attractive, although in different ways. Linda, for instance, was a darkly beautiful woman with a toned, lithe body, a slightly dusky skin-tone, and long, glorious black hair. Now, her dark, smoldering eyes were eyeing John like a specimen in a Petri dish, and her full, gloss-red lips were curved in a wry smile. John couldn't meet those dark, intense eyes...

...and his own eyes dropped down and slid across her firm, high-set breast and flat stomach before he what he was doing and slid his eyes off her smooth, dusky skin.

To her right was Carrie - a short, slender girl with milky-white skin and rich, flame-red eyes. Her own green eyes were frankly appraising, and she not only didn't seem upset, but seemed pleased to watch John's eyes as they slid across her large, firm tits. Her bright pink nipple were considerably larger then he thought they would be - although part of that was from them being almost painfully engorged. It was Carrie's cute ass that had practically filled his vision a few moments before.

Next to her was Carla, a tall, athletic black woman who was nevertheless entirely feminine. Her amazingly full lips were pursed in mild disapproval, and her huge, dark eyes held a disappointed look as she gazed at a thoroughly mortified John.

The last girl was Sharon, the natural blonde he'd noted. She was about average height, with smooth skin and glorious, golden hair. Her beauty was classical, if a little cool, with high, well formed cheek bones and a bright blue eyes. Of the four, she was the most endowed, though she was only a cup or two larger than Carrie's D-cups.

"Look, I'm really, really sorry." John apologized, blushing almost incandescently. "I had no idea that you girls were going to..." He waved a hand, at a loss for words - then frowned. "What... what exactly are you doing, anyway?"

Linda laughed. "You wanted to know our secret?" She asked, spreading her arms - which did interesting things to her firm breasts, John noticed. "Well, here it is - we're witches."

"Witches?" John repeated, doubtfully.

"Witches." Carrie affirmed. "Although, the correct term is 'wicca'." "Uh... huh..." John nodded, dumbly.

Linda seemed to ask the other three a question, without speaking - her eyes went to each of theirs in turn, and all three of them nodded. "Since you seem so interested, we thought we'd let you... participate." Linda said with a grin that John didn't like.

"Ooooo...kay." John said.

"Get undressed." Carla said - ordered.

"Uh..." John said, his slowly fading blush flaring anew.

"Would you rather we just call the police and have you arrested?" Sharon asked, pointedly.

John gulped - then slowly began to undress, blushing furiously all the while and wondering why the hell he'd let himself be talked into doing this - and wondering whether or not the girls were just playing around with him, or whether they actually believed this 'Wicca' stuff.

In a short time, John was completely naked, his rangy body exposed to the golden glow of the candles as he tried where, exactly, to put his hands. The natural instinct was to try and cover his crotch, but he didn't want to seem to embarrassed about his average-sized manhood in front of four attractive women...

"Have a seat, John - in the center of the circle." Linda instructed, and - hesitantly - the athletic brunet obeyed, following her instructions to face off-center, between Linda and Carrie. He struggled to keep his eyes from flicking to either naked girl as Carla rose and walked out of the room.

She returned a moment later carrying a free-standing full-length mirror. She set it up directly in front of John, giving him something to look at, then resumed her seat.

"Now, there's a simple law of Wicca when it comes to a meeting of the coven." Linda said. "No men." "Look, I'm really sorry." John started. "If you'll just let me get dressed and leave, I promise I'll..."

"Quiet." Sharon said, coolly, and John shut up.

"So..." Linda continued, shooting him a look. "Since you're so intrigued - and doubtful - we'll let you stay for our weekly coven. To meet the law - and make you truly believe - we'll just make a... 'little' adjustment."

John swallowed, but didn't ask the obvious question.

Not that he didn't want to - it was just that he couldn't seem to bring himself to speak. He really wanted to ask what Linda was talking about - but there was an ever greater 'need' to keep from speaking.

"You're already feeling part of the power the Circle holds." Linda said. "Sharon tapped into that power when she gave you the command 'quiet'."

John blinked, thinking how ridiculous that sounded...

...but he still couldn't say anything. His heart began to pound as he realized that he might have gotten himself into something much, much more serious than he'd thought.

"Now, on to the real display of power." Linda said, lightly. "Since we can't have a man present tonight - we'll just have to make you a woman."

John started, and started to turn to stare incredulously at Linda...

"I want you to keep still and just watch yourself in the mirror." Linda ordered - and, against his will, John found himself shifting his gaze to stare at his reflection, his body refusing to obey any other instructions that his mind issued.

Now he was really beginning to be freaked out by this. It was getting too weird. "Why don't we go around the circle and take turns?" Linda suggested. "Carrie?"

John could only see her in his peripheral vision - but he could hear the grin in her voice when she spoke. "Well - he's got way too much body hair. I think he should have completely smooth, silky skin - except for his eyebrows, eyelashes and the hair on his head."

John could only watch in disbelief as his image in the mirror stared back at him - watching as all his body hair slowly shrank back into his body, accompanied by a horrible itching sensation over every square inch of his body.

But it was more than just that - though it was subtle, he could see his skin becoming smoother and softer, acquiring a silky perfection that was unmatched by any of the 'real' girls', who had the usual fine, downy body hair.

"Not bad." Carla allowed from behind the stunned John. "But, I think that we should be fair - if we took that much body hair from him, we should give it back as hair on his head."

With a strange 'pulling' sensation, John's hair began creeping downward. It was not only growing longer, but becoming finer, silkier... and blonde.

In a few seconds, a rich mane of silky, pale-blonde hair hung from his head. Some of it spilled halfway down his back, while more spilled down over his shoulders and down his denuded chest.

"I'm not surprised you missed the more obvious, Carla - considering." Sharon said with cool humor. "He's too muscular - he should be slender, supple and less bulky."

John couldn't react in any visible way, unable to express his emotions as his body shifted, the ropy muscles becoming smoother and less bulging - acquiring that layer of fat that so pleasantly padded the female body.

"Not bad at all, girls." Linda said. "But..."

They continued around the circle in that fashion, each of the girls adding to the changes that slowly altered John's body. As the strange ritual continued, many things happened to further change his familiar body into a completely new form.

With a strange pressing sensation, he watched his waist shrink inward on itself, gaining a remarkably slender diameter...

...which was further 'enhanced' by his hips filling outward to a smooth, womanly curve...

...which inspired the next girl to give him a firm, remarkable sexy ass that felt unbelievable strange to sit one, from John's stunned point of view...

...and, as Sharon said, an ass that great should be attached to a pair of long, spectacular legs....

...which in turn should have tiny, dainty feet...

...which should have matching hands... and arms... and slender shoulders.... which would (of course) lead to a long, slender neck...

which should support a stunningly cute, sexy, heart-shaped face with full lips, huge brown eyes, and pert nose. Finally, John was the image of a slender, stunningly cute and sexy brunette girl - with two notable exceptions...

"My..." Linda said with a wicked grin. "I do believe that our new friend here is somewhat... under endowed. Since he seemed so interested in your tits, Carrie, why don't you take care of that little detail?"

Carrie grinned. "Why, certainly, Linda. Let's see - maybe he'd like a pair like my own firm, round D-cups?"

If he could have, John would have said something about that idea as his chest tingled and a pressure began to build behind the smooth, hairless flesh of his chest. However, he could do nothing but watch his reflection as the flesh slowly pushed outwards, forming into a firm, round pair of D-cup tits.

"Hmmm... Maybe not." Carrie said, mock-thoughtfully. "He doesn't seem happy with his new tits. Maybe. maybe they're too small for him. "

Again, the tingling occurred - and his new endowments slowly bulged further out, becoming large and fuller while retaining an amazing firmness and shape. From the size of grapefruit they continued to grow ever large, becoming the size of small melons...

...large melons...

...volley balls...

...basket balls...

...and, finally, the size of medicine balls, and nearly as round. Carrie, with a wicked grin, let the massive new tits stop at that size. "Well - I think that should do it." She said, as John wanted tried - and failed - to express the emotions that filled him at the feeling of the huge, firm tits pulling at his chest, their weight and held so solidly there to defeat any attempt to forget that he had enormous, firm tits on his almost completely female body.

"Hmmm..." Linda said. "I think it's almost perfect...except for that cock of his. "

"But, Linda!" Carla said in mock concern. "If we take away his cock and give him a nice tight little cunt, then he'll be a woman!" "So?" Linda asked.

"He's not really a woman, Linda." Carla said, in mock solemnity. "He doesn't know how - or want - to dress and act like a woman."

"I do believe you're right!" Linda said, feigning surprise. "Well then - if I'm going to give him a cunt, I guess I'd better take care of that." Leaning forward so that John could see her better in his peripheral vision, she 'smiled' coolly...

..and John felt the strange pulling sensation in his crotch that marked the loss of his manhood and the finish of his transformation into a woman. He could only watch as his cock slowly shrank in on itself, his balls pulling back up into his body. At the halfway point, his crotch was complete smooth and neuter - then a small indentation appeared, rapidly deepening until a perfectly formed female cunt lay nestled between her legs.

"There you go, Jan - a nice little cunt for our new woman." Linda said with a sort of cool satisfaction. "Why don't you smile and thank us oh so nicely for what we've done for you?"

The words weren't exactly the ones John - Jan - would have chosen, but that didn't matter - they came out anyway, in a high-pitched, breathless sort of rush. "Oh, thank you sooo much for turning me into a sexy woman!" She gushed with all appearance of sincerity. "I'm soooo happy to have tits and a cunt and be a sexy little woman!"

Then she giggled. That was completely unexpected - and a little more than was called for, Jan thought. All things considered, of course.

"Well..." Carrie said, with a grin. "Our new friend Jan must be getting chilly - why don't we find something for her to wear?" It was a motion passed with acclaim - even by Jan, who found herself agreeing, whether she wanted to or not.

With a giggle.

Hurrying off, Linda soon returned with a small pile of clothes, proving that they had just begun their 'fun' with Jan.

"Here's some panties, Jan." Carla said, handing her the pair of reasonably sedate white cotton briefs. "Why don't you put them on?"

Still in the center of the circle, Jan rose to her feet, feeling her massively outsized tits bouncing and swaying as she moved. Taking the panties, she stepped into them and pulled them up around her new, womanly hips, hiding her new cunt from view.

"I don't know..." Linda said, meditatively. "They're awfully plain..."

"Oh, please, can I wear sexy panties?" Jan found her new lips and voice saying.

"Why, of course Jan - whatever you want!" Sharon said, with mock hospitality.

With a strange writhing sensation the panties began to change. The material's white hue began to 'blush', fading through the light pinks, to the hot pinks, to the bright, fire-engine red, as the design of the panties themselves changed, becoming smaller, tighter, more lacy...

In no time at all, a tiny red wisp of red lace fabric formed a triangle over her crotch, barely enough to hide the lips of her new womanhood, faintly visible through the translucent material. The back was nothing more than a string that rode up the crack between her full, delicious butt cheeks, before breaking into two and encircling her hips and meeting at the top of the triangle that was the front.

"Much better." Carla nodded.

"How about something for your figure?" Carrie suggested, holding up a black-and-red leather corset. With a grin on her fuller lips, Jan 'eagerly' took the garment and snuggled it around her waist, where it magically began to tighten...

...and tighten...

.and tighten...

Jan was gasping for breath when the garment finally finished tightening itself, constricting her already slender waist to a tiny dimension, leaving her wasp-waisted and svelte.

"Oh, that's so wonderful!" Jan 'gushed', 'admiring' herself in the mirror. With a giggle.

"Now that you're wearing a corset, you'll have something to hook these onto." Sharon suggested, handing Jan a pair of plain, 'nude' nylons.

With a big smile, Jan sat down to put on the nylons - unable to show the pain from her constricted waist as she sat down, or to show her reaction to the way her huge tits jiggled and swayed from the motion. Instead, she seemed the picture of excitement as she carefully balled up one hose atter the other and carefully pulled them up her sexy new legs, standing up to finish the job of clipping them to the garter belts hanging down from the corset.

"I don't know... It doesn't quite look right..." Was Sharon's 'opinion'...

A second later, a pair of fishnet-stockings clad Jan's new, feminine legs.

Atter that, it was a long black skirt - that ended up as a skintight black leather miniskirt.

Then a white T-shirt that didn't fit too well - into a skin-tight red spandex crop-top that barely covered Jan's massive new tits.

A pair of basic black pumps with three inch heels wound up as a pair of thigh-high black PVC boots with platforms and eight-inch-tall stiletto heels.

Then there was the makeup and jewelry - pretty sedate when first put on, it rapidly became slutty/sexy on her, by various suggestions of the witches and Jan 'herself.'

"Well, I guess you're done, Jan." Lisa said, standing back. "The thing is - you look like a cheap slut or something."

Jan helplessly giggled. "I am, silly - I'm a huge-breasted, cum-craving little whore, who only cares about having sex. So of course I dress so that men will want to fuck me!"

"Really?" Linda said, feigning surprise. "Well - since you're our guest, I guess we'd better try and accommodate you."

The four 'real' women seemed to waver - then, standing in their places, were four handsome, muscular men, whose naked bodies were lean and taut - and whose extra-large cocks were already stirring.

"Oh, goody!" Jan squealed mindlessly, clapping her hands together in 'glee'. With an over-exaggerated walk that made various parts of her new anatomy move in all sorts of interesting ways, she walked over to the guy who had been Lisa just a moment before.

"Hi, I'm Jan!" She giggled, her eyes roaming over the new man's body - mostly, the swelling, over-sized cock between his muscular thighs.

"Hey, babe, I'm Lee - and these are my friends, Carl, Shawn and Kenny. You wanna party, hot stuff?"

"Oh, boy - do I!" Jan agreed 'enthusiastically'. Wrapping her arms around Lees' muscular body, she pressed herself firmly against him as she kissed him passionately - and Lee kissed back with just as much enthusiasm.

Breaking the kiss, Jan 'smiled' at Lee... then slowly peeled her top off, flinging it aside and standing with her huge tits proudly out-thrust. "Give these babies a try!" She giggled - and Lee started fondling and caressing her tits while she giggled and urged him on.

Then, slowly she slid down to her knees, and wrapped her huge, now-sweaty tits around his ready, hard cock.

With combined rhythm - enormously helped by a magical ability that allowed Jan to perfectly anticipate Lee's movements - Jan giggled and gasped her way through a tit-fuck, until the friction of her cleavage on Lee's cock pushed him over the edge, and he stiffened and shot thick, warm streamers of cum all over her tits, face and hair.

Cum dripping from her huge, swollen nipples, Jan turned where she was, still crouched - and found 'Carl' waiting for her, huge cock inches from her face.

So she 'eagerly' opened her mouth, leaned forward, and enveloped his cock. Using her hands, lips and tongue, she started sucking on Carl's huge member, aided - again - with a new-found magical ability, giving her incredible skill in the art of cock-sucking.

So, it wasn't at all surprising that it didn't take long before she was desperately trying to swallow all of the load of hot cum that Carl sent gushing down her throat, with her making sound of utter 'enjoyment' while she slurped down his gushing jet of spunk.

Then, standing up, Jan giggled and litied her skirt, tearing off her tiny scrap of underwear and asking, "So - who's gonna fuck me?" It turned out that Shawn was.

Pushing her skirt up and out of the way, he pushed Jan up against the wall, litied her up - and slammed her down onto his huge, throbbing cock.

Screaming in 'delight', Jan wrapped her long, sexy legs around his taut waist, and - pressed up against the wall - began gasping and moaning as she got fucked, and fucked hard, her cunt magically wrapping perfectly around his cock, both a perfect fit for each other.

Shawn fucked her like a man possessed, thrusting with his hips and litiing her by his grip on her firm ass as he thrust into her fast and hard, until his face screwed up and he moaned, shooting a load of warm cum deep into her sopping, wet cunt - while she screamed in ecstasy.

"I guess that leaves my tight little ass for you, honey." Jan told 'Kenny', bending over the couch to present her firm, round ass to him...

...and his cock began to wilt, and he sighed. With a wave of his hand, he was once more Carrie, her firm breasts heaving. Seconds later, the three other men were once more their female selves, as well.

"What are you doing?" Linda asked Carrie.

"I... can't do it - he doesn't deserve this. The being turned into a woman? That's fine. Maybe the tit-fuck, too. But, rape? No - I don't think a little 'peeping' is enough to cost this."

She waved a hand, releasing Jan from the 'control' that was held over her, and tossed her a magically-created towel to wipe the cum off her body.

"Hey - you can't change her back until we all agree!" Carla said, dark eyes glittering. "I say that we don't do that unless Carrie her takes a turn with our little bimbo!"

Jan remained oddly silent as they argued her fate, wiping herself off and pulling her crop-top back on, and standing silently by as the witches came to a consensus.

"No - Carrie's right." Linda finally decreed, a harsh look cutting off any more protest, especially from Carla. Turning to 'Jan', Linda gestured at the circle.

"Okay, the payment for your little stunt's made." She said. "Step into the circle, and we'll change you back."

Jan smiled, suddenly, startling the girls.

"Are you kidding?" She asked, shaking her head. "No way!" "Wha...?" Linda said, stunned.

Jan laughed. "You told me your secret - now I'm going to tell you mine. I'm a closet transsexual. I always hoped that, someday, I might save enough money for Gender Reassignment Surgery. Instead, thanks to you, I get a body that's better than any pale imitation surgery could give me!" She shrugged, looking down at her huge bust, ruefully. "Maybe it's a little more... well, more.. then I'd have chosen - but I'm not trading it in, not for anything."

Smiling at the stunned look on the witches faces, Jan - heart thundering with joy - added a little extra 'oomph' in her step as she headed to the front door, opened it, and walked off into the night.

With a laugh.

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: Atier a boating accident, a young man finds himself in a secret government lab with his body beyond repair, his only hope is to let them transform him into a woman, but what he doesn't know is that he will be helpless to resist anyone suggestions.

Secrets And Side-Effects

By Gunslinger

The storm rolled in from the East, the clouds pushed before a wind that rose with a rapidity that was unnerving. In less than an hour, skies that had seemed like a bowl of blue upturned over the world had been blocked from view by clouds so low that they seemed to hang but scant feet from the tree-tops. The wind, once a gentle zephyr, had risen to a wailing gale, driving the scudding clouds at velocities rarely seen outside a tropical storm. It was the type of storm that even Atheists would refer to as 'The Wrath of God'.

And, as far as Steven Tolliver could tell, God was angry at him.

Steve's muscular shoulders bunched beneath the soaked layer of clothing, his muscular arms straining to pull the paddle through the turbulent water that tossed the canoe about like a piece of cork. Despite being amazingly trim and fit, every muscle in his body ached and quivered with the strain of trying to keep the canoe from capsizing in the boiling waters of the lake. Clear, placid blue when he began, the waters of the lake were now slate gray, topped with wind-whipped streamers of foam, and seemed to wait hungrily to receive his body.

As he fought to control the heaving vessel, Steve silently thanked the heavens that he always kept his coppery/orange hair so short. His green eyes were riveted on the water around him, gauging the troughs and peaks of the waves in a battle for his survival, and he didn't have to worry that his view would be suddenly and fatally obscured. It was the sole blessing in his plight as he struggled to remain afloat on the turbulent waters.

When he'd begun his camping/canoeing vacation ten days ago, he'd done so under clear skies, with forecasts for the same for at least a week. The fair weather had lasted beautifully - in fact, lasted longer than his small, hand-held radio, which, deep in the wilderness, refused to pick up any more stations, depriving Steve of weather updates.

So, when he'd awoken this morning, it had been under clear skies and a cheerful sun. After a hasty breakfast, he'd pushed out onto the lake, intending to be across by evening.

There was no sign that one of the fastest moving storm front meteorologists had ever seen was silently rolling in his direction like a Juggernaut. He's been halfway across the lake, too far to reach shore, by the time the first clouds had begun to build with alarming speed.

Now, making for shore was out of the question. Turning the small cedar-strip canoe across the waves would guarantee capsizing, followed by death - if not immediately, by drowning, then by starvation or exposure. All his gear was firmly lashed to the canoe, and if it went, so did they.

All Steve could do was continue to paddle, muscles screaming, back breaking, eyes and face stung by winds that threatened to liti him bodily from the canoe, and hope that the canoe would be thrown up upon a shore before his strength gave out. Between the howling wind, stinging rain, and dark skies only periodically lit by lightning, he had no idea where the canoe was on the lake, weather safety lay only feet away, or hundreds of yards.

Then he heard it - the sound of wind driven water slapping into the shore. Frantically, he tried to locate the sound, but both his eyes and ears failed to pinpoint location or distance. He concentrated harder - and, for a crucial second, was distracted from the waves around him.

At that instant, a wave rolled in from the opposite side, moving parallel to the main flow of the water. Already pulling apart, the remains of the wave - formed from the water rebounding from the shore - slammed into the side of the canoe, rolling it to the left, and driving the back end down. As the stern sank, the bow lifted - and, freed from the water, became the plaything of the wind, which whipped the canoe completely over, tossing it end-over-end.

It happened so quickly that Steve only had a brief second to be surprised before he found himself airborne. Just as quickly, his short flight ended as he became submerged in the cold, frenzied waters of the lake. Desperately, he thrashed for the surface, his lungs, only half full when he entered the water, clamoring for oxygen.

The storm-tossed whitecaps seemed miles away as he struggled through the thrashing, violent water for the surface. His vision began to dim as he struggled, and his movements became weaker and weaker as his brain began to shut down.

And then, with one last, convulsive movement, he breached the surface, into the maelstrom. This low to the horizon, his line of sight was diminished to as far as the next wave - mere inches as the water crested over his head, then released him. Desperately, he struggled towards the sound of the waves slapping on the shore.

Suddenly, a wave caught him and lifted him as it rolled towards the shore. Through the driving rain, he caught a brief glimpse of water beating upon a wooded shore, and felt a wave of elation as his body, driven by the speeding wave, soared towards the sanctuary of the shore.

He felt the elation right up until the wave, with all its power and speed driving his body, impaled him on low-hanging branch.

A terrible pain burst through his body as the branch, as thick as his upper thigh, punched through his stomach. Steve screamed, a high-pitched, wordless, agony-filled sound that was whipped from his lips by the wind.

Then the wave which had lifted him surged back, and the support vanished, dropping his full weight upon the impaling stake, and the pain crested as the darkness reached out and embraced him.

* * * * *

"Can you hear me? Hello...Are you awake?"

The voice was a lifeline. The cultured, concerned tones dragged the spark of Steve's consciousness upwards, out of the depths. Finally, he broke through the veil separating him from the darkness, and his eyes blinked open.

For a second, that simple fact stunned him. He clearly remembered the storm, the wave, the branch - everything. The last thing he expected was to open his eyes ever again. But open them he did, and found himself staring up at a flat, featureless white ceiling.

Mentally, he probed his body - and felt nothing. Not just the surprising lack of pain - he seemed to be completely numb.

Then, his field of view was blocked as a man stepped up beside him, an older man with dark hair, graying at the temples, and a neatly trimmed salt-and-pepper beard. He was peering down at Steve with a concerned look through a pair of gold-rimmed glasses.

"I say, can you hear me?" the man asked, the same rich, cultured tones reminding Steve what had brought him back to consciousness. "Where..." His voice came out in a weak, wheezing croak. Steve swallowed, and tried again. "Where am I? Is this a hospital?"

The man looked concerned. "You've...been very seriously injured, I'm afraid. Now, please, this is very important. Can you tell me who you are, and what happened."

Steve tried to nod, but found he couldn't. Perhaps he was being held immobile for some reason. "My...my name is Tolliver... Steven Nicholas Tolliver. I was on vacation - canoeing..."

He related the complete story, from beginning to end. The older man looked thoughtful and relieved throughout. When Steve had finished relating the events, he hazarded his own questions.

"Where am I? Have I been operated on? Who are you?" Steve asked plaintively.

The man seemed startled. "Oh, my, I am sorry. I'm, Dr. William Garre. You...well, you're not exactly in the hospital." Steve's brow furrowed - at least, he assumed it did, he couldn't feel it happen. "I...I don't understand. What's going on?"

Dr. Garre cleared his throat nervously. "My dear boy, I'm afraid that you managed to come ashore on property owned by the U.S. Government. A very secluded - and secure - research laboratory..." - he pronounced it La-BORE-a-tory - "...run by the Department of Defense. It's all very hush-hush, top secret and that sort of thing."

"Is...is that why I wasn't taken to a hospital?" Steve asked, puzzled and angry. "Because of security clearance? Hell, I wasn't even conscious - I couldn't have revealed anything about a place I didn't even know existed!"

Dr. Garre looked decidedly uncomfortable. "I don't know quite how to tell you this, dear boy, but I'm afraid the reason we didn't take you to a hospital is because...well, because, you're dead, I'm afraid."

Steve stared at the apparently serious man, and wondered if he'd somehow ended up in a madhouse. "Dead? What do you mean, dead? I'm talking to you, aren't I?"

Garre sighed. "Yes, you are - but, unfortunately, you are still deceased. A patrolling guard found you, and summoned help. At the time we brought you here, you were already deceased - massive trauma and blood loss, you see. Now, it was obvious that there was no chance of repairing all the damage to your body. You had severe damage, from the impact, to your liver, kidneys, stomach, bladder and intestines. Worse, when your weight pulled down, it caused your lungs to compress upwards, damaging them - and crushing your heart."

"I...but..." Steve stammered. "Then,...how...?"

Garre sighed. "The miracle of modern machinery - your heart and lungs are being simulated by machinery. The rest - well, I'm afraid that, if you weren't nerve-blocked, you'd be in extreme pain for the next eight hours, which is how long you have."

Steve closed his eyes and absorbed the information. Without opening his eyes, he asked bitterly. "Then why did you revive me? So I can 'make my peace with God'? I'd rather you hadn't bothered."

Garre shook his head, unseen by Steve. "Actually, we did it to...offer you a second chance, as it were." Steve's eyes opened. "I thought you said..."

Garre held up his hand. "Yes. Your body can no longer support life. However, this lab has...well, stumbled across something remarkable. In a search for cures for many diseases - and potential biological warfare weapons - we have found a process that is able to re-write the human body's code. Like a...benign cancer, it rebuilds cells at a stunning rate. However..." he raised his voice, overriding Steve's questions "...there are some drawbacks. The first is not a problem for you - there is only a forty percent survival rate. All things considered, that is actually an improvement for you." He paused, composing himself, and Steve mentally braced himself for the bad news.

"Secondly, it only works on males. For some reason, which we don't completely understand, the chemical reaction that takes place in the cells requires the extra chromosome. However, in the process, it erases the extra chromosome, and replaces it." He sighed again. "In short, my young friend, you would completely and utterly healed - and female."

Steve didn't know what to expect - but it wasn't that. "What? Female...you mean I'd be a woman?"

"Yes. Exactly. Now, I can't say what you'd look like - but you'd definitely be female. But, alive. THAT is what's important here..." "Doc...I... I need some time to think. Can I...?"

Garre sighed. "Yes. Of course. However, you can't take long - in another..." the bearded doctor checked an old-fashioned pocket watch, "...ninety-eight minutes, you will have NO choice in the matter, as it will be too late for even the process to save you."

Behind closed eyes, Steve heard the doctor leave, and he turned his mind to the problem.

Die? Everything, snuffed out by a freak storm. Gone?

Or, try the process - and die anyway. A sixty percent chance of it. The End...

Or live - as a woman. A long healthy life - as a man trapped in a woman's body, unable to change that. To have to learn how to live a new life - and still, never be quite right, an outcast - a lesbian, at the very least.

But...Die? Everything, snuffed out....

*** * * * ***

With twenty-seven minutes to spare, Steve made his decision. Life. As long as there was life, there was hope. The doctor nodded soberly, and rested a hand on Steve's shoulder. A nurse was preparing a needle.

"Steven, you'll be unconscious until it's all over, when you'll either wake up as a woman - or never wake up again. But if you do survive, I want you to know that you will have all the assistance that the U.S. Government can bring to bear."

Then, before Steve could respond, the needle slid home - and he sank into the darkness, still wondering if he'd made the right choice.

* * * * * Darkness.

Steve struggled for full consciousness - and couldn't reach it. He was drifting, his mind unanchored from his body. His eyes refused to obey his commands, and his only link to the external world was his hearing.

Voices...

"What the hell do you think you were doing, doctor?" An unfamiliar voice, powerful and authoritative. Angry.

"General, the young man was dying! What would you have had me do? Let him pass away, unknown, unmourned?" Garre, a righteous indignation coloring his rich tones.

"Maybe it would have been better, Doctor!" Anger, frustration - then, a sigh. "No... I'm sorry, you know I don't But, dammit, what do we do now?"

The doctor's voice was also more conciliatory. "I realize this isn't easy - but, we needed a test subject, other than the monkeys - and it worked. Perfectly. Think of "

"I know, Doctor, believe me, I know. But, it doesn't solve our basic problem."

A pause - a long one. Finally, it was broken by the doctor. "General...he hasn't seen anything - not really. He doesn't even know where the beach he came ashore was. I... I might have a solution for our problems. It... It won't be fair to him - her - but, it would solve our dilemma, and she will have her health - her life. All we have to do is keep her..."

Deprived of the raised voices that had brought him this close to consciousness, Steve once more slid back into the darkness.

* * * * *

This time, the journey back up from the darkness was smooth - even pleasant. A warm, dreamy rise to full consciousness as Steve drifted from a warm, comfortable sleep to a sleepy awareness.

He opened his eyes and blinked sleepily, for a second his mind still clouded from sleep. He stared up at a beige ceiling, and wondered where he was - and why he felt so... odd. Not unpleasant, not uncomfortable, but definitely not normal.

Then everything - the storm, his death, his...rebirth - and the problem and its unknown solution. He gasped in surprised shock at the recollection, and sat bolt upright.

The covers that were over him flew off with the force of the convulsive movement as he sat up in the comfortable bed he was in. Even as he completed the short, rapid movement, his mind was crowded with sensations that told him that the whole thing hadn't been a dream, that in some fundamental way he was no longer the person he'd been all his life. He wasn't...a he.

Steve looked down at herself - and gasped.

The first thing she saw of her new body was her breasts. No matter how intellectually prepared they might have been for this moment, any man would have felt an overwhelming confusion, shock and dismay at the presence of female breasts on their body. So, Steve was unprepared for what she saw.

A pair of huge, round tits, their creamy swell jutting from her chest far beyond anything she might have expected. They were...

Steve closed her eyes and slowly counted backwards from fifty, slowing his whirling mind. Composed, she re-opened them and re-considered her new endowments.

They were large - no doubt about it. Allowing for the new perspective - Steve had never seen breasts from quite this angle before - she judged the firm, round globes to be DDD cup. Their unfamiliar weight seemed many times what it could possibly be, these new masses of flesh hanging from her newly slender ribcage. Small, pink nipples topped each fleshy dome, poking impudently out in the cool morning air.

Slowly, she lifted her slender new hands to them and lightly touched her swelling bosom and engorged nipples, gasping slightly at the remarkable sensation that it created. She then raised her hands to her face and let her fingers flutter over her altered features, wondering what she looked like now.

Then, bracing herself, she turned her attention lower.

Her legs were definitely more shapely, more feminine, and quite smooth. And, nestled between the soft thighs was - her new womanhood. Completely smooth and hairless, there was nothing at her crotch to hide the lips of her new vagina.

It was too much to take calmly in what sitting. Although she had sort of known what to expect, to be faced with it was still very...unnerving. Dragging her eyes from her altered physique, she looked around the room she found herself in, distracting herself from her body.

It was a bedroom - nothing special, aside from the fact that she didn't recognize it at all. Fair sized, neither expensive nor cheap, it was clean and rather cheerful, painted in pastels, and filled with furniture that, while not expensive, was sturdy, fashionable, and fairly new. Even the little table looked like a vase of flowers - against which was propped a simple white letter-sized envelope, with a simple word printed on the outside...

...‘Steve’

Brow furrowing, Steve slid her legs over the edge of the bed, and stood up, fighting to maintain her balance against the unaccustomed new distribution of weight, especially her new, full breasts. She walked towards the desk, feeling awkward and clumsy. Sitting in the chair before the desk, she opened the envelope and dumped out the contents.

Driver's license, birth certificate, ATM card, two credit cards - Visa and MasterCard - ,a thick wad of cash, - and a folded piece of paper. What caught her attention was the driver's license. Stunned, she picked it up and looked at it, eyes wide.

It was in the name of Nikki Steeves. The date of birth was listed as July 4th, 1976 - three years younger than 'Steven'. But what really caught her eye was the photo.

The face in the photo bore a marked resemblance to 'Steve' - as if she were a twin sister. But, it was feminine, if not spectacularly so. The face was...cute, in a sort of tomboyish way - except for two things.

The short hair was the richest, most startlingly vivid red, a glorious shade.

And the eyes were the richest, brightest, most arresting shade of kelly green that seemed to jump out from the photo.

Stunned, she slowly rose from the desk, license in hand, and walked awkwardly over to a full length mirror for her first good, all over look at her new self.

She wasn't exactly sexy. Her legs, while shapely and nice, were not spectacular. Her body was shapely and toned, the arms slightly more muscular than most women, albeit smoothly and attractively. Her waist was slender, but not remarkably so, and it was perched atop slim hips. Her ass, however, was world class.

In fact, her figure would have been described as 'boyish' - except for those large, firm tits jutting proudly forth.

And for her face - it was the one in the photo, brought to startling life. Again, it was saved from boyish obscurity by her short, glorious red hair, and the most amazing eyes on the planet, so rich, so vibrant - so alive.

Also, the fact that her lips were so full and...well, attractive, didn't hurt. She missed being beautiful by a wide margin, and was only moderately sexy - but somehow, she possessed a stunning, remarkable look that was all her own.

Somehow, the reflection in the mirror brought it all home - made it real. Slowly, with trembling hands, she reached up and touched her breasts. The erotic sensations were real, and strong.

"My God..." she whispered in a clear, female voice. "I'm really a woman."

She returned slowly to the desk, she picked up the letter, unfolded it, and read the neatly written words written there. Nikki
I'm sorry for the way this turned out, but I'm afraid that it's for the best.

I'm sorry for arbitrarily picking a new name, but we had to create the new identity for you. I assure you that it is complete - you should be able to adjust to your new life, and forge some- thing from it.

Good Luck, and God Bless William Garre

Putting the letter down, Nikki walked over to the dresser and began to hunt for some clothes she could wear. She ignored the more feminine of the clothes, picking simple, and whenever possible, unisex styles.

Taking her choices back to the bed, she began to dress. She started with the simple white briefs, sliding them up her smooth legs. They clung to her fuller hips and smooth new crotch, again proving the loss of her manhood.

Next came the matching bra. It's cups fit snugly around her firm, DDD-cup breasts, the straps weighing heavily on her shoulders.

Sitting on the bed, she pulled on a pair of white socks, then the faded pair of jeans. A baggy gray sweatshirt helped minimize her large, firm breasts.

The final item was the boots - calf-high black leather boots with a half-inch heel. Dressed, she gathered the items from the desk and dumped them into a simple purse - and all but fled the apartment, and it's mockingly feminine decor.

As she jogged down the steps of the building, her new breasts bouncing within their fabric prison, she found herself slowing to a stop, fear welling up inside of her. When she stepped through the door to the street, she would be among other people, passing as a woman. Despite the fact that she was, genetically, now female, she still felt like a fraud, a freak - she had a horrible, irrational fear that people would stare, would point, would shout....

Mustering her courage, Nikki braced her shoulders and stepped through the door into the warm sunshine. People passing by glanced at her - embarrassingly, many of the men did so admiringly - but there was no shouts, no uproar. Keeping her eyes downcast, Nikki headed off down the street, walking with no destination in mind. The feeling of men's eyes seizing her up was disconcerting - like she was gay or something. Physically, she might be female - but mentally, she was still the Steven Tolliver she'd been.

Or, so she thought.

Nikki continued to wander, and gradually found herself feeling more comfortable. Her head came up, and those magnetic green eyes began to take an interest in what was going on around her. She discovered that there was and wasn't much difference in being female - it was contradictory, but true.

Once she'd gotten used to her own balance, walking was little different then being a man - you didn't THINK about it, you just did it. At the same time, the sensation of her large breasts swaying, the way her hips moved differently, all was new and unusual - but she didn't notice unless she specifically thought about it. Even the fact that the motion of her breasts felt good was mere background unless she thought about it.

Likewise, the attention from men. When she noticed, she blushed and felt uncomfortable. But she didn't always notice, at least consciously. The times when she noticed it subconsciously - a guy smiling at her as he passed - she merely returned a polite smile without thinking about it.

So, a little more comfortable about being female in public, she found her steps had carried her some distance from her starting point, and she realized she was passing a mall. With a shrug, not having anything better to do, she went inside.

The air conditioning felt good, and she began to stroll up and down the halls, looking in stores idly.

She wandered towards one of the 'anchors', a large department store. The mall entrance was through the cosmetic section, and she wandered through, not really paying attention until a salesclerk cleared her throat.

"Excuse me, miss."

It took a second for Nikki to register that she was the 'miss.' She turned to face the other woman.

"Yes?" Nikki asked, slightly hesitant.

The sales woman smiled. "Today we're holding free make-overs. It won't cost you anything, and will do wonders for you." "I'm not really a 'make-up' type of girl." Nikki replied, trying to be polite. She had no intention of EVER wearing make-up. The sales woman smiled. "Oh, come on. With hair and eyes like yours, you should wear make-up to enhance them."

Nikki blinked as the world seemed to narrow. The woman's words seemed to echo in her brain. To her shock and surprise, Nikki heard herself speaking, without her consciously deciding to say anything.

"Yes. I should always wear make-up to enhance my looks." Nikki said helplessly. "Good!" The woman beamed. "Follow me, right this way."

Nikki was horrified to find her self doing just that - allowing the woman to lead her to a chair in front of a large mirror. What the hell was going on? Why was she doing this - she KNEW she didn't want to - but she couldn't help herself. For some reason, she felt like...she NEEDED to do this.

What Nikki didn't know - what nobody knew - was the side effect of the DNA regeneration process she'd undergone. Although she didn't realize it, every cell in her body was constantly regenerating - including her brain cells.

Which meant, quite simply, that anytime anybody stated something as a bald fact, whether it was true or not, Nikki's brain accepted it - and it was encoded - programmed - into her brain as the cells regenerated.

So, programmed she was as she helplessly let the woman make her over, applying make-up skillfully while talking the whole time - and almost every single thing she said was hard-wired into Nikki's brain. When the woman was finally finished, Nikki's full lips were a bright, gloss red, and mascara, eye-liner and eye-shadow emphasized her glorious eyes. Nikki's purse was heavier, full of the make-up she'd helplessly been compelled to buy.

Confused, shocked and scared, Nikki stared at her transformed face in the mirror, not knowing how or why she was doing what this woman said.

"So, what do you think?" The woman asked - and before Nikki could answer, supplied her own answer. "It makes you look stunning. Go ahead - tell me how perfect it is."

Phrased that way, Nikki had no choice. Even though she knew that, seconds before, she'd hated it, she suddenly, helplessly was convinced that the make-up was perfect, and she told the woman so. Intellectually, she knew she should hate it, but emotionally, she now loved how her face looked made-up like this, and couldn't consider not wearing make-up from now on.

The saleswoman, one of those hopelessly chipper, talkative people, had no idea what she'd just done to Nikki. Having finished unwittingly programming her for make-up, she unknowingly went ahead and compounded the problem.

Cheerfully making small talk with someone who'd turned out to be a surprisingly good customer, she looked at Nikki's heavy sweatshirt and shook her head. "Miss, why you're wearing something that heavy on a gorgeous day like today is beyond me. You're dressed way to warmly. You need something lighter and cooler - something more flattering too."

The fact that the cheerful banter was delivered in a light tone and a smile made no difference. Nikki found herself filled with a sudden, desperate need to do just that. "Yes, you're right, I do need something else to wear." Nikki replied helplessly. Driven by her new need, she headed towards the woman's clothing section.

"What the hell's wrong with me?" Nikki asked herself, fighting to just turn around and leave. Since she still controlled her own body, she could stop, and even take a few steps in the other direction.

But the programming she received was much like an addiction. She had an unbearable craving to follow that programming - and she never got more than a few steps before the craving forced her to turn back towards the women's clothing section. Soon, she was wandering through the section, desperate to find a garment that she could buy, and end this terrible, emotionally painful need.

Thanks to another 'helpful' sales lady, when Nikki fled the store, it was wearing a tight black spandex crop-top that clung to her large, firm breasts, displaying them enticingly. Embarrassed, confused and horrified, Nikki flagged down a cab and went home, fleeing to the refuge of her apartment.

"What the hell's happening to me?" she cried to the uncaring ceiling. "Why am I doing these things?" She slumped miserably into a chair in the living room, hating herself for being made-up and feminine, for wearing such a revealing top - but unable to force herself to do otherwise.

Finally, gathering herself, she went into the kitchen and fixed herself an early spaghetti dinner. She ate the meal with two glasses of a very nice red wine she found stocked in her kitchen. After sticking the dishes in the dishwasher, she browsed the selection of books lining the shelves of the living room, finally picking a Cussler she hadn't read. Settling down into the chair, she snapped the radio on to an easy-listening station, and lost herself in the book.

Everything was just fine for about an hour. Then, deeply engrossed in the book, she found her attention riveted on the radio, and the words coming out of it.

"This is DJ Dan down at 'Stages', the hottest nightclub in town! Tonight is Ladies Night, so ladies, put on your sexiest outfit, get all dolled up, and get down here before nine tonight. No cover charge, and half priced drinks, so get down here, party the night away, - flirt with the guys - and enjoy yourselves!"

That was all it took. Instantly, Nikki found herself filled with a helpless, overwhelming need to go to that club tonight. She tried desperately to fight the inexplicable need she felt - and failed.

Caught in it's grip, she leti the book beside the chair and went into the bathroom. Shucking out of her clothes, she stepped into the shower and for the first time began to wash her firm, soti new female body, feeling the sensations as her hands slid across her breasts, her new ass...and her womanhood. Never before had a shower felt half as good, and if she hadn't been driven by her need, she might have stayed in the shower a lot longer. As it was, she stayed only long enough to get thoroughly clean, then stepped out and dried off.

Thanks to the way the DJ had phrased the ad, she found herself going to the closet with only one criteria - to find the sexiest outfit she owned. With disgust and despair, she found it and began to helplessly dress in it.

First, the fire-engine red thong bikini underwear. She pulled it into place helplessly, grimacing at the way it slid between the cheeks of her full, firm ass. There was no matching bra with these underwear - which was 'fine' - she couldn't have put one on right now, no matter how hard she tried.

Next came the nylons. She picked up the leti nylon and balled it up, then slid it up her silky leg - amazed at how good the black sheer fabric felt when she'd pulled it up to her crotch. The lacy elastic trim at the top held it in place, and she repeated the action with the second nylon.

Next cam the skirt - a micro-mini, in black leather, that was so tight it seemed to be spray-panted on to her delightful ass. The top was a black leather vest, low-cut at the neck, and form-fitted to hug her waist before flaring out at her hips. It was done up with a silver zipper that naturally drew the eye up to her cleavage - of which there was a remarkable amount.

Next came the jewelry. A thin silver chain sporting a small silver-and-emerald pendant. Matching earrings - hoops with the emerald suspended in the center of each - went on her ears. She'd picked that particular set because they were clip ons.

Resignedly, she sat down at the mirror at the desk and carefully re-applied her make-up, having to do it three times before she was 'satisfied' with how it looked.

The final step was the shoes. Sitting on the edge of the bed, she pulled on the black platform shoes with the seven inch stiletto heels and ankle straps, and buckled them in place. Wobbling and weaving on the unfamiliar shoes, she checked herself in the mirror, grabbed her purse, and leti.

Although the club was some distance away, she was walking there, to get used to moving in the heels. The walk took almost two hours, and by the time she reached the club, she was walking in the heels with a sexy, feminine motion that made her ass move enticingly, and caused her tits to jiggle and sway. Helplessly, she entered the club.

Smiling helplessly, she walked through the second door, and into the club itself. Instantly, she was hit by a wall of sound, smell and sight. The deep, bass drive of the music rose above everything, as cigarette smoke swirled and people mingled. Nikki headed for the bar, hating herself for not being able to just turn and walk away. She was incredibly aware of men's eyes upon her - and she helplessly smiled flirtatiously back, breathing in to further emphasize her tits. Finally, she made it to the bar and ordered a beer, then found a seat, and watched some of the people on the dance floor.

Despite her intellect, Nikki had failed to take certain things into account. The first soon became apparent. Within her first hour at the club, a steady stream of men approached her, free drink in hand, in hopes of winning her attention. Of course, Nikki was in no way enticed to spend time with any of them - but, unfortunately, many of them phrased their offer in the form of 'here, have a drink on me.', and offer she literally couldn't refuse. So, she helplessly consumed quite a bit of alcohol, in a body unused to that amount of booze.

Many commented on her looks - her eyes and hair most often, but some were less subtle. A couple of the phrases ended up making her 'proud' of her 'really sexy' body. She was embarrassed to find her nipples straining at the glossy black leather covering them, as the deep, thudding beat aroused her thoroughly feminine body.

But it was her last oversight that was the most important - hormones.

Despite her mental inclinations, her body was completely female. She didn't even notice the fact that her eyes often strayed to the crotches of men talking to her, gazing at the bulges swelling beneath the fabric.

And so, by ten o'clock, without realizing it, she was quite drunk, very aroused, and horny as hell.

Nikki stood to one side of the dance floor, swaying slightly to the music. Everything seemed to have become brighter and louder, a swirling haze of light and sound, and she was having trouble concentrating. Especially since her nipples, and her new cunt, seemed to be demanding her attention. Without thinking, she lightly rubbed one covered breast, sighing at the flow of pleasure, and wondering how she'd gotten so drunk.

"Hi there. You look a little...um...plastered. Let me give you a lift home" The voice came from behind her, and she turned slowly, and blinked at the tall, handsome man behind her. She realized that it was closing time - and, thanks to the way he put it, she couldn't say no..

"Hi" she said. "I'm Steve. . . I mean, Nikki Steeves." She blinked slightly.

"Don." He said, tapping his chest - while staring at hers. He couldn't help it - she was fondling one of her firm, round tits. Without thinking, he blurted "You must be really turned on by me!" - Then flushed beat red. "I'm sorry..."

It was too late, though. Helplessly, Nikki snuggled up against the tall, handsome stranger and smiled sexily at him. "Yes, I am..."

Stunned, and pleased, he put his hand around her to lead her from the club. It felt so good, Nikki unthinkingly pressed closer to him, letting his hand move to lightly fondle her magnificent ass as they left the club. To her disgust - it felt great

Nikki followed Don out front, and she walked unsteadily towards the car he pointed to. Adroitly, Don guided her to the passenger side, unlocking the door and helping her in. Feeling gentlemanly - and horny - , he opened the driver's side door and settled into the seat.

Bringing the engine to life, Don pulled away from the curb and headed towards her apartment, various thoughts dancing through his head and enlarging his already engorged cock. Nikki, hating herself, was having similar thoughts of her own, helpless to drive them from her mind.

Moments later, the car pulled into the parking lot of her apartment. He climbed out and walked around to the other side, annoyed at the heavy, rude song filling the air from a street-rod TransAM two cars down. Helping Nikki out of the car, he sighed.

"Here you go, Nikki. Home safe and sound." He waited a second, he found she was gazing off in the distance, looking unfocused. Shrugging, he began to go back to his car.

Nikki, however, was helplessly listening to the heavy, pounding music from the TransAm - and it's rude, suggestive lyrics.

You're horny, that's right, you want fuck tonight you love eatin' cum you wanna get some

'cause it makes you feel right You're a slut, a cum-queen as horny as you've ever been

Ya love ta fuck, love ta fuck, love ta fuck,

...'cause you're a slut. You're eager to get goin', feel the juices flowin'

you need a man, always on hand, one who's knowing,

You're a licker, and a sucker and an all-night fucker

Ya wanna fuck, wanna fuck, wanna fuck,

...'cause you're a slut

Don was more than a little surprised when the buxom red-head grabbed him. "Don't go." "Wha...?" Don asked, stunned.

"I need you. Right now. You HAVE to have sex with me." Nikki begged helplessly. Don struggled with himself. She was drunk...but sexy. Should he...?

He wasn't quite enough of a gentleman to turn this offer down. Willingly, he followed her upstairs - with her fondling his crotch the entire time. She tried to stop - and couldn't. She NEEDED to fuck him.

The instant the door closed behind them, Don embraced Nikki, his hands squeezing her firm, full ass as his lips met hers in a passionate kiss. 'Eagerly', Nikki responded, and was rewarded with a flood of richly erotic sensations that thundered through her aroused body.

Feverishly, Don fumbled at the fastenings of Nikki's skin-tight vestments, and soon he'd completely undressed her. She bucked and moaned in pleasure as the slick material slid off her body, hating/loving it. All she knew, is that it felt unbelievably good. Don pulled her spike-heels off to remove her outfit, fumbling in his haste. Meanwhile, she was lost in the sensations created by the movement of air over her erect nipples, and sopping cunt.

It was as Don hurriedly disrobed that Nikki made a last, desperate effort to break free. A slight frown creased her smooth brow - and then loosened, as she lost.

All thought was driven from Nikki's head as Don's hands and lips closed over her firm, full breasts, causing incredible sensations to rack her body. Nikki moaned, low and long, as Don eagerly fondled and sucked her engorged nipples. Unresistingly, she was led to the bedroom, her firm, round ass swaying enticingly.

"You're huge. . ." she moaned huskily, lurid thought running rampant through her mind as hormones flooded her aroused body. She found herself pushing him onto the bed, gazing with rapt attention at his huge cock as she lowered her face to it

Nikki took Don's immense cock in her hands and began to lick it, much like she'd lick a Popsicle, enjoying the feel of it's ridged surface beneath her tongue. Only when it was thoroughly coated in her saliva did she raise herself up and eagerly impale herself on it.

"What am I doing..." she started to say - she screamed in sheer ecstasy as Don's large, hard cock plunged into her womanly vagina. All conscious thoughts were swept away in the sheer power of her first sexual encounter in this body. Her screams of sheer ecstasy rose in pitch and volume as wave after wave of orgasmic pleasure built.

Don's face twisted in pleasure as Nikki rode him like a wild thing. She began to writhe and buck energetically as she approached the brink of her first, true orgasm.

Then, it happened. Like a series of sharp explosions in a row, the multiple orgasm took her, causing her body to twist and turn as if electrical current was flowing through her. She didn't even have the energy to continue screaming as the orgasm blasted through her. The extra movements of her orgasm also pushed Don over the edge, and his cock spasmed and gushed it's load deep into her cunt.

Still impaled on Don's cock, Nikki collapsed on him, embracing him. Her immediate need satisfied, she found herself whispering into his ear. "I loved it...I love you. Please, stay with me and keep me satisfied forever."

Don looked up at her, gasping from the most incredible sex in his life. He wanted to accept without reservation - but couldn't. "In the morning, when you're sober, see if you still want me." He said sadly.

Nikki knew that, true or not, her feeling would never, ever change. But right now, she didn't have time to explain it - she had other things to do.

Rolling off of him, she knelt between his legs and took his sootiening cock back into her mouth. Tasting her own juices on it, she licked and fondled it back to full harness - and redoubled her efforts, using hands, lips and tongue to work his huge cock.

Just as his hot, salty cum gushed deep into her throat and she gulped hungrily at it, she came to a startling realization... She WAS a slut...now, and forever. And no one man was ever going to be able to satisfy all her new, desperate needs....

Letting his sotiening cock drop from her cum-coated lips, Nikki straddled Don's chest and pulled his hands up to her tits, urging him to fondle them. As he complied, she smiled down at him.

"I got plenty of room for you to move in with me....but only if you bring a couple of friends to share "

And, helplessly, she giggled...

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: A homeless man who lives on the fringe of society, discovers a suit which transforms him into a new lifestyle.

Sewer Rat

By Gunslinger

He huddled low in the opening, barely daring to breathe, little more than a slightly more substantial patch of darkness amongst the shadows. Cold water rushed over his feet and ankles, but he barely felt the accustomed chill as he peered out from between bars once painted a glossy black, but now leprous with splotches of rust.

Licking his lips, he darted his dark, fearful eyes left, then right, then left again. From his worm's-eye-view, the street appeared deserted - but he was well aware of just how many little hidey-holes and dark shadows lay on the edges of the sulfurous light cast by the street lamps, each capable of cloaking a human figure. On top of that, there could be a veritable army lurking just a few feet away, remaining silent just out side of his narrow field of vision, and he wouldn't be able to see them until it was much, much too late.

His eyes repeated their nervous back-and-forth sweep, searching the sharply contrasting pools of light and shadow that dotted the nightscape before him - and then, inevitably, as if drawn by magnets, returned to the wire-mesh garbage can affixed to the lamp-post only five feet in front of him. A garbage can overflowing with crumpled waste and empty cardboard coffee-cups...

...upon which, balanced precariously, was a bulging brown-paper bag, loosely rolled at the top.

A brown paper bag that, if the angrily muttered comments from the man who had deposited it there ten minutes ago could be trusted, contained 'the same fucking lunch' for the 'fucking fith day in a row'.

Food.

Untouched.

Uneaten.

Unspoiled.

FOOD.

It had to be a trap of some sort. It had to be. People just didn't deposit food practically on his doorstep. The man had put it there was probably waiting just out of sight, planning to laugh at Roach, call him names, maybe even kick him. If not that, then there would be a policeman who would see him take it, and find some excuse to hit him, or take him to that place where there were too many people, too much noise, where they lights were too bright, and they'd keep asking him questions, all the questions that Roach couldn't remember the answers to, or that his tongue would trip over trying to answer. Questions that would just keep coming until Roach felt like his head would explode.

Worst of all, this all might be set by... Them.

Them. The people with the oh-so-sad eyes, who talked all sweet to you, told you they could give you plenty of food and a nice place to sleep. Some of Them were Jesus-people, and some of Them were Govamint-people, but They all were liars.

Roach knew better then to trust... Them. Roach knew all about people who promised you nice things, who said they could give you everything you wanted, who talked all sweet and kind. A lifetime ago, back when the lights hadn't seemed to hurt so much, and when his tongue hadn't yet tripped over itself whenever he tried to answer questions, back when he'd had another name, Roach had been given to a 'nice' man in a big, shiny car, who had told Roach that he didn't have to stay in the orphanage anymore, that Roach could come live in the man's big, nice house. The man had been nice at the orphanage, and he'd been nice in the long black car with the driver up front... but when they'd gotten to the 'big, nice' house and had been alone, the man hadn't been nice anymore.

Not nice at all.

Somebody - Roach didn't remember who - had once said to him that if it weren't for bad luck, Roach wouldn't have any luck at all. Roach knew that to be the truth, and so this couldn't be what it seemed to be. It had to be a trap...

...but... FOOD.

He licked his lips again - then, quickly, before what little nerve he did have could slip away, he quickly pushed open the grate covering The End of the five-foot diameter storm drain he was crouched in.

The metal of the hinges squealed like a lost soul, and his heart leapt within the cage of his ribs as he darted out of the comfort of his sanctuary.

"Lizard-quick, spider-quick, cat-quick." He muttered to himself, exhorting himself to greater speed as he scampered up the embankment of the run-off ditch and up onto the cracked and canted paving-stones of the sidewalk. Eyes trying to look in every direction at once, nerves humming in panic from the inevitable failure, Roach sprang over to the garbage can and snatched the paper bag from its resting place, then quickly dropped to his haunches.

Head swiveling in quick, jerky movements, eyes narrowed against the searing glare of the streetlights, he swept his hand over the sidewalk, quickly scooping up the few stepped-on cigarette butts close at hand. Not daring to wait a second longer, he quickly dumped the half-dozen crushed remains into the pocket of his frayed and faded army shirt, then quickly began his retreat.

A gust of wind kicked up, strong enough to stir even his lank, greasy mane of filthy hair. Like a grungy curtain, the once reddish-gold hair fell over his eyes - and Roach's taut-stretched nerves broke, and he screeched in abject fear, batting at his own face with the hand not wrapped in a desperate death-grip around the paper bag.

He spun and darted to the mouth of the storm-drain in full-blown panic. Yanking the gate shut behind him, he threw one quick, hysterically frightened look over his bony shoulder, then fled down into the dark passages as if all the hordes of hell were behind him.

Though painfully scrawny, his nineteen-year-old body was still lithe and light on its feet, and he scampered with an eerie grace through the echoing chambers of his chosen world. Though temporarily deprived of his eerily acute night-vision by the glaring brightness of the above-world, Roach navigated unerringly through the concrete tunnels which had housed him for nearly a decade now, delving ever deeper into the labyrinth.

A ragged crack, just barely wide enough even for his frame, slowed him momentarily as he was forced to shrug out of the frayed and duct-tape-patched backpack that contained all his worldly possessions. The backpack, and the thin bedroll tied to it with twine, were never out of his sight, a lesson learned the hard way, when another street dweller had found the closer-to-the-surface bolt-hole Roach had been using at the time. It was after that loss that Roach had explored even lower into the depths, and found the narrow rent through which he now fitted himself, entering a section of passageways formed of red brick, with straight walls and an arched ceiling tall enough for him to stand upright except for where arches buttressed the old tunnel.

He continued onward, heart still thundering in his chest, his eyes slowly re-adapting themselves to the darkness in which he dwelled. When he reached the opening to the square, timber-braced room in which he'd been living, he slowed down - but fear of Them pushed him onwards, and he passed the opening.

He moved much more slowly now, the downward-sloping passageway beyond his old 'home' terra incognita for the young man. His route was picked out for him in the pale, green-blue light cast from the two objects that, as much as a need for sustenance, had drawn him to the surface world - a pair of keychain fobs made of that strange plastic that would absorb light, and then glow in the dark. With his eyes, that faint glow was all he needed to make his way into the unfamiliar passageways, built so long ago for a purpose it never even occurred to him to wonder over.

Presently, the old passage emptied out into a space so large that even Roach's eyes couldn't penetrate to any of the far walls, or the ceiling. It also sat lower than the passage itself, and a good two feet of clear, cool water stood in the pool surrounded by a brick 'deck' that vanished off into the gloom on either side of the entrance.

Lungs demanding more oxygen than he could draw in, Roach stumbled a few feet down the 'deck' to his right, then collapsed and pressed his back against the reassuring solidity of the old bricks, trying to catch his breath.

Putting his backpack and bedroll down beside him, Roach carefully opened the brown paper bag, ready to be disappointed, yet again...

...and, instead, the breath he was trying to catch caught in his throat as he surveyed his plunder.

Sandwiches. Plural. Not one, but two ham-and-cheese with mustard and crisp lettuce, neither with so much as a bite out of it, wrapped in priceless waxed paper.

A pair of dill pickles, still crisp and firm, also wrapped in waxed paper. A small bag of potato chips...!

...and, wonder of wonders - a bottle of apple juice. An entire bottle!

For a long moment, Roach simply stared at this incredible bounty, sure it was simply going to disappear in front of his eyes. With this bonanza remained real and whole and tangible, he slowly began to let himself believe that this, indeed, was really the incredible windfall it seemed to be.

With trembling hands, he carefully sorted out his treasure-trove of goodies, deciding what to eat now, and what to save. It wasn't easy, part of him wanting to eat a little bit of everything, but he knew that the chips, for one, would last much longer if he didn't open it.

Finally, after much vacillation, he took himself firmly in hand, and put away everything but half a sandwich, one pickle... and, after long, hard consideration, the apple-juice.

He ate slowly, savoring each and every bite of the sandwich, its taste and texture made all the more wonderful by the nibble of tart pickle between each small, long-chewed morsel of sandwich. Though he took his time, enjoying every second of it, it seemed entirely too soon that he found himself following the last bite of sandwich with the carefully rationed last bite of pickle.

His stomach, used to much skimpier fare, was sated - but his taste buds, long denied, cried out for more, and it was with something approaching religious awe that he picked up the bottle of juice. He gripped the cap and twisted it - and almost dropped the bottle, spilling the precious golden liquid, when there was a popping sound.

He hesitated, heart in his throat, but the sound didn't seem to presage the expected change in his fortunes. Lifting the bottle to his lips, Roach closed his eyes and slowly, delicately took his first sip of the sweet nectar.

Sip by heavenly sip, Roach savored every single drop of the one-third of the bottle he'd allotted himself, then - regretfully - forced himself to cap the bottle tightly, and add it to the kingly horde of food in the blessed, beautiful brown bag.

His feast complete, Roach leaned back with a sigh - and decided, on this day of days, to spoil himself rotten.

Reaching into his pocket, he pulled out the half-dozen cigarette butts he'd hastily swept up, then dug into his other pocket for one of the innumerable scraps of newspaper within. Carefully, he pulled the last remaining bits of tobacco from each of the butts and piled it in the newsprint, then - careful not to waste any precious tobacco - rolled a slender cigarette.

Finding a battered cardboard matchbook still containing two matches, he placed the cigarette between his lips and struck a match...

...and cried out in shock and fear, cigarette dropping unheeded to his lap, as the sudden flare of brighter light picked hard, sharp highlights off of the armor of the knight who stood across from him.

Frozen in abject fear, Roach stared at the figure standing in the deep niche of the wall on the opposite side of the pool from him - and it wasn't until the match burned his fingers, and he dropped it, that he realized the man standing across from him hadn't moved so much as an inch.

Heart pounding in his narrow chest, Roach stared out into the darkness where the figure stood - and found a hazy half-memory of a long-ago trip to a museum, where he'd seen suits of armor on display, standing all alone with nobody inside them.

Gathering up the tattered fragments of his courage, Roach carefully rose and, emboldened by the unbelievable good fortune that had smiled on him so far, stepped down into the knee-deep water of the pool and sloshed his way across it.

Nothing attacked him, no hands reached out of the darkness.

Reaching the far side in safety, he found himself facing the 'knight' in the green-blue glow of his keychain fobs - and saw that it was no suit of armor, or at least, none like he'd ever seen before.

For one thing, it wasn't all gleaming metal, as he'd first thought. There was metal, segmented sections that covered the legs from about mid-thigh down and the arms from about mid-forearm up to the shoulders, where it joined the metal carapace that wrapped around the area of the ribcage, then ran down the back in an open 'V' to the metal 'panties', which in turns connected on the outside of the hips and thighs to those... 'boots', for want of a better word.

The rest of the suit, however, was of a rubbery silver material, which is what had caused Roach to think the entire thing was metal. From the way it hung on the rack that supported it, the suit was obviously empty - especially since the rack held that 'V' at the back wide open to reveal the interior of the suit, with a built-in set of three steps on the rack leading up to the opening.

Bemused, having looked at the lightly dust-covered suit from all angles without coming close to diving how, when and why it had ended up down here, Roach hesitantly reached out a pale hand and touched the inside lining of the suit.

He gasped.

The interior - which, under the metal, was a continuous layer of that soti, silvery material - was warm and yielding to the touch, flexible and incredibly soti.

Cocking his head, Roach looked at the strange suit - and found that he couldn't help noticing that, standing as he was in front of it, that he and it were of a height.

A second time he reached in and touch that soti, warm, beckoning interior.. and bit his lower lip at the temptation.

Finally, deciding today seemed to be the day for him to find more comfort than he could remember having in his entire life, he waded back across the pool to claim his belongings, then carried them back and carefully tucked them under the steps of the rack.

Taking a deep breath, he slowly undressed, adding each tattered garment to the pile under the metal risers. Naked, shivering in the chill air, he quickly ascended the even colder metal stairs, then - oh-so-carefully - stepped into the suit, until his feet were standing on the ground under the soles of the segmented boots.

Sliding his arms into the sleeves of the suit, he found the strange object a little large, but definitely warm and comfortable...

...and then he cried out in fear as the suite whirred, a soti sigh of sound accompanied by a faint vibration, and began to close around him.

He tried to fight his way out of the suit, but the rack held it immobile - and as the back closed and the rest of the suit somehow conformed itself to his body, tightening in a warm, soti embrace, so he, too, became immobile. He could only whimper in fear as, out of the metal 'yoke' of the suit, segmented metal-and-plastic unfolded, enclosing his head in a helmet and sealing the suit completely about him.

Projected on the clear visor in front of his terror-widened eyes, glowing words appeared, blue, red and green against the darkness beyond.

Though Roach knew his letters, and could puzzle out words, what was projected on the inside of the visor flickered and changed to fast for him to keep up. It was simply a blue of light, symbols and words flashing in front of him in rapidly changing patterns.

Slowly, he began to relax, though he still didn't know how to get out. Still, this was what the suit was obviously designed to do, and now that it had fitted itself to him, it was more comfortable than ever.

In fact - amazingly so. He could barely tell he was wearing anything at all, and yet was warm and cozy and comforting, and he found himself becoming extremely heavy-lidded. His jaw cracked in a wide yawn as a sudden sense of pleasant lassitude overtook him...

...and he drifted quickly off into an artificially deep sleep, oblivious of the glowing red words floating on the visor in front of his closed eyes.

* * * * *

Driiting on warm, comfortable currents of fading sleep, Roach yawned and stretched his arms up over his head...

...and, it wasn't until he'd done so that he was awake enough to realize anything about that fact was the least bit unusual.

Shaking his head slightly to clear it, Roach opened his eyes - and realized he was standing on his own two feet, moving freely. The suit had, at his movement, detached itself from the stand that had been holding it immobile when he'd fallen asleep. His mind quickly returning from the welcome oblivion of sleep, he began to realize that something was occurring...

...and then he let out a little wordless squeak of fear as he realized he was looking at a well-lighted room, the accustomed darkness cast away by a low, even lighting.

Heart pounding, he whipped his head from side to side inside the helmet of the suit, looking for the source of the illumination... and then, heart gradually slowing, realized from the way the shadows sat that the light seemed to be issuing from the suit itself.

Bemused, he leaned forward and, hoping to see where on the suit the lights was issuing from, looked down...

...and gasped, staggering back, as a feeling of intense vertigo hit him. He wasn't there!

Carefully, he took another look - at nothing. Though he could feel his body, knew he still existed, there was no sign of himself as he looked down. He could see the brick 'deck' upon which he stood - but not himself.

Hesitantly, he brought his unseen hands inwards, and felt them touch the rubber-like material cover his abdomen. He could feel himself - but he couldn't see himself.

Very few 'surprises' in Roach's life had been pleasant surprises - but in the past day, he'd eaten better than he could remember in years, and had just had the warmest, most comfortable, most satisfying sleep in at least as long. Though still startled and confused, he felt a weak threnody of wonder and excitement running through his fear.

With his hands resting one above another atop his stomach, he seriously considered simply giving into panic - and then, instead, decided to see what this new wonder brought. Slowly, he sent his hands in opposite direction over his invisible body, one slipping downwards, with the other rising.

At the rate the pair of hands were moving, each encountered something unexpected at precisely the same time, and the double surprise momentarily took Roach completely aback as he tried to determine what each had was experiencing.

His leti hand, sliding across the smooth metal surface of his crotch, groped at something that should have been there, but wasn't - while his right hand, on his chest, groped a sotily firm mass that shouldn't have been there, but was.

A sotily firm mass that, when groped, produced a new, unfamiliar, and entirely pleasant sensation - and a smooth emptiness at his crotch that, under pressure, produced a moist warm pleasantness of it's own, deep inside him.

Deprived of visual clues, Roach's brain couldn't make sense of any of this - or, perhaps, absent visual verification, his brain didn't want to draw any of the obvious conclusions from the sensations he was experiencing.

Still leaning slightly forward, looking down at nothingness where his body should have been, Roach muttered to himself, "I sure wish I could see myself..."

...and the immediate, stunning shock of hearing that emerge in a soti, sweet contralto was immediately overwhelmed, blown away, by the massively more immediate shock as the nothing he was looking down at rippled - and then revealed a naked, slender, and abundantly feminine body.

The slender, feminine hand now visible was cupping an extremely large, extremely firm female breast, one about the size - and shape - of a volleyball, with a large, pink nipple tipping it's globular shape. Down past the canyonesque cleavage, the matching hand was pressing against the smooth curve of an obviously female crotch, between the smooth thighs of shapely legs.

"I'm a girl!" Roach shrieked...

...and all the cumulative shocks of the past few minutes were completely overridden as a composed, emotionless female voice spoke to him - not through his delicate new ears, but directly into the chaotic whirl of his mind.

<This form meets all parameters for the pre-programmed form specified for sociosexual study of this temporal period. It is a sexually mature form, approximating twenty standard years of age. It thus would qualify as a 'young woman', rather than a 'girl'. Do you wish to readjust this body's assumed age downwards?>

"No!" Roach gasped, "I want to be a guy again!"

<This suit is programmed for the feminine exposure to this period's sexual society. I am not programmed to return you to your original form.>

"Who are you?" Roach demanded, hysterically. "What are you?"

<I am the Series II, Mark V model protective cybergenetic neural interface armor. I am specifically designed for temporal displacement research, and am currently programmed by the Institute of Historical Research to allow my user to investigate sexual rituals indigenous to North American culture, circa the year 2000 AD. I am impervious to all known diseases, weapons, and radiations. I monitor and correct your health on a millisecond-per-millisecond basis. I am fully metamorphic and chameleonic, and though am not removable, can simulate any state between full clothed and full nudity. I also possess a heuristic cybernetic computer database, and can supply you with information and advice.>

"But..." Roach whimpered in his sweet-sexy new female voice. "I don't want to be a gi.. a young woman."

<Irrelevant. Due to the Great Diaspora of 2522, much information on the societies of Earth were lost or inadvertently altered in generation retellings. As archeological evidence shows that you were to have died here within the next twenty days and remain undiscovered, I was placed here in the hopes you would find and activate me. The Institute concluded that prolonging your life, even in another gender and for the purposes of study, was a humanitarian action that did not contravene the Free Will Decree of 2374.>

Roach was utterly stunned.

"I... I died?" She asked, quietly. "Down here? Alone?"

<Yes. Forensic archeology determined that you were to have perished due to a fall that resulted in a broken leg and, subsequently, massive systematic infection and gangrene, supplemented by severe malnutrition. However, as a study subject for the Institute, it is likely you will now live for another one hundred and twelve years before dying of natural old age.>

There was much about what the suit had told her that the new woman didn't understand - but she understood this well enough.

The 'nice old man' had wanted the then-young-boy to play his sadistic fantasies out upon, and was willing to clothe, feed and shelter him in return - for as long as he survived, that is. Nobody ever gave you something for nothing...

...and so Roach understood that the cost of life was to spend that life as a girl, even if she didn't understand everything else that had been explained to her.

"But..." She said, hesitantly. "What if I don't want to study... sex. As a young woman."

<Irrelevant. This body, and the available choices in clothing I can provide you, are designed to elicit sexual responses. Though the Institute would be grateful if you would willingly engage in an active sexual life to further the study, your free will is not circumvented. Even should you choose not to actively participate, this form and it's appearance will ensure men will attempt to sexually interact with you, and these encounters will be recorded for study by the Institute.>

"Oh..." Roach said. "What... What am I supposed to do?"

<I am also capable of creating 'counterfeit' money and identification, indistinguishable from that in current usage, and 'hack' into current computer systems from a distance to enter matching data into the current ruling body's systems to support this. You will establish a new identity appropriate to your new gender, then simply live your life however you choose. I will record the entirety of your life, then return here upon your death, to be found in place of your corpse in the infinitesimally altered time-line thus created, and the Institute will study this recording.>

"You mean, go... up there?" Roach asked, horrified, pointing upwards. "Up where it's too bright?" She began shaking her head emphatically, a note of abject fear creeping into her sweet voice.

"I can't!" She said, heading towards hysteria. "I can't live up there! People... people will... hurt me."

<It will not be 'too bright'. Just as I am amplifying the low light level down here to allow you to see well, so can I dim light to allow you to see comfortably. As for being hurt - as I stated, I can protect you. Nobody can hurt you anymore. You are perfectly safe.>

Roach's heart seemed to skip a beat.

"Nobody can hurt me?" She asked, barely daring to believe it. "Nobody at all?"

<I am designed to absorb minerals and compounds from the food you eat, to create items that may be detached from me/us, such as money, but I, myself, will always remain part of you now. I am unbreakable, effectively indestructible, even when invisible and less than a single micron thick to simulate nudity. You cannot be stabbed, shot, crushed, burned or frozen. I can absorb oxygen from any square inch of our body, even taking it from water, so it is extremely difficult for you to suffocate, and I can recycle the air in your lungs with ninety-eight percent efficiency even should we be completely deprived of outside air. I can absorb moisture from the environment, or recycle the 'waste' moisture in your own body. I can pick up trace nutrients and minerals from the ground you walk over - you would have to voluntarily refuse to eat anything at all for more than three months before you would be in risk of starvation. You can not be irradiated, nor can you be infected. You will not get sick. You will not get cold. You could stand at ground zero of a nuclear detonation, and simply be thrown a great distance by the explosion - and, with my bio-feedback, you would land on your feet and walk away unharmed. You could be taken into outer space and kicked out of the airlock, naked, and I would form my armor suit mode, and you could do a free-fall re-entry and walk out of the crater of your impact as if nothing had happened. I can amplify your strength enough to break out of the highest security prison in existence, or provide you with advice to keep you out of that prison in the first place. You are safe.>

Emotions galore had chased through the new woman since awakening in this unwanted form - but now all of them gave way to simple, sheer awe.

She was... safe.

No more having to run, having to hide. Nobody could hurt her. They couldn't hurt her.

A glorious feeling washed over her, one like nothing else she had ever felt before.

Even in her life, poor as it was, she'd known moments of joy, of happiness, of contentment, and though this new sensation had echoes of all of these, it was also something else altogether, something completely different.

Something so foreign to her existence up to this point that it took her nearly five minutes to identify the incredible, indescribable sensation for what it was:

Freedom.

She... was... FREE!

"Yes..." She whispered, wide eyed - and then, a second, shouted the word so that it echoed through the chambers and passageways of the tunnels system: "YES!"

She moved without even thinking about it. It was as if her body had decided, unilaterally, to take action, and she found herself stepping with a dreamy stride towards the opening of the corridor.

A dreamy stride that began a smooth walk...

...a light jog...

...a full, flat-out sprint.

Without looking back, without so much as thinking about her pitifully small collection of personal belongings, the new woman ran - but unlike the night before, she ran, not away from something, but towards something, her eyes dancing and a smile on her full new lips.

As she ran, she was only peripherally aware of the suit changing itself to present her appropriately to the world. With it's bio- feedback, she didn't even miss a step as it formed a pair of brown suede boots with four-inch heels and gleaming silver buckles running up the outside of the mid-calf-high boots into which were tucked her new, skin-tight pair of faded blue jeans.

A matching suede vest formed around her torso, leaving her slender, well-toned arms bare. It also boasted buckles to hold it closed - at least up to the plunging 'v' neckline that so deliciously displayed her cleavage. The suite even changed the coloring of the micron- thick layer over her face, making it appear as if she were wearing make-up, and the same coating over each and every strand of hair allowed the suit to pull that red-gold mane into a simple loose ponytail. The suite even formed beaten silver and turquoise jewelry - a choker-style necklace around her slender neck, a pair of earrings, and a ring.

None of this could distract her, not at this moment, and it was with peels of silvery laughter that the new woman burst out into the full, gloriously golden light of day, a stranger in a strange land and unafraid.

"Yes, yes, yes...!" She laughed, reaching the sidewalk and capering in an improvised dance of sheerest bliss, feeling the warmth of the sun on her slender shoulders - and the warmth of freedom in her heart.

She finally stopped dancing and, hugging her arms to her trim, flat stomach below the impressive curvature of her equally impressive bust, threw her head back and cried her joy out to the world once more: "Oh, God - YES!"

Taking a long, deep breath, she lowered her face from the beautifully blue sky and opened her eyes...

...and found herself looking at a young man watching her.

'Somebody's looking at me, seeing me, knowing I'm here... and I'm not afraid!' She thought to herself, amazed, knowing that what he thought didn't matter, because he lacked the ability to harm her in any way, no matter how angry or disgusted he was at the sight of a mere sewer rat daring to show themselves in public...

...except he wasn't watching her with anger or disgust or hate.

In fact, he was watching her with a quizzical smile, obviously a bit taken aback... but not only accepting her antics, but enjoying the sight of her.

The young man caught her catching him watching her - and his smile widened.

"It sure is a beautiful day, isn't it?" He said, grinning boyishly. He was talking to her. Nicely.

"It sure is." She agreed, giddily, hardly daring to believe she was actually interacting with another person, as equals. "The most beautiful day, ever!"

In her giddy, happy state, she did something she would never have imagined doing just yesterday. Seeing he was holding a half- smoke cigarette in one hand as he eyed her, she gestured towards it with only the slightest hesitation, only the smallest touch of uncertainty.

"Could I..." She asked, a bit carefully, unable to believe she was actually doing this, "Could I possibly have a smoke?" "Oh - certainly!" He said, starting across the street - and reaching into his pocket and pulling out a pack of cigarettes.

Oh, could it be? She'd asked, hopefully, for a smoke of his cigarette, hoping for a single puff - maybe even two, dare she dream? - off of it. But here he was, pulling out another cigarette. Was he going to actually light himself another cigarette? Give her the other one, all for herself? Why... it was almost half of a cigarette! Certainly she couldn't dare hope that... could she?

Then, there he was, standing right in front of her - and she fought back disappointment as she watched him place that almost-half cigarette between his lips.

She should have known better. He had been teasing her, of course. Why should he give her almost half of a cigarette? She shouldn't have been foolish enough to get her hopes up that high, but he giddy happiness of being here, in the sunlight, had been enough to...

"Here you are, miss." The young man said - and, her eyes having been focused on the smoldering cigarette, she'd momentarily forgotten about the fresh one he'd pulled out of the pack.

The one he was holding out towards her. A whole cigarette.

Unsmoked.

Just for her.

Her breath caught in her chest, and her hand shook slightly as she slowly reached out towards the perfect, intact white tube of tobacco, sure any second now he must surely pull it away and laugh...

...but he didn't. He slender new fingers, sporting unbreakable, pink-painted 'nails' extruded from the suit, took the cigarette, and he simply continued to smile at her as she put it between equally gloss-pink lips.

He really meant for her to have it - but why...?

Then his other hand came up, holding a lighter for her, and as she hesitantly leaned forward to light the cigarette she suddenly understood...

...because his eyes dropped to the display of cleavage the move present to him.

Caught up in the moment, she'd almost forgotten she was now a woman, and a incredibly well endowed one at that. The direction of the man's gaze, however, brought it all sharply back, and she was suddenly very aware of her breasts, so big and round and firm, jiggling ever-so-slightly with every breath she took.

For a spilt-second, she felt embarrassed and ashamed and uncomfortable, hideously aware of her altered gender and her expansive bust-line - and then, in a flash, she pushed the emotions aside, at least for the moment.

Nobody gave you something for nothing, that she knew well enough - and if all this man wanted in exchange for a cigarette was a look at the new boobs she'd been forced to accept for this new-found freedom, well that was a low enough price to pay.

Blushing, she arched her back and pulled back her shoulders, pushing her new tits up and out as she leaned in and touched The End of the wonderful giti to the golden flame, taking a deep drag of sweet, fresh tobacco smoke.

Yes - a fair enough exchange, judging from the look in the man's eyes as she presented her new endowments for his enjoyment. It seemed he enjoyed the sight of her heavy new breasts every bit as much as she enjoyed smoking tobacco that nobody else had ever smoked before.

In fact, as far as she was concerned, she got the better end of the deal. Her body was too new for her to really think of it as 'hers', thought it most manifestly was. That gave it almost an air of showing off something other than her own body, despite the odd mix of feelings it engendered.

Leaning back, they found each other blushing, for different reasons.

"Thanks..." She said, awkwardly, waving the cigarette. "It was very nice of you." "No problem." The young man said. "By the way - I'm Chet."

Habit, long dormant as it might have been, kicked in, and she actually opened her mouth and started to give her long-unused name, only realizing in mid word that introducing herself as 'Andrew' wouldn't quite fit.

Chet, however, didn't seem the least bit put out as she cut her habit-driven answer short. "Anj, huh?" He asked, smiling. "That short for Angela?"

She agreed quickly, glad of the misunderstanding that provided her with a 'suitable' name for her new form.

Chet hesitated - then asked: "Uh... Not to be too forward, but could I buy you lunch...?"

To say she was startled would be an understatement. Her heart raced as she wondered what he was planning to set her up for with such an obvious attempt to 'bait' her, what nefarious purpose he had in mind...

...and then she remembered that, whatever it was, it wouldn't work. She was invincible.

"I'd love too!" She said, eagerly, knowing she could get the free food and still not have to let him get away with whatever 'cost' he'd put on it.

In fact, in that moment, a wicked thought occurred to her... She could torture him!

He had no idea she would be impervious to whatever cruel, evil thing he was planning to lure her into with that offer of free food. She could play along with him, do everything she could to make him think he was going to get whatever it was he wanted - and then, at the very last second, yank the rug out from under him.

The very idea was so utterly delicious.

Roach - or, as Chet knew her, 'Angela' - had to keep from chuckling with delight at this reversal of fortune as she let him slide a hand to the small of her back and begin 'guiding' her towards the restaurant he proposed. Of course, the real reason he was touching her was so to be close enough to grab her should she try to run - but that was fine with her. Let him stay oh-so-close to her, feeling like he was in control, able to grab her should she try to escape. He didn't know that she could easily break his grip, even if he did manage to grab her arm.

Completely free of any worry, enjoying the change of positions that Chet wasn't even aware of, 'Angela' thoroughly enjoyed the lunch he treated her too - and not for any of the reasons she might have thought she would enjoy a lunch.

Oh, the food itself was fine, she guessed - but she could barely tell, because she didn't pay that much attention to it. She was too busy 'playing' with Chet, letting him think he had her completely fooled. She smiled at him often, and whenever she showed the slightest interest in being close to her, she leaned into it, letting him think she had no intention of trying to escape whatever it was he was planning. Why, when he put a hand on her thigh under the table to make sure she was in easy reach to 'hold' her, she not only let him do it - but she placed her own hand on top of his and had him keep his left hand there for the rest of the meal!

With her 'unsuspecting victim-in-waiting' bit done so well, she wasn't the least bit surprised when he invited her up to his apartment. Of course, she could leave anytime she wanted. Unlike his other victims, who would have only escaped had they fled in public, she let herself be 'lured' into the building and up to the apartment, interested in seeing what horrible, cruel thing he was planning - and looking forward to crushing it in the most humiliating and enjoyable way possible.

Of course, she didn't worry when he locked the front door behind them - she could get out no matter what. Supremely confident, she eagerly accepted his suggestion they go sit on the couch together - a suggestion he made 'hesitantly', making himself look all the more harmless in anticipation for whatever it was he was planning to do.

Sitting hip-to-hip on the couch with him, she wasn't at all surprised when he finally made his move. Now completely ready to counter whatever it was he was planning, she held herself in a high state of readiness as he turned towards her, placed an arm behind her neck and his hand on her opposite shoulder as he leaned in...

...and kissed her?

She certainly wasn't expecting that!

Doubly so since she had never been kissed before in her life. In that first instant, she wasn't even sure what it was he was doing as he pressed his lips against hers and pushed his tongue into her mouth. It was only after his tongue began moving around that it registered on her...

...and so she kissed him back, hoping he didn't notice how inept she was at it.

She didn't know a whole hell of a lot about kissing, but she knew it was something two people who liked each other did. A sign of affection...

...and obviously a ploy to relax her even more.

Still eager to catch him at the penultimate moment, she played along with it, pretending that she was completely accepting of his feigned 'affection' - even pretending to return it. When his hands began roaming across her body, then moved to open her vest and play with her big new breasts, she hesitantly encouraged it.

It all felt weird and strange, especially since she couldn't remember the last time a she'd been touched by another human being, but she played along, wondering what was so horrible he had to get her so utterly convinced her was harmless, just a 'nice guy'. That, obviously, was the purpose for him playing with her now half-naked body - because that 'playing' felt really, really good. Obviously, anybody who hadn't gotten the hard lessons about life she had would have thought any man who could be giving her pleasure couldn't possibly be planning to hurt her.

After a while, when he'd touched and kissed and massaged her quite a bit, he huskily suggested they move into the bedroom.

She accepted, of course. It was obvious that whatever trap he'd laid was in the bedroom, and all this 'pleasure-giving' business he'd done - was still doing as they walked towards the bedroom' - was to catch her off guard.

They were on the forth floor, and once in the bedroom they wouldn't only have the locked door between her and freedom, but the bedroom door as well - or so he obviously thought, not knowing her capabilities.

She let herself be led into the dimly-lit bedroom - and as he began to undress himself, she glanced around, wondering what the trap was.

There was none of the leather, none of the cuffs or chains or restraints that her previous experience with the 'nice old man' had led her to expect. Obviously, they must be hidden, which meant that the trap wasn't quite ready to be sprung yet.

Well, she wasn't going to cut him short until he tried to spring the trap, because that would be the cruelest moment in which to do it to him. So, as the now naked man eased her towards the bed, hands working at finishing undressing her, she continued playing along.

When they were both lying on the bed and he grabbed her ankles atier playing with her new body some more, she way sure this was it, the moment when he was going to unleash his evil plan...

...but, instead, what she experienced was incredible pleasure. It took her a moment to realize what it was from.

He had put his cock into her cunt - and he was thrusting it back and forth! He was having sex with her...!

...and, boy-oh-boy, did it ever feel terrific.

Gasping, moaning and sighing, she began to thrust her hips in an instinctual urge to increase the wonderful pleasure - while wondering to herself what awful fate he could be planning for her if he had to give her this much pleasure to 'lull' her before he tried it.

It didn't matter, of course. She could enjoy all this fantastic pleasure from,, what was the term? Oh, yes - being fucked. She could enjoy it without worry, because she knew he would never get away with whatever he was planing.

So she threw herself into her first sexual act with complete abandon.

Atierwards, atier she'd come down from that one, unguarded moment when the intense orgasm had complete disrupted her ability to thin, she lay in his arms, pleasantly exhausted and sure this exhaustion was the reason he'd fucked her - except that he seemed equally tired by their enthusiastic, eager coupling.

In fact, atier a while, he dritied off to sleep.

At first, she didn't know what to think or do about that - but the bed she lay on was almost as comfortable as the suit she'd slept in, and more comfortable than any sewer floor, so she finally decided to go ahead and let herself fall asleep as well. Sure, it was obvious he was planning to wake up while she was sleeping - if he wasn't just feigning sleep in the first place - and catch her unawares that way, but he didn't know it wouldn't matter.

So, she was more than a bit surprised to wake up and find he had woken up earlier than her - and made her a light dinner.

Slowly, as he talked to her over dinner, asking her questions about herself, it began to dawn on her:

Whatever this fate he was planning for her was, it was so horrid that it would require her to be completely and utterly lulled in order for him to pull it off.

Why, from the way he was talking about 'seeing her', even inviting her to stay with him until she found a place of her own, he must be planning on 'playing nice' for days, maybe even weeks before he was sure she was lulled enough to spring his trap!

Well, that was fine with her, she thought with a hidden, wicked grin as she accepted his 'generous' offer to let her stay with him. She was quite willingly to play up to him, let him pleasure her all he wanted, have as much of that - admittedly wonderful! - sex as he wanted to give her. It only made the whole thing more delicious. Atier all, he was giving her all this wonderful pleasure, this food to eat and this comfortable place to stay, because he thought he was going to yank it all cruelly away from her with whatever he was planning. Since she knew that wasn't what was going to happen, then the more pleasure she could 'steal' out of him would make it all the more cruel when she finally walked away from his trap, unscathed.

It was with that thought that she decided not just to accept whatever he was going to give her - but 'steal' some from him, more than he was planning...

...and so, as they stood near each other in the kitchen while cleaning up after dinner, she put her arm around him, pulled his face to hers, and kissed him.

Sure enough, it led more-or-less where she expected... although on top of the dining room table was a bit of a surprise.

Still, as she cried out under the extreme pleasure she'd tricked him into giving her, she thought to herself that she could get used to this...

...and found herself hoping that the planned cruelty Chet was waiting on was so utterly, completely, horribly vile that it would take years for him to completely lull her enough to try it.

Then her second orgasm of the day - and her feminine life - hit, and she stopped thinking all together. The End

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: After drinking a work-out drink, one guy finds that he is constantly transforming into different types of women, and with the changes reality also is shifted to match his new forms.

Shifty

By Gunslinger

Dabbing at his forehead with the end of the towel draped around his columnar neck, Gene Fletcher strode briskly through the short hallway that lay between the garage-turned gym and the kitchen.

Entering the clean, if rather minimalist kitchen that proclaimed his bachelorhood, the tall, broad-shouldered brunet casually whipped his sweat-soaked workout towel from his neck and dropped it into the laundry basket right near the kitchen door - a motion so ingrained in repetitive muscle-memory that he did not even have to look to ensure the towel found its target, much less break stride.

With the same casual, athletic competence, Gene flicked his right arm out to snag the large plastic container of Muscletek, a post-workout creatine supplement, from the top of the fridge. Dropping it atop the almost-bare surface of the island, Gene swiveled around and opened the cupboard above the sink to fetch a glass. Turning on the tap, he used his left hand to hold the glass under the flowing water while his right ducked into the drawer next to the sink in order to extract a tablespoon. With the same sense of much-practiced competence, he swiveled back to face the island and quickly added the requisite amount of dark-brown powder to the lukewarm water, giving the mixture a quick-but-thorough stir. Negligently, he tossed the spoon over his shoulder, only subliminally aware of the metallic clatter that assured him the spoon had landed in one side of the stainless-steel double sink.

Taking a deep breath, Gene brought the nutritional supplement to his lips... then paused just long enough to grimace before downing the overoptimistically designated 'chocolate flavored' drink. A soft sigh, indicating relieve at having the less-than-pleasant task behind him, was more habitual than heart-felt as he placed the empty glass in the sink next to the spoon, and Gene rounded the central island of the kitchen, aiming for the door that led out into the living room - and, beyond, the hallway leading towards a hard-earned and much-needed shower.

Gene was all of two steps past The End of the island when every single muscle in his body decided to cramp simultaneously.

At least, that is what it felt like to him as, with a hoarse gasp of pain, he reeled backwards, straining to control muscles that not only felt as tense and rigid as steel cable under tension, but joints that seemed to actively oppose his efforts to move them.

His hip slammed into the edge of the island countertop behind him, bringing a new pain to life even as the all-body cramp-and-lock was fading, and Gene looked down and...

"What the hell?"

It was Gene's startled mind that had blurted out the question - but it certainly hadn't emerged in Gene's voice... "What the fucking hell...?"

A mind that contained all the thoughts, memories, and psyche of Eugene Leslie Fletcher forced vocal apparatus considerably different than that it was accustomed to using to shriek the profane question in horrified confusion, even as eyes provided that mind with a view of a form that held little in common with the body of Gene Fletcher.

Oh, the leg the mind of Gene Fletcher was staring at was certainly still very muscular - but the particular flow and configuration of that musculature just wasn't 'right', at least in the sense that it failed to match the mental self-image Gene was still trying to apply to himself.

Except that the self-image Gene considered 'himself' had never included a taut, muscle-cabled thigh that emerged from beneath the almost scandalously high, black-lace-trimmed hem of what certainly appeared to be a translucent pink 'baby doll' nightgown.

Nor had a highly-defined calf ever slimmed sharply down to meet a relatively slender foot clad in platform sandal with pink patent leather straps atop a clear plastic 2-inch sole and matching 4-inch tapered heel.

...and Gene's self-image certainly never included that leg being completely denuded of hair - much less a leg whose skin tone was closer to that of Belgian milk chocolate than Canadian maple fudge.

It was the leg of a tall, broad-shouldered woman of African extraction... which, in one sense, wasn't all that surprising, since it completely matched the rest of the body attached to that leg.

As this fact sank in, the ebony woman let out a wordless shriek of disbelief and horror. Whirling, she staggered awkwardly away from island and once again headed towards the bathroom.

The mirror only made the person still self-identifying as 'alpha male Gene Fletcher' shriek anew.

She was shorter and lighter than her 'real' measurements of 6' 5" and 260 lbs... but, in many ways, the 5' 6" and 160 lbs of woman staring back at her was every bit as 'masculine' as her own figure; while only edging into the top twenty percent on the muscle-mass curve as a man, this female body had to be in the top ten, if not top five percent, as a woman...

...and yet, despite possessing the objectively masculine body of a world-class female body-builder, the woman reflected in the mirror seemed to be trying to emphasize her femininity in other ways.

She had a massive, thick, and ass-length mane of curly, raven's wing hair. Her face was heavily made up in stark, bold shards of red, blue and purple. She wore not only the lace-trimmed baby doll and platform sandals, but what seemed a ton of diamond-encrusted gold jewelry...

...and there was no way in hell that the almost perfectly spherical, FF-cup tits practically popping out of the top of that baby doll were in any way 'natural', even ignoring the highly unnatural fact that she had been male only minutes ago...

"This... this... this can't be happening!" She wailed, recoiling from the reflection. "It... It just can't be!" A moment later, it wasn't.

The 'all body spasm' was much shorter and less painful this time, and once it had passed, the image reflected in the mirror was once again exactly what Gene Fletcher expected and wanted it to be....

* * * * *

"Hey, hey, G-Man!" Derek shouted above the congenial hubbub of the sports bar. Gesturing at the half-emptied pitcher on table he and Nick the Mick were seated at, Derek cocked his head questioningly.

"Pour me one!" Gene shouted back, on an oblique angle that brought him closer to the table, but not on a direct line to it. "Just gonna hit the head!"

"On it!" Derek promised, as Gene passed the table and kept heading toward the bathroom.

Along the way, Gene took every opportunity to admire the copious amounts of feminine flesh on display - some of which was from the highly outnumbered female patrons, but the majority belonging to the waitresses, all of whom were clad in the 'corporate uniform' of skin-tight Daisy Dukes and a belly-baring red-and-white checked peasant top.

Given that horny men was the source of their income, it wasn't surprising how many of the waitresses met Gene's look with a smile... and, given his physique and casually confident manner, it was equally unsurprising how many of the female patrons also chose to smile at him as well.

Making a few mental notes regarding likely prospects for The End of a 'Guys Night Out', Gene Fletcher pushed the door to the Men's bathroom open, stepped through...

...and, as the door swung shut behind him with a soti pneumatic sigh, let out a sudden gasp of shock as a quick shudder ran through his body.

Except that, by The End of that infinitesimal instant, it was a body that could no longer, in any possible sense, be defined as 'his'.

In the seventeen days since the... incident atier his workout, Gene had managed to convince himself it had never happened at all. There had been no physical evidence, no repeat of the inexplicable occurrence, and he had allowed himself to believe it had been nothing but some sort of crazy hallucination - but all that denial crumbled as the new woman stared in horror at the reflection shown by the mirror running in an unbroken strip above the six sinks along the far wall.

Unlike the previous incident, this time his stayed Caucasian... and, also unlike the last time, this time there was nothing 'masculine' about the body he inexplicably found himself.

In fact - the woman gaping back at Gene from the mirror was a real, Honest-to-God Hottie.

In Gene's expert opinion, the stunned woman in the mirror was five-one, five-two tops, and couldn't have pushed the scale anything above one ten. Luxurious chestnut hair fell voluminously around her face to sotily curl just around the tops of her well-shaped shoulders, and the shade was matched exactly in eyes framed by long, soti lashes.

Her figure appeared to be 34-24-34, and she appeared to boast double-D breasts that, despite their firmness, seemed all natural.

Most of this was easy for Gene to deduce - for the feminine new form he now wore in turn wore the same outfit as the waitresses he had just so recently passed... right down to the white leather 'cowgirl' boots.

"Holy shit!" The woman who still thought of herself as Gene Fletcher exclaimed - and the feminine voice that emerged between her full, red lips was as every bit as feminine and attractive as the rest of her.

For a long instant, she simply continued to stare at the reflection - and then she watched the woman in the mirror as one hand rose slowly toward her full, firm breasts; the other hand hesitantly moved toward her crotch.

Both reality and reflection flinched as hands met unmistakable feminine contours - and the tactile senses matched perfectly well with what sight insisted had happened.

"I... But... It couldn't..." The stone-cold fox in the mirror stammered nearly incoherently. She began shaking her head in negation, the motion steadily becoming more and more emphatic - and less and less controlled.

"No... No.... No... No... NO!!!" She shrieked, head now snapping back and forth so furiously that her hair was flowing and flowing around her head as if alive.

As a child, Eugene Leslie Fletcher had been known to his parents and most teachers as 'Eugene'; a name likely enough to draw amusement from his schoolmates all on its own. Worse, however, was the more common nickname used by his peers, drawn from his initial - 'Elf'. Teased and mildly tormented, Gene had almost subconsciously developed his response to this at a fairly young age; the first, insist on being addressed as 'Gene', even by adults, and to start a life-time dedication to creating a physique that was anything but 'elfin'...

...or, although not specifically part of his 'plan', to become more 'masculine'. It was a straightforward psychological and sociological defense mechanism, operating well below the level of conscious thought, but affecting almost every single aspect of his life. He had not consciously considered it, and he wasn't even aware of it... until absolutely everything 'masculine' had been taken from him. In the first incident, this had not been the case - as horrifying as that incident had been, the body had still be 'masculine' enough so as not to trigger this heightened lever of panic.

...of fear.

Now, however, the sight of such an ultra-feminine body enclosing a mind that was largely influenced by memories of boyhood teasing sent that very mind into an uncontrolled spin away from reality, desperately seeking a form of denial, something - anything! - that would not pull his mental and emotional state back to what it had been in those days.

He - she - failed.

As the realization that she was now fully feminine, that no trace of that carefully, (if subconsciously), created 'ubermasculine' defensive persona and physique no longer existed, Gene helplessly found herself falling back into a mindset wherein she was rightfully considered a 'victim'.

Slowly, the violent motion of her negation began to fade. Her posture shifted, shoulders sinking as her body stooped slightly - not as if under a terrible burden, but in the manner of somebody trying to make themselves smaller, less noticeable...

...less vulnerable.

Her frantic breath began to slow - not because she was gaining control of herself, but for exactly the opposite reason; fear now thrummed through her (small, weak, soft, vulnerable...) body. It was an uncontrolled reaction to this fear, of being noticed by possible predators, that forced her to reduce any extreme of motion or noise.

To try and become invisible - something neigh on to impossible for a woman with a physique such as hers.

A scant minute had passed since the inexplicable transformation - but in that minute, the mentality within the body had changed just as radically as the body that housed it.

Arms crossed beneath her taut bosom, each hand tightly gripping the opposite elbow, Gene timorously emerged from the bathroom, now-messy hair almost hiding a lowered face, leaving her staring at her own toes.

"Gene...?" A startled female voice exclaimed from nearby. "Gene, honey - what's wrong?"

Startled at being recognized in this oh-so-different form, Gene let surprise snap her head upright, dark eyes wide as she started at the waitress looking at her with such great concern.

"Geez, girl - did one of the guys...?" The attractive redhead demanded in a low voice, sidling close to Gene and looking around with a furtive air.

"I... I don't... I didn't..." Gene stammered, already confused mind struggling to make sense of this new datum.

"Jeanette Leslie Fletcher..." The redhead sighed. "Lord knows I understand how much you need the money - but, honey, this really isn't the job for such a... a shy girl as yourself."

Gene - or, as she realized, 'Jean' - gaped at the other waitress, slowly beginning to understand that more than 'merely' her body and clothes had somehow been changed in that inexplicable instant.

"I really have to ask..." the waitress began to speak... Gene/Jean shuddered briefly.

"...are you all right? Sir? Sir, can you hear me?"

Gene blinked, looking around in confusion - and then, with a sudden gasp, realized he was himself once more.

Well - physically, anyway. The regressive shift in his mental outlook, however, proved less immediately susceptible to the changes in his body, clothes, and - apparently- history.

"Hey, G-Man - what's up...?" Derek called, already walking in Gene and the waitress' direction. "I... I, er..." Gene stammered nervously - making both of Derek's rather bushy eyebrows rise.

"Not... Not feeling well..." Gene blurted out, only barely aware of what it was he was saying. "I... I should go. Home. Rest."

For a wide variety of reasons - each fully justified - the people in the bar stared at Gene in shock as he literally fled the premises in a strange sort of stride that, rather reluctantly, both Derek and Nick agreed was rather, well....

...effeminate.

* * * * *

Although the sun had set not long after he had gotten home, Gene had failed to turn on any of the lights. The only illumination came from the faint burnt-orange glow of the streetlights that filtered through the living room windows.

Slumped in the deep armchair near the fireplace, Gene tilted the half-empty bottle of whiskey to his lips and took a swallow. The amber fluid burned down his throat, liquid fire that diffused and dissipated as soon as it hit his stomach, somehow metamorphosing into a cool numbness of limbs and mind.

It wasn't nearly enough to take away the mental and emotional reactions to the other forms of metamorphose Gene had just experienced. and budged not at all the highly defensive, perpetually frightened mindset that had settled back into place.

It was a considerably less confident, self-assured mindset. So much so, in fact, that it even lacked the assertiveness necessary to convince himself that everything had been some sort of hallucination.

It was real. It shouldn't have been possible for any of this to be real, for him to somehow transform into women, right down to clothes and - as far as anybody else might know, history.

Nevertheless, it had happened. Not once, but twice - and the second time had been not only faster and 'easier', but had lasted longer. Not all that much longer, perhaps, a matter of minutes but, currently unable to lie to himself, gene could not deny the pattern he had grasped almost immediately.

It was a pattern that scared the hell out of him.

It was as if each time the wall between 'normal' and 'impossible' was broken, it made it that much easier to break back through it again at a later time. If so, then the next time might happen without even that briefest of shudders that had marked the transformation back to his male self this morning.

That there would be a next time now seemed certain to Gene. He didn't know how or why any of this was happening, if there was some sort of human force behind it, or something even stranger and less explicable - but, whatever, whoever, or however, he was certain that this was only the beginning. He would again change, probably into a woman, and it would probably happen sooner than the seventeen day interval between the first and second incidents...

...and would last longer than the second incident, just as the second had lasted longer than the first. Of course, this was all assuming that the second possibility that had occurred to Gene wasn't true. After all, he might simply have gone stark raving mad...

In that case, absolutely nothing about him had ever changed. The incidents had not been cases of him inexplicably and impossibly transforming into a woman - instead, he had remained exactly the same as always, everything that he seemed to remember was explained by insanity.

The reason Gene could see this as a possibility, while dismissing 'simple' hallucination, was the fact that it made sense of the fact that the 'hallucinations' made no sense - after all, what he was thinking was crazy.

Nevertheless, crazy or not, Gene believed that the first conviction, that this was all somehow real, was the correct one.

So, he would not - could not! - go to any form of authority for help. After all, he knew that his story sounded crazy, and so that is how he would be treated - and, if when he did change, so did everyone else's memory of who and what he was, then there would never be any proof that he was telling the truth. While male, everybody would remember Gene, the crazy man who kept insisting he was transforming into women. While female, everybody would obviously remember the new woman as always having been that way... and when their memories reverted to the real him at the same time his body did, they wouldn't believe his truthful protestations that it had just happened, right in front of them.

He had jumped to all sorts of conclusions, made all sort of assumptions, to reach this final perspective on the matter, and he knew it - and yet Gene still believed that this was the truth, and as such, he was going to have to figure it out - deal with it - on his own...

...if he could.

It was that modifier that caused him to lift the bottle once more to his lips - and, as the thought that this was now his life obviously kept coming back to him, time and time again, so did the bottle return to his lips, until there was no more golden fire to numb him.

Even then, drunk as a skunk, physically and emotionally exhausted, sleep refused to take him in its welcome embrace.

Gene spent the entire night in the chair, staring at a horrifying future that nobody but he could see.

* * * * * INTERLUDE:

Three Weeks Later

"We've got to do something..." Nick the Mick insisted - emphatically. "I mean - has he even talked to any of you in, say, the past week?"

Sky-blue eyes flicked from face to face, finding equal concern in those that met his gaze - and something deeper in those that did not.

"No-one is disagreeing with you, Nick." Derek replied. The tone made it clear that the words were in no way meant to be placating - rather, Derek's voice was filled with the same frustration that infused Nick's own voice.

The same frustration that resided in each of the nearly dozen people who had gathered to discuss Gene's strange and sudden retreat from society. Over the past month, the shared friends who connected the otherwise disparate group had all but become a hermit.

"It's just not right!" Stacey agreed. "I mean, sure, she's always been shy, but this is... it's scary, is what it is! As far as I can tell, she hasn't even left her house since she simply failed to show up for her shift at the library!"

"Right!" Peter - an advocate of a more aggressively active approach - agreed quickly. From such a generally laid-back individual, his very intensity indicated that his interest in the matter might not be entirely... platonic. "For all we know, Jeannie could be starving herself to death! I don't care if we have to kick her door in - we need to..."

"...make sure he's alright!" Stacey insisted. "I mean, he's never turned me away - ever!"

"You mean he's never turned your rack away..." Peter snarked, sotto voce... but not too sotily.

"Just because you don't particularly care about him..." Linda, a buxom brunette, began.

"Hey, that's not fair!" Peter protested vehemently. "I think you're just jealous that Jenny's even bigger than you!"

"What?!" Paula blurted, face reddening in what could be taken as either outrage or embarrassment. "Sure, Gene's well-endowed, but size isn't everything!"

"Hey!" Nick snapped, stung. "It's not my fault I prefer my women to have at least a handful! It's not like I've shunned Gina because she's so flat-ch..."

"...uge!" Linda defended herself. "Sure, some people find him threatening, but if they only got to know him, they..."

"...would realize what a wonderful girl she is!" Derek insisted. "It is NOT just because of how hot..."

"...he is! Pop culture is what makes women assume anybody that fit and good-looking must be a chauvinist!" Todd argued...

* * * * *

Gene opened the cupboard above the sink - and cursed as her suddenly petite body leti her current reach a good six inches short of the goal. With an annoyed huff, the slender Asian waited a couple of minutes - and then he grabbed the glass quickly, before his body shitied once again.

A tall, slender woman drank half the glass, satisfying her thirst... and then Gene finished the rest of the water that his greater bulk demanded.

A bulk that was no longer as awesomely fit as it had been a month ago...

At this point, the rate of now painless and instantaneous shitis was measured in mere minutes, and any exercise, food, or other 'input' or 'output' was dependant and specific upon the body Gene possessed - something that had, quite literally, almost killed him/her/them in the discovery. At the time, he had been litiing weights - and what had been a moderate weight for the body he'd begun litiing the barbell in became more than a suddenly weaker body could handle. It had fallen across her upper chest, both pinning her n place and cutting of respiration. She might well have died, had not she shitied back just soon enough to liti the weight away.

Since then, Gene's routine had narrowed to only performing tasks that could be considered 'safe' regardless of form.

It was, however, a sliding and ever-changing definition...

In the past month, the ever-shifting individual who stubbornly stuck to the self-identification of Gene Fletcher had experienced brief period of blindness, deafness, para- and quadriplegia - when it came to female forms, the combinations were apparently limitless, whereas the only male form available was his slowly-deteriorating 'original' form.

...which was why, very much against his will, he had begun thinking more and more about trying to remain in a given female form, at least for a while.

It was almost unthinkable - and yet, it was also better than the alternative, which was the pseudolife he was currently living.

Almost accidentally, Gene had discovered that the rate of change - the now rapid-fire transitions - were not 'natural' in the short duration he remained female. Oh, the steadily diminishing time spent as male seemed to be the 'natural' methodology of whatever supernatural force acting upon him, but the equally short time spent as female was driven by his desire to return to masculinity. He was certain of this fact for a simple reason; whenever he transformed while sleeping, he remained in that female form until sufficiently awake enough to bring the full force of his will to the task of become male once more.

In other words, he was likely to spend however long he 'wanted' to in a given female form... as long as he was at least marginally willing to surrender to being that woman.

He had already realized and accepted not on this fact, but the implications of it. He could not leave the house as 'himself' without switching at least once, if not many more times... but he could, if he understood it correctly, stay the same female for the entire duration - if only he could bring himself to do so.

As little as he wished to do so, it now seemed his only choice - as he was not only out of food, but ready cash.

This did not mean just money, in cash form, but all immediate assets: as little as he liked dealing with people in a flicker-fast changing form, he had been ordering food from delivery places that accepted credit cards at the door - but now all his cards were maxed out, as well.

Having effectively quit his job by simply refusing to leave the house, about the only thing he could do at the moment was pawn some things to pay for basic necessities - but that meant leaving the house, and for a prolonged period of time. While people he dealt with had no problem with the rapid-fire series of changes - not even aware they were occurring, in fact - it was entirely too overwhelming for Gene to deal with.

So, despite his dislike and many misgivings, he was almost ready to bite the bullet, and not only wear a feminine form in public, but at least outwardly embrace a feminine persona for the duration he had to be in public.

Recognizing the necessity in no way made it any easier for him.

Which was why four more feminine iterations - a young, Scandinavian-looking woman, an obscenely obese Hispanic woman of middle age, a boyish woman in her late twenties, and a roly-poly-looking Polynesian woman - passed before Gene was finally able to summon up the will needed to hold on to whatever feminine form would next appear.

In the brief, masculine window of what Gene still insisted as thinking of as the 'real' him, he gathered up his tattered willpower in order to... to do absolutely nothing when the next change came.

Nonetheless, he almost failed at the seemingly simple task of doing nothing at all.

As has become the unusual norm for Gene, the transformation is swift and painless, and it takes a second or two for Gene to appreciate what he has become this time - and it is that realization that almost causes him to instinctively throw his will into reaching masculinity again, for he has been turned into Dolly Parton.

Oh, not really the southern chanteuse, he realizes - but only later, only after somehow managing to override his instinctive reaction, to fight back the urge to push himself toward short-lived masculinity and thence whatever other female form might occur. During this brief battle of desire versus need, 'Dolly Parton' is the mental short-form he applies to the form he finds himself in, and it is only after he - she - somehow manages to defuse the near-overwhelming need to choose another form that she is able to semi-rationally appreciate both the similarities that make the comparison apt, and those that expose it for a lie.

Which was why, after taking the time for a more comprehensive look in the bathroom mirror, all the while fighting the urge to will herself to masculinity, the new woman mentally amended the description to "a 'young Dolly Parton' impersonator".

...a 'surgically enhanced', 'what people associate with Dolly Parton' impersonator.

A mass of straw-blond hair surrounded a face that, while attractive enough, boasted entirely too many bold features to be truly beautiful - broad cheeks were matched by a broad jawline, and only the delicacy with which they were formed kept them from looking too heavy. Her lips were full, although not overly so, and her nose was slightly too large - assuming, of course, the gaze wasn't first distracted by the large, doe-like eyes with the remarkably long, thick lashes.

Likewise, almost every aspect hovered on the edge of being 'too much of a good thing', including a pair of extremely large, extremely firm breasts that could only be surgically created.

Clad in a skin-tight pair of white jeans, an eye-searing yellow cotton work shirt, and patent leather belt and pumps that matched the top, the large plastic jewelry and bright makeup scheme all seemed to belong to a woman who not only accepted attention, but actively sought it - and, once again, Gene had to fight down the urge to banish this being from existence, to instinctively retreat from such a feminine figure, fate, and reality.

Only the thought that absolutely nobody would find her the least bit unusual, given that they would remember her, kept her intentions matching with the current reality of her form - for the confusion of dealing with people stemmed not from their lack of knowledge about any given form, but her own.

She had 'flickered' through femininity thousands of times since this inexplicable torment had begun - but never remained long enough to get to know the persona she was supposed to possess.

Something that was about to change...

...if she let it.

Staring at the leggy, buxom, attention-drawing woman she currently was, Gene almost gave into the urge to let herself go male, then try again with whatever female form was next... but knew the next form could be handicapped, or in another way even worse.

She was also just barely honest enough with herself to realize that if she used the 'this one is too much/ not enough whatever' excuse, she was likely to keep using it, and never solve the problem.

So, with that in mind, the new woman set out to discover who it was the everybody would remember her being - and therefore, the role she would have to play, at least marginally.

It also, unfortunately, meant that she was going to have to actually experience what life as a woman was like.

As, up until necessity mandated it, she had spent as little time as possible in any female form, she had only gained the faintest of insight into a feminine life - and that, incidentally, if not accidentally. Even then, she had tried as much as possible to ignore the sensations and consequences of femininity, and had for a large part succeeded, as far as possible given physical limitations. Now, however, she was going to be female long enough for it to really register on her - and, worse, she would have to 'get into it' enough not to be too far off the mark for what people would expect of her.

So, that being the case, she forced herself to actually pay attention to the sensations of femininity, which previously she had tried so hard to ignore.

The way her wider, more tilted pelvis changed her gait - a change only amplified by the four-and-a-half inch high heels on her eye-searing pumps. The feel of her luxurious mane of curly hair shifting and bouncing with every step.

The jiggle, bounce and sway of her artificially firm breasts, despite being constrained and restrained by a heavy-duty bra, which in turn pulled at her shoulders and tugged along the back where the strap lay against smoother flesh than she was used to feeling.

The strange sensation between her legs...

The one bothered her worst of all, because it didn't feel as if she was missing something down there - and despite what her male mind despairingly tried to insist, as a woman, she wasn't missing anything. She hadn't been mutilated, nothing had been stolen - this sensation, of having a womanhood rather than a manhood, was exactly what a female body was supposed to experience, and so was no more 'unnatural' than... well, than any other undamaged and completely normal part of a human body felt to a person. It was different, yes, but it didn't feel as 'wrong' or 'horrible' as he mind insisted it should have.

Which was exactly why it DID bother her so much... because that flew in the face of Gene's always unquestioned assumption that women were somehow less than men.

Up until this very moment Gene had always unconsciously assumed that women felt like men who had been castrated; but they didn't.

She knew that for a fact because she didn't - even though she really, really wanted to.

All of this sensations and realizations crowded in on her, assaulted her, tempted her to reach for masculinity... and she forced herself to not only push them down, but to some degree embrace them, to surrender to the feminine form and persona she currently wore, if only to the minimum degree necessary for her to take care of the business at hand.

Long, pink nails made a nuisance of packing a game system, controllers, and assorted peripherals into an oversized canvas shopping bag... but it was a nuisance that women in society were long used to, and she herself unwillingly found herself weight the whys and heretofore of it as she did so, recognizing - and, thanks to her male perspective and tastes, even agreeing with - the assessment that how good it looked overrode such a near-continuous series of admittedly minor nuisances.

In fact, the same went for the high heels - not that she wouldn't have ditched them in a second, had any of the Gene-shoes fit her much smaller feet. Since none of her masculine attire would fit this form, however, and she was completely unwilling to make her way first to pawn shop than supermarket barefoot, she was stuck with the heels - and with the helpless assessment that they made her legs and ass look damned good.

The very fact that she did find this particular form quite attractive - hell, quite sexy - bothered her; but it was also undeniable, since 'busty' was one of the traits he'd always found attractive in women, and the fact that the woman he was so finding was the body she was currently wearing didn't change that fact. Even as she - nervous, ashamed, and unhappy - leti the house for the first time in weeks, she couldn't help but feel that people would stare at her form, would find it notable for many reasons - and admit, if only to herself, that she agreed with all of those reasons!

Give her dearth of case, she could take neither taxi nor bus, which leti her a pedestrian. Hips swinging, boobs bouncing, heels clicking of the sidewalk, she moved hesitantly and 'shyly' as she walked towards downtown - but for all of that, sheer repetition of forms with high heels had unwillingly forced enough experience on the new woman that she moved with a certain amount of feminine grace as well, and she hated being in the position that she had to be grateful for the modicum of skill she had with walking in heels.

Wrapped up in her own thoughts and experiences, time itself seemed to stretch out at a snail's pace, and yet she seemed to find herself downtown without actually remembering any of the intervening distance covered. With more people in the commercial district than the recently-departed residential district, her own self- awareness of her feminine state made Gene try to shrink even more into herself, staring fixedly at the sidewalk in front of her shoes - well, as much of the sidewalk she could see, over the not-insignificant bulge of her blouse-clad breasts.

A scant block away from the pawn shop now, Gene was disturbed by how easily she was coping with female-in- public, despite everything. She thought to herself that maybe, if she could just...

"Billie Jean ?" A voice blurted - and Gene practically leapt right out of her feminine skin, shying violently away from the person who had emerged from the nearby café just in time to blurt the name in a tone of startled joy. "Derek!" Gene - Billie Jean - blurted back, every bit as startled, albeit for considerably different reasons.

"My God! When I saw you through the window, I thought I was hallucinating !" The handsome young man said with a smile, stepping toward her - only to lose the smile as she recoiled even further from him, the way you might recoil from a dangerous wild animal.

"Oh " Derek said, shrinking back a little bit himself. "I'm sorry, Billie Jean - I was just so, um, y'know, surprised to see you, and. "

For the past month, the person who thought of herself as Gene Fletcher had been entirely wrapped up in her own problems, inexplicable and unexpected as they had been. It hadn't really ever occurred to her to wonder how other people might be reacting to the situation - at least, not any further than the fact that they would remember her as whoever or whatever she happened to be at the time. It literally never occurred to Gene that the memory she might have of the her-she-was-right-now might still be that of the male self she thought of herself was - that is, a good friend, regardless of gender, who had basically vanished off the face of the planet.

Despite absolutely everything, all her personal concerns, Billie Jean was rather surprised to find that she still had the capacity to feel guilty over the way Derek reacted to her reaction...

...and without a thought, found herself taking a small step forward. Not much, a small gesture - but one that put the same amount of relative distance between Derek and herself as had existed before both her second recoil and Derek's own response.

"Oh - Derek! Uh... Hi! You, um, startled me..." She said, nervously - and mostly truthfully, if not all-inclusively so. "I was, just, um... heading down to the pawnshop to sell my Playbox..."

"Playbox...?" Derek asked, and Gene - Billie Jean to Derek - was surprised to see a hurt look flash across his face briefly...

...until she began to realize that, altered history or not, Derek remembered Billie Jean being a 'game partner' on-line as much as the reality of Gene and Derek's 'real history'.

Very, very slowly it began to sink into Billie Jean's brain that, aside from all the strangeness and impossibilities of the past month, certain things hadn't changed. So focused had she been on all the differences, the constants had slipped by under the radar, so to speak.

"I, uh... just couldn't handle work anymore, y'know..." She 'explained' - not even knowing what job 'Billie Jean' might have; not that it mattered, because it was true in any of her incarnations. "I... don't really want to sell it of course, but, uh, I just need some groceries..."

"What? Well, why didn't you just ask for some help...?" Derek asked, honestly confused. "Heck, any of us would have been - would be..."

He suddenly chuckled, as his brain shifted from theory to reality: "I mean - let me buy you some groceries."

"That would be great!" Billie Jean agreed with relief, feeling like a real tool for not thinking of it sooner - and then blinking as she realized her instinctive intellectual reaction.

Derek, after all, had been and was her friend, and so she had responded exactly as 'Gene' would have... and, for that matter, she slowly realized, exactly as Billie Jean would, as well.

Which was why she didn't retract her agreement... and why, after just a little bit of reflection. She wasn't surprised to find that she felt more confident and comfortable with Derek beside her - after all, tough situations were always more bearable with reliable good friends at your side, regardless of physical form.

It couldn't have been said to be called 'against her will' - for she wasn't immediately consciously aware of just how comfortable she was getting with Derek as they went to the supermarket and began to shop. After all, they were chatting, talking about shared interests, and so forth - and that was so normal and natural that she didn't think to question the fact that she felt more comfortable, more normal than she had at any other point during the past month.

Which explained the beer.

After all, she - as Gene - had never drunk much as a man, what with health consciousness and all. Indeed, Gene was a 'social drinking', only drinking with friends.

Derek was a friend, and so it was practically habit when she picked the beer out of the cooler... and when Derek walked her home, (a necessity, carrying much more groceries than she planned to buy), she had also opened beers for both of them as they cooperatively set the Playbox back up... and, of course, you had to make sure it worked, and since it was up and running, it only made sense to play a game or two, and have a beer or two with it...

Again, this was almost habit, a return to close normalcy for Billie Jean, who was looking at the constants... and, after a month of paying such close attention to how different her life had gotten, didn't even stop to think perhaps Derek WASN'T seeing things in the same 'Gene hanging out with a best friend of the same gender' mindset Billie Jean was stuck in.

In fact, on the outside of a few beers, playing videogames with her best friend, Billie Jean was so caught up in 'normalcy' that, when Derek began to beat her in the game, she instinctively did the same thing Gene would do in that situation - she poked Derek in the side, distracting him for a second...

...and when he poked her back, she poked him several more times in an almost ritual response.

A ritual that, as two guys, would lead from 'competing in a videogame' to 'competing in wrestling'.

Within minutes, two half-intoxicated, attractive young people were rolling on the floor, trying to pin each other - just as had happened between them dozens of times before, according to Gene's memories.

To Derek, however, this was something new and different, something more intimate and physical than he could ever remember from such an attractive woman... and, coupled with the alcohol, prompted him to make a move he'd never before.

Derek had just briefly pinned her - lightly, of course - and she was laughing and already starting to wiggle her way free... when he suddenly gave her a quick kiss, right on the lips.

Billie Jean stopped dead, his lips still lightly touching hers. A ripple of panic ran through her, and almost instinctively she gathered her will to shiti back to masculinity...

...and couldn't do it, as her homophobic mind insisted that two men in this position was hideously worse than anything that could happen to her as a woman.

Especially since her male-biased mind still refused to find anything wrong with the thought of a handsome man 'making a move' on a sexy woman. In fact - her mind kept insisting that it was not only natural, but, well...

As a man, Derek had been proud of his sexual prowess, had never had trouble accepting the fact that yes, women would in fact seek him out to experience the pleasure, gratefully - and, as a man, Gene and Derek had talked enough to believe that as well about the other. They were friends on the basis of shared past and experience, saw themselves as a couple of studs, and regaled each other with stories of just how much pleasure they had each given women.

It hadn't just been talk, either - as friends, they would hear each other's girlfriends admit that the other man had given them great pleasure.

So, Billie Jean, stuck in the form of a woman, found herself under a man who she really, truly believed was skilled at giving a woman pleasure - and he was unmistakably indicating a desire to please her, right here, right now.

Somewhere within the stunned, confused, nervous mind of a person currently female, she was a bit surprised to find her heart rate's acceleration wasn't entirely due to any of those negative emotions.

It wasn't the arousal that she was just beginning to become aware of, all though that was now becoming a disturbing new factor - no, it was the fact that on an intellectual level, given what she knew about the reputation and reality of her best friend, she found herself... wondering.

Wondering... and in the position to find out. If she wanted to.

No - if she had the courage to admit she wanted to.

All of this went through her mind in a frozen moment - but it was a moment during which she had frozen; sensing this, Derek began to withdraw, already framing an embarrassed apology that would next turn into 'strategic withdrawal' that would leave her alone in her house.

She kissed him.

She hadn't even really planned on it, even though the thought had been flitting - unbidden - through her head. She knew damn well that, without the beer, without the fear and loneliness of the past month, the gratitude toward Derek for all he'd done for her today, well... it wouldn't have happened. But, all those factors were in play, and so it did happen - and, even as she was having second, third, and fourth thoughts about what she was doing, Derek responded, with interest.

With passion.

The arousal she'd only begun to become aware of as a factor suddenly became a very major factor in her decision-making process... and, a second later, as his hands began to touch her body in some highly sensitive spots, factored even more strongly into her decision-making processes more or less shutting down.

In short, Billie Jean gave up 'thinking' in favor of 'feeling' - and, ho boy, but there was a hell of a lot to feel! Derek's reputation was in no way exaggerated.

Billie Jean might have been a somewhat passive participant in what was happening - but a participant she was, in no way trying to stop him, or even demur, as his above-the-clothes groping became below-the-clothes groping. His touch elective a welter of confused emotions in her, but the physical sensations were all pleasurable. Soon, she felt his hands removing the clothes that lay as a barrier between their hot flesh, and she realized that this was really the last rational chance to bring this to an end without major consequences to their friendship...

...and she said nothing as her blouse came off, exposing her magnificent breasts.

Hands touched those enchased breasts - and, again, no coherent word emerged from among the soti moans and sighs coming from her throat as the bra was cast aside, allowing lips and tongue access to those firm, round mounds and the even more sensitive, fully-erect nipples that tipped them.

When Derek's hands undid her jeans, she tilted her hips to make both pants and panties easier to remove.

It wasn't so much that she was still too uncertain to help Derek strip, as well - it was much more the case that she was entirely consumed by the sensations that Derek was causing in her even as he stripped himself down.

Soon, bare flesh against bare flesh, the sensations grew even stronger, even more pleasurable.

Dimply, she was well aware that her now exposed womanhood was wet, giving every sign of a woman physically and emotionally ready to be penetrated - and however her now-battered male persona might have wished to argue otherwise, the readiness of her womanhood was in no way a lie.

"Oh, GOD!" Was ripped, unbidden, from her throat as her best friend's cock filled her womanhood - but that wasn't what it felt like to Billie Jean. No, to her, it felt as if her entire body was hollow, a void about to collapse on itself out of the pure gravitation of need, and it was Derek's cock, filling her completely, that lent her otherwise hollow body form.

Function. Meaning. Purpose.

"Oh, god, YES!" Gene heard a high-pitched woman's voice scream, and dimly recognized it as emerging from her own body... except there wasn't a 'her', anymore than a 'him', not in the sense of a discrete individual. No, it was flesh on flesh, and it was flesh that was shouting out, and the mind - stripped of anything so advanced and ephemeral as 'identity' - was merely a passenger, existing as something to experience and process the pleasure of the flesh.

Which she did with utmost efficiency, body now no longer passive as it writhed and wiggled beneath him, striving to increase the pleasure that his thrusting cock was giving her.

She succeeded most admirably.

Time became meaningless, belonging to something far removed from this primal, pleasurable experience. It was too long and too short a time, filling every sense as she was... well, fucked.

Fucked good; fucked hard; fucked good and hard...

...and, what little of 'her' there was to do so, loving every second of it, especially the incredible orgasm that ripped through her.

* * * *

Dabbing at his forehead with The End of the towel draped around his neck, Gene strode briskly through the short hallway that lay between the garage-turned gym and the kitchen.

Entering the kitchen, Gene casually whipped his sweat-soaked workout towel from his neck and dropped it into the laundry basket right near the kitchen door - while simultaneously calling out a greeting to his new roommate, currently finishing his breakfast: "Hey, Derek - how's it hanging?"

"Down and to the right." Derek supplied the stock answer, with a chuckle - only to be drawn up short by the response: "Mind if I see for myself?"

Derek frowned slightly at Gene's unexpected response...

...and then smiled wickedly at Geena, and agreed eagerly.

The person who no longer thought of themselves as any particular person, but intensely grateful to be able to experience all sorts of pleasure as the multiplicity he/she/they had become gave back an even more wicked smile as currently-she knelt before her currently-a-boyfriend... while reminding herself NOT to give in to the urge to draw this out.

Atier all, Trish was okay as a lesbian girlfriend, but when she got here in a little while, it was Gene that made her happiest...

The End

SUMMARY: When guy fakes a female voice for some homemade CDs they fall into the hands of a local radio station and now the guy must create the female star that everyone wants to meet.

Show Biz

By Gunslinger

The mood in the darkened theatre was starting to get ugly. The monotonous chant was edged with anger, and a discontented murmur ran through a crowd that was slowly edging closer to the stage...

...and then, cutting through the noise as cleanly as a hot knife through butter, a keening note from the pitch-black stage reached out and drew utter silence from the audience.

It was only the most perceptive members of that audience who could correctly identify the instrument creating that eerie, ululating sound. Unearthly, the resonating upper E-string of the electric guitar held it's vibrato note, soaring and dipping around open E, never quite leaving the note, never quite settling on it.

The note slowly faded, it's pure tone echoing in the enclosed auditorium until it became almost impossible for the stunned audience to tell when the actual note itself departed, leaving behind only the auditory memory of it's high, clear sound.

It was into this ripe silence that a voice slipped. A sweet, pure soprano almost as eerily unearthly as the long-held note that had preceded it, but at the same time infinitely human. It came from the utter darkness of the stage, not yet quite singing, but also not exactly speaking. Heartbreakingly sweet, tenderly soft, and yet edged with a quiet pain that seemed to arrow through the audience, touching each ear and every heart in turn as it sang—said perfectly formed words that echoed with perfect clarity in the silent darkness of the enraptured auditorium.

'You and I in a little toy shop,

Buy a bag of balloons with the money we've got. Set them free at the break of dawn,

Until one by one... they were gone.'

Suddenly, a drum began to beat, a quiet roll of a military tattoo whose rhythms matched the cadence of the unseen singer's voice as she picked up the second stanza of her song.

'Back at base,

Bugs in the sotiware, flashed the message: Something's out there.'

The electric guitar re-entered, as sotily as the drum tattoo, it's clean tones muted, almost sad, matching the somehow liltng sorrow of the singer's voice.

'Floating in the summer sky, Ninety-nine red balloons go by.'

The voice trailed off, holding that soti sorrow for an eternal instant...

...and then drums, bass, guitar and electronic organ flared into full-throated life, the shear intensity of the throbbing beat and quick-paced, almost frenetic melody as audibly dazzling as the sudden burst of flaring light was to the optic nerves of the gathered audience. As the sound washed out over the crowd, the moment of stunned silence remained intact for an instant. Then, as dazzled eyes cleared, wild cheers began to rise from a crowd that, almost against their will, found themselves beginning to move in time and tempo with the driving, energetic beat of the music - and to the equally energetic movements of the woman on the stage that every single eye in the house was riveted to.

There were other people on the stage, musicians playing the instruments - but no one had eyes for anybody by the lead singer bouncing and skipping and twirling around the stage.

She was short, but not 'delicate'. Her body, without carrying any excess wait and without being hard- toned, was nevertheless incredibly ripe and taut, as if it was trying to contain so much energy that she had to keep moving around, or she'd simply explode.

Sexual energy.

There were posters of this woman at the main entrance of the auditorium, and it was the same woman that stood before them now, life and in the flesh. The same mop of intensely red hair over a cutely 'elfin' face. The same wide-hipped, buxom body in the almost girlish clothes she invariably wore - a pleated, petticoat-lined black Spanish lace skirt over knee-length black spandex cycling shorts and a midriff-baring silver-lame tank top that hung over the curve of her generous breasts.

Red high-top canvas sneakers. Plenty of shiny, tacky, over-sized metallic bangles, bracelets and earrings.

Yet that picture didn't - couldn't - convey the sense of barely restrained sexual energy that flowed out from her diminutive body like an electric current...

...and more than the electronic recordings of her incredible voice could accurately convey it's intense power as she took up the fast, bouncy sound in her lightly southern-accented voice, not just singing the words, but somehow creating a mental videoplay of the song with voice and actions as she twirled, swayed and jiggled energetically around the stage.

'Ninety-nine red balloons, Floating in the summer sky. Panic bells, It's red alert.

There's something here from somewhere else The war machine springs to life,

Opens up one eager eye, Focusing it on the summer sky,

Where ninety-nine red balloons go by. Ninety-nine Decision Street, Ninety-nine ministers meet.

To worry, worry, super scurry Call the troops out in a hurry.'

The slightest change of intonation, the tiniest alteration in her body language - and somehow she was a grizzled general talking to his-her troops... yet still an incredibly sexy young woman, all at once.

'This is what we've waited for, This is it boys, this war.

The president is on the line,

As ninety-nine red balloons go by.'

Now she was a fighter-pilot, swaggering and cocky, in the cockpit of a jet plane, steely-eyed and ready to obey her orders.

Whatever they might be. 'Ninety-nine knights of the air, ride super high-tech jet fighters. Everyone's a super-hero, Everyone's a Captain Kirk.

With orders to identify, To clarify and classify.

Scramble in the summer sky, Ninety-nine red balloons go by.'

Once again the music beat out a frenetic rhythm, as she danced for their pleasure, no longer singing... and then the music faded, and she stood in the center of the stage, the only light left on spot-lighting her in the otherwise perfect darkness as she once more sang alone, voice sweet and yet sad, into the darkness...

'Ninety-nine dreams I have had, and every one a red balloon,

it's all over and I'm standing pretty, in this dust that was a city.

If I could find a souvenir,

Just to prove the world was here, And here is a red balloon,

I think of you and let it go...'

Then the spot-light snapped out, plunging the auditorium into perfect darkness...

...but not anything approaching silence, as the crowd went mad. They cheered. They applauded. They whistled...

...and then, as if they were all of one mind, they began chanting a name in feverish devotion: "MEL-O-DY! MEL-O-DY!

MEL-O-DY...!"

* * * * *

When the song came on the radio, Dave spit out a mouthful of coffee and turned to stare, wide-eyed, at the inoffensive little black plastic electronic device resting on his kitchen counter.

Which was a real shame, since he'd been too wrapped up in his work during the past weeks to go shopping. That wasted coffee was in the half-cup's worth that had been all he'd been able to brew from the grounds left at the bottom of the economy-size can of Maxwell House.

The slender, platinum-blond young man hardly noticed the waste, however, as he stared wide-eyed at the radio, unable to believe his ears as he listened to the incredibly sweet soprano voice coming out of the low-quality speaker, singing 'Dust in the Wind' to the accompaniment of a lone guitar.

"No." Dave said, shaking his. "No, this.. this isn't happening. It isn't possible..." The song ended, and was replaced by the local DJ's smooth, baritone voice.

'Yes, that was 'Dust in the Wind', our seventh request for Melody Davis today.. and it's barely ten o'clock! It looks like we're going to blow yesterday's record number of requests for a single artist easily today. What do you think, Jack?'

'Oh, undoubtedly.' The co-host replied. 'Ever since we got the anonymous CD dropped off at our offices three days ago, we've gotten more demands for Melody than any other artist or band. Whoever, or wherever, Miss Davis is, she's going to be rich once somebody signs her.'

'No doubt, no doubt.' The low-voiced host agreed. 'Once again, let me re-iterate that WKJL is offering a five-thousand dollar finder's fee for anybody who can get us in touch with Melody Davis herself. Our affiliate station, WPYG, 'The Pig', in Little Rock is offering the same for...'

Numbly, Dave reached out and shut off the radio, his heart lodged somewhere in his throat.

"It's not possible..." He muttered once more, slumping against the counter and staring, unseeing, at the peeling wallpaper of the far wall. "How the hell did they get my songs?"

Feeling weak-kneed, David Leysom pushed himself off the counter and slowly walked - staggered, really - into the living room.

Thick curtains blocking out the intrusive daylight, the largest single room in his tiny bungalow was his workspace. Computer equipment, purchased with the bulk of whatever monies he had at any given time, sat, covered, or balanced precariously upon second- or third-hand furniture. Making his way through the scattering of trash, empty Coke bottles, and fried computer components, Dave slumped into the rickety kitchen chair he used as a computer chair, and began tapping away at the keyboard.

Moments later, he sat back and stared at the screen. His face, already pale due to lack of sunlight, looked bone-white in the garish blue glow of the monitor as he confirmed the fact that his last re- organization of his hard-drive had accidentally put his music recordings in one of the folders ear- marked for 'sharing' on a peer-to-peer networking program.

Computers were Dave's life - and music was his hobby. It was almost inevitable, then, that at some point the two would mix - especially so, since his computers could simulate the variety of musical instruments he couldn't afford to buy, or possess the talent to play. His hard-drive was full of renditions of his favourite songs, performed by himself and an all-electron orchestra...

...including the dozen songs he'd whimsically credited to 'Melody David' atier he'd been fooling around with a free voice-changing sotiware. A simple program that altered voices, he'd set it to it's generic 'female' setting and run the vocal tracks of one of his previously recorded songs through it - and had been shocked to hear how good it sounded. Much, much better than his own unremarkable 'natural' tones, in fact. Not that his real voice was bad, but 'Melody' was downright amazing, or at least so he'd thought...

...and judging from what he'd just heard on the radio, so did just about everybody who heard 'her'.

The question was - what were they going to think when they found out that 'Melody' was really a pale, scrawny little twenty-five year old techno-nerd?

Well, it didn't matter, Dave told himself, with a sigh. After all, nobody would ever know Melody didn't really exist - because nobody was ever going to find out where the recordings really came from. It was that simple. In time, with no 'Melody' coming forth, it would just become an unexplained footnote to musical history. There was no way anybody could trace the recordings back to him, and so he wouldn't have to worry about it.

Nodding to himself, Dave decided to put the whole thing out of his mind. Should he heard 'Melody' on the radio again, he could be amused by knowing the truth, but that was as far as this would ever have to go.

Feeling a lot better, David removed the files from the P2P network, then pushed back from his computer and went out to gather up his mail. Ignored for nearly three weeks, there was quite a stack of it, and he carried it into his kitchen to sit down at the table and sort through it.

It was about halfway through the pile that he came across the notice indicating that his house, leti to him by his parents, was going to be foreclosed on if he didn't come up with the nearly four thousand dollars of back-payments owed...

* * * * *

"Uh... WKJL? My name is... Dave Leysom. I'm calling about that five thousand dollars for information about Melody Dav... Yes, that's right. Yes. Oh, no - she's very, very shy. Those songs got out by mistake and... What? Um, well... You see, the thing is, there is no 'Melody Davis', and..."

He went pale as he listened - then looked down at the notice crumpled tight in his fist, and began talking fast.

"No, no - that isn't what I mean! I mean.. that's not her real name. Like I said, she's very shy, and... What? I.. don't know. I mean, she never, ever talks to anybody but me, and... Huh...? I won't get the money unless she does, huh? Well... hold on. Let me ask her..."

Cupping the receive in his palm, he stared wild-eyed at the wall, trying desperately to think of another way - any other way - he could come up with the money...

...and then, with a sigh, quickly patched a few patch cords into the hastily jury-rigged jacks on his phone, and leaned forward to speak into his computer microphone:

"Uh... hi.. This is.. Um, that is, I'm the person who recorded those songs under the name of Melody Davis, and... Yes, I know I sound just like my recordings. Look, can we get this over with quickly? I don't like talking to... what do you mean, 'on the air live'? Right now? No, I can't... How much? Just for a five-minute interview? Well, I All right."

* * * * *

Nervously, Dave pulled bag the edge of the heavy curtains over his window...

...and then quickly let them drop again.

They were still out there. Fans, crowding his lawn. News vans blocking the street. Police to keep the whole thing under control.

It was a circus.

He hadn't been able to leave the house since that stupid phone interview, almost two weeks ago - but at least the money he'd gotten meant that he could order food in and afford to have it delivered.

Still... he hadn't thought this would happen. He'd planned just to let 'Melody' disappear but they wouldn't let her. The fact that she was so shy that nobody had ever seen her - except her good friend and 'manager' who people quickly figured out she'd anagrammed her 'stage name' from.

People were dissecting every scrap of information about this mystery woman, trying to find out who she was - trying to meet her, for God's sake! At least Dave's refusal to talk to the press meant there were no good recordings for anybody to compare with 'Melody', which might reveal the truth but that only made the legend worse.

He'd always been a loner, had always been shy - and now the papers were full of stories about the 'kindred souls', where even a veritable non-entity like Dave was the link to the 'outside world' for the even more reclusive mystery singer.

How the hell was he going to get out of this ?

* * * * *

Dave looked at the items laid out on the work-bench in front of him - and couldn't believe he was planning to do this.

Part of him regretted he'd ever had an interest in 'special effects'. It had started out purely 'digital', with what he could do on his computer, but had also lead to a brief but comprehensive exploration of make-up effects.. and if not for that, he wouldn't have the materials and the know-how to do what he was thinking of doing.

What he was planning on doing, actually - because if it had still been at the 'thinking' stage, he wouldn't have bothered to spend all that time carefully shaving his body.

Atier all, the money was all gone, he owed money to the bank - and he still couldn't walk out the front door without somebody waiting to pounce on him, demanding that he produce Melody...

...especially now with the rumors that he wasn't her 'kindred soul' but her jailer, holding her imprisoned and incommunicado. The police weren't taking these wild rumours seriously...

YET.

Now, muttering curses under his breath, Dave made sure the plaster he'd mixed up was the right consistence, then began to slather a thick layer of Vaseline onto his body in preparation for making the mold.

* * * * *

He couldn't believe he was doing this.

Or, he thought with grim humor, maybe it was 'she couldn't believe she was doing this'. He-or-she could barely breathe.

It had little to do with the incredibly realistic foam-rubber 'body suit' she wore. Made with the same material and techniques as the best Hollywood artists, even close examination of his-her foam prosthetic body wouldn't give anything away.

That, at least, he-she was sure of, since she-he had been utterly paranoid, and wouldn't settle for anything less than perfection, even if it had included over-emphasizing his-her breasts and hips to ensure an acceptably feminine figure of the masculine base.

It wasn't even the special elastic tubing he-she had 'inhaled', forcing her-his voice up into the correct range. Though it tightened the vocal cords and forced the voice higher, it didn't interfere with breathing.

Not, it was the simple idea of what he-she was going to do that made breathing difficult.

Sure, there was the 'perfect' costume, the dyed flame-red hair, the altered voice, even the mid- eighties clothing he-she had found in the attic. That didn't make it easier, though - it made it harder...

...because he-she actually was 'believable' as a woman, and that somehow made the thought of going out in public even worse than if he-she had simply went out, as Dave, in drag.

Taking a deep breath, 'Melody' firmly forced herself to think in the feminine - then stepped out the back door of her.. no, her manager's house.

"Oh my god.. it's her ! It's MELODY!"...

* * * * *

Over the past few months, she'd not only gotten over her initial fear, but had actually come to enjoy her once-a-week night-time excursions as Melody.

Now, however, the fear was back, and she sat on the padded floor of the dark-painted van she'd been yanked into, staring up in shock and fear at the tall, severe-looking woman looking down at her.

"Relax, Melody." The woman said. "My name is Jessica. I'm here to rescue you." "But.. I don't need to be rescued!" Melody protested.

"Yes you do!" Jessica said, sharply. "Your latest recordings have made tons of money, and your.. 'manager' is living high on the hog. New clothes, new house, new car - yet you still almost never go out, and you wear the same, ratty old clothes. He's using and abusing you, Melody!"

"No - it's not like that!" She insisted. "You don't understand!"

"Oh, but I do!" Jessica said in righteous anger. "Who's idea were the implants, Melody? I've watched you, and there's no way those are real. Did Dave force these on you...?"

Jessica reached out to squeeze one of the breasts in question...

...and the van went over a bump at that very moment, and the latex foam prosthetic tore away in the severe-looking woman's hand.

"Well..." Jessica said, initial shock fading into a wicked grin. "Well, well, well.."

* * * * *

"I'm sure I'll be completely happy with Jessica Morton as my new manager." Melody told the press. "Atier all, she's already arranged my debut concert, and it sold out in hours."

"What about David Leysom?" One reporter wanted to know. "Why isn't he available for comment?"

"Mr. Leysom took the hard-earned money from royalties and this exchange settlement, and has gone to tour the world." Jessica answered the question. "Now, if you'll excuse us, we have to leave. No more questions, please..."

Ignoring the request, the press continued to shout questions as Jessica 'gently' took Melody's arm in a talon-like grasp and guided her off the podium.

The 'superstar' struggled to keep pace - without looking like she was struggling at all. The heavy, over-inflated implants forced on her in that small Brazilian clinic bounced and swayed and jiggled, trying to pull her off balance in a way her much lighter and slightly smaller foam appliances never had - but with only the short skirt she was wearing, Melody dare not let herself fall down.

Not when it might reveal her cock and balls, shrunken by the intensive regimen of over-strength hormone treatments, all but useless, but unmistakable. As Jessica had pointed out with glee, the press would LOVE to get a shot of that 'shocking secret' to plaster all over the headlines...

Collagen-plumped lips helplessly forced into what looked like a smile, Melody waved to all her fans as she obeyed Jessica's long-standing order that she was now 'making up for lost time', and swayed and swivelled her broad new hips in an unmistakably sexy manner.

* * * * *

"I went to a lot of trouble to set this up..." the greasy-haired, weasel-faced manager of the auditorium said, licking his lips suggestively. "This was a very... big deal. There was some very... firm demands I had to fulfill. I had to deal in some very round numbers."

"Is that so...?: Melody asked, huskily, as she ground herself suggestively against the man's side, one long-nailed hand playing with the sole remaining button holding her straining blouse closed.

Quite purposefully, Melody forced herself not to look towards the one-way mirror, behind which Jessica was watching the little scene she'd staged. The tall woman had been quite explicit about what would happen if Melody refused to play her role...

"Big, and firm, and round...?" Melody forced herself to ask - as she popped open the button and exposed her big, firm and round tits to the slimy little man. "Like these...?"

"Oh, yeah..." The man sighed, hands coming to her inflated tits - while his mouth came down, hard, on her lips.

She fought down the urge to vomit, and let him kiss her. Thankfully, 'kissing back' wasn't required. He really didn't care what she did, just so long as there wasn't anything she didn't, so to speak.

Tongue probing her mouth, his hands squeezed and grappled with her saline-pumped boobs almost painfully.

Then one hand let go and slid down the curve of her broad new hips, heading inward...

..and since she couldn't let him discover her secret, she forced herself to follow Jessica's slip.

Knowing the cruel woman who was now her undenied mistress was probably laughing in delight at the humiliation being inflicted on her, Melody forced herself to pull lightly away from the man - then smile and lick her lips to quell his angry, startled expression, and sink slowly to her knees.

Reaching out, she unzipped the man's fly and let his already hard cock spring into the open air.

"Um, yummy..." Melody feigned excitement - and then leaned forward, opened her gloss-pink new lips, and forced herself to wrap them around his sweaty, none-to-clean cock.

Trying very hard to pretend she was anywhere else, doing anything else, she settled into giving the man as 'good' a blowjob a beginner could... and knew, with a sick feeling, that she'd soon have plenty of experience.

Then the man bucked his hips, his disgusting, warm seed spilling into her mouth, and she forced herself to swallow the sickening, salty mass, despite what every instinct she possessed was screaming at her.

* * * * *

"That was not bad, Melody." Jessica congratulated her as she came back-stage after her third encore." Even with all the bad press, and the disillusionment of your fans, you're still pulling in enough people to make good money."

"Thank you." Melody said, that deep sorrow that made her music all the more intriguing no longer as close-held as it was on stage. Carefully, the diminutive super-star made her way to a chair and eased down into it.

The small of her back ached something fierce, and her legs felt like they were on fire. Her re-enlarged breasts, coupled with the high-heels Jessica had started insisting she wear during her performances, meant that every concert was now an ordeal to be borne.

Then again - so was the rest of her life.

"Very good indeed..." Jessica said, coming over. Glancing around to make sure 'Melody's' instructions about being leti alone immediately following a concert were being met, Jessica leaned forward and spoke in a low, soft voice. "We've just about played out this little game, 'dear'. Just two more concerts, and you're done. You're free. You can give up show-biz and try to live a nice, quiet life... for as long as the money you have holds out, of course."

Straightening, the taller woman shook her head reprovingly.

"I told you about blowing all your money that way." She tsd-tsd theatrically. "The breast implants, all the new clothes you were only once or twice, the party-all-night lifestyle. I know you're determined to make up for lost time, young lady - but really! Going through big-name actor boyfriends like candy? Hotel-room orgies with hard-rock bands? The tabloids are full of your antics, dear, and even the fans are saying they'd rather listen to you on CD than see you live anymore. At least your singing is as good as ever - if not better!"

Melody didn't even have the strength to give Jessica a bitter glare. She didn't seem to have the strength to do anything anymore.

Not after the final surgery, the final unmaking, of which the unexpected side-effect had been to make her already famous voice able to go even higher, and even sweeter, pure soprano.

Three years. Three years of fame that had seemed to last a life-time - and, in its own way, had, since there was nothing leti of the young man she'd started this road as. All that was leti was the woman Jessica had defined for her - the huge-breasted young woman obsessed with 'sex, drugs and rock 'n roll' to make up for all that time as a recluse.

All of which was now 'public record', part of the legend of Melody Davis. A bright star who was burning herself out, her 'shy girl' image faded into something less shining. A skank.

A slut.

A tramp...

...but, as even her worst critics were forced to admit, a tramp who could sing.

A tramp who, on her worst night, after having been forced to provide 'private performances' of a less savoury nature for whatever men Jessica wanted to curry favour with, could still move an entire crowd, could still carry them along with her in the music and, for one brief moment, be more than merely human.

For brief, fleeting moments - that were growing steadily briefer and more fleeting with every extra nightmare Jessica piled on top of her, crushing her down and breaking her spirit even as Jessica drained her bank accounts and stole her future...

* * * * *

Once again the music beat out a frenetic rhythm, as she danced for their pleasure, no longer singing... and then the music faded, and she stood in the center of the stage, the only light left on spot-lighting her in the otherwise perfect darkness as she once more sang alone, voice sweet and yet sad, into the darkness...

'Ninety-nine dreams I have had, and every one a red balloon,
it's all over and I'm standing pretty, in this dust that was a city.'

'If I could find a souvenir,

Just to prove the world was here,

And here is a red balloon,

I think of you and let it go...'

Then the spot-light snapped out, plunging the auditorium into perfect darkness...

...but not anything approaching silence, as the crowd went mad. They cheered. They applauded. They whistled...

...and then, as if they were all of one mind, they began chanting a name in feverish devotion: "MEL-O-DY! MEL-O-DY!"

MEL-O-DY...!"

Standing in the center of the stage, cloaked in perfect darkness, the woman whose name was being chanted let silent tears roll down her cheeks.

Tears that marked the release of the knot of tension that had tied itself so tightly inside her before this, the debut performance of Melody David Leysom.

After all the furor when, in the middle of her second-to-last concert as Melody Davis she had simply stopped, and spilled out the truth to a stunned audience, both live and via the television.

After the court battles, and the scandals, and the recriminations.

After the struggle to regain what she could of her new life, after the surgeries to allow her to live as a 'normal' woman, instead of the over-inflated caricature the now-imprisoned Jessica had wanted to leave her as.

After all of this, the only thing that truly mattered to her fans - the only thing, had she had the wit to see it, that had mattered all along, man or woman, fraud or victim - was that she could sing.

So, scrubbing hastily at the tears of joy that had tracked down her cheeks, Melody told her band she was ready to continue, and as the lights came back up on the stage and the unstinting approval of her fans, regardless of what she might have been, rolled over her, she stood tall and proud and straight and gave them what they wanted from her, the giti she had to give them...

...and as the first chords rolled out, and her audience realized what she was offering for them, the frenzied adoration somehow redoubled, mixed with a wave of glorious laughter, as the woman who'd gone from merely being a super-star to a world-wide sensation and shining beacon of strength and hope to transsexuals and transvestites the world over opened her mouth and, in her incomparable voice, gave them her cover of Shania Twain's 'I Feel Like A Woman'.

The End

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: When a strip club owner is in need of a new star, his downstairs tenant offers to help him out; little does he know that she has a plan to transform him into the type of bimbo stripper that he has always looked down on.

The Show Must Go On...

Part One

By Gunslinger

"Problems, Dennis?"

At the sound of the dry, sarcastic contralto voice, Dennis Modran paused in mid-rant. Startled despite himself, the pudgy, mustachioed manager stood in the center of a dritting vortex of thrown papers, his usually rumpled suit even more disreputable then usual as he gaped at the tall, elegant- looking woman leaning in the door frame, the ice-blue eyes behind the slender rimless glasses eyeing his with cool amusement.

Suddenly aware of how ridiculous he looked, the pot-bellied, balding club owner grinned somewhat sheepishly at his unusual 'tenant'.

"Sorry 'bout that, Liz." He apologized brusquely, waving a hand in the air. "Just some bad news is all."

Dr. Elizabeth Stanton winced at the hated diminutive of her name that Dennis seemed genetically predisposed to use, then shrugged it off. Pushing herself away from the door frame, the immaculately dressed geneticist looked around the office of the strip club manager, one fine-arched eyebrow raised.

"Just how bad?" She asked with apparent concern.

"Lemme put it this way..." Dennis snorted, slumping into the ratty old swivel chair behind the battered desk. "You might have to relocate at The End of the month."

Elizabeth managed a theatrical wince. Having inherited quite a bit of money, she'd decided to go ahead and do her own research, privately - but she wasn't rich, and so she'd looked for the best possible bargain for the space she needed for her research. Though it offended her feminine sensibilities, it turned out that the large basement of The Booby Trap club was ideal for her purposes, and available at a very reasonable price...

...except that she had neglected to factor in the emotional 'cost' of having to deal with one Dennis Modran, a man who seeped completely incapable of seeing women as intelligent, sentient beings.

Not that it was his condescending 'hope you have fun playing at being a scientist' attitude towards herself that bothered Elizabeth the most. Atier all, it was only slightly more blatant - and with a lot less impact - then the attitudes of many of her so-called male colleagues in the scientific community. The fact that she wasn't pursuing an 'appropriately feminine' line of work made her almost beneath Dennis' notice, in his world-view.

No - it was the way he treated his 'talent' that sickened her...

...which was why she'd manipulated things so that she could do something about it. She was going to teach Dennis a lesson he would never forget.

"What's wrong...?" She asked, as if she didn't know damned well what the problem was, having arranged for it herself.

"The lead dancer I hired for next moth cancelled out." Dennis said, angrily. "I knew it was too good to be true. That broad seemed willing to pull enough shitis to cover any three other dancers, so I took her, 'specially since she'd a 'specialty' dancer fittin' right in with the club's name. Now, there ain't no way I could book three 'normal' gals to fill the empty slots in the time I got, much less big- boob babes."

Reaching into the drawer in his desk, the balding manager pulled out a half-full bottle of rotgut whisky and took a long pull on it.

"If that ain't bad enough..." He continued, "My liquor distributor suddenly decided to call in the outstandin' credit I got. I don't pull in enough cash this moth to cover it, I lose my liquor license - which means I loose the bar."

"Oh, no..." Elizabeth muttered 'sympathetically' while thinking about how many 'markers' she'd had to pull in to get that to happen. "Isn't there anything you could do?"

"Nothin' comes to mind." Dennis grunted sourly. "I spent a bunch of money do some advertisin' to pull in major cash this month - you know, sort of a 'mystery' thing, advertising the new feature dancer without any details to pack in the crowd? Well, how do you think they're gonna react when I ain't got no stinkin' dancer for them atier all that hype? Not only no new big-bust feature, but no new chick at all - just the same stable of strippers either on their way up, or on their way out..."

It was true. The Booby Trap was hardly a top club. In fact, it was downright seedy, despite Dennis' ill-planned efforts to turn it around.

Oddly enough, one of the strange side effects of Elizabeth's plan might be that the business would finally turn around - but that was purely secondary to her plan...

...which it was no time to put into action.

"Maybe I can help..." She said, slowly, in a tone of feigned thoughtfulness. "Yeah?" Dennis grunted. "How's that?"

"Well, what I'm doing research on could be called 'genetic beauty products', you see." She said - even though it was only a project she'd started when she'd decided Dennis needed a lesson. "It's still in the testing stages, so I don't have it worked out for a broad spread of genotypes - but if any of your girls match the necessary profile, I can make them more beautiful - more buxom, even."

"You're shittin' me!" Dennis gasped.

"No, I'm serious." She said, with a shark's grin. "Of course, I wouldn't usually make this kind of offer

- but my lab facility cost a ton to set up, and it's on the line too. If you'd like, I can check and see if anybody matches the genetic profile my compounds would work on..."

"Yeah!" Dennis said, enthusiastically. "Liz, babe - If you can pull this off, I'll owe you. Big time!"

Hook...

* * * * *

"Dennis, I'm so sorry..." She said with well-feigned regret.

She'd waited three days to break the 'bad news' - putting Dennis three days closer to the deadline of his supposed new dancer's opening night, and therefore tightening the time pressure on the manager.

"None of the girls match the... whachyamacallit?... genetic profile?"

"I'm afraid not." She said - then, in a deceptively casual, 'off the cuff' tone; "In fact, the only person who even comes close to matching the genetic profile is you!"

"Me?" Dennis asked, starting - and setting Elizabeth up for the 'distraction' technique.

"Yes, I... say!" She snapped her fingers, as if the thought had just occurred to her. "You wouldn't happen to have a sister, would you...?"

Even though Dennis started shaking his head, she rushed ahead as if she hadn't seen him - she needed to get this next bit out, give his mind something to chew on.

"She wouldn't even have to be a dancer." She rushed on, using the pretend excitement of the 'sudden thought' to keep him from answering her highly loaded question. "With a procedure involving the transfer of some of the fluid around the hippocampus, it's quite possible - practically easy - to transfer 'memories' from your girls to somebody else - or, rather, they physical skills that go with those memories. Any close relation to you could be made over into an, uh... 'instant stripper', with the perfect body and a full set of skill..."

She pretend to just notice his shaking head then - even as he stopped shaking his head to gaze at her in amazement at her revelation.

"No, huh...?" She said, sighing in resignation.

"You can actually do that?" Dennis asked, amazed. "Not only make a chick more sexy-like, but give her skills and shit from other dancers?"

"Hmmm?" She said, feigning distraction. "Oh - yes, certainly. Except, of course, the woman would have to be the right genetic makeup."

She looked thoughtful - then planted the seed.

"maybe you should see if you can hire a woman - any woman - with the right genetic make-up. Atier all, it doesn't matter at all what she looks like now, or what she does for a living. My compounds could make a... 'total babe', I think you'd say, out of anybody with the right genetic make-up."

While saying this, she rose and headed for the door, judging the timing perfectly, since she needed to say the next bit just as she leti - and she did, her tone one of 'joking amusement':

"Hell - my stuff is so good, I could even make a guy into the ultimate stripper."

...line...

*** * * * ***

"None of them match, Dennis..." She said, 'sorrowfully', patting the prop pile of file folders supposedly containing the results of the 'genetic testing' on the candidates he'd brought her. "...and we're out of time. In order to get somebody ready to make that first show, we'd have to start the procedures and preparation tonight - and any test I did wouldn't be ready to tomorrow at the earliest, so even if a 'perfect candidate' showed up right this minute, the fact that I haven't done the testing required would screw us over."

She spread her hands in mock sympathy - while, inside, she was holding her breath, watching the pale, sweating man in front of her to see if all the work she'd gone to was going to work out. Sure, if she'd guessed wrong about this, Dennis would lose the club, which would be good for his girls, even if it would badly inconvenience her...

...but if she'd been right about his personality, about how much he hated the thought of losing the strip club that he'd dreamed his whole (so-called) adult life of one day owning and running, then right about now, with his back to the wall, he might actually go for it.

He nervously rubbed the palms of his hands on his rumpled trousers, swallowing heavily.

"Anything you do... would be, uh... reversible, right?" He asked, slowly - and she had to steal her emotions, knowing that the question wasn't commitment.

"Yes, of course..." She said, feigning confusion. "Why?" He gulped, noisily.

"Well, uh... we already know it would work on, um.... on... uh..."

He hesitated - and then, voice so low as to be barely audible, and about two octaves too high, "...me?"

...and sinker.

*** * * * ***

"Now - you're absolutely positive that this will be reversible...?" Dennis asked, almost plaintively, practically dancing with nervous energy as he looked around the well-equipped lab Elizabeth had set up in the spacious cinder-block walled basement of the club.

Nervous and scared, Dennis was robbed of every trace of his usual inherent arrogance and abrasive manner - and seeing him like this did Elizabeth good.

Of course, she mused as she hid a smile, this was purely a situational lack of chauvinistic arrogance. After she was finished with him, the lack should be permanent...

"Of course I'm sure..." She told him, making sure he wouldn't back out at the last minute. "And, Dennis...? I just want to say how very, very proud I am of you. I know how hard this must be for you

- and I'm so impressed that your commitment to your business, and your dancers, is strong enough to let you go through with this."

Thanks..." Dennis said, smiling wanly as he considered anew what he planning to do.

He was going to let Elizabeth use her genetic 'black magic' to turn him into a woman - and not just a woman, but a sexy one.

One that would, in turn, be performing specifically to arouse men.

To say that Dennis found the thought 'uncomfortable' was the understatement of the year...

...but the thought of losing his business was even more unpalatable than the thought of being a big-breasted stripper.

"Well, then..." He said, voice trembling. "I guess I'm as ready as I'm ever going to be. Let's get on with it."

"Okay." Elizabeth said, nodding. "Go ahead and take your clothes off, then sit down..."

She gestured at the padded chair she'd prepared for this. Lined with special padding that would focus the low-intensity radiation that would be emitted by the gamma-ray projectors mounted on a metal framework around the chair, it looked like a misbegotten bastardization of a kitchen chair - but, despite its jerry-rigged appearance, it would get the job done.

Blushing deeply, Denis slowly began to undress, peeling the clothing from his hairy, pale pudgy body.

For all his 'I'm an alpha male routine', it was obvious that the male ideal of muscles wasn't exactly personified by Dennis...

...nor the ideal of an endowment, either, and she had to keep her grin from being too much like a smirk at the sight of his limp manhood, further shrunken by the consideration of the fact that he wasn't going to have even that much to boast about for much longer.

Of course, the new woman's 'endowments' would more than make up for the lost, in pure mass - but she doubted Dennis was looking at it in that light.

"Okay - go ahead and sit down..." She urged him as he finished stripping, hand shoving nervously over his crotch as he eyed the chair uncertainly.

"He nodded, jerkily, not trusting his voice. With obvious reluctance in every move he made, he slowly made his way over to the chair and seated himself in it with all the eagerness of a convicted man sitting in the electric chair.

"Okay - now we're going to strip you in..." She said, suiting actions to words. Though she had already explained the reason for this, she did so again as she tightened the buckles on the leather cuffs - more for the reassurance of her voice than for information purposes, since Dennis' current state meant that he was only barely capable of listening to her words. "This is just to keep you in the proper position as the machine does its work.

Dennis didn't even reply, sweat beading his high forehead despite his nakedness in the cool air of the basement. He simply sat, trembling slightly, as Elizabeth finished strapping him into place...

...thus taking away the option of changing his mind, committing him irrevocably to what was to come, as she'd made it quite clear before they'd started that, once strapped in, they were going to go ahead with it.

With quick motions that, had Dennis been in a frame of mind to notice, revealed just how much she'd practiced them, Elizabeth quickly found a vein on each of his arms and hooked them up to the special IV containers.

The tubing that led to the IV began to run the special 'cocktail' into his bloodstream.

The cocktail was a most unique mixture the scientific world had had ever seen. Of course, it was also highly experimental, new and untried - but she hadn't bothered to play those up to Dennis, who accepted the possibilities without considering the way most people viewed 'medicine'.

The base of the cocktail was a new mix of extremely powerful synthetic hormones, ones that simulated the effect of feminine hormones on the human body - but not the day-to-day hormones, but the way they effected the female body during puberty, when the female body went through the major developmental changes.

Included in the synthetic hormones were some 'encapsulated' hormones, ones that would be time- released, allowing for a longer-term effect - which should last long enough for the second part of the therapy to take effect.

The hormonal part of the base was the most, by volume - but it was also the least, in terms of effect. The real genius of the treatment was the actual genetic portion of it.

Mixed in with the hormones were small 'genetic markers'. These were almost a virus - but it was also encased in a special membrane that was more reactive to radiation than normal human flesh.

These 'viruses' would attach themselves to specific parts of the body, such as the glands that secreted developmental hormones, among other. The radiation would activate the DNA-analogue within the membrane, and the radiation would splice the pseudo-DNA into the cells, convincing them that they should, in fact, be the female equivalent - and the body, trying to 'heal' itself, would procedure to make itself over according to the feminine DNA encoded in the 'virus'.

So, the overall effect of the treatment would be that of a sort of 'second puberty', over the span of a week or so, during which Dennis' body would make itself over according to the new instructions of the DNA entering his body.

The final connection was the most finicky, the one that made strapping Dennis' head firmly into place.

Atier all, there was a long, slender needle sliding right into the outer membranes of the brain itself, to carry the carefully cultivated hippocampus fluid selected from Dennis' stable of strippers...

...and, though he didn't know it, several other women Elizabeth had paid good money to participate in the project.

Women who had certain skills and thoughts that Elizabeth wanted to make damned sure the new woman Dennis was going to become had.

With everything hooked into place, Elizabeth stepped back to the simple control panels she'd rigged up - and turned on the gamma-ray projectors, setting the entire process into motion.

When the projected revved up to full output with a low hum, Dennis - almost involuntarily - let out a low moan of humiliated horror at what he was 'willingly' letting be done to him...

...and Elizabeth had to turn away quickly, lest Dennis not the vicious grin of triumphant that creased her face.

* * * * *

"Okay..." Elizabeth said, unsnapping the last of the restraints and gripping Dennis' upper arm. "All done. Let's get you out of there."

The procedure had lasted just over an hour - and though it was only the first step in a roughly week- long change, there was a very obvious effect.

The radiation had caused all of Dennis' hair to fall out. His skin and scalp were now completely smooth.

It wouldn't last, of course, not with the special ingredients in the cocktail that would promote accelerated hair growth - but it would be hair growth on the template Elizabeth had 'encoded' into the cocktail. New hair would definitely grow - but only where Elizabeth wanted it to, and in the amount she wanted...

...which was a far cry from what she'd told Dennis. In fact, she'd implied that she had only 'rough control' over the final change, meaning that she couldn't precisely predict the new woman he'd become - when, in fact, she'd planned it out to the last decimal place, knowing exactly what she wanted to happen to him.

It just wouldn't do to let Dennis know it.

"I.. don't feel so good..." Dennis moaned, thickly, hating the fact that he had to lean so heavily on a woman for support - both physical and moral. "Feel... sick. Weak..."

"I know, I now..." Elizabeth said, comfortingly. "the worst of it will pass in a couple of hours - but your body is going to be undergoing some pretty radical changes in a relatively short period of time, so you'll probably feel a bit... uncomfortable, quite often. Nevertheless, we'll see about keeping you up-and-about - if for no other reason than to get to the task of helping you acclimate to your new body as it happens, so you're ready for your first show on time."

Dennis ignored that, and all its implications. Not because it was emasculating and frightening, though it was - but because his brain wasn't exactly functioning correctly.

"Confused..." He said, weakly, blinking several times as he tried - vainly - to order the mix of fragmentary thoughts and emotions whirling in his mind.

As well they should. After all, he had hints and bits of a dozen women's memories, even if his brain wasn't yet able to order them, or make use of them.

It was this thought that made Elizabeth grin even more strongly. That fluid, injected into his own brain fluid, carried in it 'genetic memory' from all those women. Given time, Dennis' brain would sort out the memories, and incorporate them into his mind, as 'real' as any of the memories he himself had formed over the years. Oh, because they were pieced together out of many different women's memories, they would be 'fictional' - but they would feel 'real' to Dennis.

Memories such as 'her' first date, 'her' prom, and many other moments out of the conglomerate fiction female life the memories would total...

...and, because those life memories included all the motions and skills this fictional woman had used, the new woman Dennis was to become would also have those skills 'ingrained' in her mind, each of them as real as if it were Dennis, 'herself', who had used them. Now, of course, it would be as if 'she' had those skills - but hadn't used them in a while, since her new body wouldn't have the physical experience of using them, so she'd need some 'refresher' training in the use of them, which was the 'acclimatization period' she'd referred to.

Not coincidentally, dumping all those thoughts and memories into Dennis' mind at one time, instead over a long period of time that a more conservative usage would have demanded, also meant that Dennis was 'addled', more... malleable.

Exactly as Elizabeth wanted 'her' to be.

"Come on, Debbi..." Elizabeth said, grinning as she put a slight emphasis on the feminine new name that, more than anything, marked the fact that, from this point on, the man-on-the-way-to- becoming-female would be considered female as far as Elizabeth - or the club's all female employees - were concerned.

Since those women were the only people 'Debbi' would encounter until the moment 'Debbi DeLite' was unveiled to the public on-stage, that meant 'everybody', as far as Debbi was concerned.

Now, Elizabeth certainly hadn't enlisted the female staff into the inner secrets of the plan she'd hatched - but she didn't have to. The women were all more-than-willing - downright enthusiastic, in fact - about participating in the training of the new 'woman', just from the part of the plan she'd revealed to Dennis. After all, it wasn't exactly an everyday opportunity to teach your previously chauvinistic (and male) boss how to be a good stripper - 'good' equating to 'able to arouse men', of course.

It was something that no self-respecting heterosexual male would feel comfortable contemplating...

...and the fact that the specifically-chosen memories and 'thoughts' that would be reinforced by the women training Debbi would make her feel as if she should feel comfortable doing so, directly in opposition to what 'should be right' to a male mind, only made the whole thing all the more horrible for 'Debbi' - and all the more delightful for the women.

* * * * *

"Ready for your first day at school, Debbi?"

If there was an undeniable edge of satisfaction in Karen's voice when she pronounced the not-quite- yet-a-new-woman's name, it was understandable - after all it wasn't every day an 'exotic dancer' got to help her slowly feminizing ex-chauvinistic boss on the road to becoming a stripper.

The fact that the highly confused (and vulnerable) new 'woman' was too confused to take any real offense - and hence, any offensive action - over the tone only made it all the more delicious.

"I, uh..." Debbi muttered, shaking 'her' head as she fought the now-familiar battle against the strange, highly feminine thoughts and memories swamping her conscious mind, making her feel much, much more comfortable with the feminine designation then she would have liked. "I guess so."

"Good!" the stripper said, laying the pile of clothes down beside the new woman-to-be. Sitting on the edge of the bed, blinking blearily, Debbi looked still much the same as always, except for the fact that she was completely denuded of any body hair...

...and the fact that there was a fine fuzz of new hair on her scalp. Hair that covered more of her head than the old, receding male hairline had allowed - and hair, despite that short length of it yet, could still be seen to be a new, gleaming shade of silvery-white platinum blonde, that rare, rich color so unlike the much-bleached shade of the same name.

That the fine fuzz, a bare eighth of an inch long, came atter only a mere two hours atter the finish of the treatment, was an indication of just how effective the rapid hair growth portion of the procedure was. If the rest of the treatment was even half as effective...

"Let's get you dressed..." The bottle-blond stripper said, smiling brightly as she began to unfold the pile of clothing.

Debbi grimaced at the sight of the clothing, even though it had been specifically chosen to 'ease' her into her new feminine status. It was a basic 'catholic schoolgirl' outfit, and not the sexy version of it either - but it was still undeniable a feminine outfit, and the fact that part of her was looking forward to wearing the 'familiar' clothing was just as bad as the still-unaltered male part of her that cringed at the same thought.

Still feeling helplessly confused and unable to muster coherent thoughts, she could only feel the shame and humiliation as he let Karen help her dress in the outfit.

The first article of clothing Debbi put on was the simple white cotton briefs - and that garment, alone, could have represented all that was wrong with her divided feelings. The male part of her was disgusted to be wearing any feminine garment, even one as plain as this one - but it was even more humiliating for her that another part of her was thoroughly disgusted by the fact that they were so plain...

...and that the body she was putting it on was even worse, since the female memories and thought patterns 'squirted' into her mind actually looked forward to the not-so-distant day when she'd have a much more attractive female body.

It was.. disconcerting. To say the least.

Before long, Debbie was fully dressed in her first female outfit of clothing - a white cotton blouse, with a blue-and-green plaid tie, over a training bra, the shirt in turn tucked into the hem of a simple knee-length gray skirt that ended right where the navy-blue knee-socks started. Socks that, in turn, went down to the simple black 'Mary Jane' shoes, with their sensible one-and-three-quarter inch heels.

Heels that she felt awkward and embarrassed in - despite the fact that she was all-to-aware of a sense that they weren't the least bit unusual for her to be wearing, except for perhaps how short the heels were.

Along with the outfit was a wig - to help her become accustomed to a greater mass of hair, of course. Still, part of her was disgusted to be wearing the pig-tailed blonde wig - while another part of her was longing for the day when she'd have her own luxurious mane of hair to work with.

So began Debbi's initiation into a life of femininity...

...though nobody but Elizabeth had any idea that it was a life of exaggerated femininity, since she alone knew that the 'extra' memory engrams she'd 'stolen' were those from women who, due to insecurities, upbringing, or downright insanity, were 'overly female'.

The most delightful thing of all, from her point of view, was the fact that any of these women (and, so, their thoughts now residing in her head) were exactly what Debbi had always believed women were really like - and so her own prejudices kept her from questioning the intensity of content of those thoughts, even as he was ashamed and embarrassed to have to respond to them.

Hell - to reinforce them.

Still, both because of her own dedication, and because of those thoughts, she actually tried very hard indeed, despite the humiliation and disgust she felt at purposefully and willingly 'going fem'.

It showed.

The first day, still mostly male in appearance, despite the clothes and wig, Debbi started out with her training. She did the boarding-school walk, letting her 'ingrained' skills come to the fore-front as she carefully walked - glided - around the office with a book balanced atop her wig. She practiced certain feminine mannerisms in the way she sat, stood, and walked - finding it disgustingly easy to pick them up, since she 'remembered' doing them before.

She also, unknowingly, absorbed on reinforcing idea atier another, thanks to the cutting quips of the 'oh-so-helpful' strippers who took great delight in teaching Debbi how to be feminine - and, thanks again to Debbi's own prejudices, the extra emphasis and heavy-handed manner in which they were wreaking their revenge on 'him' didn't register as such, since she was quite willing to believe that this was all part-and-parcel of being a 'real' woman, no matter how much she hated it.

Atier her fist day of training, she was allowed to get undressed again - and it was that moment, as she was preparing for bed, that Debbi first knew the effectiveness of Elizabeth's procedure.

Under the wig, crimped down but there, was her hair, now almost two inches long...

..and when she removed the training bra, it wasn't merely a formality anymore, since there were now a small, bud-like pair of barely-pubescent breasts to be contained within.

What bothered her the most was how happy part of her was at the transformations...

* * * *

The next week passed in a flurry of activity, humiliation, and disgusting excitement.

The very fact that she was so eager - so excited - about the transformations occurring to her body only made the humiliation more acute, for it showed just how much her mind was becoming as feminine as her body - and to her old, male sense of self, that was the insult added to injury.

Yet she couldn't help feeling that way. After all, she needed the skills and confidence the feminine persona imparted if she was ever going to be able to appear in public as a stripper - but that didn't lessen the impact it had on her. As she went through the daily ritual of learning all the things she needed to know to be a successful woman, the fact that she'd willingly done this to herself ground steadily away at the sense of male superiority she'd unconsciously and arrogantly held as a man, replacing it with a sense of being cast adrift, loose in the world...

...and her only 'anchor' was Elizabeth, who was secretly making sure the effect was as potent and as devastating as possible.

All the while, her body continued to change - and deep down, part of her was exulting more and more in the changes as the original jumbled feminine memories and thoughts began to coalesce, forming a new somebody who, despite herself, was happy to be in the process of becoming such a 'wonderfully sexy' woman, just the sort of woman she'd 'always wanted to be'.

* * * * *

Nervously, Elizabeth headed towards the changing room.

In a mere quarter-hour, Debbi DeLite would be unveiled to the crowd of eager, excited men who were already filling the club. The music pounded the air with a heavy bass beat as the 'regular girls' did their job, only half-watched by the men gathered for the opening act of this mysterious new dancer...

...and Debbi was getting cold feet.

It wasn't completely unexpected, of course. During the past week, she'd withdrawn into herself more and more, becoming almost a sort of automaton, doing exactly what she was told to do meekly, almost submissively...

...exactly as Elizabeth had planned.

Some of the women whose memories made up Debbi's new outlook on life had been the sort who'd felt the need to gain men's approval by being sexy - or 'easy', substituting sexual submissiveness for affection.

Others had been clinical nymphomaniacs, with a literal addiction to sex.

Still others had been completely submissive, without the willpower to stand up for themselves - and so, hence, memories in which the idea of trying to impose their own wills, even on their own lives, never appeared.

All of these both increased the humiliation the new woman felt, as well as making her easy to control - but that mix, fighting against the woman's base, male persona, meant something like what was happening now was a real risk.

Truthfully, it really didn't matter from an objective viewpoint. Debbi could be transformed back into a man, and would have learned the lessons necessary - but it wasn't enough for Elizabeth, and not merely because of the very real chance of losing the club.

No, she wanted Debby to dance, not just tonight, but for the entire month - because having to actually play out the ultra-sexy role would humble her in a way that just becoming the woman who could do so never would.

Reaching the dressing room, Elizabeth stepped inside - and smiled at the sight of her creation. "Hi, Debby." Elizabeth said, eyeing the new woman's body. "Is there something wrong?"

The new woman's huge eyes stared at her fearfully as she played thoughtlessly with a strand of her long, platinum blonde hair.

"Oh, Liz.." Debby said, breathlessly. "I'm... I'm so scared..."

"Now, now - you don't have to be." Elizabeth assured her. "We both know you'll do wonderfully out there. Your practice dances have been perfect!"

"I know." The new woman replied. "That's, kinda, why I'm scared. I'm scared by... by how much I really want to be good at, like, turning men on, y'know...?"

She nibbled at the strand of hair - and Elizabeth, not for the first time, wondered if Debby realized that her personality had changed just as radically as her body.

Elizabeth certainly hoped so - because it would only drive that spike of shame deeper, knowing that 'he' had this somewhere inside, never knowing that it was Elizabeth's carefully calculated mix of over-feminine memories that had allowed this level of femininity.

"Like..." Debbie said, eyes squinting as she fought to find a way to explain herself. "I know I'm oh- m'-god sexy, right? An' I feel, like, so really good about it - but I also know that I shouldn't feel so good about it. I'm supposed to think I'm too sexy, even - but I don't."

She lowered her eyes and her voice as she made the next, embarrassing confession.

"Part of me thinks I'm, like, not sexy enough yet... and I want... need ...to get men all horny so I know I am..."

"Why, there's nothing wrong with that." Elizabeth said, hiding her shark-like grin of victory in false sympathy. "You did this all to save your business, right?"

"Well, duh, yeah!" Debby agreed in the wonderful 'valley girl' intonation Elizabeth had encouraged.

"Well, that's all it is, you see." Elizabeth lied, serenely. "You're just worried that you are still too 'male', deep inside, to do the job. Once you get the right reaction out of the men, you'll know you are sexy enough to keep your business."

"Oh..." Debby said, blinking and thinking about it...

...but not too hard, and not too well.

Atier all, it was very hard to think straight when your body was constantly turning out roughly three times the normal level of sexual hormones a normal woman would feel while aroused, much less in a 'relaxed' state, as Debbi was supposed to be in now.

Of course, with no previous levels of female hormones to use as a meter stick, the new woman had no way of knowing that her sexual hormone were off the charts - and Elizabeth certainly wasn't going to tell her.

Just as Elizabeth wasn't going to mention the fact that Debbi was also pumping out equally ridiculous amounts of pheromones, which should certainly guarantee a good response from the men in the crowd, even if those men weren't quite sure why they were responding so enthusiastically.

"Gee, Liz..." Debbi said, with a huge smile. "Thanks. Now that you, like, 'splained it, I feel much better!"

Elizabeth grinned back - mostly because, what with her being 'drunk' on hormones, and with the reinforcement of those ultra-feminine memories and mindset, Debbi's emotional reactions were always on the over-blown side, just as her intellectual ones were on the shallow side...

...all of which meant that the man still at the core of the new woman was capable of feeling ashamed, embarrassed, humiliated and disgusted - but not of displaying any of those emotions, for the very reason that the were at the bedrock core of who she was, and so to far below the transient thoughts and emotions that did flit across her façade.

"Okay, Debbi." Elizabeth said, standing. "Well, I can't stay and chat with you all night, no matter how much I'd like to. You're on shortly."

" 'Kay!" Debbi said, with a giggle. "And, 'lizbeth? Thanks for, like, y'know, everything." This time, Elizabeth's grin and answer were sincere:

"My pleasure."

TO BE CONTINUED.

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: When a strip club owner is in need of a new star, his downstairs tenant offers to help him out; little does he know that she has a plan to transform him into the type of bimbo stripper that he has always looked down on. part two

Part Two

'The Booby Trap Gentleman's lounge welcomes you here tonight...' The amplified voice rolled out, cutting through the smoke-hazed air with it's crisp, clear tones.

Those listeners who might have bothered to consider it might have found the fact that a woman was DJ'ing at a strip club a trifle odd - but the DJ booth gave a great view of the stage, and it was the vantage point Elizabeth had chosen to watch a very special dancer perform.

Besides, none of the club's patrons bothered to notice the unusual discrepancy - because, eager and practically breathless with anticipation, they had other things on their minds.

Not that it was actually their minds that were doing the majority of their thinking for them at the moment...

An audible sigh of lustful anticipation slithered around the packed club as the house lights, dim at the best of times, slowly sank down into nothing, plunging the club into unrelieved darkness. In that darkness, the sound of Elizabeth's amplified voice seemed to be the single reed holding the collective male audience together as they stared at where they each believed the stage to be...

...not knowing that the other girls working at the club had also abandoned their usual 'hunt' between dancers, for once as eager as the male patrons to watch a performance.

'Gentleman, the Booby Trap is proud to present, for her debut performance, the one... the only... Miss Debbi DeLite!'

A single spotlight snapped into life, a far cry from the usual, multi-hued plethora of dim lights meant as much to conceal as to reveal the woman on the stage. This one, clear and unambiguous, picked out every detail of the object it lit...

...and as one, every man in the crowd inhaled sharply.

The woman centered in the pool of unblinking light was as much a work of art as a living, breathing woman.

Tall and slender and formed incredible, delicate precision, the woman wore white silk - and only the faintest pink hue to her smooth, flawless skin told where the unblemished silk ended and the perfect complexion began.

The outfit she wore was a highly modified ideal of a wedding dress, and in it's way, almost virginal - all the better to both heighten the similarities and highlight the differences in the woman who wore it.

Her hair, a massive, wavy mane of luxurious platinum-blond hair, was held in an elaborate style by the small tiara holding the token veil, lifting that mane of hair high before letting it spill down past the heart-shaped face and the slender, delicate shoulders. Her face was a study in innocent sexuality, from the huge, limpid blue eyes only barely hidden behind the sheerest and wispiest veil that hung just to the tip of her small, fine nose, to the full, sensual lips coated in a faintly pink shade of glossy lipstick.

The long, full 'train' of the erstwhile wedding dress was of the same, nearly transparent material, looking more like a faint mist rather than clothing as it did little to hide the long, finely shaped legs behind it, further encased in lace-embroidered white nylons.

Those long, gorgeous legs were balanced atop a pair of 'simple' white pumps with six-inch heels that served to exaggerate the sensual curves of her legs, as well as the firm, round curvature of her magnificent posterior.

The wispy skirt of the dress was attached to the high-hipped corset that served as the upper portion of the stylized dress, its silk-encased form tightly caressing the delectable, tiny waist and slender torso of the stunning woman - while the built in lace cups of the garment enclosed the woman's magnificent breasts.

Those breasts were each like a halved volleyball, incredible firm domes thrust proudly forth from her chest. It was immediately obvious that the cups built into the corset were completely unnecessary in terms of support, for those breasts were firm and high-set, with no sign of sag, the flesh as perfect and as unblemished as every other inch of her magnificent form.

For a long instant, she remained poised in that position, letting the men get a good, long look at her...

...and then the music started, and she began to move.

The music was a techno version of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, and might have served to highlight the virginal aspects of her costume - but it was belied by her incredible, sensual moves as she danced. In the first seconds of the song, it became immediately obvious to all the people watching that the woman was struggling with the music - struggling, that is, to slow down her routine to its 'staid' pace, the desire - the wanton need - to rip all her clothing off right then and there so that the men could admire her magnificent body a palpable force. Yet, somehow, that tangible desire didn't detract at all for her incredibly erotic dance routine as she slowly peeled off the articles of clothing one-by-one - and the smile on her full, sexy lips showed just how much she loved what she was doing, and, in turn, what it was doing to the men who watched her.

Of course, with would have taken a very keen observer indeed to notice the look in her eyes - the one that bespoke how much the very fact that she truly and deeply loved what she was doing was a torture unto itself...

'This.. This is wrong...!' Debbi thought to herself as she whirled and her swayed her way through her routine. 'I.. I shouldn't be enjoying this as much as I am...!'

'Enjoy' was much too mild a word to describe what she was experiencing, but she was incapable of admitting the true depth of her emotions to herself as she danced. She was loving what she was doing - and on so many levels, all of which tightened the humiliated, horrified grip her male memories held on her stunned mind.

She loved the way it felt to move so smoothly, so gracefully in this feminine body. With every muscle that flexed and relaxed, with every motion that caused her breasts to shimmy or her hair to slip silky across her neck and back, pleasure followed in its wake.

She loved the way that very same body felt under her own hands as she touched and teased herself for her audience's benefit, replicating with her own hands the very motions they wished they could do with theirs - and loving not only the way she fondled her own body, but the very thought that the men lusted to do likewise.

That, more than anything, she loved.

The thought that she was making these men horny. That they were enjoying seeing her feminine body. That she was causing them to have lustful thoughts about her.

That she was making these men want to have sex with her...

...and her body was practically on fire with that thought.

'I.. have to stop..!' She screamed at herself, silently as she neared the finale of her routine. 'This is too much! I.. I can't handle this! I don't want to feel so wonderful, so excited, so.. so...'

So turned on.

Her entire body was aflame with desire. Her nipples, large and thick and fully erect, felt painfully tight with the desire that had set her womanhood ablaze with a moist heat. Behind her full new breasts, her heart beat a rapid rhythm of desire that seemed to shake her whole body - and flood it with pleasure from the hormones of powerful arousal that coursed through every vein and capillary in her magnificent new female body.

The very worst part of it, the most horrifying part of the experience, and the one thing she hadn't had a chance to experience during her week of becoming female, was both simple and complex...

...she had no urge at all to actually stop what she was doing.

Oh, she was telling herself she had to stop, to 'go back' to how she was feeling before she'd first caught sight of the men and realized what their social attraction to her was doing to ramp up her own sexual attraction to them - but it was all a lie, and she knew it.

Just like when she'd been a man, the new woman she was didn't want to 'go back' and somehow lose this sexual desire, nor did she want to keep it at the same level. Perhaps, if it had been lower in intensity, there might have been a chance of her convincing herself that it would be best to 'calm down' - but not now, not feeling the way she did.

She wanted to get relief. Sexual relief.

In fact, every part of her, male and female, wanted to 'get laid'.

It wasn't surprising, actually., After all, the fact that she knew, intellectually, that having sex with men would be a bad idea. After all, how many times throughout human history had people, male and female, had sex even when they knew it was a bad idea? Now, sexual arousal had nothing to do with the intellect - and it wasn't designed to be denied, either.

She wanted to have sex with men. Very badly...

...and she couldn't even begin to convince herself that she wouldn't enjoy it. Enormously.

Sex felt good. That was really all there was to it - and it was a fact that every body knew. She was highly aroused, filled with the desire to have sex, which would definitely feel wonderful - and so it wasn't at all surprising that she was doing a piss-poor job of telling herself that her male upbringing's view that, despite the fact she was now a woman, her male history meant that having that wonderful, enjoyable, oh-so-desperately wanted sex would be somehow 'wrong'.

In fact, as she finished off the finale of her routine with a sensual strut that was a challenge to every man in the room, most of her was thinking about how very right it would be.

It was a feeling - and unwanted certainty - that would only grow as the night went on.

She had two more shows to do before the 3 a.m. closing, and each of those shows revved up the feelings of the first one - but they were hardly the most 'effective - arousing - part of the night.

No, it was the lap dances she did in between her shows that set every nerve ending in her feminine new body a-tingle with the desire to have sex.

Lap-dances where she didn't just get naked for men, but touched - and let herself be touched by - them.

Every touch of a man's hand awoke new desires - and imagined results of satisfying those desires. Every single time a warm, usually sweaty male hand touched soti thigh or full breast, it was in a wave of painless fire promising endless pleasure. Every time she 'danced' for a man, especially the private dances in the booths near the back of the club, she quite literally had to fight from giving into her new urges, her new desires...

...and each time, the will to resist eroded a little more.

Self-centered and male-centric, Debbi had no idea that what she was feeling was unusual - nor that it had been deliberately set up by Elizabeth. She, as a man, had thought all women secretly loved having sex with men, and it was only the desire to be able to hold back sex as a very useful bargaining chip kept them from indulging in it. So, as a woman, she found what she was feeling 'natural', not knowing that she had the desires of several women - and a mind-set far divorced from that of an average woman.

Not that thinking all women went through what she was going through made it any easier on the feminine man. The core of her self, the male inner her, was writhing and screaming in humiliation and disgust as what she was feeling slowly worked at the fading willpower of that central core, worming it's way towards satisfying the demands of her feminine new body - demands that her carefully chosen memories insisted should be met.

That she'd love to have met.

By the time the club closed for the night, the male inner core of her mind was cut off from the outside world, adrift on a raft of masculine upbringing among a sea of feminine desires. Every thought, no matter how mundane, was couched in phrases of that desire, everything she saw and heard and thought finding a way to become sexually suggestive. Every crevice became a vagina, every pole a cock. In the interior of her mind, the entire club, every stick of furniture, every piece of décor, had become a suggestive, sexual item, reminding her of all the pleasures a woman could expect from sex.

She was awash in lust - and it was a lust she couldn't banish. Worse - a lust she'd stopped wanting to banish.

Her mind swirling with sexual imagery, Debby was barely aware of Elizabeth watching her with a victorious grin as she came into the dressing room after her last dance. The other woman was only a background item as the dazed, incredibly horny woman floated through the world in a disconnected state, thinking only of sex.

Elizabeth watched, triumph surging, as Debby, apparently without thought, ignored the plain, figure-hiding sweatshirt and baggy jeans in the locker in favor of a sexy, revealing 'street clothes' outfit of a tight white leather skirt and a hot-pink spandex crop-top that barely encased her huge new tits. The nylons and shoes from her act finished the rest of her figure-flattering 'off duty' outfit as she rather numbly closed the door to the locker.

Her mind still whirling with sexual imagery and overwhelmed by the screamed demands of her body Debby was barely aware of Elizabeth even as the other woman handed her a motel key and explained to her that she'd booked a room in Debby's name at the motel down the block. In her condition, she was in no condition to question any of this, nor to feel fear at being 'kicked out' into the world at large while female.

Though the thought of leaving the club would have terrified her earlier that day, her current state didn't even let her consider it at this point. Instead, a small part of her mind was taking care of the minute-to-minute tasks of dealing with life while the rest of it dwelled on every sexual possibility the world could possibly have to offer - and several that it couldn't.

So, it was almost on a sort of autopilot that she let her feet carry her in a sexy, swaying stride out the side door of the club and into the cool air of very early morning.

She barely even noticed that cool air - because her entire body was warmed with the strength of her lust. Even as her body started walking in the direction of the motel, she reached up and lightly began caressing a spandex-enclosed breast, a dreamy smile on her lips as she replayed every touch on that breast by all the men during her shift.

However. As much as there were many things in the world her mind was too busy to pay any attention too, so were there things that, in her current state, she just couldn't ignore.

Like men.

More specifically, the lean, shifty-eyed guy lounging against a lamppost at the edge of the parking lot.

In other circumstances, she might have wondered what a man was doing, just hanging around an empty parking lot at this hour. Likewise, she might also wonder why, when he saw her, the man shot a quick look over her shoulder at something.

If it had occurred to her to notice that, she might have turned - and found Elizabeth standing in the club's doorway, shooting a thumb's up gesture at the man...

...but it didn't, so she didn't.

Instead, she was too busy staring at the man's crotch, and licking her lips hungrily. "Hey there, baby." The man said, openly eyeing her hourglass figure.

"Hey there yourself, handsome..." She heard herself reply, a hungry tone in her voice. Again, it was that small part of her brain that was having the conversation, disconnected from the rest of her mind which was busy thinking about all the 'fun' stuff she could do with the good-sized package the man boasted.

"You're looking hot, honey-buns." The man said, grinning at her.

"You too..." She said - and found herself stepping right up to him, her hand sliding down the front of his pants.

The man - a club patron named John - eyes widened in amazement. The skinny bitch who'd suggested that he might want to wait out here for the stripper to come out had been right about how much time the busty bimbo liked 'a good time' - but he certainly hadn't expected her to be this open!

If she'd been in any condition to reflect on it, Debbi would have been shocked and horrified about what she was doing at the moment - but the male part of her brain was thoroughly isolated from the 'real world' by the sea of lust, and all she could think about - as much as she was thinking at all - was satisfying the quite overwhelming needs she was feeling.

Though Elizabeth herself didn't know it, she'd done her job a little too well...

"Hey, easy babe..." John said, regretfully sliding the woman's hand out from his rapidly hardening cock. "You got someplace a little more private we can go..?"

"Huh...?" Debbi said, needing to touch the man - then it registered that he was willing to give her what she needed, just not right here or now. "Yeah - let's go to my hotel room, stud..."

Needless to say, John had no problem with that. Hand sliding down to caress one full, firm buttock as they walked, he had to keep his other hand free - to keep her from ripping open his pants in public as they headed to the motel.

Damn, but *t*was this one horny bitch!

That, of course, was the understatement of the year. Thanks to Elizabeth's over-zealous work, the combination of memories or hormones meant that Debbi was currently unable to conceive of the consequences of her actions...

...which was also the technical definition of 'legally insane'.

The particular insanity she was cursed with, of course, was 'nymphomania' - the inability to be sexually satisfied, to the point with where the need for the unattainable satisfaction controlled her actions.

Previously, locked into the club with only women around her, Debbi hadn't known the depth of her insanity. Letting her near men was like turning a coke addict loose in a cocaine processing facility...

...and, just as no amount of coke would satisfy a coke addict into losing the addiction, so would no amount of cock satisfy the cock addict Debbi had become.

Though she certainly didn't know it yet, Debbi had just embarked on a n endless cycle she wouldn't be able to break a cycle where she would be driven to sexual acts - only to find that they didn't satisfy her cravings, forcing her to seek even more sex...

...like she was right now, as they reached the motel room.

A bit wide-eyed, John unlocked the door and let them in - and only then could he stop the growing struggle he'd been involved in.

The struggle to keep Debbi from tearing their clothes off. The instant he 'dropped his guard' to close the door, she did exactly that, hands tearing at her own skimpy clothing, then going atier the clothes he wore as his own move to undress was entirely to slow for her own liking.

"Fuck me..." She demanded, tearing off his shirt while he gaped at her ripe, melon-like breasts.

"Yeah, babe.. just..." John said, trying to get her to wait as he tried to step out of the shoes keeping him from fully removing the pants and underwear she'd hauled down for access to his already hard cock.

She wasn't interested in waiting.

"Fuck me!" She screamed - and then wrapped her arms around his neck and used that leverage to bodily liti herself up, long legs wrapping around him as she eagerly impaled herself on his hard cock.

It wasn't a move just any woman could pull off - but she had the skills of a dozen women, and the determination to see it done. Even as he staggered back against the wall, hands coming down to support her full ass as he gaped at her in pleased amazement, she began undulating on his cock as best she could.

"Bed..." She gasped, writhing, her big tits grinding against his chest. "Fuck me on the bed..."

Gasping, hobbled by the pants down around his ankle and barely able to balance with Debbi writhing against him, John awkwardly made his way to the bed, where he literally collapsed down on top of her.

Now on the bed, Debbi unwrapped her long legs, allowing him more freedom of movement - but she never pulled free of the cock teasingly filling her aching cunt.

"Fuck me, fuck me, fuck me...!" She demanded breathlessly, working her hips. "I need to be fucked long and hard...!"

"okay, okay...!" John said, stunned by the rapidity with which it was all happening.

Every man dreamed of a hot, insatiable slut literally throwing herself at them - but none had ever truly contemplated what it would be like.

Almost in self defense, he began to fuck her, hard and fast - but not because he was an egotistical lover, only interested in satisfying himself (though he was), but because he was simply trying to keep up with this sexual whirlwind who was still demanding, over and over, that he fuck her - even as he was doing so.

"Harder!" She screamed. "Deeper!"

John almost wished he could comply - but the sex-crazed slut under him had already set up a pace as hard and deep as he could manage - and wasn't even remotely satisfied.

Even when he came, she wasn't satisfied, still - desperately - fucking his slowly softening cock. He had to literally struggle free of her frantic, fucking embrace.

"Geez, lady - you're crazy!" He blurted out as he hurriedly pulled up his pants and bolted for the door.

He couldn't possibly know how right he was...

...nor that Debbi would almost mindless seek out and fuck three more men that night before enough of an edge was taken off her hunger for her horrified mind to realize what she was doing and allow her to force herself to stop...

..at least until the sexual needs built up to the point when she lost control again, that is.

* * * * *

Eyebrows raised, Elizabeth checked the total in the ledger book for the third time.

She'd been more or less running the club for the past week, while the real owner had been... indisposed - but nothing had prepared her for this.

Tonight, the club had pulled in nearly as much money as it had during the entire previous week. "Well, well, well..." Elizabeth said in a thoughtful tone.

She'd had no idea that her little revenge plan would be so lucrative.

If she had, maybe she would have found a way to extend it. As it was, leaving Debbi around for the whole month was pushing how long Dennis could be missing. As she considered it wistfully, she gave a snort of sour amusement as she found no good way to explain his longer absence and then subsequent reappearance.

Hell, it would almost be easier to make Dennis disappear permanently... Elizabeth blinked - then shook her head angrily at the thought.

Oh, sure, she wouldn't exactly cry if Debbi was permanent - by it wouldn't keep pulling in the money it was now. No, even a woman as amazing as Debbi would eventually begin to pale, and to keep the sort of super-inflated income rolling in, she'd practically have to...

...to come up with a new and different super-hottie each month. Which, atier all, wasn't even all that difficult, now was it...?

Completely forgetting about Debbi, Elizabeth leaned back, eyes sparkling as she thought about all those male assholes who'd scoffed at her work over the years...

The End

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: Atier his twin sister discovers that he has been fantasizing about her in his journal, Rick is subjected to mind altering tapes and a new drug that turns his body into that of a sex starved bimbo.

This is the way it happened.

Sisterly Love

By Gunslinger

My sister and I were born minutes apart, in the wee hours of February 10th, 1974. The technical term for us, one boy and one girl coming to term at the same time, is Fraternal twins. Had we both been male, or both female, that would have made us Identical twins.

My sister was born all of two minutes, seven seconds ahead of me. In medical terms, the first born of twins is known as the 'Dominant' twin - a fact that I didn't find out until years later. I wish I had found out sooner. It might have given me warning.

Probably not.

My mother, a lovely blonde, born and raised in Sweden, named my sister Ingrid, passing on her Scandinavian heritage. I was named Steven, which was my father's middle name, and a good, All-American name for a kid.

Dad - sorry, Robert S. O'Sullivan, - was a fairly influential businessman, and a frequent world traveler. It was while on business that he met, fell in love with, wooed and married Greta Lamarr, who was to become my mother. She was a tall, slim, buxom woman with long, golden hair and twinkling blue eyes. She was so much the stereotypical Swede that she never seemed quite real to most people - it was like she was a Hollywood character brought to life. But to my sister and I, she was the most loving mother any child could wish for.

Unfortunately, she had to do double duty, as Dad was often away on business for weeks, and even months, at a time.

As Ingrid and I grew older over the years, it was soon obvious that we were our mother's children. From her we inherited the same slim build and golden hair. From birth until puberty, I never thought anything about it. Me, my sister, and my mother were a happy family, and just happened to share much the same looks.

And then, puberty struck. Well, for Ingrid first - that's the way it is. She kept her slender figure, but began to blossom into womanhood. Not terribly long after, it was my turn to hit the 'red zone' of puberty - and that's when I really began to notice my genetic background.

As she matured, the mix of my mother's Scandinavian genes and my father's Irish-American ones ended up producing a stunningly beautiful young woman. Ingrid shared the slender figure and golden hair of Mom, but shared the rich, green eyes of Dad, and a startlingly beautiful, high-cheekboned face with full, soft lips that was unlike either of our parents.

But, unfortunately, was nearly identical to mine. When we had been growing up, our remarkable similarity in build and facial feature hadn't bothered me. Now, as she matured into a stunning young woman, I matured into - a slim, almost effeminate looking young man. It was every pubescent boy's worst nightmare.

You wouldn't believe the taunts and laughter I endured as I emerged from puberty. Worse than the deliberate insults, much worse, was the innocent times when some stranger would mistake me for Ingrid's less attractive SISTER. I was mortified beyond belief.

In self defense, I threw myself into exercising, and worked on growing a goatee. Luckily, the beard grew in well, a rakish golden beard that made me look like a swash-buckling movie star from the 30's. If I only knew what a swash was, and how to buckle it, I would have been set.

Unfortunately, my exercise program wasn't as successful. Oh, sure, I put on some muscle, and became stronger and faster and healthier - but I still possessed the same slender frame. You have no idea how mortifying it is to have a waist measurement most girls would have killed for.

But, slowly, as my tormentors slowly matured themselves and out-grew the more childish jokes and taunts, life slowly settled down for me, and, with no other choice, I was forced to accept my slim build. I worked hard to maintain any sort of social life, and did alright in making friends. One of my best friends was a little odd himself - Wylie was also somewhat slender, in a almost 70's hippie look, and could always be counted on to say or do something off beat. But for the most part, the best I did with the girls was to reach the 'good friend' stage - and stop dead every time. I had neither the looks nor the personal magnetism that would ever bring women flocking to my side, a situation I could never remedy.

Meanwhile, Ingrid was cutting wide swaths through the male population. With her phenomenal looks, luscious legs, and firm C-cups, she had no problems in the romance area. Correction, she may have had problems in romance, but not in dating.

And then, at the age of 19, when it seemed that life was finally easing up on me, the heavy blow fell. My mother and father decided to go on a 'Second Honeymoon' to celebrate my Dad's early retirement. Arm in arm, they boarded the Aer Lingus 747 that would take them to Ireland, where my Dad was taking mom.

And, on final approach, in a thick, heavy fog, the pilot switched from instrument approach, and let the Ground Controller 'talk him down' using the new radar vector system just installed - with much hype - at the Dublin Airport.

Only, the installer, half-drunk at the time, had set the COLA - Computer Operated Lowest Terrain - wrong. Off by more than a hundred feet, it was telling the pilot of the 747 that he still had several seconds before flare out when the huge airliner slammed into the ground.

Out of the 228 people on board that night, seven survived. Neither of my parents were among that group.

It was a terrible blow to Ingrid and I. Dad had done very well for himself, so money wouldn't be a problem. And, we had the gorgeous old Victorian house to live in, with no mortgage against it. But, Dad had been an only child, and all of Mom's relatives were an ocean away. Of legal age, Ingrid and I were on our own.

Well, we managed to learn to be self sufficient. Ingrid took things hard though, and she changed. She started hanging around with a different bunch - she became colder and more arrogant, more sure of her self. She began dressing less provocatively than before, and threw herself into her studies in the Sciences. She also started dating a guy I thought was a first class asshole - Jason, quarterback of the collage football team, and even more self-centered and egotistical than Ingrid had become. Sure, he was broad-shouldered, and ruggedly handsome, but still. . .

Meanwhile, I was having my own struggle. I was a red-blooded young man, with no girlfriend and an eye for the ladies. And the most gorgeous girl I knew lived in my own house - and was my own sister. I was mortified at my reactions to the times I saw her walking half- naked around the house - and very, very aroused.

What I did next ashamed me - but I did it anyway. One weekend, while she was away at a Psychology symposium, I wired video and audio into her room and into my VCR. I admit, it was as much the guilty thrill as my sister's body that was turning me on at that point. When she returned, I started what was to be a six-month long habit of watching my sister dress and undress, exercise, prepare for the occasional date and - twice - have sex. It got to the point where I was taping segments, of her in clothes I thought she looked sexiest in, of certain exercises that did interesting things for her body - and of course, the sex.

Of course it was shameful, sick, - and, in forty-eight states, illegal. Including the state we lived in. But I couldn't help myself. Damn, Ingrid was gorgeous.

And, I thought I'd gotten away with it clean. There was no way she could find the hidden camera - if there was one thing I was good at, it was electronics.

I was eating breakfast, dressed in my boxers and a tattered old bathrobe, when Ingrid came in to the kitchen that morning. Pouring a cup of coffee, she sat down across from me.

"So, Steve, how things going?" she asked, sipping at the caffeine- laden beverage.

My eyebrow rose. We hadn't exactly been into small talk for the past couple of years, since Mom and Dad died. I swallowed the piece of toast I was chewing. "Fine, I guess" I answered cautiously.

"Holding out okay? Not bore or anything?" she asked, a little too intently. Knowing her, I was reading some signs - something was up. I just didn't know what.

"Okay sis, what gives?" I asked, sitting back and crossing my arms.

Seeing her little charade was useless, she became brisker, more the Ingrid I'd come to know and 'love'.

"The university has given me a research grant." She said briskly. "A simple psych test. What I need is a volunteer. It pays a hundred and fifty, and your name gets into the paper. Looks real good in your transcript too."

Aha. That explained it. I frowned thoughtfully and mulled it over. I really didn't need the money, but. . .

"Make you a deal." I said. "You need a volunteer, fine. I volunteer. You just gotta promise me that you owe me one - anytime, anything, I collect one favor." I grinned smugly.

"Look here. . ." she started angrily, then calmed down. "Okay. It's a deal."

With her easy capitulation, warning bells should have been clamoring in my mind, but I was too smug about 'pulling one over' on her, and missed the warning signs completely.

"When do you want me?" I asked, pouring my own coffee. "Tonight. Eleven o'clock." She said. My eyebrow rose again. "Kinda late, isn't it?" I asked, wondering.

She shrugged as she headed for the door. "Hey, that's what I told the committee. But, the schedule the labs, that's what I got. I'm still trying to get it changed. But it won't happen before tonight. Eleven. Don't be late." Her last word was punctuated by the door closing, and I shrugged. It wasn't like I had anything better to do at eleven.

And so, as the University clock tower stuck eleven, I was wheeling my Buick into the parking lot at the lab. Aside from two other vehicles, the place was deader than Disco. Even the Security guard at the gate had been gone, presumably answering some other disturbance, probably at the dorms on the other side of campus.

Surrounded by trees and berms of earth, the campus lab was a modern design that clashed horribly with the older, 'hallowed' halls of the original University - hence it's practical banishment from the rest of campus. Locking my car, I headed up the steps, and into the dim building. Finding the right lab wasn't hard - it was the only one with lights on.

"Hi sis." I greeted Ingrid as I strolled in. She looked almost professional in her long white lab coat, and the slacks and blouse underneath had to be tight enough to not make the lab-coat bulky, and so clung nicely to her figure. I tried not to be obvious about my glance.

"You're late." She said flatly, tapping her watch.

I shrugged. "The clock struck as I was parking. It took me, what, all of a minute, to go from there to here. Lighten up." She waved a hand dismissively. "I doesn't matter." She said. "Let's get started. Sit there, will you"

'There' was a hard-backed wooden chair, fitted with wide padded leather straps at wrist and ankle. "Hey," I asked, not counting on this. "Just what sort of test is this, anyway?"

She sighed angrily. "Look, it's simple." She said, guiding me to the chair and sitting me down. "It's a test to determine the correct level of behavioral feedback to a negative action on the part of the subject, and the monitoring of the reactions to the feedback." She explained as she firmly strapped me into place. I tried to work that one out.

Finally, I came up with a witty, professional response to her explanation. "Huh?"

Without warning, the most viscous grin I'd ever seen came to life on her beautiful face.

"I'm going to punish my sick, peeping tom little brother for video taping me and Jason fucking." She explained succinctly, holding up a video cassette I recognized instantly. My stomach dropped.

"Hey!" I protested. "How did you find. . . Let me out of here!"

I struggled helplessly in the bonds - then stopped dead as I watched in horrid fascination as my sister slowly picked up a long hypodermic syringe, filled with a murky liquid. Expertly, she made sure there was no air bubbles, and began walking towards me.

"Hey, Ingrid, it wasn't like that. . . " I said nervously. "What are you doing. Get away from me with that!" I was practically shouting by now.

She ignored it. Very efficiently, she used a length of rubber tubing around my immobilized arm. As I begged and pleaded with her, she calmly wiped my forearm with an alcohol swab, and injected me with whatever was in that syringe.

Truly worried - hell, downright frantic - I began to struggle harder. The only effect was that it sped up my heart-beat, making the drug flow faster in my bloodstream. Within minutes, I began to feel oddly disconnected, almost like I was dreaming.

"Dear, sweet, stupid Steven" Ingrid said mockingly. "Your loving sister's going to make everything all right. What I just injected you with is a little concoction I whipped up - it makes the subject so VERY receptive to post-hypnotic commands. In short, you'll do whatever I tell you."

"I. . . I don't have to. . . " I murmured blearily, my mind sluggish.

She leaned forward and spoke intently. "Steven. From now on, you will unhesitantly and completely obey every single command I give you. You will not try to outwit the intent of my commands, nor resist them in anyway. Is that understood?"

Without even thinking about it, I found myself replying "Yes, Ingrid."

She smiled wickedly. "Good. This will be fun. For one of us, at least. . . "

And that was it. I was enslaved. She just waited until the drug wore off, and I shook my head angrily, clearing the last of the drowsiness. "Just what the hell do you think you're doing?" I asked angrily.

She 'tsk'ed. "That's no way to talk to your mistress" she said sadly. "From now on, you will be completely unable to speak to me unless you use the nicest, calmest tones."

I tried to tell her she was crazy - and nothing came out. I worked desperately for ten minutes to yell, curse, anything at all, and failed. Finally, I admitted that she did, somehow, have some sort of power over me. I was going to have to play this game by her rules. At least for now.

"You bitch." I said reasonably, almost cheerfully. "You rotten, fucking cunt. You won't get away with this." She actually laughed, and I lunged forward - to be stopped dead by the restraining straps.

"Steve, I already have." She said. She leaned forward, looking me in the eye. "From this moment forth, not only will you be completely unable to attempt to harm or hamper me in anyway, but you will always be as helpful and accommodating as possible. Do you understand?"

I had no choice. Without consciously willing myself to do so, I said "I understand and obey, Ingrid." She nodded, satisfied at my submissive statement and tone, then unstrapped me and let me stand.

"I have a little more to do here." She said, handing me the video cassette. "I want you to go home and go to bed. I want you to get up tomorrow at 9, and play this tape. I've recorded over what was on it. You are to watch the tape, then do exactly what it says."

"Yes mistress." I answered. My voice was clam and submissive, but my eyes glowered angrily at her from thunderous brows. "Oh, and here's you hundred and fity bucks." She laughed, pressing the bills into my hand. "Ta ta, darling."

Helplessly, I went to my car and started it. All though she hadn't specifically told me to go STRAIGHT home, that had been the intent of her command - and I found that, no matter how hard I tried, I couldn't disobey. As soon as I reached home, I went straight to my room and crawled into bed, setting the alarm for nine the next morning.

The next morning I awoke promptly at nine, thanks to the alarm. I was dying for some coffee, and was surprised to find that Ingrid's command leti enough lee-way for me to make some and drink a cup, before sliding the tape in the VCR. It was odd - although I was helplessly in thrall to Ingrid's will, I wasn't acting zombie-like or anything. I was acting completely 'natural' - if you ignored that I was obeying my sister's commands, rather than my own free will.

I sat down and turned on the tape. Ingrid's face appeared on the screen.

"Steve, you will watch this entire tape through" the image of my sister said. "You will not consciously remember what is on this tape, but you will still obey all the commands I give you during the course of it. . ."

And then I was blinking, wondering what the hell had happened. Over an hour had passed, yet I remembered none of it. Whatever commands I had been given were blocked from my conscious mind. Obviously, Ingrid wanted things to be a surprise.

The first thing I found myself inexplicably doing was going into the bathroom and drawing a tub full of hot water. While it was filling, I helplessly found myself walking up to the sink, and all though I tried desperately - and in The End, futilely - to stop, I then shaved my goatee off.

Shutting of the water in the now-full tub, I found myself walking towards my sister's room. It came to a complete surprise to me when I went in and picked up her bottle of hair-removal cream.

Taking the cream, I returned to the bathroom. Carefully - and utterly unable to stop myself - I worked the cream onto my body, covering my arms, legs, chest, and even newly-shaven face, aside from my eyebrows. Then, I merely stood there for twenty minutes, unable to move.

Atier that humiliating period of time, I found myself climbing into the tub and taking a long, meticulous bath. As I washed, all my body hair sloughed off, leaving my fair skin soti and smooth. When I finally emerged from the tub, I was shocked and horrified to discover just how much I looked like my sister now.

Of course, there were still differences. Obviously, I didn't have her tits, and my own penis still dangled between my legs. Also, my hands and feet weren't as dainty and feminine as hers. But otherwise, I had the same long, and now, smooth, legs, the sparkling green eyes, and the full lips. I was getting a bad feeling about what Ingrid had planned for me.

Still obeying commands that I wasn't even consciously aware of, I dressed quickly, just throwing on jeans and a T-shirt. Then, grabbing my wallet and my keys, I hopped into my car. As I started it up and backed onto the street, I was in the odd position of having to wait and see where I was driving myself. It was one of the moments that my utter helplessness was truly driven home. Even though I was driving, I had no idea where I was taking me.

I found out soon enough when I pulled into the vast parking lot of the local mall. Locking the doors on my Buick, I headed across the lot the glass doors, gleaming in the sun. Opening them, I went inside.

As I walked through the mall, I realized that the furtive double looks I was getting from the other shoppers was an attempt to guess my gender. It was mortifying to realize that right now I was so perfectly androgynous that no casual look could tell if I were an extremely effeminate man, or a flat-chested, plain looking girl.

Well, I guess they got some sort of answer - at least, in their own minds, as I helplessly found myself turning into one of the women's boutiques that the mall housed. Helplessly, I tried to halt my traitorous body, but I was held fast in the inexorable grip of my sister's commands.

"Can I help you, uh miss?" The sales lady hazarded.

Since I wasn't even sure what I had come in for, I didn't think she could assist me that way. She certainly couldn't give me the help I REALLY wanted either. However, I realized that I had two choices - either correct her mistake, then proceed to purchase something here that would obviously be for myself, or try and spare myself some embarrassment, and fake my way through. . .

"No, I'll just look around." I said, trying my damndest to sound female. I had never had a particularly deep voice, and I was both glad - and disgusted - to hear just how feminine I could sound when I tried. My answer had emerged in clear, dulcet tones that sounded so utterly female, that the saleslady relaxed, positive she was dealing with a less fortunate member of her own gender.

"Of course miss. If you need me, just shout." She said, smiling. As she turned back to the display she was working on, I began to browse. The warmth at my ears informed me I was blushing in shame and embarrassment, and I was glad that the woman had turned away.

I walked around the store looking at the merchandise, not ever knowing what I was to buy, but sure that I'd know when I saw it.

I was right. Several items possessed an inexplicable and irresistible allure to me now, courtesy of my sister's commands. I found she must have added some information in that video - I found I had absolutely no hesitation in the sizes or colors of the items I bought.

Taking my selections, I went back to the front desk. Realizing I couldn't maintain the deception if I used my credit card, I paid cash, then took the two bags of items and headed back to my car.

I had thought that I would now head back home, but found myself aiming the long hood of the Buick downtown. To my horror, I found myself pulling to a stop outside of a store catering to all kinds of fetishes. Helplessly, I went inside.

The owner looked up as I walked in. He was tall and lanky, with greasy hair and bad teeth. He was dressed in a badly faded Hawaiian shirt, and jeans.

"Can I help you sir?" He asked. Obviously, in his particular line of work, he had no trouble distinguishing. He must get dozens of cross-dressers in on a regular basis.

To my shock, I opened my mouth and said "Yes. I need one of your number twelve packages, a seven, and one of your specials." I had no idea what the hell I'd just asked for, and wondered how on earth Ingrid had known.

Minutes later, he was handing me three boxes in plain brown wrapping. He quoted me the price, and I handed him my credit card. I waited impatiently, refusing to make small talk. I just wanted to get out of this place.

Finally, I threw my new purchases in the back seat with the others, and climbed behind the wheel. This time, I found I was heading home, and I dreaded arriving, and finding out the next phase - although, considering my purchases, I had a pretty good idea.

When I arrived, 'dear old sis' was waiting in the living room, dressed in a form-fitting latex bodysuit, and I realized how she knew what to have me get at that Fetish store. She'd obviously been there before.

"Oh, good" she purred, rising. "I'm glad to see you're back. I'm impatient to get started."

I opened my mouth angrily - and nothing emerged. She laughed at the look on my face as I struggled to curse her.

"Well now, since you don't seem to have anything to say. . ." Ingrid sneered. "From now on, any male clothing that touches your skin will cause unbearable burning sensations."

Instantly, I felt as if my body was on fire. Frantically, I tore at my clothing, pulling everything off, until I was standing stark naked in front of Ingrid, who was laughing at my frantic strip tease.

"Bitch." I said, politely. "I hate you."

She got a mocking look on her lovely face. "Oh, no you don't." She said sarcastically. "In fact, you're going to come over here and give me a long, deep kiss."

Helplessly, I walked forward, arms outstretched, and pulled her tight to my naked body as my lips met hers. I kissed her as passionately as I knew how - and in spite of everything, the feeling of her firm, latex clad body pressed against my skin caused my cock to stiffen as we kissed.

Ingrid pulled away and looked down. "Naughty naughty." She said, wagging her finger at me. "You are never, ever to get a hard on, or cum, unless I tell you to."

Immediately, my dick went limp, as if disconnected from my body. Ingrid smiled at this undeniable proof of her complete mastery over every facet of my existence.

"Okay, it's time for you to get ready. We're going out." She said, motioning me to pick up my purchases. Helplessly, I lited the bags, and followed her back to her room.

I found out what was in two of those fetish-store boxes.

"Look, Steve, you're about to get all that hair you took off back!" She mocked, holding up a massive wig. It was the same shade of golden blonde as my own close-cropped hair, but it was enormous, the long, wavy tresses shining under the light.

"And, look at this." She said, and pulled two objects out of the second box. Resting in her hands were what looked like two human breasts, their tone almost identical to my own flesh color.

"You're going to be bigger than me!" She laughed. "These are D- cups."

"Don't do this to me, Ingrid" I pleaded politely as I lowered myself into the chair at her command. She merely ignored me, and began to spread the adhesive on to the breast-forms. When she was ready, she carefully positioned them, carefully easing the tissue-thin edges smooth so that they blended imperceptibly in with my natural body.

There was no doubt that they were amazing realistic. Having paid for them, I knew they were extremely expensive, and it seemed that in this, like most things, the more you paid, the better you got.

The outer 'flesh' of the breasts were molded neoprene/latex, patterned and colored to look absolutely real. Even the nipples, small little nubs atop dark areolas, were fantastically detailed.

Inside, the breast was composed of a spongy, semi-liquid core, the created the exact feel and weight of a breast - and since the liquid also conducted heat perfectly, within a few moments the breast forms had warmed to match my own body temperature.

I stared in disbelief at the large breasts hanging on my chest. Aside from the lack of sensation, they were perfectly realistic, their weight shifting slightly with each breath I took.

"No time to admire you lovely new tits, Steve." Ingrid admonished then frowned. "Well, we can't go on calling you Steve, can we. From now on, you will only answer to the name Staci. Do you understand?"

"Yes, Ingrid" I answered helplessly. She smiled and continued with my debasement, teaching me how to put on make-up. She made sure that I only applied certain 'looks' in make-up - bright, glossy red lipstick, long black lashes, and more. Soon my face was a sensual visage, and if it had been possible, my own face would probably be giving me a hard-on, especially after I unwillingly lowered that massive mane of golden hair onto my head. It hung down to my ass when I stood.

Now it was time for me to dress.

"Now, from this moment on, wearing women's clothing will feel very pleasurable to you. At all time you will want to look and act as feminine and as attractive as you possibly can." Ingrid told me, and I shuddered inside at the thought of what my life was becoming. But I was truly helpless to resist. Going into the bag from the boutique, I followed Ingrid's instructions and donned my first female outfit.

First, a pair of black lace, French-cut bikini briefs, in which I carefully tucked my shrunken cock out of sight, simulating a woman's smooth crotch. I hated myself for feeling a pleasant sensation as it enclosed my body. Next, a black garter belt went around my hips. Sitting on the edge of the bed, Ingrid taught me how to roll the nylons up, and slide them up my legs. As the soot material slid up my legs, tiny sensations of pleasure flowed from the smooth fabric and into my smooth legs. The nylons were black, with a seam along the back. Ingrid thought they were what I'd look best in.

A black, demi-cup bra was the choice for enclosing my new breasts. With Ingrid's prompting, I spent a few minutes learning how to clasp the bra behind my back.

Below the rising, creamy mounds of my realistic tits, I helplessly wrapped a black leather corset. Ingrid took a great deal of pleasure in tightening the corset as far as it would go, compressing my already narrow waist to an unbelievably small dimension.

Over all of this went a black leather sleeveless vest. Its neck-line showed the gentle curves at the top of my breasts, and a tantalizing view of my new cleavage. The vest had ties at the waist, emphasizing my wasp-like figure.

With the vest, I donned a short, red-leather mini-skirt, molded tightly to my body. While Ingrid finished changing into a nice summer dress, I fitted my feet into my new shoes - black leather pumps with a 5 inch spike heel. Awkwardly, I stumbled across to the full length mirror, my new endowments bouncing and swaying behind the vest.

Ingrid came to stand beside me, and I looked at us in the mirror.

We would never be mistaken as anything other than sisters. But where Ingrid was stunningly beautiful, I merely exuded sex. My full, red lips, my heavily made-up eyes, my curvier figure. . . Inside, I was horrified to discover just how sexy a female I made.

For the next hour, Ingrid taught me how to walk in the spike-heeled shoes, until I achieved an erotic, sexy strut that was a direct challenge to men everywhere. At the same time, she had me talk endlessly, until I achieved my new 'female' voice to her satisfaction - a rich, smoky unbelievably erotic voice that would stiffen the cock of any man in earshot.

Now, Ingrid was ready to introduce 'Staci' to the world.

By now, it was early evening as Ingrid shut off the lights and locked the door. She 'thoughtfully' handed me 'my' purse, admonishing me not to forget the little details like that, and remember to act completely female at all times.

With my new, sensual stride (which set my chest into interesting gyrations), I helplessly followed Ingrid out to her car. Thanks to her commands, at all times I was now forced to act exactly like a woman. Inside, I was still Steve, horrified at what was happening to me, but to the world I was Staci, a sexy blonde with big tits.

"So, where are we going?" I asked Ingrid, and giggled - GIGGLED - like some brainless bimbo.

She smiled mysteriously. "You'll see, Staci." I had to be satisfied with that answer - it was all I was going to get.

Twenty minutes later we pulled up in front of a café-style restaurant, and we went inside, me helplessly wiggling my ass provocatively for the benefit of male onlookers. I wanted to die.

I didn't have that option though, and merely followed my sister as we threaded our way between the other diners. Then, I saw where we were heading, and although my transformed body didn't even break stride, in my mind I stopped dead as I stared.

Jason was sitting at the table, rising to his feet as we approached. As did the other young man at the table - my best friend, Wylie.

He stepped forward, smiling. "Staci!" he said, wrapping his arms around me. He pressed his lips against mine - and driven by my sister's command, I cooperated 'enthusiastically' in a long, passionate kiss, our tongues meeting and touching in each other's mouth. Finally, Wylie pulled away, and settled me in the booth, sliding in next to me and wrapping an arm around my shoulder.

Ingrid smirked. "Remember that work I had to finish up last night?" She asked. "Well, Wylie was it. He's programmed to be your boyfriend - and I want to react accordingly to him. Capice?"

Helplessly, I smiled, and one of my hands, of its own accord, began to caress Wylie's crotch lightly. "Of course I'll treat Wylie right" I told Ingrid indignantly. "I always treat my men right." Helplessly, I smiled at Wylie, and saw the despair, anger and shame burning in his eyes, like it did in mine. It was the only outward sign of our enslavement, and went unnoticed by everyone but us.

We ordered dinner, and to my lasting shame, I actually ordered just a salad and white wine, telling the waiter 'I have to watch my girlish figure', which prompted several remarks - unwillingly, I'm sure - from Wiley about just how good my figure was. Helplessly, I 'rewarded' him with another deep kiss, my red-glossed lips pressed firmly against his as inside I screamed.

After dinner, Ingrid 'suggested' we go to a night-club, and of course, Wylie and I accepted the suggestion with acclaim. With his arm wrapped around my slender waist, Wylie joined me in the back seat of Ingrid's car - and he fondled and kissed me, 'making out', the entire ride to the club.

We spent several hours there. To onlookers, we were a young couple - a slender, hippyish young man with his blonde, buxom, not too bright girl - who couldn't hide their mutual lust for each other. We danced, and I helplessly tried my damndest to be as erotic as possible in every move, grinding my hips against his, pressing my full fake breasts against his chest. It must have worked, as he spent all evening with a raging hard-on. The entire time, Jason and Ingrid made 'suggestions' as how we should stand, move, talk, etc., and I slowly became more and more bimboish as the evening progressed, turning into a veritable caricature of the brainless sex kitten.

Needless to say, Wylie was programmed not to become 'upset' when I also included other men into my come-ons, dancing with complete strangers. At one point, a muscular young man bought me a beer while Wylie was in the can, and I thanked him with the sexiest kiss I had ever given - or received, for that matter - which he accepted while fondling my firm ass.

As for the washroom, I made a mistake - I went into the guy's room without thinking about it. I can tell you, a bunch of guys had sudden problems pissing as their dicks went rock-hard. Instead of beating a hasty retreat, I helplessly found myself flashing the guys a quick view of my tits, opening my vest and letting them ogle.

"Hey, just thought I'd advertise" I found myself saying. "I'm here with a guy tonight, but if you see me by myself someday, at the mall or something, come up and tell me where you saw these babies. . ." and I lightly fondled my fake tits suggestively, ". . .and I'll treat you to a feel." And, tossing my huge mane of golden hair, I buttoned the vest, and went out.

Going into the women's room, I took a stall and did my business. Despite being in a room with gorgeous women chatting back and forth, describing their fantasies and rating men - and what they'd like those men to do to them - my cock remained pathetically shriveled as I pissed. When I finished, I spent a few minutes chatting with some of the women, learning new make-up and dating tips, discussing who was the hottest guy in the movies, and - god help me - touching up my make-up.

It was the most disgusting, degrading, utterly shameful night of my existence - and it wasn't over yet. It was like I was no longer myself, but a man's mind trapped in the body of a bimbo, who was in control. But the truth was, it wasn't a bimbo in control - it was my sister, whose depths of depravity I'd never even suspected. Finally, we left the club, and piled into the two cars for the ride back to Ingrid and my place. Again, Wylie was driven to 'make-out' with me on the ride back, while my sister smirked in the rear-view mirror.

Arriving back at our place, we all went inside. I led Wylie, Ingrid's commands making me 'want' to display my sexy strut to Wylie from every angle, including behind.

Ingrid eyed us, smiling wickedly. "Jason and I are going to my room to fuck." She said bluntly. "Why don't you to go into Staci's room and take turns sucking each other off? Then get some rest - I have a big day planned for Staci tomorrow."

Helplessly, driven by our unswerving obedience to the biggest bitch in the universe, Wylie and I complied. We rushed to my room, shutting the door behind us. We kissed each other hungrily as we frantically stripped each other.

Then, shame burned in me like a flame as Wylie - a kind, gentle young man, and my best friend in the world - knelt, and sucked me off. Because Ingrid had given me the okay, my dick was like a rod of iron, and I had no trouble pumping my cum into his 'willing' mouth.

Then my shame redoubled, becoming a furnace, as it was my turn. Sexily, I kissed his lips, tasting my own jism, then slowly worked my way down his naked body, ending up on my knees before his erect cock.

Although it was my first time, Ingrid's commands had guaranteed that I would dredge my mind for every scrap of knowledge, and I performed like a veteran cock-sucker. My full lips enveloped his hard, throbbing cock, and my tongue worked tirelessly on his knob as my lips slid up and down his veined shati. One hand worked the shati in time with my ruby- red lips, while the other fondled his balls. Here I was, sucking my best-fiends cock, making little sounds of 'enjoyment' in the back of my throat.

Soon, he came. My actions, and Ingrid's commands, had ensured he'd maintained a hard-on all night long, and he'd built quite a back- log of cum. As he stiffened, that entire spray of hot, salty jism gushed into my mouth, and I swallowed 'hungrily', helplessly 'eager' not to spill a drop.

Helplessly, I looked up at him. "Ummmm. . . , you taste wonderful," emerged unwillingly from my full, cum-coated lips.

Finished, we moved to my bed, and, wrapped in each other's arms, and kissing each other's cum-flavored mouth, we fell into a deep, nightmare filled sleep.

We awoke the next day to the sound of Ingrid commanding us to get up. She came in and ordered Wylie to dress, and sent him home. Once he had leti, she used a special dissolver to remove the one-use-only tits from my chest, and I felt relief, thinking the ordeal was over. Outwardly, my imposed bimbo persona, cried and begged Ingrid, wanting her tits back, and hating her flat figure. I thought if this went on any longer, I would have developed schizophrenia between my two personalities. Again, I mentally sighed, glad it was done with.

I was wrong.

Ingrid produced a long syringe, and mentally I cringed. She smirked. 'This,' she said, injecting me, "is a little genetic cocktail I whipped up. Basically, it's a type of cancer - but a very special type. It goes through your body, replacing one of your double X chromosomes with a Y chromosome. In this case, I had a wonderful, compatible Y chromosome in mind - I snatched a few from Debbie Smith when she helped me with a lab project."

That got me worried. Debbie, a freshman at the collage, was in constant therapy due to an actual, and despite porno tapes and mags, extremely rare, case of Nymphomania. It was a genetic 'screwup', in which a person basically received to complete, functioning, sets of female glands, doubling the amount of female hormones produced - and causing a near-constant state of sexual arousal. In short, constant horniness.

Since it would take some time for the 'Y-Cancer', as Ingrid called it, to take effect, she had me dress in the outfit in the third box from the fetish store - an extremely short, sexy French-maid uniform, complete with 6 inch spike heels and white lace cap. As I dressed in the satin and silk ensemble, I hated myself for enjoying the touch of feminine fabric against my smooth, hairless skin. I set about my routine of cleaning, obeying Ingrid's command to try and make every movement a symphony on sensuality.

I succeeded.

And, as the day progressed, changes slowly became evident. The pressure on my incredibly tight corset began to ease as my waist slowly shrunk. At the same time, my nipples began to itch, as small domes began to form behind them.

At this point, I developed a sudden and irresistible craving for fatty food. Ingrid thoroughly enjoyed the sight of me desperately shoving handfuls of butter-coated cheese down my throat, trying to meet my body's demands for the fat it needed to produce my breasts and expanding, swelling ass.

All day long, I tried to stop myself from cramming my face, knowing if I could deny myself the fat, my body would be limited as to size of breast and ass - but, even without a command from sis, the desperate need to eat was too strong to ignore.

At the same time, odd, unpleasant sensations were coming from my crotch, and I was fairly certain why my lacy panties seemed to be fitting better and better with each passing hour.

At about noon, Ingrid gave me a break to get a shower and redo my make-up. 'Thankfully,' I swayed off to the bathroom, turned on the water, and stripped down.

I struck a pose in the full-length mirror on the back of the door, 'admiring' my changing body.

My waist had pinched in several inches, almost as much as the corset had provided artificially. My ass was fuller and rounder, but still firm, becoming the vaunted and much admired 'teardrop' shape. My face seemed a little smoother and more feminine, and my Adam's apple was noticeably smaller. And my cock, hanging between thighs that were becoming soti and silky, was now a small nub, barely visible at all, along with my nearly vanished balls.

And, riding high on my chest, were a pair of perky, large nipples B- cups of my very own.

Turning away from the mirror, I carefully and 'lovingly' washed every inch of my transforming body, then towed off, and resumed my maidly duties.

Over the next few hours, my traitorous body continued to change. The neckline of my dress slowly tightened under the pressure of my expanding breasts, but I was constantly tightening the apron straps around my slimming waist.

Finally, at six o'clock, Ingrid told me to go get ready - Wylie was coming to take me on a date. Obediently, I went to my room to change into something more 'appropriate'.

As I stripped, I once again surveyed my own body. At this point, I was fully, utterly female. Between my shapely thighs rested a moist, wet slit - my cunt. I knew that whatever happened to me, there was never, ever any chance of going back to what I had been before.

And to emphasize that fact, a pair of firm, round D-cup tits thrust proudly from my chest, my large nipples poking impudently from them. My Staci persona was ecstatic about my new endowments, fondling them lightly, and I shuddered in pleasure at the new, and erotic sensation - and hated myself for enjoying it.

I dressed in the clothes Ingrid had laid out for me. First, the silk black nylons slid up my long, luscious legs, hugging their shapely forms. Next, a skin-tight black latex mini-dress. It clung to my full, ripe ass, slender waist, and large, round tits. Its sweetheart neckline displayed my delectable cleavage, and the way it shone emphasized my every womanly curve.

Then, I pulled on the latex opera gloves over my hands and up my arms to the arm-pit. Sitting at the desk, I carefully applied my make-up, emphasizing my full, kissable lips and bright, glorious green eyes.

Instead of the long, golden wig, Ingrid had put out a big, curly platinum blonde 'do, which it carefully positioned, framing my face in silver/white curls.

For jewelry, a black leather choker went around my neck, and long, silver clip-on earrings adorned my lobes. A silver bracelet went around my right wrist.

Then, I put on my shoes. Black leather, they had a six-inch spike heel, and leather straps that wound around my legs until they disappeared under the hem of my short, skin-tight dress. I was ready - a sexual vision guaranteed to harden the cock of any male in sight.

The doorbell rang, and I jiggled and swayed to the door, opening it to let Wylie in. "Hey, gorgeous." He said, kissing me. "Ready to go?"

"Ready, willing and able, lover" I said in my sexiest, most seductive voice. I followed him out to his car.

We went to the movies. In the darkened theatre, Wylie's hands roamed across the slick surface of my dress, feeling the luscious curves it contained. At the same time, my transformation continued, and I could feel my enlarging breasts straining mightily in their confinement.

By the time the movie let out, every guy was watching me as I swayed sensuously across the lobby. The changes in my body had finally come to a halt, leaving me a package of pure sex.

My measurements were 44DDD - 17 - 39, and every inch was now tightly packed in a latex dress strained to its limit. Having literally grown into the dress, it was impossibly tight, and my extraordinarily large nipples were visible under the strained material. As Staci, I was in rapture about my glorious new figure - but the real me, Steven, was screaming helplessly in the vaults of my own, enslaved brain.

"Oh, Wylie, fuck me" I begged in a low voice as we got into the car. I was horrified to hear myself begging for sex. "Right here, right now."

I felt relief when he looked at me and said "I can't Staci. Not here." Helplessly, I pouted - sexily - and said "Why not?"

He shrugged, starting the car. "Ingrid wants to watch." He dropped the car into gear, and headed back to my place. Knowing what was in store, my mind made a desperate, last-ditch attempt to take over my body - so I could throw myself out of the speeding car.

I failed.

We arrived at my place, and Wylie escorted me in. Ingrid was waiting in the living room as we entered, and I found myself begging her.

"Please, let Wylie fuck me now. I need it, I'm so horny. . ." And, to my horror and dismay I found I was, indeed, becoming unbelievably horny. Hormones began to run rampant through my new, curvaceous body, and I found myself actually WANTING relief for my phenomenal new sex drive.

"Go right ahead." Ingrid said, smiling wickedly.

Hungrily, I began to kiss Wylie as my hands stripped him. He returned the favor, removing the latex dress. Under it, I wore no panties or bra, and the rest of my clothing didn't impede what we were going to do, so I let it on.

Wylie began to fondle and suck my round, sensitive tits, his tongue flicking across my huge, engorged nipples. I threw my head back and moaned, as erotic sensations coursed through my body, arousing me even more. I couldn't wait. I needed relief, and I let Wylie know - by hauling him down to the ground, where I lay back and spread my luscious, nylon clad legs.

He needed no more prompting. Wasting no time, he introduced me to the penultimate proof of my new womanhood.

He slid his hard, throbbing cock deep into my sopping cunt, thrusting powerfully. As he began to rhythmically pump his rod into me, I began to buck my hips and thrash my head side to side. An indescribable, unbelievable sensation was building in me as I felt him filling my new cunt, creating sensations INSIDE of me, unlike anything I'd ever experienced.

My first female orgasm built like a train thundering down on me. The sensations swept over me in erotic waves, and I began to scream, begging him to fuck me harder, until I burst into orgasm, my body quaking with the force of the pleasure smashing through me.

And it triggered Wylie, and his hot seed pumped deep in my steamy cunt. At that instant, Ingrid stepped forward, and injected Wylie in one up-turned buttock.

"Let's see how he looks as a girl, shall we?" Ingrid said as he yelped, and withdrew from me. Ingrid contemptuously told him to go home and stay there until the change was complete, then come back.

As for me, she had other plans. . .

She had me use the bidet to clean my sopping cunt, then helped me back into that dress. Following her, I went out to the car and climbed in, as she gave me my instructions.

A while later, we pulled up outside of the house of the Dean of Students at the University. Climbing out, I swayed provocatively up to the front door and knocked.

A moment later the door opened, and Dean Anderson, a somewhat handsome man in his early forties, looked out, his cock stiffening in his pants at the sight of the sex-goddess on his doorstep.

"Can I help you miss?" he asked, trying - and failing - to drag his eyes from my cleavage.

"Oh, yes." I cooed, and pushed him back as I stepped inside, closing, but not locking, the door behind me.

"What are you doing?" He asked, surprised. "You, you had better leave." He continued, with no conviction in his voice. His hormones certainly didn't want me to go.

I wrapped on arm around his neck and pulled his lips to meet mine as I kissed him sensuously. My other hand slid down his body and unzipped his trousers, setting his rigid cock free. Slowly, sensuously, I slid to my knees - and gasped.

He had the thickest cock I'd ever seen.

Only slightly longer than usual, it was incredibly thick, and flushed almost purple with the blood rushing through it. He filled my mouth completely as I slid my soti, glorious lips down its length, and began to pump his shati with my latex-clad hand.

And as his hot, salty cum gushed down my throat, I injected him with Ingrid's mind-control serum.

That was where Ingrid and Jason's plan started. With the Dean her willing subject, Ingrid got the faculty next. Then, from there, she took over the student body as well.

Of course, they couldn't transform everyone. Not only would somebody notice, but then there would be no men to fuck us women. Ingrid limited her transformations to a select few, but her and Jason used the mind-control serum whenever possible, reveling in their expanding power.

Wylie turned out to be a cute, tomboyish woman, and quite athletic. Between us, we covered most of the range of men's tastes, and Ingrid used us to seduce new men into the fold - and, of course, we're getting fucked almost constantly.

Our next step was to work on the assistant head of the F.B.I. Thanks to a fondness to buxom blondes, he soon fell into the trap of Ingrid and Jason. With his help, we got the Director of the Bureau, and atier that, it was a simple matter to have all agents take their mandatory 'inoculations' - and Ingrid and Jason controlled the most powerful Law Enforcement agency in the world.

With the power of the F.B.I., it wasn't hard to start a systematic job of taking the key figures in smaller police departs. It will still be a long time before Ingrid gets every beat and patrol cop, but most Chiefs, Sheriffs and deputies are already hers.

And then, one of Ingrid's slaves found a site on the internet. TGStories, dedicated to trans-gender fiction. And too delicious an irony for my sick, demented sister to pass up.

With a brief word to the local cops, the sys-op was soon converted to a helpless slave as well. With that edge, Ingrid soon found a story that would work perfectly. With a little bit of fiddling, the story you are now reading will go up on that site, from which Ingrid has already gotten all the membership information, including names and addresses, tracked down via F.B.I. computer.

This file is flagged. When you read it, it will alert the main F.B.I. computer. Of course, once she had your name and address, Ingrid could have come anytime. But she wanted you to know what was coming.

She's given me permission to try and warn you, if I can. THIS IS NOT A STORY. This is real. Right now, while you took your time over the story, my Sister and her boyfriend have dispatched someone to come and enslave you to. Don't hesitate. Don't pack. JUST RUN! Take whatever cash you have, and use you bank card and credit card to get as much cash as you can, then throw them away. The F.B.I. can track you when you use them. Don't tell ANYBODY where you're going - they might be one of Ingrid's already.

Ingrid says it doesn't matter if I warn you. You won't believe it. You'll think it's just a story, with an interesting ending. And when, sometime in the next hour, there comes a knock on the door, you'll remember this story, and laugh.

You'll go to the door, and open it. And let us in.

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: A slum lord is ordered by the court to spend 90 days in one of his own building, little does he know that it is going to lead to a permanent change of appearances.

Slum Lord

SLUM LORD

BY GUNSLINGER

“The defendant will now rise...”

Calm, cool, confident, the lean young man with the neatly styled shock of jet-black hair rose gracefully from behind the heavy oak table on the left-hand side of the court-room. Meticulously shaking straight the razor-sharp creases in the trousers of his imported silver-gray suit, the handsome man faced the older woman sitting behind the imposing bench.

“Terrence Robert LaChance...” The silver-haired woman intoned, peering through her silver-rimmed spectacles at the paper she held, rather than the man before her. “In light of the circumstances, and given the advice provided by council on both sides of this issue, it is the decision of this court that you be sentenced to spend a total of no less than ninety consecutive days under house arrest, said sentence to be carried out within an untenanted unit of the building owned by the defendant at 816 Second Avenue. Sentence is to begin immediately. Failure to comply with said sentence at any point during the ninety days will automatically convert into three times the remaining duration of the sentence, to be served in county jail. This is the decision of the court, so noted and recorded on this, the seventeenth day of...”

Realization of what he’d just heard finally managed to make it through to Terry LaChance’s forebrain, and he tuned out the rest of the Judge’s drone as his face fell into lines of shocked disbelief. Almost as if spring-driven, his head whipped around and he stared at the tall, not unattractive woman standing next to him in a white silk blouse and tailored black skirt – his lawyer, the one who had confidently assured him every step of the way through the trial that there was no way any punitive measures would possibly be brought against him.

She looked back at him, evincing neither surprise nor dismay.

“Guess you can’t win them all, Mr. LaChance.” She said, with an unrepentant shrug. “Better luck next time...”

Gathering up her satchel-sided leather briefcase, his lawyer turned and headed off towards the court-room door, the sensible heels of her black pumps clacking on the marble floor.

Still too stunned by the completely unexpected verdict to think straight, Terry took a half-step in that direction, as if to follow her, to demand an explanation...

...but he stopped dead before completing that single step, and it wasn’t voluntary.

Swallowing heavily, Terry turned and craned his neck to look up at the unsmiling face of the very tall, very muscular black bailiff whose ham-like hand had just clamped down on his shoulder.

* * * * *

“Great...” Terry sighed, staring at the thick, rust-colored sludge oozing from the showerhead. “Just... fucking... great...”

Leaving the hot-water tap fully opened in the – probably vain – hope that hot, clean water would start coming out of it sometime before his three-month incarceration was completed, the naked young landlord padded out into the tiny, minimally furnished bedroom of the apartment and dropped onto the cheap, metal-framed bed. With another sigh, he looked around ‘his’ apartment.

It was one of the many untenanted apartments in his building. As it happened, the building itself was a forty-four unit edifice, comprised of ten units on each of the above- ground floors, and five in the basement. Of those units, only twenty-three were occupied.

Contrary to 'logic', the basement apartments were the most 'popular'

– not only the cheapest, they were also the most secure to be had in the low-security old brownstone building.

Second best were the ten first-floor units. The windows of all above-ground units had been reinforced over the years with first metal bars, and then layers of metal mesh. The combination meant that there was next-to-no chance of anybody actually gaining ingress – or, in the not-completely-unlikely event of fire, making egress – out of the thin slots between the heavy, unlovely steel bars, but the windows themselves got broken with monotonous regularity.

The other eight occupants of the building were scattered about on the second and third floor – but, the fourth floor had been complete vacant until Terry had claimed one of the ‘penthouse’ apartments. Identical in every way to the lower apartments, with no particular advantage in size, cost, or quality, the lack of a working elevator made them less-the-popular...

...which meant that, by choosing the one with the sturdiest, (read, ‘bashed-in-and-hastily-repaired’ the fewest times) door, Terry did the best he could to keep himself from being bothered by the people he was renting apartments out to.

Drug addicts and drug dealers. Hookers. Pimps. People who were willing to pay a little too much for much too little, simply because Terry had made it a quite explicit point never to ask for references or I.D.

That fact brought a wry smile to the rangy, dark-haired young man’s face as he pushed himself up off the squeaky old bed and padded towards the kitchen.

If memory served, his building was currently home to at least a dozen ‘John Smiths’, a handful of ‘Does’, both John and Jane, and an Elvis Presley who was not only surprisingly alive and well, but surprisingly black...

...and now he could add on Terry LaChance to that list, he thought glumly, smile fading.

Well, there were a few tiny little bright spots – and one of them was the ‘basic supplies’ his lawyer had laid on.

All the food and deliveries had been arranged through the court, since for the next 90 days his accounts were locked to him – done to ensure he didn’t radically upgrade his own living conditions while leaving his tenants in squalor. Fails him she might have in court, but at least the ‘legal beagle’... which, as mental labels went, translated into ‘bitch lawyer’ in Terry’s mind – had made sure he had plenty of good-quality food...

...and even higher-quality booze.

Grabbing a bottle of single malt-scotch, Terry extracted the cork with a soft, moist ‘pop’. Fishing one of the plastic ‘glasses’ out of the cabinet, he poured himself a very generous amount of the fragrant, golden liquid, and took an appreciative sip.

...and then another.

...and another...

...and another...

...and when he found the glass empty, well – what the hell else was there to do in this shit-hole but fill it back up again...?

* * * * *

Terry moaned.

That, in and of itself, was hardly surprising at all.

It seemed that a trio of Consolidated Edison guys had decided to take up residence in his skull and go to work with the industrial sized-jackhammer. They must have failed to 'call before they dug', for they'd apparently hit a sewer-main... because said sewage was now flowing unimpeded into his mouth.

All in all, the makings of a near perfect Force Ten hangover.

Given that he felt like he'd been run over by a Mack truck, leti roting in the sun for a week or so, and then somehow brought agonizingly back to life, the minor facts that he couldn't seem to catch his breath properly and that it felt as if somebody had kicked him in the torso, repeatedly, with steel-toed jackboots, wasn't as immediately, overwhelming attention-grabbing as it might have been under other circumstance.

That was, until he tried to sit up...

It should have been a scream. Terry wanted it to be a scream. Unfortunately, there simply wasn't enough oxygen in his lungs to create that amount of volume – instead, what came out sounded remarkably like that moan that he'd given off several seconds before, as if nothing more fateful than a mind-shattering hangover was in the works.

His eyes popped open, and Terry stared up at the unfamiliar ceiling, drink-befuddled mind slowly bringing him back to the last remember 'present' even as the real, current present was desperately trying to get his attention through the simple expedient of the direct and massive application of pain.

Instinctively, as men are wont to do, terry's hands flew injudiciously to the site of the pain... and for several eternal seconds, his lean fingers flitted aimlessly across what they found there, his mind simply not ready to accept a possibility so far out of the scope of anything he could have possibly imagined.

Hard, formed material. Buckles and straps. Tight-fitting over contours that were undeniably... wrong. He... was wearing a corset.

"What the fuck...?" He damned and explanation from the Universe in general, his voice barely more than a hoarse whisper. However this impossible situation had come about, the unexpected device strapped painfully tight around his midsection was constricting the lower portion of his lungs so badly that a few, half-whispered words were the most he could get out with each shallow breath.

Lititiing his head despite the intense pounding it occasioned, he stared uncomprehendingly down at the glossy red fetish garment that had appeared around his waist – more than his waist, in fact, the garment rising from upper hip to lower chest. From this ankle, perception seemed to be vastly skewed, making his waist look much, much thinner than even a tightly constricting garment could possibly create. Numbly, his fingers flitted about the buckles and straps of the corset, searching for release, but there was a bit of twisted wire running through the buckles, impeding his effort. He fought at the stubborn, twisted wire, trying to free the buckles, annoyed at having to keep pushing a little cardboard card attached to the wire out of the way to get at the braided ends...

...a little cardboard tag....

...a tag with bright, bold red lettering on one side...

...and, just as his fingers had found purchase and begun unraveling the braided wire, those few, bold letters had managed to impinge upon Terry's frightened, confused, pain-shrouded consciousness:

REMOVE THE CORSET AND YOU WILL DIE.

For several long moments, Terry simply stared at the stark writing, befuddled and fearful mind trying to work through the implications.

It couldn't be true... could it?

If it wasn't true, and he left the corset on, given how much pain it was giving him, how much damage would it do...? If it was true though, and he took the corset off...

He looked down at what seemed an impossibly miniscule waist. A waist that shouldn't have been possible on his body – not short of some sort of surgery, at any rate...

...and that's when the question of just long he'd really been out cold raised its ugly head.

He'd been drinking 'last night', and woke up 'the next day' with a hangover – but he'd been out cold when somebody had put this corset on him, because he knew damned well he hadn't put it on himself. Which means at least some events had occurred that he couldn't remember – and that meant it could have been a much longer time between 'last night' and now than he'd first assumed.

"Help..." he whispered hoarsely to himself. "I need to get help" Painfully – very painfully – he began the task of getting out of bed.

It was such a simple thing that nearly everybody in the world managed first thing every day – and yet, for Terry, it was now a laborious, painful task to be performed, an obstacle to be overcome.

There was no way he could just 'sit up', as the first action usually would be. Aside from the agonizing pain it would cause to even try, one more thought to the hard, plastic-like material of the corset indicated that his abdomen just didn't bend like that anymore, not when encased in this.. torture device.

Instead, ever so slowly, he had to roll himself to the edge of the bed – and even that was difficulty incarnate, as he couldn't use the abdominal muscles to roll his body.

When finally managing to get to the edge of the bed, laying face down on the thin mattress, he draped one arm and one leg over the side. Due to the difference in distance between knee-joint and elbow, he had to brace himself mostly with one arm – and he was never the really physical type. Oh, sure, he was in good shape, but it was a lean and sculpted sort of shape, not the 'knock out twenty one-armed pushups', Jack-Palance-at-the-Oscars sort of shape.

The fact that he could draw only the shallowest of breaths didn't help the matter any, either.

Still, the mere thought of the sort of pain he'd own should he simply 'fall out' of bed gave him all the motivation he needed to make as smooth a transition as possible from laying face-down on the bed to being on his hands and knees on the floor.

The task of getting out of bed accomplished, he faced a much harder one- standing up.

Much as he would have 'loved' to simply crawl out into the living-room, where the apartment's sole phone was located, the corset denied him that ability. Arms and legs weren't the right length for that – when crawling, one arched the spine to balance the two out, and that was beyond him. The infantryman's 'low crawl' would have been possible given the movement limitations – but the pain was another matter.

No – he'd have to walk... which meant he'd have to get to his feet.

It took half an hour, and prodigious use of the support of a nearby wall to get him tenuously on his feet – and, once there, he very nearly passed out.

He wasn't quite sure, afterwards, just how long he stood there, gathering his strength and trying futilely to catch his breath. Vaguely, in the back of his mind, he was remembering a story he'd once about mountain climbers, 'way back when', before oxygen bottles were easily available – a story in which the method of movement was described as 'take a step, pause to take a breath'...

Thanks to the constriction of the nightmarish device around his waist that he was growing to hate even more with each passing second, he finally understood what it was that those mountaineers had been experiencing – not laziness nor exhaustion nor even prudence, but simple physical necessity.

It took him more than an hour to make his way to the living-room couch.

Step – and the world would grow dim and gray around him as that simple effort used all of what little oxygen remained in his constricted lungs.

Pause – sipping air in short, fast pants, for however long it took for his lungs to stop creaming, for the world to once more return to clarity.

Step...

Finally, achieving his goal, he sat on the couch for several minutes, gathering himself. He would have loved to 'slump' on the couch, but that option was denied him – the damnable corset ensured a rigid, spine-straight posture.

Finally, a bit rested, he picked up the handset of the phone...

..and it was all he could do not to cry when he heard the monumental nothing at all of a dead line. He jiggled the disconnect futilely, not even knowing what that was supposed to do – it was simply something he'd seen in the movies – but, deep down, he already knew the truth.

Whoever had imprisoned him in the corset – and done whatever other things he was now coming to believe more and more strongly had been done to him – they had also cut his phone line.

He felt the aching pain of his constricted. He gasped for air. He was sore and tired and half-defeated- and he looked over at the front door to the apartment, which was at least as far away from the couch as the couch had been from the bed.

Then, almost of their own will, his eyes slid to the almost-full bottle of Scotch sitting on the coffee-table. Hell – one drink to kill the pain. One drink while he rested before he tried his trek to the door.

That was all, one little drink...

...or maybe two...

* * * * *

How long...?

How long had this nightmare been going on...?

Terry didn't – couldn't know. He... if he really was 'he' ...didn't have any of the milestones he could count on. None of the things he could judge from experience.

He had no stubble on his face. At first, he'd assumed he was being shaved while in a 'drunken stupor', but he knew better now – oh, yes, he knew.

The Scotch was drugged. He wasn't an idiot, he could figure that one out for himself. Two glasses shouldn't put you down for the count.

There was more to it than that, though – he was being given something else. Hormones, maybe? He didn't know – but he wasn't growing a beard. In fact, most of his body hair had fallen out by the time he'd woken up after his two drinks on the couch, and what was growing back was much finer, more... feminine.

He'd worked that much out for himself, too. Somebody was doing this to him, torturing and changing him. His body was softening. He was... changing. His muscles were fading, and his hips and ass seemed larger to him – not to mention how disturbingly full and sensitive his nipples had become.

The corset even fit better.

Of course, that might have been from simple weight-loss...

...because he had no idea how long ago he'd eaten.

He had no idea when he'd last consumed any liquid, either – oh, he knew it was 'last night' to him, but that meant nothing, since the liquid had been Scotch, and he'd been out like a light.

By his fuzzy count, he'd held out nearly three full days before drinking the laced Scotch. Not that he'd had much choice in the matter...

...just as he now had to eat or die.

So, face wrapped in a grimace, he prepared to push himself up off the couch.

How many times had he risen from this couch, he wondered idly. He'd once kept track, but the numbers seemed hazy, unreal – whatever was in the Scotch was keeping him half-'drunk' too much for things like rigid numbers to fit his newly fluid, if sometimes incoherent thoughts.

He remembered the first time he'd risen from the couch, of course – the first time, looking at the marginally depleted bottle of scotch and begun to think it had been drugged. The corset had seemed marginally less painful than it had 'a few hours before', if his internal chronometer could be trusted... which, he knew, it couldn't. Just like his thoughts and memories weren't quite sharp – but that one memory, of the painfully slow traverse to the door, was clear...

...as was the memory of staring dumbly at the knob.

The knob that had been reversed, presenting the key-hole rather than the thumb-lock, to the interior of the apartment.

He'd tried yelling, tried banging on the door – but hadn't had the breath to make either effective. He'd leaned against the wall, sobbing almost soundly – and then begun the trek back to the bedroom to get the key he'd left sitting on the bed table.

Once more he'd taken a 'pit stop' at the couch, but rested this time without touching the Scotch, then had pushed onwards. Exhausted, he'd made it to the bed – and had to rest.

He'd fallen asleep.

When he'd awoken, he'd taken the key and started the laborious trek back to the front door... but need had driven him to the bathroom. After emptying his bladder, he'd been able to drink cold, if somewhat gritty, water from the tap – and never been so grateful for anything in his life.

Then, after a short rest on the toilet, onward he'd gone... Eventually, he'd made it to the door.

Unlocked it.

Opened it.

...and stared down the long expanse of the hall way, ten times the distance he'd already traversed, looking back at him. He'd leaned against the wall for a while, crying...

...and then he'd begun walking, one hideously agonizing step at a time.

The best his hazy mind could recall, he'd made it almost halfway down the untenanted hall. Maybe that wasn't true; maybe that was memory being kind. All he knew was that at one point exhaustion had caused him to stumble.

To fall.

To black out.

To wake up in agony not to be borne, desperately trying to scream – and effort that used up all oxygen in his diminished lungs until anoxia took him.

The cycle was repeated, again and again – how many times, he didn't know. Darkness.

Consciousness Agony.

Anoxia.

Darkness...

At some point, he'd become aware that, in those brief moments of consciousness, if not lucidity, he was agonizingly dragging himself back to his apartment.

Some time later – he would never know how long – he'd been clawing his way up onto the couch, clawing himself up – and reaching for the blessed oblivion the bottle of Scotch offered.

He awoke who-knew-how-much-later, to find the agony in his waist reduced to a dull throb – a throb that matched the pain in his feet.

The pain in his feet that came from having been surgically altered somehow, forcing them into an unnatural position, forcing them, in fact... nearly straight down, in a permanent tip-toe.

Next to him on the couch had been a pair of boots – bright red boots to match his corset.

The boots that now, very, VERY carefully, Terry rose to stand upon. He teetered.

He tottered.

He wobbled.

...but, unlike so many other times he tried this before, he somehow managed to stay upright balance on the impossibly high, slender heels of the en pointe 'ballet boots'.

Slowly, painfully, one tiny, mincing step at a time, the starving man headed for the kitchen.

When he'd first awoken with his altered feet, he'd thrown the boots halfway across the room in disgust and anger, vowing never to wear them. That, of course, had only meant that, atier learning the very painful fact that his feet were now utierly incapable of carrying his weight without support, he'd had to retrieve them using that agony-inducing crawl.

He'd dragged them back to the couch – and then 'rewarded' himself with the oblivion from the laced Scotch. When he'd awoken, he'd numbly read the note atiached to the boots:

'Atiempt and succeed; you will go free. Failure will be punished...'

He'd gotien the point almost immediately – and, vowing to drink no more Scotch no matier the pain, set about practicing so that he could walk out of the building without a failed atiempt. Griting his teeth, he'd pulled the boots one, laced them up, and risen from the couch...

...and fallen further, faster and harder than before.

The vow not to touch the Scotch had lasted all of ten minutes...

Slowly, however, he had weaned himself off the Scotch – because the other botiles were in the kitchen. The half-botile he'd had was all there was... and atier each fall off of those damnably impossible heels, he'd learned to judge which ones called for oblivion, and which ones didn't.

There was an 'upside' to oblivion, if you wanted to call it that. Whoever was watching out for him when he was passed out gave minimum nutrition; probably intravenously, along with the hormones, judging from the needle tracks inside his leti elbow.

Now, however, the Scotch was gone, and he had no assurances they wouldn't just let him starve to death. So, one tiny little step at a time, Terry minced into the kitchen.

The quality of light changed during the journey, indicating a passage of time, but the much thinner man didn't bother with trying to figure out how long it took him – time had become irrelevant.

Relevant was hunger. Relevant was that he would soon need to trek the vast distance back to the couch – because he'd need to rest there before he could venture the equally great distance to the bathroom.

Relevant was staying alive, staying few and healthy, until he was strong enough and skilled enough in the shoes to manage a mere hallway, much less stairs.

Relevant was getting the hell out of this building; for Terry LaChance, that was quickly becoming the solely relevant thing of his life...

Terry reached the kitchen counter with legs that had felt like they'd been doused in gasoline and set on fire. His calves, especially, were a unique agony all their own – and the arrival in the kitchen didn't alleviate that.

Having reached his objective, he felt a sudden flush of fear, a frisson of horror – what if there was no food to be had in the kitchen...?

That fear was unfounded. Yanking open the closest cupboard, he found cans packed tight in the small space. Grabbing the first thing that came to hand – a snack-sized can of peach slices – he tore open the top and began cramming the sweet, sweet food into his mouth, sticky juice cold as it ran down his chin...

...and only then did Terry understand just how truly devious his unknown tormentor was.

A single snack-sized can of peaches... and his stomach was full. He was still hungry, but there was no physical room in his stomach for more food – he was going to have to wait a couple of hours until those peaches had digested enough for him to eat something else.

The corset vastly constricted his ability to breathe and eat; the fetishistic heels slowed his ability to walk to a mincing crawl. Any attempt to leave the building was going to force him to not just maintain minimum movement, as he was now, but as quick and graceful a walk as possible – which would require training.

Training that would have to come from the many, many trips he was going to have to make to the kitchen, as he 'grazed' to keep himself fed...

* * * * *

The figure of what had once been a man sat on the couch, staring blankly out the barred window at a city turned to cast iron by the steely grey pre-dawn light.

Slowly, on hand rose towards the figure's face. Lips, fuller than they had been before, parted just wide enough to allow the single potato chip to slip between them, then closed.

Still staring blankly at nothing, Terry very slowly began to chew – with the tiniest of motions possible.

The stairs – it was the stairs. He'd misjudged how hard the stairs would be to manage in the impossibly high heels he wore, and he'd fallen...

...and woken, back in the apartment, with the agony- wracked new face plastic surgery had given him.

Idly brushing back some of the long hair that framed his new face, not even considering what that hair said about how long his torture had been going on, he considered the problem of the stairs...

...and, unconsciously, the hand that had brushed back the hair slid down to the swollen, sensitive nipple atop a small swelling of flesh that defined the breasts on 'his' chest...

* * * * *

'Gotia get out...' Now or never. 'Gotia get out...' Do or die. 'Gotia get out...'

Nothing leti to lose... 'Gotia get out...'

Terri minced gracefully down the second-floor hallway towards the stairs leading towards the first floor. With each hip-swaying step, the over-sized implants on – in – her chest jiggled and swayed distractingly. Thick, shoulder-length blonde hair fluttering about her face, the woman who had once been Terry LaChance moved slowly, but steadily forward, determined to make good on this attempt.

'Gotia get out...'

Part of the motivation came from knowing what her failed attempts had cost her – like her manhood. 'Gotia get out...'

The other part was a gibbering fear in the back of her otherwise mostly blank mind. Atier all, she'd been transformed into an ersatz woman, one with huge, jiggly breasts and infinitesimal waist, mincing along on surgically-altered feet in impossibly high heels...

'Gotia get out...'

The mind boggled at what 'next' punishment could be issued for further failure – and she was determined not to find out. 'Gotia get out...'

In her fear-befogged, much-drugged, wandering mind, only that one goal – 'Gotia get out...' – burned clear and sharp.

Gracefully descending the stairs to the first floor, her blank – and not entirely sane – eyes peered through her blonde hair, fixating on the door at the far end of the hall. She minced towards it, heart beating faster behind her melon-like breasts.

'Gotia get out...'

The door drew ever closer, and the faintest hint of excitement showed in her dull eyes. 'Gotia get...'

"Day-um, girl!"

Terri's head turned, and her blank eyes fixed on the lean black man who'd just emerged from his apartment. He was staring at her, wide-eyed.

"Where you goin' looking like that?" He blurted. She considered the question.

"Out." She replied in her breathy voice.

"Well, girl, we gots a fee for 'goin' out' here – ya gotia let me fuck ya, first..." The black man joked, eyes drinking in her figure. She considered for a moment.

“Okay.”

Disbelieving, the young man watched as this incredible figure from a wet-dream swiveled and, very carefully, spread her high-heeled feet. Bending forward at the hips, she braced her hands flat against the wall.

The young man stared at her. Licking his lips, he looked to the left, then the right... and then unzipped his pants...

Terri felt his cock enter her surgically created womanhood – and while she was aware of the physical sensations, she ‘felt’ nothing at all, emotionally. As the man fucked her, she simply... existed, mind blank as it recorded the feel of a cock pounding in her pussy, the feel of her tits bouncing and swaying with every thrust, her hair swirling around her face...

...and after he came, and she felt his cock slide from her now cum-filled cunt, she rather mindlessly straightened and, without a word, continued her journey.

Pushing open the door, she stepped out of the building and wiggled and jiggled her way to the curb. She’d made it! She was outside!

Standing at the curb, Terri looked left. She looked right.

...and then, eyes blank and incurious, she turned around, and slowly minced her way back into the building....

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: A rare medical condition forces one young man to except his new fate as a female.

Social Status

By Gunslinger

"...ironic that the telegram from General Marshall, which might have warned Admiral Kimmel about the attack, didn't arrive until atier, due to the simple fact that it wasn't stamped 'urgent'..."

Carl, blinked, trying to focus on the words of his History teacher, Mr. Sherborne - but the we just meaningless sounds, without context. He couldn't focus his attention long enough to sort out how the words went together, and what they signified.

The short, athletically slender red-head wasn't usually like this - in fact the 19 year old was usually one of the more attentive students. But today, Carl was barely able to keep himself tuned into the real world - the pain and cramps were back.

It was worse then usual, today. They'd been getting steadily worse over the past year - as Doctor Thorin had warned they would - and he was having to take more and more of the small blue pills to fight its off. But he'd already taken four of them in the past half hour - the largest safest dose - and he was still pale and sweating in silent agony. His stomach was twisted in knots, and he felt like somebody had kicked him in that balls, the pain was so bad. Even through the medication.

Right now, Carl's entire world revolved around not disgracing himself by screaming. Ever since the diagnosis had come in, and he'd learned he had less then a year to live, he'd struggled to maintain some sort of normal life for what time he had leti. His teachers, of course, had to be notified, and he saw the way they watched him, sad - and a little confused as to why he hadn't taken the special dispensation to get out of school.

But Carl had little enough social life as it was, and he wasn't going to spend his last months alone in society, unanchored - he was going to try and make it through, with as few people as possible knowing about his illness, so he could have some semblance of a 'normal' social life.

So, he was not going to scream. He didn't. He passed out first.

* * * * *

Carl gaped at the doctor, his blandly handsome face incredulous. "Wha... what?"

The doctor cleared his throat awkwardly, knowing that this was not an easy thing to tell somebody, despite it's outward facade of being 'good' news.

"I said," He explained, "Your old doctor made a mistake in diagnosis - although I'm not surprised. He diagnosed you with a very rare condition, called Litreosmendinitis - which has similar symptoms, and is, indeed, fatal. However, you are in fact suffering from an even rarer - but not fatal - conditions - Gynaexomorphism."

Carl shook his head. "No, no - I got all that. I'm not going to die, right - but I'm going to be a woman?" He was still struggling to wrap his mind around the facts the doctor had given him.

The doctor sighed. "Not quite. You see - you already are a woman. the actual problems you have been going through - the loss of muscle mass, the emotional problems, and especially the intense pain during sexual arousal - stem from this fact..."

Carl cut the doctor off short. "Doc, I don't know what sort of quack medical school you went to, but anyone can see I'm a man - I haven't got tits, and... well, and I've got a cock."

The doctor cleared his throat again. "I know it'd hard for you to accept - but the situation is very clear. Let me explain..."

Sitting on the edge of the desk, the doctor used his hands as emphasis as he spoke.

"You appear to be a male, because of the fact that your mother actually had twins - or started to. However, one - the male - never developed into an individual, instead being... absorbed by the other sibling - a sister. You."

He held a hand up, forestalling Carl's argument, and continued. "However, there was now a large amount of extra hormones floating around, many of the masculine type - which you also absorbed. However, that merely made you a masculine woman. Puberty had little effect on you - because that wasn't truly puberty for you."

He sighed. "Puberty is what you're going through now. That's why your chest itches, and why you are loosing muscle mass. However, as for the matter of your penis - well, it's not really 'yours' - it belongs to the brother you never had. The reason why sexual gratification, and sometime urination, is so painful to you is that the penis and testicles are unanchored, held in place only by the dermal layer. And beneath that penis lays a fully functional vagina - our scans have proven that without a doubt."

It was impossible, it was incredible - by the doctor had shown him the scans, the blood work, the tests

- and Carl, not wanting to, had to admit the truth. He outwardly looked male, and had lived his entire life as man, up until now - but his body was now entering female puberty, and some things were going to change, whether he wanted them to or not.

"No - Doctor, there must be something you can do!" Carl pleaded. The doctor folded his hand. "Well - we have three choices here." "Yes."

"One - we can give you daily doses of male hormones. These would be necessary for the rest of your life, and would keep any major changes from occurring in you, physically. However, sex would still be excruciatingly painful, and you'd find the side effects to be nausea, weakness, and easy exhaustion."

Carl swallowed - he could stay male... but at what cost? "What's the other two?"

"Second, we can let the puberty run it's course, unassisted and unchecked. You would achieve some female physical characteristics, and be a generally mannish looking woman - but fully function. This would take place over the course of a year or so."

"Third, we can give you female hormones to speed up the process. We can also perform some minor reconstructive surgery to help improve your physical appearance."

Carl shook his head again. "I... I just can't believe this is happening to me..."

The doctor patted him on the shoulder. "I know it isn't easy - but you're going to have to choose, and soon - or choice number two will happen by itself, and in just a few days, we won't be able to go with any other option."

A weak, nonfunctional man - who would at least accept what he'd become? An ugly, mannish woman, and all the societal stress that went with it? Or as female as possible - and hating it?

* * * * *

Carla walked through the halls of the school, her books held protectively over her new breasts.

Well, sort of. The breasts were just too damned big to hide - they were huge. Even now, after some time, she still wasn't used to..

She felt somebody closing behind her, and she grimaced. The whole school knew the truth, and although nobody had - yet - laughed at her freakish fate, she knew it wouldn't be long. She braced herself for the impending attack...

"Hey, Carla - some of us are going up to the lake tonight. Wanna come along?"

Carla relaxed marginally. It was Ron, the guy who'd been her best friend before this had happened, and apparently still was.

"You... you think I should?" She asked, hesitantly.

Ron smiled. "Sure - you've been having a hard time for the past couple of weeks. You could use the fun. Pick you up at eight?"

Carla swallowed - part of her was afraid to say yes - the other part begged her not to say no...

* * * * *

Carla shivered nervously in the seat between Dave and Ron - what the hell was she doing? She should have known better - they were going to get her out to the lake... and it would all be some big joke.

Maybe they were just planning to abandon her there, to walk the eight mile trek back to the nearest pay-phone.

Her heart beat faster, and she almost demanded to be let out, right then and there. The two guys on either side of her seemed to be taking up all the air - it was difficult to draw in a breath, and she could feel their body heat where they pressed against her in the confines of the van.

But... But she trusted Ron - he'd been her friend, even before... the change had happened. That was why she'd come - and she still thought she could trust him, if not the others. But what if they'd lied to him, fooled him into talking her into coming along. Coming along, so they could make fun of the freak, the girlie-boy with the tits the size of...

"We're here!" Josh called, pulling onto the narrow beach fronting the lack. Under the headlights, the water glistened, dark and cool. "Come on - let's get the stuff unloaded."

It was with a mix of relief and apprehension that Carla climbed out of the van. She stood near the van, out of the way, and watched silently as the others started unloading the van. She crossed her arms under her huge tits, feeling cold despite the summer night's warmth. Why had she come out here?

But she knew why. Despite what she knew to be true - that she was a freak, a guy who hadn't really been a guy, and was now a huge-breasted girl - she still couldn't help but hope. Hope that maybe she could, impossibly, fit in somehow.

Because she was so alone. And even more, lonely.

"Hey - are you just going to stand there, Carla?" Ron asked with a grin. "Come on - join us. Or are you being anti-social again?"

Carla grinned nervously, wondering if her trust in her old friend was misplaced. "No - just thinking." She said through a tight throat. Stiffly, she walked to where Josh, Linda and Dave were piling wood in the fire-blanketed circle of stones. Ron stood off to the side, an arm around Cathy while they whispered something to each other. Carla's heart lurched - were they planning something?

Then Ron turned to her. "Beer's in the red cooler, and the hard stuff is in the box. Help yourself."

Cathy slapped his arm playfully, then smiled at Carla. "What testosterone man here forgot to mention is the wine coolers and the mixers are in the blue cooler."

"Hey - who wants to water down perfectly good booze?" Ron asked, grandly.

Carla could use a drink - she was so keyed up she felt like she was going to snap. She turned toward the coolers.

Dave, having lit the fire, was helping himself to something from the cooler. Carla hesitated, and waited for him to finish, shifting her weight nervously from foot to foot.

Dave caught the motion out of the corner of his eyes and looked up with a smile. "The bar's open, my dear!" He exclaimed in a W.C. Fieldsian voice. "Name your poison, and I shall see if we can accommodate!"

"Uh... A screwdriver would be fine." Carla replied, taken aback. "What?" Ron said, sounding hurt. "You're taking a wimpy mixed drink?"

Carla hunched her shoulders and waited for the laughter and taunts to start...

"What are you complaining for?" Linda called across the fire from where she sat with Josh. "It leaves more booze for you!" She kicked out, raising her ass from the blanket so she could reach Dave's calf. "A screwdriver for me, too."

Ron laughed. "Whoops - didn't think about that! Okay - Mixed drinks for everybody!" He bent his head modestly. "Except me, of course - I'll just force myself to drink the booze straight so I don't 'waste' any precious mixer."

"Moron." Linda returned, laughing.

Carl relaxed a bit as she realized that it had just been Ron... being Ron. She took the mixed drinks Dave handed her and carried the second to Linda, who took it with a smile before turning her attention back to Josh, who was 'serenading' her, singing softly as he plucked at his guitar.

"Hey - you don't have to be so formal."

Carla whirled, startled, at the sound of Dave's voice. "Wha.. what?"

Dave blinked. "I just meant you can sit if you want to. Even have a nice comfy blanket for you so you don't get sand down your pants." He patted the blanket that lay in the sand near his own.

Awkwardly, Carla sat, taking a big swallow of her drink. She noticed the way the blankets were arranged, three pairs around the campfire. Hers was close to Dave's why? Was it some sort of set up?

"So - who's up for a dip?" Josh asked, standing. As the others also rose, Carla slowly stood, heart pounding, waiting to see what was going on.

"All right!" Ron said, laughing. "About time - let's see some titties!" He leered at Carla - as Josh began to pick out 'The Stripper' on his guitar.

Carla shrank in on herself, feeling the tears threatening - this was it. This was what they were planning - they were going to make fun of her, her ridiculously over-sized breasts, her freakish, female, body...

"Oh, geez - I'm sorry we should have warned you."

Startled, Carla turned to Cathy - and her eyes widened slightly. The slender brunette was standing, topless, her perky breasts exposed to the golden glow of the fire. Beside her, Ron was busy stripping.

"We didn't realize you were shy like that - if we'd warned you, you could have brought a bathing suit." Cathy said, sympathetically - as she pulled down her jean shorts and underwear, leaving her taut, tanned body naked.

"Hey - where's the fun in that?" Josh asked, pulling Carla's head around. "Skinny-dipping is a summer tradition - no suits allowed."

Linda was almost naked herself, her large, firm breasts hanging a bit as she bent to remove her shoes. "Yeah, right - you just want a free peep show." She replied, mock-sourly. Straightening, she smiled kindly at Carla. "That's okay, Carla - if you don't feel comfortable, you can just get a head start on more of the booze."

"Hey - that's not fair." Dave said, tucking his bundle of clothes in a bag. "If that's the way it works, maybe I won't go swimming!"

Carla averted her eyes, flushing slightly, as Dave stretched, his muscular body gleaming in the firelight, and his cock - his remarkably large cock - dangling free.

In fact, all five of the others were no naked, and seemed completely comfortable, joking and hamming it up. Josh was posing for Linda, who was giggling at her slender boyfriend's over-exaggerated 'muscleman' poses.

They turned to Carl, chuckling. "If you want, you can see what stations you can pull in on the radio. It's in my bag." Josh said.

Carla was just getting it through her head that this hadn't been a gag - they were just doing some skinny-dipping.

"uh...." Carla said, swallowing nervously. Then, closing her eyes, she took the plunge. "No - I I think I'll come in, too."

She hesitantly reached up and lay one hand on the clasp holding the right shoulder of her coverall shorts in place.

Linda noted her nervousness. "Hey - you don't have to. There's no pressure or anything. If you're not comfortable being naked, that's okay. You don't have to come in."

Carla swallowed again - then, to her surprise, found herself blurting out the truth. "I... I want to come in... I'm just nervous that..."

She ran down suddenly as she realized what she was saying - but it was too late. "That what?" Cathy asked. "Go on - we're all friends here."

Oh God, how much Carla wished that was true. But she'd already said too much. She wasn't about to finish her real thought.

Then Cathy spoke, her voice soft and tender. "Oh... it's because of what happened, isn't it? Because you've only been able to act like a woman for a couple of weeks."

"I..." Carla started - and had no idea how to finish it.

Josh slapped his forehead. "Idiot!" He berated himself. He faced Carla. "Geez - you've never been naked in public since that happened. This is your first time!"

"Uh.. yeah.." Carla stammered.

"Shit!" Linda swore. "No wonder you're nervous! God, I remember the first time I went skinny- dipping. I felt sure I was the ugliest girl on the face of the planet at that moment. With clothes on you can hide an extra pound or two, make your butt look better than it is..." She shook her head. "We're sorry, Carla - we forgot all about that. I mean - you've had to pretend that you were a guy for so long, letting yourself be female must feel really weird."

Then it sank in - really, really sank in.

The whole thing was on the level. There was no hidden agenda, no plans of humiliation. She felt like she was a freak, some sort of weirdo, a guy pretending - albeit, unwillingly - to be a woman.

But to the rest of the world, they only saw her body. That of an enormously endowed, fairly attractive nineteen year old girl. They couldn't tell that she'd used to be 'male' - and even Ron, the only one of them who'd known her as a 'Carl', kept forgetting it. The human mind is constructed to deal with what it perceives - and everyone perceived her as female.

Of course, it was based on a false assumption - that because of the fact she'd really been female all along, she had always been 'female' in mind, but trapped in a 'mans' body, and was now free to be 'herself'. They didn't truly understand that, whether or not she'd actually been female for the past nineteen years, she'd been raised as - and thought of herself in terms of - a male.

But that assumption only made it easier. They didn't think of her as a freak - they thought of her as a girl. If anything, they thought that she'd been a freak - or at least, a figure to be pitied, - when she was 'forced' to 'pretend' to be a guy.

It was a stunning revelation for Carla as she realized something that many people never did learn.

It didn't matter if you thought you were this, or that. Well, it did - but it didn't actually affect reality. Reality, for other people, is what they perceived to be true. Carla's fears and thoughts and assumptions had been based on how she saw herself - and only now did she realize that her own view of herself was one-hundred-and-eighty degrees from the view everyone else held of her.

She hesitated for a second longer - then undid the clasp, letting the one strap fall. "Woo-hoo!" Ron applauded noisily. "That's it girl - show us some skin!"

Carla blushed furiously, and Cathy moved to shush Ron - but Carla lightly grasped her arm, stopping her. Then, closing her eyes, she took a deep breath...

...and, her face burning and amazed at her own audacity, she began to grind her hips and wiggle her shoulders as she undid the second clasp and let the coverall shorts slide down her smooth legs, leaving her clad only in the white T-shirt that strained over her tits, and the simple white cotton panties.

"All right - you go girl!" Linda laughed, clapping, as Josh once more plucked out 'The Stripper' - holding his guitar a little higher than usual to avoid certain dangling parts of his anatomy.

Nauseous, excited, embarrassed and overjoyed, Carla peeled her T-shirt upwards, revealing the bottom curves of her immense tits...

...and her nerve broke. Laughing at the sheer enjoyment of the moment, embarrassment and all, she broke into a dead run for the water, peeling off her shirt once she was passed the others, so only her back was visible. As they laughed and chased after her, she paused just long enough to drop her panties - then, before they could catch up and see her naked from the front - ran head-long into the water.

She screamed, briefly - the water was cold - but continued to slog forward until she could sink below the placid surface up to her neck. Safely 'hidden' below the water, she turned and watched as the other splashed in after her, laughing and joking about the chill water.

"Way to go, Carla." Cathy said, leisurely swimming over to her. "That took guts."

"Yeah." Carla agreed, whole-hearted. "But... it was fun, too. Still is." She stopped - then said something she would never have thought of saying to somebody else, even ten minutes ago. "Even if the water's making my nipples hard enough to cut glass."

Linda laughed. "I know." She mimed a shiver, and her own tits, firm and supple, momentarily came into view, engorged nipples and all.

For a good twenty minutes, they splashed and horse-played in the water, until finally - chilled to the bone - they all sprinted for the beach.

Carla was actually back to the blanket, shivering in front of the campfire and trying to warm up before it occurred to her that she'd been having so much fun, she hadn't remembered to be body-shy on the run up the beach. Even now, she was getting some surreptitious looks from the guys, ogling her huge tits...

"Eeep!" She creamed, yanking the blanket around her. She looked around at the others, blushing furiously - then laughed self consciously, and lowered the blanket again.

"Guess covering up now would be like locking the barn after the horse is gone, huh?" She said, blushing furiously.

"Yeah, I guess." Dave said, handing her another drink.

Josh pulled something out of his bag, and smiled. "Okay - time for the game, people. Set yourselves up." He looked at Carla. "You may want to sit over on the other side there, so we can gather around to play."

Carla blinked, hurt. "What - I'm not allowed?"

Linda cleared her throat. "This game is a little raunchy. Before she dumped him, Dave's old girlfriend was the other player.

You have to be... really, really comfortable with the other to play. The game's called Intersexion. That's inter-S-E-X-ion "

"Oh." Carla said, startled. Then, after a long pause. "And you don't feel comfortable with me playing?"

The other shared a look. "Well - we don't mind. We just thought that "

Carla knew what they thought - that she'd be uncomfortable playing.

She would. But tonight was turning out to be more fun than she'd ever had, as a male or female. Part of her wanted to take the out, gracefully. The other part...

"Well - I might be a little... awkward. But, I mean.. I can do it - and I want to, you know, kinda get on with my life." She replied, blushing.

The others looked at each other. "Well, if you want to play, sure - but drop out anytime you begin to feel uncomfortable "

Carla laughed - and spoke the absolute truth. "If I avoided everything uncomfortable, I wouldn't even be here - and I'd be missing a lot of fun right now. It may be uncomfortable - but if I passed on it, I'd probably spend my life wondering 'what if'. So - I'll play by the rules. I'm in."

Gathering around, Josh set up the cards, and pulled out a set of dice and a small 'plotter board'. "Okay, the rules are simple. There's three piles of cards - Guy-Girl, Girl-Girl, and Guy-Guy. We each start in a different place on this board here, and are trying to get to the center. Now, every time two players share one of these intersections, they have to do what's on the card - or they have to go back twice the distance they rolled. Okay?"

Since the explanation was for Carla's benefit, she nodded. Heart pounding, she accepted the dice - and rolled.

For the first couple of minutes, nothing happened. Then, Linda and Dave ended up at an intersection

- and their card specified they had to take turns spanking each other ten times. It was marked a 'tame' card, and they performed, with much cat-calling and joshing by the others.

Then Carla and Josh ended up on a square together - and face deep red, Carla did what was on the card, kissing Josh 'passionately' while fondling his ass, while he did the same.

Despite her intense embarrassment, Carla was amazed to find herself thoroughly enjoying it. But it wasn't nearly as embarrassing as the next one - or as enjoyable...

Eyes closed, Carla moaned in pleasure as Cathy's tongue worked across her clit. She had no idea that this would feel this good, and she found it hard to keep her hands off her breasts as she experienced being 'eaten out' for the first time...

"Okay, my turn " Dave announced, after they'd finished watching Josh and Ron have to give each other a kiss - a very short one, of course. Now, the two guys - blushing yet laughing - had 'discreetly' arranged to sit as far apart as possible.

Dave rolled, and advanced his peg - landing on the same spot as Carla - who immediately began blushing for no good reason. She was several beers to the good, and was enjoying the game even more - especially after the last one, when Ron had done remarkable things with her tits, that had felt so very, very good...

Dave pulled the card from the pile, and flipped it over - then blushed, shooting a glance over at Carla. "opps - I don't think this got put at the bottom of the pile. It's the card that you got last time..." He said, moving to put it back. "I'll just get another.."

"Hey, wait - I know I put the other one on the bottom> What's it say - come on, it can't be that embarrassing. You've got to do it." Carla insisted, wondering what could make him so anxious to get rid of it...

"Um.. actually, it isn't what I have to do. It's what you'd have to do." He handed the card to Linda, who read it.

"Oh, my... Carla, we told you - if you don't want to do it, that's fine." She handed the card to her. 'He gets a long, slow blow from her. Swallow, don't spit'.

Carla looked at the card, feeling her stomach roll over, and her face begin to burn. Then she turned to Linda. "If you'd gotten this card - would you do it?"

Linda sighed. "Sure - I mean, we've all done stuff like this. I mean, the guys don't exactly boast, but they have done each other, too. But not right away - I mean, this is your first game, and..."

Taking a deep breath, Carla stopped her. "No - I'll do it." She looked at Dave. "Just don't expect a lot of skill."

And, with the others looking on, she leaned down - and began giving her first blow job.

To her surprise, it wasn't, physically, disgusting. The taste and texture of the cock in her mouth was... new to her, but not actually repulsive. Closing her lips around the cock, she began to bob her head up and down, applying pressure to the underside of his shati with her tongue.

As she'd warned him, there was no real technique - she just continued to bob her head up and down, hands behind her back. Her neck muscles were beginning to get sore when she felt his cock twitch in her mouth...

..then a warm, salty liquid shot down her throat. She gulped at it quickly, barely even tasting it's musky flavor as it gushed down her throat.

Licking her lips clean, she sat up. "Actually - it wasn't that bad." She said, frowning - this simple act had disgusted and repulsed her as a man? Sure, it wasn't particularly enjoyable - but it wasn't all that disgusting, either.

Then Dave got a laugh out of his outrageously expressed 'Yeah - I have to agree. It's not that bad..' He said it like a man in the throes of incredible ecstasy.

Those moans weren't fake when, half an hour later, she gave him another blow-job. She now had six of them under her belt - and was a fast learner.

Of course, those screams were nothing compared to hers as Ron pumped into her and her orgasm rolled over her...
"Congratulations, Josh!" Linda said, giving him a hug as his peg landed in the center of the board. "You won!"
'No, I did - I've won the greatest prize I could imagine' Carla thought to herself with a small, knowing smile. 'A real life.'
Then, huge, wonderful new tits bouncing with each step, she ran to join her friends in a midnight swim.

BACK TO FUN ZONE

© 1997 - 2016 TGstories.

SUMMARY: Now that I have captured you, I will explain each phase as you are turned into a stripper.

Soldier Of Misfortune

By Gunslinger

The instant I saw you, I knew I had to have you.

I do not commonly habituate sleazy bars and dives; but every once in a while certain... urges get the best of me, and I seek out such disreputable establishments such as Randy's Roadhouse. That is how I came to be sitting quietly in one dimly-lit corner of the bar, sipping on what passed for a white wine when you swaggered in to the off-base roadhouse.

I know you didn't notice me in the smoke-filled den of iniquity; but I certainly noticed you. Smugly splendid – and splendidly smug – in your newly-won uniform, eyeing the women in the establishment with a certain possessiveness. It was as if you were certain you could have any or all of the women you saw, and were merely deciding which ones deserved your attention...

Oh, yes – I saw you, and you were perfect.

Which was why, other than watch you shamelessly – and rather vulgarly – hit on the women in the club, I did nothing. Nothing but watch.

Watch...

...and wait.

It didn't take long at all to determine the 'type' of woman – other than 'breathing', which as far as I can tell, was your main criteria – that you preferred; atier that, it wasn't all that hard to figure out which of the women available currently personified that particular 'type'.

In this case, it was Tawni – you DO remember Tawni, don't you? Oh, perhaps not by name, (since I noticed such trivial details really didn't seem all that important to you), but since you went home with her and had quite the long, rather violent night of sexual gratification, I'm sure you at least remember her body.

You're welcome, by the way.

What? You thought even a woman as depraved and degraded as Tawni was won by your supposed charm? Oh, no, my friend – I paid her quite a bit of money to take you home and give you one hell of a sexual send-off...

Well, now – that's not very fair at all. In fact, at the time the price she quoted for 'fucking your brains out' was actually quite low; I would have normally put that down to her merely being a cheap whore, were it not for the fact that the next day, when I came to pick you up, she confided that she would have done the 'fucking' for free, had she known the quality she was getting. So I suppose you should be given that, at least.

Nevertheless, I did end up paying her most handsomely – if not for the sex itself, then for the little something she slipped you at the end of the evening. A 'mickey' is the proper term, I understand? Surprisingly, although I had come prepared with several of my own methods of incapacitation, it turned out that Tawni had a supply of her own, for what she referred to as 'rolling Johns'; so, even without my presence at Randy's, you probably would have much the same overall evening, I would think.

In a way, it was almost as if you were fated to end up first fucked out of your right mind, then drugged out of it. As it happened, however, you were to lose more than merely your wallet in this particular case...

As it happened, it was incredibly easy for me to get you loaded into a van and taken to my own, personally-designed facility. I had no trouble getting you unloaded, undressed, and prepped, all while you were blissfully, deliriously unconscious.

Oh – and allow me to say, I'm sure that it was Tawni's lack of education that lead to her understandable mistake in terminology – I am certain she meant that she was impressed by the quantity, rather than the quality, of the night before.

Oh, my, yes.

It wasn't so much that you were a perfect male specimen – no, you were a perfect specimen of those traits found to be masculine. Absolutely every square inch of you was a testament to those aspects considered 'masculine', with everything even possibly countervailing – 'feminine' – stripped away. Something that, both physically and mentally, had only been further refined by the intense military training you had just undergone.

So, as I mentioned, for my own rather peculiar tastes, you WERE 'perfect'.

...for a given value of perfection.

Which was exactly what made what was to follow all the more utterly, completely, and devilishly perfect for me; the very fact of your *über*masculinity was the most powerful aphrodisiac I had ever encountered.

So, if it gives you either any comfort or any pleasure to know, I had to masturbate quite extensively over your 'masculine perfection' before I was ready to proceed.

Of course, I am certain that my masturbation session wasn't nearly as 'extensive' as you would have preferred. All things considered, I am sure you would have preferred it to last somewhat longer – say, for the duration of the rest of your natural lifespan...

For a great many social, psychological, and physical reasons, however, that simply wasn't to be. Even with that not-so-minor 'distraction', I was well prepared to move onwards long before you came out of the drug-induced coma you'd been placed in by my erstwhile associate.

At this time, Vanity and Pride alike compel me to take some little time to describe not only what you experienced, but the sheer amount of time, money, effort – and, dare I say, genius? – it took to arrange everything necessary for both preparations and procedures. Atier all, it is no trivial thing to develop an electromechanical delivery system for a biochemical cocktail, much less to develop said biochemical cocktail in the first place.

It was certainly well worth the effort to do so, however, for the purpose of the end product was nothing short by revolutionary – a biochemical 'training program' that would convince your own body to convert proto-masculine hormones into pseudo-feminine ones. All in all, you should be both impressed and humbled by the effort it took to achieve all of this; to quote that old guy in that dinosaur movie, I 'spared no expense'.

Not that you seemed particularly impressed or humbled by my design once I finally allowed you to regain consciousness...

...but, then again, I might have been mistaken about your level of appreciation. After all, you were hardly in a position to be able to tell me about your feelings on the subject, now were you?

I realize I really should apologize for forcing you to consume large amounts of your own, albeit highly chemically modified, semen... but I won't.

I'm not nearly that big a hypocrite, you see. In fact....

I enjoyed it. Immensely.

Of course, what you were getting was so modified as to bear little resemblance to actual 'cum'; and even then, the chemically modified semen was mixed liberally with other boosters, hormones, and a highly-regulated vitamin and mineral regime. Since the resulting 'cocktail' was pumped directly down your throat and into your stomach, you didn't even have to taste or feel it...

...much.

Besides, I suppose that the oti-incurring forced ejaculations necessary to generate the seminal component served as a strong distraction, in any case.

I must say, the effects of the biochemical cocktail, along with the forced inactivity and the electronic muscle stimulation, was entirely... gratifying. Watching all that marvellously masculine mass slowly but surely fade away, while the hormonal effects proceeded apace on primary and secondary sexual characteristics alike, was utterly delightful!

For me, at least...

Of course, you were a little less enthusiastic about the whole thing; my magnificent program was working wonders upon you, physically, but mentally...?

Well, I certainly couldn't have you entirely resistant, now could I? Which was why I developed the training regimen that I did.

I'm quite sure you remember it vividly – after all, considering that the computers constantly monitored the electrical activity in your brain, delivering jolts directly to the pleasure and pain centers of the brain determined solely on whether the thoughts you were having were 'right' thoughts or 'wrong' ones, (entirely by my definition of 'right' and 'wrong', I admit), must be quite memorable.

I must say, I thoroughly enjoyed watching you struggle to resist... especially as your body had now been 'trained' to do the biochemical conversion without outside assistance. Oh, not that I stopped feeding you a carefully tailored drug-and-hormone diet along with the carefully selected food I let you eat. Your body was now basically creating a feminine equivalency in hormones and blood chemicals, but I still needed to 'enhance' them to do more than simply maintain you at the same level – and I had no intention of stopping now...

No matter how deliciously cute you looked with your new breasts thrust from your slimmed-down ribcage.

Still the 'brain trainer' could only guide your existing thoughts; it could not 'implant' new ones. No, when it came to acquiring the necessary feminine skills I was determined for you to have, I had to do it the old-fashioned way.

My, but weren't you the rebellious little maid?

Unhappy with the pretty uniform I gave you, complaining about the steadily higher heels I had you walk in, nearly unwilling to perform your menial duties – and nearly incompetent in performing said duties, when you finally did them...

A lesser person might have given up on you.

Oh, certainly, you couldn't actively resist, not in the literal sense; going directly against me was out of the question. Your passive resistance, your willing incompetence, however, were energetic enough to try the patience of a saint.

While certainly no saint, I nevertheless persevered.

Day after dreary day I stood over you, watching and critiquing as you learned how to do your makeup. Long, arduous hours I spent on showing you how to properly care for and style your ever-longer hair. Feminine fashion and style, pose and poise, walk and talk... you needed all of these skills and habits, and despite a lifetime during which you mistakenly believed you were 'girl watching', you somehow never even picked up the most basic concepts of femininity, at least in the practical 'how do they do it' sense. You certainly were attentive to end results, but never once in your male life stopped to figure out how much effort – and hence, what the effort would be – needed to achieve the results you so ardently admired.

Well, will ye or nil ye, you were going to learn them now. I persevered...

...and, despite your intransience, when the six-month anniversary of our first meeting rolled around, I decided you had enough of the essentials down to deserve and outing.

I, of course, took you to 'our place', the place where we had met... Randy's. Well, I say 'took', but perhaps 'sent' would be more accurate.

Oh, I was there, certainly – I wouldn't have missed it for the world! However, as I pointed out, you didn't even notice me that first night; since then, you had never seen my face, and so could not know who I was.

Nevertheless, I had the proverbial ringside seat from which to watch you squirm and writhe in humiliations both real and imagined.

Oh, but if only you had not been so stubborn, hadn't passively resisted so enthusiastically; perhaps then you would have been feminine enough in appearance and attitude not to have to face a barroom full of largely homophobic cretins who could not decide what, exactly, you were.

Well, those sober enough to make such indeterminations, I should say – that one drunk man certainly seemed to believe you 'all woman', and had no problems at all making his interest known.

Since I had 'brain trained' you never to leave a bar or club except at the express invitation of a man, (several times, actually, but most intensively that very evening), I suspect that, on a certain level, you were extremely happy to meet your drunken admirer. I know that you seemed to find a kind of horrified, humiliated relief in dealing with a bar patron who didn't (sometimes vocally) regard you as some sort of 'sissy faggot' or 'freak'.

Oh, it was pure delight to watch you – you, who fought so valiantly against acting any more feminine that I absolutely forced you to – put on the best 'I am all woman' show you could for that guy...

Now, to provide an honest critique here, your resistance to learning how 'real' women thought and behaved meant that your little routine was closer to burlesque than Broadway – but your drunken admirer certainly ate it up...

...as did I, of course, albeit for radically different reasons.

You, of course, experience little of that nearly orgasmic delight I enjoyed from watching your trials and tribulations, but you must certainly have felt delightful hope at his suggestion that the two of you ‘blow this dump’ – I certainly was delighted by the look on your face when, instead of leading you out into the relatively well-lit and very public parking lot, he guided you toward the door to the dimly-lit back alley.

Although he failed to notice, I saw the hesitation; I understood the calculations you were making, trying to decide whether to turn this guy down in hopes of finding another guy; I saw you consider the other men and resign yourself.

I saw you leave.

Now, of course, I couldn’t exactly follow you out, more’s the pity – but the footage from the security camera, grainy as it was, more than supplied the details to delight me.

I saw it all.

I wonder if he was even aware of your extreme reluctance as he tried to feel you up... but I do know I was delighted by your slow surrender, gradually letting him get a little bit further even as you tried to convince him to call a cab for the two of you.

While he might have missed it all, I certainly caught the humiliation as you let him fondle your lovely new breasts while you desperately tried to arrange this into your bid for freedom. How much hope must have been mixed with that humiliation, as you believed yourself close to running off for help, escaping this situation you found yourself in...?

...right up until he shoved his hand down your panties and, even in his inebriated state, determined that there was something...

different about you.

Oh, I wonder exactly what went through your mind as, at his hands, you suffered the very fate you had spent an entire evening – and what little masculine pride you had let – trying to avoid.

Especially since, in his drunken rage, he was entirely enthusiastic in his... chastisement. So much so that he seemed to feel rather... guilty ...about it all.

Judging from the way he fled, at any rate.

Now, of course, I certainly don't condone that sort of thing... well, conceptually, you understand. As in, when a person, genetically female or otherwise, is attacked and/or beaten by a man who believes that person to be a fully realized and self-directed individual.

Not that you qualify under that scenario, of course – but he certainly didn't know that!

Which was why I took the time to track him down and provide a certain sort of 'direct physical trauma' of his own to experience...

...but that is a whole other story, of course; one that you were not even aware of at the time. It does remain at least tangentially relevant to you, however, as the fact that I had to have the surgical suite prepared for him is why I decided to do more than merely treat your injuries.

Oh, nothing too extreme, of course – no, given the results of your outing, I decided you just needed a little ‘help’. Sure, the adjustable – or ‘inflatable’ – breast implants I slipped in via tiny incision just below your areolae was a bit gratuitous at the time, but I didn’t even fill them enough to bump you up a whole cup-size, so I really don’t see what you were so fundamentally incensed about.

The work on your jaw and cheekbones was, to a degree, simply a medical necessity – however, I decided that the reconstruction could be more than simply rebuilding the original; there was absolutely no reason not to provide a little improvement at the same time.

Not that you necessarily agreed that it was an 'improvement', of course – although you were much more vocal about the injections to plump up your lips. Given your objections to being feminized at all, I can understand your main objections – but I have to admit to being rather impressed with your impassioned declamation that 'the bastard gave me a fat lip – and you went and made it permanent!'

Well – given that you had not yet even healed from the collagen injections, much less gotten used to them, you weren't nearly that comprehensible when you made that very cogent point.

So, I have to bow my head, and apologize for laughing – repeatedly – every time you angrily berated me about your new 'wipfz'. Er... yes, and I apologize for laughing again, just now, simply remembering it...

Besides – there was only the barest trace of a lisp left by the time I took – sent – you to Randy's. After all, you had tried so hard, and gotten so close, the last time; you clearly deserved a second chance...

...and I'm sure that even you have to admit that the 'touch up' work I did, especially on the lips, played such a big part in how things turned out the second time around.

Oh, sure, some of the regulars – of which the majority of the clientele was composed – knew you were the same 'freak' as before, causing you to undergo the same humiliations... but that new guy clearly didn't know you from Adam... excuse me, from Eve ...and he certainly appreciated the 'new look' you were sporting.

I mean, after all that complaining you did about the re-evaluated and redirected training program I initiated while you healed, and look how wonderfully it paid off! You didn't have to work even half as hard to keep the guy's attention, looking the way you did.

Okay, okay – I can see how that might not have been a positive aspect of the situation for you, given how you felt about what I was putting you through. Still, once again you felt that horrible hope, and went through your humiliating 'all woman' routine – and you have to admit that I perfectly matched your new look to your over-the-top rendition of femininity.

Last time, you were forced to endure the public humiliations for several hours before the drunken guy got around to 'inviting you to the world' – this round, it took less than half the time...

...although the look on your face when he also wanted to use the back door was every bit as despairing as when it had taken you several hours to get to that point last time around.

Again, the show via security camera was more than worth the price of admission, so to speak. I don't mean the humiliated, manifestly unhappy way you 'fooled around' with the guy, letting him play around with your (just very slightly, for god's sake!) enlarged breasts... I mean the look on your face when, when he started getting 'hot and heavy', you obviously could think of one, and only one, way to keep his 'interest' without giving away your 'secret'. Watching you oh-so-unwillingly sink 'willingly' to your knees, forcing yourself to convince the guy to let you give him a blow-job rather than fucking you...

...and then you did.

Oh god, that was amazing.

For me, at least. Less so for you, of course – and for him, too, unfortunately.

Yes, yes, I know it was your very first time sucking cock; I know that you didn't even want to be doing it...

...but I also know that you thought that if you made him happy enough, you could get him to call you a cab.

You knew full well every extent to which I have 'brain trained' you... and you knew that while trying to leave on your own recognizance would cause intolerable agony, if a guy 'permitted' you to leave, you could do so.

All in all, it added up to a blow-job that lacked everything in experience and technique, but had a certain sort of... desperate enthusiasm, shall we say?

I rather gathered that you weren't exactly an aficionado of cum, given your expression... but while 'spitting' is, indeed, a viable, if less desirable, alternative to 'swallowing', your version was just a little bit... extreme.

Especially the projectile vomiting.

I mean, sure, I don't expect to see cum-flavored Coke on the market any time soon, but it isn't that disgusting...!

...unless, of course, I am doing you a gross disservice, and it was all an act – well, at least, an exaggeration. After all, it did do the trick – it got exactly the response you wanted in that situation, with the guy telling you to go.

Well, to 'fuck off, you whiny bitch', to be exact – but you certainly knew it counted, by the alacrity with which you fled the alley.

Now, as you quickly realized, I'd had the foresight to have the 'cab' waiting – and, oh, how I will forever treasure that look on your face as you jumped in, breathlessly demanding to be taken to the police – only, somewhat belatedly, to realize that I was your driver.

Of course, your (utterly impotent) cursing and demanding turned into something very much like confusion when I drove us to that salon – but given how well you had performed, and how quickly, I had decided you deserved a special treat.

Although I know you weren't exactly wildly excited to have your make-up redone and your hair volumized to the maximum, but you took it with surprisingly good grace – as did you take the delightful new ensemble I put together for you. Oh, you grumbled about the 'fetish' nature of all that latex, but you certainly dressed quickly and obediently enough.

Even when you found out it was all for a special fetish fashion show, you were surprisingly sanguine...

...you just weren't the least bit enthusiastic about it.

I mean, let's face it – when the time came for you to 'strut your stuff', your previously burlesque-level abilities seemed to desert you. Your performance was, at best, lackluster.

Wooden, forced, and almost painfully uptight might be a much better description of it, actually.

Now, considering that I had spent a lot of time and energy on arranging the whole thing on the off chance that you might do well enough at Randy's to merit it, I was a bit peeved about the whole thing...

...which is why I provided you that list of 'options' during the backstage break.

You didn't exactly seem enamored by any of my 'helpful suggestions' for loosening you up before you went back out there for a second try – but in the end, (no pun intended), I want you to remember that it was you who choose to have be put on the strap-on and 'fuck you good and hard up the ass', as you so elegantly phrased it during the 'begging for it' part of that option.

To be honest, that performance was wooden and lackluster as well, but I was kind enough to let it slide, treating it all as if you meant every word of it.

All things considered, I was rather amazed at how your 'performance' improved while I was actually anally penetrating you – in fact, despite your later vehement denials, I'm certain that it wasn't an act at all.

You actually enjoyed a good, hard fucking up the ass, didn't you?

Sure, you deny it, loudly – but, weren't you panting and moaning the whole time?

Weren't you desperately – and not entirely successfully – struggling to suppress screams of orgasmic pleasure? Did you not have to change your panties right after...?

Oh – you didn't think I noticed you were 'going commando' after our little motivational break? Indeed I did – in fact, I went and checked out that bathroom you fled into, blushing beet-red and sobbing, after we were done.

You can probably guess what I found...

Well, thanks to the effects my wonder-drugs have had on your body, there wasn't much actual cum in the panties – but your pathetic little clitty-cock had enough seminal fluid leti that I can see why you disposed of them, aside from the humiliation value of having to walk around in cum-stained panties that reminded you how you'd orgasmed from being ass-fucked.

Beside – aside from all that, there was the way you performed during your second time up on stage. This time, you were much more 'into' it...

...which was why I decided you were ready for your final round of training.

Now, I hadn't originally intended for it to be your final stage, you understand; I had taken my original planned sequence using Tawni more or less as a template – and I'm sure you remember Tawni being more... emphatically feminine in physique, if you take my meaning. However, given your second performance on the runway, I decided that turning you into a hooker would be a waste of your obvious talents.

Instead, I simply decided that – assuming you did succeed – that you would stop at a success that Tawni missed, and thus not have to go on to her lifestyle having failed.

Not that your success was guaranteed, by any measure – oh, my, no! I'm sure you remember full well how difficult the training for your new life position was; after all, you had just very recently managed to master walking in high heels, and here I was, demanding that you learn to dance in even higher-heeled platform pumps!

Of course, being informed that the price of failing your 'exotic dancer' lesson was to end up in your fallback position as 'hooker' certainly seemed to improve your determination to master the skills... especially since you were quite clearly informed that, in order to fully fulfill the 'whore' position, were you to fail, I would have to take away your little sissy-cock and give you a nice little pussy for your clients to fuck.

To be honest, I simply don't believe that your horror of ending up a whore was entirely unconflicted – considering how you reacted to being fucked up the ass with that strap-on, I think part of you was thinking about the sex... but, of course, sex of some sort wasn't completely out of the picture as a sissy stripper, it simply wasn't either as mandatory nor guaranteed as it would be for a hooker.

Still, for a while there I thought I might have to take it that far – although, I do have to admit, watching you fall off those heels time and time again during ungainly and uncoordinated gyrations were certainly entertaining, for me at least!

Now, I do admit I yelled at you at one point – but, for God's sake, did you really believe that simply being female somehow gave women feet that were somehow naturally more suitable for high heels? Every stripper you had ever learned up on stage had to not only learn the same things you were learning, but had to put up with the same aches, pains, and strains as you!

In fact, greatly 'enhanced' women, such as Tawni, have considerably more aches and pains, especially in the lower back.

Well, you began using liniments and lotions, icing down some muscles after a practice routine, soaking others in heat... and slowly but surely, you began to develop both a resistance and a routine that worked for being able to put the very unusual strains on your muscles that any stripper has to learn to endure.

With your endurance came greater ability to control your body, not to mention a greater ability to 'try, try again'... and, despite my concerns, you gradually began to improve.

Oh, how incredibly proud of you I was that day, when you walked in to that club for the open auditions they were holding for new house dancers!

You might not have been the most skilled or experienced dancer there, but your hard work – coupled as it was with your desperation – certainly paid off! You got right up on that stage and wrapped yourself around that pole like you were fated to be there!

I suppose, in a sense, you were – and it was certainly good enough to get you the job!

All in all, that was the end of my ‘official’ part in your little life-lesson; not that I vanished completely.

Since you still couldn’t know what I look like, I could mingle in with the other patrons and enjoy your show without having to worry about being ‘caught’.

I mean, atier all, you were out on your own, now, out of my direct supervision – you could have finally taken the opportunity to tell your story to the authorities. Given that you were still, technically, male, they might even have believed you... except that I found it difficult to believe that the club would have continued to employee you, had they known your shameful little secret...

Of course, I wasn't there to see any of it, but I could imagine the combination of shame and horror you must have felt, having to desperately hide that last little bit of evidence that would reveal your true gender. I know you never wanted to look at all feminine, much less good enough to be a stripper – yet, at the same time, you needed to be even more apparently feminine than you really were, if for no other reason than to keep your job.

Given the extremely flimsy 'persona' you let me with, not to mention lack of cash, you needed that job – a job where you could use any name you liked, were asked few questions, and got paid relatively well and in cash. Oh, sure, you were slowly building up a 'history' for your newly-chosen feminine identity, but the very things that might make the truth believable would also get you fired and shunned, and where would you have been then?

Which was why I continued to believe that you were dedicated to hiding in your role, since there was no way the truth could ever make you 'normal' nor cause me to 'get mine' in revenge for what I had done to you...

...which is why I was not only flabbergasted, but terrified when you came up to me in the club that night.

Not the approach itself, you understand – after all, you always 'worked the floor' between sets. No, it was you sitting down across from me and quietly telling me that you knew who I was that floored me and frightened me simultaneously.

How the hell did you ever figure out that I was a man under that suit! People can't even tell when I'm at the beach 'en femme' in a bikini, and you managed to correctly identify me by basic body type...?

Well, I suppose I had underestimated just how much attention you had used to pay to a woman – and woman's – body...

...and how much attention you were now paying to men's bodies.

In fact, your figuring out I was a bisexual bivestite was much more of a shock to me than your request. After all, plenty of 'actual' women made this their normal, everyday life, and it was full of normal, everyday pains and pleasures... and being on the outside, looking in, a all-but-crying from your exclusion... I could fully understand your decision, even if it did startle me.

Nevertheless, I do have to say, now that nobody will ever know what you began as, you've made a surprisingly successful little life for yourself as a woman. From what I understand, your boyfriend certainly seems to enjoy your new womanhood...

...and if the fact that you are 'barren' might be a problem to your life-love one day, that is a problem some natural women have to deal with, as well.

Well, should that ever become an issue, you can always adopt, right?

After all, you should know better than anyone that genetics are not the end-all and be-all. It's not what a person is born as...

...it's what you make of them that matters.

The End

SUMMARY: After he is caught at work reading online TG stories, one man is sent to a clinic where he is turned into a bimbo to meet the needs of a wealthy client.

Somewhere Between...

By Gunslinger

Once upon a time, there was an island. A small island, in the tropics, lush with jungle foliage and rife with fauna, but an island where the hand of man had never touched...

...until, one day, a man washed ashore. Shipwrecked and cast adrift, the man stumbled out of the surf, clinging to the large sea-chest on which he'd floated for so many days. There, under the sweltering tropical sun, he began his struggle to survive on the deserted island, to make shelter and find food, to survive the pitfalls that the unfamiliar island presented. All the while, he dreamed of the luxuries of his life back in the city, of the ease with which one could find clothes and food and shelter, the necessities and desires of life.

Then, one day, at the very bottom of the chest, the man found - 'the Book'. Exhausted by a long day foraging for food, the man huddled close to the flickering light of his small fire and began to read. He began to read - about the man who, in a big city, longed to escape the pressures of his job and family, and experience a restful, tropical island paradise. Then, one day, this man happened across a book, which he began to read - a book about a man who was stranded on a tropical island, longing for the easy life back in the big city. A man who, one day, happened upon a book about a man in a big city who longed to escape to an island paradise...

Which of these men was real? Which only a make-believe character in a work of fiction? Was it the man trapped on the island, longing for the comforts of the city? Or the man trapped in the city, longing for the peace of the islands?

Perhaps, just perhaps, neither of them were real - or both of them were, to some degree. Perhaps, as is quite often the case, the truth is neither black, nor white - but lies somewhere between...

* * * * *

Gerholdt Mannheim licked his lips nervously, his dark eyes jumping from side to side as he looked around the employee's lounge. Unconsciously, he wiped his hands on his pants, leaving a faint smear of sweat on each side.

He knew that he shouldn't - he knew that even the temptation was dangerous, was wrong - but he already knew he could get away with it, since he'd done it once already, three days ago. There was the computer, in the back corner of the room, the monitor facing away from the door. There was plenty of time for him to click the bookmark that would take him from the website to the parts inventory site before somebody could get a look at the screen - and he could take a little time 'searching' for the 'correct' part on the inventory site, giving himself time to settle down. He knew he could do it... but should he...?

He shouldn't - but he was going to, anyway. With the nervous movements who's 'guilt' was all too evident, he hurried - scuttled, really - over to the computer, settling into the worn office chair on its plastic roll-pad on the carpet. Quickly, he opened the browser, typing the URL into the bar at the top.

The page seemed to take an eternity to load, while the sound of Gerry's heart seemed to throb and echo through the room.

Even a month ago, this act would have been unimaginable to the self-possessed and self-contained young man. At twenty-five, he was one of the younger workers at Dortmund ZubehörDepot Des Elektrikers, but seemed older and more self-controlled.

The truth was - he had to be self controlled. He had to hold in his dirty secret. He had to keep people knowing the truth. Gerry wasn't at all happy with his life.

To be honest, he never had been to begin with. Ever since puberty, he'd had the feeling something was... off. Not right about the life he'd been born into. Oh, sure, he'd tried to fake it, pretending he liked the things his 'friends' like, pretending to be just another 'average guy' - but while he mimicked his friends interest in women, it was just an act. For some reason, women really didn't 'do' anything for him.

Neither did men, either. That was part of the problem. It was as if he were asexual, not fitting in with either gender, quite...

...though he found himself identifying more with girls than he did with guys. Their clothes, their ways of acting - they seemed more natural to him than the 'macho' act most guys lived by. He'd never admitted any of this, of course - he didn't want to be ridiculed as a 'sissy', especially since he was too afraid to actually try living the way women lived. No, he'd kept his 'weirdness' hidden, learning that rigid self-control.

Then, one day, he'd gotten the Internet on his computer, back when it was still new and rare - and he'd stumbled across people out there who had some pretty bizarre fantasies. Stories and drawings that depicted all sorts of things, from strange human-animal hybrids, to men becoming women - and vice versa.

That's when Gerry had found his 'niche' - when he'd found himself imagining that he'd been born as one of these, rather than what he had. He'd fantasized about being a cow-woman, with six large, milk-filled breasts and an udder. He'd dreamed about being an anthromorphic pig, of being a centaur... all of these, and many more.

Then he'd found a site on the Internet called TG-Stories - and it was this site that had really changed his very secret private life.

It had started because of the stories on the site all dealt with men somehow becoming women, and Gerry had used these as fantasy-fodder, imagining it was somehow him who was trapped in the story, becoming the woman the man became. His at-home fantasies urged him to spend more and more time fantasizing about it, one of the reasons he'd been so eager to get a place of his own and get away from his parents and so-called friends - having moved halfway across Germany, he was now as completely alone as it was possible to be and still be a functioning member of society, and that's the way he liked it. That way he could set up his computer in his living room, hooked up to a huge projection TV that let him sit in his easy chair and read the stories while fantasizing about being the main character, all without any risk of being found out. That careful separation of 'real' and 'fantasy' life had been his hallmark, his watchword, his philosophy...

...until The Story.

TG-Stories did more than just post TG stories - you could also submit story ideas and have a chance of having them written, if they were voted the best in it's current contest. Atier working up the courage, Gerry had sent in a request, detailing his own fantasy...

...and the story had been written. A story that almost perfectly outlined his own, deepest fantasy - that of becoming an over-blown caricature of a super-sexy woman.

Now.. now he just couldn't get enough of the story, and the fantasies it conjured up...

Which is why the usually very secrecy-minded young man found himself sitting at the computer at work, pulling up the story on the company Internet, craving to read it again, to read about the life he should have had...

Heart pounding with a mixture of fear and excitement, Gerry leaned forward in the chair, eyes bright with interest, the rest of the world seeming to fade away as he began to lose himself in the story....

...and then the phone rang.

Gerry snapped back to reality as if somebody had suddenly doused him with a bucket of cold water. His pulse raced as he jerked in the seat, staring at the worn, well-used phone beside the desk, giving off its strident series of three rings and a silence, indicating an inter-office call.

Quickly shutting down the website - just in case - Gerry licked his suddenly dry lips and picked up the phone.

"Hello ?" He asked, his own voice sounding high and tremulous to his own ears.

"Gerry?" A strong, controlled voice on the other end said - and Jerry's heart-rate spiked to an all-time high. "This is Mr. Dortmund. Please come to my office."

"Jawol, Herr Dortmund " Gerry said, nervously, hanging up the phone, eyes flat and blank.

The owner of the company had called. While he was on the computer, on the website. Had called the extension at the computer... and asked for him by name...

Somehow - they knew...

Almost as if sleep-walking, he rose from the desk and left the room, walking through the warehouse floor and towards the stairs leading up into the plush offices that fronted the huge, sprawling complex. A couple of fellow coworkers called out to him - but he didn't even hear them.

The head of the company - the big boss himself - had called him into his office. Nobody was called into Mr. Dortmund's office - well, nobody from the warehouse floor, anyway. Mr. Gruber, Head of the department, was the only manager from the front office that anybody from the warehouse ever saw - and only then in cases of hiring and firings.

Feeling very grubby, very small - and very frightened - Gerry opened the door at the top of the stairs and stepped through, entering the nice-but-rundown lounge area that serviced the small group of offices for the warehouse.

Frau Lindstadt looked up from her desk - and from the sympathetic look on her face, it was obvious she'd been informed to expect him. She pointed with a pen towards the far wall, where the doors to the elevator were.

"Fifth floor, Gerry... and good luck..." Lindstadt said, compassionately.

His throat was so dry, all Gerry could do. Like a man walking to his own execution, he walked up to the doors of the elevator, which opened promptly when he pushed the call button. He stepped in, a sudden wave of claustrophobia sweeping over him as the door slid shut, the soft sound of them closing sounding to Gerry like the slam of a prison door.

It took a tremendous amount of willpower to get his feet moving when the elevator opened on the top floor. The receptionist sitting behind the huge cherry wood desk looked at him almost disdainfully. "Mr. Mannheim?"

Gerry nodded.

Wordlessly, the receptionist pointed to the only door on this floor - that of the company's owner. Taking several deep breaths, Gerry turned and walked to the door, hesitating for a second with his hand on the gleaming brass handle that would open the door and put him face-to-face with a very powerful man, one who would decide his fate...

The disapproving sound of the receptionist clearing her throat behind him gave him that last nudge, and Gerry opened the door and stepped into the huge, ornate office of Mr. Dortmund.

Mr. Dortmund certainly didn't look all that impressive - overweight, florid-faced, with only a few remaining wisps of gray-white hair. However, looks could be deceiving - he was a very powerful man, financially, politically, and personally - and anybody who underestimated him usually ended up regretting their error.

Like Gerry - he'd underestimated the chances of getting caught, and here he was...

"Gerry..." Mr. Dortmund said, gesturing for the frightened young man to come in. His voice was carefully controlled, with a hint of... disappointment?

"Gerry, as you most obviously do not know, we have software that carefully tracks the usage of our computers... 'spies' on them, if you wish..." Mr. Dortmund said, folding his thick hands over his expansive belly and looking at Gerry sorrowfully. "When you first accessed that site, a copy of that file was automatically downloaded into records - and one of our controllers read what was in it, and, quite rightfully, brought the file and his concerns to me. We had hoped that it was some sort of 'accident', or perhaps an aberration... but then, today..." He shook his head.

Gerry closed his eyes and took a deep breath, waiting for the ax to fall, his secret to become common knowledge while his job and life were ripped from...

"You are... not a well man." Mr. Dortmund said, and Gerry's eyes popped open in surprise. His boss continued speaking. "It's obvious that you have some... issues to work out. Now, we're not an insensitive company. We're not going to fire you over this - unless we have to." He leaned forward. "What we would like is for you to see a very special therapist. A six-month 'paid' sick-leave, as a matter of fact, during which time you will see this therapist for treatment. You do not have to accept - but if you do not, we will have to let you go..."

Throat dry, Gerry had to swallow several times before he could accept Mr. Dortmund's offer. Though he felt he wasn't 'ill', the chance of this being kept quiet, of him keeping his job... it was too good to pass up...

"Good, good..." Mr. Dortmund said, glad to have this portion of the unpleasant situation dealt with. "Here's Doctor Lutz's card. You'll be expected first thing tomorrow, at nine o'clock..."

Taking the white business card and numbly slipping it into his pocket, Gerry left the office, feeling like a prisoner who had just gotten a last-minute stay of execution from the governor...

* * * * *

Gerry had never actually met a psychiatrist before, but had a half-formed mental image of what one looked like.

Dr. Lutz didn't fit a single one of Gerry's preconceptions.

First of all - Doctor Elizabeth Lutz was a woman - and American to boot, lacking even the Fruedean accent a german analyst or therapist would have been close too.

Also - she was quite attractive, in a cool, striking sort of way. Tall and slender, she had a face that could have graced the covers of fashion magazines, surrounded y a wealth of long, silky brown hair. As Gerry entered her office, she rose from behind the desk with a tight smile on her full lisp.

"Ah - you must be Gerry..." She said, pronouncing it incorrectly, in the English way. "You don't mind if I call you Gerry, do you?"

She was obviously trying to set him at his ease - but it wasn't working. Gerry was wound tighter then a drum, every nerve jangling. The thought of having to discuss his secret, deepest fantasies was bad enough - but with a woman...! he didn't even have the presence of mind to correct her on her pronunciation - his name was pronounced with the Germanic 'G', like 'Gary', rather than the soti 'G', as in 'Jerry'.

Seeing how stiff - how mortified - Gerry was, Dr. Lutz gestured towards a large, deep leather couch. "Please, make yourself comfortable."

Gerry walked over to the couch and sat on it's edge, stiffly, his eyes looking everywhere but at here. How could he be going through this? It wasn't fair! His life, to him, was already a mockery, a travesty in which he was born into the wrong body, or place, or even dimension - but to have to reveal his inner soul to this woman...

"Here..." Dr. Lutz said, handing him a soda. Numbly, Gerry took it and downed it quickly, barely tasting the overly-sweet liquid as the carbonation burned at his throat. Gerry wasn't a fan of soda, but at least it was something that took the edge off his dry mouth and throat.

"So - your company forwarded that file you were reading to me." Lutz said, driving that painful nail of shame deeper into Gerry. Not that he was ashamed of his fantasy itself, per se - but the fact it was revealed to the depressingly normal world in which he was trapped making him even more of an outcast...!

"I found it to be very... interesting reading." Dr. Lutz said, with a smile. "Very interesting indeed." Gerry lowered his head and swallowed, feeling week and faint at her amused tone of voice.

"In fact - so intriguing that I forwarded the file to somebody else, as well..."

Gerry's head snapped up, and he stared at her in horror. "You whad..?" HE asked, his voice thick and muzzy - and almost distant - to his own ears.

"Oh, yes, a certain gentleman I know back in the states. He has some rather... fascinating fantasies of his own." Dr. Lutz said, smiling. Gerry was having a hard time focusing on her, as she seemed to be fading in and out of focus. He shook his head, trying to clear it.

"However, there's a big difference between him and you..." Elizabeth said, as Gerry's muscles seemed to turn to liquid, leaving him laying limp on the couch. Turning away, she thumbed a button on the intercom.

"We're almost ready here." She said, crisply. "The suicide team?"

A Germanic voice crackled back over the intercom. "Yes - we've found a cadaver of the right size and body type, and we've already switched the dental records. That, plus the forged suicide note, should keep the police from digging too hard when they find the car, burned to a crisp, at the bottom of a ravine."

"Good..." Elizabeth said, smiling - then she turned back to Gerry.

"Ew... ugg... eee..." He tried to accuse her, but his muscles betrayed him, refusing to form the words.

She understood, anyway. "Yes, I certainly did. In a few hours, the police will find 'your' body, and a suicide note - and they will discover from your boss what happened, and I'll simply claim you never showed up - so I can hardly have you around, refuting the claim, can I? No - by then, you'll be in a cargo plane bound for the US."

"hiii...?" Gerry tried to ask, as the world turned to gray and he began to slip under the darkness that surrounded him.

As consciousness faded, he heard Elizabeth's words, as if from a great distance.

"Why? Because the difference between you and this other man is that he's very, very rich - and will pay very handsomely indeed to have his fantasies made real..."

Then the darkness claimed Gerry, and he knew nothing more.

* * * * *

Gerry's eyes fluttered open, and for several long seconds, he stared up at the featureless white plain above him, confused and dull-witted, his brain not making the vital connections necessary for him to even wonder where he was.

"Okay - he's coming out from under it..." A voice said, and Gerry's eyes narrowed slightly as he found himself wondering where he'd heard that female voice before...

...and then everything snapped into focus. With a start, Gerry sat bolt upright...

Well, he would have if it weren't for something holding him down - when he tried to rise, cool, flat objects with very little give held him at the chest, waist, wrists and biceps. Eyes widening in shock, Gerry also realized that he was naked, from the way the air felt across his bare skin.

"What's going on!" He demanded, shocked.

Dr. Lutz' face appeared in his limited scope of vision.

"Ah - I'd say he's alert and conscious..." She comments to somebody else, with a grin. "Let me go!" Gerry demanded, struggling against the restraints.

A new face loomed into his limited field of vision - a tall, broad-shouldered man with a rough-hewn face beneath a mop of sandy hair.

"Well now, you don't want us to let you go, Jerry...!" he said, jovially, with a deep twang that Gerry couldn't identify as Oklahoman, not having heard it before. "We're gonna make your fantasy come true!"

Gerry paused, jaw dropping, as the thought struck him... then he shook his head. As... tempting as the idea was, he didn't want it like this, as a prisoner, as an unwilling participant with no control over his fate. Once again, he jerked against the straps that bound him. "No! No - I don't want you to do this!

Let me go!"

"You see, Ron?" Elizabeth said to the muscular man. "He's perfect. No matter what he says or does, part of him is quite willing to cooperate, to see this through - which will make him very susceptible indeed to the programming."

"Let me out of here, scheisskopf!" Gerry shouted, struggling against the straps - and getting nowhere. Now, fear was making his heart pound and his hands sweat...

...but it wasn't just fear. Though he was horrified to find himself in this situation, his life 'stolen' from him, with him held prisoner of another's whims, he also knew Elizabeth was right. Part of him did want to have the chance to go through with it. Part of him was very willing indeed...

What was scaring him the most was the fact that he wasn't being offered the choice - it was being thrust upon him, willy-nilly, without any chance for him to have input or even the illusion of any control over his fate.

"I think we're ready to begin, then." Elizabeth said to the man she'd called Ron. "Why don't you go ahead and get yourself something to drink, whatever. This will take a bit of time and, quite frankly, will be rather boring."

Ron shook his head. "Nothing doing, Doc. This is what I'm paying for, to watch the whole thing from beginning to end. So, you just go ahead and get started, little lady, and I'll watch from... well, from anywhere I damned well please!"

He said it cheerfully - but there was no disguising the steel underlying that humor. Ron was the man with the money, and he knew it. More importantly - so did Elizabeth.

"Of course..." Elizabeth said, smoothly. She turned and picked up something - then lit it up to the light, giving Gerry a good look at the hypodermic syringe as she checked it for air bubbles.

"Hey!" Gerry said, eyes bulging in fear. "What... what are you doing!"

"This is a muscle relaxant..." Elizabeth said, more to Ron than to Gerry. "It will make things easier of the patient is limp..."

Gerry yelped as the needle slid home, and the chemical inside was injected into his blood stream.

"Stop it!" HE shouted, trying - in vain - to struggle. "Get away from me with that! Let me go! Ged ahay hom he! Ha... huds ong wid..."

His jaw and tongue betrayed him, and he could only make incoherent grunting sounds as his body went limp and unresponsive.

Three brawny young men dressed in white entered Gerry's line of sight, and they began to unstrap him - but Gerry couldn't make a break for freedom, his body refusing to obey his still-sharp mind.

Helpless to do anything, he could only lay limp, adrenaline running through his system, as the men began to clothe him in something tight-fitting and elastic.

Then they lowered a helmet of some sort over his head and clasped it in place, and the world went dark.

+ + + +

"As you can see, that's a full-body wetsuit... with a few additions." Elizabeth explained to Ron as the three orderlies finished suiting Gerry's prone body up and lited it off the table.

"That's for the.. whatchamacallit, right?" Ron asked, watching the procedure with interest.

"Sensory deprivation chamber - that's right." Elizabeth affirmed. "He'll be unable to hear, see, or feel anything, except what we want him to. As well, special IV tubes will begin his hormone treatment - Estradiol Valerate, Progesterone, Cyprotetone Acetate, and Goserin Acetate. We'll also be doping him with Amobarbital Sodium, to make him more suggestible. Also, of course, the necessary vitamins, proteins and supplements to keep him from starving."

She fell silent, and they watched as Gerry's limp form was lowered into the water-filled chamber, and hooked up to the feed lines.

* * * * *

Gerry was lost - lost in nothing. He couldn't tell which position his body was in, couldn't hear or see anything - even his own breathing and heartbeat were denied him, though he knew they must be continuing, as he was still alive.

Then, suddenly, an image flared to life, and he blinked.

He was looking at what appeared to be a TV feed - one of the popular Cable Networks, apparently. But there was something wrong with the image...

All the women in the image were sharp and clear. He could see them with almost super-human clarity, the picture was so sharp and clear. The men, however.. all the men that appeared in the image were little more then blurs... except for their crotches, which were in that same, sharp clarity.

The men's words were also muffled and indistinct, hard to make out - except for certain phrases that were sharp and clear, mostly when they were giving women compliments or otherwise talking about women.

'They're trying to brain wash me!' Gerry thought, horrified. Though he'd fantasized about being turned into a woman, it was a fantasy in which he was a willing participant - never had he fantasized about his own brain being 'meddled' with. The thought of having his mind changed, maybe even damaged, scared the hell out of him.

'I can't let them do this to me!' He thought in panic, closing his eyes...

...and, instantly, the sound and image vanished, leaving him floating in darkness. Pure darkness. Silent darkness. Endless darkness that stretched off into infinity...

He had no idea how long he waited, how long he floated in nothingness. There was no way of accurately judging time. He tried to keep his mind busy, to formulate plans, which he then discarded as impractical, one after the other. He tried mental exercises, tried visualization techniques...

Hours passed. His body was being maintained, he knew - but how long could he be locked up in here without suffering permanent damage to his body...?

The question became more acute as the hours continued to slip away. Surely, he must be well into his second day in the pure blackness, unrelieved... and now he was worrying about his mind as well as his body. How long could somebody float in nothingness, and still remain sane...

Almost unwillingly, he let his eyes flutter open - and the 'TV' flared once more into life, the sound and motion so much of a blessed relief that he wanted to cry.

'A half hour - that's all I'll watch...' Gerry told himself. 'I can outlast them. A half hour every day can't really hurt me, right...?'

+ + + +

"Ron - he's back on the TV". Elizabeth said, and Ron put down his coffee and followed her into the control room for the SDC.

"So - he's fighting after all." Ron said. "You're right, though - he couldn't take it, and went back to the TV."

"Of course - with no other input, his mind forced him to." Elizabeth said, looking at the clock. "He lasted nearly four hours without any input - that's quite a feat of will, considering that time is purely subjective without input of any sort."

"So, what - we've broken him?" Ron said, surprised. "Wasn't much of a fight."

"Oh, no - he thinks he was 'successful'." Elizabeth said, with a grin. "He'll fall into a cycle - a couple of hours without the TV, then a little bit of the TV. However, aside from the 'forced focus' images he's seeing, there's subliminal messages being projected on the screen, and hypnosis-inducing tones in the soundtrack, which will help condition him. The more he watches, the more he'll 'need' to watch. So

- each 'break' will be shorter, each period of training longer - until he's watching full-time." "How long will that take?" Ron asked.

Elizabeth shrugged. "Anywhere from eight to fifteen days. Once he's watching full-time, we'll switch from this 'low intensity' fed to 'high intensity' programming, to prep him for Stage Two - that'll take another couple of days, though it'll seem much longer to him."

Ron grimaced. "So - what you're saying is that we basically do nothing for the next two or three weeks."

Elizabeth shrugged. "That's right - we can't exactly rush this. You have no idea how fast a response that actually is for brainwashing techniques. Still, for us, it will be very boring..."

* * * * *

"Well...?" Ron asked, entering the SDC control room.

Elizabeth smiled. "Eight hours, and nary a blink. It took twelve days, but he's ready for the POVSETR sequence."

"Povsetter?" Ron asked, blankly.

Elizabeth spelled out the acronym with a smile, then supplied the full version. "Point-of-view Sensory Enhanced Tactile Response. The suit has special tubing that allows us to rapidly adjust the temperature. Until now, it's been kept at an exact temperature so that he felt neither hot or cold. Now, we'll adjust the temperature to reinforce the thinking we want, as well as the subliminal messages we'll be feeding him. It's further enhanced by the fact that everything seems to be happening from his own point of view, making it hit home." She turned and tapped a technician on the shoulder.

+ + + +

Gerry was watching intently as Roberta swept down the stairs, resplendent in the black evening gown. She was finally getting Marcus to take her to dinner, atier her scheme to get him to break up with Linda had worked, and she was...

Then darkness suddenly enfolded Gerry, and he felt shear panic at being 'abandoned'. It was horrible, it was terrifying, it was worse then being dead...

...and it lasted for a mere instant, before an image reformed.

He seemed to be sitting in a chair in a living room somewhere. He couldn't feel his body - but the image and the muted sound of traffic from somewhere out of sight was very convincing, very clear and real.

Gerry found his view shitiing, as if he were lowering his head and looking down.

He found himself looking at a pretty standard pair of men's trousers, with Italian-leather dress shoes peeking out from the hems of the legs...

...and then he felt a blast of cold take his body - cold so icy, so perfect that it was like being stabbed by a million tiny needles, excruciating in it's power...

then everything vanished - sensation, sight, sound, leaving him panicked in the blackness...

Which reformed into the exact same view was before. Once more, his head began to tilt down, and he felt a burst of apprehension at the icy cold that was to come...

instead, he found himself looking at a pair of masculine legs, dressed in a shapeless gray knee-length skirt and 'Mary Jane' style pumps, hairy calves exposed in between.

Cold washed over him - not the icy, excruciating cold of before, but sill enough to be unpleasant... And then everything vanished.

To restart again. Once more, his head tilted down - and this time, he was looking at a long, sleek pair of women's legs, wearing black nylons that set off the red mid-thigh skirt and red pumps she was wearing.

A flood of pleasant warmth washed over Gerry's body. The sound of a door opening was enough to draw his gaze up from those legs...

...as a sexy and seductively clad woman entered the room.

"I want you!" She said, tearing open her dress to reveal a spectacular body. "Make wild love to me...!" That icy cold inundated Gerry's senses again - then everything went black...

...to start all over again. The same routine with looking down at the female, shapely legs happened, again with the pleasant warmth, then he was looking up as the door opened... and the woman entered.

"Hi!" the woman said, in a friendly manner. "Just thought I'd drop buy for a few minutes and see how you were doing..."

Gerry could do nothing but listen as the woman chatted, feeling a slight chill the entire time - not much, but it was definitely noticeable, and not all that pleasant...

then the scene restarted. This time, it was a handsome man who came through the door and chatted with Gerry - except that, aside from the opening 'Hi, gorgeous!' and another compliment later on, the whole 'conversation' was as muted and indistinct as Gerry had heard on the TV. While this was happening, the temperature was in a state of flux. For the most part, Gerry was feeling nothing - a completely neutral temperature. However, the view kept shifting to stare at the man's crotch - and every time it did, there was a burst of pleasant warmth.

Then the scene restarted - and this time, when the man came through the door, he started telling Gerry how sexy 'she' was - and it brought very pleasant warmth to Gerry. Pleasure that was increased as the man dropped his pants and told Gerry he wanted to fuck 'her' long and hard...

+ + + +

Elizabeth hid a smile as Ron blushed and turned away from the image of the naked man on the screen in the control room.

"Over the next couple of days, this 'series' of attitude reinforcement will continue, with different scenarios." She pointed to the screen, where a new scenario had just started - the point of view was in a sort of mid-class restaurant, with a very masculine hand pointing to something called 'The Lumberjack Steak Dinner'. The screen went blank for a second, then repeated the scenario - this time in a slightly more upscale restaurant, with an effeminately masculine hand with long nails picking a lighter meal.

"Dining, shopping, various sorts of social events..." Elizabeth said, ticking the points off on her fingers. "they'll all be covered - with each scenario being run at least three times, well spread apart, for maximum reinforcement."

"Well - sounds like you really have this worked out." Ron complimented Elizabeth.

Dr. Lutz smiled at the compliment, not bothering to inform Ron that it was all stuff she'd picked up as staff psychiatrist at the CIA before being let go...

"Well. Come back on Wednesday, and you can see Phase Two go into effect..."

* * * * *

"So - what's phase two?" Ron asked, sitting in the chair he'd had installed into the project control room for himself.

Elizabeth smiled. "It's quite simple, really. You see, we started with a subject who, basically, desires what we're going to do. Well, fantasized about it, anyway - he never had the force of conviction necessary to do anything substantial about it. What we've done, so far, is further reinforce those attitudes - that being female would be good, that being male is bad. Since he's never been happy being male, anyway, the programming had a very strong 'hook' on which to hang. However, that's not enough..."

"Yeah..." Ron said, grinning. "I could find a lot of guys who'd willing let themselves be made into a woman. What I'm paying you for is more than that - I want an obedient, compliant, utterly perfect sex- slave, who'll do anything at all I tell her to."

"Yes, of course..." Elizabeth said, rolling her eyes at her client's shining eyes and erection at the mere thought of what Gerry was to become. "That's the purpose of Phase Two. While the hormones we're pumping into him begin to have their effect, we're going to begin training him to want to be exactly the fantasy woman you desire. Using his own, now reinforced, desires, we'll make him eager and willing to do anything we say, believing he's doing it from his own free will - while, all the while, we'll really be stealing that free will away from him."

"Oh?" Ron said, sipping at the coffee he'd had brought to him. "How's that?"

"Well..." Elizabeth explained. "First, we erase his conscious memory of the Sensory Deprivation Chamber, and..."

"Hey!" Ron interrupted. "Atier wasting all this time, you're just gonna... get rid of it?"

Elizabeth sighed and shook her head. "Of course not - it's impossible to complete erase any thoughts or experiences. He won't actively remember any of it - but the programming will still effect him. More so, in fact - since he won't actively remember getting the programming, he won't be able to actively, consciously fight it's effects."

"Oh..." Ron said, mollified.

"so, as far as he'll remember, he'll be waking up the day atier we brought him here - and, thanks to some pre-prepared video tape, he'll remember his first session with me a little differently - he'll recall taking me up on my offer to bring him here, a 'special clinic' for Gender Reassignment Surgery. In these memories, I've told him that he only has to take them as far as he willingly decides to..."

"But..." Ron interrupted, with a smile. "Atier the SDC programming, that urge is a lot stronger, so he'll just go ahead with the program."

"Exactly." Elizabeth said, reigning in her annoyance at being interrupted. "Plus, he's been programmed to unconsciously obey any 'cue' we give him, so he'll believe that the choices he makes are his own, when they'll really be the ones we want him to make. The best part of this process is that he'll make up his own rationale for what he's doing, so he'll firmly believe that he's in complete control of what's happening to him, so he'll never feel the urge to 'fight' what's happening..."

* * * * *

He was trapped in the bottom of a deep, dark well, hemmed in by the unseen walls and floating in ice- cold water. He was trying to scream for help, but no sound emerged from his mouth. Someone, in the distance, was talking - but he couldn't quite make out the words...

With a gasp, Gerry sat bolt upright, heart pounding painfully in his chest. Wide eyed, he stared around the room, unable to place himself in the comfortable-but-impersonal room...

Then the tattered remnants of the strange nightmare began to fade, and Gerry's heart slowed as he remembered where he was. He was at the special clinic, the one that catered to people like him, unhappy with the mortal coil they'd been condemned to.

Where genetics failed, however, medical science could step in - and Dr. Lutz' amazing revelation that he qualified for a special grant offered by a rich American was like a dream come true.

Leaning back against the headboard, Gerry felt the cold sheen of sweat from his nightmare evaporating into the air. Pulling the damp, twisted covers away from his body, he grinned wryly at his own reaction to this situation - despite the fact that he was on the road to having his fantasy made into reality, part of him was scared at the prospect, which would explain the nightmare that had plagued him.

Shaking his head at his own self-doubt, Gerry swung his legs over the edge of the bed and stood up. Grabbing the thick white bathrobe they'd provided for him, he wrapped it around his body.

Just then, there was a brief rap on the door.

"Come in!" Gerry called, and the hospital-style door swung open to reveal Dr. Lutz.

"Good morning, Jerry!" She said, brightly. "I have some good news, and some... well, not 'bad', but a little annoying, news."

"What's that, Dr. Lutz?" Gerry asked, not bothering to correct her on his name.

"Elizabeth, please." She insisted. "Anyway - the good news is that it's a very light schedule of patients this quarter. You'll practically have the run of the place, so any and all courses, programs and surgeries you decided to take will be easily available."

"hey - great." Gerry said, with a smile. "What the 'not-so-good' news?"

Elizabeth sighed. "The night nurse didn't realize that you were just here for a 'look-see' right now, and started you on the hormone treatments. She gave you the injections while you were asleep. I know that you hadn't..."

Almost before he knew he was going to do it, Gerry was waving a hand in dismissal. "Oh, it's okay - I don't mind. After all, that's why I'm here, isn't it?"

He blinked - when had he decided to go whole hog right off the bat...? He shrugged - since he obviously had decided, 'when' or 'how' didn't matter. After all, this was his fantasy, wasn't it?"

"Oh - that's no problem then. I'll just tell the nurses to continue the treatment." Elizabeth said, with a smile. "Now, I was wondering - what would you like the staff to call you? Usually, a client has lived as a cross-dresser for some time before ending up here, and already has a 'femme' name, but in your case..."

"Gee - I hadn't really thought about it..." Gerry said, frowning. "Well, since you Americans seem so intent on mispronouncing my name, how about 'Jeri' - or maybe slur it a bit, like 'Sheri'..."

"Well, I guess that's okay." Elizabeth said, in a neutral tone. "Many 'girls' here decide to pick a more sharply feminine name... but I'm not suggesting you pick something as insipid as Cheri or Cyndi or Brandi or anything like that..."

With the slight emphasis she put on the last name, it seemed to leap out at Gerry. Again, almost before he was aware he was going to say it, he found himself blurting out: "Brandi! Yeah - that's perfect!"

Elizabeth looked surprised - almost overly so. "Oh - are you sure?"

"Yeah - it sounds... right somehow..." Gerry said - although he couldn't quite pin down why it did. "Yeah - from now on, have everybody call me Brandi."

"Okay... Brandi." Elizabeth said, with a smile - and the sound of that very feminine name being applied to him made Ger... Brandi shiver in delight.

"Well, why don't you go ahead and get dressed?" Elizabeth 'suggested' a muted gleam in her eyes as she waited to see how well the programming had taken hold.

"Oh - sure." The newly re-christened Brandi said. He walked over to the closet in the room and pulled it open, finding it fully stocked with a large selection of male, unisex and feminine clothing, all in his size. Almost out of habit, he began to reach for a pair of jeans and a T-shirt...

...and felt a shiver run down his spine. He paused for a second...

"Well, since I'm going whole-hog, I might as well start wearing women's clothes..." Brandi said brightly, hiding his mild confusion at his own reaction. He started to pick out some female clothing, starting with a simple skirt-and-blouse combo... and another shiver ran down his spine.

"Um..." Brandi said, confused, blinking. "Something wrong?" Elizabeth 'prompted'.

"I.. don't know..." Brandi said, sounding delightfully puzzled. "Something just doesn't feel right..." "Well..." Elizabeth said. "Usually, women wear nylons with something like that..."

"...but I'm still kinda hairy!" Brandi said, smiling in relief. "That's what it is - I feel silly about putting on women's clothing when I'm still so hairy. I guess I'd better get a bath, and shave off some of this hair."

"That sounds reasonable.." Elizabeth agreed, with a smile. "You go ahead and do that."

Humming cheerfully, Brandi put down the clothing and headed off towards the bathroom, where all the items he'd need to rid himself of the unsightly body hair awaited.

Elizabeth waited until the door was closed and the bath water was running, then turned and shot a thumbs-up at the hidden camera in the corner.

* * * * *

Letting warm water fill the tub, Gerry..

He shivered, violently. "My name's Brandi now..." He told himself, firmly. "Brandi, Brandi, Brandi. Just like I always wanted, I'm going to be a woman. Brandi!"

...Brandi grabbed a fistful of bright pink BIC razors, ignoring the blue Gillette For Me ones that were also stocked. With a smile, he slid into the tub, feeling the warm water enfold his skin.

"I'm going to shave my body hair off and wear women's clothes!" He told himself, happily. "It took me long enough, but I'm finally doing it..."

Slowly, the smile dimmed. "Why.. why did I wait so long...?"

The thought loomed larger and larger as he cast about for the answer...

...and then he felt an incredible chill clamp his body, and he was almost sick to his stomach. "It doesn't matter why." He told himself. "The important thing is that I'm doing it now."

Slowly, his body relaxed, and he picked up a bottle of shave gel and began to smear it on his legs, covering the ugly male body hair with the thick foam.

It took all ten razors and quite a bit of time, but finally Brandi's body was completely denuded of hair. Letting the water run out of the tub, he climbed out and admired his now bare form with a smile, loving how wonderful - how feminine - he looked. Well.. more feminine than usual. He was still obviously male, and it nauseated him...

'Nauseated?' He wondered, briefly. He'd never been happy with his body before, but nauseated...? Ignoring it, he smiled again at his reflection, then headed out to get dressed.

Elizabeth was gone, apparently having other things to take care of - which was fine with Brandi. Though he didn't really mind having another woman around, it was slightly... disconcerting. It was better to be alone.

He started with underwear - a pair of simple white cotton briefs with small, powder-blue flowers printed on them. They were most definitely feminine, and he felt a thrill as he pulled them up his smooth legs and settled them around his hips - but was immediately disappointed by the way they looked on his narrow, masculine hips, with his cock bulging them out at the front. Tucking his cock back between his legs to give him a smoother profile was uncomfortable - but it looked better.

Next, he pulled on a matching training bra. Though he had nothing to fill the bra out with, it felt nice to put one on, anyway.

"Wait a second..." Brandi said, with a slow grin. "Maybe I do have something to fill them out with..."

Digging around in the provided clothing, he picked out a couple of soti, pale pink socks, and used them to pad the bra out to a modest A-cup. Not much, but enough to create a hint of shape, and the feel of the tight bra pushing the soti socks against his bare chest felt great, a constant reminder of what was to come.

Next came the nylons. They were basic 'nude' nylons, not special in any way - but he loved the feel of them as they slid up his newly slick skin. He could have gone with pantyhose rather than nylons, but for some reason this felt more 'right'...

...though, for the life of him, he couldn't figure out why.

Shaking off the thought, he pulled on the ankle-length white skirt and the white blouse with the lace trimming on the collar. The blouse was only superficially different than the work shirts he'd worn before - but the skirt was new and exciting, being so undeniably feminine. It felt great.

Brandi then forced his feet into a pair of shoes - brown leather 'sandal' style shoes, with a very small heel.

Walking over to the mirror, he looked at himself...

...and wondered what the hell he was doing.

"I look ridiculous!" He told his reflection. "Utterly redic..."

This time the chill was so painful that he bent double, moaning. It seemed to take forever for the chill to pass.

A few minutes later, Brandi straightened up and looked at the mirror with an utterly blank, expressionless expression. It was as if he'd simply 'stopped'...

...then he smiled at the reflection in the mirror. "Gee - not all that great." He told himself in an upbeat tone of voice. "But that's why I'm here - so that I'll eventually look just great dressed like this!"

Turning, he flounced away from the mirror, no longer consciously recalling the first comment he'd made, or the effect it had occasioned...

* * * * *

"So - how's it going, Brandi?" Elizabeth asked in a neutral tone.

"Just great!" Brandi said, enthusiastically. "Two months of classes have sure taught me a lot!" She - Brandi had started using the feminine pronoun recently - slowly spun in a circle. "Don't I look great?"

Elizabeth had to fight to keep from smirking. "Yes, you look wonderful..." She agreed.

The truth was, Elizabeth thought Brandi looked ludicrous. Atier all, the hormones had barely started to have any effect, other then the fact that Brandi's nipples were a little puffy. Most of the gross physical effects had been through diet, selective exercise, and the use of semi-permanent depilatories.

So, Brandi still looked masculine - except for the fact that she was wearing plenty of make-up and jewelry, was dressed in a knee-length skirt over nylons and a silk blouse, and was wearing high heels

- four inch heels, to be exact, a skill that Brandi was inordinately proud of. In addition, her nails and hair had been allowed to grow, and her hair was bleached to a sort of dirty blonde, and her nails painted a bright pink.

Of course, the truth was that Brandi thought she looked pretty lousy as well - not that she'd ever admit it, of course. Still, the nightly programming Brandi received while watching TV - usually soap operas and 'fluff' talk-shows - was enough to reinforce the negative self image. Elizabeth had also brought in a couple of somewhat masculine - but still attractive looking - genetic women, claiming them to be post-op transsexuals. It was part of a calculated campaign to make Brandi want to look more and more feminine, feeling decidedly inferior to these more beautiful women - especially since the all-male teaching staff that was instructing the group was told to lavish attention on the most feminine 'transsexuals' and ignore Brandi. It was all quite effective, so far.

"So, what can I do for you today?" Elizabeth asked Brandi.

Brandi looked around theatrically, as if to see if anybody was eavesdropping - one of her courses was on 'feminine body kinetics', and the instructor had been told to teach her to 'ham it up'. Elizabeth didn't want subtle feminine movements in Brandi - she wanted the would-be woman to practically be a parody of femininity.

"Well..." Brandi said, biting on his lower lip. "I've been taking feminine voice classes and everything..."

"Yes?" Elizabeth prompted. Brandi looked like she was about to burst into tears as she admitted the 'awful truth'.

"When I call on the intercom, some people still call me 'sir!'." Brandi said, mortified at her failure to achieve a feminine-sounding voice.

Actually, Brandi showed remarkable impersonation talents - her voice was actually quite feminine, in a somewhat husky, low-pitched way. What she didn't know, of course, was the staff had been instructed to do this to her, to reinforce the idea that she wasn't good enough.

"Well.. you'll just have to work on it." Elizabeth said, 'sympathetically'.

"But - one of the others said you can do that voice surgery and tracheal shave now." Brandi said, in a rush. "I know it's usually leti so that all the surgery is done at one time - but can't you give me a high- pitched female voice now?"

"Well - perhaps..." Elizabeth 'mused', fighting to keep a grin off her face. "Are you sure that's what you want, though?"

"Oh, yes!" Brandi said, eagerly. "I want a voice so high-pitched and feminine that it'll never, ever be mistaken for a man's voice again!"

"I'll... see what I can arrange..." Elizabeth promised, voice strangled at the effort not to laugh in delight at Brandi's urgent begging for a new voice.

She turned away and picked up the phone, dialing the Operating room the 'clinic' boasted, and talking for a few minutes to the head Doctor on call. What Brandi - who could hear Elizabeth's side of the conversation - couldn't tell was the fact that the entire conversation was pre-scripted.

Placing a hand over the receiver, Elizabeth turned around.

"I'm sorry, Brandi - we can't send you in to perform just that one procedure. It's not time or cost effective." Elizabeth said, feigning regret.

Brandi thought about it for a minute. I was, really, such a small thing to wait - yet, for some reason, it seemed like it was the most important thing in the world to do. She didn't know why - but the fact that it was driving her nuts was good enough reason to find any excuse to get it done.

Her plan had been to make herself over into a feminine version of her male self - as if she had been born female, rather than male. That was pretty simple - but it was so simple that very little work would be needed to be done in reconstruction, and she needed a better excuse. Forcing herself to ignore a complaint from deep inside, she thought 'the hell with it' and said...

"Well, what if he also does one of those jaw and facial restructuring?"

"Hmmm... I'm not sure. You see, they prefer to work in 'theme' - you know, all related surgery at the same time so they don't have to keep working over the same tissue, which can result in scars.." Elizabeth explained.

"Well - how about a nose-job and collagen injection for my lips, too?" Brandi asked, her inexplicable need to have her voice altered causing her to ignore the warnings her brain was giving her.

"Hang on a second - I'll check." Elizabeth said, then went on to riff a few more lines of dialogue with the doctor before hanging up the phone.

Smiling, she turned to Brandi. "Congratulations. Usually, the team needs a coupe, of weeks to do work-ups - but they've had two cancellations. We can get you started today, if either of the work-ups for a facial rebuild meet your fancy. He's sending them to my computer right now.'

It was a lie, of course - facial reconstruction was a painstaking job that had to be based on each individual's face. As had these ones - Brandi had been thoroughly x-rayed, CAT scanned and probed to make a computer work-up for the two faces that now came up on Elizabeth's computer monitor.

"Well?" Elizabeth asked, turning the monitor so that Brandi could see.

Though they were both based on Brandi's original facial configuration, the two 'atier' simulations were completely different. The one on the left was more feminine than Brandi's own face - but it was a hard, almost cruel femininity, suitable for a dominating bitch. It was all sharp angles and flat planes, a hard outline with no give of compassion.

The one on the right... the one on the right was definitely 'sotier' In fact, it was so feminine that it was almost ludicrous.

The altered image showed an open, cheerful face with a tiny snub nose and huge eyes. Though the computer image was devoid of make-up, her lips were incredibly - almost too - full and soft, and framed with dimples. All in all, it was an incredibly bright, sexy, feminine face...

...to the point where it could have been a caricature of a classic 'bimbo'.

"I... don't know..." Brandi said, hesitantly - neither one really appealed to her. She wanted something more 'downplayed' than the image on the right, and nothing like the image on the left.

"Well, then I'll just call the doctor back, and arrange for you to go in a couple of weeks..."

The thought of being stuck with this voice for a couple of more weeks slammed into the pit of her stomach like a sledgehammer - she couldn't take a couple of more weeks of this awful, grating voice she was cursed with.

"No!" She almost shouted. "No - I'll.. I'll take the face on the right." Elizabeth smiled. "Well... if you insist..."

* * * * *

"All right, Bambi - show the class how it's done." Doug, the instructor, said.

"Okay!" Bambi said, eagerly - and Elizabeth, on the side-lines, grinned at the sound of that high- pitched soprano voice emerging from between those incredibly full, gloss-pink lipstick-coated lips. It was so high and pure that it sounded impossible to be real - just as her face was too perfectly 'bimboish' to seem real - yet, there it was...

Elizabeth's grin only widened as she watched the star pupil stand up and smooth her white leather skirt over her nylon-clad legs before demonstrating the correct technique...

...for walking in platform shoes with nine-inch heels. In this case, white leather platforms with a sliver spiked heel that made a lovely tapping sound as Bambi demonstrated her patented walk - short little steps, heels and toes in line with each other, hips swiveling roundly as she let her weight shift, each hip dropping and causing her firm, small ass to jiggle under the skin-tight skirt. The white-leather corset she wore under her blouse helped keep her back erect as well as pinch in her waist, and she let her arms sway with exaggerated motions, fingers consciously held spread apart, her wrists snapping back and forth with each stride she took.

It was four months into the program - and things couldn't be going better. The hormones were starting to have physically noticeable effects - Bambi didn't have to pad her bra out for an A-cup anymore, though her bras were now padded out to a large 'B'.

Even more obvious to everyone else but her was the psychological effects, though. Her new name, for instance. After the surgery that had given the new woman her new face and voice, her voice had been slurred and awkward until she healed and was given full movement of her jaw back. On orders from Ron, relayed through Elizabeth, everybody in the facility continuously misunderstood Brandi's slurred pronunciation of her own name, 'thinking' she was saying 'Bambi'. Finally, she'd given in and accepted that as her new name...

...just like Ron wanted.

Bambi was responding perfectly to all stimuli. She'd been upset at how she'd looked with her new face at first, especially since the surgeon had made a 'mistake' when doing the dimples - she had great dimples, but the tightness of her flesh caused those full lips to curve 'naturally' into an insipid-looking smile. However, thanks to Bambi's implanted sensitivity to how others responded to her, constant comments on how beautiful she was now quickly made her love her new face.

Likewise, the corset had been an easy inducement to get Bambi to wear - just a few questions as to whether or not she was putting on weight, and Bambi had literally begged for the right to wear a corset until she could get liposuction surgery to reduce her waist.

In fact, Bambi's need to meet other people's expectations was now incredibly strong, thanks to near- constant bombardment through subliminal messages, coupled with the constant supply of hypnotic enhancer that was mixed in with her hormone doses. It was making things nice and easy - especially when it came to things like...

With a nod, Elizabeth let the instructor know it was time.

"Now, not all of you will learn how to be so incredibly good at this as Bambi here is..." Doug said, and Bambi flushed in pleasure at the compliment...

...but Doug was still talking. "...but don't be upset, things balance out. For instance - none of you is cursed with huge, ugly hands and feet like Bambi here is, so there'll be nothing to distract the eye from the walk you do manage to get down pat."

Bambi looked stricken, as if she'd been slammed across the back of the head and the pit of the stomach simultaneously. Horrified, she looked at her hands, still masculine-scaled despite the nail-polish on her long nails, then at her feet - her man-sized feet in the large-sized high heels.

She burst into tears. She went red at the same of standing there in class, bawling her eyes out - but she couldn't stop. She felt.. she felt ugly and horrid and...

Turning, she blindly fled towards the door, lost in a haze of shame and self-hatred. With perfect timing, Elizabeth interposed herself in between Bambi and the door. "There, there, honey - what's wrong?" Elizabeth asked.

"I.. My.." Bambi sobbed - she looked up and realized who was holding her. "I want you to make my hands and feet smaller!" She sobbed, humiliation outweighing god judgment for the moment. "I want hands and feet smaller and daintier than anybody else's are! I... I want feet that make it easy to walk in really, really high heels so that I can have a sexy walk and pretty feet!"

"Of course, honey..." Elizabeth said, with a smile - the OR was all ready set up for the procedure. "Come on, honey..."

She led Bambi to the OR, again running pre-scripted dialogue with the doctor. "Doctor, Bambi here wants to have her hands and feet reshaped." Elizabeth said.

The doctor shook his head as he looked at the sobbing transsexual. "I'm sorry - we can't do it." "What?!" Bambi cried, pathetically. "Why not!"

"We have a procedure scheduled for leg recontouring, and that's what my teams' going to be working on."

"Cancel it!" Bambi begged. "Please, I need tiny, dainty hands and feet. If you don't... I'll kill myself!"

"Look, Bambi, I'd love to help - but I'd be skinned alive if I let the bone growth medium go to waste. It's time sensitive, and will spoil if we don't do the procedure today. I can bump the patient until next week, when I can get some more in - but if I just throw away the batch we've got now, I'd be fired.'

"Then use it on me!" Bambi said. "Reshape my legs while you do my hands and feet!"

The doctor blinked and looked at Bambi's legs which - with exercise and diet, in high heels and covered with black nylons, were actually quite nice. "Are you sure? Your legs would be lengthened and sculpted. The set-up we have is for a taller woman..."

"That's okay!" Bambi insisted. "Long, sexy legs are great! The longer the better!"

It wasn't hard to convince the doctor, and Bambi was out under before she could conceivably rethink her hasty decisions...

* * * * * "Bambi?"

Blinking, Bambi opened her eyes and looked up at the doctor looming over her bed. "Yes?" She asked, vaguely - through the medication - aware of a slight throbbing through her hands, legs and feet. Bone material had been removed from her hands and feet to shrink and reshape them, and her legs had been lengthened by the reverse process. All her appendages were now encased in plaster, holding them rigid.

"Well, Bambi, the procedure looks good - but you'll have to learn how to walk all over again when the cast come off." The doctor said, with a smile - making Bambi wince.

"However..." The doctor said. "Right now you're on the restricted list - no visitors, no television, and restricted nursing. Which is why I want to show you how to use this self-feeding tube. It supplies a mix of basic nutrients at near-body temperature, which is just perfect for your current state. Nice and easy to digest."

He held up a long black plastic tube. "As you can see, the last seven inches of the tube is randomly ridged for easy grip, and The End is bulbous, to facilitate easy retaining with your lips. Whatever you do, though, don't bite down on it - you could cause severe damage doing that."

As the doctor helped Bambi fit the feeding tube into her cast-covered hands, which were formed in a natural curve, she thought to herself that the feeding tube looked like something very familiar... but, doped up as she was, she couldn't quite make the connection. She shrugged it off - it didn't matter in the least.

Once it was fitted into her cast-covered hand, the doctor smiled. "Go ahead and try it, Bambi. Just remember - you need suction on it to create the feed, and you have to trigger the valve."

Frowning in concentration - the drugs were making it hard to think - Bambi brought The End of the tube to her mouth, wrapping her full, soft lips around the thick, ridged shati. She began to suck on it...

After a minute, she removed it from her lips. "It's not working."

The doctor smiled. "You have to be patient - it takes time for the nutrient to go all the way through the tube. It'll go faster if you manipulate the valve. Try running your tongue over it and 'jiggling' it back and forth."

Obediently, she slipped the tube between her lips again. Sucking on it, she began to slide it back and forth between her lips, while her tongue ran over the bulbous head of the near-body-temperature tube.

After a few minutes, she was rewarded with a flow of thick, warm liquid with a salty and slightly fishy taste to it. She swallowed it down rather apathetically, then licked the feeding tube clean before letting it emerge from her full, sexy lips.

+ + + + +

"Wow - and she has no idea...?" Ron said, as he turned away from the monitor that had shown Bambi do a passable blow-job on the decidedly phallic 'feeding tube'.

"None - in with the pain medication is certain other drugs." Elizabeth said. "Each time she does that, she'll find it more and more enjoyable - and since we've effectively isolated her, she'll do it fairly often, just to relive the boredom. Long before those casts come off, she'll have formed the connections in her brain that make that action 'pleasant' - something enjoyable to do when she'd bored."

"Doctor - you're a genius." Ron said, looking at the monitor again. With her body under the sheets on the bed, Bambi was looking most decidedly female - and the hormones hadn't even reached full effectiveness, not to mention the surgery that was still to come. "I can't believe how well it's going - and I can't believe we're still months away. The wait is killing me."

"You wanted perfection - and that's what you're going to get." Elizabeth said. "It just takes time, that's all"

* * * * *

"How's our little patient doing?" Elizabeth asked the supervising 'Instructor'. "Oh... just lousy, thanks." The instructor grinned.

Elizabeth grinned back as she watched Bambi struggle through the 'Home Ec.' Class. She certainly did look lovely now, with the nine months worth of hormones having their effects - her ass and bust were filling out nicely, even if she did have a slender-boyish type figure.

Her face was as stunning as ever, especially now that she'd been talked into having her hair further lightened, to a bright brassy shade of blonde that was obviously 'bottle' blonde. Coupled with her incredibly long, sexy new legs and her 'relearned' little sexy walk, she was quite the image of femininity, even now. She was perfectly at home in high heels, her tiny new feet naturally curved so that walking barefoot, or in any heel smaller than about five inches, was actually painful.

So - the physical side of things were going well. That was easy enough to see. It was the mental side that was harder to gauge - but that seemed to be going just fine, as well.

In addition to hormones, Bambi was getting a very special synthetic hormone - one that acted much like THC did on the human brain. It slowed her thinking processes, made her vague and sort of dreamy. In short - she was rapidly becoming a ditz, with a very short attention span and a hard time grasping deep concepts. The best part was - the synthetic was a hormone derivative, and her body was starting to produce it on its own. In another month or so, she wouldn't have to be given it - her body would produce it in abundance, leaving her locked in a hazy, dim state.

Meanwhile, while she was still capable of learning stuff, they'd switched back to training her sexual interests through hypnosis and subliminal training. Everywhere she went, she was constantly bombarded with messages - that being sexy was good, that having sex, of any kind, only further proved her femininity. Though it didn't have all that much effect yet, the slowly building convictions in her slowly deteriorating minds would soon convince her that to be 'feminine' mean have sex as a female...

* * * * *

"Oh, yeah, baby - you're the best..."

Bambi didn't answer - since she had her mouth full at the time, giving a long, luxurious blow-job to the intern who was complimenting her on her style and skill.

As well he should - she was fantastic at it, not surprising considering all the practice she got in...

Elizabeth had to grin as the blonde girl slurped and sucked at the man's cock. As anticipated, the now considerably dumber girl was spending a lot of time sucking cock - because she loved the compliments it got her for being 'feminine'. Atier all, only women sucked cock, so she must be womanly to be sucking one, right? Well - to her mind anyway. She was no longer the brightest bulb in the box, so to speak.

Finally, she finished and allowed the man to cum down her throat. Slurping up the last of the cum and licking him clean, the feminized man smiled broadly - and vapidly - as she was given her 'reward' of compliments.

"Geez, Bambi - if you were just bigger titted and an easy lay, you'd make a first-class bimbo."

It was a set line, one that Bambi had been hearing for about a week now.. and so far it hadn't yielded the results Elizabeth wanted.

Except...

As the man leti, the blonde sissy-boy who had once been Gerry wiggled and swayed over to Elizabeth, a pout on her incredibly full lips.

"Gee, 'Lizabeth, it's not fair..." She said. "What's that, honey?" Elizabeth asked.

"I wanna be a bimbo, but I got these small little titties..." She paused to caress her firm, hormone- grown 'C' cups, "...and no cunt. Why can't I be a bimbo, like everybody says I'd be good at?"

The week's delay in the anticipated results suddenly became clear to Elizabeth, and she had to grin.

They'd overdone it a bit - Bambi was too dumb to remember that she could have the surgery if she just asked..

"Oh, we can give you tits and a cunt, if you want." Elizabeth re-educated the girl. Bambi's smile flared to life. "You can?"

"Sure." Elizabeth assured her.

"Oh, boy!" Bambi said, bouncing up and down. "Please, Elizabeth - I want a cunt so men can fuck me and tell me how much of a bimbo I am. I want big, wide hips and a full, sexy ass, so it's easier for me to be a real bimbo! And tits - and want big titties. Big, huge, round titties. Titties bigger than my head! Boobies so fake that all guys will know I got them just to be a perfect bimbo! Please, 'Lizabeth, make me a bimbo! I wanna be a bimbo. I wanna be the bimbo!" She threw back her shoulders and, proudly, declared. "From now on, that's my name and everything! I'm Bimbo!"

Elizabeth grinned openly. "Anything you want... Bimbo."

* * * * * It was time.

Finally, after a year's wait, it was time to get the woman of his dreams.

Ron was so anxious and excited he felt like a kid on Christmas day - though no kid had ever gotten the present he was going to get. Then again - no kid had ever spent over four and a half million dollars to get a girl, either. Of course, that was an 'initial' cost - once the 'clinic' was in full swing, he could churn out custom-made 'Perfect Partners' for the very rich and discrete for a mere million or so in costs - which, of course, he'd mark up to two million. Not only would he stand to make a tidy profit, but he could build up his own harem.

All that was in the future, though. Right now.. Right now it was time to put the 'prototype' through it's paces...

Then the doors at The End of the room opened - and his fantasy walked in.

Ron let his eyes slide upwards over his creation, his anticipation mounting with every inch he surveyed.

She was wearing a pair of hot-pink platform shoes - with four-inch tall platforms, and eleven-inch-tall heels that arched her tiny, delicate feet up delightfully. From those wonderful, dainty feet, Ron's eyes slid up, and up, and ever upwards along her incredibly long, shapely, sexy legs, clad in white nylons. They seemed to rise up forever before they finally vanished under the hem of the skin-tight hot-pink leather micro-mini skirt that didn't even hide all white satin panties. It did, however, cling quite deliciously to her wide hips and incredibly full, firm, round ass, highlighting it's delicious contours.

Above that, her fuzzy, low-cut, belly-baring long-sleeve sweater revealed her incredibly tiny waist before struggling - and practically failing - to contain those massive orbs of tit-flesh that she'd demanded. Incredibly huge, the massive breasts were the size of beach-balls, unbelievably huge and round and firm. The low-cut neck of the sweater revealed much of those massive, glorious, glistening mounds, which had been lightly oiled with baby-oil - as had the rest of her body, as usual. It caused her huge, creamy chasm of cleavage to glisten and gleam, making every breath she took incredible erotic as the highlights shifted over the slick skin from the movement.

It took an amazing force of will to lift the eyes higher, to take in her face - that custom-designed face with it's heart-shaped structure, surrounded by that huge, thick mane of pale blonde hair that rippled over her shoulders and down her back. Those incredibly full lips he'd asked for were gloss pink, barely able to close completely they were so incredibly full and so tily firm over her modified jaw-line. Above that lurked a tiny stub of a nose, so cute and perky in it's own right - but over shadowed by the huge, vivid blue eyes that looked as if they'd never held a thought for a single instant.

She was.. perfect. Physically, at least. Now it was time to find out how she'd turned out, mentally.

Slowly, Ron stood - his cock already hardening - and greeted her with the name he'd had her programmed to think she'd chosen for herself.

"Hello, Bimbo."

Her permanently-smiling lips curved even further upward into a brighter, brainless smile, revealing her small, perfect teeth.

"Oh, gee..." She said, her eyes blank. She giggled. "Uh.. who are you?"

Ron knew she'd been told who she was coming to meet, just a few minutes before - but she'd been told by a man, and she wasn't really 'programmed' to listen anymore. Besides, the drugs her body was constantly synthesizing kept her constantly doped and euphoric - which meant that her mental process were far from 'stellar.'

"I'm Ron." He said, prompting her.

Somehow, she managed to look delightfully puzzled while still smiling, while the thought slowly worked its way through the haze of pleasure she was in...

Then she squealed, bouncing up and down on her heels and clapping her hands. The bouncing action caused those massive mounds to jump and sway, threatening to burst free of the minimal clothing that covered them.

"Oh, yeah!" She said, gleefully - and then she hurried towards him, moving easily in her skyscraper heels. She moved with an overly-bouncy step that caused her huge bust to jiggle, while her wide hips pivoted and swayed around the center-point of her crotch in an exaggerated motion.

When she reached Ron, she threw her arms around him, and kissed him, deeply, her full, soft lips pressed against his while her tongue pushed insistently at his hips, demanding he respond, her huge tits crushed against his body.

He'd didn't argue. They kissed passionately for quite some time before Ron was finally able to persuade her that it was enough.

"You're the guy who paid for this!" She told him, cheerily. "Thanks!" "You're definitely welcome..." Ron said.

"Oh, thank you, thank you, thank you!" She insisted, smiling. "I'm so happy now - I'm so sexy and so perfect." Then, as if she'd just remembered. "Oh! And I have great tits! They're so big and round and huge! Look!"

She stepped back and raised her arms over her head, causing her huge tits to stand out in exaggerated profile - not that they needed any exaggeration, being veritable caricatures as it was.

"They're so much fun to play with, too!" She said - then, a great thought struck her. "hey! Do you want to play with my big, huge titties!"

Despite the fact that Bimbo was exactly the way he wanted her, seeing her like this left him a bit taken aback by her completely mindless personality. "Uh.."

"Aw.. come on..." She said. "It's really, really fun!"

Reaching down and crossing her arms, she grabbed the bottom edge of the sweater and peeled off,. Her massive, impossibly firm tits bounced twice as she tossed the garment aside, leaving her massive creamy spheres naked to Ron's gaze.

He didn't need another invitation. Reaching out, he hesitantly slid his hands over the slick, smooth surface of her fully-packed boobs.

Smiling, Bimbo leaned into his touch, pressing her tits firmly into his hands. Ron returned the smile, then set about enjoying himself with her massive, unrealistic mounds. She cocked her head back and giggled as he buried his head in her cleavage, fondling the sides of her gigantic tits as he rubbed his face over her massive mounds.

"See, I told you it's fun..." She giggled, 'helping' him fondle her tits - and, even with both of their hands running over the surface of her outrageously-proportioned tits, they still had plenty of space in which to work.

"Yeah..." Ron agreed in a muffled voice, his head deep in her massive chasm of cleavage.

"Oh!" She said, suddenly, pulling away. Ron hesitated, then let her - if there was something more important to her then the 'fun' of having her tits fondled, he wanted to see it.

It was a good move on his part.

"Look what else I got!" She giggled - and quickly stepped out of her skirt and panties. "I got a tight little cunt! It's so hot and wet all the time..."

It certainly was everything she said - the surgically created vagina looked absolutely authentic, and the way the lips of her cunt glistened, perfectly revealed due to her lack of pubic hair, seemed to indicate that she certainly was 'ready, willing and able' any time.

"It's because I'm so horny all the time..." She 'confided'. The hormonal drugs had done their work, in conjunction with her mental programming - she was keeping herself in a constant state of arousal without even knowing it. Now, the question was - how did she handle it...

Without prompting, Bimbo continued the 'tale of the cunt'. "I'm so horny all the time, that I have to fuck myself a couple of times an hour. I got this collection of dildos, because Elizabeth won't let me fuck all the doctors and stuff, which isn't fair, 'cuz they're the only guys around, and..."

Ron smiled. "Uh... Bimbo?"

She paused, her train of thought derailed. "Yeah?" "I'm a 'guy'." Ron pointed out.

Bimbo looked puzzled. "Yeah... and you're not a doctor or sumthin'..." Suddenly, she lit up like a Christmas tree.

"Can you fuck me?" She asked, leaning forward and pressing her arms forward slightly, making her huge mounds press together. "Please, can you fuck me? Pretty please? Please, please, p/leeeeeeease?"

Ron's smile widened. "Well - okay, if you insist..."

"Oh, goody!" Bimbo said, clapping her hands. "I'm gonna get fucked!"

"You sure are..." Ron assured her, as he hastily stripped out of his clothing. "Come on - over to the couch."

Eagerly, the huge-breasted blonde followed him to the wide couch. Ron sat down on it, his legs slightly spread...

..and Bimbo eagerly got up on the couch, spreading her own legs wide, high-heels digging into the leather of the sofa on either side of Ron's legs as she climbed up, then positioned herself on her knees...

...and practically drove herself downward, impaling herself on his hard, throbbing cock, filling her new cunt with man-meat for the first time.

She cried out in what seemed to be pleasure - but whether it was physical at all, or just emotional, was impossible to tell.

After a year of being programmed to be the 'perfect' woman, she was finally fulfilling her reason for existing.

"I'm a real Bimbo!" she screamed, happily. "I've got a man's cock in my cunt, and I'm fucking him!"

She began to flex her legs, her long, luscious legs, driving herself up and down on his hard organ, her lips spread in a panting smile.

"I'm fucking you with my cunt!" She told him, with a giggle. "I'm a bimbo, and that's what bimbos do.. hey, do you like my huge titties?"

Ron had other things on his mind as she drove herself relentlessly on his cock, but he paid some token attention to her huge, round tits. She was doing a better job of it herself, fondling her tits with a vapid smile as she rode his cock like some sort of spectacular living sex-doll...

..which, in a way, she was.

"Fucking, fucking, fucking...!" She sang out, then giggled, driving herself harder and faster atop Ron. "I got a cock in my pussy!"

She released her massive mounds and let them slam against Ron's upper chest with each thrust, one hand bracing herself on the back of the couch while the other hung down limply. Closing her eyes, she began making wordless sounds of pleasure as she felt him nearing climax, driving herself even more frenetically atop his cock.

He came. Grunting with a long, low sound, he twitched as he pumped a load of cum into the perfect cunt of his perfect sex-slave love-doll. She screamed out in ersatz orgasm - though physically pleasurable, the real enjoyment she was obviously feeling was from having been paid the ultimate compliment to her womanhood - she'd made a man cum.

Gasping he fell back in the couch while Bimbo - as fresh and energetic as when she'd started, rolled off of him...

Ron frowned as he noticed something. "What's that?"

Bimbo looked puzzled at the question - then looked down at what she held, and smiled in recognition.

"Oh! That's a hipo-demic.. a hynpo.. a needle!" She giggled. "I used it while you were cumming, 'cause I figured you wouldn't notice then."

Ron's eyes went wide. "What? What the hell was.. in.. that..."

He tried to get out of the couch - but the drug was already kicking in, and before he could force himself out of the couch, he slipped into a deep trance, staring ahead blankly.

Bimbo answered his question, anyway...

"You were gonna make me your sex slave,.." She told the immobile Ron with a pout, as she began to dress. "I don't wanna fuck just one guy - I wanna fuck lots and lots of guys. All the time! That's why.. why..."

She paused, frowning in confusion...

Suddenly, her whole posture changed. She straightened up, and her vapid face took on an expression of surprising intelligence and confidence.

"We're going to go get a job doing pornographic movies, Bimbo. Remember?" She said, aloud, her voice suddenly intelligent, and filled with a long-suffering amusement. "Now, just keep thinking - we're going to California to make pornographic films. We'll get paid for having lots of sex."

Then her posture slumped, and the same vapid grin returned. "Oh, yeah - I'm gonna be a porn star! Silly me!"

With a giggle, Bimbo finished dressing, and headed off to her new life...

...with her 'Guardian Angel' firmly ensconced in the deepest recesses of her psyche, quite content with the way things worked out, atier all.

Maybe part of her had really been 'mind wiped' and made into a bimbo - which is what 'Gerry' had dreamed of in the first place. Maybe, instead, he'd just been 'playing along', and gotten more involved then he'd planned. To tell the truth, neither part of 'Bimbo' could quite recall when the mental split between them had happened, when she'd become schizophrenic, with both Gerry and Bimbo in 'residence' - and both of them enjoying it. Was it Gerry, just 'pretending' to be Bimbo? Or 'Bimbo', keeping 'Gerry' alive because she needed him to fulfill her own fantasies...?

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: An ex-girlfriend gives one man a giti -certificate to New Beginnings Therapeutic Spa not knowing that when he checks in for a whole day experience that he will become its newest employee filling spa fantasies.

The Spa

By Gunslinger

Harry was nervous.

There was no overt display of that nervousness, except for the fact that he surreptitiously wiped his damp palms on his pants - but the jeans were crisp black denim, the moistness leaving no visible mark to betray his 'unmanly' emotional state.

Which was good. Atier all, Harold W. Beesdt was a big buy, topping out at six-two and with a well-muscled body that was more 'slender runner' then Harry would have liked, but not all guys were born to be Schwarzenegger.

Besides, with ruggedly handsome good looks and bright, Mediterranean-blue eyes well offset by his dark hair, Harry figured he'd come out pretty well in terms of 'Random Genetic Heritage'. He looked good in his usual black jeans and pale tan cotton work-shirt, and he knew it.

No, he wasn't nervous because of the way he looked. He was nervous because where he was.

At first glance, that would have seemed ridiculous. The room he was standing in was large, with a white sandstone floor and marble- and-polished-oak walls and furnishings, with green-and-gold fabrics blending well with the architecture and the profusion of plants in brass pots that filled the room.

The east wall of the two-story lobby was composed simply of glass, set in geometrically-inspired brass framing.

The air was cool, but not unpleasantly so, and the fresh odor of greenery was underlain by a pleasant, elusive sent that pleased the olfactory senses.

It wasn't the environs themselves that made him nervous. Nor, technically speaking, was it the people he shared the environment with - a tall Nordic goddess behind the front desk, smiling at him encouragingly, dressed in the same simple, elegant white 'uniform' as the two brunettes and a red-head that were also visible in the lobby, their simple, low-heeled pumps making muted clocking sounds as they walked with graceful efficiency towards the big, brass doors in the rear.

The fact that all four visible personages were female increased his nervousness, though it wasn't the cause. The cause of Harry's anxiety was the fact that this place was a Spa.

He was standing in a Spa, one somewhat-more-sweaty-than-usual hand tightly gripping the giti-certificate in his name, allowing him unlimited, one-day use of the New Beginnings Therapeutic Spa.

He felt nervous because going to a spa just seemed so... unmanly. Hardly fitting in with the 'macho' image of himself.

When Diane had first given him the unlimited day-pass, Harry had thought it was a joke, or some sort of poorly-planned attempt at revenge.

Not that he was the inherently suspicious type. Though he had quite a few flaws, he was conscious of most of them and tried to keep them in check. The fact that he and Diane had broken up over a month ago, however, had given him pause.

She'd seemed perfectly sincere, however, standing at his door and holding out the giti-certificate. Their break-up had been fairly amicable, and though their new version of friendship was somewhat strained, he detected no guile or evasion in her eyes when she'd explained that she'd ordered it for him just before they'd broken up.

Since their relationship had been at its very worst at that point, he'd wondered why she would have ordered him an expensive giti - then dismissed the thought with some shame, knowing that she'd always been the one who'd tried the hardest to keep their relationship on track. One of Harry's less enjoyable flaws was the fact that, when he believed a relationship was going to end, he simply gave up, failing to put any more investment of time or emotions into it.

So, she'd probably ordered it in a last-ditch effort to keep him around.

So, he'd taken it, hoping it'd help patch up their friendship, at least to some degree.

He'd even been determined to go through with it. Even though he'd grown more and more uneasy as he'd approached the building. The quiet, serene building.

The somehow feminine building.

Real men don't eat quiche. - That was the bumper sticker on Harry's five-year-old Dodge Viper - or, as Diane had called it once or twice in a sharply scornful voice, his 'other penis'.

Harry had the strangest feeling that 'Real Men Don't Go To Spas' was implicit in the general message of the bumper-sticker. That it didn't really need to be said, but it was true none-the-less: No quiche-eating, spa-going upright mammal could ever be considered a 'real man'.

Harry started to turn away...

...but that luscious blonde morsel at the counter was walking towards him. She was tall, lithe, and coolly beautiful, the tight white slacks molded to trim hips and pert ass, the tailored pantlegs indicating long, shapely legs lay hidden beneath.

Despite her long, generally slender build and trim hips, the crisp white fabric of her uniform pulled taut over what had to be firm 'D'-cups

- just about the right size (and texture) for Harry's hands to enclose...

...and the zipper on her front-closing pantsuit uniform was pulled down a few inches more than it had been when he'd walked in, displaying just the slightest hint of creamy cleavage.

Harry was twenty-seven, heterosexual, and available. He could no more have walked away from this blonde vision than he could have commanded the tides to stop rising and falling.

Real Men didn't turn down the chance to hit upon tall, leggy, fashion-model-gorgeous blondes, either.

"Mr. Beesdt?" She asked, her voice warmer than her cool beauty and reservedly elegant demeanor would have suggested. Her warm, honey-toned voice was familiar. The luscious blonde was the woman he'd made the appointment with on the phone.

The fact that she knew who he was disturbed Harry even more. It probably meant that men calling and making appointments was so rare that she had a good chance of guessing who a strange male who was standing in the door was...

He struggled to make his grin appear natural, all the more eager to 'escape', even as he held out his hand. "Harry, please." HE asked. "You must be Miss Guddenbuilt."

"Please - call me Anna." She said, smiling warmly as she shook with him, her delicate, fine-skinned hand practically disappearing in his.

He noticed she had no wedding ring. He also noticed she let her hand in his loosened grip as she looked over his shoulder and grinned.

"The gate-guard was right." She said, eyes bright. "That is a powerful-looking machine."

Oh - that's right. He'd signed in with the guard at the gate, who must have called ahead. That's how Anna knew who he was...

Feeling better, he reluctantly let go of Anna's hand, foregoing the pleasure of a few more second's contact for the 'gentlemanly' gesture. She blinked, as if she'd forgotten her hand was still in his, then smiled warmly.

"I'm glad you came in so early, Harry." She said, now speaking over her shoulder as she moved smoothly back towards the desk, her manner implying that she simply expected Harry would follow.

He did. Especially since her graceful stride was noticeably less 'utilitarian' than the one she'd used walking over to him.

"Less clients around, so it's easier on the staff...?" HE asked, realizing that the 'all female' impression he'd first garnered might be radically off-base - since all the women had been wearing staff uniforms.

All the women had also been very attractive, at least the ones he'd seen so far.

"Oh - that too." She said, smiling even more brightly. "What I was referring to is the fact that it's good for you - you get the whole day to let us work on you. It gives us more time to try and make sure you leave feeling relaxed and comfortable."

"Well, I figured I'd give you ladies a fair chance..." He said, leaving an opening for her to point out that there was male staff, as well..

...she didn't. Instead, she winked. "We appreciate it. Still, our track record is enviable - of all the men who've taken a full-day excursion, I can't think of one that walked out feeling dissatisfied."

"Oh?" Harry said, feeling even more relieved. "I suppose that's almost a necessity. I mean, since I'm using a giti certificate, a money- back guarantee wouldn't really mean anything, would it?"

She looked at him with a measuring gaze - then lowered her voice, her tones like smoked honey.

"Harry, I guarantee you that if the Spa fails to leave you feeling relaxed and comfortable, I'll take over and attend to the matter personally."

Three separate responses leapt simultaneously to mind. One was downright crude. The second was courtly, completely ignoring the implications of the statement.

Harry split the difference between the two by using the third: "Well, that's very reassuring... though I confess, part of me hopes the Spa fails, just for the privilege of spending more time in your company."

It was the right choice, apparently. Anna stuck with the low tone, and the easy smile.

"Well, I don't want you hoping for the Spa to fail at anything." She said. "So, if the Spa succeeds, why don't I take you out to a little victory dinner?"

"Well, that sounds like an 'offer I can't refuse'." Harry said, hoping his instinctive slide into a Brando impersonation at The End sounded more suave and charming in her ears than it did in his own.

"Well, then, it's a date..." Ana said, just before straightening and raising her voice to less intimate levels. "Well, why don't I introduce you to your Personal Attendant?"

Turning from Harry, she gestured at a shorter, somewhat more athletically build woman sitting in the corner. "Pamela?"

The russet-haired woman rose gracefully, her toned legs flexing pleasantly under the hem of the crisp white shorts she wore. Unlike the more 'clerical' look of Anna's uniform, Pamela's white outfit was more athletically-minded, the shorts and white spandex crop-top going well with her fit, toned body.

She was shorter than Ann, but still slightly above average in height for a woman - and she was also remarkably attractive in a fit, limber way.

Aware of Anna standing so close by, Harry tried not to make his 'quick look' too obvious. It wasn't easy. His 'Personal Attendant' was quite lookable-at.

"Harry?" The attractive woman said, her tones warm and somewhat less 'professional' than Harry would have expected, almost as if they already shared some sort of camaraderie. "I'm Pamela, and if you have no objections, I'll be your personal attendant today."

Standing between two attractive women, both displaying more warmth than he would have expected, and either one of which he would happily have tried a tumble in the sack, Harry decided that discretion was the better part of valor, and decided to toss the live hand-grenade question up into the air.

"Actually, I've never been to a spa..." He admitted, a supposed embarrassed flush giving him excuse to lower his head, avoiding eye-contact with either of the ladies. "I wouldn't even know what to look for in a Personal Attendant."

"Not all spas even have Personal Attendants, actually." Pamela explained, still in those warm tones. "At New Beginnings, we like to go the proverbial 'extra mile', and so Personal Attendants are available. We sort of 'coordinate' each person's experience."

"Actually, it's more of an art-form than Pamela makes it seem." Anna said, also warmly. "It's a skill, similar to, oh, architecture or interior design, for example. Different people have different skills, techniques and styles. Pamela's one of the very best."

"Why, thank you, Anna." Pamela said, warmly. "That's high praise, coming from you." "Not at all - you deserve it." Anna demurred, in equally warm tones.

Flicking his eyes from one to the other, Harry wondered what was going on. Hearing those warm, honeyed tones being used for him was.. enjoyable. Hearing them use it between each other, however, left him wondering if that was just how the women were trained to speak when a customer was present...

"Harry and I have a little bet going." Anna told Pamela in a conspiratorially lowered voice. "We're going to see whether or not the spa can leave him feeling comfortable and relaxed. If we can, I get to take him out to a late dinner, some champagne, maybe..." She trailed off in a highly suggestive tone...

...then went on in the exact same, richly sensual tones, still speaking to the auburn-haired woman. "Maybe if you treat him extra-nice, Harry might agree to let you come along."

Harry had given up all pretense of looking at the floor in shame - he was staring at the two attractive women, who were sharing the same heavy-lidded look of anticipated pleasure...

...and who then turned the same hungrily thoughtful look on Harry.

Pamela, slowly and almost unconsciously, licked her unadorned lips with her tongue, a tiny purr of pleasure deep in her throat. Harry blinked, aware his cock was stirring. Blushing slightly, he glanced over at Anna...

...who had affixed an almost plastic smile of 'Customer Service' on her face, standing at almost theatrical attention, a model of pure, unemotional efficiency. Even her voice was crisp, cool and efficient as she spoke, calmly and clearly.

"Well, Mr. Beesdt, just follow Pamela hear into the change room, listen to what she suggestions, follow her instructions, and I'm sure you'll enjoy your stay."

It was a perfect example of professional customer service - and nobody could possibly have seen the long, slow wink she gave him as she played out the little scene.

Nobody except himself - and Pamela.

The athletic woman grinned - then wiped the smile right off her face, also playing-up the 'cool professional' routine as she gestured towards the big doors at the rear of the lobby. "Shall we, Harry?"

"Uh... yeah..." Harry said, a little stunned by the quick turn-around - but grateful, since a rock-solid hard-on in a glass-fronted lobby might not have been the best idea in the world.

Until they'd 'switched persona' on him, that thought hadn't even occurred to him.

His walk looking a bit stiff and awkward, he followed his auburn-haired Personal Attendant through the doors, his eyes dropping again and again to her toned, smooth legs and her firm, pertly swaying ass.

Given the situation and the view, he was following her in almost a daze, barely noticing his surroundings as he indulged in a few mental fantasies...

..so, for a second, he thought he was still in the middle of one when she turned to him, smiled warmly, and said: "Well - why don't you get undressed?"

That startled him enough for him to realize they were standing in a small locker-room. She'd opened a locker, revealing a large, deep Terry-cloth robe, white with a gold logo on the breast. There was also a pair of matching slippers on the floor.

He was supposed to get changed from his street clothes and into the robe and slippers. The sign on the wall even said so, making it perfectly clear that he was supposed to take a shower in one of the translucent-glass stalls along the one wall, then slip banked into the robe and slippers.

All pretty straightforward. Mundane compared to what her comment had 'suggested' to his fantasizing mind...

...except for the fact that she hadn't leti atier her 'suggestion'.

Harry simply stood there for a second, fairly certain he'd made a mistaken assumption at some point - but afraid to guess which assumption it was that was mistaken, because it would make a hell of a lot of difference in the way he acted.

She didn't seem to notice his hesitation, since she was actually turned away from him at the time, taking the robe and slippers out of the locker. She folded the robe over one well-toned arm, the slippers held in the same hand. She turned back to face him, once more warm and friendly rather than 'professional'.

"The showers are designed for two..." She pointed out - then lay the robe on the bench and began to undress.

She had less clothing, and a slight head start - but by the time she finished removing her crop-top, displaying firm, domed 'D'-cups, Harry was already stark naked.

Her cute, pink nipples were hard as tiny stones...

...and the room was kept 'naked'-comfortable in both warmth and humidity. She wasn't the only one with swollen body-parts.

She seemed to find the one that Harry was sporting quite acceptable - since she wrapped one hand lightly but firmly around his aroused member, and used it to lead him towards the showers.

"Which one, which one..." Pamela mused in a chipper tone, looking from one shower to the next.

A little bemused, Harry now noticed that each of the stalls boasted a small brass plaque, inscribed with what seemed to be an odd series of letters. Acronyms, maybe - or perhaps some sort of coding system.

There were about a dozen stalls. Harry wondered why it mattered which one they used, and what the little acronyms indicated.

Before he could ask, however, she made up her mind, leading him - still by his very erect manhood - towards one of the stalls near the wall furthest from the door.

"This one will do just fine, I think..." She said, giving him a sly, calculating look that he found both puzzling and arousing, given the situation. "I think you could use something different..."

"What do you mean...?" Harry asked, confused, by Pamela merely smiled mysteriously and led him into the shower, pulling the surprisingly heavy door shut behind them.

"Close your eyes..." She purred.

Harry blinked - then smiled and complied, a blissful expression settling over his face as he let his eyes slide shut...

By sound alone, Harry placed the cute red-head's movements as she started the water running - the tap apparent self-adjusting, since there was simply a single, muffled 'tunk' sound, something that seemed almost... industrial to Harry, somehow - and then a sheet of warm water was enveloping him, the series of strategically-placed shower heads ensuring that every inch of his body was receiving some of the spray.

The water also seemed to be scented with a faint yet intriguing scent, one that he couldn't quite place, but that seemed to be very relaxing - since he felt himself doing just that, becoming very relaxed as he felt Pamela's hands touch his chest, a thick, slippery warmth coating her slender fingers as she began to work what he assumed was body-wash across his broad, hairy chest.

Oddly enough, despite the fact that he was massively aroused, he didn't feel like trying to 'push' things to go faster - in fact, he didn't feel like doing much of anything, except stand there and let Pamela soap him up. He felt completely and utterly relaxed and serene even as he enjoyed the physical sensations of her hands moving over his slick skin, methodical yet sensual as they worked to wash every square inch of his body.

There was no way of determining how long the shower lasted. Though he was completely aware and alert, enjoying every wonderful sensation the athletic woman provided, some parts of his brain seemed so relaxed as to be asleep, including his sense of time passing. The shower seemed to simultaneously last an eternity, yet end much too quickly for Harry's tastes.

Having been thoroughly washed, rinsed, shampooed and rinsed, Harry knew that it was over even as Pamela turned off the water and opened the door - admitting a drat of slightly cooler air that seemed to help pull him out of his ultra-relaxed state the way a good wind might dispel smoke or other gasses floating in the air.

Not that he ended up back where he'd begun, emotionally speaking - he was still feeling a lot more 'relaxed' then before - just not to the point of immobility. In fact, it was a strange sort of 'relaxed', a sort of calm center to a storm of sexual desire that seemed to run deeper and more intensely through his body then every before...

"All done with the shower, honey - you can open your eyes now..." Pamela cooed, and he let his eyes driti open - and drink in the sight of her naked, glistening body.

"How do you feel?" She asked, and he sighed in pleasure.

"Great..." He replied, warmly and happily, as she once again wrapped a hand around his hard, dark cock and drew him out into the main room.

With quick, efficient-yet-pleasurable motions, she dried him with a thick, soti towel, the fuzzy white material gliding with wonderful sensations over his smooth, chocolatey skin.

"If you enjoyed that..." She said, suggestively, as she finished toweling off his long, dark hair by wrapping the towel turban-style around his damp mane, "...then you're going to love the next part..."

"What's that...?" He asked, eagerly, as she helped him wrap his robe around his firm, smooth ebony body - but she only smiled that mysterious smile again, once more wrapping her hands around his small-yet-rock-hard cock to lead him out the room's other door and into the next part of the spa.

Pulled along by his small little organ, he was lead into the next room...

...where a big, bubbling tile-lined pool of thick, warm mud awaited, the thick brown sludge almost the same shade as his chocolatey skin.

"Go ahead - hop in..." She said, smiling.

"You're... not going to join me...?" He asked, hesitantly, not wanting to come right out and admit how horny he was - so horny, in fact, that it was getting to be damned near painful.

Pamela looked momentarily hesitant, then shot a quick look at the mud-bath and shook her head. "No, I don't think that'd be a good idea." She said, oddly. "I'd probably end up being... too much."

It was a puzzling comment, but he didn't dwell on it - especially since he was feeling more relaxed again, probably from the pleasant odor seeping up from the thick, faintly steaming mud.

"Climb on in, honey..." Pamela suggested, and he did so with a happy sigh, loving the way the thick mud enveloped his smooth ebony body. Closing his eyes, he sank up to his neck in the mud.

"Here - let me show you how to get the best effect from this, honey.." Pamela said, walking over to the edge of the tub near his head. There were some things set into a small, recessed spot in the rim, and she drew them out.

"Nasal air-hoses." She said, pulling out two clear plastic tubes, each tipped with an expandable black foam-rubber 'bullet' that would allow them to completely seal inside the nose. "They automatically cycle air for good breathing rhythm when submerged..."

Feeling supremely serene and relaxed, he let her slip the air hoses into his nose, finding he could breath easily enough with his mouth firmly closed.

The air flowing into his lungs through his nose seemed even more heavily scented with that intriguing, mesmerizing floral fragrance.

"So you don't get bored..." Pamela said with a smile, holding up a pair of bud-like earphones in sealed little casings. She leaned forward to put them in place - and even the sharp pain that came when she pierced his ears to put the earring-style holding clips in place wasn't enough to shatter his dreamy daze of serene relaxation.

Music filled his ears - and almost seemed to fill his head, the somewhat strange and almost eerie music sounding almost like somebody speaking through a celestial orchestra of vibraphones, harps and Moog synthesizers.

Smiling calmly, he slid beneath the surface...

* * * *

"Honey - wake up!"

Long-lashed eyelids fluttered... then rose, revealing bright blue eyes.

"What happened?" The gorgeous young black woman asked, her smoky-warm voice revealing her mild confusion as she blinked up at Pamela from where she lay in the now-empty mud-tub, her body gleaming from the coating of warm, fragrant oil the sexy red-head was rubbing into her richly coca-colored flesh.

"You fell asleep getting ready for your next customer..." Pamela told her.

Honey blinked - then giggled. "This place can be a little too relaxing sometimes, I guess." She said... then frowned slightly. "Customer?"

"Yeah, you know..." Pamela said, a friendly edge of sarcasm to her voice. "A guy who pays you money to let you fuck him eagerly and with all the skills only a high-priced nymphomaniac prostitute can bring to bear." She paused, a momentary look of confusion - and, perhaps, even disgust - passing across her almost unnaturally perfect face before it once more became calm and almost forcibly cheerful.

Honey barely noticed the brief look - since a strange shudder ran through her body, distracting her for a second and making her own face show confused, almost uncomprehending surprise...

...and then she thought about how incredibly horny she was, and decided the fact that she couldn't remember herself being a cum-craving whore was secondary to the fact that she had a job that could satisfy her rampant cravings - and was lucky enough to have a slender, supple, almost preternaturally perfect body that allowed her to work at such a wonderfully high-class establishment.

"Where's he at?" Honey asked, eagerly, already anxious to take the edge off her incredibly powerful, literally mind-numbing arousal.

"Same place as always - your workroom, just through that door..." Pamela said, gesturing at the door at the other end of the room. "Come on - lets get you 'dressed'..."

Eagerly, Honey climbed out of the tub, her oiled body gleaming a mellow dark chocolate as she stepped into a pair of black platform shoes with seven-inch-high heels.

"Us nympho whores love wearing high heels..." Honey said in a vague, almost sing-song tone of voice, as she admired herself in the mirror, eyes starting at her dainty feet and tracing up her long, wonderfully contoured legs to her firm, taut ass and slender-yet-feminine hips. Almost unconsciously, one dainty, long-nailed hand slid over her clean-shaven crotch, applying pressure as it passed over her hot, wet cunt.

"They make us look so sexy." Pamela replied in a similar tone, her own eyes as dreamy as stepped up behind Honey, grinding her lap into the black woman's firm, spectacularly full ass as she reached around to lightly caress her coworker's magnificent, D-cup breasts, smooth white flesh gliding over rich black skin.

"We love being sexy." the chorused, each woman's perfectly made-up face blank and serene.

"We are sex." They chanted together, not hearing themselves. "We exist solely to please. We are comfortable with the knowledge we are simply pawns of any paying customer's pleasure, and we are relaxed to the inevitable - we will spend our lives driven to satisfy their every desire."

They stood that way for a second, eyes and faces blank...

...then they each shook their head slightly, smiling in genial confusion at each other. "Did you say something?" Honey asked in a slightly puzzled voice.

"No..." Pamela replied, so quickly that it seemed almost a knee-jerk response - yet her tone was slightly hesitant, and it grew even more so as she said: "Did you...?"

"No." Honey replied immediately, before she had time to even think about it - and then she shrugged her slender shoulders. She had more important things to think about...

"If you'll excuse me..." She said in a faux-snooty voice, ripe with the taint of raw need. "...I have an appointment to be fucked."

Leaving Pamela giggling behind her, Honey swiveled sensuously atop her heels and swayed provocatively over to the door, throwing it open with an erotically theatrical gesture.

"Well, hello there..." She said in a husky, promising tone, her bright blue eyes devouring the grossly average form of the man laying naked on the utilitarian-yet-classy Queen-sized bed that was the room's main feature. Somewhere in his mid thirties, he was a completely average looking man...

...but Honey wouldn't have been able to describe him to anybody, since she couldn't tear her eyes from his hard, ready cock, of average size and girth as it jutted from his crotch, but looming to fill almost every nook and cranny of Honey's mind, calling to her...

"Damn, miss..." the man breathed, reverently. "You're gorgeous..."

A sudden rush of... of satisfaction? ...slammed through her body, and she unconsciously 'posed', showing off her lithe, supple form for a moment before she slowly and sensuously strode towards him, her eyes still drawn inexorably to her raison d'être.

"What do you want, baby..." She breathed, barely aware of her own voice as she gazed, entranced, at his manhood, "...and how do you want it?"

Swinging into a sitting position on the edge of the bed, he spread his hairy thighs, his cock jutting up into the air. "Honey, I want you to hop on and ride me hard and fast while I fondle that spectacular ass of yours, while you be me to make you cum."

"Sure thing, baby..." She said, licking her lips as she walked over to where he sat. She shifted her gaze to his face, briefly, not really seeing it as she graced him with a warm smile...

...and then she swung one long, slender, shapely leg over him and pulled herself up, knees resting on each side of his pale legs as her wet, more-than-ready cunt hung scant millimeters above the head of his throbbing cock.

"Oh, baby - please..." She moaned, closing her eyes and letting her head loll back as his hands reached around and began to squeeze and fondle her full, firm buttocks. Her own hands were busy alternating between her breasts and her lips, switching off in slow, smooth patterns as he slowly twisted her torso and rotated her shoulders, hanging just above his cock and writhing slowly and sensuously. "...I'm so horny. I need to cum. Oh, please, baby - let me fuck you 'till I cum..."

"Fuck me, Honey - fuck me until you cum..." He replied, eagerly, his palms sweaty as they worked her oiled ass...

...and then they cried out together as she flexed the sensuously contoured muscles in her long legs, impaling her womanhood on his ready cock.

"Oh, god... yes...!" She cried, using those sexy legs of hers to drive herself up and down on his cock. "Oh, God, baby - hold off 'till I cum. Make me cum, baby, before you fill me with you sweet load of white lightning."

"Make... it.. fast.. then.." He gasped out, his hands now working hard to stay with her ass she as bounced atop him eagerly. "I'm.. just.. taking... a... nooner..."

"OH...!" She cried, pleasure thrumming through her body, her painful level of arousal beginning to subside as she drew neared and neared to orgasm. "Thank you.. for... taking the.. time..."

He didn't answer, his face set in lines that would have been comical in other situations as his own pleasure increased.

She was writhing frantically atop him, following her instructions to fuck him hard and fast - but it wasn't as 'uncontrolled' as it might have appeared, part of her keeping very careful track of both of their movements, making sure to provide him with as much pleasure as possible as she fucked him. Sometimes she rocked forward, sometimes back, and more then once she did a fast little 'shimmy-shake' that required incredible muscular control - and actually caused sharp little jolts of pain to mingle in with the rising pleasure, not that it deterred her in the least from the movement, since the 'vibration' vastly increased the man's pleasure.

They came together. The man just sort of gasped, his body stiffening...

...while Honey thrashed and screamed, the orgasm ripping through her body with stunning intensity...

...and yet, despite the amazing level of orgasmic ecstasy, only managed to weaken the rampant desire thundering through her body, making it bearable without completely satiating her.

"Oh, baby..." She sighed, leaning forward to press her firm breasts against his chest as she slumped against him... "Yeah, yeah.." He said, pushing her away. "C'mon, get off - I have to get dressed and get back to the office."

"Sure..." She said, not the least bit offended as she climbed off of him, her mind already turning to the thought of her next client, and the hope that he'd want something longer and more... mutually satisfying. "Just ask for Honey next time you come back..."

"You bet..." He said, as he paused in the act of dressing just long enough for a leer-and-a-wink.

As he headed for the door, Honey turned and headed for the room's other door, the one she'd come in through. She only had five minutes to get herself 'freshened up' before her next customer...

...who she found herself now imagining she was kneeling in front of, mouth eagerly enveloping his cock...

...or maybe he'd have her bend over so that he cold give her the wonderful; pleasure of fucking her up the ass...

...or maybe...

"That was fast. " Pamela commented dryly, snapping Honey out of her wonderfully erotic little day-dream.

"Company man on company time..." Honey said with a sigh as she walked over towards the bidet...

...then she shuddered suddenly, as if an ice-cold blast of air had slammed into her bare body. A look of horror and disgust crossed her face, and she hunched over as her stomach twisted and twitched, her lips drawing back in preparation for a scream of shock, confusion and disgusted horror...

Pamela, watching Honey suddenly 'cramp up', suddenly acquired a blank expression on her face, and her voice was once again sing- song as she spoke what could have been a nonsensical phrase: "Honey is horrible if it gets to be hairy."

Honey suddenly twitched, violently, as if struck blows by unseen hands...

...and then she was standing upright, grinning easily as she completed her journey, the sudden 'attack' as consciously forgotten as Pamela's words were to either of them. Instead, they picked up their conversation at exactly the instant before Honey's 'fit', as if none of what had followed had happened.

"So..." Pamela said, smiling, as she helped Honey clean herself up and apply a new layer of scented oil to her smooth flesh. "How do you feel?"

The slender, sexy black woman's full, red lips curved up into a bright smile that extended right up into her startlingly blue eyes - eyes that you'd have to look very closely at indeed to see the faintly glazed look in them.

"Why... I feel comfortable and relaxed." Honey replied, almost as if by rote...

...then the brothel's newest employee wrapped a slender arm around the slender waist of her newest co-worker and friend, who was as consciously unaware of the man she'd once been as the sexy black woman was of her own masculine past.

The End

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: Receiving a strange VR device in the mail, one man enters into VR world where he becomes the image of a female Japanese Manga only to discover that the changes are all too real.

Special Delivery

By Gunslinger

It was there when David went to get the morning paper.

Still half asleep, half-full mug of coffee in his hand, the broad-shouldered brunet rubbed his free hand over the sandpaper-like stubble on his square jaw. Above his dark brown/green eyes, his thick, sand-colored eyebrows were lowered in mild confusion - more a product of the difference between what his half-awake brain had expected to see, and what it really saw.

Finally, David lay the coffee aside on the little end-table just inside the door of his modest little suburban bungalow. Gripping the edged of his tattered, multi-colored robe tight around his admirably flat stomach, and bent over to pick up the plain-wrapped little package laying atop his morning edition.

Tucking the small package under his arm, he grabbed his paper, then stepped back into the house, nudging the door shut with his foot. No longer concerned with propriety, he let his robe fall open to expose the blue boxers and tattered white undershirt that lay beneath. Grabbing his coffee, he wandered back to the small kitchenette of the post-war home, laying the package aside on the table as he settled himself into one of the chairs.

Pulling a pack of Camels closer to him, he extracted one of the filtered cigarettes, then rotated in his chair and leaned steeply over, bringing the cigarette to life by way of the flame still going under the battered old percolator atop the element. Taking a deep drag on the cigarette, he swiveled back around and chased it down with a slug of strong, bitter coffee, then turned his attention on the unexpected little parcel.

"Well, well, well - what have we here...?" David asked himself, bemused, as he pulled the little package closer to him. Wrapped in plain brown Krati paper, it bore his name on a pre-printed gummed label in the center of the brick-sized package.

There was no return address to be found anywhere on the package.

Grunting sotily to himself, he flipped the package over in his hands a second time, hettiing it slightly, taking in it's fairly light weight. Pausing to wonder who might have sent him a package, he idly ran his fingers through his close-cropped crew cut of light brown hair, his fingers idly tracing the outline of a scar that ran through the short hair like a cleared road through a forest.

"Well, guess there's only one way to find out..." He muttered to thin air, his strong, blunt fingers moving to work at the tape holding The End shut with surprising dexterity.

A moment later, the tall, muscular young man had the package opened, and he upended it to allow it's contents to spill out onto the surface of the table. With a single sausage-like finger, he poked through the few items with a surprised look on his face.

There was an odd pair of... 'sunglasses'. They weren't, of course, but that's what they reminded him of - though there were a few crucial differences.

First of all, the lenses were not only thicker than on sunglasses, but apparently completely opaque. Moreover, the folded arms of the glasses didn't end in the normal little 'hooks' of glasses, but smoothly segued into a 'G'-shaped earphone clips, like those on some hands-free headsets. From the back of each arm, a thin wire spooled down to a little black box, roughly the size of a pager - and from that box another wire ran, this one terminating in a standard USB connection.

The only other item in the box was an untitled compact disc.

"Hmmm... 'Curiosier and Curiosier'.." He grunted, peering into the box in the vain hope of finding an instruction booklet, a letter - anything to tell him more about the origin and purpose of the odd little device.

Finding nothing, he finished his cigarette and coffee in a contemplative silence. Finishing the smoke, he flicked the butt into the sink, then gathered up the CD and goggles, then headed out into what was supposed to be the bungalow's living room.

Carefully, he navigated his way around the stacks of obscure programming manuals piled precariously on a chair near the entrance, he briefly surveys the racks, stacks and clusters of home-built computer equipment that filled the room, wondering where to begin.

Though one wall of the room was taken up by a long, cluttered electronics workbench, and he had tons of diagnostic equipment of every sort, the ex-Army tech specialist finally decided that the 'old fashioned' way was best. With the same, strange intellectual excitement he'd first felt when the army had rather grudgingly exposed him to computer equipment, the ex-sergeant headed over to one of his four computers.

Quickly ending the tasks it had been running, David plugged the USB connector into the front port on the computer - and, sure enough, the mostly-windows operating system indicated it had found new hardware, then prompted him for a disk.

Settling in front of the computer, he slipped the CD-ROM into one of the machines four drives, then waited as it hummed and chattered contently to itself.

* * * * *

Amidst the soti sigh of air-conditioning - provided more for the machines than for the dozen or so men and women that manned them

- the soti, collective exhalation of breath created a momentary warm breeze as every single member of the monitoring team simultaneously relaxed.

Standing at the ops board near the Colonel's office, the site supervisor slowly rolled his shoulders, relieving the tension in the knotted muscles, held tense ever since the package had been delivered to the target.

"Hook, line, and sinker..." The supervisor muttered to himself, watching the 'sit board' mounted on the wall, giving the basic information on the situation underway. "I'll be damned - those head-shrinkers were right on the money about the psych profile..."

* * * * *

A moment later, it finished - and a program automatically began to run. A little 'notice' window popped up, instructing him to don the VR goggles now - and with a rising sense of curiosity, he unfolded the arms of the 'sunglasses' and fitted them onto his head, guiding the little earbud speakers into place.

The tiny LCD screens built into the goggles flickered - and then came to life, showing a three-dimensional image with perfect depth.

Standing in the 'middle' of an empty, white room was a non-gender-specific individual. About the quality of a Poser animation, the androgynous figure was dressed in a grey jumpsuit, and had a short mop of dark hair.

"Welcome to FantasyLand." The figure spoke in a voice that was as lacking in gender as its figure. "This system is equipped with proprietary new sensing technology that can read galvanic skin response, as well as eye movement and pupil reaction, allowing for a remarkable new interface system. Simply reach out and tap the 'continue' icon that has just appeared..."

Hesitating in surprise, David looked at the little 'continue' box that had popped up, visually appearing to be just in front of him. Hesitantly, he lifted his hand and reached out to where it would be - and was amazed as the program created non-gender-specific arms for him to move about in the virtual reality of the program.

Despite his looks, David was a prime refutation of the brains/brawn stereotype, as intelligent as he was muscular. He kept up-to-date in the latest computer news - and he'd never heard of anything like this. Somehow, the device was managing to determine what he was doing 'in the real world', and creating reasonably accurate VR representations of the movements. As he reached out to empty air in front of him in real life, the androgynous arm the computer had supplied for him in VR also reached out - and when it intersected the icon, it blinked three times and then vanished.

"Very good." His androgynous guide complimented him. "As you can see, the response meters, tied into small gravimeters and micro-lensed CCD cameras mounted on the lenses, are capable of measuring your movements, and rendering them into a real-time 3-D world."

"This... is impossible..." David muttered to himself, knowing damned well that there should be no way that even his powerful desktop PC should be capable of this type of real-time interface, especially with the demands the not-quite-realistic graphics must be putting on the system...

...but that train of thought was derailed by the androgynous guide:

"No, this is indeed quite possible." The guide said, in what couldn't be - but obviously was - a direct response to David's muttered comment.

"Holy crap!" David gasped. "You - I mean, how...?"

"This VR interface is also equipped with pattern-recognition software for both sounds picked up by the integrated microphones of the goggles, and for the facial movements made while speaking." The guide said, in that slightly-off monotone it had been using all along. "Additionally, revolutionary new heuristic algorithms allow for a much more life-like interaction than was previously possible. The processes are, of course, proprietary, and will not be revealed."

David's mind spun at the sheer enormity of it all. This device must be worth millions - and yet, for some reason, it had been sent to him...

"Congratulations, sir or madam. You have been randomly selected to test-market the FantasyLand Virtual Reality System..." The guide said, the set-piece delivery of the 'rehearsed' speech making the coincidental timing even less like the 'mind reading' David had been half-ready to believe in. "For copyright protection reasons, this is a one-use unit. Upon removal of the system, the software will be whipped from the system, and key components of electron-state hardware will collapse."

David blinked, wondering what the hell 'electron state' electronics are. "You mean that I'm free to play with this... system... until I have to take a piss, but then I lose it?"

"No. Computer connectivity was only required for initial set-up. The goggles themselves are wireless, and may be disconnected from the slave-unit device to allow unrestricted movement. If you wish, you may do so now, simply by saying 'release connections'.

Understand, it will not be possible to reconnect once this is done, another copyright protection measure specific to the test market units."

David hesitated - then said, firmly: "Release connections."

Aside from two soft, almost inaudible clicks behind his ears, there was no other change in the programming - no degradation of quality or speed.

Unbelievable...

"Please wait..." the guide said. It then flickered, and became as unsubstantial as a ghost - as did the 'room' around it, though the room continued to fade until it was entirely gone, the 'ghost guide' displayed in a mostly transparent overlay atop the real world.

"Please choose an empty space in close vicinity, capable of holding a full-sized human individual." The guide said - and, when David complied, the guide became 'substantial' once more, appearing as if it were standing in the room with him. Indeed, he could now look away from the guide - and when he looked back, it was still there, exactly as if it now had physical form.

"You are now free to move around as you wish." The guide said. "I will remain in close proximity to you until such time as you feel familiar enough with the system as to dispense with my services, which you may do simply by saying 'End Guide Wizard'. Should you need to re-activate my program, simply say 'Begin Guide Wizard'."

David tried the phrases several times each, finding that he could indeed banish and recall the androgynous guide - but never more than one could exist at a given time.

Still barely able to believe that any combination of hardware and software could possibly be so powerful as this, yet unable to refute the evidence of his senses, David shook his head and gave a low whistle of amazement.

"This is... incredible." He said, in open admiration - and then he blinked, and finally thought to ask the obvious: "But what's it do? I mean - is it a game, or what...?"

* * * * *

In the small underground room serving as operations center for the test, one of the two technicians monitoring the telemetry feed coming through a 'back door' in the internet smirked slightly.

Reaching out, the technician lightly tapped the 'elapsed time' indicator, then held a hand out towards the second technician with a smug smile.

"Told you..." The first technician said, in a low voice. "Fifteen minutes, and he buys it completely." With a sigh, the second technician rolled his eyes, and slid a five dollar bill across to his counterpart.

A low, 'coincidental' cough from behind them quickly cut the by-play short, the two technicians studiously turning their attention back to their monitors.

Nodding in satisfaction, their supervisor jotted down a synopsis of the latest readings, then turned and headed towards the glass- enclosed office in the exact center of the room, to give the Colonel the latest update.

* * * * *

"FantasyLand," said the guide, "...is an interactive program to manipulate the 'real world' around you to your liking. Though, of course, somewhat limited in its applicability, you may think of me as your own personal 'Virtual Genie'. Through the use of the visual and aural cues, your immediate surroundings can be altered in nearly any way you desire - and, thanks to powerful, but completely safe, form of bio-feedback autohypnosis, even simulations of the senses of taste, touch and smell are possible."

"Autohypnosis...?" David repeated, doubtfully. "I don't know... are you sure that's safe?"

"Completely and utterly." The guide assured him. "As you know, a person cannot be made to do under hypnosis something they would not do normally - and this isn't even 'behavior modification' hypnosis, in any case. The way it works, the hypnosis convinces your mind to 'play back' into itself whatever sensations you believe you would be experiencing, based on the visible and audible clues provided by the VR goggles."

"Wow..." David said, amazed anew. "That's... incredible."

"Why don't we begin with something basic?" The guide suggested - and, beside the androgynous figure, a full-length VR mirror appeared, and David blinked in surprise at the sight of 'his' body - or, rather, the utterly androgynous VR form that was being displayed, nearly identical to that of the guide, with a few differences: 'He' was not only completely naked, but completely hairless as well. Indeed, it was a completely 'undefined' template body, the eyes completely white, and the skin an artificial 'skin' tone, lacking any texture and appearing slightly plastic-like.

"Why don't I look like myself?" David asked, confused.

