It took a sheer act of will to not just step through the door Josh was holding open for her, but to make herself move towards that bed - but the will she had, and she applied it. She was far from familiar atop the slender black heels of the shoes she now wore, and some of the stiffness of her hip-swaying motion might have been attributed to that... but as a man, she'd been athletic and active, having developed a fairly good sense of balance, and most of the awkwardness atop her new heels came from the fact that a part of her mind was screaming very loudly that she should, in fact, be running away.

She was going to have sex with a man.

She was going to voluntarily have sex with a man. Hell - she was initiating sex with a man!

Less than an hour ago, she'd been a red-blooded heterosexual American male... and so it was a thought that didn't exactly feel 'normal' to her. In fact, had she still been male, it would have been downright repugnant...

...but she was most emphatically not male at the moment, and as strange as it may have been to apply the thought to herself, the concept of a woman having sex with a man was perfectly in keeping with her mental viewpoint.

The hard part was constantly reminding herself that she was the woman in question. Physical sensations - and in fact, physical realities - aside, her self-image was, understandably, that of a man. It took conscious effort to see herself as she was now - abundantly female.

On the other hand - she was now female, with a female body, and that meant that it was capable of experiencing what a female would during sex... and that thought was present among her mental and emotional jumble, as well.

Having walked past Josh, he wasn't able to see her face - and she took that moment of respite to take a deep breath and pasting a smile on her full, bow-like new lips that she fervently hoped looked genuine.

Only then did she turn in a smooth, hip-swinging rotation, and settle her pertly firm new buttocks on the giving surface of the bed.

"Why don't you come over here and sit down?" She suggested to Josh, one dainty new hand lightly patting the surface of the bed next to her.

If there was one thing, above all else, that let the new woman continue on with this pseudo-perverse act, it was exemplified by Josh's response to her offer - because, though he'd already expressed an ardent admiration for the new woman's petite form, and the over-sized erection straining his already tight cut-off track pants proving that the physical desire for her had in no way lessened, he was even more hesitant and awkward than she as he nervously closed the bedroom door and stiffly walked over to the bed.

Josh, currently in the amazingly 'over-the-top' body of a body-builder, (and equally as 'unrealistically' scaled in the manhood department'), was 'really' the quintessential nerd and, to top it off, a virgin.

Though she might be able to claim the technicality of feminine virginity by virtue of the fact that, as a woman, she'd never had sex with anybody else, in her recent life as a man she'd been quite adept at the 'game'.

In any body and under any circumstances, Josh was almost helplessly. Shy and tongue-tied around women, socially inept, and almost completely unskilled, with a 'fantasy life' so overactive through porn of every stripe that his view of sex matched up with a pornography-industry generated fantasy that no reality could ever possibly meet...

...except that, through the strangest and most unlike confluence of events, something as fantastic as any porn movie 'plot' had happened, leaving Josh in an 'unrealistic' body of the male variety, now currently standing near - or looming over - a female body as equally 'unreal'.

"C'mon, sit down " She 'urged' him, drawing on acting skills she'd never known she'd possessed - or, a second thought revealed, that she'd never been consciously aware of using before. When you got right down to it, the times when, as a man, she'd been 'playing the game' to bed a woman, the 'Terry' she'd presented to the prospective lover had been as utterly fictitious as the sexual comfortable woman she was now portraying for Josh.

Awkwardly, Josh settled his massive new body on the bed - and, by simple rules of physics, causing the new woman to lean in towards him as his weight caused the mattress to sink under him, canting her considerably lighter body towards the 'dip' his muscular physique created on the bed.

Without planning to, the new woman found herself suddenly leaning against his massive bicep, her hands instinctively wrapping around him for balance.

For a second, startled by the press of each other's flesh against the other, they looked at each other
- and then, simultaneously, they began to laugh.

It was weak laughter, nervous laughter, but laughter nonetheless, and it was enough to 'break the ice', and ease some of the tension both of them were feeling at the moment - albeit for completely different reasons.

"We're friends - aren't we, Josh?" She asked, smiling up at him - a necessity, since her head didn't even reach his shoulder, even sitting down.

"Well, yeah - I guess " Josh replied, uncertainly.

"You don't think I'd do anything to hurt you, do you?" She pressed on - leaving the question as to whether she might do anything that, introspect, might be 'hurtful' to herself unvoiced.

"Of course not." Josh agreed, a little more certainly.

"Well - you weren't planning to do anything to hurt me, were you?" She asked, sweetly. "Not.. intentionally." He replied, the hesitation back in his voice.

"Exactly!" She exclaimed, catching him off guard - he'd expected her to protest the point. "If you accidentally do anything that makes me uncomfortable, I'll know you're not doing it deliberately, that you're not trying to hurt me. I won't get mad - I'll just tell you, and you can stop. Right?"

The idea, so simple in outline, took him by surprise. He had to suddenly shift his viewpoint - because, the idea had just gone from having to be 'perfect', and make no mistakes, to being allowed to get it wrong, with acrimony.

"Oh, uh..." He said, trying to catch up with the new perspective.

"Just relax." She suggested. "We're friends, and we both know we aren't trying to hurt each other - in fact, if all goes right, we should both enjoy this very much..." - Physically, at least - "...so, don't get neurotic about it. We're both new to this particular situation, so we're allowed to 'experiment', to find out what feels good and what doesn't. So... go ahead."

Josh blinked.

"Go ahead and do... what?" He asked, carefully.

"Whatever you'd like to do." She told him, simply. "Just go ahead and start doing something - and I'll let you know if I like what you're doing. How simple could that be?"

It was simple - and, with the mythos around sex that had built up in Josh's mind, that made it seem entirely too simple to be feasible. On the other hand, he wasn't simply going to say 'no' to the offer, no matter how unlikely he thought it was that it would turn out to be as easy and straightforward as she made it sound.

Hesitantly, he lifted his arm, and draped it around her delicate shoulders. A fevered chill ran through him as, for the first time, he deliberately and with direct permission laid his own flesh against that of a living, breathing woman.

She waited a second, letting him relax a bit, his arm draped around her neck, letting him get used to the feel of touching a woman - and letting herself get used to the feeling of being a woman touched by a man. Only when her own surge of immediate disquiet had begun to ebb could she dredge up a smile and look at him, arching one finely-curved eyebrow.

"This would be nice and all, if it were a first date at a movie theater... but I think, unless you've got a shoulder fetish, that we're a little bit beyond this stage." She said, without sting. Indeed, she shared in on the humor of the situation, finding his discomfort amusing in as much as it was merely a reflection of her own - and, from her point of view, she had much more reason for the discomfort of what they were doing than he did...

"Isn't there any part of me that you'd like to touch even more than my shoulders?" She prompted. Josh hesitated a second longer - and then, taking a deep, reassuring breath, he 'took the plunge'.

Leaving the arm around her shoulders in place, he used his other hand to reach up, across his own body and her, to oh-so-gently place a hand on her left breast.

For her part, knowing something like this was coming, she had sort of steeled herself - only to find that his hesitant touch was such that it failed to produce much of a sensation, either way.

"How 'bout a squeeze - just a ;little one?" She suggested, remembering her oh-so-recent self experimentation with her new body.

He complied, and it felt good - in fact, it felt even better than it had when she'd done it to herself.

Her breasts, large for a woman of her size and apparent genetic background, were just right to fit in the palm of Josh's new hands. Instead of a localized pressure that caused pleasure where it touched, it spread almost evenly across her whole breast - a warm, tentative grip that was comfortable and pleasing.

"Oh - that's nice." She told him, with a small, soft sigh - and it was true, it did in fact feel quite good. The brief surge of 'weirdness' she felt at having a man do something like this to her - much less for her to have the physical attributes necessary to have this done - she didn't deem worth mentioning.

His confidence slightly boosted, he kept his hand on the wonderfully firm breast that was every bit as wonderful filling his hand as he could have wished. He licked his lips nervously, hand trembling slightly and almost unconsciously tensing and releasing pressure - going from worried that he was squeezing too hard to not hard enough.

The effect was... unexpected. He wasn't actually 'trying' anything - but, unintentional or not, the way he was kneading her flesh created a response, as she sighed once more, head lolling slightly to one side with a suddenly acquired heavy-lidded look of pleasure.

"Oh - that's really nice..." - and the voice she used to say the words could only be described as 'a purr'.

It was in no way a tribute to her acting abilities - what Josh was doping just felt really, really nice... and more than just in the immediate, proximate location of the action.

In short, the new woman was quickly discovering one of the truly major differences between men and women. Whereas, with men, a sexual act was conclusive in and of itself, butting an end to the physiological drive towards sex, at least for awhile, with a woman it was quite different.

It wasn't 'despite the fact' that she'd masturbated such a short while ago - but because of it - and now, her body, already 'primed', was responding faster and more emphatically than it otherwise would have to the sensations she was experiencing. A liquid warmth had begun to grow, centered in her womanhood, but seeming to send tendrils out that ran with equal ease through veins and nerves, through flesh and bone. In a way, it felt as if she were melting - but the most wonderful, delightful form of melting that could be imagined.

Right or wrong, this 'melting' extended to some of the doubts and self-recriminations she was feeling about what she was doing. Whether, objectively, having sex with Josh was a good idea or not, it certainly was a nice-feeling one, and she felt that influencing her as she leaned into the groping hand giving her such a delightful experience.

So, she leaned forward, twisting her torso to push her breast more firmly into the hand that cupped it - and action that wasn't exactly thought through, just an instinctive move to increase the pleasure she was feeling, knowing somehow that more pressure than even Josh's most 'aggressive' squeeze would be nicer than what she was getting from the timorous man at the moment.

At the same time, her lolling head completed its sidewise movement and, from there, rolled backwards, leaving her face upturned, her lips slightly parted in pleasure...

...so Josh kissed her.

He thought her move to be intentional, and invitation - and one he took her up on, leaning his own face down to press his lips against hers. It caught her a little off guard - but since it felt good, not only didn't she pull away, but she joined in, adding her own efforts of lips and tongue to his own, rather tentative movements.

What had all started off as something mildly pleasant was rapidly becoming more physically enjoyable by the second - and with each one of those passing seconds, her feminine arousal grew stronger, pumping more hormones into her system - and having, among other things, the effect of giving her a 'drunk', not unlike a couple of quick, stiff drinks.

Just like a couple of good drinks, this also had the effect of lowering her inhibitions, allowing her to give more and more into the physical sensations she was experiencing without anything as pesky as thought or emotion getting in the way. It was a cycle, and though it might be an accurate term, it was still far from 'vicious' - more 'vivid' than anything, as her heightened senses led to the next, even more pleasurable thing, which in turn aroused her even further.,

She was aware she was on this 'slippery slope', not yet having slid far enough down it for her to have lost control - but now that it had started, and she could feel its effects, that's exactly what she planned to let happen. She knew, if she let him, Josh would continue doing things that would get her to the 'point of no return', where her own physical desires would override any mental reservations she might have - and that was just fine by her. After all, she'd gone into this thing fully intending to go through with it, and mostly uncertain whether or not she'd 'chicken out' at the last minute. Now, in retrospect, she realized that the fear was groundless - she could still chicken out early in the game, but by the time she got to the point where she was afraid it would all be 'too real' for her and she would pull away, there'd be no chance of her stopping... precisely because her arousal, and her desire to sate that arousal, would indeed be 'too real' for her to simply ignore it.

For these very reasons, she now desired to get to that point as quickly as possible - or, rather, to guide Josh into getting her to that point, since she wasn't doing this simply to sate her own desires... at least, that hadn't been her goal at the beginning, and it was something she was having a harder and harder time to keep in mind. Nevertheless, at the moment it was still firmly fixed enough to keep from being washed away in the growing flood of hormones, and so she was still able to act upon - 'inviting', rather than demanding Josh's next move.

In this case, it was to shuffle her pert new ass further away from him on the bed, while rising up to tuck one leg under that firm new ass, while swiveling her torso in his direction - a maneuver performed without ever breaking the deepening kiss that was growing ever-more passionate.

As she'd hoped - expected - the move had made it difficult for Josh to keep the hand draped around her shoulders, and so he withdrew it. Unfortunately, he didn't immediately put it to a 'better' use, as she'd half-expected - and, in her growing state of arousal, now more than half wanted.

So, still having to move against the diminished but still present tug of disquiet over her actions, she reached up, lightly touched his wrist, and guided his hand towards her chest.

That's all it took - and Josh, now dealing with his own arousal, didn't hesitate any longer. Now, his failure to act immediately wasn't from any sort of hesitancy, but from inexperience, and while she might lack any female sexual experience to speak of, she had plenty from Josh's particular role in this situation, and she now had more reason than ever to put that expertise to use.

In next to no time at all, she had him exactly as she wanted him - with her body turned towards him, he shifted the grip of the hand already on her chest to the opposing breast so that his freed hand could take up residence on the breast already in play.

She'd expected a doubling of the pleasure she was getting - but it wasn't a straight-line algorithm. Somehow, having both of her breasts played with was five or six times more enjoyable than just one

- and that didn't factor in the increased pleasure that grew as Josh lost his hesitancy, his touch becoming more assertive.

So assertive, in fact, that he took the next move all on his own, without any further prompting. Having played enough with her left breast, now with each hand, he instead slid it down and around until her was cupping her firm ass in that hand, the other still busy with her right mammary gland's softly giving firmness. At the same time, the one long kiss became more sporadic, their lips breaking from each other to kiss along jaw lines and down necks, with Josh's occasionally making forays low enough to lightly lick or nibble at a now-fully-engorged nipple before returning to the starting point and renewing the kiss.

Eventually, no matter how much Josh might enjoy his first time getting to do such things as fondle tits and ass, or kiss deeply and hungry a woman who responded with just as much passion, there were other things he wanted to try, other ideas to put in action, and he now no longer needed any input from her to decide to do them - though, whether or not he got her input, he got her full cooperation, her own pleased and excited state at least the equal to his.

He laid her back on the bed, freeing hands and mouth to roam over his body at will - and they did just that. Sometimes, she returned the favor, but most of the time she had her slender new fingers wrapped into his dark hair - not so much to guide him towards certain locations, though she also did that from time to time, but simply because the growing pleasure had gotten to the point that she needed to grab and hold onto something, almost as if she were afraid the flow of pleasure was so strong that she'd be washed away in it.

That, in and of itself, more or less constituted that 'point of no return' she'd been looking for. To herself, at least, the pleasure had increased to the point that her own sense of self was being submerged in the desire - no, at this point, in the physical need - to bring the growing arousal to orgasmic completion.

The moment when she made him aware she'd reached that point of no return, however, came a few minutes later - when she was well past 'no return' and into 'oh, god, let's go forward!'.

Which more or less explained why, as he continued to tease her sensitive new body to heights she'd never even dreamed of, any last lingering thoughts of doubt or regret were fully lost in her need to satisfy this wonderful hunger that filled her, and she used her grip in his hair to yank his face up towards her.

"Fuck me...!" She gasped, literally writhing with desire on the bed. "Put that big, hard cock of yours into my hot, wet cunt and fuck.. me.. hard!"

This had nothing to do with Josh - in fact, only a small part of her mind even knew he she 'really' was, much less who the man with her was.

It wasn't important.

A much more primal part of her mind knew that this person with her, whoever he was, could satisfy the raging desire within her, whoever she was - and that's the part that quite literally cried out for Josh to fuck her...

...and that exact same primal awareness in the massive man atop her guaranteed he'd respond.

Now, with no prompting at all, they're bodies worked out the physical permutations of coupling. Oh, there were the occasional miscues, but now they didn't matter, were barely noticed other than a brief but desperately important impediment to overcome - and they were both working hard to overcome them. In a short span of time, they were ready, her on the bed with slender new legs inviting spread, and he between them, rapid manhood being guided toward moist receptacle by one dainty hand barely big enough to wrap around it's girth.

Then, with a nearly convulsive thrust of his hips, Josh rammed it home - and she arched her back, giving voice to a long, powerful scream.

It was a scream of many things. Surprise, at what it felt like to be filled, especially with a member so huge that it strained the elasticity of her new womanhood with a near-painful intensity that was, in itself, it's own kind of pleasure. Negation, that anything could feel this intense, that it couldn't really be happening. Affirmation, in that she wanted to happen, wanted it to continue happening...

...but most of all, pleasure - intense, amazing pleasure that thundered through her body.

Pleasure that doubled and redoubled with each repetitive thrust as he rode atop her, his own body rocking with the force of his thrusts, much less her own much smaller form., her hands were outstretched above her, palm spread and braced hard against the wall, wrists and elbows flexing to absorb the wonderful power of each thrust as he rammed his cock into, exactly as she'd specified.

"Oh, God... OH, God!" She panted, writhing and thrashing on the bed, her head whipping back and forth so that her silky hair seemed to possess a life of it's own as it floated and danced around her pleasure-contorted face. "Yes, Josh, Yes! Fuck me good, real good!"

She was barely aware of her own voice, or of the meanings of the sounds she was making - something in her mind sort of 'activated a sub-program' to make sure the other person kept performing at the same level, if not better... but the vast majority of her brain, including any part of it that would have been considered cognitive, was tied up in the simple and yet complex task of absorbing, sorting, and appreciating the many waves and types of pleasure rocking through her body with such amazing intensity.

Like any high-intensity experience, the human body couldn't continue experiencing it without end or variation, no matter how much one might want it to.

However, unlike many other high-intensity experiences, properly performed sexual acts resulted in a condition that, in other circumstances, was known as 'going out with a bang'...

In what seemed both an eternity and no time at all, the new woman upon the bed reached her second female orgasm - but this one was so much more intense, so much more fulfilling, that it seemed to put the last one to shame.

Eyes slamming as wide open as it was possible for them to go, she suddenly found herself arching herself on the bed, almost as if she were attempting the proverbial task of 'bending over backwards' for Josh - but in reality it was her body trying to get the massive manhood just that little bit deeper into her, to gain that last little bit of friction, to somehow make the already mind-boggling orgasm ripping through her somehow even better - and the fact that the task was both futile and vain didn't matter a bit.

Where she might have writhed or thrashed on the bed in the pleasure of actually being penetrated and ridden, orgasm caused her to spasm. Muscles that, until that second, hadn't been directly involved in the motions of her body now all tried to pull her in every direction at once as they 'overload' of pleasure flooding her nervous systems was interpreted by these muscles as commands from the brain - in a very real way, for the scant seconds at the ultimate peak of her orgasm, her mind was no longer in control of her body, She could make no voluntary motion at all - not with the pure force of her orgasm overloading her system with it's sensory information.

For those few seconds, the orgasm was in complete control of her body - and she wouldn't have had it any other way.

At some point during the spasmodic thrashing the orgasm induced, her own motions pushed Josh over that proverbial edge, and he added his own awkward, uncoordinated motions to her own as his own, somewhat lesser but more localized orgasm hit his nervous system. For a second, to people bound as one thrashed and twitched and shouted obscene words of pleasure and encouragement, for all the world like the two worst sufferers of Tourette's syndrome. In it's way, it could have been either laughable or pathetic, and it is perhaps one of the greatest gifts of nature that at such a moment the person involved in such a ridiculous scene is entirely too caught up to notice it.

Some immeasurable time later, sweaty and sprawled side-by-side on the bed, legs still intertwined, Josh turned his head to face her.

"Thank you." He said, the simplicity of the remark in itself showing the depth of his emotion.

"Oh, no, kind sir.. thank you." She replied - and her instinctive humor shielded her own inability to express the depths of her own intensity, so much more convoluted than Josh's straightforward emotions.

"I.. guess you're looking forward to getting out of this body..." Josh said, slowly, as a hand teasingly slid across the body in question - and it was a measure of how much more confidence getting past 'the first time' could be that it wasn't the straightforward question it would have been before, and was spoken with a faint edge of amusement and more than a faint hint of invitation.

"Well, this body does have some advantages.." She allowed. "Besides - after I take this body off, I can never put it on again, right?"

"Right." He agreed, smiling. It was really too much to hope for, but he'd hoped she'd be willing to stay female for at least a little bit longer before giving it up to go back to her old life as a man.

"Well then..." She said, one hand reaching down to touch a manhood as remarkable in it's recuperative abilities as it was in it's size. "I'm just going to have to exhaust all the possible experiences I can have with this body before I remove it and move on to another female body, aren't I? What do you think... a blonde 'bimbo' next? That one with the tits like basketballs might be interesting... or that tall redheaded one - not very well endowed, but it looks quite athletic. Think about it..."

...and, with those words, shifted her body downwards, and promptly began doing something with her mouth that guaranteed that 'thinking' would be the last thing Josh would be doing - at least, for awhile.

That same action, however, only served to intensify the goofy-looking smile that had been born on his lips at her words....

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: When a jilted boyfriend breaking into a shop that caters to women, he is watched by the owner who decides that he needs to be punished, so she slowly transforms him into a lusty bimbo.

Bawdy Shoppe

By Gunslinger

The interior of the shop lay wreathed in shadows, the faint orange glow of a sodium street light filtering in through the front window, and the roll-down security grate that covered it. The displays and isles lay in silence, dark and somewhat mysterious shapes in the slatted shadows and dull orange highlights that faded into a deeper gloom towards the rear of the store.

Then, from somewhere in the shop, a very faint sound came. Unidentifiable to origin or purpose, the sound was only noticeable in the dead silence of the large shop.

For several seconds, there was nothing - then the sound was repeated. A faint wedge of reddish light appeared, flickering across merchandise from far above the store's glossy hardwood floor.

Then, with a muffled sliding sound, the grate to the air conditioning vent in the ceiling slid aside.

A face appeared over the lip of the opening, upside down. The short, dark-red hair hung straight downward under gravity, exposing a pale, strong-featured face whose green eyes swept around the silent interior of the store with a narrow, watchful gaze. Then the head retreated from the opening, and a second later a rope ladder unfurled from the lip, whispering as it rolled downwards to the floor beneath.

One black-sneaker clad foot appeared on the top rung, followed by the second an instant later. The rope rungs creaked and bent under the weight of the athletic man on them, but held firm as the black-clad intruder began to descend with a cat-like stealth and agility...

...right up until his foot slipped.

With a muffled cry caused by the red-lensed flashlight between his teeth, the broad-shouldered, firm-bodied man tumbled the remaining distance, the arc of his fall carrying into a clothing display that collapsed with a painfully loud clatter in the silence, punctuated by a sharp curse.

Rubbing his battered posterior and groaning, Rick rose from the tangle of clothing that had cushioned his fall, shaking his head. Stepping from the pile, he gazed down at the wreckage of the display.

"Oh, fuck..."

Glancing guiltily at the front of the store, the twenty-six year old man bent and began to reassemble the display as best he could, sighing as he struggled to figure out how the thing had looked before the weight of his body had completely 'rearranged' the display. Finally, he had the clothing and its thing aluminum tubing looking like something that a store employee might have set up - if you ignored the slight kinks in the light-weight metal tubing where he'd had to bend them back into some semblance of straightness. At least it wasn't immediately obvious that somebody had done a number on the display.

"I knew this was a mistake..." Rick told himself, glancing at his watch and cursing the time spent reassembling the display. Grabbing up the flashlight from where he'd rested it to do his work, he began to prowl through the interior of the store, looking for the item he'd come to 'borrow'.

The store was 'The Bawdy Shoppe', a sort of new-age women's store run by a woman who only used the name 'Cassandra'. Taking up the first floor, it was a heavily renovated ex-convenience store catering to - as Cassandra put it - "Mortal Goddess" who have embraced their sexual natures'.

In short, it was kind of a high-class 'sex store'. Not really, though - as it wasn't aimed at the 'malecentric sexual viewpoint', another of Cassandra's phrases. Instead, it was aimed at the women, with some concession to the fact that some women enjoyed indulging their male lovers' 'fantasies' - although a fair amount of the traffic of the store, Rick was sure, was lesbian.

Rather than the gaudy displays of male-run 'porno stores', The Bawdy Shoppe was aimed at enhancing sexual pleasure. Though they did carry such things as 'marital aids' and 'fetish clothing', it also sold scented candles, oils and bath lotions, comfortable lingerie of more 'practical' nature, holistic sex aids and guides, and a slew of new-age items, including crystals, jewelry of 'powerful' designs, herbal potions, lotions and notions, and use-specific 'household' items designed to enhance the mood or experience.

In short, it was more 'romantic' than the 'sleazier' sex shops that were more common.

Rick knew a lot about The Bawdy Shoppe - because Cassandra was his land-lady ('Mistress De Maison', she called it) and he lived in the large, extremely reasonably priced apartment suite above the store.

The one where he'd discovered he could hear everything that went on in the shop if he was sitting in the chair next to the large ventilation grate in his dining room.

Which was really the cause of his current state of trespassing - because listening to all the women telling Cassandra how wonderful her items were had given him the idea that he just couldn't shake.

For the past month, Rick had been in a depression - because his long-time girlfriend Marianne had broken up with him, claiming that he was too insensitive to her needs, spending too much time with his 'guy friends', and not 'pampering' her enough. She'd moved out of the apartment...

...but it wasn't an angry departure. Indeed, they'd been together for so long and they had so much in common that it had been a sad departure that she said she had to do for her own sense of self worth.

The thing was - there had been no problem at all in their relationship until Marianne had become good friends with Cassandra. Rick was sure that was where the new thoughts had been planted in Marianne's mind - from the svelte and almost ethereally beautiful blonde owner of The Bawdy Shoppe.

So, Rick had finally decided to set things right. He was going to convince Marianne to give him one last chance, and show her a night of such sensitive pampering that she'd reconsider her decision to leave.

The problem was - Rick was out of funds. The apartment had been a great deal when the two of them had been sharing the cost of the rent - but paying both halves of the rent had left Rick rather short on funds, and his lease meant that trying to leave would be a mistake, even if it wasn't for the fact that the apartment - and the mostly good memories it contained for him - was where he felt at 'home', and didn't want to leave.

So, after a month's worth of gnawing on his sadness at Marianne's departure and anger at Cassandra's interference, he'd come to the somewhat less-than-logical conclusion that it was only fair that Cassandra help him win Marianne back - even if she didn't know it.

Thus - the 'midnight requisition' of the necessary items from her shop that he needed for his planned perfect evening.

Moving around the store, he began to gather up the items he wanted - silk sheets, scented candles, bath oil, champagne from the cooler at the back of the store, and a dozen other items.

"Just wait, Blondie..." Rick said aloud, using a pet-name for Marianne that dated back to their first date in high-school, when she'd tried - and failed miserable - to turn her raven mane of hair blonde for the date. "...I'm going to show you a night you'll never forget."

He had no way of knowing that his every move was being watched, and his every word heard...

* * * * *

It was a sight many men would have paid good money to see.

Seated on the hardwood floor of her living room, Cassandra was completely nude. Not naked, indicating the emotion context of 'vulnerable' or 'uncomfortable' - she was completely relaxed, and it showed in the easy grace of her posture. No, she was 'nude' - and the warm golden light from two thick library candles in front of her gleamed on her smooth, flawless skin and picked golden highlights out of her golden-brown eyes and wheat-blond hair.

She had the toned body and smooth skin of a mere girl in her late teens, but her simply stunning face and her body language seemed to indicate a decade or so more age.

You'd have to look into her eyes to see the truth, and even then you'd have to look long and hard. When you began to get an inkling of what you were seeing, though, you probably wouldn't believe it.

How could such a beautiful, apparently young woman's eyes carry a wisdom far beyond her years?

Well, it wasn't wisdom 'beyond' her years - for Cassandra was a true practitioner of 'magic', a woman in tune with the primal and mostly unseen forces that twined through life - and she had been for most of her eight-three years on the planet so far.

One of the advantages to her supernatural existence was that the effects of aging were greatly reduced, hence her appearance. There were other advantages to her abilities, as well - and one of them was that she'd never felt the need to worry much about store security.

When Rick had begun his little 'B&E' routine, a sixth sense had informed Cassandra what was going on, waking her from her slumber. Padding out to the living room, she'd filled a simple brass bowl with water and lit the candles, then begun 'scrying' - using the water as a sort of 'magical TV', to watch Rick's actions.

She'd laughed at his tumble, and smiled as she watched him attempt - rather ineptly - to reassemble the display. She hadn't felt much anger at his intrusion into her story, and only a little disappointment - after all, she and Marianne had become close friends, and she'd secretly been keeping an eye on Rick for Marianne, and had begun to worry that she'd made a mistake in judgment when Rick's depression had stretched on without sign of loosening its hold. Cassandra, though possessing abilities that most people didn't dream possible, knew that she was as human and fallible as anyone, and had begun to realize that her judgment of Rick as a 'typical male' had been inaccurate - she'd expected him to shrug off Marianne's departure and jump right back into the single life. So, she'd begun to be seriously troubled by his continuing depression, and had wondered how she could rectify her error, and the heartache it had caused.

Rick would have been surprised had he known that Cassandra also reached the conclusion that she owed him for what she'd done to his and Marianne's relationship, and that his little 'raid' also seemed 'fair' to her.

At least... right until he spoke those fateful words - and the small smile on Cassandra's lips faded. "Blondie?" She asked the unknowing image of Rick. "Why you little..."

She and Marianne had become close friends, and Marianne had divulged many intimate details of her relationship with Rick to the svelte sorceress - but somehow, the story of her (highly embarrassing) first date with Rick had never been fully disclosed.

So, Cassandra came to a logical (and utterly incorrect) conclusion - that Rick, rather than willing to do a little breaking and entering, with theft, to win back the affections of his sweetheart, was stealing these items to impress some other woman.

It could be understood that Cassandra - who'd had a few bad relationships with men in her past - allowed her imagination to run a little wild, imagining this 'Blondie' as some brainless blonde bimbo.

It could also be understood that Cassandra was angered by Rick's 'callous' actions - and her own 'gullibility' in believing that Rick was actually a fairly decent human being.

That said, it can even be understood why she did what she did, lifting her hands high to the heavens, tilting her head back and closing her eyes as she began to chant in a surprisingly deep, sonorous voice...

* * * * *

Grunting, Rick pushed the two bags full of 'goodies' through the vent in the dining room of his apartment, then tuned and closed the vent behind him before rising to his feet and brushing the dust off his black sweatsuit.

Rolling his shoulders and sighing, Rick looked down at the bags of stolen items, feeling guilty as hell and already reconsidering. He thought of climbing back through and putting them back - but then shook his head.

He decided that he'd go ahead with his plan, then find a way to repay the price of the items over time, hoping Cassandra would understand. With her views on the way men should treat women, she might be understanding enough - especially if Marianne was able to tell her how wonderful the evening was. Where he might not be able to reach Cassandra's sympathy, maybe he and Marianne together would be able to find a way to make what he'd just done well, not 'right', but at least 'understandable'.

Stripping off the sweaty, dusty, smelly - and, thanks to the fall, torn - sweatsuit, Rick dumped it into a hamper. Although it was the wee small hours of the morning, a combination of factors, including adrenaline, guilt, and anticipation, assured that he was wide awake, and he decided to get everything 'set-up'. Though he wasn't even sure he'd be able to talk Marianne into giving him a second chance, much less that it might be tomorrow or anytime in the next week, getting everything ready would give him a sense of accomplishment, and allow him to work off the nervous energy that kept sleep at bay.

Dressed only in a pair of gray Hanes boxer briefs and a pair of white athletic socks, the athletically built youth began to spread the contents of the bags out and sort through them.

He started in the bedroom - the master bedroom, which he and Marianne had shared for over two years, and that he hadn't slept in since she'd left, finish the big four-poster bed to cold and lonely. Instead, he'd taken to using the fold-out couch in the combination study/guest room they'd made out of the second bedroom.

Now, he stripped off the covers of the big oak bed and replaced the sheets with the pale pink ones from the shop, the silk rustling smoothly as he made the bed. Over the silk sheets he placed a thick, soft, off-white comforter.

He walked around the spacious bedroom, finding the best places to put the candles. One thick off- white candle went on each of the night-tables that flanked the bed, after he'd cleared them of their usual clutter, left untouched since Marianne had left. More candles went on the dressers, and on the broad window-sill. The ones on the window were small ones that floated in 'brandy-snifters' full of water, and he made sure to place them far from the tied back drapes - having the curtains burst into flame would probably be a real mood killer.

He went through the rest of the rooms, cleaning up as he 'redecorated' the apartment. It was more than just placing candles, though - he'd also dredged through his mind to remember all the decorating ideas that Marianne had made while they were living together that he'd refused, because he'd thought that they would make the apartment look to 'feminine' for him to be comfortable. Now, he didn't care - if Marianne wanted the tables rearranged, that was fine with him. Digging back into his memory, he moved the furniture to the positions that Marianne had placed them in to show him, then went and got the lacy white 'table clothes' for the end tables and put them in place. The white-and-beige pillows came out of the big closet in the guest-room, to be placed on the couches and the matching chair.

By the time he was done, the sun was casting an orange-red glow through the windows - but the entire apartment was as close as he could get it to Marianne's vision as he could manage. Some things he couldn't do - like buying the few items she'd suggested - but everything that was possible for him to do, he'd done. The apartment was still recognizable as the one from the day before - but the decor now looked much more feminine. It was what Rick had feared, and the reason he'd refused - but now he would gladly paint the entire place pink and white and hang big silk bows everywhere, if that's what it took to win Marianne back.

Looking at the clock, he saw that he had only an hour and half before he had to leave for work - and although he was beginning to feel the effects of a night without sleep, he decided against calling in sick for work. It was Friday, after all, and he didn't have much on his plate, thanks to the consideration of his boss, who's wife had left him last year and understood what

Rick was going through. Besides, he wouldn't be able to sleep until he'd talked to Marianne, and he wanted to do that face-to-face, which meant after she was done work this afternoon.

After breakfast and more coffee then was good for him, he took a long, cold shower to help wake him up, then toweled off his firm, fit body. Walking over to the sink, he started the hot water running and sprayed some shaving cream into the cupped palm of his hand...

...then stopped just short of slathering it on his face when he realized that he didn't need it. To his surprise, his face lacked the usual morning stubble, looking as smooth as if he'd just finished shaving...

...or smoother. He was quite fair-skinned - like many natural red-heads - and usually he had a faint bluish tinge along his jawline where the follicles of hair could be faintly seen through his light skin. Yet he couldn't even see that.

Running a hand over the skin of his jaw, he felt the flesh slide under his fingers with an unusual smooth, soft sensation. Mouth quirking in mild confusion, Rick shrugged and rinsed the cream from his hand - if he didn't have to shave this morning, it wasn't something he was going to complain about. He'd tried to grow a beard a couple of years ago, and it had looked ridiculous - he was lucky enough to have dark, cherrywood-red hair and a complete lack of freckles, rare for a red-head, but his facial hair had come in as that awful rust-orange color that was more common than the 'real' red of his hair.

Finishing his morning ablutions, he dressed quickly - a pair of dark green slacks, a light green dress shirt with white color, dark tie, his Italian loafers, and a dark green leather sport jacket. Grabbing his wallet and keys, he walked through the apartment one last time, making sure that everything was perfect, on the off-chance that Marianne would agree and come home with him directly from seeing her.

Nodding to himself, he left the apartment and headed down the stairs. Walking down the alley behind the building to get to his car, he passed Cassandra coming the other way.

"Morning." Rick muttered, pretending to be looking for his keys so he wouldn't have to meet her eyes, still feeling guilty about his theft.

So, he didn't notice the slight tightening of eyes and lips as she replied coolly with the same word, the tone and look lost in his own emotional state as he headed for his car.

* * * * *

"Hey, Rick - about time to get a hair cut, huh?"

Blinking, Rick looked up from the computer to the smiling face of Jerry, from the mailroom. The younger man had just put a pile of inter-office mail on his desk, and was now grinning at him.

"Excuse me?" Rick asked, his mind feeling foggy and slow from the lack of sleep the night before. Jerry pointed at Rick's head. "Getting a little shaggy on top, aren't you?"

Rick frowned, and turned the chair to face the big tinted window on the left side of the office that he could use as a faint mirror.

His thick head of dark-red hair hung about his face in a heavy mass, making him realize that he'd been brushing it out of his face during the past few hours, without even thinking consciously about it.

He blinked in confusion - he hadn't thought his hair was that full and long - he'd almost swear that it had grown rapidly since this morning.

Then again - he'd had a bad month, and neglected some things. The idea that his hair had grown that rapidly was just ridiculous - part of the effect of his sleepless night, probably, that it seemed that way.

"Yeah - I guess I should get it chopped." Rick agreed. "Thanks, Jerry."

"No problem, Mr. McLanahan." Jerry said, flipping a short wave as he headed out.

Turning back to the computer, Rick went back to tapping away at the keyboard, his wandering attention forced to focus on what he was doing as his tired mind struggled to have the columns of information make sense.

It took him nearly an hour to notice that his typing not only seemed more difficult than usual - but sounded different.

Frowning, Rick looked down...

For a second, his brain jumped its track as it tried to figure out how a woman had snuck into his office and begun typing at his computer.

Then he realized that the dainty hands with their long, slender fingers, tiny wrists and long, oval fingernails were protruding from the sleeves of his dress-shirt.

"What the...?" Rick asked himself quietly, lifting his hands to hold them in front of his stunned eyes, turning the slender, dainty hands from side to side.

They moved when he commanded them to, they were attached to the ends of his arms - which made these slender, extremely feminine hands 'his', even if they looked nothing like the broad, slightly stubby hands that usually graced his arms.

"This... can't be happening..." Rick told himself in the same stunned, quiet voice as he stared at his inexplicably altered hands.

"Hey, Rick..." A voice said - and Rick snapped out of his dazed trance, tucking his hands under the desk and out of sight as his boss, Mr. Lucas, stuck his head into the office.

"Yes, Mr. Lucas?" Rick asked, trying to look casual as he kept his hands out of sight.

"I need you to go check on the shipping team - according to our numbers, we're short fifteen units from Wednesday. I need you to track them down."

"Uh... yes, sir." Rick nodded, not knowing what else to say. With a quick nod, Lucas disappeared down the hallway - and Rick once more extracted his hands and stared at them.

"No - this has to be a... a... hallucination or something." Rick told himself, shaking his head. "A result of sleep deprivation and guilt. It has to be."

It didn't feel like a hallucination - but Rick so desperately needed to believe that it was that he managed to convince himself that was the case. This wasn't real, no matter how real it felt when he ran one slender hand over the other. It just couldn't be real - he couldn't have the hands of a woman.

Right?

That 'conviction' didn't stop Rick from jamming his hands deep into the pockets of his jacket as he headed over to Shipping - not that he 'thought' that his hands would look different to anyone else....

...but, what if they did?

Forcing his mind to once more ignore the chance that this might be real, he used his shoulder to push open the door to shipping and step through.

"Hey, Mr. McLanahan - what can I do for you?" Ron, the head of Shipping, asked, somewhat warily. "Oh, just looking for some missing units." Rick told him.

Ron was looking at him oddly - and Rick suddenly realized he was staring at the muscular head of shipping with a silly grin on his face. With a shocked reaction, he looked away, the smile changing into a confused frown.

"Uh - I'll just run down the units, Ron." Rick mumbled, heading over to the stacks and pulling out the clip-board for the delivery and running his finger down the list...

...without thinking. He'd run down so many missing units in this job that his actions were habitual - and he didn't realize what he'd done until he saw that one long-nailed, dainty finger running down the list.

He looked up - to see that Ron had turned away. Blushing - still scared that somebody else might see and 'verify' the impossible - Rick stepped a bit further into the stacks to be out of sight, his heart pounding.

Again consulting the clipboard, he found the information he was looking for - though it took him three tries, as the sight of that slender, long-nailed finger was distracting, even if it wasn't really 'real'.

Finally finished, he blushed as he all-but-snuck the clipboard back into place, feeling supremely silly as he went through a burglar-esque act to hand the clipboard on the nail without anyone seeing him...

..or, rather, his hands.

Finished, Rick faded back into the stacks and began the task of looking for the units, under the assumption that - as was usually the case - the stenciling on the sides of the boxes had faded, making the designation look like something else.

The warehousing section he was in - the 'stacks' - was almost like a maze. Narrow isles were bordered on either side by high metal shelving stacked full of boxes, blocking out most of the light and disrupting any line-of-sight. Rick usually found the stacks almost claustrophobic - but, today, he was grateful for the 'solitude' the maze-like warehouse provided, his mind spinning in useless circles as he tried to come to terms with a plethora of things, the most important one being the odd 'hallucination' he was in the middle of.

He was walking down one of the alleys, lost in thought, when he suddenly tripped and went sprawling. "Shit!"

Rubbing his elbow - which had smacked painfully into the concrete floor - Rick sat up and gazed down at the floor he'd walked over, looking for the item he'd tripped over...

His right shoe lay in the middle of the floor, the laces still tied.

"What the hell...?" Rick asked himself, frowning. He glanced down at his feet...

...the gasped and leaned closer to his leg, hands reaching out to verify what his eyes saw.

His dainty, feminine hands reached out - and gently ran over the thin black dress sock that covered an equally tiny, dainty foot. Slowly, in a state of shock, Rick pulled off the sock and stared at the foot itself, jaw sagging in disbelief.

The foot was tiny, compared to what he usually saw at the end of his leg. The toes were each perfectly formed, with none of the somewhat callused 'spread' at the bottom - each one was as rounded and smooth as if he'd never walked on these feet in his life.

Which was almost true.

The foot itself was narrow even for its reduced size, with a small, finely curved ankle behind a high, well-defined arch that made his foot look like a smooth, incredibly realistic Barbie-doll's foot, rather than a real appendage. Yet, all the sensations that came through both his altered hands and feet seemed to insist that both were, indeed, real.

A quick check revealed that his other foot matched this one.

"That's it..." he told himself, numbly. "I've gone off the deep end. I'm imagining I've got the hands and feet of a woman. I've finally snapped under the pressure."

He might have gone on telling himself that he'd lost it and was hallucinating wildly - if he hadn't hear Ron calling his name, the sound slowly growing in volume as the head of shipping drew slowly but steadily closer.

That snapped Rick out of his numb denial. He still didn't know what was going on - but, at the thought of getting 'caught' like this, embarrassment and horror flooded him, and it seemed that the most important thing in the world at the moment was keeping anyone from seeing him like this.

Frantically, he stuffed a balled-up sock in the toe of each shoe and pulled them on, tying them as tightly as he could. They still fit poorly, but he hoped it would be enough to keep the shoe in place when he walked. Heart pounding, he pushed himself to his feet...

..and almost toppled over. The curvature of his new feet made it feel incredible unnatural to stand flat-footed, and he'd almost instinctively tried to stand on tip-toe to alleviate the discomfort - hence his near spill. Grimacing, he forced himself to press all his weight down on his heels - but it was as if he was trying to stand with coiled springs under his heels, fighting to keep the springs from rising up and lifting the back of his feet.

With Ron's voice growing closer, Rick looked around desperately, finally spotting what he wanted - a pair of work gloves, dozens of which were scattered all over the stacks.

This pair, however, was two-dozen feet away.

Walking was almost a battle. Just standing still without letting himself go on tip-toe was bad enough, but with each step he took it was ten times worse. Lifting his foot 'released' the 'spring' in his altered feet, and he had to force his heel down with each and every step. By the time he'd reached the gloves, only a short distance away, his calves were already starting to ache from the effort required to remain flat-footed.

Doing his best to ignore the discomfort, he quickly pulled the now-too-loose men's gloves onto his hands...

"Mr. McLanahan?"

"Yes, Ron?" Rick said, forcing his lips into a bad simulation of a friendly grin as the foreman looked at him oddly.

"Uh... we found the missing units - the shipper called and said that they were left in the truck by accident. They'll deliver them later today."

"That's great, Ron - saves me some trouble." Rick said, sweat trickling down his back - just carrying on a pseudo-normal conversation was a tremendous effort, most of his mind taken up with the task of standing as 'normally' as possible, while another part of his mind was trying to cope with the impossible things that were happening.

"So... I guess you're done here?" Ron asked in a tone of voice that clearly indicated that he didn't but Rick's 'all's-well' act.

"Yeah, yeah - thanks for your help, Ron." Rick said, sweating even more fiercely - but it was obvious that he couldn't very well wait, or ask the foreman not to watch while he walked. Gritting his teeth behind his false smile, Rick forced himself to begin walking - and he knew how odd he must look, walking like an old man with shuffling steps that didn't lift his feet - and his traitorous, 'spring-loaded' heels - from the ground.

"Are you okay, Mr. McLanahan?" Ron asked, hesitantly.

"Actually..." Rick said, knowing that there was no way he could walk all the way out of the stacks before his aching calves would refuse to help anymore. "I... I managed to bang my knees into a shelf, and they hurt like hell when I try and bend my legs."

Ron's eyebrows went up, and Rick could almost hear his thoughts - but, right now, he'd rather that Ron think that he'd managed to do something incredibly stupid in order to injure himself like that then reveal what was really going on.

"Oh - well, why don't you wait here, and I'll get one of the power dollies and give you a lift to the door." Ron suggested.

"I'd appreciate that - though I feel really, really stupid about injuring myself this way." Rick 'admitted' with a sheepish smile...

...then he almost slumped to his 'injured' knees in relief as the foreman walked away in search of a power-dolly. Rather than risk being caught out in the lie, though, Rick forced himself to maintain the same awkward stance that he'd held in front of Ron - not too difficult, as the alternative was to let his traitorous feet 'pop-up' like they wanted to.

One damned thing was sure - he was going home. He'd use the excuse of his 'injury', he'd claim he wasn't feeling well - hell, he'd quit completely, if that's what it took. He just didn't care - he needed time alone to try and figure out what was happening to him.

* * * * *

"Are you sure that you don't want me to get Margie to give you a lift home?"

Looking up at his boss' concerned face, Rick had to remind himself that Mr. Lucas was just trying to be helpful - and he had no way of knowing that the last thing Rick wanted was 'company' of any sort.

"No, thanks, Mr. Lucas." Rick said, manufacturing a wry smile. "Working the pedals doesn't really put much pressure on my feet, and I'd prefer to have my car handy - just in case."

Not hearing the rest of Mr. Lucas' well-meaning (but unwanted) advice, Rick made his excuses as best he could, then finally managed to get away, pulling out of the parking lot and aiming the hood of his car towards his apartment with a sigh of relief - today was just getting too weird, and having to deal with other people on top of that weirdness was just too much for him to handle right now.

Then again, just handling the weirdness was probably more than he could handle right now - but he'd take that hurdle when he had a chance to sit down - by himself - and do some serious thinking and considering.

As he pulled to a stop at a red light, Rick peeled the work gloves off his hands and let his bare hands rest on the steering wheel. The sight of the apparently dainty, slender, feminine hands bothered the hell out of him, but so had the feeling of the too-large work gloves - and he didn't actually have to look at his hands to drive.

The thought gave him pause though - if it was all a hallucination, why did it feel real - like the work gloves feeling like they were too large...?

Pushing the thought aside for the moment, Rick focused on nothing but driving for the rest of the trip, not allowing the nagging thoughts, suspicions and doubts intrude until he parked his car and very awkwardly walked up the flight of stairs to his apartment, shutting and locking the door behind him.

Sighing in relief, he turned from the locked door and dropped his keys on the hallway table...

...that wasn't there. The keys clattered against the floor and Rick stared at them numbly for a moment, a frown slowly building on his face.

"What the hell...?" Rick said, looking to the other wall - where the table now sat, below a mirror that he'd never seen before.

"Nnnn...oooo" Rick said, thoughtfully, trying to put the whole thing together. He might have moved the table during his late-night redecorating, but he was damned sure that he hadn't hung the mirror - which he didn't even own.

Slowly, feet trying to 'spring up', he walked down the hallway and into his living room...

Well, the living room at any rate. It was the same size, shape and color it had always been - but now it looked completely and utterly different.

About half the furniture was the 'right' furniture - the furniture that had been there when he'd left for work. Now, however, there was new furniture and various items that - like the mirror in the hallway - he'd never owned.

However, though he'd never owned it, he realized that he recognized almost all of it. Eyes widening in confused shock, he slumped into the nearest chair - a wicker rattan one that hadn't been there the day before - and gaped at what he was seeing.

It was the living room that Marianne had always wanted - down to the smallest detail. Last night, he'd tried to approximate what she'd shown him, as best he could - now, it was exactly as she'd described, right down to the little accents and knickknacks she'd shown him in various catalogues.

Any trace of his lifestyle was gone, overwritten in the redecorated room that was so obviously a result of a 'womans touch' that Rick couldn't help but wonder if Marianne had come over while he was gone, seen what he'd done, and finished the work.

"Marianne? Are you here?" He called, walking slowly through the apartment for a note or other explanation, a confused look on his face as he eyed the redecorated apartment.

He didn't find anything to indicate who had done this, or how. Shaking his head at the extra measure of strangeness, Rick decided to flee to the sanctuary of the bathroom.

It looked as feminine as the rest of the apartment - but that was nothing new. Indeed, Marianne had claimed the bathroom as her place to decorate when she'd first seen the apartment, and he'd allowed her a free hand. Now, the familiarity of the surroundings is what he wanted - needed - and the fact that it matched the rest of the apartment now was secondary to it's comforting resemblance to how it had been this morning.

Going first to his radically altered bedroom, he pulled his bathrobe out of the closet and began to undress, tossing his clothing into the laundry hamper...

"Shit!"

Rick stared at the arm exposed by removing his shirt - and arm completely denuded of body hair. Slowly, Rick finished undressing and found that all his body hair was....

..still there, kind of. The first look had been deceptive, but now he could see that he still had body hair only it was a very fine, light, silky body hair. He only made the connection when he pulled his pants off and found out what his skin without any body hair - because his legs were completely and utterly denuded of every follicle.

In other words - he had the body hair and shaved areas of an average North American woman, including the shaved armpits.

"This is just too damn weird..." Rick said, shaking his head. However - he still wasn't quite ready to concede that any of this might be real. He might be crazy, he might be hallucinating, he might be ready for a rubber room at Bellevue - but he wasn't really beginning to look like a woman.

Keeping that thought firmly held, Rick pulled on his bathrobe and went into the bathroom to grab a bath.

* * * * * "God-fucking-damn!"

Furious, Rick slammed the door on his closet - then stood there, staring angrily at the dainty hand gracing the end of his arm while he struggled to maintain balance atop his altered, traitorous feet.

Maybe none of this was really happening - but whatever was/wasn't doing this had gone too damn far. Finishing his bath, the (now-long)red-haired young man had come to get dressed...

...and found that all his clothing was missing, replaced with clothing of an undeniably feminine persuasion.

Angrily using one dainty hand to toss his mane of long, deep-red hair out of his face, Rick re-opened the closet and eyed the clothing that lay inside.

Skirts. Blouses. Dresses - all of it decidedly feminine, with nothing that could really be considered 'unisex'. Now, either somebody had silently managed to steal away all his clothing and replace it while he was in the bath, or this was still his normal male clothing and he was hallucinating it all.

In either case, he'd had more than enough. He'd used the time alone in the bathtub to decide what he was going to do, and his final decision had been to seek 'professional' help - a psychiatrist. If he was nuts, a shrink could tell him - and if it wasn't that, then the shrink would have advice on where to turn next. In either case, it was the best place to start.

Except - he hadn't planned on trying to go see the shrink while dressed in some little frou-frou.

Then again - if he was insane, maybe this was his psyche's attempt to keep him from seeing the shrink.

"Well, I'm not giving up!" Rick shouted into the air - not realizing just how insane that did make him look. "I'm going, and there's nothing you can do to stop me!"

Angrily, he dug into his closet, looking for the least 'objectionable' outfit he could put together for his little psychiatric outing.

First, he pulled a pair of pale pink cotton panties out of his drawer.

"They're not panties..." Rick told himself, firmly. "They're the same pair of boxer-briefs that were sitting here this morning - I'm just seeing them as panties."

Maybe - but he had a very vivid imagination, as they felt entirely real as he pulled them up his now denuded legs, feeling like a tight pair of panties that pulled much too tight across the crotch and practically hung limp at the ass, designed for a woman's more...

...more ass.

Next came a pair of socks. Sure, they looked like all the world for a pair of 'nude' nylons with seams at the heel, toe and up the back, but they were really only socks, the same he wore every day - at least, that's what he kept telling himself as he pulled them on, smoothing them up his smooth legs and positioning the lacy elasticized tops around his thighs.

Then he pulled on the rest of his outfit - a black leather skirt that came to just above his knees, and a cowl-neck, bright red fuzzy sweater. He wasn't quite sure what clothing they really were, not having memorized the position of clothing in his closet - but he was sure that they weren't really the clothes they seemed to be.

The final touch was shoes.

All the shoes in the closet had really, really high heels - and that created a mixed feeling in Rick. He didn't want to wear heels - but doing so would allow his feet the natural curvature they 'wanted' to have, making it easier for him to walk.

Besides - these were really just his normal shoes - everything else was just illusion. Nodding to himself - then cursing at the way it made a lank strand of hair drop into his eyes - Rick picked out the pair with the highest heels in the closet - a pair of bright-red patent leather pumps with six-inch stiletto heels. Forcing himself to remember that they were really a pair of loafers or tennis shoes, he slipped his apparently altered feet into them and rose to his full height...

...and was 'relieved' to find that it made walking with his 'altered' feet much more comfortable, if a little awkward.

Frowning at the image in the mirror - knowing that it wasn't a true reflection of what must really be - Rick headed out, gathering up his wallet and car keys as he left.

Climbing behind the wheel of his car, he slumped against the dash as he worked up the nerve he'd need, then inserted the key into the ignition and brought the car roaring to life.

Pointing the hood of his aging Chevy towards the downtown section of town, Rick headed out to see the psychiatrist he'd randomly chosen from the phonebook.

She'd gone about half the distance - when her body seemed to explode.

It wasn't quite that drastic - but it might as well have been. Suddenly, without warning, she lost control of the car - as huge, firm round tits suddenly thrust from her chest, straining the sweater to the limit - and blocking off the steering wheel.

At the same time, her hips and ass expanded - even as her waist shrunk. As did her cock, rapidly forming into a hot, wet cunt.

The Chevy slammed into a telephone pole - thankfully, at a low speed - and Rick... (...or, the huge-breasted woman who had once been Rick...)

...staggered out.

Stunned, she stared down at her body - and with sudden horror, realized that she'd been deluding herself.

This was no hallucination - this was real.

Horried, Rick... Rikki... stumbled into the nearest building to use the phone, something in the back of her mind telling her that if she could only get to a doctor, everything would be all right.

Slumping onto a barstool near the bar, she gestured towards the bartender...

"Whatever you want, honey, I'll buy it." the handsome man said with a grin, holding out a hand. "I'm Mark."

"Rikki..." He... she.. answered numbly, about to explain that she just wanted the phone...

... when she realized that she was horrendously, painfully, desperately attracted to him...

...or, rather - his cock. Visions of cocks, of cum, of her satisfying men with mouth, tits, hands and ass flooded her...

...and her brain 'shut down' under the assault.

Rikki brought a sensual smile to her fuller, glossy lips. She rose from the stool slowly, her hand going to her sweater.

She understood, now, that this was her destiny - this is what she would do for the rest of her natural- born life, and fighting against it would only make a bad thing worse.

Smiling, she peeled off her sweater, setting free her huge, firm, tits.

"Like what you see?" She made herself ask - if she was going to be stuck in this role, she'd might as well make it the best she could.

Mark's jaw dropped - answer enough for Rikki.

Walking to stand in front of him, she slowly sank to her knees in front of mark, her heart thudding behind her gigantic tits. She made herself to reach out and unzip his pants, slowly lowering them and his underwear around his ankles, letting his hard, throbbing cock spring free.

"Mmmm... it's so big" she said in a low, husky voice - and finding that the words weren't as bad as she thought they'd be. "It looks soooo good "

Reaching out, she wrapped her dainty hands around the throbbing shaft, looking up at Mark with a sly smile.

She'd somehow expected the feel of a cock in her hand to be physically disgusting - but it wasn't. Not really.

"Ohhh " She said. "I want to feel your huge cock on my body." Leaning forward and rising slightly, she wrapped her large, firm tits around the cock, rubbing its hard shaft in her cleavage, then it's purplish head across her rounded mounds and large nipples.

To her surprise, it felt quite good, physically.

"I love your cock, Mark - it's so big and hard " She said, turning herself on. Moaning with 'pleasure', she wrapped her hands around the base of his throbbing shaft, opened her soft, firm lips - and took his cock into her warm, wet mouth.

Again, she was amazed to find it wasn't physically disgusting - in fact, it actually felt kind of... nice? She closed her lips tightly around the shaft and forced herself to let her tongue roam over the warm crown filling her mouth as she sucked lightly.

Making moaning sounds in the back of her throat, she began to piston her head up and down on his thick cock, her hands working in sync - one on the shaft, the other playing with his large balls.

It felt... good. She was surprised and disgusted - but there was no way to deny that, on some level, she was enjoying this. Her movement, her actions - all were turning her on. As she slurped away on his manhood, she was shocked to discover herself getting into the blow-job.

In fact - she was really, really enjoying it.

Her moans of enjoyment were no longer feigned - the warmth filling her mouth, the slight tang of his cock tickling her taste buds, the warm shaft and balls under her fingers - it did feel good. In fact - she was sucking eagerly at the cock filling her mouth.

Then, with a slight warning from the way his cock twitched, he began to spew a stream of thick, warm cum into her mouth.

Rikki felt a second's disgust - then the warm, salty flavor registered - and she found herself gulping eagerly at the flow of delicious cum - as she knew that this was just a preview of the way the rest of her life would be....

...and, she knew that accepting it was the only thing she could do...

* * * * *

"Jaysus H. Christ, and th' horse he rode in on." Patrick breathed in amazement as Rikki headed off to the 'Ladies Room'. "I've seen many a thing in this here bar, me boyo - but never anythin' quite the likes 'o that."

"Yeah - that was out of the ordinary." Mark agreed, readjusting his clothing. "I hope you don't mind the public display there, Patty."

Patrick grinned. "Ah, no, me lad - this place could use a bit o' livenin' up, and most of me crowd is usually pretty hard to..." He grinned wickedly. " get a rise outta."

Mark laughed - then Rikki stepped out of the bathroom, and his - and several other patron's eyes - followed.

Teetering atop the ridiculously high-heels 'she' wore, the transvestite sashayed back to the bar, pulling 'her' sweater back down over the huge - and obviously implanted - 'tits' on 'her' chest.

"Sorry about that " Rikki said in a really bad falsetto, obviously trying to be 'seductive'. "Sometimes, a girl just can't wait, if you know what I mean."

"Oh, we understand miss." Patrick assure 'her' with a grin. "We're a very understandin' bunch o' lads, I assure you."

"Good." Rikki said. Running a hand through her short - but beautifully colored - hair, her over- lispticked lips curved in a grin. "How about a sherry, then?"

And, for the patrons of the city's most famous - or infamous - 'Alternate Lifestyle' bar, life went on as usual...

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: Agreeing to house sit for an odd neighbor, one guy has a series of misfortunes that leave him with a huge set of boobs, and the discovery that his neighbor is a witch.

Being Neighborly

Part One

By Gunslinger

It all started when I offered to look after Maggie's place for her while she was gone.

Maggie Jones and I were hardly what you would call friends – 'nodding acquaintances' would be much more accurate. We happened to live directly across from each other, the last two houses on a dead-end road at the very edge of a small town; hers was the nearly two century old farmhouse that the road had originally been the driveway to, while mine was a mid-Seventies brick and faux-stone façade bungalow that had gone up, along with the others along the road, following the Vietnam War.

We ran into each other regularly when going out to collect our respective mail; somewhat less frequently, we'd come across each other in the woods that started where our shared road ended. In our own ways, we were both the outdoor type, but in radically different ways – tall, slender, and pale, Maggie wandered through the woods looking for mushrooms, herbs, and assorted other natural botanicals I wouldn't even pretend to know about – very much the 'new age/hippy' type, wearing natural-fiber skirts and blouses and Birkenstocks, whereas I was usually in jeans and a sweatshirt, hiking and canoeing and camping. Still and all, we got along well enough, if not enough so to call ourselves friends.

So, I just happened to be there on the early-fall day, both of us having gone out to retrieve our mail at the same time. Standing there in the crisp morning air, we traded a few trite words – and then Maggie's face lit up with delight as she perused a letter she'd just opened: "Oh, wonderful – Elspeth's been chosen High Priestess for the All Hallows!"

Almost as quickly, her face fell again.

"Oh, but whatever should I do with my conservatory...?" She asked herself with a thoughtful frown. "I simply can't leave it untended that long..."

Realizing she was referring to the iron-framed greenhouse attached to the back corner of her sprawling old Victorian farmhouse, I hesitated only a fraction of a second before making the fateful offer: "Well, if you were to write down simple instructions, I could look after your plants while you're away..."

"You could...?" She asked – and then, fair skin displaying her blush most fetchingly, modified the almost incredulous question into, "What I mean, Luke, is would you really be willing to?"

I assured her I would, pointing out that it was hardly an overwhelming burden, especially as I was by far her closest neighbor – which was how, two weeks later, I found myself designated caretaker of the rather eclectic collection of plants that filled the frankly amazing two-story glass-and-cast-iron dome attached to her kitchen.

On the second day after her departure – and only the fifth time being in her house, the first three being for the purpose of instruction – I was still rather amazed at the sprawling old red-brick structure as I stood in her kitchen, filling a battered old tin watering can from her equally old-fashion high-arched brass kitchen faucet. While it was a house built on farmland, to simply refer to it as a 'farmhouse' conjured an image far short of the reality of the three-and-a-half storey slate-roofed edifice. Not only was the house much larger and more ornate than one would have thought a farmhouse to be, it was in amazingly well-preserved condition, with only purely necessary upgrades having been carefully and artfully added in the intervening years. I was looking around admiring the built-in wooden cabinetry, complete with original brass hardware, when I lifted the watering can out of the sink and turned to head out the door leading to the conservatory...

...which probably explained why I hadn't lifted the can quite high enough. The bottom scrapped across the tiled counter – and, proving Murphy's Law, clipped the house key Maggie had given me.

It was a key by itself, without even a keyring – which meant that when it flew from the counter and skittered across the highly polished hardwood floors as if guided by the devil's hand, it had no trouble at all fitting through the slender opening at the bottom of the basement door, disappearing with a small metallic clatter. A half-second later, there came the ringing sound of the key striking a stone floor somewhere beyond.

Muttering curses under my breath, I approached the white-painted wooden door leading to the basement – and hesitated.

I wasn't to go down there – nor, in fact, anywhere else but the kitchen and the conservatory. As I mentioned earlier, Maggie and I weren't friends; it wasn't the least bit surprising I hadn't been granted unrestrained run of the house, but been limited only to that freedom of access necessary to carry out the favor I had volunteered for. The rest of the house, mainly by unspoken agreement, was off limits – but when it came to the basement, I had been specifically told not to go down there for anything less than flood or fire.

Unfortunately, that injunction had been provided without consideration of this particular turn of events. There was no way either of us could possibly have foreseen the key skittering under the small gap under the door – and Maggie had been equally vehement, if not even more so, about making sure that I locked up behind me, even if I simply intended to step out 'for a minute or two'.

So, after a rather uncharacteristic hesitation, I walked over to the key-rack beside the door leading out onto the covered wood porch. As mentioned, Maggie had pointed out which key was for the basement, just in case of the highly unlikely event of the furnace fire or burst pipe. It was a very old-fashioned key, original to when the house was built, of the type sometimes referred to as a 'skeleton key'. As long as the palm of my hand, the iron key felt ominously cold and hard as I plucked it from the rack and carried it over to unlock the basement door. Swinging it open, I peered uncertainly into the gloom the enveloped the steep, narrow staircase beyond.

Maggie hadn't opened the door when explaining to me the dire circumstances under which I might go down there, and a brief combination of peering and groping failed to turn up anything resembling a light switch. With a sigh, I carefully edged my way into the narrow stairwell, relatively broad shoulders brushing against first the painted wood, then cold stone walls that made up the stairwell descending into the dim cellar below.

What little light was to be had seeped in through small, high-set, iron-barred windows in the stone foundation supporting the house above; it was barely enough to turn stygian darkness into dim grey shapes humped against darker shadows. I once again fumbled around in the hopes of encountering a light switch; once again, my efforts went unrewarded. Given the sequence of sounds I had heard in the kitchen above, I could only assume that the house-key had slipped between the risers of the stairs and landed somewhere behind the open staircase itself – in what was, naturally, the darkest point in the room.

Once more I hesitated, briefly considering the idea of going to grab a flashlight – but if Maggie had one, she hadn't told me where she kept it, and I dare not trot home to grab my own when I was unable to lock the door behind me; that was specifically the scenario she'd warned against. So, moving slowly and cautiously, I began to edge my way around poorly-seen piles and stacks of undistinguishable items in the gloom, trying to make my way around behind the staircase to search for the missing key.

Unfortunately, I wasn't nearly cautious enough; I was just swinging sidewise, half-bent in order to let my head clear what I thought to be hooks of a tall old coatrack, when my leading left foot came down on a small, rounded object that promptly turned underfoot. My ankle twisted sharply, and I started to lose my balance – and my instinctive move to stand upright caused one of those rounded-end brass coat-hooks to first drag painfully down the back of my neck, then catch in the collar of the fried old cotton work shirt I was wearing.

I jerked hard against that blunt brass grip – and the threads holding the buttons on my old shirt unexpectedly gave way, and I suddenly pitched forward, finding myself suddenly and painfully supported by back-thrust arms trapped within the sleeves of my now-gaping shirt. I hung that way for but a hard-beat before one sleeve ripped, causing me to twist and stumble in a way that promptly released my other arm from the tattered remnants of the shirt, freeing me to fall headlong into the old rough oak shelving facing me under the staircase.

My bare chest slammed into a couple of relatively soft, rounded items on the shelf; the hard edge of the shelf caught me in the hollow just below my ribcage, painfully forcing the breath from me in a hard whoosh. I was left pressed hard up against the shelving, cold stone backing the unit chilling the skin of my bare chest as I gasped desperately for breath.

As I finally swallowed enough oxygen to help overcome my spinning mind and shock-addled senses, the reality – or, perhaps, the potential unreality – of the sensations I was experiencing finally dawned on me. After all, pressed up against the shelf as I was, I certainly shouldn't have been able to feel the stone wall against my skin...

...nor, for that matter, the rough wooden texture of the shelf supporting my chest.

With a startled oat, I pulled myself back off of the shelves – or, at least, that was my intention. It barely moved me, and what little movement it did achieve was accompanied by a decidedly uncomfortable scraping of sensitive flesh against the boards of the shelves.

Mind spinning, I reached out and slid my hands under the softly firm masses, feeling the touch of my hands against living flesh where there should have been none. As I carefully moved myself back from the shelves, cradling the twin masses of flesh, there was a growing certainty in my mind, no matter the impossibility of it all. Though much larger than anything I had ever cradled before, the sensation was familiar enough to spark a horrifying recollection.

Well, I should say that the sensations coming through my hands was familiar – what I was experiencing in terms of sensation from my chest was new and entirely disturbing; not the least because there was a certain amount of pleasure associated with the feel of my hands cradling those twin, globular masses of softly firm, warm flesh. Moving very carefully, I made my way back around to the foot of the staircase. As I slowly ascended the steep stairs, the growing light gradually revealed enough evidence to verify my horrified assumption.

I was very carefully cradling a massive pair of firmly rounded tits.

As shocking as that was, what made it doubly so was the fact that massive, ridiculously firm boobs I was now lugging around were a pale, creamy shade of skin tone – which provided all the greater contrast for the extremely large, thick, almost shockingly pink nipples that tipped the jiggling masses of tit-flesh.

Stunned, I hurried as best I could to the small two-piece bathroom just down the hall from the kitchen – only to have to retrace my steps in order to grab a chair from the kitchen, as the mirror above the sink was designed to reflect a face, not a chest.

The short return trip to the bathroom was an interesting experience – not only did I have to carry the chair awkwardly to one side, given that my unwanted new endowments were in the way, but those oversized breasts jiggled and bounced; not only on my chest, as I might have expected, but within the tautly giving skin enclosing the softer, more malleable mass of fat, glands and nerves within. They wobbled and swayed as I arranged the chair and climbed up atop it; they seemed to take forever to settle when I stopped. Even then, they weren't precisely still; they trembled and jiggled slightly with every breath I took. The best I could possibly explain it would be to liken it to a pair of balloons tautly filled with jello.

The sight that greeted me in the little mirror was... bizarre and disconcerting, in a variety of ways.

For one thing, even on as broad a chest as mine, the breasts were huge; on a more normally scaled feminine chest, they would have been overwhelmingly massive. I could not mentally estimate the cup-size required to contain such massive globes; they were each easily as big as a prize-winning cantaloupe.

I was sporting a pair of chest-melons!

Not only that, but the creamy pink-white shade of almost eerily smooth skin was a far cry from the hairy, deeply tanned masculine flesh surrounding my new rack. Tipping each of my new tits was a pink nipple about the size of a quarter or so, and I reached in amazement to touch the brightly-shaded protuberances...

...and gasped in shock at the sharp burst of pleasure that shot from my new nipples, even as they rapidly swelled outward, until it looked as if I had a pair of pink pop-bottle caps glued to milky-pink water balloons.

But it wasn't pop-bottle caps on balloons; it was ridiculously sensitive nipples tipping oversized porn-star tits thrust entirely too proudly from my chest.

In fact – far, far too proudly; with growing horror, I realized I was standing with my back slightly arched, actually emphasizing my magnificent new boobs!

What... the... hell...?!

Confused, mind whirling at the various forms of impossibility occurring, I hopped down from the chair. Enjoying the pleasurable sensations the bouncing engendered, I carried the chair to one side for the short time it took my wonderful titties to stop jiggling, I then shifted the chair to an entirely more comfortable position, sighing softly in pleasure as I pulled the cool, smooth wood of the chair back hard against my delightfully sensitive nipples. It made it a bit awkward to walk, of course, especially since my cock was rock- hard in my jeans, but...

With a screech, I tossed the chair aside and, panting, stood in the middle of the kitchen, arms spread wide to ensure there was no chance at all I would start cupping, fondling, or otherwise quite naturally enjoying the magnificent mammaries that so clearly deserved – demanded – the attention of my strong, masculine...

Snapping straight, I turned and, with a swift and purposeful motion, walked directly to the nearest wall and whacked my head firmly against it.

Then, holding tight to the throbbing pain in my forehead that helped keep me from slipping back into decidedly unwanted train of thought, I strode quickly over to the wall-mounted telephone and dialed the number Maggie had left me in case of emergency.

As far as I was concerned, this situation most definitely qualified. It was a strange phone call.

At first, as soon as she realized who was calling, Maggie nearly panicked, believing something disastrous had happened. My own near-panic did not help matters – and, once she had realized what I was saying, her fear quickly turned to anger. Once I had fully explained the situation, however, her anger faded in the face of growing comprehension – to be replaced with growing amusement as she finally grasped what I was telling her.

I, on the other hand, grew steadily more confused, hurt, and angry by her response and lack of shock – until she finally got around to explaining some things.

You see, it turns out that Maggie was a bona fide witch. The massive tits I was now saddled with wasn't a 'curse'; no, she had crafted them for the purpose of entering a wet t-shirt contest; knowing how nervous and uncomfortable she would be in doing so, she had specifically laid a charm upon them to make her proud of them – and, not coincidentally, to also make them physically enjoyable for however long she would be carrying them around. This went far beyond the 'mere' additional pleasure sensitivity of them; as she quickly led me to understand that make back would probably been complaining quite loudly by this point, had she not charmed them to avoid it.

Still and all, I was hardly deliriously happy about all the 'added benefits' she'd ensorcelled the breasts with – much less by the fact that she wouldn't be able to remove them until she returned; which, despite by pleading notwithstanding, wouldn't be for another week.

In the meantime, I was stuck with a remarkably huge, firm, amazingly pleasure-sensitive pair of knockers... which was problematical, to say the least.

When I asked her what I should do in the meantime, I found her suggestion less than satisfactory, and hung up the phone with rather more force than strictly necessary, feeling entirely disgruntled.

Carefully returning to the basement, I found the pull-string for the hanging light fixture exactly where she said it would be; under the light from the string of bare-bulb fixtures, I had no problem finding the key, right next to the accursed shelving unit.

Eyeballing the various items the shelves held, I shuddered at the thought of the temporary 'solution' Maggie had been unable to stifle giggles while proposing, then headed back toward the stairs, turning off the light and returning to the kitchen to figure out how to get home without attracting undue attention.

Since my shirt was in tatters, my makeshift solution was to wrap the white tablecloth from the kitchen table around my chest, sarong-style. Arm crossed tight over my massive new bosom to keep the makeshift garment from falling off, I let myself out of the house, carefully locking the door behind me. Tucking the precious key into the pocket of my jeans with some difficulty due to the tablecloth 'dress', I carefully edged my way around the building, eyes darting hither and yon in a desperate hope that I was unobserved. Then, at what seemed the most opportune moment, I took a deep breath, and bolted for the relative sanctuary of my own house.

Under the tight constriction of my arm, my huge new boobs bobbed and swayed invitingly as I ran awkwardly across the lawn. By the time I reached the road, my run was even more awkward, due to the raging erection that came as a natural result of my arm's constant stimulation of my accursedly delicious nipples, and I slowed to a near saunter up my own driveway, eyes half closed in erotic pleasure, lips parted as I slid my other hand through the gap in the tablecloth so to unzip and unbutton my jeans, allowing my throbbing cock to bounce free in time with my wondrous tits as I slowly swayed up my front porch.

Uncaring of who might see, I begrudged not a minute of the lengthy time it took to unlock my door, for who could begrudge anything that came from spending time to properly enjoy my glorious globes of sexual tit-flesh? I barely had the door open before letting the ridiculous necessity of a covering fall from my magnificently massive mounds, allowing my eager hands to enjoy my deliciously delightful tits in all their bounteously bare glory. My eager fingers cupped and caressed my beautiful boobs, teased and pinched my wonderful nipples, enjoying every second of the well-deserved attention until, inevitably, by loving enjoyment was cut short when, with enough force to drive me to my knees, I explosively orgasmed, cock spewing a gushing geyser of cum...

It wasn't until several shuddering seconds later, as the hideously intense orgasmic glow faded, that I realized I was writhing in a puddle of cum on the floor of my own front hallway, balls almost agonizingly drained by the explosive force of my orgasm.

Swearing under my breath, I pushed myself away from the disgusting mess on the floor, hopping and wobbling to shuck free of my cum-spattered pants and shoes as I made my way toward the bathroom. Still muttering to myself, I quickly started the water running in the tub, swiping ineffectually at my cum-smeared body with cum-smeared hand; when the water was warm enough, I stepped slowly and sensuously into the tub, letting the warm water swirl around my feet as I lovingly worked the still-worm and utterly wonderful cum into the smooth, creamy flesh of my spectacular spheres. Only when the slippery-sticky man-juice cooled and became less enjoyable to massage into my wonderful whoppers did I reluctantly switch the water over to the showerhead, trading the sticky treat of sperm for the steady beat of warm water spraying over my stripperific tits.

Thankfully, it took much, much longer for my recently emptied cock to respond to the strong, manly hands working my man-pleasing melons; but of course, respond it eventually must, for what man could resist being aroused by a change to fondle, tease and suck on such wonderful, cum-smeared spheres? Eager lips and warm spray finally removed the lace trace of justifiably deserved sperm from my cum-catchers, and I angled the showerhead to help stimulate my magnificent mounds of milky tit-flesh as I leaned against the back wall, fondling and squeezing and tweaking and tugging and...

I screamed in ecstasy as I orgasmed, despite the rather feeble effort of my cock's brief spurting of cum...

...and then screamed again, in mingled pain and pleasure, as the second orgasm caused by my overstimulated breasts caused my softening cock to twitch and dribble a thin liquid...

...and then screamed in agony, collapsing in the tub, as I orgasmed again, with my cock trying – and utterly, agonizingly failing – to produce anything at all.

I lay in the bottom of the tub, gasping, trying to curl around balls that felt as if they were about to implode, my freakish, hateful tits jammed painfully between arm, belly and cold porcelain as I whined in the never-before- felt pain of over-strained testicles. Whimpering, I rocked in place in the tub, warm water spattering down on my as I tried to cope with the pain, hands cupping my throbbing balls with the pain-tautened muscles of my arms squishing my disgustingly delightful tits so deliciously together...

It took a truly tremendous effort of will, but the instinct of self-preservation allowed me to reach up and twist the tap all the way over to 'cold'.

Having stayed under the icy spray long enough to ensure at least the temporary death of any sexual desire, I shivered violently as I clambered awkwardly out of the tub. Those damned, ensorcelled tits numb from the cold soaking, I was able to quickly and carefully dry them off without jumpstarting any new sexual drive my body could ill-afford; I then grabbed the bottle of mouthwash from the sink and spent the next few minutes gargling vigorously.

Then, the taste of mown cum a lingering memory rather than a reality, and due equally to justified caution as much as for the purpose of balance, I kept my arms carefully away from my body as I left the bathroom and slowly made my way to my bedroom with as little bounce or jiggle as physically possible.

I was horrified and disgusted both by what I had done and with the imposed emotions and sensations that had driven it. When it came to my new boobs, the thought of them being covered in cum, and the 'woman' who possessed them sensuously licking them clean seemed – in the heat of the moment – completely natural and even desirable – but now, at least somewhat more clear-headed, I had to hold back my bile at the thought of what I'd so willingly done in the shower. It was a side-effect that Maggie could not have foreseen or warned me about, for she'd never imagined these 'man-pleasing melons' she designed being mounted on a male body. The desire – almost urge – to treat them sexually would have been external to the men she would have been trying to entice with them – not an internal drive she would be forced to fight.

One I had fought – and so far, lost.

So, my motions were as delicate as man holding a live snake when I very carefully tied one of my tank tops into place, knotting both straps and hem in such a way as to support and confine my new boobs without putting undue pressure or friction on the. Then I pulled on a pair of shorts and – again, moving cautiously and with an exaggerated sense of my own body's motion – went to mop up the front hall.

Filling a bucket with warm water and some lemon-scented cleaning solution, I grabbed the old string mop from its resting place between the fridge and wall, and went out to where the disgusting mess was drying in the hall. Soaking the mop in the bucket for a minute to allow the water to soak into the stiff old fibers, I then began carefully cleaning up the sticky, disgusting mess. Starting at the end of the hall closest to the kitchen, I began methodically cleaning, moving from one wall to the other to ensure I got every drop and splatter; moving the mop itself side to side on the wider wall-to-wall path, taking a step forward as each 'lane' was cleaned. I continued the methodical pattern, moving slowly forward, side-to-side; moving the mop, moving my hips; feeling the gently sway of my full fuck-pillows as I hummed softly to myself, lost in the pleasurable daze of letting my body sway sensuously, the cock-like shaft of the mop-handle lovingly pressed between my jumbo, jiggling jugs...

Looking at the hands wrapped around the mop-cock-shaft, I dreamily wished they were much more feminine, sexier, so to better enhance the image I presented as I simulated stroking a cock, since I was resisting the urge to use such manly hands to play with my magnificent tits – it was hard, but I dimly recognized the truth that my awesome airbags deserved a delay, a long build-up before finally letting such strong, capable, pleasure-inducing hands finally bring me to orgasmic pleasure through my fuckable funbags. Instead, I focused on what I should have been focused on all along – not my own pleasure, but that of the (hypothetical) man who would be drooling over my teasing tatas.

After all, doing so filled me with such dreamy joy, driving home what these massive milkers were made for; to tease and please men. That made the little cock-tease I was acting out totally fulfilling in its own right, much less the absolute certainty I would eventually be orgasming over the masterful and manly manipulation of my mammary magnificence.

Filled with that dreamy bliss, I continued wiggling and jiggling, hips describing sexy circles to enhance the sway of my tits as I continued faux-fucking my canyonesque cleavage with the mop-cock, right hand sensuously playing with the rounded end, mouth and lips teasingly miming an air-blowjob right above it as I dreamily fantasized a real cock spewing thick streams of cum to splatter up, then back down onto the upper curve of my fantastic fuckbags.

Finally, my sexy little swirling path had completely cleaned the floor, and I sighed with a soft smile as I realized there was no need to continue to drag this out; with my cock hard and throbbing, I slowly and sexily stripped, then sensuously lowered myself to the floor, hands finally free to grant my pleasure pillows the attention they deserved. Tucking my regrettably flat ass hard against the baseboard on one wall, I curled my body painfully tight, loving how this pressed my breasts high on my chest. I continued squeezing and caressing my wonderful melons, only lightly and teasingly grazing my spectacularly sensitive nipples in order to draw it out as long as such fantastic fuckbags deserved. When it got so close that there was no choice, I regretfully pulled one hand away from my wondermelons in order to grip my painfully engorged cock.

Bent practically double, I jerked it rapidly while keeping it carefully pointed – and in mere second, screamed in delicious pain and pleasure as a rather disappointing stream of semen splattered sexily over my spectacular spheres – and the sight of the manjuice on my magnificent mammary masses was enough to send me into awesomely agonizing paroxysm of ecstatic delight, hands eagerly working the regrettably small load of semen into my softly firm tit-flesh, crying and moaning and gasping and grunted and panting...

Gasping, feeling half-drugged, I stared around, trying to figure out what had happened – I seemed to have passed out for a while, probably in a combination of extreme ecstasy and the throbbing agony from my crotch. Confused, I seemed to have an extraordinarily hard time figuring out why I was lying on the floor, curled up on my side and softly sobbing through a dreamy grin... until I caught sight of my deliciously cum-covered cockpillows, and I sighed in satisfied delight as I rolled on my back, closed my eyes, and gave into the joy of lightly caressing my delightfully sticky tits.

All the while, the desperately painful attempt of that cock to rise to pay proper cum-gushing tribute to my mammary magnificence only drove my drug-like joy even deeper and higher. Even painfully spent, it was trying to rise again, proving how completely irresistible my man-pleasing melons were. Blissed out on the throbbing agony at my crotch and ebbing and flowing pleasure his hands were milking from my chest, I floated in ecstatic agony to the point of complete and utter satisfaction...

...and which point I screamed.

I had fulfilled the purpose that had been ensorcelled into my ridiculous new endowments; at least for the moment, there was no imposed delight and desire to cloud my mind – which only allowed me to experience the agony from my crotch in clear-minded entirety.

Whimpering, I dragged myself slowly to the bathroom, hellish hooters leaving a snail-trail of seminal slime behind me. From the floor, I reached up and turned the water on, ice cold, then curled around myself and sobbed softly for a few minutes before finally rolling my throbbing body over the edge of the tub and into the welcome icy embrace of the water within. There I scrubbed at the cum splattering my body while letting the tub fill; once full nearly to overflowing, I simply lay back with just my nose breaking the surface of the icy water until even the shivering had passed, my body leaden and as insensate as a block of ice.

It was nearly as inanimate as ice, as well – it was difficult to get my benumbed limbs to move enough to drag me out of the tub, but I finally managed. Leaving the tub full behind me, I crawled on hands and knees to the bedroom, aware of my tits bouncing against the floor only by sight, since I felt nothing. It was an even greater effort for me to heave my numb body up onto the surface of the rumpled bed, but I finally managed it.

For some time, I simply lay there, trying to think. My mind was even more battered and badly used than my balls, but I grimly fought the urge to simply drift into the welcome arms of Morpheus, concentrating on the highly unpalatable option Maggie had offered. She'd done so without knowing how horribly the spell upon the stripperesque tits would heterodyne with a masculine body; in light of that, the suggested solution I had so summarily refused was looking steadily more necessary.

She'd offered it as an alternative to the freakish image of a man with huge, pale tits – but, until now, being a pale woman with huge tits hadn't seemed any improvement.

Especially since the objects still lining that never-to-be-sufficiently-damned shelf were, like these tits, specifically ensorcelled for certain purposes; ones that even a 'real' woman wouldn't necessarily be comfortable with unless magically influenced to be.

That shelf was Maggie's collection of items for the occasional 'walk on the wild side'; and the spells upon them were equally as 'wild'.

Yet, as she had explained, that would actually help – for each additional 'point of focus' would not be added on top of my existing breast obsession, but detract from it; for each additional item used, my total amount of attention would be divided amongst them.

As much as I hated to admit it, I simply didn't see any alternative; not only would that dispersal of obsession she'd told me about happen, but the less masculine aspects I possessed, the less there would be to trigger those new feminine compulsions to 'kick in' in the presence of masculinity, as they were designed to do.

I had little choice but to admit to myself that I could not control the magically imposed obsession that came with my oversized new bust; I had tried, oh, how I had tried! Yet, whenever the obsession kicked in, it took my determination and folded it into its own purpose – as when it took my strongest attempt at resistance and easily converted it into a 'completely rational' decision to draw things out teasingly, rather than simply rush to quick self-gratification.

Just thinking about it was enough to make me shudder; but, then again, the thought of the 'solution' made me shudder as well. No matter how you looked at it, I was destined to spend the next week in one form of hell or another...

...and, lucky me, I got to choose which form of hell it would be.

Heaving a deep and weary sigh, I levered my slowly warming body from the tempting comfort of the bed, and began painstakingly preparing myself for the task ahead - not the task of choosing my fate, (which my mind shied away from contemplating in detail), but the much more immediate task of making it across the road to Maggie's house.

For that, I had come up with a plan... and it began with an ACE Brand compression bandage.

First, I whapped it once around my chest, just below – and being careful not to touch – my ridiculous rack; I twist-tied the bandage in the shadow of those hutting jugs, and then very, very carefully pulled bandage upwards and over my unwanted endowments and onward to my shoulders, which I looped the ends of the bandage over before passing the, from the back, under my armpits. Pausing here, I let out as much of my breath as was physically possible – and then hauled as hard as I could on both ends of the bandage, drawing it taut. Still exhaling, I wrapped the bandage around my chest just above my globular breasts, continuing to pull as tightly as I could as I passed the ends around to the middle of my back and, with some painful contortion, tied it all off.

Then, with vision graying out, finally took a deep breath – and felt the welcome constriction of the elasticized bandage as it took up the slack, supporting my massive mounds.

I then tug a pair of tight briefs from my drawers, followed by the tightest-fitting jeans I owned. My cock I very awkwardly positioned in the 'twelve o'clock' position, head pointing toward my navel. The simple white t-shirt I pulled on next strained mightily to contain my disgusting bust, and in doing so pulled the front hem of my shirt up enough to reveal the bulge of my constricted cock.

So far, so good.

Next, I grabbed a couple of empty pillow cases from the hall closet. I placed one (very carefully) over each of my breasts, open end upward, and then (even more carefully) used a couple of safety pins on the inside layer of each to fix them in place on my shirt. A rolled up shirt stuffed into the top of each finished this part of the job.

Retrieving Maggie's key from my discarded, cum-spattered pair of jeans, I then simply grabbed a thick, folded comforter, tucked it with one arm to cover my crotch and belly, slipped my feet into a battered pair of deck shoes, and headed out the door.

To anybody looking at me, I simply seemed to be carrying a heavy bedspread with a couple of pillows on top of it. It also completely hid my growing erection as the jiggle and bounce of my bust began once more short-circuiting my own desires and began to turn me on. It wasn't a big deal; rather than try futilely to resist the delightful frisson of pleasure I was giving myself, jiggling and swaying my way across the street, I had planned for it in advance.

By the time I reached the back corner of Maggie's house, I was having to actively resist the urge to walk with a hips-swinging, wiggling sway - but, since I was enjoying knowing I was carting a world-class pair of tits around with no-one else the wiser, I merely let my lips curl into a deliciously naughty grin as I unlocked the door to the kitchen and let myself in.

Of course, the instant the door was shut behind me, I was tearing my clothing off, eagerly anticipating the agony soon to envelope my already aching balls.

It took a real effort this time, the cock not wanting to respond to my superlatively sexual spheres; by no cock could withstand my magnificent mounds of man-pleasing tit-flesh, and although I - regretfully – had to use one hand to stroke, tug, and fondle the cock rather than my awesome endowments, after what seemed an eternity the inevitable eventually grew near.

I quickly positioned myself under the kitchen table, using the leverage of the heavy wood furnishing above me to 'walk' myself into an painfully contorted position, practically folded in half. Back and legs joined the cock and balls in delicious agony, reinforcing the complete dominance of my jizz-draining jugs of delight, and I frantically worked the cock with one hand while cupping my other arm around my fantastic fuckbags, arching my back to shove them as close to the reluctantly ready cock.

With a scream of orgasmic agony, I came – the raw, red cock dribbling thin spurts of watery cum down onto my wonderful cumbags...

...and, whimpering, I rolled to lay on the floor in a fetal position, trying to master the pain radiating from my viciously abused and overused genitals.

Finally, the sharp pains faded to a now-familiar constant, throbbing ache, and I dragged myself out from under the table. Crawling across the floor, I arrived at the cabinet in which the sink was mounted, using it to pull myself up. Leaning against the counter, grimacing, I gave myself a quick wipe-down while promising to clean the mess up properly later. After all, I needed to make some very important decisions, and could count on only a relatively short window of level-headedness.

Despite feeling extremely pervy walking around Maggie's house naked, I pushed the feeling aside as I made my way gingerly down into the basement. With each step, the throbbing ache of my balls helped counteract the delightful bounce of my boobs. I winced as my bare feet hit the cold, rough stone floor, but grimaced and pushed on, until I was once more standing under the stairs, looking at the eclectic collection of ensorcelled items that filled the shelves.

Each item was carefully labelled by way of a four-by-six-inch index card, upon which Maggie's neat handwriting described the item's effects. My goal was to pick through the selection, trying to find the least I could do in both quantity and quality, and yet still overcome this agonizing obsession. Quickly, I began to scan the items and cards, knowing exactly where I had to start – with something that would change my hands.

After all, my strong, masculine hands were my weakest point – because titantic tits as terrific as mine obviously deserved strong, male hands cupping them and squeezing them... and, more importantly, what man could resist getting his hands on such fantastic funbags?

Certainly not these ones, I thought with a lazy grin, enjoying the firm, masculine grip of those strong hands kneading my knockers. Swivelling slightly, I rested my back against the back of the stairs, eyes half-closed as I moaned softly, tugging and squeezing my awesomely oversized nipples, full and erect under those delightful digits. I began working my jizz-worthy jugs in time to the delightful throb from my crotch, massaging and squeezing my fuckable funbags...

...but, impossibly, the cock failed to rise to the occasion. Red and raw and pathetic, it hung between my thighs limp and useless, showing no signs of getting hard, much less anointing my wondrous whoppers in the coating of cum they so richly – so obviously! – deserved.

It couldn't be happening, but it was; a man's cock was not getting hard over my magnificent milk-jugs, even though he was free to fondle and play with them, causing delicious tremors of pleasure and pain to rack my body.

Desperately, I cast around for a way to up my game – and forced one strong, male hand away from the enticing enormity of my endowments long enough to grab a cute pink dildo from the nearby shelf. Wrapping my hand around the base of the pink plastic phallus, I began teasingly sliding it in my canyonesque cleavage, already lubricated by some of the cum from my last – and entirely successful – enticement.

Still the cock barely stirred, despite the awesome sight of the realistically-molded cockhead popping in and out of my awesome cleavage; even letting thick ropes of drool splatter down over the thrusting cock-substitute did little to aid in the erection.

This was intolerable.

Almost desperately, I took the cum-and-spit slathered dildo, and began running and rubbing it against the cock. The feel of the cool, slick plastic finally began to have an effect, and I closed my eyes once more, concentrating on the wonderful sensations the strong hand mauling my delectable dick-pillows was providing...

...but found myself also beginning to pay more attention to the sensations coming from my crotch.

After all, why not? Sure, my titanic tits were terrific, but the steadily growing waves of pleasure that were coming to replace the throbbing ache from my nethers was pretty damned good, too.

In fact, the more I worked the dildo at my crotch, I realized it was more than just 'good' – indeed, when I was finally able to slip the dildo fully inside myself, it was easily as fantastic as playing with my glorious gazongas was; the two sensations together heterodyned into something even more wonderful. It wasn't the least bit surprising that my knees turned to water, spilling me onto the cold stone floor to eagerly pound the dildo into the amazingly elastic confines of my deliciously sensitive cunt while the other hand rubbed and squeezed my beautiful, bountiful breasts.

From that point, it didn't take me long to fuck myself to writhing, screaming ecstasy; multiple orgasms slamming my body as they seemed to rebound from crotch to chest and back again, as if nipples and clits were connected.

Finally, panting at the intensity of my pleasure, I let the delightful dildo slip from the silken confines of my hot, tight pussy, awash in the golden afterglow of orgasm...

...and then my eyes popped open, and I screamed in horrified realization of what I'd just done.

TO BE CONTINUED...

SUMMARY: Agreeing to house sit for an odd neighbor, one guy has a series of misfortunes that leave him with a huge set of boobs, and the discovery that his neighbor is a witch.

Part Two

My scream tapered away into a shuddering series of gasps as my mind whirled, trying to grapple with the enormity of what had just happened.

Oh, I had been very reluctantly planning to eventually take the 'final step', knowing that it was a regrettable necessity – but I'd been planning to work my self up to it, carefully ensuring I accepted the 'least feminine' options available that would still fulfil the necessity of overcoming my helpless compulsions.

Instead, those very compulsions, when faced with strict physical limitations, had pushed me into... this. I was a woman.

In the technical sense, I was – after all, what else would you call a person with breasts and a pussy? I was, however, a decidedly ugly woman – for, aside from my pale, perfect breasts and hot, wet new slit with its cute, sensitive little nub, so perfectly ripe for lightly stroking with...

Taking a deep breath, I forced my mind away from the tantalizing thoughts of my feminine attributes, instead focusing on the masculine ones that contrasted so poorly.

I was naturally tall and fairly hirsute, with a hard-tone muscular body and deep golden-bronze from my outdoor pursuits of hiking and swimming, canoeing and camping. I had a very close-cropped beard that was perhaps two shades darker than my sun-bleached sandy-blond hair, and my hands and feet were slightly large for my frame, with ankles and wrists that were likewise sturdier than my lanky frame might suggest. Overall, it presented a broad-shouldered, rangy picture of rugged masculinity, so fit and virile, so manly as the strong hands caressed the soft, supple flesh of my creamy breasts; as long, strong fingers stroked the moist, warm slit of my springy slit, breath coming in panting gasps for a completely different reason as I enjoyed the masculine attention my lush bust and moist womanhood so richly deserved.

It felt so good; the magic of my magnificent cunt allowing my probing finger - or any roughly phallic object – to fill me so delightfully as my elastic cunt gripped it tightly. My other hand went, almost unbidden, to grant my spectacular spheres the attention they so rightfully demanded, moaning in delicious delight and being able to pleasure myself as my body – or parts thereof – were literally made to be; none of this nonsense of being physically unable to achieve the orgasmic end I wanted, needed, and deserved.

No, I thought with warm delight as I shivered my way toward a rapidly building orgasm – the fantastic femininity the contrasted so delightfully with the magnificent masculinity designed to pleasure it meant that the current configuration of my body meant I could literally spend hours bringing myself to orgasmic bliss over and over and over and over...

...and then I stopped contemplating orgasms in order to fully enjoy the real McCoy, writhing on the cold, rough stone of the floor as I screamed my ecstasy into the air. With my hypersensitive new clit, remarkably flexible and lubricated vaginal walls, and intensely pleasure-sensitive fun-bags, I bucked my hips and arched my back as I rode my way through the multiple orgasms that would be the new norm, rather than the exception.

Finally, the crackling string of orgasmic firecrackers faded away into the warm, post-orgasmic glow that gently – yet firmly – returned me to reality...

...and, gasping, I lay on the floor, trying to cope with what was happening to me without actually thinking about it. Instead, forcing myself to let my mind wander, I simply obeyed and imperative I knew was in my mind, moving in an almost dreamy daze as I got to my feet and approached the shelves.

I couldn't trust my own mind, not at the moment – 'natural' thoughts and imposed compulsions, each were equally as 'normal-feeling to me when they occurred; I couldn't tell the difference until afterwards, so I dare not trust any of them at the time they occurred. As they were designed, for Maggie voluntarily and willingly apply them in order to overcome some sort of discomfort in the temporary pursuit of a harmless bit of wild fun, these compulsions would be an easily controllable blessing, triggered by an external proximity to masculinity – to me, they were an unavoidable curse that were constantly triggered by my own masculinity.

It was time, then, to get rid of those triggers... and, for the first time, my natural distaste for what I was about to do to myself was balanced, if not overcome, but my frantic need to achieve some sort of relief from the overwhelming compulsions so powerfully controlling me. I was so desperate as to be nearly eager as I surveyed the remaining selection on the shelf.

I had finally accepted, emotionally, what my intellect had already decided, and I was shivering with a delicious awareness of the conflicting wave of emotions that were beginning to thunder through me...

* * * * *

Having paid the cab-driver for the trip into the modest heart of our little town, I popped open the door to the cab and demurely slid out of the taxi. As the cab pulled away from the curb, I squared my shoulders and, almost shyly, set off down the main drag.

The three-inch kitten heels of Maggie's powder-blue T-strap pumps clicked on the sidewalk; almost pathetically easy to walk in compared to the incredible grace with which I had been granted coping with the eight-inch spike heels of the platform pumps Maggie had so thoughtfully blessed for the purpose of being able to dance amazingly and erotically. Given the effect of even these modest heels on the innately luscious legs granted by the white stockings I wore, it would have been something close to overkill to wear such high heels, no matter how delicious it might have been to do so – especially since it would have interfered with the cutely pert motion of my perfect, heart-shaped ass.

Of course, the thong underwear I wore had not only given me that deliciously rounded pair of buttocks, but the ability to practically mesmerize men when walking with a sultry strut – but then I used only a fraction of that mind-warping motion so that I could also showcase some of the incredible, gliding grace Maggie had magically imbued the white garter-belt with. The comprise between the three elements also gave a demurely attractive sway to the trimly feminine hips that so nicely filled the fitted turquoise knee-length skirt I had chosen from Maggie's closet.

Those garter-belt-provided hips looked all the more deliciously rounded by contrast to the wonderfully waspish waist the black leather corset had created; but, of course, I no longer wore the delightfully tight corset, as a broad elasticized belt one shade darker than the skirt provided enough emphasis of my deliciously slender waist without providing too much of a distraction from my enchanting endowments.

Not that the blouse clung too tightly to my beautiful breasts, and I had only left the two top buttons undone in order to provide a demurely tantalizing hint of my deliciously deep cleavage; I wouldn't have wanted to deny men the chance to marvel at the pale, swan-like sweep of my long neck, enhanced as it was by the turquoise- set silver necklace; a necklace that matched the bracelet one each incredibly finely-formed wrist, with the sleeves of the blouse rolled up past the elbows to show how flawlessly smooth and delicately doll-like my arms were.

Reaching up, I adjusted the big, white polka-dotted blue bow so that it sat slightly further to the right on my carefully casual mane of wavy mahogany hair. I also carefully flipped a few locks of the silky tresses behind my ear, so that the turquoise-and-silver earrings dangling from the lobe of my perfect, shell-like ear could be seen which would also justifiably draw attention to the finely-drawn line of my smooth jawline, which in turn would lead the eye to my lushly full lips.

I had gone with an apricot shad of mid-gloss lipstick, so as not to ever-emphasize my perfect, pouty lips at the expense of my huge, dark eyes with their phenomenally long lashes. Those lashes could have turned my gaze into a smouldering challenge, but instead I kept my eyes demurely lowered, so as to return the favor to my lips and allow a modicum of attention to the loveliness that was my face as a whole.

It wasn't easy achieving an artful balance when every single aspect of your body was utterly, rivetingly perfect but I had managed the feat.

I was dimly aware I should feel guilty about raiding Maggie's wardrobe; but given the obvious fact that I needed appropriate clothing to tone down yet tantalize my new body, (lest I leave all men overwhelmed with desire and all women suicidal with envy), feeling guilty over such a self-evident necessity seemed as silly as... well, as the strange insanity that had made me hate and fear my transformation into this glorious, gorgeous goddess before it had actually happened.

Now, of course, I felt nothing but the purely justified delight in my utter perfection – and, of course, the concurrent responsibility to balance all the mind-bending awesomeness of my various attributes.

With great desirability came great responsibility.

So my every movement, no matter how 'naturally' delicate and demure they would appear to the uninformed masses, was in fact carefully calculated and perfectly performed; a constant balance of revealing a tantalizing hint of my Goddesshood, while reserving the majority of my overwhelming perfection behind a mask of mere mortality.

Likewise, I couldn't possibly justify hiding out at either my house or Maggie's. It wasn't that I needed to go out in public to confirm my own perfection; that was a given. Nor would I have simply gone out for the sake of going out – but, having valid need to purchase some items, as well as a simple desire to eat something I had not cooked for myself, I could find no moral or intellectual justification for not sharing a very carefully rationed dose of my glorious perfection with those souls fortunate enough to live in my town.

So, it was with an inner pride and delight that I pertly-yet-demurely glided down the sidewalk, a demure-yet-attractive sway to my hips that allowed a carefully metered bounce to my blessed bosom, the cool breeze playing with the silken strands of hair that framed my perfect visage.

I passed a couple of somewhat older men emerging from Ray's Hardware, and was deliciously aware of their gaze as they eyed my trim-yet-shapely form, and I felt the expected sexual thrill as their eyes devoured my body. For an instant, I was almost overwhelmed by the urge to give in to them, letting them do so much more than simply look – but it would have been utterly unfair to both them and myself to do so, for not only would the smallest sexual experience with me doom them to an eternity of dissatisfaction with any lesser creature, but even the two of them working in perfect conjunction could pay appropriate tribute to only a few examples of my whole-self perfection.

Unlike, of course, my own ability to properly worship every inch of my ultimate femininity; but that I could – and would – do, slowly and lovingly, once I was safely home where the brain-melting sight of my perfect hands making perfect love to my perfect body wouldn't drive any fortunate observer completely insane with shame and self-disgust at their own inescapable inability to worship my perfection as it deserved.

Turning in to the parking lot of the local supermarket, I toned myself down a touch more, so not as to torture the poor, unfortunate women who made up the minor majority of the shoppers; it was hardly their fault they hadn't had access to the various blessings that provided my utter perfection, after all. Likewise, it would have been equally unfair for me to tempt away men from these lesser women simply because I was the ultimate Woman; although I did allow carefully scripted mild blushes and glances as the apparently unattached men who provided appropriately venerating and desiring looks at me, as it would also have been unfair not to give them that recognition.

Making the minimum necessary purchases, both so that I had a fairly light cloth bag to carry around with me, as well as to provide a later excuse for once more sharing my perfection with the public, I left the grocery store and made my way toward the Corner Café, eagerly anticipating a light lunch.

I might have been the only true Woman in the world, a perfected form of femininity that any lesser woman provided only a pale reflection of... but what I was to femininity, the Café approached similar status when it came to some of their food.

Heavenly!

Even the scent flowing from the humming exhaust fan of the café was enough to get my mouth watering, and the heady aromas when I entered the dimly lit building itself verified that I entered an eatery suitable to my divine status.

Although small, the Corner Café was only sparsely populated; rather than relying on local regulars who couldn't regularly afford the prices in the upscale little eatery, it was run by a couple of retirees, geared toward the more sophisticated palates – and fuller wallets – of the tourist trade that regularly streamed through the town's main street three seasons out of four. Now, with the tourism of a summer wonderland for campers winding down, yet the fall 'color tours' still a month off, I had no problem at all finding a place to sit at one of the little round tables.

Shortly, I was enjoying the absolutely magnificent homemade soup that had followed the perfectly fresh garden salad, when I slowly felt a growing awareness of observation.

Oh, I had been quite aware of the other patrons and staff giving me the 'once over', (quite often three or four times), but this was something on a completely different scale in terms of both quality and quantity. Carefully, making sure not to blister any unprepared minds with an unabashed interest, I used a combination of discreet glances and the reflections in the various mirrors positioned around the café to fully apprise myself of the unanticipated and thrilling situation.

I was being worshipped...

...and from the most unlikely source!

I knew Tim Frankle only vaguely from my previous life as a mere mortal – but I knew him well enough to know that the lean, dark-haired young man was almost painfully reserved. Not precisely 'shy', you understand, but so soft-spoken and innately polite that it was nearly impossible for a more natural-feeling interaction to occur between him and most people; he was actually a couple of years younger than I, but somehow always seemed like he was somewhat older than whomever he was talking to.

It wasn't as if he were in any way purposefully stand-offish; he was simply so painfully polite – you couldn't tell if he loved you or hated you, since his responses in either case would be nearly identical, calm and soft-spoken and inoffensive...

...except for now.

Now, he was unabashedly watching me, a look of idolizing awe on his face as he gazed upon me. It was as if he were somehow seeing through my every carefully crafted illusion of mundanity and instead seeing and recognizing my divinity.

No – it was more than ‘as if’ he was... for, as discreet and indirect my observation of him had been, he nevertheless somehow knew I was watching him; this wasn’t an assumption on my part, since I was carefully angling my gaze toward a mirror in order to observe him supposedly unawares when he met my gaze in that mirror, holding my reflected eyes with his own – while raising one eyebrow and making a small – ‘can I join you?’ gesture with his hand...

...not toward where I was actually sitting, apparently looking away from him, but directly toward the mirror which I was directing a supposedly unnoticeably sidelong gaze into!

Behind my ideal endowments, my heart began to beat faster, and I helplessly felt a moist warmth grow above and beyond that common to my perpetually perfectly prepared pussy. Impossibly, despite my perfect divinity, I actually hesitated in a momentary confused welter of disbelieving emotions – and then, finding my breath both shallower and more rapid than it should be under the perfect control I could wield, nodded minutely.

My senses seemed to heighten as I watched him slide from his own chair and, with appropriate deference, approach my table. I was aware of the small ripple of surprise amongst the other patrons as Tim came toward my table, apparently unbidden – having, of course, missed the all-so-subtle byplay in the mirror. Noticing that a couple of handsome young men seemed moving toward intervening in the ‘unwanted’ mid-meal interruption, I let my lips curl into a soft, shyly welcoming smile as I gracefully extended a hand toward the chair opposite mine, providing open invitation.

“Er, hello – I’m Tim.” He introduced himself in a soft, diffident voice. Once again letting a smile grace my luscious lips, I introduced myself, equally softly, with the name ‘Gloria’ – a fitting appellation for my glorious form, I had decided. Lifting a hand toward his own, I was amazed and delighted when he very lightly gripped my slender fingers, leaning forward as he seated himself in order to lightly brush his lips across the back of my hand.

“A pleasure,” he informed me with soft sincerity; a shiver of pleasure ran through me at knowing the softest touch of his flesh to mine was enough to pleasure him...

...and me, for as light a touch as his lips had been, it felt as if a line of delicious fire had been drawn across my perfect, pale skin.

Now completely uninterested in the soup, I sipped mechanically at my beverage as we chatted for the next twenty minutes or so. I wasn’t completely sure what was said; it was the tone and texture of his voice, the look in his eyes, that I was responding to, not anything as ephemeral as words. His every gesture, his every look, conveyed veneration, pleasure and desire in equal measure – and as that gaze also wandered over my own perfect form, awoke matching desires in my own feminine flesh.

It was amazing, it was impossible – doubly so that his appreciation and desire for my body was so subtle that anybody watching wouldn't be aware of it. I however, was almost painfully enflamed by his every tiny gesture of admiration and adulation. It didn't take long before I was paying our combined bill and leading Tim from the café, much longed-for meal half-finished and a half-forgotten memory behind me.

To those watching, Tim might have seemed a trifle bemused, reservedly following in the wake of a rather naïve, but clearly happy young woman – but from the inside perspective, I was desperately fighting the urge to throw my carefully metered measure of divine sensuality aside and unleash a blast of full-powered raw sexuality upon Tim; it would have poetically just, given the way he was affecting me. Somehow, though, I managed to keep myself turned down to the level of a breathless ingénue.

It wasn't easy, especially given the way that Tim's teasing formality 'forced' me to find ways to push matters in the direction we both wanted – hell, so obviously needed – them to go. Part of me hated the pretend obtuseness Tim affected; the larger part of me loved the way the teasing delay only drove my flames of desire ever higher, especially coupled as it was with the 'furtive' yet fiery glances Tim bestowed upon my astounding anatomy.

Leaving the café, we walked down to the end of the main street, turning right and crossing the old, iron-framed bridge, and started back in the opposite direction down the parallel back-street. Ostensibly, we were simply out to enjoy a stroll in the fair autumn weather, and there was a modicum of truth to that – the cool air moving over my heated skin and playing with my silken hair did cool me physically, without diminishing in the least my heated ardor. We had almost reached the end of the backstreet when Tim 'just happened' to mention that the cross-street we were approaching was the one he lived on.

Even then, I was force into the delightful humiliation of practically having to beg him to show me his place before he 'gave in' to the obvious purpose of our 'random stroll'. He led me to a neatly kept little stone and wood Craftsman, and I followed him inside with eager anticipation of a casually offered tour that would inevitable culminate in the bedroom – but the delightful bastard, surely battling enflamed desire of his own, somehow mastered it enough to instead offer me a drink!

Soon, I was perched somewhat rigidly on a small sofa, painfully aware of his lean body so close to mine, hands all-but-caressing the cool curvaceous bottle of cola, when I finally licked my lips and, feigning bashfulness in order to keep myself from simply ripping his clothes off, softly said; "You could touch me... if you'd like."

To mutter utter shock, Tim managed the amazing physical control required to somehow turn a dull red and began to stammer, rather than to immediately lay hands on my divine flesh.

"I want you to touch me..." I whispered huskily, leaning closer to him to give him easier access, even as I spread my legs slightly apart in my fitted skirt – and for a second time, he somehow managed to resist my charms!

Incredible! Impossible!

I leaned even closer, nuzzling his jaw-line with my lush lips... and taking his hand in mine and guiding it to the silken, soft flesh of the creamy thigh beneath the silk stocking. I curled my hand over his, and gently began using his hand to stroke my own perfect flesh, feeling the heat within me explode into a liquid fire deep in my belly as I surrendered myself totally to the wonderful sexual sensations that thundered through me at his enforced touch.

"I want you, Tim..." I half-moaned, before wrapping my other hand around the back of his head, dragging his face toward mine so that I could kiss him hungrily, burning with needs that only he could fulfill.

My lips, so softly full, pressed hard against his, my tongue delving deeply and desperately into the moist warmth of his mouth. I could feel the pressure of my own body pressed against his, and it filled my senses as if the pints of my body in contact with his was the entirety of myself – and so I needed more to feel whole.

With his hand now working at my thigh, I released it to slowly make its way slowly closer to the wet, willing womanhood nestled under the skirt, and used the freed hand to grab his other hand and bring it to the perfect swelling of my breast. I lay it against the crisp fabric covering my wonderful breast, but it wasn't nearly enough, especially given the way he somehow managed to restrain him to an awkwardly light grip – I released his hand long enough to curl my fingers around the edge of the opened neckline, ignoring the way my long nails lightly scored my own flesh as I hauled desperately on the fabric until threads unravelled and buttons popped, finally freeing the spherical majesty of my breasts to his unfettered sight and access. With my own hand, I began to almost roughly knead and squeeze my breasts, providing him an example to follow.

I knew I was losing control to my desires, I knew it was a bad idea to let myself go so completely; I didn't care.

Gasping, eager with need, I dropped my hand from the tantalizing touch of my own ta-tas, letting Tim continue to work my other tit as I dove eagerly toward his crotch, already imaging his cock filling my infinitely adjustable womanhood. Though my motions were innately, magically graceful, there was no finesse as I practically tore open his pants and thrust my hand down the front of his tight white briefs...

...only to receive the shock of a lifetime when I realized that he wasn't hard yet! Blushing, stammering, he began to pull away from me, but I wasn't having any of that.

Crushing my body even more tightly against his, moaning in my desire, I began grinding my awesome tits against his chest as I kissed him hungrily, using my own hands to urge him to fondle the firmly rounded contours of my ass. Only once his own hands were filled with the perfection of my posterior did I use my own slender fingers to yank at his pants and underwear, freeing his barely-throbbing cock completely. Even as he continued to stammer out some sort of combination excuse and apology, I ignored his words and regretfully pulled myself from the wonderful warmth of his body to all but throw myself to my knees in front of him.

Then, eagerly and willingly, I wrapped the fully firm perfection of my lips around his still-soft cock, long lashes fluttering as my eyes practically rolled back in my head at the intense pleasure I received from having a manhood in my willing mouth.

With anybody else, having the willing warmth of my mouth around their cock would have been a short-lived glory; not so with Tim. With his very slow erectile reaction, I was given a comparative eternity of energetic bliss as my hands and mouth worked in perfect conjunction. Loving the sound of his sputtering insistence that this was unnecessary, that he was sorry, that he shouldn't be having me do this, I willingly wallowed in the ecstasy of his slowly hardening cock in my grip and between my lips. Every throb of his cock sent throbs of pleasure through me, and the slowly swelling veins in his manhood rubbed my lush lips in delightful ecstasy.

Even passing second when he didn't just explode under the onslaught of my perfect feminine sexuality was another second of mind-twisting pleasure to rip through my intellectual and emotional defences, slowly but steadily tearing and shredding those pathetic, useless parts of my psyche not directly connected to the sexual skills – the perfect erotic art – that was not only the core, but rapidly becoming the end-all and be-all, of who and what I was.

By the time Tim was finally ready, I was mentally stripped down for action, making little mewling sounds of desire as I yanked my skirt up and tearing my panties off. Thrusting him hard by the shoulders until he was pinned against the back of the couch, I swung one shapely leg over and positioned myself carefully, and then impaled my sopping slit onto his now-rigid cock.

"Yes...!" I screamed, fingers gripping his shoulders in a near death grip as I savored the sensation of being filled with hard cock. Demanding that Tim play with my tits, I began rocking atop his cock, loving the sensations the motion brought to the elastic embrace of my cunt. It was fantastic – but Tim hadn't responded to my demand, so I growled it at him again and again, in different words and different tones, even as I add an up-and-down motion to my rocking.

Soon I was bouncing ecstatically atop him as his hands groped and fondled my tits, occasionally – on my demand – moving to knead the firm flesh of my buttocks before returning to my tits. It was magnificent... and although it seemed a wonderful eternity at the time, it then seemed to be but the blink of an eye before I began to orgasm, body shuddering and writhing in orgasmic ecstasy. As much as I tried to keep my motions coordinated, my orgasm robbed me of my perfect control, leaving me gasping and begging Tim to take control, to continue fucking me even as orgasms tore through my words as much as my motions.

To give him credit, Tim tried – but his own motions were little more coordinated than mine were, betraying the previous virginal status I had completely overlooked. It was enough, however, to keep my string of orgasms going, although they waxed and waned in disorganized spurts, unlike the steady string I so desperately craved to satisfy the intense need awoken inside of me.

...a need almost as intense as the one that demanded I make Tim cum, another desire that continued to remain unfulfilled.

I spent another few minutes blissfully experiencing wonderful, yet tauntingly less-than-perfectly satisfying orgasms before, regretfully pulling myself free of that wonderful, yet damnably unfulfilled cock. Once more collapsing in front of him, I arched my back, trying another tactic.

"Fuck my tits, Tim..." I begged him, even as I enveloped his slick rod with my softly firm flesh. "Fuck them until you cum!"

Undulating my hips and arching my back, I added my own motions to his rather uncoordinated thrusting, occasionally shifting slightly so that I could lower my face to lick and suck at the red, swollen head of his cock. More and more desperately, the time when my mouth wasn't full of his cock it was busy demanding he cum for me.

Finally, during a period when I was pussy working his now-pulsating shaft with my fantastic mouth, he finally did – with a long, drawn-out moan, Tim exploded, sending a thick spray of cum partially into my open mouth, the rest of it splattering over my chin and dripping down onto my spectacular rack.

"Holy crap...!" Tim gasped, as he slumped back on the couch.

I registered the words and the motion... but, for some reason, it really didn't mean anything. The feel of his warm man-seed on mf face, neck and breasts was much more important, as if the warm wetness was causing thrills to churn through me.

It was an illusion, and I knew it, but it took me a long a second to figure out why; finally, it dawned on me that what I was feeling was a combination of emotional and intellectual pleasure.

Pride and satisfaction. That's what it was.

I had done it. I had made him cum. I had fulfilled my purpose...

Slowly, I began to smile, until a dreamy grin of blissful satisfaction rode on my face while I continued to kneel in front of him, feeling cast adrift from the mundane world.

Eventually, I became aware that Tim was talking at me in an agitated tone of voice, but since it didn't have anything with making a man cum as my perfection demanded, it wasn't important. It was enough to spur me to slowly rise to my feet and begin heading toward the door, unthinkingly using the full scope and power of my sexuality in my hip-rolling, ass-swaying, tit-bouncing walk.

Then Tim was there, annoyingly blocking my way, his unwanted hands annoying fluttering at my body. Although it wasn't important in an of itself., his words and actions were delaying me, so it was enough to intrude upon my blissful sense of purpose until I had my clothes arranged enough that he was finally willing to let me wander away from him, leaving him standing behind holding the scrap of my panties with which e'd been dabbing at the cum that splattered my fantastic form.

It didn't matter; it wasn't part of the proof of my perfection, not after I'd already made him cum. Made him cum... despite himself.

I couldn't believe his lack of erection, the length of time it took me to get him hard, had possibly led me to even momentarily doubt my sexual divinity – but, even if it had, my pure perfection had one out, making him cum as any man must, if I turn the full force of my sexuality on them. I had proven that, and the bliss of re-achieving my sexual certainty was all the more wonderful now that I had divested myself of the wasteful weight of anything not directly related to my sexual divinity. Now, having shed both all those ridiculous mortal concerns and any ridiculous doubts, I was finally free to float in blissful contemplation of my every sexual perfection, needing not concern myself with anything but enjoying every contraction and dilation of my divine muscle, every heavenly jiggle and sway, every divine motion of my divine body...

...and contemplate bestowing my favors as and when I saw fit, when it came to pleasing myself... and when necessary, when it came to proving my divine status to any with the temerity to doubt it, whether intellectually or, as with Tim, physically.

In the meantime, however, I drifted through the half-seen world, simply enjoying my body as it swivelled swayed and joggled through the coming evening.

As I walked, I let my mind fill with slow-motion replays of every wonderful sensation I had experienced in making the virgin cum despite the many long-term inhibitions that had obviously kept him a virgin for so long. Every wonderful thrust of his cock went through my mind, dreamily enhanced so I could recall the very feeling of his throbbing cock-veins rubbing the elastic, adaptive flesh of my divinely perfect pussy. Just the memory of it was wonderful; it was made all the more so by the dreamy questing of my own finger in that tight love- tunnel, as I finger-fucked myself, only my inhuman grace allowing me to do so without so much as breaking my sensual stride., despite having my slender wrist thrust down the waistband of my skirt so I could work my wonderful womanhood.

I also dreamed of the wonderful tit-fucking I`d given Tim. The remembered feel of my warm fuck-pillows wrapped around his throbbing manhood was enough to spur me to lovingly massage my monumental mounts through the thin fabric of my shirt, teasingly tweaking the thick nipples fully engorged by the combination of recalled lust and the cool night breeze.

My tongue flicked and darted around the inside of my mouth and over my fully firm plump lips, reminding me of every well-remembered thrust and suck of that reluctant cock as I worked it to full erection, as I flicked and teased it during that tit-fuck.

All the sensations I was experiencing were wonderful, but they were only a lead-up to the real bliss that still enveloped; the orgasms that began to wrack my body were even more wonderful, but still not the pinnacle of perfection yet to come as I continued to trace the encounter in my mind, lingering on each and every sensation, both remembered and currently experienced, as I moved toward what I was waiting for.

The instant of perfection, of irrefutable evidence of my divinity; and even as I thought of it, the memory resurfaced, and I cried out in heavenly bliss of body, mind and spirit as the remembered feel of the ultimate proof of his hot seed splattering my pale flesh. Every drop was lovingly remembered, every slick trail as it curved down my supple flesh recalled.

The two moments of bliss – that felt continuously since that moment, and the redoubling of the remembered event – washed over and through me, and triggered a powerful string of physical orgasms, a steady string that ripped through me, finally providing the purely physical satisfaction that was the sole portion missing, and thus marring, the remembered encounter.; My flawlessly sexual stride finally came undone, and I staggered slightly, struggling to stay upright despite my knees wanting to turn to water. The pure orgasmic bliss of both the physical and emotional gripped me, and I was caught in it as if in the undertow of a powerful river, struggling only to keep my head above water as I panted and gasped my way through the ecstasy.

Oh so slowly, the golden glow of post-orgasmic ecstasy, coupled with the blissful awareness of my own pure sexual perfection, began to fade, leaving me shivering with the aftereffects both physical and emotional...

...and, as my bliss-befogged brain slowly began to realize, I was shivering for another reason. Cold.

I was cold.

...and tired.

...and hungry.

In fact, I slowly began to realize as my mind finally began to clear, I was physically and emotionally exhausted, with a host of physical pains exacerbated by the chill wind and the fact that I was nearly starving, having nothing in my stomach but that had-finished meal and the portion of Tim`s cum I had...

Staggering off the gravelled shoulder of the two-lane highway, I collapsed to my knees on the grassy verge and was violently and noisily sick in the overgrown ditch beyond as what I had done finally fully registered on my now-clear mind.

I knew and understood what had happened – every detail of it...

...and it, and what it had led me to do, kept repeating over and over in my mind, making me struggle to control dry heaves at the remembered sensations that insited on replaying in my head in perfect fidelity.

When first cursed with the blessing of the massive breasts, I had fallen prey to the `beneficial` urge that had been encoded in them; the urge to use` them. More specifically, the urge to use them to provide pleasure to both myself by using them to please – or at least, tease – men. From a purely feminine perspective, it was sensible and reasonable – Maggie would have willingly worn them to increase her desires in order to overcome a discomfort in flaunting herself. It was both mundane and magically at the same time, for although she would be flaunting a huge pair of tits, but they wouldn`t really be hers; it would be sort of like she would be showing off a costume.

I, however, had ended up with them unwillingly, and without any of the natural female pride in having a feminine body – a situation that had never been planned for. The spell had thus worked even harder to overcome my horror and disgust in order to achieve a pride of possession in such huge, wonderful tits... which, given that the rest of me was male, was enough to kick over into the ‘please a man/be pleased’ mode – and the harder I had tried to fight it, the more it had ‘fought back’, to the point of completely overriding my personality when it came to that particular issue.

The ‘fix’ that I had eventually come up, with increase the number of magically incurred changes, had actually worked. With that need/desire spread from just one location to the whole thing, the magic had kept my own disgust at femininity so dispersed that I never was able to get so hung up on one aspect to trip it over into the hyper-mode. I had felt proud of my various attributes, satisfying the purpose of the magic.

At least, right up until the very instant I began to doubt it.

The instant when I had caught Tim looking at me – and then quickly looking away, as if in disgust.

From that instant on, I had been steadily descending into self-created hallucination, my mind interpreting everything in a way that ‘I’ could accept; the artificial ‘I’ of the magically-imposed persona over my own, real one. The ‘I’ that needed to prove my sexuality by getting Tim to cum...

...which had horrified my true self so much that I had attempted – and, for a while, succeeded at – blocking it completely, leaving me only with that thin, one-dimensional persona of sexual self-satisfaction.

It was that paper-thin persona that had been in control of the body that had wandered sexily and aimlessly away from Tim’s house and down Main street, continuing past the businesses and houses until it was the highway leading out of town in the opposite direction from the road where Maggie and I lived.

All of which explained how I found myself a good seven miles out side of town, underdressed for the weather and thus shivering in the cool night air, starved from having eaten so little that day, especially considering the very long hike I had just taken in my dazed state, muscles of my new body aching from exercise they were never designed for.

Worst of all, however, was my state of mind – for, as it continued to cycle through the scenario in an attempt to understand it, my mind constantly tried to retreat from the reality I faced.

I couldn’t let it do so, however, for if I did, I would fall right back into that persona that would have but one sole, sexual purpose – and I dare not let that happen, even if the only other alternative was to force myself to keep remembering what I had done with, and to, Tim...

...without letting myself reach what I felt to be a natural level of disgust and horror, which would trigger the magic to try and override it. Instead, I had to experience the remembered memories of extreme pleasure at having successfully fucked and sucked Tim to orgasm... and accept it, at least marginally.

All of which left me far out of tow, cold hungry and tired, with a mind that insisted in dreamily thinking of how great it was being sexy enough to make men cum whether they wanted to or not...

...and eagerly looking forward to another chance to prove it. TO BE CONTINUED

SUMMARY: A plastic surgeon who has, in the past, used subliminal tapes to get clients and sex partners has the tables turned on him when he is kidnapped and transformed into a wanton sex pot.

Believable

By Gunslinger

In the otherwise silent office, the slow drumming of Doctor Jeffery Bryant's fingers on the desktop sounded like the drum roll played at an execution.

As the dismal metaphor crossed Jeff's mind, he curled his fingers into a fist and forced the clenched hand to the arm of his comfortable leather chair, trying to break the morbid line of thought that rolled through his mind.

It wasn't easy.

Once again, he lifted his hand and, without thinking, ran it through the rumpled haystack that his usually carefully styled auburn hair had become. Letting his hand drop limply to his side once more, Jeff slowly looked around the interior of his office, trying - and failing - to find comfort in it's luxurious appointments and expensive decor.

"What the hell is going wrong...?" Jeff asked himself, angrily.

Until recently, he'd been one of the most sought-after and well-paid plastic surgeons in California. With the extensively renovated mansion in the hills serving as both home and clinic, he'd been working long, but extremely satisfying, hours. The money had flowed in as he'd rebuilt the vain and vainglorious of Californian society, and business had been both populous and prosperous, just as his five-year plan to wealthy retirement had specified it should be. Everything had been on track with his inspired plan to retire wealthy and well-known at the age of forty...

...until last week.

During the last week, his flow of eager customers had dried up. Given his personal 'marketing plan', it shouldn't have been possible - but it had happened nonetheless. Though some might have thought Jeff would have enjoyed a break in the long hours, to take the chance to explore some kind of social life, Jeff chafed at the inactivity. His entire life had been geared to the idea of working long and hard until he was forty, then retiring to a life of sybaritic luxury, and though he was fairly wealthy, it wasn't even close to what he'd planned on having in three years, after taking the profit from selling what was - or what should have been - California's most successful plastic surgery clinic.

Not as inherently important, but equally frustrating personally, Jeff's sex life had dropped concurrent with his business. Though he didn't have anything approaching a social life, Jeff had been leading a very active sex life - but, now, that too was down the tubes.

Which should have been equally as impossible as the drop in his business, and for much the same reasons...

Frowning, Jeff shook his head in angry confusion, listening to the silence of what should have been a bustling office. With not a single appointment or procedure, he'd let his entire staff, clerical and medical, take a long weekend by giving them today off. Though they'd been happy enough to take a Friday off, Jeff's real purpose had been to save the money he would have paid out in wages today - because, for the first time, a worm of worry had begun to curl in his belly. His manifest genius and undeniable talents had always allowed him the luxury of convictions unshakable by any outside influence - until now...

In the silence of his office, the sound of the heavily-padded door opening seemed as loud as a gunshot, and Jeff's head snapped up in shock as a tall, brisk-looking woman in a tailored pantsuit stepped through the opening.

Staring at the cool-looking brunette, Jeff started to rise from his chair in anger.

"Who are you?" He demanded - though, even as he did, he had the feeling he should know her....

"Doctor Beatrice Foster." She introduced herself, calmly - and the name allowed Jeff to make the connection. Even as she lifted her hand towards him to complete the introduction, Jeff felt himself relax as he recognized her as a colleague, best known for the pro bono work she did for victims of wound-inflicting rape and extreme spousal abuse.

"Doctor Foster.." Jeff said, wondering how his fellow plastic surgeon had gotten inside as he held out his own hand...

...only to realize, too late, that she was holding a compressed-gas syringe in her hand. Before he could his own hand back, she lashed out and jabbed the pressure injector into his arm, its contents being thrust into his bloodstream with a hiss.

"What the hell..?" Jeff shouted, yanking his arm away - but the damage had been done. Even as his struggling mind tried to make sense of what was going on here, darkness started to close in on him.

"Why ?" He asked, thickly, slumping into his chair as weakness overtook him. As he slid down into the darkness, Doctor Foster's answer followed him down:

"We know what you did."

* * * * *

Darkness slowly parted...

...but full consciousness didn't return.

Though light and shape and color flooded Jeff's senses, accompanied by sound, it was nearly formless, moving around him in a dreamlike haze.

Jeff simply let it wash over him, his mind sluggishly accepting it. He couldn't possibly tell how long it even took him to realize, vaguely, what anything meant, and when that realization finally did set in, it seemed inordinately difficult - and only barely important enough - to force himself to focus.

Familiar. The shapes and colors that vaguely resolved themselves under his dreamy concentration were familiar...

It finally registered that he was in one of his operating rooms.

The information was just that - information. Jeff could not work up enough emotions or intellect to worry either about his location or his own lack of concern.

"Ah, you're awake..."

Only then did Jeff realize he'd been staring at a fixed point in space. Sluggishly, he rolled his eyes to the side, taking in the figure of a coolly attractive brunette standing beside him. The movement of other people in the room registered, barely, but held no interest or meaning for him as he stared at Doctor Foster.

"We found quite a diverse and interesting supply of drugs in your offices." She said, gesturing at a glass bottle hanging from a metal stand nearby, its clear plastic tube running down out of Jeff's field of vision. "Amobarbital sodium, Chlordiazepoxide and Chlorpromazine, Pentobarbital sodium - A veritable devil's brew of hypnotic chemicals, though I doubt even you ever thought of using all of them at the same time, and in these doses."

Dimly, Jeff realized he knew all the words she was speaking, and even had a vague sense of the meaning - but his mind just couldn't seem to make the connection between the three separate points of this discussion - her words, the IV bottle, and him.

In fact, it didn't seem important enough for him to even try and recognize how the three separate parts went together, if they even did at all.

"I know you've been using them separately..." Beatrice continued, in a 'naughty, naughty' tone of voice that went oddly with her shark-like grin. "You've been drugging women, haven't you?"

Jeff, concentrating so hard on making sense of the words as they came through the thick fog surrounding his mind, didn't even consider lying - literally, it simply never occurred to him.

"Yes..." He said, voice thick, as he blinked owlshly.

"You have a private investigator who secretly finds single, fairly well-off women you think need 'improving', don't you?" Beatrice prompted, and again Jeff slowly agreed before she continued. "You then send them a 'free music sampler' CD with the type of music that your private eye tells you they prefer on it - except that's not all that's on it, is it?"

"No..." Jeff said, heavily. "There's also subliminal messages hidden in the music..."

"I know." Beatrice agreed. "It makes them want to listen to the CD often - and it also keep convincing them that they need to go talk to a plastic surgeon, right? A specific plastic surgeon - Jeffery Bryant."

"That's right..." He agreed - and then, much belated, he noticed that Beatrice was holding something. She caught the shifting of his eyes.

"It's a behavior modification unit control." She explained. "It allows somebody to send electrical impulses directly to a person's pleasure and pain centers."

Jeff hadn't even been curious - his gaze had simply noted the object, and that was all. Her words, though registering, didn't really have anything to do with him, so he let them just slide across the surface of his brain, uncaring.

"Back to Jeff Bryant..." Beatrice said. "When the woman shows up at his office, Jeff would offer her a drink - which is drugged. He then reinforces her belief she needs plastic surgery, doesn't he...?"

It took a second for him to force his mind back on topic, but finally he managed to agree.

"He also convinces her she likes sex. All sorts of sex. Even degrading sex, sometimes - doesn't he?" Beatrice asked, struggling to keep an even tone of voice.

"Yeah..." he agreed.

She swallowed and took a second to compose herself. "Jeff Bryant will get into a lot of trouble for that if anybody found out, wouldn't he?"

"Yeah, lots..." Jeff agreed a second later.

"I found out about it." Beatrice said. "That means Jeff Bryant is going to get into lots of trouble, isn't he?"

For some reason, that bothered him badly, but he couldn't consider why, and still hold onto the dream-like reality around him, so after a long pause, he finally agreed with her.

"I'm going to help you." Beatrice said. "You need to trust me, because I'm going to help you, and you want my help."

He considered that for a moment. "Okay."

"But to help you, you have to help... her." Beatrice said, holding up a photo.

The photo - a computer-generated one, but he didn't know that - looked familiar to him. In fact, he thought fuzzily, the woman looked a lot like what his twin sister would look like, if he'd had one - but he didn't mention it.

"This is Missy Manjoy." Beatrice said. "When you're helping her, you're helping yourself. Now - who is this?"

"Missy Manjoy..." He replied - and, strangely, felt a low, but powerful, burst of pleasure at saying that, even attenuated as it was in his groggy mind.

"And when you're helping her, you're doing what...?" Beatrice asked.

"Helping myself." He replied - and felt another warm pulse of pleasure at saying it.

"That's right." Beatrice said. "Now, I have some questions to ask you about how to help her - and yourself, which is the same thing, right?"

"Right..." He agreed, to another pulse of pleasure - and then the questions started...

* * * * *

Life became questions - nothing but questions, and the answers in return.

There was no way of telling how long this went on, of course - not in that wonderful dream-like state, the one that was more and more often punctuated with those bursts of pleasure.

Sometimes, one of the other people that vaguely flitted through the background would, briefly, reach through the veil. Words that sounded familiar would be spoken to Beatrice; words like 'liposuction' and 'collagen injections', 'laser hair removal' and 'dermabrasion', 'rhinoplasty' and 'tracheal shave' and 'leg extension surgery' and 'surgical removal of the lowest ribs' and 'extensive facial reconstruction surgery'...

...but it was one of the others talking to Beatrice, or vice-versa, and so unimportant.

Sometimes, the sessions took place in other rooms, in other circumstances. For several of the sessions in a row, it was done while walking on a treadmill. Unseen in the focused attention Beatrice demanded she, herself, be given, the treadmill seemed to have something wrong with it. More than just the foggy haze made it difficult to walk on it, even to balance - but Beatrice insisted that the walking was necessary, and it was finally mastered.

It didn't really matter, anyway. What mattered was the work. What little attention and concentration that could be mustered during those periods of semi-consciousness were only ever directed at coming up with the correct answers to the questions Beatrice asked.

The first ones were always easy - because they were always the same. The photo, reflecting whatever changes had already been made, with the demanded identification - and, always right, was always greeted with that burst of pleasure, as was the now mantra-like rhythm of 'when I'm helping her, I'm helping myself'.

Then came the questions about how to help Missy - but not just 'how', but also 'why'.

"How should Missy wear her hair?", for example - which, once answered, was followed by: "Should Missy like her hair that way?"

The answer to questions like that were as easy as they were obvious: "Of course." Sometimes, it wasn't questions. Sometimes Beatrice spoke of Jeffery Bryant.

Every time, there was pain. The pain came with the name, whether it was 'Jeffery Bryant' or 'Doctor Bryant' or 'Jeff Bryant'. Any mention brought pain. Worsening pain as time went on, even. As Beatrice talked about all the things Jeffery Bryant was going to suffer through, there was pain.

It would be better if Beatrice wouldn't mention the name, because it brought pain - but she did. Second best was to try and forget the pain - and the name that brought it. It was best to not think of that name at all.

At other times, there was pain that had nothing to do with that name. Sometimes, it was sharp, and came with certain answers. Other times, it was dull and pervasive, lasting for the entire session, a pain like an injured or battered body - but, shrouded in that hazy fog, never as bad as the pain that came from that name or from certain answers, though it couldn't simply be avoided like it could be by avoiding that name or those thoughts.

Much better was the pleasure that came from answers. Pleasure that came with defining who the new Missy Manjoy was to be. Pleasure that came from reiterating those answers again and again, until they were practically second nature.

Jeffery Bryant was pain. Missy Manjoy was pleasure.

* * * * *

"Well, honey buns, today's the big day!" Beatrice said, smiling. "Come on, let's get you up..."

Strange little terms of endearment seemed to be Beatrice's 'thing' lately. For the last two dozen sessions, it was 'Honey buns' this and 'sweet-cheeks' that. It had been a bit disconcerting, at first - but, now...? Who cared, really.

As usual, there was no need to dress or take care of any other once-basic needs - such things were all taken care of during sleep these days, it seemed. Not that questioning anything was really possible, not in that thick, deep mental fog...

...but, of course, it was hard to even notice that fog anymore. Not after living in it for so long. It was simply part of life, and given next to no thought at all.

With Beatrice's help, getting up and heading for the door was accomplished fairly easily, and apparently all those 'walking exercises' paid off, for the gait that was produced wasn't nearly as much a drunken stagger as might have been expected.

"That's right, sweetie, follow me..." Beatrice said, unusually chipper. "Say, those are some lovely traveling clothes I got for you, aren't they?"

Memory of the clothes were hazy, at best - and emotional reaction to them, like an emotional reaction to anything in this state, impossible - which left only mindless agreement. "Yes."

"I'm sure you're really going to enjoy yourself, sugar-lips." Beatrice said as they walked out the front door of the house/clinic. It was just barely sunrise, the sky a wondrous vista of pink clouds, so beautiful that even the foggy haze couldn't complete mute it from the conscious mind. It seemed almost a shame to ignore it and follow Beatrice down the steps towards where a car was waiting. "You're probably yearning to get on with a real life again, I bet."

That was, to put it mildly, an unusual thought. In the foggy mindset that was barely even noticed anymore, the sessions had seemed to go on forever - and it seemed to make sense to assume the always would. No beginning and no end, for now and for ever, alpha and omega, amen. The idea that the sessions were over and there was some sort of life to be led afterwards was simply too new to allow any intelligent reaction.

So, there was nothing to be said about it - nothing to be done, either, apparently, as the car's driver helped them into the back seat before sliding behind the wheel and starting up the car.

"Your suitcase is in the trunk, sweetie-pie." Beatrice said. "You've got plenty of money with you and in your bank account, so you shouldn't have any problem getting an apartment when you get to Phoenix. In fact, budget yourself carefully, and you can probably just kick around for a year or so before you need to find a job to support yourself."

Again, the thought of working was too new to be grasped, much less replied to. Beatrice, practically running off at the mouth, didn't seem to care about the fact she was providing a monologue, however.

Their destination turned out to be the bus station - or, rather, and idling diesel monster whose lit destination sign did, indeed, say Phoenix.

"Okay, this is your suitcase." Beatrice said, before handing it to the man who was loading the luggage. She came closer, voice dropping to a whisper. "It's the big blue one. Remember that so you can claim it... Now, let's get you on the buss, honey-buns."

The thought of refusing that suggestion didn't even come up. In it's place was that same bland acceptance as at all the sessions, and following Beatrice up the steps onto the bus seemed like the most reasonable thing the world.

"Here's my cousin's ticket..." Beatrice said, handing the slip of printed paper to the driver - who was eyeing that 'cousin' with an odd look.

"Too much to drink at the going-away party." Beatrice confided to the driver. "Don't worry - a good sleep during the trip should take care of it."

"I've been in that position myself, a few times." The driver admitted, with a grin. "Don't worry miss, we'll take good care of your cousin."

"I appreciate it." Beatrice said, warmly.

All that was left was to follow Beatrice to a seat, sit down, and accept a quick peck on the cheek.

"Good by, sweetie. Enjoy your new life in Phoenix - and, remember, it was just something that had to be done. If you even look at it the right way, this works out better for you then the possible alternatives."

Then Beatrice was gone, and all there was left to do was to stare out the window.

It was only after the bus had finally pulled out and been traveling for some time that a stiff neck finally caused an almost instinctive move to lessen the strain - and the direction that relieved the strain resulted in a specific sight:

'Wow, Missy really does have spectacular tits' was the almost instinctive reaction to the sight of the firm, full breasts that formed a lovely, and only slightly risqué, display of cleavage in the blue-and- white print blouse.

The next thought, more reasonable then any in a long time, was a sign that the drugs, so long present, had finally been cut off: 'If they're Missy's tits, why are they on my chest...?'

The 'instinctive' answer, however, was as sure a sign that the drugs weren't completely degraded yet: 'Because I'm Missy.'

That answer actually satisfied her for another half hours, as the drugs continued to slowly loose their hold on her...

...and then, with growing realization, the woman in seat 12A on a Greyhound heading to Phoenix, realized where and who she was - and had happened, and still was happening, to her.

She sat bolt upright with a gasp. "Something wrong...?"

Startled by the voice across the aisle, she glanced over at the man sitting there, a faintly concerned look in his eyes.

Eyes that flickered back and forth between a cute-but-unremarkable face and a pair of remarkably firm GGG-cup breasts that nicely filled out a summer-weight blouse.

She caught the interest, the look - and Missy Manjoy shivered slightly...

...in pleasure.

After all, she'd gone to Doctor Beatrice Foster to get a nice, big pair of implants specifically so men would start noticing her as a woman.

"No, nothing - I was just sort of, you know, nodding off, and then snapped back awake again." She said after only the slightest pause - a pause during which she'd considered all the possible responses she could have given the man, and finally having settled on the lie that would cause considerably less trouble than the insane-sounding truth...

...especially since she doubted she could tell enough of the truth to make it sound even faintly plausible. After all, she couldn't even give what her name as a man had been.

Having deflected the man's question - if not his half-serious interest in her spectacular chest - Missy turned to allow her eyes to stare out the window, while her steadily clearing mind went to work chewing over the situation.

A hell of a situation it was, too. After all, she'd been changed into Missy Manjoy, a tall, rather athletically-built woman with a firm, fit, sexy-in-an-All-American-Girl-sorta-way body that had been further enhanced with the addition of the spectacular tits now thrust so proudly from her chest.

In fact, the whole 'tit' situation was sort of a single-point representation of the enormity of the situation.

She was well aware of what was going on, and what had been done to her. Nevertheless, she still thought her tits were spectacular - and she still felt pleasure at having a fairly handsome, and reasonable nice-seeming, young man ogle them.

It was a truism in hypnotism that you couldn't convince somebody in a trance to do something they wouldn't do while awake - which was true, as far as it went. The problem was, it didn't go far enough whereas Beatrice, showing damned near genius, had gone much further. She'd turned Missy's own belief against her.

By couching her questions carefully, by tying them carefully into Missy's old, male, life, Beatrice had created an inescapable situation.

First off, the new woman she'd become really was 'Missy Manjoy'. It wasn't a lie, or an illusion - she might not have been born as Missy Manjoy, but after the extensive surgery, there was no doubt that 'Missy Manjoy' now existed, physically - and she was her.

It went a lot further than that, though - because Beatrice had planned it perfectly, and neatly hoist Missy by her own petard.

Missy truly did believe that a person who, at this moment, was a woman, but had grown up living a masculine-style life and who had never had sex with a man should, in fact, wish to become more feminine and do what was 'obviously necessary' to correct the 'flaws' in her life.

True, the 'false history' of Missy had been that she'd been a tomboy, the dedicated stay-at-home nurse for an invalid father, with no appreciable social life, and who denied herself men out of respect for a dying - and extremely catholic - father. It didn't matter that the truth was that Missy had been a man who'd voluntarily eschewed a social life and who'd never been interested in men because of the homosexuality of the notion - the two pasts, one true and one false - came together at the point in existence where Missy now found herself. Thanks to sexual reassignment surgery, Missy was now unmistakably female, or at least as close an imitation of one as unfettered medical science could create. The Missy who now existed truly did have a past where she'd forgone socializing in favor of work, who'd never slept with a man because she'd been taught it would be wrong, and who had grown up dressing and acting in a masculine manner.

With the body she now had, and 'both' the pasts she had, all of Missy's beliefs said that she should be trying to develop a feminine lifestyle to match her body. It wasn't some 'implanted' commands, but her own true, long-held beliefs. If Beatrice had simply given her commands, Missy might have been able to fight against the compulsions with some form of success - but since the beliefs were her own, no matter how deviously they'd been applied to her, she would be trying to argue against herself - and it wasn't possible to win that argument, and she already knew it.

She was, indeed, the very Missy Manjoy that she believed Missy Manjoy should be. She was, in a very real sense of the term, a 'self-made woman'.

It certainly didn't mean that missy had to particularly like it, of course - but that wasn't much help. After all, everybody in life had habits or personality quirks they didn't like. Certainly, they could contain them, hide them, or sublimate them - but it didn't change their core beliefs. Likewise, even knowing what had been done to her, Missy couldn't excise the beliefs she held.

Watching the scenery roll past, Missy had to grudgingly allow Beatrice the credit she deserved for this scheme. While it was technically possible to 'brainwash' somebody into behaving contrary to their own nature, it always created an internal struggle that would eventually surface. In a way, Missy would have much preferred that. Either of the two methods of brainwashing would have left her with a sort of mental 'excuse' - the first form, where somebody's own personality was completely submerged in a sort of two-dimension new one, she wouldn't even be conscious of having been male or doing anything her history would tell her she should feel guilty or disturbed doing. Sure, it would have been a simplistic personality, with a few simple 'purposes' in life, and so basically an automaton - but she wouldn't have cared.

In the second form, she would have been 'forced' through behavior modification to do things she didn't want to do. Beatrice had actually used a form of that in her plan - but only for reinforcement, not as the primary method. If it had been done that way, circumventing rather than directionally reinforcing her own beliefs, Missy would have had the internal satisfaction of knowing it wasn't really her doing any of it, even though it would have been painful and degrading.

What Beatrice had done, however, was far more complex - by harnessing Missy's own beliefs, she'd left Missy's own inner sense-of self - her personality - intact. Missy, mentally, was as real, as complex, as her old male self had been. Just as her old male life had sometimes been full of confusion, conflicting desires, and uncertainty, so would her new one - but, unlike a brainwashed version of Missy, there wasn't the almost omnipresent risk of eventual insanity from the mental imbalance. Her mind, as 'real' as ever, was just as capable of handling the day-to-day stresses of her new life as it had been in the old one.

Of course, there was one other thing about this method of 'alteration':

It wasn't overwhelming.

She should know - she'd 'overwhelmed' many women in her past life, using one of the other two methods. Therein lay the big difference. Beatrice, hampered as she was by ethics and a conscience, had done what she'd felt she'd needed to do - but in the 'kindest' way. Missy, just as she'd been as a man, wasn't burdened by that problem.

Beatrice, obviously, hoped Missy would simply accept her new, feminine life, and try to settle down into a 'regular woman' lifestyle.

How little she knew her, Missy mused with a sharp smile.

After all, female or not, she was, deep down, the same person she'd been before. Though for both their safety Beatrice had used behavior modification techniques to 'wall off' part of Missy's real past, to keep Missy from allowing anybody to find out what had happened, Missy was still the same person as before.

Well, almost. Instead of a conniving, greedy bastard, she was a greedy, conniving bitch.

Either way, she didn't plan to follow Beatrice's little 'white picket fence housewife' plans. That was the one flaw in Beatrice's plan, and Beatrice's own nature had kept from seeing it.

Beatrice had obviously thought that setting Missy up by asking the man she'd been to define what Missy would like and dislike, how she should dress and act, even what she'd look like, would coerce the new woman into living precisely that lifestyle, because Beatrice had mistaken thought that the mind that had defined what Missy would like would, perforce, like the same thing.

Though Beatrice had been smart enough to show the then-male a woman who looked as she'd looked, and even smart enough to ask what the then-male Missy would like a woman like that to be like, it had never occurred to Beatrice to make the even more important connection:

While defining Missy, Beatrice had never asked the question: "And if Missy was as selfish, conniving, and immoral as you are, how would she act?"

If Beatrice had done that, then the person Missy had been would have promptly reinforced - and redirected - her own beliefs, because, at the time, she'd still been thinking of Missy as a separate person - and the person Missy had been didn't want anybody else being as unscrupulous and as she had been. That, after all, would have created competition, and so she would have been quick to edit those characteristics out of the woman that, later, she would end becoming.

Beatrice, not nearly as selfishly oriented herself, hadn't been able to see that flaw in her plan.

It was a flaw that Missy damned well intended to use. After all, though she was willing to admit that there were certain ways of dressing and acting that she actually did think her new body would be best with, she wasn't nearly as 'compelled' to follow that as Beatrice obviously expected her to be.

When it came right down to it, a person who was willing to risk serious prison time for quick money and forced sex was hardly likely to be much put out by knowing the clothes she was wearing or the behavior she was exhibiting might make her unpopular.

Grinning a shark's grin, Missy sat back in the chair and began considering her options...

* * * * *

It was time.

She'd spent the last month living in a hotel, eating cheap food while she planned. When she'd gone out to do her 'research', it had been without makeup, in shapeless gray clothing and scuffed sneakers, her hair a mess - the better to dissuade anybody from approaching her.

She'd neither searched for lodging or work, even though the hotel room rapidly drained resources, and she'd spent more money 'outfitting' for her plan and to conduct her research properly. In the end, it didn't really matter.

All that mattered was that her plan was ready to go into action.

With a slight smile crossing her lips, she lifted one hand and knocked on the door in front of her.

It was nearly ten o'clock at night, and the owner of the house wasn't exactly a socialite, so it took a few minutes before the door opened - but, having done her research, she had expected it, and wasn't at all put out by the delay, despite the natural anxiety she felt at waiting to see if it work out as she'd planned.

When the door did open, the person who opened it wasn't immediately visible, standing as they were behind the door itself - but, again, she'd expected that, as well, and wasn't the least bit put out by it. Further bolstered by her success, she stepped into the brightly-lit foyer of the brownstone home, turning rapidly on one heel as the owner quickly slammed the door, just as she'd expected he would...

...so, when he turned to face her, she was ready for him, her all-encompassing black fur coat having already slid from her shoulders to puddle on the marble floor.

"I... what the...?" The owner of the house gasped, eyes widening almost comically as he caught sight of his unexpected guest.

"Hello, Richard." She said, forcing her voice into it's smokiest, most seductive tones.

It didn't even occur to Richard Bannerman to ask how she knew his name. Instead, the pale, sandy-haired young man simply stood there and gaped, taking in the woman standing - actually, posing - in his foyer.

It was a sight to see, she knew with a smug certainty - because that's exactly how she'd planned it.

She was standing in 'the oldest pose', one which displayed every feminine attribute in a flattering aspect.

Her left leg was straight and locked, bearing all her weight - which, in and of itself, would have emphasized every curve and muscle on that surgically long and naturally toned leg.

The fact that she was wearing the classic black pump in a six-inch stiletto heel only further served to enhance her leg that, along with it's companion, had been so carefully shaved, depleted, softened and toned as to be as utterly smooth, taut, and sexually attractive as it was physically possible for it to be.

The light coating of scented oil rubbed into the skin only made it look all the more preternaturally perfect, like the sculpted golden leg of a perfectly proportion monument of feminine sensuality.

Her right leg, as carefully prepared and identically shod, slightly to the side and bent at the knee, so that only the toe of her shoe touched the ground. Whereas her left leg was emphasizing every toned muscle in calf and thigh, this relaxed leg even more definitively showcased the smooth, flowing lines of the leg at rest. In one glance, her gaping audience of one could see the utter loveliness of her legs in either tensed or relaxed condition...

...and the slight spreading of her legs, along with the bent knee, meant her thighs were spread invitingly. Since her long, luscious legs were naked all the way up to the hip, they appeared impossibly long, which was the other function of the tiny, high-hipped, low-waisted gloss black bikini-style leather underwear she wore.

It's primary function, of course, was to not quite cover her cunt, a hint of soft pink fold visible on either side of the thin black strap that ran between her legs.

The tight corset she wore was of the same material and color, and cinched as painfully tight as was human possible, making her already slender waist that much smaller, and better emphasizing her hips...

...while the carefully-scalloped top of the custom-made garment rested just below the jut of her melon-sized breasts, each of which thrust roundly from her chest without any obstruction.

The only other clothing she wore were the opera-length gloves she wore, also of black leather, but with a matte finish, and tied up the outside of each arm with criss-crossed black leather rawhide 'strings'.

As with her legs, every inch of exposed flesh was lightly oiled with a scented oil.

She'd spent an inordinate time finding the perfect make-up scheme for her face - but it appeared well worth the effort, judging from the look on Richard's face when he finally managed to pull his gaze that high.

The lipstick on her full, inviting lips was a dark, ruby red carefully outlined in black lip-liner. Painstakingly applied foundation, blush, and highlighting worked to emphasize both jaw and cheeks, cheating a look that - like her body - managed to be sexual, beautiful, and powerful, all at the same time.

Her auburn hair was pulled tightly up onto her head, where it was tightly gripped by more black rawhide thongs before spilling back and down in a cascade of deep, rich auburn color made all the more vivid by the uniformly black outfit she wore.

The image she presented was a study in contrasts. Strong - yet, in all the right ways, soft. Forbidding - yet inviting. Powerful - and yet, by choice in clothing, submissive.

She was a challenge to any man who saw her like this to dare to try and satisfy her sexually... and the promise that she could easily do that for him.

Finally, Richard licked his lips, and spoke: "What do you want?"

She smiled, a slow, seductive smile that was all 'potential', rather than 'promise'. "You even ask the right question." She purred. "Follow me."

Turning on her heel, she strode into the house - not the swivel-hipped stride of an easy woman, but the powerful, graceful feline stride of a lioness.

Given that the view from behind was every bit as good as the view from the front, it wasn't surprising that Richard followed her without hesitation. He seated himself on one couch in the living room, while she chose the one directly opposite. Her pose, when she sat, was as carefully considered as the one in the foyer - one leg lightly resting on the knee of the other, arms outspread and resting on the back of the couch, so that her breasts were forced to just even further and more enticingly forward.

"Let's talk about... 'wants'." She said, imbuing the final word with every ounce of sexual promise in her voice.

"I know something about you, Richard." She said, hungrily. "I know you are a wealthy young man, from old money. You are also a young man who suffers from agoraphobia - you can't even look out the open door of your house without a panic attack, much less step outside."

"How do you know all this...?" Richard asked, with a frown - then, suddenly aware he was addressing his question directly to her round, gleaming breasts, he guiltily tore his eyes from those firm monuments to feminine pulchritude, glancing away with a flush.

"It's okay to look, Richard." She told him, smiling again. "We both want know you want to - and it's more then all right to do so. Look at my breasts, Richard. Look at my big... beautiful.. firm.. breasts..."

It was a 'suggestion' Richard couldn't refuse - and when he did look, he found her lightly caressing one softly firm sphere, peering up through lashes as she enticing slid one glove-encased hand lightly across the flawless flesh.

"With your phobia, you hardly have much chance to meet women." She said, sensuously. "I like the... desperate hunger that adds to you gaze."

Licking his lips, Richard forced his eyes off of her again.

"Look..." He said, as firmly as possible. "I don't know who you are, but my sex life - or lack of it - is not enough enticement for me to accept a.. a..."

"Prostitute?" She asked, with a low - and sexual - laugh. "I'm hardly that, Richard - or, perhaps, I'm much more then that. Look at me, Richard. Look at this person in front of you - and listen."

Almost against his will, Richard did as she said.

"We were talking of what we want..." she said, "...and yes, part of want you want is sex. Don't bother to deny it, Richard - we both know it would be a lie."

Richard, aware of the rather obvious hard-on he was sporting, closed his just-opened mouth with a snap.

"I also know, however, that 'sex' is merely a portion of what you want." She continued. "You want more then just a warm, willing female body - even a very warm, extremely willing body. You want female companionship - even a relationship. You want, in fact, what you have been denied - or at least as close a facsimile as you can find. You want, dear Richard, a normal life."

Startled, Richard blinked. Though his reaction marked the accuracy of her comment, he didn't agree with her verbally, instead making his own observation.

"What you want is money." He accused. She shook her head, slightly.

"Not exactly. What I want, Richard - is luxury. I want to live in a mansion.. like this one. I want to lay on silk sheets, drink champagne, eat only the finest foods, and be surrounded by the best of everything. Money is what it takes to get that - but it's the 'middleman' on the road to luxury, and I don't care about it, itself. I just want the luxury."

She leaned forward, for the first time abandoning 'pure sensuality' in the favor of letting him see the actual sincerity ion her voice.

"Richard, let me explain something to you." She said. "Like you, I'm not quite the same as everybody else. For certain reasons, which I won't go into, my personality's 'sides' are more discretely separated than most people's. There's a part of me that is.. almost masculine. That's the part of me that is driven, that wants all the good things in life, that wants to be powerful and dominating and practically worshipped. The other part of me is the feminine part, the part that could would - willingly and eagerly please you sexually, submitting itself to you in an effort to make you utterly happy. This.. disparity.. would be hard for many men to accept, because of the way it makes me."

"What way is that?" Richard asked, warily.

She grinned, wolfishly. "The way that makes me the perfect woman for you. You see, I like to be dominant - not physically, mind you, but in terms of control. I like - almost need - to make all the decisions, have control - and that's perfect for you, most of the time, since I would be the one how would be doing the shopping. You already know that I want to take your money and fill your house with only the best - and, I'll admit, I also want you to practically wait on me hand and foot."

"Oh, I see...?" Richard said, sarcastically. "In exchange for which you will, occasionally, deign to let me lay my hands on your body."

"Not exactly..." She said, letting the sincerity - the truthfulness - of what she was saying come through. "As I said, there's two sides of me, whether I like it or not. That powerful side of me, the 'everyday' part that wants to be treated like the queen of all creation, is the part I would carry with me all the time outside, and quite often here in the home - but that other side of me? the feminine side of me? The part of me that likes men paying obvious attention to my body.. my breasts... my sexual, feminine reality? That part, Richard - that part, which comes out whether I want it to or not if a man shows enough of a physical interest in me - is the one I'm actually afraid of, the one that makes my life as hard for me as you agoraphobia makes yours for you. You see, I've never actually had sex with a man, because I've had to hide that part of me away as carefully as you hide away in your own home - because that part of me, the part that would come out during sex, is purely, uncontrollably, submissive."

Richard blinked. "I... beg your pardon?"

"I've never told anybody this before..." She admitted, truthfully, "...because of the risk - and, by telling you this, I want you to understand the risk I'm taking in doing so. You see, pleasing men... gives me an emotional 'high' - please that is strong. Almost overwhelming... and addictive. When it comes to pleasing men, in all the ways a woman can only please a man, I mean... I just can't so no. More to the point, because of the pleasure I get from giving a man pleasure, even from something as simple as letting them look at my body and enjoy it, or from any sexual act... I don't want to say 'no'."

It was, actually, an exaggeration - but only somewhat. Thanks to Beatrice, doing the 'feminine' things they'd both, tacitly, agreed she would like doing actually did bring a powerful pleasure separate from whatever physical pleasure that act would bring. It wasn't 'overwhelming', actually - but, considering the man she'd been, it wasn't the least bit surprising how wide-ranging and comprehensive the list of such pleasure-inducing acts were.

In fact, the 'seduction' act she'd been putting on since coming in the house had been made much easier by the fact that she'd been constantly swept by waves of pleasure over Richard's obvious appreciation of both her body and her suggestive behavior.

She really, really would enjoy doing absolutely anything sexual Richard wanted her to do - just as she would actually enjoy wearing sexy clothes to let him admire her body, even while being 'Queen Bitch' the rest of the time.

"I was born with another name..." She said, honestly. "... but the one I've chosen for myself is a word that, sexually speaking, has two meanings: 'Mistress'. The one meaning is a dominating woman - and that part of me would be the 'public' part, the well-dressed rich-bitch who would demand - and get - the best of everything for us, who would exactly plan and execute small, occasional parties to show off my perfect taste and expert social skills - while, incidentally, giving you a social life that you lack, in very tightly controlled circumstances, because nothing would dare go wrong at any party I hosted."

She grinned, wickedly, to show that she wasn't really joking - because that was who she was. The part of her that got what she wanted...

...but there was that other part, too.

"Then there's the other meaning - that of a man's lover. That part of me I call 'Missy' - and that's the part of me that only you know about, that only you know you can reach. Call me by that name, tell me how sexy I am, tell me that you want me - or want me to please you - and I can't resist. I won't want to resist. That part of me longs to please a man any way he wants in return for nothing but appreciation of her ability to do so as much as the Mistress part of me wants people to worship me in appreciation of me taste, skill, and dominance - two sides to the exact same coin, you see."

Richard blinked - and then the import of her 'secret' struck home. "Wait a second - are you saying...?"

"That now that I've told you my secret, you have an inordinate amount of power over me?" She interrupted. "Yes. Just by calling me by that name, and making sure that I see myself only as a sexual object you desire, and nothing else worthwhile, then I'd willingly - and even happily - be your eager little sex slave. Your complete slave, actually, since you could get me to do anything at all like that: 'Missy, I'd get so turned on if you'd do such-and-such for me'."

Richard blinked, and looked at her askance. "What you've just told me is that I could do that to you - yet you told me anyway?"

"I'm hoping that you'll see that the other part of me is just as valuable to you." She pointed out, with naked honesty. "It's not an internal switch that I can flip on or off at will - only a man, who knows about it, can use it, and so you would be the one - and only - person who could decide which part of me is 'out' at the time. You'd decide how often I'm 'Mistress' or 'Missy'."

"I still don't get it..." Richard said, slowly. "Why tell me this? Any of this? Why even offer to let 'Missy' out?"

She hesitated - and then, with no other choice, gave Richard the pure, unvarnished truth, the one she'd been so shocked to realize herself a month ago, and one she hadn't been able to deny.

"It's a metaphor." She explained, simply, honestly. "There is no 'Mistress' or 'Missy'. They're really one and the same - they're me. Like I said, I'm not like most people - but it's because I'm just so driven by my own, selfish desires. Mostly - literally, overwhelmingly - that desire is to be seen as being 'the best'. Part of which would be reflected in by being surrounded by the best, showing that I'm the smartest, the most determined, the one with the best taste and the most skills... but, equally as strong, is the desire to be seen as 'the best' in other ways - including sexually. Every bit as overwhelming as the other urges to be 'the best', that part of the.. compulsion... doesn't mean that I want to get the best sex - it means I want to be known for giving the best sex. The reason I've come to you is that I've been driving myself crazy...! No..." She said, honestly, shaking her head. "That's no true. Craziness would be a relief, for in insanity I would actually be able to do the thing I can't do now - and that's commit to one side or the other of this. You see, society can't fulfill this overall need. A woman who is being 'the best' little nymphomaniac will never, ever be seen as being 'the best' cool, controlled, doesn't-take-shit-from-anybody lady - and vice versa. It's not that I don't want 'Missy' to be let out - it's that, for pragmatic reasons, it's been safer to show the public the persona of 'Mistress' - and even then, I've had to hold back, because the whole 'Mistress' would be seen as to unrelentingly overbearing without any 'Missy' to soften her. Which means that I've had to keep 'Missy' tightly bottled up - until now, because one way or another, whether you ever let me satisfy my urges for perfection in the 'Mistress' side of life, I'm asking - begging! - you to let me, finally, let go and finally satisfy the 'Missy'-type urges I have."

As much as it hurt her to admit it, it was the simple, undeniable truth.

As a real bastard of a man, he'd used literal mind-control to get women to give him all the sex he'd wanted. As a man, it had been a case of not being able to see the forest for the trees, but now she could understand that it had been a 'control' issue - because, as a man, she hadn't dared risk having sex with 'normal' women, who might actually imply - or outright state - that they'd had somebody better. Likewise, the lack of a social life had been to avoid the risk of screwing it up. Even the desire for money had been to fund an 'escape', where that money would buy respect as much as it bought luxury.

It had taken being turned into a woman to make her finally search her own soul - and that soul searching had revealed the truth.

She had been cruel, and willing to do anything - but that willingness had been driven by fear. Fear of being ridiculed, of being laughed at, of being unfavorable compared to.. just about any other man, in any way.

It was a truth that was a real now as it was before - except, now, she wanted to be the most perfect woman, in every single way - including some that, as far as conventional wisdom suggested, should have been mutually exclusive.

She wanted to be 'the best' at being dominating - and 'the best' at being submissive.

Which was, of course, patently impossible. Unless she could find somebody willing to appreciate both sets of supposedly exclusive forms of perfection - which was she had risked everything on an all-or-nothing roll of the dice, and why she sat breathlessly awaiting an answer from Richard...

...and, why she'd been nothing but utterly, painfully, completely honest when she'd told him that, if she couldn't have both sides of the equation, she'd rather spend the rest of her life indulging the 'Missy' side of her obsession with being appreciated for perfection.

Completely aside from the fact that she was now inescapable trapped in an undeniably female body, and so could never completely fulfill the masculine side of the equation - sex, in and of itself, felt good.

"Please..." She whispered, emotion raw in her voice. "Please, Richard... don't turn me away. I.. I literally couldn't bear to have you do that. I.. I've put my very soul on the line, and it's in your hands. You know how important being 'the best' is for me. If you turn both parts of me away, tell me that neither part of me is good enough..."

Richard blinked again - then, slowly, settled back on the couch, a strange little smile playing across his lips.

"I think..." He said, thoughtfully, his voice filled with the cheerfully wicked tone of a persona about to spring a not-altogether-unpleasant surprise on somebody. "I think.. I'd like to see 'Mistress' convince me that 'Missy' can give me as much pleasure as she claims she can."

Missy jerked upright, a stunned expression crossing her face as the import of what he'd said slammed into like a hammer: He wanted her to dominate him into letting her be submissive to him.

For a second, Missy simply sat there, mind in a whirl, as she stared at him. He, in return, looked back at her, face wreathed in the smile of a cat who'd gotten into the cream.

Then Missy stood bolt upright, her spine almost audibly snapping erect as she cast her features into the haughtiest look possible.

"Oh, I understands." She said, scornfully, crossing her arms just below her prodigious bosom and staring down at him. "I get it - Oh, I surely do get it."

She took two slow, powerful steps closer to him.

"You look at this body..." She said, contemptuously, spreading her arms to indicate her taut, toned body. "...and you see utter, powerful perfection. You see the epitome of feminine perfection - and so, of course, you say to yourself; 'This woman could never, ever let such a body be submissive to a mere man'. You see all this power, all this glory, and think that nobody could have the force of will necessary to actually let herself deny her own powerful perfection."

Her sneer curled more pityingly. "You have no idea how much force of will I have, you pathetic little worm. I'm going to show you how utterly, unbelievably forceful my will can be. Go ahead, you worthless piece of shit - pick any part of my flawless, powerful body, and I'll show you just well I can force myself submit to a worm like you."

Smiling openly now, Richard slowly looked her up and down, taking in every curve of her body. "Your legs..." He said, softly.

"Of course you'd pick my legs." She said, looking down past her massive breasts. "You see these powerful, supple legs, and you know how easily I could crush you under one heel with them. You see all the power and strength inherent in such long, toned legs, and think I couldn't possibly get one close to you without giving into that very urge, to do what should be my every right to do, and grind you into dust. You think I just couldn't resist using my incredibly smooth, strong legs for the very purpose the universe so manifestly intended. Well, you slimy little maggot, I'll show you how 'weak-willed' I am to my own God-given rights."

Locking the knee of her left leg, she slowly lifted her right, balancing stork-like on her other leg as she brought her lifted foot closer and closer to Richard's face, spike heel almost threatening as it neared his unprotected head...

...and then slid slightly to the side as she leaned ever-so-slightly forward and rested her ankle on his shoulder.

Lightly rested her ankle on his shoulder, carrying all her own weight on the other leg as the smooth arch at the back of her ankle settled onto his shoulder with all the weight and force of a feather.

"You see?" She asked in scornful triumph. "I can force myself to be more gentle and delicate and willing than a mere man like you would ever truly deserve. In fact, as odious as allowing myself to do this is, it doesn't even task a fraction of my will power. You might think that if a mere man, like yourself, was ever as impertinent enough to actually touch my leg, I'd be so overwhelmed with justifiable anger and disgust that I'd just have to respond. Well, I dare you - go ahead and try to get me to react..."

Grinning boyishly, Richard did just that, reaching up and laying one hand gently on her long, smooth leg, slowly letting it glide back and forth over the lightly oiled contours of her taut appendage.

"You see...?" She said, fighting to keep the scornful tone in her voice as a shiver of pleasure thrummed through her. "I didn't so much as even twitch."

"You're right, you didn't. I have to admit that much, at least." Richard agreed, slyly. "But what if I did something much more 'odious'...?"

Letting his other hand join its mate on the delightful contours of her leg, he slid both hands forward, more firmly and openly caressing the smooth, supple flesh of her thigh...

...as he turned his head and, lightly, began kissing her calf.

"No..." She said, fighting against the increased waves of pleasure that thundered through her, partially physical but, even more powerfully, emotional, thanks to Beatrice's 'reinforcement' of Missy's own belief that a woman should enjoy pleasing a man. "Even that won't make me give you the thrashing you so well deserve."

"Impressive, very impressive..." Richard said, with mock solemnity. "What if it was something even more... infuriating...?"

Sliding his hands even further, he sent one over the smooth, firm flesh of her hip, while the other one took the long way around, lightly sliding across the slick fabric of her leather bikini until it, like it's mate, was cupping one firm, full buttock.

As he filled each hand with the taut flesh of her derriere, Missy shivered with delight, not daring to speak lest her voice betray her. Lifting her leg, she tucked it under Richard's arm, folding it at the knee and leaning forward until it rested on the couch beside Richard's own leg. With his 'help', in the form of a tightening of his delicious grip, she slid her other leg up on the couch as well, straddling him the kneeling position as he continued to fondle her ass.

"Well?" He asked, a grin playing on his lips. "Ready to admit you couldn't possibly let a 'mere man' do something like this to you?"

"No." She said, struggling with her voice. "Go ahead, do your worst..."

"Oh, really...?" He asked, grinning - and then he leaned forward, and promptly buried his face in the cleavage so conveniently located at face-level.

It was a fight not to moan in pleasure - but Missy, barely, managed to keep the moan in, maintaining her 'character' in the face of the most adverse circumstances. Even when Richard's lips found her right nipple, his right hand found her left breast, and the other hand continued fondling her right buttock, she managed not to gasp at the triad of wonderful sensations emanating from her body.

Finally lifting his mouth from her nipple, he looked up at her face with a mock look of consternation. "Well, it looks like I underestimated your resolve - but I think I can still make you 'break'." He said...

...as the hand that had caressed her left breast slid down across the corset to the small clasp on the side of her leather bikini. With a simple flick of his finger, the left side dropped to hang loose - and, a second later, the hand that had rested on her posterior performed the same task on the other side.

"I doubt very much whether a 'perfect' woman like yourself could ever do something as base and demeaning as actually have sex with a man..."

Missy didn't answer...

...not verbally, in any case.

Though, without a doubt, the way her hands slid down beneath her raised crotch and quickly tore open Richard's pants could have been construed as meaning something. Likewise, those same hands encircling the base of his already-rigid cock might have been taken as some sort of statement...

...and when she slammed herself down onto his cock, plunging it into her womanhood to the hilt, it might be said she was clearly refuting Richard's claim.

Even as she slammed herself down upon Richard's hard cock, part of her mind was stunned, barely able to believe she was doing this - that she was, in fact, willingly have sex with a man. That part of her mind screamed that this was fundamentally wrong, that she should be disgusted by what she was doing...

...but, then again, that was exactly what a tiny part of her mind had always said, back when she was male and using mind-control to force women to have sex with him.

It hadn't stopped her then - and it didn't stop her now.

With Richard's hand on her hips, helping both support and guide her, she lifted herself up - and once more, thrust herself down upon his cock...

...and this time, she couldn't help the gasp of pleasure that escaped her throat. "See...?" She said, immediately, as she lifted herself again. "I can even pretend..."

Another downward thrust - and another gasp. As she rose again, she continued: "...to like it." Down.

Up.

"I can force..." Thrust.

Lift.

"...myself to say..." Down.

Up.

"..such ridiculous..." Thrust.

Lift. "...unbelievable..." Down. Up. "...statements..." Thrust-lift. "...like..."

Down-up

"Oh..." down-up "...GOD..." thrust-lift "...I love..." down-up "...having..." thrust-lift "...your cock..." down-up "...filling..." thrust-lift "...my cunt!"

Then the increasing speed and power of the rhythm was too much even for Missy's iron will to prevail, and she abandoned coherency for wordless screams, gasps and moans of pleasure.

The erotic alto symphony produced by her altered vocal chords was met with a matching tenor counterpoint from Richard as he bucked his hips in time with her rapid thrusts, now shorter and faster than before.

Missy was barely able to think. Male, female, history, future - it was all irrelevant. All that mattered was right now - and the sensations that came in the moment.

The long, auburn hair, swaying and shimmering over her shoulders.

Breasts. Firm, round, saline-filled breasts that bounced and jiggled with each short, swift thrust.

The rhythmic expansion and contraction of leg - and to a lesser degree, arm - muscles as she rode Richard like an expert horsewoman on a bucking bronco.

Most of all, though: The incredible, delightful, amazingly wonderful friction of her surgically created vagina tightly clenched around a warm, thick, throbbing cock as she bucked and bounced atop it.

A shimmering, cascading, rollicking series of sensations that built and built and built...

...until she reached a mind-numbing orgasm.

"Oh, God, Richard - YESSSSSSSS!" She screamed, not even knowing it, as her coordinated movements became the spastic shaking of sheer ecstasy. "Holy... fuckin'... shit!"

A split-second later, Richard also came, grunting with the force of his ejaculation.

"Holy... shit.. is right..." He agreed, breathlessly, as they slumped against each other in the aftermath of the orgasm.

Pushing slightly away from his chest - regretfully, as it meant her breasts were no longer delightfully pressed against his warm body - she put a stern look on her face.

"I hope you've learned your lesson, Richard." She said, firmly. "I expect, next time, you'll listen when I tell you I'm quite capable of fucking your brains out."

"Oh, I won't ever doubt you again..." Richard said, pausing significantly for a second before saying, firmly: "...my sexy, slutty little Missy!"

Missy shivered with delight at the sound of her submissive name, the stern look - no matter how feigned - instantly giving way to a vapid-looking smile.

"Oh, Richard..." She said - and even her voice sounded higher, more giggly. "Just for that, I'm going to give you a blowjob that will blow your mind!"

As she started to slide off his lap and lower herself to her knees in front of him, Richard sighed. "I don't know if you'll be able to, right away..."

He could have saved his breath.

In her own, oh-so-eager-to-please way, Missy was even more determined to have her way then Mistress was...

...not that Richard was complaining about it, of course.

For, dear me, why abandon a belief Merely because it ceases to be true?

Cling to it long enough, and not a doubt It will turn true again, for so it goes.

-Robert Frost

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: One gemologist stumbles upon a rich, green, emerald and without knowing whether it is the fabled "Emerald of Vrandu" which grants the bearer one wish, he wishes to become a better person and suddenly, things change rapidly.

Better Person

By Gunslinger

It couldn't possibly be true...

...but...

...what if it was...?

His lean, tanned face set in a mask of pure indecision, Jack Walsh turned the small, gold-bound gem in his leathery hand.

It was such a small thing. A rich-green emerald, in a multifaceted ovoid shape, ringed in a narrow gold setting. If there had been a small hoop mounted, it would have passed inspection as a simple pendent, albeit a fairly expensive one.

According to the anonymous letter that had come with it, however, the small gem was anything but innocuous. If the unsigned letter was to be believed, Jack was holding one of the fabled Eyes of Vrandu.

'Fabled' was the right word. According to the mythos of a very small Polynesian religion, the statue of their God, Vrandu, had once possessed a gold-rimmed emerald for each of the twelve eyes depicted in the stone deity. Today, that statue, on the small volcanic island of Tongandu, boasted ten gold-rimmed diamond-like gems, with two stone sockets left empty. The natives had claimed that the 'eyes' had been stolen many years ago - because each eye would grant the bearer one wish, after which the emerald would go clear...

Jack, of course, hadn't believed any of the mumbo-jumbo. He'd just been finishing his schooling as a gemologist, and had jumped at the chance to travel with his Mentor to the small island. They'd been summoned there by the authors of a book-in-progress, who were trying to verify or 'debunk' various world myths for their non-fiction opus. They wanted to know what the 'eyes' were, precisely...

Both Jack and his mentor had been shocked to find that the stones tested out as utterly clear emeralds - something practically unheard of.

That didn't mean Jack believed the stories, of course...

...but how was he to explain what he was holding? It looked identical to the 'clear emerald' eyes he'd seen, only boasting a rich-green emerald shade.

He'd already checked - it was a real emerald. If this was some sort of prank, it was an expensive one...

Angrily, the lean, dark-haired young man banged his free hand down on the table, trying to figure it out. Since he was practically broke, sharing an old frame farmhouse on the edge of town with his closest friend, Dave, Jack had been tempted to immediately sell the emerald for the cash value.

He couldn't believe he was holding back because of the chance the stories might be true...

His own self-doubted tortured Jack even more. He was a man with many faults, and he was honest enough with himself to acknowledge them - including the fact that he was woefully unimaginative, skeptical almost to the point of fanaticism. So why was he even considering the possibility...?

With a sigh, Jack lowered his head, finally admitting the truth. He was hesitating to sell the emerald because, deep down, he desperately wanted it to be real - so that he could lose some of his skepticism. Not to mention some of his anger, hidden so deep inside and only escaping as a compulsion to keep everybody at an arm's-length from him, emotionally speaking. Jack Walsh was a man with many flaws - and they all combined in such a way to make sure he stayed lonely.

He truly didn't believe the gem was mystical or miraculous... but he so desperately wished that it was.

Well, there was only one sure way to tell if the stone was, in fact, 'magical'...

Taking a deep breath, Jack closed his eyes and whispered his most sincere wish into the air: "I wish I would become a better person.." He breathed...

...and felt a pang of disappointment when there was no Hollywood 'Special Effect', no sudden transformation or magical change that swept over him and left him, in some measurable way, a better person.

With an angry sigh at his own gullibility, Jack opened his eyes...

...then blinked, looking at the perfectly clear stone he held in his hands.

"What the...?" He asked himself, slowly and unconsciously rising to his feet as he stared at the inexplicable changed stone he now cradled in his tanned, bony hands. For a second, he actually considered the idea that somebody had snuck in and - somehow, without him noticing - switched the stones.

It seemed a more reasonable explanation than 'magic' - except that, somehow, 'magic' seemed eminently logical at the moment.

Still, even with that illogically solid conviction that some sort of magic had just been expended in the kitchen of his apartment, there was no sign that anything had changed.

"Maybe I have to 'jump start' the magic somehow.." Jack mused, stepping out of the kitchen and pacing up and down the length of his living room, instinctively avoiding the artifacts and souvenirs of hundreds of trips as he paced back and forth, a distracted expression on his lean face. "Maybe I need to choose somebody to help, and the stone will let me do whatever I need to help them.

Helping somebody would definitely make me a better person... but who do I choose to help...?" Actually, as soon as Jack framed the question, the answer leapt immediately to mind:

Melvin.

Jack was pretty sure his neighbor had a last name, but Jack had never learned what it was. Heck - he hadn't even met his neighbor in the other apartment sharing this short wing of the building until almost a year after he'd moved in - the short, scrawny, bespectled man who lived in the apartment didn't seem to have any friends - and it wasn't coincidence that Melvin also seemed to lack any self- confidence whatsoever. Jack had always held Melvin in a state of contemptuous pity, thinking that the skinny brunet should really go out and 'get a life' - but, now, Jack found himself thinking that Melvin was the perfect candidate for a test-run to help Jack become a better person.

The question was - what should Jack do to help Melvin's life improve...?

The answer exploded in Jack's mind all on it's own, almost as if 'shoved' into his forebrain by some sort of outside force.

"Melvin needs a girlfriend." Jack exclaimed, snapping the fingers of his free hand, barely aware of the way he was holding - clutching - the now-clear emerald to his chest with the other hand. "Melvin definitely needs a girlfriend. The question is... how do I provide one...?"

Muttering the question to himself over and over again, Jack paced up and down the floor, wondering how to put the sudden - and as far as he was concerned, unarguable - realization to work...

...and then the obvious answer hit him like another bolt from the blue.

"Why...!" He exclaimed, slapping his open palm against his forehead. "If there's really magic, I should be able to turn myself into one!"

Of course! He couldn't believe it didn't jump to mind immediately. It was just so obvious... Well, at least to him it was.

"So... What would be the perfect girl for a guy like Melvin...?" he mused, no longer pacing - and unaware of the faint golden glow now issuing from his hand, just as he was consciously unaware of how out-of-character it was for him to have come up with this 'solution', much less for him to be calmly contemplating how best to put the plan into action.

"Well, she'll need to be someone who can... pull Melvin into a new and better life - in a way he'd enjoy, no less..." He muttered to himself, brow lowered in thought as he stared sightlessly at the floor, his mind focused on the task on hand - at least, the technical details of it, since he just didn't seem to feel like considering any of the implications of the 'obvious' decision he'd made.

Still lost in thought, he was barely aware of his own actions as he slowly made his way to his bedroom, moving like a man in a daze as he positioned himself in front of the brass-framed full-length mirror in the corner of the cluttered, undeniable single-male-occupied bedroom. With the rumbled, unmade bed behind him, his stocking feet surrounded by drifts of 'sorta'-dirty laundry, Jack considered the vast range of possible feminine identities, going through them methodically and in exquisite detail - without once considering the fact that, even as little as an hour ago, he would rather have died than allow what he was now calmly considering come to pass.

"Maybe..." He said, eyes still staring sightlessly - but now aimed directly at the mirror, his brain processing the image, even if it didn't quite make it as far as his conscious mind. "Maybe she should be tall - but slender..."

That description could have fit him, too - but only when the person defined was male, since 'tall and slender' had completely different connotations when used to describe the female portion of the populace.

For instance, women were generally less muscular than men - just like the way some of Jack's muscle-mass softened and 'spread', forming that thin layer of sub-dermal adipose tissue that smoothed and even the contours of his remaining muscle mass.

Likewise, a 'slender' woman usually had a slimmer waist, in proportion, then a similarly described male - just like the way Jack's fairly trim waist compressed slowly and painlessly in on itself, his white cotton work-shirt hiding the change from sight, even as his once-hard 'six-pack' abs, now smoothly contoured yet still firm, finally shrank to the relatively miniscule measurement of seventeen inches.

Even the way his wrists and ankles became slimmer, more fine-boned, wasn't noticeable - since the cuffs of his shirt and pants pooled over them as he lost a couple of inches in height, which should have been damned noticeable...

...except that, even with his eyes vaguely focused on the mirror, it didn't consciously register - almost as if he were somehow being 'encouraged' to ignore what was happening to him.

"Yeah... tall and slender..." He muttered again, consciously unaware of the fact that he now matched the feminine version of that description - even the bones in his face and neck had become finer in general, giving him a 'neuter' look, something that could have been femininely masculine or mannishly feminine. "Tall, slender... and leggy. Yeah - long, toned legs would be perfect..."

Again, he wasn't truly aware of the way the cuffs of his pants rose an inch upwards again, the extra height applied solely to his legs - which, hidden behind the tan denim of his pants, were painlessly reshaping themselves into smoother, finely contoured legs, with toned-yet-smooth muscular providing sensuous curves and delightful dips along their silky-smooth length.

A fine pile of body hair fell, unnoticed, around his stocking feet.

"Yeah..." He said, animation starting to flood his face again as he got 'caught up' in what he was imagining, still mostly locked within the vaults of his own mind, and barely aware of what his senses were reporting. "Yeah, that'll be perfect - long, sexy legs, the type that look absolutely great in those kinda old-fashioned pantyhose..."

Jack wasn't exactly an expert on feminine fashion, so that was the closest description he could come up with, verbally - but he could see the sheer hosiery in question just fine in his mind's eye - and so he would have immediately recognized what his legs were shortly encased in as his socks stretched slowly upwards, the materiel becoming both darker and finer as it pulled itself up his now smooth legs, a thicker seam appearing up the back of each nylon as the tops become lacy black elastic fabric, lightly gripping the firmly smooth flesh of his reshaped thighs.

"Yeah, that'll be just right - black back-seamed nylon stockings with French-lace trimmed elasticized.. no - no, black-on-red-French-lace garters would be even better..." He decided 'on-the-fly', as unaware of his new hosiery changing to match the mental imagery as he was of the fact he now knew exactly what to call the items hiding behind the dun-colored fabric of his pants. "A woman with world-class legs would definitely were something that sensuously classy..."

Even a man with 'world-class legs' would, apparently - but Jack wasn't really aware of that, his now 'eager-to-continue' mind jumping right on ahead.

"World-class legs... made even better by a pair of classy-yet sexy high heels, like..." He stalled out on the description for a second, the footwear in question pictured in his mind...

...as he slowly rose higher off the floor, pushed upwards atop the gleaming black heels that were spinning themselves out of nothing, even as his mind was given the terms he was looking for:

"...like a pair of rounded-toe two-tone evening pumps with a six-inch stiletto heel and gold-tone piping separating the black patent leather and the dark-red crushed velvet of the pattern..." He finished, not aware that he could look down and see exactly that now enclosing feet that were smaller and more finely formed - feminine, in fact, looking right in home in the elegant-and-sexy shoes, whose toes, heels and rear thirds were all black patent leather, with the remaining section covered by dark-red crushed velvet, separated by thin gold piping.

Just as he'd imagined...

"..and a skirt that would be just perfect..." He muttered, picturing the garment in his mind's eye...

...then watching, wide-eyed, as the fabric of his pants shifted and changed.

The skirt that shortly encased his lower half clung tightly to her hips, ass and legs, following the shape of his new legs down to his ankles - but the black crushed-velvet skirt had an extremely high slit cut one either side, Kimono-style, trimmed with gold piping and lined inside with dark-red silk that showed when he shifted to slide one long, sexy leg out through the slit, keeping his weight on the other leg and bending the exposed leg ever-so-slightly at the knee to get the best 'line' to admire the new gam in the mirror...

...without actually connecting the image in the mirror with his own body, looking at it objectively, as if he were seeing somebody else. His eyes traced from the top of the skirt's waistband, tight around his tiny waits, down to his dainty new feet in their high-heeled pumps - but never straying upwards to the still-mostly-masculine upper half of his body.

"Yeah, like that..." Jack muttered with a small frown, turning three-quarters on to the mirror. "But... with wider hips..."

The fabric of the shirt expanded, following the wider, more feminine contours of his hips.

"...and a fuller, sexier ass..." He continued, not consciously acknowledging the fact that he was watching a body - whether his or not - magically transform before his eyes as his derriere expanded firmly, filling the taut fabric with two firm, sensuously-packed buttocks that practically begged for a masculine hand to glide appreciatively over them.

Now caught up in the very real 'imagination game' he was thoughtlessly playing out, he didn't hesitate in the least as he 'officially' changed genders with the comment: "...and that cock just ruins the line of the skirt, especially erect like that - she should be wearing black-lace-on-red-satin panties that fit snug over her tight, wet cunt..."

The now under-endowed-but-spectacularly-leggy woman gave a shudder of pleasure as the new sensations from her womanhood flooded her body - or rather, the hormonal surge of female chemicals that came with it, since 'wet' described the vagina of an aroused woman, and so her half-transformed body was flooded with the 'right' hormones for the job - the job being a high-level state of completely feminine arousal.

Of permanent feminine arousal, actually, since the descriptive term hadn't been conditional - Jack's new vagina would always be 'tight and wet'.

Except, of course, that Jack wasn't consciously aware that she was now a woman with a cunt, since despite all the 'clues' that were as unmistakable as they were unarguable - 'he' still didn't consciously connect what 'he' was seeing in the mirror with 'himself'.

"Hmmm..." She said, meditatively, clasping her other arm over the hand that still clutched the glowing jewel to her chest, her chin resting on the other arm's fist as she stared in the mirror,

'ignoring' the fact that the woman in the mirror had struck the same exact pose at the same exact time. "She'd look great in a tailored black-silk blouse with flared red silk cuffs..."

Which was exactly the garment that encased her torso a second later, clinging tightly to her slender waist and slimmer shoulders, the shirt boasting gold-toned buttons set with small diamonds...

...diamonds that matched the one now mounted on the black-silk band around her slender neck, forming a stylishly Victorian-inspired cameo. The 'diamond' was still glowing, casting a sheen of light over the smooth skin of her neck and upper torso, left exposed by the shirt's wide, red-silk 'Butterfly' collar, which was trimmed in black lace that matched that on the cuffs of the shirt.

"Much better..." She murmured to herself, her voice having risen to become a sweet, clear contralto at the same instant the cameo necklace had formed around her neck. Now the changes were actually running ahead of her ability to make a comment on them, her racing mind eagerly providing the details to this 'ideal woman' for Melvin as she watched the changes with a equanimity that would have horrified her an hour ago.

Her neck, now slimmer and slightly longer, was supporting a face that was no longer the least bit masculine - instead, it featured a sharply-defined jaw line that came to a smoothly-rounded point, above which her lips had swelled out into bee-stung perfection, a dark-red coat of lipstick appearing out of the same thin air as the mascara that coated the long, fine lashes that lightly veiled the dark, sensuously-mysterious eyes that sat on either side of the fine-bridged nose her face now boasted.

Her heart-shaped face had been surmounted by a short mop of dark, somewhat stringy hair - but that was completely temporary, as the unstyled 'haystack' quickly grew out into long, silky-smooth black hair wove itself up into an elegantly loose bun, held in place by red-black-and-gold combs that matched the rest of her outfit - including the gold-rimmed 'diamonds' that the long, chandelier-style earrings now dangling from smaller, more finely shaped earlobes.

"Oh, yes - she's just gorgeous.." She breathed in her sweetly sexy new voice as she turned first one way, then the other, admiring the tall, trim - and eminently feminine - image in the mirror, a sexy-yet-elegant woman whose expensively tailored clothes clung tightly to her body, covering almost every inch of her now smooth, creamy skin without really 'hiding' and of the supple contours that lay beneath.

Of course, there was really nothing worth hiding under the blouse, which clung depressingly tight over her woefully under-developed chest - the final remaining detail that needed to be cleared up...

...and even as the wave of distaste flooded Jack's mind at seeing the flat-chested image in the mirror, the fabric covering that chest rippled and began to push outwards, propelled by the firm, taut mounds of firmly-soft flesh that were rapidly growing behind it, a growing amount of creamy cleavage well displayed by the low neck-line of the blouse that now clung tailored-taut over her well- formed new EEE-cup endowments, her new, larger nipples poking impudently into the thin fabric.

"Hmm..." She mused, idly tapping one long, perfectly-shaped blood-red fingernail against the similarly-tinted flesh of her full, sensuous lips. "Not bad, not bad at all... but to be really something, what if..."

The fabric 'twitched' - then pushed outwards again, driven by the masses behind it, whose growing weight and inertial potential was still being ignored by Jack's brain as they passed the 'fruit' range and into the 'sports equipment' range, slipping past 'volley-ball' without a hitch, until the fabric of the now ingeniously-tailored-for-her-figure blouse managed to cling tightly to both slender waist and massive, firm breasts that were the size and rough shape of basket-balls... yet infinitely more enjoyable to caress.

Jack new this for a fact - since she was lightly caressing the massive, silk-covered mounds, shivering slightly at the wonderful sensations coming from the sensitive flesh, all without consciously considering the source of those wonderful feelings.

"yeah. yeah, that's better..." She mused in her new voice without hearing it's dulcet tones. "But it would be even better if..."

She gasped slightly, feeling the first physical discomfort so far - from the way the black-and-red corset now lurking beneath her blouse hauled her waist in an additional two inches, the mere fifteen-inch-waist displayed by the still-tight fabric of the blouse and skirt's waistband. The custom- tailored built-in cups of the corset lifted and separated her breasts, displaying her massive chasm of cleavage perfectly, while managing to keep her now huge nipples from being ridiculously obvious.

"Yes!" She said, enthusiastically, clapping her hands together in delight. "That's the perfect woman to seduce Melvin out of his pathetic little life. Well, physically, at least - but to be perfect, she'd have to have the perfect personality, too. She'd have to be..."

A mental 'layout' of the perfect personality for both the body 'he' was looking at and the job 'he' had for 'her' popped into mind...

...and Jacqueline blinked twice, then slowly and sensuously smiled at her reflection in the mirror, one dainty, long-nailed hand coming up to lightly fondle the smooth, cold facets of the clear emerald of her cameo...

Actually, the smile only started from looking at her reflection. It didn't blossom into full strength until her new eyes focused over her reflection's shoulder, fixing on the slender, pale man who'd appeared on the elegant brass bed that the feminine-decorated room now boasted, his scrawny little body half- reclined on the black-and-red comforter that covered the red-silk sheets beneath.

"What...?" Melvin exclaimed, his mind spinning. One second he'd been sitting in front of his computer, wasting more of his life in one of the endlessly available chat rooms where he could electronically fantasize his virginity away with the equally untruthful supposed women who logged on for cyber-sex...

..and the next, he was in the middle of a situation more fantastic than any he'd ever typed out on his keyboard, sitting in a huge bed centered in a huge bedroom whose floor-to-ceiling windows showed a Tourism-pamphlet-perfect view of the French Pyrenees, the light streaming in to either soak into the black-painted walls and red deep-pile carpet, or pick highlights from all the brass...

...or any of the abundant mirrors, including the huge, single-piece mirror mounted in the ceiling above the bed.

For all the elegant sensuality of the room, however, Melvin's gaze was almost automatically drawn to the room's other occupant, a tall, deliciously slender woman in black, her incredible ass facing him and one long, luscious leg slightly extended for his viewing pleasure.

Then the woman smoothly, sensuously swiveled...

...and Melvin gaped, eyes blinking behind his thick horn-rimmed glasses as he stared into the apparently endless cleavage supplied by the massive breasts that seemed ready to tear her black silk blousy asunder.

"Bonjour, mon chere, et bienvenue..." The woman said in an incredibly rich, sensual voice. "I am Jacqueline, and I am so very happy to welcome you to my boudoir..."

With a sensuously elegant stride, she walked over to where Melvin sat, stunned - and she settled onto the bed with him, her slender arms sliding around his slight frame as she pressed herself firmly against him, the point of his poorly-defined jaw sitting nestled between the creamy mounds of her abundant breasts.

"...and to my arms..." She whispered - as she leaned forward and firmly pressed her lips against his, parting them slightly and letting her long, supple tongue snake out, demanding he return her eager, hungry, highly-skillful kiss.

It was a demand Melvin met, more out of pure instinct than anything else, since the feel of her against him, the smell of her wonderful perfume, and the slight tang of a fully-aroused woman all overwhelmed his senses.

"He has no idea how hard it is for me to force myself to do this!" Jackie thought, gleefully, fighting the urge to pull away from him, instead pressing her lush new form more firmly against his.

After all, a 'good' person was somebody so utterly self-sacrificing as to give up their own identity - their own gender - in order to provide another person with pleasure...

...and a 'great' person was one who did so without once letting anybody know how utterly demeaning the sacrifice was. This was her wish come true - her chance to be a much better person by putting somebody else's desires and dreams ahead of any consideration for herself.

Which was she was able to keep a sincere-looking smile on her face as she finally broke what had turned into a long, passionate kiss. She did it with a show of reluctance that hid her relief at getting the kiss over with - even though Melvin obviously would have been happy to extend the passionate embrace indefinitely.

Mind still whirling at the inexplicable events, Melvin tried to ask the obvious questions: "How... I mean, what... How did...?"

Feigning a sensuous smile, Jackie pressed one slender finger against his lips, feeling the warmth of feminine arousal flooding a body that was more sensitive than a 'normal' woman's - and, in fact, attuned specifically to Melvin, making his touch physically pleasurable, despite her own emotional dislike for what she was doing. She, after all, wasn't stupid - enlightened self interest allowed her to feel intense pleasure when she performed the emotional unpleasant acts of her new feminine identity, providing her with more motivation than she would have otherwise have felt.

So, by choice and through willful decision to reach her goal of being a better person, she let herself soak up the physical pleasure of his contact with her new body, disgusted by what she was about to do, yet also excited and aroused, looking forward to the physical pleasure it would bring.

"Does it matter...?" She asked Melvin in a hungry, sensuous voice. "I'm rich, beautiful and sexy, and I want to spend the rest of my life making sure that you're utterly happy in every conceivable way. Do you really need to know any more than that?"

Melvin actually gave the thought a second's consideration before arriving at the obvious answer: "Nope."

Her smile widened. "Good. Now, lay back and let me give you more pleasure than you've ever experienced "

"Okay..." He agreed, wide eyed and in a higher-pitched voice than normal, still barely willing to believe that this could actually be happening to him, but looking forward to the promised apex of ecstasy she'd promised him...

...and if she hadn't mentioned that it would also provide her with more physical pleasure than she'd ever experienced, as well... well, why clutter his mind with things he didn't need to know? Her new goal in life, to make herself a better person, was to provide him with constant pleasure in every conceivable physical, emotional and intellectual form, and anything that might cause discomfort in any of those modes would only be counter-productive. Let him think what he wanted about her own motivations and pleasures - she'd never explain to him how any of this came about, since she was sure she could find suitable methods of... distracting him whenever the topic came up - just like she'd done a second before, making a promise that she now set about to keeping.

Rolling over, she exposed almost the entire length of one nylon-clad leg as she deliberately used the vast new storehouse of skills and 'experience' magically implanted into her to provide the most perfect sensual image she could - every second of every minute, for the rest of her life, though Melvin didn't yet realize that this woman didn't have an 'off' switch for her sensuality...

...not that he cared, of course. He was too busy appreciating every choreographed movement as she sensuously slid the leg over his, gracefully shifting her weight with a sensual roll of her hips that left her straddling him, skirt gracefully a-kilter to allow her panty-clad crotch to rest lightly against his, her long legs now gracefully folded and spread to allow her to brace herself easily atop him, her crotch lightly grinding against his with slow movement of her hips, yet without all her weight resting on him.

"I know what you want - you want to get your hands on my wonderful breasts.." She said, sensuously, lightly running her hands over the silk that covered most of her magnificent mounds...

...and then she smoothly gripped the edge of the blouse and yanked it apart, mentally grateful that her new persona was rich as she ruined the blouse, buttons flying all about as her massive, firm breasts were exposed, just slightly more than half-enclosed by the cups built into the corset she wore...

...and which she promptly folded under her massive mounds, allowing him free and unrestricted access to her highly sensitive new breasts, shivering in physical pleasure and emotional disgust as he took advantage of the situation, reached out to awkwardly massage and fondle her massive, firm tits.

Between the actual physical pleasure her heightened flesh was giving him, and her new 'acting' abilities, she moaned and murmured low in the back of her throat, creating the impression that this was the best 'tit fondling' she'd ever had...

..which, technically, was the absolute truth - though she had absolutely no plans of telling that to Melvin, much less explaining why it was so. All she cared about, in terms of 'informing' Melvin of anything, was making sure he believed that she was completely enjoying what was happening, burying the emotional discomfort of having a man touch her under the physical pleasure that came from the same circumstances.

"Oh, yeah, Melvin, you're incredible.." She moaned, licking her full lips in semi-feigned passion. "I don't know whether it's experience or innate skill, but you've got the Midas touch, mon chere - it just feels so very good..."

With one smooth, swiftly graceful motion she reached between her own legs and literally tore his pants open, ripping his briefs asunder to set his already rock-hard cock free.

"...but not as good as having this big cock of yours in me will feel." She finished, over-stating the dimensions of his somewhat smaller-than-average cock as she gracefully tore her own panties off, hiding with perfect duplicity the cold tremor of horrified disgust that was running up and down her smoothly-arched new spine.

After all, the more disgusting whatever she did was to her, emotional, the better person she was for going ahead and doing it anyway - which was how she was able to lift herself up slightly, pausing only for dramatic reasons at the top of her motion - and then dropping downwards to impale her tight, wet cunt on his throbbing man-hood...

...and scream out in pure, unfeigned pleasure as her unused vagina perfectly encased his hard cock with its warm, slick folds, the intensified pleasure of her specifically-created body doing exactly what it was supposed to - providing her with extreme amounts of physical pleasure to help her fulfill her goal of keeping Melvin utterly happy. Despite all her emotional and intellectual disquiet, the sheer force of the physical pleasure she was experiencing from having Melvin's cock filling her pussy meant that she'd have no problem at all 'forcing' herself to fuck him whenever - and, equally important, however - he wanted.

"Oh, Mon Dieu! You feel so good filling me all up like this..!" She said, both utterly honest and completely deceptive at the same time. "Oh, Melvin, please, show me how much pleasure a woman can feel - fuck me, Melvin, fuck me...!"

Though she was on top of him, she waited until he awkwardly and uncertainly bucked his hips, once then she let loose the scream of intense pleasure that even his awkward thrust created, then began to ride him, picking a slowly building rhythm that allowed her to pretend that it was he setting it, not her...

...and she continued to compliment him constantly as she fucked him, slowly and steadily, aiming towards giving him the most pleasurable orgasm he was capable of experiencing.

"Oh, yes, my love - you are better than any other man I have made love to.." She said, truthfully but misleadingly, choosing to 'dip' a shoulder so that his own instinctive roll to keep her in place made it look - and Melvin feel - as if he were controlling this, instead of her. "Oh, my dear one, you are the best. The absolute best - nobody has ever pleased me like this before..."

Which was the simple truth, despite - or, considering, maybe even because of - the emotional disgust she had to 'fight through' to continue making Melvin happy.

Yet - the pleasure continued to build. Already more intense than anything she'd ever felt, it was but the tip of the iceberg, the pleasure continuing to mount in longer, stronger waves that began to overlap each other as she slowly increased the speed and power of their timed thrusts - all the while using millions of little tricks, not the least of which was her words, to convince Melvin that she was merely following his lead - that it was he who was causing all the pleasure.

In truth, he was doing little more than lay there, hips bucking in instinctive reaction as she guided him closer and closer to his most potent orgasm ever...

...not to mention the same for her, as well.

"Oh yes, oh yes, oh yes...!" She screamed in actual ecstasy, her own concerns temporarily sliding away under the waves of pleasure, no longer caring how or why the sensations were being generated as he let her magically-trained body slip into 'automatic' so that she could better enjoy the sensations. "Oh, baby, you are the best !"

Then, with a perfectly-timed twist of her hips, she pushed both of them over the edge...

The orgasm hit both of them with tremendous force - almost literally, since their bodies jerked and writhed spasmodically, caught in the grip of a pure wave of pleasure that overwhelmed everything else, leaving them screaming wordlessly in unison, announcing to the world the force of the simultaneous orgasm that ripped through nerves and seared the brain with wonderful forceful fire...

...and then it was past, fading more quickly for him than for her, but allowing conscious thought to begin to form once more.

It took ever ounce of will she had not to scream in horror over the fact that she'd just fucked a man.

Instead, she forced her new lips into a sincere looking smile as she lifted herself off his cum-slicked cock, sliding her body downwards as she gave him one last, slow smile...

...before 'eagerly' closing her mouth over the disgusting mixture of fluids that coated his softening cock.

Fighting the urge to vomit, she 'cheerfully' slurped away at his cock with unequaled skill, knowing full well that being a better person wasn't a simple event, but a task that she was dedicating her entire life to. No matter her own personal feelings and desires, she was going to spend the rest of her days subsuming them in Melvin's wants and needs...

...and he would never, ever know how much she was really doing for him.

Which, of course, was sort of the point, she thought as she wrapped a hand around the base of his again-hard cock and proceeded to give him the first of what would be many, many, many long, incredibly pleasurable blow-jobs.

Well, for him at least...

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: When the girlfriend of a somewhat selfish guy gets a necklace as a gift, she accidentally wishes that her boyfriend would understand what it is like to be a woman; and he does.

Birthday Gift

By Gunslinger

With exaggerated motions, the lean, dark-haired young man 'sneaked' into the kitchen, his sneaker-clad feet making no sound on the tile floor as he moved towards the attractive brunette standing at the kitchen sink, staring with a certain sense of melancholy.

Pausing for a second, Chris took the opportunity to run his eyes over his girlfriend.

Dressed in a pair of tight, faded blue jeans, over which was a purple silk blouse, belted at the waist and hanging (unfortunately, to his way of thinking) to cover her pert, taut buttocks, she was caught perfectly in the morning light streaming in the window. Once again, Chris thought to himself how unbelievably lucky he was to have netted such a 'total babe' - even with her few 'little flaws'.

Shaking his head, he padded silently over to where she stood. She was still lost in thought, on hand resting against her neck as she stared out the window.

When he wrapped his arm around her and kissed her on the neck, she started slightly - and then turned in his arms.

"Happy birthday, honey!" Chris said, holding out the bouquet of flowers.

"Thanks..." She said, a bit dryly, as she eyed the $4.99 special from down at the local store - and Chris could well guess why.

"The real present's in the envelope." He assured her, handing over the flowers. "I didn't forget your birthday this year - and I sure as hell didn't 'cheap out'."

That drew the bright smile that made her delicately-boned face light up, and he took a step back and watched with a grin as she carefully placed the flowers in a case full of water before plucking the white envelope from within.

"Hey - is that necklace new?" Chris asked, as she lifted his envelope and hefted it experimentally.

"Excuse me?" Cindy asked - and then her hand went to the pendant around her neck - a tear-drop shaped 'emerald' on a gold chain. "Oh, yes - it's my present from my Aunt Gail. You remember her, don't you?"

"Yeah." Chris admitted, sourly, as Cindy opened the envelope. "She's the batty old one, isn't..."

"What the hell is this?" Cindy demanded, waving the little card that had been in the envelope under Chris' nose, her original look of expectation having passed through shock and into anger in the blink of an eye.

"It's a promissory note for..." Chris started, confused.

"Oh, I know 'what' it is!" Cindy said, crumpling it up and throwing it aside. "What I meant was, how the hell did you think it was a good idea to give me a promissory note for one free 'boob job'?"

She pronounced the words Chris had used on the card in such a tone to make it abundantly clear that they were his words, not hers, and then put her fisted hands on her hips and glared at him.

"But..." Chris stammered, confused. "You.. You keep sighing about how small "

"No, Chris " She cut him off, sharply. "In the two years, three months and six days we've been together, I may have mentioned all of two times that it would have been nice had I 'filled out' more during puberty."

She waved a hand in the general direction of the A-cup endowments on her slender ribcage. "That's a hell of a far cry from wanting to to deface my body!" She continued, angrily. "I mean, I know you wish I had bigger boobs - but whatever made you think I'd be willing to be cut open and have plastic and silicone shoved into my chest?"

Actually, they used saline in implants these days but Chris, with a burst of insight unusual for him, decided it might not be the best time to correct her on that point. "Sorry." He said, meekly. "I just thought "

"Well, don't!" She snapped. "If you 'thought' I'd like to get some ridiculously fake, over-inflated 'stripper' tits, then you're not very good at it!"

Turning back to the sink, Cindy held the kettle under the faucet and turned on the water. As she listened to the metallic tinkle of water hitting the inside of the stainless-steel kettle, she continued chewing on Chris' unbelievably insensitive 'present'.

"Yeah, well " She muttered, purposefully loud enough that Chris would be sure to hear her over the sound of the running water. "I wish you had to lug around a huge, fake pair of silicone-pumped tits all day."

With a rattle, the kettle hit the bottom of the metal sink - as Cindy gasped and her hands flew to her neck, where the pendant had momentarily flared with an icy cold that left her skin a-tingle.

"Chris..." She said, amazed, starting to turn...

"Holy *fuckin*g shit!" Chris screamed, his voice high-pitched and hysterical.

Cindy finished her turn - and, after a split-second of confusion, felt anger flare anew. "That's not funny!" She snapped, furious.

Chris was standing, half bent-over, his green eyes huge as he gaped at her. His hands were cupped around whatever it was he'd stuffed into his loose-fitting gray cable-knit sweater - a pair of basket- balls, maybe, judging from the size.

"Holy shit, Cindy - I just grew a fuckin' pair of tits!" The dark-haired young man 'sobbed' - rather convincingly, to Cindy's surprise.

Not that it was even close to being enough to defuse her anger

"Goddamn it, Chris - stop screwing around!" She barked. "It's not funny!" "You're right!" He agreed with her, hysterically. "It's not!"

She opened her mouth to retort...

...and then he straightened up, and lifted up his sweater.

Her involuntarily step back slammed her up against the counter.

Her boyfriend had tits! Huge tits! Massive, round, unbelievable fake tits...

...just like the over-pumped 'stripper tits' she'd been thinking about a second ago.

"How the hell could this happen?" Chris wailed, cupping the massive - and to his amazement, remarkably heavy - boobs.

"I wish I knew!" Cindy gasped back...

...and there was another ice-cold flare at her neck - and she did.

She gaped at her boyfriend a second longer, watching him cup the massive, ridiculously over-sized breasts...

...and then she began to laugh. "Cindy!" He all-but-sobbed.

"I.. I did that to you!" She gasped, pointing at his huge new bust - and then broke out in fresh peals of laughter.

"What! How? Why?" Chris demanded - and then decided all of that was secondary. "Get rid of them!"

"I.. I can't..." She gasped, wiping tears of laughter from her eyes as she forced back the hilarity. "Why not!"

"It's this..." Cindy said, tapping the pendant. "It.. It grants any wish I make today - actually, on my birthday, every year from now on. I can't 'retroactively' alter a wish, though... and I did specify 'all day'. I can't wish them off you until sunset, at the earliest."

"What?!" Chris screamed, hastily yanking the sweater back down over the massive tits. "You mean I'm stuck like this for..."

He did some quick math.

"...eight or nine hours." Cindy supplied for him, ever better at math than he was. "That's right.. 'dear'."

Catching her amused tone of voice, he shot a dirty look at her.

"This isn't funny!" He exclaimed - and the outraged tone was rather spoiled as Cindy helplessly broke into laughter when, out of habit, he tried to angrily cross his arms over his chest.

"Sorry..." She gasped, not at all contrite. "I mean... I didn't really mean to do that to you - but, on the other hand, now you get to see what you wanted me to go through!"

"I never wanted you to get tits this.. freakish!" Chris said, indignantly. "I was thinking you'd look good as a D - or maybe DD. Not these.. these... hell, I have no way of even guessing what cup size these monsters are!"

Cindy cocked an eyebrow.

"Well - let's find out." She said. "I've got that sewing tape around her somewhere..."

She began to root through the kitchen drawers, while Chris dolefully contemplated the massive, round tits he was helplessly obliged to schlep around for the day.

"Here we are...!" She said, emerging from one of the drawers with a soft cloth tape measure. "Now just lift up your sweater..."

"No." Chris said, firmly - grabbing the hem of his sweater and pulling downwards for good measure, apparently unaware of the fact that this defiant move only molded the material more tightly to his massive tits.

Cindy frowned - and then smiled.

"I sure wish you'd let me measure you..." She said, deliberately...

...and, helplessly, Chris found himself doing just that.

Cindy wrapped the tape around his ribcage - and to get it all the way around, she practically had to bury her face in his deep new cleavage. Chuckling to herself at his obvious discomfort, she measure his bust-line...

"You're an MMM-cup!" She announced, laughing. "God, Chris - you're huge!"

"Really?" He asked, dryly, hastily yanking the sweater down now that he was able to. "I hadn't noticed."

He walked over and dropped, heavily, into a chair - and grimaced as his new tits bounced and swayed.

"Damn - these things weigh a ton!" He said, shaking his head. "I never realized tits were so damned heavy."

"Yeah - you never even stop to consider 'little' things like that." Cindy said, not without some bitterness in her joshing tone - and then she grinned.

"I can help, though."

"Cinnnnndy " Chris said, threateningly.

"I wish you were wearing a perfectly fitter brassiere " Cindy said, smirking - and then, on a whim:

" and, in fact, for as long as you have tits, all you clothing will be perfectly designed not only to fit, but to show off, your boobs."

"What?" Chris squealed - but it was too late.

As Cindy watched, amazed, Chris' sweater writhed and reformed itself - into a pearl-gray sweater- vest with a deep 'V' neckline that not only gave a generous display of his new cleavage, but hinted at the massive white underwire bra he now wore.

Chris grunted as some of the weight of his massive new tits was taken up by the straps of the bra - and he shot Cindy a poisonous look after one quick, shuddering glance down into his canyonesque cleavage.

"Very fuckin' funny." He said, pushing himself up from the chair and staling towards the door. "I'm going up to my room to see if your damned wish left me with anything a little more.. sedate."

"Hey..." She said, smirking, as she followed him towards the staircase ascending from the post-war home's living-room/foyer up to the equally cramped second floor. "If you got 'em, flaunt 'em - isn't that what you guys always say?"

"You're enjoying this waaaay to much." He accused her, stamping angrily up the stairs. "Can you blame me?" She asked him, 'sweetly'.

He frowned. "No, damn it - and that's just one more thing that pisses me off!"

She laughed as he stomped the rest of the way up the stairs and disappeared. It was things like this that reminded her why she'd toughed out two years of 'serious' relationship with Chris. Sure, he might be deathly afraid of any form of commitment, and yes, he could be insensitive at times, and certainly, he was way to 'sex obsessed'... but those were just the flaws anybody had. Nobody was perfect.

Now, on the other hand, he had many good qualities, too. Though, as his 'gift' had shown, he could be really stupid when it came to understanding women's emotions, he was always willing to try and make her happy.

He was annoyingly 'sex obsessed', seemingly forever wheedling her to 'come to bed'. She was no prude, and liked sex at least as much as the next woman - but, really, four or five times a day? If not for the incredibly annoying fact that Chris could, in fact, keep that sort of schedule, day in and day out, it would have been utterly ludicrous.

Still...

Even though she didn't even come close to meeting all his 'requests' - especially for blow-jobs, which she regretted ever having done for him, as now he never stopped asking - at least he didn't get bitter over the times she turned him down... and when she did have sex with him, he made an honest effort to please her, as well as himself. Likewise, though she was ticked off by how often he asked her to 'suck him off', she couldn't stay mad at him for that... because he was completely willing to go down on her on request. It wasn't his fault that she liked getting 'eaten out' even less then she liked sucking cock.

Finally, there was the quality he just displayed - his brutal honesty. Not that it was all that rare - or at least, the version many men used to justify saying cruel things to people. No, what made it so unusual was the fact that Chris was lawyers brutally honest with, and about, himself.

So - good points and bad points, and she'd take one with the other, no matter how you looked at it... except for maybe the fact that, two years older than Chris' twenty-seven, she was seriously beginning to worry that she'd never get married.

As familiar thought ran through her mind, evoking the familiar sigh, she started to turn from the bottom of the stairs...

...and then stopped dead, her face going slyly thoughtful.

It lasted all of about a second - and then she shook her head violently, appalled at even considering wishing him into matrimony.

No - if she couldn't get him to the alter 'honestly', she wouldn't get him there at all. If she'd been that type of woman, she could have let herself 'accidentally' get pregnant, as she knew Chris well enough to know he would have felt compelled to marry her if that happened - and so, being who she was, she'd always been extraordinarily careful about it.

She was standing there, thinking about it, when the doorbell rang.

The front door of the 'compact' little house was only a few steps in front of the bottom of the staircase, so she only had to take a few steps to reach it. She pulled it open...

...and blushed brightly as she was greeted by a loud, enthusiastic, and badly off-key rendition of 'Happy Birthday'.

"My god!" She said, when the ordeal was over, reaching out to gather the tall blond and swarthy, dark-haired man into an embrace. "Brad! Jose! I can't believe it!"

She escorted the tow men into the house, feeling a certain sense of disbelief as she shut the door and ushered them to seats on the couches.

"I haven't see you two since.. well, since that day after graduation!" She said, still hard-pressed to believe her two best 'guy friends' from collage were sitting in her living room. "How the hell did you find me?"

Brad, who still had a physique reminiscent of the star quarterback he'd once been, grinned boyishly. "We didn't." He admitted, candidly. "Your boyfriend, Chris, tracked us down."

"Yeah - and he paid for me to come all the way up from Tijuana." Jose supplied. "He said he jus' had to meet those two guys who got 'sweet little Cindy' to do all those things you tol' him about."

Cindy blushed, brightly - while feeling like the worlds biggest bitch for daring think anything bad about Chris.

"Chris is upstairs..." She started...

...and then stopped dead, a decidedly odd look coming over her face.

"Excuse me." She said, in a strangled voice - and left them looking at each other in confusion. Reaching the door to the bedroom she and Chris shared, she just had to stop dead.

It's not every day you see your boyfriend standing in front of the closet, scowling, wearing only a pair of jeans - and a massive, sturdily-constructed white bra supporting his massive, basket-ball sized tits.

"Every damn thing - skin tight or a mile of cleavage." He muttered, then glanced briefly over his shoulder. "Who was at the door, babe?"

"Brad and Jose..." She said, breathlessly.

"Oh, shit...!" Chris swore, shaking his head. He gestured down at his chest. "With these things, I just forgot about..."

That was as far as he got - because his mouth was taken up by the deep, passionate kiss Cindy was giving him.

After a second, he returned it, with interest - that second's pause the result of coping with the fact that he was experiencing what it felt like to have a warm, supple body crushed against his massive new rack.

"Thank you, Chris." She said, when she finally broke the kiss. "I can't believe you went to the trouble of flying them up here...!"

He coughed into his hand, coloring slightly.

"Well.. I sent them bus tickets, actually." He admitted. "You need to thank them for being willing to sit for hours on the bus to get here - unless they redeemed the tickets and put the money towards airline tickets. Maybe it's best not to say anything at all..."

He stopped, mid-muse, and slapped his forehead.

"What the hell am I talking about?" He asked her, with a nervous laugh. "Fuck how they got up here how the fuck are we going to explain this...?"

He gestured, quite unnecessarily, towards his expansive new bust-line. Biting her lower lip, Cindy looked at her boyfriend.

"I.. I guess.. I'll have to, you know, 'wish' them to leave." She said, on the edge of tears. "Please, though - can you 'hide out' up here for a while.. please? Just.. just an hour, that's all I want. Just enough to, you know..."

"No." He said, in an adamant tone, causing her heart to plummet...

...and then he continued: "There's no way I'm letting you throw away your birthday present. Since your birthday fell on a Saturday this year, I arranged for them to stay overnight at a motel. They're here until about six tomorrow night - and you're going to enjoy every damned minute of their visit..."

He looked down at his chest again, and sighed.

"...my new endowments notwithstanding." He finished, wryly.

"But.. what are we going to do?" She asked, looking at him with love-struck eyes - and kicking herself. "I.. I can't get rid of your tits, and I can't even let you wear 'normal' clothes.. damn me for wishing that."

Chris chewed at his thumbnail, thinking it over... and then suddenly began to blush deeply. "What?" Cindy asked.

"Well, we never actually met..." Chris said, slowly. "I mean, I only talked them over the phone... I could say there was just some miscommunication, or something..."

"What are you talking about?" Cindy demanded, confused.

Chris took a deep breath.

"Well, what if..." He said, very slowly, blushing beet red. "...instead of Chris being your boyfriend - god, I can't believe I'm saying this - Chris was your.. 'girl friend'."

Cindy blinked - and then gaped at him.

"Wait - Wait just a second..." She said in disbelief. "Are you suggesting that I... That I do something like.. like wish you were a girl for however long you're stuck with those tits?"

A moment's dead silence...

"Well, I was considering it." Wryly replied the woman with the untidy mop of black hair, who - aside from her massive breasts, of course - would have been best described as 'boyish'.

"Opps!" Cindy said, then quite firmly clapped both her hands over her mouth as she stared at the young woman standing in her boyfriend's stead.

She was... cute. That was the only word Cindy could think of to describe the new woman Chris had become - and that included the huge, round tits, at that.

Somehow, those utterly massive boobs looked.. just fine on the woman Chris had become.

The new girl had a very lean, yet rangy build - not all that far from what the male Chris had boasted, in fact, just made the feminine equivalent. Overall, this gave the female Chris a decidedly 'tomboy'-ish look, especially with her short mop of hair and her lack of make-up - and yet it was in no way a 'masculine' look.

Her face, with Chris' mischievous green eyes, was tapered to a delicately rounded pointed chin, and boasted a thoroughly 'cute' button nose above her cupid's-bow lips. Her shoulders, though more delicately constructed, were still fairly broad, and her hips were 'boyishly' trim, yet still undeniably feminine. Her jeans, loose in the legs, were now skin-tight and quite flattering to her pert new ass.

She would never, ever be described as 'beautiful', nor really even 'pretty' - but the tall, tomboyish woman was damned cute, and even kind of sexy... in a very certain, specific way.

In fact, the new woman could have been the synthesis of a certain type of movie character, the combination and culmination of a Hollywood stereotype - that one girl everybody in town always thought of as the 'guy friend'...

...and with that certain look, those massive tits seemed almost a natural extension, a deliberate choice in order to shout in all those dim-witted males' faces: 'I'm a girl, you idiots!'

"You're going to have to try and be a lot more careful with that 'W'-word." The cute new girl told Cindy, without any heat. She looked down at herself and sighed. "Oh, well - it's probably for the best. At least it spared me the agonizing over making the decision."

"You're.. okay with this?" Cindy asked, hesitantly. Chris snorted.

"I'd damned well better be, don't you think?" She asked, wryly. "Uh.. maybe you should - very carefully! - make a wish to make my clothes fit, too."

Cindy hesitated for minute, then spoke - very carefully.

"I wish all of your clothes would match your new body for as long as you have it..." She said...

...and then looked confused.

"But.. what...?" She stammered, staring at Chris.

Very carefully, the new woman leaned forward, struggling to peer over her massive breasts at the long, coltish legs quite nicely displayed by the short jean skirt she now wore - and further 'enhanced' by the four-inch tall block cork heels of the white-leather strap sandals on her slender new feet.

Chris simply stared for a minute, then sighed.

"I think I know." She said. "You wished 'all my clothes'.. but you'd already wished my tops to be 'showy'. I guess, to keep the previous with intact, this wish just went with the trend. Not your fault."

"Oh." Cindy said, in a very small voice. "Now what...?" Chris sighed, then squared her new shoulders.

"Now we go meet your friends."

* * * * *

It was an interesting meeting.

There was quite some confusion over the 'mistake' of Brad and Jose thinking that Chris, ('Short for 'Christine', she ad-libbed) was a guy. Still, faced with ample evidence, they were willing to accept bad connections on the phone lines as a plausible explanation.

The fact that any woman so extraordinarily shy as 'Call me Chris' was could have gone and had such 'attention getting' implants was harder to accept, much less the fact that she wore such reveling clothes. Chris had a bad tendency to blush and mumble, couldn't seem to look anybody in the eye, and was decidedly awkward.

It obviously didn't help that, for obvious reasons, the guys quite often found themselves unintentionally ogling that massive bust-line of hers - especially since she seemed to have a tendency to unintentionally put it (and, occasionally, even her plain white panties) on display.

The only thing keeping the visit from degenerating completely into awkward silence was the almost pathetically desperate attempt Chris made to keep things 'flowing', her obvious desire to make sure Cindy enjoyed her visit with her old friends enough to inspire the two guys to do their level best to keep up with her efforts - even as they were amazed by her obvious affection for Cindy...

...and a bit suspicious.

Still, they kept any questions about sexual orientation to themselves, and gamely plowed onward - and then about forty-five minutes into the increasingly awkward visit, Brad slid off the leather jacket he'd still been wearing...

...and a ZipLoc bag of a dark green dried foliage dropped out of the pocket and onto the floor. A moment's dead silence reigned.

It was, perhaps predictable, Chris that broke it - but, unusually, it was without any blushing or awkwardness.

"Oh, dear God, thank you!" She said, fervently.

It was time to trot out the lie she'd been polishing for the last half-hour..

Okay, okay - she could have used it any time in the past twenty minutes or so. She'd just been putting it off because it was one of the most humiliating things she'd ever tried to do.

Being a woman was bad enough, and she was damned far from comfortable with the feminine role she was playing - but she was willing to do her best, for Cindy's sake. That was why she was willingly to force herself to allow all the implications that were part-and-parcel of the lie she'd come up with that would sufficiently explain everything 'odd' about her to Brad and Jose.

She paused just long enough to shoot a quick glance in Cindy's direction, hoping she'd pick up on what she was about to do would cost her... and then took a deep breath and went ahead.

"I grew up in a household with six sisters and a mother - all of them prettier than me - and no dad or brothers." She 'explained', and then smirked, despite her blush. "You probably didn't notice, but it seems to have mildly affected my ability to interact with members of the opposite sex."

The guys chuckled.

"With all my sisters - and my mom! - at least double 'D'-cups, and me practically flat-chested, it didn't help." She went on, jerking a hand at her chest. "I thought these would overcome my low self esteem - but still, put me anywhere near a man, and I become a nervous wreck."

Time to switch from lie to truth.

"You have no idea how much I'd love something to take the edge off..." She said, pointing at the baggy of pot.

It was true.

She didn't really want to be a woman - but was 'willing', for Cindy's sake - and since she was going to be one, like it or not, she thought she'd be a lot happier about it if she was so stoned she was unable to care that she had a huge pair of tits and a tight little cunt.

Without actually discussing it, the general consensus that a little pot would be fine was reached. From the conversation as Brad rolled up the first joint, Chris gathered she was the 'lightweight' of the group - and yet the most recent user. She'd tried it a couple of times a couple of years ago, had found it 'okay', but after she'd drifted away from the friend who'd actually been buying it she hadn't bothered to try and find her own source for the drug.

On the other hand, apparently the other three had used fairly conspicuously in college - but each had stopped shortly thereafter. The stuff Brad had brought was more out of nostalgia than anything, seeing as how they'd been when they'd first 'hung out' together.

It wasn't long before the joint was making the round of the little circle they'd formed - and Chris welcomed the drug's relaxing effects with a soft, fragrant sigh, already beginning to feel the first hints of the 'time warping' effect of the drug.

She hit the joints pretty hard - but, given her story, not only didn't anybody complain, they urged her to go ahead, take double-hits as it came by, and 'why don't I roll up another?'

With the drug came that familiar sense of the surreal, where everything Chris was purposefully focusing on seemed unbelievably crystal-clear and sharp edged.. and yet everything else vague, almost dreamlike. Which was, most of the time, perfect, since when she wasn't specifically focusing on her new body, she almost forgot about it - but, conversely, when she did think about it, it filled her entire awareness.

So she did her level best to pay attention to the other people in the room instead of herself.

The little party went much more smoothly after that, everybody very quickly becoming quite chummy under the false intimacy the drug leant.

Chris also got to see a whole new side of Cindy...

"You're right. You're absolutely right." Chris agreed with Brad, while inadvertently presenting him with a huge dilemma - to enjoy the 'upskirt' look of her straddle-legged position on the chair, or gape at the equally unaware shot down her top she was presenting him.

"Excuse me for a second..." She told him, blissfully unaware of his ogling. "Cindy?" She said, sweetly. "Help me in the kitchen for a second...?"

Chris didn't actually wait for an answer - he grabbed her hand and all-but-dragged her into the kitchen.

"What?" She asked, smiling softly.

"My god!" Chris said with a strange little half-amused, half-outraged giggle. "You're practically throwing yourself at them!"

Cindy looked at him - then giggled dreamily.

"I know." She admitted, sheepishly. "That's my dirty little secret - I get horny when I'm stoned."

"I can tell." Chris told her, with another giggle, letting herself be amused by this whole new Cindy, rather than outraged. After all, it's not like her outrageous flirting had (or was going to) lead anywhere - and it was fun to watch 'sedate little Cindy' play the horny little slut... once removed.

"If this was back in college, you three would already be in bed, wouldn't you?" Chris accused her, playfully.

"Damn straight." She giggled in reply.

"Well, now I know your secret." Chris told her, playfully smug. "From now on, I'm getting you stoned before I ask you for some sex."

"Oh, dear god, no!" She said, her theatrical expression of horror marred with a giggle. "Lost! I'm lost! Helpless before the famed Chris libido!"

Chris laughed.

"Don't laugh at me. I'm doomed to be a sex-slave for the rest of my life!" Cindy said with a badly over-acted tone of outrage and an equally theatrical pout. "I would have thought you'd be more sympathetic than this - what, with you being a 'fellow woman' and all."

As often happened when under the influence of marijuana, Chris was finding all of this unwontedly hilarious, and she just couldn't stop laughing - which pushed Cindy, barely able to restrain her own giggling fits, to keep the act going.

"Oh, sure, you can laugh about it!" She said, with mock anger. "Even other women can laugh about the fact that I just can't control myself around men - because it's not them who just.. can't.. help.. themselves!"

She said the last part in a hungry, helpless voice, rolling her eyeballs wildly and rubbing her hands over her jaw, pausing to suck on her fingers - and Chris was practically bent double, holding onto her slender new sides in near pain from laughter.

"It's not fair! It's not fair that I, alone, be burdened with this helplessness in the face of men's desires!" She wailed plaintively to the uncaring Gods - or, at least, the decidedly uncaring ceiling. She 'struck a pose', glaring at the woman on the very verge of collapsing with mirth.

"Oh, laughing mocker of my misery!" She declared, pointing a finger at Chris. "I wish you, too, would be struck by my affliction, and feel what it's like to..."

It finally registered on Chris - too late. "No!" She said, shrilly.

"...have to fulfill a man's every desire what?" Cindy asked, finally dropping the act.

Chris swallowed heavily.

"You wished." She whispered, horrified. "You wished!"

"I wished ?" She repeated, confused - and then her own eyes widened in horror, and she brought a hand to her mouth.

"Oh.. My.. God "

She reached out and pulled Chris into a tight embrace.

"I'm sorry - I'm so sorry!" She sobbed. "I wasn't thinking! I didn't realize what I was saying. I didn't.. mean.. I... I "

Her voice trailed off, and her head slowly swiveled in the direction of the kitchen door.

"They want us." Cindy said, hoarsely, unconsciously licking her lips as she stared at the door.

"I know." Chris replied, also staring fixedly at the closed door.

"I.. I'm not going to be able to resist " Cindy said, her embrace already starting to loosen.

"Me neither." Chris agreed, shuddering in her slipping hold. "Brad.. Brad's thinking about me right now."

"Nothing definite " Cindy said, speaking more of Jose.

"...not yet " Chris filled in, aware of her thick new nipples beginning to harden.

"...just wanting us back in there, so they can be near us "

"...look at us "

"...enjoy the sight and sound of us "

" until they do think of something definite they want to do with us." Chris finished.

"Whatever it is - we'll do it." Cindy said, hands dropping away as she took an involuntary and hard- fought half-step towards the door. "Oh, Chris - I'm so sorry..."

"Wait!" Chris gasped, sweat beading on her face as she fought the urge to go out into the living room - with steadily fading resolve.

Ignoring Chris, Cindy made one, last wish in a tortured whisper, another step closer to the door - and then, the last of her will breaking, she went through it...

...with Chris hot on her heels.

* * * * *

Their bondage started off simple - with a kiss.

Each of them, upon re-entering the living-room, curled up on their respective man's lap, and soon they would each kiss him.

Understandably, This prompted Brad to want to fondle Chris' immense tits - which, of course, she soon suggested he do - while Cindy was being equally 'agreeable' with Jose.

It wasn't long before Brad had a blissful smile on his face as Chris knelt before him, giving him the longest, most lovingly detailed blow-job of his life - to the accompaniment of the squealing bedsprings from upstairs.

So it went.

The guys actually stayed an extra two days before they were forced to go back to their jobs - and during that time, Chris sucked cock, got tit-fucked, and took Brad's cock into her cunt in every conceivable way to bring him a grand total of forty-two orgasms.

Kisses, fondles, squeezes and caresses, in both directions, were far to numerous to count...

...and that was only the beginning, for once the guys left, there was always the next man.

The specific wording of the wish, however, kept it down to one man, per girl, at a time. For a day or two, she would fulfill every desire whatever man she was 'on' might have - until, eventually, the novelty would wane just enough for another man's desire to become her new guiding light, and together the two of them worked their way through the ranks of available (and in some cases, supposedly unavailable) men who were lucky enough to cross their paths...

...and on it went...

* * * * *

"Six months, two weeks and a day until your birthday..." Chris whispered, cuddling up against Cindy in their bed during one of the few brief reprieves either one was granted.

Indeed, it was so extraordinarily rare that they coincide, they were taking full advantage of the fact hat they were each currently 'enslaved' to a married man, and that each man was currently home with their wives, leaving the two women a chance to be alone together.

Gently, Cindy stroked her buxom - and recently peroxide-blond - lover's leg. "Well " Cindy said, ruefully. "At least I'm sure you won't forget my birthday."

"Not likely." Chris said, with a decidedly unlady-like snort. They paused for a long, lingering, loving kiss.

"By the way, thank you..."

"...for that last wish of mine?" Cindy finished the sentence for her. "Gee, I think that makes five billion, three thousand, nine hundred and seventy-one times you've thanked me now."

Chris chuckled.

"It was the least I could do." Cindy sighed.

"No - it was the most you could do." Chris corrected her, firmly.

"I guess." Cindy said, not certain there was nothing more she could have done.

"Hey, don't be like that." Chris told her. "You couldn't 'unwish' what was happening to us, because the men were there and they continuously desired us just the way we were until well after your 'one day' expired. So, now we're stuck satisfying one-man-at-a-time until you're lucky enough to get a 'reprieve' like this that comes on your birthday, and can wish us out of this."

"Hopefully this year, fingers crossed..." Cindy said, suiting action to word. "It may be years." Chris cautioned - and kissed her again.

"One year or ten..." She told Cindy, slowly working her way downward. "Thank you again for having the sense to wish that, if we're going to be stuck doing these things for men, that we'll at least enjoy each and every part of it while it's happening."

"Five billion, three thousand, nine hundred and seventy-two." Cindy sighed in pleasure... and then she closed her eyes and enjoyed at least one thing that hadn't changed about her lover, even if her own attitude about Chris going down on her had done a one-eighty.

For all her force-learned skills and helpless compulsion when it came to pleasing men, it was for 'eating out' that Chris had a real gift...

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: What happens when you meet your rival at an arcade and suddenly find that two of you have transformed and now are going to face off?

Bitches Vs. Bimbos

By Gunslinger

"You've got to be shittin' me!"

Voiced in a stunned near-whisper, the comment vanished almost immediately under the cavalcade of noise that filled the room. Gunfire, explosions and engine sounds that were somehow more real than mere reality vied for aural attention against almost mockingly artificial bleeps, warbles, and buzzes.

Of course, the sound was almost matched by the brightly flashing lights, garish graphics, and brightly-marked machines that filled the arcade with computer-controlled pandemonium. Of course, that was simply a description of the sight and sound of hundreds of electronic and mechanical games filling the large arcade – the oftentimes equally garish patrons of the gaming establishment contributed visual and aural chaos all their own to the mix.

All things considered, James Roger McNulty's startled reaction vanished into that maelstrom like a drop of water into the ocean. By gaming standards, the lean, good-looking young man was neigh-on to bland, his toned body clad in a simple pair of jeans and a comfortable old grey sweatshirt. At the moment, the most noteworthy aspect of the dark-haired young man was his expression as he re-read the screen of the computer game in a semi-secluded nook at the back of the arcade, certain he had misread it.

However, even a careful second scrutiny insisted on informing James that the game he was looking at was called 'Bitches vs. Bimbos'.

"No... fuckin'... way..." James breathed, a smile slowly coming to wreath his face. Digging into the pocket of his jeans, he emerged with one of the tokens the arcade issued in lieu of coins, and approached the machine. The smile now elevated to full, shit-eating grin, he dropped the quarter-sized brass token into the machine.

He heard the token rattle its way through the coin slot. He saw the 'Insert Coin' notification on the screen flash rapidly thrice, followed by the word 'vs.' in the title doing the same. Rubbing his hands together in preparation, James waited for the start screen to appear...

...and was greatly disappointed when absolutely nothing else happened.

"Aw, c'mon..." James whined, giving the machine a hard slap on the side of the casing. When the percussive maintenance failed to produce any effect, James swore loudly.

A mocking laughter was his reply.

For a split second, James actually thought that the derisive laughter was the machine taunting him – and then it registered that the sound was coming from behind him, and he whirled in place to stare angrily at the lean young man, of a similar height to his own, who stood behind him.

"Poor little Jimmy can't figure out how to make the machine go 'blippity-bloop'...?" The other man taunted. His face, with much heavier features than James own, was well suited for the faux-pouting expression that went with that babyish voice he was taunting James with.

"Shut the fuck up, Sid." James snarled at his long-time nemesis.

Sid – dressed much like James, but with a faded orange t-shirt in place of sweatshirt – merely smirked as he approached the machine, none-too-subtly pushing James aside to take up a position square in front of the game.

"Let me show you how it's done..." Sid sneered, dropping a token of his own into the machine.

...and, shortly thereafter, swearing loudly and banging on the side of the game's casing as it failed to do anything more impressive than it had after swallowing James' token.

"Shit – probably nothing but a come-on anyway..." Sid finally muttered, after his rather impressive command of vulgarity ran dry. "Ah – to hell with this. You can fuck around with it if you want, Jimmy-boy, but I'm outta here..."

Swaggering away as if he'd really had no interest in the game to begin with, Sid headed for the broad front of the arcade, where it debouched into the multi-level mall the arcade was part of.

After a moment, his face tight with the intensity of his dislike for the other dark-headed young man, James also headed out toward the mall – but, upon reaching the brightly-lit, faux-marbled floor of the main mezzanine, James turned left where Sid had turned right.

In the very back of the arcaded, in a semi-secluded little nook where the game 'Bitches vs. Bimbos' sat, there was nobody nearby enough to notice that the screen of the game had changed to display something different...

With a swaggering saunter, Sid idled through the mall, openly appreciating the wide variety of nubile young eye-candy the commercial center had to offer.

Unlike that geek, James, Sid didn't come down here to waste an entire day in some dimly lit cavern full of gamer geeks; oh, he liked playing shoot-'em-up games a few times a day to burn off frustration, (of which Sid seemed supplied an overabundance), but mainly he liked the mall because of how many hot girls there were. Since the mall was climate- conditioned to shirt-sleeve comfort, no matter the weather outside, once inside people dressed for comfort – and for many of the girls, that meant they could look damned fine as they walked around looking at all that stupid girly shit, giggling and exclaiming over this purse or that pair of shoes...

Sid liked to look at the girls, and he'd really like to fuck a lot of the girls... but talk to them? About their dippy interests and dumb thoughts...? Thanks, but no thanks!

Eyeing one particularly fine pair of legs well displayed by a particularly short skirt, Sid felt the first, familiar stirrings in his crotch...

...only the growing sensations coming from his nether regions didn't remain 'familiar' very long. In fact, with every passing second, his crotch felt steadily less familiar... and, as his normal insouciant grin turned into a frown, the rangy young man realized that it wasn't just his crotch that felt 'kinda weird'...

"Whadda fuck...?" Sid murmured the demand to himself. Even the way he was walking – the way he always walked, for God's sake – suddenly felt strange to him. It was suddenly as if his hips wanted to move differently, and his ingrained stride was somehow suddenly all 'wrong' for him...

He glanced down at himself – and his steadily slowing stroll became a shocked dead stop as he tried to process exactly what his eyes were telling him.

Part of the reason he felt 'weird' was suddenly – if inexplicably – revealed, as Sid came to the highly confusing realization that his clothes had somehow become somewhat too big for him. The worn old t-shirt now hung on his body rather loosely, and his jeans were even worse, with the cuffs puddled around his ankles.

It was almost as if his clothes had suddenly grown larger... or if he, himself, had somehow grown shorter.

...which, as he pulled his gaze away from himself to look around in confusion, seemed to be the case. His dark eyes widened in shock as Sid realized, compared to the familiar surroundings of the mall, he was seeing everything from a somewhat lower vantage point than he ever had before.

"Nuh-uh..." He muttered, shaking his head more in disbelief than negation. "That... that just can't happen."

Whirling, Sid began to head toward the public bathrooms in this area of the mall – having to walk with a sort of skating motion, in order to keep his shoes from falling off feet that seemed not only too short, but much too slender for the footwear.

Even as he walked, Sid was well aware that there was a lot of other strange feelings and sensations registering as 'all wrong' – not the least of which was the sight of his arms as he hurried as best he could toward the bathrooms.

His arms were more muscular than they had been before. In fact, from the sensations he was feeling, Sid felt as if his entire body was not only more muscular, but more athletic. More agile. More limber...

...which was something that might have been seen as 'worrying and inexplicable, but positive'... in not for the fact that those same more-muscular arms were also undeniable more delicate at the wrist and knuckles, but also nearly completely hairless.

Well aware of the odd looks he was garnering as he 'skated' along as quickly as he could without tripping, Sid felt his face flushing and his heart-beat accelerating in a combination of shame, fear and confusion. Darting into the less brightly-lit hallway leading to the restrooms, he skittered past the bank of pay-phones and moved to duck quickly into the men's room.

He was only halfway through the door when he quite literally ran into an older man on his way.

"Oh, my – careful there...!" The bearded man exclaimed in a cheerful voice. Taking a step back, he took a somewhat longer look at the person he'd run into – and then pointed. "Er, miss...? This is the men's room. The ladies is just down the hall."

"What?" Sid blurted, confused and almost mentally derailed by the collision – he'd been so focused on getting to the relative privacy of the bathroom that the sudden interference threw him off. "What the hell are you...?"

His demand for clarification became clarification all its own as the sound of his own voice registered on Sid. Until he'd begun to castigate the older man, everything he'd said had been mumbled under his breath – it wasn't until now that he could hear how much softer his voice had become.

How much higher pitched. How much more... feminine.

For a second, Sid simply stood there, gaping at the older gentleman – then, with a move of desperation that his newly muscular body made surprisingly easy, Sid shoved the guy out of the way and – stepping completely out of his oversized shoes – dashed the rest of the way into the bathroom, and toward the large mirror mounted over the bank of sinks on the far wall.

"Hey!" The bearded man shouted. "You can't be in here, miss...!"

Ignoring him – indeed, very barely registering his words at all – Sid skidded to a stop in front of the mirrors. For a second, he stared in shock at what they revealed, refusing to believe it. Then, in motions made almost convulsive with frantic haste, Sid tore at the fly of his jeans, yanking them open and down even as he lifted the hem of his well-worn t-shirt with the other.

The half-clad woman staring at him out of the mirror shrieked in complete denial of what she saw, and Sid's ear-ringing blast of feminine horror was perfectly matched to the look on her face as she surveyed the muscular, but undeniably female body that was reflected in the mirror.

Short, mid-brown hair framed a smoothly oval face bearing fine features. Not stunningly gorgeous, not ugly, it would have been a fine, functional female face, unremarkable – except for the unusually muscular, but nevertheless undeniable feminine body that it topped. Though the breasts were not only taut and almost as solid as a masculine chest would have been, the dropped jeans revealed the pink slit that proved, without any possibility of argument, that this highly athletic figure was, in fact, a woman.

"Holy shit...!" A male voice blurted out, and as Sid's altered head snapped to the side, she became aware that she wasn't the only one viewing that undeniable visual proof of her new gender – for, after all, she was standing in the men's room...

A frown already on his face from the first occurrence, James stood on tip-toe and stared down the brightly-lit expanse of mall concourse as he tried to figure out where the second horrified female scream had come from. Even as he did so, the dark-haired young man couldn't help but shiver at the heartfelt despair that filled each of the high-pitched screams.

James was well aware of the fact that he was 'old-fashioned' in certain ways, and one of those ways that got him into occasional trouble was how he viewed women. More than once, he'd received less-than-complimentary responses to his habit of holding doors open for them, and his somewhat unusual formality tended to interfere sometimes with his (attempts at) social interaction... but the perspective was bred so deep in his bones that it wasn't really fair to consider it voluntary any more.

So, when he heard a woman scream like that, nearly everything in James screamed back at him to do something about it. Even if, as now, he had no idea of: who was doing the screaming; why they were screaming, or even; where they were.

With a sigh, James shook his head and turned, beginning to make his way back down the concourse toward the source of those screams. Even as he did so, he felt like a complete and utter fool, knowing that it probably wasn't any of his business, and that there were other people who were either closer and/or authorized to deal with such situations, but unable to stop himself from responding nonetheless.

He had only taken a few steps, however, when he suddenly began to feel rather... strange.

For one thing, he was moving... differently. In a hurry to get to whomever was letting out that despairing scream, he'd begun to move quickly – but instead of his usual, rather bullish stride, he found himself moving much more smoothly than usual – and much more energetically, as well. He felt as if he had a higher power-to-weight ratio than he was normally used to dealing with, each move coming with a springy power that was unusual for him.

Especially since that spring in his step was causing an odd little sensation on his chest... and was failing to create the 'bouncing' he was subliminally expecting to feel in his crotch.

However, with that scream still metaphorically ringing in his ears, James didn't – couldn't – take the time to dwell on the steadily mounting number of odd sensations his body was registering. Instead, he focused on trying to make his way through the relatively crowded concourse without actually shoving anyone out of the way...

...except that, inadvertently, he did just that. What should have been a simple arm-block to guide himself safely past a slim young man without body-checking instead pushed the other guy back a step as James somehow applied more power in the motion than should have been possible, given everything he knew about his own strength.

Except that it didn't seem to be 'his' own strength, something that was just registering independently on James when the slim young man, taking a look at her, supplied a secondary confirmation: "Hey, watch who you're shoving, you dyke bitch...!"

"What... What did you call me...?" James asked the man – a question of simple, if extreme confusion, compounded by the oddly light-toned voice it emerged in. The slim young man seemed to assume a different intent in the question, however, as he leaned toward her with a look of disgust on his face.

"You heard me, bitch!" He snarled. "I don't care how muscular you are, or how much you hate us 'disgusting pigs', you can't just go around shoving guys out of your way!"

"But, I'm not " James started to point out – and then stopped dead, eyes going wide and jaw dropping.

Startled by James' reaction, the slim young man frowned and took a step back, wondering what the hell was with this crazy bitch. A quick glance over his shoulder only confused him even more, as she seemed to be staring at the window display of a shop featuring soft, fluffy, lacy feminine clothes – hardly the sort of display that would seem to wring such a reaction from such a dyke bitch.

Of course, the slender young man had no idea that the 'dyke bitch' was staring in shock at the ghostly reflection in the shop window, rather than what lay beyond it.

"I... I'm a... but... that can't " The toned, highly athletic young woman stammered in shock. With her almost aggressively toned body and her crew-cut black hair, the figure of a 'bull dyke' lesbian was only further enhanced by the jean-and- sweatshirt combo that, along with the comfortable shoes, practically made her a stereotype.

How long she might have stood there, gaping in shock, was an open question – for a steadily growing commotion from the direction James had been heading drew even the stunned new woman's attention.

"I'm changing! I'm still changing!" A high-pitched female voice screamed in apparent horror, its owner pelting forward almost blindly as she sobbed and gibbered, caroming off people almost as if oblivious to their presence.

Despite being stunned....

No.

Because she was so stunned by her sudden and inexplicable transformation into a woman, James was running solely on that bone-deep instinct when she reached out and snagged the arm of the slender young woman as she tried to pelt blindly past. The newly feminized James had no problem bringing the slimmer, and much less more muscular, blonde to a sudden halt.

"What... what's going on ?" James demanded – not quite sure if she was referring to the blonde's plight or her own.

"I'm a girl!" The blonde howled in a voice that made the pronouncement sound like the crack of doom itself.

For a second, James simply stared at the slender, girlish blonde – and then the woman's the other woman's ...appearance really registered for James.

Oh, not so much the slender, girlish body; nor the blandly cute oval face, nor even the shoulder-length mess of tangled golden hair – but, rather the men's 'tighty-whitey' briefs and faded orange t-shirt that the woman wore, both oversized for her slender frame.

"Suh... suh... suh SID?!'

The blonde, gibbering to herself, suddenly snapped out of her intense self-interest to stare at the highly athletic, dark-haired woman who was holding her – and likewise took in the somewhat less ill-fitting ensemble the other woman wore.

" James?" She whispered in a high-pitched little voice.

"Omigawd, omigawd, omigawd..." The blonde whimpered, James' oversized sweatshirt making her barely 'street legal' clothed as the taller, Amazonian woman, quickly guided her further away from the commotion back on the mezzanine concourse. Having given up the outer garment, the athletic woman with the ear-length mass of dark hair wore only tank-style undershirt with her jeans, revealing a decidedly toned but unmistakably feminine form as she tried to shield her companion from various startled, (mostly feminine) disapproving, or (mostly masculine) approving gazes.

"For fuck's sake, quit your whining Si... Sindy!" James snapped, almost unthinkingly substituting the feminine name at the last second. The name-switch felt so completely natural that she didn't even think about it – but she did frown as she realized how easily she'd snapped at a woman, something that should have been unthinkable...

"But Jam... Janice...!" 'Sindy' whined, the substitution coming as naturally as it had to 'Janice'. "We're girls! ...and we're still changing!"

"Yeah. Thanks for the info." 'Janice' snarked with bitter venom – this time, the sense that it was completely out of character for her to do such a thing even more delayed and less powerful than the last. "In case you've been too wrapped up in you stupid little self to notice, it's happening to both of us, so suck it up and shut up!" She quickly guided the other woman onto a down escalator, heading for the ground floor.

"But Janice !" The cute little blonde whined in that annoyingly high-pitched little voice of hers. "My boobies are getting really big !"

Sindy only meant to pull up the sweatshirt, to show Janice how the shit underneath fit her still-changing body – but the fleece of the sweatshirt clung to the fabric of the shirt, and she inadvertently revealed a truly impressive pair of triple- D's to the world.

More immediately, to the shocked-yet-appreciative gaze of a young man currently riding on the up escalator beside them. Eyes wide, he turned and tried to ogle the blushing blonde babe as her taller, more athletic companion rolled her eyes, reached over, and yanked the sweatshirt back down.

"God, you're a fuckin' idiot !" Janice sniped angrily at the blonde.

Sindy's big, doe eyes filled with tears. "I... I'm sorry Janice. I didn't mean to... I'm just, like, so totally confused and stuff "

"You're pathetic!" Janice informed the steadily-more-busty blonde with joyful malice as she yanked her off the bottom of the escalator, propelling her toward one of the lower-end stores with a none-too-gentle push. "Now let's get you something to wear – unless you like showing off your tits to the world? That can be arranged, you know..."

"But... I... I don't..." Sindy stammered – then fell silent under Janice's gaze, meekly following the taller woman into the store.

The store itself was part of a large chain of 'excess stock' stores; as such, they carried a n extremely large variety of things, ranging from electronics to clothing to home hardware and décor. You could never go in expecting to find any given thing, however, as the stock was simply whatever larger stores had been selling off as out-of-production, poor sellers, or otherwise considered excess to requirements. It was, however, very cheap – and in part that was also due to staffing policies, which were basically 'anybody willing to work for absolute minimum wage'.

The rather grungy-looking eighteen-year-old behind the counter was a prime example of that hiring policy, since his red eyes and general demeanor gave him the unmistakable air of a stoner as he openly ogled the two women entering the store – the taller one sweeping by with an imperious athleticism, with her much 'girlier' companion trailing almost submissively in the more imposing woman's wake. The clerk, watching them approach, had already begin to grin at the sight of them, and by the time they were sweeping past him he was smiling almost goofily at them. The more athletic woman glanced at him only long enough for a quelling frown, but the clerk – a lean brunet nicknamed 'Goat', due to both his poorly trimmed goatee and the fact that his real name and frequent description of condition were both 'Randy'

– had expected that, and let it glance off of him.

What he hadn't expected was the cute little blonde number's reaction. Catching his smile, she seemed at first startled, and then pleased. Her steps slowed, her eyes brightened, and an answering smile began to form on her lips...

...until the taller woman sighed gustily, grabbed the blonde's arm, and hauled her deeper into the store.

Confused and scared, Sindy had to struggle not to burst into tears as Janice pulled her away from the cute guy who had been smiling so nicely at her; not treating her mean like that nasty old man in the bathroom, or all bitchy like Janice was being. It was bad enough she was, like, all girly now and stuff; why couldn't Janice let her have a few minutes being with somebody who obviously wanted to be nice to her and stuff...?

"You're a big doo-doo head!" Sindy swore at Janice... but in a small little whisper Janice would never be able to hear. She didn't want to make Doo-Doo Head madder than she already was...

"Here – this will do..." Janice said brusquely, grabbing a dress off of a rack and negligently tossing it at Sindy. "But..." Sindy started to argue.

"Just get changed, you dumb... bimbo!" Janice snarled – but only half paying attention, as she found herself looking at some of the other clothing. Not that she was in any way eager to wear women's clothing, of course; but her own clothing was getting steadily less suitable as she changed, and since she was here anyway...

"Yes, Janice..." Sindy submitted, in a soft little high-pitched voice. She didn't want to wear a dress herself, of course, but she needed something to wear... but, even as she edged toward the changing room, she eyes the other clothing around her, thinking that if she was going to have to wear girl's clothes anyway, shouldn't she be trying on some of those really pretty dresses over there...? Especially since there were like, these totally cute shoes over there that would just be, like, so totally awesome with that dress, and...

"Dammit, Sindy...!" Janice snarled. "Now!"

With a squeak, Sindy turned and fled toward the dressing room – but not before hastily yanking this, like, totally cute outfit off a rack as she passed.

A moment later, Janice followed, some items in her own arms.

All of which meant that the return of the two women to Goat's check-out was even more enjoyable than when they first passed by.

The bitch looked damned hot in the denim-print spandex capris and white cotton crop-top she'd picked out, highlighting the long-legged, lean sensuality that had been clearly hiding under her baggy clothing. With long, black hair done up in an asymmetrical ponytail, she clearly knew she looked fine, and the way she moved atop the 'leather' sandals with their three-inch block heel was a strong-yet-sensual strut. The look she was giving him, however, clearly advertised that while she was enjoying looking so hot, a man doing the same might be in a world of trouble.

The same couldn't be said for the bombshell blonde who was smiling brightly – if rather brainlessly – in his direction, however.

Goat had known she must have a pretty fine figure under that sweatshirt, but he'd had no idea she was this hot! The hot-pink spandex miniskirt was awesome enough on its own, much less paired with the white platform sandals with five-inch heels that did good things for her quite nice legs and ass – but that wimple white t-shirt with pastel pink lace trim was literally straining under the massive load of the clearly braless breasts that filled it to near bursting. Hell, each massive orb of jiggling tit-flesh was bigger than her own head!

With her hair done up in pigtails, she was the next best thing to a living wet dream, a look that was only enhanced as, with a squeal of delight, she plucked a cheap tube of hot-pink lipstick from the display and quickly applied it to her lips.

Watching this, the dark-haired woman rolled her eyes... and then stopped, her attention suddenly riveted on the same display. Her eyes narrowed and, gaze daring Goat to make an issue of it, plucked a tube of wine-red lipstick from the display. A faint blush the only sign of possible embarrassment at the overtly feminine action, she quickly and efficiently applied a glossy coat of dark red to her own, full lips.

Still embarrassed by the oddly fulling action of applying lipstick to her new lips, Janice strove to find a way of distracting herself – and found it in tormenting the stupid, pathetic little bimbo Sid had become.

“Pay the man, Syndi.” She ordered, imperiously – and then, leaning slightly closer to Goat and stage-whispered: “That’s S, Y, N, D, I – as in Syndi Silicone, both her stage name and new legal name. Keeping track of more than one would have... confused the poor thing, if you know what I mean...”

They both turned to look at ‘Syndi Silicone’ – who was somehow managing a bright, bubbly smile, a bright-red blush, and downcast eyes, all at the same time.

“But Janice, I tried to tell you, I really, really did !” She whined in a high-pitched little voice with a lisp that turned ‘really’ into ‘weally’, causing Janice’s teeth to grind together. The stoner, sick little fuck, seemed turned on by the breathy whine.

"I don't have any money!" The brain-dead pair of walking tits wailed in a voice that, by all rights, should have shattered glass. Janice wished she was Amazonian again, if just to cram a fist down her throat to shut...

Wait a second....

Slowly, Janice began to smile as she thought about what else could be crammed down Syndi's throat.

Completely unaware, at least on the conscious level, that one hand was almost frantically rubbing her crotch, the other at her as-yet-unnoticed larger chest, Janice smiled evilly.

"Well then, Syndi – if you can't pay the man for our pretty new clothes " Janice said, a hungrily wicked tone to her voice, " I guess you'll just have to suck him off, instead!"

Eyes dancing with evil delight, Janice threw her head back, and beginning – in approved Mad Villain style – began low, deep in the back of her throat: "mmmmwwha-ha-ha-HA-HA-HA !!!"

Syndi blinked.

Like, ohmigawd, Janice was, like, totally laughing about it! She giggled.

She pouted, prettily, in confusion. She didn't get it.

She looked to the cute guy for help.

He was smiling at her. Well, at her boobies. Janice was laughing. Well, kinda laughing.

Weren't they mad she couldn't pay for the pretty...? Wait. What had Janice said ?

"Like, oh-mi-GAWD!" Syndi shrieked at Goat. "I like, so totally COULD give you a blow job for the pretty clothes, right?! I mean, I'm like a total FREAKING babe, ya'know? Isn't that, like the coolest thing ever?!"

Yeah! He agreed! He was, like, so totally nodding at her, and smiling!

Dimly, Syndi was aware that Janice's laughter had stopped as if cut off with a knife, but couldn't pay it any attention. She leapt across the checkout counter, and into his arms.

"Oh!" She suddenly remembered to inform him; "I've got, like, totally huge boobies, too!" He'd noticed. That made her giggle.

Janice stared in shock at where Syndi was energetically and enthusiastically, if not necessarily skillfully, going about her 'wery, wery firstest sucky-wuckies'.

Yuck.

Yet.... oddly enough...

The guy seemed to like it. He seemed to like what Syndi was doing, however poorly.

"But... That.... That's not what was supposed to " Janice stammered, unconsciously licking her lips. Unthinkingly, dismissively, she said. "Hell, I could have done that."

She paused, then sniped spitefully: "Hell, I could do better than that."

A beat later: "Ah, hell, get the fuck out the way, you useless cunt. I'll show you how to suck cock "

© 1997 - 2016 TGstories.

SUMMARY: Ten years after a mysterious substance leaks into a lake, a somewhat crippled man inherits a cabin by the lake and finds that he suddenly has turned into a woman with strange desires.

Black Lake

By Gunslinger

15th January, 1982 - 9:35 p.m. Somewhere in the Colorado Rockies

The wiper's of the Army-surplus 'deuce and a half' did the job of clearing the snow that landed on the olive-drab truck's windshield, but that only allowed a clear view of the blinding swirl of snow that threw back the truck's headlights in a dazzling glare. The road - if it could be called that - was invisible just a few feet from the massive bumper of the vehicle, and the deep, reassuring roar of the big diesel engine was lost in the howl of the wind.

"I told you we shoulda waited until tamorra', Morty." The small, ferret-like man in the passenger seat of the truck said in a sharp, perpetually whining voice. His Brooklyn accent was so thick that you could cut it with a knife, seemingly visible as the steam that emerged every time he spoke in the unheated cab. "Now we's lost in de middle of nowheres, and fer what? A coupla hunnerd bucks?"

The big, sullen looking man behind the wheel didn't even look over at his 'friend' when he spoke. "It's almost a grand a piece, Dugan. Now, look at that damn map and try to figure out where the hell we are." Although his voice also identified him as a native of New York, his accent wasn't nearly as pronounced as his weasel-like companion.

"I'm tellin' ya, we should just toin around an' go back. So, a load of chemical crap don't get illegally dumped in da middle of nowheres. It ain't the end of the world." The small man fumbled with the map, trying to make head or tails of it. "I'se tellin' ya, it was a real stupid idea to agree to this. I mean, those drums in the back? Who knows what shit is in dem. We could be, like, soakin' up raid-ee-ation, or some such shit. P'rbly give me cancer or sumtin, and den I'd have to go to a hospital - which I can't afford. So what the hell are we gonna do, Morty?"

The hulking man thought that one over, and arrived at an answer. "Shut up.", he explained succinctly.

Dugan considered that. "Yeah, well, why don't we toin around, and come back when de blizzard's over?"

Morty snorted. "This truck can't turn around on this road, Dugan. What, you want to get stuck, and freeze to death?"

Dugan was about to retort - the stiffened, and pointed to the right. The trees that had lined both sides of the road had given way to a large open air, covered in freshly-fallen snow. "Well den, what if we toin aroun in dat field? Dis rig's got damn big tires - we won't get stuck or nuffin." He looked over at his hulking friend. "Or we's can keep goin' - and p'rbly end up in Outer Mongolia or sumpin'."

Morty grunted. "Yeah, right." Still, he slowed the truck, then turned the wheel and guided the truck towards the snow-covered clearing among the trees. The big truck bogged down for a second, then began to make a large circle in the snow.

Suddenly, the entire truck shuddered in accompaniment to a loud creaking sound. The truck lost it's traction, the large rear wheels spinning uselessly as the truck slued around in a full circle, coming to rest facing the road.

"What the hell...?" Morty exclaimed. He released the accelerator, dropped the transmission into the lowest gear, and gently eased down on the gas.

The engine's revolutions increased - yet the truck refused to move. Letting off on the gas, he turned to Dugan. "It's no good - it's like we're sitting on ice or something..." His voice died as another crackling vibration shook the truck, and realization struck.

The two New Yorker's looked at each other wide-eyed - then scrambled frantically out of the truck. They immediately slipped on the ice-sheet under the concealing snow, and scrambled up again as the ice covering the unseen lake creaked again under the weight of the truck. The pair hurried pell-mell through the snow, slipping, sliding and falling frequently as they rushed towards the safety of the road as the ice of the snow-covered lake beneath them began to crack.

From the firm footing of the road, the two men turned and watched with identical expressions as, with a loud 'crunch', the truck tilted forward on it's slab of disintegrating ice. The headlights of the truck gleamed on the dark, cold water exposed by the widening cracks in the ice. Slowly, the truck began to slide forward on the tilted slab of ice, gathering speed. Then the ice disintegrated completely, and the truck vanished into the dark, forbidding water, marked by a burst of bubbles, and the eerie light from the headlights, which lasted a few seconds before they shorted out.

Dugan looked up defensively at his large companion. "It had snow over it, Morty. How's I s'posed to know it was a god-damned lake?"

Morty looked down at Dugan, his large, thick hands clenching and unclenching threateningly. Then, without a word, the massive man just turned, and began walking up the road, shoulders hunched against the chill wind.

Dugan looked after him for a second, then ran to catch up. "What? What'd I say?" he demanded truculently.

His towering companion looked down again. "I don't care if you are my brother-in-law - one more word from you, and my sister'll be a widow."

Dugan prepared to answer indignantly - then saw the look on Morty's face. His mouth snapped shut on his reply, and he fell silently in step with Morty. Side by side, shivering in the cold, the two men headed up the road, disappearing into the wintry gloom.

Behind them, deep beneath the deceptively placid water of the lake, the steel drums containing an unholy mixture of chemicals began the slow process of rusting away, one that would take more than a decade and a half...

* * * * *

1st July, 1999 - 11:02 a.m. Somewhere in the Colorado Rockies

The gravel access road crunched under the wide tires of the beautifully restored 1968 Shelby Cobra, its usually gleaming red paint muted by the dust from the drive.

It eased to a stop outside of a large cabin overlooking the crystal-clear waters of a smallish lake across the access road from the structure. The air was redolent with the fragrances of the mountain, the lake, and the trees, and the view was awe-inspiring and peaceful.

For most.

The driver of the Cobra was far from at peace as he looked over the landscape. With a sigh, he silenced the throaty rumble of the big Ford 472 cu. in. Engine under the racing-stripe adorned hood, and opened the door to the convertible.

Painfully, Frank Terrence Garvey levered himself out of the car, his massive arms providing support as he hauled himself out of the tan leather seat. Leaning against the side of the muscular car, he reached across to the passenger seat, and picked up his cane, leaning heavily on the aid as he removed his meager luggage from the trunk and slowly made his way to the front door of the aging cabin.

Tall, broad-shouldered and handsome in a square-jawed, tow-headed, all-American way, Frank could have posed for recruitment posters for the Marine Corps, of which he had been a part of. That is, if one ignored his atrophied and twisted right leg.

Six months ago, a training accident on the base had broken the leg in three places, and caused severe nerve damage, permanently impairing the use of his leg. Frank might have been able to recover from that blow - but the same accident had also caused nerve damage to his manhood, forever ending his sex-life - and the cause of the break-up of his year-long marriage. Forcibly retired from the Corps, with only a small disability fund, a shattered marriage, and a low-level but constant agony in his damaged limb, Frank's life had begun to slide into a depression, worsened by his descent into alcoholism.

Then, two weeks ago, he'd received a letter from a lawyer, informing him that a distant relative had died, and had left him a cabin and a large amount of land in Colorado. The inheritance consisted of the cabin, a hundred acres of land, a private lake, and over a hundred thousand dollars in cash. The entire estate - cabin, lake and land, were known as Black Lake, named after the lake, which in turn was named after the original owner of the property, a Mr. William Black.

Now he stood at the front door of the large, once expensive lodge, and sighed once more. The big building had been left, unused, since the mid-eighties, and Frank was wondering if he'd made a mistake coming here. The key he'd been given to the front door fit the lock - but he couldn't get the age-stiffened tumblers in the lock to turn.

Removing the key, he spat on it, re-inserted it, and turned it as hard as he dared - relieved when it finally clicked. Opening the door, he stepped across the threshold and waited for his eyes to adjust to the darkened interior.

Having become a professional cynic after the accident, Frank was surprised to find that the lawyer had spoken the truth when he'd said the place had been sealed up air-tight when it was closed.

Everything was in near-pristine condition, with surprisingly little dust. Dropping his bag beside the door, Frank located and lit a kerosene lamp, and closed the door.

The distant relative had been a relatively well-to-do jet-setter, notorious for his womanizing. This cabin had been one of his 'love nests', and was outfitted for that purpose. The house was built on top of the spring that fed the lake which, aside from supplying the water, had been made to power a small turbine that supplied just enough electricity to power the only two electric appliances in the building - the fridge, and the large sound-system that had been state-of-the-art at the time. Otherwise, the cabin was 'rustic', with light supplied by candles or lanterns, and heat and cooking facilities coming from wood stoves. The closets and storage areas were full of the previous owner's things - as well as more than a few items kept around for the ladies he brought over.

Frank's first action was to plug the fridge back in, to allow it to start cooling down. While it slowly cooled, he went outside and set about removing the air-tight plastic and plywood covers on every window, vent, and chimney.

By the time he was finished, dusk was beginning to descend. He returned to the Cobra and put up the top, to protect the interior from the next morning's dew, then made the three trips necessary to bring in the groceries and sundries he'd bought in town.

With his leg aching from the unaccustomed effort, he lit a crackling, cheerful fire in the large stone fireplace, then lit the pot-bellied Franklin stove and waited for it to warm up so he could cook dinner.

When the stove seemed hot enough, Frank carried a pot over to the pump and began to work the handle.

The his of escaping air sounded for a second, then water gushed out - a thick flow of a brown liquid. Disgusted, Frank stopped pumping, and dumped the silt-laden water down the sink with a mild curse. The years of disuse had allowed silt to build up near the inflow pipe. He'd have to pump for some time, allowing the silt to be sucked through and back down the drain, before getting clear water.

Rather than waste the effort tonight, Frank grabbed his cane and the pot. Hobbling out the front door, he crossed the road and knelt painfully beside the lake, filling the pot to the brim with clear water.

Moving carefully, so not to spill the water, he headed back into the cabin. He poured about half the pot of water into a jug, then put the rest on to boil, so he could make his Macaroni and Cheese dinner.

He ate in front of the blazing hearth, enjoying it's warmth as the chill mountain air descended with the night. He accompanied his dinner with Scotch mixed with the clear lake water - then had a few more while listening to the stereo and reading a book he'd picked up in L.A.

Although the book was listed under 'non-fiction', it wasn't the sort of volume to be found in most library's references. Written by a very controversial writer, the book was blatantly sexist. Titled 'La Femme Parfait' (The Perfect Woman), it described the author's views on how women should dress, behave and think in various situations, with pseudo-scientific 'reasoning' that 'proved' that his views were really the way nature had designed woman to be. Frank had purchased the book out of anger and hatred with his faithless wife, who'd abandoned him faster than he'd thought possible.

When he finished the book, it was well past midnight, and Frank had consumed more than a bottle and a half of cheap blended Scotch. Staggering, he awkwardly got to his feet and, leaning much heavier then usual on his cane, weaved and swayed off to bed.

* * * * *

2nd July, 1999 - 9:58 a.m.

Black River Lodge, Colorado

Frank woke up feeling worse than he had in his entire life - even if you included the accident and the rehabilitation that followed. Then, the pain had been greater, but in a more localized are. Now, his whole body was felt like it was being tortured.

His stomach was clenched tightly, and nausea rocked him. His muscles felt like he'd just worked out for ten hours straight - then been used as a punching bag for another ten. His head pounded and throbbed in terrible syncopation with his racing heart. His mouth was dry, his tongue was swollen, and his teeth itched. He felt simultaneously broiling hot and freezing cold, and his eyes felt like someone had used a sandblaster on him. Even his hair hurt.

"Oh, God " Frank moaned thickly. He painfully rolled out of bed, wondering what the hell was wrong with him. It couldn't just be a hangover - he'd drank far more than this before, and had never felt have as bad.

Staggering weakly, even with his cane, it took him forever to reach the washroom, where he sank with gratitude onto the toilet and urinated. After, he just sat for a few minutes, gathering what little strength that he had to return to the bedroom.

He was deeply concerned - he was pathetically weak, nauseous, and with a headache so bad he couldn't think. Yet there was no phone in the cabin, and he was certainly in no condition to drive into town. So, he weakly made his way back to the bed and collapsed on it with a moan, hoping that whatever it was would just pass on its own - he was even too weak to safely attempt the stairs, and what little medication he'd brought - aspirin, cough syrup and Pepto-Bismol, mostly - was down in his bag, which he'd never bothered to lug upstairs.

He lay helplessly on the bed, his body shaking in fits. The faint hope that whatever it was would pass on its own was quickly erased, as - impossible as it seemed - it got worse. His temperature began to climb, and the little strength he had drained away as the fever increased. Meanwhile, his entire body felt as if someone were somehow squeezing it in a vise and stretching it out like taffy, all at once.

Unable to rise, Frank was unable to get fluids to replenish the ice-cold sweat running off his body. The fever, unchecked, rose frighteningly, passing what could be considered even vaguely normal.

By two o'clock in the afternoon, Frank's overheated, overstressed, and dehydrated brain had slipped into fever delirium. Wracked by surrealistic dreams and terrible visions, Frank was completely disconnected from reality, and completely unaware of the changes his body was undergoing.

Meanwhile, his overworked, delirious mind began to crack, and a schizophrenia began to form in its depths...

* * * * *

4th July, 1999 - 2:28 p.m. Black River Lodge, Colorado

Frank woke up feeling weak, uncomfortable, awkward and strange - but whatever had racked his body for the past two days was gone. For the first time his mind wasn't sunk into delirium - but neither was it up to speed, and he felt fuzzy and vague, and concentrating was difficult. For several minutes he merely lay perfectly still, trying to get a mental grip on reality again.

Weakly, he swung his muscular, sexy legs over the side of the bed and hauled himself upright. Grabbing his bathrobe, he pulled it over his broad, muscular shoulders and belted it tightly around her slim waist. He then used a hand to pull his ass-length mass of hair outside the robe and hanging free down his back.

Holding onto the wall with one strong hand, his long, clear fingernails lightly scraping against the rough surface, he slowly made his way to the bathroom, his immense, globular tits swaying and bouncing with every step. Reaching the bathroom, he settled onto the toilet and urinated, then carefully wiped his crotch and pussy clean before staggering back upright.

It was an arduous task to pump the tub's pump until the water that emerged was clear, having finally pumped through the silt that blocked the inflow. Satisfied, he lit the special stove under the water tank and pumped it full. While he waited for the water to heat, he slumped on the toilet and rested. When the water was warm enough, he filled the claw-foot cast-iron tub and climbed in, eager to wash off the sweat on his body.

He started with his feet, soaping and rinsing them, then moved on to his well muscled by shapely legs, running the bar of soap along their silk-smooth, hairless length. After that, he carefully washed his narrow hips, firm, full ass, and his crotch, including the small patch of hair around his cunt. Next he washed his firm, flat stomach, and his immense, gravity defying tits, shuddering slightly in weary pleasure as the soap moved over his huge, engorged nipples. He then washed his broad shoulders and muscular arms, and finished with the soap by washing his face.

Next he took the shampoo and laboriously washed his long mane of sandy-blond hair. Having finished that, he climbed from the tub feeling more human, and toweled off. He had to use two extra towels for his thick, luxurious head of hair.

Feeling a little stronger, he descended to the main floor and started water boiling for coffee while he prepared a rather hearty breakfast of eggs, bacon, sausages, hash-browns and toast, plus orange juice and the coffee. He ate ravenously, his body starved for nutrition, and by the time he finished he felt almost one hundred percent again. Dropping the used dishes, cookware and cutlery into the sink for later washing, he settled onto the couch and idly massaged one of his gigantic tits...

...and suddenly all but leapt from the couch, shocked beyond description.

"What the fucking Hell...?" he shouted in a rich, feminine contralto, staring down at the massive tits thrust from his ribcage in horror and confusion.

"I'm a fucking woman!" He yelled, staring at his muscular, but feminine arms and the long-nailed hands that were at their ends.

As frightening as the realization that he was a woman was, what was even scarier was how long it had taken to dawn. Technically, he's known since awakening - but it was if he'd found nothing odd about it while he bathed and ate. It had just suddenly struck him when he'd sat down.

Horried, he slumped back on the couch, his mind going over the image he'd seen - and accepted so easily - in the mirror earlier. The tall, muscled woman with the narrow hips and long, thick head of hair. The woman with the strong, square-jawed face with it's full lips and smooth, flawless complexion. The woman that somehow he'd become.

"No way - it's just not possible." Frank muttered, trying to refute what all his senses reported. But he couldn't - he could feel the weight of his - no, her massive tits hanging from her chest. The drag of her damp mane of hair. The sensation of the air on her smooth, hairless body. The sound of her own smoky, feminine voice. Her muscular but sexy legs - both of which were whole and undamaged, perhaps the only thing that didn't horrify her.

She was a woman.

When she staggered upright again, the stagger didn't come from weakness - it came from shock and confusion.

"I... I gotta get some help. See a doctor or something..." she muttered in shock and confusion. When she started for the stairs, it was with a masculine stride rather than the gracefully powerful feminine one she'd unthinkingly used earlier. Mind whirling, she went upstairs to dress, entering her room and walking over to the closet.

Opening the doors to the large closet, she put one finger to her full, soft lips and considered the choices. Finally, she picked what she'd wear, and carried her choices over to the bed and began to dress.

First, the basic white-cotton briefs. They were a trifle loose, but serviceable, and would do for now.

Over that came the tight-cut jeans. It was a struggle to get them on, even over her hips, because the way they molded themselves to her body like a second skin, showing off her full, shapely ass to great advantage.

Then came the black T-shirt. It was a struggle to get it to fit down over her immense tits, and her nipples poked impudent little bulges in the fabric. The extra long T-shirt had plenty of overhang at the back, but due to her enormous tits, there was just enough at the front to tuck into the jeans before she pulled on the white leather belt with the large silver buckle. Aside from her huge tits, her broad shoulders and muscular biceps also bulged the fabric of the T-shirt.

Next, she pulled on a simple, plain pair of white socks, over which went the knee-high black leather boots with their five inch heel. The boots were about a half-size too small, but usable.

The first dozen or so steps in the heels were awkward, but soon her body's spectacular balance and strength had her walking easily in the heel, her huge endowments swaying with each step.

Grabbing a purse from the shelf, she dumped her wallet, keys and a few other items in with the odds and ends already inside, then headed downstairs. Quickly she pulled on the leather motorcycle jacket that she'd noticed last night. She couldn't zip it up - it wasn't designed to enclose tits like hers - but that was fine. Locking the door behind her, she slid into the driver's seat of the Cobra and turned the powerful engine over with a deep roar. Dropping the car into gear, she headed down the gravel access road, her massive mane of hair drying quickly in the wind created by the car's motion.

She was nearly to the highway when she suddenly stiffened, almost losing control of the powerful car as she stomped on the brakes. The car slued around, and for one heart-stopping second the left wheels lifted from the ground - then slammed back down as the car shuddered to a halt.

"Shit!" Frank screamed at the top of her lungs, heart pounding and hands shaking. Color drained from her face, and her vision began to dim at the edges, before her heart began to slow.

She sat in the car, unmoving, for several minutes, until her heart finally returned to normal. Meanwhile, her mind was spinning useless.

It had happened again. Somehow, at some point when she heading upstairs, she'd slipped into that strange, unquestioning state, where she seemed to accept whatever it was that was happening to her. And she hadn't even realized it until now. Frank shuddered at the memory of how she'd chosen the clothes and dressed. If she'd been thinking right, she'd never have picked the tight-fitting clothing and sure as hell not the high-heeled boots.

For a second, Frank considered going back to the cabin and changing, but dismissed the idea, more eager to get into the nearest town, Alamosa. She was frightened - very frightened - and needed help.

Stepping lightly on the accelerator with her high-heeled boot, she straightened the vehicle out on the road, and drove the hundred yards or so to the secondary highway. She was glad she hadn't suddenly realized what had happened a few minutes later, when she was on the highway - that could have killed her.

Although, if whatever had happened to her was permanent - that might have been preferable. With that cheerless thought, she pulled onto the highway and turned left.

Twenty-five minutes later, she crested the last hill, and the medium sized town of Alamosa, nestled into a lush valley, appeared over the gloss-red hood of the Cobra. Minutes later, she pulled the powerful vehicle into one of the many parking spots lining the main road and silence the rumble of the big 427.

Grabbing her purse, she slipped from behind the wheel of the car and straightened her wind-tousled hair before stepping onto the sidewalk, her high-heels keeping beat as she strode down the main section of the town, immense tits swaying. Stepping into a phone booth, she flipped through the directory until she found the location of the person's whose help she needed, pleased to find that it was only a couple of blocks away. She set off in the correct direction, ignoring the various looks given to her by the other people on the street as they reacted to the sight of a tall, muscular, huge-breasted woman with a massive, thick mane of sandy-blonde hair billowing out behind her.

Finding the correct building, she pushed open the door and entered. The woman behind the desk near the front door looked up as the bell on the door jingled. Eyeing Frank, the woman asked politely. "Can I help you, miss?"

Frank smiled. "I hope so - I need some new clothes - and I can't exactly find the right sizes at the local Sears."

The woman smiled. "Of course. Well, you've come to the right place - We're the biggest specialty clothing shop west of the Mississippi. Let's see what we can do for you, Miss...?"

"Garvey. Terri Garvey." Frank - or, Terri - answered without hesitation. "Call me Terri."

"All right, Terri. I'm Jessica. Why don't you follow me, and we'll get some measurements done." Terri willing followed Jessica into the back of the store, walking with a graceful feminine stride.

While the chemicals that had seemed from the rusted drums into the lake had done their work on Frank's body, the high fever had caused damage to his mind.

Then, in the first instant of awakening, Frank had subconsciously realized that he had been turned into a woman - and gone crazy.

Technically, insanity results when a mind is incapable of handling reality. Frank's damaged brain, able to deal with what had happened, had reacted by withdrawing, allowing the fractured schizophrenic part of his mind to bloom into life - and forming Terri, who could handle the change. A simple defense mechanism, whenever Frank's weakened brain overloaded from an emotion, it 'baked off' - and Terri stepped into the void. Although neither personality was fully aware of the other as a conscious entity, they shared memories, and knew something was wrong. But each believed that it was the real personality - The insane fantasy that had brought Terri to life included a complete - and false - set of memories of being female, and the Frank personality having always been there, a nuisance to be dealt with.

Now, Terri was in control as she entered the changing room and undressed to allow her measurements to be taken.

Taking a tape measure, Jessica began to measure Terri's tall, muscular and extremely buxom figure, writing the results down on a small pad of paper.

"Hmm... Hips... 36 inches. Waist... 30 inches... Under the bust... 40 inches. Around the bust... well! 52 inches. That would make you a 40-JJJ cup." Jessica commented. She paused, then said. "Forgive me for asking, but... aren't implants that big rather, um, awkward?"

Terri smiled. "Well, they can be awkward - but their not implants. Both my mother and fathers sides of the family are tall, husky and buxom - and so I kind of doubled the family average, if you know what I mean."

Jessica looked doubtful. "They're not implants? I'm sorry, but I do a lot of work for the big-bust exotic dancers, and I've never seen such a large, firm pair that weren't plastic."

Terri shrugged, causing the endowments in question to bounce. "Well, let me ask you this... How big were their nipples?"

"Oh, about average..." Jessica began - then the light dawned. She'd meant average for perhaps DDD cup - but the hugely inflated breasts made them small in proportion to the breast itself, as the nipples didn't get any bigger from implants.

Terri's nipples, on the other hand, were enormous - easily in proportion to her massive tits. That, plus the fact that there were no surgical scars anywhere on Terri's muscular, unblemished body, convinced Jessica that these massive tits were indeed real.

"Well..." Jessica said, musingly, the smiled. "Why don't you wait here, and I'll see what we have in stock?"

* * * * *

An hour later, Terri walked from the store carrying three bags of purchases, and dressed in one of her new outfits.

The black six-inch spike heels of her pumps lifted her even higher, and her skin-tight leather pants, laced up the sides of her legs, were drawn tighter than the jeans had been. She'd gotten lucky - underneath her black spandex crop-top, a massive black bra held her huge tits firmly, and several more such bras were on order from the store.

Stopping at the Cobra to drop the bags into the trunk, Terri decided to grab a bite to eat before heading back. She crossed the street and went into a diner, enjoying a blue-plate special for four bucks. Finishing the home-cooked meal, she swayed into the ladies room and relieved her bladder from that morning's used coffee, then checked her hair in the mirror.

"Oh, Shit!" Frank cursed - quietly. She looked down at the black spandex that clung to her massive tits and left her flat, muscular abdomen bare. "I don't fucking believe it - it happened again." Then she cursed again, remembering the hefty bill - although she supposed that she could afford it, for now.

The waitress behind the counter blinked when the huge-breasted woman she'd served stormed from the bathroom with an angry look and stomped past with an oddly masculine stride despite the high- heels that clicked loudly on the floor. Without turning, she called to her husband, the cook, she asked accusingly "Grant, did you forget to clean the ladies room again? That customer just stomped out of here, looking pissed." The somewhat flat-chested woman waited for a response, and, not receiving one, peered into the kitchen. Her husband was at the small kitchen window, staring slack-jawed at the tall, huge breasted woman as she thundered away down the sidewalk. He didn't blink - until the order pad smacked into the side of his head.

* * * * *

Frank stormed down the sidewalk, ignoring the people who scuttled out of her way. She was in control right now, and while she was she was going to find a doctor and spill out the whole story. There was no way she was leaving town until she...

...bought some necessities like make-up, tampons and the like. Slowing slightly, Terri resumed her 'usual' sexy stride, looking for a drug-store that would carry everything she needed. She found one a short distance away, and popped inside to pick up what she wanted.

Carrying her purchases back to the car, she added them to the pile in the trunk, and climbed into the driver's seat. Turning the powerful engine over, she put the car into gear and pulled out of the parking spot, swinging the car around in a wide U-turn, and heading back up the side of the hill.

Terri snapped on the radio, and found a station she liked. Humming along with the Spice Girls' '2 Become 1', she let the power of the Cobra pull its light body up the steep, twisting road.

As she crested the top of the hill, the Cobra started to pass the entrance to a bar...

...then, at the last possible second, swung into the parking lot with a twist of the wheel, bringing the car to a shuddering halt. Reaching over, Frank shut off the Spice Girls - which she detested - and lay her head on the steering wheel, shuddering.

"God help me..." she whispered. "What's happening to me. Why is it happening to me?"

Raising her head from the steering wheel of the Cobra, she looked at the door to the bar - and decided that right then, more than anything else, she needed a drink. Frank pulled the car closer to the building and parked it properly, then walked over to the building and pulled open the door.

A wave of sound and smoke hit her from the dim interior of the bar. A juke-box in the corner was half- way through Steve Miller's 'The Joker', with too much bass - not that any of the patrons inside were really paying attention.

Ignoring the looks that several of the male customers shot her, Frank walked up to the bar and dropped heavily into a stool.

"Beer" she said, curtly. The bartender, stealing surreptitious glances at the buxom, muscular blonde, fulfilled her order, and Frank took a long pull of the beer.

Finishing her first one quickly, she ordered a second and began drinking that one much slower. She was about halfway through that one when she became aware of a presence beside her. Frank looked up in annoyance to see a handsome man looking down at her with a slight grin.

"Hi." He said. "My friend and I were wondering if we could buy you a few drinks." He gestured towards another handsome man sitting at a booth a short distance away.

Terri smiled. "Why, I'd love that - thank you." She rose gracefully from the stool and followed the man to the booth.

They introduced themselves. The athletic man with the brown hair who'd approached her was Steve, and his shorter friend - who wasn't drinking - was Al, who obviously had some Italian blood in his family, with his dusky complexion and dark, curly hair.

For the next few hours the two men kept her well plied with alcohol as they sat and chatted. Twice Frank made re-appearances, both times while in the bathroom. Each time, Terri regained control of their shared body before Frank could leave, horrified at the way she was flirting with the two guys.

About eight o'clock, she finally suggested that she should be heading home.

"Well Al, Steve - it's been fun." She said, her words slightly slurred. "But I think I should be getting home. Can I get a lift? I shouldn't drive right now."

Al smiled. "Of course - our car's just outside..."

Terri interrupted. "Actually, can we take my car? I've got some stuff in the trunk I want to get home. Besides, it's a classic car, and I don't want to leave it in the lot here overnight."

Which is how the tree of them ended up in the small cockpit of the Cobra together. Terri sat between the two men, one arm around each of them. Al had to rest his arm on her muscular thigh to hold onto the stick-shift - and neither of them was complaining about the contact between their warm flesh.

Tipsily, Terri directed Al how to get back to the cabin.

Hopping out, she gathered her stuff from the trunk, then led the two men to the cabin. Unlocking the door, she lit the lantern just inside.

"I'm just going upstairs for a minute. Can I get you to light some of the candles and the fireplace for me?" Terri asked with a winning smile. When the men agreed, she took one of the lanterns and headed up the stairs, heels clicking on the wood floor.

Al and Steve looked around with interest as she went around the room, lighting the fire set in the fireplace and getting the candles around the room lit.

"Hey, uh.. Terri?" Steve called, "Where do you keep your phone?" Her smoky contralto floated down the stairs. "I don't have a phone."

The two men looked at each other. Hesitantly, Steve called again. "Well - how are we going to call a cab to take us back to our car?"

The sound of heels on the floor preceded Terri down the stairs. The men turned - and their jaws dropped.

Make-up had been artfully applied. Gloss red lipstick highlighted her full, sensual lips, and blush, mascara and eye shadow softened her slightly mannish face into a vision of sexuality. Her massive mane of hair had been pulled back and up with a pair of black-and-gold clips before being allowed to spill back down, falling over her broad shoulders and down her toned, creamy back. From those same muscled shoulders, a black silk robe hung, its sheer fabric hanging open to reveal the lacy black negligee she wore. It strained to contain her massive, firm round globes, then clung tightly to her waist and hips, barely concealing at all. A pair of thigh-high black nylons clung to every sensual curve of her smoothly muscled legs, leading the eye down to the black leather pumps and their six- inch heels.

"Actually..." she said huskily, her red lips curving up slightly into a richly seductive smile. "I thought I'd give you a lift back to your car myself - in the morning..."

Steve and Al looked at her, agape, then at each other.

"Umm..." Al said, hesitantly. "You mean, uh, you, uh " he paused for a second, then blurted out

"Both of us?"

Terri smiled again. "Is that a problem?"

Steve cleared his throat. "Well... It's... That is, he and I have never done that before. It just seems... kinda weird."

Terri shrugged. "Well, it doesn't have to be both at the same time, guys. I don't mind if you take turns."

The two guys relaxed slightly. Their problem had been a slight ego problem - performing at the same time, they wouldn't help but compare themselves to each other, and each one was subconsciously afraid of - if you'll pardon the expression - coming up short.

"So who goes first?" Steve asked.

Turning on one tall heel, Terri swayed towards the stairs. "That's for you two to decide. Flip a coin, or something. I'll be up in the bedroom at the end of the hall, waiting for whoever wins." With one last devastating smile, she disappeared up the stairs, while the two guys looked at each other speculatively.

Once in the solitude of her room, Frank returned to the body - and was horrified.

"Holy shit!" she said in a low voice, slumping back against the door. "She trying to fuck them!"

Horrified, she looked around for a way out. She didn't trust that she could keep control when the guy showed up, and Terri would blithely fuck him - but Frank would remember every detail when 'he' regained control. She had to find a way out of this - and fast.

Sitting on the floor, her not-inconsiderable body-weight holding it shut, she thought desperately for a way out of this situation before her worst nightmare - having sex with another man - came true.

She was still in that position when she drifted off into a deep slumber. A deep, deep sleep, where she began to dream.

In her dreams, Frank was all male again, standing on a large, wind-swept plain, facing Terri, in her female body. They wore medieval style armor, and carried large, double-handed swords.

In the reality of dreams, they each knew what was going on, and why they were there. "It's my body, bitch, and I want it back!" Dream-Frank cried, brandishing his sword.

"Have you looked down recently?" Dream-Terri asked snidely. "You've got one helluva rack, buddy!"

"Hey!" Frank yelled, stung. "I don't know what, why or how this happened - but no matter what my body looks like, I'm not fucking men!"

"Well, I want to fuck and suck men all the time - I want to be a regular cum-slut!" Terri retorted - although that wasn't true, but merely a gambit to anger Frank.

It worked. He charged towards her, sword upraised...

Her real body began to twitch as deep inside, the dream metaphor mirrored the battle between Frank's divided mind to see who would get control of the altered, buxom body...

* * * * *

....Turning on one tall heel, Terri swayed towards the stairs. "That's for you two to decide. Flip a coin, or something. I'll be up in the bedroom at the end of the hall, waiting for whoever wins." With one last devastating smile, she disappeared up the stairs, while the two guys looked at each other speculatively.

"Do you think she was serious?" Al asked in a low voice once she was gone.

Steve looked thoughtful, despite the obvious erection straining at his pants. "Well... I think that she thinks she's serious - but she had a lot to drink..."

Al nodded, regretfully. "Yeah. That's what I was thinking. I mean, she'd really hot, in an Amazonian way - but I wouldn't be able to look at myself in a mirror if I took advantage of her right now."

Steve agreed. "Yeah. If she'd suggested something when she was sober, I'd be okay with it - but she only seemed to be interested in us when she was drunk."

Al shrugged. "So... What do we do now? Our car's back at the bar, and with no phone to call a cab..."

Steve looked around. "I guess we'll just bed down here for tonight. She'll probably fall asleep waiting for one of us to go up. If, in the morning, when she's sober, she'd still interested... Well, we'll have to see."

"Yeah. I kinda hope she is... man, I have never seen a woman as strong as her that was still so sexy. And those tits! Man... their fantastic!" Al said, miming Terri's huge bust.

Steve shook his head ruefully. "Al - you're a freak, you know that. Jeez - she'd pretty sexy and all - but those 'chest melons' are just way too big. She'd... well, not quite a freak, but..."

Al dismissed the objection with a wave. It was a long-standing point of friendly dissension between them - Al was a real 'big tit' man, while Steve was more moderate, believing that 'more than a handful was wasted'.

Looking around, Al spotted a half bottle of Scotch beside a nearly half-full pitcher of water. "Hey, how about another drink? I didn't get any at the bar, and if we're staying..."

Steve shrugged. "Well... maybe one more..."

In the end, Steve had two Scotch-and-waters, while Al finished both the Scotch - and the jug of water that Frank had drawn from the lake the night before.

Unaware of what they'd done, the two men turned in, Steve on the larger sofa, and his diminutive friend on the love-seat.

* * * * *

The prolonged, high-pitched scream shattered the morning silence. Frank, laying huddled at the base of the door, jerked upright...

...only, it wasn't precisely Frank.

The scream had shattered the dream/real battle between the two personalities who were warring for the single body they possessed. The two dream-warriors had been locked in a close hand-to-hand fighting embrace when the scream had dropped them suddenly from dream to reality.

Without time to adjust, the single physical mind they shared couldn't separate the two separate, but complete, personalities inside. What emerged as the female body sat bolt upright was neither Frank, nor Terri. Instead, it was an amalgam, a mixture of the two personalities. It possessed Frank's basic personality, and all his real memories - but a lot of the Terri personality was also present. The personality knew that it had been Frank, and remembered all that had happened - but also knew that there was something wrong with itself, that there were things in her mind that she didn't have before, but were now part of her. For a moment, her mind spun, fighting to identify itself.

Frank hauled herself upright and yanked open the door, nearly pulling it off the hinges with the application of her full strength. Her high-heels clicking on the hardwood floor, she rushed down the hall and clattered down the stairs, towards the source of the scream - and stopped dead in her tracks, jaw dropping.

Steve was standing in front of the couch. His clothes lay scattered about him, torn to shreds by the changes wrought by the contaminated water he'd unknowing consumed the night before. Due to the fact he'd only had two glasses, he was still easily recognizable for who he was - but he hadn't emerged unchanged.

His previously toned, athletic body was now a huge, rippling mass of muscles. His legs were like pillars, the calves absolutely massive below thighs as thick around as some peoples waists. His chest and back were gigantic masses of muscle, and his arms were as thick as tree-trunks, the biceps almost obscene in their sheer mass.

And, thrust from his enormously muscled crotch, was cock that was keeping in scale with his absolutely massive body.

Standing erect, it was a reddish purple color, with a darker shade to it's massive head. It was long - more than a foot - but that wasn't the direction in which most of the growth had gone. It was amazingly thick, easily twice the circumference that a penis that size would usually be. Dangling below the base of that massive, throbbing manhood was a scrotum containing two massive, orange- sized balls.

Stunned, the new behemoth spared an incredulous glance at Frank, then turned his attention back to the source of the scream.

Al, having consumed almost as much as Frank had the first night, was changed to a much larger degree.

Already diminutive, the height he'd been now appeared completely normal for the stunning Italian woman who was gaping down at herself. A mass of long, curly black hair flowed around a dusky visage of pure carnal sensuality with large, dark, seductive eyes framed with long, mysterious lashes. Below her pert nose was a pair of full, sensuous lips that, even without make-up, were erotically inviting.

It didn't seem possible that the slender shoulders she possessed could support the enormous, firm, dusky globes of tit-flesh that thrust from her chest. Easily as big as Frank's own immense tits, they seemed a good thirty percent larger on her smaller frame, and were capped by immense nipples, the color of chocolate, that sprang from the smallish, domed areola.

Below her massive new tits, Al's waist pinched in remarkably before flaring back out into a voluptuous pair of wide, womanly hips and her firm, extremely full ass. That amazing fundament led downwards to legs that were slightly thick, but stunning in their curves and flawless, olive skin tone. She was the erotic image of a stunning, sexy Mediterranean sex goddess...

...if you could ignore the enormous, dark erection thrust from between her silky thighs, that is. Of Al's balls, there was no sign. But that didn't mean they didn't exist. No, they were still there, swollen to four times their original size - but they'd pulled up and back into her body, approximating the place that a 'real' woman's ovaries would sit.

But Al's cock still remained - and bigger than ever. Although nowhere close to the thickness of Steve's exaggerated equipment, it was quite thick in its own right, and a good eighteen inches long. And, like Steve's it was erect, throbbing, and ready.

And Frank was horrified to discover that she was becoming extremely turned on by the sight of the two massive, ready cocks. Visions of sex flashed through her mind, and she had to force it aside, even as her nipples hardened and her cunt began to tingle.

"What the hell...?" Steve asked in a voice two octaves lower than it had been last night, staring at his altered friend in horror.

"I'm a fuckin' woman!" Al cried in a richly erotic feminine voice. It was husky and smoky and a little deep for a woman - yet was consummately feminine, sounding like a come-on, no matter what the words actually were. "Holy shit, Steve - I'm a fucking freak! I have tits!" Her hands rose to touch her massive new tits in demonstration - and she cried out at the sheer erotic sensation of pleasure that shot through her highly-sensitive new endowments.

Frank was stunned. "Wha..." She gasped. "My god! It happened to you, too!"

That got through to Steve, although Al was still too deeply in shock for it to register. "What do you mean 'too', Terri?"

Frank shook her head. "My name's not Terri - it's Frank. Frank Terrence Garvey." She pointed at Al. "Somehow, I woke up as a woman after I got really, really sick..." She paused. "Hey, how come he didn't get sick, but still changed..."

"You're a guy!" Steve said, horrified. "But - last night you tried..."

That was enough to bring the sexual images and desires back to the forefront. Frank fought against it - not altogether successfully. Her voice was throaty with desire when she answered him. "It also screwed up my mind somehow. Right now, I still want to..." She took a deep breath. "Oh, god, it's awful. I'm a man, inside. I hate the thought of... but I want to, so bad..." Frank moaned, and unwillingly began caressing one of her massive, firm tits, practically drooling, although what she was drooling about disgusted her.

Steve shuddered and looked away - because, even knowing the truth, he found that right now, he wanted very, very much to fuck Frank's brains out.

Al, who had finally caught on to the conversation, was even more disgusted and torn - because she, too, was incredibly turned on, not just by Frank - but by her own feminine figure. She not only wanted to fuck Frank's muscular, feminine body - but her own massive, full tits were begging to be fondled and sucked...

"I... I don't understand. How...?" Steve, the least traumatized of the three, struggled to understand. "It's not possible..."

None of the trio knew that the water had been tainted. They also didn't know that the change they'd undergone had been linked to something in their genetic make-up. Frank's had been drawn out and painful, because of his damaged genitalia. The chemical/hormonal/radioactive mess in the water had been fighting itself, part of it trying to increase his masculinity, the other his femininity. The feminine side had one out - but the masculine side had managed to cause the muscular development.

In Steve's case, there had been no conflict, and the mix had gone easily, especially since he'd been aroused at the time.

But Al - Al was aroused at the time - but he'd also received a redundant X-chromosome from his Italian mother, for a total of two X and one Y. He'd been born male - but the tainted water had made use of both the extra chromosome and the erection he'd had, leaving him a huge-breasted, huge- penised, and very, very horny she-male.

All three transformed men - the behemoth, the Amazon and the she-male - were wracked by a terrible, overwhelming lust. Each tried to fight their three-way lust, disgusted by it.

Frank, helplessly, lusted after Al and Steve's enormous, thick cocks, and was helpless massaging one massive it while her other hand rubbed at her crotch.

Steve was disgusted by the fact that he lusted powerfully over Frank and Al, both of whom appeared overwhelmingly sexy to him, despite the fact that he knew both were really men, and Al sported an enormous cock to prove it. Last night, he'd found such huge tits freakish - now he lust to touch, to fondle them. The mouths of the 'women' seemed to beckon his cock for a blow-job - and the sensual curves of their asses drove him to stoke his massive erection, helplessly wanting - needing - the release of sex.

And Al, helplessly, fondled her massive tits, hating her need to not only fuck the Amazon sex Goddess that was Frank, but to feel Steve's muscular hands on her own huge tits, and his strong lips on her own full, soft, feminine mouth.

But Al's will was battered from one additional source. The thought of Steve fondling her in any way was repellent to her masculine mind - but Frank looked like a sexy woman, and Al also wanted her...

Al's will power finally snapped. Hungrily, she approached Frank, who stared back, horrified and aroused, unable to either pull away or step closer...

...until Al reached up and began to fondle the massive endowments that had so aroused her last night. The lust overwhelmed Frank as well, and the two huge-breasted transformees kissed passionately as they massaged each others huge tits, moaning low in their throats in feminine arousal.

From his angle, Steve saw what seemed to be two massively endowed women fondling and kissing, Al's own massive cock hidden from view by the angle - and he too, fell victim to his lust.

Frank found herself sliding to the floor, her hands unwillingly reaching to encircle Al's massive cock. Settling onto the floor, she found Al's huge tool sliding between her own massive tits, and Frank was horrified to find herself pushing her huge tits together to form the perfect cleavage for a tit-fuck.

Al was also horrified when she moaned in absolute pleasure as Steve's huge, strong hands reached around from behind to massage and fondle her gigantic globes. Al tossed her head back and moaned in ecstasy, and began to pump her massive cock in Frank's immense cleavage.

And Steve, helplessly, found himself positioning himself between Frank's muscular, sexy legs and driving his massive, thick cock deep into her hot, wet pussy.

Frank screamed in pain, lust, horror and ecstasy as she was penetrated by Steve's massive cock. The pain vanished after the first few strokes, and the horror was buried under the avalanche of pure pleasure as she felt feminine sex for the first time. Helplessly, she began to cry out in pleasure, pushing her own mounds tighter around Al's pistoning cock, which had amply lubricated the valley with the prodigious amount of pre-cum she'd produced. Al, meanwhile, was helplessly caught in the snare of ecstasy as well - both the tit-fuck, and having her own immense tits fondled aggressively by her best friend Steve.

Locked in a prison of lust, all three thundered toward climax, their voices rising together in shouts of pure pleasure, all thoughts of right, wrong, horror and disgust lost in the ecstasy of the moment.

Frank came first, a string of mind-blowing orgasms rolling through her body like a freight train. She screamed, a primal, feminine sound, as her cunt clenched around Steve's massive cock, pushing him over the edge as well. His huge cock began gushing a thick stream of cum deep into Frank, and Steve cried out, hands tightening on Al's nipples.

The sudden burst of pleasure that resulted in Al's tit's caused her to shoot her load as well. A massive wave of thick, warm cum shout from between Frank's huge tits, coating her face and hair. Unthinking, still caught in the after-shocks of her orgasm, Frank gulped at the stream, swallowing only a fraction of the warm, salty fluid.

Spent, the three slowed their movements, as coherent thought began to return.

Al was the first to pull away, horrified. She uttered a small shriek as realization settled in, and jerked upright, and back a few steps, eyes going wide as the realization of what she'd done was overwhelmed by the realization that it had been the most intensely pleasurable experience of her life - and she wanted to do it again...

Steve also scuttled back, horrified at the thought of having fucked Frank - but even more horrified to find it didn't matter. Frank was now fully female - and Steve wanted her body, wanted to fuck her long, and hard, and often...

And Frank, laying on the floor, hovered near the brink of insanity trying to deal with the orgasmic pleasure of female sex - and the fact that she'd lapped at the gushing flow of salty cum, and loved every drop she'd swallowed, and already was beginning to crave more...

"NO!" Al screamed as her mind wavered back and forth. Horrified by what she'd done, and wanted to do, she bolted for the door.

Steve took off after her, the cum-splattered Frank close on his heels as they pelted after the huge-breasted Al, whose massive endowments bounced wildly as she sprinted for the lake, intent on ending the horrifying existence that her life had become. Within seconds, she'd reached the water's edge, and vanished beneath the clear waters.

Heedless of their own safety, Frank and Steve dove in after her. Al struggled, eager to end it all, but the other's combined muscle was more than enough to begin dragging Al to shore. But the process was slow, and their mind's began to clamor for oxygen as their vision began to dim.

Gasping, the three emerged from the lake and promptly passed out on the sand in a heap, the contaminated water, mixed with their combined bodies, seeping in through pores and the permeable membranes of their naked bodies...

* * * * *

22nd September, 1999 - 12:28 p.m. Black River Lodge, Colorado

Josh Maskins watched as the EPA man knelt beside the lake, attired in a full bio-hazard suit to protect himself. The man carefully read the indicators on the small chemical testing kit he held - the pulled of his helmet with a sigh of relief, telling Josh what he needed to know before the words ever came.

"Clean and pure, Mr. Maskins. That's it."

Maskins nodded at the EPA man, then turned and trudged across the gravel road to the building on the other side. Before he could knock, the door swung open, and the anxious owner waved Maskins in, eager to hear the news. Maskins nodded politely to the two other people in the cabin, then turned to the owner.

"That's it - the lakes clean again." He held up a package. "Also, I have here your new identification, and the last settlement check. Again, I have no adequate way of expressing my sorrow, aside from the money. I, personally, wasn't working at Fort Detrick when this... travesty occurred, but I still feel responsible. If my predecessor hadn't tried to cut costs by illegal dumping..." He sighed. "Well, it was a black day for the Army, Mr. Garv..., excuse me, Miss Garcia." He handed over the new identification with a flourish. "There - legally, you are now Francesca Theresa Garcia."

Francesca took the envelope, glad that at least the legal part of the ordeal was over.

The immersion in the lake had changed each of the trio for a final time. They'd lain, shaking and ill, for nearly twenty for hours before the final transformation had run it's course. But the change had told them what was responsible, and they'd gone to the authorities for help. At first, they'd been thought insane, but the EPA had tested the wild claims - and been horrified to discover the long-lost chemicals that had 'gone missing' from the Army Research facility in Fort Detrick, which had led to this point.

Francesca Garcia seemed an appropriate name for the new form that Frank wore. The chemical had mixed not only with her own DNA, but the DNA from the cum that she'd had inside and on her from both Steve and Al.

Thanks to Al's DNA, she'd acquired a darker skin-tone, and her hair had become a dark brown, making her look Latino. She was still tall, and athletically tone, but lacked her previous muscle-mass. In addition, all the male hormones had decreased her previous bust-line to a more manageable EEE- cup. Her new figure was attired in mid-calf black-leather boots with a blocky four inch heel, tight blue jeans, and a blue cotton blouse. She wore a make-up applied with a light hand, just enough to slightly enhance her pretty, but not outstanding, features.

Francesca was still trying to cope with her rather active sex life. Part of the agreement with the government kept the whole affair under wraps, and she was trying to deal with her hormonal-based addiction to sex, both oral and vaginal, that was her life-long legacy from that morning three-way fuck. The chemical had hard-wired the intense pleasure into her brain, forever imprinting her otherwise completely 'Frank' brain with the need for sex. It was because of that need - which she had to fulfill, that she was learning to live as a woman, finding it odd and unusual, but not as horrible as she would have thought. And, honestly, the sex was fantastic.

Next, Maskins turned to the woman in the white, off-the shoulder peasant blouse and brightly colored skirt sitting on the couch. Her sexy legs were crossed at the knees, and one foot - clad in brown suede ankle-boots with a six-inch stiletto heel - bounced with agitation.

"Miss Alexis Traviatti." Maskins said formally, handing her the new identification she'd carry with her for the rest of her life. He had to keep his eyes from sliding to the delectable display of cleavage shown by the tight, low-cut blouse.

"Please, go ahead and look..." Al said in a husky, sexy voice. "I wish you would..." She took a deep breath, enhancing her massive bust, and looked down at her own massive tits.

Not having absorbed any more DNA from anyone, Al was the least changed. Basically, she had completed the transition to full womanhood, appearing the same huge-busted, sensual Italian woman she had at first, minus the enormous cock. The first night, Al had an erection, and that had caused the growth. The second time, just after sex, she'd been limp, spent - and that had allowed the formation of her female equipment.

She was also trying to deal with her altered mind, but was handling it fairly well. Although much of her personality was left the same, she'd awaked with an obsession to be sexy and feminine at all times. Although she knew, intellectually, that it would have disgusted her before, now she wanted to - enjoyed - acting as the penultimate woman. As of yet, that didn't include actual sex - she still had to work at overcoming her distaste of that if she was to live as a complete woman, but she loved having men admire her, and thoroughly enjoyed being kissed and fondled, even if it did strike her as weird whenever she did it.

"And..." Maskins said, turning to the last individual. "Miss Stephanie Loeden."

Stephanie took the new identification with a small grimace of distaste. "Thanks, handsome." She muttered, with a slight edge in her voice, which was also heavily laden with sexual overtones.

Stephanie was the one having the most trouble dealing with the final transition. Like Al, she'd been spent and limp when entering the water, and her limp cock had been coated with Frank's female juices, allowing his transformation into the woman he now was.

Which was an interesting looking one, to say the least. She had ended up as nearly the spitting image of the Terri that Frank had first become, with some differences in the facial features, and hair a few shades darker. But she retained the same broad-shouldered-yet-feminine muscularity, and immense bustline.

However, being male still at the time of the final transition had caused some unusual mental changes. Like the fact that her own tit were freakishly huge from her point of view - but two attempts to have them reduced had only resulted in them not only growing back, but brief periods of lactation afterward, which had been worse. She had no choice but to leave them be, and deal with having such outrageous tits.

Secondly, she wasn't attracted to me, per se- she still found woman sexually exciting, and didn't want to kiss a man, or have on caress her freakish tits.

However, her own 'pride' in the massive endowment she'd had when she'd entered the water had become hard-wired in her new brain as an obsession with huge, thick cocks. Although the thought of kissing a man, or dating a man disgusted her - the thought of fucking or sucking a cock - the bigger, the better - made her incredibly horny.

Likewise, although she'd love to date another woman, kiss her, fondle and lick her tits - the thought of having actual sex with another woman did absolutely nothing for her.

Then there was her new taste in clothing...

Her muscular, sexy legs were presently clad in fish-net pantyhose that lead down to the black leather 'ballet boots' that forced her to stand and walk on tip-toe. The only other garment she wore was the one-piece black leather body-suit, high-cut at the hips and low-cut at the neck, that clung to her body like a second skin.

She couldn't help herself. Her still-male (for the most part) mind wouldn't let her wear anything less erotic. In fact, she found herself compelled to move, talk and act in overtly sexual way. That was because her male mind got turned on at having this female body completely and utterly under it's control - regardless of the fact that she was wearing it. She got herself horny every time she looked in the mirror.

"Well, that takes care of every thing, I think." Maskins said, turning to leave - then stopped.

"Something wrong?" Francesca asked, concerned. She just wanted this nightmare to be over, so that she could get on with starting a new life as a woman.

When Maskins turned back, he was blushing furiously. "Well, um..." he stammered. "You see, two of my old collage buddies are coming down for a week. Now, I was going to get dates for all three of us, but, with this whole thing, um..."

Surprised, the three transformed women looked at each other.

"Are you asking us out on a date?" Alexis asked with a sensuous grin.

"But... you know about us..." Francesca added, unconsciously rubbing one hand up and down her denim-clad leg.

"Yeah - Your friends wouldn't know, so whatever two they pick will do okay. But how will you cope, knowing that your date used to be a guy?" Stephanie asked.

"Well..." Maskins said. "Gary - he'd a real, um, 'bust-lover' - he'll go ape over Alexis. And Raul like Latino ladies, and he's the original Latin Lover, famed for his, um, outstanding performance..."

Francesca found herself grinning somewhat foolishly at the thought.

Stephanie stared. "Look, hot stuff - I can't help coming on to you... But don't think that means I like it, lover boy. I hate having to do this..." She helplessly pressed her huge tits against his arm and smiled seductively up at him, disgusted by her every action. She was even more disgusted by the fact that her hand was sliding down to the crotch of his pants, hidden under the folds of the baggy trench-coat her wore...

Suddenly, her jaw dropped. "My god - it's not even hard yet and it's..."

Josh shrugged with a small smile, and Stephanie looked at him speculatively. "Oh, master, I'm so hot for your huge schlong..." she cooed.. "but I don't..."

Holding up one finger, the generally slender Maskins handed Stephanie a photo from his wallet.

"Oh - who's the cute babe?" Stephanie asked, her male side turned on by the woman show, her perfect-sized tits tantalizing under the tight silk blouse in the photo. "Your sister, stud?"

Maskin's blushed again. "Um, actually - it's me. In my spare time - and this is secret - I like to go 'femme'. Now, I'd have to go as myself for the actual date - but later..."

Stephanie pictured this 'woman', that her male brain found attractive, sporting the massive cock that her female side so desperately needed...

"Well.... I guess it wouldn't hurt to try "

* * * * *

Three months later, an unusual triple wedding occurred on the edge of Black Lake, three utterly content women marrying the wonderfully happy men...

Sort of...

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: A night watchman mistakenly short circuits a fuse and he transforms into a woman not only to be reawakened by a second electrical charge that merges him and another into a new, hyper-sexual body.

Blue Shirt Blues

By Gunslinger

With a low rumble rising into a Jurassic roar the metal behemoth pulled away, heading towards the pink-and-gold horizon in a cloud of petroleum-rich fumes.

As the bus pulled away from the stop, Greg hitched his back-pack higher onto his shoulder, almost unconsciously guiding the padded strap with one hand to keep it from catching on the tin-plated badge pinned to the upper-left of his blue shirt. Digging his other hand into the bellows pocket of his dark-blue pants, the dark-haired young man pulled out his pack of cigarettes and lighter, removing one white tube of tobacco from the pack and lighting it as he passed through the open rolling gate fronting the food-processing plant. Gravel crunched beneath his Army-surplus boots as he strolled towards the largely glass-sided blue metal shack standing in the middle of the large lot, looking oddly forlorn in the empty expanse, especially compared to the huge, cube-like three-story building a few hundred yards away.

Doug was already waiting on the wooden 'porch' at the rear of the small structure, leaning against the wooden rail of the landing at the top of the short flight of steps, his own cigarette glowing in the enhanced twilight created by the shadow of the shack. Dressed in a uniform identical to Greg's except for size, the almost painfully skinny young man sketched a mock salute towards his relief.

"Another exciting, fun-filled day at Holmes Foods?" Greg asked, sarcastically, his steps echoing hollowly as he climbed the steps at the back of the shack.

Doug snorted. "Man, I hate the week-end shifts. Twelve trucks to be logged in, and one employee who needed to get in because she left her purse here last night by mistake."

"Don't complain..." Greg suggested, sourly. "That's practically rush-hour traffic compared to weekend night-shift."

"At least you're comfortable." Doug shot back. "With all these windows, it's a green-house effect. I swear I lose ten pounds a week in sweat working here."

Looking at the painfully thin, sandy-haired young man, Greg could believe it. Grinning slightly, he patted his own stomach, which was beginning to show 'swivel-chair spread'.

"Maybe I should work days for a week." Greg suggested with a raised eyebrow.

"Hell no!" Doug replied with mock alarm. "That's leave me stuck on the god-awful night shift."

"Yeah, yeah." Greg snorted. "Go on, get the hell out of here. Go home."

Snapping to exaggerated attention, Doug threw an over-acted Nazi salute. "Jawhol, mein Herr!"

Shaking his head, Greg watched the day-shift security guard duck into the tiny guard-shack and grab his own faded back-pack to finish stuffing his various magazines and other 'diversions' into it. Leaning against the railing Doug had just vacated, Greg finished his own cigarette as he watched Doug head off to his car with a wave.

Tossing the butt of the cigarette into a nearby bucket of sand kept around for the purpose, Greg wryly surveyed the mostly-empty lot. Aside from various refrigerated trailers parked at loading docks or against the back fence, the only thing in the lot was the battered pick-up of the night-shift maintenance man who worked in the plant doing minor repairs and generally keeping an eye on things inside during the long, dead-quiet night that was just beginning.

With a sigh, Greg entered the guard-shack and shut the door behind him. Tossing his back-pack next to the battered metal desk, he shut off the too-small, badly overworked air conditioner. Grabbing the pot from the coffee-maker on top of the filing cabinet, he ducked into the closet-sized bathroom and filled it with water from the constantly-dripping sink.

Once he had the coffee brewing, Greg slumped into the small booth's single chair and looked out the big windows that formed most of the building, surveying the empty lot with yet another long-suffering sigh. Digging into his back-pack, Greg extracted his Guard's Log-Book, flipping past all the yellow carbon-copy pages at the beginning until he hit a white sheet marking the unused section. Pulling the pen from the small pen-pocket on his shirt, he clicked it three times rapidly, then scrawled out the date, his name, and the site name and location in the sections at the top of the page. On the first line of the report section, he wrote '1900 - On Duty'.

Well, that made it official - he was in charge of 'security' for the plant for the next twelve hours, until relieved at seven o'clock in the morning by Doug. Twelve hours of unrelieved boredom, with nothing to do. Perhaps one truck would come in tonight, a driver running late, and he'd have to log the truck in on the traffic log. Chances were, his report would read exactly the same as it did every night: One entry for 'On Duty', ten hourly entries reading 'Maintained Post', then a seven o'clock 'Off Duty'...

'God, this job sucks...' Greg sighed, closing his log-book and tossing it aside, staring moodily at the rapidly darkening sky outside. Judging the light-level, he closed his eyes and began to count backwards from forty-two...

At 'seven' there was a muffled 'thunk' from the electrical equipment on the wall behind him as the automatic lights switched on, bathing the gravel-surfaced lot in the orange-gold light of the pole-mounted sodium lights.

He sighed. The fact that he was only off by seven seconds meant that he'd been doing this job for way too long. Hell - even one night of this mind-numbing 'warm-body' work was too-much. He needed the money, however, and if you were able to walk, write, and had a clean criminal record, Security work was easy to get into.

For the hundredth time, Greg cursed the stupid rules that forbade having a laptop computer with him. At least then, he could write. After all, a writer was what he was - Security was just something he did. To Greg, that was a hell of a big distinction, and it was something to hold onto, even if this job cut into his writing time, pushing him further and further behind what he actually wanted to do. Still, it all came down to a question of money, and the job made the impossible possible, financially speaking.

Taking off his black ball-cap with the company logo embroidered on the front, Greg ran his fingers through his full, somewhat shaggy mane of dark-brown hair and tossed the cap on the desk. Pouring himself a cup of coffee, he added sugar and whitener, taking a sip and grimacing at the flavor of the 'cream substitute'.

Putting the styrofoam cup aside, he pulled a tattered crossword puzzle book out of the back-pack and flipped through it, looking for one he hadn't finished yet. Technically speaking, crosswords were in a 'gray' area of the rules. TV's, laptops, GameBoy and it's clones - these were strictly forbidden. Get caught by one of the roving patrols with any of those, and you were fired - same if you were found asleep. Books and crossword puzzles were 'frowned upon', getting you a warning... and if the same mobile patrol caught you a few times, it would get bucked up to Fred, who ran the local branch office. From Fred you got one more warning - and then, if caught again, you were fired. After all, a security guard was supposed to be 'eternally vigilante', not nose-down in some book or crossword puzzle.

Greg already had two Mobile-Patrol warnings, but as of yet Fred hadn't been notified, so he still kept the crosswords around - especially since he could shove the thin magazine in under the traffic log if Mobile Patrol should show up, something he couldn't do with a book or laptop. Settling in as comfortably as possible, he bit the metal 'plunger' of the pen lightly between his teeth and considered the clue for 1-Across...

* * * * *

The sharp, insistent buzz yanked Greg's attention away from the crossword puzzle.

"What the...?" He said, tossing the book aside and looking around in confusion. The shrill, piercing sound of the electronic buzzer was new and unfamiliar to Greg, and he wondered what the hell was making the sound...

...and then he noticed a red light blinking on the two-way radio sitting in a recharging cradle on a shelf and lightly covered in a coat of dust. Since the Holmes Food was a one-man post, the radio unit was really only there for regulation's sake - it wasn't powerful enough to reach any other site, much less the home office, and would only reach a Mobile Patrol if they were practically within line-of-sight... and since mobile patrol had to stop at every site it passed, that made the radio redundant.

Frowning slightly in confusion, Greg pulled the radio out of its charging cradle and looked at the face, where a red LED was glowing beside the channel-indicator display, next to '2'.

Turning the small knob on the top to the correct channel, Greg squeezed the transmit-bar on the side of the hand-sized unit, waited a two-beat, and said (rather hesitantly) "Holmes Food, Security."

Releasing the side-bar, he heard a second of static, and then a voice.

"Hey, hate to bother you. It's John, from Maintenance. I'm out in the east corner of the lot doing a repair on one of the reefers."

Greg's confused look slid away. John was the night maintenance man, and among his duties was to make sure that the refrigerated trailers were running, so a load didn't spoil over the weekend. Usually, if he needed to get in touch with the guard shack for any reason, he'd use the phone - but the east corner was the farthest spot on the lot from the building itself, where the long-haul, low-value reefer trailers were stored, and John had been smart enough to grab a radio for this type of situation, rather than having to go several hundred yards to use the phone.

"What can I do for you, John?" Greg asked, settling back in the seat.

"Well, I got a big favor to ask." John's voice came back, sounding slightly ashamed. "I know you're not supposed to leave the guard-shack unattended, but it's pretty dead right now. D'ya think I could get you to run down to Lower Electrical and turn on the power to outlet 73? I gotta jump-start Reefer 471."

Each of the 'parking spots' for the reefers had a twin outlet, designed so that a reefer could (if necessary) be run off of electrical power rather than its own diesel engine. The ones out in the far corner, however, had been turned off on the weekend ever since a group of kids had scaled the fence and had a little 'party' behind the reefers, using the plug to run a portable stereo and a small 'beer fridge'.

Technically, Greg wasn't supposed to go further than twenty feet from the guard shack when he was on duty... but it was dead, and he was bored.

"Sure thing. I'll head over right now." Greg told John, who thanked him - and well he should, since the switches were on Greg's side of the building, about as far away as you could get from where John was working and still be on the property.

Glancing quickly to make sure a Mobile Patrol was cruising down the street outside the lot, Greg stuck his cap on his head and hurried across the graveled yard. Reaching the side of the building, he used one of the keys from the Master set kept in the guard-shack to unlock the bright-red door to Lower Electrical, pulling it open and stepping inside quickly.

Technically, he was breaking a half-dozen rules. Not only was he not at his post, but he wasn't supposed to be in the plant itself. He didn't work for Holmes, really, but for the security company, who had a contract with Holmes - and there was no

'interior patrols', or patrols of any kind, in the contract. Not only that, but Greg wasn't an electrician or maintenance man of any sort, and he was breaking more rules being in a supposedly restricted area.

If you didn't get caught, though... Greg just had to be careful not to injure himself. Since he wasn't supposed to be in here in the first place, it didn't count as a workplace accident if something happened, so he wouldn't be covered.

Quickly, Greg headed past some loosely-stacked equipment near the door, heading towards one of the circuit-breaker panels near the far wall.

Quickly, he located the open circuit for seventy-three, and he reached out and flipped the plastic breaker...

...and shook his head, looking across the room at the circuit board, the sharp tang of ozone filling the air. He felt as if he'd been kicked by a mule in the chest, head and crotch, and it seemed like there were millions of ants crawling all over his body.

"What the hell...?" Greg asked himself, thickly, pushing himself up from the pile of cleaning supplies he found himself sprawled atop of. He shook his head, trying to clear it, and swallowed thickly at the odd, coppery taste in his mouth.

Walking towards the circuit board, he noticed his radio laying on the floor, where he had apparently dropped it... in a puddle of some sort of liquid he hadn't noticed.

Slowly, it began to dawn on Greg that's he'd just gotten a hell of an electrical shock. In delayed fear, adrenaline flooded his system - but, aside from the itchy sensation and a low, throbbing pain, he felt fine, so he guessed he must not have been too badly hurt by the shock, even though it had caused him to end up halfway across the room, with a short gap in his memory.

Thankful that it hadn't been worse than it had been, Greg began to reach down for his radio.. and noticed that all the hair on his arm was standing straight up. He paused, looking in surprise at his arm, bared by the short-sleeved shirt.

"Weird.." He muttered, reaching over to try and smooth the hair back into place...

...and gasping in wordless shock as the hair fell out at his touch, drifting slowly to the floor. "Huh." He grunted, grabbing hold of his surprise. "Low-budget electrolysis..."

Shaking his head at his own stupidity, Greg picked up the radio - and discovered it was dead, the display dark and the radio silent.

"Shit..." He muttered, quietly but with passion. Here he'd gone and done something against the rules, and not only had it ended up being mildly painful, as well as 'annoying', but he'd ruined the radio...

The radio that was the same make and model as the ones in the chargers near the other wall of the room. Feeling guilty, Greg glanced around, then quickly walked over and switched the dead radio for one of Holme's good ones. Somebody would eventually notice that the radio was dead, but they'd never connect it to him - and there were a dozen more radios in the room, so it was just one among many.

Setting the radio to the correct channel, Greg hurried to the door, knowing the radio wouldn't function well while inside the building.

As soon as he was outside, he gave John a call - and felt a wave of relief run through him as the maintenance man thanked him for turning on the power. Apparently, the 'short circuit' he'd created hadn't damaged the fuse, and John had no idea anything had happened. Aside from the fact that Greg's body hair had been loosened and that the radio went dead which was on the shelf, there were no visible signs of Greg's screw-up. As long as he kept his mouth shut, nobody had to know anything about this.

Turning off the radio, Greg hurried back to the guard shack, mentally wincing as he felt more and more of his body hair fall out from the friction of air or clothing over his skin.

By the time he'd set his 'new' radio in the charging cradle and slumped back in his chair, his arms were completely denuded of hair. A quick check inside his shirt revealed that the hair on his chest was gone as well, which presumably meant that all his body hair was gone...

The arms were no big deal, since he could throw on the jacket in his back-pack and keep it from getting noticed. A bolt of fear ran through him, though, and his hands quickly flew to his face and ran over it...

Of his short, narrow-trimmed goatee there was no sign. Something ran under his fingers above his eyes, but the eyebrows didn't feel quite right to him.

Swearing under his breath, Greg ducked into the small bathroom and switched on the light, peering into the mirror above the sink.

His face was as smooth as the proverbial baby's bottom, at least from his eyes down. That wasn't so bad - though it might sound a bit weird, he could always claim that he'd gotten so bored that he'd shaved his goatee off.

His eyebrows, however, would be harder to explain. They hadn't fallen out completely, but they were definitely a lot thinner and finer. In fact, Greg had always had very thick eyebrows, ones that almost formed a 'uni-brow', like Sesame Street's 'Bert'. Now, his eyebrows were thin and fine, looking dainty - practically feminine - above his hazel eyes.

This was going to make an excuse a little bit tougher to swallow. Being bored enough to shave off the goatee was one thing - but bored enough to pluck his eyebrows...?

Well, it wasn't as if there was anything he could do about it. He'd just have to bluff it out as best he could until they grew back in again.

Well, he'd just have to hope for the best. Perhaps Doug wouldn't even notice the eyebrows, being distracted by the shaved goatee...

...or maybe the slowly fading splotches on Greg's uniform.

"Shit!" Greg swore, louder this time. He'd barely noticed the fact that he'd been splashed by cleaning solutions - he must have damaged some of the containers when he'd landed on them. Now, some of them were acting as a bleach, while others were staining his uniform darker. He had a second uniform, but they were both 'loaners' from the company, given to a guard free - but they had to be paid for if they weren't returned in 'good order'.

This night just kept getting better and better. Well, again, there was nothing Greg could do about it. Sure, the place was pretty dead, but the guardhouse was almost all glass, so he wasn't about to strip out of his uniform and try to wash it in the sink. He'd just have to put up with the chemical-scented, splotchy-colored uniform.

Unless...

Tempted, Greg looked over at the 'Locker-Stock' box. It was company policy that employees were not allowed to leave anything in their lockers over the weekend, while the plant was shut down. It might have seemed a bit of a harsh rule, but it had come after something left in a locker had started a fire a couple years back. Now, every Friday the security guard would use a master key to open up the lockers and take everything out, putting it all in a big box kept in the guard shack, where the employees could pick up their stuff on Monday.

Quite often, employees would be in such a hurry to get out of there on Friday night that they'd leave in their work clothes, forgetting their street clothes in their locker. Maybe there would be...

No. No, he was already in a bad situation. If Mobile Patrol caught him rooting through - or wearing - employee's personal belongings, he'd be fired for sure.

Sighing, Greg slumped into his chair and tried to look at the bright side... except that he couldn't seem to find one. Shaking his head, he decided to put it out of his mind for now, and so turned his attention back to the crossword puzzle he'd been working on.

Maybe it was from the adrenaline thrumming through his system, but Greg found it very hard to focus on the puzzle. In fact, he now realized that he'd missed the chemicals on his uniform for the same reason - he was 'fuzzy-headed', having problems focusing on more than one thing at a time. The strange part of it was - he hadn't noticed it right off. It hadn't seemed strange to him until he'd focused on the fact that he could only focus on one thing at a time. It meant that he had to turn all his attention to the crossword to be able to work on it, and he felt a momentary fear at being got 'deeply engrossed' in the puzzle.. but he couldn't just sit here, staring out at the empty parking lot. Pushing his misgivings aside, he focused all his attention on the crossword puzzle, the rest of the world seeming to fade away as he focused on a crossword that seemed much, much more difficult than it had been earlier in the evening...

After awhile, Greg began to have trouble keeping his focus on the crossword. He'd finally gotten into the 'mood' needed to concentrate on the puzzle, even as hard as it had become, and he really didn't want to lose it - but something was tugging more and more at his awareness, something powerful enough to drag his attention away from what he was trying to do.

With a sigh, Greg abandoned the puzzle and lifted his head, idly brushing a strand of long, silky chestnut hair out of his face, careful not to poke himself in the eye with one of the long, slender nails tipping his slender, dainty finger.

A quick check outside revealed that whatever had distracted him from the puzzle wasn't out there - it was just after three in the morning, and there was no sign of life to be seen. Greg could have been on the dark side of the moon, for all the activity that was going on.

Seeing nothing that could have distracted him, Greg leaned back and idly undid the straining buttons of his shirt, setting free his massive, incredibly firm tits. Idly, Greg began to massage them, moaning in a high soprano voice as his long, dainty fingers played with his massive, fully engorged nipples. It felt so good, one of his hands slid downwards, finding the fly of his pants, which were straining over his full, rounded hips and firm, sexy ass. Quickly, he released the pressure on the straining buttons, letting him slide one hand into his panties and begin to slide sensually over his hot, wet pussy...

Dimly, Greg realized he could get into a hell of a lot of trouble if he were caught masturbating. After all, it was something somebody in a 'glass house' shouldn't do. Regretfully, he pulled his hands away from his lush, smooth body and began to refasten his clothes - but it wasn't easy, what with the fabric so taut over his body, and his long nails getting in the way all the time.

Greg paused, suddenly realizing that he couldn't remember it being this difficult to get dressed for the start of the shift this evening. Frowning, he concentrated on this discrepancy...

"Holy fuckin' shit!" Greg screamed, jerking so hard that his altered body tumbled from the chair and sprawled out on the floor, his huge, firm boobs landing on the cool tile below him, his engorged nipples pressed into the floor.

Except... except it wasn't 'his' anything. It was 'her' tits. Because...

"I'm a woman!" Greg gasped, stunned and not wanting to believe it, even though there was no way to deny the sensation of her tits pressed against the floor - or to forget what she had found (and failed to find) when she'd slipped her hands down into her pants.

Then her initial, almost involuntary admission of the situation was repeated, this time in a tone of horrified comprehension of the magnitude of what had happened.

"I'm a woman!" She screamed, hearing her new, high-pitched voice. With a convulsive motion, she rolled off of her full new chest and yanked herself upright by hauling hard on the edge of the desk. Shirt flapping around her new bust, pants plastered tight to her womanly hips and full ass despite having been undone, she staggered towards the bathroom. Her badly oversized boots were barely noticed in her awkward, panicked shuffle.

A glance in the mirror over the sink made it 'official' - because a slender, buxom young woman looked back at her.

"No... This can't be happening..." She now tried to deny what she'd already verified, not wanting to accept what had happened to her. Her words were empty of conviction, however - there was just no logical way of making this just 'go away', no matter how illogical the situation itself seemed. What was happening - had happened - to her should have been impossible... but it had happened nonetheless, and there was no way (short of losing her sanity completely) to deny it.

For several seconds, she nearly took that one, last refuge. Her mind teetered on the brink of collapse, not willing to deal with this occurrence...

...and then it finally smacked home with a power so palatable she could practically hear it - and it sounded an awful lot like a prison cell door being slammed shut.

"How...?" the new woman stammered, stunned, staring at the lovely new face her reshaped skull boasted. "When...?"

It seemed impossible - but she'd been so wrapped up in that damned crossword puzzle that she hadn't even noticed her body changing, altering, going from masculine to the feminine. Indeed, she hadn't noticed anything until the discomfort of her straining clothes broke through her self-erected wall of concentration...

As well it should have - her clothes weren't designed for the new body that filled - overflowed - them. Though she was about the same height as always, her new body was generally more slender all over but that was just a matter of an inch or two reduction, something more-than-equalled by the several inches of expansion in her hips and ass, and even more in her chest. She, as a man, had begun to put on some weight around the middle. Now, all that extra mass had been relocated, as well as the extra mass that the 'slenderizing' had left behind. All that weight had shifted to hips, ass, and bust, leaving her with an exaggerated hourglass figure on an otherwise slender frame.

"Holy shit..." Greg breathed in her already naturally breathy new voice, staring at her new figure with eyes that now could be described as 'doe-eyed'. "I... I'm a total babe...!"

Hesitantly, the new woman slowly pulled her ill-fitting clothes off, sighing with guilty relief as she peeled her too-tight pants from her womanly hips and full, firm ass. Her boots didn't even need to be unlaced for her to slip them from her dainty new feet.

The last item she removed was her boxer briefs, and even though she knew what she'd find, she was hesitant to see for herself what her questing fingers had already determined. Once she'd worked up the courage, however, she slipped her underwear down and stepped (daintily, her mind insisted on reporting) out of them.

Slowly, her new eyes traced up her feminine new body, taking in every detail of the form she now wore.

Her feet were slender and 'agreeable' feminine, dainty and well formed. Oddly enough, many guys were so focused on the rest of a woman's figure that they missed the hands and feet, but not Greg - as a guy, she'd been aware of the 'total package', from the tip of dainty toes to the top of silky, well- styled hair. Not that Greg had ever found that 'perfection' of course. Various women had various flaws, one with 'perfect' legs and breasts having bony hands and feet, or somebody with flawless skin and a stunning face having too slender hips and too small chest.

That is, Greg had never seen 'perfection'... until now.

Her new body was flawless. From her perfect, 'girlish' feet rose long, smooth legs that were lightly muscles under a thin layer of 'smoothing' fat that women were always fighting to keep in perfect balance. Her hips were wide and frankly womanly, child-bearing hips that were ideally suited to support the firm, inverted heart-shaped ass that practically begged to be enclosed in something tight and 'showy'.

Her waist was delightfully slender, a perfect 'coke-bottle' pinching-in that resulted in smooth curve out to her hips below, and upwards into the slender ribcage that boasted those melon-sized ideals of feminine pulchritude - breasts that had just the slightest hint of sag to make them undeniably 'natural', yet remarkably firm and spherical in their own right, tipped with large, dark nipples that were frankly feminine and not the least bit virginal.

Most men could be forgiven for stopping the survey when their eyes took in what this woman had to offer from ankle-to-neck, those legs, that ass, the slender waist and the full breasts looming above it. However, to do so would have denied them the pleasure of seeing slender, well-formed arms narrowing to remarkably petite, feminine wrists that joined to slender, dainty hands that could have been used in modeling jewelry. Indeed, any single part of her body would serve admirably as a back- drop in fashion-photos. In an industry where people scoured the world for perfect hands, perfect feet for shoe layouts, perfect legs for nylon ads, and the rest, Greg's new body boasted perfection in all these features...

...including her face. It wasn't a cool, classical beauty like that found in many old statues, but a heart- shaped delight boasting full lips, a pert nose, and huge, dark eyes that were limpid and deep, like twin pools of water that a man could quite happily drown in.

Her hair was a rich, shiny shade of chestnut, and it trailed in easy waves down her slender, swan-like neck and flared out, cape-like, just above the spectacular ass her frame boasted.

Greg stared at her new body in awe - and confusion. She still didn't know how this had happened to her, and it wasn't something she'd ever wanted to happen. Indeed, if asked what she'd do at finding herself female, she might have predicted panic, insanity, even a complex emotional breakdown that left her curled up in a ball, sobbing. After the initial shock, however, she felt none of this. Instead, she felt a sense of lustful awe at seeing this gorgeous specimen of femininity, a desire to be near her, to touch her incredible body, to have her do whatever he wanted her to do...

...except that this body was now hers, and she had complete and utter control over it in a way he hadn't ever considered. Her male mind, of course, had urges to do things to this body that (even if she were freakish enough to be equipped for it) would require gymnastic acumen beyond the norm.

'Go fuck yourself' was a comment that would have had completely different ramifications for Greg right now if somebody suggested it. After all, it was her emotional desire to do just that, no matter how strange and even twisted the situation was.

That being impossible, however, Greg was stunned by the next set of thoughts and desires that washed over her - because she found herself wanting to see what this body would look like if it were fully made up, jewelry-bedecked, and clothed in ways that flattered and emphasized her beauty.

She didn't want to be a woman, and she'd expected that would mean she didn't want to do anything feminine - but, to her male mind, this was a gorgeous female 'he' was looking at, and 'he' wanted to see her looking as sexy as possible. The same thoughts Greg would have had as a male, if 'he' had seen this vision of beauty walking down the street in 'frumpy' clothes and no make-up.

The biggest difference was that 'he' could actually make 'her' wear whatever 'he' wanted 'her' too, make 'her' do anything 'he' wanted - because it was 'his' brain in 'her' body. Greg was this gorgeous creature, and had complete and total control over this incredible body.

To find that your first - well, second - urge at being unexpectedly turned female was to 'play dress-up' was disconcerting... but Greg was able to damp down that guilty feeling with a little left-field rationalization.

"Well, my clothes won't fit me anymore..." She told herself. "I guess I'll have to see what else I can find to wear while I figure out how to undo this..."

Of course, there was no guarantee that this could be undone, but she didn't let herself think about that because she wasn't sure whether or not she'd be horrified or excited at the thought...

Trying not to dwell on the mixed feelings that the thought of permanence brought, she glanced out the door of the bathroom, heart pounding behind those perfect breasts as she made sure nobody was around to see her naked body... and not sure whether the thought of being seen naked was scaring her or exciting her.

This definitely wasn't what she would have expected, if she'd ever given this 'impossible' situation any consideration at all.

Quickly, she dashed across the width of the small shack, grabbing the trunk used to store the 'Friday Night Haul', dragging the foot-locker style box into the bathroom with her and shutting the door.

The box took up most of what little room there was in the bathroom, and she sat awkwardly on the edge of the toilet as she opened the box and began to sort through the items inside, hoping to find something to stuff this new body into and, subconsciously, working on excuses to give herself for picking a sexier item over a more 'unflattering' one...

As it turned out, she didn't have any choices to make. There wasn't much clothing in the box, and she had to go with whatever would fit.

There was no underwear of any sort in the box, which (of course) made sense. Women weren't known for leaving their underthings crammed in a locker until it started to smell like old socks and sweat - that was strictly a guy thing, and even then usually in an all-male environment like men's change-rooms.

For a second, Greg found herself thinking an odd thought: What did women's change-rooms smell like...?

In any case, she wasn't going to have undergarments to put on, and she wasn't putting those ill-fitting boxer briefs back on.

Instead, she 'went commando'. One of the female employees obviously liked to work out during her lunch break, probably jogging once or twice around the perimeter of the plant, behind the rows of parked trailers. In any case, there was a pair of black spandex pants in the box, ones with a powder- blue stripe running down the outside of each leg. They were a little tight, but Greg was guiltily aware of the fact that they only molded that much tighter to her legs and spectacular ass, like a second skin that emphasized the curves she now boasted.

The matching black Nike crop-top was too small for her new endowments, which she'd 'guestimated' as being an incredibly firm DDD-cup, or maybe even EEE. In fact, there was nothing in the box that would do a good job of enclosing her spectacular new bust - so she resorted to her guard shirt.. with a twist. Knowing how uncomfortably tight it would be, buttoned, she instead tied it 'Country-Girl' style, a big bow at the lower quarter of her firm bust, covering them enough to be 'street legal', but displaying an eye-catching amount of creamy breast-flesh and mouth-watering cleavage. Her thick, engorged nipples even made themselves noticeable through the fabric, poking impudent dents into the fabric.

There was only one set of footwear in the box. Probably from a woman who'd come to work after a long night 'clubbing', and had exchanged them for something more comfortable. Greg didn't know for sure, of course, but it didn't really matter. What did matter was the fact that the black leather knee- boots fit her dainty new feet as if they were custom-made, and the four-inch high flared heel was pretty easy for her supple, agile new body to balance in. Part of her would have preferred the effect spike heels would have lent, especially high ones, six or seven inches - but she doubt she could have walked in such heels without plenty of practice, whereas these only required some concentration to remain gracefully balanced atop.

Though she felt guilty about it, part of her lamented the lack of jewelry in the box. Even 'worse' was the fact that there was a few cosmetics left behind by female employees... and she just couldn't seem to help herself, her desire to see this body at it's best practically forcing her to try her hand at applying the pastel pink lipstick, mascara, and pale 'burnt sienna' eye-shadow.

It took six tries in front of the mirror to get the make-up looking good - but it was worth it. Well, to Greg's male mind, at least, it was worth seeing this 'hot chick' emphasizing her body and face.

Another part of her, well aware it was here, found this really 'sick'... but couldn't stop it from happening.

The mirror also showed something else - the make-shift outfit she'd donned looked damned hot, like a 'stripper version' of a security-guard's uniform, the sort she might put together for a routine.

The mental image moved her to find a twist-tie from a box of garbage bags and put her hair up into a loose ponytail, feeding her silky mane carefully through the gap above the size-adjustment band in her company ball-cap, completing the 'uniform' as she snuggled the cap into place - after resizing it for her altered skull, of course.

The final 'look' was damned sexy. Sexy enough to arouse her male mind - which, in turn, caused her body to become aroused, producing female hormones that got her all 'hot and bothered', making her new womanhood hot and wet, her new nipples as hard as diamond.

Which only further served to increase her male-mind's arousal - which, in turn, drove her new body to new heights of sexual desire. Unlike men, where they reached a certain point at which they'd 'burst', a woman's arousal could feed on itself - and did.

Without anticipating it, without being ready for it (if she could have been), Greg's new body got locked into a feedback-loop of lust, rapidly achieving a level of arousal that was almost physically painful - but not quite. Unlike a guy's arousal, which was mainly external (and hydraulic), this arousal wasn't uncomfortable or painful, but exciting and 'mellowing', leaving her in a strange, almost dreamy state of raw desire.

There was also something completely unexpected about a woman's arousal that Greg had never really realized. With men, increased sensitivity during arousal was confined almost exclusively to the cock, and that was 'external', to boot. With this new body, arousal seemed to run through every nerve, bringing increased sensitivity to every end of her nerve network, bringing her entire body to a state of hyper-sensitivity... but with a far greater increase in nipples, breast and crotch.

Even more noticeable - more powerful - was the fact that her womanhood was an internal apparatus, that new sensitivity and desire like a wonderful warm, moist fire burning deep inside, filling her with an nearly irrepressible urge to be filled, to have something inside her, satisfying an 'itch' she couldn't scratch...

It was in this state of hyper-sensitive arousal, different and more 'intimate' than any she'd ever known as a man, that she heard the sound of a car door closing somewhere close to the guard shack.

"Oh, shit..." She said, stunned to realize that somebody was going to see her like this. Though she knew, intellectually, that she was fully female, part of her still felt like a guy in drag, as if her mental maleness was more important than the visibly female body the rest of the world would see. Feeling both panicked and aroused, she hesitantly opened the door to the bathroom and stepped out into the other room, wondering what the hell she was going to say or do.

The door to the guard-shack opened, and John - the night-shift maintenance man - stepped into the room...

...and stopped dead, eyes going wide and jaw going slack as he took in the tall, stunning woman in a sort of Guard's uniform standing in the middle of the guard shack. Unconsciously, Greg had ended up in a graceful, feminine 'pose', hands hanging naturally at her side, shoulders back, her weight on one leg so her rounded hips were cocked in a way that emphasized the smooth line of the hip-waist-breast contour.

"I, uh..." John stammered, numbly lifting the two cups of take-out coffee he held. "I went to buy coffee, and thought I'd get one for Greg, to thank him..."

The words only barely registered on Greg. She was otherwise preoccupied by two things. One was her panic at being 'found female', already rapidly fading into something else as it became obvious that the only thing John saw was a woman - and one that was sexually exciting to him, at that.

The other thing taking up her attention was the fact that she was just now realizing how handsome John was. How.. how masculine. How very male he was - as male as she was female. Oh, he was no movie-star, especially in his grungy clothes - but his faintly oily scent, mixed with a hint of 'hard-work' sweat and more than a little male musk from arousal, was so animalistic/masculine that it bypassed her male forebrain and struck directly at her aroused female senses.

Greg was stunned to find that she was lusting after John's firm, tanned body. The fact that he was obviously appreciating her curvaceous figure only increased what she was feeling - and she was quite guiltily enjoying the sensation.

There was a pause before what he'd said registered, but John didn't notice - he was too busy staring at her well-displayed body.

"I'm filling in for the rest of Greg's shift.," Was the best she could come up with on short notice, finding herself inordinately glad that he hadn't 'seen through her disguise' and recognized her. Intellectually, she knew that he wouldn't, but the verification soothed her emotional confusion a bit. "I'm..."

Oh, shit. She hadn't bothered to come up with a name. What sort of name would a woman like this have? What sort of name did a stunning, glorious...

"I'm Gloria." She said, finding her voice throaty with desire that she didn't know how to cope with. Male arousal she knew how to handle, to some degree, but this was new, this was confusing, this was... exciting.

"Uh.. John." He managed to reply. "Uh... well, would you like some coffee...?" HE held out one of the coffees. "It's double-double, if that's okay."

"That's be great..." She said, more to say something than out of actual interest in the coffee. She was at loose ends as to how to act, the only things leaping immediately to her aroused mind being 'sick' or 'wrong'.

Only.. right now they didn't feel sick or wrong. Sure, her male mind was insisting that they must be - but her female body was definitely insisting that it would feel soooooo good...

To cover her confused embarrassment, she accepted the coffee and sat down on the edge of the desk, pulling a cigarette out of her pack almost without thinking about it, merely responding to a long-established habit.

She was actually surprised when she heard her own voice invite John to have a seat and join her. It was with less surprise that she saw John take her up on that offer, seating himself oh-so-close to her luscious body, eyes roving almost of their own accord over every perfect, powerful inch of her body. Nervous, shaken - and aroused - she lit her cigarette and took a sip of her coffee as a 'diversionary' tactic, wondering why the hell she'd invited him to stay.

"I... I didn't realize that security guards could wear something other than their uniform..." John said, blushing slightly as he gave his 'rational' excuse for eyeing her - and it was quite an eyeful he was getting, with her barely-restrained tits at just about eye level.

"Night shift is a little looser than day shift, because it's so quiet..." She said, truthfully - and found herself leaning forward, better displaying her cleavage as she said in a very, very seductive voice: "You'd be amazed at what night-shift can get away with..."

What the hell was wrong with her? She was actually coming on to John! Just because she was so damned horny she couldn't think straight, just because her tits ached to be fondled, her lips begged to be kissed, she was actually coming on to John in the hopes that he'd respond! This wasn't right!

So why did it feel so damned right? Why did it feel like the most important thing in the world to get John so horny he'd fuck her long and hard, satisfying the rampant desire her new body gave her?

Greg/Gloria was too far gone to realize that horny people made 'stupid' decisions. It was like being drunk or something. There was a long historic precedent for horny people doing things that they wouldn't have done in calmer - more sane - moments. How else did unplanned pregnancies happen? Obviously, people would be more careful about that, and a host of other things, if it weren't for the hormones running rampant in their systems.

Right now, her new body was swimming in at least four times the amount of hormones produced in the body of your average pubescent female, and it was affecting her all the more for the fact she had no idea how to handle these new urges and sensations.

John, wide-eyed, coughed and took another long slug of the steaming coffee, not even noticing as it scalded his tongue. He was trying to convince himself that he must have misunderstood her - after all, a stunningly sexy woman you just met didn't try and seduce you in sex, at least not outside the pages of Playboy...

...except that Gloria was doing just that, her own situation far more exotic than anything a writer might have come up with.

The new woman's mind swam, thoughts hard to form, even harder to hold onto - and when she did hold a thought, then her body moved as if on it's own, responding to an ages-old sexual imperative that modern women had learned how to hand through years of experience that 'Gloria' lacked.

So, she was surprised to find herself gracefully setting the coffee aside and sliding the butt of her cigarette sensuously between her full, lipstick-clad lips, eyes becoming heavy-lidded and sensual as she stared at John...

...and used her hands to slowly undo the knot in her shirt, letting the blue fabric part to reveal her gorgeous, firm globes in all their magnificent glory.

Using her right hand to remove her cigarette from her mouth, she closed her eyes and leaned back, slowly expelling a slow stream of smoke in a strangely erotic plume...

...as her other hand slowly and sensuously massaged her own, massive breast.

"Mmmm " She moaned low in the back of her throat, shocked at her own actions but unable to control herself. "this feels so good "

Then, as she'd half expected, she felt the hesitant touch of John's shaking hand on her other full, inviting breasts. With an inviting sigh of pleasure, she leaned even further back - while scooting her ass forward, putting her chest even more firmly in John's slightly surprised hand. Bracing herself on her left arm, she continued to take long, sensual drags from her cigarette as she moaned low and deep at John's steadily more confident touch, his strong, work-roughened hands seeming to strike sparks of pure pleasure that burned through her nerves as he eagerly and expertly massaged and fondled her breasts...

...and then his hands were joined by his lips and tongue as he took turns licking and sucking on her thick, fully engorged nipples, and now her moans were interspersed with sharp, sweet gasps of pleasure as she unconsciously found herself scooting further and further forward on the desk...

...until, quite suddenly, she found herself lowering herself onto his lap, cigarette dropped in the ashtray as she bent her head and let her full, inviting lips part slightly in anticipation.

She wasn't disappointed. As much as he was enjoying nibbling on her round, firm tits, he left off with that to lift his face to hers, and their lips met in a long, deep, and very pleasurable kiss.

Gloria had never realized just how good a kiss could feel. Her lips were fuller, firmly soft - and very sensitive to the pleasure of John's firm-yet-tender kiss. Her tongue seemed made to dance with his, sliding in and out of his mouth as he did the same to her in an age-old dance of passion.

She would never be able to recall what exactly happened next. When their lips, something seemed to explode in her mind. She'd passed the point of no return, and her male mind was washed under by a flood of desire, and thought seemed to stop completely, leaving her in a world of pleasure and sensation.

The next thing she knew, they were both naked, and she was braced over the edge of the desk, legs locked and spread, hands braced on the desk and firm breasts dangling below her, nipples almost painfully erect in the cool air as she stared out the window at the empty plant...

...and then even sight was erased from her repertoire of senses as she felt John's throbbing, ready manhood slide firmly and deeply into her oh-so-ready new womanhood.

She lost all sense except physical touch, the sensation of pressure and pleasure as John began to fuck her hard and deep. She didn't hear his gasps of eager exertion, or her own gasps and moans of pleasure, her own demands that he fuck her harder and deeper. She was unaware that her body was responding automatically, moving her hips in a counter-point to maximize the pleasure she was feeling from this most feminine of acts. All she was aware of was the rising tide of pleasure that was unlike anything she'd ever experienced before.

When, as a man, Greg had reached orgasm, it was like a dam letting go, a flood of pleasure that rushed out of him along with his spray of seminal fluid, as if the pleasure was a liquid that flowed forth at orgasm.

Gloria, however, experienced something new and exciting. Her orgasm wasn't a dam bursting - it was a nuclear detonation. A tremendous blast of soundless white light, pleasure that thrummed through her and ripped a scream from her like the sound-blast that followed the light-speed visual explosion of a nuclear bomb. That explosion was followed by the long, slow glide down, like the gradual white-to-orange-to-red fade of a nuclear explosion towards its incarnation as a spreading mushroom cloud.

Gasping from an overloaded sensory network, fine new body sheathed in sweat, Gloria slumped on the desk, barely feeling her own torso's weight atop her firm, spectacular breasts as John gasped and pulled out of her, his load feeling warm and somehow wonderfully comforting inside her.

Gloria then discovered something else about her new body. Sex, while immensely gratifying, wasn't necessarily 'satisfying'. Unlike a man's 'hydraulic system', a woman's body could be ready for another round immediately following. Though the sexual experience she'd just had was amazing, it wasn't 'quenching'. Though new and wonderful, it wasn't necessarily better than a male orgasm... and it wasn't nearly as final.

Though she'd just had sex, as a woman, she found herself feeling less 'anxious' but still eager to go again.

The level of her own desires scared and shocked her. She'd been so utterly horny that she'd lost control, her male mind not even putting up a token protest once she'd felt John's lips on her own. Now, after a tremendous orgasm, her mind was once more beginning to function...

...and she found herself, male and female parts alike, wanting more of the same. Wanting to be caressed, touched, kissed - and fucked.

Just having one 'measly' orgasm wasn't enough to satisfy her rampaging hormones. Her body, still affected by her own male outlook, was still 'revved up'. Even though thought of this body - male mind or no - having sex with men was exciting, arousing, enticing. It had felt wonderful, it had excited her and turned her on - like her male mind had a first-row seat at the most incredible porno ever filmed, where a gorgeous, buxom woman got fucked long and hard - and you not only got to see it, but feel it. Though part of her still desperately wished it could be experienced from the male viewpoint, she knew that she was the woman and there was nothing she could do to alter that, at least for now - and sex as a woman was a hell of a 'second best'. In fact, because it was so new and different, if not inherently better, than a male orgasm, that made it all the more wonderful - and made her want to do it again all the more.

The sheer depth of her own desire scared the living shit out of her. Now that her mind was working once again, what she'd just done shocked - and excited - her. As a man, even given a 'hypothetical/impossible' scenario where 'he' somehow became a woman, Greg would never believe that 'he'/she would willingly have sex with a man much less enjoy it immensely - and want more.

She began to flush furiously, her orgasmic 'calm' quickly turning to confusion and guilty arousal. "Oh, god - I can't believe I just... I mean, that we "

The words were unplanned - and she regretted them the instants he said them, because John recoiled as if she'd physically struck him.

"No!" She said, sharply, knowing that she'd initiated everything. That fact was more than enough to make her feel guilty, much less how she'd feel if John felt bad about what had just happened. "It It wasn't you. I mean, actually, I appreciate what you did, because I really, really wanted it. What I can't believe is that I wanted it so badly " She paused, seeing the stricken look on his face fade into uncertainty.

John's emotional vulnerability reached through her confused emotions. Having been male, she could understand how a man might feel in this situation. First off all, having a gorgeous woman practically beg you to fuck her was hard enough to believe, no matter how often you might have fantasized about just that. On that almost subconscious doubt, having the woman seem regretful afterward smacked too much of rape.

"Thank you, John." She said, letting her own doubt and confusion fade, her words heavy with sincerity. "I really, really did want that, and I enjoyed it more than you can ever imagine. You certainly didn't do anything wrong. It's my own desires that I feel ashamed of. A real 'lady' shouldn't be like this. I feel... dirty, like I'm.. a slut, or something."

That last part was only partially true. She felt like a 'faggot', her male mind having trouble accepting the fact that she could get so much physical pleasure from having sex with a man. She could just imagine herself trying to explain that to John...

"I.. I enjoyed it, too. I'm sorry if..." John said, miserably - and she gently lay a hand on his arm.

"No - no, let's not do this." She said. "We were just two people giving each other pleasure. Nothing to be ashamed about, for either of us. No string attached - just pleasure."

As she said it, Gloria was stunned to find herself willing to accept it. Her male mind didn't even put up a token argument. After all, sex was sex. She'd had sex, and enjoyed it - why let that be cluttered by negative emotions. After all, she hadn't willingly turned herself female, so there was no guilt in that - and women had needs, too. Natural born women had sex, after all - and now that she was female, for however long it might be, she would be having sex as well. She certainly wasn't going to become celibate. Perhaps lesbian sex would be more her thing - or maybe she'd find having sex with men so much more enjoyable than girl-girl sex that she could put her guilt aside, knowing that (trapped as she was as a woman) there was no better way of getting pleasure. Why should she 'punish' herself with second-rate pleasure just because some sort of freak accident turned her female.

John sighed, managing a small smile. "Well, I guess this is enough like a fantasy that I can treat it like one - a wonderful dream, with no attachment to reality. I can remember what it was like without having to act as if it were something 'meaningful' - or even real."

"Maybe that would be best..." Gloria admitted as John began to dress. She, too, began to pull on her clothing, trying (and failing) to recall exactly when they'd undressed.

Lighting another cigarette and slumping into the chair after John had finished dressing and left, Gloria began to think about all the possible repercussions of her change. How was she going to deal with being female? How was she going to explain it - and to who? How was she going to prove that this gorgeous creature she'd become was 'really' Greg?

How was she going to deal with being so incredibly easy to arouse, since her very own body turned her on...

She tried not to think about that - but it was a useless exercise. Slowly, one hand drifted towards her firm, full breasts, while the other slid downwards towards her crotch.

Before she knew what was happening, the new woman was masturbating frantically, head thrown back as she moaned in pleasure, her pants pulled down to her knees to give her room to frantically finger her swollen, sensitive clit...

For the rest of the evening, the same scenario repeated itself. She'd masturbate herself to orgasm, then be ashamed at her loss of control, rearranging her clothes as she struggle to keep her mind away from sex - only to end up frantically masturbating again, hating herself for being weak to her own desires but unable to stop...

She was just finishing another bout of frantic fingering, her hand dripping with her own feminine juices, when the sun peeked over the horizon...

...and she felt a strange shudder run through her body.

Gloria gasped as the sun washed across her lush female figure - and it began to change. Her breasts began to pull back in on themselves as his clit began to swell. Stunned, she realized that she was once more becoming male, her body readjusting itself... the pain started in her feet. The change itself was surprisingly free of pain, only mildly uncomfortable but her feet were growing in leather boots that had no room for growth, and she quickly bent and unlaced them, hauling them off her rapidly swelling feet. Gasping as the pressure eased, she - no, he straightened...

...just as the door opened and the guy from mobile Patrol stepped in. He'd pulled up when Greg was busy with the boots, and - bent over - neither had been able to see the other. The Mobile Patrol guard had come in to see where Greg was...

...and found him. Greg's change was complete - or as complete as it was going to get. Half-naked, Greg was sprawled in the chair, his body still bare of any body hair. It was more than that, though - his build hadn't altered that much, his bones now set in their position. Though once again male, his body was slender and wide-hipped, effeminate-yet-male...

...with long hair, long nails, and make-up on his somewhat effeminate face. Even worse was the fact that the 'incomplete' change had channeled all those 'free' feminine hormones floating around in his system into a cock even bigger and thicker than the original, downright enormous... and it was hanging limp between his bare thighs, in full view.

The MP guard stared at Greg, who realized what he must looked like, and struggled back into the ill-fitting spandex pants while searching for an excuse - any excuse.

He couldn't find one...

* * * * *

Blushing furiously and feeling most definitely out-of-sorts, Greg kept his eyes averted from all the other last-minute customers in the second-hand clothing store.

It was bad enough that he'd found himself female for the night. It was worse that he'd actually, willingly had sex as a woman. But bad as the thought of being stuck as a woman had been, what had actually happened was worse. Stuck with an effeminate body, out of a job, and with no way of proving an excuse that he didn't dare give anyway. What a hell of a thing...

...and, to add insult to injury, he was spending some of what little money he had saved up to buy a new wardrobe - one that fit his feminine figure. He'd tried K-Mart first... and had been horrified and disgusted to find that nothing fit his altered figure correctly. Though equipped with a massive new cock, though his hands and feet had achieved male proportions, despite his effeminate-yet-definitely-male face and lack of breasts, he had the figure of a woman.

Which is how he found himself here, in a second-hand clothing store. A women's second hand clothing shop. The few female customers and staff all looked at him oddly, the manager even going so far as to ask if he was sure he had the right store, looking at him askance.

Mortified, he'd mumbled a story about 'strange genes' and needing to wear 'unisex' women's clothing for comfort... and the sympathy of the staff was somehow even worse.

Now, miserably, Greg stood in line to pay for his purchases, jeans and simple shirts that could have been men's clothes, if not for the styling to allow for his womanly hips, slender shoulders and slim ribcage. Of course, none of it was designed for his bulging crotch, but even the men's sweatpants he wore fit poorly on his hips, pulling the fabric tight over his crotch. If he had to be uncomfortable anyway, he might as well wear clothes that were as close to comfortable as he could get.

The woman in front of him was digging around in her purse. Greg had noticed her when he'd first come in. Even in his own misery, he couldn't help but notice she was very attractive, with a supple figure and a lovely face. She was fairly buxom, but nowhere as much as 'Gloria' had been, and her hips were slimmer than Greg's new ones, but she was still a supple, 'outdoorsy' sort of beauty, with toned muscles and tanned skin.

More than her beauty, however, the sandy-blond had caught Greg's attention because she was the only person he'd met today who looked as miserable as Greg felt. Her hair was in disarray, her face devoid of make-up, and her eyes red with tears shed. Now, she happened to end up in line in front of him, and even in his own state he could feel both attraction to her fine figure and sorrow for whatever it was she was suffering through.

Finally, she pulled out a credit card and handed it over, and the woman at the counter ran it through the machine - to look upset when the machine 'beeped'.

"Oh, I'm so sorry, Miss - but this card's been canceled." The clerk said, sadly. "I'm afraid I have to cut it up..."

The sandy-haired woman's shoulders slumped, and she began to sob. "Thu.. that bast.. basta.. bastard! It's a joint acc.. account... He shouldn't have can-can-canceled..."

The rest of the sentence was lost in incoherent sobs - and, somehow, her pain snapped things into perspective for Greg. Maybe his life had just turned to shit, but he wasn't the only one with problems.

"It's okay, Miss..." He said, gently. Dumping his own armful of clothes on the counter next to the blonde's, he told the clerk, "Ring it all through as one - I'll pay for it."

The blonde sniffed and looked at him with teary eyes. "Whu.. why?"

He grinned sympathetically and gestured at his own body. "Let's just say I know what it's like to have problems, and how it can feel like they're going to overwhelm you. Think of it as.. as a 'random act of kindness'. Maybe there's something to this Karma deal - and I can use all the good luck I can garner."

The woman managed a sad smile that seemed to crush Greg's heart with its load of sorrow.

"Thank you - but.. But I don't have any money, no place to go, nothing at all. I... I'm flat broke and don't have anything at all and.. and.."

She broke down into deep, wracking sobs, and Greg gently enfolded her shaking body in his arms. "It's all right. Everything is going to be okay..."

"No! It's not!" She wailed, while customer and staff alike looked away in awkward embarrassment of her vulnerable, helpless state. "How is it going to be all right? I don't even have a place to stay tonight!"

"No, no - It'll be okay!" Greg said, as firmly as he could. "Look - My name's Greg. What's your name?" She sniffled, looking up at him with tears in her eyes. "San... Sandy."

"Listen, Sandy - I promise. No matter what happens, I'll make sure you have a place to stay, clothes on your back, and food to eat. You can stay with me until you're back on your feet."

He said it firmly - but privately, he wondered how he was going to manage that, out of work and 'freakish' as he was. Well, at least coping with Sandy would help him keep his mind off his own troubles...

Sandy sniffed, her sobs drying up - but she was still limp, defeated, her eyes sad and without hope.

"It'd be better if I just killed myself." She said, miserably. "You don't know me, Greg. You have no idea what's going on with my life. I appreciate you trying to help me, but nobody can. It would be better if I was never born - but I was. The next best thing is just to end my miserable excuse for a life..."

"No - that's not true." Greg said as firmly as he could. "You're going to let me help you, and everything's going to turn out all right. I promise."

Sandy sighed. "Whatever."

Her hopeless, dispirited look worried Greg - but at least helping her helped him cope with his own situation. Sandy didn't protest when he paid for their purchases and guided her outside and into a taxi- cab... but she followed him like a beaten dog just taken the course of least resistance, no longer seeming to care what happened to her, willing to put her own life in Greg's hands. She showed no concern at being taken back to the apartment of a man she'd just met, and that worried Greg, who'd expected her to protest. She just didn't seem to care.

Paying the driver of the cab with more of his rapidly diminishing stash of money, Greg led an unresisting Sandy into his building an up to his apartment. When he closed the door behind her, she just stood in the entryway, head down and shoulders slumped.

"I'm going to change." Greg said, uncomfortably. "uh - did you want to watch some TV or something? Or maybe you'd like to see the second bedroom. It's kinda bare, but there's a bed and a closet, and we can get some second-hand furniture for you until you're back on your feet..."

"Whatever..." She said, in a numb voice.

"Look, Sandy - it can't be that bad." Greg said, trying to break her uncaring mood.

She looked at him with eyes that were dead. "Yes. It can. You see, it's like this. I was living with this guy. About a year ago, he advertised for a roommate. I'm sure he was expecting a male roommate, but when I showed up, he was more than willing to rent me out the room. Guess he figured I'd maybe, you know, end up as a sort of live-in lover. What I didn't tell him though is that I.. I'm not interested in guys."

"You're a lesbian?" Greg asked - then wanted to kick himself for the tactless comment.

Sandy's grin was anything but humorous. "I wish. Maybe life would be easier. Truth is, I have a hormone imbalance. I.. I don't get sexually aroused. Ever. Who wants to be with a woman who never wants to have sex? Oh, I've tried to fake it, for the sake of a relationship... but I just don't get physically excited, so I'm a 'cold fish' in bed. It's no good."

Greg's eyes stung with tears, but he tried a smile on for size anyway, trying to cheer her up. "Hey, c'mon - guys can enjoy spending time with gals even without sex. Give me a chance. We might end up becoming best friends..."

"...until you meet a girl who likes you - and is willing to sleep with you." Sandy said, in a dead voice. "look, let's just drop it, okay. I appreciate what you're doing. I just don't think it'll do any good. If you don't mind, I think I'll just get a bath and then grab some sleep..."

"Sure. Whatever you'd like." Greg agreed, uncomfortable with her conviction that life wasn't worth living. He showed her to the bathroom, and as she started a tub to filling, he went into his bedroom and began to change, peeling out of the ill-fitting clothes...

...when a thought struck him. A horrible, horrible thought. When a person was this dispirited, they were quite often hospitalized for depression - and put on a suicide watch.

He'd just left her alone in the bathroom.

Horrified at the thought, praying he was wrong, Greg dashed from his bedroom - barely aware of the fact that he was stark naked. Instead, that dead look in Sandy's eyes loomed before him, and his gut was clenched in fear.

The sound of running water had stopped, even though there was no way the tub could be full yet. Greg pounded on the door - and got no response.

It was a 'Hollywood' scene, yet one that Greg wasn't aware of performing. All he knew was that there was a locked door between him and a woman who might already be dead, and he didn't even think - he just stepped back, raised on foot, and slammed all his weight onto the door just above the knob, not so much a kick as a controlled fall.

The door quite obediently popped open, and Greg 'fell' into the bathroom, his outstretched leg hitting the floor firmly and leaving him in a lunge as he stared at the bathtub...

...where Sandy, naked, stood in ankle-deep water, holding his electric razor in one hand. It was plugged into the wall... and she'd taken the time to jam a plastic object into the 'reset' breaker of the safety-plug, keeping it from tripping.

"Don't bother..." Sandy said in a dead, emotionless voice. "I hope the cops don't give you too much trouble..."

She dropped the razor.

Her few words of 'sorrow' at her actions had let Greg get past the initial shock, and even as her hand opened he was diving forward...

He and the razor met in mid-air.. and, not being braced, he merely continued forward, time slowing enough for him to recognize and regret his lethal mistake as his outstretched hands, cradling the razor, made contact with the water...

There was a burst of light - and then pure, unfeeling darkness.

* * * * *

..and I understand if she never wants to talk to me again, Mrs. Luddachek - but, please, if you hear from your daughter, let her know I called and want to apologize. I was flat-out wrong, and I'll do anything - anything - to make it right again, if I can."

Feeling like a complete heel, Steve listened to Sandy's mother assure him she'd tell Sandy he'd called, then hung up. Resisting the urge to whack himself in the head a few times with the hard plastic receiver, Steve hung up and slumped back in the couch.

Though no Greek god, Steve was fairly handsome in a lean, rugged sort of way. God knew he wasn't exactly hurting for female companionship most of the time - though it never really amounted to much more than sex. Not that Steve was running down sex, but the only woman he'd ever actually become friends with was Sandy. Living with her for a year had brought them so close that they were really each other's best friend...

...and then he'd gone and done this. Some semi-buddies had dropped by and invited him out with them, and he'd gone. He'd been at a barbecue his less-than-mature buddies had been throwing, one where alcohol had been flowing like water. He'd had too many beers while chatting with a cute, buxom young thing who'd flirted outrageously with him...

...then flounced off with a laugh when he'd finally gotten around to suggesting something a little more... physical. She'd been a real cock-tease, leaving him feeling angry and unsatisfied. He'd taken a cab home, drunk and horny and angry...

...and found Sandy doing her exercises in front of the TV. Since he'd said he was going to be gone until late, she'd decided to use the big-screen TV in the living room rather than the smaller TV/VCR combo in the furnished room he'd been renting her. Though small and hard to see, she almost always used that TV - because she liked to exercise in the nude.

Seeing her naked had aroused him - and being drunk, he'd actually been stupid enough to try something.

She'd refused, of course, as she'd made clear from the very beginning that she had no sexual interest in him. The thing was, drunk as he was, her refusal (and nudity) brought back that stupid little cock- tease at the party, and he'd become furious, the alcohol artificially enhancing his emotions.

He'd kicked her out and then, out of spite, canceled their joint credit account, the one he'd gotten with her because of her poor credit history.

He'd then dropped into bed and gotten a few hours sleep - only to wake feeling absolutely awful, and not just because of the hangover. He couldn't believe what he'd done, and he'd spent the last few hours trying to track her down. It was now past midnight, and he'd resorted to call her family in California, where it was only just after nine o'clock. Knowing that she didn't get along well with her parents, it was a slim hope - but he was running out of options, and desperate to try and make this thing right again.

Then he heard the sound of a key in the front door. Hope blossoming, Steve shot to his feet as the door opened... his jaw dropped as the most incredible creature he'd ever seen walked in the door.

She was dressed in a spandex 'dress' that was straining on her body almost to the point of bursting. It had good reason to strain - the woman it tried to enclose was enormous. Even without the extra six inches from her spike-heeled pumps, she was a good six-two. Her body was exquisitely tanned and toned, richly feminine in a powerful way. Her hips were wide and womanly, putting even more strain on that red spandex dress - but there was some slack material from the fact that her waist was incredibly tiny for a woman of her stature. Though tall, she was slender and feminine of build...

...and she had absolutely massive, round tits that were trying to (and almost succeeding at) shouldering their way out of the dress' strained neckline. They were barely covered, displaying almost three quarters of their round, firmly-soft perfection.

A massive mane of lustrous, light-brown hair ran nearly to her knees, and surrounded a face...

...that looked very familiar. Though the lips were fuller, and the nose a bit smaller, it was a face Steve had seen every day for a year.

"Suh.. Sandy...?" Steve stammered, staring at this incredible, sexual giantess in his doorway.

"More or less..." She said in a slow, seductive tone. She lightly caressed her own, massive bust as she kicked the door shut behind her. "Mostly 'more'..."

"What? How...?" Steve stammered, as she slowly began to move towards him with a cock-stiffening stride.

"It's a long, long story." She purred. "You have no idea how strange. But here's the good part of it - I'm home, I'm huge-hootered.. and I'm horny."

Impossible, Steve's eyes widened even further, and he made a choking sound as this sexual Goddess quite literally tore her straining dress off, revealing every smooth, golden curve of her flawless body.

The scent of her rampant arousal hit him, and his already hard cock strained painfully at his pants.

"I'll explain everything tomorrow." She told him with a hungry grin. "right now, you're gonna fuck me until you just can't fuck no more..."

'Oh, God - yes...!' Sandy cried in exultation as the massive, sexual new body she was in stepped forward to rip open a very unresisting Steve's pants. 'I never knew that just being horny could feel so wonderful!'

'Oh, God - you have no idea...' Greg/Gloria replied in the silent vaults of their shared mind as both sets of minds directed the glorious new body they wore to finish ripping Steve's clothes off. There'd been some false starts as each had struggled for control of their new, shared body. That had been when they'd first awoken in the bath-tub. Somehow, the strange.. whatever that had caused Greg's original transformation into a woman had been reawakened by that second electrical charge - and it had merged the flesh of both of them together into this new, hyper-sexual body. As 'Gloria', the Greg- part of them had produced enough hormones for four women - or for one super-sized woman.

Once they'd figured out that they'd both wanted the exact same thing - sex - it hadn't been hard to use the body at all, both sets of minds giving the same basic instructions to the body. Now, combined willpower caused the strong, massively feminine body they shared to lift Steve's stunned, naked body in it's feminine arm, their lips eagerly kissing his unresisting lips as they carried him towards the bedroom.

By the time they arrived, he was kissing back enthusiastically, still confused - but willing to 'play along' with the impossibly sexy goddess Sandy had become. Of course, he had no way of knowing there were two personalities in that body, one of which an ex-man - and he never would know. Sandy and Greg had both agreed that it would stay a secret, and they'd live as 'Sandy' from now on.

After all, they didn't want to get locked up as crazy. All they'd have to do is insist that a suicide attempt had somehow done this to her, and that was all. They didn't have to explain how it could have happened - just convince somebody that it had, and since they looked like Sandy, at least in the face, it would be enough, even if it would leave behind a lot of confused experts. The two people sharing the body didn't care about the confusion they might create, however.

In this strange, unimaginable 'joining', they'd solved both of their problems. Sandy was now sexually active (very much s!), and Greg had an 'onboard expert' at being female. Sure, sooner or later there'd be some awkward questions as to what happened to Greg - but they'd deal with that when the time came, same as the trouble with her severely altered body.

For now, she only had one thing on her mind - and as she put Steve down on the bed and lay down, legs spread, she knew that this was one 'problem' she'd never have trouble solving, at least temporarily. Sure, one man wouldn't be enough to satisfy her new urges, but she was sure - looking as she did - that she'd have no shortage of volunteers...

'Fuck me, baby - fuck me hard...' Two minds instructed in one voice, and Steve obeyed with a will. Even as he mounted her, however, she was feeling rather guilty, knowing that she was just 'using' Steve to satisfy her powerful urge. She'd soon 'discard' him for other men, men who didn't want any ties, who were willing to provide her with near-constant sex...

...and who were bigger and much better endowed than Steve. He wasn't a shrimp in the manhood- department, but as his cock slid into her wet cunt, she knew she could enjoy a larger cock much, much more.

Still, Steve's cock was somewhat larger than her own finger, which she'd already used to bring her new body to orgasm twice before coming over. Steve might not be 'Mister right', but he was 'Mister right Now', and that was good enough for the combined woman as he began energetically thrusting into a cunt that could take all she had to give, and much more...

'Oh, yes!' Gloria cried in their combined mind. "Hey - your folks live on the coast, right...?" 'Yeah, they - oh, this feels so great - live in 'Frisco. Why?'

'Harder, baby... well, there's some really, really big men in porn films, and... damn it, Steve...' "...harder..." she moaned, aloud.

'...and deeper. Hey, yeah - we wouldn't have any problem getting into the biz, huh?'

'Nope - and we might even find a guy big enough that we could fuck ourselves to satisfaction on his throbbing cock.'

'God, I hope so...' Sandy, the once 'dead-fish' said fervently. 'This is better than masturbating - but it just ain't enough.'

'Uh, oh.... yeah, but still, you know our new motto...'

"An orgasm is an orgasm..." their body said, aloud, mirroring twin thoughts - and then she began to twitch as her orgasm - weak as it was - hit, and Steve didn't have time to puzzle out her words as he struggled to stay on her big, bucking body, her huge, firm tits threatening to knock him unconscious as she slammed upwards in orgasmic ecstasy.

'God - that was better than I'd expected...!' Sandy gasped in their mind.

'Geez, that move he made at the end, dragging his cock along our clit like that... I guess 'size isn't everything' after all. He's got a hell of a technique.' Gloria admitted. 'Maybe we shouldn't be in a hurry to dump him, after all. We'll just have to find a couple more guys, since no guy can get and stay hard quick enough or long enough to satisfy...'

That was as far as she got with that thought - as Steve slid downward, kissing his way from her huge tits, down her stomach, and between her taut, firm thighs - and his tongue went to work with unbelievable skill, fingers aiding as he started a chain of pleasure more intense than either personality had ever felt.

'Yeah - definitely staying awhile ' Sandy though disjunctedly as intense, incredibly pleasure began to mount in their new body.

'Oh, yeah !' Gloria said, whether in agreement with Sandy or in pleasure, Sandy wasn't sure - and didn't care as the pleasure continued to mount.

Then both minds joined to have her huge-breasted new body scream in pleasure as Steve's skilled manipulations brought them each to pure ecstasy, and all thoughts of the future were wiped out in the eternal instant of their shared, two-mind-boggling orgasm...

...while, unbeknownst to 'Sandy', Steve was admitting to himself that the woman she'd become was too much for him to handle alone, and wondering how to 'inoffensively' suggest that a couple of his friends might like to drop by now and then to 'lend a hand'.

After all, what were friends for if you couldn't call on them to pitch in when you were overmatched...? Especially among guys, where it was a point of honor to 'compete' at almost anything - and though Steve was willing to introduce a few 'competitors', if Sandy was willing, he was still planning on doing whatever he could to walk away with the metaphorical Gold Medal.

Assuming, of course, he could get anybody to believe his 'boasts'. He'd definitely have to have this incredible new Sandy come along to verify at least part of his story. Otherwise, nobody would believe it. Why, this was a fantasy come to life, and then some - even to himself, Sandy suddenly becoming this sexual goddess was nearly impossible to believe.

With a mental snort, Steve thought to himself that it was just about as unbelievable as a story got. Hell, the only thing more ridiculous would be if it were a guy who had become this sexual giantess instead of a woman...

...but, no - that was waaaaayyy too far outside of the realms of reality.

Shoving the stupid thought out of his head, Steve went back to work with fingers and tongue, planning to keep Sandy in a state of constant orgasm until 'Little Steve' was once again ready to take the plunge...

FINIS

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: After he gets zapped by a short in his computer, Chris finds himself jumping between dimensions landing in female bodies, each different from the others.

Bounce Back

By Gunslinger

The window rattled in its frame, high above the street that lay shrouded in premature twilight that had come with the heavy, dark clouds scudding in low from the east. The orangish light of the street lamps cast a pale reflection of the building opposite, its feeble glow no match from the golden-white light filling the twelfth story apartment.

Then, suddenly, that warm glow was occluded by a glaring flash of blue-white that seemed to freeze- frame the occupant of the room, who went rigid as the heavy bass of the thunder shook the room with its power, practically on the heels of the lightning's flash.

"Oh, shit!" Chris MacAffree swore, shooting a startled look out the window at the storm that was roiling outside. Now the patter of heavy raindrops beat against the window, and the young man swore again.

Chris had just purchased a brand-new computer, spending most of his savings on the high-end machine. After setting it up, he'd become lost in playing around with it, not noticing the gathering storm. Now, with another curse, the dark-haired young man shoved the chair he was sitting on backwards and dove under the desk on which his expensive new system rested.

When he'd made the purchase this afternoon, he'd neglected only one item - a power bar. Now, visions of his computer, bereft of surge protection, being deep-fried by a power surge filled his thought. He reached out to the power cord that led from the computer to the wall, his hands wrapping around the dark-gray plastic of the head and pulling it from the wall...

At that instant, the world seemed to turn to white as the room shook with a bass crescendo in the same instant. The lights in the room flickered and died, but Chris was incapable of noticing that fact - as his body had jerked with a mighty force, slamming against the bottom of the desk as blue arcs of electricity flowed from the half-exposed prongs of the partially removed computer plug and traced wicked designs over his body in the dimness of the room. Sparks flew from his quartz digital watch, which was currently insisting it was 19:43 in the a.m. and p.m.

Then the jolt ended, and Chris was thrown backwards, where he shuddered for a second in after- effect, then shook his head to clear it...

...and was shocked to feel the sensation of hair brushing against his shoulders.

"What the...?" Chris started to say - then stopped dead, his hands flying to his throat at the sound of the feminine voice that emerged. Gaping, he looked down - to see a pair of 'okay' feminine legs protruding from a red-and-black plaid skirt. A fuzzy red sweater was a little higher than that, and it was pushed outwards by two small but definite mounds.

"Holy shit!" Chris swore, struggling to his - her? Feet, starting to tremble. He realized that he wasn't even really in 'his' room anymore. Although it appeared to be the same apartment, and the same room, it was decorated differently, in a much more feminine manner - and where his desk with the computer on it had sat there was now...

...a desk with his computer on it.

Shuddering, Chris looked down - and sighed as he saw exactly what he should have seen - a mildly muscular, definitely male body clad in jeans and a white cotton work shirt.

"That was... weird." Chris said to himself, reassured by the sound of his own voice. Unable to resist the need to do so, he ran his fingers through his own short mass of dark hair.

"Wow." Chris said, amazed. He realized he'd gotten a jolt from that electrical burst, and he figured that the whole episode, which had lasted about three-quarters of a minute - if that - was just some sort of hallucination...

"Oh, shit - the computer!" Chris swore, his mind getting back to where he'd been before the weird 'I'm a girl' thing happened. He sniffed deeply and smelled the distinctive ozone-like electrical smell, but wasn't sure if it was his computer that was making it or not. He spent the next three hours pacing anxiously, until the storm died enough for him to feel comfortable turning the computer back on. When it rebooted without any trouble, Chris heaved a sigh of relief, the strange hallucination - realistic as it had felt, right down to that momentary imagined sensation that he could feel bra straps on 'her' shoulders - was already beginning to fade.

* * * * *

"Hey, Josh - catch up with you in a sec. Just gotta hit the can."

Chris' friend nodded and continued on into the theater while Chris continued on down the hallway towards the men's room.

Three days had passed since the storm, and Chris had gotten a power bar and basically forgotten the incident all together. Now, he entered the white-tiled men's room at the CineStar 6 theaters and walked over to the urinal, unzipping his fly and planting himself in front of the porcelain fixture, the memory of three days ago the furthest thing from his mind as he wondered if the movie he and Josh were here to see was going to be as good as all the TV reviews said it would be.

Shaking off and zipping off, Chris went over to the sinks and turned on the taps, glancing up in the mirror and...

...feeling a shudder run through him for an instant.

"What the hell...?" Chris gasped, staring wide eyed at the mirror while the water continued to cascade over his hands, unheeded.

In the space of that strange shudder, everything had changed.

Reflected in the mirror was an attractive, dark-haired woman. Dressed in a pair of khaki slacks and a white blouse, she was attractive, with full, soft lips and dark eyes. Her face was carefully made-up, and Chris could taste the lipstick on her lips - for the image that was reflected was of him - or, rather, her.

It wasn't the same woman from the hallucination - if it had been a hallucination - the night of the storm. He hadn't gotten a good look at the woman he'd thought he'd been for that short span of time, but she'd had long hair, which the woman he now had didn't have, as hers was a shorter, but still feminine, haircut. Also, the startled voice he'd spoke in both times was different, the first being higher, more 'innocent' than this richer contralto.

Staggering back from the reflection in the mirror, Chris glanced brought his - her - hands up and pressed them incredulously against the front of the blouse. He could feel the cold, wet pressure of the hands through the shirt and bra, could feel the pressure...

...of somebody squeezing her tits.

Shocked, Chris dropped her hands, leaving two wet hand prints as she gaped around the bathroom in horror.

The bathroom had also changed, although not as much as Chris herself - for one thing, the urinals were gone. Making it - of course - the ladies room.

Chris screamed. Turning on the low-heeled casual women's shoes she turned out to be wearing, she screamed again and staggered out the door of the bathroom, heads turning in her direction and staring as Chris, heedless of the looks, shoved a hand down the front of the slacks she wore, feeling the soft cotton panties across the back of the slender hand as she slid it across the empty crotch and what could only be a vagina.

"No!" Chris screamed, yanking her hand away. "No - this isn't happening!"

"Miss?" A cinema employee said, running up from behind the refreshments counter. "Miss - what's wrong?"

Chris gaped at the pimply young man, her dark eyes bulging. "I.. I'm a woman!" The man seemed taken aback, having no reply to that.

Then Chris spotted a familiar face in the crowd that was beginning to gather around her. "Josh!" She called, her slender fingers running over the unfamiliar contours of her face.

"Christine?" Josh said, shoving his way through the crowd. "What's wrong?" Chris gaped at him. "Christine? Josh - it's me, Chris! Look at me!"

"What's wrong, Christine? What's the matter?" Josh pressed, trying to take her smooth new arm.

She yanked away, almost falling as she stumbled back. "No, no - I'm not Christine. I'm not a woman! I'm a man, God..."

"...damn it!"

The man next to Chris pulled back a bit, turning to shoot him an odd look. "Something the matter, buddy?"

Chris stared at the man - then looked down at himself, seeing his old familiar body, just as it should be. He was standing in about the same place as he'd been a second before, but there was no crowd, no Josh, no furor - just the usual stream of movie-goers. The brief shudder had come in the middle of a sentence, and Chris realized that whatever was happening, that signified it's beginning and end.

"Uh - no. No, just stubbed my toe." Chris said, his voice still stunned, and the man turned away.

In a bit of a daze, Chris headed towards the theater, shaking. It had all seemed so real, had felt so real - he could still remember every sensation of that female body. A look at the watch on his wrist showed that about seven minutes had passed since he'd begun washing his hands, during which time he'd somehow ended up in the lobby outside the bathroom - just as 'she' had moved. Was it all some sort of hallucination? Was something wrong with him - was he going crazy?

"Say, you're just in time to... Jeez, Chris, what's wrong - you look like you've seen a ghost!" Josh said as Chris, now shaking, lowered himself into his seat.

"I just had.. I mean, I thought..." Chris started - then realized that there was no sane way of explaining what had happened, not here and now. "It's nothing - I'll tell you later." He said.

Taking a few deep breaths, he managed to force himself into some sort of semblance of serenity - but all through the movie, his mind kept slipping away to those extremely odd - and extremely realistic feeling seven or so minutes before the movie.

* * * * *

"Maybe you should make an appointment to see somebody, Chris." Josh said, concern evident in his voice.

They were sitting in a back booth at a restaurant near the theater. Chris had just finished relating the two strange incidents to his friend, trying to recall every second of both of them, the first, short one especially, as the more recent was still very recent in his mind.

"Like who - a shrink?" Chris asked, having also revealed his fear he was going nuts.

"No - well, maybe him too." Josh allowed. "Actually, I was thinking of a, you know... whatchamacallit. Neurologist. Maybe that shock you got did something."

"Oh, great - I'm not crazy, just brain-damaged." Chris said with a wry grin. Josh shrugged. "Well, the first one lasted - what, forty, forty-five seconds?" "bout that." Chris agreed.

"Now, three days later, you have one that lasts about seven or eight minutes." Josh said, worried. "That's like, what - ten times as long? What if whatever it is that's wrong is getting worse, man. If the first had lasted longer than the second, I wouldn't be nearly as worried - but it seems to be worse, not better."

Chris sighed. "I.. guess you're right." He signaled to the waitress and asked for the check, then turned back to his friend. "Can I get you to give me a lift? Right after we check the yellow pages for the right place, that is."

Josh shrugged, knowing that Chris' car was out of commission until he got the brakes replaced - something he'd argued that Chris should have done with the money he spent on the computer. Instead of saying 'I told you so' now, he just nodded. "Sure."

Somehow, the fact his friend didn't use the chance to say 'I told you so' made Chris realize just how concerned this was making Josh.

* * * * *

It took a day and a half before Chris finally got in to see the specialist, a Dr. Kenetekawa. It was thirty plus hours spent in a state of nervosa as Chris waited for whatever it was to happen again - but nothing at all had occurred by the time he got in to see Dr. Kenetekawa, who turned out to be a small, slender, competent-looking older Japanese-American with small, silver rimmed spectacles and the air of a man who had seen it all and knew how to deal with it.

"Yes, yes - a sudden electrical jolt can cause certain types of hallucinatory phenomenon." Dr. Kenetekawa had said, upon hearing Chris' account. "The synapses of the brain run on very low voltages of bio-electrical current - a sudden surge can cause certain unusual effect. We will do some tests to determine what, exactly, is going on in your mind, then we shall see how best to deal with it."

Now, Chris lay on a special sliding platform that was in a small, beige painted room. From where he lay, he could look down his nose and - straining - past his feet to see the darkened wall of glass, behind which Dr. Kenetekawa and a technician sat before a console. Behind Chris, the gaping maw of the CAT scanner yawned, and a series of tiny electrodes lay on his scalp, transmitting information to the EEG that hummed softly in one corner of the room.

"Are you ready, Mr. MacAffree?" The doctor's voice asked, amplified and slightly distorted by the intercom.

"Yeah - I guess so." Chris replied, his voice a trifle reedy. He felt the platform shift, and he did as he had been instructed and closed his eyes as his head was centered in the rotating drum of the machine.

He heard the CAT scanner hum to life, and concentrated on breathing deeply and evenly, counting slow second in his head as the machine did it's job of mapping the interior of his head as the EEG measured the electrical impulses that leapt from synapse to synapse in his brain.

Then a shudder hit, and Chris had just enough time to register the sound of the EEG 'bleeping' in alarm before...

...the sound vanished, and Chris staggered, nearly falling over. "Are you all right, Miss McAntry?"

Startled, Chris looked over into the concerned face of a nurse. Even as he - no, he knew, it would now be 'she' - registered the fact that she was in the lobby of the hospital, she could feel the host of sensations that indicated that she was once more female.

'This is not really happening - it's a hallucination, and it'll be over in a few minutes." Chris told herself, taking a firm rein on her emotions. 'Just... play along for now.'

"I'm fine, thanks." Chris replied, forcing his lips up into a smile she hoped looked natural. "Are you sure?" The nurse asked, hesitantly. "If you'd like, I could get Doctor Lurey for you..."

"No, no - that won't be necessary." Chris assured the nurse, hearing the sound of her own soprano voice as she spoke, sounding strange to her ears. "Thank you anyway."

The nurse nodded and turned, walking away. Chris breathed deeply, looking around the reception area and resisting the urge to gape down at whatever body she was currently in. Instead, she walked over to the free-standing triangular pillar-like object near the front door. Two of the sides, the ones aimed like an arrow at the door, held a directory of the offices and departments in the hospital. The third side held a mirror that was nearly full length, and it was to this that Chris walked to.

Revealed in the mirror was a slender, mildly attractive young woman with shoulder-length light-brown hair and large dark eyes. Her nose was a trifle to large, and her jaw a trifle to square to let her be anything other than pretty. The beige cotton skirt that hung just above the knee showed a pair of undistinguished legs, and about the only feature of not on the vaguely pretty girl in the mirror was the pair of breasts that filled out the white sleeveless blouse rather nicely. The top two buttons were undone on the blouse, revealing a hint of the milky cleavage that her DD-cup breasts formed. Almost without thinking, Chris brought her dainty hands up and pressed them lightly against the undersides of the breasts pushing out the blouse, hefting them slightly. She felt the weight of them in her hands, and the relaxation of weight on her chest as the sensation of being hefted was transmitted through the bra-encased breasts themselves, easing the strain on the straps of the bra she wore.

"Yes - they are nice work, aren't they?" A voice to Chris' left said, and Chris - startled, whirled around, dropping her hands and blushing.

A rather handsome doctor was smiling at her. "Oh - don't be embarrassed, Miss." He held out a hand. "I'm Dr. Roberts, an associate of Dr. Lurey. If you're Miss McAntry, then Dr. Lurey and I have discussed the work you've had done."

"Uh, yes - that's me." Chris said awkwardly, shaking the doctor's hand.

"So - I can assume that there were no complications?" The doctor asked, making a vague gesture in the direction of Chris' chest, and she understood how such a slender, undistinguished young woman had come to possess such a large, firm pair of breasts.

"No - no complications at all." Chris said, feeling strange. She was still fairly certain that this was all a hallucination, and she was still laying on the bed in the CAT scanner - but it felt so incredibly real that she felt as awkward and embarrassed as if it was really happening. That's why she shot a quick glance at her wrist - and was grateful to find a watch encircling the slender wrist, realizing how stupid it would have looked if she hadn't been wearing a watch. "I'd love to chat, Doctor - but I'm afraid that I have somebody meeting me. If you'll excuse me?"

"Of course." The doctor shook her hand once more, then she turned and moved quickly towards the sliding doors of the entrance, finding that she was doing so atop somewhat block dark-brown leather shoes with a three or four inch block heel. Successfully escaping outside, she stepped to the side, so she was out of view from inside. Leaning against the rough brick wall, she looked around and wondered how long this hallucination was going to last. With nothing better to do, Chris slipped the beige leather purse off her bare shoulder and opened it to take a look inside.

There was a wallet, which turned out to contain a driver's license in the name of 'Chrysanthemum McAntry', complete with a grainy photo of the face that she was currently wearing.

"Chrysanthemum?" Chris said in a low voice. "Geez - poor me." Shaking her head at the absurdity, she pulled out the pack of cigarettes she'd found inside, with an intrigued look on her face. Fishing one of the slim cigarettes from the pack, she stuck it between her lips and lit it with a match, taking a deep drag of the cigarette experimentally.

Chris had never smoked, aside from one cigarette when he was younger that had made him want to puke. Now she drew the smoke deep into her lungs with ease, finding the taste mildly unpleasant, but the quick nicotine head-rush pleasant enough.

"Now I know it's a hallucination..." Chris muttered to herself, exhaling a long stream of smoke. She tucked the rest of the pack and the matches back into the purse - 'her purse', she thought with a smile and continued smoking the cigarette, idly watching the flow of vehicles that pulled to a stop to drop off or pick up people.

Then a small brown compact pulled to a stop in front of where she stood and just sat there for a few seconds before the driver's door popped open and a chunky young woman with short, sandy-blonde hair popped her head over the top of the car.

"Fer Chissakes, Chrys - smoking in front of a friggin' hospital." The blonde said to her, obviously repressing laughter. "Isn't that the epitome of bad taste?"

Chris gaped for a second before pulling herself together. "Well - I..." She cast about for a response.

The blonde, however, had continued talking, not even noticing the stammer or startled look. "Though, I guess if you do have a heart attack or something, this is the best place for it. Come on - you can finish it in the car. Get in."

Chris - or Chrys - blinked, then shrugged. "No - I'm done." Dropping the half-smoked cigarette to the ground, she stepped on it and crushed it, then walked over to the car and slid into the passenger's seat, still trying to catch up with this new twist in her hallucination and wondering who the blonde was.

"So, what'd the doctor say?" The blonde - who obviously liked the sound of her own voice - asked, not looking over as she gunned the sewing-machine motor of the tiny sub-compact and pulling away from the curb with as much acceleration as the tiny car could muster. Chris unobtrusively gripped the hand- hold on the door as the blonde wove in and out of the cars in the parking lot like a Formula One driver, slowing only long enough to let the exit gate get out of the way before flooring it and swinging out onto the wide boulevard fronting the hospital.

"Uh - Dr..." She paused, the name coming to her in an second, "Lurey said everything's fine. No complications."

"Good, good.." The blonde said, only listening with half an ear to the still startled Chris. "So - I guess you'll be up to givin' those puppies a trial outing tonight, huh? Betcha the regulars at the club are gonna go ga-ga over them."

"Well, I..." Chris said, not sure what the woman was talking about. It didn't matter, as the blonde plowed on ahead.

"Yeah, it'll be a real kick. I've often thought I should get a pair of balloons..." Chris' heart stopped as the blonde took her hands off the wheel, holding the car steady with her knees as she held her hands in front of her chest before - thankfully - replacing one of them on the wheel. "...like this so the guys'll finally notice me. But then I say to myself, 'Debbie, you've got enough weight on you already - before you think of adding more, why not loose some of what you got?' Am I right, or am I right?"

Chris opened her mouth.

"Course, look who I'm telling this too - Miss Slim herself, the Flower Child of Rossner Ave. Look, Chrys, we coulda saved some money and done us both some good - just asked the doc to take some of the padding outta my hips and ass and stick it into those new tits of yours. Whatta ya think?"

Chris didn't even bother to try and answer as the woman - Debbie, apparently - went on like a relentless steamroller/ "Sure, yeah, that woulda been better. Still, you're probably happier to finally get somethin' up-top then I'd be loosing some of my padding. Hell, any time I wanted to I coulda exercised the weight off, while you had to get surgery for those babies. 'Course, I'm plagued by a terminal weakness for chocolate, or I'da lost those pounds ages ago, ya know?"

Chris didn't answer, too busy tightening the death-grip her slender hands had on the door handle, her eyes wide as they slipped around the front of a semi and almost clipped the front bumper of the truck, its air-horn blaring over the tiny subcompact that was completely lost from the view of the rig's driver by the long snout of the truck. Chris' eyes shot to the rear-view mirror, and was shocked to see that all that was visible was a silver badge whose letters spelt - backwards - 'EIGHTLIN'.

It might all be a hallucination - but, then again, if he died in a hallucination, who knew what would happen to him in 'real life'.

"Um... I don't supposed we could, uh..." Chris said, swallowing hard as her hallucinatory heart beat a rapid tempo behind her hallucinatory inflated breasts.

Debbie laughed, slowing the car to a more sedate speed. "I thought you were going for a record there, girl." She said, reaching out on short, burgundy-painted nail to tap the clock on the dashboard. "Twelve minutes - you were gettin' close to the record so I threw the truck atcha - knew it'd spook ya enough." She laughed again. "Damn - I ain't done dishes for three weeks now, Chrys."

Chris sighed gustily, realizing that this was all some sort of game that 'Chrys' played with her friend - or would, if there was actually a Chrys, instead of her just being a figment of Chris' imagination.

"Yeah... lucky you..." Chris laughed weakly, wondering when the hell this thing was going to end - it was already running into 'overtime' as far as she was concerned, going on nearly half-an hour since it started.

"So - what's with the silent treatment, anyhow?" Debbie asked, shooting Chris a side-long look. "You ain't said more'n twenty words since we left the hospital."

Chris smiled - after all, if this was just a hallucination, she might as well 'play along' until it was over, right? "Oh, it's part of my new exercise program for you. I figure if I don't interrupt you, you can lose twenty, twenty-five pounds a month easy from all the extra jawing you'll do."

Debbie look startled, then broke out laughing. "Yeah, yeah - but you callin' me a motor-mouth is the pot callin' the kettle black."

Chris thought fast. "Actually - I'm just a little worried how the guys at the club are going to react to the 'new and improved' me." She said, hefting the supposedly surgically enhanced tits, and deciding - what the hell - to hold them for a few seconds, lightly squeezing them and enjoying the imaginary, but very real feeling, sensations it created.

Debbie laughed. "Oh, no worries Chrys - I'm sure the guys'll drool all over them and fall over themselves to buy you drinks all night. In a couple months the novelty will wear off, so I say get while the gettin's good, you know?"

Chris didn't know whether or not 'getting into' the delusion made him more or less 'crazy' then merely having the delusions, but she figured as long as she knew the truth - that none of this was really real - it couldn't hurt. Also, it would help pass the time until the hallucination either ended by itself, or the doctors in the hospital where he really was did something to end it.

"Sure - if you got it, flaunt it, right?" Chris said with a smile, relaxing back in the car's seat and letting herself 'go with the flow' of the hallucination. She breathed deeply, enjoying the sensation - illusionary as it was - of her firm, round tits shifting on her chest as she did so. She crossed her legs, wondering just how close to 'reality' the sensation of sitting like this would really be for a woman. All she knew was that it would have hurt like hell to squash the balls this hallucinated body didn't have.

"So - what's the plan for the rest of the day then?" Chris asked Debbie.

Debbie's brow rose. "Didn't really have one, other then grab a bite of dinner, let you do the dishes - again - then shower and change to go to the club. Spend an hour watching TV or something before we go. You know - the usual."

'What the hell.' Chris thought with a small grin - it wasn't like any of this mattered. "Really?" She said with an arch smile. "I thought you might want to give a touch-test to these babies." She thrust out her chest.

The car nearly skidded off the road before the shocked Debbie got the errant vehicle back under control. "What?" She half gasped, half laughed. "What's that supposed to mean?"

Chris shrugged. "You know, we get home and you fondle them for a bit, maybe suck on them, see how they feel to you while letting me see who they feel from the inside. Just... fool around, you know."

Debbie's eyes were wide, but she was smiling. "Geez, Louise Chrys - you're serious about this, aren't you?"

Chris shrugged again. "Sure. Why not?"

Debbie shook her head. "Yeah, why not. Geez, Chrys - just when I think I'm figuring you out, you throw something like this at me. I think it's all the drugs your mom took while she was pregnant. The after-effects of being the love-child of a couple of hippies."

"That, and the name." Chris cracked, making the connection, and Debbie laughed.

"Yeah - and the name." Shaking her head, Debbie turned her attention back to the road, for the first time since Chris had started this little mind-trip, without something to say.

* * * * *

"You're really sure?" Debbie asked, as they sat on the couch in the living room of the converted house/apartment they shared.

With a smile, Chris unbuttoned her blouse and let it fall from her shoulders, revealing her new tits in their bra. "What do you think?" She asked, winking.

As Debbie began to fondle her bra-encased tits, Chris let her head loll back and enjoyed the sensation, amazed at how imaginative she must be to make the hallucination feel so real. She also wondered if women in 'real life' slipped into lesbian acts like this so easily, knowing what he would do, as a man, if another man suggested something similar.

Then she shrugged, deciding it didn't matter - and reached behind her and fumbled at the bra strap until it fell away, allowing her to present her firm, round new tits to Debbie's view - and touch.

"Go ahead, girlfriend..." Chris said, languorously, laying back in the couch's embrace and enjoying the feel of Debbie's hands on her bare breasts. Then Debbie's fingers found her nipples, and Chris moaned softly, wondering if women's nipples really were this sensitive.

If so, he vowed that she would definitely pay attention to the niceties of foreplay more - she was beginning to understand why women rated it highly. She understood even better when Debbie's lips met her nipples. Pleasure ran through her, and she let herself smile lazily at the 'imaginary' pleasure.

"Since I'm here..." Debbie whispered, huskily - then slid downwards, her fingers moving to Chris' skirt. Gently, she pulled Chris's skirt and panties down, her short-haired head lowering between Chris' thighs...

Chris gasped slightly as she felt Debbie's probing tongue meet her cunt. Immediately, a tingling warmth began to build as, with amazing expertise, Debbie began to lick and tongue Chris' hypothetical cunt. Little bolts of pleasure seemed to bounce through her system, not only increasing where Debbie's tongue was working, but heightening the sensitivity of other parts of her body, like her nipples - which were almost painfully swollen at the moment. Pleasure began to build, and Chris moaned in enjoyment as she neared her supposedly first female orgasm.

Then it came. As orgasms go, it wasn't particularly powerful - but that's a relative term. Pleasure is pleasure, no matter how relatively 'weak' it is, and Chris bit her lower lip as the pleasure made her shudder....

...then, with a brief shudder of another sort, the sensation was gone, and Chris found himself standing in the CAT scan room - which was flooded with people who jerked away from him with mild oaths and shouts of amazement.

"He's back!" Somebody cried, and the people were pulling away from him as if he were a disease carrier as two men in Army fatigues shoved them through the door. A third, standing in an opposite corner, was looking at Chris grimly - and in his hands a M-16's snout was pointed steadily at Chris' midsection.

"What the ?" Chris gasped, his mind struggling to catch up with what was going on.

"Do not move." A voice echoed over the intercom, and through the glass Chris could see the vague shape of a man in the uniform of a Major. "Mr. MacAfree, we do not wish to harm you. Please, make no attempt to exit the room."

"Please - tell me what's going on!" Chris shouted, fear rising up in his stomach. There was a muttered exchange in the booth, the Major replied.

"Mr. MacAfree, at 12:22 this afternoon, you disappeared from the imaging chamber of the CAT scanner. You vanished after what appeared to be an electrical discharge of some sort. Then, a few minutes ago, you reappeared with almost no warning. We are not sure if whatever is causing this phenomenon is dangerous, and if what the Doctor repeated to us is the truth, you are most probably 'slipping' from this universe into a parallel universe, and we do not know what communicable diseases you may be bringing back with you."

"What..?" Chris gasped, shocked. These 'hallucinations' were real? He was sliding between worlds?

He'd really just been a woman named Chrys?

"No - no, this isn't possible!" Chris shouted, shaking his head. "This can't be "

" real!"

"Quiet, Miss Mannell - you'll have your chance to speak when the Judge gets here."

Chris gaped at the officer staring at him from the front seat of the cruiser. The burly man then turned to talk to his partner, leaving Chris to his confusion.

Or, rather, her confusion - because, as the shudder he'd felt indicated, he'd once more slipped into a parallel universe. Not a dream, not a hallucination - but another reality, in which he wasn't a he, but a she.

Scared and confused - and, now that she knew that this was real, more than a little stunned - Chris took stock of her new situation, looking down at...

..and enormous pair of breasts. They were huge, stretching out the top of the white blouse she wore. Now that the initial confusion had passed, she realized that she could feel the weight of the medicine- ball-sized tits hanging off her chest, indicating that no bra assisted these monster's fight against gravity.

"Holy... shit..." Chris swore, earning a reproving glance from the officer in the driver's seat. Slowly, her eyes panned out the window of the car, finding that it was parked outside the house that Chrys and Debbie lived in on the world she'd been in earlier...

...and apparently did in this world, too. All though she was thinner, and slightly shorter, there was no doubt that the woman in the second squad car parked in the driveway was this worlds' version of Debbie.

"Hey!" The cop in the passenger's seat said as Chris strained forward, feeling the handcuffs on her slender wrists. "Sit down!"

She did so, having seen what she'd wanted to in the limited field of vision available by the rearview mirror in the front. Although there was a few slight differences - like the fact that her lips were fuller - this female version she was trapped in was also very similar to the last one.

Excepting, of course, her massive new tits. Chris surmised that either Chrys had got larger ones during surgery, or this was her second, third or fourth such enhancement, rather than the first. But that still didn't explain what she was doing in a squad car...

She found out soon enough - for a tractor trailer, painted a deep, midnight blue and bearing the police shield on its side, pulled to a stop along the opposite curb. Stunned, Chris let herself be pulled from the back of the police car and led, along with Debbie, into the trailer of the truck - which turned out to be nothing less than a mobile courtroom.

The Judge - a heavy set, florid-faced man - watched as the two women were escorted to a table bolted to the left side of the 'room', while two cops came to stand at the table on the right. Once everyone was in position, the Judge cleared his throat.

"Mobile Court, Jurisdiction 2352-A is now in session, the Right Honorable Judge William Grady presiding. Case number nine nine nine, twelve, oh-seven, dash... uh, fifteen. The State Vs...?"

"Mannell and Devores, your honor." A cop provided, pointing to Chris and Debbie in turn. "The charge is Voluntary Homosexual Intercourse in the first degree."

'What?' Chris thought, incredulous.

"Very well." The Judge nodded. "First offenses?"

"Yessir, for Miss Devores. However, this is Miss Mannell's third." The cop said, flipping through some files.

Judge Grady grunted. Peering over his half-glasses, he looked at Debbie. "Anything to say in your defense, Miss Devores?"

Debbie looked as she might pass out, and her voice was thin and weak. "Uh, no, your honor..."

Chris, still disbelieving and confused, found herself speaking without planning to. "You Honor, I don't understand what... I mean, I just suggested that we should give these a test run..." she gestured to her tits, "...and things got a little out of hand, but... Look, don't we get a lawyer or something?"

The judge looked startled, then banged his gavel on the desk, shutting Chris down. He looked at Debbie again. "Is this true, Miss Devores? Miss Mannell was the instigator, and led you along?"

Shooting an eternally grateful look at Chris, Debbie replied in the affirmative - and Chris, with a sinking feeling, realized that that might not have been how it happened in this world, and she'd just indicted herself while giving Debbie an out.

"Very well. Miss Devores, you are placed on one year probation, and no disciplinary action will be taken against you at this time. You are free to leave."

"Thank you, your honor." Debbie gushed as the cop uncuffed her. She scampered gratefully to the door, shooting an apologetic look at Chris as she exited.

"Constable Markham, we are closing the court." The Judge intoned, and a group of onlookers who'd gathered around the open back door groaned as the Bailiff shut and locked the door, then turned on a machine that produced a low hum that would block any prying ears.

Gazing steadily at Chris, Judge Grady's voice took on a more 'intimate' tone. "Kryssi, is it?" He asked, almost kindly.

Chris had no idea, but replied in the affirmative.

"Look, I have to respect what you did for your friend. Being a two-time convict yourself, you know the score and you probably just set your friend straight for life. I have to give you credit for that." His face quirked. "As for your question about a lawyer... Well, it is your right to request a Socio-Psychiatric Legal Counsel, but damned if I know where you'd come up with the ten-grand retainer. Do you wish to request one?"

Ten thousand dollars? "Uh... no, your honor." Chris lied glibly. "I wasn't thinking about myself - it was for..." A split second before she said 'Debbie', Chris realized that might not be her name in this here- and-now, and finished smoothly. "...my friend."

"Ah..." The Judge nodded in understanding. "Very commendable. But your testimony, and her clean record, was enough to get her off with probation. But that leaves us with the problem of you, young lady." He sighed, removing his glasses and rubbing the bridge of his bulbous nose. "Since the previous two sentences of Intensive Hormonal Therapy didn't work..." Well, that explained the breasts, "...I'm afraid that we'll have to do a sexual reorientation procedure to ensure..."

Chris' eyes widened. "Your Honor! No!" She shouted, and the Judge, startled, looked up.

"It's not.. you, see, I'm not really a woman!" Chris babbled, trying to explain. Now that she knew that this was all real, the thought of them messing with her sexual orientation scared the hell out of her. "I mean - this is a woman's body - but it's not my body..."

In confused fits and starts, she spilled the complete story to the steadily more incredulous looking Judge.

Finally, Chris wound down and stood, shoulders slumped, her face cast in fear. "So - please, please - don't screw with my mind until after I've left." She pleaded before stopping completely.

The Judge shook his head, all trace of his almost fatherly manner gone. "Well, I have heard many a strange story in this courtroom, Miss - and that isn't even the strangest of the lot. But the law says I have to listen to any and all defense that a defendant may wish to field, so..." He looked at her intently. "Is that your final say, your ultimate statement?"

Mind spinning, Chris looked for something else to say, then sighed and simply said, "Yes."

The Judge nodded. "Very well. Based on the defendant's voluntary testament, the court orders that Mr. Christopher William McAffree, currently residing in the body of Kryssi Mannell, be placed into the California Psycho-Corrective Center to undergo Complete Overt Personality Reorientation and Mnemonic Editing. Sentence is passed and is to be carried out immediately. Court is dismissed."

"What?" Chris shouted, confused and scared. "I don't..."

Then the bailiff stepped up behind her, and there was a hissing sound as Chris felt something very cold against the nape of her slender new neck.

Then the world went dark.

* * * * *

Chris awoke with her whole body shuddering from the pounding of her heart. Panic's knife edge traced its way down her back, and her breath seemed short and insufficient.

Opening her eyes, Chris stared up at the ceiling, swallowing dryly as she stared at the off-white stucco above her. Mentally, she probed the inner recesses of her mind...

...and found nothing amiss. Every thought, every memory seemed to be just as it should. She recalled everything - right up from what had happened to the computer, to being injected after a trial for having lesbian sex - of all things.

But did any of this really mean anything? If she was 'reprogrammed', would she realize it?

Heart in her throat, Chris slowly sat up - and felt the weight on her chest she had to fight against shift and jiggle. She looked down at the massive tits hanging from her chest, then looked around the room...

It didn't look like any sort of prison or treatment center. It looked like a bedroom - in a middling-priced apartment, say. In fact, much like the one the 'real' Chris had in the 'real' universe. As a matter of fact it was almost identical to it. There were a few differences in the furniture, and a more feminine decor but there was a desk with a computer on it in the same place that the 'real' apartment had one, the bed and end tables, while more feminine in style, were in the same place as the 'real' ones.

Swinging her long, sexy legs over the edge of the bed, Chris pushed herself upright, feeling her huge endowments bounce and sway as she rose. Due to the construction of the body she was trapped in, there was no way of avoiding a feminine stride as she moved across the room to the hallway...

...and found that, to all appearances, this was her apartment. Or, rather, this worlds feminine equivalent to her 'real' apartment. Hurrying into the bathroom, she closed the door and stared at the image in the full-length mirror that, just like the 'real' bathroom had, was hanging from the back of the door.

He'd never seen the woman he was staring at before in his life.

Oh, she bore a slight resemblance to 'Kryssi' - especially the massive, round tits thrust from the narrow ribcage - but this woman had shorter, light-brown hair as opposed to Kryssi's longer dark brown mane. Also, this new body had a slimmer waist, and longer legs.

Chris heaved a sigh of relief. Whatever it was that Kryssi had been sentenced to go through, Chris figured that - while unconscious - she'd 'slipped' back to the 'real' world, then into this new female body. She was safe.

* * * * *

"Subject K. Mannell has awoken and is currently surveying the reconstructive surgery performed to alter her general physical appearance." The head of the project recorded into the constantly-running tape machines as he surveyed the sight of the altered woman's body through her own eyes. "The transceiver chip in her brain is functioning within specified parameters. Programming may begin at any time."

* * * * *

Chris, reassured, shook her head at the sight of the outrageously sexy body he was currently confined in, and wondered how long he'd be stuck in this form - or what type of world she was in, for that matter. She'd already learned - the hard way - that she 'slipped' right into the middle of somebody's on-going life, and had to figure out what was going on and how to handle it. She might be here for a couple of hours, or a couple of days - and she definitely didn't want any close scrapes like she'd had the last time.

Since she was in the bathroom, it was more or less inevitable that she'd notice that her bladder and bowels were indicating that it was time to be emptied. With a small grimace, Chris seated herself on the 'great white throne', her face screwed up as she went to the washroom the first time as a female. It was both similar and different than what she was used to, especially urinating, and she felt awkward and embarrassed, as if she were spying on a woman during her most private moments.

Which, in a way, she was - only from the inside.

Wiping herself carefully and completely, she decided that a shower was in order, bemused to note that the odor of a woman was completely different then that of an unwashed man - and, to her male brain, slightly...

* * * * *

Deep inside her brain, a small chip noted the incoming negative connotation and automatically shunted to the massive mainframe three and a half blocks away, changing the term from 'arousing' to something more suitable.

* * * * *

...disgusting. Getting the shower adjusted to the temperature she was used to, Chris stepped into the spray - and immediately turned the water to a cooler temperature, finding that her new body wasn't able to bear as much heat as her old male one had. It was one more annoying thing to look forward to getting rid of, 'if-and-when'.

She showered quickly, feeling odd about running her hands over this outrageously sexy female body, especially the crotch. It felt weird - yet pleasurable, too. She couldn't deny that the sensitivity of her new body made washing less of a chore. If she wasn't so embarrassed, it might even have been a form of 'fun'. Of course, one of the weirdest parts was soaping up her massive,...

* * * * *

Again, the computer decided that 'freakish' wasn't the correct mindset, and substitute a new thought in its place.

* * * * *

...gorgeous tits. They were huge and incredibly firm, and very, very sensitive. The sensation of having them touched was very, very pleasurable - if only it wasn't 'herself' touching them.

The hair turned out to be a bit of a nuisance. Fairly short for a woman's hairstyle, it was still longer than what she was used to, and a bit of a pain to wash. Still - it was nice and soft and silky, and washing it was worthwhile just for the effect it's have to keep it so nice.

Stepping from the shower, Chris dried off quickly, then padded back to the bedroom, letting herself move with the natural stride of her body - swaying her hips with a small rotating motion, shoulders back a bit, head up. Her huge, firm tits swayed from side to side pleasantly, and she was... pleased by the sensation. It felt so... good.

Reaching the bedroom, she started to search through the closet and dresser for something to wear. She pulled out a pair of jeans and a baggy sweater and held them against her body, looking down at the outfit and deciding that it was perfect...

...ly horrible. It would be like wearing a canvas sack. As uncomfortable as she felt in this body, there was no reason to look like a bag lady or a dyke, was there?

Tossing the unsatisfactory clothes on the bed, Chris continued to search through the clothing for something more appropriate. Finally she found something she thought would look good. With awkward fingers, she dressed herself for the first time in women's clothing.

She started with a pair of pale pink French-cut panties, and a matching bra. The bra itself was the most difficult thing - she had plenty of practice with taking the damned things off, but not with putting one on. And especially not one this big - the label inside announced that it was an MMM-cup, and she felt a burst of...

...pride at knowing that she had such huge, firm tits. At least that was one thing that hadn't changed. She tried to imagine life with tiny little tits - or worse, a flat chest - and simply couldn't. She'd be ashamed to go out in public like that! She remembered how small the tits of the woman she'd been in the theater were, and how disgusted she'd felt to be so under-endowed. At least this time she was stuck in the body of a woman with tits as big as her own male body possessed, even if the rest of her was completely altered. It was a touchstone, a reminder of her real body in the 'real' world.

Humming to herself, Khris she pulled on the black dress she'd chosen, lacing it up the sides. The design allowed it to show off her huge, gorgeous tits by the tightness of what fabric did cover her breasts, and the glorious view of cleavage in the low neckline of the garment. The hem line of the dress, however, was much higher than she would have liked, displaying an awful lot of her...

...long, sexy legs. But she didn't really have a choice in the matter. All though there were several dresses in the closet with longer skirts, there were none with shorter hem lines. She'd just have to live with wearing a dress that went all the way down to mid-thigh.

Slipping into a pair of black suede pumps with ankle straps and gold-toned six-inch stiletto heels (her favorite kind), Khris grabbed her purse and headed out.

* * * * *

"Sir?" One of the technicians said, in concern. "Take a look at this."

The head of the project came over and looked at the screen - and let out a low whistle.

"That's what I mean, sir." The technician agreed. "An average correction rate of ten-point-seven-three a minute. I've never seen the implant work so hard - it's having to edit almost every thought and memory the subject experiences."

The head of the project shrugged. "Well - I guess it just shows how much she needed the chip installed, after all."

"uh - yessir." The technician agreed, turning back to his readouts.

It still bothered the hell out of him, anyway. If she were a dyed-in-the-wool lesbian, he might understand why it had to edit so many of her sexual thoughts - but why on earth was it doing so much editing on memories and 'trivial' thoughts? It was almost like she wasn't thinking like a woman at all.

* * * * *

Walking down the street, Kris smiled at the people she passed, especially the men, feeling their eyes roaming over her body, and enjoying the sensation thoroughly. It was her good fortune that she ended up in such a great body after her last 'slip'. Nothing against her old body, which had been 'okay' - but it hadn't been anything close to this wonderful figure.

A small frown crossed her face, her full lips turning down. There seemed to be something wrong with that last thought. Her memory dredged up the image of her old body, and her eyes widened in shock as she realized...

...that she'd completely neglected to put on any make-up before leaving her apartment. She always wore make-up in her old body, needing to enhance her rather plain face. She'd been so overwhelmed by her fabulous new body that she'd completely neglected one of the basics.

Shaking her head at her own silliness, Kris kept an eye open until she spotted a chain drug-store that would have what she needed. Entering, she quickly picked up the basics and asked the cute young cashier if she could use their bathroom to fix her face. Twenty minutes later, feeling much better, she left the store.

She paused at the door and wondered where she was going. She'd left the apartment with the definite thought that she was waiting for something, but now she seemed to be having trouble remembering what that 'something' was. It involved something to do with a man, she remembered. She was waiting until...

...it just wouldn't come to her. It seemed to dance on the edge of her memory and then vanish. Shrugging, Kris continued on down the street, wiggling her hips and thrusting out her chest to enhance her spectacular figure, and eyeing all the cute guys she passed. She thought to herself that she really shouldn't be doing that - after all, despite the body she was in, the thought of actually being involved, sexually, with a man was absolutely...

...wonderful. If she wasn't careful, she might walk up to the next man she met and ask him to give her a blow-job.

Stopping dead in the middle of the sidewalk, Kriss giggled at the ridiculous image the errant thought conjured up. She meant she'd give him a blow-job, of course - she couldn't ever get a blow-job.

Sometimes she was just too silly.

Giggling brainlessly, Kriss continued on down the street, her eyes wandering to the bodies - and crotches - of the various men she passed, and wondering what they'd be like in bed. She noticed another woman doing something similar, and she was almost as outrageously proportioned as herself. Seeing her incredibly sexy figure, Kriss felt a wave of...

...jealousy wash over her. What was a slut like that doing around her hunting grounds.

Then again, she thought suddenly, the other woman was probably an ex-dyke, sentenced to a lifetime of unrestrained nymphomania in a surgically altered body. Not a gorgeous, natural love-machine like herself.

Smiling at the thought that some ex-lesbian was helplessly trapped in that body, unable to stop herself from being a cum-hungry little tramp, Kriss continued on her way, going into a bar a few doors down.

Pausing long enough to let her eyes adjust, she saw that the mostly male clientele had glanced up when the door was opened - and were now practically drooling at the sight of her body. The sight of a room full of big, biker-type men were staring at her, lusting at her body, caused her to break out in a sweat as her stomach contracted in...

..pride and lust. After all, with all these men around, she'd be in her own personal hell...

...heaven. Kriss' smile vanished for an instant, replaced by a confused look as she tried to figure out what was going on her mind today - she was having all sorts of weird thoughts.

* * * * *

"Sir!" The technician's shout brought the head of the project over at a run. "Sir - the chip's losing ground!"

The head of the project was flabbergasted. "What! But... that's impossible!"

The technician shrugged. "Maybe, sir - but her mind is trying to have 'forbidden' thought and memories in excess of what the chip was ever designed to handle. I mean, the correction rate's up to twenty-seven a minute! That's almost a forbidden thought every two seconds, sir."

"I've never seen anything like this." The boss-man agreed, awe and confusion in his voice. "Well - we'll just have to let the chip do what it can. It's programming should be taking hold soon enough that the thoughts will be coming directly from her mind, rather than corrected after the fact."

"I hope so, sir."

* * * * *

Smiling uncertainly, feeling confused, Kriss headed to the bar.

"Would you look at the tits on that!" Somebody said in a loud voice. Instinctively, Kriss glanced around...

...then realized the voice was talking about her. She glanced down at the awesome display of mouthwatering cleavage...

...and gasped. She crossed her arms and hunched over, minimizing her huge chest, and scurried to the bar, feeling uncomfortable with all the male eyes on her huge, basket-ball-sized tits. She hoped that at least some of them were staring at her gorgeous, sexy legs instead, and she began to become aroused at the thought of them admiring her long, sexy legs and huge, firm tits...

The frown returned as she realized she'd once more resumed her proud, sultry strut towards the bar, chest out-thrust. Which was only right, of course, because she had such a gorgeous body, and she wanted the woman behind the bar to admire it. Why she had that sudden attack of... disgust? Self- doubt?... she didn't understand. After all, this type of body was perfect for what she wanted - to seduce women.

Men. To seduce men. After all, lesbian sex was both disgusting and illegal. What the hell was wrong with her? Just because she'd had a crush on girls in high-school, and had always felt belittled when her friends had boasted about the women they were laying was no reason...

Wait a second - that wasn't right. Sure, she hung around with a lot of guys in high-school - but she was the one they boasted about laying. And she'd felt proud and disgusted to have had sex with so many men...

What the hell was wrong with her!

"Can I get you a drink?" The woman behind the bar asked, stubbing out a smoke. It took a second before the question registered on a confused Kriss.

She shook her head. After all, the last thing she needed when she was this confused was...

..."A scotch on the rocks, please." She blinked. "No - why did I say that? I hate straight booze. Give me a Fuzzy Navel."

The woman behind the bar looked incredulous. "A what?"

"A..." Kriss looked confused. What did she want? "A.. beer would be fine."

Taking the beer, she wandered in a daze to a booth, trying to get her mind straightened out. Without paying attention, she lowered herself beside the occupant already sitting in the semi-enclosed booth, a handsome, sandy-haired young man.

"Geez, Josh - I'm having the weirdest day." Kriss commented. The man looked startled. "Wha... how did you know my name?"

Kriss looked at the man in surprise - then, suddenly, realized that she didn't know him. "I... O don't know your name." She said in confusion.

"But..." The man frowned. "You just called me by my name - Josh." Kriss blinked. "I did?"

"Yeah."

Noting how attractive the young man was, Kriss smiled and giggled. "Silly me - I'm a little out of it. My name's Chris."

The man smiled. "And I'm Josh..." HE seemed to talking to her cleavage then to her. "Chris - is that short for something?"

She blinked. "Excuse me?"

"Chris - you said your name is Chris."

She shook her head. "I did? - I meant Kryssi. K-R-Y-double-S-I." She giggled. "Maybe you just heard me wrong."

Josh looked doubtful - but a glance at her magnificent cleavage persuaded him to agree that that must be the case.

"So, uh, Kryssi - care for a cigarette?" He asked, holding out a pack of smokes. "No thanks." Kryssi replied brightly, taking one of the cigarettes. "I don't smoke."

Sliding the butt of the cigarette between her full, gloss-red lips, she leaned forwards expectantly. With a bemused expression, Josh lit the cigarette, and she took a deep drag and smiled at him as she let the smoke trail from between her ripe lips.

She notice the direction of his gaze, and her eyes shifted downwards. "Oh my god!" She said in her breathy, smoky voice. "I've got huge tits! Huge, firm, sexy tits! I love them - they're so big and sensitive..." She finished with her voice dropping into a seductive coo as she leaned forward and pressed her huge endowments against Josh's arm. "Don't you think they're gorgeous?"

"Uh... yes, they're spectacular." Josh agreed, shifting position as his rapidly hardening cock became uncomfortably confined in his jeans.

She caught the motion and gazed down at his crotch, and odd look crossing her face. "Geez, Josh - I don't remember your cock being that big. It's much, much bigger then mine would be if I had one."

She blinked in confusion, then smiled sunnily at the confused man. "Ummmmm.. yeah." Josh agreed. What else was he supposed to say?

Kryssi wasn't sure what she was saying or doing anymore - everything was all confused. She held a hand to her head, and decided to ask her friend josh to help her back to her apartment.

"Josh, can you take me home and fuck me all night?" She asked in a confused tone of voice. "I'm having trouble concentrating, and I think it would really help if I could just lay down for a few hours and be your cum-crazed sex toy."

Josh's jaw dropped. "Uh - I think I can help you, yeah " He managed, his cock now as hard as a rock.

Helping her up, he guided her towards the rear door, which lead out into a short, dark alley that led towards the tiny parking-lot behind the bar.

"Thanks, buddy - I really appreciate this." Kryssi told Josh sincerely. "It's just been a really horny day, and I can't seem to keep my mind on any one cock without it wandering on tangents."

"yeah, sure, right " Josh wasn't even listening anymore as e guided her towards the car with a peculiar stride. Helping her in, he eased himself into the driver's seat, and followed her disjointed instructions back to her place.

" and then I noticed that I didn't look the same, except for my huge, gorgeous tits and I was thinking about how much I loved them, which reminded me how good it feels to get tit-fucked, even though I can't remember ever getting tit-fucked before, but I remember it feeling really good, and I thought "

The huge breasted woman rambled as she led him inside the apartment.

Between her own 'real' persona and the now incredibly overloaded chip in her mind, the woman with the outrageous figure was now technically insane, her mind ceasing to function in anything resembling a coherent manner. Unable to keep up with all the 'corrections' it would have needed to supply, the chip's discriminatory function had stopped trying to edit her memories and most of her thoughts, instead feeding a constant barrage of sexual thoughts and urges into her mind, which was completely unable to distinguish this mad mix of sexual images from her own thoughts. The fact that they contradicted many of her memories no longer bothered her, as she was no longer thinking rationally at all - overloaded on the sexual contents, she was thinking of nothing but sex, and only sex.

She peeled off her dress without even being aware that she was doing so, and went to mix a drink for herself. She wasn't even truly aware of Josh's presence anymore, yet reacted without thought to whatever he did. When he unclasped her bra and began to fondle her huge tits, she stood still and let him do it, with out thinking why she was standing still. She unconcernedly sipped her drink as he fondled and sucked her massive mounds, enjoying the sensation of pleasure without knowing where it came from.

She continued to babble on between sips of her drink until Josh slowly pushed her downwards to her knees. Finding herself staring at the bulging crotch of his jeans, she didn't even think - she operated completely on instinct, unzipping his pants and hauling out his hard, throbbing cock.

It was all programmed instinct - a mass of sight and sounds that really didn't mean anything to her at all. It was as if by 'remote control' that her hands wrapped themselves around the base of his cock, and she leaned forward and took the cock into her mouth. With implanted skill, she proceeded to give Josh the most incredible blow-job of her life while her mind wandered down blind pathways of it's own choosing.

Within no-time at all, Josh's cock began to gush, and she swallowed every drop and licked his cock clean, all without being consciously aware of what she was doing.

However, the chip's programming was still in full force, and now she craved cock and cum in any and all ways possible. Her mind short-circuited by the overloaded chip, the desires and nymphomaniac tendencies it was feeding into her mind were accepted without protest and locked permanently into her mind, over-riding all the old data stored there. She continued to fondle and lick his cock, bringing him back to full rigidity, then lay on her back, unaware that she was pleading with him to fuck her.

It was an offer he wasn't about to refuse. With a huge smile on his face, he drove into her, fucking her hard as he rested his weight on one muscular arm and fondled her huge tits with his free hand. She accepted the incredible pleasure without thought, crying out as she reached her first orgasm without comprehending what was happening to her at all.

* * * * *

"General - I think we're ready."

The General in charge of the crash program looked at the jury-rigged machine with distaste. It was little more than bread-boarded circuits rigged around a massive steel ring encrusted with electron guns and less identifiable pieces of machinery.

"So - this is going to bring Mr. McAffree back?" The General - a non-technical type - asked with doubt in his voice.

"We think so, sir - the general premise of interdimensional travel has been available for years now, but the problem has always been locking on to another universe. However, since Mr. McAffree was in the scanner when he disappeared, we have a recording we can use to pinpoint the mind-wave of an inter-dimensional transport." The teckie assured the General. "The only problem is, this machine will pull Mr. McAffree through in whatever body he is currently in."

The General grunted. "But if your calculations are correct, he won't 'bounce back' on his own for another twelve years, right?"

The teckie nodded.

"Then go ahead and bring him home. " The General ordered. "I'm sure he'd rather be in a different body and home than trapped in the body in a different world."

The teckie saluted, then reached over to the haphazardly laid-out control board and pulled a large switch downwards, causing the huge metal ring to hum in a deep, resonating tone.

* * * * *

"Sir!" The technician yelled in shock. "Something's happening to her brain wave pattern!"

The head of the project rushed over - and stared in shock as the brain-wave pattern began to... fade.

Turning back to the monitor that showed her own vision, he watched as it jumped and spun, then faded into static.

When the cops burst into the room minutes later, all they found was a very, very confused young man who kept insisting that the strange woman he'd just finished fucking had just... vanished.

* * * * *

Chris blinked as the light faded around him.

For a second, he merely stood, confused, trying to remember what had happened. The last thing he remembered was being worried about his computer being fried by a lightening strike, then...

...then he was here, in a huge, concrete room, where scores of men in uniform were all gaping at him with wide eyes and slack jaws.

"What the hell's..." Chris started to ask, taking a step forward...

...then stopped, stunned. The question had emerged in a high-pitched, breathy voice - and the step had been accompanied by the unmistakable 'click' of a high-heel.

Glancing down, Chris shrieked, slender, feminine hands flying up to the huge, firm, sexy tits that I love to show off in tight little clothing so men will want to fondle, suck and fuck them.

"What the fuck...?" Chris exclaimed as the thought came unbidden to his - or, rather, her - mind. He stared down at the huge tits, knowing he should be shocked, horrified and disgusted - but instead, unwillingly feeling proud of the huge, round tits hanging from her chest, and filled with the helpless, unwanted desire to have them admired and fondled.

"No " She groaned, hands flying to her head.

Although the chip, deprived of it's uplink, was no longer active, the thoughts and ideas it had permanently implanted in her mind were still present. Although she could tell them for what they were thoughts that were not her own - she could avoid them, couldn't stop herself from thinking them. "M Mister McAffree?" An older man in a General's uniform asked, hesitantly.

Chris, confused and scared by the strange thoughts invading her mind replied. "Yes, I'm {Chris McAffree/Kryssi Mannell} Chrissy McNell."

The General blinked - as did Chris. She tried again with growing panic - but the two simultaneous thoughts came out with 'Khris Mannree' this time.

"The person you named!" Chris cried out, dropping to her extremely well-padded rear on the platform. "My God - what's happening to me?" She shouted at the General, in tears. "I can't control my thoughts

I keeping thinking things I don't want to think. I can't say my own name. I don't know what's going on, and I don't know how I ended up in this gorgeous, perfect body, and please won't somebody fuck me because I don't want to have sex, but oh, God I need it!"

The General walked up the ramp and knelt beside the naked (aside from a pair of high-heeled shoes) woman. He gulped as he gazed down at her massive endowments, their nipples hard and thick, and couldn't help but notice the helpless, hungry way she stared at his bulging crotch.

Look, uh.. son." He said in a gruff, not-quite-fatherly voice. "You may not understand what's happening but believe me when I tell you that you're perhaps the greatest patriot who ever lived. Thanks to you, we've opened a conduit to another dimension, and soon we'll begin trading with a whole new Earth, with different technology, in a different America. I'm sure the President himself will want to... uh, reward you. And you can be damned sure that we're going to take good care of you."

Sniffing, seeing the faint rays of hope, Chris looked up, and saw complete sincerity in the General's eyes...

...mixed with a healthy dose of lust, and she was both ashamed and aroused by it, and found herself yearning for something, yearning very, very much...

* * * * *

SIX MONTHS LATER

"Geez - can you believe the security on this thing?" Private Johnson muttered to Corporal Hendricks as they headed towards their assigned barracks. "I wonder what the hell's in that mountain that is so damned important."

"Geez - I know." The corporal replied. "I mean - a two year rotation, no leave, no mail or phone calls - we'll go nuts before the end of the rotation!"

The eleven men of the second platoon, First of the Fourth (Air Cav.) sullenly mounted the steps of their barracks, complaining about the damned job they'd been given, Even worse, their usual Lieutenant hadn't been assigned, and they'd been told they'd be stuck with a new commanding officer for the duration of their guard duty at the secure facility.

Opening the door to the white-washed wooden building that would be their home, they went inside...

...and they came to a stop, jaws dropping.

It was unlike any barracks they'd ever seen before. First of all, there were no double-tiered Army cots just two rows of king-sized bed, with white silk sheets beneath olive-drab down comforters. There was a full kitchen at the far end, and even a wet bar in the corner. The place looked like an upscale hotel room made to Army specifications.

Then the door to the officer's bedroom swung open - and, impossible as it seemed, the men's jaws dropped even further.

It was basically the standard Class A Uniform (Female) - but none of the soldiers had ever seen it worn quite like this.

The brown, square-heeled pumps that were specified by Army regs were replaced by black, high-heeled pumps with six-inch spiked heels. Which was only fair, because no other shoe could have done justice to the long, shapely, nylon-clad legs that disappeared under the shorter-than-regulation skirt. Above that, the jacket hung open - as it had to, to make room from the regulation blouse that was straining over the massive tits that filled it, the top two buttons undone to show a swatch of creamy flesh in place of the little tie that would have usually rested in the collar.

If any of the men had possessed the internal fortitude to look higher, they would have found a sexy face surrounded by light-brown hair beneath the regulation cap.

Non did.

"Good afternoon, gentlemen." The woman said in crisp- yet incredibly sexy - voice. "I am your new Commanding officer, Colonel Christine Neils. You may refer to me as Ma'am, Colonel, Neils, Gorgeous or any mix of the above."

Walking towards the stunned men with an sexy version of the regulation Army timed stride, she gave the man a great view of the way her bra-less tits moved with each stride. Using the rising crop she carried, she pushed Johnson's jaw closed and forced him to look at her face.

"I..." She said in a low, sensual voice. "...am also you Morale Officer..."

Eyeing the bulging crotches of the men now under her command, Chris decided to start at the 'smallest' and work her way up. "You - Private Wilson, isn't it?"

"Uh, yes, Colonel gorgeous, Ma'am." The stunned man replied in a stammer.

"Report to my room for... 'inspection'." She ordered with a smile. "The rest of you, stow your stuff and get squared away." Her suggestive smile widened. "I'm sure that you'll enjoy serving under me."

Turning on one heel, she headed back towards her room. After finally embracing her new nature - which happened not long after her first multiple orgasm - Chris had experienced a complete change of outlook on life.

Now, the uppermost thought on her mind as she closed the door to her bedroom and began to unbutton her blouse was:

"And they pay me for this..."

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: A young archeological student finds an old box on a dig, and when his body turns into a woman's form, he is given a test to see whether he can become a god.

The Box Of Loki

By Gunslinger

"Why... am I... doing all... the digging...?" Barry grunted, lifting another shovel-full of earth on top of the growing pile to the right of the whole. Pausing, the slender, pale youth pushed his sweat-matted mop of black hair off his forehead, leaving behind a streak of dirt that stood out starkly against his usually too-pale skin, now going red from his growing sunburn.

"Because you need the exercise more'n I do..." Jason said from his position next to the slowly growing hole, his lean, tanned muscular body relaxed and comfortable in beaten-up jeans and a white T-shirt. Sandy-haired, handsome, and popular with the ladies, Jason Withersone couldn't completely hide his condescending attitude as he spoke to his slender, bookish companion. "You've got to build up them muscles if you want to be an arky'just, Gary."

"It's Barry..." The intellectual-looking young man said through clenched teeth. He left out the '...you Neanderthal' that ran through his brain. It wasn't a good idea to insult somebody twice your size and rippling with muscles.

Besides, the self-centered idiot probably wouldn't have gotten the insult, Barry consoled himself.

Both young men were university students. Barry Tyler was a dedicated, intelligent young man taking the archeology course out of actual interest... while Jason was 'cruising' through on a sports scholarship. He had certain minimum academic credits he needed, however, and the Archeology class - with plenty of 'field research' to get out of the stuffy classrooms - had seemed perfect.

Especially when he could pick some nerd to reluctantly hang around with for the answers to all the stupid questions in the course - and so Jason had 'volunteered' Barry for the position, since Barry was a straight-A student.

Barry was less than thrilled with the situation - but he saw no 'safe' way to resolve it.

Besides - if he did want to be an honest-to-god archeologist, he might as well get used to digging. Sighing, the slender youth bent his complaining back to get another shovel full of earth from the whole. This was frustrating, tiring work - especially since they were 'excavating' an old section of Fort Winders, an old Indian-Fighter fort that had fallen due to abandonment. This was a 'safe' site since it didn't have much real archeological value, though it was a good place for field-work to learn the trade.

Barry started to push down on the square-bladed shovel.. and cursed as it barely went in, a muffled 'tunk' indicating yet another rock to be removed. Leaning the shovel against the side of the pit, Barry bent down to remove the obstacle...

...which was most definitely not a rock - even though it was made of stone. "Whatcha got there, squirt?" Jason asked, leaning over.

"Oh - just some old jewelry box or something..." Jason said, fighting to keep his voice level and casual. "Nothing important."

"Oh - well, just toss it then." Jason said, shrugging his shoulders.

"I think I'll keep it..." Barry said, casually - while his heart beat rapidly. He set the object aside, trying not to act as if anything unusual was happening. "Say - it's getting late. Why don't we call it a day and pick up tomorrow?"

Jason grinned. "Yeah - 'bout time for a few brewskis. See ya tomorrow, squirt."

Glad to get out of there, Jason headed over toward his Corvette, not even thinking of offering a ride to Barry. Barry didn't mind, however. Climbing out of the pit, he grabbed the object he'd just uncovered and almost reverently put it into his knapsack, casually tossing away a perfectly good thermos container to make room for it. Leaving his tools behind - a highly unusual action - he began the not- too-lengthy hike to the low-rent apartment he lived in, fighting the urge to break into a run.

Half an hour later, after a quick shower, Barry sat at the table, carefully using a damp paper towel to clean off his discover, eyes intent and focused on the object on the table.

About the size of hard-cover novel, the object was indeed a box - but not a cheap jewelry box. Made of carved obsidian and inlaid with semi-precious stones, the box was a work of art, intricately etched... which, considering how brittle obsidian was, made it all the more spectacular.

The box wasn't Native American in origin. In fact, Barry's near-encyclopedic knowledge of cultures had a hard time placing it exactly, even though it's 'descent' was obvious - it was Norwegian. Or more correctly, Norse.

The box was in the style of the old Viking artifacts... but more delicately crafted than any ancient Norse craftsman had even dreamed. Which meant it was either a clever fake - one that could have only been done in the late twentieth century and 'planted' - or it was a genuine artifact that could be worth fame, fortune and more.

There were Norse runes on the box - or symbols that resembled those runes, since Barry didn't recognize any of the symbols. No - that wasn't true. There was one that Barry was familiar with - the Symbol that indicated a 'god' of Norse mythology, Loki. Loki, the Trickster.

Cleaned off, the box was even more stunning than it had been before. Part of Barry still couldn't believe what he'd just done, though. Any 'good' archeologist would have left the item in place, taken photos and measurements, made detailed notes before ever thinking of removing it - and then taking it to a proper facility for preservation and study. However, the instant Barry had laid eyes on it, he'd felt an overwhelming desire to take it for himself, to own it - to possess it. Now, with it in front of him, he couldn't help but run his fingers almost lovingly over its intricately carved lid...

...and without realizing what he was going to do before he did it, found himself gripping the edge of the lid and carefully lifting upwards, looking into the interior of the box.

There was some sort of light inside the box. It should have been impossible - but he was seeing it anyway, a sort of greenish glow that lit his face, pulsing and writhing, moving like a thick, glowing form of smoke, or fog, almost seeming to form patterns as it swirled sluggishly inside the container that held it.

Eyes wide, Barry stared at the strange mist inside the black box, unaware of the breathless sigh of mesmerized amazement that had slipped from his lips as he stared deep into the depths of the box.

The mist almost seemed to expand, as if it were growing outwards, filling his field of vision - or pulling him into itself, deeper and deeper inward, deeper into the swirling green mists....

With a gasp, Barry shook his head and broke the strange trance he'd found himself in. With trembling fingers, he lowered the lid of the box, wondering what the hell that had been about. Feeling as if he'd been asleep for hours, he looked around and was surprised to see the last, golden rays of sunset filling the kitchenette of the apartment.

He'd been staring into the box for at least a good hour. For some reason, the oddest analogy popped into his head from nowhere, and he wondered why on earth he'd just thought his head felt like a hard-drive that had just been read...

Brow furrowing slightly in confusion, Barry pushed away from the table and began to head out to the living room to watch some TV, to get a chance to relax his mind then paused, torn. Feeling guilty, he grabbed the box and carried it with him to the living room, unwilling to let it out of his sight.

Carefully resting the box on his lap, Barry picked up the remote and pressed the button, bringing his twenty-one inch TV into life.

...into flaring, jumping, static-filled life. Once again, his cable ('pirated' to save money) had been disconnected. He could go downstairs and use the special tool he'd managed to buy to unlock the cable box, but after today it seemed like too much of an effort. Then again, he was looking forward to some mindless entertain to help 'calm' his mind. He felt vaguely guilty about 'stealing' the box like that, as well as uncomfortable about the odd 'trance' he'd been in - but without any other distractions, his mind wanted to slide over to thoughts of that condescending, annoying son-of-a-bitch Jason he was forced to put up with, and...

The Box he was holding suddenly pulsed a bright, sharp green - and Barry shook his head in momentary confusion.

"What the hell am I thinking?" He asked himself, aloud - a day spent, alone at the dig site, must have given him heat-stroke. Here he was, lamenting the lack of cable, when he'd stopped off after another futile day of digging to rent a movie. Looking down, he lifted the video-cassette box he was holding in his hand.

"The Box of Loki." Barry read aloud, trying to recall what it was about. He couldn't seem to remember why he'd picked this one at the video store, since he couldn't remember what the display box had shown or said about it, and the plain box it was in gave no clue.

"Well, there's one way to find out " Barry told himself. Getting up, he walked over to the VCR atop his TV and turned it on. Popping open the plastic VCR-Tape box, he was a bit surprised to find that, instead of the usual black or occasional red, the casing of the video tape was a dark green.

Shrugging, Barry slid the tape into the machine, which began to play as he walked back to the chair and sat down.

There was a brief flicker, and then the movie started. There was no FBI warning, no previews - not even any credits, actually. Barry blinked, then mentally shrugged - the tape had probably not been fully rewound, and it was past all that stuff. Ignoring it - since he seemed to be right at the beginning anyway - he watched as the screen showed what was obviously meant to be a college dorm room. Just hanging up the phone was a shaven-headed young man with a russet goatee, his massively - almost grotesquely - muscled body crammed into cut-off jean shorts and a ratty black tank-top.

Just then, the door to the room opened and another young man entered. Athletically built, the muscular blond in jeans and a white T-shirt looked vaguely familiar to Barry, who wondered briefly what other movies he might have seen the actor in - then shrugged it off and focused his attention on the movie.

"So - how was your day, 'Indy'...?" The bald-headed one said to the sandy-haired character, who laughed.

"Relaxing - I let nerd-boy do all the work." He laughed again, unkindly. "I think he was turned on - that hole was probably the closets thing to a pussy he's ever seen..."

The other guy laughed, too. "Seriously, though, Jason - speaking of Pussy... I got a couple of girls lined up for tonight."

"Really, Steve - who? The Lindstadt sisters?" The blond youth - Jason - asked, eyebrows raising.

"No - a couple of girls from State. My cousin Frank goes there, and when he heard they were gonna be coming down this way, told them to give us a shout. I just got off the phone with them."

Jason rolled his eyes. "great - a blind date. C'mon, man - they'll probably be flat-chested, pimply and frigid."

Barry rolled his eyes - obviously, this wasn't a big-budget drama. These guys were almost stereotypes

'Chauvinistic Jocks', to be exact. Which probably meant this movie was a T&A horror movie or something...

He hoped it was like Leprechaun or WishMaster. Barry had enjoyed the twisted humor in those ones. Mentally crossing his fingers to hope, Barry leaned back in the chair as Steve said, "No way, man..."

* * * * *

"...Frank wouldn't do that to us."

Jason rolled his eyes. First, a day wasted digging in the dirt with Barry - who at least had that jewelry box he'd found - and now this lousy set-up 'blind date', where he had to trust somebody else's judgment.

The fact that, in each case, he hadn't had to expend any effort at all skipped right past Jason.

"All right - but if they're dogs, I'm outta there." Jason said, heading towards the bathroom for a quick shower before he changed. "Not like that time we got stuck with those Goth girls. That was freaky, man."

"Look on the bright side, Jason..." Steve laughed. "Compared to that, it can't possibly be worse tonight, right?"

* * * * *

Barry snorted softly - that was a stock line if he'd ever heard one. In a movie like this, as soon as somebody said 'I can't be any worse', something worse was SURE to happen.

Which probably meant something would happen on the 'date' they were going on. Barry wondered what the 'set-up' for that would be...

...and in almost the same instant, the scene cut to a older, perfectly-maintained dark-blue VW Beetle tooling down the rapidly darkening highway, containing a couple of college-age girls, obviously the ones in question. The driver, a bottle blonde, was slightly too skinny with a somewhat protruding nose but still, mildly 'cute' - and the passenger, who had a darker complexion, on the slightly pudgy side, had curly black hair. She, too, was somewhat shy of being the 'ideal college babe', though not actively ugly.

They were also dressed in 'night out' clothes, and chatting rather insipidly. They didn't seem to be the source of the thinly disguised 'foreboding' of 'something worse', and Barry figured that something to make the 'danger' clear to the viewer had to happen any time now...

Barry was completely unaware as his normally hazel eyes suddenly flared to a bright, emerald green for a second.

As if on cue, the girls suddenly found themselves confronted by what looked like a fog-bank hiding the road ahead - but both the faint greenish cast to the fog, and the eerie music, indicated it wasn't quite what it seemed. Typical dumb female characters, they drove into it anyway...

Seconds after the car vanished in the mist, there was the screeching sound effects of brakes, followed by startled exclamations. There was a short pause - and then two feminine screams.

Screams that quickly became naughty, almost disturbingly sensual moans. Moans that then merged into a deep, eerie, other-worldly chuckling...

...which Barry was completely unaware he was mirroring perfectly in intonation, volume and tone, his eyes blazing green...

* * * * *

Leaning against his Corvette, Jason looked over at his friend with exasperation.

"Well? Where are they?" He asked, annoyed. They'd agreed to meet these unseen girls in the parking lot of a local mall at eight o'clock, and here it was nearly eight thirty. Jason, not thrilled with the blind date in the first place, was quickly running out of what small measure of patience he did have.

"They'll be.... whoa, get a load of this..." Steve interrupted himself to point at a car just wheeling it's way into the lot.

It was an older car, but perfectly maintained, it's dark-blue paint gleaming under the lights above the mostly-empty lot. Chrome shone as well, as did the white racing stripes painted down the centerline of the AC Cobra's wide, 'muscular' body as it rumbled it's way to a stop beside the guys and their car.

Steve and Jason shared a look of disbelief as they saw the car's occupants.

"You must me Jason and Steve..." the blonde driver said, with a sensual tone, frankly eyeing the two guys - as was the dark-haired passenger.

For the guys part, all they could do was stare at the women in the car.

They were gorgeous. Aside from coloration, they could have been sisters - they both had toned, supple bodies crammed into tight-fitting, glossy leather garments. The blonde, dark-eyed driver hair fair skin and an almost patrician nose that didn't detract one whit from her coolly sensual beauty, and was dressed in a one-piece red-leather short-sleeve catsuit, 'accented' by a pair of matching knee- high boots. The passenger, on the other hand, had a duskier skin-tone and slightly larger breast (maybe a D-cup), and her long, wavy black hair framed a mysterious face with dark eyes and full, ruby lips curved very slightly at the corners in a mysterious, sensual smile. Slowly, sensuously, she opened the door and slid from the car with a nearly feline grace, like a panther stalking it's pray.

"Mmmm.... Fresh meat...": She said in a hungry, sensual tone, licking her full lips in a way that made the boys shudder in an odd mix of lust and carefully-repressed fear. The women, gorgeous, sensual and sexy, were also powerful, almost intimidating - but neither guy would ever admit to that, of course.

"Hope in, Curly..." The blonde driver said to Steve with a faint tone of amused contempt that he chose to ignore. I'm Tonya, and tonight your mine..."

"...and you belong to Charmaine - and that's me..." the dark-haired one practically growled at Steve, eyeing his crotch long and hard. "Believe me - you can't even imagine what tonight's going to be like." She chuckled, low in the back of her throat, an oddly primal sound.

Sharing another look, the guys traded another grin that each tried to make look casual. The guys liked to think of themselves as 'sexual predators', but these women made them look like the harmless herbivores of the sexual world...

"Sounds like my kind of night." Jason said with mostly false bravado, gesturing to his Corvette. "Hop in, Charmaine."

With another mysterious smile, she did just that... stepping confidently past Jason and sliding behind the wheel.

"Tonight, I'll be in the driver's seat, my little boy-toy..." She said with an odd chuckle.

Jason opened his mouth to argue... then shrugged his shoulders and walked around the car, while Steve slid into the Cobra.

The guys usually preferred more 'submissive' women, but - even a little intimidating - these girls were definitely hot.. and hot to trot. Getting laid was worth reigning in their own macho egos... for a while, at least...

With a squeal of rubber-on-pavement, both women stepped on the accelerator at the same instant, the two cars rocketing forward and peeling away, each in a different direction.

* * * * *

"So... where are we going...?" Steve asked, trying not to be unnerved by the casual competence Tonya showed as she used every ounce of power and handling the big car had to give.

She looked at him with a mysterious, smoldering look. "You'll see..."

Steve blinked, but shrugged, figuring that this would end up where he wanted to go, anyway - he just wished she pay closer attention to the road. Her driving was making him nervous...

"So, Steve, tell me..." Tonya said, pulling the car into the parking lot of a local 'dive' road-house. "Why do you think a woman like me should do, as often and eagerly as possible...?"

Well - this was certainly more like it. Steve grinned - leered, really - and decided to 'shoot the moon'. "A hot babe like you? Why, suck cock, of course..."

She grinned back at him, that same, mysterious grin. "Strip. All of it." She commanded. Steve was startled. "What - right here? Now?"

"Now." She said, firmly... and slowly and sensuously licked her lips. "Or no blow-job..."

Swallowing heavily, Steve glanced around nervously - then quickly began to shimmy and twist in the seat, pulling his clothes off. In a few minutes he was buck naked, his massively muscled body exposed to anybody who might wander out of the bar... and bare to Tonya's long, slow look. The look that stopped at his hard, throbbing cock.

"Perfect..." She practically purred... then bent over and began to suck his cock.

Leaning back against the door, Steve closed his eyes and moaned - her skill as a cock-sucker was amazing. She was doing things with her hands and lips that he hadn't even known was possible, and her tongue...!

It was long at all before Steve began to cum, and cum hard, gushing a thick stream of jism deep into her seemingly insatiable mouth, pumping more and more hot, thick cum down her throat...

...and more... and more... Even in the throes of orgasm, Steve realized that this protracted, continuous flow wasn't normal - now was the strange sensations his body was producing. Gasping and twitching from the pleasure of the incredible, apparently endless orgasm, he forced his eyes open and looked down...

The first thing he saw was Tonya's head buried in his lap, his cock completely swallowed by her mouth. It took a second for him to register that she looked different - larger, taller, more heavily muscled...

...and then, with mounting horror, he realized she was only half as muscular again as he thought she was - because his frame of reference was skewed.

He was shrinking in on himself. Impossibly, it was like she was sucking his very musculature out through his cock, absorbing it as she drained him...

...of his masculinity. As his body drew in on itself, becoming slimmer, less muscular, all his body hair was falling out - but he could feel hair sliding down the back of his neck as his previously bald skull produced copious amounts of thick, wavy, deep-red hair.

"Wh..." He moaned in mixed ecstasy and horror, even as his chest started bulging outward in most definitely feminine contours. "What's happening...?"

The question was asked in a voice that was rapidly rising in pitch, further terrifying ...him?... and he tried desperately to push Tonya's head from his lap with his steadily shrinking, slimming hands - but it was as if she were cemented in place.

"Stop!" He... she... gasped in horror as the changes neared completion, hearing the rich new contralto voice that had replace her own masculine. "Oh, God.. no...!"

Something else was happening. Where Tonya's torso was pressed against Steve's now very feminine legs, patches of shiny red material were spreading out, flowing from the red leather catsuit she wore and onto her new body. Steve tried to struggle, tried to pull away - but it was a futile effort as the red leather quickly spread over her new body.

With a muffled, wet 'pop', Tonya pulled away from the newly-formed person in the passenger's seat. Now easily six-foot-six, she was more muscular - but still feminine and sexy, in a Brigitte Nielsen sort of way.

"Thanks - I needed that..." She chuckled in a more powerful, commanding voice, flexing her musculature.

In the passenger's seat, the person who'd been Steve was making choking sounds of pure horror. The body enclosed in the red leather catsuit was nearly identical to the one Tonya had started out with, save for the fact that her hair was a deep, vibrant red, and her face wasn't nearly as 'commanding' - in fact, it was the sort of slightly sad-eyed face of a 'natural' submissive.

Her outfit was slightly different, too. The new woman's boots were still knee-high, but instead of six- inch spiked heels, she had 'ballet' heels, forcing her feet nearly straight down - and the boots were joined together by a length of golden chain.

"Get out." Tonya said, almost casually, to the horrified, supple new woman Steve had become.

"Wha... what...?" The stunned, horrified new woman gasped, hearing - and shuddering at - the sound of her altered voice.

Tonya grinned. "I'm no longer a 'woman like me'... but you are. Don't you have something you need to do - desperately?"

Instantly, the former man was horrified to feel an incredible, overpowering, crushing desire thunder through her body and mind, so powerful that she couldn't stand against it. Helplessly, drive, she found herself yanking open the door to the car and getting out, numbly noticing that she balanced 'easily' atop the ballet heels of her outrageous new footwear as she took tiny, mincing steps that slowly drew her toward the door of the bar.

She didn't want to go in there - but she needed to go in there. It was a craving, a desire, a rampant need so overwhelming powerful that she couldn't fight it,. No matter how hard she tried - and she was trying very hard indeed, disgusted by what her mind and body were demanding. It was a futile struggle, however - she couldn't help herself.

Opening the door to the bar, she minced in to the dark, smoky, noisy interior... and that noise quickly diminished as the mostly-male patrons of the club noted the woman who'd entered the club.

Helplessly, wishing she could just die, the new woman dropped to her knees just inside the door, her body literally quivering with the power of the rampant, disgusting need that filled her...

"Cum..." She said, her voice hungry and desperate. What she felt was like the sort of addiction a cocaine-junkie would feel... but much, much stronger. "I need to suck cock and drink cum. Please, somebody... let me suck you off..."

She was horrified by what had happened to her, by where she was, and by what she was about to do... but she just couldn't help herself. She needed this.

It wasn't long at all before one guy took her up on her offer.

"You serious?" He asked, his pants bulging as his eyes glittered with lust. Overweight, sweaty and smelly, he was a slob, a pig, a disgusting example of humanity - but it didn't matter to the new woman's terrible new needs.

"Yes!" She gasped. "Please - I need cum...!"

Then she reached out, grabbed the waist-band of his pants, and pulled him forward, her fingers flying to his fly to rip it open and set his hard - and rather unsanitary - cock free.

Desperately, she practically lunged forward...

...and a disgustingly pleasant feeling of tranquillity began to seep through her body as she began her first blow-job.

Hating how good it felt to have her full, ruby-red new lips wrapped around a man's throbbing cock, she found herself using new skills she didn't even know she had, one hand pumping the base of the cock while the other fondled his hair balls. Her lips slurped back and forth over his none-to-clean shaft, while her tongue swirled and dived over the nearly purple head of his cock.

"Damn... girl..." The guy gasped in pleasure. "You... you're incredible..."

Then he moaned as she stepped it up. She couldn't stop herself - the better she blew, the better she felt, that contentment spreading towards true pleasure...

Then the guy came, spurting his load of hot, sticky cum into her mouth - and the most intense orgasm she'd ever experienced thundered through her body as she helplessly gulped down every last drop of his sour, sticky seed, even licking his cock clean.... the intense, incredible ecstasy started to fade almost the instant she released his cock, to be replaced by the growing desire. Now it wasn't quite as strong, the 'edge' taken off of it but it was still much too strong to fight...

"Who's next?" The new woman asked, hungrily, eyes burning with terrible desire as she looked around. She needn't have bothered - a line was already forming, a good dozen guys fighting not to stroke their now-hard cocks as she opened the zipper of the next guy in line...

Two thoughts occurred to the new woman as she wrapped her lips around the cock of her next 'client', feeling the pleasure begin anew. The first was the fact that, the way her 'need' felt, she'd have to suck cock at least two-dozen times a day about one an hour, or even more if she planned on sleeping.

For the rest of her life, she was going to be trapped into the life of a cum-hungry cock-slut, always sucking men off...

Even more horrifying to her mind, however, was the fact that, given the intense orgasmic pleasure she already felt building as the guys she was sucking neared orgasm...

...she might actually come to enjoy it...

Then the man came, filling her mouth with his disgustingly delicious cum, and all coherent thought vanished in that haze of pure pleasure.

As she licked his cock clean and pulled away, he gasped out a question that had been circling his mind. "Damn, girl - who the hell are you, anyway?"

The new woman's brain seemed to lock up, and she heard her voice answering the man. "I'm Staci Suck-Slut..." She heard herself say. "the Submissive Sex Slave."

Then she could say no more - for the next man was already unzipped and waiting, and Staci's hunger drove her to 'eagerly' wrap her lips around yet another hard, throbbing cock...

* * * * *

"So... where are we going ?" Jason asked, trying not to let his annoyance at the high-handed way she'd taken control of his prized Corvette sneak into his voice as she expertly navigated the sports car around a tight curve.

She looked at him with a mysterious, smoldering look. "You'll see "

Jason bit down on a sharp, annoyed comment - despite her 'dom-bitch' attitude, she was a hottie, and he was looking forward to gettin' some o' that...

Jason was more than a little surprised when Tonya pulled the vehicle to a stop on a side-street he recognized. In one of the more 'upscale' sections of town, it was the street on which one of Jason's 'acquaintances' lived - or rather, a 'cordial enemy', though Jason himself would never have even thought of such a term, much less used it. From the good-sized house they were parked in front of came the unmistakable sounds of a party, indicating that 'oh-so-fucking-smart' asshole Brandon was having another one of his frat-boy blow-outs while his parents were away for the weekend.

"What the hell are we doing here?" Jason asked Tonya, confused and annoyed.

Tonya laughed, a low - almost mocking - chuckle. "I hear that Brandon invited you to this party... to clean the pool."

Jason's jaw had tightened as he wondered how the hell Tonya knew about that. It was true - Jason made his 'spending cash' as a 'pool boy'... which also had the added advantage of meeting a lot of hot little honeys who had pools. Brandon's public 'invitation' still rankled on Jason's nerves, though. "Yeah, so?"

"So - what did you say?" Tonya asked, lips curled in that strange grin. "How, exactly, did you reply?"

Jason rolled his eyes. "Geez... I said something like 'Fuck you, Bradley, and all your asshole friends.' - or something."

Tonya laughed. "Well, that's why we're here."

The muscular, sandy-haired young man blinked. "Huh?" "To make good on your promise..." Tonya chuckled.

"What the hell are you talking..." Jason started to ask, in annoyance - then his eyes widened. "What the fuck...?"

It was a good question - as he found himself opening the door of his car and getting out. Which he hadn't planned to do. Which he didn't want to do.

Which, no matter how hard he struggled to control his body, he couldn't stop from doing.

"What the fuck is going on here...?" Jason shouted in mixed anger and fear as he closed the door to his car and turned away, towards the house. He struggled against it, trying to face Tonya to demand answers, but it was impossible.

"Good choice of words, honey..." Tonya laughed behind him, revving up the engine. "You enjoy yourself..."

Then he heard the car - his car! - screech away into the night...

...while he began to walk up the long driveway towards the good-sized house brightly lit from within.

"What the hell..." Jason gasped, struggling to stop his renegade body from walking forward - and finding it impossible to do so. Though his mind and thoughts were still his own, his body was being controlled as if he were a puppet, a marionette hung on unseen strings that moved his body without his conscious will or control.

Jason had a horrible feeling he knew who's will was driving him - Tonya.

The odd thing was, even though he was 'technically' right, he would have been shocked, amazed and horrified to discover that 'Tonya' was only an intermediary, as much a puppet herself as was he - but there was no way he could possibly know this as his body continued to walk towards the house...

...and began to change. Locked, as he was, into the voyage towards the house, he couldn't stop and take stock of all the changes happening to his body, his head fixed facing forward towards the front door that was drawing eve near. He could, however, feel the changes that were occurring to him even as he helplessly continued moving forward, the only effect the changes were having on his walk being the 'automatic' changes is stride and balance to take in to account the alterations of body and clothing.

From his point of view, the world seemed to suddenly began to stretch upwards - but it was an optical illusion, he knew with a sick feeling in his heart, because the truth was - he was shrinking, not only in stature, but in mass. He could feel his hard, lean body growing lighter, more supple and graceful, as the muscles he'd labored into toned perfection began to 'fade away'.

Some of the loss of height was 'regained' when he felt his heels being pushed upwards from beneath, his stride altering considerably to take in to account the certain type of balance needed to stay atop - gracefully atop - the high, slender heels his smaller feet were now balanced atop.

He could feel air moving across his legs as the cuffs of his jeans slid upwards on his legs, the very feel of the fabric altering as his altering legs were more and more exposed...

...even as he felt the strange sensation of his socks crawling up his now-hairless legs, the material growing lighter and finer as it raced upwards toward his thighs.

His hair was growing rapidly, tickling across the back of his neck, then something happened to it and it seemed to pull itself up on top of his head, styling itself into some sort of feminine hairdo even as he felt the contours of his face alter into something more appropriate for the new look - and gender - he was rapidly acquiring...

...or, perhaps already had, since she could no longer feel her old genitalia compressed in the tighter underwear that had replaced his usual boxers. Indeed, as she neared the door to the house, the changes slowed and came to a halt, and she knew that it was over - and the words Tonya had spoken had an all-new impact as she realized that she was, indeed, fully and completely female in body and appearance.

If there'd been the slightest doubt at all, it was cleared up by the reflection in the glass outer door of the house. Full length and slightly tinted, the darkness of the oak door behind turned the pane of glass into an ideal mirror, and Jason stared in shock and horror at what she'd become.

She was gorgeous. Shorter than she'd been as a man, she was about average for a woman - but that was about the only 'average' thing about her.

She was dressed almost entirely in black leather - yet it wasn't a 'cheap' look, as both the cut and design of the leather was expensive. She wore black leather shoes with gold accents, including the metal spike six-inch heels that pushed her feet upwards, further enhancing the supple, sensual contours of her long, toned legs beneath the black nylons she wore. These nylons disappeared under the hem of her skirt, which sat just above the knees. A rich, mellow leather with a fine, smooth grain, the skirt was contoured to her womanly hips and full ass, yet despite being tight and revealing wasn't 'cheap' or 'slutty', but sensually elegant.

A black silk shirt clung to her full, ripe bosom. Perhaps a firm D-cup, her breasts pressed into the silk material, which in turn was partially covered by the form-fitting, expensive, leather jacket with an open neck and a slender belt that cinched the shaped jacket tight to her narrow waist.

Her hair - now a rich golden blonde - was pulled up into an elaborate, stylish and very feminine hair style - and below that elaborate mane of gold lay a face that was stunningly beautiful in a very strong, self-confident way. From the top of her head to the tip of her toes, the new woman Jason had become radiated money, power and intelligence as well as sex-appeal, and she had that faint look of superiority that only the very wealthy could manage so perfectly.

Helplessly, Jason watched her long, carefully manicured finger reach out and press the door-bell...

...and the instant she heard the chime inside the door, was stunned and amazed to feel that strange outward 'control' of her body drop away, leaving her complete and utterly in control of her own body once more. So surprised was the new woman at the unexpected turn of events, she didn't have time to figure out what to do first with her new-found 'freedom'. Run away? Collapse into a ball and cry? Scream in horror and outrage...?

Before she could make up her mind, the door in front of her swung open, revealing Brandon. Dressed casually in tan slacks and a patterned, dark-green Golf shirt with dark-blue-and-tan cuffs and collars, he was the picture of a wealthy playboy, his body trim and his face handsome, his posture casual and confident...

...until he got a really good look at the gorgeous woman standing on his door-step, which was enough to crack his usual calm reserve. His eyes widened slightly, his posture tensed, and he looked her up and down with obvious appreciation...

...and the new woman Jason had become felt a strange sort of anger begin to rise in her at his obvious sexual interest in her new body. Sure, she understood why he was suddenly aroused by the sight of this gorgeous goddess standing on his doorstep - but inside this body was her original, male mind - and she found herself getting pissed off in a very strange way, a way that made her want to punish Brandon for getting turned on by her...

...even as she understood - and even agreed with - the fact that her body was incredibly sexy, enough to arouse a man's desires.

"Well, are you just going to stand there?" She asked, her anger coming out in her tight, controlled tone of voice. 'Or are you going to open the door and let me in... you useless, puling piece of shit."

Brandon blinked, face going slack with surprise - and she felt a burst of pleasure at his reaction. An incredibly powerful burst of pleasure.

Riding the crest of the pleasure, she spoke very clearly, separating each word and leaving them dripping with disgust. "Open... The... Door... Moron."

"Uh... I..." Brandon stammered, scrabbling for his customary calm arrogance as he all-but-threw the door open for her. Her every movement bespeaking her disgust and disdain for him, the new woman stepped into the house.

"Uh.... I'm, uh.. Brandon..." He managed to stammer out - then flinched as she turned her cold, arrogant gaze on him.

"I am Jasmine Von Mannheim..." She said, coldly, pulling the name out of the air without really thinking about it - which wasn't surprising, since she was awash in waves of pleasure at the power she'd suddenly discovered in this new body. She'd seen the truth in Brandon's reaction...

She could make men do anything. Anything at all she wanted. With just the right attitude, she could rule these guys like a goddess...

"...but you may call me 'Mistress Jasmine', you useless piece of slime." She said, arrogantly.

Brandon gasped - then reached for his own, natural arrogance. "Look, here 'Jasmine'. I don't know who you think you are " rage, red-hot an unreasoning, boiled up behind the new woman's eyes, and she reached out swiftly, grasping Brandon's semi-hard cock through the fabric of his pants and squeezing just hard enough to make him gasp.

"Listen, you piece of human swill " She ground out, eyes boring into his. "The only thing scum like you and your friends are useful for is to serve a woman like me. Personally, I don't think you've got what it takes to satisfy my sexual desires, but maybe you and all your useless, stupid friends put together might be enough to take the edge off of my appetites. Behave yourself, keep me happy, and I might just let you keep this probably-useless piece of anatomy that you probably actually believe is enough to satisfy a real woman "

She tightened her grip a little more, and finished with " understand?"

"Yes !" Brandon gasped - then when she tightened her grip to the point it was just shy of mortal agony, he added: " Mistress Jasmine."

She really didn't have any 'sexual appetites', at least not when it came to men - in fact, the thought of having sex with a man disgusted her...

...but the level of disgust she felt at the thought was well below the level of primal pleasure she was feeling at the complete control she had over Brandon, and sex was just another means of controlling him, of keeping him - and his asshole buddies - under her thumb.

Releasing Brandon's cock, she shoved him towards the door to the living room, where his buddies had begun to gather, staring in amazement at the tableaux in the doorway.

"Well - announce me, you little puke." She said, lip curled into a seer. Brandon cleared his throat, hesitating. Lust and pride battled inside him....

"Uh.... Mistress Jasmine Von Mannheim " He finally said, blushing brightly as his buddies snickered and nudged each other in the ribs.

With movements so fast it didn't seem possible, she stepped forward and back-handed the nearest snickerer across the face, the slap sounding like a rifle-shot in the sudden silence as the unfortunate man was knocked clean off his feet by the stunning force of her blow.

Putting her hands on her hips, Jasmine glared at the rest of the men, challenge in her ice-blue new eyes.

"Well?" She asked, loudly and powerfully. "Does anybody here think they're actually man enough to handle a real woman?"

"Damn straight !" One of them growled, a powerfully built black man who walked forward with challenge in every line of his body. She looked him up and down with disdain. "I doubt it..." She sneered. "Still Strip."

The guy hesitated for a second, looking around at the dozen or so of his buddies looking on then slowly began to undress.

"Undress me." She ordered to the room at large, spreading her arms and waiting calmly. After a second, two guys stepped forward and began to remove her clothes, everybody watching with interest as more and more of her incredibly toned, lithe, sensual body was revealed.

"Enough!" She ordered, clouting one of the guys upside the head. Now clad only in nylons and heels, she walked towards the now-nude black man with a feline stride - and pushed against his chest, sending him sprawling backwards onto the floor.

"Pay attention, and see what a real woman can do,..." Jasmine told the room at large as she took one step forward...

...and dropped down, perfectly impaling herself on the man's hard cock.

He gasped as her cunt slammed home over his shaft, and opened his mouth to say something...

...but never got the chance as she began to move atop him in a swaying, undulating - almost serpentine - manner, something none of these guys, no matter how sexually learned they were, had ever seen before.

The black man screamed out, suddenly - a sound of pure pleasure, as her body moved atop his in a way that created the utterly ideal level of friction and pressure on every single square millimeter of his cock, causing more intense, immediate and amazing pleasure he'd ever felt in his life...

...and it continued to increase from there.

For her part, Jasmine let her boredom show through as she used incredible skills she hadn't known she'd had to cause the man beneath her to feel the most mind-blowing sexual experience he'd ever had. She hid most - but not all - of the disgust she felt at having sex with another man, her lithe body shimmering and undulating atop him powerfully and skillfully.

The man beneath her was making loud, inarticulate sounds of mindless ecstasy, his body flopping and twitching with orgasmic pleasure like none he'd ever known, his brain completely overloaded with the pleasure he was feeling from the cool, unaffected woman who was riding him with obvious boredom...

...then he came. Longer, harder and more powerfully than he'd ever cum before - or known it was possible to do so...

He screamed, a long, intense, throat-grinding scream that was almost girlish in pitch and intensity as he arched backwards, overloaded with orgasmic pleasure.

The scream tapered off as the orgasm faded... and, completely drained, the black man passed out, eyes rolling back in his head as a huge, goofy grin remained etched on his face.

With obvious disdain, Jasmine lifted herself from the now-limp body beneath her.

"Not even close..." She said, causally - and kicked the senseless man in the side, something he was incapable of feeling.

The guys stared at her, then at the black man, who had obviously just experienced the most incredible orgasm in existence. Casually, Jasmine walked over to the couch and sat back in it, her body radiating control and power. Holding out one hand, she snapped her fingers.

"Cigarette." She ordered, and three different guys scrambled for their packs. The first one to get a cigarette out hurried over and bent down to hand it to her. She took it...

...then kicked upward, slamming her foot into his crotch. Letting out a high-pitched wheeze, the man's eyes widened as his knees crossed... and he toppled sidewise, laying on the floor curled around his damaged anatomy.

"Light." She commanded, calmly - and there was a short pause, the guys sharing hesitant looks...

...then one of the, nervously, stepped forward...

...and dropped to his knees in front of her, holding out his lighter.

"Yes, Mistress Jasmine..." He said, obviously waiting for whatever she was going to do...

Whatever they were expecting, it wasn't what she did. After all, they couldn't know of the orgasmic pleasure that thundered through Jasmine's body at the man's submissive display. So, all were stunned when her lips curved into a sensual, feline smile of pleasure and she spoke in a voice thick with sensual desire.

"Hmmm... at last..." She said, sensually. "A man who isn't completely useless "

Leaning forward, she touch the end of her cigarette to the flame, inhaling deeply as the man let the flame die...

... then she leaned even farther forward, wrapped the other hand around his head, and pulled his face to hers, their lips meeting hard and fast...

The kiss she gave him was so unbelievably intense that it was almost as good as having sex with any other woman would have been. The man's body twitched and shimmied as he made noises of pleasure in the back of his throat as her incredible mobile, skilled lips and tongue gave him pleasure he never knew a kiss could provide.

Finally, she broke the kiss. "What's your name, my pet ?" She murmured in a voice thick with approval and sensuality.

"T.. Tom " The recipient of that unbelievable kiss managed to stammer out.

"Very well, Tom " She said, her voice now sliding back towards arrogance. "As a reward for your showing the proper obedience and respect, you may fondle and suck my breasts for the next ten minutes."

Tom blinked. "Uh... yes, Mistress. Thank you, mistress "

The others might have thought her quick, faint moan was from sexual pleasure as Tom threw himself into his 'reward' - but it wasn't. A man's touch would never give her pleasure, at least not sexually. No the pleasure was from being obeyed, immediately and unquestioningly.

"A martini." She ordered, not directing it to anybody in particular. "Very dry, with an olive."

Every single one of the still-standing men dived for the bar without the slightest hesitation and her body thrummed with pure pleasure at the control and power she held over these pathetic men. She chuckled, low in her throat, a sound full of power and pleasure.

Perhaps she'd ordered them the clean the pool after she got her drink. They wouldn't understand the joke... but the fact that they'd obey her, anyway, made it all the more delicious...

* * * * *

"Oh, man..." Barry whispered, stroking his rock-hard cock through his pants as he watched the gorgeous blonde on screen chuckle.

He'd never told anybody about his 'guilty pleasure'. For some reason, movies that featured guys being turned into women really, really turned him on. He felt really guilty about it, because he thought it was 'gay', somehow, but consoled himself with the thought that it wasn't like he wanted to have sex with guys or be a woman - it was the thought of other guys forcibly being turned into women that got him off...

Then Barry made a mistake, though he had no idea he was doing so. Feeling guilty about being turned on, even though all the sex scenes feature 'women', not anything 'gay' other than by mental connection in his mind, he stopped fondling himself and got up to get a beer from the fridge to give himself time to 'cool down', even as the movie continued to run on the screen behind him. He was completely unaware of the fact that his eyes faded back to their normal color as he left the room...

On the screen behind him, the scene shifted...

* * * * *

The two cars sped down the empty road, side by side. A Corvette, painted red, and a blue Cobra, each driven by a woman who was powerful-yet-sexy...

Suddenly, a green glow grew to surround the two vehicles, which began to glide towards each other. Instead of the sound of rending metal, however, there was an odd, 'slurping' sound as the cars 'touched'...

...and slid into each other, merging...

Now one vehicle was driving down the darkened road. Of a make and model never before existing, the dark purple vehicle was low and wide and powerful in a feline way. Behind the wheel was a woman - a woman with long, wavy dark-brown hair. A woman who was heavily muscled yet utterly feminine, with large, firm breasts and long, sexy legs. A woman who was commanding, powerful, sensual and sexual.

A woman who was nearly seven feet tall, with the cool, powerful features of a Goddess on her dusky, full-lipped face. Her eyes - a deep, eerie green - almost glowed with a mysterious inner light as she turned the steering wheel of the low-slung car and sent it heading towards a certain bungalow on the outskirts of town...

* * * * *

Having also taken a bathroom break - while he was up - Barry headed back towards the living room, nearly empty beer in hand. He was about to settle back into the chair... when he blinked at what was on the screen.

It was an image of him, beer in hand, about to settle into the chair, eyes riveted on the screen. "What the hell...?" Came from his own mouth and, simultaneously, from the speakers on the TV...

...when, suddenly, the front door of his house slammed open, a cool breeze carrying with it a rich, feminine odor swirling into the room. Barry straightened, whiling around to stare at the doorway...

..as the most incredible woman he'd eve laid eye on stepped into the room.

She was gigantic. She was tall, nearly brushing the ceiling in the high-heeled boots she wore, and her body was massively muscled - yet she was definitely, almost defiantly - feminine, her lithe, powerful body radiating sensuality as she strode towards him. Her clothing, at first glance, appeared to be black leather - yet the highlights were as if every source of light in the room was a dark, deep red. In stark contrast to this were her eyes, a deep, emerald green that was easy to see no matter how shadowed her eyes sockets were, as if they glowed with their own inner light that somehow didn't cast any brilliance.

"Who.. who are you...?" Barry stammered, feeling lust rise unbidden to match the startle fear he felt from this powerful woman's entry into his home.

"I am Loki." She said, her rich contralto voice commanding and sensual. "Or, at least, the current incarnation of Loki. You, Barry, have chosen for me the form, powers and limitations I shall have in this current existence."

"I... I don't understand." Barry stammered, not even noticing as his beer dropped from suddenly limp fingers.

"You found my box." Loki said. "Through your mind, through your twisted desires and fears, you have created this version of me and defined my powers through that..." She pointed one finger at the movie on the screen... and then grinned, a mysterious, frightening expression.

"You could have been the current incarnation, yourself." She said in a low, mocking tone, taking more steps towards Barry, who instinctively tried to back away - only to bump into the wall behind him. He swallowed, nervously.

"If you hadn't let guilty cause you to turn away, you could have been a god." Loki said. "One without the limitations I have in this form, defined by your mind. I am but a weak impression of Loki... except in the area you have define. As this incarnation.... I think I shall use the name 'Lucy' for it... I am bound by what you created..."

"I... I..." Barry stammered, then swallowed, thickly. "What... what are you... doing here..."

"Since you failed the test of Loki's box..." Lucy said, the strange grin widening, "I must be limited in powers - and, so, my powers come only through the 'movie' you have trapped me in. For me to be able to exist, even in this limited form, the movie must be completed... which means that you, yourself, must 'finish' the film."

"Wh... what?" Barry stammered, trying - impossibly - to back right through the wall. "How?"

Loki - Lucy - laughed. "Well, Mortal, how can this movie end? Either you must 'win', as the hero, or I must win, as the villain." She leered. "Tell me, mortal - do you have some secret, the 'dues ex machina' that will let you conquer me, banish me as I've been banished before?"

"no..." Barry squeaked.

She laughed. "I know." then she pointed a finger at him, and when she spoke it was in a voice that thundered, shaking the walls of the room.

"And Thus I win!" She thundered... and green energy crackled and spat around Barry...

...who screamed, once, as his clothes burst apart, the body beneath writhing and changing... Then the huge-breasted blonde woman he'd become vanished...

On the TV, the Image of Lucy laughed, deep and long, as the camera panned over to show a TV... and the image on the TV was that of the huge-breasted woman Barry had become, now clad in an outfit that practically shouted 'whore', from the red platform heels and matching skirt and bustier to the black fishnet stockings. In a dark alley, she looked around with obvious horror on her face...

...and then a couple of men stepped out of a door, talking about the sexy strippers they'd just seen. Through the door, the interior of what was obviously a strip club was momentarily visible...

Then the camera was back on the new woman in the alley, her face going into an expression of horrified realization... then slipping into a vapid, blank smile as she spoke in a high-pitched, vapid voice.

"Hi, I'm Bambi Bangalot!" She said, with a giggle, jiggling and swaying towards the guys. "You guys wanna have some fun...?"

Laughing still, Lucy watched the ex-man helplessly seduce the guys into using her 'services'... then the current incarnation Of Loki turned into a green mist that flowed into the VCR, and the video tape within...

The scene faded - to be replaced with an image of a video store. With a slow rolling pan, the camera slowly 'rolled forward' inside the store, finally coming to rest on a movie box sitting in the 'Horror' section...

* * * * *

"Yo, Steve... You home...?" Mark called, rather unnecessarily, as he pulled open the open screen door of his best friend's apartment on the top floor of a converted Victorian home.

"In here, man." Steve's voice said, guiding Mark into the living room. Steve grinned from where he sat in front of the TV. "Pull up a chair, buddy."

Mark dropped into the seat next to his friend and glanced at the screen, which was showing the familiar 'Video Piracy Warning'.

"What movie'jya rent?" Mark asked, and by way of answer Steve flipped the empty box he was holding into Mark's lap. Just as the movie began, Mark looked down at the box laying on his lap...

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: Running from the law, one man is exposed to a chemical substance in a warehouse and is turned into a big bosomed blonde. But even as a woman, she can't stay out of trouble.

Brand On The Run

By Gunslinger

AUTHOR'S NOTE: Actually, this is more in the way of a warning. This story contains violence, considerably more than I usually allow in a story. Those of you who wish to avoid reading such a story should stop now. The rest of you - enjoy!

'Might makes right.'

It was a phrase that loomed large in Elmore Brand's view of the world. He'd first heard the phrase six days after his eighteenth birthday, and it had come out of the mouth of a police officer who was busy trying to cram the six-foot-ten, two-ninety-seven pound mass of ebony muscle into the back of a squad car. The cop had been trying to explain why that phrase wasn't true, but Brand (nobody called him 'Elmore' - at least, not more than once) hadn't really been listening to what the cop was saying. ('The crap flowin' from the pig's cakehole' was how Brand phrased it, when he bothered talking about it to any of his long list of temporary cell-mates.) The phrase itself, however, had stuck in Brand's mind which, in itself, was something of a minor miracle, since Elmore Woodland Brand of Fuller's Grove, Looo-easy-ana wasn't exactly renown for his capability to retain information, one of the reasons he'd dropped out of eighth grade when he was fifteen.

Had he'd ever heard the phrase 'the ends justify the means', he would have agreed with that sentiment, as well - if he'd been able to comprehend it. Comprehension was also something Brand didn't exactly excel in. The ballistic arc of a .38 caliber bullet fired from a hair-trigger Saturday Night Special was about the limit of his intellectual comprehension, and even that knowledge was gained through direct experimentation rather than 'book learning'.

Of course, the downside to relying on his might was the fact that it most often got him into trouble - a little fact that hadn't quite registered on Brand yet, cause-and-effect being a little too far outside his intellectual capabilities. For the most part, people took one look at the hulking, broken-nosed, shaved-head mass of muscle and gave him whatever he wanted. Just like the joke about the six- hundred-pound-gorilla, the massive black man could sleep 'wherever he wants'...

...unless, of course, he was locked up in jail for his latest offense. Brand wasn't a big fan of jail, but the thought of not committing crimes didn't occur to him. Instead, he always worried about how to get out of jail only after he was in jail.

Most of the time, it was a wasted exercise. Not always, though.

Which was why the supposed-to-be-quiet late summer night was broken with the not-quite-distant- enough howl of sirens, and the roaring clatter of the police helicopter that was circling above the industrial section down near the river, it's 100,000 candle-power SunLite washing over the area with it's actinic blue-white glow. The blue-white cone hadn't yet centered on Brand's body, mainly because he was running fast, naked...

...and scared. It was a new feeling to the big man, and he didn't like it much. As he gasped and panted, slogging his way through stagnant, foul, knee-high water near the river, he was also cursing under his breath, his rumbling muttering sounding like a poorly tuned diesel engine. When he'd seen his chance to escape from the County lockup, he'd taken it - and it wasn't until what seemed to be the entire local and state police forces turned out in a massive manhunt did he realize that killing those two cops might not have been such a good idea. Not that he blamed himself, of course - he never did. Still, the dumb pigs should have given up when he grabbed them, rather than going for their guns one of which was now clamped firmly in his right fist, it's twin lost while scaling a fence. Once free of the facility itself, Brand had taken one look at the coal-black night, the storm-clouds hiding any chance of moonlight, and had quickly stripped out of the bright orange jumpsuit and white underwear the State had so thoughtfully provided. It was good enough to give him a head-start on the cops, his midnight-black skin blending into the darkness... but it was a temporary measure, at best, and he needed to find some shelter, clothes, money and transportation in order to make good his escape.

The fact that, even when fully dressed, he hardly 'blended in' didn't quite occur to Brand. Every time he was arrested, he assumed that it was through some sort of fancy scientific police work. The idea that a six-ten, two-ninety black man with a large, much-broken nose and shaved head wasn't hard to identify had never really registered on our boy Elmore.

Wading through the thick, sludge-like mud on the edge of the swampy area, Brand picked up speed through the scrubby undergrowth as he headed towards the only building near the river - a squat, functional-looking brick building whose sole adornment was the metal door breaking up its otherwise featureless brick exterior. Brand had no idea what the building was, or what its purpose was - he just hoped he could find something useful inside. The cops were drawing awfully close, and he knew that and bridle over the fast-flowing river would probably already be barricaded - and since he didn't know how to swim, he needed some way to either cross the river or otherwise avoid the manhunt.

Reaching the building, he tried the handle of the heavy metal door - and found it locked. Brand cursed, viscously, then kicked the door out of anger...

...which really wasn't a good idea, since he was barefoot. Holding his injured foot, Brand hopped around in a circle, yelling and cursing, until his balance failed him and he went sprawling on his ass.

Furious, he reacted instinctively, not even thinking about the consequences as he pointed the gun he held at the offending door and pulled the trigger. To his dark-adapted eyes, the muzzle-flash seemed as bright as day, and the flat, heavy 'crack' of each round rolled out across the flood-plain...

...to be lost in the awesome explosion of fury as the heavens above let loose, a blast of thunder accompanying the sudden deluge that poured from the sky.

Having emptied the last four rounds in the gun, Brand negligently tossed it aside and pulled himself upright, limping and muttering as the rain sluiced down with fury and power, the sky now rent by veritable cannonades of thunder and lightning. Out of pure luck - he hadn't been aiming - one of the rounds had smashed through the lock-plate, and the door swung open at Brand's touch.

Stepping inside, Brand shoved the door shut behind him - which didn't do much good, as the rapidly rising storm was gathering power as it lashed the landscape, and the rising wind shoved the door open again, the gust carrying in a deluge of heavy, cold rain as well as the blue-white glare of a lightning bolt, the attendant thunder nearly overlapping the sharp-edged flash of electricity.

Under Brand's feet, the concrete floor of the building trembled as the all-encompassing roar of thunder shook the land.

Brand ignored it, straining his eyes to determine where he was - and his thick, slab-like lips compressed in frustration as he discovered the building was some sort of 'inspection' point. A huge, heavy metal pipe rose out of the earth at one end of the building, sinking back into the earth at the opposite end. Centered in the upraised section of six-foot-diameter pipe was a large inspection hatch.

Cursing, Brand turned to leave the austere building...

...then quickly stepped back from the door, his heart increasing it's rhythm at the sight of two four- wheel drive State Police Jeeps moving across the plains, the spotlights mounted on the driver's side of each vehicle probing across the flood-plain. With the thunderstorm, visibility was cut - but not enough for Brand to slip between the vehicles unseen.

Spinning, Brand glared at the building's Spartan interior, damning it for not having another exit...

...and then he realized that it did - sort of. His flat, cold eyes turned to the hatch on the pipe, and he strode over to it quickly, the heavy slabs of muscle in his legs working easily as he covered the short distance.

The hand-wheel on the top of the hatch was stiff, but Brand's massive arms, as thick around as most men's thighs, had no trouble getting the resisting hand-wheel to spin. He hauled back on the hatch...

...and staggered back as a rich, thick stench flowed out of the pipe. It wasn't a foul stench, but a ripe, acidic one that reminded him vaguely of the industrial-strength cleaning supplied used in government- run institutions.

Backing away from the pipe, he glanced out the door - and pulled back immediately. The vehicles had homed in on the sole building on the rain-swept flood-plain, and were approaching as quickly as the treacherous, muddy terrain would allow.

Cursing at the top of his lungs, Bran hurried forward. Vaguely, he realized that the pipe had to go somewhere, though he didn't really consider all the possible outcomes to entering the pipe. All he knew was that, if he were caught, he'd be spending a lot of time in a maximum-security prison.

Taking a deep, deep breath, he clamped his lips closed, his flat, mashed nose wrinkling in disgust as he forced himself to slide, head-first, into the fast-flowing liquid that thrummed through the pipe.

It wasn't so deep that he couldn't lift his head above the liquid, though sudden gushes washed over him unexpectedly. Letting the current of the greenish-brown liquid help him along, Brand dragged himself down the pipe, struggling to hold his breath as long as possible. Only when star-bursts of oxygen-deprivation began to flash in his vision did he expel the pent-up air in his prodigious lungs and gaspingly inhale...

...which set off a coughing fit, the chemical-laden air burning it's way down into his lungs. His eyes watered, but there was enough oxygen in the fume-laden mix to keep him going, and he pushed grimly onward.

He lost all track of time. The darkness in the pipe quickly became total, and he dragged himself through it, struggling to catch his breath as the liquid flowed under, around and over him. The smell began to bother him as he slowly got used to it, but it felt like he'd just sprinted flat-out for all he was worth - his lungs were burning, and it was difficult to breathe in other than a rapid pant. On more than one occasion the liquid surged at a bad time, and he ended up spluttering and gasping as he involuntarily swallowed some of it, and he began to worry that it was poisonous - but it was too late to turn back, and there was nothing else to do but push blindly onwards, hoping that the chemical that had splashed up into his eyes now and again wasn't going to make the darkness permanent.

After what seemed an eternity, Brand's thick, moisture-wrinkled finger's brushed across a metal object thrust out of the side of the pipe. The liquid was cool and his fingers were nearly numb, but basic animal instinct caused him to grip the object tightly even before his brain really registered its presence. Thrashing and flailing with his other arm, he discovered that the top of the pipe rose up above him at that point, and he painfully hauled himself around, his heavy, thick body ill-suited to the confined space in which he was trying to maneuver. It would have been different had he let go of the rung, but he didn't want to risk losing it in the darkness.

Grimly, he managed to haul himself into the open space above him, feeling it press in on his wide shoulders as she dragged himself upright. Fumbling around above him, he discovered another rung, and he began to haul himself up a vertical pipe that was just barely wide enough to admit his bulky, wide-shouldered body.

He stopped only when his head slapped hard against a metal outcropping above, drawing another oath from him. Braced within the confines of the tube, he found it difficult to get his hands up above shoulder height, but finally managed to do so at the cost of some skin scrapped raw on the rung.

Grasping the rubber-coated dog-latches above him, he muscled them aside and heaved, feeling the cover fly open.

Then, gasping, he hauled himself out of the stinking pipe-line, slithering over the lip of the hatch and slamming it shut behind him as he drew great, wracking breaths of fresh, clean air into his abused lungs. The air itself was somewhat musty, but it tasted fresher and cleaner than any breath he'd ever drawn as he lay in a puddle of chemical that dripped and sluiced from his body.

Though he wasn't yet aware of the fact, Brand was laying in the back room of an old factory that had been remolded and turned into a community playhouse. The windows, high in the wall, admitted the thin, grayish light of early morning, further diffused by the lingering clouds from last night's storm.

Compared to the pure, unrelieved darkness of the past several hours, however, it seemed spot-light bright to Brand's dark-adapted eyes, and he could see perfectly well.

For the first few seconds, however, he refused to accept what his eyes were seeing. It wasn't willful disbelief, as he looked at his outstretched arm, but a lack of comprehension that made his mind insist that he couldn't be seeing what he thought he was.

Then it registered on his brain that everything else around his arm was being seen correctly, which meant that...

"Fuckin' shit!" Brand swore, sitting bolt upright and looking at his arms and legs in shock. "I'se a honky!"

He gasped in shock at his smooth, denuded flesh. Like many black men, Brand had never had very thick body hair, but what he did have was now gone - but that was the least of his worries, as he was busy staring at flesh that now looked like that of a Caucasian with a good, burned-in tan.

"Damn fuckin' chemicals bleached me!" He shouted as he continued to stare at his arms and hands. There was no denying the fact that he was, indeed, many shades lighter than the rich coffee color he'd always been. The 'cleaning' smell had triggered the connection in his mind to bleach - which, for his limited intellect, was the equivalent to a burst of genius from anybody else.

Amazingly, another bright thought crowded in on the heels of the last.

"Hey - maybe this ain't so bad..." He muttered to himself, his thick lips pulling back and up in what he used for a smile. "Th' pigs is lookin' for a brother, not a white dude. Maybe this'll be a good disguise- like thing..."

Reassured by the thought, he climbed to his feet...

...then cried out, tumbling forward painfully as he tried to stand. Cursing, he dragged his legs around to get a good look at his feet, wondering why the hell they'd hurt so much when he'd tried to stand.

He had his answer almost instantly. His feet were cramped into an odd position, each one over- curved along the inside of the arch. He'd once had something like this happen in one foot, when for some strange reason his big toe had 'locked' when it had been pushed on tip-toe. The problem was, this was happening to both feet, and all ten toes - as if the muscles had tightened or something.

Cursing to himself, he began to massage his feet, trying to loosen the muscles - without much success.

Oddly enough, he'd had the funny feeling that his feet had looked smaller than usual. It had been a strange idea, one that might have come around because he wasn't used to seeing his feet such a light shade - but he was able to dismiss the thought, since his feet were roughly the right size in proportion to his hands.

It never even occurred to him to wonder if his hands were smaller - and why should it? After all, they were in the correct proportion to his wrists, and any discrepancy could be put down to the fact that he wasn't used to seeing himself with that particular shade of skin, which threw off his perceptions.

No matter how hard he tried, he couldn't get the muscles in his feet to unlock. He could stand without much pain if he stood tip-toe, or just on his heels, but when he tried to stand flat-foot, pain lanced through the center of each foot. Cursing and swearing vehemently, he thumbed around awkwardly on the heel of one foot and the toes of the other, occasional switching to keep from overexerting calf muscles not used to the strain of the awkward position.

Grabbing a large cloth object from a stand, Brand towed off with it as best he could, since the rough fabric didn't absorb water all that well. It wasn't surprising that the replica Musketeer's cloak he'd picked wasn't the best selection, but Brand didn't realize what it was - and even if he'd been told, he would have been confused. Brand thought the Three Musketeers was only a chocolate bar...

Dropping the sodden blue cloak on the floor, Brand looked around for something to wear. He'd just begun flipping through the racks of costumes when he suddenly began to feel nauseous.

The entire time he'd been making his way through the pipes, his lungs had felt like they were burning, struggling desperately to extract the little oxygen the fume-laden air-mix contained. When he'd first emerged, the air had tasted crisp and clean and sweat. Now, it felt ice-cold and almost liquid as he found himself breathing heavily. The sensation actually brought back memories for Brand, the closest thing to fond memories he had - memories of the thick, muggy air of a still summer afternoon in the bayou, the air so thick you could almost cut it with a knife. Aside from the fact that it was cold rather than warm, that's what the suddenly 'thick' air reminded him of - though the attendant stomach cramps reminded him more of the flu than the bayou.

Sweat popped out on his brow and began to roll down his forehead, dripping into his eyes and making him blink rapidly. For the first few seconds, he tried to stand upright under the assault, but the stomach pains grew worse and he hunched over against them.

Then the cramping seemed to spread. Though the sensations were subtly different in different areas of his body, the over-all sensation was that of muscles tightening and releasing spasmodically, without conscious control. Dull, thick pain began to radiate from his body in asynchronous waves, the discordant rhythm of the waves of pain keeping them from blending in to each other, which would actually have been more bearable. As it was, he barely had time to brace himself against the pain in, say, his face - and then it would become stronger in his crotch, or his chest, as the out-of-sync cycles pulled his attention from one body part to another.

Gasping, Brand forced himself to stand as upright as possible, shifting his weight to the toes of both his feet because his slightly hunched posture made balancing on his heels impossible. His eyes had begun to water fiercely, and no matter how much he blinked all he could see was smears of shape and color, his moisture-coated eyes unable to focus properly between his rapid blinks. He began to shiver, though it wasn't from cold - in fact, he felt warm, warmer than he should have considering he was naked.

Blindly, painfully, he began to grope through the clothes. Though he was a big man, a tough man, he was beginning to feel the first stirrings of panic at the thought that he'd swallowed enough of whatever that damned chemical was to poison him. He needed to go see a doctor, and not one of those back-alley quacks you went to if you got shot on a heist. He needed a real doctor, in a clean hospital - or, at the very least, one of those walk-in clinics.

Usually, Brand wouldn't have risked it, not while on the run - but he was scared, and besides which, his skin was bleached and maybe he wouldn't get recognized. One thing was for damned sure - he had to put something - anything - on before going looking for help, or he'd get arrested for indecent exposure, recognized or not. If that happened, he'd be fingerprinted - and then he'd be right back where he started.

Moving like a ninety-year-old man with acute arthritis and astigmatism, Brand groped blindly for something to wear, unable to see what it was he was pawing through. Desperately, he tried to guess what each item was by its feel, and then simply tried to get it on. He didn't care if he ended up grabbing another cloth thing like the one he'd used to towel off - he could use it to cover his body, and if looked weird or outlandish, he couldn't care less. As long as it covered enough of him to keep the cops from picking him up, it would be good enough for him...

Something beige-ish swam in his vision as he brought it close to his watering, poorly-focused eyes. He'd at first thought they were tan trousers, maybe part of a British-Army-style uniform, but under his fingers it felt wrong, too soft and... furry? Not quite, but he wasn't sure how to categorize the sensation. All he knew was that it felt like a pair of pants and it was made of a fairly stretchy material - one that managed to stretch enough to allow him to pull them on. Having them in place, he didn't care what they looked like, since they did the job of making him 'decent' - even if it was indecently decent, considering how tightly they molded themselves to his body, especially his crotch.

He paused. Could you be picked up for indecent exposure just from having your 'package' too prominently displayed? He never considered the question before, and he really wasn't sure - his grasp on the law was pretty slim, since he more or less didn't give a shit. Still, now he had to be more careful. He wasn't sure what was happening to him, why his body was racked with waves of pain, but he was guessing that he'd been poisoned by whatever was in the pipe he'd crawled through. He knew, as a 'cop killer', if he were caught the best he could hope for was in-prison medical facilities, and from the prison-yard fights he'd been in, he knew how poor such facilities were, and so there wasn't even any help to be had from there.

To be on the safe side, he forced his twitching, pain-wracked fingers inside the tight crotch of the pants, tucking his cock back and between his legs, ensuring that he couldn't get charged for 'weenie-wagging'.

With his body still wracked by waves of pain, he forced himself to look for a shirt that would fit. His fingers met something that felt like a 'wife-beater' tank-style undershirt, and he grabbed it and pulled it on - only to find the lighter-and-softer-than-expected material only fell to just above his belly-button.

Well, it was good enough, he figured. He started to stumble away from the racks of costumes, planning to head out in search of medical assistance - when he almost stumbled over something, one foot coming down on the edge of something. Fumbling around with his toes, he managed to identify the unseen object as a shoe - being all the way down near his feet, it was too badly out-of-focus to even identify the color, much less the style or design. He did, however, discover that his toes were facing the right way to slide in, so he gave it a shot - and was amazed to find that his foot managed to fit into the shoe, even if it was on the tight side. More than that, he could put his weight on that foot. It felt strange, awkward - but he figured it was part of whatever was making it painful to stand flat-footed in his bare feet. All he knew was that there was no pain accompanying the awkwardness of standing in the shoe, even if it did seem considerably harder to maintain his balance.

Fumbling around with his other foot, he found another shoe beside the first. Hoping it was the mate to the one he was already wearing, he stepped into it - and was pleased to find it fit in the same slightly- tight manner of the other one, which meant it was probably the matching shoe. Not that he would have been all that upset if it had been completely different - just as long as it fit well enough, and relieved the pain.

Which it did.

Moving slowly and carefully, partly because of his awkward balance and partly from the pain and semi-blindness, Brand headed away from the clothing racks in a straight line, hands outstretched ahead of him in his awkward bent stance as he searched for the wall. When his fingers finally encountered it, he began to make his way to the right, hoping to stumble across a door. With every step he took, he struggled to maintain his balance, and he cursed under his breath. Not that he was trying to be quiet - he'd discovered that his throat felt raw and dry, and his voice couldn't go above a soft whisper at the moment, at least not without jagged sheets of pain ripping through his throat.

Finally, after what seemed an eternity, Brand's questing fingers meet something that certainly felt like a door - though the handle of it seemed unusually large, since his had usually completely enveloped door handles, while this one was a bit of a stretch, size-wise, for his hands, and his finger0nails being so long didn't really help. Annoyed, he opened the door - and winced as the morning sunlight hit his watering, gritty-feeling eyes. A gust of cool wind, a left-over from last night's weather front, gusted over him and ruffled his hair. With another muttered curse, he flipped the hair out of his face, wincing again as his long nail slipped across his scalp. He'd have to be more careful, especially since his body felt so weak and poorly coordinated. He could have poked an eye out...

Now, nobody would ever claim brand was a genius. Indeed, somebody had once characterized him by claiming that when you said 'hello' to Brand, it took him the better part of a day to think of a response. While he wasn't quite that bad, he wasn't exactly a genius - but certain things did sink in, sooner or later...

"Hair?" He shouted, stunned, ignoring the pain that shot through his throat at raising his voice. "Nails?"

It took a couple of more seconds for him to realize that his raised voice sounded distinctly odd - too high-pitched and 'mellow'. It even felt strange, not the chest-vibrating rumble he was used to feeling when he spoke, but a more in-the-throat trilling, something he definitely wasn't used to.

Wondering what the hell was happening, he let his fingers carefully quest over his head as he slowly picked his way forward, keeping ears open for signs of people or traffic - being half-blind, he didn't want to stumble out onto the street and get blind-sided by a bus or something. It was hard to concentrate on basic survival skills, however, as he was distracted by the feel of long, silky hair between his fingers. Now he realized that there'd been an itching sensation on his scalp the whole time, and even a tickling sensation as his now mid-back length hair had rubbed across his shoulders and neck. However, with other things taking up his limited attention, he hadn't really noticed that sensation any more than he'd noticed the odd weight on his chest, or the strange sensations he'd felt as he'd pulled on the shirt, sensations that were even more pronounced now...

He frowned, wondering about those sensations, now that he was thinking about it - but before it could occur him to try and figure out what was causing those strange sensations, another thought intruded on his mind - the reason why he was noticing these - and other - sensations was because of the fact that the pain was slowly fading away, his vision clearing as he slowly straightened. Whatever the strange 'attack' that had hit him was, it seemed to be tapering off.

With a deep breath, Bran let himself relax slightly and he just blanked his mind, something that was easy enough for him to do. To anybody walking by, he would have presented an odd sight, standing stock-still with his eyes unfocused and gazing off into the distance as he waited for the last vestiges of pain to fade away.

When they finally did so, he took another deep breath and stirred to life, his mind now turning towards what had happened to him, and the root cause of all the strange new sensations he was experiencing. He tucked his chin in, looking down at his chest...

...oh, that explained it. The sensation came from his large, firm tits, which were straining the filmy white tank-top he was wearing to the bursting point. The actually looked quite good, their large, thick nipples poking impudently through the semi-opaque material of his shirt, the low neckline displaying bounteous creamy-white globes and delicious cleavage....

Then his laggard brain finally realized that him sporting a pair of tits that would have done any 'honkey stripper' proud wasn't exactly normal.

"Holy shit!" HE shouted, his voice no longer jagged with pain - but still too high and trilling for what should have been a big black man's voice. Indeed, it was one that seemed more suited to a white woman - perhaps one who sported a great rack like the one that thrust so firmly from his smaller ribcage, just above his slender waist - which, of course, looked all the more slender compared to his womanly hips...

It was right about here that certain things began to connect, and a dreadful thought began to form. In 'real life', this process took about three minutes, a near eternity for most people, considering how fast the average person's mind worked. For Brand, it was considerably slower than the 'instinctive' reactions used during a job, but considerably faster than his usual intellectual processes. In any case, the first appearance of that thought wormed its way into his mind, and being who he was, Brand wasn't intellectually prepared to simply ignore a thought because it offended him or didn't fit into his current 'world-view'. For him, thoughts of such clear, logical procession were rare enough that he'd never gotten into the habit of letting his own personal wants or feelings to cloud them - something that this dull criminal could actually claim as being superior to the rest of self-deluding humanity, except for the fact he didn't realize how unique and special it was. As the case may be, the thought made itself known - and Brand muttered in, numbly.

"I bin turned into a white chick with big hooters..." She said, staring down at her cleavage, then shifting her gaze to her lightly-muscled, smoothly feminine arms and the long-nailed fingers that graced her slender new hands. From there, she let her gaze drop to the white pumps she'd unknowingly 'chosen' to wear, their four-inch heels suddenly explaining why she'd found it awkward to balance comfortably.

To somebody on the outside, looking in on Brand, his/her reaction would have confused the hell out of that person - because Brand, who had been near panic from the direct effects of the chemical, now relaxed upon discovering what the final result was.

Brand wasn't exactly happy about finding herself to be female. However, she didn't react by panicking, but with a sort of resigned annoyance. Indeed, in her mind, the thought that formed was: 'Fuck, why a white chick? Anything else would have been better...'

In Brand's rather limited view of the world, being a white woman with big tits was a temporary and annoying situation. His grasp on what was and what was not possible to medical science was very limited. As far as he was concerned, all he had to do was go to the hospital; and get a doctor to give him an 'antidote' to the chemical that had caused this, and then he'd be back to his normal self.

Then, blinking, something occurred to Brand. Since this was only temporary, it was nothing to worry about - and it was one hell of a disguise...

"Fuck, yeah." She grunted in her soft new contralto. "Alls I gotta do is act like some white bitch with big hooters would, and nobody would know it's me. I can go down to Mexico, where the cops can't touch me, then get some doctor to change me back."

Which meant that she needed some cash to get her down to Mexico. Not that she particularly wanted to live in Mexico, it was just that she had a faint grasp on the concept that the American cops couldn't arrest her and throw her back in prison. So, it's something she had to do - and, right now, being a woman made it more likely that she could get there without being caught, so it was sort of a good thing, a 'disguise'. All she had to do was go get some money - and though Brand didn't have a bank account, she did know where some of the money she'd managed to steal was stashed away, so that's where she had to go first.

Having made a rudimentary plan - which was about as thorough as she ever got when she planned, she being very big on the concept of 'winging it' - she went ahead and set it in motion by the simple act of looking around to try and figure out where the hell she was, so that she could figure out how to get to where she was going from here.

She didn't know exactly where she was, but she had a rough idea of what part of the city she was in, so she picked the direction that looked the most likely to lead her to a major street and began walking.

She was wearing women's shoes with high, slender heels, something she hadn't exactly practiced doing - but, aside from feeling awkward, she was reasonably competent in the heels simply because of the way her feet were now shaped, making the slope of the shoes comfortable to her feet. Though it might have felt awkward to walk in high-heels, requiring a little more concentration than just walking barefoot with her old feet would have needed, to somebody watching her walk she would have seemed competent and comfortable in her high heels - even if her stride was somewhat long and 'mannish' rather than smooth and graceful. Oddly enough, though, it didn't look too out of place with her new body.

Though definitely feminine, Brand's new body wasn't fashion-model slender, but rather athletically built, with firm - yet feminine - muscle moving smoothly beneath the extra layer of feminine padding she now boated. Long, silky golden-blonde hair framed a face whose squarish jaw and somewhat large, proud nose gave her a strong, almost arrogant look. She didn't look 'masculine'; indeed, she was quite attractively feminine - in an 'aggressively' slutty way. Though Brand wasn't aware of the fact, his new body would remind many guys of the type of 'cheap and easy' woman who had grown up as a tomboy, her 'popularity' with the guys coming from the fact that she was ultra-eager to give sexual favors in return for attention. Even her melon-sized breasts fit in with that scenario: many such women, their own sense of self-worth tied in to sex, would happily resort to surgical inflation if they thought it increased their chances of being 'liked' by guys...

Of course, Brand didn't realize any of this. As she strode down the alley with that firm, long stride, her unrestrained tits jiggled and bounced beneath the thin fabric, and her wide hips and firm ass swiveled and swayed almost theatrically, the hip-swinging rhythm coming 'naturally' to Brand, necessary to counter-balance the weight and shift of her new tits.

She was aware of how it felt - the light scrape of her fully-engorged nipples across the fabric as the firm spheres of breast-flesh jiggles and swayed. The strange up-and-down/back-and-forth sensation of her wider hips. The way her hair moved in the movement-generated breeze... but she had no idea that her over-emphasized stride was the sort of thing that a certain type of woman would use as a tool, practically shouting 'come and get it!' to the men who saw it. Women were trained from birth - by societal pressure, if nothing else - to realize what was 'ladylike' and what wasn't. Brand, not having grown up female, didn't realize that she was breaking almost all those rules...

Rounding the corner, the new woman found herself on a well-traveled road - and on the next corner, half a block down, was a bus stop, where a young man dressed mainly in denim was smoking a cigarette and waiting for a bus. Brand headed towards the stop.

"Hey, gimme one of those smokes, would ya?" Brand 'growled' as she neared the guy. At least, that's what she thought she did. She was used to growling at people, and so that habit kicked in - and Brand didn't realize that the same technique that caused a growl in her old, male voice simply made her new voice sound husky - even sensuous.

Since it produced the expected result, there was no reason for her to reflect upon her new voice as she accepted the cigarette the young man handed over with a surprised look. The guy looked like the college type, on the way to his classes - dark haired, kinda skinny, with a back-pack thrown over one shoulder. He even reacted as expected when she all-but-demanded bus fare from him, digging eagerly into his pocket to hand her a fistful of coins to cover the cost of the bus ride.

Though in the body of a big-breasted white woman, Brand's world-view was still that of a big black man, and she was getting all the responses she expected to get, without stopping to wonder why somebody else was reacting to her as if she were still that big black man. Perhaps, if she'd noticed the way the guy was practically drooling, eyes locked onto her barely-hidden new tits, she might have begun to clue in to the guy's reaction... but she didn't notice, taking a deep and satisfying drag on her cigarette and completely ignoring the guy who had provided it.

It had been hours since her last smoke, and she closed her eyes as she took that drag, almost moaning as she let the smoke sigh back out through pursed lips. Again, a born-and-bred woman would have learned how that might look to a guy, but Brand did it without realizing the erotic implications of her actions, how sexy - how evocative - it looked to the dark-haired young man.

To anybody else, it would have been obvious that the young man wasn't scared by Brand - he was turned on...

"So, I'm Jeremy..." The dark-haired young man introduced himself, a bit awkwardly.

"Yeah?" Brand asked, disinterestedly. In her old body, that would have been enough to shut the guy up. She didn't realize that, with her new 'look', it seemed more like 'playing it cool'.

"What's your name?" the young man pursued, 'playing the game' - at least, so he thought.

Brand was about to tell the idiot to get lost - then realized that she'd need a name to go with this new body. It hadn't occurred to her until the guy asked...

"Uh... Brandi." She finally said. Imagination wasn't Brand's long suit, either.

"Well, Brandi, I was thinking..." Was as far as the young man got before the bus arrived. Ignoring her benefactor, Brandi climbed aboard the bus and dropped her change in the fare box near the driver...

..and realized the bus was nearly packed with students and 'working stiffs'. She grimaced...

...and was stunned when another college-type guy got up from his seat.

"Here you go, Miss..." He said, gesturing to the quickly-vacated seat. It took Brandi a second to realize that the guy was referring to her. When it did dawn on her, she dropped into the seat with a muttered 'thanks', thinking that the guy was just one of those losers who still did the whole 'chivalry' bit not that Brandi actually used the word 'chivalry' in her mind, of course. Even if she'd known what the word meant, she still would have used the considerably less flattering terms she'd applied to the idiot in the silence of her own thoughts.

It never occurred to her that the guy's 'gentlemanly' gesture allowed him to lurk over her, staring down into the mouthwatering view of cleavage and milky breast-flesh that their relative positions presented to him.

So, Brandi, a big, dumb black man in the taut, athletic body of a 'easy'-looking white woman with big tits, continued being blissfully unaware of how the rest of the world saw her...

* * * *

Al 'G-Man' Greene would have confused the hell out of poor Diogenes. The ancient Greek was reputed to have wandered in broad daylight with a lit lantern, searching for 'an honest man'. G-man was a criminal, a pimp and a drug-dealer... but, for all that, he was still about the most honest man there could be.

There was a certain logic to this apparent incongruity, however. G-man also served as a sort of 'bank' for the criminal types, accepting money from them to 'hold' until they needed either the cash itself, or a portion of it's worth in trade from one of G-Man's 'enterprises'. His girls, for example, were a very popular way of 'cashing in' on those savings, with drugs running a very close second. Quite often, it was a combination of the two.

G-Man didn't make any money, per se, on the 'accounts' he was holding - but there was quite often a lot of money in his safe, and much of it belonging to guys who ended up doing stints in one prison or another. Knowing that said criminal would be away for a few years, G-Man used that money as 'investment capital', buying drugs directly from the source and using his less-attractive girls as 'mules' to bring it to the city, where he'd cut it and sell it at a five-hundred-percent mark-up - thus recouping his money with a nice profit. To be able to do this, everybody who dealt with him had to know that he was dead honest, all the time - otherwise, he'd wind up being 'just' dead. So, the few times when some money had been 'in transit' when an account-holder had wanted all his cash, and fast, G-Man had paid it out of his own pocket, making sure that every cent the man was owed was there. Because of this, G-man's house on the outskirts was also known to be somewhat of a safe-haven for goods and cash, to be stashed against the proverbial 'rainy day'.

Due to his odd position in the community, G-Man was used to dealing with an unusual mix of people, the sort that your average person never had much contact with - whores and pushers, pimps and cut-purses, murderers and rapists and kidnappers.

This was the first time he'd ever had to deal with a crazy woman, however, and he was at a bit of a loss as to how to deal with her.

She'd shown up at his door around eight o'clock in the morning, demanding to see him. The 'bruiser' who'd answered the door hadn't recognized her as one of G-Man's girls, and so had told her to wait on the step while he checked, going to fetch his boss. G-Man hadn't recognized her, either, but she'd been insistent about seeing him, and obviously wasn't armed or wired - there was absolutely nowhere to hide a weapon or transmitter in her clothing.

He'd let her come up to his office, appreciating the view as he'd sat across the desk from her. He'd seen her type before, of course - a taut, athletic body that would have been 'masculine' if not for the fact that she had obviously gone to great lengths to project female sexuality, from the clothes that enclosed her lush body to her barely-concealed breasts, which were obviously surgically augmented. Her waist, flat and taut, was only slender in comparison to her wide hips and big, firm tits, providing an hourglass figure that was agreeably feminine despite her athletic build. Every move she made was 'confident' in that tit-bouncing, hip-swaying way of a woman who was practically daring a man to find a woman who could fuck better than her.

She was a hot number. Even though she wasn't wearing make-up, and her toned legs would definitely look better in a short skirt rather than the tawny stretch-velour pants she wore, she was defiantly something to see. Not elegant or graceful, but G-Man wasn't used to dealing with that type of woman anyway. He was perfectly comfortable with this 'Brandi' chick, since she was a lot like some of his top-dollar whores, the ones who really enjoyed their work.

That sense of comfort began to fade, however, when this stacked blonde tried to insist that she was Elmore Brand.

Crazy or not, Brandi made good eye-candy. Even as she claimed to 'really' be a guy, she was doing things like leaning forward, presenting a sexy view of her cleavage, or sprawling in her chair with her legs spread wide and feet planted, presenting an inviting picture. Even the way she smoked - after bumming a cigarette from him - was sexy, quite reminiscent of oral sex.

G-Man started by 'humoring' her, while pointing out the logic that, Brand or not, G-man couldn't give her Brand's money because she didn't look like Brand, something even she had to admit. However, she was very instant, trying to convince him that he give her some money - even though she admitted that all the reasons he couldn't were valid. It was a case of 'I want what I want', no matter that it was absurd or illogical.

Well, that was sort of the definition of 'crazy', wasn't it?

"Look, Brandi - I can't help you." G-Man said, now in an annoyed tone of voice. As easy-sexy as she was, she was wearing out his patience. "You say you're Brand, but nobody else in the world can say the same thing. You certainly don't look like the big, black man who gave me the money to hold onto. That's the only person I can give it to - a big black man..." She'd already described her 'delusion', the one where some doctor could (supposedly) just give her a shot and turn her back into a man. "Look, why don't you turn back into brand, and then I can give you the money."

"I can't you fuckin' idiot!" She said in a pissed-off voice that had G-Man ready to call for his thugs, just outside the door. "I need this fucking disguise to make it safe to Mexico!"

A bright light-bulb went on over G-Man's head as he realized that she'd just given him an 'out'. Not only could he humor her and get her out of his hair - he could actually turn this crazy woman into an asset.

"Well, there's your answer then!" He said, brightly, faking a grin.

"What he fuck you talkin' about?" She said in a husky, annoyed voice.

"Since you're Brand, you know I deal with some providers down in Mexico. Well, I've got an errand to run down to there, and was going to send one of my girls - but, instead, I'll send you. I'll have my contact down there arrange to have a doctor turn you back into your normal self and give you your money, and then you're home free. How's that sound?"

She puzzled that one out, forehead wrinkled and lips moving. Though she didn't look a damned thing like brand, G-Man had to admit that Brandi was about as quick on the uptake as the moronic man had been.

"Yeah. That's fine..." Brandi agreed.

"Great. Now, why don't I show you to a spare room, and you can get a shower and some sleep while I get the stuff you'll need. Since you're gonna be pretending to be one of my girls, you're gonna have to dress and act right, okay?"

"Yeah, makes sense." Brandi agreed. "So, I pr'tend to be one o' your whores, and when I get down to Mexico I get my body and my money, right?"

"That's right..." G-Man humored her, rising from his desk to lead her towards an empty bedroom. "Don't worry, I'll take care of everything..."

* * * *

It was while she was cruising down I-25, southbound, that Brandi began to feel very strange.

Not that she hadn't felt a little weird all night. There was ample reason for her to feel odd, after all. She'd never expected to play the role of a whore on her way into Mexico, so playing the part of 'Brandi Biggens' - the name on her forged driver's license and passport - was enough to create some odd sensations, especially considering the 'props' that went with the role.

The car that 'Brandi Biggens' owned wasn't so bad - a dust-colored '83 MG with white interior. It rolled smoothly enough along the road, a warm, dry wind blowing across the windshield and stirring her long, golden mane of hair. Her attire, however, was something else.

Brandi hadn't realized how much you had to pay attention to what you were doing when you were a woman and driving with feet clad in white platform pumps with a seven-inch heel and two-inch platforms. It took some fore-thought to work the pedals without having her foot slip. Still, she'd picked it up pretty quickly, and could now do it almost by instinct - though the sensations refused to let her 'forget' about her shoes, which had also taken a bit of practice to get used to walking in, though her altered, arched feet made the shoes comfortable enough, even for long periods of time.

She was also constantly aware of her smooth, bare, and very shapely 'dancer's legs', since so much of their toned, shapely length was left bare by the short, tight pin-leather mini-skirt she wore, it's tough material fitting to her full, firm ass and womanly hips like a second skin.

Her tits were likewise barely enclosed in a white spandex crop-top that left about two-thirds of her firm, round globes left bare. The style was a cross-string design, sort of like a bikini whose 'triangles' were joined rather than separate,. Leaving not only her cleavage exposed, but quite a bit of the sides of her firm mounds, and even a hint of the bottom curve. The white fabric at the front bore a faded pink word, labeling her as a 'Bitch!'.

In addition to her whore-on-a-vacation outfit, Brandi was all-too-aware of the glossy pink lipstick she wore, it's feel on her lips an ever-present reminder of how full and feminine that feature was. She was also wearing eye-shadow, mascara and eye-liner, and (in her opinion) too much of the inexpensive perfume that had been provided. Indeed, everything that had been done to make her fit the role she was playing served to drive home the undeniable fact that she was now a woman, a white woman with big tits - and, though fairly strong for a woman, she was no longer that ebony muscular mass of masculine power.

Though she didn't realize it, it was her new-found awareness of her femininity that was making her feel stranger and stranger as she headed towards El Paso. By the time she was passing Las Cruces on her way south, she was feeling very, very strange - and nearly panicked, a strange and inexplicable fear welling in her, causing her stomach to clench and sweat to begin to bead her forehead, a sweat that had nothing to do with the heat of the arid climate.

Though she didn't realize it, Brandi was being affected by her own prejudices and internal world-view, her male-bred ideas 'infecting' her subconscious mind as she began to 'accept' the fact that she was now a woman.

Brandi had never seen women as people. All her life, women had been nothing more than objects - something to satisfy men's whims, to serve them in any way men wanted, including sexually - and if they didn't want to serve, you just beat the shit out of them until they did what you told them to.

However, he was no longer a big, strong man. After more the twenty-four hours as woman, she felt like a woman which meant she felt like a weak, defenseless little nothing, something that existed to either serve men - or be whipped and beaten until she did.

Reality had little to do with anything. Objectively, she was a strong, fit woman who would be able to handle herself against most men - but her own internal view of women didn't allow her to see that. "might made right" in her view of the world - and in her view, she was now the least mighty thing in the universe, a big-titted white woman.

All of this went on in her head on a subconscious level - until, just past Las Cruces, it hit home, and that tight ball of fear in her gut finally had an explanation for it as realization exploded in her consciousness like a bomb going off.

Without even realizing it, her foot eased off the accelerator as a look of abject horror spread across her features.

"Oh, shit - I'se a white woman...!" She said, gasping in fear and horror. "I'se just a bib-boobed slut. Holy shit - until I'm a man again, I... I gotta do whatever men want! I gotta... I gotta keep them happy, or they'll whup my pale little ass...!"

She shivered. This was horrible! How had she missed all this before? When she'd turned into a stacked blonde chick, she'd become a plaything for men, having to do whatever they wanted. Hell, she must have realized it, even if she hadn't known it - after all, wasn't she already obeying a man, doing what G-man wanted her to do, dressed the way he wanted her to dress? Hell - she musta realized what she was at the very beginning, even if she'd still been acting like the black man she'd used to be. It was only blind luck that she hadn't yet pissed some guy off, and gotten herself beaten for her insolence at trying to act like a man while, in actuality, being a weak, pathetic little sex-toy.

Gut churning, Brandi forced herself to step on the accelerator. The needle on the speedometer, which had slowly slid down to the 'twenty', began to climb again. She'd been told to meet the contact in El Paso at noon, and she'd planed to do so because she'd been eager to get this done and go back to being male - but now she had added incentive. Not only was she even more eager to get into Mexico and be male again, but if she was late the contact would probably beat her. Maybe even kill her - and she wouldn't be able to do anything at all to protect herself, because he was a man, while she was just a woman...

* * * * *

The two fans mounted in the ceiling of the room stirred the warm air sluggishly, doing little to help cool Brandi as she sat in front of the desk, her eyes downcast. Across the desk, Juan Lopez was reading the letter G-man had included with the locked briefcase he'd had her courier to Juan, who owner and ran the 'business' just south of the border, using his safety from police interference to run a very special 'training' school that G-Man occasionally made use of.

His reddish-brown skin pitted by the after-effects of extremely severe teenaged acne, Juan had a thick, dark mustache. It was this carefully-maintained 'Bismarck-style facial hair that he stroked thoughtfully as he rose and walked around the desk to perch on the edge of it, looking down at Brandi. She instinctively glanced up at him - and then the fear surged, reminding her that she was just a woman, and she quickly glanced down again, hoping she hadn't angered him.

"No, no, my dear - please, look at me..." The well-dressed Latino said in a warm, genial voice. Hesitantly, she raised her eyes - and even essayed a smile at the man. The ball of fear loosened a bit when he smiled back.

"It says here..." he said, waving the letter "...that you are really a big black man named Brand. That you only look like a big-breasted white woman."

Brandi had to fight the urge to sigh. What had she been thinking, being all fearful? Sure, with most men she had good reason to fear - but of course G-Man would have explained things to Juan, and so she could act like a man here.

"That's right." She said, relieved. "God, it's good to talk to somebody who knows the truth, man. It's a pain in the ass to act like the whore I look like, all afraid some guy is gonna want to do stuff with me, and I can't say 'no' or nothin' cause then he'll beat my ass."

"Oh, yes, I understand how it must be..." Juan said in commiseration. "You'd have to do it, but you wouldn't like it at all. You hate having a woman's body, hate having such big tits, and really hate the thought of having to have sex with men, right?"

"Yeah, that's it exactly..." Brandi said, with a relived grin...

A grin that changed into a look of panicked pain and shock as Juan causally back-handed her across the face, leaving her sprawled in the chair. She stared up at him, where he continued to grin in a causal, friendly manner.

"You shouldn't claim things like that, you stupid little bitch." He said in a 'helpful' tone. "It can get you in trouble, claiming to be something you are not."

"But...!" Brandi tried to protest again - and earned an even harder slap for her efforts. She fought down the unmanly urge to sob, staring at her dusky-skinned tormentor in fear and horror.

"So, you big-titted bitch, what are you - a man, or a woman?"

Brandi stared at Juan, stricken, unsure what to say - the truth, or what Juan wanted to hear. Then Juan drew back his hand, now rolled into a fist...

"A woman!" She cried, shrinking back in the chair. "I'm a woman!"

Juan's hand lowered, and he grinned. "Are you sure, bitch? Tell me, how do you know you're a woman?"

Brandi thought fast. "I.. I have tits and a cunt. That means I'm a woman!"

"That sounds like a woman to me, too." Juan told her, leering at her displayed cleavage. "Such big tits, too. It must be awful, having such big tits."

"Yeah, they're.." was as far as she got, before her head was snapped back by the force of Juan's blow, a trickle of blood now running from her split lip.

"What was that, you bitch!" He roared, rising to loom over her, his hands balled into fists and held tense near his sides. "Look at the skimpy little top you're wearing! Look at those tits, shown to the whole world! I ought to beat you into the ground for lying to me, you worthless cunt! Any woman who would lie about her tits like that is useless. In fact, I think I will beat you..."

She screeched as he took a half-step forward, hands coming up - and then she began to babble, hysterically, barely even hearing her words.

"I love my tits!" She cried, reaching up and grabbing them with her long-nailed hands. "Big, beautiful tits. I love them! They're so big and firm and sexy, and I'm so glad I have them! I just love to show them off, because they're so big and sexy, and because I'm so happy to have them!"

Juan sneered. "Oh, really? I thought you were really a man. A man wouldn't like having tits, because tits make other men horny."

"I'm a woman!" She cried, cowering. She was more afraid then she'd ever been in her life - because Juan was right, sort of. She might have been a man, once, but she wasn't now - yet she'd been stupid enough to 'forget' that, thinking that having been a man, once, gave her the right to act like one now.

Juan was merely giving her what she deserved, and tears of shame mingled with tears of pain at her own stupidity at forcing Juan to do this to her. Now, she could only hope to make up for her lapse by being the woman she was, right now, and hope to make Juan happy so that she could find a doctor and be a guy again. "I'm a woman, and I like making men horny with my tits!"

"Liar!" Juan screamed at her, spittle flying from his lips as he gut-punched her. "Lying bitch! If you liked making men horny, it's because you want to fuck them! Women love to fuck and suck men! If you were really a woman, you'd be begging me to let you suck my cock while you fucked yourself silly with this!"

'This' was a huge, black-plastic dildo that he pulled from the drawer of his desk - and used to whip her on the shoulders, painfully, flogging her with it.

"Yes! Yes, I love fucking and sucking!" Brandi screamed, praying that agreeing with him would suffice. "Please, I wanna suck on your cock while I fuck myself silly with that big, wonderful dildo. I'm a woman, and I love sucking cock and fucking men, so please let me suck your cock and fuck myself with a dildo!"

He waved the big dildo in her face, making her wince. "I don't believe you! Women live to fuck men! They dress to make men horny, the walk to turn men on, and they always want to be fucking and sucking. I don't think you do! I think you're just saying that because you're scared!"

"No, no...!" She shook her head violently, trembling in fear. She struggled to calm herself as best she could, trying to act like this was really what she wanted. "I really, really do want to suck your cock while fucking my hot, wet cunt with that big, hard dildo!"

"You're just repeating what I said, you stupid bitch!" Juan screamed, back-handing her again. "if you really, really were a woman, you'd be able to tell me why you want to do this, without me having to explain it to you!"

Near tears, Brandi struggled to come up with the answers she needed to avoid being beaten and kicked into unconsciousness. "i.. I want to suck you cock because I love drinking cum! I.. I love getting fucked because I'm a women, and getting fucked feels real good!"

She cowered, waiting - and Juan began to calm down. "yes. Yes, that makes sense "

Hope flared in Brandi - then died as he suddenly roared. "Then why didn't you try and fuck me as soon as you came in the room! Why are you dressed like a slut, but not acting like one!"

Brandi's mind spun as Juan's fists rose...

"Because I'm a whore!" She yelled, finding an explanation. "No matter how much I want to fuck and suck men all the time, I gotta wait until they pay me, or I'd go broke! I.. I gotta force myself to beg even man I meet to fuck me the instant I see them, and it's really hard 'cause I love fucking and sucking so much, but they gotta pay me!"

Dropping the massive dildo on the desk, Juan looked mortified as he slapped his forehead, his tone becoming oh-so-reasonable.

"Yes, of course! How stupid of me not to realize that!" He said, shaking his head and smiling at her. Hesitantly, she straightened a little in the chair and managed a weak grin back, her muscles tensed for a resumption of the beating.

"A whore! It is so obvious, and yet I missed it. Dressed like that, big tits on display, of course you're fighting to keep from fucking and sucking me until you get money - or, being a whore, something as good as money."

"Yes, that's right." She 'agreed', a little frantically, bobbing her head quickly. "That's the reason why."

Grinning, Juan opened another drawer - and emerged holding a small box, which he opened to reveal a small, rubber-stopped vial and a hypodermic needle.

"So, if you're a whore, you'd be happy to suck my cock and fuck yourself silly with that dildo in order to get paid by a nice shot of cocaine, wouldn't you?"

Brandi stared at the needle, horrified. What was the right answer? If it had been money he was showing her, she'd know - any whore would do anything for enough cash. Were all of them coke addicts, though ?

Juan was beginning to frown, and she knew that she had to say something before she pissed him off again - so she went with the safe answer.

"Of course. I'd be happy to give into my urge to be fucking and sucking, if you give me the coke." She agreed, trying to look her whorish best. As long as she remembered that she was just a sex-toy woman, then Juan would be happy - and as long as Juan was happy, she still had a chance of getting away and finding a doctor to turn her back into a man again, so she wouldn't have to be a obedient woman any more.

"Well, then..." Juan said, setting the box down. "I'm hiring you to do just that."

Horror, disgust and fear rolled through Brandi - and she was just barely able to catch herself before she made the fatal mistake of reacting like a man to that. After all, she wasn't a man anymore - or yet and acting like it could get her beaten or killed, and then she'd never be a man again.

"Sure!" She forced herself to say with a 'grin' that looked more like a grimace. "I.. I'm really happy you're gonna pay me with cocaine, because I'm just so eager to suck your cock and fuck myself with that dildo."

"Well, there's nothing stopping you now." Juan said, watching her with a feral grin.

"Yes. That's wonderful.." She said, stomach clenched in disgust and fear. She was trembling with both emotions as she forced herself to stand up and wrap one hand around the thick dildo on the desk. Still giving a rictus of a grin, she forced her other, trembling hand to undo the little clasp on the side of the skirt she was wearing, letting the garment drop to the floor and reveal her cunt - G-man's girls didn't usually wear underwear, so neither had she.

"Not bad..." Juan said, in a warning tone.. and Brandi forced herself to peel off her top, not realizing how awkward and mechanical her actions looked as she dropped it beside her discarded skirt and stood clad only in her heels, one hand coming up to 'provocatively' fondle her tits, and action that looked more like a poorly-oiled machine than a seductive motion.

"Oh, baby, I love my big tits..." She said, not hearing her flat, droning tone. "There so big and firm. I hope they turn you on and make your cock nice and hard, because I wanna suck you dry..."

"Oh, yeah - suck me off, whore..." Juan said, leaning back on the desk.

Fighting the rug to vomit, Brandi forced herself to kneel, spread legged, in front of him, Putting the dildo down for a second, she reached up and undid his trousers, pulling them and his underwear down around his knees and setting his almost-hard cock free, only inches from her face.

She was sweating and trembling, fighting to keep herself in control. She was horrified to find herself in this situation - but it was her own fault, for forgetting what she was right now. Her only chance was to be the eager whore she was 'pretending' to be, because that's what she was right now - a stupid, otherwise useless sex-toy, a woman who existed only to make men happy.

"Ummmm..." She forced herself to say, groping for the dildo with her right hand while her left warped, hesitantly, around the base of his cock. "So big and tasty. I'm drooling. Please, may I suck your wonderful cock now, while I fuck myself in the hot, wet cunt with the big dildo you let me have?"

"Oh - please do..." Juan said, with a chuckle.

With another grin/grimace, she grasped the dildo - and slammed it home, ramming it deep into her poorly-lubricated new cunt as she forced herself to wrap her lips around his cock...

Pain greeted her as the oversized dildo slammed painfully into her unlubricated cunt, and the physical pain was matched only by the disgust at having her lips wrapped around another man's cock.

She couldn't do it. Disgusted and horrified, she yanked the dildo from her cunt and pulled away. "I.. I can't..." She told him, scuttling back from him. "I.. I'm not really a woman, so I can't..."

"Your a whore!" He screamed at her, yanking his pants up and jumping to his feet, his face wreathed in anger. She screamed and tried to back-pedal away from him, but he thundered over to her, pausing only long enough to grab up the dildo she'd discarded. He back-handed her across the face, then wrapped his fingers into her hair and all-but dragged her, struggling, to a mirror in the corner of the room.

"Look at yourself!" He screamed in her ear, shaking her head by his grip in her mane of golden hair. "Look, you whore!" When she did, he back-handed her across the face again, right in the lips.

"See these lips! These are the lips of a cock-sucking woman, you stupid bitch!" He screamed, enraged.

The next blow from his dildo-gripping fist was across her tits.

"Men don't have tits, you stupid bitch. Look at these big tits! These are women's tits! Not little, nice- girl tits, either, but the tits of a big, cum-hungry slut! And guys don't have a cunt like you do! You've got a cunt for being fucked in "

Stepping behind her and holding her around the neck with his one arm, he shoved the plastic phallus deep inside her cunt, making her jerk and cry out in pain.

" like this!" He screamed, fucking her hard with the dildo. "You're a woman, you fuckin' bitch. Say it - you're a woman!"

"I'm a woman..." She cried out in pain and slowly growing pleasure, as the initial burst of pain from the dildo was subsiding as her pussy began to generate lubricant, making the experience pleasurable. "See! You're enjoying this!" Juan screamed, fucking her harder with the dildo. "You're a slut!"

"No...!" she tried to deny.. but her body was shivering with unwanted delight. The pleasure was building steadily, and she struggled not to feel it - but she couldn't ignore it.

When Juan's hand left the dildo, leaving it sheathed in her cunt, she hesitated for an eternal instant, her body trembling with how close she'd come to orgasm and then, almost against her will, she reached down and began to drive the dildo frantically, gasping as she fucked herself with it.

Then she screamed anew as Juan's cock, somewhat lubricated by her saliva from it's brief visit in her mouth, slammed hard into her virgin ass.

"You're a slut!" Juan screamed as he began ass-fucking her, hard and she was horrified to discover, painful as it was, the ass-fucking was increasing the pleasure she felt as she continued to frantically fuck herself with the dildo.

"Slut lips!" He shouted, reaching around to slide his finger into her mouth. "Sucking lips, slut lips!" Then his hand slid down and began to squeeze and fondle her shaking, bobbing tits.

"Slut tits!" he grunted, fucking her hard while she moaned and gasped in unwanted, indescribable pleasure.

"You're a fucking woman, slut!" He shouted - and she couldn't deny it, as her gasps became moans of near-orgasmic pleasure.

"You're a whore! He shouted, matching his rhythm to hers.

"No.. Not.. whore.." She gasped, unable to stop fucking herself with the big dildo, feeling confused and disgusted and wonderful and excited.

"Whore! Slut! Bitch!" Juan thundered in rhythmic syllables that matched his deep, hard thrusts.

"No...!" She screamed.. and then the word degenerated into incoherent screams of pleasure as she reached orgasm, a more intense ecstasy then any she'd known before.

When they'd finally finished their individual orgasms, Juan contemptuously all-but-threw her from his cock, watching her sprawl on the ground, dildo still embedded in her cunt.

"You're just a fuck-hungry whore." He said to her.

"Not... whore..." She gasped, pulling the dildo from her cunt with a slurping sound, horrified that she'd just enjoyed fucking herself with a dildo while getting fucked up the ass.

"You loved it." He told her, which only made it worse, her disgust and despair growing as she struggled to deal with what had just happened. "Don't deny it - you loved getting fucked, loved my hands on your tits. You're a slut."

"I.. I'm a woman... and women enjoy sex..." She said, struggling to make sense of this even as she stuttered through her 'denial'. "But... but that.. that doesn't make me a whore. I... Sex feels good, but.. but..."

Her mind couldn't handle what she'd just done. It was wrong on so many levels, she couldn't deal with it - so, it was almost a relief when Juan kicked her in the head, making the world dim and begin to fade.

"Not.. whore.." She muttered in final defiance as the darkness came to claim her.

* * * * *

Staring down at her, unconscious on the floor, Juan shook his head.

G-Man had been right, she was a crazy as a loon. In his letter, he'd suggested it might actually make her easy top train as a whore, so Juan had gone ahead and given it a try - but it was obvious that her delusion to being a man ran too deep for her to be a good whore. Sure, she'd respond properly when 'stimulated', but training her to be 'willing', to act 'eager', would be too difficult, even if he did get her addicted.

Pulling up his pants, he decided to have her dumped on the streets. Oh, not around here - after all, he didn't want a chance remark from her to mar his reputation as the perfect 'whoremaster'. Besides which, he had a certain agreement with the local police that made things convenient for him - which also meant that killing her was out of the question, since it would be satisfying, but more trouble than it was worth in the long run. Besides - he could afford to be 'generous' and let her live, since G-Man had paid a fair sum for her, whether she could be trained or not. Obviously, just as a way to get her off his hands...

...which gave Juan an idea. With a wicked smile, he walked over to the desk and picked up the phone to make the arrangements for the crazy woman's disposal...

* * * * *

"Okay - now!" Sergeant Smith, NYPD, shouted, and two of the members of his little five-man squad threw open the side door to the hunter-green GMC Safari, which was rocking and shaking in the parking lot of The Booby Trap.

The sight that greeted the sworn officers of the law was one that was straight out of a porno film.

The strip-club's newest headliner was laying flat on her back in the cargo area, whose removed seats (sitting beside the van in the parking lot) would have attracted any cop's attention, even without the van's shivering movements on it's springs. Her long, toned legs were high and spread, the better to allow the young man between them to fuck her energetically, a look of pleasure on his still- uncomprehending face as he lived out a sexual fantasy come true.

His eager thrusting was causing her body to rock and shake. Her huge, medicine-ball-sized tits were slamming back and forth, spraying small drops of the thick cum she'd coated them in from jacking off the other two guys. The cum almost obscured the small surgery scars below her thick, large nipples - but not quite. Her head was back, her lips wide open in what would have been a scream of orgasmic pleasure - if not for the fact that she was 'mute'.

The scar from the vocal-cord-slitting surgery was very carefully not visible, as much so as her forced- breast-enlargement scars were - not that anybody knew they were forced, of course.

Both Brandi Boobs and the man fucking her finished their shuddering orgasms before realizing anything was amiss, and the sudden realization made it easy for the cops to collect the stunned quartet. It was more than enough to convince a jury, the huge-breasted stripper jetting done by three 'johns', even if they didn't have direct evidence of the pay-off... even the fact that the men claimed that they hadn't paid her was poor excuse.

Despite the bust - and the bust seen during it - Sergeant Smith was surprised to find that the one thing that stuck in his mind for the rest of his shift wasn't the sight of her naked body writhing on the floor of the van...

...it was the look of utter, enraged denial in her eyes as she forcefully shook her head in the negative when he'd told her he was charging her with 'prostitution'. The same look she'd given him as he'd turned her over to the desk officer, when she'd grabbed the paper and pen off the desk before anyone could stop her and written something in huge, angry letters across the paper:

'I'm not a whore, just a slut!'

The End

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: When a lab experiment goes wrong and releases a powerful energy blast, one guy wakes up in a parallel world only to discover that he is now a hot blond who loves a little action.

Break Through And Down

Part One

By Gunslinger

Atop a shallow hill, brilliantly bathed in the white glow of spotlights against the ebon midnight sky, the High Energy Physics building at Mooreland University looked out over a mostly somnolent campus.

Deep within the nearly silent bowels of the HEP building, a small, if lavishly equipped laboratory was still occupied, machines humming under the harsh fluorescent lighting.

With a habitual gesture, Donny pushed the wire-framed glasses higher up on his narrow blade of a nose, watery blue eyes peering intently through them at the various gauges on the machine in front of him.

"But..." he stammered, bony hands reaching up to grasp thinning, sandy hair in frustrated annoyance, "...that's just not possible!"

At forty-three, Donald McLaughlin considered himself an experienced, level-headed, and thoroughly trained scientist... which was why the tall, painfully skinny physicist was growing steadily more upset – and obsessed - with a machine that insisted on reporting that it was producing more energy than what was being put in.

Muttering under his breath, Donny whirled from the control panel and stalked once more toward the machine itself, more determined than ever to find and fix the problem that was generating such an obviously incorrect reading. Having already tried – and failed – to do so a dozen times, anger and frustration were evident in every by-now rehearsed movement as he released the latches holding the panel in place. He reached in...

...and, it was only when it was much, much too late that the low hum of power registered, informing him that he'd neglected to power the machine down before reaching bare hands into the high-voltage guts of the Quantum Field Generator.

'Hmmm... come to think of it, I should have had an automatic cut-off when the panel was opened...' was the final, almost bemused thought that flitted across Dr. Donald McLaughlin's synapses – and then a torrent of electricity turned his entire nervous system to chaos, and coherent thought gave way to overwhelming darkness.

* * * * *

All things considered, it was rather surprising that Donny found himself regaining consciousness.

At least, he assumed that to be the case, since all sorts of stimuli – including a host of aches and pains, not to mention even stranger sensations, reported by his supine body – insisted on registering on his senses. One sense that refused to report in, however, was 'sight' – while he could feel his own eyelids open and close, it made absolutely no difference to his optic nerve.

Even as his confused and whirling brain struggled to center itself, a rising tide of panic fought against the instinctual attempt to order his mind.

"Blind, I've gone..." Donny started to gap in shock – and then, with an even sharper gasp, stopped talking altogether, eyes widening sightlessly.

The words had begun as breath in his chest, sure enough, and ridden up his throat and out his mouth – but what had emerged had been too soft, too high-pitched to be his voice.

"What... the... hell...?" Donny demanded, softly – and wincing; no matter how hard he had tried with each carefully-enunciated word, the question had once more emerged in what undeniable sounded like a dulcet, feminine mezzo-soprano.

That there was something very, very wrong here was in no way, shape, or form in dispute –but the question as to just how wrong things had gotten was still a little unsettled. Since that was currently a very important piece of information for Donny to know, he struggled to stem the rising tide of panic in order to find out just how bad things had gotten.

Taking a couple of deep, quivery breaths, Donny pushed panic aside in order to garner some data – and as everything still remained dark to his optic nerve, he was required to substitute touch for sight. With no other choice, Donny set about exploring both himself and his immediate surroundings with his hands.

Almost immediately, he noted that – along with his voice – there was something wrong with his hands. Well, no – not actually with his hands, and not technically ‘wrong’, either. In fact, it ‘merely’ seemed as if his fingernails were longer than they should have been – they scratched and scabbled across the concrete floor as he maneuvered his hands toward his body.

Eventually, they arrived at the soft fabric covering his midriff. As far as he could tell, the shirt itself – a simple cotton button-down collared shirt – seemed okay, but for some reason the proportions underneath it seemed a bit... off.

Donny had always been slender nigh on to emaciated, but the hands scrabbling at his waist seemed to find the flesh firmer and tauter than his brain insisted it should be, even though his waist felt neither bloated nor distorted; indeed, it felt somehow both slimmer and yet more firmly fleshy, which should have been a direct contradiction.

However, Donny was unsure how far he could trust his sense of touch. Denied visual confirmation, touch could be chancy at best – and the fact that his fingers felt subtly wrong as they glided over stomach and waist didn’t help matters. Still long and ‘skinny’, yes – but they did not feel as bony and spindly as he felt they should...

However, he pushed that thought aside, instead focusing on sensation as he let his questing fingers rove a little bit further afield.

The fabric and fit of what should have been a pair of simple khaki trousers didn’t seem right, either... which was doubly strange, since whatever he was wearing below the waist didn’t feel like pants, but almost like shorts. He could feel where they ended, and where legs were cooler against the floor – but even that didn’t register as being quite right, and the fact that whatever he was wearing felt comfortably fitted seemed to contradict the strangely swollen – or flaring – contours of his hips.

By now, Donny was almost panting from panic’s attempt to gain a stronger hold on his mind as each odd datum intruded itself on his brain- but he continued to force that aside, mainly by the simple expedient of refusing to dwell at all on what any of the strange sensations could possibly mean.

Instead, despite his own natural curiosity in all things and the steadily more desperate need to know alike, he forced himself to focus solely on gathering the data, rather than letting himself try to interpret it. As firmly as possible in a steadily increasing emotional state, he forced himself to repeat a mantra over and over in his mind, reminding himself not to theorize in advance of the data.

...and then the hands, still spiraling slowly out from the stomach, swept up to his chest – and his panting became desperate gasping.

He had been aware of a strange, oddly mobile weight on his chest. Indeed, there was no way he could not be aware of it, for it announced itself with every breath he drew – but now that his hands had quested for the source, the information they were providing pushed panic right on the trembling forefront of his consciousness. He had half expected to find some sort of softly heavy mass resting on his chest, and in that he was not exactly disappointed.

However, instead of finding himself pushing down on some unknown object that would, in turn, press down on either the fabric of the shirt or the bare skin of his chest, his hands – atop and presumable 'outside' of that foreign source of weight – not only found themselves touching what certainly felt like warm flesh under crisp cotton... but the sensations from his chest insisted that his hands were touching the chest directly through the shirt, not through the intervening mass of whatever was providing that weight. It was almost as if...

He couldn't help himself. The instant the very thought crossed his mind, Donny's hands darted down and began desperately feeling about the waist- band of the 'shorts', trying to determine by touch alone how they were fastened – and then, as the impossible thought grew even more horrifyingly stronger, his hands shot further downward in disgust hypothesis/realization.

Sure enough, steadily swelling precognitive fear was proven utterly, horrifyingly correct as the 'shorts' turned out to be a skirt – and then, after a brief pause of shock, fear and disgust, now-shaking fingers carefully edged the hem of that skirt higher, almost flinching from abnormally smooth, softly-full thighs as he slowly groped upwards to touch...

She screamed.

It might have been a weak, almost breathless scream, but a scream it was – and a very feminine one at that, one that would have fit right in to the soundtrack of any low-budget horror movie. Say, like the cheesy old early- Nineties 'T&A' flicks...

...and she was the proud new owner of both 'T' and 'A', not to mention 'P' – as in 'Pussy'.

The second scream, after a short period of hyperventilation, was even more tooth-achingly high-pitched and feminine.

"A woman... a woman... I've been turned into a woman, oh God, how, it isn't possible..." she babbled frantically, hands now scrabbling over her body in desperate hope of disproving everything her altered fingers had – and hadn't – found lying under that skirt... but each new sensation only added to the side of the ledger that insisted the impossible was, in fact, the actual.

Writhing and flopping on the floor, hands first finding and then flinching from the feminine contours of face and legs, Donny desperately sought to reject the impossible reality of it all – and couldn't.

She was a woman. In woman's clothing. With a woman's voice. With a woman's full, silky head of hair...

...and hysterically panicking just like a frail, emotional, no-business-being- in-science woman.

It was this thought, smacking home in her mind, which served to snap Donny back out of the nearly-mindless panic. Shocked, stunned, horrified, and disgusted – yes, she was still all of those things, but no longer quite hysterical. That being the case, she was able to work against the tide of emotions that struggled to overwhelm her – not eliminating or defeating them in any way, but pushing them back and away, holding them at arm's length.

For the moment.

That done, her ragged breathing began to slow and even out – still too shallow and face, but at least regular and controlled, rather than the nearly- painful breathlessness of only a moment before. Through force of conscious will, she made herself consider the predicament logically, rather than emotionally...

...or, to more accurately state the way Donny was considering it, in the masculine mode rather than the feminine. Although politically correct enough not to express such a view in public forums, it didn't change the fact that Donny considered logic as mainly a masculine trait, and emotion a feminine one – and while she might not have any say in which of the two her body currently was, she refused to accept that the mind must necessarily follow.

"Okay... Okay..." She muttered reassuringly to herself. "Maybe... Maybe this isn't even happening at all. I could be... hallucinating. Or drugged "

`..or dead ', a small voice in her mind insisted in pointing out – logically, considering that last clear memory she had before being a 'she' was touching extremely high-voltage equipment with bare hands.

For a second, the heart within her altered chest seemed to pause, an icy wave having little to do with the cold floor on which she lay washing through her – but then she pushed it aside. She certainly didn't feel dead, first of all and, if she was somehow dead-yet-conscious, then the secondary consideration of some sort of Hell would make this scenario make a hell of a lot more sense.

She, however, also forced herself to shove this possibility aside, (not disregarded entirely, considering how all-too-fitting a definition of Hell this might be), simply because it was a scenario that she could have no control over.

So, unless and until it was proven to be the case, she had to assume that she had somehow survived what should have been fatal electrocution, and that it had somehow resulted in whatever this was.

Having come to that conclusion – only after having pushed roiling emotions far enough back to function with at least a minimum of intelligence – the newly-minted woman was then left with devising and putting into action a plan to cope with whatever this was.

Slowly and awkwardly, hideously aware of the many new and different sensations her altered body was providing her, Donny struggled to lever her new form up off the ground.

It wasn't until she was awkwardly balanced atop what she disgustedly assumed was high heels of some sort that Donny realized that the unrelieved blackness... wasn't.

Instead, her eyes now made out the slimmest, faintest thread of light – a marginally lighter grey thread within the otherwise all-encompassing darkness. With a short gasp of potential relief, she stumbled towards it – not because she was physically uncomfortable or unskilled in whatever footwear she was wearing, but because she was actively fighting being comfortable and skilled in feminine footwear of any kind. As that may be, she managed to draw closer to that thin ribbon of light – to realize that it was, in fact, coming from under the door. In which case, the light switch should be right... about... there...

Bright fluorescents flared to life in the ceiling, the humming white illumination momentarily overwhelming dark-adapted eyes... and then Donny gasped several more times, for several different reasons.

The first gasp came from the realization that she was still in her own lab – and the second came from the realization that Dr. Donald McLaughlin's lab didn't exist.

It was still room 2B15 in the HEP building – but instead of being crowded with various arcane pieces of equipment needed for Donny's research into quantum fields, it was completely empty.

Worse than that – it was slightly dusty, with the air of a room that had been in disuse for some time.

Which, in a very odd way, made a certain sort of sense – for the third gasp had come from looking down; or, rather, from what Donny saw when she did.

Long, golden-blond hair framed that gaze at either edge of her restored vision – but that was only vaguely noticed as she stared in shock at the apparent chasm of cleavage her white blouse's tantalizingly low neckline revealed. It took a bit of maneuvering for her to put one leg – emerging from the hem of a sky-blue skirt, and clad in white nylons – out where she could eye with scant favor the electric-blue pumps she wore, each of which boasted what had to be at least a five-inch heel.

The fourth gasp of the sequence came after she noticed a blue leather shoulder-bag sitting on the floor; specifically, when she opened said bag and came across the identification contained within the white leather wallet inside.

It was for one Dorothy-Marie Lufkin, aged 21... and the accompanying photograph revealed a cheerfully open, lovely young face surrounded by a thick, wavy mane of almost brassy golden-blond hair.

The final gasp came when Donny/Dorothy realized what must have happened... and both how and why a machine to could seemingly produce more energy than was being put into it.

"Holy shit..." She breathed, baby-blue eyes widening in shock. "I... I'm in a parallel universe!"

It was the only explanation that made any sort of sense at all.

Back in what she thought of as the 'real' world, Donald Martin McLaughlin's body almost certainly lay dead by way of electrocution... but in that same instance, the mind of Donny had been pushed through the quantum probability field and ended up in the closest analogue-existence of this alternate earth. Given that even back in his own world the ratio of men to women slightly favored the fairer sex, it wasn't all that unlikely the body he would end up in would be female... even if, she thought with a wry look down at her new form, it was a rather emphatically feminine one.

Taking a deep breath, Donny/Dorothy slowly began nodding to herself. She was still shocked and horrified to find herself emphatically female, clothing and all – but at least she was no longer inexplicably female... and, despite everything, she had to admit, however grudgingly, that it was better than the death she had both so rightfully deserved and so closely courted.

"Okay... Okay, it's... not that bad..." She told herself, trying to believe it. "I am alive and apparently healthy, so..."

Nodding again, she squared her shoulders, opened the door, and stepped out into the very dimly-lit corridor beyond. Almost without considering it, she was moving... hesitantly, as if a thief in the night.

Part of it was uncertainty, part of it discomfort with her new body... and part of it fully irrational discomfort at being caught 'pretending' to be female, no matter how emphatically her body argued the point. Indeed, even with her slow, awkward movements, she could feel her oversized new bosom bouncing and jiggling under her blouse, and her hips seemed to swivel and wriggle ridiculously, no matter how she tried to avoid it.

Grimacing at the slow tapping of her high heels, she made her way to the elevator – and stopped dead in shock, staring at the entirety of her new self in the mirrored walls of the small conveyance.

"Oh, god, no..." She gasped, huge eyes expressing horror: "I've been turned into a bombshell!"

Delicate, finely shaped ankles. Long, shapely legs leading to wide-flaring hips. A deliciously slender waist. Extremely large, firm breasts, riding high and proud despite the lack of a foundation garment. Long, slim neck; likewise slender arms leading to dainty wrists and hands. A beautiful, well-defined face, surrounded by waves of golden hair.

Yup – complete and utter blonde bombshell, from the ground up – and Donny/Dorothy stared at this stunning vision with complete and utter horror, right up until the doors of the summoned elevator began sliding shut. Only then was she able to break through her shock at seeing her new form in its entirety, darting into the elevator cab and pressing the ground-floor button with one long, pastel-pink fingernail.

Then she slumped back against the doors, staring again at her reflection.

"What am I going to do?" She demanded, wide-eyed, of her equally shocked reflection. "Guys are going to be all over me!"

It was an arguable point – she had, after all, been one herself, and knew full well what a tall, curvaceous, busty blonde like her new self would do to the men around her – and not only those falling within a few years of her own new age-bracket, either.

It was a highly disturbing thought for the new woman to be carrying with her as she walked out of the elevator, down a short hallway, and out into 'public'.

Of course, it being the wee small hours of the morning, said 'public' was, at best, in sparse presence but it certainly didn't feel that way to her as she hesitantly and carefully made her way down the campus pathways, head swivelling nervously as her huge, blue eyes scanned her surroundings with extreme trepidation.

So much so, in fact, that she was nearly at the University Center before she realized that she actually had no idea where on earth she was going. It wasn't as if anyplace he would go would be a suitable destination for her!

All of which left her standing in the Quad, body nervously huddled in on itself, as she looked around and wondered where the hell she should be going...

"Dolly?" A male voice inquired from somewhere behind her and to her left – followed, a second later, with a much more enthusiastic repetition: "Dolly! It is you!"

Startled, Donny/Dorothy – 'Dolly'? – spun, body seeming to shrink even more tightly into itself as she stared in wide-eyed fear at the well-built young brunet who stood a few feet away from her, smiling brightly.

At least, he'd been smiling brightly when she first turned – but at the sight of her own expression and body language, the smile quickly slid off his face, leaving behind a confused expression of concern.

"Geez, Dolly, it's just me – Justin." He hesitated, confusion and concern growing deeper as she continued to stare at him as if he were some sort of horrible monster. "Dolly? What's wrong?"

"I.... I just... I don't " She stammered, weakly – and then, hesitantly, manufactured an even weaker smile. "Nothing. I'm fine, Justin. Thanks."

"Yeah.... Right..." Justin said, slowly, taking in her huddled posture. "Um Did you want me to walk you home?"

She almost blurted out a panicked 'no!' – until it dawned on her that, unlike herself, this Justin fellow apparently knew where she lived...

"Um, er... okay..." She finally, shyly, agreed. She waited, unmoving, until Justin – moving very slowly and entreatingly – lifted one hand in a 'this way' gesture, and she scuttled rather gratefully off down the indicated pathway, darting frightened glances his way every few seconds to ensure both that she was still going the right way – and that he was still at least a few feet away from her.

To be honest, Dolly honestly thought she was only marginally aware of Justin's attempts to put her at her ease – just as she honestly thought she was hideously aware of every single aspect of her new body.

She was incredibly aware of certain aspects of it, of course – both wind and motion causing her long, silken hair to swirl and dance around her face, the jiggling bounce and heft of her full, firm breasts, the smooth swivel-and- sway of her broad hips and full, firmly packed ass...

...but she was completely and utterly unaware of her hesitant motions smoothing out to a bouncier, more natural motion. She was unaware of her huddled shoulders straightening. She completely missed how her fear- widened eyes slowly narrowed to fond amusement, even as her tightly- clamped lips loosened into a warm, sweet smile.

Aware of many things about her new form, Dolly was utterly oblivious to how she was responding to Justin's 'barely noticed' sallies and warm companionship.

Had she been able to stand back and see what was happening from an objective position, she would have been shocked silly by what she saw. Her body-language was now completely open, to the point where an outside observer would have seen two apparently happy young people – one a tall, handsome man, the other a curvaceous, sweet young woman – walking about a foot or so apart as they strolled easily and comfortably through the night... while flirting outrageously.

Dolly had absolutely no clue that was what she was doing. Mind mainly centred on an entire host of potential problems, (none of which were currently present), she sort of ran the social side of things on autopilot – complete oblivious to the fact that she was using the way she, as a younger man, would have acted around a similarly-aged man as the 'temple' for the joking and so forth. While entirely – and platonically – appropriate between two guys, it presented a rather different picture when applied in mixed company.

Similarly, she failed to catch what happened as they were walking past a bar, and Justin suggested the might want to grab a couple of drinks before heading on. Thinking mainly that, as worldview-shaking the day had been, a good stiff drink or two would certainly help, Dolly responded to the invitation the way a guy might have – rather than considering the impression given when a woman accepted a guy's offer to buy her a drink.

To put it another way – Dolly was completely oblivious to the fact that she was no out on a date with a broad-shouldered, handsome young man. It was a situation so far outside her frame of reference, that despite the horror she'd felt at the abstract concept, she completely failed to recognize the concrete reality of it when it occurred. Indeed, as she gratefully accepted the drinks Justin brought her, unaware of how warmly she was smiling at him, she thought mainly about how lucky she was that this apparent acquaintance of Dolly's was a nice guy.

Too nice, in certain ways – the kind of 'nice' guys used when trying to impress a girl, say. That was a point that also escaped Dolly's notice – as was the fact that not all the liquid warmth that seemed to be spreading through her body could be attributed to the alcohol she was consuming.

The considerable amount of alcohol she was consuming...

It had been quite some time since Donny had gone out on a date, and even then it had been a 'mature adult' sort of date, quite but experienced, both partners playing off the same, somewhat sedate script. If she'd been able to make that leap, to remember how Donny had 'dated' back in University, Dolly might have clued it – but she did not.

So it was that Dolly, more than a little befuddled by alcohol and staggering somewhat atop her slender heels, was actually grateful for Justin's support as they exited the bar.

It never occurred to her that there might be another reason why a handsome young man would be willing to slip a strong arm around the delightfully slender waist of a shapely young woman - nor did it occur to her alcohol-clouded mind that she should be worried at just how... comfortable that arm felt there. Indeed, given the cool air of the evening, the 'body heat' of her companion felt extremely warm and comforting; if that warmth and 'comfort' seemed strangely centered in the lower part of her abdomen, well Dolly could be forgiven missing the implications of that, what with never before having personally experienced what feminine arousal felt like from the inside.

Although unaware of it at the time, it was a claim that Dolly would never be able to make honestly ever again.

When they finally arrived at her place – a tiny, but cozy pre-WWII bungalow – all she really knew is that she felt very pleasantly dreamy. Not sleepy, really, but somehow almost distant from herself except for the steadily gathering cascade of pleasurable sensations that were claiming more and more of her whirling, disjointed attention.

At the door, there was a bit of a fumble, as she stared rather dizzily at the keys in her purse, uncertain which one was for her do – but Justin was sooo wonderful, and he took the keys from her and let them inside. She plopped down on the couch in the small, but nicely furnished living room, and the sweetheart actually lit a sweet little fire to keep her warm – not that she was really feeling cold, quite the liquid-warmth-flowing-from-her-center opposite. She was glad to let him go search the kitchen for something to drink, since she might have managed to find the kitchen easily enough, given the tiny size of the two-bedroom bungalow, but without any idea which cupboards held what. When he returned with a three-quarter-full bottle of white wine, she merely gave a soft little giggling sigh and sipped contently at the glass he handed her – and never once so much as thought of protesting as he settled on the couch with her. It was a small room with a small couch, so it seemed dreamily logical for him to have to sort of cuddle up to her that way on it, hands around her lush, sensitive body...

....touching...

...roaming....

...caressing....

...and leaving burning trails of liquid pleasure everywhere skin touched skin.

Given that, it seemed to make perfect sense to make sure that each of them had more skin to touch to the others, increasing the pleasure each felt as he continued to stroke, caress and fondled her steadily less-clad body.

Eyes closed, laying almost limp in his arms, she simply accepted the pleasure he was giving her, not even bothering to try and sort out intentions or implications as she simply gave herself over to the wonderful sensations. It did dawn on her after a while that his hands seemed to return quite often to the huge, heavy tits thrust so proudly from her chest, but the contact felt so wonderful good, especially against her huge and now almost painfully erect nipples, the she wouldn't have asked him to stop, even had the thought to do so occurred to her.

Some little time later, at the point she realized that his tongue was in her mouth and they'd been kissing for some time, a muzzy thought did rear up in her besotted brain, telling her that this wasn't right – but she got so dreamily lost in pondering how to tell him so when their mouths were otherwise so fully occupied, that she never got the chance.

Then a new and even more intense form of pleasure came along, and she sort of mentally dumped everything else – including most of her sense-of- self – in favor of experiencing the sensation as intensely as possible.

The pleasure was not only more amazingly intense, but considerably more localized, as well. Dreamily, she tried to pin down just how and where nearly mind-numbing pleasure was coming from – and after a blissful eternity, it occurred to her that it might be easier to figure out if she opened her eyes.

So she did.

'Who...?' She thought muzzily to herself; then, 'Oh, right, Justin'

Another brief eternity, floating on a cloud of pleasure, and it occurred to her to direct her gaze more toward the location of that amazing pleasure thrumming through her body. Her gaze dipped...

'Damn, get a load of those tits...' She thought dreamily, watching them bounce and heave enticingly, all wiggly and jiggy and, from the sounds of it, attached to a chick who was giggly.

Listening to the dreamy, giggly gasps of pleasure as she stared at the huge, swaying tits, she thought: 'Makes sense – sounds like a horny little bimbo getting well and truly fucked – these huge hooters go perfectly with some empty-headed little sex-pot...'

Some time later, she recalled she was trying to figure out the source of her own pleasure, not listen to some brain-dead fuck-doll gaspingly tell God how much she loved getting fucked, so she let her focus shift to something a little further away from her eyes, and closer to her pleasure.

'Damn, look at the size of that cock – no wonder she's screaming in pleasure...' She thought dreamily. Extremely shapely legs, clad only in white thigh-highs and electric blue high-heeled pumps, were spread very wide indeed, allowing plenty of room for that huge cock to thrust into the sopping wet cunt visible in the clean-shaven crotch she was eyeing.

There was no doubt at all where the fuck-happy dumb-slut was getting her pleasure from, she thought – bemused that, from the sound of it, she was getting nearly as much pleasure from what she was doing, (or having done to her), as Donny was from... from...

..from what? She was looking for the source of her own intense pleasure, wasn't she? Yet all she could see from this angle was huge, heaving tits, sexy legs, and high-heels, all overshadowed by the muscular body pounding the pleasure into the bimbo's body.

'Huh...' she thought. 'I was wrong – those are at least six-inch heels I'm wearing.'

A long, ecstatic pause, and then...

'Wait – I'm wearing...? But, that would mean...'

It took a couple seconds more – and then Donny/Dolly's eyes widened. 'The bimbo's me! I'm the one getting well and truly fucked!'

She opened her mouth to scream in something other than pleasure...

...and it wasn't as if she changed her mind, because when that first orgasm hit a split-second later, there was effective no mind to change, just raw, wordless screams of ultimate ecstasy.

A short while later, orgasm number two hit even harder.

Three through five weren't nearly as power as even the first – but the 'bam- bam-bam' rapidity of them, like a string of firecrackers, was more than enough to keep her from becoming coherent enough to complain.

Number six, on the other hand – number six was even more powerful than all the previous five combined.

Eyes now wide from completely different reasons, reduced to little more than her animal back-brain, and only that because there had to be something to experience the pleasure her nerves were producing, the very concepts of words ceased to exist for the writhing, thrashing woman screaming in intense, orgasmic pleasure.

Pleasure so intense that, when it finally ended, the as-yet-still-unformed self behind that mind plummeted directly from the extreme heights of orgasmic ecstasy to the warm, enfolding depths of exhaustion.

The mind-rattling orgasm subsided, and Donny/Dolly promptly passed out.

TO BE CONCLUDED

SUMMARY: When a lab experiment goes wrong and releases a powerful energy blast, one guy wakes up in a parallel world only to discover that he is now a hot blond who loves a little action.

Part Two

Nestled in the shallow bowl of a valley, backed by deep blue shadows against the red-gold spill of sunrise staining the morning sky, the cute little bungalow dwelt in the heart of a mostly somnolent campus town.

Within the cozy comfort of the small dwelling, a single room was occupied, the sleeping murmurs of the occupant were the only human sound to contrast the faint electronic hums that provided most of the building's nocturnal soundtrack.

The murmur gradually became a very long, very low moan – so soft as to be nearly silent, yet incredibly heartfelt.

All things considered, Donny found himself rather surprised to be regaining consciousness.

At least, he assumed that to be the case, since all sorts of stimuli – including a host of aches and pains, not to mention even a truly massive headache, reported by his supine body – insisted on registering on his senses. This included a wide variety of extremely strange sensations that registered as being very, very... odd – but not 'painful', not in any way that could possibly cause the highly unusual sensations to be more important to Donny than the massive headache. One sense that had yet to report in, however, was 'sight' – which wasn't surprising, as a very muzzy-headed and befuddled Donny tried to figure out how the hell he could possibly feel as bad as he did at the moment, and certainly wasn't willing to accept the even worse pain light would surely spark against his optic nerve.

With another low, muttered moan, Donny began very slowly and carefully moving, all the while trying to remember...

...only to suddenly stiffen as at least partial memory resurfaced.

"I died!" Donny blurted out – and the sound caused a wince... which was initially purely responsive to the bolt of pain the high-pitched sound drove deeper into an already spitting headache.

It was only a second later that she realized exactly why her voice was so high pitched.

"Holy shit – I turned into a woman !" She gasped.

Then recollection moved even further on through the evening – and Dolly's huge blue eyes flew wide open, and she shrieked in horror: " and I fucked a guy!"

That's when her head exploded.

At least, that was how it seemed to her. Shock, combined with both the high-pitched, high-volume scream and the sudden assault of on her optic nerve, turned an already brutal hangover into a truly massive migraine that seemed to fill the entire universe with a red-tinged haze of thudding agony.

Mewling in pain, Donny/Dolly all-but-collapsed off of the bed, and began slowly and awkwardly dragging herself toward the bathroom. It seemed an endless journey, made longer by having to peer agonizingly through lowered lashes – Dolly's house wasn't familiar enough for her to 'instinctively' know where exactly the bedroom was in relation to the bedroom. Only the small size of the house kept it from being drawn out into an apparently endless and hopeless odyssey.

Once she reached the pastel-colored bathroom, Dolly managed to stagger out of the low crawl with which she'd made her way there. With great effort, she managed to haul herself upright just inside the doorframe – and then had to hang there for several minutes, one arm wrapped around a towel rack for support, as the effort of rising left her weakly dizzy. Her head throbbed mercilessly in time with her thundering pulse, and Dolly made now effort to flip on the light switch – the mild, golden glow of dawn through a window had been enough to make it feel as if somebody had jabbed an icepick into each of her eyes, and she had no urge whatsoever to discover what the brighter, whiter lighting of the bathroom would do to her migraine, should be she stupid enough to try it.

Instead, she stumbled her way across the small room, using only the dim light that streamed in the bathroom door. Swinging open the mirrored surface of the medicine cabinet, she half-blindly began pawing through it, ignoring the unidentifiable feminine detritus dropping helter-skelter into the sink with aurally-agonizing 'tinks' and 'tunks'.

Finally her slender fingers encountered what felt like a generic bottle of painkillers. Squinted attempts to read the writing on the bottle only drove new spears of pain through her head, so Dolly, driven by pain and need, grappled with the bottle until the child-proof cap gave way in her hands.

She managed to get a couple of pills out of the bottle, although her shaking hands lost a good dozen or so into the sink during the fumbling attempt.

Ignoring that fact – as she was ignoring practically anything outside dealing with the world-defining headache – Dolly quick swallowed the two large, ovoid red pills, and then sagged down atop the toilet, barely aware of the sleep-tousled mane of hair as she leaned forward and braced her head in her hands, waiting desperately for the pills to kick in.

After a while, she began to feel better. Calmer.

Much, much calmer.

Which should have been very strange indeed, had she given it any thought – because the headache hadn't gone down so much as a single iota. It still throbbed and snarled behind her eyes like a barely-chained beast.

It was simply that having a raging migraine didn't bother her in the least... which it should have, had she thought about it. Then again, she didn't even consider how strange it was for her to calmly accept having a raging headache.

After all, she'd ended up taking twice the normal dosage of a medication prescribed for mood swings and depression related to unusually severe PMS – a drug in the same family as Prozac or Xanax.

In the dosage Dolly had just taken, it would have been downright incredible for anything to have 'upset' her – the chemical effect on her brain effectively disallowed all the physiological reactions to anxiety in almost any form. Indeed, given that it also compensated, (or, in this case, overcompensated), with an increased serotonin level, about all Dolly was capable of feeling at the moment was a sort of dreamy sense of relaxed well-being.

So, when she finally decided she 'felt normal' enough to give her horrifying, impossible situation a long, cold, hard look, the decision was implemented by rising with a slow and ethereal grace from the toilet, a slight, dreamy smile affixed unknowingly upon her face.

Which... wasn't exactly the ideal mental state in which to make extremely serious, life-defining decisions, but Dolly was completely unaware of how truly altered her mental state was, putting that strange, singing sense of numbness at her core down to nothing more than the 'aspirin' handling physical discomfort. She had no idea that the true drug was almost completely dampening her natural emotional pain, much less that it was greatly enhancing both emotional and physical pleasure as well.

Giddily dazed and bemusedly confused, she was barely in a state to make even simple rational decisions...

...which wasn't even the worst part.

No, what was much, much worse was the fact that, with the very little need to convince herself on the point bolstered by an almost complete disinterest in arguing it with herself, she actually believed her mind was running sharper and clearer after the headache 'faded'.

As irrational as it might have seemed for an objective perspective, in her current state Dolly had no trouble concluding that how distant and weak all the negative emotions were was 'obviously' a case of her having her emotional side, (which even now, unexamined gender-biased assumption had Dolly of thinking as the feminine aspect of a personality), 'controlled and ordered', which thus 'proved' how clear and sharp her mind was.

It might have seemed an impossible conclusion to draw... but Donny, (excluding days when finding gender impossibly reversed) had never been much of a drinker, much less a user of drugs, illegal or otherwise. Neither the male Donny, nor the mind inhabiting the emphatically feminine form of Dolly, had enough experience with drugs to recognize the symptoms accurately.

One set of those symptoms meant that Dolly's mind was wandering far afield, flitting from one thought to another, except when something 'bright and shiny' caught her eye and practically disrupted thought process altogether. Another set of symptoms altered how she was experiencing time. This, of course, was on top of both the anxiety reduction and pleasure enhancements... and so while things flitted briefly across her consciousness, it seemed to her that she was giving them long, grave consideration; given that her scattered wits were only capable of concentrating on a single thing, it also seemed that her shallow thoughts were much shaper and clearer than they were.

In one sense, that perception was accurate – she really was avoiding 'cluttering' her mind with all sorts of 'extraneous' thoughts as she rapidly considered whatever flitted through her fuzzy mind. It was simply that a good many of those 'extraneous' thoughts she wasn't having were necessary for anything like a sober, intelligent thought process.

So, the conclusions she shortly began to draw considering her unexpected situation and how to deal with it were... somewhat less than ideal.

No – that wasn't quite accurate. Say, rather, than the conclusions were somewhat less than sane.

Insanity was defined by how skewed a personal perspective was compared to the understood world; a cognitive break from reality.

The reality of the situation, as 'unreal' as it might have seemed, was that the massive dose of electricity had shunted the electrical engrams – the thought-patterns, and hence 'mind' – of Donny into another quantum possibility. It was a 'possibility' as every bit as complex and complicated as the original possibility – and thus, every bit as 'real' as what Donny still thought of as 'reality'.

Which was why he had woken up in a fully formed and adult female body younger than his old, male one; it was why that body had been clothed in gender-and-age appropriate clothing; it was why the other personas inhabiting this world had 'memories' of a woman whose existence had been neither possible nor probably until the very instance of existing, in which it became the new certainty.

The conclusion Donny's drug-addled brain came up with, was just a little bit different...

Fuzzily, Donny decided that there must have been a 'real' Dolly to mirror the Donny of 'reality'. Rather than a mere possibility, Donny assigned this never-before-having-existed persona with a past, with memories and feelings... and agency. After all, Donny hadn't chosen that female outfit the first night – so Dolly must have.

So, then Donny – now believing himself to still be 'Donny', helplessly trapped in Dolly's body and life – assumed that Dolly had chosen an outfit she liked to wear...

...just as she – NOT he – had chosen when, where, and with whom she had sex.

So, Donny finally concluded, (erroneously), it might be his mind, but it was her body – and so 'she' made all the choices about what Donny still thought of as 'feminine' things, like fashion and décor... and sex.

It wasn't a chain of logic Dolly came to quickly – no, indeed, it was a rather long-term process, with some rather interesting stages.

For example, when the thought struck her that certain feminine things, such as clothing, were already 'predetermined' by Dolly's taste, she muzzily tried to confirm the assumption by going through all her clothing to see what 'she' liked.

However, since there was absolutely no Dolly-thoughts, Donny found himself supplying them to her... based on his own, unquestioned assumptions about women.

Donny didn't go through the wardrobe and assess what seemed to be the most often-worn clothing – no, he decided what she 'really liked' based on the 'special' clothing he picked out and put on.

He'd chosen the thigh-high white stockings because they struck HIM as the most 'pretty and girly', and that they certainly were – as Donny pulled them up Dolly's long legs, all she could think was that she was right about how 'pretty' Dolly must have found them, for they certainly did make them look spectacular. What Donny didn't realize that they were 'special occasion' hosiery, and worn only rarely and with certain clothes.

Which, for a woman like the theoretically Dolly, would never have been the short, red pleated sport's skirt. The female equivalent of basic gym shorts, the garment was actually old-fashioned in a way, and was designed to be worn over leggings or bike shorts during sports – NOT with a pair of thigh- high stockings whose elasticized tops ended an inch and a half short of the hem of the skirt.

Of course, the athletic apparel also wasn't customarily worn with high heels

– the highest heels Donny found in the closet, equating the highest, thinnest heels with being the most 'feminine'. Indeed, in a certain sense, they were – but typically white ankle-strap pumps with gold-toned five- inch stiletto heels were a bit much for daily 'casualwear'.

It was a like failing of a male-raised mind that Donny did not realize your attractive young co-ed might choose to wear a rather daringly low-cut blouse, or the single push-up bra found in her lingerie drawer, but – certain very special occasions aside – rarely would she choose to wear them together, much less do so on a regular basis.

It was the same male 'blind spot' with which Donny chose all of Dolly's clothing... and, rather dreamily, it was the same mindset that decided to complete the 'look' with jewelry and make-up.

Make-up which was applied in the bathroom. As much of it was tumbled into the sink.

Along with the scattered handful of pills...

...of which she took two more.

The rest went into the small, red purse she had found, almost unknowingly dropped in there when she tucked the lipstick she had just used into the bag, as she thought a 'woman like her should'.

Which, at the moment, was exactly how "I'm Donny trapped in Dolly's body and chosen lifestyle!" was currently thinking of herself... having been the one to rather drunkenly 'deduce', based on the evidence she'd unknowingly chosen, what type of 'girl' she was helplessly trapped in the lifestyle of.

"Yup..." She sighed, consciously unaware of the dreamy smile plastered on her face as she gave voice to the horrifying truth: "I'm a bimbo !"

...and then she giggled sadly.

After all, she still felt wonderful as she gazed giddily upon the package of 'come-and-get-me!' Dolly had transformed in to. Her already curvaceous figure was both enhanced and outright advertised by the 'look' she'd gone with.

Her hair, fluffed out, surrounded her lovely young face in a silken halo that drifted and swayed with the slightest shift in her motion. As the human eye was drawn to motion, this would draw quite a bit of attention to her face – which looked far different than the innocent beauty it had radiated the night before.

The lash-extension mascara, violet eye-shadow, and burgundy eyeliner really made her huge, bright blue eyes 'pop'; as consequently huge as it made her baby-blues look, the effect of the gloss-red lipstick she was drew the eye even more to the now apparently full, pouty lips beneath her delicate, well-formed nose. A pair of big, rhinestone 'chandelier' earrings – really more appropriate to eveningwear and an elegant updo – sporadically flashed from one lobe or the other as her volumized mane of hair swept bare of one shoulder or the other.

Of course, since motion drew the eye, so would the hem of her skirt, forcing the gaze to take in her pert, heart-shaped ass and long, shapely young legs as she minced around atop the high-slender heels she wore – but that was the only thing that would be 'moving' with the overly-girlish mince she'd picked up.

Not with her huge tits threatening to pop right out of the top of the low-cut golden wrap-around blouse she wore. With the v-front of the shimmering silk blouse plunging nearly to her navel, a fair amount of lacy red bra was visible – proving that it rose barely high enough to cover her large, pink nipples, so that with every wiggling, jiggling, giggling step, it seemed like her tits were laying ready to jump right out at the nearest man she passed.

Which, in her current state, Dolly in no way found metaphorical or impossible. She truly did believe that, on 'feminine matters', her new Dolly- body had a mind of its own; that it was that mind that had chosen these clothes, (both originally to buy, and now to wear); and that mind had certain, unmistakably sexual reasons for wanting to own and wear such clothing on such a shapely young body.

Worst of all, it made perfect sense to 'Donny' – because 'Dolly' was clearly giddily happy to be seeing such a bodacious bombshell bimbo reflected back at her in the mirror.

That the euphoria she felt might be chemically induced never crossed her bemusedly befuddled mind – and so Dolly, with another giggling, drugged sigh, simply accepting the outrageous rationale that she could only ever be happy as this version of Dolly.

After all, she remembered feeling very unhappy at being 'plain Dolly' last night... except for the hazy memory of how much she had enjoyed the sex, physically at least.

Drugged or not – or, perhaps, especially drugged – Donny was unwilling to admit, even internally, that the pleasure could have come from 'him', and so it must have Dolly's... and that brought the whole irrational, hazy argument full circle, proving that in matters of tastes, aesthetic or sexual alike, they would be utterly miserable trying to apply Donny's... and deliriously, almost mindless happy following Dolly's.

When considered that way, it didn't leave much in the way of options – especially when the rest of her day only served to 'confirm' her conclusions.

After all, who but a ditzy bimbo wouldn't even remember what her own class schedule was? Especially since she had already been going to those classes for weeks now – at least according to the many friends in those classes she had, who she was too dippy and airheaded enough to remember the names of, despite 'clearly' having known them all more than a month, at the very least.

Of course, you couldn't expect much from a balloon-chested airhead who couldn't seem to concentrate in class, and had little success at making heads or tails of the subject matter, could you?

Especially not considering how completely obsessed with guys as she obviously was, since she was actively watching them to see which one found her all hot and sexy...

A more rational mind might have argued that she couldn't possibly know the preprogrammed 'history' everyone else did, since her very act of creating this reality, with her newly-born into it, had created all the pseudo-'false memories' everybody else had. Likewise, the same mind would have been pointed out that the shocking blunting of a usually bright mind was chemical and temporary, not 'unarguably' her natural condition. Likewise, with her body on display, it wasn't surprising that many guys ogled her openly – nor that, unused to being ogled by men in that way, she would be overly sensitive.

Most of all, self-same mind would have point out that Dolly wasn't, in fact, made deliriously happy by all these things, and that given the amount of drugs she took that day, 'Dolly' probably would have been equally, blissfully happily while simultaneously giving birth and undergoing a root canal.

In her current state, however, Dolly firmly believed all of it to be completely and utterly true – which was why, by the end of what felt like an unbelievably long day, she had developed a mantra that ran on a near- continuous loop through an already quite loopy brain:

"I'm just a balloon-chested, empty-headed little bimbo. The only thoughts I can keep in my ditzzy little head is making boys happy. This is who I am, and the only person I will ever be. I just have to learn to accept it and be happy."

Over and over she fed that thought through her drug-addled brain, until it became one of the few thoughts she could not only hold on to for any length of time, but call up quickly and easily. Indeed, she repeated it until it became habitual, not even needing to be summoned in order to run through her befogged mind, reminding her who she was, and exactly what she should be doing to make herself 'happy'.

Which is how Dolly ended back up at the campus bar, this time with a couple of handsome, athletic young men in adoring tow.

The rusty-haired, tall one was Kirk, and his lean, ebony partner was Mason

– they were soccer players, tending to the taut-and-rangy rather than the bulky musculature of football players. They obviously couldn't believe their good fortune in being allowed to hang out with such a hottie – but Dolly was as completely oblivious to their uncertain nervousness as she so many other things, having picked them up more or less as something she thought she - Dolly, that was – was supposed to do.

Oblivious, she simply kept a smile on her face, even as she fretted over whether or not she was doing enough to keep the boys happy.

She'd purposefully wiggle and jiggled as she led the way into the bar, and she thought they'd enjoyed the view of long, scissoring legs and taut, pert ass... but, since they had been behind her, she was absolutely certain – and that worried her.

Well, actually, it was the fact that she was weaning off the mind-numbing happy pills that was allowing her that concern, but SHE didn't realize it so, of course, the steadily increasing effects of the alcohol that the guys insisted on buying for her was also misidentified as, as second choice, she kept making sure to give them 'good views' while they sat and chatted.

In other words, she was often and quite visibly posing for the guys, making sure to often find excuses to stretch out her long, shapely legs to lean forward toward them eagerly, putting her huge, out-thrust tits on display... to lick her lips long, slow and often, before inserting the neck of the bottle suggestively between her full, red lips....

...and rather than realize how drunk she was getting all over again, she kept believing that the alcoholic euphoria came from how well she was doing the one thing that made her happy – ‘pleasing boys’.

Since Dolly not only seemed to be willingly coming on to them, but happy to be doing so, Kirk and Mason’s responses were understandable.

When, rather breathlessly, Dolly asked the two of them if they wanted to take her home, the two friends shared a look that mixed excitement, disbelief and discomfort in about equal measure. Either of the guys would gladly have gone home with the hot woman, had she singled one of them out – but her flirting and question alike had been directed equally at the two of them, leaving them more than a little uncertain. Still and all, it wasn’t everyday a chick this sexy clearly and unequivocally came on to them, so in the end – and after a few more helpings of Dutch courage – the two young men finally decided that there was more arousal that ‘squick’ in the thought of sharing the blonde bombshell for the night.

Which was how the two of them ended up walking her home...

* * * * *

Big, blue eyes very slowly fluttered open in the golden glow of morning light...

...and, after a second of stunned silence, Dolly launched herself from the bed, fisted hand pressed hard against full lips to suppress the horrified scream that tried to tear itself from her throat.

If waking up to realize that you’ve been turned into a woman who just had sex with a man, repeating it the next day with two men, both of whom were still in her bed, was infinitely worse.

“Oh, God, oh God...” Dolly muttered to herself, slowly backing out of the bedroom as her eyes locked on the naked men in her bed. Shaking, she made her way to the bathroom, where shared stared haggardly at the shocked woman in the mirror.

“What did I do ?” She asked herself plaintively – and unnecessarily.

She knew exactly what she had done yesterday, and why and now, only somewhat hungover, she also understood exactly how she could have possibly believed what had been running through her head all day yesterday. It took the work of only a moment, after all, to see what he pills she had been popping the day before were, and all the possible implications.

She was shocked, disgusted and horrified by what she’d done the day before, and not only the sex – although, on its own, that was as bad as any single ‘overly-feminine’ action she’d taken.

Still, just ‘being female’ was a life-long thing, not the much more occasional ‘having sex’ and yet, she’d believed that she not had to do them, yesterday – she’d actually believed she’d enjoyed it all.

Which was solely and wholly because of the drugs she had taken.

The same drugs of which there was still a half-full bottle sitting on her medicine cabinet's shelf.

The woman in the mirror began to shake at the thought.

Without the drugs, she would never have done anything she had done yesterday – in fact, she would have tried as hard as possible to be as masculine as possible...

...which, now trapped in the body of a woman, would not have been nearly enough. Oh, she would have avoided the acute horror and self-disgust she felt this morning, but only at the expense of a continuous, long-term unhappiness day-to-day.

With the drugs, on the other hand, she'd been deliriously happy...

Oh, she had been completely wrong about the how and why of her happiness – but blissfully, if rather vapidly happy she had indeed been.

All because of some chemical cocktail that had let her be a brain-dead, sex- obsessed bimbo.

A fate, when viewed soberly, only marginally better than death itself. A fate, that when viewed while drugged, was not only enjoyable, but seemingly obvious and inevitable.

For several long moments, Dolly simply continued staring at herself in the medicine-cabinet mirror...

...and then, with shaking hand, she slowly reached out, opened the mirrored door, and lifted out the half-full bottle of pills.

When the guys awoke some time later, they found the warm, willing, and supremely happy woman of the day before waiting eagerly for them.

THE END

SUMMARY: After receiving a strange cigarette from a man in the cold, Jerry finds that with each smoke he changes more and more...

Breaking The Habit

By Gunslinger

The cold November wind whistled eerily down the man-made canyons of steel and concrete as Jerry pushed open the door and stepped outside. He shivered as the chill wind bit into him, and quickly zipped up his worn leather bomber jacket to preserve his body heat. As it was, his unprotected face and hands were chilling quickly.

Digging in a pocket he pulled out a crumpled pack of Marlboros. Tapping the bottom of the red and white pack, he extracted the last of the cylinders of tobacco. Sticking the cigarette between his lips, he stuffed the empty pack back into his pocket, exchanging it for a Zippo lighter. He huddled back into the scant protection of the doorway as he lit the cigarette and puffed on it.

The low, sullen sky began to disgorge its cargo of snow. Not the light, fluffy flakes of Vermont postcards, these were sharp, stinging pellets driven by the incessant wind. Intelligent people had already sought the shelter of heated buildings, leaving the street eerily deserted, except for a few cars moving slowly over the snow-covered roads. Turning the faux fur collar on the coat up around his neck, Jerry hunched his shoulders against the weather and began to walk quickly, his hiking boots crunching loudly across the new fallen snow.

So engrossed with keeping his face from bearing winter's onslaught, Jerry failed to watch where he was going. He barely caught a glimpse of the other figure in front of him before his own momentum carried him into the other man. His cigarette, protruding from Jerry's face, dropped onto the sleeve of the other man's heavy wool overcoat. With a muttered curse, the man shook his arm, dropping the cigarette into the snow, where it died with an angry his.

"Oh, jeez, I'm sorry about that." Jerry blurted, as the tall, distinguished looking older man critically examined the charred spot on his expensive coat. Jerry's voice bore testimony to his born-and-bred in New York heritage. "I wasn't looking where I was going."

The silver-haired gentleman eyed Jerry as if he was a specimen under a magnifying glass. "Perhaps this will be a valuable lesson for you then, young man." His voice carried a British accent so crisp it could cut steel. "This is, or at least, was, a quite expensive topcoat."

The man spoke with a cold, precise tone that sent chills down Jerry's spine. The last thing he needed was any kind of trouble, but he seemed to have stepped into it anyway.

Jerry sighed. "Yeah, I can see that. Look, you just tell me how much, and I'll pay for it, okay?"

The tall Englander looked down at the soaked cigarette and surprised Jerry with a non sequitur. "Are you particular about the brand of cigarette you smoke?"

Jerry blinked. "Ah, no, not really."

The taller man nodded, as if coming to a decision. With precise movements, he unbuttoned his dark blue coat and dipped his hand into an inside pocket. "Here you go young man."

Jerry numbly took the proffered item, and carefully turned it over in his hands. It was a pack of cigarettes. "Uh...Look, no offense, but...I burn your coat, and YOU give ME something? I don't get it mister."

The tall man looked down his aristocratic nose at Jerry. "I assure you that I have no use for them. I think they'll put to much better use if you have them. As for the damage to the coat, don't trouble yourself about it." With that, the tall man rebuttoned his coat, and walked to the curb, where he flagged a taxi. When the cab pulled to the side of the road, the tall Englishman leaned down to the window and asked "How much do you charge to go from here to the Brewster-Hayes Hotel?" Apparently satisfied with the answer, he opened the rear door and climbed inside.

"Uh, thanks." Jerry called to the man as he vanished into the cab. The tall foreigner didn't bother to respond as he pulled the door shut. Seconds later, the cab pulled away from the curb and merged with the meager traffic travelling down the street. Jerry returned his gaze to the pack he held.

It was an odd looking pack. First of all, it was more of a box than a pack - behind the cellophane wrapping, the long, flat pack was made up of two halves of thick, rigid cardboard, joined at the top with a strip of silk that acted like a hinge. The simple, yet elegant black package used an elegant typeface to announce the contents.

Sixty Queen Size

Filtered

ESTRA

Cigarettes

Produced With Specially Selected And Prepared Ingredients For A Smoking Experience Like No Other

Produced By Bryce & Co. (U.K.) Ltd.

Under Special License

Unsurprisingly, Jerry had never smoked an English cigarette. Curious, he unwrapped the cellophane and opened the box.

The long, flat box was divided into three layers of twenty cigarettes each, separated by a layer of dark, stiff paper. The long, slender cigarettes were a creamy color, not quite beige, with slightly darker filters ringed with a gold band. The tobacco smell was rich, and not quite the same as the Marlboros Jerry was accustomed to. Removing one of the cigarettes, Jerry put the pack into his inside coat pocket rather than just shoving it into an outside pocket like usual. He couldn't bring himself to damage the elegant package unnecessarily.

Placing the long cigarette between his lips, Jerry lit it and inhaled deeply - and a new expression crossed his face as he slowly removed the cigarette and stared at it in amazement.

The flavor of the cigarette was unlike any he'd ever known. First of all, the smoke was so smooth, it didn't feel like he was smoking at all. The flavor itself, remarkably rich, was hard to describe. It wasn't just the taste of it, but the smell. If forced at gunpoint to describe what the sensation of smoking it was like, Jerry would have hesitated, then provided the closest simile he could - eating a rich, dark chocolate while sitting near an aromatic hard-wood fire. Even that didn't accurately describe it.

Jerry inhaled the glorious smoke again, and was rewarded with the same rich, amazing flavor and odor as his first drag. Immensely enjoying the rich, satisfying cigarette, he continued to make his way home. While smoking the remarkable tobacco, even the cold, bitter wind didn't seem as bad as it had been.

Normally, Jerry would have been somewhat embarrassed to be seen smoking the 'Queen Size' cigarettes - his old friends use to call the long, slender cigarettes 'chick sticks', because only women - and fags - smoked them. The last thing Jerry wanted his friends to see him do was ANYTHING even VAGUELY feminine - it might start some unpleasant rumors. But Jerry figured it was worth an occasional snicker behind his back if his friends saw him smoking them. The extra long cigarette lasted the entire trip back to his apartment, and he savored each and every puff.

Arriving at his apartment, Jerry unlocked the front door and sighed in relief as a warm blast of air wafted from his apartment into the chilly, ground-floor hallway. He stepped inside and quickly shucked off his jacket, which was suddenly much too warm. As he hung the snow-dampened coat in the closet, he retrieved the cigarette pack and lighter from it, and set them beside his aging, worn couch as he ducked into the kitchen.

The apartment was a large, two bedroom one that showed the occasional "woman's touch" in decor. Yet Jerry lived alone - when he'd first moved in, it had been with his then-girlfriend. But a few months later, she had left him for another man, leaving him alone in the large apartment. Jerry sometimes considered finding a cheaper place to live, but he liked the space and style of his apartment, including the large, peasant style kitchen, whose faux stone floor felt cold under his stocking feet as he entered.

Out of the freezer he pulled a Savarian microwave dinner. Dropping it into the microwave, he punched in the ten-minute time, and as the microwave hummed to life, he ducked into the bathroom to relief his straining bladder.

Exactly seventeen minutes later, he sighed as he finished off the last of the Salisbury Steak in 'gravy'. Pushing the TV tray aside, he propped his feet up and flipped around the channels until he found a sitcom to watch. Sipping at a beer, he pulled another cigarette out of the pack. He lit the cigarette and was rewarded with the same rich aroma and flavor as the first one. However, this one was even more enjoyable, as he was warm and comfortable as he savored it.

Jerry smoked this one down the very filter before he reluctantly butted the cigarette out in his ashtray. Finishing he beer, he let out a belch that must have registered on the Richter scale. Gathering up the trash from his dinner, he dumped it in the garbage. On his way to his bedroom, he clicked off the TV, then quickly stripped naked, dropping his clothes like a trail of breadcrumbs behind him. By the time he reached his bed, he was clad only in a pair of boxer shorts. He collapsed on the sagging mattress, and in no time, was sound asleep.

The annoying, high-pitched buzz of his alarm clock jolted Jerry from a confused, chaotic sleep.

"God damn it!" Jerry muttered. His eyes still closed, he batted around his bed table until he succeeded in shutting the damn thing off. Being Saturday, he didn't need to get up this early. He'd just forgotten to shut it off last night.

Jerry's sleep had been poor and intermittent, chased with disquieting dreams, which vanished from memory immediately. Bleary-eyed and not completely away, Jerry stumbled from his bed and pulled on his long terry-cloth bathrobe. Swaying slightly and futilely running his sleep disarrayed hair, he stumbled towards the kitchen. Pouring a cup of coffee from yesterday's pot was a major feat of dexterity this early in the morning, but he managed to get the mug into the microwave. While it was warming, he fumbled for his cigarettes. The unfamiliar pack almost stumped him, and he had just managed to extract one when the microwave beeped at him.

Retrieving his mug of luke-warm, caffeine laden liquid, Jerry lit his cigarette and took it and his coffee out onto his small, ground-floor patio.

Since there was a balcony directly above him, no snow had actually accumulated on his patio, but the bare concrete was freezing cold against Jerry's feet. The cold morning wind bit almost painfully through the robe, especially on his chest. Jerry welcomed the cold, hoping it, and the coffee, would help wake him up. As he dragged on his first cigarette of the morning, he thought that the incredible flavor couldn't hurt either - it complemented the bitter, stale coffee, making it taste like the finest, fresh brewed Colombian blend.

Although the day was cold, it was crisp and clear, the snow-bearing clouds having moved off during the night, leaving a pale blue dome to greet the morning's light.

It took him slightly longer than usual to finish his morning's routine - the extra-long cigarette was to blame for that. Shivering worse than usual, he stumbled on numb feet back into the apartment, quickly shutting the sliding glass door behind him. He was now painfully wide awake, and he quickly headed for the next step in his routine - a warm shower to bring some life back into his near-frozen body.

Jerry turned on the spray to its usual temperature. Stripping, he ducked into the stall - and almost screamed. To his frozen flesh, the moderately warm water felt almost boiling hot. Thankfully, it passed quickly and his muscles loosened under the soothing spray.

"What the fuck?" Jerry said out loud, his voice reverberating in the confined space. He stared down at his chest in amazement, then slowly raised his hands and made sure his eyes weren't playing tricks on him.

No, they weren't. For some reason, his nipples were amazingly, almost grotesquely, distended. They thrust from his chest, as long and thick as his pinky finger from the tip to the first joint. And as his hands touched them, he found they were incredibly sensitive, as he gasped at the pleasurable sensation that shot from them when his hands made contact.

"Must be from the cold." He reasoned, still staring at the incongruously huge nipples. Shaking his head, he grabbed the soap and began to wash.

When he reached his chest, he had to contend with the odd, but incredibly pleasurable, sensations from his swollen nipples. When he finally shut off the water and stepped from the shower stall, he couldn't help but stop and stare at himself in the mirror.

His skin was as smooth and soft as a newborn baby's. No hair at all was on his body below his eyelashes. That, of course, wasn't really a cause for alarm at all. His clothing covered his hairless body, after all, and nobody would know. He WAS concerned with his distended nipples, however, which his eyes kept being drawn back to. There was something fundamentally wrong with seeing his own nipples so ridiculously enlarged.

He meant to dry himself off quickly and efficiently - but it didn't work out that way. The towel felt unusually harsh against his denuded skin, and when he reached his nipples, he had to bite his lip as the coarse fabric rubbed bolts of amazing sensations from his nipples. Finally, reasonably dry, he went into his room and pulled on a pair of jeans and a sweatshirt.

Almost immediately he discovered that the sweatshirt rubbed against the nipples, recreating the pleasure that he'd experienced with the towel. Every errant movement caused another quick, pleasant sensation. The erotic sensations quickly caused his cock to become rock-hard in arousal.

"Hell," he gasped, "I could get to like this." It was unbelievably weird - but DAMN, it felt good.

Walking awkwardly due to his slowly fading erection, Jerry grabbed his boots from the closet, shaking off the water from the soles, the remnants of the snow from yesterday. Plopping down on the couch, he unrolled a pair of white sweat socks and pulled them on. Shoving his feet into the boots, he pulled the laces tight and did them up.

He frowned as he wiggled his toes in the ends of the boots. The winter footwear had fit perfectly the day before, but now they felt like they were too large for his feet.

Quickly, he undid the boots and pulled them off, followed by the socks. He went into his bedroom and pushed open the closet door. Several pairs of shoes lay in the bottom of the closet, and he pulled out a couple of them at random. Carrying them over to his bed, he sat on the edge and dumped the shoes on the floor. Picking a pair of black, formal shoes, he slid his feet inside and stood up. Sure enough, they felt too big as well, as did the other shoes he tried.

His face a mask of confusion and amazement, he slowly returned the shoes to the closet and shut the door. Shaking his head, he grabbed a couple of pairs of socks and pulled both pairs onto his feet, one on top of the other. The extra layer of sock allowed him to put his boots on and have them fit well enough for now. He pulled his jacket out of the closet, pulling it on as he retrieved his wallet and bankbook from the coffee table where he'd dropped them last night. Still shaking his head in mild disbelief, he left the apartment, closing the door behind him.

As he left the building, Jerry dug out another cigarette and lit it. He headed off towards downtown, only a few blocks from his centrally- located apartment. With the improved weather, more people were, like him, out and about doing their chores that had been deferred during the long, bitter week of bad weather.

Walking along, Jerry began to notice something unusual - his pants seemed to be a little tight. Or rather, they seemed to be BECOMING a little tight. They seemed almost to be shrinking across his hips and ass, although the waistband of the pants remained the same - or, if anything, a little looser. Slowly, the heavy material stretched uncomfortably taut across his crotch and buttock, making his continued strides somewhat awkward. It also caused an unpleasant tightening across his crotch, and Jerry surreptitiously rearranged his cock to a more comfortable position.

Arriving at his bank, he glanced through the glass doors, and was surprised to find that there was a fairly long line inside. Apparently, too many people had had the same idea as himself - get to the bank early and 'avoid the lines'. Jerry decided to wait outside for a bit to let the line shorten, and took the time to indulge in another cigarette.

Entering the bank, he joined the now reduced line, and waited until a teller was open. He smiled as he approached the wicket, and the familiar face behind it.

"Good Morning Mr. Connell, isn't it?" The teller chirped cheerfully. "What can I do for you today?"

"I'd like to cash this check, and take three-hundred of it as cash." Jerry said, trying - in vain - to remember the teller's name. She was the same one who'd opened his account, and he'd dealt with her many times since then, but the name wouldn't quite come. Shrugging mentally, he passed across his bankbook and check - then stared at his hand in amazement.

It was attached to his arm alright - but it DIDN'T look like his hand. It was a little smaller, and the finger's longer and more slender. The teller, busy doing her job, didn't notice the blank look on his face while he stared at his hand, and he shook himself out of it before she looked up to give him his money.

The teller carefully counted out the money into Jerry's oddly slender hands. "sixty...eighty...ninety.. - and that's three hundred, Mr. Connell."

Jerry pocketed the cash and retrieved his bankbook. "Thanks." He said with a brief smile, tucking his bankbook into his rear pocket. He had a little trouble getting it in the taut fabric over his swollen ass.

The teller nodded, then leaned forward slightly. "Uh, if you don't mind me saying - I like how you've changed your hair." She pointed at his head, somewhat unnecessarily, as Jerry DID know where his hair was.

But he didn't know what she was talking about. Frowning slightly, he muttered a quick 'thanks', then headed for the front door of the bank, the too-tight jeans making each step feel awkward.

As he left the building, he paused outside and turned to the mirrored window of the bank. Sure enough, his hair HAD changed. Disbelieving, Jerry ran his fingers through his hair, watching his reflection do the same. But instead of the short, black hair he was used to seeing, it was a shaggy mane of dark-brown, and considerably fuller than usual, although only a few inches longer, mostly at the back.

Jerry stared for a few minutes longer, until he became aware of the odd look of those people passing by. Shoving his chilled hands into the pockets of his coat, Jerry quickly headed off, his mind churning over the new development.

Lighting another smoke, his mind worked over what was going on. Slowly, but surely, his body was slowly altering itself - and he was beginning to see a pattern to the changes. There was little doubt, to him, what the end result was going to be. It was the hands that were a dead give-away - they were decidedly feminine hands. Which meant that his jeans probably hadn't tightened, really. Rather, his hips and ass had filled out, becoming painfully confined in a pair of pants never designed to contain a feminine figure.

Jerry was still mulling it over, more the 'how' than the 'why' or 'what', when he almost tripped and went sprawling, barely catching himself in time. He'd been so caught up in his thoughts, realizations and emotions, that he'd failed to notice the continuing changes.

His pants were no longer painfully tight, but the waist was quite loose. That was because he seemed to have shrunk several inches in the past few minutes. The pant cuffs hung loosely around his boots, in which his smaller feet practically swam. At the same time, the jacket sat like a tent over his reduced torso, the cuffs covering his hands completely.

Slowly, stunned, Jerry pulled his pants up as far as he could, and tightened his belt until they were in no danger of sliding down over his mysteriously widened hips. Even so, it was obvious that these clothes wouldn't serve him much longer. He hesitated, wondering, then made a difficult decision. Bracing himself, he turned and headed towards a store nearby that he knew about. Minutes later, he was turning into the doorway of a second-hand clothing shop.

Jerry smiled briefly at the cashier. "Hi, Jesse." The cashier, engrossed in a thick novel, didn't even look up, merely throwing a distracted wave Jerry's way.

Jerry moved through the racks quickly, feeling several conflicting emotions as he picked through the clothing. For the most part, he was guessing at the sizes, but he didn't want to take the time to try things on. Unfortunately, selection was fairly limited, since it WAS a second hand shop, and he had to take what he could, and not be too fussy about it. At least they were cheap. Taking his selection to the front desk, he dumped them beside the register.

The cashier looked up from the novel - and blinked in surprise. Jerry had called her by name, yet she didn't recognize the - person - standing before her in the ill-fitting clothes. Jerry caught the look but ignored it - he was a customer, and he trusted that his flow of cash would be more important than curiosity.

He was right. The cashier rang up the purchases without comment, and moments later Jerry was hailing a cab and heading home, his three bags of clothing firmly in hand. What Jerry didn't know was the entire trip the cabby was trying to figure out if his passenger was male or female. It was the voice that made the cabby decide, tentatively, to label the passenger 'male'. Still, to be on the safe side, he avoided calling the fare either 'sir' OR 'miss' as he informed him/her of the charge.

Jerry paid the cabby, then took his bags into his apartment. His newly shrunken feet were so much smaller that he didn't even have to undo the laces to get the boots off, he just kicked them off. Pulling off his over-sized jacket, he hung it up. Carrying his purchases, he went into the bedroom, and dumped the bags on the bed. Taking a deep breath, he shucked off his ill-fitting clothing, and stood nude before his full-length mirror.

He looked like a teen-aged girl. His legs, smooth and silky, were balanced atop small, dainty and extraordinarily feminine feet. His shapely legs led upwards towards rounded, feminine hips that fronted a firm, full ass. His waist then nipped in to a pleasing, feminine contour before rising across a flat, smooth stomach to a chest that supported two small, budding breasts that sported outrageously large nipples, engorged in the cool air.

Below the lengthening, lightening mane of hair, his face was subtly altered. There was no one thing that Jerry could put his finger on, but the overall effect was definitely more womanly than it used to be.

In fact, the only thing that spoiled the illusion was the shrunken penis that hung between his silken thighs. About half the size it used to be, it lay flaccid over a pair of almost non-existent testicles.

Jerry spent several minutes just staring at his altered, feminine body. Slowly, he tore his gaze away from his changing body and turned from the reflection in the mirror. Like a man in a daze, he slowly approached the bed and sat on it, his mind whirling uselessly.

Finally, he snapped out of it. He realized that, right now, his own I.D. and history was useless to him, and would become increasingly more so the further he changed. Already, he was sufficiently feminine that should a cop ask to see his I.D., there was a 50-50 chance that he couldn't pass for... himself.

Still trying to think, Jerry opened his bags of purchases - female clothing. It was somewhat...annoying to have to buy a whole new wardrobe of feminine clothing, but Jerry was positive that the clothing in his closet would no longer fit him. He'd have to accept what he could get from the second-hand store downtown - at least for now, anyway. Since his body was still changing, he had purchased whatever items he thought could keep up with his alterations.

Selecting an outfit, Jerry slowly dressed. First, he pulled on the pair of 'French cut' lace briefs, which fit well every but his crotch. TO ease his discomfort, Jerry tucked his shrunken penis between his legs, giving the crotch of the panties a smooth, feminine appearance.

Next, he pulled on a pair of pants. They were spandex, with little loops at the bottom of the legs for his feet. The material had been silk- screened, and from more than an inch away, appeared to be an incredibly tight pair of blue jeans. With a little difficulty, Jerry wiggled his way into them.

For a shirt, he pulled on the matching top for the 'jeans'. Like the pants, it was made out of spandex. However, it had been silk-screened to look like a short-sleeve button-up white blouse, with the top two buttons un done. The collar was real cotton, sewn onto the spandex material, and there was buttons sewn on the front. With the silk-screened 'seams' and pockets, the illusion that it was an incredibly form-fitting cotton blouse was complete.

Next, Jerry pulled on some footwear. Not what he'd chosen, given the chance, they were white leather boots, coming up to mid-calf, with four-inch spike heels. They fit slightly tight, but tolerable.

Approaching the mirror again, Jerry was stunned - he appeared to be looking at a flat-chested, but not unattractive young woman. His figure under the form-fitting clothes was decidedly feminine.

Since he was going to have to be 'female' in public, the next step was obvious. Taking a small purse with him, he stepped into the bathroom. With great care, he applied a minimum of makeup - a little eye shadow, some mascara, and a demure but glossy pastel lipstick that emphasized his somewhat fuller lips even further.

HE looked at the finished product. A not unattractive, undisputedly feminine young woman looked back from the mirror, a mild surprise etched on her smooth young face.

'Satisfied' - if that's the word he wanted, Jerry dropped the make-up in the small, white clutch purse and returned to the bedroom. There, he transferred his money, keys, and other items to the purse. From the bag he drew one last item - a black leather jacket that hung to mid-thigh, and belted at the waist. Leaving it hanging open, for now, he picked up the clutch purse and left his apartment.

He decided to walk to where he was going. Two of the items he'd put in the purse were the cigarettes, and a lighter. Extracting one of the British cigarettes, he snorted at the realization that, now, the 'chick sticks' looked perfectly natural between his glossy lips. HE lit the cigarette and continued walking, his high-heeled boots sliding slightly with each step across the snow-covered sidewalk.

Moments later, he felt an odd tickling sensation along his neck as his hair - not a sandy blonde, lengthened even further, dropping past his shoulder blades. Silently, Jerry thanked the fates that nobody was around to witness the inexplicable growth. At the same time, although Jerry had no way of knowing, his face became even more feminine, passing into 'cute' as his nose became smaller and more pert, and his lips became softer and fuller.

The one thing Jerry couldn't miss was the fact that the boots - previously a bit too tight, now fit perfectly.

Jerry continued his walk downtown, passing more and more fellow pedestrians as he neared the busier main streets. It was a decidedly odd feeling to watch other guys 'check her out' - and like what they saw. Trying to ignore the particular emotions this raised - this would be a bad time to express them - Jerry continued on.

As he neared his objective, the wind picked up briskly, chilling him to the bone almost immediately. He moved to close and belt his jacket, but instead decided to duck into a parking garage and use the shelter provided to light another of his dwindling supply of cigarettes.

Standing in the lee of a concrete pillar, Jerry had just puffed another cigarette to life when a short, muscular young man stepped into the same dark corner, with the same intention.

"Oh, sorry, I didn't see you there." The handsome young man said with a smile, his eyes roaming across Jerry's new-formed figure. "I hope you don't mind if..."

The man's voice died and his eyes widened as his jaws gaped open.

Jerry knew why, too, as he felt the stirring beneath his 'blouse' as his small breasts began to swell. At the same time, a pulling sensation at his crotch announced the formation of a new, fully functional vagina between his firm, silky thighs. Frantically, Jerry wrapped the coat around himself and fled, hunched over, as fast as his high heels would allow.

Cigarette clenched between his feminine lips, Jerry headed towards the building as his breasts continued to swell. The already tight fabric of the spandex 'blouse' began to stretch as his breasts grew farther into the alphabet. He'd just finished both the cigarette and the swift expansion of his bustline when he reached the doors to his destination. Discarding the butt of the cigarette, he straightened and entered the hotel lobby.

Relishing the warmth of the heated building, Jerry spotted the bar to which he was heading. He moved towards it, his full, womanly hips swaying seductively with each step, the high heels to amazing things to his full, firm ass.

Jerry couldn't help himself - he took a seat near the door, facing a floor-to ceiling mirror, and after ordering a beer, took the opportunity to survey his altered figure.

The woman in the mirror bore little resemblance to Jerry. Her tight-fitting jeans and blouse clung to an hour-glass figure. A firm, full ass led to a deliciously slender waist, above which to massive, round tits strained outward, the large nipples showing through the fabric. She was stunning.

Just then, the tall, handsome Englishman entered the hotel bar. Dragging his - her eyes from the stunning vision of femininity, Jerry half- stood and said 'Excuse me.'

The Englishman looked over at the gorgeous creature and lifted an eyebrow. "Yes?"

Wordlessly, Jerry held up the now empty pack of cigarettes. Frowning, the tall Brit sat down across from her. Leaning forward - a position that guaranteed he'd stare at her stupendous bust, - he spoke in a low voice.

"Look, you might as well get use to it. There is no way to reverse the effects of..."

Jerry's delightfully feminine new voice stopped him cold as she laughed with a clear, bell like tone. "REVERSE the effects?" she said in a warm, sexy contralto. "Why would I want to do that?"

The Englishman blinked. "Excuse me?"

"I came down here to THANK you." She enthused, taking one of his hands between both of her soft, delicate new hands. "I'll do anything to thank you for this. ANYTHING." She smiled coyly at him, and gently slid one hand discretely up his leg near his crotch.

"I... I don't understand." He stammered, his cock stirring.

"I've been a closet transvestite for years now." Jerry explained, her long-fingered hand slowly caressing his swelling member. "But I was so...masculine, that I only did it in my apartment. I could never pass as a woman. I was trapped in a masculine body I hated - until I met you..."

He gulped. "To thank me for this you want to...?" he trailed off delicately.

"...make wild passionate love to you." She smiled slowly, sensuously. He stood. "Peter." He said, tapping his own chest. "Call me...Geri" she said huskily, following the tall man towards the elevators. Moments later, they were in his room.

Geri wasted no time. The instant the door closed, she pushed herself against his body, her huge tits pushing against his chest as she pulled his lips down to hers. His hands reached around and found her full ass as their tongues intertwined passionately.

Frantically, they stripped each other as they stumbled towards the bed. Naked, they collapsed on the large, yielding surface, Geri crying out in pleasure as his lips found her highly sensitive swollen nipples.

"Male me a woman, a real woman." Geri begged, "FUCK ME!"

Eagerly, Peter complied. With one smooth motion, he entered her new womanhead with his throbbing cock, causing Geri to scream out in newly-experienced ecstasy.

That ecstasy grow as Peter thrust, over and over, into her tight new cunt. Her head whipped back and forth, her long blonde hair forming a halo around her passion filled face. Moans turned to screams as she neared her first feminine orgasm - then to a ululating primal scream as she reached it.

There was nothing tender or skillful about their fucking - just pure, primal lust⁶. When Peter rolled off of her, Geri immediately began to massage her still-eager cunt with one hand while the other massaged her enormous, creamy globes.

"Sorry," Peter gasped, "You were just too eager. Next time I'll really show you something."

Geri smiled. "I've got all the time in the world, no that I'm a woman." She frowned slightly. "My one problem is that I can't go back to my old life. I'm going to have to start all over again as a woman."

Peter eyed the huge-breasted, sex-crazed, amazingly eager-to-please woman next to him and slowly smiled. "Maybe I can help..."

* * * * *

"Hey, Sarge, take a look at this, will ya'?"

Sgt. Jack Nesbitt, Missing Persons, looked up as Steve, the new guy in the department, tossed two items down on his desk. One was a standard Missing Person case file for one 'Jerry Connell', the other, a British newspaper, with an article circled. Jack read the headline of the circled item.

RECLUSIVE LORD PETER WORTHINGTON MARRIES AMERICAN

Jack shrugged. "So?"

"Look at the wife's name" Steve urged. "Think there's a connection?"

Jack looked over the article, then snorted. He held up the paper, and the photo from the MP file.

The file photo, taken from Jerry's driver's license, showed a young man with a short shock of unruly black hair over a strongly masculine face.

The photo of Geri Connell, Lord Worthington's new American wife, showed a slender, remarkably buxom young woman with a long mane of tawny hair streaming down the back of her wedding dress. The dress was cut low in the front, revealing a stunning amount of her gorgeous breasts, and cut high on the hem, revealing long, shapely legs. Her face was innocent yet sensual, and decidedly feminine.

"Steve, I don't care how good those plastic surgeons are, there's no way these two people could be the same person." Jack declared, still eyeing the photo of the remarkably sexy newlywed. "It's just a coincidence, that's all. How did you get a hold of this, anyway?"

Steve shrugged. "An anonymous person mailed me the clipping." Jack's eyebrows gathered. "You knew this, uh, Mr. Connell, didn't you?"

"Not really" Steve said uncomfortably. In fact, he had known Jerry fairly well from their long conversations on the web in a Transvestite forum, but he wasn't about to admit it.

Jack shrugged. "I wouldn't worry about it." He announced. Then, taking a deep breath, he asked, "And where did you get those smokes? They smell great."

Steve shrugged. "Actually, they came in the package with the clipping. I tried one, out of curiosity, and , well..." Jack tilted his head. "Don't suppose you could spare one, could you?"

Steve shrugged. "Actually, they sent two packs. You can have these ones. - I haven't opened them yet. They're really something." Jack picked up the pack of cigarettes that Steve had tossed on his desk.

" 'Lesbia'? What an odd name for a cigarette." Jack mused aloud, unwrapping the pack... The end...

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: Disgruntled associates of a research company perfect a mind control drug and use it to get back at the head of their company who is known as stone-face Williamson, an ex-Army general.

Breakthrough

Part One - Sergeant-Major

By Gunslinger

Tuesday, March 1st, 2001 8:56 a.m.

"Morning, Mr. Willimson..."

Gary nodded at the guard after a split second of assessing the man's appearance and tone. As Gary demanded, every crease in the Guard's uniform was razor-sharp, all his leather was polished to a mirror shine, and his uniform was squared up

'just-so'. The guard's posture had gone from hands- behind-his-back rigid to parade-grown straight, and he'd spoken with the right amount of servitude to his boss - and, therefore, master.

All was as it should be, so Gary gave him the slight tilt of his head that let the man know that he was to be employed for at least a few more hours yet. Satisfied with his encounter with the first employee of the day, Gary Williamson swept toward the elevators of his four-story glass-and-steel building, his polished shoes ringing on the marble flooring, his stride smooth and unwavering.

Yet another employee got to keep their job - this time, one of his under-secretaries, who monitored the lobby through a closed-circuit camera and made sure there was an elevator car waiting for him when he got there, the doors open and waiting. Stepping inside, Gary simply stood there as the secretary used the controls at her desk to send the elevator upwards.

Gary demanded nothing less than perfection from his employees. Not by nature a 'shouter' or 'threatener', he had informed all his employees of his... 'expectations' from them when he'd hired them, and any who did not meet them, all the time, every time, was fired. If there was one thing Gary had learned from his sixteen years as a Sergeant-Major in the Army, it was the value of discipline and organization. Unfortunately, some of these people had trouble accepting the situation. Though never mention directly to him, Gary was aware that some mistaken thought him cruel or sadistic.

He didn't bother to correct them, of course. Any fool with eyes in their head could see that he didn't demand anything from his employees that he didn't expect from himself. Though his clothing was more comfortable - and expensive - than that of the guard, it was no less meticulously clean, pressed and arranged. Gary was sure they'd probably be shocked to discover that he, himself, was the person who'd done the cleaning and pressing, but that just showed how little they understood. After all, a job you wanted done right was a job you did yourself, and it was only sheer necessity that caused Gary to have even the minimal staff he kept on hand - after all, he certainly couldn't run a genetic and biochemical research facility by himself. He didn't even have a degree, and didn't understand most of the more esoteric concepts under which his small staff worked - but that wasn't the point. As in the Army, it was up to each to do their assigned tasks, and Gary was nothing if not a superb 'manager'.

Unlike other centers working in commercial conjunction with the Military and Governmental agencies, Gary's projects were always on time and always within budget.

Not that the researchers appreciated the fact. Of all the employees, they were the most critical - which is the only reason he kept them on. They were the most slovenly, undisciplined group of people he'd ever met, always whining about this-or-that problem, asking for extra time or money... Gary certainly hadn't anticipated the trouble he'd have holding on to research staff. As it was, he had ended up with the 'misfits', the scientists unable to find positions in other companies, mostly due to what was rather euphemistically referred to as 'personality conflicts'. It took a firm hand to keep his researchers in line - and the supposed 'head researcher', who should have been his lieutenant, was the worst of the bunch.

As if the mere thought of her conjured her up, the doors to the elevator parted to reveal the figure of his Head Researcher, Janice Tannebaum.

Physically and emotionally, the Head of the company and the Head of the Research staff were almost exact opposites. Gary was tall, heavily muscled and deeply tanned, with a close-cropped stubble of wheat-blond hair and a cool, controlled manner. Janice, on the other hand, was lean and hungry, with too-sharp features on her too-pale face beneath what Gary considered an overly-long mane of black hair. Aggressive and almost perpetually angry, Janice was apparently unable to do anything calmly or quietly, always very 'passionate' about whatever it was she was doing. Even their clothing was direct opposites: Gary wore a reasonably expensive, muted-color suit that was meticulously pressed, while Janice wore a white lab-coat over jeans and a sweatshirt.

If it wasn't for the fact that Gary desperately needed her to keep the research staff he had working for him, he would have fired her as soon as possible. She seemed to find something to argue about every hour or so. Never particularly comfortable working with women, Gary needed Janice to also help with the female 'office' staff, all of which gave her some unwilling leeway in which to work.

Though not happy with the situation Gary was enough of a realist to accept it.

It wasn't at all unusual for Gary to find Janice waiting for him in various places, such as outside the door of his office, or at the elevator, here. She had no sense of self-discipline when it came to her latest 'outrage' - she'd pounce on him as soon as physically possible, regardless of the situation. So, it wasn't surprising to find Janice waiting for him when he stepped out of the elevator.

What was surprising was the fact that she spoke in a tone that was nearly civil, only the faintest hint of her customary sneer in her voice.

"Gary, have you got a minute? I think I have some good news to share."

"Well, Janice, let me check if I can fit you in..." Gary said, calmly, knowing she hated him calling her by her first name as much as he hated her doing it to him. He kept his voice calm and level, despite the fact that he'd already told her, repeatedly, that just 'dropping in' wasn't...

"Actually, I think you'll find that your first item on the schedule is me." Janice said, with what almost looked like a grin hovering around her lips. She paused, then added - almost shyly? "I, uh... made an appointment."

Gary had to actively fight to keep an eyebrow from raising at the uncharacteristic civility and.. dare he say?... near humanity she was displaying.

"Well, then - please." He said, gesturing at the door to his office. He let her lead the way, having already discovered what reaction his ingrained training about holding doors for 'ladies' brought. Though it went against his grain, he followed her into his own office and strode directly for the desk. He hoped Janice could keep her peace until he'd buzzed Dora, his secretary, to come serve up his morning...

"Coffee, Gary?" Janice asked as Gary settled into his seat. Looking up, he was mildly amazed to find her standing with her back to him - in front of the coffee maker he kept in the corner of the room.

The first time she'd seen Dora serving him his coffee, Janice had nearly exploded, her reaction so vitriolic that Gary had almost broken down and explained to her that it was standard military procedure for the lower ranks to serve coffee to the officers, and that Dora being a woman had nothing to do with it - as a matter of fact, Gary would have preferred a male 'aide-de-camp', if one had been available...

...but a good officer didn't explain, he commanded. So, Gary had stoically weathered out the storm. The fact that she was now offering to serve him the coffee obviously meant that it had been the right decision - she was beginning to catch on. Slowly, perhaps, but it was an encouraging sign...

"Yes, please. Black." Gary informed her... then winced at what seemed to be the sound of at least one sugar cube dropping into the coffee. He kept cream and sugar handy for the rare times when he had a client in the office, but didn't use it himself.

Janice turned and walked towards the desk, carrying two Styrofoam cups of dark, steaming liquid, one of which she placed before him. Disliking the prospect of sweetened coffee - but certainly not ready to rebuff Janice's new attempts at being civil - Gary took a sip... and was pleased to find the liquid as bitter and sharp as it should be. It must have been her coffee she'd sweetened.

"Okay?" She asked, lifting her own cup.

"Perfect." Gary acknowledged, which was practically effusive praise from him. He sipped at the liquid, grateful to see that Janice was even being so 'human' as to wait until he brought this meeting 'to order'. To ensure that he was getting the point across, he waited until most of the slowly cooling liquid had been consumed before speaking. He almost expected her to fidget or launch directly into her... whatever it was she wanted to talk about. However, though she seemed 'keyed up', there was also an almost serene, confident air about her, and she bore the wait in surprisingly good nature.

"So - I believe you had some good news to tell me...?" Gary said, putting his cup down to signify that they were moving on to the business at hand.

Glancing at her watch, Janice seemed almost... hesitant. Usually very pointed and direct, now she seemed to be searching for the words as she spoke.

"Well, I suppose that 'good' news is a relative term..." She said, slowly. "It all depends on the point of view. I know, certainly, that it's very good news for me."

"What 'good news' would you be referring to, Doctor...?" Gary said, hoping that using her title rather than her name would prompt her to move on.

"I've made a break-through in one of my areas of research." Janice explained, glancing at her watch again. "Actually, I've made a series of breakthroughs in a few of my areas of research, all over the past few months."

"Oh?" Gary asked, a bit taken aback. "Then why didn't you tell me about the other breakthroughs when they occurred, Doctor?"

"Well, I couldn't do that - not until I'd made the last, final breakthrough." She said, slowly. "You see, it's a matter of timing and organization. Though the other breakthroughs had already occurred, I couldn't talk to you about them until I made the final breakthrough, the one that I had, actually, hoped would be the first. Unfortunately, it took the longest and ended up being the last."

"Well, what breakthroughs are we referring to, Janice?" Gary asked, beginning to lose his patience as she glanced at her watch, yet again.

"Well, the first breakthroughs were in the biomorphic and genetic sequencing areas, followed by ones in the genetic material transfer and dynamic calcite malleability fields." She explained.

Gary wasn't a scientist, but he had a very good memory - it didn't take long for him to 'page through' the current list of projects and find those terms incompatible.

"Doctor, which projects are these breakthroughs in?" He asked, becoming annoyed - but refusing to show that, of course.

Now, she did smile, a little - triumphantly. "Actually, they're 'pet projects' of mine that I've been running under your nose, skimming funding from other projects and fudging time-records to keep hidden."

Gary was more than a little taken aback at that. "Doctor, if I understand what you're saying correctly, you've committed serious breaches in ethics, and probably broken more than a few laws. Perhaps your zeal is commendable, and your attempt to.. to advance these projects laudable, but..."

"Oh, I doubt I could even justify it that way." She said, almost negligently. "I had no plans to develop these processes for commercial Military use. They were for my own gratification and projects, nothing more. In fact, they're all way outside the scope of what we're being called to work on - especially the last one, the project I finally had a breakthrough in last night."

Now wary - and more than a bit confused - Gary asked the inevitable question; "What project is that, Doctor?"

Now her victorious grin was full-fledged. "Well, it has a long, complicated name, but I'm sure you'll understand what I mean if I use the non-technical 'shorthand'... Mind Control."

Gary stared at her. "Doctor. That's proscribed research... in fact, it's quite literally treason! I don't care how far you've gotten or how 'promising' your computer models look, this is going to stop immediately and..."

"Oh, I'm way beyond computer models, Gary." She interrupted. "I've already field-tested it."

Now Gary was downright stunned - and worried. Janice was.. well, she was outright insane. It was the only explanation.

"When?" He demanded, starting to rise from his chair. "Where?"

"Last night, and right here at the company." Linda said, practically laughing at him,. "I've given the serum to every single employee and tested it - then told them to forget that I did it, which they've done. They couldn't even testify against me in a court of law, since they literally believe that it never happened... and they don't know that they're still firmly under my control, unknowingly my 'willing' slaves."

"Doctor, I don't know if this is all some.. some delusional fantasy of yours or not, but either way this has gone far enough..." Gary said, firmly, reaching for the phone...

"Sit down, shut up, and remain still." Janice said, firmly but not sharply...

...and Gary was stunned - horrified - to find himself doing just that.

It was the most unnerving sensation he'd ever felt. When she'd commanded him to do it, he'd felt a sudden... 'pressure' in his brain. It was the only way he could explain it. It was almost like a mental version of standing in the center of the road and seeing a Mack truck hurtling down on you...

...and, like the body would in that metaphorical situation, his brain had reacted by 'throwing itself out of the way' - obeying her commands. He found himself pushed back into the seat, rigid and immobile, only able to stare at her in silence. He struggled to move, but every attempt was met by the sensation of 'pressure' again - as if the realm of what she'd commanded him to do was a 'safe' spot in the midst of a busy highway. Trying to make his brain leave that 'safe area' was like trying to willfully hurl himself into traffic...

...only much, much harder. However it worked, the mind-control she held over him was almost an 'insanity', a split from reality. Though he knew what he 'really' wanted to do, just turning his mind in that direction was incredibly difficult, much less making it act upon his will.

"Rather amazing, isn't it?" Janice asked, conversationally. "I won't go into a detailed explanation of how it works, but to put it simply for your Neanderthal brain..." She grinned, wickedly, "I've short- circuited the logical and perceptual filters in your brain. Just as a 'crazy' person firmly believes they're hearing voice, seeing aliens, or whatever, your brain immediately puts full faith and credence in whatever you hear. You can't speak right now because I told you not to - as far as your brain is concerned, your vocal centers don't exist any more. It can't access them." She laughed. "if somebody out there actually has the incredible will-power necessary to circumvent my new wonder-drug, then they'd shatter all perceptions of reality and immediately go raving, frothing mad. Quite a set-up, isn't it?"

Gary felt a cold chill of horror up his spine. Janice was talking about the ultimate mind-control drug, perfect in its use - and in its self-applying 'punishment' for disobedience, if it was even possible. Gary had always considered himself iron-willed... but even he couldn't circumvent her instructions. His own brain was fighting to keep him 'sane' but the new definition the drug provided of the word, not allowing him to disobey her words. Trying to do so was like... was like trying to convince himself that Santa Clause, Aliens and Honest Politicians were real. He could think it - but not make himself believe it. It was now the same with moving, or talking - he could think he had the ability, but not convince his supposedly rational brain of that. Right now, 'talking' was like trying to convince himself he could perform telekinesis or pyrokinesis... 'believing' he could didn't make it happen.

"Well, let's take some of the strain off your hyper-susceptible brain, Gary." She said, smugly. "From now on, you will only automatically obey any commands I give you, or ones give to you by people I tell you to obey. You will find yourself able to speak and move again, but you may not act in any way to harm, incapacitate or otherwise stymie me. Without direct instructions otherwise, you will do everything you can to be helpful and considerate to me, within the confines of what would be normal behavior on your part. Do you understand, Gary?"

"Yes, Janice." Gary replied - and not through gritted teeth, as he might have preferred, but in a calm, almost pleasant tone. "By the way, if you don't mind me saying, I think you're totally insane and should seek professional help immediately."

She laughed. "See? That's what I love about this drug. I could completely re-write your personality, or make you forget you're even under my control - or leave you helplessly enslaved, aware of your situation, and with your own persona intact... but restricted to certain forms and areas of communication and conversation. It must be driving you nuts."

"It is rather frustrating." He admitted, calmly. Of course, he would have preferred a rather stronger statement to the same effect, but it was no longer conceivable.. he could barely even think it, even though he was aware of the desire. "I would like to point out, however, that I'd probably be more polite than you might think. I'm not used to gratuitous displays of emotion, even negative ones that might be called for."

She laughed. "I wouldn't be surprised at all, Gary - Ol' Stone-Faced Williamson, the mechanical chauvinist."

He knew that, deep down, he really wished he could respond 'honestly' to that, but the actual response he might have used wouldn't come to mind. It was the same with knowing that there were things to do to stop her... but actual plans wouldn't coalesce in his mind, much less be allowed to go into action.

No longer locked into place, he could rise and pace the office slowly, thoughtfully. Though he passed within inches of where she sat, and knew he must really want to injure her in some way for what she'd done to him, he didn't even make the slightest motion in that direction - he just couldn't remember how to cause physical harm to her. That part of his brain was 'locked off' from the rest, thanks to her commands.

"the coffee, I assume?" he asked, calmly. "I heard what I thought was a sugar cube, but was probably the pill or capsule of the serum - and you dragged out the introduction while you waited for it to 'kick in'."

"That's right - very good." Janice complimented him. With no chance of him attacking her - or even being particularly offensive, verbally - she was relaxed and almost friendly, enjoying herself. "I must admit, I've been looking forward to this particular moment for quite a while. The fact that the breakthrough took so long was getting very, very frustrating."

"I'm sorry to hear that..." Gary said, damned to find sincerity in the phrase - because he 'wanted'/needed to 'help' her, if possible and within the confines of his own persona.

"Well - the day's young and we've got stuff to do." Janice said, rising. "I've given the staff several commands that they don't remember getting, but will act on anyway. As far as they know, everything's absolutely normal... although that's about to change. Come along, Gary - oh, and have the entire staff assemble in the conference room in half an hour."

"Yes Ma'am" Gary replied - politely, damn it, though he couldn't actually recall any impolite way to phrase the acknowledgment, and disobeying it was even more unthinkable. He followed along behind her, moving with his regular stride. He knew that, to any onlooker, he would look about normal, though people aware of the rivalry between he and Janice might find their sudden camaraderie rather remarkable. He paused to have Dora sent out instructions that all staff members were to assemble in the conference room in half an hour - and to reschedule or cancel the next few appointments at the very least, due to 'pressing business with Doctor Tannebaum'. It was unusual for Gary, but not unheard of, and Dora certainly wasn't going to question his orders - not if she wanted to keep her job.

Oddly, Gary knew that he would have, indeed, fired her if she'd questioned him - even though, on a certain level, he knew that he didn't really want to do this. The odd thing was - even though he knew he'd fire Dora for disobeying him, and he also knew that Janice had disobeyed him, the two wouldn't mesh to make the connection to fire Janice, even though he knew they should. It was like seeing puzzle pieces that looked like they'd fit, but when you tried to put them together they just wouldn't go.

They stepped into the elevator and the doors slid closed, but Janice didn't reach immediately for a button to a floor.

"Tell me, Gary - what type of woman do you find attractive. Not just looks - I want to know what you'd look for in a woman."

Gary considered the question, finding it both unusual and a trifle ominous.. but considering Janice's comments, he obviously considered him a hard-core chauvinist, probably because of things like the coffee-serving incident.

He couldn't even actively regret not having explained it to her. That might have changed her mind and stymied her plans for what she was now doing, and he couldn't consider that, even retroactively...

"Well, I like tall, athletic women." Gary explained, thoughtfully, needing to get the description completely right and honest. The thought of lying about any of it didn't even occur to him. "A runner, perhaps. Definitely an outdoors woman. Somebody whose intelligent, yet not condescending or pushy. Organized. Willing to fit into my schedule without much conflict, mildly sociable, self-contained practical. Definitely practical, in actions, words and dress. None of these...strange 'rituals' and fads a lot of women seem to go through..."

Janice snorted, giving Gary a momentary shudder of near-panic as his brain tried to decide whether or not that meant he should stop, or not. Either way, being wrong and disobeying her was unthinkable, but he wasn't sure...

...but then she spoke, and he took it as permission - instruction - to at least pause. "I should have known - an ideal 'Military Wife'."

"yes - that would be a very good description of what I'd look for." Gary had to admit.

Janice looked at him - and grinned. Without saying anything else, she pushed a button, and they rode downward to the third-floor laboratories - being only one floor, it was a short ride.

When the elevator stopped, Janice reached out and held the 'Door Close' button, preventing the doors from opening as she grinned wickedly at Gary.

"Gary I want you to listen very carefully to my instructions, do you understand?"

"Yes, Doctor." Gary replied. Briefly, he thought that - if he were allowed to - he'd think her somewhat paranoid by reassuring herself he was listening to her orders when he had no other choice, but the thought didn't have anywhere productive to go and so tapered away.

"Gary, when these doors open, you will no longer consciously remember that I gave you mind-control serum and am controlling you, though you will still be bound to obey me, as well as avoid injuring or impeding me in any way. You will believe that I discussed with you the very breakthroughs I did, in fact, describe to you, but you will believe that these are valid projects we are assigned to work on, and this is just a somewhat exciting but otherwise normal business day. Do you understand, Gary?"

"Of course, Janice." Gary replied, a bit insulted. "I'll think that you are conducting legitimate research and have made a series of breakthroughs in several of them."

"That's right." She concurred. "Now, listen very, very carefully, Gary, because this is very important: The staff is going to explain, in detail, how each of the different serums are used. They'll even give you demonstrations, showing you exactly how to administer and use each of the formulas. You will pay very close attention to every detail, memorizing it completely. You will not be sure why, but it will be very important to you to get all of the detail committed to memory. Do you understand?"

"Yes, Janice." Gary nodded.

"Good. Now - after the demonstrations are all done, you'll feel compelled, helplessly compelled by some unknown reason, to give everybody the rest of the day and all night off to 'celebrate'. Even the guards. Everybody - except me. You'll give me a key and let me stay while you lock everything up tight after everybody's gone, and go home. Do you understand?"

"I'll send everybody except you home until tomorrow morning to celebrate the new breakthroughs." Gary paraphrased, and she nodded.

"Listen carefully, Gary - after it gets dark, you'll find yourself getting restless. You'll feel like there's something very, very important you have to do. Then, at exactly eight o'clock, you'll remember my controlling you, you'll remember that I gave you some instructions... but you won't be able to remember exactly what those instructions are. You'll come back here and let yourself in. You'll make sure that nobody sees you. You want to make sure nobody knows you're here. Once you get inside, you'll still not know why you're here, but you'll know why you paid so much attention to the demonstrations - because you need to use the formulas. You don't want to - you need to. You need to... because you are going to turn yourself into a woman, Gary." Janice said, grinning maniacally. "A woman - but not just any woman. You want to prove all the things you believe in by showing the negative - you want to turn yourself into the most utterly, completely useless woman you can imagine. More than useless - embodying all the negative traits that would make such a woman not only useless, but a liability. You will make yourself into a woman you would never hire, never socialize with, never even talk to, if possible. You will use these new breakthroughs to make yourself, physically, into this exact, useless, woman. However, even as you are doing it, you will not be able to remember, consciously, what I told you to do - you'll just do it. More than that - you won't be able to know what type of women you picked, even though you are changing yourself into her. Each step will come as a surprise. You will not know what you will turn out like until you are finished and can see for yourself... but all the while, you will know you are doing it because I told you to. Do you understand?"

"Yes, of course." Gary said, nodding. "I'll be turning myself into a woman who contains all the elements that would make her completely and utterly useless to me in any professional, personal or social situation. I will realize that I'm doing it deliberately, but I will not consciously realize that I'm making myself into the woman who would be completely and utterly useless - a liability - to me in any and all situations and circumstances."

"Exactly!" Janice said... then, suddenly, an odd look crossed her face. "Uh, Gary "

"Yes, Janice?" Gary asked, politely.

There was a decidedly odd tone - and even odder look in her eyes - as she asked almost meekly, "Are you going to.. turn yourself into me?"

Gary would have laughed, except that it might have hurt her feelings, and he couldn't do that. "No - of course not. You're very, very useful to me. The fact that I hired you and kept you proves that.

Though we've differed at times, and I find your personality abrasive ('needlessly abrasive' came to mind, but not to lips), you are still an incredibly talented researcher, a skilled intermediary between my military management and the staff, and a valued member of this company." He paused. "No, the type of woman I "

"Don't tell me!" Janice said, sharply, and he fell silent. She grinned at him "I want it to be a surprise." "All right." Gary agreed, obediently, while she eyed him thoughtfully.

"You know, despite the fact you're forced to be considerate and helpful right now, I actually believe that you don't think I'm completely useless. Though I don't believe I would be so 'useful and valued' if you weren't constrained, I know that you would have fired me if I wasn't worth something to you "

She shook her head, as if trying to clear it of unwanted thoughts - then smiled again. "Now - you will find all sorts and sizes of clothes, make-up and jewelry in store-room 'B', after you are finished changing yourself. Still not knowing exactly why you are choosing what you are choosing, you will pick clothes that the utterly useless woman you have chosen would wear, and the jewelry, and the make-up - everything you need to look like the woman you imagined. You will dress and go up to your office, where you will leave a note on your desk with the name you have chosen to go with your new body. You will lock your office door, then write a note to Dora saying that your - Gary's - girlfriend, the name you have chosen, will be coming in first thing in the morning, and to let her right in. You will then go home, then go to bed and sleep until eight o'clock in the morning. As soon as you wake up, you will find yourself helplessly compelled to act out the persona of the woman you have chosen. You will get ready, then come here and come up to your - Gary's - office. You will find somebody who looks just like you do now there. You will know it is me. You will still have to obey me, if I give you orders - but you will not be able to say or do anything outside of the new persona, unless I explicitly instruct you to do so. Do you understand all of this, Gary?"

"I understand." Gary agreed, somewhat unhappily....

...and she released the door's hold button.

* * * * *

Tuesday, March 1st, 2001 8:22 p.m.

"Well, Doctor Tannebaum, I don't know what you're up to " Gary said to thin air in a coldly calm voice as his shoes beat a steady tattoo against the polished floor of the hallway, " but whatever it is, I'm going to find a way to thwart you."

'Somehow', He added silently in his mind, afraid to voice his doubts even though there was nobody to hear them. He wasn't sure how he was going to thwart her, not when he was implicitly instructed not to. He didn't know how he was going to get around the commands she'd implanted in his brain to bring him back to the now-silent offices he owned.

He didn't even know what those commands were. She'd forbidden him even that knowledge, leaving him feeling frustrated and afraid. Fear wasn't something Gary admitted to easy, but he was honest enough to admit to himself that he was scared in a way he'd never been scared before. Having somebody else hold this much power over him, able to make him do things he didn't even know why - or what - he was doing it was the ultimate form of submission, worse even than being turned into a

'willing; mindless puppet. Then, he wouldn't have been aware of his 'enslaved' state - he should know, he'd spent all afternoon like that, completely unaware that he was operating under Janice's implanted instructions. At least then he'd had the 'bliss' of ignorance. Now, however, he was fully aware that he was doing whatever he was doing because he'd been ordered to do it - and, even more humiliating was the fact she'd ordered him to remember just enough to feel the humiliation of having to obey her unknown commands, doubling the humiliation because it was only with her permission that he could even feel humiliation and fear at being enslaved.

Reaching the end of the hallway, Gary punched in the code to unlock the secured lab's outer door... and even as his fingers stabbed out at the buttons, he struggled to make himself reach out and move one digit over, push the wrong button. Three wrong tries, and an alarm would sound, police would come...

...but he couldn't. Unerringly, his fingers punched out the code, and he couldn't so much as hesitate or make his fingers twitch. He'd been given his instructions, and his 'duped' brain, struggling to avoid 'insanity' when, technically, it was already 'insane', obeying implicitly.

The outer door hissed open on its pneumatic arms, and Gary helplessly stepped inside and let the outer door close behind him, waiting until the little green LED beside the inner door lit. When it did, he hit the button that opened the inner door and stepped inside, fingers automatically hitting the trio of switches that brought the fluorescent tubes overhead buzzing into life.

When he'd watched the various demonstrations this morning, it had been under the instructed belief that he was looking at official projects of the company, licensed and legal - and paid for. Now, of course, he knew better, and even as he activated the different devices in the lab, he wondered why the hell Janice had developed all these different programs for - and why the hell he was here. Obviously, given what he was 'allowed' to remember, he was here to put what he'd learned this afternoon to use - but to what end?

He just didn't know - or, rather, he wasn't allowed to know, which was so frustrating and nerve-racking that he wanted to break his stoic, enforced facade and just scream and curse. It wouldn't have done him any good, though, and he knew it - and in some way, it seemed to him that to do so would be some sort of obscure, 'willing' submission, showing that she'd managed to break him down into doing something he normally wouldn't. Though there was nobody there to see him do it, he still refused to give into the urges, out of principle - even as he wondered what the hell was going to happen to him, what Janice had in store for him...

Gary found himself going to a large, glass-faced stainless-steel section of cabinets and opening one of the drawers in the lower section. With steady hands that would have looked all the world to be under his command to an unknowing observer, he reached in and extracted a hypodermic needle from a rack of like needles, not even knowing what he was going to pick up until he actually did it.

Even though he still wasn't privy to what he'd been instructed to do, it wasn't all that hard to figure out what was coming next as he found himself rolling up the cuff to his clean, pressed shirt and wrapping a length of surgical tubing around the bicep.

Sure enough, he found himself extracting some blood from his arm. Even though he didn't want to be doing this, his controlled body was using his own mind for 'processing power' to accomplish the hidden directives instilled into it, so all his actions looked exactly the same as if he'd chosen to do this himself, all his movements having his characteristic cool efficiency as he dabbed the spot of blood from his arm, swabbed it with a disinfectant, and applied a little bandage to the spot before going onto the next step.

He found himself carrying the partially filled syringe to a work-station from this mornings demonstration and sitting down at the user's console. He checked to make sure the machine was indicating it was ready - 'in battery', to Gary - and then he punched up the main menu and cycled open the small tube on the side. Once the little hydraulically-operated lid was fully open, Gary found himself emptying the contents of the syringe into the machine, which he'd more or less expected.

Sure enough, the machine hummed away for a few seconds, 'mapping' his DNA from the blood - or as much of the DNA as it was programmed to do.

When it was done, it came up with a list of options, and he found himself choosing number 3 - 'Edit Sequence Strand'.

The machine asked him if he wanted a Preset or a Custom edit, and Grant discovered that he was choosing 'Preset'...

...and from the list that came up, he watched with mounting horror as his somewhat blunt fingers tapped out the commands to load 'Gender Reversal Sequence.'

"Oh, God... no!" Gary gasped, struggling for his customary calm - and failing, as his fingers continued to give instructions to the machine, which displayed a 'please wait' sub-screen as it processed his 'request'.

He'd just asked the machine to generate a 'mutating' serum that would modify base-pair chromosomes... to make the owner of that original sample female.

Him. He'd just told the machine to generate a serum to make him a woman.

With his emotional control slipping in the face of the horrible fate being forced upon him, Gary's lips curled into a slight sneer that warred with the horror in his eyes as he half-snarled the words 'You bitch...' to his absent adversary, seeing now what she'd planned for him - or at least a portion of it. She believed he was a chauvinist... and she'd devised a way to make him 'see the other side'.

While the machine worked, Gary found himself rising and walking back over towards the same cabinet, and he knew that he was going to get another needle - one to hold the serum the machine would generate, the serum that would turn him into a biologically indistinguishable woman.

As he walked, Gary struggled harder than ever before against the programming in his mind. Knowing what fate lay in store for him if he obeyed the commands implanted in his brain, horrified and disgusted beyond measure at the thought of being forced to turn himself into a woman, he struggled with every ounce of iron will at his disposal to do something - anything - to keep this horrible thing from coming to pass...

...and failed miserably. As powerful as his conscious mind was, his unconscious mind was equally powerful, and it was as equally dedicated to protecting him from pure, howling insanity by forcing him to obey the commands implanted into his mind - and that amount of extra, enforced, unwanted 'discipline' provided by the commands Janice had implanted was enough to keep him locked into her program. Helpless to stop himself, he retrieved another syringe from the drawer and walked back to the machine.

After a few minutes, the machine's humming stopped, and it began to whirl instead - having 'crunched the numbers' to develop the correct formula, it was now mixing some of the hundreds of different compounds that were fed into it via tubes that led to reservoirs, mixing up the correct serum.

Helplessly, Gary waited for it to finish mixing the concoction together, then took the syringe and pressed the needle in through the rubber stopper at the top of the glass pipette where the finished serum had been automatically decanted. As he raged, helplessly, cursing Janice aloud, his hands and body calmly went about the task of filling the syringe with the golden liquid and expelling all the air from it.

Then, face twisted in emotional agony, half-gasped pleas to his unresponsive body to stop going unheeded, he calmly and smoothly injected the serum into his arm.

Dropping both used needles into a plastic 'sharps' container, he rose from the chair and walked to the center of the room, where there was a large piece of mechanical apparatus, featuring many support bars. Face screwed up in anticipatory horror, he calmly and methodically undressed, neatly piling his clothes to one side, then 'assumed the position' - legs spread, body leaned forward, hands tightly wrapped around one of the support bars on the immovable apparatus in front of him. In that position, he waited for the serum to kick in and do its horrifying work.

He didn't have long to wait. It started with a chill up his spine that he barely noticed, his nerves already thrumming with imagined and psychosomatic chills from the knowledge of what was to happen. However, he couldn't miss the next sign that the serum was active - he began to feel very warm. Fevered, in fact, as his metabolism accelerated under the influence of the drug he'd helplessly injected into his own body.

Her began to sweat profusely, his body shivering in a strange combination of hot and cold as an itching sensation began to run through his nerves...

...and then he felt the growing tightness in his throat, chest and groin, and new it was about to happen.

He screamed in horror - then the scream redoubled as the pain hit. The monumental pain as the serum kicked in at full effectiveness and began to force cellular decay and growth, all at the same time, literally causing masculine cells to rot away, while new ones grew and duplicated to replace them.

It felt as if somebody were repeatedly kicking him in the crotch, hard. It felt as if somebody were slamming a baseball bat against his ribcage. It felt as if he was being pummeled and beaten over most of his body, including his throat and face - but the three worst pains were throat, chest and groin, and of those, groin was by far the worst - and it wasn't just surface pain, since the agony reached right up into his body, causing white-hot pain to flare and whirl...

It seemed to last an eternity, an unending, infinite period of pure agony as his body shuddered and shook, hands gripping the bar and forcing him to remain upright under the onslaught of pain.

However, Gary knew that it was ten, maybe fifteen minutes at most - that had been made clear during the demonstration, the incredible speed with which the serum worked.

Though it was an apparent eternity of agony, Gary wished it had been longer, much longer - for it's end signified that 'he' was now a 'she'...

Slowly the pain subsided, and the new woman sucked in a huge breath, refilling lungs emptied by screams of physical and emotional pain. Releasing the bar, she staggered back a few steps, feeling shame at the trickle of tears down her cheeks as she turned and staggered toward the mirror in the corner, her steps slowly firming up as her nerves recovered from the searing pain that had claimed them for awhile.

Looking in the mirror confirmed the truth - Gary was now a woman.

A damned ugly woman, as she'd expected, but that was a cold comfort to her as she looked between her hairy thighs at the vaginal lips that had replaced her cock.

The serum restructured the body to the feminine equivalents - but it was a direct translation of the existing body, not a sudden body-type change. Indeed, Gary could have put her clothes on and walked out the door, and few people would be able to tell anything had changed. Her bone structure had stayed the same, as had most of her muscle mass - it just wasn't quite as 'chiseled' as before, but that would be nearly impossible to tell through clothing.

Her cock was gone, to be replaced by a fully-functional vagina... but that wasn't something people would notice if she were dressed. Likewise, her nipples were larger and thicker, but there was only the slightest bulge behind them - they were technically functional mammary glands, if not very feminine looking.

About the only obvious sign, when dressed, would be her lack of an Adam's Apple - or her voice. Even then, somebody who didn't know Gary, hearing the voice without seeing Gary, would be hard pressed to identify it as either male or female. A bit husky, in the low-to-middle ranges, it could have been either... a fact that Gary hated even as she used her new voice to curse the name of the woman who'd forced her to have it.

She was technically female, though, and that was horrifying enough for Gary, even if she was incredibly masculine-looking...

...but whatever Janice had instructed Gary to do wasn't finished. Gary had a horrifying idea as to what was to follow, in general, as she left the mirror to get something out of another cabinet.

What she found herself pulling from the cabinet confirmed her fears - even though it wasn't even a product that had been demonstrated today. Indeed, it was one from a legitimate project from the Federal Health Services Organization, one designed for use in third-world households that had become massively lice-infected...

It was a depilatory. A highly efficient hair-removal gel that was fast-acting and long-lasting, designed to deny lice any chance of nesting on the human body...

...and Gary helplessly carried it into the lab's bathroom, where she began to apply it to her body, starting at her feet and working her way upwards, covering her entire body in the gel... except for a patch around her new womanhood, her eye-lashes and -brows, and her scalp.

She then stepped into the shower and turned on the water, rinsing off the gel - and, with it, all her body hair, leaving behind smooth skin more befitting the new gender she despised and hated having.

She wasn't nearly finished the horrible plan Janice had forced upon her, though. Helplessly, unable to do anything to stop herself, she went about the task of making herself steadily more feminine, working toward an end image that she had no way of knowing.

Helplessly, she used a serum that made her bones malleable, semi-liquefying the calcium and allowing her bones to be pushed and pulled and shaped beneath her skin. It was very painful to do so, but that didn't stop her any more than her own struggle for control made a dent in her need to do this - instead, she continued to methodically work at reshaping her body using special grips and presses that allowed her to stretch or compress bones, slowly and painfully.

She started at the top and worked her way down, unable to control herself as she did things to herself that she'd rather die than do. Using various implements, she painfully restructures the bones of her skull, making her jaw smoother, more pointed, her cheeks higher and better defined. She changed the angle and shape of her brow, the sweep at the back of her jaw, and the way her head sloped at the back. Tears of pain - emotional and physical - streaming down her face, she forced her nose inward, reshaping it into something smaller, with a fine, well-defined bridge and slightly upturned end.

Then she went on to her neck, forcing it to be longer and more slender, hovering at the very edge of damaging her spinal cord as she stretched it upwards, then reinforcing the spine as she compressed the rings inwards.

Moving on, she used a belt-strap device to force her shoulders inward, making them more narrow, then set up a device at the right height to allow her to push upwards into it, forcing her shoulders to become more smoothly rounded - more feminine... working her way down, she only lightly reconfigured her arms themselves, but did extensive work on her hands, until she had extremely graceful, feminine hands protruding from slender, dainty wrists - wrists that were much stronger than they looked since the bone was considerably denser, now.

She also made her ribcage smaller, before moving on downwards and expanding her hips to trim-but- feminine dimension.

Then she spent quite a bit of time working on her legs, slowly stretching them outward to be longer, slimmer... and then went to work on her feet, and then she suddenly understood why she'd left them until last.

She not only made them smaller, more feminine, downright dainty - she formed them into high, slender curves just perfectly designed for high heels. Because her feet were smaller, the bones were denser and incredibly strong, more than enough to bear her weight... and once she injected herself, helplessly, with the serum that finalized the changes and re-solidified her bones, her feet had to bear her weight like that. It was awkward to walk bare-foot, but possible... but she was darkly certain that she'd soon find herself wearing high-heeled shoes in which such an arch would be perfectly comfortable...

Having altered her bone-structure, she looked utterly ludicrous... flesh literally drooped off of her comparatively smaller frame. That was the next step she took, using another serum that let her tighten and remold her flesh, to reposition and reshape her muscles.

Slowly, she worked her soft tissues around to match her new bone structure. Her feet became smooth, dainty and lovely, perfectly formed. Her legs were reshaped, muscles forced to become denser as they were compressed beneath skin that was made smoother and softer, until she was the not-so-proud owner of a pair of incredibly long, toned, erotically-shaped legs that led upwards to where she was forced to pack more and more muscle into what became an incredibly full, firm, round ass.

Mass in her waist was shifted and compressed, slimming it down to a diameter that most women would die for, and that she'd rather have died than possessed. It was hers now, as was the smoothly feminine arms she was forced to give herself.

She found herself moving most of the excess muscle to her chest, where she formed a pair of unrealistically firm, hard C-cup breasts that looked feminine enough, but were much too firm and toned for breast-flesh. She then moved on, finishing up the rest of her body, spending quite a bit of time on her face, especially the lips and around the eyes. Then, to her shock, she forced muscles around, under the skin, past the jaw-line, and into her mouth - where she used them to extend her tongue, which she also made more graceful.

Then she 'fixed' the flesh into place... and found herself using a serum that forced the growth of fat cells.

She injected small amounts almost everywhere in her altered body, adding a thin, smoothing layer of fat that further feminized her figure, smoothing it out into a supple, graceful, sensual sculpture of living femininity.

More than just a little went into her lips, making them fuller and softer, over a layer of compressed muscles.

Then she went to work on her rock-hard breasts, injecting more and more serum and forcing new fat cells to grow in place over the firm, hard domes.

By the time she was done, she possessed an extremely large pair of damned-near-perfect tits. They were high-set and firm and round, each one the size of a good-sized melon - about an FFF-cup, maybe even an GGG. Over the firm, muscular center beneath them, they rose firmly and tautly, yet were soft enough to the touch, with just the right amount of give.

A look in the mirror showed a woman with incredibly long, sensual legs, smoothly rounded hip, a tiny waist, and large, round tits - a supple, somehow elegant hourglass figure that was also incredibly sexy. All of this topped by a face that was as equally sensual, with full, firm lips, a patrician nose and dark, sultry eyes.

Still, she wasn't finished yet. More serums were employed as she helplessly continued the horrific make-over into this gorgeous woman. For another hour and a half she worked, already emotionally drained by all the changes, until she realized that she must be finished - there was nothing left to do.

A look in the mirror showed her the woman she'd been forced to become. The woman Janice had made her turn herself into.

There was that body and face. Somehow, she was an equal mix of elegance, sensuality and grace. There were a few improvements to the 'base figure', however.

Like the fact that her skin was now amazingly silky-smooth and delicately colored, and almost unrealistically perfect shade of pinkish-beige that was neither pale nor tanned, yet flawless and desirable.

Then there was her larger, thicker nipples, atop slightly domed aureole. Rather than being a darker brown shade, her nipples and aureole were more pinkish, delightful - and it sickened her.

Then there was her long, dark lashes shading her sensual eyes, making them mysterious. Eyes which were now so dark as to seem to be black rather than brown. Eyes that now boasted incredibly high, finely arched - and, very slightly, wicked-locking - eyebrows.

Her hair was now jet-black and silky, and it fell from her scalp to nearly her knees, incredibly long and soft - and annoying. Equally annoying were the much longer, delicately shaped nails tipping each dainty new finger.

She was a vision - an incredibly, sensual, stunningly beautiful vision of womanhood. She wanted to die...

No. No, she was past that stage now. Though still disgusted and humiliated by what she'd been forced to do, she knew she was still alive, and there was still hope. What she wanted to do was not die - it was kill. Kill Janice for forcing her to do this to herself...

Except that she couldn't even picture a specific plan to do any direct injury to Janice/ Though she felt the urges, though she knew she wanted to, she simply couldn't get her brain to cough up any direct plans for interfering with Janice, or harming her in any way.

Somewhat lost in thoughts deep and dark, she was surprised to find herself walking over to the machine that generated the serums and sitting down in front of it. She'd figured that she was already finished, and wondered what the hell she was doing to herself now.

She was even more surprised when she did something she'd never done - she clicked on the 'custom' menu, pulling up a whole new set of parameters, many of which meant nothing at all to her.

She wasn't scientifically adapt - but she did have a good memory, and was pretty quick on the uptake. That all proved very important - as she bent to the task of designing something without even knowing what it was she was designing. Something inside of her, driven by implanted commands, was demanding she develop something, even though this wasn't her field of expertise.

Frustrated, she felt the mental anguish and 'pain' of struggling to come up with something, but she didn't even know, consciously, what she was trying to develop. All she could do was watch the screen as she hands input commands to combine different mixtures and calculate results. She cursed her long nails, which made using the keyboard a pain, even as she struggled to put together what she was seeing into a guess at what she felt compelled to create.

As another hour passed, and another, she tried different mixtures, having the computer calculate results. One thing she noticed was that a constant reference file was one labeled 'SPB.Der.1534- B(MC)'. Slowly, based on what the computer's results kept coming up with, she began to understand that it was the chemical file for a derivative of the drug used for mind control - but, for some reason, she seemed to be trying to generate a derivative with a new set of effects.

Why would Janice want her to create a derivative of the mind-control drug? Especially since Janice and her team could have made it faster and easier and left it for her to take...? It didn't make much sense.

It made even less sense when the computer finally indicated that it had found a formula 87% likely to be workable, and she instructed it to create a remarkably large batch of it... which she then put into a large, stoppered bottle and didn't use on herself. What the hell was going on?

Confused, sore and tired, Gary was as close to 'happy' as she could possibly feel to discover that she was apparently done. She went around, shutting everything down and cleaning up, then - naked and carrying the bottle, balancing atop her high-arched feet - she headed down to the storeroom.

Once in the storeroom, the new woman was amazed to feel a dull, heavy throbbing in her head... as she quickly picked out some basic underwear and a sweat suit and pulled them on. Gary couldn't think of any reason why Janice would want her wearing such 'unflattering' clothes, and apparently there was some sort of mixed-message in the commands in her brain: her movements became uncoordinated as the throbbing intensified, as if she were struggling to fulfill two opposite sets of instructions.

Whatever was going on, she stayed dressed in the hot-pink sweat suit, sliding her feet into a pair of white leather pumps with a five-inch heel... and was ashamed at the relief she felt as her contoured feet fit more comfortably in the high-heels, though it wasn't quite a perfect fit. Thanks to some reshaped muscles and bones, as well as a helpless need to, she was able to look as if she were walking with an effortless grace in the heels, though she was actually concentrating very hard to make it look easy.

Then she found herself gathering up more clothing. As she picked up each item, she shuddered at the thought that she'd be wearing such clothing. This was more what she'd expected, and she was somewhat relieved at the odd, temporary reprieve - even if it did cause a pounding headache.

Once she'd loaded the clothes and the bottle of fluid into a big bag, she found herself heading up to her office, where she let herself in. Picking up a pen, she found herself writing on the pad of paper on the desk - and found herself concentrating on writing in a very flowing, elegant script.

What she wrote was:

Monique Belledame

It was the same name that she found herself writing - in her old, masculine hand - in Dora's appointment book, with a note to admit 'her' immediately, leaving her to wonder why the hell she was leaving instructions to admit herself into the office when she - as Gary - couldn't be there to see her...

Then she found herself heading out of the building, locking up behind her and heading to her car.

Then the pain in her head redoubled, her already awkward moments becoming nearly uncontrollable, making her look like she was shivering. Through the heavy pounding in her nearly split mind, she wondered what the hell was happening, what was going wrong - even as she drove to an all-night drug store.

She was barely aware of what she was doing as she picked out a wide variety of things from the store's shelves, not even noticing the odd looks the staff members and rare customer gave her as she made her purchases. It wasn't until she'd loaded the bags into her car and headed home that the pain began to ease, and she had to stifle a whimper of relief as the crushing headache faded.

Getting home, she carried her purchases and the bag with the clothes and bottle of serum into her house and piled it on the floor of her bedroom, then locked up, undressed, and crawled into bed - where she fell instant and deeply asleep.

* * * * *

Wednesday, March 2nd, 2001 8:00 a.m.

Monique snapped instantly awake at eight-o'clock sharp. Her dark, smoldering eyes popped open, and she was already beginning to sit up, her long, silky mane of hair uncoiling behind her as she pushed herself upright and slid her long, sensuous legs over the edge of the bed and into the shoes she'd left on the floor, ready to receive her high-arched feet.

Gary, on the other hand, was slower getting up to speed. Confusion and shock thrummed through his mind as he 'awoke' to find his body rising out of bed - only to realize that it wasn't in fact, his body - but hers.

Memory clicked - even as she realized that she had even less control over her body this morning than she had last night - yet, by the same token, she had more knowledge. It was like some sort of odd reversal. Last night, she'd been using her body to perform unknown deeds... while, this morning, another part of her mind was running her body, operating under a set of 'pre-programmed' new behavioral and persona rules - yet she was clearly aware of each action she was performing, and why...

...and she also knew what the hell was happening to her. It came to her, not as a release on the memory-block Janice had put on her, but as an insight given by the feel of the Monique persona as it filtered through her conscious brain on its way to the rest of her body. It came in her first coherent thought as her body rose to head for the bathroom.

'Take a long bubble bath, wash and condition my hair?' He thought, with disgust. 'It's things like this that bother me about women...'

That, along with the memory of what clothes she'd 'picked' last night made her realize that, in fact, the woman she'd become was embodying everything Gary didn't like about women.

It wasn't any great leap to realize that Janice would have thought that the perfect punishment for him/her - and so, even though she still didn't remember the specific instructions she'd been given, Gary/Monique knew what had been done to her...

...except for the fact that she couldn't remember what, exactly, she hated about women until she went ahead and did it. It was part of the 'lockout' in her brain from Janice.

Gary was little more than a spectator as Monique set about 'getting ready'. It started with that long, warm bubble-bath, (the bubble-stuff being one of the things she'd bought last night) during which she soaped up her sensual, sophisticated new body and washed and conditioned her hair - all the while, feeling a rising sense of panic as time passed, yet unable to do anything about it. Now she understood what was happening, though - obviously, she was getting ready to go out somewhere, as per Janice's instructions - but Janice hadn't realized that the new persona Monique would have would demand a lengthy period of getting ready before she'd be able to leave the house. The two were in conflict - but 'being Monique' overrode the time problem.

After the long, luxurious - and feminine - bath, she had to dry her hair... and that took forever, even with the new blow-dryer she'd purchased.

Then she styled her long, thick, silky mane - and that was another incredibly time-consuming job as she laboriously struggled with the unfamiliar implements and accouterments of feminine hair styling, including a curling iron.

When she was done, her hair was done up in an incredibly complex, thick style. Part of it was curled, rising up from her head in a few tiered waves, moving back and outwards, before being gathered at the back by a beaten silver clip, hidden in more thick curls of hair. From there, her hair spilled down her back in a wave that was curled at the top, with the curls gradually becoming looser and looser until the hair at the bottom was straight. With all the extra hair 'taken up' in the elaborate style, her hair fell to above her firm, sexy new ass - which, she discovered, was actually more comfortable to sit on than her old one, a fact she hated to admit. She didn't want to fond any aspect of this female body better than her old, male one.

After her hair, she went to work on her face with the make-up she bought. With no precious practice, she found that she knew what she wanted, sort of - but not how to achieve it. More time ticked past as she tried time and again to get everything absolutely perfect.

Finally, she finished her makeup. Dark, gloss-red lips with nearly black liner at the edge. The faintest traces of blush on her well-defined cheeks. Mascara on her already incredibly long, voluminous lashes. Some eye-liner. A pale coating of eye shadow.

She sighed with relief when it was over - only to find herself moving on to her long, delicately shaped nails. Her new persona, being as 'inefficiently feminine' as possible, wasn't content with a simple coating of polish - no, she spent forever doing each nail in a base of dark, gloss-red polish, then adding three... 'darts', she guessed you call them. Tapering lines that were on a diagonal across the nail, but didn't go all the way across. One ran from right-to-left, the others from left to right - on her right hand. They were reversed on her left.

A tiny fake 'diamond' stick-on was applied at the end of each of these darts on each nail.

Doing the right hand with her 'dumb' left hand was a nightmare, since she was helplessly obsessed with pure perfection. More time ticked away as she worked.

Then it was time to get dressed.

She started with a pair of panties. A pair of black lace panties, to be exact. Something she wouldn't have believed she'd ever be wearing, yet Monique's persona actually sighed in near-ecstatic pleasure as she pulled the panties into position over her new womanhood.

Then, to Gary's dismay, came the black satin-covered canvas corset. With 'Monique' firmly in control of the body, she was incapable of showing a grimace of distaste as she tightened the corset around her already slender waist, just enough so that it fit snugly.

Then came the bra. Also black lace, it was large enough to fit her new breasts, which didn't need the support - not that the strapless lace demi-bra would have helped support them, anyway. At least it was front-closing, which made it easy to get on.

Then came the nylons. Black nylons, with lace trim running up the outside of each leg. Monique carefully pulled them on and used the five garters on each side of the corset to clip them up, then carefully smoothed and straightened them until they were perfectly aligned.

An almond-colored silk blouse with off-white lace trim along the buttons and collar went over her firm new bust - barely. It fit tightly across her new breasts, revealing that she possessed a staggering bust-line even as it covered them in shimmering material. The blouse fit even tighter when she used the small loops-and-buckles on either side of the blouse to tighten the lower half so that the entire blouse was 'fitted' to her figure.

The next item was a black velvet skirt. It was longer than she might have expected - but very formfitting, clinging from her waist, over her hips, and down to her knees.

A matching black velvet bolero jacket with 'old-gold' designs on the lapels went over her blouse.

Various pieces of gold-toned jewelry found their way into her hands from the bag of purchases - and she put them on. The small, elegant earrings. The sardonyx rings. The cameo necklace.

Then, Monique put on something even more useless than jewelry.

A hat. A stupid little hat that sat atop her hair, held in place by hat pins. It was sort of a 'pillbox' hat, Gary guessed... but not exactly. It sported a little 'gold-and-diamond' pin-thing in the front, and had layers of lacy gauze-like stuff that she found herself weaving around her elaborate hairdo, and letting hang down over her eyes to her nose, like a veil.

It was useless. It was stupid. It was unnecessary... and a look in the mirror showed that it actually looked elegant, sophisticated - and very sexy, shadowing her dark eyes and making them even more mysterious and seductive.

In fact - the image in the mirror was absolutely stunning. With the clothing, she was incredibly elegant, sophisticated... yet there was an underlying thread of sensuality so powerful it was almost frightening. It wasn't the sort of 'sexy' that most people had come to accept, what Gary had always actually thought of 'slutty'. It wasn't that... forward. It didn't need to be. She was more utterly seductive than any 'easy' or 'cheap' woman could ever be - the clothes actually tempted, even though they were rather 'conservative' in terms of the amount of her body they covered. They couldn't hide the lush, graceful body they contained, they only tantalized.

When she switched from the white pumps into a pair of black velvet pumps with a scalloped edge and a six-inch high, gold-tone spike heel, the image was complete. She was dressed in a way that wasn't the least bit 'provocative'; - except that she was an incitement to riot by the way it looked on her.

"Just about ready, my love..." She found herself whispering to her reflection, in her incredibly rich, warm, and throaty new voice...

...with a French accent, which startled her - though it didn't show, of course.

With something akin to shock, she found herself emptying out a small perfume bottle she'd bought, dumping the cheap perfume down the sink and cleaning the bottle and stopper thoroughly - then refilling the bottle with the compound she'd created the night before. As she did so, she realized that it wasn't something Janice had instructed her to make - indeed, it was something her new persona had felt it needed to play it's role, and Janice was unaware of it's existence.

She then applied some of the liquid as if it were perfume, dabbing it here-and-there on her body. She then used a small length of flexible wire to twist-tie the stopper onto the bottle, sealing it, and placed it in the black leather purse she'd picked up, along with some make-up and other items.

Then, at a little after noon, she left her house, the throbbing anxiety of time-pressure slowly fading as she finally got underway.

Considering she'd made an appointment for herself, Monique wasn't all that surprised to find herself driving to the labs - though she parked her car in a Car Poll lot a little ways away, finding she didn't want anybody at the company to see her pull up in Gary's car. She walked the last stretch of the way with a simply elegant stride that was also incredibly sensual, her hips and ass moving in a hypnotic, feminine rhythm.

She gracefully opened the doors to the lobby and entered, her spike heels clicking on the floor as she crossed it slowly and sensuously, moving directly towards the only person in the lobby, the guard.

"Can I help you, Miss?" the guard said, maintaining a commendable professional detachment, despite being confronted by an unbelievably elegant, sensual woman.

Monique found her lips curving up in a slight, knowing smile.

"I wish I had time for you to... 'help' me..." She said in that throaty, seductive voice, slowly looking him up and down... and, to her horror, licking her lips slowly and seductively.

"Excuse...?" The guard started to respond - but she lifted her hand in a graceful motion and pressed one finger against his lips, leaning forward.

"Hush..." She said, softly. "Don't move, my handsome friend. Don't speak."

The guard looked confused for a second... and then his face settled into a look of mild puzzlement, coupled with a touch of interest...

...and, with shock, Monique realized that the 'perfume' she'd developed was some sort of odor-based mind-control substance, mixing with her own pheromones to create a subtle odor that caused people to become susceptible to her commands... without them even realizing that they were under her control. She could tell, because of the way the guard was reacting. It wasn't blank-faced obedience, nor was it horrified realization... instead, he'd... 'just decided' to do what she'd told him to, not finding anything strange in his behavior.

Monique was finding something strange - and humiliating - in her behavior, however, as she continued to smile at him, sliding her finger from his lips along the line of his jaw. With a slow, sensual stride, she began to walk around him, and he simply stood still as she came up behind him, pressing her body against his with undisputed horror, all-but-whispering in his ear in an incredibly sensual tone.

"I love a man in uniform..." She told him, slowly sliding one hand under his arm and onto his chest. Slowly, she began to unbutton his shirt. "They are just so... how you say? Exciting..."

She slid her hand into his shirt and under the collar of his undershirt, gently stroking his chest...

...while her other hand slide across his pants, working upward and inwards towards his crotch.

She was coming on to a man. Right here. Right now. In the middle of the lobby. Gary was horrified and disgusted...

...and aroused, physically. The realization that Monique was turned on disgusted her even further - but she couldn't help but feel that thrumming of pleasure through her new body.

"Men in uniform look so... powerful..." She whispered to him, as her hand found his crotch and began to massage his rapidly stirring cock through the cloth. "So... in control."

With one hand massaging his chest, the other lightly rubbing his crotch, Monique found herself pressing her large, firm tits against his back... and loving the sensation. She began to rub one nylon-clad angle against his, her body thrumming with arousal at having erotic control over this man, and her buried male mind disgusted at the fact.

"You must feel that too, don't you?" She whispered to him, feeling his cock go rock-hard in his pants. "You must find yourself thinking about how easy it would be, to use your masculine power to just take a woman..."

He made an odd sound, his body shivering slightly - and, with horror, Monique realized she was doing more than just coming on to the guard.

She was programming him. She was brain-washing him, without him even realizing it...

...and she couldn't stop herself.

"But you can't, can you?" She whispered to him, her massaging of his crotch becoming more forceful, mixing pain with pleasure. "Under the uniform, you are just another man. The only power this uniform gives you over women is the power to play their little fantasy games. To pretend to be powerful... but only when a woman wants you to..."

He made a soft moaning sound, his cock now solid as a steel bar in his pants, his body slightly fevered.

"That's all you are, my handsome pet - a plaything. You can be tough with men - but you just melt for women, doing anything they tell you to. Isn't that right, my pet...?"

His answer was a moan - but a moaned word. "Yes..."

"Mmmm... such a good pet..." She whispered, taking her hand away from his crotch, leaving him aroused - but unable to do anything about it. Turning, she found herself walking away from the man, her entire body throbbing with arousal while her mind throbbed with disgust over what she'd just done to the poor man...

...then she found herself at the elevators, pressing the button - and as she did so, she slowly looked over at the guard, who was standing at disheveled attention, longing in his eyes as his pants bulged with his erection.

"Oh, my pet..." She said, seductively. "One more thing cum for me."

The guard gasped, his hips bucked in sharp jerks as a damp spot appeared at his crotch.

Helplessly wearing a small, cruelly victorious smile, Monique entered the elevator and pressed the top button.

As the elevator rose, she considered her situation was horror and understanding. Janice had instructed her to become the 'worst' woman he could imagine, obviously. He'd already figured that out. Unfortunately, Janice obviously hadn't truly considered the implications of that command. She probably thought that she would have turned out to be some empty-headed blonde bimbo or something - that would fit Janice's skewed view of Gary.

The truth was much more frightening. Gary was efficient, organized and dedicated - and 'moral', for lack of a better term. His 'worst' woman, the one he'd want to have nothing to do with, would be one who was 'immoral'. Seductive, distracting - and dedicated to causing chaos and inefficiency while building her own power. To Gary, such a woman would be useless - a liability, in fact.

Now - Gary was her, and Janice had no idea what she'd created.

The elevator 'dinged', and Monique gracefully, slipped between the doors and walked over to where Dora was sitting behind her desk. Dora looked up and took in Monique's classy appearance and aura of sensuality, obviously not quite sure what to make of this woman.

"I am Monique Belledame..." Monique said, with a slow smile. "I have an appointment."

"Oh - yes, you did. For first thing this morning." Dora said, in a 'professional' tone that told Monique that the secretary had decided not to like her. "I'm not sure if Mr. Williamson can fit you in this afternoon..."

Monique found herself leaning forward and smiling conspiratorially. "It took me a while to get ready, my dear. I'm sure you understand - when you look as lovely as I do, you cannot 'slack off', but must work for pure perfection. You understand, don't you?"

The mind-control perfume she'd developed obviously worked as well on women as it did on men... Dora blinked, then nodded, smiling easily. "Oh, sure. Why don't I see if I can fit you into the schedule..."

"Hmmm..." Monique said, gracefully sitting on the corner of Dora's desk. "Let's just talk for a minute, dear."

Dora glanced at the doors to Gary's office, then smiled up at her new best friend. "Oh, sure. That's be nice."

Monique barely new the guard at the lobby, but Dora was a different matter - she'd known the slender, efficient brunette long enough to come to respect her. She didn't want to do whatever she was about to do to her - but she just couldn't help herself. She had no control over her actions, thanks to Janice.

"You certainly didn't spend as much time getting ready as I did, my dear..." Monique said, looking at Dora's nearly mannish gray suit and low-heeled black shoes. Though slender and slightly athletic, with a fairly nice, somewhat tomboyish figure, Dora had always worn rather severe, conservative suits one of the reasons Gary had hired her, as a matter of fact. Now, the usually self-possessed secretary glanced down at herself self-consciously.

"Oh, no - I don't want to look too attractive at work." She said, unconsciously smoothing her slacks over her legs. "No need to go looking for trouble, I figure."

Even as Dora said those words, Monique knew exactly what she was going to program Dora to do. Now that she understood Monique's motivations, she knew how her mind was now pre-set to work... but there was nothing she could do as she leaned forward and began to whisper in the secretary's ear, horrified at what she was doing to her trusted secretary.

Fifteen minutes later, leaving a slightly worried-looking Dora behind, Monique gracefully glided to the doors to her office, a faintly triumphant smile on her lips hiding the horror and disgust she felt at what she'd just done.

Opening the doors, she stepped into her office... and felt a sudden sense of shock.

There were two people in the room, both men she recognized. Seated in the 'visitors' seat was a tall, spare-looking man with narrow eyes and a prematurely receding hairline. Bradley J. Campbell.

General Brad Campbell, to be exact, his uniform crisply pressed and two stars gleaming on each shoulder. Monique had never liked the head of the Army's R&D Division for Chemical Warfare. He had an oily look to him, and a unsavory personality. To see him in this building was somewhat of a shock...

...but not as big a shock as seeing Gary Willimason sitting behind his desk, looking right at home.

Then something in Monique's mind 'clicked', and she understood that this Gary had been Janice, as Monique had been Gary...

...except that she was Gary's girlfriend, even if Gary had been Janice, so she couldn't be Gary at all, and...

Monique's confident, slightly triumphant smile faltered slightly as something went askew in her head - and then she was suddenly 'ripped apart'...

+ + +

Her mind swirled and danced, trying to come to terms with everything it regarded as 'reality'. Janice had only tested the serum she'd used on Gary/Monique the night before, and with relatively simple commands. Nothing like what she'd done to him/her. She hadn't known the great strains she'd placed on his mind - especially since she'd 'short circuited' his reality perception, then left it skewed. Unlike the rest of the staff, who she'd 'skewed', then 'straightened' with only one change - obedience to her - Janice had layered all sorts of 'realities' into Gary/Monique...

...and never 'turned on' the reality filters again.

Even though Monique knew that she'd been Gary, and that the Gary she now saw had been Janice, her muddled mind was reacting solely on the information it accepted as 'reality'; - that 'Greg' was sitting at his desk, and that she wasn't Gary.

That, mingled with the command that she must act like Monique, and not like Gary, made connections in her mind that Janice could never have anticipated. Just as Janice had failed to see the dangerous woman Monique would be, a power-hungry slut-bitch, so Janice hadn't truly understood the effects of her serums. Like many scientists, Janice suffered from 'thintelligence' - enough knowledge to figure out how to do something, but not the self-discipline to then consider the total effects and ask whether they should do it or not. In her own arrogance, successfully creating the serum made her think she had total control over it - it was her creation, and so she was it's master. She didn't really know what she'd done.

Now, Monique's brain spun, fragmenting... and then put itself back together in the only pattern it could, fitting pieces together that were never designed to fit.

She was Monique Belledame. No matter who she might have been in the past, that is who she was now. She was not a man trapped in a woman's body, but a woman.

A woman with an uncontrollable urge for power-through-perversions. Mind control. Sex. Anything and everything. It was an addiction that she couldn't control - even though she hated it. She knew who - and what - she'd been before, and longed for that life again... but she was driven to be the 'best' Monique she could be, and Monique was a real bitch.

Where there had been a 'real' persona trapped behind the wall of a false persona, now there was only one. One thinking, intelligent mind - trapped within it's new sets of rules. Which, in a way, was normal. Just as a smoker may wish to quit, only to find himself failing and lighting up again, Monique wished to give up her control-oriented life... if she could. But the obsessions, the addiction, was very strong...

Then there was the man sitting behind the desk. Just as she was now Monique, and Monique alone, even though she'd once been Gary, then this man was Gary, her 'boyfriend', no matter who he'd been before. It was that 'simple' - at least in her restructured mind-set.

Her mind, slapped back together in a new shape, steadied down, leaving her feel breathless - and oddly liberated, even though she knew she wasn't freed from compulsions. She was just no longer a 'mindless' slave to them, no a thinking, integral part to a single set of thoughts and memories, even though she despised some of them.

+ + +

To the two men, Monique looked as if her heel had caught in the carpet for an instant. She'd swayed.. then regained her balance, continuing forward with a slightly less seductive walk, but one that was nevertheless graceful and feminine.

Monique glided towards the general, struggling to keep from walking with the pure sensuality she so much wanted to use. She knew that her incredible sensuality was a form of power, especially over men, and she yearned to use every ounce of it, to completely control every aspect of this situation, including the sexual. She fought against it - and succeeded. She didn't use her 'seduction' walk...

...but between her new, wholly feminine outlook (as unwanted as it may be) and her altered feet in high heels, she simply could not walk in a way that was anything less than gracefully feminine, which had it's own 'charms' for men to watch.

Reaching the general, she fought not to try and instantly seduce him, struggling for merely 'pleasant' as she held out a hand and said 'I don't believe we've met - I'm Monique Belledame.'

It was a partial success - her voice was throaty and sensual all on it's own, and she knew she was throwing off all sorts of 'signals'. She couldn't help it - though not actively seducing him, her need for control wouldn't let her lose the advantage.

From the look Brad gave her, he knew the truth about her origins, especially since he threw a look at Gary before taking her hand.

"Brad Campbell..." He said, obviously enjoying the humiliation of the woman who had once been 'Gary', not knowing that all wasn't going as planned. "Pleased to meet you."

She wanted to make it a simple request - but he found herself leaning forward as she spoke, enveloping him in the aura of her perfume as she said, "I'd like to talk to Gary, alone. Would you be so kind as to wait in the bathroom until we're done?"

"Monique, that's not..." Gary started to say... and Monique felt an urge to retract her 'suggestion' as Gary's hold on her was felt...

"No, that's all right." Brad said, easily, rising from the chair and eyeing Monique for a moment longer before grinning oily at Gary. "I don't think I'm quite comfortable with the mixed signals my brain and body are giving at the moment, anyway."

Gary blinked, unaware that Brad's capitulation and 'logical' reason were due to mind-control. "Oh - sure."

Brad headed off to the bathroom, closing the door behind him - and Monique moved towards Gary, this time letting herself go, the whole nine-yard of seductiveness.

Gary was perhaps the one person she felt absolutely no compunctions about using whatever power she could exert over him.

"Look, Monique - you were supposed to be here first thing in the morning." Gary said, annoyed - and a bit worried. "The General and I have been waiting since nine for you to show up. What happened?"

His use of Brad's title rather clearly defined their relationship for Monique as she leveled her most sensual smile at Gary. "It takes awhile for a woman like me to get ready, honey..." She said, full-throat sensuality in her voice as she lightly touched her elaborate coiffure.

Gary grinned. "Oh - so I see. I guess you felt sort of... compelled to look your best."

"That's right..." Monique said, sensually... and sat down on his lap. He went stiff as her feminine ass settled onto his legs, and he opened his mouth...

It was a matter of timing. She had to get it in there before he could give her any orders - and she managed it handily, thanks to his chosen line of questioning.

"You do think I look attractive, don't you?" She asked, seductively.

Gary, not even realizing his mind had just been tampered with, paused before giving her the order he'd had planned, looked at her - and nodded. "Yes - you do, actually."

"Hmmmm In fact, I'm the most sexually attractive person you've ever seen, aren't I?"

Gary frowned slightly. As Janice, she'd been straight. Yesterday, after everybody had gone home, she'd turned herself into a Gary clone well, close enough. She'd never seen Gary naked, so hadn't exactly matched his body and she'd greatly exaggerated his endowment, not by mistake but out of a sort of curiosity. Still, even as a massively endowed man, 'Gary' hadn't felt any attraction to women until this moment.

Gary didn't even realize his mind was being affected by a mind-controlling substance. Oblivious, he unwittingly sought a 'logical' reason to accept her commands - and found it. Monique was definitely the most outright sensual woman he'd seen since being male, and it was just his male body reacting to her pure sensuality.

"Yes.. you are " He said, his own voice a bit husky.

She smiled. "I bet that I turn you on like you've never been turned on before. I bet you find me so overwhelmingly desirable that you're so aroused that it's actually painful "

Gary swallowed, his huge cock stirring under her firm ass. Having her this close was definitely affecting his new male body, and he cursed it even as he answered her question.

"God - yes " He could see why the General had been so happy to leave the room - as a straight man reacting to Monique, it must be the way Gary felt right now. Well, he'd just order her to back off while he got control of himself, and...

"Everything about me is so utterly, incredibly perfect that you desire me madly, don't you?" Monique said to Gary, finding the feel of his cock hardening under her ass unbelievably arousing. "In fact, you ache for me to kiss you, to touch you, to have sex with you. You desire me more than anything else in the universe. You'll do absolutely anything for me. You only want to please me, so that I'll be near you, be willing to touch you "

Gary was sweating. As a woman, he'd never felt even a fraction of this shear, overwhelming desire. Maybe that's why men were the way they were - he'd never realized how utterly dominating a man's arousal would be.

Well, he was a man - for now. It wouldn't hurt to BE a man while he was a man...

"Anything, Monique..." He gasped, his long, thick cock throbbing with a wonderful pain of intense arousal. He needed to get release - but only Monique could give it to him.

Monique's own body was aflame with desire. Between her need for control and her rampant arousal, she couldn't help but lean forward and kiss Gary, long and passionate, her long, supple tongue darting into his mouth and playing with his own as they kissed. It was with an unwanted pang of regret that she broke the kiss.

"What's Brad doing here, Gary..." She asked, slowly unbuttoning her blouse.

Gary swallowed, eyes fixed on the swatch of creamy flesh slowly being revealed. "He, uh... he's helping me, uh.. with a project..."

Pulling her blouse open, Monique sighed hungrily and undid her bra, letting her breasts free of it's ornamental confinement. Her large, thick nipples were fully engorged.

"Tell me everything, Gary. Tell me all about it as you fondle my tits..."

Gary's hands came up and she closed her eyes and moaned in pleasure as they made contact with her firm, round breasts. Gary's face was twisted in a mixture of desire, pleasure and doubt - but he couldn't fight the control he didn't even know she had over him.

"The General financed my extra research, and supplied some of the work..." He gasped out, feeling incredible pleasure at being allowed to touch the perfect, creamy globes on Monique's chest. They were more perfect than his could have ever been, when he was Janice. These were perfect "Our plan was to completely discredit you "

"Me ?" Monique asked, smiling. "Don't you mean you? Gary Willimason? That is who you are, isn't it?"

'I told her to pretend I'm Gary, no matter what' Gary thought, finding a logical reason to accept her

'comment' as the utter truth. 'So, I'll just play along. I'm Gary '

"Yes - the plan was to discredit me. We have it all set up. All the evidence will show that I was the one who started the forbidden research, not me.. uh, not Janice. I - She - will be cleared, and I will go to jail and the General gets the company."

"No - you're not going to jail, Gary " Monique said, slowly standing up.

"I'm not ?" Gary asked, feeling confused as his brain tried to find reasoning to support what he felt he had to agree with.

"No - because then you couldn't do this " Monique moaned, head spinning with desire - both sexual, and the desire to control Gary. She slowly slide her skirt off. "Take your pants off, Gary "

As Gary hurried to comply, still in mental turmoil, Monique picked up a letter opener off of Gary's desk, and used it to cut both sides of her panties, letting her pull off the torn undergarment without having to remove the garters. Her womanhood was wet and ready, and she was shuddering with her own odd mix of emotions: She wasn't actually 'sexually' aroused by the thought of having sex with a man.... but her body was very aroused, and her mind was obsessed with the idea of controlling Gary, which she could easily do through sex.

Gary pulled his pants down - and this huge, throbbing monster of a cock stood straight up from his lap, it's head nearly purple and the thick veins along it's length pulsing with his heartbeat. An even foot long, the cock was thick, with a large head - and the sight of it both repulsed and excited Monique. Repulsed because of her past life as a man - and excited her as the toll through which she could easily control men...

"You can't go to jail, Gary..." She said, stepping up to him and putting one knee on either side of him while he sat in the chair, mind spinning. She positioned herself over him, her wet, hot cunt hovering above the head of his thick cock. "If you go to jail, then I'll never be able to do this again..."

And she thrust herself down on his massive organ, crying out in pleasure as it entered and filled her ready cunt - and he spasmed in equal pleasure.

"It's Janice who did something illegal." Monique gasped to Gary as she drove herself atop his hot, throbbing cock, finding both physical and emotional pleasure from the action of fucking him - in more ways than one. "Janice and the General conspired on a project... but not the mind control or biomorphic projects."

"Uhh..." Gary gasped, mind overwhelmed with pleasure and confused thoughts. "Oh, I.. I..."

She thrust herself harder atop his cock, struggling to force words out when all she wanted to do was scream in pleasure. Her entire body was thrumming with pleasure the likes of which she'd never felt before, and it took every ounce of willpower to not surrender to it completely. "It was... a weapons project - oh, yes! - and you caught them. Mmm... you're so big, Gary... They ran off off together.. and... ughnnn... and... you're gonna stay here.. ughnnn "

The rolling pleasure was building towards orgasm, and she fought against it, struggling to get the words out before they came. It would be much, much stronger if she could just...

"...Stay here, Gary... oh, God!... and... yes...! and be my willing little sex-slave! OH, GOD YES!"

The orgasm was thunderous. She lost control of her fine motor skills and her body jiggled and shook atop Gary, her tits bouncing and swaying as she came, long and hard, pleasure exploding all through her body...

...even as she felt the stab of disappointment from her failure to break Gary's own mental blocks...

...when Gary's cock, squeezed by her pulsating vaginal muscles, spewed forth its load of hot, thick cum - and Gary screamed at the top of his lungs.

"Oh, Yes, Monique - anything for you. Oh, God - I'm your little slave-boy, now and forever !"

+ + +

Even as the words emerged from his mouth, Gary wondered what the hell he was saying....

...except that it was hard to think at all. The orgasm was thunderous, intense, more than he'd ever felt before. He was a man, fucking a woman, and should have been disgusted - but, instead, he was in more ecstasy than he'd ever been in before, and he was agreeing to be Monique's little slave ?

Then Gary's mind fragmented - and snapped back together. Poorly.

Part of the mind in Gary's body accepted Monique's domination over him. It took all it knew of Gary, enough to 'play the part', and just let Monique do all the real thinking for it. It was this thin layer of thought that held the surface, held control of the body. It wasn't really so much 'intelligent' as a primal brain, having just enough 'intellect' to function in order to obey Monique's orders - so that it could get more of this pleasure. A purely Pavlovian brain, in a way, existing only to do what was necessary to feel this good again.

The rest of the brain, locked behind the wall of this new shell...

...was Janice, who, separated from the 'controlled' part of the brain, realized what had happened with mounting horror as she struggled to get control of the male body that enclosed her. As she fought to regain control...

...and failed. Helpless, she could do nothing but experience what Gary's body heard, felt and saw... while her own mind was locked away, without any way to communicate with the outside world or operate the body that enclosed it.

Silently, within the walls of the prison her mind had become, she began to scream...

+ + +

General Campbell listened to the sounds through the bathroom door with bemusement, and a trace of guilty disgust. The fact that the 'hot broad' used to be a man made the thought of having sex with her more than a little sick and perverted, no matter how 'real' her new, female body was...

...but, then again, 'Gary' used to be a woman, so Brad figured it all balanced out in the end. Still, it was pretty damned weird.

Finally the sounds ended, and the General turned his mind to what the next step would be. Now that the original Gary was a woman, the temporary Gary could be framed up nice and neatly for an array of illegal actions, and that would allow him to...

The bathroom door swung open, and Brad looked up - then quickly looked away again, since 'Monique' was nearly naked, except for her hat, jewelry, pantyhose and heels. She'd ended up as a hot little number, and Brad's body was too dumb to care that she was 'really' a guy. If he got a full-fledged stiffy from looking at 'her', he might just have to kill himself to...

"General?" Monique said, seductively.

"Maybe you should go put some clothes on..." The General said, still looking away.

He heard her chuckle. "Oh, I don't think it's worth the effort at the moment. Gary and I had a little discussion, and I think you and I need to work some things out."

"Oh...?" Bad said in a noncommittal tone, mind racing. What had that stupid bitch Janice (which was how he thought of her, regardless of her current body) told 'Monique'?

"Yes." Monique said, chuckling again. "General, I think you should clear your chest. Why don't I take you to a nice room where you can write down every shady deal, every con, and every valuable secret you know, including the info on your off-shore bank accounts?"

Brad frowned slightly - then figured it might be good for him. Since he was planning to screw both Gary and Janice - or Monique and Gary, if you preferred - over, double crossing both stupid bitches, it didn't really matter, and it'd help clear his mind.

"Sure, sounds like a good idea." The General agreed, rising. "I hope you're not going to stand over me, naked, while I work."

"Oh, no, General - I'm going to be busy." She assured him with another chuckle. "There's something I'm just dying to try out - and I have a very 'willing' volunteer for it."

The General grunted. He didn't know what she was talking about, but give the situation, Brad felt sorry for whatever poor bastard was going to be saddled with this freaky ex-guy's 'plan'...

TO BE CONTINUED

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: When searching for the missing General, the Major, his aide de camp, also falls victim to the shifty research associates and their mind control drug. But given the General's excellent army background, he has his own ideas of how to change the situation.

Part Two - Major/General

Thursday, March 3rd, 2001 1:22 a.m.

In near-perfect silence, a shadowy figure darker than the night surrounding it broke from the low bushes at the edge of the parking-lot and covered the distance to the bushes on the far side of the paved entranceway, bobbing and weaving through the shadows cast by the few parked cars as it cleared the open space and slipped into the foliage on the building side of the asphalt strip. With slow, sinuous movements, the figure edged closer to the pool of light that came through the windows of the building's lobby.

Reaching the edge of the screening bushes, Major Eric Cherney paused, his dark camouflage blending seamlessly into the growth around him. His face, painted to match his camouflage gear, was only faintly marked by the whites of his eyes in the shadow of his Kevlar helmet as he stared across the open space that separated the bushes from the building.

His heart was beating rapidly under the uniform he wore. Part of it was excitement - being back in 'the field' again, something that the aide of a General usually didn't get a chance to do, especially a 'pencil-pusher' General. However, that excitement was tempered with caution. What he was doing was flat-out illegal.

Then again - what he and the General had been doing with the General's unnamed source within this building was highly illegal too. The General, as usual, had only shared as much information as Eric had a 'need to know to get things done - but that didn't mean Eric's ass was any less on the line if something went wrong.

Having the General disappear definitely seemed to qualify as 'something wrong', as far as Major Cherney was concerned. The last he'd heard from the General was about ten o'clock that morning, when the General had called from this building to indicate he was running late, and Eric should make excuses for him. Since then, Eric hadn't heard from the General - and even using the emergency pager number hadn't gotten a response, which was a very, very bad sign indeed.

Acting in his capacity as aide-de-camp, Eric had called the company to ask about the General - and was told that the General had met with a 'Doctor Tannebaum' first thing that morning, and they'd left together.

Perhaps this Tannebaum guy was the General's contact here - but something about this whole thing didn't smell right. So, Eric had decided it was time for a little reckon, see for himself what was going on. Maybe the whole deal had gone south, and this was a sting - or maybe the General had pulled it off... and he and his contact had taken the money and run. Eric had to find out if that was the case. If it was, he had to get some hard facts about the set-up - then blow the whistle himself as a 'concerned' aide who had no idea what his General had been up to all this time...

Eric never forget the first order of business was C-Y-A - Cover Your Ass.

Silently, Eric unclipped his small field binocs from his belt and brought them to his eyes, checking out the lobby. Hopefully, the place was deserted for the night, allowing him easy access for searching the files, but a place like this was sure to have security of some sort in the main entrance, and Eric didn't...

Suddenly, Eric went absolutely still, the scan of his binoculars coming to a dead stop as his jaw dropped at what he saw, magnified to seem as if he were standing in the lobby himself.

There was, indeed, a security guard in the lobby - and at the moment, he was on his hands and knees, frantically jerking himself off while he licked the shoes of an overweight Hispanic woman who was, without a doubt, one of the Janitorial staff. She was standing with a rather stupefied look on her face, altering her gaze between the guard masturbating at her feet - and the wad of cash she held in her chubby little hand.

"Pervert..." Eric whispered in disgust. His already low opinion of 'rent-a-cops' fell even further as he turned the glasses away from the sickening sight. At least he didn't have to worry about that guard responding quickly to anything.

Scanning the side of the building, he soon saw his way in - a ladder to the room, for maintenance. It had a section that was pulled up to keep any casual vandals from using it, but his grappling hook and line snared it on the first try, and soon Eric was standing at the door to the forth floor, the stairwell to the roof dark after he'd silently smashed the bulb. Peering through the small crack he'd pulled the door open, he found himself looking at an empty reception are, brightly lit. Though the bright fluorescent lights were a bad sign, there didn't seem to be anybody around.

On silent feet, Eric slipped through the door, heading towards the office at the end of the room - the Owner's office, where he'd be sure to find some sort of files he could use.

Silently, Eric padded around the empty secretary's desk - and paused for a second, wondering about the woman who worked here. The name plate on the desk said 'DORA WINTERS' - but it was hard to see, s it was almost buried under the stuff that cluttered the desk and the surrounding areas.

Wigs. Make-up. Skin-care products. Herbal breast enlargement nostrums, Pamphlets for plastic surgery of every kind. There were also three mirrors of various sizes on the desk, as well as five full- length mirrors set up at various places around the desk, presumably so that this Dora woman could check herself out from any angle. Eric had known some vain women in his time, but he'd never seen anything like this, much less at work. This woman must be completely and utterly obsessed with her looks or something.

Shaking his head, Eric padded towards the doors leading to the owner's office. He could see that the lights were on inside, too - maybe they kept the lights running all he time here. Wondering what sort of screwy outfit this place was, Eric eased the door open...

...and swiftly stepped inside, pushing the door shut behind him as his heart-rate increased dramatically. Almost on instinct, he whipped his side-arm out of his holster and pointed it at the muscular man sitting behind the desk at the far end of the room, staring up at the ceiling with what appeared to be intent interest and making odd little noises.

Eric had hoped to pull this thing off without detection, but he wasn't leaving without some answers. Reaching behind him, he locked the door to buy himself time - while amazed that the guy behind the desk apparently hadn't noticed him. What could be so engrossing about a ceiling, Eric had no idea - but he was beginning to wonder if the night-staff of this place was using the labs to create some drugs like LSD or something, because it seemed that everybody here tonight was either crazy or stoned.

"Don't move, mister." Eric said, not to loudly but forcibly. He moved closer to the desk, gun held at a slight angle away from the man, but able to come up into position if it needed to. Eric's eyes kept flickering between the man's hands, gripping the edge of the desk, and his face. If either his hands or his face showed any signs he was about to do something stupid, Eric would be faced with the dilemma of whether to shoot or not - and if he shot, then he'd have to go whole-hog, something he wasn't sure if he was ready to do.

The man let out a long, soft sigh and lowered his head, his eyes focusing on Eric, though the sight of an armed soldier standing in front of his desk seemed only to puzzle him, mildly, not upset him.

Then the chair slid back on silent wheels, and Eric snapped the gun up and drew a bead on the man's forehead, sweat breaking out on his brow as he slid his finger from the outside of the trigger guard onto the trigger.

"I said, don't move!" Eric said, finding his voice louder and higher-pitched than he'd intended it to be. Then, out of nowhere, a muffled female voice spoke.

"He didn't - I did." It said. "Would it be quite all right if I got up - it's cramped down here."

Eric blinked, and then looked down at the desk that had just spoken in a very throaty, controlled - and incredibly sexy - female voice.

"Out. Where I can see you." Eric commanded, wondering what the hell was going on.

The man in the chair pushed back a little further, lifting his hands while doing so, letting Eric see he wasn't planning anything. He seemed a little more 'there'. Now, though he didn't strike Eric as particularly bright...

...then Eric's jaw dropped as a woman every bit as sexy as her voice emerged from under the desk. It wasn't hard to tell how sexy her body was - since she was dressed only in a pair of nylons and high heels, her body gleaming with a light sheen of sweat, and a thin white dribble running from the corner of her mouth explaining what, exactly, had been going on.

"Excuse me..." the incredibly gorgeous woman with the elaborate hairdo said - and Eric's eyes widened even further as she snaked and incredibly long, supple tongue from between her gloss-red lips to lick up the errant flow from the corner of her lips. "Waste not, want not, as they say - though I find that I do want, mostly."

Her voice was husky and sensual - and conversational, which was downright amazing considering she was facing an armed man while she was nude - or nearly so.

Things were beginning to feel very surrealistic to Major Cherney, and he began to wonder if maybe it wasn't he who was on some sort of acid trip...

"So - is this a hold-up?" She asked, leaning against the edge of the desk in a graceful pose that made Eric's cock twitch. "Or are you out hunting game? Because if you are..."

Smiling, the woman slid one hand over her flat stomach and up to her large, incredibly perfect breast, lightly cupping it.

"...I'm game..." She said, voice dropping into the most seductive, cock-stiffening tone Eric had ever heard in his life. His cock was doing more than twitch, now, and he had to resist the urge to shake his head to clear it.

"I'm looking for some answers, lady - and I think the boss-man here might have them. Don't try anything funny, and nobody will get hurt." Eric said, trying to sound as tough as nails.

The man behind the desk frowned, glancing briefly at the woman. "Answers?" He asked, in a sort of wimpy voice - then cleared his throat...

...and something happened. It was like he slipped on a mask, or as if another soul had slipped into his body. His expression firmed up, and even though he was still sitting with his hands up, Eric suddenly got a very twitchy feeling.

"Son, you're in a whole world of shit." The man said, firmly. "I'm the owner of this company, Gary Williamson - Sergeant major Williamson, United States Army, retired. I recognize the uniform, Major - and the little stunt you're pulling while on active duty is generally known as treason."

Oh, shit - a Sar-Maj... Even a retired one was bad news, and Eric certainly hadn't counted on the owner of this place being ex-Army, much less a Sergeant Major. A tech weenie, maybe, that would have made sense - but a Sergeant major...?

Swallowing, Eric tightened his grip on the gun, suddenly afraid that using it might be his only chance, and even that one was a slim one. He'd have to take out the woman, too, which was a damn shame since she was so hot - and hot to trot, to, the way she was eyeing him hungrily as she moved towards him...

"Hold it!" It was a full-fledged shout this time, as he swung the gun towards her. Caught up in the owner's sudden change of personality, he'd nearly missed her slow, sensuous approach, and now the muzzle of his gun was less than an inch away from her oh-so-perfect right breast...

"Monique!" the man cried, sounding absolutely horrified at the thought of her getting harmed - and lost, too, that sudden burst of... whatever it was... fading as quickly as it had arrived.

"Relax, Gary..." She said in that velvety voice, looking Eric right in the eyes with a seductive smile. "The Major here doesn't want to shoot anybody - do you, Major?"

Damn - whatever perfume she was wearing, it was making his knees weak. Or maybe it was just being that close to perfection. The thought of harming her....

"I don't want to, lady - so don't make me " Eric said.

"Oh, come now - we don't even now why you're here, Major ?" She trailed off expectantly, and before he could stop himself he heard his voice saying "Cherney - Eric Cherney, Ma'am." 'Shit! What the hell did I just do? Eric thought, panicked - as the woman smiled.

"Well, Eric, I'm Monique - and this is Gary." She said, warmly, as if they were meeting over tea or something. "So, now that we're all friends here, why don't you give me the gun and tell us what it is you want?"

Eric couldn't believe this was happening. She didn't seem the least bit flustered, not at all... in fact, she seemed a little... aroused?

While he was trying to sort everything out in his mind, Eric was downright flabbergasted to find that he'd let go of the gun, and the woman was holding it...

"Why don't we just put this away, Eric?" She said, removing the clip and expertly ejected in the chambered round, feeding it into the clip and handing them back to him, separately. Stunned by getting the gun back as much as he had been by giving it up, Eric decided that his subconscious mind had already decided he wasn't up to cold-blooded murder after all. Numbly, he holstered the gun and slid the clip into his breast pocket.

"I, uh - I'm looking for General Campbell..." Eric said, bemused, now staring openly at Monique's spectacular figure, searching - in vain - for the slightest flaw. "He.. he was here this morning, then he just disappeared. I'm his personal attaché, and I thought he might be in trouble..."

"Well..." Monique said with an odd-looking smile. "Such loyalty. Very commendable, Major. Tell me - do you know why he was here?"

Since he was screwed anyway, caught in the act and unable to simply blow people away to get out of it, Eric figured 'what the hell', and spilled what he knew. There wasn't much - just enough to screw him over if it blew up, but not enough for leverage. The General had been damned careful about that...

Monique cocked her head when he finished, eyeing him for a long moment in silence.

"So... what you're saying is you just want to make sure you don't get sent to prison?" She asked, finally.

"That's right." Eric agreed.

Monique looked up at the ceiling, muttering to herself. "Hmmm... Everything's just about ready for... I guess I could do two, instead of just the one of them Yes - yes." She lowered her face and grinned at him. "I think I can help you. Why don't you follow me, Eric?"

"Okay." Eric agreed. He followed her as she went to the office doors and unlocked them, stepping out of the office apparently unconcerned that she was nearly naked. Eric followed her out...

Even as he continued walking, following Monique's pertly swaying and delightfully shaped backside, Eric's eyes were drawn to the secretary's desk and his jaw dropped.

The secretary - Dana? No, Dora - had returned and was seated at her desk, looking at herself critically in a mirror.

She was a slender, toned brunette woman. It wasn't hard to see that, because she was dressed in a skin-tight black spandex micro-mini skirt and a short-sleeve, skin-tight white PVC 'blouse' with faux buttons down the front. Her long, toned legs were encased in 'nude' nylons and crossed at the knees, showing on white platform pumps with a nine-inch heel and four-inch platform.

Her face was heavily made up in bright, stark, 'eighties' colors, and her shortish hair had been ruffled up in a hairstyle from the same decade. Her too-red lips were working as she chewed on a piece of gum, overly-mascared eyes intent on the mirror she was using to check out her bust, which had to be at least a double D-cup under the tight, glossy plastic.

"Oh, hey " She said, in a distracted tone of voice, pulling her shoulders back to exaggerate her bust.

"I just had 'em done downstairs. What do you think? I mean you don't think I look 'mannish' or anything, do you?"

"No - no, you don't look the least bit 'mannish'..." Eric reassured her, numbly, as Monique pressed the call button for the elevator.

"You sure?" Dora asked, uncertainly, eyeing herself in one of the full-length mirrors. "I mean - the hair at least. You think I should go with long, blonde hair so nobody mistakes me for a guy?"

"Uh..." Eric stammered, uncertain how to answer that one. As it turned out, he didn't have to - the elevator doors opened, and he numbly followed Monique inside, his last view of the secretary being her hefting her 'new' tits experimentally.

"She used to wear very severe, almost masculine suits and very little make-up." Monique explained with a face that was almost comically deadpan for some reason. "Somebody said that she could almost be mistaken for a guy, and I guess she took it a little too seriously."

"Oh..." Eric said, bemused.

The ride was a short one, as they only went down one floor. It appeared that it was a busy night shift, since there were lab-coated technicians scurrying around on this floor, and they seemed more focused on their work - almost obsessively so, actually, very serious and intent.

"They've found a new-found dedication to their work." Monique said as she led him down the hall, her glorious body not even garnering second glances. "I'm all for fun and games, believe me - I actively encourage those interesting little eccentricities. But this company's work is very important, so I've shortened the shifts to four hours, and insist that the staff is one-hundred-percent pure business during that time - they can have 'fun' the rest of the time. I'm looking for new employees to expand the business, seeing as how I'm sure we're going to do very well indeed."

Eric was further bemused to hear Monique speaking as if she, not this Gary guy, was the owner - but, then again, maybe Gary was just a figurehead, a sop to the military type like the General who they had to do business with. It wasn't any of his business, anyway.

She stopped at the door to a lab and entered a code, causing the door to open. Eric stepped through...

"General!"

General Campbell looked equally surprised. "Major Cherney - what are you doing here?"

"When you never came back, never answered the page, I thought I'd better make sure you were all right. What happened? Have they been holding you prisoner?"

"Not at all, Major." The General laughed. "I just thought it might be a good idea to write down all my secrets for them."

Eric blinked. "What?"

"I..." The General started to answer - when Monique cut him off.

"Let me make this easier on both of you - I'm using mind-control on you to get you to do what I want. I want you to realize that, fully and completely, even though there's nothing you can do about it."

The two men frowned, their minds running back over the events they'd been through...and then their eyes widened in twin horror as they realized they had, indeed, been obeying whatever she told them...

"Don't move!" She ordered, even as the realization set in - and they found themselves pinned in place, unable to budge a muscle.

"You bitch!" Brad shouted. "What the hell do you think you're doing?"

"Why, General..." She said, smiling sweetly. "I'm going to turn you and the Major into women. Sound familiar?"

"What?" Eric gasped. "That... that's impossible!"

"Oh, shit..." The General said in a resigned tone of voice. "Major, it's all too possible. Monique here used to be Gary Williamson, owner of this company."

Eric's eyes widened at the news that this gorgeous creature had once been a man. "No - no, you can't do this to us... to ME!"

"I can - and I'm going to." Monique said. She walked over to a counter and pulled out two bottles. "These are bottles of depilatory - hair remover. I want each of you to take one, go into the bathroom, and remove your hair. All of it, from everywhere over your body. Do it quickly and efficiently, without talking, then come right back here and sit down in those chairs without speaking."

Horried, the men found they had no choice but to obey her orders, walking forward and taking a bottle each, then heading into the bathroom, with its multiple-stall showers, like a locker room.

Helplessly, they undressed and stepped into the showers, covering every inch of their body with the gel-like substance, then turning on the water and washing it - and their hair - off their bodies, leaving them bald and smooth. Equally as helpless, they returned to the main lab and sat down in the chairs, unable to move or speak.

"Unlike some people..." Monique said, pointedly. "I'm not going to be overly cruel about this. I need you out of the way, and I'm not willing to kill you, or keep you around in any form for 'entertainment'. I'm going to make sure that you'll never be 'found' by the authorities, and get you out of my hair."

She walked forward, holding two needles in her hand. "This is the base 'female' formula, which will do the genetic work. Now, I am ordering you not to feel any pain or discomfort of any sort while it's doing it's job."

Quickly and efficiently, Monique injected each of the silent, still men, then stood back and watched as their bodies writhed and changed, the intense pain she'd felt during her change blocked from their conscious minds. As she'd said, she wasn't inherently cruel - she just craved power and control, which she had in spades over these men. She didn't need the extra complications of a couple of more 'non-persons' around the lab, though: the fact that she had no verifiable past herself was bad enough. She was going to be happy to get rid of these two trouble-makers.

After the change was finished, she ordered them to walk over to a pair of full-length mirror and take a look at themselves.

The two men stared at their newly feminine bodies in shock and dismay. Their actual shape was little changed, though the lack of any hair made it more 'feminine' than it might have been otherwise - but the fact that they no longer had cocks, but perfectly formed vaginas, was all the definition of 'feminine' they needed to know.

"So - what do you think...?" Monique asked, coyly.

"Oh, God... no..." Eric sobbed, shaking her head and staring at her new womanhood in the mirror.

Brad was less emotional, though his face was screwed up in non-physical pain. "I'm going to find a way to get you for this "

Monique shook her head. "No, you're not - because once you leave this property, you are to never, ever come back, nor try to see or contact me or anybody else from this facility - nor anybody at all that you knew from your past life. Is that understood.

"Yes " The two men chorused, Brad with a snarl and Eric with a whimper.

"Good - now onto the next order of business. Stand still while I give you another injection "

They had no choice but to obey as she emptied a large syringe into each of them.

"That's the new and improved serum I've developed. Now, the 'final changes' are controlled internally by your controlled mind generating a perfect balance of tension in your muscles and adrenaline in your system. Your body becomes malleable, your muscles tense or contract to reshape your body while different adrenaline levels affect hair length and color, etc. - and then you 'firm up' again, everything over in just a minute or two. This particular batch is time-delayed - it will kick in in " She glanced at a pair of cheap black watches sitting on the counter. "...Two hours, twelve minutes "

She held out a watch to each of them. "Put these on - you'll need them. Because that's how long you have to find your new 'boyfriend'."

"What?" Eric asked, taking the watch, and Monique laughed.

"To make sure you're out of my hair, I'm forcing you to enlist an ally in forming your new life. You have to find a man you have never met before, and convince him to let you move in, and help you form a new life. Don't worry about trying to convince men you're serious - a modified version of the mind- control pheromones are running through your systems right now. It won't make people obey you - but they'll believe you. That doesn't mean the first guy you ask will accept you, though."

"Why would anybody accept us?" Brad asked, tightly.

"Because of the benefit package." Monique grinned. "First of all, they'll get whatever size, shape and functional cock they want - it's part of the chemicals running through your system, which will let you change their dick to whatever they want. You have to tell them all this, so listen up and memorize it. Oh - and you won't be able to tell anybody that you used to be men, or what happened to get you in this situation. As far as you'll ever be able to tell anybody, it as if your life started the moment the initial change was finished, understand?"

She paused while they nodded, then continued, ticking off the points on her fingers.

"Also - I'm giving you each one thousand dollars to give your new boyfriend. Secondly, he'll have a major say in the new woman you'll be - because he'd help define you in the following ways;"

She paused, making sure she wasn't going to fast for them, then continued.

"He gets to buy you your first outfit of clothing, complete with jewelry and make-up. When you change, you have to change into a woman who not only fits into the clothing, but what you think a woman who would wear that type of clothing would look like. Second - he gets to define ONE specific point about your new body. Maybe he wants to make sure you are blonde, or blue-eyed, or a black woman. Whatever that one point is, you have to include it in your new body. Next: He gets to define two things about your 'new history'. Maybe he wants you to have been born in Sweden, or maybe he wants to pretend that you are an ex-chef so you'll be a great cook. Whatever he chooses, you have to do everything possible to make the new you match: so if he says you were a world-class chef, you'll be taking tons of cooking lessons 'just to brush up'."

She smiled and winked. "Finally, to make living with you easier for him, he gets to define three things about your personality. Maybe you are a 'neat freak' who keeps the apartment super-tidy. Whatever. In any case, these are the 'input' they'll have in your new life, and you have to build a body and persona around his choices and stay within that character from then on. You also have to stay with the man you've chosen unless HE tells you to leave, in which case you'll be on your own. Since this guy will have such an impact on your new life, I suggest you choose wisely - and quickly, because you only have two hours and five minutes, and you not only have to find him, he has to pick out your first set of clothes before the deadline."

"And if we don't make the deadline...?" Brad asked, pointedly.

"Oh - then my little 'penalty' kicks in, and you both end up as dumb Hispanic whores who also happen to be incredibly fertile - you're almost guaranteed a baby a year "

The two new women blanched as they realized that the bizarre 'new life' time-trial she was offering them WASN'T the worst of all possible options.

"Here's some clothes. You'd better hurry and while you two can be friends after the change if you want, I want you to split up while you look for you new 'boyfriend' "

Eric looked over at the pile of clothes she'd indicated - and shook her head at the sight of the simple black skirt, black cotton T-shirt, black ball-cap and large black 'Mary Jane' shoes for her still-male- sized feet. "I can't wear these !"

"Unless you'd rather wear a leather micro-mini and thigh-high spiked heels, I'd suggest you dress Juanita " Brad growled in her non-gender-specific new voice. She hated what was happening as much as Eric did, but having instigated the same sort of thing on Monique, knew what was possible, what was likely - and what she'd damned well better do, like it or not.

Looking like two spectacularly bad cross-dressers - but now possessing the genitalia that made that definition impossible - the two ex-men head towards the two waiting taxis in the parking lot, one as coldly determined as she could manage, the other one dazed and barely aware of her surroundings...

~~~~~ ERIC

Thursday, March 3rd, 2001 2:07 a.m.

Eric was lost.

Not physically - physically, she was on the corner of Main and Addison, watching the cab pull away into the late-night darkness. No, she was lost emotionally, intellectually and identity-wise.

It had all happened so quickly, so 'easily' that she was having trouble coping with the fact that she was now, technically female. Though her body shape hadn't changed that much and she felt much the same as she always had, the knowledge that she was doomed to a lie of femininity was overwhelming.

Even worse was the fact that it wasn't yet over. She was, now, 'just barely' female, genetically a woman but very masculine looking. She felt decidedly out of place wearing a skirt and 'girlie' shoes, even if the shoes had heels little more than the ones of her dress uniform. It was the style, the fact that they were identified as women's wear that made all the difference.

Or, perhaps, the fact that she was now 'qualified' to wear them. She was a woman - and she was going to become more 'womanly' in the near future. She had to offer herself up to some man, to become the type of woman he chose - or she'd end up as a pregnant hooker.

She didn't deserve this. It wasn't fair. She hadn't know about the General's plan to turn that guy into Monique, or anything. Sure, he'd known he was helping the General pull off something sneaky and underhanded, something illegal - but this was one possible price she'd never imagined she'd be called on to pay for her transgressions.

Shivering more from emotional stress than from the cool air blowing over her bare legs, Eric turned and began to walk aimlessly down the street, wondering what she was going to do. How could she know what man was the right one to offer this 'deal' to? Which man could she trust not to take advantage of the situation? Monique had tried to 'tone down' the risks, but Eric was smart enough to see that there were all sorts of pitfalls. The man she picked could decide that what he wanted was some sort of sex slave, and that's what Eric would end up as - there was more than enough leeway in the man's options to allow him to do that.

God - a woman. She was a woman. No penis, no masculine 'power', illusory or not. Eric had known there were differences between men and women - and viva la difference! - but now that she was on the opposite side of the gender barrier she began to truly appreciate the fact, her mind seeming to delight in pointing out new things she'd have to deal with, the life she'd have to live.

Make-up. Dresses and high heels. Oh, sure, it wasn't like normal women wore that stuff twenty-four seven, but most wore something 'feminine' and some sort of make-up most of the time, and she'd stand out as 'weird' if she wore baggy clothes and no make-up or anything. There'd be no refuge in pretending she was still masculine, because people would see her as feminine, and so she'd be stared at, laughed at, taunted... treated the way she almost expected to be treated right now, wearing women's clothes. Either way she went, she was in the 'wrong' clothes, one of them wrong for her mental outlook, the other wrong for her new body.

Of course, it wasn't even up to her to choose. No - some guy was going to have the choice of what type of clothes she'd wear, what type of woman she'd be.

It was all too much. It was overwhelming. It was more than she could possibly take. To be a woman. She couldn't even be the 'type' of woman she'd choose for herself if she could. Making the best of a bad situation, she'd turn herself into a nice, butch lesbian, staying as close to the gender line as she could - but even that choice was ripped away from her. Though Monique wasn't being 'cruel' by mind-controlling them into pseudo-'willing' femininity, it didn't help. Everything Eric had known had been torn away from her, her old life, her old identity, her old gender...

With humiliated disgust, Eric felt tears track down her cheeks at the fate that had been unfairly thrust upon her, and she helplessly began to sob as she staggered down the sidewalk.

~~~~~ BRAD

Thursday, March 3rd, 2001 2:11 a.m.

"Thank you." Brad said crisply, if a bit distracted, ignoring the cab driver's curled sneer as he tried to decide whether his fare had been a cross-dresser or just a really ugly woman.

Watching the cab pull away, Brad consciously brushed at the damned black skirt, smoothing it over her newly-smooth legs. There was a slight breeze blowing, and the sensation of air moving over her denuded legs was definitely new and undesirable, but she refused to let it get to her. After all, you didn't rise to the rank of General if you sweated the small stuff you couldn't do anything about.

He had to give Monique credit - she was a tougher opponent than Brad had expected, and the 'turnabout' punishment was a nice touch, from a purely vengeful point of view. However, tactically, it had been a mistake - and it was one that Brad intended to exploit.

Rule number one was 'never leave a live enemy behind you', and it was a rule that Monique obviously hadn't learned. Well, it was one lesson she was going to get a very pointed education in before long.

Taking stock of her surroundings, Brad nodded to herself and started walking, vaguely reassured by the muffled 'thump' of the short heels, so like the ones she was used to wearing with her dress uniform.

Brad was smart enough to know that being a woman, though definitely not something he wanted or was looking forward to, wasn't the end of the world. It certainly wasn't a 'fate worse than death'.

There was no such thing, in Brad's opinion. Death was the final failure, after which you couldn't do anything to correct your mistake. Being female, while pretty damned bad, still allowed for victory, if you were smart and tough and determined - and Brad certainly was. Even as the cab had carried her into town, she'd been planning how to handle this. If you took the starting point that being turned into a woman was more or less like being wounded in combat - undesirable, annoying and uncomfortable, but not fatal - then you could push ahead, allowing for the changes in lifestyle forced upon you by your 'wounds'. Well, maybe that bitch had figuratively shot her dick off, but Brad still had her metaphorical balls - big brass ones, and that was something the bitch couldn't take away.

She was going to make that bitch sorry she'd ever tangled with Bradley J. Campbell, of either gender.

~~~~~ ERIC

Thursday, March 3rd, 2001 2:47 a.m.

Eric lowered her head and fled the pub - and the laughter that trailed her into the night, the taunts and jeers from the men inside from her hesitant, quavering explanation of her situation and the offer. Her cheeks burned with shame, little cooled by the tears that streamed from her reddened eyes.

Not that the men hadn't believed her - no, with the milder version of the mind-control perfume wafting from her pores, men believed her story well enough - and seemed to find it worthy of extending her humiliation. She knew she was a pitiful sight, an ugly woman, practically offering the old 'Frog Prince' offer in modern context.

Time was passing, too quickly. There was less than an hour for her to find a man who'd accept the offer, have him buy or find her an outfit of clothes to define her new body - and if she failed, life as a whore.

Then again - maybe that was her fate if it was accepted. She had no idea what she'd end up as. The man would determine that, and who knew what he'd choose...?

Slumping against the corner of the wall, she raised her teary eyes and stared up at the uncaring sky above, wondering if she should just give up, if she should just...

"Geez, Louise - what the hell are you?"

Jaw clenching at the question, Eric lowered her face to stare at her latest tormentor.

It was some college jock, from the looks of it. Early-to-mid twenties, muscular, clear-eyed and energetic. Probably just came from a night-club where he'd spent the evening dancing with the 'chicks', keeping away from the booze because he was 'in training' - he had the athletic build that would support the assumption, with taut muscles beneath his loose hockey jersey and tight jeans. Unkempt sandy-blond hair hung in front of dark eyes that were regarding her with an ill-disguised look of disgust. He was standing confidently, hands in pockets and broad shoulders back, and he seemed more amused by her pain than anything else.

"Please - don't." Eric said, emotionally drained and incapable of handling more humiliation.

The jock held up his hands in a placating gesture. "Sure, yeah, okay. I was just wonderin' what time it was, and saw you standin' here, so I came over to ask - but I didn't know whether to say 'hey, buddy' or 'hey, babe' to get your attention."

"It's 'babe'." Eric said, heavily. "As far as it goes."

The guy's eyebrows rose. "Hey, look, no offense lady, but I figured it would come as a shock to you to find out you ain't a model, no what I mean? Unless you live somewhere with no mirrors at all, you gotta know that."

"Yes, I'm aware of how ugly I am." Eric said, with a sigh. "Come back in a hour, maybe you'll like the way I look then better."

"Sorry - I ain't drinkin' tonight." The jock said, with a laugh.

"That's not what I meant." Eric said - and then shrugged her shoulders and explained the whole thing to the guy, who watched her with raised eyebrows. Since he had to believe her, it couldn't be and expression of disbelief, so Eric wondered what the hell was going on in the guys mind.

When she'd finished, he looked her up and down slowly. "So - I gotta let you live with me, but I get to decide what you look like? Is that it?"

"Yeah." Eric sighed. "So, go ahead and laugh, then leave me alone."

"Laugh?" the guy said, grinning. "Hell, no - that's the best offer I've heard in a long time. I'll take you up on it."

Eric blinked, then felt a cold ball in the pit of her stomach. This guy? Deciding what she'd be like for the rest of her life? Just looking at him you could tell she'd end up as his empty-headed little play-toy, something to keep around the house for...

Eric closed her eyes and took a deep breath, jaw clenched. Time was running out. Could she afford to be choosy? This guy's little toy - or a whore who let any man with money have their way with her, until she was to pregnant to work...

"Okay..." She said, almost to softly top be heard.

"Great! I live a couple a blocks away. C'mon hey, what's your name?"

"Erica." Eric - Erica - said, unable to give a masculine name that she couldn't explain. "Great. I'm Ted." He said. "So - this way to you new life, babe."

"yeah. Great." She said, heavily, following the man who'd decide her fate towards his place, each step seeming to crush what little spirit remained within her altered body...

~~~~~ BRAD

Thursday, March 3rd, 2001 3:05 a.m.

"Welcome to my humble abode..." Douglas Rathbourne said, dryly, leading Brad into the impressive marble-and-oak foyer of his condo, dropping his keys on the 17th century Italian table with a casual ease that the 'average Joe' wouldn't have believed the rich and powerful was as used to as themselves.

Brad - or, as she'd introduced herself to Douglas, Brenda - was suitably impressed with the tastefully understated elegance of the apartment, not as flashy as the nouveau riche might have decorated, but showing restraint as well as wealth - just the thing she was looking for.

Brenda's plan was going perfectly - she'd found her 'patron' to make her plan run its course, a man with enough wealth and power to pull it off - and the savvy to understand what Brenda was offering, above and beyond the offer to become the man's own ideal woman.

Monique had made two major mistakes: First, she'd instructed them that they, themselves could not come back to the lab, or try and see any of the staff - but she didn't prohibit them from having anybody else do so - which led directly to her second mistake; telling them that the 'new life' they were allowed to talk about began the instant they were transformed, at the lab - not once they'd left. So, Brenda had no trouble telling Douglas about the lab, though she hadn't been able to tell him all the details he would have liked to know, because she'd learned them before the change.

Still, it was enough.

"Well, I think we're about ready here, don't you?" Douglas said, leading Brenda into the large, comfortable living-room. Draped over his arm was the selection of clothing he'd purchased on the way home for the transformation, though he'd left Brenda in the car while picking it out, prolonging the 'suspense'. Brenda wasn't exactly excited about being made more lovely, but if she was going to be Douglas' new partner in this little scheme - the silent one, but partner nonetheless - then she supposed it was best that she looked presentable.

"Just about..." Brenda agreed, checking the watch. "Another eight minutes to go."

"You'd better dress, then." Douglas said, opening up the garment bag and pulling out the ensemble he'd chosen for her.

As Brenda stripped down, Douglas looked away - probably more out of a lack of interest than gentlemanly conduct, since God knows that she was hardly gorgeous at this stage. It didn't mean he wasn't involved, though - he was giving her his options while she got ready.

"Very well - the one physical option I want to choose for you is your age: You'll be twenty-one years old, at least in appearance." Douglas said.

Brenda blinked, then shrugged - it'd be knocking two decades off her real age, and make her considerably younger than Douglas, but she supposed she could live with it. As she accepted the parameter, she was slipping on the pair of black, semi-frilly panties he'd bought for her, finding them a poor fit - but not nearly as bad as the matching C-cup bra, which bit quite nastily at back and shoulders.

"For the two 'history' choices..." Douglas continued as she slipped on the simple black nylons, "...I want it to be that; a), you attended the Dumassy Finishing School for Young ladies, and b) You have four arrests as a juvenile, mostly for trespassing and intoxication."

Mentally, Brenda shrugged at the choices as she slipped on the dark, dark blue dress. It was sort of frilly, with layered 'ruffles' forming the skirt, which was on a diagonal to the bodice, with its frilly shoulders. It reminded Brenda of a prom dress he'd seen, years ago, but more elegant. She guessed it fit into Douglas' description of her as a 'cultured' young lady with a bit of a wild side.

Grimacing, Brenda crammed her feet as far as she could into the too-small black leather pumps with four-inch heels. There was some simple-yet-elegant jewelry to go with the outfit, and she hurriedly put them on, looking at the bags the clothes had come from with a curious gaze - there still seemed to be quite a bit of clothing in them.

Maybe Douglas hadn't quite made up his mind at the time he'd bought them, and purchased an 'alternative' set. Oh, well, it didn't matter...

"Okay - less then a minute..." She told Douglas, looking at the watch she'd put on the coffee table. "the mental changes?"

"No time - and no hurry." He said. "I can give them to you after the change, when you adjust my... personal measurements.'

"Sure - fine." Brenda said, unable to completely repress the leaden sensation in her belly as the sweep hand of the watch approached the mark...

She gasped as the changes started, her muscles tensing up like an all-over Charley Horse, forcing flesh and bone into new configurations, even as she felt hair rapidly pulling up from her scalp and spilling down the sides and back of her head. It was uncomfortable, her body locked into an awkward position as she was physically reshaped into the woman who would match the clothes and persona Douglas had defined for her...

...and then it was over. Gasping, she relaxed, feeling her feet slid all the way into the now perfectly- fitting shoes.

"Perfection, my dear Brenda..." Douglas said, looking at her with something akin to awe. He'd believed her when she'd told him what would happen, but 'believing' and 'experiencing' were two different things.

"Glad you like it..." She replied, dryly, hearing her new, contralto voice.

"Why don't you take a look?" Douglas suggested, gesturing at a mirror, and she had to admit to some curiosity about the body she was going to be wearing from now on, even if she wasn't exactly happy about being female, no matter how she looked.

With only a little awkwardness in her walk, due to her unfamiliarity with heels, she found herself struggling for a 'graceful' stride, that being what her persona would use. Since her mind was programmed to act the part of her new life, she was sure she'd pick up the skills quickly, from the programmed 'obsession' to play her new role.

Reaching the mirror, she looked herself over - and had to admit, she was quite lovely,. Her features were even and well-defined, but with a sort of open beauty that was warmer then a cool, 'classic' beauty would have been. As a matter of fact, Brenda though she looked a little like that actress, Denise Richards - that same sort of clean beauty.

Her hair was a dirty blonde that hung down just past her shoulders, clean and silky. Her body itself was slender and shapely, with the lithe agility of youth, as defined by the fact she was supposed to be twenty-one again - which looked about right to Brenda's eye. Well, of course, it would. The change hadn't been an absolute - it had been based on Brenda's own idea of what a twenty-one year old young lady would look like, so she could hardly be surprised by the fact that she looked just the way she expected such a woman would look.

In fact - even though she wasn't excited about the prospect of being female, she had to admit that there were many, many worse female bodies to be forced to spend life in. Even the fact she was 'young' again was an added bonus, since she'd have apparent wisdom beyond her years, giving her even more of an edge against adversaries who would be fooled by her appearance.

Yes - this body would do just fine...

~~~~~ ERIC

Thursday, March 3rd, 2001 3:07 a.m.

"Okay - the physical thing." Ted said with a grin. "Tits - huge tits. Massive, firm, round boobs, as big as they can get inside that shirt, so that it's strained nearly to the breaking point."

'Okay...' Erica agreed, morosely. She was resigned to it, practically expecting it - after all, look what she was wearing. Black platform ankle-boots with seven-inch high heels. Black jeans that were loose around the hips and ass but so tight at the actual waist that she couldn't button them, with a big white- leather belt that was holding the jeans up. A fuzzy white short-sleeve, low-necked sweater that was - now 'understandably' - somewhat baggy. Gaudy, cheap jewelry. Erica was sure that if Ted hadn't been constrained by the fact that the only store he could find that was open was a second-hand shop otherwise, she'd probably be in that micro-miniskirt and fishnet stockings.

"Okay - the history things..." Ted said, eagerly, glancing at the watch. "First off, I want you to have worked in the past as a stripper - you know, and exotic dancer. A really good one, like a feature or something, with really good moves, y'know?"

"Yeah. Sure." She said, bitterly. "I'll be just incredible. I'm sure of it..."

"Great, great..." Ted said, obviously enjoying this immensely. "Okay, the other history thing - you did that work as a stripper while putting yourself through University, which you graduated from last year, uh - whatcha call it? Suma Come Loudah?"

Erica blinked in surprise - a university-educated Stripper? Who graduated with honors?

Her 'Blonde Bimbo Sex Toy' mental image wavered as she opened her mouth to ask Ted 'why?'.... and that was the position she was caught in as the change hit.

It wasn't excruciatingly painful - and she was almost sorry for that fact, since she was coherent enough to feel the sensations of her body changing. Of the rapidly swelling weight on her chest. Of the hair spilling down from her head. Of the way her legs writhed and reshaped as she settled into the hell, her hips and ass expanding as her waist narrowed...

...and then it was over, and Erica was in the form she'd wear from now on.

Ted was staring at her wide-eyed, and her new jaw tightened at the thought of being his little toy for as long as he wanted her to be - but it was too late to back out now. He had three 'persona' changes he could make to her, and she was sure what they would be...

Shaking her head, she felt her new hair run over her shoulders and back, and felt a prickle of resigned curiosity about the sexual caricature she'd become. With a sigh, she headed towards the mirror in the corner of the room, finding herself struggling to walk with an easy, stripper-like grace that she'd have to learn quickly, driven by her need to play this new role...

She reached the mirror - and saw her new form.

She was surprised - apparently, her confusion at the instant of change had 'messed up' her transformation. She wasn't nearly the mindless sex-bomb she would have been.

She was taller than she'd expected - after the fact, she realized that the clothes she was wearing had been bought to fit her mannish height, obviously a mistake on Ted's part. Her height had been kept the same to fit clothes that Ted had mistakenly bought in the right length, when what he'd really wanted to do was buy something too small.

She was definitely a woman now, though. Sure, she'd been one before this change - but now there's no doubt. From her long legs to her wide, womanly hips and incredible ass. From the tiny waist to those gargantuan tits, each one the size and shape of a medicine ball, straining the fuzzy sweater to its limit and displaying an awe-inspiring amount of cleavage - which sickened her, at least at the moment. She was sure that Ted would shortly make her 'love' her new body, or at least she'd be forced to act that way...

It was mostly in the face that the 'goof-up' had happened. It was definitely sexy, with full lips and a feminine jaw, but she wasn't vapid-looking. Her thoughts about 'college educated' at the moment of change had given her a beautiful, sexy face that was intelligent - beneath a huge, thick mane of incredibly rich, red hair that matched her emerald eyes.

She was stunning. Sexy. Huge-breasted, yet intelligent-looking. She was also more athletically built than she'd expected, an unexpected 'side-effect' from the 'stripper' clause, one she suspected Ted hadn't expected. Tall and confident-looking, she managed to be a mouth-watering wet dream, without appearing at all like a 'bimbo'. In fact - she looked like a cross between April Hunter and Geena Davis only much, much better endowed than either one of them, of course.

"Gee, sorry Ted." She said, with a sort of grim satisfaction, despite the heavy weight of the outrageously huge tits on her chest. "I know you must be disappointed, but there's no way to change me now."

"Disappointed?" Ted asked, incredulous. "Hell, no - aside from the fact I was picturing you as a brunette, you're exactly what I wanted..." He grinned. "In fact - I like the red hair better."

"This is what you imagined?" She asked, surprised. "Sure." He said. "Now - for those other things..." She sighed - here it came...

"First - you're completely comfortable with your new body." Ted said. "You like the way you look, you're proud of your body, you enjoy having your figure and looks..."

Of course - just like she'd thought... but she didn't have time to dwell on her correct assessment, because she was coping with the way the world suddenly 'shifted'.

She knew that, a moment before, she'd thought herself ridiculously over-endowed... but yet, now, she thought she looked perfect. She actually did love her new body, even though she knew it was imposed - she couldn't help it. Her massive, firm tits were fantastic, just the right size, and she loved their heavy, firm weight.

It was a weird feeling to enjoy a body she knew she hadn't wanted...

She was just getting a handle on the sudden shift in mindset when Ted went on.

"Second - you're completely comfortable around me. At ease. Friendly, confident, like we're old friends." Ted said.

It was along the lines of what she was expecting - but not quite the version she'd thought. Still, it didn't matter - it was his command, and so suddenly she felt tension drain out of her as she felt completely relaxed in his presence - even happy. She knew that it wasn't her own choice, but it didn't matter - she found herself feeling like he was an old friend, somebody she liked and trusted, somebody she could joke around with, playfully insult...

Then she braced herself. Even though she almost unwillingly liked and trusted him, she wasn't happy about the fact that she was about to become his unwilling lover, though she was sure she'd love it once he'd told her to....

"Last - you love to sing, and you do it all the time, especially when you're happy."

She blinked. "Uh okay." She didn't feel any different, since it wasn't an 'immediate' shift in viewpoint but there was something out of place.

"That's all of them, you know " She said, hesitantly.

"Yeah." He said, blinking.

"You mean you never planned to order me to have sex with you if you wanted me to?"

Ted actually reeled back, as if she'd just punched him in the face. "What? But - good god, Erica, that'd be rape!"

Erica's jaw gaped. "I know that... but I though well, having a woman who had to obey any three commands you gave... Well, after ordering it, I would have been 'willing' enough "

"Enough!" Ted said, holding his hands up. "God, you're making me sick, even suggesting it! I mean, sure you are my ideal fantasy girlfriend now, perfect in every way - but I wouldn't want you to be some sort of slave! Having you around the apartment, able to see you whenever I want - fantasize about you... I'll be jacking off to that every night, I'm sure - but I never expected "

He trailed off, eyes going wide. "Holy shit - you mean, you thought I was going to ? Oh, man! How on earth did you go through with it?"

Erica was trying to wrap her mind around the fact that she wasn't going to be some sort of 'kept slave'. She'd seen her new life as one of horror, trapped in a body she didn't want, forced to be a bimbo sex-slave...

It wasn't happening. Thanks to Ted's commands - very well-thought-out and generous commands, she now saw - she was absolutely comfortable in her new body. In fact, imposed or not, she loved it, and wouldn't trade it for another one in a million years - not even her old male one. The way she was feeling now, in a couple of weeks she'd feel completely comfortable in this body...

...and in this apartment. With his second command, he'd made her comfortable around him, making this as much her home as his. Her refuge. A place where she belonged.

As for the third one.. well, he just liked to hear a woman sing. Especially when she was happy. That was it. No commands to...

"You mean - you weren't expecting sex. Aren't expecting sex, I mean?" Erica asked, amazed. "You have your fantasy woman living with you - and you just plan to jerk off to the thought of me...?"

Saying it gave mental image to the comment.. and she was more then just bemused to find her new body getting aroused at the thought of her 'good friend' Ted getting that turned on over her 'perfect' body.

"Look, Erica, I don't know what guy screwed you over so badly to think we're all uncaring pigs, but I'd never do that to somebody." Ted said, firmly. "I knew that you really didn't want to become who you now are, but didn't have a choice - and I tried to make it as easy on you as I could."

"I realize that, now." She admitted.

Ted slowly began to blush, and he looked away. "In fact... I feel guilty enough about what I've done to you as it is, but... I couldn't help myself. It was too much temptation..."

Erica blinked. "what do you mean?"

Ted looked utterly ashamed of himself. "Well, if I was any kind of real gentleman, I woulda asked what you wanted to look like, and let you be that way... but I couldn't pass up the chance to see my fantasy girl in the living flesh. I know, I know - I'm a real shit. But, I've been dreaming about a girl like you for years, but she doesn't exist, see? Big-tit strippers, ones who get implants that impossibly huge there's maybe two or three of 'em, and they tend to be kinda funny looking, like they got those huge boobs as compensation, y'know? I.. I just wanted to see a gorges, sexy, intelligent woman with huge tits is all... I'm sorry, I should have just left my fantasy life in my head and on the Internet, not taken advantage of you like this. I feel like such a shit..."

Erica gaped. "What? Are you kidding, Ted? You didn't do anything wrong - in fact, this was the kindest thing I could imagine. I never even considered somebody worrying about my feelings when they had complete control of what my life would be like. I never dared hope that I'd actually be comfortable and happy in my new life! You didn't do anything wrong - you did everything so right that I'm still having trouble accepting it. Having a dream-body to look at in exchange for your kindness is hardly to large a price for you to ask me to pay!"

Ted smiled wanly. "Thanks, Erica - but now that I've seen you, satisfied the urge, I can't kid myself - I was being selfish. I mean, I was caught up in it - it was like a fantasy brought true, you know? Just what I dreamed about, a change to create my ideal woman... but fantasy is just that, fantasy. Instead, I do this to you in real life. I coulda done anything, allowed you to escape what you obviously saw as a fate worse then death before I screwed with your mind.. yet I never even asked what you wanted, just went ahead and used you for my fantasy. The fact that you can live with it, now that there's no chance to correct it - well, that's small comfort..."

Erica was stunned - he was beating himself up over this? Sure, she could admit that, before he'd changed her mind, she'd been rather disgusted by the body he'd given her, but the truth was...

Then, like a bolt from the blue, she realized that the truth was exactly what Ted needed to hear.

"Ted - don't do this to yourself." She said, grabbing him by the shoulders and sitting him down on the couch, curling up next to him, unconsciously pulling her legs up under her in a very feminine position. "I want you to listen to me, Ted."

"What?" He asked, dejected - and he couldn't even look at her. Having created his fantasy girl, he'd convinced himself that he'd been such a selfish shit that he couldn't even look at her, his one unreal fantasy now a living, breathing symbol of his guilt at being so 'selfish'...

"Ted." She said, firmly and sincerely. "Before this happened, if you had asked me what body I wanted, what life I wanted - I couldn't have answered you. Because I didn't want any body, any life."

Well, not any feminine body or life, but she couldn't tell him that - and even if she'd been able to, she wouldn't have. It would have served no purpose, especially since the change she'd just undergone couldn't have made her male, anyway.

"What?" He asked, glancing up at her, confused...

Well, the truth had got his attention, made him willing to believe that maybe - just maybe - he wasn't the worst human on the face of the planet.

What was done was done. She was trapped in this body and life now - and, to tell the truth, it seemed like it could actually be a life... that she could enjoy. Especially with a friend who was so caring about her, even only knowing her such a short time, that he was killing himself over an imagined sin...

Well, if there was no more truth, it was time to lie, just to help her friend...

"This thing that was done to me?" She said, making it up as she went along. "It was because I was suicidal. I hated being a woman - because of what a guy did to me before, like you thought. I hated my life - so the person who did this to me was trying to help, figuring that a new life and body might break me out of my suicidal thoughts. At the time, I hated her for that - for forcing me to keep living when I wanted to die, but now I see she was right..."

Well, it sounded good. But Ted looked uncertain, though not as utterly dejected. "You mean... I couldn't have picked something you liked better?"

She shook her head, smiling gently. "No - but you could have picked something I would have hated, and didn't. Thank you, Ted."

Without even thinking about, acting the part of her new persona to a 't', she leaned forward and gave him light kiss on his cheek, the kind a good female friend might give a dejected guy friend after cheering him up.

It wasn't until she'd pulled back that she realized what she'd just done...

...and how good it had felt. Her face went blank, even as Ted's filled with mild surprise as the fact she'd just kissed him registered...

...and then she leaned forward and kissed him again. On the lips.

Just to see if it felt as good as it had when her lips had lightly brushed Ted's cheek.

It didn't feel just as good.

It felt much, much better. Absolutely fantastic, as matter of fact, sending a shiver of pleasure up her spine - and it wasn't some sort of enforced sexual pleasure, either, but a deep emotional one.

Physically, having her lips on his felt about the same way it had when she had been a man kissing a girl, with only slight variations - but emotionally, pressing her lips to his gave her great satisfaction, as well as a deep comfort and calm joy like nothing she'd ever experienced before.

Ted was stunned, feeling her lips against his, then she sat back with a puzzled look in her eyes, brows lowered in thought as she looked at him - or in his direction, anyway, her puzzled yes vague.

"You kissed me..." Ted said, stating the obvious in his confusion.

"Yeah... I guess I did..." She said, vaguely, her mind obviously busy with something. Ted had no way of knowing that she was trying to figure out what the hell was going on. Oh, she understood the first kiss well enough, it had been a completely 'natural' thing for her to have done - but why had it made her feel so good? And why had the second kiss, on his lips, been so much better?

...and how would it feel if she really kissed him...?

Still with a vague, puzzled look on her face, she leaned forward again, lips parting expectantly - and Ted pulled back.

"What - what's going on?" He stammered, confused. Just moments before, she'd been worried that she'd be forced to have sex with him - and now she was kissing him?

"I'm not sure..." She said, her voice still vague as her mind tried to get a grip on itself. Why was she feeling what she was feeling? Why was she behaving the way she was?

Did it matter? It felt really good to kiss Ted - did she have to flog herself over the fact that she thought it shouldn't. She was a woman now, and women enjoyed kisses, so what was the big deal? Why not just enjoy it, if it felt good?

"Ted... kiss me..." She murmured, eyes sharpening. "Uh ?" Ted stammered.

She grinned impishly. "What? I'm not you type? C'mon, Ted - we both know better." "Well, I..." Ted said, still trying to catch up with the situation...

..and she leaned forward and kissed him while his lips were open.

He hesitated - then kissed back, his tongue moving with hers in a long, slow, gently passionate kiss. Almost instinctively, she leaned into the kiss, pressing her body against his - and he replied by wrapping his arms around her body.

She felt like she was in heaven. Physically, the sensations were just 'nice' - but emotionally, she felt warm and happy and relaxed, comfortable and comforted and more than just a tad aroused.

Which made her mind wonder why she wasn't pulling away. After all, wasn't this her worst nightmare? To be in a sexual situation as a woman?

Then, like an exploding bombshell, it hit her.....

This wasn't her worse nightmare. Her worst nightmare had been being forced into a sexual relationship - something Ted had refused to do to her, even though he could have done so easily, with no repercussions of any sort.

She felt warm, safe and comfortable - because she was warm, safe and comfortable. She knew that she could say 'stop' at any time, and he would. In fact, she knew that he was willing to do whatever he needed to do to avoid hurting her - because he wouldn't be able to live with himself if he thought he was taking advantage of her. She knew that for a fact, having seen how he reacted to an imagined 'sin' upon her.

So, by definition, the new woman she'd become was perfectly 'comfortable' with Ted, like an old friend. She was no longer 'upset' by feeling female, feeling completely 'natural' about it, emotionally, though she knew intellectually that she'd been a man - and she now felt safe and 'happy' with Ted, who she thought was amazingly kind, caring and sensitive.

It all added up to one thing:

"Ted..." She whispered as she broke the kiss. "I love you." Ted's eyes widened. "E.. Erica?"

She smiled at him, softly. "You are the kindest, sweetest, most wonderful man I've ever been with..." - which was true - "...and you are very, very handsome, too. Which was also true, though she hadn't been emotionally geared to really notice it until she'd become comfortable with being female...

Part of her mind was insisting that this wasn't right. That it was too sudden, a too rapid turn-around, that she was, at heart, really a man, for God's Sake...!

Except that she couldn't feel like a man. It wasn't permitted. She had to be the woman she was now. She'd been ordered by Monique to play the persona, and ordered by Ted to be happy with her body. To enjoy it. To be comfortable around him in it - and all these things added together was more than she could possibly argue with. Though she wasn't consciously aware of the fact, her mind had happily accepted the commands Ted had given her, not fighting them in the least. Intellectually, she knew she was going to have to spend her life as a woman - and so, once she realized that she wouldn't be 'enslaved', her mind had gone ahead and done a one-eighty, embracing the thought that she could enjoy life as a woman...

...which meant that she didn't want to spend her life alone and unattached. Or celibate.

"Make love to me, Ted." She whispered, huskily, her body tingling with desire for this handsome man. With her mind now open to 'reality' rather than her old male bias, she could see how handsome Ted was, how kind - and how desirable.

"But... I..." Ted stammered, his cock rapidly hardening in spite of his intellectual confusion at her sudden shift in emotions. "You... you didn't want to have sex..."

"That was when I thought my life was a living hell, and wanted to die..." She said, massaging his chest through his jersey with her wonderfully feminine new hands. "Now that I know life can be worth living, I want to live it to the fullest.... It's a woman's prerogative to change her mind, after all "

Leaning back slightly, she reached down with crossed arms, grabbed the bottom of her sweater, and pulled it smoothly over her head, revealing her incredibly huge, round tits in all their glory. The tits that she loved having. The tits she loved Ted for giving her. The tits that, in a very real way, belonged to Ted anyway, so she so wanted him to enjoy them, to reward him for having given them to her.

"Make long, passionate love to me, Ted..." She said, gently gripping his wrists and guiding his hands up to her enormous, firm breasts. "Make me feel like a real woman."

She was, quite literally, his fantasy woman - and she wasn't just begging him to 'fuck her', but telling him that she loved him and wanted him to have sex with her...

Who the hell was he to refuse something like that?

As he began to fondle the enormous tits he'd given her, she shifted position to lean against the couch beside him, allowing her to unzip his pants and pull them off, revealing his fair-sized cock, already hard and throbbing. Sliding her legs off the couch, she stood leaning over him to allow him to reach her tits and continue fondling them as she peeled off her pants, revealing her moist, ready new womanhood.

With a smile, she straddled him on the couch, legs spread. "Can I ask a favor, my love...?" She whispered.

"Yes. Anything..." Ted agreed, easily, lost in the moment.

"Let me pick your new cock for you..." She said, and he blinked at her - and grinned.

Smiling back at him, she slowly lowered herself onto his hard cock, gasping in pleasure - then turned on the 'emotional floodgates' that altered her own physical chemical makeup slightly, enough to activate the chemical that would affect his cock...

...which began to grow inside her. She gasped at the sensations as it swelled and expanded inside her hot new cunt, until it filled her perfectly, like a hand inside a glove.

"Yes..." She moaned, expanding the veins a little to give it a little more texture - 'ribbed, for her pleasure' - and 'tweaked' his output...

...and then, slowly, shifted her body up and back down, making both of them moan in exquisite pleasure. His hand went from her tits to her hips as she repeated the action - and then again, faster and harder... and again...

Now she was pounding up and down atop him in an easy, primal rhythm, her head rolling back and eyes closing as she gasped at the intense pleasure she was feeling as his perfect cock massaged the incredible nerve-endings in her new womanhood. Her body was afire with pleasure as she drove herself atop him, the organ she'd altered to her own specifications milking every possible drop of pleasure out of the actions - as it gave Ted every ounce of pleasure he could experience, something he certainly seemed to enjoy, from his moans and gasps.

Then she hit her first female orgasm - and screamed out her pure physical and emotional pleasure to the world, lost in the white haze of orgasmic ecstasy, not knowing -or caring - that her new, passionate love for this man was from a combination of mental control and sheer relief at not being forced to perform the very act she'd just willingly asked for...

She was in heaven.

~~~~~ BRAD

Thursday, March 3rd, 2001

3:07 a.m.

"Now, about those mental changes..." Douglas said.

"Yes?" Brenda said, turning away from the mirror in mild annoyance - obviously, it was time to complete the transformation into a cultured young lady.

Douglas grinned, unpleasantly. "well, since I'm sure the knowledge that I couldn't care less about this stupid lab you prattled on about would probably leave you moody and upset, my first command is that, no matter how you feel, you'll always act happy, perky and cheerful."

Helplessly, Brenda found her new lips curving up into a bright smile as her posture changed, her back straightening, her shoulders coming back, her weight shifting towards her toes as she bounced slightly.

"Well, you're just a lying bastard, aren't you?" She asked in a cheerful, playful tone. "If you didn't care about the lab, why'd you accept the offer then, Douglas?"

With a cheerful little action, she punched him playfully on the shoulder - when the command she'd issued to her body was to slug him in the face. Obviously, that wasn't the action of a 'cheerful, happy' young woman, so the playful tap was the best she could do - and from the grin on Douglas' face, he knew it.

"My mother was headmistress at the Dumassy School while I was growing up." Douglas explained. "All the stuck-up bitches, looking down their noses at me because I was a nobody, wouldn't even give me the time of day - I got rich, just so I could rub their faces in it when I got to turn them down... except, you know what? I've never had a Dumassy girl interested in me, the stupid cunts. Well, now I can finally get what I want - which leads me to my second order: you're a nymphomaniac. You can't stop thinking about sex. Every situation you are in, you mind will turn to sex."

Even as she cursed him, silently, she found her body becoming aroused as she thought about sex. About her body, so ripe and feminine, so close to a man. Of the empty, private room, where they could fuck - say on the couch over there...

...and if he didn't want to, that ornament looked like it'd make a fine dildo. She could lay down, spread her legs, and shove that sucker deep into her cunt, fucking herself madly...

...or maybe he had a butler. Maybe both him and the butler, and...

"Oh, wow - that's something..." She said, brightly, which was the cursing and swearing translated into 'happy and cheerful' as she tried - and failed - to erase the constant stream of sexual thoughts running through her mind as her body became incredibly - and, she guessed, perpetually - aroused.

"I bet it is." Douglas smirked. "Now, for the piece de resistance You are helplessly, hopelessly addicted to my cock, and the cum it produces. You love the taste, the smell, the feel of it. You want to lick it, to suck it, to fondle and fuck it. You want to drip with cum."

It hit her like a sledge-hammer - the craving for his cock. To touch it, to fuck it, to suck it - she didn't care what, just as long as she could have his cock. It didn't matter how he was using it on her, as long as she was in physical contact with it...

...and it disgusted her. She couldn't help feeling that way, even though it sickened her, and she couldn't show the fact that it sickened her.

"Oh, hey, Doug - can I suck your cock? Please?" she begged, humiliated to be asking - begging - for this. "I'll do anything you want... just let me hold your cock "

"Oh, you can do better than just hold it." Douglas grinned. "You see, it's time for you to change my cock. I want you to make my cock as big as it possibly can be, and still fit in your mouth - and I want you to make it produce incredible amounts of cum."

"Oh, yes...!" She gasped happily - horrified, as she eagerly knelt in front of him and all but ripped his pants open, setting his cock free. Doubly disgusted by the fact that she was literally 'dreaming; of this, her mind insisting that she needed it, wanted it, lived for it - even as she was aware that she was disgusted by it.

With a horrible eagerness, she enveloped his cock with her warm new mouth - and activated the slight change in biochemistry that would alter his cock, feeling it swell and grow inside her mouth, her head pushed back as the organ grew longer and thicker, until it was so enormous that she could just barely keep it in her mouth...

...and then she began to suck it, tongue swirling over the end as her hands frantically worked the shaft.

The fact that she was incredibly aroused and excited by the feel of a cock in her mouth and hands sickened her. The fact that the flavor of the male organ in her mouth was utterly wonderful disgusted her. The fact that she was painfully aroused by the fact she was being allowed to suck him off made her want to die...

...but not until after the blow job. She couldn't even conceive of doing anything to stop herself from sucking his cock.

Then he came - and came, and came. Hot cum gushed down her throat, tasting like purest ambrosia. It was more than she could possibly hope to swallow, but she struggled to do so anyway, practically drowning herself in the flood of cum until she was forced to pull her mouth off his cock, hating the way it felt as it left her mouth - and loving the way the cum felt as it splattered over her face and cleavage, soaking her in its warmth while she hungrily gulped at as much of it as she could swallow, all the while horrified, sickened and disgusted by what she was feeling and doing - but utterly incapable of stopping herself.

She was in hell...

* * * * *

Glancing up at the clock on the wall, Gary noted the time.

"Well, it's past the deadline. I wonder if they found somebody to take them up on their offer?" HE said to Monique. "I wonder what they're like now?"

Monique glanced at the clock without interest, and shrugged.

"Who cares?" She asked with indifference, then looked at Gary and smiled. "Now why don't you get your ass over her, kneel, and eat me out..."

As Gary, of course, obeyed, Monique felt slightly guilty about giving into her desire to subjugate him - but not very much, considering her current state was his fault, after all...

She was in her element.

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: A nerdy guy who always strikes out with women, finds a magic book titled "HOW TO GET LAID," little does he realize that his changes will turn him into a little female slut.

By The Book

By Gunslinger

CHAPTER ONE

Hands jammed deep into the pockets of his jeans, his narrow shoulders hunched protectively under the thin fabric of his T-shirt, Christopher Hunter walked with his head lowered and his feet scuffing the ground.

"Didn't have to laugh at me..." The sandy-haired young man muttered, somehow both angrily and defensively. Though the pale blue eyes behind the somewhat fashionable silver-rimmed glasses were fixed on the interspersed gravel and ties passing below his feet, he was no more consciously aware of the railroad he was walking over than he was of the steady roar of the traffic atop the embankment to his left. Instead, both his mind's eye and his mind's ears were replaying a scene not a half an hour old - a scene that wouldn't leave the twenty-two year old man's head.

"Just asked her out of a lousy cup of coffee..." Chris muttered next, wincing slightly. Without much conscious thought, his foot lashed out to connect with the glittering red-and-white soda can at his feet, sending the crumbled container bouncing and ricocheting between the slowly rusting rails of the now-disused railroad.

"She didn't have to laugh at me..." he repeated, his face working in self disgust as he felt the hot tickle of tears at the corner of his eyes. Snorting mightily, he pushed by the humiliating urge to cry. "Linda didn't have to ask, so loud, where a 'geek like me' gets off asking her out on a date..."

His slow, self-disgusted stride had taken him to the Coke can's new resting place, and his foot lashed out again, sending the can hurtling a dozen more feet down the rough trackbed, as he continued walking.

"Just 'cause I like to read and play games on the computer instead of play sports Like the jerk Brad Dooguid she used to date..." Chris muttered, face working again, this time in growing self-pity. "Just 'cause I don't own a fancy car like Brad, just 'cause I'm not a dumb jock asshole like Brad, she thinks she can humiliate me in public like that..."

Reaching the Coke can once again, Chris once more drew back his foot to take his anger and self pity out on the battered aluminum cylinder - and then paused, as something in the back of his mind managed to break through the cloud of self-pity he felt.

Watery blue eyes once more focusing behind the glasses, Chris returned to the world of the moment - and found himself staring down at a slim, leather-bound book that the Coke can was resting on.

For a bare second, he was tempted to simply lash out anyway - but, being who he was, Chris couldn't bring himself to deliberately damage a book. In a very strange, but undeniably real, way, books were the closest things to friends the twenty-two year old web-designer had.

Reaching down, Chris brushed aside the battered soda can that obscured most of the book's title - then yanked his hand back as if it had been burned.

With a jerk, Chris quickly looked around, expecting to see somebody standing atop the embankment, pointing a finger and laughing at the 'practical joke' they'd pulled on him - but there was nobody, no sound other than the rush of traffic on the busy street above.

Realizing that there was simply no way anybody could have set up a practical joke in this particular place - at least, not deliberately for him - Chris let his eyes go back to the gilt lettering on the faded leather cover:

HOW TO GET LAID.

With another nervous look around, Chris slowly bent down...

...then quickly snatched up the slender volume, tucking it against his body so that the front cover was pressed against his side, with his hand curled around the lettering on the narrow spine.

With a nervous stride, and a faint blush, Chris hurried off towards his apartment, head swiveling around in wide-eyed expectation of pointed fingers and laughter.

It wasn't until he'd flown up the three flights of stairs and closed the door behind him that Chris began to feel even a little bit more relaxed.

Heart pounding, sweat staining the underarms of his white T-shirt, Chris walked into the old apartment's tiny dining room, laying the book carefully on the chipped and faded Formica surface of the kitchen table.

Pulling down on the handle of the old, 'rounded' Kelvinator refrigerator, Chris hauled open the heavy door of the old appliance and grabbed one of his last three beers, carrying the not-quite-icy-cold brew back to the table as the fridge's door swung shut with a meaty 'thunk'.

Pulling out one of the four mismatched chairs surrounding the table, Chris thumped down into it and drew the book closer to him. Once it was precisely centered on the table in front of him, he merely stared at it as he numbly popped open the can of beer and took a long draught of the cool liquid.

The gilt-inscribed title hadn't changed. It still read exactly the same, in simple serif typeface.

Hesitantly, Chris flipped the book open to the title-page - and, with a furious blush rising warmly in his face, ,blinked at the 'complete' title of the slender volume he now held:

HOW TO GET LAID

A Mystical Manual to Becoming the Nymphomaniac Cum-Slut of Your Dreams. A deep red flush on his pale face, Chris started to close the book...

...then hesitated.

The blush went from mere red to an interesting sort of mauve, but very slowly, Chris spread the book all the way open on the table, staring once more at that cover page.

Nervously bringing his forefinger to his mouth, he licked the tip of it - then reached out, and flipped the page.

It read:

ADVISORY

At any time, should you find the chosen incantation was not quite right for your idealized Cum-Slut self-image, simple repeat the words of the cantrip in reverse order to reverse the effects. PLEASE NOTE: Any reversal must be performed within twenty-four hours of the original spell-casting, or it will become permanent!

Snorting in disbelief, Chris flipped to the first section in the book, titled : Skin Deep - The outer wrapping of the whole package.

Under the title were four... spells? Chris snorted to himself in disgusted disbelief as he looked over the four 'spells', each of which was supposed to leave the supposed 'caster' with a specific 'type' of skin, ranging from perfectly hairless and silky-smooth, to 'normal' for a woman - with an 'appendix' for the chapter listing the correct spells for specific flesh-tone color changes.

"What a load of crock..." Chris snorted, shaking his head at what he figured must have been some sort of novelty gag-gift. "As if you could really give yourself utterly perfect skin by simply saying..."

Peering closer through his glasses, Chris stuck one arm into the air in an oratorical manner, and intoned in a false, deep voice, : "Ezranic tolouth b'tai n'koia freslint!"

Snorting again, Chris dropped the book onto the table...

...then practically flew back out of the chair, knocking the beer flying as he stumbled back against the counters, eyes bulging.

The cause of the reaction was his arm.

His arm - which, instead of the downy coating of hair it had carried since puberty, was now... well, as silky-smooth as the book had promised.

"Holy shit!" Chris exclaimed - and then he began fumbling with his pants.

When his shaking fingers finally managed to undo the fly and pop the button, he lowered his jeans to reveal pale, knobby-kneed legs that were every bit as preternaturally smooth as his arms had become.

Likewise, after yanking off his shirt, Chris verified that the change had been total, even under his armpits.

Clad only in his somewhat ratty boxers and a pair of even worse athletic socks, Chris slowly approached the kitchen table, hesitantly setting himself down in the chair he'd so violently departed.

"All I have to do is say it in reverse, and I'll be back to normal..." Chris told himself in a shaky voice. "It said so, right in the front - I have twenty-four hours to..."

His voice trailed off and a decidedly odd expression took up residence on his face as that last idea struck home.

"Naw..." He said, shaking the idea from his mind. "that's.. that's just sick."

Flipping back to the page in the book, he took a deep breath, then quickly read out loud: "Freslint n'koia b'tai tolouth ezranic!"

This time, he actually felt it happen.

Whereas the change to silky-smoothness had been without noticeable sensation, and almost instantaneous, the change back took several seconds - during which Chris twitched at the 'ants crawling all over him' sensation that came with it. Finally, it was over - and he was once again covered in the thin layer of dark hair, with the same old, somewhat acne-scarred skin.

He sighed. "Thank god... it really is reversible..."

His voice died out again as the verification of the impermanent nature of the changes once again triggered that highly unnatural thought...

Pushing it away again, Chris muttered a curse at himself for even thinking such a thing. Standing bolt upright, he grabbed the book with a determined expression on his face, and carried it over to the old Kenmore range in the corner.

Pulling the door to the oven open, he tossed the book negligently into the dark interior, then slammed the door. Cranking the oven's knob all the way up to the maximum temperature, he turned from the stove and quickly gathered up his jeans and T-shirt before stalking out into the living room.

For three whole minutes, the kitchen lay in silence, the elements inside the stove slowly beginning to go from black to red...

...and then the nearly-nude web-designer flew back into the room.

CHAPTER TWO

Sitting nearly naked on the couch in his living-room, Chris looked down at the book he'd rescued from the oven.

"What the fuck was I thinking?" He asked himself, as he smoothed down a couple of pages that had been dog-eared by the position it had landed in. "This thing could be worth a fortune! Women would pay scads of money for something like this! I can't burn it just because of some strange, perverted thought is brings up!"

Laying the book on the low, glass-topped coffee table in front of him, Chris looked at it with near reverence as he tried to figure out a plan for cashing in on it's incredible power.

A power that, best of all, gave a one-day 'trial period' to allow the user to make sure they'd gotten what they'd wanted. The user could even spend that twenty-four hours hiding out, so that nobody would know about any changes until they'd decided - which made it perfectly safe to try out even your strangest ideas in private...

"Jesus, what's wrong with me...?" Chris demanded of himself, staring at the book.

Then, in a slightly different tone of voice - and with a completely different tone of thought - he replied: "Well, of course, it'd be interesting..."

Hesitantly, he began to reach for the book... but some part of his brain rebelled, and he stopped, hands inches away.

"It's not like anybody would ever know..." He whispered to himself - and that was the final convincer.

Picking up the book, he quickly flipped back to the skin page and, before he could lose his nerve, read off the same spell he'd read before...

...with the same effect.

Sitting there, the book in his lap, Chris slowly ran his hand back and forth over his crossed arms, feeling the smooth, slightly slick flesh beneath his fingers. It was so incredibly smooth, it was nearly unreal - more like silk than human flesh.

"This... isn't so bad..." He admitted to himself, finding the slow touch of his otherwise masculine fingers across the supple flesh to be rather pleasant, actually. Feeling more than a little perverted, he peeled off his socks and boxers, examining every inch of his smoother new body.

Carefully, Chris memorized the spell, until he knew it - literally - forward and backwards. Just to be on the safe side.

Biting his lower lip, Chris looked down at the book - and slowly flipped to the next section: Figuring It Out - How to get into shape without really trying.

"I really should stop..." He told himself, as his eyes ran over the list of spell - but his voice held no conviction, and he slowly ran one finger down the page, , mind already inflamed in curiosity.

He hesitated at the spell for an 'athletic' build - actually, it was listed under the heading for 'The Tigress in bed', but Chris knew what it mean by the subtitle.

He considered it, imagining himself with more muscles, in much better shape...

...then, with a shrug, pushed it aside for something to consider after his little 'experiment' was over.

Continuing down, he also hesitate at the spell to become taller - then, considering it, realized something very odd:

He, himself, was just barely of average height. Many a time, he'd wished he was taller - yet, right now, with the 'sick' little experiment he was trying, the thought of making the-woman-he-was- becoming into a tall woman held no interest. Though he, as a man, wanted to be taller, he didn't like tall women. In fact, he liked women eve shorter then his own unprepossessing height...

...which was why he found his eyes coming to rest on the spell that said 'Dynamite - Good things Cum in Small Packages...'.

Once again blushing furiously - which was even more noticeable on his smoother new skin - Chris very carefully read off the spell.

The sensation of loosing two inches of height was... interesting. The sensations felt an awful lot like the way it felt when you first woke up and gave one of those 'stand on tiptoe and stretch wide' yawn/stretches.

Some of that sensation was also from the fact that he wasn't just loosing height - his entire body was changing. Though never terribly 'masculine' in build, his frame had still been male - but that all changed as bones restructured themselves to the feminine pattern. His shoulders drew inwards even as his hips began to widen, and there was a decidedly strange sensation as his pelvis tilted slightly to a new position.

Seconds later, Chris looked nearly like a pre-pubescent girl, even down to the tiny less-than-A-cup breasts on his - no, her - slimmer chest. Nestled between her smooth new thighs was the moist slit of her new womanhood, the transformation having been painless.

Gasping slightly in amazed shock that she'd actually 'done the deed', making herself physically female, Chris slowly slid a slimmer hand down between those thighs, and lightly touched her moist new slit.

It felt... similar-yet-different. Not under her hand, of course. The way it felt from that perspective was completely different - but the way her new cunt and clit felt, from the inside, wasn't all that different in overall sensation then the way his cock had felt, in terms of generated sensations. The physical location was different, of course, ,and there were a few new added sensations, like the warm dampness, but other the that, it felt much the same...

...and just as good.

Briefly, she considered masturbating, seeing what it felt like to have a female orgasm... but the hot, flaming blush the thought brought to her face told her that she wasn't quite ready for that experience yet. Instead, she pulled her hand away from her altered crotch and leaned forward, to take a look at her ghostly reflection in the glass-topped coffee table.

What she saw surprised her - and, deep down, dismayed her, as well.

She'd never had what you'd call 'strong, masculine features' - but, still, it was a little disappointing to see that, with 'just' the change in bone structure, her feminine new face was actually quite cute. In fact, beneath the mop of sandy-blond hair, her altered face bore a remarkable resemblance to that of Jennifer Lien, the actress who'd played 'Kes' on Star Trek: Voyager.

Being a devoted Trekkie, Chris knew damned well who she now resembled - and it stunned her. Not the resemblance, per say, but what it drove home.

Chris had always thought 'Kes' was pretty hot - and, right now, she was in a body that could have passed as Jennifer Lien's bespectacled younger sister, had she had one.

The thought of becoming female had been sort of 'sick', in her view, when she'd started - but, knowing how hot she found 'Kes', Chris couldn't help but realize - really realize, for the first time - that she'd just willingly transformed herself into something that at least some men were sure to find... sexually attractive.

"What the hell is wrong with me...?" Chris demanded of the empty air, her voice somewhat higher and smoother since her vocal cords had also been altered. "I just... turned myself into a girl!"

Disturbed, she simply sat and thought for several long moments, wondering if there was something really wrong with her, some sort of mental instability. Brow and lips tightened in annoyance, Chris searched for answers...

...and found herself looking at the computer on the cheap desk in the corner. It was her business computer, the one she used to make her living...

...but when she'd first bought it, she'd loaded it up with all sorts of programs, most of which she'd never so much as opened after trying them just once.

She'd done it because, like anybody else, she'd bought a new 'toy' - and wanted to see what she could do with it.

Slowly, she relaxed, a faint smile crossing her lips as she realized that she wasn't crazy. No, she'd simply gotten a 'new toy', and she was taking it out for the obligatory 'test drive'.

With that concern settled in her mind, Chris once more turned her attention to the book, again memorizing the spell she'd used, before moving onward.

Having realized that she was just having some 'harmless fun', a lot of Chris' inhibitions melted away, and she went at it with a will, memorizing and intoning spells with a certain perverse enthusiasm, bypassing some of the more 'plain' spells in favor for a bit of the exotic.

She chose not to simply lengthen and soften her own hair, thinking such a thing would be too 'boring'. Why crawl when you can fly?

Within moments, her previously short mop of unremarkably dusty hair had been replaced was the most incredible mane of hair available in the book - a massive wave of rolling curls that rose up off her head a good four inches before falling backwards in a waterfall that reached nearly to her ass.

It was also an incredibly rich, brassy shade of blonde.

"I can't believe I just did that..." Chris told her ghostly reflection in the coffee-table, blushing furiously as she felt the soft masses of hair brushing her shoulders - but she didn't reverse the spell, leaving it as it was.

A spell for longer nails - not just a little longer, but - in keeping with the hair - a good three inches longer, delicately oval-shaped at the tips.

Another spell, and her already slender waist pinched in a few more inches.

Yet another spell was memorized - and her lost height came back, in the form of longer, more smoothly toned legs.

The next spell pushed her voice higher, into a soprano - and another made her hips wider and ass fuller and firmer, enhancing the growing 'hourglass' of her altering figure. Pausing for a quick look, she blushed... then repeated the spell that shrunk her down again, though with the same longer-legged proportions.

Aside from the loss of height, the repeated spell also made her bone structure even finer and more delicate, giving her an almost-doll-like look - albeit the 'Barbie' doll type, not the China doll kind.

Another spell, and her lips became fuller.

Another spell, and her feet became even smaller and daintier - and, somewhat unfortunately, acquired an 'arch', since the spell was actually designed with high heels in mind. Still, Chris figured her smaller feet, now 'optimized' for a comfortable walk in two-inch heels, would nevertheless be all right flat-footed for the short duration of her womanhood...

...until, leaning over to look at her tiny, arched new feet, she caught another glance of her reflection and saw a silly-looking grin spreading her sensuous new lips.

"Geez - I'm getting a little out of control..." She told herself, the smile dimming as she looked at the sexy - if flat-chested - woman reflected back at her....

...and then she stuck her tongue out at the reflection, shrugged, and asked: "So what?"

Nobody else would ever know what she was doing to herself - and, since she was doing it anyway, why bother with half measures ?

Quickly working to memorize the foot spell, Chris flipped to the next section of the book. Breasts.

It was time to give herself some tits.

Placing one long, rounded fingernail on the first entry in the section, Chris prepared herself to memorize the spell that would add an extra inch onto her tiny chest...

...then paused, realizing that the spell had been designed for women who already had something to work with. A single cup-size would put her into an A-cup.

She ran her finger down the page, finding there were two- and three-cup size increment spells. Considering, she thought that a 'C' cup was just about right, and so she prepared to memorize that spell, instead...

...then paused, as she saw the sub-set spells below it.

Like the one for increasing firmness and roundness, along with the size. There was one for a matching increase in nipple size for the growth.

Below that was a sub-set that increased sensitivity with growth.

The final version of the spell, on the bottom of the page, did all four - cup-size, firmness, nipple-size, and sensitivity.

"What the hell..?" She asked herself, with a shrug. "Might as well..."

Memorizing the spell, she sat back on the couch, took a breath, and quickly rhymed it off. She gasped, shivering with a strange delight, as her chest began swelling outward.

The swelling growth on her chest felt fantastic.

Whereas each transformation, aside from the skin-change, had had a certain sensation that went with it, none had been nearly as powerful - or nearly as pleasurable - as the sensations that came as her chest bulged outward, the previously tiny nub filling out into cones, then bumps, finally stopping at perfect domes that thrust roundly from her chest like halved oranges, each firm, smooth mound tipped by a fully erect pink nipple.

"Oh, wow..." She whispered, one hand coming up to caress the firm, hand-sized new mound - and she gasped again at the pleasure that ran thorough her new endowment at the touch.

She hesitated, hand still on her new, C-cup breast - and then, blushing, repeated the spell.

She gasped in redoubled pleasure, both from the wonderful sensation from her swelling mounds - and from the increasing sensitivity of her swelling breasts, as her hands continued to massage them.

"Oh, shit, that feels good...!" She gasp-moaned, eyes closed in pleasure - and, just as her breasts, now firm grapefruit-sized spheres of DDD-cup breast flesh, stopped growing, she repeated the spell yet again.

Her breasts surged out even more pleasurable, and her moan deepened as the pleasure increased.

As did her bust line.

Realizing what she'd just done, Chris hurriedly yanked her hands away from her big, round new tits, and stared down at the massively firm spheres filling her ribcage.

Each GGG-cup breast was as firm and round as a volley-ball, thrust proudly outward - and tipped with an engorged pink nipple as big as the first two joints of her pinkie finger.

Her old, male pinkie finger.

"Oh, shit, ,what have I done to myself..." She whispered, eyes wide behind her glasses. "They're.. huge!"

She'd never really been a fan of big-busted women, and the sight of such huge mounds of round tit- flesh thrust from her own chest was more than slightly disconcerting...

...but, on the other hand, they felt so... damned... good...

Once again, she reached up, lightly caressing her big new boobs - and as she let her head loll back and let out a moan, she decided that she'd keep the 'freakishly' big tits for just a while longer.

Pulling her hands from her big new tits, Chris smoothly and sensually uncoiled from the couch - amazed even as she did so.

"Damn... that's some magic.." She whispered to herself, unable to believe who sensuously she was moving. The magic did more than just change her figure - it had provided her with the needed 'habits' to move in it as easily as she had in her old male body.

With a feminine stride, she headed towards the bathroom - and lightly sucked her breath in at the jiggle and sway of her new tits as she moved, each bounce producing a quick throb of pleasure.

Reaching the bathroom, the new woman reached out and flicked the switch, bringing the single bulb to life inside the cracked translucent globe above the mirror.

What it revealed was quite the woman.

She looked like... like a stripper, Chris thought with a snort.

She was very delicately built - not so much so to be unduly remarkable, but still....

On the slender, leggy little frame, the massive mane of blonde hair and the equally massive spheres of tit-flesh stood out like neon signs. Both looked equally outsized, and equally artificial, even with her 'to scale' nipples. Given her full-lipped cute face and otherwise petite build, she looked very much like a exotic dancer who'd invested in some plastic surgery.

"Well, hello there " Chris grinned at the mirror, striking what she considered to be a stripper-like pose. "I'm.. uh, Kandi Kupps."

Yes, ,that was stripper's name, she thought with a bigger grin. Turning slightly, she shook her head at just how... well, ridiculous her new bust-line looked, especially on her slender little frame.

Still they did feel good.

She shrugged, causing her massive new bust to bounce slightly - a very pleasurable sensation, despite the way the boobs looked. Then again - there were guys out there who would actually find such over-stuffed, out-sized breasts on a woman like her quite sexy. Hell - a lot of guys would pay good money to see exactly the sight she was looking at in the mirror, a slender little blonde gently running one long-nailed hand over her massive tits.

She wasn't just assuming, either, she thought with a small grin. Why, that one website she maintained, that's exactly how it worked - pathetic, horny men paying good money to some 'fantasy' woman on the other side of a web-cam...

Chris' expression froze as the thought hit her full-force, like a blow to her massively-maned head.

CHAPTER THREE

She couldn't believe she was doing this.

Even as she carried the clothes from the bedroom out to the living room, her hips moving in a gentle feminine swivel, her face was cast in a flushed look of self-disbelief over the fact that she hadn't simply frozen up. Though her mind was roiling in turmoil, she was still moving...

...as if she was actually going to go through with this.

She kept waiting for the tremors to hit, for her knees to weaken, for her stomach to clench into a tight ball of panic - but none of this happened. Instead, she simply felt as if she were in some sort of a fog, drifting along with just enough 'control' to keep moving, while her mind spun.

She had been a woman for all of - a quick glance at the clock - forty-eight minutes, and now she was planning to be some man's fantasy woman.

Sitting down on the edge of the sofa, highly aware of the way her firmer, fuller ass felt as she did so, she still tried to find some sort of inner mental block that would simply refuse her the ability to go through with the idea. An idea that was, to her, both perverted - and perversely exciting.

She wouldn't be able to see the man - or men - on the other end. From her perspective, she'd simply be 'performing' to an empty room - except for the per-minute charge men had to pay to view the streaming video of whatever she did, a portion of which would automatically be deposited into an account for her.

Mind still whirling at the audacity of what she was planning, Chris slipped on the jean shorts she'd chosen. On her smaller, but wider-hipped, body, the shorts fit like a second skin.

Likewise, the gray T-shirt she pulled on molded itself to her massive new bust, clearly defining not only the full swell of each round, firm tit, but revealing each fully erect nipple.

Hesitantly, she rose from the couch and crossed the room to her computer, which was already booted up and ready to go. Taking longer than she'd expected - thanks to her long new fingernails - she logged into the site, using her administrator password as the web-site designer to enter a special section on the site...

...where she set up a 'test' account, under the name of 'Kandi Kupps'.

Reaching the spot for a brief bio of the person, she hesitated - then, blushing, quickly made up a short lie about her being an exotic dancer somewhere in Chicago.

Finally, the account was all set up and ready to go. There was nothing left to do...

...except take off her glasses, click the 'live' button, and get up from the chair.

With her glasses off, the rest of the world had receded into a blur - a blur that meant she couldn't see the computer, or the screen, clearly.

She couldn't see the little number that would indicate how many men, if any, were 'tuning in' to the Kandi Kupps Show. As long as she couldn't see that number, she could tell herself that nobody was watching, that she was just home alone.

It worked - after a fashion. At least she didn't go into panic mode, or anything.

Heart beating a mile a minute, she slowly sauntered over to the couch, which she'd focused the camera on before hand. With a slow, sultry feminine grace that the magic had given her, she slowly sank down onto the couch.

Looking in the general direction of the camera, she smiled slyly - a forced expression that should look real enough at the size and resolution the hypothetical men watching would see.

Slowly, sensuously, she lifted her right leg into the air, slowly swinging it to display the silky-smooth, supple contours of its shapely length. Reaching out, she lightly ran her hand from ankle to thigh.

Slowly lowering the leg, she swiveled in the couch, her back against the arm rest, and lifted her other leg, spending more time softly caressing the flesh of it than she had the first.

Not because it was part of 'the act' - because it just felt damned good...

...and not just physically, either.

It took just about all the latent acting talent 'Kandi' had to keep a shocked expression off her face as she felt the rapid flush of excitement run through her new body as she 'played' for the camera.

Never in a million years would it have occurred to her that, once into the act, she'd find herself enjoying the idea that somewhere, somebody might be watching her do this. She'd planned the entire exercise to minimize that thought as much as possible, knowing even as she'd done so that it was basically a fool's errand - but she'd never imagined that the exact opposite effect of what she'd expected would set in.

'Chris' had led a determinedly sheltered life, avoiding any and every situation that would risk 'exposure' - which was one of the reasons why Linda's rejection earlier had been such a blow.

'Kandi', however, was taking that risk - and though there was some fear, even some self-disgust, there was also an unmistakable - and very powerful - thrill involved, as well. Much like a roller-coaster ride, the very risks she was taking only served to increase the amount of emotional pleasure she got from it.

In fact, she wasn't only far from panic - she was down-right enjoying herself...

...in a sweaty-palmed, stomach-rolling sort of way.

Swinging around on her firm, full new ass, Kandi let her small, arched feet fall to the floor, legs spread wide - as she slowly, teasingly, slid her hands up the inside of each thigh. Lightly brushing her hands against the denim that - just barely - covered her crotch, she let out a soft, sensuous moan.

The moan was only about forty-percent faked - or, rather, exaggerated, in terms of the actual pleasure she felt from the pressure of her hands against the womanhood that lay beneath the cloth.

The very warm, very wet womanhood - because, as well as being emotionally exciting, she was finding this routine physically arousing, as well.

The feminine arousal she felt was like nothing she'd ever felt before. Rather than the entirely 'external' sensation that came from male arousal, this sensation was internal. Though, logically, the source of the sensations were a relatively small portion of her body, it felt as if her entire torso was a hollow husk, in which a Swedish-style steam-room was slowly coming to life, a growing heat matched with a growing dampness that seemed to fill her.

Almost reluctantly, her hands traveled past her crotch, moving on a sort of autonomous control as her mind spun with new sensations and a certain amount of self-disgust at how easily she was taking to what she was doing. It was, to her, perverted - but also undeniably enjoyable.

It only continued to grow more enjoyable as her hands slid over her stomach and reached the bottom of her massive new endowments.

Slowly - almost lovingly - her hands slid up over the thin fabric that encased her new tits like a second skin, not having to fake the moan or expression of pleasure that showed on her face as she gently caressed her fabric-encased mounds. Her hands paused at her swollen, clearly visible nipples, lightly teasing them through the thin shirt as she wiggled in genuine pleasure, her breath coming faster and more shallowly as the pleasure increased.

Finally, she let her hands continue their travel upwards, until she was gently sliding her hands over her own shoulders, crossing each arm over the other as she ran her hands over her own, smooth arms until the once more reached her smooth, flat stomach - where they separated and came to rest on either side of her womanly hips.

Levering herself off the couch, she slowly spun in place, spreading her legs wide. Glancing over her shoulder with a wide, natural smile, she slowly rose up on tip-toe as she bent over the couch,

,displaying her shapely legs and firm, full ass tightly packed into it's taut denim prison.

Bracing herself with one arm on the couch, she used the other to reach behind her, smiling over her shoulder as she began to run one long-nailed hand over her own delectable ass.

It felt... very nice.

After a minute of fondling, she very slowly straightened, her breath coming in rapid pants of mixed excitement and fear as she drew her legs together...

...then, back to the camera, undid the jean shorts and pushed them down her long, smooth legs.

Hesitating a moment, she took a second to get control of her breathing - then once more turned to face the camera, an excited smile on her lips.

Letting her hands slowly slide from her hips to her stomach, she crossed them at the wrists as she gripped the hem of her T-shirt - and, in one, smooth motion, peeled the T-shirt off, leaving her new body completely naked under the scrutiny of the camera.

Slowly beginning to swivel and sway her hips while she stood in the same spot, she directed all her attention to her highly sensitive new tits, and the even more sensitive nipples that crowned them.

For the next five minutes, the world seemed to recede for Kandi as she caress, fondled and squeezed her firm, volley-ball sized breasts, long nailed hands ranging from feather-touch gentle to nearly painful as she teased and touched her breasts and nipples, letting out moans, gasps and sighs of pleasure at her own manipulation.

She was enjoying it on so many levels, it was scary.

She was enjoying it, as any woman would enjoy the physical sensations she was creating.

She was enjoying it as a woman having a 'naughty adventure', knowing it was quite possible somebody was watching her do this.

She was enjoying it as a man, one with little sexual experience, who finally had unrestricted access to a pair of tits.

She was enjoying it as a man who was 'fooling' the men watching her, knowing with certainty that the people watching could never know that she was 'really' a guy.

More than any of that, however, was the inner part of the mind, the part that no gender, no need for a 'name', the part that René Descartes was referring to when he said 'I think, therefore I am.'

The 'disinterested observer' part of the mind that, without prejudice or bias, could easily determine that what was happening was the most exciting, enjoyable experience of its otherwise boring, sheltered existence.

This was the part of the mind that urged more and more out of the rest of her whirling, confused sense of self as she lowered herself to the couch, legs spread wide - and let one slender, long nailed hand slide downward over her flat new stomach.

With a gasp of pure pleasure, excited beyond all reason at the thought that people were watching her do this private/perverted/pleasurable act, Kandi began to masturbate.

Though, like before, the touch itself generated sensation similar to what it had been like as a man, the results of those sensations were all so different, as she began to squirm in rising pleasure.

The wonderful sensations as her fingers teased her clit and the dewy lips of her cunt were pleasurable bolts that drove straight into her brain - and continued to grow in one wave-like wash of pleasure that overlapped the next, completely unlike the more 'linear' excitement of men. It was as if the very sexual pleasure was a metaphor for the way men and women thought - whereas men tended to be more straightforward, 'just go for the goal', women tended to think more 'sideways', approaching a goal from many angles.

That's the way she was pleasuring herself, now. A touch here, then a squeeze there, then a pressure over there - all leading to the same end, but creating different types and duration of pleasure, all of which overlapped each other into a swirling melange of pleasure that was rising steadily...

...until orgasm.

Arching her back, finger working furiously, Kandi screamed in excited ecstasy as her first female orgasm hit - and then, almost immediately afterwards, the second, like two sharp firecrackers going off in syncopation.

Gasping, Kandi slowly lowered her firm new buttocks back to the couch, slowly removing her hand from her sopping cunt.

Slowly, still feeling after-shocks of pleasure running through her transformed body, she rose from the couch and walked slowly over to the computer, a self-satisfied smile on her face as she clicked the button to end the transmission.

Wiping her damp hand off on the discarded T-shirt, she put her glasses back on and peered at the computer...

...then her pale eyes widened in shock.

The roughly twenty-minute 'show' she'd just put on had earned her just slightly over a hundred dollars...

...and, of course, more pleasure than she'd ever experienced before in her life. The job as a web designer paid fairly well - but nothing close to this...

Shaking her head in disbelief, Kandi turned away from the computer...

...and stopped dead, eyes widening even more as she made a nearly soundless squeak of horror at the sight of the tall, broad-shouldered young man leaning against the living-room's doorway.

"Hi, Chris." Brad Dooguid said, casually, a faint smile on his lips and an odd sort of look in his emerald-green eyes. "Glad to see you're enjoying my book."

CHAPTER FOUR

With a squeal of considerably more volume, Kandi slapped her hands over her bare crotch - then, blushing, transferred one arm higher in a vain attempt to cover her massive breasts.

"How did you get " She started to ask - then, remembered, quite belatedly, that she hadn't bothered to lock the door behind her, she dismissed the highly irrelevant question, and started a different tack, trying to cover her tracks: "My name's not "

She finally stopped dead, the whole of Brad's comment registering - and she stared at him. "Your book ?"

"That's right, Chris." Brad said, pushing himself off of the door frame. Dropping the heavy hockey bag slung over one shoulder, he gestured at the couch. "Maybe we should sit down and have a bit of a chat "

She hesitated, wondering if she should again attempt denying who she was, to try and keep the shameful secret - but Brad's very manner suggested that he was doing more than just guessing.

Blushing furiously, she nodded.

Looking at the noticeable damp spot on the couch's cushion, Brad smiled thinly and chose to grab the chair from in front of the computer, spinning it around to sit on it with his arms crossed over the backrest while a very bright-red 'Kandi' settled onto the couch's other cushion.

"I'm impressed." Brad finally said, a faint hint of envy in his voice as he looked at her top-heavy new form.

Her already deep blush became even more vivid, and she defensively crossed her arms over her chest.

Brad's eyebrows rose, and a faint blush lit his cheeks. "That's not exactly what I meant. I was talking about the enthusiasm you put into this."

Chris blinked. "Uh.. Excuse me...?"

The handsome, dark-haired man grinned, a boyish smile that lit his entire face. "Hey, don't you think I've used the book to, um... 'experiment' with being a woman, too? What man could resist seeing what it's like for a girl - not to mention the, 'practical' uses..."

Brad winked slyly, and Chris flushed even deeper as she realized just how Brad had earned his reputation as being a fantastic lover. Knowing exactly what any given move felt like for a woman would definitely be an advantage.

"I never could bring myself to make myself too feminine, for too long..." Brad continued. "I mean, I was the prototypical high-school jock, and more afraid of being found out and losing my hard-earned 'rep', y'know?"

Still flushed, Chris nodded, knowing exactly what Brad meant. Then again...

"I guess I had less to lose..." She admitted, a bit ashamed. "I, uh.. assume you're not planning to tell anybody about this."

"Hell, no!" Brad said, appearing horrified.

Chris considered what she knew about Brad - and then, nodding, sighed and relaxed a bit. "I... sort of got carried away."

"I noticed." Brad said, grinning again, "Good for you!" Chris blinked in surprise.

"You don't think it's... well, really sick?" She asked, hesitantly.

Brad cocked his head, a serious expression coming over his face. "Look, I'm not trying to be cruel or anything, but, since you asked, here's my honest answer: The way you've been living your life up until now, basically hiding out from the world, avoiding anything remotely risky - that, I think, is 'sick'."

Chris blinked, opening her mouth for a retort...

...then, slowly closing her mouth, she nodded.

"So.." She said, slowly. "I guess I change myself back, and you take your book, huh?"

"Only if that's the way you want it." Brad said, with a shrug. "I didn't come over here to take it back, you know."

"You didn't?" She asked, surprised. "Why did you come, then...?"

"Mostly, to help." Brad explained, the smile becoming more than just a tad wicked. "Why else do you think I left it laying on the tracks for you to find...?"

"You left it...?" She repeated, blankly. "Why?"

Brad shrugged. "I saw the way Linda treated you, and I felt sorry for you. If there's something else I could have done to help, I would have - but all I had was that book, which I picked up in a estate sale... and, as I said, I... well, honestly, I haven't got the guts to use it, that way you did." He grinned again. "Though, in all honestly, I didn't really expect you to do what you did. I was kind of expecting you to, you know, find a way to use it to 'entice' a girl. I figured a not-so-attractive girl with a personality that meshed more with yours could hardly turn down a chance to get her own dream body..."

Chris colored again, realizing that she hadn't thought of it in quite those terms.

Brad waved a hand, dismissing the thought. "Anyway, I was sorted of expecting you to read through the entire book before trying anything - that's the way I did it. Right at the back is the spell that makes the book 'yours' - the one that lets you know where it is at all times, as well as if it's being used, and how. That's how I knew what was going on."

"Oh..." Chris said in a very small voice.

"Anyway, I brought you some things..." Brad said, grinning. "Once I realized what you were doing with the book, I thought these might come in handy..."

Getting up, Brad walked over to the sports bag he'd brought. Unzipping it, he turned it upside down in the center of the room...

...and the feminine clothing and accessories that packed the big bag near to bursting spilled out into a multi-colored pile on the floor.

She stared at the pile of feminine attire with wide, shocked eyes.

"No, I.. " She started, blushing. "I couldn't. I mean, I didn't even mean to do what I've already done..." Brad looked at her, eyebrows raised - then, slowly, gave a slight shrug.

"Well, I haven't changed myself in ages, and I don't need the book back, so both the book and this stuff is now yours, to do with as you see fit." He said. "Perhaps, if you do get a girl to use the book, she'll need some of this wardrobe, even if for just long enough to go shopping."

Chris stared at the pile, feeling an odd sensation in the bottom of her gut as she realized she was thinking just how sexy her new legs would look in that pair of pumps...

"I.. don't know..." She said, shaking her head. "Everything's happening just a little too fast..." "Okay, okay..." Brad said, holding his hands up. "I'm not trying to pressure you."

Turning, Brad began heading for the door - and then he paused, looking at her thoughtfully.

"You know, I barely know you - just sort of seen you around when we were at school, and that sort of thing." Brad said, slowly. "Still, you seem like a good enough person, no matter what body you're in. Whatever you decided to do.. Well, I think you're the type of person I might be able to respect as a friend."

Reaching into his pocket, he extracted a slip of paper, laying it on the small table near the door.

"My address and phone number." Brad said, slowly. "In case you ever want to give me a call, or drop by, or anything."

Remembering how much she'd hated/envied Brad earlier, Chris flushed, unable to meet the handsome man's eyes as she realized that his popularity was very well earned in deed.

Without another word, Brad left the apartment, closing the door behind him. As soon as she heard it latch, Chris hurried over and locked it.

Then, returning to the living room, she quickly made use of the book, reading each of the spells she'd used in reverse, until once more his own, pale body - though minus the body hair, which he hadn't felt it worth restoring - greeted his eyes.

Still wondering what the hell had gotten into him - and still finding it hard to believe that Brad had actually been here - Chris quickly gathered up the pile of stuff on the floor, carting it into the bedroom.

Pulling on some clothes, Chris glanced at the clock, verifying his stomach's assertion that it was dinnertime.

Deciding to splurge with his - Kandi's? - money, he made two phone calls; The first, to a pizza place that delivered, the second to a delivery service that would deliver a case of beer.

While waiting for the deliveries, Chris idly finished tidying up the living room. Flipping over the damp couch cushion made him pause, but he continued on, finishing up by carrying the book into the bedroom and dumping it on the bed with the pile of clothing, shoes, and accessories of various types.

When the deliveries arrived, Chris sat down and had a leisurely dinner of Hawaiian pizza, enhanced with three cold beers.

The entire time, he kept trying - and failing - to push the book out of his mind.

Again and again, after failing to abandon the line of thought, he tried to force it into more 'profitable' lines of thought, trying to consider which girls he knew were most compatible with him, and most likely to be 'properly grateful' for a new body - but, instead, sharp memories of what it had felt like being female kept intruding on his mind.

That part of his mind that had no name and no gender kept reminding him how much more exciting life had been for the brief span of time he'd been female - and another part of his mind fought the 'perverted' argument by pointing out what Brad had said about his lifestyle...

As the sun slowly began to sink over the city, Chris put the rest of the pizza into the fridge, then grabbed a fresh beer and headed into the living room, where he dropped onto the couch and turned on the TV. Hoping to distract his seemingly obsessed mind, he began flipping through the channels in hope of finding some nice, mindless entertainment.

Instead, he found himself watching the snippets of shows with a completely different bias.

Watching the way the women moved on the TV. The way they acted. The way the situations they were put into differed so significantly from those of the male characters.

He watched a 'party' scene, where the hostess shook the hands of the other men, occasionally giving one of another a slap on the shoulder - while his wife hugged the incoming guests, even trading pecks on the cheeks with some of the other women.

On another show, he watched as a man 'slouched around' the house in ratty old jeans and a T-shirt, having a mild argument with the slender woman who glided around behind him in softer, more 'forgiving' clothes of silk and satin.

He came across an episode of 'Friends' - and paused and watched as Chandler made a big deal about bubble-baths - and then, having watched the entire episode, how Chandler ended up enjoying the supposedly feminine act of taking bubble-baths.

Turning off the TV, Chris simply sat and thought, as lost in his own mind as his body was in the darkness that now filled the silent room.

Though, lost in thought, he was unaware of it, his body was actually trembling at the sheer force of the conflicting emotions and desires that ran through him. What his entire upbringing - what most of society - had taught him, and what he found himself considering, perhaps even wanting, were at odds with each other, creating a maelstrom of confused emotions within him.

Feeling the need to move, to get some fresh air, Chris finally got up off the couch. Grabbing his keys and slipping into a battered pair of sneaker, he headed out of his apartment and into the early evening twilight.

Head lowered in thought, he began to walk down the block, trying to sort out his feelings. Part of him really, really wanted to spend more time being female - a lot of time, actually, and not only emphatically female, but as 'unconcerned' as she let himself be, as Kandi.

Part of him was even wondering, if masturbation as a woman felt so good, what sex like a woman would feel like.

On the other hand, another part of him found that line of thinking abhorrent - downright disgusting, in fact. Sure, he knew women must find sex with men pleasurable, but...

"Hey, Four-eyes! Wassa' matter, you such a pansy you can't get a date?" Blinking, Chris stared around.

"Yeah, I'm talkin' to you, ya little sissy!" The voice called again, and Chris turned in it's direction. It was Todd Minster, a guy Chris had known in high school - much to his dismay.

"I heard Linda laughed you right outta the mall!" Todd taunted, with a wicked grin on his face. One of those burly, big-boned kids high school had seemed replete with, Todd now boasted a muscular figure marred by a huge beer gut that strained the black muscle shirt he was wearing and hung over the big belt holding up his oil-stained jeans. His rapidly receding dark brown hair was pulled back into a pony-tail, and the bully was holding the wrench he'd obviously been using on the Harley parked in the driveway of his run-down old bungalow. In the other hand he held a 'big boy' can of beer, which he now drained and whipped in Chris' direction.

"Guess the faggot doesn't have enough experience talking to chicks!" Another voice said, and Chris winced as Todd's high-school 'buddy' - and apparently still best friend and room-mate - came out of the house, where he'd obviously gone to get the fresh beers he now held.

Steve Lewis' nickname had been 'rat' - and for good reason. Short, rangy, with a pinched face that sported a narrow, pointed nose between narrow, dark eyes, the young man with the prematurely graying dust-brown hair looked exactly like a rodent. Walking with a swagger, Rat sneered at Chris and spoke loudly to Todd: "See, the little faggot's wondering if we'd let him suck our cock - lookit his eyes..."

"Bet you'd like that, wouldn'tja?" Todd snorted. "Get some real man-meat instead of the little pencil- dicks of your faggot buddies? Well, you can forget it, pansy-boy."

Chris tried to remind himself that, as 'pathetic' as his life might be, at least he wasn't these guys - guys who hadn't had so much as a single new thought since high school.

Turning, ignoring his old bullies, Chris began walking away.

"That's right, sissy - run away before we whup your ass!" Todd called out.

"Forget it, Todd - little faggot like that would probably enjoy it...!" Rat yelled. "Anything to feel the touch of a real man...!"

"Yeah, ,well, he can forget that!" Todd replied, ,in the same shouting voice. "Only thing that touches my trouser snake is prime pussy, like... what was that stripper's name, ,Rat?"

"Kandi Kupps." Rat replied. "Yeah, now that..."

Rat stopped dead - because Chris had stopped dead and turned to look at them. "You mean Kandi Kupps, the girl was on the Internet this afternoon?" Chris asked.

"Yeah, that's the bitch." Todd said, eyes narrowing. "What the fuck is it to you, four eyes?"

"I know Kandi Kupps very well, actually. "Chris said, ,calmly. "She'd a very, very close personal friend of mine."

"Oh, fuck, sure." Rat sneered. "You and some Chicago stripper are best buds."

"Actually, she doesn't live in Chicago." Chris replied. "In fact, she doesn't live too far away. Considering that bragging you were doing, I'd actually like to introduce you to Kandi - see if you guys are really the studs you think you are."

"What sort of shit is this?" Todd sneered, take a few threatening steps forward.

Unruffled, Chris smiled. "In fact, I'll make you a deal. Give me your phone number, and I'll call you in, say, an hour, telling you where you can meet Kandi.. no, better yet, I'll have her call you herself."

"That's a load of fucking bull-shit!" Rat sneered.

"Really?" Chris asked, unconcerned. "Perhaps you want to log back onto that website, and see who is listed as the web-designer. The names at the very bottom of every single page, you know."

The two thugs shared a look, then Rat headed back into the house. Patiently, a faint smile on his lips, Chris waited.

Rat came out a moment later, an odd look in his eyes.

"Hey, Todd - do you remember what this fuck.. uh, guy's last name is?" Rat asked, gesturing at Chris.

Todd frowned. "Yeah - it's Hunter, why?"

Rat simply handed over the page he'd printed off, under the 'credits' tab of the site - which not only listed the web designer as 'Christopher Hunter', but indicated the city and state.

"Shit..." Todd breathed, ,the looked up and stared at Chris narrowly. "What the fuck you doin' this for?" He growled.

Chris' smile widened. "Actually, it's a no-loose situation for me. See, personally, I think you guys are assholes - and if Kandi does, too, then I get to see you put in the same situation as I was in, where a, ahem, 'chick' turns you guys down. On the other hand, if you guys are the studs you say you are - if Kandi thinks so, anyway - then Kandi'll owe me one for introducing you to her. I figure you guys'll also owe me, too - but I'll just settle for you leaving me alone, if that's the case."

Still scowling, ,Todd weighed the chances of Chris somehow humiliating them to the odds of getting into Kandi Kupp's pants...

..and lust won out over prudence.

Grabbing a greasy pencil out of the tool box, Todd scrawled a phone number on it.

"If this is some kinda joke, I'm gonna rip your head off." Todd growled as he handed the paper over.

"Relax." Chris said, calmly. "I'm not stupid enough to get a couple of guys who each have twice as much muscle then I do get mad at me." He tucked the paper in his pocket. "You guys better get cleaned up. Kandi will call you at nine - I'd suggest you be ready."

Turning, Chris headed home, back straight and head held high.

CHAPTER FIVE

Taking a deep breath, 'Kandi' let it out as she affixed a warm smile to her face and swung the apartment door open.

"Well, hello, boys..." She said, in a voice that could only be described as a coo. "You must be Todd and.. 'rat'...?"

The two men managed mumbled agreement as they stared, open-jawed, at her.

Which, of course, was exactly the reaction she was going for, which also explained the outfit that she was - just barely - wearing.

The fur-trimmed pale pink robe was so transparent as to be little more the a wispy fog - and, even then, it didn't do anything at all to even slightly obscure her figure, since it was hanging wide open. Fully exposed to the two men's staring gaze was her supple figure, clad only in a bra, panties, nylons and a pair of high-heeled shoes, all in the exact same color as 'robe'.

"Oh, I do so like guys not afraid to admire my assets..." She cooed sensuously, her full lips in a warm smile as the men all-but-drooled over her firm, spherical breasts, packed in a size-to-small lace demi-cup bra that just very barely managed to cover her fully erect nipples.

"Well, you do got great tits.. uh, I mean, nice uh, breasts, Miss Kupps." Rat stammered. Dressed in black jeans and a somewhat clean denim shirt, he looked a little uncomfortable in the outfit - whereas Todd, in blue jeans and a Harley Davidson T-shirt that didn't quite cover all of his bulging belly, looked perfectly at home as he openly ogled her.

"I liked 'great tits' better." She giggled. "You boys can call me Kandi. Why don't you come in?"

Turning, she began walking towards the living-room, hips swaying sensuously as she gracefully swayed atop her five-inch heels.

The two men followed, closing the door behind them.

Kandi's heart was racing - in excitement. Any doubts, and hesitation, were gone - as was any discomfort about the female form she now so sensuously and proudly.

It was the final straw, the one that had made the decision easy for her.

There were some things that 'Kandi' could do that 'Chris' couldn't - and this was one of them.

Almost like obedient lap-dogs, the two men followed the sight of her pert posterior into the living room.

"Hey - this is the place from the Internet!" Todd said, looking around. "You mean you only live a couple of blocks from us?"

"This is where I live, all right." Kandi agreed, honestly enough - and the two men shared a smile. "Why don't you handsome boys have a seat, and I'll grab some beers?"

"Sounds good, Kandi." Todd agreed. He and Rat settled on the couch while Kandi ankled sensuously off to the kitchen, returning a couple of minutes later with a couple of open beers, and a glass of white wine.

Keeping the wine for herself, she handed each of the guys a beer, then smiled and settled onto the couch between the two men with a pleasant sigh.

"My, you're even more muscular then Chris said you were..." She said, with a tone in her voice that seemed to indicate the fact gave her great pleasure. "So, how about a toast?"

Holding up her glass, she spoke loudly. "To plenty of hot, wild sex!"

The two men blinked - then echoed the sentiment loudly, matching her as she drained her glass. As they lay their now empty containers on the table, Kandi picked up a sheet of paper that was laying there, face down.

"Oh, I'm so glad to hear that you guys feel the same way I do!" She said with obvious and honest sincerity. "Before we can start our night of wild, incredible sex, though, I need you guys to just read something, so lean in close..."

Since involved pressing their bodies firmly against hers, neither guy so much as hesitated.

"Okay, I want you guys to read this out loud, together - kinda like a chorus, okay...?" She said, flipping the paper over.

"Go ahead, take a second to sound it out in your head and get ready - and after you read it, we'll get ready for lots and lots of sex, 'kay?"

The two guys shared a look at each other after looking at the gibberish on the computer-printed page. Each hesitated, working it out in their mind to see if it was one of those dumb vocal pranks, like the very old - and very stupid - 'Owa tan a siam' gag. However, no matter how they sounded it out in their head, it was still gibberish.

It was, however, gibberish that a hot, busty chick wanted them to say before having sex, so they finally nodded they were ready, then read off the sheet in monotone chorus: "Monray delim sacret flog'tan."

"Thanks, guys - that was perfect!" Kandi said, grinning wickedly as she got up off the couch. "No, no you guys stay there until I tell you to move, okay?"

She wiggled and jiggled off to the bedroom, the two guys watching her go. "What the fuck was that all about?" rat asked, leaning back in the chair.

"Fucked if I know." Todd grunted. "She's hot, though."

"Damned hot." Todd agreed, grinning. "And hot to trot, to boot."

"Damned straight." Rat nodded. Reaching forward, he picked up the empty beer can and shook it. "Say, how 'bout getting me another beer 'fore she gets back, dude?"

"Get it your lazy-ass self!" Todd retorted, leaning back in the couch. "I'm comfortable right here."

Neither man realized it, but their 'reluctance' to get off the couch was actually a result of the spell Kandi had gotten them to read - a spell that made them completely submissive to her commands, even ones as 'innocently' phrased as the one to stay where they were.

The bedroom door opened, and Kandi emerged from the bedroom. She'd changed her outfit, and was now dressed in a white leather mini-skirt and a white T-shirt tugged over her ample bust-line, a faint hint of her demi-cup bra visible through the thin material. In one arm she carried a bundle of women's clothing, and the other, she carried a couple of sheets of paper.

"Hey, guys, I'm going to this pool party my friend Brad Dooguid is throwing for me." She said, dumping the clothing on the floor. "He's having a bunch of his old high-school football buddies over. You went to high-school with Brad and his buddies, didn't you?"

"That's right." Todd agreed, while Rat nodded - disappointment written on both their faces. "Well, I promised I'd bring a couple of hot, horny chicks with me, you know?" She said. "Women who are ready, willing, and eager to fuck. Now, answer me honestly - do you think that me taking a couple of hot-and-ready babes to a party for the express purpose of having sex is wrong, or do you agree completely with the idea?"

"I agree completely." Rat agreed, overlapping Todd's "I certainly don't have a problem with it."

"Okay..." Kandi grinned. "Knowing that the hot, sexy girls I bring with me are supposed to fuck and suck guys, would you like to come to Brad's party?"

She got two enthusiastic answers in the affirmative.

"Great!" She said. "Now, I want each of you to read, aloud, the sheet of paper I'm going to give you, completely and without stopping for any reason - but...!"

Here, she held up one finger for emphasis, feeling the need to give the two men a final chance to escape. "But I only want you to read the sheet if you think a person who just happens to have a sexy female body should be completely willing not only to flaunt it in both how she moves and the way she dresses, but also if you firmly believe that person should also be willing to use her body and any sexual skills she might happen to have in order to sexually please men."

With that disclaimer said, Kandi handed over the sheets of paper with hands that trembled slightly, holding her breath.

Neither of the men hesitated for so much of a sentence. Todd was even grinning lewdly as he began reading his, still unaware that he was acting 'under orders'.

Even before each man reached the end of the first 'gibberish' sentence, Kandi relaxed, since neither man was the least bit capable of stopping what was to come - by their own choice, unknowing as it might have been.

After the end of the first sentence, each of the men was aware of something happening to them - and the farther they read, the more obvious it became. Horrified, their voices rose in pitch and volume, the eyes bulged and their hands shook - but no matter how hard they struggled to stop reading, neither man was capable of so much as hesitating as they continued the spells in hoarse, horrified - and, before long, feminine - voices.

Finally, they stopped reading, the changes finished...

"Holy shit!" The woman who had been Rat screamed in her new voice. "What the fuck did you do to us, bitch!"

"We're... we're fuckin' cunts!" The new Todd screamed the more-than-obvious, looking down at her new body in horror.

"That's right - and you've even 'bespelled' yourself with a host of new skills." Kandi replied. "Now, here's what's going to happen: I'm going to Brad's party now. As soon as I leave, each of you will chose a new, feminine name - first and last - that you think would fit with the new bodies you are in. You will then help each other choose clothing, jewelry, and make-up that you firmly believe would be exactly what a woman who looks like that person does would willingly decide to wear to a pool party with a bunch of horny guys around. Once you are ready, you will leave the apartment, and come directly to Brad's party - and, at all times, you will walk, talk, and act in all ways exactly the manner in which you believe the new woman you are should do so."

With that, Kandi turned and - conscious untroubled - headed out of the apartment.

CHAPTER SIX

Steven 'Rat' Lewis tried desperately to alter the angle of his motorbike just enough to send it - and the person on it - smashing into the upcoming bridge abutment.

No such luck. The bridge whipped passed overhead as she sat astride the vibrating motorcycle, guiding it towards the destination.

Her new body, ,feeling different in so many, ,many ways, was not properly dressed for the ride - and the wind blowing across her new body created new and disturbing sensations, some of which were, disgustingly, pleasant...

...as was the thrum and rumble of the motorcycle's seat against her new womanhood. The woman who Rat had become wanted to kill herself. If not herself, then at least Kandi.

Maybe, most of all, she wanted to kill Todd - or the woman she'd become. Because, 'who' she was now was a direct result of Todd's choices - and vice versa.

Helpless, unable to be anybody but the new woman she'd been instructed to be, she pulled the bike off the road and into Brad's packed driveway, tooling down the paved surface to the end, where she kicked the stand into position and climbed off.

Balancing with disgusting ease atop her heels, the new woman waited...

* * * * *

As the cab pulled into the driveway, the new woman Todd had become - unsuited in form or outfit to ride a motorcycle here - counted attempting to scream at the driver to turn around.

As for the past twelve minutes, no sound slipped past her smiling, lipstick-covered lips.

In fact, no sign of the murderous rage that filled the new woman showed on the surface. Instead, she seemed happy as she slid from the cab, , balancing without problem as she bent low - giving the driver a heart-stopping view - and paid the fair with a smile...

...and a small kiss on the cheek that made her create a mental note to track this guy down and kill him when it was all over.

Straightening, the new woman helplessly jiggled and swayed towards that damned traitorous bastard - bitch - who had chosen a new name and outfit for her, forcing her to act this role. Rat, whatever body he/she would be inhabiting at the time, was also on the 'quick death' list as soon as Todd was able to control her action.

The feel of her new bodies movements, ,so different then before, only served to drive her hate-filled rage higher. How dare anybody do this? Tarp her in a female body? Make her act like some... damned.. woman...?

Unable to so much as grit her teeth, she joined the new Rat, and they stepped to the gate into the back yard, where the voice of a dozen or so guys could be heard.

* * * * *

Unlatching the gate, she helplessly stepped through, struggling to stop being the very woman who she would have so desperately wanted to meet as a man. Even as she walked down the steps, hating what had been done to her and what was to happen, ,she couldn't help but admit to herself, no matter how angrily or disgustedly, that there was more then a certain measure of fairness in the punishment given her...

...and that made it harder to swallow then if it had been an unearned fate that she could have raged against without restraint.

'Fair' or not, she still desperately tried to break into a run and throw herself into the pool for a quick drowning, before the worst could happen...

...but that was what 'Rat' wanted. It wasn't even close to what 'she' would - and did - do; namely, step around the corner and onto the pool-side patio, in full view of the twelve handsome, fit young men lounging around and drinking.

All of whom fell dead silent at the sight of the two women standing at the foot of the steps.

Helplessly, she began walking towards them , the heel of her knee-high leather boots clacking on the concrete.

"Hi, there." She said in a rich, erotic voice. "My name's Rachel - Rachel DeRaunch. Is this a private party, or can anybody cum..."

She licked her lips to make sure nobody would miss the significance of her emphasis on the last word - and, it wasn't because she 'had' to, strictly speaking, but because it was what she wanted 'Rachel' to do - except, of course, she was trapped in that particular body...

Long, well-toned legs driving her in a sultry walk, the tall Latino woman with the massive man of dark hair slowly strutted forward, dark, long-lashed eyes sweeping across the men at crotch level. All of this was done after an instant's thought as to what 'Rachel' would do - that is, what Rat firmly and honestly believed a woman who looked exactly like Rachel would do. Not 'should' - 'would'.

Even as she helplessly did it, she knew it was because, in her own mind, she really did believe a woman like the one she'd become would willingly try to elicit oral sex from men, because a tall, sexy

Latino woman with big, firm DDD-cup breasts and the most amazingly full, sensuous pair of lips would, of course, more than just simply 'enjoy' giving blowjobs and slurping down loads of cum...

...among other sexual acts, of course.

Pausing - posing - in the center of the croup of men, she reached up and parted the leather jacket she wore, making sure the men got a good look at the firm spheres encased in her black spandex crop-top, while spreading her legs so that her ultra-short, ultra-tight jean shorts practically rode up into the crotch that was sopping wet.

Rachel was, of course, unbelievably horny at the moment.

Not 'acting unbelievably horny' - Rachel actually was incredibly turned on by the thought of sucking and fucking men. Again, because Rat thought any woman would be excited by the group of handsome men - and so, indeed, she was.

You could tell which men were which by where their eyes were slowly settling. Rachel, tall and toned, also sported an unbelievable ass that was also well-displayed by her three-quarter pose, and some men were eyeing her legs and ass...

...while others were looking elsewhere.

"God - and what's your name..." one of the guys looking in that direction asked.

* * * * *

The fact that the question was asked somewhat lower than of her face didn't even truly register on her, since that was exactly what she would have done - instead, she was fixing the man's face in her mind for later, bloody vengeance, even as she spoke:

"Hi, I'm Bambi Bubbles!" She announced in a high, bright soprano, followed by a giggle. "But you can just call me Boobies!"

She giggled again, the motion making the two freakishly huge tits thrust disgustingly from her chest jiggle again.

God, if only she could cut this monster mammary masses from her chest, so that she didn't have to feel those disgustingly wonderful waves of pleasure that came with ever slight movement!

Reaching, she flicked a lock of her massive mane of platinum-blond hair away from her face with one long, hot-pink nail, then giggled again.

"I betcha know why everybody calls me that!" She said, brightly, as she reached down and caressed the disgustingly firm medicine-balls sized masses of breast-flesh that strained the seams of the tiny, semi-transparent tube-top she wore. The same hot pink as her nails, lipstick, spandex mini-skirt and platform 'stripper' shoes, the tiny tube of cloth barely managed to cover - and definitely not conceal - her huge, thick, fully-engorged nipples, which she proceeded to squeeze between two fingers.

Her outward facade showed no sign of the near-collapse the what-she-once-would-have- considered-orgasmic pleasure that thundered through her new body, nor did it reveal the monumental disgust she felt at being forced to endure that feminine pleasure.

"I think I can figure it out..." The guy agreed, grinning, earning him another giggle. Oh, yes - any man who made her feel pleasure like that definitely deserved to die...

* * * * *

She couldn't stop herself. 'Rachel' didn't want to stop herself, as she slowly strutted sensuously towards the man who's crotch bulged the most prominently.

"Hey there, big boy..." She said, huskily, as she stared him right in the eyes, throat dry. "Aren't you going to offer me a drink...?"

"Uh, sure..." He said, blinking, extending the half-filled bottle of beer he was holding towards her.

Mentally, Rat shook her head at the man's density, even as her smile widened and she leaned forward, resting a hand one each of his thighs so that her thumbs met - and lightly squeezed - the bulge.

"I was hoping for something.... warmer and... saltier..." She said, still meeting her eyes. God, she was about to give a man a blowjob. She wanted to die in humiliation.

She wanted to be sucking a cock already, and hated the time wasted in having to arrange it... Thankfully/unfortunately, the guy wasn't nearly that slow. "Uh, where should we...?"

"Why go anywhere...?" Rachel asked.

Well, if were done, t'was best it were done quickly....

Licking her full lips again, slowly, she unzipped the man's pants, even as the two nearest men watched in amazed envy.

The man's cock sprang free, hard and throbbing despite the cooling night air. "My, my, what a tasty-looking treat to offer a lady..." Rachel said, hungrily...

...while she tried, with steadily less success, to find the difference between 'what Rat thought Rachel would do', 'what Rat wanted Rachel to do', and 'what Rat wanted Rat to do.'

Pleasure was thrumming through her, no matter what it's origin - and it, like all pleasure, felt good. She was feeling urges that she knew satisfying would bring more pleasure - and no part of her was fully capable of denying that.

Even as she sank to her knees, full lips parting, something was going on in her brain...

'Forced' Rachel was slipping away as a fascinated 'Rachel that Rat wanted to exist' slipped forward...

..and that 'Rachel' was merely a 'what if' scenario of Rat, and so, in fact, was Rat, more or less.

The head of the cock, ,so close, was oozing out a drop of pearly pre-cum, so ready was the man as Rachel's talented hands slipped around a cock that felt so warm, so wonderful in her grip.

Rachel quickly pushed her tongue out in a flicking motion - and pleasure assaulted her, 'as expected', at the taste of the man's warm, salty seed...

...and Steven eagerly clamped Rachel's lips around the cock's head, reveling in the intense, satisfying pleasure that came from filling her mouth with warm, hard cock.

'Oh, yes...!' Steven thought as he had Rachel moan in pleasure. 'This is how a woman like me should feel like when sucking cock - like she is fulfilling her very purpose in the universe!'

It was, of course, exactly what Steve fervently believed - so much so, that finding 'himself' in the body of a woman couldn't even begin to budge that belief...

..and so, as Steven embraced her new life as Rachel, not even noticing as she gave up any desire to ever become male again, it was because, in her deepest beliefs, she truly believed that she'd found a life that gave the sort of purpose and pleasure that no 'woman' could ever walk away from, regardless of her past.

Thanks to a strange confluence that had put her here, it also just so happened that anything she believed about this woman came to pass...

Eagerly, with all her mind and soul, Rachel began sucking the wonderful cock filling her mouth, unbelievably grateful that Kandi had thought to include skills for this in her new life. Her hand worked the base of the shaft and the man's balls like a virtuoso pianist would tickle the ivories, while lips and tongue played a symphony for ecstasy on the upper end of the shaft and the bulbous head.

It was ecstasy that was mutual, because Steven believed women like herself found sucking cock as completely satisfying as any other sort of sex - and, so, of course, she did.

She sucked. She licked. She squeezed. She caressed.

She worked with every ounce of skill she possessed to an end that was virtually predetermined...

...as the man gasped and began to pump what she believed a woman like her would find - and did find - indescribably tasty, the nectar of the gods, to be gulped down thankfully even as her body shuddered in orgasmic pleasure at being allow to have such a substance fill her just-barely-worthy body.

Carefully licking up ever single drop of the wonderful man-juice, she slowly eased back on her haunches.

"Thank you..." She said, honestly. "You have no idea how wonderful that was for me."

"I... kinda enjoyed it too..." the man managed, earning a snort of laughter from one of the other guys.

Smiling herself, Steven had Rachel's body rise up, swing around, and firmly plant her full, delightful ass on the man's lap. Leaning back, she rather unsubtly stuck one of the man's hands on her own crotch, while she put the other on one firm breast, moaning at the pleasure she would/should/did feel from a man's touch.

"While Big Boy's waiting to get hard again, so that he can fuck me good and hard..." She announced, "...who else wants a blow job?"

There was a stunned pause - and she blinked, ,smiled, and shifted slightly. "Guys, take my word for it - this is definitely a very limited time offer..."

As she paused to pick from the sudden rush of volunteers, Steve felt the cock stirring against Rachel's ass, and almost orgasmed at the very thought of how wonderful it must - and therefore, would - feel to be fucked as a woman.

* * * * *

"I like guys who like my Boobies!" Boobies said, jiggling closer to the man. "Men who like my beautiful titties get me all hot, and make me wanna fuck. Wanna play with my boobies, mister?"

Oh, shit - if only women weren't so stupid, she wouldn't have to be acting this way. It was all women's fault that she had to act just like any huge-breasted bimbo-looking woman would naturally act in a situation like this.

Okay, so every woman on the planet went on that 'to die' list - except, of course, for certain ones to be kept for their recreational value, though they'd be the 'right' type of women, the ones who fought against their disgusting desire for constant cock, and consequentially had to be forced into fucking and sucking, like and decent woman should.

"God, would I...!" The man exclaimed.

"Okay!" Boobies agreed like any full-fledge cum-crazed bimbo slut would, ,damned the luck. She all- but-threw herself on the man's lap, ripping her top off - what little of it there was - to allow unrestricted access to her disgustingly huge, horribly sensitive tits.

The man reached out with eager hands, filling them with as much as he could of her massive tits as he leaned forward and began to lick and nibble at her nipples, causing indescribable pleasure.

"Gee, mister, you're good at this!" Boobies giggled, mentally adding '..and because you're so good at causing intense waves of feminine pleasure to thunder through my body, I'll have to kill you'.

But, of course, she was completely unable to state this thought, as blatantly obvious as it was.

"God, you're getting me so horny!" She announced, brightly, wanting to rip the mans' ace off as she gently caressed the side of her own tits. "You wanna fuck now?"

The guy blinked, and for a second she held the hope that he might actually be man enough to do the right thing, and keep his cock away from a fellow-man-who-just-happened-to-be-trapped-in-a- bimbo-body...

...but the traitorous bastard didn't. "Uh, okay..."

"Goodie!" She cried, clapping her hands as contemplated the mass murder that was soon to come.

The man was sitting semi-reclined on chaise lounge - which was a good thing for him, as he very barely managed to yank down his swim-trunks and dispose the horribly erect cock he sported before she'd ripped off her skirt to reveal her sopping cunt, over which she didn't bother with underwear.

Shit - she was actually going to be fucked by a man, she thought as she all-but-threw herself towards the erect cock, pussy first...

She screamed in hideous joy as terrible, disgusting, horrifying pleasure thundered threw her body at just being impaled on the disgusting organ...

...and a horrifying thought filled her mind.

It was actually possible that she might orgasm.

It should have been ludicrous, of course. Any man worth his salt got his rock off fast enough so as not to make even a natural, real woman orgasm - yet, still, it seemed that...

...that...

...that she almost wanted to orgasm.

No, ,that was sick, she thought, as she arched her back and began to pump atop the man, the disgusting friction of cunt walls around cock creating a horrifying amount of pleasure - much more pleasure then was right.

Well, okay - she just had to bend every ounce of her trapped masculine will into not orgasming, that was all. She was ignore the fantastic pleasure she was feeling from eagerly fucking a guy's brains out, so eagerly and energetically that the man could do little but lay there and except it. As she rode him frantically, screaming in supposed joy and using the everywhere-else limp man's hands to fondle her own tits, she concentrated on thinking manly thoughts to ward off the impossible.

It should have been easy. After all, the curse only affected her actions, not her thoughts...

...and yet...

...pleasure kept creeping through! No. No, this couldn't be happening...

She redoubled her efforts, thinking about such masculine things as construction. Burly men with hammers, working hard. Muscles flexing as they pounded, harder and harder, pounding and pounding and...

No, no that wasn't the thing to be thinking of. Definitely not.

Under her out-of-control body, the man shivered and shook at the intense skill of her disgustingly exquisite cunt muscles, which were doing almost impossible things to his cock as she thrust herself on him, huge boobs bouncing and jiggling with each thrust - and creating more of that horribly feminine pleasure.

She had to concentrate...

Baseball. Ah, yes, a man's sport. The bat. The long, hard bat. The hard, round, unstoppable bat - and the white ball, hit, so fast it seemed like a streak, a stream of white coming from the hard shaft...

No, that wasn't good, either.

Listen to herself, she thought with disgust. Screaming and moaning in pleasure just because it felt fantastically fabulous to have some schmuck's cock creating instance waves of pleasure in her tight cunt as she frantically fucked him long and hard. It was disgusting - and disgustingly pleasurable, with waves of endless ecstasy rising towards...

Uh, oh, think fast, or...

Okay - Battleships. Battleships, the ultimate in guns. Think about that. While helplessly fucking this guy, blonde hair bouncing, huge tits swaying, think about the firing procedures of those death-dealing battleship guns.

Okay, yes - this would do it. What could reassert masculinity more quickly - and safely - than the procedures used to wipe entire towns of the map at ranges of up to twenty miles? It was perfect...

Okay, range. You elevate the barrel, the massive, thick steel barrels, rising upwards, into the sky...

Then the shell. The shell, rammed into the breech, rammed by inhuman power, by hydraulic machines.. rammed...

...rammed... Where was I..?

Okay, yeah - then powder. The powder, also rammed in...

...rammed in... Rammed in, ,hard...

Oh, God, oh God, no, hold on... Concentrate...

She struggled, on the edge of the terrible, terrible precipice - and, with sheer force of will managed to hold off, mentally begging for the damned man below her to finish as she forced her mind back to...

..the gun. The ready gun. The gun, which having be rammed, was ready...

..was ready...

...was ready to unleash itself...

..in...

...in a tremendous explosion...

...a tremendous explosion of...

...pure orgasmic energy!

She screamed. She screaming in mindless pleasure as the unwanted orgasm hit, overwhelming her with feminine pleasure, making her top-heavy new bimbo-body shudder and shake in it's grip, as the man dumped his damned seed into her a second too late.

She sighed in soft pleasure as she slumped atop him, having lost. She'd done the unthinkable, and let a man give her an orgasm.

Any real man would have been able to not orgasm, so, of course, she must not be a real man, but one who had secretly wanted to be fucked by men all this time, and hidden it because she didn't have a good body to attract all those faggots who she secretly wanted to fuck and suck all this time.

Well, having discovered the truth, she'd have to slit her own throat the instant she became male again, to keep herself from ever giving into those faggot tendencies she'd managed to so manfully keep at bay until now.

Of course, she didn't want to die, even if she was obviously a faggot, and so deserved it - but she'd just proven how weak she was, by letting a man actually give her an orgasm. In fact, being as weak as she was, she couldn't trust herself to do the right thing. All she was any good for now...

Well, as much as she hated it, as much as it would disgust her, she'd have to spend the rest of her life making sure to keep her female self constantly sexually satiated, so she'd never be tempted to become male again, and so denigrate the who male race by becoming another damned pansy.

Though a faggot weakling, she had enough strength ion her to do this for her true gender.

For the sake of her manhood, she'd have to force herself to be a nymphomaniac bimbo stripper- slut.

With her new-found convictions, it was an easy matter to push aside the weak, useless feminine persona, force her lips into what others would take as a warm, eager smile, and make herself ask in a high-pitched voice: "Anybody else wanna play with my wonderful boobies...?"

..and, taking every ounce of will she possessed, she forced herself to giggle mindlessly at the response.

CHAPTER SEVEN

Kandi slowly blinked, smiling into the darkness as she enjoyed the warm throbbing of her nipples and crotch. She slid her hand over to the other side of the big bed...

...and encountered nothing.

Yawning, she forced herself up on her slender elbows - and found the party's nominal host, standing at the window and watching the still-ongoing orgy in the dawning light.

"Mmmm... come back to bed, lover..." Kandi moaned.

The person who'd once been the star of the high-school football team continued watched the rest of the team screwing the new women - which prompted a thoughtful remark: "There's going to be an awful lot of explaining to do, sometime in the not-to-distant future. You do understand that, don't you?"

"Maybe, maybe not - I have some ideas..." Kandi said, evasively, thinking about her unaltered hacking abilities. "Why don't you forget about that and come back to bed..."

That earned a smile, and Kandi spread her arms - and legs - wide to accept her lover.

With a wicked smile on her own face, Brenda Dooguid rejoined her new lesbian lover in an embrace...

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: After her boyfriend ruins her romantic plans for the weekend by inviting his friends, she decides to use her magic powers to change him into a classic bimbo so his buddies can have someone to play with.

Cabin Fever

By Gunslinger

"You did what?"

The slender, sandy-haired youth winced at the incredulous anger in the voice of the golden blonde standing in front of him, hands on her hips and a glare in her large blue eyes. Beneath the summery floral-print dress she wore, her slender, athletic body was tense with anger.

"Look, Becky," Carl tried, holding his hands out in front of him in supplication. "You don't understand..."

Becky lifted a ginger in warning. "What I understand, Carl Vincent Beckworth,... (Carl winced - her use of all three names was a very bad sign) ...what I understand is that we were supposed to go up to the cabin this weekend for a romantic weekend - alone - and you invited these two guys to come up for the weekend as well. You've known these guys for, what less then a week? And you're screwing up the plans we've had for over two months now because of them!"

Rubbing his sweating palms on his cut-off denim shorts, Carl carefully advanced into even more dangerous territory. "Well, actually - I figured we could still have a romantic weekend, Becky. See, if you could talk Jenny and Lisa into coming up "

Becky's jaw dropped at Carl's audacity. "What? It's not bad enough that you invited those jerks up to the cabin, you want me to pimp for my friends, too?"

Carl sighed again. "Look, Steve and Dan aren't jerks. And I'm not asking you to pimp for anybody

- I just though you might want to invite a couple of friends to, um... 'distract' Steve and Dan "

"Oh, really?" Becky asked, her usually pleasant voice dripping with sarcasm. "Then why did you specifically name Jenny and Lisa? Jenny, maybe I could understand - but we both know that we can barely stand Lisa. So - why her?"

Carl blushed. "Well, um... you see... Steve likes women who are, um " He held his hands out in front of his chest.

Becky's glare could have melted the isothermic tiles of the Space Shuttle. "I see - because Lisa's double-D's make her my 'biggest' friend, you thought she should come to make your precious Steve happy." She snorted. "Nooooo, we're not pimping."

Carl knew that he was really in trouble. When Becky got mad, she screamed and yelled - but when she was truly enraged, she actually cooled, becoming sarcastic and sharp-tongued - like now.

"Look, um..." Carl thought fast. "If you don't want to come up this weekend, we'll go up together - alone - in a month or so. Then..."

"Oh - that's a good idea. Don't cancel on your friends - cancel on your girlfriend instead. Yeah - that really shows how much you care, you insensitive prick."

Gulp. "Look, Becky..."

"No - you look." Becky interrupted. "We've been seeing each other for more than a year now. When we first started, I knew that you could be selfish and insensitive - but it didn't seem to be that bad, and I thought maybe you could learn to actually care what I thought and felt."

"I.."

"Shut up!" Her voice was sharp with anger, and he closed his mouth with a snap. "All the things I did for you - changing the way I looked, losing some of those muscles - everything I did because I wanted you to like me, and this is what I get in return. A boyfriend who gets steadily more insensitive and selfish the longer we're together. I can't believe I gave up my old life because I thought you were the guy I was looking for."

Carl blinked, confused. "I... I don't underst "

"No, you don't." Becky interrupted. "Let me show you."

Turning on one sandal-clad heel, she stomped over to the sideboard, Carl watching with a confused look in his eye. Becky opened the drawer at the top and extracted a small wooden box with brass hardware. He'd always wondered about the box, which was locked, but Becky had always deflected any of his idly curious questions. Now, she used the small silver key she wore on her necklace to unlock the box.

"See this?" She asked, reaching into the box. She lifted out what was inside, an apparently very old necklace with a intricately carved pendant. It appeared to be solid gold, set with a small, green stone.

"Uh yeah." Carl said, wondering what the hell was going on - and where she'd gotten the necklace. It looked very old, and very valuable.

As if reading his mind, Becky said "This particular amulet has been handed down in my family, generation after generation. I got it about a year and a half ago - shortly before we started dating, as a matter of fact."

Taking off the necklace with the key on it, she settled the new necklace - the 'amulet', as she'd called it - around her neck.

Looking Carl straight in the eye, she said "Carl, you remember me the way I was, and understand what I did, and how."

It was like there was a painless explosion in his mind as knowledge flooded into his brain. "Oh.. my.. God " Carl said, shaken and stunned.

Now he remembered everything. For the past year or so, he'd thought that Becky and he had grown up in the same part of town, meeting each other occasionally and seeing each other in the classes they'd shared in collage - but they had never really looked at each other 'that way' until they'd both been dateless for the prom. After that night, they'd started seeing each other seriously.

And that was more or less what had really happened - but there was more to it than that. Because the Becky that had been before the prom had been taller, less attractive - tomboyish and sort of 'butch', with heavier muscles and a blockier figure. Although it seemed incredible, nobody had questioned the fact - or even seemed to notice - that one day Becky had simply, inexplicable become the attractive young woman who now stood in front of Carl, her eyes filled with anger.

Carl also now knew that the amulet was just that - a magical talisman, one of great power. One that had the ability to make whatever the wearer said come true. More than that, though, it actually altered history itself - or, at least, peoples recollection of it. Unless the bearer of the amulet specifically said otherwise, anything she changed would go unquestioned, as everybody would remember it as always being that way.

"Holy shit..." Carl said, shaking his head in disbelief - no, not in disbelief, because he had no choice but to belief it. He could now remember that he and Becky had been friends for years - but he'd always viewed her as almost one of his 'guy friends', until she'd inherited the amulet and used it to alter herself into the form she wore now, so that he'd see her as more than just a friend.

Now, the girl who'd had such a crush on him that she'd used magic to make herself more attractive for him was eyeing him narrowly. He felt a prickle of fear run down his spine, and quickly quashed it. The fact that he now knew that she held incredible power to do almost anything didn't mean that she was going to do anything - after all, they'd had fights before and she'd never...

Them suddenly, her expression changed, becoming a sly smile - and that fear nearly became full-blown panic.

"You know - you're right." She said, almost as if nothing had happened and she wasn't angry with him. There was an undeniable edge in her voice, though, that warned him. "I think we should go up to the cabin this weekend with Steve and Dan. Have some fun and relax."

"You.. you do?" Carl asked, cautiously. In that instant after she'd stated her 'wish', he'd understood that there was basically no limit to the power of the amulet, and her sudden change in demeanor was scaring the hell out of him - he'd been with her long enough to catch all the signs that said she'd made some sort of decision.

"Yes." She said, with a nod. "Yes - I think it would be a really good idea. Maybe you're right, and Steve and Dan aren't jerks. Maybe I'll find a new boyfriend during the weekend."

Carl sighed and relaxed a little. "I see - I guess that's your way of saying you never want to see me again, huh?"

She looked surprised. "Good lord, no. We're going to spend lots of time together - we're going to be the best of friends."

"We are?" Carl asked, confused.

She smiled. "Sure. After all, there's so much I like about you." Now Carl was really surprised. "There is?"

"Yes. You have such cute, slender little feet, for one."

Carl never got to find out what he would have said - because there was a sudden tingling sensation in his feet, and he gaped downwards. It was an exercise in futility, as he couldn't see his feet in his sneakers - but he could feel them, and suddenly his shoes felt loose on him as that strange tingling pressure faded away, leaving him with a nasty suspicion.

"Becky... what are you doing?" He asked, feeling a worm of panic coiling in his stomach.

She ignored the question. "And you always either go barefoot, or wear shoes with some sort of heel."

This time, Carl got to see what was happening. He watched, stunned, as his shoes began to writhe and change. The tongue of his sneakers slid downwards, darkening and thickening as they did so. At the same time, a hole appeared at the toes of the shoe and began to grow large, exposing toes that looked completely like the ones he'd had just a few minutes ago. The sole of the shoe began to change texture as the heels of his shoes began to push upwards.

In seconds, the tops of the shoes had vanished almost completely, having reformed into a leather band that crossed over the top of his foot, leaving his toes bare, before narrowing and wrapping around his ankles. From there, they ran down to the soles of the shoes - which now boasted a semi-cylindrical heel, about four inches in height. Thanks to her wording - he always wore shoes with heels - he had no problem balancing on the heels, and they felt disquietingly natural on his smaller, feminine feet.

No problem standing on them, physically, that was. Emotionally, he was having all sorts of trouble with this.

"Becky - this isn't funny." He said holding up his hands. "Just... just stop it, okay. Change my feet back. Right now."

She ignored this, too. "Your legs are so cute, too. Nice and shapely, kinda muscular, nicely tanned

- and you always keep them so silky smooth."

"No!" Carl protested - but it did no good, as he could feel his legs changing. A itching sensation accompanied his hair being drawn back into the pores of his legs, while he could feel the odd pressures and contractions as his legs reconfigured themselves, becoming athletically attractive, feminine legs with a golden tan and soft, flawless skin.

"Of course, you are that tanned and silky smooth all over, and blessed with the fact that you have almost no body hair." She continued. Even as he felt those changes taking place, Carl pleaded.

"Please - please stop. I'm sorry, Becky, I know I've been a bastard - but please, don't do this." He stepped towards her, arms out imploringly. He noticed that he moved easily and naturally atop the heels, and that the arms he held out were tanned and smooth, and he felt a wave of fear and hate mingle in him.

"You're just going to stand still and not move until I tell you you can." She told him - and in that instant, he found that it was true. He was completely unable to move - though he could still talk.

"Becky - please..."

"You also have one of the cutest asses I've ever seen - so firm and full." She told him - and, sure enough, he could feel his shorts grow tighter around his hips as his ass filled out, becoming firm and shapely, the now-taut denim hugging the perfect buttocks like a second skin.

"And you just have to wear tight and/or revealing clothes to show off that spectacular ass and nicely rounded athletic hips you have." She continued, inexorably.

"Please.. nooo..." Carl begged, near tears as his shorts and underwear changed. He couldn't see the underwear, but he could feel it shift and change, and could feel the way it become softer and silkier against his skin. Over the unseen underwear, his shorts tightened around his hips even as his hips became somewhat wider and nicely rounded. The shorts also became shorter, revealing more of his now tanned, shapely thighs.

"Becky, please - we can work this out... we can.. I can..." Carl begged, searching for something - anything - to say that would stop what she was doing. He had no doubt what she was planning to do - she was going to turn him into a woman, and he felt like screaming in horror, disgust and fear. But he fought down the panic and struggled to find the right words to end this nightmare.

Becky, however, didn't even seem to hear him as she continued on, that same small smile on her lips, and wicked gleam in her eyes.

"Of course, you also like wearing such tight clothes and silky panties because of how it feels against your tight, incredibly sensitive pussy with it's big clit."

"Oh, god... please..." Carl begged - and now tears ran down his face as he felt his manhood tingle and begin to recede, drawing itself back up into his body. He felt the opening reshaping itself, and disgustingly pleasurable sensations ran through his body from where the tight denim pushed the silky underwear tight across his incredibly sensitive new womanhood.

"You also have a slender waist and a flat stomach," Becky continued, mercilessly. "In fact, your entire figure is slender and firm, nice and athletic."

Carl was sobbing loudly now as the changes rippled over him. His waist drew inwards as his shoulders narrowed and his arms reshaped themselves. The changes spread over his body, giving him the figure of an athletic woman, and he cringed at each new sensation - like the one created as his nipples swelled outwards atop growing mounds of flesh that formed into firm, perky B-cup breasts, pressing against the fabric of the white T-shirt he wore.

"And you have such a cute voice - so melodic and sweet. It goes so well with your cute face with the big, brown eyes and full lips."

Even as he felt the changes in his face, his sobs rose in pitch as his vocal cords were changed in a neck that became longer and slimmer. Although he couldn't see his altered face, Becky was satisfied with it - it wasn't classically beautiful, with the nose a little large and the chin a little too square, but it was definitely cute, with full lips, huge, expressive doe-like eyes and long, fine lashed. His eyebrows were slightly thicker than most women's, but nicely curved.

"You have a soft, silky mane of straight hair that hangs halfway down your back, and you take good care of it - just as you don't wear much make up, but are meticulous about the lipstick and mascara you do use." Becky said to the sobbing... woman. Carl had lost it, and was just standing there, locking into position, tears running from her huge, dark eyes as she knew that she was now female in every sense of the word - and that Becky's careful phrasing was forcing her to act in new ways as well.

Becky tapped her finger on her lip thoughtfully. "You are wearing a nice, powder-blue tank top right now, and you always were as flattering clothing as you can in any given situation. Oh - and although you don't wear much fancy jewelry, you feel absolutely naked without earrings and a nice feminine watch or bracelet."

In an instant, that was what Carl was wearing.

Becky looked at the sobbing woman and shook her head. "Well - this isn't going to do." She said - then smiled wickedly.

"Your name is Carrie, not Carl. You remember everything that has happened, as do I - but everybody else remembers you as always having been Carrie. You can talk with me about this, but no one else - whenever there is anyone else near, you will be unable to mention this event.

Furthermore, you still have free will - but the farther from the part of a cheerful, friendly, easy-going young woman you act, the more painful a headache you will find yourself suffering."

Almost immediately, Carl - Carrie - stopped sobbing. It wasn't that he felt any better - it was the sudden blast of pain that would have sent her to her knees if not for the fact that she was still immobilized. By her wording, Becky was forcing Carrie to act out her part rather than simply changing her mind, and Carrie knew that she was meant to suffer the agony of having to play female. Now, she forced herself to put on a weak semblance of calm, fighting the other,

'Non-Carrie' urges she was feeling, fearing the return of that incredible pain.

"Becky.." She asked, forcing herself to keep her voice neutral. "Please. I'm sorry - but don't leave me like this. All I wanted to do was spend a weekend with a couple of new friends. I don't deserve this."

Becky looked shock. "But my dear - we are going to spend the weekend with your new friends. I've altered history, and as far as Steve and Dan are concerned, it was you - Carrie - who they met last week, and who invited them to spend the weekend at the cabin."

"No, please..." Carrie begged, fighting to stay 'in character', even though a middling-strong ache throbbed in her head. "Don't do this to me - I can't face Steve and Dan like this - as a woman. I can't."

"Oh - you know, that reminds me..." Becky said with a smirk. "Steve likes his women..." She made cupping motions with her hands in front of her chest.

"No! I beg..." Carrie cried - feeling an agonizing throb as she stepped too far out of character.

The pain was made worse by the fact that it was done in vain - Becky paid no attention. "You have the pair of tits that Steve would think are absolutely, positively perfect in every detail."

Carrie cried out once more as she felt a building pressure in her chest. As she looked down in horror, her blue tank-top pressed outwards, taut over the swelling mounds beneath. The clothing was actually growing with the breasts beneath, maintaining an even pressure as her chest swelled out and out... and out... and out....

"My," Becky remarked casually as Carrie's tits continued to swell, remaining impossibly firm as they filled out from perky rounded cones into round, heavy spheres that defied gravity as they raced upwards through the alphabet of cup sizes. "Steve has... interesting tastes "

By the time they stopped, Carrie's massive bust was the size of beach-balls - massive, firm spheres of golden tit-flesh, with just the hint of tan lines in the shape of a tiny bikini top, as if she tanned nude whenever possible and only wore the top when she had to. Topping the massive, unbelievable firm mounds were nipples that were absolutely huge, as long and thick around as her thumbs had been before her hands had become slimmer, daintier and more feminine. The dark nipples were perched atop equally dark aureole the size of silver dollars. The areola were domed, almost looking like her original tits atop the massive pair she sported now.

The breasts were amazingly heavy, and as they swelled Carrie had felt muscles in her back and shoulders becoming slightly larger and stronger to take up the weight. She also felt unbelievable sensitive, the huge, erect nipple that were clearly viable though the tank-top sending bolt of pleasure through her as they rubbed slightly against the material with every breath she took.

"Now, with tits that absolutely huge and obvious, you must act like you're proud of them, like you love having them looked at and admired, and like you enjoy them yourself." Becky said - and Carrie helpless found herself standing up straighter, pushing her chest out to emphasize it even as the tank-top she wore writhed and shrunk, forming into a blue spandex crop-top that clung to the bottom half of her amazing rack and rose until it just barely covered her massive nipples. Above that, the low neck-line displayed an awesome chasm of cleavage that seemed to rival the Grand Canyon for size and depth.

"Well, I think that just about does it - for now." Becky said, eyeing her 'creation'." And, since I don't want to distract from you - and, plus, I don't have to keep this weak little body to make you happy - I think... I look the way I should look according to my genetic heritage, and not only does everybody remember looking this way, but they all remember Carrie and I being best friends."

Becky's body shimmered, then quickly reformed into the heavier, stronger body that was her birthright. She stretched, enjoying the easy strength of her more masculine body, even if she'd had to trade some of her grace and looks for it.

"Becky, please... At least tell me why you're doing this to me. please." Carrie begged.

Becky looked at her disdainfully. "You know, my mama always warned me that men - all men - were nothing more than chauvinistic pigs. Now, she started telling me this when I was very young, before I had any interest in men, sexually. At the time, you were just a 'guy friend'. Then I got older, and started noticing guys - and so I thought 'hey, I like Carl a lot, I think I'll give it a try.' But you wouldn't have anything to do with me, not until I got the amulet and changed my looks." She spat. Literally - she spit on the floor in contempt. "I should have realized right then - I mean, all I changed was how I looked, and you were interested in me. God, Mama was right, you men are so shallow. All you really want from a woman is sex, and you don't care about a woman's feelings at all. Well, now that I know the truth, I think it's time for you to live the other side. You see, I never enjoyed the sex we had - I faked it to keep you happy. God, I was so stupid. Well, this weekend you can see what it feels like."

"What?" Carrie asked. Suddenly, the situation was worse - much worse. " You... you don't mean... I'm not going to..."

Becky laughed. "Yup. We're going up to that cabin tomorrow, and before we come back on Monday morning, you're going to have a first-hand taste of what I've had to put up with from you when you were just another horny guy thinking with your dick. I'm going to make sure you get laid."

Carrie was horrified, and opened her mouth....

"You are going to go to your room as soon as I'm done talking." Becky said before Carrie could speak. "You are going to undress and get into bed. You will fondle your tits, masturbate, then go into a deep, dreamless sleep that will last until I wake you in the morning."

"Please... Becky, you don't understand..." Carrie said as her legs helplessly carried her towards her bedroom. "Your mom was bitter about men - we're not like that, really..." Then she was stepping into her room and closing the door, and it was too late to try and change Becky's mind.

As she crossed the room to the bed, she saw that it was indeed 'her' room, and not 'his' room - the entire room was different, redecorated in a feminine manner, but not overly so. In short, it was the perfect room for the type of woman she'd become.

However, she noticed this only in passing, as she was engaged in a struggle to stop herself from doing what she'd been told. She put all her will into stopping her fingers from sliding down the zipper she held the massive spandex top in place - and failed, as her slender fingers unzipped the crop-top and pulled it away from her massive, firm tits. The cool air of the room hit the already huge nipples, making them fully - almost painfully - engorged.

Her attempt to stop herself from kicking off the shoes was half-hearted and doomed to failure before she started - but her attempt to keep herself from sliding the shorts and underwear off was full-fledged.

Not that did any good. The only 'benefit' she got from the attempt was that she finally got to see the underwear whose close relatives she was doomed to wear - a pair of white silk thong panties.

Then she was lying down on the bed and clicking off the light. Desperately, she tried to stop herself from what came next...

Slowly, her hands slid over her body in the darkness, moving to the massive tits that graced her slender new ribcage. Even laying down, the massive globes barely flattened under gravity, remaining 'proudly' out thrust. Helplessly, Carrie slid her hands over the massive, smooth expanse of her gigantic tits. Each one of her tits was bigger than her own head, and her hands couldn't come close to covering the whole expanse of even one of the massive, firm mounds. She shivered under the sensation that her helplessly questing hands created as they moved across the silky smooth surface of her tanned breasts, moving with slow, erotic purpose.

Then her fingers touched her nipples, and she stiffened, biting her full lower lip lightly between her perfect teeth as bolts of pleasure emanated from her huge, swollen nipples. Helplessly, her fingers began to lightly squeeze and caress the sensitive, engorged nubs, making her shudder in strange mixture of physical pleasure and emotional pain.

Then, her left hand continued to massage and caress her massive endowment as her right hand slowly slid downwards, crossing her flat, smooth stomach. She felt the short, wiry hairs of her neatly trimmed pubic hair under her fingers as she helplessly moved closer and closer to the genitalia Becky had cursed her with - and then the flat of her hand was sliding across the sensitive outer lips of her new cunt, which became moist in an incredibly short span of time as tiny tendrils of pleasure wormed their way up her neural pathways from her new sex.

Then she slid on slender finger deep inside, and made a muffled sound as the sensations became anything but tentative.

Her clit was huge compared to most women's, and incredibly sensitive. Carrie unwilling bucked her hips in pleasure as her finger was joined by a second one, sliding back and forth in her hot, wet new cunt. Her belly felt like it was full of liquid fire, she was so hot and wet, and the unwanted pleasure was coming sharp and quick as her fingers began to move with unnerving skill over the intensely aroused flesh of her inner womanhood.

Her fingers began moving faster, touching all the right spots at the right time, and creating sensations both similar and dissimilar from what male masturbation created. She tossed her head back and forth, the hand on her massive tits now tweaking one huge nipple in unconscious syncopation with the fingers plunging in and out of her cunt.

The Carrie experienced her first orgasm as a woman.

Though she had no way of knowing, it was fairly weak - but it felt more than strong enough to her, the intense, erotic pleasure rampaging through her body, exaggerated by the pleasure she was drawing from her massive endowments. For an instant, she lost control of her body in a spasm, writhing uncontrollably as the pleasure of the orgasm overrode any commands that she might send down the nerve network - not that she had any control even before the orgasm.

She cried out, overwhelmed - and disgusted - but the intense pleasure of masturbating her new cunt. Then, almost at the exact instant that the orgasm subsided, she felt a great weariness descend over her, and she had just enough to slip her juice-sodden finger from her cunt before she fell into a deep, dreamless sleep.

* * * * *

When Steve's Jeep YJ pulled to a stop in front of the cabin in the late afternoon of the next day, Friday, the door to the log structure flew open and Carrie bounded out.

Her massive tits bounced as she flew down the steps. The tiny white bikini she wore barely covered her massive nipples, much less anything else of her gigantic globes, and did nothing to restrain their movement. The muscles of her spectacular ass moved under the tight black spandex bike shorts she wore, and she moved almost soundlessly across the boards in her bare feet.

Soundlessly, that is, if she hadn't been shouting "Dan! Steve! Oh, I'm glad you made it!" as she dashed down the steps.

She went to Steve first. Practically jumping on the muscular, black-haired man, she shoved her huge tits against his tanned, rock-hard chest and hugged him enthusiastically. She then repeated the process with Dan, a slightly shorter by equally muscular brunet.

Of course, none of this was by choice - Becky had said she should do it, and so she did. Now she led the two men towards the door of the cabin, where Becky watched with a small smile.

"Hi, I'm Becky." She replied in answer to the men's introductions. "I'm going to be staying here this weekend too. Since Carrie's here though, you guys won't even be interested in me - hell, I'll just be 'one of the guys' compared to Carrie here."

She said it in a light tone of voice, and the guys laughed - but that didn't change the fact that at that instant, any interest they might have had in Becky died quickly and painlessly.

They unpacked, with Carrie helping, 'inadvertently' giving the guys great views of her ass when she bent over, of magnificent views of her cleavage. She also 'accidentally' brushed those huge tits against the men's chests several times, and there were a few times when she brushed through a doorway with her firm, spectacular ass pressed into the men's crotches 'by mistake'. In fact, if it weren't for her innocent, nearly naïve demeanor and artless actions, it would have been as if her every move was calculated to arouse the men.

Of course, that just what was happening - but it wasn't Carrie's calculations. If she had her choice, she'd be a man again - and forcing Becky to do this, in revenge. Baring that, she'd settle for sitting in a dark corner, alone, screaming and sobbing over what was being done to her. But, thanks to Becky's careful planning and commands, she did it all with a bright, chipper smile and a sweet voice, her exterior never betraying the horror, disgust, anger and shame that roiled beneath.

Carrie then 'happily' prepared dinner, after which she 'voluntarily' cleared the table and did the dishes. Both men made an early attempt to talk her into letting them help, but a word or two from Becky and they not only stopped, but decided that what was being done was woman's work anyway, and Carrie was a 'good' woman for being so willing and eager to do 'her' work. As Carrie slaved over the dirty dishes in the kitchen, Becky and the guys in the other room sipping drinks and chatting, she wondered if Becky realized that she was turning two fairly nice, more than usually gallant men into the sexist, shallow 'pigs' she claimed to detest.

Considering what she'd done to her, Carrie decided, Becky simply couldn't tell the difference between the two types of men.

It was only after the last plate had been dried and put away and the guys beers replaced that Carrie was finally allowed to sit down with them in the living room. A fire crackled in the hearth, and outside the small windows darkness was just claiming the last of the sky.

"So, Carrie." Becky said with that certain grin that, by now, Carrie had come to dread. "I was just saying to the guys... You want to go skinny-dipping in the lake tonight. You seem to enjoy swimming nude - especially if there's men to keep you company."

"Yes, it's fun. You guys gonna join me?" Carrie giggled helplessly, seething. Becky was so damned insidious, picking her words with such damned care. Not 'you enjoy', which would have made it so that she would really enjoy it, not realizing that she should be disgusted - but 'you seem to enjoy', which meant she'd be helplessly forced to act as if she was having fun, regardless of how she really felt.

Before either of the men could answer, Becky did it for them. "They'd love to join you in a night-time skinny-dip. In fact - they're getting all horny just thinking about it. Right, Guys?"

"Ohhhhhh, yeah." Steve said, leering at Carrie. When he'd arrived four and a half hours ago, he would never have been that lewd or crude - now, he (and everyone else in the world aside from Carrie) thought he'd always been like this. Likewise Dan, who threw her an exaggerated wink.

That's how Carrie found herself leading the two men down to the beach, following Becky's instructions to wear a pair of sandals with five inch heels and put an extra 'oomph' into her walk, making her spectacular ass jiggle and sway enticingly.

"So, guys - let's get naked and wet..." Carrie said with a giggle. "Can one of you help me with this?" She thrust her massive chest out further, feeling disgust as the guys practically fought at the chance.

It was Steve who 'won'. With a leering smile, he pulled her to himself, her huge tits squashed up against him as he reached around behind her to untie the thin strings of the bikini. Since he was holding her, he bent his head down, his leering lips closing on hers...

...and thanks to some pretty specific instructions from Becky, when Steve kissed her, she kissed back passionately.

Inside, Carrie wanted to knee Steve in the ball - or vomit. She did neither, giving every indication of enjoying the long, hard kiss. Truth was, she wouldn't have enjoyed it even if she really was a woman - thanks to the long talk Becky had had with the guys while she'd worked, the kiss was just short of brutal as Steve - who now viewed women as little more than bodies for his pleasure - kissed her for his own pleasure, not hers.

When the odious task was done, Steve stepped back, letting her top flutter to the ground. Still leering, his hands rose to her massive, naked tits and cupped the roughly, his thumbs flicking across her massive, engorged nipples. She moaned at the sensation, in part because of Becky's instructions, and in part due to the actual physical pleasure it generated.

Then Steve stepped away. Helplessly, Carrie smiled at Dan. "Help me with my shorts?"

Dan didn't argue, stepping up to her with a clarity and sliding her tight spandex shorts down her long, shapely legs - and grabbing the chance to fondle her ass, creating disturbingly pleasurable sensations, even if they weren't nearly as physically enjoyable as the ones her breasts gave her. Still, it did generate the same amount of inexpressible disgust, which she helplessly smiled and giggled through.

Then she slowly and teasingly helped the men undress, revealing their hard, tanned bodies to the cool air and moonlight.

"Wow, guys." Becky said from the little hillock where she sat, watching. "You guys must be proud of having such absolutely massive cocks."

Carrie blanched, mentally, her eyes going to Steve and Dan's crotches. She watched in horror as their semi-hard cocks swelled in length and girth as the men stood, unaware of anything changing. Within seconds, both men had cock that were easily eight or nine inches across. Dan's was slightly longer, but of a thickness that merely matched its extended length. Steve's, on the other hand, was remarkably thick, even for its length.

"Geez - and huge balls, too." Was Becky's next comment. "You guys must generate amazing amounts of cum."

"Yeah - chicks love it, too." Dan said with a grin. Since Becky hadn't 'cued them in', they had no idea anything was different - as far as they were concerned, they'd always had massive cocks.

Despite the conditions of the next twenty minutes or so, Carrie viewed it as a reprieve from what was sure to come. She frolicked in the water of the lake, the two men chasing her vigorously.

When they caught her, they tossed her - none-too-gently - into the surf and pawed at her while kissing her, then she'd 'escape' and the chase would be on again. As disgusting-yet-pleasurable as it was, it was a sight better than the inevitable that loomed ahead.

Then the reprieve was over, and Carrie was laying on the beach, a naked man with a huge, erect cock on either side of her.

Steve started it, rolling onto his side, she reached over and began to caress one massive boob with one hand, while the other slowly slid up and down her inner thigh. Slowly, he lowered his head to her tit and began to nibble and suck on her huge, cold-engorged nipples.

The pleasure Carrie felt from the action was incredible - as was the inner disgust.

Both doubled as Dan joined in on her other tit, his free hand tracing patterns on her flat, hard stomach.

"God, you've got fantastic tits, babe." Steve whispered. Carrie was horrified to find herself disappointed when his lips came away from her nipple - it had felt sooo good...

Then Steve pushed Dan's hands away and swung his body around. Before Carrie was even sure what was going on, she was sitting astride her torso, his massive cock laying in the awesome valley of her cleavage.

"Push those babies around this monster, Carrie. I'm gonna give you the tit-fucking of a lifetime."

Carrie wanted to scream. Instead, she smiled, giggled - and pushed her massive mounds together, enclosing Steve's huge cock.

She had no choice but to smile and lay there, making little encouraging comments as Steve began to tit-fuck her, his wet cock rapidly sliding back and forth in her wet cleavage. She actually got more pleasure from having her hands on her tits than she did from Steve's actions, but that was okay with her - she didn't want to enjoy being tit-fucked.

In fairly short order, Steve's thrusts became spasmodic, and his face screwed up in an odd expression - in he came...

..and came...

..and came.

It seemed like the flood of warm, sticky cum was never ending. There was so much of the thick, gooey sperm that he looked like he was pissing white as the stream of cum splattered over her massive tits, startled face and sandy blonde hair. In seconds, she was coated in the viscous liquid, with stream of it running down the sides of her mammoth tits and across the plains of her face.

When her tongue snuck out and licked it off her lips, providing her with her first taste of salty, warm cum, she wanted to vomit.

Instead, she smiled. "Mmm " She moaned, turning to look at Dan. "That's good - and I want some more. Can I suck your cock, big boy?" Dan, needless to say, had no problem with that.

As she kneeled in front o Dan, humiliation and horror running through her body, Carrie tried to escape what was about to happen> The lake lay only a few feet away, and if she could just overcome what Becky had told her to do, she could run into the embrace of the cold water and take a few deep breaths of it's darks coolness and end this nightmare once and for all.

Instead, she smiled at Dan, licked her lips - and slid her mouth on his cock.

His cock was huge, and she could barely get it into her mouth - taking it's whole length was simply impossible. Instead, she had to 'settle' with licking and sucking on the warm, throbbing head while her slender hands began to work up and down the shaft. She moved her head in time with her hands, bobbing slightly on the end of the massive member that filled her mouth as she used skills wished into existence by Becky to suck Dan of like an expert. She used her tongue and her hands and her lips, plus a little suction and a lot of saliva, and worked on making him last as long as possible - while all she really wished is that she wasn't doing it at all. But she had no choice, and no matter how skillfully she worked at holding off his orgasm, it had to come sooner or later.

When it did, she thought she'd gotten her wish and was going to drown to death after all - only in cum instead of water.

She barely tasted the first rush of the cum, as it shot straight down her throat in a hot, thick stream. It continued to gush, faster than she could swallow, spilling out the sides of her mouth and onto her already cum-covered tits. She pulled back, the still gushing cock coming out of her mouth with a wet 'plop', and let the cum gush straight into her face as she frantically swallowed at it, trying to get as much as possible - even though she wanted to vomit it back up even as it went down, warm and slick and salty.

When Dan finally stopped cumming, her blonde hair was slicked down to her head, and drops of cum fell from her face like a thick rain.

"Opps - I seem to have made a bit of a mess." Carrie giggled helplessly. "Hang on - I'll get cleaned up."

Trotting down to the lake, she submerged herself in it and cleaned the cum that soaked her body. While she was under the surface, she knew this was her best chance, and struggled with all she had to just open her mouth....

"Okay guys, back to the cabin to warm up." She giggled as she emerged from the waters. Inside, she was crying and screaming in rage, humiliation and disgust - she'd just given a guy a blow-job!

She was also certain that it wouldn't be the last time.

Slipping on just the shoes, she left her scanty clothing where it lay and walked towards the cabin, ass swaying inviting as the men followed after, practically drooling. Becky followed at the rear, a shit-eating grin on her face.

Entering the cabin, Dan grabbed her with leer. "Baby, your ass got me all hot on the walk up here, and now I'm as hard as a rock again." He gestured at his massive, throbbing tool. "What are you going to do about it?"

Horried, Carrie heard the words drop from her lips. "Well, since it's my ass that got you hard, why don't you fuck it good and hard to teach it a lesson." With a smile that hid her unheard screams, she bent over a chair, hands on the arms of the chair and ass stuck out invitingly.

Dan took the invitation.

Without any preparation, he stepped behind her and shoved his massive cock into her.

She felt like she was being split in to by a burning met I-beam as he slammed into her, wrapping his hands around her waist for leverage. He began to piston in and out of her ass, face screwed up as he drove painfully into the tight confines of her virgin orifice.

"oh... baby.. you're so tight..' he gasped.

"And you're so big..." She gasped in simulated ecstasy as the agony sheared through her. "Do me harder, stud. Make me your bitch!"

Dan complied, driving his massive member harder and deeper into her. Inside, she was screaming and gibbering, her mind actually losing touch with reality once or twice, actually driven over the brink by the agony and humiliation - but Becky had foreseen this possibility, and had locked even that escape away from her, and her mind always returned after only an instant of blessed insanity.

Finally, Dan came and withdrew his shit-smeared cock, cum dribbling down her legs. Before she could do anything other than mentally revel in the cessation of agony, Steve grabbed her and roughly threw her to the floor, pointedly ignoring the loud 'thock' as her head met the boards of the cabin's floor.

"Your pussy got me hard, bitch." He said with a wicked smile - and literally dropped on her, impaling her with his huge cock.

There was almost no pleasure in for her as he fucked her had an fast. He didn't give a rat's ass about her pleasure and didn't care if he hurt her. She was shocked to discover herself longing for the pleasure of masturbation compared to the semi-rape she was receiving now - but she screamed and begged and encouraged as if in the throws of ecstasy, simulating a massive orgasm as Steve came, filling her cunt with a spray of cum that filled her to capacity and beyond.

Dan was waiting, his shit-smeared cock already hard again.

"Lick this clean, bitch - and while you're at it, you can suck me off again."

Despite the pain in both her ass and cunt, she moved with agility to her knees, and authentic looking smile on her face as she bent her head and began her work.

It wasn't until later - much, much later, after she'd been fucked again and again in every conceivable position - that she was able to express anything of her true feelings. They guys had gone off to bed, and she was alone in the living room, where she'd been ordered by Dan to sleep so that he could have her bed all to himself.

Laying on the couch, she could finally curl up into a ball, her body bruised, battered and aching, and cry. But she cried silently, unable to scream or sob, or make any other noise that might be heard by the guys.

She cried herself to sleep after a long, long time.

And was awoken a few hours later by being shoved, half asleep, onto the floor so that Dan (who'd won the coin-toss), could get in the first fuck of the morning...

* * * * *

Carrie stood at the door of the cabin and watched as Dan and Steve packed the last of their gear and turned to say good bye to the woman they'd spend the weekend fucking nearly endlessly.

Just as Steve opened his mouth, Becky said "Now."

It was obvious that she'd made the wish ahead of time - i.e. 'When I say 'now' I want the following to happen'. So, with that one word, everything changed.

"Thanks for having us up here, Carrie." Steffi said, waving her hand. The action caused her massive tits - even bigger than Carrie's - to jiggle and sway under the black T-shirt she wore. The slightly hefty woman was smiling broadly, obviously having enjoyed a weekend that she remembered as being full of none-stop sex with guys from the local town. Hell it wasn't hard for a girl with tits like her to get fucked, which was great - she loved getting fucked, and she'd always loved her huge tits. She fished the keys out of her tight jeans - then frowned slightly, wondering what she was doing with them. After all, her tits were so huge that she couldn't possibly drive - she wasn't be able to reach the steering wheel or see the gauges...

Then she remembered she'd grabbed them to turn on the Jeep's radio while they loaded it up. Shaking her head, she tossed the keys to her best friend, Dana.

"We'll have to do this again sometime." Dana told Carrie in her incredibly rich, erotic voice - the one that made her so much money as a lounge singer. Of course, the slender brunettes unbelievably long, sexy legs beneath her trademark black leather miniskirts didn't hurt either. "See you later."

Carrie smiled and waved as the two new women hopped into the Jeep and pulled away. The instant they were out of sight and earshot, Carrie and Becky were alone enough that Carrie could be herself again.

She promptly vomited, barely missing her shoes.

"You... you... bitch!" She grated out, fighting against the raging headache that was forming. "What you did to me was bad enough - but why them?"

"Becky shrugged. "I was done with them. Once they'd served their purpose, I saw no need to leave such pigs to walk the earth and trouble other women."

"But.. you... made them... that way..." Carrie barely managed to force the words out through clenched teeth, her head feeling like it was going to explode.

"No - I just brought to the surface the real them." Becky said, off hand. "Come on and get packed - you're expected back at work."

"What?" Carrie asked, the pain subsiding now that she wasn't acting conspicuously out of character.

"You are a world famous porn star, after all." Becky said with a wicked grin.

And, with a sinking feeling, Carrie knew that the nightmare had only just begun....

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: Going to a party dressed as a famous actress from the 30', one man suddenly finds that he is transformed into her when he reads from her diary.

Cameo Appearance

By Gunslinger

"God, I feel like such an idiot..." Pete said, tugging awkwardly at his clothing.

"If it's any consolation," Dave said, smirking, "You look like an idiot, too - April." "Thanks just too much." Pete shot back, voice dripping with sarcasm.

Teetering atop the slender, five-inch tall heels of the hot-pink pumps his broad feet were crammed into, Pete slowly made his way across the room, one evening-gloved hand trailing lightly across the decaying wallpaper to maintain his unstable sense of balance.

"God, I need a drink." Pete said, easing his body down in the dusty armchair near the blazing fireplace and holding a hand out in the direction of the broad-shouldered man in the other seat. "Gimme a rum and coke, would you Jeff?"

Tipping back the big white Stetson he wore, the other young man looked puzzled. "Well, I don't know if you should have another drink, ma'am, if it's done affected your voice and memory like that. Wah-haw."

Pete rolled his eyes.

"Sorry, John. Can I have a rum and coke, please?" Pete asked in a falsetto voice.

"Sure thing, Ma'am. Wah-haw." Jeff agreed in his really quite bad 'John Wayne' impersonation. Self-designated bartender at the Halloween party he'd arranged, the broad-shouldered young man turned to the 'bar' set up on a tea trolley next to the chair he'd ensconced himself in, and set about mixing up the requested drink.

Tugging the top of his hot-pink strapless sheath dress higher on his hairy chest, Pete looked around the dusty, decaying room, eyeing the nearly two dozen young Southern Californians invited to the exclusive Hollywood party.

'Hollywood' in more than just location.

Every single man and woman was 'in character' as a classic star of the silver screen. More than just 'in costume', each one had to play the role of the character they'd been assigned, answering to the star's name and doing their level best to portray the actor or actress' own personal quirks.

For the most part, it was obvious that the party was a big hit - but a few people looked more than a little uncomfortable.

People like Pete who, thanks to the 'random draw' for the silver-screen star they'd be playing, ended up with a character of the 'wrong' gender.

Not all that oddly, the few people looking uncomfortable were all guys who were forced to play the female role. The women at the party who were playing male characters seemed to be enjoying themselves - and the plight of their male counterparts even more.

For Pete, his own cross-dressed role was even more uncomfortable for most - because he couldn't just fade into the shadows of the party. After all, he was the 'hostess'...

It all came about because the location 'John Wayne' had chosen for the party was the property he'd just bought at an estate auction. The home of April East, famous blonde sex-symbol of the 30's and 40's.

It was April East that Pete had drawn as a character to play at the party, and so he was the designated 'hostess' since it was being held in 'her' house - meaning she had to play the role of hostess, the way April would have done it.

"Say, uh, Miss, East, um..." A new voice broke in, a credible imitation of Jimmy Stewart provided by a young lady who was only barely managing to hide her smile as she held a slim, dust-covered book out towards 'April'. "I'm a big, big fan, and I was, uh.. that is, I was hoping you might read for use, something from your diary. If you wouldn't mind."

Startled, Peter looked at the book 'Jimmy' held - and was amazed to find that it was, indeed, April East's own diary.

Peter had known that the house was still filled with all the furniture and miscellaneous items left behind when the starlet he was portraying had died last year in obscurity - but he would have thought anything as intensely personal as a diary would have been picked up by somebody, either out of a sense of propriety or, at the very least, financial gain.

"Oh, yes, Miss East - wouldn't you?" 'Shirley Temple' begged. Another cross-dressed man, 'she' was obviously enjoying the discomfort evinced by 'April' by being put center stage.

"I don't know. It would feel like invading her privacy..." Peter tried to demur. "You mean your privacy, don't you?" 'John Wayne' asked.

Making a face, 'April' sighed and nodded.

"All right..." 'She' gave into peer pressure, hesitantly taking the dusty old diary out of the other woman's hand.

Slowly, 'April' undid the small clasp holding the leather-bound little book closed, and opening the yellow pages to the flyleaf. "The Personal Diary of Brenda Mae Cudahy..." 'She' read aloud.

"That was April's - 'your' real name, before you took the stage name 'April East'." One of the know-it-all types, dressed up as Humphery Bogart, said. "It's, uh, your diary, all right."

"Yeah." 'April' agreed, still feeling like 'she' was invading the dead starlet's privacy. Nervously, she flipped to the first entry.

"August 7th, 1938." 'She' read. "Well, the bus is just pulling away from the station, and my heart's beating so hard that I feel like it's just going to explode out of my chest! I can't believe I'm really doing it. I'm going to California! Oh, how I hope I can make it in the motion pictures. I've tried so very, very hard to learn my acting - but I'm just a 'plain Jane' farm-girl from Ottumwa, Iowa, not as pretty as Mary Pickford or..."

"Wait, wait..." 'Jimmy Stewart' interrupted. "Are you sure you're reading it right?" "That's what it says here." 'April' protested, gesturing at the book.

"Strange." 'Bogart' mused. "Well, go on..."

"...Mary Pickford or Donna Little. I just hope I'm talented enough to make it as a comedic actress, where being a skinny little bean-pole can actually be an asset. God knows I could never make it as a leading lady - who could believe in men like Grant or Raines vying for an attention of a funny-looking little girl like me?"

"This can't be right!" Somebody complained. "April East, the 'Curves with Verve'? Describing herself as a 'bean-pole'? Come on!"

"Hang on - I'll flip further on..." 'April' said, frowning. 'She' flipped randomly through the diary, settling on a page about halfway through, then picked up reading.

"February 21st, 1940. I still can't get used to my new life! My new body, strangely, is the easiest thing to get used to, since it seems to know just what to do all on it's own. It's these new desires, these new... needs of my new body that still continue to shock and amaze me. It's like all I ever think about anymore is sex! Every minute of every day, the thoughts consume me... and I'm enjoying it! Not just enjoying the thoughts... but the actions. It's not that I can't stop myself... it's that I don't want to stop myself! It just feels so good to seduce a man, to feel his hands on my new, curvaceous body, and..."

"Hold it!" Bogart said, angrily. "What is this, some sort of hoax? 'New body'? What the hell is that supposed to mean?" "I'm just reading what it says here!" 'April' protested.

"Maybe she'd had plastic surgery or something. Go back a bit." 'Cary Grant' suggested. "See if you can't find some sort of explanation, or something."

"Okay, okay..." 'April' said, flipping back through the book. "Let's see..."

"October 31st, 1939. I guess there's something about those rumors after all. Everybody says that, before it was a boarding house, this mansion used to belong to a woman named June North, a famous burlesque 'strip tease' artist fifty or sixty years ago, when this was all 'gold rush' boom area. Apparently, she was famous for more than her extraordinary figure, and her arousing dancing at the local saloon. Her promiscuity is equally as famous. Well, I know there really was such a woman, since there's old posters for her - and, today, I was cleaning the attic, and found some very abbreviated costumes obviously designed for a rather... full-figured woman. I've decided to wear one of them as a costume for tonight's party - though I don't even come close to filling it out, of course. Still, I feel really naughty wearing such a skimpy costume... but the little cameo necklace I found that goes with it is actually quite nice..."

'April' paused, one gloved hand almost unconsciously rising to touch the cameo led tight to 'her' neck by a pink silk ribbon. "It goes on..." 'She' said. "In a slightly shaking hand, with a different pen."

"I can't believe it! I... I'm gorgeous! Something happened when I was getting ready for the party tonight. I was putting the cameo on, and it opened up and an old piece of paper fell out - and, without thinking about it, I read the words out loud. Then, as soon as I said the words 'Ellatus amorphous nymphus mea'..."

'April' broke off 'her' reading - because it felt as if an electric shock had run through 'her'. 'She' suddenly sat bolt upright in the chair, gasp ripped from 'her' lips as the book tumbled from suddenly senseless fingers.

"Oh, very funny..." 'Wayne' started, in annoyance - and then he, too, sat bolt upright in his chair and stared wide-eyed at the person in the chair opposite - as 'she' began to change.

'She' began moaning - not in pain, but in pleasure, making it obvious that what was happening to her was pleasurable. She was shivering in what must have been delight, given the sounds coming from her throat - sounds that became steadily more feminine.

As did her body. Abundantly so.

The dress Peter had worn wasn't just a costume - it was one of April's own dresses, taken from the bedroom closet. It had been very poorly fitting indeed - but it became steadily less so as the body within it configured itself more and more to the dress itself.

The waist straining against the fabric, almost to the point of tearing it, shrank inwards on itself - while the hips and bust swelled outwards towards the limits the dress had been designed for. Shoulders and arms, rapidly shedding hair and muscle mass with equal abandon, trended rapidly towards the feminine ideals, even as the wig of platinum-blond curls fell off her head, driven away by the real and 'natural' blonde curls now rapidly sprouting outwards from her scalp.

Under the makeup she wore, her features reshaped themselves into ones more suited to the coloring applied to them, from full lips to long-lashed eyes above high, well-defined cheekbones.

The calves and ankles of the legs displayed by the tight, knee-length pencil skirt shed their hair as becoming smoothed and more shapely, and the feet crammed into the high-heeled pumps became less cramped as they shrunk to fit.

Within the space of a just over two minutes, the person filling out the 'costume' was the one whose body had been the template for the outfit to begin with.

Sitting in the chair, staring down at the firm, full breasts now amply filling out the tailored top to perfection, the woman was the perfect spitting image of April East.

The hushed silence that had filled the room after the initial outbursts of shock and amazement seemed only to deepen as the new woman slowly took stock of her new figure - a pneumatic figure made famous prior and during World War II by movie after movie that unashamedly focused on the buxom blonde bombshell's 'attributes'.

"Puh.. Peter?" 'John Wayne' managed, his voice a half pitch higher than usual as he gasped at the stunning, curvaceous woman hesitantly running her gloved hands over the sharply hour-glass figure tightly encased in her form-fitting pink silk dress. "Are... are you... okay?"

Slowly, the stunning blonde looked up, her sparkling blue eyes wide in shock, her full, pink lips slightly agape.

"I.. don't know." She admitted, in that famous, husky voice. "I... I should be panicking. I should be horrified. Yet... for some reason, I'm not - and that worries me."

Her face still set in a vacant expression of shock, the buxom new woman rose from the chair - and she rose with that same graceful, repressed seductiveness that had made April East so justifiably famous. Just as the original, this new incarnation of the buxom blonde seemed to exude a constant sense of pure sexuality just barely held in check - and from the expression on her face, it was obvious to every single person in the room that she was doing it completely effortlessly, with neither intent nor control.

She was leggy and wasp-waisted, with full, womanly hips and big, firm breasts countered the tiny waist, and her shoulders were slender where they led to a slim, swan-like neck that supported a face of classic beauty.

She was gorgeous...

...and sexy.

She seemed to exude sex - and, unlike the films that had made the woman she now was the exact image of so famous, this impact wasn't lessened by a two-dimension black-and-white medium. Just as the newspapers and exposes of the day had mentioned how the film sensuality of April East was only the palest imitation of her own personal seductiveness, every person in the room - male and female - was metaphorically rocked back by the sense of pure sexuality that seemed to emanate from the new woman in waves.

Suddenly, the rumors of April East's sexual conquests, always believed to be highly exaggerated by film historians 'after the fact', seemed to be, if anything, understated. In every line and curve of her body, in every motion she made, no matter how slight, in the poses her body unconsciously fell into, she seemed to be personally and directly enticing each and every person in the room individually, somehow seeming to promise delights beyond that any of them could ever imagine.

She was sex, incarnate...

...and from the sudden, heavy-lidded look that crossed her face before dissolving into a look of blushing surprise, it was obvious that she was incredibly aware of her sudden-onset sexuality.

Flustered, the newly-remade 'April' turned her face away from the group, in an almost painfully obvious attempt to get a firm grip on her own reactions. The feeling of trying to reign in sexual desires was palatable - and it made more than a few of the men and women staring at the new woman uncomfortable to realize how excited they found themselves at the realization that she was struggling with strong new sexual desires that just might include them.

Their confusion and discomfort, however, didn't even hold a candle to the storm of emotions raging through the new woman as she faced the wall and struggled to force down the sudden, intensely sexual - and highly vivid - thoughts running unbidden through her mind, even as a moist warmth thrummed unbidden through her body with a pleasurable, undeniably sensual rush.

"Oh.. Dear... God..." The newly-resphaped April whispered to herself, body almost literally trembling with rampant desires and erotic thoughts so new and utterly foreign to the masculine brain housed in the oh-so-feminine form. "This is... unbelievable."

The thoughts now running rampantly through her mind should have been utterly disgusting. She was aware of this fact, well aware of it indeed - but, despite the intellectual knowledge of her male mind finding these thoughts 'sick' and 'perverted', her physical reactions to them were diametrically opposed.

A warm, moist sensation in her crotch.

A general flush of pleasant warmth through her entire body, accompanied by a mild - but very enjoyable - tingling sensation. The almost painfully full feeling of her warm, sensitive, swollen nipples straining against the fabric covering her firm, full breasts. The rapid patter of her heart.

The swift, just-about-panting pace of her respiration.

The over-all sensation of warm pleasure thrumming through her. The thoughts, 'disgusting' as they were - had gotten her turned on. Aroused.

Very, very aroused.

She was incredibly horny over the unbidden thoughts of performing all sorts of sexual acts with the men in the room...

...and it felt unbelievably good!

The new woman was standing with her back to the room, struggling to get a grip on her unwanted new desires and pleasures - when a hand suddenly tugged at the bow at the back of the pink silk ribbon holding the cameo, freeing it from her neck.

Startled, Peter whirled - and stared at the boyish woman dressed as Stewart danced back, pulling the cameo to her own neck. "Donna, what are you...?" 'Bogart' asked, in shock.

"Ellatus amorphous nymphus mea!" The woman cried out, eagerly...

...and, seconds later, the ill-fitting costume of Jimmy Stewart was straining - and failing - to contain a figure every bit as lush, every bit as curvaceous, as the one Peter now boasted.

A body utterly identical in every way, as a matter of fact.

"Yes!" The new clone of Peter/April/Julie cried, in unmistakable delight. Her new hands came up to caress her melon-sized breasts, leading to a look of pure ecstatic delight. "Oh, god - I've finally got tits!"

Crowing in delight, the previously boyish woman, now emphatically feminine, whirled - then all-but-threw herself into 'Bogart's arms. "Look at me!" She said, grabbing his head and hauling it down into her deep cleavage. "I'm sexy! I'm gorgeous! I'm.. oh..."

Her shrieks of happiness segued into a low, emphatic moan of intense pleasure as Bogart's hands came up to cup the woman's new, expanded bust - and the look on her new face matched the moan of pleasure in intensity.

She was obviously greatly enjoying the man's touch on her firm, round new boobs. Boobs identical to the ones now filling out Peter's dress.

A fact that Peter simply couldn't help but notice, no matter how desperately she strove to ignore it.

"Oh, that feels so good...!" Donna/April moaned, with a little gasp at the end. "I never knew any woman's tits could be so incredibly sensitive. God, I almost feel ready to cum just from having you touch me!"

She moaned, again, a sound of erotic pleasure - and Peter/April felt a sympathetic shudder of pleasure ripple through her own, identical figure.

"Yes, yes...!" Donna/April gasped, squirming. "Lick them! Suck them! Squeeze.. oh!"

Eyes flying wide, Donna/April shivered and gasped as the entirely knew - and completely enjoyable 'tit orgasm' hit her, her new nipples even more sensitive than her enlarged and greatly sensitized breasts reached 'critical', triggering a burst through her nerve endings similar in nature - but completely different in quantity, quality, 'taste' and 'texture' - from a vaginal orgasm.

"That was.. amazing!" She gasped, in delight - then she hastily began tearing off what remnants of her costume remained, obviously eager to experience more of the intense, vastly increased pleasure her new form was capable of experiencing.

A new form in every way identical to the same, unbelievably sexually-sensitive form Peter/April shared. Almost against her will, Peter/April found her eyes going to the other men in the room.

Men staring wide-eyed at the sight of Donna/April practically 'raping' Bogart in front of them.

Men obviously aroused by the sight of the uber-buxom blonde bombshell literally tearing at the man's clothes in an eagerness for sexual enjoyment.

Men who could provide the exact same intense sexual pleasure to the body she was now inhabiting.

Licking her suddenly dry lips, Peter/April struggled to tear her eyes off the sexually aroused men staring at the sex now being performed on the floor in front of them...

...and failed. Miserably.

As if feeling her gaze, 'John Wayne' looked up at her, and their eyes locked for a long, endless second.

'John Wayne' glanced away, looking at the identical blonde figure engaged in enthusiastic sex on the floor in front of him - then back at Peter/April.

Slowly, he turned - and began moving towards her. She tried to say something...

...and her voice deserted her. She tried to shake her head...

...but she was paralyzed.

She tried to do anything at all - but could simply stand there, body a-tingle with rampant desire, and watch as 'John' drew ever closer.

Finally, he came to a halt right in front of her, his eyes still searching her face for a sign - and slightest sign - that said 'stop' or 'go away'...

...and didn't get it.

Helplessly, trapped by a mixture of imposed desires from her new body and a guiltily excited sense of interest from the male mind within, Peter/April made no move to stop John as he hesitantly lifted his arms, placed them around her slender neck, and gently drew her towards him, leaving her plenty of time to pull away before their lips met.

She did no such thing.

Her body was crying out for just this sort of 'attention' - and even her male mind, seeing the intense pleasure her clone was getting from a man, couldn't resist the temptation. Though she couldn't quite push herself over the edge into 'homosexual' effort to actively initiate anything, she lacked the willpower to resist.

His lips met hers...

...and pleasure flared.

It was like nothing she'd ever felt before.

It was as if her new body was 'hardwired' to the feminine pleasures. Every sensation that created even the slightest hint of pleasure was magnified, doubled and redoubled again to intense levels, while anything that didn't cause pleasure was simply 'muted out', leaving that intense pleasure existing in a void, with nothing to detract - or even distract.

The kiss that followed was the most incredibly pleasurable kiss 'April' had ever felt - and without planning to, without even meaning to, by the time the kiss was broken, she was more than just an active participant in it.

She was the driving force.

As pleasure began to build, as nerve endings fired off packets of enjoyment to her brain, she'd begun kissing him back.

Eagerly - because the more she kissed him, the more the pleasure increased. It wasn't just a physical pleasure, either - not when she 'responded'. No, there was a very strong emotional pleasure that was triggered, almost against her will, as she began to respond - a deep sense of... fulfillment, that was impossible to ignore.

By the time she slowly broke the kiss, it was with his hands sliding down behind her to reach the zipper holding her dress closed - and not only didn't she object, but she swiveled slightly to give him better access, even as her own gloved hands ran up and down his back.

Deep inside her mind, instinct and habit were sounding warnings about how 'wrong' this was - but it didn't really matter.

Now she understood that diary entry completely.

She wasn't doing this against her will. She knew, if she wanted to, she could stop. She wasn't 'helpless' or 'controlled' or 'enslaved'...

...but, with everything feeling so fantastically good, the 'mere' fact that she'd been male not too long ago, and all the emotional and intellectual baggage that came along with that fact, simply didn't even come close to counterbalancing the intense physical and emotional pleasure she was experiencing right now.

Not even close.

So, when he unzipped her dress and let it slide off her curvaceous form to puddle at her feet, she smiled and arched her back, willingly offering up her firm, melon-like breasts as gifts to him, despite the fact that she knew damned well that it was a pretty 'perverted' thing for a recently male individual to be doing.

It just all felt so damned good that she didn't care.

It felt even better when he took her up on her offer, hands and lips coming together at her massive new bust to lick, nibble and kiss the big breasts his hands were roaming over, caressing and lightly squeezing.

She moaned. The exact same moan of pleasure her clone had given out at similar attention to her own massive bust - because she was feeling the exact same pleasure the other version of her had felt at the time.

The incredible pleasure. The intense pleasure.

The wonderful pleasure. The... addictive pleasure.

"Yes..." She gasped, lost in the feminine pleasures she was feeling - pleasures that seemed even more exaggerated than the ones the other 'April' had felt at the time, because - unlike the former feminine woman - as an ex-male, she had nothing even remotely similar to compare them to.

However, that didn't mean that they didn't have a nearly identical effect - for as he licked, sucked and nibbled at her nipples, hands kneading and fondling the softly firm flesh of her new breasts, she too experienced her first 'tit-gasm', shivering in inordinate delight at the burst of pleasure thrumming up to her brain from her nipples...

..and, like the other woman, the increasing loads of pleasure, mixed with her own high state of arousal and desire, made her want to reach a culmination of all these wonderful pleasures.

Which was why she copied her clones actions, hands flying towards the other man's costume and ripping it open, her body crying out for satisfaction.

"Fuck me!" She heard herself demand, almost in a dazed state of pure lust - and even her male brain agreed with the idea, because as good as everything was feeling, it was also creating a sort of 'pleasure frustration' that could only be relieved in one way.

By a 'real' orgasm, given to her by a willing man.

Well, 'John Wayne' was more than willing. Even as she continued clawing at his clothes and voicing her desire for him to 'fuck her right now!', he was awkwardly guiding her towards the ratty old sofa in the corner of the room.

Like the rutting couple in the middle of the floor, April and John were completely oblivious to the stares of the other guests. Both of them were so enflamed with sexual desire that nothing else could come close to capturing their attention.

They didn't even notice the cloud of dust that billowed up when they collapsed on the old sofa. All they had the ability to focus on was their own bodies' desires - and each other, the 'solution' to that particular problem.

Any sense of disgust, horror or outrage over what she was letting herself do, so soon after becoming female, was completely subsumed in April's lust. With no doubt or hesitation, she let her 'instincts' guide her, spreading her legs wide as she found a good position on the couch.

John wasted no time taking up the worlds invitation. With her seemingly exuding pure sex from every pore, he was already harder than he could ever remember being, his entire body crying out for climax - and he was well on the road to it, even as he sighed and let his cock slide deep into the warm, moist womanhood just waiting for it.

Unaware of the audience watching them, the two people on the couch went at it hard and fast, moaning and gasping as their bodies undulated in rhythm. Themselves covered in post-coital sweat, 'Bogart' and the April clone also stood to one side, watching the second set of lovers pound away on the creaking and complaining sofa - and even though recently sated, the second April-clone found her juices beginning to flow anew as she watched 'herself' scream and flail in such wonderfully erotic abandon, lost in the depths of the same, intense physical and emotional pleasure that Donna/April had so recently felt herself.

None too subtly, she walked away from 'Bogart', the look in her eye and the sway of her broad, womanly hips making it obvious she was 'trolling' for her next lover.

Even as Donna/April searched for her next hit to curb her new sexual cravings, Peter/April was in the midst of exploring the length, depth and breadth of something completely new to her - the female orgasm.

A female orgasm several times stronger than any she'd ever experienced as a male. One more soul-satisfying complete than any she could have imagined.

One that hauled a scream of purest pleasure out of her new throat as she thrashed under John's still-pumping body, her mind and body overwhelmed by the shear force of ecstasy that thundered through her.

Gasping, twitching and jerking, she worked her way through her first orgasm.

"Holy shit, that was incredible...!" She gasped, as John slumped atop her, spent. "It was..." "Fantastic." Her clone supplied, still 'on the prowl.' "It just makes you feel so..."

"Complete!" Peter/April finished for them both, still stunned at how incredible it had felt to have sex as a woman. "Every touch, every sensation, it was just so..."

"Wonderful..." Both women moaned in chorus, in the same, throaty tone of 'I want more!'. They did.

Both of them. More - lots more...

...and, as Peter/April rose from the couch, her body already beginning to demand more, she caught the glazed looks on the faces of the men staring at her, and she knew that there'd be absolutely no trouble fulfilling her bodies stringent new desires.

Slowly, a smile began to form on her face as she walked over to join her clone, who was looking over the men with a considering look.

"This is a bit of a strange situation..." Peter/April told her 'sister', standing beside her. "Tell me about it." Donna/April agreed, vaguely. "Still, it's got it's good points."

"Like sex so incredible that you don't care about any of the bad points?" "Exactly."

Sharing a smile that nobody but the two of them would ever truly understand, the two identical women each ran one hand lightly up the other's thigh, knowing they were touching the only other person in the world who could truly understand the incredible depth of their sexual pleasure...

...and then they each picked a man and, with no resistance from the chosen 'sacrifice', sank to their knees in front of them. With identical motions, the matched set of women reached out and freed their respective man's cock, eyeing the throbbing, hard organ hungrily - and then, simultaneously, each woman leaned forward, opened their full lips, and enveloped their man's cock with a soft stereophonic sigh of complete contentment.

THE END

SUMMARY: Some students are invited to a Christmas party and instructed to bring a character idea in hand, but without their knowledge, Santa promises to bring some unexpected "changes."

A Campus Christmas

By Gunslinger

"Shit!"

The dark-haired youth's slender, pale hand convulsed around the piece of paper, crumpling it. He worked it in his hand, forming it into a smaller and tighter ball, assuaging some of his frustration.

Finally, with a sigh, Jeff tossed the crumpled ball into the wire-mesh waste-basket near his dorm's desk, already filled to overflowing with other, similar balls of paper.

Taking a long, deep breath, Jeff took a sip of cooling black coffee, then picked up his pen and once more bent over the sheet of paper, unconsciously gnawing on the end of the white plastic cylinder.

Perched on an up-tuned orange-crate in the corner, Jeff's second-hand stereo was giving forth a slightly tinny version of 'We Wish You A Merry Christmas'. It, and the snow outside the window of Jeff's fourth-floor dorm room, were the only overt signs of the season.

Though the two-hundred-year-old college's buildings were tastefully decorated with wreaths, though there was a decorously decorated tree in each dorm's common room, the 'Christmas Spirit' was rather thin through the hallowed halls of the Prestigious Institution of Higher Learning - which wasn't surprising, since the campus was almost deserted, most staff and students returned to home and hearth for the holidays...

...except for a few unfortunates who had no home to return to. People such as Jeff Wallace, an orphan who's intelligence and dedication to learning had earned him a scholarship, including on-campus housing and a modest monthly allowance. The scholarship, however, didn't include family or friends, and so, despite all the scholarship had done for him, Jeff was still an 'outsider, looking in'.

He'd watched the holidays approach with supreme disinterest - and more than a hint of envy. As his fellow students discussed their holiday plans, Jeff had sighed and thought of his own plans for the holiday - sitting in his room, watching Christmas movies on cable and eating take-out pizza.

However, the day after the rest of the students had departed, Jeff had been approached by Ryan Anderson, who'd had an unusual offer for Jeff. Apparently, the chubby brunet had some sort of Christmas 'party' planned for himself and a few of his friends. Jeff was welcome to join - as long as he could pass the 'exam'.

It was one of the strangest things Jeff had ever heard - and the funny look on Ryan's face as he'd explained it hadn't helped. Jeff was sure that Ryan had been holding something back - which made Jeff wonder if this whole thing was some sort of elaborate practical joke at his expense.

If it was, Jeff couldn't see the 'punch line'. What, exactly, was so funny or humiliating about coming up with a character for a Christmas story? That's what the 'exam' was, after all - at least, according to Ryan, who'd explained that he and the other four participants already involved were going to do an 'interactive Christmas Story', each of them creating a character, then decided what that character would do during the story, interacting with the other people's characters.

It had sounded fairly easy - but, having accepted the offer, Jeff was now finding it difficult to come up with a character that he thought would be a good one for a Christmas story.

Glancing up at the clock, Jeff mumbled another curse, seeing the minute hand creeping ever closer towards the seven. In fifteen minutes he was supposed to bring his character to Ryan's dorm room. Ryan had been incredibly lucky, drawing room 400. Originally designed as the room for the dorm 'Proctor', the room was actually an apartment, with not only a full kitchen and three bedrooms, but it's own 'common room'. Ryan had promised all the traditional Christmas amenities, including presents - all at his expense. Practical Joke possibilities notwithstanding, Jeff really, really wanted to give it a shot...

...so, pushing his misgiving and doubts aside, he hastily wrote out a character profile, more or less making it up as he went along.

With another quick glance at the clock, the tall, slender young man grabbed his keys and stuffed them into the pocket of his jeans. Pausing only long enough to make sure his door was locked, Jeff pulled the door shut behind him and hurried down the hall.

Reaching the door to Room 400, Jeff nervously fiddled with the turtle-neck collar of his off-white cable-knit sweater, wondering if he should just turn and walk away...

...then, taking a deep breath, he reached out and knocked on the door. The door swung open quickly, revealing Ryan's tall, portly frame.

"Well, Jeff, I'm so glad to see you made it." Ryan said, plucking the character sketch out of Jeff's hands so smoothly that the darker-haired youth almost didn't notice. The bearded, bespectacled host smoothly guided Jeff into the room, swinging the door shut behind him.

"Sit down, sit down - we're just about ready to start..." Ryan rumbled cheerfully. Dressed in jeans and a faded plaid flannel shirt, Ryan looked like a stereotypical lumberjack, broad-shoulder and carrying more than a little extra weight around.

Jeff sank down on the couch as he glanced around the room...

...and felt his heart sink. The other four people were there ahead of him, lounging comfortably in the over-stuffed couches and chairs. The room, while rather inexpensively furnished, was nice enough...

...but devoid of any Christmas decorations at all.

"I'd introduce you to everyone..." Ryan rumbled, sitting down and flipping open a notebook whose pages were filled with handwriting. He flipped rapidly through to a blank section, then glanced at Jeff's page and began to write quickly, still speaking.

"...but, quite frankly, it'd be a waste of time, all things considered. You'll all get a chance to introduce your new selves in a minute or two."

"But..." Jeff said, weakly, frowning. Nobody was acting as if it were a joke. Either they were talented actors - or, perhaps, part of the whole 'Traditional Christmas' thing was that they'd decorate the apartment themselves, once this story thing was ready to go. Uncertain, Jeff didn't press any of the questions that had sprung to mind, wondering how long to 'play along'... if, in fact, it was a joke.

Jeff, unsure, remained silent - and, with a flourish, Ryan finished writing, lifting his head to share a smile with the other five people in the room. Four of them grinned back, the way the leaned forward showing excitement and eagerness - while Jeff merely blinked in mild confusion.

Holding up his hands in an odd position, Ryan closed his eyes and took a deep breath before speaking in a strangely hypnotic voice; "Once upon a time..."

His voice wasn't the only strange thing - but it seemed to be the 'trigger' for the subsequent strangeness.

Fist of all, Jeff suddenly felt very... weak. Not tired, not stiff, but weak - as if he had no energy. He sank bang in the couch, mind whirling as he merely stared out at the room...

...which was filling with a red-and-green glow, as if it fireflies were 'popping' into existence, some of them glowing red, some green. However, there were no insects attached to the tiny, swirling points of light that slowly increased in number and intensity...

...while a strange, almost musical hum began to rise, nearly inaudible at first, then increasing in volume, slowly drowning out Ryan's words. Jeff heard as far as "...six very good, close, thoughtfully kind friends gathered for Christmas..." before his voice was lost in the strange humming, while the room was lit with swirling red-and-green lights...

...and then things began to change.

It started with Ryan. Jeff could only watch, his body limp and mind spinning, as Ryan became a more 'idealized' version of himself. His paunch vanished, while his muscled became firmer, better defined. Though still recognizable as himself, he'd also become more handsome, his muddy-brown hair become a lustrous chestnut, framing a face that became more chiseled under a suddenly perfectly- trimmed beard.

More than just Ryan's body changed, though - so did some of his history. Jeff knew this - because, somehow, he had knew memories and knowledge in his mind. Instead of knowing Ryan as a stranger he'd met a few days ago, Jeff somehow knew Ryan as if they'd been friends for some time. Good friends. Friends with similar tastes, and amiable differences.

It wasn't all the new knowledge Jeff found himself with, though - because each of the other guests changed as well, and as their bodies magically reshaped themselves, Jeff gained knowledge of his new 'friend'.

Like Kayla Shaw. Whatever her name was before, the dirty-blond girl had become a short, perky young woman with golden-blond hair and an impish face, pertly sexy and damned cute. Her clothes had also changed, becoming a tight pair of jeans that clung to a taut, pert little ass, and a pink-and-white sweater with a Christmas-y bell motif to its pattern. Somehow, Jeff knew what movies Kayla liked - and many of them he now also liked, even if he still knew that he'd disliked them before.

The next guest was - now, at least - John Rittendorf. A slender, once-prematurely-balding young man, he now had a full head of dark black hair surrounding his lean, cheerful face. Now possessing the taut, lean body of a runner, John's clothing had become a pair of tan slacks and a faded blue denim shirt. Jeff knew John to be an amazingly laid-back, easy-going guy - though Jeff hadn't known anything at all about him only moments before.

The strange thing was - Jeff was still able to think throughout all this. Even as his memory was flooded with new knowledge of 'Tina', the tall, dark-haired girl who was into Dance, and Bob, her cute, tanned sandy-haired boyfriend, Jeff was also able to figure out what was going on:

They were being turned into their characters.

It would have been a pretty big 'logical' jump to make that connection - except Jeff finally understood some of the strange references Ryan had made while suggesting this.

The connection didn't come from the fact that Jeff had suddenly become a genius - it came from the fact that he'd just stopped being stupid.

He'd actually been told exactly what was going to happen. Now, and only now, Jeff realized what Ryan had meant about 'getting into the character' and 'living the life you've defined'.

Not that Jeff was an idiot. He'd gotten himself a scholarship, after all. It was just that he wasn't creative. He could memorize endless details, re-sort and rearrange endless facts and theories - and, ironically, that was really all education was looking for. However, Jeff was severely lacking in creativity - which was one of the reasons coming up with a simple character sketch had been so hard.

Jeff now wished that he'd gone with one of his other ideas, one of the really boring, two-dimensional 'characters' he'd come up with originally, then discarded. As Jeff felt the first tingling sensation that heralded his body's transformation, Jeff fervently wished he'd picked any one of his other characters. Anything other than the female character he'd gone with. The very, very buxom female character he'd finally gone with...

...the cute, sexy, shy buxom female character named 'Tara' who's sole purpose at this party was to - finally - get laid.

Jeff had time to regret his choice of character as the tingle invaded his body, running through him in a physically pleasant series of sensations that signified changes to his body. Though his body, itself, was below the line-of-sight allowed his limp body,. Jeff knew exactly what those changes were - since, after all, he'd written all about the way 'Tara' looked.

So, Jeff knew all about the slender, dainty feet that would now be forming. Jeff had always liked women who had 'lady-like' builds, or at least what Jeff considered 'lady-like' - dainty hands and feet, slender wrists, ankles and waist, girlish hips and a firm, perky derriere. All these things Jeff could feel coming into being, reshaped out of the suddenly malleable substance of his own flesh and sinew.

Jeff also knew what his new body would be wearing on those newly-feminine limbs. After all, he'd described the clothes she'd be wearing: The reddish-brown cotton-lycra stretch pants, molded tight to her long, cute/sexy legs and her taut, firm buttocks. The brown suede moccasins over thick gray-and-white socks. The dark gray turtle-neck sweater that clung tautly to her rapidly swelling breasts...

Breasts that would continue swelling outwards until they were huge, round and firm. Breasts that would be like basketballs in their size and general shape, but heavier and infinitely more delightful to the touch. Jeff, his creativity stumped, had simply picked huge, firm, ridiculously-outsized breasts for his character to make her 'memorable', the rest of her looking like a younger, idealized version of Maureen O'Hara from the old John Wayne flick the Quiet Man.

Which wasn't surprising, as that was where Jeff had 'cribbed' most of the details about 'Tara' from, at least physically. The history he'd given her was also based off that movie, only updated - a domineering father who had beaten up the one boy she'd ever slept with, making the others leery of touching her in any way. The money she'd won from the lottery, enabling her to move to America - where she met Ryan, her new boyfriend. The one she hoped would seduce her into sex tonight.

If she'd forgotten any of it, the fact that it all flooded into her mind would have helped. Now the history of 'Tara' was at the forefront, her life as Jeff like an dream - a well-remembered dream, but a dream nonetheless, while 'Tara' was sharp and clear and detailed. The 'Jeff' memories knew that she hadn't specifically named Ryan as being her new boyfriend, but at the same time, Tara remembered meeting Ryan, finding him sweet and kind and good - and damned sexy.

Then, as the red-and-green glow faded, Tara blinked her eyes and looked around, feeling as if she were waking from a very vivid dream into very familiar surroundings.

Though everything was different than it had been a few minutes before, she recognized all of it, even remembered helped putting up the decorations that brought the old, stone-walled room to life. Wreaths adorned each wood-sashed window, and a elegantly-decorated Christmas tree stood in the corner, fresh cut the night before and decorated by all of them this afternoon - at least, that's what Tara remembered, even though she also knew that, in the 'dream past', Jeff had spent the afternoon working out the person she now was.

The strange thing was, though Tara knew that, she didn't feel it. Though she knew she'd been male until only a few minutes before, that part of her life felt 'fictional', with her new body and history feeling comfortable and familiar, even if the 'Dream Jeff' would have found this situation odd and most definitely uncomfortable.

It was almost like being two different people at once - but the body she was wearing was the 'Tara' body, and so that's how she was responding to the situation, the fluid way she moved possessing feminine grace rather than masculine assurance, not because she couldn't have projected that masculine assurance, but because it just seemed silly to do so in the obviously feminine body she possessed.

"So - is everybody okay?" Jeff asked, brightly, putting down the book. "Before we go jumping into these lives, I just want to make sure everything went all right. Everybody have all the memories they're supposed to? Everybody happy with themselves?"

Now would have been the perfect time to speak up - but Tara nodded along with the rest of them. Though this felt strange and new and a little awkward, she found herself healthy, fit and reasonably comfortable - and actually rather excited - if nervous - at the thought of having sex with Jeff this evening. She knew that she'd written that in for herself, unknowingly, and she even knew that 'Jeff' would be more than a little put out at the thought - but she also had the 'fictional' feelings of Tara, and the eagerness she was feeling not only overcame her doubts, but his as well - if that made any sense.

Well, it did to her, so - shyly and nervously - she muttered agreement, heart pounding in anxiety and anticipation behind her magnificent new bust.

Ryan took in the general agreement of the room, some eagerly excited, some more hesitant - and then he turned to Tara. She trembled, softly, blushing, and he gently put his thumb and forefinger on her chin and lifted her face...

"Jeff?" He asked, staring the new woman right in the eye. "Are you sure that you're comfortable with your new life? We did this to improve our lives, and it's a one-shot deal... but anybody can back out now, and we'll all reset back to our original lives, no harm done."

Tara stared at him... and then, Jeff stared at him. The change came because the 'Tara' mind had been unable to see the full and complete consequences of the question, while Jeff understood it all. Feeling stunned, Jeff turned his new eyes away from Ryan, taking in the rather regretful nodding from the other four people in the room...

...or, rather, the other two couples in the room. That's what it really was - three couples. Kayla and John. Tina and Bob...

...and Ryan and Tara. Jeff knew Ryan was physically attracted to his new body and persona. Hell, being so close to 'Tara' was giving Ryan a hard-on...

...but he was stilling to 'back out' if Jeff wasn't happy with the new life he'd inadvertently described for himself. All of them were. Jeff couldn't claim that they were making the offer because they were all such good friends - despite what each felt from their 'character' thinking they were all really, really good friends, the truth was that Jeff was practically a stranger.

Yet, despite that fact, all five were willing to throw away their dreams of a new life on his account...

...if he wanted him to. Looking back at his old, male life, Jeff saw I clearly and objectively in a way he'd never seen it before - and it made the answer 'easy', if still somewhat awkward and uncomfortable to say.

"I.. I'm fine." She told Ryan, blushing deeply at all that the simple statement admitted. She forced herself to look deep into Ryan's eyes

- and then, seeing the easy-to-read emotions that roiled in his warm brown eyes, she smiled shyly...

...and leaned forward, her eyes sliding hesitantly closed as her heart raced wildly.

There was a pause that seemed to last an eternity, a lifetime - or, perhaps, the endless gulf separating an old, male life from a new and promising one as a woman.

Then she felt Ryan's strong arms slide around her slender new body, gentle yet firm - and she shivered in pleasure as his firm, masculine pressed against hers, a wonderful pressure creating new pleasure in her huge, firm breasts...

...a pleasure that was re-doubled by the sensation that came as Ryan pressed his lips against hers and kissed her, slowly and thoroughly.

Her limbs suddenly felt as if they were made of water as she all-but-melted against him, feeling an overwhelming sensation of... 'rightness'. Despite any misgivings or doubts she might have felt, this was the right thing to do - because never in her life had she felt as comfortable and secure as she did in Ryan's strong, gentle embrace.

Perhaps most of that feeling came from the 'fictional' new persona she had, but Tara didn't care. She felt warm, safe, happy, and very, very comfortable - and that was just the emotional side of things. Physically, everything she felt was pleasurable, from the way her buxom new body felt pressed against her boyfriend's firm, strong one, to the way he kissed her, tenderly and passionately.

Then his hands slid slowly and sensuously to new positions. He broke off his kiss, keeping his face near hers as he whispered in one delicate new ear;

"Why don't we go somewhere more private...?"

The way he said made her grin in slow pleasure - not the cock-sure question of a man expecting an affirmative answer, but the hesitant- yet-hopeful voice of a man willing to accept 'No' as an answer...

...not the he'd have to, though. Although her heart was pounding in eager excitement with a hint of self-doubt, she gently caressed his back and whispered back in a warmly eager voice that she'd 'love that... darling.'

She gasped, slightly, as his strong arms tensed and she was lifted easily and gently into the air.

"We'll be back in a bit..." Ryan said vaguely to the room in general - and Tara had a brief glimpse of her new-old friends grinning in good-natured joy for her...

...then Ryan was kissing her again, and she let her eyes slide closed as she was carried into the back bedroom, her body thrumming with anxious eagerness at what lay ahead.

Ryan gently lay her on the bed, breaking the kiss to settle next to her, his hands roaming over her clad body as he smiled down at her, warmly and gently.

Smiling back in a mixture of lust, friendship and gratitude, the new woman reached out and began to unbutton Ryan's shirt, revealing a broad, well-musclcd chest with a fine coating of dark hair that she found felt really nice to run her slender fingers through...

...but not nearly as nice as it felt to have Ryan peel her sweater off, revealing her massive, firm breasts - which he promptly began to fondle gently, leaning forward to lightly nip each nipple, causing her to arch her spine and moan in encouragement.

Almost on their own, her hands slid from his chest, until they reached his waist - where she quickly and eagerly undid his leather belt, then the fly of his jeans. She pushed pants and underwear down to his knees - while she moaned again in further encouragement as his hands slid downwards in sympathetic response, hooking onto the waistbands of both pants and panties. She lifted her ass, and he slid her pants down her cutely-shaped legs, stepping off the bed to removed her shoes and peel her pants off completely - while kicking off his own shoes and stepping out of his jeans. Naked, he stood beside the bed and looked down at her, tenderly.

"Are you sure...?" He asked, half-hesitantly, making sure one last time - giving her a chance to back out before she committed herself to this.

She didn't. Smiling up at him, she nodded - and slowly spread her legs, her body trembling with desire and anxiety as she beckoned Ryan with one curled finger.

Smiling at her, he gently slid onto the bed between her spread leg, carrying his weight on his shoulders as he leaned over her...

...then eased his hips forward, slowly easing his hard, ready cock into her tight wet new womanhood.

"Ohhhh...." Tara moaned in pleasure, closing her eyes and letting her head loll to the side at the pleasure she felt from being penetrated. She began to move her hips, slowly grinding them against his hips... and causing incredible sensations to run through her body.

With that wordless assurance that this was what she wanted, the last of Ryan's doubt dissolved, and he began to move with a gently firm rhythm, pumping his hard, sizable new equipment into her body - and creating a wonder friction that caused her to writhe on the bed, gently murmuring sounds of pleasure.

Those gentle moans became sharper, louder - mirroring the sharper and more intense pleasure that was flooding her body, the pleasure climbing in steady waves that washed over her, submerging her in joy that was both physical and emotional. As she absorbed the wonderful pleasure from his gentle, caring touch, she found herself comparing this with her past years as a man - and finding those long, empty years a poor match for this.

"Oh, Ryan, yes..." She gasped, her head rolling from side to side as her orgasm neared. She was under no delusions - she didn't love Ryan, at least not yet. She didn't know him well enough to love him, story or not - but she liked him, trusted him, respected him, and now he was giving her intense pleasure.

Compared to her cold, friendless life as a guy, this was heaven. Maybe she'd never love Ryan - but she could live with them being very close friends, if this was the result...

Then her first female orgasm hit, and thought stopped in a soundless, painless white explosion of orgasmic ecstasy.

When the wondrous pleasure finally began to subside, Tara found Ryan laying beside her, cuddling her, his hands slowly roaming her body in a way that, though pleasurable, was more comforting than arousing.

"Tara...?" He asked, and she felt his tenseness through his embrace. "We're... we're okay... aren't we?"

It was his concern for her that prompted him to say such things - and it was such things that made the answers easy for the new woman. Any doubts she might have felt were allayed by his obvious concern for her happiness, so she could be completely honest as she squeezed his hand and said. "We're better than all right, darling. We're much, much,... much better than simply 'all right'."

Then, to make sure he understood what she meant, she rolled in his arms and held him close as she kissed him, passionately.

After a bit of heavy breathing, they finally slid off the bed and dressed - slowly, and with much interactive 'help' that just slowed things down delightfully.

Finally, arm-in-arm, the two new lovers went back to the living room, where the other two couples were just finishing some heavy breathing of their own.

"So - what say we pour some egg-nog, turn on some Christmas tunes, and get to opening presents...?" Bob suggested, gesturing towards the pile of presents under the tree.

Tara blinked - then shrugged, realizing the setting of the story had cut a week out of her life - but it was more than fair, as far as she was concerned, looking at her new friends as they nodded in agreement.

"Sounds great..." Tara said, giving Ryan's waist a squeeze before she let go. "There's just one thing I have to do..."

Smiling warmly at her friends and her lover, she walked over to the book where it lay in front of Ryan's chair. Picking it up, she flipped to the page that was marked by the pen.

"Uh... Honey...?" Ryan said, hesitantly. "That's very powerful. Please - be careful."

"Oh - it's all right, honey-bunch..." She said, blowing him a kiss. Carrying the book over to the tree, she let her new friends gather close, watching over her shoulder as she penned the words that finalized the story - and the rest of their new lives...

...and after a very Merry Christmas they all had many, many Happy New Years...

THE END

SUMMARY:

CONTEST WINNER

This is our third contest winning story idea which was sent in by members. This story was written from the request below:

"3) I would like to see a story about Michael a 25yo WM college student and his girlfriend Brenda, a 35 yo divorced mother of three.

Mike is from an upper middle class family. His father is a doctor and he has had everything he has wanted in life. He has always wanted to become a doctor like his father but his grades are just not good enough.

Michael meets Brenda while taking some class at a local college trying to improve his GPA.

Brenda has had a very different life than Michael. Her family was very poor and her husband was very abusive mentally and physically. Michael and Brenda meet and become involved. as their relationship develops Michael becomes more and more jealous of Brenda. She has a 4.0 GPA and also wants to go to medical school. As the time nears for their acceptance to medical school Brenda gets accepted but Michael does not.

Michael becomes more and more obsessed with Brenda and how unfair it is that she has what he wants. As she moves away to go to school Brenda begins to pull away from Michael. She begins partying and drinking..something that she has never been able to do up until this point in her life. Brenda meets Michael best friend Don who also is a medical student and they begin to sleep together unknown to Michael.

One night Brenda stays out late partying and wearing her sexiest clothes..her and Don end up making love. As she returns home to her house and kids Brenda is meet by Michael. A heated argument takes place and Michael tells Brenda that he just wishes she could see things from his perspective..brenda still slightly drunk says, "well if you think my life is so damn great you can have it!"

Michael says that if God would grant him one wish it would be to have your life a loud thunder clap occurs(and God answers they wishes) and...

Michael and Brenda find themselves in each others bodies...

The story continues from here with Michael now Brenda having to deal with finding out about his girlfriend and his best friends relationship and deal with her ex-husband and being a mother. Brenda now Michael enjoys her new life free of all her mistakes and begin to party and enjoy Michael's life..the one he didn't appreciate before the swap. The new Brenda begins to find out things about his girlfriend that he never new about her, now his past "

Now the story....

Case Study

By Gunslinger

AMERICAN JOURNAL OF PSYCHIATRY Vol. 15, No. 8

CASE STUDY #1620 - PERSONALITY TRANSFER DISORDER

Dr. William H MacGraw, Psy.

It is indeed rare when a psychiatrist has the opportunity to study, catalogue and treat a new disorder. In the past decade, only four new disorders (ref. A, Sub-table A) have been classified.

To this list we may add another - Personality Transfer Disorder (PDT). Although closely related to both Gender Dysphasia Syndrome and Multiple Personality Schizophrenia, it retains several unique and startling aspects that cause it to differ from either GDS or MPS.

In this case study I shall detail the discover, course and treatment of this new disorder, and discuss the ramifications of it's appearance within society....

Now, to fully describe the affliction, and attempt to discover it's origins, we must first study some of the background of the case. The place to start is with Brenda R. Colbert, a 35 year old Caucasian woman, divorced, and mother of three...

* * * * *

"Well, hello there "

Don looked up at his friend's half-whispered comment, and followed Michael's line of sight until he spotted the cause of the comment.

She was somewhere in her mid-thirties, Don estimated, although she looked both younger and older. She was obviously fit, and had taken pains to keep her skin soft and smooth, creating the illusion of youth - but her dark eyes stared out at the world with a wisdom and pain far beyond her physical years.

Don sighed, knowing that his muscular roommate, with his easy-going good looks and tawny hair, was judging the woman on looks alone - the shapely legs and slender hips under the conservative tweed skirt belted tight at the slender waist, the large, firm breasts visible even through the somewhat baggy white blouse, and the lovely face surrounded by a halo of black hair that fell in gentle waves around her slender shoulders. Mike simply wasn't the type to notice such things as the wise, pain filled eyes.

"Mike, you're supposed to be studying, remember? Your grades are bad enough as it is, and you don't have much longer to get them back up there. It's time to buckle down and get some work done." Don said, running his hands idly through his light brown hair. He found Mike self-centered, vain and shallow - but Mike also seemed obsessed with becoming a doctor, like his old man, and for that reason Don helped him with his studies, even if he was indifferent to Mike as a person.

Mike, however, was still smiling in the woman's direction. Now, he rose from his seat, adjusting his clothes to best show his muscular physique.

"Hold your horses, Don old buddy. I'll be back in a flash." Mike said with his easy confidence, and sauntered off towards the woman in a circuitous route that brought him to her unobtrusively.

Casually, Mike moved slightly ahead of the woman, then turned and leaned against the wall a non-threatening distance away, but directly in front of her and unable to ignore.

Displaying his perfect, even teeth, he smiled charmingly. "Hi, I'm Mike - Mike Traynor. I don't believe we've met." He held out a hand.

The dark-haired woman paused and looked around, obviously nervous and somewhat frightened - which Mike found oddly attractive. Finally she shifted her textbooks to her other arm and shook Mike's hand, having to step closer to do so.

"Oh... I'm Brenda Colbert. I'm taking Pre-Med with Dr. Thorensen." She said, removing her hand from Mike's grip as quickly as possible.

Mike threw her a rakish grin. "I'm sorry, you must be mistaken. I'm taking Dr. Thorensen's class - and I'm sure I'd have noticed you if you were there."

Brenda had clasped her text-books to her bosom with both arms, protectively. "I... I'm a transfer student. I start today." She said in a small voice, as if she feared that Mike wouldn't believe her.

Mike smiled sympathetically - or at least a fair facsimile thereof. "Oh, that must be tough. You're going to have to do some catch up then, aren't you?" He gestured towards the table where Don sat, patiently. "My roommate and I are doing some studying right now, as a matter of fact. Why don't you come over, and we'll help you get up to speed?"

"I... I don't think..." the woman stammered - seemingly afraid to refuse, and equally afraid of accepting.

Mike saw that he'd have to play this one gently, reeling her in slowly. He relished the thought - most of the dozens of women he'd bedded while in university had been easy catches, and the idea of having to win this one over was a challenge his over-inflated male ego couldn't ignore.

"Well, it's up to you." Mike said with a smile. "We don't bite - and if you want, you can sit with that nice, wide, heavy oak table between you and us hairy apes." He shrugged. "And if you don't want to, well that's okay too."

Without waiting for a reply, her headed back to the table, studiously not looking back towards Brenda. He settled in beside Don. Without looking up, Mike asked, under his breath, "Is she coming?"

"Yeah" Don said, sighing - then he rose out of his seat and introduced himself to Brenda as she skittishly settled into the chair across the table.

* * * * *

...it should be noted that Brenda was the victim of 'date rape' at the age of 16. At that time, date rape was an ignored phenomenon, both legally and psychologically, and so it was that her case followed the then-classic scenario, where she married the man - one Damien Glosser - who was responsible for the unwanted pregnancy.

Having married an abusive, dominating man at a very impressionable age, Brenda soon fell into the classic 'submissive-obedient' syndrome, where she subordinated her will to that of her husband. It took her 17 years to break this cycle, and as in most instances, it wasn't for her own sake that she finally rebelled, but for the sake of someone else - in this case, her youngest son.

Having divorced the man who for so long was her will, so to speak, she had trouble dealing with a life where her decisions were her own, and relied heavily on her eldest daughter, Lisa, who acted as an emotional crutch, helping Brenda work up enough nerve to continue her education - in fact, apply for pre-medical training to further her long-time 'fantasy' of being a doctor.

It was while she was attending these classes that she started socializing. She started dating on Michael Traynor, aged twenty. In this her forced training from her marriage brought about her 'choice' of partner - she was simply too frightened to turn him away.

It is important to note that, unlike her ex-husband, Brenda's new boyfriend was not actively cruel, but merely extremely self-centered...

* * * *

"Mom, you know that I don't like you dating that guy. He's not interested in you for anything but your body - look how he makes you dress, for God's sake!" Eighteen year old Linda crossed her toned, tanned arms across her small bosom and looked at her mother, her dark eyes holding equal parts worry, anger and sympathy.

Brenda was preening in front of a full-length mirror. It's reflection showed her a slender, buxom woman whose long, shapely legs were well displayed by the black platform pumps with their seven inch heels, the soft black nylons, and the high hem of the black spandex dress that clung to her slim waist and firm, braless DDD-cup breasts.

"He's not making me wear this." Brenda said - and Lisa was surprised to find that her mother didn't say it defensively, as she'd expected. It threw her.

"You're not trying to tell me that you actually like dressing like that?" Lisa said incredulously. "Jeez, Mom, those damn implants dad forced on you look like they're going to pop right out the top of that thing!"

Brenda ran one long-nailed hand over the taut material encasing her firm, large, saline-enhanced breasts. "I'm still not happy about having these forced on me - but I can't afford to have them removed yet, and Mike does like them." That was said defensively. "As for the clothes - yes, I do enjoy wearing them. I've seen you get ready to go out to clubs on Friday, and you don't dress all that differently. I'm just living a little - something your father never let me do."

Suddenly, it made sense to Linda. It was really weird to see her Mom dressed up so sexy - but Brenda had never had a chance to live like a teenager when she was a teenager, so she had to do it now, instead. It actually made Lisa smile - she thought that Mike was a self-centered creep, but if it helped Mom come out of her shell and have a little fun, then she'd live with it. Mom needed all she could get.

A car horn sounded outside, and Brenda picked up a purse. "Now, I'll be home before too late - tomorrow we get out admissions scores back, and we're only having a little 'pre-passing' celebration - just in case anyone in the class doesn't make it."

Lisa knew that Mike would want Brenda to stay later - and probably go somewhere and make out. But she also knew her mom wasn't ready to go that far right now, and with the whole class there, Mike wouldn't have a chance to push it. With a smile, Linda watched her Mom leave, and had to admit - those damned fake tits DID look good in that dress.

Besides, Lisa already knew how the evening would go. Mike would pay attention to her for a while, angling for a chance to get her someplace private. Eventual, bored and horny, he'd go hit on some bimbo who he'd take home for the evening, leaving Mom alone with Don.

Lisa approved of Don - he was kind, gentle and handsome. If only Mom could work up enough nerve to dump Mike, she could start going out with Don, a guy who could really set her life back on track.

* * * * *

...so it is not surprising that both Donald Kessler, Michael's roommate, and Brenda both passed the admissions test, as they had both worked hard to do so. Michael, however, failed the admissions test, and was forced to remain another semester to re-take the course before continuing.

Both Donald and Brenda moved to attend medical school, and found apartments within blocks of each other. It was soon after that they began having an affair, although Brenda was still to afraid to break up with Michael. She even went far enough to convince Donald to maintain the secret, reluctant as he was to do so.

Her children, however, were aware of the affair, and two of them - the youngest and oldest - tacitly approved of Brenda's choice in boyfriends. Michael, however, was unaware of the situation, as he did not often see Brenda - especially since he found female companionship much closer to home that was more willing to supply the sexual satisfaction he craved.

It was during this time period that my patient began having the delusions...

* * * * *

"I said that I'm going out, Lisa, and you can't stop me!" Lisa sighed and frowned at her 16 year old brother, John.

"Look, shithead, Mom left me in charge, and I say you're not going anywhere."

"I don't have to listen to you OR Mom" John retorted arrogantly. The dark-haired youth had been his father's favorite, and was well on his way to becoming a miniature reproduction of him.

However, Lisa wasn't a woman to be pushed around. Disdaining further argument, she solved the matter by using her athletic physique directly - she simply picked up her younger brother and carried him, kicking and screaming, to the basement, and locked him down there. He'd already disappeared four times in the past year, each time being brought home by the police for one reason or another, and she wasn't in the mood for his shenanigans tonight.

With a sigh, she headed for the living room, looking forward to relaxing on the couch. Her other brother, fifteen year old Lewis, was up in his room, studying. Besides, Lewis was never a problem - he was so quiet and withdrawn, Lisa was worried about him. But, although uncommunicative and shy, he was extremely smart, and had the best grades in his school.

Just before she could flop on the couch and relax, the doorbell rang, and she went to open it.

Her jaw dropped at the sight of Mike standing in the doorway. Lisa felt a chill of apprehension - this was the first time Mike had come down without calling ahead first, and he had picked a bad time to show up unexpectedly.

"Hi, Lisa - is your Mother home?" Mike asked, grinning.

Lisa opened her mouth - but never found out what she would have said, as at that moment Don's car pulled up in the drive and, oblivious to what was happening, he and Brenda climbed out of the car and headed for the door, Brenda - slightly tipsy - hanging off of Don in a definitely romantic way.

Then the couple stopped short as they realized who was standing on the step. Mike turned around, his eyes widening as he took in the sight of his best friend and girlfriend in each other's embrace.

"Don?" Mike asked, surprise turning quickly to anger. "Brenda!?"

Don and Brenda looked at each other. They knew that, sooner or later, they would have had to tell Mike about them. Of course, it was Don who took the initiative.

"Mike..." he began, groping for the right words. "Brenda and I have been seeing each other for a while now. You're never around, and it's not like you've been dating Brenda exclusively..."

"No, but at least I was open about it!" Mike said angrily, silencing his friend. "How could you, Don? I mean, I don't have many friends - male friends - and I really trusted you. I know I'm a pain in the ass sometimes, but I really considered you my best friend. I would have trusted you with my life - and then this..."

Don couldn't meet Mike's eyes, mentally cursing himself for a fool. He'd never realized the strength of Mike's friendship assuming it was as weak and transient as his romantic relationships. But he now realized that for someone who was normally shallow, finding a real friendship would be extremely rare, and worth the world to him.

Now Mike turned his incredulous gaze to Brenda. "And you - you could have told me. But you had to sneak around behind my back. Sure, I had one-night stands with other women - but it was just sex, not a relationship. You were the first woman I ever wanted to spend time with, even if we didn't have sex - and you decide to fuck my best friend."

Lisa, watching the whole thing from the door. Expected one of them to deny the outrageous charge - and was shocked to see the guilty look Don and her Mom traded, and realized that they HAD made love at least once. She was so stunned by the realization, she didn't even notice her younger brother Lewis coming up behind her and peering silently out the door at the argument in progress.

Mike was more emotionally overwrought than he'd been for a long time. Although self-centered, he wasn't cruel or stupid, and he did have human emotions, although they were harder to reach any depth. In his shallow life, only three things had any real, deep meaning to him - his desire to become a doctor, like his father, his friendships with Don, who was the only real friend he'd ever had, and his relationship with Brenda, the first woman he'd ever really seen as a person.

And all three had been yanked from him.

He continued his tirade against Brenda, so upset he was letting his true feelings spill out. "Everybody feels sorry for you, poor beaten woman... Oh, yes, life is terrible for you - You've got three children, at least two of which are wonderful kids. You aced your admissions test, and are going to become a doctor, and now, you've got a wonderful boyfriend - which you had to get by stealing my best friend from me. You've got my friend, my medical dream, and more - In fact, I wish to God I could have what you've got!"

Brenda blinked at the tirade, and felt a dull anger stirring in her. Many things combined formed what she said. Don's loving rebuilding of her own ego, her anger at Mike's belittling of her pain, and the drinks she'd had all came together in one, heartfelt outburst. "Little Rich kid, boo hoo. You're young, strong and wealthy, with no worries and a life that you can party away. You want my life? FINE! I wish to God I could trade it for yours!"

Suddenly, both Brenda and Mike stiffened, as if receiving an electrical shock. Their eyes rolled back in their heads, and they began to twitch.

Then, as suddenly as it had begun, it was over. The two of them stared at each other for one, endless seconds - then Brenda's eyes rolled back in her head and she promptly fainted.

"Brenda!" Don shouted and ran to her slumped form. "What's wrong!"

"I'll tell you what's wrong," Mike said unsteadily, his eyes bugging out of his skull. "That's not Brenda - I am."

Don looked up from where he was crouched next to Brenda. "That's not funny, Mike - now what the hell's going on? What happened to you two?"

Mike unsteadily walked to the porch and sat down, staring at his own hands as if he'd never seen them before. "It's no joke, Don. Somehow, or wish came true - I'm Brenda, in Mike's body."

Don gaped at him, wondering what the hell was happening. Mike caught the look. "We went to Las Diego's for dinner - you had the Veal Parmesan, I had a salad and soup. We both had the red wine - which wasn't very good. After that, we went to see a movie - or tried to. But the show we wanted to see was sold out, so we went back to your place. You wanted to show me what a GOOD red wine tasted like, so you opened a bottle. We started drinking, and I slid closer to you..."

As 'Mike' spoke, Don's face had paled. Now, unsteadily, he rose to his feet, looking back and forth between the unconscious body at his feet, and the male figure sitting on the porch. "B... Brenda?" he said unsteadily, eyes wide.

'Mike' nodded. "I'm afraid so, Don."

The figure on the ground moaned, then opened her eyes and slowly sat up. She stared wide-eyed at 'Mike' sitting on the porch, then down at her own shapely, nylon-clad legs.

"Oh... my... God..." She whispered, stunned. "I... I'm BRENDA!" Her voice rose from the near whisper to a near shout, and she gaped at the long, gloss red nails that tipped the hands she held wonderingly in front of her dark eyes.

Lisa looked back and forth, slack jawed. "This... This is some sort of joke. Right?"

Don looked equally stunned. "I... I don't think so. There's simply no way Mike could know " He trailed off, not sure of what to say.

Lisa turned hesitantly to where 'Mike' sat. "M Mom?"

'Mike' looked at her, and although it was Mike's body and voice, it wore Brenda's expression as he answered. "I'm afraid so, honey." Don's mind spun uselessly, but it managed to latch on one thing they could do to deal with the impossible situation. "I I think we should all go inside."

There was general agreement, and the group of stunned people went into the living room and sat down. Don noticed that both 'Mike' and 'Brenda' had no problems walking - even though 'Brenda' was perched on seven inch spiked heels. But, although she balanced on them easily, she walked with a masculine gait, looking decidedly odd, whereas 'Mike' moved with unusual grace.

It was Don who voiced the obvious - and ridiculous - statement. "This simply isn't possible. People CAN'T switch bodies."

The answer to that statement came from a complete unexpected source - Lewis.

Small, thin and pale, Lewis hadn't spoke a word since he was nine. That's the age that his father, angry at Lewis' lack of interest in sports, had drowned the boy, hauling him down to the lake and holding him under until he'd drowned, his heart stopped.

That's the first time Brenda had rebelled. Crying, she had taken Lewis' lifeless body and driven like a maniac to the hospital - where Lewis had been revived. It had been this episode that had allowed Brenda to get her divorce - while Damien was sent to prison for attempted murder. Luckily, Lewis had not suffered brain damage. But ever since then, the boy hadn't spoken a single word - until now. "Ask, and ye shall receive." Lewis said in a surprisingly deep voice for such a young, frail boy.

Before anyone could respond to that enigmatic response from an unlikely source, a loud pounding noise arose from somewhere in the house.

"What the...?" Don asked, looking around.

"It's John - I had to lock him in the basement again because he was being such an..." Lisa started

But she was wrong. It was the front door that was being bashed on. Suddenly, the frame around the lock splintered and burst open, revealing Damien Glosser, wearing his rumpled orange prison jumpsuit. Blood stained one thigh of his uniform, and a large, stainless steel revolver jutted from one massive fist. He glowered at the stunned group of people, until his eye fell on 'Brenda'.

"You!" He bellowed. "You goddamn BITCH! TWENTY FUCKIN' YEARS FOR ATTEMPTED MURDER!"

And he raised the massive gun, aiming it directly at 'Brenda'...

...and Lewis said one word - 'Now'.

* * * * *

'Brenda' jerked back, waiting for the slug that would end her life...

...and fell out of the chair, spilling the bottle of mascara she had held in one hand.

Stunned, 'Brenda' looked around, and found that somehow she was in 'her' room. Her eyes widened as she caught sight of the digital clock beside the bed which, unaware of the impossibility of it all, was displaying the glowing red numerals '5:23'.

"Mom?" Lisa's voice floated through the door. "Are you okay? I heard a banging noise." 'Brenda' blinked. "Uh... yeah, honey. I'm fine."

"Great. You'd better hurry though - Don should be here any minute."

As she listened to 'her' daughter's footsteps recede, 'Brenda' realized that somehow, time had rolled back. Everything was being replayed - but she was 'Brenda' this time, not Mike. She was seeing the same events from the other perspective.

Or were they the same events? 'Brenda' was fairly certain that the original Brenda hadn't spilled the mascara, because there would have been no reason to. Now that she was 'Brenda', what she did could affect the outcome of the evening, changing everything.

Brenda collapsed on the edge of the bed, staring down at the sexy display of cleavage between her firm, round tits. She couldn't believe that she was cursed to spend the rest of her life as a woman...

Cursed? That stopped her dead in her tracks. She had, quite literally, asked God to give her this life, even if this wasn't exactly what she had in mind. And, God had obliged.

So it couldn't be a curse, could it? God had granted what was really a prayer, which would make it a - blessing? Miracle?

In any case, it wasn't punishment. She'd spoken the words in haste, but she had meant them, to some degree. She wanted the opening at medical school - and now she had it. She'd wanted a family - and now she did. She'd wanted a long, lasting relationship - well, that was up to her to maintain, but it was there if she wanted it.

Slowly, 'Brenda' rose and approached the full-length mirror. She looked at herself - a sexy woman in her mid thirties, with shapely legs and firm, full tits. A beautiful face. Slowly, she ran one hand across the curve of her tit, feeling the new, but pleasurable sensations it created, while the other hand slid across a nylon-clad thigh, and lightly touched the thin cotton fabric covering her new sex.

Could she live life like this? As Brenda? Did she have a choice?

She sat back down on the bed, mind whirling. God had granted her a gift - could she ask him to revoke it? Would it be fair to the original Brenda, now in the body of Mike, that had been hers not long ago. 'Brenda' knew that 'Mike' might enjoy being a man, able to have a second chance at life.

For that matter, so could she. She could use this as a chance to become everything she ever wanted to be - but the cost would include becoming something she never expected - a woman.

She heard a car pull up outside and honk its horn. As if in a daze, she slipped into her platform shoes and headed for the stairs - then stopped, and started again, forcing herself to emulate the original Brenda's sexy sway.

Before she'd consider asking God to take her away from this life, the least she could do is TRY.

Coming down the stairs, she saw John walking out of the kitchen. He scowled at her as she stepped off the bottom step, and started to push past her sullenly, while Lisa looked on with a frown.

"I'm in charge tonight RIGHT Mom?" Lisa asked, frowning at John and obviously trying to establish who was in control.

'Brenda' had to repress a smile - both of 'her' kids thought they were dealing with their wishy-washy Mom, who 'Brenda' knew John pushed around. She decided it was time to take some steps about that. She put an arm out, blocking John's access to the stairs.

"John, while I'm gone, Lisa's in charge. You do what she says, got it?"

Both kids blinked at the unusual strength and determination that 'Brenda' put in her voice, neither of them ever having heard her use that tone before.

John's sneer returned. "Dad says no REAL man has to do..." he started.

'Brenda' didn't let him get any further. She leaned into him and poked one long, red nail into his chest.

"Listen here, buster," she said in a low, threatening tone. "Your father is an alcoholic asshole, who couldn't hold a job, couldn't make his marriage work, and is in prison for attempted murder. Now, is that REALLY the way you want to end up, young man?"

John gaped at 'his mother', stunned. "N... No..." he finally managed to stammer.

"Good." Straightening, 'Brenda' turned to a wide-eyed, smiling Lisa. "Lisa, if this little hell-raiser gets out of hand, spank him so hard that he won't be able to sit for a week."

Lisa, overjoyed to find her mother had miraculously developed a backbone, smiled and tossed off a salute. "Yes MA'AM!"

Nodding with satisfaction, Brenda headed out to where Don waited, remembering to walk more like a woman, and less like a drill sergeant. With a smile, she slid into the passenger's seat. She was starting to realize that this might be fun.

"So, I know this great little restaurant..." Don began.

"Actually", she interrupted. "Can we go somewhere quiet and park? I.. want to talk." She didn't quite feel comfortable going out in public as a woman yet, regardless of that fact that physically, she was one.

"Talk?" Don asked, surprised. First of all, Brenda hardly ever interrupted or contradicted him, although he was glad she was becoming less submissive. Secondly, Brenda was usually very reluctant to talk about anything substantial, afraid to stir up bad memories. For her to want to talk - really talk - was a major breakthrough.

"Yeah, sure - It's a bit of a drive, but I know the perfect place." Don said. "Great."

* * * * *

Lisa, still bemused by her Mother's sudden strength, finished the snack she'd made for herself, put the plate in the dish-washer, and headed for the living room. John, subdued, had gone quietly up to his room, and she could hear the sounds of his Nintendo going, signifying that, for now at least, he was behaving. Considering that much of his behavior in the past was based on the simple fact that he could get away with it, Lisa figured Mom's sudden about face would leave him emotionally adrift for at least a week, to stunned and surprised to be his usual, chauvinistic self.

Her other brother, fifteen year old Lewis, was also up in his room, studying. As usual, Lewis wouldn't a problem - he was so quite and withdrawn, Lisa was worried about him. But, if Mom continued to be the 'new, improved' version, maybe even that could change.

Just before she could flop on the couch and relax, the doorbell rang, and she went to open it.

Her jaw dropped at the sight of Mike standing in the doorway. Lisa felt a chill of apprehension - this was the first time Mike had come down without calling ahead first, and he had picked a bad time to show up unexpectedly.

"Uh..." Lisa said, at a loss for words.

"Hi, Lisa." Mike said with a smile that seemed unusually sincere. "I thought I'd come over and help you baby sit while Don and M... Um, your Mom are on their date."

Lisa's jaw dropped. "You know?"

'Mike' smiled. "Sure. I mean, I'm never there for her, and Don's the perfect guy for her - trust me, I know."

Lisa was surprised by the knowing wink 'Mike' gave her, wondering how the hell he could possibly know that. Still...

"Sure... Come on in..." Lisa said, still confused. She'd met him a couple of times before, and had gotten a bad first impression of him - but this didn't seem like the same person at all.

'Mike' followed Lisa into the living room. He still couldn't get over the easy power with which this male body moved. For the first time, he didn't feel small, puny and afraid - he felt powerful, strong and determined. He didn't have to watch what he said and did, because this body, unlike his original one, was more than capable of defending itself. The feeling of freedom was intoxicating.

Of course, there were drawbacks - like trying to hid the erection that the sight of his ex-daughter caused. As a woman, he'd never really appreciated how sexy Lisa's toned, lithe body was, and now he was having a hard time controlling his hormonal response. He settled onto the couch, positioning his muscular new legs to hide his erection.

Lisa chose to ignore the obvious erection that 'Mike' sported. Surprisingly, he was being gentlemanly about it, trying to keep it low-key, and not leering at her or ogling her like she expected. With a sigh, she picked up the remote. A prime-time soap opera was on, one that both her and her Mom watched when they could, but Lisa decided she had to forego the pleasure and be nice to her guest.

"I think there's a game on the other..." Lisa began. "Oh, no!"

Lisa blinked at the outrageously hammed-up mock outrage 'Mike' portrayed. "Huh?" she asked, having to fight back a smile that threatened to break out.

"Then I'll never find out what happens to Kelly. I mean, is Jason her long-lost brother, or not?"

Lisa gaped openly at 'Mike'. How the hell had he known what last week's cliff hanger had been. Oddly, he even seemed sincere about wanting to watch this episode.

"Uh - okay, we can leave it on this." Lisa said, waiting to see if 'Mike' revealed it as a joke. Instead, he settled in, seeming to be enjoying the episode. Lisa also turned her attention to the TV.

During the commercials, 'Mike' seemed to want to talk - and Lisa was surprised to find him not only witty and charming, but intelligent and sensitive. He seemed to know exactly what she was trying to say - especially in the silences where she could find no good way to explain to a man why something was or wasn't important to her. For the first time in her life, she discovered a man that she could actually tell her problems to. She'd tried to talk to a couple of guys about things like this over the years, and they always seemed to become obsessed with finding 'good advice' to give. 'Mike', on the other hand, merely listened, and sympathized, and offered his moral support. She'd never, ever found a man so easy to talk to, so charming and understanding.

'Mike' for his part, was battling his own morals. He'd come over for one reason, really - to be ready for Damien, when he showed up later. He'd guessed - correctly, it seemed - that 'Brenda' would go with Don, and 'Mike' couldn't leave Lisa to face Damien alone.

Calling the cops wouldn't help - what could he say? Send a car to arrest a man who wasn't here yet, but would be? On the other hand, 'forewarned is forearmed', as the old saying went.

But he'd never counted on finding his daughter so unbelievably attractive. He suddenly realized why many men acted the way they did biological pressure. Once a man was aroused enough, it actually got to a point that it started to become painful. He'd never realized how blessed women could be - their biological urge was less imperative, allowing them to have a 'take it or leave' it attitude - or even 'leave it until later' one, if they didn't want to pass on it all together.

But guys... 'Mike' felt like his balls were slowly being pumped full of air and were going to explode sooner or later. And the way his hard, throbbing cock rubbed against his pants with every slightest shift! It was maddening.

In fact it was too much. He had to get some relief - he'd go into the bathroom and jack off.

Lisa was eyeing him thoughtfully, and before he could move, she spoke. "You're really, really turned on by me, aren't you?" Surprised, 'Mike' answered truthfully - and with great embarrassment. "Yeah."

"You're practically ready to burst, it's so bad, right?"

'Mike' grimaced, realizing that he didn't have enough experience as a man to hide it. It had been transparently obvious to Lisa how painfully erect he was, and how aroused. "Yeah."

She tilted her head, and when she spoke, it was with wonder in her voice. "You're really, really turned on by me... so much so that you're close to coming in your pants. Yet you haven't so much as come on to me once all night. Why?"

How to explain THAT? The fact that he was a woman just a few hours ago - and her mother to boot? Well, there was one honest answer that he could give, even if it didn't cover everything. "It wouldn't have been fair to you." He explained sincerely. After all - hadn't he been on the other side of this equation, some guy coming on to her just because he was horny?

That was the final straw for Lisa. 'Mike' was really, really handsome - and from the size of the bulge in his pants, quite endowed. Even when she first met him, she'd been physically attracted to him - but unlike guys, for whom that would have been enough, she had been uninterested because of her first impression that he was a self-centered guy.

But that had been all wrong. He was her very definition of a perfect man, in every way - handsome, well endowed, wealthy, kind, caring, understanding - and now, he'd just shown he cared more about doing right by her than taking care of his own discomfort. 'Mike' was the very antithesis of everything her father had been. If she let this one get away, Lisa knew she'd curse herself for the rest of her days.

"Why don't you let me take care of that for you?" Lisa asked with a seductive smile. She wasn't prepared to have sex with him - well, emotionally she was, but she wasn't protected, and if she tried to put a condom on him, he'd probably explode. So, she decided to... (ahem) swallow her distaste. For a once-in-a-lifetime catch like this, she'd make a sacrifice.

Still smiling seductively, she slid to her knees in front of him, and slowly unzipped his pants.

'Mike' had no idea how to react. Lisa was just about to give him a blow-job - that much was painfully clear. And, he did need release - but my God! It was his own daughter!

"Look, you don't have to do that..." he said. "I can just go into the bathroom and, um... relieve the pressure. There's no need to..."

That just reinforced Lisa's desire to do whatever it took to hold on to this one. A guy, this horny, willing to give up a blow-job and just jack off, all so she didn't have to do something that she didn't want to? Well, right now, she wanted to!

"No way, Mike." She purred, looking him straight in the eye. "From now on, I'm going to make sure that every need you have is supplied right here, so you never, ever have the slightest urge to go anywhere else. I'm more than willing to give head - to the man I love."

That rocked 'Mike'. Lisa was incredibly sexy, at least as far as his body was concerned. Also, it was absolutely true that he loved her - more deeply than she could ever no. But now, with his new body, it had become much more than it had been before. He was startled to find that he wanted to spend the rest of his life with her - after all, didn't he know, for certain, that he would be the most understanding, caring, perfect husband that she could possibly have?

But she was his daughter....

NO! Lisa was Brenda's daughter. And, he was Mike now. Now and forever.

"I love you too, Lisa." He said, meeting her eyes with absolute sincerity and love.

Then he closed his eyes and leaned his head back as Lisa's warm mouth slid over his cock. He strong, yet softly feminine hands encircled his hard, throbbing cock, and began to stroke. Within seconds, he moaned in surprised pleasure as he came, gushing his cum into Lisa's mouth, surprised at how different - but powerfully orgasmic - cumming as a man was.

"Oh, God..." Mike moaned in pleasure as Lisa gulped down his cum. She licked his softening cock clean, then fastidiously replaced it in his pants.

Mike looked down at where Lisa knelt, smiling up at him with absolute trust and love. Gently, he leaned forward and kissed her, and the taste of his own cum on her lips didn't invoke all the times Damien had forced himself on Brenda - because he wasn't Brenda anymore, was he?

Breaking the long, deep kiss, Mike saw the answer in her eyes before he even asked the question.

"I didn't expect this, so I didn't come prepared..." he said softly, drawing Lisa onto his lap. "But... Lisa, will you marry me?" And without hesitation, Lisa threw her arms around Mike's neck and sobbed the word 'yes', over and over again.

* * * * *

"How's this?" Don asked, and 'Brenda', sitting beside him on the blanket he pulled from the trunk, looked out over the town from the high, desolate promontory Don had taken her to.

"It's perfect." She said, honestly.

"So..." Don said slowly. "What did you want to talk about?"

'Brenda' glanced away. "Us. I wanted to talk about us. I want to know, honestly your feelings about me."

Don looked uncomfortable. "I've told you, Brenda - I love you. Is there something wrong? Is it that you don't believe..."

'Brenda' held up a hand. "No, it's not that - but what I want, now, is everything you feel about me - your every emotion. I want to know... I want to know what to expect, if I continue down this path."

It was an odd way to phrase it, but Don could see that it was very important to her. "I'm - not sure what to say."

'Brenda' looked thoughtful. "Pretend - pretend I have amnesia. I don't remember a single thing about my life, good or bad. I look like Brenda - but the memories and experiences that shaped who she is are gone, leaving a clean slate. Where should I go from here?"

What would you do? What should I do?"

Don blinked at that. It was an odd way of phrasing it, but also very clear. He knew exactly what to say now. "No matter what happened, I would be here with you. For the rest of your life, Brenda - I love you. I know that you're afraid, because..."

'Brenda' held up a hand, stopping him. "Afraid? Why should I be afraid? All I know is what has happened in the past two minutes. Everything before that is blank - remember?"

Don stopped, truly worried. She seemed so serious about this, it was all too strange for him not to feel a qualm. Had something finally broken in her psyche?

'Brenda' saw Don mentally measuring her for a straight jacket, and went into 'emergency' mode, and provided him with a teasing, confident smile.

"Jeez, Don. I decide to try something new in my life, and you refuse to go along. As part of my ego-building, I try to get a little 'role- playing' in with my boyfriend, and he's a wet blanket. Come on, put a little into it, huh?"

Don relaxed instantly. He didn't know much about 'role-playing' except for the fact that he'd seen it on the cover of one or two women's magazines as a 'way to spice up your sex life'. Which he supported whole heartedly, for more than just the usual reasons. The two times he and Brenda had had sex, she'd been awkward and afraid, carrying around all that emotional baggage. He'd tried to be gentle and unthreatening, hoping to get her past it - and here she'd come up with the answer all by herself. If Brenda was afraid of intimacy - then be someone else! It was so obvious, Don kicked himself for not thinking of it himself.

"I'm afraid I blew that one." He admitted, ashamed at missing her signals. He swore to himself to be more attentive. "Did... did you want to try something else...?"

'Brenda' felt torn. On one hand, she'd blurted the 'role-playing' line out without thinking, just trying to get that look out of his eyes. But now, Don was obviously upset at missing it, and if she said no, he'd be crushed. And despite the fact that she wasn't comfortable in her new form, really, Don was her friend, and she didn't want to hurt him. Besides, it might not be a complete loss. She just had to come up with the right 'fantasy'...

"All right, " she said, inspiration hitting her. "Pretend I'm an alien."

"An alien?" Don asked, willing to give anything a shot - for her sake. "Like, a little green man from Mars?"

"No, silly," She said, and couldn't help but giggle at the mental image that provided. "I'm from a race of genderless aliens, and have taken this form when I came to Earth. You fell in love with me at first sight. Now, you not only have to explain to me not only why I should stay human - but a female human. Why shouldn't I become a male human, like you? After all, as a genderless species, I don't have a bias one way or the other. You have to convince me."

Don grinned. This sounded like it could be fun, actually. "Okay, let's give it a shot."

'Brenda' looked down at herself. "This seems such an odd form, so weak and frail. Why, the form you wear is much stronger. Why shouldn't I become male, like you?"

Don, caught up in the role, gave the question serious thought before answering - which had been what 'Brenda' had hoped. She really did need to be convinced. Don had no idea what the stakes were in this little 'game'.

Finally, Don nodded to himself, obviously having worked out a plan of attack. "Okay, yes - this body is stronger. But, I want to show you something - stand up."

'Brenda', curious, did so. "Yes?"

Don smiled. "Now, bend over - backwards."

Shrugging, 'Brenda' complied - and found herself going back, back, back - until she fell over. Automatically, she landed on her hands, then continued over until her feet came back onto the ground. She stood, amazed.

"See?" Don said. "I'm stronger - but you're more flexible in that form. That's the way it works, you see - male and female forms split each advantage and disadvantage, so that they complement each other, one's strength bolstering the other's weakness."

'Brenda' blinked, amazed at how well Don had described the perfect relationship. She - as Mike - had been searching for that relationship for a long time, without ever knowing what it was she was looking for. Now, it was painfully clear - she was looking for her 'other half'.

"I see." She said, getting back into her role. "But what about this form's other differences than yours. Social, as well as physical. Look at these legs, " she said, posing to show the appendage in question. "It is higher maintenance than yours, having to be kept smooth, and is kept on display with these 'nylons' while you wear trousers."

Don shrugged. "Well, women can wear pants as well - and not shave their legs, if they don't want to. Now - I think it's great because I find your legs, in nylons, very, very sexy..."

'Brenda' didn't know exactly why that sent a small thrill up her spine.

"...but it's also an advantage for you. Walk around a bit, and pay attention to how it feels."

'Brenda' did just that - and noticed the completely different way her legs felt. The air moving across her nylon encased legs created a pleasant sensation, as did the slight but constant shifting of the nylons across her smooth flesh. She" never realized that just walking could feel faintly pleasurable, and wondered why women took this sensation for granted.

Then, 'Brenda' was surprised when Don gently ran a hand lightly up one well-curved leg - and she shivered at the increased pleasure it brought.

"I... see..." she said, trying to deal with the fact that a man was arousing her.

"See, female bodies are more responsive to touch..." Don said, embracing her. His hands slid around and began to fondle her ass - as he leaned forward and kissed her.

'Brenda' didn't respond for the first few seconds, stunned. Don, assuming it was part of the role, continued - and 'Brenda' found that it felt really, really good. Hesitantly, she leaned into the embrace - and began kissing back.

She'd expect to find kissing a man sickening and disgusting - but it wasn't. Physically, it felt the same as when he'd been the man, kissing a woman. But the way Don's hands caressed her ass felt better than she expected - and the pressure of her tits against his chest was... nice.

It got a lot nicer when he gently lowered her top and began kissing and fondling her firm, round tits - and sucking on her engorged nipples.

'Brenda' didn't know what to do. She should stop this - she wasn't ready to deal with a man, sexually - but her body was, and it felt so good...

'Brenda', as Mike, had had many a sexual experience - but at no time had a partner been so completely dedicated to pleasing her. What's more, she'd been attracted, physically, to Don ever since she first saw him in this female body. To make matters even stranger, her deep, enduring friendship had also changed with her new body, becoming something deeper, stronger, - hornier...

Then, her dress was all the way off, as was her panties. She barely noticed this fact as Don lowered her to the ground - she was too busy wondering why she'd unzipped his pants, and was pulling them down...

She drew in a breath. She had no idea that Don was so BIG! As Mike, she'd been fairly well endowed - but not this...

She stared at his cock, with her hands wrapped around it, as she guided it towards her hot, wet cunt. It was more than thirteen inches long, and remarkably thick. She stared at it, wondering whether or not something that big would hurt...

And then his massive organ plunged into her cunt, and all thoughts were washed from her mind on a wave of pure pleasure. He began to pump, slowly and rhythmically, and little shudders of ecstasy shook her with surprising intensity. His speed began to pick up, and the waves of pleasure began to build. She had never experienced such a sensation of being so completely filled.

As the orgasm took her, she realized that Don was the one - her other half. This was a blessing, God's gift to her - and she honored him for it as she came.

"Oh, God, YES... Yes, oh GOD !"

* * * * *

Don and Brenda walked into the living room, hand in hand, and found Lisa and Mike in a similar position. "Mom!" Lisa said, standing. "I have great news - Mike and I are engaged!"

Brenda lifted an eyebrow. "In what?" she asked with a sly smile.

Lisa didn't even blush. "Oh, well lot's of things - he'd insatiable!" Mike, at least, had the courtesy to blush at that. "But really, we're engage to be married!"

"Well," Don said happily, "Then it's going to be a double wedding because so are your Mom and I!"

They were in the midst of mutual congratulations when they were interrupted by a violent banging on the front door. Mike and Brenda traded a knowing look, then headed to the door, trailed by their curious spouses-to-be.

Positioning themselves on either side of the door, Mike yanked it open. Damien, unprepared, was jut about to hit it again, and instead, stumbled forward - right into the powerful, viscous kick delivered by Brenda's shapely leg.

Damien grunted as all the air left his lungs, and he dropped the gun in favor of cradling his crushed genitalia as he dropped to his knees.

It's said that the eyes are the windows to the soul. It is perhaps true.

Damien looked up in pain at Brenda - and saw the soul of a stranger staring back though her eyes. Confused, he shifted his gaze to the strange, muscular youth - and there he found Brenda's soul, looking at him with hate.

It was the last thing he saw before the muscular arm of the body Brenda wore smashed into him, driving him into darkness.

* * * * *

...so, we can only assume that, unable to deal with the fact that his wife could become strong and confident - enough so to fight back against him - Damien's mind was forced to develop this elaborate fantasy as a refuge - PTSD.

The symptoms of Damien's affliction is a complete and utter belief that his ex-wife's soul actual resides in the body of her son-in-law, and vice-versa. Now, any rational mind can see the impossibility of this, yet Damien is so deranged that he truly believes this to be the case.

So far, the Electro-shock therapy we are using has had only limited effectiveness, but....

* * * * *

"I don't believe that particular article is on the required reading list, Mister Kessler."

Lewis Kessler looked up at his Psych. Professor, and nodded. "It's not, Dr. McQuayle. But I had to read it." He showed the article to the professor, who immediately realized that it was a case study of Lewis' father.

"Ah, I see. Still, Mr. Kessler, I must insist that you finish the work assigned - merely because you managed to graduate high-school at 17 doesn't extend you special privileges."

Lewis smiled. "Actually, I am finished." He showed the professor the assignment, finished.

The professor nodded. "I see. Well, in that case - what do you think of your father's affliction?"

And Lewis grinned with a very odd smile indeed as he answered enigmatically "God works in mysterious ways, sir."

BACK TO FUN ZONE

Summary: A Sam Spade-esk detective is hired by an extremely wealthy man to investigate a high class whore-house that he frequents. It seems that someone is mysteriously changing the girls who work there in both body and mind. After taking on the case, our main character also finds himself being changed.

The Case

By Gunslinger

I awoke with tiny pygmies jabbing sharpened wooden spears into my lower spine, while a trio of tiny Con-Ed guys ran around my forebrain with jack-hammers, trying to escape through my skull.

When I was knee-high to a Buick, there was a joke that my uncle, Frank, used to tell, that went like this... You ever hear of the 'Texas Whiskey Torture'? That's when they're going to hang you in the morning. The night before, they leave you alone in your cell with a 60 ounce bottle of 'fine' Texan Whiskey. The torture starts the next morning - when they refuse to hang you.

I finally got that joke.

I groaned softly and opened my eyes. Thankfully, the last time the windows in my office had been cleaned was when Roosevelt was President. Teddy, not Franklin Delano. The layered inches of grime on the panes kept the sunlight down to a - barely - tolerable level, and opening my eyes wasn't a suicidal action. Trying VERY hard not to move anything not absolutely essential to the mission, I pulled open my desk drawer and felt my way past a couple of guns, a few loose rounds, a ring of keys, and other accumulated, unidentifiable junk until my fingers encountered a couple of aspirin lying at the bottom.

Slowly, I sat up, unsure whether the horrible screech came from the worn, aging chair in which I sat, or my worn, aging back. Grimacing, I dry-swallowed the pain killers, and waited for the pounding to subside. While I was at it, I also swallowed two tablespoons of instant coffee. With sugar.

Then my head exploded.

Moving MUCH to fast for such a hungover state, I slapped the receiver of the phone from its cradle before it complete its first ring. Moving like an anemic 95-year-old man, I brought the phone up, holding the earpeice a fair distance from my ear, and said...

"Gakk..."

The silence at the other end of the line was accusatory. I swallowed twice around a tongue that felt like a bale of raw cotton, and tried again.

"Garret Investigations."

Much better. Now I only sounded like somebody had trained a Golden Retriever to speak. But at least it was understandable enough to warrant a response this time.

"Mr. Douglas Garret?"

The voice was dripping with wealth and power, and managed to convey, by its tone, that my name was analogous to something one scraped from the bottom of one's shoe. Considering how I felt, that was probably a fairly accurate description, come to think of it.

"As far as you know." I answered. A short pause.

"Mr. Garret, My name is Ross Sinclair. You were...recommended to me by a colleague of yours. If, as your colleague stated, you are, and I quote, 'too damn stubborn to drop a case just because it's impossible', then I may have a job for you. Can I expect you at about two?"

With great effort, I managed to focus long enough to write down instructions to Mr. Sinclair's place. Mumbling something non-committal, I hung up the phone. I spent the next few centuries climbing out of my chair and heading for my office's private bathroom. Collapsing into the shower stall, I turned the water on, full blast, as warm as I could stand it. After a few minutes under the spray, I actually had enough strength to undress.

I let the warmth sink through me, loosening knotted muscles, and soothing aching joints. Soon, my body was completely relaxed under the warm, soothing spray.

So I turned the tap all the way over to COLD.

I screamed once as the icy spray deluged me. Shivering - and instantly, painfully sober - I shut off the water and stepped out of the stall and dried myself off. I grimaced at the odor rising from the soaking wet pile of clothes I'd shucked off, and rummaged around for something a little less distasteful.

Feeling more or less like a member of the human race again, I assembled the various tools of my chosen profession, and headed down to my car. Since my landlord was getting a bit insistent about the measly four months back rent I owed him, I used the fire escape.

I had parked my car behind two dumpsters at the end of a long, dimly lit alley. Usually, choosing such a remote location as a parking spot would be equivalent to hanging a neon sign saying 'STEAL ME' on a car. But no self-respecting thief would even consider stealing a '72 Pinto finished in two tone primer. Much less the factory-installed, AM-only radio.

Since the driver's side door hasn't opened since the car was built, I climbed in the passenger side and slid across. Crossing my fingers, I inserted the key.

I turned it to 'ACC', turned on the radio, switched on the left blinker, turned off the radio, pumped the gas twelve times, turned on the headlights, turned off the left blinker, and ground the starter for two minutes.

Thankfully, the car started easily this morning. Some times I have to do it the hard way.

Pulling out of the alley, I headed off towards Oak Hills. Normally, I would make a client wait an hour or so past the time we'd agreed upon. However, considering that this particular client's address was in the swankiest, most expensive section of town, I was determined to get there on time.

Hey, there's a first time for everything.

Since I had very little call for going into such prestigious locales, it took me some time to find the correct address. Oak Hills is a long, winding boulevard, lined with tall, stately trees. Oaks, oddly enough. The houses - mansions, actually, - were widely separated, and each surrounded by a fence and/or wall.

The address I was looking for was enclosed in a 8 foot tall wrought iron fence, with a magnificent gate, complete with a rather posh guard house. I pulled in, affixing my most sincere smile to my face. The security guards eyed my car suspiciously, but they'd obviously been told to expect me. They directed me to park the car behind the greenhouse, out back of the garage, and, of course, out of sight of the road.

I thanked them politely, then headed up the driveway in a cloud of exhaust. I parked carefully, just outside the front door, on the beautifully maintained lawn. I made sure that my bumper cracked the marble fountain with cherubs pissing into the pool, and admired the twin gouges I'd created in the meticulously cared for lawn, before I went to the front door.

A Private Investigator is what I do. My services as an 'ego deflator' are purely a hobby - or, maybe an artform. Regardless, I take pride in my work.

I used the heavy brass knocker in the shape of a lion's head, forgoing the doorbell. Almost instantly, the door was pulled open by a tall, spare man with a mane of silver-gray hair, dressed in an old-fashioned tux, and with the best British accent money could buy. I could swear he was the guy who played the butler in every Hollywood movie ever made. (Except for Clue, of course.) Instantly, I pegged him as a 'Jeeves'. It fit.

"And who might you be?" The butler asked, eyeing my faded trenchcoat and ratty fedora with distaste.

"I might be George Washington." I replied politely, then waited the double beat before I continued. "But I sincerely doubt it."

"Mr. Garret." The butler said, managing to produce the same tone that his employer had used on the phone. I was impressed - it's a hard tone to get right. I nodded.

"This way,...sir." The butler motioned me inside.

For that subtle but definite pause before 'sir', I decided to throw Jeeves here a curve.

"Lay on, Macduff," I said agreeably, then postured theatrically, and dropped my voice an octave. "And damn'd be him that first cries 'Hold, enough!'" Dropping my pose, I followed close behind Jeeves. The Italian marble floor clicked under my heels.

"Macbeth, Act V, Scene VIII" I said conversationally.

"Yes sir." Jeeves agreed politely. "The Devil damn thee black, thou cream-faced loon." Ouch. That British accent really helps. "Act V, Scene III", I acknowledged the hit. "Quite."

Jeeves opened the a double set of mahogany doors, easily seven feet tall, and gestured me inside. The room I entered, to most people would qualify as a 'grand living room'. To the man sitting casually on a couch that was worth more than most people's cars, however, it was probably a 'cozy den'.

I gave the man a quick once over. He was dressed casually, but expensively. Surprisingly, the only overt display of wealth on his person was a large, emerald set ring on his right hand. From this type, I would have expected a watch instead - you know, a Rolex or Cartier.

He was about my height, but without my muscular bulk, and while we shared the same hazel hair color, I got mine 'cut', while his was 'styled'. Ignoring him for the moment, I crossed the room to the small wet bar and fixed myself a Glenlivet. Since there wasn't an ashtray to be seen, I also lit a cigarette, carefully tapping my ashes into a shag carpet deep enough to swallow a small pony.

"Thank you, Worthington, that will be all." The man I took to be my new employer informed the butler, who promptly performed a crisp half-bow before departing, pulling the doors silently shut behind himself.

Worthington, huh? I still think he looked more like a Jeeves. Sinclair turned his attention to me, and I rather ostensibly dropped an ice cube into my unoffered drink.

"Feel free to help yourself, Mr. Garret" my host said imperturbably, producing an ashtray from somewhere. Since my opening gambits were so easily countered, I decided to get right down to business.

"Before we start, my fee is $200 a day, plus expenses. That fee IS negotiable - upward. The meter started when you opened your mouth. As of now, you're my client, and anything that occurs from this point on is completely confidential. Whatever your case may be, I don't even talk to the Supreme Court about it without your prior, and written, consent. I'm willing to continue the case if it involves risk of physical injury to myself, but I'd like to know beforehand if that's to be likely. Don't bother lying about it - either way, my medical costs are part of the 'expenses' I mentioned. Incidentally, so are funeral costs, if and when."

Where my previous antics failed to get a response, my sudden shift to business mode caused him to blink and pause. Finally, he nodded.

"That sounds extremely fair, Mr. Garret. My...contacts had indicated that you are professional, if somewhat...eccentric. It is gratifying to see that they were correct." I shrugged. "Eccentric is all relative, Mr. Sinclair. Now, what's on your mind?"

He leaned forward. "I am a member of a certain...club. You might prefer to use the term, 'whorehouse', but that would be crude, and not completely accurate in this case. The...establishment in question is considerably more than that."

I nodded. "Madame Treme's House." I pronounced the French name properly, as 'Tre-MAY'.

Sinclair was taken aback. "Yes." He said slowly. "But I was unaware that its existence was such...common knowledge."

"It isn't." I said casually. "I'm a P.I. - that's private INVESTIGATOR, Mr. Sinclair. It's my job to find things out." Ignoring the ashtray, I tapped more ashes into the shag carpet.

For the first time since I arrived, Sinclair truly relaxed. "Ah, yes so it is." He allowed. "Well, that will make things simpler, at any rate."

The odor of smoldering carpet seemed to bother him, since he carefully dumped the remaining white wine in his glass on the incipient fire. It died with an angry hiss.

"So, there's a problem at the Madame's House. What, exactly, is it?" I asked, pulling out my notepad and pen.

Sinclair frowned. "I think it would be best if I didn't tell you. I've arranged for you to visit the House, and I want you to...poke around, without any preconceived notions. Any information Madame Treme feels is appropriate, she will provide."

I shrugged. "You're the boss, boss." He stood, and I followed suit. I must have impressed him somewhat, as he held his hand out. I drained the rest of my Scotch, and dropped the empty glass into his outstretched hand. He shrugged, taking it well. I was impressed.

Jeeves/Worthington was waiting to show me to the door. As he led the way, I searched for a suitable parting shot, and came up with one just as we reached the door.

"Worthington, isn't it?" I asked as he opened the magnificent portal for me. "Yes, sir."

"Thanks for everything. Here's something for your troubles." I tossed him a quarter.

Which left him only a split second to puzzle out the dilemma - let the coin drop, thus failing his duties as a butler? Or catch the coin - and thus be guilty of not only accepting a tip - but a cheap one at that.

He caught it.

Whistling, I stepped out into the sunshine and listened to the door shut behind as I headed to my car.

On the way out, I made sure to mangle a couple of the hedges lining the drive, waving cheerfully to the gardener as I did so.

* * * * *

For the first time in my career as a P.I., I was going on a case wearing something other than my fedora and beige trenchcoat.

Oh, sure, I'd done plenty of 'low profile' jobs before, mainly surveillance for divorce cases. But then, my usual attire was the PERFECT cover - I looked to much like a stereotypical private dick for anyone to believe I was a private dick.

And people thought -I- was eccentric.

But this job called for something a little more...upscale. To tell the truth, I didn't really know much about Madame Treme's House - only that it had a very select clientele, hand picked by 'la Madame' herself. Even so, I knew more than most.

So, when I had the cab drop me off out front, I wore my cleanest, nicest suit, a dark blue one with a navy-blue-and-old-gold vest, complete with pocket watch and chain. The fact that the other end of the chain was a single shot .22 Derringer was nobody's business but mine.

The location was a bit of a surprise - a block-long, red-brick building, with the white columns and curlicues common to mid-Victorian architecture. But no windows. Also, it was situated in one of the less savory parts of town. How 'less savory'? Well, I took a cab, because I was afraid of getting MY car stolen down here.

It's the sort of neighborhood where cops always travel in pairs during the day - and won't travel in there at night. The hospital's have signs that read 'Hospital Zone - Please Affix Silencer'.

Shrugging, I approached the front door. Before I could even raise my fist to knock, a voice emerged from a hidden speaker. "May I help you?"

The voice was warm, and decidedly feminine. I was impressed. Not only had I not spotted the hidden camera, I still couldn't see it. Ditto for the speaker/microphone that must be rigged.

I put the best smile I could on my ugly, Irish-American mug, hoping I looked - well, less threatening than usual. In my line of work, bulk and a scowl are de rigueur for the job.

"Actually, Ma'am, I believe I'm here to help you. A...frequent visitor to your...club sent me."

There was a short pause, then the large, ornately carved door swung open. The person framed inside gestured me in.

I stopped long enough to pick my jaw up off the ground, then stepped inside. The door swung shut behind me. I didn't notice who shut it but then again, it could have been a herd of rampaging rhinosaurs who shut it, and I wouldn't have noticed.

The...woman? Young lady? Goddess? Standing in front of me was about my height, which was tall for a man, much less a woman. Yet she was so elegantly proportioned that I wouldn't be able to tell she was so tall if I didn't have myself as a scale to measure against.

And that proportioning! - long, slender legs, clad in elegant nylons with lace trim up the sides. A short, form fitting yet definitely elegant dress, made of royal purple crushed velvet with a stunning deccoll...dekolat...decola...view of her magnificent tits.

And, atop a slender, swan like neck, the face of an angel, with enough of the Devil thrown in to let you know what she'd be like in bed. Surrounded by an untamed mane of rich, vibrant black hair.

The whole package was balanced on 6 inch heels. Which, with her natural height, meant I had to look UP to gaze into the gorgeous, sea- green eyes.

"You must be Mr. Garret." She said, proving herself to be the owner of that glorious voice.

Even in a stunned state, my verbal reflexes cut in. "Well, if I MUST be..." I agreed, snapping out of my daze. Surreptitiously, I wiped the drool from my chin.

"Please follow me. I'll take you to Madame." The stunning vision said, and I had no intention of disobeying. I was starting to regain my normal equilibrium - but it wasn't easy, watching her full, tear-shaped ass wiggling provocatively in front of me. To distract myself, I looked around as we walked.

The House was extremely elegant, and quite expensive. The floor was hardwood, but that was difficult to tell, since it was covered by a parade of expensive, hand-crafted Persian rugs. The walls were painted in a subdued beige with oak mahogany paneling half-way to the eight-foot ceilings, which were stucco, shaped into elaborate friezes. Ornate, neo-classical trim concealed the join between wall and ceiling. Lighting was provided by 'natural-color' lights, at a pleasant intensity, ensconced in ornate wall fixtures.

The door the stunning woman led me to was a mahogany portal, undistinguished from the other, equally elaborate doors lining the hallway. My guide - guidess? - turned the knob, which appeared to be solid gold, and led me inside.

The room was rather regular, if ornate. An office, with a couple of spare chairs - comfortable leather instead of the wooden or steel in more, um, 'conventional' work places - facing an elegant, and somehow feminine mahogany desk.

It was the woman behind the desk that caught my eye.

She was a study in contrasts. There was nothing provocative about the way she was dressed - except, she was an incitement to riot by merely existing. Unlike my guide, who exuded raw sensuality, this woman projected elegance and decorum - from a body that would make a monk drool.

She could have been 19 - or 99. She had an ageless beauty. Her body could have been a ripe, perfect 19 year old, yet her raven's sweep of elegantly styled hair was tinged with silver - NOT gray - at the temples, yet it didn't detract from her sense of contained vibrancy.

Her graceful, high cheek-boned face was stunning. Lines around her eyes and mouth indicated she'd seen all the world had to offer - and had enjoyed most of it.

Despite the fact that I'm a trained student of human nature, the best I could do was peg her at a very well preserved 65 or so, without detracting a whit from her beauty.

Can you imagine a sexy grandmother? If you can, I just did. If you can't, - I feel sorry for you.

She smiled, warmly, and waved me towards a seat. "Please sit down, Monsieur Garret. May I offer you a choice of libations?"

Her voice was rich and full with a warm, delightful French accent. It was the sort of voice you could listen to all day. Unlike the young lady who led me here. After a few minutes of her voice, I'd be too turned on to function.

I sank, with a sigh of pleasure, in the deep embrace of one of the chairs. "You may." I said.

There was a pause of perhaps two heartbeats, and when she spoke again, her tone hadn't changed at all. I was impressed. "Very well, then I DO offer you your choice of libations."

It says in the handbook that no P.I. is allowed to turn down a free drink. I've got a reputation to uphold. "A single malt over a single cube, if you please."

Madame Treme turned to the young lady. "Thea, if you would be so kind?"

Thea - pronounced 'Tee-ah', I didn't learn about the spelling until later - nodded, and fixed my drink. I took it from her, trying not to stare at the awesome view presented when she bent to hand it to me.

Well, not to stare too hard, at any rate.

Madame Treme looked me up and down, obviously judging me. I smiled toothily, stood up, and slowly turned in a full circle.

"Douglas is wearing the new Fall line by the esteemed house of Sears, Roebuck and Company." I said in my best 'announcer' voice. "The royal blue suit includes the high-collared vest with gold accent buttons..."

At least I got a reaction out of Thea - as worldly as I'm sure she was - considering her choice of employment, - she wasn't expecting such things here, in the 'Holy of Holies', Madame Treme's very office.

The Madame herself merely lifted one eyebrow.

"Mr. Garret, due to my chosen profession, I do not often have call to hire outside help. For this reason, I requested Mr. Sinclair to find a suitable person for a very...unusual task. Mr. Sinclair has proven to have extremely fine judgement - at least, until now."

I slowly leaned forward over the mahogany desk separating us, and looked the proprietor of this House right in the eye. "I couldn't care less what you think of my personality, Ma'am, 'cause that's not what I'm hired for. I do the job. I do it VERY well. And I do it the way I think is best. When you hire a plumber, you don't tell him HOW to fix it, you just tell him WHAT to fix, and let HIM figure out the best way to get the results."

That made Madame Treme look thoughtful. Finally, she nodded, and indicated something to Thea, who left quietly.

"You're quite right, young man. I will hold my judgemen..." she held up one slender hand, and corrected herself. "My PROFESSIONAL judgement, until I have seen you work."

I nodded, satisfied. "So, what, exactly, do you need my services for, Ma'am?"

She hesitated briefly. "Somebody has been...changing my employees." she said, obviously groping for words. I nodded sagely. "I'm assuming you don't mean diapers."

Madame Treme cocked her head, frowning slightly. "It started about two months ago. At first, it was benign - and extremely unusual. Some of our young ladies became...enhanced. It always happened in the Lounge, and in front of a crowd of people - so, we can't finger one specific person who was near the women when the changes occurred. Thea, for example. One afternoon, she simply became more..."

"...intensely, mind blowing, jaw dropping, drop dead gorgeous?" I supplied tactfully. She shrugged. "As good a way to put it as any, I suppose."

"If somebody was making your girls sexier, and that was it, I doubt you'd need my services. What changed." "Our mysterious...benefactor" she said dryly "developed a sense of humor. A rather nasty one."

"Oh? What do..."

The door opened, and Thea returned, with two other young women. I craned my neck to take a look. Madame Treme certainly kept a rather diverse staff.

If Arnie had been born black, and female, he might look like the first woman. She was remarkably muscular, yet somehow still extremely feminine. Her ebony skin glistened, almost as if oiled - like a recoilless rifle. I was careful to keep my hands away from any of my weapons. As built as I am, she looked like she could snap me in half.

She wore a black crop-top that revealed the fact that, unlike most female body builders, she definitely wasn't flat-chested. I pegged her at being a healthy C-cup. A pair of black jeans strained at the seams from her muscular legs, and she wore simple black Nike's.

It was the large bulge pushing at the crotch of her jeans that was disconcerting.

Behind Ms. Olympia was a woman dressed in a classic 'French Maid' uniform. She was a slender blonde, with strong features and a lithe, athletic body. Her 'dancer's legs' looked stunning in the fishnet nylons atop 6 inch spike heels. Her full, ruby lips were curved in a bright, inviting smile - but the smile didn't reach her eyes, which were filled with such murderous fury I had to stifle the reflex to draw my gun.

Madame Treme introduced them. "This is Tonya," she said, indicating the muscled black woman, "and Cynthia." The blonde French Maid - Cynthia - came right to me, settling seductively in my lap.

"What can I do for you, Master?" she cooed submissively, the glare from her eyes practically burning through my skin.

Madame Treme sighed. "Until a week ago, Cynthia was my foremost Dom. Then, whoever our mystery man might be made a few...adjustments to her mind. She is now completely, utterly obedient. Needless to say, I've removed her from the list of ladies available. I should think that her clients would be rather...put out by the change in her."

I shrugged. "I don't see a problem. Professionally speaking, I mean."

The temperature in the room dropped precipitously. "Of course not. A completely obedient woman is perfect, isn't she?" Madame Treme asked dangerously. Tonya took a step towards me, her impressive musculature rippling.

"Cynthia." I said casually. "Dominate me."

The smile dropped from her lips. With surprising strength, her fingers entwined in my hair and pushed my head firmly against the chair. Her lips came down, and she kissed me hard, almost painfully, in complete control of the kiss.

Then the kiss softened, and her hands became tender. When she pulled back, her lips were once again smiling - and this time, it reached her eyes.

"Thank you..." she whispered. Then her smile hardened. "You worthless little maggot." It was a toss up as to which of the other three women looked more stunned. I shrugged.

"She has to do what men want, right? Well her clients are going to want her to be a dominating bitch - so she will. Now, whenever she's not with a client, she's going to revert to 'Ms. Submissive'. But it proves that our opponent isn't infallible - always an important piece of information."

Madame Treme was impressed. "I may have misjudged you, Monsieur Garret." She apologized.

"Nope. I AM an asshole." I said agreeably. "I'm just a very talented asshole." I looked up towards Tonya, dropping my gaze briefly to her bulging crotch. "Let me guess..."

You know, I didn't realize black people could blush so effectively.

She glowered. "When I find the asshole... Just because I'm more muscular than most men doesn't mean I want to be a man." She looked at Madame Treme, then back to me. "Uh, should I show you? I mean..."

I considered that. I had no real urge to see...but I did have to know what sort of ability this 'Prankster' had. I nodded slowly. Tonya hesitantly unzipped her jeans, and slid them, and her briefs, down her rock-hard thighs.

Whoever our unknown, and mysteriously powerful, opponent was, he'd decided to uphold the fable about black endowments. Hanging between Tonya's thighs was one of the largest, thickest cock's I'd ever seen in my life - not that I'd seen that many, you understand, - complete with matching balls. I refused to let my distaste show, and even held back the remark that sprang to mind - Tonya didn't deserve this, and was having a hard enough time already.

As she readjusted her clothing, I turned back to Madame Treme. "You want me to find this... 'Prankster', right."

She nodded. "I don't think you'll be in much danger. So far, he's confined his activities solely to women - he may not be able to do anything to men."

"I can't assume that." I cautioned. "I'll be careful. When I find him, what do you want done to him? Do I have a hunting license?"

She understood my shorthand, but shook her head. "If at all possible, it would be better if we could...persuade him to undo some of the changes he has wrought. But if it is necessary, yes, you may kill him."

I nodded. "Good enough. I best get started. The Lounge, you said?"

* * * * *

How to describe the lounge...

First, there was the room itself. Imagine a grand hall in, say, Buckingham Palace. A huge room, with high, vaulted ceilings, elaborately frescoed, with a hardwood floor. The walls were paneled, sectioned by carved marble columns. TWO fireplaces, each big enough to roast a whole ox in.

Not that Buckingham palace would look like this - the paintings, and all the sculptures, were definitely erotic - but tastefully done, not lewdly.

Next, the interior decor. A bar in the corner that looked like it came directly out of an upscale Irish pub. Brass rail, high, comfortable leather stools, an expansive, glittering array of bottles, all presided over by a stunning redhead wearing an apron, a smile, and not much more.

The furnishings were clustered in cozy sections that allowed a sense of a much smaller room, without breaking up the elegance of the entire chamber.

Then there was the people. The rich. The powerful. The famous. Not only all dressed to the nines, but, ensconced in the privacy of a familiar setting, and safe from the public eye, completely relaxed and 'real', rather than the public personas they projected at other times.

Now, throw in a bevy of stunning women of all types, dressed elegantly, provocatively and fashionably, all available to fulfil your every fantasy.

Damn. Now THAT'S a party.

With Thea to escort me, this would have been a dream come true - if I wasn't on duty. I'd have to talk to Madame Treme after this was over.

Thea talked to the stunning bartender, and returned with two glasses. They looked like Scotches, but tasted like some sort of berry, and were non-alcoholic. Nursing my 'drink', I began to casually circulate around the room, surreptitiously eyeing the clientele. I wasn't exactly sure what I was looking for - but I trusted my instincts. Somewhere in this mass of people, there was somebody with an inexplicable power beyond the realm of anything I'd ever encountered. And I had to pick him out, neutralize him, and persuade him to undo what he'd done before ensuring he'd never do it again.

I never said my line of work was easy. But usually, I just had to look for the guy with the gun or knife or other implement of mayhem. With Thea trailing behind me, I mingled. Walking past the Grand Piano, I almost bumped into an older man, and I turned to apologize.

Black hair, going silver at the temples. An one face with dark eyes and heavy lips. Dressed in a simple black suit. He spoke with a southern accent. I would have pegged him at about 55. Except I knew that he was born January 8, 1935.

"Sorry 'bout that." He drawled, while I struggled to keep my face straight. "It's good to see you've lost some weight." I managed to sound casual.

He laughed. "Hell, you know what they say the best exercise is, don't you?" He winked at Thea, who smiled back. I held out my hand. "The name's Garret. Doug Garret. It's a pleasure to meet you, Mr. Pre..."

"I go by Aron these days, Doug" He interrupted affably. "That other name's from, well, a different life, I guess you'd say." I could sympathize. 'Doug' wasn't the name I was born with, either.

"Yeah, a skater's got it now." I said. "At least he's good at what he does, too."

He shrugged, looked down at his now-empty glass, and bobbed his head towards the bar. "Well, I think I'm gonna get a refill. See y'all around." He wandered off.

I looked questioningly at Thea, who shrugged (doing magnificent things do various parts of her anatomy). "Madame Treme does, uh, favors for special clients. Fame can get tiring after a while, and he's so relaxed here...In '77, we faked a death, and here he is." She smiled, somewhat dreamily. "You should hear some of the new stuff he's written."

"If I get a chance, I will." I assured her, taking one last glance. Then, I squared my shoulders, then went back to looking around. In the back of my mind, I was wondering just how much Madame Treme DID charge...

Then a hand came down on my shoulder, and I spun, my right hand diving into my vest pocket. I cursed myself for being distracted...

"Whoa, down boy" the owner of the hand said, chuckling. He was a handsome man, a few years younger than myself, with long, casually styled sandy blond hair. He was dressed in an Armani suit that fit his muscular frame like it was tailored - but it probably wasn't. He was one of those guys who could put ANYTHING on, and it looked like it was made for him. I should know. He used to be my partner.

"Hi, Jace" I said, relaxing. "How's Hollywood treating you?"

He smiled, revealing perfectly, white, even teeth. "Not too bad." Thea looked slightly confused. "You two know each other?"

I nodded. "Before Jason Crosby was a big movie star, he was a cop. A good one too. Decided he deserved more money, though." I said it completely without rancor - we'd gotten that out of the way some years ago.

Jason laughed. "Hey, If Madam Treme let YOU in, you must have moved on to bigger and better things, St..." "Doug." I interrupted, quietly but firmly.

Jace blinked. " 'scuse me?" "I go by Doug now."

He chuckled. "Can't say I blame you." He smiled again, and bowed gallantly to Thea. "As always, a pleasure to see you again, my dear." He winked at me. "Thea and I spend quite a bit of time together. Of course, I don't get down here as often as I like - I wouldn't even be here now, if the Screenwriter's Guild hadn't thrown a sudden strike. Well, since I'm here, I'll just have to steal Thea from you. You and I always have had the same taste in women."

I turned to Thea. "I've always said men have better judgement than women." "Huh?"

I waved at Jace. "Well, he picked you...and you picked him."

Jace just laughed it off. "Don't pick on the poor girl. It's purely financial. Hell, it must be. She's with you, isn't she?" Yeah, well, that was different. But I wasn't going to tell Jason that.

Nodding politely, I headed off. Thea, being who she was, stayed with Jace. It was okay by me - I was working. However, I did give one last look at her magnificent physique - for a time I WASN'T working...

For the next two hours I 'worked the room', looking for anything that set my internal alarms ringing - but nothing clicked. Maybe he wasn't here yet. Or maybe, he was laying low.

Damn it, I wasn't even sure what I was looking for. Was he doing it mentally? Magically, complete with a little wand? With some sort of pocket-sized machine? Or was it like Calvin's transmogrifier, an old cardboard box?

I finally finished my pseudo-Scotch, and decided to swing by the bar - for the real thing this time. Being sober didn't seem to be helping at all.

When I got to the bar, I caught sight of a familiar face. Good old Sinclair. He saw me coming, and nodded at the empty stool beside him. By the time I sat down, a drink was already in front of me. I took a sip before speaking .

Glenlivet. I was impressed that he remembered. He leaned in closer. "Any luck?"

I fished out a cigarette, making him wait until I'd puffed it into life. "Not yet."

He shrugged. "Give it time. I have faith in you." I laughed snorted. "Yeah?"

"Your ex-partner spoke highly of your work as a P.I., Mr. Garret. Despite your animosity towards one another, you must admit he's a very perceptive man."

I nodded reluctantly. Like I said, Jace HAD been good as a cop. I stood up, taking my drink with me. "Gotta keep an eye out. I'll let you know, okay?"

He smiled and nodded, and I headed off on my third circuit of the room.

If I kept circling the room this way, people would start to wonder about me. But the damn room was so big, there was no one place I could 'lurk', and still keep an eye on everything. Although, as stakeouts went, this was a lot nicer than I was used to.

I spotted Jace and Thea coming back down the staircase. I took a second to drink in the view of those long legs descending the spiral staircase. Jace had a smug grin on his face. Well, Thea was quite a bit of woman.

"She's really quite a bit of woman, Sta...Doug, my boy." Jace said smugly. "Your tough luck, huh?"

I shrugged. "Hell, I owe you one, I guess." He looked confused. "What?"

I frowned. "Talking to Ross Sinclair."

"Ross Sincl oh, yeah, the Plastic Surgeon. What about him?"

CLICK.

That smug son of a bitch.

My hand tightened around my glass, which creaked ominously. The look on my face caused Jason and Thea to step back fearfully. "Come on, we need to see Madame Treme. Right now." I said to Thea. I paused, then nodded at Jason. "You too, Jace."

Wordlessly, Thea led us back up to her office at the double time. Madame Treme looked up in surprise as I all but burst into the room. "It's Sinclair." I announced without preamble.

Madame Treme's face tightened, and I got a brief glimpse of her true age. "Are you certain " she started, then looked more carefully at my face, and stopped.

"He thought Jace would be gone for longer. The smug bastard told me Jace recommended me. Jace doesn't even know what I'm doing for a living now."

Anger burned in Madame Treme's glorious eyes. "And I trusted that "

Jason looked back and forth. His handsome face was screwed up in the unfamiliar expression of confusion. It didn't suit him. "What's Sinclair? What going on?"

I looked at him, and inclined my head at Thea.

"You notice anything different about Thea this time?"

"Yeah, but I haven't been here for a couple of months. I just thought "

The three of us filled Jace in, calling in Cynthia and Tonya, not only as collaboration, but as backup. Jason's face tightened in anger as we explained, and I was surprised to find I still trusted him after all this time. Didn't like him, but trusted him.

"So," I concluded, "Sinclair heard about my reputation, and thought he could pull the wool over my eyes." I turned to Madame Treme.

"He made the same mistake you did, Ma'am - he confused personal eccentricities with professional incompetence." She looked at me calmly. "He seems to have underestimated you, Mr. Garret, as did I. The question is, what do we do now?"

I looked around at the small group in the office. Not much of an army, but... "Can I trust all of you to back me up on this?" Surprisingly, it was Jace who beat everybody else.

"Just like old times Stacy. You lead, and I'll watch your back."

I winced at his use of my real name, but didn't call him on it - it was just old habits dying hard. It was gratifying to see that he still trusted me, too. The others chimed in seconds behind him. I caught a couple of questioning looks, but here and now wasn't the best time to explain why my parents cursed me with 'Stacy'.

"All right," I said, standing. "This is the plan..."

* * * * *

I really, REALLY hate making mistakes.

I made three of them in less than half an hour.

The plan, such as it was, was based on all the available information we had on Sinclair's Modus Operandi. Since we now knew WHO our 'Prankster' was, we could back-track the events and see where he'd been at the time the, uh, 'events' occurred.

It turned out that every time, he was in brief physical contact with the victim. Which told us we had to take him down fast. Also, all his victims, at least so far, were female. Whether that was person preference or physical limitation, we didn't know, but it was all we had to work with.

So, we arranged an ambush in the foyer. Tonya, who was already transformed and, therefore, probably fairly safe, would tell Sinclair that he had a phone call. She'd follow him into the foyer, where Jace and I would be waiting. Tonya would tackle him low from behind, I'd hit high and from the front, and Jace would move in with my lead sap and ensure Sinclair's lights were out but good.

Afterwards, we'd give him a little session in Mistress Cynthia's Dungeon - only, it wouldn't be any fantasy sex game for him.

So everything was set up and ready to go, when my mistakes piled up on each other and came down on me like a ton of bricks.

The first mistake was assuming he hadn't noticed Jace's unexpected return to the House, thus screwing up his little charade. Although we didn't know it, from the foyer, when Tonya approached him with the bogus phone message, he immediately suspected a trap.

I found out later that he made an 'adjustment' to Tonya when she came up to him. He changed her mind about that huge cock he'd given her - making her obsessed with having it fucked and sucked. Rather than follow him back to the foyer, she obeyed her new 'programming', and had a helplessly obedient Cynthia give her a blowjob.

While this was going on, I was still waiting, unsuspecting, in the foyer. That's when I started to feel woozy. My muscles seemed to be turning to Jell-O, and I was having a hard time seeing.

My second mistake had been taking a drink from Sinclair at the bar. It was drugged.

And as I crumpled helpless to the floor, barely hanging onto consciousness, I got to observe my third mistake. We never considered the possibility that Sinclair could change HIMSELF, as well.

The Sinclair who burst through the foyer door was 243 pounds of solid, densely packed muscle. Like some sort of steroid hyped athlete, he practically ripped the heavy door from its brass hinges as he smashed through. Jace, who had started towards me when I collapsed, didn't even have a chance. The 'New, Improved' Sinclair blindsided him like a tractor trailer. Going 80. Filled with lead.

Jace never saw it coming.

And as I slipped down into the darkness waiting for me, my last sight was of Sinclair scooping up my limp body like it weighed nothing, and using me as a battering ram on the outside door.

* * * * *

I awoke with tiny pygmies jabbing sharpened wooden spears into my lower spine, while a trio of tiny Con-Ed guys ran around my forebrain with jack-hammers, trying to escape through my skull.

For a second, I tried to remember what I must have drunk last night to cause such a massive hangover. Then, everything came back to me in a rush. The headache wasn't from drinking. It was a mixture of the aftereffects of a drug, plus being used as a battering ram.

For once, I was actually wistful for a simple hangover.

Very slowly, I opened my eyes, and waited for the world to stop spinning and come into focus.

"I was afraid you were going to sleep the day away, Mr. Garret." An insufferably smug voice commented. Sure enough, Sinclair - once more bereft of the muscle-bound body from the night before, was sitting in a comfortable chair, grinning comfortably at my helpless state.

"At least I don't have to worry about getting up on the wrong side of the bed this morning," I said dryly. It was technically true - I was laying on a partially elevated hospital bed, still fully dressed, thank God. I was held in place by leg manacles and handcuffs. It was the TYPE of manacles and handcuffs that necessitated a second look.

"Oh. One of those, huh?" I asked, eyeing the purple, velvet lined restraints, typically used by the BDSM crowd.

"No, not really. You should be thankful, Stacy - You don't mind if I call you Stacy, do you? - should be thankful that I was thoughtful enough to use restraints that won't damage you in any way."

"Thanks just TOO much" I replied, ignoring his use of my birth name. At the same time, I was carefully cataloging my surroundings.

I immediately ID'ed the place as the basement of Sinclair's Oak Hills' estate. Technically, wine cellar was the correct term, considering the racks and racks of wines, ports, sherries and other assorted spirits.

"oh, it was more than thoughtfulness, I assure you" Sinclair explained, as he helped himself to one of the bottles on the endless row of racks. He showed me the label. "Grenacis Village. An Egyptian wine, actually - I've developed a taste for it." He carefully poured himself a glass of the white wine, then continued. "No, the handcuffs are padded so we won't damage the tender flesh of the new body I'm going to give you. One more fitting to your name, I should think."

That's what I was afraid of.

Smiling cruelly, Sinclair added the final twist to his nasty little plan - as he tied a thick blindfold over my eyes, ignoring my attempts to thrash away.

Unable to see, I had to rely solely on sound. Because much of my work was done in the dark, I'd developed a tremendous sense of hearing, able to deduce what was going on by sound alone. It was a useful skill - I only wish that I didn't have cause to use it. Somehow, not being able to actually see made things that much worse, rather than better. I resolved, then and there, that should I ever end up in front of a firing squad, I'd accept the cigarette, but refuse the blindfold.

I heard Sinclair moving around. He stopped to take a sip of his wine - I heard the 'clink' of his ring against the glass - then proceeded with his little 'game'.

"Let's see," he said thoughtfully, laying his hand against my side. "You do a lot of legwork in your job, don't you?"

If there's any way you can plan out your life to avoid being tied up, blindfolded, while you helplessly felt your body shifting, I'd advise you to do it.

It was an unbelievably odd feeling to feel my legs rearranging themselves, assuming a whole new form. The sensation was - literally - indescribable. I could feel the hair of my legs sliding back into their follicles, while the muscles and flesh changed over altering bones. It wasn't exactly painful - just unbelievably strange.

I already knew that Sinclair could do the transformations instantly. All his previous - and public - alterations had occurred in the blink of an eye. The only reason he was dragging this one out was for its horror effect.

It was working.

Having finished with my legs and feet, Sinclair continued on, altering my body one part at a time. As he continued, my clothing fit me less and less, as my altering body filled it in ways it was never designed for.

My pants became too tight in the hips as they widened. At the same time, my ass filled out, straining against the imprisoning fabric. Although my pants now strained at the hips, it hung loose around my constricting waist.

The material of my shirt became taut as beneath it, my traitorous flesh rose up, forming breasts. I couldn't see the transformation, and had no previous experience with HAVING tits - the new weight on my chest was disconcertingly real, a constant reminder of what I was experiencing.

It took nearly half an hour for Sinclair to complete his work, a bit at a time. Throughout the ordeal, he kept a smug running commentary.

"...ah, yes, Mr... , or should I say, MISS Garret. Since you've given me so much lip, let me return the favor...And, having risked your neck, perhaps a little something there, as well...let us not forget that you watch people. That deserves a new pair of eyes, I should think..."

And then, having completed everything else, he had one last thing to do. He'd purposefully saved that for last.

"Now, Miss Garret. I'm afraid, it's time to change professions. Because, from now on, you will never be able to call yourself a private DICK any longer..."

And with that, I felt my manhood pulling in on itself. It was indescribable, the sensation of my dick and balls pulling back into my body, forming a slit that opened into my new, altered anatomy. I was now, biologically, female.

You want to know the odd part? I wasn't as horrified as I thought I'd be. I'd just lost my masculinity, my manhood. My body was transformed, against my will, and I wasn't overwhelmed by it.

Because, I was still ME. Not physically, but mentally. Right now, my strongest emotions were shame and anger. Shame at allowing myself to screw up this badly, and blinding rage at Sinclair, for doing it. But although I was now, physically, a woman, the essential ME, my 'soul' was untampered with - so far.

"So what happened, Sinclair," I asked cuttingly. It wasn't easy for me to get that tone right - my voice had risen in pitch, becoming a (lovely, to be honest) contralto. "Your momma didn't love you as a kid? That's why you're a psychopath?"

Sinclair laughed. "I'd watch my mouth if I were you, Miss Garret. I may be a psychopath...but I'm a psychopath with power." I could hear him leaning forward again. "Now, let's see about some mental adjustment. The thought of your original personality in such a lovely body is quite distressing..."

NOW I felt that helpless horror. Sinclair was about to alter the one thing that made me the individual that was ME - and turn me into somebody else.

You've heard the term 'saved by the bell'? In my case, it was almost literal. His hand had just touched my forehead, his ring feeling cold against my skin, when an unseen telephone rang. I heard Sinclair rise and cross the room.

"Worthington, I told you I didn't... .I see. Who is it? No, I don't think that's a good idea. Invite them in Yes, I'll be right up."

Sinclair hung up the phone. "Well, Miss Garret, it would seem that I have to go for a while. But don't worry. We'll finish this at a later date.

And then the footsteps crossed the room, and climbed the stairs. The door swung shut, and I was alone.

Time seemed to drag to a halt as I lay helpless, blind and transformed, alone in the basement of my captor. Sinclair wasn't stupid - he'd even remembered to tighten the cuffs around my now thinner wrist. There was no way to talk advantage of his absence, and I wallowed in self-pity. Three mistakes. Goddamn it, THREE! I deserved what I got. I must be slipping.

It couldn't have been more than five minutes when my reverie was cut short. The sound of a gunshot, muffled by the heavy door, but unmistakable. I tried to jerk upright, but the cuffs pulled me up short. I listened, holding my breath.

Two more shots rang out in quick succession, the silence descended once more. It wasn't until my chest began to burn that I remembered to breathe.

Moments later, the door opened. Footsteps descended the stairs - not Sinclair. Somebody else, wearing hard-soled shoes.

"Who's here? What's going on?" I asked, praying that it was a rescue attempt. I was still trying to get used to the voice now issuing from my altered vocal cords.

"Oh my. Mr. Garret, is that really you?" A rich English accent, muted with shock. I sighed. "Jeeves? What's going on?"

The blindfold was pulled off, and I saw the butler's face, filled with a mix of confusion, pity and disbelief.

"It's Worthington Miss...Sir." He corrected me absently. "When Madame Treme called and explained what Mr. Sinclair had been doing, I didn't want to believe her, but..." He trailed off, undoing my restraints and helping me up.

"What about the gunshots, Jeeves?" I asked. I was standing unsteadily, my altered body's new balance throwing me off. My shoes no longer came close to fitting my petite new feet, so I kicked them off. The butler helped me towards the stairs.

"Worthington, Ma'am...sir. After the Madame's call, I checked the surveillance cameras. I caught the last few moments of your...torture. I called down to Mr. Sinclair, and informed him that his lawyers needed to see him, and when he came upstairs, I attempted to ...kill him." Worthington heaved a sigh. "I failed, I'm afraid. I'm not experienced in the use of firearms."

I shrugged as we reached the top of the stairs. "You did your best, Jeeves. I just wish it'd been a little sooner. It might..." My voice died as I came face to face with a mirrored closet door, and got my first look at my new body.

I was shorter - about 5'5", I'd guess. My clothes hung loose and long, except across my hips and chest. I'd say I was now the not-so- proud owner of a firm pair of C-cup breasts.

My altered face could be in the dictionary beside 'cute'. Full lips, permanently curved in a slight smile. A pert, upturned nose. Bright, sparkling green eyes beneath fine eyebrows. My hair was the same hazel coloring, but was longer, hanging around my new, feminine jaw in a pageboy haircut.

Put me in a pair of jean shorts and a T-shirt, and I'd be the perfect 'Girl-next-door' - cute enough to be sexy if I wanted to, but not so beautiful to make men uncomfortable.

It was a cute, sexy, delightfully friendly female body - and if I got my hands on the man that gave it to me, I'd kill him slowly and painfully. Then revive him, and do it again. I'm sure Madame Treme would foot the medical bill. Hell, she might want to take a turn as well.

Which reminded me. . "Hey, Jeeves. Is Madame Treme on her way over?"

"Not herself, actually, but she said she was sending someone. And it's Worthington, Miss..., excuse me, sir."

I sighed (fetchingly, Goddamnit!) and shook my head. "Hell, I AM a woman now, like it or not. There's no sense in screwing you up too, Jeeves. Call my Miss Garret. Or...Stacy."

Worthington raised his brow. "You picked a new name? Or did Mr. Sinclair..."

I shook my head. "Actually, Stacy IS my real name. My parents wanted a girl, you see..." I broke off with a short laugh. "If they were still alive, they'd probably be overjoyed."

Just then, the doorbell rang. Bonged and chimed, to be more accurate. With the help of one still-stunned butler, I made it to the front door, becoming more accustomed to the strange balance of my new figure. The sensation of my new tits swaying with every step didn't help at all. My new nipples were engorged from the - admittedly pleasant - sensation of the fabric sliding over them.

I opened the door, and found myself face to face with Jace. Behind him was Tonya. They both held rather large caliber firearms, pointed at me.

"Whoa, easy Jace. Put down the artillery before you hurt yourself."

New body, new vocal cords - same personality. Jace gaped, and Tonya's face filled with sympathy.

"Stacy? Is that...oh my God." Jason said, slowly holstering his gun. It took three tries. He looked at my chest, where my breasts pressed disgustingly enticingly at the fabric, my aroused nipples clearly visible. Blushing, he looked away.

"Fraid so." I sighed. Then my face hardened. (Well, as best it could, cursed with a permanently pleasant expression.) "But only until we find Sinclair. That bastard's not getting away with this."

I felt a hand on my shoulder. "Excuse me Miss Garret, but if you'll permit me to help? I feel guilty at not having realized what Mr. Sinclair was up to, and putting a stop to it."

I nodded, then turned to Jace and Tonya. "Meet our newest team member. This is Worthin..." A precise British accent interrupted me. "Jeeves."

I turned to find a weary half-grin on the butler's face. He shrugged. "It will make things easier, sir. Besides...I kind of like it." And to my surprise, he managed to startle a laugh out of me - which was his intention in the first place.

"Good enough. Let's go, people. We've got work to do."

* * * * *

Well, at least I had a sympathetic audience.

Arriving back at the House, the 'regulars' met in Madame Treme's office for an update, and a bout of pity for poor little ol' me. I wasn't used to accepting pity graciously - but Hell, I wasn't used to being a woman either. I took it with all the grace I could manage.

The disconcerting part of the meeting was Tonya - thanks to Sinclair's mental adjustment, she had a very hard time keeping her eyes off of me, and the enormous bulge in her jeans spoke louder than words.

Look, you get changed into a sexy woman against your will, and sit in an office with a muscular, buxom she-male with a cock the size of a MX missile, who wants to have you fuck and suck her silly, then we'll talk about the meaning of 'uncomfortable', okay?

Oddly enough, it was Jeeves who got most of my sympathy. No, I mean it. I went into this with my eyes open, knowing that this COULD happen. Worse, it DID happen through my own fault - I screwed up. But Jeeves just walked into the middle of this. None of it was his fault, and he even worked up enough courage to try and stop Sinclair. But the poor guy still blamed himself for not seeing this sooner.

Worse, he specifically blamed himself for not being able to help ME sooner. The poor guy was practically falling over himself trying to be helpful.

Wanted or not, I got myself a butler. He swore to serve me as a butler - free of charge, no less, - until HE felt he'd worked off his guilt. I couldn't very well say no, now could I.

I sighed. "Well, that's where we are right now. We've got a megalomaniac Plastic Surgeon with an unholy power running around, God knows where. We have to find him to stop him from doing more people. BUT, we can't just kill him, if we want to have these things changed back - but we don't know how to force him to do THAT either."

Jace looked at me, practically reading my mind. "You're not just thinking of killing him anyway, are you? You'd be stuck in that body."

I shook my head wearily. "Nope. If it was just me, I might consider it. As much as I would hate living my life as a woman, it wouldn't kill me. And the satisfaction of knowing that Sinclair would never, ever change anyone again would go a long way. But there ARE other people he's changed, and we have to try to correct that." I stood up. "In the meantime, these clothes are killing me. Is there anything around that might fit a little better?"

Thea stood as well. "Of course. We'll find you something. Come with me."

I nodded and followed her, but stopped in the doorway. "You realize, this is the worst possible scenario." Madame Treme nodded. "Yes. 'Absolute power corrupts absolutely', Miss Garret."

I snorted. "Naw. We've got a Mad Doctor on the loose. We're in danger of becoming the Hoariest plotline ever used in a Horror Movie. To win, we'll probably have to dig up a mob of torch-carrying villagers."

And turning, I followed Thea down the hall.

And now, a word of advice. If you're a recent transformee, uncomfortable in your new role as a sexy woman, and looking for clothing - a whorehouse isn't the best place to find a 'demure' or 'unisex' ensemble.

I looked through the pile of clothing that Thea had dumped on her bed. After taking my measurements - and, if there's been an upside to this, her hands roaming my body was it - she had canvassed the House for clothing in my size. This was the result.

"You must be joking." I said, making a face at the pile of clothes. In my new voice, even that came out sounding cute.

Thea frowned. "I know Dou...Stacy. But, if you can find something for a while, we could go shopping for something else. Madame Treme has extended you an unlimited line of credit."

Well, hot damn. She is a grand old lady, I'll give her that. I thought about it for a minute, then shook my head. "I don't think I'm quite ready to go shopping in this body. Going into the women's change room. . ., jeez, I'd keep expecting to be arrested as a Peeping Tom."

Going back through the pile, I decide I'd just have to settle for the least provocative outfit I could cobble together, and live with it. And, so, for the first time in my life, I put on women's clothing. Well, there WAS that Halloween when I was 15, but...never mind.

The first order of business was underwear. A matching bra and panty set, in plain black cotton, did the trick for that. I wasn't going to wear any of the lacier articles Thea had rounded up.

Since there wasn't any pants to be had, I was stuck with skirts. Thea insisted I wear nylons with it, and I finally gave in - she knew more about women's clothing than I ever did. She helped me put on a pair of black nylons, with seams up the backs. Over that went a simple dark burgundy skirt that hung just above my knees.

For a shirt, I found a simple black silk blouse. It wasn't as baggy as I'd like, but I'd live with it. For the first time, the shirt actually got the top two buttons done up - its usual owner never used them, preferring to display her cleavage.

A black leather belt went around my now slender waist. All that left was the shoes.

And there's the problem. High heels - VERY high heels, was practically the order of the day at the House. I really didn't have much choice - I couldn't walk around barefoot, especially if I had to go outside.

So, swallowing my objections, I stepped into a pair of black pumps with a 4 inch, block heel. I wobbled slightly, and walking took concentration, but it wasn't as bad as I feared. At least they weren't spike heels.

I looked in the full length mirror - and realized that my new body was turning me on. Damn, but I was so sexy in a cute way, it hurt. Pleasant smile permanently affixed to a pretty face, a trim, shapely figure - and the most spectacular ass I'd seen. Hell, I had a better ass than Thea, and that's saying something. The heels emphasized my derriere, as well as my shapely new legs.

Damned if I didn't want to date myself.

The odd thing is, seeing myself in the mirror made it easier to accept the clothing I was wearing - on the woman in the mirror, it looked right. It sounds odd, but any man prefers to see a well-dressed woman whose clothes show her figure. Even though I was now her, my still-very-much-male brain LIKED what it saw.

This was going to take some getting used to. I was confusing myself.

After dressing, Thea took me to the cafeteria. I wobbled somewhat unsteadily on the unfamiliar heels, but did well enough to get by. In fact, by the time we reached the Cafeteria, I was doing pretty well in them. (What Thea didn't tell me until later was that my somewhat long, steady stride caused my ass and hips to wiggle provocatively. By the time I found out for myself, my new stride was a habit.)

The cafeteria was doing fairly brisk business when we arrived, and I peered around for a place to sit. A waving figure caught my eye near the back corner - Jace.

"Over there" I said, nudging Thea. "Jace's got a table"

She peered over and nodded. "I see him. You go sit down, and I'll go talk to the Chef. She's got a few specials that aren't on the menu." She smiled. "Staff Only deals that's melt in your mouth."

I nodded, and we angled off in different directions.

As I approached the table, Jace surprised me. Instinctively, he stood and pulled out my chair for me. I blinked in surprise, and his face slowly colored. Holding back a cutting sarcasm, I settled into the chair on my new, fuller ass, and he pushed me in. He seemed to have a hard time keeping his eyes from where the fabric of my blouse pulled taught over my full tits.

"Uh, sorry about that, Stacy" he said, settling into his own chair. "Habit. I always hold a chair for a lady." I snorted. "I may be a woman now, Jace, but I sure as hell ain't no lady."

His blush deepened. "Uh, yeah. Part of it is, uh..." he waved his hand at me vaguely. "You look good dressed like...I mean...oh, shit."

Although I had a small smile permanently affixed, it became genuine at Jace's discomfort. He had never been politically correct - he always treated women AS women, not some of pseudo-men like the Radical Feminists would like.

"Don't worry about it, Jace." I said. "I saw myself in the mirror. As much as I hate to admit it, you're right - I do look good in this."

The walked up, and Jace jumped up to seat her too. "What are you two talking about?" she asked coyly. "Jason here is doing a wonderful impersonation of a beet."

If anything, Jace's face got redder. "Uh, nothing." He said, then managed to regain his usual persona. "Stacy and I were discussing the finer points of Feminism."

"Yeah. We decided we don't like Radical Feminists." I agreed.

Jace nodded. "Yeah. Stacy thinks a woman should be proud of herself, but LOOK and ACT like a woman." He leered at me suggestively, exaggeratedly eyeing my new body. It was my turn to blush.

I should have known better than to leave an opening like that.

I was lucky - the arrival of lunch saved my from having to use a devastatingly cutting come-back - which I did not have.

Thea was right - the Chef's Special was just that - Special. In my line of work, I usually stick to take-out, and so I couldn't tell you what half the dishes I ate were - just that the names were French.

"More Bouef De Jus Brise?" Thea asked, pointing - thankfully - at one of the dishes I'd enjoyed most.

I sighed. "If I have some more of that, I'll have some more Potato Au Gratin (that, I remembered), then I'll get fat. Don't tempt me." I said plaintively, patting my slender waist with a smile - which vanished the instant I realized what I'd just done.

The other's were eyeing me oddly as well. "Are you feeling all right, Stacy?" Jace asked with concern.

"I THOUGHT so..." I answered slowly. I cast my mind back over everything that had happened since I was, uh, 'changed'.

I hadn't really been all that upset putting on overtly feminine clothing. WHY? I had actually enjoyed the sight of my new body in such clothing. WHY? And no, I had reacted, instinctively, in a feminine manner...

And then it struck me, like a hard blow in the solar plexus. "Oh, shit." Thea's brow clouded. "What? Was it Sinclair?"

I shook my head wearily. "No. It's a mix of things. The first is hormones - I now have the hormonal mix of a normal woman. The second part is the kicker..."

"What?" Jace prodded gently.

"I have a normal, male brain. With it's own, preconceived notions of how a woman should look and act. Like the clothes - when I looked in the mirror, my MALE brain like what I saw. It's almost like schizophrenia - one part of my brain fighting the others."

The other's jaw's dropped as they got it. It isn't too hard, actually. Look - you ever spend time in a different environment? Say. A classier one? You want to fit in, so you hang around, you dress like them, etcetera. And, without even thinking about it, you begin to pick up their mannerisms, the way they speak, and so on. It's completely natural - your brain is trying to adjust so you'll fit in - it's a survival trait.

Only, I couldn't leave the 'environment' that was forcing my mind to try and adjust. I WAS female, and my mind was trying - damn hard - to allow me to fit in.

I'd have to watch myself. Carefully. Damn.

"Well, I think...What is it?" Thea turned to the waiter who'd approached discreetly. He whispered something into her delicate ear, and she nodded.

"Come on," she said, rising to her impressive height. "Madame Treme would like to see us."

* * * * *

It was good news for a change.

"I have just received some information from my contacts," she informed us, waving us into seats. Due to our now-regular gatherings, she'd had enough brought in for all of us.

"Mr. Sinclair's accountant, one Jerold Weissner, is hosting a party at his estate in the Hamptons, day after tomorrow. Now, all of Mr. Sinclairs acquaintances and business relations will be there. Mr. Sinclair, regardless of the power he now holds, will have needed to contact SOMEONE - as there is no nation-wide search for a missing person. I have arranged for you four" she said, indicating Tonya, Jason, Thea and myself "to be invited to the party as well. Perhaps you will be able to pick up some information that we can put to good use."

I nodded. "Sounds like a great idea, Madame Treme. When do we leave?"

She handed around ticket pouches. "I have taken the liberty of booking your flight. You leave in four hours. Jeeves has already left, to make arrangements at the other end. Hotel and the like." She turned specifically to me. "Also, clothing and sundries for you, Stacy. Also, I suggest you look in the folder."

I did so, and was pleasantly surprised - Driver's license, Birth Certificate, and two credit-cards, all matching the new me. Good work too

I'd seen more than my fair share of fake I.D.'s, and these were primo.

"All right, boys and girls, we got something to go on." I said, rising. "Let's get our shit together and get ready to move." It felt damn good to be doing something constructive.

Having gotten everyone else in motion, I returned to the room supplied to me by Madame Treme. I didn't have any packing to do, but I still had to get ready.

I didn't mention it to anyone, but my stomach was tied up in knots. I hadn't been this nervous since I asked Linda McKie to the prom.

I was going to have to go out and act convincingly female. I could sluff off on the way there - but I'd have to play it to the hilt at the party. With a sigh, I decided to take a shower and get cleaned up. I smelt a little gamy, and it would be relaxing.

At least, that's what I thought.

I walked into the bathroom and turned the water on, allowing the water to get warm. I started to undress - and found I was unable to resist a little voyeurism - of myself.

The room was elaborately mirrored - I couldn't look anywhere and not watch myself undress. I also was completely unable to help myself - my primal male urges were practically drooling at the idea.

I undressed slowly, teasingly, watching through the reflective glass as this slender, shapely young woman sensuously undressed. Her long, supple legs kicked out of her shoes with a movement that was almost dancing. Her fingers slowly slid up towards her blouse, seductively undoing each button.

It was a bizarre form of bio-feedback. Watching this woman undress was, frankly, erotic. And I - that is, the fundamental male part of me was getting turned on. Which cause me to become more erotic. Which turned me on even more. Which caused...

I knew what I was doing - but, although I knew it was perverse, it was also highly erotic. Can ANY red-blooded American male WILLINGLY stop himself from watching a sexy woman undress, and wish she would do it JUST the way he liked...

Only, in my case, whatever I wanted to see, I could do. It was a strip-tease perfectly tailored to my every deepest fantasy, and every errant whim.

Only, I was the woman...

I unclasped the button at the waist of the skirt, and let it fall around my ankles. Slowly, I erotically rolled the nylons off the soft, supple flesh of my long, limber legs. My hands rose to the bra, and undid it. Teasingly, I slowly pulled it away, watching my every mirrored move avidly. Finally, I slipped the panties off and stood gloriously nude before my own, lustful gaze.

I stepped into the shower, embraced by the cascade of warm water soothing my body. Hormones thrummed through my female body, igniting my every nerve ending with a need for satisfaction. My long, slender fingers rose of their own accord and began to massage my firm, round breasts. I moaned softly, my head thrown back, as my fingers worked my nipples into complete arousal.

Slowly, my right hand slid through my cleavage, moving downwards. Crossing the flat expanse of my toned, wet stomach, it closed in on the wet cleft between my silken thigh. My finger hesitated on the threshold of my eager, waiting womanhood...

And I turned the water onto COLD, full blast.

Every nerve in my body screamed as the hormone-induced lust was washed away in a tide of adrenaline.

Shivering and ashamed, I stepped naked from the shower and hurriedly towed myself dry. Gathering up my clothing, I stumbled from the oh-so- strong temptations of the mirrored room.

But I couldn't escape the memory of how GOOD it had felt to have warm hands gliding across my new body.

I sat on the bed and took deep breaths as I regained control of myself. The bathroom fiasco was a trap that I hadn't foreseen. My male brain KNEW how it would like to see a woman like this act - and now, I KNEW I had the power to make her act that way.

Only, I WAS her.

But I had no time, right now, to worry about it - I had a plane to catch. So, I ignored it for now and finished getting ready. I ducked back into the bathroom long enough to retrieve the blow-dryer and used it to dry my silky hair, then got dressed again. It felt decidedly odd to put my new I.D. in a purse (supplied by Thea), and sling it over my shoulder, but I was ready, and a quick glance in the mirror confirmed it.

I went down to the Lounge to wait for the others. Sliding onto a stool at the bar, I sipped quietly at a scotch and water - I usually wouldn't water down good booze, but I was sure this body couldn't handle alcohol as well as I was used to, and I sure as hell didn't want to get drunk.

Madame Treme's House is NEVER closed or empty, so there were still quite a few people here this time of day, but the sheer size of the room kept it from feeling crowded, and even allowed me to feel like I had a modicum of privacy. I needed that to psych myself up. As soon as my friends arrived, I would have to play the role of 'woman' in public - which I was NOT looking forward to.

Halfway through my second watered-down drink, Thea showed up, followed closely by Jace and Tonya. They'd already had their bags taken out to the cab that was waiting, so there was no longer a reason to delay.

With a deep breath, I followed them out to the waiting taxi. At least I'd had some time getting used to these heels - perhaps too used, considering the way the cabby eyed my legs as I climbed in. Thankfully, Jace took the front seat, leaving the back to just us 'girls'.

The ride to the airport could have been more comfortable. On one hand - literally - I had Thea wedged in beside my, the smooth expanse of one long leg pressed against my own nylon-clad one. The feel of her pressing into my side, and the faint fragrance of her, was wonderful.

On the other side Tonya was trying damn hard not to stare at my clearly outlined breasts - and failing. The baggy-style slacks she'd chosen still couldn't completely hide the enormous erection that the closeness of my new body was giving her, and her expression was one of barely contained lust. Well, for that matter, I was having a hard time controlling my emotions for Thea.

The cabby must have thought we were a bunch of lesbians. At least he didn't hit on us when we climbed out at the airport - I wasn't quite ready to handle that.

"Tonya, people are going to stare if you don't get that thing under control." I whispered to the muscular black woman as we walked through the concourse. Her carry-on was held in clasped hands in front of her, somewhat hiding the bulge straining the crotch of her pants.

She swallowed. "I'm sorry Stacy." She said huskily. "But, I can't help myself." I stiffened as her strong hand discreetly fondled my spectacular new ass. "But a couple of minutes in the Ladies room, and you could get rid of the erection."

I started to retort - then had to restrain a grim laugh.

Out of pure habit, I'd almost replied with "Fuck you." NOT the right thing to say to her right now. "Just think about Sinclair" I whispered, then moved out of range of Tonya's wandering hands.

* * * * *

Now, let's get this straight right at the outset - I AM NOT afraid of flying.

The fact that I leave my seatbelt on the entire flight, and hold my breath from touchdown to roll-out is NOT fear. Not at all. It's merely informed concern over the current safety records of airlines since deregulation.

However, on this particular flight, I was so involved with a myriad of new experiences that I forgot to be afraid...uh, concerned.

Since my transformation, the only people I'd had to deal with new the truth. During the flight, I was exposed to the public, who only saw, and reacted to, an attractive young woman.

It's amazing that even I, a trained observer, had never noticed before now, just HOW different men and women really are. I'd caught all the major things - but it was those thousands of subtle points that I kept stumbling over.

For instance - I bet you never noticed that stewardesses - sorry, 'Flight Attendants', lean in closer, and speak in a quieter voice, with the women than they do with the men. They were also more at ease around me as a woman than they'd ever been when I was a man. They felt they didn't have to worry about me peeking down their blouses, for example. (They were wrong, but THEY didn't know that...)

Then there was the seating thing. When a stewardess told a man where HIS seat was, she'd guide him with one hand about an inch from his back, never actually touching. With me, she actually put her hand on my back when she guided me.

There was thousands of other little points, but that gives you some idea. It also told me something - playing a female persona would be harder than I originally thought. Through the flight, I watched every tiny, subtle thing that women did, and filed them away for future reference. How to sit. How to stand. How to talk - to men, and to women. It was a crash course for the party I'd be attending, less than 48 hours from now, and I had to learn quick.

Thankfully, the flight was more or less on time, pulling up to the jetway with practiced precision. Since Jace, Thea and Tonya had nothing but carry-ons, and I didn't even have that, we didn't have to wait for luggage that may or may not be coming.

A familiar face was waiting to greet us outside the main doors of the terminal. Jeeves smiled politely as we came out, and immediately moved to help load the luggage into the already open trunk of the long, white limo.

"It was a good flight, I trust?" he asked politely as he pushed the lid down.

"Oh, tolerable", I allowed as he opened the rear door, The other three climbed in, but I hesitated. "Something amiss, Miss Garret?" Jeeves asked as I held back. I shook my head.

"I think I'll sit up front with you, Jeeves."

His eyebrow rose in an unspoken question, but he merely held the door open as I slid into the passenger's side seat. The last thing I needed was Tonya leering at me the entire ride to the Hotel. She'd barely kept control of herself in the airplane, and she'd been two seats away from me. I wondered what her fixation on me was - she'd been sitting right next to Thea, yet barely glanced at her.

"Are you getting along alright, Miss Garret?" Jeeves asked, looking over at me. "You seem to be getting used to the clothing, at the very least."

"Getting used to may be too strong." I sighed. "Putting up with, is probably closer to the truth."

He smiled. "Then you should be happy to know that when I outfitted your closets, I included jeans, sweatshirts and running shoes, Miss Garret."

I smiled and, without thinking replied "Jeeves, I could kiss you."

It was a common remark - I'd made it dozens of times as a guy, to a guy. But it had never received this response.

Jeeves had the typical milky-white British complexion, and the blush that formed shone like a beacon. He glanced quickly at me, then away. It struck me that that was PRECISELY what Jeeves would have liked, but had been too gentlemanly to give any indication - until I surprised him with it.

"Jeeves?" I asked, slightly shocked.

"I'm sorry, Miss Garret." He said, blushing furiously. "But you are quite attractive, physically, and I happen to find your personality quite...entertaining."

Oh, great. Just what I needed.

The thing was - no I began to blush. It suddenly dawned on me that I had come to like the butler - just friendly, I hadn't even considered the male-female aspect of it, because I was still thinking of myself as male. Besides, he was too old for me...

WHAT THE HELL WAS I THINKING!

We remained in embarrassed silence for the rest of the ride.

* * * * *

It was a considerable relief to get to my room. I quickly stepped out of my skirt/blouse outfit and relaxed when I pulled on a pair of jeans and a sweatshirt, both of which were slightly baggy. The jeans were normal Levi's, but I could have done without the white sweatshirt emblazoned with the logo of a local Women's Collage - it fit my 'girl next door' image too damn well.

Likewise, the pink socks and pink and white sneakers wouldn't have been my first choice. At least the underwear - plain white cotton briefs - weren't too offensive. For comfort, I decided to forego the matching bra, even though the sensations created - both from the sway of my unrestrained breasts and the feel of the fabric sliding across my sensitive nipples - were slightly distracting.

But DAMN pleasurable, I have to admit.

Dressed more comfortably, I flopped down on the large bed and relaxed, one arm behind my head, while the other one used the remote to flip through the available channels. The party wasn't until tomorrow night, and we'd agreed to hold a strategy session shortly before we left for it. Which left almost 24 hours to relax.

Just then there was a knock on the door to my suite. Clicking the TV off, I went to the door and pulled it open.

"Hi, Jace. Come on in." I said, holding the door open. He'd also taken the chance to change into jeans and a T-shirt, which, as usual, fit his muscular body as if tailored specifically for him.

"Actually, I came over to see if you wanted to go out." He said, declining the invitation. "Oh? Where?"

"The latest action flick's playing at a theater a block from here. I thought I'd go see it. Want to tag along?"

Huh. Going to see a movie while on a case was a new one for me - but a LOT of things in this case were new for me, and this was the least of them. I nodded, and went to grab my wallet.

And, sighing, sling my purse over my shoulder. Some things take some getting used to. Locking the door behind me, I dropped the key into my purse.

To my surprise, the movie was actually quite enjoyable. I was really getting into the flick, which was one of the few action flick's that was half-way intelligent, when I became aware of something.

Jace's arm resting on the seat back behind me.

It had been there for almost half an hour now. His hand had started lightly massaging my shoulder immediately, but had been slowly moving downwards. Now, it was under my armpit, lightly caressing my firm, sensitive tit.

Without a word I got up and left the theatre, trying to keep my emotions under strong control. I wandered along the sunlit street, not really caring where my feet took me.

Because I'd been enjoying it.

I hadn't noticed it happening. I was so engrossed in the film, it only registered as a pleasurable sensation, and I hadn't paid any attention - until I had instinctively leaned in closer to Jace. It was then, when I realized what I was doing, that I'd gotten up and left.

Yet part of me hadn't wanted to. Regardless of how disgusting I found the THOUGHT of a man fondling me - the actual FEEL of one doing so had been very, very nice.

It scared me.

I heard footsteps behind me, and Jace's voice came from over my shoulder. "Stacy, look, I'm sorry..."

I spun around, and my contralto voice whiplashed with as much anger as I could project. "You BASTARD! You slimy little slug. How could you do that to me! To ME! I. . . I,..."

I had to stop talking - because I was crying. I couldn't help myself. The sobs wracked my body as I stood, helplessly bawling.

And then, I felt Jace step forward and wrap his arms around me, pulling me to him. I wanted to pull away, but had no strength as the sobs shook me. I buried my face in his broad chest and cried.

Slowly, the crying tapered off, and shame ran through me. I was standing in the encircling arms of my oldest friend, while he gently stroke my hair. I looked up. "Jace..."

That's as far as I got. He kissed me.

His lips pressed firmly against mine, and I stiffened. I was being kissed by a MAN! By my oldest, most trusted friend. By a strong, handsome man, whose warm, strong arms held me tight while he kissed me both more passionately and more tenderly than I'd ever been kissed before.

By a man whose hands now slid down to caress my firm, full ass as my braless breasts pushed against his muscular chest. Waves of pleasure filled me at his touch, and our tongues intertwined passionately.

I was horrified. I was ecstatic. It was horrible, wonderful, shameful, erotic. I wanted to pull away. I never wanted it to end.

I wanted him to take me back to the hotel and fuck my brains out.

With a tremendous burst of will power, I tore myself away from him. "Don't EVER touch me again." I said huskily, as my body screamed for just that. I turned from him and hurried away. He didn't try to catch me this time.

He yelled after me. "Fine, go to Tonya then. Make HER happy." What the hell was happening to me?

And then, in an instant, I knew. I KNEW.

Because, coming out of the hotel, directly in front of me, and still dressed in the clothes he'd worn on the plane, was Jason R. Crosby, movie star, ex-cop, and my oldest friend.

Which meant the person who'd taken me to the theatre, who I'd kissed, had been...

"SINCLAIR!" I screamed so loud it felt like jagged fishhooks were ripping through my vocal cords. "I'LL KILL YOU, YOU BASTARD!"

And Jace - the real Jace - arrived just in time as I collapsed, sobbing, into his arms, while he held me tentatively, his face twisted in mixed concern and disbelief.

* * * * *

I told my story sitting on the bed of Tonya's room. Or rather, on Jace's lap, while his arms were rapped around me while he sat on the bed.

It was either give in to my artificial 'need', or send him away. And he had to hear this. So, I gave in unwillingly - and shamefully enjoyed every second of it.

"Well, now I know why I'm so attracted to you." Tonya said, unable to keep jealousy from her eyes as she watched Jace embracing me.

Thea nodded. "If Sinclair can look like ANYONE, he had no trouble 'altering' you a bit after he did Stacy."

I nodded, then sighed. "Tonya, this is partly my fault. I keep under- estimating the bastard." I looked around the group with a steely eye, opened my mouth - then hesitated.

This was going to be the hardest thing I'd ever done. But I did it.

"Next time we're sure we have him - kill him." I said as coldly as my pleasing contralto would allow. "No hesitation." Everybody gasped.

"But, Stacy..." Jace managed, sounding strangled. "...you'd be stuck like that."

I nodded. "But it's easier to live like this, then living with my conscience if he continue this shape-changing spree he's on. We HAVE to make sure he's gone."

As tough as it was, we all agreed. I leaned back, for once not ashamed as I stole strength from Jace's muscular body. I had to face the facts.

Now, and forever, this is who I am, and would be. There was no other choice.

* * * * *

I looked at Jace as we filed out of the room. "Thanks for your. . .support." I said, trying to ignore Tonya's lustful gaze. Jace looked troubled. "Uh, no problem. To tell you the truth, it felt...good." He was blushing furiously.

Part of me was screaming for me to invite him back to my room, so that we could spend the night...

I squashed the thought with difficulty, none of which showed in my face or voice as I wished Jace a good night, and went to my room. It took hours before I was able to sleep, visions of Jace's nude body still dancing in my lust-filled mind.

* * * * *

However, facing up to who - and what - I was going to be didn't make dressing for the party the next evening any easier. It was a very set, formal affair. And so, I looked in dismay at my outfit, then shrugged, and proceeded to put it on.

First was the lacy black panties. They were cut high on the hips, and low near the waist. There was no bra to go with them.

Next was the black nylons, with elasticized lace at the top. I rolled them carefully up my long legs, their silky smoothness feeling cool on my smooth skin.

Over this when a deep burgundy dress. It was velvet and silk, hanging tight at my slender waist and along my legs. The bottom flared out around my ankles, and the neckline was 'cowled', draped artfully in a loose way, making my bust look larger than it actually was, without showing so much as an outline of my true bustline.

Then, with a sigh, I stepped into the four inch tall spike heeled pumps that went with the outfit. I picked up my purse, and checked the contents.

I would have preferred my reliable old Colt .45 Model 1911, but my new, slender wrists couldn't handle such punishing recoil. So, instead, a .38 Special nestled in my black leather purse, it's blued finish gleaming dangerously.

Snapping the purse closed, I was ready to go. I had already had Thea come in and do my make-up earlier. As much as I wished I didn't have too, the circumstances demanded it. Thea had used as light as touch as possible, but even that had emphasized my full, smiling lips and large, liquid eyes. I checked my watch and headed out the door, a couple of minutes early. I wasn't intending to perpetuate the myth that women always made the men wait.

I smiled grimly to see that Thea and Tonya were also ready. The three 'women' were waiting on Jace. Thea was dressed - spectacularly - in a simple, form-fitting black silk dress. Tonya wore a feminine version of a tux, and it looked pretty good on her muscular frame. It also helped hide the huge bulge at her crotch - although, if you knew what to look for, you could still see it. But we were ready before Jace was. We shared a smug glance.

Right until the elevator 'dinged'. The silvered doors slid open to reveal Jeeve's serene face. "Are you ladies ready?" he asked politely. "Mr. Crosby is waiting in the limo."

Damn.

The ride was spent quietly discussing signals and the like, things by which we might spot Sinclair. All though he could change his appearance, he'd have the same habits - the way he stood, what he ordered to drink, etc.

Thea, who had spent the most time near him, surprised us all by how much of his subtle mannerisms she remembered. It slightly depressed me, though.

Who HADN'T I underestimated recently?

So, with all our deep conversation, plus our limited knowledge of this part of the country, it took us awhile to figure out that we were going the wrong way - out into the middle of nowhere.

"What the?..." Jace sputtered, the first to realize. That clued the rest of us in.

'Jeeves' voice came over the intercom with an ugly chuckle. "Well, well, the junior detectives finally wise up." "Sinclair" Tonya grated. I failed to notice that her hand was already in her purse.

"In the flesh." He agreed in Jeeves voice. "As it were."

Tonya screamed and drew her gun. My big, kick-ass .45, because HER wrists had no problem with the recoil. "NO, don't!..." I cried, grabbing across two people for the gun.

I didn't make it.

The gun went off, sounding like the coming of Armageddon in the enclosed space. 18 grams of lead sheathed in copper rocket out of the barrel of the venerable Colt, moving at 940 feet per second. In less the blink of an eye, the slug traveled the distance from the muzzle to the divider between the driver and the passenger sections.

And ricocheted off the bullet-proof glass.

I felt the slug plow into me more as pressure than pain - the piece of metal was actually moving faster than the nerves in my body could transmit information. But, from past experience, I knew pain would come soon, in a terrible blossom.

I also knew just how bad the wound was.

Though Sinclair must have also known the glass was bullet-proof - it was standard practice - it startled him enough that the stretched Caddie veered off the road.

Everyone hung on to whatever they could. My wound had just begun to scream when the car ran off the side of the road into the ditch. It tipped sideways, slamming into the ground on the passenger side.

Thea and Jace were knocked sideways onto Tonya. Her head hit the metal frame of the car, and I saw her pass out. Before I could move, the door swung open, now above my head, and Sinclair stood there.

He still wore Jeeves' body - if Jeeves had been on steroids. His enormous musculature rippled as he hauled me out of the car and held me with one enormous arm. I'm ashamed to say I was whimpering from the enormous pain of my wound - which had passed through my kidney and spine, leaving me paralyzed from the waist down, and hushing blood like a fountain. Sinclair pulled me towards the road.

Jace's head appeared over the edge of the over-turned car, his .357 firmly gripped in one blood-slicked hand. "Let her go and give up, Sinclair. It's over."

Sinclair laughed. "I don't think so, Mr. Crosby. I really don't think so. You see, Miss Garret is paraplegic, and dying - but I can save her. But only if you let me go. That's the deal, Mr. Crosby."

"Don't do it!" I cried through my curtain of pain. "Shoot hi..." My voice died as the pain took me, and everything went black.

* * * * *

I awoke slowly, stretching luxuriously with my eyes closed. I yawned and opened my eyes, blinking in the muted light coming in from the window - and then I frowned, and sat upright.

Where the hell was I?

It was a motel room - a fairly cheap one. The walls were faded beige, the furnishings battered and inexpensive. Yet I couldn't recall how I got here.

In fact - I couldn't recall ANYTHING from before I woke up. My mind was a complete blank.

I fought down panic. Even my body felt odd to me. I couldn't remember a single thing at all, and it scared me. Swinging my feet over the side of the tousled bed, I stood up.

And almost fell flat on my face.

After a second of pinwheeling my arms, I managed to regain my balance. Blood thundered in my ears as adrenaline flooded my body, and I wondered what in hell was wrong with me. Not only was my mind a complete blank, but my sense of balance was all out of whack.

Was I dying? But I FELT fine, physically.

Walking carefully, I approached the full-length mirror on the wall and carefully looked myself over, sighing in relief to find I looked perfectly normal.

My deliciously long, sexy legs (they weren't that long before!) led up to the same full, womanly hips I've always had (no, you're a man, damn it!). My waist was still delightfully (impossibly) slender. And there was nothing (everything!) wrong with my magnificent (freakish) 68 GGG tits either. I smiled at my reflection, and lightly touched my enormous breasts. God, I was (a caricature of) a sexy woman!

I frowned again. Why did I still feel uneasy about the way I looked then? It was like, I dunno, some part of my was upset at what I saw in the mirror. But, I loved my body. (No! It's not our body!)

I shook my head at the thought. That action caused my enormously full mane of wavy brown hair to sway, and I enjoyed the feel of it brushing across my shoulders and back. It wasn't terribly long, hanging midway down my smooth back, but was gloriously full.

But I still couldn't remember.

Okay, first things first. My name. My name is...Stacy! Yeah, that sounds right. I don't know why, but I'm sure that's it. I'm Stacy. Stacy... Damn. Nothing would come for a last name. I must have one, but I couldn't remember it.

I.D.! I can look at my I.D.!

I looked around, and quickly spotted my purse sitting atop a suitcase, and sighed with relief. I walked over to it, enjoying (hating) the sway and bounce of my breasts, and the way the cool air made my (huge) nipples stand at attention.

Rooting in my purse, I quickly found my driver's license. Opening it up, I read off the name. "Stacy...Staxx?" I said aloud in my lovely contralto. (Garret! It's Garret!) I blinked. It didn't ring any bells.

"Hell, It must be right." I said, smiling. "That's my gorgeous face in the photo." (Dear god! Why do I sound like a phone sex girl from Georgia!)

Well, enough lolly-gagging. Sitting around wouldn't do me any good. Dropping the I.D. back into my purse, I moved it aside and opened my suitcase.

I pulled out a pair of panties and a bra. White lace. Quickly I slipped them on. I had a little bit of trouble getting the under-wire bra on over my magnificent (gigantic) tits, and I frowned. Hell I must have done this... Well, I couldn't REMEMBER doing this before, but I MUST have, right? (Wrong!)

I shook my head again, wondering why I couldn't shake the negative feelings from somewhere. Ignoring them, I finished gelling dressed in my usual outfit.

Tight blue jeans - which looked great pulled taught of my spectacular ass. An off-white T-shirt that molded itself over my glorious, bra encased tits. Pink socks.

Walking over to the mirror, I sat down, and began putting on my make- up.

And stopped, confused. What the hell was wrong with me? It looked like a mess. I washed my face and began again, concentrating harder.

Gloss red lipstick on my full, soft lips. A light blush over my high cheekbones. Eyeshadow and mascara for my gloriously liquid hazel eyes.

It took awhile and I had to concentrate, but I finally got it right.

Grabbing my purse, I stepped into my knee-high black leather boots with their six-inch spike heel. I headed for the door - and found it a little difficult to maintain my usual (unbelievably erotic) stride. But I ALWAYS wore high heels. (NO. I DON'T!)

Well, I got used to it quick enough it didn't matter. I stepped outside and locked the door behind me, then headed down towards the restaurant.

Walking into the restaurant - well, more of a diner, really, - was like an instant ego boost. The eyes of every man in the place immediately locked onto me and followed my every movement.

I put an extra little sway into my hips as I walked to a booth and sat down.

Almost instantly, a muscular man, dressed in such a way that instantly identified him as a trucker, wandered over. "Mornin' miss." He said in a pleasantly gravelly voice. "I was wonderin' if you'd like some company."

(No!) "Sure, handsome" I said, smiling, "make your self at home."

I felt a delightful (disgusting) warmth building in my loins as he sat down across from me. I liked (hated) the way his eyes caressed the taut fabric over my magnificent tits.

He introduced himself as Ed, and insisted on paying for my breakfast. We went through the little ritual, covering what we really meant with small talk while we ate.

"So, y'all heading right back out again?" I asked, smiling suggestively. "Oh, I got some time to spare, I 'spose." He allowed, eyeing me hungrily.

"Well, we don't we go back to my room, and see if we can't find something to while away the time." I suggested. (Oh, God, NO!) That was one offer he wasn't going to refuse.

I led him back to my room, knowing he was watching my ass sway as I walked. Letting him into my room, I pulled the door shut behind me.

Instantly, he was on me. Quickly, but gently, he pushed me against the door while his lips came down on mine. We kissed hungrily, passionately, as his hands wrapped around my ass and he began to fondle my full, firm cheeks.

He broke the kiss. "Damn, you are HOT, girl." He whispered as his hands peeled my T-shirt off, revealing my bra-encased tits. Seconds later, they hung free, displayed in all their glory.

I moaned as he began to caress them. His mouth came down and he began to lick and suck my engorged nipples, and I kicked off my boots.

At the same time, our hands went to each other's jeans, unzipping them. Quickly, we shucked off our remaining clothing, and I smiled as his thick cock sprang out, throbbing with the blood filling it.

Without a word I moved to the bed and lay down. He followed my, practically drooling. I spread my long, supple legs, and one hand slid between my silky thighs.

"Now, lover boy" I said huskily - and he complied.

I gave a small, ecstatic cry as his throbbing member slid into my wet, ready cunt.

He took his time, making it last, and I cooperated whole heartedly. We moved together in rhythm, trying to hold off his cumming for as long as possible. Waves of pure pleasure wracked my body in slow waves as his thick cock filled me, pounding in and out of my waiting womanhood.

Finally, it got too much for me. Orgasmic fire flowed through my veins and I shook and writhed in orgasmic ecstasy. The muscles of my cunt tightened, pushing him over the brink, and he poured his hot seed deep into my cunt.

We collapsed together. I lay there, unable to move, as the last of my orgasm thundered through my body. I lay, eyes closed, savoring the afterglow of our fucking, while he kissed me, dressed and left. Slowly, I opened my eyes.

Looking over, I frowned. Laying on my bedtable where four crumpled twenties. He'd thought I was a hooker!

Hell. Maybe I am.

I thought about it - making a living fucking men. Getting paid to have men fill my every orifice. Fucking my brains out every day. I smiled.

(I cried.)

* * * * *

I walked out of the gate, feeling the eyes of the young gate attendant watching me as I walked away, and enjoying it.

It had been a great two months. And I felt fantastic. Now and then, I'd hit a bump in the road where my amnesia would reach up and smack me in the face, to let me know it was still there, but I always got through these bouts with little problem. As scary as not having a past was, at least having such a fantastic present helped.

Two months. Two months of fantastic sex, four or five times a day, on average, and sometimes as much as a dozen.

And I had made a FORTUNE.

It was almost as if, somehow, I always understood EXACTLY what men wanted. As if, in some strange way, I could THINK like a man, enough to catch every signal, every desire, and use it to make every fuck absolutely mind-blowing for my customers.

And they paid top dollar for that.

It had been one of my clients comments that led me here. He'd told me I was 'wasting my time in such a shit-burg town', and I found myself thinking it over.

Now, as I headed towards the main doors of the terminal, an eager excitement filled my as I stood on the brink of conquering the 'Big City'. It meant more money, because prices were higher here. It meant a better place to live, more luxuries.

It meant thousands and thousands of men to fuck.

I smiled at the bored looking security guard near the doors, and his eyeballs practically popped out of his head as he saw me. I knew I looked damn good. Or, maybe FUCKING good...

I was dressed in a Donna Karen suit. But not a regular D.K. The seamstress I'd gone to had almost choked on the thought of altering an original D.K., but had finally agreed to tailor it to my specifications, and now it looked absolutely perfect as my travelling outfit.

I knew exactly what the stunned guard was seeing. First, there was my feet, encased in black pumps with an ankle strap, and gold- toned 6 inch spiked heels, which did mind-blowing things form my legs and ass.

My long, shapely legs were encased in black nylons with seems at the back, held in place by garters. The beige skirt, originally cut to hand just above the knees, was now re-tailored to mid-thigh, barely covering the black, French-cut lace panties that hid my newly shaved 'money maker'.

It was belted with a thin black leather belt with a golden buckle, clearly defining my slender waist. My silk blouse had been specially made, and not only clung to me like a second skin, but didn't even HAVE the three top buttons, displaying a generous amount of creamy tit-flesh and a mouth-watering cleavage. Over this was the beige jacket, with my black leather purse over on shoulder.

My gloriously full hair had been pulled back, gather into a gold and tiger's eye barrette before fanning back out along my back. I'd opted for toned-down make-up, sophisticated yet alluring, emphasizing my full, kissable lips and deep, limpid eyes.

I looked sophisticated, wealthy - and mind-blowingly erotic.

I carried no other luggage - with such an inflated bank account, I'd find a place here in town, then buy a whole new wardrobe. All 'high- class' stuff like I wore now, sophisticated and sexy.

'I'm not a CHEAP whore,' I thought with a smile as the guard scrambled to open the door for me. I loved the way men always became so unbelievably helpful when I was around.

Stepping outside, I took a deep breath (doing wonderful things to my bustline), and enjoyed the glorious day. Rather than catch a cab, I thought I'd walk for a bit, enjoying the weather, the feel of the city - and the way men drooled as I walked by.

A tall, muscular, on by god, absolutely gorgeous, man was walking out of a store as I passed by, and I was we bumped into each other. He turned, saw who he'd bumped, and smiled.

"Sorry about that, miss." He said with a most charming grin. God, he was HOT. (Jace! It's Jace!) I smiled back. And suddenly, blinked and gaped at him.

He looked familiar. I couldn't place him, but... He frowned at my expression. "Are you all..."

"Jace?" I asked hesitantly, the name floating up somewhere from the depths of my mind. With it came an image - Him, younger, but still handsome, in a police uniform...

His face took on an expression that I couldn't name. "What? What did you say..." And then his eyes widened. "Stacy? It that you?" I sighed and tension I didn't know was even there went out of me.

"YES!" I said, grabbing his arm. "You know me! Oh, thank god, I finally can find out about my past. Please, you have to tell me, how do you know me? From where, when. WHO AM I?"

He looked pole-axed. "You...you don't know who you are?"

"Well, I know I'm Stacy Staxx, 23 years old, and living - lived - in Georgia for some time. My name and age from my driver's license, and Georgia from my accent. I woke up two months ago with amnesia. Please, I need your help."

He looked stunned. "Staxx? No, it's Garret. Stacy Garret..." he said, puzzled. The name leapt out at me. "Garret. It sounds...right, somehow. But, my license..."

He took my arm. "Look, don't worry, everything will be all right." He pulled out a cell phone and punched in some numbers. "Madame Treme?... Get the others together, I'm coming back right now... No, not it's not Sinclair, I've found Stacy!...Right here beside me...No, she doesn't - she woke up with amnesia two months ago ... that's right...uh, no, she's, um, different. You'll have to wait until we get there and see...yeah."

He hung up, and led me towards a car. I wasn't really paying attention. While he'd talked, the name's jumped out at me. Madame Treme, Sinclair - they both rang a bell, but I couldn't quite place them . .

I was pulled out of my fruitless efforts to remember when we pulled up to a red brick building, and Jace led me towards the door. Dear god, what if I was wrong. How did I know he was my friend. I began to panic.

"Wait" I said, frightened, "I'm not sure..."

And then we were inside, and all my fears vanished. I knew this place. I KNEW this place.

It was a whorehouse. I relaxed, and smiled up at Jace.

"I worked here, didn't I!" I said enthusiastically. "Oh, god, you guys must have been worried sick. Wow, I've been hooking since the amnesia, and I was damn good, but I could have been back here. . "

Jace was looking at me oddly. "Uh, yeah, Madame Treme DID hire you. . ." he said. I followed him eagerly up a flight of stairs. "So, Jace, when can I get back to work? I know you're worried about me, but god, I really could use a good fucking..."

Jace seemed to struggling to control his face, and I wondered why. But he didn't say anything, and led me through an ornately carved door into an office.

The room was filled with people, and I knew them all. I stopped dead, while they all looked at me with what almost looked like a mix of awe an...horror?

"What? Is something wrong?" I asked

"We're just glad to see you okay, my dear." An older, but still attractive woman said, standing up from behind the desk. "It's been two months, and we were worried..."

I took a stab. "Madame Treme, right?"

She nodded, and introduced me to everyone else in the room. My eyes paused briefly on the muscular black named Tonya. Her jeans were bulging impressively at the crotch, almost as if...

Madame Treme broke my train of thought, gesturing me towards a chair. "Now, my dear, please fill us in on what happened to you..."

* * * * *

For some reason, parts of my story caused odd expressions on the faces of my...friends? Co-workers? Both? Anyway, they let me finish the story without interrupting. Finally, Madame Treme stood.

"Look, I'm eager to find out about my past, and to get to know you all again." I said, also standing. "But we'll have plenty of time for that, now that I'm back. Right now, can I get back to work? Please? I'm so god damn horny, I can barely think straight."

The others in the room shared some sort of glance. Madame Treme looked at me, then sighed. "You really, really DO need to do this, don't you."

"Oh, fuck, yes. It's not the money, I need to get some sex. If you don't want me to go back to work right away, well, Jace here could probably keep me satisfied for a couple of hours at least." I smiled at Jace, and was shocked to see...what? Repugnance? Disgust? Shame? Whatever it was, it was also mixed with a damn healthy dose of lust, at least.

"No, I think it would be for the best if you do go back to work for now." Madame Treme said slowly. "Tonya...take Stacy to her room and...help her relax, if you'd like."

The muscular woman nodded, and led me out. I followed close behind her.

"Uh, I don't know how to put this..." I said, trying to be tactful, "...but, uh, they way your pants bulge..."

She didn't answer me as she led me into a spacious suite, elegantly decorated, and I figured I'd insulted her. "I'm sorry..." I started - then Tonya kissed me.

It was a hungry, needing kiss. Pure lust drove that kiss, and I responded instinctively. Our breasts pushed against each other as her muscular arms pulled me tightly to her.

"Oh, God, I NEED you..." Tonya moaned. Frantically, her hands tore at her zipper. Literally - she just ripped the pants open and tore the underwear from her body with one muscular motion.

And the most enormous, thick, alluring cock I'd ever seen sprung free. Its head was almost purple from the state of her erection, and the cock throbbed hungrily with each beat of her heart.

"Please..." Tonya moaned. "Suck it..."

Reverently, I sank to my knees. My tits were so massive that they pressed against Tonya's muscular legs as I leaned forward.

And took the head of her enormous, pulsating ebony cock into my mouth. It filled my lips, sliding past my full, soft lips into the moistness of my mouth. The feel, the taste, the smell of it - God, it was wonderful! It was addictive.

That's all I could fit - and even that was a stretch. Eagerly, my slender hands wrapped around it ebony thickness and began to pump as my long, supple tongue began to work on her sensitive glans.

She moaned loudly as my full, soft lips created suction, and my hands and tongue provided stimulation. She entwined her hands in my mass of luxurious hair, grunting as I worked to bring her off.

I used every cock-sucking skill I had. I brought her to the brink - then back down. I teased her, I drove her beyond anything I'd ever done before. The feel of her veined ebony shaft under my stocking hands, the taste and texture of what I could fit in my mouth... This, THIS was the cock that was created to be sucked. I would have tried to do this for ever - but, I also wanted to make her give my her sure-to- be- orgasmic cum.

I succeeded.

Like some geyser, an unbelievably delicious flow of hot, salty cum flooded my mouth. No normal human being could possibly swallow such a tremendous gush of cum.

I could.

Swallowing greedily, I gulped at the glorious taste filling my mouth. The flow of hot cum was the most mind-blowingly satisfying taste I'd ever known, and I succeeded in my quest not to spill a single drop of the precious fluid from her huge rod.

As soon as I had finished, Tonya's face suddenly screwed up, as if she'd committed some horrible sin. "Oh, God, Stacy, I'm so sorry. I couldn't help myself. For more then two months I've been going crazy with the need. . " She sounded like she was going to cry.

I wrapped my arms around her, and kissed her, giving her a taste of her own, delicious cum.

"Tonya, that was the best 'welcome home' I could have wished for." I told her, gently fondling her deflating cock. "Next time though, I'm going to fuck this monster of yours..."

For some reason, she shuddered.

* * * * *

For the next couple of weeks, life was good for me. I saw clients during the day, and got reacquainted with my friends during the evenings - especially Jace.

It was odd, but the avoided talking too much about my past - but I didn't mind, really. From what I learned, amnesia is quite often caused by an event so traumatic that the brain doesn't want to deal with it. If that's what happened to me, it was best to let it alone.

Oddly enough, I turned out to have my own butler - a nice older man named Jeeves. I didn't realize butlers were so attentive - Jeeves tried damn hard to make sure my every want was met - except one. Despite his obvious attraction, he kept things completely professional. Too bad - he was kinda cute.

Thea and I became very close friends. Sometimes, I'd see some sort of obscure sadness in her eyes when we talked, and I'd wonder what our relationship had been like before.

And I fell madly, passionately, hopelessly in love with Jace - which seemed to bother him deeply.

We talked about it - in fact, the evening I told him, we were on the couch in my suite. At first, he'd been very stiff around me, but he'd quickly loosened up.

So, I leaned over and kissed him.

He stiffened suddenly, the gently pulled away. It hurt, deeply.

"Jace, I don't know what happened between us in the past." I said, taking his hand. "But whatever it is, it's over. Jason, I love you." He sighed deeply. "I love you too, Stacy." He said, and my heart swelled - only to be dashed as he continued. "That's the problem." That's all he'd say.

So, aside from the love of my life shunning anything stronger than simple friendship, life was pretty good.

* * * * *

I was just finishing my shift, and was sitting at the bar, sipping a rum and coke. Business had been good today, and I was feeling especially pleased - I'd finally talked Tonya into letting me suck that monster of hers again. God, I loved that! But as of yet, no luck in getting her to fuck me with it.

I felt a tap on my shoulder, and turned around.

It was a tall, slender man with a coffee-and-cream complexion. I'd seen him around in the past couple of days. "Hi, you're Stacy, right?" he said in a mellow voice, holding out his hand. I shook it.

"Sure am. What can I do for you, honey?" He nodded towards the stairs. "You busy?"

I smiled. "Never to busy for that, sugar. Follow me."

He did just that. Once in my room, he seemed awfully eager to proceed. In no time, I was on my back, moaning, as he fucked me powerfully.

Then he smiled and, still fucking me, everything changed.

His body changed completely, while at the same time, I was finally given my mind back.

For the past three months, it had been as if my mind was trapped helplessly in the body of someone else, feeling, seeing and hearing everything, but unable to control the body. Now, both personas merged back together. 'Stacy Staxx' wasn't gone - but she no longer had any lack of memories, and I once more was whole.

"Sinclair" I gasped, as he continued to fuck me. "You. .oh. . .bastard. . ." He laughed. "Want me to stop?"

"Ye...oh, god!...NO, you son of a. .oh , harder. . ." I cried. I hated this man's guts - but I needed to get fucked. It felt SO good, and I never wanted to stop. Sinclair laughed again, as if he knew what I was thinking and feeling.

"I didn't think so." He chuckled, cheerfully fucking my brains out. "Don't worry, after I'm done fucking - and humiliating - you, I'll put the other persona back in charge, and you won't remember any of this."

No, he wouldn't. Because the door flew open, and Jace raised the gun he carried and calmly blew Sinclair's brains out.

* * * * *

We gathered again in Madame Treme's office.

"I'm sorry to use you like bait, but we knew he couldn't resist forever." Jace said. "So we bugged your room, and somebody was always monitoring for him."

I shrugged. "The bastard's finally dead. That's what matters." I sighed. "But you could have waited until he finished." Thea shook her head. "We had to act while you were still...you, I guess. You know."

I nodded. "Thank you. It was a good call."

Jace looked upset. "I'm just sorry we couldn't make him change you back before we had to kill him. Or, take away your compulsion for near- constant sex, at least."

I thought about that. "No, actually, I'm glad neither happened." Dead silence. "Excuse me?"

I sighed. "Even with the compulsion, and my female body, I'm still having some trouble accepting what I've done. If I were back to me - the real 'me', that is - I'd probably blow my brains out with a gun."

Jace nodded slowly. "I see what you mean. But now you're stuck like this forever. What are you going to do?" Madame Treme spoke up. "Of course, you have a lifetime job here, if you wish."

"Thank you, but no. I can't bring myself to do that. But I still want to see you guys. Especially you, Tonya." I said with a grin. Now that she no longer felt like she'd be raping me, Tonya smiled back.

Then Jace shocked me. He got down on his knee, and opened a small, velvet box, revealing a diamond engagement ring. "Stacy, will you marry me?"

I found myself crying. "Yes. Yes, Jace, I will."

The other's applauded as he slipped the ring on my finger, and kissed me soundly. "Oh, great!" I sighed, and Jace looked worried.

"What? What's wrong?"

"Do you realize, I spent the nine years since leaving the force getting a new life, building up a business and a reputation, and after it's all said and done, I'm ending up right back where I started?"

"Huh?" "As your partner!" I said, playfully jabbing him in the chest. Unlike before, Jace now had an effective way of shutting me up. He kissed me.

* * * * *

I awoke with tiny pygmies jabbing sharpened wooden spears into my lower spine, while a trio of tiny Con-Ed guys ran around my forebrain with jack-hammers, trying to escape through my skull.

I groaned softly and opened my eyes. Thankfully, the expensive venetian blinds were closed.. The layered panels of fabric kept the sunlight down to a - barely - tolerable level, and opening my eyes wasn't a suicidal action. Trying VERY hard not to move anything not absolutely essential to the mission, I pulled open my desk drawer and felt my way past a couple of lenses, a few loose rolls of film, a ring of keys, and other accumulated, unidentifiable junk until my fingers encountered a couple of aspirin lying at the bottom.

Slowly, I sat up. Grimacing, I dry-swallowed the pain killers, and waited for the pounding to subside. While I was at it, I also drank a cup of the Kona coffee warming on the credenza.

The door opened and Jace came in.

"God, honey, you look terrible." He said with a huge grin.

I looked at my husband, and suppressed a smile while I faked anger. "I blame you for this, Jace. First, we all go out and celebrate our magazine's anniversary. That would be okay, if you, Jeeves and Tonya hadn't kept me up all night - fucking me brains out. Your poor, battered wife fell asleep at her desk!"

"Hey, battered maybe. But not poor!"

No, that was true. After our marriage, we'd started up a skin mag, staring some of the sexiest women ever seen. Thea, for example. And of course, now-world-famous co-editor, Stacy Staxx. Hell, even Madame Treme had posed, for our special issue. God, that woman had a body!

I smiled up at Jace. "So, got some time?" He smiled back. "Always."

God, I'm glad we got the padded desktop.

And as my husband proceeded to fuck my brains out, the rest of the staff of 'Sinclair's Folly' magazine went about making the founders even richer, and wondered who the Sinclair was, anyway.

THE END...

SUMMARY: Receiving a strange package containing women's shoes, one man tries them on only to discover that they have the power to change him and are the product of revenge from an old girlfriend; or are they

Cassandra's Gifts

By Gunslinger

Steam billowed from the door of the bathroom as it opened, temporarily obscuring the muscular, dark-haired young man who stood on the threshold. Then Jake Panzerelli stepped out of the cloud of warm moisture, tightening his bathrobe tighter around his body.

Humming happily to himself, the Italian-American headed downstairs, his hairy, muscular legs rippling with his smooth, powerful stride. He moved down the wide, gracefully sweeping staircase and across the smooth hardwood floor of the lower foyer. Pausing in the large, airy kitchen long enough to start the coffee machine brewing, he retraced his steps towards the foyer, using the towel around his neck to dry his short, thick mass of dark hair.

Opening the door, he bent down to retrieve the Saturday Herald...

...and paused.

"What's this?" Jake asked himself, his deep, mellow voice sounding loud in the early-morning silence. Resting atop the paper was a small package, covered in brown Kraft paper and tied with plain brown twine. There was no return address or express shipper's label on the package, which bore only his name in a flowing, smooth script.

Picking up the package and paper, he carried them into the living room. Placing them on a cherry-wood coffee table, he left the enigma long enough to grab a cup of coffee, then returned to the large, sunlit room. Dropping onto the leather sofa, he pulled the package towards him and examined the outside, looking for a sign as to the sender. The handwriting on the package looked vaguely familiar, but he couldn't place where he'd seen it - he simply didn't pay that much attention to other people's handwriting.

With a half-smile, Jake lifted the package close to his ear.

"Well - it's not ticking..." He joked to himself. Placing the package back on the table, he pulled open a drawer in the coffee table and rooted through the items inside, looking for a pair of scissors. He didn't find the scissors, but he did find a pen knife, and he flicked the short blade on the silver pocket knife open and used it to saw through the twine.

Pulling the paper off the package, Jake found himself looking at a shoe-box. Pulling the top of the box off, he opened it and looked inside.

Nestled in the tissue paper was a pair of shoes. Women's shoes.

Humming thoughtfully to himself, Jake eyed the footwear. They were a sort of cross between high-heeled pumps and sandals, kind of. He didn't know much about women's shoes, but figured that these were probably the 'summery' equivalent to the stiletto platforms that his ex-girlfriend Cassandra had used to wear to clubs. These shoes were white leather, with a six-inch spiked heel not unlike the ones that Cassandra's shoes had had. However, rather than an 'enclosing' upper, or even the standard type of strap, these shoes were really a series of white leather straps that had been criss-crossed where the foot would be, and then the ends of the straps would wind behind the ankle of the wearer, and back to the front where they would be buckled.

"Now, why would somebody...?" Jake started to ask himself - then stopped, catching sight of a note nestled between the shoes. Lifting the pink sheet of paper from its resting place, he unfolded it.

'Jake,' He read,

'Here's something for you to remember me by. I'm sure that this is an adequate compensation for the relation we had.' It was signed 'Cassandra'.

Lifting the shoes from the box, Jake looked at them and snorted.

Cassandra, a slender, energetic woman with dusky skin and dark, smoldering eyes had been absolutely incredible in bed - but she'd also been one of the strangest women Jake had ever gone out with. Claiming to be the queen of the Gypsies, she also claimed that she was actually over eighty years old - though she hadn't looked a day over Jake's own age of twenty-three. She'd been mystical and secretive, and she had these little rituals that she performed on certain nights, like nights of the full moon. However, he'd been willing to put up with her idiosyncrasies in light of her incredible energy and skill in bed.

However, she had finally become too much to take when she'd developed the 'certainty' that Jake was cheating on her with some of the girls down at the strip club.

Now, Jake knew he was a mildly chauvinistic man, and that he wasn't cut out for things like marriage or long-term, serious relationships. However, he was also - by his own, personal code - an honorable man. He might switch women fairly often - but he also ended the relationship with one before going onto another. He never cheated on his current girlfriend, and he never dated more than one woman at a time. In fact, the only reason he'd been going to the strip club was the fact that a friend of his owned, and had a bouncer injured in a fight. Jake had helped out by filling in for a week as the club's bouncer.

However, Cassandra hadn't believed it, and she'd become cool, calculating, shrewish and abrasive. On top of her other oddities, it had simply become more effort to maintain the relation than it was worth...

...at least, from Jake's point of view. Cassandra hadn't been so phlegmatic about it, though - she'd literally thrown a fit when he'd told her he was breaking up with her, and refused to acknowledge the break up for nearly twelve hours. Jake had finally been forced to call the cops and charge her with trespassing to get her out of his house. That was the point when she'd decided that it really was over.

And now...

Shaking his head at the memory of her antics, and at the really strange 'gift' she'd sent him, Jake tossed the shoes over one shoulder. Sitting back, he opened the morning paper and began to read.

By the time he was finished his first cup of coffee, Jake was becoming annoyed. For some reason, he was having trouble concentrating on the paper. Every few minutes, he'd find himself losing track of what he was read - and then, for no good reason, he'd find himself turning to look at the shoes, laying askew on the hard-wood floor where he'd negligently tossed them. They were just a goddamn pair of shoes, but for some reason, he couldn't seem to get them out of his mind.

Annoyed, Jake rose from the couch, planning to take the shoes and toss them in the garbage. But, as he neared the shoes, he found himself thinking about a different plan. For some reason, he began to develop an irrational urge to try the shoes on.

Deciding that he'd ignore the shoes altogether and take his paper into the kitchen - out of sight of the footwear - Jake turned away...

...then turned back. The shoes sat on the floor, gleaming whitely in the morning sun streaming in from the window. "This is stupid!" Jake declared to thin air, shaking his head at his own stupidity. "I mean... they wouldn't even fit me!"

There was no answer, of course - except for Jake's irrational desire to try the shoes on. A straight man with no past urges in cross-dressing, it shook him to the very core, and he tried to dismiss it - but it wasn't to be so easily sent away.

Jake tried to merely walk away from the shoes. But despite their commonplace appearance, something about them had gotten under his skin - into his mind - and he couldn't force himself to just leave.

Sighing, Jake shook his head again.

"I can't believe I'm doing this." Jake muttered. Cinching the bathrobe tighter around his muscular body, he walked over to the shoes. After a second's hesitation, he put his right foot into the webbing of leather straps, then - wobbling badly - he stepped into the second one.

Instantly, his feet complained - loudly - at being forced into the too-small women's shoes, while his calf muscled complained at the strain of maintaining balance atop the six-inch stiletto heels.

"I knew..."

Then the thought - and everything else - was blotted out by intense, mind-numbing pain that claimed his entire body.

Crying out, Jake fell forward onto his hands and knees, not even noticing the pain that came from bashing elbows and knees onto the hardwood floor. It was washed away, buried, in the avalanche of pain already overloading every nerve ending in his body, like a fire that was consuming him from the inside out.

Then the undifferentiated pain altered, changing texture into a thousand new - and unpleasant - sensations.

An intense itching all over his entire body, as if he could feel every follicle of his body hair moving, drawing inward on itself. An equal but opposite sensation from his head, as if somebody was pulling on each and every hair with great force.

A terrible crushing sensation in his waist, as if he were being crushed in a vise.

A strange stretching, pushing sensation in his hips and ass, as if he was being inflated like a living balloon.

A deep, throbbing ache from every bone in his body, much stronger in his feet, hands and face than elsewhere, as if the were moving, changing from within.

And an intense pushing sensation from his chest, compounded by a growing, dragging weight, as if gravity was increasing for just that one part of his body.

He screamed again, a high-pitched soprano suited to the cheesy eighties horror movie 'heroines' being hacked apart. He shuddered, dropping long strands of golden-blond hair in front of his eyes. The pain throbbed sharply through his body, and he almost blacked out at the crushing, blasting pain from his crotch, as if somebody had hit him there with a sledge-hammer.

Then the pain vanished as quickly as it had come, leaving Cyndi weak and limped. She collapsed forward, grimacing as her weight came down on huge, gorgeous tits, pressing her massive nipples into the floor.

She lay like that for a few seconds, enduring the indignity as she recouped her strength. Finally, she rolled over onto her firm, shapely ass and sat up. Brushing her long golden hair off her forehead, she began to gently rub her massive, tender tits, the MMM-cup boobs overflowing her slender hands. Despite the situation, it still felt as good as always, and she began to imagine it wasn't her hands at all, but the strong, firm hands of a handsome, muscular - and well-hung - stranger.

Closing her baby-blue eyes, Cyndi began to loose herself in the fantasy. Moaning softly in her breathy, high-pitched voice, she let one hand slide away from her gorgeous globes. It glided downwards, past her tiny waist, and settled between her shapely, tanned thighs.

Gently, Cyndi inserted one long-nailed finger into her now-sopping cunt and began to finger her clit, moaning again at the erotic connection made between her outsized clit and swollen nipples.

As the sensations ran through her, Cyndi smiled languorously, imagining the 'hunk' that was fondling her. Several inches taller than her own height of five-five, he would be well muscled. Dark-haired and dark eyes, with a nice, manly coating of body hair, especially the chest. Since the legends sometimes had basis in the truth, she made him Italian...

Her full, sensual lips slowly slid into a slight frown and her hands slowed their erotic motions. Despite the fact she was just fantasizing, the man she'd imagined almost seemed... familiar.

Cyndi's smooth, soft brow furrowed slightly as she tried to place the familiarity. She ran backwards in her memory. Jake's eyes flew open.

"Holy fucking shit!" He - she - screamed in horrified shock, yanking dainty hands away from a wet-dream body. Her huge, blue eyes locked onto the massive, round tits thrust from her slender ribcage, and her elfin jaw dropped.

"I... I... I'm a woman!"

Caught up in a thousand conflicting, whirling emotions and feelings - and thoughts - Jake did the first thing that seemed to make any sense in this impossible sensation. She kicked off the shoes adorning her dainty feet and used the heels of those feet to propel her backwards on her sexy ass, increasing separation between her outrageously sexy body and the footwear.

Breathing in sharp, short pants, Jake waited for something to happen, for pain to fill this ridiculously feminine body as she began to change back.

Nothing happened.

"Oh... shit..." Jake whispered, unsteadily. The world began to spin, the edges of it dimming into darkness as the sun slowly faded...

Realizing she was on the very edge of passing out, Jake struggled to keep herself from blacking out, forcing her breath to be deep and regular. It wasn't easy - not only did panic want her to gasp in short pants, but every breath she drew caused the massive tits thrust from her chest to jiggle slightly, reminding her of their existence. Grimly, she hung onto consciousness, not really thinking at all as she struggled against the encroaching panic and the horror she was so desperately trying to repress. Shaking her head - which caused her thick, heavy mane of golden hair to fall in front of her huge, blue eyes - she drew her knees upwards until they crushed against her massive, firm tits, sending a shiver down her spine at the sensation. The pleasurable sensation didn't truly register on her conscious mind as she began to rock back and forth, staring blindly through the golden curtain of her hair.

"No"

The word was whispered in her breathy, high voice, a denial of what was happening to her. She said it again...

...and again...

..and again. It became a litany, a mindless repetition of the same word over and over, without any real meaning after the first time.

Time passed, but Jake didn't really register it. She sat, her mind blessedly blank, as the shadows slowly shifted their positions as the sun moved across the sky. The only thing that her mind did as she rocked back and forth was struggle to keep from allowing in the strange, un-Jake-like thoughts that wormed through her mind, insisting that she was somebody else, somebody for whom this body was a blessing, not a curse. The floated up, one at a time, like objects surfacing from a deep, dark pond. When a thought insisted that she'd been born in Atlanta, Georgia, her silent mind answered immediately that no - he'd been born right here in Philadelphia. Then her mind would remain silent and blank until the next conflicting thought or memory awoke.

There's no telling how long Jake might have sat in that corner, staring blindly into the distance with her bathrobe hanging open to expose her over-exaggerated body. She might have sat that way until she starved to death, for all she knew - and she probably wouldn't have even noticed it happening.

The only thing that kept her from sliding off into that comatose oblivion was the sound that slowly sank through the layers of barriers she'd mentally erected to protect her from the reality that was so unacceptable to her.

It was a ringing phone.

Vaguely, Jake realized it had been ringing for quite some time now. It's ring steadily for ten or twelve rings, then there'd be a short pause, then it would ring again. If it had only repeated the cycle once or twice, it might never have gotten through to her - but it had been ringing for so long now that it had finally sunk in.

For several minutes, Jake just stared across the room at the phone sitting on the end table, still whispering the one-word litany. Then, faintly, the light of conscious thought once more bloomed in her huge, clear eyes.

She shuddered as she once more was forced to face reality. Now feeling the sensation of her knees pressing against the huge, impossible firm tits thrust from her ribcage, she quickly shoved her legs away, shuddering with disgust at the sensation. The movement, however, caused those massive tits to jiggle, which was as distasteful as the earlier sensation, and Jake wanted to scream.

Instead, her mind latched onto the phone's ringing with desperate force.

"Help..." She whispered to herself, her mind still numb and befogged. It was the only way she could function, in this state of shock - if she'd come out of the fog-like state, she'd be screaming and gibbering. Instead, she forced herself to move, to go towards the phone.

Her mind had fixated on an idea. She'd answer the phone, and tell the person on the other end what had happened - they would send somebody to help her. All things considered, it was a ridiculous thought - but her mind, desperate and in shock, couldn't see the flaws in it, only the hope that was in it. She latched onto the idea with her mind, and that was that.

Pulling herself onto the couch, intent on the phone, she didn't even notice how she was moving - with an easy, supple - and very feminine - grace. She should have been awkward, with her body unfamiliar to her. It's radically changed - and top-heavy - balance and it's different center-of-gravity should have defeated her first attempt at moving - yet she unconsciously moved as easily and gracefully as if she'd been born in this body, with out even noticing it.

Lifting the phone, she brought it to her ear, already speaking in a flat, numb monotone.

"Help me. You have to help me, there's something wrong, I'm not the same..." She spoke in incoherent sentences, her mind not fully functional.

"I'll bet you're not." A smug feminine voice answered. Jake babbled right through it for a minute, then it percolated through her mind that the person at the other end had said something. Falling silent, she took a minute to figure out the meaning of the words.

When it sunk in, something sparked in her brain, and the voice itself registered, as well as the tone the words had been spoken in...

Suddenly, like awakening from a dream, Jake found the shock thinning and his mind returning to something closer to 'normal'. Her eyes narrowed as her brain began to combine things in a chain of logic, arriving at an inescapable conclusion...

"You!" Jake hissed, his high, breathy new voice eliminating most of the threat from the word. "You did this to me, bitch. I don't know how, but it was you!"

Cassandra laughed. "You should have taken me more seriously - especially when I told you that I knew Gypsy magic. But no... you didn't believe. Well - do you believe now?"

"You bitch!" Jake attempted a snarl, but her new vocal cords didn't allow it. "You change me back right now, or so help me I'll..." "You'll what?" Cassandra challenged, with a laugh. "There's nothing you can do. You could have avoided this altogether, if you'd just been faithful to me. After all the cheating, lying bastards I've had to put up with, I thought I'd finally found one man I could trust. But no - you were just like all the others, so now I have to punish you - just like I did with all the others."

"Look, you..." Jake began - to be cut off yet again.

"Why don't you go to the front door, sweet-cheeks? I left a little gift for you." Then she hung up.

Staring at the receiver, Jake seethed with anger. Slamming down the receiver, she shuddered with rage, and tried to think.

Now that she was reasonably coherent again, the thought of calling for help was revealed as ludicrous - there was no-one that she could call in a situation like this. The realization that there was no-one that could help her, panic started to seep in, and despair. She shivered, her breathing beginning to come in tight little gasps as the realization sank in that she might be trapped in this body forever...

Forcing down the tide of panic, Jake forced herself to think. There was one person who could 'help' - Cassandra. If she did this to him, she could undo it.

Locking onto that thought, she managed to hold onto her sanity. Rising to her - damnably dainty - feet, she angrily wrapped the bathrobe around her wet-dream body. Tying it pulled it tight over her tiny waist, and the top - not straining taut over her massive tits - displayed an awe-inspiring chasm of cleavage while causing pleasurable sensation to shoot through her from where the fabric hugged her huge, thick nipples.

Forcing her mind off the erotic jolts coming from her engorged nipples, Jake headed towards the foyer - and noticed, for the first time, the way she was moving.

"God damn it!" She cursed, struggling to walk in a determined, masculine stride - and failing. Whenever she fought the 'natural' movements of the body, she lost almost all control. She could decide where she was heading - but it seemed to be built-in to this body how she was going to get there - namely, with a sexy, hip-swiveling walk that caused her massive tits to sway slightly in the fabric prison that held them.

"Fucking Gypsy bitch!" Anger was good, Jake found - holding tight to the white-hot rage drove back the panic that threatened to rise at the discovery that she could no longer control the way her body moved, locked into a sexy, feminine grace that she despised and hated. Burning with rage and disgust, Jake entered the foyer...

...and eagerly jiggled over to the door. Pulling it open, Cyndi clapped her hands together at the sight of the promised gift sitting on the doorstep. Giggling in excitement, she picked up the small box and carried back to the living room. With her long nails, she ripped the packaging paper off the outside and opened the parcel.

"Oh, my!" Cyndi squealed. Reaching into the box, she pulled out the contents - a pair of French-cut lace panties, and a massive underwire bra, both in shocking hot pink.

Eagerly, Cyndi stood up and undid the robe, letting it puddle at her feet. Practically shivering with delight, she pulled on the panties, loving the way they slid up between her full, firm ass cheeks. With surprising dexterity, she pulled on the bra, loving the way it felt, cupping and lifting her massive globes. The feel of the satin material on her massive nipples was heavenly.

Giggling with joy, she sat down on the couch and pulled on the shoes Cassandra had sent earlier. Rising atop the spike-like heels, she jiggled and swayed up the staircase and her bedroom, where there was a full-length mirror.

"Oh, this is great!" She squealed joyfully, cupping her massive tits with disgust, yanking her hands away as if they'd been electrocuted.

"What the fuck...?" Jake gasped, feeling a deep, numbing shudder of fear. One instant, she'd been ready to go tear Cassandra a new asshole - the next, she'd been acting like the blonde bimbo she looked like. The thought that she could lose control of herself at any second was terrifying, on a very deep level.

Taking a deep breath - which did amazing things to her massive breasts - Jake got a hold of herself. For the moment, there was nothing to do but follow her original plan, and try to deal with anything that might come up during the course of it.

The first order of business was to get dressed - she wouldn't get far at all if she left the house nude. Looking down at the frilly pink undergarments, she shuddered but decided to leave them on. The shoes, however, were a different story - she quickly sat on the bed and unbuckled the strap, unwinding it from around her tiny new ankle so she could toss the footwear aside.

Barefoot, she hurried over to the closet, hoping she could find something that would fit a body radically different than the one the clothes had been designed to fit.

Frowning, she went through the stuff she owned, and sighed as she realized she wasn't going to have a lot of choice - she'd wanted to wear something baggy and concealing, but with this body, anything that had been baggy on her flat, masculine torso would, now, barely be big enough to contain her massive new endowments.

Within moments, she'd done the best she could, clothes-wise. She'd had to settle on a pair of jeans that were left over from his younger days. Back then, he'd been chubbier, and the shorter pants with the wider hips and ass now barely fit her altered body, hugging tightly to every curve but the waist, and that was taken care of by a belt, with a new hole punched in it.

With a grimace, Jake pulled on the top he was stuck with. Out of all the clothes, it was the one that fit her new figure the best - but the white cable-knit sweater hugged every contour of her massive new tits. She could have gone with a white T-shirt - but the reflected sight of the hot-pink bra showing through the thin material had been too much to bear. At least the sweater was heavy enough that it wasn't see-through. Besides, she really didn't have much of a choice - it would be mild outside, but a sweater was necessary - there was no way she'd be able to get the light spring jacket zipped up.

Taking her keys and wallet, she prepared to leave...

...and that when she hit the snag.

Every pair of shoes in the house were huge on her diminutive new feet. Every pair but one, that is. Fighting fate, Jake tried wearing three pairs of socks, and stuffing a cloth at the end of the shoes. Even then, they were loose on her feet, and walking was an awkward, unstable nuisance, made worse by the top-heavy balance of her new body.

Grinding her perfect white teeth in annoyance, she gave into the inevitable, and sat on the edge to pull on the shoes that had started the whole mess she was in. Face flaming with a mixture of emotions, she headed out to the car, accompanied by the gentle clicking of the heels that she was helplessly swaying sexily atop.

Climbing into the car, she started to do up her seatbelt - then curse, and hastily loosened the chest belt. The only way she could wear the belt was with the loosened restraint between her massive new tits, clearly defining them. Gritting her teeth, she brought the engine to life with an angry twist of the key. Slamming the vehicle in reverse, she peeled rubber out of the driveway, eager to get to Cassandra's place and put an end to this torture.

She was about three blocks from Cassandra's place when the engine began to sputter. Glancing at the gauge, she was surprised to find that the tank was practically empty - she'd thought it was nearly full.

Grimacing at the delay, Jake pulled over to the side of the road and shut off the engine. Climbing out of the car, she was all-too-aware of the looks she was getting from the people passing on the sidewalk, the men especially. Flushing self-consciously at the way they stared at her massive tits, she hurried to trunk and popped it open. Leaning over very carefully - with the weight of her tits, which was a good extra thirty pounds up top, she had to be careful - she picked up the jerry can of gas she always kept in the trunk...

...and cursed when it lifted much too easily. Unscrewing the cap, she stared inside.

The can was bone-dry. In fact, it wasn't even her can, but another one. And, stuffed into the spout, was a small note. Picking it out of the can, Jake unfolded it.

'Another gift from an ex.'

It was unsigned, but Jake knew who had done this little routine.

Throwing the can back into the trunk with a curse, Jake slammed the trunk and turned towards the sidewalk. The reason for this latest indignity seemed completely frivolous, nothing more than forcing her to walk a distance in public. Why else would a certain amount of gasoline be left in the tank, rather than just siphoning it all out? It didn't seem to make any sense.

"Oh, goody!" Cyndi clapped her hands together gleefully, bounding up and down on her toes at the sight of the sign. The movement made her wonderful boobs move, which not only felt great, but got the guy's attention. Smiling at one of them - who was kinda cute - she put a little extra 'oomph' in her walk as she strut to the boutique that was having the complete make-over special.

An hour later, Cyndi emerged, feeling fantastic. Her hair was done up in a wonderful fall of golden hair on long waves, and her face had been artfully made up to enhance her sexy lips and big, blue eyes. With a little extra bounce in her step from how great she felt, she headed down the street and stopped dead, cursing vehemently, drawing a number of stares from those passing by. They wondered who 'Cassandra' was, and what she could have done to this gorgeous, huge-breasted blonde.

The women passing by, however, shared knowing looks, thinking they understood the significance of one woman swearing at the thought of another.

Compressing her full - and now, gloss red - lips together angrily, Jake stalked off towards Cassandra's place. Unfortunately, the 'stalk' of her new body looked like a sexy strut, but she was so enraged at this latest indignity that she didn't even notice that - to the rest of the world - she was moving with a sexy, swaying stride that did amazing things to the ass packed so firmly into the skin-tight jeans.

Not to mention what it did to her tits.

Fuming, Jake stamped up the stairs that fronted the walk of Cassandra's small bungalow. Heels clicking on the flagstone path, she stormed up to the door and rang the bell.

There was a short pause, then the door swung open. It wasn't, however, Cassandra who opened the door, but an incredibly good-looking guy. He was tanned and athletic-looking, and Cyndi's eyes widened when she glanced at the crotch of his tight jeans. She'd never seen such a large bulge, and her mouth began to water at the thought of what the denim was containing.

That wasn't the only thing that began to get wet.

"Hi - you must be Cyndi." The guy said, smiling. He held out a hand. "I'm Josh. Cassandra told me to expect you."

"Mmmm... Hi, Josh..." Cyndi cooed, stepping inside. "Are you a friend of Cassandra's?" She had a hard time keeping her eyes off his crotch - but figured that it was only fair, as Josh seemed to have his gaze locked on her tits.

"Well, kind of." Josh said with a slightly embarrassed look. "To tell you the truth, I'm her pool guy. Thing is, she said she had to go out, but that I should wait here. She told me you were coming over, and since she couldn't make it for your 'girls day out', maybe I'd do for a substitute."

Slowly licking her full, sexy lips, Cyndi shrugged. "Naw - we were gonna go shopping, and I don't think you'd enjoy that. Wanna fuck, instead?"

Josh's jaw dropped. "Huh? Uh, I mean, uh Huh?"

Cyndi blinked. "I said, wanna fuck? You seem to like the way I look, and you're getting me so hot that I might just explode." "Uh " Josh stammered, wide eyed.

"Say 'yes '" Cyndi prompted impishly. Then, deciding to make a forcing bid, she wrapped her arms around his neck and dragged his head down so that she press her firm, sexy lips against his and give him the most mind-blowing his he'd ever had.

That seemed to make up Josh's mind for him. Within seconds, his arms slid around to embrace her, and he pulled her tightly against his muscular body, her huge tits pressed against his chest.

Then, Cyndi pushed Josh backwards until his knees struck the edge of the large coffee-table. He sat down hard, unwillingly pulling away from her.

Smiling, Cyndi kept him from getting back up. "Strip, lover-boy." She cooed, and began to demonstrate the technique, using her own clothing.

He was a fast study.

She let him strip completely, while she only went down to bra and panties - then stepped back into her shoes so she could wiggle seductively.

Leaning forward - presenting him with a view of her magnificent cleavage - she smiled and wiggled her torso a bit. "Help me?"

Eagerly, Josh reached around her Finding the clasp of her bra, he quickly undid the eye-hooks and peeled the garment off, revealing her massive boobs in all their glory.

Leaning forward in a crouch that put her at the right level - one of the reason's she'd put her shoes back on - she let Josh fondle her massive tits, shuddering in pleasure as his hands found her swollen, thick nipples. The shudder intensified, accompanied with a low moan, as his lips found her nipples, sucking and licking them while his hands slid to her panties and guided the now-sopping garment down her legs and tossing it aside.

Gently, Cyndi positioned him 'just so', then too one step forward and, in a sitting position facing him, lowered herself on to his thick, long cock.

"Oh..." She moaned as she impaled herself on his hot, throbbing member. Smiling, she leaned forward and claimed a quick kiss. "Just relax - let sinful Cyndi do all the work."

Then, with a flex of her long, sexy legs, she began to drive herself up and down on his cock.

They moaned in unison, incredible sensation flooding through both of them as Cyndi began to drive harder, using her own weight to impale herself as deeply as possible on his throbbing member. Her moans began to acquire the same rhythm as her thrusts, and she leaned forward slightly, so that her nipples grazed up and down Josh's chest with each stroke, increasing the incredible sensations filling her body.

"Oh, God, baby..." Josh said, gasping. "Oh, yes... yes, you're the best, Jake."

"Mmmm... ohh " Cyndi tried to reply, but her mind was overwhelmed with the ecstasy, and little things - like command of the English language - seemed to have slipped from her for the moment.

Instead, she concentrated on driving harder and faster. Josh's hands reached around and cupped her firm, full ass, and he began to help her, forcing her faster, harder, deeper, increasing both their pleasure.

Then she came.

She screamed, a primal, wordless sound. Her body shuddered, her huge tits swaying as the orgasm took her. Her cunt clenched around the cock filling it, and that was enough to drive Josh over the edge. He moaned, low in his throat, as his cock began to gush.

And, in the middle of the orgasm, Jake's mind cleared off all the 'tampering' Cassandra had done, and she remembered who she really was, and what was happening to her.

As the last of the orgasm rocked the transformed man, 'Josh' lost the tenuous control necessary for the shape-change. With a ripple, his form wavered - and began to change.

Within seconds, it was no longer a muscular man that Jake was astride, but a slender, dusky woman who was panting at the effort she'd just been through.

Jake, caught in the emotions that what Cassandra had done to her, was now in the perfect position to express that emotion very, very directly. Before Cassandra could even speak, Jake acted.

She kissed Cassandra long and hard.

Giggling, Jake rolled off the coffee table and collapsed on the sofa. "God - that was great."

Cassandra, still catching her breath, smiled. "I should hope so - do you know how hard it was to set this one up? Not just wiping every trace of your transsexuality from your mind, but hiding the physical evidence at your house too."

Jake was busy fondling the massive tits hanging from her chest, now able to enjoy it more without the imposed 'straight-laced' version of his personality in place. "Yeah, well - thank you. It was great. I've always wanted to do the 'oh-my-god' type fantasy, like most of the TG stories on the 'net."

Leaning back on one elbow, Cassandra stared pointedly at the huge tits. "Is that where you got the idea for that... body of yours? I wondered, when you asked for tits like beach-balls."

"Yeah." Jake admitted. "But hey - it's a fun switch. I'm not saying I'd want something bigger than a D-cup, usually - but every once and a while..."

"Gotcha." The gypsy smiled. "Next weekend, lets just do the straight 'trading bodies' routine - this one really took it out of me. Magic isn't easy, you know."

"I know, I know." Jake said, leaning forward to kiss his girlfriend soundly. Pulling back, she asked a question in a slightly disappointed tone. "Does this mean you're too tired to change back into Josh? I was kinda looking forward to getting tit-fucked in this body - among other things." She cocked her head. "Hell - it's only Saturday afternoon. Please don't tell me that you're so pooped that we can't do anything else together this weekend."

Cassandra winked. "Hey - we'll probably be doing a lot of lesbo this weekend, and tomorrow night we'll go to a club and see if we can't pick up a couple of studs for a night of fun before you have to change back. However, for the moment, I'm pretty bushed - but, I think I can still do this..."

Jake smiled as Cassandra's crotch rippled - and a cock slowly formed. Thinner than before, it was also longer. "If I've guessed right, you can even suck me off while I'm tit-fucking you." Cassandra said with a smile.

"Well - why don't we find out?" Jake suggested. It turned out she could....

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: When he finds some porno tapes featuring bimbos in the trash, one man thinks it is his lucky day, but when he sits down to watch he never dreamed that he would become the bimbo

Caught On Tape

By Gunslinger

Pete Widzikowski was loading beers into the fridge to chill when a sudden thought struck that sent shivers up and down his spine that had nothing at all to do with the cool air from the refrigerator.

What if there was a damned good reason why those tapes had been in the garbage to begin with?

Heart thudding painfully in his narrow chest, the flaxen-haired collage student quickly jammed the rest of the bottle of Budweiser into the fridge, shoving aside the standard bachelor collection of microwavable meals and condiments to fit the rest of the case into the cool interior.

Slamming the door to the refrigerator shut, the lean young man hurried the few scant steps it took to go from his small apartment's claustrophobia-inducing kitchen to its cramped living-room. Pete, his face even paler than was usually the case, quickly wiped his damp hands on the somewhat baggy seat of his cut-off jean shorts - aside from being □tiny, the somewhat seedy-looking bachelor apartment also lacked AC, and was just barely shy of s□tifying. S□till, it was his own place, all his - though his usual pride of ownership was a li□tle muted at the moment by something that closely approached blind terror.

Spread across the surface of the battered and scarred coffee table in front of the 'pull out' futon that did double duty as couch and bed, the contents of the cardboard box he'd found in the apartment building's garbage bin lay scattered. Oddly enough, it included feminine items like a pair of high-heeled platform shoes and a couple of (ew!) dildoes - which were directly at odds with the items that had been on the top of the box, and which had prompted him to 'rescue' it in the first place:

Porn videos.

It was the lurid, graphic covers of these video that had caught Pete's eye - and fired his imagination. Not in the usual sense that a porn video would fire the imagination of a red-blooded college student, but as a means to an end - a way to be 'popular'.

Now, however, the thought that he might have 'jumped the gun' terrified him. Hell - he didn't even know if there were actually porn videos inside those highly explicit cases!

Picking one at random, Pete held the cardboard box upright and allowed the cassette inside to slip down into his hand for his watery blue eyes to scrutinize.

Externally, the tape seemed to be in good shape. Though the once-vibrant label that exclaimed the tape to be a copy of BIG- BOOBED BONDAGE BEAUTIES was a bit faded and tattered at the corners, there was no obvious sign of any damage to the tape.

Still, the ugly thought persisted - because, having finally gotten his own place, and thus the ability to air a porno tape without any chance of his mother finding out what was going on, the less-than-popular college student had been so hyped that he'd called Jack and Steve to come over for 'a cool surprise' without actually checking what, if anything, was on the tape.

If they got here and the tape didn't work - or worse, the porn movie had been taped over with somebody's kid's birthday party of the like - he was going to look like an idiot.

Well - an even bigger idiot, since his 'rep' wasn't exactly anything to boast about at the moment.

Still, the thought was horrifying to the very, very social-status conscious young man. After all, it was nearly impossible to not be aware of social status at college when you, yourself, had none at all...

Well, at least the thought had occurred to him no, before the 'cool guys' he hoped to win friendship - or at least grudging acceptance - from showed up. Though it was too late to call off the invitation if there was something wrong with the tape, at least finding out now would give him time to come up with some sort of secondary plan.

Actually, the truth was much simpler than coming up with back-up plans of any sort - the horrible thought having struck him, Pete simply couldn't help himself. With the near-disaster his social life had been, he just had to know.

Mentally reminding himself, again, to get rid of the other items before the guys showed up, Pete stepped around the cluttered coffee table and took the two long strides needed to reach the off-brand VCR resting atop the old, wood-cabinet-enclosed twenty-four-inch RCA TV that had been state-of-the-art in the early eighties.

Bending down over the old-fashion top-loading VCR, he hit the button that popped out the cassette shuttle, and slipped the tape in and pushed it down.

At first, all the sounds were just as they were supposed to be - the warm, oiled mechanical humming and clicking the somewhat noisy machine was supposed to make...

...and then there was a horrible, out-of-place 'zurp' sound, followed by a squealing whine completely out of place for any correctly-functioning mechanical device.

"Aw, shit...!" Pete swore, his gut clenching as he stabbed frantically at the 'eject' button.

After an eternal second, the tape shuttle popped up out of the machine and shoved the tape forward. Gripping it by the exposed front edge, Pete pulled it out of the machine...

...and swore anew at the sight of the shiny black ribbon of tape that unreeled out behind the tape, the other end still mired somewhere in the internal workings of the machine.

Putting the cassette down on the top of the TV, Pete gently gripped the glossy double layer of magnetic tape and tugged lightly on it, trying to get the VCR to give up its grip on it. Though it seemed obvious that the video itself was FUBAR - Fucked

Up Beyond All Recognition - Pete still needed to try and work the tape out of the machine if he intended to ever use the VCR again.

Muttering the word 'damn' over and over again in some sort of magic mantra to keep his hands from expressing the frustration he felt, Pete tugged at the surprisingly sticky-feeling tape, trying to get the machine to give up it's grip.

Without warning, the machine did exactly that - at the very instant where his tenuous grip on his humiliation-enhanced anger boiled over into an overly-energetic tug on the tape.

Pete reeled backward, balance lost with the lack of the resistance he'd been braced for, and he stumbled across the floor of the tiny living room as the oddly tacky tape clung to his hands, the tape still attached to the other end flying off the TV with his jerking motion to fly up and over him as he staggered back.

Just as the cassette, trailing tape like a tail, whipped up and over his shoulder, the back of Pete's calves came into hard contact with the edge of the coffee table.

The table flipped over backwards, spilling the items into the narrow space between the table and the couch. Even as the table finished hitting the floor, the tape whipped down and around, coming up under the opposite armpit... and somehow managing to 'bolo' around, whipping up and over his wrists and wrapping itself around them three or four times even as he flew backwards to end up sprawled half-seated on the couch.

"Oh, fuck!" Pete shouted at the top volume the lungs in his scrawny chest could produce, stunned by the entire incident - which had lasted, perhaps, all of two seconds.

Struggling to free his hands from the tape - which, oddly enough, was not only sticky, but considerably stronger than he ever imagined half-inch magnetic tape could be - Pete put his feet down on the floor, intending to stand up...

...and cursed anew as his feet landed atop something, and odd metallic 'clicking' sound accompanying the feel of his bare feet on something cool and smooth.

He lifted his feet - and whatever he stepped on lifted with them, a tight sensation just below his ankles accompanying the cramped sensation of his toes.

Leaning down, Pete looked between his pale, hairy pipe-stem legs...

...and gaped.

"How the hell...?" He asked himself in a disbelieving voice.

He was wearing the high-heeled platform shoes.

Well, not exactly 'wearing' - since the platform bright red platform pumps were too small for his feet. Still, the toes of each foot were crammed into the front of each shoe - and the ankle strap of each of the pumps was snapped into place just below each ankle.

Even assuming the odds allowed him to end up with one foot coming down exactly into the toes of each foot, how the hell had the ankle straps managed to snap themselves closed...?

Confusion now warring with annoyance, anger and humiliation, Pete leaned forward to undo the small buckles of the ankle straps...

...except that his 'taped together' hands weren't able to perform the job.

Cursing, the confusion growing, he pulled hard against the tacky, taut tape - and it didn't give at all.

"What the hell is with this tape...?" HE asked himself, shaking his head as he reached down to grab the cassette laying between his feet...

...and just as his hands started to close, the canted cassette rolled off the object it had been resting on, and Pete's hands instead wrapped themselves around the thick black dildo that had lain underneath.

"Shit!" Pete shouted, trying to drop the smooth, phallic object - but it seemed to be bound up in the tape, and he couldn't get his hands to release their grip from around the base of the long, hard plastic cock.

Angrily trying to shake the dildo free from his hands, he jerked upright...

...completely forgetting about his feet, still crammed into the shoes with their three-inch his inward sloping platforms and slender nine- inch heels.

He managed to get to his feet all right - but there was no chance at all of him managing to keep himself upright. He couldn't have stood in the shoes had they been all the way on his feet, much less in the half-on tip-toe position he was in now.

Cursing at the top of his lungs, Pete staggered around, shaking his hands frantically as he tried to unwrap his hands from around the damned dildo.

He accomplished many things - but none of the ones he wanted.

Reeling and wheeling about the tiny living room, his arms waving and pistoning, he trailed a whirling, whipping cassette that unspooled more and more tape - tape that wrapped itself more and more around him, even as the exposed end of it got even longer.

The tape not only whipped and whistled around him, it's sticky surface dragged down near the floor - and suddenly stuck to the side of the other oversized dildo still laying on the floor.

At the same moment, Pete just happened to slam backwards against the support column that separated the kitchen from the living- room - and the whirling, whipping tape suddenly swung around and over, wrapping itself around the column...

...and around his calves...

...around the column again, higher and moving faster as the arc of the shrinking length of tape grew shorter...

...then around his thighs. The column.

His waist - and hands. Column.

Chest and arms. Column...

...and then, with the last of it's velocity, back around his face...

...just as he opened his mouth to swear...

...and the dildo attached to the sticky tape slammed deep into his open mouth, it's thick bulk filling it completely as the tape finished it's last spin and pulled his head tight to the column.

Eyes wide, Pete grunted in horror and shock and minor pain, trying to scream in disgust and horror.

He couldn't - because of the head of the outsized plastic phallus that filled his mouth, held tightly in place by the tape.

The same tape that pinned his hands at his crotch level, the second dildo pressed hard against the sensitive flesh of his cock and balls.

As Pete struggled - vainly - against the impossible bonds of the tape, the thought that flitted across his confused, humiliated, horrified mind was: 'This is impossible!'

However, that wasn't at all true. What had happened so far was 'merely' highly improbable. What happened next was 'impossible'.

His entire body jerked - as his feet slid down to fit perfectly inside the incredibly high-heeled shoes, canted easily and 'natural' on the sixty-degree angle demanded by the high arch the slender heels imposed.

Not because the shoes had gotten any longer, but because - in a incredibly strange-feeling 'pulling' sensation, his feet had suddenly shrunk to fit.

Not that Pete could see any of this, of course. He couldn't see that his feet had become small and dainty and well-arched below slim, well-rounded ankles enclosed by the straps, any more than he could see that the shoes themselves had suddenly become a glossy jet black, with gleaming steel spike heels...

...but he could feel things happening. He could feel the strange, utterly impossible changes - as they raced upwards over his body.

He could feel strange pulling and pushing sensations as his previously angular, ungainly legs filled out into shapely new curves and hollows.

The 'crawling ants' sensation of his wiry body hair slurping back into the shrinking pores of his skin, leaving it silky smooth and eminently supple...

...and that was only the beginning.

As Pete grunted and moaned, struggling and writhing in the bonds of the impossible video tape, the changes continued flowing upwards - even as things continued to change behind the fore-front of the expanding wave of impossible alterations.

His legs - now long, smooth, and undeniably feminine in their shapely contours - were being forced steadily wider apart - as the 'tape' wrapped around his damnably attractive new feminine laps widened and thickened, the feel of them against the slick, smooth skin also changing as it acquired a new texture - that of cool, gleaming black close-grained leather of the finest quality.

Leather straps that bound those long, sexy new legs at an almost forty-five degree angle - and attached to the gleaming metal, black- leather-padded framework that was spinning itself out of nothing behind them.

Pete's incoherent grunting around the dildo-gag grew stronger in frantic intensity - as he felt his hips pushing out wider and wider, a more undeniably feminine curvature...

...much better suited for supporting the firmer, fuller ass-cheeks swelling out the back of his jean shorts. Shorts which, themselves, were also changing, becoming more feminine...

..as was only 'reasonable' - considering that the dildo pressed tight against his crotch was moving inexorably inwards against the resistance of his shrinking cock and balls.

Pete's muffled attempts at screaming became much higher - not because of any mystical change, but out of sheer, mindless horror.

Horror driven by the fact that the leather 'hot pants' now tightly incasing his full, firmly founded feminine ass and equally feminine wide, smoothly rounded hips had a 'slit' over the crotch...

...allowing the huge, thick dildo to slide smoothly and easily into the tight, wet embrace of her warm, supple new womanhood.

Pete's 'hysterical screams' became... something different as he first experienced the sensation of a large, hard object filling a tight, wet, oh-so-highly-sensitive cunt.

His cunt. Her cunt.

After all, it was only reasonable to apply the feminine article to anybody who had a tight pussy to be filled with a big, thick dildo - a dildo gripped in slender, well-formed hands whose long fingers were tipped with equally long, blood-red nails.

Hands encased in fingerless black leather 'gloves' attached by gleaming stainless-steel 'O'-rings to the metal-and-leather framework...

...a framework which had electrically-operated actuators that moved her hands.

Helplessly, locked into the grip of the machine, the feminizing Pete fucked her pleasure-charged cunt with the smooth plastic of the oversized dildo.

The moans forced around the dildo filling her still-masculine lips changed character as Pete was hit - and hit hard - with the unwanted pleasure issuing in liquid waves from her slick, warm new cunt.

The changes continued.

With a sensation somehow diametrically opposed to the bloated feeling of gas, his waist crimped inwards a remarkable degree, even as the 'tape' wrapped around broadened into a tight leather corset trimmed in shining steel grommets that connected to the metal framework forming itself behind her altering figure.

Writhing and moaning in the helpless grip of the unwanted pleasure that came from her unstoppable - and vigorous - motions with the dildo, Pete was 'distracted' from the sensations wracking her changing body - but not enough to notice the sensations as the bony ribcage smoothed out into more feminine dimensions - all the better to support the softly firm masses of flesh bulging steadily outwards in two unmistakable domes.

Domes that rapidly filled out into firmly rounded spheres.

Spheres that showed no interest in stopping at merely 'big', rapidly swelling out into the 'huge' range, the frank, pink nipples tipping each firm new breast growing in rapid pace along with the tits...

...which were now surrounded by a 'cage' of leather in a strange sort of garment that was sort of a 'reverse brassiere', supporting the swelling breasts without covering them.

Seconds later, a pair of huge, firm breasts, each the size of an extraordinarily delectable watermelon, thrust proudly from her chest - tipped by large, thick nipples, each of which were the 'proud bearer' of a large, gleaming steel nipple ring.

Huge, firm, round tits - that bounced and jiggled and swayed with each hard, rhythmic thrust of the dildo. Each disgustingly enjoyable thrust of the big, hard dildo...

...and still the changes continued.

Her neck became slimmer and longer - underneath the wide black leather collar that formed around the swan-like neck now laying in the shadow of the slender, finely-formed jaw...

...which boasted the glossy-red bee-stung lips wrapped around the equally big dildo now attracted to the black leather straps connected to the metal braces on either side of her stunning, triangular-shaped new feminine face, holding the dildo-gag in place.

A face boasting a pair of rich, emerald-green eyes that, even widened in unwanted pleasure and horror, remained heavy-lidded and seductive, peering past the long, dark eyelashes of her purple eye-shadowed lids.

A face that was, in turn, surrounded by the thick, luxuriant wave of rich, dark red hair that spilled out from her scalp, completing the transformation of a scrawny young man into a shapely, huge-breasted woman clad in luxuriant, fetishistic leather and mounted on an articulated frame that held her in lace as it forced herself to fuck her flame-hair trimmed new cunt with the juices-slicked dildo in her gloved hands.

Her voice - now husky and feminine in a rich, low, erotic moan - was almost equally helpless in it's need to respond to that unwanted pleasure which thundered through her transformed new body...

...but, muffled by the gag, it wasn't even close to loud enough to drown out the sound of the knocking on the apartment door. Jack and Steve had arrived.

Helplessly moaning around the dildo between her full lips, drawing steadily closer to orgasm, the new woman felt a shudder run through her as she was suddenly struck by a confused feeling - not sure if she wanted to be 'found' and released or not.

The knock came again.

"Pete? You there...?" Steve's voice called...

...and the doorknob turned. The unlocked doorknob.

The door opened.

"Pete? What's the surprise...?" Jack called, stepping into the apartment. Tall and lean, but well muscled and darkly tanned, the dark-haired young man in the khaki shorts and baggy gray athletic shirt stepped out of the way to allow the shorter, much heavily muscled young man with the shaved head and close-cropped brown goatee who stepped in behind him.

"Pro'ly something really lame." Steve said, his voice low and gravely as he glanced around the cramped apartment, his gray eyes narrowed. "I mean, what could a geek like Pete have worth..."

"Holy shit..." His taller friend said in an oddly breathless voice. He'd caught sight of Pete.

Not that he recognized the pneumatic red-head as the geeky blond kid, of course.

"Holy geez..." Steve agreed in a similar, if lower, tone, as he also stepped into the living room to stare at the wide-hipped, big-titted woman mounted on a leather and metal framework, frantically masturbating with a big black dildo.

Heavy-lidded eyes unable to express her true feelings, the new woman made sounds intended to convey one thing - but coming across as eager, horny moans of pleasure to the ears of the two young men.

"Shit - get a load of this...!" Steve said, somehow managing to rip his eyes off her huge, shimmying tits to read something on the control panel mounted on the side of the framework.

"I'm Penny Plaything, the Big-Boobed Bondage Beauty." He read in an awed voice. "The Pleasure Provider 3000 will release me only after each of it's functions have been used at least once. Enjoy!"

"You gotta be shittin' me..." Jack said, shaking his head.

"I don't think so." Steve said, a slow grin forming on his heavy-featured face. "She sounds ripe and ready now, don't she?"

"Maybe..." Jack said, a matching smile slowly surfacing on his face. "Why don't we try one of these functions and see what happens...?"

"Why don't we...?" Steve agreed - and reached out to push the 'blowjob' button on the console.

Pete - or 'Penny' - barely noticed the by-play, because she was much too busy trying to cope with the fact that she was on the very edge of her first female orgasm...

...which she didn't quite make it too as he hands suddenly released the dildo, leaving it lodged in her cunt as the framework hummed, leaning her forward as her cradled hands were pulled upwards.

As the machine hummed it's way into position, the straps holding the dildo-gag in place 'retracted', pulling the dildo free.

Even in the unwanted disappointment flooding her at the frustration of nearly reaching orgasm, Penny tried to cry out for help...

...and was horrified to hear nothing but an horny, eager-sounding moan emerge from her full new lips.

She tried again, struggling to get her feminine new voice to form the words - and her increased effort made her new moan sound all the more emphatic...

...and consenting.

"Yeah - she wants it..." Steve grunted, undoing his jeans as the machine finished humming into position - leaving her 'leaning over', huge tits hanging loose as her hands ended up in position in front of her new mouth...

...all at just the right height.

Grinning, Steve stepped forward, sliding his already hard cock into her hands...

...and through them, directly into a her mouth.

A mouth that, as if on it's own, tightened around the warm, slightly musky-tasting cock, as if her body was as automated as the complex device that held it.

Helpless to stop herself, Penny began giving her first blowjob.

Not that Steve had any idea that it was a first for the woman - because she was doing it like and expert.

"Oh, God - yeah!" Steve cried, his head rolling back and his eyes closing in pleasure as her gloved hands began working the shaft with a steady rhythm while her lips and tongue danced over the head and the end of the shaft in expert patterns. "Oh, baby - that's the way..."

"Damn...!" Jacks gasped, watching the big-titted red-head slurp Steve's cock like an expert, his own cock like an iron bar in his shorts.

Penny, however, was experiencing some rather different emotions than those one might assume from the happy-sounding little moans she was making.

She was, quite frankly, horrified and disgusted to find herself helplessly - and hungrily - slurping away on a hard, throbbing cock, tasting the salty muskiness of the living flesh filling her 'expert' mouth as she licked and sucked the throbbing member. She struggled, desperately, to make herself stop - but her new, unwanted body ignored her in favor of continuing the requested blow-job, just like the obedient little sex slave she would appear to be.

Inside, her screaming mind was still that of Pete Widzikowski - but in body and action, in everything the outside world had to observe and interact with, she was Penny Plaything, the Big-Boobed Bondage Beauty.

Which was why when her talented hands and mouth worked to the final end of getting Steve off, her throat worked convulsively, 'eagerly' gulping sown the thick, salty, astringent load of cum that Steve pumped into her warm, waiting mouth...

...and she groaned with every sign of pleasure as he did so.

"God - that was the best blowjob ever..." Steve said, pulling his slowly softening cock from her mouth - as she licked the last droplets of cum from her lips, apparently savoring the flavor. "Damn, but she'd a cock-hungry slut, ain't she?"

"My turn..." Jack said, hoarsely, stepping up to the machine. He glanced over the remaining three options - then pressed a button.

With a humming sound, the machine began to reconfigure itself. Even as Jack hastily dropped his shorts, her hands went back to the massive dildo still impaling her tight cunt - and pulled it free with a wet, slurping sound, it and the hands gripping it going back up, this time to rest over her head as the machine finished swiveling her, leaving her inclined on a nearly ninety-degree angle, legs spread invitingly.

It was an invitation that Jack needed to promptly take. Stepping forward into the 'V' of her spread, canted legs, he pushed a small lever on the side that 'fine tuned' her to the right height - then eagerly slammed his throbbing manhood deep within the wet embrace of her waiting womanhood.

The low moan from her throat gave every indication of deep, eager pleasure...

...and it was only half 'forced', because the shocked, stunned, helpless man trapped in the buxom body was forced to experience the physical pleasure of an act that created emotional horror and disgust.

Leaning forward, his hands going to her huge, firm tits, Jack began to thrust his hips in a hard rhythm, working for his own pleasure, and his own pleasure alone as he began to fuck her hard and quick, hands squeezing and mauling her boobs...

...and despite his 'me, me, me' approach, she couldn't help but feel growing pleasure as her delayed orgasm began to approach again, the hard masturbation session with the dildo having 'prime her pump'.

The blow-job had told her what her fate was to be. Even after she was released from the machine, she was going to play the role she now embodied, unable to be anything but Penny Plaything...

...and that knowledge, combined with the rapidly approaching orgasm, was enough to push her entrapped mind over the brink, and in the gibbering madness that enveloped her, she cheerfully embraced her new role in life as that of huge-breasted sex slave.

* * * * *

As his friend banged the big-titted slut hard, Steve looked around the skuzzy apartment, looking for something to occupy him while he waited his turn...

...and his eyes fell on some brightly colored boxes on the floor near the couch.

Bending over, Steve grinned at the sight of the porn videos scattered on the floor.

"Cool..." Steve said, rummaging through them. Finally, he straightened, holding a copy of 'Deviant Vixens' in one meaty hand.

Grinning to himself, he walked over and slipped the tape into the already open slot of the VCR, pushing it down into the machine. The machine hummed and whirred...

...and then there was a terrible, discordant 'zort' sound, followed by a ragged squeal completely out of place for any correctly- functioning mechanical device.

THE END

SUMMARY: A man meets five women demonesses, hellspawn on torturing him, and must pay a dear price for being a black-mailer when returning home to his childhood roots.

Cells And Gibbets

By Gunslinger

Clayton Edward Munroe's 'Triumphant Return' to the place where his path to privilege and fortune began was somewhat marred by the fact that he was nearly killed by a massive, rusting iron gate almost the instant he arrived.

Ears still ringing from the sharp, ear-drum-crackling sound of metal-on-metal, Clay pushed himself off the badly overgrown stone-paved driveway, brushing the leaves and dirt from his tan slacks and off- white, cable-knit turtle-neck sweater. His right knee gave a twinge, letting him know it wasn't happy about the sharp blow it had taken on his instinctive dive away from the gate, but Clay had to admit that a sore knee beat the hell out of having the gate crash down on his head.

Besides - the pain was more the a little muted by the champagne he'd drank a) at his penthouse apartment before coming here, b) in the Jag while on his way up here, and c) finishing the bottle of Cliquot Veuve just before trying the gate.

More than just his pride was injured, however. Running his manicured fingers through his short, dark hair, Clay looked mournfully at his hunter-green Jaguar XJS, its hood and roof crumpled by the gate that had cashed down on it, the windshield turned into small, pebble-like chunks of safety glass that were sprayed through the cream-colored leather interior of the luxury sports car. Several of the spear- like uprights of the gate had broken free from the badly rusted cross-bars, and had all-but-shot through the windshield, one of them actually protruding halfway through the driver's seat.

"Well, I'm glad I didn't go with Plan 'A'..." Clay muttered, shaking his head as he surveyed the damage to his beloved Jag.

When he'd first pulled the car up to the massive, locked gates that protected the decaying hulk of what had once been the Merriweather Academy for Young Ladies, he'd looked at the gigantic rusted hinges and thought they were permanently frozen in place, and had considered just trying to 'nudge' them open with the Jag. To be honest, it was the thought of scratching the paint on the sloping hood that had convinced him to test the hinges by hand, despite the 'obvious' fact that they were rusted solid.

And, indeed, the hinges themselves would never rotate. However, Clay hadn't taken into account the fact that the rusting bolts that had once firmly secured the gate to the gray stone pillars were no longer capable of supporting the massive weight of the wrought iron and handle the relatively little force he'd applied to them in trying to open them. If he hadn't come along, the gates would probably have fallen in a year or two, just from age and weather. A good, strong gust of New England wind would have done the job.

Normally, Clay wouldn't have taken the damage to his car so philosophically, but between the champagne and the fact that he was celebrating having just signed a deal that made him the youngest member of the NYSE's 'Platinum Club,' the damage to his beloved status symbol could be viewed with a certain amount of detachment.

It was the signing of that deal that brought him back here. This place was Clay Munroe's greatest memory - and greatest secret.

Though none of his 'associates' knew it, this was where the now thirty-two year old 'wheeler and dealer' had learned all he needed to know about making it in the cut-throat world of the financial markets - and it hadn't been from Merriweather's business classes, which had been almost non-existent.

Back then, Clay had been a fifteen-year-old orphan, on his own - and secretly living within the walls confined of the once-prestigious New England finishing school, in a small cottage that had belonged to the 'Head Groundskeeper', back when Merriweather had been able to afford such things. Despite a growing financial problem that would shortly lead to the school's closing, Merriweather still had a fair number of very 'upper crust' young ladies in attendance, girls whose mothers had attended Merriweather, and wanted their daughters to share in their Alma Mater.

It was here that young, dirty Clay had learned the secret to Blackmailing for Fun and Profit. It had begun as a survival skill, since he'd needed 'confederates' on the inside to help him obtain food and clothing, as well as other necessary items. He'd all-but-stumbled across the answer on one of his midnight raids to the kitchen's garages - when he'd come across a couple of young ladies busy toking on a big, fat reefer.

Since that could get the girls in trouble, he'd immediately seen the possibilities inherent in the situation, and had begun his life as a blackmailer. From there, he used the girls to garner new secrets, bigger secrets, that allowed him to gain a greater hold over them, making it possible to get more and more out of them, in a vicious cycle that the girls, for all their 'hoity-toity' education, didn't have a clue as to how to escape, because doing so would ruin them as well.

Clay had been absolutely certain that he'd had their lives and souls in the palms of his hands when he began having sex with the girls, whether they really wanted to or not - they just couldn't refuse, the alternative being so much worse.

Since then, Clay had moved up in the world, and quickly enough too - and nobody but he and his victims knew that his amazing 'insight' into the financial world came from the fact that he had more than two dozen women in his pocket, women married to the movers and shakers of the financial world and who knew many of their husband's secrets, and passed them on to Clay, usually in a secret apartment he owned, where he could indulge in the 'forbidden fruit' of these married women who would almost literally die rather than let the world find out all their dirty little secrets - and yet, every time they obeyed Clay's orders, they just dug themselves deeper into a dark bit that had driven two of his stable into 'inexplicable' suicides.

He'd made sure to get rid of any damning suicide notes that might have revealed his part in their suicides, of course...

The others half-hoped he'd someday make good on his promise to just let them walk away - but he merely snickered at the thought, since these women, weak and pathetic, were his secret to fame and fortune, and he'd use them up until they were dry. Not that he planned to let even that stop him - he'd already started 'cultivating' a couple of these women's daughters.

One did have to plan for one's future, of course...

That thought ran through his mind in the voice of Miss Haversham, one of the teachers, and the thought made him chuckle as he walked around to the rear of his car and unlocked the trunk.

Darkness was just settling in, the late-summer twilight further cut by the tall, stately trees that overhung the overgrown drive. The gathering gloom was quickly dispelled by the bright white light from the 12-Volt lantern flashlight Clay withdrew from the trunk, however. Holding the large, square light in his right hand, Clay gathered up another bottle of champagne in the other and pushed the trunk closed. Following the bright white cone of the light, he headed walked past the car and carefully maneuvered around the demolished gate, entering the overgrown grounds of the old school with a certain sense of homecoming.

It was a rather Gothic homecoming, though. The Merriweather Academy was one of the original ivy- covered institutions of yore, a sprawling gray-stone building with hand-chiseled motifs around doors and windows, now mostly hidden by the ivy that crept across the darkened building. Following the beam of the lantern, Clay made his way to the main building, the overgrown lawn and hedges seeming to jump and sway in the moving beam of light.

The big, oak doors that led into the building were a little more weathered, but otherwise as Clay remembered them being - large and formidable, bound in iron and looking like they'd been relocated from a fortress of old.

It was only upon seeing them did Clay realize he hadn't bothered to try and track down a key to open them. With a muffled curse, he put the bottle of champagne down on the step, and half-heartedly gave the big brass latch a try...

...and was surprised and gratified to hear that old familiar 'clunk' of the heavy, old-fashioned latch letting go. There wasn't even a screech from the big brass hinges as he pushed the door open, revealing the darkened interior of the school's lobby.

Picking up the champagne, Clay entered the building and closed the door behind him. Looking around with a certain sense of satisfaction, he found memories flooding back - memories further enhanced by the fact it was now full night, just as he'd planned.

Due to his status - or lack thereof - he'd never dared wandered the grounds of the Academy in broad daylight. Though he could have come earlier in the day, somehow it seemed fitting that this last visit to the academy be like all his visits, shrouded in darkness. The daylight belonged to the public image he presented the rest of the world, that of C. Edward Munroe, gifted financial genius. Clay, however, an orphan and blackmailer, was a creature of darkness and secrets, and it was only fitting that this nostalgic journey be conducted under the cloak of darkness.

With a small, self-satisfied grin on his face, Clay headed for the broad, sweeping oak staircase that rose from the center of the foyer and split to the left and right. His expensive Italian-leather shoes made small, sharp ringing noises on the dusty marble floor, the sound seeming crisp and clear in the silence of the abandoned school - a far cry from the silent, slightly frightened footsteps of a bare-foot youth creeping about.

The once-regal red carpet on the stairs was faded and dusty, but the aged oak beneath was still sound, the heavy wooden stairs not even creaking as he walked boldly up the center of them, something he'd never done before. Always, in his youth, he'd crept up the side of the stairs, near the ornate banisters, eyes flicking around in fear of the 'House Mothers' who strolled the grounds, ostensibly as chaperones and security... but, usually, on their way to the kitchen for a midnight snack and cigarette, washed down perhaps by a touch of port or sherry, which was against school rules but a 'open secret' among the staff - and known, of course, to the silent presence who knew all the dirty little secrets the stone walls of the academy contained.

Part of him almost wished he was back in those long-ago days of youth. Sure, he hadn't been rich, and sure, he'd been living like a rag-tag street orphan, dressed in stolen girls' clothing and living off the refuse of the school kitchen. Despite all the hardships, though, he could still remember the heady thrills of those days, when he had just discovered the power and influence he could wield over other human beings.

The nostalgia was so strong, he could practically hear the feminine chatter of those now-grown girls...

Clay came to a dead stop, a puzzled frown crossing his face. There was no 'almost' about it - he could hear the sound of girls chatting in low tones. In fact, it was getting clearer, louder - and was no accompanied by the sound of those short, Mary-Jane heels on hardwood floors.

Clay stopped dead, paralyzed by surprise. Who was in here? And why?

Before he could realize that those questions could wait, before he could think to try one of the doors lining the hallways, a flare of red-tinted light sprang around the wooden door at the end of the corridor as it was swung open...

...revealing a quintet of young ladies dressed in the well-remembered uniform of the Merriweather Academy.

Clay's eyes roamed over the young women's bodies and clothes. All were dressed in identical clothes a starched, white cotton blouse over 'sensible' undergarments. A dark-blue-and-white plaid skirt, knee-length, sensible and a tad shapeless. A matching dark-blue blazer (or sweater-vest, also acceptable under the Dress Code). White wool, cotton or opaque nylon hose. Black 'Mary Jane' shoes with a sensible one-and-a-third-inch-heel.

The uniforms were the same as Clay remembered - but not the bodies filling them out. Merriweather, at least of old, was a haven for tall, elegant, slender women. Caucasian women, mostly. Oh, there were a few 'odd girls out', but not many.

And certainly not like this. The five girls could have been sisters, so similar were they. They all had dark, dusky skin - something that looked to him like a shade somewhere between 'Indian Red' and 'Latino Bronze'. Their eyes were slightly almond-shaped, dark and mysterious. Their lips were full and round above mischievously impish chins. Full manes of jet-black hair cascaded past this face - and over the shoulders of a body that was taut and muscled without being 'masculine'. There was a lot of power in these girl's bodies - but feminine power, smooth and graceful. These were no 'innocent' school-girls. They were twenty-one if they were a day, with lush, taut bodies promising rampant sensuality beneath those boring, 'Plain-Jane' uniforms.

Now, Clay new very well that he had no rightful reason to be in the school, whereas the girls might... but: 'when in doubt, attack!'

"What are you girls doing here?" Clay asked, balancing his tone between a demand and a causal inquiry.

The dusky, beautifully toned women shared a long look among themselves, nearly identical gloss-red lips curving up at the corners slightly in nearly-identical secretive smiles.

Then the one leading the 'wedge' of young-women 'girls' spoke in a rich, melodic voice.

"My, my - what have we here?" She asked her near-clones, in a coolly sarcastic tone. "Somebody's not living up to the high, high standards of the Merriweather Academy. Whatever shall we do?"

Clay frowned at her smug, calm tones. "Look, girls, I don't know..."

"I suppose we must help our new friend." The girl said, as if Clay hadn't even spoken - her voice was neither loud nor annoyed, but still powerful enough to override his annoyed response. "It is our duty as Ladies, after all. Bring her along."

The other four girls approached Clay, silently, and he took a step backwards while looking at them through narrowed eyes, wondering what game the young women were playing.

He was unprepared for it when the front two moved with surprising speed, reaching out and grabbing his wrists in their dusky hands. He yanked his arms away from their clutches...

...or tried to. Though he should have been able to pull away with fairly little effort, his arms didn't so much as budge, though the muscles beneath his clothe straightened and flexed impressively. It just didn't do any good - it was as if he were trying to pull his arms away from padded steel bands rather than mere human hands.

"What the hell...?" He gasped, dropping bottle and light as he struggled harder in the deceptively easy-looking grip of the two women. It still didn't do so much as budge their grips - or ruffle their calm, cool demeanor.

"Let the fuck go...!" Clay demanded, struggling against the two women's impossibly strong grip... and then the other two silent girls bent down and grabbed his ankles in an equally unshakable hold.

Clay wasn't used to feeling powerless - especially against the female of the species. He'd made a living - and hell of a good one - out of bending women to his will. The situation was too new, too strange for him to be able to deal with it rationally yet - and the emotions that it was creating were ones he didn't like feeling.

Confusion. Shock. Anger...

...and fear.

He was being carried, struggling, towards the door the girls had come through, suspended spread-eagle in the air in the unbreakable, impossibly strong grip of four women who couldn't possibly be as indomitable as they nevertheless were...

...and then the fifth one, the one who'd spoken, stepped up beside him, walking backwards down the hall - and bent over, grabbed his head firmly-yet-gently, and began kissing him.

It was the most stunningly sexual kiss he'd ever received in his life. He'd never felt any kiss that was so indescribably erotic and pleasurable in and of itself. Despite the strange situation, he felt his fear and confusion being submerged under a wave of arousal as the yet-unnamed woman provided him a crash course in super-human sexuality in kissing.

Then that incredible kiss broke, and she whispered sensuously in his ear....

"What's your ideal home or apartment?"

Flabbergasted, Clay managed to stammer out how he liked penthouses atop skyscrapers and then she was kissing him again.

Clay lost all track of time. It seemed that he was carried down endless hallways, spending hours either being kissed or answering strange and bizarre questions that ranged from his favorite color to his favorite fruit or vegetable, and then on into even stranger questions.

After an immeasurable time, Clay found himself being pushed into an upright - but still spread-eagle - position, one of the girls still clamping each ankle and wrist. He looked around - and found himself to be in what looked like a very large shower stall, white tiled - even the door was tiled. There were a dozen faucet-heads, at different levels.

Suddenly, those heads sprang to life, and water washed over Clay and the young women.

No - not water. It was odorless and tasteless - but whatever it was, it ate away all clothing and hair. The women's hair and clothing dissolved away as if made of powdered sugar - and so did Clay's.

His squirming and writhing did nothing to stop it from happening.

In a minute, all six of them were completely nude - and completely denuded, not a single hair remaining among them. Their skin was smooth and soft - and while it looked good on the girls, Clay was less enthusiastic about it.

Then the fifth woman grabbed him and kissed him. It was a passionate kiss, a pleasurable kiss - but her grip was as implacable as the other girls' had been, and when the other four released him and disappeared out the door, Clay didn't even have the slightest chance of escaping.

A moment later, she broke the kiss - and then released him, stepping out of the shower through its tile covered door.

Clay stepped out and looked around, hesitantly, nervously running the palm of his right hand over his eerily smooth, denuded skin.

The room was large and rather unique. Clay knew for a fact that there'd been no room like this in the building when he'd been here last.

One end of it looked like the ultimate high-tech hair saloon. The shower took up another corner, leaving the rest of the room in a rough 'L' shape, and the lone woman was along the short end of it, where there was a stunning array of wigs, each mounted on a Styrofoam 'head'. Past that large, multi-shaded display was the door - which was solid steel, and Clay didn't think he'd be lucky enough for them to have forgotten to lock it.

"So - what do you think?" the woman said, drawing his attention back to her. She was holding a wig that exactly matched the massive, raven's wing mane of hair she'd possessed before the shower. "This one?"

"Uh..." Was the best Clay could manage, still trying to wrap his brain around whatever it was that was going on.

"How about this one?" the woman said, holding up a mid-shade brown one, with a pony-tail.

"How.. how about that one...?" Clay said, struggling to sound calm and collected as he pointed rather randomly at one of the most garish wigs - a massive, brassy-blond wig that boasted lots of golden curls running down.

"Mmmm... Nice choice..." She said, picking up the Styrofoam head. She reached under one of the stands, then smiled at him before bending out of sight for a second or two.

Straightening, she slowly walked towards him, smiling a mysterious closed-lip smile and still carrying the wig stand.

Then she was rubbing her body against his - and all that smooth flesh felt decidedly nice as she pressed her firm, D-cup breasts into his chest and slowly moved him backwards. When the back of his knees hit the chair, he sat instinctively in the complicated black-leather stylist's chair, the dusky-skinned seductress climbing onto his lap and bending to press her full, soft lips against his.

He started to respond, letting his lips open - and she used her tongue to press the ball-gag she'd been holding in her mouth into his. Before he could respond, she'd put the wig-head aside, grabbed the leather bands attached to the ball, and clipped them onto built-in posts on the chair, locking his head into position.

He struggled, making pathetic sounds through the gag, but she quickly fastened other restraints on him, pinning him in place on the chair.

"Okay, girls, she wants this one..." He heard her say. That puzzled him for a second, until: "I showed her the one that matched ours, then the 'Brunette Good Girl' style, but she wanted 'Bimbo No. 5' instead."

She bent into his field of vision, smiling.

"I think Carolyn here will look lovely as a blonde..."

Clay tried to struggle - but he was pinned tight. He couldn't even move his head as he felt the women go to work, doing something to his scalp. Shortly, his head began to itch horribly, and he felt a silky 'slithering' sensation across his skull.

He was pretty sure he knew what it was. It was impossible, but he was still pretty sure that it was happening, anyway.

"Okay, while we're at it, she wants long, hot-pink nails. It's against the dress-code, but Carolyn said she likes her nails 'long and hot pink'..."

Clay's mind spun. He recognized the 'answer' as being his - but the 'question' it had been the answer for had been about describing one of Elvis's cars, and the only thing Clay had been able to think about was the 'Pink Cadillac'.

"Of course, she'll want eyebrows to match her hair - and lipstick to match her nails." The one looming over him said, negligently, and he could do nothing but make highly muffled noises in complaint.

Mentally, he noted that it was a night for 'eternity's'. It seemed that their fussing took hours - hours during which he experienced some of the strangest and most unnerving sensations he'd ever felt. The annoying itch on his head, one he couldn't scratch. A smaller - but equally annoying itch - above his eyes. The feel of something being done to his lips around the ball-gag, his fingernails - and to his eyelids, lashes and cheeks.

His was being 'made up' in addition to having long, blonde hair grown from his scalp and styled by a quartet of silent, nearly identical girls, all to a running dialogue provided by the look-alike who spoke... and seemed to really enjoy referring to him as 'her' and 'Carolyn'.

When they were finally done, he felt a mixture of hope and fear, glad this was over, but knowing what came next.

"Arch your back." The one who did all the talking said. Clay didn't react quick enough...

...and then his back arched completely on it's own when she wrapped a hand around his balls and squeezed. Agony like none he could remember shot thorough him - and he knew that she wasn't squeezing as hard as she could.

When his back was arched, a machine built into the chair came to life, dragging the leather manacles at his wrists towards each other, under him. There was a muffled 'clank' as they came together, then the chains that mounted them to the chair were released, leaving the leather wrist-restraints connected, like hand-cuffs.

At the same time, there was something going on behind his head, as the machine pulled the traps of the ball-gag down and behind him, fastening it into place on a leather collar that snapped into place around his neck.

He was allowed to sit up, the leg restraints removed - but with a ball-gag strapped in place on the collar and his hands manacled behind his newly smooth back, Clay was hardly in the perfect situation to take advantage of having his legs freed.

Instead, he only stared in the mirror one of the girls held up.

That huge, outrageous mane of brassy-blond hair now rested on his head, styled identical to the wig. His face was fully made up, with long, dark lashes, bright hot-pink gloss lipstick, and even eye- shadow and blush.

He made one hell of an ugly chick, even if he did have the skin and the hair. Not that he wanted to look good, mind you, and he definitely didn't want the hair or soft, bare skin - but he didn't have any say in the matter.

The one who spoke reached out and took a hold of the chain that was attached to the collar around his neck - his leash.

"Come on, Carolyn - we have plenty to do." She said, yanking on the chain...

...which hauled him out of the chair and would have sent him halfway across the room if she hadn't been holding the other end firmly enough to jerk him to a stop. There was no possibility of him disobeying her order to follow - even if he'd locked his stance, she could have dragged him easily. Instead, he went under his own power, the sour sweat of fear beginning to run down his smooth, denuded skin.

He found himself being led into what appeared to be a typical dorm-style room, at least typical for Merriweather Academy, at least - lots of oak paneling and hunter-green carpet and drapes, with gold trim.

"Okay, let's see where Carolyn's having trouble, shall we?" The talkative one said with a sort of false solitude that made the already untenable situation worse. She walked over to the desk, on which there was a few items, including a flower-covered Diary, which was open to a pink-bordered page about halfway through the book.

"The last entry..." She said, clipping the end of Clay's leash to a metal register and picking up the book. "Hmm... it says here that she hates the chair she has to sit in all day - it's so uncomfortable."

It was another 'answer' that Clay had given, and this time an accurate one, sort of - when she'd asked him one of the things he'd really hated about the school, he'd replied that the wooden straight-back chairs they used were too hard and uncomfortable.

"Well, I think we can help with that..." The woman said, grabbing the chain and pulling Clay towards her. He struggled, but her grip was unbreakable as she grabbed him and bent him over the back of that straight-back wooden chair.

"Carolyn would like some more padding, please." She said to the other girls - and, by turning his head, Clay could watch the other four in a sideways view as they went into an adjoining dorm room through the connecting door and got some materials.

Then, all sideways, he watched them work quickly and efficiently at building something, the four of them sitting in an open circle on the floor of the room beside the desk.

The constriction started with a folding steel object that was roughly 'Butterfly' shaped, to rounded steel wedges attached in the center on a spring-loaded folding 'lock-hinge'.

Over this they placed a couple of round couch-cushions. They were attached a distance from the folded metal piece, with a metal rod connecting their figure-eight shape to the butterfly. The whole thing was then covered with pinkish-beige fabric that was sewn over it, until it looked a little like...

He'd just had time to realize what it looked like when they finished it - and handed it to the talkative one, who didn't hesitate in the least as she shoved the folded metal 'butterfly' up Clay's ass.

He tried to scream at the gigantic flood of pain that came from having the huge, cool metal object shoved deep up an asshole that should never have been able to stretch far enough to accept it, yet somehow did anyway. The wash of pain was just starting to ebb as the girl - humming cheerfully! - glued the hemmed edges of the fabric in place over his upper thighs...

...and then she triggered the spring, and worse agony flared at the metal butterfly unfolded.

He should have passed out from the shear force of the agony - but he was spared even that relief, forced to live through the red-tinged hazed of agony that seemed to last a life-time.

Finally, the agony subsided, and Clay found himself being hauled to stand in front of a three-way mirror...

He stared, eyes bulging. Somehow, the 'padding' they'd constructed had become real, fusing to living skin. More than that, however, the construct had done other impossible things - like widening his hips considerably to what was most definitely feminine proportions. That wide, womanly set of hips supported a huge, round, and firm ass that was practically too much of a good thing.

Clay's mind spun in useless circles. The women's impossibly strong grips were one thing. The hair, another - but what had just happened was utterly inconceivable in any way that Clay was capable of theorizing. High technology, new chemicals or devices could explain the hair-growth, perhaps.

Genetic tampering or even 'androids' might explain the women. But this...? This he'd had happen to him, so he knew it wasn't technology or illusion - and yet it had happened, as impossible as it should have been.

Worse than just the fact of the impossible happening was what the impossible thing was - something that gave him wide, well-rounded hips and a huge, firm - and feminine! - ass.

"What else have we got in here...?" The dusky-skinned tormentress said, vaguely, clipping Clay back to the radiator - and he tried to shake his head in the negative as she looked in the diary. His frantic head-shaking went ignored as she twisted yet another of his answers, this one from a question about meat. He liked his meat nice and lean...

"She thinks she's got too much fat on her. Why don't we help her with that, then?" The dusky-skinned woman said... and Clay noticed, with horror, that there was something different about her, and the other girls.

Their skin was a different shade than before, a more red hue than it had been originally... and there was a small little bump at the top of each girl's perfect, firm ass.

Held immobile by two of the girls, he could do nothing as the other two went to fetch a white leather corset and began to fit it around his waist. Truth be known, he was staring wide-eyed at the girl holding his right wrist. She was grinning at him, wickedly... and, with rising fear, he noticed that the white, clean teeth in that grin were now somewhat pointed.

The woman's previously dark eyes now boasted a red tinged iris, and there were two small bumps forming on her skull, amidst the sparse new layer of fresh hair growth. A quick glance at the others showed the same changes... and then he lost all interest in the girls as new agony flared in his waist as the corset was drawn tight, then even tighter - and going right on in to impossibly tight, past the point where it should, logically, be able to compress him down to.

By the time the agony subsided and he was allowed to see his tiny new wasp waist in the mirror, 'logic' no longer interested him. He had to choose between staring in horror at his tiny waist - or at the girls, who now looked completely different.

Their hair was back, those massive, wavy manes of glossy black hair - and peeking through it were a pair of curved black horns streaked through with a sullen red near the base - a red that matched the hellish shade of their skin. Even the flesh on their long, spatulate tails was the same reddish hue.

The five women were demonesses, hellspawn bent on torturing him - and the form of the torture was pretty well an open secret.

The woman - demoness - who was doing all the talking laughed, looking at him staring at them wide-eyed.

"I think our little lamb is finally catching on." She said, looking at Clay with a wicked grin. She made a gesture with her arm, and the other four walked towards her...

...and then, one by one, they walking into her, being absorbed by her body without the slightest ripple. While the 'girls' were filing into the talkative demoness, the room itself changed. The light darkened and became tinged with red, while the air became heavy with the smell of sulfur. From an unseen distance, the faint wails of the damned reached Clay's shocked, wished-he-could-be-disbelieving ears.

The room itself took on a dusty, somehow decayed look, though everything remained whole and firm. Despair and gloom pervaded, and the air temperature rose a few degrees, making more sweat roll down Clay's body.

Now alone with Clay in the room, the demoness laughed again, and stepped close to Clay. "News-flash, honey." She said, huskily. "You're dead."

Clay stared at her... and then, horrified, found his mind flooding with repressed memories, memories that made him want to scream and gibber in terror.

When he'd driven his Jag up to the gates, he'd been drunk. He'd never thought of 'nudging' the gate open, nor had he gotten out to do it by hand - those were all 'false' memories. Now, horrified, Clay was able to remember hitting the brakes too late...

His mind went back to the 'memory' of the iron bar thrust through the driver's seat... only now he saw it thrust through the driver, too.

He'd died - and now he was in Hell.

If he could have, Clay would have one stark, raving mad - but Hell wouldn't let that simple escape for it's damned souls.

The demoness laughed, a horribly mirthful sound, evil and rich and full of true enjoyment of his agony.

"I like you, Clay." She said after that laughter died away. "You've damned a lot of souls for us, and I'm looking forward to torturing some of those less depraved lost souls. Yours is too dark for true enjoyment - despite your various horrors, you are too inherently evil for me to defile."

Clay swallowed nervously, staring at her gape-eyed. "Uh... thanks..."

She chuckled. "I'm going to be nice to you, Clay. I'm going to make you an offer - how would you like to love again? To get a second chance at life, with a guarantee that you won't wind up here after you die again. Oh, a few millennia in Purgatory - that's a necessity. But any man who's seen hell cannot willingly doom himself a second time. The human mind won't let him - a damned 'safety clause' Ol' Graybeard threw into you money-spawn."

She spit on the now-rock floor... where it hissed. Clay hadn't noticed, but the room had continued to 'decay', and now was a ruin sitting on a steaming, hissing red-tinted floor that threw off waves of dry, sulfuric heat. Through a huge, gaping hole in one wall, he could see an endless blasted plain, full of horrors that his brain quailed at just seeing.

"What... What's the chance?" He gasped, mind spinning.

She laughed. "Simple - you have to save XX souls... while I fuck you. If you successfully save all XX souls, you get to go back to earth with a whole new life."

Clay stared at her hideous, pointed-tooth smile. Though still inhumanly sexy, the demoness no longer held any sexual appeal for Clay.

"And if I fail...?" He asked.

She laughed, horribly. "Why, then, you willingly dedicate yourself to Satan, and become a minor demon, safe from the worst tortures of hell as long as you continue corrupting souls - and continue to please me as my personal plaything for all eternity!"

Those were his choices: An eternity as lost soul in hell, tortured for eternity. Or, a minor rank in Satan's army, safe from the worst tortures... but not all of them.

Or - a new life, and a chance for redemption.

Clay had always scorned religion, believing it fodder for the gullible masses - but he'd recently had a change of mind on the topic, and was now very interesting in making the acquaintance of a certain Savior and his Father, forever and always, amen.

"I'll take your deal." He said, fervently.

She laughed. "Oh, god - I do so love to defeat mortals in a test of will - and sex."

Laughing, she slammed him back atop the still-intact bed and thrust herself down on his suddenly rock-hard cock. Hellishly powerful pleasure ripped through his body as she turned loose the full power of her hell-spawned sensuality, her very touch sending near-orgasmic pleasure through Clay as she began to ride him with powerful thrusts from her shapely, well-toned legs.

"Look up, Clay!" She shouted. "It's your first soul!"

Clay, vibrating in ecstasy on the bed, struggled to focus as much of his mind through the overwhelming pleasure, staring up at the gaping whole in the roof, through which an image was somehow projected, as if there were a pure-pictured TV on the other side of the whole. Threw it, he could see a young man approaching a street corner. He was walking, head up, focused on the lights that were about to change. The whole image was 'paused', taken from a high angle that also showed around the corner of the building, where two more people were approaching the corner. One was an older lady in a floral-print dress and too-large sunglasses. The other was an amazingly slender, supple, fashion-model-beautiful woman, wearing small, wrap-around sunglasses, a baggy, bright- yellow turtleneck sweater... and a tiny black leather mini-skirt that showed her incredibly long, shapely legs.

"In a few seconds..." the demoness said, speaking easily as she rode atop him. "The young man is going to see the woman - and stare so hard at her legs that he won't notice the old woman. He'll bump into her and knock her into traffic - and will feel so guilty about it, he'll commit suicide in two days, his Despair of God sending him straight to hell..."

Then the picture began to move, the man approaching the corner as the two women, as yet unseen, approached the corner for the other side.

"What do you do!" the demoness shouted at him as the near-inevitable loomed.

Mind still swirling with unholy pleasure, Clay struggled to think. "Make her legs less sexy..." He shouted.

"How? Where will I put all that sexiness...?" She screamed - as, in the 'picture', the woman began to clear the corner, the young man instinctively looking towards the splash of color that he caught in his peripheral vision.

Switch it with mine...!" Clay screamed, desperately...

...and watched as, in the image, the young man's glance took in the woman...

...and, after sliding across the plain legs her short skirt showed, shrugged and faced forward, stopping in plenty of time to keep from bumping into the old lady...

...then whirling around as the fashion-model began to scream, staring down in horror at her legs.

The demoness, atop Clay, laughed uproariously as she pounded atop his body, her own legs now just barely more shapely than the long, toned ones Clay boasted. "Next!"

The scene above shifted - this time, it showed a young woman, sitting in her room, head buried in her pillow, crying. She couldn't have been more than seventeen, and her room was feminine-yet-not- ornate, with a big cross above her bed.

"This very devout Catholic girl is going to commit a venal sin. You see - she's obsessed with the thought of blow-jobs. She tries to get the images out of her mind, but she can't - not since she inadvertently logged onto a web-page showing blow-jobs by the hundred. She keeps temptation at bay by never going to sex-sites, but with her hormones, that little bit of 'smut' was worse than a lot of smut - it's all her mind can think of the, the 'dirty' thoughts of sucking cock... and she's going to give in. What do you do?"

Thrashing below her, in ecstasy, Clay screamed out, "Take away the thoughts!" "But where would I put them...?" The demoness mused, wickedly.

"In me...!" Clay screamed...

...and then found himself drooling, literally drooling, at the thought of kneeling down in front of a guy and sucking hungrily on his cock, eager for the taste of his wonderful, manly sperm. Clay struggled to banish the horribly exciting thought - and managed to do it, somewhat, by the amount of sheer pleasure thrumming through his body, making all other thoughts pale in comparison.

"This angry young man just got dumped - and, in a few minutes he's going to rape the girl near the alley - just because she looks a lot like his ex girlfriend."

Clay struggled to focus on the new image the demoness had described. In it, the young man was walking with his hands jammed deep into the pockets of his denim jacket, his entire body projecting a 'don't-fuck-with-me' attitude. At the alley stood a woman who was obviously a hooker. Her body was 'okay', but her face must have pulled in quite a bit - she had that 'innocent' type of face, heart-shaped with a snub nose, huge, bright-blue eyes... and the most incredibly sexy pair of gloss-pink lips, ones that could curve into an impish smile... or look right at home wrapped around a huge, delicious, throbbing, wonderfully-cum-filled...

Desperately, Clay ripped his mind off the subject of 'blow-jobs' and screamed out, "Switch my face with her..."

Immediately, he could smell the odor of make-up wafting up his smaller, daintier nostrils as he licked his full, new lips, getting a taste of the gloss-pink lipstick.

The image above shifted again, showing a kitchen. In it, an older man was sitting in his undershirt, reading the paper while ignoring his breakfast. Behind him, at the stove, was an older woman who was still in fairly good shape, if no beauty queen. She was surreptitiously grinding her crotch against the stove as she cooked.

"This woman's sexual peak hit late - and all the stronger for it. She's so horny that she can't think straight. Her husband's not much use - he hit his peak fifty years ago. So, she's gonna boink the grocery boy later today, committing adultery."

Mind overwhelmed with pleasure, desperately trying to fight the urge to suck a cock, Clay dimly realized that he was changing himself, doing terrible things to himself - but he desperately wanted that chance at life. He had but a second to do something - and though he knew what it meant, he shouted, not even noticing the high-pitched, slightly lisping new voice it came out in: "Give me her lust...!"

He got it. Suddenly, complementing his desire to suck cock was a desperate need to be fucked. By a man. Even as intense pleasure thundered through his cock, he wished it were a cunt, and that he was being fucked by a man - any man. He needed to be fucked so badly it was painful. He was super-horny...

...for men.

"These three girls..." the demoness shouted, talking about the three young women in a doctor's waiting room "...are going in to commit the sin of mutilating their bodies - they all want to have 'big tits' so that boys will notice them."

"Make them stop!" Clay shouted. "Don't let them do it!"

"Even if I do something like have the doctor die, the desperate urge for bigger tits will be in them. They'd do it later, that's all."

"Give me those urges!" Clay shouted, helplessly.

"But what about them wanting to dress sexy? Show off their big tits? Using their bodies to turn men on?"

"Give it all to me. From all three of them, I'll take it...!" Clay shouted...and then screamed, overwhelmed by horror at how flat-chested and ugly he was. No guy would want to fuck him - and he really wanted to be fucked by guys - because of how flat-chested he was.

"My God - I have no tits...!" Clay screamed, hands flying in dismay to his horrendously flat chest. The image flickered again, this time to show a fat woman sitting at a table.

"She feels despair because of her weight, and..." the demoness started.

"Give me her fat! Pack it all into my chest and give me tits!" clay screamed. "I need tits, huge tits! Give the woman's fat to my tits...!"

Immediately, his chest began to swell. He screamed in mixed horror and joy, hating the fact he was overjoyed to be watching his chest swell. He knew he only wanted huge tits because of the girls' urges... but those urges were now his, and as his chest swelled outward, he watched with helpless joy, already imagining all the skimpy, revealing tops he wanted to cram these wonderful monsters into.

By the time his chest growth stopped, his new tits were each the size of a medicine ball, and almost as round. Each was topped by a massive, thick, highly-sensitive nipple, and he reached around with a disgusting joyfulness, having to stretch to fondle his wonderful huge new tits.

"Last one." The demoness laughed. "Succeed, and you live again." The image showed a shapely young woman hastily packing her bags.

"This woman is going to run away from home. Just before she runs out of money and comes back home, however, she's going to find a job - as a stripper. This will get her into..."

"Don't let her get the job!" Clay shouted.

"How?" The demoness grinned. "The club needs a new dancer." "I'll do it! I'll be the dancer..." Clay screamed.

"You'd have to be a woman to do that."

"Make me into a woman, and give that job to me!" Clay screamed, wishing desperately for a dozen different things, only one of which was orgasm.

"I can't give the job to you... but I'll let you convince the owners of the club..." the demoness said, laughing. "Have a good life Cassandra Casabas!"

Then she laughed again as Clay felt the rest of his body altered, becoming fully feminine - including his cock, slurping out of the demoness' cunt and forming one of her own...

...which was filled with a hard, throbbing cock. Gasping in near-orgasmic pleasure, Cassy rode the one owner of the club, her massive, wonderful tits bouncing as she frantically fucked the man, eager for an orgasm that she knew would satisfy her for only an hour or so, just long enough for her to go out and wiggle and jiggle her wonderful body for the men in the club.

Then her huge, blue eyes saw the huge, thick cock the second owner of the club was waving in her face, and she eagerly opened her mouth to let him slide his wonderful, tasty man-meat into her mouths so that she could suck him off.

Happily slurping away as she frantically fucked herself atop a man, Cassy realized just how ironic this situation was. Oh, not just the fact that she was now an insatiable cum-hungry nymphomaniac slut stripper with massive tits she loved to show off - that wasn't nearly as ironic as the other thought.

Here, as Clay, she thought she could outwit the law - yet, in front of much higher court, not only hadn't 'he' even tried defending 'himself'...

...she'd voluntarily accepted a life sentence.

THE END

Better build schoolrooms for 'the boy,' Then cells and gibbets for 'the Man.'

-Eliza Cook, A Song for the Ragged Schools

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: After one man crosses paths with an angry "lesbo" he suddenly finds himself and his world changing, when he runs into her again, she is now turning into a macho man who now lusts after the new bimbo.

Chairman Of The Bored

By Gunslinger

The light rain was hardly more than curtains of mist, falling from the low, scudding clouds cast orange-gold by the reflected street lamps. Driven by a brisk, chill wind, the sheets of fine droplets moved down the streets in sinuous rhythm, almost dancing across the slick, shiny surface of the much-patched asphalt.

Pausing in the scant protection provided by the doorway of the old school's gymnasium, Doug Terrill looked up at the sky with a sour look. With exaggerated movements and a low grunt he amply expressed his displeasure at the weather, Doug belted his trench-coat tight over his second-best suit, pulling the collar high around his broad neck and tucking his hands deep into the coat's pockets before stepping out into the rain.

Head lowered and eyes tracing the cracked and canted slabs of concrete that formed the sidewalk unrolling before his feet, Doug headed off towards the south, trying to remember the meandering route he followed to get here, and wondering if there was a more direct route back to the hotel.

After toying with the idea of finding a shorter path back, Doug finally discarded the idea with an annoyed huff of breath. In Chicago on business, he didn't know the area well enough to risk getting lost - though, in retrospect, that's exactly the risk he'd taken when he'd left his hotel room more than a hour before, driven by boredom to wander the streets near the somewhat run-down hostelry in hopes of finding some sort of entertainment.

A small, wicked smile touched the sandy-haired man's lips at the thought. In truth, he'd been seeking 'entertainment' of the feminine variety - but, though he hadn't found any enterprising ladies of the evening willing to risk the inclement weather, he had managed to find entertainment that featured the female of the species...

"Hey! Asshole!"

The voice was sharp, angry - and newly familiar. At the sound of it, Doug wasn't quite sure whether to smile less, or more.

"Yeah, I'm talkin' to you!" the voice called, more loudly, as the owner closed the distance. There was no 'clack' of heels on pavement to judge the rate of closure, but there was no doubting the intent of the woman. With a mental sigh, the rangy, ruggedly handsome young man paused and turned in place.

She was nearly as tall as him, and nearly as broad in the shoulders. As if contemptuous of the weather, her toned body was clad only in sneakers, a tight pair of jeans, and a baggy, formless sweatshirt. Her strong-jawed face devoid of makeup, the woman looked even more mannish now than she had in the gym, what with her short hair slicked down by the rain.

The cold rain didn't seem to dampen the fiery anger in her eyes, though, and Doug mentally braced himself as she stalked up to him, one finger coming up to poke at his chest.

"Did'ja have fun in there, Mr. 'I-Got-A-Dick-So-I'm-Better-Than-You?'" The woman demanded, all but snarling. Doug hesitated a bare instant - and then replied, truthfully, "Yeah, actually, I did."

The smirk the admission came with probably didn't help matters any.

"Oh. I just bet you did." The woman snarled, jabbing his chest again. "I bet you go around looking for feminist meetings to 'crash'. What - do you come up with those sexist, macho 'jokes' off the cuff, or do you sit around for hours, working on them?"

Doug could have honestly replied that the jokes - the entire endeavor - had been a spur-of-the-moment thing. Hell, he could have told her the blunt truth - that he'd entered the building out of a simple desire to avoid the rain that had just started, not realizing what meeting had been going on inside.

He didn't bother. While she might actually believe him, especially the part about how he'd only stayed because he was bored, and pissing off a bunch of 'Femi-Nazis' seemed like something vaguely entertaining, he doubted very much that she'd forgive him for it.

At twenty-eight years of age, Doug Terrill had inherited more than just his broad frame and light coloring from his father. He'd also inherited Pop's intense distaste for 'those damned feminists' who were sending America to Hell in a hand basket. Doug, of course, wouldn't have used the term 'brainwashing' when describing this oh-so-logical mindset, of course. In fact, the idea that his view on women was the effect of being raised by a bitter, angry man whose girlfriend had left him and her new-born out of fear for her own welfare at the hands of the wife-beating, skirt-chasing bastard had never crossed Doug's mind. As far as Doug was concerned, Pop's attitude that women were weak, second-class creatures who existed solely as adjuncts to men was 'a simple fact of life' - and thus, feminists like this dark-haired bitch were either misguided, perverted, or 'untamed'.

In other words, Doug felt absolutely no need - or urge - to justify himself to this woman.

"Look, lady." Doug said, mentally substituting a much less flattering appellation for her. "This is America, remember? I have every right to present an 'opposing viewpoint' at a meeting like that. You and your lesbo friends are just pissed because you couldn't do your man-bashing routine in peace and quite - or am I wrong?"

The woman's mouth worked in shocked and anger too great to allow something as structured as coherent speech to occur. "See?" Doug said, with an intentionally insulting - and completely dismissive - shrug. "You can't even argue it."

Mentally racking up another point 'for his side', Doug turned away from the woman.

Though thinking of them as second-class citizens, Doug wasn't completely blind to his situation. Even as he turned away, he was mentally braced for either a verbal or physical assault. After all, the first rule of fighting was to never underestimate your opponent, and Doug was fully aware of the fact that the woman was almost as tall, broad and muscular as he was. Though sure he had the physical advantage that came more from his masculinity than from the slight advantages in his six-four frame and a hundred and thirty-nine pounds of fat-free, tightly toned muscle, he was sure any woman 'sick' enough to want to make herself look more masculine might actually have studied fighting to a much greater extent than he had.

Understandably, it never occurred to Doug that Ms. Lydia Shakland might possess paranormal powers far beyond his ken. Given this lack of consideration, the fact that he might have angered Ms. Shakland so far as to break many of the rules concerning the use of this unconsidered power was also a null factor in his thinking.

So, when the feminist leader blurted out a long string of what sounded like nonsense syllables to him, Doug merely grinned tightly and continued walking away, assuming he'd angered her into complete incoherence.

The thought that she might have been angrily - and, perhaps, unwisely - using an ancient and secret power to curse him never crossed his mind.

At least, not at that particular moment.

It wasn't a thought that would occur to him for some time yet.

As he turned the corner and was lost from the seething woman's line of sight, the only thing Doug was thinking about was the satisfaction he'd gained from having gotten the better of her in their little confrontation...

* * * *

By the time he closed the door to his inexpensive hotel room behind him, any sense of satisfaction had been washed away. Literally.

Almost immediately after his little fight, the rain had steadily thickened. Unwilling to run the risk of getting lost in an unfamiliar city, Doug had been forced to follow the same meandering route back to the hotel as the rain had grown heavier, and by the time he'd reached his temporary lodgings, he was soaked to the bone, the steady trickle of water down the back of his trench-coat having provided a target for the ever-colder wind that was blowing harder then before from the north-west.

Now, slumping against the inside of the door with a soggy thump, Doug began cursing to himself in a low, miserable monotone, alternately shivering and shuddering beneath the layers of damp clothing.

Being bored had been bad. Being wet and cold was even worse. Now, surveying the cheaply furnished hotel room, dimly lit and claustrophobic in size, he was miserable and bored, a combination worse then the sum of it's parts.

Though there was no more a solution to the boredom then there'd been before leaving the room, at least he could do something about being cold and wet.

Pushing himself from the door, Doug began to struggle out of his wet clothing as he made his way over to the over-priced bar built into the cabinet that housed the television.

Shucking off the last of his clothing, Doug grabbed a couple of beers and all four of the miniature bottles of Scotch housed in the tiny fridge, eschewing a glass as he carried his alcoholic booty towards the bathroom.

Starting water running into the chipped and yellowed tub, Doug twisted open one of the scotch bottles, the 'ripping' sound of the plastic retainer strip lost beneath the clattering and whistling of the building's old plumping.

Opening one of the beers, Doug quickly downed the entire contents of the scotch bottle, following it with a healthy swig of beer before the burning sensation of the harsh liquor could fully register on his senses. With a faint grimace at the taste of the Scotch - the only hard alcohol Doug could stomach, even if he didn't particularly enjoy it - he carried the rest of his booze over and set it on the edge of the tub.

Turning, he quickly gathered up a pile of somewhat ratty bath towels, plopping them in a convenient pile just beside the tub. Making sure that the hotel had supplied him with a tiny bar of soap and equally minuscule bottle of shampoo, the broad-shouldered man wandered back out into the main room, turning on the TV.

Though it was getting quite late, Doug contemptuously disregarded any patrons in nearby rooms, setting the set to MTV and turning the volume up loud enough for the music to be heard in the bathroom, even with the door mostly closed. Satisfied with the volume level, he hurried back to the bathroom, shivering as the air caressed his damp skin.

Opening another bottle of Scotch and finishing the rest of the beer in another impromptu boilermaker, Doug tossed the empties into the wastebasket beside the toilet, then gingerly eased himself into the tub, his body generating a wide variety of goosebumps at the disparate temperatures provided by the cold porcelain and warm water. With a soft sigh, Doug eased his genitals into the heated water. Once passing that most delicate of moments, Doug slumped back in the tub, the porcelain cold against the back of his neck as he got comfortable in the half-full tub.

As the water level slowly rose, Doug finally began to relax, the warmth in his gut complementing the slight alcohol-induced 'soft focus' provided by the two quick drinks.

With his sense partially numbed by the two fast drinks, Doug was able to stomach the scotch a bit better, alternating sips of the fiery amber liquid with cooling draughts of beer.

Unlike many men, Doug had never quite managed to get past the 'getting drunk from being drunk's sake' of his life. At the age where most men were finally beginning to find the after-effects of drinking poor compensation for the drunkenness itself, Doug still only drank to get royally smashed, and even as he finished the last of his small supply, he was already wishing he'd brought more of the booze into the bathroom with him.

Under the influence of the alcohol rapidly soaking through the permeable membrane between his veins and his brains, Doug conveniently forgot the high price of the alcohol, already eager to down a few more bottles of booze. Rather than the long soak he'd originally envisioned, Doug quickly began washing himself, eager to get back to some serious drinking. Practically before the tub had finished filling, he'd already washed himself and was about ready to climb back out.

Only the lingering chill from his walk kept him in the tub for another five minutes, letting himself warm back up under the twin influence of water and spirits. Only when his feet had stopped tingling under the warmth of the water did he pull the plug from the drain, letting the water gurgle and hiss out of the tub as he rose and grabbed a thick white towel from the stack he'd placed beside the tub.

Laying the first towel out on the floor, Doug used it as a bath-mat to keep from spreading a growing pool all over the place. Despite his precautions, however, his too-energetic toweling of his hair and body caused fine sprays of droplets to flick across the room, unnoticed in his tipsy state. Not having eaten anything recently, the alcohol was hitting him harder than usual - not that he was upset by this in any way, of course.

Given the situation, it took Doug a minute longer to realize that water wasn't the only thing the towel was removing from his body...

"God-fucking-damn!" Doug roared, angrily, staring down in tipsy anger at the wide, denuded swatches on his arms and legs. Even as he watched, more of his thick, light-brown body hair detached itself from his body and drifted downwards to pile onto the towel at his feet.

Gingerly, he swiped at his still-wet chest. No matter how delicately he handled the towel, however, more body hair went to join its brethren on the towel below. Indeed, even the slightest of air currents removed hair, indicating that, no matter what he did or didn't do, he was sure to be utterly denuded of any body hair.

Cursing loudly and angrily, Doug finished toweling off, unable to stop the loss of his body hair. By the time he wrapped a towel around his waist, his body was left smooth and soft, all his body hair now piled atop the soaked towel he'd laid on the ground.

"..fucking cheap soap!" Doug finished his tirade, staggering slightly as he headed for the door of the bathroom. Nervously running his fingers through his damp mop of sandy-blond hair to ensure it showed no signs of loosening, Doug stormed out of the bathroom, intent on giving the management a piece of his mind over what their inferior products had done to him - after a few belts of 'Dutch courage', of course...

Stopping dead, Doug looked around him. "What the fuck...?"

Slowly, Doug took a few more steps into the room, looking around in disbelief.

All his belongings were gone. The wet clothes strewn around the room - gone. The suitcase on the stand in the corner - not only gone, but replaced with another one, this one white leather, matching the two others on the floor that flanked it. It was open to reveal carefully-packed feminine clothing.

...much like the outfit laid out on the bed.

A hot-pink leather bustier top, it's front lacing between the ridiculously large cups left open. A matching mini-skirt. A pair of white nylon stockings with elastic tops.

On the floor beside the bed, a pair of hot-pink platform shoes with slender heels that soared at least seven inches tall.

Atop the pillow sat a white leather purse, and a small pile of hot-pink plastic jewelry - large, garish hoop earrings, and an equally garish bracelet.

"What the hell is going on here?" Doug demanded of thin air, spinning around to make sure there was nobody else in the room. "What is this? Some sort of joke?"

Angrily sweeping aside the clothes and purse, Doug plunked down on the bed and grabbed the phone. Tucking the handset between shoulder and ear, he angrily punched up the front desk.

"I want to talk to the manager!" Doug demanded, angrily. When the voice at the other end tried to explain that the manager was at home, probably asleep, Doug simply repeated his demand, more forcefully.

After a short silence, a much subdued voice asked him to hold, and the line went over to Muzak.

Fuming, Doug began drumming his fingers on the night-table, staring off into space as he mentally composed a scathing tirade to give the manager.

The clicking of his long, gloss-pink nails on the table annoying him, Doug stopped his aimless drumming as he continued to wait, his mental composition somewhat distracted by the Muzak version of the music coming through the phone...

"Her name was Lola, she was a showgirl..." Doug unconsciously sang along with the tune, his contralto voice sweet and melodic as he unconsciously began balling soft nylon in one hand...

After a moment, Doug realized he was mindless singing along to the song. Pushing an annoyed snort through his pert, upturned nose, Doug stood up and tugged the hem of his skirt down before beginning to pace back and forth in front of the bed, working on renewing his anger.

It wasn't easy, especially with the cool air flowing oh-so-pleasantly over the nipple crowning his firm, C-cup breasts. Flipping his long, wavy hair back over his slender shoulders with annoyance, Doug grabbed the bustier and quickly began lacing it closed over his dome-like double-'D' endowments, starting at the bottom and drawing it tight over his slender waist.

Still waiting for somebody to pick up the other end of the line, Dougie finally managed to force the straining garment into place over his wonderful enormous, JJJ-cup boobies, the lace straining against the force her saline-packed slut-tits put on the garment. For a moment she felt a wave of dissatisfaction thrum through her at the pressure, and she wondered if getting her boobies pumped up so wonderfully huge had been a mistake...

"Oh, holy shit...!" Debi screamed in horror as what she was wondering registered on her conscious mind. Dropping the phone, she staggered atop the high, slender heels she'd been so effortlessly balancing in a second ago, her big, blue eyes dropping to view the massive mounds that were pushing up and out of the top that barely contained them.

"I've got tits!" Doug screamed, horrified to hear it come out in a high, mindless-sounding soprano. "Big, saline-inflated titties, the kind that men like to ogle and stare at..."

She smiled, her hysteria fading into desire. "...and fondle. Mmm... I love my big, new boobies. I'm so glad I made enough as a stripper to get these...Oh, shit! What the hell's wrong with me!"

Debi yanked her hands from where they'd been lightly caressing her massive rack, suddenly aware of the weight and heft of her huge tits as she strode away from the bed - and, horrified, realized she was walking with a sexy, easy sway, as if she were used to walking in high, slender heels...

Unable to dampen the sensual strut she was using, Doug hurried into the bathroom to stare, horrified, at what the mirror revealed. She was a woman.

She was a five-foot-nothing tall woman, with a slender waist and shapely legs enhanced by her high heels.

She was a slender, sexy woman with long, honey-blond hair, full lips, huge blue eyes, and tits the size of basket-balls. She was...

"Hot." She said, smiling at her reflection as she ran her hands across the smooth leather of her skirt. "Debi, honey, you are one sexy little slut. Guys are gonna be lining up to have you fuck and suck them..."

Winking one long-lashed lid at her reflection, Debi - stripper and cum-slut extraordinaire - turned from her reflection and jiggled and swayed out of the bathroom, heading for the door to the room. Pausing only long enough to grab her key, she headed towards the bar...

...then staggered slightly just as she reached the entrance to the dimly-lit, barely-populated bar, her mind whirling in horrified confusion as he realized that, in shock, his mind had slipped over into some sort of parallel, alternate mind-set - that of the type of woman who would have the body he'd inexplicably gained, a stripper and nympho named...

"Ah, Miss DeLite - couldn't keep away, huh?"

Startled by the bartender's voice, Doug found a welcoming - if vapid - smile spring to altered lips as she looked up, her body easily sliding into a sensual pose.

Now aware that there was something seriously wrong with her in body and mind, Doug was more than aware of the 'alien' thoughts and desires flooding her mind as her gaze slipped down to the bulge the bartender sported. She licked her lips, slowly...

...and, horrified, hauled her eyes from the man's bulging crotch, aware of the sexual images playing in the theater of her mind.

Memories. But not 'his' memories. The memories of Debi DeLite, a stripper living in a hotel and making extra money on the side while gratifying her seemingly endless sexual desires...

"No!" She gasped, staggering back. "I.. I'm not a woman!"

"You're not?" The bartender said, confused but game. "Gee, you sure seem like one to me, Debi. God knows, I've had plenty of chances for 'field testing' you, and I gotta say - you certainly seem all woman to me."

"Sure..." Debi said, seductively, licking her lips as her hands came up to fondle her tits through the leather enclosure. "That's what I mean - I'm not a woman unless I'm fucking or suck a big, thick, cock like.."

Horrified at what she was saying, Debi stopped, struggling for control.

"...Like mine?" the bartender finished for her, smiling lasciviously as he rubbed his crotch.

The realization that she was about to agree with him, begging him to satisfy her new/old urges, was just enough to break through the rising tide of lust she was feeling. Heart thundering behind her mountainous new breasts, 'Debi' fled from the bar, heels clattering with disgusting grace despite her high speed as she managed a sexy, 'come-hither' sway to her new hips even at a dead sprint.

Reaching 'her' room, she threw fumbled with her key, wishing she could blame her trouble on her long, brightly-painted new nails - but knowing that she was now as 'used' to her nails as she was to the rest of her horrible feminine existence. As if her body was as sure that she'd been female all her life as the rest of the world had been...

Even as she finally unlocked the door, a horrifying thought struck her. One that stunned her with the enormity of the implications:

What is she was female. What if she had been born female, lived as a female all these years, had been the sex-crazed bimbo everybody - including her own body - seemed to think she was.

What if all that was true - and her 'delusion' about really being male was... insanity? Horrified at the thought, she threw open the door and stepped inside...

...and stopped dead in her tracks, barely noticing the sensuous pose her body slid 'naturally' into as she gaped at the man sitting on her bed.

Or, rather, at the massive, thick cock the man was gripping lightly in one hand.

Horrified, Debi felt the same response she'd felt when she'd encountered the man at the bar - the rush of pleasure. That horrible rush of wonderful pleasure - but much stronger this time, and accompanied by a much more disgustingly enticing flood of sexual imagery in her mind's eye. Even as she tore her eyes away from the massive, hard - and horrible arousing - cock, she felt the renewed, strengthened flood of warmth in her crotch, accompanied by the sensation of her large, thick nipples becoming fully erect in unwanted desire.

Struggling not to let her eyes focus on that oh-so-enticing cock, the new woman staggered a few graceful steps back, fighting against the urge to move forward, to step closed to the huge, broad-shouldered man who was sitting on the bed, his jeans down around his ankles, his shirt open to expose his massive, hairy barrel chest below his rough-hewn, bearded face...

...wreathed in an expression of horror?

In the incongruity of the expression on the massively masculine man was, barely, enough to break through the twin conflicting desires Debi was felling. Rather than move closer to the man, or run from the unwanted desires he kindled, she stopped dead.

"Who...?" Debi stammered, hating the high-pitched tone of voice it emerged in, yet another hideous reminder of her new (if it was...) condition.

"Oh, God, Doug - I am so sorry.." The man rumbled in a deep, cavernous voice, yanking his huge hand away from his equally massive organ as he flushed to the roots of his dark hair.

The sound of the masculine appellation struck Debi like a blow, reliving her anxiety of insanity even as it reinforced the disparity between her remembered existence and the one she was now cursed with.

"You know me!" Debi cried. "You know my real name! Please, whoever you are, tell me... tell me what's happening to me! What happened to my body? Why am I a woman with huge, round tits? Why.. Why..."

Almost unnoticed by her, Debi's voice slipped from 'hysterical' into sensual, and she paused to lick her full, glossy lips before continuing, barely registering what she was saying as she slowly began walking towards the man, eyes once more locked onto his massive organ.

"...why am I so eager to wrap my full, sexy lips around that wonderful, huge cock of yours?" She asked, practically cooing. "Why are you just sitting there when we could be fucking like crazed..."

"Get a hold of yourself!" The man barked in a tortured tone, tearing his eyes from her massive breasts as he flushed deeper. "For God's sake, get a hold of yourself!"

Horrified at how easily her mind wanted to slide into the patterns of the huge-breasted slut she now appeared to be, Debi forced her eyes up to the man's face, struggling to retain her original sense-of self.

"What's happening...?" She said, fighting the urges that were slowly, but steadily, gaining strength.

"I.. I'm Lydia." The man said. "Lydia Shakland - the, uh, 'lesbo' feminist from earlier... except that, none of that happened anymore..."

It took a second - and then, for an instant, Doug returned, in full force.

"You bitch!" Debi screamed in soprano rage, anger blotting out all imposed sexual desire as it registered. "You fuckin' bitch!"

Though not clear on 'how', the transformed ex-male now knew 'who' - and that was all that she needed to know as she launched herself towards the man, nails extended in preparation of gouging his eyeballs out.

In her anger, Debi hadn't contemplated the differences between her own petite, top-heavy frame and this seven-foot-something mass of masculine musculature. With no appreciable effort, the ex-female grabbed the ex-male's wrists, easily subduing her and pulling her tight against his massive, heavy frame to keep her from struggling.

For an instant, anger continued to hold them...

...and then both gender-bent individuals became aware of the fact that soft, sensual female flesh was pressing firmly, enticingly against taut, male musculature...

"My, you're so.... strong..." Debi found herself cooing - and not entirely helplessly, either. Even as disgust at what she was doing and feeling flooded through her mind, she couldn't help but want to increase that amazing pleasure she was feeling from being snuggled against a brawny, all-too-masculine man. Though she hated herself for it, she snuggled even close, angling to press her half-covered breasts more firmly against that broad, hirsute chest, nipples as hard as diamonds...

...only to feel a mixture of disappointment and gratitude as the massive man shoved her away, shuddering.

"Stop it! Just.. Stop it!" the man gasped, voice hoarse with conflicting desires and emotions. "Don't you understand? I put a curse on you - and it was so evil, so wrong, that I'm paying for it as well!"

"What..?" Debi stammered, struggling not to let the growing feminine side of her persona overwhelm the anger-fueled male side. "What do you mean?"

"I mean I'm as cursed as you are!" the man gasped, unwilling to look at Debi's pneumatic new form. "Just as you're in an over- developed, over-sexed female body you don't want, driven by lusts and thoughts that disgust you, so has the backlash of my curse done this to me! Just like you, I've become something I hate - a overly masculine man, driven by the sort of raw, uncaring sexual lusts that..."

Just as Debi had so recently done, the ex-feminist began to slide towards the imposed person, barely aware of the change as lust crept into a voice becoming steadily less horrified.

"..make me want to have sex with you." He said, eyes coming back to gaze lasciviously at Debi's curvaceous body, his massive hand dropping back to his lap. "No, babe - to fuck you. To... use you. Use you like the little sex-machine you are, babe. To fuck your brains... Oh, God - no!"

Catching the horribly seductive slip into the imposed persona, the ex-woman yanked her eyes from Debi, struggling for control.

Debi, \primed' by the man's sexual words, was also desperately struggling for control of those hated, seductive lusts. Even as part of her altered persona - and all of her altered body - demanded that she give in and satisfy her new cravings, the few remnants of her old mind struggled for control.

"Do.. something...' She gasped. "Please..."

"I... Can't..." The new man, gasped. "This curse... is equal between us. Just as the world now remembers you as Debi, so I'm now Lyle. I... I was so angry when I.. cast the curse..."

The new man broke off, embarrassment managing to push lust into the background as she struggled for control over this new emotion.

Also managing to put her new wants and needs into the background, Debi nervously made her way to the bed, sitting down an arm's length from the massive, male body that was still oh-so-horribly tempting to her.

"I wanted to make you suffer..." Lyle admitted, unable to look at Debi for a whole range of reasons. "I.. I made you female in body and, mostly, in mind. I wanted you to do all those disgusting, sexually submissive things I though a man like you were would want from women... and now, because of the back-lash from the curse, the man I've become wants those things from you."

Licking his new lips, Lyle hesitated - then admitted: "I.. I want to do these things to you so badly that I can't work up enough will- power to reverse the curse. I'm still angry at who you used to be, even as ashamed as I am about what I've done, that I want to make you suffer more - by debasing and using you sexually."

Debi shuddered in a mix of emotions as the truth became clear to her:

"You can't change me - us - back until you satisfy these dark, sexual urges of yours." She said, her voice husky.

Slowly, she slid her full, firm ass over on the bed, getting closer to Lyle as her voice deepened and roughing, becoming more powerfully assertive - and less 'Debi-ish', despite the words she spoke next: "You want to fuck me like you mindless little slut, don't you?"

"Yes..." The man gasped, unaware as Debi scooted a little closer. "I.. I want to treat you like a slut, like my little fuck-toy... I want to make you be my sex slave..."

"You could have done that when I walked in the door." Debi said, now practically shoulder-to-shoulder with the ex-woman. "No.. No, I.. I can't..." The man gasped, obviously as tortured as he was aroused - or vice-versa.

Debi smiled - and, unlike the vapid little grin she'd give the man in the bar, this one was wickedly sharp.

"You literally can not give into your urges, can you?" Debi said, her voice now taunting. "Having sex with me, especially anything you consider 'degrading', would make you the very thing you hate. Worse... you might discover that sex like that feels good for men, instead of just being some sort of 'power trip'. The idea that men might be acting out of pleasure, rather than malice, when they want sex... defeats all those arguments you made at the meeting."

Debi's tone and words finally registering fully on the man's mind, Lyle turned and gaped at the huge-breasted, scantily clad woman who was looking at him with a shark's grin on her face.

"See?" The new woman gloated, satisfaction overriding most of her implanted persona. "All those 'jokes' that made you angry, all the things I said to piss you off at the meeting the never happened - I was right, every time... wasn't I?"

"What.. what are you doing...?" Lyle gasped, his huge cock going even harder at the realization of her closeness. "Why, getting revenge..." She hissed. "I'm going to rape you!"

"Wha..?" Was as far as the new man got...

...because Debi wrapped her arms around his head and mashed her own lips against his, kissing him hungrily. Shocked, at first Lyle did nothing...

...and then he began to kiss her back, hungrily, his tongue first matching, then overriding, her own talented tongue. Cock hard as an iron rod, he pulled her tightly against him, loving the feel of her soft body pressed painfully tight against his own body as he gave into his desire, felling her writhe against him as he increased his grip, forcing his tongue deeper into her suddenly uncooperative mouth, eager to control her, humiliate her..

"No!" He shouted, pushing her now limp, uncooperative frame away from him...

Debi hesitated for a second, struggling to regain herself. For the first instant after he pushed her away, she felt gratitude - thankful that she was going to be injured by this mean, abusive man.

Then she felt disappointment - disappointment that he raging urges for sex were going to be denied. Sure, fucking Lyle would have ended up with her being demeaned, probably also beaten, but she would have at least gotten fucked...

...and then, with a wrench, Doug's renewed sense of self regained full control of the horny, huge-breasted body she was trapped in. the body that was the perfect 'weapon' of revenge.

"What's wrong...?" She taunted, brazenly choosing a seductive pose as her hands rose to the hot-pink leather bustier that barely enclosed her tits. "Can't control yourself? Just another 'sexist pig' who can't control your animal urges? No... that's just a 'lame excuse', isn't it...?"

With a flourish, Debi yanked the lacing out of the top, causing it to burst open, revealing her massive breasts in all their glory.

Combined with the sexual urges thundering through her body, the cold air of the room hitting her engorged nipples caused her to shiver - but none of the determination went out of her eyes as she grinned wickedly at her victim.

"What are you doing?" Lyle screamed. "You.. You're trying to have sex with me!"

"Bingo." She said - and stepped closer, her huge, round tits dangling in front of his face. "I'm consciously, willingly tempting you. Even if you can't work up the will power to end this for both of us, by changing me back, shouldn't you at least be able to resist me? Shouldn't your disgust at having sex with a woman - especially by giving into your urges to degrade and demean me - cause you to control yourself? Or are you too weak, too pathetic..."

She leaned even closer - and her huge breasts graces his face.

"Please.. Stop.." Lyle gasped, fighting disgusting, horrible urges to go ahead and beat her - urges made stronger by her actions.

With a tremendous burst of will, he managed to keep from hitting her - but he was unable to resist the temptation her massive rack presented, and he found himself reaching up and grabbing them roughly, horrified by how good the firmly-soft flesh felt in his grip..

"Ow!" Debi gasped in pain and pleasure, loving and hating his grip on her tit. "That hurts...! "I.." Lyle said, yanking his hands away and pulling back from her. "you.."

"I'm really, really horny..." Debi admitted, feeling herself flush in shame, but letting 'Debi' push 'Doug' onward. "Even though part of me is disgusted, I still really, really want to fuck you, to suck you - to have all sorts of wonderfully pleasurable sex with you. We both know that, regardless of the fact we're each the 'wrong' gender, sex could feel really, really good..."

"How.. How can you..." Lyle stammered, horrified at how badly he wanted to just throw her on the bed and fuck her hard, hard enough to make her scream and beg him to stop..."

"I'm horny." She said, grinning wickedly. "I really do want to have sex. Though I'd prefer to be a guy having sex with a woman, I'll take having sex with a guy-who-used-to-be-a-woman. You see, I'm trying to force you to change us back - or, failing that, to satisfy my cravings. You see..."

Smiling wickedly, she unzipped her matching skirt and let it fall, revealing her hot, wet new cunt.

"...if you give into those 'macho' urges your feeling, I win." She said, once again invading his personal space. "Well? Are you 'man' enough to resist those urges? Can you control them, even in the middle of mindless lust? Where's all your righteous indignation? The certainty you showed at that meeting, when you claimed that men were only slaves to their lusts because they wanted to be?"

Nervous, not sure whether she was right about her assumptions or not, Debi licked her lips with a forced look of excitement - then, oh-so-slowly, began to bend over, her gloss-pink lips getting closer and closer to the throbbing head of Lyle's massive cock, feeling herself slip further into the Debi-mindset as she drew closer to becoming an eager cock-sucking slut...

"No!" Lyle screamed as he grabbed her...

...carefully.

Just as Debi had prayed would be the case, the core of who Lyle was - or had been - wouldn't let him be the bastard he was supposed to be. With gentle firmness and force of will, Lyle fought those 'disgusting' urges to gently, lovingly pull Debi's face level to his own, selling her gently on his lap.

'You fucking bitch! Suck my cock like the slut you are!' Flitted through the transformed man's mind...

...and, forcing his tone to be level, even loving, he purred softly into her ear: "Oh, my beautiful darling, let me soothe your every desire..."

Then, fighting the urges inside his divided mind, he kissed her - passionately, but with infinite gentleness and conscious control.

Letting her body go limp, Debi collapsed into his embrace, ignoring the brief, painful tightening of his arms before he regained control and eased off into a gentle embrace.

Pleasure ran through her at his gentle ministrations, at his loving kiss...

...just in time, as she wouldn't have been able to hold out any longer. Eagerly, she kissed back, her sexually submissive persona letting the now-ashamed man set the gentle, oh-so-loving pace, a pace consciously designed to provide her with as much pleasure as possible, and no pain.

Debi had realized that the new persona was too strong for her to fight any longer - and so, in a last ditch effort, she'd bent her will to 'setting' Lyle up. As disgusted as she was with the thought of having sex with a man, she'd rather have sex with an ex-female man than a 'real' one, an unreal distinction that nevertheless made her more emotionally comfortable with what her urges were driving her to do.

Best of all - her 'mind game' had ensured that she wouldn't be the degraded, demanded slut that she would have ended up as, otherwise. Lyle's own self-image just wouldn't allow him to be that way.

So - the stronger the urge to demean or injure Debi got, the more determined Lyle became to give her pleasure...

...which, in the most fundamental sense was exactly what both 'Debi' and 'Doug' wanted.

So, 'Doug' didn't do anything to fight 'Debi' as she shifted around, raised herself up - and happily impaled herself on Lyle's huge, throbbing organ.

The massive cock filled her tight, wet cunt like it was custom fitted for her, it throbbing length being firmly encased by the slick, tight confines of her expansive, designed-for-sex cunt.

"Yes!" She screamed in pleasure as she was penetrated, the masculine disgust at being entered more than buried in the wave of physical pleasure it generated.

As for Lyle - his first instinct was to buck his hips, converting pleasure into pain by driving himself into her as hard and deep as he could.

To do so, however, would make Lydia the terrible, horrible sort of person she'd spent all her life decrying - so, Lyle forced himself to slowly ease them over, his cock filling her deeply, but not forcing itself beyond the point of pleasure for her.

All of which generated a situation Lyle was even more unprepared for...

He was enjoying this. though both sets of emotions were warring over how this should feel, over how much pain he should be causing Debi, there was no denying the physical pleasure it generated.

Hesitantly at first, afraid of hurting Debi - and, worse, liking it - Lyle began thrusting, now looming over the diminutive, top-heavy body that had ceased to be either Debi or Doug, and was now simply a complex series of interlocking mental connections, all dedicated to enjoying the physical pleasure that Lyle was providing her no-longer unwanted body.

In fact, the person who was being fucked by Lyle had ceased to feel any negative feelings whatsoever - because both personas were in complete agreement with the assessment that this was the best, the most incredibly pleasurable sex ever experienced.

"Oh, God, Lyle - fuck me!" the new. Intermingled persona cried, eagerly, loving the sensation of even Lyle's hesitant thrusts.

The sensations only grew more pleasurable as the hesitancy faded, becoming a strong, steady rhythm that caused nerve ending to fire in the pattern they were specifically designed to do.

Patterns that thundered through her new form and directly into the pleasure center of her brain, which was already awash with the alcohol that had remained in her system during the transformation.

"Yes! Oh, God, Lyle - I love being fucked by you!" She cried, too overwhelmed by pleasure to say anything but the simple truth. "Oh, my wonderful Stud, fuck this body you gave me! Fuck me long and hard...!"

With a feral grin, Lyle did just that, making his thrust longer and harder...

...and generating even more pleasure. Debi's cunt had already been 'stretched' by his earlier, more hesitant thrusts, and his renewed, deepened thrusts didn't hurt her at all as he pounded harder. Driving her deeper and deeper into previously untouched realms of pleasure.

Debi abandoned coherent thought for long, eager shrieks of pure pleasure.

Shrieks that infuriated Lyle's implanted consciousness. Here he was fucking her hard and deep - and the stupid bitch was actually enjoying it! God, he hated dumb bitches like her - all women, in fact. Stupid, pathetic cunts, thinking they were anything but a convenient place to satisfy men's urges. Who cared if they enjoyed it? Hell, it was better if they didn't, to better emphasize their place in the world..

As his grin became even more feral, he drove into harder, faster - and her screams of pure pleasure began to ring with pain as he slammed into her hard, his hand now tightening on the huge, fake tits bouncing on her chest...

...and then Lyle realized what he was doing to her as she began to whimper, and his mind finally acted in self-defense, the measured syllables of the spell slipping from between his lips almost unwillingly, his implanted male persona screaming in horror as it was eradicated...

...leaving Lydia once more in full, sole control of herself - but still in Lyle's body.

Just as Doug was once again the sole inhabitant of the over-developed female body Lydia had cursed him with.

Still conjoined, bodies still quivering in the pleasure of their suddenly-halted sexual athletics, the two gender-misplaced individuals gaped at each other, wide eyed, as each absorbed their situation without the confusion and conflict created by inflicted mind-sets.

"Don't..." Doug-in-Debi said, voice high and quivering, breaking at the end. She shivered, her inner muscles clenching around Lydia- in-Lyle as she tried again:

"Don't stop!" She cried - and then, frantically, began bucking her hips.

"What!" Lyle gasped, shocked, as he tried to extricate himself from her, his organ beginning to wilt. Long, shapely legs wrapped themselves around him.

"I was an asshole!" Debi cried. "I was a jerk! I didn't deserve what you did to me, because I don't deserve to feel anything this wonderful - but, for God's sake, I'm so close. "Oh, God, Lydia, I'll do anything, be anything you want me to be - but, please, make me cum!"

Debi was more than aware of what she was saying and doing. She was well aware that she was a transformed man, living what should have been her worst nightmare...

...and she couldn't have cared less. The sex she'd been in the middle of was, bar none, the most wonderful physical sensation she'd ever felt - and she knew damned well that the orgasm was the best part, and she'd been so... damned... close!

"Please..." She sobbed, not caring how 'pathetic' it was. "Please, Lydia, please - fuck me..." Lydia gaped down at the woman beneath her massive new form - and, hesitantly, thrust.

Once.

"Yes!" Debi cried, squirming and writhing on his impaled cock, generating pleasure for him too, as she went on to reveal a 'shameful' truth she'd never have revealed only a short while ago: "I'm a macho asshole who hates women, and so they don't want anything to do with me. It's been months since I've been laid, Lydia - I need this. Oh, God, please - do me! Do me, now!"

The truth struck Lyle like a sledge-hammer blow - because she, too, was highly unpopular with men. In fact, her own 'feminism' came from all the rejection she'd suffered as an unattractive tomboy of a teenager - and her lesbianism wasn't any sort of detriment in this situation, not with an all-too-feminine body beneath her. In fact...

...she was more turned on as a man atop a woman than she'd been in her entire life. She began to thrust again, slowly, then with gaining enthusiasm.

There was no attempt to injure the woman he was having sex with. There was no desire in either of them to inflict emotional or physical pain on anybody.

It was simply a man and a woman in the middle of a mutually-pleasurable sexual experience, one long denied to either of them, regardless of current gender.

So - they fucked. Hard.

With great, eager intensity.

"Oh... God..." Debi gasped, squirming and bouncing under his massive body to increase her own pleasure. "I never.. knew.. it felt.. so good.. for women!"

"I never.. knew.. it could feel.. so good.. for men..!" Lyle gasped back in reply, amazed at the intense satisfaction that was generated, emotionally - in addition to the purely physical pleasure, of course.

Any further comparisons were left to later, the urge to communicate lost in the rising tide of pleasure that quickly reached it's previous high-water mark...

...and surpassed it.

Orgasm hit Debi like a sledge-hammer blow, albeit one that generated pleasure instead of pain. She cried out in pure, orgasmic pleasure, writing and jerking in mind-numbing pleasure.

Her muscular spasms, both internal and external, served to push Lyle over the edge as well, and his voice became bass profundo counterpoint in the orgasmic symphony of pleasure.

Slowly, like a tide receding from a beach, the steadily diminishing waves of her 'after orgasm' faded away from her - and Debi found herself looking up into a caricature of masculinity, rough-hewn features cast into shocked disbelief.

"What... what did we do..?" Lyle gasped, swiftly pulling out of her and rolling off of her. Somewhat bemused herself, Debi answered without thinking: "Well, we fucked..." Startled, they looked at each other - and laughed, nervously.

"Thank you, Mistress Obvious." Lyle retorted, then sighed. "Okay, we fucked. Now, the question is - what do we do next? I mean, what do I do to you... because I think..."

As Lyle trailed off, Debi smiled softly, finishing his sentence. "You think you prefer being male - a happy male - then you do to an angry, unsatisfied female."

Lyle opened his mouth to retort - then, slowly, began to nod, blushing furiously.

A blush sprung to her own face as, in a small voice, Debi admitted: "I... I realize now how much of an asshole I was. I.. I didn't want to like women, not after the way they turned my dad into a bitter old man. I didn't want to admit it, but I've been driving women away because I didn't want them to get close enough to hurt me."

"I was the same way about men." Lyle admitted, ashamed. "Actually, driving them away wasn't enough - I wanted to hurt them before they could hurt me, if you know what I mean..."

"I know." Debi said, propping herself up on one elbow and reaching out to lay a hand on Lyle's massive shoulder. "In fact, half-way through sex I realized something that you haven't, yet."

"What's that?" Lyle asked, intrigued.

Debi smiled, softly. "Well, the spell didn't conjure up mind-sets out of nothing. 'Debi' was a hyped-up version of your 'real' inner self - and 'Lyle' was the inner me, over-exaggerated."

Lyle's jaw dropped as she realized it was true - Lydia's secret inner self, hidden even from her, had been to be attractive - wanted - by men. Likewise, Lyle had been formed by the hate and desire to injure women that Doug had secretly harbored.

Faced with over-emphasized versions of their own id's, each had been forced to finally acknowledge what was wrong with themselves - and, having done that, they could no longer conveniently ignore their own flaws.

"That's why..." Lyle started, floored by the truth.

"Why we don't want to go back to our original genders." Debi finished for him. "We've seen who we really were - and come to hate it so much that we can't bear the thought of being put into a position where we might slip back into that life. We didn't realize what was happening the first time around, so we're afraid that, back in our old genders, we might some day end up that way again." "So..." Lyle said, slowly. "What do we do now?"

Debi laughed, suddenly, as the last, final realization kicked in. "What?" Lyle demanded.

"It's just... so ironic...!" Debi finally managed to get out between giggles. "Both of us.. were so sure that the other was the perfect example of what was wrong with the opposite gender!"

"Yeah, so?" Lyle said, still not getting it.

"So?" Debi asked, smiling. "Don't you get it? All of this started because we were each utterly sure the other one was utterly wrong..."

"...when the truth was, we were both completely right!" Lyle finished, seeing the irony of it: "Now, we're going to have to try and be our own vision of what we thought the other should be!"

"That's right!" Debi giggled. "The sole reason why we haven't gone stark, raving mad over what's happened to us..."

"..is because we're each so egotistical that we think we can make a better guy-or-girl than the other one did!" Lyle finished.

Looking at each other, finally coming to the full realization that their own sanity was maintained simply by a stubborn core of 'anything you can do, I can do better', the two egomaniacs burst into full-fledged laughter and fell into each other's arms.

As they shook with gales of bitter laughter at the irony of the universe, each managed the same darkly humorous consideration: Whatever their new lives held for them, one thing was certain:

It wouldn't be boring...

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: When his father dies, Daniel Laycroft realizes he ended up just like his father - rigid, unthinking and set in stone - so he decides to change everything he can about himself and moves Brazil where he is assigned a secretary/interpreter which is really a psychologist researching his Disassociative Persona Syndrome.

A Change Is...

By Gunslinger

(Part I)

"Excuse me, officer - where's the office of, uh... 'C. Palmer'...?"

The security guard smiled at the confused-looking brunette, no bothering to point out her mistake in calling him 'officer' - in fact, he liked the way it felt to have somebody address him with a modicum of respect. After all, sitting behind a big marble desk in the even bigger marble lobby of the Asheron Building might give him lavish surroundings, but his work left something to be desired.

"Well, Ma'am..." He said, with a pleasant smile. "If you see that lighted cube over in the corner, well, that's an office director of the building. I'm sure that.... you "

His smile slowly faded, his expression sliding into a slack-jawed gape of incredulity as he stared at the main door to the building. Confused, the brunette glanced over her shoulder then did a double take almost comedic in its classic simplicity.

She wasn't the only one. In the elegantly understated and very expensive lobby of the city's oldest and most respected 'Professional' building, heads were turning and jaws were drooping as people caught sight of what was walking in the door.

The figure just inside the door was technically wearing a pinstripe suit - but as far from the sedate outfits of the other men in lobby as fire was to water. The most sedate part of the outfit was the shoes, the black-and-white wingtips that looked brand-spanking new, despite being fifty years out of fashion, both black and white leather gleaming like mirrors.

Draped artfully over the shoes was the upturned cuffs of the pinstripe pants - the searing-red pants, with gold pinstriping that glittered and danced in the light, seeming to point upwards to where the matching jacket enclosed the figure's slender torso - but, slender as that torso, and its shoulders, might have been, the suit was anything but. From a nearly skin-tight waist, the suit was cut to flare like an inverted triangle, rising from that slender waist to shoulders so extravagantly padded that it didn't seem possible that they'd fit through the doorway.

Nestled in the 'V' of the suit's wide-collared neckline lay the upper portion of a tie so glaringly, achingly yellow that it seemed to be the condensed, distilled, chemically-pure origin of the color. A matching tri-peaked handkerchief nattily thrust from the breast pocket of the impossible suit, splashing against the equally glaring red of the jacket.

A matching red hat rested atop the person's head - a flat-crowned hat with a massively wide brim and hatband that was the same glaring yellow as tie and kerchief, in which rest a huge plumed peacock feather.

His left hand was gripping the fob of a golden pocket-watch on its chain, and was lazily twirling it around like a miniature, golden airplane propeller.

Looking around with satisfaction, the tall, slender apparition spoke in a rapid, sing-song voice.

"Hi, ho, daddios. Don't wear out your peepers, 'cause I'm not an illusion - I'm live and in living Technicolor, hep cats."

With a strange, sort of gliding walk, the garishly-clad man started towards the bank of elevators at the far end - and ever head turned to follow the progress, as if the silent spectators were little more than animatronic constructs designed solely to track the garish oblong of color that breezed through their midst.

Then the doors to the elevators slid open, then closed, and it was gone - and a dozen people shook their heads and began to murmur.

Shaking his own head, the security guard reached down and grabbed the phone hidden beneath the ledge of his desk, punching in an internal code. A voice on the other end answered.

"Uh, Stan?" The guard said in a stunned voice, speaking to another security guard on the very top floor of the building. "I think you'd better get Mr. Asheron. Uh, Mr. Laycroft just came in, and.. uh... I think he's gone crazy."

Still stunned, the guard slowly hung up the phone, not even hearing the tinny squawking issuing from the receiver as he put it down.

* * * * *

Daniel Jackson Laycroft had never felt so utterly happy in his life.

Even as the elevator cab rose towards the peak of the building, and the offices of Asheron Accounting and Insurance, Dan knew that he was committing metaphorical suicide - but he didn't care. His job, his supposed friends and colleagues, his little niche in life - none of it seemed to matter, not in the least - and the knowledge made Dan feel more completely and utterly free than he'd ever felt in his life.

It had all started just four days ago.

Four days ago, thirty-seven year old Dan Laycroft had entered the very same door as this morning - the same door he'd entered every weekday of the past ten years. One of a dozen slightly different shade-and-cut of brown three-piece suits he owned had sat on his sparse frame, every seam and crease perfect, brown shoes lightly polished to a sedately semi-gloss gleam, Gold watch neatly tucked into one pocket of his brown vest, the fob tucked into the other so that only the gleam of the golden chain offset the sedate touch of the suit.

He had then walked across the same marble floor he'd walked across for the past ten years, throwing the same polite nods and muttered greetings to the same people he always passed, as he waited quietly for the same elevator that would take him up to the top floor, where he would go to the same office and take off his coat, neatly fold back the French-cuffs of his starched white shirt, and get down to doing the same business he'd done for the past ten years, moving numbers from one column to one of three other columns, the amounts and associated codes meaningless to him in and of itself as he performed his mindless, repetitive - if fairly well-paying - job.

Over the decade he'd worked at Asheron, the computer on the desk had been upgraded several times, and the coffee maker in the lounge had been replaced with a machine that also made espresso and cappuccino - but, even then, Dan had habitually poured his same black-double-sweet coffee every morning, never even trying the new coffees the machine dispensed.

It had been a day identical to any other work day in the past decade... until the phone had rung, bringing with it the news that Dan's father had died.

It shouldn't have been a surprise, really. Everybody had known it was coming, and not too long. Between the dust from the mill and the pack-and-a-half-a-day cigarette habit, lung cancer had been inevitable, and even Martin D. Laycroft had only grunted unemotionally when the doctor had made the final pronouncement. A big-boned, wide-shouldered man with leathery skin, Marty Laycroft hadn't cried at the funeral of his wife, and he didn't whimper at the news of his own impending death... and he hadn't called his only son to inform him, leaving it to 'friends of the family' to finally pass the piece of news on to Dan... who hadn't had the slightest idea how he should react to that bit of news.

Even when old Doc Winslow had called and informed Dan that his Dad was dead, Dan hadn't known how to react. He wasn't sure whether he was happy or sad, excited or crushed by grief. He did know that it just didn't seem possible, no matter how he felt about it - Dad was immutable, as unchanging as the mountains or the sea.

It had taken the sight of his father laying in a casket to completely convince Dan that his dad, his unbending, unchanging father, was indeed dead.

It was the sight of the otherwise viewing room that had made Dan realize some other things, as well.

Martin had been a stern, unbending man. In the world of Marty Laycroft, everything had been black and white in a world full of givens - and Dan had hated him for it, with a passion that had surprised him.

Though Dan had inherited the slender build that had ultimately led to his mother's death while she was giving life to him, Martin saw only a 'son' in Dan, a male offspring who would do the same heavy work that big, strapping Marty had done in his youth. It hadn't been planned torment, or even really uncaring cruelty - it had been a given. A son would do heavy chores, and Martin Laycroft was incapable of altering his mind to accept anything, unable to take into account that Dan wasn't the big strapping boy that Marty had imagined a son would be.

It was also a given that Dan would work in the mill, like his father and his father's father before him. Martin hadn't even seemed to hear young Dan's desires to see the world, to leave the tiny company town and make something of himself. In Martin's life, everything was already set, and that included Dan's future. From that day he'd been born, Martin had already 'known' every detail of Dan's life to come.

So Dan had simply walked out one day. Taking his small collection of personal possessions, he'd sold off anything with the slightest value and traded it in for a bus ticket out of there. On his own, he'd headed to Chicago, where he'd made a new life for himself. He'd gone to school during the day and worked during the night, wearing himself thin and leaving no time for a social life as he'd striven towards his golden dream of a life completely unlike the one planned for him by Laycroft the senior.

When he'd finally graduated university, he'd accepted his diploma with pride, his own hopes and dreams to bright for him to see that, in the crowd of shining faces that watched, not one of them, was applauding for Daniel Laycroft.

That same shining hope led him to the doors of Asheron, where his drive and credentials had secured him a position as distant from a mill as you could get. Operating a computer in a climate- controlled office high above the city, dressed in well-tailored suits instead of greasy coveralls, risking paper-cuts from reports instead of mashed or missing limbs from machinery.

It wasn't until he stood in the viewing room that it had hit home. Part of Dan had begun to gloat over the emptiness of the room the knowledge that his father's unbending nature had left him alone at the very end...

..when he'd realized that the empty room had also signified that there was nobody there for him. No friends. No family. No companions or colleagues or acquaintances. Not one, single soul there to give him solace in this time of grief.

That's when Dan had realized, external trappings aside, he'd become the very thing he hated. Somehow, chasing the dream to escape the life his father had planned for him - he'd become the same unbending, unthinking man that his father had been, each day as identical to the other as if set in stone.

Something in Dan had become unhinged at the realization. He'd stumbled out of the viewing room in shock, and made his way to the nearest bar - where he'd tried to fit himself into a bottle.

He'd awoken two days later - the day before yesterday - with a massive hangover. He'd been laying in the hotel room he'd taken, his head pounding and his mouth a cesspool, when he'd realized that he couldn't go on like this. Something had to give.

He'd showered and shaved, taken a few aspirin and rinsed his mouth out with mouthwash. Then he'd dressed - and, for the first time in as long as he could recall, he didn't bother to work out what went with what, merely picking out the most comfortable pieces of clothing and the hell with it if they clashed.

Then, calmly and deliberately, he'd gone to the task of completely and utterly tearing apart the life he'd formed for himself.

It started with his up-scale apartment in Chicago. The instant he'd gotten home, he'd began stuffing things in bags and boxes, clearing out the apartment. The furniture and electronics he pawned for half their actual worth, everything else went to Goodwill.

Then he'd gone shopping for all-new possessions - and his one guiding rule was that they be as 'un- Dan-like' as possible.

Which left him where he was, on the elevator riding up towards the offices of Asheron Accounting and Insurance, to rid himself of the last vestiges of the old Dan Laycroft. As the elevator slowed to a stop and the doors slid open, Dan grinned boyishly, feeling a sense of elation fill him as he stepped out of the elevator.

Dan grinned as he saw his co-workers stop in the middle of their work and turn to gape at the garish vision stepping from the elevator. One of the secretaries, passing by, came skidding to a stop, her carefully collated pile of papers spilling from numb hands as she gaped at him, wide-eyed.

Throwing her a wink, Dan strolled towards the office of William Asheron. Ignoring the bleating of the security guard who was running up behind him, and the protests of Asheron's private secretary, William pushed open the door to the ornate office of the heir to the Asheron name and company and strode in proudly, closing the door behind him.

"Hey, there, Billy-boy." Dan said, brightly, to the silver-haired man behind the big desk, who was gaping at him.

"What's the meaning of this... Laycroft? Is that you?" Asheron asked, confused.

"Sure is, Daddio." Dan laughed. "I've come to, as you squares say, 'tender my resignation'. I'm blowing this joint."

Sliding his formal resignation from an inner pocket, Dan walked over and dropped it on the desk.

For a second, his nearly manic smile slipped as the consequences of what he was doing tried to make themselves heard - but Dan refused to listen to the quiet, logical voice anymore. It was the one that had led him to the distorted parody of his Dad's life, and he was damned if he was going to listen to it anymore.

"Laycroft... Dan..." Asheron said, slowly, looking at the resignation but not touching it. "I realize that your father passed away recently, and you might not be... fully aware of what you're doing..."

"Hell, no, Billy-boy." Dan grinned, cheerfully. "I know exactly what I'm doing. I'm blowing the dust of this squaresville of my clodhoppers and hitting the bricks. I'm ready for a change, Billy-boy. No more boring old Dan - this boy's a hep-cat now, and I'm gonna find something a little more my style, daddio."

William Asheron slowly folded his hands on the desk-top and looked at Dan's grinning face with compassion. "So... you don't think that this might be a.. a reaction to you father's death, Dan?"

"Well, sure it is, Billy-boy!" Dan said, dropping into one of the high-backed leather chairs in front of the big desk. For some reason, he felt like explaining himself, of showing the reasons why what he was doing was necessary. Almost as if seeking absolution for his 'wasted' life, and to boast of the revelation he'd had, Dan began to explain to his now-ex-boss what he'd realized.. and then found himself going into deeper detail, the grin sliding from his face and his voice becoming bitter as he slumped forward in the chair, eyes fixed on something in the unknown distance as he went through the whole story.

When he finished, Dan stared off into the distance for a few minutes.. then blinked and shook his head, coming out of the reverie with a snap, near-manic grin springing back to his lips.

"See, Billy-boy?" Dan asked, standing. "So, I'm gonna flee the joint."

Asheron was looking at Dan with true compassion and pity. Though the heir to a fortune, a name connected with power, and a life of luxury, William Asheron was also a good man in his own right, and the sight of what one of his most trust-worthy employees was going through touched him deeper than the shell of an efficient businessman could cover.

"Dan... wait a second." William said, lifting a hand and forestalling Dan's departure. "Please - hear me out."

"Hey, ain't no skin off my nose, Billy-boy." Dan grinned agreeably.

"I understand your.. need.. to distance yourself from what you see as a failed life." William said, slowly. "But, still, I can't help feeling that you're... overcompensating. This 'revelation' is still too new - you haven't had a chance to get used to it. You're erasing the old Dan - but you haven't yet decided on who the new Dan is going to be."

"If you're trying to talk me out of it, Billy-boy, you're wasting your breath." Dan grinned. "I ain't never going back to the sad-sack I was."

"I'm not saying you have to." Asheron assured Dan, quickly. "However... I want to offer you another job. If what you're looking for is a change, this might be just what you need."

"What's that? Mail-room? Janitor?" Dan asked, sarcastically. "Maybe tour-guide for the 'Historic Landmark Asheron Building'?"

"no." William said, shaking his head. "We've just opened a new office in Venezuela. We need somebody down there to head it... and I think it might be perfect for you." William opened a drawer in the desk and pulled out a sheet listing some details, sliding it across the desk. "You wouldn't have to start for a month, and we'd pay for relocating you. You could basically start a whole new life down there, re-invent yourself completely... as long as you're willing to choose a new you suitable for working in a casual office environment. Perhaps tone your fashion down a bit..." William looked Dan up and down, slowly, eyebrows raised. "It'll be pretty casual.. but not that casual."

Dan looked down at the paper sitting on the desk, then slowly picked it up, looking it over - and thinking about it, hard.

The part of his looking to escape his old existence urged him to accept - more than a change of wardrobe and speech patterns, this was a chance to start over in a new location, a new culture...

The 'logical' part of him also pointed out that it was damned good money. A little less than he'd earned here, actually - but it was also cheaper to live in Venezuela, meaning he'd come out slightly ahead.

It was the best of both worlds - and left him with a month off, to get moved down there and find his new groove...

"Hey, man - this sounds like a decent gig." Dan grinned. "I guess you got your boy." "That's great!" William said, obviously pleased. "Now, there's just one other thing." Dan's smile faded. "What's that...?"

William waved a hand in dismissal. "Oh, don't worry, it's nothing major. You're just going to have a secretary/interpreter staying with you for the month. We do it for all our employees going to a foreign country. She'll help you get up to speed with the new language and culture..."

* * * * *

"Well, babe - I guess this is our new pad!" Dan said, climbing out of the cramped, smelly taxi and staring at the pink-walled house. Dressed as a fifties 'Greaser' today, Dan was less out of place than he might have been, many of the locals having adopted a somewhat similar style out of personal preference.

Susan Chavez Climbed out of the cab as well, taking a deep breath to clear her lungs of the stale odors of the taxi as she looked at her residence for the next month - and mentally decided to tack another couple of grand on her bill for this.

Though playing the role of interpreter/Secretary to perfection, being fluent in Spanish and English, Susan was doing just that - playing a role.

Her real job here was to help 'guide' Dan along, subtly - something keeping right in line with her 'real' job, since she was an expert psychologist, especially in the 'Disassociative Persona Syndrome' field. In fact, she was the world's leading expert on the phenomenon...

...which was the major reason she'd accepted this case. It wasn't really the money, or even the case in and of itself - it was for her reputation as an expert, and the fact that this case was so important to that reputation.

Dan's case was the first recorded instance of a man suffering from a clear-cut case of DPS. A relatively new psychological phenomenon, DPS had, until now, only been clearly identified in women - to be specific, battered or subdued women whose controlling husbands had died or divorced them.

Overcome with 'freedom', the women would do the same 'flip-flop' in personalities as Dan was doing, searching for something to replace their old life. An ardent feminist, Susan had devoted her career to helping guide these women along the 'right' path, to allow them to become strong female individuals who no longer felt the need to 'submit' to men.

She wasn't exactly happy with having to deal this closely with a man - but if she didn't do this, one of her competitors would have taken the ground-breaking case, and she would have fallen behind. She wasn't about to play second fiddle to anyone, so she'd taken the case, her own discomfort notwithstanding.

"Well, why don't we get you inside...?" Susan said, trying to keep her dislike for her situation and 'patient'/project out of her voice. Active enthusiasm was way out of her league of acting skill, but at least she could try and act civil towards him. "You could probably use a long, hot shower after such a long trip."

"Sounds great, babe." Dan grinned, leading her up the walk to the garishly-colored and somewhat antiquated house she was going to spend the next month in.

"Go ahead and get your shower." She said, feigning as much enthusiasm as she could bring to bear. "Just throw your clothes out the door - I have to run some errands, and I'll wash your clothes while I'm at it."

"Sounds great!" Dan agreed, heading into the bathroom. A moment later, the door opened a crack and his skinny little arm slipped out, dropping his clothes onto the floor. A few seconds later, the sound of the shower filled the air.

"Well, at least I don't have to worry about this nutcase being abusive." Susan muttered to herself as she gathered up the clothing. Dan was thin and fine-boned, about the same general height and build as she herself - but she was an ardent fitness 'nut', and she was toned and fit, unlike the skinny, pasty office-worker Dan had let himself become.

Carrying the clothes, she headed out of the house. Wrinkling her nose, she dropped the archaic clothing, shoes and all, into the garbage can - and thus set 'part A' of her plan into motion.

When Dan climbed out of the shower, he'd find the only clothes available were those that were a little more appropriate. Susan had used this tactic dozens of times on women with DPS, who had over- expressed their freedom in the guise of 'too feminine' or even 'slutty' clothing. Inevitable, after they'd found nothing but comfortable casual clothes to wear in the closet, they'd put them on - and found themselves enjoying them more than the other clothes they'd been wearing. Susan was sure that once Dan put on some of the clothes in his closet, he too would start the road to being more... 'normal'.

Shaking her head, Susan headed down the street, towards the market at the bottom of the hill. Setting up this 'correction exercise' for Dan meant that there were certain things she'd purposefully instructed the company not to put in the house, and she had to pick them up. Besides - she was sure that there was a place that would sell alcohol down there somewhere - and right now, she needed a drink.

* * * * *

Annoyed, Dan peered around the corner of the bathroom door. "Susan..?" He called out, hesitantly. "Susan - are you here?"

He waited a moment - and was glad when he didn't hear any response. There was no bathrobe to be had in the bathroom - and all the towels were hand towels, which not only meant he'd had to use several to dry himself... but none of them came close to being large enough to wrap around his hips.

He had to settle for one rather strategically placed as he self-consciously padded from the bathroom and to his bedroom, shutting the door behind him with relief...

...and looking at the window with red-faced embarrassment. Looking out over a collection of other yards, the window was unadorned with any drapes or other view-disturbing items. Though there wasn't anybody immediately visible, there could be a dozen people looking out their own windows, able to see the nearly-naked 'gringo' in his bedroom.

Dan hurried over to the closet and pulled open the door, eager to end the chance of being 'peeped'. One-handed, he began to paw through the clothing.

Casual slacks. Dress slacks. Dress shirts, causal dress shirts/ Ties. Dark socks. The closet was full of the attire of a dedicated businessman - almost too much so. No jeans. No T-shirts. Everything was button-down or button-up...

...exactly like the clothing he'd worn over the past few years. Like the clothes that 'the old Dan' had always worn.. and staring at the selection, Dan felt a worm of fear twist in his heart. There wasn't a single piece of clothing that he found far enough away from his old life in there.. and the thought of wearing some of this clothing made his heart pound and sweat stand out on his brow.

"No..." He moaned in a low, half-crazed voice. "No, I'm escaping from that.. I'm not going back!" His voice had slowly risen as he'd talked and he didn't realize he was screaming at the top of his lungs, eyes bulging as he screamed. "I am not going to be my father!"

Dan slammed the door to the closet and slumped against it, panting. His own fear and disgust at what he'd let himself become, once, shook him with it's intensity - and the need to avoid being the least like that person was equally intense. He couldn't put the clothing in the closet on - not if he wanted to be able to cope. It would feel too much like.. like giving up. Like letting his father win, even from the grave.

Shaking with emotion, Dan turned away from the closet. He glanced at the bed, which was devoid of sheets or blankets, then padded towards the bedroom door.

Glancing around, guiltily, Dan padded towards the bedroom that Susan was going to be using, hoping to find a robe or something to put on. It was embarrassing to be sneaking into somebody else's room without asking - but it was even more embarrassing to be padding around, naked.

The thought of wearing the clothes in his closet was downright unthinkable, however. Opening the door to Susan's bedroom, Dan walked in and looked around.

The bed, like his, was stripped down to the bare mattress, and there was no curtains on the windows of her room, either.

"I thought this place was supposed to be 'fully furnished and equipped'..." Dan muttered in annoyance as he walked over to the closet. Opening the doors to the large, spacious closet, he began to flip through the clothing in search of a robe.

There wasn't one. In fact, most of the closet was filled with clothes bought by the local company rep for Susan - which showed that he knew about as much about Susan as he had about Dan. While the clothes in Dan's closet were repulsive to him because of their boring, business-like style, the clothing in Susan's closet was too 'feminine' for Susan. Dan hadn't seen the dusky-skinned Interpreter in anything but mannish-style clothing that was, at best, 'unisex'.

"Geez, talk about your screw-ups." Dan muttered. "Susan wouldn't want to wear this stuff - hell, she'd be happier wearing the stuff in my closet."

He shook his head at the truth of the statement - the stuff in his closet was actually damned near perfect for Susan, despite being 'men's' clothing. Hell, with their builds, they'd probably fit just right.

"That's it - they got the rooms mixed up. That's her clothes... so, these must be mine." Dan laughed at the thought...
...then stopped dead, an odd expression coming over his face as he looked at the clothing in the closet.

He was looking for something to wear that was about as far from his old clothing as possible - and women's clothes would definitely qualify...

"Naw..." Dan said, shaking his head. "What the hell am I thinking? I'm not some sissy tranny! I'm.. I'm... I, uh,..."

Dan stopped dead, face going blank as he suddenly realized he simply didn't know how to end that sentence.

William Asheron's words came back to him. Mr. Asheron had said that Dan was erasing the 'old Dan', but without having anything to replace it with. Dan hadn't been willing to listen, thinking Billy-boy was just trying to talk Dan into getting back into his old life - but, now, Dan realized that Asheron might have been right. Maybe the 'old Dan' was the only person he knew how to be, and all he'd been doing was.. 'playing around'. Choosing to act and dress directly opposite, but without any real goals or aims to form a new Dan.

In short - he was still the 'same old Dan', just in brighter clothes...

:No!" Dan shouted at himself, angry - and scared. "No, I can change. I can be somebody completely different! I'll prove it!"

Though there was nobody there, in truth the shouted denial was aimed at his deceased father. The sting of his father's assumptions and iron-clad beliefs of what his soon would become had shaped Dan for so many years that even the death of Martin Laycroft wasn't enough to break the cycle. Just as he once had, Dan needed to prove to his Dad - and himself - that he could turn around and do something completely different...

And if it was 'different' that was needed, then 'different' it was going to be.

"Never thought a son of yours would ever be caught dead in women's clothes, hey dad?" Dan shouted at the ceiling as he grabbed some clothes at random. |"No Laycroft would ever be a 'sissy- boy', right? Well - watch this Dad!"

Carrying the pile of clothing, he went back into the bathroom and started the water running again - but rather than pull the little lever to send the water into the shower head, Dan put the plug into the tub and let it begin to fill.

Sitting on the toilet, Dan grabbed his rechargeable electric razor.

"See this dad - your son, who was going to be 'just like you' is gonna shave his legs. You ever do that, Dad? Huh?"

Quickly, Dan used the electric razor and began to shave off his leg hair. In a red haze of anger at himself and his Father, Dan was barely aware of his own actions as he worked his way up one leg and then down the other - and then went on to the rest of his body, contorting to reach every inch of his body as he removed the little masculine body hair he had.

Then, turning off the razor, he put the electric razor down and grabbed a bottle of Nair that had been supplied. He'd seen it under the sink when he'd showered, and laughed to himself at the thought that, considering Susan's personality and choice of clothing, it would probably never get used. Well, it was going to get used now...

Stopping the water in the tub, which was half full, Dan slid into the tub and washed the remaining loose hairs that had fallen over his body as the razor had done its work. With his skin slick with water, he stood and applied the Nair according to the instruction on the bottle.

After fifteen minutes, he turned on the water and pulled out the plug with his toe, then turned on the shower and rinsed the foul-smelling hair-remover off his slender body, stepping out of the tub and shutting off the water.

"See, dad! All nice and sissy-smooth!" He shouted at the ceiling, running his hands over his slick, smooth skin. Grabbing another pile of hand towels, he quickly toweled off.

"Watch dad! I'm getting dressed!" Dan shouted, picking up a pair of white cotton panties that were most definitely feminine attire. He quickly pulled them on, laughing almost maniacally at his dead father.

Next, he pulled on an off-white silk blouse, thrown for a second by the buttons being on the wrong side. Next, he pulled on a burgundy knee-length skirt that hung a little loose across the hips, but fit fairly well otherwise.

"See, dad! I'm nothing like you!" Dan shouted in weaker defiance, the red-hot anger at his father draining away as his manic burst of energy died. Slumping against the sink, Dan found himself looking in the mirror.

Staring back at him was a person he hardly recognized. He'd always taken after his mother, with her slender, svelte build - and now, dressed in a basic, feminine outfit, his mother's less-than-stunning daughter could have been looking back - if she'd had one.

Despite the short hair, the flat chest, and the too-large nose.. Dan almost looked like a woman. Hell - if he walked down the street at this instant, more people would assume he was a not terribly attractive woman then would assume he was a guy. Even the legs revealed beneath the knee-length skirt weren't half bad.

"What the hell am I doing?!" Dan asked himself, horrified as he realized what his anger had let him do. He stared back at the feminine-looking 'sissy-boy' in the mirror, unable to believe how monumentally stupid he'd just been. Shame washed over him at the memory of shaving his body hair and pulling on these clothes.. and for what? To make some sort of point to a person who was already dead and buried.

"Dan.." He told his reflection, shakily. "This.. this isn't normal. Asheron was right - you need some help. Some serious, professional help. You're cracking up..."

Like some great boulder rolling from the entrance to a cave, light flooded into Dan's mind as his 'rational' side was allowed to speak again, to show him what he'd been doing. Dan realized that, for the last week, he had been - technically - insane.

Taking a deep breath, Dan felt tension drain out of him - and embarrassment rose to take its place as he looked at his own, mostly-feminine reflection. Straightening, he decided to go back to his bedroom, get out of these clothes and into something more fitting - and try and forget that he'd ever done this incredibly stupid, embarrassing thing.

Shaking his head at his own crazed actions, Dan stepped out of the bathroom - and practically into the arms of Susan Chavez.

"What the.. Dan?" Susan gasped, staring at him - with good reason. Dan began to blush. "Look, Susan.." HE tried to explain.

An odd look came over her face as her eyes narrowed. "Oh - don't bother to explain, Dan. So, you like to dress in women's clothes, huh? I see you've even shaved your legs. Well, if you want to look like a woman, I think that's just fine..."

Dan didn't like the tone of her voice, or the odd glitter in her eyes, and held up his hands and tried to explain. "Look, it's not..."

* * * * *

Susan was seething at being played for a fool. She can't believe that this.. this sissy had managed to fool her, make her believe that he was actually an important case, the first recorded male case of DPS.

No, it was nothing that important. This little slime bag was just your standard-issue little sissy. It all fit the slim build, the lack of facial hair, the lack of friends and close ties.. all so that he could better play the woman without getting caught.

But - this little sissy had tried to pull a fast one. Using the excuse of his father's death, he'd played 'insane' - and managed to get reassigned to Venezuela...

...which 'just happened' to have a number of very good, very cheap sex-change clinics, where the non-AMA-bound doctors could do the job faster and less expensively than in the states.

She'd left her thriving practice and come to this shit-hole.. because this damned tranny had tricked her. Well.. she wasn't going to stand for that.

The little sissy was babbling something - but she didn't hear him. Anger was white-hot behind her eyes, and the rush of blood through her ears blocked him out... as she put ten years of Martial Art's classes to good use.

With a movement almost too fast to see, her fist lashed out and caught him in the pit of the stomach. Air rushed from his lungs, and he bent double - and she brought both hands, folded together, down on the back of his head, sending him sprawling to the floor, unconscious.

Susan didn't realize her lips were curled in a fearful sneer as she looked down at the little sissy with white-hot anger.

"So.. you want to be a little sissy, do you?" She snarled. "A girly-girl? Well... You've come to the right person. I am going to help you, Sissy... You have no idea how much I'm going to help you..."

Throwing her head back, Susan began to laugh as she stood over the unmoving form dressed in a skirt and blouse.

THE END PART I

SUMMARY: This is the second part of an interesting story of a man who leaves his life in the states and goes to Venezuela to "start a new life." And what happens is your guess.

(Part II)

By Gunslinger

Darkness to darkness. Silence to silence. Stillness to stillness.

If not for the new-born awareness of the deep, throbbing ache of his head, Dan wouldn't have realized he was conscious once again as he blinked up into a darkness as deep as that of the Stygian well from which he'd just arisen.

Dan groaned, trying to raise his hands to his aching head.. only to find that he couldn't. The movement was brought up very short by a sharp tug on each of his wrists, and the slickly- uncomfortable abrasion of nylon rope tightening and rotating around the wrist with the aborted movement.

"Wha...?" Dan said, thickly, his throat as dry as the Sahara as he tried to recall how he'd ended up here. He licked his dry, salty lips as the last memories came back - Susan, glaring at him as he'd stood in the bathroom doorway, dressed in some of her clothes... and then the sudden flashes of pain, then darkness.

He was laying on something cold and hard, strapped down in a spread-eagle on the surface. From the way the cool material felt beneath him, and the slightly warmer air flowing over him, it wasn't hard to figure out that he was also naked.

His body was stiff and sore - he must have been out of it for quite awhile. His head ached, his mouth felt like the day after a major drinking binge, and he was strapped down, unable to move more then a couple of inches.

This wasn't exactly an ideal situation...

"Hello...?" He croaked, his voice dry and rusty. Clearing it, he tried again. "Help! Somebody, help me...!"

There was a dull thumping sound in response. Even as Dan's brain placed it as being sneakers on a concrete surface, they paused - and light flared, momentarily blinding him as he gasped at the searing bolt of pain that flashed through his indignant head at the mistreatment.

"Ahhh... I see our little sissy-boy's awake..." Susan's voice said, smugly. Turning his head, Dan found himself looking at Susan, dressed in a pair of jeans and a baggy sweatshirt, standing in the doorway of what Dan could now identify as the garage of the house he'd been given in Venezuela.

"Susan!" Dan gasped, still wincing in the bright overhead light. "What.. what are you doing? Have you gone crazy? Untie me!"

"Oh, no - I don't think so..." Susan said, with an unpleasant grin, as she came down the two steps from the door to the garage floor. "You picked the wrong woman to try and play games with, little Tranny Danny. For once, I'm in a position to do something about it."

Dan frowned in confusion. "Wha.. What the hell are you talking about, Susan?"

She slowly walked around the large workbench-like table he was strapped to, her entire body radiating a sense of arrogant control.

"You thought I was just some dumb secretary and translator, didn't you, Danny?" She asked, with a grin that wasn't the least bit humorous. "You had no way of knowing you were trying to fool one of the preeminent psychologists in the world. For more than a decade, I've been helping women who have suffered at the hands of men, women whose identities have been swallowed up, so that they actually needed somebody to help them form a whole new personality after their escape."

Dan tried to follow what she was saying - but he couldn't tie it into the situation in which he found himself in. He wasn't the 'man' who had done something to one of her patients so this couldn't be some sort of 'revenge' thing...

"I.. I don't understand. What.. why are you doing this to me...?"

She turned on him, anger flaring in her eyes. "Oh, don't try and play dumb now, Danny. You're caught! I know what you were doing! Acting all crazy... just so you could con your company into paying for your new life in Venezuela. You couldn't have swung your tranny life in America - but here it's cheap and easy, and there's now Government watchdogs to slow or stop the process. Oh, your plan was pretty good, Tranny-Danny - but you had no way of knowing that Asheron would assign a psychologist to keep an eye on you!"

Dan's blood ran cold. "But... I'm not a tranny.. a transvestite!"

Susan laughed, cruelly. "Oh, of course - shaving off all your body hair and wearing women's clothes is 'a comfort thing', right? Stow it, sissy-boy - you can't fool me. No, I'm trained as a psychologist, remember? We've been trained how to spot - and deal with - people like you. Oh, I know you better than you know yourself, tranny-Danny!"

"But...!" Dan tried to explain what had happened.

"Shut up!" Susan roared. "What, do you really think I'm that stupid? That I don't know what's going on? Well.. let's look at the 'facts', shall we?"

Her voice sliding into a condescending lecturing tone, she began to tick points off on her fingers. "First - your build. You're slender, very much so. In fact, you have just about the perfect 'feminine' build, despite the lack of secondary feminine characteristics."

Dan had inherited a feminine frame from his mother... but it was the fact that his Dad had expected him to become a 'big strapping boy' that had driven Dan to keep himself trim and slender... feminine- looking in fact. It hadn't been a conscious decision, really - but, now, he realized that he did, indeed, present a very effeminate appearance, a side-effect of his desire to be as unlike Dad as possible...

"Then there's your behavior..." Susan continued, raising another finger. "Very proper, almost foppish... and very 'polished' and graceful. Characteristics usually assigned to women, again..."

Dan realized it was true, as well - though, again, Susan was ascribing the wrong reasons to the phenomena. Dan's father had been a muscular, gruff man - so Dan had tried to be 'polished', as upper-class as his father was working-class...

"Look, you don't..." Dan tried again, seeing that all the pointers were there - but misunderstood... the blow came as a shocking surprise. Pain flared in his mistreated head as the exquisitely toned and fit Susan right-crossed him across the jaw, making his head pound to the side.

As if she hadn't just slugged him harder than most men would be able to do, Susan continued on, unperturbed.

"Then we have your 'social life' - or rather, lack thereof. This is a common indicator in transsexuals who feel 'ashamed' of their 'perversion' - they avoid forming close friendships to keep the chances of being 'discovered' minimal. For the same reason, they were very drab, masculine clothing when not 'en femme', to help distract for their proclivities..."

Still stunned by the blow, Dan was too dazed to refute the charge, though - like the others - it was the wrong conclusion based on the right data. Dad had worn grubby work- or casual clothes, so Dan had always worn very 'formal' clothing, toned down and sedate to form the persona he'd been trying to make - one that had been driven to be as unlike Marty Laycroft as possible, not to try and be feminine...

"So, you see, you can't fool me any longer!" Susan snapped, triumphantly. "I know all about.. men like you. Secretly ashamed of being male, yet too damned cowardly to be openly female. You sissies are nothing! Not men, and you sure as hell aren't 'real' women. Oh, no - when you're all 'feminine', you don't act like really women. No, it's all swishy-swishy, lace and satin and heels. You disgust me! You sissy trannies are more of a stereo-type of the type of women that men want than any woman ever was or will be! It's perverts like you that give real women a bad name! Hell, men figure that if damned sissy-boys like you can be so feminine, then women should be able to be even more feminine. You make me sick. You disgust me. I just want to take your scrawny little neck and...!"

Susan suddenly realized she was ranting, eyes bulging and spittle flicking from her mouth. With a visible effort, she reined herself in - then smiled most unpleasantly.

"Far be it for me to be upset about it, though." She said, too-calmly. "After all, I'm a trained psychologist. My job is to help people like you - especially people like you, afraid even to admit what it is that you wanted. What you lied and schemed to get. As long as nobody suspected, you were happy but being confronted with your own guilty secret humiliates you to no end. Well... I'm going to help you overcome you shame, and face what it is that you really want.."

"No!" Dan gasped out, head banging and throbbing angrily as fear ran up and down his spine. "I don't want to be a woman! I never have! It's all a mistake..!"

Susan smiled, cruelly. "Ah, yes.. the first step: Denial. Well, we'll just have to start there, won't we...?"

She began to laugh - a low, ugly sound that sent chills up and down Dan's spine. Still laughing, she grabbed something out of Dan's line of sight. A second later, he felt something round and cool - and slightly resilient - being forced into his mouth. HE tried to struggle, but she had the advantage, and she finally forced the ball-gag into his mouth.

Still laughing maniacally, she left the room, turning off the light and plunging the helplessly, gagged Dan into darkness as he faced the prospects of what this crazed woman was planning to do to him...

* * * * *

Dan awakened for a second time, still strapped down to the work-bench style table in the garage.

At least his head didn't ache as much anymore... though that didn't immediately register, as his awakening was coupled with a not entirely unpleasant sensation in his crotch.

Lifting his head as far as he could, Dan looked down at Susan who - improbably - was doing something that felt very much like giving him a very slow hand-job. Through the ball gag, Dan made an odd, inquiring sound, wondering if this was her way of 'apologizing' for having gone psycho on him.

Apparently not - the cruel grin she gave him didn't seem the least bit apologetic. However, she did walk to the head of the table and unstrap the wide black leather strap that held the red rubber ball in place. He spat it out and worked his tongue around in his mouth, trying to get the saliva going again.

"Well, welcome back to wakey-land, sissy-boy." Susan said with an unpleasant grin, proving that she definitely wasn't off this 'transvestite' gig.

"Look, Susan - this is all a mistake..." Dan started, hoping to get through to her...

...and then he screamed as she reached over and pushed a button - and the 'sleeve' she'd wrapped around his cock and balls transferred the electricity from the 6-volt 'hobby' battery to his testicles.

It was only a momentary jolt - but Dan thought he was going to die as he writhed and twitched in the straps that held him in place.

"Now, now - none of that..." Susan chuckled. "Today, we're going to take the all-important first step: getting you to admit your problem so we can deal with it. Now, I want you to repeat after me..."

Her voice took on a high-pitched sing-song quality as she spoke. "I'm Tranny Dani, the cock-sucking sissy slut!" - Now, you say it."

Dan stared up at her, horrified. Susan had obviously flipped her wig, gone off her nut, had a screw loose, was playing with less than a full deck, was a medium drink short of a Happy Meal. She was plum crazy.

"Look, Susan.." Dan gasped...

...then screamed as she held the button down a little longer this time, leaving him jerking in agony as it felt like his cock and balls were being roasted in the fires of hell.

After she released the button, she waited until his ragged, gasping breath became somewhat more even - and then prompted him. "Tranny Dani...?"

He glared up at her, his view partially obscured by the tears of pain - and humiliation...

...and then, mechanically, started to repeat. "I'm Tranny Dani, the..."

His repetition was interrupted by a shorter - but still searing - bout of agony from the electrodes attached to his cock and balls.

"Why...?" He gasped as the agony eased.

"The voice, Dani - you have to do the sissy voice!" Susan said - actually giggling in demented pleasure.

Dan gaped at her, horrified and disbelieving... and then she started to reach for the button.

"I'm Tranny Danny, the cock-sucking sissy slut!" Dan cried, in as high-pitched a falsetto voice as he could force through his throat.

"Very good!" Susan grinned maniacally. "Again!"

"I'm Tranny Dani, the cock-sucking sissy slut!" Dan parroted back, humiliated... but unwilling to face the pain of having electricity run through his genitalia again.

"Very good. Now, I want you to repeat that a hundred times, until you can say it bright and chipper like you mean it... and then we'll work on the next phrase." Susan grinned, sitting in a chair very close by.. close enough that she could easily reach the button to the battery.

Closing his eyes, Dan whimpered.. and then cleared his throat and began to chant in as bouncy, falsetto voice as he could manage.

"I'm Tranny Dani..."

* * * * *

"...what you think, I like things that are frilly and pink!" Dan sing-sang in a cracked and warbling falsetto strained from too-much use in one day.

The work-bench turned out to be very adjustable - without having to loosen the ropes, Susan had arranged it like a very uncomfortable chair, letting him sit up and get a better look at his tormentor as he was put through hell.

He'd spent all day sing-singing out phrases she'd given him, unable to move more than a couple of inches in each direction. During the course of the day, she'd also hooked an Iv up to his arm, 'explaining' that it would be giving him his 'sissy-juice' - a mixture of nutrients, vitamins, and doses of female hormones and supplements. Between being a doctor and the looser local laws, she'd apparently had no trouble getting what she needed for this insane crusade she was one. Between the IV and the fact that the sleeve on his cock also led to a tube that took his urine to the small drain in the center of the floor, there was no excuse to untie him - with no solid food intakes, any 'other' problems were unlikely.

When she'd stuck the IV into his arm and explained what was in it, he'd showed defiance, screaming for help and trying to yank his arm enough to dislodge the taped-in-place IV needle.

All he'd gotten for his troubles was a nice, long jolt of electricity that had left him screaming in agony. Now, he numbly obeyed her orders to repeat insipid phrases over and over again, lost in a hell that he still wasn't sure how he'd gotten into.

"Very good, Dani!" Susan applauded his latest effort. "See, it wasn't so hard to admit you problems, was it?"

Head slumped in exhaustion, Dan had to force himself to raise it enough to look wearily at his tormentor.

"Go fuck yourself, bitch..." He rasped - in a high-pitched voice. He wasn't sure why, but she refused to punish him for swearing or cursing at her... if he did it in the 'Dani' voice.

"Oh, I do. Quite often, actually." Susan replied, cheerfully. "After all, despite the current political climate, us lesbians don't always find it easy to find a partner on short notice." She laughed brightly, obviously finding something hilarious about the comment and her reply. "Well, you've had a busy day. Time to get some rest, Tranny Dani - you've got even a busier day tomorrow."

"What...?" Dan said. "What do you mean...?"

She didn't explain. Instead, she filled a syringe of slightly yellow fluid, and injected it into the IV line leading into his vein.

"Nighty night, Tranny Dani..." She whispered with a manic cheerfulness, as the world faded out on Dan and he slip deep into the arms of Morpheus.

* * * * *

"Wakey, wakey, Dani!" Susan cried, too cheerfully. "Wakey, Wakey, Sissy!"

Slowly, Dan regained consciousness... mostly. He found himself sitting in a half-reclined position, staring up at the ceiling of the garage. For some reason, the plain stucco ceiling seemed incredibly interesting, and he stared at it for several long minutes, until an itch on his nose drew his attention away from it. Slowly, with poor coordination, he lifted his hand and scratch the itch slowly and thoroughly before letting his unfettered arm drop back down, not even recognizing the importance of what he'd just done.

"Feeling a little sluggish, Dani?" Susan asked, brightly. "A little thick-headed?"

Dan slowly turned his head and blinked at her, feeling an odd, insistent need to answer. "Uh.. yeah..." He mumbled, having a hard time getting his eyes to focus on her grinning face.

"That's probably the secobarbital-Amobarbital Sodium solution in you IV drip!" Susan confided to him. "Since you finally admitted you problem, now I'm allowed to start treating you - so, I've doped you to the gills!"

Dan frowned, trying to get his sluggish brain to work that out. "Problem...?"

"What did you say to me yesterday?" Susan prompted. "Who and what are you?"

The frown of concentration deepened as the urge to answer grew to almost unbearable proportions - and then a wave of relief broke over him as he found the answer. "I'm Tranny Danny, the cock-sucking sissy slut..." HE said in a thick, high-pitched voice.

"That's right, Dani!" Susan chirped. "And I'm here to help you!"

"Oh, that's good.." Dani muttered, thickly, feeling a wave of gratitude towards his benefactor. "Now, Dani - I need you to sign this medical release form..." Susan said, holding a clip-board out towards him. "So that Asheron, Inc., won't wonder about you when you don't show up or work. This will make them understand why, once it's filed."

"Whazzis?" Dan asked, looking at the clipboard as if he'd never seen one before in his life.

"It just says that you voluntarily went on an accelerated SRS-prep program and drug regimen." Susan explained, most of which slipped past Dani completely. "It explains that you asked to be given the highly risky and legal-here-but-illegal-in-America regimen of Testosterone enanthate benzilic acid hydrozone, estradiol diananthate, estradiol benzoate. Sodium estrone sulfate. Flouxymestron. And, of course, natural-source estrogen compounds."

Dani grunted non-committedly, then gripped the pen she handed him and concentrated very hard on signing his name on the correct spot on the sheet.

"Very good!" Susan said, switching to another sheet on the clipboard. "Now - you need to sign this one, too. It legal changes your name to Danielle Sillysisy."

"Uh-huh..." Dani agreed, signing numbly.

"There you go - now you're Tranny Dani for all legal purposes! That's your name now, Dani - Dani Sillysisy. Tranny Dani, the cock-sucking sissy slut!"

Dani nodded slowly, mouthing the words in time with her.

"Now - lets get you standing up..." Susan said, helping him out of the chair. He wavered and tottered, barely able to stand.

"Now that that's over with, we can decrease the dosage somewhat. We want you a little more awake, but still... pliable..." She grinned as she carefully adjusted the IV on the stand next to him. Dani simply stood and waited for what seemed forever, until his head cleared a little bit and his sense of balance firmed up. He shook his head, slowly.

"What.. what's going on...?" He asked, blinking. He felt.. confused.

"You just signed the papers, Tranny Dani." Susan grinned, holding out a clipboard. "Don't you remember - you're in Venezuela. You came down here to change who you were, and you just signed the papers to let me help you do that."

Dani frowned slightly, then nodded, remembering. "Yes. I remember. Thank you, Susan - I'm so glad you're going to help me."

"I know, I know..." Susan said, brightly. "Now, let's go into the house. We have to get you into your corset."

Dani had started to follow her, instinctively - now he drew to a halt, a frown crossing his face. "Corset? I.. I don't know if I want... that is..."

Susan smiled gently at him. "Dani, Dani, Dani - of course you need a corset. You need to make your waist nice and small, so you can wear the women's clothes. You remembered trying on women's clothes, right?"

Dani tried to focus on the image, and it slowly swam into his mind - him climbing into some women's clothing in the bathroom...

"Remember how you felt...?" Susan prodded, and Dani nodded. "Ashamed..."

"That's right." Susan grinned. "Ashamed by how ugly you were. Well, I'm going to help you look all nice and pretty, the way you want. Come on, Dani..."

"Oh... okay..." Dan agreed, frown smoothing away as he mindlessly let Susan help him up the two steps and into the house. Dragging the Iv on it's wheeled stand, he headed into the bedroom, which was now fully finished, decorated in a lacy pink-and-white motif.

Opening the closet, Susan extracted a white canvas corset, trimmed in pink lace.

"Okay, Dani - lean against the bedpost, and we'll get you laced in..." Susan instructed, and Dani obediently leaned forward and held onto the poster of the four-poster bed as she wrapped the corset around his slender frame.

He winced as she put her knee in the small of his back and began hauling on the strings with all the strength, but he didn't say a word of protest.. after all, she was being so nice and helping get what he really wanted...

...wasn't she...?

Finally, she got the corset laced into place, and she patted him on the ass and told him to straighten up.

"Now - since you're still new to this, we'll start you off on low heels..." She said, pulling out a pair of white patent-leather 'Mary Jane' shoes with a two-inch block heel...

* * * * *

Dani stared up at the ceiling of the room, wondering what was going on.

He'd just awoken, and he felt... strange. Like he'd just come off an all-week bender... but not with the physical ailments of a hangover. Instead, it was the mental effects - he felt confused and fuzzy- headed, his memory yielding only snatches of color and sound that didn't mean very much.

He recognized the ceiling and the walls of the room around him as being the house in Venezuela - yet, it also didn't look right. Had it always been pink and white... yet it all seemed so familiar somehow.

The last sharp, clear memory Dani could pull up was a sudden pain ij his gut, followed by one to the back of his head... but that had no connections, no continuity. The last continuous train of memory he had was him walking into the office, dressed in the most garish suit of clothing he could find. He'd bought it becuase.. beucase he'd wanted to change...

Shaking his head in frustration at his lack of mental cohesion, Dani slid his legs over the side of the bed and sat up - then frowned down at the smooth, hairless legs.

Should the bee smooth like that...? Yet, he seemed to recall shaving them... unsure of his memory's accuracy, Dani rose from the bed and looked around the familiar/unfamiliar room. Slowly, he padded over to the closet, aware of the way the air moved across his denuded skin, where his body wasn't covered by the corset and...

"Corset...?!" Dani asked himself out loud, confused - and confused anew by the voice he spoke in, a high, lisping sound that was... somehow right and wrong at the same time. Shaking his head, he slowly ran his hands over the heavy corset that was tightly cinched around his waist.

"What the hell...?" HE muttered to himself in that comfortable-feeling falsetto soprano, and he tried to get the knots on the damned foundation garment untied so he could get it's uncomfortable restriction off.

He couldn't the combination of the tightly-tied knots being behind him and his longish nails defeated the attempt. Sighing in annoyance, he decided to ignore it and find something to wear so he could find out what the hell was happening here, and why he felt so strange.

He swung open the closet - and his jaw dropped as he stared at the 'selection' in the closet.

There were fifteen outfits inside... all exactly the same. Big, fluffy pink skirts trimmed in white lacy. Pink polka-dot blouses with puffy white-lace shoulders and big white buttons down the front. White nylons, and white patent-leather pumps with six-inch spike heels.

"What the hell...?" Dani said, rubbing the bridge of his nose, being careful not to spear his own eyes with his nails. He remembered wanting clothes completely different - but he couldn't have chosen these clothes...

...could he?

The damndest thing was... he just couldn't remember. The clothing looked oddly familiar, despite the fact he also felt pretty sure that he wouldn't be caught dead wearing them.

Looking around, he spotted a big, fluffy pink bathrobe. He shrugged his way into it, then padded out the door of his bedroom and down the hallway.

"Good morning, Dani... something wrong?" The tall, toned dusky-skinned woman in the kitchen asked as he rounded the corner. Unprepared for anybody else's presence, Dani felt his heart-rate jump...

...and a memory stir.

"Sar...no. No... Susan..." He muttered, struggling to order thoughts and memories. "You.. you're Susan, right?"

"That's right, honey." The woman said. "Don't worry if you feel a little confused. That's only normal after being on the drugs for slightly over a month."

Dani's heart-rate spiked. "Drugs? What drugs?"

"The estrogen and hormone drugs." Susan said, smiling. "The ones to let you be all sissy and pretty."

Dani shook his head. "No.. no, I don't... I don't want to be girly..."

"Sure you do. That's what you came down here for, Dani." Susan said, taking something out of her pocket and handing it over. Dani looked at it, and found that it looked vaguely familiar - and the signature on it was definitely his.

It was a consent form - a form giving permission to start his drug therapy.

"No... no, this isn't... isn't right..." Dani muttered, shaking his head. "I.. I don't want to be.. be a girl..."

Susan smiled warmly. "Dani, Dani, Dani... you're just fighting your own sense of shame. Don't worry, though - you signed over all your legal rights and became my ward, so that I could keep you from backing out."

Dani frowned at her. "What...? No, that can't be right." He tried to focus. "Look, I... I don't know what's going on... but I'm not going to be a sissy."

"Yes. You are." Susan said. Though she was still smiling, there was iron in her tone. "Dani, it's time for you to go get dressed - we have a lot of work to do today."

"No..." Dani shook his head. "There's no way I'm wearing those.. those... sissy clothes..."

Susan grinned, and leaned forward, her voice becoming louder and sharper. "Oh, yes, you will. You need to get dressed... Tranny Dani!"

Dani opened his mouth to argue.. then gasped, feeling a rising pressure behind his eyes, like some gigantic valve had been opened, filling his head with an ever-increasing volume of air that threatened to make his head explode from within.

"What.. what's happening...?" He gasped, sinking to his knees and clamping his hands to the side of his head. "It hurts! It.. it hurts so.. so bad and.. and I can't.. can't think..."

"Why don't you go get dressed, Tranny Dani...?" Susan suggested, her voice seeming to have to cross miles to reach his ringing ears.

"No.. Not going top.. won't..." Dani stammered, his brain being crushed against the inside of his skull and fracturing thought with the pressure. "I.. I... I'm Tranny Dani... Tranny Dani, a.. a cock- sucking...sissy..."

Slowly, the pain began to recede, and he gasped in relief as he continued to chant without hearing his own voice. "Tranny Dani, the cock-sucking Sissy Slut. I don't care what you think, I like to wear things that are frilly and pink!"

Smiling in relief, Dani rose from the floor. "I.. I think I'll go get dressed now, Mama Susan.."

Turning, he sashayed back to the bedroom and quickly pulled on his usual pink-and white frilly outfit, smoothing it over his more slender than ever figure...

...and then began to frown in confusion as he stared at the reflection of the mirror mounted on the closet door.

"Wait... I thought I wasn't going to... I mean..." Dani tried to remember when he'd decided he was going to wear these clothes after all.. but it wouldn't quite form.

"Oh, Dani...!" Mama Susan called - and Dani let the thought slip away, unfinished.

"Coming, Mama!" Dani lisped in as high, silly a voice as he could manage. Susan said that the bad old Dan was too grown up, so Dani should act like a little girl, and Susan could be her mommy and do all her thinking for her, which was nice, because thinking made her head hurt.

Skipping atop her high-heeled shoes, Dani headed out to the kitchen, only vaguely bothered by the sensation that something was wrong....

After all, she had more important things to worry about. Mama Susan said that if Dani was a good girl for 'nother whole month, she could get some boobies, then she could be a big girl !

* * * * *

THE END

SUMMARY: One young man has plans to reshape the Universe to his liking - starting with his beer- swilling, sex-crazed roommates.

Clarity

By Gunslinger

Aaron and Brad were assholes. They were drug-smoking, beer-swilling, sex-crazed ex-jock assholes. They were also dumb as dogshit.

Chris hated his roommates with a passion. The lean, sallow-skinned young man with the dark, mistrustful eyes and huge shock of died-jet-black hair was not, by nature, a likable young man, and did not like many people in return - but he reserved a special bilious vat of hatred just for his tanned, once-muscular roommates, Aaron and Brad.

That wasn't just an expression, either. Chris had it boiling on a hot-plate in his room, and it was just about ready.

The twenty-seven-year-old 'wizard' hated just about everyone and everything. Always dressed in black clothing of archaic cut, Chris found his very existence intolerable - but, unlike the rest of the undeserving assholes in the world, Chris was going to do something about it. His life-long pursuit of the Dark Mystic Secrets was about to pay off, and he was going to reshape the Universe to his liking - starting with Aaron and Brad.

Aaron was dark-haired, while Brad was tow-headed - but other than that, they could have been clones. Living in a huge beach house atop a hill overlooking the Pacific Ocean, the two thirty-year-old men had been 'buds' since they were twelve. They not only had the same build, fading boyish charm and taste in garish Hawaiian shirts, they also had the exact same background, each life mirroring the other. They were both once-athletic men who were too stupid to realize that their looks were fading while they partied up all the money they'd inherited from their rich fathers. They still thought they were real 'studs' - in part because of all the sexy women who came onto them. It wasn't rugged good looks drawing them in, but the money, booze and drugs that floated around at the parties.

Actually, Aaron and Brad weren't completely stupid, Chris had to admit - grudgingly. They had at least hooked up with other 'stupid white rich boys', and set up a schedule among the four 'groups'.

Anybody could hold a party anytime they wanted - but every fourth night they had to have a party, and the other three groups were always invited.

It worked out well. You were guaranteed to have a party to go to anytime you wanted, but you only had to have a party at your house one night out of four, if you wanted.

Aaron and Brad, of course, threw more parties than that - but they really liked letting somebody else do the work, so half the time Chris had the place to himself, his roommates off partying somewhere else.

That's when Chris worked on his potion - and now it was almost ready. In just a few minutes, he'd add the final ingredient...

...and then he'd be transformed into hideously powerful cougar who'd tear his roommates to shreds before returning to his human form and 'frantically' calling 9-1-1 and calling for help.

All the evidence would support Chris' story that he was in his room when his roommates were attacked and savagely killed by a cougar - including the video evidence.

Chris had set it all up. Tonight was a rare occasion - a night when his roommates were going to be alone. They weren't hosting a party or going to a party. They'd come home, not expecting anything - and since Chris had made a huge point about being an avid 'videography' buff, they'd ignore the lighting and video equipment in the living room, having gotten used to it.

Chris, actually, hated electronics like Camcorders and video-editors. However, it was part of his ploy, and so he made sure everybody knew about his 'hobby'.

Again - the police would find nothing suspicious about his video equipment being left on when he went back into his room for awhile. It was a well-known 'fact' to everybody who'd even heard of Chris, who was always boring people with his explanation of 'time-lapse' movies.

So - there's be plenty of video evidence of Chris' closed door. Of the cougar smashing through a window and killing Aaron and Brad, then leaving again. All while the door to Chris' room stayed shut...

...until it was well over, and a cowering Chris crawled out to make that call.

Chris wasn't bothered about the 'cowering in his room' reputation that would result. Once he inherited the money he'd talked the two morons into putting in their wills for him, he'd be able to afford the very expensive ingredients he'd need for the potion that would give him God-like powers. Once he was a semi-deity, he figured he could deal with anybody who felt like being insulting.

It was ready. In the living room, bright lights reflected off white umbrellas, casting ideal lighting over the 'set', while the four Sony CamCorders hummed near-silently. They had lights and camera - all that was lacking was action.

Then Chris heard the cue - as a jeep pulled into the driveway, light momentarily washing in the beach- house's huge windows. A minute later, there was the sound of keys in the lock...

...and Chris, grinning triumphantly, dumped the least ingredient into the caldron he'd bought over the Internet. Immediately, the vile-looking-but-odorless liquid inside began to churn - then emit an incredibly thick, dense column of black smoke that, impossibly, held near-cylindrical position directly in front of the large, open window to Chris' room.

Chris walked back to the other end of the room and looked at the column of smoke, hanging motionlessly in front of the window.

'This is it...' He thought, triumphantly. 'All I have to do is leap through the smoke. As I pass through the smoke, I'll become whatever I'm 'imagining in a moment of perfect clarity' - and I know what that it, all right. The feline vengeance from the night. The Destroyer. Their destroyer. Their Destiny...'

With a look of grim purpose on his face, Chris sprinted for the window, his feet leaving the floor as she dived at the open aperture...

...while a random thought flitted across Chris' brain.

'Destiny. Huh. Sounds like the name of a brain-dead slut the guys might bring home...'

Then the smoke was past - and she thought, wryly, 'oh, shit...'; as she tucked-and-rolled for the landing.

"One simple thing, Chris..." She muttered softly to herself in disgust, hearing the new, feminine tones to her voice. Decidedly feminine. "All you had to do was focus on the one thing you've been obsessing over for the past six months, the cougar that would destroy Aaron and Brad. That's it.

What do you do instead? Imagine one of the asshole's sexual playthings. You idiot - you deserve whatever you've turned yourself into."

Feeling utterly disgusted with herself, Chris sighed and decided to get it over with. Picking herself up from the ground, she surveyed the new body she'd inadvertently given herself.

Not that she had to look. She already knew. Though the woman she'd become had never existed before, Chris already knew every square millimeter of her - since, after all, she was Chris' own 'fantasy image' of a 'party slut'.

Yup - it was all there. There were the white platform pumps, with the three-inch high platforms and the eight-inch high spiked heels, an unbelievably impractical pair of footwear - and damned sexy, showing off her long, shapely bare legs from slender angle top mid-thigh, where they disappeared under the hem of her ultra-tight white leather miniskirt studded with copper 'rivets'. The jacket she now wore matched the skirt, and beneath it a hot-pink spandex crop-top left her narrow waist bare, the material straining mightily to contain her unbelievably, ridiculously, impracticably out-sized silicone-inflated tits, massive, medicine-ball-sized monstrosity that were impossibly huge and firm, practically spherical as they strained for freedom, a massive amount of breast-flesh and vast cleavage revealed in the neckline of the straining garment.

She was short, slender, and supple, glittering with cheap gold bracelets, bangles, necklaces, rings, and jewelry of every sort. Though she couldn't see her face, she knew it was a sexual caricature, with huge, brainless blue eyes and full, sexy, lips that would look more at home wrapped around a massive, throbbing cock. Surrounded by her huge, thick mane of platinum-blond hair, her overly-made-up-face was a tribute to pure mindless sexuality, as was every inch of her bimbo-ish body, from her massive new breasts to her spectacular new ass, and every inch elsewhere as well. She was a walking monument to the American-Bred Bimbo of song and story.

In more than just body, too. Just as she would have had all the instincts and abilities of the wild feline she'd planned to become, so had her mind and emotions been altered by her inadvertent thoughts.

Now her body was literally trembling with desires. Her tight new cunt was hot and wet, and her wonderfully huge bimbo-boobies tingles with the desire to be appreciated, touched and fucked. Her skin-tight clothes clung tautly to her spectacular fuck-hungry new body, making her hyper-aware of her of every inch of her creamy, sexy, man-candy body.

Sexual day-dreams, desires and fantasies of every type and description thundered through her hormone-sodden new brain, making it even harder for her to concentrate - especially since she now had the IQ you'd expect of the average turnip. Not that it came as a surprise to the new woman - she'd always thought the 'party girls' were brain-dead cum crazed nymphs, and so she was now the ideal sex-crazed bimbo, huge-breasted and monumentally stupid.

'Well, it could be worse', the new woman thought with a giggle as she ran her long-nailed new fingers happily over her outrageously sexy new body. 'I could be butt-ugly and horny. Instead, I've got this wonderful body, with my magnificent new boobies and sweet, sexy ass. Guys'll want to fuck me all day and night, and let me suck their wonderfully huge, cum-filled cocks. Oh, I'm so happy I've got such a fuckable body - because I can only turn back into myself in a moment of clarity, and I'm too super-horny right now to think clearly. With this body, I'll have no problem fucking and sucking my way to sexual satisfaction, so I can be clear enough to use the smoke...'

"Fire!" A voice shouted, drawing some of her mind away from the orgy in her mind... to stare at Aaron and Brad as they rushed to the smoking pot...

...and, standing in the smoke, unknowingly became the idealized images of themselves that they held in their minds, becoming younger, more handsome, leaner...

...and almost ridiculously over-endowed. The new woman's eyes widened and her mouth began to water at the sight of the massive bulges at each man's crotch. She stared at their crotches, barely noticing as they put out the fire under the caldron, stopping the flow of magic smoke.

Then they caught sight of her - and those bulges got even better defined as they openly stared at the huge-breasted blonde outside the window.

"Well, what do we have here..." the asshole Brad said, almost drooling at the cleavage her top displayed. She shifted position and took a deep breath while pushing her shoulders back, better displaying her wonderfully massive tits for the two assholes to drool over while she desperately searched for a name to call herself.

"Like, hi!" She said, with a giggle, loathing and lusting after her wonderfully-endowed dip-shit roommates. "I'm Destiny, and, like, you're the two hottest guys I've ever seen. Your cocks are so thick and huge that I'm getting all hot and wet just thinking about them."

She paused, shivering in delight at the thought of her stupid roommates' wonderful cocks - then asked in her high-pitched soprano, "So - you hunks gonna invite me in to, like, fool around, or what?"

The two younger, more muscular men grinned at each other - without even noticing how they'd changed.

"You bet - we'll go open the front door..." Aaron said with a huge, shit-eating grin - while his huge, thick new member strained the crotch of his jeans.

With a giggle, 'Destiny' headed to the front door, swaying sexily atop her high, spiked heels - which required all of her vastly diminished concentration, as high-heels were hardly the ideal footwear for walking in sand. She did the best she could, though, partly out of the 'instinct' of her top-heavy, hormone-sodden body, but mostly out of eagerness to get inside with the two dip-shit studs, so she could fuck and suck herself back to clarity. After all - how could anyone be expected to think clearly with all these wonderful desires thundering through her wondrously over-sexual body?

Reaching the front door, she found her two incredibly studly roommates waiting eagerly for her - well, for her top-heavy, super-sexual new body, at least. That was the thing about situations like this - sometimes, it wasn't about the mind, but about the body. Aaron and Brad were dumb as dog-shit - but, God!, didn't they just have the hottest bodies under the sun, with wonderfully huge, thick cocks already nice and hard at just the thought of her wonderfully over-endowed new fuck-toy body, regardless of the fact that it was Chris' sharp, diabolical mind inside such a ditzzy-looking exterior. Oh, sure, she knew she wasn't as smart as she used to be, but that was okay - no matter how dumb she felt, she was absolutely sure she was still many, many times smarter than these two hunky morons.

With a happy giggle at the thought, Destiny smiled brightly at Brad and Aaron, revealing her perfect, white teeth - and she was glad to see that they didn't bother admiring her pearly whites, their eyes firmly locked on her well-displayed new boobies. It made her so hot to have these huge-penis'd hunks staring at her in open lust, and she shivered in pleasure, picking a pose to best display her new body before she walked past them into the house - doing so in such away that she turned sideways and slid between them, her body brushing close to the two men as she went by.

The sensations were incredible. Her huge, wonderfully firm boobies were pressing against Brad's body, while her firm, round ass brushed against Aaron in the most wonderful arousing way. In fact, she was getting even more horny by the second, sexual thoughts tumbling through her mind, images of naked flesh intertwining with her own, smooth, fuckable flesh, huge cocks and tits, wet cunts and eager mouths thundering through her mind, making it hard to think as her body became steadily more aroused by the second, more aroused than she'd thought it was possible to be - and yet it just kept going, more and more hormones thundering through her fantastic new body as she trembled with desire and lust and eagerness...

'Like, oh my God!' Destiny thought with a mental giggle as she finished brushing past her two incredibly sexy roommates. 'I, like, gotta satisfy all these cravings before I can... can, uh... you know

- do that thing I was going to do...'

She paused, a small, puzzled frown forming on her caricatured features as she tried to assemble a coherent 'thought' of what it was she was aiming for again. She knew it was something important, something she really had to do, and that it was something she couldn't do until she was all satisfied... but what, exactly, was it...?

"Damn, Destiny - you're hot..." Brad said, hungrily, eyeing her body - and she grinned and 'posed' again, her thoughts slipping away under another wave of hormones. Whatever it was that she'd been trying to think about, it was important - at least, not right now. Whatever it was she was trying to do, she knew she had to satisfy her cravings before she could do it, so she'd take care of that, and then worry about whatever the next part was.

"Gee, like, thanks..." Destiny giggled, bouncing lightly on her toes to make her huge, round boobies bounce fetchingly inside her skin-tight pink top. "You guys aren't too bad, either. So... You guys wanna fuck me, or what?"

Aaron answered for both of them. "You bet, baby!"

Destiny was so glad they weren't going to slow her down. She needed to fuck, and she needed to fuck right now - because there was that other thing she, like, had to do... or something...

Well, it didn't matter. Destiny knew exactly what she had to do right now - she had to fuck and suck men until she was satisfied. She knew that was all that was important now, and that was very important - because she was so damned horny, and all the really, really sexy thoughts she was having was making her mouth water with desire. She'd satisfy all her urges, then worry about what came next...

"Oh, goody...!" She squealed, clapping her hands together - which caused her arms to press against the side of her deliciously massive titties, pushing them inwards, and upwards. Pleasure and excitement thundered through her body anew, making it even more difficult to think straight - but who cared? She knew what she was doing, and it didn't take much intelligence to be a nympho, did it...?

Nope. Since all she was doing was satisfying the wonderfully horny urges, all she had to do was listen to what her body wanted...

"Okay, studs..." She said, with a giggle, peeling off her white leather jacket and letting it slip to the floor while she pushed her big, firm boobies further outward. "Who wants to get their hands on my huge, round hooters?"

Then, grinning mindlessly, she crossed her arms, hooking her long nails under the edge of the straining top. With one, smooth motion, she literally peeled the top off her enormous, artificially-round breasts, exposing every inch of the smooth, creamy globes.

"Come 'n get 'em, boys!" She giggled, tossing the top aside and wiggling her torso, causing her huge breasts to jiggle and bounce. "One per customer, no waiting!"

Brad and Aaron went after her massive melons as if they were starving men and each breast was a ten-course meal. Each one grabbed a breast in their broad, masculine hands, licking and kissing their way across broad expanses of silky-smooth flesh while squeezing and fondling the medicine-ball- sized breast they held.

"Oh, I love having such huge boobies..." Destiny squealed. "It feels so good to have them touched and sucked!"

It really, really did - so why did she feel so disgusted by it, despite the wonderful pleasures it was giving her. She knew she really, really needed it, and it felt really, really good, physically, but for some reason, she was really bothered by it all.

She tried to reach for a reason why that would be - but her physical emotions and rampant desires were much more powerful than her weakened intellect, and the thought just drifted away, replaced by another bimboish squeal of delight.

"Oh, yes, play with my big round boobies..." She told them in soprano sing-song. "I had 'em pump tons and tons of that silly-cone stuff into my titties so all the studs could drool over 'em. I wanted all the guys to, like, fuck me, so I paid lotsa money to get such big, sexy boobies..."

Wait a second - was that what happened? It didn't seem quite right, for some reason - yet, why else would she have said it?

Besides, she had the wonderfully huge, fake tits hanging off her chest right now, being used just like she wanted them to be - fondled and rubbed and sucked by two real studs. So, it must be true...

...not that it mattered. Not that anything mattered - besides the one, clear thing she knew: She had to satisfy all her urges.

All of them. Right now.

She practically shoved Brad aside, using all the strength her tiny, perfectly girlish arm had to offer - and then she practically threw herself on Aaron, thrusting her huge breasts hard against his chest as she kissed him hard, past and passionately...

...and then she dropped off of him, leaving him standing dazed and confused as she dropped to her knees, eyes wide and mouth watering...

...to tear open his jeans and set free his massive, hard, throbbing cock.

"Oh, Goody - a cock!" She giggled, licking her lips. "I just love sucking cocks. Cum tastes so wonderful..."

'It does...?' She wondered, bemused - then decided she'd find out soon enough as she opened her jaws as wide as they'd go and enveloped as much of the hard, throbbing shaft as she could, her hands wrapping around the base of the monster manhood.

She sucked eagerly and expertly on the massive, jaw-cracking cock whose wonderful presence graced her mouth. Hands, lips, and tongue worked together in perfect harmony, driving the hard, thick machine closer and closer to orgasm.

Behind her, she heard Brad making a phone call. Absorbed in the wonderful sensation of having her mouth crammed full of warm cock, she only caught bits and pieces of the conversation - words like 'nympho' and 'insatiable', 'dumb' and 'bimbo'...

...and 'huge tits', which made her shiver in pleasure - he was talking about her...

...and then she was busy trying to keep up with the massive flood of warm, wonderful cum that Aaron pumped down her throat in an incredibly long, thick stream of wonderfully delicious man-juice.

Aaron seemed to cum forever, a never-ending stream of deliciously warm, salty cum flooding her mouth and sliding down her eager, willing throat. She trembled with pleasure at the sensations, knowing she really loved sucking cock - so it couldn't possibly taste nasty, all salty and musty. No, if she loved sucking cock and gulping cum, it was because she liked the flavor she was tasting - so, she loved it, despite what her taste-buds might try and report. After all - she was an insatiable nympho, a dumb bimbo with huge tits...

...just like Brad had said.

When Aaron finally finished filling her with his wonderful gift, Destiny eagerly licked his cock clean before smiling up at him.

"Gee, like - thanks!" She said, with a giggle - even as her attention slipped away from him, despite the fact she was kneeling only inches from his crotch. After all, she was supposed to fulfill all her urges, and she'd already finished this one - which meant it was time to move onto the next one.

Still crouching, she turned and smiled at Brad, lightly fondling her wonderfully gigantic breasts.

"So - you gonna fuck me, big boy...?" She asked, with a vapid grin. She sank down onto her full, sexy ass - then lay back, lifting and spreading her legs in an invitation that Brad wasn't going to refuse.

"You bet, baby..." Brad said, with a huge, shit-eating grin. Quickly he shucked off his pants, looking rather ludicrous in just his sock and brightly-hued Aloha shirt, his massive cock jutting out from the hem of the flower-patterned garment.

"Oh - goody...!" Destiny giggled, still fondling her massive rack - and idly wondering why the thought of Brad fucking her was making her... upset...? ...as well as excited and eager. It seemed strange to her - especially since she no longer recalled her previous doubts, making the sensation knew and unnerving...

...but, unlike the unremembered last time, she didn't even try to track the source of the discomfort down. After all, she knew who she was, and why she was here. She was Destiny, a huge-breasted bimbo, and she was here to satisfy every urge her wonderfully cartoonish body might have. That was all there was to it.

"Fuck me, Brad - fuck me long and hard..." Destiny begged, blankly, her high-pitched voice sounding almost unreal. "I wanna, like, make you cum long and hard."

"Let me think about it..." Brad told her, giving Aaron a wink as he slipped down to his knees, lightly sliding his hands along the smooth, silky flesh of her lifted legs as he settled the curve behind each ankle on his shoulders, positioning himself with slow deliberation as he watched the massive breasted bimbo beneath him actually wiggle and writhe in eager desire to be fucked.

"C'mon, Brad - fuck me...!" She said - begged - as Brad continued to tease her, stroking the smooth flesh of her legs as he lightly shifted his hips, causing his huge cock to sway back and forth less than an inch from her hot, wet cunt. "Fuck me now, Brad - fuck me long and hard!"

"You want to be fucked?" Brad asked, feigning surprise. "Are you sure?"

Destiny gaped at Brad, stunned. She was a cum-slut nympho. Anybody could see that just from looking at her. She was a huge-breasted bimbo who had to fulfill every desire she had. She was a sex-starved cum-hungry slut - why couldn't Brad see that/ Why was he not fucking her long and hard like she so desperately needed? She had to fulfill all her urges because..

...because...

...because...?

For an eternal instant, something trembled on the very edge of Destiny's consciousness, a small voice that seemed to be screaming at her from a very, very distant place. Not a distance of space or time, though, but - somehow, in a way Destiny was simply no longer able to understand - from a distance in a completely different direction, as if it were almost lost in the cacophony in her head, a small, masculine voice screaming in one last, very desperate attempt to make itself heard over the screams and moans that were the soundtrack to her endlessly sexual thoughts and fantasies...

...and then it slipped away, stealing with it the 'reason' - but not the 'need'. Everything else just sort of slid downwards with it, the clamor in her brain softening and easing as she understood with perfect clarity who she was, and what her very reason for existing was.

"You gotta fuck me..." She explained to Brad, happily. "That's what I'm here for - to fuck an' suck an' please men an' women all I can for the rest of my life..."

Brad blinked in surprise - then grinned. "Well, then in that case..."

He thrust forward, his huge, throbbing monster sliding deep into her tight, wet cunt, filling it to capacity.

Her screams of pure emotional and physical pleasure at being penetrated completely overrode the slowly rising rumble of engines from outside, the basso rumbles drowned as she screamed at Brad to...

* * * * *

'Fuck me harder, stud!'

Sergeant William R. Liftfinger glanced around to make sure he was unobserved - and then, lightly, began to stroke his cock through the dark-blue fabric of his Police-issue trousers, his eyes drawn back to the screen, where the impossibly blonde writhed and wiggled, her massive breasts bouncing and jiggling wildly as the somehow-much-better-endowed Brad fucked her hard and fast.

This was the strangest Missing Person case Liftfinger had ever worked on - but the running record from an array of cameras was pretty good 'evidence'. At least, that was the official reason why the tapes were being distributed to officers assigned to the case - and bootleg copies were being distributed to just about everybody else. There was still no leads or explanations as to the whereabouts of Christopher Carter, nor was there any way to explain how the missing man's roommates had suddenly become much more handsome and well-endowed - they two men had simply walked run into Carter's room, shouting about smoke and fire - then emerged as they impossibly-well-endowed versions of themselves that they now remained.

As for this 'Destiny; person, the huge-breasted platinum blonde - there was no record of her anywhere. Nobody knew who she was or where she'd come from - not even her. In fact, the only thing she'd been able to tell them was her first name, and the fact that she existed solely for sexual uses...

...which, considering her 'performance' on the missing man's tapes, meant that she was going to make a fortune in her new career as a porno actress.

With another glance around, Liftfinger leaned back in the chair and began to masturbate in earnest as, on screen, the couple of dozen friends Brad had invited over came in...

Too bad the missing boy had only used eight-hour tapes. Liftfinger would have liked to see all of the seventy-two-hour sexual marathon that ensued...

THE END

SUMMARY: Goddess Athena helps one man re-open his defunct club under her guidance but Goddess Athena only helps women. Will this man pay this hefty price for success?

Closing Time

By Gunslinger

The sound system gave off a slight, barely audible hiss as the amp pushed 'base distortion' through the high-end speakers. Inaudible in normal circumstances, the faint white noise was clearly audible as it floated through the dimly-lit interior of the large, nearly acoustically perfect room.

A second later, there was the slightest of changes as dead air became the ambient background noise of the recording's studio - and then a simple, rhythmic electric guitar beat floated through the room, joined shortly by a simply piano refrain in such perfect surround- sound high fidelity as to seem to come from the empty, unlit stage at the front of the nightclub, a phantom band performing to the spacious room's sole occupant.

A second later, the phantom lead singer joined in, the smooth and slightly syncopated voice blending in easily with the rising music... 'Closing time, open all the doors and let you out into the world. Closing time, turn all of the lights on over every boy and ev-ery girl...'

For two more lines, the voice was relatively smooth against the rhythmic background music - and then it swelled into a richer beat that soared and echoed through the elegantly decorated room, seeming almost pathetic in the otherwise silent gloom.

Seated in the center of the magnificent room, Steve Lybrenner listened to Semisonic's 'Closing Time' - and tried not to cry.

The chair which held the tall, slender blond man was made of oak and fine red leather, trimmed with 'old brass' tacks, a classy furnishing in perfect harmony with the elegance and decor of the rest of the club. Even in the dim lighting managed to pick gleaming highlights from the oak and brass that filled the room, all tinted by the rich red of the carpet and drapes. The club, designed in the fashion of the night clubs of the forties and fifties, was a testament to elegant good taste and class...

...and it had not, and would not, ever be visited by patrons.

The Corsican Club was closing the very day it had opened. The worst part of it was, Steve had come so... damned... close.

With a long, heavy sigh of regret, Steve finished off the last of the vodka in the shot glass he was holding, setting the empty vessel down on the table next to the chair as he let the song roll around him, a melancholy anthem for this, the saddest night of his life.

He'd bought the building and the property for the club more than five years ago, sinking almost every dime of the money he'd inherited from his adoptive parents estate. Roberto and Thomasina Delfuego had been as good parents as any boy could hope for, even if they'd been older than the adoption agency would have liked. Their age hadn't kept them from being a wonderful influence on their adopted son, and the golden-blond orphan had grown up in a home full of laughter and love. When his parents had passed on, within a week of each other, he'd inherited what little there was - and had decided to fulfill a life-long dream of opening his own club, now also meant as a tribute to his adoptive parents.

To save money, Steve had moved into the building he was renovating, doing almost all the work himself to save money. Never to cut corners - no, he was determined that the Corsican Club was going to be perfect in every respect. He'd even gone so far as to make much of the furnishings himself, using skills his general-handyman father had taught him to renovate and rebuild the old brownstone factory into the perfect nightclub, the sort of elegant place where people could come for a good dinner and some light entertainment, then stay for that night's headliners.

It had been a wonderful dream, one that he'd worked so long and hard to fulfill - and yet, this close to making it, he'd been stymied. Stopped dead in his tracks, his hopes and dreams shattered by the least expected interference:

Tonya Greenspan.

Miz Greenspan, fuck you very much. Ms. Greenspan was the county by-law enforcement officer and head of the by-law committee - or, at least, a very small-but-powerful section of it. An almost painfully thin woman with hard, angular features and an ever less appealing personality, Ms. Greenspan was one of those real crusader types, a woman with her own agenda and the uncaring determination to push it through. Specifically, she had a very long list of things she thought should be 'rectified', to use what seemed to be her favorite word. One of her largest pet peeves was alcohol. She'd lobbied long and hard to have the county declared 'dry'...

...and she'd partially succeeded. As of midnight, Huntington County had become what was colloquially known as a 'moist' county: Alcoholic beverages could be sold by licensed liquor distributors, and consumed in the privacy of one's own home, but no clubs, restaurants or other public venues were allowed to serve alcohol.

Of course, since this was America, Home of Depraved and Land of the Fee, there were about a hundred-and-one loopholes to the half-measured law Greenspan had finally managed to push through. Steve, hoping against hope that he might qualify for one of the loopholes, had spent weeks pouring over the law itself, searching for a loophole through which he could squeeze.

He couldn't claim the 'grandfather' clause, because he hadn't bothered licensing his club until it was almost ready to open, and the clause only applied to those establishments that had built up a clientele over at least ten years of continuous licensed operation.

Likewise, he wasn't a micro-brew distillery, and he didn't have the money - or space - with which to become one. Nor was he.. well, suffice it to say that he'd stricken one possible loophole after another on the list, some of them just a little outside his reach, others so far away as to be ridiculous.

There's been one, single loophole that Steve had pinned all his hopes on. A loophole so small that he'd actually missed it the first time he'd gone through the books, catching it only when he got desperate enough to actually look up the legal definition for his establishment under the county's zoning laws...

...and had discovered that, since he'd lived in the building while renovating it, he could legally claim that it was a 'private club' under the law. Since a private club had members, rather than patrons, and was technically a private lodge rather than an actual public venue, Steve would have been legally allowed to serve alcohol to any member. On one of the many fine lines that the law was full of, he couldn't actually sell alcohol to anyone - but he could serve it, free of charge, to any 'Member in Good Standing' - that is, according to the law, any member who's dues were current and paid in full.

Which would have been great - except that Steve had worked out the math very carefully, and realized that - given the average number of drinks sold in an establishment per person - he would have had to charge a two-hundred-and-fifty dollar annual membership fee to just break even on the cost of booze.

Given the fact that there were restaurants and other public venues out there who already fit under the loopholes, and could continue business as they always had, Steve had almost no chance of making a go of it. Nobody wanted to come to a new, unknown club where they couldn't drink when they could go to the old, familiar places and down a few - and certainly nobody wanted to pay over two hundred dollars on such an unproved club. After all - what if they didn't like it...? Membership dues were non-refundable by law.

Steve sighed and shook his head, his long, slightly 'horsy' face made longer by his woes as he looked around what could have been a truly great club. To have come so close... and then fallen short in the last mile of the race...

So lost in his own funk was Steve that it took several seconds for him to register the fact that there'd been a knock on the club's elegant oak-and-wrought-iron door. Frowning slightly, Steve shot a look at the clock, noting that it was a little after ten.

Since the club's big sign was turned off, and the dim lights couldn't be seen through the heavy drapes covering the windows, Steve wondered who the hell would be driving up to an apparently deserted club. Technically, he wasn't really 'closed', since he himself qualified as the one and only member of the 'private club', and the new law didn't go into effect until midnight - but since he would have had to have at least four more members before the midnight deadline, Steve hadn't bothered with the six o'clock 'Grand Opening' of the Corsican Club earlier that evening - why bother opening a club and paying employees when it would have to shut down six hours later...?

At first, Steve was tempted to just ignore the quick knock - and then it occurred to him that it might be Sheriff Bunnell, and he rose and hurried towards the door.

Sheriff Jack Bunnell was one of the few friends Steve had made in his cloistered time in Huntington County. He'd chosen to start his club there mainly because of the fact that the land and building were within his price range, and because of its proximity to a couple of campuses both in and out of the county. Given his rather monkish lifestyle, he hadn't really had any social life, but one of the few acquaintances he would have liked to call a friend was the older sheriff, an open-faced man with an easy smile and silver-gray hair.

Since the law was going into effect at midnight, the sheriff's department was tasked with having at least one officer present at each of the non-loop-hole-qualifying business at midnight, to make sure they complied with the new law. Bunnell had promised Steve that he, himself, would do the painful duty of legally declaring The Corsican Club closed as of midnight - but he was probably swinging by early, to express his regrets and maybe even keep Steve company for the last two hours.

Since that sounded a hell of a lot better than sitting around by himself, Steve pushed his long legs to move faster as he called out: "Okay, hold on, I'm coming !"

Reaching the front door to the club, he yanked the door open...

...to stare out at the darkened, empty parking lot. Whoever had knocked on the door had already left.

His narrow shoulders slumping, Steve started to turn away - and then he paused as he noticed something sitting on his doorstep. It was one of those disposable zip-loc containers, with a crisp manila envelope resting atop the translucent blue plastic lid.

Face forming into a puzzled frown, Steve bent over and picked up the letter-sized envelop, turning it over twice in the vain search for some clue who had left it.

Still holding the envelope in one hand, Steve picked up the small container with the other, his confused frown deepening as he held the container up and peered doubtfully at the thick, black liquid filling the container to the top.

Letting the door swing shut behind him, Steve carried both items back to the chair. Placing the container on the table for the moment, he undid the little string that held the top of the envelop closed, and slid a creamy sheet of paper out and unfolded it, eyes squinting slightly in the dim lighting as he focused on the elegant black script covering the paper.

My Dearest Mister Lybrenner, it read;

Please accept my deepest condolences for your situation. I was unaware of how much effort - and emotion - you put in the founding of your club. Though I am, of course, both unwilling and unable to repeal the law to rectify your situation, I sincerely wish to provide assistance in allowing you to fall under the 'Private Club' designation. To that end, I have taken the liberty of providing you with the necessary amount of Athena's Blood. If you truly have the will, conviction and desire to open your club as a private club, this will allow you to do so. If, however, you have the slightest lack of dedication or selflessness, it will sense this and do absolutely nothing, as consent - however uninformed it may be - must be given before it can act. Likewise, at anytime after it's initial application, it may also be revoked, returning everything to the original state. In either case, should you no longer have any need for the Athena's Blood, please return it to me forthwith.

It was signed: Yours Sincerely,

Lady Tonya Greenspan,

Apprentice Sorceress.

For several seconds after reading it, Steve simply stared at the letter, trying to figure out if it was some sort of joke, or what. Steve, by his very nature, was a peaceable and friendly man, and he'd tried his hardest not to dislike Ms. Greenspan, but it hadn't been easy - aside from the fact she'd effectively crushed his dreams, she was also a cold, apparently uncaring woman. A letter expressing any sort of regret or desire to help, even one as odd as this one, was hard to believe...

...yet it was most definitely her handwriting. With all the correspondence he'd had with her, trying to make his dream stay alive, he'd had plenty of opportunity to see her surprisingly elegant handwriting, and this was in the same script.

But... Athena's Blood? Lady Greenspan? Sorceress...?!

If it weren't for the fact that she was so passionate about her hatred for any intoxicating beverage or other consumable, Steve might have thought she had been either dead drunk or completely stoned when she wrote this.

Putting the perplexing letter aside, Steve picked up the plastic container and - very gingerly - popped the lid off, staring down at the thick, glossy-black liquid inside.

It looked like a very thick, industrial grade lubricating oil - at least, that was the closest analogy Steve could come up with. Unlike the faintly metallic odor of a petroleum product, however, this dark, viscous liquid gave off an oddly earthy odor.

Well, at least it wasn't nearly as... as bloody as it's name would have indicated - but Steve still had no idea what it was, much less how it was supposed to be any help to him - assuming, of course, that this wasn't all some sick, twisted prank born from the dark depths of an otherwise apparently humorless woman.

His narrow face set in a deep frown of puzzled concentration, Steve rolled the container in a tilted swivel, watching the syrupy liquid as it sluggishly drifted from side to side, thick and stiff. Oddly, it left no residue on the side of the container as it ebbed and flowed slowly, but that could have been from the slick properties of both the fluid and the nonporous plastic that contained it.

Shaking his head slightly, Steve put down the lid he was still holding, and poked at the thick liquid with the pointer of finger of his right hand...

What happened next happened so fast that he barely had time to register it as it happened. The instant his finger made contact with the surface of the thick liquid, the gooey black substance crawled - no, sot - onto his hand, impossibly flowing upwards over his hand and up under the cuff of his dark red shirt, spreading rapidly as it slid up his arm.

This happened so fast that it was nearly instantaneous. He'd barely begun to jerk his finger away when the liquid finished emptying itself from the container, forming a thick blob on his hand like some sort of glossy black boxing glove.

Before the container, dropped in his startled jerk, managed to hit the floor, the liquid had spread under shirt, covering his chest and back as it wrapped around, spreading quickly and leaving a thin, opaque film between his skin and his shirt, flowing with incredible speed over his body from the point of contact.

By the time he'd finished his involuntary spasm and slammed his head back into the chair, the liquid had covered his entire torso and both arm, including his hands, and was rapidly shooting downwards under his black jeans.

"What the blue blazes...?" Steve gasped, stunned, staring at a hand that now seemed to be covered in a perfectly formed black latex glove, gleaming with faint highlights under the mellow lighting. Still stunned, it took a second to realize that this thin, glossy coating had expanded to cover much more than his hand...

He was startled and more than a little afraid - but panic never had a chance to set in. In almost the same instant as he realized the 'Blood' had encased him from the neck down in a thin, flexible layer of glossy black material, he also realized he was in no pain or discomfort, nor were there any other negative effects immediately noticeable. Whatever the strange substance was, it didn't seem immediately dangerous, just enormously puzzling.

With more confusion than fear, Steve stood up and stared for a second at the now empty container - and then he began to strip.

Despite the thin, glossy layer covering every inch of his body from the neck down, there was no diminution of sensation - it was as if it were 'transparent' to the sense of touch, even allowing the same amount of grip on the small plastic buttons of his shirt. It didn't take long for Steve to strip off all his clothes, revealing that he now appeared to be wearing a skin-tight latex bodysuit that conformed to every dip and curve of his lean, somewhat raw-boned body.

Brows still knitted in bemused puzzlement, Steve turned to a nearby brass-edge mirror mounted on the club's wall, looking at the reflection it gave back.

The 'latex' covering started just at his jaw-line, covering his neck and stretching downward in a unbroken sheen that covered every inch of his body, conforming to every curve and line. He could even see the flex and pull of his muscles as he moved, and there was no pain or discomfort, nor any reduction in his senses - he could even feel the air moving across his 'skin', as if it were passing right through the strange new 'suit' he wore. Slowly, he slid a hand over the covering - and was further bemused by the odd effect, which felt as if his bare hand were sliding over his latex-clad stomach - and yet, the sensations from his belly was that of a latex-glad hand sliding over a bare abdomen....

As weird as that was, it wasn't nearly as strange as what happened next:

<You're a man !>

It wasn't a 'voice'. Not under the definition of the word, since there was no actual sound at all - rather, it was almost as if somebody had directly accessed the part of the brain responsible for hearing, and sent it the exact same neural impulses that would have been received from the air if somebody had spoken aloud, only without any of the 'background' noise that went with a human voice. The mental voice was crisp, clear and strong - and of a feminine nature, a powerful, slightly accented female voice in the lower soprano register.

Even had he not been stunned by 'hearing' the inexplicable 'voice', Steve wouldn't have known how to answer that particular startled accusation.

<In three thousand years, my Gift has never before been bestowed upon a man.> The 'Voice' said, musingly - and a touch angrily.

Startled, confused and a little afraid, Steve instinctively fell back on his own natural inclinations, reinforced by the manners lovingly taught by his adoptive parents, all without conscious forethought....

"I'm sorry, Miss." Steve said, aloud, feeling both puzzled and more than a little silly, "If I have done, or am doing, anything to make you uncomfortable, please let me know how I can correct the situation "

The Voice was silent for a good second - and when it did reply, it sounded both vaguely amused and grudgingly impressed.

<You need not speak aloud. I am conscious of most of your 'surface' thoughts.> The Voice said - then, with a slightly interested tone. <I can clearly see that you do not understand what has happened, nor who I am - yet you did not ask my identity, nor try to 'evict' me.>

"You're more than welcome to stay as long as you like." Steve said - and this was a conscious offer, made in good faith, despite the strange nature of the situation. Regardless of how 'she' had gotten where she was, she wasn't doing anything to harm him, and so she was as welcome as any other guest would be in his home. "Having something by which to address you would be helpful, but you don't have to give me your real name, if you don't want to. As for speaking aloud well, I just find it easier to order my thoughts that way."

<Actually, your thoughts are admirably ordered already - moreso than I would have expected from a male.> The voice admitted, candidly. <Though that may be due to the fact that your first and foremost thought at all time is this 'club' of yours. As for my name - I am Athena, Goddess of Wisdom.>

At the rather proud announcement, Steve's brain came to a skittering halt...

...and then spun back into life, accepting this as gospel truth, re-ordering his world-view to accept it, and then dealing with it. "Oh. I guess I should have figured that out for myself " Steve said, sounding embarrassed. "Sorry, your Divinity."

This time, the Voice - Athena - was dead silent for a good ten seconds.

<Allow me to admit - I am impressed.> Athena finally responded - and there was nothing grudging in her mental tones. <I can 'see' your confusion and amazement - yet you do not fear or doubt me. Indeed - you are sincere in your effort to welcome me as best you know, despite this being a strange and confusing new situation for you. Though I doubted, at first, the wisdom of the Priestess who provided you with my lifeblood, I can see you are worthy, even if you are male. However, I will not submit myself to assisting a male, no matter how worthy the spirit housed within that least attractive of all forms. If you wish my boons, you must accept the price - that of becoming female.>

Even shocked and stunned, Steve was the very essence of a gentleman - yet now he found his manners, natural inclinations and his other overriding desire, that of opening the club, warring with something much deeper and stronger...

"I'm sorry..." He said in a voice of deepest regret, his shoulders slumping. "I.. I can't accept your boon. I.. I'm a Catholic."

This time, Athena was both openly amused and yet deeply respectful. <I know. Had your God had any objections, I would not even be able to offer, for he holds sway - but your God is a tolerant God, if aloof, and He commands only that you have no God before him. If you wish to accept the price, I may offer the boon under his auspices. Under the Covenant of Free Will, he has given leave for you to be exempt from his strictures and be placed under my rule.>

"Oh..." Steve said, now giving the offer new consideration. "So... Everything's square with Him? I'm free to accept your help in opening and running my club, as long as I accept your price?"

<Indeed. You will not only be able to open the club under my guidance, but be assured that it will be a success for as long as you accept my assistance. As long as you release yourself from my sphere of influence before your death, your soul shall be welcomed into what you call Heaven - and I assure you that you will not die without being given a chance to 'renounce' me.>

Steve licked his lips, which suddenly seemed very dry. He opened those lips to ask a question...

<Take as long as you wish to decide.> Athena replied, 'reading' the questions from the convolutions of his mind before it made it to his lips. <Just remember - you are free to renounce me at any time, and you will simply regain yourself at that point in time - but once renounced, I cannot be recalled. I am a prideful Goddess, and will not return once cast away.>

"I understand." Steve said, slowly sinking back onto the chair as he thought, long and hard.

He remained nearly motionless for a good fifteen minutes - and when he finally did make his decision, it wasn't even necessary to speak it, for Athena already knew.

<Very well.> She said - and then, in a strange 'tone', admitted, <I find that I am strangely gladdened that you have accepted, for you are an exceptional example of your species. It will be a measure of pride to have you as a fellow woman...>

With the decision made, the change came quickly and painlessly. One moment, Steve was his normal, male self, simply enclosed in what appeared to be a form-fitting black latex bodysuit - and then his body seemed to tremble, and quickly reshaped itself, almost too fast for his sense to follow. He had brief, passing impression of the changes, mostly dealing with the altering sensations as his body moved across the gender line and into the female arena, with the sensation inimical to that new gender.

The effects of the change could be seen, however, and the new woman did just that, feeling stunned and slightly unsure as he <she> she stood and once again surveyed herself in the mirror.

She was still tall and slender - but 'tall and slender' looked a hell of a lot better on her than it had on her old body.

Her face was still narrow - but now it was the gracefully tapered shape of a coolly beautiful woman, now almost eerily lovely, with flawlessly smooth skin and finely defined features, including a sharp-bridged nose with a slightly upturned end, flanked on either side by cool blue eyes under finely arched eyebrows. The smooth skin of her cheeks were pulled higher over better-defined cheekbones in the almost classically Grecian style, yet with the coloration of a Nordic ice-maiden in her fair skin, blue eyes and close-cropped golden hair. Her lips, while feminine and perfectly formed, were less the seductive, though attractive enough, especially since anything fuller would have looked on a narrow face tapering to a smoothly pointed chin.

Her now smooth, alabaster skin probably - almost certainly - covered her reshaped form, but it was impossible to tell, given that the 'latex bodysuit' she was wearing started right below that well-defined chin, enclosing the now longer, more delicate curve of her neck down to the narrow, gently sloped curves of her shoulders. Her new ribcage was barely smaller than her old, male one had been - yet was undoubtedly feminine, especially considering the firm, taut mounds it boasted, covered by the gleaming latex that clearly defined the firm dome-shape of her new - and quite sensitive - breasts, each one roughly the size and shape of a halved orange, tipped with a somewhat enlarged nipple.

Her slightly altered ribcage tapered gracefully into a slender, taut waist before swelling outwards into boyishly slender hips that were nevertheless agreeably feminine compared to her seventeen-inch waist. Less 'boyish' were the athletically firm buttocks her slightly widened hips boasted, now firmer and fuller than ever before.

The suit, once meticulously molded to her then-male genitalia, now ran smooth and unbroken across a crotch that she had no doubt contained a perfectly-formed womanhood - especially since she could 'feel' it, though the sensations were not defined enough to describe - rather, they were the sensations of 'just being', hard to define, but undeniably different than those that came from 'just having' a cock and balls between her legs...

...and speaker of 'legs', her new ones were lovely. Since she'd been fairly tall for a man, she was even taller for a woman - and the extra height looked especially good on her legs, which were not only toned and fit, but by virtue of that height, undeniably long. Mounted on smaller, feminine feet and well-shaped ankles, her shapely new legs were, of course, encased in the 'latex', which enhanced her new legs almost as much as a good pair of really...

<...high heels?> Athena mused, reading the thought - and the 'image' - directly from the ex-male's mind. <I find this concept interesting. They appear so very... graceful. Almost definably female in concept and design. If I may...?>

Steve hesitated. She was still trying to get used to the fact that she was now female, even a 'tall cool one', and jumping right into something like heels seemed.. well, she couldn't define it.

It was an odd situation. There was no doubt about that. Being female was one thing. Steve, though never having particularly desired to become female, was able to consider it - and even deal with it as a reality - with a sort of bemused, mildly intrigued equanimity, since he wasn't particularly prejudiced against the idea like so many others in what was laughingly known as Western 'Civilization'. After all, being male or female was more or less an accident of birth, something which Steve was able to accept intellectually - and, on an emotional level, he'd been raised to believe that what mattered most was the 'soul', not the body, so even though it was strange, new and decidedly different, it was only mildly discomfiting to be female. 'Being' female was one thing, though - 'acting' like a female was another...

<You would wish to be female in appearance, yet male in mannerism?> Athena pointed out, reasonably. <If you do not wish these 'high heels', you need not accept them, now or later - but do you really wish to live in one gender, while 'playacting' the part of another...?>

Still, Steve hesitated...

...until her 'good manners' pushed her to ignore what was, really, a completely illogical disquiet.

With Athena sharing her mind, the new woman didn't even have to verbally give consent - the instant she capitulated, Athena knew...

...and the new woman found herself slowly being pushed upwards as high heeled shoes formed on her feet, made out of the very substance of her outfit.

When Athena did something, she didn't do it by half measures. The shoes now grafted directly into the suit she wore boasted a three- inch high platform that sloped inward from the sole to the floor, and an even more tapered heel that was nine inches high.

Thanks to Athena's own presence within and without the new woman's body, there wasn't any sense of instability or unfamiliarity with the new footwear - she balanced atop them easily, if not especially gracefully. Indeed, her stance, though feminine enough, was proud and 'unexciting', despite the almost fetishist nature of her new 'shoes'.

Steve had to admit - they really did enhance her new legs - and since they were as comfortable as if she were standing barefoot, she had no reason to complain, other than some longer misgivings from a subconsciously-indoctrinated mind, which she was intelligent enough to see for what they were, and mostly discount.

<Interesting...> Was Athena's sole comment on the new heels - but they didn't get any shorter or disappear. <Well, now that you are fit to receive my boons, shall we not 'open this joint', as I believe you'd say?>

No matter what misgiving she might have had, that would have driven them from the new woman's mind, just as the concept had made it possible for her to except this strange and awkward situation - she might be a woman, but she was the woman who was going to open.. her.. club!

"You bet!" Steve agreed, her undeniably feminine new voice barely registering in her own ears as her heart raced in excitement. She turned and walked with a strong-yet-feminine stride towards the front door, so comfortable and natural-feeling atop the heels that she barely noticed she was wearing them.

Reaching the panel near the front door, the new woman reached out and open the Plexiglas cover - then, with all the slender, feminine new fingers on her slimmer, more gracefully formed hand, flipped up the switches that turned on all the interior and exterior lights, including the neon tubes in the road-side sign.

The Corsican Club was officially open for business...

...at least for the next hour and a half. If she couldn't find at least four people to pay the hefty membership dues required, her club would have to shut down at midnight anyway...

It was right about then that Steve also realized she had no staff of any sort, either - which, given that she didn't have any customers- slash-members, either, seemed almost secondary...

<I will handle the duties of your non-existent staff, at least for the first few weeks.> Athena replied. <As for finding - or luring - these members for your club, I will leave that to you. I will assist you, of course, but though I can influence Mortal minds, I will not. You must find a way to convince any potential members that this club would be well worth the cost. Be assured, though - if they decline, it will not be because of 'lousy service'...>

Though Athena didn't elaborate, the new woman felt sure that the service end of it all would be taken care of. All she had to do was convince at least four people to hand over a check or cash and claim membership before midnight.

Having stood stock-still in momentary worry of the fate of the club, divinely assisted or not, the new woman was just starting to turn away from the panel when she heard the sound of an engine growl to a stop, slightly muffled by the thickness of the door.

The new woman turned to face the door - and suddenly realized she was a slender, shapely woman with coolly beautiful features, dressed in skin-tight clothing and wearing extremely high heels.

She had just enough time to feel the full weight of delayed embarrassment and dismay before the door swung open to reveal Sheriff Jack Bunnell.

Athena, thankfully, immediately forced the new woman's body to hide the emotion, leaving her looking almost utterly professional despite her coolly sexy appearance as the tan-clad officer looked at her, silver eyebrows rising expressively.

"Evenin'..." Jack said, in a neutral tone. "I just noticed everything lit up like the Fourth of July, and figured I'd stop in. Is Steve around...?" If nothing else, Steve had to admire Jack's nonchalance - if not his timing.

Her voice admirably controlled given her shock, dismay and sudden 'shyness', she started to speak - without having any idea what to say.

"He's... <up in his office doing...> Up in his office doing some last-minute paperwork. I'm his new Maitre D' - or Matron D', if you prefer.

<He hired you...> He hired me to help him meet the membership requirements for a private club... and, given the description, you must be the Sheriff Bunnell he's spoken so very highly of."

(Thanks)

<No Problem>

"That's right, ma'am." John said, grinning. "Sheriff Jonathan Bunnell, at your service... but, please, call me Jack."

"I'd be honored, Jack." Steve said, recovering her emotional equilibrium a bit - though it wasn't easy, considering that, polite or not, Jack couldn't help but notice her new body in the skin-tight outfit. "I'm... Amanda."

<Cute.>

(Give me a break - I'm under a bit of pressure...)

"Would you care to come in, Jack?" Amanda said, stretching one hand out to gesture at the tables in the club - before realizing what the action would do to her torso, making her half-turn and press her perky new bust upwards and out.

"I'd like that. If Steve's club is officially open for business, the least I can do is be his first paying customer. Any chance of getting some of that Chicken Parmesan he's always bragging about?"

"Of course..." 'Amanda' agreed, cued by the quiet sounds of apparent preparation now coming from the direction of the kitchen. "The fact that I can't offer you a glass of wine or beer to wash it down isn't even a consideration, given that your an officer of the law and on duty. How about a nice cup of coffee, instead?"

"Sounds perfect." Jack agreed, settling into a chair and looking around at the club with an appreciative eye.

Turning, Amanda now found she was highly aware of her firm-yet-feminine stride atop the high heels, easy and competent as she might look. She was also overly aware of how firm and tautly packed her new derrière was as she walked away, the gleaming latex only serving to highlight the coolly graceful movements of the gluteus maximus.

Pushing open the brass-covered door to the kitchen, Amanda was immediately struck by the increase of noise and the sudden rich scent of a dozen mingled foods cooking...

...which was quite amazing, considering the gleaming room was completely empty.

Unless, of course, you counted the steaming plate of Chicken Parmesan sitting on the counter, complete with garlic bread, a helping of Scalloped Potatoes, and a side salad, plus the cup of coffee, all on a tray and ready to be served.

Picking up the tray, Amanda carried it back out to the sheriff, her mind moistly fixed on ignoring her sudden awareness of her new femininity.

"That was fast..." Jack said in a mixture of admiration and confusion.

"Well, we aim to please." Amanda said, Athena helping her manufacture an authentic-looking smile to hide her nervousness. "Since we're new, we're going the extra mile to get and keep business - and if that means we sometimes have to throw food out in order to have meals ready fast, it's a price we're willing to pay..."

Amanda felt bad about lying to Jack - but this was once circumstance where the unvarnished truth would buy her a nice white coat that tied in the back and a room without a view.

The sound of the front door swinging open allowed her to avoid anymore unnoticeably awkward conversation with her unsuspecting friend, letting her escape with only a murmured "Excuse me - duty calls..."

She actually felt relieved as she walked to the front door - until she caught sight of the look on the face of the heavy-set man standing in the door.

The look turned into a shit-eating grin, the eyes dancing merrily.

"I think I'm gonna like this place..." the man said, not trying to hide his obvious delight as he gave her a good, long look.

"Well, I certainly hope so..." Amanda said, politeness keeping her from voicing it in a doubtful tone as she wished he would stop staring at her like she was an especially tasty steak. Inspiration hit, suddenly. "Unfortunately, I'm afraid this is a private club. Members and guests only, so I'm afraid..."

"What's it take to become a member?" The man interrupted, his eyes still roaming her body.

"The yearly dues are..." She started, politely, and without noticeable hesitation in her tone suddenly decided to 'up the ante', "...three hundred and twenty-five dollars annually, which gives entrance and bar privileges only. Dinners and temporary over-night accommodations are extra, of course."

"Oh..." The man said, nonplused.

Just then, the door swung open to reveal a skinny, dark-haired guy with teeth so white and perfect that they had to be dentures. He was already talking when the door was swinging open, his voice a good-natured high-pitched whine.

"So, Zeke, this place look any "

The skinny man with the pockmarked face caught sight of who the stockier, sandy-haired man he was addressing was speaking to, and his mouth and tongue seemed to have suddenly gone numb.

"good?" He finished, breathlessly. He smiled, revealing those too-perfect teeth in all their artificial glory. "Well, hot damn - we finally got ourselves a real Gentleman's club in Hun'inton County."

"Stop starin' Tom." The burly fellow said, in a weary voice that said he'd said it many a time. "Besides, it costs three hunnert'n twenty- five bucks a year to come here."

"Sounds fair to me - that's less 'n a buck a day, dumbass, and well worth it." Tom said, still smiling and staring. "As for the starin' bit - well, this here's the place where it's not only allowed, but encouraged - for the payin' customer, leastwise. Ain't that right, honey-buns?" rather than actually answer the demeaning question, she politely pointed out the obvious: "Which you aren't, I'm afraid - and this is a private club."

"Well, now, why do you say that...?" Tom said...

...and out of his pocket he hauled a thick wad of cash. Most of the wad of sweaty bills were ones and twos - but not all of it. With a flourish, the acne-scarred man pulled five one-hundred dollar bills from the pile and held them out to her.

"This is too much " Amanda said, trying hard not to say it in the tone of numb surprise that would have revealed her true emotions.

"Nope - I figure tha's just enough to get me a little special service 'round here..." Tom said, grinning. Turning slightly to his friend - without taking his eyes off of Amanda - he elbowed him in the side. "Pay the lady, lard-ass."

A thoughtful look pasted itself onto the sandy-blond's face, looking out of place on his heavy-seat features. "Well, now... If Tom here's a member, then I guess I can be his guest for the evenin', till I see whether there's any girls on staff who meet my more, uh... " He paused, then grinned. "...stringent criteria"

His words might have sounded half-intelligent - but the way he held his cupped hands out from his chest with an oily grin spoiled the effect.

Amanda's mind was slowly building back up to speed. These guys were lechers, hard-drinking, hard-playing men who obviously thought this place was a 'real' Gentleman's club, staffed by gorgeous women...

...and she already had one paid member, and just about an hour to come up with three more, which made the answer simple and obvious.

"Of course." She said. "Can I get you gentleman anything from the bar...?"

"Beer..." the two men chorused in unison, heading toward the main part of the club. "When's the show start...?" Tom added, gesturing at the stage.

"Eleven thirty..." She answered, spur of the moment. "We're starting things later then usual because it's our first night, and as you can see, we don't have much clientele..."

"Or much staff..." Zeke said, pointedly, looking around with a narrowed gaze.

"No - we've got plenty of staff. We're just... keeping them out of sight until more people show up." Amanda ad-libbed. "Last-minute details of a brand-new club getting up and running."

"Better be..." Zeke mumbled.

Amanda quickly grabbed a couple of beers from the bar - and realized that profit would be no problem, what with the draft beer coming from a tap that wasn't actually connected to anything. A free and endless supply of booze could really give a business a leg up on the competition...

...assuming, of course, that she could keep the place running. Delivering the guys' drinks, she quickly checked to make sure Jack was doing okay, then disappearing down the employee service corridor, mind spinning a hundred miles an hour as she tried to work out how to meet the minimum requirements.

Pacing back and forth, she tried - and reject - idea after idea, consider and she tip-tapped her way up and down the short hallway. Still lost in frantic consideration, she glanced quickly through the round window in the brass-clad door to see if any new customers had come in...

...and saw Zeke gesture angrily at Tom and get up to leave... She knew what she had to do.

(You won't change his mind - but will you 'read' it? At least enough to...)

<Yes, but Are you sure?>

(Positive)

<All right, then >

Turning quickly, Steve watched in another wall mounted mirror as 'Amanda' melted into somebody completely new.

The black 'latex' she wore writhed its way quickly up legs that were becoming a little larger in circumference - which was perfect, considering the fact that she was shrinking a bit in height overall, her legs actually remaining slightly longer in proportion to her rest of her body. The 'boyish' curves of her hips swelled outwards under the skirt that was forming out of the black latex, while the shoes she was wearing actually shrank in height, retaining a six-inch heel while the platform disappeared completely, leaving her slightly larger - but still daintily feminine - feet clad in a simpler pump.

Her waist actually expanded outwards an inch, still delightfully slender considering her now more womanly hips - but the expansion above that waist was considerably more than an inch, as her breasts swelled outwards rapidly. The 'latex' of the Athena's Blood was expanding downwards at the same time, leaving a large 'keyhole' neckline to expose more and more creamy cleavage as her breast billowed outwards and upwards, seemingly trying to escape through the hole in the fabric as they became ever larger, achieving the rough size and shape of a pair of blue-ribbon-winning melons.

Above that awesome chasm of cleavage, her face was also altering itself, becoming less classically beautiful as it became rounder and more inviting, her lips rapidly plumping up to softly full dimension, now coated with a bright red shade of lipstick, even as her hair spilled down over somewhat wider shoulders, in keeping with the massive weight they had to bear. The golden-blonde tresses were also acquiring a slight wave as they continued to spill down her back, until the point of the her tapered style just barely hovered above her full, tantalizing new buttocks.

The sleeves and gloves of her new outfit receded back into the main mass of the body-suit, as if the material necessary to cover even slightly more than half of her massive new endowments was more than the suit could provide and still cover her arms, leaving her wearing a short-sleeve 'T-shirt' dress with a high neck and a key-hole décolletage that literally put the tops of her firm new breasts on display.

A second later, the change was finished, and the new woman ran her blood-red fingernails through her massive, silken mane of golden-blond hair, while rather uncertainly eyeing her massive new chest with her big, baby-blue eyes. Her new breasts seemed to weigh a ton a piece, and every breath she took seemed ready to spill them out through the top of the dress.

"Oh - one of those guys..." She murmured - then turned and hurried with a sensual sway to her womanly new hips through the door, and into the main room of the club. With her sensual, hip-swiveling glide, her massive new boobs jiggled and jostled, as if unhappy with their confinement.

Zeke was halfway to the door - but his friend's very loud, very emotional 'Good God Damn!' caused his head to whip around...

...so that he could behold his own fantasy woman, clad in form-fitting black latex, swaying sensuously towards him with a wide smile of her full, inviting lips.

"Zeke...?" She asked in a breathy little voice as she walked up to him. "I'm Bambi, Amanda said you might like me to give you the... full tour."

<Lick your lips - slowly.> (Right.)

She let her full, soft new lips part ever so slightly, then slowly let her tongue creep out and sweep, sensuously, over her gloss-red lips.

"Uh... Yeah..." Zeke said in an odd tone of voice, his eyes drifting downwards from her mouth to the open display of feminine fullness. "Yeah, sure..."

<Take his hand...>

Reaching out, 'Bambi' twined her long-nailed fingers with his chubby ones, then turned and began to jiggle-swivel towards the door leading to the staircase - and Zeke followed along numbly, his eyes focused firmly on her ass, which was twitching and swaying pertly.

She led the heavy-set man up the stairs, well aware of the way he was trying to peer up her short, tight skirt as she ascended the steps

- and she actually took each step with a slightly exaggerated step, Athena actually regulating the dress so that tantalizing glimpses showed she wasn't wearing any underwear, but didn't quite show 'pink'.

<If your heart beats any faster, it's just going to explode. I'm having enough trouble just keeping you from shaking and sweating.> (Technically, I'm a virgin. I'm allowed to be nervous.)

<Would it make you feel any better if I told you that he doesn't actually want sex with you?> (Thank God!)

<He just wants a blow-job.>

"Let me tell you about some of our 'member benefits'..." She said, reaching the top of the stairs and pulling him around the corner, into what had been an unfinished upstairs room - and was now one of six fully furnished 'guest rooms'. "First of all, there's this..."

Stalling for time, she made 'this', a hard, quick, and deep kiss, her lips pressed hard against his as she leaned her entire body into him, her huge boobs pressing firmly - and, she was amazed to discover, amazingly pleasurable - against his body. Her new height, with heels, was exactly the same as his, and between her boobs and his beer-gut, you couldn't have slipped a pin between them.

She continued to kiss him for as long as he wanted, preferring the actually quite enjoyable - if pseudo-homosexual 'uncomfortable' - sensation to that which would come.

When he finally had enough and broke the kiss himself, she still wasn't quite ready - so she went right on into her next 'stalling tactic'.

With Athena allowing it, she pulled her neckline down, letting her huge, creamy globes of firm breast-flesh to pop free of their confinement.

"Then there's these..." She said, with a slight giggle, as she took his hands and brought them up to her massive new mounds,. He eagerly began to fondle them - and she moaned in unfeigned pleasure, Athena thoughtfully having boosted the pleasure-causing sensations to 'compensate' for her own emotional discomfort - a thoughtful gesture she truly appreciated, especially when he bent his head and began to nuzzle, then lick and nibble, at her now fully-engorged nipples.

Zeke was a 'tit man', and he took his time with her full, creamy mounds, hands and lips working eagerly - almost to eagerly, in fact, with enough quick force that it would have been mildly uncomfortable for any other woman, but thanks to Athena, Bambi felt nothing but pleasure from Zeke's touch - physically, at any rate.

As much as Zeke enjoyed breasts, however, there inevitably came a time when he began to become bored with her standing there moaning softly as he played with her huge, round boobs - and so, she forced herself to give him a long, slow smile...

...as she slowly sank to her knees in front of him, her hands reaching for the zipper on his jeans. "Let me give you a few minutes to think it over..." She said, her last-ditch stall tactic...

...and then his fly was open and her hands were on his thick, meaty cock, pulling it's already hard length out into the open in front of her face.

She simply slid her fingers over the warm, slightly sweaty member for a moment, letting him enjoy the sensation as he worked up the last bit of nerve needed - and then she opened her lips and leaned forward, her mouth closing with presumed skill over his hard, throbbing cock...

...which tasted exactly like a grape lollipop.

(Hmm.... Thanks...) She thought appreciatively, the last of her nervousness fading away as she realized she had a real ally to help even the most uncomfortable situation be as inoffensive and physically pleasurable as possible. With that knowledge firmly in mind, she was able to push through the last of her negative connotations, closing her eyes and starting a long, slow, and unbelievably skilled blow- job...

...which wasn't actually based on any previous experience, but on the fact that Athena kept up a running dialog, letting her know exactly what Zeke wanted, when he wanted it, and how he wanted it.

She licked and she sucked. She bobbed her head back and forth, sometimes quickly, sometimes slowly. She varied pressure and suction. Twice, she let the cock slip completely out of her mouth so she could lick up and down it's length with her tongue.

Through it all, her hands were never still. Sometimes they worked the shaft, sometimes she played with his balls, and sometimes she simply placed them on either side of his cock and pressed backwards, lightly.

Finally, after what seemed a quite pleasurable forever, Athena's dialog came to an end.

<You're on your own, now - he's so close to coming that he's not thinking coherently. Just push him over the edge.>
(Right... and, thanks.)

<De Nada, ducks.)

With a quick slip of the tongue and a light squeeze of her hand, she pushed Zeke over the edge...

...and hungrily gobbled down every drop of the warm, thick fluid that spurted into her mouth... (Mmmm...! Chocolate!)

<Whoa...! We didn't have this in Greece - I just duplicated a flavor-memory in your brain. This stuff is.. fantastic! We've got to do this more often...>

(There's easier - and less embarrassing - ways of getting chocolate, your Divinityship...)

Swallowing the last of his chocolate-flavored cum, she licked his cock clean and tidily tucked the rapidly shrinking member away, looking up at him with an expectant smile.

"So...?"

"Would you take a check ?"

As she accepted his signed check and watched him head down the stairs, she took the money Tom had given her from inside the sleeve of her dress, where Athena had held it tightly in place until now. Swaying atop her heels, the huge-breasted new woman walked to her office to put it down in the record books - and was surprised to find her office much more luxurious than it had been. Having been focused on the club itself, she'd skimmed on the office and her own apartment - but Athena had very thoughtfully 'upgraded' her to first class.

(Thanks.)

<It's the least I can do for such a dedicated professional. By the way - you're due on stage in five minutes.> (What?!)

<The eleven-thirty show, remember. Your little seduction ate up quite a bit of time.> (Oh, shit! Not only am I still two short, but I've left the club unattended...!)

<No, actually, you didn't - I called in reinforcements.> (Huh?)

<Every sorceress within twenty miles. Not only do they draw their power from me, they're sworn to serve me - so when I told them to drop everything and come running, they did. You've got eight women working the floor as waitresses - and Lady Tonya Greenspan herself is playing the role of 'Amanda', greeting your new patrons at the door.>

Bambi blinked - then giggled. (This I gotta see...)

<Take a quick glance from the stage - you're on...>

Steve turned away from her desk and hurried out of the room - even as her body was in the process of changing. By the time she was halfway down the back stairs, which led to the stage, she was fully transformed - but she really didn't have a chance to admire her new form as she slowed herself, then strode out onto the stage, her eyes flicking to the door...

...where, sure enough, 'Amanda' was escorting another man to the packed, roped-off section at the back of the room, where men were as tightly packed as sardines as they gazed incredulously at the eight stunning women who were serving the three men who were sitting comfortably at the tables.

(Oh - nice move...)

Then she had to restrain a sudden jolt of shock as she heard her voice - his voice - Original-Male-Steve's voice echo over the sound system.

'Gentlemen, please give a warm Corsica Club welcome to... Miss Selina Diane!' (No way!)

<Way. She'll never know...>

So, the stunned on-lookers in the peanut gallery, and the three very smug-looking seated members, were treated to 'My Heart Will Never Stop', followed up with a very, very... evocative version of the old reliable, 'Fever'.

"Thank you, thank you..." the almost painfully slender woman on the stage said in her lightly accented voice, smiling beatifically as she calmly and graciously walked off the stage...

...then all but dashed around the back of the lighting and sound area, moving quickly atop her rhinestone-studded strappy style sandals, her matching silver-sequined 'cocktail dress' fluttering around her thin legs.

(Pick the most likely candidate out of that crowd at the back, give me his fantasy woman's body, and take me to him...!)

<You ready for this...?>

(I'm two short, and only have about fifteen minutes to go...!)

<Right - I'm on it... Hey, do you realize you actually in a hurry to get laid? There's a nice Greek word for women like you> It's perhaps the greatest measure of Steve's character that she not only didn't say 'Shut up' - she didn't even think it...

There was a short pause as Athena quickly scanned the minds of the cluster of stunned, amazed men...

...and the pause went on...

...and on...

Almost at the door to the main room, 'Selina' slowed slightly. (When do I change?)

<You don't.>

<Oh? Oh!>

She pushed through the door, pasting a smile on her famous face...

<Big Ugly. The one staring right at you.>

(They're all staring right at me - I'm Selina Diane, remember?)

<Egotist...>

...as she walked right up to the biggest, ugliest black man she'd ever seen, a huge bruiser with a sloping forehead, bad skin, deep set eyes, and...

(Hmmm... I've never seen that before. He looks almost purple from that blush.)

<He's shy. Very shy. You'll have to... 'take control' of the situation - and you've got twelve minutes.> (Damn - a 'quickie' for my first time...)

<Laugh it up, Furball> In a dead-on imitation of Harrison Ford, no less. In her own tones: <Eleven.> (But who's counting, right...?) "I just wanted to thank you all for... Excuse me, is something the matter?"

The big guy looked away, his dusky blush actually managing to deepen. "Uh.. No, miss.. Uh, Diane.. I.. I.. I'm a real big, uh fan, and..."

This was taking way to long. Leaning forward, she had to stretch up on tip-toe to whisper at him. "Would you be less shy around me if we go somewhere and fuck?"

He gaped at her.

"I'll take that as a 'yes.'" She said, grabbing his huge, ham-like hand and turning towards the door to upstairs...

...and for a big guy, four times her own negligible weight, he came easily enough, a dazed look on his face as he moved like man in a dream.

(Who woulda thunk it...?) She giggled at Athena as she pulled the big man into a private room. (If anybody had asked me what I'd be doing tonight, I never would have... GREAT SCOTT, HE'LL...)...rip me in half!" She finished in a dazed whisper, staring at the enormous and quickly hardening cock revealed as she all-but-ripped his pants off.

<No, he won't. Ten minutes.>

"Whu... what...?" the stunned man managed.

Selina yanked up her dress and leaned back against the nearest wall. "I want that monster cock in me, baby..."

He gaped at her, his pants around his unlovely ankles and his huge cock thrust from his crotch like an ebony battering ram. Selina sighed, and pointed. "That... goes in.. here. Now."

"Oh. Right..." He said, numbly, shuffling forward comically...

...and slowly.

Shaking her head, the slender woman threw her hands up...

...then took two quick steps forward and, before she could stop and have seconds thoughts, adroitly impaled herself on (his cock feels fantastic! Oh, God, this is.. This is...)...wonderful!"

He was huge and heavy, she was small and light - he just stood there as she wrapped her coltish legs around his trunk-like body and began to frantically bounce atop his massive organ, her womanhood not only stretching to take him perfectly, but already 'hot and wet'.

(Oh.. Athena... thank.. You.. for making.. it.. feel so...)...fantastic!"

<Sorry, honey, but you're thanking the wrong deity - your God designed women, and this is just how it feels.>

Selina would have answered that - but she was too busy fucking her brains out, using her arms and legs to pump her entire body up and down on the massive cock, her urge to make him cum quickly and pay membership subsumed in her desire to reach female orgasm first...

...which didn't take all that long, not with her current vagina literally custom-fitted to his cock.

"Oh, dear GODDESS...!" screamed that richly vibrant singer's voice as her eyes went painfully wide and her almost frail body shook with the sheer force of her orgasm...

...and then he was pumping what felt like gallons of cum into her body.

Only when he had finished did she smile up at him, still impaled on a slowly softening cock. "Want to join my fan club...?"

She had to - regretfully - slide off his enormous member and let him pull up his pants so he could get his wallet... which he numbly handed to her. Quickly, she extracted the requisite amount of money from his billfold, then tossed the wallet back and dashed out of the room, leaving him standing there as she pelted down the hallway, her body changing rapidly...

...and Amanda dashed into her office - to stop dead and stare, gaping, at Sheriff Bunnell and Tonya Greenspan, standing at her desk and looking down at the 'membership Ledger' she'd left open on the desk.

The clock on the wall began to decorously chime midnight. "I..." Amanda said, numbly, her shoulders starting to slump...

"Congratulations." Tonya said in her cool voice, her eyes unreadable. "It appears you've qualified..." Amanda blinked.

"I must say - I'm glad there's no cause for me to shut this place down." Jack said, warmly. "In fact, I just finished congratulating Steve on his success. Your boss is a lucky man to have a woman like you..."

"Uh.. Thank you..." Amanda said, numbly, coming over to the desk and staring down at the ledger...

...which contained five names. Steve. Tom. Zeke.

Jack Bunnell...? Tonya Greenspan...?

"Well - I see you have yet another member to sign up - and I really have to get back to my patrol." Jack said, taking her hand and lifting it to give her a light kiss on the knuckles. "I'm sure I'll see you often, Amanda..."

"I hope so..." She replied, almost automatically, her stunned gaze going to Tonya's inscrutable face as Jack left...

...and when the door closed behind him, Tonya broke into a huge smile.

"One of the other sorceresses played the old you..." She explained, warmly, walking around the desk and taking the money from Amanda's unresisting hand. "She was a perfect 'Steve' in every detail - except one, and since she didn't drop her pants to show Jack, he never knew... So, who's the new member...?"

"I.. I never got his name..." Amanda said, slowly, shaking his head. (Slut.)

(...!...)

(Geez - can't you even think dirty words?)

(I don't.. HEY! You... You sound just like me, now!)

<Sorry - I'm just having fun poking around in your brain. Since I get the feeling we're going to be together for a long, long time, I thought I should get better acquainted. We'll discuss it later, though - right now, Tonya wants your attention...)

[Amanda?]

"Oh, no - hearing one voice in my head's bad enough." Amanda said, with a quick grin. "Except in an emergency, you sorceresses stay out of my head."

"Sorry.." Tonya said, contritely, lowering her head...

...and then raising it again as Athena 'pulled back', leaving Amanda's body naked except for the extreme heels.

"So..." Tonya said, suggestively, walking forward as her own clothes dissolved. "About these 'membership benefits' I've been hearing so much about..."

THE END

SUMMARY: One man is driven insane by a prejudiced young man harboring his own secret desire to be a woman.

The Club

By Gunslinger

Lloyd wandered down the street, eyes tracing a path on the cracked and tilted blocks of the sidewalk just ahead of his faded red canvas Hi-Tops. His beefy shoulders were slumped forward, almost defensively, and his hands were jammed deep into the pockets of his jeans.

A partially crushed coke can glittered red-and-white in the late summer sun, and he lashed out at it viscosly, his foot barely catching the edge of it and sending it skittering an insultingly short distance as he found himself suddenly thrust off balance by the sudden, powerful move. Yanking his hands from his pockets, the pudgy young man wind-milled for a second, struggling to stay upright. His head snapped up as his shoulders twisted, causing his thick, slightly greasy mane of dark hair to flop in his face as he struggled to remain upright, all-to-aware of how silly he must look at that second.

For an eternal instant, Lloyd was sure he was going to end up on his too-well-padded ass, making his ignominy complete - then, finally, he felt his center-of-balance reestablish itself somewhere in his full, pasty gut, and he straightened, his too-pale face flushed red with embarrassment. Flipping his hair back from his forehead with one inelegant swipe, the twenty-five year old man glanced around shamefacedly, his watery hazel eyes sad and hopeless as he expected to see people pointing at him and laughing.

The street was empty, however, sparing Lloyd that particular indignity. Sighing, Lloyd tucked the hem of his lightweight cotton shirt into his jeans, where it had been before his rapid arm movements had yanked the material loose. Feeling like a complete idiot, he shot an angry glare at the inoffensive little can, then began mumbling under his breath as he continued on his way, wondering if he was doomed to spend the rest of his life as a fat, poorly coordinated loser.

"You fucking bastard!"

The shout came from nearby, and though Lloyd wasn't doing anything but walking, he was irrationally certain the angry voice was directed at him, and his heart switched to a rapid double-time beat as his head snapped up and his hands came out of his pockets again, rising defensively almost out of instinct.

Immediately, he saw that he wasn't the one being addressed. He was in a fairly run-down section of the city, near the slowly decaying downtown strip that the city was almost uselessly trying to breath new life into via an Urban Renewal program. Despite the money being dumped into new stores, theaters and other entertainment and shopping venues, the surrounding blocks were still overpriced, badly maintained shops, tenements and hastily 'remodeled' apartments. The particular source of the current commotion was an alleyway between a pornography shop and an old variety store that looked like it had simply been abandoned one night during the Eighties.

The person yelling was a lean, golden young man about Lloyd's own age, dressed only in a pair of frayed jean shorts that showed off his tanned, lean body to an advantage. Like Lloyd, his hair was long - but unlike Lloyd's, it was neatly trimmed and glossy-clean, trailing back from his lean, handsome, hawk-nosed face like a lion's mane.

The young man's taut, golden body was further tensed with anger, and the anger was obviously directed at the slightly younger Hispanic youth who was walking away, a back-pack slung over one shoulder and a look of fierce concentration on his dusky face. He was obviously trying hard to ignore the golden young man - and, just as obviously, not quite succeeding. Behind the tanned, lean young man stood a small knot of four other men roughly in the same age range.

"You swore, José!" The golden young man shouted, angrily. "We all swore! Each of us takes a turn, you bastard! You swore on the Virgin Mary, José - what about your honor?"

From the sudden, stricken look on Jose's face, it was obvious the remark had hit home,. He paused, obviously torn - then he slowly turned to face his accuser.

"I know, Keith - but I can not." José - who Lloyd thought looked stunningly like a young Ricardo Montalban - said in a torn voice. "I... I just can't."

Turning away, José continued walking away from the small group. The golden leader of the group - Keith - shouted another remark about Jose's oath at the young man's retreating back, but José merely squared his shoulders and continued walking.

Keith swore, loudly, and looked around with an angry glare, obviously looking for something to hit or kick...

...and his eyes fell on Lloyd, and narrowed.

Lloyd's heart, which had just finished pumping the last traces of adrenaline from his scare through his system, suddenly revved up again as Lloyd realized he'd been staring at the confrontation. Yanking his eyes away, he began to walk again, praying that Keith would just leave him alone.

"Hey! Hey, Buddy!" Keith's voice rang out, and Lloyd had to fight his initial reaction to glance in that direction, forcing himself to continue staring at the white rubber toes of his shoes as he walked.

He heard the patter of running feet behind him, and his double-timed heard jumped into triple-time as he struggled not to bolt - knowing full well that his pudgy, pasty body would never keep ahead of the lean, taut runner's body Keith boasted.

"Hey, pal - can you hold up a sec? I'm not gonna hurt you or nothing..." Keith's voice came from just behind him, and Lloyd sighed and stopped walking, shoulders slumped dejectedly as he turned...

...to find himself face by a Keith who's face was wreathed in a bright grin, his warm blue eyes dancing happily. Lloyd blinked in surprise, and found himself thinking that Keith probably didn't have the faintest inkling what it felt like to be rejected by women.

"Hey, there, howya doing?" Keith said, cheerfully, sticking out one hand. Almost instinctively, Lloyd thrust his own pudgy fingers out, and Keith didn't just shake his hand, but clasped it, his other hand going to Lloyd's arm and squeezing it lightly...

...as he smoothly and confidently swung around, his hand guiding Lloyd, who found himself almost unwillingly walking with the golden youth towards the knot of young men at the mouth of the alley.

"The name's Keith - Keith Lockport." Keith said, brightly. "I guess you saw that little scene we had, huh, big guy?"

"Uh, yeah..." Lloyd muttered, coloring slightly and tearing his eyes away from Keith's smiling face. Keith's warm, cheerful nature was amazingly charismatic, almost making Lloyd feel as if Keith was an old, good friend that he hadn't seen for awhile.

"Oh, the quiet type, huh?" Keith asked with a grin. The words could have been mocking, as so many had been in Lloyd's life - but they weren't. He'd had enough experience with jeers and digs to recognize even the most subtle or sugar-coated one, and this wasn't one of them. Keith seemed genuinely pleased to meet him, not at all put out by Lloyd's pudgy build or doughy, moon-shaped face. "You got a name there, big guy?"

"Lloyd.. Lloyd Minden..." Lloyd managed to get out, feeling a little dazed by the situation.

"Hey, great name!" Keith said, enthusiastically, as if Lloyd had chosen his own moniker. "Distinctive. I like that."

Almost without realizing it, Lloyd had been brought to the beginning of the alley, where the others were clustered, and Keith waved an arm toward Lloyd's chest, grinning broadly.

"Hey, guys, this is Lloyd." Keith said, cheerfully. "Don't be put out if his greetings aren't terribly effusive - he's the strong, silent type."

There was a low chuckle from the others, and Lloyd felt a moment of shame - and then realized with something akin to shock that it was good-natured laughter, not mocking.

Keith pointed to the man the farthest to Lloyd's right, a well-muscled young oriental man who bore a startling resemblance to a young Jackie Chan. "This lean, mean Kung-Fu machine is Senji Nokashimiri... but we all just call him 'Bruce'."

Smiling warmly, Senji - Bruce - shook hands with himself and bowed low.

"Ah, so - pleased to meet you, Rroyd." He said in a high-pitched sing-song... and then, as the others laughed, he straightened and let his voice drop into a warm, uninflected tone. "Hope you're going to join our little club."

"Club...?" Lloyd asked, blankly.

"Now, now, I can see you're dying of curiosity..." Keith chuckled. "But let's get through the introduction first, shall we? This tall drink of water is Gary Redman, from out Arkansas way. He's our resident red-neck"

The tall, rangy brunet winced as Keith pronounced the state's name as it was spelt - 'Ar-kansas'.

"That's Ark'n-saw, ya dumb Yankee." He drawled, with a grin. He winked at Lloyd. "Pleased t'meetcha."

"Uh, yeah..." Lloyd mumbled, thinking to himself that Gary looked like a cross between a young Clint Eastwood and a young Paul Newman.

The next to be introduced was a young black man. In a tie with 'Bruce' as the shortest member of the group, Jeff Stockwell was much more heavily muscled, his arms as thick around as Lloyd's thighs. Despite his massive bulk, he was almost eerily handsome, his starling, sea-green eyes enhancing his smooth, even features. He grinned at Lloyd and greeted him with a surprisingly deep voice that was nevertheless mellow and rich.

Jeff was the only one of the four who didn't remind Lloyd of anybody famous - but the last person to be introduced more than made up for that, leaving Lloyd wide-eyed and slack-jawed.

"I'm Scott - Scott Priestly." He said, with a welcoming grin in a lightly accented voice. He grinned at Lloyd's gaping stare. "Nobody calls me that, though. Can you guess what my nick-name is?"

It took a second for the question to register on Lloyd's stunned mind - because Scott was the spitting-image of 'Young Elvis'. It was eerie, like looking at old film-footage of 'The King' brought to life. Even his voice was a dead-on match for the famous singer's.

"Uh-uh-Elvis..." Lloyd stammered.

"Uh-huh, that's right." Elvis threw a 'cocked pistol' point in his direction and winked with those famous eyes at Lloyd.

"Well, that's the group." Keith said, taking the stunned young man's arm and guiding him down the alleyway. "A great bunch of fellas, as you can see. You're gonna love them, trust me. Now, why don't we tell you about our little club..."

"Club?" Lloyd parroted back as he was guided, unresisting, through a plain black metal door and into a darkened hallway. "You bet." Keith said. "Now, just wait until we get seated, a couple of cold beers in our hands, and we'll tell you all about it "

Lloyd opened his mouth to answer - but never got the chance. Instead, his already open mouth dropped even wider as his plain, muddy-brown eyes widened to take in the vast room when the corridor spilled into.

It had probably started out as some sort of factory or warehouse. Now, however, it was the biggest, most opulent place Lloyd had ever seen.

At the center of it was an odd blue-black metal object whose highly polished skin reflected mellow blue-tinted highlights back at Lloyd. It was designed like some sort of odd, bio-metallic flower, with five 'petals' curving away from the center part, each 'petal' flaring into what was obviously a seat, whose organically-shaped arms sported lights and what were obviously display screens of some sort. A platform rose from the center of the 'flower', surrounded by slightly out-curving metal rods on three sides, each one tipped with a horizontal- teardrop shaped metal 'ball', the narrow end pointing inward at the center of the platform.

The rest of the room was roughly separated into different 'areas' - not by anything as crude or invasive as walls, of course. Instead, the room seemed to flow from one area to the next, each one blending smoothly into the whole though each area was obviously designed for a specific purpose - like the kitchen, it's gleaming metal stove and fridge close-fitted into the handworked cherry-wood cabinets and 'island', all topped with red-veined black marble and floored and back-splashed by tiles of the same material.

In another corner of the mostly-black-and-red room was a wall-unit housing a top-of-the-line big-screen TV, a DVD player, and a gleaming red-and-black stereo system that featured a class-encased, cherry-wood-framed Tube Amplifier that produced the incredibly rich, vibrant sounds coming from the eight-speaker Paradigm set-up that surrounded the two over-stuffed Corinthian Leather chairs or the soft, ultra-wide couch.

There was a section with a big, four-poster bed framed with end-tables, two full-length three-way mirrors, and four Free-standing cherry-wood wardrobes.

Another section's wall was adorned with whips, chains, manacles and item leathers - yet didn't look 'sleazy' or 'cheap', but as classy and handsome as the display of antique weapons some of the wealthy had in their homes or offices.

Another section looked like a photographer's studio. Another, like a very comfortable 'bar'. Another...

There were at least a dozen or so 'areas' in the room, some along the walls, other in somehow fitting areas of the cavernous floor. Everything was lit by soft, warm lighting that was not only indirect, but invisible, the fixtures hidden away in decorative sconces, behind plants, or behind black-or-red drapes.

Despite the stunning opulence and odd design of the huge room, Lloyd's eyes kept being drawn back to the strange metal 'flower' with its organic-looking shape and obviously technological aura. His eyes never left it as Keith guided him over to a comfortable 'coffee- circle' of chairs around an end-table, pushing the unresisting young man into the comfortable embrace of one of the chairs.

"That's the reality modifier." Keith said, warmly. "It gets everybody that way the first time."

"I bet..." Lloyd mumbled, entranced - and then the first part of Keith's causal-sounding comment sunk in, and his head whipped around. "Reality Modifier?"

Keith grinned. "Yeah. Just a year ago, none of us looked like this. In fact, we were all... how can I put this delicately...?" Keith looked thoughtful - in a very theatrical way. Then he slapped his hand to his forehead, palm outwards, with all but thumb and pointed finger clenched, forming a crude letter 'L'. "Losers."

"Huh?" Was the most intelligent thing Lloyd could come up with.

Keith laughed, dropping his hand. "Yeah. We were a bunch of geeks, book-worms and techno-weenies. At least, until two months ago. That's when we found the Reality Modifier while on a - get this - archeological dig. Honest to God. I guess we wanted to feel like Indian Jones or something, so we studied up on archeology, bought some 'cool' threads and some equipment, and went to dig up Indian Hill, hoping for some arrowheads or shards of pottery, even though the site isn't even the least bit interesting to professional archeologist."

"Yeah - but what we found was... that." Gary said from where he was perched on the arm of a chair. Clad in faded blue-jeans, a faded red-and-black checked shirt, and cowboy boots, Gary looked more like Clint Eastwood than ever in the mellow lighting.

"Yeah, it was a cast-iron bitch to get back here." Jeff said, as he leaned over to hand a beer to Keith. The muscular black man handed Lloyd the other, and he took it without even being aware of it, letting it rest between his clasped hand on his lap.

"Especially without anybody seeing us." Bruce said, grinning. "For some reason, we just thought it might be a good idea to keep it secret."

"Even if we didn't know what it was, or what it did, at the time." Elvis said, dropping causally into another chair, cradling a white-and-tan Rickenbacker guitar.

"Since we were a bunch of nerds, we managed to puzzle it out, though." Keith took up, winking. "It turns out that it's a device to alter reality - at least, in a small area. We can change anything into anything on that platform over there, creating almost literally anything "

As if rehearsed, all five of them chorused together: " including money!"

Chuckling, Keith continued. "Technically, I suppose it's counterfeit. See, the machine works off mental emanations, both as controls and as a power source. So, anything we've seen or imagined can be created. With each of us thinking about money - all with different serial numbers, at least after a try or two - we created several hundreds of thousands of dollars and all of them were perfectly authentic, and cheerfully accepted at the bank and the stores."

"Oh - there is one sort of 'proviso', though." Bruce said, suddenly. "Anything can be changed into anything - except non-living material can't become living material. It cannot create life, though it can alter the form that houses it. I could turn a big dog into a human being - but it's still have the mind of a dog. Oh, we could actually alter it's thought patterns, give it an 'identity' and even a few basic skills - but it would only have the intellect of a dog, and could only learn the same sort of simple 'tricks' as the dog could have, no matter what the 'tricks' are the machine puts into it. The body and mind change, but the intellect - the 'soul' remains the same."

Lloyd, mind spinning, opened his mouth to ask if they'd used the machine on human beings then took a good look at the five remarkably handsome young men, his gaze resting on Elvis for the longest period. Instead, he elected to ask: "Where where did it come from?"

"Who knows?" Keith asked with a shrug. "Personally, I think it's from the distant future. The dumb ol' redneck over there, however, is daft enough to actually suggest 'aliens' "

"Screw you, too, Keith." Gary shot back in a good-natured tone.

"So, anyway, we all made ourselves look the way we wanted too. Not only that, but we got 'updated' ID. That showed our new faces... and with a super-powerful laptop and a AI hacking program on it, we even changed the government's computer records to match."

"Yup..." Elvis said. "We were even bright enough to hack into the IRS computer and enter a fictional 'audit' for each of us last year, showing that the money came from 'legitimate' sources. Now, as long as we keep paying our taxes and refrain from making too much more 'funny money', we're in the clear."

"Now, José - the one you saw leaving - was one of the original founders of the Body-Mod Club, but he's become 'dearly departed', if you will, and so we'd like to extend membership to you, Lloyd."

Lloyd's mouth worked for a second - and then he asked; "Why?"

Keith smiled. "Well, see, it's like this. The machine takes five people to 'power' it. As I said, it runs off 'brain-power', and it needs at five people to function - so we need a total of six to for any one of us to be able to change."

"Uh... actually, I already figured that part out..." Lloyd said, flushing slightly and hoping they didn't think he was just saying that as a rather pathetic 'boast'. He really had figured that part out for himself. "No, I meant: 'Why did José leave'? It seems strange to just... walk away from something like this."

Keith sighed, and looked at the other guys. "Well, this is the part that worried me. José had a very good reason for leaving. I have to admit that. Then again, I'm not the angry sort, so you have to realize I musta had a good reason to be angry about it, too. I'll just have to lay my cards on the table, and see who's viewpoint you agree with."

Now, Lloyd was beginning to get nervous. Realizing he had a cold beer in his lap, the condensation from the bottle running over his fingers and dripping on the crotch of his jeans, he hastily brought the bottle to his mouth and chugged it's contents in one long swallow, something he'd never even tried to do before.

"Well, Lloyd - we all made ourselves handsome mainly for one reason - to get the girls." Keith said, nervously. "As I'm sure you understand. I bet you saw that possibility right off, same as we did. The problem is... we can give ourselves the bodies. Hell, we can even implant ourselves with the skill... but we can't change our most basic selves, so we're still as awkward and nervous around women as we were before we changed."

Putting the empty bottle aside, Lloyd nodded slowly in understanding, a slightly puzzled look in his eyes as he tried to figure out why Keith had been angry at José. After all, José was justified in leaving in disgust after he found out that the machine couldn't correct that final flaw, but why would...?

Keith continued, breaking into Lloyd's thoughts.

"So, uh, we were sort of stumped until, uh, Bruce commented that what we really need is practice... and that when we, uh, sort of made this deal, and, uh..."

"Deal? What deal?" Lloyd asked, remembering that the argument had included something about José swearing to do something.

"Uh... well, we each agree to be a turned into a woman for a week and, uh, sort of be, uh... 'agreeable'." Keith said, letting it all out in a rush. Taking a quick breath at the end, he looked at Lloyd nervously.

"A woman...?" Lloyd gasped... then blinked and said in a quieter, more thoughtful voice. "A woman..."

It made sense - if all of them swore to do it, of course. Sure, it made Lloyd's stomach churn at the thought, but he could defiantly see where having a simulacrum of a beautiful woman around, one who was always 'willing', could help boost a guy's ego until he felt ready to tackle a real woman.

"So... You're offering to let me join your club, where I can get a body that I think is perfect, plus new ID to match... and lots of money, to boot - but the 'catch' is that I have to spend a week as a... a woman? One who, uh... well..." Lloyd's ears felt like they were on fire, letting him know he was blushing as furiously as he ever had in his entire life. Even thinking the thought was tough, much less saying it

- but he forced himself to finish. "...one that has sex with you guys?"

Keith at least had the decency to look embarrassed, turning his head and coughing unnecessarily. "Yeah."

"But, once you're a guy, you also get to 'practice' on a woman like that, too." Jeff added, quickly - and Lloyd found his choice of phrasing interesting. Though everybody knew what Jeff meant, he still didn't specifically point out that the 'woman like that' would be one of them. Obviously, these guys were less-than-comfortable with the situation, finding it easier if they tried to pretend that whoever was female at the time was a 'real' woman, rather than a transformed guy.

Well, Lloyd could understand that. It was a touchy subject, and man was a rationalizing animal, not a rational one...

Which is why he wasn't terribly shocked to find himself considering the offer. Oh, rather disgusted and somewhat horrified, but not surprised. After all, the 'pot of gold' at the end of this particular 'rainbow' was pretty enticing. There was just the little matter of what you had to do to get to it...

"Uh, so, Lloyd...?" Bruce asked, hesitantly, his supposedly 'inscrutable' face clearly displaying his uncertain anxiety.

"Give me a minute..." Lloyd asked, slowly wiping a hand across his face. "i.. I need to absorb this and think about it for a minute."

Having 'been there, done that', the five current members of the 'club' fell silent and let their prospective initiate consider all the ramifications of the bizarre - but tempting - offer.

It was obvious that each of the guys had already spent their time as a woman - and it was equally as obvious that this José had gotten all the 'benefits' of the machine, but had balked when it had come time to pay the piper. For both these reasons, Lloyd would have to pay 'up front'. Unlike the rest of the guys, who had at least gotten their ideal bodies first, Lloyd was going to have to go through a week of being a woman before getting his new life...

..which, he was surprised to note, could actually have a benefit or two - assuming he could handle it, of course. AT least, after the week, he'd have (he winced) an intimate idea of what sort of body a woman enjoyed having pressed against her... and what size and shape felt good inside her, too. After all, 'bigger is better' had it's limitations...

So - the question was: Was he willing to spend a week as a very sexually active woman in order to vastly improve his life?

No - that wasn't the question. Though part of him was ingrained with certain disgusted and sickened feelings about the idea, the truth was that he was willing - the question was, was he able?

"It... It sounds very, very tempting." Lloyd admitted in a voice that had more then a little quaver in it. "I mean, what I'd get out of the whole thing. It's just that... I don't know if I can go through with it. I really, really want to get the money and the body - but I just don't know if I'm able to actually, uh.. you know..."

The others shared a long look, and then Keith - obviously the 'designated spokesman' of the group, asked in a surprisingly gentle tone, "But are you willing to try?"

Lloyd blinked. "Well, yeah..."

Keith smiled. "Well, then - that's the place to start. We can change you into a woman, and if you can go through with it, fine. If not... if not. Then we'll change you back, and we can part ways as friends. Heck - we'll even through in some money for you, sort of payment for your courage. Then we'd just have to look for another person to be a 'member'."

Lloyd's stomach was clenched, his palms sweaty, but he managed a rather sickly looking smile that mirrored the excitement that also roiled in his gut. "Okay. That sounds fair - one step at a time, right?"

"Right!" Keith said, and the other four relaxed and smiled. Lloyd took a deep breath. "So - what's the first step?"

Keith grinned. "Well, the first step is sort of the easiest. You go ahead and write down a description of the woman you'll be for a week, and we'll type it into the machine so it flashes on all our screens, so we can...

"Wait, wait - I get to pick?" Lloyd said, interrupting Keith. "I... I really don't know if I can do that. I mean, being turned into a woman is one thing, but actually choosing the one I'll become "

Keith blinked, a blank look on his face. "That makes it harder?"

Bruce cleared his throat. "Uh, Keith? I think what Lloyd is trying to say is that actually choosing feels a little too much like, uh, like he's 'eager' to do this. I kinda felt that way too - and you'll remember what I turned out like."

"Yeah - the most mannish woman you could be, and still be considered female." Keith said, thoughtfully rather than accusingly.

"Guys?" Jeff said, diffidently. "I, uh.. I sort of added a program to the machine that might be perfect for this." "Oh?" Keith asked, interested. All eyes swung to the muscular black man, who grinned a bit nervously.

"Yeah. It flashes a random description of a certain 'area' of a woman on the screen. Then it 'complies' whatever pops into each of our heads, and creates a random woman out of the mix. I designed it to allow us to 'surprise' each other with new bodies, once our 'chosen' forms started to get boring - but it might be perfect for this situation."

Lloyd's mind churned that over. From what Jeff said, one of the guys might get, oh, height and general build flashing on his screen, something like 'Tall and slender', and whatever that guy thought 'tall and slender' was would be what the machine used - while another might get hair color and length, and so on...

"Yeah. Yea, I think that would work. Then it would be something out of my hands, all most like an act of God rather than a conscious decision to be a certain female." Lloyd said, making Jeff's grin become more confident. "Yeah - yeah, I can handle that."

"Great!" Keith said, grinning again. "Okay, then - why don't we do this, then?"

The six of them rose, five eagerly and one hesitantly, and headed towards the machine. Moving nervously, stomach churning and hands cold and clammy, Lloyd moved hesitantly towards the center platform of the machine.

"Uh..." Lloyd said, hesitantly. "Do I have to, uh, undress or anything...?"

"No, leave your clothes on - we'll be changing them, too." Keith said, brightly. "Oh, right." Lloyd said, feeling foolish.

"Don't pound yourself in the head over it..." Bruce said in a low voice as he walked by on the way to his petal-seat. "Me and Gary thought the same thing the first time - and Gary there actually stripped down to his skivvies before Jeff pointed out that clothes were, well, irrelevant."

"Sure." Jeff called, easily, from his seat on the other side of the machine. "If you want to look at it a certain way, this thing could also be called an Irrelevant Generator - it changes the 'relative' fabric of reality. Ol' Professor Einstein woulda been in his element with this thing. With it, 'E' doesn't necessarily have to equal 'MC2'."

Lloyd stared at Jeff, who grinned back and explained; "Better-then-perfect hearing, big guy. Just something to think about when you're designing you body."

Suddenly, some of the butterflies in his stomach settled in for a soft landing as the broad vistas of possibilities opened up. Suddenly, it seemed like the coming week 'en femme' was just a minor hurdle to overcome in the quest for a great treasure. He grinned back at Jeff, who winked, and then Lloyd climbed up onto the platform.

The other five were already in position, and as Lloyd took the platform and faced outwards, Keith asked him if he was ready. Though having squelched many of his doubts, Lloyd still didn't trust himself to speak at this point, afraid his nerve might break. Instead, he nodded.

"Okay - let's do it then." Keith said, hitting a control on the arm of his chair and leaning back. There was several seconds of silence, nothing happening - and then a 'holographic' screen appeared in front of each of the five, a semi-transparent blue rectangle floating in mid-air in front of their eyes and displaying whatever part and style of Lloyd's body-to-be that they were supposed to think about.

In that same instant, the platform below Lloyd hummed and began to tremble slightly - while blinding blue-white light flared at the end of each of the 'bulbs' atop the ring of metal poles surrounding the platform. The light flared as a warm numbness flowed through Lloyd's body, and for an instant nothing existed. The universe ceased to exist as all probabilities became equal - and then the 'possibility' of Lloyd's feminine new body became a certainty, and the universe flashed back into existence, Lloyd's base persona now enclosed in a new - and decidedly different - body.

In a surprisingly good impersonation of Steve Urkel's high-pitched whine (especially considering his deep voice - 'Musta also given himself full-range vocal cords', Lloyd thought, numbly), Jeff called out: "Oh, did I do that...?"

The other four laughed. Lloyd, however, was in a daze, trying to deal with the strange new sensations and feelings coming from his altered - and as yet unseen - body. Given the situation, Lloyd did the most sensible thing he could think of:

He looked down.

Or, rather, as was immediately obvious, she looked down - because what greeted the new person's eyes was the largest collection of smooth, feminine flesh she'd ever seen - and that was just in what seemed to be miles of creamy cleavage, framed by a strip of feathery black faux fur, framing her massive breasts and deep cleavage in sharp cleavage. She had never seen breasts from this angle, of course, and that might have thrown her estimate of size of a couple of inches - by in breasts that were the size of basketballs, an inch or two was chump change.

"Uh...." Lloyd said, stunned, hearing the low hum emerge in a clear, well-defined soprano. She took a hesitant step forward, feeling some of the new, implanted skills kick in as she moved with easy, supple grace atop whatever heels she was wearing. She could hear the gently 'clack' of the high heel on the platform, but her massive new rack prevented her from seeing the shoe making the sound.

Wow - that's quite a look." Bruce said - drawing the new woman's attention away from her own rack and towards the tautly muscled oriental. She looked at him - and realized that, though he hadn't changed a bit, she was seeing him a bit differently, taking in the smooth musculature of his golden form in ways she'd never even imagined she would. It stunned her as she realized that her altered body and it's new, implanted skills were having an effect on her mind. The machine couldn't directly alter somebody's core being, so she wasn't turned into a 'willing slut' or anything - but her altered body had the normal complement of female hormones, and to back that up she had a whole raft of implanted sexual skills. Just looking at Bruce, she knew that she now had the ability (if not exactly the urge) to have absolutely fantastic sex with him.

"Why don't you come take a look?" Keith suggested, urbanely, gesturing towards the section of the vast room that featured racks of clothing - and a full-size three-way mirror.

Still a little numb, emotionally, Lloyd walked off the platform and towards the mirror,. Though her emotions might be muted, her physical sensitivity was untouched, and her bemused mind took in all sorts of new sensations as she walked.

There was the new sensations that came from being balanced atop whatever heels she was wearing. For one thing, there was a slight 'leaning forward' sensation that came from the new angle on which her feet sat atop the sloped sole of the shoes she wore. For another thing, there was a new - and not unpleasant - strain on her obviously altered calf muscles, one that might be annoying if she spent several hours walking around in heels, but was merely new and... 'intriguing' at the moment.

Related to that was the way the air moved over the newly 'shaved' skin of her legs. She had yet to see what her new legs looked like, but she could safely assume they were denuded of air by the fact she was wearing nylons - though it had taken her a second to figure that out, mildly puzzled by how different the air felt as it moved over her legs, and the slight 'tugging' at the knees, toes, heels and thighs. It was the tightness around her upper thighs that had finally made the connection - it was the elasticized tops of those nylons, holding the silky-smooth fabric in place over her smooth new legs.

Then there was the feel of her skirt as it brushed across her legs just above the knees. It must also have been trimmed in faux fur, from the sensation, and it mover pertly with ever feminine sway of her wider hips, her stride a graceful feminine glide thanks to the implanted skills in her mind.

Her new breasts also moved as she walked. Apparently unfettered by a bra, they swayed side to side with each supple step she took, and also jiggled in the vertical. Firm yet resilient, heavy yet well-balanced, her new, expansive bosom gave rise to a whole raft of new sensations, from the mere weight of them, to the way the fabric of her dress felt pressing against their softly firm flesh and her sensitive new nipples.

In addition to those sensations was the feel of whatever new hair she boasted, brushing with silky softness across the nape of her neck and stirring with the breeze her own motion caused. As a man, Lloyd had worn his hair long - but it had never been as soft, light and lively as this, moving much more easily then his old, heavy mane.

All this sensations - just from being female. She wasn't doing anything, not anything she hadn't done as a man. Just walking - albeit in a completely different stride, one almost mandated by the hells she wore. The basic action was the same, lifting one foot, putting it forward, shifting her weight, then repeating the process - but with her new build and mass distribution, that simple act was transformed into something new and very different.

The other five members of this odd little club she found herself in had gathered around the mirror in the corner of the room - and she could almost feel the emotional support radiating from them, helping her face this new experience. Though still queasy by the thought of what she was going to be doing with them later - if she could go through with it, that was, - the fact that she knew each of these guys had gone through a similar experience helped a lot. There was an old saying that you could never hate someone you truly knew, and by extension she knew that they could not possibly be intentionally cruel to somebody experiencing something they, themselves, had gone through. Rather, they were sympathetic to what she was feeling, and it showed - and that allowed her emotions to return to an even keel, the strange numbness fading away as she knew that this was 'doable' - though radically altered, she was alive and healthy, in a body that felt to be in better shape than her old one had ever been - and, after she made it through her period of being female, she'd be able to pick a male body that was, to her tastes, ideal.

That, itself, was a hell of a motivation...

With a deep breath that did interesting thing to her most salient new attributes, Lloyd stepped in front of the mirror and took a good, long look at her temporary new body, starting at the bottom and slowly working her way upward.

The heels she had been walking so gracefully in turned out to be five-and-a-quarter-inches tall, glossy black and slender. They were attached to black leather pumps with gold trim around the scallop-detailed openings. Rising from these graceful and elegant pumps were her legs, clad in smooth black nylons that accentuated every curve of her smooth, shapely new legs.

The dress she wore was black as well. A black sequined bustier-style dress, trimmed with a line of black 'ermine' at top and bottom, looking elegant and sexy at the same time, especially as it was form-fitted to a body that was tall and deliciously slender in built. Her breasts were about three-quarters covered, looking deliciously round in the dress as they sensuously-yet-elegantly rose out of the trim of fur, milky globes that were huge and firm, enough of them showing to tantalize, yet somehow 'demure' for all that.

Her shoulders were slender and flawless, her arms bare and smooth down to her slender new wrists, one of which sported a small, expensive gold watch, the other of which sported a gold bracelet that matched the fine-linked gold chain encircling the base of her long, slender new neck. Perched atop that swan-like neck was a face that was elegant, sexy and classy, all at the same time. It wasn't a vapid, mindless face, but a willful, intelligent one, with a strong-yet-feminine jaw complimenting dark, intelligent-looking eyes below finely-arched platinum-blond eyebrows. Her nose was almost patrician, with a somewhat rounded tip and a strong bridge.

Her lips....

Odes could have been written to praise the most stunning single feature of her face, her full, mobile lips. Softly firm and full, they were lips that were mobile and expressive, currently coated in a pink lipstick that made them all the more kissable.

Her gorgeous, elegant face was surrounded by a wealth of platinum-blond hair that was elegantly styled. It fell free to her shoulders, where it 'poofed' outwards, reminding Lloyd of the hairstyles you sometimes saw in movies from the Forties and Fifties, especially on the 'Classy Woman' characters.

"Good Lord...!" Lloyd breathed in his sweet, clear new voice, one that matched her new form perfectly. "I.. I'm gorgeous "

"You can say that again..." Jeff said.

Lloyd paused then a faintly wicked smile curved her firm new lips as she quite deliberately mimicked her stunned tone as she repeated: "I'm gorgeous "

Jeff blinked twice - then roared in laughter, the other four joining in as Lloyd also giggled, feeling the release of tension she hadn't even been aware of fade from her body. As radically changed as her body and skills were, it was still 'him' deep inside, and that - more than anything - allowed her to relax. Though not exactly overwhelmed with enthusiasm at being made into a buxom, elegantly gorgeous woman, she could cope with it. With being female, at least. Oddly enough, she could also cope with dressing female, even walking and talking in a feminine way - though she hadn't yet 'experimented' with playing at being female, she knew she could handle that part simply because her male mind had no problems with putting this body in figure-flattering clothing and feature-flattering make-up. Though it was a bit odd to be doing such things to herself, the final result would be one that her male mind could appreciate.

Which only left one thing she wasn't sure she could handle. Well, more than 'one thing', technically speaking, but all falling into the same broad category: Sex.

She pushed the thought from her mind. She'd deal with it when she was ready - and, without even having to discuss it, she knew the guys wouldn't push her on it. They'd been where she was now, of course, and so knew that it would take a bit of getting use to.

"Jeff..." Keith said, from behind her. "Let me be the first to compliment you on that program - it works beautifully."

"Thanks, man..." the handsome, muscular black man said, modestly, as the others chimed in their agreement with Keith's assessment. Lloyd also had to admit that she turned out spectacularly... but she didn't say anything. Being able to acknowledge that she was a stunningly sexy young woman was one thing, but actually thanking somebody for turning her into that woman was a little beyond what she felt comfortable with at the moment.

Hesitating for a second, Lloyd cocked her new head and looked at her new form, ever inch of it's six-foot-with-heels height pure femininity.

"Hmmm...." She said, thoughtfully. "Somehow, calling somebody who looks like this 'Lloyd' just doesn't feel right. Any suggestions on what I should call myself for the next week?"

"Well..." Elvis said. "Since 'Lloyd' is a Welsh name, why don't you try a feminine Welsh name? How 'bout 'Lionna'?"
"Hmmm... I Don't know..." Lloyd said, uncertainly.

"Leanna?" Was Keith's suggestion - and it didn't feel quite right either, even after she'd repeated the word aloud.

"Uh, 'scuse me..." Gary said, diffidently. "Iffin' I'm not outta line, can I suggest 'Guinevere'... or, 'tween us, just 'Gwen'?"

Lloyd blinked - then grinned. "Gwen... yeah, I like that..." She cocked her head, thoughtfully. "What's with the sudden 'tude change, Gary?"

The lanky young man blushed. "Well, uh, Gwen, I was raised to treat women a certain way - and, uh..."

Lloyd/Gwen couldn't help herself - she burst out laughter. She laid a hand on Gary's hand, letting him know she was laughing with him, rather than at him - then was bemused at how easily she'd picked up the feminine gesture. She'd never have done it as Lloyd... but, then again, as Gwen she had a full set of implanted feminine social skills.

"Thaz so cude..." She said... the frown at her slurred words, as Gary's suddenly confused, concerned face spilt into two separate, wavering images.

"Waz 'appenin'?" Bruce demanded, thickly, staggering. Gwen tried to turn to look toward him, but once she started to spin she couldn't seem to stop, the world whirling gaily around her as she crumpled gracefully to the floor.

Behind her, somebody muttered something incoherent, and she heard the sound of the guy's bodies also slumping to the floor...

...and then blissful darkness came and carried her away.

* * * * *

Flipping the switch on the ventilation system to 'Max', José waited several minutes before removing his gas mask and taking a deep breath, mask close to his face in case he felt even the slightest dizziness.

He didn't - the efficient fans had cleared away the gas he'd pumped into the room. Putting the mask down, the handsome young Latino walked across the room and looked down at the slumped forms of his friends...

..and the person who'd replaced him, so quickly and easily.

"Jesus, guy - you a closet tranny or somethin'?" José muttered, eyes roaming the new woman's ridiculously huge-breasted new body. He found it hard to believe any man could choose such an outrageously sexy female body. Hell - he, himself, hadn't been able to go through with being female at all, and all the other guys had felt some trepidation, but judging by the body she had, this person must have been more than just 'eager' to be a woman.

Shaking his head, José put the thought aside, returning his attention to his ex-friends. He was still pissed at them, royally so. After all, he was as entitled as them to the befits of the machine - yet they'd turned him out on the street with hardly a backwards look, just because he wasn't willing to turn himself into a woman to fuck and suck them.

Well, duh!

Well, if he was going to be kicked out, he was going to make sure he had everything he wanted. When he'd left, he'd known that the guys wouldn't think to immediately change the code on the door lock - and so he'd had no trouble sneaking in to the storage room where they'd kept some of the early item's they'd created when 'experimenting'.

The gas had been one of them. Now, he opened up a small case that contained something else they'd created, but never had the balls to use - a 'mind control' serum. Methodically, José went around and injected each of the guys with a full dose. The agent wouldn't only make them utterly obedient, but it was also the counter-agent to the sleep-gas he'd filled the room with, and it didn't take long before he had all five zombie-like men sitting at the machine, concentrating on creating the list of items he'd given them - things to make his 'expulsion' from their little fraternity much more comfortable.

Which left him some time to kill. He went back over to where the huge-breasted blonde woman lay crumpled on the floor, staring down at her ultra-feminine figure thoughtfully...

...then he began to smile, wickedly, as he looked at the needle and mind-control serum he still held. Kneeling, he injected her with a full dose, and once she was 'awake', amused himself by giving her some instructions...

Once the guys were done creating the items he'd detailed, he had them carry his new plunder out to the van he'd rented, loading the vehicle with various item, many of them extremely valuable. Once he was ready, he instructed all of them, including the new woman, to go sit down - and, in exactly five minutes, to 'wake up', with no memory of his being there, or what he'd had them do. They'd think they'd just gone from where they were standing, walked over, and sat down, none the wiser - though the woman might find it interesting when she began obeying the instructions she didn't even remember getting...

Grinning to himself, José hopped into the driver's seat of the rented van and put it in gear, leaving the guys to their amusements as he headed off to a very comfortable new life.

* * * * *

A wave of disorientation washed over her, and Gwen had to take a deep breath, putting out a hand to stabilize her new body against the arm of the chair in which she sat.

"Oh... I came over all weird for a second there..." She said, lifting one dainty hand gracefully to her forehead. "Me, too." Bruce said, looking around with a puzzled expression as the others chimed in.

Gwen wondered why they would all feel disorientated at the same instant - but found herself distracted by another thought, one that sprang up full-formed in her mind.

'I am in the body of a woman - and so I must act like a woman...'

The thought was so crystal-clear and sharp, for a second she thought she'd spoken aloud - but none of the others reacted in any way. She frowned, slightly, wondering why the thought had come through so strongly.

Even as she was wondering about it, though, she almost unconsciously shifted into a more 'feminine' pose, suddenly hyper-aware of her own body and the way she'd been sitting - legs parallel, slightly spread, back leaned comfortably in the chair's embrace. Now, she sat up straighter, lifting one (oh-so-wonderfully-smooth-and-feminine-how-I-love-my) leg and crossing it over the knee of the other one. She smiled, slightly, at Bruce, who was looking in her direction. (Pay close attention to men at all times) She caught the slight flicker of his eyes as they dropped to her (wonderfully huge and feminine, oh I'm so happy I have such sexy) breasts, and she instinctively pulled her shoulders back and took a deep breath, better displaying her wonderful new attributes. Her smile deepened a tad and she winked at him.

Wait a second - did she just flirt with Bruce? From his slightly startled expression, she must have - but why would she have flirted with him? There was something (I voluntarily became a huge-breasted woman, so I should flirt and tease guys like a woman like this would do) wonderful about being able to tease and flirt with these guys, a sort of heady rush that came from her new sexuality. She was just fooling around, of course, but it still felt good.

Having figured it out, her expression smoothed.

"Well, it might take you a day or two to get used to being female..." Jeff said, from his chair, "...but it's not half as bad as you feared it would be, is it?"

(I was ready, willing and eager to be a huge-breasted woman, and now that I am one, it feels so wonderful.) "Actually, It's better than I ever dreamed it could be - I feel fantastic."

The mild cross-chatter about the strange synchronized disorientation stopped dead as they all turned to look at her. Hyper-aware of the five pairs of masculine eyes on her (wonderfully sensual) body, Gwen shifted position slightly to better display herself and smiled warmly at her soon-to-be lovers.

"You do...?" Keith asked - and his confusion made her frown slightly, wondering why they would think it odd. After all, they'd all been where she was, more or less - why should they find her reactions to being female so strange...?

(I will never doubt myself. I am excited and happy to be a woman. I wanted to be a huge-breasted woman, to act like a huge breasted woman, to have sex like a huge breasted woman, and now I can.)

She smiled, brilliantly. "Oh, yes - I feel better than I've ever felt in my life. I used to be so awkward, so unpopular - now I'm graceful and sexy and desirable. I'm wonderfully sexy, and I know that you find me attractive - don't you?"

"Well.. yeah..." Elvis said, frowning slightly. "We're just sort of surprised to find you so... accepting."

She blinked, startled. "Well, why not? It wasn't as if I didn't know what I was getting into. I was more than willing to be turned into a huge-breasted woman - why should I get upset when I got what I wanted?"

The guys shared a startled look. "Well, of course, you didn't know you were going to get such a, uh... 'well-developed' body..."

Now she frowned in confusion as she realized it was true. Then why had she been so sure that this was the body she'd wanted, that she'd volunteered for...?

"You're right.." She said.. and then, slowly, she smiled again. "...but I'm glad I did. This is the best body I could have gotten. If it had been less feminine, I would have felt like a guy in drag - but is there any doubt at all that I'm a hundred percent female now?"

The guys looked flabbergasted - then Jeff laughed.

"Guys, Gwen here is genius." He said, chuckling. "We all tried to 'ease into' being female - and she's jumped in feet first. It's like getting into a cold pool, or ripping off a Band-Aid - sometimes it's best to just go for it."

That must be why she felt so comfortable - even excited - with her new body and gender. It was actually sort of obvious. Why go 'semi- feminine' and deal with all that guilt and uncertainty? No -she was doing 'total immersion' in femininity - and it felt wonderful. In fact, (The more you act like the woman you appear to be, the happier you'll feel), she was feeling better and better about her choice to immerse herself in femininity. Her old life seemed like a pale shadow compared to the life in this (wonderfully sexy) body. How did she manage to survive in her old, boring, practically-chaste body when she had this (huge-breasted, wonderfully fuckable) female body available? No wonder why she'd secretly hated being male, always wishing she could be a wonderfully fuckable huge-breasted woman who could satisfy all her sick and perverted homosexual desires to fuck and suck men.

She was so happy that she no longer had to hide the fact that (I'm a fuckin' weirdo who wants to be a huge-breasted woman. I must be, because look what I let those ungrateful bastards do to me. No real man would let himself be turned into a woman, and especially not one with such freakishly huge tits. I must be a real fucking perv, man, to do this to myself - and those guys must be pervs, too.

Ungrateful Bastards..) she no longer had to hide the fact that she was a sick little transvestite, never happy with her male body... "Gwen?" Gary asked, concerned, as he saw a very startled, puzzled look cross her face. "Are you okay?"

'Why did I just think I was a transvestite? I was never a...' Gwen thought, not even hearing Gary's question as she tried to work out her strange thoughts. She didn't notice the concerned looks she got as she stood suddenly and began pacing cross the room, alternating between smooth, sexy steps and awkward, masculine ones as two sets of completely different thoughts struggled inside her head.

"Something.. Something's wrong..." She muttered, unaware of the guys coming over to where she stood as she stopped and bent over, feeling dizzy. Sweat stood out on her forehead as her mind struggled to integrate two sets of mutually exclusive thoughts into a coherent structure.

José had made a horrible, terrible, mistake when he'd 'programmed' her. Due to how quickly she'd capitulated to being turned into a woman, and based on the mistaken assumption she'd chosen this body, the angry young Latino had thought she was a willing, eager transformee, a transvestite that the guys had been lucky enough to stumble on, a person who had no problems with the thought of being female. To have a bit of 'fun', José had 'amplified' the thoughts he'd assumed she had, not knowing that they were actually diametrically opposed to her own thoughts on the matter. Now, the two independent sets of thoughts, one natural and one imposed, struggled to find a 'common ground'...

...because, otherwise, she'd quite literally go stark, raving mad. Her mind was whirling under the assault of her mental 'split', teetering on the edge of either schizophrenia - or outright madness.

Insanity occurs when a mind is incapable of dealing rationally with reality. What happened inside Gwen's mind in that instant, was - technically speaking - insanity. Unable to cope with the situation as it was, it found an 'excuse' to deal with the impossible situation - and what made it 'insanity' was the fact that the 'excuse' itself was completely irrational, though she didn't realize that.

Slowly, Gwen straightened, her face pale but resolute as she faced the worried-looking men.

"I can't ever go back to being male." She told them, her voice thick with honest emotion as she spoke what she considered to be the truth. "I... I've always had a yearning to be female, but I.. I forced myself to ignore it, to hide it, feeling sick and disgusted by the thoughts - and now, here I am, fully female, finally able to live out the horrible, perverted fantasies I tried to hide even from myself. I.. I can't ever go back to the tortured life of a man in denial, because the lid has been blown off my own self-denial. I.. I have to be a woman, forever..."

It was a lie. Though, like most guys, Gwen had sometimes wondered what life was like as a woman, she'd never had any secret yearnings - but none of the other men knew that, so they took her 'crazy' explanation at face value.

"You mean... you're a.. a cross-dresser?" Bruce said, stunned.

"No - I had the urge to wear women's clothes, but thought it too sick, too perverted, to go through with." Gwen said, believing it utterly. "i.. Oh, God, how can you guys even stand to look at me, knowing what a sick and perverted person I am. Oh, God, I hate myself..."

The anguish was real - she just didn't know it was a reflection of José's mistaken view of her. The Latino had thought it sick and perverted, so now she felt that way, having unknowingly absorbed his attitudes while being programmed.

"There's nothing to be ashamed of!" Gary said, awkwardly, stepping closer. "You.. you..."

Jeff stepped in, using an old stock phrase to fill Gary's awkward fumbling. "You were a woman trapped in the body of a man, and now you're free. It's nothing to be ashamed of. The universe screwed up, sticking you in the wrong body - and you were lucky enough to get the body you were meant to have."

She looked at them, hopefully. "You.. You really mean that? You don't think I... I'm some sort of Freak?"

Her voice broke on the last word.

"No, no - we think you're a sexy, beautiful, wonderful woman, and we're glad we could help you,." Keith said, quickly, quashing a qualm and wrapping his arms around the new woman's lush form. He had plenty of experience pushing down any guilty doubts he felt about embracing women who used to be men, and was more accepting of what he thought was Gwen's honest 'peculiarity'. The others seconded Keith's words, telling her how sexy, desirable and feminine she was - and, unwittingly, fueling her 'delusion'.

"Do you..." She whispered in a hurt, tortured little voice that ripped at Keith's heart. "Do you find me... desirable? As a woman?"

Keith looked at her, feeling awkward, this woman who used to be a man, her lush body pressed against his...

Keith - like the other four guys - were basically 'nice guys' at heart. Though nearly unimaginable power had dropped into their hands, they hadn't abused it. Though socially inept, they were good-hearted and kind - and the obvious distress of this person, regardless of her past, wrenched at them.

So, Keith did the best thing he could think of. He kissed her.

Gently, at first. Hesitantly, actually, waiting for her to push him away, to slap him, for berate him for the 'liberties' he was taking - but none of that happened.

Because of José's interference, Gwen had been feeling like a complete failure, both as a man and a woman. She was now hopelessly programmed to resist all notions of going back to being male - and Keith's kiss fueled her helpless need to succeed as a woman, of feel herself to be utterly useless. Despair faded rapidly into a desperate need, and she kissed back, hesitantly at first as she expected Keith to push her away, call her a freak or sicko or pervert.. and when Keith responded, eagerly, to the deepening kiss, she felt reassured, the pain and sadness fading into joy at being desirable, useful...

...feminine.

When they finally finished what had turned out to be a deep, hungry kiss on both sides, she pulled her face back a bit and smiled at Keith, only inches away.

"You.. You guys will let me stay?" She asked, hopeful-yet-afraid. "I mean... as a woman? You... you won't be upset, disgusted if I give into my.. my desires?"

"Of course not." Jeff answered, firmly, answering for all of them. "you're part of the club now, and we promised you whatever body and new identity you wanted - and if it's a female one, then that's what you'll have."

She began crying - but it was the happy tears of ultimate relief. She pressed her lush, buxom body closer to Keith. "Please..." She whispered in his ear. "I have to know.. I have to be sure "

Keith blinked, holding her body tightly against his own as he tried to make sure he understood what she wanted, desperately afraid of saying or doing the wrong thing. While he struggled for an answer, though, she made it abundantly clear what she needed more than anything else in the world - but lightly stroking the bulge rapidly forming at his crotch and whispering: "Make me feel like a woman."

Bending down slightly, he slid one arm behind her knees and lifted her, his tautly muscled body moving with ease as he carried the now- brilliantly-smiling woman towards the big bed in the corner, while the other four guys discretely decided to be elsewhere for awhile.

Kissing her gently, Keith lay the new woman on the bed - unaware of the fact that more and more of the real 'Lloyd' was slipping away as he unwillingly strengthened her own fantasies. He, and the others, had no way of knowing that, had they 'forced' her to become male again immediately, José's commands would have 'released' - unaware of what he was doing to her, thinking he was just having some mean-spirited 'fun' at her expense, the Latino youth had added a 'program' that would have erased his commands as soon as she was once again male. Now, driven over the brink by the meddling in her mind, Gwen was slipping deeper and deeper into her delusion that the only way she could ever be happy was to be a complete and total success at being the woman she appeared to be.

Gently, hands trembling from a mixture of excitement and mild guilt at 'taking advantage' of her, Keith peeled off her dress.

When 'dressing' her via the machine, the guys had thought of the nylons, and the dress - but it hadn't occurred to any of them to 'imagine' her up a set of underwear, so the dress slid off to display a smooth, silky body that was now naked except for hose and heels that only served to make her look more naked than she would have if completely unclothed.

Keith, looking at her over-endowed figure, laying naked and vulnerable beneath him, hesitated, unsure. Part of him was bothered by the fact that this huge-breasted, oh-so-eager woman had once been a man. Another part of him was bothered by what was he thought was only an 'almost' insane desire to be sexually active...

...but, more than he was bothered than either of these, even more than his rampant arousal at having this woman eager to have sex with him, was the fact that he truly wanted to do the right thing for her, that he truly wanted to help her. As he hesitated, he saw the sudden look of fear and panic cross her face as she thought he was going to reject her... so, pushing his thoughts aside, he began to strip.

"God - you are just so sexy..." He told her, peeling off his shorts and underwear, exposing the thick, throbbing cock that he boasted. Her eyes fixed on it hungrily, seeing it as a symbol of everything she needed to be - an alluring, desirable woman who men were willing to treat as a woman, even - or especially - in the most emphatic way possible...

"Make love to me..." She whispered.

Keith complied. As she eagerly spread her smooth, nylon-clad legs for him, he lifted her ankles up and rested them on his tanned shoulder, sliding in closer to her warm, vibrantly alive body...

...and gently yet firmly sheathing his ready manhood deep into her welcoming vagina, her supple walls embracing his shaft tightly even as her arms wrapped around his neck and she gasped out in ultimate pleasure, a combination of physical pleasure at being filled, and emotional pleasure, prompted by 'programming' she wasn't even aware she had, making her feel unbelievably happy to be treated in this ultimately feminine manner.

"Yes...!" She gasped in encouragement... but she didn't need to encourage Keith, who had put all his doubts aside and was now concentrating on making her first time absolutely spectacular, plunging into her with firm-yet-gentle strokes. Implanted skills flared to life in her, and she eagerly matched his rhythm, increasing the pleasure both of them felt as they rocked in synchronized rhythm atop the bed.

"Oh, yes... harder!" Gwen screamed, pleasure - emotional and physical - thundering through her as she bounced atop the bed, wonderfully massive new breasts jiggling and swaying as Keith obeyed her, fucking her hard - yet, somehow, gently - sweat forming and running down his naked, tanned body as he braced himself and really 'dug in' for the home stretch.

"I love this...!" The new woman screamed before her vocabulary deserted her completely and she resorted to nearly animalistic groans of pleasure and ecstasy as she thundered her way to her first female orgasm...

...and her mind finally snapped completely - and she became the happiest person on the face of the planet as her past slipped completely away from her and a whole new personality was formed, one that was 'sane' by being able to deal with reality in a rational way...

...but in a way that her old personality would never have been able to accept. By shedding all the masculine 'emotional baggage' of Lloyd, the new and wholly feminine Gwen could embrace her new outlook in life without trouble. The woman she'd become was one that wanted - and would be - the ultimate female in every way, vindicated in her existence by the way she was treated - and they guys would go out of their way to treat her the way she needed to be treated, without even having to think about. Being who they were, they would have no problem treating her as a sexy, desirable woman - and the more she was treated as a woman, the happier she'd be.

Once upon a time, there was an unhappy young man named Lloyd, one who subconsciously hated his own life and considered himself a failure. Though never harboring a secret desire to be a woman, a mistake by a prejudiced young man had driven her insane, to the point that she believed she had - and did - desperately need to be a woman, a 'real' woman, treated in a feminine manner...

...and that desire was now fulfilled, allowing a sense of pure satisfaction claim her new personality. She was unique, unlike anybody else in the world - she had a simple view of the universe, and her place in it - and as the orgasm ripped through her body, she knew that she was fulfilling her place in the universe, allowing her a doubt-free happiness, an almost religious ecstasy. One that, if lucky, a person felt maybe once or twice in their life - yet she would feel it every second for the rest of her days.

It wasn't just the sex, though that was part of it. Even as they finished their simultaneous orgasms and slipped into each other's arms, spent, the emotional high continued - because Gwen's purpose in the universe was to be female, and that was what she was. Female. Through and through, now and forever. Her past was no longer of interest to her, and she let it slip away from her as she embrace both her new future and the man who'd helped usher it in.

Instead of afraid, awkward or upset, Gwen felt confident, comfortable - happy. She smiled and kissed a drop off the end of Keith's nose. "Hmmm I'm not the only one with some implanted skills, am I?" She essayed, with a wink. She stretched, luxuriously - which did interesting things as her flesh moved against Keith's. "You were wonderful, Keith."

"You weren't bad yourself... Gwen." Keith said, still a little startled by how this had all turned out.

Kissing him again, Gwen slid out from underneath him, gently, patting him easily on the firm, taut ass as she stood and walked with an easy, graceful sensuality over to the racks of clothing. She massaged her own wonderful feminine breasts as she walked, wallowing in the sensual sensations it created, reaffirming her own femininity before happily slipping into a semi-opaque black robe. She felt no pang of regret at covering up her wonderfully over-endowed new body, because she could always uncover it any time she wished - and picking feminine, figure-flattering clothing made her almost as happy as having sex, it being as much a part of her idea of being feminine as anything.

Keith had just finished dressing when the other guys hesitantly entered the room. Smiling confidently, Gwen ankled her way over to them.

"There you are..." She said, unconsciously parting the front of the robe a bit to better display her wonderfully firm assets. "I wondered where you guys had gotten to. I wanted to thank you for accepting me, welcoming me into you wonderful little club."

"Aw, shucks..." Gary said, flushing a bit. "T'wernt nuthin' "

"No, no..." She said, wagging a finger and grinning wickedly, confidently. "You don't understand. I want to thank you "

Then, suddenly, the roof and surrounding walls became very, very interesting. Or so it would have seemed to somebody watching, as everybody but Gary suddenly seemed to find a wall or rafter to stare at, an exaggerated look of innocence on their faces, which were coloring slightly... as the sound of a zipper being pulled open seemed to fill the suddenly silent room.

As Gwen's lips wrapped around Gray's shaft and she began to utilize every new skill at her disposal, a sense of immense satisfaction filled her, and she happily slurped and sucked away at the hard, thick cock, destined for a life of pure, unending bliss.

The guy's lives weren't to be too shabby, either...

The End

SUMMARY: After his "strange" uncle gives him a converted factory to live in, Greg discovers a device that changes him into a female, but what will he do with his new body.

The Collection

By Gunslinger

PART ONE

Stepping from the warm confines of his car into the chill air of the autumn evening, Greg Ossian shivered as the brisk wind, funneled by the high brick walls of the old warehouses, bit deep.

Quickly extracting a pack of cigarettes from the inside pocket of his leather flight-jacket, Greg pulled a smoke from the pack before hurriedly returning the cigarettes to the inside pocket and zipping the faded brown leather garment shut.

Tugging the collar of the jacket higher around his neck, the dark-haired young man turned his back to the stiff, chill breeze as he cupped one hand around the end of the cigarette, and flipped open and struck his silver Zippo lighter with the other.

Taking a deep drag on the cigarette, Greg savored the smoke for a second, enjoying the cigarette long-delayed by his two-hour long trip in a no-smoking rental car.

Finally letting the smoke out in a long plume, Greg tucked the lighter away in one voluminous cargo pocket in his faded olive-drab BDU pants. Buttoning the old-style combat pant's pocket shut, he stuck the cigarette between his lips and reached into the opposing pocket with his other hand, emerging with a small pocket flashlight.

Only after he'd brought the small light to life did the broad-shouldered young man lock and close the door of the rental car, plunging the narrow alley-way between the two old warehouses into a darkness relieved only by the relatively weak beam of the small, convenience-store flashlight.

The darkness made Greg extremely nervous - a new phenomenon, and one he was far from comfortable with. Though he still thought he'd made the right decision, getting his unfortunate neighbor into a women's shelter and away from her abusive boyfriend, the resulting 'stalking-in-preparation-for-an-ass-kicking' from the enraged boyfriend and his redneck buddies made life much more nerve wracking...

Taking another long drag on his cigarette, Greg followed the beam into the darkness, heading towards the slowly rusting metal door a few feet down the alley. With each step he took, the heavy tread of his army-surplus combat boots echoed and rebounded from the high brick walls flanking him, until it sounded if an army marched in unison, instead of a single man.

Reaching the door, Greg dug into yet another of his combat-pants' many pockets, finally coming up with the key that unlocked the industrial-strength door. Putting the toned muscles of his body to good use, the twenty-three year old man hauled open the resisting door, its hinges screaming in protest. Stepping inside, Greg paused to glance up and down the alleyway, biting his lower lip, then, with a sigh, he shrugged and pulled the heavy door shut behind him.

Swinging the flashlight beam around in a slow arc, Greg eyed the vast darkness of the warehouse, practically a single-room expanse that the weak beam didn't even begin to penetrate - and then the thin cone of light fell on exactly what the letter from his distant uncle had led him to expect.

Taking two steps forward, Greg reached out and threw the big, old-fashioned knife-switch mounted on the concrete column. With a series of muffled thumps, the lights suspended from the ceiling, twenty feet above, flickered into life.

Staring at what the lighting revealed, Greg slowly shook his head in bemused disbelief.

"Mom was right..." Greg muttered to himself, turning off the flashlight and stowing it back into a pocket. "You are a crazy old coot, Uncle John..."

The back quarter of the spacious warehouse had been converted into a sort of apartment. The supervisor's office having been made over into a bedroom, and the standard four-stall industrial bathroom redone to residential standards, the open area of the warehouse floor had been converted into the 'everything else' room, the hardwood-floored kitchen/living-room/dining-room made somewhat more livable by the floor lamps and space heaters that had also come to life when Greg had flicked the switch.

The 'studio apartment' part of the warehouse took up about a quarter of the floor space.

The rest of it had been turned into some sort of strange amalgam of museum and laboratory, carefully arranged and labeled displays interspersed with expensive, high-technology diagnostic and research equipment.

Still shaking his head, Greg began to wander in and out of the 'exhibits', thinking that his mother might have understated things...

Greg's Uncle John was sort of the black sheep of the family. Practically a hermit, the only real 'contact' Greg had with Uncle John were the Christmas and birthday cards that arrived each year, each with a crisp, new twenty dollar bill slipped inside.

It was a very distant, one-sided relationship - yet, apparently, it was the only substantial one, at least from Uncle John's point-of-view. It had to be - because Greg could see no other reason why Uncle John, having decided to move to Switzerland for some reason, gave his 'home and life's work' to Greg.

Still thoroughly bemused, Greg continued to wander through the exhibits, trying to figure out exactly what that 'life's work' was. Secretive nearly to the point of being paranoid, antisocial as a hermit, wealthy yet miserly, Uncle John himself had been an impenetrable enigma, and his work and goals even more obscure.

Leaning over one of the display cases, Greg eyed the object inside.

It was a small device, vaguely resembling a television remote control, but with labeling much more obscure. Below where the device rested on it's pegs, there was an identification label - which wasn't much more comprehensible than the strange symbols on the device, despite being written in English. It read:

MEMORY INGRAM REVISION DEVICE (VERIFIED VIA LABEL, UNTESTED)

1996(?) - TL 37941(Sub A-22)

TECH: EM/IC/UNK

CAPTURED JULY 12, 2001

NOTES: NO COMPATIBLE POWER SUPPLY AVAILABLE FOR TESTING/USAGE

Unenlightened by the cryptic card, Greg moved on to the next display...

...and blinked.

It looked like nothing more than some sort of extremely high-tech hair brush.

At least able to tentatively identify the object thus displayed, Greg's eyes went to the identification card, hoping that this display might serve as some sort of Rosetta Stone to aid in 'translating' the cryptic remarks on the other display.

It didn't help much.

FOLLICLE MODIFICATION AND STIMULATION DEVICE (VERIFIED VIA TESTING)

2021 - TL 00274 (Sub D)

TECH: NANO/ADAP MAT/UNK

CAPTURED APRIL 3, 1994

Shaking his head yet again, Greg concluded that his mother was right - Uncle John had been, quite simply, insane.

Still, sane or not, Uncle John had left his barely-known - and financially challenged - nephew a paid-for 'home', no matter how strange it might be. More over, it was a home that not only boasted a big-screen TV, a high-end stereo, a DVD player, and at least two very expensive computers, all visible from where he stood, but it was also a home with all it's cable, high-speed internet, electrical, and other bills being paid for him for the next five years through a lawyer-run trust fund...

...that also paid him a 'modest monthly stipend' of a thousand dollars a month for that five-year period, simply contingent on his living in, and acting as care-taker for, Uncle John's 'museum'. The warehouse itself, and all the 'habitat' items within were Greg's, free and clear, but Uncle John had been uncertain whether he'd need any of his 'collection', and so was using the five-year paid curatorship to give himself some breathing space...

...or, so the letter had explained. Looking at the 'valuable collection' that his uncle thought had probably served whatever arcane purpose it was supposed to have, but hedging his bets nonetheless, Greg decided that Good Ol' Uncle John was as crazy as a loon - but the 'loon' had managed to pick just the right time to do this. With any one of three red-neck, woman-beating assholes standing watch outside his old apartment's door, waiting for him, Greg had been more or less confined to his apartment, which had cost him his job. The police had been sympathetic - but unhelpful, since the boyfriend, Steve, and his two cronies had made it clear what they were planning to do to him without actually saying anything directly threatening. The cops could, and did, give Steve and his buddies Darryl and Joe-Bob warnings - but they couldn't arrest any of the three until after they did something directly illegal, like beat the shit out of him. So, Greg was going from frightened, trapped and broke to a strange, new situation - and as long as the money kept coming in, Greg couldn't have cared if Uncle John thought he was Napoleon.

Still...

As facile as the 'crazy' explanation was, Uncle John had still been sane - and canny - enough to be able to amass a small fortune through some esoteric method that nobody short of the Internal Revenue Service had been able to learn from him. So, perhaps there was something to this 'crazy' collection, if it could only be cast into the correct light.

Looking around a second time, Greg slowly began to smile - and headed towards the three high-end computers set up near the center of the 'collection' space on a horse-shoe shaped desk.

Settling comfortably into the high-back leather computer chair in the open 'U' of the desk, Greg brought the three computers to life.

It took Greg all of five minutes to determine that his uncle's 'elaborate' security systems within the computer, though good enough to protect against accidental unauthorized access, were far from being good enough to stop him. Whatever his uncle's strengths might have been, John had 'merely' been a user - while Greg was somewhat more than that, having lived and played with computers his entire life.

Moments later, Greg was deeply engrossed in reading his uncle's 'highly secure' personal files... "Holy shit..." Greg whispered, mind spinning. "This can't be for real..."

According to the files, Uncle John had discovered a way to access the until-now entirely theoretic 'alternate universes' - or, as Uncle John called them, alternate Time Lines - parallel earths where history had run differently, in either rate or result - or both.

According to the notes in the computer, that was how Uncle John, nominally an 'inventor', had made his fortune - but 'stealing' objects from alternate time-lines and reverse engineering them so that he could sell them in this 'reality'.

There was much more to it then that, though.

Uncle John wasn't in Switzerland - or, at least, if he was, it wasn't the same Switzerland.

The first 'hole' John had opened, ten years ago, had been about six inches in diameter. Since then, between reverse-engineering products, he'd been working to expand the whole - and, having finally gotten it large enough, he'd gone ahead and left this universe to one that more closely suited his tastes.

Engrossed, Greg opened the next file...

...and a warning window popped up on the screen:

WARNING

UNAUTHORIZED ACCESS DETECTED (INCOMP. EEG/BW PAT, NO MATCH FOUND)

Log off of the system IMMEDIATELY!

ACTIVE DEFENSES IN ACTIVATION SEQUENCE!

Snorting at the attempt to scare him off with a bunch of gobbledy-gook, Greg minimized the warning window. After all, it hadn't taken much to realize that Uncle John knew beans about computer systems, so how could he possibly have put in a security system so advanced that Greg could miss it, even on an off-brand computer running Windows XP...?

Wait a second...

Frowning, Greg took a closer look at the familiar logo - only to find that it wasn't quite as familiar as he'd taken it to be. What the hell was Minisoft Windows SX...?

Eyes widening, Greg realized that maybe, just maybe, he'd been making some unwarranted assumptions... He was in the process of reaching for the power switch on the computer when the 'active defenses' kicked in.

Greg slammed stiffly upright in the chair - as the otherworldly computer opened it's one-way carrier wave into a full-fledge link between it's cold, logical circuitry and Greg's living brain. As the screen displayed an 'ACCESSING' notation, he felt a strange sensation, almost indescribable - the closest he was able to come was the mental image of fine fingers tickling his brain itself.

Then a new window came up:

DETERMINATION:

Non-hostile unauthorized access by blood relative of Authorized User for informational purposes. Authorized User Unavailable for permission/punishment.

TENTATIVE CONCLUSIONS:

Access rights permissible for new user - 55%

Viable non-damaging punishment for unauthorized access - 78%

ANALYSIS:

Punishment (Level 4/ Non-damaging) Required

STAND BY

Holy crap! The computer had read his mind, found out who he was and what his intentions had been - then compared the data to what it had read from Uncle Jack's mind during previous use, and had determined that Jack - the Authorized User - would have given Greg access to the computer if Greg had asked - but would have found some punishment for Greg for having accessed the computer without permission.

The 'STAND BY' vanished, and a new screen came up.

PUNISHMENT DETERMINED VIA NON-AUTHORIZED USER'S SUBLIMINAL REACTION TO HYPOTHETICAL SCENARIO.
NOW SCANNING...

Again, Greg felt that 'fingers in the brain' sensation - and then a new screen popped up:

THREE (3) QUALIFYING SCENARIOS FOUND:

(MINIMUM 24 HOUR DURATION)

SLIDING-SCALE: OBESITY vs. INTELLIGENCE. MAX VALUES; +300 lbs @ -0 IQ/ +0 lbs @ -100 IQ

SLIDING-SCALE: MASCULINE vs. FEMININE: RELATIVE VALUES; 100% M PHYSICAL/ 100% F MENTAL, TO INVERSE

SET-SCALE: FEMININE, PHYSICAL AND MENTAL; 50%

Having scanned his mind, the computer had come up with three punishments that Greg would have agreed were fair punishments, if he could have objectively considered the question.

His first choice: Chose between becoming very dumb, very fat, or a compromise somewhere in between.

The second: Chose between becoming extremely feminine in appearance with no mental change, or keep his current body but have the mind of an extremely feminine woman - or, again, somewhere in between.

Finally - Become half/man, half/woman in both mind and body.

The funny thing is, being drawn from his own mind, Greg could see what was being offered. Embarrassment and shame for punitive value - with a mix of 'interest' in what was harmless enough in the long-run. A 'viable, non-damaging punishment'.

All he had to do was choose the one that he thought would best fit his situation - something the computer couldn't do, for all it's complexity.

It was the most 'fair' punishment system Greg could have imagined...

...but that didn't mean he had to actually like it, as he viewed his uncomfortable - but eminently harmless - choices.

More than anything else, the thought of having his brain monkied with bothered him the most - which meant that he was down to either becoming extremely fat, or extremely feminine...

Fat - but male. Feminine- but, presumably, fit... Taking a deep breath, Greg made his choice...

...and unwillingly found himself jerking upright, pushing the chair back out of the way, and stripping out of his clothes.

At least, it was his body performing the actions - but it was the computer that was controlling them, preparatory to transforming him into a woman.

Naked, standing in front of the computer, Greg felt a strange sensation run through his body...

...and he changed.

Objectively, the transformation took about two minutes, from beginning to end - but, subjectively, it seemed to happen in an instant, and yet at the same time, take an eternity.

Had his life depended on it, Greg couldn't have described the sensations attendant with being transformed from a more-or-less average female into an overly abundant female. There was absolutely nothing in his life experiences to date to which he could have compared what it felt like - either physically or emotionally. Perhaps, after thoroughly studying the Unabridged Oxford English dictionary, he might have been able to find the words - but not then and there, not at the time.

He could, however, quite easily explain why the computer had him strip out of his clothes, first...

When the transformation finished, the woman Greg had become blinked and looked around, struck first of all by how off-kilter everything seemed from a viewpoint a good foot and a half lower than the one that he/she had been accustomed to. Sure, Greg had passed through this point during the normal process of growth - but it had been some time ago, and it had been a slow change, not one that took place over the span of a mere two minutes.

From a slightly taller-than-average man, Greg had become a tiny, petite slip of a woman, the crown of her head barely reaching the arm-pit level of her old form.

Slowly, hesitantly, Greg forced herself to look down at the body she would be wearing for the next twenty-four hours. The computer had taken all the differences between men and women - and exaggerated them.

That's why the temporary woman she now was had become so short - and with such a fine, delicate bone structure, almost doll-like. In fact, to Greg's mind, the quickest comparison that sprang to mind was that of an Asian woman.

While Greg's new form might have had the fine-boned delicateness and tiny stature of a Japanese woman, there were many things most definitely not oriental about her new form, of which skin-tone was only the least.

Unlike the somewhat boyish hips that came with many fine-boned oriental women's build, Greg's exaggerated new feminine form boasted a pair of wide, womanly hips below her new wasp-waist. Hips that supported a derrière more reminiscent of the Negroid stereotype than the Asian.

Though her new hands and feet were petite even in relationship to her diminutive size, like many Asian women, her legs were proportionally longer - as was the proportion of her waist, making it seem longer and more delicately slender than it really was, which was amazingly slender to begin with.

Again, most Asian women failed to boast an exaggerated pair of breasts like those now thrust so roundly from Greg's tiny new ribcage. Firm, dome-like DDD-cup breasts, each tipped with a proportionately large, pink nipple, the firm, out-thrust breast were about as far from the hairy, flat male norm as you could get without having 'too much of a good thing'.

As a further exaggeration of the difference between men and women, her entire body seemed to be utterly denuded of any body hair.

Staring down at the incredibly smooth, silky, pale flesh that she now boasted, Greg hesitantly reached down and slid his long, slender fingers across the lightly befurred cleft of her new womanhood - and, shivering at the sensations it created, quickly yanked her long-nailed fingers away from the moist, sensitive opening, unwilling to 'go there' quite yet.

Instead, the new woman headed for the bathroom, and a mirror.

The walk itself was a fine example of the differences between men and women. With a radically different center-of-gravity, the normal process of walking became a series of undulations. A man, when walking, basically swung his arms to compensate for the movement of his legs - but that was a convenience rather than a necessity.

For her new form, necessity required a smooth, wide hip-swivel with each step she took, her torso and shoulders also making small rotations in the opposite direction as she 'instinctively' combined each discrete rotational moment into an integrated whole by the simple expedient of finding what felt comfortable - the method of movement that put the least amount of strain on the shapely muscles of her new calves and milky thighs.

The fact that the resulting movement was one that was very 'feminine' was neither surprising, nor comfortable. Stepping into the bathroom, the new woman turned on the light and looked at herself in the mirror.

There was something much more Asian about her then she'd realized - though it had to do with something other than Asian women's physical appearance, and more to do with Asian men's artwork.

She looked like a Japanese Manga representation of a woman.

Tiny, snub nose. Large, bee-stung lips. A massive head of glossy black hair hanging straight down around a heart-shaped face whose incredibly fine-boned jaw came nearly to a sharp point...

..and huge, blue eyes that, had they been even a fraction of an inch larger, would have seemed utterly unreal.

"Holy crap..." She muttered - and was startled anew by the high, musical tone it came out in, as radically feminine as the rest of her temporary new form.

As strange as this all was, Greg was still willing to admit that it beat the hell out of being either 'brain-washed' or fat. His mind, in her body, was unaltered, and the body itself was not only healthy, but actually more limber, balanced, and light on it's feet than her male one had been.

The fact that there was any way that this new body could be considered superior to her 'right', male, body was disturbing - and yet, at the same time, both undeniable, and reassuring.

'Nothing in life is good or bad, but thinking makes it so', the new woman thought to herself. Sure, she was definitely having trouble getting her male-orientated brain into thinking of this as a positive thing - and yet, nevertheless, from a dispassionate part of her mind, she had to admit that, not only was being female harmless, but it could be interesting, as well..

Hesitantly, she lifted one tiny, slender hand and cupped the firm, smooth dome of flesh thrust firmly from her altered ribcage, her slender thumb with it's long nail spreading out to lightly tweak the firm, full pink nipple that stood at attention at the apex of the firm breast.

A soft, pleasurable wave of pleasure issued from the firm tissue she was tweaking, and she gasped on an indrawn breath as the sensation registered on her unaltered mind.

Yes - spending twenty-four hours as a woman might be a very interesting punishment, indeed. After all, there was nowhere she had to go, and Uncle John had been kind enough to ensure that the kitchen was stocked. Perhaps with non-perishable canned food and dry goods rather than the fresh fruit, vegetables and meat she might have preferred, but she could certainly survive for twenty-four hours on what was available.

So the fact that she didn't have so much as a stitch of clothing that would fit her body in a publicly-accepted way wasn't any sort of handicap - especially since she had no plans whatsoever for letting anybody else see her this way,

Though she knew, intellectually, that there was no way anybody could tell that she was 'really' a guy, the mere thought of having to deal with anybody else while in this feminine body was horrifying and humiliating. That was just the thought of it - the actual situation would probably turn her into a blubbering - albeit feminine - mass of insecurities and embarrassment.

Well, no matter - she not only had no need or desire to deal with anybody else while female, she had the good excuse of no clothing to fall back on for her own interior mental defense. Sure, she might have an over-sized shirt that she could pull on, tent like, if she wanted - but it wouldn't be suitable for public consumption...

...and if she wasn't going to be seen by anybody, why bother covering up the body she was wearing. Sure, it was a little chilly...

...or 'nippy', she thought with a grin, eyeing her erect nipples...

...but she could turn up the space heaters to their maximum setting to compensate for the chill. After all, it was a real balm to her upset sense of 'wrongness' that she had 'been forced' to end up female - but since she hadn't had any acceptable choice in the matter, well... She was female now, so she might as well make good use of the 'highly unwanted and utterly horrifying' situation.

"Make the best out of a bad situation..." She told herself in the mirror, eyes still drawn to the elfin countenance reflected in the glass.

Her full new lips curved in a mocking half-grin at her own open hypocrisy - but, as she'd already noted, it's not like anybody would ever know, right...?

Her hesitant grip on her breast became considerably less hesitant, her huge eyes growing heavy-lidded as she enjoyed the before-experienced sensation of a breast filling her hand, and the never-before-experienced sensation of her full, firm, and delightfully sensitive breast being fondled with growing conviction and fervor as her other hand slid across her wide, womanly hips and stared down towards the cleft between her alabaster thighs...

...and then the power went out, plunging the bathroom - the entire structure - in darkness. "Oh, crap..."

A split second ever the words were out of her altered mouth, there was a dull series of muffled sounds as the solenoids in the emergency lighting kicked over, and the darkness was split by the wall-mounted, battery-powered directional lights whose bright, white beams cut sharply contrasting swaths of light through the darkness, throwing the interior of the building into a confused jumble of stark shadows and over-lit pools of radiance.

"Fuses, fuses, where the hell would the fuses be...?" She muttered to herself - then stopped dead and utter a short, high-pitched bark of laughter.

Being male or female, or even having lived your entire life as a man and then suddenly finding yourself a woman was wholly secondary to the fact that you were a living, intelligent creature - a fact made brutally clear by the reaction she'd just given. Female or male, her reaction to the power dying would be exactly the same, because the mind driving the altered body was exactly the same as it had always been.

Muttering to herself, she stepped out of the bathroom and looked around the poorly lit interior of the warehouse, trying to figure out where the fuse box might be located in the cavernous interior.

She couldn't spot any obvious fuse box, not in the mish-mash of shadows and pools of over-bright light that strained the eyes with their radical contrast - but she had no trouble picking out the phone mounted on the wall near the refrigerator.

Still bemused by the feminine stride imposed on her by her feminine body, she walked over to the spot-lit phone and picked up the receiver...

...then frowned, and jiggled the disconnect a couple of times.

She had no idea what good that supposed to do, but it was something she'd seen on TV and the movies, and it seemed a better response then swearing, ripping the phone of the wall, and throwing - which had been her first urge when she'd realized that there was no dial tone.

"Great, both power and the phone..." She muttered. "What happen, some drunk hit the pole...?"

She looked around, wondering what she was going to do - and then she remembered the flashlight in the cargo pocket of her discarded pants.

Carefully threading her way through the confusing array of displays that were now a maze in the poorly-lit room. Reaching the computer area, she began fumbling around in the dark pool of shadow under the desk, searching for the pants...

WHAM!

As the concussion reverberated through the warehouse, Greg sat bolt upright in shock...

...then cursed loudly and thoroughly, her angry, high-pitched voice nearly drowning out the second concussion as she rubbed the sore spot where her head had contacted the underside of the desk.

WHAM!

A third, metallic burst of noise echoed through the warehouse, originating from the direction of the door...

...but this one was accompanied by another sound. A human voice - raised in a mocking tone.

Her already pale face went stark white. "Oh, shit..."

* * * * *

"Oh, Gregggy-Weggy...!" Steve called with malicious glee, slamming the heavy iron pipe against the door yet again. "Come out and play...!"

The muscular, unshaven man turned to grin wickedly at his two companions. The taller of the two cronies, still a few inches shorter than Steve's own massive dimensions, was as skinny as a rail, with a low, sloped forehead half covered by an unruly shock of carrot- red hair. The grin on the skinny man's face was full of angry eagerness, but almost devoid of intelligent thought.

The shortest of the three, a marginally-more intelligently looking fireplug of a man almost as broad at the shoulders as he was tall, didn't grin. Dead-pan, he just continued pounding a fist into the other hand.

"Now, Darryl, you sure he's in there, right?" Steve asked the dark-haired man.

Daryl shrugged. "Must be. Followed him all the way here, watched him go inside. Did a quick drive-around, ain't no other entrances 'cept the loading dock at the front, and that dumpster's blockin' it. He c'aint a'left."

"Good..." Steve said, with a wolf's grin. Turning back to the door, he slammed the heavy pipe against it again, sending another ear- shattering metallic concussion through the night.

Lit mostly by the high-voltage sparks still sputtering from the junction box he'd shattered with a heavy iron shot-put, Steve Malini looked like the devil himself as he gleefully resumed his cajoling demands that Greg come out.

"Come on, Greg - come out here and face us like a man..."

* * * * *

"You have no idea how ironic that is..." Greg muttered, as she looked around frantically.

From the sounds of things, if 'Greg' didn't come out soon, something she couldn't arrange even if she wanted to, they were going to come in - and find a tiny, sexy, naked and utterly defenseless woman.

Since this whole grudge had started over a woman, Greg knew exactly what these three men would think of that situation - and she was sure she wouldn't enjoy it, not at all.

What the hell was she going to do? She didn't even have a weapon...

...and then, just as her hands curled around the slender barrel of the flashlight, she stopped dead, a wicked grin coming to her face.

Flicking the flashlight on, she turned to look at the four dozen or so display cases, each of which contained a device from a parallel universe.

"Okay guys, you want to come in...?" She whispered to herself, viscously. "Come on, then - I'll be ready for you..." Hurriedly, she began to look through the display cases.

 BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: Greg uses the device that has changed his gender to also alter the gender of his enemies.

PART TWO

"C'mon out, Greg!" Steve shouted, his original angry glee having given way to furious, frustrated rage. Murderous rage.

"You damned sure there's no way for that asshole to have gotten out...?" Steve demanded of Darryl, his face looking demonic in the poor lighting. "Last thing we need is for weenie-boy to have bugged out the back while we stand here holdin' our dicks."

"He'd gotta still be in there." Darryl said, his face still flatly expressionless. "Even if he got out of the building, his car's right here. Where the fuck's he gonna go?"

Steve slammed his iron bar against the door three time in rapid succession, more out of a need to use some of the angry energy filling his body then for any other reason.

"Look for a way in." Steve finally said. "A window, a grate, any damned thing. Daryl, you go that way, Joe-Bob, you go the other, and go all the way around. You find a way in, you don't use it - you come back and tell me, got it?"

Sullenly acknowledging Steve's imperious commands, the two cronies headed off in opposite directions...

* * * * *

In the mish-mash of stark light and deep shadows that filled the cavernous interior of the warehouse-cum-home-slash-laboratory, the petite woman Greg had become waited patiently in a dark pool of shadow, her arsenal of otherworldly devices close at hand.

Rather to her surprise, she found that she was actually looking forward to what was to come. Part of it was from the fact that she'd be putting an end to this threat - but also present was the excitement at how she was going to do it.

Being turned into a woman, for her, was 'merely' disconcerting - but she was sure that the same fate, imposed on these three, would be much more devastating. In fact, she was pretty damned sure that each of the three men would find it to be the proverbial 'fate worse than death'.

It was this thought that so warmed the cockles of her re-formed heart.

What was good for the goose - was a well-deserved hellish nightmare for the sexist, woman-beating gander...

So, when she heard the soft, semi-stealthy sound of one of the high-set, blacked-out window being forced open, she felt an increase in her pulse rate that was more from excitement than from fear.

With the mix of light and dark turning the room into patches of shadows and high-contrast lighting that made sight almost useless, and the echoing nature of the room made the sound impossible to localize...

...but the new woman watched the short, broad-shouldered man clamber into the room with perfect clarity, thanks to the high-tech, parallel-universe 'night-vision goggles' she wore. As thin, light, and closely resembling a pair of sunglasses, the night-vision device was far advanced, replacing the grainy, green-tinted picture of this universe's equivalent equipment with a perfect picture with clarity, depth - and adjustable magnification from 0x to 20x.

The glasses not only enhanced the darkness, they also lowered the level of the over-bright light, giving her perfect vision. She had no problem following Darryl's progress as, thinking himself unobserved, carefully lowered himself to hang by his brawny hands from the window-ledge. Letting go, he dropped nearly soundlessly to the cross-beam three feet below his sneaker, eight feet off the ground.

Surprisingly agile and light on his feet for a man of his size and build, Darryl had no problem landing and balancing on the two-foot- wide beam. Carefully, he slid down onto the beam, and then did the hang-and-drop routine again, landing perfectly on the couch sitting beneath the beam.

The glasses and magnification were so good, she could even tell that he'd done all of this without any expression crossing his stone- like face. She watched as he stepped lightly down from the couch, looking around at what, to him, was a nearly useless high-contrast area, looking for a person that, unbeknownst to him, he literally had no chance at all of finding.

Instead, Darryl was about to 'find' something completely unexpected.

Picking up one of the devices, she rose, and took a measured step forward, placing herself into a memorized pool of light.

Heart pounding in a strange, exhilarating mixture of emotions she was surprised that she didn't have to force the smile to her lips.

"Well, hello there, big boy..." She said in the highest, most vividly sexy tone her new voice was capable of creating. She was both excited and ashamed by her 'come-hither' call and pose - and embarrassed at the excitement she felt at 'playing' at being every bit as female as her new form was.

She also, however, knew that in the long run, it didn't matter - for, even as she spoke, she was triggering the device.

At the sound of her voice, Darryl had spun around - only to stare at the tiny, sexy, heavenly-curved woman standing in an evocative pose in the spot-light beam of an emergency light, glad only in a pair of futuristic-looking sunglasses.

The stocky man felt his cock stirring - stirring faster and with more authority than he could ever recall.

Especially since the woman wasn't what he considered his 'type' - except, right now, looking at her, he felt a slick, warm sweat coating him rapidly as his cock went rigid, his heart ramping up in a nearly-overwhelming sexual desire...

...or, more accurately, sexual need. One that was stronger, more immediately demanding, more world-shaking - and more inexplicable - than any he'd ever felt before.

"Who..." Darryl said, shocked to find it coming out in a nervous, needy tone. "Who are you...?"

The man who'd sat stone-faced and unaffected through ever major and minor even since puberty nervously wiped a sleeve across his forehead, blotting up the sweat that had sprung up on the broad brow as he licked his lips and eyed her naked figure, almost trembling with the strange, imperative needs that filled him.

"You can call me... Amanda." Greg said, with a faint smile at her chosen moniker - and a strange, not altogether unpleasant sensation at the expected reaction the 'desire enhancer' had wrung from the suddenly-attentive man. She'd expected Darryl to suddenly find her overwhelmingly attractive, thanks to the set-to-maximum device...

...but she'd not expected the guilty excitement she felt over that reaction.

Well - in a way, that just made things easier, didn't it? After all, no matter how 'dirty' or 'guilty' she felt over this excitement, excitement it indeed was - and it was easier to do something that excited and interested you than something that didn't.

"Where..." Darryl said, licking his lips again. "Where's Greg...?"

"Does it really matter...?" 'Amanda' asked, seductively, still finding the thrill at acting sensual far outstripped the nervous, slightly nauseating sensation it created. "You're here, I'm here - is this 'Greg' person so important...?"

Darryl hesitated - and Amanda held her breath, waiting to see whether hate would win out over enhanced lust... "Naw, it don't." Darryl finally said, a hungry timbre to his now-husky voice.

The crotch of his pants straining over an erection bigger and harder than any he'd sported in his life, Darryl began to move towards her.

It took an effort of will to keep herself from 'instinctively' flinching away from an obviously-aroused man moving towards her with an equally obvious intent - something all her 'socially instilled' senses told her was wrong.

Instead, she forced herself to give an oh-so-welcoming smile, slowly and gracefully sliding down to the floor in a carefully-rehearsed move that looked even more inviting than her smile - since it left her sitting on the floor, torso leaned back and her shapely new legs spread invitingly wide...

...and her hand in the pool of shadow just beside her, where her arsenal of weapons waited.

"Like what you see, handsome...?" Amanda purred, as she exchanged the desire enhancer for another device.

"Yeah..." Darryl grunted, hungrily, stripping off his shirt as he approached her, kicking off his shoes at the same time in another display of unexpected agility and balance.

"I bet you know exactly what type of woman you lie." She prompted him. "I bet you know exactly how a woman should act, right...?"

"You bet..." Darryl agreed, as he began to unzip his pants. It was only to actually step out of both his pants and his underwear that he paused his advance- and then, his stocky, hairy body naked, he closed the last few feet between them.

"Why don't you tell me all about it...?" She suggested in a teasing voice, as he knelt down beside her, his hands eagerly reaching out to make rough contact with the smooth, soft flesh of her altered body.

Emotional displeasure and physical pleasure met head-on in opposition as he touched the soft flesh of her thighs and breast. She almost blessed him for being so rough, the fingers at each point digging in to change pure physical pleasure to a mixture of pleasure and pain that went more easily with her emotional discomfort at being touched by a man.

"Fuck talking..." Darryl said, huskily, pulling the thigh he was holding farther open, moving to position himself for penetration.

His desire for her had been driven radically higher than it normally would have been - but his 'technique' and mental outlook hadn't changed a whit, and his rough, 'me-me-me!' approach only further stiffened Amanda's resolve, verifying that she was giving this self-absorbed asshole nothing more than what he deserved.

This was where the whole plan got very dicey.

She'd increased his desires - not just for her, but across the board. She was, however, the only tangible 'object of desire' to be seen.

The question - and a very big question it was, indeed - was whether or not the peculiarly male mindset would allow her to play 'theoretical desire' over 'tangible desire'.

"Mmmm..." She said, feigning an interest in the stocky, unkempt, and rather foul-smelling asshole that she had no liking for, despite the faint threnody of physical desire her new, female body felt for him. "You have no idea how glad I am to hear that I'm your perfect sexual fantasy brought to life..."

"Close enough, for now..." Darryl grunted, indifferent, giving her starboard teat a particularly hard squeeze before releasing it in favor of gripping both her dimpled knees and pulling them farther apart as he loomed over her.

"Oh...?" She said, heart thundering at the risk of actually having to have sex with this asshole. "Is there anything I can do to excite you more, be more perfect for you, my handsome stud? Tell me- tell me what it is you desire most. Tell me of your strongest desire in a woman..."

Would he...?

The next instant lasted a small eternity, stretching her nerves to the breaking point...

..and then, with an grunt and an off-hand comment, Darryl committed himself down a road he wouldn't be able to back away from.

"You could stop talkin' so much, babe..." Darryl said, about to push his hips forward for penetration of her tight, wet new womanhood...

...and then he paused, his ardor for what was latterly 'in hand' cooling in favor of desire for a mental image that had begun to form in his mind, a fantasy that only he could see.

He'd taken the bait - and now it was time to reel him in.

"Oh?" She goaded him, slowly sliding out from underneath him as he helplessly found himself committed to visualizing what he really wanted, rather than talking advantage of 'Miss Right Now'. "You wish you could make a woman behave the way you want her to? To make her talk only when you think she should talk, say only what you think she should say...?"

"Yeah.." Darryl grunted, almost involuntarily, his mind still trapped in the tantalization loop she'd locked him into...

...just as the warning on the 'maximum' setting on the desire enhancer warned could happen if it were misused.

"You want that woman to exist, don't you...?" She prompted him. "You desire having complete and utter control of your ideal fantasy woman, making her look, act, dress and behave exactly the way you want her too, don't you...?"

Another grunted agreement - and she grinned, knowing she had him.

"Let's make it happen, then." She said, standing over his still kneeling form. "Let's make a woman you have total, indisputable control over - because you'll control her body and actions from within."

A faint look of vague horror crossed his face - but it was too weak to overcome the rampant desire of 'total control' that she'd presented him. An offer that wouldn't have so affected a man capable of seeing a woman as a separate, thinking human being - but Darryl didn't, hadn't, and never would be able to comprehend that concept, and that weakness trapped him in a cycle that would lead inexorably to his own fate.

Stepping up behind him, Amanda looped the 'necklace' around his neck, the 'pendant' dangling down his hairy, broad chest.

"Think about your fantasy woman.." She whispered in his ear. "Every detail, every fine curve, every aspect of her - think, and you will create her. Create her, be her - and you can make her do whatever you want."

That, unrealized but unarguable, was the 'fantasy' he was dreaming. A man, being little more than his puppet, was more important to him that his own sexual gratification - because, like many abusers of women, Darryl's domination routine wasn't about sex, it was about power - and what greater power of a woman could there be than complete and total control, even if he had to give up his own masculinity to get it...?

Helplessly, Darryl built up the image of his fantasy woman in his own mind - and the 'necklace', a matter-transformation device now tied directly into his neural network, took them to be commands, and did what it was programmed to do...

..and Darryl's body changed to match that he'd constructed in his mind.

Amanda watched with a smile as Darryl's body shimmered in a glittering, out-of-focus effect that was every cell in his body being converted into a matching energy-pattern, re-written, then reassembled as it's new material.

A second later, the transformation was complete - and the figure that sat in the same place and position as Darryl had just occupied was as far from the stocky, hairy man as could be imagined.

She was tiny. Even shorter than Amanda's new body, and about as fine boned - but without the exaggerated curvature of Amanda's buxom, wide hipped body.

The word to describe the woman Darryl had 'chosen' to become was 'waifish'. A woman who was complete and utterly unable to offer physical resistance to any man, with her tiny, slender build, her pale skin and pale, limp blonde hair, her huge, doe-like eyes and her weak chin.

She looked like a woman made to be, and resigned to being, completely submissive to any and all men...

...and, because that's how he wanted her to act, that was the way Darryl would haplessly find himself, trapped in her body, making 'her' act.

"What's your name, honey...?" Amanda asked the new woman...

...and, since a woman was not 'real', the question went to Darryl 'inside' her body, controlling her every action and reaction, and thanks to his overwhelming desire to have his 'fantasy' act just as he imagined she would, he found himself with horrid willingness commanding the body he controlled to say, in a thin, resigned voice: "Whatever you'd like it to be..."

Darryl's fantasy woman, the one he wanted to exist, was so submissive, so without any reality of her own, that she was even undefined in her/his own mind, being whatever anybody wanted her to be, unable to exercise any will of her own.

"Okay - you're 'Honey', then..." Amanda said, feeling very little guilt at having tricked Darryl into this - since what he'd become was, quite literally, exactly the woman he'd always wanted to exist. Only now, it was he that was her - and would be, for evermore.

It was fair, equitable, and well-deserved - and it could only be done once, since the enhancer had but the one charge, and the necklace was the only of its kind in the collection.

There was, however, plenty more devices in the collection...

"Get up..." Amada ordered Honey - and, driven by Darryl's fantasies of pure submissiveness, the new woman complied obediently. "We have some work to do..." Amanda informed her new 'slave', with a grin.

* * * * *

"I'm gonna kill the bastard..." Steve growled to Joe-Bob, his hands flexing menacingly.

It had only occurred to Steve after Darryl's disappearance that they only had Darryl's word as to who owned the rental car and who was inside the warehouse. They'd predicated all this on Darryl's words - and now Darryl had vanished, leaving Steve and Joe-Bob to face any repercussions for their answer alone.

The three of them had never really been friends. Being who and what they were, the actual concept of trust and friendship was foreign to them, though they didn't see it that way - they saw themselves as 'realists', for who trust, honor, friendship and love were nothing more than illusions that the weak-minded held onto as a crutch, and how dealt with the 'reality' of self-interest, and the way it could be served with temporary alliances with other people.

So, Darryl's disappearance was seen as a sure sign of 'treachery' - that is, completely understandable self-serving actions performed to somehow better his own position in the world by setting up and then bringing down his companions, placing himself in position of ascendancy.

"Let's get the hell out of here before the cops show up..." Steve said disgustedly, more at himself for failing to see whatever form of self-serving advantage Darryl was getting out of this than at Darryl's actions themselves.

The two men began walked away from the door...

...when it opened behind them.

"Well, if I'd known two such studly men were knocking, I wouldn't have waited so long to open the door..." A high-pitched, sensual female voice cooed appreciatively.

Steve and Joe-bob turned - and stared.

Two practically-naked women stood framed in the doorway. One, short, slender and curvy, stood proudly displaying a body clad only in a pair of sunglasses, while and even more petit, slender and waifish woman with small, high-breasts and a downcast face stood submissively at her side, the hands folded on her crotch covered in a pair of silvery, elbow-length gloves.

"Well, are you two just going to stand there, are you going to come in and let use show you some sexual action like none you've ever experience before...?" The taller of the two women asked, boldly.

It was, in a way, very much a rhetorical question.

"Come in, come in..." Amanda cooed, stepping back from the door invitingly. "I am Amanda, and this is Honey - and I promise you, we will deliver a sexual pleasure like none you have ever felt..."

It was a promise neither of the men could turn away from, and they quite willing stepped through the door - without knowing what fate it was they were abandoning themselves to.

"This way, you sexy hunks.. Amanda cooed, leading them towards the living room section of the warehouse, where she'd and Honey had re-aimed the beams of the emergency lights to highlight the area more efficiently. "Tall and skinny, why don't you take h=Honey over to the couch there, and let her teach you what a good blow-job is all about, what tall and brawny here and I get to know each other more... intimately.."

Giving a smile full of promise, Amada quite firmly squashed the hesitation and distaste she felt, and began undressing Steve even as she guided him to wards an ornate 'chair' that had come form the collection.

Once she had him naked, she eased him into the chair- even as Honey was submissively lowering her own 'victim' to the couch, her 'lipstick' clad lips already nearing Job Bob's erect cock.

"Make yourself comfortable.." She told Steven in a sensual voice, as he made sure he was seated correctly in the ornate chair - or, rather, made sure that all the contacts, for the mental and physical transformations to come, we correctly placed to have their full effect.

A few feet away, helplessly driven to do so by the fantasies running her body, Honey was busy giving Joe-Bob the most amazing blow-job of his life. He was laying back, eyes closed, enjoying the sensations so powerfully increased by the sensory amplification 'lipstick' Amanda had put on Honey - creating sensations so powerful that he didn't even feel the much more minor sensations occurring as the matter-transformation gloves she was wearing did their job as she stroked and fondled his body as she continued helplessly sucking cock like a seasoned pro, thanks to the data downloaded into her brain by yet another device.

Turning her attention away, she left Joe-Bob to the final bit of masculine pleasure he'd experience - and braced herself for providing likewise to Steve, the price for getting to confer his fate on him herself.

Ready, big boy..." She asked, teasingly, as she rose and positioned herself above him via the special grip-points and hand and leg- holds built into the frame of the chair.

"Yeah..." Steve breathed, feeling more ready and relaxed than ever before, his eyes closed in pleasurable anticipation - partly due to the mental alterations already underway.

Steeling herself, Amanda finalized her position above his lap - and then lowered her tight, wet new womanhood over his hard, ready cock, impaling herself in a burst of wonderful friction.

"Oh.. yes..." She gasped, only partly acting as he began imbedding certain thoughts and emotions in a very pliable mind. "Oh, a woman should have a cock in her as often as possible..."

"Yeah.." Steve agreed with a vague grin, unaware that he was reinforcing his own fate.

Amanda began to rise atop him, her petite legs pistoning her up and down atop him as her body trembled in physical pleasure.

Pleasure that's he not only made no effort to hide, but that she exaggerated - further incalculating in Steve's slowly changing mind the concept that a woman pleasuring a man got fantastic pleasure from the act, that it was only right and natural for any woman to immediately offer herself up to giving and receiving sexual pleasure from men.

Still mouthing exaggerated words and phrases of pleasure, she glanced over at where Honey was helplessly completing her task.

Head back, eyes closed, moaning in ecstatic pleasure at the intense pleasure of the blow-job, Joe-Bob was unaware of his now- hairless limbs, of the slimming waist, of the altering contours of his body. He was even unaware of the altered pitch of his voice as his steadily shrinking cock was generating more and more pleasure with each progressively shorter bob of Honey's unwillingly willing lips.

Steve's situation was somewhat different. He, too, was unaware of the transformation that was occurring - because his/her mind was changing at exactly the same rate.

Joe-Bob and Darryl were the lesser evils here, and so Amanda hadn't 'stolen' their minds in her punishment of them, letting each one's minds continue to exist, with some new 'imperatives', in their altered bodies. Steve, however...

In a way, it was murder. Having found not one shred of redeemable person in him, she was removing him completely, conferring on him her own worst nightmare, the one that had led to her own transformation into a woman.

Even as she continued to ride a hard, thick cock that was steadily becoming ever 'harder', Steve was undergoing a transformation both physical and mental that would leave a whole new - and better - person in his place.

"Oh, god...!" Amanda gasped, completely unfeigned, amazed at the level of pleasure a female body could experience without 'defusing' itself, as a man's body did after orgasm - and she hadn't even reached her first female orgasm yet. "Oh, God, yes..."

"What... What's happening to me...!" The person who had been Joe-Bob gasped, only then becoming aware of her predicament as she stared down at the firm, C-cup breasts thrust from the slender ribcage of her almost completely altered body. "I.. I'm a chick...!"

Thanks to the pleasure she was feeling, the new woman didn't even make a move to stop Honey from continuing to lick and suck at what was now an enlarged clitoris, and one that was quickly moving towards it's final dimensions. Caught in the now lesbian pleasure she was feeling, the woman she'd bee for the rest of her life was unable to give a command to what was to be her new 'lesbian life partner' - since, as another side-effect of the 'lipstick', the two were now chemically bonded in sexual obsession that would never fade, making them, quite literally, made for each other.

Caught in the chemical/hormonal imperative that the 'lipstick' had created, Roberta Joanne - Bobbi Jo - did nothing at all, except revel in the physical pleasure - and let the last of the changes sweep over her new body...

...even as Amanda lost the ability to pay attention to Bobbi Jo's new situation, as her female orgasm tore through her diminutive new body, making her scream out in ultimate pleasure.

A scream that was exactly mirrored by Stacy Steven's own high-pitched scream, as the double-ended dildo that had once been a real cock drove two new women to orgasmic delight.

"Like, ohmi'God, Amanda..." Stacy said, blue eyes sparkling as her massive, spherical, basket-balls sized breasts heaved in panting delight. "That was, like, so cool - but, like, not as fun as letting some handsome stud, like, you know, fuck our brains out."

Thanks to altered memories, 'Stacy' thought she was making a simple statement of truth to the woman she thought of as her 'bestest friend'. Huge-breasted, supple and sexy, the new woman was practically the stereotype of a huge-breasted blonde bimbo - right down to the ramped sex drive that, thanks to implanted skills, she had the ability to back up.

"Yeah, well - it was good enough for me, for the moment..." Amanda said, pulling herself off the plastic phallus with a wet slurping sound - and a strange sensation of regret. "You can go out and find yourself a hunk or two tonight, if you want - but I've had a long day, and I'm ready to turn in..."

She turned - and watched as Bobbi Jo and Honey traded places on the couch, the submissive obeying the unwilling new woman's helpless needs to satisfy her lover. Though each had their original mind, each also had an overwhelming need to keep the other happy- and between Bobbi Jo's naturally low intelligence, and Honey's 'fantasy' of being utterly submissive, there wasn't enough willfulness to go beyond the obvious source of 'happiness', that being nearly endless sexual pleasure.

"Then again..." Stacy said from behind Amanda, her voice filled with desire as she fondled her own massive - and much beloved - breast, 'remembering' how much she loved to let men do what she was doing to her own massive breast at the moment. "There's something to be said for a Girl's Night In..."

Turning, Amanda appraised the massive-breasted new woman, the warm, willing, and very-eager-to-please one who remembered being Amanda's friend - and smiled.

Taking the taller, bustier woman's hand, she lead Stacy towards the bedroom...

* * * *

24 HOUR PUNISHMENT PERIOD EXPIRED

DO YOU WISH TO RETURN TO YOUR ORIGINAL FORM AT THIS TIME?

With a soft smile, Amanda clicked the mouse button once...

...and then, with a supple sway supplied by the 'training' of the high-heeled training shoes she wore, the woman sensuously headed to where Stacy, clad in a 'self-adjusting' dress that did full justice to her amazing figure, waited for her 'bestest friend' so that they could head off and find a couple of hot studs to 'fuck their brains out'.

After all - when you could change back any time you wanted, it meant you could take as long as you wanted to 'fully explore' all the pleasures of being female, no matter if doing so required days, weeks, months...

..or, perhaps, even the rest of a lifetime.

THE END

SUMMARY: One young man accepts a scholarship to an all male British College, but unbeknownst to him it is a "sorcerer" school, and the tricks have only begun.

College Daze

By Gunslinger

Part I: Initiation

"I'm not going outside like this..."

"Oh?" Cassius Connelly asked, urbanely, one finely-sculpted eyebrow raising a polite eight of an inch. "Something wrong... Dana?"

Dana O'Roarke winced at the emphasis put on his name. There was no doubt in the nineteen-year-old's mind that his parents unfortunate choice for a moniker had been the rather insipid 'inspiration' of this little stunt.

At first, an all-expense-paid scholarship to some British College sounded like a dream come true to a bright, athletically-gifted young man stuck in the backwoods of Kentucky. His startling transformation from the original 'ninety-pound-weakling' into a lean, mean Soccer Machine had been nothing short of magical. An intelligent young man who was fairly slender, Dana had simply decided he wanted to be good in athletics, as well, and had spent a solid year adding lean, powerful muscle to a light, agile frame. Too lightly-built for football, and not quite tall enough to excel in basketball, Dana had found himself faced with three sports in which a fit young man with his build and strength could excel: Swimming, running, and Soccer.

Since he couldn't swim, and the solitary nature of running didn't appeal to him, Dana had chosen soccer. Aside from being fit and healthy, the sudden interest in sports was also tied in to a desire to be more popular, and so he set out to make himself a local 'sports hero'.

He'd succeeded - better than he'd ever hoped. Hence, the scholarship, a dream-come-true...

...until he'd landed at Heathrow airport, where he'd met the ultra-cultured Headmaster of the Bryson College. A long drive later, and Dana was ensconced within the bleak, gray walls of the Gothic-style all-male College.

Right away, Dana was back to being a nobody. Aside from being ultra-cultured, the 'boys' at the small college seemed to be snobby as well - not to mention, a little bit eccentric.

At first, student and staff were very cordial to Dana, if a bit distant. However, after some strange questions that had made absolutely no sense to Dana, he'd been dropped like a hot potato, that cool courtesy vanishing.

Desperate, Dana had sought out Cassius, a slender, dark-haired young man with intense blue eyes. Cassius was sort of the unofficial spokesperson for the other ninety-eight students, with a form of influence that Dana didn't really understand. All the other students deferred to him as if... well, maybe as if he were the son of somebody unbelievably rich and powerful, or something. Since Dana couldn't explain it, he couldn't find an adequate metaphor for it, but that was the closest he'd stumbled on so far. All he knew for sure was that if he could get Cassius to just accept him, then the rest of the student body would treat him at least as well as Cassius did, if not better. When Cassius urbanely heard Dana's plea and then reassured the alienated young man that it was indeed possible to be much-liked at the college, Dana had eagerly agreed to the little 'initiation' Cassius had casually informed Dana was '...absolutely necessary, old boy. Tradition, you know.'

Of course, Dana hadn't realized what that the casually mentioned 'costume' that Cassius would bring to his room would be. He'd agreed to putting on this 'costume' and going out into the school's public area without pausing to consider just what sort of 'costume' it would be - though, in retrospect, it seemed obvious.

"I look like an idiot!" Dana protested, angrily, his face a bright red under the long, curly golden-blond wig that he wore. He was so red that he almost matched the shade of glossy-red lipstick that over-exaggerated his lips. Behind the long, false lashes and the mascara, Dana's emerald-green eyes were a mixture of shame and anger.

"Why - what one earth gave you that idea, dear?" Cassius asked with a patently 'pleasant' smile, his eyes coolly amused.

"Oh, I dunno..." Dana said, angrily, rolling his eyes. "Maybe it's the fact I can barely stand upright, much less walk in this stupid platform shoes! Ten inch heels, five inch rounded-toe platforms, and they're the size of bloody boats on my nice, big, masculine feet. Even if I could stop leaning on this wall for support and actually remain upright, I'd stagger around like a drunken idiot in these things - if I didn't fall off and break my neck, first!"

By now, the shame and anger had coalesced into something that would not be denied, and now that Dana was in full voice, he wasn't anywhere near quitting. Bent over and braced against the wall to keep from falling, long golden-blond curls falling in front of his garishly made-up face, Dana somehow still managed to seem somehow 'imposing' as he continued to spill his anger out in a verbal flood.

"Oh, and hey - how about these stringy, hairy legs, oh-so-nicely displayed by the leather mini-skirt you gave me? The one that barely covers my crotch - and, oh, how about my cock, stuffed tight between my hairy thighs under the stupid, skimpy white lacy panties? If it weren't for the fact that the back of this skirt was designed for a much fuller ass, you'd be able to see my crotch from the way I'm bent over! Oh, but don't think that means I like the way the skirt fits. No, it's too damned tight in the waist, and I can barely breathe!"

Her on-going tirade gave lie to that statement, even as she took a deep breath and launched into it again.

"Oh, hey, and let's not leave out the fit of the lace-sleeved white cotton shirt you gave me to wear! Though the long, nylon-and-lace sleeves are a bit 'girlie' for me, the shirt would still be bearable - except for the fact that it's straining over the pair of basket-balls you stiffened into the cups of that ridiculous white lace bra!"

"I see..." Cassius said, gravely, dark merriment dancing in his intense, blue eyes. He clasped his hands together and lowered his dark head in a parody of concern. "So, what you're saying is that you're uncomfortable because "

"...because I'm a guy dressed up like some sort of... of.. of huge-breasted nympho cum-slut. That's why!"

"Oh, well..." Cassius said, a wicked grin creasing his narrow lips. "I can take care of that for you, my dear - no problem at all "

Chuckling, the slender young man lifted one arm and an intense blue glow began to emanate from his eyes as he pointed at Dana and began to chant in a deep, strangely hypnotic voice, strange, foreign syllables and sounds dropping from his lips.

"What...?" Dana gasped.. and then felt a strange sensation rising up from the floor, sort of an odd, almost subliminal 'humming' that vibrated through clothing, flesh and bone with equal facility.

Gasping, Dana's eyes widened as he stared down at his high-heel-clad feet and watched them shrinking, becoming 'feminine', if not exactly dainty.

The changes continued up his legs, moving swiftly. With no pain coming from the changes, there was no immediate physical sensation to rip Dana from the state of shock he'd slipped into as he watched his body change.

His legs were now smooth and athletically feminine. Not the most gorgeous female legs in the world, not terribly long - but they were exquisitely toned and supple, the skin smooth and taut. They were definitely female legs - and pretty 'sexy' ones at that, rather than long and 'beautiful'.

Dana's hips barely expanded at all, maybe a measly inch or too - but his ass expanded remarkably, becoming deliciously full, firm and ripe, a mouth watering image of feminine posterior perfection. His bent-over position caused his now-skintight skirt to ride up, exposing the tiny lace panties that clung to his smooth, feminine crotch, the panties were already beginning to damp where they covered Dana's tight new cunt.

The skirt no longer bit into his waist, as it compressed itself to fit the waist-band of the skirt perfectly. While not tiny, the waist was now athletically slender.

The light weight of the basketballs suddenly doubled and then redoubled as they were merged into his chest, becoming a heavy, incredibly sensitive pair of massive, full breasts, each spherical mound tipped by a massive, thick, permanently-engorged nipple.

Her shoulders narrowed slightly, and a layer of fat smoothed her arms to acceptably feminine contours, if still athletic. Her neck narrowed slightly as her jaw-line softened into a still-squared jaw that was safely within the 'feminine' category, if not 'beautifully' so.

Her lips swelled to the full, sexy feminine contours outlined by the lipstick even as the wig fused to her head, becoming a silky mane of obviously bottle-blond curls.

At the same time, the strange, barely-felt 'tingle' in her head marked some changes being made within her mind...

"Oh...!" Dana gasped, unconsciously straightening and falling into a cheaply sexy pose, balanced easily atop her incredibly high heels. She slowly slid her amazingly long, supple new tongue over her gloss-red, incredibly sensitive new lips, feeling their fuller, more softly-firm contours as she tried to concentrate - which wasn't easy. Besides the hundreds of highly-pleasurable sensations coming from her highly-sensitive new body, there was also her incredible level of sexual arousal to deal with. Her new body was permanently aroused, a delicious heat and dampness in her belly and crotch matched by an exquisite yearning in her huge, sensitive nipples, as well as a strange thirst for something very warm and salty.

"There you are, Dana..." Cassius chuckled, his eyes returning to normal. "Now you don't have to be embarrassed. Now it's perfectly natural for you to dress up like a... how did you put it? A 'big-breasted nympho cum-slut'? Now, it's perfectly natural - since that's exactly what you are."

Dana stared at Cassius - but she was unable to deny it, no matter how much she wanted to. She could feel the weight and heft of her huge new tits, moving slightly with each breath. She could feel the cool air of the room caressing her newly-denuded legs, and moving under her short, tight new skirt, brushing against the warm wetness her new womanhood was generating. Desperate urges were thundering through her mind and body, some of them hormonal and some of the mental - and they all pointed to the fact that she wanted to, needed to, and would really enjoy having sex - all sorts of sex.

"How...?" She stammered in her husky-yet-feminine new voice. A surge of pleasure made her realize she'd unconsciously begun to knead her massive new tits with her strong-yet-feminine hands with their long, hot-pink nails. Yanking her hands - regretfully - away from her hyper-sensitive new tits, she added, "Why...?"

The dark-haired young man smiled urbanely and buffed his manicured nails against the front of his dark-maroon school blazer. "You see, Dana, the Bryson College is a school for Sorcerers."

"School for...?" Dana repeated, numbly, trying very hard not to stare at the crotch of Cassius's dark-gray trousers.

"Once upon a time, the genetic make-up that allowed for Talent was carefully hoarded, though the people who did so didn't truly understand what it was they were protecting. Still, they applied the sciences used for breeding animals, and Talent was conserved solely for aristocracy - and, later, the descendants of aristocracy. Such as myself."

He eyed the huge-breasted woman Dana had become, and grinned. "However, there were cases where a sorcerer liked to... 'play around' with women. It was frowned upon, but it did happen - hence, such Bastard Talents such as your miserable self."

"Me...?" Dana gasped, trying very hard to ignore the very-definitely-feminine urges her body was sending her mind.

"Yes... you." Cassius said, disdainfully. "one of our... 'stringers', perhaps you'd call him, heard about your 'magical' transformation, and decided to take a look. He was amazed by the amount of Latent Talent you had. Though strangely 'flavored' by you Bastard line, and most certainly not pure, it seems to have a strange sort of energy to it. However, a few simple questions soon proved you don't even know it exists, much less how to tap into it. Though with much Latent Talent, you're much too old to teach the basics of Sorcery to - so you're useless to us, other than a plaything."

Dana glared at Cassius, her outrage momentarily overwhelming her new-found lusts. Anger like none she'd ever felt began to build in her, and she let it. Usually easy-going, Dana figured her nature being changed so much was nothing next to the changes her body had undergone, and she didn't try to reign the anger in as it built.

She desperately wanted to pound the living shit out of something for what had been done to her. Specifically, she wanted to beat the living daylights out of Cassius - so, when she felt this strange sort of 'weight' in her mind, she grasped it, mentally, and tried, metaphorically, to throw it at Cassius. It was as if it weighed a ton - but she were a superman in her own mind, able to move the massive weight - if not overcome it's massive inertia as easily. She mentally began to swing the massive weight in her mind, unaware that her intended target had recoiled in his chair at the intense green glare emanating from her eyes.

A blue 'bubble' popped into existence around Cassius. Somehow, underneath the layers of pure rage, Dana dimly understood that she was seeing that 'bubble' of energy as a representation of something non-corporeal. Somehow, she simply knew that any 'normal' human wouldn't see anything at all - but, somehow, she was seeing Cassius 'warding spell'.

She couldn't care less. All she wanted to so was crush him. As her mind whirled the imaginary weight, hurtling it towards Cassius with terrible rage and precision, the new woman found her voice again.

"Bitch." She snarled, gloss-red lips curling in anger.

There was a tremendous flash as a green energy intersected with Cassius' warding spell, causing it to waver and twitch uncertainly. "But...." Cassius gasped, sweat pouring from his forehead as his eyes glowed, desperately. "You didn't even chant..."

Then his bubble burst - and he only gasped once before he began to change.

His nose and lower jaw moved outwards, forming a muzzle as his head reshaped atop an inclining neck. His body collapsed in on itself as short, fine hair... no, fur.. began to sprout all over his body.

In seconds, atop a tattered pile of rags that once been a school uniform, a female Irish Setter growled angrily at Dana. It's eyes glowed, deeply, and it's body shape twitched once or twice - but, in the end, it remained as it was, and the glow slowly fled the eyes while the growls became more desperate - and threatening.

The glow slowly faded from Dana's eyes as she stared, uncomprehendingly, at the dog she'd turned Cassius into. "Holy shit..." She whispered, stunned. "I.. I did magic..."

Then the 'bitch' Cassius had become began barking - and charged her.

Screaming, Dana yanked open the nearby door and dashed gracefully into the hall, moving with a sexy little wiggle atop her heels. She slammed the door behind, a split-second before the dog's weight slammed into the wooden partition.

As the door continued to shudder under the frantic canine's battering, Dana hurried down the marble hallway, trying desperately to ignore the way her huge new tits bounced and jiggled from her hurried movements. The sound of her high heels against the marble rattled and bounced off the stone walls, a staccato rhythm that haunted the new woman with it's easy rhythm - the smooth, clock-work regularity of a smooth, ass-wiggling stride rather than the awkward fumbling she would have wished for... even as part of her found that fact that her new walk would turn men on a useful asset for somebody so damned horny...

As her mind delved deeper into disturbingly pleasant thoughts of her sucking and fucking men, she didn't notice her frantic dash slowing to a leisurely stroll, her movement becoming even more sexy as she unconsciously began to fondle and massage her massive tits, moaning softly to herself at the pleasure her own hands brought her.

She was barely aware of her surroundings, her long-lashed eyes half-closed as she fondled her massive, super-sensitive tits and moaned softly in pleasure. Completely unaware, she descended the marble-and-polished-oak staircase to the main floor, a massive, domed chamber with dark scarlet-and-gold carpets covering the hardwood floor...

"Going somewhere, Dana?"

The deep, authoritative voice snapped the new woman out of her daze, and she stared at the quartet that was facing her.

Standing in the center was Lord Gerald Morrows, Duke of Glouchesterbury, Headmaster of the Bryson College. As usual, he wore his conservative, somber gray suit and steel-rimmed glasses, his dark hair shot with silver at the temples. Lean and ascetic, the headmaster of the Bryson College was an imposing man.

Flanking him on either side were Last Year students, close friends to Cassius. They were dressed in gold-trimmed purple velvet robes with deep hoods, the robe tied in place around their waist by a gold-colored rope.

Heeled at Mr. Morrow's side and looking miserable was the bitch Dana had turned Cassius into. She was on a leash, and from her tense posture, it was obvious that she was helplessly under the Headmaster's command.

"I heartily approve of your form of punishment on Cassius, my dear girl." The Headmaster said, coolly. "It was a remarkable display of raw, unformed talent. However, given the fact you're still in that lust-ridden body, it's obvious you don't have conscious control over that vast power - so, it's up to us to break you, mold you into a submissive, obedient tool we can train to unleash that great power for out benefit - and under our direction."

Taking a deep breath, Dana managed to yank her mind off sexual matters - and her hands from her tits. She straightened, tossing her golden curls back as she thrust out her incredible chest, placing her hands on her hips for a defiant-and-sexy pose.

"Just how do you plan to do that?" She asked, managing to keep her affected mind firmly in hand. "I've learned the knack for 'seeing' magic - and if you try an attack, I'll be able to tap into that power of mine. Maybe I have trouble controlling it for most things, but it sort of responds automatically to an attack."

It was a bluff... sort of. To be honest, the thought of trying to use her powers voluntarily had missed her completely. She'd been stunned, horny and scared, and she'd walked away in shock, not thinking to try her new powers. The fact that she didn't need to know the elaborate chants they obviously needed to work magic indicated she had an advantage they didn't - but she wasn't sure she could make the magic work at all.

"Oh, we won't attack you, my dear..." The Headmaster said, with an evil grin. "Cassius already assured your downfall when he managed to get you into that body and mind-set. All we have to do is this..."

Dana sensed the magic being released, and tensed in preparation for the attack...

...but the bluish-gray mist flowing from the three men wasn't moving towards her, but flowing around the men's own crotches...

...where fabric parted easily, magically making way for the enormous, throbbing cocks that pushed their way into view.

All three cocks were identical in every way. Massive, each cock looked to Dana to be about eighteen inches long, and wide in circumference even for their mammoth length. Their heads were huge and almost purple, beating in perfect sync - as were the hearts of the three men. Dimly, Dana realized she somehow knew that the two 'Acolytes' were 'tied-in' to the Headmaster to give him strength - so they were sort of automatons, walking and moving storage-batteries getting their commands directly from the Headmaster, through their 'Link'. Dana wasn't sure how she knew this - she was just sure it was right.

All that, however, was going through a back part of her mind, while the rest of it was watching the huge, throbbing monsters the three men sported. Sweating, Dana struggled to tear her eyes from the sight of those massive cocks, all-to-aware of the fact that her mouth was literally watering, while her cunt was hot, damp and 'itchy'. Foreign-yet-arousing desires ran through her head, feminine urges and lusts that she'd never wanted - yet now found herself wanting to give into. Desperately, she struggled for control...

Then, in a soft, mocking tone, the Headmaster said, "Oh, baby - you're so sexy "

It felt like something went 'snap' in her mind, and Dana found herself shivering in pleasure at the thought of a man finding her sexy - sexy enough to get all nice and hard....

"Really ?" She asked in a breathy tone, her eyes heavy-lidded as she walked in a slow, sensuous undulation towards the Headmaster, her hands lightly tracing slow, sensual patterns on the taut fabric over her massive tits.

"Oh, yes, baby." Headmaster Morrow said in an amused, flatly-false voice. "Your huge boobs make me so hot, oh yeah, baby." "Oh " She moaned, softly, her gloss-red lips turning up in a cat-like smile. She lifted up her shirt, exposing her huge, round, bra-clad breasts. Lightly, proudly, she began to fondle them. "I'm so glad you like them "

The Headmaster made a gesture, and the two students under his control approached her, and she spread her arms to welcome them as they moved in rather eerie precision to unclasp her bra at the front so they could begin to lick, suck and fondle a breast each, their movements in extremely pleasant synchronization.

"Oh, yes..." She moaned softly, pleasure coming from the attention being paid her massive bust.

Though Morrow hadn't moved, his whispered words came out of the air right next to each of her ears, and she could almost feel his warm breath on each lobe as he spoke in low, seductive tones.

"Feels good, doesn't it?" He asked silkily. "You really love male attention now, don't you? It's like a drug - and addiction. You want men to find you sexy. You want them to admire you. Touch you. Kiss you. Fondle you "

"Oh..." She moaned, softly. "Soooo good. Yes... Yes "

"Imagine " Morrow whispered, seductively. "The entire student body, all as well endowed as these two, bespelled to find you the sexiest woman they've ever met. Making them willing to touch you. Fondly you. Even this "

Magic coalesced around Dana, but she barely noticed as a gentle force slowly repositioned her, leaving her bent over with her legs spread, her panties simply vanishing into a mist as her skirt lifted itself into a bundle around her waist, exposing her magnificent ass and shaven new womanhood.

The two Acolytes stopped fondling and massaging her breasts, and she felt a stab of regret as the pleasant, sexual haze began to fade...

...only to double and redouble when she felt the massive, throbbing head of one cock slide past her conveniently-placed lips, even as its identical mate slid slowly and firmly into her sopping wet new cunt. Pleasure and a sense of fulfillment like none she'd ever known filled her with peace and joy as she wrapped her long-nailed hands around the shaft of the cock in her mouth and began to move them rhythmically as she slowly sucked and licked the huge cock filling her mouth. Her saliva-coated lips were generating incredible pleasure from the friction created as she moved her lips up and down on the huge shaft, her rhythm matching the long, deep thrusts of the cock in her cunt, sending intense spasm of near-orgasmic ecstasy through her nerves. Her huge, round tits jiggled and swayed on her chest as her body moved in slow undulations, maximizing the pleasure she felt at having a massive cock filling her mouth, another one in her cunt. She was lost in a world of pleasure, her horizons extending only as far as her own body, and the cocks that were generating the intense pleasure that was thundering through it.

Through her pre-orgasmic haze, Dana dimly comprehended the Headmaster's words, floating into her ears from all around her new little reality.

"Imagine. Near constant sex. Men touching you, fucking you, constantly."

As her first, thunderous orgasm began to build in her, Dana moaned low in the back of her throat, the mental image of near-constant sex very, very appealing to her.

"All you have to do..." The Headmaster whispered, intensely. "I agree to serve me, unconditionally. All you have to do is - surrender" then his words were lost to her as her first orgasm hit her like a freight train. Her slow, sensual movements became spasmodic as the orgasm thundered through her body, the huge cock stretching her cunt so wonderfully pumping a thick jet of cum deep into her new cunt while it's twin pumped a thick spray down an unresisting throat. She swallowed convulsively, barely tasting the sweet, delicious cum gushing down her throat as her body was wracked by the most mind-blowing orgasm she'd ever experienced...

...and, in the instant of clarity that came at the very apex of that orgasm, when she was completely sated, sexually, in the midst of a pleasure that kept her, momentarily, from craving more, she was able to think.

Then, as the orgasm began to fade, and the two Acolytes withdrew their cum-dripping monster cocks from her still-shuddering body, she unleashed the intense, live-wire ball of mystical energy she'd tapped into in that instant of clear, logical, coldly powerful rage.

Her eyes didn't just glow - they were like twin nuclear blasts detonating, a palatable wave of green-tinted light converting the room into a freeze-frame of over-exposed, high-contrast still-life...

...and then it was over, and Dana was standing upright near the door, her clothes restored to their skimpy, inviting original configuration, leaving her unmussed and looking pert and ready. A white leather purse, containing identification that matched her new form, as well as quite a bit of money, hung from her shoulder. Two large bags of luggage sat beside her, flanking her.

"I'm sorry to hear that the Bryson College isn't for you, Miss O'Roarke." Headmistress Morrow said, politely. She folded her elegant, slender hands over her trim waist, leaving them in the looming shadow of her massive breasts, straining against the crisp white fabric of her blouse, over which was buttoned a tailored gray jacket, clinging tightly to her bust and waist, but flaring at the hips, where her tight, knee-length matching skirt took over. The tall, slender, elegantly-sexy older woman cocked her head and pursed her full, lightly-tinted lips. "I'm sure my outstanding evaluation will help you get into any college in America you'd care to."

"Thank you so much..." Dana said, struggling to warp her slowly-lusting mind around the fact that she'd 'reset' the situation exactly as she'd hoped. She let her eyes flick to either side of Headmistress Morrow, where an honor-guard of Acolytes flanked her, one male and the other female - ostensibly, at least. Heeled next to one sensible black pump with a four-inch heel, Cassie, an Irish Setter bitch, sat obediently at her mistress' side.

"Have a nice day..." Dana said with an odd smile. Picking up a bag in each hand, she headed for the door, her slender-yet-womanly hips swaying seductively as she moved.

Outside would be the cab that was waiting to take her to the airport, from which she'd head back to America. She'd known that she couldn't make herself male again. The new lusts and desires had been put in her mind by Cassius, and only he could have released them - and she would have had to free him back to a human form to do that. So, though she could make herself male again, it would have been a miserable one, with incredibly powerful 'homosexual' urges, and a body far different from the one she was helplessly 'proud' to wear. So - she was stuck as a woman. A huge-breasted, super horny woman...

...with incredible magical abilities. Ones that could come in handy. In fact, a certain bully who'd made Dana's life a living hell back when she'd been a 'ninety-pound-weakling' came immediately to mind, and the new Sorceress decided that Bill 'Butch' Cassidy would be the first person she'd visit in America...

* * * * *

As the door closed behind Miss Dana O'Roarke's spectacular ass, Lady Geraldine Morrows, Duchess of Glouchesterbury, Headmistress of the Bryson College turned to her highest Acolytes and looked at them with one raised eyebrow.

"Well...?" She asked in a cultured, inquisitive voice - and the two Acolytes hastily shed their robes, revealing the tanned, toned bodies that made Bryson students stand out so. They were each a 'handsome' vision of their respective genders, the young man boasting a firm, muscular body, while the 'girl' was more shapely, with firm D-cup breasts, womanly hips, and toned, sexy legs.

What they shared in common was a matching pair of huge, thick cocks, which were already becoming hard as Mistress Morrows smiled dreamily and began to unbutton her clothes, already lost in the fantasy of her male and she-male students falling back into the daily rhythm of the College, where she would spent almost all her time ordering her happily obedient students to pleasure her...

...while, deep behind the erected 'persona' of Geraldine Morrows, the 'real' mind of Gerald Morrows screamed in protest and beat helplessly at the massively powerful enchanted 'barrier' that kept his mind from accessing the immense powers the new body still housed...

TO BE CONTINUED

SUMMARY: The continuing tale of one young man who accepts a scholarship to an all male Briarley College, but unbeknownst to him it is a "sorcerer" school, and the tricks have only begun.

Part II: Finale

Bill 'Butch' Cassidy had the perfect life. He was rich, muscular, handsome and incredibly well-endowed. He was living in a huge, cliff-side house with kick-ass furnishings and a really sweet Porsche in the carport. Oh - and he was having sex all the time, day and night, sex of every type and position.

"Oh, yeah, baby...." Butch moaned, closing his eyes in pleasure as Dana's warm, willing, and incredibly skilled lips wrapped around his enormous, throbbing cock. "Yeah, that's my cock-sucking Lucky Charm..."

That's what he'd taken to calling her. It had started out as a 'joke' nick-name, but it had stuck - and for good reason.

Butch had first seen her two and a half months ago. He'd been hanging around the local bar after a hard day down at the feed-mill, letting the not-so-skanky women ogle his tanned, muscular body and handsome 'All-American-Boy' face, right down to the blue eyes and chiseled, dimpled chin. His teeth were kept meticulously, sparkling white, and he was meticulous about his clothing: Skin-tight jeans, showing off his hard, taut ass, and the sizable 'package' in the crotch. Then, either a white, beige, black, or pale-blue denim or cotton work-shirt, loose and 'bloused' into the pants - but with the sleeves rolled up tight to reveal his bulging, tanned biceps, and the buttons undone halfway down to show off his broad, manly chest.

Butch Cassidy was a man in love - with himself. He was perfection personified, the Ultimate Man. All lesser males below him existed to either serve or amuse him, and women existed to meet his carnal pleasures. It wasn't arrogant or egotistical, Butch knew, despite the whispers that sometimes flew around - in his case, it was merely the simple truth.

So, when he'd first seen Deanna O'Ryan, it had been during a 'sweep and scan' of the bar for the best pick of the litter. At first, his cool, blue eyes passed right over her. After all, she wasn't even remotely his 'type'...

...except, for some reason, he found his eyes returning to her - and taking a longer second look.

She was tall, for a woman. Almost his own height, in fact - and Butch liked his women 'petite'. Yet, still, he couldn't stop looking at her.

She was athletically built, which was another thing Butch wasn't all that fond of. For one thing, the legs showing under her short, white cotton skirt were muscular and toned, instead of long and slender. Even the six-inch heels on the white leather pumps she wore didn't do much for her legs - though, Butch had to admit, they did nice things for the one feature he heartily approved of - her spectacular, firm ass. Unfortunately, the hips that supported that mouth-watering delicacy were on the 'trim' side, rather than 'womanly'. Even worse, she had the most ridiculous fake tits Butch had ever seen, stuffed into a lace-trimmed white leather 'bodice' top, pushing a ridiculous amount of cleavage upwards and outwards.

Even her face wasn't Butch's style. It was not exactly 'masculine'... but it might edge into 'mannish'. Her nose was a little too large, though her red-glossed lips were full and ripe. Her best facial feature, though, was probably her incredibly rich, emerald-green eyes...

...and Butch wasn't exactly an 'eye' man, so that didn't do much for him. He did kinda like her long, rich, dark-flame-red hair. All in all, though, she was completely wrong for him in every way.

So why couldn't he stop looking at her...?

She was looking right back at him. With an odd little smile, she began to approach him with a slow, sexy stride. Without waiting to be invited, she pulled up a stool next to him, licking her lips slowly as she ran her hands lightly across the bulge at his crotch.

"Well now..." She said in a somewhat husky voice that was actually made incredibly sexy by her Irish accent. "My name is Deanna O'Ryan, but you can call me 'Dana'."

"Uh..." Butch stammered, jaw loose.. and then he shook his head and snapped out of it. "Cassidy. Bill Cassidy - but, 'course, people call me 'Butch'."

"Mmmm..." She grinned, sensuously. "I like it. It's so.... manly "

Again, she ran her hand over his crotch - and this time, he was a little more alert. He pulled his hips back, slightly, pushing his ass up against the bar.

"Look, uh... Dana? Look, Dana, I..." Butch started to send her away...

Just then, a waiter who was passing buy, a tray full of drinks on his arm, glanced at the woman's huge, top-straining breasts - and then, a split-second later, a classic Hollywood double-take.

In the best Jerry Lewis tradition, the waiter had tripped over his own feet, his tray of plastic, beer-filled cups flying up, over...

...and raining with unerring - and eerie - accuracy on Dana, drenching her from head to toe.

She immediately stood up and began to cry. Loudly. Very, very, very loudly, wailing about how her 'date' was ruined, how 'her boyfriend' would hate her forever for embarrassing him in public like this...

It wasn't until the manager had hastily assured her that for the rest of the night her and 'her date' would drink free, thus restoring peace, that Dana leaned close to Butch and whispered, sensuously, in his ear.

"Actually, me being all wet... and slick... really turns me on." She'd lightly, sensuously licked his earlobe - with a tongue that had to be incredibly long and supple. "After we finish these first free drinks, why don't we go somewhere dark so I can give you the most incredible blow-job you've ever had?"

It was literally an offer he couldn't turn down - and she'd delivered, just as she'd promised. She gave him the most incredible blow-job he'd ever had in his life... and then, calmly, told him that she could do much, much better when she was 'in the right mood'... and, so, the next thing he knew, she was moving in with him.

After that, it had been non-stop sex. Well, not non-stop. They had to stop to eat and sleep sometimes. He certainly didn't need to stop and go to work - not since that lottery ticket she'd bought him as a gift had won him a cool twelve million dollars. In fact, ever since she'd come into his life, everything had been going his way. Everything.

His cock had grown. Big to begin with, now it was absolutely massive, the most enormous, sensitive organ Butch could ever imagine existing - and Dana was using every skill in her repertoire to give him a great 'pre-party' blow-job.

With a low groan that was more than masked by the music and guest-notice going on outside the master bedroom, Butch bucked his hips - and pumped an incredible amount of thick, salty cum down her eager throat, her full lips and long tongue ensuring that not a single drop of what she liked to call 'The Nectar of Life' was wasted.

"Fantastic, as usual, babe..." Butch said, magnanimously, as she licked his massive cock clean, then helped him cram it into his skin- tight jeans...

...or, rather, between the two layers of silk that he wore under the jeans, to keep his highly-sensitive cock from getting abraded. Since his cock never seemed to go fully limp anymore, just sort of... pliable... it was a bit of a chore - but Butch thought it was worth it. After all - he could be ready for sex five minutes after he'd just done it - and keep doing that, all day and all night, until he passed out from sheer exhaustion.

He knew that for a fact. Dana had insisted in a 'clinical trial' to test his 'sexual endurance level'.

He, of course, had been a most eager test-subject. He'd never even imagined he could have non-stop sex like this.

"Well, Dana - I think it's time for the host to make his appearance..." Butch said, expansively, spreading his arms and admiring the way the tailored, skin-tight black silk highlighted his arm. His parties had quickly become famous - for many reasons - and he hosted one almost every night - but, though guests started streaming in at four or five o'clock, Butch himself never appeared before eleven, more likely midnight, when he'd spent an hour or so 'circulating' - then head off to bed...

...with some 'pretty young thang' on one arm, and his ever-faithful Dana on the other. Ever faithful. Submissive. Eager-to-please...

...so why was she shaking her head, instead of taking his arm to properly 'escort' him out.

"Not quite yet, Butch dear..." She said, slyly. "You see, I've really enjoyed our time together. Well, rather, the wonderful fucking I got, and all the delicious perm. You, personally, I think are an egotistical, self-absorbed bastard who used to like to beat the crap out of anybody smaller than you."

"Wha...?" Butch stammered, jaw dropping. Part of it came from the fact that she was still smiling sweetly, a tiny drop of cum in the corner of her full, upturned lips. Her voice was sweet and reasonable - actually conversational.

"But, Butch, I'm not really a cruel woman." She continued, warmly - while, Butch, much to his dismay, found he was unable to move, as if his body had somehow been 'frozen', turned solid. He could do nothing but listen as Dana spoke. "Rather than a cruel and off-the-cuff punishment I could have inflicted on you out of anger and dusty memories, I gave you a chance. I lived with you. I satisfied your every whim in bed - and, with my sorcery, I satisfied your every whim in life."

She grinned, and gestured grandly about her. "All this, Butch - I gave you all this. You didn't know it, but I used sorcery to manipulate people, places, time and memory - so that you got all those things you're always yapping about. You wanted to be rich, and I gave that to you. You wanted to be popular, and I gave you that, too. I even made you rich - and, let's not forget, unbelievably well-endowed..."

Butch could hardly believe what he was hearing - but he had too. There was no choice - because, not only was his body immobile, locked solid, but Dana was floating in front of him, her eyes flowing eerily.

For some reason, Dana's hair had turned a brassy, bottle-blond shade, and her Irish accent had faded away... but small discrepancies like that were low on Butch's list of priorities at the moment.

Not that having such a list helped much - considering he couldn't even lift a finger...

"Don't worry, Butch - I'm not going to take this away from you." She laughed, grinning wickedly. "It's yours. This basic lifestyle - the parties, the money, the sex... all of it. Still yours... but different."

It was the 'different' that bothered Butch the most - and it turned out his fears were completely and totally justified. He desperately wished he was able to scream as a strange 'humming' sensation encompassed him...

...and then things started to change.

It started with the bedroom. The decor, a sort of 'western' feel bright into the 21st century, rippled - and, like a tide spreading out, a change wrapped itself around the room. The colors faded as everything became shades of black, red or burnished brass - a darker room, with black-leather-and-burnished-brass furniture. The bed became huge, covered with black-and-red-silk sheets, while the big wall opposite the floor-to-ceiling windows became covered with whips, chains, and an assortment of less immediately identifiable 'hardware'.

Thick black velvet curtains appeared on those floor-to-ceiling windows, cutting off Butch's night-time view of the skyline. Not that he was worried about his 'view' - he was too busy being concerned with the way his body was changing.

Like he way his feet were shrinking, the better to fit into the knee-high black leather boots he was now wearing - the sexy ones, with the platforms and the eight-inch heels, not to mention the lacing running through the polished-brass grommets.

Then there was his legs. His long, shapely, sexy legs, tightly clad in a pair of skin-tight black chaps that left her ass and crotch bare - revealing to all the tight new cunt she boasted, surrounded by a tiny triangle of dark pubic hair.

Considering that Butch now found himself half-female and changing rapidly the rest of the way, he really wished he could scream. It would have felt very satisfying to let out a long, anguished scream as his hips flared out to womanly dimensions, matched by the shrinking of his waist to delightfully feminine dimensions beneath the black leather corset she now found herself wearing. One that tightly clung to her waist - while that matching black leather bra clung tightly to her rapidly swelling chest, where her new breasts were quickly forming up.

What a set of breasts they were, too. the size and rough shape as medicine balls, they were even more enormous than Dana's - though Butch's highly-sensitive nipples were nowhere as big as Dana's. The redhead-turned-blonde sported massive nipples in keeping with the scale of her huge tits, while the blond-man-turning-female had smaller nipples, like a woman who'd had radical breast-enlargement surgery.

She couldn't dwell on her new tits for long, though, since there were other changes still occurring. A black leather 'duster' coat wrapped itself around her body as she began slender, supple and sensual, her hair lengthening and turning a shiny, silky black as the face it surrounded altered, becoming coolly beautiful with full, dark-red-glossed lips and dark, smoldering eyes. Her cheeks were high and well defined, and her nose sharp and patrician. She looked sexy as hell - and more than a little intimidating.

In the space of a few seconds, Butch had changed as completely as her room. She was now all woman - and a hell of a woman at that. She was tall and slender and tautly muscled, like a panther. Her incredibly high heels only added to her leather-clad height.

Her breasts were enormous. Incredibly huge and round and firm, bound tightly into an erotic sheath of leather. More leather compressed her slender-yet-muscular waist, and yet more glossy black cowhide covered her incredibly long, tautly-sexy legs. Her incredible ass and tight, wet cunt were left open, however - for easy access, one would assume.

She'd been turned into an imposing, raven-haired seductress with massive, round breasts - yet none of that bothered the new woman nearly as much as the strange sensations in her mind. The sensations that told her, somehow, her mind had been altered.

Extensively.

"Now, that's much better!" Dana said, clasping her hands together in a theatrical show of girlish glee. "Come on, now, let's not keep your guests, fans, and paying customers waiting..."

Dana strode, quickly, towards the bedroom doors. Dazed, the new woman followed her, not even noticing her long, powerfully-sexy stride, a sensual strut that was as much challenging as arousing.

All done atop high, slender heels - and with the added handicap of her extremely top-heavy new build.

She was still stunned, unable to do anything but follow - sensuously - where Dana led, when Dana threw open the doors of the bedroom, and there was a breathless pause as utter silence fell...

...and then the applause started. The thunderous, screaming applause - and, somehow, the new woman knew it was for her. Her head swam and a shudder of pleasure ran through her new body at the thought of being that popular. Of having that much attention focused on her.

Suddenly, she craved that attention. She needed it. She didn't know why - but she knew it was true, so now her numb following became a brisk, purposeful stride as she moved closer to that applause.

Her applause.

Then Dana was shouting into a mike that had magically appeared in her hand, her amplified voice rolling out through the huge open room, one side of which was floor-to-ceiling glass.

"Ladies and Gentleman! Boys and girls! Sex addicts of all ages and perversions! Bow down in reverent prayer, for you being granted the supreme, the eternal, the unspeakable honor of being visiting, in person and in the flesh, the Country Countess of Kink "

The applause swelled even more - and many voices were matching Dana's amplified one, shouting out what was obviously a well-known chant.

"...The Southern SlutBitch !"

Now the entire crowd was screaming it at the top of their lungs, overpowering Dana's amplified voice. Pleasure at the mere thought of all that adoration thundered through the new woman's long, buxom body.

"The One...! The ONLY...! BITCH CASSIDY!"

'That's me ' Bitch thought with somehow dark, near-orgasmic pleasure.

Then she was arrogantly striding down the short, curving flight of stairs to the main floor - which was packed with people.

Men. Handsome men by the dozen - by the score. Women, in sexy clothing. People with cameras, still and video. A sound crew. Two bartenders - open bar, apparently...

She couldn't worry about trivial little things like an open bar, being turned into a woman, or suddenly finding herself thing eagerly of fucking and sucking men. No, it was much more important that she bask in the attention these people were giving her. It was what she needed. She could not lose it - would not. She'd do whatever these people wanted her to do, so that they'd pay attention to her. That was the important thing here.

There was some guy standing at the bottom of the staircase, staring at her with a slack-jawed expression on his pimply face. Bitch had no idea who the gangly guy was - and she didn't care. Just on an impulse, she grabbed the guy, slamming him up against the wall and kissing him, hard and deep. As she ground her tall, magnificent new body against his and kissed him painfully hard, she heard Dana's words behind her.

"All right, Internet Porn-Addicts, take a look. Young Jerry Snotley of Shithole, New Jersey, ponied up the five-and-a-half-grand for the entrance fee - and now look at him. Ask him if it was worth the money..."

Then, just as suddenly as she'd initiated it, bitch broke the kiss, all but tossing the stunned young man aside, his crotch bulging painfully from the pressure on his hard, throbbing cock.

Stepping away, Bitch was surprised to find herself speaking, also in impulse. In a negligent tone, she said, "Somebody fuck him, would you...?"

...and a half-dozen women lounging about nearby actually leapt at the stunned young man, eager to fulfill her commands. Bitch shivered in orgasmic pleasure at the power she held over these people. This was heavenly...

...or, at least, it would be - if it weren't for this tiny, nagging voice in the back of her head that was insisting that something was very, very wrong.

For the life of her, Bitch simply couldn't figure out what it might be...

Well, there was no time to puzzle it out now - she had to come up with a successor to her last 'act', something new and interesting. She had to keep their attention, their devotion, focused on her. She had too...

"Sluts and studs! Your attention, please! It is now time for Bitch Cassidy to perform judgment!"

Oh, good - Dana had everything planned for her. Gratefully, Bitch strode arrogantly into the cleared area, and watched as three strange women were led out...

...and then her brain froze momentarily as she realized that each 'woman' was boasting a massive cock...

...and furthermore, that each 'woman' was familiar. Though looking utterly feminine except for those massive cocks, and clad in feminine clothes, they didn't look the least bit 'masculine' - yet, in each face he could still see the man the 'woman' had once been...

...and each one of them was an old friend of hers. There was Steve. Ted. Even Carl - Carl, who'd so loved to joke about the size of Dana's rack...

...and was now sporting an impressive rack of his own. Not nearly as big as Bitch's, of course, but big enough - for a guy.

Now why did that thought really bother her? For that matter - what were Steve, Ted and Carl doing here - and looking like that? Dana's amplified words explained.

"You all remember Stephanie, Te-hui and Carla, don't you?" Dana called out, and the audience cheered back. "Not that those are their original names - but they're the only one Bitch lets them loose since she forcibly transformed her old friends into cum-craving sluts through surgery, brain-washing, and really, really expensive experimental therapies."

'What...?' Bitch thought, stunned - but none of it showed on her seductive, arrogant face.

"Now, as you can imagine, all three of them really, really hate bitch - so, they're going to try and fuck her brains out. You see, to make this a fair contest, Bitch is going to be injected with a serum that will take away all her willpower. Unfortunately, the effect is permanent, but Bitch is willing to accept that in the spirit of making this a fair contest, otherwise her current pure perfection would guarantee..."

Dana continued to prattle on - even as the new woman's brain finally wrapped itself around what Dana was saying - and that snapped her out of her daze quick enough, and she started to open her full, no-longer-sneering lips...

...and the needle rammed. Home. Bitch didn't even manage to get out an 'eep' before the drug took hold, leaving her standing motionless, feeling weak and limp and unable to so much as twitch a muscle.

Until she heard Stephanie snarl at her. "Get over here, Bitch."

Then she could move - whether she wanted to or not. Obediently, she walked over to the three transformed men, who were staring at her with ugly eyes.

"Okay, 'girls'..." Stephanie said, coldly. "Let's get to work."

They stripped her. Roughly. And she could do nothing but stand there and let them do it, unable to summon up the energy for even the most token sign of resistance.

She wasn't even allowed to flinch as Carla bent her over slight, slammed his massive cock all the way up her ass, and proceeded to ass-fuck her, hard and brutal.

It hurt. A lot. A huge, thick cock slamming back and forth in her inadequately-stretched, inadequately-lubricated asshole.

It didn't feel nearly as bad as what was being to her at the front, however - because the other two transformed men were not injecting her with some compound that was causing her already massive tits to painfully grow larger and heavier, but they were putting steel rings through her nipples. They were also injecting her lisp with something that made them fuller and even more sensitive.

Then Carla cam, flooding her abused ass with hot, salty cum as the she-male withdrew her massive organ. She was then thrown to the floor on her back, her unbelievably huge new beach-ball-sized breasts bouncing painfully as her legs were hauled upwards and apart...

...and Te-hui slammed her huge cock into her pussy.

Ted hadn't been Asian before, but 'she' was now, petite and bronzed - except for her cock, which was massive and bronzed. A feral grin rode on her exotic-looking new face as she fucked Bitch hard and fast, while the other two worked on something off to the side.

When Te-hui was finished, Bitch was ordered to stand upright...

...and when she did, the three transformed men encased her in a shiny coating of fast-setting liquid latex which was exactly that odd pink shade that is called 'skin-tone', yet isn't.

They started at her feet, and while two of them worked their way upwards, Stephanie shaved off Bitch's hair. All of it. Soon, liquid latex had covered every inch of her except for her asshole, her cunt, her nipples, nostrils and mouth. It did cover her lips, and there it had been painted a high-gloss shade of red.

A huge, platinum-blond wig was lowered onto her head and glued into place.

Then a specially shaped couch was brought over, and Bitch was fitted into it - and ordered not to move, her glossy 'naked' body looking decidedly artificial, with only the slow rise and fall of her gargantuan tits to give away her life.

"May I now introduce you to Bitch - the living sex doll!" Stephanie shouted. "She'll do anything she's told! Watch!"

Then, stepping up beside her, Stephanie pressed the massive head of her huge, throbbing cock against her lips - and whispered the command.

"Suck me off."

Bitch had no choice but to comply. Helplessly, she began sucking Stephanie off, accepting the massive cock into her mouth and applying suction as Stephanie began to face-fuck her.

About the same time Stephanie pumped her huge, thick load of salty cum down Bitch's unresisting throat, somebody had stepped up and began to fuck her cunt - while the couches design allowed another to straddle her and begin tit-fucking the canyon of cleavage between her massive, impossibly gargantuan tits.

"No need to fight to get in line..." Dana's voice called, brightly. "The mindless living sex-doll without willpower isn't going to go anywhere - except when she'd lead away to eat, shit, sleep, or learn a new act. So, ladies and gentleman - enjoy..."

With all the attention focused on Bitch, nobody noticed the fact that Dana, quite literally, disappeared...

Billie 'Bitch' Cassidy had a hell of a life. She was rich, leggy, sexy, and incredibly well-endowed. She was living in a huge, cliff-side house with BDSM furnishings and a Hot-Pink 'Vette in the carport that she'd never get a chance to drive. Oh - and she was having sex all the time, day and night, sex of every type and position...

...while, inside, both 'Bitch the Dominatrix' and 'Butch the Man' screamed and fought, spending more time fighting each other than in a vain attempt to recapture control of a body that was, literally, a living sex toy for the masses.

THE END

SUMMARY: Trying to help his brother who is in danger, one man finds himself in the center of a scientific experiment where reality is change so that he is now a cum sucking bimbo.

Comes The Dark

By Gunslinger

With a hissing, sizzling sound, the flames rushed up, almost invisible in their blue-orange hue.

Waiting exactly five seconds, Kyle finally moved with a combination of practiced ease and efficient grace, sliding the lid on the pan and snuffing the flames. Waiting a half-beat to ensure that the flames were well and truly out, he lifted the lid and placed it aside, once more releasing the pungent fragrance of the orange brandy used in the flambé.

Sliding the plate closer to the side of the counter-top stove, he flicked the copper-bottomed pan with a practiced motion, sending the crepe over the edge of the pan. With his other hand, he expertly caught the rolled pastry with it's filling of fruits in the exact portion of the plate where he wanted it.

Laying the plate and pan aside, he turned off the heat on the stove and wiped his hands on a tea-towel before turning to the oven and extracting his warming dinner. Removing the metal cover from the pate, he held it in his left hand, then balanced the desert crepe on his left arm. Picking up his glass of wine with his free hand, he carefully made his way to the table in the far corner of the large, stone- floored kitchen, the heady fragrances of the meal wafting to his nostrils and causing his mouth to water in anticipation.

Setting the food on the table, Kyle refilled his glass from the bottle of standing red wine on the sideboard, then settled onto the hand- sewn cushion that padded the hard 'county' chair. Reaching for his fork, he prepared for the first bite of the perfectly cooked boeuf au jus....

...and the phone rang.

Kyle sat for a second, staring at the bite of food on the end of the fork, almost - but not quite - able to taste the rich, juicy flavor of the meat...

Then he sighed and put the fork down, sliding from the chair with an easy grace and heading for the ached doorway to his right.

If it had been his home phone - an extension of which was within reach of the table - he probably wouldn't have answered it. Even if it had been the phone in his office, he wouldn't have bother. Not now, especially not after arriving home after a week-long assignment on the Brazilian interior, away from the comforts of civilization - when the office phone rang, it was usually a indicator that he was about to be given a tip that would send him flying half-way round the world in frenetic chase of a second Pulitzer.

No - the reason he abandoned his first 'real' meal in a week was because the electronic shrill was issuing from another phone entirely - a phone which, in all logic, shouldn't be ringing.

So, it was almost palatable curiosity that moved Kyle to leave his meal. After all, it was that weakness - the addiction to information - that had lead him to become a reporter in the first place. It was that trait, his insatiable curiosity, that had driven him to become one of the best reporters in the world, to be found at the center of the biggest story of any given moment, chasing after that elusive God known as Truth.

And it was that trait that pulled the athletically slender man with the tousled head of sandy hair to his den, which - uncharacteristically - was in a state of disarray, luggage heaped on coffee-table and sofa, sharing space with the tools of his trade.

It was one of this 'tools' that was half-way through the third repetition of it's shrill, electronic call. Frowning in puzzled curiosity, Kyle flipped open the lid of the suitcase-like object and picked up the handset inside, pressing a green rectangular button that shared space with the rest of the controls.

"Hel.." He started to greet the unknown caller - then fell silent as he heard the series of clicks and hisses that indicated only one thing. To verify his suspicions, his eyes went to the readout on the control panel, and he watched as the boxy LCD letters went from 'NEG. PRO.' To 'RDY STU-IV'

It only served to deepen Kyle's confusion and curiosity. But the confusion didn't come from the cryptic words themselves, as he understood what they were trying to tell him.

It came from the fact that, not only was he getting a call on a phone that he hadn't expected to ring, it was coming in manner that he'd never before had reason to use.

As a reporter always in the thick of things, Kyle spent a lot of time on assignment in foreign countries. For that reason, he'd invested a good chunk of money on the purchase of this large, bulky 'cell' phone. But The Magellan World-phone was no ordinary cell phone - as it linked directly to satellites in Low Earth Orbit, allowing the phone to be used anywhere, no matter how remote.

The phone also came with a plethora of other features - one of which was the STU-4 protocol.

When two phones with the STU protocol called one another, they emitted a sequence of random numbers based on the exact instant the originating call was placed, allowing an algorithm to 'jump' frequencies during the call.

In short - it 'scrambled' the call, making the conversation between the two parties theoretically secure from electronic eaves-dropping - and Kyle had never had call to use it, not even knowing anyone else who had a STU-capable phone that could form the secure connection with his.

Yet - somebody was calling in, and using a secure link-up to do so.

The hiss-click of the phone synchronizing with the originating phone ended - to be replaced by the wailing hiss of thick, heavy static, taking Kyle by surprise. Designed for use anywhere and anywhere, even during high sun-spot activity, the World-phone was designed to give crystal-clear reception. All Kyle could think was that the interference was coming from the other end of the line.

Then, out of the murky hiss of static, a voice sound. '..yle... ou there? It's ..e, ..ris...'

In the back room of the large, Spanish-Mission style home Kyle owned sat a ham-radio transceiver that he used to keep his finger on the pulse of the world. Now, all those hours spent in weak communication with distant transmitters came in handy, his brain automatically filling in what blanks it could in the static-ridden voice.

"Chris?" Kyle said loudly into the phone, forcing his voice to the highest octave he could, as high-pitched sounds traveled better through static than low-pitched one. "Chris, is that you?"

"..es, It's m... yle. I'm so sor... ...all you, but... ...n't reach... ...one else. I need help, Kyle."

Thumbing up the volume on the phone, Kyle pressed it tight to his ear. "Chris! Chris, what's going on!"

Two years his senior, Kyle's brother Chris was a theoretical scientist, usually calm and composed at all times. Even with the static interference, Kyle could hear fear in his brother's voice, and it shocked and frightened him.

The static weakened for a second, not clearing completely, but making the words less broken.

"..idn't want to ..all you, Kyle." His brother's voice, softened by the static, came through. "But they... cut my phoneli I can't reach anyone else. Something's gone ..oribly wrong, and.... cover it up be.. too late."

Kyle's stomach dropped to his shoes. "What went wrong, Chris - who's trying to cover it up?"

As far as Kyle knew, his brother was working in a small private lab in Kentucky, doing AIDS research and if there's been some sort of accident, if somehow people had gotten infected If Chris had gotten infected.

"Ca... ..plain everyt..ing now, Ky... You ha.. to get... help.." Chris said, his voice fading in and out as the static grew worse. "...ey're jamm... ..ansmission. You.... call Jen... esrman.... ..gone. Head... ..Reasearch for Pro... ..nome "

"Chris, I'm loosing you again!" Kyle shouted into the phone, his mind trying to put everything together in a coherent manner - but even the words he could string together into sentences didn't seem to make sense.

Somebody was jamming the call? They'd cut the phone lines? What was going on?

"Jen who?" Kyle shouted in the phone, trying to get through. "I don't know who you want.."

"...eneral, Ky... Genera.. ..erman, Head...." Chris bellowed back. "...him Project.... gone wrong. The... cee... has.... ..renegad.... stopped "

Not 'Jen', a woman's name - but General somebody...

What the hell was Chris involved in? "...arefull, Ky... ..ry danger... ..find out "

"Chris!" Kyle yelled as the static whirled stronger then ever. "Chris, I didn't get the name! What's the general's name!" Chris apparently didn't hear. Static washed up and down, obscuring sound, then...

"..eware the dar " Chris's voice, nearly panicked, came through in a sudden clear spot.

Then, with a series of 'clicks' the transmission was broken.

Kyle stared down at the handset in confusion. What the hell was going on? That last fragment 'beware the dark?' was that what Chris had said?

Frowning, Kyle lay down the phone - but didn't hang it up, instead clicking on the 'hold' button.

Unlike a land-line phone, one party disconnecting didn't 'clear the line' - the World-phone stayed in standby on the same frequency, more like a CB then a phone in that respect.

Swiveling, Kyle picked up the handset of the conventional phone at the end of the couch and quickly punched in a number. "Hello, Uplink Center " A familiar voice at the other end said.

"Hey, Jerry - It's Kyle Forlander." Kyle said, having dealt with the company while in the field. "I've got a problem - I just was on your phone, and got tons of static and a premature cut-off before I could find out who I was talking to. Can you give me a GPS mark on the last call on frequency " Leaning over, he read off the frequency still showing on the display of the sat-phone.

"Sure - wait a sec while I check." Jerry said, the sound of keys being worked coming through the phone.

Kyle had done this a couple of times before - since the satellites that the communications went through 'focused' on the transmission through three separate satellites to get a good, solid signal, it was possible to find out where the originating uplink came from, accurate to within a few dozen feet. A similar system was used by GPS navigation systems, and the military had even more accurate GPS systems for steering cruise missiles in flight.

"Kyle?" Jerry said. "I got the numbers for you - it's...41 degrees 46 by 88 degrees 03." "Where would that put it?" Kyle asked. "Kentucky?"

"Not even close." Jerry replied. "That puts you in Chicago, my friend." "Chicago?" Kyle asked, confused. "Are you sure?"

"Not a doubt - but it's probably not the call you're referring to." "Oh?" Kyle asked.

"Yup - this one was STU'ed, and almost all the calls uplinked from that location are." Jerry said, and Kyle could almost hear the grin in the man's voice. "So, It's just another call to and from the eggheads at Argonne."

"Argonne?" Kyle asked, his instincts flaring. His house was just outside Freeport, and Chicago was practically his back yard - and the name rang a bell...

"Argonne National Laboratory." Jerry replied, making the connection for him. "Big government run lab near Lockport. Can't get within a mile of the place, looks like a doublya-doublya two prison camp - got security up the ying-yang. 'Sides, it can't be your call cause they got three big dishes for comm traffic - even in the worst sun-storm, those babies push enough megawatts to keep the signal clear." There was a short pause, then... "Jeez, man - either I'm lookin' at the most incredible coincidence I have ever seen, or your phantom call did come from Argonne."

"What?"

Jerry's voice sounded puzzled. "While I was checkin' out the data, somebody else did the same thing through the land-link to the computer. Routing shows it's coming from Argonnne - and they're back-tracking to your uplink." He paused. "With just the straight numbers, it'll only give them a rough location. Want me to send an e-mail to the routing system and let 'em know your at home and they can reach you by land-line?"

"No..." Kyle said, thoughtfully. "Now that I know who's trying to reach me, I'll give them a ring myself. Thanks Jerry." Hanging up, Kyle reached out and disconnected the sat-phone, a thoughtful expression on his face.

Chris, a brilliant theoretical scientist, would obviously be known to those who ran Argonne - which was right in his backyard. But, if for security reasons, you didn't want anyone to know he was working there, you give out a cover story. Then Chris just 'disappears' into Argonne, while a small office in Kentucky takes any calls for Chris and forwards them back, to keep up appearances.

A secret military lab pulling the 'Purloined Letter' maneuver and hiding in plain sight. A secret military lab that had just done a back-trace on the signal.

Maybe he'd gotten it all wrong - there'd been a lot of static, after all. Maybe Chris was doing some visiting research in the area and, not knowing Kyle was home, had called his sat-phone to ask permission to use the house while he was in the area.

Then again... maybe not.

Kyle's instincts were screaming - the same instinct that helped keep him alive while doing battle-field reporting in the hot-spots of the world.

Argonne was only half-an-hour away - and they knew where Chris had called, to within a few dozen feet. Liking his privacy, Kyle had the house built on a big tract of land quite a distance away from anyone else - there'd be no doubt as to which house the call had gone to.

And, in cases involving a cover-up, the idea of a reporter being the one who knew anything was considered bad, very bad. Maybe he was just being paranoid... but one word that had come through clearly and with no mistake was 'danger'.

Rising from the couch, Kyle let his instincts take over and he flipped open one of the suitcases from his recent trip. Maybe this would turn out to be nothing - but he'd rather feel stupid and silly later, then do nothing and find out his instincts were right.

He was dressed comfortably in the clothing he'd been wearing when he'd stepped off the plane this afternoon - a pair of olive-drab trousers, a khaki short-sleeved shirt and a pair of thick socks. Now, from the suitcase, he withdrew his hiking boots and quickly laced them on his feet.

Popping open the top compartment in the bag, he extracted an envelope full of cash and stuffed it in his shirt pocket, the pulled out the other item he kept in the bag.

A Para-Ordinance .45, based on the famous - or infamous - Colt Model 1911, but with a longer muzzle, double-stacked magazine, and equipped with a laser sight.

Kyle pulled the weapon from its rolled-up holster and inserted a thirteen-round clip into the wide grip of the pistol, then pulled back the bolt, chambering a round. Making sure that the weapon's safety was on, he slid it back into the holster, which he quickly pulled into place. Over the weapon and the two extra clips on the opposite strap of the sling, he pulled on a khaki field-jacket that held a flashlight, film, a hunting knife and a few other pieces of equipment in the various pockets and straps on the garment.

Closing the suitcase, he checked his watch and figured he still had fifteen minutes...

...and then the lights in the house went out.

Kyle stopped dead, his heart revving up as he realized he'd made a tactical mistake. It might be a half-hour drive...

...but it was only ten minutes by chopper. Outside, he could hear the faint thrumming chop of a helicopter's blades against the cooling night air as it descended towards night. The only light in the house came from the garish orange glow of the setting sun through the windows, painting everything a flaming orange.

Cursing at being right about this, Kyle began to move, the gun appearing to grow out of his fist like a malevolent magic trick.

Sidling up to a window, he peered out and saw that his house was loosely surrounded by a ring of armed men in uniform. In one hand, each man carried a rifle, the ubiquitous M-16 made so famous by Vietnam movies. In the other...

...a bullhorn?

Putting the irrelevancy aside, Kyle faded back into the deepest shadows in the room, senses alert as he tried to come up with some sort of plan. He definitely didn't like the turn events had taken.

Oddly, his mind kept wanting to jump back to the cooling meal left on the table, and he found himself wishing he'd taken just one bite before answering the phone...

...or, maybe, that he'd eaten the meal in leisure and ignored the phone completely. From outside came a crackling sound, followed by an amplified voice.

"Hey, Zwicky."

A younger voice, full of an odd anticipation, came in amplified response. "Yeah, Sarge?" "I bet whoever's in that house is completely unarmed."

'That's a bet you'd lose...' Kyle thought to himself, wondering what the hell they were up to. Taking a deep breath, he slipped from the shadow...

...and stopped dead, staring at his empty hand in shock and confusion. One instant, he'd been gripping the .45, checkered grip tight in a sweaty palm. The next... he was empty handed. A quick check revealed that it wasn't in its holster - or maybe it was. Because that holster was no longer strapped in place on Kyle's shoulder.

What the hell?

Suddenly, Kyle realized that he'd come to a dead stop in the center of the room, and was probably visible to anyone with a fairly good optics device...

...like a sniper-scope.

Quickly, he ducked into another shadow, mind spinning as he tried to deal with the impossible disappearance of his weapon. "Zwicky!"

"Yo."

"I bet he'd also bare-foot."

Ignoring the amplified - and surrealistic - conversation going on outside, Kyle darted from the room...

...the floor cold against his bare feet.

"What the...?" Kyle said, huddling next to an end-table in the living room, stunned. Somehow... whatever the men outside said was right - even if it hadn't been a second before.

The phone next to Kyle rang, and he fell over as his heart accelerated rapidly. Sudden, loud noises in this situation were not good. "Mr. Forlander, sir?" The amplified voice of 'Sarge' said. "I suggest you answer it."

Heart pounding, Kyle wondered if this was a diversionary tactic...

Then again - did it matter. Hesitantly, he reached out and picked up the phone, staying silent.

"Mr. Forlander?" The voice was smooth, polite, deep - with a rough-edged undertone to it, not exactly threatening, but giving the sense that the voice - and the person who owned it - could be threatening, if he wanted to.

"Yeah?" Kyle answered, hesitantly.

"Welcome to your brother's masterpiece, Mr. Forlander." The voice said, a faint undercurrent of humor coming through. "Welcome to Project Schrodinger."

The name rang something in the back of Kyle's head....

"Schrodinger's Cat!" He said, stunned realization slamming into him.

"Very good, Mr. Forlander." The voice replied. "I believe you understand your situation very clearly now."

Schrodinger's cat - shorthand for a theory in quantum mechanics, based on an amazing and confusing premise. The theory was simple

- if you put a cat into a box with a time-delayed vial of something that may or may not be poison, then the cat wasn't either dead or alive at any given time, until the box was opened and the cat's status was observed. In short, in the theories of Quantum Mechanics, nothing was real, but was simply a set of probabilities that were determined by the observer's act of observing.

"You see, Mr. Forlander." The voice said at the other end. "When we tracked your call, we decided it was time to 'field test' your brother's work. So we used a satellite to bounce what your brother has called the 'Probability Disruption Field effect' onto your house and surrounding area, soaking you in it. Until the field dissipates, you - and anything that you are touching - can be... 'influenced' by the beliefs of people around you." The voice chuckled. "So, you can see - there is no escaping."

Kyle might not be the scientific genius his brother was - but he was pretty bright. His eyes narrowed. "Wait a second... if that was a complete explanation, that why do I remember having a gun, putting on my boots? Shouldn't my memory have altered as well, to match the 'revised history' of the new probability?"

"I'm very impressed." The voice said. "And you're right - except that anybody currently within a PDF effect is immune to memory loss. We're not quite sure why, but it seems to be related to the frequency of the field itself. However - anybody outside the field will have their memories affected to match the new status of anyone effected. In theory, history rewrites itself completely to match the new status of anybody affected."

The voice at the other end was obviously trying to overwhelm Kyle with the power of the new 'weapon' at his disposal - and in part, it was working. But he'd also let something slip...

When knowledge was power, losing all knowledge of the 'original' configuration of the world would be intolerable to an organization. No

- they'd have to retain their original memories, while they could 'fill in' the new information by checking the instantly altered records and histories. So...

So - the man he was speaking with must also be within a PDF effect, immune from any memory changes. But that would be 'dangerous' if anyone's whims or thoughts could change him.

Unless, of course, the weapon had a 'safety'.

Schrodinger's cat was neither dead nor alive until observed - and the changes Kyle had experienced had only happened once he'd left the concealment of the shadows and become visible.

'Beware the dark', Chris had said - and now Kyle understood.

"Well - nice talking to you, but I've got places to go, people to see." Kyle said, flippantly. Hanging up the phone on the unknown man, Kyle stood and raced towards the basement... avoiding the shadows and remaining in the open.

Outside, the sound of running sounded... and Kyle winced and hunched over as a stream of bullets slammed through the window of the living room, chewing up the wall behind him.

Then he threw open the heavy metal fire-door to the basement and slipped through, slamming it behind him and locking it from the inside, buying himself a few minutes.

Fumbling, his hand finally hit the large 6V lantern on the wall and he flicked it on, flooding the stairwell with its light. Quickly, he rushed down the stairs and into the basement proper, searching frantically through the boxes there...

..and finally finding an old pair of sneakers, sans laces. He quickly pulled them onto his feet, then made his way to the back of the basement as, at the top of the stairs, a pounding began on the metal fire door.

Hands shaking with urgency, he unbolted the odd, round door at the back wall of the basement. Pulling it open, he exposed a six-foot- round opening that lead off to inky darkness. Stepping through, he pulled the door shut behind him and threw the bolts - the took off at a dead run, chasing the glow of the lantern ahead of him.

Despite how it might appear, there was nothing inherently Machevellian about the tunnel. Since he traveled so much, he'd designed his house to be as perfect as possible for his lifestyle. In the winter, it some times took a day or two after his return to get somebody to plow his long, winding driveway, and he'd had the tunnel installed to get him to a 'guard booth' at the very end of the driveway, where he could grab his mail or meet a cab while his driveway was inaccessible.

Now, he blessed its presence, counting on it to get him outside any perimeter the soldiers might have formed. He was about half-way along the tunnel when the lantern began to flicker and die.

"No..." Kyle urged the inanimate object. "Come on... just a little longer..."

The lantern - with its aging battery - ignored his plea, and faded into darkness. "Dammit!" Kyle swore. "You work, damn you!"

The flashlight flared back to life, bright and clear - and Kyle almost took a header.

Stunned on two accounts, he aimed the beam of the inexplicable functioning flashlight at his feet...

..and gaped.

Because they weren't his feet. They were slender, small, dainty feet. Feminine feet - a conclusion heightened by the shoes he was now wearing.

Black platform soles, two inches high. Slender heels, rising a good five, five and a half inches - maybe six. Hot-pink patent leather uppers, which were really a series of straps. A broad strap that ran over the top of each foot, leaving dainty toes bare. A second strap that went behind his altered heel, then rose up and crossed twice over slender, feminine ankles, before being held in place by little silver buckles.

"God damn!" Kyle swore in understanding as he struggled to maintain his balance. He himself had inadvertently brought the lantern to life by altering the probability of it - but, to slow him down, somebody else had altered probability to give him tiny feet perched on high heels.

Kyle wasn't sure whether or not that was better then if they'd had his feet become encased in concrete blocks.

Kyle was just about to sit down and unbuckle the shoes to take them off when he heard the sound of somebody working the bolts on the door at the end of the tunnel. Cursing, Kyle continued forward, balancing as best he could and using a hand on the curved wall of the tunnel for support as his new heels clicked and clattered on the concrete flooring.

Whoever had done this to him had been smart enough to specify the shoes would take time to remove.

Just as the door at the other end of the tunnel began to open, Kyle reached the stairs leading up to the booth at the end of the driveway.

Grimacing, Kyle balanced on the platform soles of the shoes as he hurried up the stairs as best he could, hand gripping the railing tightly.

Behind him came the clattering of booted feet running down the tunnel.

Frantic, Kyle struggled with keeping his balance as he burst out of the guard's shack...

...and nearly slammed into the side of a slow-moving semi negotiating the curve where his driveway exited. At the bottom of a hill and surrounded by trees, the curve forced trucks to slow to a crawl around the curve before being able to accelerate on the straight away.

Without a second thought, Kyle acted on instinct. Even as he was falling from the sudden stop - which had destroyed what little balance he had - he was tossing aside the lantern and reaching out with both hands...

...and catching hold of the empty metal frame for holding a spare tire that was attached to the bottom of the trailer. Unaware, the driver of the rig began to accelerate as the truck pulled onto the straight portion of the road.

Hauling himself up, Kyle curled himself up in the space, gripping onto the cool, dirty metal of the frame as the truck accelerated and rolled over pavement only a foot or so below his unstable perch.

A moment later, soldiers burst from the booth at the end of the driveway and looked around in frustration.

* * * * *

"Hey... get a load of this..." Don nudged his younger brother, Matt, as they began passing down the side of the rig that was 'hogging' the road.

Matt's eyes followed his brother's finger... and he watched, incredulous, as a pair of feet came into view from the edge of the trailer as somebody stretched to relax muscles cramped from the position the owner must be in.

Feet clad in pink-and-black high-heels.

Then they vanished as their owner once more coiled up in the small space, invisible in the darkness under the trailer. "Geez..." Matt murmured.

Pulling even with the cab, Don began to honk the horn on his Pony, trying to get the driver's attention.

The driver - tired from a long haul and nearing the point when the law said he'd have to rest - wasn't in the best of moods. He hated the secondary highways, so dark and narrow - with a full supply of morons like the two kids in the car that had been honking at him to get out of the way, then finally came up the shoulder to swing past him. Now they were hovering even with his cab, and honking at him.

Annoyed, he blew a long blast at them in reply... then slowly began to nudge to the right...

"Shit!" Don swore, accelerating to get out of the shadow of the looming rig. Looking back, he saw the driver giving him the finger. "Asshole!" Matt said. "You're not going to give up, are you?"

"Nope... If nothing else, I want to meet his mystery passenger." Don said with a tight grin, refusing to lose his cool in front of his younger brother, who practically idolized him. He began to slow the tiny vehicle, watching carefully in the mirrors as he kept the car dead in front of the rig's long, looming snout - forcing the driver to slow as well, cursing and blasting his horn.

To hide his nervousness at playing chicken with a big-rig, Don continued to banter with his brother, voice tight with tension as he concentrated. "Yeah.. I bet she's got great legs that go all the way up to there, and..."

* * * * *

Hearing the honking and the truck's bellowing reply, Kyle tensed, his body stiff and cramped from more than an hour in the tight, unstable perch...

...then felt the vehicle begin to slow.

It seemed to take forever, but the rig - brakes hissing - pulled to a complete stop, and Kyle knew that this was his chance. Forcing his stiffened body to move, he slid from the shadow of the truck...

...and gasped as he felt his body begin to writhe and change...

* * * * *

"What the hell is your major..." Larry, the trucker, yelled furiously as he climbed down from the rig and began to approach the slender young man who slipped from the driver's side of the tiny compact car.

"You've got a stowaway!" Don explained, hastily, pointing to the other side of the truck. "Some woman's hiding on a rack-thing beneath you trailer!"

"What!" Larry said, stunned. With Don following, he hurried around the front of his rig...

..and stopped dead, staring at the person facing away from them.

She was balancing unsteadily on a pair of high heels, the muscles of her long, sexy legs flexing under the black nylon that covered them. A short, hot-pink skirt enclosed her womanly hips and mind-boggling ass, leaving a smooth expanse of her back bare showing in the two-inch gap between the skirt and the shorty black T-shirt she wore, her mane of thick, golden-blond hair falling in waves down that slender back.

She seemed to be staring down at herself, her hands sliding over her body. "Hey!" Larry shouted, stepping forward...

Startled, she glanced for an instant over one shoulder, leaving Larry with an impression of huge, blue eyes, pert nose and full, gloss- pink lips...

...then she took off in an unsteady runny, her long legs carrying her towards the woods that lined the road.

"Hey!" Larry shouted, starting forward... but she'd already vanished into the woods, and Larry couldn't take the time to chase her down.

Turning, he shook his head. "Goddamn. A stowaway. I'm sorry for yellin' atchya kid - thanks for pullin' me over. If she'd fallen outta the tire well..." Larry shuddered at the image, and Don grimaced.

What a horrible fate that would have been for such a shapely young woman...

* * * * *

What a horrible fate - to be turned into a shapely young woman....

Kyle shuddered at the thought of his altered body, leaning against the tree for emotionally as well as physical support as he...

...she...

...tried to cope with the realization of what had happened. She wasn't sure of the exact scenario, but somebody had said or thought something about 'her' while she was in the darkness of the trailer, and stepping into the dim light available had brought it to reality, altering not just his body - but history.

As far as the world was concerned, this was how she'd always been. Perhaps even the soldiers that had chased her now remembered chasing after the body she now wore. The only people in the entire world that Kyle was sure remembered her the way she really was, was herself...

...and her unknown adversary, the man she'd talked to on the phone.

Shaped by the words of a twenty-one year old catering to the imagination of his eighteen-year-old brother, Kyle had become a living stereotype of a fantasy woman. Long blonde hair surrounding a face that looked as if it had never had an original thought in it's life - and if many of the unoriginal thoughts had been about sex. Her body was almost too perfect to be real, from the long, sexy legs to the tiny waist, all in the shadow of the massive, impossibly firm tits that trained the three-quarter-length T-shirt she wore. The one with the glittering silver letters that spelled 'Girlie!', surrounded by star-bursts of the same metallic glitter.

Also, somewhere Kyle had lost a good decade of age, at least, now somewhere in her early twenties, with soft, smooth skin that was a fantasy vision of smooth - lacking any body hair of any kind, even the fine, soft hair of a 'real' woman.

Of the intelligent, able and somewhat famous reporter she'd once been, there was no trace.

Shaking with the force of what had been done to her - the very alteration of every fiber of her being - Kyle pushed away from the tree and carefully headed back to the road, keeping an eye peeled to make sure that the trucker had left, while struggling to maintain her balance in the high heels. Reaching the side of the road, she found that the 'coast was clear', as the old saying went. Choosing to continue away from her home, Kyle started walking along the side of the road, feeling the unusual and awkward movements of her reshaped body.

Her legs themselves felt weird, and it wasn't just because they were perched atop high heels. Part of it was the fact that they were proportionally longer compared to the rest of her. Also, her ass was fuller and her hips wider, imparting a strange little 'twist-swivel' motion to her stride.

Then of course, there was her huge new bust. The size of basket-balls, they were amazingly firm and round, and encased in - in Don's words - 'an over-the-shoulder-boulder-holder' made of black cotton with lace trim. Despite that, they had an annoying tendency to bounce and jiggle with every wobbling, unsteady step she took, forcing her to move her hips a bit more to compensate for the movement. She wondered how a 'real' woman dealt with the movements of the body and made it look so easy...

...then found out.

The world seemed to waver around her, actually rippling, as if it were a canvas that was being shaken - then it snapped back into total clarity...

...and her walk smoothed out, becoming a supple, smooth, sexy stride with her chest pushed up and out in apparent pride.

Kyle stopped dead in shock, wondering what the hell had just happened. Along with her sudden - and help-less - switch to sexy, female motions, a small back-pack-like purse had appeared over her shoulder. Unslinging it, Kyle opened it...

Make-up. Keys. Some money... and ID.

For 'Kayla Finch', aged 22, of Freeport, Illinois. The photo showed her new, vapid looking face verifying that this was her new identity. For a second, Kyle... Kayla... didn't get it.

Then it hit home. She'd just seen the effects of the PDF effect from an outside perspective. If she still hadn't been under the influence of her own field, her memories would have altered to match her new identity and life - but because the effect was slowly fading from her body, she'd been caught by the side-effects, giving her the sexy walk that was Kayla's. She was sure there were probably also a few new wrinkles that managed to slip through the weakened field that held her, but she hadn't had a chance to see them yet.

However, her mind wasn't on what might have been done to her - it was on the realization of what this meant.

In attempt to 'clean up' the problem, his unnamed nemesis must have used the effect on Chris - and said that Chris was an only child. History had altered to make it so - and so Kyle became Kayla, a person with her own life and completely unrelated to Chris.

A cold chill went through Kayla at the realization of the fate she'd so narrowly escaped. Being a woman was a horrible fate, as far as she was concerned, but it wasn't a fate worse than death.

What they'd planned for her, however, would have been. The universe had taken the 'path of least resistance' in matching the new history. Since her new form was so dissimilar from Chris' lineage, she'd just been given a new identity to match. But if she'd physically been Chris' brother, still, then the effect would have been different.

'Kyle' wouldn't have died - he would have been edited out of history, never to have existed. Which, in fact, was more or less what had happened - but, in this scenario, at least his consciousness lived on, even if it was in the body of 'Kayla Finch'.

Only now did the true, awesome power of the weapon her adversary held become clear to Kayla - and she was stunned to find that her new body and identity were a pale torture compared to what could have been done - which was, quite literally, anything. Despite being shamed, disgusted and horrified by her sudden 'demotion' to womanhood, she was still healthy and - being younger - could be considered in a slightly better situation.

But what if the adversary had altered the probabilities so that Chris' brother was dumb, deaf, blind and quadriplegic? Or suffering a slow, intensely painful disease? There were millions of other, worse scenarios that Kayla could imagine, and she shuddered at them all - but especially at the thought of just being 'edited' out of existence, not only her future life ended, but her past life and work removed and erased. While part of that had happened, at least there was the future - and thus, hope, thin as it might be.

Hope and despair, anger and shame, rage and fear whirled in the new woman's mind in perfect balance, and she was momentarily lost, not knowing what to do. Then she forced herself to push the more distant future aside and focus on what to do right now - and the answer for that was fairly easy.

She needed a place to stay - and, according to 'her' ID, she had a home, which was merely an address to her right now. Sighing, she started walking again, finding it easier to walk now that her body 'remembered' how she 'always' walked - but that hardly raised her spirits. The ability to walk and move like a woman wasn't quite something she was ready to be proud about, no matter how useful it might be in the current situation.

* * * * *

The weirdest thing was...

...things looked familiar.

Walking through Freeport, her feet aching, the straps of her bra digging into her shoulders, mind awash with the situation she was in and the ramifications of it all, Kayla still couldn't help but notice the strange feeling of Deja Vu that would creep over her - more and more often as she neared 'her' place. Thanks to the weakening effect on her, and the 'bleed through' of altered history, she had a sort of double vision, Clear and strong was her view through the eyes and memories of 'Kyle', who had passed through Freeport, done shopping there - but didn't know it. The weaker vision was from 'Kayla', who lived there and knew things no casual visitor would.

Even as she passed a diner on a street corner, she had a sudden conviction - completely unsupported by anything 'Kyle' knew - that they had the best fries anywhere. Although Kayla couldn't bring up a clear memory of having eaten there, or under which circumstances, she just knew that she had, and must have loved the fries.

It was... weird.

Finally, Kayla reached the building that her ID designated as home, and she looked at the building with that odd doubled vision - it was at once both unfamiliar and yet so tantalizingly familiar. Entering the building, she didn't need to watch for apartment numbers or figure out where she lived - though, to her 'memory', this was the first time she'd been there, her body seemed to know the way and, out of long 'habit' led itself up two flights of stairs, through a fire door, and three doors down and on the right, her hand even retrieving her keys without an explicit command from her mind.

It was unnerving.

Unlocking the door, she stepped into the apartment and swung the door shut behind her, dropping her purse and keys on a table just inside the door - again with a feeling of long habit - while she looked around in interest at where 'she' lived...

The door behind her rattled, and she whirled and stepped back as the door swung open, revealing a well-built young man with a shock of dark hair and expressive features.

His eyes locked on hers as he stepped inside, his face registering surprise and relief. "Kayla! Thank God!" He said, stepping forward, arms extended....

Kayla had no idea what she was going to do until she was doing it - stepping into his embrace, wrapping her arms around his broad shoulders, and kissing him passionately, pressing her incredibly endowed figure against his firm, delightfully masculine body...

With a gasp, Kayla yanked herself away from the man. Stunned, she realized that what had happened was an action of her 'Kayla' bleed-through - but that didn't stop the feeling of shame at the eager way she'd thrown herself into the kiss with....

John. She was absolutely positive his name was John, though she had no memories to support ever meeting him.

"Kayla?" John asked, confused at her actions. "Are you okay? What's going on - where were you?" "I, uh..." Kayla stammered, blushing furiously...

Then, suddenly, she was absolutely sure where 'Kayla' had been.

"The car broke down." She said, somewhat hesitantly. "I had to walk home."

"Damn - I knew we should have gotten rid of the clunker and got a new car!" John berated himself angrily, closing the door behind him with more force than was necessary. Then he turned back to her, a quizzical look on his face. "Why didn't you call me, honey? I would have had Lou come pick you up."

'Because I don't know my own phone number' wasn't what she replied. Instead, she winged it.

"There was no phone nearby.. and by the time I got near one, you must have gone out looking for me, so I came straight home." "Baby, I was so worried about you. You've been out all night..." He shook his head. "You must be exhausted."

"Yeah." Kayla said. "I.. I just want to get some sleep." "You sure?" He asked. "You must be starved." "Well... yeah..." She admitted.

"Why don't you climb into a nice warm tub and I'll bring you something to eat?" He asked - and it sounded almost sinfully good to Kayla, who ached in body parts she hadn't even had twelve hours ago.

While John headed for the kitchen, Kayla headed for the bathroom - and looked down at her hand and wasn't terribly surprised to find that she hadn't noticed the wedding ring on her finger.

After a warm bath and a quick meal, she headed for the bedroom - with John right behind her. She was glad the light was off in the bedroom, as she didn't know how to explain the bright flush she was wearing, and she had to fight the urge to make some sort of excuse to send him out to the couch - that would only cause problems she didn't have the energy to face, instead, she climbed into the bed, instinctively knowing which side was hers, while John climbed in the other side...

...and reached for her...

"What's wrong, honey?" John asked as she stiffened and inched back from his touch. Concern and confusion was rampant in his voice, and Kayla couldn't help but feel bad about treating an obviously loving husband this way - but what else was she going to do? Tell him that she was a man until a few hours ago.

"I'm just tired, stiff and sore." She said.

"Of course - I'm sorry honey. I should have known better."

Repressing a sigh of relief, she rolled over and pulled the blankets around her shoulder, feeling incredibly weird about being in bed with 'another' man.

The definitely new sensation of her breasts pressed against the mattress wasn't exactly reassuring, either...

* * * * *

Kayla awoke to a fantastic feeling...

Blinking drowsily, she looked down to find John fondling and massaging her huge, firm tits, his tongue and lips teasing her swollen, erect nipples.

Moaning softly and sleepily, she let her head loll back a sleepy, dreamy grin on her lips - nobody could play with her tits like John. "Mmmmm.... baby..." She moaned sleepily, as she felt John shift in preparation for a semi-regular ritual for 'waking her the right way'. With a hiss of drawn in breath, she felt him slide his hard, ready cock deep into her sopping wet cunt...

...and she came fully awake as the pleasure of his first thrust ran through her body - and she realized what was going on.

"Oh God!" She said in horrified realization - but John mistook it for a shout of passion as he began to fuck her with a strong yet gentle rhythm, his cock driving in and out of her and creating an incredibly erotic friction that caused intense pleasure...

...that was totally unwanted by the transformed man.

"...don't..." She gasped, her voice hoarse in unwilling pleasure as the disgustingly wonderful sensation of her first sexual experience as a woman thundered through her. She moaned helplessly in the grip of the passion and ecstasy that she was feeling. "...stop..."

Again, John misunderstood, taking it for her 'don't stop, harder' request - and he complied.

Kayla helplessly cried out as the pleasure doubled and redoubled, panting as her body began to respond though it's sexual habits, and she was helpless to stop her 'well trained' body as it enthusiastically joined in on the fun.

Then she screamed in mixed pleasure and disgust as her body shuddered under the onslaught of her first female orgasm, and he came deep into her cunt before collapsing before her panting body.

As the orgasm subsided, she regained control of her self - and she rode and fled into the bathroom, slamming the door behind her and crouching, bent double, on the toilet, disgusted by how much she'd enjoyed the sex and the way 'Kayla' seemed to enjoy it even more. Memories that were both hers and not hers swam through her head, informing her that she'd done this many times before, that she enjoyed doing it, that she was a very willing participant who enjoyed all sorts of sexual acts with John...

John had been knocking on the door, asking what was wrong in a worried voice. Now, using a straightened coat-hanger, he popped the privacy lock on the door and opened it.

"Kayla, baby - what's wrong?" He asked, stunned as his wife recoiled back from him.

Then, in the midst of the emotional pain and confusion she was feeling, Kayla found a plan form in an instant, full-formed and perfect.

"I... I was raped last night..." She sobbed convincingly, collapsing into his arms - but her stiffness at his touch and her reaction to sex were suddenly 'understandable' to her husband.

"What...?" He said, horrified and enraged. "Who!"

"I.. I never really saw him." She sobbed. "I just heard his voice - a deep, kind of gravelly voice - and saw a security badge on his jacket. I couldn't make out the picture or name... but he works at Argonne National Laboratory..."

* * * * *

John Finch was not going to take no for an answer.

"I demand to see the director of this facility and I want to see him right now!" John said, jamming his face into the guard's, his arm still clasping Kayla's tightly. "If I can't see him now, with my wife, I'll come back in an hour with the police!"

The guard's partner was rather nervously fingering his holstered sidearm, but the guard - seeing in John's eyes that he wasn't bluffing - stepped back from the coldly enraged man and nodded. "Hold on just a second...sir."

The ingrained honorific obviously took something out of the guard to say - and also revealed the fact that, despite his civilian uniform, he was most probably military. In the US Army, they taught you to 'sir' a civilian as if he were a General.

Twenty minutes later, they were being led towards the office of Director of Operations, William C. Mackenzie, Kayla with her heart in her throat and John with a scowl on his face.

The guard escorting them opened the door, and announced them as 'Mr. and Mrs. Finch', then let them in and closed the door behind them.

The man behind the desk hardly looked like the man to be running a scientific research facility - although short, he was broad shouldered with a gleaming bald head and dark, watchful eyes that looked them over with wary interest.

"Can I help you?" He asked calmly. "I understand you demanded to see me."

His voice was smooth, polite, deep - with a rough-edged undertone to it, not exactly threatening, but giving the sense that the voice - and the person who owned it - could be threatening, if he wanted to.

Bingo.

And the beautiful thing was - Mackenzie had no idea he was facing somebody who knew his secret. He thought he'd erased her off the face of the earth, when, in fact, he'd actually provided her with the perfect 'cover'.

"That's him!" Kayla said, with a simulated horrified gasp, pointing at Mackenzie... John's response was predictable.

"You slimy little..." He snarled, reached out, and hauled the unsuspecting man out of his chair and over the desk.

They were of about even muscle mass, but John was taller and had the element of surprise on his side. He managed to haul Mackenzie completely over the desk and start shaking him like a rag-doll before the startled man could have hit an alarm button.

Kayla quickly ran around the desk, not sure what she was searching for, exactly, but hoping she'd recognize it when she saw it.

Mackenzie wouldn't risk 'random' problems while anyone else was in the office. The whole 'announcing' visitors was really to give him time to shut off the constant field that kept him immune to memory changes. So - there must be an on-off switch somewhere here...

She found it, on a small access panel near the kneehole of the desk. He must also have another one - or a satellite bounce-back at home, and this one had a key to lock it out when he was out of the office. However, taken by surprise, he hadn't had a chance to remove the key, and it gleamed from the slot in which it rested.

She also found something else, however, hidden in the knee-hole of the desk... and she grinned wickedly. "John!" Kayla shouted. "This phone doesn't work!"

Then she drew the .357 Magnum Bulldog with its long, thick silencer from its clip-sheath and leveled it at the two suddenly very still men.

"I'll hold him here - you go call the police. And close the door so he can't make a break for it!" Kayla shouted. "Kayla.."

"Go!"

John went - and as soon as he was out the door, she switched the field on with her knee, her two-handed grip on the gun keeping the angry, tense man from guessing what she'd done. He still had no idea who he was dealing with, and as she slowly came around the desk and edged for the door, gun leveled unwaveringly, he proved it by speaking.

"Look, I don't know who you are or what you think I've done..." He started, sure that he'd be able to walk away from this one safely.

"Oh, it's not what I think you've done." Kayla said, reaching behind her to lock the door. The light switch was only inches away - but she'd bet anything that, for safety reasons, the switch also controlled the effect so an accident wouldn't leave him vulnerable.

She, however, wasn't an accident.

Then she raised the gun and - before he could react - blew out the light in his interior office, dropping them into pitch black.

"I bet you couldn't say a word to anyone, in any way, about Project Schrodinger." She said loudly into the darkness - and she heard him gasp.

"How..." A short, angry silence - "Forlander!" "Yup - and I bet..."

He hit her hard, trying for the door - but she was ready for the movement and accepted the impact, despite the pain - then clubbed downward with the butt of the pistol. She missed his head, but the impact on his shoulder was enough, and she spun him as he pulled away, disorientating him.

"Nice body." He said, calculatingly. "I bet that you're a super horny little slut, right?"

Ouch. This combined verbal and physical battle was a two-sided sword, and Kayla knew it - and she was at a disadvantage on both sides. She'd have to act fast, and hope...

"Yeah, well I'll bet..."

* * * * *

The female secretary outside the office was more than she appeared to be. Despite being shorter and slimmer than John, she was a trained fighter, and they'd only managed a stand-off - which had been enough for reinforcement to arrive in a few minutes, alerted by other workers. Now, two guards held a bruised and bleeding John as one of the guards began bashing on the door with increasing intensity.

"Get him out of here!" He ordered, shooting an angry look at John - then he turned and, bracing himself, slammed against the locked door.

As the other guards began to lead him away, John watched helplessly as the man hit it again, this time popping it open and letting fluorescent light stream into the room.

They were unable to notice as the world suddenly wavered, then...

* * * * *

"mmm-MMMf-mmmummm"

"Don't.. talk.. with.. your mouth.. full.." John gasped in pleasure.

Kayla fell silent, except for the slurping noises she made as she sucked vigorously - one could almost say hungrily - on her husband's cock, her hands, lips, and tongue moving with incredible skill as she brought him towards a raging climax, having teased him to the edge and back until he could no longer hold on.

With a muffled moan, John let go, filling her mouth with a full load of warm, salty cum that she gulped down greedily. Licking him clean, she let him soften before 'zipping him up'.

"God..." John breathed, sighing. "That - as usual - was absolutely incredible. "I bet it was, honey." Kayla said in her high-pitched voice - and giggled.

She giggled a lot. Just slightly more than she sucked and fucked her husband - but then again, what could you expect from somebody that had once - rather devastatingly - been described as having 'a chemical imbalance that makes her a cum-craving, cock-sucking, fuck-crazed nymphomaniac'?

A statement that - very shortly thereafter - had been nothing but the truth.

Her full, red lips seemingly locked in a permanent smile, Kayla slowly rose to her feet, her massive tits jiggling and swaying in the skimpy bra she wore. The massive undergarment did little to support her basket-ball-sized globes of tit-flesh - but it wasn't necessary, as her massive tits were almost inhumanly firm, despite their size. No, she wore the bra because of the way it felt on her incredibly large, unbelievably sensitive nipples.

With another giggle, she slipped her arm around her husband's waist and they headed towards the pool just off the back of the house. Despite the (custom made) three-inch platform shoes with the ten-inch stiletto heels she wore, her tiny, slender frame was still dwarfed by her husband's bulk, and the size difference made him - and his average-sized endowment - seem absolutely huge.

The trailing ends of her massive mane of curly, platinum-blond hair swayed across the skintight red latex pants that enclosed her spectacular ass as he walked arm-in-arm with her husband, already feeling the helpless, insatiable desire for any kind of sex at all rising in her, hidden behind a face that couldn't ever display any emotions but cheerful - and practically mindless - ones.

Having been trapped in this tiny, huge-breasted, sex-crazed body for over a month, Kayla was just getting used to her body's demands for sex. That didn't mean she was completely comfortable with it - not by a long shot - but the fact that her body created intense physical pleasure during any sexual act (including cock-sucking) went a long way towards easing the emotional pain, even if it didn't obscure it completely.

"Hey, Chris." Kayla giggled at her brother, who was reclining on a lounge chair beside the pool, soaking up the rays.

"hey, Sis." Chris replied with an easy grin for his only sibling. "Hey, John - guess I don't have to ask 'how's it hanging', huh?"

His brother-in-law laughed at the running joke - Kayla was so utterly insatiable that he was always hanging 'limp and satisfied' - because, as soon as he was able to get it up again, she'd 'relieve' him of the pressure.

Chris could joke about it easily - because John wasn't the only utterly satisfied man in the house.

Kayla turned as the door opened again, and Billi came out, carrying a ice-bucket full of beers. As usual, the tiny Amazon was grinning, despite her somewhat wry personality.

"Hey, ugly..." She said to Chris, handing him a beer. "...why am I always the one to do the run and carry?" "Because you leave me to drained to do the heavy work." Chris grinned at her.

As always, at the slightest hint of sexual talk, she blushed slightly, looked away.. then almost unwillingly slid her eyes to her fiancée's crotch, longingly.

"Speaking of which..." She said, with her usual hesitancy, shifting awkwardly from one incredibly high-heel to the other.

Other than the fact that she was more muscular - in a sexy, feminine way - and slightly less endowed, Billi was awfully similar in body to Kayla, although her facial features differed, as did her personality.

Her cravings for sex, however, were identical.. even if she didn't seem as 'comfortable' satisfying them as Kayla was.

Chris, however, didn't have any problems with that. Taking a long drag of his beer, he lay it aside and rose. Taking his intended's hand, he smiled at the other couple, then started towards the bedroom.

Billi looked back over her shoulder at Kayla. "Thanks, girlfriend." She said, her new nature hiding most of the venom in the comment.

"She keeps saying that..." John said, broaching the subject that had been nagging him more and more ever since Kayla had introduced her remarkably similar friend to her brother. "Why is that?"

"Oh, it just has to do with something I said once..." Kayla said, real humor shading her permanently cheerful features.

As John lay on the vacated lounge and Kayla lay on top of him so he could fondle her bra-clad tits between sips of beer, she still had to laugh internally at her 'childish' stroke of genius back in the office.

After all, the other person didn't have to hear the defining words for them to have an effect, as she knew all so well...

..so, the phrase had been the most utterly perfect revenge she could have ever devised for the man responsible for what she'd become. "Yeah.. well so are you..." She said softly, with a giggle.

"What was that, baby?" John asked, confused.

"Oh, nothing." Kayla said, giving him a kiss and relaxing in his arms.

After all, with a certain man 'edited' out of history, Chris Forlander had worked in the commercial sector and made a fortune, allowing him and his sister - and now, their 'significant others' - to live in the lap of luxury....

As always, the thought of 'lap' turned her mind in another direction, and she found herself slowly grinding her full, womanly hips against John, to see if he was 'ready' yet....

The sun's rim dips; the stars rush out: At one stride comes the dark.

-S. T. Coleridge, The Ancient Mariner

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: A male chauvinistic CEO is forced to either give up his company, or allow himself to be transformed into a woman; choosing the later, he discovers he likes it.

Comeuppance

By Gunslinger

"What the hell is this?"

Darien Cross looked at the form in his hand with anger. The handsome young CEO, looked up at the smirking lawyer across the desk, and his tanned, strong face darkened with anger beneath his fair hair.

"That..." Lindsay McNair said, smirking. "Is going to put you out of business for good."

Darien glared at the dark-haired lawyer. "I'm the head of a Fortune 500 company, one of the richest men in America, and a prominent business man. Do you really think I'll be removed so easily?"

Lindsay smiled. "Yes - you also happen to be sexist, chauvinistic and ,as Judge Wilma Tomason noted 'unrepentant'."

"I didn't do anything wrong." Darien said angrily. "It's you... feminists, jumping on any member of the male gender as if we're the root of all evil in the world."

"Oh, really?" Lindsay retorted. "Although I was more than happy to prosecute you, it was five of your female employees who brought the charges of sexual harassment, gender discrimination and unfair hiring practices."

Darien's eyes narrowed. "Yeah. All I did was ask that the women wear makeup and acceptable work attire - and ask them out for business lunches, the same as my male employees. There was no sexual harassment."

"Judge Tomason thought differently."

Darien looked down at the paper again. "Perhaps - but this says I have an option - rather than lose my position, I could undergo this... what is Article Two-seventy-one, anyway?"

Lindsay laughed. "Nope - you're out of business. That is a new wrinkle in the law, looking for it's first test subject. Gender Appreciation and Sensitivity Program. Some whiz-kids in a lab figured out a way to make men look convincingly female, then turn them back. You'd have to agree to be turned into a woman, and stay a woman until you meet all the conditions of the 'parole'. You don't meet them, you don't get to be male again."

It was probably Lindsay's smug expression, even more so than the loss of his vast fortune, that prompted his next words. "Oh, so you don't think I'd take it? I'll tell you something, Miz McNair - if women can take being woman, then I can handle it. I might just take this Program."

Lindsay laughed. "Yeah, right. Even if you were serious - which you aren't, you can't even bear the thought of being a 'pathetic little woman' - you'd wimp out at the last moment and lose you company and dignity."

Angrily, Darien glared at Lindsay. "We'll see about that - now get the hell out of my office, Miz McNair." Lindsay rose and headed for the door, throwing a parting shot over her shoulder.

"It's only your office for another seven days - then somebody else gets this place, and you end up flipping burgers for minimum wage."

The heavy mahogany door swung shut, leaving Darien fuming silently.

Looking down at the paper in his hand, he reached for the phone. He, truthfully, didn't sexually harass his female employees, and his only fault in that direction was his 'archaic' tendencies towards such things as holding doors open for women, or requiring them to wear appropriate make-up during business hours. But the fact that his top executives were all male - hired solely on their resumes, not genders - the feminist lobby had it out for him.

So, as he dialed the phone, he did something he didn't usually do - he said, aloud, a word he usually only thought, and that infrequently.

"I'll show that bitch a thing or two..."

* * * * *

"So, the upshot of this all is - you'll look, and even feel to yourself and everyone else, completely and utterly female. Of course, a medical examine would find the differences, and you won't menstruate or be fertile. But otherwise, you'll be a completely believable female." Dr. Harding paused, ribbing his bald pate. "Assuming, of course, that you go through with it."

"Assuming?" Darien asked, sitting across from the doctor. He was dressed in an expensive, sober suit, and was doing a marvelous job hiding his uneasiness being here.

The doctor sighed, and slid a piece of paper across the desk to Darien. "These would be the requirements you'd have to meet while being female."

Darien looked at it, hiding his distaste. Dressing only in clothes that the manufacturer designated as being female.... Using only feminine products... Required to wear make-up and feminine hairstyle appropriate for the situation... all of this seemed rather unpleasant, but made sense in light of...

Darien screeched to a halt near the bottom of the list. "Go on 'social interactions' with males? Have some form of sexual intercourse, at least three times?"

The doctor sighed. "Ah, yes. It's part of the package. That's why I said 'if' - Ms. McNair told me that when you saw that, you'd back out."

Suddenly, Darien saw red. That damned bitch was driving him crazy. Getting him in trouble, doubting his courage and convictions...

"Oh? What else did MIZ McNair say?" Darien asked in a low, frighteningly even voice.

The doctor blinked. "Oh, not much else. Just that if, by some remote, unimaginable chance, you DID agree with it, you'd take the least feminine body available, and would be painfully obvious during your 'parole', completely unable to blend in or act natural."

Darien's blood thundered through his veins and red spots of rage danced before his eyes. "Really? Well, perhaps she doesn't know me as well as she thinks..."

* * * * *

Lindsey walked through the doors of the medical center with the oddest series of conflicting emotions.

She'd gone after Darien Cross for the same reason she went after all high-profile men she could. Men were scum. It was a fact, as obvious a saying 'water is wet'. Men were scum, with thousands of centuries history of abusing women, the only truly evolved life-form on the planet. It was obvious in everything in society - even the words used. "Mankind" to refer to human beings, "Masterful" to describe something well done... it went on and on. Men were scum.

So she'd had no compunctions having some of her underground sympathizers apply for jobs at Cross' company, then exaggerate situations to get the conviction from a sympathetic Judge. It wasn't injustice - after all, all men were scum. Some, like this Cross animal, were better at hiding it than others. But eventually, they'd whittle them down, allowing woman to take the top positions, and guide society back onto the female dominated path - the right path.

Which was part of the reason for her confused emotions. Judge Tomason had to put that clause in the conviction, the one about the Advanced Gender Sensitivity Training experiment - but it hadn't mattered, because men were too weak and pathetic to take being female. Everybody knew that.

Yet - this Cross character had taken it. Lindsey still couldn't believe it. On one side, she was upset - the plan was to get him out of the CEO office, so a woman could take over, and this jeopardized it. On the other hand, she was also elated at the chance to see Darien fail miserably at his attempt to be a Goddess, like her and natural woman all over the world.

She was even more confused because, to her amazement, Darien had requested her as Training Officer. This was a real sacrifice, and she'd been tempted to turn it down flatly.

It meant that she'd have to undergo the Gender Reversal procedure, and spend the period of Darien's parole as a... a... man.

Of course, it wasn't that bad. It would be a hell of a lot easier for her to play the part of a Neanderthal, hairy ape than for Darien to act like a Goddess that was woman. She could handle it.

She would quickly prove to Darien that his concept of women - gentle creatures who wore gender specific make-up and (God Forbid) make-up was ridiculous. Some 'unrealized Goddesses' in the system had been brainwashed to accept that role - but they couldn't possibly enjoy it. As Darien would learn soon enough.

She walked into the office of Dr. Harding, noting with distaste that the doctor was a man. Well, at least he was working for the right cause, she consoled herself.

"Doctor, I'm Lindsey McNair. I'm going to..."

The doctor nodded. "...be the T.O. for Mr. Cross. Yes, I've been informed. So, do you wish to choose a male body to your specifications, or the one Mr. Cross requested you take?"

Lindsey blinked, then smiled. "I'll go easy on Mr. Cross - go ahead, give me the one he suggested." "Very well. If you'll just follow me, we'll fill out some forms, and start the procedure..."

* * * * *

Uncomfortably, Lindsey - or, as his temporary identification now read, Lee McNair - stepped from the elevator, mentally cursing Darien.

Darien must have thought it would be funny to have her take this body. It was huge, in more ways than one. It was tall, nearly six-eight, and massively muscled.

But worst of all was the size of his new 'equipment'. Lindsey had little experience with men, sexually speaking, but she knew enough to know that her new cock and balls were simply enormous - and it was damned uncomfortable to walk with such huge genitalia, especially in the jeans that he wore, provided by the Doctor.

Still, he could handle it, in the name of seeing Darien's complete and utter humiliation. Shaking his head with a grin, Lee stepped through the door, and looked around.

His smile dimmed - Darien must be out, or something. But her roommate was in, and he walked over to the bed.

"Hello - my name's Linds.. Lee. I'm here to see your roommate - do you know where..." he cleared her throat. "...'she' is?"

Darien's roommate was a stunning blonde woman. Even with her shapeless blue robe, it was obvious she had a slender figure with large, firm breasts, which Lee was sorry to see, although he had to admit that they seemed quite well-proportioned despite their size. The woman also had a face that was both stunningly gorgeous and intelligent, full of strength and character. Lindsey/Lee personally didn't think woman should wear their hair that long - it was down past the woman's slender shoulders - but it was a choice, he supposed.

The stunning, intelligent looking woman smiled, revealing even, white teeth. "No, I can honestly say I have no idea where my roommate is, Mr. McNair." Her voice was rich and melodic.

The male ex-woman shrugged. "Oh well, I'll catch..." His deep, rumbling voice died and his eyes widened. "How did you know my last name?"

The stunning, shapely woman laughed, a rich, honest sound. "What's wrong, Lindsey - don't recognize me?"

Lee gasped. "No... Darien?"

The gorgeous blonde nodded with a smile. "None other. Well, actually - my new, temporary identification says Alexis Crosley. I thought I looked more like an Alexis than a Darien, don't you agree?"

Darien - sorry, Alexis, - enjoyed the stunned look on Lindsey's face. If nothing else, it told him he'd made the right decision.

She hadn't become rich and powerful by backing away or giving up. If to beat these feminists by being female, he was going to do it the way she always did everything - full-bore, and better than anyone else.

Let's see how Ms. - oh, excuse me, MISTER McNair liked them apples.

"Well, are we just going to sit here all day?" Alexis asked, her full lips curving in a grin. "Until I finish my parole, my business is in limbo. Let's get on with it, shall we?"

"Ye... Yes, all right." Lee stammered, still trying to come to terms with this. It wasn't right, it wasn't right at all. He was supposed to be whimpering and crumbling...

Lee mentally straightened her shoulders. It was nothing. Darien had been Alexis for all of, what... two hours? All of it spent in a hospital room. She'd crack - oh yes, she'd crack under the strain of trying to be a woman.

"Well, if you're ready, I suppose we should get started. Now, one of the basic rules is that you not wear any masculine or 'unisex' clothing for the period of your parole. So I suppose shopping is a good place to start."

Alexis nodded, rising from the bed. "Good idea. I've got some clothes to wear to the mall - I think you'll agree they're acceptable?" She held up a plain, dark-blue sun dress, some white cotton panties, and a pair of brown strap sandals.

"Yes - they'll do." Lindsey agreed.

"Good." Alexis said, heading towards the bathroom for some privacy. At the door, she paused. "By the way - how's that body I suggested working out."

"It's fine" Lee said, tightly - while shifting uncomfortably, her huge cock painfully cramped in the jeans.

Alexis smiled at Lee's obvious ill-temper, and quickly changed, grabbing a small clutch-purse containing her identification, temporary credit cards, and cash.

"All right, I'm ready." Alexis said, and Lee wordlessly led her towards the door - and the 'real world'. He gave 'Alexis' twenty-four hours before begging to be turned back.

Tops.

* * * * *

Alexis kept reminding herself to allow her new body move in a feminine manner as they walked through the mall. It wasn't all that difficult - although she instinctively wanted to walk the same way she always had, with a strong male stride, she could easily emulate a more graceful, feminine glide if she was paying attention. And the sway of her new, DD-cup breasts helped her remember to act womanly, and not slip into her masculine habits. It still felt damned weird, but it was bearable - and, since she wasn't wearing a bra, actually quite pleasant as her new endowments swayed gently, her new nipples brushing against the fabric.

She glanced at Lee, and had to repress a grin. Unused to the new body, the new man was clomping along gracelessly - and very awkwardly, his huge cock rather obvious in the way it bulged the front of his jeans. Alexis hoped Lee was enjoying the crash-course in male anatomy vis a vis tight denim clothing.

Of course, as amusing as this little bit of revenge was, the situation was still uncomfortable. Alexis was determined to show Lee a thing or two, and was enjoying her awkwardness in dealing with the thoughtful glances some women gave the huge bulge in his jeans. At the same time, it was a real battle to hide her own awkwardness at the glances guys gave her, seeing only a stunningly gorgeous, well endowed woman.

It was almost worth it though. Whenever she noticed Lee noticing a guy noticing her, she'd give the admirer as sincere a looking smile she could in return - and always got a burst of satisfaction at Lee's expression. She knew Lee didn't believe she could handle being female, and every time she managed to stand being ogled, it was like Lee was being punched, hard, right in his/her feminist ego.

"All right - this looks like a good spot." Alexis finally said, pointing at a store.

"Here?" Lee asked, surprised. What the hell was Alexis up to - this place sold sexy clothing, mostly dance wear. It was a joke, right? She wasn't really going to go in...

...and walk out two hours later, dressed in a sexy, tight-fitting black dress, black nylons, and black high-heeled pumps, with sexy black lace underwear caressing her curves underneath the dress, and two more bags full of similar clothes. With her long, blonde hair cut in a stylish, feminine style, and her face carefully and sensuously made up.

Alexis had a hard time believing she'd gone through with it herself. Having the tight black spandex hugging her body and drawing the stares of men who passed by wasn't her idea of fun - but it was, strangely, thrilling. She knew, without a doubt, that men found her sexy - because she did too. It was an unusual feeling - and she tried very, very hard to ignore the way her nipples were almost painfully engorged.

Lee was trailing Alexis, a stunned look on his face. "What the hells gotten into you, Da... Alexis?" He hissed to her.

That confusion, anger and hurt made it all worthwhile. "Why, nothing." She said, feigning confusion. "Come on, I'm starved - let's get something to eat."

She walked off, not bothering to see if Lee was following. It wasn't because she wasn't interested - she was concentrating to damn hard on not falling off of the four inch stiletto heels that adorned her black velvet pumps. Still, this discomfort and annoyance was all worth while just to show that uppity feminist a thing or two.

Plus Lee had been given certain injections to alter his chemical balance to that of a normal, heterosexual male, just as she'd been given ones to balance out her hormonal system to match the average female. The upshot of which was simple - her sexy new body and tight, form-fitting clothing, coupled with her laboriously/casually sexy stride - was giving Lee one hell of a hard on, clearly visible through his jeans. As equally obvious was his inability to handle these new emotions and sexual drives with anything approaching equanimity. Alexis was half-way through her plan, and it was working perfectly - she was driving Lee absolutely insane.

The plan continued through dinner. As much as she wanted to take a break, relax, and be as much 'herself' as possible in her new body, Alexis forced herself to keep the pressure on every single second through the meal. She ate her breadsticks sensuously, lightly caressing them as she picked them up, licking the ends of them slightly before slowly sliding them into her mouth and biting off the ends.

The same things applied to the rest of the dinner. Every opportunity that arouse to increase Lee's arousal to painful levels, she took. She rubbed up against him when she walked to the table, and when she got up to go to the washroom (barely remembering WHICH washroom in time). She constantly arranged to lean forward, displaying her mouth-watering cleavage, and twice she dropped a utensil so she could get out of her chair and oh-so-sensuously bend down to pick it up, showcasing her spectacular ass.

By the end of the meal, Lee was literally squirming in his seat. The ride home was also interesting - Alexis forced herself to lean against Lee, pressing her large, firm tits into his arm - and she didn't have to feign enjoyment at the act, as she quickly discovered that it felt really, really good.

Arriving back at the apartment they'd share during the parole, Lee finally turned to Alexis in the living room.

"All right - what the hell are you doing?" He asked raggedly, his pupils dilated and his hands having a hard time staying away from where his throbbing, painfully erect cock was clearly outlined in his tight jeans.

Now that the time had come, Alexis found herself hesitating, unsure if she could go through with her plan. But she had to do it sometime, with somebody - and she just wouldn't give Lee the satisfaction of being right about her.

"Why..." She said, sensuously peeling her dress off before Lee's startled gaze. "...I thought it was obvious. I'm seducing you."

"What...?" Lee started to protest - when he was rather effectively shut up by Alexis' firm, gloss-red lips pressing firmly against his as she pressed him backwards, onto the couch.

Lee was stunned. He was also aroused more than Alexis new - aside from the hormonal adjustments, Lesley was a confirmed lesbian, and women excited him even more now, with the hormonal boost.

He couldn't have stopped himself from responding to that kiss, even if he'd wanted to. And the worst thing was, he wasn't sure that he wanted to.

For her part, Alexis was also stunned. By how well she was kissing Lee, that she'd managed to work up the nerve to act this well. The fact that Lee was kissing back just as passionately was also not as expected.

And the discovery that she was really, really enjoying it was absolutely shocking.

But very, very nice. And it made it a hell of a lot easier to take the next step, as she unclasped her bra and let it fall to the floor, and pulled Lee's hands up to fondle and caress her bountiful tits - which, after some initial hesitation, he did, falling to the rampant hormones that flooded his body, as well as his own lesbian tendencies.

"I... I..." Lee stammered, confused, aroused, and painfully wary of his own strong hands on her limber body.

Alexis was now caught up in her own hormonal rush- but, unlike Lee, she was still very much in control as lifted her ass enough to slide off her panties and unzip his pants and lower them, letting his huge, thick, throbbing cock spring free. Gently, she positioned herself so that her wet cunt was gently, ever so slightly, slipping over the huge, purple head of Lee's hard dick.

"What - you want me to stop?" Alexis asked breathlessly. Part of her wanted him to say yes - but to her surprise, most of her didn't. She was hot, horny and ready - she wanted to have sex, and she didn't care it if was as a woman, with a man. She needed satisfaction.

Lee struggled to say 'yes', fought to get that one syllable out of his mouth - and failed. "No - please, don't stop.." he found himself begging in abject humiliation.

And Alexis complied. At his words, she lowered herself onto him, crying out as she was penetrated for the first time - my Lee's massive, throbbing cock.

It felt wonderful.

All her previous doubts and hesitation were gone - this was wonderful, and she'd just barely started. She corrected that deficiency at once by using her long, taut legs to set up a rhythm, driving her hot, wet cunt up and down his massive cock, driving him and herself higher and higher. Bolt of electricity ran filaments of fire through her new nerves as she gasped and panted in ecstasy, her body driving to the thundering blood in her vein.

"Ohh " She moaned, matched in passion and intensity by Lee as she drove herself faster and harder on his pulsating, iron-hard shaft of man-meat.

Then her newly acquired feminine grace completely deserted her as the orgasm hit.

It was like a silent, painless nuclear explosion deep in her body. That was exactly the metaphor that struck her as the orgasm hit.

Detonation - a tremendous blast of power that lifted her up on his cock, causing her to cry out in primal ecstasy.

Blast wave - her body shook as if in the grip of a high wind as the intense sensation rippled through her nerve ending, spreading out from the point of impact and radiating in all directions.

Thermal blast - the intense, sexual burning that passed through her body, setting every nerve aflame with passion and desire and ecstasy, all at once.

Residual shock - the softer, secondary spasm as her tightly-clenching cunt caused Lee to gush like a cum-carrying fire hose, filling her new womanhood with his warm, thick cum.

Gasping, her body heaving with the force of the shear, orgasmic power she'd just experienced, she slid from his loins - and to her knees in front of him. Before he could say a word, his highly-sensitive, post orgasm cock was being enveloped by her warm and, now, absolutely willing mouth.

Lee threw his head back and gasped as Alexis began sucking him off. His cock hadn't even started to soften before she was driving him to arousal using every trick she'd ever had used upon her when she was Darien, sucking, fondling, licking - and not letting up as his hot cum once more gushed forth, this time down her eager throat. She continued on, taking longer this time to get his cock ready again.

Then, with her cum-coated lips in a cruel smile, she once again mounted him. This time, she worked fast, almost brutally - she was more than ready to experience that mind-shattering orgasm again.

And she did. It ripped through her body again, not quite as strong as the first time, but more than enough.

Finally she climbed off of Lee, who was completely spent.

"So - how'd it feel to fuck the first piece of ass that came your way, Lindsey?"

Lee was panting from exertion - but those pants became muffled sobs as he realized that he had, indeed, become the very enemy itself - a muscular, hairy man who thought with his dick and, quite literally, couldn't say no.

"I I'll sign the release papers the first thing in the morning." Lee said, admitting complete defeat.

"We'll go in and get changed back in the afternoon."

"No, we won't. You'll sign those papers, all right - or I'll scream bloody rape. And, you know I can make it stick. But they never expected it to move this quick - there's a two-month minimum wait period between procedures. Enjoy your time as man, Lee - and if you ask nicely, I might fuck you again."

Once more victorious, Darien Cross strode briskly to her room and slammed the door...

...then collapsed on the bed, opened a drawer and removed a massive black plastic dildo, which she promptly put to use.

* * * * *

"You're what?" Lee shouted, stunned.

Alexis smiled from behind her desk. "I'm staying female. I've decided I like this too much to give up, plus I get the bonus of keeping my company under the same control and management as always, but filling one more quota." She gently caressed on tit behind the expensive, business-like but still sensuously-tailored suit she wore. "I never realized just how good being a woman could be - I've got dates lined up for the next two months."

Lee was furious. "I wanted you out of here, dammit. You don't deserve this job..."

Alexis leaned forward, her smile disappearing. "Look, Lee - there's nothing you can do. I built this company from the ground up, and you almost got it away from me with some trumped-up charges." She smiled again, but there was no humor in them. "I don't think that strategy will work a second time, do you?"

Not giving Alexis - now her legal name - the benefit of an answer, Lee stormed out of the office, barely able to calm himself as he strode towards the elevators.

"Lee... isn't it?" A female voice said off to his right, and Lee turned to find himself looking at Carol, one of the secret feminists that had helped indict Darien/Alexis - not that it had worked out right. But since the court order kept everything secret, Carol wouldn't have known that. Carol would have to keep up appearances, at least for a while.

"That's right." Lee said with a smile, admiring the woman's acting abilities. "Can I... help you?" "Can you give me a hand with something heavy in here?" Carol asked, gesturing at the copy room. Lee was impressed - considering his muscular new physique, it was a good excuse. "Sure."

She stepped into the room, and Lee closed and locked the door behind them to keep them from being disturbed. He turned around - and gasped at the sight of Carol literally ripping her dress open. Before the startled man could react, she kissed him on the lips as she ripped open his pants.

"No..!" Lee gasped, realizing that Carol didn't know who she was - and was using one of their set-ups on him. She'd seen him arguing with Alexis, thought he was trying to get the new, 'female' CEO kicked out...

Already, the special, completely undetectable compound in Carol's lipstick was having its effect as Lee's cock swelled ominously. Carol was busy handcuffing herself to the copier - and screaming at the top of her lungs.

She was also using her powerful legs to hold Lee in place as he tried to escape as the chemical compound brought him closer and closer to spontaneous ejaculation.

There was a pounding at the door, followed by confusing, and increased pounding. Lee struggled to free himself from the determined Carol, not appreciating the irony of the situation.

Then the door burst open just as his cock, hard, thick and throbbing, gushed all over the handcuffed, screaming woman - and the whole office staff saw 'him' raping 'her' - as they would tell the police when they arrived five minutes later, tipped off by one of Carol's - and, ironically, 'Lindsey' - other accomplices.

Five hours later, in two very different places - an elegant bedroom and a jail cell - two very different people - a gorgeous woman and an extremely muscular, hung man - were having two very, very different sexual encounters. And while both of them screamed at the climax of the encounter, only hers was one of pleasure....

THE END...

SUMMARY: When a poor Russian is offered a way to support his family he takes it, even though it entails allowing himself to be transformed into an American wife.

Coming To America

By Gunslinger

"Perhaps my English is not being as much good as I am thinking..." Ivan Cheralenkov said, slowly, staring at the 'crazy American' sitting before him, his white linen suit resplendent in the dingy gloom of Ivan's cell. "Is sounding as if you say that you are to be making me into woman, yes?"

"Yes." The American, who'd introduced himself as William Marcus said, his face serious, almost intent. "That is it exactly."

Idly, Ivan scratched at the filthy, tangled mass of silver-blond beard obscuring the lower half of his emaciated face.

"Guards is being right - you are Crazy American." Ivan finally declared. "Man cannot be woman. Is not... what is word? Is not possible."

"Yes, it is." William said, firmly. "I have the worlds best team of sexual reassignment surgeons standing by. If you agree to this, we'll put you 'asleep', keep you asleep... and when you wake up, you'll be a woman, in America, and your sister and her family will get the new house I promised, plus all the food they can eat."

Almost against his will, Ivan found himself beginning to half-believe that it could, in fact, be done. He'd heard some extremely odd things that decadent Americans could do, with all their wasted money... maybe they could even do this.

"But why?" Ivan finally asked. "Why is you be wanting to make man into woman?"

"I made my fortune by taking worthless junk and making it priceless." William said. "That's what 'gets me off' - and the thought of taking you, a back-woods Russian, making you over into my ideal woman and teaching you how to act and dress..."

He didn't have to explain any further - the rising bulge in the crotch of his immaculate suit explained all that needed to be said.

These Americans were even more perverted and corrupt then Ivan had been taught...

...but this perverted, corrupted American not only held the keys to his own life, which he'd come to care less and less about during the past few years, but health, wealth and happiness for his sister and her family - the family who he'd begun robbing to keep fed, ending him up in prison for the next twenty years.

Another long, slow look around the grimy cell, and the starving, filthy prisoner knew what to do. Even if he wasn't quite convinced the whole thing was possible, the 'worst case scenario' was by far better then the fate that surely awaited him otherwise.

"Yes." Ivan said, stomach clenching despite his intellectual certainty that no fate then this could be worse for him, and any chance of helping his sister's family would make it worthwhile. "I am being agreeing to your deal. I will be your... wife."

* * * * *

Slowly, Ivan's eyelids fluttered open.

It wasn't at all easy to make them do so - because he felt worse then he ever had after a binge of home-made Vodka. A difference in the nature of the feeling told him it was a drug-induced 'hangover' rather than an alcoholic one - but that didn't lessen the queasiness, nor the pounding in his head, nor the extreme sensitivity to light that made it seem as if the bright glow was spearing directly into his brain through his eyeballs...

...and, awake enough to realize that it was a drug hangover from whatever sedative had been used came the realization that it might not be 'his' eyeballs that were transmitting the pain.

It might be 'hers'.

With a gasp, Ivan-or-Ivana's eyes popped wide open despite the pain, and he-or-she sat bolt upright...

...or, at least, tried to - but was foiled by the unexpected weight on his-or-her chest that she-or-he hadn't counted on, and his-or-her eyes flickered down...

...to her chest. Most definitely 'her'.

Most emphatically 'her'.

Most outrageously, ludicrously, ridiculously 'her'.

Ivana screamed in shock as she stared down at the massive breasts thrust from a slim ribcage - and the high-pitched and undeniably feminine nature of that scream further rattled her already shaken mind and she scrabbled at the bed, panic and horror welling up inside her, fingers skittering across the incredibly smooth, fine sheets, long nails tearing the fine fabric as she writhed in horror and shame and shock and disgust and...

"Settle down, Ivana!" William said, entering her field of vision with a shocked look on his face. "It's okay, Ivana. You're in America now. Please, Ivana, just..."

"Don't call me that!" She screamed hysterically - and realized she'd done so in Russian. Her whirling mind scrambled to find the words in the less instinctive tongue, the hard-won second language mostly lost in the stress of the moment. "Am not Ivana - am Ivan!"

"Not any more." William told her, firmly. "You're a woman... remember?"

"Am not woman!" She screamed, finally managing to heave herself upright on the bed, hands flying to the massive, weighty orbs thrust from her chest. "Am, how you say...? Am cow!"

"You are extremely buxom, but..." William said, reaching out to grab her bare shoulders....

...and she yanked herself away with a violent curse in Russian.

"Not be touching me!" She screamed at him, struggling to control lethargic limbs made further awkward by the fact that her balance, her reach, every single movement and position felt wrong to her. "Not touch!"

"Ivana!" William barked, sharply, face falling into lines of annoyance. "Do you want me to stop sending money for food to your sister's family?"

That stopped her dead in her tracks, heart pounding furiously behind her ridiculously out-sized new breasts - because, after all, 'touching' was implicitly and explicitly part of the deal...

...and with the mental pause it took for her to realize that, more things snapped into place and her immediate panic and instinctive horror lessened their hold without relinquishing their presences, and she took a long, shuddering breath.

"No." She said, hearing the bitterness in her high-pitched new voice, and not minding that she couldn't seem to keep it out. "Was... surprised. I am still being agreeing to deal, William."

Careful not to look down at her hideously re-shaped body, Ivana forced herself to take a long, slow look at her surroundings - her first view of the nearly mythical land of America.

What she saw stunned her almost enough to make her forget her feminine new fate. Almost.

The single room she was located in was as big as the entire cottage she had shared with her sister and her family - and luxurious enough for a Czar. The bed she was lying on was huge, and unbelievably soft, covered in what could only be white silk sheets. The floor itself was neither wood nor even linoleum, but buried under carpeting so deep that William's stocking feet seemed to practically disappear in it.

Electric lights were everywhere - one in the ceiling, and four more spaced around the huge room. Everywhere, polished metal and wood gleamed, and there were three doors, one of which opened to - of all the luxuries - an indoor bathroom!

"Yes, I know what you're thinking..." William said, catching her gaze as she looked about, wide-eyed. "I may be rich, but I'm afraid I live fairly modestly. Just a modest house with five bedroom and four baths, no servants, just two cars, neither of which are a Lamborghini or a Rolls..."

Now her feminine plight was momentarily forgotten, and her head snapped around so she could gape at his slightly shameful face.

"You think this is modest...?" She gasped in disbelief. "This is... undreamt of luxury!"

"Well... I'm happy you think so." William said, taken aback. "After all - all of this is also yours, now."

The thought hit her like a foam-rubber sledgehammer... and, suddenly, despite the heavy weight of her ridiculously huge new breasts still trying to pull her off balance, she began to think that perhaps, just perhaps, she might have gotten the better end of this bargain after all.

"Well, hop out of bed sleepy-head." William said, holding out a hand to her. "I know this is all new and strange to you, doubly so because you're experiencing it as a woman, so we'll take it fairly slow... but the agreement is that you're to become my 'perfect wife', and we're going to have to start teaching you how to do that."

"Yes, of course..." Ivana said, blushing, her stomach dropping and her suspicion that it might not be as bad as she feared weakening without vanishing as the memory of the entirety of what she'd agreed to came back to her. "I... I am to be living up to my agreement, William. The cooking and the cleaning and the more.. intimate.. wifely duties, these I will be doing."

"You don't have to call me 'William' all the time... honey." William said. "You can call me 'Bill'... or 'dear', or other affectionate nick-names."

Ivana swallowed heavily, and had to force the words through a suddenly tight throat: "Yes... dear."

"Good." Bill said, grinning. "Well, why don't we start off with the basics - getting showered and dressed."

Ivana nodded heavily, unwilling to trust her voice - and, hesitantly, took the still offered hand, and let him help her to her new feet.

"Now, this is the bathroom..." Bill said, sliding his arm around her waist to help her - and she somehow managed to resist the almost overwhelming urge to pull away, letting him touch her, hand on her wider new hip, as he guided her into the bathroom.

She caught sight of herself in the huge mirror that took up most of the wall over the sink...

...and she gasped, jerking so quickly to a stop that she almost overbalanced under the weight of her tits, with only Bill's support holding her upright.

Part of her hadn't even believed it was possible to make a man a woman, and the part that had believed it had more or less expected to see a big scar where her manhood had been, and a pair of breasts grafted onto her chest - though not as large as the ones she now boasted.

The mirror, however, showed something completely different...

"I am.. woman!" Ivana gasped, stunned. "Am.. beautiful woman!"

"You certainly are." Bill agreed, lightly caressing her hip. "I told the surgeons that I wanted 'Paris Hilton meets Dolly Parton' - and that's what I got."

The names didn't mean anything to Ivana - but the results spoke for themselves. She was tall and slender and beautiful - and buxom...

...but nearly as much as she'd thought.

In the mirror, her breasts weren't as big as they looked when she glanced down at herself, and not nearly as big as they felt, hanging from her chest. Certainly, they were large, each one as big as the finest cabbage she'd ever seen - but they weren't the 'bigger-then-her-head' monstrosities that her unfamiliar viewpoint and unfamiliarity with their weight had originally lead her to believe. They were 'merely' quite big, not ludicrously monstrous.

"Full triple-D's." Bill told her as she hesitantly touched her domed mounds. "Firmly packed enough that they push that size a bit, but still..."

Stunned, she ran her slimmer, long-nailed hands over the incredibly smooth skin of her feminine new figure, amazed that even the ingenious Americans could make her into such a stunning woman. It wasn't until her fingers lightly slid across her new womanhood that she suddenly realized that what the woman in the mirror was doing was what she was feeling, and she hastily yanked her hands away from a body she didn't really want, could barely believe possessed - and was finding decidedly less 'horrific' than she'd expected it to be.

"Do you prefer showers or baths...?" Bill asked, drawing her attention to the bathtub that was ingeniously molded into the corner of wall and floor, easily three times as big as the large wooden half-barrel that had always been Ivana's 'tub' until today.

"I am liking the baths." She said, still stunned - and then the thought of the logistics of bathing brought her back to the moment, and the womanly duties that were now her responsibility. "If you would be showing me where is the stove, I will be building up fire for heating bath-water... Bill."

Bill looked at her, startled - and then laughed.

"First of all, our stove is electric, not wood-burning." He chuckled. "Second, you don't have to heat water - we have a water heater in the basement that provides all the hot water you could want."

He demonstrated, pulling up on the metal handle above the tub's faucet and rotating it first towards the blue-marked end of its range of motion, then over to the red.

"Heated water, all the time...?" Ivana gasped, stunned anew. "What luxury!"

"Go ahead and get yourself a bath." Bill said, gesturing. "This being your first day, I'm not expecting you to cook breakfast - I'll take care of that. After you bath and dry off, you'll find clothes in the closet that's behind the door on the right, then you can come down to the kitchen and eat before I give you the five-cent tour of the house."

She nodded, at a loss for words, and he left her in the most opulent bathroom she'd ever seen.

Her bath was long and slow - partly because she was luxuriating, however bemusedly, in the decidedly odd sensation of sitting tit-deep in hot water, but also because she was still uncomfortable running her hands over a new body so far distanced from the one she still felt should be sliding by under her unfamiliar hands.

She couldn't quite say what she was subliminally expecting to feel as she touched her own body - she just knew it wasn't what she was feeling: Pleasure.

Her new body felt good.

Good both to the hands that roamed it, and to the body itself that glided slickly by underneath them. It was soft.

It was supple.

It was sensitive.

Her breasts, so full and firm, were a joy to caress and fondle, better than any pair of tits she'd ever squeezed or tweaked the nipples on as a man - and the sensations of being fondled, tweaked and caressed were even better, her one hand roaming her expansive breasts as her other slid down to her new womanhood, almost as if it knew what to do and where to go, to fingers spreading her new slit wide as the third penetrated her and...

Her eyes flew open and Ivana gasped as she realized that, lost in a fog of pleasure, she'd stopped washing herself - and started playing with her new body, exactly as if she were 'really' a woman....

...but even though the shock of what she'd almost unthinkingly done paused her - it didn't stop her. It just felt so good...

Her finger resumed its motion - and now her gasps were of pleasure as, face beet-red, she knowingly and willingly continued fingering herself,. Waves of pleasure rolling through her from her surgically created cunt.

In what seemed both an eternity and now time at all, she was thrashing in the warm water of the bathtub in time to her first guilty, pleasurable, wonderful female orgasm, mind stunned by the fact that she'd done this to herself at all, much less about how utterly fantastic it all felt...

Blushing furiously, she quickly finished washing up, amazed - and slightly worried - to find that her new feminine sexuality didn't end when she orgasmed, as it had when she was male. In fact, it had just made her body hypersensitive to pleasure, and the knowledge that she could 'get right back to it', something that had never been a 'problem' as a man, continued to haunt a mind stunned by what she'd just willingly allowed herself to do.

Confused and shocked by these new feelings and urges, she towed her new body off and headed into the closet...

...and managed to completely forget how good finger-fucking herself while caressing her smooth body had felt, stunned by the sight of the huge closet filled with what had to be hundreds of articles of feminine clothing.

She'd owned exactly four outfits of clothing back in Russia.

Stunned, she wandered through the display, touching this, feeling that, running her hand down the side of something else...

So many clothes - and all of them incredible fine, incredibly soft, incredibly.. nice. It was mind-boggling to think that these were hers.

Slowly, feeling like a thief as well as a 'pervert', she picked a few items off the racks, somehow certain two people were going to burst in on her at any moment, one screaming that she didn't deserve such fine, soft, light clothing, the other screaming at her for being so sick as to dress in women's clothing.

Hesitantly, guiltily, but with a strange tingle of eager excitement building in her, she puzzled out the method of getting this incredible American clothes onto her incredible American-contrived body.

The almost transparent light brown leggings were odd, the closest thing to 'socks' she spotted in her hasty look over the available clothing - but she immediately found out why women would wear such barely-there items, as once she'd managed to figure out how to ball them up and slide them up her legs, she shivered in bohemian delight at the soft caress of the incredibly fine material as it slipped over her smooth skin. The even continued to provide a lesser sense of pleasure from the air moving over them as she settled them in place high on her thighs by virtue of the lace-trimmed elastic tops of them.

Next, she pulled on a pair of underwear - underwear that were small, high-hipped and low at the navel, and made of a cotton so finally-woven that she could only tell she was wearing them by the soft caress of them against her full new buttocks and smooth new crotch.

She briefly attempted to put on a matching foundation garment obviously designed to support her big new breasts - but the systems of hooks and catches on the back completely defeated her, and she finally gave up, deciding breasts so firm and round probably wouldn't suffer much without support...

...then shivered in guilty delight with the certainty that she'd done the right thing as she felt the way the silk of the dark-red shirt she'd chosen felt as it moved over her round new breasts and slipped across her firm new nipples.

The knee-length black silk wrap-around skirt felt every bit as good caressing the top half of her legs and swirling about her knees.

Dressed, she headed towards the door of the bedroom to head downstairs...

...and found herself unconsciously moaning softly, low in the back of her throat, at the unbelievable and uncountable physical pleasures generated by each and every article of clothing she was wearing, as if a hundred light, gentle hands were stroking and fondling and caressing her all over.

That wet warmth she'd felt in her crotch and dismissed as being part of the bath quickly resurfaced, even more strongly than it had before - and it somehow combined with that guiltily excited tingle she was feeling from wearing such finery, making her knees feel watery with pleasure and excitement.

She couldn't believe the Americans, no matter how rich, could possibly function being dressed like this. It seemed impossible. No heavy weight of wool enclosing their bodies, causing itchiness after just a few moments. No rough-woven cotton, no heavy, stiff quick-cured leathers. No places where the rough-fashioned garments bound here or hung uncomfortably loose there - no, not with this soft, light clothing.

She was better and more wonderfully dressed than any Czarina through history could ever have wished, in the finest fabrics...

...and though she might have expected much from a rich American providing clothes for her, she could never have imagined just how wonderful it would all feel, the soft pleasures generated with every single move she made.

Walking down to the first floor and searching for the kitchen was such an exercise in physical pleasure that she barely remembered to be awed by the uncountable luxuries that lay on all sides of her in each room and passage she entered.

"There you are!" Bill exclaimed, eyeing her. "Wow - you look great!"

"Thank you." She said, numbly, still trying to come to grips with all the pleasure America had in every way - even the wonderfully luxurious sensation of deep carpet underfoot.

"You took longer than I expected, so I had to go ahead and eat - I need to get to the office." He said, taking her hand and leading her towards the front door. "I left a little booklet on how everything works, like the dishwasher and vacuum and such - and if you have any problems, call me at the office., the phone numbers in the front of the booklet."

"Okay, she agreed numbly, earning an odd look as she reached the front door.

"Well.. you know how to reach me, then." Bill said, uncertainly. "Um, it's sort of customary for wives to kiss their husbands when they leave..."

"Okay..." She replied in that same, stunned tone, obediently leaning forward.

As their lips met and she began giving him a strangely absent-minded kiss, he pulled her close and slid a hand down to her silk-enclosed ass...

...and her kiss went from absent-minded to nearly desperate, and by the time he finally managed to force her to break the kiss, it was with a half-hard cock in his pant.

"Um, uh.. I'll.. see you tonight..." Bill stammered, shocked by her inexplicable enthusiasm...

...and as she started to lean in to resume that passionate kiss, he literally fled the house, mind whirling as he tried to figure out what the hell had come over her.

She watched him go down the steps towards the car in the driveway, then slowly swung the door closed with a blank look on her face...

...then dropping skirt and panties to the floor, she turned around, leaned on the door, and frantically finger-fucked herself to the release that her body, having had sensitive tits press hard against a warm chest and sensitive ass fondled through a layer of silk, so frantically demanded.

Still to stunned, shocked and guilty to think about what it was she was doing or how she was acting, she calmly replaced her clothing, went into the kitchen, and sat down to a breakfast that awed her with the amounts and varieties of food. Afterwards, she rinsed the dishes and put them in the 'dishwasher' mentioned in the booklet, further awed by a machine that washed the dishes for you...

...and that felt so wonderful to lean against as it whirred and burbled and bumped, which she did for several minutes - until she tore off her clothes, lay on the floor, and fondled herself thoroughly before finger-fucking herself yet again.

Dressing, she went to work cleaning the house, following the instructions in the booklet...

...and quickly discovered that the rounded-ended handle of the duster felt even better thrusting in and out of her cunt than her finger had.

Even with her unfamiliarity with the technology, all the 'time savers' were just that, and she finished the listed duties shortly after noon, a good four hours before Bill was expecting to be home and she'd have to make dinner. So, she guiltily went back to the room listed as the 'study' and pulled the box of American cigarettes and the bottle of clear, export-quality Vodka out of the cupboard she'd found them in while cleaning, feeling incredibly guilty about 'stealing' such valuable items, but sure that Bill wouldn't mind her taking some, since he had so much...

...and, stripped down to just silken leggings, sat on the couch and alternately sipped vodka or smoked a cigarette with one hand, the other busy with that oh-so-pleasurable duster.

An hour before Bill was due home, she reluctantly dressed again, put away the duster, and set about cooking dinner.

* * * *

Bill opened the front door...

...and was attacked by a buxom blonde blur that enveloped him and started kissing him hungrily. "Dinner is..." She gasped out between almost desperate kisses. "...almost ready..."

She broke off, kissing him harder, deeper, longer, literally grinding her body against his. "...so we have time..." She gasped. "...to be fucking me."

Startled, Bill forcibly broke her kiss and pushed her back. "What's gotten into you?" He demanded, stunned.

"Everything that is being fitting - finger, duster, cucumber..." She listed, grinding a hand against her crotch. "Now, it is to being your manhood, which I am thinking will be much nicer than cucumber, but maybe not so nice as duster."

"What...?" Bob said, wide eyed. "No, I.. I meant, 'why are you acting like this'?"

"Is pleasure." She told him with a gasp, her hand, having slid under her skirt, now doing more than just 'grinding'. "Back in Russia, I thought I was having pleasure, sometimes - but I am not. Was not pleasure, just lack of pain, of despair, of exhaustion. Here, everything is being for pleasure.

Everything is feeling so good. Floors that are being nice to walk on, beds and chairs and couches all so very soft, clothes that are so soft and light - and the pleasures of being woman! I try to have all womanly pleasure I can handle today - and not even get close., Body can always have more, more, more - and I am wanting that more, bill. Now, please, you are to be... what is word? Fucking, yes - you are to be fucking me now, please."

She started towards him...

...and he backed off.

"This isn't what I wanted!" He told her. "Earlier, today, you shocked and confused - that's what I wanted. I wanted to spend a year, two, maybe three, slowly making you over, teaching you to stop being male and start being female, to start enjoying being treated like a woman - not this.. this.. enthusiastic transformation! There's no fun in this!"

"There is much fun in this." She contradicted him, her 'free hand' now playing with her silk-encased tits. "If I knew that being woman in America was nothing but pleasure, all day long, I would have begged for this. All the food I can eat, no more starving. Not too cold or hot, not scrabbling for rags to wear - and all the woman pleasure I want in this body. How can I be upset? How can I not embrace it? Come, Bill - now you fuck me, no?"

"No!" Bill shouted. "This isn't turning me on! Making you accept letting me fuck you turns me on, not you begging me! Don't you get it, you stupid Russian? Making you over into a woman and 'blackmailing' you into being my wife was like.. like the ultimate rape fantasy without any legal consequences."

"You want rape me? No problem." Ivana said. "Oh, Please, Mr. Bill, don't be sticking big cock in tight cunt and fucking me hard. Please, don't rip my clothing off and fuck me again and again."

It was a decidedly... unconvincing plea - since every single thing about her was literally begging for exactly the opposite.

"I didn't go to all the trouble to feminize some dumb-ass backwoods Russian so she'd be my little slut!" Bill said, angrily. "I'm rich, I'm well-known and I'm handsome. I already have women of all shapes, sizes and colors throwing themselves at me. Next thing you know, you'll be on your knees begging me to let you blow me!"

"What is this 'blow'...?" Ivana asked, throwing his tirade off-stride.

"Huh? Oh - you know, a blow job. Sucking me off. Fellatio." Bill explained, nonplussed.

"Sucking you... You mean having your cock being in my mouth?" Ivana asked, with a horrified shudder. "That is being disgusting!"

Bill blinked - then slowly began to smile.

"You don't want to give me a blow job?" He asked.

"No!" She denied, emphatically. "I am not wanting to have cock in mouth - am wanting it in cunt! Cock in mouth, man's seed taste when I spit it out... yuck!"

"What about giving me a blow-job... and then swallowing my cum?"

"Please!" She said, putting a hand on her stomach. "You be making me wanting to throw my cookies."

Despite the garbled metaphor, Bill got her answer - and his grin widened. "Not even if I promised to fuck you good and hard later, like you wanted?"

"No!" She said, emphatically. "I am woman with big titties now. I can find other men who will be fucking me without disgusting blowing job!"

"Only if you want me to divorce you and send you back to Russia." Bill said, eyes sparkling. "No more gravy train, for you or your sister's family."

Ivana's eyes widened, and she went red with rage - then pale with fear, as a stricken look took up residence on her face.

Bill's cock began to harden, and he reached down and slowly unzipped his pants. "Well?" He asked. "How about it, 'baby' - gonna suck hubby's cock?"

She shook her head violently from side to side - but her voiced question was a small, trembling voice asking: "Do you be promising?"

"Promising what?" He wanted to know.

"I am..." She paused, shuddering, and took a deep breath. "I am doing... that.. and you will be.. fucking me later?"

"Say it." He demanded. "Say what you'll do, and then do it - and I promise you the best fucking of your life tonight."

"Okay." She said in a small voice he had to strain to hear. "I.. I will be.. blowing you."

With stiff, awkward movements that revealed the intense inner debate she was struggling through, she forced herself to her knees in front of him...

...and he smiled and enjoyed the stiff, mechanical movements of her unwilling blow-job more than he ever had the most skilled fellatio by the most experienced cock-sucker.

His money had finally bought him the power he'd wanted, even if the victory wasn't as complete as he would have liked...

* * * * *

"Oh, Lenin- yes...!" Ivana screamed, shuddering in the grip of the most powerful orgasm she'd felt yet.

"See...?" Bill panted, sliding off her with his chest heaving. "Told you.. I'm a man.. of my word."

"Yes, you are..." She said, bitterly, as her orgasmic glow faded. "A blackmailing, perverted, son-of-a- bastard who keeps his word."

"Well, that's better than a blackmailing, perverted, son-of-a-bastard who doesn't keep his word." Bill said, smugly. "We've established the barter system here, 'dear' - one blow-job, one fuck. Just keep that in mind."

Smiling to himself, he blew a kiss at his wife's disgusted, angry face, then left her bedroom to turn in for the night.

She watched him go, scowling... and then, a minute after he was gone, let the scowl fade into a smile.

She might be a backwoods Russkie - but she wasn't stupid. She'd known what a blowjob was.

She'd known it was something not necessarily enjoyable - but not actually all that inherently disgusting, either...

...and most importantly, she knew it was one of the prime bargaining chips a woman had in getting what she wanted out of a man.

Grinning to herself, looking forward to a life filled with luxury and pleasure, Ivana rolled over and blissfully fell asleep.

THE END

SUMMARY: A Macho guy, after drinking contaminated water in the desert, finds himself turning into the type of mindless bimbo that he has always craved.

Contaminated

By Gunslinger

At first, Brendan thought it was just a mirage - or, perhaps, a hallucination, something conjured up from the depths of his fevered mind.

As he staggered closer to it, however, and it remained real and solid in front of him, his disbelief began to transform itself into something else, something he had slowly faded during the past few hours:

Hope.

"Water." The golden-tanned young man whispered through dry lips, blue eyes widening. "Dear God in heaven... water!"

The slow, foot-dragging shuffle that had become his stride began to pick up, almost without him consciously willing it to do so. First, his battered red canvas high-tops lifted out of the sandy soil, instead of simply digging furrows as he shuffled along.

Then, the foot- steps became wider spaced, with less weight resting on the heels - until, finally, he was moving at a dead sprint towards the unlikely object he'd found, stuck way out in the middle of the Nevada desert.

"Water!" He cried again, whooping for joy as he actually ran up to and embraced the once-red, slowly rusting iron pump...

...and then quickly pulled away as the searing heat of the sun-baked metal hit his skin.

"Ha!" He crowed to himself, ignoring the heat of the metal as he wrapped his hands around the handle of the old-fashioned pump and began working it. "You're in for it now, bitch!"

Almost as much as his body craved the water, the golden-haired young man's mind cried out for revenge on the woman who'd put him in this situation. It was, of course, all her fault - because if she'd just submitted to him, let him go ahead and fuck her, then none of this would ever have happened, right?

But, nooooo, she couldn't just lay there and take it like a good little bitch, could she? After he'd gone to all the trouble of getting her good and liquored up at the casino, then gotten her to take a ride with him that had ended up way out in the middle of nowhere, where nobody could have heard her scream, she'd had the gall to have sobered up enough to demonstrate that she'd been one of those bitches who had taken 'self defense' classes. Two punches and a well-placed knee to the groin later, he'd been on the ground, gasping - and watching her peel out in his car, leaving him stuck out in the desert.

So, clad only in the tan 'safari' shorts, white tee and high-tops, he'd begun hiking through the growing heat, only now realizing that taking women out into the middle of the desert to 'rape' them, (as they called it), might have a few drawbacks...

...especially since he hadn't struck out in the direction she'd taken, towards the highway. After all, he was sure the first place she'd go was the cops, and lead them right back here - and he didn't want to go to prison. He'd given her a name, but it wasn't his real one, so as long as he could avoid getting caught, he thought he'd be alright - since even the car was registered in that fake name, and he'd never been arrested before, so his fingerprints wouldn't be on file.

Now, as he cranked the handle of the pump and water finally began to gush from the spigot, cool and clear and inviting, he thought to himself how he was going to track down that bitch and make her pay before he finally vanished and set up shop under a new name in another state.

Still working the pump handle, Brendan leaned over and thirstily gulped at the water coming out of the ground. It was barely cool, and had a strange sort of metallic aftertaste, but he couldn't care less as he filled his belly with it's sweet wetness.

After drinking his fill, the lean young man soaked himself in the water, leaving him sopping wet, and then once more set out across the desert, mind fixated on the revenge he was going to claim...

...and not once did he bother to read the badly-rusted sign near the pump, the one whose much-faded lettering warned that the well the water was being drawn from was contaminated from the atomic-bomb testing done in the region during the 50's and 60's.

* * * * *

"Damn bitches..." Brendan muttered to himself, walking across the buff-colored scrub desert towards where he thought the highway was. "They want it just as much as guys do, but they play their fuckin' games to get guys to pay for it, and they scream and yell 'rape' if a guy tries to get some for free."

He felt a strange shudder run through his body, momentarily pulling him from his dark musings, and he hesitated for a second. He'd been so focused on his thoughts as he'd slogged along, it was actually difficult for him to yank his mind from them - yet, as soon as he did so, he felt badly disoriented, as if - having 'derailed' his train of thought - it was hard to get it started again. For a moment, he simply stood there, brushing his shaggy, golden-blond hair back from his face and thoughtlessly scratching at his tingling scalp with his short, ill-kempt nails.

"What was I just thinking about...?" He asked himself, confused, as he resumed walking. "Oh, yeah... right..." He went back to thinking about women and sex.

"Women really like having sex." He told himself. "They love it - all of it. After all, look at the way they dress, the way they act. They want men to look at them, they want men to find their bodies sexy and desirable. They wear high heels to make their legs and ass look nicer, they wear tight clothes to show off their figures - and if their figures aren't nice enough, they get liposuction or breast implants to make them look better. Yeah, all women love being sexy, and that's because the sexier you are, the easier it is to get sex. It's just that most women are real bitches, pretending that's not how it is. The only honest women out there get bashed by the bitches who want to pretend it's not like that, get called things like 'whores' and 'sluts'."

Another strange shudder ran through his body - and once again, he stopped dead, a confused expression taking up residence on his face as his thoughts scattered like a covey of quail before a shotgun blast. For several minutes, he simply stood there, lightly gnawing on one long nail as he tried to get his whirling mind to focus on thoughts - and thoughts - once more.

Then, at last, he began to move again.

"Sluts..." He said to himself, tapping one long nail against his full, puffy lips as his other hand idly rubbed at the swollen, sensitive flesh of his slightly puffy chest. "Sluts..."

His bright blue eyes widened, and a broad smile crossed his full lips as he finally remembered what he'd been thinking about.

"That's right! Sluts like sex!" He told himself in his high, breathy voice. "I was just thinking how sluts love fucking, and sucking, and, uh... shit like that!"

Finding it a bit hard to actually conjure up the words and phrases used to describe the acts that 'sluts liked', he settled for, instead, visualizing them, which was much easier - and much more fun, he thought to himself with a breathy little giggle. Grinning happily at the thought, he continued walking along, the now-common shudders and shivers running through his body no longer nearly enough to interrupt his highly-explicit 'thoughts'.

Tripping and falling over, however, was enough to derail the highly sexual images running through Brendan's head.

For a minute, Brendan simply lay on the ground, unable to figure out what happened. Sitting up, Brendan looked down, hands idly going to the most offended body parts from the face-first flop to the ground...

"Wait a second..." Brendan said, furrow of confusion marring the creamy, smooth skin at the brow. "Wait just a second..." It took considerably longer than 'a second' for whatever it was to finally register, but when it did...

"Tits!" The tall, leggy, über-buxom blonde woman sitting on the ground screaming horror, slender, long-nailed hands gripping the massive, round orbs of softly firm flesh in question. "I've got tits...!"

Her hands continued holding the massive breasts as she stared down at herself in utter shock. "Huge tits!" She added, in a stunned voice.

"Huge, round boobs!" She said a second later, dreamily.

"Huge, round, sexy boobies!" She announced, happily, with a little giggle, as she continued playing with her wonderful tits. "They're so big... and they feel, like, really good, too!"

She giggled again - and then paused, looking around in confusion.

"Like, why am I just sitting here, playing with my big, fun boobies?" She asked herself. "It's, like, soooo hot out here!"

Pushing herself up off the ground, she brushed the sand off the skin-tight beige fabric hugging her full, delectable ass, then began heading towards the horizon, humming happily to herself as she swayed her hips in a wide circle, purposefully making her huge bobbies bounce and sway enjoyably under the taut fabric of her white tee-shirt.

It seemed to her that there had been something bothering her a few minutes ago, but whatever it was, it probably wasn't anything important, because didn't she feel just so happy and wonderful right now, her delightfully sexy body sending all sorts of nice pleasure to her? The way the skin-tight fabric of her shorts pushed and pulled against her cunt with every step of her long, tanned legs felt great, and her huge boobs bouncing and swaying felt really nice too, so what could she have to worry about? It was just too much of an effort to think about such things.

In fact, it was really too much effort to think at all. It was much nicer to just walk along in a pleasant, dreamy daze, enjoying all the nice feelings coming from her body.

After a while, she reached a road - and she simply stopped and stared at it. "Silly!" She scolded herself, with a giggle. "I don't even know where I'm going!"

She looked in one direction, then the other, and finally stared down at the graveled verge where she was standing, staring past her massive bust-line at the ground.

Her massive bust-line. Her massive...

"Boobs!" Brendan cried, staggering back a step. "Holy shit.. I'm a broad!"

He staggered back another step in shock, only the fact that they were high-tops keeping him from falling out of his sneakers. Sneakers.

Red canvas sneakers.

"I, like, would look so much hotter in heels..." She giggled to herself, looking down at the long, shapely legs barely visible as she leaned over slightly to see past her huge titties. She rested her weight on her left leg, extending her right forward to get a better look at the long, tanned expanse of curvy leg...

...and looked up, blinking in surprise, as the screeching howl of brakes.

The bright red Sunfire skidded to a stop in front of her, and the young man behind the wheel lowered the passenger's side window and leaned across the seat, a broad grin on his face.

"Hi there, miss." He said, eyes tracing up and down her tall, sexy body. "Need a lift?"

"Gee, thanks!" She giggled, swaying and jiggling over to the car, enjoying the way the cute guy was eyeing her body. She opened the door and slid inside the air-conditioned interior of the car. "That would, like, be sooooo great!"

"So - you heading into Vegas?" The dark-haired young man asked, putting the car into gear. She blinked, and giggled. "Sure, sounds like fun!"

He grinned at her, seeming to have a hard time keeping his eyes off her curves and on the curves of the road. "I'm Jack, by the way." "Brendan." She introduced herself.

His eyebrows rose. "Hmmm... That's an unusual name for a girl." "It is?" She asked, frowning cutely. "Gee, yeah..."

She fell silent, confused frown deepening as something tugged at her, insisting that there was, indeed, something very wrong in the discrepancy between her name and her body...

...and then she laughed.

"Brenda is a girl's name, not Brendan!" She told Jack, as she ran her fingers through her thick mane of golden-blond hair. "I'm, like, just such a total blonde. I keep thinking the weirdest thoughts today."

"Oh?" Jack asked, clearly bemused. "Like what, Brenda?"

"Like there should be some reason why I should be mad at you for, like, totally staring at my huge boobies." She told him, sincerely, as she cupped her massive breasts and hefted them. "Which is, like, soooo silly! Of course you want to stare at my big, huge boobies! You probably even want to play with them!"

The car swerved, almost running off the road.

"You don't mind me looking at you.. breasts?" Jack asked in an oddly strangled tone of voice. She pouted in pretty concentration.

"Well, I don't think my titties were always this big..." She replied, her mind trying to grasp fleeting thoughts. "I musta got myself, like, implants, you know? An', if I got these really huge boobies, it musta been 'cause I want to make guys horny... right?"

"If you say so..." Jack said, his voice sounding even more strangled.

"Well, it only makes sense." She said, half to herself. "Babes like me don't get really huge boobies not to be noticed. If I didn't used to have big boobies, and now I do, it must have been to get men's attention."

"I... see..." Jack said, slowly. He sat for a second, wondering whether it was at all possible for any woman to be as complete a ditz as this one seemed to be, then finally shook his head and brought his mind back to more practical matters: "So, where are you going?"

"Gee, I dunno!" She admitted, brightly.

"You don't know where you're going?" He asked, incredulous.

"Well, see, I was just walking along." She explained. "I think it had something to do with sex, because I think I remember leaving a casino to go have sex - but all I relay remember is walking through the desert thinking about sex. I don't know whether I was going home after, like, having sex... or still out looking for sex, you know?"

Jack gaped at her.

"It's, like, really hard to, like, think and remember and stuff..." She explained. "It's, like, there's this voice, in my head, screaming? An', like, it's really, really annoying and distracting and it, like, makes it really, really hard to think? It's, like, so much easier to just, like, not think at all... you know?"

"I'll take your word for it." Jack assured her, giving her a side-long look of disbelief. She sighed, prettily.

"It would, like, be so much easier if I could have somebody else do all my thinking for me." She commented. Dead silence reigned for nearly a minuet as she stared with a vacant pout...

"Uh..." Jack said, carefully. "I, um.. could do your thinking for you... if you'd like..."

"Really?" She asked, clasping her hands together happily in front of her massive bosom. "That would, like, be so cool!"

"Sure." Jack said - still not nearly convince that what seemed to be going on here really was going on here. After all, it seemed impossible that any woman as truly brain-dead as she seemed to be could actually survive this long by herself.

On the other hand, if she really was as dumb as she appeared...

For her part, Brenda was ecstatically happy. If this nice, cute guy was going to do all the worrisome thinking for her, she could concentrate on trying to block out that screaming in her head that was so unpleasant, by focusing all her attention on just enjoying all the nice feelings of her body.

"So, what should I be doing right now?" She asked, Jack, with a smile.

"Uh... just sitting there is fine." Jack said, wondering what he dared 'think' for her, looking for any sort of trap or downside to this highly improbably situation that had somehow managed to develop. "I'm driving right now, and you're a passenger, so you can just sit there until we get where we're going."

"Okay!" She agreed, brightly, sitting back in the seat and staring out the window at the passing scenery with a vapid smile on her face, concentrating every ounce of her attention on the way the vibrations of the car felt as they traveled through her highly sensitive flesh.

She hummed happily along to herself, her steady concentration on every jiggle, sway and bounce of her body absorbing her utterly and completely...

...so she was completely unaware of Jack's side-long glances at her as he considered the situation, wondering just how far he could take it.

Finally, he pulled up to a stop in a parking space in front of one of the smaller motels at the outskirts of Vegas, a clean but somewhat seedy establishment that catered to the 'low-rollers' who visited Vegas.

"Well, this is where I'm staying." Jack said, carefully. "Do you want to come in?" "I dunno." She said with a giggle and a vapid grin. "Do I?"

He swallowed heavily.

"Yes, you do. You really do."

"Okay!" She agreed, readily, slipping out of the car and following him to the door of his motel room. He unlocked it and led her inside, then stepped aside and closed the door behind her as she stood in the center of the small room, grinning at nothing.

"Now what?" She asked him. He swallowed again.

"Well, uh... you were saying about how you were in the desert, and don't know if you'd just had sex, or was looking for sex." Jack said, very carefully. "I think that you should probably have sex.. just to be on the safe side."

She cocked her head - but she wasn't even really considering his 'suggestion', but was concentrating on blocking out the screaming that, for some reason, had just gotten much louder and more annoying in her mind.

"Okay. Who should I have sex with?" She asked, innocently. Jack almost choked.

"Well... Me, I guess." He finally said.

"Okey-dokey." Brenda agreed, quickly, trying to focus her attention on Jack to override the still-increasing furor in her mind. "What should I do?"

This couldn't be happening, Jack thought numbly to himself. There was no way that this sort of thing happened, not in real life, anyway. The odds against it were, well, phenomenal...

...but then, this was Vegas, wasn't it?

"I'll... just start by playing with your tits for a bit." Jack said, 'judiciously'.

"Good idea!" She agreed, reaching down and peeling her skin-tight top off, setting her massive breasts free to bounce and sway on her chest. "There you go!"

Making an odd little whimpering sound, Jack reached out and hesitantly began pawing at her tits.

"Oh... that feels real nice!" She told him - and it was true, it did. It felt so nice, that it was easier to focus on the way his hands were making her titties feel, helping drown out the banshee-like wailing in her head. She almost latterly wiggled in pleasure. "Oh, like, that's real good!"

Still unable to fully believe this was happening, Jack stepped up his attention, a lot less hesitant as his hands began roaming over more and more of her Barbie-doll body.

"This feels so nice! I like you thinking for me!" She squealed in delight as that annoying screaming in her mind faded even more in the face of the increasing pleasure of his hands - and, at her words, lips.

His hands went to her full, firm ass, sliding across the taut fabric of her shorts - and then, a moment later, he'd undone her fly and slipped her shorts and underwear down so he could fill his hands with the warm globes of her taut ass.

Neither of them noticed - or commented on - the fact that the 'panties' in the shorts were men's briefs, since they'd both been slid down her long legs at the same time - and when she stepped out of them and kicked them into the corner, they were promptly forgotten as they made their way to the nearby bed.

His hands left her body momentarily as they worked at his own clothes - and she enthusiastically joined in on the task of stripping him, the momentary lack of attention to her sensitive body allowing that high-pitched, near-frantic screaming in her mind to remerge into her consciousness...

...but it was completely blotted out a moment later when, now naked, he pulled himself up and impaled her tight cunt with his hard, throbbing cock.

"Oh, God - yes!" She screamed, all 'negative' feelings wiped out in the burst of pleasure thundering through her as he began plunging his hard rod rhythmically into her writhing, highly-pleasured body. "Oh, yeah, fuck me like that,... just like that.. I really LIKE that...!"

She didn't have to worry about anything at all, not when she was being fucked. Oh, no - thought was completely superfluous as she rocked beneath his thrusting body, and any screaming or complaining part of her mind might have been doing was completely buried under the tidal wave of growing pleasure that took up every nerve, every synapse, every neuron.

This was wonderful. Laying there, broad hips thrusting wildly to increase the depth and power of his penetration, her wonderfully huge tits bouncing and shaking on her chest, she didn't need to think, only to feel. She could just let herself react in whatever way it took to increase all this wonderful pleasure - and increase it she did, finding the ever-growing ecstasy even more wonderful with each passing second as less and less of her mind was taken up by anything even closely approaching conscious thought.

Within moments, she wasn't even really a 'person', just a body thrusting and moaning and screaming her way through ultimate pleasure, her mind nothing more than a device to record and experience the wondrous pleasure that came when, finally, she reached a screaming, mind-blowing orgasm that rocked her mind and body simultaneously.

Brain completely shut down for the moment, she shuddered her way through her orgasm as he pumped his load deep into her hot, wet cunt and then, gasping, all-but-fell off of her and slumped down to lay beside her.

Still shivering in mindless delight as several aftershocks hit her body, she stared up at the ceiling with a huge, mindless grin as her lover drifted off to sleep beside her.

Slowly, her mind began to form rudimentary thoughts, the swirling ideas and concepts at first fragmented. 'That was the best sex I've ever had!' Was the first coherent post-coital thought she had...

...and then a faint frown occurred as it brought up the subject of the 'other' sex she'd had, in comparison. She sat bolt upright in bed.

One hand flew to her massive tits.

The other flew to her wet, just-used cunt.

Her mouth and eyes widened into O's of shock and disbelief. "I... I'm a woman!" Brendan gasped in a stricken voice.

"I... I'm a woman who just had sex...!" She whispered to herself in horror.

"I just had sex...!" She said, louder, as Jack stirred beside her, slowly rising from the mists of post-sex sleep at her voice. "I just had sex....!" She screamed, as Jack snapped awake...

"...and loved it!" She finished her squealing shout of mindless happiness, as she turned and looked down at Jack. "Now what...?" "Well, uh..." Jack said, blinking. "Maybe, uh.. well, how 'bout a blow-job, honey?"

"Would I like giving you a blow-job?" She asked, causing him to blink.

"Oh, yeah - you would." Her 'brain' told her, in an odd tone of voice as he guided her head towards his stirring cock. "You love giving blowjobs."

"Okay." She agreed, leaning over and pressing her huge tits against his legs as her warm, wet mouth encircled his cock...

'Gee, my stomach feels all flip-floppy and tight.' She thought to herself as she slurped and sucked at the cock filling her mouth. 'I guess 'liking' blow-jobs means I feel just like I'm about to vomit... and so I must really love sucking cock, 'cause I feel, like, totally ready to spew!'

Giggling to herself at how much like feeling ready to blow chunks 'loving' sucking cock felt like, she went on sucking and slurping...

...while Jack, enjoying an unskilled but highly energetic blow-job, found himself considering possible financial ramifications to the situation he'd somehow stumbled across...

* * * * *

The cum gushed out as if propelled from a fire-house.

Some of it landed in her open mouth, but the majority of it splattered over her face, down her neck, and over her huge tits. She played with the cum filling her mouth, tongue darting out to slide over her sperm-slicked, gloss-pink lips as her hands worked the warm, slick cum into the smooth flesh of her massive tits, until...

"CUT!"

Smiling at her male costar, Brandi Bigguns rose to her feet and swayed sensuously atop her six-inch heels towards the dressing room to get cleaned up and ready for her next shot.

"Great work." Jack - her manager and 'boyfriend' - complimented her as she went by. "Thanks." She said with a giggle, wiggling her way into the dressing room.

Cleaning herself up by the simple expedient of scooping the cum into her mouth and swallowing it, she followed that by using a damp cloth to 'waste' the rest of the man-juice Jack assured her she loved so much. That done, she picked up a lipstick tube and lifted it towards her mouth as she looked in the mirror...

...then stopped dead.

"Hold on..." She muttered to herself...

...and then her eyes widened.

"Oh, god.. I'm a porn star!" She told her reflection in horror. "I'm fucking and sucking men for a living! I.. I.. I have to get out of here!" Turning, she yanked open the door to her private dressing room and started to leave...

"You haven't finished getting ready, honey-buns." The assistant director informed her with a long-suffering sigh.

She blinked at him, obviously confused, then looked at the lipstick she was holding as if seeing it for the first time in her life. "Oh, yeah - right." She said, with a giggle. "Silly me!"

Turning, she went back into her dressing room, and the AD shook his head in amazement, even after having worked with her on three movies.

She was literally as dumb as a post. You had to remind her of everything, tell her exactly what she was doing at any given instant...

...but, then again, with a body as outrageously proportioned as hers, it was worth the effort it took to keep her 'on track'...

...even if the spontaneous sobbing she sometimes broke out into was a little unnerving. Besides, it never lasted long - and was happening less and less often as time went on.

The way things were going, in a few more months she'd just be the perfect little brain-dead little blonde fuck-toy - and that, of course, was just what everybody wanted for Brenda 'Brandi' Bigguns...

...even, deep inside, Brendan, who was desperately praying for the day when 'he' was finally eradicated and forever relieved of the living nightmare his life had become.

THE END.

SUMMARY: Thinking that he has received a sex doll in the mail, one man is dismayed to find that it is really some sort of costume; he tries it on and the changes begin!

Covered Up

By Gunslinger

Yawning hugely, Jake wrapped his tattered old plaid bathrobe around his lean, bony body and padded towards the front door of his house.

Still half asleep, he kicked through the piles of debris rather than stepping over the assortment of fast-food wrappers, cola- and beer- cans, and porno magazines.

Given the clutter that filled the old, post-war red brick house, his slow, unsteady progress simply redistributed the litter, rather than spreading it. Kicking through one last drift atop the faded afghan rug he'd inherited along with his parents house, he reached the front door and dealt sleepily with the intricacies of a dead-bolt lock.

Having spent half the night playing Biohazard: Contagion on-line, Jake's eyes were ill-prepared for the full light of day, and he groaned and threw a slender hand up to shade his muddy brown eyes. A moment later, the indistinct shape of a figure coalesced out of the bright white blur, forming into a slender black man dressed in a rather geeky-looking brown uniform.

"Uh, hi..." The deliveryman said, blinking at the tall, lean, fine-boned young man with the crew-cut brown hair standing in the doorway, obviously just awakened despite the fact that it was a little after noon. "Look, the label on this is a little smeared, and I'm having trouble making it out..."

The delivery man hefted the plain brown-paper wrapped package he held - and Jake's eyes lit up at the sight. "Yeah!" He crowed, grabbing the package from the startled man's hands. "I've been waiting for this!"

"Well, if you're sure it's for you..." The delivery man said, doubtfully.

"Sure, sure!" Jake gushed, all but yanking the pad out of his hands and scrawling an illegible signature across it before jamming it back into the dark-skinned man's hands and slamming the door shut in his face.

Already tearing the brown paper wrapping away from the plain white box within, Jake headed eagerly towards the kitchen, nominally the cleanest room in the small house he'd inherited after his parent's death.

He'd been born very late in his parent's life, an unexpected arrival. His parents, good hard-working parents, had not only managed to sock away a good nest-egg before passing on, but owned the house outright. Sure, the house was small, undistinguished, and now on the very outskirts of a commercial/industrial area that had slowly expanded over the years, but it was all his - which meant that he could quite comfortably live off the savings his parents had left behind.

At twenty-one, he was more-or-less retired, able to do just about whatever he wanted...

...including ordering an inflatable sex-doll from an on-line catalogue.

Chortling with excitement, the painfully skinny, self-absorbed young man dropped into the cracked and vinyl kitchen chair, almost reverently placing the box down on the table in front of him and lifting off the lid.

"Oh!" He gasped, the surprised expression wrung from him at the sight of what lay carefully packed inside. He hadn't expected it to be so... detailed.

The deflated 'woman' laying inside didn't look much like the fairly small image on the website. For one thing, the skin actually had texture, almost identical to 'real' human skin, except for the fact that it was utterly unblemished and lacking in any body hair.

Not that the limp, flat figure was lacking in hair. Indeed, it had a head full of it - a 'wig' that was part of the skin, long, thick, mahogany- colored tresses that went very well indeed with the rich, bronze shading of the 'skin' and the dark, almost black iris' of the eyes...

"They sent me the wrong one...!" He said, with a sigh. "I ordered 'Betty the Blonde Bimbo'." He sighed again - then shrugged. After all, any sex doll served the same purpose.

"I'll just inflate you, sweet cheeks..." Jake told the doll, grinning, "...and then we'll have some... what the hell?" Confused, Jake held the deflated doll out at arm's length, looking at it's back, where he'd expected to find the fill valve. "Great - it's ripped!"

He reconsidered on a long, second glance however - the split up the back of the of the doll was to even, to regular, to be a rip or tear. "How the hell is this supposed to work...?" Jake asked himself, flipping the doll over and looking at it again.

Confused, he glanced into the box, hoping for an instruction booklet - and instead found a length of hose. It had a standard fitting at one end, then separated into two, smaller hoses that ran for about two feet before ending in what looked like the small little 'needles' on the end of a basketball pump.

"Hmmm... Water filled." Jake mused.

Still somewhat confused, but game, he carefully scrutinized the doll - and found four little plastic fill valves, almost invisible and located under each armpit and at the very bottom crease of what would have been each buttock on a real woman.

"Huh. Let's give it a try..." Jake said, carrying both the doll and the hose with him as he headed into the bathroom.

The bathtub was an old, claw-foot type, with a simple faucet nearly identical to an outdoor tap. The hose attached perfectly to the faucet, and he carefully placed one needle in the valves under each of the armpits before laying the doll down in the tub.

He figured that the doll was broken up into four 'water chambers', two above the waist and two below. Based on that, he figured it would take a while to fill even the top half through the small hoses he'd plugged into it, so he turned on the tap and headed off to the kitchen to start some coffee brewing.

Once the Brewmaster was gurgling away contently, he hurried back to the bathroom...

...then swore loudly and hastily shut off the water.

"Shit!" He swore again, pulling the hoses from the fill points and lifting the doll from the tub - awkwardly, because of the over-sized 'tits' the doll now sported.

He was surprised that the latex - or whatever it was - that made up the doll's skin hadn't burst from the pressure. Each 'breast' was roughly the size and shape of a basketball, with the amazingly life-like nipples and areola similarly outsized at the apex of each heavy, round orb.

Jake tried for several minutes to find a way to 'shrink' the ridiculously huge boobs, but the valves seemed to be one-way, not allowing any of the water back out.

With a sigh, he considered simply tossing it aside and calling the company for instructions, or a refund... then he shrugged, and decided to 'play around' with it for awhile longer, if he was simply going to return it.

Hoping that he'd simply picked the 'breast size' valves, and it was the other set that inflated the rest of the doll, Jake hooked the hose up to the two 'butt valves' and turned on the water.

A moment later, he shut it off in disgust, only having achieved the effect of 'plumping out' the ass to respectable proportions.

"Just how the hell is this supposed to work...?" He asked of thin air, carefully turning the doll over and over in his hands, hoping to find another set of valves, or some other indication of how to fill out the rest of the doll.

"Geez..." He snorted, his eyes returning to the slit running up the back, "It looks more like a suit than a doll."

He chuckled, shaking his head - he paused, and took a long, hard look at the suit, a thoughtful expression on his bony face.

He glanced around nervously, almost as if expecting somebody to be standing by, ready to jump out and laugh at him or castigate him for the thought he'd just had.

"Well..." He muttered, blushing. "Why not?"

Feeling extremely self-conscious, he hesitantly slipped out of his robe and sat on the cold porcelain edge of the tub.

Holding out the 'skin', he slowly, hesitantly slid one hard-edged hairy leg into the slid of the suit, sliding his toe around until he found the top of the right leg.

The inside of the suit was slick, making it easy for him to slide his leg down into the leg of the suit, until his own foot was filling out the bronzed foot of the suit, it's own toes sliding onto his own after a few seconds of toe flexing.

"What the hell am I doing...?" Jake asked himself - even as he repeated the procedure with his other leg.

Once he had both feet in the suit, he stood and slid his arms in, surprised at how awkward the over-filled breasts made it as he groped for the arm hole. A minute later, he found them, and he hesitated for a long second before taking a deep breath and leaning forward, shouldering his head into the suit in a bent position, then standing up swiftly.

The motion pulled the 'suit' more-or-less into the correct position over his body - but it took a couple of minutes of blind fumbling to finally get the 'face' lined u enough that the eyes popped into place, letting him see out of the lenses.

"It is a suit!" He exclaimed, after getting the mouth and lips into position so that he could speak. He shrugged his shoulders and smoothed the suit around his body, annoyed at the way the size and weight of the ridiculously oversized breasts got in the way as he settled the suit into the correct position over his body.

"Kinky..." He commented, as he hesitantly approached the mirror, not really sure if he wanted to see what he looked like in this... female body-suit, or whatever it was.

He caught sight of his reflection - and gasped.

The 'woman' in the mirror mimicked the expression perfectly.

Aside from the ridiculously oversized breasts - or, perhaps, even despite them - the woman reflected in the mirror was gorgeous. There was some amount of padding built into the skin of the suit, and that certain amount of padding managed to combine with Jake's tall, bony built for a final effect that was stunning.

The padding within the face softened the angular bones of his face, give 'her' a set of high, well-defined cheekbones on a broad, string-jawed face vaguely reminiscent of Sophia Loren.

The same effect could be seen in the rest of 'her' body. The extra padding made 'her' hands seem smaller, more femininely scaled in proportion, and because of his extremely lanky build under that padding, the overall effect was a tall, supple-slim woman with trim hips and a tiny waist on an exaggerated hour-glass torso balanced atop long, slender legs.

"This is just too... weird." Jake muttered, gaping at the mirror. Trying on the 'suit', just for the hell of it, had seem 'perverted' enough - but, somehow, the fact that he made such a stunningly attractive woman made it only worse. He shuddered in emotional discomfort at the attractive - and highly realistic - image the mirror reflected...

...then shuddered again, this time because of a strange, almost electric tingle that pulsed out from the base of the neck's suit.

He gasped - then shuddered again, as a stronger pulse emerged, this one spreading out from it's point-of-origin until it spread across every inch of his body...

...except that, well before it finished it's all-inclusive travel, a second pulse went out. Then a third...

...and a fourth...

Jake began thrashing and whipping around the bathroom - not because he wanted to, but because of the electric pulses causing nerves to fire almost randomly. He shivered, shook and shimmied as the pulses grew faster and closer together, somehow managing to retain his feet as he was almost literally thrown around the room in the grip of the tingling seizures the pulses caused.

Then, slowly, the pulses died away, and Jake yanked himself upright, holding on to the edges of the sink for support. "What the fuck-?" Jake asked the mirror...

...in a husky, but sensual, female voice.

Dark eyes flying wide, Jake gaped slack-jawed at the woman in the mirror who the voice so well matched, his hands flying up towards his throat.

He had, however, failed to compensate for the heavy, awkward weight and mass of the suits huge, round breasts, and his arms slammed into the outboard underside of each massive mammary...

...and a high-pitched breathless little shriek was ripped from her throat as her nervous system registered that impact, not only through her arms, but through the huge - and highly sensitive - breasts themselves.

"This... this can't be happening!" She told her reflection, squeezing as much of the ludicrous breast-flesh as would fit in her hands - then hastily letting go as the sensation, with the voice, put lie to her denial.

She simply stared at her feminine reflection for a long, long moment - and then her hands flew, almost of their own accord, to her crotch...

"Noooooooo!" She shrieked, slumping to her cutely dimpled new knees at her fingers encountered the smooth, soft folds of a her warm new womanhood.

"Off.. gotta take it off..." She told herself, an edge of hysteria in her damnably sexy new feminine voice, as she reached behind her. It was awkward, because of the way the motion made her huge, heavy breasts rise higher on her chest as she fumbled around behind her, long new nails painfully running across the soft, smooth flesh of her back.

The unbroken flesh of her back - for, as she rose and whirled desperately to peer over her shoulder, she discovered that, not only was her soft new skin much tougher - and much more sensitive - than 'natural' skin, it was also utterly seamless.

"I don't want to be a chick..." She sobbed, her still-scrabbling hands slowly losing momentum as the futility of trying to remove the suit that had, somehow, bonded with her registered.

"No..." She sobbed, hands dropping in defeat. "Please, God - I don't want to be a woman..."

God, however, ignored her plea, and no miracle was forthcoming to reverse the inexplicable effects of the suit. A woman she was - and a woman she remained.

"This... shouldn't be possible..." She sobbed. "How could this possibly happen?"

Slowly, through her haze of fear and horror, the question's import registered on the new woman's mind, and she repeated it, in a more thoughtful tone: "How could this happen? How could a... a sex doll, or suit, or whatever, turn me into a real woman?"

The thought struck home - and she rose and hurried towards the living room, where the computer was located.

All things considered, it wasn't terribly surprising that she failed to notice the small lettering floating in the bottom-right corner of her vision, placed there via the miracle of the semi-transparent micro-LED screens built into the 'contact lenses' of the synthetic body suit. After all, the lettering was low-contrast, little more than a barely-there distortion unless you attempted to focus on the letters - which, not having received the separately shipped 'operating manual' that had gone to the correct destination, the new woman didn't know to do.

So, she missed reading the lettering output by the tiny micro-processor of the suit, now wired directly into the neural network of her brain - the lettering she read: AWAITING INPUT.

In fact, it hadn't even occurred to Jake, who - male or female - wasn't exactly the brightest bulb in the box, that the suit might not have been from the company she'd been expecting a package from. She was, rather stupidly, fixated on the idea that it was some other product from fly-by-night adult specialty company that had 'merely' been accidentally shipped in place of correct order.

A notion that she might have been disabused of, had she bothered to check the return address on the packaging itself - but that thought didn't occur to her, either, and she instead went to her computer, planning to return to the website from which she'd ordered the sex doll in the first place.

Of course, part of the problem was the fact that she didn't remember the URL of the website, and had to reconstruct her route to it by trying to find the same series of links she'd stumbled across while perusing the Internet for porn.

So, she opened her bookmarks and went to the first site she'd started at, a daily TGP site...

...and, concentrating on the images popping up on the website, she again failed to notice the small lettering in the bottom right-hand corner of her vision.

The lettering that now read: PROCESSING INPUT.

Perhaps, in a way, it was a good thing that she completely failed to notice the changing array of letters and words in the corner of her vision as she continued surfing from one porn site to another - for she might have realized that the processor, now wired directly into her brain and her central nervous system, was 'learning' at a tremendous rate.

Learning about being female.

Learning about being female - from porn sites.

In fact, there were a great many things the new woman didn't know.

For instance, she didn't know that the site she'd ordered the sex-doll from was a scam - a company that was little more than a post office box, a rented cubical, and a server, that took people's checks and then folded up operation and slipped away to another city, to set up under another name and URL.

She also didn't know that, during her three-hour long fruitless search, the suit was recording what it considered the 'appropriate' imagery and video graphics: the ones that matched the 'correct' gender for the suit, the female images.

She certainly didn't know that the suit, similar in technological design to the fictional 'tuxedo' in the Jackie Chan / Jennifer Love Hewitt movie of the same name, was only doing what it was supposed to, since the purpose of the suit was to allow a quadriplegic person capable of moving again. Wired into every single nerve in the body, the padding designed to make up for the atrophy common with paralysis, with the 'programming' designed to completely circumvent the usual long, grueling process of physiotherapy needed to learn to move again, the suit was an incredible technological miracle...

...and was developed illegally from highly sensitive military technology stolen by a desperate employee at a department of defense research facility.

All of which meant that she definitely didn't know that contacting the person on the return address of the package was the worst possible thing she could do, when the idea finally occurred to her after those hours of wasted searching.

Which was why, after the thought finally occurred to her, she rose from the computer and headed for the kitchen...

...completely unaware of the extremely feminine gait she was using.

She didn't notice she was standing on tip-toe, hips moving in a supple, rhythmic sway as her arms, close to her side, made small, little arcs beside the huge, swaying breasts that were counter-balanced by the smooth swiveling of her hips.

She didn't notice any of this - because the microprocessor was providing both action and feedback, as seamlessly and 'intuitively' as it was designed to do. Her brain generated the command 'walk' - and the processor took over, using the processed and programmed data it had been incidentally fed from the internet to create the feminine walk it believed was the intended final effect, and then it took the resulting sensations and reported to her brain that everything was going exactly the way it was supposed to do.

The programming didn't 'override' her own mind, just the incoming and outgoing nerve impulses. It wasn't forcing her to do anything - but was determining how she did whatever it was she was doing.

All so smoothly and effectively that she didn't - couldn't - tell it was happening.

Not that it didn't mean that she couldn't register the differences in sensations that came from walking that way in her new body. She didn't realize just how feminine she was walking - but she could feel the way her huge breasts bobbed and swayed with each step, their heavy, firm weight new and unfamiliar...

...and both annoying and disturbingly pleasant.

Reaching the kitchen, she found the discarded wrapping. Picking it, she didn't even notice that she tossed a long, thick mass of wavy tresses back over her slender shoulder with a feminine flip of her hand.

Nor did she notice the feminine pose she struck, one hip against the wall, as she picked up the phone and dialed the number in the return address section of the waybill.

* * * * *

The shrill shrieking of the phone cut off Dr. William Kurtz' tirade in mid-swear, and he all-but dived for the phone.

When the computer tracking the delivery company provided had indicated the package had been delivered, he'd called the intended recipient, eager to walk her through the process on the phone...

...and learned that she'd never gotten the package.

Now, hoping that the delivery service had finally figured out it's snafu, he eagerly yanked up the phone. "Kurtz!" He snapped, half angrily, half eagerly.

"Uh... Mr. Kurtz?" A warm, rich, feminine voice asked over the phone...

...a voice that he recognized immediately, as he'd programmed it. Kurtz' blood ran cold at the thought that somebody else had put on the suit.

"Look, I, uh, got this suit in the mail..." The voice said, awkwardly. "I put it on... and now I can't seem to get it off..." Kurtz' mind spun at the horror of the situation.

He'd never bothered to come up with a method of removing the suit once it was put on. It was permanent - and any attempt to find some sort of reversal would require revelation of his theft, of his dishonesty.

It was actually much worse than that, of course - but in her rush to get back to being male, Jake had skipped over the pleasantries of introducing herself - and she didn't even realize that the suit was giving her the rich, natural feminine intonations. The hysteria that should have been in her voice was missing, 'edited' out by the suit...

...leaving Kurtz to assume that it was a woman who'd put on the suit, which was why she was merely 'upset', rather than hysterical as a man who put on the suit accidentally would be evincing.

Which was why his whirling, frantic mind struck on a plan - not much of a plan, but a hastily conceived one that just might keep him from being sent to jail.

Looking around frantically, he finally spotted what he was looking for - a small electronic device. "Uh... Mr. Kurtz?" The woman asked, uncertainly.

"Yes, just a second..." Kurtz said, lunging for the device - and bringing it up to the phone mouthpiece, where he pressed the button that sent out a very high-pitched squeal.

A squeal that activated the auditory programming override...

* * * * *

She shivered - and looked at the phone she'd just hung up, confusion plain on her face. Kurtz had just told her what she needed to do to be normal again...

...but she couldn't remember what he'd said.

Blinking, she shook her head, feeling strangely dazed, as if she'd just gone through some sort of struggle - but she couldn't imagine what sort of mental struggle she might have gone through while listening to the now consciously-forgotten instructions she'd be given.

It would have worried her - except that 'worry' simply didn't seem to be an option. In fact, she felt oddly calm and even... content, somehow. Oh, sure, she knew she hated being female, and she desperately wanted to be a man again, but she no longer felt panicked or horrified about her condition. Instead, she felt content to be female until it was time to stop being female, as soon as she did... whatever it was she had to do.

She also felt confident that she'd know what she had to do, when she had to do it - even if she didn't understand what or why she was doing.

With that calm, content confidence, she found herself heading to her bedroom, where she pulled on a white T-shirt and a pair of once-baggy jeans. Both shirt and pants clung to her fuller new figure like a second skin, and she was faintly bemused to find herself excited by the image revealed by the mirror, that of a lushly-figured woman in tight-fitting clothes. She would have thought she'd be disgusted to find herself doing something even vaguely sexy in her new, female body - but, instead, she found it exciting.

Which wasn't as worrisome as she would have thought it would be, either. In fact, she was also content to find herself excited to be sexual.

"That's kind of weird..." She told her reflection, smiling warmly at her supple, feminine figure, one hand lightly caressing the massive breast under the straining shirt that, with so much of the fabric taken up trying to cover her huge tits, left her belly bare. "I didn't realize I'd find being a sexy woman so... fun!"

She heard herself give a deep, sensual sigh at the admission she'd just made.

"Well, I'm eager to be a man again..." She said, finding herself wincing at saying such a thing aloud, even if she was alone. She certainly couldn't bring herself to mention her masculine past to anybody else, she was sure. "...but it might not be utterly horrible being female for however long I'm stuck like this."

Giving herself a wink in the mirror, she slipped into a pair of sneakers and, walking with an exaggerated, sexy sway, she headed towards the door. She found herself extremely aware of the motions and sensations of her transformed body as she walked - and was pleasantly surprised at how good it felt to have massive boobs to jiggle and sway, and a full, firm ass to move tautly under her jeans.

Humming softly to herself, luxuriating in the feel of her feminine body, she grabbed her wallet and keys and headed out to her car - not even sure where she was going.

It turned out she was going shopping.

It was easier than she would have expected - because she seemed to know exactly what she needed to buy as soon as she saw it. She was modestly surprised by some of the things she purchased - but she knew they had to be the right things, because as soon as she saw them, she felt a pleasurable wave of eager excitement run through her, accompanied by a wave of uncritical pleasure when she purchased the item.

Finally, she returned to her car, carrying her purchases with her in a suitcase she'd also purchased - and was intrigued to find herself pointing the hood of her car to the road leading out of town.

Of course, she had no idea where she was going, but she wasn't worried about the fact she was leaving town, since the waves of mindless pleasure that ran through her told her she must be doing the right thing.

Of course, the fact that she had this mindless pleasure to guide her was a handy thing - since that dazed feeling hadn't left her, leaving her in a strange, dreamy state that would have made any deep thinking extremely difficult. It was so much easier to just let herself obey these sort of pleasure/pain impulses guiding her, without really doing anything so annoying or boring as thinking.

Yes - thinking was much over-rated. It was thinking that had gotten herself into this trouble...

...and so not thinking was the solution! Yes - it made so much sense.

In a warm, happy - and utterly uncritical - fog, she let herself drive the car to wherever it was she was going.

She drove for more than three hours, stopping once to gas up - but, if after the drive, she'd been asked how long it had taken, or if she'd ever stopped, she wouldn't have been able to answer. Her mind was slowly shutting down, things like memory and rational thought and 'real' emotions seemingly unimportant as she let herself be swayed by the guiding burst of pleasure, leavened occasionally by emotional discomfort when she did something wrong...

...and all underscored by a faint, but persistent headache, the only enduring sign of her mind's futile attempt to break through the wall of conditioning Dr. Kurtz had created.

Well, the wall that Kurtz was the architect of - for she'd built the wall herself.

It was the only way it could be. After all, the mind is designed to resist such outside influence, even when amplified by the devices in the suit.

Kurtz, however, had known this - and taken it into account when choosing a method of covering up the mistake and keeping her from speaking.

He'd told her that the only way to get the suit off... was to forget she had it on.

In fact, he'd told her that the suit was designed to 'stretch her capabilities' - and that it would only deactivate once she'd picked up a new lifestyle using all her 'untapped' skills, to the point that she was so confident and comfortable in her new persona that she'd stop consciously thinking about her previous life for at least a full twenty-four hours.

Of course, Kurtz thought that the person in the suit had been female to begin with, and so thought it would just be a 'lifestyle change', one that by its very nature would keep her from ever bringing up the fact anything had changed to anybody else.

What Kurtz hadn't known was that the new woman had been male, with the only 'untapped skills' being any sort of social or sexual skills... and the downloaded female skills.

She, however, did know all of this - and so the very fact that she was so driven, so eager, to get back to being male only gave her own mind extra impetus to force herself to become more feminine... in order to, supposedly, become masculine again.

So, a man trapped in the body of a woman, not too bright but unbelievably motivated, was doing her own level best to make her own worst nightmare come true.

All of which combined to explain why, motivated by something she wanted more than anything else in the world, a very large part of her really was looking forward to what she was going to do - while the rest of her mind, aside from trying to forget her past, was also trying to forget what it was she was doing, even as she was doing it.

It was a survival maneuver, necessary under the circumstances - and the reason why she was able to surprise herself with her own actions.

With her mind desperately suppressing any conscious knowledge of what it was she was quite voluntarily to achieve her desperately desired goal, it meant that she had 'no idea' why she actually pulled into the cheap hotel in a somewhat run-down urban center, in a city she couldn't have named if her life had depended on it.

Her mind was working under the idea that 'ignorance is bliss' - and, since she was fooling herself quite effectively, it was working.

Mindlessly happy, all worries, disgust, hatred and horror forcibly forced down by her subconscious mind before it could reach her consciousness, she pulled the car up in front of the office and slipped from behind the wheel.

She had a full range of female movements imbedded in her mind that would have unconsciously had her move in a feminine way - but she was quite consciously aware of her motions, as she was consciously making an effort to move in the 'perfect' feminine way, tapping into the unconscious skills to consciously create her second-by-second feminine control of her body.

So, her movements were almost eerily graceful and perfectly performed, each motion precise-yet-delicate, smooth and using only just enough energy to complete the motion.

So, it might be noted that it was this eerily perfect, somehow feminine movement that caught the clerk's attention first, even before the huge, round tits straining the shirt she wore.

Her tits were the second thing he noticed...

...with the fact that, despite her simple clothing and lack of make-up she was still both stunningly beautiful and stunningly second coming in a far distant third.

On her own behalf, most of what she noticed first, second and third, was her own massive bust. The way they felt as she walked, the heavy, softly firm weight of them shifting and shimmying with each smooth, supple step...

...the way the pot-bellied Hispanic clerk's eyes fell on her huge bust, and stayed there right through the check-in process.

Which gave her a shiver - which her subconscious mind quickly made sure that her conscious mind registered as a shiver of pleasure.

Shooting the man a long, lingering smile, she signed 'her' name in the register, in a very carefully, consciously created feminine script:

Angelica DeVille.

With another long, lingering smile at the clerk, she peeled off some of the bills from the wad she obtained at an ABM while shopping, then accepted the key in return, and headed out back to the car...

...with a sexy, added sway to her full, taut ass.

Pulling her car into the slot in front of her assigned unit, the newly-named Angelica grabbed her suitcase and heading into the room.

Standing in the center of the room, suitcase open on the bed, she stripped out of her straining male attire - and began to dress in clothing created more with her new figure in mind.

Once dressed, she pulled out the supply of make-up she'd purchased, then pulled the faded old chair from the corner in front of the bureau-mounted mirror, sat down, and spent the next hour doing her make-up. She had to do it three times to get it right, but finally she was 'happy' with the effect - that being the emotion her subconscious decided to treat the sensations she was feeling as.

Ready, she clasped the black leather clutch purse, slipped her room key inside, and headed out of the room.

Her hips swung in a wide, swiveling sway that was both incredibly graceful and incredibly sexy, the taut, full, round ass working visibly - and erotically - beneath the skin-tight fabric of the dark red silk of her dress' full-length slit skirt.

Her feet moved in a smooth, even heel-to-toe stride that caused the six-inch heels on her black, classically-inspired pumps to clack with an unmistakably feminine sound.

The slit running down the left side of the ankle-length skirt was trimmed with rich, old-gold braided trim whose gleam drew the eye to the slit - and the long, black nylon clad leg that appeared with each graceful stride she took.

That same eye-catching gleam trimmed the décolletage of her dress - and if the stitching of the rush tailoring job she'd had done to make the dress fit both trim waist and massive bust was a little uneven, it would have been hard to notice against the distraction of the deep cleavage and richly golden flesh of tits that, if they hadn't been so massive and so well-displayed by the tight-fitting silk fabric, would have been demurely displayed.

Her massive, thick mane of her rich, dark hair fell in mahogany waves around her golden shoulders, framing a face whose beauty had been enhanced with a 'subtle' make-up scheme that failed completely to hide the sensuality inherent in her features and her full, deep-red lips.

From the highest, breaking curl of her lush wave of hair to the rounded-point toes of her high-heeled shoes, she was wearing clothes, make-up and accessories that bespoke coolly beautiful elegance - and gave off a palatable air of barely restrained sensuality...

...in a way that made it seem if that sensuality, not only of figure, but of expression and movement, was utterly unavoidable, inherent rather than so carefully cultivated and projected, as it really was.

Instead, it seemed that this gorgeous, carefully attired woman simply couldn't help giving of an aura of pure sex.

Reaching the street, she headed down to the corner of the nearest main road, every motion part of a carefully orchestrated, choreographed display of sensual elegance...

...while her subconscious mind edited out the disgust and self-hatred generated by her willingness - and worse, success - before it ever reached her determinedly 'happy' conscious mind.

Reaching the busier corner, she struck a consciously feminine, sensual pose, and watched for a cab to flag down.

She had her own car, of course, but there were several reasons why she was going to flag down a cab - and none of them was as far thinking as the fact that she didn't have a valid driver's license to match her new name and gender.

One of the reasons was the fact that she didn't know the town, and a cab driver would be able to get her to a place based solely on a description of what she was looking for...

...and there was another major reason, as well.

* * * * *

Marty, the bartender, was in the process of handing David his martini when he suddenly stopped dead, chilled martini glass clasped in a suddenly petrified hand just a few inches shy of the waiting napkin resting on the polished oak bar David was leaning against.

David blinked, confused - and then became aware of a sudden drop in the volume of glass and metal clinking and muted conversation within the confines of the upscale bar and club.

The void beneath the shadow of the soft, high-fidelity music coming from the overhead speakers was replaced by the sweeping susurrations of clothing against seats as people turned in place, and the sound of the soles of David's Italian leather shoes joined in the soft wave of sound as he turned to look towards the door...

...and stare.

The very fact that he shouldn't be disposed to stare at the woman who'd just entered made him stare all the harder.

She wasn't his type, not by a long shot. He liked his women shorter than him, blondes or redheads with pert breasts just big enough to fill his hands - whereas the woman who'd caused such a sensation was just the antithesis of his 'type' of woman in just about every imaginable way.

She was tall - six-one or -two, even without adding in the height of the slender, ankle-breaker heels on her gleaming black pumps.

Oh, she had a stunning face, and a tiny waist, and her legs seemed to be on the 'better than just' side of 'okay' - but, aside from being so tall, she also had the biggest breasts David had ever seen. No - not just big.

Huge. Massive.

Freakishly, ridiculously, impossibly gigantic tits, packed 'demurely' into a dress top a good fifty percent larger than the rest of the torso.

So, he shouldn't have had the slightest sexual interest in her - which made the fact that 'Goliath' was stirring in his boxers.

It was something in the unbelievable way she moved, about the expression in her heavy-lidded eyes, the slight, knowing smile to those incredible, full lips - or just some sort of supernatural aura that streamed off this woman, somehow making it known that her incredible, unreal body was capable of doing things to, with, for men that no other woman could.

Aware of his slowly rising erection, David coughed demurely and turned back to the bar - a move similar to that of many of the other men in the bar.

A moment later, a soft rustle of silk and a sweet scent announced a feminine presence at David's side - and, even without looking, the almost overpowering sexual presence of the woman announced it was the bronzed sexual goddess herself.

"Is that yours?" She asked - and, dammit, her low, slightly husky voice was every bit as sensual as the rest of her. "Or is for anybody?"

Blushing slightly over the fact that Goliath had gone from 'slowly rising' to 'hard as a rock', David glanced up - to find the woman making an incredibly graceful, feminine gesture towards the martini held by the still-immobile Marty.

A movement that somehow made her massive breasts move in a way that was enticing even to a man who, intellectually, knew them to be ridiculously oversized.

David's intellect, however, wasn't running the show.

"oh, uh - please, be my guest." David managed - then wasn't sure how to feel as Marty, previously a stature, suddenly slipped the martini into her only half-outstretched hand with expert alacrity.

"Thank you..." She said - to him, not Marty, and somehow making the simple words sound like she were offering him some sort of exotic sexual experience.

She smiled at him - and her eyes quickly but expertly repeated the once-over he was on his twentieth run on, pausing for an instant on a crotch that occasioned a second, slower, smile.

For some reason, David was finding it hard to breathe normally - but speaking happened almost on autopilot. "I'm David - David Johansson."

She smiled for a third time - and he had to strain to hear her low, sensual answer through the sudden pounding in his ears. "Angelica DeVille," She said, oh-so-warmly, "...and I am so very pleased to meet you, David."

Her tone was no more sensual than before - but her eyes flicked back down to his crotch on 'very'.

She took a sip of the martini - and then her slim, long pink tongue slipped out to lick her incredibly full lips, her eyes once more dropping to his crotch.

"So - what do you do for a living, handsome?" She asked.

It took David a second to remember that piece of information.

"Oh - I, uh, I'm a lawyer." He finally managed. "And you, Angelica? What do you do?"

She smiled at him for a long, long second - so long that David didn't think she was going to answer...

* * * * *

It was as if she'd gone into 'system lock'.

She'd been steadily more surprised at what she'd found herself doing - but not worried, or bothered. In fact, the level of emotional pleasure had been rising steadily, her mind manufacturing more and more happiness at what she was doing, right up until this moment...

...when something seemed to lock down her brain, holding her in exact flux between something she desperately wanted to do and something she desperately didn't want to.

Then, it was simply the fact that the carefully toned, groomed and dressed blond man was waiting for an answer that pushed her into action...

* * * * *

"I'm a 'professional' woman." She said, the slight, knowing emphasis on the word making it all abundantly clear. David gaped at her.

Sure, she was the most utterly sensual woman he'd ever seen - but also the most elegant, the most daintily feminine.

She was a hooker...?

She was, however, still talking.

"It was a self-defense choice, really." She said, taking another sip of her drink - and another side-long glance at his crotch. David gave her the most insightful, witty response he was capable of:

"Huh...?"

"Well, you see, I started out as an 'amateur' woman, but I was so busy doing... pro bono work, I was having trouble making any sort of a living." She said, in such an off-hand tone that it took the full import of the words to register on a very startled David's mind. "So, I decided I needed some sort of standard to help me control my... my enjoyments. Given the level of skills I've picked up during my amateur days, it seemed only reasonable to limit my... hobby... to those who can afford a rather hefty fee."

She took another sip, smiling as she waited for David's response. He hesitated...

"How much?"

"One thousand, and I'm yours until dawn..." She said, her voice now openly sexual...

...as she drew one long, red fingernail lightly over his bulging crotch. "Let's go." David said, hoarsely.

* * * * *

Something about this didn't seem right.

Sitting in David's Jag, leaning against him and giving him a series of hungry looks as she lightly stroked his knee, thigh and crotch, she was running more or less on sexual autopilot as she tried to get her almost completely shut-down brain to deal with the nagging feeling tickling the back of her dormant mind.

It wasn't easy - not with the steady waves of emotional pleasure her subconscious mind was generating out of her 'real' feelings washing through her.

God, all that pleasure was just so... distracting! Exactly as it was supposed to be.

Still trying to think, she mindlessly followed him from the car to his house...

* * * * *

With a slithering sound, the silk dress slid off of her incredible figure, revealing that there was nothing else but nylons under it. Correction - no other clothing. There was, however, a whole lot of woman - including that massive amount of breast-flesh.

Those freakishly huge tits - which had, somehow, become utterly perfect.

So huge, so round, so unreal - beyond the normal rules of what he should feel.

"You love my huge tits, don't you, stud...?" Angelica asked in a voice that was now pure sex - as was every move, every pose, every nuance, as she began to undress him, letting his clothes fall wherever they landed on his bedroom floor. "For tonight, they're your tits, babe. Go ahead..."

Unable to believe the pure sexuality this woman gave off, David buried his face in her yawning cleavage, his hands fondling and caressing the smoothly firm flesh of her massive breasts as she reached down to undo his pants...

* * * * *

There was a reason she was 'pure sexuality' - because she was running solely on the downloaded information of the microprocessor in the now-bonded suit.

She was incapable of operating her own body, her mind overwhelmed.

Half of it was trying, desperately, to put all of this in some sort of context, to find out why her mind was trying to warn her, trying to tell her something vitally important...

...while, at the same time, trying to drown itself out. With pleasure.

Emotional pleasure - and physical pleasure.

In a frantic effort to keep her from focusing on the root cause of her discomfort, her mind had basically switched off her pain receptors in favor of doubling the ability of her pleasure center. Exquisite, fiery lines of pleasure burned through every nerve in her buxom new body - and, as equally as distracting as the pleasure was the hyper-reality of her senses, every sight, sound and sensation magnified three times over, washing through her stunned, struggling brain as she experienced her body fondling, and being fondled in return.

Kissing, and being kisses. Touching.

Caressing.

Every sensation unimaginably sharp, clear - and pleasurable.

The rest of the day - the rest of her entire past - was a blur, despite her attempts to sharpen it to find out why what she was doing might somehow feel so 'wrong' - yet it was a losing battle in the face of her sexual experience, engraving itself indelibly on her mind.

It was as if her very existence had started the moment the dress had slipped from her body. Everything before that was a vague haze, unformed and confusing - and every instant afterwards sharp and crystal-clear, her body performing on its own - and generating yet more mind-numbing pleasure.

How could she concentrate with all this pleasure, as she was lowered onto the bed by the nearly-bursting man, her long legs spreading wide of their own accord?

How could she think, his hot hands burning pleasure up her body as he slithered his way between those inviting legs, touching at caressing?

How could she think, with him above her, his face nearly inhuman with inflamed desire as he bucked his hips and... Oh, God, it felt... so... GOOD !

* * * * *

He'd never had sex that felt so good.

Her body moved in ways that no woman's body had every moved with his before - as if, somehow, her body was moving only to provide the most perfect sexual experience he'd ever have, no matter what her mind might be going through.

She bucked, then writhed, then shimmied, her tight, wet cunt wrapping itself around his cock in a way he'd never even dreamed, the angle and depth changing subtly on each thrust to maximize the pleasure he felt...

...as her incredible voice, under inhumanly perfect control, said all the right things, at all the right times.

Sometimes she whispered, sometimes she screamed. She told him how wonderful he was, then urged him to even more. Her body.

Her voice. Her rhythm. Her beat.

All were tools to be used in building a monument to perfect, unimagined sexual pleasure as he built to a thunderous climax...

...and then, impossibly, she somehow hit a counter-point rhythm, thrust for nearly desperate thrust, holding him at exactly that knife's- edge point of ecstasy.

It was the most utterly, unbelievably, overwhelmingly amazing thing he'd ever experienced, pleasure prolonged nearly to the point of pain - but not quite, for at that penultimate moment before it would have become too much, she moved her hips, one - and he cried out as he came longer and harder than he ever had in his entire life...

...and she still wasn't done...

* * * * *

...so good, so good, so good...

The mantra repeated over and over in a mind that had become little more than a recording machine for the continuous waves of pleasure, physical and emotional, that washed through her as she took the limp cock into her mouth and began slowly working him back to erection, every sensation engraved in her mind as it happened.

The texture and the taste of his juice-slick organ, warm in her mouth and hands. The smell of his crotch.

The feel of his skin.

The sight of the hardening shaft as her head worked and bobbed. The sound of his horse breathing.

All of it causing exquisite pleasure - underlain with that strange sense of discomfort, all permanently etched on her benumbed mind as she brought him back to full readiness in record time...

...and then she shifted below him, repositioning herself for act two...

* * * * *

David closed his eyes, riding with an easy rhythm, a nearly mindless smile on his lips as his saliva-slicked cock rode in the warm canyon of her massive cleavage, his hands working the firm flesh of her massive orbs as he gave his first-ever tit-fuck.

It was a simple, straight-forward act, nearly a form of masturbation, counterpoint to that incredible sex he'd had...

...and, after a much smaller load of cum had been expertly caught in her eager mouth with perfect timing, prelude for the next hour of licking, touching, teasing, sucking preparation that brought him back full-circle to the complexity of another mind-blowing fuck, this time her atop him, allowing him to play with her gargantuan tits as she brought him to another mind-numbing orgasm...

When dawn came, so did David - for the seventh and last time. Leaving behind a man drained in more than the one meaning of the word, the huge-breasted woman headed back to her hotel room for a scant four hours of sleep before she'd hop in her car and head off to another city, and hopefully, another client...

That became her life - or what she remembered of it, at any rate. There must have been nights when she didn't get a 'date', or days when she had other things to take care of, but she didn't remember any of those. Her life became an unbroken string of sexual act, fully remembered in every little detail...

...including the steadily rising feeling of discomfort that battled with the constant presence of pleasure in her fragmented memories. It escalated steadily in the series of memories that ran like an unbroken string of porno movies in her mind's eye...

...until the day when she suddenly became 'aware' again, however dimly, on the street of yet another nameless city.

"Something about my body..." She said, in a musing tone, a slight frown marring the perfection of a face that had known nothing but expressions of pleasure or desire in recent memory. Blinking, she turned and looked at her reflection in a silvered plate-glass window.

The woman looking back at her was wearing expensive, carefully tailored clothing she couldn't actually remember buying, still projecting that look of sexual elegance. With most of her 'life' occurring at night, her original bronzed tan had faded to a light coppery sheen, and her once unrealistically round breasts had sunk slightly into a somewhat more natural, but still firm, shape. She looked at her tall, uber-boxom reflection, feeling her sluggish mind dimly grasping the edges of some concept.

"Who are you?" She asked her reflection. "Who is Angelica DeVille...?"

Then those heavy-lidded eyes started to widen, her incredibly full, ruby-red lips parting in shock, and...

* * * * *

"Oh, I just /ooooove sucking cock!" She giggled brightly, hands clasped behind her pert derriere as she bounce don the toes of her 'Mary Jane' inspired white patent leather platform shoes. "Can I suck your big, thick, cock mister? Huh, please, can I?"

"Right after I get ma hands on those huge boobs a'yours, girl." The husky man said in a thick, southern accent.

"Oh, okay!" She agreed with another giggle, the colored contacts that made her eyes such a bright, vapid blue subconsciously held wide open for a look of complete brainlessness that went well with the pigtailed hair she dimly remembered bleaching blonde, and the high, giggling soprano she'd so carefully cultivated.

Reaching down, she eagerly peeled her custom-made crop-style 'cheerleader' sweater away from her massive tits.

Dimly, the vaguely-remembered period of pain after the surgery that had 'repumped' her breasts up to medicine-ball sized spheres of perfect, artificial firmness surfaced - and with it, the strange, nagging thought that had been getting steadily stronger over the past three months.

The thought that she should really try very hard to remember what had prompted her to take up her new persona as 'Bambi DeBodie'.

