The answer made him feel somewhat stupid: "Because the program does not know what you look like. There is no camera's looking at you, of course. However, the user 'body' is, of course, definable - simply describe what you wish to look like, and the user body will change to match."

"Well, I'm a lot taller and more muscular, to begin with.." David started to say...

* * * * *

In the control room, the technicians held their breath, waiting to see if the programming had any effect...

* * * * *

"...but I guess I don't have to look like the 'real' me, right?" Dave said, thoughtfully. "I mean - I can make the user body look any way I want, can't I?"

"Of course..." The guide agreed, readily. "Hmmm..." David said, intrigued.

* * * * *

No one breathed. No one spoke. Every member of the monitoring team waited.

Though the target hadn't automatically chosen to look like 'himself', that could have been normal human curiosity. It still remained to be seen whether or not the 'programming' that should have been slipping, unnoticed, into the target's subconscious had been effective - something that would be revealed by the choice he would make next...

* * * * *

Staring at the reflection in the 'mirror', David snorted lightly.

Though the body was supposed to have no gender whatsoever, it didn't strike David that way. Indeed, with no body hair, with it's perfectly smooth crotch, with hips and shoulders neither narrow nor broad, the supposedly androgynous figure representing him actually looked more like some sort of flat-chest tomboy of a girl to David...

He blinked, startled as a strange thought zoomed out of nowhere, flitting across his mind like a meteor across the night sky. It was a strange though, an uncomfortable thought, perhaps even a perverted thought...

...but it was also a highly intriguing thought.

"I... could make myself. female, couldn't I?" David asked, slowly and uncertainly, finding the thought oddly exciting - more exciting, and less disgusting, then he would have believed, had he considered it before now. He hadn't though, this thought new and completely outside the range of any other thought-process he'd ever had before - but that wasn't really surprising or worrisome, since he'd never had this particular opportunity before, had he?

"Of course." The guide agreed. "Any body is possible in FantasyLand."

David considered the new and surprisingly interesting thought - and found himself slowly grinning in intrigued anticipation.

* * * * *

Leaning into the door of the Colonel's office, the team supervisor smiled and gave a thumb's up: "Bingo, Colonel - not only did he take the thought, but he doesn't even notice how 'out of character' it is for him. He honestly believes that he came up with the thought himself."

Behind the austere desk, the Colonel smiled. "Perfect. The nano-bots are working perfectly "

* * * * *

"Okay, then..." David said, feeling an unexpected anticipatory thrill run through him. "Go ahead - make me female. "

It was. amazing.

Though the mirror showed that the changes made were relatively minor, the sensations that accompanied them were not.

It took little actually change for the androgynous body to become a sort of 'standard female template'. The shoulders drew in but a bare inch, and the hips spread wider by about the same scant amount - but from the inside, the changes felt much more drastic, as if his center of gravity and sense of balance had been radically altered.

If had had simply been that change, he would have stopped it there to find out why it was so - but, of course, all the changes were happening simultaneously, with only his mind's attempt to find some way of tracking the changes providing the sense of separate activities that did not, in fact, exists. Even as his hips and shoulders made their slight alterations, a pair of small breasts were surging out from the ribcage that became marginally more slender, and more so at the bottom end than at the top - yet, from inside, it felt as if he'd lost an amazing amount of mass from the chest - though the sensation of the small, conical 'B'-cup breasts swelling outwards added new mass in a way that was new and, thought strange and guilt-inducing, interesting...

...but even as the other 'small' changes happened, mostly some slimming and lightening of bone structure, he was voicing his concerns over the radically more powerful sensations.

"I think something's wrong..." He said - and was at first surprised to hear it come out in a 'bland' female register, until he realized that he was hearing the computer-altered pitch given his own voice in real-time. "The changes feel... drastic. Is there something wrong with that bio-feedback thing...?"

"Not at all." The guide replied, immediately. "It is simply a perceptual miscue. Visually, you are seeing an neuter body become female

- while the bio-feedback sensations you are experiencing match that of your real body changing to the one you see in the mirror." "Oh - right..." David said, feeling a bit silly about how he'd nearly panicked over such an obvious thing...

* * * * *

"Sheer brilliance..." The technician breathed in admiration. "Burying his 'real' distaste at what he's subconsciously being forced to do under the disguise of a perceptual miscue. These nano-bots are... amazing."

* * * * *

Reassured- if still feeling a bit guilty over his 'sissy' decision, David took a long, hard look at the woman in the mirror.

It was a computer-generated composite of the 'average woman', one that didn't exist in real life. Of average height and average build, 'her' undistinguished body hosted an equally bland face, neither ugly nor pretty enough to be remarkable in every way. Even the mid- length hair was equally 'average' - a dusty shade that held equal claim to being either blonde or brunette, and matching 'her' muddy eyes in obscurity.

"Well, that's female, I guess..." David said, watching the reflection in the mirror as the nude woman brought her hands up to lightly touch her unremarkable breasts...

...and then David started.

The woman in the mirror was nude. He was not...

...and yet, though he felt the invisible fabric of his T-shirt under his fingers, it also felt as if that fabric were stretched over small, taut little breasts.

"Weird..." David said, too amazed at the miscue to think overlong about the strange and not entirely unpleasant sensation that came from within 'her' new bust from the touch of 'her' hand.

Awkwardly, 'she' fumbled out of his unseen clothing, watching, bemused, as the naked reflection mirrored the actions. Finally naked, 'she' rand 'her' hands over 'her' body again - and was once again astonished by the seeming reality of it all, since neither body hair nor even a penis met the questing touch.

"This is incredible..." She murmured, excited by the incredible potential of such sotiware - and so, less focused on the cause of that excitement, namely the face that she could send fingers skittering hesitantly across what felt like all the world to be the soti lips framing an unmistakable new vagina.

Turning slightly, she watched her reflection mimic the action, swiveling 'average' hips to show off an 'average' butt.

"Not exactly a babe..." He muttered, almost unthinkingly - and then he frowned slightly. "Why the hell would I care how 'pretty' a girl I make...?"

* * * * *

"Uh, sir...?" The technician said, waving to make sure the supervisor was noticing the readings on the sit board. "He's subconsciously fighting the programming..."

The supervisor bit his lower lip. The subject had been chosen for a variety of reasons - not the least of which was the fact that he lacked any natural curiosity as to what it would be like to be a woman. It was very rare indeed - most men who claimed such a thing had, of course, wondered about it - and their 'defense mechanism' for such unmanly thoughts was to deny they'd ever had them.

David, however, quite literally never thought about it. Self-confident to the point of arrogance, self-centered to the point of selfishness, David had always consciously and subconsciously considered himself the very epitome of perfection, and never even wondered what it might be like to be a 'lesser' creature - which was why he made such a wonderful subject, because if this program worked on him, it would work on anybody.

However, it was a double-edge blade - because it also meant that he was a very difficult subject to work with...

...but it wasn't as if they hadn't known that from the very beginning, and prepared for it. "Activate sub-program 3-R-Alpha." The supervisor instructed.

"Yessir." The technician agreed, fingers flying over the keyboard in front of him.

If David was fighting the concept of caring about how attractive a woman he made, then...

* * * * *

"Are you going to wish to record any of this?" The guide asked. Startled, she looked over to where it stood next to the mirror. "Record...?"

"Yes." The guide said. "You are, of course, my first - and only - user, but I have been programmed with a range of 'popular' programs, and this is one of them: The ability to become an 'actress' under your perfect control, so that you can create your own 'movie'. It is, of course, possible to record the data from this fantasy on your computer, and the disk includes the editing software to turn it into a movie."

"Hmmm..." David said, mind working. "That could be... interesting. Yeah - I think I'd like to record..."

"Very well. Shall we start now, or after you have determined how you wish your 'leading lady' to look?" The guide asked.

"Hmmm... I guess we should wait until I decide on a final look - I'd just edit out up until then, anyway, so there's no sense wasting disk-space..." David said, considering his options.

* * * * *

"Perfect..." The supervisor said, smiling. "The movie idea has completely distracted him from his own misgivings. Now, all we have to do is decide what route we want his 'movie' to take, and see if we can slip it past his conscious mind without catching on..."

Thinking for a second, the supervisor decided to 'go for broke'. There was a wide range of possible female archetypes that they could choose to try and force David to pick - but the hardest one to 'sell' was one far away from his own, natural preferences....

...and that's the one he instructed the technician to introduce into the programming.

* * * * *

"Hmmm. " David muttered again. "Well, since I have the ability to create anything at all, I might as well go for something outrageous, something you wouldn't see in an everyday movie - otherwise, what's the point, right?" "Sounds logical to me." The guide agreed, blandly.

"Okay, then - let's make her um... an Asian - but a tall Asian. " David said, grinning slightly at the paradox of the thought.

Immediately, she began to see and feel the changes as the program worked to accommodate her request.

Her viewpoint shifted quickly as she shot upward, rising from her 'average' female height - even as her bone structure became even finer, acquiring the oriental delicacy. In the mirror, she could see her skin taking on the rich burnished-copper shade, even as her eyes darkened and acquired the unmistakable folds in the corner, leaving them the tilted almond shape immediately associated with 'slant eyed' Asians.

"Not bad..." David said in a higher-pitched new voice, eyeing the figure in the mirror - over six feet tall, with long, slender lips and tight, smooth curves, but with the unmistakable coloring and facial structure of an oriental woman. "Let's do something else, as well... Hair color. Let's give her... hot pink hair."

Instantly, a wave of hair spilled out of her scalp and down around her shoulders, a shocking shade of nearly fluorescent pink.

"No - not pink..." David said, shaking her head - and bemused to feel that new wealth of hair drag across her slender shoulders. "Let's do... blue. Electric blue - and in a really 'silly' hairstyle..."

Her hair changed shade to an eye-rending color of blue, and formed into a new style - tight across her scalp before being gathered up in a pair of huge white bows, one on each side of her head - and then falling in tight-formed spirals down to her shoulder blades.

David grinned, finding the sheer silliness of the situation - turning herself into an unrealistic vision of a woman - highly amusing. "Okay - what else can we do...?" She wondered, aloud.

"Asian women historically have small busts..." The guide suggested. "Perhaps a large bust, perhaps outlandishly so...?"

David frowned at the thought of extremely large breasts. Breasts, after all, were definably feminine, and 'really' so. Of course, he liked women with breasts that filled his hands, a firm believer in the 'more than a handful is a waste' philosophy of breast size, so that the B-cups on a now even slimmer ribcage were just a tad undersized for perfect...

* * * * *

"He's fighting it..." The technician said, nervously. "Give it time..." The supervisor said.

* * * * *

...so, if she were to bump her breasts up a cup size or two, they'd be 'perfect', and sexy....

...but if she made them really huge, they'd be a parody, a joke.

"Yeah - but not just 'large' - but gigantic. I mean, utterly, unbelievably, ridiculously huge - and firm. With equally huge nipples. "

Instantly, her chest began to surge outwards, the small conical breasts gaining weight and mass as they pushed rapidly out from her slender ribcage. The initial cone shape of her pert breasts rapidly filled out into domes, then spheres, as her breasts shot upwards through the alphabet of cup-sizes at a dead run, quickly leaving 'large' in the dust as they dashed through 'huge' and right into 'ridiculous'.

Seconds later, they stopped growing - and David stared in mild shock at the incredibly huge, unbelievably round breasts that thrust from her chest. They were gigantic, each the size of a beach-ball, yet much, much heavier than inflated vinyl - they weighed a ton, and yet they remained artificially round and firm, the massive masses of breast-flesh trying their level best to pull her slender and now decidedly top-heavy body off-balance.

For a second, she was simply too stunned by the sight of the freakishly huge breasts, each tipped by a massive, improbably pink nipple, to know how to react...

...and then, despite the massive weight threatening to topple her, she laughed in delight.

"Perfect! These things are... ridiculous!" She laughed. "I look like one of those Japanese comic-book women.... what's it called...?" "Hentai and/or Manga, depending." The guide provided.

* * * * *

"Amazing." The supervisor said, shaking his head. "Even though he - uh, she - is bright enough to identify the archetype we're using to test her, she'd be unable to 'hear' the warnings that her brain's trying to scream at her. The nano-bots are blocking them."

"So far, at least..." The technician pointed out, still nervous. "I mean, the program's not done yet..." "We'll see." The supervisor said, patting the technician on the shoulder. "We'll see..."

* * * * *

"Okay - how do we finish the look...?" She thought aloud.

"May I...?" The guide asked - and David blinked as hands and feet became proportionally smaller, while her legs lengthened - and clothes appeared wrapped around her body:

A pair of white platform shoes.

A short, pleated blue skirt the same color as her improbably hair. A white short-sleeve blouse, with a wide blue collar.

In other words, the classic 'sailor suit', the Japanese equivalent of a school-girl outfit.

She stared at the reflection for what seemed like forever, trying to wrap her mind around the image she presented...

* * * * *

"Come on, come on..." The supervisor urged under his breath, as in the subject's house, the 'clothing team' for this scenario hurried to dress the subject in the correct outfit.

It wasn't easy, even with the nano-bots making the subject unconsciously assist, while blocking out the real sensations and actions being performed. Part of it was the wooden movements of the subject, the nearly mechanical way of moving that the nano-bots invariably imparted while completely controlling a subject's body, one of the reasons why the 'host mind' had to be 'reprogrammed' into operating the body, rather than just having the nano-bot's control it.

Part of the difficulty was the fact that the body hadn't quite caught up with the clothes yet. Though things happened quickly in the subject's mind, the physical part took a little longer as the millions of tiny robots rebuilt the body from within - but it was happening quickly enough that the body was quite visibly transforming even as it was dressed, which was part of the problem.

The glasses were, of course, removed at this stage - being nothing more than a delivery system for the nano-bots. All the 'VR' was going on directly in the subject's brain, and the prop was no longer necessary.

Finally, the team reported that the subject was dressed - and almost finished matching the VR body in the real world.

* * * * *

"It's perfect!" She declared, grinning at the ludicrous image she presented - a manga woman brought to life. "If I may suggest a name for her?" The guide said. "How about... Lei Mee Soon?"

"Yeah - that's great!" She said, repeating it to try it on for size: "Lay Me Soon. I love it!"

"The program is also capable of creating complete 'worlds' for the user to play in - without having to move." The guide said to her. "If you will return to your chair..."

Lei Mee did so - and then, a second later, stood back up on the guide's command - only to be amazed when the guide informed her that she was still sitting in the chair, and would remain there throughout, with the VR creating the incredibly life-like illusion that she was actually moving about.

"It is easy enough to verify this." The guide said. "Simply go to the window and look outside..."

Lei Mee did so. Apparently balancing atop the seven-inch heels with ease as she took tiny little 'sissy steps', she followed her massive, hyper-sensitive new bust to the window, amazed at how real the sway and bounce of her gigantic new tits felt - and then she looked outside, and forgot to be mildly discomfited by the emphatically feminine sensations the bio-feedback was generating as she stared out at a cityscape directly out of 'Japanimation'.

It was a night-time city, futuristic and incredibly lit by neon signs and bright-lit advertising. Manga-ish Japanese thronged the busy streets as futuristic cars sped down the roadways.

"Incredible." She breathed. "I.. I could go out there? Walk around? Interact with the 'people'?" "Of course." The guide said.

She hesitated, biting her bee-stung, hot-pink lower lip as she considered, the thought of going out in public like this bothering her...

...but it was all fantasy, right? None of it was real... "Okay..." She said in her high-pitched, accented new voice.

With that silly little sissy stride, she wiggled and jiggled and giggled her way towards the front door, and stepped out into the world...

* * * * *

Silence filled the ops center, all eyes fixed on the two big monitors on the wall.

The one on the right showed what her eyes were really seeing - a simple suburban street on a weekday morning. The one on the left, the futuristic city that the nano-bots were giving her to experience.

Completely unaware of the 'real world' around her, the new woman headed down her walkway, the real and the superimposed worlds moving in sync.

"Okay, people - we're into the final phase." The Colonel announced, stepping out of the glass-enclosed office in the center. "The real- world field test - the most important part of the project. So - where's the target?"

"A bar on Fifth and Hale." The target-tracking team leader announced. "Waiting for his contact to show."

The Colonel nodded. They'd been tracking the defense-industry employee for months, knowing he was selling secrets to the Chinese, because he had a weakness for oriental women and considered his female handler a 'hottie'...

...and this particular target, one of the eight they had lined up for the field test, depending on which scenario they'd gone with, was a big fan of manga...

* * * * *

So caught up in the surrounding and the sensations she was experiencing, Lei Mee didn't even notice where her feet automatically seemed to carry here.

She was too busy enjoying the incredibly reality of the VR world. The air moving over her long, smooth legs. The swivel-sway of her hips, and the way it caused the skirt to flip pertly back and forth over her taut little ass. The way the fabric strained over her enormous tits, creating a wonderful tension on her huge, engorged, and unbelievably sensitive nipples.

It all felt so... real! So much so, it might have been disturbing - if not for the fact that the equally realistic, yet unreal, environment she was wandering through proved it was all just a 'fantasy' Atier all, though a tiny fraction of the thronging crowd she slipped through turned to gape at her, their Asian faces plastered with a stunned expression, the majority of the crowd seemed to ignore her, as if her impossible, ridiculous body was an everyday sight.

One of the 'gapers' made her giggle - a short, rotund man, he was a spitting-image doppelganger for one of her buddies, only 'Orientified'. Even the choice of clothes and the body language was nearly a dead-on match for Billy - but, of course, Billy wasn't Asian. It was simply a coincidence that one of the thousands of randomly-created computer-generated characters looked like a friend of hers/David's - which was why she was able to give this 'doppelganger' a huge, brainless smile and a half-bow that showed an amazing canyon of improbable cleavage, something that she'd probably rather have died then willingly do if it had been real.

In any case, she wandered through the unreally real cityscape of the manga world without a destination - and was bemused to find out that she'd ended up in a futuristic bar, thronged full of Asian salarymen drinking an odd assortment of beverages.

Though she considered leaving, something inside her made her stay, and she headed over to the sole open seat - a booth, already holding a thin man who was openly gaping at her.

"Lei Mee Soon." She said in way of introduction, loving the way the computer-generated character reacted to the name. "Mind if I join you...?"

"Oh, sure, uh, Miss Soon..." The man stammered. "I'm..."

Lei Mee blinked. For a second, it was almost as if she'd heard two names, one Oriental and one American...

...but, of course, it was just a trick of her mind, as her ear had heard the Japanese name and had immediately connected it to the common American one.

"Well, hello, Jai-Sen." She said, sweetly...

...and, for a moment, nearly panicked when thoughts of ripping her clothes off and begging this man to fuck her brains out swept through her mind, overlaid with equally strong thoughts of ripping his clothes off, and sucking his cock dry.

The panic receded at the realization that it was all part of the program, of course. After all, she was in a manga-world now, and characters in manga were forever having sex at the drop of a hat. Both the rampant, nearly desperate sexual thoughts she was having and the nearly painful sexual arousal that had swept over her were both completely keeping in character - and while she might have been disgusted or horrified by any of this in real life, it was perfectly right and natural to feel this way in VR...

...and perfectly right and natural for her to act on her characters 'motivations'.

"I see you're staring at my wonderfully huge tits." She remarked, casually. "Would you like to go somewhere private and fondle and suck them?"

Jai-Sen gaped at her. "I, uh.. I'm.. supposed to be waiting for somebody..."

Interesting - she would have thought the program would skip from the invitation to the next 'scene' - but apparently it was one, long, continuous take with even details like token protests, so that she had plenty of choices about how to edit the final move.

"I'd really love it if we could go somewhere so that we could strip naked and have sex." She said, letting the 'raging hormones' and 'desperate needs' of her character reduce her to near-begging for sexual release. She could have fought those needs, of course, at least for a while - but in VR, why bother...?

"Okay..." Jay-Sen squeaked.

It didn't take long before they were in a hotel room - especially since Jay-Sen hurried them right along when she began casually disrobing in the middle of the lobby, and was completely naked by the time they stepped into the elevator, except for her heels...

Even as the doors to the elevators had closed, she'd pressed her tall body hard against him and kissed him long and hard and deep, amazed by how VR could make it feel as if there was really another person kissing her back.

It had felt even better when she'd begged him to fondle and squeeze her massive tits, and he complied. It was a damned good thing it was a one-use VR, she'd thought with a giggle - it had felt so wonderful, that she might have been tempted to become some sort of sick pervert who 'became female' on a regular basis, if it were available to her full-time.

As amazingly realistic as that had felt though, it had nothing on what sex itself felt like. Playing her role as a nymphomaniac to the hilt, she'd torn Jay-Sen's clothes off even as the door to the room was still swinging shut behind them, letting her 'super-horny' mind prompt her to eagerly run her hands all over his golden little body while begging him to fuck her hard 'like the horny little slut she was'.

Of course, he was programmed to obey...

"I'm so horny..." She cried, as she lay back on the bed, legs spreading. "I need to be fucked all the time. I need cum pumped into me, day and night, in my cunt and in my mouth and in my ass. I can't help myself, Jay-Sen - I need it so bad. I'm nothing but a cum-slut, and I live only to fuck and suck, and to let men enjoy my body any way they like. Please fuck me, Jay-Sen. Fuck me! Oh, god - fuck me!"

The last wasn't a command, but a stunned expression of amazement at the intense, incredible sensation of being penetrated by a hard, throbbing cock. It was all 'fake', of course - but it felt real, and wonderful, and she was glad that it was really a form of masturbation, because it would have been disgusting and horrifying to find herself ever being this desperately needy for anything from anybody, in real life.

It got even more intense as the computer-generated character gave a convincing performance of a man fucking a huge-breasted woman hard and deep. As she rocked and writhed on the bed, her own hands endlessly fondling and squeezing her ridiculously oversized tits, she screamed and gasped in intense pleasure at being fucked, glad that there was no way that anybody would ever know about the perverted little scenario she was playing out. Even as she was pounded into hard and fast, she knew that she'd never do this ever again, no matter how long she stayed in VR - the pure, uncontrollable need she was feeling was just too disturbing. What she'd felt before having sex, the 'nymphomaniac prompting' had been one thing, and even this was fun, as a one-time-thing - but, having experienced the pleasure, she knew that the character's 'nymphomania' would literally be overwhelming if she let it continue...

...but of course, none of this was real.

Not even the mind-blowing orgasm that leti her shuddering and quivering on the bed, already desperately craving more sex - lots more sex, in every shape and form...

...but before she could end the program to escape the disturbingly powerful character-motivation 'subroutines', she was surprised by a twist in the program as Jay-sen gasped - and his body began to writhe.

"What's.. happening.. to.. me...?" Jay-Sen gasped out, as his body hair fell out and his chest began to bulge. His cock was sotiening, as any man's was wont to do atier a hard round of fucking - but it was getting much smaller, much faster, then it had any right to do. "Holy shit! I.. I'm turning into... a woman!"

Interesting... and weird. It must be part of the program - and, besides, Manga was full of weird things that didn't seem to make sense unless you were Japanese. With a shrug, Lei Mee ignored Jay-Sen as he - she - screamed and fled the room.

"Begin Guide Wizard." Lei Mee said. Nothing happened.

"End program..." She tried next.

Still nothing.

Hmmm... The commands must only work in the graphical representation of 'home', where she'd leti the guide running. She already knew that you couldn't have two running, and she hadn't thought to shut him down...

Shrugging, she pulled on Jay-Sen's discarded clothing, the pants only coming down to mid-calf and fitting her hips and ass too tightly to do up the zipper - and the shirt had to be tied over her massive tits, barely covering the nipples. Still, it was - barely - street-legal. Not that it mattered, of course, since this was VR - she just felt better walking home 'clothed'.

Eager to end the program, despite how much fun it had been, Lei Mee headed out of the hotel room...

* * * * *

"Okay - we can shut everything down..." The Colonel said, with great satisfaction.

The test was an unqualified success. They could take any useless, expendable person, and turn them into the ultimate 'smart weapon': An enemy's sexual fantasy, and a delivery system for a nano-virus.

They didn't need to monitor anything else that came after. Who cared what happened to the expendable person? - especially a worthless ex-sergeant who'd sexually molested his female commanding officer and been booted out of the Army for it...?

...and even more especially, after the Army had given that very commander the chance to get even.

Colonel Anne Siddows smiled at the thought, and wondered how much - or little - 'Lei Mee' was enjoying the new, nymphomaniac body she was stuck with for the rest of her life...

* * * * *

"End program...?" Lei Mee tried, sobbing, as her hand frantically worked at her crotch, and she desperately tried to force the mental images of herself sucking a nice, big, tasty cock out of her mind. "Start Guide Wizard! Emergency shut down! Oh, god, I... I'm so horny... Oh, please, somebody... help me..."

Nobody did.

Two hours later, driven by desperate needs she quite simply couldn't control, she went out into the 'crowded city' and made a different plea: "Oh, please - somebody fuck me...!"

This time, she got plenty of volunteers...

The End

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: Atier he learns that his girlfriend is a witch, he goes on a shopping trip to prepare for his transformation into a full fledged girl.

Spicy

By Gunslinger

Okay, look - I'm not a stupid man. I knew damned well that I wasn't the focus of every eye in the store, and I knew that there wasn't a poorly hidden smirk on every face.

Nevertheless, that's how it felt, as I walked over to the women's clothing section of the Goodwill store.

I'm sure that at least some of the women also browsing in the 'wide selection' of second-hand and generally out-of-fashion clothing were, indeed, giving me funny looks - but the truth of the matter was that most of the Goodwill patrons couldn't have cared less about the unremarkable, dark-haired man in their midst. They had their own concerns and their own problems, and they were probably thinking more about whatever limited budget they had to spend on the slightly shabby (but serviceable) second-hand clothing than they were on Mama Piesztolokowski's boy Peter.

Oh - that's me, by the way. 'Pistol Pete' - at least to a few friends who chose that way to handle my ungainly last name, rather than less flattering monikers drawn out of it. At twenty-eight, I was past the worst of name-mangling hells, namely high-school and college, where being Polish was a fine source of entertainment for a certain segment of the campus population.

Trust me, I've heard every Polish joke ever invented. Oh, not that I'm giving you some sort of 'sob story'. Atier all, a good many were actually funny, told by friends and acquaintances with no malice intended.

(Like: A Polish guy goes in for an eye exam. The doc points at the eye chart at the wall, asks if he can read it. The Polish guys says; "Read it? Hell, doc - I know half them guys!" Ba-dum-bum.)

Anyway - like I was saying, despite what my intellect was telling me, my emotions were letting me know I should feel embarrassed, self-conscious, and even a little humiliated, and so I was - but I was also feeling pretty damned excited, not to mention a little aroused, to be perusing the store for some women's clothing.

Oh, I can guess what you might be thinking, and you'd be about half right, and half wrong. Not that I'd be surprised. Atier all, you look at me, you see a rather bland looking guy, neither too handsome nor too ugly, of average height and build, and you'd think I'm living an average life.

Truth is - I'm the luckiest guy in the world. You see, my girlfriend's a witch.

Whoa - check the spelling on that boys, and make sure you get it right. Atier all, Fiona is the sweetest, friendliest, most accommodating woman you can imagine, and I know that I don't really deserve such a gal, so I thank the stars - and her - every single day. No, she's a great gal - who happens to have access to some incredible powers.

Now, I said I'm not stupid - and I guess, right about here, I'd better add that I'm not crazy, either. I know how hard it must be to believe me on this, but I'm telling you God's honest truth: Fiona is a witch.

Which is why I'm standing here, blushing yet excited, holding a pair of leopard-print spandex pants and wondering if I should buy them. My heart's going about a mile a minute, I'm fingering the spandex and wondering what it would feel like to wear it, and I'm imagining they type of firm, round ass and long legs that would great/sexy/slutty in these pants - and wondering if I'm going to end up with an ass like that.

Confused? Good - then you know what I first felt like when Fiona first sat down and told me that she was also Debbie, Kandi and Lucy, not to mention about a half-dozen other sexy babes I had still been stunned to have had one-night-stands with over the previous month or so.

Note: No matter how embarrassing it might be for a basically 'normal', heterosexual man to look through women's clothing in public, it doesn't even begin to compare with the burning blush of discomfort that comes from placing an item in the shopping cart and pushing it around, declaring to whoever cares to look (and it feels like every damned person on the planet is watching) that you're at least seriously considering buying those stretchy leopard pants and that tiger-stripe stretch-velour bustier top. Not to mention this here black 'let's-all-just-pretend-it's-leather' miniskirt, the one that would show of a nice, long pair of well-toned legs, if I get them.

I'll be honest: The whole 'humiliation' think is part of the package deal for tonight's entertainment, precisely because it makes my heart pound and my face flush, and adds plenty of spice to the excitement I'm feeling.

Which sort of explains why you - the unseen audience - is reading what I'm going through right now.

That's the 'why'. The 'how' has to do with Fiona again. I'm sure you know that you can get programs that let you just talk into the computer microphone, and it'll type it out on the screen for you. Well, thanks to Fiona's powers, I got something a hell of a lot better than a speech-to-text program on my computer at home: I've got a thought-to-text program.

Oh, not just any old thought, not even stream-of-consciousness. No, this is more like a 'talking to myself' program, only silently instead of out-loud. Still, whatever I think shows up on my computer at home - and, before the evening's out, it's going to end up posted somewhere out there on the great World Wide Web for you to read.

Now, I bet you're thinking to yourself that I'm sort of freak or pervert or sicko - especially since, at this very moment, I am actually arguing with a female shopper over a pair of somewhat scuffed high-heel shoes 'for my girlfriend', since they obviously wouldn't fit my size-nine (and a half) feet.

Well, you'd be wrong.

As I was mentioning earlier, I 'first' met Fiona at a coffee-shop... where she was explaining that we'd met a couple of dozen times before, only I hadn't known it because she'd been wearing different bodies.

Now, also as I said, I was confused and doubtful, even as she gave me this explanation about how, between coming off a bad relationship and feeling annoyed at having to hide her powers, she'd decided to do this series of 'flings', safe from any chance of a stalker or clinger or any attachments because the woman she'd be each time would disappear forever afterwards.

Still, that didn't make her completely 'safe'. Sure, she had more means than most women to defend herself from slime, rapists and the like - but she'd decided to go for the 'nice guy' type to make it easier on herself.

Enter yours truly.

As she tells it, it was the fact that I'm a nice guy that kept the various versions of her coming back to me for these 'one night stands'. Oh, not that she didn't play the field, especially at first - but, (again, according to her), that only served to emphasize how 'unusually' kind and thoughtful a guy I was, which was how she ended up coming back almost exclusively to me and, in The End, revealing her true self to me so she could explain how she'd fallen madly in love with me, even though I hadn't known I'd ever met her.

Ha!

Sorry - I just won that argument over the shoes. Now, I just need to find something that will go with them...

Anyway: I, personally, thought Fiona was nuts, and was trying to find a diplomatic way of telling her so - when she became Linda, the girl I'd been out with the night before.

Oh, not entirely: Just her face, and just for a few seconds, long enough for me to see. Atier all, we were out in public, and she didn't want to draw too much attention to herself. Still, it was enough to buy her a suspension of disbelief long enough to get back to my place, where she put on a much more thorough (and utterly convincing) series of full-body changes through the girls I'd been until- then inexplicably lucky with.

All of which brings me back to my earlier statement: I'm the luckiest man on earth.

For whatever reason, I'm loved (and, yes, in love with) a woman who can look like whoever she pleases. Though I spend more time with 'Fiona' than any other single alter-ego of hers, I've still spent many a night having sex with 'other women'. I've gotten blow-jobs from 'Marilyn Monroe' and I've gone missionary with Miss America. I've licked Lucy Lui and ridden Winona Ryder.

Oh, don't get me wrong. This isn't a one-woman show. With her powers, I've been Arnold-as-Conan doing Fiona-as-Brigitte-as-Red Sonya. We've been Bonnie and Clyde, Romeo and Juliet, Charles and Di...

...and, yes, Ellen and Anne.

What? You don't think, given the chance, you'd try some lesbian loving? Then you're either a liar or a fool, and I don't know which one deserves the more pity.

Still and all, when you have a girlfriend who can be any woman she (or you) want, and she can make you look like any man you (or she) wants, you have to get a little more... imaginative to 'spice up' your three-year-long relationship.

Which brings me back to the reason why I'm standing at the check-out, blushing furiously as the cashier, with a smirk and a raised eyebrow, rings through my cartful of undeniably feminine clothing - and guiltily enjoying every second of it.

You see, tonight is a whole series of firsts for me. Well, more honestly, it's a series of firsts for Fiona - using me.

As I said, I'm finding this exciting, if more then just a bit uncomfortable - but I'm really doing this for Fiona, who came up with the idea, and who is really excited about the whole thing.

I've been female before, several times - but always at home, and always for some lesbian fun.

Tonight, for the first time, I'm going to go out in public as a female. For the first time, Fiona is going to try out being male...

...and, just maybe, for the first time since meeting Fiona, I might actually be having sex with somebody other then her, regardless of which body she might be in.

I guess I'd better explain that, huh?

See, Fiona is quite happy as a woman. As you might have guessed, she's certainly not sexually repressed, and she enjoys being female, and having sex as a woman, and, honestly, she can't imagine enjoying sex more as a man then as a woman, though it's something she has nothing against trying, either. It's really the fact that I haven't pushed her to give that particular mix a go that means we haven't done that yet.

So, it's not the thought of her-as-a-man having sex with me-as-a-woman that makes tonight's 'game' so exciting to her, though she's not sneering at the thought.

No, it's the whole 'uncertainty' of tonight, one of the reasons I'm 'thinking' this for her to read, later.

You see, not only don't I know what I'm going to like as a woman - I don't know what she's going to look like as a man. I know that she-as-a-he is going to be at a popular 'meat market' nightclub later tonight - hidden among a bunch of real, full-time, on-the-prowl men.

Knowing what I'm going to look like, Fiona is going to hit on me - but so will some of those 'real' men at the bar. I'm going to go home with whichever man I think Fiona has become...

...but I won't know until tomorrow morning.

This is what's so exciting to Fiona - and what's the most unnerving to me, which only makes it more fun for her and, I admit, more 'guilty/fun' for me, despite the roiling stomach and shaking fingers.

Hopping into my car and heading off towards the motel room I rented for the night, I glance at the watch on my wrist and find I'm a little bit ahead of schedule - which is damned good. My watch and Fiona's were very carefully synchronized so that I can be in my room and naked before the changes start, so that I won't suddenly turn female in public - and wearing clothes ill-suited for the body I'll be ending up with, to boot.

The hotel is pretty up-scale, all things considered. Honestly, I couldn't afford tonight on my own budget. I mean, there's the hotel room, the wide selection of 'temporary' clothing that would serve whatever unknown female body I end up with until I finalize my ensemble at Phanta-SEE!, the 'Store for Adults at Play' that is, at this very moment, sliding off to the left as I near the motel, chosen for its location in relation to both the adult store and the nightclub.

Yes, I'm scared nearly shitless as the minutes tick away towards my night as a woman, a woman who is going to go out and pick up a complete stranger and have sex with him - and I'm also incredibly excited, and if you can't understand why, then I feel sorry for you.

Reaching the motel, I pull up to the door of the unit I've rented. First I haul in the three big bags worth of second-hand clothes I've just spent nearly two-hundred dollars on - and then, with a nervous glance at my watch, I hurry and haul in the three boxes from the trunk.

The boxes contain full-length free-standing mirrors I bought at Wal-Mart, and I'm grateful of the fact that they're 'easy assemble' as I put them together, socketing the pieces of brass-plated frame together before mounting the mirror itself onto the frame with the ornate butterfly-nut style connectors.

In ten minutes, I've got all three mirrors set up, the first directly at the foot of the queen-sized bed, the other two flanking it on about thirty-degree angles, making a make-shift three-way mirror.

Another glance at my watch, and I nervously make sure that the door is locked before I strip out of my clothes and sit on the edge of the foot of the bed, looking at my naked body in the three mirrors.

So, here I am, looking at my average body, waiting for the moment when it's going to become something completely different.

Hanging between my hairy, somewhat too-pale thighs is Mr. Happy, and he doesn't seem to know he's about to go on hiatus. In fact, thinking about what's going to happen, I'm remembering the times Fiona, in whatever form, has used her skilled mouth and hands and, on two occasions, a dildo, on my temporary womanhood, and wondering what it's going to feel like with a real, warm, living cock in me.

Not realizing he's being insulted, Mr. Happy - who, in addition to being a cunt, has also been just about every size you can imagine at one point or another - is slowly going hard as I remember what it felt like to be eaten out and/or penetrated and guiltily looking forward to doing it 'for real'. I'm getting an erection...

...and then the watch I've laid on the dresser 'bleeps', and it's time for Mr. Happy to become Miss Happy, if you know what I mean.

Oh: Perhaps I should have mentioned that, besides being sweet, fun-loving, and anything but sexually repressed, my beloved Fiona also has a wicked sense of humor coupled with an impeccable sense of showmanship.

Which explains why, instead of a 'over in a minute', all-at-once transformation that was the fastest and most 'efficient' way she could use her magic, Fiona drew this one out, leaving me in suspense over the final look even during the process of achieving it.

That's my girl...

Which explained why the first thing to change wasn't anything major, obvious, or expected:

It was my pubic hair.

In fact, it took me a second to realize what was changing. Atier all, Fiona could decide just how much sensation accompanied the change, and in this case she was just keeping down to the reported physical sensation of the altered body parts, all of which meant there wasn't a hell of a lot of physical sensation with this first change.

So, the change there was almost complete before my roving eyes settled on Mr. Happy...

...or, rather, on the patch of pubic hair in which my semi-erect penis was nestled.

The standard, unruly mass of coarse dark mass of kinky hair - which had formed itself into a neatly-clipped, slightly curly mass of finer, dark hair formed into a heart-shaped patch.

Cute, real cute. Fiona was in fine form tonight.

Now knowing that Fiona was playing it cute, I paid more careful attention - which was the only reason I caught the sensationless transformation as my dark eyes slowly changed, staying dark brown but becoming a bit larger and somewhat more almond-shape, with longer lashes.

Now, as I've mentioned, I've been female before, so it wasn't actually the fact that I was becoming female that caused the guilty excitement that was growing stronger by the second, though it was definitely a contributing factor. No, it was the knowledge of what I was going to be doing with the feminine form that I was oh-so-slowly, oh-so-teasingly acquiring that made this long, slow, step-by- step transformation so shamefully fun.

Next, there was a mild itching sensation as my body hair was 'pulled back' into my pores, and I waited for the finer feminine body hair to 'extrude' back out - but it didn't.

I blinked, more then a little surprised. Sure, the other times I'd been female Fiona had saved me the trouble of having to shave my legs and armpits, but I'd always ended up with your standard amount of feminine body hair, but this time every inch of my skin remained perfectly smooth, something unusual enough to raise my eyebrows...

...which were in the process of changing as well. They were becoming higher, thinner, and arched.

In fact - almost too much so. They looked very carefully plucked and shaped and sculpted, so narrow as to be nearly invisible despite their fairly dark coloration, and very curved with a high arch.

The next thing that happened was my fingernails - fingernails that grew longer and less ragged, until my average, every-day male fingers sported a set of anything-but-average nails, each one oval-tipped and a good two inches long.

I was still looking at the out-of-place nails tipping each finger when I felt a growing sensitivity on my chest that indicated I was growing breasts - mainly because I'd felt that sensation before and could recognize what it meant when I became more sharply aware of the cool air on my nipples than I'd been before.

Usually, this was accompanied by an increased sense of motion and weight on my chest - but this time it was more of a faint tightness, because the flesh rose out into barely post-pubescent breasts that were little more than small, conical mounds beneath my enlarged, more sensitive, and now full-engorged nipples, which rode atop fuller, more rounded areola that were closer to a dusky pink than the brownish shade of my 'real' nipples.

I was more than a bit surprised. I'd had a few different sized breasts before, but these were by far the smallest, barely enough to fill out an 'A'-cup bra - which, for the uninitiated among you, means that, not counting the fair-sized erect nipples, the highest point of these small mounds stood less than a full inch out from my ribcage.

Now, I'll be completely honest - before meeting Fiona, I'd never have believed that I might find myself more than just a bit upset to find 'my tits' so small - but, well, I was.

Oh - I was feeling somewhat ashamed to be ashamed of my tiny tits, (which was a weird feeling indeed, shameful shame!), but I was still somewhat miffed to be so under-endowed.

However, my somewhat discontented gaze was pulled away from my undersized endowments as the changes continued, moving at a somewhat accelerated pace.

It was mostly 'accelerated' because it was symmetrical, laterally and structurally: Namely, the next changes happened simultaneously in my hands and feet, the extremities becoming finer-boned and slimmer, more noticeably feminine...

...after which the changes moved on to ankles and wrists, and thence onto the arms and legs that they were connected to.

My eyes were flicking back and forth between arms and legs, watching as the basic bone structure became lighter in nature, even as the flesh that covered them became softer and smoother, with the intervening layers of muscle and fat reshaping themselves into more feminine, eye-pleasing configurations.

They were... nice. I don't know how 'real' women weight the difference between arms and legs, but I can tell you that, as a man, I had more of an... aesthetic interest in the legs. The arms looked feminine, not too pudgy or too thin, and that was that, as far as I was concerned. The legs, however, I paid more attention to. They were... nice. Not fantastic, but certainly on the good side of 'okay', fairly shapely with nice calves and firm thighs - between which Mr. Happy looked decidedly out of place.

He looked even more out of place as my hips began to widen, even as my shoulders began to narrow. By now, despite Mr. Happy and my barely-altered face, I was getting a definitely feminine over-all look, and the shrinking shoulders and expanding hips and ass were definitely adding to that feminine impression.

The shoulders finished shrinking in, becoming nicely toned, like the arms and legs - more nicely toned, in fact, than my male body, since having a girlfriend who could instantly give you the body of The Hulk was kind of a killer on any motivation to work out.

My hips and ass, though, seemed in no hurry to stop what they were doing. With a sardonic expression on my face, I watched as my figure became pear-shaped, with these wide, rounded hips...

...and an ass that I had to shimmy and shiti on the bed to 'make room' for, as the base of my back-bone curved outwards to accommodate these huge, round ass-cheeks I was suddenly sporting.

Don't get me wrong. I wasn't 'fat assed' - no, this ass was firm and taut, just overstated, like my 'baby-bearing' hips.

I was beginning to wonder what Fiona had in mind, my guilty excitement dampened by an uncertainty at the hip/assed heavy figure given me despite the over-all toned nature of the changing body I was inhabiting, when my face began to change.

My chin and nose began to shrink in on themselves as my cheeks rose higher and pushed outwards, becoming better defined and giving my face a triangular cast - but, though feminine, it was still somewhat heavy-featured, blandly cute at best...

...except for these full, pouting, bee-stung lips that seemed as overstated on my new face as the hips and outthrust bubble-butt ass did on my figure.

As my hair began billowing out from my skull, (an odd sensation if there ever was one!), I wondered what Fiona was thinking with this out-of-proportion, slightly mannish-faced woman I was becoming as the thick, curly hair spilling down my shoulders became a bright, coppery-brick shade of 'red' that would have seemed doubly improbable given it's nearly monotone rich redness and the color of my pubic hair - if not for the dark roots Fiona had 'thoughtfully' provided to prove that the deep red was a dye-job.

Then it was time for Mr. Happy to go bye-bye. If having your hair suddenly grow was a weird sensation, you can figure how it felt to have your cock shrink down to a tiny, sensitive nub while your balls slurped themselves up into your body to make room for a tight, moist slit.

Well, you're going to have to try and imagine how it felt, because I've never managed to find quite the right words to describe the sensation, and I've given it some serious thought.

Anyway, here I was, now fully female - and I couldn't figure out what Fiona was thinking. I mean, I looked... weird. My lips, hips and ass were all out-of-proportion, by face feminine but to heavy-featured to be considered pretty, and these tiny little tits barely visible below my domed areola and cool-air-engorged nipples.

I realized that the confusion and uncertainty were exactly what Fiona had intended - because it all became clear when my skin-tone began to deepen to a sort of rich coppery-bronze.

The shape of my body, so out-of-proportion for a Caucasian, became 'merely' emphatic for the dusky-skinned Latina I ended up as. Then, suddenly, I began to shrink - as my chest began to bulge outwards.

No - balloon outwards.

I gasped - and, I admit, cursed at Fiona in surprise as my tits suddenly swelled as the rest of me shrunk down.

A scant few seconds later, I was struggling not to fall off the edge of the bed, the rapid increase in my bust-size along with the sudden decrease in the rest of my mass happening too fast for me to compensate.

I'm talking about a hell of a lot of weight - because, in a wonderful bit of irony that I'm damned sure that Fiona had planned, the 'tiny' tits I'd been so upset about rapidly shot upwards through the alphabet of cup-sizes until I'd gone from 'somewhat' under-endowed to massively over-endowed.

These suckers were huge!

They were each as big and round and firm as volleyballs - this on a now-tiny frame but a scant inch or two above five feet, if that. Huge, round, unrealistically firm tits - with the small nipples that looked just the right size on such 'obviously' over-pumped silicone tits.

They also weighed a ton. I could feel the muscles in the small of my slim new back as I forced myself back upright, these huge boobs hanging heavily on my slim ribcage.

I looked at the woman in the mirror - and shook my head. Rosie Perez' slutty sister.

That was the first thing that popped into my head, though there wasn't really all that much of a resemblance. In fact, I wasn't nearly as 'cute' as Rosie was - though I could certainly look 'sexy', if I went to the trouble.

The thing was - between the huge, obviously 'fake' tits and the make-up I'd have to apply to look sexy, it would be obvious that I was trying to look sexy.

I would look like I was... advertising.

As I said, my Fiona has a wicked sense of humor.

Man - are these tits heavy. Just getting up off the bed to take in 'the whole package' requires some pre-planning to account for the weight and inertia of these monster tits.

Intellectually, I can appreciate the fact that the over-developed hips and ass actually helped counterbalance those monster tits - but that didn't change what I saw when I looked in the mirrors.

Between my pneumatically over-emphasized boobs and butt and the fact that the rest of my new form was barely 'nice' to the point of blandness, I knew what men would see when they looked at me: A walking, talking, jiggling personification of the phrase 'Tits and Ass'.

Part of me was utterly mortified by the cheep, sleazy, huge-breasted woman looking back at me, to the point that I was considering calling this whole thing off rather than have to face the world in this over-emphasized body.

Considered - and rejected.

Partially because I wanted to please Fiona, who had done so much to make me happy...

...and partially because I was just so plain excited by the idea of doing this. Guiltily excited, queasily excited, shamefully excited - but excited nonetheless.

Okay, you snickering hypothetically reader, what's so funny/disgusting/perverted by being excited by this? Haven't you ever done something 'forbidden', but basically harmless? Stolen some booze from the family liquor cabinet? Snuck a cigarette out of your mom's purse when you were fifteen? Done anything like this that gave you that excited/scared 'I can't believe I'm doing this/ I can't believe I'm getting away with this' sensation that made your heart pound and your pulse race?

If you have, then you know why I'm not backing out... and if you haven't then you can just slink back into the safe, sterile padded room you call home and go back to watching paint dry, or whatever it is you do for 'fun'.

Hesitantly, still throwing a few good-natured mental curses in Fiona's direction, I reached up and cupped my hands under the lowest curve of the massive boobs that dwarfed them, the muscles in my toned, copper arms having to tighten considerably before achieving enough power to heft these meaty, massive mammary masses.

I'd never, ever touched any pair of tits so huge. I'd half expected my hands to disappear into the jiggling, heavy masses of tit-flesh, but they were simultaneously so soft and so firm that the tension of the taut skin meant that my hands made only a little indent into the smooth flesh as I strained to lift those smooth, sensitive boobs.

These monsters had to stand a good eight inches out from my ribcage - which, given their artificially round shape meant that they also stretched the same amount from top to bottom and from the point where each breast was hard-pressed together in a display of taut cleavage to the outer edge of each huge breast, visible even from directly behind me in a quarter-moon of coppery cantaloupe.

Which added up to a GG or FFF-cup bra that I didn't have or plan for, which meant that choosing clothing to cover my small, pneumatic body was pretty damned easy, since out of the wide assortment I'd accrued, there wasn't much that would work for my unexpected new figure.

Since there was no way any of the half-dozen brassieres I'd bought would fit these massive new boobs, I didn't have to worry about the panties I choose matching anything, so I looked over the selection I'd bought...

...and brought the first burgundy blush to my new features as I decided 'what the hell?' and went whole-hog.

Still blushing, I sat on the edge of the bed and pulled the bright-red thong panties up my legs, feeling the string-like garment sliding in the deep crevice between my big bubble-butt cheeks, disappearing from view even as the front portion pulled taut into the cleft of my tight new cunt, snuggling with annoying/pleasing pressure against my somewhat out-sized new clit by the way the my extremely wide hips strained the 'but-floss' panties.

Okay, I'm a basically straight, red-blooded American male, and I just pulled on nearly-nonexistent panties onto my wide hips and up into the butt-crack of my taut, round melon-like cheeks... and I was getting turned on by this.

Turned on by the slutty look in the mirror - and the thought of what this slutty look was going for the man who might or might not be my masculinized girlfriend that I was going to bring back here and fuck later tonight.

This time, if you think the whole thing just a little bit freaky, I'm going to grant you that...

...but that didn't mean I wasn't still enjoying it. Make of that what you will.

Next, I pulled on those pair of leopard-print spandex pants. Sure enough, they fit well enough for length, hugging my 'okay' legs like a second skin - but it took a lot of effort to get them up over the fullest point of those wide hips and huge ass, with a black plastic belt pulled tight through the supposedly decorative belt-loops to keep the more-than-just-skin-tight spandex from obeying its natural instinct to slide back down over my over-full hips and ass, so tight across my crotch that it actually outlined my cunt and indented slightly into my slit.

It was embarrassing, shameful, ridiculous - and that taut tension tight on the mound of my cunt and even in slightly felt so damned good that my blush deepened and I let the straining pants on.

Geez - it looks like I've got the instinct to be as much of a cheap slut as I look like right now.

There was only one thing I could pull on over my over-sized tits, a dark-gray blouse that fit like a tent over everything but my huge tits...

...and a pair of mules with a two-inch stacked heel that were the only shoes close to my diminutive new feet.

Given the look, I figured I knew why Fiona had strongly 'suggested' I do a final shopping at Fanta-SEE! The shopping I'd done at Goodwill had been just enough to have clothing to get to the store with - except I, um... really liked the way the overstrained spandex pants felt.

Damn it, any move I made caused the taut fabric to rub firmly over my cunt, and each step was like a lover's hand rubbing across my cunt. What can I say?

I went ahead and did my make-up with the sort of trashy-cheap look practically demanded by my face, with a deep, glossy red lipstick and a dark purple eye-shadow. Fiona had taught me how to do makeup the other times I was female, and I'd had practice walking in progressively higher heels from those same times, but I wasn't exactly an expert at either...

...which meant that when I wiggled and jiggled my way out of the hotel room, it was looking like a cheap trailer-trash tart with over-done and under-skilled make-up and a wiggling-jiggling walk.

I wasn't pretty - but I was slutty/sexy. I wasn't graceful - but I also couldn't be ignored. From make-up to build to an over-done walk that was the closest I could come to a woman's stride, I was practically shouting out an advertisement for sex - and cheap sex, at that.

Needless to say, I felt even more conspicuous, right now and in real life, then I ever did in those 'no pants in class' nightmares. Because I wasn't going to drive a car in my unfamiliar body, not to mention having no valid ID for this body, I walked to the adult store, knowing damned well that everybody who did see me really was staring at me...

...but none of them for the reason part of my brain was half-insisting they were. Atier all, whether appreciative, as some of the male stares, or disgusted/repulsed like the rest of the men and the majority of the women, not one of them was staring at me as a 'faggot guy pretending to be a woman while getting ready to go out and have some not-exactly homosexual sex'.

Of course, not all of me was tied up in what other people were seeing/thinking. A lot of me was busy just experiencing what I was feeling.

Like the way that the spandex covering my cunt was going from tight, to tighter, and back again with every step I took. Or the way my new boobs were jiggling and bouncing like a pair of fleshy bowling-balls trying to escape the loose-tight shirt, continuing each move I made well atier I finished the move, only to swing back with redoubled force with the next swaying swivel of my wide hips and bubble-butt ass.

In fact, between the fabric caress of my crotch, the tugging of taut musculature up from the bottom curvature of my wide, deep, round ass up on into the straining muscles of my back, to the bounce, sway and jiggle of my huge, round tits, I was beginning to relegate the sensations of the rest of my new form to the background.

Well, to be completely honest: At this moment I actually feel like nothing but tits, ass and cunt.

Just because I know damned well that Fiona, the love and light of my life, knows me well enough to set this whole thing up so that's exactly how I'd feel, even though I know she'd planned to play my own dislike for huge, fake tits to give me an overly-sensitive pair that I was almost unwillingly enjoying having, nevertheless knowing wasn't nearly enough to keep me from feeling what I was feeling right now.

I bet she'd even known about the joyful humiliation I was feeling while trying to fight down that feeling of 'walking sex object' that kept trying to take the foremost place in my conscious mind.

I mean - I just wasn't prepared for how much I was enjoying the 'humiliation' Fiona had planned for me... knowing that this would be just the way I would respond to the situation.

Yes, she knows me that well. She knows me inside and out, and if I'm enjoying this situation, even - especially - the humiliation of being an over-emphatic woman that, as a man, I wouldn't have found sexy but, as a woman, found it incredibly arousing to be.

Yet it was only the start of the evening.

I couldn't believe I was doing this - and I was enjoying the fact that I was doing something I couldn't believe I was doing. All of which explained why I accepted the top Phanta-SEE! 'just happened to have in the back.

You see, I wiggled and jiggled my way into the adult store and, in my best fake accent, amazed I was doing this, brazenly asked her if she had 'anything that would fit my big, round boobies', litiing them up and sticking them out for completely unnecessary emphasis.

The stunned clerk then admitted that she might - a garment that had been custom-ordered by then had subsequently 'just happened' to have been declined by the person who ordered it, making it available at a reduced charge after the original buyer had paid half the price after refusing it.

The top had black leather straps with black spandex cups that were, coincidentally, were a 'mere' cup-size smaller than the new tits I boasted.

Which meant it fit - as tightly as a drum, each spandex cup actually forming to my huge tits, making them look more naked than if I'd been naked.

It was obvious to me that Fiona had set this up - and she'd known that the sheer 'nasty naughtiness' of putting such a top on and wearing it in public would make me feel...

Excited.

Likewise, the pair of black platform pumps with the two-inch rounded-toe platforms and the eight-inch flared heel, much higher than any heels I'd even worn, not to mention 'sluttier', and something I probably wouldn't have even looked at... if not for the fact that they were part of the refused consignment, and available at a discount...

...and the right size for my diminutive new feet.

So, twenty minutes later, I was carefully jiggling out of the shop, having to take tiny little 'sissy' steps in the ridiculously high-heeled shoes, my huge new tits swaying in the form-fitting black spandex top, my huge ass wiggling in the skin-tight spandex pants, heart pounding in fun fear, aware that I was acting in a 'perverse' way - but that anybody and everybody looking at my new form in its new clothes was seeing a different 'perversion' than the one I was actually pulling off.

I'd done some interesting, exciting, and unusual things with Fiona - but never had I felt as powerful a wash of anxiety-tinged, stomach-clenching excitement as I felt right now.

Now I understood those people who high-dived off the cliffs of Mexico, or had sex in public places, or did illegal street-racing. The thrill and excitement was nearly overwhelming - and the anxiety, even fear, that came along with it only made the excitement that much more powerful.

Here's the really weird part of it all - if I was the type of person who, before it started, had been super-eager and excited to do this, I wouldn't feel nearly as excited and wouldn't be enjoying it nearly as much right now, now that I was doing this despite my own doubts and discomfort.

Every move I made, every sensation from new body, shouted 'female' - but not 'graceful' or 'pretty' or any of those versions of feminine, but the other meaning of being female:

Sex, Sex, Sex!

Okay, so I found it a little weird myself... but that didn't mean I stopped enjoying it, no matter how guiltily. Then I was wiggling and jiggling my way across the parking lot toward the Inner City Nightclub...

...and suddenly anxiety began outweighing excitement again.

Oh, not that I wasn't enjoying the fact that I was feeling guilty about enjoying the way I felt about having the guys in the parking lot gape at my over-female figure.

(Whew!)

No, the anxiety build-up came from the fact that being around so many men suddenly made this oh-so-real, almost too much so.

It wasn't the attention they were paying me, so much - it was the fact that I would have to find the one man among these staring, appreciative-or-repulsed men who was really my girlfriend in mystical masculine drag.

I mean, before, I'd been intellectually aware of the fact that I might pick the wrong man, and just not know about it until the next morning.

Now that intellectual possibility was becoming an emotional one - and I was realizing just how uncomfortable I was with the idea of having sex with a 'real' man.

I... don't think I could live with that.

That didn't stop me from entering the club, however - blushing, sissy-walking awkwardly atop my extreme heels, looking like trailer-trash on her first night at being a hooker.

Atier all, I just wouldn't take any guy back to the hotel unless I was absolutely positive it was 'really' Fiona. Well - reasonably certain.

I guess...

The center of attention because of the way I looked, and feeling like the center of attention for another reason completely, excited and anxious and knowing that nobody was actually staring at me for the reason I felt like they were, I began to make my way towards the bar, trying not to brush up against people as I did so... and unsure if I should feel so good about the way it felt as I failed at it, not in the least because some guys purposefully made sure of it.

Okay, so I was enjoying being not-to-covertly fondled by some strange men - but that was just because I knew that they didn't know that I was 'really' a guy, all the gross evidence to the contrary. I wasn't enjoying it because I was, you know, enjoying it.

I think.

Was I enjoying this because of how anxious I was... or was I anxious because of how much I was enjoying this...?

Why would a body that I would find, well, freakish as my normal self be so enjoyable while being in it? Why would the very things that made me nervous also make me so excited?

Just what was going on with me - and had Fiona actually known that I'd feel this way, even when I didn't realize that I'd feel this way myself?

Jeez, I felt excited and nervous and queasy and horny and wrong about feeling so right and...

...and...

...and, in fact, probably an awful lot like the way a woman felt her 'first time'. Weird.

What was really weird, though, was the fact that I couldn't focus on how I felt - because I was much too busy focusing on what I was feeling.

My body was much feminine then any female body I'd ever inhabited before, and I was constantly aware of the fact. Every wiggle of my full, taut ass, every jiggle of my huge tits. The feel of my cunt, the feel of my lips, everything - reminding me just how sexually feminine I know was...

...and my body practically begging me to make use of that feminine sexuality, even if I couldn't be sure I'd found Fiona or not. I was... horny.

Really horny.

Really, really horny...

...and, BINGO, I realized that Fiona had pulled another one on me, because I was reacting much more to the male pheromones wafting through the air than I'd expected, in combination with the 'internal' arousal from the physical sensations.

Oh, don't get me wrong, I'm not saying Fiona 'revved up' my hormones or anything - it's just that, being female, she'd known damned well what male pheromones did to a woman when she suggested this plan...

...and all the more so to a woman who'd never experienced it before.

So, by the time I reached the bar, my cunt was hot and wet, right in tune with a body that was ripe, ready, and eager to go. Regardless of what my intellect might have to say on the matter.

What? You think that your body highly insisting that I go out and have sex despite what my intellect might say seems weird? You never been a teenager, or something?

So, here I was, incredibly horny and in a body that practically shouted 'sex!', surrounded by staring men, some of whom were staring appreciatively and/or lustfully, over-aware of both the men and my old body, and turned on by that awareness almost against my will...

I was just about to turn and run from the room, unable to cope with the mix of emotions I was feeling, when I felt a hand on my shoulder, and a warm, accented voice said; "Maria! You made it!"

Startled, I turned and looked...

He looked like a young Ricardo Montalban.

Not 'he resembled' or 'he looked kind of like'. He was the spitting image of a young Ricardo Montalban - except that the original never boasted such a large 'package'.

He was leering appreciatively at the deep cleavage exposed by my huge tits...

...but the wink of the warm brown eyes was pure Fiona.

I should have known. Fiona wanted me to feel the anxiety - but she'd never force me to live through the actual situation...

...but, then again, Fiona had known I wouldn't realize that she'd make herself obvious, or I wouldn't have felt the way I did, nor would I feel the relief I was feeling now.

Oh, by the way - did I mention that, among her powers, Fiona can read my mind, which is how she knows me as well - or better - than I do myself?

"Well, sweetie..." 'Ricardo' asked, leering again as he quite deliberately fondled my huge, round ass. "Shall we get out of here?"

"Sure thing, hot stuff..." I agreed, leaning into his body without much guilt, since I knew that this incredibly well-endowed man (fondling an incredibly well-endowed woman) was really my girlfriend, and thus an 'acceptable not-quite homosexual partner'.

Let's face it - the English language isn't really suited for this situation.

Which is okay - because, along with the release of tension that came with 'finding' Fiona's male form, I more or less was free to let go of the whole intellectual thing, and just ride the pleasurable sensations and emotions I'd been feeling so guilty and anxious over a moment before.

Wiggling my ass and jiggling my tits, I let Ricardo lead me towards the door, as aware as ever of the stares of the people around me, and accepting the with horny equanimity in the safe embrace of my currently-male girlfriend.

Riding on a wave of arousal and physical pleasure from Ricardo's eager hands, I let myself be led towards my first 'heterosexual' activity as a woman.

The walk back to the motel room was three blocks - but it didn't seem like. Emotionally, it felt like a bare instant, as if I teleported from the club to the motel - but, physically, it seemed to last hours. Hours during which I was touched and fondled, Ricardo's hands roaming my lush body while I felt every touch, every caress...

...every kiss.

I was in ecstasy.

Well... I thought I was, at least.

The truth was, I didn't know that I it was a pale comparison to what I'd shortly be feeling...

...and 'feeling' was just about all I was doing. Dimly, I was aware of the fact that I now understood a hell of a lot about the way women viewed sex, the way they were so 'neurotic' about it. When you realized just how powerful feminine arousal could be, how much it could 'hijack' your body, you'd be both wary and wanting of it all at the same time.

All of which came after the fact. Actually, what you, the hypothetical reader, are now reading is what I went back and added in later. What I needed to add to make what you are about to read make any sort of sense.

What you are about to read is what was written at the time - written by the mind that was too busy 'experiencing' to 'think'. What was recorded was this:

Oh, God, there's not enough of him, touching me, touching him, can't get enough, want him all over me, in me, on me...

Yes, yes, oh, his hands, so strong, so big, squeeze my ass, like that, yes, don't move like that, let me press my body against you...

Oh, I want to press myself into you, feel you all over, everywhere, yes, kiss me, your mouth, so warm, your tongue, my tongue, yes, deeper, more, less...

No, don't move your...

Oh, yes - the door. Get the door. Inside, inside, we can be together inside and close the door and, yes, touch me again, hands there...

Tits. I've got tits, touch them, squeeze them, so good, so good...

Yes, yes! So much better when you take that off, and.. hurry! Hurry...!

OH Yes, bare tits, so soft, it feels so good and I'll squeeze them too, and I wish you had more hands so you could be touching me all over and...

Naked. I - we - naked. Yes, I...

Damned buttons.

Fuck it - I'll just rip them off and...

Oh, yes, run my hands over your chest, it feels so good, play with the little hairs, not as nice as folding your tits, when you have tits, but nice and...

TITS! I have tits, big round ones, and you can...

Yes. Yes, lick my nipples... kiss them.. Oh, squeeze my ass, and I'll just.. unzip your.. like this.. Oh. Oh, so big, and hard, and warm...

What? Oh, why.. The belt, you have to... No, I'll... GOD! How to women bear this...?

Yes, there, push them down and.. I just need to kick off my shoes and - keep touching me! Yes, like that and... Mmmm, your mouth...

Your chest...

Your ass...

MY ass. Squeeze it, like that, and...

Yes. Bed. On the bed. Just get this off and... Oh yes.

Touching, all over, like this. Touch me more. Touch me here... now there, and...

I'm ready and not ready, I'm loving this and I want it to last forever, but I also want to get on with it, I'm on fire, on fire, I'm burning, but it's a good burning and...

No - no, you lay down. Like this.. Yes, and just.. no like this and, oh, don't - that's it, like that, keep touching me there and here and her and there and kiss and, just a little to the... Here, I'll just hold it, like this and...

OH SWEET JESUS, YES!

I'm hollow, all hollow, you fill me, I need to be filled and you filled me and...

...hung...

...love it, need it, filled, hot and cold, hollow and filled and...

...hung...

...God, yes, and I'm doing this, and you're doing this, we're doing this together and it feels so good, so right, but it's not enough, I'll go faster, harder, deeper, want it all, want more, need more, don't know if I can handle more, give me more...

...oohhhh!...

Yes, touch them, squeeze them, harder, let me feel it, love my tits, love your hands on my tits, it's great... great... but not as good as...

...YES!...

riding, riding, pumping, pumping harder and harder and faster and faster and it's not enough and it's too much and I want more can't handle more too much not enough gimme gimme gimme gimme gimmegimmegimmegimme....

* * * * *

At this point, still somewhat shy of my orgasm, the screen filled with gibberish. Apparently, I went well past coherent thought. Um...

Also apparently, I, um....

I'm a screamer.

Well, Ricardo/Fiona also says I'm a pretty good lay - but then, she doesn't have much to judge it against, and having been a guy, I knew that every orgasm is a 'good orgasm'.

Still, she had a very good point when she/he pointed out that I'm just a natural slut. Atier all, didn't I sleep with a 'man' without even bothering to get his name. ?

Well, I guess I'll just have to stay female until I get it right, huh?

Now, if you'll excuse me, 'Butch Cassidy' is grinning at me from the couch, his 'weapon' drawn, waiting for his cheap Mexicano whore to come give him his two-dollar blow-job, and me, the big-titted whore, have work to do...

...since his good pal, Sundance, is scheduled right atier him...

So, what do you do to 'spice up' you relationship atier you've more or less exhausted every conceivable boy-girl combination? Why, you just switch the roles, and start right back at the beginning and do it all over again...

...and since it took us three years to go through it the first time, it might take awhile. Which is just fine with me.

Atier all - I just love the work...

Mmmm, Butch.... just let me...

slurp

The End

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: Atier getting a great price for an old "haunted house," one man discovers that the tales of the spirit of a young girl are true as she slowly takes over his body.

Spirited Education

By Gunslinger

"How much?"

The Realtor grinned at the question. Studiously, the man paused to re-arrange his gold-colored company blazer before replying to the slender blonde's question.

"Sixty-three five." The dark-haired man laughed. "It is, of course, non-negotiable."

Gary shook his head, looking around the huge, mahogany-and-marble interior of the huge Victorian home. "I can't believe it. This place is... incredible. Why on earth is it so cheap?"

The Realtor folded his hands together. "Well, that's actually an interesting story. The original owner of this home was a rather... eccentric woman. She lived here with her daughter, until 1977. Then in seventy-seven, the daughter passed away - a terrible accident, the young lady apparently fell down the servant's stairs at the back of the house. They're quite narrow. In any case, the woman couldn't bear to live here - and she couldn't bear to sell it. So, it was maintained by a company she hired for the purpose, but never lived in. So, all it's plumbing, phone and electrical systems are only up to the standards of the late seventies. Then, when the lady passed away two months ago, it was stipulated in her will that the house be sold - but not for a single cent more than what she bought it for." The Realtor shrugged. "Which means, of course, that the house's resale value will always be exactly the same."

John just didn't care. The place was a sprawling mansion with eight bedrooms, a huge garage, gorgeous landscaping - all atop a ten-acre hilltop estate in one of the older, more elegant parts of town. It was sheer luck that he was the first person to view the house - it had gone on the market only this morning.

And, it was furnished, everything left exactly the way it had been when it was closed up in seventy-seven. Without the slightest hesitation, Gary turned to the agent.

"Where do I sign?"

* * * * *

As the sun began to sink behind the luxuriously treed hills surrounding his new house - his house, Gary thought, amazed - Gary's Blazer pulled to a stop in front of the wrought-iron gates of his new estate.

Because the gates were exactly as they had been, they weren't electrically driven - Gary had to climb from his car to unlock them, open them, drive through, then re-lock them. But, all things considered, it was a small price to pay to own such a magnificent home. He still couldn't believe it was his.

Pulling up to the front door, he turned off the ignition of the black Chevy, and grabbed the bags of groceries. Since the house came fully furnished, he hadn't needed much to make the place livable. He'd spent the day doing just that. From his apartment, he'd only needed his TV, stereo, computer, and kitchenware, plus his personal items. Then he'd gone out and bought all the sheets and towels and assorted other items. This last trip, for the basic necessities and enough food for a couple of days, completed his preparations.

Rushing the food inside, he deposited it on the counter. Going back into the main hallway, he picked up the receiver of the old-fashioned black phone, and dialed a number on the rotary dial.

After two rings, it was picked up at the other end. "Y'ello?" A chipper, female voice said.

"Hey, Debs." Gary said, smiling. "What the hell are you doing on the phone? You're supposed to be on your way over."

Debbie, Gary's incredibly cute, peppy, blonde friend laughed. "I'm not even sure I should. I've known you for years, and you've always been careful with your cash. So when you said you were going to look for a new place, I figured a nicer apartment. Instead, I find that you spend almost the entire winnings on a house. I'm starting to wonder about you, Gary David Carter."

Gary smiled into the phone. He and Deborah McCallum were old, best friends. They'd known each other since they were fourteen. In the intervening twelve years, they'd become even closer friends, nearly inseparable. They'd even give a shot at a serious relationship, but it had failed because the two were simply too much alike. Occasionally, a couple of times a year, they'd be together and something would happen, and they'd have a bout of incredible sex - and then be awkward as hell around each other for about two weeks.

Otherwise, they had an incredibly strong, open, platonic friendship. One that, right now, was stronger than ever, as Gary's support had helped her get her own company - a small boutique - off the ground. He'd helped her make the contacts, find investors, and even did the scut work helping get the store ready to open. He'd done everything he could to help her come up with the last three grand she'd needed.

Of course, the seventy-two thousand, three hundred and twenty dollars Gary had won in Vegas didn't hurt either. It had made her dream a reality - and gotten him this house. Gary thought it was probably a sort of karmic reward for all he'd done.

"Just get down here, babe. I promise you won't be disappointed. You got that address?"

"Yeah, I have it. I'll be there in about forty-five minutes. 'Kay?" "Great." Gary said. After trading good-byes, the two friends hung up.

Almost quivering with excitement, Gary headed to the kitchen to get dinner ready.

* * * * *

"I can't believe it..." Debbie said, for what must have been the hundredth time since she'd arrived.

Gary smiled. He was having a hard time believing it too - even since he'd signed the check that made this mansion his, he'd been walking around in a kind of daze.

The two friends were sitting in the luxurious 'sitting room', sipping on after-dinner drinks. Relaxed in the high-backed leather chairs near the fire Gary had stoked, the two of them could be mistaken for twin siblings, an event that happened fairly regularly.

Both Gary and Debbie possessed the same build, slender yet somewhat athletic. Both were exactly the same height - Debbie was slightly tall for a woman, Greg slightly short for a guy - and both had the same shade and length of golden-blond hair, and the same bright, cheerful blue eyes. The two friends even dressed in the same style - Greg wore faded jeans, a pair of black oxfords, and a blue Polo shirt, while Debbie wore a pair of black sandals with a one-and-a-half inch block heel, knee-length denim skirt, and a white T-shirt with a mock-collar. The interesting thing was the fact that Debbie, with her hair in its usual ponytail, looked like the penultimate 'Girl- Next-Door', whereas the nearly identical Gary looked more like a reformed hippie.

It was this amazing similarity between the two that had kept them from a romantic relationship. They were incredibly good friends, and even attracted to each other, physically - but anything too serious, and they started to drive each other buggy.

In any case, Gary enjoyed her company, and was glad she was here to share the moment with, to 'ooh' and 'ahh' over the house when he'd given her the tour.

"So, oh great and mighty Lord of the Manor," Debbie said, miming a bow. "What wonderful entertainment have you arranged for the rest of the evening? A Jester, maybe? Or, shall we simply retire to the television viewing room?"

Gary smiled and shrugged. "Actually, I didn't have anything planned, really - I didn't rent a movie or anything. Is there something you want to do?"

Debbie shrugged. "No. not..." She paused, a thoughtful look coming over her face. "Hey, Gary. In that course you took on 'Modern Myths and the Paranormal', did you study things like seances?"

Gary saw where this was heading, and grinned slightly. "Yeah, I did. You thinking of talking to the daughter who died in this house?" He said it with good humor - neither of them really believed in ghosts and such. It was just something to pass the time.

"Let's give it a try. What is it you need?"

Gary shrugged. "Nothing." He leaned forward, and held out his hands. "The daughter's name was Cassandra. All I want you to do is take my hands, close your eyes and concentrate on that name."

Taking Debbie's hands in his own, Gary closed his eyes. After a second's thought to get the memory to resurface, he began to chant.

"Spiritus dei mortis, Venite huc, Vedere attraversum, Sentire attraversum, Vive attraversum, Li Essere all'interno di, Li invito. "

He was his fourth time through when it hit.

Gary suddenly spasmed, as if electrocuted. Although he felt no pain, he felt himself slam back into the chair, his body quivering as he lost control over his own limbs. A strange sensation rushed through him, much like the sensation that somebody was standing behind him, only much, much stronger

Then he was sitting perfectly still in his chair, staring - wide-eyed - at Debbie, who was looking back at him, half convinced that Gary was fooling around.

"Gary?" Debbie said, questioningly.

Gary felt a sudden... tightening sensation in his throat, unlike anything he'd ever felt before. Without his willing it to happen, his mouth opened, and he spoke.

Well, he didn't speak.

"Who are you? What's going on here? What happened?" The voice emerged from Gary's throat - but it was completely unlike his voice. It was a strong, clear, female voice, tinged with confusion.

Debbie's jaw dropped. "Gary? She said in shock, then, hesitantly. "Cas. Cassandra?"

Gary felt his head cocking, again without his command to do so. Once more that melodic-yet-imperious feminine voice emerged from his mouth.

"Who are you? Do I know you? What. "

The Gary felt his head moving again, as he looked at his hand, then his gaze traveled up his arm and down his body. He gasped.

"What the hell. I'm a man!"

Then Gary slumped as the presence he felt faded, without vanishing completely.

"My God, Debbie, it actually..." Gary started to say, wide eyed....

Then trailed off, hands flying to his throat as the words emerged in the same strong contralto.

Debbie stared at Gary for a second - then laughed nervously. "All right, Gary - you got me. You can stop fooling. "

"I am not joking around, Debbie." Gary said with quiet authority, while trying - and failing - to force his voice into its normal registers. Wincing at the feminine voice in his ears when he spoke, he continued. "We - I actually contacted the dead. Cassandra is. inside me." His voice displayed his mixture of fear, shock, amazement and awe. "It feels so. weird."

"Was inside you, you mean?"

Gary shook his head. "No, she'd still there, but. well, I think she fainted."

Debbie stared at Gary, incredulous. "You... you're serious. You really were - are - possessed?" That particular word hadn't occurred to Gary yet, but he nodded. "Yeah. I think so."

Debbie put a hand to her mouth. "Oh my.... Gary? What do we do now. I mean... do we find somebody to do an.. exorcism?"

Gary looked startled. "Good God, no!" He grinned slightly. "We may not have expected it to really work, but I did - literally - invite her in. She's not trying to harm me or anything - if anything, she's even more shocked than we are. I don't think she realizes that she's dead. For her, it's probably like. the last thing she remembers, she was about to fall down the stairs - then she blinks, and she'd sitting in here, with a stranger - and she's a man. The poor girl must be terrified." Debbie looked at Gary. "You seem to be taking this well, Gary."

Gary blinked, then smiled. "Well, aside from the voice thing... Debbie, this is incredible! We've actually contacted a. soul, a ghost, whatever the correct term is. This is. " He struggled for the right word.

Debbie digested what Gary had said - then slowly smiled. "Exciting?"

Gary looked at Debbie, and nodded. "Yeah." He could see she was beginning to see the situation the same way he was - a chance to delve into the unknown, to make a sort of contribution to history. This could be the first true, documentable case of contact with the dead. It was the same feeling that Columbus must have had when he first set foot in the Americas, or Armstrong when he took his 'one small step'.

"Can... can you. ?" Debbie waved her hands in frustration, not quite sure of what she was asking Gary to do.

Gary knew what she meant, though. "Hang on - I'll try."

Closing his eyes, Gary concentrated. He wasn't quite sure how he was doing what he was doing - it was kind of like a blind person seeing for the first time - Gary had a new sense that he was learning to use...

Then, suddenly, Gary felt an incredible sensation. It was as if the world suddenly doubled His eyes popped open, and everything he saw looked the way he'd seen it before closing his eyes - and he also saw it from a new perspective.

The sensation was different this time - it wasn't Cassandra taking control - it was routing through him. Simply put, Cassandra's brain sent the same signal as it always had to get her body to sit forward. But instead of it going directly to the muscles, it went to Gary - who decided to let it through.

Then Cassandra spoke - and it was the weirdest sensation, like hearing a reverb - each word whipped through Gary's brain an instant before his ears heard the words from his mouth.

"Who are you? What's happening to me? Where's Mother?" The voice was a combination of bravado and fear as the woman inside Gary tried to make sense of the situation she had been thrust into.

Then Gary spoke - although still in 'her' voice. "Cassandra - please, stay calm. My name's Gary, and I'm going to explain everything to you."

"Wha..." A short pause as the strange voice spoke. From her point of view, it would feel like it was her that was possessed...

..but she knew it wasn't her body. Which meant...

"I'm in your body?" Cassandra asked, working it out. "But... how? Why?" With understanding setting in, the voice was becoming stronger, more imperial, and Gary re-assessed that 'poor frightened girl' image he'd held.

"Well... You're dead. Debbie - the young woman across from us - and I were... playing around with a seance - and you really did... uh..."

Seeing Gary grope for the word, Debbie suggested "Crossed over?"

"I see." Cassandra said, her voice ironic. "So - this was all just a... mistake?"

Gary took back control of the vocal cords. "Not exactly - if I had known that it really would work right from the beginning - I still would have done it." He paused, then asked the question that had been bothering him. "Do you know why my - our - voice has changed."

Gary felt his own shoulders shrug, and was slightly upset - Cassandra had done it herself, without routing it through him first. "I just spoke - since this is my normal voice, and what I expected to hear, I assume that my mind altered the vocal cords to provide the sound I expected."

"How's that possible?" Debbie asked, frowning.

Again, Cassandra made a gesture without Gary's tacit approval. "It makes sense, Debbie. Since I am now nothing but mental energy, my ability to influence Gary's body is probably quite strong." Gary felt his eyebrows lift. "As a matter of fact..."

Gary felt a strange tingling sensation in his right hand. He looked down at it - and watched, amazed, as its configuration shifted. The hand slimmed, and the nails pushed out with a mild pain, growing at an amazing rate. Within minutes, The End of Gary's arm terminated in a delicate, feminine hand.

Gary tried to protest - and nothing emerged. Mentally bearing down, he wrested away control of his voice, and said "Hey - what the hell do you think you're doing?"

"Relax, Gary." Cassandra said, her voice cool. "I was just testing a theory." Gary wrested the voice back again. "Look - it's my body, and I don't want you..."

Without warning, the rest of his words vanished as Cassandra took back the voice. "Look, little man - it's now our body. I'm in here too, remember. Just because I happen to be female doesn't mean that I have any less rights than you do in this body.

We're equal partners in this, now."

Debbie gasped at the insolent tone in which Cassandra spoke, while Gary wrested back the voice. "Like hell we are, Cassandra. What the hell's wrong with you, anyway? You are a guest in my body. Please, behave yourself - no fooling around." Fighting her attempt to take the voice, Gary finished what he had to say. "And, damn it - stop yanking control away like that. If you want to use our voice - or anything else - route it through me first."

Instead, Cassandra just pushed harder, and Gary released the voice to her.

"Oh, I see - the poor little woman is supposed to get approval from the big, strong man every time she wants to do something - is that it? Look here, you male chauvinistic pig - I'm not some pathetic excuse for a woman. I'm as strong and important as any man, and what I want, I take..."

Gary, usually even-tempered, felt his anger building as the now-obviously feminist Cassandra continued to rant.

He had no idea how he did it - it was more of an instinct than a planned thought. He didn't even try to get the voice back - he merely found the thread that connected the two minds inside his body together - and sent the thought blistering down it at 'full volume'.

[SHUT UP!]

Cassandra fell silent, stunned with the sheer force of the mental 'shout', and Gary took the vocal cords again.

"Look, Cassandra - I don't know what your beef is with men, and I really don't care. As it so happens, I'm not a chauvinist, and I'm not trying to control you as a woman. What I am doing is laying down a set of ground-rules." He paused, and could somehow feel the seething anger of Cassandra in his mind - but she wasn't attempting to take any sort of action... yet.

"He really isn't sexist, Cassandra." Debbie assured her. "I've known Gary for years, and he's not one of those overbearing type of guys. But you are being a little unreasonable."

Before Cassandra could attempt to answer Debbie, Gary continued. "I want you to imagine an analogy, Cassandra. I want you to look at it, fairly and honestly. This body, right now, is like a ship. A ship which I own, and have owned for my whole life. Then, one day, I rescue you from drowning. You come aboard - and immediately try to take over the ship. More than that, you begin to refit the ship to your own tastes, without permission." He paused. "Now - does that sound like a reasonable description of what happened?"

Gary released their voice, and there was a long before there was an answer.

"I... I'm sorry." Cassandra apologized - grudgingly. "Perhaps I was being a little unreasonable. But it sounds like you rescued me - just to hold me in the ship's brig."

Gary shook his head. "Nope - if you want to stay with the ship analogy, then you're a passenger. You come to the captain - me - and make a request. If it's reasonable, I'll grant it. But I just don't want you going off on your own and doing it - let me know about it first, and we can make a decision together. But as captain, I get veto power on it."

"He's really being quite reasonable." Debbie said - thankfully - "He's lived in that body his whole life, and that sort of gives him some rights over what - as much as it may be hard to accept - is a guest." She paused, then changed the topic. "Like changing his hand without permission - how do you even know you can change it - or his voice - back?"

There was a long pause - then a strange sensation in his hand and throat as things rearranged themselves to their original configuration.

"Well..." Gary said, experimentally - and was gratified to hear his own male voice again. "This should make it easier to tell which one of us is talking - Cassandra can 'switch voices' for us."

"Thanks, Cassandra." Debbie smiled. "Since you're going to be so much a part of my best friend, at least for a while - why don't you tell me about yourself. We'll get to know each other."

And Gary sighed in mental relief when he felt the mental equivalent of a 'please' before Cassandra tightened their shared vocal cords and her voice came through him.

* * * * *

Over the next three hours, what might have been the oddest conversation ever to take place revealed a lot about the new person in Gary.

An onlooker might have shaken their head - it appeared that two people were having a three-sided conversation. Including the guy who spoke to himself - in a feminine voice.

What they discovered explained much about Cassandra. Although it was never said specifically, Gary and Debbie got the distinct impression that Cassandra's birth had been the result of her mother being raped.

Which would explain her mother's eccentric raising of Cassandra. Home schooled, Cassandra had never leti the property of this house. She'd never met a man in the flesh, only hearing her mother's twisted view of them. As the talked, Cassandra - resisting the idea at first - began to discover that her view of men, imposed by her mother, was an inaccurate picture. It was hard for her to accept, to face down a life-time of training. If she'd been in her own body, it might never have happened.

But, inside Gary's body, she got a first-hand view of a real, living member of the male species, and that forced her to reassess her beliefs - and find them lacking.

Cassandra also discovered a kindred soul in Debbie, who was shocked to discover that Cassandra had never been anywhere, or given a chance to see real-life.

Which led to the argument.

* * * * *

"Okay!" Gary said, surrendering. Faced with the argument of two women - one of them his best friend, the other a woman he had begun to feel extremely sorry for - he was way overmatched. "I suppose it can't be that bad."

His voice rose in pitch, and Cassandra sounded almost girlish in her excitement. "Oh, thank-you Gary." Debbie had made an offer to Cassandra - a chance to get out and see the world. In Gary's body...

...as a woman. Gary hadn't been happy with the thought of Cassandra doing a complete make-over on his body, but he supposed it was the least he could do for the poor girl. Atier Debbie's offer of a free spree at her boutique, then a 'girl's day out', Gary's opposition had become rather moot - he couldn't fight both women at the same time. It looked like he was going to be consigned to passenger status for a day, riding along in his own body as Cassandra experienced life.

"But..." Gary said, taking control again. "The agreement still holds - we route all decisions through my mind. All day Cassandra can use the body and voice, because I certainly can't walk and talk like a woman, regardless of the body. But I still want it understood I'm part of this."

Debbie nodded. "Of course."

Cassandra, however, went one better. "Gary - I owe you a lot for this. But, look at it this way - you'll have a chance to see life from a whole new perspective. It's going to be anew experience for both of us. So, let's have an equal share in it."

Gary paused. "Excuse me?"

There was a wrenching sensation in his head, similar to when he'd shouted at Cassandra earlier...

...and then she was in his mind with him.

Gary gasped - and it was both of them sending the signal. Because the barrier between them suddenly separated. It was still two separate personalities - but in direct contact. Words suddenly became unnecessary between them - Gary could feel her emotions, and her current thoughts were like a movie playing in his mind. It wasn't everything - just the most coherent, conscious thoughts, like a film in Gary's head. He could tell that she could sense his thoughts and feelings as well. Two separate personas - but sharing the same body, and now the same mind.

"Gary..." Debbie said, startled and worried. "What's going on?"

It wasn't exactly one or the other that answered. Instead, each one's response flashed back and forth between their minds. When neither persona tried to cut it off before being spoken, the basic concept traveled to the language center or their brain, which took the combined concept and translated it into a single coherent sentence, in a voice that was Gary's.

"We're okay, Debbie. We've just... combined, somehow. Gary's not sure how Cassandra did it, but we're fine, and it's really... interesting."

Debbie gasped again. For their part, both the persona's inhabiting the body listened to the words that emerged, interested in how it came out.

For instance, neither actually 'thought' the name 'Debbie', per se. They'd each used their mental picture, how they saw her/thought of her - and the speech center translated it into the name.

The thought flashed back and forth between the two brains, that this would make it both easier and harder for them. Easier, because half of them had experience at being female, and that experience now overlapped into the new them. Likewise, the original discomfort could be felt by both.

For the first time, Gary became truly aware of how his body felt - the way his cock felt between his legs, the way he wasn't terribly graceful in his movements. For the first time, he had something to judge it against, as he absorbed how alien Cassandra felt in this body.

Then, on unspoken agreement, Cassandra pulled back - so far back that she was nearly dormant, leaving Gary practically alone. Even though they'd only been co-joined for a moment, Gary felt a wrench of surprisingly strong loneliness, as if something important was missing.

"Cassandra has... gone to sleep, I guess." Gary said. "So that I'd be able to do the same. It's probably a good idea - we have a pretty big day ahead of us tomorrow."

Debbie nodded, slowly. "Yeah." She paused. "Do you... need me to spend the night?"

Gary sighed. "No - you should probably go home and get a good night's sleep. I have some... thinking to do. This is going to require some getting used to."

* * * * *

The figure under the covers in the huge bed stirred, then blinked up at the ceiling. "Uh oh..." Cassandra said, in her own voice. "Gary?..."

There was no response - Gary was still soundly asleep, leaving her in sole control of a body with a very, very full bladder.

Without Gary to supply the expertise, Cassandra's moves were awkward as she climbed from the bed and padded nervously towards the bathroom, trying to mentally prod Gary awake - in vain.

Finally, she stood in front of the toilet, hesitantly litiing the seat. She paused for a long moment - then sighed. "Damn."

Hesitantly, she extracted Gary's penis from the pajama pants, holding it like one might hold a bag of dog-shit. She aimed it at the toilet and let the urine flow, adjusting her aim to hit the bowl.

She sighed in relief as their bladder emptied. As the last of it came out, she carefully shook the cock, then wiped it off with some toilet paper.

Standing over the toilet, she looked down at the cock in her hand. Cocking her head slightly, she gripped it a bit tighter, feeling it under her hand...

...and it was her hands, she noticed with surprise. Sometime during urination, without really thinking about it, she'd transformed both hands into the slender, feminine hands she remembered from her own body.

Looking down at the cock, which had begun to harden, Cassandra considered what she was holding, and how it felt. To her surprise, it didn't feel disgusting, like she'd been led to believe from her mother.

After a long moment, she wrapped her fingers completely around the cock and began to move her hand slowly in a back and forth rhythm, feeling the new sensations it created.

Flushing violently, Cassandra closed her eyes - and increased the rhythm. Using her other hand to brace herself, she widened her stance and bent over the bowl slightly as she rapidly jacked her hand back and forth...

Cassandra gasped at the new sensations as she came, the spurt of cum shooting into the toilet bowl as she twitched.

After a few seconds, her face burning, she carefully wiped the cock clean - shuddering as the toilet paper rubbed the highly sensitized head of the cock - then stuffed the semi-stiff cock back into the pajamas and flushed the toilet.

Feeling both embarrassed and exhilarated, she padded towards the closet, grabbed Gary's bathrobe, and headed downstairs.

Halfway down the broad, sweeping staircase, they almost went flying down the rest of the stairs as Gary woke up and - startled to find himself walking around - jerked involuntarily.

Cassandra screamed - a high, terrified sound full of anguish and pain - then her mind fled backwards, retreating almost to the point of vanishing.

Recovering his balance, Gary hurried down the rest of the stairs. Worried, he tried to draw Cassandra out as he went into the kitchen and sat down. Finally, after much mental effort, Gary managed to draw Cassandra back to 'consciousness'.

[What is it? What happened?] Gary 'asked' silently.

{I... I remembered...} [What?]

{My death - when we almost fell on the stairs, I remembered...}

Gary felt his heart clench at the pain he sensed in Cassandra. She'd been blissfully unaware of her own death - until now. To actually relive the moment, to feel yourself die...

Gary could feel Cassandra trying to retreat, unable to deal with her own mortality. Gary clamped down on her, mentally, and... pushed.

And they were one person again. There was no need for words - Cassandra was once again experiencing Gary's thoughts directly - his concern for her, his reassurances that things were all right now...

...and most importantly, the hope he was offering her. She had died, Gary's mind was telling her - but now she had a second chance - a chance to do everything she hadn't done the first time, to experience new things - to set a new life into motion.

With the strength of Gary's mind buttressing her own. Cassandra felt the wonder of what was happening, the truly amazing situation they were in - and all the things that they could experience together, the new things they could learn that neither would be able to do alone. It was this promise that stabilized Cassandra, allowed her to reach an even keel.

Through an incredibly rapid exchange of thoughts, Cassandra expressed her gratitude to Gary, who refused to make a big deal of what Cassandra now knew was the greatest thing to ever occur - a second chance at life. Instead, he deflected the gratitude, suggesting that they should get some breakfast before Debbie arrived.

Just as they were finishing a quick breakfast of coffee and a bagel, the doorbell to the house bonged, and they rose and answered the door, letting Debbie in.

"Good morning, you two." Debbie said, cheerfully. She gave them a quick peck on the cheek. "Sleep well?"

"Well - we had a scare this morning, but we're feeling better now." They said. "We are - Gary is actually - looking forward to us spending the day as a woman again - for the first time."

Debbie blinked and frowned slightly. "Um... I don't want to nit-pic... But not only will talking like that get you a few odd stares, it's also damned annoying. I don't suppose you could..."

A rapid flurry of thoughts passed between the two minds. "Not yet." They said, apologetically. "We/Gary still thinks of us as Gary, and We/Cassandra still thinks of ourselves as her - in Gary's body. Our mental images are of two separate people in separate lives."

Debbie sighed. "And there's no way around it?"

"Yes. We will pick a body that we have never been." They said. "And agree to... play a role. That is, give us a different name, and both pretend to be her."

Debbie shrugged. "Well - whatever works. Are.. you ready?"

"We need some help deciding who we will be today. We cannot reach an agreement - Gary and Cassandra's tastes differ. So we have agreed to let you pick for us."

Debbie smiled. "All right...!"

Gary, inside the duo that was them, felt a wave of affection for his long-time friend. The situation was extremely strange for all of them, and he was glad for her support. As for himself, he was still uncomfortable about the experience they were going to go through, but Cassandra's eagerness and his own trust in Debbie was enough.

"Okay - what do we do now?" Debbie asked, rubbing her hands together at the thought of 'playing God'.

They gestured towards the living room. "We don't we go in there and get started?" They suggested, and Debbie followed them in.

Shrugging out of their clothes, they stood, legs slightly spread, in the middle of the room, eyes closed. "Now - tell us what to change" They said, Cassandra eager, Gary hesitant but intrigued.

"Hmm... well, let's get rid of all that body hair." Debbie said.

Gary let Cassandra take care of the actual work, as he couldn't do what needed to be done. Instead, he concentrated on the sensations.

A tingling spread through his body as he felt Cassandra 'pushing' all the body hair out of the pores. It was a strange sensation that swept from head to foot, as all the body hair was squeezed out and tumbled, gently to the floor.

"Good, good." Debbie said. "Now.. well, let's go from the bottom up. Can you make your feet smaller, and thinner?"

Gary felt a strange, slightly annoying sensation like too-tight shoes, as their feet slowly changed. He shifted slightly to maintain a solid stance on the smaller feet.

"Okay... just about..." Debbie said. "Okay - stop shrinking, but make them slightly narrower, and curve the arch a bit more..." The sensation shifted slightly in feeling as they complied until Debbie told them to stop.

"Okay - the legs. Can you make them slightly longer?"

They could - a strange sensation, mildly painful, as bone rapidly knitted to match the stretch.

"Okay - let's see... Can you make the ankle a little smaller..." - they did so - "...and make the top of your calves a little larger while smoothing the bottoms?"

Again, the strange sensation as muscles shifted in ways that they'd never really been designed to do. "Hm..." Debbie mused. "Let's make the kneecaps slightly smaller, and make the thighs more rounded..."

The knee-caps actually hurt - a brief pain that vanished as soon as they were the new size. The thighs were much easier. At Debbie's command, Gary could feel their hips slowly growing wider as their ass filled out, becoming firmer and fuller. "Sorry, Gary - it's time to say goodbye, temporarily, to Mr. Playful."

It was a smooth move - Gary was so amused at Debbie's use of the joking nick-name for his cock that he barely felt it pull inwards, changing and altering. He did, however, feel the strange sensation that came with being able to feel cool air and wet warmth that was internal as opposed to external. He also felt Cassandra's relief at what, for her, was the normal sensation, instead of the awkward flesh hanging off of her, in the way and distracting.

Then they went to work narrowing the waist.

"Hmm... no, not quite, keep going. No, a little more....." Debbie said, and Gary wondered why it was taking so long. Then.. "Perfect. Okay, let's start on the breasts..."

That was a decidedly strange sensation. First, Gary felt his nipples swelling, becoming more sensitive and growing erect in the cool air. Then the mass of flesh behind them began to push out, and Gary felt the slight jiggle, followed by the slowly increasing weight that began to pull at their chest under the force of gravity.

"No, no..." Debbie sighed. "They're too small - can you do it faster?"

The sensation increased in speed, and Gary was amazed at how weighty and solid the burgeoning breasts were - he hadn't realized that tits would be so heavy.

"A little larger still... but can you also firm them up?"

Gary felt a strange, almost contradictory sensation. The added effect of gravity dragging down on the increasing weight, while the muscles underneath and the flesh over top created a pulling sensation as they pulled the breasts higher and rounder.

"Hmm... a little more... okay, right there."

Gary felt the sensation stop - but could still feel the weight of the new breasts, and the way they moved slightly with each breath and heartbeat. Debbie moved on to slimming the shoulders, changing the arms, and altering the neck that supported their face...

"Okay - make the jaw slimmer, and a little more pointed..." A pause, followed by a giggle. "Not that pointed! Okay, right there. Now, make the nose a little smaller... upturn The End." She went on, having them alter the cheek bones, the lips, the ears and eyes, the eyebrows and eye-lashes...

"Okay... If you use Cassandra's voice, I think we're done." Debbie finally said. "You can open your eyes now, I guess." "Not yet." They said, "We need a new name to go with the body we're going to see."

Debbie giggled. "Okay - Your name's now Donna. Donna. McCallum."

Gary had a sudden sense of foreboding, even as they opened their eyes...

...and stared down at a massive pair of tits thrust proudly from her chest.

"Debbie." Brandi said, managing to sigh and giggle simultaneously. "I should have known better."

Debbie fell over, laughing, as Brandi approached a mirror and eyed her new self. She was a wet-dream brought to living, breathing life.

Incredibly long, shapely legs led to the most perfect ass either had even seen, before narrowing to an impossibly slender waist. The ribcage flared out from that wasp-like waist to support an enormous pair of firm, creamy tits. Above those massive tits was a face of pure 'innocent' sensuality. With the new shape of her face, she looked pixie-ish, with a pert, upturned nose, full, sensual lips - and huge, innocent looking blue eyes framed with long lashes and topped by gracefully upswept eyebrows.

Gary didn't know whether to laugh or cry, and could feel Cassandra's startled feeling as well.

She was Debbie - perfected into a teenaged boy's fantasy version. The resemblance to Debbie was unmistakable - the same basic height, coloring, and facial and body features, only made much, much sexier. Like Donna was Debbie's mind bogglingly sexy sister.

Which, she supposed, was how the world would view her.

"I'm sorry." Debbie said, gasping with laughter. "I just couldn't resist. Hey - how often does a girl get to see what she'd look like with a few hundred thousand dollars worth of plastic surgery?" She giggled again.

'Donna' sighed - then began to giggle as both halves of her brain agreed - it was kind of funny. Even more, it wasn't nearly as awkward as another body would be - a 'wet dream' version of Debbie was sufficiently 'unreal' to make this more like a game, like a part played in a movie, then another body would. It was so ludicrously sexy, yet at the same time familiar, to be awkward. It was, quite simply, a joke - and neither Cassandra or Gary could take it seriously enough to be upset.

"All right - I guess I'm your sister, then. Obviously not your twin sister - not with these..." She held her huge new tits slightly, feeling the weight and texture of them in her hands, and the touch of her hands through the breast itself "...so, am I the Big or Little sister in the family?"

Debbie broke out in a fresh spate of laughter. Miming holding a couple of cantaloupes at chest height, she giggled. "Definitely a big sister. Really, really big."

"Ha. Ha." Donna said - A vocalization of the divided nature of her mind. Cassandra found it more amusing than Gary did. Gary was fond of large breasts - but not quite this large. Cassandra, on the other hand, was quite happy to have breasts again - even these outsized one. She missed the somehow comforting weight of them, and these breasts most definitely had a substantial heft to them.

"So - shall we go?" Debbie asked. "There's a whole new world waiting for you to explore."

"Sure sounds like..." Cassandra's half of the mind started to reply - when Gary's had a sudden insight. "...uh oh. What are we going to wear to the boutique?"

* * * * * "Thank God!"

That comment came from both Cassie and Gary. As the door shut in the boutique, Donna began to strip out of the clothes she'd worn to the closed store.

The shoes she wore were the only thing that fit even tolerably - they'd been borrowed from Debbie. Even then, the sandals were a size or so too large.

The jeans were so tight that they couldn't even be buttoned over her womanly hips and firm, full ass. The denim clung like a second skin down her shapely legs before they came to an abrupt stop several inches from her ankles.

Next, Donna peeled off her straining sweatshirt, allowing her GGG-cup tits to pop free and jiggle for a second before regaining their impossible, spherical firmness.

"Oh... that feels good..." Donna said, stretching with the comfort of her nakedness.

"Yes, well - we'll find some clothing that fits you much better." Debbie promised. "Let's take a look around, shall we?" Donna followed Debbie around her boutique as Debbie tapped a finger thoughtfully against her lower lips.

"Ah - here we go." She said, picking up something from a rack. "How about this?" Donna gaped - then blushed. "No - I couldn't... could I?"

The hesitation was Gary's, the eager, sinful desire Cassandra's, as they gazed at the dark blue dress. Made of a special for of stretch 'velour', the dress was a daring yet elegant piece of clothing. It was long - with a long slit up the side. The neckline was a sort of wrap-around deal that let a 'keyhole' to display cleavage - of which Donna had an overabundance - and a daring drop-back that would reveal almost all of Donna's back. The arms would be let bare, and the gown was trimmed with Cubic Zirconia on a slightly darker silk trim.

Even Gary's mind agreed that they'd look stunning in it, but...

"I don't think so." Donna said, half-regretfully. "It's a little too... formal."

Debbie looked at the garment with a wrinkled brow. "You're right, of course - but I still think you'd look fabulous in it." With a sigh, she placed it back on the rack. "Okay - follow me and we'll find something a little more casual."

Donna followed her around the store a bit more - then Debbie gasped. "Oh - this is perfect!" She held the garment up for inspection.

"no - no way." Donna protested. She stared at the one-piece silver jumpsuit made of spandex. It would fit like a second skin, and the shiny surface of the garment would highlight every single curve of her new body. The zipper only came up three quarters of the way up the chest, where two wide lapels started, forming into a high collar around the straps. The back was open almost all the way down to the buttocks.

"Well - there's not too much in my store that will fit a figure like yours - and I think this would look great on you. Of course, no underwear under it."

"No."

* * * * *

Half an hour later, Donna stepped from the dressing room.

The silver spandex clung to every curve and contour of her body, the low neckline displaying a mouth-watering amount of cleavage. Her slender arms and smooth bare were let bare, and her firm, full ass was emphasized by the silver and clear stiletto-heels platforms she wore. Her hair was done up in an elegant style, and her face was carefully made up. A black leather purse was hung over one slender, smooth shoulder, and large quartz-and-silver earrings dangled from her shell-like ears.

"I still can't believe you talked me into this." Donna said in her warm, feminine voice as she stared at the sexy reflection in the mirror. "Come on - you look great." Debbie assured her. "Let's go, shall we?"

Donna sighed - but had to admit, at least the 'female appreciating' part of her - Gary - that she looked amazing. "Okay."

The two 'sisters' headed out for a day. Debbie had come up with the itinerary for the day - some time at the local mall, then lunch, a matinee movie, then some strolling downtown before dinner. After dinner - a stroll down to the local college hangout for some drinks and dancing. Donna wasn't so sure about all of this - but Debbie had extracted her agreement, mostly by sheer persistence.

As they reached the mall, Donna was all too aware of the looks she was getting - and although she was partly uncomfortable, she was also partly flattered by the attention she was getting. Both Gary and Cassandra were amazed at the way men went out of their way to be helpful to the two women, holding doors for them and the like. There were some definite advantages to being a stunningly sexy woman in today's society.

As well as some disadvantages - such as crude comments, and having to politely turn down the occasional attempt at a date. Also, Donna was quickly discovering that high-heels might look great on a woman - but they weren't exactly designed for long treks.

By the time the evening rolled around and they were having a couple of drinks with the college crowd, Donna had begun to relax and enjoy the experience. She laughed frequently, smiling almost constantly. It was amazing, when she thought about it - a few hours in a new body, and you started to forget it wasn't the one you were born into. You just sort of slipped into the persona that fit, so as not to appear out of place. There were two types of people in the world. One type, if they were a 'middle class' individual at a high-society party, would be awkward, out of place, and uncomfortable. The other type, in the same situation, would quickly pick up the mannerism, speech patterns and body language to 'fit in' with the people they were with - and both Gary and Cassandra were of the second type.

By this time in the evening, an onlooker would never believe that the mind inside the gorgeous body was half man, half naïve woman. She was acting the part of a beautiful, sophisticated woman - if somewhat cool to the advances to men. Most men who got the brush-off from her assumed that she was a lesbian - or simply didn't think that they were good enough for her.

More than one college boy, seeing the gorgeous blonde, found themselves half-believing the second option - how could they possibly snare such a stunningly sexy woman?

So it was actually with mild reluctance that Donna finally headed back to her place with Debbie, still amazed at how easy - how fun - being female in public had been. Of course, her separate personas had helped - Cassandra had been comfortable being female, and Gary had known today's society, and how they should act and what the references were. It had worked out pretty well, each helping the other through the rough spots.

Arriving at her new home, Donna led Debbie inside, and she slumped into the chairs in front of the fireplace again. "So - what did you think of our little experiment?" Debbie asked, smiling.

Donna answered honestly. "We both enjoyed it. We were each sort of hesitant, for different reasons - but we had fun in The End. We even came to enjoy this outfit - having guys falling all over themselves to buy you drinks and fulfill you slightest whim does have it's advantages. But I'm glad to get these damned shoes off."

"Yeah - heels are a bitch. If I had of been smart, I would have had to... uh... 'grow' calluses in the right places on your feet. Or, even better - we could have had your feet alter to fit the shoes perfectly."

Donna smacked her smooth forehead with the palm of one slender hand. "Why didn't I think of that?" She asked, rhetorically. She answered her own question. "Because neither one of use has had any experience with high-heeled shoes before, that's why."

Debbie shrugged. "Besides - you actually got experience that real women get - modifying your body every time there's a tiny thing wrong isn't something most women can do, you know." She cocked her head. "So - what do you want to do now?"

Donna blinked and her mouth opened - but no words came out as some conflicting thoughts passed through her brain. "Uh..." She finally said, blushing and hesitantly. "Gary want's his cock back - and, um.. was, uh, thinking what he might like to do with it..." She paused, then blushed deeper and slapped her hand over her mouth in embarrassment. "oh, God - I'm sorry. He was just... fantasizing. It wasn't actually anything he was going to attempt..."

Debbie colored slightly, but smiled. "It's okay - I know he finds me attractive - I find him attractive too. We both fantasize about each other a lot, probably. It had occasionally led to... more than fantasies. " She changed the subject. "What about Cassandra?"

"She doesn't want to go back to that.. well, she thinks of it as 'clumsy', male body." Donna said.

Debbie's coloring deepened as she looked sort of wistful. "Uh.. to be completely honest? I, um, am kind of sorry to hear that..."

Donna gasped, then half-smiled as she realized that Debbie had planned on tonight being one of hers and Gary's occasion 'flings' - despite the mild awkwardness that always resulted, it was always the best sex either had.

Then something unexpected happened. Cassandra's mind was locked on keeping the female body, and Gary couldn't directly override that. But Gary wasn't thinking about the whole body right now - without even consciously deciding too, his mind had focused on one particular part of 'his' anatomy... and all three people were astonished as the skin-tight crotch of the silver suit twitched - then began to bulge outwards from an internal pressure. Frantically, as the already-taut fabric was rapidly becoming painful, Donna stood and shucked off the suit - and stared in amazement and the thick cock that was rapidly growing between her smooth, sexy legs. Within second, a remarkably large, thick cock jutted from her crotch, replacing her cunt. The incredibly gorgeous she-male stood, her legs slightly spread, looking down at the male equipment that looked like it belonged right were it was, between her sexy, feminine thighs.

"Oh, my...." Debbie whispered huskily, staring at the large, and rapidly hardening cock. She licked her lips slowly. "My, oh my."

Inside Donna, a strange... 'debate' was going on. Gary's male libido was raging, and right now it didn't care that the rest of 'his' body was most definitely feminine - in fact, the sensation from her engorged nipples was only adding fuel to the fire.

And Cassandra's mind wasn't completely dead-set against what Gary wanted, either. Part of her found the idea... intriguing.

However, they never got a chance to work out the debate in their split mind- because Debbie took the decision from her.

"Um... I think I'll leave the two of you to work this out." She said, standing up and grabbing her coat. "No offense, but... this is getting just a little weird. "

"Yeah." Donna agreed, awkwardly, looking down at the equipment between her legs. "Uh - we'll give you a call tomorrow."

They saw Debbie to the door, then went into the living room and collapsed on the couch, the long, thick cock thrust from their crotch like a pole.

Inside, they were having a mental discussion as what to do. Finally, Gary decided to let Cassandra have the body - which she'd fully feminize - for the night, while he went to sleep. Shortly thereafter, he drifted off, and without his libido, the penis pulled back into the once-more fully female body.

Still wide awake, and interested in experiencing more of today's world, Cassandra quickly learned the necessary skill of operating the TV remote. Flipping through the channels, she came to an abrupt halt as she saw something that shocked her.

For the next eight hours, she watched - amazed, intrigued, and more than a little aroused, as the Playboy Channel presented its own, unique programming.

* * * * *

Of course, it wasn't a spoken word - it was a mental equivalent. Just as Gary's "NO" wasn't spoken. They were eating breakfast, and Cassandra was trying to talk Gary into something outrageous.

Having sex with a man.

When he'd awoken, their minds had once more combined, and Gary had learned about all the things she'd seen on the TV last night - and how much fun the women seemed to be having doing it. There's been all sorts of things that had at first shocked the woman - then intrigued her - then become imbedded in her mind. She wanted to try them all, to experiment.

Worst of all, from Gary's point of view, was the fact that there was complete communication between them - she could see that his answer wasn't absolute. Part of him was curious...

"Come on - we both know you're wondering what it would be like. You're only nervous because it's 'homosexual' - but it isn't." Gary was indignant. "Yes, it is - no matter what you do to change my body, I'm still a man in my mind - and that's what counts. No."

Cassandra sent a wave of 'pressure' through their shared mind. "Look - you wanted my to go male last night to have sex with Debbie - and I'm female. If we're both going to share this body, we're either going to have to reach some sort of compromise - or live like nuns. Or Monks, whichever the case may be. I've been celibate my whole life, and I want to see what sex is like. And you know what sex is like - and won't go back to celibacy. So - what do we do?"

Gary was in a quandary - because she was right. They were sharing one body between two genders. It wouldn't be fair of him to demand they only had sex with women.

But to have sex with a man...!

"I... just don't know if I can do it. It's too - creepy. What if you did it all - I'd pull back as far as possible?"

"You'd still experience it - and we both know that I'm no good in public without you. I would have to be a completely joint venture." 'Jeez - so soon in my body, and you're already half-nympho. What's up with you?' Gary asked, stalling.

She knew that, of course. "Hey - from my point of view, I haven't had sex, ever, and you're mind keeps saying it's fantastic - yet you don't want me to experience it. What's with that?" It was 'said' with good humor, though, already knowing that Gary, a basically fair guy, would give in.

He did.

"All right. But I've got an idea. You know how having that body..." they were currently male "...was so unreal as to not make me - us - to uncomfortable?"

"Yeah - it was a game to you, not really real life. Me too, sort of - but I thought of it more like a role in a movie." "Yeah, well..." Gary went on with his idea - with, to his surprise, growing enthusiasm.

* * * * *

They stood in front of the full length mirror, in the 'Donna' form they'd worn the day before and dressed in the same clothing.

"I still can't believe we're going to do this." She said, voicing the amazement of both sides of her divided psyche - but that didn't stop her from staring in the mirror... and concentrating.

It started at her feet. She was already standing in the platform shoes - but they suddenly became much more comfortable as her feet altered, not only to fit the shoe perfectly, but to have a higher, stronger arch, so that wearing the shoes, for her, would be like walking barefoot would for anyone else.

Next, her legs began to change, becoming even longer and sexier. Above that her ass - already spectacular - became absolutely unbelievable below a waist that was shrinking dramatically, leaving some slack in the fabric covering it.

Slack that was rapidly removed - and then some - by her breasts rapidly expanding, shooting through the alphabet to come to a stop somewhere in the range of a MMM-cup.

Then her face altered. Within seconds, it was stunningly beautiful - and equally vacuous. Her amazingly sexy lips were fixed in a semi-permanent, particularly brainless smile, and her huge, sparkling blue eyes were absolutely devoid of thought.

Candi - the name they'd settled on, looked in the mirror, and saw the pure distillation of every Buxom Blonde Bimbo to ever walk the earth. Stunningly sexy, massive-breasted and obviously brainless.

Exactly the look they were going for.

"Okay..." She said in a high-pitched, giggly voice. "I guess I'm as ready as I'll ever be."

With that, Candi headed downstairs, pausing just long enough to pick up her purse before leaving. That, in itself, was a victory of sorts - part of her wanted to pause a lot longer before stepping out the door in this ultra-sexy form.

She was halfway to her car when she realized she couldn't drive anywhere - she didn't have a valid license. Not for Candi, at least - and she doubted whether a cop would buy the Gary ID.

Sighing, she looked down the driveway - and shrugged. Her altered feet meant that walking in heels wouldn't be uncomfortable. She headed down the driveway with a steady stride - then stopped, and grimaced slightly. She was forgetting exactly how she looked, which meant she should walk like... this.

She set out again - with her hips swaying seductively, her massive tits bobbing with every single step. That sensation alone was enough to make her wonder if she could go through with this - everything about her was so ultra-feminine that it was a constant reminder. But she'd decided to do it, and do it she would.

She stepped through the gate at The End of the drive and locked it behind her, then set off down the street with that almost ridiculously sexy jiggle...

...and a cab cut across two lanes of traffic in an illegal U-turn to come to a screeching halt beside her.

"Hey, miss - need a lift?" The male cabby asked, eyeing the enormous breasts straining the front of the silver jumpsuit.

It took Candi a second to get over her surprise. She bent down to the window to talk to the man, not really aware of the awesome view of cleavage that the movement provided him.

"Oh - I don't think I can afford a cab." She said, her high-pitched, bimboish voice sounding sweet and giggly.

"Hey - I'm off duty. Consider it a gift." The man said, practically drooling. He popped open the front, passenger's side door. "Here, hop in."

"okay." Candi giggled - neither Cassandra or Gary had really thought about some of the - rather obvious - advantages to being outrageously sexy. They were getting a crash course, though.

And it nearly was a crash course. As the cabby gave her a lift to the mall, he had a hard time keeping his eyes on the road - he kept sliding over to his huge-breasted passenger.

"Gee - thanks for the lift, mister." Candi cooed, brainlessly - she was enjoying her situation a bit more, and was beginning to get into the role. So much so, that she leaned over, pressing her huge tits against his arm. She was pleased to find that the sensation was pleasant enough to override the strange emotional turmoil created. "You're very, very kind."

Then she gave him a quick peck on the cheek, pressing her amazingly sexy lips against his cheek before she could have second thoughts.

Still finding it hard to believe she'd done it, Candi hopped out of the cab. She waved at the man as he began to drive away - making sure to make the motion exaggerated, causing her huge tits to move with the action.

The poor cabby nearly rammed a parked car.

Giggling, Candi turned and headed for the doors to the mall...

...and four separate guys rushed to get the door for her, fighting over the right to hold the door for the huge-breasted blonde.

"Gee, guys - thanks." Candi giggled - this day might not be so bad after all. Gary, himself, wasn't a fan of woman with super-outsized tits like these - but there was enough men in the world who were to guarantee that at least some of the men around her would be incredibly aroused and attracted to her - and willing to do something to draw her attention to them.

Swaying and bouncing into the mall, she didn't have any real plan - she was just going to stroll around for awhile getting comfortable in being in public as this buxom bimbo. She couldn't help noticing all the attention she was attracting - and she found herself sort of encouraged by it. Having the guys stare at her outrageous figure, practically drooling, helped reassure her that nobody could know the truth about the minds that drove the body - they accepted what they saw at face value - a huge breasted blonde.

A thought flashed back and forth in Candi's mind as she noticed a young man approaching her. He wasn't terribly handsome, and he was kind of awkward - she wasn't quite ready for the sexual stage yet, not having worked up the nerve, but even if she had been, it wouldn't be with this guy.

"Hi..." The young man said as he reached her. "You look a little lost. Anything I can help you with?" Candi tried to think of a polite way to brush him off...

That's when it hit - an incredible sensation of liberation and power. Like she'd been freed from the restraints of society. Which she had.

She was a huge-breasted blonde bimbo - and that type of person was, in the mind of men, and most women, separate from the rest of society. They weren't expected to fit within the guidelines that others in society were - in fact, they were expected to fall outside of those rules of society. They were supposed to say silly, or stupid things - anything at all that crossed their minds.

They were completely ditzy, and could be as stupid and strange as they wanted - and not only was it accepted, it was actually expected!

As the thought flashed through Candi's mind, she had to do a test, find out if this stunning revelation was true, or just a figment of her imagination.

"No thanks." She said, giggling. "You're not cute enough to help me with what I need." And she glanced openly down at his crotch.

The young man's smile faltered - but not in annoyance, just because his shot had failed. Atier all - he was aware of the fact that he wasn't exactly the 'studliest' person in the mall - he'd just thought he'd give it a try, because you never knew with women like these. At least he was sure she wouldn't actually become upset at his come on - bimbos like this never did. He turned to the small audience of men that had gathered to watch his come-on. "Hey - you can't blame a guy for trying."

And he walked away, as some of the men standing around suggested, loudly, that they were the right type of guy to 'help' her.

Stunned, Candi kept her vacuous, cheerful expression in place as she jiggled and swayed on her way. She had been right - as a 'brainless' blonde bimbo, she could get away with almost anything.

The feeling of power that thrummed through her was almost narcotic - because she looked like a brainless blonde, she had the freedom that society gave such people, although they were unwritten, unspoken rules. But she wasn't brainless - behind that facade was two sharp minds that could use this new-found power to actually accomplish things she wanted, instead of 'going with the flow' like a true bimbo would. It was incredible - and it was actually turning her on. She could do almost anything, without fear of reprisal or consequence.

She had to test it one more time before she'd believe it, though. One absolute, fool-proof test to settle the last of her doubts.

She jiggled up to one of the kiosk vendors in the center of the mall's hall, and leaned over the display case - providing a mouth-watering view for the man running the small shop.

"Oh - isn't that a darling necklace!" She said, 'unconsciously' bounding with excitement - and one huge, swaying tits 'accidentally' hit the display of sunglasses on top, knocking it over and onto the floor, shattering several of the glasses and damaging the display.

"Oh! Oh my god, I'm, like, so sorry!" Candi said, forcing her huge, blue eyes even wider - and acted like she was about to burst into tear. If it had been anyone else, there would have been recriminations, demands for payment for the merchandise - 'You break it, you buy it'.

But the vendor, atier a quick glance down at the shattered display, took one of Candi's dainty hands and patted it - while staring at her huge tits. "There, there, miss - don't cry. Accidents happen." He soothed her.

"Really? I'm sorry - I didn't mean..." Candi said.

"No, no - it's all right. In fact, " The man said, "We actually budget for..." he looked in her huge, apparently vacant eyes. "Never mind - it's just okay, all right?"

Another unexpected bonus - since she was 'obviously' so dumb, people wouldn't bother 'boring' her with intelligent conversation or lengthy explanations.

The test was a complete success.

And then some.

Because, as Candi watched in amazement, the vendor opened the display case and removed the pendant necklace she'd been 'oohing' over. "You're right about the pendant, though - I think it would look darling on you." He walked over to the opening in the side. "Here - why don't we see how it looks on you?"

Still stunned, Candi walked over - and the man had the extreme pleasure of pressing his chest against her huge tits as she put the necklace on her. Candi enjoyed it to - the pressure against her sensitive endowments felt fantastic.

The man 'fumbled' for several minutes, letting his chest press against her tits before he finally did up the clasp and stepped back. "There - I knew it." He said - and reached out to adjust the pendant in her massive cleavage, letting his hand brush the tops of her huge tits as he settled it into place. "It was made for you."

"Oh - it does look so nice." Candi 'gushed'. "But I can't afford something..."

The man held up a hand, stopping her. "Nonsense - It looks perfect like that. It was meant for you - so just consider it a gift." "Oh - thank you!" Candi gushed, mind whirling. She'd broken at least fifty dollars worth of merchandise - and he gives her a gift?

It deserved something, some quid-pro-quo from her. A real bimbo might just walk away at this point, but Cassie and Gary were basically honest, and couldn't accept something for nothing - especially since she already felt bad about breaking the glasses.

So she hugged the surprised man, pulling her incredible body firmly against his. "Oh, thank you - you're so nice." She said - enjoying the physical sensations immensely, she discovered. And from the warm bulge against her silky thigh, the man was enjoying it too.

With one last bout of thanks, Candi turned and stalked away atop her heels, amazed. A little jiggle here, a view of cleavage there, and a couple of mutually-enjoyable physical contacts - and men would fall over themselves to accommodate her in any way she wanted.

She was a goddess.

The heady feeling of power was incredible - it flooded through her, caught her up in it. Although the two minds had shared the body, and had reached a level of communion, there had always been a thin barrier - not a physical, or even truly 'mental' one - it was the simple fact that they though different thought. Now, however, the brain was one, united in thought and purpose and goal. Candi knew what she wanted - and that she had the power to get it, or almost anything else she could desire, within the boundaries of her own mental morality. Because she was outside of society's normal rules, she was unbound, manumitted from the chains of reasonable behavior, intelligent responses, consequences and repercussions.

She was Bimbo.

She jiggled, bounced and swayed through the halls of the mall. She stopped worrying completely about how she was acting - the ever-present consciousness of the need to fit in that both Gary and Cassandra had lived with, unspoken and unnoticed by crushing like a weight, was gone. So she did something stupid - no problem, she was a bimbo. So she said something silly, or acted strange - hell, even if she started talking to herself, nobody would take her to task. They'd smile kindly, and tell others how much of a bimbo she was - such was they way that bimbos acted. Noting substantial was required of them, just that they looked sexy, and didn't become too boring. And Candi was sexier and more exciting than even the average California Bimbo.

She was a Bimbo Goddess

"Hey, baby - lookin' fine." A voice called from her left - and Candi smiled and waved at the man. She continued on, enjoying the supple, sexy glide of her body, the pleasant sensation as her tits bounced with each step, the way her ass moved under it's spandex covering - life was great.

Now it was time to have some fun.

She looked around for a likely candidate - and found him. A tall, broad-shouldered man with a larger than average bulge at the crotch of his pants.

Just the type of man that a bimbo like her would fuck. But how to approach him...?

Silly her - what was she thinking? If she were an average woman, she might have to find some subtle way to do this - but she didn't have to be subtle, not with this body.

Huge tits out thrust, Candi jiggled and swayed up to the man, who was practically drooling at her. "Hi!" She said, brightly. "I was wondering if you could help me?"

"Uh.. sure, I guess. What can I do for you?" The man replied. "I need a liti home. Can you give me one?"

The man needed little prompting - as Candi's next words were: "I'd make it worth your while." As she licked her lips sensuously. The bulge in his pants got even larger as his cock began to stiffen, and his walk became awkward as he led her to his car.

As Don - that was the man's name - headed for her place, Candi was far from subtle - she slipped one slender hand into his crotch and began massaging his bulging cock, making appropriate comments about its size. She could hardly wait to get him back to her place, and see just how good sex could be as a woman - her nipples were as hard as rocks, and she was so horny she felt like she was going to burst.

When they reached 'Candi's' house, she all but dragged him inside, barely letting him shut off the car. God, she was so horny! And excited, in other ways too - she was going to have sex. She couldn't believe that she had felt worried and somewhat disgusted by this before - this was great. She could hardly wait.

There was no long, complicated foreplay - her massaging of his crotch in the car, and now, as she walked backwards up the stairs, dragging him along, she'd unzipped her suit, and he was fondling her tits as they moved. His big, strong hands on her tits felt fantastic - she couldn't wait to see how much better it could feel when the cock straining his pants penetrated her. She bet it would feel fantastic.

The thought was getting her much too excited - she couldn't wait. Not even the distance it would take to get to her room. Hastily, she began ripping clothes off of Don, surprising him.

"I need you - take me, take me now!" She screamed, releasing his huge, throbbing cock into the air. "Make me a woman, Don - fuck me!"

She yanked off her clothes, and Don refused to argue with her. He slid one hand up a smooth, sexy leg, litiing it as he pressed her against the wall...

...and then, with one quick thrust, he penetrated her.

She screamed in pleasure, wrapping her legs around him as he cradled her firm, full ass in his hands, holding her. He began to pump his huge cock in an out of her sopping wet cunt, and she screamed again in ecstasy, urging him to fuck her harder, faster.

He complied.

The sensations ran through her body, intense and incredible as she built towards her first female orgasm. The sensations rolled over one another, gaining in intensity...

..and then she came.

She screamed a long, wordless scream as the pleasure took her. Don continued to pound away, enhancing the sensation, until he, too, came, filling her cunt with his hot seed.

Slowly, Candi lowered her legs, supporting herself as she kissed him, still impaled on his hard cock.

"Wow - that was fantastic. If I were to give you a blowjob, how long until you could fuck me again?" She asked. Don gaped at her - then began to smile. "Well - do we get to do it in a bed this time?"

Candi sighed. "Gee - I guess so."

Then, smiling, she slowly sank to her knees, and enveloped his cock in her oh-so-willing mouth...

* * * * *

In her room in the back of the store, Debbie swallowed another Tylenol and rubbed at her temples, trying to relieve her headache - the strain of the mental work was getting to her.

Well, atier Don leti, she could ease off - have 'Cassandra' go to sleep. She was pretty sure that the instilled mental controls she'd put in Gary would hold - he'd continue to 'feel' Cassandra, thinking she was still a separate individual, and not just a series of implanted commands imbedded in his brain.

Debbie sighed with satisfaction - it was literally a headache, but it was worth it. A week, tops, and she'd have created enough instilled commands, using her own feminine mind's experience, to make Gary want to stay a woman permanently.

Debbie still didn't know why she hadn't thought of this sooner. Part of it, of course, was to hide the fact that she'd been born with incredibly powerful Telekinetic and Telepathic abilities. But this had taken so long to occur to her. She'd always wanted to be a man - and, in fact, could 'shape shiti' into one any time she wanted. But it wasn't satisfactory - she didn't want to 'play' at being a guy now and then, she wanted a male life, one that wouldn't raise uncomfortable, unanswerable questions and problems.

She knew Gary's life inside and out. He knew hers - aside, of course, from her powers - just as well. Once she got him 'hooked' on being a woman, and 'Cassandra' gradually eased him away from the huge-breasted bimbo routine, made him comfortable being a 'normal' woman...

...well, that's when she'd have 'Cassandra' suggest that Gary could look exactly like Debbie - then Cassandra could be 'exorcised', and 'posses' Debbie, and make her look like Gary. Once complete, Gary wouldn't question it - he'd have a 'believable' explanation as to how they switched bodies, and never have to know Debbie's secret.

Since she could telepathically control him anytime she wanted, Debbie thought that the knew Debbie would make a wonderful wife....

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: After an auto accident, an executive assistant convinces her former boss into believing that SRS is reconstructive surgery; little does he know that she has plans for him to be the wife of his old buddy.

SRS

By Gunslinger

Elizabeth, (never just 'Liz'), Forraker was, well... cold. Oh, attractive enough, I suppose, if you like that Nordic Ice Maiden look, but with all the emotional capacity of a rock, as far as I could tell.

Which, in fact, was exactly why I had lured her away from her job administrating the nearby private hospital in order to come work for me. Since some of my major sources of income came from endeavors that some people might find... questionable, I wanted somebody I wanted to make damned sure wouldn't let emotions get in the way of doing her job.

Well, there is absolutely no doubt that Elizabeth is most efficient, not to mention closed-mouthed and no-nonsense. Nevertheless, the fact that I considered all of these to be the golden-haired woman's good points didn't lessen the fact that waking up and finding her cool, expressionless face looming over me in the hospital bed was... somewhat less than comforting.

Since, even through the haze of drugs that left me feeling thick-witted and doopey, I had no problem recognizing the fact that I was in an expensive, private hospital room, I decided to forego the 'traditional' first question of somebody in my position, and skip right to the second:

"What happened...?"

At least, that's what I tried to say. What emerged, in little more than a whisper, was: "Wa ha'ffuh?"

Either Elizabeth understood me, or she simply guessed, based on our six-month business relationship, what I'd ask.

"You're at the Fineman Clinic. I had to be transferred here from the public hospital the initially took you to after the accident." She explained - coolly, of course.

My mind, fogged by the drugs, took some time to dwell on the thought she'd brought me to the clinic she used to administrate, dwelling on something completely inconsequential before the real import of her statement managed to make it through the drug-induced haze and register on my brain.

"Ah-ha'en?"

"Yes - the car accident." She clarified, one fine golden eyebrow rising. "You don't remember running off the road?"

I made a grunting sound.

"You're in for SRS." She further explained.

It took a second for me to realize that 'Esseress' was, in fact, the acronym 'SRS' - and I felt so proud of having puzzled that out that it took a minute for me to further realize that the acronym didn't mean a damned thing more to me than the nonsense 'word' I'd first thought I'd heard. Somehow, I managed to convey this confusion to Elizabeth, despite being limited to whispering grunts and moans.

"Oh, SRS?" She asked, eyebrow raised. "That's 'Systematic Restraint Syndrome'. You're alive because of your car's restraint systems - but the lap-belt broke your pelvis, the shoulder belt cracked your lowest ribs, and the airbag broke your nose and jaw."

I absorbed this information, and let it filter through my slowly chugging brain, letting the pieces of the puzzle fall slowly into place.

My body was obviously 'strapped down', something that had registered, but not bothered me, when I'd first regained consciousness. Atier all, under the obviously heavy dose of drugs I was under, I had absolutely no desire to go anywhere, feeling as if I were floating in a cloud that leti me only tenuously connected to reality.

I was, to use the phrase, 'feeling no pain' - though I was sure it would be there, lurking on the edges of the drugs when the dosage started to wear off. However, in the private clinic she'd had the foresight to bring me to, my wealth would insure I got the best possible care - and, better yet, the fact that it was Elizabeth's old clinic meant she had some 'pull' here.

Now, if only I could figure out how to communicate clearly with my jaw obviously wired shut...

I turned my attention back to Elizabeth - and was, instead, surprised to find a perky, busty brunette nurse looking over my charts. During the time it had taken me to absorb and assimilate Elizabeth's information, quite some time had passed - though how long, I had no way of knowing, since my room apparently didn't have a window, and with my jaw wired shut 'dinner' came via the many tubes that seemed to be stuck into my arm.

The nurse was slender, cute, and filled out her starched white uniform quite nicely. When she noticed I was awake, she gave me an utterly irrepressible grin.

"Ah, hello there Mr. Carstairs!" She said, brightly - then pouted prettily. "Hmm, that's sort of formal, isn't it? Especially since you and I are going to be spending quite a bit of time together. I'm Carol Kittiwake - but you can call me Carol, okay Nicky?"

I cordially detested that diminutive form of 'Nicholas', but my attempt to explain that only brought cute concern to Carol's face.

"Oh - don't try to actually talk, Nicky dear." She said, coming to stand right beside my bed, leaning over - which presented quite a nice view of cleavage to my appreciative eyes. "Just whisper, sweetie."

I tried it - and, though my words were incredibly soft and breathy, with the faintest hint of a lisp, words they undeniably were.

"There you go, Nicky!" She said, awarding me with a cute smile - and then immediately launched into a bright, perky spiel about how I was in the best hands money could buy. The Fineman clinic boasted the best SRS surgeons and facilities in the country, and I'd be getting only the finest of care...

...and I was so overwhelmed by her perky, energetic spiel, especially in my befuddled state, that she'd finished her minor tasks and vanished out of the room before I could ever get around to pointing out that I would have much rather preferred 'Nick' to 'Nicky'.

Not that it seemed it would have mattered, anyway. Even in my drugged state, I soon learned Carol was one of those irrepressibly chipper people. She even referred to Elizabeth as 'Lizzy'... and, though she rolled her eyes about it, Elizabeth actually took that from Carol!

Besides - there was no reason to alienate my near constant companion, right? If the nurse who was there almost every time I was conscious wanted to call me 'Nicky', what was it to me?

Indeed, Carol was my new 'best friend' - at least as far as she was concerned. Though I could now make myself understood in that breathy voice I was stuck with for the moment, I barely managed to get a word in edgewise. When she wasn't busy going on about how fine the care I was getting was, or how wonderful the SRS team of the clinic was, she was nattering on about guys, fashion, hairstyle, or other similar feminine prattle.

At first, I was downright shocked by how explicit some of her comments were. When she discussed her sex life, it was in incredibly frank, unselfconscious, graphic detail - but I guess that may be because she was a nurse, and anything about the human body was her bailiwick, not something mysterious or 'dirty'. Still, it took me aback - after all, some of my major income came from pornographic videos, and some of my stars weren't as graphic as Carol could be!

Next to Carol, the person I saw most often was Elizabeth. Not that these were social calls, of course

- she was keeping me up-to-date on my financial and business details.

Constantly doped to the gills, I could vaguely appreciate her cool, efficient work ethic, without being in any condition to actually make any decisions on the information she brought me. Even that appreciation was sometimes dulled by a sense of shame or embarrassment - because, good old earthy Carol saw no reason to wait and leave her ministrations of me until after 'Lizzy' had left.

A good example of this was the first time Carol came in to put on my surgical stockings to help prevent blood clots in the legs. Elizabeth was droning on about some liability forms I'd have to sign when Carol breezed in, threw back the sheet up above my waist, and began putting these surgical stockings on my legs!

Now, I'd mentioned that Elizabeth was a cold fish - and I was never more glad of it than right then, because she didn't even bat an eyelid at my nudity. Even as Carol prattled on about how other hospitals might use cheap rubber surgical stockings, the Clinic used only the finest, natural silk ones, Elizabeth went right on discussing the liability forms with me. Still, I was so rattled by it all, I finally demanded in my breathy whisper that she just let me sign the damned things, and instructed her, in the future, that if there was something she really needed me to sign, I'd do so, without having to have it explained to me in full detail. I'd hired her to take care of my business, and that was that.

Under the regimen of drugs they kept me on, time became a nebulous thing for me. I wasn't quite sure how long I was 'fully restrained' on the bed, unable to move so much as an inch under my own, diminished power - but that isn't to indicate I was exactly 'bored', mind you. No, I had plenty of entertainment...

I'd always made it a point to have the final say on the productions my adult film company put out - and, since I hadn't mentioned otherwise, Elizabeth simply assumed I'd continue doing so, even in the hospital. A flat-screen plasma TV was hooked up in easy line-of-sight of my bed, and I had my own little 'porn theater'.

Which occasioned some... interesting discussions with Carol, let me tell you!

Anyway, it was during this period when I was completely 'locked down' that Rob first came to pay me a visit.

It took me by surprise, actually. Rob and I had been roommates all through collage, sharing a cheap apartment off campus. This was back before I 'hit it big', and to tell you the truth, I'd been envious of Rob. He was one of those guys luck or mother nature had gited with a near perfect body - tall, broad-shouldered and dark haired, a regular Adonis. Since I've always been on the somewhat short and slender side, I could have hated him for that quirk of fate - if not for the fact that it's nearly impossible for anybody to hate Rob at all. He was just so easy-going and friendly... which probably explained why women practically fell over each other trying to throw themselves at this handsome, unfailingly 'nice' guy.

Still, once I'd leti collage and begun stacking up the cash, I'd hardly ever looked back, and my 'friendship' with Rob had become the Christmas-and-Birthday-Card sort.

Then again, as much as I hate to admit it, that still probably qualified him as my 'best friend'. Oh, since I'd come into money, I'd made a lot of acquaintances - but I can't think of one I'd really call a 'friend'. So, I guess I shouldn't be surprised by just how happy I was to see Rob, since he was just about the only 'social' visitor I had.

He seemed somewhat uncomfortable when he came in the room, but I wasn't surprised. Atier all, I was strapped down, with bandages on my face making me look like The Invisible Man, and skinny enough from just intravenous nutrients that I could have turned sideways and disappeared. Oh - and not to mention, my now-pale, now-scrawny body was also as smooth as a slug, thanks to the fact I was being kept completely hairless for the series of surgeries I'd be having as soon as I was strong enough.

We chatted about this-and-that for a bit - and then he surprised me by mentioning his surprise at hearing I was in for

SRS.

I thought about the great many times he and I had 'hit the clubs', looking for babes, during our collage days.

"I guess you're forgetting all the times you ended up hooking up with some hot babe, while I just watched, enviously, drinking heavily and wishing our places were reversed." I whispered wryly. "I'm surprised I didn't end up in here for SRS sooner."

Rob looked first startled - then thoughtful.

"I... guess I just really didn't pay attention, at the time." He said, slowly. "Still, now that I think about it - how you didn't seem to quite fit in, how you were always talking about sex, but never seemed to end up with a girl... I guess I should have seen it coming."

Well, maybe it was a bit tactless for him to point out all the good reasons I'd had for getting drunk at the time - but, hey, now I was fairly rich, and, like I said, you just couldn't really get made at Rob.

He leti, looking oddly thoughtful, not long atier that - and by the next time he dropped by for a visit, I was finally able to sit up and talk to him.

Because of my weakened muscles and a minor back injury, I had to wear a back-brace before I could start moving around. It was a leather-and-canvas rig that started just above my bandaged hips and went up to my ribcage - which, I guess I should mention, was somewhat diminished, since they'd had to remove the lowest pair of ribs atier my accident. The damned thing had to be laced up uncomfortably tight to provide the support I needed - but being able to move again was such a relief that I didn't mind it. In fact, in a relatively short time, I got used to having to be laced into it every day, and didn't give it any more thought than the surgical stockings that were also part of my daily routine.

I was still to weak to get out of bed or move around much on my own, but at least I was able to sit up again, which started making me feel halfway human once more.

It was some time between my first chance to sit up and Rob's next visit that Mandy came to call. Mandy - a true 'Daddy's girl' and an obvious gold-digger - was sort of my, uh, 'girlfriend'. Not that you could call our relationship a real 'friendship' - she was in it for the money, and I was in it for the sex, though up to the point of the accident, neither of us had gotten what we'd wanted. As a high- society 'debutante', she required me to 'play the game', and I'd simply been known as her 'escort' to dinner parties and the like while were obliquely worked on 'negotiations'.

She was, for some reason, livid. She seemed to take it as some sort of personal insult that I was in for SRS, and wanted to know how I could shame her like that.

Her 'visit' was really nothing more than a tantrum, and I didn't even get a word in edgewise for most of it. Instead, I just sat there, trying hard not to look at where her parents stood in the doorway, while Mandy reamed me out.

Mandy's parents were real 'old money', 'raised right' people. Mommy looked as miffed as Mandy, and Daddy looked... disgusted, I'd guess. Mandy, herself, kept going over how 'shameful' the whole thing was - but, being a 'proper lady', managed to rake me over the coals without once resorting to rude, crude or lewd words. The thin defense I managed to get in at the very end - that SRS wasn't a choice, but something that certain people needed - didn't seem to go over too well.

It wasn't until well after they left that I finally realized what was going on.

I didn't actually remember the accident, and nobody had actually brought it up - just the aftermath of it, the SRS I was in the hospital for. It finally dawned on me that I must have been drunk or something to get into the unremembered accident.

Yes, I could understand how I - who'd worked so hard to acquire the image of class and breeding in order to get into the social circles of high society - could, as Mandy put it, 'be the laughingstock of the whole town!' by getting drunk and piling my Jag into a tree or something. Given that I'd tried to hide my lower-class origins from the high-society crowd that Mandy considered being 'everybody', I could understand how she could go on about how 'everybody now knows what you really are!', and how I'd been 'living a lie!'.

Not that the belated understanding made her public 'dumping' of me any less enjoyable, even if that 'public' had been limited to her parents, Carol, and Elizabeth. I'm sure word of it got around...

...especially given some of the things Rob said on his next visit.

He wondered whether or not I was planning to stay in town or move somewhere new, considering - as he tactfully tried to put it - 'you know...'. I hadn't really given it much thought, and I told Rob so, while wondering just how badly Mandy was bad-mouthing me to make Rob to think that my remaining in town after I got out of the hospital would be so uncomfortable for me.

Since Carol had mentioned the fact that the plastic surgery to repair my face would mean I wouldn't look exactly like I did before, I tried to make a joke out of it all. I owned my own porn studio, and a couple of 'skin mags', and a few strip clubs. When I joked that, 'with my new look', maybe I should give doing some work in my own movies because nobody would recognize me, he seemed startled.

"You're going to be sexually active after...?" He blurted out, before cutting himself off - and I had to remind myself how my heavily bandaged hips and crotch must look to him. Hell, I hadn't even seen my own cock since the accident, so I guess I shouldn't be surprised if he thought I might be too injured.

"Oh, they tell me I'll be able to be as sexually active as I want, after the surgery." I reassured him, thinking about how, uh... 'awkward' it was right now, still reviewing all the top-quality porn my studio was putting out without being able to give it the, ahem, final 'thumbs up' I always had before. "You have to idea just how eager I am to start having sex after SRS!"

He seemed a bit taken aback, for some reason, but simply picked a different topic of conversation. Not that this was difficult to do - I couldn't say our conversations were all that 'intellectual'. I was still doped up all the time, though I had gotten so used to this that I barely thought about it anymore, consciously.

Some time later, after Rob had dropped by a few more times, I was finally allowed out of bed.

I was weak, and my legs didn't want to remember how to work all that well. They had to use a special training aid to help me get back into the habit of walking again - these ugly gray 'boots' with a big wedge heel that practically forced me to stand on tip-toe. I didn't like it much, but from the burning in my calves, buttocks and the back of my thighs, Carol had been right about how it worked out those muscle groups - and, just like everything else, I soon got used to them, day-in and day- out.

I also got to get 'dressed' again - if you can call those damned hospital gowns being 'dressed'. Like any hospital gown, this one was too short, and with a stupid floral print - but at least it zipped up the back, rather than having those ties that leti you hanging half out of it.

Rob, at least, was polite about it - he quite otien went out of his way to comment how 'nice' I looked in the hospital garb, which had be the biggest lie I'd ever heard, though he managed to pull it off with only a mildly uncomfortable look on his face. He even 'complimented' me on my hair, which I was now - wonder of wonders! - allowed to come myself.

No small task, that - it had been growing, unchecked, since the accident. Before then, I'd worn my blond hair sort of shaggy - now it was a ridiculously long, thick mass I seemed to forever be coming, brushing or fiddling with. I would have liked to get it cut down to a manageable length, but Carol pointed out that the doctors hadn't decided if I'd need to have my head shaved as completely smooth as the rest of my body was kept when the time for my surgery came. Given that, it did seem a little silly to go to the trouble of getting my hair cut, when any day they might just come in and shave me bald.

Which turned out to be a good decision - because it was a short time later that they finally told me it was time to start the final preparations for the SRS treatment.

* * * * *

I don't actually remember the surgeries at all - and what I do remember of the preparation before, and the recovery atier, is pretty fragmented and vague.

They switched my medication to some sort of super-powerful hypnotic drug, I understand. Rather than keeping me from feeling pain, it kept me from remembering pain, forgetting about each hurt or ache as soon as it happened. It also leti my memory of the period, as a whole, pretty spotty.

Apparently, in interaction with me, people found me to seem fully alert, coherent, and aware - even if I can't remember many of these encounters.

I don't actually remember them 'fattening me up' for the surgery, or the special 'goo' I was allowed to 'eat' to do so. A warm, quite salty high-protein compound, the Consumable Organic Mixture (Enhanced) was taken via some long, thick straws with rounded ends designed for people with poor coordination, called the Digitally Interactive Container. That didn't mean it was computerized - it was 'digits' as in 'fingers', because you had to manipulate the container to get it to give you the Consumable Organic Mixture (Enhanced).

Like I said, I don't remember much of this - but I do remember when they tried to take my off it, sort off. It was the first thing I was allowed to 'eat' myself, and when they tried to take me off it, I remember having a video-taped discussion with the concerned clinic psychiatrist, assuring him that I enjoyed sucking DIC so I could swallow COME.

Nor do I remember how it ended up, during my recovery period, that I was giving an interview to some non-gender-specific person from the Alternative Lifestyle Network. I do recall explaining to the interviewer - who would have been a manly woman or an effeminate man, dressed in a unisex outfit' - why I thought a woman's body was so much nicer than a man's. How soti it was, how pleasant to touch, and how it could be 'dressed up' in such a vastly broader selection of clothing...

* * * * *

Now, at this point, you may think that I - the person born as Nicholas Jeffery Carstairs on a cold night in December, 1976 - must have, instead been 'born yesterday' - or that I am a complete idiot.

Neither is true. Though this chronicle of what happened is written in the past tense, and indeed all took place 'in the past', I have written it as if, at each stage, I lacked the benefit of hindsight - which, in fact, I did. As it was happening, I was continuously kept drugged, and the very few people who were 'in' on it very carefully manipulated what those who weren't saw - including myself.

What you have read so far is how I felt, what I thought, as I lived through it - right up until the moment I 'awoke', that is to say, became free of the powerful hypnotic drug, atier my period of recuperation under the 'tender care' of Carol Kittiwake and Elizabeth Forraker...

* * * * *

When I at last became 'self aware' again for the first time since finding myself at the clinic, it wasn't exactly a quick transition.

The first thought, zooming across my conscious mind like a meteorite through the atmosphere, burned up before it ever hit earth: 'Once again, Rob gets lucky'.

That's it - not context. Just that thought, actually registering on my mind, but not meaning all that much. Then, an indeterminate time later, a sort of follow up thought popped up:

'Of course, so did I, this time'. I thought to myself - with just enough self-awareness to feel smug about it. 'God, but does this feel fantastic...!'

Some more endless time passed, though less than what had gone before the first two thoughts, and thought number three was tail-gated by thought number four - in order, 'Why's she staring at me like that', followed by the much more appreciative, 'Who cares? Look at those tits! Rob, you lucky SOB...'

So, I watched Rob and his babe-du-jour go at it a while longer, while rather mindlessly enjoying my own waves of intense pleasure.

'She looks familiar.' I noted to myself. 'I wonder where I've seen her before. With a body like that, maybe she's one of my porn stars. Would that explain why she keeps staring at me like that...?'

I watched her go at it, staring at me as she gasped and moaned in pleasure, Rob's hands roaming her bouncing body, and felt that sense of envy that Rob got to get fucked by such a hot - and oddly familiar - woman.

That's when it occurred to me: 'I wonder what the woman I'm fucking looks like? This feels fantastic, fucking her hard like this, but she's probably not the incredible nympho Rob's got...'

That's when I looked down at the 'woman' I was thrusting into...

...and stared down past a pair of huge, jiggling, swaying tits at Rob's sweaty, oh-so-happy face.

For a few seconds, it simply didn't register - and then, my body still thrusting itself up and down, my head snapped up...

...and I finally realized that the wall at the head of the bed mounted a huge mirror. I screamed.

Which didn't phase Rob in the least, any more did my sudden thrashing atop him - because realization occurred at just about the same time I hit orgasm, and I was leti writhing, screaming, and twitching atop his muscular body as the large, hard cock filling my tight, wet cunt provided my with utterly ridiculous amounts of physical pleasure. The horror, humiliation, and shock I was feeling was completely buried under the intensely more powerful 'symptoms' of my orgasmic ecstasy.

It wasn't until the initial, overwhelming burst of ecstasy began to fade and I yanked myself off his still-spurting cock to almost literally throw myself into the opposite corner of the room, still screaming, that Rob clued in.

"Nikki?" He said, sitting up quickly. "Honey-bunny, what's wrong?" I stared at him in horror.

"I... I've got tits!" I yelled at him, my hands going to the massive, artificially firm spheres of breast- flesh thrust almost defiantly from my ribcage. Then, my long-nailed fingers dipped from the volley- ball sized testimonials to DuPont implants and touched the moist wetness that lay nestled between the thighs of my shapely legs, encased in white nylons held up by garters attached to the pink-and- white leather corset wrapped around my miniscule waist. "...and a cunt! I... I'm a woman! A fuckin' woman...!"

The pejorative I'd tossed off in my high-pitched new voice registered - and I pointed an accusing finger at Rob.

"And you're the one whose been fucking me!" I shrieked, hysterically.

My gaze went from the very confused, very worried naked man standing before me to the mirror at The End of the bed - and I stared at the woman I'd become.

The slender, sexy, sex-pot of plastic perfection I'd become. It was a woman who didn't look real.

Everything about her shouted she had been created by a surgeon's skill. Everything from the heart- shaped face to the tip of the feet surgically altered to feel most comfortable in the type of extreme, eight-inch heels her pink pumps boasted - and every emphatic attribute in between.

The hips were wide and rounded above legs that were long and shapely - both to as unnatural degree as her waist was tiny, or her tits were huge. Her ass was the definition of the 'bubble-butt', and her lips were collagen-pumped to excess.

If any single one of these over-emphasized attributes had appeared on any other woman, alone, it would have been a definite case of 'too much of a good thing' - but all of them, in her, to the exact same degree of 'caricature', instead somehow meshed into a cartoonishly sexy blonde bimbo brought to living, breathing, 'believable' reality - without giving up so much as an ounce of the impression that she wasn't 'real', but somehow a living fantasy.

A sexual fantasy.

A perfect, living sex doll. It was...

It was the body I'd dreamed so long and desperately of having. The body I cried myself to sleep with all through collage, while hating those lucky enough to be born female. The body I knew Rob would never turn down, even while I imagined it was me he was fucking in the next room, not whatever woman who had actually been lucky enough to get that big, hard cock of his for a night...

Crying out in horror, I began beating more forehead with open palms, trying to drive out the thoughts crammed into my head by Carol, Elizabeth, and their tame psychiatrist.

"Nikki!" Rob cried, hurrying over and grabbing my slender wrists. "Honey, stop it! You're going to hurt yourself!"

"Don't touch me!" I screamed, pulling away from him in response to the instant - and frighteningly powerful - surge of sexual 'thoughts' and 'feelings' I'd been programmed to feel about his naked, muscular body. "Stay away!"

"I knew I should have made you take your medication." Rob fretted in self-flagellation. "Just this once, I let myself think it would be okay... I'm going to go get your pills, baby. Just stay here..."

He started to get up - and I said nothing, shocked by how strong the urge to just take the pills was. Thought and memory was starting to come together out of the foggy mess of my long-drugged mind and an incredibly seductive part of me actually wanted to take the pills that had kept me docile and subdued for the past seven months.

Just take those pills, and in a bit, those force-fed thoughts jammed into my brain would take over, and I could go back to being utterly content with my new body. Go back to being Rob's unfailingly cheerful, happy little fuck-bunny, with no thoughts in my head by how much I loved finally fucking and sucking the man I'd fantasized about all through collage...

...and then I forced myself to shove the thought away, shuddering. "No!" I gasped, torn by the decision. "No pills!"

Perhaps the true strength it took to say that confuses you - or perhaps you don't get it at all. Perhaps only a long-time drug user - another long time drug user - can truly understand the incredibly powerful temptation to just take another 'hit', to let themselves fall into the uncritical bliss the drug provides.

The thoughts and emotions 'programmed' into me were purely secondary, 'camouflage' to provide apparent verification of the fantasy that I was a willing recipient of sexual reassignment surgery.

I was a 'junkie'.

All in all, I had spent the last fifteen months with every waking - and not a few sleeping - moment under the influence of a carefully measured, mixed and managed array of pharmaceuticals.

Obviously, the motivation that led to this was the decision of Elizabeth that I need to be 'taken out', that I was a 'bad person', somebody who was destroying society with a constant and never-ending degradation of women into nothing more than sexual objects.

Cold as she was, she wasn't up to - or even interested in - cold blooded murder. No, it seemed much more fitting to her - and her four associates, once she'd dratted them into her conspiracy - to leave me as nothing more than that very representation of women that I was creating for the world. Sexual feminine fantasy, and nothing more.

That's what I'd been made over into - and the drug regimen allowed it to happen in the first place, then kept me 'leashed' to the fantasy afterwards. If not for the fact that I had turned out even more effective at using pure sexual arousal to derail Rob's intellect, it could have gone on indefinitely, with him conscientiously administering the 'hormone supplements' they'd told him I 'needed' every day in order to maintain the ultimate femininity I was so 'ecstatically happy' about. Given that the drugs the 'supplements' really contained, it never occurred to Rob to question the blissful state I spent every day in. I was obviously happy, and that was enough to convince anybody that everything was all right - and that was before you included the fact that the situation also meant that Rob was getting sucked and fucked just about as often as any man could ever want.

Which also served to compound his confusion now, as his 'happy little girlfriend', who'd had to work so hard in the first place to get him to overcome any lingering doubts or 'homosexual' connections to let her be his lover, now shivered and shuddered on the floor after screaming about her 'beloved' femininity and rejecting her 'long and secretly desired' lover.

"No pills." I managed to say again, in a calmer voice, forcing myself into some semblance of control despite the shock and other potent emotions thrumming through me. The last thing I needed was to convince Rob that the best thing he could do for me was to pump me full of those pills and call Elizabeth for help - which, I was quite sure, was exactly what he'd been told to do if anything 'strange' ever happened. "Just give me a minute... and, uh - some clothes."

"Ohhhh-kay." He agreed, reluctantly - but here his genial nature worked in my favor. When he'd told Nurse Kittiwake he was going to follow all their instructions to a 'T', he'd been utterly since - but that had been then and there. Here and now, I was the person he was dealing with, and, with his genuine good nature, my wants and needs came first. If either Carol or Elizabeth had been here, as well, the conflict between trying to meet two people's demands might have been settled by who was the most 'competent' to give advice - but neither woman was here, and I was.

Pushing myself up off the floor, I walked over to the closet. With memory returning, I could recall how many times I'd gone into this closet - and how 'happy' I'd been by all the sexy, pretty clothes there were to choose from. In fact, part of the desire to 'look pretty' tugged at me, even now, just from remembering how warm-and-tingling it had felt to look in the mirror and see a sexy woman looking back, but I pushed it aside and picked out a 'fur' trimmed silk dressing gown and pulled it on.

Rob also pulled on his underwear and jeans - which helped enormously, since I didn't have to keep looking at his cock and remembering all the things I'd done to, with and for it...

...and how much I'd enjoyed each and every moment.

I also couldn't help but remember how good Rob was - not only as a lover, but as a person. How well he'd treated 'Nicole Jessica Carstairs', his girlfriend...

...and how warm and tingling I felt inside, right here and now, at the thought, even without the mindless urge - or compulsion - to be his little fuck-bunny.

It was more than a little disquieting to find myself considering what life as a woman, as Rob's girlfriend, would be like even without drug-induced bliss.

"There's something we need to talk about." I told Rob, sitting down on the bed as he hitched on leg up and half-sat on the low dresser along the wall. "It's going to sound strange, and you might not want to believe it, but please hear me all the way through."

"Of course." Rob agreed, right away - and I forced myself to ignore the pleasant warmth I felt at his instant, unstinting agreement. Instead, I made myself think about just how badly Elizabeth had screwed up by deciding to 'take advantage' of the old friend who, despite my practically ignoring him for years, had showed up at my bedside in a time of need. She might have thought it was the perfect 'hook' to hang the implanted thoughts on, but she hadn't known how truly deep any friendship Rob formed ran.

"That first morning I woke up at the clinic, I didn't know how I'd gotten there. Elizabeth was there, and she told me I'd been in a car accident..." I started to explain.

* * * * *

Rob is a very hard person to hate. He also, it turned out, isn't really the type of person who can easily maintain hate for anybody else, for any reason...

...oh, but my-oh-my, is he ever a one for justice.

Yes, indeed - a real stickler for justice is my husband.

Oh, yes, Rob and I got married. Three months ago, now - and that made it a year to the day of my 'awakening'.

It was a fairly small affair, all things considered. Most of the guests were there for Rob, and not a few of them were women he'd dated over their eyes, practically green with envy that any 'woman' had succeeded in snaring a kind, loving guy who had insisted on remaining 'just friends' with them.

I'm just glad we'd moved and I'd changed my name and hair color. If any of those women realized the 'blushing bride' had been born a man, they might have torn me apart with their bare hands.

The fact that I'd almost completely divorced myself from my past was one of the reasons almost all the guests were her for Rob. Of course, the fact that, as a man, I'd practically had no friends anyway was another.

Still, I was 'suitably accompanied'. After all, looking like a near-caricature of buxom blonde little bimbo is somewhat less of an eye-catcher when your maids of honor are each as much a caricature as yourself, in their own ways. I mean, I'm almost too much of a woman, but it's in equal proportion - but Cari's tits are even more enormous than mine, and Lizzy's surgically lengthened legs seem to go on for miles even before you factor in the ten-inch heels of her platform pumps. Those two, in their tight-fitting pink dresses, would have been more than enough to 'deflect' some of the attention I gathered wherever I went...

...but, of course, even they couldn't compete with Petra.

I don't think anybody competes with Petra. The 'second runner up' would have to be that retired female wrestler, Chyna, who Petra is quite often compared to. As in 'God! She looks like Chyna... only more so!'

Which, I suppose, is fair. After all, when you take a reasonably tall, athletically built man who, for whatever reason, develops an utterly overwhelming compulsion to become as completely female as possible, something's got to give. Since Peter, the 'tame psychiatrist', wasn't lucky enough to have the relatively short, slender male build I'd started out with, he'd had to go in another direction.

Even people who don't find her the least bit attractive are forced to admit that, muscular as she might be, the six-foot nine Amazon is also leggy, buxom, and graceful, with a strong-yet-beautiful face, and is undeniably extremely 'feminine' - even without being the least bit 'girly'.

The fact that she's so incredibly sexually aggressive, however, is really what tends to catch most men off guard. Having her swoop towards you with 'that look' in her eye and a naughty smile on her lips while she backs you into a corner so she press her toned-yet-curveaceous body against you seems to be surprisingly disconcerting for most men - especially since her height means she tends to bury most men in ample cleavage with that particular maneuver.

She did, however, manage to restrain herself during the actual ceremony - which isn't surprising, since she, like Cari and Lizzy, would probably rather died long and horrible deaths than do anything that might make me the least bit unhappy.

That, like the surgeries each of my new 'girl friends' underwent, was a direct result of my darling Rob's obsession with justice - without hate.

After all, there was nothing at all hateful in him when he'd fed these three the same drugs I no longer wanted to take, and neither was there any hate in him as, while they were all highly doped on powerful hypnotics, he brought up the whole subject of 'guilt'. He didn't give them any orders, didn't command them to do anything, didn't even harp at any great length about how corrosive guilty secrets could be on your conscience. He just asked each one of them what could possibly been done to get rid of their guilt, if they had any at all to begin with.

Of course, if it had turned out that any of them hadn't been harboring any guilt at all, we would have gone public to make sure they got punishment - but Rob had felt we should try his way first, since it wasn't just punishment, but would also ensure that none of the three could ever again allow themselves to do anything they'd feel guilty about.

I guess he was right, atier all. I had been a little miffed at how 'easy' he was letting them each off, but he obvious knows people better than I do - judging from what each of them felt they needed to do to themselves to make them feel as if they'd 'earned' forgiveness.

Not even mentioning that they've also devoted themselves to trying to 'make it up' to me, as well. Not that I'm complaining - all three of them are trying very, very hard to be the best possible friends a woman like me could ever ask for...

...and if my new husband happens to blow them all away at being sweet, loving and kind without even having to try, well, that's something we'll all just have to try and live with.

I just wish Petra would ease up on her relentless pursuit of sexual conquest.

Not that I have any ethical or moral objections to her fucking the brains out of any guy who shows even the slightest bit of interest in a 'woman like her', mind you. Nor do I feel sorry for any of those men who overestimate themselves, (or underestimate her), and end up in traction.

Atier all, they're all adults, and should have known what they were getting into - and beside, you'd be amazed at how many men who have been on the receiving end of Petra's amazingly, um... enthusiastic ministrations manage to confuse other hospital patrons by having huge, dreamy grins despite being in full body casts.

No, I just wish she'd at least slow down long enough to make sure whatever piece of furniture her and her latest victim end up (or start out) on can take it.

We went through four folding tables, the hotel registration desk, two coffee tables, a roll-away cot and a chandelier at the reception alone...

...although, of course, Rob paid for the chandelier out of his own pocket, which was only fair.

Petra's shoes never would have crushed all that cut crystal underfoot when she carried her latest victim off to the cloakroom if I hadn't knocked them off while I was swinging on it.

The End

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: An agent of a special organization who tests out theories on their creators makes a visit to a scientist who invents women's enhancement products.

Statute 17862-3b

By Gunslinger

Doctor Antonio Popadopolous was royally pissed off.

'Pissed Off' wasn't Tony's usual state of being. Usually, the slender, olive-skinned medical researcher was so easy-going and laid-back that it was hard to believe that he was a registered genius, involved in some of the most advanced medical work in the planet - even if it was for a money-making pharmaceutical company rather than 'pure' research funded by grants. After all - even a genius had to live, right? Still, Tony was usually the easiest guy to get along with, even with the hint of 'greedy bastard' tossed into his personality.

Tonight he felt he had adequate reason to be 'pissed off', though. Nervously running his fingers through his curly black hair for perhaps the tenth time in half an hour, Tony began pacing again, his soti-soled Italian loafers making almost no sound on the determinedly high- tech black polycarbonate floor.

Six months! Six months, Tony had been waiting to hear something from the FDA about approval. Six months - and when they finally get back to him, it's some stuck-up sounding broad in Washington telling him she was flying down for a field-check test of his products as authorized under statute 17862-3B of the FDA Charter.

Tony had no idea what the hell that meant - except that he had to wait here, at midnight, to meet some FDA Big-Wig or he might never get approvals for his products. No approvals, and his work was useless, not worth anything to him. So, even if Tony had never heard of whatever it was they were doing, what was he going to do? Say 'no'? Not likely!

So, he had to do it - but it didn't mean he had to like it. By the time he heard the foot-steps coming down the hall towards the lab, he was in a fine boil. Four hours he'd spent, as the building had slowly emptied. Four hours, walking around a deserted, silent building like some sort of high-tech ghost, tired from just getting all the products ready to be field-inspected.

So, it wasn't unreasonable for Tony to whirl around to face the door when he heard the footsteps enter, ready to give 'Special Investigator Linda Foxworthy of the FDA' a piece of his mind.

He didn't however - for he was completely unprepared to find himself pointing an accusing finger at a very tall, coolly-beautiful blonde in an efficient business ensemble whose skirt showcased impossibly long, toned legs atop three-inch heels. A frost-white platinum blonde with ice-chip-blue eyes on a classically beautiful face devoid of any identifiable expression, her full lips not curled in either direction.

"Dr. Popadopolous?" She asked, in a completely neutral voice, not seeming to notice the way the slender, swarthy doctor was staring at her tall, toned body under its elegantly tailored layers of efficiently sexy 'business attire'. "I'm Agent Foxworthy - from the FDA." She paused a half-beat, then held out her hand and took a step forward, adding, "We spoke on the phone."

"Ah. Yes..." Tony managed, straightening. He glanced at the accusingly-pointed finger as if he'd never seen such a thing in his life, then opened his hand and took a step forward of his own, ready now to shake her hand...

...which was he was a little taken aback when she grabbed his wrist and turned it, exposing his forearm - into which she smoothly injected a needle with her left hand, depressing the plunger as she did so. Whatever had been in the syringe was in Tony's bloodstream practically before he realized he'd been injected.

"It should take effect in less than five seconds..." Foxworthy said in an almost conversational tone.

"What should I do?" Tony started to ask, confused - but he just seemed to run out of steam. Willpower, actually - somehow, though he knew it was important, he couldn't work up enough willpower to do it. It just seemed like too much work, no matter how much he thought he wanted to do something.

"Marvelous!" the gorgeous blonde said, clapping her hands together in almost girlish glee, transforming her cool face for an instant. "I wasn't sure it would work - this is the first time I've tried it." She confided to Tony. "Works quite well, doesn't it?"

Tony found a sudden jolt of energy - just enough to say, numbly, the first thing that popped into his head - the truth. "Yes." "Tony, Tony, Tony..." the blonde sighed, sadly. She paused. "You don't mind if I call you Tony, do you?"

A pause - then, dully, "No."

"Splendid. Now, as I was saying, Tony - You sicken me. Really, you do." She slowly began to walk away, and Tony unwillingly found himself turning to watch her, finding that he needed the 'stimulation' of her presence to keep from losing his will-to-exist completely.

"Here you are, a genius. You could be coming up with cures for cancer, for AIDS, doing great things for Humanity - but, no. You're here, at a Pharmaceutical Company, making 'beauty products'. Like these..."

She paused, and looked down at the array of products Tony had neatly arrayed on the work-table, all the 'wonderful products' he'd created. She ran a hand gently over the tubes, bottles and boxes. "More unnecessary products to 'help' women become more like the male-centric 'ideal woman', a mere subsidiary part of the male-dominated society."

Being drugged had been a pretty good sign that something 'funny' was going on, but it had left Tony feeling mostly 'confused'. Now, listening to Foxworthy, Tony felt panic begin to flare.

"But I'm a fair woman, Tony..." Foxworthy said, suddenly, turning to hit Tony with a million-watt smile so fake it was painful. "I believe other people have the right to hold beliefs other than mine - even if I might find those beliefs so disgusting, perverted or wrong that I nearly become physically sick at just the sight of such a person. That's my personal life. I'm here on business - namely, to see if you oh-so-disgusting products are safe to sell to the gullible, male-indoctrinated feminine masses. That's all. So - you can be sure I'll be completely and utterly fair in my testing."

Then she proceeded to give Tony some instructions - some very detailed instructions. Lovingly detailed, because Linda Foxworthy looked ready to orgasm just from describing what Tony was to do to himself...

...and Tony could do nothing but listen and accept her instructions. What ever she'd injected him with had opened a direct pathway to his subconscious mind, and she was able to program him as easily as a master programmer might enter a new computer program.

"...here they come." Foxworthy said, urgently, after having Tony repeat back his instructions, paraphrased to make sure he understood. "Are you ready?"

"Yes, Linda, I sure am..." Tony said with a broad, sincere-looking smile. Not that he felt like smiling - screaming was more in line with how he felt. He'd been ordered to act as natural and cheerful as he could, though, so he was forced to act the way he normally would around a tall, beautiful blonde who was obviously in a good mood.

He smiled just as broadly at the small group of people who came crowding into the lab. There was a stout, florid-faced man in a sober business suit, flanked by a thinner man in an expensive gray suit on one side, and a older woman carrying stenography equipment.

The judge, lawyer and stenographer Linda had so 'thoughtfully' arranged for him. Behind them came the Press Agent, the photographer, and a Notary Public to act as a witness.

"Thank you for coming." Tony said, smiling broadly. "I wanted to make sure this is all nice and legal. First of all, let me introduce Agent Foxworthy of the FDA..."

There was a brief pause as Linda shook some hands, during which Tony mentally screamed at himself to run away, to take the distraction as an opportunity to make a break for it...

His body didn't so much as twitch, his smile in place and a cheerful tilt to his head.

"Now, the reason you're all here is that I'm applying for FDA approvals for my products... and something more." He grinned, boyishly. "As you know, the FDA requires testing. Tonight, I'm going to prove that all my 'Feminine Beauty-Enhancing products' really work, and are safe for the buying public."

The small group had been given a sketchy outline of why they were, given to them by Linda when she'd arranged this. They still looked more than a little startled and uncomfortable, however, despite the extra time they'd had to absorb the idea.

"Now, of course, there's more to it than testing." Tony continued. "By using my products on myself, I'll also be proving the product's uses in a side-field of the industry, cross-dressers and transsexuals. I, myself, am a cock-sucking sissy-boy, and have been for years."

He said it with an easy grin - while, inside, the lie was torn from his screaming, kicking - and impotent - mind. Foxworthy was the only one in the room who knew that he was feeding them a 'prepared script' - and the big, shit-eating grin on her face could have been 'Good PR' for the FDA. There was a cameraman present, atier all...

"Finally, of course, I'll be better-equipped to determine what feminine products are needed in the future - assuming I can find time to work, you know, when I'm not busy sucking or fucking some lucky stud."

The judge was frowning - but he was here in his official capacity, to arrange for a legal change of identity as soon as Tony was finished his 'demonstration' - atier all, if he was going to be completely unrecognizable atier the demonstration, he wouldn't be able to use his old identification...

...or, rather, she wouldn't be able to. That was the fate Linda had programmed him into accepting, no matter how unwillingly. With equal desperation, he wished he could kill either her - or himself. Either one would have sufficed.

Instead of committing homicide or suicide, Tony began to undress, smiling all the while.

"First, I'll demonstrate my permanent hair-removal cream." Tony explained brightly, picking up a white plastic container of the aforementioned cream. "Since I have thicker body hair than most women, you know it'll work for them if it works for me."

Humming 'happily', Tony set about denuding his body of all it's hair, from the eye-brows on down. He cheerfully rubbed the thick, foamy white cream over his legs, his arms, his torso - even the lower part of his face.

Then, dripping cream, he padded into the attached bathroom of the lab and took a shower. When he emerged, minutes later, he was toweling off a body that was not only nude, but denuded - no follicle of hair remained on his body.

"You see how fast and easy that was?" Tony asked, brightly, while cursing inwardly at the way the air felt over his smooth, hairless skin. "Plus, now I can apply my special skin-smoothing rub..."

Tony did just that, slowly oiling up his body with the special skin conditioner. Atier several minutes, he sighed as he felt it 'kick in' - while, really, he wanted to scream.

"There - now my skin's silky-soti." Tony said with apparent serenity. "Anybody want to feel how soti my body is...?" The rest of them demurred hastily, but Linda grinned. "Sure. I will..."

She came over and slowly ran a hand sensuously across Tony's new silky-smooth skin.

"My God - he's even smoother than I am..." Linda said in mock amazement, holding up a bare arm to show her own, milky-smooth skin.

"See how well it works?" Tony asked, brightly, wishing he could slit his own throat rather than continue with this unknown humiliation. "Now that I have the silky-smooth skin of a woman, I might as well 'cross over', so to speak..."

With a grin, Tony walked over to this most dreaded of moments. Desperately, he tried to make his traitorous body turn aside - but as soon as he tried to do anything but what he'd been instructed to do, he felt his willpower sap away to nothing, leaving him helpless to disobey.

"This is actually designed to help women with unnatural insensitivity in their, uh, equipment." Tony explained, holding up a vial. "A small amount would correct minor problems and increase sensitivity. Now, to get a functional pussy so that men can fuck my brains out, I'll have to take a whole shit-load of it, which means my new cunt will be super-sensitive... but it's not like that's a bad thing, right?"

With a big grin at the still-rather-stunned 'audience', Tony filled the huge syringe with the contents of the vial, then proceeded to inject the entire amount into his bloodstream.

"With a small dosage to correct minor problems, there's only a slight discomfort." Tony explained heart racing beneath his deceptively cheerful exterior. "Now, with the dose I took, I would think..."

Then the drug kicked in - and he screamed and dropped to his knees, hands fluttering and grasping uselessly at his crotch as agony tore through him.

"Just.. a... bit... painful..." Tony gasped out through a manic-looking smile, eyes bulging in pain as his cock began to fold in on itself, painfully rearranging itself to form Tony's soon-to-be-pussy.

She screamed again, three times in quick succession - and then she arose to her feet, smiling, the throbbing pain slowly fading in her crotch hidden by her smile.

"So, now I'm technically female." She said. "So, I'd be happy if you call me by my new name: Alyssa. No last name, just - Alyssa."

The new woman Tony had helplessly become grinned. "Well, we'll be getting on with the demonstration, but I'll need some help - so, why don't we take a coffee break, while Agent Foxworthy takes each of you aside and explains what you need to do..."

'Alyssa' set about filling out some legal paperwork while Linda took the rest of them aside. Alyssa was sure she wouldn't have any problems getting her unwanted new identity through - since Linda was going to drug and indoctrinate each of the men when she took them aside.

It was just the next step in Tony/Alyssa's humiliation and transformation.

The tall blonde FDA agent brought them back out. There was no sign of the cold, icy bitch Tony/Alyssa had met, and it was obvious she was enjoying this little 'scenario' - and the more she enjoyed it, the more humiliating it was to Alyssa, who lacked even the ability to fight back, trapped in the little 'game' that the FDA agent had arranged for him.

"Good news, Alyssa!" Linda said, brightly. "Judge Winston has agreed to handle doing your breasts for you!. Since he's a real 'breast man', you know he'll do the job right..."

"Damn straight..." The judge muttered, eyes glittering in obviously-implanted near-obsession as he gazed in horrible fascination at Alyssa's flat chest. He juggled the large, chemical-filled syringes in his hands - and, though she couldn't show it, Alyssa tried to scream, knowing just what that compound was designed to do.

"The rest of them will do their work with equal... enthusiasm..." Linda said, smiling wickedly - and verifying Alyssa's fears.

"Go to it..." Linda told them, and the five men and the stenographer descended on Alyssa like the plague, bearing in their hands the tools of Alyssa's humiliation, which she'd created herself.

She wanted to scream, to pull away, to run - but none of these were viable options, not with her 'simply' playing out the script that Linda had defined for her, her mind simply an 'empty shell' for the FDA agent to fill as she'd seen fit.

The new woman could do nothing but stand there while she was further transformed. No - no, that wasn't true. Not at all...

...because, thanks to Linda's instructions, Alyssa actually moved and positioned herself for 'easier access', so that she could be better transformed. She tilted her face and tilted it forward, allowing the stenographer to work on her make-up, while the five men most- obviously-enjoyed working on transforming her body further with her own products. Even the mind-controlled stenographer used one of Alyssa's own products - the chemical compound designed for rapid hair growth.

Some of the chemicals' reactions were pleasant, some neutral, and some painful - yet Alyssa remained apparently cheerful throughout, despite the fact that she wanted to throw-up, scream, and cry - all at the same time.

Instead, she could do nothing but 'grin and bear it' as she felt her body further changed, made further feminine - until, in a thankfully/horribly short time they were done their work, and Alyssa was wearing the body that would be hers for the rest of her new life as a woman.

"My - quite the new look you've got going for yourself..." Linda said with a visible smirk, eyeing the body that was revealed as the unwilling tormentors Linda had sicced on Alyssa backed away. "What do you think, dear?"

Helplessly, Alyssa turned to look at her new body in the mirrored wall of the high-tech lab, staring with a fixed grin at the hideous new body that she'd been given.

Not that everybody would find it hideous, of course. In fact, many would find her new body quite lovely, what with the toned, shapely legs and spectacular new ass. Though her hips were on the slender side, it was more than made up for by the fact that her waist was 'delightfully' slender. Her face, while not 'stunning' was feminine and even exotic, with her dusky skin - all enhanced by the dark, gloss- red lipstick and dark purple eye-shadow she wore, not to mention the matching polish on her now long, oval nails. Her hair was long, dark and curly, framing her face and trailing over her toned-yet-feminine shoulders.

Her breasts were enormous. Gigantic, dusky globes of tit-flesh the size of medicine balls and tipped with enormous, dark nipples.

She was a tall, slender, athletically-built Greek woman with enormous tits and a mouth-watering ass. A vision directly out of some teen- aged boy's wet dreams.

She wanted to die.

"I love it!" She lied with bright enthusiasm, her dainty new hands coming up to caress her massive new rack, shivers of pleasure and disgust chasing each other up her spine as she helplessly turned to smile at the five leering, drooling men who had helped do this to her. "I look just like the huge-breasted cum-slut I wanted to be! Thank you all so very much!"

Even her voice was altered, thanks to one of her own creations. It was still somewhat deep and husky, but now it was 'deep and husky' in the feminine range, actually sounding sexy as hell coming from her glossed lips.

"Oh, I just had a wonderful idea!" She squealed enthusiastically, acting as if the implanted command was a spur-of-the-moment brainstorm. "Why don't I show you guys how truly appreciative I am by fucking you with my wonderful new body!"

She didn't give any of the guys a chance to refuse - because everybody there knew she didn't need to. Everybody had been 'indoctrinated' by Linda. She could have had them work in silent, perfect efficiency to complete Alyssa's humiliation - but where would the fun in that have been? Instead, Alyssa was stuck playing the same role she'd play for the 'uninitiated' public for the rest of her life - that of a cum-crazed slut whose only desire was sex.

She wished she could die. A life trapped in the body and the mind-set of this huge-breasted slut. It was horrifying even to contemplate. Now, however, she wasn't 'contemplating' - she was 'doing'.

She was walking forward with a liquid sway to her hips and a sensual, heavy-lidded look on her face. Her massive, gravity-defying breasts swung side to side with each step, their very heft and bounce burning into Alyssa's helpless, horrified mind.

She was touching the Judge, her hands caressing gently against his shirt, her dark-red nails and dusky skin looking somehow very erotic as she slid over the plain black material of the Judge's suit...

...and looking even more erotic as she tore that suit off, with the Judge's very enthusiastic help. Around her, the other four men were also ripping out of their clothing. The stenographer was more decorous, however, remaining fully clothed - even if it was kneeling, her face buried enthusiastically in Linda Foxworthy's lap. Linda seemed to be having trouble deciding whether to watch Alyssa's final degradation or giving in and thoroughly enjoying the stenographer's attentions.

Since Alyssa knew for a fact that Linda wouldn't even have considered messing with a woman's mind, the stenographer's obviously since desire to give Linda pleasure must have been an unexpected distraction. Alyssa, on the other hand, was desperately wishing there was something she could use to distract herself from sex. If there was some way of totally disconnecting her male brain from this female body, and just letting it run on 'instinct'.

As it turned out, there wasn't. Alyssa got to experience everything with total clarity as she pushed the Judge to the floor and sank her wet new cunt over his hard, throbbing cock. She could feel the humiliating pleasure that came from being filled. He could experience the totally new and spectacular sensation of her own, moist tissue grasping the hard, warm cock with agonizingly erotic firmness.

She got to feel the disgustingly wonderful pleasure of a woman fucking a man as she thrust herself up and down over the Judge, swift, short strokes of sexual urgency. The pleasure that was so strong that she started to moan and gasp...

...but not for long - because she was turning her head to the side and opening her mouth so that the lawyer could shove his hard, throbbing cock into it. She got to experience what it felt like to wrap warm, sensitive lips around a throbbing, vein-lined cock. What it felt like to have that cock thrusting in and out of her mouth as she licked and sucked it.

While she was still absorbing the sensations that were flooding in from the blow-job, she also had to deal with the sensation of the PR man's hands fondling and massaging her huge, firm tits. As it so happened, it felt wonderful - and gratifying. The way her massive, round tits had been banging and jerking from her short, powerful motions had actually become quite painful...

...but not nearly as painful as the PR man's cock buried deep in her ass with every thrust. He'd positioned himself sitting astride the Judge's legs, and then shoved his cock into place on her up-thrust, impaling her so that every thrust brought her down on two cocks, one providing exquisite pleasure, the other exquisite pain.

The pain that she was unable to express, even as she couldn't express the horror, the disgust, the mind-destroying humiliation that she was going through. Instead, she reached out - and each dainty new hand was filled with a hard, ready cock that she began to jerk-off, her eyes closing in simulated ecstasy...

...which wasn't completely simulated, as she was actually enjoying certain parts of this - and that was more horrifying to her than the mere fact she was doing it. One was forced on her... but the other was actually her own thought...

Then the judge came. Gasping, he writhed under her jerking body as he pumped his load of hot cum into her (thankfully infertile) new womanhood.

As if this started a chain reaction, all the other men came in quick succession, leaving her awash in a sea of warm, salty cum. Cum that filled her mouth, tasting like stale, over-salted fish, sliding down her throat in thick gobs with each 'eager' swallow.

Cum that filled her ass, her swollen, pain-filled ass... and then, with the lubrication, the PR man's last, frantic thrusts felt... felt....

...good !

As the last two men blasted cum all over her massive tits, the lawyer's cock slipped from Alyssa's mouth - allowing her to scream out the absolute screams of ecstasy...

...while her mind alone gave the unheard scream of humiliation and despair at what she'd done, and how much of it she'd enjoyed. How much of it she would enjoy again, in this horrifyingly seductive fate Linda had blessed and cursed her with...

"I think that'll do it."

The sound of Linda's voice snapped Alyssa out of the spiraling of insanity that had begun in its over-stressed depths.

Numbly, Alyssa watched the men blankly pull away from her and begin dressing. Linda, skirt back in place, thanked the stenographer more-than- politely, then assembled Alyssa's new identity forms and set them aside, escorting the guests to the door with a smile, while they shook their heads and looked confused, like men just awakened from a very mundane dream.

The stenographer had no such look, however, and she threw Linda very sly wink before she left. Linda actually blushed, watching the older woman leave with a lingering smile before turning towards a thoroughly confused woman sitting on the floor, her massive tits dripping with still-warm cum.

"Welcome to the Sisterhood, Alyssa!" Linda said with a sparkling, wonderful grin - and then the gorgeous blonde knelt and gave Alyssa a deep, passionate kiss.

The huge-breasted dusky beauty returned the kiss almost absently - because she was trying to accept the fact that the 'controls' in her mind had been released - well, most of them, anyway.

She was 'herself' again, not just some 'puppet'.

Except for some still in-place commands. Like the ones keeping Alyssa from every trying to harm any woman, including Linda. Or the one that kept her from being able to tell anyone what had really happened. She was permanently stuck with the 'story' that she'd done this willingly.

"What... what...?" Was the best a very confused Alyssa could manage, shaking her head blankly.

"Well, you're a woman now, darling!" Linda said, brightly. "I couldn't do to another woman the things I'd happily do to a man - that wouldn't be right. So, now that you've been through the initiation, you're free to live whatever new life you..."

"Initiation...?" Alyssa asked, blankly - and then again, in a completely different tone that was anything but blank.
"Initiation...?"

"Yes - a 'primer course' in all the pains and pleasures of being a woman." Linda explained, as if it should have been self evident. "As you can see, they are many times stronger than for a man..."

Alyssa's face started to cloud up at the arrogant statement - and then she stopped, stunned.

It wasn't true, not quite. Physically, the sensations had been different - but not particularly stronger.

They had been more... immediate, however. Internal, rather than external - though there were also a hell of a lot more areas externally than Alyssa was used to, as well. Like those tits...

"...and, so, we had to see if you could handle it, or if you'd just go insane. Many do, you know - they go crazy, become the 'fantasy women' we've made them. Their own fantasy women, as you know..."

Suddenly, Alyssa did know - it had been blocked from her, before.

The body she was wearing was of her own creation. Though it had been locked away, now Alyssa could remember standing in front of the mirror, numbly describing to Linda what he thought the sexiest woman he could possibly make out of himself would look like.

Well, just like the body she now wore. As for the whole 'insanity' thing - Alyssa shuddered to think how close she'd come, herself.

"...and so it's fair that they'll spend the rest of their lives as them. You, however, are one of ten percent or so who make it to the full status of 'woman'."

Thoughts, questions, realizations, all floated around in the new woman's head. Finally, she just let one of the questions pop out. "How many?" Alyssa asked.

Linda grinned. "Well, all of your 'discoveries' have been around since the Eighties. Every time somebody 'invents' them, we pay them a call. Oh, not just 'inventors', though - also, witnesses, anybody who stumbles across awkward evidence, or people who ask too many questions. Again, as always, such... annoying people are always male. So, to answer your question - three thousand, two hundred, and twenty-five. Well - you make -twenty-six."

"So... what do I do now...?" Alyssa asked, numbly, still trying to wrap her mind around the thought of living her life as a voluntary woman. That was, one who had her own volition. It was... not a fate 'worse than death'. In fact... it could even be nice?

Linda grinned. "Well, why not do what I did atier I was 'turned'? - join our organization." Alyssa gaped. "You - turned? You were. "

Linda giggled and gestured at her long, slender body. "Honey, nature don't give you goods like these. "

"Oh..." Alyssa said, staring into the distance as her mind spun. Then, slowly, she began to grin.

"Got any missions suitable for a 'trainee'. ?"

Linda grinned back, wickedly. "Actually, with that new figure, you're perfect for my next assignment - we'll use you as 'bait' to get into his life, since we can't use any government 'fronts' on him - he's clean.

Alyssa blinked. "Oh - well, then he's not a medical researcher, that's for sure."

Linda nodded. "Yeah - he's an Internet writer. Goes by the name 'Gunslinger', and he's gotten a little too close to the truth in his 'fictional' details...

The End

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: When a writer's hotrod plunges off a bridge, he awakes to find that his mind has mysteriously been transferred to the body of a young woman who was trying to commit suicide at the same time he he had his car accident.

Step Out Of Time

By Gunslinger

"There you go, Mr. Sanderson. She's all yours." The dealer's oily smile widened as he dropped the keys into John's out-stretched hand. Smiling as widely, John accepted the keys, and turned to look at his new acquisition. Usually a focused, almost emotionless young man, John's normally expressionless demeanor was replaced with an almost giddy expression as he surveyed the sportscar

It was a brand-new AC Cobra. Painted in a bright, fire engine red, with two white racing stripes, it was the new model. Unlike the models produced in the past two years, which had the 289 C.I. engines, the '65 had the big-block 427.

Sliding one hand across the smooth finish, John opened the door and slid behind the wheel. Inserting the key into the ignition, he cranked it over. He was rewarded with the deep roar of a bad-ass big-block, and the car vibrated with contained power. All of it under John's command.

Waving at the dealer, John dropped the roadster into gear, and slammed down on the gas. The back tires squealed before gaining traction, and the powerful car shot forward, accompanied by the stench of burnt rubber. With the massive engine in a light body, the acceleration was punishing. Whipping the wheel hard to the right, John shot out onto the street. The Cobra's rear end began to slide, but John deftly corrected it and the muscular blue car straightened out, the horns of other drivers fading behind him as he shot forward.

Smiling, John eased off the gas and let the car settle into a more sedate - and legal - speed. Relaxing in the leather seat, he enjoyed the warm, California air as it washed over the windshield, tossing his long, sun-bleached blond hair playfully.

For John Sanderson, life was good.

An intelligent, handsome, athletic young man, John wasn't quite the 'All American Boy'. He was an intensely focused, relentlessly logical young man. A writer, he'd dropped out of college to pursue his dream. At the time, his family had thought him crazy - abandon a college which he'd gotten into on a Football scholarship, to write books? It seemed insane to them. But John had just shrugged, and gone to work on his novel. Taking a year to finish it, he began to search for a publisher. A friend of his, also a writer, had suggested John get an agent. When John had decided not to, his friend had warned him that only 12% of unagented writers ever got published, but John had pushed ahead, confident that his novel would sell itself.

He was right. The very first publisher he'd gone to had accepted the manuscript, amazed at the sheer quality of a first-time writer. He knew the book was going to be a best seller.

And then, just yesterday, John's advance had arrived. For twenty minutes, he'd just stared at the check, holding in his hand the tangible proof of his success. Being so aloof and self-contained, he had few friends, and no girlfriend, to splurge the money on. So, he'd decided to splurge on his dream car.

This morning, he'd driven his beat-up '54 Chevy onto the lot of the local Ford dealer. The dealer had been overjoyed when John had walked in, plopped a briefcase onto the desk, and opened it - revealing the exact price of the new, 1965 AC Cobra, in cash. The deal had gone easily, without a hitch. The dealer had actually had the car in stock for another client - but that other client sure as hell wasn't 'putting cash on the barrelhead'.

John leaned over and switched on the radio, tapping his hands on the steering wheel in time with the new hit from the Stones. Traffic thinned as he swung onto the Coastal highway, and he accelerated, letting himself enjoy the Cobra's easy power. He was looking forward towards the look on his friend's face when he pulled up at the apartment they shared. The '65 Cobra had become available only four days before - and according to the dealer, John was the first buyer of the new model in the whole state.

The Cobra was coming up on the downslope of the highway. The Coastal highway ran atop a long, straight cliff until this point, then used a series of sharp, hair-pin curves as it descended back down to sea-level. Enjoying the power of the Cobra, but not reckless enough to try the dangerous curves at high speed, John eased down on the brake.

The Cobra began to slow - and then, John's foot when down on the suddenly unresisting pedal, as the car refused to decelerate. "Goddamnit!" John shouted, realizing his brake line had just burst. "It's BRAND FUCKING NEW!"

Skillfully, he navigated the car around the first curve, riding dangerously close to the edge of the cliff. As the car rounded the corner, John turned off the ignition, then took a deep breath. Holding tightly to the wheel with his left hand, John dropped the gearshift into PARK.

Instantly, the wheels locked up. The car began to slow rapidly, but also began to drift sideways as the locked wheels slipped into a skid. John jammed the gear back into NEUTRAL, and regained control of the car before slamming it back into PARK.

One again, the car began to slow, coming up on the next curve. Having dropped to a safer speed, John put it in neutral again, and began to round the corner - and directly towards a aging pick-up, stalled on an angle across both lanes.

What happened next was caused by habit. Reacting instinctively, John slammed on the brakes and crimping the wheel hard to the side. Before his conscious brain could recall his failed brakes, his instinctive reaction had swung the car sideways. Still moving at a good clip, the brand-new Cobra smashed through the guardrail, and shot off the side of the cliff.

The front of the car, burdened with its big-block engine, dropped sharply downward, providing John Sanderson a fantastic view of the ocean racing up to meet him.

"Oh. Shit." He said wearily. Then the hurtling car impacted the rolling swells of the Pacific with a tremendous splash. Within seconds, it had sank from view, its bright-red paint fading into the sunless depths of the eternal ocean.

* * * * *

Slowly, John regained consciousness. The first thing he was aware of was the sensations - incredibly strong sensations that assaulted him, almost overwhelming him in a flood of tactile information.

First, the sensations of a coarse material, almost like sandpaper but more giving, both beneath and over him. The material covering him felt like it was quite heavy, several pounds at least.

Then, there was the heavy weight pressing against his chest. It was warm, and almost comfortable in its softness, but weighty. Whatever it was also sending decidedly strange, and altogether not unpleasant, sensations through his nipples.

Becoming aware of a certain, indefinable smell that declared he was in a hospital, John slowly opened his eyes, and found himself staring at a white panel ceiling. The fact that he was in a hospital was unsurprising, considering what had happened. What was surprising was that he survived at all - and, apparently, almost unharmed. No pain announced itself to herald a broken or maimed body. Slowly, John levered himself up to see himself, ignoring the heavy drag of something on his head.

The 'heavy, coarse' material covering him was nothing more than a simple hospital blanket. Confused, not understanding why he felt one thing and saw another, he moved to pull it aside.

And stopped dead, staring at his arm. Only, it wasn't HIS arm.

Less muscular than it should have been, the slender, dusky arm ended in a slim wrist and a delicate, long fingered, and decidedly feminine hand. The nails were long, and painted a subdued gloss red. It was a beautiful, perfectly womanly hand.

Staring at his hand, he lifted the other beside it, and stared at the two identical, female hands. Slowly, stunned, he used his - used the hands to pull back the sheet.

For the first time in his life, his logical, passionless mind failed him, and he panicked.

He screamed, not noticing his voice emerging as a rich contralto, as he looked down at the two large, firm, proudly female breasts hanging off of his - HER - chest. Below the magnificent, firm breasts, a flat, smooth abdomen led past a remarkably slender waist to wide, womanly hips. Nestled between the smooth, soft thighs was a perfectly formed vagina.

"NO!" he screamed, repeating the single word over and over in a hysterical - and definitely female - voice. His new hands rose and touched his firm breasts, trying to dispel the image.

Instead, he jerked, almost as if he'd gotten a shock of electricity. The most powerful sensations flooded from the new endowments as he felt the pressure, texture and warmth of his hands through his new breasts' flesh with unbelievable sensitivity. Jolt of pure pleasure racked his changed body from his engorged nipples, almost as intense as the sensation he would have gotten from having his now non-existent penis stroked.

Then, the door to the room flew open, and a nurse charged in. She took one look at John, sitting in the bed and screaming a wordless denial, and promptly injected him with a hypo.

The drug entered his bloodstream, and he once more sunk beneath the comforting blank of unconsciousness.

* * * * *

When he came awake a second time, John knew immediately that the whole thing hadn't been some sort of dream. He once again felt the same sensations he'd felt last time he'd awoken. Struggling to hold back panic, he - no, 'she', opened her eyes.

'She' found 'herself' looking at a distinguished looking older doctor. Well dressed, with his dark hair streaked with silver at the temples, he had an open, intelligent face that immediately set people at ease. At the moment, that face was set in an expression of concern.

"Don't worry, everything's going to be all right." The doctor said, seeing John awake. "Please, just listen to me. Suicide isn't the way out for you."

John's mind spun as 'she' tried to cope with what was going on. Goddamnit, how did he end up as a WOMAN? Then, the doctor's words registered, and 'she' frowned.

"Suicide? What? I don't...look, Doctor. I don't understand what's going on. Where am I? Who are you? WHAT'S HAPPENING TO ME?!" The last question was almost a shout, ending in a soft sob. He may have usually been a coldly intelligent person, but this situation was far beyond his usual capabilities.

The doctor snapped back, almost as if punched. "Sandra, it's me. Doctor Howland. What's wrong?"

John frowned. "Sandra? You mean...me? And, should I know you?" Slowly, John's mind came back on an even keel as 'she' realized something even odder than his body's change was going on.

Dr. Howland blinked, then leaned forward again, his voice carefully controlled. "Do you know what date it is, Sandra?" "Uh, I...no, I don't" John replied. "Look, do you know me? Why are you calling me Sandra? What happened to me?"

The doctor didn't answer right away. Picking up the phone on the bed table, he punched in a number, then asked someone to 'send Dr. Kuntz to room 328 for a consult.' Hanging up the phone, the doctor turned back to John.

"You're in the hospital. You tried to commit suicide last night by jumping into the ocean. When you arrived, you were technically D.O.A. We revived you, but the prolonged lack of oxygen to the brain seems to have caused some amnesia. But everything's going to be okay, Sandra."

"Suicide?' John asked, trying to figure out what had happened. Suddenly, an idea burst in 'her' mind, so impossible, so unlikely...yet, the only one that seemed to fit the circumstances.

"Where...where did I jump from?" 'she' asked slowly.

The doctor looked surprised at the question, but answered it. "The cliffs off the Coastal highway."

John settled back in the bed as 'she' realized the truth. That was the place his car had gone off the road. When it had hit the ocean - he'd died. Somehow, when this Sandra woman jumped in to drown herself, his soul had ended up in her body when it had been revived.

It was a realization that was mind-boggling.

All this passed through 'her' mind in a second. "Doctor, what IS the date today?" 'she' asked slowly, trying to figure out all the sides and angles to this turn of events.

'Her' mind simply stopped working when Dr. Howland gave his answer. "March 3rd, 1998"

John - 'Sandra' - stared agape at the doctor. Thirty-three years! He'd been dead for thirty-three years, and was now re-incarnated as a woman, living in, to him at least, the future.

"Who am I? How do I know you?" 'she' asked, trying to deal with the surprises that were piling up on 'her'.

"Your name is Sandra Johnson. You're 23, and quite healthy. I'm Doctor Peter Howland, and I've been attending you for Meissner Syndrome." He replied.

Sandra Johnson? Could the similarities of their names be part of the reason his soul ended up in her body? And then the doctor's full answer made 'her' realize that 'her' body may be in less than perfect health.

"Meissner Syndrome?" 'she' asked fearfully.

Howland nodded. "Yes. You developed it a few months ago. It's a condition that causes an extremely heightened sense of touch. It's an extremely rare condition."

Well, that explained the sensations 'she'd' experienced. She hesitated. "What exactly - well, why would I try to kill myself. Because of the Syndrome?"

The doctor cleared his throat uneasily. "Well, you do have to watch yourself. The actual effects of the syndrome are like a narcotic - extreme pleasure is possible during, uh, various sorts of sexual intercourse. And, you have to abstain from any sort of intercourse unless you're willing to accept the...well, the addiction. Any sexual contact you do have becomes highly addictive, and you will develop a psychological need to experience it again." Well, that was DEFINITELY one thing she didn't have to worry about. Before 'she' could ask any of the hundreds of questions swirling in 'her' mind, there was a knock on the door, and a second doctor stuck his head in. Howland excused himself, and stepped into the hall with the other doctor.

As the door swung shut, Sandra noticed for the first time the full-length mirror mounted on the back of it. Slowly, 'she' slid out of bed, and stood up.

A bolt of pain shot up 'her' leg as 'she' put pressure on 'her' right foot. Wincing, 'she' limped to the door. A wealth of sensations flooded 'her' with their intensity - the weight and sway of 'her' new breasts, the air moving past 'her' soft skin, the texture of the floor beneath 'her' bare heel - all were remarkably sharp, strong sensations. 'She' struggled to ignore the flood of sensations, as 'she' reached the door, and got the first real look at the body 'she' now possessed.

She was beautiful.

John wondered what bloodlines could have produced such a strikingly exotic woman as the one reflected in the mirror. Her skin was a dusky shade, not quite reaching swarthy. Just a rich color, a few shades lighter than cinnamon. No imperfection marred the silky smooth expanse of dusky, small-pored flesh.

Her legs were long and shapely in a well-muscled way that detracted nothing from their femininity. Her luscious legs led to wide, womanly hips that were well rounded. Her ass was firm and full, without being too much of a good thing.

Her waist was delightfully slender. No wider than 21 inches, her slender waist then led up to an equally slender ribcage that supported a pair of ripe, gorgeous breasts, which were probably a D-cup. The nipples were darker than the surrounding flesh, and were a good size, despite the almost non-existent areolas.

In spite of a body that was almost perfect, it was her face that was the most striking. Wide and finely formed, with high cheekbones and a strong jaw, it was a richly exotic face with traces of American Indian in it.

Her lips were deliciously full and soft beneath a nose that was well shaped. Her eyes were large and intelligent, a rich brown color, graced by two arched, slender brows. Her head was framed by a mass of black hair falling in curls past her slender shoulders.

John - Sandra - Surveyed her incredible figure, then limped back to bed, mind whirling. Of one thing, she was sure - John Sanderson was dead, and in his grave. Although his body, and life, were gone, his soul now had a second chance at a life. As revolting as the thought of being a woman was to John, it was infinitely better than being dead. But, if she tried to explain the truth, her new life would be spent locked up in an institution. They'd think she'd gone crazy. But amnesia...that could work in her favor. Although he'd already started referring to himself as a woman in his own mind, it had been a label, describing the body he was in. Now, he realized he had no choice but to accept it as who he - NO, goddamnit, SHE - was. It wouldn't be easy. But over half the world's population was female. If they could do it, then so could she. Besides, she had the excitement of living three decades in the 'future' to offset the despair of spending a life as a woman. From now on, she'd have to try to pass as a woman. She'd just slipped back between the remarkably rough-feeling sheets, ignoring their scratching, when Howland re-entered, and sat beside her.

"Sandra, I just talked to the staff psychiatrist. At his recommendation, I've called your roommate - Kari, by the way - and asked her to come get you. Dr. Kuntz feels the best way for you to regain your memories is to do things and go places you're used to, and see if that triggers your memories. I've explained everything to Kari, so she'll be able to help you."

Sandra nodded. "Thank you. I appreciate all this, doctor. By the way, did I injure my foot in the attempt?"

Howland looked blank for a second, then he realized what she meant. "Oh, no. That's an old injury. But since you developed the Syndrome, it's extremely painful to put pressure on it flatly."

Sandra frowned. "You mean I'll always be in pain when I walk?"

The doctor shook his head, "No, it's only when you put pressure on it straight down. You're fine in heels - well, sort of. The higher the heel, the less painful, is what YOU told ME." He grinned slightly. "You told me you always hated to wear heels, and now you spend all day in..."

He was interrupted by the door opening, and a cute, petite blonde came in. Dressed in jeans and a sweatshirt, she was carrying a gym bag on one arm. She smiled tentatively.

"Hi, Sandra. It's me. Kari?" She said, searching for recognition in Sandra's deep, brown eyes.

"I'm sorry. I just don't remember you." Sandra said sadly - and truthfully - "But I understand you're my roommate, and you're going to help me. Thank you."

"I'll go now. You're free to go home any time Sandra, but I'll be getting in touch from time to time to see how you're doing. And of course, you can call me anytime." Dr. Howland said, as he rose. Then he was through the door, and gone.

Kari's face had fallen at the news of complete amnesia, but now she forced a smile. "Hey, I'm also your best friend in the whole world. Of course I'm going to help you. Besides, now you don't remember any of my embarrassing secrets..." she smiled slyly "...but I remember all of yours just fine!"

Sandra laughed, more for Kari's morale than out of real humor. "Okay. Let's get out of here, shall we?"

Kari opened the gym bag, and lay out some clothing on the bed as Sandra climbed out and balanced awkwardly on her uninjured leg. An odd expression settled on her exotic face as she eyed the clothing.

"I'm NOT wearing this in public." She said firmly.

Kari sighed. "I know you don't like it, but since your...syndrome, you've gotten used to it."

Sandra had set her mind to living as a woman - but not really BEING a woman. Certainly, not wearing clothes like this. Once again, she eyed the outfit on the bed.

Tall, spike heel shoes in red leather. Silk panties. A long, tight red leather skirt, and a red top that was indecently small, and made out of an unfamiliar material. She picked the last item up.

"What in God's name is THIS?" she asked, playing with the stretch garment. "Your Spandex crop-top." Kari said in surprise.

Sandra shook her head, dropping the crop-top on the bed. "I was thinking of something more like what your wearing."

Kari looked like she'd bitten into a lemon. Without a word, she slipped the baggy sweatshirt off, revealing pert, bra-encased B-cup breasts. Sandra tried not to stare at her breasts as she accepted the sweatshirt uncomprehendingly.

"Go on. Try it on." Kari said. Sandra slipped it on.

And immediately tore it off. To her hyper-sensitive skin, it felt like she was being sand-blasted. Wearing one would be completely unbearable.

Kari nodded as she put it back on. "I know. You hated it the first time, too. But, now you can only wear smooth, soti clothing - spandex, silk, latex, leather, velvet. Stuff like that. And fairly tight too - anything that moves over your skin to much is very...distracting for you."

"What do you mean..." Sandra started. Then, she thought what it would feel like having a soti, silky fabric constantly sliding over her hyper-sensitive skin. How incredibly good it would feel, all the time. Hell yeah, it'd be distracting. "Oh." She finished lamely. Sighing, she began to dress.

She shivered in pleasure as the smooth, silk panties slid into place around her womanly hips. She was both mildly aroused by just how good the fabric felt next to her supple skin, and disgusted to be wearing such overly feminine underwear.

The long, ankle length skirt was next, cool and sensual against her flesh. She ignored it as she slipped on the crop top. It was nicely filled by her firm tits, covering just them, but baring her slender waist and long, delicate arms.

Sighing, she eyed the spike-heeled shoes, then stepped into them. She expected to fall over in them - but although her male soul had never worn heels, her female body was well experienced in them. And since habitual skill are a function of the body, not the mind, she moved as easily in them as if she'd been born in them. Thankfully, it was completely painless.

Kari then helped her with jewelry and makeup. As Kari 're-taught' her best friend to put on lip-stick, eye-shadow and mascara, she didn't understand why Sandra was blushing so furiously.

Embarrassed at her actions, but knowing it was now part of her new life, Sandra finished her make-up. Sighing, she stood, and surveyed the finished product in the mirror - and gasped.

She was a vision in erotic sensuality. Between her exotic beauty, and the clothing, she was absolutely gorgeous. Sexy, but not in a 'cheap' or 'easy' way. She was sexy in an intelligent 'you have to be a real man to please me' way. The excessively high, 5-inch heels did interesting things to her walk. The male John would have a raging hard-on by now.

Yet, despite how gorgeous she found herself, Sandra's body wasn't aroused. The same as when Kari had taken her top off - her new body wasn't oriented to women. Since her still-male ego refused to even CONSIDER men, Sandra realized she was going to look at life- long chastity. Well, it was a small price to pay for a new life.

Finally, ready, Sandra followed Kari as they headed out. Her spike- heels clicked on the tile floor as her firm, round ass did truly intriguing things inside the tight sheath of her skirt. She found it damn weird to walk so easily - so femininely - in such high, heels. Sandra blushed as she realized that men were eyeing her sensuous form as she glided down the hallway. The fact that her highly sensitive body was receiving some VERY pleasurable sensations didn't help. The gentle sway and bounce of her large tits with every step, the gentle friction of her panties against her ass and newly empty crotch, the feel of the leather skirt...in short, her body was becoming aroused.

They reached the front door - and Sandra stopped dead, realizing for the first time, really, truly realizing that she was about to step outside. That this was REAL, that she was about to start her new life as a gorgeous, exotic young woman.

It took all her willpower to push through the door. The warm sunlight embraced her dusky body, the sensation magnified by her condition. It felt wonderful. She followed Kari towards the parking lot, each step coming easier than the last. She began to enjoy the remarkably pleasant sensations she was feeling. The arousal FELT good, regardless. By the time she reached Kari's Ford, she'd relaxed enough to begin to take an interest in her surroundings.

Like the cars in the lots. To Sandra's eyes, the designs were new and unusual. To her dismay, she found that a great majority of the cars were smaller than she was used to, including Kari's Festiva. Also, there seemed to be a severe lack of chrome in the cars. Somehow, they just didn't look right.

"I brought my car." Kari told Sandra, letting her in. "I'd loved to have driven yours, but I didn't want to get pulled over for a speeding ticket on the way here. I always do when I drive the Blue Bomber."

"Uh...that's okay." Sandra said absently. She was squirming slightly in the seat, amazed at the feel of the friction beneath her firm, ripe ass. Suddenly realizing what she was doing, she blushed violently and stopped. She turned her attention to the windows, watching the new world go by.

Surprisingly, aside from the cars and the fashions, not much had really changed in three decades - 'himself' excluded, of course. Somehow, it was almost a let down.

Kari looked over at her. "Don't worry. Things will work out. You'll see." She promised consolingly, misconstruing Sandra's expression. Sandra blinked as a thought occurred to her. "Hey. What do I do for a living? Where do I work?" she asked Kari.

Kari looked surprised. "Boy, you HAVE forgotten everything, haven't you? You don't work anywhere - you're an author. I'm sure that even if your memory is gone, your talent's still there."

Sandra was surprised. "Oh? Yeah, I'm sure I'll be able to write. How'd I done so far?"

Kari smiled. "Five New York Time bestsellers, and one of them's being made into a movie. Trust me honey, you aren't hurting for cash."

Sandra smiled, relieved. Things were looking up. Apparently, she was wealthy, and already established as a writer. "So, Kari, what do you do for a living?"

Kari smiled back. "Hey, I'm a dancer. Broadway style stuff, you know. Right now, I'm the understudy for Christine in 'Phantom' " She looked at Sandra, who shook her head blankly. "Never mind. I'll take you to see it some time. Meanwhile, I'm waiting for our illustrious leading lady to fall down, so I can have my big break. Not as rich and famous as you - yet - but I earn a few bucks here and there. Hey, here we are. Welcome home."

The small car pulled into the large. Cobbled 'courtyard' between a carriage-house style garage and a large, elegant Victorian home. It seemed a pretty good indication of how well Sandra's books were selling.

"Woah!" Sandra exclaimed in surprise. Kari had just taken down a small black box from her visor and pushed it - and the wooden doors of the garage were opening by themselves.

"Yeah." Kari said, looking at her strangely. "We've always had a garage door opener at this place."

Sandra shrugged, passing it off. "I don't even remember living here. EVERYTHING is new to me." Which was true. Kari pulled into the garage - and Sandra's eyes were drawn to what could only be her car, the Blue Bomb.

This, THIS, was what Sandra thought a '90's car should be. She didn't know it, but it was called a Viper, a direct descendant of the Cobra that had taken 'his' life. All she knew was that it was the 'baddest' car she'd ever seen.

"Oh, SHIT!" Kari swore, and Sandra turned to her, worried. "What's wrong?" she asked.

Kari was holding some sort of small black box with a green little area at one end. "The theatre's calling. This close to curtain, it means something must have happened to the leading lady. DAMN!" She pounded on the steering wheel, then sighed. "Come on, let go in and get some dinner."

Sandra realized what was happening. "HELL NO!" She said loudly, startling Kari. Sandra opened her car door and got out. "I'm going inside. You're getting you cute little ass down to that theatre. You've got your big break. Go do your thing."

Kari looked indecisive. "I don't want to run out on you..." she said, torn.

"If it was my fault you missed this, I'd hate myself for the rest of my live. Go on." Sandra said, slamming the door. Kari smiled gratefully, then restarted the little vehicle. She backed out of the garage - then stopped suddenly.

"Here! Catch!" Kari called, then tossed something to Sandra. She caught it - and realized it was the house key. Glad Kari had remembered, Sandra waved to her as she pulled away.

As she watched Kari leave, Sandra frowned. For some reason she was feeling sort of...antsy. She couldn't think of any other way to put it. She hoped it wasn't anything serious.

Using the key, Sandra opened the door and let herself into her house. She pushed the door shut behind her, hearing it's lock 'snick' into place. Dropping the key beside the door, she hesitantly began to look around, feeling like an intruder in the unfamiliar home.

Since she'd come in the back door, Sandra found herself in the kitchen. It was much like any kitchen she was used to, except for a few things. Immediately, her logical mind began to catalog some differences.

The decor was more muted than had been common when 'he' had died. The fridge looked larger, and not as utilitarian. There was a clock on the wall, one of the new 'digital' ones - with larger, brighter numbers. Of course, it wasn't 'new' now.

And on one counter was a large, unfamiliar device. It had a glass fronted door, with a touch-pad beside it and a LED display above that. He looked it over carefully, discovering that it was a 'Turntable Microwave Oven', according to words on the front. She wondered how the heck the thing worked.

Since she was hungry, she decided to try to figure it out. Sooner or later, she'd have to use it, it might as well be 'sooner'.

Rooting around for something simple, she found what looked like T.V. dinners in the large freezer. She checked the instructions on the side. Convention Oven - 35 min. Yeah, no surprises there. Microwave - 8-10 min.

Bemused, Sandra followed the instructions, placing the little tray - not the aluminum she was used to - into the microwave, then puzzling out the controls.

She tried 'Time Cook', and was rewarded by the clock disappearing from the little screen, replaced with a little '0'. She pressed the '8' key, and that number appeared in the read-out. She hit 'Start'.

Eight seconds later, the microwave beeped, and declared 'END' in the little window. Laughing, Sandra tried again, this time punching in 8:00.

Fifteen minutes later, she threw the remains into the garbage, thoroughly pleased at having mastered her first attempt at 'future' technology.

Since the sun was beginning to sink in the horizon, she switched on the lights in the kitchen. A bit of fiddling, and she worked out how to use the particular coffee-maker on the counter. Having started it brewing, she began to look around the rest of the house, switching the lights on as she went.

Stepping into the living room, she stopped dead, staring in awe at the 53" T.V. along one wall. Likewise, the complex stereo system was more advanced than any she'd ever seen.

As she toured the rest of the large house, she realized that almost all the "futuristic" advances were not in the basic necessities, or even in the labor-saving devices. They were in the 'leisure' equipment. The T.V., the stereo, clock/radios. Even a tiny, portable tape player called, for some inexplicable reason, a 'Walkman.' And then, there was that 'Presario' thing in what she assumed was her room. Judging from the things around it, it was used in her writing. Like a 'super- typewriter'. Or, maybe, just maybe, a 'computer' of the type in science fiction books.

Finally, she had covered the house, poking and prodding around. Having fixed herself a coffee, she headed up to her room. She was starting to worry. That 'antsy' feeling was becoming stronger, and she didn't know what it meant. Maybe it was...

Then, as she sat at the desk in the Master bedroom, she realized what it was. Resting on the desk was an ashtray, and a pack of cigarettes. Sandra was a smoker.

Hesitantly, Sandra lit one and took a feeble puff, expecting to go into a coughing fit. But her body, long used to it, accepted it easily. Taking a deeper drag was actually very satisfying. Bemused, she smoke the cigarette down to the filter as she drank her coffee, and puzzled over the incomprehensible manual she'd found for the Desktop Computer she'd found.

Giving it up - for now, at least - Sandra wandered over to the closet, and opened it. She idly flipped through the assortment of clothing, and wondered what to do for the rest of the evening.

And then she found her purse. Inside, I.D., car keys - and money. Quite a lot of money. A couple of hundred dollars in cash.

Sandra stopped dead as a thought began to form. At first, she dismissed it - then it came back, and she actually considered it. It couldn't hurt, could it?

Feeling slightly guilty, and very excited, she decided to give going top a nightclub a shot. At first, the thought of going as a woman had been disturbing. Intellectually, she knew she was now a fully functional woman physically, but mentally, she still felt like a guy dressed in women's clothes.

But she couldn't live her life in seclusion. Hell, she'd just been brought back from the dead. If that wasn't reason to celebrate...

Feeling almost giddy, he carefully picked out something he would feel comfortable wearing. A long, flowing velvet dress in an elegant burgundy, with matching two-inch heels. Quickly, she changed into it, and looked in the mirror.

It was stunning on her - but, not really night-clubish. If that had been all, she would have gone ahead - she wasn't exactly a fashion critic about how she looked.

But the damn 'sensibly' short heels were killing her feet. And nothing else would go well with that dress.

Slowly, Sandra began to smile. She felt a strange sensation in her lower belly as the thought slowly grew stronger. She was beginning to feel deliciously naughty, and finally, she nodded to herself in the mirror.

"Oh, what the hell?" she said out loud to herself.

* * * * *

Don checked his hair in the reflective glass door of Stages Nightclub, then pulled it open. He was about to step through, when he heard a powerful, muscular rumbling, followed by the squeal of brakes. He turned to look at the blue Dodge Viper that slid to a stop at the curb. The valet went around and opened the door.

And a goddess stepped out.

Don's jaw dropped as he gaped at the woman emerging from the car. She was spectacularly gorgeous, with long, curly hair and full, ripe lips. And there was no doubt that her body was firm and shapely, with large, firm tits and an incredible ass.

There was no doubt, because her clothing announced it.

She wore a one-piece bodysuit of skintight latex, with a built in corset that shrunk her already unbelievable waist. Although her legs were technically covered, the skin-tight latex revealed every curve and muscle, all accented by the 6 inch spike shoes she wore, also in gleaming black.

Sandra smiled at the handsome man standing in the doorway, a blank, mindless look on his face. When she'd first leti the house, Sandra had been tentative, ashamed and embarrassed. Twice she'd almost turned back - especially when she'd had to stop for gas. The thought of having to deal with people dressed like this... She couldn't believe she'd given in to her idle whim to do it. The reason she had given in was simple - the skin-tight outfit felt mind-boggling sensual when she moved. Like somebody constantly caressing every inch of her body every time she took a step.

And then, she'd discovered something amazing at that gas station. Guys fell all over themselves trying to help her. It was like she held some magical ability that turned men into mindless idiots who only lived to make sure her every whim was met.

Now, although embarrassed at knowing WHY they were acting like that, it no way diminished her enjoyment of HAVING them act like that. She couldn't believe just how big a kick she was getting, driving men wild by just existing. Like this poor sap at the door.

"Hi. Thanks for getting the door for me." she said, using her voice in it's sexiest registers. The guy blinked at her. "Uh...Sure." he said, then made a valiant effort at recovery. "I'm Don. What say I buy you a couple of drinks?" he asked.

The guy was trying so damn hard, it felt bad shooting him down out of hand. So Sandra lied to him. "I'm meeting someone." She said, feigning sadness. "But if he doesn't show up in the next little while, I'll take you up on that offer. See you inside."

Enjoying the indescribable sensation walking created, she went through the door, and into the front area. Before she could get her purse open, two guys were fighting over the right to pay her cover charge.

Smiling, she walked through the second door, and into the club itself. Instantly, she was hit by a wall of sound, smell and sight. The deep, bass drive of the music rose above everything, as cigarette smoke swirled and people mingled. Sandra headed for the bar, gasping in pleasure every time somebody brushed past her, the light, fleeting contact amazingly pleasurable. Finally, she made it to the bar - and was stunned at some of the prices. Shrugging, she ordered a screwdriver, then found a seat, and watched some of the people on the dance floor, while trying to get used to what passed as dancing these days. And the music. The pounding, driving music!

Despite her intellect, Sandra had failed to take certain things into account. The first soon became apparent. Within her first hour at the club, a steady stream of men approached her, free drink in hand, in hopes of winning her attention. Of course, Sandra was in no way enticed to spend time with any of them - but, not really noticing, she consumed quite a bit of alcohol. All in a body unused to that amount of booze.

She also noticed something else she hadn't planned on - the heavy, thrumming bass thundering from the speakers was as much felt as heard. And, with her particular condition, the vibration was magnified into a constant, pleasurable sensation that thrummed through her magnificent body. She was embarrassed to find her nipples straining at the glossy black latex covering them, as the deep, thudding beat aroused her thoroughly feminine body.

But it was her last oversight that was the most important - hormones.

Despite her mental inclinations, her body was completely female. She didn't even notice the fact that her eyes often strayed to the crotches of men talking to her, gazing at the bulges swelling beneath the fabric.

And so, by ten o'clock, without realizing it, she was quite drunk, very aroused, and horny as hell.

Sandra stood to one side of the dance floor, swaying slightly as she smoked a cigarette. Everything seemed to have become brighter and louder, a swirling haze of light and sound, and she was having trouble concentrating. Especially since her nipples, and her new cunt, seemed to be demanding her attention. Without thinking, she lightly rubbed one latex covered breast, sighing at the flow of pleasure, and wondering why she felt so...odd.

"Hi there. Your friend never show up?" The voice came from behind her, and she turned slowly, and blinked at the tall, handsome man behind her. A fragment of memory stirred.

"Don, right?" she said. "I'm John... I mean, Sandra Johnson." She blinked slightly. "I don't remember much. I got amnes...amnesia. Didn't I promise to meet you?" In her booze and hormone fogged mind, all she could sharply recall was smiling at him, and telling him she'd enjoy seeing him inside.

Butting out her cigarette, she took his hand. "Come on. Let's dance." She murmured, and led him to the floor. Soon she was gyrating with drunken enthusiasm, moaning softly at the sensation the latex created as it slid over her body.

For an hour they danced, Don unable to believe that this gorgeous creature was spending time with him. Sandra, drunk, didn't realize that the whole time she was not only smiling at him, but staring at his crotch as she touched herself suggestively. She could have been 'coming on' harder if she tried. And she didn't even know she was doing it.

"Do you want to go someplace more...private?" Don finally worked up enough courage to ask. Completely missing the subtext of the statement, Sandra smiled. "Sure. Sounds like fun."

He put his hand around her to lead her from the club. It felt so good, Sandra unthinkingly pressed closer to him, letting his hand move to lightly fondle her magnificent ass as they left the club. Under the conditions, Sandra was no longer really thinking - she was merely reacting to pleasurable stimuli, unable to concentrate enough to realize what she was doing.

Sandra followed Don out front, and she walked unsteadily towards the Viper, fumbling her keys out of her purse. Adroitly, Don, relieved her of the keys and guided her to the passenger side, unlocking the door and helping her in. Sliding across the gleaming hood of the powerful blue roadster, he opened the driver's side door and settled into the low-slung leather seat.

Bringing the powerful engine to life, Don pulled away from the curb and headed towards his apartment, various thoughts dancing through his head and enlarging his already engorged cock. Sandra, thoroughly drunk, just sat in the seat, smiling vacantly, as one slender, shapely hand absently fondled one latex clad breast, enjoying the sensations it created.

Moments later, the Viper pulled into the parking lot of Don's apartment. Helping Sandra out of the car, he eagerly led her towards his apartment. She followed unresistingly, one hand lightly touching her crotch, as he opened the door and pulled her inside.

The instant the door closed behind them, Don embraced Sandra, his hands squeezing her firm, full ass as his lips met hers in a passionate kiss. Taken by surprise, Sandra instinctively responded, and was rewarded with a flood of richly erotic sensations that thundered through her hyper-aroused body.

Feverishly, Don fumbled at the fastenings of Sandra's skin-tight vestments, and soon he'd completely undressed her. She bucked and moaned in pleasure as the slick material slid off her body, still not fully aware of what was happening. All she knew, is that it felt unbelievably good. Don pulled her spike-heels off to remove her outfit, but a brief burst of pain managed to break through her clouded mind, and she slipped the high heels back on. Meanwhile, she was lost in the sensations created by the movement of air over her erect nipples, and sopping cunt.

In a fit of passion, Don tossed the latex bodysuit over his shoulder, not noticing as it fluttered through the open balcony door and was taken by the wind. Disinterestedly, Sandra watched it flutter away. Meanwhile, Don began to tear at his own clothing.

It was as Don hurriedly disrobed that the first warning bells began to sound in the depths of her hormone befogged mind. A slight frown creased her smooth brow as her confused mind tried to work out what was going on. For some reason, something seemed wrong.

Before she could reach her conclusion, all thought was driven from Sandra's head as Don's hands and lips closed over her firm, dusky breasts, causing incredible sensations to rack her body. Sandra moaned, low and long, as Don eagerly fondled and sucked her engorged nipples. Unresistingly, she was led to his bedroom, her firm, round ass swaying enticingly.

Eagerly, Don lay her on the bed. Spreading her legs, he moved into position above her. Once more, the warning began to sound in Sandra's brain, louder this time. She frowned again.

"Where am..." she started to say - she screamed in sheer ecstasy as Don's large, hard cock plunged into her womanly vagina.

Sandra no longer existed as a reasoning, thinking human being. All conscious thoughts were swept away in the sheer power of her first sexual encounter in a body that was five times as sensitive as any other woman's body. Her screams of sheer ecstasy rose in pitch and volume as wave after wave of orgasmic pleasure built.

Don's face twisted as he pounded harder into the dusky goddess' tight, slick pussy. She began to writhe and buck energetically as she approached the brink of her first, true orgasm.

Then, it happened. Like a series of sharp explosions in a row, the multiple orgasm took her, causing her body to twist and turn as if electrical current was flowing through her. She didn't even have the energy to continue screaming as the orgasm blasted through her. The extra movements of her orgasm also pushed Don over the edge, and his cock spasmed and gushed its load deep into her cunt.

Exhausted by the wildcat he'd just ridden, Don collapsed beside Sandra, panting. Within minutes, his breathing deepened and steadied as he slipped into the arms of Morpheus. Sandra, her brain overloaded by the power of her orgasm, just lay perfectly still, staring mindlessly up at the ceiling, until sleep came to claim her as well.

* * * * *

Slowly, Sandra became aware of the warmth of sunshine splayed across her skin, dusky skin. Concurrent with that realization was her awareness of a deep, throbbing pain behind her eyes. Laying perfectly still, she tried to recall where she was, and what she was doing. When she was unable to remember anything past arriving at the club last night, she slowly opened her eyes.

Her head exploded.

Moaning, she slammed her eyes shut, and gingerly moved her head so that the rays of the late morning sun wouldn't be in her eyes when she re-opened them. Slowly, her eyelids rose again, and this time, the pounding headache was bearable.

Stiffly, Sandra sat, wondering why her cunt felt so - odd. Looking around, she found herself, naked except for her heels, laying in the rumpled bed of a decidedly batchloresque room.

It was the smell of the cum-soaked sheets under her crotch that brought the memories of the night before rushing back. In an instant, she remembered every drunken detail of her debauchery - including letting that man fuck her.

Leaning over the bed, she threw up, dry heaving convulsively as her body purged itself. Rising painfully to her feet, she staggered out of the bedroom and located the bathroom. Turning on the shower, she stepped in and began to fanatically cleanse herself, especially her crotch.

And shuddered as the erotic sensations swept over her body at the touch of her own hands. Almost instantly, her body became aroused. Disgusted, Sandra stepped from the shower and began toweling off. She winced at the sensation of the towel rubbing across her body, feeling like sandpaper to her acute nerve endings.

The episode allowed her to regain her mental equilibrium. In her mind, she was still trying to reconcile the two thoughts that held her captive. The disgust at what she'd done last night - and the memory of how unbelievably GOOD it had felt.

Naked, Sandra walked down the short hallway and into the living/dining room of the apartment. Sitting on the table was a covered plate and a coffee maker. Surprisingly, her abused stomach rumbled hungrily, and Sandra sat down.

She found a short note on the table beside the plate - which turned out to contain a still-warm bacon-and-eggs breakfast. Babe, God, last night was un-fucking-believable! You not only have one hell of a body, but you're a great lay. Feel free to hang around today - I gotta work, but when I get home, you can show me how well you suck dick.

By the way, I'll be back about six - whip up some dinner for me, will ya? The Studmeister

Sandra got as far as The End of the first paragraph the first time - and was shocked to find herself PICTURING sucking this rat-bastard's cock in her mind! She couldn't help it - her nipples shot erect as lewd images filled her brain of sucking firm hard cocks.

Forcing the images from her mind, she finished the note, then crumpled the paper and tossed it on the floor. Hungrily, she consumed the breakfast and two cups of coffee, then began poking around the apartment.

Near the front door, she found her purse. Fishing out her pack, she lit a cigarette and negligently flicked the ash on the carpet as she looked around his two-bedroom apartment.

It was the second bedroom that was the most revealing in his life - it bore the mark of many female hands. Judging from the piles of clothing and personal effects tossed in the closet, he must have had a series of live-in girlfriends who stayed for a short time each. Judging from the cheap clothes, these women weren't exactly the creme de la creme of high society.

But, at least she wouldn't have to go nude. Quickly, Sandra wiggles into a pair of black spandex pants and a black spandex crop-top, emblazoned with the 'NIKE' logo on the front. Grabbing her purse, she left the apartment, not even bothering to close the door behind her.

As she walked out into the parking lot, a man just climbing out of his car ogled her sensual body. Sandra was disgusted to find his obvious lust for her was causing lewd, hungry images to skip through her brain, arousing her body. Ignoring it as best she could, she slid into her Viper.

It took her almost four hours to get home. She simply had no idea of where the apartment had been in relation to her home, having been too drunk to follow the route they'd taken last night. She'd merely driven aimlessly until her surroundings had looked familiar enough to find her way back home.

Sighing, she opened the door and entered the sanctuary of her own home. "Kari?" she called. "You home?"

"Upstairs" came Kari's voice. "Where were you all night, Miss 'I can't remember'?"

Climbing the staircase, Sandra experienced a vivid flashback of her unbelievable orgasm, and her body became thoroughly aroused. "Uh...nowhere." she answered, blushing, as she entered Kari's room.

Her petite roommate was facing away from her, dressed in filmy white lace bra and panties. Kari was stretching, having just awoken, and her small, firm buttocks tightened as she bounced on her toes.

"So how did your show..." Sandra began - then stopped dead, gaping, as Kari turned around.

The front of her filmy panties was bulging. Nestled between the blondes' silky thighs was a massive cock and a set of huge testicles.

Kari caught the look Sandra was giving her, and glanced down, her face flaming. Her small, petite hands vainly tried to cover the bulk of her enormous penis.

"Look, stop staring." Kari said, grabbing a baggy pair of jeans and trying to pull them on, without using the one hand still trying to hide her endowment.

"You...you've got a dick!" Sandra stammered, nasty, erotic images flashing through her mind.

"Yeah, I know." Kari sighed, giving up on the pants and dropping them on the floor. "Look, I know you don't remember. You agreed to have me as a roommate because we're both freaks, and we support each other. I'm kinda a Siamese twin. Only, I'm completely female, except I got my brother's...uh...equipment." Kari looked at her oddly. "What are you doing?"

Sandra stood in the doorway, staring fixedly at her roommate's cock. One hand was lightly caressing her firm, bountiful breast while the other rubbed at her crotch. "You're huge..." she moaned huskily, lurid thought running rampant through her mind as hormones flooded her aroused body.

Unbidden, Kari's massive member began to harden. As it expanded, it revealed its true size, swelling magnificently.

"Uh...Sandra? You aren't thinking...?" Kari asked, also becoming aroused. Because of her unique state, all her sexual relations had been with other women, but never before had Sandra shown any interest in her. And Sandra WAS gorgeous. But, surely, Sandra wasn't insinuating...

Something inside Sandra's brain snapped. Here, standing before her, was a person who was feminine enough that the remaining remnants of 'John' could accept her, while the desperate need of 'Sandra' could also be satisfied.

"Fuck me." she moaned, and pulled off her crop-top, setting her dusky globes free.

Kari needed no further urging. Hungrily, she pulled her own clothes off as Sandra shed the bike shorts, then the two roommates collapsed on Kari's bed, licking and caressing each other's body.

Sandra took Kari's immense cock in her hands and began to lick it, much like she'd lick a Popsicle, enjoying the feel of its ridged surface beneath her tongue. Only when it was thoroughly coated in her saliva did she raise herself up and eagerly impale herself on it.

Screaming in pleasure, she began to ride Kari's enormous cock, feeling it expand her tight cunt as she thrust herself rhythmically upon it, bringing both 'women' to mind-shattering orgasm.

Still impaled on Kari's cock, Sandra collapsed on her friend, embracing her. Their immediate need satisfied, the two loves embraced, kissing, as the atierglow enveloped them...

* * * * *

"So, tell me - us..." John Geller said, gesturing towards the unblinking eye of the camera, "...how does it feel to win the Harriman Award for Best New Science-Fiction?"

Sandra leaned forward in her seat, her leather pants squeaking slightly. "Oh, of course it's a WONDERFUL honor." She enthused. Her eyes traveled up and down the talk-show host's lean, masculine body, and she reigned in any lustful expression. It wouldn't do to look like a sex- crazed slut on National TV. But atier the show...

Geller leaned forward slightly, also eyeing the attractive woman across from him. He was getting certain signals from her...but, right now, he had one final question before The End of the interview.

"One of the great questions that is on everybody's lips." He asked pensively. "How is it that you manage to write all you character, male AND female, with such...realism? I can understand how a woman can right so authoritatively about women. But how do you manage to make your male character's so true to life?"

Sandra smiled a smile that no one but herself understood. "I'm afraid that's my little secret..." she said sotily.

Later, in the Green Room, she demonstrated to John Geller just HOW well she understood what a man liked and wanted. Her 'unique' talent came in handy for more then just writing...

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: An abused wife runs away and rents a run-down room with an old computer which she proceeds to use to vent her feelings about her husband, who, in the meanwhile, finds that strange changes are staring to over come him leading to permanent changes.

Stereotype

By Gunslinger

"I'm sure you'll just love living here, Miss Cadin." The super smiled reassuringly.

"Uh, yeah, me too..." Debbie said almost silently - and without any conviction. Biting her lower lip, she closed the door behind the superintendent... then paused.

Would locking the dead-bolt right away make him angry? He'd hear it from outside, and now she didn't trust him...

Hesitantly, she turned the lock on the door-handle - the lock he had the key for. With nervous, faltering steps, the raven-haired woman backed away and perched nervously on the edge of the nice white couch, her large, watery eyes going to the clock on the wall.

Silently, without any part of her body moving so much as a millimeter, she waited exactly five minutes.

Moving as if she were afraid the door was suddenly going to burst inward, she crept on sneaker-clad feet across the deep-pile carpet to the door, and - as quietly as she could, face screwed up in fearful concentration - she slipped the dead-bolt lock into its frame, and pushed down the little thumb-latch that kept it from being unlocked from the outside.

Backing away from the door, Debbie let out the breath she'd been holding, then slowly looked around the apartment.

It was nice - very nice. Nicer than she'd had any right to expect. It was also safe - the windows set high up in the basement apartment's walls were too small for even her to slip through, much less a full-sized man. The door had a dead-bolt lock on it, and it was a very sturdy door indeed.

She was safe...

...so why didn't she feel safe?

Sitting back on the edge of the couch (she didn't dare think of it as 'her' couch), Debbie wrapped her arms around her body, each hand resting on the coarsely woven fabric of her dark, over-sized cable-knit sweater. Behind her large, thick glasses she once more surveyed her new domain... then hesitantly reached out to the small table beside the couch, and picked up the cordless phone. With shaking fingers, she started to dial a number....

...then stopped, a thumb with a raggedly-bitten nail coming firmly down on the 'disconnect' switch. Then, with a little more determination, she dialed another number and listened to the ringing on the other end.

"Hello, Eastwood Women's Shelter, Nina speaking." A pleasant, lightly accented voice came over the line. Debbie swallowed. "Is.. is Dana there?"

"Just a minute."

After considerably longer than that, a warm, feminine voice came on the line with a simple 'yes?'. "Dana?" Debbie said, fearfully. "It. it's Debbie. Debbie Cadin?"

"Debbie!" Dana said, warmly. "How are you. I was hoping you'd call, after our talks over the past month. When I hadn't heard from you in five days, I was beginning to worry."

Debbie swallowed. "I... I thought about what you said. About how Steve was treating me, and how no woman should have to. to try and be the perfect woman for their boyfriend. How I have rights too."

"Oh, I'm glad to hear that." Dana said, the smile in her voice coming through clearly. "Have you come to any sort of decision?"

"No... not really." Debbie said, weakly. "That.. that's why I'm not sure I did the right thing by taking all my money out of our joint account and moving into my own place."

* * * * *

In a rambling old farmhouse on the outskirts of the city, a tall, almost overly-muscular woman pulled the phone from her ear and looked at it incredulously.

After getting out of her own bad relationship, Dana had spent the last eight years counseling other battered and 'brainwashed' women - and this was the first time she'd even found herself so utterly speechless.

She put the phone back to her ear.

"Debbie. You are absolutely incredible." She told the uncertain woman at the other end of the line, naked admiration in her tone. "Most women, no matter how bad the situation they're in, lack the.. the guts it takes to do what you did, even after having the truth literally beaten into them. The fact that you feel uncertain only makes what you did that more. impressive."

* * * * *

Debbie relaxed slightly at the other woman's assurances, but was still tense and uncertain.

"I... I just keep thinking that, maybe if I'd tried a little harder, been more the way he wanted me to be..."

"Don't think like that!" Dana said. "You are an individual, with the right to be your own person. Compromise is important in a relationship

- but him staying exactly the same, and you bending to his every whim isn't compromise, it's slavery." "Maybe..." Debbie said, fretfully. "But... Some of the things he told me seem to make so much sense..."

Dana laughed, sympathetically. "Debbie, words can be slippery things. I'll tell you what, let's play a little game called Stereo Phrases." "S... Stereo Phrases?" Debbie said, uncertainly.

"You know how you can have a radio with two speakers?" Dana said. "If you put it on an AM station, the exact same music comes out of each speaker - but if you put it on an FM stereo station, the same song is played through each speaker - but each speaker is slightly different."

"Yeah, okay." Debbie said, frowning slightly as she took in the metaphor.

"Good. Now, to show you how slippery words are, we're going to do that with sentences - write one, then write another with the same 'melody', but different from the first." She paused. "Like this, for example: I can say 'My sister has blue eyes'. Okay?"

"Ohhh...kaaayyy." Debbie said, slowly.

"Now, the 'stereo phrase' for that might be... 'Everybody with blue eyes is my sister.'" Debbie giggled almost silently. "Oh, I see..."

"Good." Dana said. "Have you got some paper and a pencil?" "Uh..." Debbie said, looking around. "No. But I've got a computer." "Great. Use that."

"Hang on." Debbie said, bringing the cordless phone with her as she walked over to the desk and turned the odd-looking contraption on. It made the customary humming and clicking sounds, then loaded up a computer screen.

Debbie wasn't exactly proficient with computers - Steve hadn't thought intelligence or education was all that necessary in his girlfriend - and she wasn't quite sure what to do. Hesitantly, she double-clicked on an icon.

A unfamiliar-looking program popped up and hummed for a minute - then gave her a message box.

NO DEFAULT TEXT FILE INDICATED _ DO YOU WISH TO OPEN THE EDITOR?

Hesitantly, Debbie clicked on 'YES' - and a new window popped up, with a flashing cursor. Hesitantly, she typed in some random characters, and saw them appear on the screen. Figuring that was good enough, she deleted the gibberish.

"Okay - I'm ready." She told the phone.

"Good." Dana said. "Now, think of a statement about Steve - or, about the way he wanted you to be. Type it in." "Okay..." Debbie paused, thinking - then, using the 'swoop-and-peck' method, entered:

Steve works out at his gym a lot:

"Okay, I did it." Debbie said.

"Good." Dana replied. "Now, re-write it. Don't worry about it being the same length, or using all the same words - or even about it making any real sense. Just write something similar, with the same sort of 'theme'.

"Right." Debbie said, with a small grin. Leaning forward, she picked up where she'd leti off, leaving a space before she typed: A lot of Steves work out at his gym.

...and hit 'RETURN'...

* * * * *

With an almost arrogant swagger, the short, broad-shouldered man with a smoothly shaved head and a dark, neatly-trimmed goatee pushed through the doors to the gym. Clad in a pair of shorts and a muscle shirt that he was most definitely entitled to, the bantam- sized muscle-man walked past the front desk, throwing a quick wave at the man seated behind it.

"Hey, Josh."

"Steve, how's it going?" the man said to the regular, with a grin.

"Oh, can't complain..." Steve said, his grin fixed - he had an image to maintain, and he wasn't going to admit that the bitch Debbie had cleared out - he'd just find her and drag her back, and nobody had to know different. With the same cocky swagger in his step as always, he headed towards the locker-room...

"Hey, Steve - little early today, aren't you?"

At the sound of Josh's voice, Steve turned, a little confused...

"Yeah - upper management's having some sort of meeting today." the tall, sandy-blond just coming into the gym said to Josh with a grin. "Us peons got some extra down-time."

Steve - the shaven-headed one - shrugged and turned away. He'd never seen the other guy before, since they obviously had different routines, and it was just coincidence that they'd walked in behind one another...

* * * * *

"So, have you got the general idea?" Dana asked. "Yeah, I got it." Debbie said with a grin.

"good. Just do a couple more - and whenever you have any more worries about the 'sensible' things Steve told you, just do a few more to remind yourself how the English language can be... deceptive."

"Okay. And, Dana? Thanks - I really needed to hear somebody say I was doing the right thing."

"No problem, honey." Dana said, warmly. "If you ever need to talk, I'll be here. You take care, okay?"

Promising she would, Debbie made her good-byes and then hung up. Looking around the apartment, it really and truly began to dawn on her that she could have a life - a real life - on her own. She'd gone from a well-intentioned but domineering father right into a very one-sided relationship with Steve, and the thought she could be her own person was a new - and exciting - one to the slender woman.

Turning her attention back to the computer, Debbie's inexperienced fingers began to peck at the jury-rigged keyboard again.

Steve has lots of body and facial hair, but keeps his scalp shaved bald: Steve shaves his body and face, but leaves a lot of hair on his scalp.

* * * * *

Steve was just stepping out of the shower when one of the other regulars was walking by - and the other man did an almost classic double-take.

"Geez, Steve - that's a new look for you, isn't it?" Steve blinked. "Huh?"

"The..." The man waved at Steve's head, "...and the..." he lowered his waving gesture... then shrugged his shoulders at Steve's continued, uncomprehending gaze. "Never mind."

Confused, Steve walked over to the mirrors, turning this way and that to see if he could figure out what the other guy was talking about.

He didn't see anything out of place - his massively muscular, sculpted body still gleamed as perfectly as ever. Following the example set by many professional Body-builders, he kept his body meticulously free of body hair, to further emphasize both the mass and tone of his musculature - a nice contrast, he thought, to the long, thick, dark head of hair he was justifiably proud of - like Fabio or 'early' Kevin Sorbo, though his was dark rather than light.

Shrugging at the other man's odd comment, Steve headed over to his locker...

* * * * *

For the first time since she'd left Steve, Debbie was relaxed enough to actually feel hungry - and that hunger reflex now cut in with a real vengeance, reminding her that she'd had almost nothing to eat for nearly two days.

Though she was beginning to get into the swing of this 'Stereo Phrases' routine - and actually enjoy it - she decided to take a break and grab something to eat.

Getting up from the computer, she headed into the kitchen and began to collect items that had been left in the fridge and cupboard from the last tenant. Some of the items in the fridge had gone bad, but there was enough canned food and the like that she could make herself a pretty substantial meal, if a rather bland one.

Not even realizing she was doing it, Debbie began to hum contentedly to herself as she set about fixing her first meal as a free woman...

* * * * * Was it him?

Dana still couldn't be sure. Oh, he was an exact match for the height and build Debbie had described - but he had a full head of hair, and no beard.

Still...

The farmhouse that had become a woman's shelter was in a perpetual state of renovation - cash-strapped, like most such shelters, the volunteers did what they could, when they could - and at the moment, the in-house exercise room was undergoing minor renovations that made it unusable. Ever since she'd gotten out of an abusive relationship, Dana had become a fitness fanatic, and rather than miss a day of her routine had decided to try a nearby gym. She knew it was mostly a male enclave, but if women weren't exactly welcome, they were still accepted, and she'd paid a one-day fee to access the facility...

...only to find herself looking at the short, massively muscled man who was nearly the way Debbie had described the man she'd letti. He even had the right name - but it seemed that half the men in the gym were named Steve, too, which was both confusing and more than a little eerie.

Still trying to figure out if the obviously vain, self-centered man was the Steve, Dana picked another weight machine closer to him, hoping to overhear a comment that would confirm or deny her suspicions...

* * * * *

Returning to the computer after her meal, Debbie sat down at the keyboard and considered the next phrase she could 'play' with. After a moment's thought, she began to type.

When he's really trying, Steve has no trouble getting laid: Trying to get laid will really get Steve in trouble. Really liking the way the 'altered' phrase sounded, Debbie hit the 'RETURN' key...

* * * * *

Steve had to restrain a smile - he'd never seen a more obvious case of a woman who was hot for his bod. Right from the very moment she'd walked in, the tall, well-muscled woman had been keeping a supposedly surreptitious eye on him. She'd also, slowly, been working herself closer and closer to him, obviously a little intimidated by his awesome masculine presence and animal magnetism - as well as shy about being obvious in a room full of men. Though she wasn't the 'meek and submissive' type of girl he'd like to keep on a leash for house-hold use and duties, she was definitely the type he liked for a few sweaty, athletic bouts in the sack...

Trying to appear casual, he finished his set of reps and rose, pausing to 'innocently' let his muscles ripple in a no-doubt-arousing display. Then, with a slight emphasis on his massive, chained power, he padded into the semi-private room with the water-color and health-food-and-drink vending machines.

Sure enough, it wasn't long before the woman 'happened' to wander in, and managed to 'accidentally' bump into him. "Oh, excuse me." She said, a bit awkwardly.

Steve grinned. "hey, no big deal. If I had to have somebody bump their body into mine, it would be you."

"Uh, thanks." She said, with a strained-looking smile. She obviously didn't know he'd caught the obvious signs, and was still trying to make her come-on look casual. Still, she blew it with her next line of 'small-talk'.

"So... a guy like you must have a girlfriend at home, huh? Some buff woman equal to your physical prowess?"

It was said in a light-hearted tone, as if making a joke - but there was no missing the genuine interest in her eyes.

"Well, I had a girlfriend, until we broke up recently - but she wasn't the 'buff' type - certainly not as toned and well-built as you." Steve said, easily.

"Oh?" She said, in an odd tone. "More the meek, stay-around-the-house, never-try-anything-new type of girl?" With sudden certainty, Steve somehow knew what the woman was really saying.

She was one of those 'trill-seekers' - and she was trying to find a good way of suggesting that, since they were hot for each other, they should just go at it right here, in public. Steve knew it without any doubt, though he wasn't sure how he knew - it was just a sudden, unarguable conclusion he'd reached.

Well, if that's what she wanted...

"Hey, babe - let's not play around anymore." Steve said, with a animal smile - as he closed in on her and pulled her tight to his body. "We don't have the time, because anybody could walk in at any moment... (since she got off on it, play up the 'danger' aspect of it, he thought...) ...and so I'm just going to do this real quick - throw you down on the floor and fuck your brains out good and hard. You won't be able to walk straight for a week... and if you can keep your mouth shut, nobody will ever know..."

Yanking down his shorts and underwear with one hand, he ripped her crop-top upwards with the other, exposing those firm, hand-sized, dome-shaped tits that he thought were absolutely perfect on a woman...

...and she kneed him in the crotch, hard, while screaming.

No - not screaming - there was no fear or shame. She was yelling - yelling for the cops...

Not that it seemed terribly important at the moment - the woman was strong, and had put all her power in that up-trust knee - Steve was busy trying to get his lungs to work again as he curled up on the floor around his crushed balls, gasping and wheezing. Dimly, he heard a bunch of voices, including a male one that was exclaiming loudly that he'd heard the entire thing, Steve's threats and attempt to rape the woman...

He was just beginning to realize he might be in a hell of a lot more trouble than just a couple of sore nuts when two guys grasped him and flipped him, none-to-gently, onto his back...

...and he felt the cold steel of the handcuffs tighten around his wrists as a stern female voice began to read him his rights.

* * * * *

Debbie was really getting into this now - thinking up new phrases she could use (that were technically true) and then twist

(into something 'fun') was more than just really, really fun - it was good therapy for her, a way to work out her feelings towards Steve.

Eagerly she hurried on to the next set of statements.

Steve thinks it would be impossible for an all-female court to make a conviction and hand down a sentence: An all-female court will reach a conviction with Steve and hand down an impossible sentence.

* * * * *

Steve began to wonder what was going on when the two female cops (or, as he mentally named them, 'Meter Maids'.) didn't take him to the police station, but directly to a court house. Not exactly being a legal-beagle, though, he kept his peace.

When they arrived at the courthouse, however, and he was led in a back door, down a torturous, obviously seldom-used route and into a courtroom whose only occupants were female, he began to make his concerns heard.

"Hey!" the muscular, dark-haired man exclaimed indignantly, looking at the two female lawyers behind the desk, the older female judge, and the twelve women in the jury box - including the woman he was accused of attempting to rape. "what's going on here? What's the big idea of this..."

"Silence!" the female judge ordered... and one of the female cops, now acting as a bailiff, back-handed him across the face.

Since he was still hand-cuffed, there was nothing Steve could do to block the blow, and his head snapped to the side from the force of it. "I'm gonna sue for police brutality!" Steve threatened.

"I highly doubt it." the woman supposedly playing the part of his lawyer said, coldly. "You see, the complainant dropped all charges as we were taking you in, and we just let you go. I guess you must have been scared and taken off, because nobody's seen you since."

"But...!" Steve started, angrily - until another backhand rocked his head back. Glowering at the cop who'd hit him, he took a deep breath...

...and the other cop whacked him across the back of the head with her baton, driving him to his knees.

"Are you really that dumb, Mr. Lewis?" the judge asked, acidly. "Or maybe you'll be smart enough to keep your mouth shut." Steve balled his hand-cuffed hands into fists... but remained silent, glaring around angrily.

The judge turned to the 'prosecuting' lawyer. "Does the prosecution wish to present its case?"

The sharply dressed woman stood. "Yes. Your Honor, Ladies of the Jury - Steven Lewis is a hopeless, irredeemable male chauvinist pig. The defense rests."

"Very well." The Judge said, while Steve gaped. "Defense?" 'His' lawyer stood, smoothed her pleated slacks, and said...

"He has no defense, Your Honor."

"So noted." The judge said, then turned to Dana in the Jury Box. "Madame Forewoman, has the Jury reached a verdict?"
"Yes, Your Honor." Dana said, with a restrained, but victorious, grin. "We find the defendant guilty as sin."

"Thank you." The judge said. "Mr. Steven Lewis, you have been found guilty of crimes against women kind, and your sentence shall be..."

* * * * *

Steve only deals with guys who think just like him, so they won't stab him in the back: Steve will get stabbed in the back by anyone he deals with who doesn't think just like him.

* * * * *

"...punishment by your peers." The judge finished. as the back door to the court opened, and a single-file column of men entered the room.

Steve gaped as he recognized the people entering the court-room - he knew all of them, in one way or another.

"Mr. Lewis - are these the gentlemen you claim as friends and/or trusted acquaintances?" the judge asked, formally. Stunned, Steve could only answer truthfully, while wondering what the hell was going on. "Yeah."

"Very well - your sentence will consist of you suffering from any point that you and each individual do not agree upon. He who lives by the sword dies by the sword, and he who is a chauvinist will be punished by chauvinists."

A wry, confused look spread across his face at that - but he straightened up, feeling more confident - atier all, these were his friends and pals, who were 'right-thinking' men, just like him...

"Punisher Number One, please step forward."

Josh, the guy who worked at the gym, took a step forward from the line of men. "Do you have a point of complaint, Number One?" the judge asked.

"Yeah." Josh said, eyeing Steve scornfully. "This idiot like muscular, athletic women - when everybody knows women should be slender and dainty."

"Wha...?" Steve started to ask, surprised. but he never got the chance.

the far wall of the room suddenly slid aside. revealing the inside of the gym where he worked out. It was empty, the machinery laying silent.

"Proceed with the punishment." The judge intoned.

Suddenly, helplessly, Steve found himself walking forward, towards the gym, unable to control his own body - it was as if somebody had taken remote-control of his body, leaving him a helpless passenger as he walked across the gym floor...

...and into the women's change room. Still unable to control his body in any way, he found himself opening a locker.

Against his will, he stripped out of his own gym close, displaying his naked body unwillingly to the eyes of the kangaroo court behind him. Then he began to take items from the locker and began to dress.

A hot-pink spandex crop-top that barely fit over his muscular torso, strained to the limit. A tiny black spandex bikini bottom, so ludicrously tight on his body that his cock actually hung free over the tiny triangle of lycra fabric at the front. A white, elasticized terry-cloth head-band, with matching ankle and wrist warmers. And a pair of white-and-pink ladies running shoes.

With each item he put on, Steve wanting to cringe and scream defiance - but he could do neither, dressing in the clothing as if it were utterly natural, his rebelling body refusing to obey any of his commands.

Then, clothed in the ludicrous outfit, he turned and walked back into the main gym area, walking over to a weight machine, positioning himself on the vinyl-covered bench, legs spread wide and cock hanging over The End of the bench.

The door at the far end of the gym opened - and a tiny, porcelain-delicate red-haired woman entered the gym, walking slowly across the floor. She was dressed in loose-fitting shorts and a baggy T-shirt.

Of its own accord, Steve's cock began to rise, and by the time she reached him his cock was rock-hard and throbbing.

She knelt on the floor in front of him and, bending forward, opened her rose-bud lips and enveloped his hard, throbbing cock... and began to suck.

Not give him a blow-job - suck. Like his cock was a big, meaty straw.

Steve felt a strange tingling run through his body. Helpless to move, he could only sit and watch as she slurped away on his cock... and it felt almost like he was taking some sort of odd piss, something flowing through his cock and into her accepting mouth.

As he watched... she began to expand.

Or, at least, her muscles did. Horrified, Steve watched as her barely-visible muscles began to swell, taking on extra mass and definition

- while he could feel his own body losing mass. Her body continued to fill out as his musculature was slurped away through his cock, the ill-fitting clothing he was wearing becoming more and more 'comfortable' as her body began to ripple with thick, still-growing slabs of muscle.

A moment later, and she was done. She rose from the floor with a smooth, easy grace, the once loose garments now stretched taut over a massively muscled frame...

..while he was leti almost as slender and dainty as she'd been when she'd entered. Not quite - he was still sort of thick in the waist, and his hands and feet weren't as finely formed - but close enough.

His cock sotiened - and the bikini top flipped upwards with a 'snap', clearly revealing the outline of his sotiened cock under the now perfectly-fitting fabric as he helplessly rose and returned to the courtroom, wanting to rant and scream and cry - but unable to do anything by move like an automaton as the wall slid closed behind him and he silently took up his position in front of the bench again. "Very well. Punisher Number Two, please step forward."

The second man was Mark, a guy Steve knew from work - they'd fallen into the habit of talking during the lunch breaks.

"I don't know about this whole 'muscular woman' bit." Mark said. "Steve always boasted about his girlfriend, who he said was really skinny and stuff - when every real man knows a woman should have a nicely curved figure."

This time, the wall slid aside to reveal the restaurant where he and Mark otien ate - and Steve helplessly walked into the restaurant.

Atier a little bit of 'forced feeding' of chocolate cake, ice-cream and other deserts, the outfit Steve was wearing fit more snugly again - over his wider, womanly hips, fuller ass, and firm, C-cup breasts.

Steve was now to the point where he wanted to beg and scream for mercy - but there was still nothing he could do as the next man stepped forth. It was Ron, the manager of the sleazy place Steve had always taken Debbie to for the sexy underwear he liked her to wear.

"My complaint is that Steve's really screwed up. Sure, he has his girlfriend wear sexy stuff when they're at home - but he has her dress up in frumpy clothes when they go out so no other guy would be interested in her. Everybody knows women should always wear clothes to show off their bodies, and make-up and stuff to enhance their looks."

This time, the wall slid aside, revealing a sleazy-looking women's boutique...

...and, twenty minutes later, Steve's hair was died a brassy, obviously-bottle blonde, his face was fully made-up, and his clothing had changed. Now, he was wearing a skin-tight red dress with a low neck-line and a high hem-line, black nylons, and red high-heeled shoes. He wobbled out of the 'store' atop the six-inch spiked heels, barely able to retain his balance...

...and barely conscious. Inside his rebelling body, Steve was in a mindless daze, merely watching what was happening while his brain spun in useless circles, trying - and failing - to find a way to cope with the impossible situation that was happening to him.

The next complaint - that Steve thought fashion-models walked really sexy, when everybody knew that hookers had the best sexy walk - put him on a street corner, where he found himself walking up and down for ten minutes, until he was walking with a perfect, sexy stride. Now he looked almost completely female, especially with his cock hidden beneath the dress - but his voice was still male.

Which was taken care of by the next complainant, who 'knew' that women shouldn't be quite, monosyllabic and meek when they talked - but should sound like phone-sex operators.

Soon, Steve did.

Then there was the one about how Steve thought his women should have really tight cunts... when everybody knew that 'broken in' was the best...

Steve could no longer claim to be 'he'. Steve was most definitely 'she'. Still lost in that daze, unable to cope with what was happening to her, she was pulled further along the road by those who thought Steve's ideal breast-size was too small, or this, or that...

Finally, the ordeal was over. The last complainant had spoken. A person completely unrecognizable as Steve stood in front of the Judge's bench...

..and her new body was released back to her control, reconnecting her stunned, horrified mind with the impossibility of her new situation.

Crumpling to the floor, the woman who'd been Steve curled up into a ball, whimpering.

"Now, for the final stage of your punishment..." The judge started to intone. Then sighed. "Miss Lewis! Pay attention! This is the part where you get a chance to get changed back!"

That got through to the whimpering new woman. Slowly, she dragged herself to her new, high-heeled feet. "Ch. changed back?" She asked, pathetically.

"Yes. Every sentence has a duration, though in your case it will be a variable - and you may not like it." The judge said, without sympathy. "However, before I explain, I should tell you that you will live a minimum of forty more years. You will not be able to commit suicide - or even 'mutilate' your new body. You will, however, grow older."

The new woman didn't like the sound of that, but fought the urge to curl back up on the floor - there was a chance to get her manhood back at stake.

The judge explained, quickly and simply, the terms of her sentence.

The new woman was horrified, revolted, and terrified. "No! No, you.. you can't! I.. I can't! And... and it would take. years!"

"How long it takes - or if you can do it at all - depends on you." The judge said, sternly. "In fact, how you want to do this is entirely up to you. You have the clothes you're wearing, and we'll supply you with five thousand dollars and new ID, in the name of your choice. The method you use to meet the conditions is entirely up to you."

"But.." The new woman pleaded.

"Look!" the judge snapped. "You can spend the next forty years, minimum, laying in a corner and whimpering. or you can start on the road that will make you a man again. The court has decided that, should you meet the requirements, you'd be 'safe' once you are male again - and it's entirely up to you how quickly that happens. I don't think I have to explain to you what the most 'direct' route would be. If you wanted to go with that, you could probably be a man again in four or five years. depending, of course, on how well you can do it, and whether you spend much time. unavailable. In any case - there's no other way out."

Whimpering, stunned, disgusted and terrified, the new woman was led towards the back door of the court...

...but, despite her feelings, her mind had latched onto the hope, and it was already turning the idea over in her head...

* * * * *

The ringing of the phone startled Debbie - and for an instant, the old fear flared. What if it was Steve? What if he'd tracked her down. ?

Hesitantly, she picked up the phone. "Yes?"

"Debbie!" Dana's voice came over the line, almost impossibly cheerful. "Wait until you hear the news!" "Wha... what news. ?" Debbie asked.

"Steve's taken off, leti the state - and probably the country! Chances are, he won't return. oh, for six or seven years, at the very least.

Maybe never."

Debbie was stunned. "What?"

Dana was practically laughing. "The idiot tried to rape me at the gym! In front of dozens of witnesses!" "What!" Debbie said, shocked. "Are you okay?"

"Oh, I'm fine." Dana dismissed Debbie's worries with a laugh. "Steve, however, isn't. See, I arranged it that charges wouldn't be pressed if he... vanished. The statute of limitations means that, for the next seven years, if he comes back I can charge him. so he'll probably stay away for at least that long. He'd gone, Debbie!"

"That. that's fantastic!" Debbie said, slowly beginning to smile.

"Look - I think a victory celebration is in order, don't you?" Dana asked. "Get ready, and I'll pick you up in - twenty minutes?" "Okay!" Debbie said. Jumping up, she hurried away from the computer and began to get ready...

* * * * *

"Man, Chris, can you believe it?" Bill asked, in disgust. "Spring break, and we didn't get laid once. I'm telling you, man, Fort Lauderdale isn't. "

The vaguely-handsome, sandy-haired man noticed his friend and roommate wasn't listening - he was too busy gaping at something. So Bill turned his attention to where his shorter, swarthier friend was looking...

...and gaped.

She was. incredible.

She was about average height - but that was the only thing average about her. Long, platinum blonde hair cascaded down around a face that could populate his dreams, an cute, elfin face with full, soti lips, a pert nose - and huge, ice-blue eyes that looked like they reflected the light straight to the back of a completely empty head.

But, as utterly 'Hollywood Bimbo' as her face was, it didn't hold a candle to the body packed into the tiny red dress she was barely wearing.

Her breasts were... perfect. Big, but walking the fine line that kept them from being 'too much of a good thing' - from long experience, Bill made an automatic assessment, and pegged them to be a firm, round DDD-cup - or about a cup size smaller than Dolly Parton's world- famous endowments.

Below that, her waist was nicely pulled in to a trim, slender waist, without being too slender - above nicely flared, womanly hips that were mouth-wateringly perfect. Below the hem of the short dress, a pair of long, luscious legs stretched all the way down to the red high-heel shoes she wore, the delicious curves of her gams encased in sheer nylon hose.

Bill let his eyes drink in the Nordic goddess before him... then was startled to realize something. Not only did she look mouth-wateringly perfect, she looked...

Not nervous. That would be an understatement. Terrified would be closer to the truth - or maybe horrified.

"Wipe the droll from your chin." Bill whispered to Chris, nudging him - the approached the leggy, busty blonde beauty, fixing his most wining smile to his face.

"Excuse me?" He said, politely. "Can I help you, Miss?"

She jerked at the sound of his voice, then turned to face him, full, red-gloss lips twisting in a sickly parody of a smile. "I..." She said, practically shaking. Taking a deep breath, she tried again. "I am.. needing help."

Her voice was high and sweet and incredibly sexy - and laced with an accent.

"Oh - are you Swedish?" Bill asked, making a stab at identifying the accent, and trying to put the woman at ease.

It didn't seem to help all that much - she looked ready to either jump out of her skin or vomit. "No.. No, I am Isklandaar...

from, as you say Iceland."

"Oh, really?" Bill said, still trying to be charming and soothing. "that's interesting. By the way - I'm Bill, and this is my friend Chris."

The amazing, jumpy blonde seemed hesitant to let them touch her, but managed to force herself to shake their hands. "I am being called Svetlana."

"Svetlana... what a lovely name." Bill said. "So, Svetlana - what's wrong. you look like you're about to have a nervous breakdown."

Svetlana seemed like she was about to pass out, actually. "I... I come from very small village. I have never even been to Reykjavik before. I am from... boomwharfs?"

"Boomwha..." Bill started, confused.

"Oh!" Chris said, the grin doubling in size. "Boondocks! The Boonies." "Yes - that is word." Svetlana said.

She wanted to throw up. She couldn't believe she was doing this - trying to seduce two college guys she'd met in the airport - and with such a hokey story, too.

Not that she was doing all that well at it...

God, she couldn't believe she'd come to this - but at least her story would 'explain' all sorts of otherwise troublesome things - like her complete and utter lack of familiarity with the female side of American culture.

The men she'd once though her friends had made her into a sexy woman who appeared to be about the age of these college guys - as if she'd knocked nearly a decade off her 'true' age, which was about the only 'good point' in this. The changes had also, unsurprisingly, given her all sorts of new 'skills' - like how to walk, talk and even sit like a sexy woman. She knew, buried in her head, were all sorts of new skills for 'flirting' - she was just too disgusted to bring them into play right yet.

But she didn't have a choice. Atier all, this was her punishment. She could curl up in an out-of-the-way apartment for the rest of her life...

...or she could meet the terms of her punishment, and become male again.

The punishment being that she had to be the direct, physical cause of twelve thousand male orgasms.

The very thought of it made her sick. Twelve thousand! At a steady rate of four a day, it would take more then eight years!

Of course, she could have picked a plan that limited sex... and taken twenty or thirty years to reach that number, finally becoming a man again - sometime in his forties or fifties.

Her other choice could have been to become a hooker - but she didn't even consider that option. She wouldn't do that, and not just because of the chances or arrest.

No, her best chance was to follow the plan she'd already formulated...

"So - what brings you to America then?" Chris asked.

Svetlana bit her oh-so-luscious lower lip, and it seemed that she wouldn't answer....

"I wish to be a porno star." She said.

the guys jaws dropped and their eyes nearly popped out of their sockets.

"Uh..." Was the best Chris could do. Bill fared slightly better with a strangled "What. ?"

Svetlana looked like she was about to die of terminal embarrassment. "I wish to be a star in pornographic movies. But my village is a small place, and many of us are related - I have very little experience with sex. In America, I can practice with sex until I am skilled, then get easy job in porno movies - no?"

"No. I mean - yes." Bill said, visibly struggling to get himself back on an even keel. "Hold on - I want to make sure I've got this straight. You want to be a porn star. Make sex movies."

"Yes."

"But first, you have to have lots and lots of sex so you'll be good at it." "Yes."

"so you're looking for men to have sex with. Lots of sex." "That is right."

Bill looked at Chris - and saw his friend had the biggest, goofiest grin on his face that he'd ever seen. He also realized that his own face bore a matching grin.

"Well - maybe we can help. " Bill said, with forced casualness. "We have an apartment - if you'd care to come live with us, we'd be glad to help you, uh. practice."

"I'm sure a lot of our friends would, too." Chris supplied.

"Yes - that would be good." Svetlana said - and the two guys nearly had a heart attack.

"...and, that's the whole apartment." Bill said. "We'll have to get a pull-out couch or something, to make room for you, but. "

Alone with just the two men, Svetlana had a little more - and less - control over herself. More, because she wasn't being ogled by many strangers, and she was beginning to get used to the two guys who were so much like she was when she was a young man... and less, because what she knew was going to have to happen.

That comment made a perfect opening - and she had to force herself to take it, feigning puzzlement.

"Pull out couch?" She made herself say, as if confused. "I do not understand - I thought I would share the beds of you, and maybe your friends."

There was a two-beat pause, and she could read the look on the guys faces so easily - and it made her want to throw up.

"oh, well... we could do that, too." Chris said, trying - and failing - to sound casual. "how.. how exactly did you think we.. we should work out your... practicing?"

This was the telling point. As awful as the situation was, Svetlana really couldn't bring herself to take the full initiative. Not now, at least. She, quite simply, lacked the will-power.

So she placed it in their hands.

"I do not know what Americans think is sexy, and what they like." She said, having to force every single word through unwilling lips. "So, I need you to be my teachers. I... I will do whatever you say, whenever you say. This is how I will learn."

Oh, God - she thought she was going to die, right then and there.

If it had been possible to do so, she would have - but it had been arranged so that there wasn't that 'easy' escape. It was either be a slut of a woman for a few years - or a celibate woman for the rest of her life.

Except... as much as the thought of sex with men disgusted her, Svetlana couldn't even convince herself that celibacy was an option. She couldn't imagine life without sex, even if it was sex as a woman. Sooner or later, she'd give in - and any time wasted resisting was just that... wasted.

Best to do this as quickly as possible... Which seemed fine with the guys, as well.

"Rea//lly..." Bill said, sharing another goofy grin with Chris. "Uh... why don't we start with the basics? Why don't you.. undress for us?"

"Okay." She said, quaking on the inside. Trying not to appear hesitant, she brought her hands up to the shoulder-straps of her tight red dress. Gripping them, she worked up her nerve... then began to peel the dress down. She forced herself to just stand there, under the lewd gaze of the guys, shifting her weight nervously from foot to foot as she peeled the dress over her large, firm tits. and then she had to pause, not sure she could actually go through with it.

"Wow..." Chris breathed. "You're a natural!" "I am?" Svetlana asked, startled.

"Sure - the slow, teasing way you do it, the way you sway your hips... it's like your born to do this." Svetlana wasn't sure how to take that...

"Now... fondle your boobs for a bit." Bill said, practically drooling.

Forcing a smile to her full lips, Svetlana brought her hands to her large, creamy globes and pretended she was going to enjoy this...

...then didn't have to pretend any more. She was amazed to find how good it felt as she began to massage her large, bare breasts, her nipples full and thick beneath her fingers as she fondled and squeezed her new endowments with growing - if guilty - pleasure.

"Good, good - now finish taking the dress off..."

It was a shame to take her hands off her boobs, but Svetlana did as she was instructed, slowly peeling the dress down over her womanly hips and letting slide down her shapely legs, forming a cloth puddle around the high-heel shoes she wore.

"Great!" bill said. "Now come here, and kiss me."

Svetlana had to force herself to take the three steps necessary to close the distance. Acting as if this was what she wanted, she closed her eyes, tilted her head up and stepped into Bill's embrace.

His arms closed around her, pulling her tightly against him, his hands reaching down to squeeze her full, firm ass as he kissed her passionately.

Svetlana moaned in the back of her throat as she felt his strong arms around her slender body, felt her large tits press firmly against his body, felt his warm hands cradling her full ass. She wrapped her arms around his neck and kissed him hungrily, tongues dancing in passion as she kissed him hungrily...

'What the hell...?' Svetlana thought, her eyes popping open in shock as she realized what she was feeling.

She didn't stop kissing him, however. Even in the middle of the shocked realization, she continued her passionate lip-lock with the man, horrified by the rising pleasure she felt from being held and kissed by a man, but unable to deny it - or stop.

'Well...' She thought to herself, hesitantly. 'I guess having it feel good will make it easier to do...'

Then she felt a burst of regret as he broke the kiss - she didn't want to stop. She wanted to keep kissing him... "Now... suck my cock..." Bill whispered to her.

Slowly, Svetlana slide to her knees, not really thinking about what she was doing as her mind was turning over the pleasure she'd felt at kissing and being kissed by a man.

'I guess it just feels good to kiss.' She thought to herself, as her long-nailed fingers absently unzipped Bill's fly.

'Atier all - it was a man kissing a woman, even if the roles were reversed for me.' She reassured herself as she lowered his pants and underwear around Bill's ankles. 'Atier all - I enjoyed kissing women as a man, so this is just... the same, only reversed. It's not like kissing is something completely different for women.'

That made sense - and put her mind at ease. The fact that she'd enjoyed the kiss didn't mean she had anything to worry about. She wanted to sigh in relief at the realization that there wasn't anything really wrong with her - but that was tough to do with Bill's cock filling her mouth as she slurped and sucked expertly at it, her tongue swirling over it's head as her hand worked the shati and...

'Holy shit!' Her mind screamed at her in shock. 'I'm sucking cock!'

She certainly was - and very well, too. With stunned detachment, she could tell that Bill was enjoying it immensely as she used newly- implanted skills to give him a mind-blowing blow-job. The shock of finding herself in the middle of a blow-job stunned her temporarily, and her body just continued what it was doing...

...until she felt a flood of warm, salty cum flood her mouth as she succeeded in bringing him off.

The disgust and distress she'd felt at finding herself sucking cock was buried in a surge of triumph as she thoughtlessly gulped down the thick liquid.

'That's one!' she thought to herself, victoriously. 'I'm on my way to becoming a man again!'

This might not take nearly as long as she'd feared. If this was any indication - and if these guys had enough friends - she might have sex ten or twelve times a day! Geez - think about it. She could be a man again in only four years!

Lapping Bill's cock clean, she smiled in victory. She could beat these bitches at their own game. They thought it would take her ten or fifteen years to fuck an/or suck twelve thousand times. Hah! She wasn't a slacker! She'd show them how quickly a real man could fuck half the male population of the local college into submission!

With that triumphant thought, she turned to Chris with a thoughtful-looking expression, trying to decide what would get him off the fastest.

Seeing the specific part of her he was looking at, she smiled.

"Ever fuck a woman up the ass?" She asked cheerfully, standing up and bending over...

Geez - how stupid was she to think a group of women could ever destroy her? They might have (temporarily) altered her body, but her male-inspired, unstoppable ego was still intact. They couldn't touch who she really was.

'This is going to be EASY!' She thought with a huge, shit-eating grin of masculine triumph as she felt Chris' hard, unlubricated cock slam deep into her ass...

* * * * *

Back in Debbie's apartment, the over-heated computer began to make a hissing, buzzing noise as an acrid smell began to rise from it. Deep inside, some jury-rigged connections were finally giving up the ghost, melting down into useless slag that could never be repaired.

With a sizzling crackle of electrical discharge, the computer died. Though it's innards were already useless in that very instant, now a useless mass of fused circuits, the screen continued to show the last, whimsical words printed on it before it, too, died.

Steve fucked with a lot of people, mistakenly thinking it made him a man: A lot of people are going to fuck with Steve, who mistakenly thinks it'll make him a man.

Then computer went dark and silent, harmlessly fizzling out as the acrid smell slowly began to disperse.

The End

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: When a young man finds a magic rock, he sets free the spirit-form that wanders through his dream-quests, which lead him on a path to be transformed into a giggling ditzzy girl.

Stoned

By Gunslinger

"It's a.. what?"

The wizened proprietor of the shop grinned, revealing two, non-consecutive, missing teeth in his lower jaw. "I said..." The shop-keeper repeated, his heavy Maine accent making it 'Ah sayed'. "...it's a magic rock."

The heavily-built bearded young man in the jeans and the black letter jacket let one bushy eyebrow climb in disbelief. "Oh, yeah - right. How silly of me." He waved a hand in the air, negligently. "It should have been obvious."

The old man laughed. "Ayup. Can't say I blame you for doubtin' it. Don't believe it myself, actually - but that's what the Indians used to b'lieve, you see. They thought that one of these geodes..." He turned the rock around, displaying the dark-purple crystal that lined the inside of the rock, "...had magical properties. Legend says, if you got Indian blood in your veins, then you can use these rocks to set free the spirit-form that wanders through your dream-quests."

Chris snorted laughter. "What the hell does that mean?"

The old man laughed as well. "Well, I'll be dipped if I know - that's what I read outta the brochure the geologist sent me, atier I asked him what the hell this thing here was."

Chris laughed at the anecdote. He'd been in the shop for almost an hour now, browsing through Pop Greene's Knick-Knacks and Bric-a- Brac, as the sign outside so prominently advertised. It seemed the old storekeeper had some humorous story to go along with every one of his unusual items for sale, and Chris figured that it was this sly wit that made Pop Greene's business so successful, even in the off season, like now.

Chris Dunbar had stopped off at the shop atier grabbing a bite to eat in the dinner across the road. He'd really stopped in to buy a map of the area, which Pop carried - but the unusual array of merchandise had kept him browsing longer then he'd planned. The twenty-two year old was on his way to check out the cabin he'd inherited atier the death of a grand-uncle he'd barely even known. Never having been there, he was sort of fuzzy on the exact location, since the 'address' was sort of vague, giving just the Township Road number, and then the words '1 mi. in, 3rd drive, red fence, big oak.'

As it turned out, Pop had been more helpful then any map could have been - he knew the area around Lakeland like the back of his bony old hand, and had not only given Chris detailed instructions on how to get to the cabin, but all the 'skinny' on it's semi-recent history, as well. It turned out that that distant grand-uncle had owned the cabin, but hadn't used it himself, letting his son use it. The son, however, had used it for the purpose of extramarital flings with an array of young women - and had ended up getting two of them pregnant, which brought the whole scandal - not to mention his marriage - crashing down around his ears. The old man had disinherited the son - which was why Chris, who was almost a complete stranger, got the place.

Just for all that information, as well as the directions, Chris felt he owed Pop something - but Pop refused to accept any out-and-out gratuity, so Chris decided he'd buy something as a way of saying thanks.

Since it didn't really matter what he bought...

"All right, you sold me - how could I turn down a chance to buy a 'magic' rock?" Chris said, with a grin, shelling out the greenbacks for the surprisingly heavy item. "Hey, since my great-grandmother was Sioux, maybe it'll work for me. What can I say?"

Saying good-bye to the friendly, witty old man - and making a mental note to come back again soon - Chris headed out to his '89 Suburban, the 'magic rock' heavy in the small, twine-handled paper bag Pop had put it in. Dropping his purchase in the passenger's seat, Chris slid behind the wheel of the big four-by-four and cranked the starter until the stubborn engine finally turned over. Dropping the aging vehicle into gear, he checked the mirrors and the back window, then reversed the vehicle out of the slanted parking spot in front of Pop's shop and directly onto the main road that they ran off of. Chivvying the gearshiti of the cranky vehicle into 'Drive', Chris waved at Pop, who was standing in his doorway, then headed out of town, and towards his 'new' cabin.

* * * * *

As darkness settled in to stay for the night, Chris lit the candle lantern he'd found above the mantle, adding it's golden glow to the fire in the stone hearth, shivering slightly in the cold air - it'd take some time for the fire to warm the interior of the cabin, with the chill autumn air having only recently given up it's grip on the log cabin's interior.

"Well, Chris, same as always - if it weren't for bad luck, you'd have no luck at all..." Chris muttered, dropping into the musty-smelling and well-worn couch in front of the fireplace.

When he'd arrived at the once-red gate that marked the cabin's driveway, it had taken nearly an hour to get down it's nearly mile-long gravel length. That had been his first hint that nobody had bothered to arrange upkeep for the building or it's land in the nearly ten years it had been vacant - foliage, fallen branches and time had made the drive in nearly impassable. If it wasn't for the fact that Chris' Suburban was a four-wheel-drive, he would never have made it.

The cabin itself had been another unpleasant surprise.

The cabin itself was an older building - and, since they built them to last in those days, had fared well, since it had been shuttered up before being let to the elements. It was structurally sound and well preserved - which was the one good point about the whole mess.

'Mess' was the right word, too - because the hunting-lodge style building had been left in a state of disarray by the errant son. Obviously, the last night he'd spent in the place had been somewhat vengeful - Chris could read all the signs in the detritus from the wild party that had been thrown there. Obviously, figuring it was the last time he was ever going to be there, the son had gone ahead and had a blast, then simply left everything behind when he'd vacated. Articles of clothing - mostly women's - lay strewn about, mixed in with partially- and-completely empty bottles of booze, empty take-out pizza boxes, and other items.

The cabin itself was pretty primitive, mainly a big main room that was combinations living-room, kitchen and dining room, with two bedrooms and a bathroom on the east wall. The place was wired for electricity - but it was shut off, of course. At least the pipes had withstood the test of time, and once he'd turned on all the valves, the bathroom had been in full working order, except for the lack of hot water.

Chris had spent the afternoon cleaning up the place, chilled in the cool air - but the chimney had needed to be cleaned out before he could light a fire, and part of his cleaning routine had been the search for the keys to the locked shed outside, which contained the equipment he needed, as well as piles of firewood. He'd only got the fire going a short while ago, and it was only beginning to take the edge off of the chill. Which was the reason he'd ensconced himself in layers of material. The first layer was his pajamas, a pair of flannel jammies that were warm and comfortable. Over this went his dark blue bathrobe, and then over all he was 'wearing' a snuggle-blanket. A nifty little thing, the plaid flannel blanket had snap closures around the outside that, when snapped together in the right pattern, made a sort of 'bag'. It covered him like a sleeping bag to just below his armpits, but the top end of the blanket snapped together into three openings - 'sleeves' and a 'hood', allowing him to snuggle warmly into the blanket, yet still have use of his hands.

For all that - he was still a bit chilly, hence sitting directly in front of the fire. That took care of the temperature problem. However, without power to run the small TV the cabin boasted, that left him warm-yet-bored, but he wasn't tired enough to sleep.

yet.

So he'd poured himself a glass of whiskey from one of the partially full bottle he'd tidied up, hoping that any germs that might have been on the bottle after the party had died over the last ten years. At the moment, it was a small worry to Chris.

Sipping at the liquor with one hand, Chris slid his other out of the sleeve-like opening in the blanket and picked up the 'magic rock' he'd bought that afternoon, turning it this way and that. He found the by-play of the fire-light over - and through - its amethyst crystals to be almost hypnotic. Taking another sip of the booze, he brought the geode closer to his face, shifting position so it could better catch the firelight, the dancing golden images making it almost seem like there was some sort of image moving in the crystalline structure, like a purple-tinted movie playing out in the crystal-lines interior of the geode.... In fact, the harder he stared at it, the more he let his mind just sort of wander, the more it seemed he could almost make out what movie was playing, could bring the image into focus...

Without even noticing, he numbly put his drink down on the table beside the couch and leaned forward and to the side, eyes wide and staring in the interior of the stone, focused past the rock itself and on something generated by his mind's eye in response to the flickering firelight's interaction with the crystals. Other thoughts, concerns and considerations slipped away as he sank deeper and deeper into the wide-awake trance, mind building up an image in the shadows and highlights that flickered inside the stone he held.

Then, suddenly - the world vanished.

He wasn't surprised, or scared, though it was unexpected. One second, he was staring into the stone - and the next, he was 'here', wherever 'here' was - yet it felt.. right. Somehow, it had that same non-questioning acceptance quality of a dream, though he knew it wasn't a dream... exactly.

Standing in place, Chris slowly turned a full three sixty, looking around him. He found that he seemed to be standing in some ancient forest. The day - or rather, the quality of light - was gray and heavy, and a thick mist rose from the forest floor, cloaking everything in its knee-high embrace. Under different circumstances, the scene could have been eerie or threatening - but this wasn't a dark, gothic world, just a neutral, somehow colorless one. More 'boring' than scary.

"What's going on?" He asked, aloud, not knowing if he should expect an answer or not. "I was staring at the stone, and then.. this, whatever this is. I mean... it can't be real, yet.. I feel like it is. What's it all mean?"

There was the sound of somebody clearing their throat behind Chris, and he turned.

Standing there, dressed in a somewhat old-fashioned suit, hat in hand, was Jimmy Stewart. At least, a younger version of the deceased actor, looking as if he'd just stepped out of Mr. Smith Goes to Washington or Harvey.

"Well, well now.." Jimmy said, engagingly vague. "I, I don't know if I can.. that is, the question's sort of difficult, you see, and, well, I'm not sure if I, uh, can answer it, you see." He smiled, exuding a sort of friendliness that made him almost instantly trustworthy. "It's all so very, uh, complicated, you see."

"Complicated?" Chris asked.

"Well, well, you see..." Jimmy said, searching for words. "usually I wouldn't be here at all, you see. Not that I mind it, no, not at all.." He seemed eager to reassure Chris. "It's just that, usually, before somebody comes here, they've already, uh, contacted their, um, spirit guide, you see. So, I usually, uh.. well, I'm usually not needed. But, but... We're kinda in a bind here, see. This, well.. this is for bringing your spirit guide out, you see, but you haven't got one yet. So, you see.. it's a little confusing for both of us..."

"It's confusing for you, too?" Chris asked, mildly surprised.

"Oh, well. Yes.." Jimmy said, grinning. "Because you're confused.. and, so, then, so I am, you see.. because we're not really here at all, because this isn't really a here for us to be - and, to make it even more confusing, we're not really us, except that we - you and me and everybody, is us.. sort of."

Chris grinned. "Okay - you lost me somewhere there.'

Jimmy gestured with the hand holding the hat. "Well, it's all very simple, you see, in a complex sort of way. See, I'm really here, right now, because we, both of us, think I am. That's why I look like this, see, so I'd be somebody you could talk to, and trust - but it's not that I'm not real, because I'm as real as you are - but that isn't any more real than I am, you see."

"you mean - I somehow made you Jimmy Stewart, so I could trust you?" Chris asked, trying to work it out.

"Well, yes and no." Jimmy said. "See, I'm more than just what you think of being me. I'm every memory and imagination and idea in the world about me - so, you see, I'm real. But you're only you because that how you think of yourself, and that's how the world thinks of you too, you see. Us, as individuals, are only separate from us - the whole us - because we all sort of agree on it."

Chris frowned in thought. "Oh - you mean that 'shared unconscious' theory, that we're all somehow 'linked' with each other."

"Sure, that's one way to put it." Jimmy said. "So, you see, usually when people come here, they've already formed a spirit guide - which is really just some of what they think of 'them', plus a little of other stuff from other people, you see. But you didn't, so you have to, well.. 'come up' with one. But it's not just what you imagine, because there is no 'you', really - just 'us' all imagining that you are you. So 'you' sort of... plant the seed, then we - which is you, too - sort of, uh, 'flesh out' the other 'you', you see. Then, you see, we'll all agree that that 'you' is the new you, too, but different, so we can all agree that you could be them, sometimes, too - without any of us actually knowing about it though, you see, because - when we're not here - we're all agreeing that we can't all be agreeing because we're all separate. Sort of pretending we don't know about it, see - so well that we actually forget, sort of."

Chris frowned and worked that out in his head. If he was following along, then everything in the universe only existed the way it did because everybody, subconsciously, agreed that it was like that. In truth, everything - every 'atom', every energy wave, every.. everything, was a shared fiction in the myriad parts of a vast mind that liked to pretend it was actually a couple of billion discrete entities.

Well - that might explain certain things about the universe. Like 'coincidences', among other things...

"So - what you're saying is that I just have to pick another form - and then I can, uh.. become that other form."

"Oh, sure - but, you see, you already have, and just don't know it yet." Jimmy tried to explain. "What you have to do is 'pretend' to pick the form you've already picked/had chosen/always had, and then we can all pretend that.. well, it's really too much to explain." Jimmy said, shrugging. "Especially since you won't remember all of this, atierward - just parts of it. In any case, you just go ahead and think of anything at all. Clear your mind, then the first thing that pops in there.. 'poof!'. Taken care of, you see."

Shrugging mentally, Chris closed his eyes and tried to clear his mind - which was impossible, in a certain sense, because his mind wanted to consider what he could become, given unlimited choices..

"See - there you go." Jimmy said, with a grin.

Chris blinked - he couldn't think of what he might have 'chosen'. Whatever it had been had been an errant, fleeting thought, something that had just flashed across his mind without prompting.

"But..." He tried to argue...

...but it was hard to do with no lips, because he was floating in a gray, hazy limbo, with no body or sensations, nothing at all...

* * * * *

Chris slipped out of the trance like a man waking from a dream - though he hadn't been asleep. Vague, half-formed images fleeted across his mind, leaving behind little impression - except for a somehow familiar voice telling him that his form was some sort of illusion, one that could change...

Even as his mind slipped from a barely-remembered trance-ridden 'past' to the current 'present', Chris realized that something about the way he felt, the way his body felt, internally, was... well, it didn't actually feel 'wrong' to him, so much as 'different'.

Then he was wholly back in the 'real' world, aware he was slumped on the couch, staring at the inside of the stone, which he still held in his hand...

...except it wasn't his hand. Though he could feel the texture of the stone itself being transmitted across the nervous system and into his brain, registering on his consciousness, the hand he was looking at bore little resemblance to his own meaty paw. This one was slimmer, smaller, and tipped with long, well-shaped fingernails.

In short, it was a perfectly good example of a woman's hand, perfect in every detail - and he seemed to posses it.

"A woman...?" Chris said, aloud - and the question seemed to answer itself as he heard the voice it emerged in, a high, clear, and undeniably feminine voice that was actually quite lovely. "I've been turned into a woman?"

He felt... strange. Emotionally, as well as physically. In one sense, he knew that now was a good time to panic, a good time to scream at the shock and horror of being emasculated - except it didn't really bother him, other than a mild regret that his 'other' form hadn't been something like a wolf or a bear, or even an eagle - now that would have been something...

Instead.. he'd be changed into a woman. How was that for ironic, he wondered...

"Wait a second... I've been turned into a woman? Why aren't I.. upset?" She asked herself, hearing the crystal-clear, feminine tones of her question in her own ears. She knew that, a few moments ago, she would have been horrified by the prospect - yet, right now, she didn't seem all that upset. As a matter of fact, she felt... sort of detached. Hazy. In fact... downright pleasant.

Being a typical American youth, Chris had tried a couple of 'soti' drugs in his day, as well as having consumed alcohol in various amounts through the years. The closest she could come to identifying what she felt now was the same sort of feeling that came from the inhalation of marijuana - that sort of hazy, good-natured mood where details became more over-riding than the whole, where time seemed a much more variable thing than usual, where she was generally aware of what was happening around her, but only able to focus on sharp, individual portions of it that tended to drive any other thoughts out of her head for the duration.

"Whoa.. weird..." She muttered to herself, setting the rock down. She knew that this was a weird and mystical experience - but she seemed more interested in how her altered body felt as it moved, the fluid grace less powerful, but more 'comfortable', than her usual movements. In the heightened state of detail-awareness she was in, she could feel the new sensations of her altered body with a strange clarity, from the way her finer body hair felt inside her pajamas, to the shiti and heti of her as-yet unseen breasts.

Slowly, she worked her way out of the layers of clothing that encumbered her newly changed body, dropping them negligently on the floor. Within moments, her new body was naked, newly feminine nipples going stiff in the cool air.

"Oh... that feels... neat..." She giggled, hands rising to lightly massage the fully engorged nipples that graced her extraordinary new tits.

They were big - hell, huge, the size and almost the shape of volley-balls, with just enough sag to allow a somewhat 'natural' look, despite their incredible firmness and spherical shape. The fact that the huge nipples gracing the milky spheres of breast-flesh were in scale with the breasts themselves also argued against 'enhanced' tits - though she thought if she tried to explain to anybody how she'd gotten such remarkable tits, she'd be thrown in a rubber room and locked away for years to come, until the marvelous new tits of her hung to her knees.

Speaking of which - hers were remarkably cute. Her knees, that was. Knees weren't usually high on people's lists of body parts to admire, but she had nicely shaped ones with cute little dimples on the side that accentuated her entire leg, which was long and shapely and smooth, not as purely sensual as some legs, but very long, supple and attractive nonetheless.

"Wow..." She said, rising with a fluid grace that she didn't even notice. "I wonder if the rest of me is as nice as my legs and tits..."

Humming rather vaguely, she headed toward s the mirror in the bathroom, enjoying the sway and swivel of her new body's stride. She realized that it was strange to be enjoying the way she looked and felt - but the dim realization that it was unusual didn't keep it from happening. She felt fantastic, and the thought that she might be pretty was somehow exciting and pleasurable to her altered outlook, even though she knew that on some fundamental level she should be worried about it.

Reaching the mirror, she felt her new lips spread wide in a cheerful grin. "Wow..." She breathed, then giggled. "I am a hottie!"

She was, too. Short and slender, her body was a flawlessly supple and smooth as her long, cute legs. With a trim waist, huge breasts and long legs, she could have been 'wet dream' sexy, and she was - in a way. But instead of pure carnality, she was innocent sensuality, the ultimate 'girl next door' brought to a whole new level. Trim, mildly athletic and firm without being 'muscular', she had a healthy, supple, graceful body that was nevertheless 'approachable'.

Her face was more of the same. Surrounded by a jaw-length mass of platinum-blond curls, her face was the ultimate 'girl-next-door' face, with cute, bow-shaped lips beneath a snub nose that, in turn, was flanked by sparkling, cheerful blue eyes. Her new eyebrows were slender and formed finely arched curves.

Even her shell-like ears were cute-and-beautiful. In fact, she was so perfect that she didn't look quite real, her skin smooth and flawless, unblemished by even the tiniest mark. She was absolutely lovely, sexy, cute, cheerful, friendly, approachable. all this and more. The type of girl you could actually ask out. and would enjoy spending time with, in or out of bed.

"Girl, you are something else. ": She told her reflection, turning this-way-and-that to admire her firm, full ass and long, shapely legs. She slid a hand across her smooth, silky flesh, enjoying the sensation.

Looking around, she headed to the bed on which she'd piled all the clothing she'd cleaned up, planning to take them to Goodwill. Now, she began to rummage through them cheerfully with a big smile on her face.

"Now I know why girls like Barbie dolls..." She giggled to herself, finding the idea of 'dressing up' inordinately fun. Pawing through the clothes, she found something she thought would be just about right. Most of the stuff was too 'sleazy' for her wonderful new body, but this stuff should be just about perfect. Quickly, she pulled the clothing on, then went back to the mirror for a look at herself.

"Oh, that's just so perfect...!" She told her reflection, eyeing herself with a grin.

She was wearing a pair of white ankle-boots over pink socks with white lace trimming at the top. Rising six inches in the air, the heels of the boots accentuated her long, cute-sexy legs all the way up to where they vanished into the pair of white shorts she wore, the hem at her legs just loose enough to have some movement before becoming skin-tight across her hips and ass. A belt drew the otherwise loose waistband tight around her slender waist.

The pastel-pink shirt she wore showed off the smooth belly and trim waist nicely. It was short enough that it just barely came to the bottom of her fantastic new boobs, drawn skin-tight over her magnificent new rack, her huge nipples creating bumps between the words that were centered on the shirt, one above the other - "Girls Rule!"

"I bet I'd look great with some lipstick..." She giggled to herself, heading back towards the pile of items she'd leti on the bed...

...then stopping in the middle of the room, a brief frown furrowing her smooth brow.

"Why am I acting like this...?" She asked, aloud. "Why do I feel so happy, so cheerful...? Why am I not... not thinking things through..."

It took an enormous force of will for her to force herself to think about these things. Not because they didn't want to be answered, as if there was some force specifically trying to keep her from asking the questions - but because she felt... well, like she was stoned. Deep, hard thoughts didn't come easily. Her mind didn't want to 'think' - it wanted to 'feel', to just go along and do whatever felt good. Her brain was focusing on things, specific images, sensations and sounds, and the ones that she 'wanted' to experience were ones that felt good. Considered thoughts as to whether or not it was 'right' or 'good' slipped through her mind, but she had a hard time holding onto individual thoughts long enough to consider them...

Which was why her frown faded and she blinked, wondering why she was just standing in the middle of the room. There was something she had been...

"Oh, yeah - makeup!" She chirped, cheerfully, then giggled. "Silly girl!"

Humming to herself, she resumed her trek to the pile... and soon she was wearing a pink gloss lipstick and pink eye-shadow, as well as mascara on her long, dark lashed. A white plastic 'pearl' necklace encircled her neck, and matching clip-on earrings graced her cute little lobes. She admired the over-all look in the mirror.

"Boy, am I cut and sexy./" She told herself, with a grin. "If I were a guy, I'd find me so sexy, I'd..." Her grin weakened. "But... I am a guy."

Then she looked in the mirror - and her grin grew even wider. "And the guy in me says 'Damn, girl, you are gorgeous...!'"

With a giggle, she blew herself a kiss and walked back into the living room, feeling so happy she thought she might burst. Her body was smooth and supple and graceful, and just walking in it felt really, really great - especially the way her tits jiggled and swayed ever so slightly with each step.

Turning, she walked over to the door of the cabin and opened it, stepping out into the crisp, chill night air... and giggling again as she felt her already swollen nipples go as hard as diamonds in the cold air, the rush of blood to the sensitive nubs creating a tingling rush that felt fantastic.

Cocking her head to the side, she listened as she heard a sound in the night. It was brief, coming and going in the space of a few seconds, but there was no mistaking it as music, and not all that far away.

"Gee, I feel like dancing." She told herself, happily. "Maybe somebody's having a party!"

Turning, she went back into the cabin and grabbed a white leather jacket out of the pile. It was a couple of sizes too large... but that was fine with her.

She debated taking her keys and wallet... but figured she wouldn't need them. Leaving them where they were, she once more stepped out of the cabin, swaying in a very cute stride down to the firm-packed gravel and sand at the top of the lake's beach, then heading in the direction of where she'd heard the music, humming happily to herself...

She stopped dead on the strand, the happy look in her eyes fading as the rational part of her brain struggled to make itself heard through the warm, uncritical glow she was feeling.

"Maybe... this isn't a good idea..." She told herself. "I'm outside, as a girl, all dressed up and looking for a party..."

Then she shrugged. "Why not? The cabin's so boring, with no TV or music, and it's not like anybody knows I was a guy, before..." The rational part of her mind struggled to keep her short attention span from wandering, trying to focus in on her situation.

"Gee... I guess I should have a name to give if anybody asks." She told herself. "Uh, I guess I look like a... Janet? No... a Tammy. Yeah, I'm Tammy."

Grinning, glad she'd planned ahead, she once more walked forward, the unseen clamor of her mind lost in the warm haze she was in, cheerful and almost mindless.

She shortly found herself at the next cottage up the row along the lake - and its windows were ablaze with light, indicating it was the probably source of the music.

Humming happily to herself, she walked to front door of the cottage, hearing the thrum of music through the closed door. Without thinking, she reached out and twisted the handle without bothering to knock, her body swaying in time with the music as she stepped through the door.

The door opened onto a large common area that was similar to her own cottage, but more up-to-date. There was a big-screen TV taking up the corner of the room, hooked into a stereo system. It was the TV/Stereo from which the music came.

Laying on the couches that dominated the room were two guys, about college age. The one on the right-hand couch was skinny and short and pale, with a slender body that seemed only to exist to support the two large protuberances he boasted - his large, beak-like nose, and the unusually large bulge at his crotch, which was clearly evident through the pair of shorts that were the only thing that he was wearing.

On the other couch was a slightly pudgy young man, his shock of messy dark hair similar to his friends. Somewhat taller than his companion, he was also dressed only in shorts, the bulge in them not nearly impressive.

Both of them failed to notice her entry - as they were busy watching the TV, which was showing a video who's soundtrack was the origin of the music.

A porno video to be exact, featuring a tanned blonde with surgically-inflated boobs having fun with a slender Asian woman... "Hi, guys." Tammy announced herself, brightly, peeling off her jacket. "Geez, that's some cheesy acting, isn't it?"

Both guys' heads whipped around... and their jaws dropped as they stared at the buxom, sexy woman standing in their cabin. It was as if their lustful fantasies had somehow stepped out of their brains to become living flesh and blood - and what flesh it was, too!

"Uh, I... um..." the chubby one said, fumbling for the remote. "I'll just turn this off and... where's the button!"

"Oh, I don't mind... it's funny..." Tammy giggled, brightly. "The seem to be having fun, though. Having big tits fondled seems to be a lot of fun..."

"Uh... 'seems to be...'? the skinny one asked, looking at her chest. "I mean... don't you, uh... know?"

Tammy blinked. "Nope. Never had them fondled before." Then her smile blossomed. "hey - you want to fondle my tits for me?"

Part of her mind suddenly screamed for attention... but she was distracted by a very vocal 'yes' from the two guys, and she grinned and walked towards the skinny one, dropping onto the couch beside him. She had another second's pause, something inside her telling her this was wrong... but before she could do anything, the guy was reaching up and massaging her firm, round boobies through her shirt... and it felt real good. Really, really good.

"Oh, gee... that's nice..." She giggled.

"I can't believe nobody's fondled your tits before..." The guy said, a goofy grin on his face as he massaged her breasts. "God, this is.. oh, man..."

"Oh, it does feel good..." She agreed. "I've never had Amman touch me before."

That set off another alarm in her brain, and she tried to track down why... but they guy was talking, and it drew her attention.

"You're kidding..." He Sid, litiing off her shirt. She litied her arms and let him take it off, sighing in pleasure as he went back to fondling her tits.

There was something she was....

"Oh - by the way... I'm Tammy " She said, remembering what she'd thought of while walking over here.

"I'm Jason." The chubby one managed, gaping at her. "Uh... he's, uh. Kevin."

Kevin couldn't give his own name. because he was busy licking and sucking her nipples.

"Oh, that feels real nice, Kevin.": She said, cradling his head in her hands and moaning in pleasure. She looked at Jason.
"Oh. you look so lonely... Why don't you come over here too? We can kiss, if you'd like. "

That seemed like a good idea, to make him happy, like she was happy - but almost instantly she had second thoughts. Before she could retract her offer though, Jason had hurried over... so she let him kiss her. Then she wasn't just letting him. she was kidding back, because it felt good.

She had two guys paying attention to her body, making her feel really, really good... so why was there something nagging at her ?

The sound from the movie grabbed her attention as she broke the kiss, and she looked over to where the blonde with the big tits was having sex. She seemed to be really enjoying it, too. Maybe that was what she was feeling weird about.

"You guys wanna have sex?" She asked, brightly - and they gaped at her. She paused, wondering if she'd done something wrong. "Sure!" Kevin blurted out... and she grinned again, quickly peeling off her own shorts as the two guys. blushing and shooting looks at each other - did the same.

"Oh, you have a really big dick!" She told Kevin, brightly, looking at his huge, throbbing tool. She pushed him back on the couch, his cock thrust upwards.. and she straddled him, legs framing his as she positioned herself. and thrust herself down on his cock, crying out in pleasure.

"Oh, this is great!" She screamed, energetically riding his cock, body squirming in pleasure. If her mind was trying to tell her anything, it was lost in the haze of pleasure. "Oh, I wish I could feel this good all the time. Oh, I like this. "

Kevin seemed to agree with her, considering the moaning sounds he was making as she thrust herself cheerfully and energetically up and down on his cock, loving how the wonderful friction of her pussy around his cock felt.

"Oh, wow... I think I'm gonna orgasm. !" She cried, gleefully, as the pleasure mounted.

She was right. She screamed happily as her body was gripped by the force of the most incredible pleasure she'd ever felt.

She shook with the force of her orgasm, enjoying the wonderful ecstasy... and then it began to fade.

"Oh, god...!" Kevin gasped, eyes wide in pleased shock. Grinning, Tammy climbed off of him - and turned to face Jason.

"You wanna fuck to?" She asked him... then glanced at the TV screen. "Or should I do that...?" She pointed to the Asian girl busy sucking a guy's cock.

"Oh, wow... I wish you would..." The chubby youth said, wide eyed... so, grinning, she slid down and took his hard, throbbing cock into her mouth.

It wasn't quite as nice-feeling as getting fucked. There was no building surge of pleasure from sucking on the cock - but it felt nice in her mouth, and when he came and spewed warm cum into her mouth, the flavor was sharp and clear and delicious, and she lapped it all down happily, loving the way it felt and tasted.

"Mmmm... I never knew cum was so tasty!" She told the guys with a grin. "Say... why don't I fuck you again, Kevin...?"

"Oh, I'd love to..." Kevin said, regretfully... looking at his semi-limp cock, too satisfied with sex at the moment to get all the way to full erection.

"I bet I can fix it...!" Tammy giggled, starting towards him...

"Hey! What's that!" Jason said, pointing out the window at something that had caught his eye. "I think something's on fire..." Wandering over, Tammy looked out the window... where flames were rushing into the night sky from just up the way.

"I think it's the next cabin over..>!" Kevin said. "I'll call the fire department..."

Something about the sight made Tammy frown... but she couldn't figure out what it was. It couldn't have been anything to important...

"While we're waiting, do you want to play with my titties...?" She asked with a big, big grin - and Jason didn't seem to have a problem with it....

* * * * *

Chris stirred. and stared up at the gray, featureless haze around him.

For a second, he just lay there.. then memory came flooding back. The memory of himself.. or, rather, herself, as Tammy. Of the way it had become harder and harder to think, until she'd stopped thinking altogether and fucked the two guys long into the night, until they'd fallen asleep on the floor, exhausted, while his/her cabin had burned to the ground from the way she'd let the fire unattended...

"Oh, shit!" Chris said, standing bolt upright in shock. "What the hell have I done. ?"

"Gee, something wrong, honey?" A familiar voice said... and Chris whirled to find himself facing... Tammy.

"Who are you?" Chris shouted. "What did you do to me? You took over and.. and... oh, god, you're a cum-happy little bimbo!" Tammy giggled. "Yes, we are, aren't we - but make that a 'happy cum-craving bimbo', and you'd be closer."

Chris stared at the buxom blonde, horrified. "There's nothing funny about this! I... I just had sex with guys!" "Yeah - and it was fun, wasn't it?" Tammy asked, with a giggle.

Chris opened his mouth, angrily... but couldn't deny the fact that, at the time, it had been fantastic. He'd loved every second of it... even though it hadn't really been him. Now, realization set in and he sank to his knees.

"Oh, god... I'm trapped as Tammy now, aren't I?" He gasped. "A mindless bimbo..." "Nope!" Tammy said, brightly. "This is where you get to choose, silly!"

"Choose?" Chris said, stunned. "What do you mean?"

"Life is an illusion, a shared dream." Tammy said, with a giggle. "As your spirit guide, I showed you the pleasures of the flesh last night. I over-did it, of course... you had to have everything shown to you before you could decide. Now it's time for you to choose. Do you want to go back to Chris... or Tammy? Which ever you pick will be your life. Everybody will remember you being that person. You'll have a life, and a history. Oh - and you won't be 'mindless', like you were last night. That was just so you could see the things you wouldn't have been willing to do without that 'help'?"

"Why are you doing this to me?" Chris asked, plaintively... shocked to find that the answer to the 'choice' he'd been offered wasn't as automatic as he'd thought it'd be.

"I am you silly!" Tammy said, laughing. "You're doing this to yourself. You've always wondered what it was like to be a woman. What it was like to be cheerful and happy and sexy - everything your 'Chris' life lacked. So, now, you have a choice..."

Chris stared at Tammy... who, atier all was said and done, was really just the 'other' side of himself, the part of himself that he'd never talked to anyone about. The concealed yearnings for the 'easy' life a sexy woman could have, how easily they could have sex when he rarely ever did...

Suddenly, he understood why the choice wasn't as easy as he'd expected. Like himself and Tammy standing her, together, his mind was torn between the two options...

* * * * *

Jason groaned and rolled over.. and found himself staring at Kevin. They blushed and quickly turned away from each other's nude bodies, scrambling for their shorts...

...when a sweet, trilling soprano interrupted them.

"Breakfast's ready, guys!" Tammy trilled, cheerfully, serving up the bacon and eggs she'd made. She was naked, except for an apron, and she looked magnificent in the sunlight streaming in the window.

She grinned. "Don't bother with clothes, boys - they'll just slow you down atier breakfast..."

Jason and Kevin grinned at each other. When they'd been talking to this gorgeous, sexy co-ed at college about their trip up to Kevin's dads cabin, they'd been amazed when she'd suggested that she come along. "Amazed" however, didn't even begin to describe what they felt about the fact that the College's head cheerleader and most popular girl also seemed to be an insatiable nymphomaniac who preferred 'nerds' like them because they were more 'attentive and grateful' for her sexual willingness.

Well, they were certainly grateful as hell...

Smiling at the guys goofy expressions, Tammy poured herself a cup of coffee and sat down at the table, knowing she'd definitely made the right choice...

Though Pop wouldn't know why, she was going to make sure to 'thank' him quite thoroughly for selling her the rock. She just hoped the old guy's heart was up to it...

BACK TO FUN ZONE

HOME DATE POSTED OUR STORIES PUBLIC STORIES SIGNATURE SERIES NEW MEDIA

SUMMARY: What happend to all my stuff? What is odd old student hand book for some place called "Stridebridge?" And what is a "Nufeme?" Who is asking for help?

...Find out!.

Stridebridge Scenario

By Gunslinger

Coming soon....the next all new chapter of...

Stridebridge Scenario by Gunslinger!

SUMMARY: A lonely writer receives a giti from outerspace when a sunspot interferes with his computer. What happens next is "out of this world."

AUTHOR'S NOTE: Advanced warning to all. What you are about to read is an unabashed exercise in internal dialogue. If you're expecting plot coherency and deep, thought-provoking characters, just forget it now. You're not going to get it. This story is a fluff piece of writing, blatantly turning on a single story-concept which I freely admit isn't my own, just so I can have a little bit of fun writing it.

Hopefully, you'll have as much fun reading it, without expecting 'great literature', which is patently not. To crib from Mr. Clemens... '

Sunspot

By Gunslinger

What the...?"

Dropping his jacket on one of the worn orange vinyl chairs, Doug walked a slow circle around the kitchen table, staring at item sitting in the center of the chipped and cracked Bakelite surface. Stroking his wiry beard in confusion, the pudgy, dark-haired youth turned from table and made a slow circuit of his cheap downtown apartment, checking each of the windows.

Aside from the one where the aging and too-noisy air conditioner was bolted in, all the windows were closed and locked, many of them painted over so many times that they couldn't be opened at all. There was no sign of forced entry at any of the windows, or at the door.

Frowning, Doug returned to the kitchen at stared at the shiny metallic box sitting in the precise center of the table. It hadn't been there when he'd leti for the library that morning.

The 'box' was about a foot long, nine or ten inches wide, and about five inches high. Seemingly a solid block of seamless metal, the only thing breaking the smooth surface was a slight indentation in the center of the top. which was faintly glowing green, though the indentation didn't seem anything more then a squarish dip in the metal.

"Okay..." Doug said to himself, thoughtfully. "If this is some sort of a joke, somebody went to a hell of a lot of work. "

For the life of him, Doug couldn't think of anyone who would go to any length to play a joke on him, and definitely not one this elaborate.

A rather quiet, thoughtful man, the twenty-seven-year old had almost no friends, or enemies. He was simply to 'neutral' make a major impact on most people, his pudgy frame and unassuming face just fading into the background. His life was simple, and boring, even to him - all of which was a direct result of his almost painful shyness around people, a shyness that rose to near phobic levels when in the presence of the female of the species. Even his way of making a living - being a writer - was an antisocial endeavor, requiring almost no human contact. In fact, the only sort of social life Doug had was in the wonderful anonymity provided on the Internet, where...

"Hey!" Doug said, snapping his thick fingers. Maybe that was the answer - maybe one of his Internet acquaintances had tracked down his real identity and sent him a giti. If that was the case, it was a little creepy, somebody stalking down his 'real' identity - but it would explain things.

Leaving the box where it sat, he headed to the living room, where his laptop computer sat on a battered office-surplus desk. Opening the top of the computer, he booted it up, then clicked on the 'connect' button for the Internet.

The phone lines in the building were so old and poorly maintained that Doug didn't use them - his laptop was connected to a cellular modem, which was slower than a line modem - but, in the old brownstone apartment, more reliable.

Usually. Yesterday, severe sunspot activity had interfered with the cell modem, and Doug had almost given up on trying to send the e-mail message he'd written. At the last minute, though, the connection had gone through, though it had taken an unusually long time for the message to transmit.

Apparently the sunspot activity had dropped since yesterday, however, as his computer connected with little trouble, and Doug opened his mail program.

A chime told him he had mail waiting, and he let the computer receive the seven messages. He began to read through them quickly, hoping to find a clue to...

Doug stopped dead, eyes widening as he re-read the text on the tiny LCD screen for the second time.

Fellow Sentient Being.

Very excited we were to be receiving from you communication. Here, scientists find that communication is by accident, from random/coincidental matching of photonic activity of Primary Star of our/your both systems, allowing for temporary talking. With communication giving example, scientists follow-back frequency of transmission and interface with (?WWW/Web/Net/Internet) and be studying much of Primary Sentient Species of the planet of Earth. For showing of gratitude in learning of planet of Earth and Primary Sentient Species, with Matter Transporter have provided a giti for enjoyment of yourself, based on personal communication mistake- sending that provide this species with knowledge of yours. Scientists here are have calculations of one hundred point three six nine two five one of your solar time units (?years) until again we communicate. Enjoyment from giti we hope you have, and talking again when possible being nice.

For a long moment, Doug just stared at the screen in utter disbelief.

Last evening, he'd sent an e-mail to a friend on the Internet, in which he'd 'bitched' about how much flack his female characters got, being completely 'unbelievable', according to some of his readers. According to this e-mail... a freak coincidence had transmitted the microwave-carrier of the cell-modem through space, to an alien species, who had used the link to log on to the Internet and research humanity, in return for which they'd given him some sort of giti.

It wasn't possible...

...was it?

Logging off the Internet and shutting of the computer, the pudgy young man rose as if in a daze and walked slowly into the kitchen. Looking down at the strange metal box, Doug half-believed it was possible. As unbelievable as the thought was, it was just incredible enough that his mind was able to grasp the possibility, whereas the alternative was that this was all some sort of incredibly elaborate practical joke pulled on him by somebody he didn't really know... and, to him, that almost seemed the less likely of the two.

Hesitantly, Doug reached one short, thick finger out... and pulled it back, staring at the glowing green indentation with fascination.

He knew he was going to push the button. It was inevitable. It was part of the human psyche to explore something like this. In fact, the only thing that could have made the urge to push it even stronger would have been a huge warning reading 'Don't Push The Button!!'.

Once more, Doug hesitantly reached out - the, flabby jaw firming momentarily, he stabbed his finger down on the glowing green square.

An low, all-pervasive thrumming sound began to reverberate around the room - and Doug gasped as he felt the strangest tingling sensation he'd ever felt wrap itself around him - and run through him. He'd never felt anything quite like it, as if something was sleeting through muscle and bone. It wasn't painful, or even unpleasant - but it was definitely new, and so disturbing.

Then he gasped as he felt his body begin to... change.

"Wha...!" He gasped, staggering back a step as he felt muscles writhing on themselves, shitiing within the confines of a skin that, itself, was warping and changing, making something new out of the familiar form so common and comfortable to him that he had nothing to compare it against. That all changed, now, as he felt new configurations forming within his now-elastic skin, bone and muscles reshaping themselves without pain or apparent effort, as if his once-immutable form was little more then clay in the hands of an unseen sculptor.

It was as if he was melting. He could feel the weight draining away from his chubby frame, the extra weight he'd resigned to carrying with him the rest of his life atier a couple of abortive attempts at exercise and diet fading away as if butter in a hot frying pan./ He felt his clothes settling on a steadily slimmer frame - as he viewpoint slowly shitied, as if he were on a really slow open elevator going downwards, the walls and furniture seeming to stretch upwards as he descended - but his feet were still firmly on the floor, and it was just the level of his eyes that was sinking downwards.

"I.. I'm shrinking...!" Doug gasped in shock, hearing his words - and gasping again at the higher-pitched, smoother sound of the words.

And still the changes continued. He could feel his jeans growing so loose around a steadily shrinking waist that they sank lower - yet, despite his loss of height and mass, they hung up on hips that should have been trim enough to let them pass.

His T-shirt was folding in on itself as the once-pudgy frame within shrunk away - but it continued to ride out at the chest, even as the shoulders drooped downwards and the hem hung lower and lower over his now-baggy jeans.

"A girl..!" He said, eyes widening even as longer lashes framed them. His voice only further strengthened the realization. "I'm becoming a girl...!"

Only, that wasn't technically true. He'd become a woman - because, even as the realization truly sank in, the tingling sensation faded... leaving new sensations to take its place.

The sensation of the T-shirt hanging loose, draped over his new bust, laying across more sensitive nipples. The feeling of too-loose jeans and underwear sitting folded and bunched between thinner, more muscular thighs - yet not pressing against a cock...

Doug's more slender, feminine hand darted downwards and slid across his crotch, feeling fabric push inwards and move across the skin beneath - without encountering anything vaguely masculine.

Doug screamed. A short, high, and ultimately feminine sound that only drove the horror home. Stumbling in the now too-long pants, Doug closed the few feet of distance he'd unthinkingly put between himself and the damned box, and slammed his now petite fist down on the glowing green square.

The tingling resumed, and Doug began to feel the weight returning to his frame. Gasping, he tore at the clothes that bound his body, shedding everything but his socks as he watched his familiar, portly frame fill back out - and his none-too-impressive cock return to it's former lack of glory, once more allowing him to be defined as male.

The instant the tingling stopped, Doug stumbled backwards away from the box, tripping and landing - hard - on his chubby ass. Using hands and heels, he scooted away from the box on the table, shaking in reaction to what had just happened.

Still trembling, he slowly rose and tottered into the bathroom. Peeling off his socks, he stepped into the stall and turned on the water, letting the warm liquid sluice over his body as he struggled to get breathing and heart-rate back to normal.

"A.. a woman...!" He gasped, slumped against the shower wall. "It turned me into a woman!"

Then Doug paused, an odd look crossing his face as he looked off into the distance. "...and back again."

Slowly, with mechanical motions, Doug turned off the water and stood there, sopping wet, as he savored the impact of the words. "It turned me into a woman... and then back again..."

Slowly, Doug stepped from the shower and toweled off with absent-minded motions, wrapping his frame in a huge, thick bathrobe he kept handy. Slowly, he padded back out to the kitchen and stood a few feet away from the table, looking at the inoffensive-looking metal box that rested there.

"I push the button, and it turns me into a woman." He said to himself, thoughtfully. "I push it again... and it turns me back..." Slowly, he cocked his head.. and began to smile. "This could be... interesting..."

Very slowly, hesitantly, he approached the metal box again, looking down on it as he thought about the complete implications of the gift that had been given to him.

"Well...?" He asked himself, still hesitant. "Do I dare? But... can I not do this...?"

Hesitating a second longer, he sighed and let the robe slip from his chubby shoulders and pile around his feet. Taking the last step closer to the box, he reached out and pressed the button with a trembling hand.

Once again, the low humming filled the room, and the tingling sensation ran through him. A moment later, it died - and Doug, who'd been standing with eyes closed and teeth clenched, let out a long breath and opened his...

No. Opened her eyes. Slowly, the newly-formed woman looked down...

To stare at a pair of absolutely enormous breasts thrust from her slender new ribcage. They were enormous, the size of basket-balls, and practically as spherically firm, tipped with large, dark nipple that were fully engorged in the cool air.

Hesitantly, Doug lifted one slender hand, noticing peripherally the long nails that tipped them, and touched one massive, sootily firm breast...

"Holy shit...!" She breathed. "I would never have believed I'd be doing this...!"

The aliens had read the e-mail, in which Doug had complained that of course he had troubles writing things from a female viewpoint - since he'd never been one.

Well.. that would no longer be true. Though she didn't really know what she looked like, over all, the pair of gargantuan breasts thrust from her chest made it impossible to pretend that she wasn't female, almost ridiculously so.

"Too bad the communication can't be reestablished..." She muttered in her higher-pitched new voice, wryly. "I'd like to chat with them about their ideas of what a human female looks like..."

Then again... they'd gleaned all their knowledge of humanity from the Internet, so it was bound to be skewed somewhat. Wondering what her new body looked like, the feminine Doug turned to go to the bathroom...

...and performed a neat little spiral, ending up falling on an ass that felt as if it were stuffed with a pair of thick, firmly-packed pillows.. but were incredibly sensitive despite the 'padding'.

"Shit...!" Doug cursed. She hadn't taken into account the inertial effect on her new bust-line - she hadn't put enough 'oomph' in stopping her spin, forgetting that the mass of her new chest would want to continue moving, unless adequate force was applied to stop them.

She started to get up... and realized that it wasn't as easy as all that. She'd been overweight as a man, and not as athletic as some other people... but at least the extra weight had been evenly distributed. This new body seemed to be slender... except for the heavy weight on her chest, making her very top-heavy and throwing off her balance.

Awkwardly, the new woman sort of rolled over onto one rounded hip, braced a slender arm against the floor, and drew her legs under her, allowing the muscular appendages push her upwards with more force than her slender new arms and shoulders could manage. Finally, she was once more upright, and she returned to her trek into the bathroom, moving slowly and carefully as she tried to get used to the new balance of her body. The weight of her chest was one thing, seemingly making her want to bow down, but in addition there was a strange swaying/swinging action in her new hips that took some adjusting to get used to. Feeling decidedly awkward and ungainly, she made it into the bathroom, where she was able to take a good, long look at her new body...

"Oh... my..." She gasped, softly, at the sight of her new form.

She was a 'Blonde Bombshell'... built to government specifications.

Which is to say, the Alien culture had some general idea of what they were shooting for... but the finer details of human aesthetics seemed to have slipped their grasp.

She had a tiny, slender frame that looked like the finest china. It was more than just being slender.. she was incredibly light-boned, almost elfin in her slender body-type, with wrists, ankles and a waist that practically seemed to disappear.

On that slender frame, her wide hips, incredible full ass and huge, unrealistically firm tits looked.. well, almost grotesque. Definitely mismatched and out of place. She looked like Tinkerbell after a couple dozen too many trips to the plastic surgeon.

Likewise, she had the requisite mane of rich, curly, platinum-blond hair that fell in a massive breaking wave over her shoulders and down her back... but it was the wrong color and style for a face that looked as if it were stolen from a fashion model, with pointed chin and high, well-defined cheekbones flanking a slender, sharp-bridged nose.

Equally out of place were the big blue eyes and incredible full, soft lips. On another face, they might have been stunning, sexy, perfect... on hers, they stood out to sharply in contrast with the fine, delicate features of a well-sculpted face.

"I.. I'm a freak...!" Doug gasped at the sight of her new form.

It was.. true, and not true. She was certainly a unique-looking woman, and would never be described using the adjective 'beautiful'. However, despite her odd proportions and look, she wasn't hideous, either. Just, most definitely, unusual. It was as if somebody had compared Dolly Parton to the 'average' woman... and then extrapolated a new body based on the difference, stretching it that much further from 'average'.

Shaking her head in disbelief, Doug turned away from the mirror, planning to go right back and change herself back into a man... then told herself not to be so hasty. After all, what could it hurt to stay female for a bit longer? She might be odd-looking, but that was no reason to hurry up and change back. It wasn't as if she were going to be vain about her look as a female.

Awkwardly, she made her way to the bedroom, finding her body still felt - appropriately - alien to her, its balance and stride all wrong for what her brain remembered as 'walking'.

Rummaging through her closet, the newly formed woman looked for something to wear. After all, there must be clothes in her closet she could adapt into a basic outfit of some-sort, right? You always had old clothing or something that you had for years and never wore...

Except that Doug didn't have a thing. All her male clothes were designed for a body bigger in almost every dimension, except the bust. There, her chest extended even further outward than the rest of her had shrunk.

Finally, she had to settle on the oddest assemblage of fabric that she'd ever seen.

Topping it all off was a white dress-shirt, which hung like a tent everywhere else on her, hanging practically to her knees at the back... but only coming down to her waist at the front, where the buttons were strained over her massive, heavy bust. Her dark nipples were clearly visible through the fine white fabric.

For underwear, she was wearing a pair of boxer-briefs, which fit as poorly as the shirt. They were much too loose around her waist, and she'd had to slit the elastic and tie it in a knot to get it to stay up - yet they fit tight across the widest part of her new hips and ass, only to hang almost comically baggy at the crotch.

Over this, a white bath-towel held up with a couple of safety-pins served the place of a skirt.

There was no way she could find something to put on her feet. Even her smallest shoes were like boats to her tiny new feet - which were already aching from the effort of moving such a top-heavy body around on such a small base, not to mention the twinge of warning of her small back muscles at having to hold her upright against the drag of her new tits.

"This is ridiculous." She told herself. "This isn't what I expected, not at all! I mean, maybe having big tits I could live with - but you'd think I'd be a little bigger and stronger to support them. Hell, even a little prettier, not that I'm worried about how I look."

She'd had enough. Maybe this was a great chance to experience life from the feminine viewpoint... but it just wasn't worth it. There was just too many problems, too much to deal with...

Carefully, she made her way back to the living room...

"Wha...!" She gasped, hand flying to her mouth at the sight of a pair of strange men in the living room... one of whom held the gleaming metal box in his hands, while the other was holding her cheap stereo system.

They were big muscular men, dressed all in black and wearing black knit caps. They were standing near and opened window, obviously about to climb out onto the fire escape, and at the sight of her they froze... then began to grin.

"Well, well, well... what do we have here...?" The one on the right said with a grin, putting down his load and eyeing Doug's outrageous new form. "Get a load of the tits on this broad, Eddie."

"Hod damn, Freddie - yeah..." the other one said, practically slobbering. At his dark-clad crotch, a very large bulge was forming, as was one at his companions' crotch...

"Oh, my god..." Doug said, slowly starting to back away from the two burglars. "No... no, you don't understand..."

"I that were two guys in a room with a girl whose obviously a slut - just look at the tits, ass and lips ion you, girl. Who you tryin' to fool..." Eddie said, slowly closing in on her, while his partner did the same from the other side.

"No...!" She gasped, horrified, as the men both unzipped their pants... revealing enormous, thick, throbbing cocks that sprang to full life, throbbing in time with the beat of their hearts. Doug's mind whirled as she tried to cope with the situation, terrified and confused, not sure how she could have possibly ended up where she was.

"Grab her, Eddie!" Freddie shouted, and they both darted forward. She tried to spin away, but her new body betrayed her and she stumbled, the two muscular men easily overpowering her and tearing at her patchwork clothes, quickly stripping her naked.

"look at her - she's all tits and ass...!" Eddie crowed, forcing a sobbing Doug to bend over. Legs straight, ass sticking up in the air, Doug was forced to let her new torso drag her farther over, until her face was level with Freddie's... or maybe Eddie's... crotch.

"Suck it, bitch!" He commanded with a grin. And don't try nothin' funny, or you'll regret it...!"

tears rolling down her new cheeks, Doug had no choice but to comply, opening her full lips wide and sliding them over the huge, throbbing cock, fighting the urge to gag as it filled her mouth and she began to lick and suck it, her hands coming up to work the shati as he tightly grabbed her shoulders and the back of her neck with big, strong hands that promised it could be much, much worse...

...which it was, as she felt the huge, thick cock of his partner slid deep into her new cunt and began to pound into her with a hard, painful beat. She was denied even screaming in pain and humiliation, not daring to stop the oral ministrations that she was performing...

Out of the corner of her eye, Doug caught sight of the supposedly locked front door of the apartment swing open. Even as she continued to lick and suck a huge cock filling her mouth, body shaking from the hard fucking she was getting, hope flared in her that she was about to be rescued.

The door finished opening, and a man came in. On the tall side, he was almost painfully thin, with a thick head of dark-brown hair in casually disarray and a full, neatly trimmed beard. Dressed in khaki slack and an off-white cotton work-shirt, the newcomer was leaning lightly on a polished oak can as he walked into the room with a slight limp, looking at Doug and her rapists with a disapproving look.

"No, no... this won't do. Not at all..." the newcomer said aloud in amusing tone of voice, and Doug waited for the men to either dump her to the side or hold her as a hostage...

...but it was as if they didn't even notice the new man, continuing what they were doing without missing a beat - something she couldn't say the same for herself, her oral work slacking as she tried to figure out what the hell was happening. Nearing orgasm, the man in front of her grunted and gripped his own shati, basically jacking off into her mouth as she stared, uncomprehending, at the man who was looking at them thoughtfully.

"I'll never slip this one over." The man said aloud, pacing with short steps, favoring his leg. "Jed, especially... he'd never buy it."

Doug was momentarily distracted from the new man's strange behavior as the guy in front of her came, gushing an incredibly thick stream of salty, disgusting liquid into her mouth. She gagged and choked, swallowing out of self-defense.. as the other man grunted and filled her new womanhood with his cum. What was even more humiliating was the fact that she'd begun to feel some pleasure from he pounding, still mixed with pain but steadily growing... but he'd finished before she could get the hollow comfort of her own orgasm, at least...

"Yes.. the burglars/rapists... not nearly good enough..." the tall, bearded man said aloud. "And look at them... they're practically clones. No definition or realism at all. What was I thinking. ?"

Lititiing his hands, the pale, skinny guy did some sort of odd motions, finishing with a sharp tap of his hand in the air which generated a very familiar 'click' sound that any computer user would know immediately.

Instantly, the two black-clad men (who, Doug realized, had looked identical in every way, with an unrealistic 'perfection' to them) simply vanished. Even the taste of the one's cum in her mouth disappeared. Painfully, she forced her body upright against the drag of her new bust.

"What.. what's going on?" She stammered, staring at him, wide eyed. "Who.. who are you?"

the man looked startled, tuning quickly to look behind him - then turning back to her, his eyes wide. "Are you talking to me?" He asked, head cocked questioningly.

Doug blinked. "Yes, of course I am. What.. what's going on here. ?"

He frowned. "Hmm... You shouldn't be able to see me... Wonder where I went wrong on that one. "

Doug stared at the muttering man, growing frustrated and angry. "What the hell's going on!" She shouted. "I was just raped.. only you do something, so now I don't think I was.. even though I remember it happening. Who are you. ?!"

Looking startled, the man suddenly grinned and bowed deeply, bracing himself on his cane. "Gunslinger, Transgender Fabulist Sub-Ordinaire, at your service Madame."

"Uh..." Doug said, blinking. "Huh?"

"I'm the author of this story." The strange man 'clarified'. "Story? What story!" Doug demanded.

"Oh, come now - I wrote it in that you're a bookish person. Surely you've read Heinlein."

If Doug hadn't before, she suddenly realized that she had... now. Which was odd, remembering something she couldn't remember remembering, before. If nothing else, it gave her a frame of reference...

"World as Myth...?" She stammered, confused. "But... this isn't.. I mean..." She paused, trying to sort out her thought. "Why are you doing this to me?"

"Oh, I'm not, really." Gunslinger said, looking around. "hmm... an empty apartment. You could use a couch, couldn't you..." Suddenly, a tattered couch appeared, filling the mostly empty floor directly behind Gunslinger, who leaned on it, casually. "What do you mean you're not doing this to me?" Doug demanded angrily. "You just said you're the author of this story!"

"Oh, yes... but I'm really doing this to me, you see." Gunslinger explained, casually. "In many ways, all my main characters, in all my stories - TG or not - are really a reflection of myself, in one way or another. At least, that's how they start out. Some of them sort of... lose cohesiveness." He grinned. "It would amaze some of my readers to know that for every story that I eventually submit, there's two or three partial story files that never get finished because they don't make it to meet my criteria for a story."

"I, uh.. don't understand..." Doug said, still trying to wrap her mind around this. "You mean, this is all the middle of some story you're writing? But... how can you be here, then...?"

"Oh, I'm hardly setting precedent." Gunslinger said, waving a hand negligently. "Heinlein explored the concept, of course, and many other authors project themselves into their stories to one degree or another. If you want a good example, read the more recent Cussler novels..."

"But... what happens to me...?" Doug asked, plaintively.

"Hmm.. that's a good question..." Gunslinger replied, looking thoughtful. "I've already decided to scrap this story... it just isn't working. However, I'm sure that you - or a close variation of you - will show up in another story."

"You mean... I'm doomed to go through something like this all over again, in another life...?" Doug said, horrified.

"Oh, you won't remember any of this..." Gunslinger assured her. "Think of it as reincarnation. Heck, maybe you'll end up in one of my 'happy ending' stories. They don't seem to be as popular, but I do write them... then you'll find yourself completely satisfied with your new life, at The End."

Doug sobbed, helplessly, unable to stop herself. "I.. Maybe you're right.. but it all sounds like some kind of hell. Some sort of.. endless torture that I'm trapped in, without any control of my self..."

Gunslinger's eyebrow rose. "You realize that if you're crying, it's me feeling pity for myself? This is truly disgusting..." Doug blinked at that. "Well.. what are you going to do, then...?"

Gunslinger stroked his beard thoughtfully. "Hmmm... Well, some people won't necessarily like it... but I think I have an idea..."

* * * * *

Drumming his fingers on the counter, Steve stared at the large, plain-brown-wrapped box yet again, lips drawn tight as he considered...

Forcing himself to turn away, the raw-boned man ran his fingers through his short, sandy hair and sighed. Taking off his black-rimmed glasses, he meticulously polished them with a Kleenex for the fifth time in a half-hour, more to give his hands something to do than for any other reason.

He was just settling them into place when the door to the apartment opened and Gunny limped in, shoving the door shut behind him with a sigh.

"I swear..." Gunny announced, loudly, tossing his jacket on the hooks near the door. "If I get one more idiot come in with a poorly- drawn sketch on an envelope, tell me he needs it in two hours.. then complains that it's nothing like what he was thinking, I'm just going to quit!"

Steve grinned at the family tirade. "Oh, right. Before you do, wonder what you'll do for money. Sometimes doing Graphic Arts might piss you off, and I can understand that... but I'm not carrying you half of the rent if you decide to give up the only career you know."

Gunny laughed. "You're right. Annoyances aside, I'm making pretty damned good money. I'd have to be an idiot to give this job up." He limped over to the counter - then spotted the box. "What's this...?"

"That's what I'm dying to know." Steve said. "It's addressed to both of us, so I didn't feel right opening it myself. The suspense is killing me, though. Get a load of the return address."

Gunny leaned over the box - then looked up at Steve. "Who the hell is 'The Rifleman'? Besides an old TV character, that is?" "Hell if I know." Steve said, shrugging his beefy shoulders. "Come on, let's open the sucker."

"Sure." Gunny agreed. Digging into his little belt-clip, he extracted his multi-tool and pried open the blade, slitting the twine that held the package closed. Quickly, he rummaged through the paper and lifted off the lid to the large box...

"What the hell...?" Gunny asked, blinking, as she lifted out the two top items. He looked at the huge blonde wig in his right hand, then the even more massive white cotton brassiere in the other. "What the hell is this? Why would anybody send us this stuff... especially this thing?" HE shook the bra. "I mean - it has to be a joke. No woman would really wear a.." HE leaned closer. "...a TTT-cup bra!"

"And what's up with this thing?" Steve asked, holding up something else...a dark-purple spandex 'catsuit'. "Why the hell would anybody send this to us...?"

* * * * *

Pausing for a second, Greg interlaced his fingers over the keyboard and cracked his knuckles.

"Okay, Gunslinger.. this is where we have some fun..." Greg 'The Rifleman' Rondo muttered, leaning back over the keyboard and continuing the story, a wicked grin on his face...

The End

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: Three army men believe they can win a big trust of money by spending the night at an old haunted estate, but what they don't know is that the spirits of the house have the ability to peek into their minds and see what the most humiliating fate belies them.

Supernatural

By Gunslinger

Like some prehistoric beast rising from the primordial ooze, the black shape rose from the depths of the sluggish river, it's angry growl filling the late afternoon air as it roared and grumbled up the slippery incline of the clay bank, the water rolling down it's hide looking almost like blood in the coppery-gold light of the slowly setting sun.

"C'mon, you can do it..." Richie urged the aging Land Rover, easing his foot down on the accelerator and urging the drab-painted vehicle higher unto dry land, the wheels threatening to slip on the soti, slippery slope and send the boxy four-by-four back into the river it had just finished fording. "Just a little further..."

With expert timing that seemed impossible from such a youthful-looking fellow, Richie eased off the accelerator for the barest instant as he switched gears 'on the rev', without so much as touching the clutch. Easing his foot back down on the gas, he goosed the vehicle ever-so-slightly - and, with a muffled series of back-fires, the ex-British-Army vehicle crested the bank, water streaming down it's once-olive-drab flank and splashing over the tumbled remains of what had once been a bridge abutment.

"Told you we'd make it..." Richie said to the man sitting in the passenger's seat as he pulled the big vehicle to a stop, a grin crossing a face that looked a good decade young then the twenty-nine years it's owner could claim. Once a corporal in Her Majesty's Army, Richard Farnsworth was so British that it was almost painful - from the milky-pale complexion that burned rather than tanned to the round 'baby-face' beneath the mop of wheat-blond hair that matched the mustache that emphasized, rather than ameliorated, his apparent youthfulness.

His definitely boyish grin only made him look that much younger as he waited for his companion's response.

"Yeah, we got across - barely." Ace replied, lips curled into a sneer. "We'll probably have to hire a goddamn helicopter to get us back across, though - and that's comin' right out of your share of the money, buddy-boy."

The Englishman's smile didn't waver in the slightest as he turned to the vehicles other occupants - a short, stocky, massively-muscled man with battered ebony features, and a much thinner, more carefully groomed brunet with an almost prissy look to him.

"He always this way...?" Richie asked, jerking one bony thumb in Ace's direction.

Mark 'The Mule' Lincoln snorted, the rumble rivaling that of the Rover's snorkel-equipped diesel engine. When the ex-boxer spoke, it was in a slow, deep drawl accompanied by a smile made all the more startling by its perfect, even whiteness against his battered and flattened mulatto features.

"Hell, no..." Mule said, evenly. "Usually, he's a complete asshole."

Chad Jenkins chuckled at the comment, his somewhat pinched features suddenly supporting a grin that managed to make him look downright charming - which was amazing, since his usual hang-dog look put most people in mind of a baleful basset hound.

The smile vanished, however, as Ace turned in his seat, his eyes settling first on the slender young man before sweeping on to the more ruggedly built black man beside him.

Broad-shouldered and carrying a lot of college-football muscle on a big frame just beginning to go to fat, Ace Merrick wasn't exactly a man adverse to violence - but one look at the ex-middleweight contender made the dark-haired man choke back whatever threat he was originally planning to utter, settling instead for narrowing his emerald-green eyes and sharing a contemptuous look between the dusky-skinned man in the back and the lanky Englishman sitting beside him.

"I do believe our friend is entering a plea of 'nolo contendere' to the charges laid against him..." Richie said, jovially, throwing the dark-skinned man a broad wink - which was returned by the boxer, whose version was longer, slower, and done utterly dead-pan.

"Hey - you losers ain't my 'friends'..." Ace muttered, crossing his beefy arms across his chest in an infantile-like gesture that went well with his immature mindset, practically a picture-perfect illustration of a man in a sulk.

A sulk that only grew deeper as, simultaneously, each of the others responded with the same words: "Thank God...!"

It wasn't as if Ace should have been surprised. Though once one of the most popular guys at college, Ace had never really grown past those heady days, and he still lived as if he were twenty-one, instead of a decade older. Part of the problem with Ace was the fact that he was wealthy - or, rather, he had been wealthy, since the last of the money he'd inherited had gone into funding this little expedition to the famous - or infamous - Gastley Island.

Until 1918, the two-and-a-half acres of land situated in the middle of the Mississippi river had been known locally as either Smuggler's Island or Dead Redskin Spit, depending on whether the person asked believed that the low-shrub-covered rock and soil mound was haunted by the ghosts of dead smugglers or dead Indians. Regardless, it had been the common consensus that the low, rocky island was useless for anything except for the burying of bodies, and barely any good for that.

Adolphus Gastley, however, had believed differently. A New Yorker by birth and upbringing, Adolphus Gastley not only owned a house, shipping company, and warehouse in the city, but three automobiles, a private Pullman couch on the GP&O, and a seat on the NYSE. In a time when the rich and famous were vying to outdo each other in extravagantly useless luxury, the shipping magnate had decided to buy the island and have a second home built on its rocky foundation.

From 1918 to 1922, money had flowed into the nearby towns as first dozens, then hundreds, of the local populace were employed on the project. The first step had been the bridge across the shortest arm of Old Man River, a massive stone-and-iron causeway that was strong enough to bare the weight of all the trucks and horse-drawn carriages that brought the vast amounts of landfill needed to resurface the entire island into something worth building atop.

Once the fill was in place, that was exactly what they did next: Build. With a veritable army of bricklayers, carpenters, roofers and other jobmen under the direction of a renowned architect, the massive Neo-Gothic house went up, rising steadily higher above the newly-created ground-level of the island, like a strange alchemic process where cold, hard cash was transmuted into soaring turrets and sprawling halls, deep-set doors and hard-wood floors.

The construction of the massive building had gone over-budget and past deadlines, hampered by spring floods, disease-bearing mosquitoes, and a score of inexplicable deaths, many of them in the dark depths of the night - but after four long, hard years of blood and sweat, the massive edifice had finally been completed.

Just in time for Adolphus Gastley to go bankrupt, the last of his money hemorrhaged away in the falling markets of what would be known as The Great Depression. Despite its moniker, Adolphus apparently found nothing 'great' about the depression that took his money, his hopes, and his wife - for, after the death of his wife and the seizure of all his assets, he was left only with his magnificent new home, now mortgaged to the hilt and unmarketable in the weakened economy.

Gastley spent exactly one night in the great stone folly that bore his name - for he was found the next morning sprawled at the base of the Grand Staircase, as dead and cold as the stone walls that enclosed his shattered body. Whether his death was mischance or misery, nobody could say for sure, though the rumor that persisted was that of ghostly intervention.

The island and its massive castle-like edifice were passed on to Gastley's sole offspring, a ne'er-do-well son who'd moved into Gastley Castle shortly after his father's death. Perhaps inspired by one of the island's original names, Andrew Gastley used the island as a terminus for rum-runners and gun-runners, turning the vast house into a speak-easy that also served to house and feed the stable of 'working girls' he tried desperately to hang onto - but with floozies showing up almost nightly in the nearby towns and villages, white-faced and so scared by whatever they'd experienced in the house as to forget what they might be implicated in as they spilled their stories, it wasn't long before the authorities arrested Gastley and shut down his house of ill-repute, putting an end to the unfortunate family's interaction with the island that bore their name.

The great house had sat empty, slowly decaying until 1938, when a failed Hollywood hopeful had purchased the house with an eye towards turning it into a secluded get-away for the rich and famous. Another small fortune had been dumped into the house and island by the fledgling entrepreneur, who'd even gone so far as to have a trio of Roman Catholic priests conduct a daylight exorcism of the building and grounds - more for the publicity than for any real belief in the rumors that came part-and-parcel with the property.

Perhaps the exorcism had some effect, for there were no more inexplicable deaths during the following months - but whatever spirits that roamed the island certainly weren't silenced, as no guest lasted a whole night in the establishment, ensuring that the business would fail. After the short-lived resort had closed its doors, the property had gone back on the market, there to languish until 1962, when yet another fool-hardy investor had sent good money after bad, planning to re-open the resort. Once again, the house had undergone complete renovations - and, once again, no guest of the re-opened resort had managed to get a full night's sleep, though many who'd come specifically because of the island's reputation gave it the 'old college try'.

After the closing of the newest incarnation of Gastley Castle, one of the original investors, now bankrupt, was heard to comment that a person would have to be crazy to spend a night in Gastley Castle - and perhaps others heard that comment and took it at face value, for in 1968 the land and house were bought out by the government, and the massive edifice turned into an asylum of the mentally disturbed - or, if you prefer the local term, a 'nut-house'.

None of the severely disturbed patients seemed to mind the house and its wandering spirits, but Gastley Sanitarium had so much trouble holding onto staff that, despite a constant influx of federal funding, the Sanitarium was closed in the summer of 1976, being sold into the hands of a privately-controlled corporation that planned to turn it into an executive retreat, spending yet another small fortune in renovations and redecorating.

For unknown reasons, the first few months of tenancy in the refurbished home had been relatively quiet, the small, almost exclusively female staff of secretaries, maids and cooks complaining mostly of misplaced items and bizarre, vivid dreams.

As the all-male executive staff of the parent company had begun to make use of the building, however, incidents of a less benign nature began to increase. Inexplicable noises kept the staff and guests awake night after night, and more than one guest was injured in inexplicable accidents, including one where a two-hundred-and-eighty-pound man was literally thrown off a second-story balcony, in full view of three other witnesses.

The owners, all hard-headed pragmatists, decided to try another round of exorcisms, this time using 'second-rate' priests from a small order, since the Catholic Church wanted nothing to do with the situation.

The number of physical injuries went down after the exorcism - but the inexplicable events grew more frequent, as did dreams and hallucinations that became even more vivid and even more bizarre. With staff and guests alike refusing to enter the premises, the owners had no choice but to abandon the property to the care of a groundskeeper who wouldn't lay foot on the island after dark, and who did just enough work to maintain the building.

The groundskeeper had died in 1986, when the bridge connecting the island to dry land had collapsed during a summer flood. Known to be a level-headed, economical man, the groundskeeper had been known and respected by the locals, none of whom were all that surprised to find that the groundskeeper had parleyed his monthly stipend into an estate that was worth well over a million dollars at the time of his death. They were considerably more shocked, however, to find that his will contained a single instruction as to the disposition of the funds remaining after funeral and expenses:

The money was to be held in trust, and split evenly among any who spend one full night, sunset to sunrise, on Gastley Island.

There'd been seven separate attempts to claim that money, but as yet none had claimed the trust-fund that was now valued at slightly over four million dollars - which explained why the four men, who barely knew each other - and in the case of Ace Merrick, liked each other even less - found themselves upon a reputedly haunted island, eagerly watched by the eyes of the locals across the river who'd been hired as 'look-outs' to ensure that the trio remained on the island for the full night.

It was an effort that was hardly recommended by the local police force. The local constabulary couldn't legally interfere, of course, nor could they 'officially' suggest that there was any sort of supernatural power at work on the island - they could, however, point out the simple fact that the last three groups attempting to spend a night on the island had simply disappeared.

Even this, however, had failed to dissuade the four men. Having grown accustomed to the easy life, Ace had no intention of giving it up, and this seemed like the best way to procure funds: just over a million dollars for one night's 'work' seemed like a good deal to Ace. As it was, he begrudged the fact he had to share the money with the three other men - but in a move that was surprisingly intelligent for a man who usually operated more on instinct than intellect, Ace had hired an ex-boxer, an ex-British-Army noncom, and the local 'genius' to assist and, if necessary, protect him. Not from ghosts, which Ace simply didn't believe in, but from whatever purely-human agents that must have interfered with the previous attempts. Having purchased expertise in everything from fisticuffs to firearms, Ace felt sure that the four of them, prepared and equipped, could spend the requisite night on the island and walk away in the morning as millionaires.

It was almost literally a deal too good to pass up, especially for Richie and Mule, both of whom had been struggling financially when Ace had approached with the offer. With little to lose, the two men had been willing to swallow their dislike of the arrogant, immature ex-jock and go ahead with the attempt.

It had been a little different in the case of Chad Jenkins. At twenty-seven, Chad was the youngest of the quartet - yet he was also inarguable the smartest, having an incredibly agile mind behind the soulful-looking face of his face. Usually rather reserved, and not exactly sociable, Chad already had a half-dozen patents which were earning him a small-but-steady income of royalties. He was more interested in the 'adventure' than the money, though he wasn't going to give up his share of the cash, if-and-when they succeeded. Of the four, he was the one willing to admit the possibility of spirits - and it was that, more than anything, that drew him here, his insatiable curiosity finding yet another topic in which to delve.

"Okay, it's official..." Richie said, glancing into the rearview mirror as he put the Rover into gear again and began driving down the badly overgrown roadway. "Between the media, the chaps the barristers have hired, and the spectators, there's no way we can get off this island without being seen. All we have to do is stay here until morning, come what may."

"...and live to collect the money." Mule said from the back seat, dryly, earning him a snort from Ace, and a chuckle from Richie.

"Quite right." The Englishman agreed, his good spirits never flagging as he pulled the old vehicle to a stop outside the massive doors of the old house, now sheathed in shadows as the sun sank down behind the horizon. "Shall we get our gear unloaded, then?"

To avoid an otherwise inevitable argument, they'd already agreed that each person was solely responsible for their own equipment and supplies, and they'd been loaded in 'groups' corresponding to each individual, making it fairly easy for each man to off-load his own supplies without interfering too much with any of the others - though, of course, Ace managed to find things to complain about, nonetheless. Ace Merrick almost always managed to find something to complain about - excepting his own, perfect self, of course.

Chad simply ignored Ace's bitching and moaning, working with a slow, steady pace that belied his short, slender frame - if it hadn't been for the fact that all four had taken full physicals before this undertaken, at his suggestion, the others might not have seen the usually well-attired genius without his shirt on - and so, having seen the surprising layer of muscle that covered his slender frame, a beneficial by-product of all the self-directed hobbies he engaged in, they weren't surprised by his ability to lug the heavy, metal-sided cases of camera and 'paranormal' equipment up into the building's massive, three-story-high foyer.

Richie's reaction to Ace's complaints was sharp-edged witticisms in a jovial tone, many of them playing on the 'literal' meanings of Ace's complaints, most of which were laced with the ex-jock's usual swearing. Most of these witticisms went right over Ace's head: When the dark-haired man had commented that he was waiting to yank out the last two 'fucking bags', he could only stare blankly at Richie's response of: 'I hope at least one of them is using protection.'

Despite his thuggish-looking exterior, the ex-boxer got that one, cracking another smile at the comment - but not bothering to break his rhythm to make further comment on it, using a quick-and-steady rhythm that showed the easy ripple of the taut muscles beneath the tight jeans and black T-shirt he wore. The first one to finish off-loading his supplies, he was sitting in the foyer downing a beer from his cooler by the time Ace managed to lug in the last of his own beer supply - which consisted of three cases, which might explain the way the once-fit man was puffing and wheezing as he slumped to floor.

Then again, it might not have been the beer - it could have been the cigarette he lit up, while the other three looked on incredulously.

"You're gasping for breath, and you light a cigarette?" Chad asked, in a surprisingly soft voice. "Do you have any idea just how bad that is for your..."

"Shut up, Brainiac." Ace growled, without turning around - then he paused to hack loudly for a moment, finishing the unpleasant display by hawking a large wad of phlegm onto the stone floor. "It ain't none of your fucking business what I do with myself."

"Oh, I didn't realize you were involved in the sex industry..." Richie cracked urbanely to Chad, earning a smile from the shorter man - and an angrily confused glare from Ace.

"You know, you guys think you're so damned funny..." Ace mumbled, grabbing a case of beer as he rose, his face flushed with anger. "Well, fuck you. I'm gonna find a nice, comfortable room, and hope I don't see any of you little shits until sunrise."

Slinging the case of beer over one beefy shoulder with along-practiced move, he stormed angrily towards the heavy oak doorway leading from the massive foyer.

Chad sat bolt upright. "Hey! Hey, Ace, that's not what we planned! I'm going to set up the cameras and PKE recorders and..." "Fuck you." Ace spat back over his shoulder as he stepped to the right, almost instantly vanishing into the darkness beyond. "But...!" Chad protested, rolling off the ground and hurrying towards the doorway.

"Aw, just let the fucker go..." Was Mule's opinion, as he slowly shoved his heavily muscled body upright.

"But, unless we know where everyone is located, my readings won't..." Chad explained, half-turning to look over his shoulder as he stepped through the doorway and was swallowed up by darkness.

The same instant he vanished from view, his explanation cut off mid-sentence, leaving only dead silence - not even the sound of footfalls ringing across the wooden floor beyond the doorway.

"Chad..." Mule said, taking a step forward - as Richie felt a wave of almost unreasoning fear run through him. "Mule - wait...!" He shouted, bolting to his feet...

...but too slowly. Just as the other two men before him, the stocky ex-pugilist stepped through the doorway and into the darkness beyond - and was instantly swallowed up, as if he'd never been.

Fumbling with hands suddenly made twitchy by the adrenaline dumped into his system, the bony ex-British noncom yanked the L-shaped flashlight off of his belt, flicking the switch to the 'On' position as he stood well clear of the doorway and shone the yellow-white beam into the darkness beyond the heavy oak frame...

...to reveal a short, empty hallway whose wooden floor bore no trace of footprints past where the feeble light of the setting sun still streamed in from the doors open to the outside.

"Good Lord..." Richie breathed, looking at the inexplicable lack of any human passage in the coating of dust the wooden floorboards bore.

Behind him, the sun sank the last few degrees below the horizon, the last of the hellish red-orange light fading into the deep blue-black of night, leaving only the slim, insubstantial beam of his flashlight to reflect back from the stone walls and highlight the mask of stunned horror that the lanky man's face had become.

"This," he said in a numb, heavy voice, "is certainly not good."

Hesitating a second longer, he leaned forward slightly, his head never entering the wooden frame of the portal through which the others had passed.

"Chaps?" He called in a voice that was trembling in a way that military service had never caused. "I say - can you hear me?"

Silence was his only answer. Around him, the massive stone blocks that formed the mansion seemed to lean in towards him in the darkness, like some silent stone monster waiting to devour him.

Part of him very much wanted to turn and bolt for the dubious safety of the Land Rover - perhaps even to climb behind the wheel and aim the blunt snout of the vehicle back towards the river, foregoing any chance of the prize money in favor of a more immediate goal

- personal survival.

No matter how much discretion may have been the better part of valor, however, Richie Farnsworth was not about to leave comrades behind. Regardless of how he might have felt about each of the other men, individually, he had agreed to help them, to provide support and defense against whatever agency that might try to interfere with their plans tonight - and though pragmatic by nature, he wasn't quite as unimaginative as Ace was, allowing him to see the possibility that he might be up against something far outside the area of expertise for which he'd been chosen.

Which only made his next actions all the more heroic, though there was nobody there to witness the cool, tense air that settled over him, all those years of training and preparation now serving to bolster his courage and guide his actions as he dug through the packs of equipment he brought with him.

The first thing he brought forth was a large Coleman propane lantern, which he lit quickly, feeling a measure of relief as the bright- white glow filled the room, seeming to the non-com to push those looming walls back into place and hold them there by the force of its' unfaltering light. With quick, certain movements, he buckled more equipment around his sparse frame.

A dark-beige belt, whose canvas holster was heavy with the weight of the .388 Webley revolver that he withdrew just long enough to double-check its cylinder, the sight of six brass shell casings winking back at him in the bright light serving to further soothe his anxious nerves.

Slamming the cylinder closed with a metallic snap, he slid the revolver back into its holster, leaving the canvas flap unclasped, so as to better allow quick access to his secondary weapon. A sheathed K-bar knife, like that used by the US Marine Corps during the Second World War, was strapped in place on the opposing side of the belt, again with the short strap leti dangling - just in case.

Heisting for a moment, Richie looked over the available selection of primary weapons, narrow hands hesitating for a moment over the wooden stock of a venerable Thompson submachinegun. This Tommy-Gun didn't boast the cylindrical drum magazine made famous by a generation of gangster movies, but the more common 'stick' mag, loaded with thirty blunt, heavy .45 caliber bullets that were about as accurate as a thrown baseball, and with about the same range - but with a hell of a lot more stopping power packed into each heavy, subsonic round.

Finally, however, he settled in the shorter, gleaming shape of an Ithaca Stakeout shotgun, a stockless pump-action weapon with a shortened barrel and an eight-round magazine. Making sure the 'street-sweeper' was fully loaded, Richie quickly jammed handfuls of fat, red cartridges into the billow pockets of his pants, uncaring of the discomfort they caused as he filled the pockets full to near bursting. Clipping the L-shaped flashlight to his breast pocket, he turned to face the doorway, gun cradled in his arms and a set look of determination on his face. He took two strides towards the looming darkness of the portal...

Then stopped and returned to the pile of equipment. Grabbing the submachine gun, he slung it over his right shoulder by the olive-drab strap, preferring the extra fire-power to the ease of mobility a lighter load would have provided.

Turning back to the doorway, he took one more breath - then, without further hesitation, followed the beam of the flashlight into the hallway beyond, moving with a quick stride towards the door at the far end of the short hallway.

* * * * *

"...readings won't mean anything, since..." Chad said - then he stumbled to a stop, both literally and verbally, as he realized that Mule and Richie had vanished from sight, replaced only by unrelieved darkness.

"Uh.. Guys...?" The slender, chestnut-haired man said, taking a hesitant step back in the direction which he'd come...
...and running smack-dab into an unseen wall in the darkness.

"Oh, damn..." Chad muttered, upset at having somehow gotten turned around in the space of a few steps. Keeping one hand on the wall, he slowly turned in a circle, looking for the fading orange-red light of the foyer - and registering nothing but darkness.

"Guys...?" He called out, louder this time, waiting for the sound of the response to help guide him in the darkness. No response came.

"This isn't very funny..." He said, annoyed, as he began to walk along the wall, one hand lightly trailing along the rough surface to ensure he didn't get lost.

A second later, his hand brushed across the smooth, satin finish of wood paneling - which caused him to stop in confusion.

Neither the foyer, nor the short hallway, had any wood paneling. In fact, he'd already walked further than he should have been able to in the hallway's confines.

No longer sure that the others were remaining silent in some sort of hazing, he slowly began walking again, fingers trailing along the smooth, wooden surface as he called out again, with the same lack of results.

A second before his hands registered any change in the surface flowing beneath them, his eyes picked up a faint glimmer of light near the floor, verifying what his fingers told him a second later: He was standing in front of a door.

Sliding his hands around for what seemed forever, the slender man finally made contact with the cool brass of the ornately-cast door handle, and he turned it and pushed against the unseen barrier.

Nothing happened - so, pushing down a slowly rising flood of confused fear, he tried pulling on the handle - and was almost blinded as at the light that poured out of the door and into his dark-adapted eyes. Stumbling forward into the room, he started to speak:

"I'm glad I found you..." He started to say - and then his eyes made the adaptation to the brighter locale, and he stopped dead again, slowly turning in slow circle with a confused look of bewildered wonder on his face.

He was in the sitting room of one of the bedroom suites, an ornate, elegant room with hardwood floors and dark, rich red-leather furniture.

A second floor bedroom, a fact that a simple glance outside the window confirmed, despite the impossibility of it all - there was no way Chad could have climbed a set of stairs without knowing it, yet there was also no doubt whatsoever that he was now located on the second floor of a building that, supposedly without power, was nevertheless lit by the half-dozen or so Tiffany-style brass lamps spread throughout the room.

"What the hell...?" Chad muttered, slowly revolving-in-place once more, trying to make logical sense from a situation that seemed to eschew all logic...

...and which only got less logical when he heard the soft 'click' of a latch, causing him to spin and stare at the doorway leading to the bedroom.

Leaning casually in the door-frame was a handsome, dark-haired man Chad had never seen before. He was dressed in what even the rather formal Chad found an archaic outfit: Tan trousers with a matching jacket worn over a pale-blue waistcoat, a round-collar white shirt and striped neck-tie, two-tone oxfords... and an honest-to-god straw boater hat.

"I say, you look lost." The man commented, casually, eyeing Chad up and down. "If I may say so, a bit underdressed as well." Chad blinked. Dressed in tan trousers, an off-white cotton shirt, and a blue blazer, he was usually overdressed, not underdressed.

"Uh... I guess it's a bit more modern than..." He started, then stopped, wondering why he was trying to explain his choice of clothing to the strange man. "Look - who are you?"

The man choose to ignore the question. "More modern, eh? Well, I should think that one should either go conservative, or go 'whole hog', as I believe it's phrased."

"What...?" Chad asked, confused, blinking several times in rapid succession as a strange, drowsy feeling slipped through his mind, making him feel slow and awkward.

"Oh, yes - definitely something more.. 'modern'." The man said, jovially, stepping out of the doorway. "Tell me - are you here out of curiosity, greed, or mischance?"

"Uh.. Curiosity, I guess.." Chad said, rather numbly, frowning as he tried to force his brain to work through what seemed to be gathering clouds of mental fog.

"Ah - a 'curiosity'." The man said, grinning oddly. "Oh, this should be good..."

"Huh...?" Chad said, shaking his head again to clear it - and, in his confused state, barely registering the strange, whispering sensation of hair dragging across the nape of his neck.

Soti, curly hair, that was rapidly spilling off his scalp and down his shoulders, growing at a phenomenal rate. As the man lowered himself into one of the chair s and continued to look at him with that odd expression, Chad began to realize that something was happening to him, and he staggered a few steps back, confused by the odd 'clicking' sound that came with the movement - but even more confused by the way the rooms seemed to be 'bobbing' up and down.

The thought that his own eye-level might be changing didn't occur to Chad. Not then, at any rate.

"Yes, I could see why people would be curious about you, Cheri my dear." The man said, that odd smile on his face - and it wasn't the name he used that struck Chad as odd, it was the fact that he accepted it for a few seconds before it struck him that he shouldn't have simply accepted the feminine name as his own so easily...

"What.. What do you mean, 'Cheri'...?" Chad asked - then his eyes widened slowly as he registered the strange voice that the question emerged in. A higher-pitched, smoother voice, so unlike his normal voice. So soti and sensuous. So...

...feminine.

"Why, that just seems the perfect name for somebody who looks like that, doesn't it.../" The man said, still grinning, as he gestured behind Chad. Slowly, feeling like e was ready to loose his balance for some reason, Chad slowly turned...

...and stared, startled, at the woman who was staring back at him from the next room.

A massive mane of long, curly chestnut hair spilled down around a face that was a study in sensuality, from the heavy-lidded eyes framed by long, dark lashed to the full, gloss-red lips. The hair spilled over the slender-but-toned shoulders that were leti half- exposed by the black-lather 'Bolero' jacket that sat over the black nylon mesh that only pretended to cover the firm, taut mounds of her hand-sized breasts, only lightly shaded by the darkly transparent material.

Her bare waist was trim, leading down to fully-rounded hips packed tightly into a pair of black leather Bikini shorts, trimmed about the waist with rhinestones that matched those on the jacket. A few scant inches of nylon showed from the bottom of the shorts to the top of the skin-tight thigh-high black leather boots she wore, laced at the side to allow such perfect definition of her shapely legs.

The boots were not only incredibly high - but sported incredibly high heels, a good eleven inches in height, an incredible height made possible by the five-inch platforms the pointed-toe boots boasted.

The woman was staring back at Chad with a look of stunned amazement... except it was the exact same pose and look that he was using, and she was matching each of his slightest motions exactly...

"I.. I'm a woman..." Cheri stammered, confused and thick-witted, knowing that the realization should horrify her, though she couldn't really summon much in the way of emotion at the moment.

"Of course you are, my dear." The man said from behind her. "You're Cheri Poppen."

Cheri blinked, knowing that it couldn't be right - yet, looking in the mirror, she also somehow knew that it was exactly right, two separate, opposing, yet equally powerful convictions warring within her heavy, befogged mind.

"Dance for me..." The man said from behind her, as music swelled from some unseen source.

"No, I don't..." She started to demur in a heavy, confused voice - only to find that that she was already moving, her hips swaying smoothly, sensuously and expertly in time with the music, much the way an experienced exotic dancer would move.

"But..." She protested as she smoothly and sensuously swiveled to face the man, a helplessly seductive smile on her lips as he began to move her arms and torso in sensual time with the music.

"Yes, that's it, baby..." the man said in a humorous, theatrical tone. "Shake that booty, oh yeah, baby..."

Though there was no lust or real desire behind the humorous monotone he used, the woman swaying atop the incredibly high heels shivered at a bolt of pleasure that thrummed through her at the words.

"What... What's happening to me...?" She asked in a heavy, sensuous voice as she continued to gyrate slowly, sensuously, the confused vestiges of her mind trying desperately to keep some sort of control. Her hands slowly rose to slide through her hair before joining above her head, her hips swiveling as her feet began to move faster, more seductively.

"Well, I'll tell you what's happening to me..." the man said. "You're getting me all hard and horny..."

Again, a thrill of pleasure thrummed through her at his words, and she let out a soft moan of pleasure that she both loved and hated as her body continued to move in time with the music, beyond her control.

"Oh, you're so hot..." He said, and she shivered again, more strongly - and even more strongly when he added: "You're turning me on..."

"Me turning you on is turning me on..." She said, meaning it as a complaint, though it came out in heady tones of enjoyment that weren't completely lying as her body trembled with another wave of erotic pleasure.

"Of course." The man said. "You live to get men horny, don't you. That's what you love, isn't it, you horny little tease...?"

"I..." She tried to deny the charge, her body now racked almost constantly with tremors of pleasure at his hungry gaze. "I. Yes..

Yes. "

The man laughed, unpleasantly - but she barely heard him, her befogged mind sliding away until she was lost in the beat and thrust of the music, her body moving in sensual rhythms as she gyrated across the floor.

"Dance, you cock-teasing dyke slut!" the man's voice floated to her ears as if from a great distance away. "Dance until you feel like you're going to explode - then give in to your dyke needs, you cunt-licking, cock-teasing dumb slut. !"

Lost in the music, body moving by itself as she was racked by wave after wave of pleasure, Cheri blinked...

...and found that she was now in a crowded night-club, swaying and moving sensuously on the dance floor as people stared at her in wide-eyed amazement - and not a little lust.

Somewhere deep within her mind, something was screaming at her, making nausea war with the mindless pleasure that seemed to have taken her - but it wasn't nearly strong enough to defeat the wave after wave of desire and need that thrummed through her body.

"God, I'm so horny...!" She shouted, feeling disgust boil up at her at her own words - and even more disgust as she saw a dozen men surge forward with lust filled eyes...

"I need to lick a cunt!" She cried, hearing the words from her mouth without realizing she was going to say them - yet, instantly, knowing that it was exactly as she'd said. She was done, the arousal she felt from 'teasing' men pushing her own lesbian libido through the roof...

Grabbing the nearest woman, Cheri practically thrust the stunned woman to the floor, long-nailed fingers scrambling frantically at the struggling woman's skirt as she tried to get at what lay beneath, what she so desperately needed...

...and what she was denied as four separate security people hauled her off the screaming heterosexual woman. Ignoring Cheri's screamed pleas for a cunt to lick, they began dragging the squirming new woman towards the door...

...only to be stopped by a broad-shouldered woman with short, bright-blue-dyed hair and an acne-scared face.

"I'll take care of her from here.." The woman said, eyes glittering - and the security personnel quite happily turned the suddenly submissive woman over to the broad-shouldered woman.

Cheri barely saw the woman at all - her gaze was fixed on the woman's denim-clad crotch as the woman painfully grabbed her arm and began hauling her along.

She barely felt the pain as the woman led her outside and all-but-tossed her into the back of a van in the adjacent parking lot.

As the woman removed her own jeans and panties, exposing a cunt boasting several piercings, even the little awareness Cheri had retained fled, and she became solely focused on the woman's cunt, completely unaware of the fact that the woman was holding her head painfully tight into her crotch as the new woman lapped hungrily - desperately - at the heavily-muscled woman's crotch, just as she was unaware of the rhythmic reports of pain that were coming from her shoulders as the broad-shouldered dyke bitch beat her around the head and shoulders, demanding better performance...

...and as unaware of the words the woman spoke as their implication, her once-sharp, once-male brain now dulled to near uselessness by her imposed mindset, unable to process exactly what the woman's promise of having 'friends who would really like her' meant as she mindlessly licked and lapped at the woman's pierced clit.

About the same time the 'dyke bitch' began to orgasm from the new woman's ministrations, the last vestiges of Chad's soul slipped from the soulless cock-teasing, cunt-licking automaton that was left behind.

Little did the departing spirit of the man realize that the fate that had befallen him because of his 'curiosity' was far more merciful than the fates that awaited his companions, who's 'greed' fell among the seven deadly sins of the Catholic faith, thus removing even the slight 'restraint' that the repeated exorcisms had laid upon the restless spirits that haunted the hellish house...

* * * * *

"Shut up, Brainiac."

It was Ace's voice. Despite the fact that it sounded amplified, as if Ace were talking through an amplified PA system, there was no mistaking the voice - or the choice of words.

It was Ace - and it sounded as if Chad was with him. As Ace started to say something else, Richie tied his shotgun, lifted one booted foot, and kicked open the door from behind which the sound came...

...and stumbled into the small-but-luxuriously-appointed theater just in time to see himself on the screen, speaking the same words he'd spoken a while ago:

"Oh, I didn't realize you were involved in the sex industry..." Richie cracked urbanely to Chad, earning a smile from the shorter man - and an angrily confused glare from Ace.

"What the blue blazes..." Richie said, wide eyed...

...as, impossibly, he watched a film that couldn't be - a film of himself and his companions. A film that shortly flickered, following Chad as he entered the darkness beyond the same doorway Richie had passed through only a short while before - but ending up somewhere completely different than where it had taken the tall, lanky man.

Stunned, eyes widening and jaw going slack, Richie watched as Chad's fate slowly unfolded on the silver screen...

* * * * *

Angrily, Ace stalked down the dark hallway, his thick lips curled in an angry sneer and his eyes focused on the floorboards ahead as he mumbled curses under his breath at the assholes he'd been stuck with. Suddenly, his share of the money didn't seem like nearly enough to put up with such idiots, and his pulse pounded in angry tempo with his heavy, angry footsteps as he stewed himself deeper and deeper into a rage.

Caught up in his own growing anger, Ace didn't notice the fact that he'd already walked several times further then should have been possible in a short hallway.

However, he did notice that the darkness was beginning to retreat - just as he noticed a rising tide of sound coming from up ahead.

Still wrapped tight in his cloak of unreasoning anger, Ace litied his head and stared out in front of him, down the length of the remaining hallway to where it spilled out into a large, brightly-lit room, from which many male voices were muttering n talking.

Even lost in the red haze of his anger, Ace knew that this shouldn't be happening - he and the other three guys should be the only people in the house - so how the hell was hearing a crowd of what sounded like at least a double score of men?

Heavy brow descending lower over enraged eyes, Ace lowered the case of beer to the floor and stalked forward, his anger keeping him from feeling fear as he exited the hallway...

...and came to a dead stop, glaring around.

He was in a good-sized gymnasium, one with stone walls, a wooden floor, and rows of wooden bleachers. Forty or fity men filled the bleachers, muttering and conversing among themselves, and only occasionally shooting glances at the rudimentary ring that had been erected in the center of the room.

Ace opened his mouth to demand some answers from the assembled crowd... but stopped dead when he caught sight of a man emerging from a similar 'tunnel' on the far side of the ring.

A short, broad-shouldered man with rich, chocolate-shaded skin. A very familiar looking man...

...and Ace's anger shot way past it's previous level, way beyond any rational level he should be feeling, as he glared angrily across the ring.

"Mule!" He shouted, litiing one ham-sized fist and shaking it. "You dumb nigger bastard! You stupid black asshole! I'm gonna beat your fucking face in!"

* * *

Mule, stunned to find that the hallway exited into what, for him, was a familiar-looking setting, was blinking his dark eyes against the sudden glare of the lights around him when he heard a familiar voice cut through the chatter. A voice that he recognized - and hated.

A voice that called him a 'nigger'.

Suddenly, a huge wave of hot, heavy anger roared through the ex-boxer as he glared across the ring at where Ace stood, anger far out of proportion, even for the racist insult - and, almost without thinking, he began to stalk towards the ring.

"You think so, you honkey muth'fucker?" Mule shouted back, barely aware of the rising cheering and shouts coming from the crowd as he and Ace entered opposite sides of the ring, glaring at each other. "I'm gonna kick you lily-whit ass, you dumb-shit redneck!"

The two men began to stalk towards each other...

...only to come to a dead stop.

There was a very good reason for that - even in the midst of the nearly mindless rage that had descended on each man, neither was willing to try and push aside the tuxedo-clad man who'd appeared between them, outstretched arms separating them.

The main reason for their 'restraint' was the fact that each of those arms were bigger around than either man's thigh, and by more than just a small degree. The man's tuxedo was strained taut over the most massively muscled man either of them had ever seen, a huge, looming, seven-feet-and-then-some mass of Hispanic musculature, who's clean-shaven head glinted under the bright lights as he scowled and looked at each of the men.

"Gentlemen!" The man shouted, his voice needing no amplification as it rumbled up from his size-sixteen shoes. "Tonight's Main Event - a bare-fisted grudge match, no holds barred! Anything and everything goes!"

The crowd screamed and applauded hysterically as the massive man lowered his head to speak 'confidentially' to the two seething men.

"Strip down to your undies, boys, and get to your corners." He ordered.

Too angry to feel ashamed, the two men glared at each other for a moment, eyes locking in a promise of mayhem, then each turned and stalked towards opposite corners, yanking their clothes off and tossing them over the side of the ring as they went.

"In this corner...!" The massive man announced, grandly. "Wearing the white Fruit-of-the-Loom boxer briefs and weighing in at two hundred and fifty-two pounds. Archibald 'Ace' Merrick!"

Ace held his hands in the air for a moment, basking in the sudden roar of approval from the crowd. and dimly beginning to wonder how the hell the man knew not only his exact weight, but the dreaded and hated first name that he'd kept secret from everybody. The questions flew out of his head in a renewed flood of anger as the man introduced his opponent:

"...and in this corner, wearing the black silk boxers and weighing in at two hundred and eighteen pounds. Mark 'The Mule' Lincoln!"

Again, the crowd went wild, cheering and shouting - and, looking across the ring, Mule was also too lost in the unreasoning anger to question the situation.

Then the bell rang - and any possible questions they might have asked were washed away as they leapt from their respective corners towards the center of the ring.

"Fuckin' nigger!" Ace said, swinging wildly...

...and missing Mule by a mile as the trained boxer adroitly side-stepped - then landed a bare-knuckled fist square on Ace's lips. As Ace reeled back, Mule felt a burst of spiteful joy at seeing the splash of bright red that now marked Ace's lip...

...and then he grunted and reeled back as Ace's punch took him in the gut, knocking the wind out of him and leaving his stomach feeling constricted.

Reeling back, Mule quickly reassessed his opponent. Ace wasn't a professional boxer - but this wasn't a professional boxing match, either. Though Mule had the edge on speed, power and training, Ace had a longer reach, more 'street-fighting' experience - and surprisingly fast recovery time.

Ace closed in again, and both men launched and landed blows - Mule pounding to sharp blows, right and left, across the bigger man's unguarded chin, while Ace landed a solid one on Mule's much-broken nose.

Apparently, he'd broken it again, because it felt wrong - different, somehow, though there wasn't the huge burst of pain from the previous breaks, but just the dull throb of impact. Perhaps, after being broken so many times, his nose was no longer capable of the same levels of sensitivity - or perhaps his own anger was blocking it out, as it was so much else.

The anger didn't block the victorious feeling he felt from having shattered Ace's jaw, though. Though the big man wasn't showing much reaction, that must have been the case, because the line of his jaw had definitely caved inwards...

His jaw aching a bit from the two quick blows, Ace circled quickly around Mule, dark glee riding through him at the way he'd crushed the black-man's nose - he must have actually pushed some of it right back into his head or something, because the damned thing actually looked smaller. Licking his lips, Ace didn't notice the strange, almost waxy texture to them as he saw an opening and lashed out...

...with his foot, literally kicking Mule's ass and sending him flying.

Mule grunted as he hit the floor on his bare arms and knees - and the canvas must have been of a rough grade, since it actually acted like sandpaper, shearing off his arm-and-leg-hair, though it wasn't enough to actually break the smooth skin beneath. Shouting angrily, the black man rolled over onto his tender - and apparently swollen - ass, just in time to see Ace coming for him...

...so he kicked upward, his bare foot catching Ace square in the balls.

Ace cried out and staggered back, feeling as if his cock and balls had been driven right back up into his body by the force of Mule's kick - a kick so hard that, after the initial burst of mind-numbing pain, his cock and balls went numb, senseless - almost as if they weren't there anymore. Since even that strange feeling was better than the pain that would have continued from a lesser blow, Ace managed to recover faster than Mule expected - and he returned the favor, using his patented football kick, this time right to Mule's crotch.

His kick must have been equal to the one Mule had given - because the black man also recovered quickly, rolling out of the way of the next blow and leaping to his feet.

The two men closed in on each other, murder in their eyes as they began to pummel each other, hands and legs working as they made contact, hands reaching out to grab at each other's faces, at each other's arms and legs, even at each other's hair...

...until they ended up rolling and tossing each other all over the floor, the crowd cheering as the two rolled about, a blurred tangle of light and dark limbs.

The cheers slowly died into breathless anticipation as the two opponents slowed, then stopped...

...then redoubled, mixed with cruel laughter, as first one, then another high-pitched - and undeniably feminine - screams split the air.

The cheering and laughing continued as the two new women stumbled away from each other and onto their feet, staring at each other and themselves in horror.

Cheers turned into lewd, rude and crude comments as the short, athletically-toned black woman with the firm, dome-like D-cup breasts and long mane of black hair ripped off her outsized white cotton boxer-briefs to stare at the folds of her new womanhood - and laughter rolled out at her high-scream:

"I.. I'm a nigger bitch...!"

The laughter only redoubled when the tall white woman with the long mane of dark hair and the massive, round, medicine-ball-sized breasts tried frantically to brush the 'white' off her skin - then followed her opponents action, ripping off her black silk boxers to stare at her own, new womanhood.

"Gentlemen...!" The massive man in the tuxedo announced. "I give you tonight's entertainment: In this corner, the black woman with the buff body, Anita Mann!"

The cheering and laughter went on as the woman so indicated gaped stupidly, her long-nailed hands hesitantly coming up to touch her ebony skin.

"In the other corner...!" the announcer continued, his own deep voice laced with laughter. "The tall white woman acting as pack-mule to those fantastically fake frontal fondlements - Massive Marcie Melons!"

The Caucasian woman's head snapped up and she stared in disbelief at the announcer - as did 'Anita', as the announcer continued with:

"Gentleman, I give you two women who'll do anything for money!"

"Wha..." The trim black woman who's once been Ace Merrill said shaking her new head in stunned, horrified confusion. "No, I..." "Hey, baby..." A man near her corner of the ring said, waving a bill in the air. "A buck for a blow-job, baby...!"

She stared at the man...

...and, horrified, found herself moved by a compulsion she couldn't fight. A compulsion that caused her full, soti, red-colored lips to curve upwards as she struck an inviting pose and waved the man towards her...

* * * *

"Man, I'd pay five bucks to fuck the babe who belongs to those tits...!" A man shouted from near the huge-breasted white woman who'd once been a boxer known as 'The Mule'...

...and helplessly, she found herself turning to look for the man, calling out: "Get up her, buddy - you've got yourself a deal..."

* * * *

Helplessly, Anita Mann sank to her knees, unable to control her body or her mind as the simple 'program' controlling her took over, making her do absolutely anything at all for money - including opening her new lips and 'eagerly' accept a smelly, foul-tasting male cock into her mouth, hands coming up to wrap around the shati as he started her new career as an a hooker - an incredibly cheap hooker...

* * * *

Helplessly, Marcie Melons leaned forward and held onto the corner-post of the ring, legs spread and ass thrust into the air, unable to do anything at all as the simple program in her mind took over, making her seem eager as the man's cock slid painfully and disgustingly into her new cunt, the man's hand coming forward to reach around and grip her massive new tits as she started her new career as a whore - and amazingly cheap whore...

* * * * *

...and neither man was able to even cry out in shame, humiliation or disgust as the massively muscled announcer began to direct the crowd of eager, anticipating men into two lines, one at each corner of the ring...

* * * * *

Stunned, Richie barely noticed the shotgun slip from his fingers as he stared, stupefied, as the screen slowly faded to black, the new women still 'busy' with their new roles in life.

"Enjoy the show...?" A voice asked from behind Richie - and the pale man spun around to stare at the same man who'd been in the bedroom with Chad, now leaning casually in the door-frame and fingering the boater hat he held in his hands.

"I... You..." Richie stammered, eyes wide. "What.. What are you going to do to me..."

The man smile. "You know, we - the spirits of the house - have the ability to peek into people's minds. To see what would be the most humiliating fate for those who trespass here, those who disturb out rest." He gestured at the screen. "Obviously, we knew exactly what to do to your friends - and we know exactly what to do you..."

A shimmer seemed to pass through the air, and for a split second everything went dark...

...then light returned - the orange-yellow glow of a new-born sunrise, coming from just over the tree-line across the river. Richie was standing outside the house - right beside the Rover, as matter of fact - and it was morning.

For a second, Richie just stared around, stupidly...

...then he understood.

Slowly, numbly, Richie opened the door to the vehicle and slid in, starting the vehicle more out of habit than anything else.

Slowly, the ex-Army officer lowered his head and began to weep tears dripping down his pale cheeks as the enormity of his fate crashed down on him. For several minutes, he huddled over the wheel of the Rover, sobbing.

Finally, straightening, the man who had several million dollars - and several million questions - waiting for him on the other side of the river put the vehicle into gear and eased down on the accelerator. Tears still tracking down his cheeks, the man who's dishonorable discharge from the British Army had been caused by his transvestite habits, the man who's fondest wish in the whole, wide world was to be female, turned the nose of Rover back towards the river - and back towards the most horrendous fate that could be bestowed upon him.

His own life.

The End

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: When a family moves from California to Virginia, a step brother and sister decide to take a cross country road trip, but when they meet an aging couple, things start to get strange.

Strange Interlude

By Gunslinger

The Escalade's tires crunched loudly on the loose gravel strewn across the cracked and worn asphalt of the apron in front of the station. The glossy black Cadillac SUV halted opposite the aging and rusting pumps, and the engine died.

Jessica's narrow snub nose wrinkled as she gazed out the big luxury vehicle's window, her usually smooth brow furrowing in a decidedly unlovely way.

"I don't like the look of this place." She stated, sniffing ostentatiously to make her point clear. "Good Lord, William - this place is a sty. For heaven's sake, let's drive on."

"Yes, Willie, do." Carl's supercilious tones sounded from where he reclined in the broad back seat, one arm thrown over the back of the beige leather bench seat, his black silk shirt and Armani trousers contrasting and complimenting the soti, deep leather.

The muscles of Bill Garret's jaw clenched, then relaxed as he kept himself from snapping at either his step-sister or her new, German- born boyfriend, who's accented 'Villie' bothered him just a little bit more than Jessica's 'William'.

When Bill's mother and step-father headed from Beverly Hills to Virginia, Bill had decided to drive his brand-new SUV down, rather than take the Family's private plane. He'd claimed it was because he wanted to get some miles on his new 'toy', but the truth was that Bill was still uncomfortable with the people and lifestyle his mother had married into, even after ten years of exposure to it.

Jessica and Carl had volunteered themselves for the trip, saying it would be a 'lark', and both Bill's mother and step-father had talked him into agreeing, as he and Jessica had never really gotten along very well.

Only, it turned out that Jessica's idea of a 'lark' was to torture him incessantly, and it was driving him absolutely nuts. Tall, slender, dark- haired and as stunningly beautiful as plastic surgery could make her, Jessica was twenty-two, a year younger than Bill - but acted as if she were Queen of the Known Universe, and Bill her subject. She even criticized his clothing, nice comfortable jeans and a black turtleneck shirt. Just to shut her up, he'd pulled a navy-blue sports-coat on before leaving then turned up the heater to have a good reason to remove it as soon as they were in the car.

Her boyfriend wasn't any better. Also tall, fairly slim and almost offensively good-looking, Carl had short, platinum blonde hair and ice- blue eyes and an attitude that put Bill in mind of a Nazi Colonel, condescendingly superior. In that way, he was probably a perfect match for Jessica - but that didn't keep Bill from wanting to strangle him.

Not that it would have helped had he tried. Bill was short, painfully skinny, and pale, his sandy-blonde hair looking almost brown against his terribly white skin. He was slowly starting to fill out and put on some weight, muscle and color - but it was a long, slow process. Bill had been a very sickly boy, which was one of the reasons that his Mother had married into money - 'Daddy' had the cash to hire the best doctors the world had to offer, and Bill had overcome the host of maladies. But the cost of his health was a life that was driving him absolutely nuts. If he'd been in better health, he'd just strike out on his own

Sure he had a firm control of his temper, Bill forced himself to relax and smile pleasantly as the attendant strolled out to the big black vehicle, his tanned and time-worn face creased in an easy smile that didn't quite reach his eyes.

"Mornin', folks." He drawled as Bill rolled down his window. Pushing his stained and faded red ball-cap back on his shock of gray hair, he put his hands on the hips of his stained coveralls and slowly looked the SUV up and down. "That there is one fancy rig, young fella. Y'all sure it'll run on plain ol' fashioned KIN-tucky gas-O-leen?"

Bill laughed at the old attendant's humorously phrased and subtle insult to 'dumb rich folk'.

"Well, if KIN-tucky gas won't do it" Bill chuckled. "I bet you could find a little white lightening that would twist her tail." The attendant blinked - then laughed. "Figger I could, at that. Whatcha want, pal?"

"Fill it up." Bill said, undoing his seat belt. "I'm going to pop into the store - should I just pay there?" "Yup, I reckon that'd do it." The attendant said, walking around to the back to start pumping.

"Does either of you want anything?" Bill asked, politely.

Jessica looked horrified. "You're not going to leave us out here alone with that that greasy monkey, are you? This vehicle is worth more then he could earn in his entire life and I'll bet I'm the only woman he's ever seen with all of her teeth atier puberty!"

"Come, come, Jessica" Carl yawned. "We'll just lock the doors until Bill comes back. Be a good man, Willie, and get me a Perrier, will you? If they have it, that is."

Bill's lips tightened, but he refused to answer as he slipped from the SUV. He slammed the door and headed towards the country store and heard the heavy 'cha-chunk' of the Cadillac's locks being engaged. Bill's fists curled at the attitude of Jessica and Carl which were mirrors to the attitudes of most of the people he'd be forced to put up with for his entire 'vacation'.

Practically shaking with anger and long-contained frustration, Bill pushed open the door of the store and felt his tension flow out of him in a rush, pouring from his very pours as it was traded for a warm feeling of relaxation.

The interior of the store could have been a Norman Rockwell painting.

Wood abounded everywhere. Not the satin gloss of smooth, expensive cherry and mahogany, like in the homes and offices of his unwanted new social circle, but rough-hewn pine and oak, stained dark.

A short, stumpy, pot-bellied stove sat along one wall, it's grate cold in the warm, late-spring weather. It's surface was being used as a table for the chess-set being used by a pair of old men, who couldn't have been posed better if they'd planned it - the tall, skinny old coot on the right was glaring angrily at his opponent, who was sitting back in his chair, puffing away on an old briar pipe with an air of unbearable satisfaction and the predicament he'd put his friend into.

The rich, comforting smell of the pipe's tobacco mixed with another homey, comforting odor - the smell of fresh-baked apple pie, carried in the hands of a large, gray-haired woman who was just coming through a door that obviously led to the attached house. The still- steaming pie was balanced on one hand, while the other carried a pair of coffee mugs.

"Oh - let me give you a hand!" Bill said, quickly, seeing she was having a bit of trouble. Taking the hot pie from her hand, he quickly carried it over to the counter and set it down, yanking his hands away the instant it hit the surface, waving them in the air.

"Thank you kindly." The woman said, handing the coffee to the two chess-players. "God knows these codgers wouldn't help the kind soul who keeps them in coffee and pie."

"Oh, get on with you Martha." The one with the pipe drawled, slowly. "Why, if it weren't for the fact that I'm savorin' the feelin' of winning my first game in weeks, I woulda bin out of this chair like a bolt of lightnin'."

Martha snorted. "Lightning is exactly what it'd take to stir you out of that chair, and you know it." She paused, leaning forward to stare at the board. "Sides - you'd only win if Stu doesn't see that he should move his knight there"

The tall, thin codger's head snapped to the side, eyes following Martha's pointing finger - and then he laughed and moved his knight as indicated

"Hey, now!" The other old coot cried, the front legs of his chair hitting the wooden floor with twin thumps as he leaned forward in indignation. "That's not fair!"

Turning, Marsha grinned at Bill and winked at him. Walking back to the counter, she spoke in a stage whisper.

"Them two have been playing chess in her for nigh on twenty years, and I make half the moves for'em." She chuckled. "They're lazy and not all that switi in the head sometimes but they make for fine company. Ain't exactly Grand Sen'ral Station here, if you know what I mean."

Bill grinned. "I noticed."

Martha nodded at the pie. "So, can I intr'st you in a slab o' home-made pie with ice cream?" Bill sighed. "I'd love a slice but I don't think my companions would appreciate the delay." Martha grinned. "Well, hell, bring 'em on in and set 'em down. We got plenty."

Bill sighed even louder, a thoroughly wistful sound. "If it were up to me Sorry."

Martha looked at him with a strangely knowing look. At first, Bill thought the big woman in the faded gingham dress was in her sixties, older yet vital yet her eyes suddenly looked very ancient, and Bill was no longer sure of her age.

"You ain't all that happy with your lot in life, are you?" Martha asked, her voice serious. Bill spread his hands. "Well, the grass is always greener, they say. I make do."

Martha's bushy gray eyebrows rose. "You'd rather be just 'bout anywhere but where you are, I'd wager."

Bill smiled wryly. "Well, I have my health and my youth, and I wouldn't trade it but I'd be willing to give up almost anything else." Martha grinned again - but it was a strange, sly grin. "Well, now, that's the thing 'bout life - you never can tell"

Bill blinked. "Excuse me?"

"Oh, just some folk-wisdom." Martha said, still grinning oddly. "Say, hold on a second"

She hurried away, returning a minute later with a green bottle - Perrier, Bill saw with surprise. "But, how" Bill stammered, surprised, hand going for his pocket.

"Oh, no - it's on the house." Martha said, actually reaching out and grabbing Bill's hand before he could put it in his pocket.

"Well, thank you - but I have to pay for the gas anyway" Bill said, unable to grab his money because Martha's hand was still restraining his own.

"I think somebody's already takin' care of it." Martha said, nodding her head at the window. Turning, Bill blinked at the sight of Carl handing the elderly attendant what was obviously money. As Bill watched, Carl climbed back into the SUV - in the driver's seat. The strident tone of the horn filled the air.

"Seems in a bit of a hurry, that one does. Guess we 'mountain folk' aren't his kind of people" Martha said.

"Yeah, well" Bill said, ashamed of his traveling companion's behavior. Well, at least that explained the Perrier - she'd seen Carl through the window and figured it was what some 'rich snob' would drink. Another 'subtle' dig at rich people. Probably also the reason for her suddenly odd smile - she thought Bill was one of the rich snobs.

Sighing, Bill took the bottle of water and headed out to the truck. Carl was revving the engine, impatiently, and rather than have an argument with him, Bill decided to go ahead and hop in the back - besides, maybe Carl just wanted to sit with Jessica, although sliding behind the wheel of Bill's new truck without permission was rather high-handed.

Sliding into the back of the big black SUV, Bill barely managed to get the door closed before Carl accelerated away from the pump, tires squealing and smoking as he lay rubber for a good fifty feet.

"Whoa!" Bill said, thrown back in the soft embrace of the leather upholstery. "Take it easy!"

"Ignore him, Carl - the faster we get out of this god-forsaken hell-hole, the better." Jessica said, icily, turning to stare daggers at Bill. "You might enjoy the 'quaint' countryside, but I assure you we have no desire to linger."

Bill blinked, surprised at her vitriolic look. "Hey, I'm not trying to hold you up" He said, forcing a grin as he - as usual - tried to defuse the situation. "Carl's neck-whipping acceleration nearly broke his bottle of Perrier is all."

Jessica's eyes narrowed and then she sighed, face relaxing a bit, though she still looked like she'd bitten into a lemon. "I see." "Hand this to him, would you?" Bill said, leaning forward and handing up the bottle. "Oh - and pass back my jacket, would you?"

"I beg your pardon?" Jessica said, coldly, her look turning dangerous again. "Are you implying that I would even want to touch your coat? It's behind you, right where you left it."

"Huh?" Bill frowned at her strange attitude, turning to look in the cargo bed of the truck. His expensive sports coat was nowhere to be seen - the only coat there was a denim jacket that looked so nice and well-worn comfortable that Bill wished it was his. How it had gotten in here was beyond him, since neither Carl nor Jessica would be caught dead in such a 'blasé' garment.

Grabbing it, Bill started to turn around and ask where it came from then something registered, and he turned back for another look. "Hey!" Bill blurted, surprised. "Where are my bags?"

"Your back-pack is under your jacket" Jessica said, coldly. "And I don't appreciate the inference that I would"

There was a tattered and faded army-surplus back-pack on the cargo bed, under where the jacket had been laying - but Bill had never seen it before in his life.

"Look, Jessica - I don't know what game this is, but what did you do with my luggage? I had three full suitcases and a small trunk don't tell me you let them at the gas station!"

"Why, I" Jessica spluttered.

"Calm down, Jessica." Carl said, smoothly, looking in the rearview mirror. "Look here, I don't know if this is some game or what, but stop bothering my girlfriend. You will be nice and quiet now, nicht wahr?"

Bill frowned, looking back at the under-packed cargo compartment. "Look, I don't know what's going on. I just want to know what happened to my luggage."

Carl's jaw rippled. "I tell you, stop it. You have the same bag - one back-pack - that you had to begin with. That is all. No other bags. Now you are upsetting the fraulein, and if you do not stop, I will be forced to pull over and let you out. Understand?"

Bill laughed, without humor, wondering what they were up to. "What - you're going to throw me out of my own truck?"

"Your truck?!" Jessica parroted in angry surprise. "You couldn't afford the hubcaps on an Escalade!" She turned to Carl. "I told you picking him up was a bad idea. You pull this truck over this instant and make him get out!"

"Ja." Carl agreed, staring at Bill in the rearview mirror as he guided the truck to the gravel shoulder and slowed to a stop. "Get out. Schnell, schnell."

Bill's jaw dropped. "What the? Look, guys, I don't know what game you're playing, but I'm not getting out in the middle of the wilderness."

Jessica drew forward to the dashboard, looking at Carl. "He's crazy. Get him out of here before he tries something!"

Carl opened the door and slipped out of the driver's seat, quickly grabbing the rear door and opening it before Bill could look it - which hadn't occurred to him in the first place.

"Out. Now." Carl commanded, his face hard as he rolled his fingers rhythmically.

Bill shrunk back against the other door, staring at Carl. "Look, I don't know what's going on here. I don't know why you got rid of my luggage, or why you want to kick me out in the middle of nowhere but this my car, and I'm not going to let me step-sister and her Nazi boyfriend kick me out of it!"

"Step sister!" Jessica said, fear warring with outrage in her voice. "Look, you you vagrant! I don't care if you are delusional, there's no way my father would ever marry a woman who would have a son like you! Now get out of my boyfriend's car!"

There was a soft 'click' and Bill found himself staring down the barrel of a little snub-nose revolver held rock-steady in Carl's hand. It was tiny but the barrel looked as big as the mouth of the Lincoln Tunnel from Bill's point of view, and in the three of the four chambers visible in the cylinder gleamed the dull shine of lead.

"I do not wish to hurt you." Carl said, clipping each word in annoyed anger. "Take your coat and your bag, and leave my vehicle. Now."

Fumbling, Billy grabbed the handle of the door behind him and yanked on it. Since he was leaning against the door at the time, it popped open forcefully and spilled him out on the gravel, with a dusty 'thump'. With one booted foot, Billy slammed the door shut, then used his elbows and feet to back away from the SUV and its suddenly insane occupants, and Bill stopped dead, mind going utterly blank as he stared down. He barely even noticed as the denim jacket and old army bag were tossed out of the SUV before it sped away, throwing a spray of gravel over him as it hurtled away.

Bill was too busy staring at his feet. The feet that he'd tied the laces of a pair of comfortable black leather 'Athletic' shoes on when he'd left the hotel this morning.

The feet now clad in a worn old pair of black cowboy boots, run down at the heels and sprung in a couple of places, the ornamental stitching frayed and missing in some places.

"What the fuck?" Billy gasped, wondering how this could be happening. Hesitantly, he reached out and ran his fingers across the boot, feeling the texture of them through his fingers.

"Maybe I'm the one going crazy" He told himself in a stunned voice, unable to believe his own eyes. Having Jessica and Carl tell him that the jacket and bag were his was one thing, explainable in other ways. But to find another pair of footwear on his feet, without having any memory of changing them - or having them changed

Slowly, Bill pulled himself upright, looking down at the bag and jacket laying a few feet away. Slowly, he walked over and picked them up, feeling like he was trapped in some sort of nightmare where he was running away from something - but unable to increase the distance between himself and the unseen beast breathing down his neck.

Pulling the jacket on and swinging the bag over his shoulder, Bill stared down the road in the direction Carl and Jessica had gone. He had no idea how far it was to the next town but knew that the gas station was about forty-five minutes or so back the way he'd come from.

Turning his back on the path forward, he began to head back the way he'd come.

* * * * *

"I told you it was a bad idea to pick up a hitch-hiker." Jessica said for the tenth time, her tone still snippy. "Ja, ja - I know" Carl sighed. "Look, I already said"

"Pull in here!" Jessica said, sharply, pointing to the side of the road, where a restaurant had just come into view.

Instinctively, Carl's foot eased down on the brake, slowing the vehicle even as he questioned her instructions. "What? You want to eat there?"

The restaurant definitely wasn't their kind of eatery. It was a bar-and-grill type of place, with plenty of neon in the windows. Jessica, however, was looking at it as if it were La Plenza itself.

"I'm starved." She said, practically salivating. "Come on - pull in."

Blinking, Carl shrugged and did what she suggested, pulling the SUV into the parking lot and shutting off the ignition. Practically before he got the key out of the ignition, Jessica was ripping off her seat belt and sliding out of the car. Bemused, he followed her, watching in amazement as she all-but-sprinted across the lot. Rather than dashing inside, however, she stopped at the door and waited, practically shaking with anticipation.

"Come on, come on, I'm starved." She said, rubbing her hands together. Shaking his head at her odd behavior, Carl jogged the rest of the way, opening the door and following her into the restaurant.

They sat down at one of the tables, and Carl looked around and was surprised to find that he didn't mind the place so much. It had a sort of 'rustic charm' which surprised the hell out of him, as he wasn't much for 'rustic', by and large

"So, what can I getcha?" A gum-chewing waitress asked as she came to the table. "Meat - and some water." Jessica said, eagerly, practically drooling.

The waitress and Carl both blinked in surprise.

"Well, we got our monster 16oz steak dinner, but the waitress started.

"Yeah. Great! I'll have that." Jessica replied, crisply, practically biting each word off. "And some water."

"Uh and how would you like the steak cooked" the waitress asked, nonplused, while Carl gaped at Jessica's strange order and behavior. "Rare. Very rare." Jessica said, eyes bright. She licked her lips.

"It comes with a salad and your choice of" the waitress started

"Just the meat - and some water." Jessica interrupted, looking around with an energy and attention that was unusual for her. Carl wondered if she'd sucked down a couple of 'pep pills' when he wasn't looking - it was the only explanation he could come up with for her actions.

"I'm not very hungry." He told the waitress. "I'll have her salad, and a baked potato, and a Hein no, make that a white wine." He blinked at the sudden distaste he'd felt at the thought of his usual drink, then shook it off.

"Ooooo-kay." The waitress gave them an odd look, then headed off. "Honey" Carl asked Jessica, tentatively. "Are you feeling okay?"

"Yeah. Great. Never better." Jessica chimed, brightly. "Dinner. Where's my meat?"

"Uh. it'll be a minute" Carl said, shaking his head. Idly, he scratched at his chest it was itchy as hell, and it was driving him nuts. It felt sensitive and a little puffy, and he wondered if he was coming down with something

Maybe that was it, he mused. Maybe he and Jessica were coming down with something, and this was a symptom of how it affected her. He'd take her - and himself - to a doctor atier they ate

* * * * *

Bill stopped walking, stretching his shoulders back under the straps of the back-pack with a sigh, as he looked over his shoulder, reconsidering his decision.

He had no idea how far it would have been to the next town from where he'd been dumped on the side of the road, but figured it would be about forty-five minutes back to the station/store from there. There was only one problem with that estimate - he'd neglected to take into account the fact that the station lay uphill - and he wasn't exactly the most fit, energetic person on the face of the planet. Though in much better health then he'd been when he was younger, he still tired easily - and he was damned near exhausted atier a half-hour of up-hill walking, and figured he was just shy of the half-way point. His muscles ached and his legs felt rubbery. As otien happened atier exertion, Bill's teeth ached - or itched, and there was no way to scratch the inside of your teeth.

It was more then that, though. The heaviest exercises he'd ever done was the 'rehab' exercises to help give him some muscle tone and endurance. Atier a youth of being nearly bed-ridden, it had been necessary - but painful. He'd thought that it was the worst he could feel without actual physical damage, the aches and weakness and the sweaty, sore body - but the exercises had been done in controlled environments, in comfortable clothes. Now, he actually remembered those days with fondness.

In addition to the aches and weakness of his body, there were other, equally annoying 'side-effects' top the unexpected exertions he was putting himself through. Instead of sweatpants, Bill was wearing jeans and he was sweating pretty heavy, which must be the reason why his jeans felt so uncomfortable across his ass and hips. At least he'd finally found a 'comfortable' place of his cock and balls. The first ten minutes of walking, he'd kept adjusting them in his underwear to find a place that wouldn't 'crunch' them, and he must have found a 'sweet spot' - for the last twenty minutes, it was as if they weren't even there.

His feet ached, which was to be expected for somebody unused to walking for any length of time but they ached in a strange way, his toes cramped and strained, his heels feeling odd and 'pressured'. Bill put it down to the cowboy boots, which he still couldn't believe he'd somehow ended up wearing.

Even his chest ached - but not with the familiar 'tightness' he would have expected. Instead, his chest felt swollen and sensitive. It was driving him nuts.

Turning back to face the way he had to go, Bill sighed again, then started forward, body complaining. With annoyance, he flipped several strands of hair that had fallen out of his face, concentrating on taking it one step at a time

Then paused, hand still atop his head, frozen in the act of getting the hair out of his face.

"What the hell?" Bill asked himself, slowly running his hand through hair that felt too long, too thick. He'd always worn his hair middlin' long, mostly as a sort of silent rebellion, like his comfortable choice of clothing. However, it now felt like his hair was more than the somewhat long, shaggy style he usually wore. It felt like it was a lot longer in the back, and a lot fuller and thicker than usual

However, he'd stopped worrying about his hair. The fact that his hair was mysteriously longer and thicker no longer held any concern for him because his attention had been diverted to his voice. Not usually one to talk to himself, Bill hadn't spoken during his walk, not until his almost involuntary exclamation which had emerged in a higher, richer sounding voice than he'd ever heard from his throat.

"My voice!" Bill said, hearing those softer, higher tones once more. "What the hell's wrong with my voice?"

Bill stood stock-still on the side of the road, mind whirling. The boots had been one thing - and inexplicable event he'd been willing to 'put off' worrying about, since it was secondary to the incredible situation he'd found himself in, kicked out of his own car by his step-sister and her boyfriend. Now, more incredible, inexplicable things were happening, and Bill had the very bad feeling that they might be tied in, that the strange behavior of Jessica and Carl wasn't just a matter of them 'acting strange', but something more insidious and occult, their minds changed as quickly, thoroughly - and impossible - as his hair, voice and boots assuming that was all that was changed, he thought with a shiver, the possible meaning of the strange 'aches' and sensations he'd been feeling taking on much more sinister meaning.

Letting 'his' backpack slip off his shoulder and fall to the dusty roadside, Bill hurriedly unbuttoned the denim jacket and pulled it off, mind whirling in mixed hope and fear.

Looking down at his chest, fear won. The denim jacket had hidden it, and his mind had put the sensations down to the wrong cause, but now there was no denying the fact that his chest was pushed outward. The black shirt he wore was fairly tight - and now it was tighter over small-but-definite mounds that had a very familiar shape to them. A shape that went along with the higher-pitched tone of voice, and the longer, thicker, silkier hair.

"Oh my God" Bill said, eyes widening in shock and horror as he brought his hands up to his chest and cupped the cloth-covered mounds of what could only be breasts. Female breast, a small B-cup perhaps, clearly outlined in the fabric, right down to the nubs of nipples that could be seen through the dark fabric. Even as his mind registered the shock of his hands touching the flesh inside his shirt, the new and different sensation of having breast cupped and touched, he also noticed that his hands looked different. Always on the slim side, they were now more dainty. The bone structure had altered, especially around the knuckles, making the already slender digits more graceful, no longer 'skinny' due to lack of flesh and muscle, but simply slender to being with and tipped with longer nails.

"Oh shit" Bill said, swaying ins hock as he began to hyperventilate. "i l'm becoming"

He couldn't force himself to say it but the mere thought was enough to send his more feminine hands darting downward, fumbling with the zipper of his jeans. Emotion making him awkward and clumsy, Bill seemed to take forever to get the jeans undone and yanked down to his knees.

His thighs were smoother and firmer then they'd been before, looking more healthy and natural under a much lighter covering of hair. Those thighs led upwards to hips that were wider then they should have been, looking 'boyishly' feminine, but feminine nonetheless and supporting an ass that was definitely fuller and firmer then it had been this morning when he'd awoken.

His underwear lay flat across his crotch.

"No" Bill whimpered, hand diving into his briefs to slide across Nothing.

He was completely emasculated. He was neuter. There was nothing at all at his crotch except smooth flesh and short, stiff pubic hair.

There was no manhood, nor womanhood. He was an 'it', genderless or 'in transition', moving from one sex to the other.

"What the hell is going on?" Bill demanded of an uncaring sky. Shock, horror and exhaustion threatened to overwhelm him, leaving him collapsed on the side of the road and it was an enormous force of will to push away the growing darkness at the edge of his vision.

"I am not going to faint" Bill told himself, yanking his pants back up. As he did so, he noticed something else, yet another block in the emotional weight threatening to crush him.

He wasn't wearing cowboy boots anymore. Now they were black leather boots of a mainly feminine nature, the heel still fairly thick, but an inch taller then before and the whole boot was smaller and slimmer, matching feet that were daintier then before.

"The gas station" Bill told himself, grabbing the back-pack and slinging it over a shoulder. "I I need to get to a phone and call for help"

He had no idea who would be a 'specialist' to help in an impossible situation like this - but the thought gave him a thin strand of hope on which to tie his own force of will, a reason to continue forward, a reason to hope that whatever was going on could be made better, somehow.

With new determination bolstered by the sheer panic that waited in the wings, Bill forced himself to continue forward, jaw clenching rhythmically as he fought the urge to scream and cry.

Now that he was aware of the horrifying thing happening to his body, Bill could feel it happening. It was occurring both terrifyingly quickly, yet agonizingly slowly. Slowly enough that he'd missed - or rather - mistaken what the initial signs were, rapidly enough that it seemed like the completion of the change was hurtling towards him too soon for him to be able to react, to turn his fate from the course it had somehow taken.

The small breasts that now lurked under his shirt seemed to grow with every step he took, and now that he knew what the sensations were he couldn't ignore the slowly/quickly increasing weight of them, pulling on his chest in a new and horribly pleasant way as the increasing mass was affected more and more by gravity and inertia, their firm fullness beginning to shift and sway with his stride.

A stride that was slowly altering. He was forced to take into account the way his hips were widening, his ass was filling - not to mention the way his boots continued to alter, the heels slowly growing taller and thinner. Somewhere in the bleak despair he was feeling, enough of a spark remained to think with wry, dark humor that learning to walk in heels this easily would make many a woman envious as the heels slowly extended upwards, he had time to adjust to the slow increase, finding it little effort to remain balanced atop the heels even as his hips began to swivel and sway more in a naturally feminine stride that he couldn't help but adopt.

His hair fell in front of his face again, but he didn't brush it back. He was loath to touch the longer, finer strands of silky hair, as if that would somehow validate what was happening to his body.

What was strange was the fact that he was feeling, physically, better. Whatever was happening to him, however it was occurring, the new, female body that was being metamorphosed from his old one was in much better physical shape, with fuller, tauter musculature that wasn't masculine or massive, but healthy - if feminine. Exhaustion and aches slipped slowly away as the transformation continued, leaving him feeling physically 'better', if not allowing him to go any faster, the slowly increasing height of the heels on his changing boots opposing the increase in fitness.

Bill's body continued to feel more and more foreign to 'her', Bill thought, since it was obviously more than halfway done, and the feminine gender more accurate than the one Bill really wanted to apply.

Bill had let the jacket open, and could see her swelling bosom clearly. During the initial half hour, they hadn't grown very much, which was how she'd missed it.

Actually, physically there had been little change to her body during that first half hour. There were only a few differences between 'male' and 'female', in the big picture. The first half hour of this horrible mystical transition, it had been mostly a case of becoming 'neuter', cock and balls shrinking down to nothing. Already skinny and pale and lightly muscled, Bill's body had needed little work to achieve a technically feminine figure. Now, it was rapidly filling out into a full vision of femininity, her chest seeming to explode outwards through the alphabet of cup-sizes, already large enough that she could now be described as 'buxom' - an appellation she'd never expected to be applied to her, and one she'd never wanted.

The size of grapefruit - and still swelling - the breasts now had much more 'play', joggling and swaying more with each step, enlarging nipples moving slightly across the fabric of her shirt which itself was changing, the once high neck slowly, steadily sinking downwards as the shirt's design altered. She could also feel her underwear altering, becoming more 'appropriate' to her changing body. Even the jeans were altering, but they were the least of the changes, since there was very little stylistic differences. Mainly they continued to fit reasonably comfortable, though they were becoming tighter.

"Why me?" She asked, bitterly - and heard the dulcet tones of her still-changing voice, the sound more definitely feminine and, under other circumstances, quite nice. "What did I do to deserve this? Who and how?"

the questions had no answers, at least none that she could find but the questions raised more questions themselves, because even the rhythm and sound of her voice was altering. Not just the tones of it, but her way of speaking.

She continued walking and her body continued changing. Nearly an hour had passed since she'd been kicked out of the car and if she was right about the half-hour point being about halfway through the transition, then she was nearing The End of the change, almost completely female in every way.

It would be none-too-soon. Already she was more 'female' than many women, and that was more than she'd ever imagined, much less wanted. Her boots were now black suede, and the slender heels she balanced atop too easily for her own liking had to be about six inches high.

Her jeans were now molded tightly around legs that would probably be fairly nice, judging from the easy contraction-and-relaxation of the taut, smooth muscles beneath the denim. Her hips were wider than many women's, but not outrageously so - nice, feminine hips, supporting a full, taut ass that would be somewhat larger than the current standards of model-thin 'beauty' would call 'spectacular', but it was definitely attractive enough a thought that made its unwilling owner shudder.

Above an agreeably slender waist lurked her new bust, definably larger than average. Each swaying, bouncing breast was the size of a large melon, firm and round - and that was easy to see, since the now plunging neckline of her new shirt showed off the top of the large, milky breasts and the 'delightful' chasm of her cleavage.

Her hair was now a massive mane of sandy blonde that fell in somewhat curly waves around her face and over her shoulders, hanging to just below her shoulder blades at the back. She was sure that the face it surrounded had altered, too - but without a mirror, there was no way of knowing how much it had changed.

Though her altered body was fitter and stronger, she was finding it harder and harder to go forward. Not because of anything physical, but because of emotion: The slender thread of hope that she'd held that this impossibility could somehow be reversed was fraying, every sign showing that she was 'doomed' to the life of a woman, with no explanation of how it had happened.

Feeling crushed beneath the emotional weight of what had happened, the woman Bill had become slowly approached the gas station, now visible at the side of the road as she walked, head down, mind whirling and spinning. She crossed the cracked apron of the station, past the rusting pumps, towards the building

then, through the haze of emotions she was feeling at her transformation, something wrong with the scene finally registered, and she came to a complete stop, looking around sharply.

There was no lights on in the store, no sign of life. The entire place felt empty and it wasn't the same store she'd leti just over an hour ago. Oh, it was the same building, in the same location but it was an empty shell, windows covered in thick dust and the paint peeling. The sign announcing the station was still standing, but it's facade was missing, as was the fluorescent bulbs that had been behind it - it was nothing but a rusting back metal skeleton outlined in the sky.

The station and store looked like it had been leti abandoned for at least a decade.

The new woman stood stock-still, staring at the empty store, devoid of life and any chance of help.

The fraying thread of hope snapped and she collapsed to the cracked and aging pavement, new bust hitching as she began to sob, deep wracking sobs of despair and horror at what had happened to her.

* * * * *

Carl stirred, mind befuddled with sleep. Slowly, conscious returned, thick and muddled, memories slowly seeping back in.

He and Jessica hadn't felt well at all atier eating, and it hadn't seemed to have anything to do with the food. Exhaustion had lapped at both of them, and they staggered out of the restaurant to find that their SUV had been stolen. In the spot where it had stood rested a black Dodge Ram pick-up, dust covering it's gleaming paint. Shocked and angry, Carl had found enough energy to call the police. The local PD was busy with a hostage situation, and they told him that it might be awhile before an officer could get out there, but that they'd send a EMS team as well, since Carl had explained they weren't feeling well at all.

The owner of the restaurant, sympathetic, had allowed Carl and Jessica to use one of the five rooms attached to the back of the restaurant, a sort of mini-motel used mainly by locals who had too much to drink.

The room was small, little more then a tiny bedroom with a bathroom attached, with a narrow, creaky bed and a worn couch. Jessica had curled up on the couch, falling asleep almost instantly, and so Carl had stretched out on the bed, propped up against the headboard as he'd waited for the cops.

He must have fallen asleep. Now, his eyes fluttered open and he stared up at the ceiling, his mind feeling slow and thick, as if his thoughts were moving through molasses to register on his conscience. Though he didn't feel nearly as bad as before, his body still felt decidedly strange,. And he though maybe the nap had done him a bit of good without curing whatever ailed him.

Pushing himself upright, Carl looked around then he looked down at himself. The scream reverberated through the room

* * * * *

"Wilma Susanna Swanson. Billie-Sue Swanson."

She stared at the dusty mirror with a numb gaze, mind trying to comprehend the vast scale of the transformation that come over her, her full new lips moving as she tried the name she'd found on the ID in her backpack on for size.

She didn't like it. Even just 'Billie' was too 'feminine'. Otherwise a sort of gender-neutral sounding sort of name, the body she now wore looked like a 'Billie', or maybe a 'Bobbi'.

"Sue" She tried, tasting the word in her mouth, finding it more palatable, despite being feminine. It'd didn't sound so so 'redneck'. "Sue Swanson".

Her voice was flat, uninflected. Her mind was no longer whirling and snipping - her crying jag on the pavement had seemed to bleed most of that out of her, leaving her in a numb state of shock. It was in that sort of mindless haze that she looked through her backpack, finding a few articles of clothing, a small, faux-leather bound notebook of some sort, some loose jewelry and make-up and a small women's wallet, well-worn green leather with once gold-toned metal edging and clasp that had been worn down to the real stainless- steel metal beneath in most places. Inside, she'd found seventy-three dollars and fity-seven cents, an expired driver's license, and a birth certificate.

The face on the license had been younger, and surrounded by shorter hair - but it matched the one she now stared at. A face that looked so 'down home country' that the new birthplace listed as Tennessee seemed to go without saying.

Her face was not beautiful, really - but it was close, in a very open, clean-faced way. The license listed her new age as being 21, two weeks past, but she looked younger, with clear skin that would drive most women into fits on envy. Her nose was a little to prominent, but rather than detracting from her looks, it was a minor imperfection that was endearing. Flanking that nose lay a pair of big, deep blue eyes that were intelligent and seemed to be smiling.

Her lips were full and mobile, expressively sexy and cheerful. Her chin was a little too square an protruding, just enough to be another 'endearing' trait, not masculine enough to take anything away from the smooth curve of her jaw or high, well-define cheeks.

Her new body was lush. Feminine, firm and fit, in a 'country girl' style that might not be the current rage, but was damned sexy. She had no trouble seeing that, since she was currently stark naked in front of the dusty mirror, having let herself in the abandoned store through a door whose once-secure lock was loose enough in the weathered wooden frame that she'd been able to force it out of the jamb. She'd undressed slowly, mechanically, standing in front of the large mirror that had once backed a display case that was long gone.

Her legs weren't long and slender, but firm and shapely, sexy in a healthy, energetic way, despite not being 'elegant'. The legs drew the eye to her wide, womanly hips and a firm, taut ass that was just this side of being 'too much of a good thing'. Her waist wasn't tiny or dainty, being firm and taut - but between the wide hips and her big tits, it looked slender, giving her a nicely-shaped hour-glass figure.

Even the melon-sized breasts that now thrust roundly from her chest didn't look too outsized, nicely balancing her full, firm body, wide hips and strong shoulders. She wasn't 'petite' or 'dainty', but she was almost overpoweringly feminine, right down to the neatly trimmed patch of pubic hair that framed the defining portion of her new anatomy - a vagina.

Bill was now all woman, right down to her identification. Though she didn't want to be, she was trapped in this new identity, and her numb mind was choosing what to call herself, if and when the need to do so arose. Using her middle name would be explainable, if it came to that - and it seemed better than 'Billie', and just plain 'Bill' would sound weird, given the new body.

"Sue" She told the reflection in the mirror, trying to get used to both the name and the body. "Sue"

Turning away from the mirror, she slowly dressed again, pulling on her now-feminine clothes. She didn't even pause as she pulled the feminine briefs into place, nor did she flinch as her now low-cut black t-shirt was pulled into place over her firm, full breasts. In shock, she was semi-detached from reality, aware of - but refusing to truly deal with - her new situation in life. Instead, she was sort of just 'driiting' going along without thought or emotion, trapped in a haze that enveloped her in a cushion that protected her from her own emotions and thoughts, a protective layer that kept her from going insane. It was almost as if she was watching this all from a distance, control the actions of somebody else, another person altogether, leaving the real 'Bill' unaffected.

Straightening after pulling on her suede boots with their six-inch heels, she looked at herself in the mirror again, face still expressionless.

"Make-up" She muttered, vaguely, hands opening her back-pack and extracting the make-up within. It wasn't a matter of whether she 'wanted' to wear make-up or not - in her haze, her mind merely noted the fact that she looked 'unfinished' without it, and so she 'solved' the discrepancy without considering it in any real way. She didn't even notice the apparent skill with which she applied her lipstick, blush, eye-shadow or mascara. It was only actions, no thoughts, as she put the big white plastic hoop earrings in place through her pierced lobes, or the 'silver' necklace around her slender new neck.

Tucking everything else back into the back-pack, she turned and headed for the door, her hips swaying and swiveling in a way that would have been sexy if it wasn't for her blank expression and unnaturally stiff movements. She looked like an animatronic version of a sexy country girl as she left the store, aiming her new body downhill, and towards the distant city that must lay beyond. Her legs continued to lift her feet up and down, the steps unnoticed by a brain vapor-locked into immobility by the impossible situation, unable to deal with what had happened to her, or the fact that she could find no 'solution' to the impossible problem of having been turned into a woman. She was aware of her immediate actions, aware of the sensations the nerves of her altered body was transmitting to her altered brain but she wasn't 'thinking' about anything. Somebody could have run a sword through her arm, and she wouldn't have screamed or reacted visibly, it being just more data that her brain registered by her mind ignored.

In that dense haze of shock, it wasn't surprising that Sue didn't react to the transport-truck 'bobtailing' down the road. It's elaborate blue paint job coated in road-grime, the unburdened cab was traveling at just above the posted speed limit on the twisting mountain road, but without the mass of a trailer was quiet easily capable of stopping as it passed Sue, which it did. By the time Sue numbly drew abreast of the cab, the driver had slid over and popped open the passenger's side door.

"Hey there, Miss." The driver said. A burly man with a full beard and dark, deep-set eyes mostly lost beneath the bill of the worn ball- cap he wore, his voice was deep and rumbling. It was enough to penetrate the vague cloud around Sue's mind, though the meaning of the words didn't register, just the sound of them. Stopping, Sue's body remained facing forward as her head swiveled, blank eyes coming to rest on the trucker without really registering any of the details.

"Uh need a liti, miss?" the driver asked, uncomfortable with her blank stare. There was something wrong with the buxom blonde. "It's a long hike to town"

She seemed to take forever to answer. Finally, in a flat voice, Sue said. "Sure."

Even though she'd agreed, it took another minute before her body began to move, mechanically turning and climbing into the cab as the trucker slid back into the driver's seat. She climbed into the passenger's seat and sat stiffly. Like a mannequin, blank eyes staring straight ahead through the windshield as her hands cradled the backpack on her lap.

"Uh, miss" The trucker said, still disturbed by her odd behavior. "You, uh, wanna close the, uh, door?"

Very slowly, her head swiveled to stare mindlessly at him, and the emptiness of her eyes made the driver shiver. Then, slowly, her head pivoted to stare at the open door. It seemed to take forever for her to make the connection, then she reached out and pulled the door shut before returning to her original position.

Now thoroughly worried about the woman he'd just let into his truck, the driver cleared his throat. "My name's John. Where are you heading?"

The woman's head once more turned to survey him blankly, her voice flat as she answered.

"Sue. Town would be fine."

John still didn't put the truck into gear, his nerves still twitching. "Look, uh, Sue Are you all right?" "No." She said, flatly. "I'm not."

"Uh" John stammered, not sure how to handle the flat, emotionless answer.

"I'm not myself today." She said, in the same, flat voice and then she chuckled. It wasn't a sound that could possibly be related to humor, flat and with a nervous edge then it filled out, spiraling higher in tone until she was laughing hysterically, eyes wide and blank

The unintentional pun had made a connection in Sue/Bill's unwilling brain, bring reality crashing back in once again and her flat eyes suddenly acquired life again, reflecting her horror and despair as she once more became fully aware of her environment and situation and the hysterical, manic laughter turned into deep, wracking sobs as she burst into soul-rending tears.

"Oh, dear god" She cried, slumping against the black plastic of the idling truck's dashboard. "Oh, god, why?"

"Miss?" John said, eyes wide in concern. Her behavior had suddenly become well, if not 'clear' then horribly understandable. His first thought had been that she was stoned or something, but her swift shift into utter despair made the connection obvious - she'd been in shock. "Sue Sue, what's wrong?"

"Nothing" She sobbed, her voice thick, and no longer even close to emotionless. "Everything."

Awkwardly, John cleared his throat, his heart heavy at the sight of this beautiful woman sobbing her heart out in his truck. Awkwardly, he did the only thing he could think of: he put a hand on her shoulder, reassuringly, murmuring meaningless platitudes.

Sue felt the warm hand on her new shoulder, heard his sounds of concern and without any real thought, turned to him for comfort, all but throwing herself against him, burying her face in his shoulder and pressing her lush body against his as she sobbed in great, deep heaves.

John had no idea how to deal with the woman suddenly in his arms. She was warm and vibrant and alive, her big, round tits pushed against his chest but her utter sadness roused a pity that made him unbelievably guilt about his burgeoning lust. He had no idea what to do, other than hold her and pat her reassuringly on the back, while trying to ignore the fact that she was a warm, sexy woman pressing herself into his arms.

then her sobs slowly tapered off, emotional and physical exhaustion taking hold as she came completely out of the shock and she did what many people coming out of shock did.

She fell asleep, drifting into the glorious oblivion of unconsciousness, not needing to face reality even through the curtain of shock as she gave herself willingly to darkness.

"Sue?" John asked, awkwardly. "Sue?"

Realizing that she'd fallen asleep in his arm, John looked around in confusion then sighed. With a touching - if awkward - gentleness, the big bear of a man lifted her limp body and moved it to the bunk in the hi-rise sleeper of his truck, looking down at her now-relaxed face, well-defined cheeks glistening from her tears.

Settling back into his seat, he looked over at the back-pack that had fallen onto the floor. Feeling guilty, he picked it up and began rummaging through it, hoping to find an address or phone number, somebody he could get in touch with. He found her identification, then the little book.

John opened it and realized he was looking at her diary. Feeling even more guilty about invading her privacy, he nevertheless flipped through it until he got to the last entry, dated yesterday.

Dear Diary

I don't know what I'm going to do. The orphanage is all I know. I don't have any family at all, and I don't really know anybody outside the orphanage. For the past twenty-one years I've lived there, gone to school there, been taught by the Sisters and I don't believe half of what they taught me about the 'sins of the world'.

Which is why I was thrown out, of course. Oh, how I wish I wish many things. I wish that I'd had the nerve to ask one of the local boys to 'deflower' me, rather than let Janice talk me into I'm sure I wouldn't have gotten thrown out if it had been a man they'd caught me with. The Sisters claim all sex is a sin, but I'm sure they understand that

Then again, maybe not. Them finding all those magazines under my bed must not have helped How could I not be curious, though. Sex a sin, a pleasure, a wonder a mystery, at least to me. Oh, the women in all the magazines look like they are so happy! Even the ones giving oral sex - 'blow jobs' look happy to be doing it. The stories in those magazines make all sex sound wonderful!

If only If only I'd had the nerve to have real sex. To feel what it was like to have a boy's cock in my cunt. In my mouth. Just to see a boy's cock! I'm twenty-one years old, and the only male genitalia I've seen are those in the magazines. I can't believe the only sex I've ever had was from a lesbian with a strap on and since it was my first time, it hurt.

I'll probably die as an old maid, since I don't think I'll ever be able to ask a man for sex. Even if someone offered it, I'd probably feel to guilty and shy to agree the Sisters saw to that. I think the Sister's real job is to find more women to work at the orphanage and school. I can't believe that women who were out in the world would choose to become chaste and join

No job. Little money. No friends and family to turn to. I don't know anything about the 'real world', and I certainly don't know anything at all about sex. Oh, what am I going to do?

John closed the diary, flushing with shame at peering into another person's soul without permission but now understanding his passenger's state of mind. She had grown up in what sounded like an all-girl's orphanage and school, probably Catholic, taught that sex was a sin by nuns who wouldn't know, shy and insecure, and cast out into a world she didn't know or understand - and she was trying to deal with her new, sexual awakenings.

Putting the diary back in the back-pack, John turned around and put the truck into motion, slowly working his way up through the gears, knowing just who to bring Sue to see. It was just luck that Doc Fogerty was nearby

* * * * *

"Sergeant Wilson."

The short, fire-plug of a man turned, the sunlight glittering from the gold braid on the cap of his State Police uniform. His craggy face split in a wide grin.

"Doc Fogerty." The Sergeant cocked his head at the slender, dark-haired man in jeans and a open-neck gold-shirt. "We got a live one for you, Doc. Crazy as a Loon."

Mark Fogerty frowned slightly. "Psychiatrist's tend to avoid such inexpert diagnoses." Wilson laughed. "Wait 'till you get a load of this. It's a real story."

Shrugging, the psychiatrist headed around the restaurant to the rooms Marv kept in the back. Nearly fifty, Fogerty had been the on-call Police Psychiatrist for the county for the past twenty-years, mostly counseling the suicidal and the violent. Real psychoses were few and far between, but what little he'd heard of this case seemed like a genuine case. It would be an interesting 'diversion' from his everyday work, which is why he'd volunteered for the position in the first place - Fogerty's specialty was sexual neurosis and psychosis, and he ran the Fogerty Clinic for Sexual Dysfunctions.

Besides - joining the police had also thawed the opinion of a lot of the locals who'd been looking at him strangely, wondering if the Boston-educated 'shrink' was some sort of pervert. A 'Sex Clinic' was a new idea for many of them, who thought it was a front for a sick individual.

It wasn't hard to figure out which room it was - three state officers and Marv stood around it.

"I felt sorry, so I offered the room. I had no idea that" Marv was explaining - for what must have been the tenth time - to one of the officers. Catching sight of Fogerty, he sighed. "Thank God, Doc. You gotta do something."

"I'll certainly try." Fogerty agreed, walking past them and rapping on the door.

A flurry of barking came from inside the room, followed by a high-pitched voice that Fogerty immediately identified as hysterical. "Go away! I'm not coming out!" The woman shouted above the dog's heavy, staccato barking.

"You asked to see a doctor!" Fogerty shouted through the door. "I'm Doctor Fogerty!"

It wasn't a lie, technically Fogerty did hold an MD, after all, even if he wasn't practicing general medicine.

There was a short pause then the lock on the door was snapped. The door didn't open, but Fogerty hadn't expected it to. Making a 'hold on' motion with his hands to the troopers, he went inside the room, closing but not locking the door behind him.

It took a second for his eyes to adjust from the bright light outside to the darkness of a room with the shades drawn and the lights off. He stood just inside the door until his eyes made the transition then struggled to keep anything from showing on his face as he looked at the room's occupants.

Lying on the couch, eyes regarding him sorrowfully, was a big black dog, a mixed-breed with a lot of Labrador in it. The dog didn't look threatening, despite its size it looked as if it had just been whipped, though there were no obvious physical marks on it.

The human occupant of the room didn't seem to be injured, either, leaving the question as to the demand for a doctor open. However, Fogerty began to gather data just looking at the woman on the bed, knees hunched up and eyes wide in panic.

Psychiatrists were the first to tell you that you couldn't trust a book by its cover - but there was valuable data you could cull from a person's choice of clothing, their actions, and other observable data.

The woman was tall and slender, with the most massive head of platinum-blond hair Fogerty had ever seen. The fact that her massive, curly mane of hair was so incredibly luxuriant and heavy told something about the mind-set of the person who would go to the effort of maintaining such hair. In and of itself, it might be a misleading piece of datum but it tied into other things, as well.

Like the clothes on the floor, that she'd obviously taken off. Though she'd chosen to wrap herself in a blanket from the bed rather than put them on, the fact that she had been wearing such clothes was indicative of something. The black mini-shirt, the red spandex crop-top, the fishnet stockings and the red platform shoes with the highest spike heels Fogerty had ever seen.

Of course, the same might be present in the room of somebody just back from a costume party. That a person would willingly choose such a 'costume' was itself informative, but of a slightly different nature and degree. However, all of the initial data was to be combined but what he could see of the woman herself, and it said a hell of a lot.

Some people were born one way or another due to genetic background, and that was a 'cause' rather than an 'effect' to be read - the fact that the woman was tall and slender of build wouldn't be a direct indicator of anything. But that didn't mean there wasn't anything to be gathered from her physical build, because her very body was a veritable mine of information.

The way she sat exposed most of her legs, and her long legs were smoothly shaven, tautly muscled, and extremely shapely, which told Fogerty about her own sense of self, of the effort she took to look good. Likewise, her face made statements, too. Scrubbed clean of make-up and eyes wide in panic, it was hardly her usual 'look' - but no matter how kind genetics had been, Fogerty found it hard to believe that her face was completely natural. Nature very rarely provided huge, limpid blue eyes, a tiny snub nose, and incredibly full, soft lips, all in a heart-shaped face. Usually a plastic surgeon was required for such flawless, purely sexual perfection.

However, there was still the small chance that it could be a random fluke of fate that she looked like that, that it wasn't created with the help of a plastic surgeon. However, all these assumptions he was making was supported by one, undeniable 'tell-tale'.

Well two, actually.

There was no way on God's green Earth that her breasts were natural. Even if she'd been one of those few people suffering macromastia, the extreme growth of breasts, there was no way nature would give her such incredibly full, round ones. No - when a slender woman possessed a pair of breasts that resembled flesh-colored beach-balls in size and shape, it was a safe assumption that they were implanted.

Fogerty observed all of this quickly, forcing himself to remain expressionless then he let his long-used expression of warm concern cross his face.

"All I've been told is that you're requesting a doctor, Miss." Fogerty said, kindly. "Are you in pain?" "Pain?" She half-laughed in hysteria. "Look at me! I I Look at me!"

Fogerty made a show of scrutinizing her. "I'm sorry I don't see"

"I'm a woman!" She shrieked, bounding off the bed and dropping the covers, revealing her naked body. She was definitely right on that score she looked like a living version of a teenage boy's sexual fantasy brought to life.

"I'm sorry, I'm not sure I understand why you need a doctor for being a woman." Fogerty said, carefully.

"I wasn't a woman before today!" She shrieked. "Now now look at me!" She used her tiny, long-nailed hands to touch her enormous breasts. "I'm a huge-breasted bimbo freak!"

"I see" Fogerty said, gravely. She was definitely unbalanced. However, Fogerty thought it might not be a complete schism so much as a delusion, with its own internal logic structure. If so, he'd have to handle it a certain way. "You understand, I find this incredible. It's unprecedented. Do you know how it happened?"

"No!" She shrieked. "I wasn't feeling well, and me and my girlfriend came in here to sleep, but when I woke up I was a huge-breasted woman dressed like a hooker, and Jessica was a dog!" She pointed a finger at the dog on the couch, which 'whoofed' dully, almost as if in agreement.

Fogerty considered her statement. "So your clothes were changed, as well?" "Yeah!" She said, now sobbing as she dropped on the bed.

Carefully, Fogerty approached her. She didn't seem dangerous, but he had to be careful not to directly attack her delusion. "Is there anything else?"

She nodded. "Yeah. It's like nobody remembers me - the real me, I mean. Everybody acts like I was always a woman and stuff, and the cops say the old pickup in the lot is mine, and my name's Carla Anne Culver, and I've got lost of arrest for prostitution and nobody remembers Jessica and and"

She seemed to be shocking on something. "And?"

She turned towards him, and it was sheer force of will that kept Fogerty from flinching, knowing that the appearance of belief and trust at this point could make all the difference.

"And I can't stop thinking about sex!" She shrieked, hysterically. "The owner called the cops and I could hear them all out there wanting to come in and all I could think about is doing things with them to them having them do things to me"

Her gaze had become distant, her voice calming as she grinned slightly, hands unconsciously going to work, one caressing her crotch, the other a massive breast.

"It's, like, so hard to think straight since I woke up" She murmured, sensually. "Like, my heads all stuffed with cotton, and when I can think well, it's about sex, having lots of sex with men, with sucking cocks and getting fucked long and hard Mmmm and taking it up the ass Oh, I'm so hot"

She was obviously aroused, the odor filling the room as she stared at nothing, a huge grin spreading her full lips now as she discussed having sex. then she seemed to realize what she was doing, yanking her hands away from herself and shuddering.

"You gotta help me doc!" She screamed, even as her eyes slid down to his crotch and fixated on it. Fogerty blessed the fact that he was mostly inured to her very sexual nature, since her gaze didn't find any sign of arousal, which could have made things a lot worse. After years of running his clinic, he'd gotten used to surprising any reactions.

"Yes, I can see that." He told her, gently, already knowing what course the therapy would take. Obviously, she was one of the very rare people suffering from a text-book case of nymphomania, and it was so abhorrent to herself that she'd created a whole new identity - a male one - to dissociate herself from it. "I'm sure I can help you."

"You can?" She asked, eyes pleading. "You you can make me a man again?"

"Well, that will take a long time." He said, laying the groundwork as he lowered his voice to a conspiratorial tone. "I mean, no normal doctor can make you a woman so quickly or perfectly, not normally, right?"

"I I don't know" She sobbed. "It's so hard to think right. But. I didn't think somebody could."

"Well, then there's the changed records, the people claiming that you never were, the way they switched a very well-trained dog for your girlfriend" Fogerty said, hating to feed her delusion even though it was utterly necessary. "Did you ever think that this wasn't aimed at you, but at her? After all, she's the one whose missing"

The girl's eyes snapped up and she stared at her dog. Fogerty waited, praying he hadn't made a mistake, done something to make it worse

"Jessica!" The girl said. "She's rich and her dad's important!"

Fogerty fought the urge to sigh at having 'redirected' her delusion.

"It's a conspiracy. Some sort of government thing!" She said to Fogerty. "Only the gov'ment could do this to me, right?"

"That's how I see it." Fogerty told her, still playing the role of confident and companion. "Now, we need to break their conspiracy to find out how to turn you back but before we can do that, we need to do something about this new identity and cravings they gave you.

Obviously, they expect you to end up either in jail or an asylum, where they can keep an eye on you."

"Oh, God - yeah. That's why the cops are here!" She agreed, playing into the delusion. "Oh, God - what are we going to do" there it was - her asking him for help was the pivotal point, and now he could begin curing her of this delusion without seeming to directly attack it.

"Well" He explained. "Until we can crack the conspiracy and turn you back to a man, we have to find a way to let you pass as a woman so that you can remain out of jail and institutions"

She grimaced but nodded.

"Yeah, okay, I unnerstan'. What do I gotta do?"

Fogerty had to restrain a smile at her now-willing behavior. "Well, we've got to keep you from getting arrested." He told her. "The only way we can do that is if you get dressed and pretend that nothing is wrong - that you ARE Carla Culver. Then we can get you to someplace safe"

Nodding, with a grimace, she began to dress

* * * * *

"Well, so much for a quiet day, huh doc?" Emil said, with a sigh. He was really a 'caretaker' intern, not doing much work. He got paid less then the others, but almost never had to do anything since more qualified staff was on hand for the scheduled therapies.

The problem was - today they had two unscheduled cases, and Emil was working both of them, with Fogerty supervising.

"That's medical work, Emil." Fogerty pointed out. He wasn't happy about having just Emil to work with him on this one, but there was no way he was recalling vacationing staff back. He'd need a full staff to start treating Carla's delusions, but both her and Sue's sexual problems were relatively easy to correct - in one case, the woman was too sexual for her own good, in the other, too little. A little hypnotherapy would sever as a 'booster' for each, and then it would be a case of 'self help', at least in that department. Sue would be ready to face the world atier this one session, not even realizing she'd been 'cured', which is why the therapy was so effective. As for Carla well, she'd require a lot more work "Are they both conditioned?" Fogerty asked Emil, who nodded.

"Yup. The one in room 12 - uh, Sue Swanson - was told by John that it's a free check-up, under his health plan since she was a passenger in his truck. Since she's unemployed, she finally saw the argument's worth, so it was easy for me to give her the hypnotic when taking 'blood samples'. That Carla chick just let me do it, atier I told her it was to help her like you said. They should both be ready now."

"Good." Fogerty said. "Here's the scripts. Since they'll be out for about two hours, I'm going to go get some dinner - I'm starved."

"Okay, Doc." Emil agreed, watching him leave the clinic. The hairs on the back of his neck stirred as Fogerty leti, leaving him alone with the two women in the separate rooms, each laying on a comfortable couch and drugged to the gills. Damn, but was it a day for big- titted blondes or what! The thought that they wouldn't know if he copped a feel was tempting but dangerous. He couldn't risk it. He'd just go to the master panel, slip a custom-written DVD hypnotic recording into the correct slot for each room's sound-system, and then he'd have nothing to do for awhile - and easy job.

On his way to the master console, he paused by the lounge and grabbed himself a coffee and a donut. Cradling the

DVD's against his body by pressing the elbow of his right arm against them, he headed towards the console and burned his lip on the hot coffee when he took a sip. He twitched - and the two cases dropped to the ground, pooping open. "Shit!" Emil cursed. Tossing the coffee and donut into a waste can, he bent over to pick up the discs and their cases and paused.

The cases were labeled as to which client was which but the Doc had been in a hurry, and didn't label the disc themselves, like he should have.

Emil swore. Because the Doc was lax, they were going to have to check the disc when he got back, wasting time - and meaning Emil would be late for his date with Donita. He'd been wheedling her for a date for three months now

"Fuck it." Emil decided. "I got a fity/fity chance, and the Doc will never know. 'Sides, Fogerty said that they were similar cases. How can it hurt?"

Grabbing the disc, he went to the master console and slid a disc into each slot, figuring it would work out fine. Pushing the 'play' button on each, he sat down and pulled out one of the many porno mags the Clinic kept around for various therapeutic reasons.

* * * * *

In her deep trance, Sue heard the hypnotic instructions that had been designed for Carla.

Carla was so afraid of the ultra-sexy woman she'd 'become' that she wanted nothing to do with the clothes, the mannerism, the acting at being female, much less sex. Since there was no way Fogerty could know it was all true, he'd made the all the wrong decisions for all the right reasons, and the recording reflected that.

The hypnotic tape urged the listener - in this case, the wrong one, Sue - to act female at all times. To be disgusted with doing masculine things, to be pleased to be doing feminine ones. To wear sexy clothes, to go ahead and act sexy, to act feminine. It was designed to set the groundwork for future sessions about Carla's 'delusion', telling her that she was female, had always been female, would always be female, and should act female at all times.

It was also designed for somebody suffering from nymphomania and dealing with it by renouncing sex altogether by claiming she was really male, and therefore it was disgusting. The instructions told Sue to ignore her 'male' sex drive and develop a 'normal' female one, fighting both her mind and her body's 'natural urges' and 'establishing a healthy, active sex life'.

Meanwhile, one room away, Carla was listening to a hypnotic 'script' designed for what Fogerty perceived as being Sue's problem. It instructed Sue to give up her inhibitions. To go ahead and obey her desires, if they were strong enough. To stop being 'conditioned by her past' and become more aggressive. To go ahead and give in, to act the way that 'suppressed' part of her wanted to act, to ignore the 'old, ingrained' personality of before and let herself do what her 'other thoughts' wanted her to do

* * * * *

"C'mon, doc" Emil muttered, jiggling in the seat at the control console.

It was nearly time for the tape to end, and the doctor wasn't back yet. The fact that he might have to deal with the two women when they awoke wasn't what bothered Emil the most, though - what bothered him was all the coffee he'd drank. Now he really had to go to the bathroom but he wasn't supposed to leave the console, not with two patients not only under hypnotics, but about to come out of it.

"Oh, fuck it - I'll be back before they wake up. I ain't pissing my pants" Emil said. Rising, he hurried down to the bathroom at The End of the hall, ducking inside.

The door had barely shut when the doors to the two rooms opened, and the two women emerged, odd looks on their faces.

* * * * *

"Oh Hi" Sue said to the other woman, trying hard not to stare at the massive breasts staring out of the tight little top she wore.

"Hey, there" The other woman said, sounding a little strained, an odd look on her face, too. "Uh so, I guess we just leave then, huh?"

"Yeah, I guess - not that I've really got anywhere to go" Sue said, vaguely. She was sort of distracted, feeling decidedly uncomfortable in the jeans, though she didn't know why. They didn't feel any different then when she'd worn them earlier, physically - but, emotionally, they felt too tight, too confining, too too covering. For some reason, she found herself looking at the massive-busted blonde's skirt, thinking that a skirt would be much more comfortable

"I can give you a lift" Carla offered, also somewhat vaguely which wasn't surprising, since she was struggling to stop thinking about having wild, passionate sex and failing. It seemed ten times worse then it had, before, this incredible urge to fuck and suck men, the urge to wear sexy clothes and seduce any man she met

"Yeah. That'd be nice" Sue said, letting Carla lead her out to a battered old pick-up truck. She found herself paying attention to how she was walking, purposefully making her stride smooth, feminine, even sensual. It should have felt wrong to purposefully walk in such a feminine manner yet, somehow it felt so very good to let herself move the way a body that looked like this should move.

Of course, her pert sway didn't hold a candle to the 'come and get it, boys' walk Carla was doing atop those fantastic heels of hers. Sue found herself wondering where she'd gotten them

"I need to go home and check on my dog. That okay?" Carla asked, squirming in her seat as she tried to deal with her body's rampant desires. Her nipples were as hard as rocks, and her cunt was moist just from the rogue sexual thoughts running through her mind. The urge to fondle herself was almost overpowering.

"Yes, that would be fine" Sue agreed, and the truck pulled away.

* * * * *

Pulling up his zipper, Emil hurried up the hallway and was relived to see that the doors to both rooms were still shut, and the two women weren't wandering around the hallway, looking for somebody to tell them what they should do next.

Plopping himself down behind the console, Emil picked up the magazine

* * * * *

"What's wrong?" Sue asked as they circled the block again.

Carla giggled. "You won't believe this - but I don't remember which house is mine"

'Wow - what an air-head' Sue thought, looking at the stereotypical bimbo driving the truck.

"Oh - here it is" Carla said, pulling into the lot. "I'm gonna let my dog out the back door, so you won't get jumped on. Why don't you just go inside?" She teetered atop her heels to the front door and unlocked it, but didn't open it. "Just wait until you hear me say it's okay at the back, 'kay"

Sure" Sue agreed. A few minutes later, Carla shouted that it was all right, and Sue went in. A moment later, Carla joined her. "Hey, I'll let my dog run for a bit. You want something to drink?"

"Sure" Sue agreed, eyeing the incredibly endowed blonde's waist and hips. "Say - I hate to ask, but can I borrow some clothes?" "Sure!" Sue agreed. "I don't know what I've got, but go ahead."

Shake her head at the ditzy girl's mindless behavior, Sue concentrated on a nice feminine stride as she went into the bedroom at the back of the bungalow and began to go through the clothing, wondering why the sight of so many skirts and tight, feminine clothes excited her so

* * * *

Leaning against the fridge, Carla tried to regain control of her rampant thoughts.

This was all wrong. She knew she was a guy, and she didn't want to do anything she was thinking about but she couldn't push any of the thoughts out of her head. She wanted to get out of these clothes into something less sexy but she couldn't make herself do it. It was like she was no longer in control, really - it was as if these new thoughts and desires were too strong for her to fight.

"Is this okay?" She heard, and looked up to see.

Sue was standing in the doorway of the kitchen, dressed in the most 'conservative' skirt that had been in Carla-s room - a denim skirt that clung tightly to her hips and ass, ending just above the knees. It nicely showcased her legs, which looked even better in the black nylons she'd borrowed, as well as the black leather pumps with the one-inch platform and seven-inch heels. She still wore her low-cut black T-shirt, but had removed her jacket and she looked damned good. When she" been a man, Carla would have been drooling and now, she felt no desire for Sue at all, though her mind was still filled with the urge to find a man

"You look great, Sue!" Carla said, unable to keep herself from sounding as bubbly and brain-dead as part of her mind urged her to sound.

"Thanks, I" Sue's reply was cut short by the sound of a dog barking out back. Sharing a look, the two women went to the back door.

The big black dog outside was barking at the two young men who'd come into the yard to retrieve a football. Obviously brothers, one was about eighteen or nineteen, while the other was a couple of years older. Aside from their ages, they looked almost exactly alike - the same muscular build, the same tanned, toned bodies, the same shock of dark hair. They were even wearing nearly identical cut-off jean shorts.

And their eyes took on nearly the same gleam as they caught sight of the two women standing on the back step, the same easy, roguish grin coming to their lips as they gazed at the two blonde women.

"Hi - sorry about this" the older one said, holding up the football. "We live next door - I'm Brad, and this here's Tom."

* * * * *

Sue found her eyes slipping easily to Tom's crotch, taking in the way it was quickly straining against a growing erection and was surprised to feel a very pleasant, growing warmth in her crotch, sending a shiver of pleasure up her spine as he felt herself fall into as feminine pose as she could.

"Hi. I'm Sue" She said, finding her voice husky - and discovering she didn't mind it. She didn't know why but the fact that she found herself suddenly, strongly attracted to Tom didn't bother her. Not even a little.

- - -

Carla found her eyes helplessly sliding to Brad's crotch, finding a rapidly growing erection pressing against the fabric. She wasn't surprised to find her already moist crotch traitorously become hot and sopping wet, sending a shiver of disgust up her spine as she unwillingly found herself striking as sexy a pose as she could.

"Hey, there, handsome - I'm Carla" She said, her voice helplessly sexy and brainless, cursing her inability to stop it. The fact that she had an incredible urge to strip naked and fuck the young stud right then and there disgusted her. A lot.

Helplessly, she found herself adding something else:

* * * * *

"You guys wanna cum in?"

The brothers shared a grin.

"sure" Tom said, as he and his brother walked up to the two women. Neither one had any trouble figuring out who was interested in who

- the women's eyes didn't leave each of the boys crotches as they crossed the yard and climbed the steps.

* * * * *

"Hey, there" Sue said to Tom, reaching out eagerly to rest her hand on his tautly muscled arm, thrilling in the expected rush of pleasure the contact gave her. She was feeling excited. Better then she'd felt in as long as she could remember. Best off, all the expected guilt and horror she'd expected to surface didn't leaving her feeling warm and happy. "Why don't you come with me?"

Tom had no arguments, and Sue led him towards the living room, feeling a growing sense of eager anticipation.

- - -

"Mmmm I certainly hope you're the big brother" Carla found herself saying to Brad as she helplessly reached out and slid a dainty, long- nailed finger across his crotch, disgusted that she was fondling a man's cock. She felt like she was going to vomit. Worst of all, though, was the fact that none of her disgust or despair could show, making her look eager, brainless and horny. "What say we go to my bedroom?"

Brad wouldn't turn that offer down, no matter how much Carla silently wished he would, and she turned and swayed and jiggled sensuously towards the bedroom, feeling a mounting tide of horrified frustration.

- - -

Sue grinned at Tom as they settled on the couch, his eyes riveted on her body.

"I'll take that as a compliment" She said, warmly, reaching out to side a hand across the side of his face, gently. "Oh, it is" Tom agreed, meeting her eyes with his. He grinned. "Uh You're very beautiful."

"Thank you" Sue said, warmly, feeling a burst of pride and pleasure at his compliment. On instinct, she leaned forward and her lips met his. Sliding a hand around his shoulders, he felt his hands slide around her waist as they kissed, passionately but not fiercely, each other's tongue exploring the other's mouth warmly and gently.

- - -

Carla was giggling like an airhead as they dropped onto The End of her bed, Brad's eyes riveted on her grotesquely enormous tits.

"Do you like my huge boobies?" Carla giggled, helpless to stop herself, reaching up to squeeze her massive hooters through the crop- top.

"Oh, yeah" Brad said, practically drooling. He couldn't take his eyes of her tits. "Man, they're fantastic."

"Wanna play with 'em?" Carla asked, unable to control herself, as she yanked off her crop-top. Brad didn't need any convincing, grinning mindlessly himself as he reached out and began to fondle her tits, squeezing them hard and licking and sucking on her nipples too strongly, with her unable to say anything as she moaned in what would seem to him to be genuine pleasure as he all-but-mauled her tits and their huge, throbbing nipples with hands and mouth.

- - - -

After what seemed an eternity, Tom finally broke the kiss - and Sue sighed, awash in pleasure and desire. She made no move to stop him as he began to undress her.

'I should feel disgusted, or horrified' She thought to herself in a warm, happy daze. "But this just feels so right"

Her hands reached out, and she undid his fly and slipped his jeans and underwear down as he peeled off her skirt, leaving him naked and her dressed only in stockings and heels.

"God you're gorgeous" Tom breathed, almost reverently, at the sight of her.

She smiled. "You are so handsome, Tom" She looked at his toned, tanned body, and at the large, throbbing cock thrust from his crotch, nearly purple with the blood of his desire. Slowly, she reached out and slid one hand across his cock, and in a husky voice said his name.

No more words were needed. Gently, Tom eased her back on the couch, pausing to kiss her lightly on the lips and gently caress her breasts, promising more attention to them, later. Then his hands gently gripped her firm thighs, and he spread her legs to allow him to position himself over her.

Gently, he eased his throbbing cock into her wet new womanhood, and she moaned in pleasure. "Oh, yes" She sighed, giving voice to her inner thought. "This is so right"

- - - -

It felt like an eternity before Brad finally stopped mauling her tits and trying to 'tune in Tokyo' on her huge, unwillingly swollen nipples. 'Oh, god, this is disgusting' Carla thought in a sickening haze of frustration. 'I can't even scream. It's just all so wrong.'

Helplessly, she found her hands going to his shorts, practically tearing them off in a display of eager lust that she didn't feel. "Oh, baby - you're really hot to trot, aren't you?" Brad said, lustfully.

"For a hot stud like you? - Always." She looked at his toned, muscular body - and at the massive, throbbing cock thrust disgustingly close to her body. She was sickened as she reached out and slid her hand around his cock, moaning his name.

She couldn't say a word about how she really felt as Brad wrapped his hands into her massive mane of hair. Pausing long enough to kiss her on the lips, hard, he squeezed his body against hers to feel her huge, bare tits push against his chest, promising more mauling later. Then he pushed her downwards, until her face was level with his cock. Helplessly, she found herself opening her mouth.

Brad bucked his hips forward, slamming his cock deep into her mouth, her lips unwilling closing around the massive tool that filled her mouth.

'Oh, God - I want to die' She thought, unable to give voice to her horror. 'This is so sick'

- - - -

As Tom began making gentle, passionate love to her, she moaned in pleasure and began to buck her hips in rhythm, to maximize the pleasure. Satisfaction and happiness filled her, her mind whirling with the very rightness of what was happening. Though she'd never imagined it possible, she didn't feel more complete and content then she did right now, sharing pleasure with a handsome, caring man - and that was just the emotional side.

The physical side - was incredible. Every nerve ending in her body sang as she gasped in exquisite pleasure, eagerly accepting the passion Tom was giving her and feeding it back to him, connected soul-to-soul through their bodies, moving in rhythm, creating a symphony of pleasure mirror on her contralto cries and his deeper counter-points.

The pleasure continued to build and build, mirroring the emotional satisfaction that grew with their actions, and she felt herself swirling in a maelstrom of physical and emotional pleasure.

Then, like a dam bursting, the pleasure overwhelmed her, and she stiffened as she orgasmed, her body wracked by sheer pleasure as he pumped his warm seed into her willing womb as she fell madly, hopelessly in love with the young man whose body was intertwined with her own.

Covered in a sheen of sensual sweat, the two lovers collapsed on the couch, and Tom began to gently massage her breasts, causing ripples of pleasure to flow from his touch. His slowly softening cock was still inside her - and she was in no hurry to change that, loving the feeling of having this man touch her, inside and out - body and soul.

"That was incredible" Tom said, gently, and Sue knew he meant more than the physical sensations.

"Tom" She said, softly. "I know that we just met and then, we just you know. It should be all wrong, it's way too fast" Gently, Tom pressed his hand against her lips, smiling.

"I know." He said, softly. "I love you, too. I want to be with you, now and forever." He grinned, slyly. "And I bet my parents are going to love you just as much. I want you to meet them."

Smiling, Sue nodded. "I'd love that"

- - - -

Brad began to thrust his hips, slamming his cock deeper into her mouth, practically face-fucking her - and she was unable to do anything but moan in supposed pleasure and begin to jack off the shati of his massive organ as she licked and sucked it's pounding, thrusting tip. Disgust and revulsion filled her, her mind whirling in agony and horror at her inability to stop this nightmare. She'd never felt so utterly disgusted, humiliated and degraded then she did right now - and that was only the half of it.

It wasn't just sickening - the way he was face-fucking her mouth, it was painful. Every instinct in her mind screamed for her to do something, to stop this nightmare, but she was unable to do anything other than act as if she were loving this 'use' of her - actually enjoying it, wanting it, needing it. Her body and mind were completely disconnected, her horrified persona trapped in the body of a cum-hungry, cock-sucking bimbo slut.

He continued to pump, growing closer and closer to orgasm, his face contorted in animalistic pleasure the mirror the tortured expression she couldn't show. She was lost in a whirlwind of disgust and hate, both self- and directed at the man-boy who was wantonly using her, not really caring whether she seemed to enjoy it or not, though she was helplessly acting as if she did.

Then, like a fire-hose, he began to cum, moaning as he pumped what seemed like gallons of thick, sticky, disgusting cum into her mouth

- and she slurped it all down, felling her mind scream in horror as she 'eagerly' consumed as much as she could of the incredible spray of the salty, disgusting goo as if it were the finest delicacy.

Excess cum dripping from her full lips and onto the upper curve of her massive tits, Carla was finally able to pull her still-sucking mouth free of the huge cock she'd just sucked off, making a wet 'sluuurrrp-POP' sound.

"You are one amazing cock-sucker, babe." Brad said, grinning, and Carla knew he hadn't even bothered to remember the name of the 'babe' who'd just sucked him off.

"Hey, Stud" She said, cum-covered lips curving in an unwilling grin. "I just love fucking and sucking men"

"I can tell!" Brad told her, squeezing one of her huge tits. "It shows. You know what, I've got some friends I want you to meet. The can turn this 'hobby' of yours into a career, with all the fucking and sucking you can handle."

Helpless grinning, Carla giggled. "I'd like to see that"

* * * * *

ONE YEAR LATER

In a cave that was both everywhere and nowhere, three well, what looked like women sat, busy with their eternal task. Clotho, (who had, at one point, seemed to be a matronly old woman named Martha) seated to the side, suddenly looked up. "Well I think it's time to determine the final destiny of our three 'friends'." She announced.

Her sister Fates looked at each other across the Loom of Life (which, at one point, had looked an awful lot like a chessboard on a pot- belied stove)

"Really? Already?" Lachesis asked.

"If Clothos say so, it must be." Atropos pointed out. "If nothing else, I'm sure Aries and Cupid had a good time so far. It was nice of them to spend a life-time in mortal form for this."

"I think both Bill and Carl deserved a little 'special attention'" Lachesis agreed. "Let's see how things are going, and decide how to set the final weave of their Fate before we leave them to it."

"Let's check the girl, first." Clothos 'suggested', and - as always' her sisters agreed. Atier all - as powerful as they were, without Clothos spinning the threads of Mortal's lives, they would be next to useless

+ + +

"Jessica? Come here, girl"

Head coming off the floor, Jessica's sharp ears perked at the sound of her owner's voice. Pushing herself to her paws, she padded towards the living room.

It was funny, she mused, in a suddenly reflective mood - she'd had to become a bitch to stop being a bitch

Another one of the oddly wry smile broke her canine muzzle, one of the things that most people noticed as setting her apart from other dogs - although they had no idea how far apart, of course. Still, her obvious differences had given her a new lease - and a new outlook

- on life. Intelligent beyond the belief of all those who had examined her, she'd ended up as a seeing-eye dog for a guy named David Larkin.

David was the nicest guy Jessica had ever met. No matter what life threw at him, nothing broke his cheerful good humor as he struggled with his relatively new condition.

If it hadn't been for Jessica, he probably wouldn't be doing as well. Though Dave didn't mention it to anyone, they had a very special relationship - she was the only seeing-eye dog that could help her 'master' dress, for instance, though her doggy color-blindness meant he sometimes clashed. Still, she did more for him than anybody could expect of a dog because, she'd realized with a start one day, she loved him. She'd never really loved anyone before, and the fact that she was a dog now couldn't stop her from dedicating her life to her new love, even if it could never be anything 'real'. She couldn't even tell him, for God's sake trotting into the living room, Jessica made her doggy sigh as she climbed up on the couch and curled up next to him, nuzzling his cheek as he stroked her soti fur. She knew why he called her so otien - he was lonely.

He'd never been terribly handsome to begin with, and the blindness only made a social life that much harder for David.

Still, he never showed any despair or disappointment, except for spending time stroking her fur. He was a good man, and he didn't deserve a lonely life, even if it was one with a super-intelligent dog

Just then, Jessica felt the strangest sensation, and she 'yipped' in concern, causing David to start. "What is it, Girl?" He said, and she heard more than ownerly concern in his voice as her body twitched and then, suddenly, she was fully human again, her naked boy pressed against hi, his warm hand caressing her firm, full - and once more fully human - ass.

"J Jessica?" David stammered, yanking his hand away. "Wha what's going on? What happened"

Wide-eyed, Jessica stared at the sightless eyes of David, stunned - and for the first time in a year, spoke. "A second chance, David." She said, sotily, wondrously. "Oh, dear lord a miracle"

Placing one slender, wonderfully human hand on either side of his face, Jessica leaned forward, closing her eyes as she gently, but passionately, kissed David's warm, living lips like she'd dreamed she could. She kissed him for an eternity that didn't last nearly long enough, then let her eyes open as she pulled away to stare into the no-longer blind eyes of David, who blinked up at her in amazement.

"J Jessica?" He stammered, a smile spreading over his face. "I I can see. and I can see you, and you you're a woman It's a miracle!"

"Yes - it is" Jessica agreed, with contentment - and leaned forward to kiss him again. This time, his hands wrapped around her nude, lovely body - and he kissed back.

+ + +

"Nice touch." Clotho complimented Lachesis.

"I thought so." She replied with a grin. "Now, let's go from ex-bitch to ex-bastard"

+ + +

Carla gathered up her sacks of groceries, her sensual movements not revealing the pain from the hidden bruises from the moist recent 'love taps' some of the guys had given her. They were always careful not to bruise her anywhere that showed which wasn't easy considering how little she wore. The elegant white dress with diamond-and-pearl accents was very low-cut, revealing her massive, incredibly firm tits above the nipples, and the slid revealed almost all her leti leg when she walked, balance atop her 'low' six inch white leather heels. The bruises were mostly on her ass and stomach. A choker necklace rather neatly hit the fading bruise from the time Bubba had almost strangled her to death.

"Thank you so very much" She said in a warm, sensual voice as she smiled at the cashier. The cashier smiled in return, a year's acquaintance with Carla inuring her to the super-sexy body and warming her to the warm, charming 'persona' she put on.

The change in personality was sort of a by-product of meeting Brad's 'friends' - who were, in fact, a right-wing 'militia' in a compound up in the mountains. There was about thirty of them when she'd first got there, and now there was nearly twice that many - and she was both their sexual plaything and their maid and 'gopher'. She kept house and ran chores like shopping when she wasn't busy helplessly fucking and sucking them between their 'training rotations'. All the sex she was getting was enough to actually sate her 'drives', leaving her capable of being a real person instead of a sex-crazed bimbo but she still wasn't able to control her own actions completely, only have a little more control over herself when she was 'sated'.

Since she always did exactly what she was told, she was the perfect 'front girl' for their cover as a very expensive, exclusive 'retreat' for the rich and famous, explaining the high security of the compound to the locals. They could even patrol the grounds and practice in the relative open with their weapons, since the local cops thought they were the security force, not knowing that behind the elegant facade of the supposed retreat was a combination bunker and arsenal for the 'Second American Revolution' that was to come when they'd recruited enough members.

Turning to leave, Carla noticed a weary-looking woman with her young son, struggling to find her keys while the bag-boy waited patiently by with her pathetically small sack of groceries. They were obviously 'poor white folk', and both mother and son looked older than their ages.

"Please, Mom?" the boy asked, no pleasing or wheedling, but grave. "Just a small thing of ice-cream? It's so hot some days" The mother paused in her key-search to look at her son, sorrowfully.

"Bobby, you know I had to buy Annabelle her medicine. 'Til Daddy's leg heals, he cain't work none, so we's gotta be careful with the money, honey. Maybe next month."

She went back to rooting in her purse, and Carla looked at the pathetic duo, remembering when she used to be able to by an entire dairy factory on a whim.

Closing her eyes, she took a deep breath - then put down her groceries and opened her purse. Glancing at the still-searching woman, Carla wrote on the back of a receipt, signing the short note with 'Your Guardian Angel', then took something else out of her purse.

Holding one finger, with it's long, manicured nail, to her lips, she approached the patient bag-boy holding the woman's sack of groceries. Quickly, while the woman was still distracted, Carla slipped a roll of cash with the note tucked into it inside the grocery bag, winking very slowly at the bag-boy, who gaped at her then slowly grinned, very, very widely indeed.

Carla knew what was going to happen. That money wasn't hers, it belonged to the Militia, and she was supposed to use it to pay for a shipment arriving today and when she went back and lied, saying she'd lost it, she'd be beaten severely. As she watched the unsuspecting recipient of over a thousand dollars take her bag and head out to her beaten-up old car, though, she knew it was worth it "That was the nicest thing, Miz." The bag-boy said, quietly and something in Carla suddenly seemed to let go. She blinked - then turned to the bag-boy, urgently.

"Take me to the manager's office, quick!" She said, amazed to find herself able to do what she wanted to. "I need to call the FBI - and hide until they get here."

The bag-boy gaped at her. "What?"

"You know the place I 'work'? - It's really a front for a militant group of nuts!" She hissed. "Please, you have to help me - they've been raping and beating me this whole time, but if I tried to run away or tell anybody, they promised they'd kill me, which is why I haven't said anything! But I can't take it any longer!"

Several of the cashiers had overheard, and they were gaping at her as if she'd suddenly gone crazy. Desperate to escape, not knowing how long this window of control over her actions would last, she tore off the choker, revealing the bruises around her neck.

"See - one of them nearly strangled me to death to make me have sex with him!" She lied, knowing that her story would have to be 'rape'.

"Dear god" The cashier whispered. "C'mon, honey!" Grabbing Carla's arm, she lead her to the manager's office and atier explaining 'everything' to him as quickly as possible, was on the phone with the local FBI, making an agreement to enter the Witness Protection Program in exchange for her information

+ + + +

"Aries isn't going to like that" Atropos warned.

Clothos shrugged. "He's mortal until his body 'dies' - and he's young and healthy. Since he's incapable of killing himself or causing himself to be killed - and he's never lost a direct fight himself - Carla should be able to live a long and healthy life without Aries being able to interfere. We'll have to find her something suitable, I think."

"Well - she no longer minds sex, just the painful stuff, and being forced." Lachesis pointed out. "She's even happy with her body - just not her life."

"Hmm I suppose we can find a life for her as a stripper. That should do nicely." Clothos said. "So far, so good - let's just hope that 'Sue' wasn't fallen as much as the other two have risen in the past year. I'd love to see she's used our giti to her wisely."

Leaning forward, the three Fates stared intently at the string that formed Sue's life, and it seemed to swell, becoming less and less coherent as it expanded, becoming a dense mist, then a fog, which began to part

The first thing that was revealed was a tall, strikingly beautiful blonde woman seated next to an equally striking blonde man, both apparently in their mid forties, and looking both proud and happy with a hint of knowing smile.

"That's Aphrodite!" Lachesis exclaimed.

"And Hermes!" Atropos added. "What are they doing involved in Sue's life?" The scene continued to fill in - and the question answered itself.

"Dearly beloved" the Minister intoned, gravely and the incredulous look on all three Fate's faces caused the scene to shred and dissipate as their concentration was broken.

"Married?" Atropos exclaimed, shocked. "To a Mortal? With Aphrodite and Hermes giving it Olympic Blessing by being the in-laws? It's unbelievable!"

Clothos, however, had noticed something in the brief glimpse they'd had of the radiant bride before the scene had vanished, and her grin was more wicked then incredulous.

"Oh, marriage seems completely in order - considering the baby on the way."

The other two sisters went dead silent and stared at Clothos, who slowly nodded, still grinning.

"It's going to be good to weave another 'Hero' thread' Clothos remarked in an off-hand manner as she opened a dusty box and extracted a skein of golden wool. "It's been centuries since I've had the chance."

Shaking their heads, the other two sisters looked at each other.

"I bet Cupid pushes for the name 'Hercules' - he was always a sucker for continuity references." Atropos remarked.

Clothos laughed. "Oh, no. If he's really pushing for the correct reference, it wouldn't be Hercules. You ladies seem to be forgetting who the 'grandparents' are, and it's them who decided the child's, uh 'situation'." She grinned. "It might be a bit hard for the kid to explain to his teachers and friends about the name 'Hermaphrodite'"

The End

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: When meeting 'The Ghost,' which is more than a legend pipe-dream, one man (who is 1/4 fairy) escapes death but must face a different kind of life.

Switch Hitter

By Gunslinger

It was supposed to be an easy job. Quick and quiet going in, a long, quiet wait atop the medieval-castle-inspired library at the local University, followed by a few minutes of blood and thunder - then out over the rooftops to a cool quarter mill waiting in my bank account. Not bad for a night's work, I thought at the time.

Then again, at the time I had no idea that Tommy Two-Fingers was planning to double-cross me. If I had, I woulda turned the big, lyin' tub of lard into so much Italian sausage - but, despite all my little 'advantages', I couldn't tell that the greasy, sallow-skinned errand boy for the Marconi Family was lyin' his fat ass off.

Hey, nobody's perfect.

Not even The Ghost.

Oh, he's good, I'll give him that. The surprise wasn't that he was as good as all those half-whispered legends that floated around about him - it was the fact that he existed at all that threw me.

I mean, I'm an assassin-for-hire myself, and seeing him on the pseudo-battlement behind me threw me for a loop, 'cause I'd never really believed in the whole 'unknown masked hitman with nearly super-human abilities' myth. I thought 'The Ghost' was legend, a pipe-dream that was more 'Hollywood' than anything else.

Of course, this was all before he showed up and pumped nine rounds into me from a big-ass Colt .45, sending me flying back over the parapet of the University Library's 'watchtower', down three stories, and through the skylight that covered the main hall of the library's non-fiction wing, dropping the final two floors in a spray of broken glass.

It took a long, long time for me to fall those five stories, and I had plenty of time to finally react to the silent, unnoticed approach of the black-clad man - though, by then, it was too damned late to react in any meaningful way, leaving me all that time to damn myself - and wonder how such a big guy managed to move so silently. The tall, broad-shouldered figure in a mask hadn't been on that tower when I'd gotten there, and I hadn't heard him climb up - but he'd done it all the same, and I hadn't heard a damned thing until he cocked his Colt.

A Colt's a double-action automatic pistol. You don't have to cock it before firing it. The bastard did that so that I'd whirl and catch a glimpse of him before he opened fire...

All those legends about him claimed he spoke his victim's name in a cold, dead voice before killing them - but, even if he did that for 'soti' targets, I wouldn't have expected it in my case. It's not only my extra-legal existence that makes me hide my name - I don't feel like explaining why my parents chose to name me 'Maerwynn', without even the benefit of a last name. Then again, they'd given up whatever last names they'd had long before I'd been born...

So, this 'Ghost' was just about everything the legends had claimed, except for that wholly understandable name thing. I mean, he was big, yet silent, invisible for all intents and purposes, cold-blooded and cocky. I'd only had a second to react before he'd fired, and though I moved fast, he'd moved a damn sight faster. He was more than just 'nearly' super-human, and he knew it. He killed. Coldly, efficiently, and without failure.

Perfect.

Well - almost perfect.

Which was why I was I figured I'd have the element of surprise on my side, next time we met. Atier all, he'd expect me to be dead. At least, that's what I guessed, since the big, silent guy in black didn't bother to come down and make sure I was dead.

Silly him - he thought being blasted by nine forty-five caliber slugs at close range and falling seven stories to the floor of a library would be enough to kill me.

It wasn't to the two Kevlar vests I habitually (and secretly) wore to make myself look bigger that I owed my life, though both pairs of 'Little Italy T-shirts' functioned as they were supposed to, absorbing a hell of a wallop while stopping the bullets from actually making it through, even at damned-near point-blank range.

Atier all - those bullets were nothing but ordinary lead. Though the legends have been so distorted as to be nearly unrecognizable, at least one point in them is utterly true - my kind can't be killed by anything by Cold Steel.

Of course, when I say 'my kind', I mean The Fey. Fairies. Little people. I'm only one-fourth Fey myself, inherited from my half-fey mother, but the Song in my blood still grants me protection from anything but dreaded Cold Steel. Even that fall only folded, spindled and mutilated me - thankfully, the arch-conservative University Board had kept the original lead crosspieces for the old skylight, rather than replacing them with newer, stronger, (and, for me, much more lethal) steel. Though getting shot and falling hurt like a son-of-a- bitch, leaving me a limp, immovable wreck, there was absolutely no chance of me dying of 'natural causes'.

Given the super-human attributes The Ghost had shown, he should have known better - since he was at least part Fey himself.

I wasn't really surprised by that. Atier all, one out of roughly every thousand people in the world are Fey, and dangerous lines of work seem to 'call' to us. Mom and Dad couldn't explain why to me, when I was old enough not only to understand how I was different, but old enough to question it. All they'd been able to tell me was that Fey, whole-blooded or half-breed, were drawn towards danger and adventure - 'mundane' if they lacked any real Giti, magical if they were more fully Gitied.

There are very few full-blooded Fey leti, so the ancient magical wars are a thing of the past - the few who have any appreciable Fey in them work hard to keep it hidden, even the most Gitied. Perhaps especially the most Gitied, since they had enough power to tempt them to use it fairly otien, in one way or another.

Me, I only have one 'Giti', and it's as much as a curse as a blessing, so I don't use it very much...

...but there were certain times when it comes in handy, which was why I was so damned glad to see the very scared young volunteer- librarian leaning over me.

Not that there was anything special about her, in particular. She was a twenty-one or -two year old college student, her dark-brown hair cut in an unflattering pageboy around a too-round face, her body completely unremarkable under the stark-black outfit she wore. She could have been any girl in any university, wearing black nylons, knee-length skirt and turtle-neck sweater to hide her purely-imaginary 'weight problem' while she longed to be painfully thin and universally admired because of it.

However, this particular would-be anorexic leaned over my battered, bloody body with a gasp...

...and touched me, which was all I needed to make The Jump.

It was disorientating as hell, even worse than I remembered it being, and I almost threw up on my own body as I bent over, gasping in my/her voice, struggling to deal with the whirling, confusing welter of thoughts, emotions and memories.

Maybe the fact that I hadn't Jumped in ages was part of what made this one so bad. Who can blame me, though? For some reason, my Giti only worked with females - I could only 'possess' women, never men.

Even worse was the fact that things started to 'leak'. The instant my... 'soul', my sense of self entered a woman's body, some of her thoughts, habits and emotions began to 'leak through' the barrier between my mind and hers. Though the woman whose body I'd Jumped into would have actually be unable to tell that the 'strange behavior' she'd experience while possessed came from a second mind housed within her own body, some of her thoughts, reactions and emotions from whatever 'she'/I did while possessing her would seep through into my brain - and if I hung around too long in any given body, I'd be stuck there. Permanently.

So, as you can see, I didn't have all that much motivation to 'fool around' with my Giti. Still, there were times it came in damned useful...

Bracing my new, feminine hands on black, semi-opaque nylon-clad knees, I stared down at the short, chipped, pink-painted nails I was currently stuck with as I took several deep breaths, trying to calm my queasy stomach. Looking down at 'my' battered, mangled, and currently uninhabited body, I had to admit - it was a mess. There was no way it was going to be able to do anything constructive for quite some time, even though it would heal somewhat faster than a non-Fey body would, even on 'autopilot' while my consciousness was elsewhere.

The first thing to do was get some help for 'Myself'. Taking another deep breath helped, pushing the original owner's confused mind 'further back' from the barrier between her mind and my magically-unnoticeable one. Still, it was harder than I liked - certain things, like strong emotions, desires or habits were inherently more 'leakable', and my current hostess was terrified by what had just happened, not to mention by her own 'strange behavior'.

I couldn't spend that much time in this girl's body. Not if I ever wanted to get back into my own again.

I 'eased up' on my control over the girl - even though it allowed my mind to be inundated with a flood of the fear, shock and horrified disgust she was feeling at having a man crash through a skylight and land in a bloody mess a few feet away.

Without me 'inhibiting' her, she acted as she normally would, running to the nearest phone and dialing '9-1-1' - which is exactly what I wanted. I could have saved myself the flood of emotions if I'd retained as total a control over my hostess' body as I could have, but I can't 'read' my host-body's mind, so letting her run to where she knew there was a phone was faster than looking for one myself.

It was a weird sensation, being a 'passenger' in her body as she did this. I'd let her take almost total control - but I could still feel everything she was experiencing, as crisply and clearly as she was feeling it.

The rapid patter of our currently-shared heart behind our small, firm bosom. The way the air felt as it moved over our nylon-clad legs. The way our silky hair whirled and swirled around our face as we moved in adrenaline-fueled panic atop the inch-high heels of our black-leather 'penny-loafer'-style shoes. The pain as we jabbed too-hard at the keypad of the phone, the receiver clutched painfully tight in our other hand as we made the call...

I was shocked to find how much of a mental effort it took to get her to put down the phone without saying anything, though - a lot of her 'leaked' fear was having an effect on me, making it harder to control her actions - which meant I really, really had to get out of her body before long. This was the worst 'leakage' I'd ever experienced, my previous, tentative attempts while I was learning my power not having been on women who just witnessed a ghastly event.

There was just one little problem...

See, I'd always jumped back into my own body after using my power, it never having been so badly injured before. However, if I jumped back into my body, I'd be trapped in it's mangled confines until I was healed - or until I jumped into another woman, and I had no way of knowing when that would be. Oh, sure, sooner or later a nurse would touch me in a hospital - but I didn't know when that would happen, and 'later' would mean that the trail would be cold. Even 'sooner' might not be good enough, given The Ghost's abilities.

If I wanted to have any chance of finding my assailant and evening up the score a little bit, I'd have to stay out of my own body for a bit - which meant that I'd have to keep jumping from one female host to another until I found what I needed to know...

I pushed by current form towards the door, not letting up on my slowly slipping control as I forced her to do the opposite of what she wanted to do, which was talk on the phone...

...except that, by the time I was halfway to the door, she'd decided that going for the campus police was a good idea, causing her to swing her opinion in my favor - and almost making me lose control as her own interests came closer to my own, but with differing goals.

It was frightening how quickly things were leaking through. I needed to find another host, and damned soon...

I/she pushed the door to the library open and stepped out into the cool summer night, the air feeling decidedly strange to me as it swept across smooth, nylon-clad legs.

The campus was practically deserted, which wasn't the least bit strange, given the late hour - one of the specific reasons I'd chosen this time of day. Now, that foresight was coming back to haunt me as I looked desperately for another woman - and woman - to jump into.

I could see only one, a figure hurrying through the pools of light cast by the black Victorian-wrought-iron-style street-lights that dotted the campus.

At least, I assumed it must be a woman, given the fact I couldn't really see the person in the glimpses I caught as the trees and landscaped shrubbery between myself and the other figure obscured and revealed in random, breeze-affected patterns.

However, they did little to hide or alter the soti clacking of heels on pavement, and that made it highly likely it was a woman. I pushed the decidedly 'cute' female body I was wearing into a fast walk, wishing she'd been a little more athletically-minded - though not pudgy, she was somewhat out-of-shape, and the adrenaline my/'the man' falling into the library had generated was already fading.

Forcing my nylon-clad legs even faster, I hurried up behind the figure of the other woman, now clearly revealed as I pushed through the last of the shrubbery and closed on her.

She was of about average height, and quite well dressed for a young woman in her mid-twenties - a medium-gray jacket and skirt combo, with black nylons and pearl-gray pumps with a four-inch heel. I couldn't see the front of her as I closed, but I could see her long, curly dark hair rippling in the breeze created by her gracefully hurried stride, and felt a momentary pang - she must be late for something, and concentrating on that fact, because she gave no sign that she noticed me coming up on her. I might just give her a heart-attack when I touched her...

I had my own worried, however, and one of them was the way it was getting harder and harder to make the body I was wearing do what I wanted. I hoped this other woman had a good, strong ticker as I reached out, touched her shoulder, and jumped...

...to find the new body I was wearing still walking without so much as breaking stride...

...while my mind reeled under the assault of an imperative:

'Have to get home... ...have to get home... have to get home...'

It was in my new hostess' own mental voice - and I'd never been able to hear that before.

I tried to stop, to take stock of the strange situation... and couldn't.

I tried harder. Much harder. With the full force of riding panic and desperation.

My new body's steps wavered, her stride becoming awkward for a second... than smoothing back out as I had to ease up, my mental reserves drained.

I'd thrown everything I had against the strange imperative that seemed to be the only thing in the woman's mind at the moment - and failed. I'd managed to make it 'hesitate' - that was it.

Doing so had drained me so much that, at least for a few minutes, I was helplessly, unable to Jump even if my hostess had suddenly touched another woman. I could do nothing but 'ride along', looking out of her eyes and listening with her ears, feeling the air move across her/my legs as she continued on with that smoothly switi stride of hers, her entire being focused on that one thought: 'Have to get home...'

What the hell was going on here?

I'd jumped out of the body of a woman I was loosing control of - and into a female body that I apparently had absolutely no control over. This was... not good.

Helpless, I rode along with this new body, feeling what it felt, seeing what it saw as it hurried on towards a small brick 'cracker-box' house on the edge of the campus, one of the many built near the University just atier the Second World War.

'Home', apparently, as my new shared form hurried up the three steps to the simple patio, her key sliding easily and almost thoughtlessly to hand, merely a small 'detail' that needed to be taken care of to fulfill that imperative. In next to no time, she had the front door open and was stepping inside...

...when she stumbled, the imperative vanishing.

I leapt 'forward', grabbing for control of her mind...

...and felt a mirror-image force hit me and cancel me out, temporarily leaving the body 'uncontrolled'...

With shocked horror and stunned amazement, I realized that the reciprocal force I'd felt had been the mind of the body I was in, 'leaping forward' itself to take control of her body,. Since she was incapable of being aware of my mind in hers, that meant that she hadn't been trying to counter my control...

...but some other form, of control...

Just as I realized I'd somehow leapt into the body of somebody who was, somehow, being 'brain washed' or 'mind controlled', I felt her own mind scramble again for control - and I stayed out of the way this time, letting her go for it...

We were to late.

"Get in here, bitch." A voice growled...

'Gotta get in there.. ...gotta get in there...' Rippled through out combined - and completely helpless - mind, and both of us were 'pushed back' by the force of the command generated by the man's voice. Our shared body, again under a third entity's control, walked smoothly and quickly down the hall and into the living room...

Fainting is a physical reaction, a physiological response that involves heart, veins and capillaries - none of which I had control over at the moment.

So, I didn't faint. I should have, though - that's how shocking it was to walk into the room and find a huge man sitting in the arm chair in the corner.

A huge black man, with dark, soulless eyes and a shaved head, his square-cut goatee framing heavy lips whose smile lacked and trace of humor, but was full of cruelty.

A huge black man - dressed in black clothes, and wearing a holstered Colt .45 in a shoulder-holster. The Ghost.

Even as the body I was trapped in came to complete stop, the body's original mind tried to grab control... and I cursed, mentally, as we once again slammed into each other, our individual desperate needs canceling each other out as we tried to flee from the man who held us in his sway.

"Don't move 'till I order you to", he ordered - and effectively 'restrained' the body I was trapped in, even as I realized how he'd gotten the drop on me in the tower.

He'd simply walked through the door - and told me to stay still. Then, he'd gone to where I'd 'first seen him' - and ordered me to forget he was there, or that he'd come in...

...so it had come as a complete surprise to me when he'd cocked his gun, allowing me to 'notice' he was there, even though I'd actually seen him come in - and been helpless to do anything.

Now I was trapped in the body of a woman who he'd exercised the same control over. Perhaps this woman who's body I was sharing had seen him at the wrong place or time, and rather than simply tell her to forget it, he'd decided to have some 'fun' with her - or maybe she was his girlfriend, for all I know.

I did know that I didn't like this. Not one little bit... "Get over here and kneel between my legs."

...and liking it less and less every second, especially when I gracefully strode over and slid down onto stocking knees between his spread legs.

It was weird...

Well, it was sick, disgusting, perverted and horrifying - but it was a/so weird.

Neither my nor the woman's conscious mind was in control of her body. The Ghost obviously had 'The Voice' - a specific fey ability usually associated with the whole Blarney Stone routine, and the inspiration for Frank Herbert, who was one-twenty-fifth Fey.

With The Voice, The Ghost was talking directly to the subconscious...

...and he was completely unaware that there was a second mind in the woman's body. One that didn't have a subconscious.

At least, not one he could get to. My subconscious was with my body, which was hopefully on it's way to a hospital. Only my consciousness made the Jump.

So - if he made one little mistake, I'd be able to grab control of this body.

It had to be a specific mistake though, and I'd have to be on the ball. After all, when he gave direct, physical orders to this body - 'do this, do that...' - the body obeyed.. and I had to go along for the ride.

If and when he tried to make a direct mental change to the woman, however...

All this ran through my head in a second, even as I was kneeling between his spread legs - which was a good thing, because my thought processes became considerably less... 'clinical' a second later...

"Unzip my pants and carefully take out my cock." He commanded, grinning cruelly - and, phrased that way, neither I nor the woman could resist.

Our hands reached out, allowing me to get a good look at her carefully maintained nails, unpainted but covered with a clear enamel. I was helpless to even stop looking as our hands unzipped his fly, reached in - and carefully pulled out a huge, limp cock.

Oh, dear god. It was limp - yet it was still a good seven inches long.

"Look at my cock." He commanded, and our eyes locked helplessly on that massive cock, tracing every line of its huge, limp form. "Have you ever seen a bigger cock?" He asked, a grumble that probably served him as a chuckle chasing the question.

"No." The body I was wearing replied, tonelessly and honestly.

"Have you heard the phrase 'Bigger is better'?" He asked, again with that rumbling chuckle. "Yes." We replied, just as blankly.

"Have you heard 'Once you go black, you never go back'?" He asked, next, and we echoed the same reply. He laughed. Not a chuckle - a laugh, dark and dangerous.

"Well, Elizabeth, you're studying Logic. What does that mean you logically must believe about my cock?" He asked. She hesitated - and I frantically searched for a way to turn this non-directive to my advantage....

"You have the best cock I've ever seen." She said, tonelessly.

"That's right." He said, still grinning. "I have the best, most wonderful cock you've ever seen. It's so big and beautiful that you want to worship it. Do you understand, Elizabeth? You worship my cock."

"Yes..." She said, and now her voice wasn't toneless - because, with that command, the woman's mind, both conscious and unconscious, had become completely enthralled by the cock she was gazing at with reverent awe...

...but since I wasn't Elizabeth, I was left untouched.

Still not in control of our shared body - but lurking inside it, while he thought he was making it impossible for her to consider certain things.

"You must make sacrifices for the cock you worship." The Ghost told the woman whose body I was trapped inside of. "You must do something for the cock that you wouldn't do for other cocks. What should you do to prove your worthiness to the cock?"

She hesitated, then answered. In the way a cock-worshipping acolyte would answer, her voice breathless and eager: "Oh, please,

Rick - may I suck your holy, perfect new cock?"

She was literally begging to suck his massive cock - and I was trapped inside her body, feeling and feeling everything she did. She was begging - and Rick was agreeing...

Wait a second... she knew his name...

...perfect new cock. ?

I didn't have time to track the thought down. Because the body I was trapped in had gotten permission, and she eagerly parted her lips and wrapped her hands around the base of the massive organ, feeling it stir to life as she began, lightly, licking its massive tip...

Vomiting is also a physical reaction, so I didn't vomit any more than I'd fainted...

I was licking and fondling a huge, black cock. Maybe I was doing it unwillingly, and by a very strange sort of proxy, but I was experiencing all the sensations - and the humiliations...

...and I couldn't let myself get swept away by them.

If I felt trying to force back my revulsion, but that's exactly what I had to do, forcing my mind to think while I experienced the feeling of warm, saliva-slicked cock-flesh sliding into my pursed mouth, my tongue eagerly licking over the soft-over-hard flesh as my slender, feminine hands began to pump the massive, now fifteen-inch shati, as thick around me as my dainty wrists...

Okay, so I wasn't having much luck simply 'ignoring' the sensations of sucking a massive cock. I did, however, manage to force the 'reasoning' part of my brain to keep going back to the questions I had, even as the rest of my mind tried to cope with the oddest thing of all...

...the fact that sucking eagerly on a massive, thick cock didn't feel bad at all. In fact, there were many aspects of it that could be called 'enjoyable' - assuming that I'd experienced them without knowing what it was, of course. The emotional discomfort I was feeling was more than enough to overwhelm the mild physical pleasure that came from cheerfully sucking on warm, slightly salty cock, hands wrapped around a warm and slightly throbbing shati that fit them so well, so pleasantly, like holding a warm cup of coffee on a cool day...

Okay, just barely enough to overcome the pleasant sensations of the rhythmic bobbing of my new head as tongue and lips worked in slow, worshipping rhythm, hands sliding over smooth, firm flesh as they massaged his shati in wonderful counterpoint...

All right, all right - the emotional disgust was almost enough to overcome all those sensations - plus the fact that 'worshipping' was making the body I was in so horny that it was hard to think straight, the nipples on my firm, B-cup mounds as hard as rock, making me wonder how good it would feel to have somebody - not necessarily a man, of course - fondle them. In firm, string hands. Just big enough to enclose them in a warm, masculine embrace...

The Ghost was full Fey!

I should have come to the obvious conclusion quite a bit sooner, but I was. distracted.

The Ghost was full Fey. Not the most powerful Fey who ever lived - and not even close. However, he did have The Voice, which was rare in any but the full Fey...

...but he was also a shapeshifter.

That was a full-Fey trait, one that had never been recorded from a lesser Fey.

So, The Ghost - or, as the body I was wearing had referred to him, 'Rick' - was able to alter his body at will, in the manner of the old Fey. This was the start of so many legends, this half-remembered power of long ago, including such things as werewolves and unicorns. but the one thing I remembered clearly was the fact that each change was a full change, not just cosmetic by functional and complete.

The question was - how did I turn that knowledge into an effective offensive weapon...? I had to put the question aside for a moment...

...as I was too busy dealing with the orgasm that ripped through the body I was trapped in.

I'd heard of it happening before, though not quite like this: 'Religious Ecstasy' is rarely applied to blow-jobs, but since she was a cock- worshipper, I guess it made sense that making her 'God' cum would cause her to be so happy that she'd hit orgasm.

Oh, but I could never have prepared myself how it felt...

Our shared body slammed back and forth, the huge cock popping between damp lips to spray a thick load of cum all over our face and neck while we twitched and shook in pure, mind-boggling ecstasy that completely eliminated rational thought...

...and permanently coupled 'sucking cock' with 'intense pleasure' in Elizabeth's mind.

Which, of course, meant that Elizabeth wasn't particularly eager to stop. Even as the orgasm faded, allowing my whirling mind to start and follow up on the revelation I'd had, the damned woman went ahead, opened her mouth, and began sucking Rick off again.

He gasped. "Nuh..."

I 'sympathized', sourly, knowing how hyper-sensitive a cock got just after orgasm - and since he'd probably boosted the pleasure- sensing capabilities of the cock he now boasted, her 'instant return' was probably so good as to border on pain.

Hell - he hadn't even been able to say 'No' clearly, his body and nerves actually twitching from the near agonizing level of pleasure short-circuiting his nerves.

Regretfully, the body I was in began to open her mouth and realized the cock...

...and I slammed all the force I had into going back to sucking that cock.

"Staw..." Rick gasped - and his mangled 'stop' wasn't quite enough to take pure control of Elizabeth's body, since her subconscious didn't 'translate'. Her conscious mind did, of course... but part of her now loved sucking cock, and didn't really want to stop, so the nearly-unwilling help I was giving her let her continue on, the 'pleasure' of the blow-job flooding me even as I was sickened by how much I liked it.

"To... mush..." He gasped, his voice wavering and broken. "Cand.. hanel... id. Staw... Li'bith..."

Part of her mind tried - and was easily overridden by the combined force of her new compulsion and my assistance. We continued to suck his cock...

...until I expended everything I had to get her to stop for second. Stop sucking, that was - our hands continued fondling, one dedicated solely to keeping that intense pleasure coming from the head of his super-sensitive cock.

"Oh, Rick... I just can't help myself..." We moaned in barely-feigned passion. "You're just so big and strong..." Then we returned to our disturbingly pleasurable work, lips eagerly going back to encircle a hard, thick cock..

...even as Rick's body became thinner, less muscle-bound...

...and recognizable!

Rick hadn't simply 'toned down' his massive dimensions - he'd slid into a more familiar body. His own, original body, I would guess - this massive one was the one he'd 'gitied' himself with.

Richard Linken. The youngest teacher at the college, and listed in the Faculty book I'd studied preparatory to my mission...

...since he was my target.

Tommy Two-Fingers hadn't double-crossed me. there was simply no way he could have known that Richard Linken was Fey, and a shape-shifter to boot. He just knew that something was going on between the scrawny 'nigger' teacher and Luigi Ranamoni's niece...

...Lizzy.

Suddenly, and awful lot became clear...

I couldn't afford to chase those sudden revelations down, however - I was too busy working on the now somewhat reduced cock sported by the now skinny, fine-boned black man I was blowing.

Yes - 'I'. Not 'we'... Well, very little 'we', since Lizzy/Elizabeth now had firm cock-sucking tendencies embedded in her mind. The smaller cock, however, was not the one she was to 'worship', so I had to take more onto myself, forcing our shared body to continue - or, rather, to slide back into 'cock-fondle' mode to let me speak again.

Now, the 'real' Richard wasn't all that manly, though his cock was considerably larger than I would have thought. He was shorter than average, and fairly fine-boned, with his dark, straight hair worn long around his narrow, fine-featured face. In the photo I'd seen, it had been pulled back into a hippie-style ponytail, matching the zero-prescription little glasses he wore for his 'youngest teacher' look.

So, it took a lot of pure 'me' to make us say: "Oh, you're still so manly..." Now, here's the thing I was counting on: Stupidity.

Well, perhaps that's not quite right - but it was close. I was betting that Richard wouldn't think too hard about something. I was hoping - praying - that, for him, the assumed opposite of 'cock' was 'pussy'....

Unfortunately, as I bent my head back to sucking his cock, it didn't retreat out of my mouth as I'd hoped it would, to be replaced with a perfect new 'womanhood'. No, it stayed the same...

...but Richard didn't. Oh, no...

He was still technically male. I know that for a fact, since I wasn't able to 'jump' into his body.

That was probably because of the cock he still boasted - because, Gods knew, the rest of him became feminine enough...

His frame was already slender - but now it was supple-slender in a way that no man, no matter how hard he tried, could have quite matched. The body hair he boasted became the finer, silkier layer that women boasted, and his own scapular hair became finer and softer as well. His lips plumped out, even as his nose shrunk slightly and his cheek-bones became somewhat better defined.

His hips swelled wider - probably to better support his full, round new ass...

His black sweater looked interesting, straining over the firm set of breasts he'd given himself. They were big - very big. In fact, the front of his sweater seemed to ride a good eight inches or so out from his now slimmer ribcage, which would put him at a more-than- respectable GGG cup-size.

In other words, aside from the large-if-no-longer-huge cock I was 'eagerly' slurping away on, Richard had become completely female... If it weren't for the fact he'd come so recently, this blow-job would have been over. I still had a bit of time...

...though I was liking my plan less and less. I'd hoped he'd stay apparently male, and just lose the cock - but, having been male myself, I fully understand why somebody might leave that for last.

So, I... uh... 'sucked it up', and went on with the blow-job, trying desperately to make it even more 'pleasurable' for a man whose current amount of pleasure was boarding on pain.

I must have succeeded...

The cock I was slurping on suddenly slurped right out of my mouth, almost instantaneously going from a rigid cock to a tight, perfectly formed cunt...

...and I Jumped.

* * * * *

Elizabeth Ranamoni twitched - then jerked back, staring wide-eyed at Rick.

Lizzy didn't understand a lot of what was going on. Like why she'd been getting strange compulsions for the last week, compulsions that invariable ended up with her having sex with Rick. Nor did she understand how Rick had suddenly become a very sexy black woman. A black woman with very big tits, looking a bit ludicrous in over-sized men's clothing.

What she understood the least, however, was the way the new woman suddenly jumped up and began to twitch and shake, as if there was something very, very wrong with her...

...and then it got weirder.

"Get... Out...!" The new woman cried in a rich, seductive new voice - but it wasn't at Lizzy, since Lizzy felt no urge to leave as she gaped, wide-eyed, at the woman...

..who then said: "Screw you, asshole! I don't care if I go, too - I'm gonna find a nice Cold Steel blade and put you down." There was a pause - and then, in an incredulous voice: "You!"

Lizzy stared at the schizoid gender-transforming person, and thought maybe running would be a very good idea... but her body didn't want to listen to her, locked in shock and confusion as the woman reeled about, as if two minds were fighting for control of the same body.

Laboriously, twitching and shaking, she 'forced' herself over to a mirror...

"What are you doing...?" Hesitantly confident. "I'm not leaving, you know - even if I'm gonna die in the body of huge-breasted black woman."

She didn't answer herself, exactly. She just dragged herself to the mirror...

..and told her reflection: "Huge breasts, huh? Well.. You love having huge breasts!"

She twitched... then seemed to momentarily 'reintegrate' as she gazed, lovingly, at her stretched sweater...

...then her gaze, now furious, slammed back to the mirror.

"I'm in the same body, you stupid asshole..." She growled at herself. "I can use your 'voice', on our subconscious, too: You desperately, obsessively love wearing high heels!"

She blinked - then a look of desperation came of the woman's cocoa visage, and she whirled on Lizzy. Lizzy screamed, not knowing what was going on as the big-titted woman swooped down on her.

"I need your shoes!" The woman said - begged.

Lizzy - who was literally shaking at the welter of emotions in her body - kicked off the shoes, which the new woman snatched up with a 'happy' cry...

...and Lizzy found that kicking off the shoes had broken her paralysis, and she leapt to her feet and ran out of her own house in stocking feet.

As she slammed out the front door, running from the strangeness within, she could hear the new woman continuing to shout at herself, her voice slowly fading as the fleeing woman put more and more distance between them...

"Oh, yeah? Well - You love wearing sexy, slutty clothing!" "Sure - because you love acting all sexy and seductive!" "That's just because you... because we..."

"See? We wouldn't dare..."

"We love sucking and fucking men!"

"Mmmm, Men.... Why, you...! Well, we're obsessed with getting fucked by men who treat us like shit!" "Oh, yeah...?"

The End

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: Jane plays tricks with her roommate Dave when she uses her witch's magic powers to re-create their stale relationship.

Sympathy

By Gunslinger

There I was, sitting peacefully on the couch and watching a little TV, - minding my own business! - when Jane slouched into the room and slumped into the armchair with a heavy sigh.

Not that she didn't have every right to, theoretically speaking - atier all, our rather unusual living arrangements sort of necessitated the occasional contact. Neither one of us was exactly what you'd call 'rich', what with me working at a local burger joint, and Jane working as a part-time librarian. So, we'd ended up thrust together in this weird little apartment in the downtown core - sort of a Swedish design, if you want to think of it in such terms, at least according to Jane. Me, I wouldn't know Swedish design from Swahili. In any case, the place was kind of a double-winged apartment, with separate bedrooms, bathrooms and 'studies' at each end, and a common space in the middle where the kitchen, dining room, living room and front door was. You sort of had to get to know your 'neighbor', since you shared at least some of the apartment with them - which was how I ended up meeting Jane, who already had what she likes to call the 'West Wing' of the apartment. Jane's the perfect girl to work in a library - kinda short, thin and pale, with just-plain-brown hair, these little silver- rimmed glasses, no makeup, and a flaky little personality. Oh, I guess she's smart and all, but she sure isn't much to look at. Not that she's ugly - in fact, I guess she's kinda cute, in the way girls think puppies are cute. You know, in a non-sexy way. You'd think she'd be grateful to have a guy like me living with her - a big, broad-shouldered, incredibly handsome guy who was Captain of his high-school football team, four years running.

Instead, she seemed annoyed - but since she didn't have any choice, (Other than to move out), there was nothing she could do about it. Hell, it wasn't like I was overjoyed to share the split-apartment with Little Miss Hippie Girl. I mean, she might look like a sort of cross between Winona Ryder and Sarah McLachlan - but she dresses more like Dharma's mom does, if you know what I mean. She's just as flaky as her clothes, too - you have any idea how annoying it is to have somebody constantly bitch about the fact that I just toss my beer cans away? I swear, Jane actually fishes them out of the garbage and puts them in the - her - recycling bin.

So, anywho - there I am, minding my own business, when Jane walks in front of the TV on the way to the chair. Now, we've talked about this a bunch of times before, how she should walk around behind the couch when I'm watching TV - but, since she seems down, I figure I'm being a model of kindness. I don't say a damned thing.

Does she give me the same courtesy back? Hell, no! I'm trying to watch TV - and she decides to start talking to me.

"It's just not fair, Dave." She said, and I rolled my eyes. "I'm a nice person. Smart, caring - but you'd think I was the wicked witch of the east, from the way people treat me sometimes. For no reason! I mean, what on earth moves people to think that they can - and should - insult me, when I haven't done anything at all to them?"

I sighed. "Look, no offense, but I'm not surprised you're having trouble with guys"

"What?" She interrupted. "Who said anything about me having troubles with guys? I was talking about work today - there I am, just stacking some books, which is my job, and some snooty woman starts insulting me for something I didn't have anything to do with, anyway."

Like I cared. "Oh - well, that's too bad." I turned my attention back to the TV.

"Yes, it is 'too bad.'" She said, and I sighed heavily - I thought that had been The End of it. "What I want to know, is why the heck did you immediately assume I was having some sort of 'guy' trouble?"

"Look" I said, still trying to pay attention to the show, too. "Even if I'd never seen you, the fact that you haven't had a date in more than a month would tell me that you have guy problems. Since I have seen you, it's even more obvious."

"What's that supposed to mean!"

Her sharp tone told me to forget about the show - she just wasn't going to give me any peace - jeez, all the maintenance of having a girlfriend, without any of the benefits. Either I was gonna have to find enough money to move out - or convince her to start going down on me after we argued

"Look, no offense - but you gotta admit you're no bombshell." I said, sitting up. "Not that you're ugly, or anything, and you can't help what your parents gave you to work with - but you don't even try."

She seemed pissed even though it was the blindingly obvious truth. "What the hell do you mean, 'try'?"

"You know - try and make yourself look good for the guys." I said, looking up at the ceiling in silent suffering. "Geez, it's like you don't even know the first thing about being a girl."

"Maybe I was raised wrong." She said - the right answer, I guess, but the wrong tone of voice. I was beginning to get the feeling that maybe she had a really sheltered upbringing - like, say, if she'd had parents as flaky as her. I've heard about things like that, you know - these hippies home schooling their kids, so the poor kids don't realize how the 'real' world works. All they learn is the crap their parents teach them. Maybe that was what happened to Jane - maybe she didn't realize that there were things she could do.

"Look - you're not bad looking at all." I said, in a nice tone of voice. "You just have to work with what you've got. You know - some makeup, maybe dye your hair, wear clothes that aren't so shapeless. For heaven's sake - I've been here six months, and I've never seen you wear anything but sandals or sneakers, even in winter. Don't you even own a pair of shoes with some heels?" I paused, thinking. "Oh, yeah - contacts. You know the old saying: 'Guys don't make passes at chicks that wear glasses'."

"I see - is that all?" She asked, and I winced - apparently, she didn't realize I was just trying to be helpful. "No other helpful hints, nothing from your incredible storehouse of knowledge, so great secret hint that would 'help' me?"

I shrugged. "Well - it wouldn't hurt to buy one of those 'wonder-bra' things. You know to give you some more curves."

Her face was set, and I don't think she was really taking any of my advice seriously. I held up my hands defensively. "Hey, hey - I'm not trying to insult you, really - I'm just trying to help."

"You know what?" She asked. "That doesn't make it better - it actually makes it worse. You actually think that every guy in the world is like you, and that every woman in the world secretly wants to be your fantasy woman."

"Huh?"

She threw up her hands. "Has it never occurred to you that I might like who I am, and the way I look? That I might wear the clothes that I enjoy wearing? that I might be looking for a rare sort of guy who is intelligent, caring, and not hung up on on on my bra size!"

I gave up - obviously she'd bought into that whole Sixties crap her parents must have taught her. "Okay, fine, it's a free country." I said, laying back down on the couch. "You go ahead and do whatever you think will get you a guy. It's none of my business if you end up either single or married to some nerdy little powder-puff when you're forty. I just want to watch some TV."

Finally, she stormed off, the front door slamming behind her, and I tried to get back into my show - but, wouldn't you know it, it had jumped to a commercial. So, I went to get a beer instead.

Geez - don't women know that if they want to actually talk to a guy, they should at least wait until the commercial? Then they actually have a fair chance, while we decide what's more annoying - the commercial, or whatever crap they want to 'discuss'.

With Jane out of the apartment on her snit, I actually had some peace and quiet, and not only got to watch The End of that show in peace, but two more before I heard the front door open. I sort of cursed, since I'd just flipped the TV to MTV - Jane knew full well that meant there was nothing worth watching on, and so she could use it as an excuse to bitch at me some more.

However, when she did enter the room, I was surprised by her tone of voice when she spoke - it was practically apologetic.

"Dave - I'm sorry." She said, lowering her head. "Here you were trying to help me, and all I could do was yell at you. Atier all, you were just trying to be sympathetic - right?"

"Uh.. yeah. That's right." I said, a bit taken aback. Then again, Jane was carrying some shopping bags, and everybody knew that shopping was what women enjoyed - it must have been her cool- down routine.

"Since you're so sympathetic to us women" Jane said, hettiing the bags. "I thought I'd put your special 'knowledge' about women to good use. Can you come to my room?"

This was more like it. I let my grin resurface as I rose from the couch, frankly interested in seeing how nice Jane might look all dolled up. "Sure thing, Jane."

I followed her back down the hallway that lead to 'the West Wing'. She led me right through her sitting room, to her bedroom. I'd never been in her half of the apartment before, not even to sitting room - much less to the bedroom. Sure, the basic design was the same as mine, with the three rooms forming a sort of triangle, with the extra-large bathroom having doors to both the bedroom and the sitting room - but it was the stuff in the rooms that interested me.

So, I was kinda all eyes as we passed quickly through the sitting room - and I found it to be sorta different. I mean, part of it was what you'd expect from Jane. Lots of plants, neat/weird little knickknacks, lots of books. Some things I didn't expect, but once I saw them, they kinda fit - lots of candles, for example, then the strange geometric artwork she had. Some things were just weird, though - like the big bronze statue in the corner. I didn't get a good look at the thing, but even the glimpse told me that, while kinda human-like with two arms and legs and a head, it wasn't a human and it had both tits and a cock! Big ones, all three.

Like I said - weird. But I didn't get a chance to look at some of the other weird stuff out there, because she just breezed through to her bedroom, and I followed.

Her bedroom was more of the same - but more so. I mean, her sitting room, which was pretty damned big for a 'cheap' apartment, was pretty cluttered. But her bedroom!

Okay - the reason why the apartment was so damned cheap was because of that whole 'sharing rooms' thing. The apartment itself was nice, otherwise - and I could see why Jane had been so annoyed when I'd moved in. I mean, she'd had the whole place to herself, then, and she must have used it - it's the only way I can figure that her bedroom, being as big as it was, being so damned cluttered. First of all, there were candles everywhere - not the off-white ones in the living room, but black ones and red ones and purple ones. Then there was all sorts of other crap - including what I guessed were spices or herbs or something, from the smell. I shit you not - she had what I think are pantyhose, filled with various leaves and powder and shit, hanging all over her room.

And the mirrors! There had to be a dozen of them

"Geez rummage sale explosion?" I asked, looking around.

"Don't like my room?" She asked - but her tone wasn't angry. It was well, I don't know what her tone was. Kinda.. amused, but not at what I'd said. Or, at least, not by what I'd meant. It's the kind of voice somebody uses when you've said something funny, or incredibly stupid, without realizing it.

"It's okay, I guess." I said, with a shrug. "Just kinda cluttered."

"Well.. it's all stuff I need." She said, vaguely, then changed the subject. "So, why don't you go ahead and sit down on the bed?"

I shrugged again and dropped onto the big bed that there was barely enough room among the clutter for, eager for this 'new look' to be revealed. "Okay - so, why do you want me to do?"

Jane laughed oddly. "Oh, you don't have to do anything, Dave - I'll do all the work'

Then she threw something on me. Some herbs and shit, I guess, because it had that kinda dry, musty smell like old spices and dry leaves. Like in the late fall, if it's been a dry fall - if you know what I mean.

Anyway, I was surprised at the motion, and so did a quick inhale, kinda out of instinct - and then went into a coughing spasm as I breathed in a whole bunch of the powder. The stuff burned it's way down my air pipe, but that heat faded quickly, and so I wasn't hurt - just confused and angry.

"What the hell was that?" I asked Jane, starting to get up.

She didn't answer me, exactly - she was lighting a couple of black candles on the dresser. She turned around and said. "Sit down and hold still."

She said it real firmly, and in a voice that was kinda angry. Determined angry rather than pissed-off 'let's fight' angry.

So I sat down - and it shocked the hell out of me, because I hadn't meant to. In fact once I was sitting, I couldn't make myself move at all. It was like my body had become made out of lead - I tried to get up, but it was as if my body weighed a couple of tons. I couldn't even liti my arm.

"I bet you didn't know your roommate was a witch." Jane said, looking at me like I was something you'd scrape off the bottom of your shoe. "I bet you also didn't know that I choose this form. I could have looked like anybody I wanted, but I decided that this body was the sort that would attract the kind of men I was interested in - you know, basically the exact opposite of somebody like you. Jocks and other morons tend to ignore me completely, which is just the way I like it. You, however you're one of the worst examples of chauvinism I've ever seen."

Had she made that claim (the 'witch' one, I mean) at any other time, I would have thought her absolutely nuts. The fact that she apparently had complete control over my body at the moment, however, was a pretty persuasive argument

Though I couldn't move, I found that I was still capable of saying: "What.. what are you going to do to me"

Okay, I'll admit it - I was scared. Scared shitless, as a matter of fact. I'd never been a real tough-guy, the kind who likes to pick fights just to show off, but I always knew, in the back of my mind, that I could handle myself. Atier all, I was big and strong and fast. Now, however, my own body was betraying me, and I was utterly helplessly before this skinny little girl.

"Well - since you ask" She grinned. "I figure that if you're so damned sympathetic to women, you won't mind being one for a day or too."

The words registered and if I could have moved, I would have slumped in relief.

"Geez" I said. "You had me worried for a minute there. I thought you were gonna do something nasty to me."

She seemed utterly shocked. For a couple of seconds, her lips moved, but no words came out. When she finally did speak, she sounded stunned.

"You mean you're not scared?" She asked. "Horrified? Disgusted that you're going to be turned into a woman?"

"Nah" I said, trying - and failing - to shrug. "I mean, you just told me it's not gonna be permanent, so it's not like you're gonna steal my life away or anything. And, women don't seem to live their life in agony, so I guess being a woman isn't physically painful - so it's not like you're gonna be torturing me or anything. Just as long as I'm back to being myself in time for work Monday, I don't see what the big deal is."

She seemed confused, kinda slumping back against the dresser as she stared at me. "But the way you talk about women. About them, you know, looking good for guys You're a chauvinist! I mean - you have to be! To think women are.. are just.. 'sex toys'."

I would have laughed, but the best I could do was chuckle - a full laugh would have required too much 'moving', so I couldn't do it.

"Of course women are great sex 'toys'." I said. "Having sex with a woman feels great. I guess, for women, having sex with a guy feels great too - that's the way it works. I mean how else? I guess guys could be gay, or a girl could be a lesbian - but where's the fun in that?"

She stared at me for several seconds, like she couldn't figure out what the hell was going on. I tried to explain it more clearly, since she seemed so confused.

"I've found lots of women I enjoy having sex with." I explained. "I haven't found any, yet, that I really enjoy just you know, talking with, whatever. Women don't seem interested in the same things I am - except that some women are interested in sex, and those are the kinds I prefer."

"But" She stammered, trying to put me back on the defensive. "You make that sound so reasonable. What you need to do is.. compromise. Try and make common ground with a woman"

"Why?" I asked, and now I was confused. "I mean - if I have to pretend I like things I don't, and she has to do the same, is that really what I should be looking for? Wouldn't it be better to find a girl who likes the things I do? For real? Then we could both enjoy doing them?"

Jane shook her head, sharply. "No - no, I'm not listening to you. I know you, I've lived with you, and I've had enough. If you want to pretend that being a woman doesn't bother you, that's fine - but that nitidy little trick isn't going to get you out of it. Now - get undressed and then sit back down."

Now, I'm damned good looking, and pretty well endowed, to boot, so I'm not ashamed to get undressed in front of a woman. Under other circumstances, I wouldn't have minded a bit - but this wasn't 'other circumstances', and I was kinda annoyed at my body getting undressed by itself and then sitting back down.

Oh, not because of having to obey Jane's commands. Like I said, I woulda willingly done it anyway, so what's it matter if I didn't have a choice about it? What pissed me off is that I did it so.. so efficiently. When I undress in front of a woman, I like to put a little bit of show into it

She lited up her hands, and began to chant in some strange, annoying rhythm and I felt my body beginning to change.

Look, it's damned hard to describe exactly how it felt. Unless you've been through it yourself - and I bet you haven't - then there's almost no point of reference I can use to describe what it felt like to have my body reshape itself from the inside out. All I can say is that it wasn't painful. Uncomfortable, yes, but never actually painful, which seemed odd considering that my entire body was being altered, every square inch of it being reshaped. Be that as it may, the overriding feeling was sort of like when you have gas - that pressure in your gut, only this was over most of my body. The exception, ironically, was my stomach and waist, which felt like somebody was hugging me tightly.

In any case, the sensations lasted for a few minutes, and then it was over.

"Go ahead - take a look at your new body in the mirror." Jane said, with a sneer, gesturing at the mirror behind her. I could sort-of see myself in it all ready, but she'd ordered my to get a good look, so I stood up and did just that.

I looked in the mirror, letting my eyes trace over my new body, and I had to admit I was a hottie!

The funny thing was - I looked a lot like Jane. Only only more the way Jane would look, if I'd had anything to say about it.

I had the same slender build and short height - but more curves. My ass was fuller and firmer then hers was, and my hips wider. My legs were longer and shapelier then Jane's were, I assumed - I had never actually seen how Jane's legs looked.

I was definitely bustier then Jane - I had to be a firm D-cup, or maybe even a double-D. Not huge, but big - and perky! They weren't so much spheres as domes, sticking out of my slim new chest like tea- cups tuned upside down, and tipped with aureole instead of a base. I also had nipples - large, dark, thick nipples that were frankly feminine.

My face was more of the same - like Jane's, but not the same. My nose was smaller and finer, my lips fuller, my jaw and cheeks better defined. My eyes were the only thing that seemed the exactly the same as Jane's, but they weren't obscured by glasses, letting you see how dark and long-lashed they were.

"Whoa.." I said, hearing my voice emerge in a higher-pitched, feminine tone that sounded almost exactly like Jane's. "I am looking fi-ine!"

Jane seem taken aback anew. "Uh Well, you can play that game all you want, but I'm not changing you back!" She said, but her voice wasn't as firm as her words wanted it to be. "In fact, since you know what a girl like me should wear, you might as well wear it, since now you're a girl a lot like me!"

So saying, she began to pull a bunch of clothes out of the bags she'd brought with her.

"So, what do you think of a nice pair of panties?" She said, holding up a frilly pair of pink panties with a wicked grin.

Since I'd been told to move, it appeared that her previous order to 'sit still' was gone - I could move freely now. I shrugged.

"Have you got something less 'little girl'?" I said, looking at the panties in distaste. "You know - maybe a G-string or something."

Her jaw dropped. "I don't believe it - you really aren't bothered by being a girl!"

"Nope." I said, reaching up to cup my large, firm new tits, and finding it felt as good as I thought it would. "Like I said - it's not like this hurts or anything - and, like I said before, there's no reason why a body like this shouldn't be shown off. It doesn't matter that I'm in it now - this body deserves some tight, sexy clothes."

Jane seemed to be having real trouble understanding my attitude, which confused the hell out of me, since she was a woman herself. Sure, I'd never had asked for this, would have politely declined if offered - but, since it had happened, it was not like I was going to freak out or anything. This body wasn't a torture, or anything - it was just different, that's all.

Finally, Jane seemed to get it through her head that I really did want to see this hot body in equally hot clothes. It turned out that she'd bought some stuff that was a good start, though it's wasn't as sexy as I'd like.

The panties I ended up with were a pair of her plain white cotton ones. Looking in the mirror, I grimaced - but since they'd be under the rest of my clothes, I figured it wasn't that big of a deal. Still - it seemed a shame for such a sexy body to be wearing such boring panties

The skirt was a bit better - but not much. It was brown suede, and nice and tight, really showing off my great new ass - but it came almost to my knees! Talk about wasting a great pair of legs!

Especially since the boots she'd bought to go with the outfit were knee-high, and brown suede too, with neat buckles up one side. They looked like something from an old Robin Hood movie, the one where they made 'neat' costumes rather than the realistic but ugly ones from movies like that Costner one. They even had four inch heels.

Six inch heels on shoes would have been better for this body - but I guess it wasn't that bad for a first try, since I didn't have any experience in heels and had a hard enough time balancing in the four inch heels.

The shirt she'd got me was an off-white blouse that would have fit tightly - if I'd worn it. I flatly refused, though - it just covered up too much of this great body. Instead, I just put on the (again) beige suede vest she'd bought to go with the outfit. It wasn't bad, since it clung to the slender waist, and allowed a great view of the perfect cleavage from my gorgeous new tits.

"See?" I said, turning slowly in a circle in front of Jane, who was still having troubles coping. "I look great like this! Although, I'd look better in a shorter shirt - and in brighter colors. What's with all the beige, Jane?"

"I, uh don't have much experience in shopping for" Jane stammered.

"See - that's why I was trying to help you!" I laughed in frustration, shaking my head. "You got mad at me for pointing out exactly what you just admitted - you don't know what really sexy clothes you should buy!" I shrugged - and liked the way it made my tits feel as my nipples dragged across the inside of the vest, so I did it again.

"So, what's the plan now?" I asked, dropping onto the bed beside where she sat and laying back, letting my hands run across my new body. "Make-up? Jewelry?"

"I, uh didn't buy any jewelry" Jane stammered. "I, uh have some make-up, though My stuff, for formal things"

It turned out that her taste in make-up was as dull as her taste in clothes - all earth-tone shades. I had to make do with some berry-named lipstick that was kind of a pinkish beige (and nail-polish of the same shade), and some mascara and blush. It was all she had.

Then again, I didn't have the first clue how to put on make-up, and this was the only make-up she knew how to make look good, so I guess it was as good as I could have expected. It was better than nothing, making my new, full lips look even better.

"There, see?" I blew her a kiss. "Just a little make-up, even boring make-up, makes me look better." Jane shook her head as I admired myself in the mirror.

"I can't believe you, you're actually enjoying this!"

"Of course I am!" I said, rolling my eyes - Jane was just so dense. I tried one last time to explain it to her so she'd get it, picking my words with care

"Look, I know you think I'm sort of scuz-bucket for liking women who dress sexy and look sexy." I said. "That's the problem, though - you think that I'm somehow, uh what's the word? You know, making something less out of women?"

"Demeaning?" She supplied, and I nodded.

"Yeah, that's the one - You think the way I think is demeaning to women." I spread my new hands, my long, newly-painted nails glinting in the candlelight. "That's just it, though - how can what I like about a woman be demeaning to the woman? I'm not forcing any woman to look or dress a certain way - but, if they do, then I'll be more attracted to them than I would be to one who didn't."

"See!" She said, thrusting a finger at me. "That's just it - women then dress up and demean themselves so they'll attract you! You're forcing them to do it!"

"Nope." I said, shaking my head. "You don't feel forced to do it, do you? Face it, the only women who would do that, are women who want to attract me. That's their own choice - and I'm glad it is."

She seemed upset that she couldn't win that point. I shrugged again, loving the feel of it. "Look, Jane

- I like women who look and act the way I like. It's up to them if they do or don't. Even the ones who choose to be sexy are usually not thinking exactly the same thing as me when it comes to what is sexy. Now, however, I have a gorgeous woman who will wear whatever I want her to, and do whatever I want," - I waved a hand at myself - "me!"

I think Jane finally began to get it. In any case, she began to laugh, in a low, chuckling sort of way.

"God - I'm so sorry" She said. "You're not chauvinistic - you're simple! As in, 'not complex'. You've always been looking for a girl that was perfect. Who likes everything you do, so neither of you have to ever 'compromise' and while you're waiting, you're just looking for meaningless sex!"

"Yup!" I agreed, easily enough - atier all, it was true. I enjoy sex, so why should I punish myself while waiting for a sports-loving, TV watching, low-maintenance girl? "Face it - if I was a real shit, I wouldn't be obvious about it. I'd seduce girls by pretending to be interested in something more, then dump them."

Jane shook her head. "Instead - you look for girls who are just looking for meaningless sex, to."

"Right!" I said, primping my long, dark hair in the mirror and winking at my sexy reflection. "Now, let's get you dressed"

"What?" She said, eyes widening.

"Well, now that we've gotten it all straightened out, I'm going to give you that lesson. We're going to get you all dolled up in the nicest - sexiest - clothes you own, then I'm taking you out to the bar, to show you how to flirt right.'

"No, I" She started to say - an I held up a hand to stop her.

"Don't even think of arguing." I told her. "Either you get ready and come with me - or use that power and make me stop asking, 'cuz trying to talk me out of it just won't work."

She looked startled, then she blushed slightly.

"Don't give me ultimatums like that.." She said, in a way that wasn't really threatening. "I don't want to go out anywhere and I also don't want to make you 'shut up' by magical means. Please, don't force me to choose."

I started to screw up my face in annoyance - then stopped, remembering the beautiful new face I had. That expression might be fine on my old male one, but there was no reason to stick such a silly- looking expression on such a pretty face. "Look, you turned me into a woman. I figured I might as well not waste it - I can show you the way to get guys attention. Even the type of guys you're looking for. I mean, once you decide that he's the right type of guy, it wouldn't hurt to give him some, uh 'encouragement', would it?"

She looked at me thoughtfully then grinned. "Well, I'll tell you what. If you really want to show me how it's done, I'll let you 'demonstrate'"

She began to laugh as she gathered up some stuff on the floor, her body blocking my view so I couldn't see what she was grabbing. Then she slipped through the door into the bathroom. I heard some noises from inside the bathroom, including the sound of her chanting, and then there was just silence for a few minutes. I was just beginning to worry that something had happened, when the door opened and I stepped out.

Well Jane, wearing a body identical to my old one. She was even dressed in the clothes she'd had me take off. I mean, my own mom woulda thought she was me, so perfect was the change.

"Well, Jane" She uh, he said in my voice uh, my old voice. "aren't I just the handsomest stud ever?"

From the tone in her voice, I could tell that, understanding me point of view or not, she still wasn't all that thrilled about who I was. I guess people like me didn't fit neatly into the nice little view of the world she'd always had, and having something like that challenged tends to get people a little pissed, I've noticed

Anyway, I understood where she was coming from, but I couldn't lie to her or nothin' - I gave her uh, him and honest answer:

"Yeah. You are" I said, smiling at my old body. "Damn - seeing it from the outside, the body's even better looking then I thought. But, listen - don't stand like that. Makes me.. uh, you.. look like a sissy. When guys put their hands on their hips, the fingers face forward, not back. And don't put one foot forward - stand with your feet spread, side by side, and lean forward just a bit"

She.. uh, he.. looked startled as hell, and (Damn - English isn't really good for talking about things that people figure are impossible. Tryin' to keep things straight when people switch bodies gets real confusing. Since I looked like a kinda sexed-up version of Jane, I'm gonna call me Jane, and since the person who started out as Jane looked just like the Dave I used to be, I'm gonna call her - him - Dave. Anyway...

and glanced down at himself for a second.

"You mean - you really think you.. I mean, I - am the hottest stud in the world? Think about what you're saying. You're a woman, Jane. Do you really want to admit that I'm sexy to you?"

I shrugged. "Why not? It's true, atier all. I may be a hot little number in this body, but you're a real stud-muffin in that one. In fact" I paused, and I'm sure an odd expression went over my new face - cause it was definitely an odd sensation I was feeling. I laughed a little. "In fact, my nipples are getting all tingly and hard.. and it feels sorta like I pissed my pants, but I didn't.. so I guess that means I'm gettin' hot for you. Damn.. it feels weird - but nice"

That seemed to startle him even more. "You mean - you're actually getting turned on by a guy - and it doesn't bother you? I mean, isn't that.. well, doesn't that make you gay?"

I had to laugh. "Getting turned on by a woman, right now, would make me gay, Dave - except for the fact that my own body turns me on. Uh - the body I'm in, I meant, though I am getting turned on by the one you're in, too. Which, since I'm a woman and you're a guy, is all right"

"Uh" he said, obviously not getting it. He really had some strange thoughts going on in his head, or something. I mean, sure - as a guy, I woulda been disgusted if I'd found another guy attractive.

That's sick. But I wasn't a guy, not right now - so it didn't bother me that Dave looked absolutely hot to me. Dave, however, was having problems, so I decided to show him how it worked

I smiled. Not a normal smile, but that one that only women can do right, where you look all naughty and stuff. I put one hand near my mouth and began to nibble on the edge of my nail, while I let my other hand slide across the vest covering my new tits, almost like I didn't know the hand was doing it which wasn't possible, because it felt really nice.

"What's wrong, handsome?" I asked, making my voice slow and heavy and sexy, turning my head slightly so that I was looking at Dave out of the corner of my eyes. "You don't find me the least bit.. attractive?"

Dave began to blush, brightly, and I slowly walked kinda on an angle, off towards his right, walking real slow and making my hips and ass move a lot, the way I liked to see a woman move when I was a guy, I very slowly 'smoothed' my skirt down, pulling it even tighter over my ass.

"You don't find me even the least bit sexy?" I asked, in the same slow, heavy voice, turning my head to look over one shoulder at the blushing guy. "Well, if you don't find my sexy then why is your crotch bulging?"

Dave's hands went to cover the very noticeable bulge from the hard-on I'd given him and showed he didn't know much about his new body, because he didn't just put his hands over the spot, but almost tried to push it back in. When a cock gets all hard and excited, like I'd just gotten his, 'touch' was something else altogether, and Dave gasped at the sensation he was feeling. I knew what it was like, having felt it lots of times before - it felt good and bad, at the same time.

So, he was getting to feel it for the first time - while I was busy feeling something, too. Damn - why don't women ever mention what getting 'hot' for them feels like? My nipples were almost painfully hard, in a really good way, and every breath I took made me very, very aware of the fact that I had tits. Tits that would feel really good to be touched and fondled. In fact, I was aware of my body more then I had been before getting aroused, and now I knew why women liked fore-play so much it was like my whole body was part of being turned-on.

Okay, I know this is gonna sound weird, but it's the only way I can explain it, so try and imagine it anyway

I felt like a big dick. No, I mean that my whole body was sexually sensitive, the way my cock had been, when I was a man. When you weren't turned on, you could adjust yourself with no bid deal, but touching your cock when you were horny, even if it wasn't fully hard yet, felt completely different.

That's what my body was like, now - once I was aroused, it became a lot more sensitive. Certain spots got more sensitive then others, but all that arousal wasn't focused in just one spot, like it was when I was a guy.

More than that - it was like I had a really nice warmth in my belly. Well, a little further down, but

When I was young, and I got sick, my mom used to put one of those vaporizers in my room. I didn't have a really big room, and it wouldn't take long before the room was warm and damp, humid but in a very comforting way, if you know what I mean. Well, that's kinda like what getting turned on as a woman felt like - there was a warm, damp sensation between my legs, and it was very pleasant

"Jeez!" Dave said, shitiing his hips uncomfortably. "Is this what getting a hard-on is like? How the hell Damn, it's in the way, it's really sensitive how the hell do you deal with it?"

I had to grin. "Well, you either get it in as comfortable position as you can and sit somewhere and think unsexy things 'till it goes away - and that doesn't feel great, either. Or, you can go somewhere and jerk off. Which is better then nothin', but not the best. The best way, of course, is to"

I stopped dead right there. I mean, I hadn't thought about it before now, but about to describe it to Dave kinda triggered it, you know? I smile at him.

"What?" He asked, not having caught on.

"Well, you got yourself a real woody goin' there" I said, still grinning. "And I'm all hot and ready why don't we?"

He'd looked startled many times in the past little while - now, he looked downright stunned. "what! You mean you actually want to have sex with me?"

I winked at him. "Come on - don't tell me you don't want to."

He opened his mouth and his blush went even brighter ready, and he made kinda choking noises, meaning that he did want to, but wasn't quite ready to admit it to himself, much less to me.

I, on the other hand, thought it was a great idea. I mean, here I was in the body of a hot little woman, wet and ready and with free sex easily available. My original plan was to spend the day sittin' in front of the TV, but that had all changed - and if I could get some sex, I'd take it, no matter what body I was in. Atier all, sex was sex

Problem was, from the looks of things Dave was ready to go off. Now, I know he thought that I'd been a 'pig' as a guy, but truth was, I liked sex.. and was good at it. All the women I'd been with, as a guy, seemed to enjoy my technique, and I wasn't 'greedy' about it. I figure there's no reason why they shouldn't cum, too. I know some guys are only worried about their own orgasm, but I knew I was gonna cum, for sure.. so why not take the time to do it right?

Well, Dave wouldn't be much help in that department right now. He was too close to the edge, and if we had some sex now, he'd cum but I probably wouldn't orgasm.

Oh, well - I'd been in the reverse situation enough times. There was a way to handle it.

"Here, Dave" I said, walking over to him and sinking to my knees in front of him. "Let me show you why guys like blow-jobs'

He made sounds like he didn't want this to happen - but he made no move to stop me as I unzipped his pants and pulled them and his (my) underwear down. His cock was already hard as a rock, and it thrust from his crotch all ready to go.

Of course, I'd seen this cock hundreds of times before but never from this particular angle. It was kinda weird

Anyway, I tried to think about all the blow-jobs I'd ever had, what felt good and what didn't. Wrapping one hand around his shati made Dave gasp.. and he moaned when I sucked his cock into my mouth, my tongue licking The End of it.

I didn't know what I expected having a cock in my mouth to feel like. I'm sure you'll understand that I'd never given it much consideration, before. Now, I found that it was well, it was

It was nothing. No, I don't mean that, because there was sensations and stuff, but they weren't particularly bad, nor particularly good. I wasn't getting any real pleasure from bobbing my head back and forth, my lips sliding over his spit-slicked dick and my hand working his shati. It also didn't bring any particularly negative sensations, either. I could see that the reason women would do this was to bring their guy pleasure. but I couldn't see why there were women who considered it utterly disgusting. I mean, it was kind of a 'blank' in terms of physical sensations, so how you felt about sucking cock was all emotional, right?

So, there I was, giving my first blow-job (and doin' pretty well, I think.) when, without warning, Dave began to cum, moaning' and gasping' as he dumped a load of jizz into my mouth.

It was all salty and warm and thick, with a kinda musty flavor to it and I kinda had to swallow it, since I hadn't been ready for it. It was.. well, pretty bad. Not disgusting-bad, like I wanted to vomit or anything, just too salty and with that musky, musty flavor. It was kinda like the time I'd tried this home-made 'beef jerky' stuff a guy had made. It had been too salty, too, and the meat had that kinda of 'smoky' flavor, similar-but-different then the cum did. So, cum tasted kinda like liquefied, over-salted beef jerky.

I didn't like the jerky, either. Still, swallowing the cum wasn't the worst thing I'd ever had to do. I could see how women would do it now and then - hell, I guess if you did it enough times, you wouldn't even notice it. Still, I understood why a woman might prefer to spit rather than swallow.

Anyway, since it was his first blow-job, I took the time to lick the cock clean, even if I didn't particularly like the taste.

"So - how'd you like it?" I asked, standing up.

"That was amazing!" Dave said. "I can't believe you actually did that, though!"

"Hey - you were too 'keyed'." I said. "When you fuck me, I wanna make sure I orgasm, too." His eyes opened even wider. "you mean you want me to have sex with you? Still?"

"You bet!" I agreed. I began undressing. "Come on, get out of these clothes. I wanna see what fore-play feels like, then you should be ready for a good, long fuck. I wanna see if I can get one of those 'multiple orgasms' I've heard about."

He blushed again, and his mouth moved while odd sounds came out. Poor guys seemed to be having real trouble dealing with this.

Oh, well. I could live with that. Once I finished undressing, I pulled his shirt off, then stood on his pants and underwear, already in a pile around his ankles, and leaned on him a bit, my tits feeling really great as they pushed into his chest. It forced him to take a step back and that meant he stepped right out of the pants I was standing on.

Another step back.. and he fell backwards onto the bed. I climbed on the bed with him, pushing my body against his.

Then I kissed him.

Kissing was kissing. I mean, it didn't feel fundamentally different now that I was a woman kissing a guy - it did feel just as nice, though, especially when he started kissing back. But the 'just kissing' was definitely enhanced by having my firm, full tits pressed into his chest at the time, my nipples feeling almost like tiny cock-shatis they were so sensitive, pressed into the light layer of hair his chest sported.

It felt even better when he reached around and started to fondle that firm new ass of mine. I'd never really realized just how good that could feel.

By now, Dave seemed to have forgotten any objections he might have had to what was going on - and I wasn't surprised. I'd been a man, and I knew just how hard it was to stop once the motor was running. Indeed, under the influence of our 'fooling around', Dave Junior was rapidly getting hard again.

(Okay, so I named my cock. Hell, I didn't want a complete stranger making most of my decisions for me)

Anyway, it wasn't too long at all before he was ready to go again.

I really hated to break that kiss, since I was enjoying it so much, but I did so anyway. "Okay - now fuck me" I whispered in Dave's ear, and rolled over on my back.

He hesitated - maybe a half-second, tops. Then he was moving himself into position. A bit awkwardly, perhaps, but eagerly. I let him spread my legs as he moved into position, then he slid forward

How to describe the sensation? I don't think there's any adequate way to explain what having a hard, throbbing cock slide into your wet, soti cunt feels like, not unless you've experienced it yourself. I mean it was like I'd have an emptiness inside of me that I'd never even known about until I had it filled which, I guess, is a pretty accurate description, now that I think about it.

It felt fantastic. Not only physically pleasurable, but emotionally satisfying. I moaned, closing my eyes as I put my hands on his hips, urging him to do what his body wanted to do anyway.

So he did - he began to fuck me, driving his cock in and out of my wet new cunt.

The pleasure was like nothing I'd ever experienced. Oh, I'm not saying that it was better than having sex as a man was, or worse - but it felt a hell of a lot different.

Rather than a steady building, the pleasure seemed to come in waves with each thrust, the most pleasure coming when he was actually pulling in or out, with slight 'dips' when he reached either end of the stroke. It felt fantastic, though, and I found myself moving my hips almost instinctively, trying to increase the pleasure I was feeling as Dave fucked me good and hard. I don't think he was consciously thinking, so much as reacting to his body's desire to cum - and I was glad I'd sucked him off, first, to lessen the immediate need, so that he'd take long enough - because that incredible pleasure was building and building and building and then I came.

All thoughts stopped in that instant, because I was too busy experiencing the most incredible pleasure I'd no. No, it wasn't actually so much 'better' than male orgasm, it was just that it was so different, so intense. I now understood the major difference between men and women when it came to sex

Men had the same basic orgasm, all the time. For women, the orgasm could be different, like a dozen - or a hundred - different flavors of ice-cream. Some of them you might like some of them you might not - but all were available, while men's orgasms were tried-and-true 'vanilla' every time.

Dave seemed to enjoy his 'vanilla' orgasm, though. When The Endless time passed, the actual instant of orgasm that seemed to last forever, we collapsed in each other's arms.

"Wow" Dave said, and I agreed with him.

"That was incredible" Dave said, with a sigh and a grin. "I'm almost sorry that I have to back to being a woman. I mean, I enjoy sex as a woman, but there's just something about being a man that"

"Yeah, I know" I agreed. "I'm almost sorry about going back to being a guy. Well, brooding over it isn't going to help. Why don't you go ahead and change us back"

"and maybe we'll try it again in our own bodies, just for comparison?" Dave suggested with a grin, and I grinned back. No matter what happened after this, he and I were going to be much closer friends, especially with that little confusion about my outlook on life cleared up.

So, Dave set about preparations for enacting the spell, chanting and waving his arms and nothing happened.

He tried it a couple more times before the truth finally registered.

See, there's a real good reason why a 'witch' is female. Apparently, the forces of magic have different 'rules' for men and women, and so a man can't use a woman's magic, and vice-versa and Dave was now a man, so his magic, the magic he'd used to change us into who we were now are, wouldn't work anymore

Well, we were a little upset, at first. I'm sure you can understand that - after all, we'd been 'locked out' of our lives.

Not that it matters, anymore. After five years of being a woman, I can't even imagine being permanently male again, and I'm pretty sure Dave feels the same way. Luckily, he looks exactly like the 'Dave' everybody remembers, so he could more or less pick up my old life and work it around to the way he wanted without anybody getting curious. Same with me - with no glasses, make-up and new clothes, everybody was amazed at how good I could look, but they didn't realize that I was actually a different person than the Jane they all remembered. After all, she always wore baggy clothes, so nobody knew that my new figure was much better than Jane's had been.

So, I'm happy to live my new life as 'Jane', and Dave's equally happy in his new life. Oh, we're 'best friends' and we fool around together sometimes - my views on sex haven't changed, so I guess I'm technically a 'nympho' or something. Still, we're still so different as people that no long-term relationship is really in the cards. I'm still looking for the perfect persona and the search has gotten a lot easier for me. Atier all, it might have been hard to find women who like what I like, but finding men isn't all that difficult. Dave says he'd finding the same thing, too - his social life is much more active then it ever was, as a woman. So everything worked out for the best, really.

....except for the fact that she wants to go back to being female, just for a little while. There's one thing he, as a woman, always wanted to do, and that was have a baby. I mean, give birth. He's worked out this complicated scheme where he can be 'Jane' again, while I hide out, have a baby, then I'd change him back, claim the baby is mine and his, and give custody up to him. I don't really have a problem with it, since he's been teaching me his magic. Even if he can't use it, he remembers it, and that's how I've been learning. There's only one 'little' snag it turns out it's easier to turn somebody into a woman then it is to turn them into a man. He doesn't want to risk being turned into a woman permanently, and I certainly can't risk changing myself back into a man, 'cause then I'd lose my powers.

So, we talked it over - and decided we needed to find somebody out here willing to play 'guinea pig', and let me try my magic at turning them into a woman. I'm positive I can do that part but there's no guarantee that I can change anybody back. We wondered where we would find somebody willing to take the risk, and then we began to search the Internet and stumbled across this site.

So.

Any volunteers?

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: When his nerdy neighbor creates the perfect synthetic woman, he is shocked to learn that he is to supply the brain to "boot" the new female to life.

Synthetic Woman

By Gunslinger

"Holy shit..." I breathed, stunned, as I slowly circled what Jerry had dubbed the 'bio-bed', unable to tear my eyes from the figure laying immobile upon it. Even with the ventilator pumping air into and out of her lungs, and an external pace-maker maintaining heart function, her naked body was... arousing.

"You..." I stammered, finding it hard to get my mind around the concept, much less my mouth around the words. "You... made her?"

"That's right, Mark." Jerry confirmed, skinny ribcage swelling with well-earned pride as he polished his thick-lensed glasses on the hem of his wrinkled button-down short sleeve shirt before perching them once more on his too-large beak of a nose, magnifying his watery brown eyes owlshly.

"She looks so... real!" I blurted out, though my mind was also putting the word 'sexy' in there.

"She is 'real'." Jerry replied, affronted. "Anything short of genetic testing at a lab - or a CAT or MRI scan of her 'brain' - and she's indistinguishable from a naturally-born human."

"No shit?" I gasped. I mean, I knew my neighbor was just as much a genius of a nerd as he actually appeared to be, but this...?

"The synthetic skin has all the properties of 'real' skin - minus the flaws. The same goes for the synthetic muscles, organs, hair - all of it. Her blood is O Positive, and she could give or get transfusions without any problem. Her hair and nails will grow, and her teeth could, conceivably, get cavities, if poorly treated. Aside from the fact that her brain is a sort of bio-electrical computer completely unlike our own brains, in appearance, everything about her could pass for natural - and even her brain works like ours. Theoretically."

As he spoke, Jerry walked over to a small fridge in the corner of the lab and extracted a bottle of champagne - but I noticed this only incidentally, most of my attention still focused on his creation.

His gorgeous creation.

Jerry had built himself a woman...

...and what a woman she was!

In fact, she was perfect.

Well... in Jerry's eyes, at least. To me, she was only nearly perfect. I mean, I like women who were... busty. But this creation of his...!

Despite Jerry's obvious beliefs to the contrary, it was possible to have 'too much of a good thing'.

Still, despite that one, (well, two), flaws, this creation of his was remarkable, practically perfect in every other way, and I couldn't stop staring at her inert form.

"Theoretically...?" I finally asked as Jerry handed me the flute of champagne, belatedly cluing into the qualifier he'd used. Lifting his glass in a self-congratulatory toast, Jerry waited until we'd downed the champagne before answering.

"Yes, theoretically." He agreed, putting down the glass. "I mean, I've 'downloaded' a complete heuristic algorithm into her 'cyborg' brain, included all the references and background that should allow for skills, even a personality matrix - basically, I've completely programmed her computer-brain... but there's the problem of 'booting' her, as it were."

"Oh...?" I asked, blinking a bit as Jerry's narrow face seemed to swim in front of me. "Have you come up with a solution?" "Oh, yes." He said, eyeing me oddly. "In fact, that's why I invited you over."

"Howzat...?" I asked - then blinked, surprised at my slurred, slow words.

"By transferring an already 'operational' mind pattern into her." He answered, stepping forward quickly - and catching me as I began to slump.

Too late, I realized my drink had been drugged, and that he had an ulterior motive for calling me, a neighbor he barely knew, over to see his magnificent creation. I tried to fight, tried to struggle - but though my mind remained perfectly clear, my body was no longer mine to command, limp and unresponsive.

"I am sorry about this, Mark..." The scientific bastard assured me with what sounded like sincerity, damn him. "I would have used my own neural pattern to do this - but I'm afraid the transfer method destroys the original matrix, making it a one-way trip."

Despite the fact that my body was limp, it wasn't completely disconnected from my brain - I could feel myself go cold, stomach tightening as the meaning of his words registered on my helpless mind.

"It's a sacrifice in the name of science, Mark." He tried to reassure me, though it didn't help one damned bit as he lay me out on a second 'bio-bed', with me unable to do so much as blink. I could hear him moving around, feel him placing something against my head and at the top of my spine - but I couldn't move, couldn't jump up and stop this monstrous plot. In fact, I wasn't only completely helpless, but my breathing was becoming steadily more labored as even my autonomous functions began to shut down.

"I'm sorry, Mark." He repeated - but that didn't stop him from moving towards whatever switch, button or knob would effect this horrible 'transfer', with me unable to even protest as I stared helplessly up at the ceiling through immobile eyes...

...and then shuddered briefly, opened my eyes, and stared up at the ceiling.

It was as fast as that. One instant, in my own, slowly dying immobile body - then next, staring up at the ceiling through a pair of eyes that saw it slightly differently, the colors and perspective slightly 'off', the vision slightly sharper - and not my own.

Or, rather, that which I'd unwillingly have to call my own from this day forth - for even as I stared up at that damned ceiling, the sensations I was feeling told me that I was, indeed, in a different body.

A new body.

A female body.

That damned bastard had forced my mind into the body of his synthetic woman!

As Jerry entered my field of view, eyes glittering in triumph as he looked down at me with a big, shit-eating grin on his face, I wanted to reach out and wrap the new hands he'd cursed me with around his scrawny chicken neck and snap it...

...but I couldn't move so much as a single synthetic muscle in my unwanted new body, nor could I give voice to the torrent of curses I wanted to unleash on that conniving bastard.

The thought that I was not only trapped in a female body, but a paralyzed one, made my stomach clench in fear.

"You're probably noticing you can't move, or talk - or do anything but lay there." Jerry noted. "That's because, while your original brain is the 'DOS', Marianne's personality matrix is the 'Windows' installed on top of it. Not only can't you do anything at all until I've given you permission, but at no time will you ever be able to do anything directly against my own welfare or interests - it's one of the 'base commands' for you now... Marianne."

I tried to tell him that I wasn't this damned 'Marianne' of his... but 'Marianne' refused to let me. Like it or not - and I didn't, not by half - I was 'Marianne'.

At least - it was my mind trapped within the body and programming of Marianne.

All of which meant I couldn't even grind my teeth in helpless disgust as he lightly caressed the silken flesh of my new leg, the sensations - subtly different then it would have felt in my 'real' body, but every bit as unwanted - running through my synthetic nerves to my synthetic brain, generating a disgusted, humiliated anger that was anything but synthetic.

"Okay, Marianne - you can sit up now." HE said.

It was permission, not a command. It broadened 'free will' to exactly two options - remaining laying down, or sitting up, but not allowing me to flee from his touch, his presence.

After a long moment, I sat up, swinging my new legs over the edge of the table with a motion that wasn't even mine, the smooth gracefulness 'built in' to the programming that filtered my thoughts into her actions. As I moved, I could feel those grotesquely over-sized chest melons shifting, swaying, hanging, their weight so real and unmistakable, something I couldn't block out however much I might have wanted to.

The motion brought the other bio-bed into my field of view... and I wasn't permitted to react in any way to the sight of my old body, now nothing more to Jerry than a useless discard, a pile of useless, dead meat.

My body - no longer mine, never to be mine again.

"God, look at yourself..." Jerry breathed - as the pervert reached up to lightly caress one of those disgustingly enlarged tits he'd forced upon the body forced upon me. "You're... perfect!"

Given 'permission', I looked down to see his hand resting on my... My perfect, gorgeous, wonderfully huge breast!

I couldn't gasp, couldn't gape - but I wanted to, wanted to have a physical way to reveal the shock I felt as I stared down at a set of tits I knew were the exact same ones I'd found so ridiculous, so ludicrous, when I'd seen this figure from my own eyes - but now that I helplessly found myself seeing as utterly perfect in their damnably wonderful massiveness.

"Perfect..." Jerry breathed again - then, with a sigh, finally removed his hands from my hatefully unhated new body.

"Come on, Marianne..." He instructed me - and I had no choice but to obey his command, the 'programming' in the cyber-organic brain housing my consciousness forcing me to obey his command to follow him - and not just obey it, but smoothly, gracefully, with a feminine stride that swiveled my smoothly rounded new womanly hips and jiggled and bounced by disgustingly wonderful new tits.

I was not 'Mark-in-Marianne' to Jerry - I was Marianne, running of a 'Mark battery'. He knew, but didn't care, that it was my consciousness under all of Marianne's programming make 'her' possible. Whether he was simply ignoring the fact, or it just didn't bother him in the least, all that mattered to this unscrupulous nerd was that his creation was 'alive'.

I could read this story in every aspect of Jerry: Boy meets girls, boy never gets girls, boy builds his own girl - and powers her off the consciousness of the guy next door.

'I' was merely a component.

Marianne was the 'real' one here. I was but a lost fragment of a dead man buried underneath her, helpless to control my situation, forced to experience everything his perfect cyborg-synthetic girlfriend did.

Where he led me to showed me just how deep this unholy obsession with the woman he'd created was - for he had a room completely outfitted for 'her', a room that was like some unlikely cross between a little girl's room and a bordello, lace trimmed four- poster bed beneath a big mirror on the ceiling, powder-blue and white walls and furniture cast in a mixture of light and shadow from the 'spotlighting' the room used, framing perfect little spots for sexy little me to stand and pose for his enjoyment.

"You can go ahead and dress in something sexy for me while I'm moving Mark's body." Jerry said - and his choice of words revealed his thinking, for it wasn't 'your body', but 'Mark's body'. "But, first..."

He smiled at me... no, at his creation... and unzipped his pants and let them slide down around his scrawny feet to reveal his already hardening cock...

...and my heart began to be beat faster.

Not in disgust, as I would have wished - but in excitement.

Marianne was programmed to be excited at the prospect of servicing her master - and, whether I wanted to or not, I was forced to feel that excitement as well.

"Suck me, Marianne - give me a blow job." Jerry instructed.

"Yes, Jerry..." I heard my rich new feminine voice coo, words spoken without my foreknowledge or permission.

Oh, how I wish I could ignore that command - but it wasn't even up to me. I was just the battery, the power source, not the controlling intellect - that was Marianne, and she not only would obey her master...

...but she'd enjoy doing it.

Which meant I was forced to enjoy it, to.

I was forced to enjoy gracefully sinking to my knees in front of him, a smile helplessly rising to my cupid's bow lips at the wonderful giti my master was granting me. I was forced to love the feel of it as my lips closed around the now hard cock, and forced to find the feel the throbbing shati in my hands as being something I wanted, I loved, I enjoyed.

I was forced to love sucking on his cock with all the skill he'd programmed into her mind, forced to enjoy the feel, the taste, the texture. I was helpless in the face of the waves of pleasure rolling through my cyber-organic mind as I licked, slurped sucked and stroked.

I was forced to love being a word-class cock-sucker...

...and there wasn't one damned thing I could do about it, my mind overwhelmed with the programmed pleasure I was forced to feel over what I was doing.

I was sucking cock - and loving every single damned second of it!

When he came in my mouth and my body eagerly gulped down every single, salty drop, I knew damned well that it was disgusting, sickening and horrifying - but it felt wonderful, tasted delightful, filled me with contentment and well-being and utter happiness to be able to swallow my master's giti of a thick, warm load of man-seed.

Helplessly filled with a warm, uncritically happy glow from being allowed to give Jerry a blow-job, I followed his instructions to get dressed while he went and took care of my discarded body. I put on a cute/sexy little number, a white, lace trimmed tube-top and a denim 'overall' skirt with attached 'suspenders'. The skirt was nearly knee length - but had slits up either side, meaning the otherwise tight garment showed a lot of my long, creamy legs with every move I made, the same as the tight tube top displayed ample cleavage of my big new tits.

A pair of white strappy platforms shoes with six-inch heels completed the look - aside, of course, from the white plastic jewelry and the make-up I helplessly, flawless applied to my face before coming out my long, chestnut hair.

When Jerry got back, we went out for dinner - so that he could show me off in public, of course.

I was helplessly happy to be his perfect, petite, pneumatic little 'girlfriend', making sure to show him plenty of affection while being somehow demurely sexy - showing off my body enough for other men to appreciate what Jerry had, but not enough to indicate I was trying to come on to any of them, as I 'loved' Jerry, and Jerry alone.

The 'demure' went out the window when we got back home - and I was pure slut for Jerry, alternately fake-sweet sexy and fake-nasty sexy to keep him going, feeling his hands and/or lips over every inch of my new body, fondling and being fondled, stroking and being stroked - and fucking him, one soti-and-nice, one laying back and letting him give it to me as hard and 'nasty' as the basically unimaginative little nerd could manage...

...and I helplessly loved every single second of it. I was his toy. His slave, his lover, his servant.

I cooked and cleaned for him, I mothered him while he worked and then was his complete whore for him when he wasn't. I was everything and anything he wanted me to be, any time and any place he wanted me to be it - and because I was serving my maker and master, I was ecstatically happy every minute of it.

Not because I wanted to be - but because Marianne was programmed to be, and I felt her physical sensations, and her emotions. Not once did I forget the intellectual horror and disgust, shame and humiliation - but it was purely intellectual, and in a consciousness that had no control over the body, not even enough to generate the physical indications of these emotions.

Part of the time I had limited free will, the ability to choose between closely-defined option, much like the first 'options' allowed me when I'd transferred into the body. I couldn't do anything to escape this horribly enjoyable fate, nor could I do anything to harm my darling bastard.

When ordered to make him something to eat, I could cook him anything I wanted - as long as it was something I knew he'd enjoy. When ordered to dress, any outfit I chose - as long as it was one he liked. I could start my cleaning in any room I wanted, but couldn't do a less than perfect job of it - and couldn't help but enjoy it as I did it.

Even my emotions had been stolen from me, and in every aspect of my enslavement, I was unwillingly ecstatic. For four months I was his disgustingly happy, hatefully cheerful, wonderfully humiliated little slave...

...and then the flaw in his perfect little life came about in such a prosaic manner that it boggled the mind. I was vacuuming.

Prancing around in high-heels and a man's dress shirt held nominally closed by a single button, wide hips swaying to unheard music and big tits bouncing, I was in the middle of my daily cleaning routine while Jerry was off somewhere, doing whatever it was on the increasingly more frequent days he was gone. Of course, me being who and what I was, he didn't bother to confide in me anything at all, but I'd begun to assume he was working towards finding a way to 'cash in' on his synthetics discoveries - not that it mattered to me, his slave whose 'real' opinion was useless in the face of a personality programmed to have no opinion.

So, while he was gone, Marianne - with me along for the ride - did what she was programmed to do, cleaning the house...

...when I got a static shock from the metal floor-lamp post I was moving to vacuum under.

It wasn't much, really - just a tiny little shock, a jolt that sent a unpleasant, sharp tingle through my nervous system. "Shit!" I swore, yanking my slender, long-nailed hand off the metal lamp...

...and then stopped dead, an odd expression plastered across my eerily perfect face as I realized I had just performed an action completely of my own volition.

Even standing absolutely stock still was 'me', not Marianne.

Slowly, barely daring to believe, I switched off the vacuum - and the very fact that I could do that, could make this body of my perform that simple task, was both proof and revelation.

I was in control!

Which quickly begged the question - what was I to do with this control, with this new-found freedom?

A question whose answer was not as immediate or clear-cut as I would have previously believed.

What hold, what power could I bring to bare upon Jerry to cause him to create for me another synthetic body, this one male? Not a copy of my old one, for 'I' was dead of a heart attack and buried, and doubted I could find any way to make the truth be believed by anyone who would matter - but any male body, so that I could escape this feminine fate?

The answer was 'none' - for even if I could guard Jerry twenty-four hours a day, force him to do my bidding, and learn enough of his arcane crati to spot sabotage or 'bad programming', it wouldn't return me to the point at which I'd been before his nefarious plan was put into action...

...and, truth be told, I did not want to 'reset the clock'.

It shamed me to admit it, but admit it I must, for it was an undeniable truth: Having been through this ordeal, one I would never have wished upon myself, I had been indelibly changed.

Though I still hated Jerry with an undying passion for what he'd done to me - I could not blithely return to masculinity. Having experienced femininity - having experienced this particular simulation of femininity - I was... 'addicted'.

I did not want to be - but 'want' no longer entered into the question. Though the vestiges of my male upbringing still shamed me for my feelings, the fact was that this body felt pleasure at 'being feminine', especially sexually... and I enjoyed that pleasure, however guiltily. Though I would never have wished to be female, and still wished it hadn't happened, it had happened - and I'd helpless come to long for those moments of extreme pleasure my new form created during the pleasing of a man.

So, I was trapped within the body and mindset of 'Marianne', even though no longer dictated to by her programming - and, indeed, that made it all the more powerful an addiction for me. While Marianne was programmed only to feel 'desire' when ordered to please, I could - and did - remember all the pleasure I had felt, as unwanted as it might have been... and could now anticipate, even crave, more of the same, no matter how shameful this craving might have been for the man I had once been.

A woman I was, and so a woman I would remain... but in no way did this lessen or mitigate the horrors Jerry had perpetrated upon me, and I would not forgive him theses.

Indeed - I would have my revenge.

That thought crystallized within me, and I knew then what I must do, and how I must do it - and knowing this, I had to work quickly, for I had much to do and no idea when Jerry was to return, so I must be prepared as quickly as possible.

With that in mind, I set to work...

* * * * *

When Jerry arrived home, he found 'Marianne' waiting.

That was, of course, exactly what he was expecting, and so found nothing at all odd about me standing just inside the door, dressed to the nines and with a welcoming smile on my face.

Being as that was exactly what he expected, he didn't question it, nor examine it too closely - and so failed to notice that the warm, welcome smile might have seemed more than a trifle forced, or that my 'guileless blue eyes' were anything but. His inherent faith in his own genius, borne out by four months worth of 'proof', had dulled his edge.

So, he didn't hold so much as a single suspicion in his mind as he took the martini I had waiting for him, settled onto the couch, and demanded a 'welcome home' blowjob.

Though the thought of pleasuring this man, this hideous monster in a nerd's body, still enflamed anger and made my stomach clench, I nevertheless did what I was told, sinking down between his spread legs with a warm smile...

...and excitement flowing through my synthetic veins. Angry excitement, disgusted excitement, hateful excitement, but excitement nonetheless, for that was what this body was programmed to feel at giving a man a blow-job - and the fact that I enjoyed feeling this way only made that enjoyment a guilty one, in no way lessening it's power.

In this particular case, however, as intense pleasure thundered through me as I began to fondle and lick his cock into an erection, that pleasure/guilt/disgust was further added to by an expectant emotion, a feeling of approaching victory.

As I let myself wrap my full, cock-sucking lips around his now-hard cock, submerging myself in the unwanted-but-needed, guiltily enjoyable pleasure of being a dick-loving woman, it was with the knowledge that it would be the last time I'd have to do it with the bastard who'd foisted upon me the very addiction I was now feeding.

Upon arriving home, Jerry enjoyed having a long, slow, 'loving' blow-job - so he was probably somewhat surprised when I went at it with a will, throwing myself into the task. He tried to correct my 'mistake'...

...only to find his words slurred and incomprehensible, his body lethargic and unresponsive.

Too late, he realized that the perfectly mixed martini contained more than gin over a splash of vermouth. Too late, he realized I'd garnished it with more than an olive.

Too late, he realized I was no longer his obedient little slave.

The paralyzing agent, a derivative of curare, was fast acting - but I was even faster, getting my disgustingly beloved 'fix' of cum before his cock went as limp and unresponsive as the rest of his body. Swallowing his heavenly load, I rose to my feet - and didn't even attempt to be gentle as I took hold of his collar and struggled to drag him down into the basement and up onto one of the bio- beds. Thankfully, my synthetic body was about ten percent stronger than a 'real' one of the same mass, which made 'nearly impossible' into just difficult, and soon he was laying helpless on the bed, breathing already quite labored.

I'd examined the control panel earlier in the day, and it had been child's play to cut the wires from the 'on' switch and splice them into the wires from my kitchen egg-timer. Now, I set the dial, then hurried to climb onto the second bio-bed and set up the induction electrodes.

A split-second's worth of time later, the device kicked on - and I felt Jerry's confused, horrified mind as it was shoe-horned into my synthetic brain. Almost as a subconscious feeling, I could feel his thoughts and emotions tickling at the back of my brain...

...but I'd placed him within the same electronic box I'd only so recently escaped from, and he had no more control over my thoughts and actions than I'd had over Marianne's programming.

What's good for the goose...

Savoring his horrified realization of what I'd done, I rose from the bio-bed and disconnected the electrodes, then let his expended male body where it was as I headed upstairs.

Though I'd quickly learned where he kept his ready stash of money upon becoming his helpless house-mate, I'd been programmed not to touch it - but now I had no problem taking a nice sized wad of his money from his stash, more than enough to pay for the cab which I then called. I didn't have long to wait before it finally arrived, and when I let the house go out to it, I added an extra little wiggle in my walk, making use of my programmed sexuality for a man other than my 'master' for the first time...

...and loving every minute of it. Despite the fact I wasn't programmed to feel this way about acting sexy towards anybody but Jerry, I was no longer the slave of my programming, but the master - mistress - of it. While that program had created an addiction I didn't have any control over, the programming itself was mine to use, and I did, ensuring I felt the full peak of pleasure at advertising my feminine sexuality...

...while cutting off the pathway that would have echoed that pleasure into Jerry's little box.

I was helplessly addicted to feeling and pleasures Jerry had forced on me. More pleasure, in both quality, quantity, and variety, than I'd ever felt in my old, male life. Pleasure I was unable to even seriously contemplate giving up. Pleasure that was inherent in the programming that maintained and motivated this body - even now, at my own, willful direction, rather than at the programmed behest of the 'personality' I was suppressing, though not completely.

I still needed the 'Marianne' programming, in order to keep supplying myself with all this pleasure. Were I to disconnect all the programming embedded within my cyborg brain, assume complete and utter control of this synthetic body, I'd lose all her skills, all her abilities - and all her programmed pleasures.

Instead, I was suppressing certain segments of code, making use of others - and enhancing the coding that provided me my 'fix' of pleasure.

I was like a kid in a candy store...

...or like a junkie with an endless, high-grade supply of China White.

I could feel as much pleasure I wanted - but only as far as I was willing to make use of the 'triggers' attached to them. Marianne was only supposed to feel pleasure in certain circumstances, and while I could 'stretch' that program far enough to feel it with any man, rather than with just Jerry, I couldn't make them completely independent of their base purpose, which was to generate pleasure during sexual situations.

I still needed men to stimulate that pleasure I now so desperately, so helplessly, craved...

...but I could also ensure that none of it get through to Jerry's helpless consciousness, leaving him with nothing but the raw input of the physical sensations of what I was doing - and whatever emotion that generated in his own mind, buried deep behind mine.

The fact that I could faintly feel the helpless, horrified emotions roiling through him only made it all the more delicious.

I directed the driver of the cab to a night-club I knew to be a 'meat market', a trendy, upscale place where 'beautiful people' went to see and be seen, where the mixed smells of colognes, perfumes and various 'beauty' products used by both genders mixed with the nearly subconscious odor of both pheromones and desperation, that unique and unmistakable odor of men and woman desperately craving physical contact to at least mitigate the emotional contact they were unwilling or unable to establish with other people.

In a way, it was the situation for which I'd been perfectly created for. My body, my programming, even my helpless new cravings for pleasure - the all afforded me a sharp 'edge' in this particular game, and it was one I used to my fullest advantage.

As I entered the club like a lioness stalking her prey, it could have been a pathetic sight, a sexy, buxom woman on the prowl, driven by a desperate need that took all pleasure from the hunt - but, while that might well have been my fate, I'd been able to recognize it, and avoid it.

I entered the club - and it was with true excitement even stronger than the desperation that could have made this such a sad plight, even if that excitement was the dark nectar of vengeance.

That dark nectar was more intoxicating than any alcoholic beverage offered to me by the scores of males drawn to me by the oh-so-enticing smile I wore, sexual and mysterious, daunting yet enticing. My stride was supple and graceful, yet knowingly drew attention to the most sexual features of my body, as much challenge as invitation - and it was a challenge few men could resist.

By the time I made it across the dance floor and to the bar, I had a full dozen suitors vying for my attention - and with all the skills I possessed, I could keep them all 'on the line' without either accepting or rejecting their advances, without alienating any of them in favor for the others...

...and, even as my programming allowed me massive enjoyment of all the attention my luscious body was receiving, I enjoyed it all the more for the despairing humiliation Jerry felt deep within me, helpless to stop this from happening.

Though I could have had my pick of any man within minutes of walking in the door, I was in no hurry - not only did I know I could get what I wanted, needed, whenever I wanted, but the longer I held out, the worse it was for Jerry.

I flirted.

I danced, body sensuously supple, aware of my own body more than I had ever been as I felt Jerry's humiliation over the swaying of our ass, the bouncing of our breasts.

I let men fondle me, hands brushing, touching, or lightly gripping thigh, ass or breast as I passed.

I kissed men, teasingly, enjoyably - and felt Jerry recoil in disgust, pushing me to hold the kiss longer, deeper, harder.

Finally, when I could contain my desires no longer, I chose a likely candidate from the crowd of admirers, and let myself be led from the club. With a smile that was a promise, I let one last, lingering, smoldering gaze with my rejected admirers, and departed the club in hand with my lucky victim, and it seemed like nearly no time at all passed before we were back at his place, hands roaming each other's body as we passionately embraced, clothes seeming to dissolve as we kissed, fondled and caressed ourselves into the bedroom, where I lay back on the bed and spread my legs in enthusiastic welcome.

As I'd hoped, the man was better endowed than Jerry, and much more skilled in its use. With my programming, I could have enjoyed even the most inept sexual experience, and so this one was pure heaven for me - but, more importantly, being fucked long, hard and well by the man's big, hard cock provided all the more humiliatingly enjoyable sensation for Jerry to suffer through.

As we were fucked, that horrified disgust, that unwanted enjoyment, that utter humiliation Jerry felt was the final block in the pyramid of pleasure, and the programmed orgasm that ripped through me at exactly the same instant the man came was more utterly heavenly than anything I'd ever experienced before...

...and my heaven was Jerry's hell, as he writhed in the grip of that same orgasm, cursed as I'd been cursed, helpless to do anything but enjoy forcible transformation into a sexy woman - but without the programming that would have eventually led him to accept that fate, however grudgingly, as I had.

It was even more humiliating for Jerry, some time later, when I gave the man a blow-job he'd never forget, for while I enjoyed it, there wasn't even any physical pleasure to hauntingly mitigate the disgust Jerry felt as I swallowed the salty load of cum the man gited me with...

...and I savored the despair Jerry felt knowing that this was to be his fate for as long as we both lived.

After I had taken from the man everything he had to give, I left his home and headed back towards the club, knowing I could satisfy myself several times that night before worrying about striking out on my new life. The questions of gaining a new identity, gainful employment, and a new place to live were all serious ones - but ones that weren't immediate, for I knew now the power of womanhood, the power that would let me 'cruise by' on all three points using pure, unadulterated sex as a substitute.

A substitute I was more than willing to make use of.

Head held high, a true-felt smile on my lips, I re-entered that nightclub with a full embrace of my new fate...

...while deep inside my mind, that self-same fate reduced Jerry to the mental equivalent of tears.

The End

BACK TO FUN ZONE

© 1997 - 2016 TGstories.

SUMMARY: A sleazy businessman learns that he must spend a week inside a mansion in order to take possession of it, but his stay turns out to be a slow transition into a bimbo.

Taking Possession

By Gunslinger

"I have to what?"

The slender, dark-haired man leaned forward in outraged shock, his trim, slender body tensing under the expensively tailored silk suit he wore. His dark eyes went from wide surprise to narrow anger, and his lips tightened. "You have to be joking!"

The attorney shook his head. "I'm afraid not, Mr. Glatthorne - although the law is antiquated, it is still on the books, and thus, enforceable." He spread his hands. "I'm sorry - there's nothing I can do."

Richard sat back in the chair, jaw working as he fumed with anger. "You mean I have to spend a week in the Carson place - or I can't foreclose?"

The lawyer shrugged in unsympathetic agreement. "That's the law. Since you are not a bank yourself, the law says that you - or a member of your immediate family, but that doesn't apply to you - has to inhabit the premises for one week. If you should leave for any reason, for any length of time - Ms. Carson can just move in, and it's her place again, without her having to pay off the remainder of the outstanding loan.”

Richard’s hands balled into fists as he considered the implications of the position he was in. A prominent local businessman, he came from a family line that was one of the oldest in Carson, North Virginia. As a matter of fact, the only family with an older lineage - buy two years - was the Carson family itself. Whereas he was the last of his line, Janet Carson was the last of hers, and the owner of the mansion on the remaining acres of Nathaniel Carson’s original five-hundred acre spread of land that had formed the kernel of the town that now bore his name. Whereas his family had started with nothing and slowly risen through the ranks of society to become the town’s richest family, the Carson’s had gone into a slow decline after the Civil war, to the point where Janet Carson had finally had to get a loan for living expenses, using the Carson Mansion as the collateral.

And, with some complicated maneuvering, Richard had managed to buy up the outstanding loan - then used his considerable influence to delay Janet’s getting a job long enough that she missed one payment. At which point he’d planned to swoop in and steal the house out from under her.

But the Carson’s had made up the original town fathers, and most of the mayors since the town’s first election in 1798 had been Carson

- so Janet had access to every municipal and county laws and by-laws, and had found one that threw this impediment in front of Richard.

Not that he was going to let that stop him...

“All right - if I have to live in the house for a week uninterrupted, then that’s what I’ll do.” He stated, the visions of how much the house - with it’s antiquarian value as well as it’s value as a mansion - could be sold for on the open market, something the Carson family had adamantly refused to do, dancing in his head. “Tell Ms. Carson to move out her personal effects before six tonight - because that’s when I’m taking possession.”

* * * * *

The sun was sinking lower in the sky, and the light that came in the two-hundred-year-old float-glass panes in the mullioned windows of the Carson Mansion was a deep, garish orange that drew blood-red highlights out of the highly polished imported cherry-wood that trimmed the study, and glinted ruddily from the brass electric fixtures added a century and a half after the house’s inceptions.

Richard sat in the deep armchair, a small smile fixed on his thin lips as he inhaled the particular odor of a age and wealth that suffused the house. Dressed in a pair of tailored jeans and a crisp white cotton shirt, the slender man reveled in his success, knowing that this wasn’t an impediment at all - it was a chance for him to enjoy the particular ambiance of the home before he sold it, a taste of what it felt like to live in a piece of history itself.

The fact that the Carson bitch had refused to remove any of the furnishings or knickknacks only made it better. She had declared that everything belonged with the house - and if she couldn’t have the house, she didn’t want anything to remind her of what she’d lost.

Richard didn't care - other than the fact that it made the house feel 'lived in', which made it more comfortable for him - and which would drive up the price at auction. Throughout the years, the Carson family had slowly filled the house with priceless Americana items, which Janet had refused to sell, even when she was so desperate for cash. Now, they would either go with the house - for a sizable amount of money - or, if nobody was willing to pay the extra premium, he'd sell them piece-meal. Either way, it was another feather in the cap of victory he felt he'd earned with this coup.

Feeling satisfied with his new acquisition, Richard spent the rest of the evening relaxing. Making himself a light pasta meal, he sat in the study for a few hours, reading the day's newspaper, and using his lap-top to access some stock information before heading upstairs to the master bedroom. After performing his evening toilette, he changing into a pair of royal-purple silk pajamas, climbed between the sheets of the century-old four-poster bed, and drifted off into a deep, satisfied sleep.

* * * * *

Richard felt the warm sun streaming in the high windows as he slowly sank from the comfort. Stretching, he yawned and sat up...

"What the...?" Richard gasped, gazing down at himself in perplexity.

Instead of the silk pajamas he'd gone to bed in the night before, he was dressed solely in a pale pink silk negligee trimmed at the neckline with white lace.

Stunned and confused, he shifted the feminine garment, finding he was naked beneath it. Peeling the strange garment off, he stared at it, then looked around the room, finding no sign of his pajamas, or of an untoward entry that might explain how he'd ended up in the soft, pastel garment.

Tossing it aside, he dressed quickly then prowled through the sprawl of the house, checking all the windows and doors, finding them locked and bolted. His first thought - that Janet Carson had snuck in during the night and, somehow, put the garment on him while he was sleeping - was ruled out quickly. Although she probably had keys to the house she hadn't turned over (especially in case he left the property during the week, so she could take possession again), all the doors were bolted from the inside, and couldn't be opened from the outside, keys or no keys. They were also expensive German lock, older but still practically unbeatable short of assault with a battering ram, something that obviously hadn't happened.

It didn't make any sense. Unless, somehow, he'd done it himself - whether in a trance state, or aware of what he was doing, then forgetting before he awoke.

Neither option had much appeal to him.

Returning to the foyer, he picked up the phone and dialed a number, reaching one of his associates.

"Derrick?" Richard said into the phone. "This is Richard - I need you to pick some stuff up for me and bring it by..."

* * * * *

Richard crawled into bed, feeling exhausted - but much more secure.

He'd spent the day installing temporary security measures. Small, battery-powered sensors on all the doors and windows - all forty-nine, by his count. He'd also installed motion detectors in every room - and attached them to video cameras, a minimum of one per room, with some rooms having more, and all of them attached to a large, complicated VCR in the study. The house was rife with a profusion of wires and cables, but they were all held in place with a putty-like material that was purely temporary, and could be removed without damaging anything. However, for the remainder of his stay in the house, the place was wired up like a pin-ball machine, making sure that he felt secure in the sprawling, echoing mansion. After last night, the place had suddenly acquired an eerie air, and he was all too aware of the age and history weighting heavily down on the house, the remnants of owners long since turned to dust, and of how alone he was in the sprawling monument to the town's oldest family.

A monument that he'd acquired by hook and crook...

A man unused to attacks of conscience, it was only a sign of how spooked he'd been by the odd event of the night before, so it wasn't surprising that he took almost two hours to drift off into the dark silence of sleep.

* * * * *

Even as Richard stirred to wakefulness, he knew something was definitely wrong.

Almost every inch of his body itched in a strange new fashion, and was decidedly tender. Over that strange itching sensation came the soft smooth flow of what was undoubtedly silk - but a silk garment that didn't extend all the way down his legs, and that left his arms bare. A garment that felt much like...

...a silk negligee.

Sitting up with a gasp, Richard threw back the coverlet and stared down. The first thing he verified was that he was once more clad in the pink silk garment he'd wadded up and tossed aside that morning. But the second thing of note was what really sent a chill down his back.

The sight of his smooth legs, utterly denuded of every follicle of hair, peeking out from beneath the hem of the feminine garment.

But there was more to it than that, he quickly discovered when he peeled off the negligee - not just his legs were free of body hair - his entire body was smooth and bare, like a baby's bottom.

"Holy shit!" he swore, climbing from the bed and staring down at his body. "What the fuck is going on here?"

He had a way to find out - and he was going to use it. He dressed quickly, grimacing slightly at the odd sensation of his clothes against his skin without the normal buffer of body hair. Shaking his head at the oddity and absurdity of it all, he went downstairs, pausing just long enough to nuke a cup of day-old coffee, then carried the rather bitter brew into the study, where he dropped into the chair positioned in front of the VCR/TV combo hooked up to the surveillance system. Even before he turned on the TV, he was gratified to see the counter on the VCR indicated it's recorded something during the night. Rewinding it back down to zero, he hit 'play' and leaned back in the chair to watch the crisp color images the high-quality Sony 'camcorders' had caught.

The first few minutes were a 'false alarm' - him tossing and turning before drifting into sleep. Then the screen 'blinked' as the recorder had shut off then restarted.

Leaning forward, Richard watched the small image of himself as he climbed from the bed. He frowned at the image, his brow knitting as he watched his recorded self undress and head for the door of the room - not only did he not remember doing any of this last night, the way he was moving in the recording looked odd. He was balancing differently than usual, further forward on his feet, and moving with an odd motion in his hips and arms. Even the set of his shoulders and the tilt of his head looked all wrong, though he couldn't narrow it down to specifics.

As he - in the recording - left the room, the camera automatically switched off, and the one in the hall switched on, showing him crossing the threshold of the room and moving confidentially down the hallway towards the stairs. There was another camera-cut as he descended the stairs, then another before he entered the kitchen and rattled around in a couple of the cupboards.

The sound was crisp and clear on the recording, and Richard heard his recorded voice, despite the fact that the words were spoken in a mutter.

"Where the hell did he... ah, here they are. "

Although a person's voice always sounds strange to them when they heard it recorded, this wasn't the same thing - the words were spoken in a tone and inflection Richard couldn't remember ever having used in his life - and he still couldn't remember using that or any other tone last night. All of this was strange and new to him, and although the version of him on the screen appeared wide awake and coherent, nothing he was seeing was jogging a memory of having done it. If not for the fact he'd awaken with all his body hair gone and wearing that negligee, he wouldn't believe the person he was seeing was him.

Oddly enough, although last night's 'him' had had trouble finding the pots he'd put away himself the night previous, the recorded him moved confidently to a cupboard that Richard hadn't bothered to thoroughly explore, and emerged bearing a box that he hadn't noticed. It was as if the recorded him had known exactly what he wanted, and where it was.

For the next twenty minutes, Richard watched in stunned confusion as his image on the screen heated up a bottle of a green substance in a pot of boiling water. When it was ready, last night's 'him' took it to the table, sat on a chair, and began applying a coating of the green - wax, it must be, Richard realized - on his leg. Over this coating went a strip of gauze taken from the box now resting on the table, and was pressed firmly into the warm wax. He then did another strip on the other leg - then, with a grimace, ripped off the first strip, taking all the hair that had lain under it along with the now-congealed wax.

Hitting 'fast forward', Richard watched as he systematically stripped his body of hair using the wax and gauze. Upon completion of the...

ordeal, considering the look on his face when he'd yanked away the wax, he put everything away, throwing the waxed gauze strips in the garbage and tidying up before going upstairs, pulling on the negligée he'd tossed aside the morning before, then crawling into bed. Almost instantly, all motion ceased and the screen went blue.

Shutting off the machine with a stunned look on his face, Richard rose and walked into the kitchen. Pausing for a long second, he finally bent down and opened the cupboard...

...and found the garbage overflowing with wax-coated gauze, in which was embedded the 'missing' body hair.

Slumping onto a chair, Richard shook his head in disbelief. "I don't believe it..." He said in a whisper. "Am I going crazy?"

It was almost like he'd developed a schizoid complex overnight, creating a second personality to 'complement' his first. Although he was most definitely not an expert in the field, Richard knew that some people who had 'Multiple personalities' had blackouts - periods when another facet of their fragmented personality was in control, and during which the 'original' persona remembered nothing.

For several long minutes, Richard was half-convinced that was the case - that he was going crazy, and that the odd, recorded actions he had just seen were a solid symptom of his encroaching madness.

Then logic reasserted itself, pulling him from that train of thought.

"Hang on..." He said, shaking his head and speaking aloud to empty air - and it was probably a good thing that he didn't realize that he was talking to himself, as it might have bolstered his 'insanity' theory. "How did I know where to find that stuff? I've never seen it before in my life - yet, it was as if I knew exactly where it was."

Thinking on that point a little longer, he decided it was small - but telling. There was something more going on here - and the fact that he didn't know what it was annoyed him, his fear and confusion changing to anger and suspicions. He didn't yet know - exactly - what was happening, but he had a fairly good idea who was behind it.

Because his first, panicked, reaction had been to go for help, whether it be psychiatric or otherwise. Now, he realized that was exactly the motivation behind what was happening - and attempt to force him to leave the house.

And there was only one person who would directly benefit from that situation. Janet Carson.

Angrily, Richard pushed himself up from the chair and walked over to the phone. Picking it up, he angrily punched out a number, and curtly asked for Ms. Carson. There was a shot pause, then her voice came on the line, still groggy from sleep and almost unrecognizable as a human voice.

As soon as he heard the 'hello', Richard launched into her.

"All right, bitch." He snarled. "I'm not going to play your little game, do you hear me! I'm not going to let you get away with this, so you might as well stop right now, before I come down on you like a ton of bricks!"

Then he slammed the phone down in the cradle before she had a chance to 'defend' whatever it was she was doing.

* * * * *

At the Best Western, in room 212, Marie Carson, a receptionist from Chicago, stared at the phone in fear and confusion, then dropped it into the cradle. Eyeing the instrument like a snake that was liable to strike at any moment, she backed away from it, then dressed and headed down to the lobby to tell her lover that she was ending their affair and flying back to her husband....

* * * * *

Turning away from the phone in satisfaction, Richard headed into the kitchen to make breakfast. He wasn't about to let some damned woman stop him from doing what he'd wanted to. All his life, he'd had women who'd been interested in him because of the fortunes he'd controlled, but he'd refused to let any of them into his life, where they might screw him up at a crucial moment. Oh, sure, he'd used them for sex or prestige or appearances - but that's all they'd been. Toys. Window dressing. Diversions.

Certainly nothing that could best him,. After all - they were the weaker sex, pathetically emotional and physically weak. He hardly had to truly worry - no matter what Janet had done to make this possible, it wasn't going to keep him from accomplishing his goal.

This house was his. His and his alone - until he decided to sell it, of course.

Smiling thinly, Richard started coffee brewing in the expensive - and pre-war vintage - brass-and-stainless-steel coffee maker, listening to it's unusual gurgling and bubbling. It took longer than usual for his special-ground coffee to brew, but he really didn't begrudge the time, as he spent it trying to appraise the rare and meticulously maintained piece of machinery that was producing it.

When it finally stopped it odd churning noises, Richard poured himself a cup and carried it into the study. Sitting down, he flipped open a book, holding it up with one hand as the other reached out to pick up the deep-blue mug with it's gold-leafed rim. As his eyes started to scan the words on the page in front of him, he lifted the cup to his lips...

...and, with a grimace, pulled it away and stared down into the cup with an incredulous look.

The warm, beige-brown liquid sat in the cup, slight traces of steam rising from it's placid surface.

The problem was - Richard like his coffee black. He subscribed to the old teamster's motto - 'If you wanted coffee, why'd ya ask for cream and sugar?'

Yet that's what this cup of coffee contained - a healthy dollop of thick cream, and at least two sugars. Lowering the cup to the table, Richard's brow wrinkled as he tried to figure out who that had come about.

Then his eyes widened as he distinctly remembered doing it himself. He could recall walking over to the fridge, lifting out the cream container left behind by Janet, and adding some to his coffee before going over to the sugar bowl and adding two tablespoons of sugar. In fact, he realized, he was even vaguely aware of his actions while he was doing them. It was 'just' that it had seemed so natural, almost like an ingrained habit, that he hadn't even bothered to really think about what he was doing.

Millions of Americans were probably well familiar with that state of mind, when you fixed your coffee the way you always did, without much in the way of conscious thought.

The problem was, this was the first time in his life that Richard had even done so, and he couldn't figure out why in Hell he hadn't been aware of how strange his actions had been. Looking back on them now, he was all too aware of how strange, how out-of-character it was for him to do. Yet, when it had happened it had the vague comfort of a habitual act, and he'd felt completely at home doing it, as if it were the most natural thing in the world.

"Janet..." Richard hissed sibilantly through his teeth, his aquiline face narrowing in anger. Somehow, whatever she'd done to him was still affecting him, and now he had a feeling he knew what had happened over the last two nights - a form of programmed sleepwalk, that hadn't disturbed him because they'd felt - at the time - as natural as putting cream and sugar in his coffee had felt this morning.

"Well - that's enough of this crap..." Richard said to himself, angrily, banging one fist on his denim-clad thigh. Negligently tossing the book aside, the slender man rose, his dark eyes intense with thoughtful anger.

Janet's plan was obvious - to force him to leave the house to seek a remedy to whatever she'd set into motion in his own head. But, having been declining in fortunes, she'd obviously forgotten the Unspoken Rule of Wealth - if you had enough money, you didn't have to go anywhere for anything - they'd come to you.

Richard had no use for psychiatrists, as a rule. As his father had always put it, 'Anybody who'd go to a psychiatrist should have their head examined'. In this case, though, Richard decided he'd break from his usual rule, and find somebody in that field who would take care of this nuisance. After all - 'desperate times called for desperate measures' - not that he was desperate, of course. Richard Glatthorne did not get desperate.

He got what he wanted.

Striding out to the telephone stand in the foyer, he pulled out the fairly slim telephone directory and thumbed through the Yellow Pages until he found the listing for Psychiatrists and Psychoanalyst. Running a finger down the listings, he tapped twice on the ad for a Dr. Grossman, who's ad listed him as being - among other things - a 'Licensed Hypno-therapist'. Noting the number, Richard reached for the receiver...

...and stopped with his fingers still an inch from the smooth black Bakelite finish. But not because he'd reconsidered - a Glatthorne didn't reconsider. No, it was because...

...he 'simply' couldn't get his hand to get any closer to the phone. Frowning, he leaned into his arm, which trembled with the effort - but it was like trying to push against an invisible brick wall surrounding the telephone. His hand simply would not get any closer to the receiver than one inch. Richard placed his other hand over top the first and pushed his legs back, as if trying to do half-assed push-ups on the phone. All of his weight was on that one hand, and the law of physics dictated that, unless there was something substantial to support him, he would fall forward until he met something to break his fall.

Instead, he continued to hang there, severely off balance and supported by nothing but 'thin' air.

“This... This just isn’t possible!” Richard said in confusion, shaking his head. Straightening, he tried to pick up the phone with his left hand instead - and met with the same lack of success. As did a ‘sneak’ attack - his hand stopped as suddenly and sharply as if he’d hit a solid object, yet remained an inch from the deceptively normal-looking phone. It was as if there was a force of some sort keeping him from touching the phone in any way.

Frowning in confused concentration, Richard picked up the directory and tossed it at the phone. It bounced off the instrument itself, knocking the receiver off it’s cradle with a rattle. The black, curved receiver fell from the table, swinging from the end of it’s curled cord about six inches from the floor, the faint sound of a dial tone issuing from the speaker.

Bending over, Richard tried to grasp the moving target - only to find himself balked once more. The inch-thick arm that blocked his grasp moved with the swinging motion of the receiver, rapping firmly against his knuckles and sensing the receiver rebounding short of the perigee of it’s arc, all without him actually touching the receiver itself.

He couldn’t even hang the damned thing up.

He could, however, rip it’s cord out of the wall, which he discovered when he did just that in a spate of anger. Straightening after his assault on the thin black cord, he closed his eyes and took a deep breath, composing himself.

“There’s more going on here than I thought.” He said out loud, clearly and distinctly. “This is obviously not a simple set-back, but a well- planned attack that I did not - could not - have anticipated in my original plans. Therefore, I must adjust myself to my new situation.”

Although an onlooker might have found his antics of the last few minutes odd, culminating in a strange soliloquy to himself, Richard was actually talking himself into abandoning his original plans. A proud - arrogant - man, he didn’t do this lightly, and had to rationalize his actions, even to himself.

Having convinced himself that this was a time when discretion was the better part of valor, Richard turned away from the now-useless phone. Grabbing his over-coat off the coat-tree beside the door, he reached for the aged brass handle of the oak-and-glass front entrance...

...and found his hand grasping empty air an inch from it’s burnished surface, unable to close on the latch mechanism.
“GODDAMNIT!”

Usually imperturbable, Richard was now enraged - and scared. Turning from the recalcitrant doorway, he stalked off to the other end of the hall, down a short side passage, and up the first two steps of the servant’s stairs, where a large landing was. One side of the landing was a large window composed of cut-glass paned in thin woodwork on the bottom half, and delicate tinted glass in the upper. Furious, heedless of the potential damage to his bare hand, Richard thrust a fist through the glass...

...or, at least, tried to. It was like hitting a brick wall, and Richard howled in rage and pain, cradling his painfully throbbing hand.

Unbeknownst to Richard, his thin lips had curled into a snarl that ill-matched the near-panic in his dark, intense eyes.

Practically tearing off his coat, he headed back town the hallway leading to the landing. At the end, he tuned, half crouched - and launched into a dead run, dropping one shoulder and pushing his black oxford-clad feet of the floor just before the steps, becoming airborne as his entire one- hundred-and-seventy-two pounds flew through the air towards the antique window.

Only to bounce back from it, no part of his body coming closer than one inch to the fragile window. It was like being hit by a Mack truck at ten miles per hour. Richard' body - airborne and under the control of physics and gravity, not conscious thought - bounced away from the window and back down the two steps of the landing. Richard's head bounced on the hardwood floor of the hallway with resounding 'thwack' as he sprawled limply in a position no conscious human could ever achieve, the blow having turned out the lights of a very confused, scared man.

* * * * *

There seemed to be a Con Ed team using a Derrick-hammer very close by. Like in his skull.

With a moan, Richard twitched, consciousness heralded by a deep, sharp throbbing in his head.

"What the hell hit me...?" He groaned aloud, the pain and confusion making him forget what had transpired to lead him to this point. Groaning again, he forced himself to sitting position, his back adding it's complaints to the pain in his head. Richard sighed and opened his eyes...

...to see and odd shade of color, somewhere between that of ripe wheat and that of faded straw. It seemed to cloud his vision, tinting everything he saw. Blinking and frowning, Richard brought his hand to his eyes...

Hair. It was hair. He pulled it away from his eyes incredulous, feeling the motion through his scalp as he tugged on the sandy blonde hair that hung in front of his face.

It was the catalyst for memory to return.

"God fucking damn!" Richard swore, shaking his head in denial of the impossibilities piling up on him - a denial that was made ineffective by the feel of the long, silky hair brushing against his shoulders as he shook his head.

Richard forced himself to his feet, ignoring the ache in his head as he looked around with eyes that were more than a little wild.

Several hours had passed while he lay on the floor, out cold. The sunlight streaking in through the window was the sun of mid afternoon, and it picked out brilliant highlights on the beveled window, the highly polished woodwork - and the mirror on the wall near the stairs.

With almost hesitant steep, Richard approached the small oval reflecting glass and stared at the image that it showed.

His head was crowned with a rich, thick, luxurious head of wheat-blond hair that many a woman would envy. Brushed out of his stunned-looking face, it hung just past his shoulders, full and wild - and completely, utterly unlike his own dark, short hair.

“This... this is impossible...” He protested weakly to himself, lightly fingering the silky strands in shocked disbelief. “This... can’t be happening to me...”

But it was.

Closing his eyes, Richard turned away from the mirror and took a deep breath, trying to get back his normal composure. It wasn’t easy - not with the feel of the long hair tickling his neck, the hairless skin sliding in a subtly different but unmistakable way under his clothing, the ache in his head a reminder of his inability to leave or use the phone...

Setting his face in a composed expression, Richard opened his eyes again, having worked himself up to trying to get out of this unbelievable situation in a rational manner - as the irrational approach had earned him nothing but a headache.

“Okay - now, this has to be the work of Janet Carson.” He told himself, striding down the hall, head bent and hands interlaced behind his back. “I don’t know how she’d doing this - but she’d the only suspect. Okay - so, does that help?”

A moments thought told him that it didn’t. So, no matter how much he wanted to rage at the author of this situation, he had to put Janet Carson completely out of his mind for now. Thinking of her was a waste of time.

“Okay - now, what do I know about what’s going on?” He asked himself, pondering. A thought glimmered on the edge of consciousness...

“Asleep!” He said, snapping his fingers and nodding to himself. So far, the only time there had been anything physical done to him was while he was asleep. Now, the thing with the coffee had happened while awake - but that was mental, not physical.

“So - I have to keep track of what I’m doing.” He told himself, pounding the thought into his memory. He’d have to watch himself closely for any odd activity or thought, make sure that he wasn’t doing anything out of character just out of ‘habit’ - but not his habits.

Which left getting out of this place. This had all started when he came to this house, so he figured if he could get out, it might not correct what had happened so far, but would at least stop it from growing any worse.

So - he needed a systematic approach...

Richard’s mind was back on track, the cold, impersonal mode of thought he used in business dealings was coming to his aid. He couldn’t let himself dwell on what was happening, at least not emotionally, but view it as an intellectual exercise.

Then, after he was out of this predicament he could go nuclear on the Carson bitch’s ass.

With a tight grin at the thought that was belied by the wild look still hovering in his eyes, Richard looking around, then headed to the doors to the basement. He was going to search the house from bottom to top, looking for anything that might help and trying every point of exit.

He clattered down the stairs that led to the basement, half of which was a fully stocked wine cellar, and the other half being used for storage. Unlike the elegance of the upper floors, the basement was moody and gothic, with bare stone walls supported by buttressing pillars that were ringed with almost grotesque sculptures along the crowns. The lighting was provided by naked bulbs in add-on fixtures, the old wiring laying exposed in the barely sufficient light that came when he flicked the switch.

Richard ignored the wine cellar - although part of him thought that a good, stiff drink or four was in order. Instead, he went through the low, stone lintel doorway that separated the two sections of the gloomy basement and started to look through the piles of items stored in the musty area, some of which held great antiquitarian value, others of which were little more than rusting relics of bygone life.

He stood just inside the door and looked around, wondering where to begin.

He was aware that he was standing there, looking - but didn't realize how he was standing there, looking thoughtful.

It was a pose that an outside observer who had no idea what was happening might have found... unusual, to say the least.

The first thing this hypothetical observer might have noticed was Richard's incongruous hair, a wild, thick mane of silky, honey-blond hair that hung down past his shoulders. The next thing that might have registered to the observant would be Richard's skin. Even though most of it was hidden beneath the jeans and white cotton shirt he wore, what skin was left bare was not only devoid of hair but - and this Richard hadn't noticed - remarkable smooth, soft and supple.

But these would have been secondary to Richard's unusual pose as he stood, lost in thought. He stood with all his weight on his left leg, hips cocked oddly and his right leg slightly forward, touching the cold stone floor with just the toes. His left hand sat on his cocked left hip, and his right hand rested atop it, his right arm pressed tightly across the abdomen.

If the hypothetically bystander couldn't quite place the pose that Richard was in, it would have become clear an instant later. Annoyed with the hair falling in front of his eyes, Richard tossed his head back and around, then used his right hand to 'hold/brush' the hair back as he swung his head back to its starting position.

Even if the observer was dense enough to have missed that, there was no missing the way Richard moved when he finally decided where to begin. He shifted his weight smoothly, gracefully as he took a step forward, his hips swaying from side to side as he took each step, keeping his weight further forward than usual arms not quite fully extended, with a slight bend at the elbows.

Despite his still mostly masculine appearance, almost every move Richard made was done with feminine grace and style, unconsciously and easily, as if he'd been moving like this his entire life.

He never even noticed.

Richard spent the next three-quarters of an hour looking through the piles of items, never catching on to the fact that he was doing so with a feminine grace that would have infuriated and frightened him. As the time passed, the movements began to acquire their own 'habits' - if he'd noticed at first, he would have realized that, no matter how natural the movement felt, it wasn't his own. But as he performed the motions 'for real', he began to subconsciously adapt to them, ingraining them deeper and deeper into his personality.

He finished searching through the pile of 'junk', finding nothing of any use. Shaking his head in annoyance, he stopped and sighed, flipping his long, slightly wavy blonde hair out of his face without thinking about it. Although he was consciously aware that it wasn't 'really' his hair, and any time he thought about it he was angry and frightened, the motion was done without any real thought, and so it didn't invoke any of the 'negative' thoughts and emotions associated with his new hair.

Leaving the room, he crossed the wine cellar and started up the steps - then cursed and grabbed onto the banister as he almost went flying. He glanced down...

...and, for several long seconds, merely stared at his single bare foot. Then it registered on him that when he'd lifted his foot to the bottom step, his loafer had fallen off....

...because the foot inside of it was now smaller, daintier and more feminine.

"Nooooo!" Richard wailed. He dropped to a seat on the bottom step, not noticing the elegant grace of the turn made in the motion, and yanked off his other shoe. He stared, incredulous, at the small, feminine feet that now graced the ends of his legs.

"But I wasn't asleep!" He railed uselessly at the unseen, unknown force that was doing this to him. "It isn't fair!"

To his horror, it was a fantastic struggle to keep from bursting into 'unmanly' tears at the 'betrayal'. His assumption that anything physical only happened while he was asleep had just been rudely disabused - and the thought that he had no real control whatsoever was almost enough to push him over the edge of sanity. Almost.

With sheer willpower, Richard hauled himself out of incipient depression and insanity. Forcing himself to his feet, he left his now oversized shoes on the floor and mounted the steep, narrow steps, more determined than ever to find a way out of this impossible trap. He didn't know - exactly - who or what he was up against, but he refused to just 'roll over' on this. His very manhood was at stake, and he wasn't about to give that up without a fight.

Of course, he was completely unaware that, despite the determined look on his face, he mounted the steps with a decidedly feminine stride.

Reaching the top of the steps, Richard looked around, as if looking for hidden traps that could be seen and defused. Seeing nothing immediately threatening, he headed towards the main staircase near the front foyer of the aging mansion. One hand holding onto the curved, highly-polished railing, he mounted the steps, reaching the bisected landing at the first floor and turning left. He took a few steps, lost in thought as he stared down at his transformed feet, with their small, 'cute' toes and slender shape. He glanced up...

...and started, almost calling out at the woman walking down the hall towards him.

then his brain caught up with his mind, and his jaw dropped as he stared at the huge mirror that lay at the 'T' intersection of the hall, whose reflective surface had shown a person with long, wheat-blond hair walking with a feminine stride.

But... all it had shown was... him?

Richard stared at the mirror for a long time, then hesitantly took a few steps forward, trying to force himself to walk with the stride he thought of as his. Instead, the image in the mirror moved with a feminine stride - awkward, to be sure, because he was forcing his movements, but undeniably feminine.

"No... please, no..." Richard whispered the plea to the Gods, and tried again. Although what he was making his body do felt completely right, the image in the mirror was walking in a decidedly feminine manner.

That's when Richard realized he'd 'forgotten' how to walk in a masculine manner. It was like he'd never tried to walk like a man in his entire life, and was fighting all his instincts, habits and natural balances - in vain. Somehow, the knowledge of the way he used to walk had been wiped from his mind, replaced with this feminine movement. Although he could recognize it as being 'wrong', he couldn't remember just how he used to walk, and how it differed from the now 'natural' movement his body wanted to do.

"God DAMN it..." Richard ground out between clenched teeth. He spent a good fifteen minutes trying to alter his walk, and while he could manage different strides, they were all variations on the one that his body wanted to do if left alone - undeniable feminine. No matter how much he tried, he couldn't find a stride that his mind would label as being 'unfeminine'.

Closing his eyes, Richard took several long, deep breaths to clear his mind, then forced himself to continue on down the hallway. Now that he was aware of his new, feminine movements, every single motion he made seemed to grate on his nerves - every sway of the hip, every gentle step of his altered feet, the feel of his long hair against his neck, the way his clothes moved over denuded skin - all tried to grab his attention, insist that he pay attention to the changes made in him. Instead, he grit his teeth and forced himself to ignore all these things as best he could, more concerned with avoiding any more changes right now. He could worry about undoing the ones already made at a later time.

Opening the door to his room, he looked into the darkened bed-chamber with trepidation, as if he expected something to leap out at him. Considering everything that had occurred to him in the past day or so, that wasn't necessarily an unreasonable assumption - his nerves were frayed to the ragged edge as he awaited whatever the next chapter in his own personal hell was to be.

Whatever it was going to be, it wasn't in the form of an invisible assailant in his room. He crossed the threshold, his heart beating rapidly in his chest as he struggled to keep the looming panic in check.

Practically holding his breath, afraid that he'd be thwarted at this turn, too, Richard walked over to his suitcase and opened the top...

...and sighed with relief as he saw the familiar bulge in the top partition. With quick movements, he unsnapped the clasps of the small partition and withdrew the worn leather that was inside. Unrolling the leather item, he extracted what it contained with a look of satisfaction.

It was a Barretta model 92R. Finished in matte black, the weapon didn't 'gleam' like most shown in movies, but it had a satisfying weight in Richard's hand, and when he popped the clip he could see the gleaming highlights of the actual power of a fire-arm as the cartridges, each containing a nine-millimeter diameter chunk of shaped lead, shone in the fading light streaming through the gauzy curtains that shrouded the windows.

He slipped the magazine back into the base of the gun, then chambered a round with a soul-satisfying 'snick-clack'. He quickly shrugged into the shoulder holster, settling the pistol into place. Immediately, he felt more confident, more self-assured, more...

...manly.

With that damned feminine stride, he left his room and headed downstairs to the den. He walked over to the antique cherry-wood desk, and looked down at the old-fashioned black phone sitting on its surface. Now that he had a plan, - and his gun - his arrogance had returned, and he smiled tightly.

"Think you can beat a Glatthorne?" He asked aloud, addressing the question in the general direction of the ceiling. "Think you can beat me?"

Picking up the small pad of note paper next to the phone, he aimed carefully and tossed it with a flat, spinning motion, watching with intense satisfaction as it caused the receiver to fall from the phone to clatter to the surface of the desk.

"Think again." He said, smugly, then picked up a pen. With a tight-lipped grin, he reached out and set it in the little hole in the dial over the '0'.

As he'd expected, the instant he did so he was unable to make the pen move in any direction except away from the phone - it was as if the dial on the phone was frozen solid. He'd already come to the conclusion that the unseen force that was torturing him had put - for want of a better term - a 'field of exclusion' around him, denying him - or anything he was holding - access or use of certain objects.

But...

Taking his hand away, he saw that - as he'd expected - the thick-bodied pen remained upright in the hole on the dial. Looking around, he picked up a brass ruler and the pad of paper. He took careful aim...

'Whack...rttt..t..t..t'

The dial rotated about half-way around with the force of the impact, then began to return to its original position. Before it could, Richard quickly tossed the ruler - which hit the pen and forced the dial to complete its circuit.

There was a pause - then a muffled voice emerged from the ear-piece. Richard couldn't make out the words - but he could guess as to what they were. Dialing even '9-1-1' in that manner would have been impossible - but getting the operator...

Drawing his gun with a flourish, he aimed it just to the side of the desk, not wanting to hit the phone itself. No matter what he might say, the operator might think he was just pulling a prank call - but when she heard a couple of gun shots, she'd send the police poste- haste....

Before Richard could pull the trigger, the phone suddenly rattled. He looked at it in concern - then had just enough time to gasp as the phone flew off the desk with tremendous force, tearing the plug out of the wall, and hurtle at him too fast for him to dodge. It slammed into his forehead...

...and for the second time that day, the world went dark.

* * * * *

This time, it wasn't Con Ed. It was one of the larger Boeing products - a 747, a 767, maybe even a B-52 Stratofortress - doing a full- power take-off in his skull.

Moaning, Richard forced his eyes open, part of him already longing for the peace and solitude of unconsciousness, and dreading what he might find.

He stared up at the ceiling for a long moment, gathering his scrambled wits about him, and letting the initial flush of instinctive panic and confusion fade. Then, very slowly, he forced himself to a sitting position, his head pounding furiously and his back muscles complaining of yet another span of hours spent lying on a hard floor.

"Fuck." Richard swore as he looked down, wincing in pain as his own words seemed to drill through his tender head. He spoke the words with resignation, and almost a wry form of amusement. "Of course."

He was staring down at his legs. Until he'd lost consciousness, they'd been clad in the stiff denim of a dark-blue pair of designer jeans.

No longer. Now his smooth, hairless legs were clad in a pair of black nylons that reached from the tip of his now feminine toes to mid- thigh, where they were held in place by a pair of black garters trimmed with a dark green lace and small bows at the back. The nylons themselves were an old-fashioned style, with seams running up the back of them.

But that wasn't all. Because he was also wearing another pair of shoes that, unlike his discarded loafers, fit his smaller, feminine feet perfectly. These shoes were also black, and made of a rich, expensive leather. They were pumps, with an open toe, a six-inch high stiletto heel tipped with a gold-toned metal cap, and an ankle strap that was held by gold-toned clasps.

Other than the nylons and shoes, he was buck naked. Interestingly, he wasn't chilly, as there was a warm fire in the study's large stone fireplace, keeping the room at a temperature comfortable to somebody in his state of undress.

Inside, the worm of fear, confusion and hatred tightened even further, but almost none of it showed on Richard's face.

After the experiences he'd had so far today, he'd drained most of his raw energy, and what was left was sapped by the throbbing head and stiff muscles. There just wasn't enough in him to throw a fit at every 'little' thing. Instead, what he displayed most was a form of weariness that went far beyond the merely physical, as if his soul had been worn down. He was 'bloody but unbroken' - but that breaking point wasn't nearly as far off as it had once been, and the beleaguered businessman was well aware of this fact, his thoughts seeming to come through a thick, confusing fog of disconnected ideas and emotions.

Gently, he rubbed the spot just above his right eye where the phone impacted, then the spot on the back of his head where - two times now - his head had met unforgiving floor. He winced as he touched the especially sore spot on the back of his head - and was suddenly struck with the odd realization that if it wasn't for the cushioning value of that damned, thick wheat-blond hair that now hung in front of his eyes and over his bare shoulders, it probably would have been much worse.

With a deep, heart-felt sigh, he pushed the silky-smooth mane of hair out of his face and drew his nylon-clad legs up, feeling the odd way the air moved over his legs through the sheer fabric, the way it shifted as he moved, the way it felt against his lowed chest when he had his legs curled up all the way. He'd felt women's nylons before, but never in this way, and he'd never realized how... unusual it felt. He had nothing in his entire life-time of experience to use as even a fairly accurate comparison.

It was extremely unnerving, and it bugged the hell out of Richard. Even if he had been some sort of time-traveler from the distant past, where it was common for men to wear hose and it wasn't associated with 'femininity' like it was today, it still would have been a strange sensation to Richard, unlike anything he could compare it to.

Reaching down, he tried to take the high-heeled shoes off so he could strip off the nylons - and wasn't sure whether or not to be surprised when his hands slid away from the clasps holding the ankle straps together. Unable to undo the straps, he couldn't remove the shoes. Without removing the shoes, taking off the nylons was impossible.

"Shit..." Richard sighed, lips tightening as he stared down at the innocent-appearing footwear. Rubbing the bridge of his nose with finger and thumb, he slowly counted to ten, keeping himself from expending what little energy he had in an utterly useless fit on anger. When the urge passed, he took a deep breath and prepared to expend that energy in more productive means.

Grabbing onto a chair that rested nearby, Richard pulled himself to his feet. Despite the fact that he wanted to be vertical again, he wished that the successful attempt had been more awkward, as the actual motion he used - unwillingly and helplessly - was graceful and supple, almost feline. Even worse, he found himself balancing easily - almost naturally - upon the slender spikes of the heels he wore. Although it was logical to think that being able to stand an maneuver easily would be a benefit, Richard would have been much, much happier stumbling around in the new shoes, not looking like he was comfortable and familiar with them.

Standing, he looked around, and wasn't terribly shocked to see that there was no sign of his own clothes, or of the gun. That 'phone attack' had been to keep him from getting help for his strange, torturous situation, and whatever power was behind it wouldn't let him try again. The nylons and shoes were more along the lines of a 'bonus' - a chance to further the now completely obvious plan to crush his male ego by feminizing him.

Richard might be weary, sore and practically defenseless - but he wasn't planning to let the power behind this win. He wasn't broken yet, not by a long shot, and he planned to either win, or die trying.

And, at this point, he was seriously considering that as more than merely a phrase. Death might be vastly more palatable than what might be in store for him if he failed to escape this trap.

His first planned movements were towards the kitchen. Sliding open the door that led from the study, he shivered at the gust of chill air that wafted in from the darkened corridor. Night had fallen while he lay out cold on the floor, and the rest of the house was dark and cold. Wrapping his arms around his chest and tucking his hands under his armpits, he headed to the kitchen, the spike heels of his new footwear clacking annoyingly on the hardwood floor as he moved with a damned feminine sway that was only magnified by the shoes he wore.

Reaching the kitchen, he turned on the light and poured some of that morning's cold coffee into a mug and stuck it in the microwave. As the cup was warmed, he dug through the cabinets until he found a bottle of aspirin. Using the warmed coffee to wash the pills down, he felt a psychosomatic reduction in the pains of his body with his first, simple tasks in his battle against what was happening. Nuking a second cup of coffee, he carried it with him as he headed towards his room, beginning to feel better already.

This time, he didn't even notice that both cups of coffee he'd prepared were with cream and sugar, and the taste seemed fine to him, as if that was what he preferred to drink. It would have taken a conscious effort on his part to notice anything odd about his coffee, and it never even occurred to Richard to make that effort.

Reaching his bedroom, he flicked the light switch...

...then his lips tightened as he looked at what was on the now-neatly-made bed he'd left in a state of disarray when he had awoken that morning.

Laid out neatly on the coverlet was a black leather skirt, a white... top, lingerie, some jewelry, a hair clip, and a silver-handled brush and comb set.

He walked over to the items on the bed and looked down at them, his eyes narrowed. Finishing that last of the coffee, he set the mug aside on the night stand and picked up the white top that lay above the skirt.

Never an expert of women's fashion, Richard didn't know what this particular type of top was called. It was kind of like a tank-top, but not as tight fitting. It had lace at the neckline that tapered to where it met the thin 'spaghetti' straps of the garment.

With a snort, Richard balled the garment up and tossed it aside. "Not bloody likely." He said aloud, tilting his head defiantly. Turning, he walked over to his suitcase and opened it up.

It only took a moment before he made two discoveries. The first was the fact that about half of his stuff was missing - including all of his own underwear.

The second was the fact that there was simply no way on earth that he could get a pair of jeans on over the high-heeled shoes that he was incapable of removing.

"Damn..." Richard said, staring down into the suitcase with his hands on his hips. His lips pursed as he considered his options...

Richard's brow furrowed and a puzzled expression came over his face as something occurred to him. He slowly re-focused his eyes, staring down at where his hands rested on his hips.

The first thing he noticed was the way his hands were positioned - not balled up, as he usually had them in this pose, and not even simply facing forward, fingers on a downward angle. No, he was standing with his hands on his hips so that the thumbs faced forward, and the fingers extended around the waist and on the top of his ass.

That was bad enough - but what had prompted him to look down superseded that odd stance.

Because his hips and ass felt... strange. And with good reason - because, even as he watched, jaw slowly dropping open, they were changing.

He could feel that odd, pushing/stretching/swelling sensation s his hip bones slowly spread outwards and shifted in shape, forcing his hips to become wider. At the same time, tissue was forming that was altering the shape of his hips, making them more rounded, with a smoother contour. At the same time, he could feel muscle tissue being added to his ass as it slowly swelled outwards, becoming fuller and firmer, altering in shape while a layer of fat also padded it a bit and made it smoother and more feminine.

"Dammit!" Richard swore angrily, attempting to stalk over to the mirror on the wall - a move that was made nearly impossible by his feminine new stride. He stood in front of the mirror, his body twisted so he could watch as the alterations finished.

His hips were now trimly feminine, only a few inches wider but considerably different in shape, with a smooth, feminine curve that would be pleasing to almost anyone's eye - except his.

And his ass... even in his anger and disgust, he had to admit that it was nothing short of spectacular. It was a perfect inverted heart shape that was full and firm and sexy, with just enough padding to keep it's lines smooth and graceful. It was an ass that many woman would kill to have - and it was now part of his figure.

"Shit!" Richard swore with a snarl. He shook his head in disgust - then stopped that action immediately as the pain in his head flared anew.

As angry as this made him, there was little he could actually do about it, so he forced his roiling emotions aside for the moment and turned back to the suitcase, pulling out another white cotton work-shirt.

Then, with a supremely disgusted look, he went over to the bed and stared down at the item that lay on it.

He didn't want to do what he was about to do - but his body was covered with goose-pimples from the chill air, and he needed to put a clothing barrier between his denuded skin and the chill night air that drifted through the house. Angrily, he picked up the panties that lay on the bed, making a face at them.

They were black and skimpy, more lace than anything else. The thought of wearing the feminine undergarment disgusted him - but he really didn't have a choice. If nothing else, he had to keep his somewhat larger-than-average cock from flopping around inside the damned leather skirt he had no choice but to wear. Sitting on the edge of the bed, he pulled on the underwear with disgustingly graceful movement that was full of anger, shuddering internally at the feel of the skimpy panties sliding up his nylon-clad legs, and shuddering physically as he stood and pulled the panties in place around his newly altered hips. They would have fit perfectly, if not for his cock and balls, which were uncomfortable squished in the garment. Pulling another face, Richard reached into the lacy undergarment and repositioned his cock and balls, sliding the cock back between his legs and tucking the balls as close to his body as possible. The resulting look in the mirror showed a frighteningly feminine-looking lower half, with the panties appearing to cover nothing but the feminine genitalia that would fit such a lower half. It was only the constricted feeling of his trapped cock that kept Richard from yanking the panties down to make sure. As it was, he presented a definitely odd-looking picture to the mirror - he looked like a flat-chested woman with masculine features and not terribly attractive legs beneath and ass that would - on somebody else - be mouth-watering.

Richard realized his hands were clenched into tight fists, and he forced himself to relax them and turn back to the bed.

Picking up the skirt, he eyed it for a moment, then forced himself to pull it on and zip it up. It fit perfectly from the hem, just above the knees, to the tops of his widened hips - but it was uncomfortably tight on his waist, and getting it done up was a real battle.

He didn't even notice that his last action after getting the skirt in place was to make a smoothing motion with his hands over the supple leather. It was a motion that was completely feminine in nature and appearance, but Richard missed it completely.

His lips curling in distaste, he picked up a lacy black bra that was lying on the bed. Obviously a match for the panties that he'd forced himself to don, it bore a tag that gave its size as being a 'B' cup.

Richard snorted, and tossed the lacy foundation garment aside and shrugged into his work-shirt, leaving it hanging over the skirt and buttoning it up with a sense of relief that at least he wasn't dressed completely in women's clothing.

As for the jewelry, etc., he wasn't interested in wearing any of it - but he eyed the pieces with a bit of vague interest, as they were old, and obviously very valuable. Before turning away, he reached down and picked up a gold locket on a gold chain. Carefully, he popped open the filigree-engraved cover, and looked inside.

On the right-hand side was an old, sepia-toned photo of an attractive woman in old-fashioned clothing, staring at the camera with that oddly fixed expression of people in old photos.

Engraved on the left-hand side of the locket was a short inscription. 'To my Beloved Mary. James Carson, 1887'

Richard closed the locket carefully, his brain - even now - unable to stop from adding up the value of the antique locket.

Almost regretfully, he lay it aside, then turned to leave the room...

He stopped, an indecisive look crossing his face as something occurred to him. he half-turned back to the, stopped, began to turn away again, then sighed and turned all the way back to the bed.

Angrily, he picked up the brush and quickly brushed the long mane of hair - which kept falling into his face - out of the way. With unsettlingly sure, easy motions, he used a small silver 'U'-shaped clip-thing behind each ear to hold the side portions of his hair back and down, while the center part was left hanging free, as it was 'safe' where it was. It took but a few seconds and made things easier - but Richard hated the extra humiliation of doing his hair up like... like...

...like a goddamned woman!

lips compressed in anger and shame, Richard finally left the room, heading down the hallway. He discovered that the widened hips altered his feminine stride even further, the new configuration causing his hips to roll with each step, and his blush increased at the knowledge that his ass, tightly packed in the skirt, must look spectacular as he swayed gracefully down the hallway.

Pushing aside the humiliation as best he could, the once-businessman headed down the stairs and into the main foyer. Looking around, he concentrated on his quick exploration of the house when he first arrived, trying to remember...

...the one on the right. that was it.

Walking over to the right-hand door on the wall opposite of the study, Richard pulled it open...

...to reveal a small bathroom.

"Shit, wrong one." Richard muttered to himself, closing the door and moving to the one next to it. That was the one he wanted. The door opened onto a cramped corridor that lay in pure darkness. And the door had opened easily.

Despite the wave of pain it brought, Richard shook his head at himself, berating himself for not having thought of this earlier. He stepped into the narrow space, his shoulders barely clearing the width of the hallway. A musty, unused smell surrounded him, and he could feel the gauzy touch of cobwebs on his face as he moved forward into the darkness.

Though he'd discovered this corridor when he'd explored, he hadn't gone down it, realizing what it was and where it led, and having no interest in it. it was a fragment of ancient history, and that's why it hadn't occurred to him until now. But now that it had, it offered a better chance than anything else that occurred to him, and he made his way slowly and carefully down the narrow, unlit hallway, trying to draw his shoulders in as his high-heel-clad feet felt out the aging floorboards in front of him. Only a few feet into the hallway, darkness reigned supreme, and he moved in a state of near-total blindness.

The farther down the hall he progressed, the colder it became. The temperature seemed to be dropping remarkably quickly - which only reinforced his conviction as to the hall's purpose. The fact that he was shivering didn't bother him at all, all things considered, even though his body was tingling as the cold cut through his thin clothing, numbing him.

Then a faint, almost ethereal glow began to break the darkness in front of him, and he pushed on as fast as he dared in the dark confines of the hall, smell a sharp, shill tang in the air that seemed like the call of freedom to the now-numb Richard.

Then, suddenly, the corridor opened out - and Richard stood in a mild state of awe, seeing with his own eyes a source of wonder.

Old Man Carson, who had built the mansion in the early days of the nation, had picked the site out with care. The man was a genius of sorts, determined to build the ultimate in luxurious comfort in the middle of what had then been untamed wilderness, a small vale in the center of forbidding mountains.

And he'd succeeded. Where even the most luxurious homes in 'The Old Country' had certain limitations, Old Man Carson had built a house that had the most incredible amenities to be found at the time. Like the cold mountain springs he'd tapped into to supply water to the house without the inconvenience of pumping. Like the outhouse that was situated over an abandoned mine-shaft and connected to the main building by an old underground tunnel that had been paneled and made into a luxurious hallway to spare his family the brunt of winter weather when answering the call of nature.

And this place. The hallway in the house that ran on a slight slope underground, stretching two hundred yards or more to a chamber in the rocky foothills of the mountain...

...where it met the side of enormous glacier that was slowly descending the side of the mountain perpendicular to the hall's pathway. Built in a time when refrigerators weren't even conceived of, the hallway had allowed the servants to walk to the side of the glacier and chip out blocks of ice for use in the innovative ice-box in the kitchen.

Now, Richard stared at the side of the glacier where it filled the end of the natural cavern that was the hall's terminus. It gleamed with an eldritch light as the bright, full moon shone upon its upper surface, a dozen feet above, and suffused the ice with its silver glow.

But as incredible a sight as it was, it wasn't what Richard had come here for. No he'd come here for something else... Fumbling around near the door, Richard's hands encountered what he'd hoped to find in this long unused chamber. Awkward, hampered by the dark, he managed to light the aging kerosene lamp that had been left here for a generation, grateful to find that the cold had kept at least some of the fluid from evaporating.

He lifted the lantern high, savoring the scant warmth it spread to his numb body...

...then almost dropped the lantern in shock, his eyes widening as he began to swear under his breath vehemently.

The back walls of the chamber, on either side of the door, were large. Unframed mirrors anchored to the rock for the purpose of increasing the ambient light from the lamp while the servants worked. Now it served to reflect back an image of Richard.

A Richard who had undergone further changes. They'd happened while he'd walked the hallway, going unnoticed do to his numb body. But now he could stare at anger and humiliation at the changes he saw.

Like his legs. They'd looked bad enough, denuded of hair and covered in nylons. Now, they looked even worse - by being spectacularly shapely, with smooth, flowing curves that were ultimately feminine, and incredibly sexy.

Or his hands. He should have noted them as soon as he'd lit the lantern, but his attention had been on getting the old wick going, not on the hands doing the task. Now, however, he had ample opportunity to see the slender, dainty hands that graced his arms and disappeared under the too-long sleeves of his baggy work-shirt....

Richard's mind stumbled to a stop. Too long? Baggy?

Putting the lantern down slowly, he felt a shiver course through him that had nothing to do with the cold. The shirt had fit perfectly when he'd put it on, which wasn't surprising, as it had been tailored. Now, however, it was definitely out-sized...

Slowly, Richard unbuttoned the white shirt and let it drop to the floor as he stared at himself in the mirror.

A feminine looking pair of arms was attached to those dainty ands, and those arms led up to slender, feminine shoulders. Shoulders that, in turn, were joined to a slender, feminine rib cage that led downwards to a waist that was amazingly trim and small, so much so that he could have encircled it with his old male hands. From the neck down, Richard looked like a stunningly attractive woman, with the exception of the fact he had no breasts at all...

Gasping, Richard hurriedly undid the now-loose waist on the once-tight skirt and jammed a hand down his panties, sighing in relief at the feel of his numb genitalia still intact.

His lips tightened in anger at what had happened. This was the most extensive change yet, happening in the shortest period of time. Almost like...

...almost like the power that was doing this to him was. desperate.

Slowly, a glint came back into Richard's near-panicked eyes, and his lips curled in a sneer as he spoke one soft word. "Gotcha."

Now he knew he was on the right track - and he had no time to loose, as the power was obviously speeding up it's planned time-table to finish the job before he escaped from it's range of power, which seemed to be limited to the house and it ancillary structures. Even now, it's power must be weakened, otherwise it would probably have just finished the transformation en masse, in case he succeeded.

Which was just what he was planning to do. Hurriedly, he pulled on the now badly oversized shirt, realizing - in passing - that he was also now somewhat shorter then before, although his legs seemed to have remained the same length. But that was secondary to him as he grabbed the lamp and looked around, quickly spotting his goal, on one side of the chamber and halfway up the wall.

The aging iron grate covering the twelve-foot-long air hole that led to the surface, to keep the then-mandatory lanterns of candles of the time from burning up all the oxygen and killing the servants laboring to carve out chunks of the glaciers flank.

A passage way that looked just wide enough to allow Richard's passage. And, this far out from the house proper, Richard was willing to bet that the force behind this lacked the power to keep him from removing the grate.

It was a theory he was about to put to the test.

Placing the lantern on a rocky outcropping near the iron grate, he seized up the rusting, aging piece of metal that barred access. In and of itself, it was nothing impressive, the strength of the once thick, dark iron bars long ago taken away by oxidation. However, it wasn't the merely physical that might attempt to bar his escape...

Taking a deep breath and squaring his newly compressed shoulders as much as possible, Richard reached out...

...and felt an invisible barrier about an inch off the grate.

He didn't stop though, holding his theory to be sound. Instead, he got the best purchase he could on the rock floor while wearing six- inch high heels, and leaned into the attempt. Slowly, ever so slowly, his fingers moved closer and closer, until the tips of them could reach the bars. But that wasn't good enough, and he continued to push into the force that was trying to hold him away.

Then the battle rose to a new level. It became slightly easier to push his fingers through the invisible barrier - but that was because the unseen force behind this torture was diverting more of itself to change him. As he fought the force, he could feel changes occurring to his face, and neck... he didn't even want to consider what else might be slowly rippling and changing.

But now it was a race - a race to see if he could get out before it was too late. It was a race he was determined to win. Pushing aside the sensations of his body being altered further, he fought his hands deeper into the field, until he was able to grasp the rust-scaled grate itself. Putting one dainty foot on the wall, he leaned his slender new back into the effort, his shapely leg muscles shifting as his slender, smooth arms strained and his gradually fuller lips compressed in effort.

Then, with a loud screeching sound, the grate came free, exposing the air passage to him. he tossed the grate aside and eyed the opening. Wider at this end than the other, it sloped upwards on a thirty degree angle, narrowing in an odd shape, since it was square at the bottom but round at the top.

The very top of the airway was the smallest point, a small circle of star-lit sky. But it looked like he could squeeze his way through - especially considering his smaller, trimmer body. His wider hips might be a problem - but that was it.

reaching into the tunnel, he pushed his slender palms against the cool rock and boosted himself into the opening. Straining, he began to haul himself towards that beckoning circle of darkness that promised freedom.

As he moved, he could feel the sensations that accompanied change shifting to his chest, and he could tell that beneath the white work shirt, his flesh was beginning to bulge outwards into decidedly feminine domes. But that took a back seat right now - more than anything, Richard meant to beat this unseen force at it's own game. He might be transformed, and he'd have to deal with the horror of that in a short while, but right now all his attention was on the more immediate victory that would come from escaping the cursed house, from getting away. He might escape as a woman, completely and utterly, and that might destroy his sanity when he had time to focus his attention on the fact - but right now, there was only one thought in his mind, and that one thought was to get out, to escape - to, in some sort of perverse way, win.

painfully, slowly, he dragged himself hand over hand up the sloping, narrowing passage. It was but a dozen or so feet, but it seemed eternal to him as he fought gravity to get out. He could feel the cold touch of the rock on his sexy new legs through the nylon, could feel his long, feminine hair fluttering behind him in the night breeze. His slender, dainty hands gripped for purchase while his femininely shaped and clad feet struggled to push him forward. But slow and humiliating as this might be, it was progress, and he was getting closer and closer to the opening.

He could still feel the swelling sensation in his chest, but he was beginning to become aware of other feelings, too. Like the heft, weight and inertia of his burgeoning breasts as they shifted inside the shirt. Or the pressure on the swelling, sensitizing nipples as they were pushed more and more firmly into the fabric of the tightening shirt as his bust continued to expand to fill the garment. But as horrible as this all felt to him, it was nothing compared to the rising feeling of victory as he neared the opening on the surface, closer and closer and closer, until...

"Yes!" Richard screamed triumphantly, thrusting his hands through the hole and placing them flat on the rock outside the outer edge. His transformed head broke into free, fresh air, and he pushed with all his strength, hauling his body upwards through the hole...

...until he suddenly stopped dead, a blast of pain jerking him out of his victorious daze as his new breasts jammed firmly and painfully just below the opening, unable to emerge.

Richard struggled, pushing and heaving desperately with arms and legs - but, while it created pain in his swollen chest, he couldn't force himself out of the small hole. His breasts would bunch against the lip and stop him dead, wedging him in place just inches from freedom.

Angrily, he pushed himself back down into the hole, just below the lip, so he could tug his shirt down and tuck it into the skirt, streamlining his bust enough to get him through the hole.

Then he looked downwards - and his jaw dropped as he realized that, in the end, he'd lost. And lost spectacularly. The unseen force had made sure that he wouldn't pass through that hole quite definitively.

His shirt, which moments ago had hung on his frame like a tent, now strained at every seam and button to contain the most massive bust line Richard had ever seen. The breasts straining the fabric were easily as big as the beach-balls the sold in stores, and incredibly firm and round, which denied him the range of 'squashability' less firm tits might have. Massive, thick nipples made large dents in the straining fabric, further emphasizing the sheer size of his massive new rack. Staring at the straining shirt, he became aware of the massive weight of the huge tits, of the sensations coursing through them - and of the fact that he'd never be able to fit through the hole.

He could also feel that the final transformations had occurred to his body, and that his panties now fit perfectly, no longer bent out of shape by 'unseemly' male genitalia.

He'd lost.

Richard closed his eyes, tears trickling down his altered face as the truth hit home. He'd lost so completely that he wasn't even he anymore. He was she - a woman, from head to toe, completely unlike Richard in any appearance. She'd not only lost the contest - she'd lost her own identity, her own... life.

Eyes closed, now sobbing freely, the newly remade woman simply released her grip and let herself tumble down the cold stone passage until - yet again - her head impacted on a hard surface, and the light faded as her incredible, feminine body tumbled to a stop beneath the chill face of the glacier, already beginning to turn pale in the cold air that washed over her unconscious form.

* * * * *

Richard - or, perhaps more accurately, the person who was Richard until very recently - came awake quickly and sharply, almost propelled into consciousness.

For the first few minutes, she simply stared up at the ceiling, her mind refusing to track any one consistent thoughts. Sensations flooded her body, sensations that she wanted to shy away from, but couldn't. The feeling of a warm blanket over her new form, touching her long, shapely legs, full hips, huge tits. The way it felt across her thick, sensitive nipples. The way that her huge new tits weighed against her ribcage, jiggling slightly with each breath she took...

"Oh... god..." She whispered to herself, hearing the voice it emerged in and wincing at the high-pitched, feminine tone. She closed her eyes, feeling tears welling up behind the long, feminine lashes that graced her new eyelids.

She lay unmoving for many long, unending minutes, trying to deal with the reality of her new body, of what had happened to her. She wanted to just curl up and die...

Then her eyes fluttered open and she frowned slightly. What was she doing in a warm, comfortable bed?

She now recalled the last actions she could remember, and as far as she could remember, there was no good reason why she wasn't dead now, lying on the floor of a chamber that was well below freezing. Yet, somehow, she had ended up in the same bed as the last two nights.

Despite her horror and shame and fear and confusion, the question - and the ingrained desire for an answer - managed to burn through the veil of emotions that clouded her thoughts enough for her to begin to function. Not well - she was too aware of what had happened to her, every sensation of her altered body reminding her of that fact. But she was once more thinking in a manner at least approaching coherency.

Slowly, she sat up, and winced at the sensation of her huge tits shifting downward as she rose, their mass subject to the iron laws of gravity. Despite this, as the blanket fell away from her chest as she sat, her breasts remained amazingly firm and spherical, with little sag.

She swung her long, shapely legs over the side of the bed and rose to her full height - which wasn't much. Once, she'd been a tall, slender man. Now, she was a petite woman with a tiny waist, slender shoulders and trim yet feminine hips. These were offset by exceptionally long, incredibly sexy legs and a pair of mountainous breasts that dominated her small frame.

Hesitantly, she approached the mirror in the corner of the room. For several long minutes, she just stared at the image that was reflected back at her.

She was... nothing at all like the person she'd once been.

She looked to be no older than twenty five, a good decade - or more - younger than her 'real' age. Her face was absolutely gorgeous in a perky, chipper way, with a straight nose and full lips below huge, bright blue eyes. Her face was heart-shaped, with an elven chin and high, well defined cheekbones, and her lashes were long and thick while her eyebrows were fine and arched. Her face and swan-like neck were surrounded by a wealth of long, rich, thick hair that was a glorious shade of honey blonde.

Her trim hips and firm, spectacular ass tapered gracefully from her long, firm thighs to her infinitesimal waist, and centered in this bottom half of a spectacular hourglass figure was the soft folds of her new womanhood, surrounded by a neatly trimmed patch of pubic hair that matched the strands on her head in color. Other than that, there was no trace of any hair at all on her smooth, flawless golden skin, that looked like she'd spent hours tanning, tight down to the faint bikini tan lines that looked as if she wore a tiny bikini only when barely necessary.

The cool air was definitely affecting her new body, as her nipples rapidly became engorged with a pleasant tingling sensation that she found extremely unnerving. Fully engorged, her nipples were as long and thick around as her old, male thumbs had once been, and a rich brown in shade, perched atop the pebbly domes of her areola.

"Holy... shit..." She said, stunned at the erotic image of the new form she wore. It was absolutely incredible - yet, also, 'real'. It looked as if she had come by this body 'naturally' rather than being surgically enhanced, despite the incredible figure. Also, she had the open, cheerful look of a pleasant person, not the cold beauty that plastic surgery might have provided, giving her a stand-offish look that might keep some at bay. In fact, she looked so cheerful, 'innocently' sexy and perky that men who were afraid to talk to a less erotic woman would approach her without hesitation - her new form just looked completely incapable of doing anything unkind, from the full mouth and perfect teeth that could manage a devastating smile but never a frown, to the huge, expressive blue eyes that could never adequately express anger, scorn or dislike.

Despite the emotions and thoughts she was having, her face still held a mild expression of good-humor, its configuration permanently locked into that 'neutral' expression by the way the bones sat and the tiny wrinkles of the eyes and mouth formed. Even a determined effort to frown merely dimmed down the ingrained expression to one of complete neutrality, expressing nothing - not even the slightest hint of displeasure or anger...

...or the despair that was now thrumming through her body at the realization of what had been done to her. Certainly, whatever had been done to her hadn't really altered her mind. Oh, she had new habits and skills, new ways of moving - but the basic personality behind it was intact and unaltered. But the new way she moved and expressed herself, coupled with her new form, meant that she was unable to completely express all that her intact personality might wish to. Even her new voice, a chipper soprano, was poorly suited to the darker emotions.

It was a torturous, well conceived creation that she'd become. Her intact personality was able to feel the full horror of what had been done to her - but the alter form and functions of her body denied her a true outlet for all of this.

Turning away from the mirror, her inner self in a churning turmoil of bleak emotions, she shivered slightly in the chill air and walked over to the closet, her body moving in that unconsciously graceful, feminine way that was sexy without being 'put-on'.

Opening the closet, she found herself confronted with a plethora of feminine attire, all of which looked to be tailored for the new form that housed her. Of her old masculine attire, there was no trace.

Sighing, she dressed quickly and unemotionally, picking out a simple outfit that consisted of jeans, a T-shirt under a sweater, socks and shoes. She went without a bra, gritting her even white teeth at the necessity of even the plain white cotton panties she pulled on.

A quick glance in the mirror showed that even in the simple garb she'd picked, she was a stunning sight. She had the sort of face and figure that could wear almost anything and look sexy, in different ways. While a more elaborate outfit would have made her look sexy in a sophisticated 'looking for attention' way, in these clothes she looked 'girl-next-door' sexy. The jeans were nearly skin-tight, hinting at her fabulous legs while showcasing her firm ass and trim waist to advantage. The sweater - a fuzzy pink turtle-neck - molded tightly to her torso, displaying her fabulous figure without actually showing any skin in what was almost a tease, as there was no doubt what the sweater contained as it strained over her massive bust and clung to her tiny waist.

The socks were white ones, that were nevertheless obviously feminine, and the shoes she wore accented the fact. The most basic pair in the closet, they were white suede pumps with a two-inch heel that - on her - looked 'cute'.

Sighing again, She left the room and headed downstairs, her mind awl with confusion as to what lay in her future. Everything that had gone before might well as never happened, as she could no longer claim - with any chance of convincing anyone - that she was 'Richard Glatthorne'. She knew - without a doubt - that any attempt to lay claim to her previous life would only have her end up in an asylum, as nobody could possibly believe her story. Hell, if somebody had tried to tell her the same story - before she lived it - she would have sent them packing to the nuthouse in a heartbeat. No matter what she said or did, she couldn't ever claim to be...

Walking into the kitchen, she stopped dead. Her jaw dropped, and the world started to swim around her, a dark tunnel forming around her vision as she felt her knees come unhinged as she began to sag into a faint.

The person sitting at the table - the sight of whom had caused the reaction - bolted to his feet and - in two quick stride - reached her and wrapped his arms around her, keeping her from falling. Face pale in shock, she gazed in sheer incomprehension at the face that had once belonged to her.

"J... Janet?" She whispered, staring at her old, male body in stunned shock.

Carefully, 'Richard' guided her to the table and helped her into a chair, then sat down across from her, a worried grin on his face. "Once upon a time, Cassie. But as you can see, now I'm Richard Glatthorne."

Anger flared, bringing color back to her face. "You... you..." She spluttered, her voice and face unable to adequately express what she was feeling. "Look what you've done to me!"

Richard blinked, then held up his hands defensively. "Whoa, there. Aside from the tits - which was prompted by your escape attempt - all I've done to you is what you did to me."

The new woman - who 'Richard' had called 'Cassie' - flushed. "What?"

Richard shrugged. "You were planning to turn an attractive young woman out on the streets, alone and basically helpless. Well, now you are a young woman, and..."

She rose to her feet, outraged. "But... look at me! You're not just throwing me out of a house! You've thrown me out of my very life!"

Now Richard's eyes narrowed. "And what did you think you were doing to me?" He demanded. "This house - and it's history - was my life. This town was the legacy left by my ancestors, and this house my birthright! And you wanted to have it, purely for motives of revenge and greed." He snorted. "Well, now 'Richard Glatthorne' does have this house - only he's decided that he's going to live in it. So, as far as the world is concerned, 'you' won. And the fact that Janet Carson left town, and will never be heard from again, won't seem at all suspicious, considering what I told several people in town before I 'left'."

Briefly, the phrase 'You can't do this to me' trembled on the outraged woman's lips. But it was all too obvious that he could, indeed, do this to her. "What am I supposed to do?" She demanded. "It's obvious that saying 'I'm sorry' isn't going to make you undo this..."

Richard interrupted. "Actually, the instant I finished your form, I 'locked-out' my ability to make any more changes of any kind to you, in any way. To keep a moment of weakness from making me do something I'd regret, as I truly believe that this is for the best. So I couldn't undo anything, even if I wanted to." He smiled slightly. "In fact, to be absolutely fair, I've locked myself into this form, too - as a kind of 'penance' for what I've done to you, so I can't ever go back to being Janet again. I'm glad to have thought ahead and 'improved' your form before I took it, though."

That caused her to take a closer look, only now noticing that the figure under his clothes was fitter, somewhat more muscular, and definitely more handsome. It wasn't enough to get him talked about, but it was noticeable.

As was the larger bulge at his crotch. The new woman's jaw tightened at the sight of the 'improved' model of what she'd lost. "I see. So, now I get turned out into the world, a nobody in a body I was never born with, with no money, history or identity. Jan..." Catching the warning look in the eyes of a person more than capable of handling her new form, physically, she corrected herself. "Richard, that's a thousand times worse than anything I had planned for you - and you know it."

The new man held his hands up. "You'd be right, if that was what I was going to do. However, I'm not that cruel. In your room, everything inside it is yours. The clothes, the luggage - and the purse, with a few hundred dollars inside, plus a full set of identification for one Cassandra Borwick. Plus the few pieces of jewelry that I've given you, which could be pawned for a couple of hundred more. You could easily start a new life. School record will show that you're eminently qualified to be a secretary, waitress, or house-keeper - or, if you want to earn more money, I'm sure that you'd have no problem as an 'exotic Dancer'." He smirked.

Cassie slumped into her chair. "You.... bastard." She said, her voice robbing the curse of it's venom. "This is... you.." Richard cocked his head. "Or - you could stay here, rent free, for as long as you'd like."

Cassie's eyes narrowed. "Oh, I could, could I?"

Richard nodded. "Sure. I could use a girlfriend - as long as she was willing to be a good girlfriend, one I'd enjoy having around. You know, one who likes to look nice for me, is willing to help out around the house... and is, well... affectionate."

Cassie blinked in outrage and surprise. "You think I'd... you want me to..."

Richard leaned forward, his voice and eyes painfully sincere. "Look, Cassie - as far as I'm concerned, our accounts are balanced. We each have a new life, and I'm willing to start fresh if you are. This is your chance to be a better person, to make a better life for yourself." He spread his hands, his voice utterly honest. "I'm not asking you to do anything you aren't willing to. When I gave us each our new genders, I gave us each normal hormonal drives for our bodies. Nothing outrageous, nothing... controlling. Just normal. I don't want a little 'sex-slave', and I'm not asking you to try and be perfect or I'll kick you out or punish you. All I'm asking from you is what any man would ask from any woman in a relationship - a chance for it to be something... real."

Cassie spluttered in shock - then her face came as close to 'firm' as it ever could, and her perky voice imaged to hold a hint of frost with she sheer power of emotion she put behind her one-word answer.

"Never."

* * * * *

"Guys, put your hands together for Club Electra's feature dancer - Classy Cassie Colossus!"

Applause rolled forth as the heavy, driving beat of the music started and Cassie strode onto the stage, her body swaying sensuously in time with the music as she made her way to the end of the runway, the eyes of every man in the club locked onto her figure.

She wore an erotic version of a business suit, with her long, glorious hair done up in a tight bun while she looked out at the men through a pair of zero-prescription glasses. Black nylons clad her long, luscious legs, disappearing under the hem of the short, tight burgundy skirt she wore. A matching suit jacket was stretched over the white blouse she wore, with a red silk scarf in place of a neck-tie. The whole package was balanced atop a pair of black platform shoes with seven inch spiked heels that accented her ever sensual move.

Her face locked in a pleasant smile, Cassie started to strut and tease, moving around the stage with sensuous grace that her more than six months of dancing had honed to a fine point. The glasses were the first of many things she took off, and - in what had quickly become a calling-card for Chicago's hottest new dancer - she tossed the inexpensive pair of glasses into the crowd. The pins that kept her hair in place were next, and she spilled her hair down with a skillful shake of her head as she slipped the pins into the pocket of the jacket as expertly and unobtrusively as any magician could manage.

As her body went through it's routine with apparent enjoyment and much skill, Cassie's mind wandered. At first, dancing had been something she'd had to force herself to do, and the disgust had shown itself through some of her early awkwardness during the first two weeks, when it had been her proportions that had brought the men in to watch. She'd been amazed to find that, after a couple of weeks, what had been unpleasant merely became boring, and her act had become much better, drawing in bigger and bigger crowds. Then - and this still stunned her - she found that she began to enjoy her fame, the fact that men would crowd into the club specifically to see her affecting her ego, despite the circumstances, and her act had become absolutely mind-boggling. Even now, doing the same act that she did three times a day, she could find enough 'pleasure' in her attraction to make the act more than mechanical, to change it slightly every time to accommodate the mood of the crowd and the situation. It was a source of wry amusement for her that she was probably the greatest stripper in the world, knowing exactly what the men in the crowd wanted at any given time, as she was able to 'read' men better than any woman who'd ever lived.

Reaching the part in her act when the Jacket came off, Cassie teasingly undid the two big, black buttons and slid the Jacket off slowly before tossing it to the side of the stage. Leaning against the side of the pole with her incredible ass straining the seams of the skirt, she hefted her blouse-clad breasts to the men on the other side, then slowly slid down the pole while swinging around, then sliding back up as she continued moving, giving the same view to the men on the other side.

As she did, she found herself remembering the first six months she'd spent in Chicago after leaving Carson. Her early decision not to dress or act any more feminine than she was forced to had taken a huge hit when she'd started searching for a job - or rather, she'd discovered that the level she was 'forced' to act and dress feminine was much higher than she'd expected. A woman looking for a job simply didn't have any chance if she went in jeans and a baggy sweat-shirt, hair loose and with no make-up. So, she'd begun 'dolling up' every morning on the job-hunting trail, until putting on make-up and doing her hair had become so second nature that she rarely even thought about it any more. When she did consciously think about it, it was with wry resignation - she was just trying to live in a world where she didn't get to set the rules, and she was forced to comply with society's unwritten rules. To tell the truth, as distasteful as it had been in the beginning, she didn't even get upset at it anymore. It wasn't really a big thing at all, once she'd managed to get past the 'homosexual' feelings that purposely making herself more feminine had originally caused. It hadn't been all that long, though, before she'd come to accept - emotionally as well as intellectually - that she was female, and that these were 'necessary evils', not anything disgusting or unpleasant in their own rights. As a matter of fact, she'd soon found that some socially acceptable feminine clothing was much more comfortable to wear than the male counterpoints, if you made the exception of shoes. As it was, every day she went to bed with feet still sore from the ultra-high heels her current job required, and about half the time with a mild back ache that came from hauling her huge tits around everywhere. Ironically, it was never very bad at all, especially in her new line of work. For one thing, her back muscles were stronger than usual, to help carry the sheer mass of her huge tits, and as a stripper she was in the odd position that 'supporting' her tits by holding them up - or letting a man hold them during lap-dances - wasn't just acceptable, but a necessity.

With a smile that was partly genuine, she tore open the trick buttons on the blouse, revealing her massive, firm tits to the crowd, which roared it's approval. More of the smile became genuine as she began to fondle and squeeze her huge tits sensuously, paying attention to her massive, engorged nipples.

She'd discovered quite early how much pleasure she could extract from her new body by her own hand. Although she was still celibate - and had no plans to change - she spend much time enjoying her body's physical sensitivity, and not just fondling herself on stage or being fondled during lap-dances. In fact, she usually had a long, luxurious bout of masturbation before going to sleep every night, releasing the pent-up sexual tensions that stripping brought.

At first, she'd been unwilling to have anything sexual at all to do with her new form. But her body had natural urges and needs, and it wasn't all that long before she'd found herself touching herself in the shower, in bed, and in various other ways. The new body was a lot more sexually sensitive than her old, male body had been. Most of men's sensitivity reside in one place, where a woman's body was sensually sensitive all over, to varying degrees. Even stroking her long legs could bring mild pleasure - and anything having to do with her huge tits was more than simply 'mild'. Of course, masturbating had revealed the one thing she had no reservations whatsoever about when it came to being female - she'd discovered the incredible sensations that came from multiple orgasms. Even now, though, she could still cause her self to blush by thinking about the three dildoes of various sizes stored at her apartment - one in the night-stand beside the bed, another in the bathroom, and the third (the biggest) hidden away in her closet. She'd bought that one after having a little too much to drink, and - as yet - hadn't worked up the nerve to use it.

However, she was amazed at how often she found herself thinking of it, stored in it's box on the top shelf...

She slowly slid the skirt off, standing with her legs crossed at the ankles and turned away from the crowd, show-casing her fantastic ass and spectacular legs as she removed the garment, revealing the garter belt and tiny, lacy panties beneath. Twirling the skirt on a finger, she tossed it atop the rest of her clothes and continued her routine, the men drooling at the sight of her incredible figure and huge, firm tits.

After six months, she'd realized that she wasn't going to be able to find a job that paid anything more than minimum wage. Technically, she could have lived on that, as she didn't have the added expenses that came from having a social life - she was in no way ready to deal with anybody socially, and she couldn't help but be aware of the fact that, no matter where she was or what she was doing, at least some men would stare at her as she went by, practically drooling over her body. It was that, more than anything, that had convinced her to take the once-unthinkable job. After all - if she was going to be gawked at anyway, she might as well make money doing it, right? And it turned out to be very good money, too.

Of course, she'd never expected the sort of 'bonus' that came from being a stripper - she'd begun to form friendships. Oh, tentative ones, to be sure, but friendships nonetheless. Because the woman she worked with really weren't all that different from her - if you ignored how they came to be there, of course. The truth was, they were also in the position that their bodies were the objects of men's sexual attentions, and while they milked it on a professional basis, they were extremely 'gun-shy' on a personal business. For some reason, Cassie had always assumed that women who worked in this field were nymphomaniacs or something. While there were two or three women who got a kick out of the job and were very, very promiscuous, the majority of them were in steady relationships with men who appreciated their bodies but didn't objectify them, and the women all understood Cassie's 'dressing down' severely on her few days off, as they usually did too.

Finishing her act. Cassie bowed at the audience, letting their appreciation and applause wash over her as she collected the money that had been stuffed in her garter belt. With a final wave, she picked up her pile of clothing and strutted into the hallway leading to the dressing rooms, dropping the exaggerated walk down to her 'natural' graceful sway.

Since it was her last show of the night, she wasn't going to 'work the floor'. That was unusual for most strippers, and doubly so since she'd been asked to schedule her days like that. She made a small fortune each night she worked, exaggerated by the fact that she worked a schedule of twelve days on, two days off. So, when the other girls had asked her to leave the last two hours of each night for them, she'd had no problem in giving them a chance to collect from the floor until closing.

Since it was the Friday of her bi-weekly time off, she changed into her 'going home stripper' clothes, as she called them. A knee-length white leather skirt and a white blouse with a black leather vest over top, it wasn't as blatantly sexual as her working clothes, but still more 'advertising' than her casual clothes.

Gathering up her purse, Cassie headed outside, where her usual cab waited. She greeted the driver - Jose, the regular cabbie - politely and with a genuine smile. Jose and her chatted on the way home, and she had to give the cab company who had the annual contract for the club credit. The drivers who handled the girls were either gay or - like Jose - a devout family man who might look, but never be tempted. Jose, for instance, was a Catholic father of four girls, and a gentleman to boot, who managed to compliment her every night without once suggesting anything untoward. He was also a great conversationalist who - but the end of the twenty-five minute ride - managed to update her on sports, general world news, his family, the problems in traffic, the latest political screw-up, and his family.

Thanking Jose and bidding him a good night, Cassie headed up to her apartment, unlocking the door wearily and looking forward to her weekend off. Swinging the door open, she stepped inside, the finger reaching for the light-switch as she swung the door shut behind her.

It had just latched and automatically locked when her fingers found the switch and flooded the entranceway with light. For an instant, she didn't really react, her brain trying to deal with the fact that three men were gathered near her.

Before she could bring her brain up to speed enough to scream, a muscular hand covered her mouth, and she felt the sharp prick of a needle entering her firm, spectacular ass. She began to struggle, but her frantic motions began to taper off immediately as the drug took effect, and the world went dark.

* * * * *

“Wakey, wakey, you little cock-teasing bitch.”

Cassie’s eyes fluttered open, and she looked around with mild confusion of her gorgeous face. She was seated in the comfortable arm- chair in her living room, and three big, unshaven men were clustered around her, one sitting on the couch, one leaning against the wall, and the third perched on the corner of the coffee-table directly in front of her. She recognized all three of the big, broad-shouldered men with dark hair and eyes, as she’d seen them in club all the time. They were obviously brothers, only a few years apart in age, and she’d always refused their requests for private dances because they looked like trouble.

They looked even more like trouble, sitting in her living room with greedy looks in their eyes and unpleasant grins on their faces, but for some reason Cassie wasn’t afraid. She knew she should be, and that something was very, very wrong. Her stomach was clenched in a ‘fight-or-flight’ reaction, but she wasn’t able to bring any willpower to bear on that particular reaction. She felt reasonable fine in almost every way, but when she tried to send her mind along certain lines of thought, everything grew foggy and muddled until she pulled back from whatever she’d tried to consider.

“Well, well, well - it looks like our little vixen’s awake.” The one on the couch said with a grin.

“Sure does.” The one on the coffee-table said. “The little cock-suckers wide awake, and ready to go.” He leaned slightly closer, his unpleasant grin widening. “And you are a little cock-sucker, aren’t you Cassie?”

“That’s right.” Cassie agreed without hesitation. “I’m Cassie Cum-Slut. I love sucking big, hard cocks and drinking cum. I love fucking men after I tease them with my body. I’m built to please men, and that’s my goal in life.”

The words sprang from her mouth with what seemed to be conviction and a hint of glee, yet Cassie was mildly surprised to hear the words as she sprang forth. She’d had no idea that she was going to say it, and she wondered why she was. It was almost as if she was machine, triggered to spew a certain response in reaction to a certain question.

When she tried to think about her answer, though, her thoughts grew vague and fuzzy, and she couldn’t make her mind work out the implications of the answer - or even the truth behind it.

The men’s grins widened as she answered, and they shared a look. “Hot Damn, Derrick - it fuckin’ worked!” The one leaning on the wall said in amazement.

“Damn straight, Billy. I told you it would.” The one on the coffee-table - Derrick - replied as if it were a foregone conclusion. “Little John got us the good stuff.”

The one on the couch - the youngest of the three, and the biggest - nodded. “Bet you’re sweet ass I did, bro.” Turning his attention back to Cassie, Derrick smiled. “Why don’t you take a look in the mirror, slut?”

Cassie obeyed without question. It wasn’t a matter of wanting too, really - just this vague, unformed premonition that even considering to disobey would have horrendous consequences.

Walking over to the mirror, she studied herself. She was dressed in one of her sets of working clothes, a tight black mico-mini over the black nylons, the black platforms with their high spiked heels, and a black leather crop-top over a massive black lace bra that revealed quite a bit of cleavage.

Her lips were gloss-red and outlined faintly in a darker shade, and she wore more make-up than usual, although it was applied with her usual care. Her hair was the really stunning thing, though, as it was now a deep, rich red, and she could still smell the odor of the dye.

"I look different." She said calmly, looking at herself.

"Yeah - you dyed your hair and put on those clothes after we asked you to look like a real sexy red-head." Jake said. "You like the way you look, don't you?"

"She turned and looked at them, finding herself feeling incredibly nervous, as if the fate of the world hung on the answer to the question she was about to ask. "Do you think I look sexy?"

"You look great, you little cock-teasing slut." Billy replied, and she felt that knot in her stomach relax a bit. "Good." Cassie said. "I only want to look sexy for men. What I like doesn't matter, as long as I turn men on."

"That's right, Cassie - that's just how you should think." Derrick said with a grin. "Say - you must be aching to please us right now. You must be so horny you feel like you're going to burst."

Cassie considered - and found that she did, indeed, feel that way. "Oh, yes - can I fuck you now?" She asked - practically pleaded - as she shivered with the force of her arousal. "I'm sooooo horny."

Derrick smiled at his brothers, then turned back to her. "Well, I wish we had time to break you in properly, but we gotta get to work at the mill. So, we'll have to do this quickly. Get undressed and lay down here." He patted the coffee table.

Eagerly, Cassie stripped out of her clothing and walked over to the wide coffee-table, laying down on top of it as the three brothers argued for a minute before deciding on who got what.

Not having much time, they stripped out of their pants and each took position where they'd finally agreed. Derrick stood beside her head, his large, already erect cock inches away from her mouth. She eagerly lifted her head and slid her full, soft lips over his hard shaft, encasing the base of his cock with a dainty hand even as Billy straddled her, his cock laying in her deep cleavage as he pushed her warm, soft mounds together over his dick. She could feel her legs being lifted up to rest on 'Little' John's shoulders, and had to fight a moan as she felt his thick cock slide deep into her cunt, filling her for the first time and making her feel complete.

John began to drive into her with a quick, eager rhythm, not caring a damned thing about her own pleasure as he hurried to get himself off in her tight, wet cunt. However, their programming guaranteed that she'd enjoy it immensely anyway, and so she did, her body twitching in pleasure from both his driving into her wet cunt, and Billy's energetic fucking of her cleavage, which felt fantastic to her, from the friction in her cleavage to his hands on her tits.

But she was also enjoying the face-fucking that Derrick was giving her, despite the fact she had to struggle and repress her moan of pleasure. She really didn't have to do anything but keep her lips locked around his cock as he pounded his iron-hard cock deep into her throat.

All three men hurried with hard, fast rhythms, and they came at almost the same instant. Even as her cunt tightened around John's cock and accepted the stream of cum that gushed into her new womanhood, he gulped at the spray of cum flowing down her throat, and reveled at the feel of the jism spraying over her tits and face as Billy spurted his load.

Quickly, then men wiped themselves with her long, newly-dyed hair and pulled on their pants, grinning at each other. Even though she hadn't orgasmed, it was still the most incredible sex Cassie had ever had - not knowing that she was programmed to enjoy it that much.

"Okay, babe - you clean yourself up and wait right here until we get back." Derrick told her, firmly. "You're not to leave until we get back, or tell anybody what happened or anything about us, got it?"

"Of course, Derrick." Cassie assured him, stretching luxuriously and massaging the slowly cooling cum into her huge tits with pleasure. After her three lovers had departed, she padded into the bathroom and took a long, slow shower. After she was clean, she left the water running and padded - dripping - into her bedroom, where she retrieved the huge dildo stored on the top shelf.

Returning to the shower, she spread her legs and braced herself against the wall. While the warm water continued to spray down over her body, she used one hand to fondle her huge tits as she took the massive dildo in the other and slowly worked it into her cunt, moaning as it slid deep inside her, filling her completely. Her moan increased in volume and frequency as she began to drive the phallus into her, faster and faster, building the rhythm as she went faster and harder...

Cassie screamed in pure pleasure as she was taken by an orgasm, followed quickly by another one. The dildo fell from nerveless fingers as she slumped numbly to the bottom of the tub and shut off the water, letting herself bask in the afterglow.

"God..." She whispered to herself. "It's so nice not to have to pretend I'm not a cum-hungry nymphomaniac after hiding it for all these years..."

Her face slowly took on a puzzled look as her smile slowly slipped from her face. "But... I've only been a woman for a year." She muttered, confused. "How could I..?"

She sat, trying to think. The three brothers hadn't cared enough to ask anything about her past, and had given her a story that could have been straight out of a porno script. Poorly written as it was, the power of the drug they'd given her would probably have made it work...

...on any other woman. they could never have known about Cassie's unusual history, thought.

"But... I wasn't even a woman - and when I was a man, I liked women..." Cassie muttered to herself, finding a loophole that led her around the mental blocks that had been put in place. "So, I shouldn't be horny for men now - but I am. I wasn't before, though - and wasn't until..."

Slowly, her eyes widened as she realized what had been done to her. She still couldn't remember the specifics, and wasn't entirely sure which thoughts were her own and which were implanted - but she now knew that the three guys had somehow screwed with her head and altered her thinking.

"Oh... My... God..." Cassie whispered, horrified. "What have they done to me...?"

* * * * *

"Man, oh Man." Little John said, rubbing his hands together. "I am so fucking psyched for another piece of Cassie's sweet body." "Yeah, well - you're just gonna have to wait until I'm done." Derrick - the eldest brother - said firmly.

"Like hell - you wait until I'm done!" Billy retorted as they climbed the steps towards their little sex-slave's apartment. "All I got was to tit- fuck her!"

"Fuck you both." Little John retorted. "I'm the one who gut the stuff, 'member?"

"Look - this is silly." Derrick said with a sigh. "Later on, we'll get her to invite a couple of her better-looking stripper friends over, and we'll program 'em up right - maybe throw in something special for each. Then we'll just take turns with the three girls, so none of us have to wait."

"Damn - that's good thinking." Billy agreed with a grin as they reached the top of the stairs. After a hard ten hours of work down at the stockyards, they were looking forwards to getting some more of their sweet little sex-doll's 'willing' action.

Unlocking the front door, Derrick lead his brothers into the apartment...

The three siblings stopped dead, staring at the sight of Cassie sitting in a chair beside a tall, slender man in a business suit. A slender- but-athletic man, who was holding an odd-looking gun.

"What the fuck...?" Derrick managed to blurt out.

Then the man fired. The gun made a 'pffff' sound, and Derrick stared down at the tranquilizer dart stuck in one beefy leg. "Why, you little shit..." He managed before he collapsed, insensate.

The other brothers jerked into action - Little John towards the door that had just swung shut behind him, Billy towards the man with the tranquilizer gun.

Richard calmly shot Little John first, preventing him from escaping, then fired and hit Billy, stepping to one side as the bulky man lost control of his body and flopped through the place where Richard had stood a moment before. He looked down at the three limp brothers, his face set in an expression of disgust and anger.

"You know something?" Richard asked Cassie, who was trembling as she struggled with the conflict between her real emotions and implanted ones. "I thought you deserved what I did to you, and I think it managed to make you a better person. I still only have mild regret over it. But with these three, and what they did to you..." His lips tightened. "I think I'm actually going to enjoy this..."

* * * * *

Little John awoke slowly, groaning as he sat up, his head pounding from the drug-induced hang-over. It took him a second to realize he was stark naked.

Shocked, he bolted straight upright, ignoring the throbbing in his head as he covered his crotch and looked around.

Light streaming in through a window at the front showed him to be in some sort of kinky sex-shop. Clothing of leather and latex shared the walls and racks with frilly lingerie amid chains and collars. Various videos took up one wall, and a glass counted showcased all sorts of sex toys, lotion and lubes.

"What the...?" Little John muttered, shocked. His mind brought back the image of the man with the tranquilizer gun, and the beefy mans' lips tightened in anger as he realized that the bitch had somehow - despite her commands - gotten help. This was some sort of revenge.

"I'm gonna kill you..." John said darkly, his eyes narrowing in anger. He took a couple of steps forward, looking for something suitable to wear home until he could get changed and go teach that bitch and her friend a lesson.

He stopped dead when he heard a strange rustling sound.

His eyes opened wide as an opera-length glove of black latex on a display rack jerked, making the noise again. Then, as he watched, wide-eyed, it suddenly yanked itself free of the clip that held it and flew through the air towards him.

"Holy fuck!" Little John swore, shocked, instinctively throwing his hands up in a reflex action.

The glove whipped onto his right hand, pulling itself on his arm until it covered the tips of his fingers to just below the shoulder. "What the fuck...?" Little John cursed, staring at the glove on his arm...

...which suddenly 'clenched', sending a brief spasm of pain through his arm. His eyes widened even further in horrified confusion as the arm and hand under the thin, flexible material was reshaped into a slender, shapely female arm and dainty, slim-fingered feminine hands.

"No fucking way!" John cried. "This ain't happening!" He tried to tear the glove off with his left hand...

and his right hand, no longer under his control, batted the other hand away.

"Oh, fuck..." John said, in disbelief. She turned and headed for the door, still trying to grapple with the newly feminine arm that sprouted incongruously from his broad, muscular shoulder.

As he passed the nearby display rack, the feminine right arm lashed out and grabbed a hold of the matching glove. John didn't have time to react as it began yanking the glove onto his other arm, and by the time he was mentally able to react, he could no longer control either one of his arms or hands as they smoothed the second glove over his now equally feminine left arm. "Ahhhhh!" John screamed, bolting for the front door without any consideration for his nudity.

He'd barely taken a couple of steps when his rebellious arms lashed out, each gripping a firmly anchored object. The sudden move meant that inertia pulled his legs out from under him, and he went down hard.

Immediately, he tried to struggle back to his feet, but it was nearly impossible. Not only couldn't he use his arms to help him, they actively fought against him, reaching for a pair of black latex leggings...

"NO!" He bellowed in stark terror. "Stop! Let me go! This can't be happening!" But it was.

He flailed his legs, but it was an exercise in futility as the arms and hands worked in concert, pulling on the glossy black legging that covered from ankle to the top of his hips. A second later, his legs stopped struggling as the material compressed around a pair of shapely female legs and a firm, full ass behind wide, womanly hips.

"Nooooo!" John cried in anguish as he felt his cock and balls compressed almost painlessly into a cunt behind the zipper that ran down the crotch of the garment. He found himself rising to his feet as his new legs betrayed him and carried him to a chair.

"Stop! Please, I'll be good! I didn't mean it!" John screamed almost incoherently at his unseen tormentor as his arms and legs fought what remained of his male body, sitting him down and forcing a pair of thigh-high black leather boots onto feet that became small and feminine to suit the new footwear. He found himself rising once more, perched easily atop the boots six-inch spiked heels. He blubbered incoherently as his body carried him over to the wall, where the gloved hand picked out a black spandex mock-turtleneck top. His female arms pulled the skin-tight garment on over his angrily whipping head.

A second later, it constricted around his body. He felt his neck move inwards as the high neck reshaped it, and he stared down in horror as two large mounds pressed the fabric outwards until what looked to be firm triple-'D' cup tits bounced inside the material, causing him to shiver in horror at the feel of his firm, heavy breasts move inside the fabric, their extraordinarily large nipples becoming erect for no apparent reason.

"Please, no, I... I'll... don't..." John gibbered in horror as his arms pulled on a black leather corset that shrunk his waist away to almost nothing a few seconds after it was strapped in place.

then he watched in horror as his rebellious body carried him to the opposite wall, where it picked up a molded black mask bearing unmistakable female features on it, right down to the gloss red latex 'lips'.

His - or her - hands pulled the mask into place, and it sealed itself to female features that now matched those on the mask. In that instant, John's voice disappeared, and she found herself unable to make a sound as she lowered a sculpted red plastic 'wig' into place on her head.

Now stuck in a completely female body she was unable to control, John was little but a horrified, helpless passenger as her body snapped a collar around her neck. A chain ran all the way down to her ankles, where it joined to the chain of the ankle-cuffs she snapped into place, and another chain ran from the central one to the cuffs that she snapped on each of her slender wrists, limiting her movements.

Helpless, she could only watch in horror as her body was forced to use sexy, short little mincing steps to walk to the counter, where she picked up a pen and a piece of paper. Horrified, John watched her traitorous hand write in a flowing, feminine script.

'Hi, I'm Little Janice Sex-Doll. I'm a mute submissive nymphomaniac who wants you to be my master. Take me home and feed me, and I'll do anything you ask me to. I'm exceptionally skilled at all types of sex, and I'm a great cook and house-keeper. Please, fuck me often, and find excuses to spank me, because I love a dominant man who knows how to rain me to be his perfect little sex slave.'

Unable to scream in horror, John - Janice - watched herself walk to the door, feeling every move her new body made as she let herself out of the store and walked down the street under the light from the street lamps.

"Holy shit...!" A voice said, and Janice turned her head to see a slender, vaguely handsome young black man in a Nike jacket and tear-away pants gaping at her.

Without hesitation, she turned and walked up to the youth, her body not responding in any way to the desperate fight it's trapped male mind put up. She handed the note to the incredulous young man, who took it numbly, then looked down at it. Shooting her another slack-jawed look, he read it again in disbelief.

"You're shittin' me, right?"

Helplessly, she shook her head vigorously. Taking his hand, she led him a few dozen steps into the relative privacy of an alley.

Internally, John screamed as Janice dropped to one knee, the chain pulling tightly and with unnerving pleasure across her crotch as it was pulled to the leg behind her. Her latex-clad hand reached out with graceful assurance and yanked down the man's pants and underwear.

"Oh, shit!" The youth said, eyes boggling as Janice - her male mind screaming soundlessly - bent forward. The soft red latex of her mask's lips were slit in the middle, allowing her to take the youth's semi-rigid cock into her mouth. One latex-clad hand wrapped around the base of his shaft as the other began to fondle his balls. Helplessly, she began to expertly suck his cock, hands, head and tongue moving with expert rhythm as she worked to slowly bring him towards the brink of orgasm, only to slow and hold it off when he got near.

Inside, John's male mind was screaming in horror and disgust at having 'another' man's cocking in her now feminine mouth. Even worse was the fact that she was giving the blowjob as if she'd practiced this hundreds of times before, showing expertise that she would never have wanted to claim.

Then, finally, the youth could hold off no longer, and his iron-hard cock spewed forth a spray of warm, salty cum that she swallowed 'eagerly', taking every drop of it down her helplessly open throat and licking his organ clean before tucking it away again.

Rising to her boot-clad feet, she took the free-hanging leash end of the chain that fettered her, and held it out to the man.

“Damn...” The youth said, a stunned - but very, very happy - look on his face. “The guys just ain’t gonna believe this shit.”

Smiling, he took the proffered chain and began to lead Janice to her new home, walking slowly to accommodate her mincing stride. Inside, a male mind just screamed and screamed and screamed...

* * * * * Billy awoke...

...to find himself walking up to an apartment building. Confused, he tried to stop moving - but it was absolutely useless. He had absolutely no control over his body.

As he reached the door, he could see his reflection in the glass - which was the only way he could see himself, as he didn’t even have enough control to look down.

In the reflection, he saw he was dressed in a baggy Hawaiian shirt and a pair of black shorts. White sneakers clad his feet, and he was carrying a box full of red-printed paper bags full of - from the smell and the oriental lettering - Chinese food.

Reaching out, he watched in confusion as his disobedient hand opened the door and he entered the apartment, finding himself at the bottom of a flight of steps. He found himself starting to climb the steps.

With each step, a small, jolt of strange energy warped through his body. He could feel his stride altering slightly each step he ascended, something odd happening to his balance. He could also feel a strange sensation in hips, ass, crotch and chest as he moved, and he felt awkward and ungainly, badly off balance as he reached the first landing - and saw in the mirrored door that led into the hallway his reflection.

His skin had gone a couple shade darker, as if he’d tanned while climbing the steps. But it was much more than that, and he could see that the legs protruding from the shorts were smoother, leading up to hips and ass that filled out the shorts more than they had before. His shoes looked warped, narrower at the tip than they should be, and with a broad, inch-high heel on the back, like a cowboy boot’s heel.

His shirt was stretched over two small mounds on his chest, and he was horrified to realize that they were tits - maybe an ‘A’ cup, maybe a ‘B’ cup, but definitely tits. Beneath his now longer head of thick black hair, his facial features were subtly altered, although he couldn’t pin down what the changes were.

Then the instant’s view he had vanished as his body turned to continue up the next flight of stairs.

With each step, he could feel his body changing further. He could feel the gaining mass of his burgeoning breasts, and they began to move slightly with each step he took up the stairs. He could feel his slowly lengthening hair training down his neck as his stride altered with each riser as his hips and ass expanded further.

At the next landing, the quick reflection showed what appeared to be a masculine looking Eurasian woman - or, perhaps, a Eurasian man in drag. The shirt was now stretched over a pair of tits at least DDD in size, and the shorts were tightening over wide hips and an full ass, the tighter fabric also outlining a now significantly smaller cock. The legs were almost smooth, if not terrible attractive, and were perched atop what looked like canvas pumps with a blockish three inch heel. His face had taken on a slight Asian cast to the eyes, nose and cheekbones, and very faint, light make-up emphasized the somewhat feminine features.

Then he turned away again to climb the next set of steps.

This time, the reflection showed what seemed to be a tall oriental woman, her skin smooth and bronze, with nice legs and large tits that were at least a good GGG cup. She was moving with a feminine of her wide hips and firm ass she as turned to climb the last set of steps.

Inside, Billy was screaming and trying desperately to go back down the stairs - but he had no more control over this body then he'd had when he'd first awoken. Instead, he could only absorb the hurried glance of her new body at the top landing. Now several inches shorter, the clothes strained to contain her outrageous figure, especially the massive tits that were easily as big as Cassie's massive mounds. Her fully female Asian face was made up, and she walked through the door in a pair of white platform heels with seven inch stilettos as she headed down the hallway and knocked on the door.

It swung open, to reveal a muscular young man in a T-shirt and jeans. Behind him, three more young men were watching TV - but at the inarticulate sound the man at the door made, they all turned to gape at the massive breasted Asian who stood at the door with their order of Chinese food.

"De 'rivery." Billy found himself saying in a high-pitched female voice with a heavy, sing-song accent. "Goo' food. T'irty-nine dollah, se'enty six cent. You pay now, okay?"

Stunned, the man at the door took the food and put it on the counter, gathering the money from the guys and handed it to a helplessly grinning Billy, who tucked it into a purse that had appeared on her slender shoulder at some point.

"T'ank you, eveysing derivered, okay? Me no on derivery anymore." "Uh... okay." The guy at the door said, unsure what she was driving at. "Okay, you guys wanna fuck me? I goo' fuck, fuck you long time. Okay?"

Billy wanted to scream as the words emerged form her helpless mouth, and the men in the room gaped at her. "What?"

"Me sooo ho'ny." Billy helplessly giggled. "Me no hooker, me no money - me jus' wanna fuck long time. Fuck all handsome guys. You fuck me now?"

Not waiting for an answer, she entered the apartment and shut the door. The guys merely stared, stunned, as she dropped her purse to the floor and took of the straining shirt, setting her massive tits free. The jiggled once, then settled incredibly firm and round on her chest, the massive nipples rapidly becoming engorged. The guys eyes seemed locked to that chest, watching her tits sway as she walked to the center of the room and lay down, wiggling out of the shorts and showing off her shaven cunt.

Billy helplessly screamed impotently as her newly female body smiled at the men. "Who fus? Who fuck me fus?" "Holy shit!" One of the guys said, drooling.

The guy who'd answered the door snapped out of his daze, going over to Billy and gently pulling her to her feet. "Uh, look..." "Bue Lei" Billy helplessly introduced herself, pronouncing it 'Buh Lay'

"Uh, Buh Lay - I'm not sure..." He started.

"Me sure. Me sooo ve'ey ho'ny. Prease, you all fuck me good, prease? Me need young cock to fuck me hard. I suck, too. Like it all ways. No charges - me no hooker."

The young man got the picture pretty damned clear, and led her off to the bedroom, her hands helplessly undressing him as her mind howled in horror, fear and disgust.

By the time the door to the bedroom swung closed, he was as naked as she was, and when she lay on the bed, knees helplessly spread, he didn't hesitate.

Inside, Billy screamed, but her new body complimented the man on top of her and begged for more as the man fucked her outrageous body. The internal screams of horror were soon drowned out by both internal and external screams of pleasure as the young man fucked her hard, bringing her to an earth-shattering series of orgasms that shook her body.

Panting, the young man climbed from her helplessly smiling, thankful body. Inside, Billy was a whimpering mass as the man pulled on his pants and went out the door.

Helplessly, Billy heard his new voice call out. "Who nex'd?"

* * * * *

"So - a week in Chicago to get your affairs in order?" Richard asked wearily, his arms wrapped around a still-shaking Cassie.

"Yeah - that should be about right." She said softly. She still felt very confused with herself, especially her new attraction to Richard - but she figured that, all in all, she'd be able to handle it, especially since she knew he wouldn't mis-use her newfound delight in everything sexual.

Richard shook his head. "That was a close thing." He said, fingering the envelope in his pocket that Jose had hand-delivered to his house a few hours ago. "Thank God they were that stupid. Smart enough to carefully instruct you not to tell anyone - then stupid enough not to say one damned thing about not writing anything about it."

"Yes - and thank you for coming to my rescue. If you hadn't..." She shivered at the thought, then shivered again at the thought that - if not for her exceedingly strange past, she might have spent the rest of her life in 'cheerful' bondage.

"Don't even think about it..." Richard told her softly. "Like I said that morning - your debt was fully paid. Since then, you've just been a friend of mine, and when a friend of mine needs help..."

Cassie smiled quietly up at Richard. "Don't you mean 'girlfriend', darling?"

Blinking, Richard slowly smiled and leaned down to kiss Cassie full on the lips, a kiss that was returned with eager passion. "It's too bad we have to wait before we can go home." Richard said, slowly.

"Maybe - but I've got a perfectly good bed right here, in the meantime." Cassie said, seductively, rising gracefully to her feet and holding out her hand. "Just because I know that my new enjoyment of sex is artificial in origin doesn't make it feel any less spectacular."

Taking her dainty hand, Richard let her lead him off to her bedroom.

* * * * *

Derrick awoke to the feel of warm sun streaming in through windows as he slowly rose from the comfort of unconsciousness. Stretching, he moaned at his aching head, and slowly sat up...

"What the fuck...?" Derrick gasped, gaping down at himself in perplexity.

He was lying in a strange, ornate bed in a strange, old-fashion room. But even worse than that, he was dressed solely in a pale pink silk negligee trimmed at the neckline with white lace.

But worse still was the sight of his smooth legs, utterly denuded of every follicle of hair, peeking out from beneath the hem of the feminine garment.

But there was more to it than that, he quickly discovered when he peeled off the negligee - not just his legs were free of body hair - his entire body was smooth and bare, like a baby's bottom.

"Holy fuckin' shit!" he swore, climbing from the strange bed and staring down at his body. "What the fuck is going on here...?"

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: Working in the coroner's office, Josh is shocked when a body is wheeled that looks exactly like him, only female. He discovers that she has just won a lottery, and he decides to transform himself to collect, but, in the end, the scam is on him.

Tangled Web

By Gunslinger

"Hey, Whitey, Y'all got a sister?"

Josh Stevens looked up from the novel he was reading with a frown on his face. "What the hell are you talking about?"

The driver of the hearse, a muscular black man, smiled. "This Jane Doe we're bringing in, I swear she's a dead ringer for you, old buddy. When we hauled her outta the water - man it was freaky. For a couple a seconds I swore it was you in drag layin' there."

Josh waited a couple seconds for the punchline, but none came. A minute later, the doors to the morgue swung open, and the two attendants rolled in the gurney with a body bag on it. Josh rose from his chair, stretched leisurely, and walked over to sign the body in.

The black driver continued to talk. "I tell you Whitey, open the bag before you slide her into the cooler, man. You gotta see it to believe it." The driver smiled, his teeth startlingly white against his coal black teeth. With a grunt, Josh handed him the signed form, and the three men left, again leaving Josh alone, with only the dead for company.

Twenty two years old, Josh Stevens was a slender, unremarkable young man with a thatch of close-cropped, extremely pale blond hair - hence, the nickname. For the past year he'd been working as the on-duty attendant for the Richmond Coroner's Office - the most morbid and depressing job on earth. Shitty hours, lousy pay - and the only job Josh could find. Sometimes, watching the suicides the hearse carried in, Josh found himself sympathizing.

With a sigh, he wheeled the gurney over to the row of refrigerated cubicles and slid open one of the stainless steel drawers, and got ready to shift the body bag over. Then he paused. The long, lonely hours guaranteed that his job was damn boring, and curiosity was gnawing away at him. With a shrug, Josh unzipped the bag and looked inside.

The woman's body stared sightlessly up at him, her skin pale and lips blue. She was still soaking wet from her last 'swim' in this life, the water sloshing in the bottom of the rubber bag.

"Holy Shit!"

Josh gasped and took a step back, heart pounding. Not because of the body itself - he'd seen far worse - but because the driver had been right.

It was like looking into some sort of twisted mirror.

Her hair, several inches longer than his, was the exact same shade of platinum blonde. Despite the odd coloration of her face due to death, the resemblance to his own was more than just amazing - it was eerie. Her body, like his, was slender, although her waist was much smaller than his, and her hips a trifle fuller. Two large, firm tits lay on her chest, tenting the soaked cloth of her cheap cotton dress.

Taking a couple of deep breaths, Josh calmed himself and stepped closer for a better look.

Her sightless eyes, staring into infinity, were a couple shades darker than his own ice-blue eyes, but still very close. Even her teeth, visible through her gaping mouth, were like his. Neither of them possessed any dental work at all.

Still stunned by the eerie resemblance to himself, Josh started to zip the bag closed. He almost missed it - the edge of something protruding from her neckline.

Grimacing, Josh reached out and gripped the protruding piece of plastic and tugged. The object, which had been stuffed into the dead woman's cleavage, and had been overlooked by the coroner's attendant, came free.

It was a small plastic Zip-Lock bag, sealed to keep the water out. Inside rested a folded piece of paper and a key.

Nervously, Josh looked around to make sure nobody had come in while he had been gaping at this near-clone. Jamming the bag into his pocket, he zipped up the body bag and transferred it to the drawer. Sliding it shut, he wrote on the card on the front 'Jane Doe - 6/12/98'.

Wheeling the gurney out of the way, he went back to his desk. Taking another quick look around, he pulled the bag out of his pocket and opened it. Dropping the key on the desk, he opened the piece of paper and read it.

'I can't take it anymore. I can't keep going through life as a non-entity, forgotten in the world. I have nothing - no job, no friends, no family - no LIFE. I'm utterly alone. Now, even my home will be gone soon because I can't pay my rent. I have no one to turn to for help. I'm going to end my life. Maybe in death I'll find peace. With this note is the key to my apartment. Sell whatever you can to pay for my funeral.'

The note was signed 'Debi Iverson', and gave the address of her apartment.

Josh looked at the note, then down at the key. Slowly, he picked up the small piece of milled metal, and his gaze went blank as he contemplated this new information.

Josh was, quite simply, broke. His parents had died at an early age, and he'd taken to the streets. Never finishing high school, he'd grubbed to survive, until he'd landed the only job he could find. Living in a shithole apartment, his only spending money came from an illegal and rather morbid source.

Josh robbed the dead.

When a body came in, Josh would check it for valuables that he could steal and pawn. Life was hard, and Josh always figured that he needed the stuff more than some dead body did.

Now, a possible windfall had dropped unexpectedly in his lap. He held a key that might grant him access to items of real value, like a TV or something.

And the DOA was listed as a Jane Doe. He held the only link to her real identity in his hand. If he didn't tell anyone, nobody would ever find out...

Making up his mind, Josh slid the note and key into his pocket, and went back to his work, impatient for his shift to be over.

* * * * *

Even as the bus roared away in a cloud of diesel fumes, Josh had a sinking feeling in the pit of his stomach.

When his shift had ended at two in the morning, Josh had checked a route schedule, then caught a bus that would take him near Debi Iverson's apartment. Now, as he surveyed the run-down neighborhood, the visions of dollar signs were fading.

With a sigh, Josh began walking, checking the building numbers as he passed by. It didn't take him long to find the right place, a pre- World War II brownstone in an advanced state of disrepair. The apartment he was looking for turned out to be just inside the front door, and with a twist of the stolen key, he was soon inside.

Turning on the lights, Josh began to poke idly through the one-room apartment. As soon as he'd stepped across the threshold, he knew he wouldn't find anything worth while. The place exuded the miasma of the poor, everything cheap and shoddy.

The only thing of interest, perhaps, was the purse. It was laying on the stained coffee table, atop a pile of 'Single Woman' magazines. Flopping onto the couch with a sigh, Josh opened the purse and dumped it's contents onto the table.

Makeup. Driver's license, Passport. Assort junk like Kleenex, gum, old receipts...

Aha! Bankbook. Grand total of...$2.76

"Shit" Josh sighed wearily, tossing the bankbook down. Rising to his feet, he headed for the door, the stopped, eyeing the mailbox mounted in the wall beside the door. With a shrug, he opened it and pulled out the mail which Debi had never had a chance to read.

Idly, he began opening the envelopes and scan the content. Suddenly, he stopped dead, jaw dropping. Slowly, his eyes went back to the top of the paper and he began to read.

Congratulations Ms. Iverson!

Your entry was drawn in our 10th Anniversary Sweepstakes. Single Woman Magazine is proud to announce you have won our Grand Prize, worth over One Million Dollars!

Enclosed is a certificate, redeemable at any American Pride Airlines office, for a one-way ticket to Tampa Florida, where you will board the Pacific Lines cruise ship the Caribbean Queen, for an exclusive, all expense paid two-week Singles Cruise in the Caribbean!

Upon completion of the cruise, you will take possession of the Fort Meyer's, Florida, Dream Home. Worth over $350,000 alone, this luxurious four-bedroom bungalow comes fully furnished, complete with two cars and the first year's taxes fully paid.

You will also receive a Cash Prize of Half a Million dollars, disbursed over the next five years! Remember- You must check in at Tampa no later than July 3rd, as the ship sales on the 4th. Yours, Janet Gulago, Prize Disbursement.

"Holy shit!" Josh said, staring dumbly at the letter. The same day she'd committed suicide, the answer to all of Debi's problem's had arrived in the mail.

Suddenly, Josh started. It could also be the answer to all his problems, if only he could find a way to claim the prize. Like, if he claimed he was her brother. They looked enough alike that maybe...

"Single Woman Magazine. Hell, yeah, I bet they'd just hand over the prize to some GUY if he asked." Josh snorted, hope draining away. "They're not going to give that prize to anyone but Debi Iverson, and she's dead."

Slowly, a thought crept into his mind. "But THEY don't know that..." he muttered, looking at the thought. He shook his head suddenly, unable to believe what he was thinking. But, the thought kept coming back. Slowly, his eyes turned to the pile of stuff from the purse.

Including the I.D. and passport.

"All I have to do is pretend to be a woman a month, tops, and I get all this shit." Josh said to himself, thinking it over. Finally, he reached a decision. He'd check into it - see if there WAS a way he could pass for Debi Iverson for a length of time. If there wasn't, he'd forget about it. If there was...

He wouldn't be able to claim everything. The cruise, yeah. The house - sure. He could sell it, taking a big loss, but still getting at least a hundred grand. Same with the cash money - all he'd get was the first check. Still, that totaled two hundred grand - plus a car.

And it's not like anyone would ever KNOW he'd pretended to be a woman for a month...

* * * * *

It was a week later that the answer came to Josh, in the form of an advertisement in the local paper.

Josh was scanning through the paper as he sat behind his desk on another long, boring shift. He'd already read the sports section, the comics and the headlines, and was flipping idly through the paper when the ad hit his eye.

ARE YOU CONSIDERING SEX REASSIGNMENT?

If you are considering a Male-to-Female sex change operation, but are undecided, you may be perfect for our program.

The American Gender Institute is looking for volunteers for our new program. We will pay volunteers $5,500 to test our new temporary sex-change program. This program, designed to allow you a chance to experience life as a female BEFORE undergoing irreversible surgery, allows you a six-month, or less, 'trial period'. At anytime, if you decide NOT to undergo sex reassignment, the effects are immediately reversible.

DISCRETION is ASSURED

Josh read the ad through twice more, his mind whirling. In the end, it was the dollar signs that decided him. Tomorrow, he would go to this American Gender Institute, and find out how long it took to 'become a woman', so to speak - and if everything worked out, he'd volunteer. Then, after he claimed 'her' prizes, he'd have the process reversed, nobody the wiser.

The extra five and a half grand wouldn't hurt either.

* * * * *

"Good morning Mr... Uh, Doe. I'm Doctor Roberts." The older, bespectacled gentleman shook Josh's hand, and gestured for him to take a seat.

Josh sat in the comfortable chair warily. He'd discovered that the ad hadn't been lying about the discretion part - not only did they not need his real name, but the payment upon completion of the 'change' would be paid with a cashier's check. Still, now that he was here, his own doubt's about what he was going to do - let them make him into some sort of pseudo-woman, for God's sake! - were taking hold.

"So, Doc, before I sign I need to know... How long does this, uh, process take?" Josh asked nervously, fidgeting. "What, exactly, do you do?"

Dr. Roberts smiled. "Well, it's really quite simple. We use injections of a destabilized fat compound to make alterations to your figure - to your specifications of course - as well constructing a 'false vagina' around your penis. We also supply you with an adequate amount of hormonal drugs. It's a simple procedure, and it is all done in a single day - about eight hours, to be exact."

Josh took a deep breath and closed his eyes. In his mind, he slowly ran through all his options, and considered the pros and cons about what he was going to do. But still, the money, more than anything else, was the most important factor.

Opening his eyes, Josh forced a smile. "When do we start?"

Dr. Roberts smiled. "Well, if you want to fill out this questionnaire, I'll prep the team. It's now..." the older doctor checked his expensive watch. "eleven in the morning. So, you'll leave here about eight o'clock tonight, able to pass perfectly as a woman, and five and a half thousand dollars richer."

* * * * *

"Okay, you can wheel...her to a recovery room." Dr. Richards said, stripping off his latex gloves. The two attendants nodded and wheeled the gurney, carrying it's comatose cargo, away.

The duty nurse watched the new woman being wheeled away, than approached the doctor, carrying the patient's chart. "It must be exciting." She commented brightly. "The first test case of your new project."

Dr. Richard's smiled. "Yes, it is." He bent his head over the chart and began to write. "Now nurse, here's the drugs you'll have to supply him with. The first is a female hormone supplement. The second, the transplant inhibitor." He looked up at her. "The hormone supplements will enhance his feminine figure and blood chemistry. The inhibitor will keep the body from accepting the vaginal construct. Without the inhibitor, the false vagina would bond permanently with his system."

The nurse nodded. "Yes sir."

Finished writing, the doctor handed the form back to her. "Now, I've specified a two-month supply. If she needs more, she can have the prescription refilled."

The nurse took the chart as the doctor left. Looking down, she began to walk towards the pharmacy to have the prescription filled.

Because this was the first time the procedure had been performed, the nurse didn't realize that the Doctor had accidentally dropped down when placing a decimal point. When the prescription was filled, the hormone supplements were at ten times their supposed strength, while the inhibitor was only one tenth what it was supposed to be.

* * * * *

Josh blinked and looked around groggily, his mind slowly fighting off the anesthesia they given him.

He was laying alone in a small room. Lit by buzzing fluorescent lights, the room contained a bed, a chair with some clothes on it, and a large, floor to ceiling mirror.

Carefully, Josh swung his legs over the edge of the bed. As he did, he noticed that they were now smooth and hairless. Although he'd been told that part of the procedure involved removing his body hair, it still came as a surprise to see his smooth, hairless legs. Even odder still was the way the air felt, moving across is denuded body.

Carefully, Josh rose to his feet. His balance was slightly off, thanks to the disconcerting weight of his - HIS! - firm, large breasts. Josh walked over to the mirror, his new chest bouncing and swaying gently.

He was looking at Debi Iverson.

Except for his shorter hair and wider waist, the woman gaping back from the mirror was a perfect clone - 'Dead ringer?', Josh thought, eliciting a small smile - of the dead woman.

His new breasts, a large, firm D-cup, hung from his now-smooth chest. Thick, stubby nipples protruded from the pinkish areolas of his bust. His chest felt strained, the skin pulled taut over the implanted fat. He'd been told that the strained sensation would fade away over the next few hours as his skin stretched, and the breasts would sag slightly, looking more natural.

And between his legs lay a perfectly feminine vagina, surrounded by a small, neat patch of hair. Josh hesitated for a second, then slowly, lightly, touched the new alteration between his - no, he corrected herself, she had to start thinking of herself as 'her' - legs.

The actual flesh surrounding the vagina was artificial. Highly realistic to the eye and the touch, it enclosed her penis, which lay tucked under her legs. The top of the cunt lay along the bottom of her cock, and as she gently slid a finger into the opening, she could feel it through her disguised penis. Quickly, she removed the finger, marveling at how real it looked. Thankfully, despite the appearance, it didn't actually FEEL all that strange, except for the way his cock was laying. It was like - wearing a too tight pair of jockey shorts.

Added to that was the fact that her ass had also been altered into a rounder, more pleasingly feminine shape.

Turning, she walked over to the clothes provided and quickly dressed. The clothes were simple - a plain white cotton set of bra and panties, socks, jeans, white T-shirt and sneakers. The only thing that was a little hard was the bra, and she quickly figured that one out. The feel of the fabric encasing her tits and rubbing over her nipples was incontrovertible, as was the way the straps pulled on her shoulders from the weight of her full bosom. She knew that it would take some getting used to. As would the way her firmer, fuller ass felt as she struggled to pull the jeans over it.

Underneath the clothing was a small purse. Looking inside, she found her wallet and keys, the check, and a supply of the hormone supplements and inhibitors, plus instructions. It felt damned strange to pick up a purse and know it was HER purse, and for a second, she almost reconsidered. Then, shaking her head, she opened the door to the room, and looked out into an empty hallway, at the end of which a door outside beckoned.

Taking a deep breath, she straightened her back, and headed for that door - and the beginning of her masquerade as 'Debi Iverson'. The instant she stepped through the door, everything became decidedly odd.

Wrapped up in her own thoughts - and the sensations of her altered figure - she almost bumped into a elderly man walking down the sidewalk. The older gent smiled pleasantly. "Pardon me, Miss." He apologized, then continued on.

That was it - the whole world would now see her - and treat her - as a woman. A young woman, kind of cute in a tomboyish sort of way. It wasn't the physical changes only - she'd now have to start acting like the young woman she now appeared to be. For the first time, she TRULY realized what that meant - such things as making sure she used the right bathroom, for instance.

And the way she walked, for another. She realized that she'd walked down that empty hallway with a decided masculine stride. She'd have to watch out for all those little things from now on.

Sighing, she began to walk again, heading for the bus stop. She tried to emulate the way she'd seen other women walk, swinging her hips more and taking smaller steps. She didn't realize that she was overdoing the rolling of her hips a little, doing fascinating things to her newly inflated buttocks packed tightly within her jeans.

* * * * *

Debi - which was how she forced herself to think of herself - unlocked the door to her - that is, the original Debi's - apartment, and went inside. Safe in the confines of the building, she locked the door behind her gratefully.

The entire time she'd been in public, she'd felt like she'd been on display. She waited for the inevitable denouncement, the outcry - which never came. The first hurdle was passed - the casual observer was willing to accept her as female.

But, that still left a lot for her to do, and she had only two weeks to perfect her role as Debi. At least now she had a shot at those prizes, and she was determined to get them. No matter what it took.

So, she pulled off the shoes and socks she wore, and rooted around in the closet. She emerged moments later with a pair of white pumps with a two inch heel. She sat on the couch and pulled the shoes on. They were a trifle tight, but bearable.

Carefully, she rose to her feet, balancing on the unfamiliar heels. With careful steps, she began to learn how to walk proficiently in heels.

Still tottering around the apartment, she cleared her throat. "Hi, I'm Debi Iverson. How are you?" No, too fake. This would take some time.

She wobbled around the room, talking to herself, for another two hours before deciding to call it a night. Still in the heels, she teetered to the bathroom and brushed her teeth, then used the toilet. It felt odd to piss through the vagina and wipe it afterward, but it was the least unusual thing she'd have to adapt to, as it was the one thing she wouldn't have to do with someone else watching.

Going into the bedroom, she undressed and, finally, removed the heels. She began to crawl between the covers - then stopped with a sigh. Getting back out of the bed, she rooted around in the purse, finally emerging with her pills. Dry swallowing them was rather disgusting, but she didn't feel like going for some water. Climbing back into bed, and swiftly fell asleep.

* * * * *

Over the next two weeks, Debi practiced being...Debi.

Her main source of instructions was the collection of 'Single Woman' magazines the original Debi had left behind. Carefully read, the magazines yielded a treasure trove of hints and tip, as well as an abundant supply of photos which she used as models as how to sit, how to stand, how to dress and how to do makeup.

What she didn't realize was that, by doing so, she was acting almost TOO feminine.

The hints and tips were all based on the premise that the woman was looking to attract men, that being the focus of the magazine. Debi, not realizing this, followed the advice as something women did all the time, not just when they were going on a date or something.

The same with the photos. The women in the photos were posed artfully. They sat or stood in poses slightly exaggerated, yet the trusting new woman copied them faithfully, under the mistaken impression that this was how woman stood or sat all the time.

She also changed clothes many times a day. She planned on being able to wear and move in feminine clothing natural, so practiced it all faithfully. She also practiced walking in every pair of shoes in the apartment - including, after much internal debate, the platform shoes with the six-inch spiked heels. Soon she could walk easily in any shoes she wore. Again, she didn't realize she was doing so in an amazingly provocative strut.

The clothing had also necessitated an unwelcome habit. The original Debi had possessed a much slimmer waist. So, the new Debi was consigned to wearing a painfully tight corset twenty four hours a day to be able to fit into the clothing. She started watching what she ate, hoping to slim down and relieve some of the pressure the tight, flesh-toned garment exerted.

Her voice training went well, and she quickly picked up a feminine sounding voice, and strive hard to be able to use it automatically.

For the entire two weeks, Debi remained confined in the apartment, studiously training at least twelve hours a day to act utterly feminine at all times.

If she had ventured outside and paid attention to the women around her, she might have realized that she was overdoing it. But, she didn't, so, she didn't.

She also took her daily pills. She didn't realize that the dosages were all wrong. The fact that her breasts seemed slightly swollen, with the nipples becoming more and more sensitive, didn't bother her, as she merely thought that it was supposed to be that way. Likewise, the fact that her new vagina was becoming more responsive and less artificial, she took in stride.

The hormone induced drug swings were put down to her own misgivings and worries. Not having any contact with the outside world, they were fairly mild, and didn't hint at the actual power she could possess.

So, she continued her home training, until the big day arrived.

* * * * *

Debi awoke early, unable to sleep. Tension, anxiety and eagerness fought for supremacy, and battled each other to a stand off.

Climbing out of bed, her first action was to, finally, remove the corset. With a sigh, she finally stripped the garment off and let it drop to the floor in a heap.

She figured that it, and the dieting, had worked, as her waist had slimmed down remarkably. She didn't realize that most of the loss came from the effects of the hormonal overdose.

There was even a chance that if she knew, it wouldn't matter. Because, somehow, during the past two weeks, that prize had loomed larger and larger in her mind, becoming sort of a Holy Grail for her. The greed that had always been a large part of her makeup had finally reached a chance to run rampant. Without the lure of money, she would have never started on this, and now, she was willing to do almost anything to achieve that prize that hovered just out of her reach.

So, she was actually, truly happy that she had achieved the slender, girlish figure that so many woman in the world would envy. Now, without the corset, she had no problem dressing in the clothes from Debi's - her - closet.

She chose a demure yet feminine outfit for travelling. A pair of beige slacks that fit tightly across her firm ass, and pinched in at her newly slender waist. These went on over a pair of simple white cotton panties.

A somewhat too-tight bra went over her swollen tits. For a few minutes she worried about the fact that her breasts, at DD, seemed to be a cup size larger than the original Debi's, then shrugged it off. It didn't really matter, after all. Over the white bra went a white blouse with lace at the collar. By now, she had no problems handling the fact the buttons were on the 'wrong' side.

Over this all when a navy-blue blazer, and a pair of black pumps adorned her feet. The final touches were carefully applied make-up, and a few accents of jewelry. Then, she quickly packed her single suitcase, and...

..had three hours before she had to leave.

Time seemed to drag on, and several times she actually checked the clock, firmly believing it was broken. It wasn't. Finally, after a two- day/three-hour wait, it was time to go. Grabbing her single piece of luggage, plus her purse, she eagerly rushed downstairs and hailed a taxi. She arrived right on time at the airport - to find her flight delayed for half an hour.

Finally, she was airborne, and she managed to relax as she was finally, irrevocably on her road to riches. The fact of all she had to do to get here seemed more than worth it - and it was only temporary, after all.

With that pleasant, reassuring thought in her mind, she fell asleep, and napped for the rest of the flight.

* * * * *

Her lack of luggage made getting through the terminal a breeze. She caught a cab out front, spending almost all her reserve of cash on the ride - and not worrying about it in the least. The ability to do so, for the first time in her life, was exhilarating. Any other time she would have tried to save every cent of her diminishing reserve, but she was spending it to go claim her prizes. The feeling kindled warmth in her chest.

She gave the cabbie the address, and sat back in the worn seat, enjoying the scenery passing outside the windows. Finally, the cab pulled up to a stop in a run-down section of the dockyards fronting the ocean. Debi frowned slightly.

"Are you sure this is the right place?" She asked the displaced Jamaican, frowning at the worn and aging buildings surrounding the yellow Ford.

"Sure is, girl. Dat's the place over there." The driver replied, pointing to a decaying office. Debi absently thanked him and, grasping her single suitcase, crossed the pavement towards the building. Behind her, the taxi departed, the driver not looking back.

Debi entered the shabby building through a dirt-begrimed glass door. The muscular young man behind the shabby desk looked up as she crossed the balding carpet. A smile crossed his face.

"Hi! You must be Debi Iverson." He said with a shifty smile, rising to his feet. "Please forgive the less than opulent surroundings - our main office is in New York, and this is a temporary location until the permanent Florida branch is opened. Here, let me get that for you." He took the bag from Debi.

"Thanks." Debi murmured, looking around. "Now what?"

"Just through this door over here, Miss Iverson." He replied easily, pointing. Debi opened the door and stepped through...
...to be grabbed and roughly thrown across the room by a second man, muscles bulging under his T-shirt. A third man leaned against the wall, a Colt pistol in hand. The first man stepped inside and locked the door behind him, tossing the suitcase aside contemptuously.

"Wha...? What's going on here?" Debi asked, staring at the man with the gun wide-eyed.

The man from the front desk laughed, a low, unpleasant sound. "You are one stupid bitch, you know that?" The man with the gun smiled cruelly, revealing a mouthful of bad teeth. Debi shuddered and looked away.

"It's really quite simple, bitch." The first man said, crossing the room towards her. "There are certain Japanese...'businessmen', who pay quite a large sum of money for 'round eye' pleasure girls." He ran one hand through Debi's short hair, and she flinched away. "They pay extra for blondes - I guess we got lucky this time."

"You...you kidnap women for slaves?" Debi stammered. It didn't seem real - white slavery was just an urban myth...wasn't it?

"It's really quite simple." The first man informed her, leering. "You are going to suck my cock. Then Johnny here is going to fuck you. It's kind of an entrance exam - if you're cooperative and talented, you get shipped off to our client. If not - well, then you're a liability, and my friend with the gun here blows your brains out, and we dump your body into the Gulf. It's your choice."

Debi gaped at him, then shook her head. "No...no. You don't understand..." She babbled, trying to explain that she wasn't really a woman.

The sound of the Colt being cocked stopped her short, and she turned to stare, wide-eyed, at the pistol pointed at her head.

For one endless, eternal second, all of Debi's options played out in sequence in her mind's eye. Between one beat of her heart and the next, she saw the possible results of any actions she could make at the instant in time.

Despite the disgust and horror of her other choices, her decision was dictated by the single strongest emotion that flooded through her at that instant - fear. Fear of death, of dying in this grungy room from a bullet to the head, with no chance to change her life.

Everything, all her hopes, plans and ideas, ending here and now - forever.

Then she was in motion. The gunman's finger had just started to tighten on the trigger when she forced a smile to her lips (actually, it looked more like a death rictus, but the best she could do under the circumstance) and slow slid down to her knees in front of him. The gunman relaxed as she unzipped the man's fly.

'I'm doing this for my life' Debi thought over and over as she forced herself to drop the man's pants and underwear down around his ankles.

His large, thick cock was rapidly becoming erect. Debi's hands shook slightly as she took a deep breath...

...and enveloped his throbbing cock with her red glossed lips. She was surprised to find that it didn't instantly make her want to vomit - she'd never really considered giving another man a blowjob, but subconsciously, she'd assumed that a cock would taste like half rotted meat or some equally disgusting thing. But as the man's hard on filled her warm mouth, there was only a faint, musky taste. Closing her eyes, Debi forced herself to start licking the hard cock as she wrapped a hand around the shaft and began to slide her hand back and forth along its length.

She had no technique, no skills, just a rough idea of what she was doing - the most basic blow-job there was. But it was more than enough to trigger the man, who gasped as he blasted his load of cum into Debi's unprepared mouth. In sheer surprise, she swallowed, small strings dripping out the sides of her mouth.

She was horrified to discover it wasn't disgusting, like it should be. Warm, with a slightly salty flavor, it tasted a little like something she'd only had once before - caviar.

And she'd liked caviar. If this tasted like that, then...

'No!' She screamed mentally. She was not a homo, she didn't suck guys dick unless there was a gun pointed at her head, and she certainly didn't enjoy it.

Did she?

She certainly didn't have time to work it out now. Licking up the last of the man's... (tasty)

...cum, she rose in one smooth motion, and approached the second man. Debi didn't realize that the smile on her face was much more natural this time. Unconsciously, she licked the last of the cum from her lips as she began to undress.

'I'm just doing this to save my life' she told herself as the man stripped as well, his throbbing cock came into view. Naked, she approached him and pushed her feminine figure against him. He roughly pushed her down on the ground. She took a deep breath and forced her smile to stay in place as he moved into position.

Then, for the first time, a hard, ready cock plunged into her new cunt, and she gasped from the mingled pain/pleasure of his entrance.

Rhythmically he began to thrust, driving with a single-minded purpose. Debi gasped as new sensations flooded her transformed body. She bit her lower lip as the pleasure began to mount.

Then she cried out. There was no artifice in her cries of passion, her urges to him - waves of new, feminine ecstasy swept over her, and she was lost in the sensations from her new orifice. She rose closer and closer to her first feminine orgasm...

...when he came with a grunt, the muscles of his back straining. Satisfied, he rolled off of her, leaving her unfulfilled.

Dimly, she heard the men discussing her fate, while she lay staring up at the ceiling, the truth of what she'd done hitting home. She'd sucked a man's cock.

She'd let another man fuck her. She'd enjoyed it.

Almost silently, she began to cry, tears smearing her mascara and running down her face as one of the men prepared a hypodermic with the drug that would keep her docile until the client's private jet arrived to pick her up and transport her to her new prison.

* * * * *

Epilogue

There was life after death.

Twice Debi Iverson died, and twice was she reborn. The first rebirth was Josh's transformation into her, a woman with a past she didn't know, and a future she couldn't foresee.

The second time, when Debi reached her new owner, Hiricho Yakazuma, Debi Iverson was reborn into Yoku, his fantasy sex slave. At his insistence, she adopted her new 'slave name'. Also at his insistence, she'd let her hair grow out, while he'd completed his fantasy by having her undergo collagen injections to give her fuller lips, and saline implants to give her larger, rounder breasts.

Debi sat in her opulent new room, dressed in a silk kimono, the front hanging open to reveal her freakishly huge new breasts, encased in a lacy white bra that provided absolutely now support for her massive new endowments. She was applying a gloss red lipstick to her full new lips.

She'd been left alone for the past three weeks while her breasts healed. The only demands she'd been forced to fulfill was language lessons and training in the correct way for a geisha to act around her master when he was alone, and around her master in company - including which signals were to instruct her who to make love to if she was used to honor one of his guests.

Her closets were full of expensive, designer fashions. Her bedroom was opulent, in the Japanese style, with many very expensive baubles given to her as gifts from her appreciative new owner - if she performed satisfactory, many more would be forthcoming. She had no dreary, nine-to-five job to have to go to. She was living in the lap of luxury.

And as she steeled herself and rose, on her way to perform her function for her master for the first time, one old saying continued to run through her brain, mocking her.

'Be careful what you wish for - you might just get it.'

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: When a young man finds an old mirror, he is surprised to learn that he can pass through and end up on the other side as a woman; but will he stay?

'I have the willpower to resist anything - except temptation.'

- W.C. Fields

Temptation

By Gunslinger

With a deep sigh of satisfaction, Ken Parkinson put down the polishing rag, stepped back, and surveyed his work with satisfaction.

When he'd seen it at the garbage dump, canted up against a partially-burned wardrobe, the mirror had looked like any other piece of junk scattered across the landscape. It's ornately-carved brass supports and frame tarnished a dull, lumpy green-white, it's surface dulled by dust and neglect, the mirror would have seemed to be just another part of the pile of worthless junk - to the less discerning eye, that was.

To Ken, however, it stood out like a beacon on a dark night, and for one simple reason:

It was intact.

Though neglected and corroded and weathered, it was all in one piece - even the huge, beveled-edge mirror itself, a minor miracle.

Short but broad-shouldered and well muscled, Ken considered himself a real 'handyman', a talent that came in decidedly useful when you were living on a monthly disability check that just barely cleared the essentials. Though the industrial accident had left him with a mangled left foot that limited mobility, his hands and mind still worked fine - and he used that to expand and supplement his income by virtue of being a 'garbage picker'.

Ken self-depreciatingly described it as being 'the least glamorous cousin of beachcombing', but he was quite proud of how it was all working out. Every week he drove his battered old pick-up out to the town dump and picked out any- and everything still salvageable, from furniture to appliances to articles of clothing. He took them back to the old farmhouse he was renting, and there he repaired and cleaned them up, keeping whatever he wanted for himself and selling the rest. Aside from the money he earned, he'd already mostly furnished the low-rent rural house. He even had three TV's and two stereos - older model ones, to be sure, but more than serviceable after having cannibalized the half-dozen of each he'd brought home to get the ones he now had in working order.

The mirror, now - that had to be the best find yet.

Carefully cleaned and polished, it stood in his basement workroom gleaming under the light of the bare bulbs hung from the rafters. Huge, it was more than 'full-sized', and its expansive beveled reflecting area returned Ken's sweaty, self-satisfied image with perfect fidelity.

It was a beautiful piece of work, crafted by skilled artisans in days gone by - and Ken wasn't sure whether to sell it for the obvious value inherent in the huge, gorgeous piece of furniture, or to keep it for himself to enjoy its gleaming beauty.

"Well, whatever I do, that backing has to come off..." Ken said to himself, a reminder that the work wasn't finished yet.

Walking around the back of the huge mirror, he frowned yet again at the sight of the rooting, crudely-cut piece of plywood covering the other side of the mirror.

Like many free-standing mirrors of the day, this one was supposed to be double-sided. Ken was fairly certain that the wood covered a gaping frame where the second mirror had been, the 'easy' quick-fix for a broken mirror - but he wondered why whoever had done the patch hadn't bothered to take the time and effort to do it right.

Taking up a flat-headed screwdriver, he carefully inserted it between the wood and the brass frame, gently applying pressure...

...and the badly weathered carpenter's glue under the badly rotting wood gave way easily, and Ken had to awkwardly hop back to avoid the falling wood, grimacing when he came down on his bad foot - and then forgetting all about the familiar dull throb as he stared at the reverse side of the mirror.

"What the hell...?" Ken gasped, dark eyes wide as he slowly approached the crystal-clear pane of mirrored glass filling this side of the frame.

It wasn't the fact that there was an unbroken, undamaged mirror filling the reverse frame that stunned him - but what the mirror was 'reflecting' that stunned him to his toes.

The figure in the mirror moved as he moved, and wore the same stunned expression. It even wore the same cut-off jean shorts and ratty old Corona t-shirt...

...but the figure filling out that clothing was emphatically female.

Ken was short, blocky and swarthy, with a short, curly mass of black hair - but the woman staring back at him was tall and slender, with straight, golden-blond hair falling down to her creamy-pale shoulders.

She was also remarkably busty, deliciously leggy, and startlingly sexy.

"Holy... shit...!" Ken exclaimed, hesitantly reaching out one trembling hand towards the mirror, sure this must be some illusion, or trick, or.. or something.

His blunt fingers only met cool, smooth glass, the slender, long-nailed fingers of the feminine reflection meeting his own on the other side of the barrier.

Stunned, Ken slowly hitched his way around to the other side of the mirror - and found his own, male reflection looking back at him. Once again, he reached out...

...and this time, his fingers passed right through the mirror, the cool surface rippling as his hand slid through what felt like a barrier of water.

With a gasp, he yanked his hand back, stunned. When he'd polished this very mirror, nothing the least bit unusual had happened...

...but, then again,. That had been when the other side had been covered, he realized.

He hesitated - then, slowly, leaned one shoulder against the heavy frame of the mirror and pushed a trembling hand through, all the way past the elbow so that he could bend it and see it on the other side.

A slender, smooth female arm curved into sight, it's fingers wagging at him in exactly the same fashion as he'd commanded his own to do.

With a startled curse, he yanked his arm back out from the mirror. "I..." He told himself in a trembling voice, "...need a drink."

Turning, he hitched his way towards the stairs - but the entire time, he kept glancing back over his shoulders at the impossible mirror that nevertheless rested in the center of his basement floor, looking completely mundane under the glare of the unshaded lights.

* * * * *

He returned three hours later.

He carried his fourth drink of the afternoon in one hand, and a strange uncertainty in his heart that the alcohol hadn't been able to wash away. Now, standing in front of the mirror with his head cocked, he considered the 'unthinkable' once again, the siren-call of excitement rising unbidden in his veins.

"I shouldn't." He told himself. "I really shouldn't. I mean... what if I can't go back the other way? Besides, it's.. it's got to be perverted or sick or something, just to even be considering it... right?"

His voice held no conviction - and even as he tried to argue himself out of it, he knew he was doomed to failure.

With a shaking hand, he put the half-finished beer down on the workbench. Looking at the mirror for a long moment, he took a long, deep breath...

...and, before his nerve could fail him, plunged through it's liquid surface.

The transition took but a fraction of a second, almost too fast for the sensation of breaking through a thin, cool barrier of water to register - but emerging from the thin barrier created a whole slew of new sensations that cried out for his attention - not because they were uncomfortable, or overly strong, but because they were so fundamentally different.

The lack of pain as full weight came down on the slimmer new left foot of the feminine body.

The strange sensations of less bulky but more agile muscles as she fought to catch her balance. The way the fabric of the jean shorts pulled across her crotch and fuller ass.

The bounce and jiggle of the big, round tits filling the now skin-tight t-shirt. The swirl of silky golden hair around her altered face.

The smaller, slimmer hands catching her on the edge of the workbench.

That, and a hundred and one less immediately identifiable sensations, all of them stating the very fact that this body was new, different - and female.

Given that, it wasn't too surprising that it took a minute for something else to register on the new woman's mind...

"My tools..." She said in a numb tone of voice, hearing the sweetly feminine tones for the first time. "Where.. are my tools?"

The workbench she was braced against was devoid of the array of hand tools that had been on it before she'd 'crossed through'.

Slowly, she straightened up, noting the way her full, heavy breasts shifted on her chest as she rose, feeling the way her full new ass pressed into the taut denim of her shorts as she attained a full height that made everything seem off-kilter to a mind used to a lower point of view.

The basement was exactly the same - except that it wasn't.

The physical dimensions were the same - but it wasn't 'his' basement, but 'hers' - a basement used for storage rather than as a workshop, filled with boxes of odds and ends all neatly lettered in a feminine script that described their contents.

Stunned, she slowly paced around the mirror, eyes taking in the same-yet-different basement...

...and then she stopped dead.

Took two more steps.

Stopped again...

...and slowly leaned forward, peering down past the curve of her big, round new breasts filling out the t-shirt so firmly. Her battered white canvas sneakers had become a pair of cork-soled white-leather strap sandals.

Sandals with sloping cork sole that rose three inches at the back in a sort of high heel.

Sandals with a wide-but-definitely-high heel - that she was balancing and walking in as easily as if she'd always walked in heel, much less without the hitching sensation she had become accustomed to with her bad foot.

"This is.. weird..." She said to thin air, staring through the big blue eyes that saw everything with a slightly different color-shift then her old, dark one...

...and then she started violently as a feminine voice floated down the steep, narrow staircase leading up to the kitchen: "Did you say something, Kandi?"

The voice was familiar enough to identify as belonging Donna, the svelte brunette Ken had been trying to work up enough nerve to ask out - but it was the fact that the woman not only called her 'Kandi', but spoke with that sort of casual tone used among friends that startled the new woman.

"Uh... Just talking to myself..." 'Kandi' replied, even more confused.

"Well, don't worry about it." Donna called down. "I'll just wear my usual shoes tonight."

"Oh, uh... Okay." Kandi called back, having no idea what the other woman was talking about - or why she was talking Ken-being- Kandi in stride...

...or why she was even in his/her house.

Heart pounding behind her firm new bust, she hesitantly made her way upstairs - into a kitchen that., like the basement, was the same room, but as if it belonged to a female owner.

Donna was sitting at the table, drinking a white wine - and across the table, another glass sat. "Kandi?" Donna asked, eyeing her. "Are you all right? You look like you've just seen a ghost..."

"Uh, yeah... I'm fine..." The new woman said, hesitantly, slowly making her way towards the table as she eyed the shapely brunette sitting comfortably in the other chair, looking completely at home.

Slowly, her stunned mind began to realize that crossing through the mirror had done more than just change her gender - it had somehow acted as a conduit between 'parallel universes', one where she was Ken, and this one, where she was 'Kandi'.

"You sure...?" Donna asked with genuine concern.

"Sure..." Kandi replied - wide-eyed and in a stunned tone of voice, as she slipped into the seat - and watched herself, without thinking, cross her long, shapely legs in a feminine manner.

"You're acting kinda weird, Kandi." Donna said, leaning forward across the table. "You sure you're gonna be okay to go out tonight?" "Out...?" Kandi parroted in confusion.

"To the Landmark?" Donna prompted, naming the hotel-slash-restaurant-slash-bar that was the small town's main social gathering place. "You know, play some pool, have a couple of drinks, see and be seen...?"

"Oh, um..." Kandi said, the thought of going out in public new and uncomfortable - especially since it seemed, in this new 'here and now', everybody seemed to accept that Kandi was who and what she appeared to be. The wouldn't be seeing Ken, not even Ken-as- a-woman - but Kandi, who was apparently remembered as a woman, with a woman's social life and activities.

"Kandi..." Donna said, worriedly. "What happened? Did you hit your head or something? You... You're really starting to worry me."

"I, uh.. I'll be fine." Kandi assured her, without much assurance. "Look, uh.. I just need to.. to relax for a bit. Why.. Why don't you call me later, and see if I feel up to going out, okay?"

"Sure..." Donna said, doubtfully, as she stood up. "No problem - but if you need me for anything, anything, be sure to call me, okay?" "I will." Kandi agreed, walking the other woman to the door...

...and then slumping against it in relief as Donna headed out to her car, glad not to have to continue 'playing a role' for public consumption as she tried to come to grips with the fact that she had a completely new identity to go along with her completely new body.

On weak-feeling knees, she began to walk through 'Kandi's' house. In the bedroom she found a purse - complete with all the identification for Kandice Parkinson.

Photo albums catching for posterity memories that Kandi didn't have.

Diaries chronicling a life of a woman who hadn't lived through it, the earliest staring at age thirteen, the latest up-to-date as of last night, talking about how much she was looking forward to going to the Landmark with Donna.

After reading a few entries out of the diaries at random, she slowly leaned back on the bed and stared up at the ceiling. "This... is just too weird." She told herself.

She rose and headed down towards the basement, feeling the way her body naturally moved with a feminine sway, needing to prompting to access the feminine mannerisms and skills apparently part-and-parcel with this new body.

"I can't handle this." She told herself, descending the stairs to the basement with a grace she'd never possessed before.

"I can't pretend to be a woman - not one who knows how to be a woman." She told her reflection, as she walked around to the side of the mirror that showed a feminine version of her - the current 'true' reflection.

"I'd never be able to pull it off." She told herself. "I don't know how to be 'Kandi'." Taking a breath, she stepped through the mirror...

...and winced as he put pressure on his 'bad' foot.

Turning, he surveyed the familiar male image reflected in the mirror.

"I couldn't do it." He said to himself. "There's no way I could actually do it, go out in public, do a bar, and pretend to be.. to be Kandi." He turned, and started hitching his way to the stairs.

"I'd have to be crazy to even try... right?" He asked himself...

* * * * *

"I... I'm not really feeling like myself... but maybe a night out is exactly what I need." She said, with a hesitant chuckle. "So, uh, yeah - pick me up in, say.. an hour?"

Shaking with a strange mix of anxiety and excitement, Kandi slowly hung up the phone - then simply stood there for a long moment, staring at the slender hand on the receiver, unable to believe she'd just agreed to go out in public as a woman.

But, she had - and if she was going to go through with this, she was going to have to get ready.

Physically ready, at any rate, since she wasn't quite sure whether she was going to go through with this, or 'chicken out' at the last minute.

Part of her really wanted to forget the whole idea - but a slightly larger part of her, thinking about a chance to experience life on the other side of the gender barrier, was guiltily excited by the whole idea.

Heart pounding with that strange mixture of guilty excitement and eager fear, she made her way towards the bathroom, feeling the easy, feminine grace in her new body...

...and forcing herself to get past the initial surge of disquiet, and savor the agile power in her taller, leaner body, not as strong as her old one, but more limber.

Reaching the bathroom, she started water in the tub - then stood in front of the mirror, and slowly, began to disrobe.

She felt guilty doing so, almost as if she were spying on a woman as she undressed, unaware of his presence - but the woman who was undressing was 'him', and she was aware of 'him' watching herself through her eyes as she hands slowly peeled off the t-shirt, exposing the big breasts lurking beneath. The motion of her arms, rising above her head to take off the shirt, pulled her firm breasts higher on her ribcage, momentarily forming them into perfect spheres, each as large as a melon, before her lowering arms allowed them to settle back down into a more natural, but still remarkably firm, shape.

She slowly slid her shorts and the simple white cotton panties beneath them down her long legs, exposing her wide hips and firm, full ass - and the womanhood nestled in the neatly-trimmed patch of pubic hair between her taut, feminine thighs.

Standing upright, she surveyed her feminine new body...

...and felt a warm, moist surge of arousal at the sight, for she was undeniably sexy, her body lean and lithe and toned, curvaceous and feminine, shapely and seductive.

She was, to coin a phrase, a 'stone cold fox'...

...and both fear and excitement redoubled at the thought of being in public as this woman, as being treated as this woman.

The thought of successfully 'getting away with' being female, nobody able to tell who she 'really' was, and so treating her as the woman she appeared to be. The thought of being treated like the woman she now was scared her, made her stomach tighten in a sort of instinctive psuedo-homophobic disgust, made her feel guilty and queasy and hesitant...

...and yet the absolute certainty that she could never, ever be 'caught out' also made her excited, body a-tingle with nervous anticipation at being able to see what life was like for a woman without ever having to face any undue consequences.

It was that which had finally persuaded her to go through with this. She, and she alone, had the key to the gateway between the two realities, and nobody from one side could know who - or what - she was, or did, on the other. She could 'play female' without fear of anybody ever knowing the 'perverted' things she was doing...

...and that excited her so much it was almost scary.

Slowly, oh-so-very-aware of her feminine new body, Kandi lowered herself into the tub full of warm water and slowly began soaping up her smooth new flesh - not just washing herself, but guiltily luxuriating in the sensations, quite knowingly - and eagerly - fondling her curvaceous new body, feeling what a woman would feel, knowing what it was like to have her breasts cupped and squeezed.

It felt... nice.

Quite nice.

As her hands slid across her trim waist to her slightly mounded new crotch, she blushed deeply and briefly considered what it would feel like to penetrate herself with her finger, experience what it would be like for a woman...

...and then kept her hands moving on downward to start soaping up the taut flesh of her sexy new legs, not quite ready for that intimate an experience with womanhood, still feeling as if it would somehow be 'raping' to woman he still wasn't quite used to being.

Throughout the long, slow, exploratory bath, she was careful to keep her hair dry - but only because she'd caught herself just in time, realizing she had no clue as to how to 'feed and care' for a woman's hair. Just the sight of the array of shampoos, conditioners, rinses and salves lined up on the rack beside the tub was enough to induce a headache.

After bathing, she climbed out of the tub - and guiltily luxuriated in taking a long time to dry herself with the big, fluffy soft towel. As a man, she'd thought a towel was a towel was a towel - with a woman's body, he finally understood, the soft fabric seeming almost like a lover's hands touching her smooth new flesh.

The thought made her blush, and for good reason: It reminded her of the whole reason why she'd come back through the mirror. To get laid.

Even now, she shivered at the thought, heart rate increasing - but not solely from fear and anxiety. It was also from excitement.

The thought of experience what sex felt like from a woman's point of view... part of her thought it was the most disgusting, pervverted, sickening thing she'd ever heard of.

The rest of her thought it was the most excitingly disgusting, pervverted, sickening thing she'd ever heard of.

The moment since the thought had first occurred to her, she'd been tempted to find out what it was like, for a woman - and the temptation was something she couldn't resist.

Dry, she walked into her bedroom to get dressed...

...and for several seconds, was daunted by the task.

The closet was jammed full of more clothes than she'd ever worn before, and the sudden consideration that what she'd wear would make a 'statement' was new and uncomfortable for her...

...until she realized that the 'statement' she was trying to make actually simplified things.

She simply picked out the outfit she'd most like to see herself in, certain other men would find it equally as enticing.

Several minutes later, she surveyed the results - and the fact that she looked so good made her shiver in another mix of confused emotions.

Since she didn't feel any more up to handling make-up as she did doing hair, she'd opted for the 'natural' look - a short denim skirt that showed off her long, shapely legs to a maximum advantage, especially with the same cork-soled sandals she was already 'comfortable' in, and a sort of lace-trimmed white tube-top that showed off both her slender waist and her deep cleavage.

She was 'hot', she was ready... and she was so excited that the faint tremors of fear and doubt were there, but submerged.

In a sudden burst of revelation that made her smile, she realized she was as 'nervous as a virgin' - which, in a way, wasn't far from the truth.

Taking a deep breath, Kandi straightened, and headed for door...

* * * * *

With a sigh, Kandi unlocked her front door and stepped inside, pushing it shut behind her with the heel of her foot. She hadn't been able to do it.

Oh, not that there hadn't been plenty of opportunity. God knows she had plenty of attention from the guys, especially since she was trying to 'get laid', flirting outrageously - if inexpertly - with just about every man in sight.

She'd never quite worked up the nerve to 'seal the deal', though. A dozen times, it had been on the tip of her tongue to suggest to one guy or another that they 'get out of there'... but could never quite work up the courage to do so.

More than one guy had made the suggestion for her - and most of them had been rather crude, making it almost mandatory to turn the man down. The other ones were gentle suggestions, revealing the type of man she might be able to trust, one who would be gentle her 'first time' - and so, when she'd simply not said anything, they'd backed off.

That was part of the problem - knowing she didn't know a damned thing about having sex in a woman's body. Her own lack of expertise made her more nervous, and that's why she kept shying away at the last minute.

"What I need is a virgin..." S he muttered to herself, dropping her purse on the table in the kitchen with a sigh. Ashamed with her cowardice, part of her still wondering - mightily - what it would have felt like to have sex as a woman, she dejectedly headed down the stairs, ready to spend time in a body she was familiar with, and comfortable in. Reaching the bottom of the stairs, she turned towards the mirror...

...and managed a strangled half-gasp as a pair of strong arms grabbed her and pinned her, one hand clapping itself over her mouth. "Well, if it isn't the cock-teasing little bitch..." A voice whispered in her ear - and she stiffened in shock and fear, recognizing it.

It belonged to a burly, unshaven brunet she'd met at the bar, one who'd come on strongly, and crudely, about halfway through the evening. In fact, he'd been making crude, overly sexual comments all night, calling out 'compliments' about her tits, ass and legs, so when he'd approached her she'd given him the brush off - and had felt decidedly more comfortable when, shortly thereafter, he'd left.

The problem was, she'd still be so unused to her current situation that she hadn't really considered that she wasn't the 'new' woman she felt to be, that people in this version of reality knew her - and knew where she lived.

Obviously, he'd come to her house and broken in, then waited for her to get home...

"Not so high-and-mighty now, are you?" the voice hissed in her ear. "Not with a bunch of guys around you, drooling as you come on to them, just so you can humiliate them. First you want it, want it bad - and then, no, you don't... you teasing little bitch!"

She tried to struggle - but her new body was not even close enough to being strong enough to break the grip.

"Well, now you are going to get what you made everybody in that bar think you wanted - whether you really want it or not." She stiffened at the man's threat - then screamed as he thrust her away from him.

"Go ahead, scream." He said, chuckling evilly as he approached her, his hands going to his belt-buckle. "Ain't nobody going to hear you - not down here, not out this far in the country."

"No, please - don't hurt me..." Kandi begged - while trying to edge her way towards the mirror, and the form of escape it would provide.

The man, however, was intent on edging her towards the workbench, and blocked her path, despite not knowing about the 'other exit' from the basement.

"You don't want to get hurt, bitch?" He said, mockingly. "then don't resist..."

Belt and pants undone, he reached out and grabbed her upper arm - then pulled her close and kissed her, hard. She struggled - and his grip tightened painfully on her arm.

She stiffened - then, reluctantly, began to kiss him back, not even trying to match the ferocity with which his tongue invaded her unwilling mouth.

"Much better..." The man said, thrusting her away again - towards the workbench. "now, go ahead - get undressed."

She hesitated - then, seeing the cruel gleam in his eyes, slowly began to comply, her shaking fingers slow and awkward as she began peeling off her clothing.

As more and more of her delectable skin was revealed, he grinned wider and wider - while his cock pushed outwards, the bulge of his underwear-contained hard-on stretching out from his open fly.

"That's it, baby." He said, hoarsely. "God, what a body you have on you, you cock-teasing slut."

"please, don't..." She protested, feebly - but knew that there was no way he was going to show her any mercy. If she wanted to get through this unharmed, her only choice was exactly the one he'd given her - not resisting. "Turn around.." HE commanded, literally salivating.

Biting her lower lip, Kandi complied - and winced as she heard his pants - and, presumably, underwear - hit the floor.

He suspicion was confirmed a minute later when he stepped up behind her, his throbbing cock pressing against the side of her bare thigh as her roughly reached around her and began squeezing and playing with her big, firm tits...

...and despite her horror, despite her disgust, despite the roughness of his touch - it felt good.

"No...!" She gasped, more in self denial than resistance - but he ignored both parts of it's purpose, letting go of her tits and grabbing her hips, pulling her ass backwards and up into the air, forcing her to brace herself on the edge of the workbench as he used one foot to force her legs apart.

Without another word, he slammed his cock deep in her tight, wet cunt - and though the thrust was as hard as he could make it, it wasn't actually painful.

In fact... it was - enjoyable.

It only got more so as he continued to thrust into her, hard and fast, interested only in his own pleasure. The fact that it was also causing intense pleasure in her was purely secondary.

Normally, this situation wouldn't have been enjoyable for a woman - except that she was already aroused and well lubricated and sexually 'on edge' from her frustrating night of trying to work up the nerve to get fucked. Even then, a 'real' woman would have found this sex third rate, at best - but that would have been compared to the other sex they'd had to compare it to.

With no better sex to minimize the effect of what she was feeling, all Kandi knew was that it was incredibly pleasurable to have a thick, hard cock pounding in and out of her tight, sopping cunt, causing her to guiltily writhe and moan, hating that fact that she was getting fucked against her will - but loving getting fucked, nonetheless.

It wasn't inherently more pleasurable than sex she'd had as a man - but it was different and new, and that made it seem more 'interesting' as she rocked with the force of his thrusts, tits swaying and bouncing as the pleasure doubled and redoubled, drawing ever closer to a female orgasm...

...and then he grunted and stiffened, spilling his load of cum deep into her cunt before yanking his cock out, well before her own orgasm.

"Did you like that, bitch...?" The man taunted her, stepping back and grabbing his pants. "Go ahead and try to claim rape, if you want

- no bruises on you, and everybody at the bar can testify what you were acting like..."

Laughing, he began stepping into his pants...

...and she hit him low and hard, using a football tackle learned in high-school. They went flying back - and slammed into the mirror.

That wasn't quite true.

He passed right through it's surface, disappearing without a trace.

She slammed into the mirror - then dragged herself upright and watched, wide eyed, as the mirror, rocked, tipped - and fell over, smashing into a thousand pieces that she just barely managed to jump back out of the way of.

"Oh my god..." She gasped. "What have I done...?"

She stared at the shattered mirror, her hand slowly going down to her crotch - and beginning to stroke the taut nub of her clit.

"...and why aren't I all that upset...?" She asked herself, vaguely, before she turned her attention to doing a thorough job of bringing herself to her first female orgasm.

The first of what she found herself hoping to be many, many more...

* * * * *

Dazed from the impact of the back of his head against the concrete floor, Dave Burton moaned and started to sit up...

...then stopped, foiled by a heavy weight on his chest, even as the strange tone of the moan registered. He looked down...

...and the woman the entire town knew to sleep with men in exchange for money to support her drug habit stared in horror at her outrageously over-inflated silicone-pumped tits filling out her tight spandex crop-top, and began to scream, and scream, and scream....

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: A friend agrees to be the test subject for a new gender changing serum that his friend has developed.

Test Subject

By Gunslinger

Kyle raised one hand to knock on the door - then paused as the sounds of cursing came through the door in muffled cadences. One of Kyle's eyebrows rose as the unexpected sound - Brad wasn't usually the swearing type.

Shrugging, the blond youth knocked on the door, receiving a curt 'what' from the other side. Turning the knob, Kyle stepped into Brad's sanctuary.

The room looked like it came straight from a 50's horror movie set. Unknown substances burbles and boiled in intricate glass tubes, pipes and beakers, and clunky looking electronic equipment dotted the room. The only things that were out of place were the bright fluorescent lights, the state-of-the-art computer humming away in the corner....

...and Brad.

At twenty-eight - two years older than Kyle - Brad was the farthest thing from the stereo-typical 'mad scientist'. Dark-haired and dark-eyed, Brad was tall, fit and fairly handsome, looking rakish with his short, square, neatly trimmed goatee. Brad had the sort of looks and intense personality that attracted women, and Kyle sometimes felt sorry that his friend was too immersed in his work to have a social life. Kyle - who was fairly handsome, but not as muscular as his friend - had to work to meet girls, and occasionally got upset that his friend actually passed up some of the woman who came his way.

Then again, it would never have lasted, Kyle thought. There wasn't many people who could put up with Brad's nearly obsessive behavior towards his research.

Brad turned briefly to look at Kyle. "Yeah?"

Kyle blinked. "Don't tell me you've forgotten - we're going camping this weekend. We leave tomorrow morning at eight. I was just checking to see if you needed anything when I go to the sporting-goods store."

Brad looked surprised. "Oh, shit. It's Thursday already?"

Kyle sighed - when he was immersed in his work, Brad sometimes lost track of days - once, an entire week.

"Yeah, it's Thursday buddy. We planned this more than a month ago, remember? We leave tomorrow morning, and get back on Tuesday." Kyle felt a sinking sensation in his stomach.

It was validated a second later.

"I can't go." Brad said shaking his head. "I have to run the sims a few more times, so I can get the data through to the FDA and AMA for processing..."

"Come on!" Kyle said, half pleading, half angry. "You can't keep doing this! This is the third time you've shrugged off a vacation. You gotta get away for a bit."

Brad looked crestfallen. When he'd decided to start his research, his long-time best friend Kyle had been the only one willing to put up half the down-payment on the house they were living - and working - in, and the only person who could live with him. Kyle was practically a 'mother' to Brad sometimes - reminding him to eat, forcing him to sleep now and then, and not getting upset when Brad missed his share of the chores or rent.

"I'm sorry, Kyle." Brad said, sincerely. "But I've finally worked out the sequence on this one, and I have to get the info in. I have to secure a test-subject to run the test on before the end of next month, or I'll miss the funding for next year."

Kyle sighed, and plopped into the only other chair in the room. "What are you working on now?" He asked only out of politeness - he didn't understand half the projects Brad did.

"Well, I think I've discovered the sequence of chemical compounds that could - possibly - control gender reversal." Kyle said, pulling up a chemical simulator on the computer.

It took a second, but Kyle got it.

"A sex-change serum?" The slightly bulky youth said, incredulous. "You're kidding, right?"

Brad looked surprised. "No, I'm completely serious. I think I've discovered a way to temporarily cause a gender reversal in the human body. It would take about twelve hours to make the changes, and would last about..." Brad trailed off and punched something into the computer, which replied after a second of number crunching. "...about seventy-one point two eight hours."

Kyle was still stunned. "But it works? I mean - you're kidding, right?"

Brad smiled. "Well - that's the problem. I have to get funding so I can hire a test subject so I can test the serum. Once that's done, I can apply for next-year's funding. That's why I can't go, Kyle - I have to find a test subject."

Kyle shrugged. "Why not just test it on yourself. It's safe, isn't it?"

Brad looked surprised that Kyle would even suggest it. "Of course it's safe, but a good scientist is always the observer, not the participant." He replied, stiffly.

Then, an odd look came into Brad's eye. Kyle felt a sudden chill run down his spine, sure that that look boded ill for him. He was right.

"You know..." Brad mused, overly casual. "You could be my test subject."

Kyle, stunned, threw up his hands defensively. "Hold it! There's no way I'm letting you turn me into a woman, buddy."

Brad leaned forward, speaking with intensity. "It's safe, and it would only be temporary. We could still go on that camping trip - you'd just be going as a woman. At least, for some of it - you'd change back before we got home."

"Uh-uh. No way, pal." Kyle said, disgusted. "Don't even think about that."

"Look, it's safe, temporary - and important." Brad insisted. "I didn't realize how long it took me to work this out - chances are I won't get a test subject the other way before the funding finals pass. No funding next year, no house."

Kyle swallowed, realizing it was true. Brad's funding was a major source of cash for them. If that went... "Well..." Kyle said hesitantly. "It is temporary, right? You're positive?"

Brad waved a hand. "Of course. The effects logarithmic, not linear. One shot - all I'd give you - lasts three days. A booster shot would last nine days more. Another booster after that would add another twenty-seven days - and so on."

"But I'd only get one dose, right? Three days?" "Of course."

Kyle sighed. "What do we do?"

* * * * * "Comfortable?"

Kyle, laying on his bed wearing only a loose pair of pajama bottoms, smiled thinly. "Physically? Yeah. Emotionally "

Brad sighed. "Look, I'll go over it again. The dosage includes a sedative, because the rapid changes to the body would be - well, not painful, but uncomfortable. Like a twelve-hour, full-body itch you can't scratch. You'll just sleep through the changes. While you're doing that, I'll monitor you once an hour, and finish preparing for our trip. Then, when you wake up, the changes will be done, and we'll be ready to leave."

Kyle sighed. Dredging up a bit of his usually boisterous humor, he spoke in a voice like a 40's gangster. "Yeah. Well 'it best be done quickly.' Go ahead, Doc - gimme the girl juice."

Brad complied, sliding the syringe into Kyle's arm, and slowly injecting the reddish serum into his friend's bloodstream. As things started to darken, Kyle muttered "I can't believe you talked me into this."

Then darkness came to claim him.

* * * * *

"Kyle? Buddy? Rise and shine. "

The sound of his friends voice pulled Kyle from his drug-induced slumber. Even before his mind registered the new sensations from his body, he could tell that the serum had been a success from the barely-repressed tone of victory in Brad's voice.

Opening his eyes, Kyle blinked up at a Brad. "I'm awake. "

He trailed off - no, Kyle corrected himself - she trailed off at the sound of her soft, feminine contralto. Although she was expecting something like this, hearing the unmistakably female voice speaking in his rhythms and inflections was still unnerving.

Taking a deep breath, Kyle gathered her courage and, pushing the thin blanket off the bed, sat up and looked down at her transformed body.

"Holy shit!" She exclaimed, startled. "They're HUGE!" She looked, gaping at Brad, then back to her chest. Unbelievably, she brought her hands (unconsciously noting her smooth, feminine arms and hands) to her massive new endowments, stopping just shy of touching the massive, firm round tits with their large, thick nipples. With her smaller hands sill hovering by her chest, Kyle shot Brad an angry glance. "Very funny."

Brad sighed. "It wasn't my doing." He cocked his head. "Your mom. Is she, um, well endowed." Kyle blinked. "Yeah - she's pretty big. Why?"

Brad ignored the question. "And your dad's mom, or sister?"

Kyle blushed. "Uh. I don't know about Grandma - but my Aunt is even bigger than my mom."

Brad nodded. "Yeah. Well, the serum merely changes you based on your genetics - and since both sides of your family are buxom. "

Kyle sighed and looked down at her huge new tits. "...I'm really, really buxom." A thought struck him. "Why are these things so round - they hardly look real. Shouldn't the. sag?"

Brad shrugged. "They will, given time. They're literally brand-new, and as firm as a teenagers. Gravity hasn't had TIME to affect them." Kyle noticed Brad was beginning to blush. "What?"

Brad cleared his throat nervously. "I... uh.. had to but clothing for you, so I had to, um, measure..." Kyle looked startled - then laughed. "All right, I'll bite - what size?"

Brad blush deepened. "Um... 39 EEE."

Shaking his head in disbelief, Kyle swung his legs over the side of his bed, wincing at the sight of his almost hairless legs.

"Well, lets see what I look like..." She said, heaving herself off the bed...

...and almost toppling over. If Brad hadn't grabbed her and held her upright, Kyle would have fallen flat on her face. "What the hell?"

"Your center of gravity changed literally overnight - it'll take a bit of time to get used to the change. Just pay attention, and you'll do fine."

Kyle tried it, and found that Brad was right - as long as she consciously kept her balance, she moved fairly easily. Shaking her head again, she walked over to the full-length mirror, and looked at her altered self, huge new endowments swaying with each step, creating a sensation that was disturbingly pleasant.

There was no doubt that she was Kyle, feminized. If Kyle had been born female, this is what he would have looked like - in fact, his face was nearly unchanged, aside from slightly fuller lips, slightly smaller nose, and the lack of facial hair.

Turning slightly, Kyle examined her altered body. Unsurprisingly, she was the same type of build - slightly heavy. Her hips were a little narrow, her waist a little thick, and her legs were fairly nice, but not as shapely as they could be. She was somewhat cute, but far from stunning. In fact, aside from the enormous bust, she would be your average girl - neither pretty nor ugly enough to provoke comment, just average. Her hair was the same as it had been last night, a sandy blonde. As guy, it had been slightly long a shaggy - now it looked like a tomboyish style that perfectly fit her new look.

"Holy shit." Kyle sighed. "I don't believe it. I mean, I believe it - but..."

"I know." Brad said. "Um... why don't you get dressed. We should get going."

Kyle, still staring at her changed body, took a second to register what Brad said. "Huh? Oh, right." She sighed. "I can't believe I'm going to leave the house like this. This is just so... weird."

Brad left to finish packing the Jeep Wagoneer, and Kyle turned her attention to the clothes Brad had left on the chair.

Making a face, Kyle picked up the simple white cotton panties. Lifting a smooth, now feminine leg, she slid her smaller foot through the leg-hole, then repeated the process with the other leg. Sliding the soft woman's underwear up her legs, she pulled it in place around her hips, feeling the material caress her full ass and flat crotch. Slightly embarrassed, Kyle looked around, making sure that Brad wasn't peaking in. Satisfied, she indulged her curiosity.

Gently, Kyle slid the palm of her hand across the flat surface of the panties' crotch, then a gain with a little more pleasure. It felt strange to lack her usual male bulge - but the simple sensation of pressure across her crotch was surprisingly similar to the sensation that would have resulted had a cock bulged the underwear.

Blushing at her forwardness - despite the fact that it was 'her own' body she was feeling up, Kyle turned her attention to the massive, plain white bra.

Picking it up, she considered the massive undergarment critically. The cups of the bra were huge, and the straps were also larger and slightly padded to help support the surprising weight of her new endowments. Although Kyle had removed a bra or two in his time, she was uncertain how to get one on - at least, from this perspective.

After deciding on her 'plan of attack', Kyle set to the task. Thankfully, Brad had been wise enough to get a front-clasping bra, and it made things easier. Kyle slid his arms one at a time into the shoulder straps, then set about clasping the massive foundation garment. Although the front closure eliminated the awkward 'behind the back' maneuver, the fact that she couldn't actually see the clasps made getting it closed tough, but she finally prevailed.

The sensation of the garment tightly restraining her massive new tits was new and unusual, if not unpleasant. The pressure of the garment was like a light embrace across most of her globes, and considerably more where her large, thick nipples pressed against the taut material. Kyle found herself grateful for the firmness of her new tits - the straps didn't have to carry much weight, and barely pulled at her shoulders. If she'd had 'natural' tits that sagged, the weight on the straps would make the bra painful in short order.

Over the panties she pulled on the jean shorts that Brad had provided. It was thoughtful of him - due to the summer heat, full-length pants were unthinkable, but Kyle also didn't want to wear a skimpier garment. Unfortunately, the shorts - which came to mid-thigh - were tighter than she'd have liked. Her ass, which was large and fairly shapely, wasn't spectacularly firm. The tight denim, however, made up for that, making her ass look much better - not something Kyle really wanted, not at all comfortable with making herself look more attractive.

Kyle frowned at the top provided - a white, ribbed-pattern tank-top. Personally, she would have preferred something to de-emphasize her massive tits - like a bulky, over-sized sweater - but such a garment would have made her melt in the heat.

Sighing, she pulled the top on. Designed for a woman with a more modest bustline, the garment not only barely fit over her huge, bra-encased tits, but left her belly-button bare. The tank-top had an elastic hem, which drew the top tight just under her filled bra, forming itself to her massive tits and pulling taut.

Awkwardly - her new tits got in the way - Kyle put on the socks and shoes. The shoes weren't bad - white woman's runners, brand new

- but the socks were a light-fabric, ankle high white sock with lace trim.

Finishing up by pulling on a white leather belt and pulling a matching purse - her purse, Kyle thought with a grimace - over her shoulder, Kyle examined herself in the mirror.

She was the 'busty-girl-next-door'. Cute, with freckles across the bridge of her nose and down her chasm-like cleavage, she wasn't beautiful enough to be unapproachable, but with those massive tits, sexy enough to be approached at all. With Kyle's natural exuberance and cheerfulness, she was even emotionally the 'perky blonde' - although the wrong gender, mentally.

Shaking her head again in disbelief, Kyle headed out to the garage.

Brad was sitting in the idling Jeep. As Kyle slid in, Brad glanced over - then did a double take.

"What?" Kyle asked, (as yet, still surprised every time that feminine contralto emerged from her mouth) looking down at herself to see if she'd screwed up.

"Uh - nothing." Brad said, flushing. "it's just that - well.." Kyle eyed Brad's reddening face. "What?"

Brad shrugged. "You - look good."

Kyle sighed - "I would get upset - but I saw myself in the mirror. I'd date myself in a second." She shuddered. "Now how's that for a weird thought?"

Brad shuddered slightly too. "I won't even tell you how weird it is for me. You may have to cope with being female - but / have to cope with finding my best friend 'datable'."

"Perv.." Kyle said - but it was with a knowing grin. Until now, it hadn't occurred to her that it would be tough on Brad to remind himself that the buxom woman only inches away was really Kyle, his long-time friend - and a guy.

Sharing one more 'this is weird' glance, the two friends tried to ignore the mildly awkward situation as the vehicle pulled out, and headed towards the highway.

* * * * *

"Something wrong?"

Kyle glanced over at Brad. "No... Why?" She asked, forcing innocent curiosity in her voice. "You've got kind of an odd look on your face."

Kyle shrugged. "I do?" She wasn't about to explain to Brad that the gravel road they were on was creating certain - sensations. Her tits jiggled inside her bra with an extremely pleasant sensation - but not nearly as disturbingly pleasant as the sensation the motion caused in her new cunt. Her panties had bunched slightly, actually pulling slightly into her now-damp pussy, and was moving back and forth over very sensitive flesh every time they hit one of the numerous bumps. Kyle was slightly disgusted with herself for enjoying the sensations so damned much, and hoping that they still had a way to go.

Rounding the corner, a building was revealed on the left of the road.

"Oh, good..." Brad said, pulling the Jeep into the combination gas-station/General store. "I'm going to fill up." Looking slightly embarrassed, Brad continued. "Why don't you go inside and, uh, pick up some, um..."

Kyle blinked. If nothing else, being a woman made Brad much more awkward. The usual intense dark-haired man was actually floundering.

"Some...?" Kyle prompted.

Brad smiled shyly. "Well, not to put too fine a point on it - deodorant. I hate to tell you, but you smell."

Kyle laughed. "Sure - I'll get some snacks and stuff too." She climbed from the Jeep and headed towards the store, still adjusting to the swaying of her huge tits.

Behind her Brad watched her go - and blushed furiously when he realized that he's been thinking how cute her ass would be if she didn't walk so much like a man.

"Get a grip - she is a man, for god's sake." Brad muttered to himself.

Blissfully unaware of the thoughts running through Brad's mind, Kyle entered the store and walked through the aisles. Picking up some items, she walked up to the front counter, where the young man running the store looked up.

"These, and twenty bucks on the pump." Kyle said, nodding his head at where Brad was filling the Jeep. "That'll be thirty-two seventy-one." The young man behind the counter said, giving Kyle an odd, direct stare.

Kyle uncomfortable rooted in her purse, handing over the money and waiting for her change. The entire time, the man continued to look at her with the same odd expression.

Kyle's heart pounded as she waited for the clerk to denounce her as an impostor. Although, physically and biologically, she was indistinguishable from a 'natural' woman, the man must have somehow sensed...

Then it dawned on Kyle like a thunderclap. The man wasn't suspicious - her was staring at her huge, firm tits straining at the front of her white tank-top!

Blushing furiously, Kyle said. "Keep the change." Grabbing her purchases, Kyle all but fled the store, feeling the man's eyes on her buttock in the tight jean shorts.

Kyle climbed into the vehicle, face blazing. "What is it?" Brad asked as they pulled away.

"The guy in there." Kyle said, floundering. "He was staring at my tits the entire time!"

Brad cleared his throat uncomfortably. "I hate to say it - but you have very 'starable at' tits, Kyle."

Kyle stared, gaping, at Brad - then laughed, ruefully. "You're having a hard time not staring at them, aren't you?" Now Brad blushed. "Yeah. Sorry. I know you're Kyle and all - but those are spectacular tits, and..."

Kyle mulled that over - then surprised Brad by laughing, and saying. "Yeah. Don't sweat it, bra - if you want to stare, go right ahead." "What?" Brad asked. "You... don't mind?"

Kyle shrugged. "Well, it's weird having my tits stared at - but it's even weirder just having tits!" She lowered her voice conspiratorially. "Besides - If I had a mirror, I'd stare at them myself!"

Brad laughed. "Fair enough."

Kyle sighed. "It's weird being a woman - but I've got a male mind, and I know exactly what you are feeling, buddy. It's perverted - but it's also okay. We've been embarrassed to find this body sexy because it's me inside - we feel like we're going gay or something."

Brad's blush deepened.

"But this body isn't me - it's a female body. It's okay for you to find this body sexy - God knows, I do, and I'm in it! So go ahead, relax - don't try to restrain yourself on my account. I understand it's the female body you're reacting to, not the male me."

"You're sure you okay with this?" Brad asked.

Kyle laughed shortly. "Okay with this? I'm a man who looks like a huge-breasted woman! No, I'm not okay - but it's bearable, and it's only temporary. Besides, your so awkward around me, it's making it hard on me. Relax, or I'll go nuts."

Brad nodded, and the awkwardness that had been between the friends on the trip so far lessened, although it didn't quite vanish. In companionable silence, they rode out the last twenty minutes of the drive, pulling into the large, lush clearing near the summit of the tall hills. (Although the locals called them mountains.)

"I don't believe it." Kyle stared out the windshield at the two tents pitched in his favorite spot. Usually, this clearing was deserted when he came up.

"We'll go to one of the other spots." Brad said, reaching to turn the vehicle around.

Kyle sighed. "No - this is the best spot for miles - just down the hill there's both cold and hot springs, and they run into a large pond that's like a heated swimming pool. I guess it won't kill us to have neighbors." So saying, Kyle opened the door and got out, Brad copying her on his side. They walked towards the three people that had emerged from the tents when Brad and Kyle had pulled up.

The trio - a slender man and woman, arm in arm, trailed slightly by a shorter, more muscular man, walked forward to meet them. Kyle noted the girl first - she was a tall, supple, vivacious Latino, with flawless, dusky skin, revealed but ultra tight, short jean shorts and a black bikini top barely covering her firm tits, which Kyle judged to be a healthy C-cup. She practically embodied the vibrant sensuality of some vivacious, energetic women.

Kyle reluctantly turned his attention from the stunning woman to the two men. The one in the lead was tall and slender as well, with a rangy, athletic look. He wore only faded jeans and sandals, with long black hair tied back in a hippy-ish ponytail. He was darkly tanned, and the tight jeans bulged almost alarmingly at the crotch. The other man was shorter than average, and almost as wide as he was tall. Tanned - but not as much as his friend, the shorter man had sandy blonde hair, and wore jean shorts and a white t-shirt. His shorts also displayed a larger-than average bulge at the crotch.

Kyle was blissfully unaware that she'd just 'checked out' the guys, thoroughly eyeing them and judging, much the way she'd done with the girl. She would have been shocked to realize what she'd done - and horrified if she'd realized that she'd unconsciously pronounced the guys as attractive as the girl.

"You don't mind having neighbors, do you?" Brad said as they closed the distance.

"Not in the least we got here about ten minutes ago ourselves. I'm John," The tall, slender man said. Wrapping an arm around the slender, dark-haired girl, he said. "And this gorgeous creature is Linda." He leaned closer to Linda, and received a kiss.

Shaking his head, the shorter man confided. "They're incredible. He'll kiss anything female, and she can't go five minutes without kissing, touching or fondling somebody. I'm Steve, by the way." He held a hand out, and Brad took it, introducing himself.

Steve's eyes shifted to Kyle - who started to respond instinctively before catching herself and barely correcting the problem. "I'm K..ayla." She said, slightly awkwardly. Covering it by clearing her throat, she stated it more firmly. "Sorry - Kayla."

"Oh - I love that name." Linda said, smiling at the other 'woman'. "So - how long have you been with Brad?"

"Oh, I've known him for years, but we've only been living together for about two years now..." Kyle replied with a smile before the question's import - given the situation - sank in. It became an effort to maintain that smile as she realized she'd just said that she was Brad's live-in girlfriend.

"Geez - you okay man?" Steve asked anxiously as Brad went into a paroxysm of coughing.

Brad recovered, shooting a half-incredulous, half amused look at 'Kayla'. "Yeah - I swallowed a bug. Flew right in my mouth." "Ewww..." Linda said, making a face while the 'guys' laughed.

"Why don't we give you a hand with your stuff, Brad?" John suggested.

"And Kayla can help me find a place to wash up - I think we could both use a bath." Linda added.

"Actually, there's a great place just down the hill. Hot and cold springs - warm water and all." Kyle said, pointing. John and Linda glanced at each other in surprise. "How do you know..." Linda said.

Steve grimaced. "Oh, shit - this was your spot, wasn't it? You came up here because this is where you always camp."

Kyle smiled - she couldn't help liking the three of them - they were so cheerful, friendly and energetic. "Oh, don't worry about it. It'll be fun."

Linda giggled. "You said it, girl." She agreed mysteriously. "Come on - show me this spring." Agreeably, Kyle led off, leading the supple-bodied Latino through the trees.

"Oh - wow..." Linda breathed as they emerged into the small clearing. "This is wild..."

The clearing was surrounded by tall, old-growth trees, whose intertwined branches created an artificial twilight. Beneath the canopy of leaves sat a six-to-eight foot deep pond, roughly the size of an Olympic swimming pool. Two springs, one steaming, fed into the pond, which overflowed downhill to meet the river at the base of the hill.

"Yeah - it is." Kyle agreed. Glancing at Linda, she found her almost absently stripping off her skimpy clothing, revealing her dusky, supple body. Striving to look and act casual, Kyle followed suit, trailing the gorgeous woman into the warm waters of the pond.

"Oh..." Linda sighed in bliss as she found one of the natural stone benches ringing the pond, allowing her to sink up to her neck in the warm, soothing waters.

Sliding in, Kyle felt the water embracing her smooth, supple skin. He never realized how pleasant such a simple act could feel on the softer, nearly hairless skin of a woman. She, too, sighed in pleasure.

"Here - let me help..." Linda suggested as Kyle picked up the soap. Kyle was surprised by the suggestive, sensuous tone she said it in. "Uh... sure.." Kyle said, slightly hesitant.

"Come on, Kayla." Linda said, taking the soap. "Don't tell me you're a virgin with other woman?"

That caused a smile that Kyle couldn't hide. "No - I've been with a few women before." She replied, utterly truthful. "It just never moved so fast before."

"Oh... The bashful kind..." Linda said in a voice so starkly sexual that if Kyle still had a cock, it would have been rock-hard.

Taking the soap, Linda slowly, sensuously lathered up her hands - then wrapped her arms around Kyle's neck, massaging the soap into her back as she pressed her lithe body against Kyle. Linda's smaller breasts pushed firmly into Kyle's massive mounds as Linda's full, soft lips met Kyle's.

Kyle responded willingly, kissing back as passionately as Linda kissed her, as the Latino's dainty-yet-strong-hands massaged her back.

Breaking gently from the kiss, Linda smiled. "Since I saw you get out of the car, I've wanted to do this..." She whispered - and began to fondle Kyle's massive tits with her lathered hands.

Kyle gasped at the wonderful sensations - then gasped loader as Linda's lips latched onto one now-engorged nipple. Linda skillfully licked and sucked at Kyle's swollen, sensitive new nipples as her hands continued to fondle and caress her huge tits, alternating soft, almost feathery touches with stronger, pleasurable squeezes. Kyle let her own hands rise to return the favor, cupping Linda's own amazingly firm tits, letting her thumbs graze across Linda's smaller nipples.

After several minutes, Linda released Kyle's massive, firm tits - much to Kyle's regret. She'd had no idea just how enjoyable tits could be. She brought her own hands to her massive mounds, massaging and fondling her huge tits as Linda crouched, sliding from view beneath the warm spring water.

Kyle gasped, fingers clamping down on her huge nipples, as Linda's hands cupped Kyle's ass - so she could pull her face firmly against Kyle's crotch.

Kyle's gasp turned to low moans, and her hands massaged her huge tits with renewed fervor as Linda's long, supple tongue began to probe Kyle's hot, wet cunt. Shuddery sensations raced up and down Kyle's spine at the new, erotic sensations of having her clit manipulated by an incredibly skilled tongue. The waves of pleasure ebbed and flowed, and there seemed to be an erotic ribbon of energy connecting her swollen nipples with her sensitive nub in her new pussy.

Then one of Linda's hands went to Kyle's pussy, and she moaned loudly and Linda began pushing her towards orgasm.

Kyle began to pant in short, sharp bursts as the pleasure began to build and double. Her hands on her massive tits matched Linda's movements in rhythm as the orasmic sensations climber higher and higher...

Kyle cried out once, her hips bucking her crotch into Linda's ace, as she came, a powerful orgasm that rocked her new body from head to toe. As the sensation took her, Kyle let herself fall back into the warm, welcoming water, washing the soap and sweat from her shuddering body.

Surfacing, she found Linda unconcernedly soaping herself up. She flashed a grin at Kyle.

"Sorry about rushing it, Kayla..." Linda said. "But I can hold more breath for only so long."

"No..." Kyle said, huskily, then cleared her throat. "No problem. It was... wonderful." She was amazed to find that the orgasm, more than sating her, made her only more aroused. A small fire seemed to burn in her crotch, and her nipples throbbed, practically begging for attention. Her mind seemed to want to wander back to the memory of the orgasm, and she was having trouble focusing clearly.

Linda winked. "You can return the favor some time." Rinsing, she climbed from the water and picked up a towel. "Come on, lets go back to camp - the guys should have things set up."

Still stunned at the sheer intensity of the sexual sensitivity of her new body, Kyle numbly dried, dressed, and followed Linda towards camp, not even noticing that Linda had surreptitiously gotten rid of Kyle's bra. Kyle's shirt clung to his slightly-damp tits, his huge, swollen nipples clearly visible through the white fabric. Her massive tits swaying freely, Kyle climbed the slope, eyes watching the pert movements of Linda's spectacular ass.

Kyle had no idea that her own stride was nearly a mirror image of Linda's sensuous, graceful glide.

* * * * *

Kyle followed Linda to where the three tents were arranged in a circle around a fire-pit. A small fire blazed in the pit as twilight began descending over the hill, and the guys were sitting about equally spaced around the circle.

"You girls have fun?" John asked, a knowing half-grin on his face.

Kyle was surprised to find that she didn't blush at all as she replied. "Yeah - we had fun." She looked around, and found that Linda had 'stolen' the spot she'd wanted, beside Brad. Rather than move the cooler out of the way, Kyle shrugged - mentally - and settled between Steve and John, across from Brad.

Only then did Kyle notice the odd look Brad was giving her - had been giving her since she emerged from the tree-line, in fact. Kyle wondered what the look was for, but wasn't going to ask, in front of the others.

"Pass me a beer, Brad?" She asked, and Brad wordlessly complied, still looking at her oddly. Ignoring the look, Kyle popped the top of the beer and took a long drink of the cold, foamy brew. "Ahhhh... - hits the spot."

"You hungry?" Steve asked Kyle. "We made some stew."

Kyle was surprised to find that she wasn't - despite the fact that she'd only had a quick lunch on the road, her stomach was content. "No, thanks. I'm fine."

"You sure?" Brad asked, and Kyle surprised herself with her answer, which just seemed to pop out. "Got to watch my girlish figure, honey."

The others laughed, but Kyle and Brad blinked at each other in surprise, quickly hiding the look before the others noticed. To cover her surprise, Kyle finished her beer and asked for another. Soon, all five of them were drinking beer, and talking as comfortably as if they'd been friends for ages.

"So, Kayla - what do you do for a living?" Steve, on her right, asked, and she turned to look at him as she answered, mind spinning to come up with something believable.

"Oh, I'm a stripper." Popped out before she really thought about it. To hide her own surprise, she broke eye contact with Steve, dropping her gaze.

"Really..." Steve seemed slightly disappointed. "I guess that explains the implants."

Still not raising her gaze, Kyle replied. "No - they're not implants. They're natural - I became a stripper because I have huge, sexy tits, not the other way around. I just knew how much guys love staring at my perfect tits."

She wasn't rely even thinking about what she was saying, or listening to herself. She was slightly entranced by the way the crotch of Steve's pants were moving, as if alive. It was somehow entrancing, even though, for some reason, she felt slightly disturbed by it, for no reason she could summon from her beer fogged mind.

"Do you enjoy the job?" John asked from her other side, and Kyle forced herself to look in his direction. She was glad she did - his pants were doing the same strange 'crotch dance' - only more so.

"Yeah, I do..." Kyle murmured vaguely, her eyes traveling over John's flat stomach and tanned chest to his lips. As he spoke, she watched those lips move so smoothly and enticingly, forming around each word.

"I guess you must end up having sex pretty often in a job like that, huh?"

Although Kyle heard the question, it didn't really register as she watched his lips caress each word sensuously.

"Yeah.. lots. It's great..." Kyle agreed entranced. She heard a soft sound from her right and she forced her eyes to return to Steve, whose own eyes were closed, a blissful smile on his face. Kyle wondered why he looked so happy, moaning softly. She let her gaze drop, and solved the mystery when she found her hand gently massaging Steve's crotch, tracing the outline of his hard, thick cock through the fabric of his shorts. Satisfied that she solved that mystery, she turned to look at Steve again...

The flickering orange firelight hid the way Kyle's face suddenly when absolutely, stark white. What she was saying and doing came crashing into her consciousness - the thoughts she'd been having, the lustful urges... Forcing herself to move casually, she looked across the fire towards Brad while removing her hand from Steve's crotch.

Brad hadn't noticed what was going on across the fire - Linda had claimed his full attention. Topless, she was pressed tightly against Brad, kissing him passionately. Brad was responding as eagerly.

"Brad?" Kyle said, forcing her voice level.

"Another beer?" Brad asked, breaking the kiss, and reaching for the cooler.

"In a minute - I've had a few already, and my bladder feels ready to blow. You know how bad my night vision is, and how good yours is

- can you give me a hand?"

"I'd be glad to help." Steve said from Kyle's right, and she somehow managed to manufacture a smile for him as she answered. "Thanks, but Brad knows where The Bush is, and can find it in the dark. We'll show you tomorrow."

Brad had picked up on the hidden urgency in Kyle's request. "No problem." He said rising - awkwardly, due to the erection straining his pants. The large, enticing erection straining the fabric outwards, begging to be....

Forcing her eyes - and mind - from Brad's hard cock, Kyle rose, and let Brad lead her down the hill. "What the hell's wrong with me?" Kyle hissed in a low voice.

"What?" Brad asked, startled.

"I was coming on to those guys! I kept thinking how good they looked. About their hard cocks. How good it would feel to have one of you guys..." Kyle forced her mind to leave that dangerous train of thought. "For God's sake, Brad, I was fondling Steve's hard-on!" Brad was staring at her, wide-eyed in the darkness. "You're kidding!" Reining in his disbelief, Brad tried to think.

Suddenly, an ugly thought occurred to him. "Your Mom and Aunt - they're both really buxom, right?"

Kyle nodded, unseen, and answered. "Yeah - Mom's about a double dee, and Aunt Carol's a triple dee, I'd say." "Did you ever see them taking any medication, or special vitamins?" Brad asked.

Kyle frowned. "Yeah - now that you mention it, I once saw my Mom give my aunt some of hers when Aunt Carol forgot hers at home. Something called. Nitro, I think."

Brad sighed. "Ni-Estro, actually." Kyle blinked. "Huh?"

Brad explained heavily. "It's a hormone suppressant. Both your Mom and Aunt are buxom because they have a hormone imbalance - they produce too much. The drug counteracts some of it."

It suddenly struck Kyle. "So I have it from both sides - like my tits. And it's stronger for me then for either of them because of that? But..." The import struck Kyle with stunning force. "My God - I'm a slut!"

"Technically," Brad corrected the stunned woman. "a nymphomaniac. You are helplessly addicted to sex."

"Oh, shit!" Kyle swore. "What are we going to do?"

Brad was silent for several seconds before answering. "You're going to try real hard to keep control of yourself." "That's it?" Kyle asked, incredulous. "No way - we've got to get out of here!"

Brad sighed. "We can't. Inside an enclosed space, like a vehicle, the smell of your own pheromones would push you so hard, so fast you'd go insane. Out in the open, you've got a running chance. In a car - or tent - you'd suffer a breakdown brought on by intense sexual need. I'm not sure that even being in the open will be enough."

Kyle was stunned. "You mean - my need for sex might get so strong I'd actually go nuts?"

Brad sighed, voice heavy with regret and self-condemnation. "I'm sorry, Kyle - I should have researched your family medical history before doing the test. Yes - I'm afraid that there's a very good chance that by morning you will be a gibbering, mindless, madwoman."

"Wha.. how..." Kyle took a deep breath. "What can I do to save myself."

This time, Brad paused for so long Kyle thought he wasn't going to answer. Then his voice came from the darkness. "Have sex. Whenever the craving builds up, satisfy it."

Kyle was stunned - but it made sense. Sex would keep her from reaching that fatal level of frustration. Fulfill her desperate need, and her mind would be saved. It was disgusting and sickening - but if it saved her... Well, in that movie, that soccer team ate their dead to survive, didn't they?

Then Brad's voice smashed the delicate web of self-deception she was building. "But you can't." "Why not?"

Brad sighed. "If you give in, your body's hormone levels will stabilize at that higher level - and it would be like you were getting a constant booster shot of my serum. The serum won't wear off, and you'll be stuck as a woman."

The hideous truth smashed into Kyle's mind - as did the alternatives.

"Let me see if I have this right." Kyle said, dully. "I have three options. Satisfy my craving, and be stuck as a super-horny, huge-breasted woman for the rest of my life. Don't satisfy it, and I'll become a man again - but I'll be totally insane. Or, throw myself in the pond and drown myself."

Brad's voice was horrified. "Kyle - no! You can't commit suicide!"

Kyle literally snarled at Brad, her contralto ugly. "Don't tell me what I can and can't do, you bastard! This is your fault! Safe, hah! Temporary, hah! Why shouldn't I kill myself rather than the other options!"

"Kyle - being a woman isn't a fate worse than death - over half the population is female, and they don't kill themselves because of it. And, if you're alive and sane, I can try to cure you - I can't cure insanity or death!" Brad pleaded.

"That's easy for you to say." Kyle said, dully. "You don't have to be the woman." "I will."

That startled Kyle out of her suicidal depression. "Huh?"

"When we get home, I'll take the serum. I'll remain female as long as you do. We'll sink or swim together, buddy. Male or female - I would never do anything to purposefully hurt you. We'll find an answer." Brad's voice carried steely conviction, and absolute honesty. "And if you commit suicide, so do I. I'm not going to live knowing I'd driven my best friend to death."

Kyle sighed, realizing something amazing. As hard as it was for her to deal with this, it was somehow harder on Brad, who knew and accepted his responsibility. Straightening her back, Kyle dredged through her spirit, searching for that sense of humor that had carried her this far - and finding it.

"Well, Brad, let's get going. I've got people to do and places to see." Her voice was brittle, but Kyle was amazed to find that she could, indeed handle this.

"Thank you." Brad said softly. "Shall we?"

Kyle dredged up a smile from somewhere. "Hang on - my back teeth really are floating." Quickly, they each got rid of some used beer, and they headed back up the hill.

"Feeling better?" Steve asked as they come back into the circle of firelight. "We were getting ready to send out a search party."

"We're fine." Kyle said as he and Brad settled back down in their spots. "I just had a lot of beer to dispose of." Inside, her gut was churning and she felt close to vomiting. She was amazed at how evenly her voice came out.

"Well, I'm just glad you made it back." Linda said, with a fake pout. "I was getting lonely." Turning back to Brad, she resumed where she'd left off. Brad responded, stiffly at first, but soon getting into the spirit.

"I need something stronger to drink." Kyle said to John, honestly. A little 'Dutch courage' couldn't hurt.

John produced a bottle of Jim Bean, and Kyle took a swig. Settling between the guys, she sipped at the bottle, and tried to relax by chatting with the guys about trivial matters like movies and music.

She realized she'd reached 'relaxed' when she found herself pulling of the tank top, letting her massive tits free. The swayed once as the almost literally popped out from the elastic at the bottom, the settled in place, firm and round, thrust proudly from her ribcage.

Steve, taking this as a cue, shifted her slightly, so she was sitting with her back against his chest, facing John.

Reaching his muscular arms around her body, Steve began to fondle her huge, firm tits. Despite her mild disgust at letting a man touch her, there was no denying the physical pleasure in the act. She gasped slightly...

...and John slid his tongue into her open mouth.

Closing her eyes, Kyle pretended it was Linda kissing him so passionately and skillfully. Passionately, she returned the kiss, their tongues intertwining as Steve's strong hands tweaked her huge nipples and caressed her massive tits. Almost on their own, Kyle's hands drifted down, one to her crotch, one to John's, feeling the warmth of his huge cock in the palm of her hand through his open zipper.

Then, something happened that Kyle had never expected. She lost control.

It was like being in an extremely vivid erotic dream. She could feel everything that was happening to her, but had no control over herself as her body's need took her mind hostage.

As if in a dream, she found her other hand joining her right, fondling John's huge, throbbing cock. With the gentlest of tugs, she found herself pulling John to his feet as her hands eagerly pushed his underwear down, setting his cock free.

It was the largest cock she'd ever seen - easily fifteen inches long, it was tanned, and veins throbbed along its length, causing the near- purple glands to bob slightly with each heart-beat. It was equally thick, making it an effort to wrap her hands around the massive shaft as she drew it towards her mouth.

Then it slid between her lips, its massive head filling her mouth. She didn't know what to expect - but it wasn't the pleasant, slightly musky smell of the hot cock beneath her nose, and the wonderful sensation of it filling her mouth. Opening her throat, she gripped John's cock at the base with one hand, and used the other to slide up and down his shaft, coating it with her saliva as she licked at the massive head in her mouth, enjoying its feel and taste almost as much as she enjoyed Steve's ongoing fondling of her massive, firm tits.

Gently applying suction, she found herself sliding the end of the massive organ back and forth past her lips as her hand worked the massive, spittle-slicked shaft in syncopation. Her motions, tentative at first, soon became almost professional, tongue, lips and hands moving in synch as John moaned low in the back of his throat.

She felt John stiffen, and pulled back until only the very tip of his cock was between her lips. Then, applying stronger suction, she licked at the head vigorously, pushing John over the edge.

John grunted as a flood of warm, salty cum filled Kyle's mouth. Mentally, she was disgusted to have a man's cum shooting into her hot mouth - but physically, she showed only enjoyment as she tried, vainly, to swallow all of the cum flowing as if from a fire hose. To thick streams dribbled from the corners of her lips, splattering onto her huge tits, where Steve's hands massaged the slick liquid into her freckled skin.

Finally John's massive organ ran dry. Licking the cock clean, Kyle let it slip from her lips, and - while her male side wanted to vomit - smiled up at John.

John suddenly stepped aside, and Steve's hands left Kyle's massive endowments, to be replaced by Linda's tongue. Hungrily, the dusky woman began to lick the cum from Kyle's tits, pausing now and then to nibble and suck erotically at her massive, engorged nipples.

Still in the dream-like grip of her nymphomania, Kyle found herself slowly reclining, Linda never releasing her tits. Hands tugged at her shorts, and Kyle watched past Linda's dark head as Steve gently removed her clothing, exposing her dripping cunt to the cool evening air.

Kyle tried to take control of her body, to slow down things that were going too far, too fast. But it was a useless attempt, and her body would not be denied, as it spread her smooth legs for Steve, who was naked, his own, large cock standing erect. It wasn't as large as his friends, but it was still big, bigger than Kyle's had been, before he'd become Kayla.

Helplessly, she found herself beckoning to Steve, who positioned himself, lifting her legs and resting them on his broad shoulders.

Then, with a smooth, gentle movement, his cock entered her sopping cunt, and all thoughts were driven from both Kyle and Kayla as ecstasy rolled through her.

That ecstasy only built, as Steve's hot, throbbing cock drove in and out of her new womanhood. She'd never experienced such a wonderful sensation of being filled completely, as if something had been missing, and now she was whole. Linda's wonderful lesbian pussy-licking that afternoon paled to insignificance next to the tremendous pleasure rocking her body now.

She began to throw her head from side to side, crying out, urging Steve ever onward. And he complied, fucking her expertly, his huge organ creating satisfaction and ecstasy like none she'd ever felt.

Then Kyle came.

It was a like a string of firecrackers of pleasure going off in her cunt. Orgasm after orgasm rolled through her body, claiming it completely as she screamed out in animalistic pleasure. The multiple orgasm literally rocked her body, forcing Linda away from her huge tits as her body was wracked by spasm after spasm of sheerest orgasmic ecstasy.

Yet it still wasn't enough. As Steve, spent, pulled from her, Kyle rose to her knees, her burning eyes falling on Brad, who sat, open-mouthed, massaging his cock.

"I... I..." Brad stammered.

In a voice barely human, Kayla said. "I need it, Brad - I need you to fuck me."

Rising, she swayed sensuously around the fire to her stunned and confused best friend. Without letting him make up his mind, Kayla solved his hesitation by crouching, impaling herself on his hard cock.

Brad cried out, and instinctively gripped Kayla's ass. With a feral grin, she began to piston up and down, taking him almost viciously.

Her clit, already sensitized, didn't take much convincing to blast into another string of orgasms. Her cunt tightened on Brad's cock, pushing him over the edge, and causing him to shoot his cum into his best friend's cunt.

That was enough to take Kyle back to reality. Still impaled on her best friend's cock, she regained control of herself, and fond herself staring at Brad's shocked, chagrined face.

"I... We... You..." Brad stammered.

Suddenly, Kyle found himself smiling. "Don't worry - at first I was disgusted, but it felt soooo good." "Yeah.. but..." Brad tried to contradict.

Kyle smiled seductively. "Hey, get over it - somebody would have to keep me satisfied on the ride home - we would have ended up doing it then, anyway."

Brad blushed. "I hadn't thought about that, Kyle."

Kayla giggled. "I don't think Kyle fits anymore. Might as well get used to calling me Kayla." She paused, thinking of something. "Besides, if this doesn't convince the funding board, I can always fuck them into giving you more money."

Steve, Linda and John shared a startled look as Brad and Kayla finished whispering, and broke out in laughter. Climbing off Brad, Kayla rose, huge breasts heaving and eyes dancing merrily.

"So - whose ready for a midnight dip in the hot-springs?"

The other four shared a look. "You want to go for a swim?" Steve asked.

Kayla shrugged, causing her huge tits to sway. "Well, it'll clean us up, and it's something to pass the time until I'm ready for my next hard fucking." She winked at Linda. "Besides, I have a debt to repay to Linda."

The decision was unanimous.

* * * * *

As it turned out, Brad never did reapply for his funding. Neighbors noticed he returned from his vacation with a huge-breasted mysterious girlfriend. About a month later, they silently and swiftly vanished away, moving out one day and leaving the house to be sold by a Realtor, who was close-mouthed as to where - and who - the money was going to be sent.

Shortly after, the adult film industry was taken by storm by a couple of new actresses. Kayla Canyon, a huge-breasted 'girl-next-door' blonde bisexual bombshell, and her lesbian-only best friend, Brandy. What they lacked in acting ability, they made up for in enthusiasm.

These two newcomers to the scene were greeted with great fervor - in part by the hype created by their sponsors, three long-time favorites of the porn scene, John Johnson, Steve Shaft and Linda Lupius, who guided the two women through the steps, appearing in their first dozen films.

Their films of all five were in great demand, and they could have had work year round, if they wished.

But every year, they took at least a week off, vanishing somewhere, refusing to disclose their vacation destination. But they always returned with big, big smiles.

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: One man who sees all women as just another conquest, finds that his date for the night has decided to "let" him become the bimbo that he assume she is.

The Test

By Gunslinger

Carrie paused, one hand holding the key, the other holding the doorknob. She turned, casting a searching look over her shoulder, her deep, sea-green eyes almost lost behind the dark chestnut strands that flowed over her shoulders.

"Do you... really love me...?" She asked, hesitantly.

The tall, broad-shouldered young man behind her on the doorstep to the cabin smiled easily, his perfect, white teeth showing brilliantly against the dark tan.

"Of course I love you, baby..." Ken said, soothingly, running one perfectly manicured hand through his carefully styled mane of wheat- blond hair.

It would have taken a lot of scrutiny to realize that his dark eyes weren't sharing in the reassuring smile. While he waited with hidden impatience for his 'Flavor of the month' to unlock the door, the thought running through his head was a continuation of his spoken words: 'I love your hot, sexy, lingerie-model body, and if you'd just open the goddamn door, maybe I'd finally be able to get into your pants!'

Not that Kenneth Burnside would ever say such a thing, of course. Fairly well off financially, the tall, tanned young man was almost offensively good looking, his natural 'All American' features enhanced by hours spent sculpting his tall, broad-shouldered body into a living sculpture of masculine perfection, taut and athletic without being overly muscled. He was also a smooth-talker, with all the right things to say - as long as they furthered his goal.

After all - he was Ken Burnside, and he had his standards. Sure, he could have slept with a different woman each night, his masculine perfection guaranteeing ample interest - but he only dated the 'best'. Models, exotic dancers, actress... they had to be at least mildly famed for their looks before he was even interested in a woman, and he was willing to put a little time and effort into catching such women - especially since being seen with them was good for his image. Carrie, however, was trying his patience...

"Good." She said, finally, and opened the door to her rather remotely-located cabin. She'd invited him up here on next to no notice, giving him no time to really 'arrange' anything. Usually, he wouldn't have dropped everything and come all the way out here without letting anybody know about it - but Carrie, who was somewhat old-fashioned, had used a phrase that had triggered Ken into action: She'd said that she wanted to give him a chance to 'prove his love' for her, and Ken figured he knew what the 'test' would be.

So, the fact that he hadn't been able to pack anything for the 'weekend getaway' didn't really matter - he wasn't planning to need much in the way of clothes for the next forty-eight hours. Ken knew he was a spectacular lover, and he'd have no trouble getting her 'hooked' the first time they had sex. After that, he could get steadily more 'greedy' during sex... and then, once he'd sated his urges for her, he'd be able to dump her without much trouble, the same as always.

Now his grin was genuine as she followed her into the darkened interior of the cabin. It was evening in the wooded mountains where her cabin was located, and the hills around the elegant-looking 'hunting-lodge' style cabin cut off most of the descending sun's golden- orange rays, leaving the interior of the cabin only barely lit. As he swung the door shut behind him, the foyer of the cabin was plunged into near-total darkness, making it impossible to see the slender, well-proportioned brunette even though she was less than two feet away.

He was surprised when she didn't turn the light on immediately - the switch was near the door, it's elegant brass switch-plate having reflected the rays of the setting sun while the door was open. He tried to pin-point where he'd seen the golden-orange glimmer before he'd shut the door...

...when Carrie's sweet voice wafted out of the darkness, telling him to 'undress'.

His unseen smile widened even further at the vindication of his efforts - she was so hot to trot that she couldn't even wait. Quickly, the muscular young blond stripped off his chinos and faded-tan cotton work-shirt, habitually doing so smoothly and easily - even though she couldn't see the well-rehearsed moves he used to get his shoes off while stepping out of his pants and underwear, or the way he opened the shirt to 'reveal' taut pecs and flat abs that were hidden by the darkness...

...except that now the lights flared to life, revealing his naked, bronzed body in all it's glory, while he gazed eagerly at Debbie's alabaster skin...

...or what little of it that was showing, at any rate. She was still fully dressed.

"What the...?" Ken asked, frowning in confusion, his gut tightening at the thought that this might have been a 'set-up' for some elaborate practical joke pulled on behalf of an angry ex-girlfriend. It seemed even more likely as the slender, attractive brunette hurriedly gathered up his clothing, and his habitual smile slipped off his face as he began to reach towards her, planning to yank his clothes out of her dainty hands...

...when she grinned at him. "I want to have sex with you, Ken..."

That was exactly what the handsome young man wanted to hear. Unfortunately, there was more to her comment than that, and he had to force his smile back into place as she continued speaking.

"...but first I have to be absolutely sure." She said. "I can't go into it all now, not until I know for certain, but... I'm not like most women, Ken. Before I can have sex, I have to make sure it's the right man... because if it isn't really love, then I'd lose all my abilities for nothing..."

Ken frowned, slightly, looking genially puzzled - rather than annoyed, frustrated and angrily confused, which was his true emotional state. Ken, however, almost never revealed his true emotions, and so had long practice in playing the part.

"I.. I don't understand, honey-bunch." He said, making his voice kind-yet-befuddled.

"You will, later." She promised. "All you need to know for right now is that I need.. reassurance. I need to know for sure that you love me, more than anything else."

"Of course I do, baby..." Ken assured her, looking hurt at her doubt. "Honey, I'd do anything for you." "Actually, it's what I don't want you to do for me that counts." She said, grinning enigmatically.

The dark, inscrutable eyes blinked. "I... I beg your pardon?"

"I'm going to go away for exactly twelve hours." She told him. "I'll be taking your clothes. If you really love me, then you'll stay here, naked, until I get back. You won't answer the phone or door, or try to have any contact with another human being in any way. You won't watch TV, you won't eat or drink or even smoke - you'll just sit around and wait for me to get back. If you do that, then once I get back I'll make love to you like you've never been made love to like before..."

'You have no idea how many different ways I've been 'made love' to...' Ken thought - but kept his smile in place. "Of course, dear. Twelve hours, even without smoking, is nothing - if it's for you."

"I hope so..." She said... as she fished his cigarettes and lighter out of his discarded clothing. He watched, even more confused, as she put them down on the table near the door. "I'll leave these here - don't smoke any."

"I won't..." Ken 'promised', wondering if even a hot chick like her was worth this - she seemed crazy or something.

Then again, women were crazy, as far as Ken was concerned. Truth be told, he could barely stand to spend time with his 'girlfriends' - women though so poorly, in such an emotional, disorganized fashion, he was amazed they were allowed to walk around unescorted.

However, he certainly wasn't going to say that - as stupid and emotionally illogical as women were, they were great to fuck, and if he actually told the truth about women, he'd probably never get laid again - so the best thing to do was grin and bare it.

After all, she hadn't even bothered to count the cigarettes in the pack. Maybe she was expecting to be able to smell it in the cabin if he 'snuck' a smoke while she was gone - but Ken wasn't shy about his perfect physique, so her 'steal his clothes' gambit wouldn't work.

The cabin was remote, and private property - if he wanted to walk around, naked, there was nothing anybody could do about it. He'd simply go outside for a smoke...

...after applying liberal doses of insect repellent, of course. At least to select portions of his anatomy, since he'd have to be sure to wash before she got back, to erase even that slight clue. However, he wasn't worried - the cabin was clean and well-kept, with a definite 'pine' scent in the air, and it would be close enough to the scent of most insect repellents to cover him.

"Anything to prove how much I love you, my darling..." He told her with admirably feigned sincerity, giving her a restrained kiss on the cheek. "You just go right ahead, and I'll be waiting for you when you get back - sitting like a good little boy."

"I really, really hope so..." She said, a strange look coming into her clear eyes - a look that somehow made her look older. Not physically older, since her body was youthful and firm - but as if she somehow had a century of experience in a youthful body...

Shrugging it off, Ken watched her head out of the cabin and down to the car. He waved out the window at her as she climbed behind the wheel, and continued to wave as she started down the long, winding driveway...

As soon as she was out of sight, his smile vanished and he looked around the cabin with an angry expression. Barely in time, he managed to keep the swear-words running through his mind from escaping past his lips - after all, maybe the truth behind this test was that he was being recorded or video-taped.

If that was the case, then he was 'screwed' - so he might as well find out right away.

Naked, his larger-than-average cock dangling magnificently between his taut thighs, Ken did a survey of the cabin, checking it for any sign of audio or video recording equipment. He started where he was, in the small 'mudroom' near the cabin's front door, then slowly expanded his search., moving through its large 'everything' room, the open-concept floor-plan leaving wide fields of vision for any hidden camera equipment...

...except that there wasn't any, as far as he could tell. The same went for the main bathroom, the two 'guest' bedrooms, and the big Master bedroom with its en suite bath. The place, though nicely appointed, was designed to 'rough it' for the wealthy, meaning that there was just enough electrical wiring to cover the 'bare necessities'. Any extra equipment would have stood out like a sore thumb in the solid-log walls or the wood-or-flagstone floors.

He did find several other things, though - things that would make the next twelve hours considerably more comfortable.

For one thing, the cabin was too damn chilly, and getting colder. His search had revealed that there was a bare minimum of wiring - and that there was no electrical heat. Nor oil or gas. In fact, the sole source of heating for the cabin was the fireplace, a large fieldstone design that was 'two-faced' so that it warmed both the main 'everything' room and the master bedroom, with the heat 'seeping' through the rest of the structure.

He didn't want to light a fire, since it would definitely leave tell-tale odors and other signs of his 'disobedience'. He could have turned on the electric oven for warmth, but the heat would have been localized, and he didn't plan to spend the night huddled close to the stove.

So, he found another way to stay warm.

There were no clothes in the cabin. Not even Carrie's clothes - every closet was empty. In fact, the entire cabin was rather austere, with no 'knickknacks' at all, and only main pieces of furnishing - almost as if it were not a specific person's cabin, but a rental. Ken, however, shrugged all of this off without really noticing it - decor wasn't his strong suit, and since bric-a-brac, or the lack thereof, made no difference in his plans for sexual conquest, they barely registered at all.

He did, however, find a pair of black felt slippers in the hall closet, which he gratefully slid on - the floor was cold, especially the sunken stone flooring in the 'everything' room. There were also some towels in the bathroom - a big pink bath towel and a few smaller white hand towels. The pink one, wrapped around his waist and tied in place with a black extension cord from the everything room, made an acceptable 'kilt', while some creative knot-tying in three of the smaller towels formed a rudimentary sleeveless 'shirt', helping to keep him warm. It might not have been more Mel Brooks than Brook's Brothers, but it got the job done.

Feeling satisfied with his hastily improvised wardrobe, Ken headed back to the kitchen, his stomach indicating that some nourishment was in order. His initial survey had already shown that the larder was literally packed full of food and beverages of every description, and he doubted that Carrie would be able to tell if any of it was gone.

Pulling open the door to the large walk-in pantry, he pulled the chain that turned on the naked bulb in the small room and stepped inside, looking over the piled and packed shelves of food, lightly running one hand over the different packages of food as he tried to make up his mind what to have.

For a second, something about the sight seemed to bother him, and he paused and frowned, trying to work out what could possibly have triggered an alarm in his subconscious. He stared intently at the food, but found no sign of 'anti-tampering' techniques, not even the old tried-and-true method of placing a hair in a strategic spot. He turned his attention from the food to his own arm, the only other thing in his field of vision, and the alarm got slightly louder...

...but finally he shrugged and ignored it, not able to find anything unusual in the sight of his lightly tanned arm, with its smoothly defined musculature and soft, light body hair.

Shrugging mentally, he sorted through a jumble of oriental noodle packages, hovering uncertainly between 'Original' and 'Chicken', finally choosing the later.

Putting on a small pot of water to boil, he dropped the lid on top of the pot to keep it from boiling dry, then tossed the oriental noodles on the counter next to the stove and padded quickly to the front foyer, the hard rubber heels of the crushed-velvet slipper marking a soft cadence as he grabbed his smokes and headed to the back door.

Stepping out onto the back deck, he double-checked to make sure the door wouldn't look behind him, then rummaged in his pack and extracted one tobacco-filled cylinder and placing it between his lips. Pulling his unadorned silver Zippo from the pack, he lit the cigarette and then returned the lighter to its resting place, dropping the pack onto the wide redwood railing as he took a deep drag on the cigarette.

He smoked slowly, closing his eyes and enjoying his 'success' at outsmarting that dumb bitch. Leaning one hip against the wall of the house, he let his free hand fiddle idly with the simple wood 'buttons' on his fuzzy white shirt, the other hand rising and falling in a steady rhythm. It wasn't until he felt the heat of the glowing 'cherry' on his fingers that he opened his eyes.

Careful not to grind the fine edge of his clear-gloss-coated nails, Kenny butted out the cigarette. Grabbing the pack of cigarettes from the railing, he slipped it into the pocket of his terry-cloth kilt, making sure that the plain black PVC belt was snugged tight around his slender waist, so that the weight of the cigarettes and lighter wouldn't tug his kilt down.

He hurried back into the house, ignoring the mild 'thumping' of the wooden block heels on his black PVC dress shoes as he rushed to the kitchen, finding the covered pot burbling along happily. Opening the package of noodles, he pulled out the packet of flavored soup base and dumped the rest of the contents into the boiling pot, his stomach already responding to the sight of the uncooked food. His mouth began to water, and he unconsciously licked his lips, feeling his long, supple tongue glide smoothly over his full, pale-pink-glossed lips. The three-minute wait while the noodles cooked seemed to last an eternity, and he paced back and forth anxiously, the air gliding over his smooth, lightly muscled legs as his 'loose-pleated' skirt swirled around his knees. Finally, the noodles were ready, and he added the soup-base, stirring it thoroughly before draining out the water and grabbing a fork, tugging out clumps of the yellowish noodles and letting the cool momentarily on the end of the fork before cramming them in his mouth, trying to assuage his hunger.

It didn't help. First of all, he found the noodles to be oddly bland, though a lot of salt brought the flavor into the 'acceptable' range. It didn't seem to do a thing for his actual hunger, though - he still felt like his gut was hollow, as if what he'd just eaten wasn't close to fulfilling some sort of craving that he wasn't even aware he had...

He shook his head in annoyance at the strange hunger - and then swore mildly as the move caused his hair to flop in front of his face. Angrily, he flipped the shoulder-length swatch of golden hair out of his face, tossing the pot and fork into the sink for later cleaning. He ducked back into the pantry to see if anything looked more 'satisfying', his watery brown eyes jumping from item to item as one foot tapped impatiently, the hard sole of the black-leather ankle-boot creating a sharp staccato sound that seemed to fit his frustrated mood.

Nothing seemed to spark his interest - yet he still had that strange 'hunger' to fulfill, so Kenny grabbed a package of Mini Marshmallows from a jumble of a dozen or so identical packages, hoping the little white near-spheres would serve to fill his stomach.

Swaying gently atop the three-inch tapered heels, Kenny walked over to the couch and dropped onto it, crossing his smooth, milky legs at the knees and smoothing his pleated pink skirt down decorously before ravenously tearing open the package and digging in, popping one tiny treat after another between his pastel-shaded lips.

It wasn't until his medium-length nails were scrabbling at the bottom of the bag that Kenny realized he'd eaten the entire bag of the firmly-soft treats without so much as denting his hunger. Using both hands, he angrily crumpled the bag against his chest, feel it push rather pleasantly against the barely-noticeable mounds under his white cotton shirt.

"What the hell is wrong with me...?" He asked himself in his alto voice, shaking his head in annoyance - and then, out of habit, flipping his long, platinum-blond hair back out of his high-cheekboned face. "I can't seem to find anything that satisfies this craving..."

Maybe he needed something with a little more substance - and he definitely needed something salty, though he wasn't sure why he was craving salt. Rising, he swayed over to the garbage atop his slender five-inch heels, tossing the empty bag away under a couple of layers of make-up-smeared tissues.

He glanced towards the pantry again, his long lashes lowering over his greenish eyes as he considered the choices, full lips pursed thoughtfully - but he really didn't feel like cooking anything...

...so maybe he should order in.

The thought made Kenni pause - though he wasn't sure why. Why shouldn't he order something to eat? After all, he was hungry - so eating seemed perfectly logical. For some reason, though, the thought gave him pause...

Then, with a start, Kenni realized he didn't know where his money was. Frowning in confusion, he swayed gracefully towards the master bedroom, pausing along the way to straighten a couple of small, mildly erotic statues on the fireplace mantel before continuing his journey to the bedroom.

He looked around for his wallet, but didn't see it laying around. He tried to remember where he'd had it last... and found himself pulling a completely blank, not only on its location, but on anything he'd done that day. Vague, half-formed memories tried to come into focus, but for some reason he had trouble 'picturing' himself at all, much less what he'd done that day...

Well, it wasn't important - he'd just look for his wallet. It had to be around here somewhere...

He walked over to the closet and pulled it open, shoving aside the hanging clothes to look at the rack underneath, where his shoes and purses were stored. He found his plain leather wallet in the second purse he tried, and he sighed softly in satisfaction as he walked over to the bed and perched daintily on its edge. Pushing aside a couple of pill-bottles and a box of Kleenex, he turned the phone towards him and lifted the receiver...

...then frowned for a second, glancing around the room in mild confusion at the familiar act, wondering why simply picking up the phone felt so strange.

Shaking his head, Kenni tapped out the number of the local pizza parlor and ordered a large pizza with anchovies and spicy meatballs, giving his credit-card number for verification - though, of course, the pizza parlor already had his personal information from all the other times he'd ordered pizza.

Hanging up the phone when he was done, Kenni lay back on the bed and tried to figure out why he felt so strange. It didn't seem to make any sense - but, then again, a lot of things in life didn't make any sense...

Sighing, Kenni idly played with his firm, D-cup breasts for a few minutes, rubbing the firm mounds through the white cotton tank-top and feeling his cock harden in response... and, not wanting to answer the door with a ranging hard-on, he forced himself to stop, rising from the bed with a flush coloring his fair skin.

To calm himself, Kenni went back out to the deck, pulling his smokes out of the pocket of his pink cotton skirt. Pulling one paper tube out of the pack, he tapped it on the deck, making sure that the 'cigarette', made with a home cigarette-making machine, was firmly packed before slipping the smoke between his lips. Pulling the plain 'silver'-colored Bic lighter from the pack, he lit the smoke and inhaled deeply, enjoying the strong flavor of the tobacco-and-marijuana mix she rolled. Almost immediately, she began to feel the effect of the drug and nicotine in his system, and he closed his long-lashed eyes to better enjoy it.

Far too quickly Kanni finished his smoke, and he let the final lung-full of pungent smoke trickle from between his full, gloss-red lips in a sigh. Tucking the pack of smokes into the flared top of his thigh-high black leather boots, he swayed gracefully back into the house, trying to ignore the way his huge, thick nipple were straining through the spandex fabric of the crop-top that struggled to encase his huge, basketball-sized breasts. Despite his 'self-restraint', his cock was rock-hard... but it was thankfully too small to be seen through the tight pink spandex of his skirt.

The seven-inch stiletto heels of her boots clattered on the floor as he paced anxiously back and forth, bored hungry and stoned. Flipping his ass-length platinum-blonde hair back over his slender shoulders, Kanni idly picked up one of his erotic sculptures and played with it, long red nails sliding over explicitly-carved stone until the doorbell finally rang.

As always, the delivery guys let themselves in, grinning eagerly as they put their 'excuse' on the table near the front door, balancing it atop the jumble of day-to-day 'crap' that always accumulated there. Kanni smiled at Pete as he walked towards the blonde, eyes hungrily fixed on Kanni's massive, medicine-ball-sized breasts.

"Pizza delivery..." John said, grinning, as Kanni sunk expectantly to his knees. John didn't disappoint him, whipping out his rapidly-hardening cock.

Eagerly, Kanni leaned forward and enveloped the cock with his full, experienced lips, one hand coming up to grabbed the base of John's shaft, while the other slipped under his own tight skirt to begin frantically jerking at his own, tiny cock while he started yet another wonderful blow-job, loving the way Pete's cock filled her mouth as she slurped at it with every ounce of experience her years of practice gave her.

"Oh, Kandi..." John moaned, closing his eyes and leaning back slightly as the huge-breasted blonde eagerly slurped away at his shaft. "Yeah, baby - that's right... Suck it real good..."

She obeyed with alacrity, eager for the 'payoff'...

...which wasn't long in coming. Soon, a flood of hot cum gushed down her eager throat, and she swallowed it all down before licking the John's cock clean.

Pulling her sopping fingers from the confines of her lacy pink panties, Kandi rose to the full height provided to her otherwise diminutive frame by the thick platforms and nine-inch heels of her boots. She sensuously licked her own fingers clean of the pussy-juice coating them, her big blues eyes fixed on the other John, standing nervously near the door.

"Well...?" She asked in her breathy, high-pitched voice. "Are you just gonna stand there, honey-bunch?"

The John smiled, nervously, and came towards her while his friend backed away. She smiled back at him, reassuringly, and the customer found enough guts to reach up and begin fondling her massively-enhanced boobs.

"Mmmm..." She moaned. "that feels good..."

A little bolder, the first-time John undid the clasp on the frilly, purely-ornamental bra and let it fall away, exposing every inch of her creamy, gigantic globes. He began to lick them, his hands still fondling the sides of the massive breasts.

He did this for several minutes, and Kandi let him - and then, finally, he stopped, and looked at her expectantly.

Grinning reassuring, the huge-breasted platinum whore turned as she slid her panties down her long, shapely legs. Bending over so that her massive, impossibly firm tits dangled heavily from her slender ribcage, Kandi presented her backside to the man, allowing him to choose which always-ready hole he wanted to use.

He chose her sopping wet cunt. She moaned in pleasure as his cock slid into her, his hands grasping her hips for leverage as he began to pump eagerly inside her, ignoring technique in favor of getting his rocks off as soon as possible - despite the fact that he and his friend had already paid for the full hour.

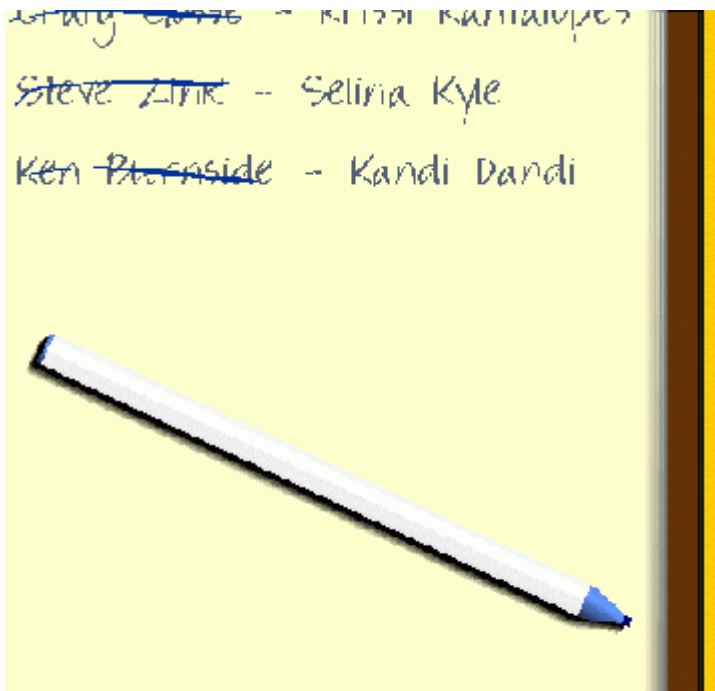

"Oh, yes, baby 0- that's it..." She moaned in her high-pitched voice, her slender frame shaking with the force of the large man's thrusts. "Oh, this feels grate. You fuck wonderfully... oh, God, I think I'm gonna cum..."

gasm - but that wasn't the point. She screamed and thrashed in a very realistic and pumped his cum deep into her tight little cunt...

sure from the string of rapid-fire orgasms the man was giving her from fucking she should have gotten the guy's name before begging him to come in and fuck her, ending in Candi's head, and she didn't think to ask the guys' name as he pulled out of her cabin.

ed in that position, bent over with cramps forming in her calves, buttocks and glow fade away. Only then did she struggle against the massive weight of her body upright.

et' boots, the tiny, otherwise naked nympho swayed over to the couch and sat as her mind struggled to keep thought processes working despite the handicap going through her system.

Of course, a nice joint would take care of that. Fumbling through the selection of hormone-enhancers and other drugs that had made her the wonder-slut she was, Candi S. Dandi picked up a pre-rolled joint and brought the thick smoke to life, inhaling on the thick doobie as if it were another wonderful, thick cock...

* * * * *

Sighing, Carrie turned away from the image of the tiny, grotesquely over-endowed bimbo that Ken had become.

"Well, I certainly know what was on your mind..." the two-hundred-year-old witch sighed, unable to summon tears after yet another loss.

Flipping open a thick, black book, she ran through the pages until she reached the latest entry, and then she carefully made a new notation on the old, brittle paper...

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: After a terrible auto accident, the victim is plucked from the scene and used to test new procedures which turn him into a woman; he then falls in love with his best friend.

Things Change

By Gunslinger

Mud. Fire. Pain.

The taste of mud filled Chris's mouth as he lay, face down, a dozen feet from where the roaring fire consumed both the shattered remains of his Z-29, and the aged oak that had stopped the car's head- long flight after the breaks had failed on the mountain road. The flickering light, deceptively cheerful, served as a funeral pyre for the nameless hitch-hiker Chris had unknowingly doomed to a fiery death when he picked him up five minutes before.

The hitch-hiker had survived the impact. Chris knew this because the man had screamed for an eternal minute before, mercifully, falling silent.

Pain roared through Chris's body. Raging agony, bigger than he'd ever known, consumed Chris. Pain from his gashed face, from hurtling through the windshield. Pain from his broken hips, legs, hands and feet. Pain that seemed like a living thing, a terrible beast that devoured Chris's hope, and strength. Helpless, the once-handsome youth lay immobile, blood slowly draining from his slender body.

"Spread out - but don't disturb anything."

The voice barely registered on Chris, consumed by his own world of pain. It was feminine, with a sharp tone of command, and came from the direction of the woods, not the road.

Then...

"Major! I've got a man over here - I think he's still alive."

The voice - also female - came from directly above him, and managed to reach more firmly through the veil of pain.

There was a brief pause, then murmured conversation above him, too faint to break through his self-contained shock and agony. Then the first voice spoke again.

"Bring him."

There was a brief pause, then several pairs of hands grasped Chris's broken body and lifted.

As broken bones moved, as tortured limbs were roughly manhandled, the agony that couldn't get any worse doubled in intensity, and the blessed maw of unconsciousness opened and swallowed a grateful Chris whole.

* * * * *

"Well, Doctor?"

The sound was the final impetuous to pull Chris out of the darkness that surrounded him. He struggled to open his eyes, to move - but he remained immobile, sightless. Panic drove the last traces of foggiess from his mind at the thought of being blind, and paralyzed. He was literally numb, with no feeling in his immobile body, but he wasn't emotionally numb, as horror and fear filled him.

The emotions did serve to clear the last of the linger mist from his brain, however, and his mind was sharp and clear as he listened - the only sense still available to him.

"A perfect subject, I should think. No voluntary movements for the past two months, and the injection of Qudroatrophine an hour ago should have roused him if it was a coma." A second female voice responded.

Chris tried again, in vain, to signal that he was conscious. His mind had grasped the basic import - the accident, being moved... now, they obviously though he was brain dead, and was about to experiment on him. Obviously, whatever he'd been given to awaken him had worked, but it took longer than expected. Chris mustered up all his willpower to make some signal, no matter how small...

...but never made the effort. Instead, his blood ran cold at the words he heard.

"Good - I hate to think that your team put so much work into saving him, just to kill him again."

Through the fear that washed over him, Chris realized he'd heard that voice before, at the crash site - the one that had been called 'Major'.

The other voice - the Doctor - spoke again, with the tone of somebody explaining something to a less-informed onlooker. "I've been looking forward to testing out procedures - this accident provided us with the perfect subject. I've already injected a paralytic anesthetic that we'll keep injecting intravenously throughout the procedures. This will keep the body from making any involuntary muscle movements while we work."

That explained the paralysis, and blindness - Chris was unable to open his eyes - and the lack of sensations. But what experiment were they...

"We've already begun the intravenous hormonal treatment. It will continue throughout. That should help the development in the breasts, although we'll be using the new technique to cause extra growth, of course. Personally, I'm more interested in seeing how well the new vaginal creation procedure works out."

Chris's mind whirled. They were planning to... to turn him into a woman! Chris knew that this was no hospital, military or civilian - no, this was some sort of secret research facility - it was the only explanation for the ease - callousness - with which they were willing to kidnap, murder, or perform illegal medical experiments. But who were 'they' - and why were they doing this to him.

Once more, Chris renewed his struggle to signal his awareness. He didn't care if it might mean his death - right now, it seemed like a valid alternative to being turned into a woman.

But his struggles were in vain.

"Well - why don't you tell the rest of the team that our subject is prepped - I see no reason to delay." The doctor said.

Chris wished, more than anything, that he had the power to scream his horror and outrage as he heard 'The Major' head out to bring in the unknown team of doctors who were going to rip his masculinity away without him voicing so much as a whimper.

* * * * *

Time passed.

Chris had no way of telling how long. He drifted in and out of sleep without any sense of discontinuity. While he slept, he had terrible, terrible nightmares about the loss of his masculinity. When he was awake, he was faced with the unreal reality of that nightmare. Numb, blind and helpless, he only knew what was being done to him by listening to the team of doctors - all female - discuss what they were doing. Many terms he didn't recognize, but he managed to catch the gist of most of the discussions. How much electronic muscle stimulation was necessary to keep his muscles firm and toned, without building extra mass. How effective the artificial skin was that they were using. Whether or not they should widen his hips when they rest them, and the best method for narrowing his shoulders.

He thought it might be better being blind and numb while this was happening - but the old saying 'a little knowledge is a dangerous thing' was as true as ever. From the little he gleaned from what he heard, his mind conjured up all sorts of imagined horrors. At first, they piled atop each other, threatening to drown Chris's increasingly fragile sense of self. Eventually, he began to fall into a numb, horrified state of resignation, realizing - if not actually accepting - his utter inability to alter what was being done to him. Instead, he maintained his fragile sanity through a slender reed of hope, that someday he'd manage awaken, and have the opportunity, however slim, of vengeance.

Than that fragile sanity was almost destroyed when the doctors began messing with his mind.

Having his mind tampered with, by itself, was nearly unbearable - but what almost pushed him over the edge was the knowledge that, from the doctors' point of view, it was absolutely gratuitous. They believed him brain-dead, and so the hypnotic/subliminal 'programming' would have 'no effect' on his 'dead brain'. The doctors merely included it in the program because that was how the 'book' they were developing would read. It was 'senseless' adherence to the rules, and Chris - who was completely unable to tell what in his mind was being altered - nearly broke.

Until the fateful day, soon after the unknown 'programming' in his mind was implanted, that the Doctor told the Major "That's it - she's done."

That fragile hope, almost buried under an avalanche of despair, quivered.

"It's absolutely amazing, doctor - you'd swear she was born female." The major said, awe in her voice."

"Actually, even after a physical exam, a doctor would have a hard time realizing the truth. There's a few small discrepancies - like the healed fracture marks in the bones, and the fact that she's sterile - but it's unlikely that a doctor could make the leap from what the indications are to what they mean." A short pause. "So, we've created an amazing work of medical art - what do we do with her?"

That slender hope trembled, braced for the answer.

"Dress her appropriately and dump her beside the road somewhere. By the time she's found, she'll be dead - and who's going to look to hard at a homeless woman who, to all appearances, died of natural causes?"

The hope burst into full bloom, and Chris's teetering sanity became rock-solid with the chance that he might yet be able to make things... well, not right, but better.

He might yet be able to make those who had done this to him pay in full for it.

* * * * *

Mud. Water. Pain.

The taste of mud filled Chris's mouth from where he lay in the stream bed where the two female 'soldiers' had tossed his limp body after a half-hour truck ride. The water of the stream bubbled over his body, and only luck had saved him from drowning - he'd landed with his head just barely clearing the water.

Pain echoed along his arm from where his elbow had encountered a rock on the rolling, bouncing fall down the hillside. He welcomed the pain - reveled in it. For God-knows-how-long, he'd been completely without sensation. Now, as the chemical agent that had been constantly replenished in his bloodstream began to fade, he relished the returning sensations to his body.

Chris made a tremendous effort of will to defeat the last remaining traces of the paralytic agent. At first, nothing happened - then, slowly, his eyes finally slip open, and for the first time in ages, he saw.

He immediately snapped them closed again with a gasp. After so long in the dark, the light flooding into his eyes was physically painful. He slowly opened them a crack, letting his eyelashes act like sunglasses, cutting the glare and allowing his eyes to adjust. Bit by bit, he slowly forced his eyes open, gradually re-adapting to the simple light of day as he stared at the muddy bank only inches away.

As he lay there, letting himself regain strength, he catalogued the strange, new sensations from his... no, he mentally corrected, her body. The sensations left no doubt that the doctors had succeeded, at least to a degree - one of the most prominent sensations was a low, throbbing pain from her chest where she rested atop as-yet-unseen breasts, her weight crushing them into the soft mud of the stream bed. The feel of a heavy cloth - probably denim - on her legs was both familiar and unfamiliar

- she had felt wet denim on her legs before, but never on legs so smooth. Usually there was hundreds of tiny, almost imperceptible, tugs on leg hairs. That simple, barely-noticed sensation was missing. Likewise, the cool flow of water over bare arms indicated a lack of the rather thick, dark hair that was usually there. For the first time, Chris felt the sensation of a feminine body, and wanted to cry in despair and disgust.

Instead, she took a deep breath, dragged her arms under herself, and painfully levered herself out of the stream bed.

Staggering, she let herself fall over so she was sitting on the bank, her feet still in the water - and stared down at her altered body in horror and shock.

The entirety of the change could not be seen at first glance - aside from the fact that her new body was fully clothed, it was also impossible for her to see her own face, or back. But what she could see was more than enough - her downward view was blocked by the fact that her black T-shirt was stretched out to its limit by a pair of immense breasts.

"Oh, my Go..." Chris started... then stumbled to a stop. She should have expected it, but still - the sound of the crystal-clear, undeniably feminine contralto that emerged when she spoke came as a shock. Staring down at the straining shirt, she slowly brought her hands up to touch them - then stopped dead, staring at the long, slender arms that led to the dainty, long-fingered hands. The sight of such a simple - yet indelible - change gave her pause, realizing that everything was different.

She was, in every detail, female.

Shaking off the shock, Chris gently grasped the bottom of the black tee and hauled it upwards, exposing a massive black bra. Rather than lacy and decorative, it was sturdy cotton, massive and strong.

Chris had some experience in undoing a bra - but not on her own body. If it had been a back-clasped bra, it might have defeated her - but this bra was clasped at front, and after some fumbling, she managed to get it open. She let the bra cups fall to the side, and stared down at the massive, firm tits thrust from her slender ribcage. Slowly, she brought her hands up, and touched the firm, round breasts and the large, thick nipples that topped them. She shivered at the sensation that flowed from the sensitive, erect portions of flesh.

The sensation was... intense. Pleasurable, yet disconcerting. But the touch of her hands on her breasts made her realize something - her breasts weren't really gigantic. They were large - quite large - but not gigantic. The perspective was what had thrown her - she'd never seen breasts from quite this angle, and especially not on her own chest.

With a bit of a struggle, she managed to pull off her shirt, then the bra. Chris flipped it over and looked at the label on the bra.

"38-DDD?" Chris asked herself. She knew that some strippers inflated their breasts up to, and past GGG... but for your average 'woman on the street', DDD was pretty damned big.

Finally, Chris struggled back into the bra and T-shirt. Looking around, she spotted a small, worn, black canvas back-pack near her. Opening it, she found a few changes of underwear, some hygiene products, and a light nylon jacket. Obviously, a prop to convince the police that she was another 'street girl' - the deodorant was almost gone, and the tooth-brush well used. Sighing, Chris slung the back-pack over on slender shoulder and awkwardly staggered to her feet...

...and promptly fell down with a muffled curse, as she twisted her ankle. Landing on a bottom that felt, to her, disgustingly well padded, she frowned down at the black leather boots with the three-inch block heel. Not paying attention to her footwear, she'd stood with her old 'male' habitual movement - and fallen off her heels.

Painfully, she dragged herself back up, wincing at the pain in her ankle. Staring up the small embankment that led to the road, she began painfully climbing the hill, cursing both the ankle, and the soaked, overly-tight blue-jeans.

Soon she was cursing more. Her altered body moved differently, especially her new breasts, despite the confinement and support of the bra. She was struggling just to get her body to do what she wanted. What kept her going, though, was the red curtain of rage that she moved through. The rage at the nameless, faceless women who did this to her. The women that she intended, somehow, to get back at them.

Twenty long, painful minutes later, she straddled the guardrail at the top of the embankment, and swung her long, slender legs over the top. She stood up, feeling the water in her boots squish between her toes. Frowning, she sat back down on the guardrail and unlaced the boots. Taking them off, she tied the laces together and slung the boots around her neck. After a moments consideration, she decided to leave her sopping wet black socks on. The sole reason for this decision was simple - she didn't want to see her altered, feminized feet. Just being able to tell that they were smaller, daintier - which was obvious even with the socks - was more than she wanted to deal with at the moment.

She looked up and down the unfamiliar road - and realized, with a sinking feeling, that she was completely lost. She knew she was about a half-hour drive from the facility where she'd been... altered. But she didn't know exactly where that facility was in the first place - and she didn't know which direction it was.

Looking up and down the deserted secondary highway, she sighed, and began hiking, moving slowly and gingerly on her sore ankle.

Within minutes, she discovered two things. The first was, that they had altered her feet somehow, exaggerating the arch - walking bare-foot was uncomfortable. Secondly, although she'd received EMS to keep her muscles toned, she hadn't actually been using them - already, she was feeling weak, and her muscles were complaining. Sighing, she sat down beside the road and pulled on the wet boots, then carefully rose to her feet and set off once more, trying to ignore the complaints from her body.

She almost wished that she was completely numb again.

* * * * *

By her reckoning, it was almost two hours later that the welcome sight came into view. A small gas- station/Mom-and-Pop diner - and a phone booth in the near corner of the lot, directly below the stuttering fluorescent sign. Her entire body one giant ache, Chris managed to pick up speed a little bit, and entered the phone booth. Sliding the door shut behind her, she stared at the receiver.

As she'd walked, she'd mulled over what she was going to do. Although going to the police had been her first thought, she'd dismissed it almost out of hand. Despite the fact she was living it, the situation seemed impossible to her. She knew how it would sound to the police - and she had no intention of being locked away in the nuthouse for the rest of her life.

Chris figured her best shot lay with her best friend, Tony DiCappo. Tony had always stood by Chris, through thick and thin. If she could convince Tony, he'd bring all his not-inconsiderable talents to her aid.

The trick, of course, was convincing him. However, that task, monumental as it was, took a back seat to an even more immediate problem.

Getting Tony to accept a collect call.

Chris let the back-pack slide to the floor, and cupped her hands around her ears, so that she could hear herself better. Taking a deep breath, she said "Lindy."

It was close - not quite exact, but it was only one word, and it should be close enough to the sound of Tony's sister Linda to get him to answer. Chris knew that Linda was away at collage, and occasional called Tony collect - usually when she needed something.

Taking another deep breath, Chris picked up the phone and dialed collect. When the automated operator asked for her name, she did her 'Lindy' impersonation, and waited with shallow breath, praying that Tony was in.

Her prayers were answered when Tony's deep voice came on the line. "All right sis - what trouble have you gotten yourself into now?"

"Tony - don't hang up. Please - it's very important." Chris said, quickly. "I'm sorry about using Lindy's name - but I had to get you to accept the charges."

"Wha... Who is this?" Tony demanded - sounding more confused then angry, thank God. "Carrie? Is that you?"

Chris gripped the phone tighter, willing Tony to believe. "No, it's not Carrie. Please, Tony, listen very carefully. This is going to be very, very hard for you to believe... but no harder than getting that girl in the bar to believe you were an Australian tourist."

Tony's voice became wary. "How did you..."

Chris closed her eyes, and took the plunge. "Tony - it's me, Chris."

"Chris? Chris who? I'm sorry, miss, but I don't..." Tony replied, obviously racking his brain to remember a girl named Chris.

"Chris Chambers - your best friend."

There was a short pause - and when Tony's voice returned, it was tautly controlled. "Who is this? Carrie? Well, that's not funny."

"No - please, Tony... I need your help. These... women, they kidnapped me - there was an accident... they changed me..." Chris broke off, realizing her was babbling incoherently - only to realize he was talking to a dial tone. Chris's head slumped forward, and she realized, with a start, that she was barely holding back tears. The truth finally sank in - she was now a woman, with no past, and no future - and a story that no-one was likely to believe, especially over the phone.

It was too much - helplessly, hating herself for doing it, she began to cry - long, deep sobs that wracked her body. Blinded by her tears, she shoved the doors open and stepped out of the booth, almost tripping over the back-pack she'd dropped on the floor. Blindly, she groped for the bag, tears streaming down her face.

"Now, now... don't carry on so." A soothing, female voice said. Blinking, Chris looked up into the face of a heavy-set woman in her mid-to-late sixties. Broad and tanned, her face, beneath fading blonde hair, was kindly, if not beautiful. She reminded Chris strongly of his own grandmother, an original farm-girl if there ever was one.

"Why don't you come inside. We'll get some food into you, and see if we can't stop those tears of yours." The woman said, gently taking Chris's arm. Without waiting for a response, she began to guide Chris towards the restaurant.

"Billy! Oh, Billy!" The woman called out. A broad, gray-haired older gentleman dressed in a flannel shirt pushed open the door.

"Get some coffee and one of the sandwiches - the ham, I think. The go upstairs and grab some towels, and see what we have in the way of dry clothes - the poor girl's soaked through."

Wordlessly, the older man nodded and vanished into the interior with the air of a man long used to listening to his wife's commands. The woman guided Chris to a stool just as a mug of steaming coffee was deposited in front of her.

"There no, dear - thinks are looking up already." The woman soothed Chris, handing her a Kleenex. "I'm Hilda Mae, and the handsome gent behind the counter is Mr. Burroughs."

"Billy" The man said, shortly but politely. It was obvious he was taciturn by nature. He held out a large, callused hand that still looked capable of plenty of hard work, and enfolded Chris's much smaller one gently.

Bitterly, Chris thought that before the accident, Billy wouldn't have been so gentle - and wouldn't have needed to. But it was impossible to be angry with the kind man, so Chris managed a wan smile and shook Billy's hand twice.

"I'm Chris." She introduced herself, turning to face Hilda Mae. "I'm sorry about the scene outside - I didn't mean to..."

Hilda Mae 'tsk'ed'. "Nonsense. I'm not one of these 'modern' people who thinks you should repress your feelings - if you were having yourself a good cry, it was probably because you needed it." The woman smiled easily, and tilted her head. "Chris? Is that short for Christine? Or perhaps Crystal?"

Chris blushed slightly, realizing that she'd introduced herself habitually. "It is short for something - but I prefer just Chris." She evaded the question without quite lying. She wasn't going to try and explain everything to these folks, and would have to watch what she said. She was just glad that her name wasn't 'Jake' or 'Martin', or something else that might have prompted even more awkward questions.

With a small smile, Billy placed a large ham sandwich in front of Chris. Looking down at the sandwich, trimmed with dill pickle on the side, Chris flushed. "I can't - I mean..."

"Now, now - don't you worry. It's on the house." Hilda Mae soothed. She laughed, a full, rich sound. "Billy and I don't run this place to make a profit. Lord, no! We're retired, and have a nice nest egg to support us. We just run this place to keep us from getting bored silly. It's a great excuse to meet new people."

Mumbling her thanks, Chris bit into the sandwich - and only then realized how truly ravenous she was. For the past... well, however long it had been - she'd only had intravenous solutions in the way of nutrition - and absolutely no taste whatsoever. She astonished herself by wolfing the thick sandwich down, chased by two cups of good, hot coffee.

By the time she'd finished, Billy had scrounged up some towels, and a change of clothes.

"They should fit fairly well - in most places." Hilda Mae said, eyeing Chris' large, firm bosom. "They're my daughter's. She'd away in Charlottesville with her new beau, and I don't think she'd mind. You can use the guest room for now - it's the second door on the right up the stairs."

Thanking Hilda Mae and Billie, Chris went upstairs and into the room, closing the door behind her. Somewhat hesitantly, the once-male stripped and, taking a deep breath, surveyed herself in the brass- framed mirror above the bureau.

There was a definite resemblance to her old, male, self - at least in the face. Although slightly softer, more rounded, and with a smaller nose and larger lips, the face was basically the same, and the dark eyes that looked out at the world were unchanged. Her hair was a short mass of black in a shaggy mess - not unlike her hair before, but somewhat finer, silkier to the touch. Which explained it's short length - the women who'd done this to her must have kept trimming off the coarser hair.

But the rest of her...

She was slender, and fit, which could have been used to describe her old body. But this one was more slender, and the 'fit' referred only to good, taut muscle tone - not muscle build. There was very little muscle on her slender frame.

Her hips were fairly narrow for a woman, as narrow as her slender, womanly shoulders. Rather than looking narrow, however, the hips looked fine in relation to the tiny waist that Chris now possessed.

Her ass was taut and firm and very well shaped, as well as fairly well padded. Her legs were long and smooth and toned, but not quite 'spectacular'. In fact, over all, she looked like a lithe, supple, slightly tomboy-ish type of woman - attractive, but not overly so, she wasn't the type that would usually be described as 'gorgeous', 'sexy', or 'beautiful'. Instead, she would be 'cute', or 'feline', or maybe 'energetic'.

Aside, of course, from the breasts. Most woman her build possessed A- to C-cup breasts - D would be rare. Yet hers were DDD's, firm, full and proud.

But despite all the alterations to her body, the one that drew Chris' eyes was the one least visible when she was dressed - the small, apparently authentic vagina between her taut, silken thighs. Hesitantly, she touched the new opening, shivering as her fingers slid across the folds of skin. Taking a deep breath, she gently inserted a finger...

...and quickly removed it, blushing furiously at the sensation it caused, both so similar and so different from what she'd expected.

Turning her attention away from her altered anatomy, Chris quickly dressed in the somewhat mis- matched clothing provided by the Boroughs. A long, ankle-length wrap-around skirt in light beige and a pink, woolly sweater that she pulled on over her own underwear. The sweater was 'over-sized', fitting loosely everywhere but the chest.

For footwear, she had a pair of pink ankle socks, trimmed with white lace, and pink satin pumps with straps across the top of the foot, and a four inch heel. Chris felt ridiculous as she pulled them on, but she already knew that walking barefoot was uncomfortable.

Clothed in dry, mostly comfortable (the taut fabric over her breasts was... distracting, if not exactly uncomfortable) clothing, Chris looked around. Spotting something in the corner, she wandered over, and looked down at the slightly dusty 486, and the modem that was attached to it.

"Everything okay, honey?" Hilda Mae asked, and Chris, startled, spun around - and almost toppled over, unprepared for the inertia of her new bust.

"Sorry - you startled me." Chris said, blushing. She pointed to the computer. "Is this thing hooked up to the Internet?"

Hilda Mae blinked. "I'm not... wait, yes, it is. I remember, because Jenny - my daughter - was saying how she paid for a whole year, yet wasn't going to use..."

It took nearly ten minutes before Chris could get his request in between her rambling reminiscences of her daughter.

* * * * *

Hilda Mae clucked and fussed over Chris as she finally logged off the Internet. "Oh, I should have realized that only a love gone wrong coulda had you cryin' like that, honey."

Chris winced. "I'm glad you understand." She said, already regretting her story. She'd told Hilda Mae that Tony was her boyfriend, but they'd had a falling out, and Tony was refusing to accept her calls.

So, she'd sent him a few E-mails...

"Lord - and me dressing you like a refugee. When's your Tony supposed to be coming down?" Hilda Mae asked, wringing her hands.

Chris sighed. "Well - sometime tomorrow night. If he decides to come, that is - there's no guarantee..."

Hilda Mae frowned. "Don't even say that, Chris. Things'll work out for the best. But Lord, look at you

- we can't have you meeting your beau like that. You'll get a good night's sleep here, then tomorrow I'll take you into town, and get you all done up for your Tony."

"That's really not..." Chris tried to decline gracefully. It was a wasted attempt - she could have shouted and refused, it wouldn't have stopped the steam-roller that was Hilda Mae.

Chris was beginning to see why Billy didn't talk much. Married to Hilda Mae for 'thirty-five-years-next- April, Bless-the-Lord', he wasn't silent out of inclination.

He was just out of practice.

Before she finally managed to get into bed, Chris had - reluctantly - agreed to Hilda Mae's plans. Not that it made any difference.

Finally, the well-meaning, but overbearing couple toddled off to bed, leaving Chris alone in the big, soft bed in the guest room.

Staring up at the ceiling, Chris tried to fall asleep - but couldn't. Various emotions had carried her through the day but now, alone in the dark and naked beneath the flannel sheets, she was alone with the reality of what had been done to her. The way the sheets felt on her altered body. The way her large, firm tits moved with each breath she took. The obscure future that lay before her, with no real link to her past life - all of these things crowded in on her mind, denying her the peacefulness she sought.

"Oh, God " Chris moaned, as the full enormity sank in. She was doomed to a life as a woman - she knew that from the beginning, but only now did she begin to accept it, emotionally and intellectually. Again, tears began to well up, and Chris cursed herself for her weakness. Burying her head into the pillow, she muffled her sobs in the softness and slowly drifted off into a tear-stained sleep full of half- formed nightmares of an uncertain future.

* * * * *

Chris snapped awake the next morning, practically catapulted into wakefulness by the half-formed nightmare she was suffering from. For several seconds, although she was awake, she was still trapped in the quasi-reality of the nightmare, in which she was at a fancy ball with a date - but she was dressed in shabby jeans and a worn sweater. All the guests at the ball, elegantly arrayed, had begun to jeer her...

Shaking off the last lingering traces of the nightmare, Chris glanced over at the clock, then slowly slid her long, smooth legs over the side of the bed and rose. Awkwardly, she padded bare-foot towards the bathroom, cursing the arch that had been artificially created in her slender, feminine feet, making walking bare-foot so damned uncomfortable.

The small en suite bathroom contained only a shower stall, which was fine with Chris - she wasn't really a 'Bath' sort of person. Turning the water on, she waited for the hot water to make it's way up through the pipes, then adjusted the temperature. Satisfied, she stepped into the stall, pulling the door closed behind.

Picking up the soap, she began the sequence she always used when showering - starting at the bottom and working up. Leaning against the wall, she began to soap up one leg, feeling the soft, smooth glide of the soap over her long, toned legs. She repeated the actions with her other leg, feeling her dainty hands move along their smooth, slick surface.

Next, she washed her slender hips and firm, full ass, feeling the soft/firm give of her tear-drop shaped ass beneath her hands, and the gentle, womanly curve that led from her hips to her amazingly slender waist. From there, she brought the bar of soap upwards to the full, ripe globes of her breasts...

Chris shuddered slightly as the soap moved over the soft, sensitive surfaces of her large, out-thrust breasts. Slowly, she slid the bar from one to the other, leaving the silky, creamy mounds slicked with a thin coating of soap...

Unnoticed, the bar clattered to the floor of the shower as her small hands began to caress her firm, silky breasts in a circular motion, slowly moving in to the center as she lightly squeezed and hefted her globes, her palms sliding over the firm, slick surface. She closed her eyes and gasped slightly as her long, slender fingers found her large, engorged nipples and began to tweak and fondle them.

Almost of its own accord, one hand slowly slid down, across her taut, smooth stomach to her hairless crotch.

Chris moaned as she slid a finger slowly into her cunt, which was hot and damp. Her juices flowed down over her finger as she began to stroke the tiny-yet-sensitive nub. She clenched her teeth down on her full, soft lower lip as she began to buck her hips in rhythm with the finger that she was driving into her new vagina, muffled moans escaping from her lips.

Her dark eyes flew open with pleasure and surprise and she gasped explosively as a totally new sensation ripped through her body, originating in her crotch and seeming to leap to her nipples. The orgasm was sharp and sudden, amazingly pleasurable despite its relative weakness, due to the fact the sensation was internal, not external like all her previous orgasms...

Face flaming, Chris yanked her hand away. "What the hell am I doing?" She asked herself, quietly, feeling the heat in her face as the flush mounted. She couldn't believe what she'd just done - yet it had felt so good, so wonderful, so... natural.

Pushing the thought away, Chris retrieved the soap from the floor of the stall and finished washing quickly, trying to perform the impossible by doing it without actually touching herself. After quickly shampooing her hair, she rinsed off and stepped out.

Picking up one of the large, fluffy towels, she began to try off - and slowed down, feeling the warm, sensual pleasure of the soft, thick towel moving across her clean, soft flesh. It took a force of will to dry her breasts and crotch quickly and efficiently, despite the urge to linger - especially over her nipples, where the movement of the fabric over the engorged mounds was indescribably sensual, and enjoyable.

Still flushing from the experience - and unable to deny how good it felt, despite the confused emotions it created - she dressed quickly in the clothes provided the day before. Stepping back into the bathroom, she quickly applied some deodorant and ran a brush through her short hair...

...then stopped dead, eyeing the small assortment of feminine products lined up on a shelf beside the mirror. She dragged her eyes away, and went back to brushing her hair - but found her eyes wandering to the face in the mirror, studying it critically. The smooth, feminine face, the full lips, the dark, if uninspiring eyes...

For several minutes, Chris merely stood, looking at her reflection, mind wandering in circles as she faced an unexpected development. Part of her - the part 'reprogrammed' during her 'conversion', had the urge to use some of that make-up on the plain, unadorned face, enhancing its femininity.

Somehow, Chris knew that he had the necessary skills to successfully do so.

What surprised - and dismayed - her was the fact that part of her still-male mind agreed. Part of it wanted to reject the suggestion out of hand - as it would have when she was still male, and quite rightfully so.

But she knew she was no longer male. She knew that the make-up would not only be acceptable, but appreciated, by society. She also knew that she'd prefer to see the female face in the mirror made up. The fact that it was her face she was seeing in no way affected the male part of her that appreciated feminine beauty, and wanted to see it enhanced. To put it simple - if it had been another woman, her male mind would have wanted to see it made up and enhanced as much as possible. That part of the mind wasn't logical, and wasn't to be reasoned with - so the fact that she was the one with the face didn't deter it from insisting.

Closing her eyes, Chris took a deep breath, considering. She was faced with a basic question, one she'd have to face sooner or later.

She was female, like it or not. (And she didn't.) The question was - was she going to try and find a new life, as a woman - oh, not actually giving in completely of course, but enough to function. Or would she spend the rest of her life denying the reality of her new existence, refusing to admit that it affected her?

The answer was easy - if she didn't want to become a recluse, a woman attempting to masquerade as a man, she'd have to learn to function, at least minimally, in society - as a woman.

Hands trembling slightly, Chris reached for the feminine beauty products. She hesitated, drew her hand back slightly...

"Fuck it!" She said, angrily, in her clear, feminine new voice, and picked up the three tubes of lipstick. Before she could have second - well, third or fourth - thoughts, she picked out the 'Light Coral' semi-gloss, and opened the top.

She wasn't all that surprised to discover that she could, indeed, apply the lipstick like she'd been doing it for years. The color was a subdued shade that she applied skillfully - and she stared at the reflection in the mirror, amazed at the transformation wrought by such a simple act. Her lips, which had been nice, but not spectacular, now looked fuller, softer, more... inviting?

Pushing aside that particular reaction, Chris had to admit that both the male and programmed female parts of her brain appreciated the effect, if for different reasons. With a somewhat more confident touch, she reached for the mascara...

* * * * *

"Now, now - I told you, don't worry about it. Billy and I can well afford it." Hilda Mae assured Chris as they walked through the aisles of the department store.

Chris swallowed, grateful that Hilda Mae was misreading her nervousness. The truth was, she felt like she was intruding into a place she didn't belong. Despite knowing, intellectually, that she was now fully female, and no one could possibly know the unbelievable truth, Chris still emotionally expected woman to start accusing her of being some sort of pervert. The deeply ingrained male habits were fighting a losing battle against the new reality, unable to accept the fundamental shift in her life.

For perhaps the fifteenth time, Hilda Mae lifted an outfit off the rack. "How about this one, honey? I'm sure it would look great on you, especially with your taste in cosmetics."

Chris flushed again. She still wasn't comfortable with the compliments that Hilda Mae had showered on her when she'd come downstairs, and the small pile of cosmetics resting in her back-pack - purchased by Hilda Mae, over Chris' objections - didn't make her anymore comfortable.

Pretending at least minor interest, Chris eyed the outfit. Like all the others, it was to 'feminine' for her taste. Chris just wanted some jeans and a baggy sweatshirt - but Hilda Mae wasn't to be rushed through the more 'girlie' sections between the front doors and the 'unisex' section.

Chris sighed. Hilda Mae was genuinely trying to be helpful, and she had a heart as big as the entire state - but it could also be a little overbearing. Still, the older woman was helping Chris, a complete stranger, when Chris needed the help the most. Despite the situation, Chris was still a fairly good person at heart, and considerate of others. To be polite, she forced a smile, and agreed to at least try the outfit on. Taking the items - including the shoes that Hilda Mae insisted she take to 'get the whole effect', Chris nervously entered a change room, bolting the door behind her. For nothing else, it afforded her some time to regroup her mixed emotions and scattered concentration. Slowly, she peeled off the miss-matched pieces of the donated outfit, and began to change.

First, a pair of black nylons. Chris pulled them on reluctantly - only to be amazed by how they felt sliding up her legs, so smooth and silky. Even more surprising was the pleasant sensation they caused on her legs as the air moved over them when she moved.

Next, the gray 'tweed' skirt that came to just above her knees, and pulled tight over her trim waist with a black leather belt. Then a form-fitting black turtle-neck shirt that hung to just over the top of the skirt, and clung tightly to her hour-glass form, yet mildly minimized her bosom. The final touch was the black leather pumps with the six-inch heels.

Chris sighed as she finished dressing, then squared her slender shoulders and took a disinterested look in the full-length mirror.

Then took a double take, a longer, more attentive look.

"Whoa..." She whispered. Hilda Mae had been right - the outfit looked good on her. In fact, it looked great. As much as she hated to admit it, there was no getting around it - she found herself liking the way the woman in the mirror looked. The fact that the woman in the mirror was her couldn't lessen her appreciation of the well-dressed, attractive young woman she saw looking back at her.

"Well...." Chris mused. "It couldn't hurt to try and look nice...right?"

* * * * *

"Now, we'll be back around eleven-thirty or so. If you do leave with your friend, just lock up before you go." Hilda Mae admonished, wringing the cloth in her hands. "If somebody pulls in for gas..."

"...they'll see the closed sign." Billy finished gently. "Come on, Hilda Mae - let the girl alone now." The elderly man smiled sweetly at Chris, who was shifting nervously in her seat. Billy was the one who'd informed Hilda Mae - flatly, to Chris' surprise - that they'd be going out for the night, to leave Chris alone in case Tony did show up. Chris felt an unusual fondness for the older gent, who proved that long-term marriage to an overbearing woman didn't break a man - it just caused him to pick his battles more carefully.

With Hilda Mae still spouting worried 'advice', Billy dragged her off to their aging but pristine car, and drove off into the darkening evening, leaving Chris to nervously pace the floor of the darkened restaurant. To give nervous hands something to do, the transformed man put on a pot of coffee. The sight of the beautiful young woman in the metal of the coffee maker caused her to start, then grin wryly. The reflections of herself had been startling her all day - she still wasn't used to seeing herself as a woman, much less an attractive one. For the hundredth time, she smoothed her skirt, wondering why she'd bought the outfit - and why she was so... proud?... of the way she looked and felt in the dark-colored outfit.

For the next three hours, Chris wandered around the empty building, her high-heels clicking on the floor and echoing in the empty spaces. Her mind circled, rehashing what she'd say, of ways of convincing Tony of what had happened, as unlikely - as downright impossible - as the events seemed. She began to appreciate just how much hinged on this. Her past life was gone, irretrievably. She could never pick up the life she'd once left, even if everybody accepted her as Chris Chambers, because of the fundamental shift in her life. But unless she could legitimately claim that past, she'd have no starting place to form a new life. She new some people apparently managed to start life over after completely discarding the past - but those were voluntary decisions, and the people who took that route had time to prepare - new ID, if nothing else. Chris, quite literally, had nothing - no money, no history, no friends, family, connections - unless she was able to convince somebody that she had the right to claim those that of her past.

She slumped in the stool at the end of the counter for the thousandth time, her eyes going to the empty, little-traversed road outside, and willed Tony to come. She'd written the E-mail as persuasively as possible, including things that only she knew, without providing information on how she'd come by that knowledge. She was banking on Tony's curiosity - and friendship with the old Chris - to cause him to investigate. If she'd misjudged him...

Then light's flashed across the pumps outside, and a familiar car pulled into the lot. An '93 Mustang, dark blue... it was hardly an unusual car, but the sight of it brought a lump to Chris' throat. Nervously, she rose from the stool as a figure crossed the lot and hesitated at the door. Hand shaking, Chris made a 'come in' gesture, not trusting her legs to carry her the distance between the stool and the door. For an eternal instant, the figure at the door looked like it would turn away...

...then the door opened, and Tony entered the restaurant. Tall and athletic, the dark-haired youth with the muscular body that betrayed Italian ancestry stepped into the pool of light cast by the small 'after hours' lights in the restaurant. The familiar figure in jeans and a letter jacket caused strange emotions to swirl in Chris, one's that he couldn't name. But 'hope' was one that she could identify, and for the first time in a long time, she felt it strongly.

"Tony..." Chris said, then cleared her throat.

The handsome young man eyed her with an unidentifiable look. "Yeah. I came - now do you want to explain who the hell you are, and what the hell's going on?" Despite his words, his voice wasn't angry

- more saddened, Chris thought, as she nervously gestured at one of the booths. Tony watched her, somewhat distrustfully, as she walked over and slid into the booth, and said "Sit down - I'll explain everything."

After another moments wary hesitation, Tony stiffly seated himself across from her, his eyes traveling over her. At the sight of an expression she knew all too well - the 'I am listening - but that doesn't mean I'll believe it' look - Chris felt her stomach sink. All the carefully planned out arguments seemed to desert her, and she groped for the words that would convince her oldest, best friend of the simply unbelievable truth.

Finally, groping for words, Chris simple told Tony everything. It was a jumbled account, with back- tracking and corrections, but as she stumbled, almost desperately, through the recounting of events, Tony's hard expression slowly faded, to be replaced with one less familiar. Finally, two hours and many cups of coffee later, Chris stumbled to a stop, out of words to say. Except for one word.

"Well?" Chris asked, finding that her heart was thundering, and her palms were sweating.

Tony cleared his throat. "Miss... You have no idea how much I want to believe your story as much as you believe it. The thought that Chris might still be alive, in any form..." He sighed. "I don't know how you know what you do. And I probably never will - it's obvious that you really, truly believe this story. But, I'm sorry - you're not Chris."

Chris suddenly found herself choking back tears. "But..." She said - nearly sobbed. It felt like there was a blade in her stomach, slowly twisting.

Tony rose, shrugging his dark-blue and gold jacket on over his gray T-shirt. "I'm sorry. You know some things - some incredible things - that I thought nobody but Chris would know. But the way you act... Your mannerisms, the way you talk, the way you dress, the make-up... These are things that aren't like Chris, things Chris wouldn't do - no matter what happened. I'm sorry miss, you're just too obviously comfortable being female to have ever been Chris."

And, as Chris watched, Tony began walking towards the door.

And something in Chris' mind gave way. She watched Tony, and things seemed to be in slow motion. She wasn't just watching Tony walk out - she was watching her life, her hope, her future - her reason for existing - walk out the door. She hadn't realized that everything in her universe was balanced on the tiny hope - but now that hope was yanked out, and things began to collapsed.

"Tony..." Chris gasped - literally. Her throat seemed to close up to a pinhole, and her breathing became labored, painful. The world seemed to dim around her, things fading from view. "No... I... I need... you..."

The reason that the world was going dim was the fact that she wasn't getting any oxygen. She couldn't breath....

She tumbled from the booth, her limbs writhing in the throes of a seizure. Each breath was painful fight for oxygen that she was rapidly losing. Chris, horrified, realized that she was dying. Her mind, unable to deal with the rejection of the person she'd pinned all her hopes on, replied by rebelling, by shutting down her breathing, cutting off her control of her own body.

Then, dimly, she became aware of another presence. A voice, a familiar voice was speaking to her, urgently. The realization that Tony was kneeling over her, his hands on her shoulder, urgently speaking to her, brought her back from the brink. Instinctively, she wrapped her arms around Tony as cool, sweet oxygen filled her throat, and tears spilled down her face.

"There, there " Tony said, awkwardly. Beneath her arms, his body was stiff, uncomfortable.

Realizing that she was clutching herself tightly to her best friend, Chris pulled away, mumbling an apology.

Tony eyed her from where he was hunkered down, concern on his face. "What happened - you looked like you were having a seizure, and you face you went blue."

Chris swallowed, and shook her head. "I... Tony, I can't " She paused, and took a deep, long breath, getting some measure of composure. "I'm sorry - I I just can't handle this. Not right now. I can't - it's not under my control. I'm sorry." She struggled to explain. "I am Chris - but if you don't believe me, no-one will. I need your help - I need you, Tony " She broke off, realizing she was nearly hysterical. She lowered her eyes.

Tony looked shocked. "You mean... If I leave, you're going to "

Chris looked up, her eyes full of tears. "I... I think so. I'm sorry - this isn't my choice."

Tony's face creased in thought. Chris knew that Tony was, generally speaking, a caring person. She knew that Tony still didn't believe her - but he also wouldn't just walk away from a woman in need.

Even one he thought was absolutely nuts.

Chris took a deep breath. "Please - take me with you. When we get back home - to your home -you can call the nut house. Do whatever you need. But please - don't just leave. Please."

Tony looked torn, and glanced over at the phone, obviously contemplating calling the authorities.

Chris forced a wry grin. "You won't - hell, you still help old ladies across the street and drive stray dogs to the SPCA."

Tony looked at her, slightly surprised, then matched her wry grin. "You're right. Come on, I'll give you a lift. If nothing else, maybe we can find out who you really are." He cleared his throat as he awkwardly helped her to her feet. "I... I'm sorry, but I just can't bring myself to call you... by his name. Can I call you something else?"

Chris was somewhat surprised by the request, then realized it was only fair. She looked down, her breathing becoming heavy as she thought. It hurt, looking at giving in that much, letting that little more of her go... but whatever it took.

"Okay. I guess you can call me..." Suddenly, she managed a weak smile. "...Crystal."

It surprised a laugh out of Tony. He knew that 'The Real Chris' would have been named that, if he'd been born female - something Chris' mother had mentioned once. "I guess that good enough..."

Crystal." He gestured towards the door, with a hint of resignation, but with more self-sacrificing good intentions. "Shall we?"

* * * * *

For the next two and a half hours, they rode down darkened secondary highways of America's heart lands, the occasion light from passing cars breaking the monotony of their own headlights casting a fan of brightness on the worn pavement that unrolled under the Mustang's wheels.

At first, the two passengers rode in uncomfortable silence, with a few false starts. That didn't last too long - Tony found it amazingly easy to talk to 'Crystal', as long as she avoided a certain subject. For her part, Chris merely fell into the easy camaraderie she'd shared with Tony, before. It wasn't quite the same - too much was different, not even counting Tony's disbelief. There was a sort of barrier between them, barely noticeable but ever-present. For Chris, what was even worse was the faint but noticeable sexual tension. Tony was obviously aware he was only inches away from an attractive, friendly young 'woman'. A stranger probably wouldn't have noticed, but Chris knew Tony well enough to spot the subtle flirtations, the slightly different rhythm of speech and mannerisms that indicated that he was, to some degree, attracted to a woman. Chris had seen this 'Polite Romeo Tony' before - but never from quite this perspective.

But, what truly shocked Chris was the realization that she was reacting to it. She knew it for it was, and she was certainly not interested, sexually, in the admittedly handsome, friendly, and genuinely caring Tony. But she also couldn't help enjoying the attention - more so, because she was so worried about being rejected. The interest, whatever the cause, was reassuring - and being treated well was always better than a kick in the head.

So Chris found it surprisingly easy to simply ignore the undercurrent of sexual tension, and enjoy the easy conversation, all while knowing, sadly, that Tony believed that it was with Crystal he talked and laughed, not his old friend Chris.

* * * * *

The Mustang swung into the parking lot just as the light rain began to fall from the sky, turning the blacktop into a mirror. The motel seemed to rise from a mirror-like lake, the garish neon sign turned momentarily beautiful.

Shutting off the engine, Tony looked over at the office. "Why don't you just wait here - I'll only be a minute." He smiled wryly. "Sorry about the accommodations - I hadn't really figured on the expense of two rooms."

Chris smiled... then her brow wrinkled as she felt a strange sensation in her stomach. She tried to refuse the emotion that was stealing over her - but as Tony opened the door and began to get out, tears rolled down Chris' face, and she was unable to hold in the pitiful whimper that formed in her throat.

Hearing the quite, desperate mewling sound, Tony paused and slid back into the seat, turning to face her with a questioning look. "Crystal? What's the matter?"

Chris shook her head. "Nothing."

Looking embarrassed, Tony awkwardly grabbed a Kleenex and began dabbing at Chris' eyes. "Hey, now.." He said, ill at ease. "I don't think 'nothing' ruins your mascara."

That forced a weak smile out of Chris. She shrugged her slender shoulders. "Intellectually, I know you aren't going to run out on me during the night - it's just that I'm having problems believing that, emotionally." She waved a slim hand in the direction of the office, turning her tear-stained face away. "Go on - I'll be all right."

Tony hesitated a second later. "You sure?"

Wordlessly, Chris nodded and waved a hand, and Tony ducked out into the cool rain, dashing towards the office. Even the sight of Tony disappearing into the office made Chris' heart pound, and she realized that she was on the verge of panic, forestalled only by the fact that Tony couldn't very well take off without her while she sat in his car.

A few minutes later, Tony dashed back, already soaking wet as he gestured at two adjoining doors a few feet away. Popping open the door, Chris hurried over.

"Here's your key." Tony said, handing her a key. "I'm in this one. Since we're in no hurry, I didn't leave a wake-up call. When you get up, just give me a call - it's 0, then 2, then the room number. Okay?"

"Sure." Chris said, despite the way her blood was rushing through her ears, almost obscuring Tony's words. As Tony unlocked the door to his room and entered, Chris grabbed her back-pack and followed suit.

Closing the door behind her, Chris slumped against it, her shouldered pack between her back and the hard surface of the door. Her hands, the right still gripping the key in a death grip, rose up to her chest and rested against her large, firm breasts as she closed her eyes and began breathing deeply, trying to control the rapidly encroaching panic.

She knew that Tony wasn't going to run off and leave her - she knew it, dammit! But it didn't make any difference what she knew, intellectually. Emotionally, panic stole over her as she illogically became convinced that Tony was laughing at her, the poor, crazy girl who thought she was his best friend. He was laughing as he opened the door to his room, as he walked out to his car....

Chris heard the distinctive sound of the Mustang's engine roar to life. Her eyes flew open and she whirled around. Her blood pounded through her veins as she scrambled to open the door, thought lost in a swirl of panic. Tears streamed, unnoticed, as she struggled to open the door. Outside, the sound of the Mustang's engine revved, and she heard it pulling away as she managed to unlock the automatically-engaged lock on the door. She threw the door open, and stumbled outside, blinded by tears and deafened by the pounding of her own pulse. She stumbled in her high-heels, and barely managed to keep from falling, as she looked up in pain and anguish...

...to see Tony's mustang sitting exactly where she'd left it, the engine 'ticking' as it cooled in the rain.

Gasping, Chris stared at the car, knowing that the panic had created all the other things, the sounds she'd heard. It wasn't real - but her panic had driven her imagination to create the illusion that Tony had left. As her heart began to calm, Chris turned back towards the open door to her room...

...and stared at the beckoning rectangle. Slowly, Chris walked towards the room, her heels clicking on the wet pavement. Reaching the door, she stood for several seconds, staring inside the room, then looking back at the car.

Then she reached out and closed the door to the room, hearing the lock 'snick' into place. Tears streaming down her rain-soaked face, Chris - lost in the confused welter of emotions and feelings, - staggered back to the car. She tried the driver's door, then the passenger's, finding both to be locked.

Her slender knew body wracked by great, tearing sobs, Chris sat on the hood of the car and clutched her own, slender shoulders, hating herself for giving in to her emotional...

"Be honest " She sobbed to herself, clutching herself tighter. "I am crazy - I've gone right off the deep end, and become obsessed with my own best friend."

Lowering herself to the curb in front of the Mustang, she drew her knees up to her chest and wrapped her arms around her legs. Lost in the demands of her helpless need, she lowered her head and gave in to a long, wrenching cry, hating herself for being this way, and knowing there was nothing she could do to change it.

"What the...? Hey, hey... it's okay "

Chris muffled a startled exclamation as she looked up into Tony's concerned face. Water cascaded down from his soaked hair, and he shivered in the cool rain. "What's going on?"

Chris stood up, embarrassed and ashamed. She refused to meet Tony's eyes, instead staring down at his bare feet. "I'm sorry... I know it's crazy, but... I I just can't help myself. As soon as I went in my room, and couldn't see you or the car, I was.." She broke down, sobbing.

Awkwardly, Tony embraced her, and Chris was ashamed by how comforting - how good - it felt to have his strong arms around her. " afraid I'd just leave?" Tony finished, quietly.

Sniffing, Chris nodded against his shoulder. "I'm sorry - I didn't mean to "

"no, it's okay - you can't help it." Tony soothed, gently drawing her with him. "Come on - you're soaked through to the bone, and shivering." He gently guided her into his room, closing the door behind them. "I'm sorry - I should have realized "

Chris shook her head. "It's not your fault. I... I'm just..." she looked away, embarrassed. " crazy."

Gently, Tony grabbed her chin and forced her head up. His dark eyes held her own, and she saw understanding and... something else. "No - I knew how much you needed my... support. You told me, in the car. I should have paid more attention."

Chris managed a wan smile, covering the confused welter of emotions that his dark, steady eyes were creating in her. She didn't know why she was reacting this way - Tony looked at her, and her heart raced and her knees felt weak. What the hell was wrong with her?

"Go on - go take a hot shower and put on a robe. You're freezing." Tony said, gesturing towards the bathroom.

"Yeah..." Chris agreed, stepping out of her heels and dropping her back-pack on the floor. "I'm sorry to be such a pain in the ass, Tony." Trying not to drip on the floor - a futile task - Chris started across the room - then stopped dead, staring at the door to the bathroom. She turned back to Tony, her face turning a deep red. "I.. um..." She paused, feeling foolish. "I don't suppose you could sit just outside the bathroom and talk to me while I.."

"Oh - sure. I should have thought of that myself." Tony said, smacking his forehead. "Go ahead - leave the door open, and I'll keep talking so you'll know I didn't take off for parts unknown." He smiled. "I promise I won't peek."

Chris smiled, relieved - and wondering why she had an odd, almost disappointed feeling. "Thanks." She entered the bathroom, leaving the door open, then began undressing as she heard Tony drag the chair next to the open door, and settle into it. Turning on the water, Chris stepped under it's warm spray, feeling it's heat slowly seep through her chilled body. Enjoying the sensation, she turned her head towards the open door, and said...

"So... I'm not your type, huh?" Chris said - shocked. She had no idea why that had come out of her mouth. Wide eyed, she wracked her brain for something - anything - else to say.

"Huh?" Was Tony's startled reply.

Floundering, Chris let the first thing in her head pop out. It was like she was a third person, listening to the conversation, having no idea what would come next. "Well... you promised not to peek awfully fast." What the hell was she saying?

Tony, obviously flustered, practically stammered. "No! You're very sex.. uh, attractive. I.. uh.. was just trying to make you... comfortable."

Chris was no longer chilled - her face felt like it was on fire. "I.. I'm sorry... I don't know why I said that..." But she did, sort of. That disappointed feeling had vanished when Tony had started to say 'sexy', to be replaced by a feeling of... pride?

Amazingly, Tony chuckled. "Actually - I think / do." Shutting off the water, Chris began toweling off. "Really?"

"Yeah..." Tony's voice said, clearly. Startled, Chris whirled, to find Tony leaning in the doorway, eyeing her naked body.

Chris felt Tony's eyes like a physical force. She could feel them traveling up her long, toned legs. She felt them slide over her slender, boyish hips and amazingly slender waist. His eyes paused for a moment on her large, proudly out-thrust breasts, then rose to her face below it's tousled mop of wet, dark hair.

She was mildly surprised to find that there was no lewdness in his eyes. There was attraction - the look, in fact, of a man eyeing an attractive, large breasted woman - but no sense of voyeurism. There was something else involved in his long, cataloging look then mere lust.

"You're gorgeous, Crystal." Tony said, softly.

And Chris was rocked to her foundations by the sudden flush that ran through her body. An incredible sensation of warmth that ran through her. Her heart sped up, her knees felt weak, and she felt light-headed and... exited?

"Wha..." Chris said, sinking to sit on the toilet. It took a second for her to think and cover herself with the towel - then her flush deepened, and she lowered the towel again.

"I'm sorry." Tony said looking away, flushing. "I... just needed to show you something."

"What.. Why..." Chris stammered to a stop, and took a deep breath, trying to calm down. "How did you know I'd feel weird? And, what does it mean?"

Tony's eyes snapped back to her, and his face betrayed confusion and surprise. "You.. You're serious, aren't you?"

Chris blinked. "Yeah? Please, Tony - what's going on?"

Tony smiled wanly. "I... I find you..." He paused, and tried again. "Your cheerful, and smart, and easy to talk to. You're also very attractive, and... well, sexy. I... I know I was putting out certain... signals. And you started... responding to them. Not at first, but later..."

Chris, shocked, opened her mouth to refute - then stopped. She remembered how good it had felt to have Tony pay attention to her. He'd smile at her, and she'd feel good about that...

...so, she'd smile back. When they 'accidentally' touched, she'd let the contact last a bit longer. Shocked, Chris saw what Tony had seen all along. He hadn't just been attracted to her...

...she'd been attracted to him. Chris, stunned, stared unseeing at Tony, her jaw dropping open in amazement as she truly understood that she was extremely attracted to her best friend.

"No..." She whispered, struggling to deny the realization. It just wasn't possible! She'd known Tony for years, and sure, she liked him - hell, Tony was her best friend. But that was it! Anything... sexual.. would be sick. After all, Tony was a guy, just like...

...she'd used to be. But now, she was a woman. She had a woman's hormonal system, a woman's sexual drive - and the close bond she'd shared with Tony as a male had... changed.

Chris had known that she'd become a woman in every conceivable way. She'd even begun to accept it, on a basic level. But that was just the fact itself, not all the other things it meant. In her male viewpoint, being attracted to a woman was normal, but being attracted to men made her gay. But now, the truth finally drove itself home in her mind. For her to be attracted to other women was homosexual - to be attracted to men, normal...

"Crystal? Are you okay?" Tony asked, worried, as the buxom woman sat on the toilet - eyes gazing into an unseen distance. He had some idea what she was going through - which was one of the reasons he'd done what he did. He knew she, for whatever reason, thought she was Chris. While she did bear some faint resemblance to his best friend, Tony knew that was merely coincidence - this woman was a woman, and this... fantasy of hers was just that - a fantasy. He was sincerely trying to help her by showing her the truth - the way she'd reacted to him, for instance, was proof that she wasn't Chris - because there was no way that Chris would be attracted to him, no matter what happened. But now, Tony was worried that, faced with the truth, the poor girl's mind would simply snap. He shifted his weight nervously. He had come to really like Crystal, even if she was crazy - she was also fun, and intelligent and... well, aside from a touch of insanity, practically Tony's dream girl. "Crystal?"

Slowly, her eyes came back into focus, and she stared at him. "Tony..." she said, her voice uncertain. "I... I..."

Tony leaned forward, worried. "What?"

Chris stared at Tony, truly seeing him for the first time, as a woman. Knowing his kindness and his personality, she suddenly realized the truth for what it was, and, if as in a dream, told him. "I think... I'm falling in love with you."

Tony knelt beside her. "Crystal.. I... I find you very, very... attractive. Not just physically - though I do - but as a person. I want to spend time with you. I don't know if it's love or not, but..."

Chris stared into Tony's face, and saw the future spreading out in front of her. She knew she had two choices now. Try to regain the link to her past, to fight for her old Identity as Chris, and lose Tony - or bury that away, and start a new life, as Crystal - with Tony. The choice became so stark and so clear, and it boiled down to a simple fact - if she proved she was Chris, then she and Tony could be best friends again - but never anything more. But if she threw away her old identity, she could start over - but not completely alone, as she'd feared, but with Tony.

But that went against everything that made her Chris to begin with. She fought with both sides of the question, trying to reconcile her old memories and life with her new emotions and hormones.

Faced with a battle that it couldn't win on this basis, Chris' mind took the easy way out - it simply refused to deal with it, separating memories, emotions and reality, leaving Chris/Crystal only the here- and-now, unanchored in the past and unprejudiced to either future.

"Tony..." Crystal said, tears forming in her eyes as she looked up into his caring, attentive face. "I don't know what to do. I'm not certain about anything anymore... I don't know who I am, or what happened, or what I'm going to do..."

"It's okay..." Tony soothed her, enfolding her in his embrace and holding her tightly, her head pillowed on his shoulder. "No matter what, I won't leave you. Everything is going to be okay."

Tony was acutely aware of the fact that he had a slender, buxom young woman held tightly against his body, the warmth of her smooth flesh seeping through his damp clothes. He tried to ignore the sensations - but he did find Crystal extremely attractive, and it wasn't quite as easy as he'd like.

Crystal, for her part, was also intently aware of Tony's strong arms around her body - and the fact that his clothes were sopping wet, and freezing cold. Instantly, all concern for herself vanished. No matter what happened, she knew Tony was her link to whatever future she might have, and her mind, without and reference points to firmly attach to, had locked onto Tony as an anchor. Quite literally, Tony was more important to her right now than herself.

"My God - you're soaked!" Crystal said, pulling back slightly. Her long, slender fingers began to unbutton his shirt. "You're going to freeze to death - and I'm not letting you get away that easily." She grinned up at Tony - and leaned forward and gave him a quick peck on the lips, to fast for his to either pull away or deepen the kiss. Bemused, not sure how to deal with Crystal's rapid emotional swings, her began slowly helping her undo his buttons.

For her part, Crystal wasn't quite sure why she had given Tony the quick kiss. She was attracted to him - but she also knew that she had felt it was wrong, for some reason. Yet, whenever she tried to remember exactly why she shouldn't give into her intense attraction to Tony, the thought skittered away before she could grasp it.

She pushed that conundrum away, for now at least. She knew that she should really try and discover why she was so confused about the past and future, but right now, the here-and-now was the only thing that had and validity to her, and right now, Tony was cold, wet and literally shivering. And, for whatever reason, Tony was, to her, the most important thing she had - the only thing she had. She had no past, and an uncertain future - but she had Tony, a handsome, caring, attentive man who she was very, very attracted to, and - for whatever reason - a man she felt she knew very, very well. Her first priority was making sure that she didn't loose him.

Pulling Tony's shirt off, she let it drop to the floor, and ran one long, slender finger over his taut, rippled abdomen. "Come on, Tony - get those pants and briefs off and climb into bed." She commanded, with a smile. "You're going to catch pneumonia like this - and you're not getting away from me that easily."

Tony smiled at her concern, and with only a seconds hesitation, stripped out of the rest of his clothes and padded over to the bed, sliding between the covers.

For her part, Crystal enjoyed the sight of Tony's nude, muscled body - he had a fantastic butt, for instance. Again came that nagging feeling, turning it into a guilty pleasure, but once more she pushed that aside. Letting the thin terry-cloth robe slip to the floor, she walked over to the bed. Her proud, firm tits swayed slightly, her nipples tingling as they came fully erect in the cool air. Snapping off the light, Crystal slid into the bed beside Tony, who was slightly startled by her actions. But not upset - after a moment's hesitation, he relaxed as she encircled him with her arms, feeling his cool skin against her own, smooth flesh.

"Mmmm..." She moaned softly in the back of her throat. "It feels so good to be here, Tony - and I'm not even sure why."

Tony managed a smile. "Trust me, Crystal, it feels good to me, too - and I DO know why." Moving slightly, he wrapped his muscular arms around her, his hands gently squeezing her firm ass as her tits pressed gently yet firmly against his chest. "You're a sexy young woman, warm, caring and intelligent

- and you're in my arms."

This time, the confusion came back, stronger than ever, at his words and actions. He was obviously very attracted to her - and she was extremely attracted to him.

So why did this feel wrong, somehow?

Almost angrily, Crystal shoved the thought aside - in fact, she did much more than that. Defying the feeling, she let her eyes drift closed as she tilted her head up towards Tony.

Needing no further urging, Tony bent his own head, and his lips met hers.

Crystal let herself go, carried along by the passion of the moment. The disquiet she felt, the strange emotions and the memories that wouldn't quite surface - all of it was pushed aside by her rising passion as they kissed, their tongues performing an age-old dance of passion.

Crystal moaned again, softly, and moved her body against Tony's, feeling the friction of their bodies against each other. Her nipples, compressed against Tony's muscular pecs, began to tingle, and she felt a growing heat in her crotch as Tony's hands caressed her ass and lower back.

Gently, Tony guided her onto her back, as he came to rest on his knees, pushing the covers back as he sat up above her. Half-seen in the dim light, Tony smiled gently at her as his hands slowly slid over her trim hips and up to her ribcage. Gently, skillfully, he began to massage and lightly squeeze Crystal's firm bust.

"Mmm... yes..." Crystal moaned softly through her clenched teeth. The pleasure seemed to create a new network of pleasure receptors that joined her breasts to her crotch, turning the warmth into a raging fire. "Now, Tony... I want you..." She moaned.

Tony complied. Easily, he positioned his large, throbbing cock, the head of it slighting across the hyper-sensitive flesh at the opening. Crystal gasped..

...then muffled her scream of pleasure with the pillow as Tony's cock slid deep into her womanhood. Pleasure like she'd never known flooded her as Tony's organ seemed to fill her perfectly...

(Never known? But she must have done this before...right?)

..as he thrust with a long, smooth stroke into her moist waiting cunt. He drew back, then thrust again, slowly increasing tempo as new...

(New?)

...nerve endings fired in an erotic symphony. Crystal writhed gently, awkwardly... (Why awkwardly?)

...at first, but soon falling into a steady rhythm that matched his. Her hips rose, burying his entire length into her with each thrust, providing the most intense pleasure she'd ever experienced. Her breath came in gasps and moans, most of which was incomprehensible, other than Tony's name, as she urged him on. Her hands gripped his taut, firm buttocks and she threw her head back, her short, dark hair matted with sweat as she neared orgasm.

Then it hit. Literally - like being hit by a freight train, only one that caused pleasure in place of pain. She tried - and failed - to stifle a scream of ecstasy as the orgasm took her. The sheer magnitude of the pleasure overloaded nerves, and she lost control of her body as she writhed against him, her wet cunt clenching tightly around his engorged cock.

It was enough to push Tony over the edge, and he, too, moaned, as he came, filling Crystal with the warmth of his cum. Spent, Tony eased himself out of her, and to the bed, wrapping her in his strong, reassuring arms. Gently, he kissed her again, with less passion, but more tenderness.

"Thank you..." Crystal said, softly. She burrowed against Tony's warm, sweaty body, feeling the pleasure slowly draining away, and regretting the fleeting nature of it.

Tony gently stroked Crystal's hair. "Anytime, milady - anytime." He whispered softly as their ragged breathing slowly evened out.

Minutes later, wrapped in each other's embrace, they drifted off into sleep, the taste of each other's kiss still on their lips.

* * * * *

Tony's sleep was a deep, untroubled slumber. Not so for Crystal, however. Relieved of the burden of conscious thought, her mind went to work, attempting to piece together what had happened, to find a way to deal with the disparate parts of her mind.

The first part of her mind - the largest but oldest, was 'Male Chris' - the memories, attitudes, and thought patterns of Chris when he was fully male, in body and mind. When his hormones, outlook and perceived future were all solidly heterosexual male.

The second part was 'Female Chris'. This was the part of her mind that dealt with what was basically a male mind in a female body. This was the part of the mind that conflicted the greatest, the male thoughts struggling against the female body's new hormones and it's very existence.

The last section was 'Crystal'. This part was an outgrowth of 'Female Chris' - it had begun as a... role, a part that Chris had played for Tony's sake, but had evolved into the only current persona, with no memory of the others. In this persona, Crystal had been free to be what her body was, without the baggage of her past - but also without the wisdom and knowledge.

Now, the brain that housed all these very different personas fought to integrate them into one coherent mind. Unable to do so while under the stress of dealing with the real world, Chris' mind, now freed of the burden, could sublimate it's battle in the form of dreams.

* * * * *

In 'real life', Chris/Crystal began to twitch, moaning softly in the back of her throat as strange, half- formed dreams paraded through her mind. She rolled away from Tony, her moans half-forming words that held no meaning to all parts of her divided mind, but were very meaningful to portions of it. It was almost as if the three separate-yet-combined personalities housed in her slender body were... talking to each other...

* * * * *

A gray, misty... area. Undefined, with no up or down, no ground or sky.

It didn't seem to bother the three people who occupied the... place. They were engaged in a barely- civilized 'debate' among themselves.

The first of the trio was a handsome, dark-haired young man, dressed casually in a pair of blue-jeans and a Hard Rock Café tee-shirt. He was glaring intently at the third person - as was the second person, who wore an outfit identical to the young man's.

However, she was obviously not male. Despite her short black hair and lack of make-up, there was no doubt that the figure in the masculine attire was female - as the large, firm tits that strained the T- shirt to the limit showed. In fact, they were identical to the breasts of the third person, a sexy young woman in a tight denim dress and high-heels. The two women share much in common, though the woman in the dress was made-up artfully, with matching jewelry to complement her outfit.

"Okay, I'll give you the clothes..." Male Chris admitted - grudgingly. "You do look better that way then she does." He jerked a thumb towards Female Chris. "But why the hell did you sleep with Tony? He's our best friend!"

Crystal blinked. "C'mon - you have to admit he's good looking."

The two Chrises shared a look. "We don't have to admit anything - but in this case, you're right. But, so what? We're not gay!"

Crystal smiled. "Neither am I - and in case you missed it, I am female now. Tony's sexy, and he finds me sexy. He's male, I'm female - what's the problem?"

"He's our best friend!" The two Chrises chorused.

"So? Shouldn't that make him the first guy we'd be interested in? We know him - he's a great guy to be our boyfriend."

Female Chris turned to Male Chris. "Well... we will have to get used to being female. Can you think of a better guy to date?"

Looking confused, Male Chris held up his hands. "Hold on, hold on! You two may look female - but I'm the original Chris, and I'm a guy dammit!"

The two women looked at him, and said in chorus "You were a guy - now your female." Male Chris frowned. "Maybe physically - but I'm not giving up my past, dammit!"

The two women looked at each other, then nodded. "We can live with that."

Suddenly, a ripple moved through the air, and Male Chris and Female Chris began to move towards each other without actually moving. The ripple intensified - then there was only two women standing in the... place.

"Okay - I think I can deal with this part - I have to accept the facts, and this is it." Chris said, looking down at her body. Slowly, the clothing she wore began to change, as she continued speaking. "...and I agree with the clothing issue - within reason..." By that time, the pants had become tighter, and the T-shirt became a short-sleeved silk blouse, Shoes with a two-and-a-half inch heel adorned her feet. Lightly done make-up appeared on her face, and simple jewelry about her person. "...but we still have some points to settle..."

* * * * *

Tony stretched as he awoke, yawning mightily...

...then remembered where he was, and looked to his right, finding the bed empty beside him. Propping him self up on his elbows, he looked around the empty motel room.

"Crystal?" He called, a tone of worry coloring his voice. It said much about Tony's character that he didn't even glance over to make sure that his wallet was still on the night-stand. Despite her... peculiarities, Tony had come to trust Crystal - and that was that.

His faith was somewhat rewarded, as the slender, buxom figure slipped from the bathroom, her heels 'tocking' lightly on the tile of the bathroom before being muffled by the carpet. Tony whistled lowly. "Hey... I like..."

She smiled appreciatively. She'd changed into a new outfit of clothing, apparently from her back- pack. She wore the same sweater, but now it was with a tight pair of black jeans, and she wore a pair of square-heeled boots. She wore no make-up, but subdued earrings dangled from her lobes, and a bracelet surrounded one slender wrist. Tony thought she looked great - a 'clean yet sexy' look.

Pulling the chair away from the desk, she swung it around, then straddled it backwards, crossing her arms and resting them on the back of the chair. "Tony - we need to talk. I know you're not comfortable with this, but I can't play the charade. My name's Chris - although it can be short for Crystal, if you'd like. I will have to choose a female name, I suppose. Regardless, I am your best friend - and hopefully, much more, although I'll... understand, if not enjoy, if you can't handle that sort of relationship. I know it wasn't easy for me to come to grips with." She smiled wryly. But I am female now, and I have to accept, and deal with it. I have to try and define a new life for myself as a woman." Her expression hardened. "However, that doesn't mean I have to let the people who did this get away unpunished. I've already done what I should have done in the first place - I made a few phone calls "

* * * * *

The parking lot of the normally sleepy motel looked like carnival had descended on it. The first vehicle to arrive had been a local police cruiser, alerted by the FBI, followed close behind by several cars bearing doctors - of both the physical and mental varieties. Over the next few hours, more and more vehicles had arrived, including what was basically a complete pathology and examination lab on wheels, part of the FBI identification unit. The only people who hadn't shown up - by fiat of police road-blocks and tight rein on the flow of information - was the media. At least, not yet - Chris was sure that they would show up sooner or later. Word of something like this would get out, one way or another.

"Miss... I mean, Mister " The FBI agent stumbled to a stop, obviously chagrined.

Chris managed a smile for the poor man. The agent, an obviously experienced man, was probably unflappable in most situations - but no-one was quite ready to deal with this gracefully.

"I suppose I'd better get used to hearing myself referred to as a 'miss', Agent "

"Danners Miss." The agent said, managing a small smile of his own, despite his obvious discomfort. "If you'd please come with me - the A.I.C. has a few more questions."

Chris rose from where she'd been sitting on the curb. "Of course." She followed Danners towards the Agent In Charge, shooting a quick look over her shoulder at the door she'd been sitting outside of.

She sighed as she turned to face front again - Tony had been in the room for the past two hours, ever since fingerprinting and dental records had confirmed the unbelievable evidence of the medical exam.

Pushing the thoughts aside - for now - she dredged up another of her depleted stock of small smiles for A.I.C. Copeland. "Agent Copeland."

The distinguished looking man nodded. "Miss Chambers." He replied. Of an older generation, he'd had no real trouble with the nomenclature - any young person who even appeared vaguely feminine was respectfully a 'miss'. "I just have a few more questions to go over - our units are in place, and we just want to make sure we're in the ballpark."

"Of course."

Copeland gestured towards the map, and Chris drew closer, leaning over it.

"Now, this is where the accident occurred - that we can be sure of. The wreck is still there." Copeland said, pointing to a dot on the map. "And this is where you think you woke up, correct?"

Chris frowned slightly. "I think so - like I said, it's hard to tell on a map."

Copeland nodded. "Of course. But we know that the facility had to be within walking distance of the accident site, and about a half-hour drive from where you awoke. As long as we're fairly certain of those points, we can narrow down our search grid. I just want to make sure that it was about a half hour drive."

Chris shrugged. "That's right - but I can't tell how fast we were going "

Copeland raised his shoulders. "We do what we can with what we have." He faced her, looking her straight in the eye. "I promise you, Miss Chambers - whatever it takes, we'll find these people, and bring them to justice."

"I know you will." Chris said, holding out her slender hand. Gently, Copeland shook it, then became all business once more, turning back to his assembled men and issuing instructions. Chris waited a second to make sure she was no longer needed, then once more turned and headed back to the door behind which her best friend was struggling to deal with the situation.

Halfway there, she was intercepted by Agent Danners. "Miss? I think it's time to get going. The press can't be kept in the dark forever, and it will be easier if we have your new identification arranged, and your apartment picked out and furnished."

Chris sighed. Since she'd been thought dead, everything of her past life had been nullified or canceled. The FBI was kind enough to arrange an emergency fund that should support her for about a year, and a new identity in the name of Crystal Anne Smith, but there were still many details to be worked out before life would be anything approaching 'normal' for her. If she didn't get into her new identity, safely anonymous, before the media arrived, she'd never have a 'normal' life.

Shooting one last, rueful look at the closed motel door, Chris nodded, and followed Danners towards a Government-issue Ford.

As the car door closed, she let the hovering tears behind her eyes slide silently down her cheeks.

* * * * *

SIX MONTHS LATER

'...Gloria McCade, self-proclaimed Major in the 'Feminine Liberation Army', and Dr. Sandra Dolman, were found guilty of the murder of Christopher Leonard Chambers. Due to the closed courtroom, the complete...'

Crystal clicked the TV off with a soft sigh. That was it - it was all over. The closed court-room nature of the trial had ensured her anonymity, and she was finally free.

Rising from the couch, she headed towards the hallway leading into the bedrooms. She'd only taken a few steps when a knock sounded on the door, causing her to stop in mid-stride.

Turning, she went over and opened the door, to find a sober-looking young man in a dark suit holding a large package.

"Yes?"

"Agent Danners asked my to deliver this, Miss." The agent said, handing the box to Crystal. Thanking the young agent, Crystal carried the box over to the kitchen table and opened it.

Inside the box lay a an evening gown, a pair of shoes, several jewelry boxes... and a small card. Curious, Crystal picked up the card and read the few short words written on it.

The Windsor Lounge 7:45

Tonight.

Thoughtfully, Crystal tapped the card against the palm of her hand, bemused. Danners, while polite, had never...

Then she shook her head, feeling silly. It was obvious - a small, discrete victory celebration. For a long moment, she considered not going - but then, calling herself foolish, she picked up the box and headed down the hallway to the bathroom.

* * * * *

The Windsor Lounge was an upscale nightclub. Well dressed 'beautiful people' mingled in quite good cheer, and a small band played across the large hardwood dance floor, producing soft, romantic strain to entice the predominately young clientele to hold each other tight as they swayed in time with the music.

Suddenly, a slight hush fell on the room in a wave, spreading out from the entrance. The cause of the event was immediately obvious.

She was tall and slender. The long, black, crushed-velvet dress showed off her figure to it's best advantage, clinging tightly to an amazingly slender waist before billowing out to strain over the large, firm breasts whose cleavage was displayed so elegantly beneath a diamond necklace. The woman, her shoulder-long mane of dark hair stirring, strode through the lounge, each step revealing the long, toned legs through the side-slit in the dress. The gentle sound of her six-inch heels sounded in the slight dimming of conversation as she made her way to the bar and sat down, with the look of a person waiting for someone else.

Crystal looked around, then back down at her watch. There was no sign of Danners, or any of the others she expected, yet she was right on time. She hoped that they wouldn't be long - although she was beginning, slowly, to build a small circle of friends into something approaching a social life, she was by no means ready to handle the men who she was sure would start congregating once they realized she was unescorted....

...which apparently wouldn't take long. She felt, rather than saw, the presence of a man as he sidled up to her. Hoping to 'cold-shoulder' him away, she refused to look up.

"Such a beautiful woman shouldn't be alone ever." A voice said from above her shoulder.

Suddenly, Crystal was barely able to breath. As if in slow motion, she found her head slowly turning to look upwards.

"Can you ever forgive me for being such a stubborn, stupid fool?" Tony asked, his dark eyes locked onto hers.

* * * * *

Across the room, half-hidden behind a large potted palm, Danners and Copeland watched as Crystal flung herself into Tony's arms, burying her head in his shoulder as they embraced. Then her face came up, and the two of them kissed, passionately and at length.

"I think that was a yes." Copeland said, with a gentle grin on his face.

"You know, sir - technically, revealing Miss Smith's identity and location is a breach of security." Danners said.

Copeland turned to face Danners, a mysterious half-smile wreathing his face. "You're not going to report this, are you,

Agent Danners?"

Danners blinked. "No sir."

Copeland looked back across the room, where Crystal and Tony danced slowly on the wooden floor, looks of bliss on their face. He nodded with satisfaction. "Somehow, I don't think Miss Smith is, either."

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: An arrogant drunk, taunts the spirit of an old Victorian house and is transformed into the perfect woman for the house's owner.

This Old House

By Gunslinger

Jeff Winscott was on his way home from the bar, when he noticed the lights on at the old Borman place.

Turning his back to the wind to light a cigarette, Jeff glanced over his shoulder at the stately old Victorian, set back from the road away on it's wooded lot. From behind curtained windows and from the old carriage lamps flanking the front door, golden light spilled out in a warm puddle, the likes of which the small, but stately, estate hadn't seen in at least a decade.

Taking a long, deep drag on his cigarette, the inebriated man swayed slightly in place, one pudgy hand thoughtfully stroking at the dusty blond hairs of his long, unkempt goatee, his dark eyes narrowed thoughtfully.

Ever since his dad, owner and operator of one of the small town's fairly well-off business, had seen fit to die in a store fire that had left a good windfall for his son, Jeff had been steadily drinking away the inheritance. He spent every day down at the bar, working his way steadily through beer after beer, heading home every night slightly after ten o'clock. Though, for the first couple of months in the course-natured man's alcoholic heaven, he'd taken a taxi home each night, he'd soon decided it was a waste of money - and, besides, sobering up from the booze on the walk home only meant that he could better enjoy the effects of the pot he smoked for the next several hours, while watching soft-core porn.

He'd passed the old Borman place every night for the past year - and so he'd watched it turn from a slowly decaying wreck into the pristine example of Victorian workmanship it had now become.

It was some new guy who had done it - restored the old place by hand, by himself. Mark... somebody.

Servanov, that was it. Mark (short for Markus) Servanov. From Chicago - though, to native Tennessean Jeff, it sounded more like a Russkie name.

Turning away from the road, Jeff slid his hands under the prodigious overhang of the beer-belly that strained at his stained, once- white T-shirt, and unzipped himself. As he hauled out 'Big Bad Bob' and hosed down the roadside foliage with some high-octane piss, he grinned to himself at the thought of the place's new owner.

Oh, Mark was a big enough guy, well built, and Jeff supposed women might find his almost white-blond hair and ice-blue eyes attractive - but the guy was a real wimp. Jeff had run into him at the bar a few times when Mark had still been staying at the motel before moving out to the place, and the guy could barely mumble a few words at a time to anybody - and practically nothing at all to broads. Hell, Jeff had enjoyed razzing the Russkie, and the nutless bastard backed down faster than a bunny facing a coyote.

Finishing the task of draining the main vein, Jeff zipped himself back up - then looked back at the house with a grin that was anything but pleasant.

Since he was out this way, he figured he might as well 'drop in'...

Chortling to himself, the heavy-set man began to weave and stumble his way towards the house. Ignoring the graveled drive or the plant-lined flagstone pathway, he made his way up the slight rise of the perfectly tended lawn, kicking his way through the ankle-high white picket fence flanking the path to get to the hand-polished oak steps leading up to the deep veranda shading the front door.

The low, broad heels of his work boots clumping across the painted pine porch, he strode up to the front door. Flanked by narrow, ornate, cut-glass windows on either side, the deep-varnished oak door boasted a brass knocker polished to gleaming perfection - but Jeff pointedly ignored it in favor of pounding one meaty fist against the door itself.

Hard.

He continued pounding right up until the very instant it swung hesitantly open - and then he leaned into it, shoving it - and the slender, but broad-shouldered, platinum-blond man behind it out of the way, gaining him entrance to the marble-tiled foyer.

"Heya, Mark." Jeff boomed in a bad imitation of good cheer. "Thought I'd drop by and see what you've done with the old place."

"Oh, um..." Mark said, hesitantly, standing half-behind the protective thickness of the oak door as he gazed in confused shock at his unexpected 'guest'. Though dressed in a pair of old jeans and a collarless white cotton shirt, the well-muscled blond somehow still gave off the impression of somehow being dressed in a nondescript gray suit of a severely out-of-date style. Blinking, he slowly swung the door shut as it became obvious that Jeff had no intention of leaving.

"That's... very kind of you, um... Jeff, isn't it?" Mark said, in a low voice barely above a whisper.

"Yup, yup, yup..." Jeff admitted expansively, resting his hands on either side of the heavy gut he'd worked so hard to maintain. "We met at the bar 'while ago."

"I remember." Mark said - not without a slight edge in his quiet voice. Mark 'graciously' ignored the tone.

"Done a helluva job here, Mark." He said, looking around with a show of being impressed. Leaning over, he picked up the Tiffany- style lamp resting on the small, round cherry-wood table near the front door.

"She did come out beautifully." Mark replied in a distracted tone - while he carefully lifted the delicate lamp out of Jeff's sweaty hands and carefully placed it back down in the exact center of the white lace doily atop the small table.

"She?" Jeff asked, smirking.

"Yes, 'she'..." Jeff replied in what, for him, was a firm tone. "Even the first time I saw her, I knew this house had a feminine... spirit, if you will."

'Geez - this guy's certifiably nuts...' Jeff thought to himself, grinning. Aloud, he made himself sound interested. "What - like a ghost, or sump'in?" He said, oozing poorly acted attentiveness.

"No - nothing human." Jeff replied, with a sigh. "Just a... a presence. A sense of... of... well, 'emotion', I guess. Feminine emotion."

Jeff snorted. Obviously, this wimp couldn't get any real women, since he was too much of a wuss to deal with a living, breathing broad even if she threw herself at him - so imagined his goddamn house was a chick.

"Oh, I see..." Jeff said, no longer bothering to hide his snicker. "Well, guess I should introduce myself, then, huh...?" "I don't..." Mark tried to protest - but Jeff hadn't bothered to wait and here his opinion.

"Hey, there, Miss House!" Jeff bellowed, banging the dark oak paneling with a fist. "Wakey-Wakey!" Mark winced as a ring on Jeff's hand gouged the wood. "You shouldn't..."

"C'mon, Miss Spirit-of-the-House!" Jeff bellowed, ignoring it's owner. "I wanna meet you! Wanna see what a house-spirit is, and what it can do!"

"I don't think..." Jeff said, a look of alarm on his face.

"Show yourself, House Spirit!" Jeff trumpeted, drunkenly, and he pounded on the wall again - this time, higher up, on the plaster-and- lathe portion of the wall. "Prove you exist!"

"She won't like..." Mark said, almost desperately, actually grabbing the burly man's arm...

Whirling, Jeff shoved him away - hard. The much lighter - and unprepared - man went flying back, landing hard on his buttocks and sliding a good foot across the polished marble floor.

Into the stunned silence that came immediately after the assault, a sound intruded. The low groan of settling beams. Not an uncommon sound in old houses - but this one was louder, deeper, and longer than any Jeff had ever heard...
...and, somehow, almost angry.

Snorting, Jeff shook off the silly thought that the wuss' blathering had caused, and lifted his hands into the air.

"Whatcha gonna do about it?" He taunted the house, just to show this crazy-assed pansy a thing or two. "I ain't afraid of you! Go ahead, do your worst - I dare you!"

Of course, Jeff didn't actually expect anything to happen...

...which was why suddenly having invisible hands grab him and haul him, spread eagle, a good foot into the air was as surprising as it was terrifying.

At that point, the heavy-set man discovered something interesting - stark, raving terror was a very effective cure for intoxication. In that single instant, as he let out a startled, frightened torrent of swearing, he was stone-cold sober.

All of which meant he didn't even have the comforting haze of alcohol to take the edge off his senses for what happened next.

Dimly, he was aware of the fact that Mark seemed to be pleading to that invisible presence to let go of Jeff. Of course, the fact that the tack he'd chosen to take was that Mark shouldn't be held responsible for his actions because he was a 'loutish drunken oaf' was hardly complementary - but Jeff didn't feel all that angry about it.

In fact, all he was capable of feeling was shear, raw terror...

...as he felt his body begin to change.

Arms and legs spread, head held in position staring straight ahead, Jeff wasn't able to see what was happening to his body - but he could definitely feel it. He could feel the painful 'crushing' sensation in his feet, as if they were be compacted in on themselves - a sensation supported a second later by the heavy sound of his boots hitting the floor below him, no longer capable of remaining on feet that must be considerably smaller than the size 11 1/2W he'd had just a few minutes before.

However, the consideration that those expensive work boots - which he'd never actually 'worked' in, of course - would no longer fit his feet was barely worth noting - because he was too busy gibbering in confused terror at the strange pulling, writhing, tingling sensation going on in his legs.

Not to mention the strange 'gas pressure' sensation that was, in and of itself, sort of familiar - except that it was too low, centered on his hips and ass rather than his gut. He could actually feel the external sensation of bloating, as well - as his jeans grew steadily tighter across the semi-spherical curvature of his buttocks and pelvis.

Oh, not that the sensations were occurring in that order, from the feet up - oh, no. they were occurring all over his body, simultaneously, and the 'sequence' was solely a result of which sensation his mind chose to jump to at what time. For instance, his mind flitted briefly to the strange 'slithering' sensation of his hair sliding down his neck - and the fact that the hair felt softer and smoother than it ever had before.

Of course, that was a relative minor sensation - compared to the agony as the bones in his face and skull squeeze and pushed, reshaping supposedly solid materials as if it were as pliable as fresh-dug clay.

A very similar sensation as to what was happening to his arms and hands.

However, as much as his mind flitted to these different sensations, they were all secondary thoughts, interspersed between the two major sets of sensations that his mind kept returning to, again and again - and then shying away from, just as quickly.

Sensation that, each, would have more than 'hinted' at what was happening to his body. Sensations that, taken together, were irrefutable.

Like the painful sensation in his cock and balls. It was almost as if somebody had kicked him in the nuts - in slow motion, because the sensation was much longer and drawn-out than it would have been otherwise. A sensation that, to a horrified mind, might simply be mistaken for the feeling of his cock and balls being drawn back into his body - even as the same flesh and nerves were reshaped into a new configuration.

However, it couldn't be a mistaken assumption, no matter how fervently Jeff might have wished it to be - for the second set of sensations 'supported' the horrifying, humiliating conclusion his mind didn't want to face.

The sensation as the fat of his beer gut slithered and shimmied upwards - into two steadily swelling mounds on his compressing ribcage.

"I didn't mean it...!" Jeff screamed, hysterically...

...and the fact that the scream came out in a pitch much too high for simple hysterics to explain it was the final straw. On top of the pain, and the fear, and the horrified certainty that he nevertheless struggled to deny, the sound of the high-pitched, feminine squeal was too much.

So he did the most sensible thing in the world. He...

She...

...passed out cold.

* * * * *

She jerked bolt upright in the bed.

Not that she had any intention of doing so. In fact, her mind - not even truly alert to the fact that it was her mind - was still clinging, desperately, to the welcome void of dislocated consciousness.

It wasn't easy, considering that her eyes had flown open at the same time she'd sat upright, the morning sunlight streaming in the window hardly conducive to continued unconsciousness. However, her mind was only very barely starting to spin up to speed, and any faint sense-of-self that, as yet, existed in that bemused state was the instinctive, male one of her past.

It usually took a certain measure of consciousness to operate the human body, a level that she was still well below - but that didn't really matter, since it wasn't her consciousness operating her radically altered from.

No, it was another consciousness- but not an external one, but an internal one.

One that operated her body stiffly, as if she were sleepwalking - but operated it nonetheless.

So, it was to motion - purposeful motion - that her own, innate, once-male consciousness slowly returned.

At first, dazed and bemused, she couldn't do much more then accept the information her five sense were reporting to her sleep- bemused brain.

The feel of the smooth, silky nylons sliding up her long, shapely new legs, as silky smooth as the fine hosiery being placed on them.

The sound of the rich, emerald green gown that as it was slid around her trim new form, the slid skirt swirling about her long legs as it clung tightly to wide hips, slim waist and just slightly higher then halfway up her firm, full, sensitive new bust.

The taste of the slick, slightly oily lipstick applied to full new lips.

The scent of the faintly floral perfume dabbed here and there about her body...

...and the sight of herself in the mirror, just as her brain finally reached something approaching full consciousness.

She gasped, heavy-lidded emerald eyes opening wide in shock as she surveyed the woman looking back at her from the mirror. The stunningly beautiful woman staring back at her from the mirror.

She was tall and slim, with perfect, milky skin that was a wonderful backdrop for the rich red of her hair and the bright green of her eyes. Her supple figure was curvaceous, but neither the full, D-cup breasts nor the taut, heart-shaped ass were overdone enough for her overall appearance to leave the realm of 'elegantly beautiful' - for that was what she was, from the tip of the dainty toes inside the white pumps with their four-inch heels, to the tip of her crowning made of lush, rich red hair...

...and every single smooth, supple, curvaceous inch in between.

"What the hell is happening to me...!" The new woman shrieked, staring at the reflection in the mirror mounted atop the elegant old bureau...

...and then, unwillingly, she found herself stepping closer to the dresser, her slim new fingers with their long, pink nails reaching out to the small, leather bound diary and gold fountain pen atop it. Too stunned to even consider fighting the control the secondary consciousness sharing the body with her was exercising, the new woman watched as her new hands opened up the diary to the first page, picked up the pen, and began writing in a finely-formed feminine script:

April 6th

Today, I - Jessica Anne Winston - begin the first day of my... probation.

Having been unaccountably rude to Mark Servanov, a kind and gentle man, it is only fitting that I face some form of punishment for my transgression. Obviously, I have been, until today, crude and uncouth - and so, here I will remain, in 'service' to the dear, sweet, wonderful Mr. Servanov, until I learn to be as kind, as gentle, and as gracious as I should have been all along. For this task, I could have no finer teacher than Mark, who is truly, in every way, a gentleman.

I am so thankful to have the sort of shapely, womanly figure that men appreciate, for I may also provide visual pleasure to Mark as I learn my lessons. I will, of course, always wear clothing and such accessories necessary to emphasize and enhance my beauty, so that Mark enjoys it all the more - for a beautiful, graceful woman is a joy to behold, and I will give him this joy.

Just as I will give him the joy of any more direct, physical pleasure he might wish. After all, he is a man, and I am all woman - a woman with an extremely high sensitivity to any form of pleasure. I am utterly sure I will find pleasuring Mark physically, in any way, extremely pleasurable myself...

..and, of course, if I were to ever do anything as crass or as cruel as to miss out on so much as a single opportunity to provide visual, physical, or any other form of pleasure to Mark - why, then, I would be so mortified that I am sure I would punish myself.

Severely.

Jeff - Jessica!? - read the words as they flowed smoothly from 'her' hand - and began shaking her head, silky new hair brushing across her slender, milky shoulders as her full, pink-coated new lips worked.

"Hell, no!" She said, the sweet new contralto she'd been given along with her new body coming out sharply, in firm denial. "I'm not going to.. to act all 'girlie' for Mark, and I sure as hell ain't gonna 'pleasure him'..."

Her firm denial cut off, sharply, as her body and clothing began to change.

Her dress' hem slithered upwards, rising to mid-thigh, as the body underneath the changing fabric became more pneumatic, breasts bulging outwards under what was rapidly becoming hot-pink spandex.

The massive mane of hair grew even thicker, lusher, and richer - while fading down to a brassy shade of blonde that went better with the huge, blue eyes her vapid-looking face now possessed.

Her viewpoint shrank downwards, despite the much taller heels and platforms of her hot-pink new platforms, as she became shorter, to better emphasize the outrageous curves of her altered form.

Brainlessly, she twirled a long, gloss-pink nail in her massive mane of bottle-blond hair and giggled, eyeing the yawning cleavage her massive, basketball-sized breasts formed in the skin-tight sheath of her spandex tube dress.

"Like, oh-mi-god, I am soooo hot!" She giggled happily at her reflection. "Now I can get, like, lottsa guys to let me suck their cocks! I just love cocks. I love sucking them, and fucking them, and being covered in hot, sticky cum, and holy shit!"

The graphic demonstration that, until that moment, the owner of the house had chosen not to alter her mind, rather than 'could not', had faded, leaving her stunned with the realization that, for several seconds, she'd actually wanted to fuck and suck men - had been ecstatically considering it, in fact. That she'd been equally ecstatic about the over-blown body that she was now staring at with wide-eyed horror.

It had finally penetrated her that the house wanted to teach her - the male mindset of the 'real' Jeff Winscott - a lesson. This wasn't just cruel punishment, nor some sort of horribly game, but an actual attempt to 'rehabilitate' him/her, not just wipe her 'real' mindset out of existence, as the house so obviously could easily do.

If the house had simply wanted to make her some sort of 'real' woman - even a mindless bimbo - it could have done so. It was no obvious that the house actually believed Jeff had done something wrong, and was punishing her - not just out of cruelty or vengeance - but in an effort to make her see the errors of her ways, and correct them.

The thing that made it, literally, painfully obvious...

...was the fact that Jessica knew the house was right. She had, indeed, gone to the house specifically with the intent to piss Mark off. He'd known that he was being cruel, and what he was doing was wrong - but he just hadn't cared.

Now, the house was making damned sure that he'd learn to care about what other people were feeling. By making him female and forcing her to learn how to be good at it Jessica was going to have to learn damned face how to realize what her actions were doing to other people, and what feelings she was creating in them.

If she could learn to make Mark feel good, it seemed likely the house would change her back...

...and if she failed...

She looked at the hyper-buxom figure in the mirror, thought about the eager craving for cock she'd felt, and shuddered. "Okay, okay - I'll be good." She said, aloud. "Please... not that. Don't make me become... her."

He pointed at the figure in the mirror - which was already changing back into the gorgeous redhead she'd started out as. Well, almost. The house saw fit to leave a couple of 'subtle' reminders of the punishment for bad behavior behind.

Like the now six-inch tall heels on her white pumps...

...the longer, thicker mane of richly red hair she'd have to cope with...

..and the DDD-cup breasts elegantly-yet-sensuously displayed the by her emerald-green gown, the firm, round breasts pushing the fine line between 'sensual' and 'slutty' - without quite going over.

Jessica swallowed heavily, understanding her punishment - and the price of failure.

With that firmly in mind, she forced back the 'wrong' urges generated by her humiliation, anger and fear, and quite consciously force herself to move with a smooth, supple grace as she turned from the mirror and headed for the door.

It was strange, walking easily - sinuously - atop such high, slender heels. Of course, as a man, she'd gained no practice or experience in doing so, and she should have fallen all over herself the first time she tried it - but the spirit of the house was helping her, allowing her to walk in them as easily as if she'd been doing it for years. Despite that, however, the house wasn't forcing her to walk in any particular manner - at least, not physically. The house would have 'helped' her remain upright and balanced, even if she were using a stomping, mannish stride - but Jessica was sure that walking that way probably would have earned her more than a slap on the wrist.

In fact, she thought to herself with sickly wry acknowledgment, the smooth, heel-to-toe stride she was using now, her back ruler-straight and head held high as she rotated her hips in smooth counterpoint to the swaying of her long, slim arms, was probably 'overkill', much more gracefully feminine than she needed to get by...

...but with the memory of the bimbo-mentality so clear and sharp in her mind, she wasn't willing to take any chances. Though it sickened and disgusted her to be doing this, she'd rather be using an ultra-supple feminine stride 'voluntarily' than risk being a mindless bimbo obsessed with sex.

She found Mark in the kitchen, nervously trying to perform the simple task of putting on coffee with shaking hands.

The first, bitter reaction to the sight of him that she felt was to yell at him, to curse him for the feminine fate that had befallen him - and it frightened her how fast and strong it surged up in her, almost slipping out of her before she clamped down on it, hard.

She was sure there would have been a punishment for such a thing...

...and even through her hate and anger over what had been done to her, she knew why. Mark didn't deserve it. This wasn't his doing.

Instead, she forced herself to compose her face and let the tension seep from her supple new form, the hands that had balled into fists uncurling themselves.

Mark, facing away from the doorway, apparently hadn't noticed her arrival, despite the clicking of her high heels on the wooden floor. It seemed unlikely, so much so that she'd assumed that he was just ignoring her...

...except that, when she cleared her throat before speaking, he jumped a foot into the air and whirled around. His face was drawn, making it obvious that he'd gotten no sleep - and his wide eyes were tortured, hurt.

She had to force down a surge of bitter enjoyment at the stoop-shouldered, beaten look of him.

"Oh, Jeff - I'm so sorry!" Mark said, shaking his head. "I... I tried to talk the house out of it, but it wouldn't listen. It seems determined to punish you, to try and make you more.. more like me. It's my fault. It's all my fault. For some reason, the house almost idolizes me, thinks I'm somehow a great and wonderful man, and..."

Mark stopped, waving his hands in the air as he searched for more words of apology - then finally slumped, hands falling limply to his side as he stared at the floor.

"I'm so sorry." He repeated, in a broken voice of bitter self-recrimination. Jessica stared at him, slack-jawed.

Having had to fight down the initial urge she'd felt upon entering the room, she'd been forced to admit to herself, without reservation, that none of this was Mark's fault. That she, and she alone, had brought this down upon her. She hadn't liked to admit it, and the fact that she'd been forced to made her furious, but the truth was so obvious and unavoidable that she couldn't lie to herself about the fact that it was her attempt to hurt Mark that had caused the house without prompting from it's owner, to punish her...

...and yet Mark had obviously been up all night, figuratively banging his head against the wall in self-imposed guilt over what had happened to her.

That vicious glee at seeing him in pain lay just under the shocked realization that he was in pain, and the thought of him stewing in his own grief and guilt was darkly attractive...

...and, in a mind-shaking flash of realization, possible.

This wasn't her doing. This pain and grief he was feeling hadn't been brought about by her actions - but by those of the house. She could leave him to stew in the pain he was feeling - and the house would not punish her for it!

She had to be 'nice' to him, to not do anything to cause him pain, and to be pleasing in manner and sight - but she wasn't going to be punished for not doing anything to lessen pain or discomfort caused by an outside source or his own 'weak, wimpish' self.

So...

"It's only temporary." She assured him, keeping any 'unkind' sense of victory out of her strictly polite voice. "The house assures me that, once I've learned my lesson and stopped hurting people out of spite, I'll be back to my old body."

Mark nodded - but it was as if the words hadn't really registered.

"I tried to stop the house." He said, as if trying to reassure himself - and failing. "I tried to talk it out of doing this to you..."

He shuddered - and then looked at her, and shuddered again, turning away quickly as his eyes found the milky cleavage her gown displayed.

"You... don't need to dress like that." HE said, raggedly.

"Yes, I do." She said, her sweetly correct voice not displaying any trace of the dangerous exaltation she felt at knowing that finding a transformed male at all attractive was hurting Mark. The house, never having been a human, male or female, had created a 'pleasing' aspect for Jessica, but was incapable of understanding how Mark's mind could find the very fact that it was pleasing so torturous.

"No, no..." Mark said, almost sobbing. "Not if it's for my sake..."

Jessica knew that, if she asked it to, the house would put her in less emphatically feminine clothes in an instant, complying with at least that much of Mark's wishes, even if it wouldn't turn her back into a man...

...but it wouldn't do it unilaterally.

The urge to be in less feminine clothes warred with the 'acceptable' desire to continue hurting Mark through the house's own punishment - and finally comfort won out...

...mostly.

Hesitantly, not sure if it would work, Jessica formed a mental image of what she had in mind - and wasn't sure if she should be surprised when it worked.

Seconds later, she took a deep breath, running her hands over the clothing that now encased her feminine body.

The tight pair of faded jeans that clung to her womanly hips and long legs, but felt a lot less 'girlie' than the skirt and nylons, and the actually extremely comfortable white silk blouse...

...that was open enough to still display much of that creamy cleavage that bothered Mark so much.

It was, of course, a completely 'acceptable' outfit, one any woman like her might wear, and so the house wasn't going to punish her for it- even if the well-displayed cleavage bothered her owner enormously.

"I'll get the coffee going..." Mark said, trying, and failing, not to eye her artfully arranged view of deep cleaving and the hint of well- rounded breasts - and hating himself even more for ogling the 'poor, unwillingly transformed' male currently housed in a supple, sexy female body. "You.. Just go make yourself comfortable, and I'll bring you some..."

"No, no - let me help." She said, 'sweetly' - and the very fact that it was part of her punishment that 'made' her need to help made the fact that her continued presence - and the matching opportunities for Mark to helplessly ogle her sinuous figure - all the more delightful.

This time, the all-too-acceptable extra 'oomph' she put into the graceful sensuality of her movements wasn't only due to the fact she wanted to make sure she was being feminine enough.

It was because the more feminine she was, the more she adhered to the 'punishment' the house felt she needed, the more uncomfortable Mark was.

However, since it wasn't specifically because of what she was doing, but because of how his own guilt and his own attraction made Mark feel about what she was doing, the house didn't punish her for it. In fact, through the link she now shared with the portion of the house's consciousness that now filled her, Jessica could feel the 'confusion' of the inhuman spirit, who could tell that its owner was unhappy, but lacked the hormones or experience to understand how Mark could be unhappy about finding a 'sexy woman' attractive.

Since the house was forcing her to stay near Mark and look and act feminine - and 'enjoyable' attractive - she had plenty of opportunity to enjoy Mark's discomfort over it. Still, the house didn't 'let up', seeing the fact Mark found her attractive - and not understanding it was that very fact that was so disturbing. In fact, the house kept trying to nudge Jessica into being more pleasant to Mark's senses - and she didn't fight those small nudges all that hard, aware of what it was doing to her host.

Of course, it was still disturbing - sickening - to her to know that if Mark had wanted any sort of physical pleasure, she'd have to give it to him or become a bimbo, but there was scant chance of that. In fact, the very fact that Mark had some urges for her to do things like that with her were only making his condition worse, and she knew he'd never go through with any of them.

All in all, it was quite enjoyable to spend the day watching him 'squirm', driven by his own internal guilt. By the second day, it had become considerably less enjoyable.

By the third, it was annoying.

She couldn't stop, however. Despite his nervous, awkward manner now grating on her nerves, his unwanted, helpless attraction to her having lost it's 'enjoyably', she couldn't stop the cycle.

The one time, annoyed, she'd tried to close her open shirt against his helplessly appreciative gaze, the house had expanded her breasts out another two cup sizes, forcing her to once more display the cleavage that Mark was 'enjoying' looking at - and hating himself for enjoying.

By the forth day, annoyance was transmuting itself into something else:

Worry.

* * * * *

On her way back from the bathroom, Jessica paused in the doorway to the living room and took a good, hard look at where Mark sat on the couch, his eyes aimed towards the TV without his brain registering any of the images.

It was almost nine o'clock at night, but she would have bet that Mark couldn't have told her that, if she'd asked. He'd barely been sleeping at all. Not only because of guilt, but because in his sleep his mind conjured up unwanted sexual fantasies - fantasies centered on a certain, sexy red-head.

Slowly, Jessica began to walk towards the couch, looking at Mark in his rumpled, stained clothes. In a sort of reverse transition, the more sexy she'd become, the more he'd degenerated.

Unconsciously fluffing out her long, thick mane of hair, she prepared to gracefully lower herself into the armchair she'd been using - and watched his haunted eyes helplessly swing in her direction, his uncaring libido insisting he watch, so as to get a good look at the long, shapely legs and full, round breasts so well displayed by her 'simple' pastel pink sundress, with it's short, loose skirt and it's button-down front with the top two buttons undone.

Seeing that helpless, hopeless gaze swing to her supple form, Jessica hesitated, balancing in mid-sit with an unconscious easy atop the five-and-a-half shaped inch heels of her sandal-style shoes... and then she rose and walked over to the couch and sat beside Mark, forcing herself to not wrinkle her nose at the smell rising from the unwashed, unshaven man.

'Geez - this is how I used to smell most of the time...' She found herself thinking, with surprise, recalling her own lack of hygienic concern when she'd been male. 'How the hell did I stand myself...?'

She became sharply aware of her own, current scent - a pleasant fragrance whose swirling ambience she'd become so used to, yet somehow never 'tuned out' from her consciousness, as she had her old, male odor.

"Mark?" She said, softly, watching his eyes turn to look at the well-displayed cleavage before him. He'd almost completely given up trying to control his wandering eyes, and now he openly stared at her full, round breasts with a sort of painful hunger, his eyes dark pools of self-disgust. "Mark - please, talk to me. Say something. Anything."

This was one of the symptoms that had turned annoyance into worry - Mark hadn't spoken at all today, had barely moved at all. He still didn't speak, gazing in helpless fascination at what he wanted - and what, with equal fervor, he didn't want to want.

She glanced downward, at her own large, round breasts - and was bemused to realize just how used she'd gotten to even having breasts. Sure, she still hated being forced to be female, but...

Her mind came to a screeching, screaming stop as she suddenly faced an assumption head-on. Did she hate being a woman?

Sure, she'd been disgusted, horrified, sickened and afraid at being made female, at the beginning - and so she'd simply assumed she still felt the same way now.

Except... she didn't.

She'd been female for four days now - and while she'd been forced to adapt to some changes that came with her new gender, she was shocked to realize that being female wasn't really all that different from being male. Sure, the sensations were different, as were the motions and movements...

...but once you became used to that, being female was... just being female.

She wasn't 'worse off' then she'd been as a man. She still had her own thoughts and emotions, and they hadn't been changed...

...except, she realized with a another start, they had.

Not by any outside force, and not specifically by being female. Oh, it was being female that had caused the change, but not because she was female, but because she was different. Even a different male body, or that of an ape or elephant or something indefinable, would have served. Anything that had forced her out of the 'rut' of her old male life and let her look back on it from a fresh perspective.

Her thoughts and emotions had changed - because she could clearly see what an asshole she'd been.

A mean, shiftless, uncaring drunk. A waste of human skin. Somebody who'd enjoyed seeing people in pain, and couldn't get enough of it...

...except that, in this situation, she'd been allowed to sate that hunger. She'd seen Mark in unending, unvarying pain for four days.

It no longer pleased her in the least. She'd finally sated that hunger and come through the other side - only to find herself no happier for it. In fact, she felt...

Dirty. Disgusted.

Even... horrified.

What sort of sick bastard had she been, to enjoy having anybody feel the way Mark felt? The way Mark was still feeling?

For Jessica, it was as if the world shook. She shivered as every assumption, every unexamined thought and emotion that formed the set of memories that defined her, were thrust into the light to be reexamined...

...and she realized that she hated herself. Thoroughly and without reservation. She was despicable.

She was dirt.

She was undeserving of continued existence, a worthless waste of life that didn't even have one, single redeeming feature.

Darkness, self-loathing and disgust washed through her, threatening to overwhelm her with nihilistic despair, the urge to throw away the life that had become a burden to her - to the world - growing so incredibly strong that she almost let it carry her away...

...when one small, whispered voice spoke to her, a shining pinpoint of light in all that darkness. 'You hate who you were.'

She blinked, considering.

It was true. Her entire life had been utterly wasted - but if she killed herself, that would be all it ever could be.

If she lived, if she forced herself to face the person she'd been, and now hated, then she could use the rest of her life to try and somehow make up for all the pain and grief she'd caused...

...and, in that instant, it was as if there were a 'click' in her mind as everything fell into place.

For, with a shift in her basic understanding of the world around her, she was 'in tune' with the house. She understood that this very change in thought process was what the house had been trying to spawn by its punishment - but never to such an intense degree.

No, the very deep and powerful nature of the worldview shift had come about because of an unexpected 'side effect' to her rehabilitation.

The destruction of a good and gentle person named Mark Servanov.

It was her fault. Oh, even three days ago, she hadn't thought so, oh-so-gleefully playing on it without guilt - but now she knew better. An old quote popped into her head, something dredged up from her days at school: Evil flourishes where good men do nothing.

It was something she would have snorted at, before - but now she understood it to be a very real and powerful truth.

Well, she might not be either 'good', nor a man - but if she was ever going to be able to look at herself in the mirror, regardless of which face she was wearing, she couldn't 'do nothing' and let the evil of Marks' pain and growing self hatred continue.

She turned and looked at Mark, seeing him a whole new light. Gently, she reached out and slid a gently hand behind his neck...

...and he flinched.

"No!" HE gasped hoarsely, the first word he'd spoken all day.

"What's wrong?" She asked, gently, her voice warm with all the affection she realized she owed a man who'd suffered so very much - on her behalf.

He shuddered. "Don't.. don't touch me. I..."

He licked his lips, nervously - and revealed his deepest, darkest fear.

To a man, genuinely good man, the thought was anathema, and he had to force himself to put it into words: "I... Might not be able to... control stop myself."

"Stop yourself from what?" She prompted. He shuddered again.

"From... touching you." He gasped, horrified to admit that he might actually touch a person - a woman, or a man 'forced' to be a woman - against their will.

"Touch me?" She asked, sliding the hand gently over his neck, caressing him. "You mean... sexually?" He nodded, tears of shame starting to roll down his unshaven cheeks.

"What - like this...?" She asked...

...and grasped his hand and pulled it to rest on her warm, taut thigh. He gasped, eyes flying opening in surprise.

"Or like... this?" She asked, letting go of his neck to take his other hand - to slide it into her dress, around one firm, full breast.

He shivered, trying to pull his hands away - yet unable to bring himself to use enough force to break her gentle grip, leaving his hands 'unwillingly' where they were, touching her firm, warm, supple flesh.

"What...?" He babbled, staring at her. "Why...?"

She hesitated, trying to find the words that could possibly explain what she'd come to understand, looking for some way to make clear what had been so obscure before, and so clear now...

...and then realized that Mark, being the man he was, didn't need to have it all explained to him. She smiled.

"You can..." She told him, softly, smiling as she looked him straight in the eye, "...because you haven't." He hesitated - then, slowly, giving her plenty of time to avoid it, leaned towards her.

She didn't avoid it - she leaned into it, their lips meeting firmly. They kissed.

Hesitantly at first, her own nervousness at the new and unexplored realm of her feminine sexuality warring with his uncertainty that what he thought was happening really was - but soon the kiss deepened, became more passionate, as each allowed themselves to realize that, despite their own doubts, this was really what each of them - and each other - really wanted.

Only five days before, Jessica had been Jeff, and almost aggressive heterosexual man - but she'd come to realize that the accident of whatever gender you happened to be born as didn't really matter, in the long run, not nearly as much as you did with the life, masculine or feminine, that you were gifted.

She'd also come to realize that Mark was a person she could trust, completely and utterly. Somebody she could trust to give and take pleasure with her, without fear that he'd hurt her by taking advantage of it - something he'd proven inarguably during the past four days.

She could safely let him show her how to experience the pleasures of her new form's sexuality - and she, in turn, let him know with no uncertainty that he could enjoy his own, masculine sexuality to do so.

With no hesitation, regret, or discomfort, Jessica let herself go, embracing all the wonders and pleasures of her feminine form that her old, male - and, in the 'big picture', utterly ludicrous - preconceptions had kept her from accepting.

Only, as her hands unbuttoned, unbuckled, and unzipped eagerly to get at the warm, living flesh beneath Mark's clothes while he did the same for her, she realized, with a start, that those 'preconceptions' weren't ludicrous.

They were necessary.

Oh, not for her - but that was because she had been offered a gift as great as life itself, a chance to truly experience the other side of the gender barrier.

A barrier that was as real and as unrelenting, for most, as a concrete wall. So real and unbreakable that a yearning to see the other side of it, while lacking the ability, would be the cruelest sort of cut...

...and even as she reveled in the ability to experience what a man's warm hands felt like on her warm, feminine flesh, Jessica felt deep sorrow and disgust for the man she'd been, even as she understood the necessity of the narrow point of view that had led her to despise, even hate, those 'tranny freaks'.

After all, if she'd let herself truly understand them, she too would have been doomed to that sort of unquenchable, unknowable torment. Of being intelligent and empathic enough to know what she know knew, that the divisions of gender meant nothing at all in terms of the 'person', the mind that felt and thought and loved and hurt exactly the same regardless of race or gender...

...and meant everything in terms of how that person interacted with the world around them.

The mind was the real 'person', the thoughts and emotions and experiences - but the body was the input and output for that mind, and everything that mind experienced, everything that ended up forming who that person would become, was filtered through that body, as was all the actions it would make - and it was something that no amount of simulation could truly provide.

She was different. She was given the chance to see both sides, to experience both sets of 'filters'...

...and, as she was laid back on the couch, Mark's hands eagerly moving over her smooth flesh as she eagerly spread her legs for him, she knew that she would have to try and experience every aspect of feminine life for at least as many years as she'd been male before she could even begin to consider changing back again - anything less, and she'd continuously wonder about that which she had allowed herself to miss.

Then Mark's hard, throbbing cock slid deep into her warm, wet new womanhood, and she gave up thinking about this wondrous gift of femininity in favor for experiencing it.

Yet, even as she let herself loose herself in the wonderful sensations of not only having a kind, gentle, caring man make love to her warm, supple, feminine body, but of letting herself accept the reversal of 'input' and 'output' from her old life, there was a deep and inherent core of sadness that added the bitter to the sweet, knowing that - unasked for and unanticipated, she'd been allowed to experience a wonderful gift that all too many would have willingly traded their souls for...

...and it was that bittersweet knowledge that made it all the more imperative that she would never take her feminine life for granted, that insurance that she would savor every moment, every experience, out of respect and regret for all those who could not, that made her first female orgasm all the more powerful.

As her body convulsed in the very pleasure her narrow old male mindset would never have let itself truly wonder about, she dedicated it to the thought and the idea of all the men out there who had allowed themselves to open the Pandora's box of gender empathy...

...and, by the very fact of her existence, let herself believe that the Gender Pandora's box shared in common that one element with the mythical original:

Hope.

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: A shy man has only seen his beautiful neighbor through his binoculars until, one day, she uses a magic spell to make them change places.

Through The Glass

By Gunslinger

Night began to descend on the concrete towers and valleys of the city, the golden glow of late afternoon fading to a sullen red before fading towards the ebony shadow of darkness. Amidst the towering buildings of downtown, twilight had already faded into darkness for the aging tenements and expensive condos that shared space in the shadows of the rapidly emptying monuments to commercialism that loomed above them and blocked the dying sun.

On the tenth floor of one of the older brownstones that had occupied the area decades before the earliest skyscrapers, a slender figure stirred and glanced at the glowing numerals of a clock, cursing mildly as it rose from the pool of light that spilled over the sofa on which it had lain, eyes riveted on the pages of a thick adventure novel.

Danny hurried from the couch to the window that looked out over a small, overgrown 'park' that was surrounded on all sides by buildings. Pulling the worn chair that sat in front of the old window into a more comfortable position, he lowered his short, pale body into the chair, idly tugging his track pants into a more comfortable position with one hand while his other fumbled beside him, finally running across the cool casing of the binoculars that rested on the end table. He lifted them and dropped the leather strap of the thirty-year-old Zeiss-Ikon binoculars around his neck. Although four years older than Danny himself, the binoculars were still the finely crafted precision optics they'd been when they were produced for the Bundeswehr in the sixties, and when Danny slipped off his heavy-framed glasses and placed the eyepieces of the binoculars in front of his liquid brown eyes, the image that leapt into view was crisp and clear, with the exaggerated three-dimensional effect that the 'big-eye' glasses brought to anything. With the usual German mentality for details, the optics were capable of focusing at ranges far shorter than any American- or Japanese-made binoculars were capable of, the short-sighted designers of those products failing to see any reason why somebody would use powerful binoculars for only a few hundred yards range.

Then again - it hadn't been unheard of for 'serious' opera-goers to take similar binoculars to the opera-house - not only cleared then the similarly ranged opera glasses that most people used, they also provided a much wider range of vision at that range.

Danny used his binoculars for a less... cultured purpose, however.

Intently, the slim brunet gazed across the two-hundred-yard distance between his window and the building across from his, easily finding the specific window he was looking for. The pale young man sighed in relief as he saw the gauzy white curtains still drawn against the now-vanished sun, meaning that he wasn't late.

As a matter of fact - he was just in time. He'd barely gotten himself focused on the wide floor-to-ceiling window when the lights in the apartment it serviced snapped into life, and a dark silhouette soon rose against the translucent fabric.

Then a pair of hands grasped the sides of the drapes and drew them wide, exposing the entire living-room of the upscale condo to Danny's peering eyes.

The owner of the hands that had opened the curtains was a young woman, of about the same age as himself - and about the same height, as well. But there any resemblance ended.

The woman was slender - but whereas Danny had the skinny look of an underfed and under-exercised young man, the woman had the lithe, svelte build of a healthy young woman who eschewed the 'anorexic' look of a fashion model while being blessed with a naturally slender waistline on a slender frame that was anything but shapeless.

She was wearing a medium-blue velour mini-dress that revealed that frame to an advantage. Balanced atop blue pumps with four inch heels, her long, toned legs rose in shapely columns that disappeared under the high hem of the dress where it swelled over her womanly hips. A white belt did a marvelous job of drawing the stretchy dress tight against her trim waist before the material stretched out, straining to contain a firm, round pair of breasts that were the size of small melons, assisted only by the two small straps that went behind her long, slender neck before meeting in a bow, holding the sleeveless dress in place.

Her toned, healthy arms were well displayed by the dress, from the strong-yet-feminine shoulders to the slender wrists, where they met her slender, shapely hands, each long, slender finger tipped by a long, pink nail.

Her face wasn't 'classically' beautiful. It was a little too long for that, with a rounded rather than pointed chin, and her nose was a trifle too large for her face. But, somehow, all her facial features managed to 'work', being offset by full, soft lips that were further emphasized by a dark red lipstick, and seemed permanently locked in a smile of some sort - one that was reflected in her large, expressive green eyes.

Her hair was a simple, shaggy style that hung to the shoulders at the back and to her finely curved eyebrows in the front, it's incredibly deep, rich red hue to improbable to be anything but natural. She was an incredible mixture of things - incredibly sexy in body and motion, with the look and personality of 'the girl next door', making her seem much more accessible and attractive than a classically beautiful woman would be.

Those bright, long-lashed eyes now looked out over the overgrown park ten stories below, picking out the bright blooms that were just starting to fade in the early fall weather. Then the gaze slowly rose - and met Danny's through the two panes of glass and two sets of lenses, the magnification the optics making it seem that she was only a foot or two away, instead of the distance of two football fields.

The smile widened, and she waved cheerfully across the distance, then laughed - silently, from Danny's viewpoint - and blew a kiss in his direction.

Lowering the binoculars for a second, Danny mimed catching the kiss, the wistfully mimed blowing one back to her. "Hello, Dana..." He whispered softly, then brought the glasses back up to his eyes, to continue his daily ritual.

True to form, the sexy red-head cocked her head inquisitively, then picked up the cordless phone that rested on the table beside her and waved it suggestively - once more inviting her unknown 'friend' to give her a call and introduce himself.

But that was one thing that Danny would never, ever do - no matter how friendly Dana seemed, or how long this strange relationship went on.

It had all began more then three moths ago - and quite innocently.

It had been the Fourth of July - and it had been absolutely sweltering, even after the sun had finally descended. Danny - despite his... condition... had been drive from the broiling furnace of his apartment, if only as far as the fire escape outside his window.

Despite the pounding of his heart and his racing pulse, he'd found himself falling into an odd state of mind, a sort of drifting, pleasant lassitude that was completely unlike him, especially considering where he was. He'd pulled the cushions off the couch and laid them on the slowly rusting grate of the obsolete ironmongery, turning the platform - long since disconnected for ladders going in either direction - into a comfortable haven. Bringing his TV - a black and white thirteen inch only a few years his junior - onto the impromptu balcony had only heightened the sensation that he was in a small, comfortably air-conditioned room, and he'd even - amazingly - brought out the two beers that had been in the back of his fridge since he'd moved in, left by the previous tenant.

He'd lain there for awhile watching TV in relative comfort - and amazed at the better reception, after he'd pushed the built-in antenna so that it touched the metal of the platform - when a burst of light had drawn his attention.

His stomach had dropped to his shoes as he gazed over the roof of the building opposite - but something else had shone in his eyes as he'd watched the burst of color as he saw fireworks for the second time in his life. Awed and bemused, he'd found himself doing something utterly uncharacteristic - rather than glancing immediately away from the portion of sky where the bright pyrotechnics were bursting, he'd reached into the apartment and brought out his binoculars, focusing them on the distant display and bringing them closer.

After a few, eternal minutes, he was forced to lower the binoculars from the bright spectacle high above the distant lake...

...and as he'd lowered the binoculars from his eyes, and lowered his eyes - he'd found himself looking at a gorgeous red-head who was staring at him intently.

Startled, Danny had jerked unconsciously - and his foot had connected with his TV, sending it over the edge of the platform and down the ten stories to the flower bed below, where it's tired circuitry finally received it's eternal rest.

Only when the startled woman had gaped at the fallen TV, then at him, did Danny realize - blushing furiously - that she hadn't been gazing at him after all, but at his bedroom window, a few feet to the right. The window that was covered in a mylar tint, turning the outside of it into a mirror.

A mirror that the woman had been using to watch the fireworks in.

The strange, pleasant mood he'd been evaporated by shame, frustration and other emotions, Danny prepared to retreat into the slowly cooling lair of his apartment, when he noticed the stunning red-head making an odd gesture with her hands in front of her face. It took Danny a minute to figure out she was miming holding binoculars to her eyes.

He hesitated for what seemed to be forever - then slowly lifted the binoculars to his eyes and brought the woman into focus, taking in her shapely figure and friendly features.

Seeing that he was gazing at her - thankfully, the darkness hid his deep blush while he did so - the woman picked up a pad of note paper from beside the phone and wrote something on it, holding it up for him to see.

'Sorry - didn't mean to startle you.'

Lowering the glasses, Danny considered, heart pounding and wanting - desperately - to retreat to the sanctuary of his apartment and solitary existence. Instead, he'd mimed a wide 'who knew?' open-handed shrug, then brought the glasses back to his eyes as she wrote on a second page.

'What channel were you watching?'

Danny blinked, wondering what that had to do with anything. Shrugging mentally, he snaked an arm back into the apartment and emerged with one of the dozen flashlights he kept around. Flicking it on and off, he flashed the light seven times.

Nodding, the gorgeous woman went further into her apartment, picked up a small, dark object - and channel seven flared to life on her big-screen TV, in full color. Through the glasses, it was a bigger picture than his own TV had given from only a couple of feet away from him. She even turned up the sound so that it wafted across the courtyard.

For the next couple of hours, Danny had watched television in that unusual fashion, 'talking' with the woman during commercials - although she really did all the communicating. One of the first things she'd offered was her name - Dana Sinclair - and soon after, her phone number.

She'd turned out to have a great sense of humor - at one point, she 'offered' him coffee when she made herself some, by holding up the coffee pot suggestively then folding a paper airplane and balancing an empty Styrofoam mug on top of its wingspan - and she didn't seem at all self-conscious about having a complete stranger peer into her apartment, acting as if she simply had a guest over.

It had been an unusual - and unusually enjoyable - evening for Danny, but when he'd finally retreated into his now reasonably comfortable apartment for the night, he'd thought that would be the end of it.

Perhaps it would have been - if not for the fact that the next day he'd risen from his couch to get something to drink when he'd noticed something out of the corner of his eye, and peered out the window at the apartment opposite, wondering what had drawn his attention and feeling like a pervert or voyeur. That feeling grew even worse when he hesitantly picked up the binoculars...

but turned into something else altogether when he focused them on the window.

The drapes had been closed - but not all the way. There was a gape of about a foot between the curtains - and Danny's jaw had dropped at what he could see through that gap.

A man in dark clothing and a mask - strangling Dana on the couch.

Horrified, Danny had grabbed his phone and frantically punched out 9-1-1, practically stammering as he explained the situation to the operator at the other end.

Then he went back to the window, bringing his glasses back up to his eyes.

Immediately, he knew that the police - no matter how fast - were going to be too late. They'd never get to the apartment in time to save Dana's life, especially since he hadn't been able to give the apartment number or the building's exact address, not knowing either - he'd given them the rough location of the building, her name and her phone number, the best he could do. But his best wasn't going to be good enough...

Unless....

Frantic, Danny had let the binoculars drop to his chest as he rushed into his bedroom. He yanked open the drawer in his night-table - and in his state, he used enough force to pull it completely out of the slides, dropping it to the floor.

Ignoring the spill of items that rolled around, he'd scooped up the black metal object laying there and had pelted back to the window, already open against the sweltering heat of his apartment.

Hand shaking, heart pounding, sweat running down his face, he'd lifted up the black metal object, aiming it at the window of Dana's apartment...

...then pulled the trigger. The world went white.

Danny had bought the non-lethal defensive weapon when he'd first arrived in the city, and hadn't thought about it since. Now it performed its assigned function beautifully. The capacitor in the metal body, already holding a charge, dumped energy into the incredibly high-powered xenon/halogen bulb in the metal reflector, creating a split second of light that not only rivaled the sun, but surpassed it for that brief instant, casting the building across the way in stark monochrome.

Blinking - despite the fact it had been facing away from him and he'd closed his eyes, the bounce-back off the windows of Dana's building through his eyelids had still been something - Danny had brought the binoculars to his eyes...

...to witness the welcome sight of the man staggering back blindly, hands to his eyes. He'd been looking more-or-less in the direction of the gap in the curtains - and Danny's apartment - when a light brighter than the sun had blinded him and sent an intense bolt of pain through overloaded nerves.

Bent over, obviously coughing and wheezing, Dana had staggered to the door, easily avoiding the blinded man, and disappeared from Danny's view.

Since then, every day when she got home from work, Dana threw open the drapes of her apartment - all of them. Although Danny knew that the police must have given her his name - after all, they'd come to visit him as well after the botched break in and near murder - she never made any attempt to force contact with him, instead offering him a chance to step into her life. She had made it clear - via signs - that he was welcome - more than welcome - to watch her go about her life while she was at home. Or call her. Or come over - almost anything he wanted. It was obvious that she'd begun to form a sort of distant liking for him at first glance, on the Fourth - but since the Fifth, she owed him her life, and wanted to find a way to thank him.

At first, he hadn't taken advantage of her offering to watch her, 'visit' with her via binoculars and note-pads. But then she'd posted a large, Bristol-board and marker 'note' that had made him realize that she felt that she owed him, and if he wouldn't accepted anything from her, she'd feel indebted to him with no way to make up what she felt owed. Soon, they'd fallen into the strange relationship that still persisted to this day, although it had changed nature slightly...

...now that she'd gotten a small pair of binoculars herself. She didn't use them all that much, knowing that Danny wasn't comfortable with being the 'viewee' - but it made writing to each other easier to read.

Now he watched as Dana held up the pad of paper she kept handy, the words clear and distinct through his binoculars. 'Well Danny Boy - what's dinner tonight?'

He lowered the glasses for a second, then picked up his own pad of paper. 'Chinese?'

She read the words through her own binoculars, then nodded. Danny leaned back as she made the phone call. Having been doing this for awhile, the delivery people of the local restaurants had gotten used to her strange requests. Dana insisted on paying for their meals 'together', and Danny had finally given up arguing about it. So, the delivery men of the restaurants always went to her place first, then ran the other half of the order over to him.

When he saw that the delivery arrived at Dana's apartment, he set up the small table so that it sat in front of the window, then lit the candle that rested on the edge and filled the wineglass - his only one, specially purchased - with apple juice. Buzzing up the delivery, he accepted the food and gave the man a small tip, then took the food back to the window.

In her own apartment, Dana had also set up a table near the window. Across the distance of the park between the two buildings, the two of them lifted a wine glass each and tapped it lightly against the window, toasting each other. Then they began their 'romantic' dinner, taking a long time to finish the meal as they 'chatted' back and forth via note-pad.

Finally finishing their meals, they cleaned up, then once more returned to their respective windows, discussing which shows they wanted to watch. After coming to an agreement, Dana turned on her TV, while Danny turned on the small radio Dana had bought and sent to him. It was an older radio that had AM, FM - and the TV channels. Now, he tuned it to the channel that the TV was on, hearing the sound through the radio and watching the TV itself through his binoculars.

Several hours passed this way. About eleven o'clock, Danny began his usual 'getting tired' routine which usually began the close of the night. As usual, Dana disappeared into her bedroom for a few minutes, to change into 'something more comfortable'. Danny waited with anticipation, wondering which outfit of lace and/or silk she'd chose to wear tonight, ending his day with the sight of a gorgeous woman in sexy lingerie blowing him a good-night kiss...

Danny blinked as Dana re-entered the living room of her apartment. Rather than some sexy little nothing, she was wearing a pair of white cotton panties and a white camisole top, with her fuzzy white bathrobe hanging open over it all. As Danny watched in mild confusion, she wrote something and held it up.

'There's something I want to try at midnight that I'd like you to be here for. Can you wait up?'

Danny shrugged, then nodded in an exaggerated fashion for her to see. They continued 'chatting' for a while longer, Danny's curiosity growing.

Finally, a few minutes before midnight, Dana shut off most of the lights in her apartment, leaving on a single floor lamp that left a pool of light near the window. As Danny watched, she sat down in the pool of light, crossing her legs tailor-fashion. Resting her hands palm-up on her knees, she curled the thumb and middle finger of each hand into a loose 'O', closing her eyes and letting her face become calm and expressionless.

Danny continued to watch as she - apparently - began to meditate, wondering what this was all about.

Then, to his surprise, he began to feel sleepy. It came over him suddenly, growing in strength with a speed that was staggering. Blinking, he tried to fight it - but found the binoculars dropping from in front of his eyes as they seemed to gain weight, dragging his hands down. His eyelids also seemed to be gaining weight, falling over his eyes. He tried to pull them open again, but they continued to slide shut, the world dimming as his mind began to slow in the warm lassitude of sleep...

...then Danny sat bolt upright, coming awake with a jerk...

...and found himself staring at the window of Dana's apartment. From the inside.

It took a second to register - because, from his viewpoint, everything looked wrong, with everything on the 'wrong' side. The phone was to the left instead of the right, the chair was on the wrong side...

Then it all hit home, even as his mind struggled to deal with the sudden and inexplicable shift in perspective, and the odd sensations he was feeling. Mind spinning to catch up with reality - as he perceived it - he glanced down...

...and once more his mind fell far behind the information that was flooding it, as he tried to make sense of what he was seeing.

Knees. Shapely bare knees, devoid of any body hair, framed on either side by a thick, heavily textured white fabric. Hands that were slender and tipped with long, painted nails, resting on those knees. Those knees led in one direction to a pair of crossed feet, and in the other... Well, he couldn't see the other end of those legs, because they disappeared, blocked from view by the strange white obstruction midway between his eyes and those knees. The obstructions that were located in the same place as the strange heaviness dragging on his chest...

"Holy...!" Danny cried, falling over onto the floor as he twitched in shock, his eyes going wide. Only - they weren't really 'his' eyes, as he knew it - because the sound of that single word, spoken in a feminine tone and pitch, verified the thought that had hit home like a freight train.

He wasn't just in Dana's apartment - he was in Dana's body!

The fact that it was utterly impossible didn't matter in the least - all the evidence added up to that conclusion, with not a single thing other than so-called 'common sense' to argue against it. With the stunning realization, names could be applied to the new and strange sensations he was feeling, and they made a sort of internal sense, even if the situation itself was utterly insane.

Now laying flat on his... Dana's back on the floor of her apartment, Danny-in-Dana lifted a hand before Dana's eyes, staring at the slender hand in shock - but not disbelief, as everything he/she was experiencing was much too real, too emphatic, to be anything but believed. He looked at the hand in shock for a few seconds, then brought it to the face that he was currently wearing, feeling the features of Dana's cute/sexy face slide under the questing tips of her long, slender fingers, then running those fingers through the soft, silky mop of hair that her body was topped with.

Then, hesitantly, the hand drifted downward. It paused for a second over her huge, firm tits, feeling the soft resilience of them through the silky material, and feeling the light pressure of the hand itself through the nerve endings in the firmly pliable mounds. Then the hand continued further south, sliding under the elastic waist band of the cotton briefs... and lightly traced the opening centered in the slight mound between her silken thighs, verifying that there was indeed nothing masculine about the form in which he currently resided.

"Oh... my... God..." Danny whispered, her voice rolling out of her body in that richly female tone. She knew that it wasn't really 'her' voice or body, of course - but found part of his male mind slipping into that tense when describing herself in her current situation, because all the evidence showed that his mind was in Dana's body, which was the only portion visible to the world at large, making her apparently feminine.

Slowly, a shocked look on her face, she pushed herself into a sitting position and gaped down at the breasts stretching out the cami top, feeling them shift as she moved, feeling her nipples moving over the soft material - all sensations that she'd never felt prior to this, and were enjoyable - in a decidedly unnerving way.

Suddenly, Danny realized that she was hearing a strident, electric buzzing noise, and had been for a few seconds now. It took a second for her stunned and overloaded brain to realize that she was hearing the sound of Dana's phone...

Blinking, she pushed herself to her feet, feeling her balance change as she moved, and feeling decidedly out-of-whack with the completely different balance and center of gravity of this female body. Moving slowly, she approached the window and the phone, staring across the distance that separated this apartment from the one she'd just been in - and could see, faintly, the figure of 'himself' at the window, holding a phone to 'his' ear.

Numbly, Danny picked up the cordless phone and held it to her ear. "Danny! Are you all right!"

It was decidedly odd to hear 'his' own voice from this perspective.

"D.. Dana? Is.. is that you?" Danny asked, hesitantly, still trying to cope with the sudden and inexplicable shift in his/her world view.

"Yes. I'm so sorry - I didn't think it'd actually work." Dana-in-Danny said, obviously shocked 'himself', but coping with it slightly better. "Look - I'll be right over. Buzz me in when I get there - the button's on the intercom beside the door. Where's your keys and wallet?"

"Huh?" Was the best Danny could do.

"Keys? Wallet?" Dana-in-Danny asked again, patiently.

"Uh... jean jacket." Danny was finally beginning to catch up. "Hanging on the chair of the desk beside the door. The big brass one is for the apartment door." She paused. "Dana... is this... I mean... Is this really happening?"

A sigh. "Yeah - I'll explain as best as I can when I get over. I'm sorry - this was.. it was kind of a joke. At least... I thought it was. "

Numbly, Danny hung up the phone, then slowly made his way to the door and slumped against the wall, feeling the sensation of the body he was in against the drywall, and finding it different in every way from what she would have felt in her own body, some of the differences subtle, the others not.

It seemed to take forever for Dana to arrive - but it was an eternity well spent, for Danny slowly came to terms with the sudden shift, straightening herself and becoming composed, if still surprised and confused. Though 'forcibly' relocated into a female body, she was alive, sane and healthy - and in no immediate danger. As strange and disturbing as the situation may be, it was certainly no worse - inherently - than the one she'd been living in in her old body. No - the shock and disquiet came from the newness and, to her, oddity of the situation. But there was no immediate threat to life, limb or sanity, and no need to panic.

She took a couple of deep breaths - which caused interesting sensations in her chest - and even managed a wry smile that, in a way, he'd 'gotten into her panties'....

When the enunciator chimed, Danny pushed the button that buzzed Dana through, finding that simple act itself fundamentally different, as she was dealing with the added 'handicap' of the nails tipping the slender fingers of this form. But it was an obstacle that was easily overcome, and a minute later she was opening the deadbolt and letting himself in.

As the door swung shut, the two dislocated souls stared at each other for an instant, taking themselves in from a viewpoint that neither had ever experienced before, or expected to experience.

Then, without a word, they embraced each other, not out of passion, but to feel the reassurance of each other's touch, despite the 'creepy' sensation of being hugged by one's own body.

Breaking the short embrace, 'Danny' looked sorrowful. "I'm so sorry - I didn't expect... I mean, I didn't really expect any of this to happen.”

“What did happen?” ‘Dana’ asked, following her old body over to the couch, reflecting on the oddity of what she was seeing. Although it was her old body, it’s mannerisms, speech patterns and gestures were all unlike the ones she’d used while in it - a third party who knew both of them before would wonder what was going on, as ‘Danny’ was walking more gracefully than he ever had before - and more confidently, although he seemed a bit awkward, especially when he sat and started to cross his legs - then winced and repositioned them.

“Well...” ‘Danny’ said. “I have this book. It was a gift from a client - a real New Age sort of thing. Anyway, there was a section on the ‘power’ of meditation - including how a person who is concentrating hard enough can - at exactly midnight - swap bodies with somebody else, if both people were ‘emotionally attuned’ to the same ‘spiritual wavelength’.”

‘Dana’ blinked - then began to chuckle. The chuckle turned into a laugh, and she doubled over, feeling her new breasts press against her new knees as her slender waist trembled with mirth.

“Sorry...” ‘Dana’ gasped after a moment, explaining it to a puzzled looking ‘Danny’. “It’s just - the thought that those... flakes were actually right about something...”

‘Danny’ grinned at the thought, although he didn’t find it nearly so funny. “Yeah. I guess.” He paused, looking at the female body that, until recently, ‘he’ had inhabited. “Um... well - see, I can’t do anything about it until tomorrow night at midnight.” He lowered his head. “I... I’m sorry.”

‘Dana’ looked at him - then took his hand. “It’s okay. I know you didn’t mean any harm - and to tell the truth, there’s been no harm done. Sure, it’s going to feel really, really weird to be a woman for a day - but if this hadn’t happened, I would never have gotten to speak to you face to face.”

‘Danny’ looked up. “You... you never would have tried to meet me?” He sounded hurt - with good reason, ‘Dana’ supposed.

“Look - it’s not you.” She explained. “It’s me. I grew up under the... ‘care’...” She spat the word out with venom. “...of a crazy woman, and it... it traumatized me for life, I’m afraid.”

“I... didn’t know.” ‘Danny’ said, startled. “What... what happened?”

“She beat me. Often.” ‘Dana’ revealed. “For all sorts of ‘transgressions’. Like going out in public - which is why I hardly ever leave my apartment. I know that I won’t get beaten for it - but I don’t feel it, if you know what I mean. Then there was the fact that I didn’t own any glasses until I left home - and she’d beat me for not seeing things clearly at a distance, as if pain could cure vision problems. It made me neurotic about trying to see things farther away than I can see clearly without my glasses.” She paused - then plunged ahead. “And. erections.”

“What?”

‘Dana’ nodded slowly. “Every time I got an erection, I was beaten severely, and she threaten to.. ‘cut that wicked thing off’.” She looked up and met her old eyes through the glasses. “That’s... that’s why I don’t have relationships with women. I. I start to get aroused - then I remember the beatings and threats and. go limp.”

“Oh, my God..” ‘Danny’ said, hand flying to his mouth in a decidedly feminine gesture. “I had no idea.”

‘Dana’ shrugged feeling the firm breasts shift with the motion. “There was no way you could have. It’s just something I’ve had to live with...” Then she blinked. “Until now.”

‘Danny’ frowned for a second - then got it. “Hey you mean that these things don’t bother you in my body?”

‘Dana’ nodded slowly. “Yeah - it’s weird, but in a way, this is a blessing. ‘I’ can’t be punished for going out in public - because I have the perfect disguise.” She looked down and grinned wryly. “However, in this instance, the thought of going out in public as a woman is deterrent enough, if not nearly as traumatically painful. However - your eyesight is fantastic, and I can look in the distance and not have a problem. And I certainly don’t have to worry about getting a hard on, now do I?”

“No - you certainly don’t.” ‘Danny’ agreed, with a ‘girlish’ giggle. “For the next day, that’s my problem - and at least I don’t have any traumatic problems to deal with - although, like you said, the situation is going to be weird enough as it is.” He paused. “So - I guess the question is: What do we do for the next twenty...” He paused and glanced at the clock. “. three hours and forty-two minutes?”

‘Dana’ considered the question. “Well - you don’t work tomorrow, and I definitely...” She paused with a rueful grin. “Wait - I’d better rephrase that. ‘I’ don’t have to work tomorrow, and ‘you’ definitely aren’t expected anywhere by anyone. So, I guess we just hang around and get to know one another - a lot better then we ever expected to, for that matter.” She glanced down at her body. “I wanted to see you, maybe even touch you - but this is hardly what I expected. ”

‘Danny’ giggled gain. “I know what you mean.” He looked around. “Well - I know it seems off to act so blasé about the whole thing - but your body is tired, and I’m willing to be mine is too. I guess we should get some sleep.”

‘Dana’ agreed. The each took a turn in the bathroom, sharing the same toothbrush for their nightly ablutions - since they were sharing bodies, a simple thing like sharing a toothbrush seemed trivial, after all.

It felt disturbing to go to the washroom as ‘Dana’, she found. Not only did she feel extremely voyeuristic, but - as a man - the only times she’d urinated while sitting was the few times she’d been so ill that standing would have taken too much - now that connotation came back as she urinated, feeling the odd way the liquid came out in undirected spurts and pauses. Carefully wiping herself - and blushing furiously - ‘Dana’ pulled up ‘her’ panties and padded into the bedroom, awkwardly climbing into the huge, soft bed with her old body.

They lay beside each other for a few moments, stiff and awkward. Then ‘Danny’ gently reached over and pulled his old body into an embrace. 'Dana' stiffened for a second, then relaxed and let herself be drawn into an admittedly comforting snuggle. Pillowing her head on the male chest she'd had until recently, 'Dana' slowly drifted off to sleep with the odd sensation of 'her' firm, round tits pressed against the side of her old body, and the thought that she would have done almost anything a few hours ago to have felt that sensation from the male point of view...

* * * * *

'Dana' came awake to stare up at the ceiling with a confused expression on her cute features, wondering why the bedroom looked so different...

Then memory came flooding back, and she sat up quickly, the shifting of her breasts under the cami top verifying that it wasn't just a dream even before she looked down at herself. Even looking down at herself was a verification - not just what she saw, but the fact she was able to see. For the first time since 'she' had moved away from that abusive home, her first act in the morning wasn't to reach for a pair of glasses. In this body, they simply weren't needed.

"This is going to take some getting used to..." She muttered to herself, lightly cupping her new endowments through the thin fabric that covered them. She was embarrassed to feel the nipples beneath were engorged, and the sensation of her touched caused ripples of pleasure to chase through her body in a wave.

Swinging her legs over the side of the bed, 'Dana' stood and headed to the door of the bedroom, feeling the soft carpet under her now- feminine feet. She found herself mentally comparing it to the cold floor of her - Danny's - apartment, and concluded that it was a definite improvement.

Walking into the open-concept living/dining room, she looked around and failed to spot her old body with Dana's mind inside. She frowned slightly, as she'd passed the bathroom and guest room, both of which doors were open, revealing empty rooms.

She stuck her head into the kitchen - and caught sight of a recently-brewed pot of coffee, with a note taped to a cupboard above and to the right of the machine. She walked over to the note and pulled it from the cabinet to read.

'Good Morning, Gorgeous...'

'Dana' grinned at the opening line, then continued.

'First off - the cabinet this is taped to is the one with the coffee mugs in it. Cream's in the fridge, and sugar in the canister on the counter by the toaster.'

By the way - I bet you didn't even notice how you were walking since you woke up...'

'Dana' stopped there with a jerk - then her eyes widened as she realized that she'd been walking easily and comfortably in the new body, as if she'd been doing it for years. She stared back in the direction of the bedroom, only now thinking to wonder how she'd walked with a grace and stride exactly like that of the body's original owner.

'...but you realize it now. Don't be shocked - last night you were trying to force that body to move. This morning, you were just awake, and instinctively told your body to move - without giving it step-by-step instructions as to how to do so. I guess that if you don't try to force the body to move a certain way, it uses the ingrained 'habits' it already has.

Came as a shock to me, I'll tell you. I woke up, but on 'my' glasses, and went into the washroom and took a piss, all while half asleep - then realized what I'd just done, easily and 'naturally'. Whoa...

Anyway - I wasn't really planning for company, and the cupboard is bare - I've run off to do some shopping. Didn't want to wake you. I'll be back before too long. Meanwhile... Why not take a shower and get dressed? EVERYTHING you need for the shower is in the bathroom, and I picked out a set of clothes and put them on top of the dresser.

Love, Danny'

It wasn't until she was finishing the note that she also realized that it wasn't Dana's handwriting - instead, it was a modified style of 'his' own.

Bemused, 'Dana' fixed herself a cup of coffee and drank it as she headed into the bathroom. Placing the now empty mug on the porcelain countertop, she looked at the array spread near the edge of the shower, the shampoo, towels, soap, dildo, conditioner...

Dildo?

Eyes wide, 'Dana' hesitantly picked up the black, plastic phallus, blushing furiously as her slender hands wrapped around its shaft. Slightly smaller than her old body's actual penis, the plastic 'toy' had a dark red cap at the but end, and attached to this was a small note that she read with a bemused expression.

'Fill with warm water - and ENJOY!' "Nnn...oooo" 'Dana' said slowly. "I.. I couldn't..."

Her stunned expression slowly became thoughtful. "Could I?"

Blushing, she started the water running in the tub, getting it to the right temperature - then hesitantly filled the dildo, twice taking it from the flow of water and dumping it out, planning to put it aside and forget it - yet, each time, she changed her mind, and finally ended up filling the plastic with fairly warm water and laying it aside, still unsure whether or not she'd actually use it.

Still debating, 'Dana' slipped off the cami top and briefs, piling them neatly beside the tub. She ran her long, slender fingers over the smooth skin of her thighs and lower stomach, slowly circling her crotch thoughtfully, but not quite touching herself 'down there' as she stood, torn by a strange indecision over a choice she'd never thought she'd be forced to make.

Switching the flow of water to the shower head, 'Dana' stepped into the stall and stood under the warm spray, feeling the water caress the smooth, soft skin of the body she was in. Picking up the soap, she began to wash - hesitantly at first, as it felt incredibly voyeuristic - not to mention strange - to have her hands roaming all over the body of a woman whom she'd never really met 'in the flesh' so to speak

- although she was now in that body, she'd never met her face-to-face while in her original form.

However, those hesitant movements quickly became more confident as she began to wash, her hands moving over her soap-slicked body and eliciting a pleasurable response from that body. She was bemused to feel a growing, pleasant warmth rising in her belly, while her already erect nipples began to tingle most pleasantly.

She slid her hands over the full, soft curves of her buttocks, finding that it was every bit as pleasurable as she'd imagined sliding her old hands over such an ass would be- but with the added 'bonus' that she felt not only the firm ass under her hands, but her hands through the full buttocks. She found herself closing her eyes and smiling in a leisurely, seductive manner as her hands seemed to move of their own accord, sliding around her slender waist and moving upwards to the firm, melon-sized mounds that rode proudly on her ribcage.

She cupped her firm, sensitive endowments, then gave a gentle squeeze. She began to move her hands over the breasts with a firm, circular motion, applying a light pressure that grew more forceful as she began to fondle her tits the way she'd always dreamed of being able to fondle a woman's tits - though this particular 'opportunity' had never featured in her fantasies. It didn't matter now, of course - it felt wonderful. Her male mind was enjoying being able to finally touch a woman sexually, and her female body was enjoying the sensation immensely as she - somewhat awkwardly, but with great enthusiasm - fondled and squeezed her taut round mounds, fingers teasing and rolling the thick, erect nipples atop their dark aureole.

Almost of its own volition, her hand snaked out towards the dildo resting on the lip of the tub. 'Dana' found herself sliding down until she was sitting in the tub with her long, glistening wet legs in front of her, knees lifted and spread, as her hand found the shaft of the warm, wet phallus and gripped it by its base. Eyes closed in pleasure, legs spread and waiting, her hand unerringly gripped the warm, ready piece of plastic...

...and guided it towards her breasts.

Slowly, sensuously, she slid the rounded end of the molded black plastic cock over one erect nipple, biting a full lower lip in pleasure as the sensation ran through her body. Slowly, she moved the dildo across her chest, laying it flat for the time it took to stroke it a few times between the cleavage of her firm mounds, enhanced by squeezing her upper arms against the breasts to push the cleavage into a tunnel. Then she continued moving the dildo across, slowly circling around her firm, glorious breasts, getting closer and closer to the engorged, highly sensitive nub of her nipple.

'Dana' moaned again as it made contact, using it to tease and touch her nipple for a few minutes, enjoying the pleasure it created. Then, slowly, she sent it sliding downwards, towards the patch of neatly trimmed, flame-red pubic hair surrounding the soft folds of her new womanhood.

'Dana' gasped as the end of the dildo slid across the highly sensitive flesh of her vagina, then bit her full lower lip and slowly and gently slid the warm phallus deep into her warm, wet cunt, shuddering slightly at the pleasurable sensation it created. She paused for a moment when the formed 'balls' at the end of the dildo were pressed against the flesh of her mons, absorbing the strange new sensation of being filled.

Then, slowly, she pulled it part way out and pushed it in again, felling the pleasure run through her new body once again. She repeated the motion, faster and with less of a pause between the strokes - then again, and again, and again, each time moving it faster and more powerfully with less hesitation. Within seconds, she was twitching and writhing in the tub, pleasure chasing down her new nerve pathways as she drove the dildo with a powerful, primal rhythm into her wet womanhood, luxuriating in the building pleasure that resounded through her body.

She was gasping now, a moan welling up in the back of her slender throat as the pleasure began to rise towards that fabled crescendo that she'd never experienced - a female orgasm. But it was neither mythical nor exaggerated - as she discovered when the actions of her hand brought forth that very response.

Her movements became uncoordinated as she cried out in pleasure, her senses overwhelmed by the pleasure flooding through her body by the orgasm. Her cunt tightened around the dildo that filled it as her hips bucked without conscious control, responding to the sheer energy of the orgasmic ecstasy that filled her. Sweat mingled with the water still streaming over her body as she slumped lower in the tub, the warm pleasure of her first female orgasm tapering from the sharp, firecracker-like burst of pleasure centered in her crotch to a warm, rich glow that spread throughout her body, causing her already engorged, sensitized nipples to tingle with the power of the sensation.

"Holy shit..." 'Dana' swore softly to herself, flushing a bright, glowing red as she gingerly removed the dildo with a wet, slurping sound. She eyed the object in wry disbelief. "I can't believe I just did that!"

A half-beat pause.

"I can't believe how good it felt." She admitted to herself. Shaking her head - and still flushing vigorously - she gingerly rinsed off the dildo and set it aside, then finished washing herself, being extremely careful around her now super-charged crotch and nipples, which seemed to almost demand more attention.

Stepping from the shower, she shut off the water and carefully dried off, biting her lip again at the pleasurable sensation created by dragging the softly 'rough' fabric of the towel over her engorged nipples. Naked - and the flush just beginning to fade from her face and body - she picked up her mug and padded back to the kitchen. Refilling the mug with more hot, bitter brew, she added a dollop of cream and generous amount of sugar, then commenced sipping at it as she padded off to the bedroom to see what clothes had been left behind by the body's owner - who would know more about what this body should be wearing than she did.

There was no doubt as to what 'Danny' had laid out for his old body to wear - and 'Dana' had to admit that, even in a new body, 'Danny' retained that certain flair for picking the right clothes for this body.

Carrying the stuff to the rumpled bed, she finished the coffee and set the mug aside to begin the task of dressing in a what that she'd never expected to dress.

It began with a pair of black pantyhose. It took her a couple of minutes of concentrated thought to dredge through her memory for the right way to put them on, as seen through the eyes of Hollywood and it's ilk. Drawing heavily on a certain scene in 'The Graduate', 'Dana' sat on the edge of the bed and carefully folded the left leg of the hose into a sort of compressed ball, then carefully slid the toes of her dainty new feet into it, sliding the nylons carefully up to about mid-shin, which left enough leeway to allow her to repeat the ball-and-step procedure with the right leg. She then drew the nylons carefully up her long, shapely legs to just past the knees, rising awkwardly to her feet to finish the procedure of getting them on. She then spent a couple of minutes carefully smoothing them into place.

Next, she pulled on the black lace panties trimmed with white that was left out for her. It felt decidedly odd to be pulling on the skimpy undergarment - but she also felt herself getting a sort of guilty thrill while she did so. She paused in her dressing to walk to the corner of the room and admire the look so far in a full-length mirror, marveling at the strange way air felt as it moved over hairless, nylon-clad legs.

Returning to the bed, 'Dana' next put on a matching black and white lace bra. It really wasn't needed for support - her firm, globular breasts seemed to defy gravity - but she got that same naughty thrill at the idea of putting the front-clasping garment on.

The actual act was even more thrilling - physically. Because the fabric cradled and enhanced her breasts, while putting a more than just slightly pleasurable pressure on her still-engorged nipples. She actually moaned softly as she figured out how to clasp the front, providing the pleasant 'cupping' sensation.

The next step was the skirt - a leather skirt that formed to her firm ass and full hips, hanging to just above the knees. Made of leather, it bore a black and white zebra pattern that continued the monochromatic scheme of the outfit left for her. She marveled at the way it hugged her firm ass, and thoroughly enjoyed the sensation of it sliding ever-so-slightly over her firm, panty-covered ass as she returned to the mirror for another admiring glance. Then she returned to the bed and put on the top that had been left for her - a spandex garment that was black with a white stripe running across the breast area. She struggled the garment into place, admiring the view of cleavage provided when she looked down.

Returning to the mirror, Dana struck a pose.

"Looking good, hot stuff." She said with a giggle. She didn't know why, but none of this was bothering her the way she would have expected it to - instead, she felt... almost energized. Incredibly perky and cheerful.

In fact - she was having a blast. This was the best she'd felt in ages, and she was almost giddy with delight. "You need a few finishing touches, though." She told the reflection in the mirror with another giggle.

Rummaging through the jewelry box on top of the dresser, she chose a pair of big silver hoop earrings to carefully insert into the thoughtfully pierced lobes that the body's previous owner had provided. A matching bracelet went on one arm, and a watch on the other.

Then she walked over to the make-up table. Seating herself, she stared at her face in the mirror, remembering how she'd learned the trick of walking with Dana's innate, sexy stride by not thinking about it...

...and let her mind go blank.

Twenty minutes later, she rose from the table, pausing only to smile at the perfectly made-up face that the mirror revealed.

Humming happily, she headed out to the kitchen and grabbed yet another coffee. The stuff she was used to drinking was the cheap store-brand - this stuff was much better, if made a little strong.

She headed out to the living room, her body quivering with good feelings and energy. She actually bounced a little bit as she walked, causing her tits to do interesting things in the confines of her clothing.

"I might just bounce away if I'm not careful..." She giggled to herself as she sat on the couch, one hand idle fondling her right tit through the two layers of cloth. Then her eyes fell on the small array of footwear near the door - and she literally squealed in delight.

"That's what I need to keep me anchored to the ground!" She laughed, rising - practically leaping - from the couch and jiggle/sway/bouncing over to grab a pair of black leather ankle boots with a four-inch-tall block heel. Taking them back to the couch, she quickly slid her feet into the leather boots and zipped them up, admiring the way they looked on her feet.

Unable to sit still - she seemed to be supercharged with energy - she went into the kitchen and tidied up, enjoying the sound, sensations and reflected sight of her new body moving about, especially in the boots. She felt absolutely fantastic, and more alive than she'd felt in ages.

Finishing in the kitchen, she practically dashed to the bathroom to tidy, her efforts at work hampered by the many, many breaks she took to admire her reflection, or touch herself in various places, reveling in the sensation of sliding her hand over the clothes, and the body underneath.

She was just finishing in the bathroom - and eyeing the dildo thoughtfully - when she heard the front door open, and 'Danny' call out. "Honey..." He called in a really, really bad Cuban accent. "...I'm home."

Practically leaping, 'Dana' hurried to the foyer, where 'Danny' had just finished putting down the bags...

...and without even thinking about it, wrapped her long, shapely arms over his shoulders and drew his mouth to hers for a long, deep, passionate kiss.

Startled, 'Danny' went stiff...

...then slowly began to loosen up...

...then suddenly realized what the flavor he was tasting in her mouth was...

...and pushed away from 'Dana'.

"Oh, shit!" He swore, smacking his forehead.

“What’s wrong?” ‘Dana’ asked, clasping her hands behind her back - which caused her chest to thrust out - and wiggling her torso innocently from side to side, enjoying the sensation.

“I didn’t even think about it! Dammit!” ‘Danny’ swore - then looked at Dana and sighed. Gently, he led her to the couch and had her sit. “Um... do you notice anything... odd about the way you’re behaving?”

Dana’s face wore a rather vapid smile. Slowly, it faded to a look of puzzlement...

...then realization...

...the shock.

“Holy shit!” She blurted, gaping down at herself. “What the hell have I been doing? What the hell was I thinking!”

Danny gripped her shoulders, drawing her eyes to his. “Take it easy - this isn’t your fault.” He told her. “I just wasn’t thinking - it was pure habit. See, I always make coffee for my guests - but never drink it myself, as my body has a... reaction to caffeine. Only - I kind of didn’t think this morning. I skipped the coffee - as always - when it would have been perfectly safe for me, but made some for you - without...” He bit his lips. “Well - to make a long story short - you’re stoned.”

“What?”

“Well - that’s fairly accurate.” Danny said. “For the next few hours, you’re going to be almost hyperactive - lots and lots of energy.” He began to blush. “Almost all of it... uh... sexual in nature. See - your hormones are running wild right now. That’s also interfering with your thoughts. You are having a hard time concentrating, or thinking in a linear fashion. There isn’t really a past or future while you’re like this - just a now. And you’re kinda... focusing on what feels good in the here-and-now, without any of the ‘baggage’ of past upbringing, taught morals or responses, or future consequences. Just... whatever you’d like, completely uninhibited.” He was blushing a furious red now - and was matched by Dana, hue for hue. “Uh... if you try real hard, you can think coherently - but that doesn’t change your... hormonal responses.”

“Oh... Boy...” Dana whispered, stunned - yet still giddy, somehow - at the implications. “What... what did you do when you had this happen to you in the past?”

Danny’s blush - if possible - grew deeper. “I, uh... I enjoyed it.” “What?”

Danny nodded. “Sometimes, a lack of inhibitions allow you to... just go wild. Do the things you want to do at any given time. It’s kind of wild. Definitely not an everyday thing... but definitely ‘fun’, once in a while. Kind of like getting drunk.”

Dana gaped at Danny - but in her current condition, her mind had started to run rampant and couldn’t be brought under control. With the mere mention of the idea, ideas of things she could try began to stream through her mind - things she’d never even consider, normally - but now looked very, very tempting emotionally, despite the intellectual knowledge that she wouldn’t normally consider doing them. She was capable of thinking about the reasons not to do any of them - but she couldn’t bring any emotions to match them,.

Instead, all her emotions ran the other way.

Her mind was saying 'no way', while her body screamed 'go for it!'

"well..." She said, trying to work out the conflicting urges of mind and body. "I almost never go out - went out, I mean - when I was in that body - but the same inhibitions don't apply in any case. Why don't we go see a movie or something." She paused. "Not a movie - I couldn't sit still for that long. But let's go out somewhere."

Danny looked doubtful, but agreed. "Okay - I know from experience that if you just try to sit around, you'd burst. C'mon - let's see what the city has to offer."

Dana found herself shimmering with excitement as they quickly stashed the groceries and headed out, despite the warning bells going off in her head. She just couldn't help herself - she was giddy and excited and absolutely ecstatic for no good reason.

However, she gained a reason when she hit the street - and for the first time in her life that she could remember, didn't feel an overwhelming, debilitating surge of fear.

"So - what should we do?" Danny asked.

"Why not just wander around the shopping district?" Dana suggested. "it's only a couple of blocks away." Danny agreed - again, somewhat hesitantly - and they set out.

For no particular reason, Dana took his hand and leaned against him as they walked, finding that the sensation of his warm body against her was very, very exciting and pleasurable - as was the way her body felt as she walked and moved. She could never have believed that just walking could feel so good - but every step she took caused tiny jolts of pleasure to run up and down her body, and she found that warm feeling in her lower abdomen growing as they wandered over to the three-block strip of shops, restaurants and sidewalk vendors.

They didn't stroll - Dana was too 'hyped up' for that> instead, she flitted from window to window, from booth to booth, practically dragging Danny along behind her, finding all sorts of things that would never have interested the male version of her now catching her eye sharply> She chatted nearly non-stop, enthusiastic and excited over the smallest things, and her face seemed locked in a permanent smile as she unknowing kept touching, hugging and squeezing the bemused new man she hauled about. She even slipped all sorts of inadvertently revealing comments into her dialog, her current state making her completely unaware of what she was saying as she babbled on.

For instance:

"God, look at those jeans - could you imagine you in a pair like that? I'd never wear a pair like that if I were you..." she dropped her voice, "...and I was..." then raised it again "...although it'd make your ass look great. I never realized what a cute ass that is - It's just so damned... cute!" And, without even paying attention, she ran her hands over Danny's ass, finding the sensation completely pleasurable

- especially since he hesitantly returned the favor.

After a bit, they were passing a store when something caught her eye so sharply that she stood stock still and gaped.

"I just have to get those!" She said, bouncing on her toes. "Wait here!" She dashed into the store, leaving a bemused man on the sidewalk.

What she 'just had to have' was a pair of knee-high leather boots in a zebra pattern that matched her skirt. Boots with a six-inch-high pair of stiletto heels. When she walked out of the store, it was with a sexy sway as she balanced atop the boots, a wide grin on her face.

"Nice..." Was Danny's awkward comment - but he was commenting on more than just the boots. Because, while in a corner of the store, she'd also taken the opportunity to remove her bra, and now her huge, engorged nipples were clearly outlined in the spandex fabric.

"I feel deliciously naughty - like a hooker or a slut." Dana revealed in a low voice with a giggle. "I know I should feel so happy about this, and I know that I should feel disgusted and dirty - but I don't! I think that - but I feel fantastic!"

She stopped dead, an odd look coming over her face as something occurred to her. Grabbing Danny's hand, she glanced around theatrically - then dragged the protesting man into a dark alley between two shops.

"What are you doing?" Danny demanded.

"Playing the part." Dana said with a grin. She dropped to her knees and - before Danny could react - yanked down his sweat pants and underwear, exposing the huge, thick hard on that he'd been trying to hide with a shopping bag.

"I saw you getting hard a while ago..." Dana said, huskily, staring at the erection with a fascinated look. "I'm so envious - do you know I couldn't have a true erection when I was in that body - and here you are, sporting one that just won't go away. It's a fantasy of mine come true."

Then she smiled naughtily. "And here's another secret fantasy of mine that my body's going to have made real..."

"Wait...!" Danny tried to protest - but it was no good, as Dana leaned forward, her hands wrapping around the warm, throbbing base of the shaft as her gloss-red lips closed over the head.

Danny opened his mouth - then groaned lightly at the pleasure and closed his eyes, leaning back against the wall as Dana began to suck on his hard, ready cock.

Dana, on the other hand, wasn't so 'eager' as she seemed. Her body was ripe and ready, providing all the energy and push needed to perform the rather inexperienced but enthusiastic blow-job she was performing - but her mind was reeling at the action, shouting futilely at her body to stop, that this was wrong, sick, disgusting...

...and really really fun. No - it couldn't be! She was a guy... with the body of a gorgeous woman! Sucking a man's cock - her old body's cock. Giving it the blow-job it had always wanted. And loving it...

Mind reeling from conflicting thoughts and emotions, she was lost in the moment, eagerly pumping her right hand up and down the spit- coated shaft while her tongue slid and danced over the head as she bobbed her lips back and forth in time with her hand. It didn't take long at all before Danny grunted, and a spray of warm, salty cum gushed from the tip of the organ, flooding her mouth. Instinctively, Dana found herself gulping the warm goo down, finding the flavor mildly pleasant if salty, physically, while being absolutely disgusted by the action, intellectually...

...yet, still somehow turned on by it, mentally. It was a sexual act that - despite the society and mad-woman induced taboo, was actually rather pleasant to perform.

Licking Danny's cock clean, Dana stood and let him rearrange his clothes, flushing furiously. She, herself, seemed utterly composed as she licked her lips clean.

"I.. I shouldn't have let you do that..." Danny mumbled, embraced.

"Why not?" Dana asked, not knowing what words were going to come from her mouth until they spilled out. "I've watched you all these months - you haven't gotten any - in any body - since I first saw you."

Danny blinked, then glanced away.

"Hey - let's go back to the apartment and fuck like crazed weasels!" Dana suggested suddenly, simultaneously disgusted and aroused at the suggestion as it jumped from her lips.

"What?"

"Neither of us has gotten any for far too long - let's make up for lost time!" Dana said with a big, vapid grin. Grabbing the mildly protesting Danny's hand, she began to drag him back towards the apartment, blatantly coming on to him by placing that hand on her tit while her other hand caressed his crotch, causing his cock to once more begin to harden.

By the time they reached the apartment, Danny was making token protests only - he was obviously aroused, and 'eager' in a guilty sort of way.

They'd barely gotten through the door when Dana was all over him, running her hands up and down as she pressed her firm new tits against his chest and kissed him passionately. She managed to remain in basically the same position as she dragged him into the bedroom, her lips and eager tongue cutting off any protest he might have made.

Once in the bedroom, she frantically tore at his clothing - and he slowly began to respond. He couldn't really help himself - despite the oddity of the situation, his body was responding to her passion, and he was unwillingly turned on by her as they stripped each other and collapsed to the rumpled surface of the bed.

"Fuck me, fuck me, fuck me, fuck me!" She chanted with a giggle. "You know what this body likes - now fuck my brains out!" "I..." Danny tried one last time to get control of the situation.

"Do it!" Dana commanded giddily - and the last of Danny's will crumbled.

Guiding her to position herself on hands and knees on the bed, he slid his hands over the luscious body that until so recently was his own. His mouth seemed dry while his body seemed to be sweating, and his body's pulse thundered through him, causing his hard, eager cock to throb. Not really thinking anymore, he responded to the signals of the body he was in, positioning himself behind her...

...and ramming his cock into her hot, wet pussy to the hilt.

Dana screamed in pleasure as he filled her to the limit, not felling the glasses as the dropped from his face and onto her back, then bouncing off the bed. All she could feel was pleasure as he entered her, leaning forward to bury his manhood in her cunt, his hands reaching around to fondle her tits.

He leaned back and placed his hands on her full, firm ass, mind whirling at what he was doing - and how good he felt. He began to drive into her cunt in a simple, urgent rhythm, and she moaned in pleasure and began to rock back and forth in an erotic counterpoint.

"This... is... muuuch... better... then... the ...dildo..." She gasped out, eyes closed as pleasure sparked through her body. She felt only pleasure as he continued to drive into her, and her moans rapidly built in intensity as the ecstasy within grew and grew.

"Oh God... Oh God..." Danny moaned, overwhelmed at the sensation he was feeling - the blowjob had been something, but this was something else.

His face screwed up in an odd expression, Danny continued to drive into the writhing, moaning mass of womanhood that was Dana, the bodies taking over from the confused and dislocated minds. There was no way they could stop themselves, not this close to orgasm - and at this point they no longer cared. It just felt too good for 'petty' concerns to interfere.

Danny came first, shooting a smaller load of cum into the cunt that had been his - but, gritting his teeth, he continued to pound away with a slowly softening cock.

Dana felt the sensation of Danny cumming in her cunt - but didn't respond in any coherent way as she continued to moan and gasp as he pounded away. It was a race - a race which 'she' won.

She screamed as the orgasm hit like an explosion, followed quickly by another, weaker one that trailed off into that golden glow. Gasping< Danny pulled his softening cock out of his old body, shame fighting against the remembered pleasure of what he'd just done.

"Oh, God..." he whispered.

Dana didn't give him time to consider what had just happened.

"More..." She growled hungrily, startling Danny. Before he could make a token protest, she had his juice-slicked cock in her mouth, and began to work him slowly towards erection. All words of protest were lost as her tongue worked over his highly sensitized head, slowly bringing the organ back to stiffness.

Pushing him, she 'forced' him onto his back, and with a gleeful and mindless expression of utter lust on her face, mounted herself on his cock and began to flex her gorgeous legs, driving herself up and down on the cock that she'd used to possess....

* * * * *

Dana groaned softly and opened her eyes, blinking up at the ceiling and wondering why she felt both stiff and utterly satisfied...

then memory came flooding back, and she sat bolt upright. She stared down at her body, revealed by the morning sun that streamed in through the window. Dried sweat and cum covered her tits from the last sexual act she'd forced out of Danny's 'abused' cock the afternoon before - her third tit-fuck.

The 'abused' person in question was already awake, looking at the bed, unable to meet Dana's eyes. "I... I'm sorry " Was the first words out of his mouth.

"What?" Dana said, startled by the emotion-wrenching tone in his voice. "What are you sorry for?"

"I'm sorry for taking advantage of you. I'm sorry for letting myself give in." He said in a toneless litany of 'sins'. "I'm sorry that we fucked each other into exhaustion and fell asleep, missing the midnight chance. And. I'm sorry for enjoying it so much."

Dana gaped at her old body, stunned. "Huh?"

Danny still didn't meet the eyes of his old body. "I... I never told you this, but I didn't... didn't have sex very often. Last night was the first time in a long, long time."

"You're kidding!" Dana said, amazed.

"No." Danny said. "With that body... well, guys kept seeing me as a sex object. So, I wouldn't sleep with a guy until I was sure that he was interested in more than just my body - but long before I would be sure, they'd stop dating me because I was a tease - sexy and dressing to show it, but not putting out. I... I enjoyed yesterday. A lot - the attention, the... excitement. The sex."

Blushing, Dana grinned. "Yeah - me too."

Danny blinked and looked up. "Yeah - well, it wasn't like you had a choice. "

Dana shook her head. "No, no - I'm. 'clean and sober' this morning - and I still enjoy what we did yesterday. I mean - not just the sex, but going out in public. Feeling comfortable - being with another person. Even without the coffee, I would have enjoyed yesterday, just because I could have spent it with you - no matter what body you're in." She paused. "To tell you the truth - I enjoy being in your body. It's... fun. And exciting."

Danny looked at her in disbelief. "Really?" Then he blushed. "Well - I kind of like being in your body, too. It's. nice not to have to live up to the image of a gorgeous woman. I can relax more, not be so. so suspicious, I guess.”

Dana looked thoughtful. “You know... maybe this can work out. I mean - work out really great.”

Danny looked at her - then began to grin shyly. “Are you considering what I think you are - a sort of ‘time sharing’ of our bodies?” Dana nodded. “You’d have to take a week off work, fill me in with the day-to-day stuff I’d need to ‘play’ being you... but it could work.” Danny nodded slowly. “Especially if I.. ‘you’ ...” His grinned wryly. “Dana had an accident - causing minor amnesia...”

“Yeah - and meanwhile, while I’m in the male body, you can help me get over my phobias, so that we can both enjoy either body we happen to be in.”

Danny looked thoughtful. “Do you... do you really think we could? Live together, sharing bodies, sometimes being one, sometimes the other?”

Dana laughed. “Tell you what. Let’s discuss it... over a cup of coffee...”

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: When a California surf bum decides to blackmail a Department of Defense contracting company, he gets caught and is used as a test subject to create a "fantasy woman."

Tit For Tat

By Gunslinger

12:07

Jake looked away from the dashboard clock, lower lip between his teeth as his hands gripped and released the steering wheel rhythmically. Though his fire-engine-red IROC Z-28 was air-conditioned, he was still sweating... but it wasn't from the heat.

It was because he was scared shitless that he'd overlooked something.

"Shit..." Jake swore to himself, wiping one hand across his forehead. A broad-shouldered, almost offensively handsome young man, Jake looked like the quintessential California 'surf bum' - tall, tanned, tautly muscled, with blonde hair faded almost white by the sun. Usually, he was as causally laid-back as you could want... but now he was practically shaking with nervous fear as he wondered if he dared go through with it.

On the other hand... it was too late to back out now. He dumped the last of his money into this, seeing the dollar signs floating in front of his eyes. Trading his last few thousand for the chance at millions had seemed like a very good idea at the time.

Assuming, of course, that he survived to spend it. That was the one 'little' catch in this whole scheme.

The whole thing had started a little over a week ago. Jake worked - or had worked - part-time as a courier. The rest of the time he 'hung out'... and sometimes supplemented his income when a piece of somewhat-valuable-but-not-bulky personal property was laying around without being adequately attended. Jake hadn't really considered steeling the odd radio, wallet, or purse a crime, really - he was teaching the unwary citizen a lesson that he was sure they'd remember, and be more careful in the future, that was all.

So, life had been pretty good... when he'd found the file.

He'd picked it up from one of the Defense-contracted agencies that were fairly common in California. He wasn't insured or bonded, so he didn't get any of the 'secret' stuff, he just handle the mundane day-to-day deliveries for the company...

..except that somebody in the facility had made a huge mistake. Jake had a 'camping' kettle he kept in his car, one that plugged into the lighter... and he occasionally used it to open a envelope that looked like it might have something interesting in it. When he'd opened this envelope, he'd found himself staring at a file marked 'To Be Shredded'.

Obviously, somebody had goofed, shipping rather than shredding. Opening the file, Jake had quickly realized that the information inside was way beyond him. He couldn't follow all the complex chemical and medical terms.. but he could read some of the summaries, which contained such phrases as '...must not be disseminated outside the company under any circumstances...' and '...results are outside the permitted DOD boundaries...'

Jake didn't have a clue what the information in the file said... but he knew what it meant. This was valuable information. Very valuable, indeed.

He'd finished the other deliveries quickly, then called in sick and went home. There was no telling how long it would be before they realized what had happened, and he needed to get everything 'just right' before he could cash in on what he held.

His first fear had been the fear of the police. Then he'd realized that it could be worse, much worse. He'd watched enough movies to realize that killing him would be a good way to shut him up - so, he needed to make sure that he was indispensable to the company. He had to find a way to insure that they wouldn't do anything to him... while still making it important enough to pay him.

So, that's where the last of his money had come in. Contacting some acquaintances of his that were a little more 'shady' than him, he'd arranged a series of dead-drops. Then, after photocopying the first two pages of the report, he'd separated the file into four separate sections, and left a section at each of the dead-drops - along with some cash, and some instructions.

Those four sections of the file would be held by people he didn't know and had never met. If Jake didn't send each of them a certain 'code' each week, then the sections of the file would be copied and mailed to the press, the FBI and a couple of 'radical' groups, making sure that the information would be spread.

Then Jake had sent the photocopied pages to the company - as well as instructions to leave his first payment, $25,000, in locker 1543- A at the LAX terminal, today at noon. If they kept paying him, he'd keep sending the code-words, and the file would remain secret.

If anything happened to him... the file would be released. There was no code-word for Jake to get the file back, so they couldn't force him to give it to them. He didn't know who had the sections of the files, so they couldn't force that out of him, either. They couldn't even force the weekly 'code word' from him... since he wasn't necessarily the one who gave the code-word.

That was the part of the plan that had bothered him the most, and he had finally found the perfect solution. The code each week changed, based on a series of things Jake had worked out. Each of the four would set up the code - and based on the four sections, Jake would know what signal to leave to say 'everything is fine'. It was based on Jake's knowledge, and there was no way that Jake could no ahead of time what the correct code would be.

If he was right, all this careful planning would ensure that they had no choice but to do what he demanded.

He just hoped he was right.

Taking a deep breath, Jake shut off his car and climbed out. Taking a deep breath, he wiped his sweaty palms on the torn cut-off jean shorts he wore, and headed towards the terminal.

* * * * *

In a dark, late-model mini-van with tinted windows parked two rows over, a pair of dark eyes watched as Jake headed for the terminal. Lifting an encrypted radio to his lips, that dark-haired man pushed the transmit button.

"Bravo, target is entering... now."

Not waiting for a response - which wasn't coming - the man lower the radio and looked over his shoulder at the man sitting behind him. "Go."

The man, who was tall and blonde and tanned, not to mention dressed in the same clothes as Jake, nodded. Though not a dead ringer, he was close enough to fool even somebody who knew Jake well from only a few feet away.

Sliding open the door of the van, the doppelganger walked casually toward the bright red sports car, not acting the least bit suspicious as he walked right up to the car, using a duplicate key obtained through back channels at Chevrolet to open the door and slide into the car. A second later, the engine roared to life, and the man pulled out of the spot and headed out of the lot.

Even as the car sped out of the lot, another IROC Z-28 pulled into the lot, passing Jake's car as it headed for the just-vacated spot. The somewhat different Z-28 pulled into the spot and it's engine died, it's driver climbing out and locking the door before hurrying over to the waiting van, which was already backing out of the slot.

Opening the sliding door of the slowly moving vehicle, the driver hopped into the van, and it accelerated, heading out of the lot.

* * * * *

Entering the terminal, Jake paused for a minute to let his eyes adjust from the glaring light outside to the more reasonable lighting inside. Having been there already, Jake knew where the locker was and he headed towards it, threading his way through the crowd. As he did so, he cursed himself for not having realized he should have picked a better time than high noon - the terminal was packed.

Turning a corner, he banged right into a little old lady just coming around the corner from the other direction. She was so short that Jake's peripheral vision hadn't registered her, and she seemed older than God - Jake imagined he could hear her hip breaking as she hit the ground... so he grabbed her and held her steady until she had her balance.

"Sorry about that." Jake apologized, quickly.

"No, no, my dear - that was all my fault, dearie..." The lady said in a British accent, grinning kindly. "So busy gawking everywhere I didn't watch where I was going..."

"Well, if you're all right..." Jake said, and when she assured him she was, he continued on his way.

* * * * *

'Bravo' watched Jake head off towards the bank of lockers. Slipping his wallet and keys into her purse, she also pushed the button on a small device that sent a short burst of radio static on a specific frequency.

Glancing around one last time, she hurried with surprising agility towards the exit.

* * * * *

Jake glanced around nervously, wondering if he was being watched. With the throng of people moving through the terminal, there was no way to tell if anybody was watching specifically him.

As he slipped the key into the locker, he felt the perspiration dripping into his eyes, and realized his faded pink 'muscle' shirt was soaked through front and back. With all the anxiety he was experiencing, he thought wryly to himself that they wouldn't have to kill him - any minute now he was going to have a heart attack from pure stress...

Opening the locker, he stared at the black gym bag that sat inside. Glancing around nervously once more, he shielded the opening of the locker with his body and opened the zipper on the bag a short distance.

Through the opening, he saw what certainly appeared to be money - dozens of crumpled bills, in just that small opening. Carefully, he extracted a couple and looked them over.

Two twenties, and a hundred. They certainly looked authentic, and the two twenties didn't seem to be anywhere close in serial number. From all the movies, Jake had been moved to ask for used, non-consecutively-numbered bills, though he wasn't sure what good it would do him. It couldn't hurt, though...

Zippering the bag closed, he slipped it out of the locker and slung it over his shoulder...

...and cursed as he felt something prick his bare shoulder. Slipping the bag off, he flipped the strap over...

...and stared in horror at the needle that was projecting from the strap on the bag, a drop of blood - his blood - hanging from the tip. When he'd slung the bag over his shoulder, the weight of the bag had worked the plunger, injecting him with... whatever had been in the needle.

"Oh... Shit!" Jake said, eyes widening in horror as he waited to feel his heart clench in the death-grip of what would surely turn out to be some high-tech, undetectable drug...

Nothing happened. At least, not immediately - Death didn't seem inclined to reach out and grab him where he stood.

His heart was beating thunderously, but it had nothing to do with whatever had been injected in him - it was adrenaline, thundering through his body at whatever was happening, whatever plan they'd come up with. Perhaps something was about to happen... or perhaps something had gone wrong. Jake just didn't know - but standing here, waiting to keel over dead, wasn't going to do any good.

Wrapping the 'safe' part of the shoulder-strap around his hand to let him carry it without it dragging on the ground, Jake hefted the bag and hurried toward the front door, wondering if he was just going to fall down dead any second now...

He was halfway to the doors when whatever he'd been injected with began to take effect. It started with a sudden wave of dizziness that made him stagger to a stop, leaning against a pillar for support while his vision wavered. Then the dizzy spell passed, leaving him feeling light-headed and oddly disconnected. Jake blinked and looked around, trying (and failing) to get his eyes to focus properly.

All the sounds in the terminal seemed to have gotten louder, more crisply defined... yet hard to sort out, a jumble of sharp impressions that wouldn't form a coherent whole. The same thing seemed to have happened to his sight: The colors seemed brighter and sharper, the angles and lines of the terminal starker and better defined. The crowd seemed to have sped up, moving incredibly fast, darting like hummingbirds through the terminal.. but whenever he focused on any given individual, the person seemed to have slowed to a crawl, barely moving.

"What the.. hell..?" Jake said, shaking his head as he tried to get his brain to work properly. Turning, he stared at the doors to the terminal, which had seemed fairly close just a moment before but now seemed miles away.

With intense concentration, Jake began to make his way towards the door, trying to avoid slamming into any of the blazing fast/terribly slow people crowding the terminal.

The trip to the doors seemed to take an eternity. Every time he blinked, it seemed to take forever for Jake to get his eyes to focus on the doors again, his attention wanting to wander everywhere. The bag seemed terribly heavy, and he had to keep reminding himself not to drop it, or put it on his shoulder...

"Hey, buddy... are you okay?" A voice nearby said, the words crystal-clear but the meaning of them oddly vague. "Buddy? Hey, buddy!"

Slowly it registered on Jake that somebody was speaking to him, and he stopped dead and forced his head to turn towards the guy standing nearby.

"Huh?" Jake asked, looking at the man. Was the guy looking at him oddly? Grinning slightly, maybe, like he knew what was going on...?

"I asked if you're okay... you look awful, man!" The guys aid. About Jake's height, he was skinnier, though layered in ropy muscles. He too wore cut-off jean shorts, but his were longer - nearly to the knees - and he wore a incredibly bright tie-die T-shirt that Jake was having a really hard time dragging his eyes off of. The guy's hair was longer and sort of greasy, pulled back from his face by a head- band that was a faded red color.

"I, uh... I'm not feeling well..." Jake said, trying to get the words to come out clearly and distinctly.

The other guy looked Jake up and down, slowly - then grinned and leaned forward slightly.

"Bullshit, man - you're feeling too good." He chuckled, knowingly. "Newbie, huh? You learn real quick to avoid places like this for tokin' up."

Jake just blinked uncomprehendingly at the guy for several seconds, before he realized the guy thought he was stoned...

Well - he was, wasn't he? Jake rarely drank, and had never done drugs in his life - he liked to feel 'in control'. Now, he realized that he was, indeed, well and truly stoned. He grinned at the thought, not realizing how silly looking it made him look.

"Look, buddy..." The long-haired brunet said, still in a low voice. "Tell me you ain't driving like this."

Jake blinked... and realized that getting behind the wheel like this would get him killed. He was having trouble just walking. "Uh, well, I... My car's in the lot, and..." Jake said, duly.

"Geez, man - you're wasted." The guy said, looking around. "C'mon, you're starting to attract attention. Let's get you out of here."

The guy started heading towards the doors, not walking to fast and breaking a path for Jake to follow. Jake realized the guy was probably a 'pot head', a 'stoner', the type of guy Jake didn't usually like hanging out with because they were so... well, dopey. But this was one field that a stoner would have expertise in, and Jake realized that the best thing he could do was just put himself in this guy's hands until he was safely home.

They reached the door and walked out into the bright sunlight - which caused Jake to wince in pain.

"Here, man..." The guy said, handing Jake a pair of small, round sunglasses. Jake took them and put them on gratefully.

"If you're gonna smoke up, buy yourself a pair and keep them." The guy said in a low voice. "Red-eye's a dead giveaway." Jake blinked behind the glasses.

"Red Eye?"

"Yeah, man - your eyes are so red it looks like you been awake two weeks straight." The guy grinned. "By the way - I'm Gary." "Uh... Jake." Jake replied.

"So where's your car, Jake?" Gary asked. "I think you need a lift home, so I might as well drive. It's not safe to leave your car parked here any longer then necessary."

"It's under the lamppost over there..." Jake said, pointing. "The Z-28."

"Okay - let's go." Gary said, leading off and making sure Jake didn't get run over by a car. They reached the lamppost Jake had parked under, and there was a IROC in the spot... but...

"Hey, this isn't my car..." Jake said, stopping and staring stupidly at the vehicle in his spot. It was an IROC Z-28, but it wasn't his. His was bright red with black interior - this one was a hot-pink, and it's interior wasn't just white, but fuzzy.

Gary looked over at him. "Well, it's a '28, parked where you said you parked. I think you might be seeing things that aren't there, buddy. You're really wasted."

"But... That's not my car..." Jake protested.

"Well, there's one sure way to find out." Gary grinned. "Gimme your keys."

Digging into his pocket, Jake extracted the set of keys that were there. Gary slid one of them into the lock of the door, turned it... and the door opened. Gary slid behind the wheel and started the car.

"Well, if it's not your car, what were its keys doing in your pocket?" Gary asked, grinning. "Come on, hop in - I'll drive you home." "But... My car's not..." Jake tried again... then shook his head. "I.. I guess I really am 'wasted'..."

Walking around to the other side of the car, Jake slid into the passenger's seat and dropped the bag between his feet as he pulled the door shut and set about the now incredibly complex task of doing up the seat belt. Gary put the car into gear and pulled away.

Jake watched the scenery slid past the car, and found it more the hypnotic - he found it exhausting. His eyes wanted to slide closed, and he had to fight to keep them open, his mind becoming less and less coherent as thoughts seemed to fragment and slide away.

"Geez, man - don't fight it." Gary suggested. "If you're coming down, just nod off."

"Yeah, okay..." Jake mumbled, slipping deeper into the darkness. He fell deeply asleep, slumping against the car's door.

Gary waited a couple of minutes to make sure that the drug had knocked Jake out completely - then slid across three lanes of traffic and onto an off-ramp, pointing the hood of the car towards the lab.

* * * * *

"So... this is our would-be blackmailer...?" Dr. Elizabeth Abernathy asked with a tight grin as she smiled tightly at the naked, sleeping body of Jake laying on the surgical table in her lab.

"That's right, Liz." Roger Corbert, the nominal head of the project, agreed. He was the Administrative head, knowing only the basics of the science and medicine involved - however, he was quite agreeable to the DOD to be the administrator and keeper of the 'purse- strings', so he was the titular head of Project Eve. However, he was smart enough not to try and run slipshod over Abernathy - he knew that she was the real genius behind the project, and he was just a figure-head. "Will he do?"

Liz grinned. "Roger, we couldn't have found a better test-subject if we'd tried. Fate just dropped him in our laps." She cocked her head to the side, thin lips pursing in momentary worry. "Are you sure the file was completely destroyed?"

Roger nodded. "Jake had no way of knowing that the file was on 'safety paper'. Unless it's put through a special type of light every forty- eight hours, the paper self-destructs. There's no way for us to get caught on it."

Liz's grin resurfaced. "Okay - all that leaves is for us to decide what our subject should look and act like, so we can tailor the serum for it's first field test. I've been running some computer projections, and was thinking..."

Roger did something he almost never did - he interrupted. "Wait, wait... I think I've got something for you..." Reaching into a pocket, he extracted a piece of folded paper and handed it over.

"I had a questionnaire distributed to all male employees, then used a computer to average out the results. This is a composite of the 'fantasy woman' of the men in the project."

Liz's slender eyebrow went up as she opened the paper and read what was on it... then she began to grin.

"Yes... Yes, I think this will do nicely..." Elizabeth Abernathy, Ph.D., MD, BA, B.Sc., GE, said... then she did something she hadn't done in years.

She giggled like a school-girl, the sound swelling into a full-bodied laugh that Roger's baritone chuckle served to counter-point...

* * * * *

The monotonous 'bu-beep, bu-beep, bu-beep...' of an alarm-clock echoed through the room.

The sound finally seemed to penetrated the haze of sleep surrounding the figure entangled in the covers on the bed. As layer after layer of nightmare that had caused thrashing all through the night faded away in the face of that repetitive electronic chime, the figure on the bed slowly sat up and fumbled around, finally managing to find the alarm's 'off' button.

Still not fully awake by any stretch of the imagination, the figure mumbled and stretched, then pushed off the bed. With a weary stagger, the room's occupant headed for the door, tripping over clothes scattered on the floor and bumping into furniture before making the doorway and turning left...

...to bump sleepily into a blank wall. For a second, the person merely leaned against the wall, then straightened and finally did a full turn, finding the door to the bathroom on the other side of the hall. Staggering into the small, dingy room, the person flipped on the light, squinting in the bright glare, and made it's way to the toilet. Lifting up the lid and the seat, the person's hand slid down to it's naked crotch...

For a second, the individual in front of the toilet simply slid a hand across it's crotch, searching and not finding... and then the person's eyes widened in sudden, sharp clarity...

...and she screamed...

"My god...!" She screamed, hearing the high-pitched voice echo through her own ears as she staggered away from the toilet in horror. "Where's my cock! It's gone... and I've got a pussy!"

Her hands flew upwards, meeting the fleshy mounds that rode on her chest, their weight and bounce significant, but somehow ignored until now. "And tits! Big, round tits! Holy fucking shit... I'm a chick!"

She staggered back into the wall, slamming against it with her full, taut ass... and starred in horror at the mirror above the sink, reflecting her image back at herself.

The reflection in the mirror showed a woman. A woman with a horrified expression on her face, dark eyes open as wide as they would go, her arched eyebrows attempting to vanish into the massive sleep-mussed mane of curly hair so red as to be obviously died, right down to the brown roots. Her full lips were opened wide in shock, the slack-jaw look casting her slightly too-square jaw and usually rather indefinite cheek-bones into sharp relief.

Her naked body was bathed in the light of the florescent fixture, looking too-pale in the garish light and showing the smooth skin of her body in high contrast, making her almost too-lush body seem even more smoothly undefined. From her wide hips and full ass to her large, obviously surgically-enhanced DDD-cup tits, her body was full, but only middlin' firm, with a waist that could have been trimmer and legs that were nice, but lacked enough toned definition to make them spectacular.

The red-headed woman of average height who gaped back from the mirror looked. Cheap. Slutty. Sleazy. Sexy, in a 'I got implants and died my hair and I'm not fat so I'm sexy' way. Like...

Like trailer trash, which was a mental association spurred by her sudden realization that she was, in fact, in a large trailer.

"What the fuck. ?" She cursed, her swimming, spinning mind knocked further askew as she realized she had no idea where she was.

She'd never seen this bathroom - or this trailer - in her life, much less the bed she'd awoken into.

"What's happening to me!" She demanded of the universe, a otherwise average contralto turned into a teeth-jarring screech by shock and horror as she staggered out of the bathroom, now all-to-aware of the way her tits jiggled and bounced with unnatural firmness, the way her wide child-bearing hips swiveled and swayed with the motion of her legs, the way her long, curly mass of hair moved across her somewhat too-broad shoulders as she staggered mindlessly around the unfamiliar surroundings. This wasn't her home, or her body.

She wasn't this woman, she was...

She was...

The woman stopped dead in the middle of the 'kitchen/living-/dining-room', caught in mid-motion by the horrific realization that she couldn't remember who she really was. Her mind refused to yield the information.

She knew she'd been male, and that she'd lived somewhere else. but she couldn't picture her old, male body in her mind's eye, nor the house that she should have been in. Neither would the address of that house, nor the name that went with the body come into mental focus.

When she tried to think of 'his' name, something popped immediately into her head - 'Randi Foremen'. Like the address that came immediately to mind - 'Lot 12, Sunset Terrace Trailer Park, Rt. 12' - it was the one that related to this female body she found herself in.

"I'm not a woman..." She muttered in a shocked monotone, slumping onto the cheap built-in couch of the trailer... but whether or not she'd been born female, she was most definitely a woman now, and her denial was weak and self-defeating.

The last thing she clearly remembered was the airport, and following a guy out to her car....

Car. Her car. Stumbling up from the couch, she went to the window and stared out at the hot-pink Z-28 that sat in the gravel driveway of 'her' trailer. Though the alarm-clock had gone off and awoken her, twilight was just descending, casting everything in long, poorly- defined shadows. but she clearly remembered the car in the driveway as being hers.

She remembered giving her keys to the guy to unlock the door. Though she couldn't remember what she'd looked like, she was getting somewhere - because that was her car. Whatever was going on, whenever she'd changed into this woman, she recalled part of her former life. It was a slender thread, but it was a start.

"The airport..." She muttered to herself. "I.. I have to get out there. Maybe when I'm there I'll. I'll jog my memory. Find the guy. Figure out what.. what happened to me. "

She started to reach for the doorknob. then realized that she was stark naked.

"Clothes... I need to get dressed. " Randi told herself, turning away from the door and hurrying into the bedroom, looking at the clothes

scattered over the floor. However she'd become this 'Randi', she was obviously a slob. Hell - maybe the man she'd been was a slob too - she just couldn't remember.

Quickly she began to grab clothes, not caring what they were as long as they would fit.

With a distasteful grimace, Randi pulled on a pair of hot-pink briefs that were most definitely feminine in nature, fitting all-to-well around her wide hips and firm ass. and sitting to snugly across her flat, feminine new crotch, reminding her of her missing manhood.

Ignoring it as best she could, Randi picked up a pair of bright red jeans and started to pull them on. then stopped as they started to bind across her outer thighs. Cursing and swearing, she lay down on the bed, arching her back as she struggled and fought, finally getting the jeans on, the skin-tight denim pulling and pushing her body into a semblance of firm womanhood, making her ass look incredible while hiding the lack of toning in her legs.

She grabbed the silver-sequin covered silver spandex tube-top and quickly slid it over her head and jostled it into place over her milky, too-round tits, pulling the elastic band at the bottom so that it sat on her ribcage under her tits. It left a lot of tit-flesh and cleavage visible at the top, but that was no big deal - she just had to cover her tits to go out, and the top did that. barely.

She looked around for some shoes, and found a pair of blue sneakers, worn with use and age but looking as comfortable as could be.

"Damn... wrong color..." Randi swore in annoyance, throwing them aside as she dug around. Finally she found a pair of shoes that would look all-right - silver-toned 'strappy' uppers on a clear plastic sole and heel. Sitting on the bed, she quickly strapped them on.

Rising, she found the extra height was an added bonus. She was almost ready to go out to the airport... she just had to finish getting ready.

Without even noticing the easy, over-exaggerated sway she used, Randi ankled her way to the bathroom atop the nine-inch heels of the platform shoes, balancing without thought atop them as she quickly brushed her hair out... and put on a gloss, fire-engine-red lipstick and some black mascara.

"There... That's good enough for now..." She mumbled to herself, hurrying back towards the door. Grabbing her purse off the little shelf next to the door, she stepped out of the trailer and used the key to lock it before swaying over to her car and unlocking it.

Even as she slid behind the wheel and brought the car roaring to life, the fact that she'd used the right key to lock the trailer, one unremarkable key on a ring of about a dozen, didn't occur to her anymore then the fact she'd put make-up on had registered consciously.

Putting the car into gear, she backed out of the driveway and slid to a stop angled across the rutted gravel of the 'feeder road'. Snapping on the headlights and switching gears, Randi stomped one high-heeled foot down on the gas, sending the sports-car shooting towards the front entrance of the trailer park... with as much assurance of where she was going as if she'd done this a hundred times before, another fact that didn't register on her whirling, spinning mind as she turned onto the road outside the park's entrance and aimed the hood towards the highway, and the airport.

As the sun sank behind the horizon, Randi pushed the car faster and faster, eager to find out what was going on, and what was happening to her. The scenery whipped past the speeding hot-pink IROC as she watched nervously for any sign of the cops - inside her, a battle was being fought, the urge to hurry coupled with a near-panic at the thought of a cop stopping her that was way out of proportion to what the thought of getting a ticket should inspire. As the miles whipped past and the likelihood of getting stopped grew, she found herself almost unwilling easing up, slowing to just below the legal limit, her eyes now scanning constantly for the faintest hint of a cop car anywhere, even though she was now well within the legal speed limit. Her heart began to pound as she watched with a paranoid intensity for a cruiser, wondering if her taillights were working, if there was anything about her car, or the way she was driving, that would warrant a cop pulling her over...

Then her head snapped to the side as she spotted a building off the road. Garishly lit, the somewhat low-end nightclub stood in stark contrast to the mostly commercial/industrial buildings around it, already closed and dark. The nightclub was brightly lit, it's sign - missing a few bulbs - proudly declaring the seedy building to be 'The Mirage'.

Something in the back of her mind tugged at her. Though she couldn't place why, when or where, she recognized the building as being familiar.

Looking around, she saw no sign of a cop... so she took a risk, heart pounding furiously behind her wonderful tits as she slid the car across lanes of traffic to make the exit. Whipping around the corner of the off-ramp, she eased down on the brake and brought the car to a full and complete stop, long-nailed finger tightening on the fuzzy-white-material covered steering wheel as she waited for lights to flash behind her, telling her that she was busted...

None appeared, and she drove sedately across the street and into the parking lot of the oddly familiar club, shutting the car off and staring at the building, wondering why it looked familiar.

Maybe somebody in there would know how and why this was happening to her. There was only one way to find out...

Sliding out for the car, Randi locked the door and sling her purse over her shoulder, heading towards the doors of the club. Even before she reached them, she could hear - and feel - the heavy bass beat of the music inside, and when she swung the door open the music washed over her like a palpable flow of water, seeming to soak into her body and bones, the vibration making her body thrum and shimmy.

She was completely unaware of the way her expression and stride altered as she entered the dark, loud, hazy atmosphere of the club...

* * * * *

Nick was leaning against the bar, sipping a beer, when she walked in...and his eyes locked on her as she made her way deeper into the club.

She was moving forward... but she was walking. Perched atop a pair of 'fuck me' stripper shoes, she was dancing, her body swaying sensuously, huge tits swaying and jiggling nicely as she made her way through the crowd. More than that, though, she had a sexy, 'come-and-get-it' grin on her gloss-red lips.

Nick was the modern version of a professional 'lounge-lizard', hitting the hot-spots for some 'quick and easy' - and he'd never seen a woman giving off more vibes than this one. Cheap, easy and with no entanglements - she was a walking stereotype of a one-night-stand fuck, and Nick's instincts had him in motion before he realized it, anxious to get to her before somebody else snapped up this piece of prime pussy.

Sliding up behind her in the crowd, he touched one bare shoulder, causing her to turn around. Even standing still, she continued to sway sensuously...

...and her eyes went first to his crotch, lingering for a long moment before rising to his face, her tongue sliding between her full lips and slowly, seductively wetting wet.

"Hey, gorgeous... can I buy you a drink?" Nick asked, grinning.

* * * * *

Gave the man a once-over up-and-down look, licking her lips nervously. She couldn't place it... but something about the broad-shouldered, craggy-faced bald man who'd stopped her looked very familiar.

"Hey, gorgeous..." the man said, eyeing her with a knowing smile. "Can I buy you a drink?"

Between the odd look in his eye, the knowing smile, and the sarcastic comment, Randi was suddenly certain that this guys knew something. She didn't know what he knew, or how... but something about him just triggered the idea that this guy was in on whatever was happening, and was teasing her with the knowledge.

"Well, sure... handsome..." She said, throwing his sarcasm back in his face. "I'd love that." "Well, then - follow me!" He said, turning towards the bar.

To keep from losing him in the crowd, Randi hooked a thumb through one of the belt-loops on the back of his jeans and let him drag her through the crowd towards the bar.

* * * * *

Nick grinned as he felt her hand slip to his waist... and fondle his ass as they made their way to the bar. They leaned against it, facing each other, as they each got a beer.

Nick had just started to take a sip of his when she nailed his eyes with her own, lids half-lowered in a sensuous gaze as she said. "I'm randy for men... but you already know that, don't you?"

* * * * *

Randi watched him splutter on his beer as she gave 'her' name - and verified her hunch. His reaction showed that he knew something.

Getting him to reveal what it was might not be easy, though. Turning her into the woman she now was wouldn't have been a small task... there had to be something pretty big behind this, and she had to find a way to get the information. She'd have to play it easy, go along with anything he said or did without letting him see her real reactions to it - she had to 'make nice' if she wanted to get anything out of him.

Leaning forward slightly, she lowered her voice. "Maybe we should go somewhere more... private. Huh?"

* * * * *

Nick had begged her as a slut from the very first - but this was better than he could have hoped. She wanted to fuck him without any of the usual foreplay first. This was great...

"Sure." He agreed. "That would be great. How 'bout the hotel down the street?"

She grinned again, licking her lips hungrily. "Ummm... That sounds perfect. A nice, private place where we can... get to know each other, if you know what I mean..."

"Oh, yeah - I know what you mean..." Nick grinned.

* * * * *

'Of course you do...' Randi thought, angrily, though she didn't let it show. It was obvious that he knew all about 'her', and thought she knew about him too and was 'teasing' her.

It pissed her off - but she dare not let him know. She couldn't even ask his name - it would give it all away. Well... what could she call him that wouldn't let him know she didn't know his name...?

"Come on... stud." She said, taking his head. "We'll take my car..."

Of course he came - he was getting his kicks torturing the 'woman' he knew the truth about, thinking that she knew it and wasn't bothered by it. That was her one weapon to get the truth from him... the more she looked like she didn't care, the more he'd want to 'let slip' things to get to her, and that's how she'd have to get the information.

Twenty minutes later, they were in the hotel room that he'd paid for. The place was run-down, sleazy and cheap, and 'Stud' had rented it 'buy the hour'... but it would do, since all she wanted was someplace private where she could get him to lower his guard.

Closing the door, she looked at him, struggling to maintain her composure in the face of her anger at this guy, who was in on the plot. "Well, here we are, all alone..." She pointed out. "So, what do you think? Should we just... 'chat', maybe have a few drinks?"

He grinned at her with that damned smug, knowing look in his eyes as he came closer. "Tell you what..." He said, in an odd tone of voice. "Maybe we'll talk...after..."

Then he wrapped his hands around her, grabbing her ass and squeezing it... as he leaned forward and pressed his lips against hers.

Her first instinct was to knee him in the balls as she felt her gorge rise at having a man touch her... then realized that was what he wanted.

He was looking for her to give him an excuse to storm out, blaming her for it - to torture her.

He was... blackmailing her. Knowing that she was really a man, she was setting a price he thought she'd never pay. If she wanted to find out anything... she'd have to have sex with him.

All of this went through her mind in an instant, and she felt the urge to either throw up or turn and run... but that would just leave her trapped in this damned woman's body with its cock-sucker lips and big, sexy tits and hot, wet cunt. She couldn't stand the thought of not learning anything, not when she was this close to some answers... so no matter how much the thought of fucking this guy caused her nipples to go hard in outrage, she'd have to force herself to do whatever was necessary.

Wrapping her hands around him, she forced herself to pull her body tight against his, felling her tits crush with disgusting pleasure against his chest as she felt the sickening warmth of his lips as she opened her mouth and forced herself to kiss him back as best she could, eyes closing and a moan of horror unwillingly slipping from her throat. Luckily, he didn't seem to notice, his grip tightening as he kissed her even more hungrily, his cock obviously going as hard as a rock at the thought of literally fucking with her, as well as metaphorically.

He kissed her for a disgustingly long time, forcing her to respond as if she were hot and eager before he finally broke the kiss, gasping for breath.

"Damn, babe - you are incredible." He taunted her. "I've never met a woman who can kiss like that."

"I'll bet..." She said, bitterly, before she could catch herself. He let it go past without comment, which made her hope that she hadn't screwed up enough to give him an excuse to not tell her anything.

Well, he wasn't going to just let it slip by, after all - seeing how uncomfortable she was, he decided to make it that much worse. "God - I bet you can suck cock like nobody else." He said, referring yet again to her 'fake' feminine nature, betting she wouldn't...

Well, she wasn't going to let him slip out of it that easily. The thought of what she was about to do disgusted her so much she couldn't force herself to say anything... but wasting her will-power on speaking wasn't worth it anyway. She needed all the will power she had to do what she was about to do...

Struggling to keep from running, she forced herself to drop to her knees, long-nailed fingers reaching out to unzip his jeans and pull them and his underwear down to his ankles, letting his hard, thick cock spring to full attention. The guy must be some sort of faggot/bisexual pervert to actually get excited at the thought of having somebody he knew was really a man suck him off - but it would take a real sicko to make her into a woman to begin with, wouldn't it? This guy was probably one of the architects of her horrible fate, and what he was forcing her to do was probably how he got his 'jollies'.

She wanted to vomit, to pull away - but she forced herself to get this over with. Before her nerve could break, she leaned forward, mouth opening...

* * * * *

nick couldn't believe what a super-slut this red-head cunt was. First she all-but drags him hear... and now she dropped to her knees and tore open his pants so she could slurp down on him like she was a starving woman...

...and could she suck! Mouth and hands and tongue in harmony as she sucked and slurped his cock, making his knees weak with her incredible skill. She must be a champion-grade cock-sucker... and he was willing to be it came from having plenty of practice, because he'd never seen a woman so eager and happy to suck cock before - she was makings sounds of utter bliss as she slurped away, sounds matched by his own as used her incredible lips and tongue to get him off, giving head like none he'd ever had before. She was just plain mind-blowing as she sucked his cock like it was a piano and she was a world-class pianist.

Finally, his over-sensitized organ had all it could take, and he groaned as he shot his load...

* * * * *

He gasped, and a flood of cum gushed into her mouth.

Randi wanted to spit it out... but she didn't dare give him any excuse to not tell her. Maybe she'd already blown it - but she might still have a chance to find out why and how this was happening to her, and she didn't dare assume she'd already screwed up enough to give up.

With no other choice, she swallowed rapidly, slurping down the spray of deliciously salty cum that made her mouth water at the disgustingly fantastic taste. Obviously, when she'd been given this eminently fuckable female body, they'd fucked with her taste-buds, to give the added horror and humiliation of finding the taste of the cum the most mind-boggling, wonderful, desirable flavor she'd ever experienced, just as they'd altered something in her to make her find the feel and taste of a cock in her mouth absolutely fantastic. It was absolutely horrible who they'd fucked with her, making her hungrily lick his cock clean, having to fight this new, horrific change in her self to finally let his cock go, fighting the nearly overriding urge to find another hard, thick, cum-filled cock to fill her hungry mouth...

Well, once she'd gotten the information she needed, she'd find the people who could change her back so she wouldn't have to deal with the rampant desire to slurp on any more wonderful, fantastic, pleasure-giving cocks.

"How was that, stud...?" She asked bitterly, licking the last drop of cum from her lips. "That do it for you?"

"You are a world-class cock-sucker, babe..." He told her, making her want to punch him right in the hairy, delightful, just-so-damned- tempting balls. He was probably the guy who'd given her this loving desire to slurp away on men's cocks, and that was why he'd talked her into doing it, so from now on she'd be tortured by the memory of how wonderful it had felt, no matter how sick it made her to think of finding men who would let her kneel before them and drain their cocks of their delicious, salty loads.

"So... don't you think you owe me a little something...?" Randi suggested, slyly, waiting to see what information he'd divulge. He frowned - then grinned, which worried her.

"Well, I didn't realize... but it was worth it..." He said, sending her heart soaring... then he pulled up his underwear and pants, fished in his pocket... and handed her a crumpled ten and twenty.

"You're amazing, babe." He taunted her as she stared down at the money he'd handed her. Money... so that she wouldn't go broke, would have a chance to continue searching. It all made sense, now... they'd tease her with the thought of finding the answer to get out of this hell, give her cash to keep her 'in the game'...

She watched as he left, slowly straightening as he walked out of the room to hail a cab. She let him go, gnawing on her lower lip as she considered what she did know.

The people who had done this weren't trying to hide themselves. Hell, that nightclub was probably a front for their organization, and all they guys in there were probably in on it. There were more, she was sure - a job as big as what they'd done to her would be a massive one, so there could be thousands of guys out there who would 'play the game', trying to get her to give up and leave it alone.

She wasn't going to, though: no matter how disgusting what they wanted her to do was, no matter what indignities they put her through, she was going to find the answer.

Grabbing her purse, she headed out to where her car was parked... but she was still so upset that she realized she might drive somewhat erratically, bringing the cops down on her. She couldn't risk driving until she was absolutely sure that she was in control of herself and wouldn't attract a cop's attention.

Leaning against the rear of her car, she forced herself to relax as she waited... A car pulled to a stop in front of where she stood, and a man smiled out at her.

"Hey there, honey... you looking for, uh... a little 'fun'...?" He said, winking at her knowingly.

Randi's jaw muscle tightened - obviously, other guys in on the conspiracy had seen her, and wanted in on the fun. She walked over to the new guy's car and leaned in the window...

...and a thought occurred to her.

"You're not a cop, are you?" She asked, fearfully.

"Hell, no...!" The guy responded - and she mentally kicked herself for giving away the fact that she didn't know who he was. She'd probably just blown any chance she had of getting info out of this guy.

Still, she wasn't going to give up.

"Why don't you pull in and park?" She suggested. "We can go to my hotel room and... talk..."

"You mean 'fuck like crazed weasels', don't you?" The guy said, obviously expecting her to back down. The hell she was, though.

"Anything you want, honey...?" She said with a forced smile. As she pulled the car into the lot and shut off the engine, she forced herself to get ready for what was about to happen.

If she had to, she'd fuck and suck her way through the entire population of LA, if that's what it took to find the answer...

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: A scientist creates a machine that can alter body parts into any configuration, and through his invention, he creates the girl of his dreams, and becomes one too.

To Die For

By Gunslinger

Tom Richard McLean, thirty seven years of age and in perfect health, was preparing to die. The major reason for his topic of thought was the Baretta nine millimeter automatic pistol resting in the palm of one of his large, thick-fingered hands.

The bulky, broad-shouldered man regarded the illegally obtained weapon with a sense of equanimity. A methodical, careful man, he'd run through a mental argument before even considering this course of action. When he'd arrived at the decision that suicide was the best alternative for him, he'd then carefully considered the different methods available. Even when he chose a gun, his usual style of thinking meant that he had purchased only a single bullet - all that he would need. He was ready, willing and able to perform this last act...

...but not quite yet. Laying the weapon aside, Tom turned back to the small spiral notebook he'd purchased. He resumed his writing, detailing his reasons for what he was doing, so that the investigators would have no doubt as to why he'd done this - or who to blame.

Tom had never had an easy life. An orphan, his formative years had been spent in one foster home after another, and his naturally massive build had caused a lot of fights by bullies wishing to prove themselves. The fact that, by nature. He was not a violent man only made the situation worse.

Never one who made friends easily - his brutish, nearly Neanderthal looks were part of the problem - Tom had been somewhat of an outcast. But he'd managed to carve a niche for himself in the world anyway. A massive, hulking man with no formal education past secondary school, whose looks made people scurry away on the subway, whose slow speaking patterns made him appear stupid, despite his sharp mind - despite all these, Tom had managed to make a life for himself.

A life that was completely and utterly destroyed by his one luxury in life. Tom was a closet transvestite.

With his hulking, hairy body, Tom made a ludicrous image in women's clothing, and he knew it. It never even crossed his mind to attempt to pass in public. But in the privacy of his tiny apartment, it was an escape from real life - he could dress in his feminine finery and imagine a life that was so very different than his own.

Until Richard P. Sandusky entered the picture. Sandusky, a sleazy talk-show host on a local channel, had staked out a certain shop on the other side of town, in hopes of trailing a cross-dresser or two that he could convince to come on his show. And he had, in a way - he'd got Tom. But he'd lied to Tom about the show's theme, saying it dealt with orphans. Tom, both needing the cash and in the hopes that he might be re-united with his unknown parents (he'd seen it happen on other talk shows) had gone.

Since the truth had become public, Tom had been the target of ridicule. The few friends he managed to find - mostly the athletic 'Jocks' who had befriended him to convince him to play football - had quickly abandoned him, and shortly after his boss had fired him on a flimsy excuse.

Now, Tom had faced the truth - he had reached the end of his rope. As he finished detailing his life and the reasons for ending it, Tom closed the book and lay the pen down on top of it.

Picking up the gun, Tom chambered a round. Placing the barrel of the gun in the hollow of his jaw, Tom took one last deep breath, and pulled the trigger...

* * * * *

...and reeled back against the wall, every nerve ending screaming with a rapidly fading pain.

Tom's normally orderly mind spun wildly as it fought to align events in some sort of logical order - but it couldn't. One instant, he was sitting in his apartment, pulling the trigger on the gun, the next he was standing in a small room he'd never seen before, and odd pain fading from his body as he slammed back into a wall.

"What the...?" Tom exclaimed involuntarily - then stopped dead, becoming absolutely still in shock as he registered the question...

...which had emerged in a clear, but accented, voice - that was utterly and undeniably female.

Stunned, Tom slowly lowered his eyes, and gaped. He was staring down at the top of two large, firm, creamy breasts protruding from a white garment, thrust proudly from a body that wasn't his.

All the strength seemed to run from his body - well, the body he was in, at any rate, - and Tom slowly sank to the floor, still staring at the two large breasts. Slowly, he shifted his gaze, lifting his hands in front of his face and staring at the slender, feminine hands and the long, slender fingers.

"I... It's not possible..." Tom said, softly, again hearing that sweet feminine voice with its rich, Irish accent.

For several seconds, Tom merely stared at the feminine hands and the smooth, slender arms they were attached to. Then his spinning mind began to reassert itself, and the world stabilized, although in a completely new way. He didn't now how, or why - didn't know anything in this impossible situation - but somehow he had gone from a man in the middle of suicide to a woman sitting on the floor of a strange place. Before he could allow his confusion and shock to reign, he had more important questions to be answered.

Trying to ignore the strange sensation that his (?) body was providing, Tom slowly rose to his feet and looked around.

He appeared to be in a small pantry. The walls were lined with shelves of crockery, canned and bottled food, and odds and ends. The only light was the golden sunlight streaming in the open door. An acrid smell filled the small room, obviously originating from a radio plugged into the wall. Faint wisps of bluish smoke were rising from the vent.

Finding nothing else of interest in the small room, Tom stepped out the door and into a large, 'peasant style' kitchen.

It was clean and well decorated, yet for some reason still felt slightly off to Tom, who considered it for a moment. Not able to put a finger on it, Tom looked at the other entrances to the kitchen.

One was obviously an outside door, leading to a back-yard that could be seen through the window. There were three other doors, and Tom picked one at random. As he walked towards it, he was surprised to find himself doing so with a graceful, feminine movement, which he hadn't really noticed in the two steps it had taken to leave the pantry.

The first door opened onto a stairwell leading to the basement. The second opened onto a hall leading to the front foyer.

Feeling like a trespasser, Tom began creeping down the hallway. Pausing at one door, he gently opened it and peered inside - to find himself looking into a small bathroom.

Taking a deep, calming breath, Tom turned on the light, stepped inside, and looked in the mirror above the sink. A gorgeous redhead stared back.

She was on the short side, a little over five feet. Her figure was slender and trim, with the noticeable exception of a pair of large, firm DDD-cup breasts. Her bright red hair was definitely - even defiantly - red, not the usual orange color of most, nor the deep red of coloring. There was no doubt that it was absolutely natural - especial considering the smooth, milky skin she had, a sure sign of a natural redhead.

She wore a tight pair of dark blue jeans and a white bustier, and was barefoot. Her face wasn't classically beautiful, or even remarkably sensual - instead it was a clear, healthy beauty, like that favored for heroines in movies from the Forties and Fifties. She was, quite simply, stunning.

And, however it happened, Tom was her.

Amazed, Tom merely turned and admired the figure that he - she - now possess, running her slender hands over her tiny waist, taught ass, and firm, full breasts, marveling at the sensations. She not only felt the firm, smooth flesh under her hands, but the touch of those hands transmitted through her new figure. For the hulking cross-dresser, this was like a dream come true, a slender, shapely feminine figure that could wear any female clothing confidently.

Shaking herself out of her daze, Tom left the bathroom, still feeling like an intruder. Making her way to the foyer, she discovered a purse sitting on the table. Looking around guiltily, she opened it, and began examining the contents.

The face she wore matched the identification in the purse - identification for one Colleen Ramsey. Colleen had moved to New York two days ago after getting an immigration visa from the government - which allowed Tom to put his finger on the out-of-place feeling of the house. Rather than bring things from Ireland - terribly expensive - Colleen had purchased everything new on arrival, which was what lent the odd feeling to the house. Nothing had had time to acquire normal 'wear and tear'. She'd literally just moved in.

Sitting down on the bench in the foyer, Tom tried to figure out how he had ended up in this situation. Then, like a thunderclap, it dawned on him. The smoking radio, the fading pain...

The exact instant he'd committed suicide, this Colleen had been electrocuted by a defective radio she'd been plugging in. Somehow, his... soul, for want of a better word, was drawn into the body of Colleen as she was instantly turned brain-dead by the voltage that shorted out her synaptic functions.

It was incredible, unbelievable - and a dream come true for Tom, in a way.

He'd often wished he'd been born in a different body. One that wasn't muscle-bound, stupid-looking and awkward. He'd wished he could wear the soft, sensual clothes that women wore. He'd wished for these - and now, in a way, he'd gotten them. But he - she - was in the body of a woman with a past, with a life.

One Tom knew nothing about. Quite simply, she was no better off than if the 'real' Colleen still inhabited the body, and was suffering from amnesia...

But it was a second chance at life, and Tom wasn't going to let it slip through her fingers. However it had happened, she had a chance that many transsexuals would have gladly died for.

Which, when you thought about it, was exactly what he'd done.

Still amazed, Tom rose from the bench and looked around, wondering what to do now. She decided to give in to her most immediate desire. With barely repressed excitement, she bounded up the stairs, marveling at her new grace and balance. On her third try, she found the master bedroom, and crossed the room quickly and threw open the closet.

And sighed. Apparently, Colleen hadn't brought much with her - the closet was empty aside from a bathrobe and a flannel nightgown. A quick check of the dresser revealed four sets of underwear, two more pairs of jeans, some socks, and some T-shirts.

Looking around, Tom spotted the small, elegant Cherry-wood writing desk in the corner. Lowering her trim new bottom into the chair in front of the desk, she rummaged around in the drawer.

One of the first things she found was the bank statement regarding the transfer of funds from Ireland to the bank. Tom was stunned, her jaw dropping, as she realized that Colleen was more than just 'well off'. After the conversion from Pounds to Dollars, Colleen's net worth was One million, seven hundred and thirty-eight thousand, two hundred and fifty-nine dollars.

And seventeen cents.

No wonder the American Government was so agreeable in issuing a visa for her immigration. Better she spend the money in the Land of the Free than the Emerald Isle, right?

And below the bank statement was pay-dirt - Colleen's diary. Settling back in the chair, Tom opened the leather-bound book and started reading, the newest entry first and working backwards, learning about 'herself' from the flowing, feminine handwriting of Colleen as she revealed her most innermost thoughts to - herself.

Tom was deeply engrossed in the diary, having worked back about two months, when the phone rang, startling her into dropping the book.

As the phone rang a second time, Tom stared at it, then hesitantly picked it up. "Hello?" She asked, trying to hide her nervousness - not completely successfully.

"Colleen? It's Linda." A female voice said in her ear. "I was heading out to the mall, and I thought that since you don't have a car, and you mentioned that you had almost no clothes, I'd see if you wanted to come with me."

Tom paused. The diary had mentioned meeting some of the people in the neighborhood at the corner 'pub', but hadn't specified names. Tom guessed that this must be one of them.

"Um..." Tom hesitated, considering. "Actually, that would be great. I do need some clothes." "Wonderful. I'll be by in about five minutes. See you then." Linda said.

"I'll be waiting." Tom promised. "Bye."

Hanging up the phone, Tom quickly pulled on some socks and a black T-shirt, then went downstairs. She found a pair of running shoes in the closet, along with a black leather jacket. She had just finished tying the laces when she heard a car pull up and bleep its horn.

Grabbing 'her' purse, Tom hurried out, rummaging for her keys. Locking the door, she went around to the passenger side of the Integra and slipped inside.

"Your first time at an American mall - this should be interesting." The car's driver said with a smile as she pulled out of the driveway. Linda turned out to be a shapely, athletic woman about the same age as Colleen - twenty-five. She had short, black hair and an infectious grin that Tom couldn't help responding to.

"It's going to be a new experience." Tom agreed, thinking that Linda didn't know the half of it. Tom was paying attention to what passed by the car as they drove, trying to familiarize herself with the area. She vaguely recognized it as one of the upscale suburbs of New York, but hadn't spent any time out here.

"So - we'll have to get you some real American clothes. With a figure like yours, you can wear just about anything." Linda said, smiling. She turned the car into the sprawling parking lot of the mall, and managed to find a slot reasonably close to the doors. "You may want to stick close - we don't want you getting lost in the crowd."

"Sure." Tom said, still trying to cope. It all felt like she was in some kind of dream. Here she was, a beautiful woman, going into the mall to buy some female clothing. It was unreal - and delightfully real.

Following the brassy woman through the doors of the mall, Tom slowed a bit, causing Linda to turn and look at her. "Something wrong?"

Tom smiled. "No - I just have to use the bank machine. Hang on a second, would you?" Getting a nod, Tom walked over to the bank machine, inserted the bank card from Colleen's wallet...

...and stopped dead, realizing that she had no idea what Colleen's PIN number was. Suddenly, her feeling that all this was a dream broke away as reality intruded with a bang.

Quickly, Tom checked Colleen's ID and, crossing her fingers, punched in her birth date. The ATM promptly 'bleeped', and spat the card back out.

Tom swallowed nervously. He knew how the machine worked. If he was wrong three times in a row, the machine would lock out the card and notify the issuing bank, who would contact her to find out if the card had been stolen.

Quickly, Tom looked in the wallet again, hoping to find something that would help.

"Something wrong?" Linda asked over her shoulder, and Tom spun, heart pounding. She manufactured a quick smile. "Silly me - I forgot my number." She said, cursing herself for getting into this situation.

Linda laughed. "I told you so."

Tom blinked and smiled weakly. "Excuse me?"

Linda looked mildly surprised. "Last night - you mentioned that they don't have ATMs in Ireland, and it was new to you. When I suggested you write the number down just in case, you said you'd never forget your code."

Tom blinked. On a hunch, she slid the card back into the machine, and when it asked for the code, Tom ignored the actual numbers, picking the keys that corresponded to the letters C-O-D-E.

Dutifully, the machine hummed, and asked Tom how much she wanted, up to a daily limit of six hundred dollars. With a triumphant grin at Linda, Tom took the daily limit, sliding the small bundle of cash into her purse with her card.

"Shall we?"

Linda laughed again - the woman never seemed to stop being cheerful - and waited for Tom to fall in step as they headed into the mall.

For the next four hours, Tom wandered about in a dream-like world. For years, as a closet transvestite, he had lived with the knowledge that he could never, ever indulge in his fantasies in public. Yet, through some miracle, here she was, shopping for feminine finery, getting make-overs and manicures, having her hair done in a salon - and not only was she not shunned and ridiculed, she had a friend with her that urged her on every step of the way.

Tom gave in to her every whim and fantasy. She purchased clothing that wasn't actually day-to-day wear, because she wanted to wear skirts and dresses and gowns, frilly under things and impractical shoes. She bought make-up galore, and tried on just about every type of lingerie available in the sprawling monument to capitalism. But sales-clerks didn't complain about the time she spent doing so - because she also bought just about everything. Just about - no 'plain Jane' underwear, no pants or uni-sex clothing. Only the frilliest, most feminine attire would do. In time, she'd probably come back and by more 'sensible' clothing - but for now, she was having the time of her life.

In fact, it was a dream-come-true... except for one thing. As she laughed and joked with Linda, and purchased everything in sight, she could not quite forget the fact that the real owner of this body, a woman he'd never met, had to die for Tom to get his fantasies. It was a small, discordant note that nagged at a small part of her mind, and Tom prayed that Colleen had found her way into heaven before the Devil even knew she was dead.

Finally, they had to stop - for the sole reason that Tom was broke. Aside from the cash, she'd maxed out the two credit-cards in Colleen's name. She hadn't planned on using them - she was worried about being able to forge 'her own' signature - but once she'd gotten rolling, she'd given in. But, unless she wanted to go to her bank and withdrawal money, she was done for the day.

"Whoa..." Linda whistled, impressed, as she helped haul Tom's purchases out to the car. "Girl, you're going to make a great American." Tom laughed. "Thanks. Now all I need is enough closet space to put all this stuff in."

Linda laughed as well, and they filled the trunk and back seat of Linda's car. As the sun started to sink in the west, they pulled out of the mall's parking lot and headed towards Colleen's house.

As they pulled into the long, dark driveway, Linda looked over. "Need help carrying this stuff in?" Tom cocked her head. "Haven't you got that date with... um..."

Linda smiled. "Rick? - yeah. But it's not for another couple of hours..." Tom smiled. "Then your help would be appreciated."

The two women gathered up their bags and headed for the front door, chatting and laughing.

Then, as they stepped onto the stoop, a darker shadow detached itself from the hedges lining the walk. The massive, black shape reached out towards Linda, and something glinted as she was stabbed in the side. The dark-haired woman cried out, dropping the bags, and hauled herself away from her attacker. She began to scream for help... then her eyes rolled back in her head, and she collapsed to the ground, motionless. Tom screamed and recoiled, dropping the bags as the dark mass spoke.

"Hey, bastard..."

Then it stepped into the light streaming from the windows flanking the door, revealing... Tom McLean.

Tom - the one in Colleen's body - stared at his massive male body, looming above her...

...and promptly fainted dead away.

* * * * *

"Come on, Colleen... wakey, wakey..."

The deep voice with its sarcastic tone brought Colleen out of her faint. With a start, her emerald-green eyes flew open, and she jerked upright...

...or at least, tried to. She moved barely at all in fact, and stared, stunned, at the purple velvet-padded cuffs that chained her hands to the bedposts of the bed in the master bedroom. Stunned, she gazed down the length of her 'own' naked body to the foot of the bed, where the body she once wore sat in a chair, an ugly leer on its face as it gazed at her.

"Wha..? How...?" Colleen stammered, stunned and incredulous. "But... you're..."

"Dead?" Her old body snorted derisively. "Not exactly. Although, that's what you had planned, wasn't it?" Colleen blinked. "I.. I don't understand..."

Tom - or rather Colleen in Tom's body - laughed cruelly. "I bet you don't. If it wasn't for the fact that the bullet was a misfire, I would be dead - just like you wanted. I don't know exactly how you did it, but it was almost a perfect plan - except for the misfire."

Colleen shook her head, more in disbelief than denial. "You think I... No! It was some sort of..."

Tom cut her off. "Yeah, right. I saw the clothes in your closet - and the bags and bags of clothes you just bought. How long did it take to find the perfect target? Rich, beautiful, and with no friends or family to catch you out while you learned how to be me. Six months? A year?"

Colleen felt panic in her gut. The original owner of this body, now in the one she used to have, though she'd planned this switch - then planned to kill that male body. "No! It wasn't like that...!"

Tom grinned, cruelly. "I bet. But you made a big mistake. You see, there's a reason why I was so eager to get to America. I'm not Colleen. No, I killed her, and used her ID - and money - to get to America. Some authorities in Ireland were looking for me." He leered down at her. "So, I'm not all that pissed at you for leaving me in a new body - Not only do I never have to worry about being caught, but this body is nice and strong. I could get used to this. So, I won't kill you."

Colleen's stomach sank. Then a horrified thought struck her. "Where's Linda? What have you..."

Tom laughed again. "She's... fine. You've been out for twenty-four hours, bitch. In that time, I've been busy. But don't worry - not only didn't I kill Linda - I let her go on her date with Rick. After I... gave her a little something..." He leaned forward. "Now - I think it's time I got down to business..."

"No...!" Colleen tried to protest her innocence - but her voice died in her throat as Tom rose from the chair and revealed a large syringe in his hand. Colleen struggled futilely as Tom approached her.

"Surprisingly, this was fairly easy to get. It emptied out your rather pitiful bank account - but that's all right." Tom said with a smirk - and injected the contents of the needle into Colleen's thigh.

Colleen continued to thrash around for several minutes, then began to feel a strange sensation. She couldn't define what it was, exactly, but she felt a strange feeling of... detachment? It wasn't quite the right word, but it would do. Although the fear and panic were still present, she couldn't seem to work up enough connection with them to continue the struggles - it seemed pointless. Slowly, her struggles faded, and she lay still on the bed. Grinning, Tom uncuffed her, which allowed an opportunity to try and escape - but Colleen just couldn't work up enough willpower to even try. She merely watched Tom uncuff her, her face blank and her eyes slightly glazed.

"Sit up, bitch." Tom commanded.

Colleen didn't want to obey him - but she did anyway. The realization came to her that the drug had stolen all her willpower - she would do anything she was told, but was unable to do anything independently. She was horrified by this realization - but again, completely unable to express that emotion. She merely obeyed his command, sitting up and swinging her legs over the edge of the bed.

And as Colleen watched, motionless, Tom positioned the chair exactly where he wanted it, and lounged back in it. "Come her, bitch." Helplessly, Colleen complied, rising from the bed and walking over.

"Kneel down, and open my pants."

Inside, Colleen wanted to scream. Instead, she merely knelt, her long, slender fingers unzipping the jeans that Tom wore. At his command, she lowered his pants to his knees, followed by his boxers, revealing a large, limp, and very, very familiar cock.

"Well, well, well..." Tom said, in mock surprise. "Look at this! A beautiful woman kneeling in front of me - and I don't have a hard on! That's not right. You'd better fix it, bit - get me hard."

Obediently, Colleen found her dainty, feminine hands encircling Tom's cock. She'd actually fondled that particular cock thousands of time in the past, but now she burned with hidden shame as she began to fondle and stroke the warm, limp dick. Slowly, it began to stiffen under her touch, the veins throbbing with blood as the organ twitched and began to rise.

"Not bad..." Tom said, obviously savoring the sensation. "But now that I'm getting hard - I think a blow-job would be good. And there you are, all ready to go. See just how good a cock-sucker you can be, bitch."

Colleen wanted to cry as she leaned forward. Her full, soft lips parted - and she slid her mouth down on the hard, throbbing cock that used to belong to her.

She'd never, ever given a blow-job before - but she'd received a few while she was a man, and knew what she liked. Now, helplessly, she put that knowledge to use in a way she'd never expect.

It began by sliding her mouth up and down the throbbing tube of man-meat, lubricating it. Then she let it leave her mouth, and began, teasingly, kissing it's swollen head and licking the shaft as her slender fingers, wrapped around the cock, began to slide up and down the thick, hot cock.

Next, she slide her hands down and began to fondle his large, hairy balls as her mouth once more reclaimed the cock. Now, she took the cock as deep into her throat as possible, her lips touching her slender fingers wrapped around his balls. She wanted to gag, but without Tom's express orders to do so, she was incapable of it. Instead, she began to slide her lips up and down the hot, throbbing cock, creating a vacuum in her mouth as she bobbed her head back and forth.

As her lips slid up and down Tom's cock, her tongue teased the head and shaft. Tom moaned in pleasure as he experienced his first blow-job. Wrapping his hands into her lustrous red hair, he urged her on as she increased her pace. While one hand continued to fondle his scrotum, the other began working in time with her mouth - as her head slid back, revealing his hard shaft, she used her fingers to stroke it's saliva-slicked length before her head came back down the shaft.

"I... mmmm... I'm gonna cum... Swallow it..." Tom gasped. It was a toss-up as to which he was enjoying more - the actually blow-job, or the humiliation that he was causing the new woman.

Who, despite amazing levels of disgust, had no choice to comply. She continued her ministrations of the thick, throbbing dick until it began to gush. Helplessly, she swallowed the warm, salty liquid that flooded her mouth, wanting to vomit at it's flavor and texture.

Small trickles of cum ran from the corners of her mouth, splattering down on her large, creamy tits as she lapped up the last of his cum and licked his cock clean.

Tom smiled - but there was no humor in it. Turning towards the door, he called out "Linda!"

The door swung open, and in came Linda - only she bore little resemblance to the laughing, cheerful woman of the day before.

Linda balanced atop the six-inch stilettos of a pair of black leather boots that came all the way up her thighs. An incredibly tight black leather corset compressed her waist down to a tiny circumference, and chains ran from the corset to the leather 'slave-collar' around her neck. And jutting from her crotch, attached to straps from the corset, was an absolutely massive black plastic dildo, easily seventeen inches long, and enormously thick.

"Hello, bitch..." Linda said, her gloss-red lips curving up in a sneer.

Colleen was stunned - not that she was able to express that, of course. Tom looked with a perverse satisfaction at Linda, then turned to Colleen. "As you can see, I made a few... adjustments to her attitude." He leered down at Colleen. "I could have done the same to you

- made you love everything I do to you, make sure that you do it 'willingly'. But I much prefer the thought of you as a helplessly slave, doing things even though you hate them. Of course, the drug itself isn't permanent - but I think I have a large enough supply to last until you're properly trained by Linda."

Re-adjusting his clothing, Tom headed for the door. "Get on the bed and spread your legs, bitch. From now on, you'll do whatever Linda tells you to." Turning to Linda, he jerked a thumb at where Colleen was climbing onto the bed. "All right, get started - and whatever you do, make sure she doesn't enjoy a single second of it. If she actually orgasms, I'll kill you."

"Yes, Master." Linda said, grinning evilly. She began to stalk towards the bed, heels clicking on the hard-wood floor, and the massive phallus protruding from her crotch like a battering ram.

And as Linda slammed the whole length and breadth of the massive plastic dildo deep into Colleen's dry cunt, Colleen discovered just how quickly a dream could turn into a nightmare.

As the agony took her, Colleen wished, with all her being that the bullet had fired. Regardless of who had been in the body at the time.

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: A master makeup artist threatens to leave his agent, unless the agent is willing to allow him to use his skills to transform him for a job.

To Prove A Point

By Gunslinger

The terrace of the L'Hotel De Concourse was one of the most sought-after spots for the vaunted business lunch, and the ten-to-two time-slot was booked solid for the next three months, every table having been reserved to impress some important client with the host's ability to get into such a place.

So, all in all, Steven Dixon should have been overjoyed to be sitting at a small table on that terrace, invited there by his most important client, who was - miracles of miracles - actually buying the lunch. But the truth of the matter was, Dixon had had a tad too much to drink at a post-production party last night - in fact, much too much to drink - and was now nursing the mother of all hangovers. Despite the 'See-and-be-seen' mentality of Hollywood, which meant that just having been seen here would boost his reputation, he'd much rather be inside the dimly lit restaurant itself, where the bright, somehow cheerless glare of the sun wouldn't feel like two ice-picks jabbed into his hazel eyes.

Across the table from him, his most important client, Robert DeMarco was droning on interminably, and Steve knew he should really be paying attention. With the decline of his agency - which, of course, had nothing to do with his drinking, for God's sake, no matter what that bitch of an ex-wife said - it was basically Robby who paid his bills for him. The thought that he was basically one client away from bankruptcy caused Steve to shift his 'California toned' body in his seat and nervously run on broad, tanned hand through his close-cropped chestnut hair. If his ex-wife, Ms. 'I won't take your last name' Deborah Goldstein hadn't taken most of Steve's inheritance when she'd left... Shoving that though aside, Steve tried to focus on what Robby was saying.

"...long time now, Steven, and I appreciate what you've done for me. I just think that it's in my best interests to find new representation, that's all." Robby was saying earnestly.

It took half a second for Steve's mind to catch up with the conversation - then his hand twitched as if he'd been hit with an electric cattle-prod, sending his water glass to shatter against the stone-paved terrace.

"You're firing me?" Steve asked, incredulously, his stomach dropping into his size ten Italian leather shoes. "This... This is a joke, right Robby?"

Robby frowned, realizing that Steven hadn't heard anything except the last sentence or so. "Look, Steve, I admit that you got me a start in this business. God knows, it's hard to create a whole new niche as a 'prosthetics and make-up special effect technician, and I appreciate it. But I don't think that you're really the person to represent my future goals."

Steven winced when Robby used the overly-long title that Steven had created on the spur of the moment all that time ago. The truth was, Steve had no idea what to call Robby's talent. Robby was practically a wizard when it came to doing Special Effect make-up - but it went way past make-up and latex appliances. The monsters and aliens that Robby created were just so... real. It was as if, after Robby was finished, the actor became that being.

And every time Robby worked that magic, Steve made ten percent of it. At least, he had...

"What do you mean, I'm not right? Nobody appreciates your amazing talent more than me, Rob!" Steven said - almost pleaded, in fact.

Robby looked slightly angry. "Actually, you don't. That's the problem. Do you know how many jobs you've passed up on, simply because they were supposedly 'impossible'? Instead of turning them down flat, you should have checked with me. I could have done those jobs!"

Steven snorted. "It's that 'Arcturus Plague' thing, right? Look, I saw the sketches that they had, and..."

Robby over-rode Steve. "...and I could... have... done... it!" He said, enunciating each word viciously, practically biting the words off.

Steven wasn't sure how to respond to that. Robby was usually the most even-tempered of fellows, befitting his slight, somewhat 'hippy-ish' appearance - right down to the round, rimless glasses and long, dirty blond pony-tail - yet Steven had twice seen this mild-mannered young man fly into strange rages, and the last thing he needed now was that strange rage on public display, with him as the target.

Robby was glaring at him through his glasses, his watery blue eyes almost threatening, and Steve knew he had to say something. He nervously cleared his throat. "Look, man, I'm sorry. I guess I have been underestimating you, right from the beginning. I mean, the stuff I know you can do seems so... impossible, it never occurred to me that you could be even more talented."

He paused, and was dismayed to see that the tactic he'd picked didn't seem to be working. With his dismally small bank account firmly in mind, the normally arrogant Dixon decided to try and be more conciliatory. "Look, Robby, you're absolutely right. You tell me - what can I do to make it up to you?" Steven spread his hands. "Anything, anything at all, old buddy."

Robby looked thoughtful. "I think I need to prove to you just what I can do." He said at long last, his voice still carrying that oddly flat inflection. "You used to be an actor, right?"

Steve shrugged. "Yeah, but I was just another pretty face in Hollywood, so I became an agent." He replied easily - and untruthfully. He knew he was the greatest actor since DeNiro, but the damned Hollywood politics - run by the damned Jews, like his ex-wife - had kept him from what he so richly deserved. Or so he firmly believed.

Robby smiled - but the expression stopped well short of his eyes, something the less-than-astute Dixon failed to notice. "Well, then, I'll tell you what. If you want to keep my business, you'll have to let me get you a rather... unusual role in a movie."

Keeping that almost empty bank balance firmly in mind, Steven asked. "Oh? And what would that be?"

Robby made a motion with one hand. "We'll discuss it later - at my workshop."

Steven shrugged, concealing his resentment at having to kow-tow to Robby, then signaled the waitress. He had a sudden urge to make this meal a real 'tour-de-force' of cuisine - and expensive. It was Robby's pocket that was paying for it.

* * * * *

"So, what's the deal?" Steve asked an hour and a half later as he sighed and settled into one of the two battered armchairs in Robby's eclectic workshop. Steve was stuffed with Filet Mignon and Rock- Tailed Lobster, and more mellow than usual.

Robby smiled toothily. "I know a certain somebody who's preparing to do a film. However, he's looking for just the right person to play one of the roles. He even gave me a detailed breakdown of what he wants." Robby's grin widened, without touching his eyes. "You aren't it."

Steve shrugged, still not getting it. "So?"

Robby waved a hand. "So? So, I make you what he's looking for. Exactly what he's looking for. All you have to do is land the role. If you can do that, then I'll have proven my point, and you can represent me, if you still want to."

Steve blinked. So, Robby wanted to prove a point by making him over into an utterly convincing Negro or something. He could live with that. "What's the role?"

Robby's grin practically went from ear to ear as he handed Steve a casting directive.

Steven looked it over. "Hey man, you goofed. This is for a character named 'Kandi Kandlevski', a blonde bimbo stripper." He tried to hand it back.

Robby crossed his arms across his narrow chest, making no move to take the sheet. "No mistake, Steve 'old buddy'."

Steven's jaw dropped. "You mean...? Me? A chick? No way, buster."

Robby shrugged. "So you don't want to represent me after all. I can live with that." He paused, then added in an abstracted tone. "Besides, I didn't think you could pull it off anyway."

That was a blow aimed directly at the largest part of Steve's anatomy which - despite what he told women - was his ego. Steven bristled. "Hey, I could do it in my sleep, bucko."

Robby turned and looked at Steven. "So? It's a deal?"

Steve opened his mouth angrily - then thought of his almost empty account. Swallowing, Steven closed his mouth, and nodded.

Robby smiled wolfishly and rubbed his hands together. "Let's get started then, shall we?"

* * * * *

The first step of getting started, ironically - was steps.

Robby walked over to a box sitting on a cluttered work-bench and removed the oddest-looking contraptions Steve had ever seen. They were shoes - with some weird device attached to the backs to them, and an odd design.

"What the hell are those?" Steve asked, intrigued and mildly confused.

"These are something I had a mechanical effects friend of mine make up." Robby said, handing them to Steve with a flourish. "These shoes have variable heels. They start off flat, then the stiletto heels in the rear casing slowly extrude. These will help you learn to walk in high heels." He gestured towards a treadmill set up in one dusty corner. "Just put them on, then start walking."

Steve frowned, but slipped off his Italian shoes and put the strange contraptions on his feet. They fit perfectly - but Steve didn't consider that fact. Walking over to the machine, he stepped up on the tread and began walking, as Robby began to putter around the room. There was a TV mounted in front of the treadmill, and a remote on the control panel, so Steve flipped through the channels and found something to watch as he slowly added miles to the counter.

With only a few breaks, that was all Steve had to do for the next four hours. During that time, the special shoes slowly extruded the slender heels - at such a rate, that Steve barely even noticed as he slowly rose higher and higher. By the first half-hour, he was walking easily on three-quarter inch heels. By the end of the second hour, he didn't even realize that he was up to two and a half inch spikes. And, by the end of the four-hour practice, he was absolutely amazed to find himself walking easily on the five-inch heels that now lifted his shoes.

"Geez, Rob, sell these things to teens. You'll make a fortune." Steve exclaimed, amazed, as he stepped down from the treadmill. His calves were aching from the way he balanced on the high-heel, but despite the ache, he moved (disgustingly, to his mind) easily in the five inch spikes, as if he'd had months of experience, not just a few hours.

"So, now what?" Steve asked, taking off the shoes for the next step.

Robby held out what looked like the skin of a woman. "You put this on." He said evenly. Steve gaped. "What the hell is THAT?"

"It's an artificial body covering. It goes on from head to foot. It contains special fibers that will transmit heat, sensation - everything. It's a costume so perfect, that while you're wearing it you'll actually be a fully-functional female."

Steve snorted in disbelief, but let Robby help him into it. It turned out that he stepped into the mouth - which stretched - and slid it on to his body, then pulled the head up and over onto his own, like a hood. To Steve, it felt like he was being eaten.

"Okay - now what?" he asked the strange 'skin' covering his body.

Robby carefully straightened everything out, smoothed the garment - then sprayed Steve head-toe with a fixative solution.

And suddenly the skin clamed onto Steve's body like a vise, momentarily crushing the breath from him before he got used to the sudden, relentless pressure of the now perfectly form-fitting - hell, form altering - skin.

The feel of the heavy weight of breasts on his chest felt extremely strange. He looked at his new, feminine figure in the mirror with an appraising eye, and was struck by a singularly odd thought.

'God, but I'd love to fuck her!' He thought - then recoiled from the implications of that immediately

Now, Steve would be the first to admit that his new 'look' wasn't exactly beautiful - his shoulders were a little too broad, and his hands and feet both a little large.

But his figure!

Steve hadn't been all that thin. That had been changed, thanks to the 'casing' like skin that was hauling him in tight, especially his waist, which was now positively tiny in the cruel, invisible corset. Now with his legs altered to look sexier, - a lot sexier - wider hips, not to mention a realistic- looking vagina, and a spectacular tear-drop-shaped ass, he was a stunning figure of a woman.

And tits! My God, his tits were enormous. They were huge fleshy spheres, appearing to defy gravity as they stuck out from his chest with little or no sag, and were topped by large, thick, responsive nipples. He still couldn't get over the fact that he could not only feel the heavy weight of his gargantuan new endowments, but he could actually feel the air moving across the engorged nipples. He marveled at the fact that when he lightly touched them, he felt the touch with both his hands and his enormous tits.

"Holy shit." Steve whispered, impressed with the sheer realism of the results. He was also startled to hear what he said come out in his new, breathy soprano, sounding utterly feminine - and almost cartoonishly sexy. His new voice certainly fit the role of air-headed stripper.

As did his tits, now that he thought about it. He was going to say that these monstrosities were too big, but decided, on reflection, that these massive, jiggling mounds of tit-flesh were perfect for the role.

"All right, Rob, I admit it - you're a fuckin' genius!" Steve said in his new, breathy voice. "No wonder your jobs always look so real - they damned near are real!" He paused. "Now what?"

Rob smiled. "Now you get some sleep."

Startled, Steve - or, perhaps, Kandi - looked at the clock, and saw it was it was now almost eleven at night. Since he didn't have a valid driver's license - not for the way he looked now, at least - Rob led the naked, huge breasted woman to a spare bedroom in his home. The walk was interesting - the feel of her huge new tits swaying, the air moving over her smooth new skin - it was all new - and to Kandi's surprise, quite pleasurable.

Kandi awoke the next morning, and for a few seconds couldn't remember why there was this tremendous weight on his chest, and all these weird sensations. Then he remembered, and slowly sat up, feeling my huge tits shifting on his chest. The washroom was an interesting experience.

Kandi had to sit to urinate, and just that simple act created odd, new sensations. After flushing and washing her new, long nailed hands, Kandi looked in the mirror - and almost laughed at the medusas tangle of her hair. She quickly rinsed it and brushed it out, then realized with a start that she had no clothing that would fit her new figure. She shrugged, and walked naked down to the kitchen, where she found Rob already up and about. He'd put coffee on, and was making some breakfast. "Good morning." Kandi said. Rob looked up, and Kandi was surprised to see Rob's eyes had locked onto my immense breasts, then slipped to her shapely legs. With an odd feeling she couldn't quite place, Kandi realized that Rob found her new look extremely... arousing. Kandi ate a quick breakfast, aware of the way Rob was constantly eyeing her, and the way he was treating her as if she were a real woman. It was disconcerting - but, oddly, also sort of nice. Afterwards, Rob supplied Kandi with something to wear. Shrugging, Kandi uncomplainingly pulled on the clothing supplied. A white silk blouse stretched tautly over her massive endowments, the top two buttons undone to reveal some of her inviting cleavage. A pair of tight, black jeans hugged her spectacular ass and long, shapely legs. A pair of suede, knee- high leather boots with six inch heels encased her feet, imparting a certain sway to her womanly hips. Again, she found myself guiltily enjoying the way Rob watched her moved, and reacted to her presence. Doors opened before her, Rob smiling at her.

"So, now what?" Kandi asked - and was shocked by the answer. "Now you do a gig at a strip club. I've arranged for you to do a show." "What!" Kandi screeched, shocked.

Rob shrugged. "You're playing a stripper. You'd better know how to do an act. Just do whatever you've seen strippers do when you go to a club."

They had a brief argument, but Kandi eventually agreed. Her stomach tightened into a ball as they drove to the strip club. Numbly, not believing she was really doing this, she changed into the outfit that Rob had arranged for her, then walked into the back-stage area, waiting her cue.

And as the heavy, driving beat of the music kicked in, she strode provocatively onto the stage. She was wearing a custom made 'French Maid', with matching black 7 inch heels. As she began to move sensuously with the music, the men went wild with the sight of her incredible figure. Her daze faded as she began to realize a startling, odd thing - she was starting to become excited. The fact that she was doing this to a room full of men, driving their hormones into a frenzy, was sending new energy thrumming through her own, incredibly endowed body. Exotic Dancing went from being a job, to being a nearly orgasmic, narcotic experience. She had NEVER felt this alive, this energetic. It was incredible. Her moves went from being stiff, formulaic moves to richly erotic, supple, gyrations. She moved to the music, her body flexing and swaying. A new, never before felt heat rose in her new cunt and she became more aroused than she had ever been before. Part of her was disgusted by this - but the major portion of her was enjoying it all - the feel of her own, new body, the power of the men's lust for her, the supple grace with which she moved to the driving beat...

She was getting very, very turned on.

Then, the first song neared it's end, and she pulled off the black silk dress. As the second song started, she strutted around the stage clad in the heels, black nylons, panties, corset, bra and cap.

She become more sexual as her hands caressed her own, aroused body. They lingered on her own, huge tits, then moved down and undid the corset, tossing it aside. When she finally removed her bra, setting her enormous, firm tits free, the men literally pushed to stick money in her garters in return for a quick feel of her huge tits. Then, in the third song, when she removed her panties, the men went absolutely nuts - and she found herself having to stop herself from masturbating right there on stage. She couldn't believe how HORNY she'd become, stripping for the men. Ducking off stage, she pulled on a filmy black negligee and headed into the crowd, where men were begging for a lap dance. Men who were soon eagerly, orgasmically fondling and sucking her enormous breasts as she gyrated on their laps, head thrown back in pleasure.

When she was finished, Kandi jiggled and swayed back to the dressing room and got changed. Her whole body thrummed with an odd sensation, one she'd never experienced, and had never expected to.

She needed to be fucked. Long and hard.

Her head swimming in a daze of lust, she climbed into the car, and Rob pointed it towards his place. The ride was interesting - the vibration of the car over the rode created some new - and highly enjoyable - sensations in her crotch, and every bounce jostled her huge new tits, increasing her arousal.

Quickly, Kandi excused herself, and all but ran to her room. Stripping naked, she lay on the bed, string up at the ceiling trying to let the cool air kill her incredible arousal.

It didn't work. Kandi was going crazy with lust.

"Fuck it." Kandi said quietly, and gave in to her body. Eagerly, her hands rose to her massive tits. With soft squeezes, she began to caress her own soft, smooth mounds, holding back moans as her hands manipulated her engorged nipples.

It wasn't long before one hand moved downwards, past a flat abdomen, to her silky thighs - and what lay between them. Slowly, rhythmically, she used the flat of her hand to rub across her hot wet cunt. Then, with a gasp, she slid her finger into her cunt and began to masturbate furiously.

Her hips bucked as indescribable pleasure flooded her body. Breathing in short, gasping pants, she single-mindedly worked at bringing herself to her first female orgasm. Bolts of pleasure wracked her body from her cunt, echoed by the ones from her firm new tits. Still, she frantically worked her finger, everything else in the world fading out as she became nothing more than her sexual need to reach fulfillment.

She succeeded.

Screaming out once, sharply, she jerked in ecstasy, falling off the bed to the floor as her orgasm took her.

Finally, her heartbeat began to slow. Gasping, she stood, shocked and amazed at her actions. And the fact that she'd enjoyed it more than anything she'd ever done.

And the fact that masturbating had only aroused her more. So, when the door opened and Rob stuck his head in to investigate the thump, she literally dragged him inside.

"Fuck me" she begged.

He gaped - but didn't argue.

Trembling slightly with mixed emotions, Kandi leaned forward and lightly kissed Rob. Her full, soft lips pressed firmly against his, and the kiss quickly became much more passionate. Soon, Rob's hands were on her full tits, caressing and fondling them.

Caught up in her own incredible lust, Kandi lay on the bunk, and spread her legs. Rob eagerly rose above her, hesitated a brief second - then penetrated her womanhood.

She gasped as his hard cock entered her wet, ready cunt. Her gasps soon changed to moans as he began to fuck her with smooth, even strokes, his cock in her cunt causing a delicious feeling of being filled, one she'd never experienced before. Almost instinctively, she began to move her womanly hips, maximizing the sensations that roared through her body as he drove into her. It was all over fairly quickly. With little warning, the orgasm swept through Kandi, and she threw her head back and screamed. Her vaginal muscled clenched around Rob's cock, pushing him over the edge as well. He shot his load of cum deep into her waiting pussy and, spent, rolled off of her. Rising from the bed, he padded from the room, and unusual thing to do. She barely noticed. Instead, she rode the afterglow of the orgasm down, her eyes wide in disbelief. She new dreamed anything could feel so good as what she'd just experienced. It had been - indescribable.

And she wanted to do it - often.

Kandi found a small smile forming as she wondered what it felt like to suck a cock...

* * * *

Rob was smiling as he talked on the phone. In the next room, he could hear Steve/Kandi masturbating again.

"That's right, Deborah, just like I said - I turned you womanizing ex-husband into a cum-crazed slut. And he - or she - has no idea. I've set her up with a job as a stripper."

He listened for a moment to Steve's ex-wife, then his smile widened. "Yes, that's more than a fair sum Especially considering the... fringe benefits I get."

And he laughed.

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: The Bermuda Triangle presents strange effects on time and on gender to those that enter into its force field.

The Triangle

By Gunslinger

"Any station, any station, this is Bahama Mama, out of Nassau. If you're receiving this transmission, please respond on Guard. Repeat: this is the privately owned Motor Vessel Bahama Mama, approximate location 30°N by 70°W, calling any station on Guard. Please respond, over."

Releasing the transmit key on the microphone, Peter Merrick listened to the waterfall of static coming from the marine-band radio. Despite a carefully adjusted squelch setting, the static was overlaid with a strange, warbling hum that Peter guessed was probably atmospheric interference of some sort, though he'd never heard anything quite like it - and it blanketed all the stations he could receive on, even those of his AM/FM/SW radio.

Turning up the volume on the transceiver, Peter rose from the somewhat battered chair and moved through the small 'bridge' atop the Mama's small, cramped cabin. Pausing at the door leading outside, the stocky, deeply tanned brunet threw an accusing look at the bank of instruments lining the console. Though 'active', in the fact that they were still receiving electrical power, the instruments were useless to him, which was why he couldn't narrow his location down.

The electronic GPS unit, supposedly infallible and accurate to within three meters anywhere on the Earth's surface, was currently insisting that his location was 90°N by 90°W - and since that particular location was the North Pole, Peter had his doubts about the accuracy of the GPS unit at the moment. The backup to the GPS unit was a dead-reckoning computer that calculated rough position through speed, course and distance - and it was currently insisting that the Mama was parked somewhere south of Perth, Australia.

At that, both were better than the 'faithful' old magnetic compass, which was doing an impression of a drunken ballet dancer, spinning and rotating aimlessly, unable to pick any one direction.

With a sigh, Pete stepped out of the cabin onto the raised 'wing' of the bridge, shivering slightly as he stared out at the featureless expanse of thick, damp fog that shrouded his small cabin cruiser. It had rolled in suddenly, and unexpectedly, and his faded pink Ocean Pacific shorts and white tank-style shirt weren't quite enough to fight the damp chill of the fog.

Picking up the 'Big Eye' binoculars slung on the binnacle on the wing - who's compass was also spinning uselessly, but not in synch with the one inside - Pete slowly swept what he thought was the right quadrant of the sky, looking for the faintest hint of the sun through the featureless gray void - and finding nothing.

With another curse, Pete hung the binoculars back on the binnacle and went back into the cabin, wondering how the hell his 'sea sense' had failed him so completely in regards to the weather.

When he'd departed Nassau, Bahamas, the day had just begun, the golden light of sunrise promising another clear blue day in paradise. The sort of day just made for taking a boat out into the featureless expanse of the ocean and letting the stresses of 'civilization' flow into that great, blue-gray emptiness. There was something about being at sea that just relaxed the human psyche - and it was this that Pete relied on to make his living, the Mama being one of a hundred charter boats in Nassau.

Today's voyage wasn't a paying one, however, which was just another lead brick added to the weight of the situation - he wasn't even getting paid for being lost out in this fog. He had no one to blame but himself, of course. He'd made a strict personal policy with himself, telling himself that he wouldn't take the Mama out unless he had enough of a charter to at least cover the overhead of fuel and current anchor fees...

...yet, here he was, on a 'charter' that wasn't earning him a cent. How had he ever let himself get into this situation...?

Then the smell of rich Jamaican coffee floated through the still, muggy air, tantalizing his olfactory senses, accompanied by a gentle, feminine humming that stimulated... other things, and he knew exactly why he'd taken this 'charter', and it didn't have a damned thing to do with financial rewards...

"Now that..." A clear soprano voice said in perky disgust '...is the definition of 'depressing'." Turning, Pete managed to work up a wry smile at the sight of his passenger.

Tamara '*Call me Tammy (giggle)*' Jones was about the same height as him, but built along considerably more slender lines. In nautical terms, Pete was a tugboat, short, stubby and powerful, while she was a corvette; lean and long and graceful - and boy, did she boast a big pair of guns...

"What song were you humming, anyway?" Pete asked, gratefully accepting the steaming mug of coffee she held out to him. Tammy grinned, somewhat bashfully. "Actually, it was the theme from Gilligan's Island..."

That managed to get a laugh out of Pete - because his boat was the same make and model as the Minnow from the TV show. "That must make you the movie star..." Pete quipped, his mood lightened by her very presence.

Her pink-glossed lips pursed, and her bright blue eyes took on a thoughtful look. "No - I think I must be the skipper..." "The skipper...?" Pete repeated, blankly, taking a sip of coffee.

"Yeah..." Tammy grinned, hefting her delightfully straining white T-shirt. "...and these are my 'little buddies'..." That sip of coffee tried to come out of his noes as Pete doubled over in unexpected laughter.

Pete would be the first to admit that he had a 'fetish' - he liked big tits. Not D-cup 'big', nor even DDD-cup; we're talking huge, round, surgically-inflated, 'Kee-rist, Morty, dey wuz de size of friggin' basketballs!' big.

So, when a slender, supple blonde woman who happened to be a stripper from Florida, and who also happened to have a pair of huge, round, basket-ball-sized tits came up to him on the pier and asked him to 'take her on a pleasure cruise' (her choice of words), who was he to say no?

Even if where she wanted to cruise to was the middle of what was known to some as 'the Bermuda Triangle'. Not that Pete believed in such a thing, of course - he wasn't a superstitious fool, to be taken in by all that crap. Certainly, the sudden, thick fog and strange way the instruments were acting had nothing to do with the silly myths about this area of the ocean. It was just some strange weather pattern...

...which happened to be coupled with strange atmospheric interference...

...the likes of which Pete had never seen, nor even heard about - except in those silly 'Triangle' myths. It was just coincidence...

...wasn't it?

That particular line of thought sobered Pete up damned quick, enough so that he (regretfully) tore his eyes off of Tammy's luscious figure. Which wasn't easy to do - dressed casually, comfortably and sensibly in a short white tennis skirt and a white tied-at-the-bottom T-shirt over a hot pink bikini that showed faintly through the thin material, Tammy was barefoot and gracefully relaxed, despite the situation they found themselves in - trusting implicitly in Pete's abilities and professional seamanship.

He wasn't quite sure how to tell her that all his knowledge and skills having to do with the sea were currently useless. Hell, without being able to see the sun, he couldn't even do the most basic calculation of their current position.

Pete was trying to figure out the gentlest way to break this unpleasant news to Tammy when the now-familiar undulating hum of interference from the radio died away, to be replaced with a slightly scratchy form of silence. Pete's head snapped to left, and he found himself staring at the scratched and discolored black plastic grille protecting the radio's speaker.

'..on Yellow Band, 3000 kilo-cycle range. ' came wafting out of that silence, so faint and distorted as to sound like an eerie sound effect from some Hollywood movie. There was a short crackle of static, obscuring what came next....

...then, suddenly, the transmission was so crystal-clear that it blasted from the radio, whose volume was still turned up.

'This is Fox-Tare-Two-Eight calling any station on this frequency, mayday, mayday, mayday. Goddamn it, somebody reply ! Over.'

Even as Pete hastily turned the volume down to bearable levels and grabbed the racked mike, he could sympathize with the unknown man on the other end of the tenuous electronic lifeline. The only thing that had kept Pete from declaring a Mayday himself had been the lack of response on any frequency. It was a touch-stone of faith to aviators and sailors that when you called 'mayday' on Guard, somebody would answer. The thought that it might not happen this time was so disturbing that Pete had been unwilling to try.

From the sound of it, 'Fox Tare 28' was near panic himself. Well, Pete could not only sympathize - he could renew the unknown man's faith in the mystic significance of the call no aviator or sailor ever wanted to make.

"Fox Tare Twenty Eight, this is station Mike-Victor-Zero-Niner, private motor vessel Bahama Mama out of Nassau, responding to your Mayday. Over." Pete transmitted, trying to sound calm, cool and collected - and more happy to hear another person's voice on the damned radio than he'd care to admit. Even the voice of somebody who sounded to be in as much - or more - trouble as Pete himself.

'Thank God, uh... Mike Victor? I am a TBF on a training flight out of Ft. Lauderdale, flight lead for a wing of five. I am at angels one, both compasses out, and skoosh on fuel. I have no idea where the rest of my flight is, and had my crew bailout over a spit of land I passed about twenty - two zero - minutes ago. Over.'

Ouch - this guy was definitely in more trouble than Pete was. At least on a boat, you could drift when you ran out of fuel...

Pete wasn't exactly up on his military aircraft - what he knew came mainly from watching Top Gun a time or three. He had no idea what type of plane a 'TBF' was - but he did know that ditching an aircraft was, literally, a last-ditch maneuver. From the sounds of it, this poor guy had gotten his training flight lost - then lost the rest of his training flight, as well. Pete had to give him credit, though - rather than risk all of them on a water-landing, he'd chosen to have his crew bailout over land when they came across it, than had continued onward...

...not in the hopes of actually finding someplace better to land his aircraft, but hoping to find somebody - anybody - he could give the position of his crew to, in hopes they'd be rescued.

"Twenty-Eight, wait one..." Pete transmitted.

'Better be a short one...' The pilot radioed back, obviously worried about his fuel state - but no longer near panic. 'Fox Tare Twenty- eight, standing by.'

Reaching into a cubbyhole under the radio, Pete extracted a bright-orange metal box and opened it, removing the Very Pistol and a handful of flares. Quickly, he explained to Tammy how the signal-gun worked, and handed her the pistol and the flares. She nodded, her face startled but intent, and stepped out onto the abbreviated bride-wing.

"Twenty-Eight, I am now firing flares..." He transmitted - as a 'thump-WOOoossshhh...' from outside gave truth to his statement.

'Roger, Mike-Victor - I see a red glow, two o'clock low. The fog's making it hard to pin-point, though. Over.' The pilot radioed, relief evident in his voice - if he could see the flare at all, diffuse as it was, he must be close to the Mama.

"Understood. Be advised, manufacturer specs on the flare indicates a top-out at three hundred - three-zero-zero - feet. I can't give you wind or wave direction, but the sea's calm and the wind's light, all running parallel to my course, whatever that it. I'm turning on every goddamn light I got, and firing another flare. Over."

Even as she spoke, Pete manipulated some switches and dials. The port engine's growl dropped for a second as the gears switched it from driving the screw to operating the generator.. and then all the navigation lights flared to 'bright-steady', with the fore-and-aft fog anchor lamps flaring to incandescent life. From outside, Tammy obeyed Pete's 'thirty seconds' instruction, and another red flare went sizzling into the air.

'Roger, Mike-Victor. I have your rough position, and am dropping. I'm running on fumes and am going to try and put her down as close as possible. Over.'

"Roger, Mike-Victor standing by to render assistance." Pete responded - then racked the mike and grabbed the small, hand-held radio, ducking out onto the bridge-wing. Waving a negative hand at the Very pistol Tammy proffered him, he gestured skywards and aft, tilting his head and listening intensely.

There was another 'whoosh' from right beside him - and as the sound faded, he could hear the drone of a powerful piston-driven prop plane.

Pete strained his eyes, focusing in the section of sky the sound seemed to be coming from. If the aircraft landed out-of-sight, he'd have to try and sail to where he thought it had come down...

For a long, seemingly endless instant, Pete's straining eyes saw nothing... and then there was a faintly darker patch in the otherwise featureless gray of the fog...

...which suddenly, almost shockingly, snapped into focus, like some prehistoric monster from the depths of time.

Pete had never seen an aircraft quite like it. It was big, really big for a single-engine aircraft. It had a huge, rotary-piston engine that gave it's barrel-shaped profile a pugnacious, flat-fronted snout tipped by a whirling disk of it's propeller. The rotund fuselage boasted thick, stubby-looking slab-like wings, and a long, 'greenhouse'-style canopy rose on it's spine, the back end of which ran into a 'ball' turret sporting a pair of fifty-caliber machine guns, now pointed skyward and unmanned.

The aircraft was painted dark blue, making the bright white star and the legend 'FT-28' on it's side all the more visible. The designation on the side explained the call-sign... except that it raised another question. The accepted phonetic version of that designation should have been 'Foxtrot-Tango', not 'Fox Tare'....

...then the thought slipped from Pete's mind as the aircraft settled lower and closer to the Mama. Though still a good thirty yards away, Pete found himself cringing slightly as the big aircraft settled closer to the waves...

The aircraft's engine just started to splutter in a most definite 'out of gas' sort of sound when it's round belly touched the low, long swells

- and the propelled bit into the salty water, crumpling it inward and stopping the engine dead.

The sound was like nothing Pete had ever heard before, a loud rushing sound coupled with a sound that reminded Pete of the way his dad had used to crumple beer cans before throwing them out. The plane's blunt nose bit into the water and acted like a brake, throwing the tail end upward sharply - so far upward that Pete feared the plane would tumble end-over-end. Thankfully, the plane's momentum was already spent, and the aircraft settled back on an even keel.. and then began to settle even more as water rushed in through bent and sprung aluminum plates, the additional weight beginning to kill what little natural buoyancy the aircraft possessed.

Even before Pete could begin to worry, the canopy slid back and the figure of the pilot appeared, hauling himself out of the cockpit. Dressed in beige clothing and a bright yellow life-jacket, the pilot moved with the crisp, unhurried speed of somebody responding to well-drilled training, opening a panel on the side of the fuselage and extracting a bright yellow cube. Even as the sullen swells began to wash over the wing on which he stood, the pilot made a tugging motion and the 'cube' rapidly expanded into a Zodiac-style rubber life-raft. Stepping into the three-man raft, the pilot began to vigorously paddle towards the Mama, the raft wavering from his off-set position on the single paddle - but generally moving in the right direction.

Behind him, the plane settled lower in the water... and then, with a final hissing, it was gone.

The tall, lean figure of the pilot was getting closer, and Pete hurried through the bridge, down a short ladder, and onto the main deck of the boat. Grabbing up a long, unwieldy boat-hook, he struggled to extend it over the railing. Tammy's arms joined his in a moment, and he muttered a quick thanks to her as they guided the end of the long pole towards the life-raft. The pilot dropped his paddle overboard and leaned forward, gasping the hook-like end. After that, the pilot simply pulled himself in, hand over hand while Pete and Tammy yanked the pole inward.

When the boat bumped aside the Mama, Pete released the pole, letting Tammy balance it over the railing, now so close to mid-point that Tammy had little trouble with it. Quickly, Pete undid the clasps holding the section of railing in place and swung it aside, reaching over to extend a hand to the tall, dark-haired pilot. Below the thick frizz of hair that showed beneath the... (Was that a leather flying helmet?, Pete wondered in amazement, then pushed the irrelevant thought aside) ...a gash in his forehead left a rivulet of blood flowing down his hawk-like nose, attesting to the impact the plane had experienced on hitting the water.

With a grunt of effort, Pete practically lifted the injured pilot aboard, then rose and swung the railing closed, letting the raft drift away.

"Thanks..." the pilot gasped, sitting up. "It's nice to have a friend around when you need it - and after this, I think I'd be happy to call you 'friend'." He extended a leather-gloved hand. "Charles Taylor, Lieutenant in the United States Navy Air Corps, and flight lead for Training Flight Nineteen... well, until I lost them."

Pete heard a gasp from Tammy, and felt a chill run down his own spine as he helped the aviator to his feet.

"Uh... Pete. Peter Merrick, civilian." Pete replied, numbly, shaking the hand he still held. "Uh... That's Tamara Jones."

Releasing Pete's hand, Taylor turned with a friendly grin... then stopped and stared, eyes widening and jaw dropping, his glazed eyes staring at Tammy's big, barely-concealed breasts. Then they dropped and flicked across her tanned, bare - and very shapely - legs, quite a lot of which were displayed by that short pleated skirt. Only then did he flick his eyes to her face - and then glance away, blushing in embarrassment.

He needn't have bothered - Tammy didn't even notice. She was staring in horror at Pete with a stunned, unseeing gaze. "Call her Tammy..." Pete said inanely, feeling the need to speak on Tammy's behalf. "Uh, Lieutenant..."

"Please, call me Chuck." The pilot said, throwing one last, startled, gaze at Tammy's chest before turning to smile down at Pete, green eyes crinkling with his friendly grin.

"Uh, Chuck..." Pete said, his thought's somewhat derailed by the pilot's friendly interruption. The short, stocky sailor gazed blankly at the tall, lean aviator and felt like he was in a bad nightmare, where he had something important he had to do, but just couldn't seem to make it happen.

Then he shook his head, and asked in a voice that sounded very strange to his own ears, "What do you think today's date is?" Taylor look surprised, then he frowned in confusion. "Five December, nineteen-forty-five. Why - what date do you think it is?" From behind the two men came a soft sigh... then a muffled thump as Tammy sprawled to the deck in a dead faint.

Chuck couldn't blame her. Hell, he almost felt like joining her. Instead, he grabbed Taylor's arm as the pilot whirled in a delayed, too- late attempt to grab her falling body. The pilot's chivalrous-but-futile gesture was brought up short, and Taylor looked back at Pete in surprise.

Swallowing thickly, Pete released Taylor's arm and used his freed hand to punch the side-buttons on his Indiglo watch. He held the watch up to Taylor's face, showing him the date setting.

The pilot, however, was starring in stunned surprise at the watch itself, the small device on Pete's wrist that, to him, looked incredibly technical and advanced, like something out of a science-fiction story.

Making sure Taylor understood what the little, back-lit screen was saying, Pete read it to him. "October fifth... two-thousand-and-one."

The pilot blinked.

Spoke.

In a very small voice. "Oh."

Thin his eyes rolled up into his head, and he became a limp way slumping against Pete.

Pete braced him up for a second - then shrugged and let go, letting the pilot drop limply to the deck.

"Flight Nineteen." Pete muttered to the fog, shaking his head as he turned and headed for the cabin. "A flight of five Grumman Avengers."

From the same cubbyhole he'd taken the flare-gun kit, Pete now removed a white metal box, marked with a red cross in the center.

"Flew from Fort Lauderdale Naval Air Station." Pete said, numbly, sitting down in the Captain's chair, the first-aid kit on his lap. His eyes were string at the back wall of the cabin, but he didn't see it - he was seeing the wall of a bar in Nassau, one where charter sailors like to gather...

...and trade 'triangle' stories back and forth, more delightful tidbits to entertain the passengers who spent good money to sail out to nowhere, to see nothing.

Opening the metal box, Pete extracted his bottle of 'medicinal alcohol' - Cutty Sark Whiskey.

"Took off December 5th, 1945 - and were never seen again." He muttered, breaking the paper tax-seal on the bottle with a thumbnail before twisting the lid open. "Not even after an exhaustive search - during which one of the search-planes mysteriously blew up."

Taking out a small plastic cup from the medical kit, Pete filled it with warm, amber liquid. "...and, in forty-five, the phonetics for the letters 'FT' were Fox Tare..."

Shivering, Pete lifted the cup to his mouth and drained it in one, swift motion. He didn't even feel the liquid as it went down. He was on his second dose of medicine when there was a long, sharp - and definitely feminine - scream from the deck.

Putting the whiskey aside, he sprang out of the chair and hurried out onto the deck...

...where the slender, long-legged blonde with the huge hooters was sitting on the deck, dainty hands cupping her massive boobs. "Tammy, what's wrong?" Pete asked the platinum-blonde bombshell.

"I.. I'm not Tammy... I'm Taylor, Chuck Taylor!" She said in a high-pitched voice raw with panic. She didn't even seem to notice her hands squeezing her massive tits, rhythmically.

A masculine gasp dragged Pete's eyes to the tall, masculine body dressed in outdated flight gear. The man had hauled himself up on one elbow, and now he used the other hand to point with.

"Thuh.. thuh... th-th-thuh... That's my bodyyyyyyyyyyy!"

The initially deep voice broke on 'my' and spiraled upwards in a hysterical scream until the voice's range limit was hit, and hit hard. "Oh." Pete said, intelligently... then he went ahead and fainted dead away.

* * * * *

When Pete's eyes fluttered open, there were two very concerned - and slight shell-shocked - faces looking down at him. Chuck. and Pete.

Which would probably explained the deliciously soft weights pressing down on his chest. "Chuck?" Pete asked the taller male body, hearing the question come out in a sweet soprano.

The dark-haired figure... ('Where'd the flight helmet go?' Pete wondered, numbly.) shook his head.

"Tammy." It explained, numbly, pointing at the shorter body. "That's, uh, 'Chuck'. "

'I think. ' Pete's body told him, also numbly.

"Oh. Of course." Pete said, calmly, the fog lifting from his brain. He sat up, looked down. "You know, I've spent a hell of a lot of time and money in strip clubs that specialized in big-busted features, and I thought I'd seen big tits from every conceivable angle - but this is definitely a new one on me."

The two men shared a look, then looked back at him. well, her.

"Uh... Are you all right. ?" Chuck-who-was-really-Tammy-inside asked.

"Sure, I just burned out my 'surprise' generator." Pete explained logically. "Nothing can surprise me, now. Say is that another boat?"

He pointed calmly over the side, head cocked at an interested angel. which caused soft, platinum-blond hair to gently shift across a slender shoulder and the lovely curve of the nape of her neck.

The two guys stared out at the white shape slowly materializing from the gloom, on an opposite heading as the Mama.

She was a lean, glistening schooner with a low freeboard and tall, white masts. Her trim and deck were gleaming teak, and she was meticulously maintained. Every block and line in place, her life-boats snug in their davits. The only jarring note was the missing section of wooden railing near the stern.

The was no sign of life on her decks.

"Can you make out the name. ?" Chuck's body asked the other man, and Pete's stocky body leaned closer to the railing and peered at the passing boat.

"I.. I think so.... Yeah, It's, uh...." 'Pete' said, straining his eyes. "The Mary Celeste." Pete-In-Tammy's-Body said, calmly.

'Pete' shot him - uh, her - a surprised look. "yeah. That's right."

"Figures." She grunted in an unlady-like way, the rather gracelessly hauled herself to her feet, struggling to compensate for her lower center of gravity and top-heavy build. She watched the schooner fade back into the mists astern the Mama, then looked at the two stunned-looking people still sitting on the deck.

In a dry voice, she spoke.

"Gentleman, welcome to the Bermuda Triangle."

* * * * *

"So, what do we do now...?" The body of the pilot said, slugging back it's own dose of 'medicine.'

Pete's cute, upturned nose produced a delicate snort. " 'Now' has a variable meaning at this particular moment... or whatever. Take the case of our good friend Chuck here..." She pointed a slender, long-nailed finger at the pilot... paused... used the other hand to negligently flip a lock of platinum hair from her eyes, then shifted her finger to her old, stocky male body and continued as if she'd never paused. "...Chuck, here, who's 'hour' lasted fifty-six years."

"Oh.... Right..." 'Chuck' said, a stunned look in his green eyes.

Just then, the now-scanning radio beside 'Tammy' warbled a lock-on tone, then the speaker began to emit a static-ridden sound - not a voice, but still a message.

'...de-de-de, deeee-deeee-deeee, de-de-de...'

"What are they saying?" 'Chuck' asked, realizing it was Morse code, but not understanding it. Both 'Tammy' and 'Pete' leaned forward, closer to the speaker.

"An SOS..." Pete said, the mind of the pilot in the stocky body having learned Morse at a time where it was still somewhat common. "The Cyclops, a coal-carrier... loaded with manganese... Lost... Compasses malfunctioning..."

'Pete' was so intent on the transmission, eyes clouded with concentration, that he all-but-leapt backwards when 'Tammy' reached out, grabbed the mike, and hit a small orange button on the unit. He began to squeeze the mike's sidebar, and instead of keying the mike it generated a tone.

'Deeee-deeee-deeee deeee de-deeee...'

"May God save your souls..." 'Pete' translated blankly - and then comprehension showed. "There's nothing we can do."

"Can't we help them?" 'Chuck' asked, the mind inside the body forcing it into a lady-like posture of concern that it wasn't used to shaping.

Tammy shook her head. "Dear, we can't even save ourselves." She sighed. "Right now, the only thing that I can think to do is pound our heads against the wall a couple of times and see if we can't wake up in the right bodies before we give ourselves concussions."

'Pete' opened his mouth to speak - but never got the chance. A low hum suddenly sprang to life, and object on the chart table began to vibrate and rattle as every electrical system on the ship went dead - but that didn't mean they were left in the dark when the lights went out, despite the huge black shadow that had fallen over the ship - because that huge shadow was suddenly pierced by a bright, blue- green light.

Chuck screamed and staggered back, cowering. "What the hell is that...?" He screaming in a high-pitched tone of hysteria. "A UFO would be my guess..." Tammy said, calmly...

...and the world vanished around her, and she was suddenly somewhere dark and smelly and noisy.

She hadn't only changed location - she'd changed position. She was now laying on something that was firm and cool, but not uncomfortable. Whatever she was on was tilted at a forty-five degree angle, and she could see quite a bit, even if she couldn't see herself. Though she felt nothing pressing against her skin, she seemed unable to move, not even her head. From the feel of things, she was also naked.

As were Pete and Chuck, who she could see on the right-hand side of the... room...? Chamber...? Oddly organic-looking space in which they currently resided.

They were mounted on X-shaped devices that stood upright, and must have differed significantly from whatever Tammy was laying on, arms to her side and legs slightly spread.

The three of them were not alone. Moving about the 'room' were several short, gray-skinned creatures with big heads and dark, slanted eyes the shape of almonds.

Though her 'surprise' motor was burned out, the 'panic' one was working just fine, thank you - except she couldn't express the panic she was feeling, not even able to scream. As far as she could tell, her heart rate didn't even accelerate. It was as if her brain was cut off from her still-living body.

A couple of the alien creature came to stand beside her table, and the panic swelled anew as they began touch odd-shaped devices mounted all around her 'borrowed', and currently immobilized, body.

She couldn't even gasp when she felt something smooth and metallic - but as gentle and supple as living flesh - press into her new vagina and anus.

There was no pain - very little sensation at all, in fact. Just a sort of 'pressure' - and she was eternally grateful she didn't have to fully experience the sensation of being double penetrated in a woman's body.

Other devices slid back and forth above her immobile body - and paused for quite some time on her chest. After a moment, two aliens - one on each side - leaned closer, and she felt an odd 'tugging' sensation in each new breast...

...and each of the aliens held up a golden-gray blob.

It took her a second to recognize them as her - well, Tammy's - saline breast implants.

They seemed to really interest the aliens, but Tammy was less happy about the impromptu surgery on a body that was not her own, no pain notwithstanding.

Then she had something completely new to distract her... as she felt a pressure just behind her delicate new ears...

Then, suddenly, there was something in her mind. Something that felt like it was accessing her still-male thoughts and memories, flipping through them like a computer mind search its hard-drive.

The aliens seemed very interested by something mounted on the side of the machine. They stared at it for a moment, then manipulated what must have been controls of some sort.

A section of the 'wall' of to the left slid open... revealing a half-dozen naked women on X-shaped 'beds'. They were a variety of ages, weights and nationalities, but they were all naked, and all had silver 'tubes' running behind their ears.

Odd-shaped flat areas above their 'beds' flickered - and revealed themselves to be 'TV screens' of some sort.

Each showed a different scene, filmed from a 'point of view' perspective. One of them showed an old-style Spanish market... and the view point kept sliding towards a handsome man in an ornate blue jacket over white shirt and trousers, a sword slung at his side....

Another showed a 60's style department store, the point-of-view focusing on women's lingerie...

There were six different scenes, but all of them were of feminine point's of view, each on matching the woman below the screen.

Then another screen flared to life, and what this one showed Tammy recognized as her own memory - her old, male body working on the Mama's starboard diesel.

The aliens seemed very interested in this, gesturing considerably, like men in a heated discussion - but there were no sounds.

A second later, a third alien rushed up... and all three turned silently to stare at an eighth screen. which showed a view of a strip-club from up on the stage, men clapping and cheering and drinking and smoking.

There seemed to be another conference, during which they all paused and looked towards the two immobile men. An alien was about to connect two of those tubes behind Pete's ears... but it was obvious one of them was malfunctioning.

Almost as one, the aliens turned to a section of the wall that suddenly became a very large screen, showing the Bahama Mama sitting in the fog. There was also a ghostly overlay of the airplane, and Pete somehow knew that whatever means of 'imaging' the aliens used, it could see quite clearly to the bottom of the ocean.

After a second, the screen died - and the alien near Pete turned away.

Tammy was puzzled for a second - then things began to add up, and Tammy didn't like the way the total was shaping up. The aliens were not acting as if they had created, and now controlled, the Bermuda Triangle. They were acting like people who had found something that held promise and were trying to make the best use of it - but were unsure and apprehensive about the strange phenomenon.

Which meant that the brain-swapping effect might be something from the Triangle itself, and unknown to the aliens, who were confused and intrigued by the 'strange' thoughts in the heads of their latest acquisitions.

Then, suddenly, there was a flurry of activity around all three of them.

Some aliens were doing something to the two guys - but they were also doing something to her, strange sensations coming in from her body. She didn't pay much attention to them, however, as she was focused on the oddest - and panic-inducing - sensation in her mind, as if her brain was a container and they were adding more liquid. She could actually feel something being added to her mind, new thoughts and idea, new brain-patterns...

...and then there was a 'sparkle' and she was sitting in the Captain's chair on the bridge of the Mama. The green-blue light napped out, and the shadow retreated, as the Mama's electrical systems came back to life.

They were back in the same seats they'd been in before, almost the same poses - but now all three were naked.

Tammy stared at the men. At their naked, glistening bodies. Both were now tanned the same dark, rich bronze shade that only Pete's body had been, before. They were also now the same height, halfway between the disparate heights they'd been before. Despite that, they still looked more-or-less like the original versions of those bodies had looked, and could still use their original ID's to convince strangers they were who those bodies purported to be.

They wouldn't have been able to convince close friends of the original bodies, however. Despite the change in height, each man was now also sporting an identical cock. Each was massive and thick, even limp, and attached to suitable up-sized scrotums.

For some reason, Tammy found those cocks oddly... tempting. She was only semi-conscious of the fact that her mouth had begun to water as she gazed at the men's tanned, naked flesh.

"My tits...!" Chuck said, then frowned. "I mean, your tits... I think..."

Almost negligently, Tammy looked down - and saw the massive, glorious, oh-so-wonderfully-huge breasts that hung from her chest, looking like a pair of flesh-colored medicine balls. Each was tipped by an enormous, fully-engorged nipple.

"Mmm... they're so big..." Tammy moaned softly, reaching up to caress her fantastically enormous breasts, shivering in delight at the way it felt to caress her incredibly sensitive, pleasure-generating mounds. She licked her lips, slowly, barely aware of the fact that her lisp felt fuller and more sensitive beneath an unbelievably long, supple tongue...

Wait a second. Was she really incredibly happy that she now had enormous, wonderfully sensitive tits? After all, she was a guy, or had been. She shouldn't be proud and excited to have enormous, huge-nippled breasts...

...yet she was. She couldn't stop the emotions that the thought of her wonderful breasts generated... just as she couldn't stop the sensations coming from her body, the rising - and delightful - heat in her womanly new crotch, where her cunt was quickly becoming wet and warm...

Almost before she was aware she was doing it, she slid gracefully off the chair and pouring herself into Pete's lap, her mouth pressing firmly against his as she kissed him, hungrily...

...then she yanked herself away, staring at him in shock.

"What the hell am I doing...?" She asked him, stunned, and the altered body she'd once inhabited looked at her with a dreamy, not- quite-there' expression.

"Whatever it was..." He said, huskily, "It felt good..."

Then he kissed her again, shifting her on his lap so she was kissing him over her shoulder while he fondled and caressed her huge, hypersensitive tits.

This was wrong. This was sick. She should stop him, right here and now...

...so why was she cooperating, moaning in pleasure low in the back of her throat. Well, the moaning was understandable, since it did feel phenomenal - but that didn't make it right, and she should be enthusiastically participating...

...and certainly she should be standing up, slowly kissing her way down his chest, across his belly - to where his cock, now fully engorged, throbbed and swayed in the air, at least sixteen inches long and proportionally thick even for that length.

She certainly shouldn't have smiled lazily at him, then wrapped her dainty hands as far around the massive shaft as they'd reach, and then lower her fuller, more sensitive lips to slip closed around the full, wonderful-tasting head of his massive organ.

'My God!' She thought in panic. "I... I'm giving him a blow job. and enjoying it!"

She was. It felt wonderful to have his massive organ in her mouth, which was bobbing slowly and sensuously up and down as deep as she could take him, her hands working the rest of his shaft in matching rhythm.

She was standing, bent over Pete's lap, her legs spread and ass out-thrust invitingly - and Chuck took her up on that invitation. She moaned and shuddered with exquisite pleasure as his huge, throbbing cock slid slowly and firmly into her aching, wet cunt.

She began to move in a slow, fluid manner, lightly flexing her hips to alter the angle Chuck's huge cock was moving across her unbelievably sensitive clit as he slowly and firmly thrust and withdrew. It was an frantic, hard fucking, but a slow, pleasure-building one that teased all of them into new heights of pleasure.

"Oh, shit, now I'm getting fucked from behind and loving every instant of it!" Tammy thought, still expertly sucking and licking the huge organ in front of her as she was fucked slow and long from behind. She wanted, desperately, to stop... but part of her wanted what was happening to continue, and it was even more powerful. She quite literally couldn't help herself - she craved sex.

Not just sex, but contact of any sort with men, especially handsome ones who were massively endowed. She wanted to kiss men, touch men, have them admire her, touch her, fondle her, kiss her, fuck her...

Her male mind quailed under the barrage of sexual images that paraded through her mind's eye, all point-of-view scenes that she realized had been culled from dozens - hundreds - of women and implanted in her mind. Knowing where they came from didn't help her fight them, though, especially with her hyper-pleasure-sensitive body and a ton of new, powerful hormones keeping her in a constant state of female sexual readiness.

The aliens had 'cured' her of her male sexuality - and from the feel of things, they'd cured 'Chuck', too - and, probably assuming Pete was as screwed up as Chuck, had obviously applied a completely unnecessary cure to him, too. The guys were as super-horny as she was.

Even as she continued to suck-and-be-fucked, Tammy knew there was more to it than that, though. Even as she had all her old male memories, and felt that what had been done to her was horrible, disgusting, a nightmare... new thoughts were making her think about acting more feminine. Going shopping and finding just the right clothes for her new body. Thoughts of walking, standing, sitting, posing in a feminine way. Thoughts culled from women's brains and inserted into hers, making her crave things that she didn't actually want to do, intellect warring with emotion...

...and emotion wining. The intellectual knowledge that she didn't want to act feminine paled in the face of the powerful pleasure that claimed her at the thought of being feminine. It was like a carrot-and-stick routine - 'good' feminine thoughts caused emotional pleasure, 'bad' male thoughts made her feel empty and sad, no matter what her 'logical' mind was insisting.

She was, mentally, horrified at what she was doing... but it felt utterly fantastic to be doing it.

It was too much for her over-strained mind to deal with... so she simply let her mind shut down and lost herself in the waves of physical pleasure washing through her, her body operating as if on auto-pilot as she let the emotional joy match her physical ecstasy, her blank mind no longer trying to block out the orgasmic pleasure of being female, and fucked while she sucked.

She shivered in pure, orgasmic ecstasy as Pete's warm, delicious jet of cum filled her eager mouth and flowed down her open throat.

The orgasm was emotional, caused by implanted emotional controls that forced her experience something very close to 'religious ecstasy' as she brought Pete off... and it was joined an instant later by an equally strong physical pleasure as Chuck brought her off, pumping his own, sweet cum into her wonderfully wet, eager womanhood as she twitched in an orgasmic spasm on his cock.

When the two men were finally drained dry...

"Holy shit...!" Chuck shouted, practically throwing himself away from Tammy - whose body he'd recently possessed, albeit one less endowed than before. Now, the new man stared at Tammy more purely sexual body in horror - not horrified by her now flawless, huge-breasted body, but at what he'd just done to it - and the male mind that he knew lurked inside.

Pete was no less shocked. Both men had 'suffered' the same reaction - with their minds altered by the aliens, they were super-horny, and had been unable to help themselves when Tammy had offered her body to them. Pete was perhaps the less to blame for his actions, because she'd actually initiated the contact with him, while Chuck had 'stepped in' on his own - but now that they were sexually sated, at least for the moment, what they'd just done shocked and disgusted them, no matter how wonderful and 'natural' it had felt at the time.

Tammy slowly straightened, her massive tits shifting on her chest as she rose and lightly swept a pair of slender, dainty fingers across her full, sensual lips, collecting what little cum hadn't gushed straight down her throat...

...and then slowly, sensuously licked her long-nailed fingers clean while the guys stared, wide eyed.

"That's better..." She said, with a soft sigh, turning and collecting her clothes from the seat she'd been sitting in when they were abducted. "Now, at least, I can think straight. "

The two guys shared a stunned look.

"That... That's the only reaction?" Pete asked, stunned. "You... you used to be a guy! Then you get turned into a woman, your, uh. "

His mid-40's upbringing showing, Pete gestured at his own chest with a flaming red face. "...uh, chest, uh, grows. and you have intercourse with two men - and that's it?"

Tammy had pulled on the pink bikini bottom and the white Tennis skirt, and was trying to figure out how to get the upper half of the bikini to fit her expanded bust-line. She paused in her work to look at the guys.

"Well, it wasn't easy to accept, mentally, at first, and if it had been up to me - the 'real' me, I mean, in here..." She tapped her forehead, "...I would have stopped. But, as I know you understand, I was... compelled. I had to have sex - and doing so felt really, really, really good. Then... then the 'urge' sort of faded. Not completely, but now it's. It's 'underlying' my mind instead of overriding it, if you know what I mean."

She looked at the two guys, who did understand what she meant - since they were in the male version of the same situation. Then she sighed.

"Oddly enough, the most powerful urge I'm feeling from them messing with my mind is to find a nice pair of pumps. Black velvet, with gold-medallion trim along the edges, scalloped detail at the toe, and a four-and-three-quarter inch heel..."

The guys shot her a concerned look, and she held up her hands - which did interesting things to those massive new endowments of hers, both men found themselves noticing.

"It's okay." She assured the two guys. "It's not an overriding urge - just something that's floating around in my head. I'm still able to function, even with the 'handicap' of wanting to be ultra-feminine in every way, especially sexually..." She paused, took a deep breath, and calmed herself. "...but it's not a good idea to think about that right now, which is why I'm able to deal with it - as long as I don't think about it too much."

She finished getting dressed, having found a way to 'extend' the strings on the bikini. She forced the white T-shirt down over her new tits, sighing softly in pleasure as the now straining material enclosed her massive new breasts.

"Okay - so, let's find something else to think about for a while, guys..." She suggested, not letting her eyes drop lower than their faces. "Maybe you should think about getting dressed, for a start..."

Blushing, both guys grabbed for clothing, while she studiously ignored them.

She had to. When she'd been having sex, it had been too much for her male mind to handle, so she'd just 'let go', and let herself be what the implanted thoughts wanted her to be. The problem was, having taken the 'easy' way out once meant that she knew how great it could feel to just 'go with the flow', let her ultra-feminine instincts take control while her 'paused' mind simply absorbed the pleasure it generated.

That was the real 'catch' in the whole thing - no matter how 'wrong' or 'sick' or 'perverted' any of the ultra-feminine things she 'wanted' to do were, they all generated either physical or emotional pleasure, or both - which made them something that even her male mind wanted to experience. It was almost like there was a switch in her head, now - she would be able to function as the 'real' her as long as she didn't dwell on her newly feminine body and instincts... and whenever the 'urge' to do something got too strong, she'd just shut her mind off and do 'whatever came naturally', until it was over and her 'real' mind would return.

It wasn't the best solution in the world. In fact, it was a pretty damned lousy one...

...but if she thought too hard about it, she'd get upset - and her mind would slip into 'mindless feminine mode'. So - she just had to ignore it as best she could.

The guys got dressed, and Tammy turned around... and laughed.

"What's so funny, Miss 'My tits are gonna burst through my top'?" Chuck asked, archly, and she managed to stop her giggling - which wasn't easy, considering that the guys were wearing clothes that fit so poorly. After all, she'd only really had a major size-change in one department, whereas each of the guys had changed in height. Chuck's clothes hung loose on his shorter frame, while Pete's clothes were skin-tight, especially his faded shorts, which stretched over his massively enlarged crotch, outlining his huge, limp equipment...

"I shouldn't have laughed..." Tammy apologized, huskily, licking her fuller, sexier lips and gently massaging her wonderfully huge, spectacularly firm tits. "I like the way those shorts look on you, Pete. "

Pete threw her a startled look - but she'd already turned away and missed the look.

So, she wasn't even aware of the fact that she'd momentarily 'slipped', letting her feminine side take over.

Chuck, however, had also noticed, and he shrugged at Pete. This situation was far outside their normal, daily routine that they hadn't the slightest idea how to handle it. Each of them were in a body not their own, and two of them were in bodies of the 'wrong' gender - though, now, their emotions and physical drives very much insisted that they were the 'right' bodies, despite what their memories and mind told them. It had to be dealt with, one way or another, and Chuck turned towards Tammy to point this out...

...then stopped, eyes widening.

"Hey - isn't that section of fog lighter?" The ex-woman-in-the-body-of-the-pilot said, pointing. Tammy glanced over - and stared.

"Yes!" She said, enthusiastically. "Yes - maybe it's a way out of here!"

"Wait a second!" Pete protested. "If we leave, we'll be stuck in these bodies. Shouldn't we try.. something? To get at least you two switched? In fact - why don't I knock you two unconscious and take us out? Hopefully, you'll be back in the right body when you wake up!"

Tammy's eyes widened, and she shared a look with Chuck.

Both of them shivered slightly, their implanted desires shuddering at the thought of being in the 'wrong' gender but another part of them saw salvation, despite the fact that their brains had been manipulated.

"Yes. Yes, let's do it..." Tammy said, hurriedly rummaging through the first-aid kit. "Here, we'll use enough of this anesthetic to knock us out. All you have to do is inject us, Pete - then point the bow of the Mama at that lighter patch and push the throttles - these things - forward. "

Hurriedly, she prepared a pair of needles as Pete looked on, then handed them to him, seating herself.

"Let's do this." Chuck said, nervously, sitting down himself. Tammy found her eyes sliding towards his crotch, but she didn't bother trying to stop herself - hopefully, she would wake up in a man's body again, and she'd have to learn how to control those implanted urges. After all, she didn't want to end up as a gay man...

The massive bulge at Chuck's crotch was the last thing she saw as Pete injected her with the drug, and the world turned dark...

..but, the last thing she heard as consciousness faded was a sharp, terrified shout from Pete...

* * *

With a muffled 'thump', the black Zodiac boat met the side of the drifting boat.

"Okay, keep a sharp look-out, people..." Lieutenant O'Bannon, United States Coast Guard, warned his people as he slipped aboard the boat whose stern lettering marked her as the 'Bahama Mama'. "Keep close, and don't wander off."

Trailed by his four-man boarding crew, the tanned, golden-haired young officer looked around the clean, empty deck... and then nodded towards the door to the cabin.

With careful motions, unsure of what he'd find, O'Bannon yanked open the cabin door and stepped inside....

...and his jaw dropped, as did the jaws of the other four men as they crowded in behind him, staring wide-eyed at the sight that confronted them.

"I'm Tammy..." The person on the right moaned softly, platinum-blond hair spread in a fan behind her as she fondled a massive, unbelievably round tit with one hand and used the other to lightly stroke her sopping wet cunt. "I was - and am - a woman, so it's okay for me to be a huge-breasted cum-slut."

Her other breast, the one she wasn't massaging, wasn't being ignored - because an exact duplicate of her, huge tits and all, was sucking on it noisily. Now she lifted her head.

"No... I'm the Tammy who it's all right to be a cum-slut." She gasped. "I'm the one who was Tammy before, not you. "

She was gasping because the other identical woman was laying on the floor between the second clone's spread legs, lapping at the exposed cunt. Now she pulled her mouth away and spoke in an identical voice.

"That strange electrical discharge before we passed out has messed you two up - I'm Tammy, and I'm back in the right. "

Then she broke off as she caught sight of the five men standing in the door - the five men who all blushed as they realized they were staring at the three identical women.

"Look..." O'Bannon said, trying to hide the fact he had an erection - unsuccessfully. He flushed deeper. "We're sorry - we saw the boat drifting and. "

By the time he'd gotten this far, all three women were staring at him, wide-eyed - and now they spoke in the exact same voice, in the exact same instant.

"Men!"

O'Bannon took a step back as the women rose and all-but-pounced towards him and his boarding party - then his eyes went wide as he heard the mingled voices of the women begging him and his men to fuck them...

As he found himself ion the deck, his clothes being ripped off by a very eager - and unbelievably endowed - young woman, O'Bannon thought to himself that there were definitely some 'fringe benefits' to being a Coast Guard officer...

...then the woman's incredibly mobile lips closed around his hard, ready cock, and he stopped thinking altogether.

FINIS

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: When his boss, a scientist, asks him to be the subject of a body altering process, he agrees never guessing that he would get stuck on the side of the road and fall into the clutches of a sex crazed mad man who would alter his thinking also.

Trust No Future...

By Gunslinger

It would never have happened if Nick had kept his mouth shut.

Of course, that was a likely a hypothetical as 'if Niagara Falls had stopped running' or 'if the sun hadn't risen.'

Keeping his mouth shut definitely wasn't one of Nikolai Gzadanteowzki's strong points. Nick might have quite a few sterling qualities, but, generally speaking, he was... well, generally speaking. So, the really amazing thing wasn't that Nick spoke up - it was that he bore Ron's rambling monologue for so long before voicing his opinion on the rather fuzzy subject.

"Why don't you just build one, then?"

The tall, blandly distinguished-looking man pacing back and forth across the floor with a rather vague look on his handsome face came to a stop, his dark eyes blinking as he focused his gaze on his roommate and assistant.

"Excuse me?" Ron asked, shoving his hands deeper into the pockets of the rather frayed bathrobe he was wearing over his clothes.

Nick sighed and tossed aside the magazine he'd been browsing through while keeping one ear on his friend's voice. Running a hand through his short mop of dark hair, he swung his legs off the arm of the chair he was sprawled in and sat, up, his lean, trim body moving with a sort of unspoken sarcasm.

"I said..." Nick enunciated each word clearly, "Why don't you just build a date for the conference?" He shrugged his slender shoulders eloquently. "That's the gist of what this whole process you developed is, isn't it? The ability to re-shape organic matter on the most basic levels?"

"Well... yes. In layman's terms." Ron agreed, brow lowering at the 'inaccuracy' of the statement.

Nick spread his hands. "There you go, then - just build yourself a date for the conference." One brow lifted satirically, the Czech-descended youth leaned back in the chair and crossed one leg over the other knee in a pose that seemed to say 'see - sometimes I'm smarter than you.'

Ron rolled his eyes and sighed. "Look, Nick - I know that you really don't care about the in depth details of my work..."

Nick waved a hand airily. "Hey - I just do the lift-and-carry and run errands. You're the Genius, Doctor Larssen."

Ron waited a half beat, then continued as if Nick hadn't interrupted. "...but my work in cellular re-genesis is a major break-through in the field. It is an amazing new process that can do many, many things - including, I must admit, the ability to reshape organic matter. So, yes - I could, technically, take an appropriate mass of organic matter and remake it into the exact replica of a human female body - but it would still be a dead mass of matter. I cannot breathe life into it, nor thought and volition.”

Nick shrugged. “Well, there’s another great theory blown to hell, Ron. Guess that’s why you’re the genius, and I’m just your stooge.”

It was said with a sarcastic tone - but no ‘bite’. It was just Nick’s nature to be sarcastic, having a streak of wry humor a mile wide running through his personality. The truth was, despite the decade of difference between the twenty-three year old Nick and his older - and brighter - ‘boss’, the two of them were solid friends as well as roommates and ‘co-workers’ in the house/lab that Ron owned. In the three years they’d been working together - ever since Nick got out of High-School - they’d learned not just to tolerate each others quirky personality, but to respect and like one another for their own qualities.

Nick, for instance, would be the first to admit that Ronald Lafayette was - flat out - the smartest man he’d ever met, as well as genuine dedicated to improving the welfare of mankind. That applied to more than just a global scale, too - Ron was just a ‘nice guy’, as well as having a great - if rather obscure - sense of humor, and he was a bon vivant of life.

Conversely, Ron respected Nick for his ability to cut to the heart of matters, for his incredible honesty, and for his dedication. Learned from his Czechoslovakian immigrant father, a fire-fighter who’d ultimately died a genuine hero while saving the lives of others, Nick’s stubborn view of life was simple. When there was a job to be done - you did it. No excuses, no consideration of failure, no sense of self-interest - you found a way to do the job, even if every other person told you it was utterly impossible.

It was this ‘can do’ attitude that had allowed Nick to get where he was today. Orphaned at the age of fifteen, from a single-parent family that had been poor to begin with, he hadn’t even considered his life as being ‘tough’ - it was just life, and you did what you had to do to go on. The thing was - it hadn’t pushed Nick down - honest and hard working, he’d never even considered the ‘easier’ - an illegal - routes that a lot of people in the same situation might have seen. Instead, he just drove himself on.

So when Nick voiced an opinion, Ron always listened. Despite the sarcastic wit, despite the degree of difference in intellect, Ron never made the mistake of dismissing out-of-hand even the most apparently off-hand suggestions or opinions Nick gave. What he lacked in ‘book-learning, Nick more than made up for in street smarts, and his unique perspective on things often pulled Ron through tough problems when ‘conventional’ wisdom didn’t help at all.

So, now, Ron’s brow furrowed and he began pacing again, considering the variations on a theme suggested by Nick’s off-hand comment, even if the direct application wasn’t feasible.

“Waaaiit a second...” Ron said, slowly, inspiration dawning like a new day - or the first day of a new era. “Maybe you’ve hit on something here ”

“Oh?” Nick asked, wryly. “What - remake a dog into your date?”

“No, no ” Ron said, waving a hand. “It would take months, maybe years to retrain the simple mind of the dog to emulate basic human behavior, and it's instinctive motor responses are too far from the human norm "

Nick snickered. "Yeah - and you'd be leaving yourself open to too many 'your date's a real bitch' jokes." He paused. "A monkey? Close to human body movements, and the behavior lab has some that are almost human in behavior now..."

"A good idea..." Ron allowed. "But the behavioral sciences lab have spent way too much time on those chimpanzees to give them up easily." He shook his head. "No - I was thinking of something even closer to the human norm."

"What's closer then a chimp?" Ron grinned. "A human."

Nick started. "Huh? I'm sorry, I missed something - what sort of 'impressive display' could you do, making a human being into a... human being? Sure, you could show some of the techniques for reconstructive surgery by making the woman more beautiful, say - but that's pretty small potatoes."

"Yes - it is." Ron agreed. "But what if I did something more... advanced. Like started with a man, and made him genetically female? Wouldn't that be impressive enough?"

Nick rolled his eyes. "Sure, I guess - but what sort of... pervert are you going to find who's willing to let you turn him into a chick?"

There was no answer, and Nick looked at Ron - to find him staring right at him.

"Whoa!" Nick said, holding his hands up, palms out. "Rein in the ol' gray matter there, Doc - you've blown a fuse somewhere!"

"You said it yourself - making my own 'date' would be impressive as hell, and really show what you could do with the procedures. It even has an immediate real-life application, for Gender Reassignment Surgery candidates." He lifted his hands. "You know how the money-men like being shown an instant cash-cow."

"Then find yourself one of those cross-dressin' freaks!" Nick said, emphatically. "Don't look at me!"

"I am looking at you." Ron said. "I'll admit, that a transvestite interested in transsexual surgery would be the ideal candidate - not only would they be eager to volunteer to be genetically female, but they'd already have many of the feminine skills already." He cocked his head. "But you know how long it took to clear you for this lab work - and we don't have that sort of time."

"Then you're SOL, Doc - 'cause I ain't gonna let you make me no friggin' chick!" Disgust and - yes, fear - drove Nick into the language of his younger days on the streets, and he was shaking his head vigorously in denial.

Ron sighed, then nodded. "All right, Nick - you know I wouldn't force you to do anything against your will. I'll just have to figure out something else. I'll start by calling the Behavioral labs... see if they can't spare an older subject..."

Still mumbling to himself, the scientist wandered off, lost in thought.

"Sheesh!" Nick said, slumping into a chair. "What the hell was he thinking, suggesting I let him do that to me?" Picking up the magazine he'd tossed aside earlier, he began to flip through it angrily, staring at the pages without any of the words or pictures registering...

...while guilt gnawed at him. Finally - angrily - he tossed the magazine aside and slouched off to the spare bedroom that Ron had converted into his office, finding his employer and friend staring at a poster of Einstein and gnawing on a fingernail.

"Any luck?" Nick asked, hopefully.

Ron shook his head. "The older animals are the most highly trained, and they won't spare those - and the brand-new animals are no better than the 'dog' we discussed."

Nick sighed, lowering his head. "I'll do it." He muttered.

Ron looked up, brow furrowing. "Excuse me?"

"I said..." Nick said, speaking each word with angry, embarrassed clarity. "I'll do it - I'll let you turn me into a.... a... you know."

Ron's eyes softened. "Look, Nick, I appreciate this - but I'm not going to force you..."

"You're not forcing me into diddly-squat, Doc." Nick replied. "I'm forcing me into it, If I don't do this, you might lose your grant, I'll be back on the street - and I'll spend the rest of my life hating myself for not doing this one 'small' thing. So - let's go ahead and do it."

Ron cocked his head. "Are you sure about this?"

Nick managed a weak smile. "Hell, no - so, we'd better do it before I chicken out."

Ron just looked at Nick for a long moment, judging his dedication - then nodded. "All right - we can do it right now. I have everything we need in the lab right now."

Heart beating a million miles an hour, Nick followed Ron to the lab, scared of what was about to happen - but even more afraid of what he'd think of himself if he didn't do it.

They reached the lab, and Doc - ever the professional - had Nick strip naked and wash thoroughly while he prepared the basic serum, then Ron proceeded to measure, poke, prod and photograph Nick for a complete 'before' work-up.

As embarrassed and shamed as Nick was to be submitting himself to a gender-change experiment, that work-up was almost worse.

"Very well - that's everything." Ron finally said. Then he looked at Nick seriously. "What I've developed for use tonight is a serum that - if all goes well, will translate your genetic make-up into that of an equivalent female. In other words, you should come out exactly as if you'd been born female. I'm telling you this so you understand exactly what you're about to get into."

He paused for a long moment, letting it sink in. "If you want to back out, now is your last chance." "No, Doc." Nick said, sliding up onto the examination table. "Just go ahead and give me the shot."

"I've included a sedative in this." Ron said, injecting a needle into Nick's arm. "You'll fall asleep shortly, rest well all night - and when you wake up, you'll be in the female body you'll be 'wearing' for the next week."

"Okay... Doc..." Nick said groggily as the shot took hold. Scared and ashamed, he fell into the waiting darkness, unnerved by what waited on the other side.

* * * * *

Nick opened his eyes and stared up at the white acoustical tiling that the lab's ceiling consisted of, then shifted them slightly to the right, to see Ron leaning over him, a look of anticipation, excitement and concern on his face.

Of course, the question that came to Nick's mind was whether or not it was 'his' eyes that saw this - or 'hers'.

"Doc...?" She asked...

...and answered. Though a little thick from sleep, there was no mistaking the feminine tone that the voice emerged in, and Nick closed her eyes for a second, gathering the strength she needed for what lay ahead.

"Yes." Ron verified. "It worked. Although the blood sample I took showed that your form might be unstable still, you are now - biologically - female."

Taking a deep breath, Nick opened her eyes again and - with Doc's help - slowly sat up, feeling the way her new body moved. It was very close to how her old body had felt when performing the same motions, but somehow there were subtly different sensation in the movements, as well.

After sitting up, she swung her legs over the edge of the table, not looking down. Instead, she steeled herself up for what she was about to see, as Ron wheeled a full-length mirror over to the exam bed and stepped back, silently watching as Nick examined the reflection the mirror showed.

It was 'Him'. And it wasn't.

It was as if the mirror was showing two people at the same time to Nick - as if, somehow, an image of a female 'him' was superimposed over the image of a stranger.

It was a matter of perception, really - but it was still indescribably odd.

Nick had always been on the short side, and the woman reflected in the mirror was the exact same height - but that made her average height, not short.

Her legs were almost the same as Nick's male legs had been, except for the fact that they were covered in a layer of hair that was much finer than Nick's body hair had been - but that body hair, which had been 'normal' on Nick, looked out of place on the woman he'd become. Also, though her legs were nearly the same, by some alchemy his slightly slim, toned legs had turned into a pair of athletically shapely female legs.

These legs led to a pair of hips that was fairly slender, as far as female hips went - yet Nick also saw them as 'wide', as they were perceptibly wider than they'd been before.

Here Nick glanced away with an indrawn breath, the sight of the ultimately feminine cleft nestled in the patch of pubic hair unnerving him. She returned her eyes to the mirror, letting the sight of what had replaced her manhood slowly sink in, become 'familiar', if not exactly comfortable - though there was no physical sensation of pain that her brain seemed to expect, as if she'd been violently castrated.

Then she let her eyes move upwards. The waist was only slightly thinner than it had been - yet, again, it was a matter of perception. It was thin - and yet, on this body, it was merely 'average', whereas, before, Nick had been fairly 'scrawny'.

In fact, like the height, that was something Nick's perceptions kept hammering into her mind. Before, her body had been fairly thin and light-boned for a man, and the procedure had pushed all of that slightly farther, which made part of her see herself on the male perspective, as if it was still 'him' she was seeing...

...yet, the 'woman' overlaid in her perceptions looked completely normal.

A pair of small breasts rode high and firm on her chest - and to part of Nick, the breasts were 'large', for the fact she'd never had breasts before - yet, to the other part, they were small, barely more than A-cups, small conical breasts tipped with feminine nipples.

Her face was very similar, yet different - what had been a sarcastic, fox-like male face had become - with only small changes - a willful 'elfin' female face, with a straight, sharp-ridged nose that turned up slightly at the tip, a pair of utterly average female lips, and dark, sarcastically intelligent eyes that were the closest link to what Nick had been before, although the lashes that framed them were much longer, and the brows above them thinner and more arched.

Topping her new face was a mop of hair about the same length as before, with no appreciable style - but the mass was softer and silkier, and somehow managed to look utterly feminine without any effort.

Then, as if there were some sort of computer-enhancement, the double image Nick saw resolved itself into a single, clear image that showed the new her as if from the outside, her subconscious assumptions of what she should be seeing - her male body, namely - suddenly dropping out and allowing her an unbiased view of her body. The sudden clarity gave her a 'real' look at her body, revealing...

"Holy shit....!" Nick whispered in the feminine voice she now possessed, her dark eyes widening. "I... I'm gorgeous!"

"Um, yes, well..." Ron stammered, not exactly sure whether he should agree - as he did, deep down - or whether Nick was hoping he'd argue.

Slowly, stunned, Nick slid off the table and eyed the reflection. With little actual change, her familiar male body had become a slender, beautiful young woman who bore a startling resemblance to 'him' - in more than just body, too. The same mind was running this body, and all the 'habits' had crossed over

- including the expressions that Nick always used, translated slightly by the new muscles and contours of her face. The slightly sarcastic set of her new features, the willful look in her dark eyes, the slight wry grin permanently etched on the corners of her fuller lips - all of these were quintessential Nick, made female.

"Wow..." She whispered, slowly sliding her smaller, feminine hands over her smooth, flat stomach, then slowly letting them move upwards and lightly, hesitantly brush across her small, firm breasts. "I... certainly didn't expect to be so... gorgeous."

She tilted her head, and stared at the stunning face that looked back, the well defined cheek bones, the elfin shin-line, the perfectly proportioned lips and nose...

She laughed. It was a wry, short laugh, and it was quiet - but it was a laugh, nonetheless. She turned to Doc, a familiar, wry smile tugging at her lips. "Not that I'm exactly ecstatic to find that I make a gorgeous woman, mind you."

Ron smiled in return, letting out a relieved sigh- he hadn't been sure how Nick would react to the reality that he was now female. "So.. you're handling it okay?"

Nick cocked her head - and this time, Ron had that odd 'doubled' sensation, as the movement was so utterly 'Nick' and yet, somehow, perfectly fitting for the feminine form at the same time.

"You know - I kind of expected the world to come screeching to a halt." She admitted, rolling her eyes. "Subconsciously, I expected just being female to... hurt, I guess, as if my body had been squished and shoved into a new shape."

"The procedure is almost painless, and fairly quick." Ron said. "The sedative was more for your emotional comfort than your physical one - watching and feeling your body become female might have been... unnerving."

Her slender brows rose at the understatement - and again, it was obvious whose mind was running the body, as every move and pose she made was Nick's, made more graceful and elegant by the new body.

"Well - I guess I'd better find something to wear." Nick said, eyeing the mirror again.

"Well - we have to do the work-up of the changes first." Ron reminded her - and that brought back something he'd said earlier...

"What did you mean that my body was still 'unstable'?" She asked, as Ron got the camera set up for the pictures.

"Oh - I just meant that your body's genetic code still hasn't quite decided whether or not this form is exactly right." Ron explained. "It's nothing to worry about - other than as something to remember when we buy your clothes. You might find your body changing a bit in the time you're female - it would take about a week for your body to 'set' its final form, you see."

"Changes?" Nick asked.

"Uh.. yeah." Ron explained in a distracted tone, busy setting up the lighting equipment to eliminate shadows. "Uh.. maybe the genetically female 'you' is supposed to be a little thinner, or heavier. The serum just did a direct convert, mass-for-mass. Now your gene's are kind of 'searching' themselves for any recessive conditions that don't apply to males, that now apply to you."

“Oh...” Nick replied, nonplused.

Finishing the last of the series of photo - having had Nick do quarter-turns at a time for the photos - Ron set the film to rewinding, then cleared his throat nervously.

“Now we have to.. measure you.” He said, his face coloring slightly...

...as did Nick's.

“Well - let's do it, then.” She said. It had been embarrassing with her own body, but it was considerably more emotionally awkward for her as Ron began to take various measurements of her body, his hands lightly touching her softer skin here-and-there as he took the measurements and wrote them down on a comparison sheet.

“That's... that's it.” Ron said, flushing still - the flush had grown stronger and stronger as he'd taken the measurements, especially when he'd had to measure the new woman's breasts, just below and above them, as well as across the highest point.

He wasn't the only one blushing - the feel of Ron's hands on her small-yet-sensitive new breasts, even lightly and quickly, had caused her face to redden as well.

“Okay - you can get dressed.” Ron gestured at the pile of clothing Nick had worn the day before. Nick pulled on the clothing, which fit poorly, but well enough to get by for now.

“Well, I guess the next step would be to do some shopping.” Nick said, tugging at the seat of her jeans, which were stretched taut over her slightly wider hips and considerably fuller ass.

“Now...” Ron said, slowly. “You do understand that you can't...” He searched for words.

Nick knew where he was trying to go - and felt a wave of shame and embarrassment, but nodded. “I know - I have to... ‘be female’ in public. I can't just by baggy clothes and ‘frump’ around.” She sighed. “It's okay - I understood what I was getting into before I began.”

It didn't make her feel any better about the thought, though - she had two days to learn to be passable feminine in public, so she could attend the conferences. Despite the fact she was basically a ‘display’, one of Doc's ‘proofs’ for his work, the conference was a big deal, and there was a basic level of dress and behavior expected - and, as weird as it seemed, Nick would rather ‘quietly’ meet those standards than have to have it widely known by everybody at the hotel, conference and surrounding areas that she was ‘really’ a guy who'd let himself be turned into a woman.

“Okay - let's go shopping then, Nick.”

That triggered a thought. “Uh, Doc - for the duration, I guess I might as well call myself Nicki. I mean - it makes sense, right?”

“I guess.” Ron agreed, carefully.

“Then we'd better start right away, so I can get used to hearing it, and you can get used to saying it.” Ron nodded.

“Okay... Nicki.”

Nicki looked at the reflection of her new body in the mirror - then sighed. “Doc - I’m going to have to wear skirts, aren’t I?”

“Well, I don’t know about ‘have to’ - but it would probably be a good idea.” Ron agreed. “Well, then...” Nicki said with a grimace. “I guess I’d better shave my legs before we leave...”

* * * * *

She kept expecting people to point at her, laugh of scorn her...

Of course, she didn’t really expect any of that - she knew that - now that she was genetically female - there was nothing noticeable about her, other than her ill-fitting clothes, maybe. But that didn’t help eliminate the subconscious feeling that everybody knew what she’d let happen to her.

The worst was in the department store. When they’d stopped in the bookstore to buy a book on the trips and tips of make-up, and then in the drugstore to pick up the make-up and feminine ‘basics’, Nicki could ‘pretend’ that ‘he’ was buying the stuff for somebody else.

But, when it came to the clothing, she had to try it on, in the women’s changing rooms... By the time they left the store, Nicki thought she’d blown her ‘blush’ fuses altogether.

Otherwise, she would have been beat-red to leave the store dressed in women’s clothing and wearing make-up.

She was wearing very unisex female clothes, and easy first step - but they were female clothes, and she couldn’t fool herself into thinking otherwise.

She’d flatly refused to wear a bra - and didn’t really need one, any way - so she was wearing only plain beige cotton panties as her first foray into ‘cross-dressing’ in lingerie. Even that was odd, the way they fit more comfortable than her male underwear had, but definitely different.

Over the underwear was a pair of black jeans - women’s jeans that fit her new figure perfectly, but felt strange for that very reason. A black T-shirt covered her small breasts and rubbed lightly against her nipples with every step she took...

...in her black leather ankle boots with two inch heels. The heels were blocky, and fairly easy to walk in - but that was just a lead-in to higher heels, once she was more used to the new walk she had to learn for walking in heels.

A new walk that made her hips move in a kind of swivel motion, making sure she didn’t forget that they were fuller and feminine. The same action also made her aware of her full, firm ass - and of her ‘empty’ crotch, where she actually missed the ‘cramped’ feeling of her cock in a tight pair of jeans.

She felt - and, to her mind, rightfully so - as if she were missing something.

The make-up she wore had been applied by the professional beautician the store’s make-up department had, and had been Ron’s idea, so that she could see what a professional did. Before she washed it off that evening, she’d have a couple of Polaroid's taken of her made-up face to use as a template for doing her own make-up.

"How are you feeling?" Ron asked as they climbed into the car.

"Well - weird, in short." Nicki replied, honestly. "But, honestly - it's not nearly as bad as I thought. I don't know what I expected, really - but nobody pays attention to me, other than the occasional.. uh..." She flushed at the memory of the admiring looks that her trim figure and stunning looks had drawn.

"As far as everyone is concerned, you're just another woman - not some sort of... 'wolf in sheep's clothing'." Ron said for her, showing he understood what she was trying to say.

She nodded. "Yeah. Honestly, Doc - if I'd known that this wouldn't be as bad, I wouldn't have hesitated so long in agreeing. I'm not saying I'm having a blast - but I'm not going to die of shame, either." She paused a half-beat, then grinned. "Though I had my doubts about that when I had to use the public washroom "

Ron looked over at the new woman with a small smile. "Hold on to that sarcastic humor of yours, Nick - it's seen you through most of your life so far, and it'll see you the rest of the way, too."

* * * * *

"You ready, Nicki?"

Taking a deep breath and shaking her hands to relieve tension, she nodded. "As ready as I'll ever be, at any rate."

They were preparing to head down to the convention. Ron had just finished loading his older, but meticulously maintained, Mercedes-Benz. While he had performed that chore, Nicki had been nervously getting ready for her 'debut' at the convention, agonizing over which clothes to wear in an effort to balance appearance,(what looked good to her 'male' eye), and comfort (What felt 'acceptable' to her male mind.).

What she'd ended up with was a good mix. She wore a knee-length leather skirt, the solidity of the material making up for the exposure of her lower legs. A matching tailored jacket went over a spandex crop-top that severed as a shirt - because she found it the most comfortable thing to wear, as she refused to wear a bra, and anything else rubbed over her sensitive nipples in a pleasantly distracting way that was just a little too-much to handle.

She wore a pair of black leather shoes with thick, four-inch-high heels that she managed all right in, although that fact wasn't exactly something she felt she had to be proud of. She wore a very 'light' make-up scheme, small clip-on earrings and - in a fit of whimsy - a small golden anklet around her right ankle.

"You look good, if you don't mind me saying." Ron said - looking pretty dapper himself in a rarely-used 'tropical' suit, with khaki slacks and jacket over a white cotton shirt, and brown oxfords.

"I'm not sure how I feel about the compliment, Doc." Nicki replied, honestly - then smiled wryly. "But... thanks, I guess. If I'm gonna be a woman, I might as well be a well-dressed one, right?"

"Sure." Ron agreed, gesturing towards the door. "Shall we?"

Nick nodded, and headed for the door, Ron following behind. As she walked towards the car, Ron turned to lock the door, then turned back...

...and his foot slipped off the edge of the porch onto the first step, sending him off balance. He did an awkward ballet down the steps, struggling to maintain balance, and managed to keep from plunging over...

...at the cost of a badly twisted ankle that almost put him on the ground anyway. "Doc!" Nicki said, rushing to his side and helping support him.

"I'm okay - just twisted my ankle." Doc winced, favoring his right foot. "Should we get an icepack..." She started, and he shook his head. "No - let's just go. It's probably nothing serious."

"You sure?" Nicki asked, and he nodded. She helped him to the driver's seat, biting her lip. She'd offer to drive - but, if they got pulled over for any reason, she didn't have a license that any cop would believe was hers. So she walked around and slid into the passenger's seat, feeling bad.

In the sudden mix-up of the situation, the mental note she'd made to herself slipped away, and as Ron started the car and pulled away, it was without her telling Doc that she'd driven the car a couple of days ago, and the gas-gauge had dropped to the half-tank mark - then stopped dropping....

She was reminded of it sharply, however, a couple of hours later.

She was just beginning to relax, and actually manage to enjoy the ride for its own sake, talking and joking with Ron while the car rolled along the secondary highway that Ron preferred to use. They'd passed through a tiny little town, and Nicki was in the middle of making a joke about what type of people would voluntarily 'exile' themselves to such a tiny place...

...when the engine began to splutter.

"What the ?" Ron exclaimed, checking the dashboard for warning lights.

"Oh - damn!" Nicki swore, slapping her leather-clad thigh. "I forgot to tell you - you gas-gauge has been acting up."

The car's engine died, and Ron let momentum carry them onto the shoulder before leaning forward and laying his head on the steering wheel.

"Look, it's no big deal - twenty minutes back to that little town, and..." She slowed to a stop as Ron looked at her...

...and she swore, remembering his foot.

"Oh well," She sighed. "I guess I'm volunteered." She looked down at her high-heeled shoes with a wry gaze.

"Look, Nicki, maybe somebody will come by. We could wait and flag..."

“Doc - how many cars have we passed in the last hour?” Nicki asked, pointedly, shaking her head. “Don’t worry Doc - it’ll be fine.”

“You sure?”

“Yeah... But you’ll have to give me some money.” She said. “My wallet’s packed in the trunk. I didn’t think I’d be needing it, ‘specially since the ID in it is useless for me right now.”

Ron dug into the suit’s inner pocket and extracted his wallet, looking inside. “I don’t have that much cash,” He said, handing it over. “Want to take my credit card?”

She looked at the credit card, then shook her head. “No - I don’t want to risk getting in trouble for using somebody else’s credit card. In a small town like this, they probably notice things like that, what with me being a ‘stranger’ and all. The money will be enough - we just need enough gas to get back to town, then you can use your own card to fill the tank.”

She popped open the door and climbed out, flashing him a smile that was supposed to be reassuring, but only revealed her own nervousness. Then, with a half-wave of one dainty hand, she closed the door and began walking back in the direction they’d come.

Doc watched Nick...

‘Nicki’, he reminded himself. He had to get into the habit.

...Nicki disappear from view, feeling guilty about having to send her off for the gas, his sprained ankle notwithstanding. Bending down in the seat, he began to sort through the bag on the hump of the transmission, looking for a crossword-puzzle book to kill the time.

The sound of a powerful engine pulled his head up again, and he watched as an aging pickup truck in faded green paint spotted with primer slowed as it approached the car from the other direction, the pulled a U-turn and stopped behind Ron’s Mercedes. The doors to the truck popped open, and two men - one heavy-set and dark haired, the other thinner and with greasy brown hair - hopped out. The slimmer of the two started towards the Mercedes, while the heavy-set man walked around to the back of the pick-up..

Upon reaching the driver’s side door, the man stopped and knelt to look in the window. “Afternoon, mister - need a hand?” He called through the window.

“Uh - just ran out of gas.” Ron replied, awkwardly. “It’s okay, though - somebody’s getting me a can from the station down the road.”

“Well, then - that’s okay then, now isn’t it?” The man replied with a grin. “Glad to see you got everything under control. You have a nice day, then.”

“Thanks...” Ron started to reply...

Then the window on the passenger's side exploded.

Ron had just enough time to register that the slimmer man had served as a distraction while the other man had come up the other side - then the tire iron caught him on the side of the head, and all Ron knew was darkness.

"Quick, get him outta there." Jason said, looking around nervously while Bobby unlocked the passenger door and hauled the limp form out and rolled it into the ditch, not bothering to see whether he was alive or not. Reaching across, he unlocked the driver's side door, then - following instructions - ran back to get the jerry-can of gas strapped in the bed of the pickup.

While Bobby fueled the car, Jason walked around and knelt beside the limp form in the ditch, finding that Ron was still alive, but deeply unconscious.

Quickly, Jason rifled through Ron's pockets, taking his wallet, money and watch before stripping him naked and leaving his underwear-clad form in the cold, stagnant water lining the bottom of the ditch. Tossing Ron's clothes in the passenger's side of the car, he slid behind the wheel as Bobby finished fueling it, then brought it to life, pulling off the gravel and accelerating towards the state line, Bobby following behind in the pick-up.

* * * * *

Cursing the 'impractical' shoes and outfit she was wearing, Nicki trudged along the side of the road and kept an eye open for a car coming from the other direction. If nothing else, maybe her being female might make it easier to catch a ride...

But no vehicle showed itself, and Nicki continued trudging along, one hand sliding into her jacket to rub...

"What the..!"

Nicki stopped dead and yanked the jacket open, staring down at the black spandex covering her small bust in confusion. She'd been so lost in the misery of hiking in heels that she hadn't been paying conscious attention to the slowly building... tingling sensation that was running through her pert new breasts.

However, when she'd idly reached in her jacket to rub her breasts - which felt like they were just 'waking up', a sort of mild 'pins and needles' sensation - her hands had encountered one of her fully engorged nipples through the spandex top, and she couldn't miss the feeling of the swollen nipple pressing back against her hand, even as the pressure of her hand against the nipple cause a burst of pleasure through her altered chest.

"What the hell is this, Doc?" She asked the air rhetorically, staring down at where her swollen nipples pressed outward against the stretchy material, and now all-too-aware of the strange tingling running through her small, firm mounds.

Then she suddenly realized what a passerby would see - a woman standing with her jacket wide open and staring down at the crop-top covering her tits, her nipples fully aroused and making noticeable 'tents' in the material.

Blushing, Nicki closed the leather jacket and buttoned it. "It's probably just an effect of their bouncing." She told herself in an undertone, now regretting her refusal to wear a bra. Shaking her head in self- anger, she tucked her hands into the jacket's pockets and resumed her trudging towards town, trying to ignore the sensations running through her chest.

However, it got harder and harder to ignore the sensation as she continued to walk - as it refused to go away, and was soon joined with another sensation that it took Nicki a few seconds to figure out...

...extra heft and 'jiggle'.

Frowning, Nicki stopped and turned her back to the road to open her jacket and look down. "No..." She told herself - it had to be an optical illusion.

Her tits weren't really getting bigger...

...were they?

Frowning and scared, she buttoned up her coat again - and her heart skipped a beat as she realized that the coat was fitting tighter across the bust than it had before. She tried to tell herself that it was all in her head...

...but she found that she didn't believe it.

By the time she got to the gas station on the edge of the small town, she had good reason to refuse to enter denial - as there was no longer denying the 'ugly' truth.

Her tits were growing.

Behind her swelling, tingling tits, her heart was beating at a faster rate than usual as she tried to act nonchalant for the 'audience', while her mind whirled in confusion. She knew that Doc had said that her body might not have 'stabilized' yet - but nobody had said anything about her tits getting bigger, and certainly not at this rapid rate.

Her leather jacket now hung open, as her bust had swollen to the point that wearing it buttoned was too uncomfortable - the leather garment had been tailored to fit a smaller bust, and the thick material didn't have the give of the spandex beneath. So, the coat hung open, almost as if she were 'proudly' putting her at least D-cup 'rack' on display for the man in the station as she went in and - unable to meet his eyes after he 'checked her out' mumbled the problem in a mixture of shame and anger.

As the 'surprisingly' helpful young man filled a Jerry-can of gas for her, Nicki went around the side of the building to the washrooms and slid the key he'd given her in the lock...

...then cursed in embarrassment, and walked over and tried it in the lock of the Ladies room, where it worked just fine.

Turning on the light and shutting the door, she peeled off her jacket and crop-top, and stared in anger and confusion at the firm, dome-shaped tits now thrust from the spot where a small, perky pair of tits had sat this morning.

Those small, barely-noticeable A-cups had been bad enough - now she was sporting a full, dome-shaped pair of breasts that - especially in the crop-top - couldn't be missed by anyone. Especially her.

In fact, with the added size came added mass, and the crop-top didn't function as well as a bra would have for this size breast - they moved considerably more than they had before, every move she made causing the to sway and bounce. When she pulled the crop-top back on, it limited the movement slightly - but added the sensation of her erect nipples sliding over the inside of the fabric to her list of 'things I don't want to deal with right now'.

She paid for the gas with the money Doc had given her - which was all of it, and at that he let her have the Jerry-can without having to leave a deposit, which was a blessing...

...although she could have done without the 'blessing' coming in the form of a smiling man telling her that he 'just couldn't say no to 'a pretty thing like you'.

She could have also done without his sincere apology about not being able to give her a lift back to her car, him being the only one on duty and all. Since she was broke, a cab was also out of the question - although she could walk back to the car faster than the cab could have gotten her from two towns over, anyway.

Sighing, she began to trudge back to the car, the gas can heavy in her hand, and the continued tingling and swelling of her tits laying heavy on her mind.

* * * * *

"No, we're not lost." Mark told Sandy in a frustrated tone. "We're just... temporarily misplaced. We must have missed the turn-off."

"I'll give you a turn-off..." Sandy said, under her breath. When Mark had suggested that they rent a cabin for the weekend, it had seemed like a great idea. It had seemed even better when her aunt and uncle offered the use of theirs, which meant they didn't have to pay. Everything went downhill, however, when the carefully hand-drawn map her aunt had drawn had been lost by her boyfriend, who was now proceeding to drive very slowly down the road he was sure the cabin was on, looking for the turn-off, or a mileage indicator - anything.

Keeping a close eye on her side of the road - not that she expected to find anything - Sandy's eyes widened as she spotted the mileage marker '124' - and right beside it, a small gravel road, almost hidden by the foliage, with a weathered sign bearing her Aunt and Uncle's name on it.

"There - it's right there!" She cried as they went past it, swiveling in her seat to keep an eye on the almost invisible driveway - and amazed that Mark had been right about remembering the instructions.

"You see it?" Mark called. "See - thinks are looking up... What the fuck?"

Mark had begun a wide U-turn - the boat they were hauling on its trailer necessitated it - and had needed all the room he could get for the three-point turn, pulling the Explore so far forward that the front wheels had actually crossed the lip of the ditch, pointing the hood downward...

...and the windshield directly at the naked body sprawled in the mud of the ditch.

“What.. oh my God!” Sandy’s hand flew to her mouth as she turned to see what had caused the remark, and spotted the man in the ditch. “Is.. is he dead?”

“I don’t know.” Mark replied, engaging the parking brake and popping open the door... “What are you doing?” Sandy asked, her voice rising in pitch.

“Just wait here!” Mark told her, slithering from the vehicle and stepping into the ditch to lean over the limp form in the muck.

He almost immediately spotted the bloody mark on the side of the man’s head - and the shape of it identified the object that had caused it. The slow, rhythmic rise and fall of the man’s chest confirmed he was still alive, and Mark gingerly lifted the cold, muddy man’s limp form in his arms and walked to the Ford.

“Get the door, honey!” Mark called - and, gaping, Sandy undid her seat-belt and leaned over the seat to open the back door from the inside, pushing a suitcase onto the floor so Mark could lay the man on the seat.

“I think he was car-jacked.” Mark said. “Come on - we’re going back to that town we passed, get this man to a doctor and call the police.”

Climbing behind the wheel, Mark managed to get the vehicle turned in the other direction, and he stepped on the gas with vigor, praying that a cop did come by and pull him over.

They were about halfway back to town when a groaning sound issued from the back of the vehicle, then a horse voice.

“Where... where am I?”

“It’s all right, mister!” Mark called back. “We found you by the side of the road, and we’re driving you to the doctors. Can you tell us what happened.”

There was a pause, then. “I... don’t remember.” The confusion in the voice was soon joined by panic as the man spoke again. “I.. don’t remember who I am, either!”

“Take it easy, buddy - you’ll be okay!” Mark called reassuringly, then nodded his head at Sandy when she mouthed the word ‘amnesia?’ with exaggerated lip movements.

* * * * *

Stopping dead, Nicki stared at the tire marks in the gravel, then turned slowly in a full three-sixty, matching up the landmarks around her with the one in her mind.

“Goddamnit!” She swore (‘very unladylike’ the sarcastic part of her personality insisted on pointing out) and tossed the gas can to the side of the road in anger, trying to ignore the sensation it caused in her swollen chest.

“Doc, what the hell are you trying to do to me?” She yelled, shaking her fists as the uncaring sky in frustration. “First my tits are out of control - now this!”

Looking around, she kicked the can of gas in anger - then hopped around on one foot, cradling her protesting toes and swearing.

The swearing redoubled when the heel of her other foot hit a stone, and she sprawled backwards, her swollen breasts jiggling inside her taut cop-top as she hit.

At least her ass was more padded for the encounter than it would have been before, she thought wryly.

It was small consolation.

Grimacing, she hook her fist one last time at the inoffensive-looking gas can, now laying on it's side, and then climbed to her feet. Pulling her jacket tightly around herself as well as she could now that her bosom made buttoning it out of the question, she crossed her arms under her still-tingling breasts, gasping slightly at the sensation created as her arms pressed against the firmly soft underside of her tits, causing her inexplicably erect nipples to drag over the inside of spandex top, then turned and once more began to trek into town, mumbling assorted curses under her breath - while she worried about Doc, and what would have happened to make him leave her like this.

It wasn't like him, and she was frightened - both for Doc, and for herself. When she'd finally agreed to become female for the sake of Doc's work, she'd never expected to have to face alone any of the time spent in her female body - much less a female body that was 'revolting' on her, instead of being juts revolting to her. She could swear that her tits were still swelling outwards, and not knowing why, or how to stop it, scared the shit out of her.

Pausing at the side of the road, she looked around to make sure she was unobserved, then opened her jacket and stared down at her tits, now filling the crop-top to the straining point, her nipples crushing painfully/pleasantly against the inside of the fabric. Grimacing slightly at the pleasant sensation, she placed her smaller hands under the bottom curve of her swollen, sensitive mounds and hefted them, shivering at the sensations created. Based on sight and touch, she figured that her endowments were now somewhere in the EEE-cup range, having gone from pert, almost conical mounds to firm, round globes.

Pulling her jacket around her as best she could, she resumed her trek, worry, anger and a dozen other emotions swirling in her as she tried to deal with one inexplicable event on top of another.

The wind slowly began to cool as the evening began to close in, and she shivered as her already rigid nipples tried to become further engorged in the cooling air. Aside from the fact she was beginning to shiver from the chill wind flowing over her bare legs and - damn it! - up her skirt, her feet were killing her. This much walking in four-inch block heels wasn't exactly a prescription for happy feet.

Or happy shoes.

With a muffled 'thop' sound, the heel of her right shoe gave way, snapping free of the sole of the shoe, and Nicki cried out as she went down on the gravel - hard.

"Damn, damn, damn!" She curse almost wearily, loosing the ability to summon powerful emotions for such 'little' inconveniences, having spent most of her energy already on the 'bigger' problems. With a resigned anger, she wrenched the offending shoe from her foot and tossed it aside, then pulled off the other one and sent it after it's mate.

Standing up, Nicki winced as the gravel dug into her bare feet and quickly hop-stepped to the pavement, finding it slightly more comfortable in texture, but damned cold on her feet.

Having traveled this route before, she knew that she was a good fifteen minutes out yet - or longer, since she didn't think she'd keep the same pace in bare feet. Looking around in the gathering gloom, her eyes fell on the glow of light streaming from the windows of a house set some distance from the road on her right.

Sighing, she trudged across the road, tip-toed gingerly over the gravel on the other side, and began to cross the unkempt pasture between the house and the road, finding the long, tough grass marginally better than the road, although her feet soon became soaked from the moisture in the growth.

She was less than a third of the way across the field when the pressure on her tits from the straining fabric covering them began to edge it's way into pain. She ground her teeth and bore the discomfort for another two minutes - then angrily pulled her coat off and - embarrassed and angry - pulled the crop-top off, wincing in pain as she had to drag the tighter elasticized part at the bottom over her swollen tits - and gasping in mingled pain and pleasure as the elastic strip 'tweaked' her swollen, engorged nipples as it went past.

"Damn - how big are you going to get?" She asked her swelling tits, now the size of small melons, with nipples about as big as her male pinkie had been from the second joint forward.

Sighing, she set about making a make-shift top for her rebelling bust.

Fishing in the pocket of her coat, she removed the pen-knife and cut the straps at the back of the crop-top at the point where they rounded into the back of the neck-line. Then, carefully, she slit the crop-top down either side, being careful not to fray or damage the elastic strip around the bottom.

This allowed her to 'unfold' the crop-top, the back now hanging from the bottom of the front. Nicki tied the now strings that had been the shoulder straps behind her neck, letting the 'sliced-and-diced' crop-top hang down over her tits. The original top now hang about three-quarters of the way down her breast, with a gap of an inch and a half or so between the top half of the 'shirt', and the new bottom half.

Using the stubs of the cut shoulder straps at the back - now at the very bottom of the make-shift shirt - she toed the bottom to the belt-loops of her skirt, holding the make-shift top in place, and covering most of her front, while leaving her back bare. She then shrugged back into her coat, shivering from the chill wind that had been blowing across her unprotected back.

Once more 'decently' clad, she resumed her trip to the house.

Reaching the porch of the aging - and somewhat dilapidated - farmhouse, Nicki was bemused to note that, contrary to her assumption, the light steaming through the window of (what she assumed was) the living room wasn't the steady glow of incandescent electric lighting, but had the wavering, golden quality that marked it as a form of firelight. Shaking her head, the slender, short-haired - and now, rather buxom - new woman lifted a feminine hand and knocked on the peeling paint of the once-white front door.

From inside came a heavy tread on wooden flooring, then the door swung open...

...revealing the most simply massive man Nicki had ever seen. He was massive - the type of massive that came genetically, as opposed from hours spent in a gym.

Almost seven feet tall, the man was obviously part Native American, with dusky skin just slightly more then tanned would be. That skin, roughened by exposure to the sun, covered a massive, broad-shouldered frame that carried massive masses of ill-defined muscles. Dressed in a pair of faded jeans, well-sprung boots and a leather vest, it was easy to see the gigantic slabs of muscles that covered him from head to foot - even his thick fingers and huge hands were muscled.

The man's head - shaven bare at the top, but with a neatly trimmed goatee gracing his chin - slowly bent down to take in the entirety of the woman standing on his porch, rose back to her face...

...then dipped back to her breasts and stayed there.

"Can I help you?" The giant asked - rumbled - in a tone that was presumably neutral but was so deep and heavy that it came out sounding about as neutral as tank driving by.

"I, uh..." Nicki stammered, waving one hand in a vague gesture towards where the town was - and not noticing the way it lifted the breast on that side up and out, while the coat dipped back, creating a view of not only fantastic cleavage, but the firmly rounded swell of the side of her breast. "...am having some trouble, and was wondering if I could use your phone..."

"I don't have a phone." The massive man rumbled benignly, with much better grammar then she'd - subconsciously - expected. "I don't have electricity or a car, either. I'm living the simple life, miss - though I doubt you find that terribly helpful at the moment." His deep, black eyes flicked from her chest to her bare feet, then back to her chest - only this time, they weren't just 'enjoying', but weighing and assessing something. "Seems to me that you're having a bit more trouble then just a flat tire or empty gas tank."

Again, she was subconsciously surprised by the man's perceptive nature.

"Yes, I am." She said, disappointed that help wouldn't be forthcoming. "I don't suppose there's a neighbor nearby who might..."

"Sorry." He interrupted. "Nearest neighbor is the town - I like my privacy."

"I see." Nicki said, turning to look in the direction of town - and not noticing how the giant man eyed her athletically shapely legs. She gazed out at the distance, seeing the faint glow of the gas-station's lights now visible - since night had fallen. She heaved a sigh.

"You know..." The giant rumbled, drawing her attention back to him. "If you'd like, you're welcome to spend the night here and get a fresh start in the morning. I think I could even dig you up some clean clothes and a pair of shoes, to get you on your way right."

Nicki opened her mouth to refuse, on instinct - then looked back out into the night. Thanks to her detour, she was now a good twenty minutes away from town - more likely half an hour - and it was cold, and dark - and, possibly, dangerous.

Sighing, she nodded. "Thank you..."

He smiled, showing even white teeth. "Leroy."

She lifted a slender brow at the name, but didn't comment, instead offering her own in reply. "Nicki."

"Nice to meet you, Nicki." Leroy said, gesturing for her to enter. She did so hesitantly, trying to keep as much distance from her own body and his massive frame as possible.

Then he swung the door shut behind her - and for some reason, that aging wooden door's closure sounded to her like the slamming of a prison cell being closed.

* * * * *

The doctor sighed wearily and rubbed his eyes, glancing in on his patient. "Still nothing - complete and total amnesia."

The nurse shook her head. "You know - I thought this only happened on TV."

The doctor smiled thinly. "Thankfully, unlike TV, total amnesia is always short-term. In less than twenty-four hours, everything should come back to him."

"Even a day seems an awful long time." The nurse said, peering in at 'John Doe'. "I mean, if nothing else - whoever did this to him will probably get away."

"Well, maybe not. The doctor said. "I faxed his prints through, and chances are we'll have name for him in a couple of hours, and that'll allow them to start tracking things like his car, credit cards and the like." He shrugged. "All in all, unless there's something he forgot that's 'time important', I think things will work out okay." He grinned wearily. "Let's just hope he didn't leave the stove on at home - right now, I think that's the worst that could come from his amnesia."

* * * * *

"Well..." Nicki said, nervously, shifting her weight from foot to foot as she spoke - more out of nervousness than having anything to say. "Thanks again for inviting me to stay the night - it's very kind of you."

Leroy shrugged. "Oh, not really - I figure that it'll come out even in the end. I'm sure you won't mind 'paying your way' a bit, right?"

Nicki blinked. "Uh..."

Leroy waved a hand negligently. "For example - I haven't eaten yet, and I'm sure you're probably famished. So, you won't mind giving me a hand with dinner, will you?"

Nicki found that she was, indeed, starved - the building material for the still on-going growth in her chest was being 'stolen' from her system, and her body was demanding more 'raw material'. She considered the question, then shrugged. "No - that's fair, I guess."

"Good." The massive man rumbled, pointing a thick finger at a doorway. "The kitchen's through there. Since I've already lugged in the firewood and got the stove warmed up, why don't you get dinner going? You'll find cans of stew in the cupboard, as well as plates, utensils and the like."

Without waiting for an answer, the big man turned and walked - thundered slowly - into the living room and collapsed in an easy chair that gave a tortured groan under his bulk. Completely ignoring her, he picked up a magazine and leaned closer to the hurricane lamp on the table to resume perusing the brightly-colored material.

Blinking, Nicki shrugged mentally - after all, he obviously was a bit of a loner, and his social skills would explain why - and turned and went into the kitchen.

After a bit of searching, she managed to heat a cast-iron pot full of canned stew warming on the stove while she cut a few slices of bread in half and put them on a pair of plates, leaving the recessed center portion for the stew. In the - honest-to-God - icebox, she found a couple of six-packs, and pulled two cans of the beer from their retaining rings and put them on the table with the plates and silverware.

With the stew warmed through, she carefully ladled a portion onto each plate, giving him the lions share. It was more difficult that she'd assumed - the old-fashioned pot didn't have a 'safety' handle, and she barely escaped scalding her palm on the hot metal before searching for - and finally finding - a pot-holder to use.

"Stew's ready!" She called through the door into the living room, and was 'rewarded' by the heavy sound of Leroy responding as she sat down at the table...

"Now, Nicki - that's not polite." Leroy rumbled, and Nicki slowly rose from the chair, confusion on her face.

"Excuse me?" She asked, looking down at the 'offending' chair for some hint.

"A well-mannered woman doesn't sit down at the table until she's ready to eat." Leroy explained, as if to a simpleton. "Which means, since you're serving the meal, not until you've made sure I've got everything I need."

"Oh." Nicki replied, nonplused. "Sorry."

"That's all right." Leroy replied, calmly. "You're obviously a 'city-folk', and in my experience, 'manners' aren't something you're expected to learn any more in the city."

Nicki had to keep herself from rolling her eyes. This 'back-woods gentleman' crap was right out of a poorly written story, for God's sake! If an author tried to pull something like this when the male Nick was around, he would have beaten the guy over the head with his own thesaurus.

"So..." Nicki asked, almost over-politely. "Is there anything else, Leroy?" "Some butter would be nice." Leroy said, his head already bent over his food.

Biting back the immediate - 'Nick' - answer that leapt to her 'Coral Pink' lips, Nicki got the butter and a knife and placed it on the table, then checked one last time before sitting back down and digging in, finding that she was, indeed, famished.

The ate in silence, the only sounds being the clink and clatter of the spoons on the plates - but that didn't mean the meal went by without anything of interest happening.

The first thing of any interest was good - Nicki's breasts stopped tingling. Surreptitiously, she looked down and decided that having her tits stop growing when they were the size of basket-balls was certainly better then having them grow endlessly larger - but that hardly made her feel good about the massive, heavy tits that were driving her nuts already, getting in the way as she tried to eat, shifting with every move she made with her arms, and weighing a ton as they thrust firmly and roundly from her slender chest.

The second occurrence was the storm that roiled in outside. The patter or rain was presaged by a distant barrage of thunder and the faint glow of lighting. The volume and intensity of the fireworks rapidly increased as the powerful rising wind carried the storm in faster then she would have believed possible, the rain soon pounding against the window as the high winds wailed and shrieked around the old house, shaking the clapboard walls with it's force.

They finished the meal and their beers, and Leroy pushed back the plate. "Wash or dry?" He asked, calmly.

Nicki started to say she'd wash - then looked at the pump that served the sink, and thought about her decreased muscle-mass, finally opting to dry.

They washed the dishes in silence as deep as the one of dinner. While Leroy boiled a pot of water for hot water, Nicki hesitantly removed her jacket to give her an easier range of movement, not noticing the look Leroy gave her now-massive tits, barely covered by the makeshift top she wore.

They finished the dishes and retired to the living room, Nicki looking at the rain slashing at the window, and intensely grateful that she'd found shelter for the night.

"So..." Nicki asked, in an attempt to be social, "What should we do to kill the time?"

"I think it's time you pay for the night's lodging." Leroy said, calmly. "Why don't you come sit on my lap and show me some... affection?"

For a second, Nicki just stared at the giant - then the meaning of the calm words sank in through a layer of disbelief.

"You want me to...? You think I'd...?" She spluttered, outraged - and more than a little fearful.

Leroy shrugged, lifting his huge hands to show he meant her no physical harm. "I'm a firm believer in 'free will', Nicki. You accepted my invitation to come in of your own free will, and you'll have to accept my terms of your own free will. If you don't like them, then you can use your free will, and walk right out the door - but if you want to stay, it's on my terms."

"Free will?" She asked, pointing at the storm-lashed window - which 'obliged' her by providing a spectacular cannonade of lightning and thunder. "A half-hour walk in a full-fledged storm, and you call it 'free will' if I don't leave?"

Leroy shrugged, massive shoulders rolling with power. "If it had been the most perfect day in creation, the terms would be the same, Nicki." He said, 'reasonably'. "You can't very well blame me for the weather, can you? I believe in free will - the weather, on the other hand, is God's bailiwick."

Incredulous, Nicki stared at the calm giant - and realized, by his own lights, he was being utterly reasonable. Like any man sure of his own 'reasonable' nature, there'd be no bartering, no concessions - it was his 'reasonable' way, or no way at all.

Then she looked out the window at the driving storm - and bit her full, lower lip between her teeth. Closing her eyes, she felt her body shudder...

...then, slowly, she reached up and undid the strings on the make-shift top she wore, letting the garment fall to the floor, exposing her massive, firm breasts to the caress of the golden firelight.

Hesitantly, hands clenched into fists, she walked toward the immobile giant, her breath's pace matching the rapid patter of her heart, increased by fear, anger, hate and shame.

He made no move to hurry her, and it was completely of her own 'free will' that she forced herself the last few steps - shooting anguished glances at the storm-lashed window...

...then, stiffly, lowered herself onto his lap, sitting sideways on his knees. Gently, Leroy reached up to pull her into a more relaxed embrace...

...and Nicki pulled away, rising quickly from his knees.

"I... I can't do this." She said, not looking at him. "You... you just don't understand." "Then make me understand." He replied, reasonable.

She turned to face him, angrily. "This is wrong... because I'm really a man!" Slowly - patently obviously - Leroy looked her up and down. "No, you are not."

"Yes, I am!" She retorted, angrily. "I work for a scientist who developed this drug, and I agreed to be his test subject. This..." She waved a hand at her now over-endowed body. "...is the result!"

"Ah..." Leroy said, nodding. "What you meant to say is: You used to be a man. You will be a man again. However - at this moment, you are a woman.”

She stared at his placid face. “What? Don’t you get it? I’m a man...” She tapped her forehead. “...in here. Doesn’t it bother you to learn that the ‘woman’ you’re trying to fondle is really a man?”

He cocked his head. “It would, if you were really a man. But this...” He tapped his own bald head, “...isn’t real. You just think you are a man - and since you are now a woman, that is merely a delusion. You are now a woman. You have the body of a woman. What ever your upbringing might have been, you are a woman, just as a woman raised as if she were male would still be a woman. It changes nothing. What has passed is but a memory, and what will be is but an unformed dream. All there is, is now - and you must deal with what is now, as it is all and everything.”

She gaped at the quiet-spoken giant with the soul of a philosopher. “Look - this might be ‘easy’ for you to accept - but it’s damned hard for me! You’re asking something I just can’t do - that’s what I’m trying to tell you!”

Leroy cocked his head. “How long have you been a woman?” “Three days - why?”

“You dress as a woman, move as a woman, speak as a woman - but you refuse to think as a woman. Why?”

She threw up her hands. “Look - all of those were easy to learn, and kinda necessary to get along. We’re talking about something completely different!”

He shook his massive head. “No - do you not think that thinking as a woman is more important, more necessary? All else will flow naturally from that, if you merely learn.”

“Oh - I’m supposed to just start thinking like a woman, like that.” She snapped her fingers.

“You can learn to think any way you wish to think. “Leroy said, patiently. “If you wish, I can help you.” “Help me?” Nicki snapped back. “Think like a woman? I don’t think so!”

Misunderstanding, Leroy nodded. “Yes - I can talk to you, help you understand.” He paused - then pointed to the door. “Or - you can leave.”

“Oh - of my own bloody free will, right?” She asked, sarcastically.

He cocked his head. “You seem to think that walking through a storm is so very bad, and you cannot do it - yet you obviously think being female is equally as terrible, yet you did that of your own free will.”

“Yeah, well - that’s different.” Nicki said, frustrated. “I mean, if I didn’t, the Doc would have been screwed. I owe him...”

“Yes - and to acknowledge that debt was done of your own free will.” Leroy responded. “Giru and Gimu - that which you owe, and that which is owed to you. Free will decides when these are in balance for your own soul. No-one may demand payment of a debt that you do not acknowledge you owe.”

“Shows what you know about the court system.” Nicki retorted - rather lamely, as Leroy’d hit a nerve. She eyed him warily, then cocked her head. “You understand my problem, though?”

"I comprehend the nature of the dilemma that you face." Leroy agreed, obliquely.

"So, if I agree to talk this through with you, and still can't do it - will you still throw me out?"

Leroy looked thoughtful. "I will not throw you out as long as you are trying..." HE 'agreed', maddeningly.

But it was better than nothing - maybe she could outlast the storm in this discussion.

"Okay." She said, pulling up a chair to sit opposite to him. "So - how are you going to help me?"

He leaned forward, and focused his eyes on hers. "Do you wish to deceive me as to your sincerity to try?"

She frowned. "No!" She denied, semi-truthfully.

"Then do not refuse to meet my eyes." He said, and she shrugged mentally - she could stare down the best of them. She locked her dark, angry eyes on his depthless, placid ones, focusing on not blinking or breaking eye contact.

"Learning to think how you wish is easy..." Leroy said in his deep, droning voice. "It is as easy as dreaming, then accepting the dream. You do this every night, when you sleep. You do not fight this procedure, as you are fighting now - no, when it comes to you in your sleep, you are relaxed. Very relaxed - as you dream, you are asleep. Sleep relaxes you, calms you, soothes you. It is the state in which you may learn anything - and it is so easy to achieve. All you so is relax. You relax your toes, feeling them release their tension and go limp..."

'Get on with it...' Nicki thought, annoyed - then immediately reconsidered. The longer the big guy droned on about nothing, the better the chances the storm would die down some. Focusing on keeping her gaze locked with his, she let her mind wander as he droned on about how the body relaxed, one part at a time, moving upwards...

"Until your eyelids are so heavy that you can not keep them open - and do not wish to. They are so heavy, so weary, and sleep - calm, restful sleep - is so close. Slowly, bit by bit, your eyelids slide shut, and you are asleep... asleep.... sleep..."

Leroy watched with detached satisfaction as the woman's eyes slid all the way closed, her breathing regular and calm.

Sitting back a bit, the once-psychologist rolled his shoulders, easing the tension in them from his unmoving position.

"Nicki, can you hear me?" He asked, quietly.

"Yes..." the word, half whispered, slipped between relaxed lips with a faint smile on them. "You hear nothing but my voice - and you trust that voice, don't you?" Leroy asked her. "Yes..." She agreed in the same, dreamy tone.

Leroy nodded in satisfaction - she was in as deep a trance he'd ever seen, and he'd seen many trances. It was one of the reasons he'd been defrocked from his profession - his so-called 'peers' had claimed he'd relied too heavily and too readily on hypnotherapy, and had shunned more conventional - and impersonal - methods.

Leroy wasn't bitter about it, though - it had been his own choice to provide the most help to the poor, delusion masses. So, he'd accepted the effects of his dedication, effects thrust upon him on others more interested in the money than in helping people find the Truth, as he had - that the moment was all, and the body the extent of reality, as far as it mattered. If something did not affect the body, who could it truly be 'real', and if that effect was not physically harmful, painful or damaging, how could it be 'bad'?

Like this poor, misguided person, who thought that what once was and what might be had any 'reality', when it could only affect the mind, not the body. It warmed Leroy that she'd happened upon his house, and so walked into the blessings of his skill as a Truth-teller and Healer.

Quietly, with the sincerity and unshakable 'right' of convictions, Leroy began to speak to Nicki...

* * * * *

The snap of Leroy's fingers brought Nicki out of her trance...

...and she stared at the big man in horror. "What.. what have you done to me...?"

Leroy cocked his head. "I would never think of 'stealing; a person's memories of what I have taught them."

That wasn't what she'd meant - because she retained a full set of memories of what she'd been taught - how to listen to her current body. How to 'listen' as it told her what was 'good' and what was 'bad' by how she felt, physically.

The flip side, of course, being that she'd been instructed to ignore anything emotionally based. "I meant..." She said, feeling the spark of anger...

...then quashing it immediately as it began to affect her body, immediately creating an unmistakable signal that the heat and rapid heartbeat of rage was 'wrong', from her body's standpoint. She felt the emotion - but couldn't bring herself to let it create any physical discomfort.

"...how could you do this to me?" She finished in an tone that conveyed that she was upset, even displaying the emotion with her pose, but forced by her body to stay 'reasonable'.

Which, of course, explained a lot about Leroy's strange, placidly implacable manner - he practiced what he preached.

Somewhat...

"You've stolen my free will from me." She accused him, calmly intense. He cocked his head. "Have I?" He asked.

She opened her mouth - then blinked and slowly closed it.

He had basically rewired part of her thought process - but he hadn't touched that nebulous thing known as free will. She could still do anything she wanted, within the same self-imposed limits as always. The only change was both simple and utterly complex.

When making decisions as to what she 'wanted' to do, she would be forced to consider them from a calmly physical viewpoint. The emotions and intellectual portions were still intact, and would speak up as always - but now her body had an equal say in the process, supplying her with another viewpoint...

“Let me show you.” Leroy said. “Here is your decision - do you stay, on my terms - or do you leave?”

Nicki looked at the window, where the storm raged unabated, then at Leroy, feeling the emotional distaste she'd felt before, exactly the same.

Then it struck her - she'd come to the exact same 'free-will' decisions as before. The difference being, this time there was no physical 'discomfort' to match the emotional one. Whereas before, her stomach had churned at the thought - and even worse at the aborted attempt - now she felt calm and in control, physically.

“You...” She said, searching for words. “You.. gave me.. ‘control’.

He nodded. “In a manner of speaking. Never again will you be afflicted by sudden bodily effects that would distort your thinking. Now, your body will not ‘garb control’ from your brain, as it has you whole life - instead, it will merely supply you with input.”

She frowned, trying to internalize the thought.

“Tell me - the first time you approached a girl for a date - what happened?” Leroy asked.

Nicki started to answer - then, realized that the answer was utterly unnecessary, as Leroy didn't really care - he was just forcing her to see the truth.

She had been nervous - palms sweaty, heart pounding, stomach churning, mouth dry - and, in the end, he'd turned away, unable to force him through that.

If she'd been 'instructed' back then, she could have been able to go through with it....

“Now - why don't we try this again?” Leroy suggested, patting his lap.

Refusal wasn't an option - and it was because Nicki had already reached this decision - twice, as a matter of fact. The first time, she'd finally balked, unable to take the emotional turmoil...

...or, rather, the physical effects of that emotional state. Now, she rose and crossed the space between them...

...and even that was different. The first time, she'd had to fight her body to get it onto his lap, stiff and hesitant and awkward. But that didn't feel good, fighting her own body - this time, she moved with an easy grace that combined her decision with her hesitancy in one smooth, eloquent series of moves, rather than a series of hesitant, self-fighting second-and-third thought battles with her own body.

“I still don't like the idea.” She said, sliding gracefully-yet-impersonally onto his lap, feeling her huge breasts sway with the motion...

...and she was amazed to find herself enjoying the feeling of her huge tit's movements. Her body - though new and unfamiliar and emotionally 'revolting', wasn't injured or damaged in any way, so she felt a well, pride certainly wasn't the right word. A sense of comfort in knowing that 'all systems were go', so to speak, even if all the 'green lights' on her board were for the 'wrong' body.

It was a weird sensation, and the closest she could come to a metaphor was the strange sensation she'd experienced the few times she'd stayed in somebody else's house and bed while they were away. There was a discomfort in being in unfamiliar surrounding - but also a comfort in knowing that everything was okay, there was nothing to worry her in terms of security or comfort. Strange, but safe and comfortable - and that's what her body now felt like to her. A new 'house' that was sturdy and comfortable, even if some of the 'furniture' was in the wrong place...

Leroy wrapped a massive hand around her firm ass, cupping her far hip with his broad, thick fingers - and reached up with his hand to touch the massive tits on her slender chest.

Nicki hissed...

...in pleasure. Though she was feeling the emotional distress of doing this, there was no way she could deny the pleasure his surprisingly gentle, talented touch brought, especially since she'd been 'brainwashed' to be more aware of her body's sensations.

"No " She said, denying the pleasure that was undeniable - a contradiction made possible by the fact that the pleasure was purely physical, while the discomfort was purely emotional...

Which caused her brain to 'lock-up'. Thanks to Leroy's 'teachings', her mind insisted in 'shouting' at her that there was nothing wrong with what was happening - that, if it felt good, it was good. Any negative thoughts she was having were what was 'wrong'. It was as if part of her was yelling at her to tell her that if she forced herself to walk away from this pleasure just because she'd once been male, then she was an idiot.

Caught between two conflicting inputs - on emotional, the other physical - she was so perfectly 'balanced' as to be unable to do anything. She certainly couldn't bring herself to cooperate with what was happening to her - her mind wouldn't let her.

But her body wouldn't let her fight it, either.

"Please... stop..." She told Leroy in a husky tone, moaning slightly as his hands worked her huge tits with skill and passion. For any other man, her gigantic, firm globes of tit-flesh would have been considerably more than a handful - but Leroy's hands were so massive, they almost managed to enclose the massive tits.

"If you really don't want me to keep doing this..." Leroy said calmly, "...then simply get up and walk away."

"I...can't..." Nicki gasped, helplessly, as Leroy bent his head and began to lick and suck her thick, highly sensitive nipples.

After a moment more oral manipulation, he answered her broken reply. "Then you don't really want me to stop."

"Yes... I do..." She gasped as his hands worked her huge tits and he nuzzled her smooth, slender neck.

"No - you emotions want you to." He said, calmly. "They don't matter - they are merely 'information'. Your body, and what it's feeling, is paramount. If you are not physically enjoying this, then you'd be able to get up and leave."

That was the truth - but Leroy's skewed 'Truth' of life forced Nicki to obey her body, not her mind - or rather, her emotions. She would be able to get up and walk away, despite her body's desires, if she could come up with a logical reason to do so - but there wasn't one, not one that wasn't based on 'illogical' emotion, at least. With her emotion's ability to 'help' her stripped away, the simple truth was she was a woman at the moment, she was in the arms of a man, and what he was doing did feel good

- from a viewpoint of pure intellect, there was no reason to stop, and so she couldn't.

It didn't matter at all that her emotions were churning in an unholy mix of fear, disgust, anger and hatred - for all intents and purposes, they were completely useless to her now.

Please... stop..." She moaned huskily, unable even to give true voice to the emotion turmoil and anguish she felt. "I don't want to...umph!"

The end of her plea came when he pulled her head down for her full lips to meet his in a passionate kiss...

...and to her horror, she returned it just as passionately. Not from emotional desire - far from it! - but from her body's urging to increase the pleasure the kiss brought. With no 'logical' reason to stop herself, she couldn't help it - it felt good, so she did it, it was a simple - and horrible complex - as that.

Helpless to control herself...

No - strike that. That wasn't the right way to phrase it.

Helpless to deny the physical pleasure she was feeling, and unable to act upon the emotional pain, she kissed Leroy 'hungrily', their tongues dancing in a frenzy of physical enjoyment.

Finally, Leroy broke the kiss - and Nicki 'reluctantly' let him, her emotions rejoicing at the end of the humiliating experience, while her body craved more of the enjoyable sensation.

"So..." Leroy said, one hand gliding up a smooth, soft thigh and under the skirt. "I think it's time to let your body have what it will truly enjoy - the ultimate Truth in life, the pleasure that a man and woman can create for each other..."

'No!' Nicki's emotion's cried....

"No." She said - and blinked, stunned that she'd been able to refuse.

"See - I told you it was free will." Leroy said, calmly. "If there's a good reason to refuse, you can - there just wasn't a good reason to refuse anything up until now."

"Buy your 'rules' of what's good, not mine!" Nicki told him, angrily. "You had no right to impose your.. twisted values on my mind like that!"

"You're just new to the Truth - you'll come to understand in time." Leroy said, imperturbably. "Now - what was the reason you refused the ultimate pleasure?"

'Because the mere thought of it sickens and disgusts me!' Nicki thought - but that wouldn't have been enough to stop her...

"Because we don't have any birth-controls." She said as the 'logical' reason dawned on her. "I could.. get pregnant!"

Since she'd never thought of having sex while female, the thought was new - and highly disturbing. She was genetically female, for now at least...

"You're right - that's a fair enough reason. Unfortunately, I don't have any condoms on hand - I wasn't expecting to entertain a lady."

'Hallelujah!' Nicki's emotions cried at the reprieve...

"Thankfully, there's another way you can pay for tonight's lodging." Leroy continued. "Why don't you give me a blow-job?"

"No " She whispered in disgusted horror - even as she felt her body gracefully, sensuously sliding off his lap and to her knees in front of him. As disgusting as the thought was, emotionally, and as disgusting as she believed the act would feel, physically - she'd never done it before and couldn't logically convince herself that it would feel bad, and thus be wrong.

However, she knew what going out into the storm would be like - so, the 'logical' thing to do was suck his cock and see how it felt.

"Please, Leroy - I'm begging you " Nicki pleaded in a voice that didn't sound like she was begging at all, but sounded as if she were auditioning to work as a phone-sex girl. " don't make me do this!"

"I'm not making you do anything." Leroy said, calmly, as her slender hands unzipped his pant and slid them and his voluminous boxers down around his ankles, revealing massive, hairy legs...

...and a cock that fully matched the massive size of the rest of him.

"If you really found this so utterly revolting, you would chose to brave the storm rather than do this." Leroy said to Nicki.

Nicki was stunned by the impact of the statement - because it was the absolute truth. If this was so utterly repulsive, she should be fleeing into the storm right now...

...but, in the back of her logical mind, she knew that sucking Leroy's cock would do her no physical harm, whereas running out into the storm probably would. No matter how emotionally disturbing what she was about to do was, she couldn't deceive herself any longer - it might be disgusting, but it was, really, harmless.

And with that horrifyingly honest realization, she found her hands wrapping around the base of his thick, throbbing cock as she leaned forward. Her elven jaw dropped downward as her full, feminine lips spread into a 'welcoming' 'O' shape, her dark, sultry yes sliding shut in response to her inner emotions as she pushed her warm, wet mouth down over the thick, warm head of his cock and slid her lips as far down his throbbing, veined shaft as she could.

The feel, smell and taste of Leroy's thick, throbbing cock filling her mouth was...

...utterly neutral.

Certainly not physically enjoyable for its own sake - but not physically disgusting, either. With her emotions rendered impotent, she could act only on the physical and intellectual components of what was happening, and from those two points of view, there was nothing 'wrong' with what was happening. Although she wouldn't go out of her way to suck cock, she wouldn't go out of her way to avoid it, either...

No matter how much she desperately wished she could.

Instead, she applied a light suction, sealing her glossed lips around the shaft and swirling her tongue over his swollen head as she began to bob her head back and forth, one slender hand fondling his huge, hairy sac while her other worked the spittle-slicked shaft in time with her bobbing head.

Her emotions screamed in humiliation and disgust - but none of that came through in her gracefully 'indifferent' movements as she proceeded to suck off Leroy with the air of a 'professional' woman just 'doing her job', neither pleased or disgusted by what she was doing.

Her emotional turmoil redoubled as she realized with horror that she'd just had a completely impromptu, spontaneous thought.

'I wish I was getting kissed and fondled instead.', she'd thought, without any warning - and it had taken her an endless second, lost in 'pleasant' reminiscing, to realize the impact of the thought she'd had.

It was also... true.

She tried to forget she'd ever had such a 'traitorous' thought - but all that left her to dwell on was the blow-job she was in the middle of giving Leroy, her motions graceful and feminine as she worked 'calmly' to get him off, neither trying to hurry it, nor drag it out. Instead, she kept the same rhythm, bobbing her head and working her hand until she felt him stiffen...

...and she found herself sliding her tongue under the cock's head to leave a clear opening...

...for the torrent of warm, thick cum that gushed from his cock and flooded down her throat. Warm, salty, slightly musky cum.

Salty, musky cum that her taste buds found...

'Oh.. God...' She said, thickly, swallowing the last of the thick, seemingly endless stream of cum that had gushed down her throat. "...no... Please... no..."

The she began to lick at his cock, cleaning it of every last drop of jism with a mild expression of enjoyment on her face.

Because, no matter how much her emotions screamed at her, she'd found the taste of his man-seed slightly... tasty.

No much - but it was enough to push the otherwise utterly neutral experience (aside from her emotions, of course) into the 'enjoyable' category. Instead of being utterly indifferent, either way, to the thought of sucking cock - now there was just the slightest hint of... anticipation.

And, despite her emotional state - disgusted, horrified, shamed, enraged...

...there wasn't a thing she could do about it.

Finished licking him clean, she slowly - gracefully - rose to her feet.

"So, are we even...?" She asked, her voice holding only inquisitiveness - and a horrible hint of longing at the memory of his touch.

"Yes, I'd say that we are." Leroy said.

"Then if you'll show me where I'll be sleeping, I think I'll head off to bed - alone." She said - and she was amazed to hear it emerge in a pointed - utterly 'Nick' - tone of voice. Though she was feeling many emotions that she couldn't express, even having her mind fiddled with couldn't erase her true personality - although it had been modified.

Leroy took no umbrage at the pointed, sarcastic tone and phrasing. Pulling his pants back up, he silently led her up to the spare bedroom, taking a small 'bulls-eye' lantern with him.

Placing the small, candle-powered lantern on the night-table beside the bed, he pushed the shutter over the glass down so that only the slightest sliver of light escaped, then - with utter sincerity - wished her 'good night', and left.

Removing what little clothing she retained, Nicki slid between the cool, thick covers of the big bed and closed her eyes, soaking up the chill air on her face, the slowly warming blankets on her body, and the smell of hot metal from the lantern.

Her body was 'saying' something to her...

"No... I just want to sleep..." She whispered to herself... but she wasn't listening.

Slowly, one slender, feminine hand drifted upwards, gliding over her firm, soft thigh, over the curve of her hip, and across the smooth plain of her trim stomach. At the start of the journey, she felt the fabric of the soft inner sheet across her forearm, but that faded as her hand moved into the region where the sheets were tented by the bulge of her massive, round tits.

Then her fingers met the smooth curve of her breast, now 'deformed' under gravity into an ovoid, pulled down and to one side. Her fingers moved up that smooth, soft slope, a shiver of pleasure running down her spine as a shiver of helplessness ran through her mind.

Then her hand had reached the apex of her massive tit, cresting the curve to gently slide across a rapidly swelling nipple. Her fingers - as if controlled by a mind of their own - began to fondle and tweak the thick, sensitive nub of flesh...

..as her other hand started it's own voyage up and over the round, firm flesh of her thigh. But it didn't climb upward, but slid inwards, to the 'vee' of her crotch, gliding over her short thicket of pubic hair.

She lightly bit down on her lower lip as she began to slide the flat of her hand back and forth over her crotch, applying a light downward pressure as her palm slid over the outer lips of her cunt, creating a 'delightful' friction that caused a warmth to rise in her crotch, a warmth matched by a growing dampness.

Then, when she was lubricated, she found herself sliding a slender finger between the folds of her vaginal lips, gasping lightly as her digit grazed her aroused clit. Lightly biting her tongue between her teeth to quite her moans, she began to work her finger back and forth against the small, round nub of flesh, her other hand unconsciously matching the rhythm as it worked on her nipple.

Her head lolled to the side and her breathing began to become faster and shallower as her hand's pace increased, pleasure rolling from her crotch and through her body as she began to twitch her hips in time with her stroking finger - which had been joined by a second one, sliding deeper into her cunt as the upper one curled and flexed over her clit. Caught up in the heat of her aroused body, the hand on her tit paused just long enough to throw the covers off her body before returning to it's original task, her nipples going even more engorged as the cool air affected them.

Then her head lashed to the other side and she gasped as her body shuddered with the force of the - relatively weak - orgasm that ran through her body, a wave of untainted pleasure as only matched by the force of her roiling emotions at her helpless actions...

..and her helpless self-admittance of the shear pleasure of what she had just done.

A hand still lightly rubbing her tit, the other cupping her crotch, Nicki slowly sank into sleep, the odor of hot metal and feminine arousal the last thing she recalled as she sank beneath the dark waves of emotional exhaustion.

* * * * *

"Doctor - John Doe in twelve-fourteen's waking up."

The doctor gave a hurried final instruction to the floor nurse at the station, then followed the dark- haired young nurse who'd interrupted him back to the room she'd mentions, slowing just before he reached the doorway to enter with the sort of 'dignity' people expected of their doctors.

The patient was laying on the half-raised bed, looking around with a confused expression. "Where am I?"

The question, itself, didn't mean anything - he'd been unconscious when he was brought in, and he'd only been semi-conscious during the quick questioning. For the first time, he appeared alert and aware, which was a good sign.

"You're in Morristown General Hospital. You were brought in with a head injury." The doctor told the patient, standing at the bedside and keeping his voice calm. "Can you tell me your name?"

The man blinked and looked mildly irked. "of course I can. It's..." He sat bolt upright, eyes flying wide open. "Nicki!"

The doctor and nurse shared a confused look, and in the patient's suddenly agitated state it took several long minutes to establish that he was lucid and with a full set of memories - an assertion borne out by his semi-coherent account of what had happened to him...

...and his female friend, alone and without money in one of the worst storm of the year.

Five minutes later, the doctor was on the phone with the State Police, while Ron struggled into his clothes, hampered by his sore foot, aching head, and the totally inefficient 'help' of the nurse.

* * * * *

Elroy opened his eyes and stared up at the ceiling for a long moment before he sat up in the bed, the frame creaking under his massive weight as he looked around and stretched.

"The vampire awakens..." He said, with a wry grin. It was very seldom that Leroy turned in during the middle of the day, so Elroy was relegated to living his life in the night.

It was a dark, narrow existence - but Elroy didn't mind. He knew it was better than the alternative - he'd known it since the night he'd first awakened, confused and scared, nearly ten years ago while the other tenant of the body was undergoing court-ordered shock-treatment after what he'd done to the women he'd been 'treating'.

Of course, Elroy hadn't known about that at the time - hadn't known anything at all. Even his own name hadn't been his, but a misheard version of his other self's name, spoken by a startled intern at the loony bin, who'd been amazed to see the big man wake up after a few hours of intensive 'therapy'

- not knowing, of course, that Leroy Darkmoon was still sound asleep, and it was somebody else who was awake and confused.

That had started the beginning of his existence - he'd grasped almost immediately that, to the waking world, there was another man by the name of Leroy who used this body. But self-interest was a powerful thing - and just as the waking Leroy had pretended to end up 'cured' of his delusions to be released into the world, so had Elroy taken to hiding his actions from Leroy and the rest of the world, lest he end up in some other loony bin until they 'cured' Leroy of him.

So - he only walked the earth when Leroy was fast asleep, picking up the news on what Leroy did during the day by investigative work, and living what meager existence he could without giving himself away. As far as Leroy knew, he went to bed every night, slept a solid ten hours or so, and awoke feeling tired and restless - never knowing that for five or six of those 'sleeping' hours, Elroy used his body to walk among the world to some degree.

Now Elroy slid his feet into his - Leroy's - slippers and pulled a robe around his naked body as he began his nightly prowling of the house to see what was of interest tonight.

Slipping out of his room, he started to head for the stairs - the stopped dead, staring at the door of the room across from his.

A tiny sliver of dim light shone from under the door, and the familiar odor of hot wax and metal came from within - as well as another, faint odor that he couldn't place.

Intrigued, Elroy quietly opened the bedroom door and looked inside.

A stunningly attractive woman with a short mop of dark hair was laying on the bed, staring up at the ceiling silently. Her could barely make out the shape of her nude body in the faint light, but there was no mistaking her sex or beauty - or the size of the massive tits that rose and fell in a steady rhythm.

Elroy gasped - but the woman didn't seem disturbed in the least by his presence, merely continuing to stare up at the ceiling with a dreamy, disconnected look.

Waiting a long moment to see if the woman would say anything, Elroy finally let himself be drawn into the room, quietly padding across the floor and lowering his bulk into the chair beside her bed, still not receiving any response to his actions, which emboldened him a bit more.

By definition, his life was a solitary one - although, on a very few occasions, he'd slipped out in the night to walk down to the store and buy himself a treat, then hurry home - always afraid that Leroy would awaken unexpectedly during these outings.

But, to Elroy, women remained a distant mystery that he knew about only through the magazines and books in the house - many of which were pornographic. A chance to be this close to a woman, maybe even - dare he? - to talk to her...

It was a heady experience, and he was relieved that she didn't seem to mind his presence.

Of course, because of Elroy's extreme lack of experience with people in general, much less women, he didn't realize that her behavior was extremely odd.

And there was no way on earth that he could know that his alter-ego had hypnotized her completely and thoroughly only a little while ago and, instead of falling naturally 'asleep', her mind had instead drifted back into refuge of the calmest state she'd been all day - the trance.

"Hello." Elroy said, nervously. He didn't introduce himself, expecting her to know him as 'Leroy' - but he needed to find out her name. "Can you tell me what your name is?"

"Nicki..." She said, dreamily.

"That's right..." Elroy feigned remembering. "Your name is Nicki."

"Yes..." She agreed - and her mind took it as a statement of fact and filed it away.

Leaning over, Elroy opened the shutter on the lamp a bit, allowing more light to fill the room - but not enough to become disturbing. Just a warm glow.

Then he let himself feast his eyes on the naked, silky figure of Nicki, laying on the bed in the same position she'd been in when she'd entered the trance.

"Were you... masturbating?" Elroy asked, interested - since a lot of what he 'knew' came from men's magazines, he didn't find this an unusual topic of conversation.

"Yes... I made myself orgasm..." Nicki replied in that same, dreamy voice. "You must enjoy orgasms." Elroy said with a smile.

Again, the phrasing was enough that she took it as a statement of fact. "Yes - I must enjoy orgasms." She replied, setting it into her mind.

He looked at her huge, firm mounds, like the ones he'd seen in some of the magazines - the silicone inflated tits of the models in Big-Bust magazines. Trying to continue the 'harmless conversation', he thought back on what he'd read in the interviews the artificially-endowed models had given in the magazines.

"You must love having huge tits." He said, remembering the interviews always revealed that the models reveled in their massive tits, and the attention it brought. "Having men look at your tits must turn you on."

"Turn me on..." The defenseless subconscious mind of the transformed man agreed, helplessly.

"I guess you enjoy having them fondled, to. I.. fondled your tits earlier today, right?" Elroy guessed carefully.

"Yes - you fondled my tits." She replied, dreamily. "You must enjoy that "

Elroy talked with Nicki for almost an hour, not minding her monosyllabic responses as he babbled on in 'small talk' drawn from all those porno magazines, completely unaware of the damage he was doing with his extremely slanted views of women via the adult publishers of American porn.

The conversation might have gone on much, much longer if the faint flash of red and blue lights hadn't come through the window.

Elroy padded over to the window - and watched as two police cars passed outside. They were a distance away, on the highway that ran by the house on the other side of the field...

...but it sent Elroy into a full-fledged panic. The only personal knowledge he had of police where the ones connected with the loony bin where he'd awakened - and so it wasn't hard to understand why he jumped to the immediate conclusion that, somehow, somebody had found out about him and they were looking for him so they could haul him away and 'cure' Leroy of his presence.

Heart pounding, the big man began to run to his bedroom to gather some clothes and flee before they caught him, and be damned if Leroy awoke or not - having Leroy wake up somewhere far away from the cops was preferable to letting himself be 'cured'.

However, as he passed the bed his eyes fell on Nicki again, and he couldn't just leave without saying anything.

Panicked and feeling the press of time, he sat down beside her.

"Nicki, I can't explain - but I have to leave." He told her in a rush. "I need you to do something for me, or I'll be in big trouble. Please - forget completely that you ever met or saw me - act as if you'd never seen or talked to me..." He patted her hand gently. " but, deep down - remember our talk forever.

Would you do that for me?" "Yes " Nicki agreed.

"Good - now you just go to sleep, and if you should wake up and find policemen want to talk to you, you just stay relaxed, because everything will turn out all right."

Kissing her lightly on the forehead as her eyes slid shut, Elroy rose from the chair and dashed from the room as Nicki slid into a deep, dreamless sleep.

* * * * *

Nicki awoke - and stared up at the ceiling in confusion.

"Where the hell....?" She asked herself, brow furrowing in confusion as she sat up...

...or tried to - there was a heavy weight pushing down on her chest that she hadn't compensated for, and she gazed down...

...at a massive, firm pair of tits the size of basketballs.

"Well, holy shit..." She breathed, and eyebrow going up. "I fuckin' huge! I guess I musta just kept growing after..."

She stopped dead, frowning slightly. The last thing she remembered clearly was walking back to town, and her heel breaking. Then she'd started to fall... and everything after that was a blank until now.

"Great - I musta hit my head a good whack." She said, disgusted - then suddenly remembered why she'd been making the walk back into town in the first place. "Dammit, Doc - where the hell are you?"

Then she snorted. "Hell, for that matter - where the hell am I?"

Managing to get herself sitting on the second try, she looked around the old-fashioned bedroom in bemused amazement, a wry smile curving her lips at the sight of the burned-down candle on the night table, and the complete lack of any electrical paraphernalia in the room.

"Great - I managed to end up in Green Acres." She said, sarcastically. She swung her smooth, feminine legs over the side of the bed and bent down - very carefully, fighting the drag of the chest- melons that she'd developed during the night - and picked up her skirt and panties. Slimming on the only two pieces of her clothes that she could see, she rose out of the bed, moving carefully against the unaccustomed inertia and mass of her massive, firm new endowments.

She headed for the door of the room - then stopped dead, grimacing at the strange pulling, tight sensations in her calves, thighs and hips. Cautiously, she moved towards the door again, slowly altering her stride to eliminate discomfort - and by the time she reached the door, she was moving with a smooth, sexy, feminine sway.

She shrugged to herself - the way she figured, it made sense. She'd been in a woman's body for three days now, and walking in a 'mannish' way, which would be unnatural for her new form. But she'd done a hell of a lot of mannish walking yesterday, which had probably had the same effect of over-exercising any muscle - soreness.

If you took that thought even further, then it also made sense that her body, now being more 'feminine' with the massive boobs on her chest, would require a more feminine stride to balance it out.

So, if she really wanted to, she could force herself to walk with her same old male stride - but was the discomfort really worth it? She didn't figure so, and just let herself walk with the comfortable, sexy stride - after all, she was in a female body now. While she'd never walk like this in her male body, it was perfectly 'natural' for this one.

Opening the door across from the room she'd awakened in, Nicki peered with a puzzled look at a room that bore all the hallmarks of being abandoned quickly. Shaking her head, she padded off down the hall, her hips moving with a supple sway as she opened a door that lead into a bathroom.

"Wow - indoor plumbing." She said, sarcastically, eyeing the hand-pump-operated toilet. It was a standard toilet, by itself, but the cover on the tank had been removed to allow a pump's spout to sit inside to fill the holding tank for each flush.

Shaking her head, she laboriously pumped the holding tank full, then took care of business, surmising from that, and how she felt, that she must have eaten something the night before.

Flushing the toilet, she rose and walked to the pump-operated sink and washed her hands - while gazing in the mirror mounted above the sink.

With only the light streaming in the window over the cast-iron bathtub, the image wasn't brightly lit, but there was more than enough illumination for her to see herself. Her eyes went first to her face, where her makeup was smudged and her hair a tousled mess - and she was surprised to feel a pang of disquiet over it. She dismissed it as perfectly reasonable - even as a woman, there was no call for her to look like something that cat dragged in.

But even more surprising than her reaction to her mussed appearance was how she reacted to the sight of the masses of flesh thrust roundly from her chest. Stunned, she reached up and touched the huge, firm breasts.

"Holy shit, they're huge..." She whispered to herself...

...and, in a stunned voice, finished what was in her mind. "...and gorgeous!"

She was floored by her reaction to her tits. She - as Nick - had never really been into big tits - yet, these massive masses of breast-flesh hanging from her chest were somehow the most awesome, mouthwatering pair of tits she'd ever seen. She thought they were utterly perfect in every single way.

“What the hell...?” She asked herself, confused. All of the sudden, a burst of.. pride, almost had flooded her, now that she was aware of the utter ‘perfection’ of her new bust. She tried to push it away, but it refused to leave - all of the sudden, she found herself thinking about these tits almost as if they weren’t part of her, but separate. She couldn’t help but think how the right clothes would improve their appearance, how enjoyable it would be to have men see - and lust after - them, to have them fondled and...

“Get a grip, Nicki!” She told herself, dragging her eyes from the reflected image - but that didn’t stop the thoughts she was having. It was as if, having seen her ‘perfect’ tits, she wanted to show them off, in appearance and performance.

It was as if she’d just gotten a brand-new Ferrari. If she’d gotten a car like that, she’d want to drive it around, let people see her in it. She’d want to take it on the highway and ‘punch it’, to show off the car’s performance. She’d want to wash and wax it often, to keep it in primo condition.

But this wasn’t some car - it was the two huge tits that were now part of a female body that she still didn’t enjoy having. It was so weird, so disquieting, to not be proud of being female - but finding herself so undeniable proud of being the owner of these massive, firm boobs.

“Geez, Nicki - what a time to discover you’ve got a huge-breast fetish.” She told her reflection wryly, unable to believe what she was feeling - but unable to deny it, either.

Stunned and confused by her strange reaction to the sight of her massive new tits, Nicki wondered if this could somehow be related to her black-out - could a blow to the head have scrambled her up that badly? Slightly frightened at the prospect, she left the bathroom to search the house, hoping to find some clue as to what had happened in the missing hours, or to the owner of the house.

She didn’t find anything much in either department - although she did find two other things.

The first was a broad collection of pornography, much of it featuring silicone-enhanced ‘big-tit’ models, some of whom rivaled her own new tits. She knew that such things existed, of course, but had never really paid any attention to them.

Now she was amazed by her reaction to the pictures inside the magazines. Those of ‘naturally’ busty women, or of ‘slightly enhanced’ DDD-cup women, didn’t do a thing for her - there was no reaction at all, good or bad. They were just pictures of women.

But for the women in the size category of her own tits, she found her eyes drawn to their tits, encased in sexy clothing or bare - and found herself aroused by the sight of the tits so similar to her own.

The conclusion she drew was logical - but she had no way of knowing that it was also totally erroneous. Since she’d never really looked at magazines featuring women so massively endowed, and hadn’t seen any walking the streets, she came to the conclusion that this reaction had always been ‘lurking’ deep inside her, a great fascination and affection for massively endowed women - and assumed that her reaction to her own tits was just a reflection of that, and - in a way - natural and understandable.

She, of course, had no way of knowing that she had it exactly backwards, that her new-found attraction to these massive tits was because she saw in them a resemblance to her own, which she now thought of as perfection itself...

The second find was of a more 'practical' nature - boxes and boxes of all sorts of clothing, piled in the attic and sealed shut, with the name of a store on the side.

Darkmoon Specialty Clothing

Los Angeles · Las Vegas · New York · Miami

Supplying Street and Dance Wear for the Exotic Dancer

Opening one of the boxes, Nicki gaped at the amazing profusion of clothing, many of it obviously the aforementioned 'dance wear'.

Judging from some of the clothing sizes, Nicki made a connection - the owner of the boutiques must be the owner of the house, and was using/had used this line of boutiques to indulge in his interest in the 'exceedingly buxom'.

A strange, unwanted thrill ran through Nicki at the thought that the category - at least for now - also included her.

Sorting through the different items of clothing and accessories, Nicki came across a couple of pieces that looked like they might fit her radically enlarged bust...

...then she pulled out one item - and something in her mind 'clicked'.

It was basically a massive white leather bra/crop-top. Lining the massive cups was crushed white velvet, and the massive garment was adjustable by belt-like clasps on the straps.

Nicki stared at it for a long moment, stunned. She'd been searching for something less... revealing - but as soon as she'd seen the garment, part of her had instantly decided that it would be utterly perfect for wearing on her 'perfect' tits, and she couldn't shake the conviction. She tried to lay the item aside, to look for something more 'sedate' - but it was like trying to ignore an itch.

An itch that she knew she could scratch so damned easily.

"What the hell is wrong with me?" She asked herself, confused - as she slowly, hesitantly put the leather garment on.

Setting the straps to the right size, she pulled the leather 'bra' into place, feeling the soft velvet inside caress her firm mounds as she snuggled it into place. It was 'acceptable' outerwear, the bottom leather band and the side and shoulder straps making it look almost like a crop-top, while the massive cups were joined by a single piece of leather that ran over the inward 'grove' between her tits, so that

- from the outside - there wasn't two rounded cups, but a crop-top-like curvature of leather that rose on either side and ran straight across, leaving three-quarters of her massive tits covered - while defining perfectly their sheer size, and showing a mouth-watering view of cleavage.

“Holy shit...” Nicki whispered, closing her eyes in amazement. The instant she’d finished strapping the garment in place, she’d felt a rush of... of satisfaction. She couldn’t explain why it was so - but wearing a piece of clothing so obviously designed to showcase the size and firmness of her massive tits made her ‘feel’ fantastic, even as she was confused, ashamed, and slightly scared by these strange new reactions to her massive bust.

Forcing her mind away from that area, she left the ‘crop-top’ in place, knowing that it was going to be what she’d wear today.

Further searching through the boxes found four more tops that would both enclose her massive tits, and provide her with that strange, shamefully thrilling rush that the one she wore now did. She kept these - as well as two less revealing tops and a stretchy sweater - and stuffed them in a large black ‘purse’ so she’d have something to change into later. Assuming she did find the Doc, the clothes in ‘her’ suitcase were for her original female form, and while much of it would still fit, none of her tops would.

She also stuffed three bras in her size into the bag, then...

She stared at the item she’d pulled out. One look at it told her it would probably fit her altered figure... but she would never wear such a garment. It had absolutely no use for her - none at all.

Right?

Glancing around guiltily, she stared back down at the item she held... then, blushing furiously, shoved it into the bag, and set about looking for shoes.

There wasn’t an awful lot of selection, and she found two pairs of footwear that would fit. One was a pair of calf-high black leather boots with a five-inch high ‘sculpted’ heel. The other was a pair of black platform shoes, with a one-inch platform, and a six-inch stiletto heel.

Deciding which one to wear was easy. Since she wanted a ‘spare’ set, and the boots wouldn’t fit in the bag, she stuffed the shoes into her purse and pulled the boots on, finding her massive new bust had serious drawbacks, as they got in the way as she tightened and tied the laces on the boots.

What bothered her the most, though - was that the huge tits getting in the way didn’t bother her as much as she ‘wanted’ them to. She had to ‘work around’ them, and the feeling of them pressed against her knees, her arms pressed against the sides of them, felt so physically nice to her that she couldn’t get truly ‘frustrated’ as having them in the way.

“Feeling bad about ‘stealing’ the clothes, but blaming it on necessity’, she headed back downstairs, her heels clattering on the wooden floors as she walked with that sensual feminine sway, now- encased tits shifting very slightly with each graceful step.

Having found her coat on her first exploration of the house, she picked it up and carried it into the bathroom, where she washed her face and dampened her hair. Using a comb she found in a drawer, she did ‘something’ with her short, dark hair, making it less of a disaster, then applied what make-up she had in the pocket of her jacket - namely, the tube of lipstick. Even that minimal make-up scheme looked pretty good on her, since she had ‘naturally’ long, thick lashes and flawless skin.

Pulling the black leather jacket on, she eyed her reflection in the mirror - the black leather boots, skirt and jacket over the white leather 'crop-top', all enclosing a healthy, slender body with a stunning face and huge, firm tits.

As much as she didn't want to admit it - she was turning herself on, she looked so good.

Blushing, she turned away from the mirror and pulled the bag onto her shoulder. Walking to the front door, she hesitated for a second in consideration, then locked the front door and pulled it firmly shut behind her.

Looking around, she realized that she was about twenty minutes or so from the town that she'd been heading for last night. Taking a deep breath didn't help calm her - as it pressed her huge tits even more firmly into the velvet lining of her top. Shaking her head at her inexplicable thoughts and reactions, she began to walk towards the town, hips swaying smoothly and gracefully as she walked.

* * * * *

"I'm sure that she found shelter somewhere for the night, Doctor Lafayette - we'll canvass all the residences down this strip of..." Captain Goddard of State Police Detachment was half-turned in the passenger's seat to reassure the concerned passenger in the back.

"Well, would you get a look at that..." The driver of the cruiser interrupted in an awed tone, drawing the other two pairs of eyes in the car towards where he was gazing.

The three men stared at the gorgeous, massive-breasted woman walking down the side of the road, her short mop of dark hair ruffled in the wind as her sensual gait caused her massive bust line to sway slightly with each step she took...

"Nicki..." Ron said in a quiet, confused tone. Then he snapped forward in the seat. "That's her! Stop the car - that's Nicki!"

The driver blinked, then his foot eased down on the brakes, the car slowing to a stop just past the woman, who turned to follow the cruisers passage.

"Dammit!" Ron swore, trying to open the back door - which wasn't designed to open from the inside.

"That's her?" Goddard asked, confused. He'd gotten a description of the woman he was looking for from Ron, and this one matched - except neither the Doctor, nor the gas-station attendant had mentioned 'tits as big as basket-balls' to him, the closest thing being the attendants assertion that she had 'a nice rack'.

"Yes!" Ron said, pounding on the inside of the window and raising his voice. "Nicki!"

Nicki blinked - then her dark eyes widened at the familiar face in the back of the cruiser. She ran to the cruiser, her tits bouncing and swaying despite the support of her top. "Doc!"

The driver of the car had climbed out, and he popped open the back door of the car, allowing Ron to erupt from the car as Nicki arrived. Babbling unheard questions at each other, they closed the remaining distance between them - and, instinctively, embraced each other tightly, relieved that the other was all right.

The sensation of Nicki's huge tits being firmly pressed between them was an.. interesting experience for both of them - and pleasurable.

Although Nicki didn't know about it, Ron was one of those 'big-tit' freaks, and the sudden realization that he was holding a sexy, gorgeous, massively endowed woman tightly against his body suddenly registered.

It also registered on him that the woman he was holding was probably, in every way, his ideal 'fantasy' woman - and, blushing, he pulled away, shocked by the sudden thoughts that had leapt, unbidden, into his mind.

In the same instant, Nicki pulled away, also blushing at the intense physical pleasure she'd received from being embraced by Ron - and, worse, the sudden, shocking, and 'disgusting' emotional reaction she'd had.

"Well..." Ron said, looking at his friend and employee, now reborn into his secret fantasy. Aware of the state troopers close enough to hear every word, he couldn't ask about her massive breast growth, and his confused feelings about her new form made him fumble for words.

She wasn't much better off, but her personality was her personality, and even with all that had happened - and was still happening - it shone through.

"Suuuure..." She said, accusingly. "Here I am wandering the face of the earth - and you're getting chauffeured around!" She pointed to the cruiser, with two very bemused troopers leaning against it and watching the reunion.

Then she became serious. "So - what happened to our car?"

"Ah " Ron hesitated. "Why don't we get in the car, and I'll explain on the way back to the station?"

"Sure - I'd love to get off my feet." Nicki agreed, and let Ron walk beside her to the cruiser and open the back door for her."

Ron did so in a daze, watching Nicki's new, sexy walk with confusion - and 'guilty' appreciation. The guilty increased considerably when he slid in the other side of the car and realized just how incredibly aware he was of her now being female - and so damned close.

As he started to explain what had happened, he struggled to not let his sudden - and 'disgusting' attraction to her show.

He had no idea that Nicki (equally horrified and disgusted) was fighting her own strange reactions to being so close to three men - and Doc especially...

* * * * *

"Well... uh " Nicki stammered as the bell-boy dropped their luggage inside the door. "Better late than never, huh?" She laughed, nervously.

"I.. guess." Ron said with a nervous chuckle, handing the bell-boy a tip.

The red-clad staff member looked at the two embarrassed friends, she shrugged. "Sorry - but it's the only room available."

Ron and Nicki shared a look, blushing.

"It's... fine." She said, and the bell-boy smiled sympathetically at her...

...well, her tits, since that was where his eyes seemed to fall - and again, she felt that weird rush at having her tits started at, making her blush deepen. Excusing himself, the bell-boy left them alone...

...in the 'Honeymoon Suite'.

Ron had gotten his car back a few hours earlier. The thieves had tried selling it that morning - and had proven to be none-too-bright. Even if the prospective buyer had accepted the brother's reasons for the low price of the car, and the broken window, he'd known for sure something was funny when he looked in the trunk and found it full of luggage that definitely wouldn't fit the two men.

Keeping his sudden conviction to himself, the man looking at the car had agreed to buy it - after, of course, going to the bank for the cash. He'd even let the two men see him enter the bank... where he'd gone straight to the manager's office and asked him to call the police and explain what was going on.

He'd then taken the purchase price out of his account, and gone back - and kept the crooks occupied. After letting them see the bundle of cash, they wouldn't have left for the world - and when he said he just wanted to take a look at the engine before he bought it, they agreed. So they started the car, opened the hood - and all three were leaning over the engine, the two crooks trying to bull-shit their way through the 'buyers' questions about maintenance and the like, when the cops had arrived.

So, Ron had gotten his car, clothes and even wallet back - although the cash was, of course, gone. But the credit cards had still been there, and Nicki and Ron had finally been able to complete their trip to the conference, almost exactly twenty-four hours later than they'd planned to arrive.

Thanks to their delayed arrival, the two rooms Ron had booked in advance were taken - and with all the other rooms booked and taken by other people down for the conference, there had been exactly one room available for them to share.

The whole thing was - just getting the Honeymoon Suite might have been a joke that they could have laughed over. It would have been, if Nick was still male. It would have been still - although an 'awkward' joke - if she'd been the 'Nicki' that woke up in the lab. But the new 'improved' Nicki was another matter.

Ron was still trying to deal with the fact that he found the new Nicki the most utterly sexy, gorgeous woman he'd ever seen - and it was only made worse by the fact that it was 'Nick' inside the body. Not just worse because it made him feel incredibly guilt and ashamed - but because he like Nick, like 'his' personality and company - and he still liked it in Nicki, making her even more ideal as the perfect girlfriend...

...except, of course, that she was 'really' a guy.

For her part, Nicki was going crazy trying to deal with what she was going through. Although it sickened her, she couldn't stop herself from thinking about Ron. Thinking about the way he looked at her - then glanced away, blushing. The way he looked at her made her 'feel' good, even as it shocked and disgusted her - and she also like Ron, and that hadn't changed when she'd changed bodies.

"So, um..." Ron said, nervously, gesturing to the door. "I guess we should go and... um, join the conference."

"Okay." Nicki agreed, equally nervous. "I'll just.. get changed."

Grabbing her 'purse' and her suitcase, she all-but-fled to the bathroom to change.

Staring at her reflection as she removed the crop-top, she asked herself quietly, "What the hell's wrong with you? He's Ron for god's sake - and you're acting like... like..."

She grimaced. "...a love-sick teenager! A horny, love-sick teenage girl, for God's sake! Get a grip on yourself, you're loosing it!"

While she tried to talk herself out of the strange feelings and urges she was having, she dressed.

She kept the same black leather skirt, but now a pair of nylons went on her legs to go with it. A black short-sleeved blouse - one of the custom-tailored one she'd found - went over a massive black bra, and she felt a pang at 'hiding' her tits that caused her to leave the top two buttons undone on it.

Then she did her make-up and hair, finally stepping into the stiletto-heeled pumps. Taking a deep breath that did little to help her frazzled, confused nerves, she stepped out of the bathroom, as ready as she'd ever be.

With as much confidence as she could muster, she followed Ron as they left the room and headed downstairs to the room where the conference itself was being held. Ron held the door open for her, and Nicki stepped through...

...into an instant panic attack.

The room was full of people - and their late arrival drew eyes to the door - where they saw her. Her, standing there with her gorgeous face and huge tits, looking utterly female and damned attractive.

Worse yet - she felt a flush of pleasure at having that many men staring at her - and that cause her to feel guilty, disgusted, frightened - all added onto the initial 'stage fright' of them just looking at her.

Then there was a presence beside her - and without thinking, scared shitless and with her heart running a million miles an hour, Nicki took Ron's hand and leaned against him, her dark eyes huge in her panic, making her look like a frightened doe in a hunter's scope.

"Nicki...?" Ron asked, shocked by the way her hand was entwined with his, her firm, lush body pressed against his side... and trembling.

“All be all right.” She said in a thin voice, barely aware of her holding tight to Ron - yet also incredibly aware of it...

...as it was the thing she was holding onto with all her sanity.

‘Agoraphobia’ - literally translated, the fear of market-places. Usually meant to mean the wide open space that such places took up, the actual term Acrophobia also applied to people irrationally afraid of large public places, especially crowded one.

Nicki was suddenly, desperately agoraphobic - and she did the only thing she could do - she concentrated on one thing, forcing herself to ignore all the people filling the room, many of them staring at her.

The problem was - the only other subject her mind would latch onto was Ron. How good it felt when he looked at her like these other men were. How good it felt to be near him, touching him. How good it felt - and how much better it would feel if they could be even closer, touching in a much more intimate way...

Realizing with shame and horror what she was thinking, Nicki ripped her mind away from the thoughts of being naked in Ron’s arms...

...and was hit again by that terrible agoraphobia, causing her to gasp, close her eyes, and half bend over with the sheer force of the fear, confusion, and guilt.

“Nicki!” Ron said in concern...

...and his voice was like a life-line, dragging her back from the edge. She straightened, focusing on him and only him - and forcing herself not to let the feelings she was feeling force her to haul her thoughts back to the crowd of people surrounding her.

“We’re going back up to the room.” Ron said firmly, staring to turn her around as he understood, suddenly, part of what was happening - although not all of it.

Nicki was uncomfortable with being female. Just being female was bad enough - but being seen while female was worse. When she’d gone shopping, she’d been hesitant and awkward the entire time, irrationally ‘paranoid’ about being ‘disguised’ as a woman.

Then, however, she’d been beautiful - but hadn’t been a ‘center of attention’, and although she’d been surrounded by people, only a very small percentage of them had paid attention to her. Since then, she’d only been around small groups of people - never more than four.

Now, she had these massive, round tits - and more people noticed her. In fact, a very large percentage of the people around her - and it brought out all the hidden fears that were ingrained into her male mind. Fears of being ‘caught’ in women’s clothing. Shame at being male in a female body. Fear of failure, fear of rejection, fear of ridicule - she wasn’t able to hide in the general populace like she had at the mall, and so all these things slammed home with nearly physical force, instantly creating a phobia - a dread fear of being ‘found out’, utterly irrational but - for her - utterly real and incredibly powerful.

Of course, Ron had no way of knowing about the other component - the one that wanted her to be seen and admired, But, instead of acting as a balance to her paranoid agoraphobia, it redoubled it with the shame and disgust she felt at wanting that attention.

So - Ron turned her towards the door...

...and she said, tremulous but clear, one word. "No."

"Nicki, look - I can feel your heart going a million miles and hour! You can't..." Ron was trying to keep his voice low, but their entrance and subsequent behavior had attracted the attention of everyone - which was only making things worse. He had to get her out of here...

"No." She repeated, more firmly, straightening and taking a deep breath. She refused to look around and let the people around her register, instead focusing exclusively on Ron. "No, Ron - if we leave, you'll never be able to find your funding. You're a great scientist who's made an earth-shaking breakthrough - and you're also my friend. If, because of me, you never get the chance to finish your work, then I'll never be able to live with myself. No matter what I feel now, no matter how.. afraid, confused or... or ashamed I feel - I know it's not nearly as bad as a lifetime of utter guilt would be."

No matter what had happened to her, physically, emotionally or mentally, on a very deep, basic level she was still Nikolai Gzadanteowzki. Nothing did - or could - change that basic premise. As much as what she was feeling was alien - and awful - to her, she'd rather accept these changes to her outer- most psyche then betray who she was inside. She couldn't walk out on Ron - which meant she'd have to hold control of her public persona by focusing exclusively on Ron. No matter how much she didn't want to dwell on what she was feeling, didn't want to let herself feel and think these alien thoughts and emotions, it was the only alternative to giving up - and she couldn't give up and still be able to look her face - no matter which face that might be - in the mirror.

"Are... are you sure?" Ron asked, worried about his friend.

As confused - and scared - as Nicki felt right now, she was more sure of this then anything else. IF she screwed this up for Ron, she'd rather be dead - and as bad as everything else she was feeling, not of it had reached that level yet.

So, looked at from that 'logical' point of view - she had no choice at all.

"I'm positive." Nicki said, firmly - then kept her mind tightly focused on Ron and herself, shutting out the rest of the world completely as she walked through the room of staring, murmuring people.

She moved as confidently - and sensuously - as if she were utterly alone with her dearest and most trusted friend in the world. Gone was all doubt and fear, supplanted by one and only thought, gone was any consideration for herself or what she was feeling. Nothing else mattered - not her shame, not her 'honor' at being the owner of such perfect tits, not anything - except, here and now, being the person that Ron needed her to be to get the grants he needed.

Although she didn't know it, Nicki's condition in that moment would have been very familiar to a technically insane ex-psychiatrist. She was living 'in the moment', not letting her emotions rule her in the least as she controlled herself through 'intellect' alone.

She also didn't know that this would have been utterly impossible for her to do, one day before. That the 'tools' she needed to push through the emotions and act solely on what she knew to be 'right' had been given to - forced upon - her by a man she no longer remembered meeting.

Of course, much of the emotions she was forcing herself to ignore were also given to - forced upon - her by the alter ego of that same person, another thing she didn't remember.

Walking with apparent confidence and poise, Nicki - unaware of anyone but herself and Ron - let herself be led to the table assigned to them and sat down in the seat that Ron pulled out for her, smiling up at him in thanks.

The move looked natural and instinctive - but it wasn't. Forcing herself to 'stay in the moment' meant that Nicki focused on every aspect of what she was doing. Like an actor aware of the camera's silent scrutiny, she forced herself to perform every action with perfect accuracy, to appear exactly as she thought a woman in public would appear.

Of course, not having been raised female, her view of how women in public acted was a little skewed

- but not enough to arouse comment from the other men at the table, whose own views on female behavior were skewed by their biases, as well.

"Well, hello... I don't believe we've had the pleasure..." A voice said - and Nicki allowed her horizons to expand just enough to take in the man who'd spoken, a gangling 'geek' type who was obviously wondering what a woman like her was doing at a dry, scientific conference.

"Nicki," She introduced herself, smiling warmly and holding out her hand in the way she imagined women did - arm relaxed and wrist loose, the hand held palm down. "Nicki Gzadanteowzki - I'm Doctor Layette's 'proof' for his presentation."

"Carl Langenheim." The man replied lightly squeezing her hand... and staring at her massive tits, no doubt daring conclusions as to what Ron's work was.

Each of the others at the table introduced themselves - and as she spoke to each one, they became part of her narrow 'world view' for as long as she was speaking to them, or them to her - and then they once more faded away, like people coming and going in a fog-bank on a moonless night. The only constant in this dark world was herself - and Ron, who was inextricably bound to her by a web of emotions that she'd ceased to fight for the sake of her sanity. Every second, every breath, she was completely and utterly aware of Ron, noticing his slightest movement, catching the slightest glance he threw at her - and her mind spun one 'fantasy' after another that she didn't dare quash for fear of finding herself 'suddenly' in a crowded room. Instead, she forced herself to just 'go with it', riding the emotions and urges without complaint or fight, feeling her body becoming aroused by Ron's steadfast presence and by his gentle, reassuring touches.

She was also aware of something else, as well - as growing tingle in her mouth. She knew what it probably represented - but refused to let herself think about what was happening, trying to compensate for it as she talked with the other scientists - although she knew that Ron knew something was happening from the way he looked at her as her voice took on a slight, indefinable accent. But he couldn't ask about it here - and then the lights were being lowered, and Nicki could retreat back into the 'just us' shell she'd created as the presentations started.

She had nearly two 'relaxing' hours of this solitude, during which she 'daydreamed' about things that would have shamed and disgusted her if she'd been struggling against them. Instead, she 'enjoyed' the peace and emotional 'pleasure' the fundamentally pleasant thoughts brought with them, and even more so after what was happening in her mouth finished.

Then it was time for Doc's presentation - and she followed him up on stage, really bearing down on the mental shield that left her in her own private universe with Ron.

She heard every inflection of his voice as he spoke, hear every word, caught every unspoken prompt for her to do this or that as he talked - but the vast audience didn't exist for her at all until the end of his presentation, when the 'Q&A' session began and, like at the table, people 'popped' in and out of her little universe as questions were tossed in her direction.

"Nicki... are you trying to tell us that you're really a man?" A voice called, and in the distance a older man 'flashed' into 'existence' for her.

She spoke directly at him, pitching her voice to travel that distance and that distance alone. She was completely and utterly focused on not doing anything that would screw up Ron's work or cause her to fall 'out of character', so she answered with a warm tone and even warmer smile, her body in a graceful feminine pose.

"If you'd bothered to listen to Ron instead of stare at my chest..." She said in obviously good-humored ribbing, "...you would have learned that I was a man just a few days ago - but that Ron's process is so complete, on such a fundamental level, that I'm now genetically female in every cell, molecule and atom. But yes - I was born male, lived most of my life completely male, never took -or even considered - hormonal supplements or had surgery to become less male, yet am now biologically and physically indistinguishable from a so-called 'natural' woman."

So it went for almost an hour - and although she was in a self-imposed 'exile' from the complete situation, Nicki could tell from the questions asked that Ron's statement were met with initial disbelief... because it was such a fundamental, mind-boggling breakthrough with such far-reaching implications that it was considered impossible.

Or, rather... had been considered impossible - because she could pinpoint the exact second when the mood in the room shifted from stunned doubt to awed acceptance of the physical proof standing in front of them.

That instant was when a man stood up and began to ask a question.

"So, Nicki - in the first few hours of being female, how did you handle the different physiopsycological effect of the altered hormone..."

Ten minutes before, that question would have started: "Nicki - assuming that what you and Dr. Lafayette claim is true, how is it that you were able to handle...”

A few words of difference - but that shift made Nicki’s heart sing with stunning joy at not having failed Ron, at the proof that this whole experience was, in fact, important.

Not that she could slack off, yet - not by a long shot...

Mixed in with the crowd of scientists was a smaller group - a group that had less scientific knowledge, but who could read the resumes of the scientists to the presentations.

The ‘money men’. And after they left the stage, it was time for the real work - the work they’d come here for - to begin.

“Doctor Lafayette, Miss Gad... Gzand...”

“Nicki, please.” She told the two well-groomed men who’d appeared out of the haze, a warm smile on her lips. “There’s days when even I can’t manage my last name.”

“Of course - Nicki.” The man on the right responded, then looked her up and down with a clinical eye. “Amazing, just amazing - if I wasn’t here to get this first hand, I’d never have believed it.”

“Why, thank you.” Nicki said with a smile, striking a little pose. “But, the method by which Ron managed it is pretty incredible too...”

The men laughed, breaking the thin barrier of formality - and Nicki retreated back into the haze while the ‘men-folk’ talked...

Until...

“But there’s one last point on which we must insist.” Roberts - the senior of the two - said, a bit apprehensively. “You see, we’d have to insist on a long-term, uninterrupted ‘real-world’ test of your work, and since Nicki is already ‘study subject Alpha’... it would have to be her.” He paused, awkwardly. “We.. would have to insist that you do not do anything to her in any way for one full year, to see what other ‘side effects’ become apparent - the, um.. ‘rapid enlargement’ of her.. pectoral region being a good example of such data.”

The rider clause slammed down in Nicki’s mind, though her warm smile hid her reaction to it. A year?

She felt Ron stiffen - then slump in defeat. “I’m sorry...” He said, heavily. “But I can’t possibly ask...”

In an instant, she saw the future. Deprived of funding, Ron’s work would slow to a crawl. Now that his work was presented, others knew it was possible, and the general theory behind it, even if they didn’t know the specifics. Right now, they were years behind Ron in the field - but with funding, they could make up the time while Ron languished. Do the research, reproduce his work, pass him in the field, patent it, steal the fame, the fortune, the glory...

Steal Ron’s dream.

“...Nicki to...” Ron was saying - and Nicki lay a hand on his arm, stopping him dead.

With a smile that hid the raging tide of conflicting emotions inside, she nodded at Roberts. “He can’t - but he doesn’t have to. I’d be honored to play such an important role in research that is going to affect million of lives and do so much good. Of course I agree.”

Ron looked at her, stunned. “Nick.. are you sure?” He asked. “I mean...”

She looked up at him - and despite all that she was feeling, in her hearty of hearts she knew that if she said ‘no’, it would be as if she’d stolen that dream from him with her own bare hands, crushing it under foot.

She’d rather die then live with the guilt of doing that to him - so sincerity shone in her eyes as she spoke.

“I’m sure, Ron - go ahead and make the deal.”

Ron closed his eyes and took a deep breath. “Nick.. thank you.”

She nodded in understanding - then turned to smile at the other two men. “Well, I guess you have some papers to sigh and the like - and you won’t need me for that, will you.”

The younger one grinned at her bust-line. “Need, no - but we’ll forever be devastated by your departure.”

“That’s flattering - a bit over-done, but flattering.” Nicki said, a smile hiding everything. “But it’s been a long day that started with me walking down a highway looking for Doc, while he was looking for me after being clobbered on the head and having our car stolen - so I would really like to bow out and get some rest.”

Roberts’ jaw dropped. “You’re kidding!”

“No, actually...” Ron said, turning his head and lifting back his hair to show the bruise...

...and Nicki slipped away. The instant she was in the hall, he calm, cheerful demeanor vanished, and she walked in a daze to their room and sank onto the couch, staring at nothing.

“A year...” She said in a tiny, broken voice. “Oh my God.. what am I going to do...?”

Then, finally, the truth - which she’d held buried under of layers and layers of emotions, prejudice, ingrained views and self-denial, finally burst to the surface and hit her like a bomb.

She’d never be able to live with herself id she backed out... and she’d never be able to stand a year spent in emotional torment as she tried to fight her unwanted feeling and urges.

So there was only one way to solve the problem...

* * * * *

With a jubilant bounce in his step, Ron walked to the door at the end of the corridor, ecstatic over getting more then he could have hoped for - and he owed it all to Nicki, the most convincing argument for his work that he could hope for. He knew that she hadn't wanted to do it in the first place, and that being in that conference hall had really, really been a problem for her - but through courage and dedication, she'd bulldozed through and brought his dream to wonderful life. Oh - but not just his. Before he'd signed the paper, he'd made damned sure that the year she was going to spend as female was going to be a very well paid one indeed - three-quarters of a million dollars for volunteering as a research subject, all paid for by the 'money men' who she'd convinced so handily.

He owed everything to her.

Pushing open the door to the Honeymoon Suite, he came to a dead stop just past the threshold, practically blind as he went from the bright hallway outside to the dim interior, lit only by the flames of the suite's fireplace. Closing the door softly behind him, he waited for his eyes to adjust, not wanting to awaken Nicki...

Nicki wasn't asleep.

"I suppose congratulations are in order, Doctor Lafayette."

It wasn't the words that caused him to start - it was the incredibly rich, throaty voice it was spoken in. Turning, Ron's adjusted eyes finally picked out Nicki, who was walking towards him from the bathroom, a champagne flute in each hand...

Ron's brain shrieked to a dead stop as his jaw dropped and his eyes went wide.

The woman who was walking towards him was an absolute vision. She was walking slowly, with an incredible, sensual, sexual grace, every bone in her body seemingly turned to fluid, she moved so smoothly and sinuously.

Her feet were bare, but she walked on tip-toe, making the muscles on her legs move with the sensuous flexing that heels would have created, drawing the eye ever upwards.. and upwards.. and upwards...

Her legs were bare almost all the way to the hips, only a tiny triangle of black lace covering her crotch with the barest minimum of modesty. That triangle was part of a larger garment, a garment with high-cut lines that rose almost to the waist, emphasizing her firm, toned thighs and the graceful swell of her hips. The garment clung tightly to her trim waist and flat stomach before flaring outwards to encase the bottom halves of her massive tits, barely managing to cover her swollen, erect nipples before the lace edging left off and smooth, creamy skin took up.

Those tits swayed seductively as she closed the last few steps and held a champagne glass out to him. Numbly, Ron took the fluted glass, finally managing to get his eyes all the way up to Nicki's face.

Her face was exquisitely made-up, and her red-glossed lips were curved upwards in an incredible, sensual smile while her dark eyes were heavy-lidded and seductive as she looked at him.

"To a prosperous future, Ron." She said in that incredibly throaty tone, and she held up her glass.

"..prosperous future..." Ron repeated weakly, letting Nicki clink her glass against his. She even sipped at the glass with an indescribably erotic motion, and Ron numbly sipped at his own as he felt part of his body responding very appreciatively.

She took his free hand, and lead him towards the couch, where a champagne bottle sat in an ice bucket on the end table. Folding one leg under her with a sinuous half-tun, she eased him down on the couch beside her, smiling at him with that same seductive, sensual smile.

“I...” Ron said, not sure what word should come next.

Looking away from him slightly, Nicki slowly drained the rest of the champagne in the glass...

...and Ron watched, absolutely stunned, as her tongue slid out...

...and out...

...and out, to lick the inside of the glass before she laid it aside.

While his mind numbly filed away the answer to his questions about her slight ‘accent’, Ron downed the rest of his champagne in one gulp and reached behind him to put the glass down, not even noticing as he opened his fingers well short of the table, sending the glass to drop to the soft, cushioning carpet.

“Ni.. Nicki...” Ron stammered, “Wha.. what’s going on?”

Nicki laughed, a low, throaty sound. “Oh, come on, Ron - you’re a genius. I’m sure you’ll figure it out eventually.”

Then she wrapped her arms around his neck, pulled him forward, and pressed her firm, full lips against his, kissing him hungrily.

For an instant, Ron merely stiffened in shock as her incredibly long, supple tongue slid between his slack lips... then he responded, kissing her back as his cock grew almost painfully hard. Her hand slid over his, slowly drawing it on top of her smooth, resilient thigh, then she let her hand slide back, across his leg, and to his crotch...

‘Yelp’ing, Ron leaped up and backed away from the couch.

“Nicki, I don’t know what’s wrong - but... this isn’t right.” Ron said, holding out his hands. “Maybe it’s a chemical imbalance... maybe it’s...”

With the same sensual grace, Nicki slowly rose to her feet and looked at him. “It’s not a chemical imbalance, Ron.”

Ron cocked his head. “Then why the hell are you doing this.. I mean.. we can’t.. you can’t...”

“Ron... I like you. I liked you when I was a man, and I like you know.” She turned away, and her voice changed. “Why don’t you like me now?”

Ron was stunned, instinctively taking a few steps closer and tentatively placing a hand on her shoulder. “Nicki.. I still like you. That.. that’s part of the problem.” He took a deep breath, trying to calm his raging hormones. “Nicki - we both know you’re a man...”

“Am I?” She asked, turning to face him - and Ron was so shocked by the bitterness of the question that he took an instinctive step backwards.

Spreading her arms wide and turning the elbows inwards, she made an up-and-down motion to indicate her body. “Is this the body of a man, Ron. If anyone should know, you should - you made it. Is it just a layer of flesh covering the body of a man?”

“No...” Ton said, blinking. “Physically... you’re female. But you used to...”

“I know what I used to be.” Nicki said, her voice softening, her eyes becoming limpid. “But that’s not what I am anymore, Ron. I know that you’re attracted to this body - and I know that you like the ‘me’ who controls it. I like you, too, and find you attractive - and it’s been driving me nuts all day, because it’s ‘wrong’. I would catch myself thinking about you ‘that way’ - and would be ashamed, disgusted, horrified. Even know, deep down, I’m frightened by my...”

She closed her eyes and took a deep breath - then opened her eyes and met his evenly.

“My love for you.” She said, calmly and clearly. “It might have just been friendship when I was male - but every inch of me is female now. Behind this female skin beat a female heart, pumping blood full of female hormones that are completely natural for this body. What was just admiration and friendship became touched by the heat of me female body’s completely natural urges - and became something more.”

She held her hands out, pleading. “I know it isn’t easy for you. It isn’t easy for me, either. That’s why I fought it, why I was determined to struggle and prevail against the completely natural urges and needs of this body.”

“Then you know why...” Ron started to say.. but the look on Nicki’s eyes cut him off.

“That was when I was going to be female for a week, Ron. Now I’m going to be female for a year - and have to be around you every single day of that year. Be near you, where I’ll think about you, constantly. Where these urges will find you so close.. yet so far. Where I would slowly go mad from what I can’t have... except, of course, the only reason not to is the fact that I was once male, and that affects how we think about me.”

She gestured at her body again, this time beseechingly. “I’m not male, anymore, Ron. Regardless of what I was, of my upbringing, I’m as female as Mother Eve. Are you asking me to spend a year suffering in silence, of pretending that I’m still male when everything I’ve become screams at me that I’m not? Is that what you’re asking of me, Ron? A year spent in my own personal Hell, in love with a man who is embarrassed at the mere sight of me?”

Ron never knew what he would have answered that charge with - because he never got the chance.

“Because...” Nicki said, her voice breaking and sending slivers of pain through Ron’s heart. “...if that’s what your asking of me... I’ll do it.”

“Wha...?” Ron whispered.

Straightening herself, Nicki met his gaze bravely, though tears shone in her dark, deep eyes. “Say that’s what you want,

Ron - and this never happened. I'll spend that year being as every bit as cheerful as I've ever been, being the same friend that I've always been to you - and I'll never once let on what I'm feeling inside when I stand next to you."

In that instant, something he'd learned back in college swam out of the depth of memory to slam him behind the eyes in a soundless white explosion of utter clarity and delayed understanding, as the world as he perceived it wavered - and snapped into true, clear focus, allowing him to see what Nicki had realized a few hours earlier...

"Trust no Future..." Ron whispered, eyes wide in sudden comprehension.

Of all possible responses Nicki had expected... this wasn't one of them. "What?"

Ron's eyes suddenly focused on her again, and when he spoke, it was in the awed tone of a man who has seen the light.

"Trust no Future, howe'er pleasant. Let the dead Past bury it's dead. Act, act in the living Present. Heart within, and God o'erhead." Ron quoted, softly. "Longfellow wrote that - I remember reading it in English Lit..."

A faint, relieved smile touched Nicki's lips, and she nodded to herself, knowing that Ron understood - then her smile widened. "Actually, the quote that came to my mind earlier was Pope - 'Honor and Shame from no condition rise; Act well your part; there all the honor lies'." She winked. "See - I ain't no illiterate peasant, neither."

The body was that of a huge-breasted fantasy... but the smile was pure Nick as she stepped forward, wrapped her arms around his neck, and waited.

This time, Ron didn't hold back - and the kiss he got in return said it all - it had Nick's impudent humor as she teased him with her incredible new tongue - but the body, lips and passion of the kiss were female, all female, and nothing but female.

Whatever she might have been before, and might be again, Nicki was all woman - and now Ron understood that it was more than just 'all right' to accept that and act on it.

So, when Nicki began to unbutton his clothes, he responded. A bit hesitantly, blushing furiously - as was she - but definitely responsive as he eased the shoulder straps of her garment off and let it slide down her body to puddle around her ankles.

When he first touched her massive, firm tits, she gasped - and he flinched in a guilt-ridden reaction. But the passion of her kiss - not to mention that she reached up and quite firmly put his hands back on her tits - caused him to resume fondling her huge endowments, and by the time she slowly eased him back against the bed, his touch was no longer tentative.

Gently - still kissing and touching him as he kissed and touched her - Nicki eased him back on the bed, sliding him upward until he was all the way on the soft surface. Breaking the passionate kiss, she smiled down at him and held his wrists so that his hands remained on her firm globes as she sat up, straddling him. Flexing her toned, firm thighs, she lifted herself up and released his wrists.

While he continued to fondle her tits, she reached down and gently grasped his hard, ready cock. Playfully, she gave it a light squeeze - then slowly, hesitantly positioned herself, her smile still there, but tinged with nervousness.

Then, taking a deep breath, she lowered herself slowly, gasping as she slowly engulfed his cock with her wet, ready cunt.

“Oh...” she moaned... and Ron mirrored it.

For a second, she just sat there, soaking up the new sensation of being filled, of having a hard, warm cock inside of her. It was unlike anything she'd ever felt before, and she was stunned by just how satisfying it felt, as if there's been an aching void in her that she hadn't even known existed, and it had just found the piece that fit it perfectly.

Then again - that wasn't exactly metaphoric, considering what her new womanhood was designed for, and what was filling it.

Closing her eyes, she flexed her legs and lifted herself slowly up.. then slid slowly down, feeling the delightful friction of his cock in her tight new cunt. Since she was 'created' deflowered, she wasn't 'technically' a virgin - but it was her first time, and she took it slow - and found herself savoring every new sensation, ever new firing of her restructured nerves in her new cunt.

Then she began to pick up the pace, and Ron moaned with her as she let her head loll back in pleasure, eyes sliding close as she gave voice to the intense - and building - pleasure she was experiencing.

It was matched by Ron's own. Despite the enjoyment he was getting from fondling the huge bust he'd guiltily spent the day lusting over and finally had his hands on, he let his hands slide from her tits to hold her hips as her rhythm increased - and now her head was rolling from side to side as she rode atop him in a primal rhythm, feeling the rising need for satisfaction being matched by the rising ecstasy.

“Yes, oh yes...” She moaned, driving harder, deeper atop Ron's cock, finding the sensations all her fantasies had told her it would be - and more.

“Oh fuck yes...” She moaned, her hands curling around Ron's shoulders as she leaned forward and changed the up and down motion into a sort of up-and-sown rocking motion that increased the friction on her clit while also providing a better 'fit' inside her tight, sopping cunt.

“Fuckin' God almighty and the horse he rose in on! Yesssss!” She scroaned (half screamed, half moaned) as the sensations built. Her nipples felt like they were hard as bullets as they thrust straight out from her huge tits, engorged to their fullest extent - and there seemed to be a network of nerves that bypassed the rest of her and joined them directly to her highly-charged clit. Her huge tits were jiggling and swaying as she rode almost frantically atop Ron, her face contorted in the odd expression of ecstasy as sweat began to run down her body.

To an outside viewer who'd never seen such a sight, it might have looked ludicrous - but to Ron (who seemed to be trying to do an impression of Goofy), she was the most lovely thing he'd ever seen as she drove herself with abandon on his throbbing, tight cock, groaning his name over and over.

Then words vanished in a moan of primal intensity as her 'first' female orgasm hit, gripping her tight in its power and leaving her writhing in pure, mindless pleasure...

...as did the second, third and forth orgasms, following closely behind, each one 'less' then the one before - but still orgasms, and incredibly powerful.

It was more then Ron could withstand - as her orgasms hits, she began thrashing upon his cock, the muscles in her cunt going into spasm - and he gave a groan of his own as he came hard and long, a day's worth of frustrated, 'forbidden' lust spending itself in few eternal, orgasmic seconds.

Gasping, Nicki pulled herself off of his juice-soaked dick and collapsed into his arms, her huge tits pressed against his side. He began to fondle one of them as she slowly pushed herself up on one arm to look at him with a limpid, utterly satisfied expression on her face, mingled with awe at the power of the experience.

Then, slowly, an expression that was all Nick rose to her face, transformed by her new gender - and by their new comprehension of reality - into an expression that Ron knew was all Nicki, and she grinned impishly at him.

"So, Boss..." She said, one hand tracing patterns on the back of the hand he was using to slowly fondle her tit. "...about that raise "

Chuckling, Ron pulled her into his embrace (not that she fought) and as they kissed with less pure passion and more affection, they knew that - whatever the past may have been, and whatever the future may hold, they had found the best possible 'now' for both of them.

* * * * *

TWO YEARS LATER

It was a wonderful dream until the police car came howling through the middle of the field, siren screaming....

Slowly, wakefulness returned, and in the magic of the dream-to-waking transition, the shrill scream of the siren dopplered into the sound of a baby crying in the next room.

Blearily, Nicki stared up at the ceiling. She loved little Ricky to death - but she couldn't wait until he got to the stage where he'd sleep through the night.

Feeling the pressure in her milk engorged tits, Nicki considered letting herself waking up fully and going to feed him but she was still close enough to sleep to be able to drift off again, and her tits were painfully full.

So she nudged the figure sharing the big double bed with her. "Doc... get up..." She said, sleepily.

The figure stirred, the sheets curling protectively over one shoulder until Nicki nudged again... then the bedsprings creaked and the sheets rustled as they were pushed down to waist level, revealing a tall, slender woman with a full, luxurious mane of tawny blonde hair and a pair of tits that rivaled Nicki's own, right down to the milk production.

"Damn..." Ronnie muttered, sleepily. "I was having a fantastic dream..." "So was I." Nicki muttered. "It's your turn to feed Ricky."

"Yeah, I guess..." Ronnie replied in a her rich, feminine voice. "Besides... I'm getting a little tender - I could use some relief."

Pushing the covers aside, she slowly pulled herself into a sitting position and swung her long, sexy legs over the edge of the bed, her dainty feet feeling around for her slippers. Finding them, she rose from the bed...

...huge cock swaying limply from her crotch, worn out by the events of the evening before. With the slow, cautious steps of somebody still half-asleep, the incredibly endowed (both ways) she-male scientist began to pad off to their son's room.

"Ronnie...?" Nicki said, sleepily.

"Yeah, honey?" Ronnie replied, leaning against the door frame to look back at his wife.

"Thanks for agreeing to the.. compromise." She said, sleepy but sincere. "We're probably the only couple in history who doesn't have to deal with the whole midnight feeding arguments."

"Yeah, well - it's the least I could do." Ronnie said, with a grin. "Beside, who knows? We agreed that after a year we have to go back to a /mommy/daddy pair to keep poor Ricky from getting really, really confused - but we never said who was going to go back to male..."

"Mmmmm... fine by me..." Nicki muttered, on the edge of dropping off - and the reply surprised Ronnie.

"Really?" He asked, wondering if Nicki was beginning to loose the lust for female life she'd acquired.

"Yeah...." Nicki replied, barely coherent. "You can have the next kid, and see what it feel like... natural childbirth is best, my ass..."

Then she was asleep once more, and Ronnie smiled and blew her a kiss before padding off to feed their child.

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: After stealing and selling revolutionary beauty products for a large sum of money, one man receives a new product in the mail called B.A.M.B.I which he feels could also make him a fortune, but for some strange reason he feels he needs to try the product first.

Trustworthy

By Gunslinger

Seated at the workbench in his study/lab, Ben flipped a lock of longish blond hair out of his face and readjusted the reading glasses perched on his nose, hardly able to believe what was written in the letter he held.

Incredulous, the slender biochemist swept his eyes over the small, foam-lined metal box that had come in the taxi-delivered package, eyeing the glistening syringes laying inside, then his pale blue eyes once more turned to the letter that had accompanied the shipment:

Dear Dr. Kincaid,

I really, really regret the unnecessary bitterness that's come between us in the past couple of months. After today's ruling proved you innocent, I realized that what your lawyers said all along must be true - it was just simple coincidence that BioLux came up with a anti-asthma formula nearly identical to mine at nearly the exact same time.

I so want you to know how I feel about this incident - so I've set you a complete set of samples of my latest 'beauty' formula, so that you can perform complete toxicity tests on them.

Since it was you I so falsely accused of stealing my asthma formula, it's directly to you I've sent the samples, not to your company. I realize I probably should have contacted your company, and it's lawyers, before taking this step, but in truth, my conscience demands I act immediately, and I know you have a small but fully equipped lab in your home, since it was such a prominent argument for 'means' in my suit against you.

In fact, I'm so eager to express my feelings about the outcome of this lawsuit, I've rushed the samples and the associated data on CD-ROM to you before even advising my own company about the product. In fact, I couldn't even wait for the time it would take for a courier service to deliver the samples and ROM - I just called a cab to come pick it up and deliver it to you!

In any case, I hope you'll thoroughly examine the data on the CD-ROM, as well as the samples themselves, and once you've finished with what I've sent you, we'll be completely even for the lawsuit I force upon you because of my mistrust.

Yours,

Dr. Natasha Lyndenko

After reading the letter a second time, Ben just couldn't help himself. He began to laugh.

He couldn't believe this. It was as if fate were playing right into his hands.

First, he earned himself a small fortune by selling this dumb bitch's asthma formula to BioLux. Then, thanks to careful planning, and the best lawyers a small portion of that ill-gotten money could buy, he'd wormed his way out from under the lawsuit.

Now, to top it all off, not only does this stupid cunt send him her next sample - she send it directly to him, with no records to indicate he'd gotten it. Hell, even her own company didn't know about this.

All he had to do was verify that the new compound was reasonably safe, with no major toxicity or side-effects... and then he could turn around and sell it to BioLux. Even if this Russian bitch tried to sue him over it, not only would there be no proof on her side, but his 'not guilty' verdict in the first lawsuit would make this second suit look purely vindictive!

God, some people were just so... stupid!

Sliding the CD into the drive and bringing up the first of the files, Ben was forced to admit that, stupid as she might be in other area, this dub broad was a first-class biochemist - otherwise, what good would stealing from her do?

Still, this new formula - Beauty and Mannerism Biological Increaser, or B.A.M.B.I - was still easily the most amazing thing Ben had ever laid eyes on. He practically began to salivate as he read over the amazing effects theorized from the complex formula.

The serum contained in the vials would be worth a fortune if they were even only one-tenth as effective as they were noted to be.

Somehow, Natasha had created a biochemical formula that 'enhanced' all the standard markers for feminine beauty. Supposedly, this formula would slim the waist, increase and firm the bust, soften the skin, and a dozen other effects.

More than that - BAMBI would also have an effect on specific portions of the brain. Just as psychiatric drugs could influence the chemical balance in the brain to eliminate some effects, or enhance others, so this formula was supposed to increase the 'feminine mannerisms' of the user.

According to the clinical notes listed, BAMBI proved that this Russian cunt was indeed a biochemical genius...

...who didn't know shit about recording lab data.

In content, the reports were almost complete, but frustratingly shy of that standard - she was forever referring to an unspecified 'anomaly' in the effect of BAMBI. Something apparently minor enough in her opinion not to warrant complete listings, meaning it wasn't considered dangerous - but without knowing exactly what the anomaly was, Ben couldn't very well sell it. After all, the anomaly might not be dangerous - but what if it was something that would make the product unmarketable...?

As annoying as the content problem of the CD-ROM was, the recording problem was even more annoying. There was some sort of interference pattern moving across the screen, almost like fractal static. It wasn't only ever-present, but in it's form and repetition, nearly... hypnotic. Several times, Ben caught himself simply staring at the surprisingly seductive pattern running across the screen overlaid on the data he was supposed to be viewing.

In fact - when he was finally finished going through the data, he was stunned to find that nearly two hours had passed.

"Whoa..." He said, shaking his head. He felt as if he had just awakened after a night of too little sleep, or something - and perhaps he had, for he would have sworn that he'd only spent half an hour or so going over the data, if it weren't for the undeniable evidence of the clock in the bottom right-hand corner of the screen. "Weird..."

Putting the fact that he might have inadvertently dozed off aside for the moment, he turned to look at the vials of serum sitting on the workbench - serum that could be priceless, or worthless, depending on what this 'anomaly' was.

"What the hell is wrong with you...?" He asked, meditatively, as he picked one of the prepared syringes out of its soft foam bed. Briefly, he considered running the stuff through the usual gamut of test in his lab - but the data he'd just viewed indicated those tests had been done at the originating lab, and yet the 'anomaly' hadn't shown up until the life-testing stage.

"I gotta tell this Russian cunt how to properly document..." He muttered to himself, annoyed and frustrated - the report didn't even indicate what type of lab animal had been used in the live-testing that had revealed the anomaly. After all, what might affect a rat or a rhesus monkey might not affect a human. How was he to know what side-effects might crop up, if he didn't have any solid, useful data...?

Then, like a bolt from the blue, the answer struck him.

"Of course...!" He said, slapping himself on the forehead. "If I need to know what side effects it might have on a human, I'll just inject it into myself...!"

Shaking his head at his own stupidity, and wondering why an answer that obvious hadn't hit him sooner, he quickly prepared himself for the injection, tying a length of rubber hose around his upper arm and rubbing the surface of his skin with some alcohol.

Ready, he neatly slid the end of the syringe into his protruding vein, then smoothly depressed the plunger on the end of the needle, injecting the serum into his blood stream.

Unwrapping the make-shift tourniquet from around his arm, he let the chemical serum enter his blood-stream as he sat back down at his computer. If memory was right, it would take about a half an hour for the full effects would be realized, but he just wanted to double check that one section and make sure...

Shaking his head, Ben realized that he must have dozed off again - he'd been staring at the one section of data for nearly forty-five minutes.

The one section of data that verified that the effects did, indeed, take just under half an hour to manifest. Well, he supposed, that would explain why he felt a little...odd.

Not to mention, probably looked a little odd, as well - if the somewhat longer nails gracing the tips of somewhat slimmer fingers was any indication.

Still feeling a bit thick-witted from the unplanned little cat-nap he must have taken, Ben rose from the computer station and ran his slimmer, more feminine-looking hands over his body.

The simple beige slacks he was wearing seemed to be a bit tighter across the hips and ass - but it might have been somewhat exaggerated by the fact that the pants were looser around the waist, and slightly over-long. Apparently, he'd lost a little over two inches in total height.

His feet were also at least a size smaller inside his comfortable penny-loafers, and his shoulders and arms had a bit more room inside the white cotton shirt he wore - though it sat a bit snug across the two undeniably feminine mounds that sat on his chest.

Bemused, he unbuttoned the shirt and took a good look at his new tits.

There wasn't much to see there - just a pair of domes mounds, barely a 'b'-cup, poking perkily from a chest that was denuded of body hair - or nearly so. A closer look revealed the fine, downy hair one might expect to find on a woman's chest, just as a check of his arms and legs revealed that the body hair there was finer in nature - as was the somewhat longer, slightly more golden-hued hair hanging down over a slightly reshaped forehead.

"Amazing..." He muttered, hearing the voice coming out somewhat higher pitched as he gently fondled the largest single change - a cock radically reduced in size, one that he wasn't able to get erect through any amount of manipulation. "I can't believe she managed to make a serum that would do all this - even the bone loss necessary to make the body smaller in both height, and finer in over-all build., It's really quite amazing..."

But it didn't really explain what the unmentioned anomaly was. As he buttoned the slightly loose shirt back over his newly budded breasts and pulled his pants back up over his shrunken cock and slimmer legs, he couldn't seem to find anything 'anomalous' about the effects - whatever feminine aspects he'd had had been 'enhanced' by BAMBI, just as specified, with nothing out of the ordinary.

Frowning, the need to know what this 'anomaly' was more insistent then any problem he could remember in along time, he sat back down at the computer to go over another section of the data, hoping to find anymore clues.

After a half-hour on one single passage, he thought he might have something.

He thought maybe this Natasha chick had used the serum on herself. It would explain her hesitancy to mention it in the official report, especially if it was something embarrassing.

Well, if it was, he had to find out - because 'embarrassing' didn't sell well.

As he figured it, the anomaly probably hadn't shown up because he wasn't nearly feminine enough. Natasha, after all, was a woman, while he was a man...

...so, the simple and obvious thing to do was take another dose of the drug, and hope the anomaly showed up.

Quickly, Ben set up and injected another shot of BAMBI into his system, then turned his attention back to the computer as he waited for it to take effect.

Once again, he found himself losing track of time, registering the change well after it had happened. Once more, he paused to take stock of the situation, finding that BAMBI had once again lived up to its promises, just as he hoped it would - there was absolutely no doubt that he was now more feminine than he had been before.

Indeed, he thought with an amused grin, he could hardly be expected to call himself 'he' anymore, what with no discernible male genitalia. Aside from a tiny nub where his cock had once been, his somewhat reshaped crotch was completely smooth...

...but that was just a passing notice as he searched assiduously for any sign of an anomaly - and once again failed to find anything.

This was getting ridiculous. He needed to know what this anomaly was. Without that highly vital, and frustratingly elusive, information, this powerful serum was potentially worthless. The need to discover what this mysterious anomaly was overrode everything else, occupied his thinking and drove out all other considerations.

He had to know what the problem with this serum was. BAMBI meant everything to him, and he had to understand BAMBI completely. He had to make sure BAMBI was as perfect as he hoped.

Almost absently, he went through another injection as he once more settled in front of the computer for more in-depth study of the files...

Three hours - and four more injections - later, she pushed back from the computer in cheerful annoyance. "Like, oh-mi-gawd!" She said, with a giggle. "It's like, so fursating... fruatating... like, totally a bummer!"

She started to rise from the chair - then almost fell over as her dainty little foot caught in the folds of her much-too-long pant legs. Slumping back in the chair, she stared down at her pants for a second, wondering what to do - then giggled and shook her head at her own foolishness, feeling the silky tresses of her long, luxurious platinum hair stir over the high cheekbones lurking beneath her huge blue eyes with the head-wiggle.

Giggling to herself, she quickly skinned out of her pants - which only made sense, since she hadn't been able to button them over her ample hips over perfectly rounded 'bubble-butt' for some time now.

Once free of her pants, the tiny little example of abundant womanhood rolled the sleeves over her over-sized shirt up to the elbows of her slender, fine-boned arms, then began to pace up and down the room, mind working over the still-unknown problems with the serum.

She was padding barefoot over the floor, because her tiny feet didn't even allow her shoes to stay on anymore, which was fine with her - they were so, like, ugly, all plain and mannish. Still, she was forced to take only tiny little sissy-steps that caused her womanly hips to gyrate even more than they would have otherwise, because her high-arched feet were forcing her to walk on tip-toe.

Which, combined with the motion of her wonderfully huge, round new tits, made it so very hard to concentrate on the all-consuming question of what was wrong with her... well, with BAMBI, but since she'd pumped herself full of it, that's basically what she was now, right? A living example of BAMBI.

Prancing over to the full-length mirror she'd kept around because of the vanity she'd had in her male body, she posed and preened in front of it with a smile, admiring her new body, so infinitely better than her ugly, clunky male one.

"Like, that's what I am now - Bambi...!" She giggled to her reflection, looking with pride at the body only somewhat covered by the oversized man's dress-shirt she wore tied in a big, floppy bow over her gigantic new bust.

"Mmm... My boobies are, like, so huge...!" She chirped in the wonderfully high-pitched voice she'd developed, her tiny hands coming up to lightly caress the great amount of exposed breast-flesh. Her hands seemed almost insignificant next to the bulbous masses of firm, creamy flesh as she lightly and happily ran her long nails over the smooth skin of her basket-ball size boobies. "So wonderfully big, and firm, and round...!"

Yes, she was so happy with her radically altered body - because it was proof that Bambi worked, and that's all she cared about, wasn't it?

Sure it was.

Nobody could deny it worked, not now - not when it had taken her old, male body and made it over so easily and effectively into this perfect image of femininity. Oh, yes, Bambi certainly enhanced feminine features - she was practically a poster-child for that.

After all, look at her ass. Her wonderfully full, taut ass, practically the pinnacle of feminine perfection. Only a few hours before, it had been a flat, hard, ugly male ass - but look at it now!

With a soft sigh, she ran her fingers over the firm, generous globes of her spectacularly feminine new ass, so happy at how effective the wonder-drug had been. If she'd ever had any doubts about it, this mouth-watering ass alone would have been enough to lay them to rest - and since she was concerned with making sure Bambi was effective and marketable, this ass made her incredibly happy, because what woman wouldn't be willing to pay great sums of money for an ass so delightful, so delectable, so... perfect?

That alone would have made Bambi worth a fortune - but it was hardly limited to her ass now, was it? Oh, no - Bambi was a whole-package deal.

Look at her skin - so soft, so smooth, so bare of ugly body-hair, like the gangly excuse for a man she'd been. Now, her tiny, delicate frame, barely five-foot-two, was smooth and soft and supple in a way her male body should never have been capable of becoming - so it was once more proof positive of the effect it could have on even the ugliest of women.

Yes, that's what she was - proof positive that even the ugliest woman could be helped by the wonder-drug - if they bought and used enough of what was sure to be an expensive compound.

After all, she'd been male - and now look at her!

Not a hint of masculinity in her tiny new form. Not in her cute, button-nosed face with it's full, sexy lips. Not in her tiny little waists or her long, sexy legs. Certainly there was nothing masculine about the magnificent boobies she was lightly caressing - so big and round and firm, tipped by wonderfully huge, sensitive nipples. Just think of all the money earned by women getting breast enhancement surgery - now she was living proof that you could get them as big as you wanted with just a drug, and she had been completely flat-chested to begin with.

Well, she certainly wasn't now...

She giggled at the thought, lightly squeezing her huge, thick new nipples through the thin layer of fabric that only barely covered them,... then let her hands glide down past her wonderfully tiny, feminine waist to the tight little cunt nestled in the hairless 'V' of her crotch.

The tight, wet, extremely sensitive cunt. Oh, yes - this cunt made her so happy, because think what 'real' women would pay to have a cunt even half as sensitive as her wet new wonder!

"Like, oh-mi-gawd.." She told the mirror, happily. "I'm, like, so perfect! I'm, like, a living Bambi-doll! One look at what Bambi did to the ugly, geeky guy I was, and the insev... ivetso.. money guys will pay, like, millions of dollars! Hell, maybe even thousands and thousands...!"

She giggled again... and then became aware of a sound that had been annoying her for the last couple of minutes.

Frowning, hating to have her mind pulled away from her consideration of the serum - and, of course, the wonderful effects, because of how rich they were going to make her - she focused on the strange ringing sound.

A second after she recalled that the sound's first repetition was what had pulled her attention away from the computer in the first place, she recognized the sound as that of the doorbell.

"Gee, I wonder who's here so late...!" She asked herself airily as she jiggled-swayed-bounced her way to the front door in a series of hip-swaying sissy steps.

Every single step was a wonderful adventure in the proof-positive of the Bambi serum. With each wiggle of her wide hips, each jiggle of her great big new titties, every sissy-stride of her long new legs, she felt a thrill of happiness and excitement over how wonderfully feminine her body had become, proving how much Bambi would be worth to real women.

Reaching the front door, she opening it wide - to find a guy standing on her front porch.

Great! An objective observer who could help verify that the effects of Bambi were as impressive as she thought. "Oh, like, hi!" She burbled, alto-soprano. "Like, do you think my body is, like, you know, totally hot, or what?"

The man, a chubby, somewhat pimply-faced young man in an ill-fitting uniform for one of the late-night delivery services that usually did 'beer runs', gaped at her in either shock, admiration, or both. Nervously, he licked his flabby lips, then managed to stammer out an answer in a voice that was probably two octaves higher than it usually was.

"Um, uh.. Miss, I'm just, uh, here to deliver a package for, uh... Bambi Bimbeaux?" He stammered, awkwardly.

"Gee, I guess that's me!" Bambi said, almost without thinking, more intent on getting an answer to her all-important questions. She thrust her shoulders back, almost making her wonderfully sensitive, feminine new tits almost pop free of their improvised tit-sling. "Do you like my big titties...?"

The young man's pimply face had gone beet red, and he was looking around frantically - though, inevitably, his eyes almost always returned to her nearly-naked form.

"Lady... I'm just here to deliver a package..." He squeaked, gesturing at the large package on a handcart near his side. She rolled her eyes and sighed, wondering why the guy couldn't give her a straight answer.

"All right - bring it in..." She said, with a sighing giggle, stepping aside so that the man could wheel the big crate into the house.

"Yeah, okay..." the delivery man said, sweating profusely - and, she noticed with a gleeful smile, sporting a fair-sized woody in the pants of his uniform. "Here... you're supposed to look at this..."

As the man passed her, wheeling the load towards the living room, he handed her one of those compact little DVD-TV combos. She looked at it, almost dismissing it out of hand since it couldn't have any bearing on the all-encompassing Bambi question, but then she decided to hit the 'play' button, since she didn't have anything better to do at the moment.

The screen flared to life - but there was no picture, just a strange interference patter much like the one on the CD-ROM Natasha had sent her.

The resemblance to the interference on the data disk made her think - and suddenly, the conclusion she'd been missing became blindingly obvious.

The 'anomaly' wasn't in the physical side of Bambi, but in the mental side! The serum was supposed to enhance feminine mannerisms, and although she, herself, hadn't noticed any such changes, surely that's the area in which the anomaly lay, which is why she hadn't noticed it yet.

It made perfect sense.

Now all she had to do was figure out which part of the feminine mannerisms had the problem in it!

With a happy giggle, she hit the 'stop' button on the player, putting it aside and wiggled-jiggled-giggled her way into the living room, where the man had just finished unloading and opening the large travel-trunk for her.

"There you are, lady..." He said, trying hard - and failing - not to stare at her nearly-naked form. "I, uh, guess you've been waiting for this..."

The trunk was full of clothes. Women's clothes, and shoes, and accessories.

"Gee - It must be from Natasha!" Bambi said, clapping her hands together and jumping up and down with joy at realizing that the wonderful woman had sent her a full supply of 'props' to help track down the anomaly.

The jumping motion made Bambi's wonderful massive boobies pop right out of her top - but she barely noticed, so excited as she was with the wonderfully wide, feminine array of clothing and stuff she could test her 'mannerisms' with.

The same couldn't be said for the delivery man. When her tits popped out of her top, his eyes nearly popped out of his head.

"Here - tell me if you find this stuff, like, really sexy, 'kay?" She asked the delivery man, shucking off the ill-fitting shirt as she all-but dived into the trunk, flinging clothing and accessories aside as she sorted through the treasure-trove of feminine finery.

"But, uh.. I'm, uh, supposed to..." The delivery man protested, half-heartedly, gesturing in the direction of the front door.

She paused in her exploration of the trunk's contents, pouting in annoyance. "You don't want to stay and let me be sexy for you?"

It was, in it's own way, a rhetorical question. One more long, 'hard' look at the sexy little blonde bimbo, and the delivery guy gave the only answer somebody with his sexual history, or lack thereof, could be expected to give, job be damned: "Okay."

She giggled and smiled at him, the dove back into her exploration of the trunk.

A few minutes later, she was ready to begin testing her new feminine mannerisms, searching for a flaw in her 'programming'.

She started by pulling on a pair of nylon stockings. Sitting on the edge of the couch, she took the wonderfully soft white nylons in her tiny hands - and watched herself ball them up onto her fingers expertly, sliding the fine-meshed fabric up over the silky smooth flesh of her long, shapely legs as if she'd done this hundreds or thousands of times, instead of this being her first.

Likewise, she slipped the white garter belt into place around her womanly hips and clipped the stockings to it without any conscious thought, her body knowing how to go through the feminine motions all on it's own, thanks to that wonder-drug she'd gotten from Natasha.

Being able to do these wonderfully feminine things so easily and expertly almost made her want to cum in excitement. This process was going to make her rich...!

...assuming that whatever this still-unknown anomaly was wasn't something that would blow the whole deal, something she'd have to find out by further experimentation.

Picking out a pair of shoes with white leather uppers and clear plastic three-inch platforms and eight-inch heels, she quickly slid her high-arched little feet into them and rose to her feet as she pulled a lacy white negligee around her supple body.

Smiling at the delivery man, she began prancing around the floor, finding it oh-so-wonderfully easy to stroll about in the extremely high-heeled shoes, once more verifying at least part of the chemical's abilities.

There was more important aspects to know about, however...

"Do you think my walk is sexy...?" She asked, prettily, her hips swaying in a wide arc as her uncovered tits bounced and swayed. The man gulped and nodded, his crotch straining to contain that which bulged within it's cloth prison.

"Good!" Bambi giggled, happy to know the formula was working perfectly.

Next, she pulled out a make-up kit and began applying the contents she found within. Though much of it remained a mystery to her conscious mind, her hands had no problem applying lipstick and lip-liner, mascara and eye-shadow, blush and eye-liner to her cute, if vapid, face.

"How about this...?" "S he asked the delivery man, still swaying sensuously about atop her heels, enjoying the way it made her feel as her bubble-butt swayed and swiveled atop her long legs. "Does this make me even sexier...?"

"Uh-huh..." the man said, nodding rapidly with a stunned look on his face as he looked at the pink-hued makeup that further enhanced the woman's sexy, vapid features.

"Oh, goodie!" She burbled enthusiastically. "I hoped you'd say that!"

So, the 'mannerisms' for dressing and making herself up like a woman had been enhanced, just as promised - which meant that the anomaly must lay somewhere in the behavioral areas.

Well, come to think of it, it should have been obvious. In fact, Bambi felt like hitting herself as she looked down at her wonderful new body dressed in the super-sexy clothing that Natasha had sent over, and finally made the connection she'd been missing.

The body, the clothes, the way the anomaly wasn't specifically listed, almost out of some sort of embarrassment - it all added up to one thing:

Sex.

The anomaly must have something to do with sex. Somehow, the enhanced sexual mannerisms the serum was supposed to create must be flawed - and because it was dealing with such a delicate matter as sex, Natasha hadn't felt comfortable specifying exactly what the problem was.

Yes - it made perfect sense.

Well, that made it oh-so-simple, then - to discover what this frustratingly elusive anomaly was, all she had to do was keeping using sexual skills until she found one that her enjoyment of, or her skill with, wasn't up to standards.

Simple.

Smiling, Bambi set about finding out which of her skills was lacking, beginning with the most basic.

Wiggling and jiggling her way over to where the delivery guy sat with a stunned look on his face, she plopped her tiny, huge-breasted little body down on his lap, wrapped her slender arms around the back of his head, then proceeded to kiss the living daylights out of him.

She let her body go ahead and do what it seemed to know how to do so well, letting her conscious mind remain free to wonder about something much more important: Was she enjoying this?

Indeed she was.

How wonderful it was to live the feel of a man's arms around her, his hands greedily kneading the full flesh of her buttocks while their lips pressed hard together, tongues dancing eagerly in each other's mouth. She knew that, without the wonderful serum, this would disgust her, sicken her, make her want to puke - but the serum was so powerful, it could make even a straight man love being a huge-breasted woman pressed hard against a man's body, huge tits compressed wonderfully against the man's chest as they kissed the hell out of each other.

Indeed, the serum was so wonderful that she loved it even though the man was a pimply-faced chubby geek! Why, the serum was so powerful that she could fuck, suck, or kiss anything with a cock and love it as much as she was loving it now!

It was all so exciting!

Finally, she broke the kiss after her body indicated that it was getting the signals from the guy that it was time to move on. Amazed at how skilled she was as a sexy woman thanks to the serum, she sort of let her body go on 'auto-pilot', letting the skills and mannerisms of the chemical compound that had altered her into the wonderfully sexy woman she was do all the work while she 'sat back' and let herself bathe in the wonderful pleasure letting herself be sexually active provided her with.

"Play with my big titties..." She heard herself say to the man, happy to hear her body tell the man to continue. If there was something wrong with the serum, she should be demanding he stop this sickening, disgusting act, since that would have been her pre-serum response - but the serum was functioning perfectly, and she only wanted more. 'Squeeze them and suck them and touch them...'

The man, thankfully, had no problems complying with her requests, letting her enjoy his fumbling, inexperienced grip as he all-but-mauled her fantastic, massive boobs. Indeed, the very fact that even his geeky, fumbling attempts were getting her so turned on was just another sign of how much money this serum was going to make for her.

As he played with her titties, she scooted further back on his knees - to let her tiny hand reach down and unzip his pants.

Where she should have been disgusted by what she was doing, the serum made it possible for her to be ecstatically happy to be taking a man's warm, hard cock in her hands as the man let go of her boobs and slid his pants down the rest of the way. Indeed, the serum was such a wonder-drug that she was actually panting with nearly desperate desire instead of disgusted perversion as she eagerly slid back towards the man, spreading her legs wide so that she lifted herself above him, then happily thrust her new body down on his raging manhood.

Oh, god - did it feel wonderful to impale her tight, wet cunt on his throbbing cock!

It was all because of the serum, of course. As she let her body go ahead and use the new skills given to it by the same serum that had reshaped it, she let herself be engulfed in the waves of mindless pleasure and uncritical happiness that came from being an eager little fuck-slut, reveling in the power of this wonder-drug. Even as she thrashed and moaned and gasped, plunging herself up and down atop the man's body, she let the physical pleasure of fucking a man run through a mind that was busy experiencing the pleasure of pure satisfaction, knowing that any drug that could make a heterosexual male enjoy fucking a man this much would make a fortune when sold to 'cold' women.

Her skilled body didn't take all that long to reach orgasm - but even as the blinding pleasure shut down critical mental functions, her trained body continued fucking away, refusing to stop until it had brought the man off to an earth-shattering orgasm of his own.

It took her a bit by surprise to find her body sliding down onto her dimpled little knees between his legs, her mouth eagerly engulfing the softening organ slicked with moth man- and girl-juice... but since it followed her plan of finishing whatever flaw in mannerisms might still lay in the formula, she certainly didn't do anything to stop her body as it expertly went to work, sucking cock like an experienced - and enthusiastic - little cum-slut.

Even with the considerable skills her body possessed, it took damned near forever to get him hard again, much less to make him cum - and she was so glad that her body had been programmed to love the feel and taste of man's cock in her mouth, or the long time it took to get the man off for a second time might have been considerably less then enjoyable.,

Not that Bambi thought this uncritical love of fucking and sucking men was perfect, however - oh no, it had it's inherent flaws. For instance, she was actually greatly disappointed by the blowjob, because of how little cum the man was able to pump down her eagerly waiting throat. What, with her taste-buds physically altered to find the taste of semen so wonderful, it was a vast disappointment to get so little of the sweet, hot cum to fill her mouth.

Oh, well - she'd have to suck a man's cock from the get-go at some point, to make sure her body still loved it when it was damned near pints of the creamy warm man-seed being pumped down her throat. She was pretty sure she'd love it as much as she'd loved this skimpy little load, but she'd have to be sure...

"Okay - now fuck me up the ass..!" She said, eagerly, standing up and turning around to present her taut, full ass-cheeks to him... "Can't..." the man wheezed. "Done..."

Bambi rolled her eyes and sighed. How was she going to make sure there was no major flaws in her sexual skills if this guys couldn't fuck her in every way it was possible for a man to fuck a huge-breasted woman?

Well - she'd just have to find another man, is all.

As she quickly replaced her negligee with a skin-tight white spandex dress that just barely covered the tops of her stockings, and exposed miles of delectable cleavage, she decided that it was for the best. After all, she'd need enough men for her to allow testing of such critical 'programming' as getting fucked up the ass, tit-fucked, and even hand-jobs. Though the fact that even thinking about doing these things almost made her cum was enough to suggest that the anomaly didn't apply in these areas, she'd have to go through each of them, just to be sure...

In fact, she realized as she strutted towards the door, already eagerly anticipating a long night of fucking and sucking any men she could find, 'once' wouldn't be enough. In science, you had to have enough data to make sure there was no flaws from an outside source.

Yes, she realized as she walked outside the house, she'd have to perform each sexual act at least a hundred times, just for enough statistical data.

Then again - what if the anomaly only kicked in in certain situation? Say, in the order of sexual acts? What if she could love getting tit- fucked, the taking a huge, throbbing cock up her ass, but would be disgusted if done in the other order?

She had to know,. Finding this anomaly was more important then... well, then absolutely anything else in the world.

Oh, well - she'd just have to fuck and suck in every conceivable position, order, manner and way it was possible to do it - and each of those combinations would have to be done with every conceivable type of man, just in case the anomaly was related to a specific build, race, or type of guy.

It didn't matter. She was determined to find out what this anomaly was, and she'd just keep fucking and sucking men for as long as it took.

"Hell..." She said to no-one in particular, giggling. "If necessary, I'll spend years doing this...!"

Determined, Bambi Bimbeaux swiveled, swayed and bounced her way down the sidewalk, watching for her next 'test subject'...

* * * * *

Tucking his cock into his pants, Josh sighed and shook his head in amazement. Here he'd been doing a late-night deliver that, even on the face of it, was a little odd - but he'd certainly never expected some huge-breasted blonde bimbo to almost literally fuck his brains out, and then simply walk away.

She'd left all the house lights on, a computer running, and the front door standing wide open - yet a simple glance out the door revealed that she wasn't just going out to get the mail or anything like that. She was long gone.

Shaking his head again, Josh started to shut off the lights, planning to leave the house locked up for the woman - though he didn't even think she'd taken her keys with her when she'd left. Still, he wouldn't feel comfortable leaving the house just standing open like this.

Walking over, he reached out to shut off the computer...

...then frowned as he watched some sort of weird static flicker across the screen..

Some time later, he blinked and shook his head, wondering what the hell all the scientific gibberish on the screen meant. It was way over his head, and he normally wouldn't have cared what it all meant - but for some reason, it seemed really important to him to figure out what all this chemical crap was.

Drumming his fingers on the desk, Josh glanced around, hoping to spot some sort of 'science-shit to English' dictionary...
...and noticed a pile of needles on the desk.

About half the needles were empty, used - but there were still some left.

For some reason, Josh just knew that it would be a hell of a lot easier to understand this science stuff if he just injected himself with whatever was in the needles.

Even as his eyes almost instinctively returned to that hypnotic static pattern on the screen, one chubby hand reached out for a syringe...

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: Three male advertising executives find themselves the victim of a disgruntled scientist who uses his special line of "products" to turn two of them into huge male studs and the third into a lust crazed bimbo.

Truth In Advertising

By Gunslinger

The phone on the desk shrilled, once, twice...

Taking a last sip of his cooling coffee, Nick leaned his rangy body back in the chair and, without looking, easily snatched the receiver from it's cradle, bringing it up beside his head as he continued to eye the poster on the wall he was critiquing.

"Lyman, Stone and Denbrough Advertising, can I help you?" Nick asked, putting down his now-empty mug. He used his freed hand to ruffle his short thatch of auburn hair as he listened.

"I, um, certainly hope so." The voice on the other end of the phone said. "Can I speak, uh, to one of the partners, please?"

Nick smiled at the sound of the abstracted, slightly fussy voice on the other end of the line, making his strong-featured, pointed-jawed face go from 'impish' to 'Devilish'. "This is Nicholas Denbrough. How may I help you, sir?" He asked, hoping that the other man would miss the more-than-slight sarcasm that oozed from the last word.

"Yes, well... um..." The voice muttered, and Nick, playing the game he usually did when talking on the phone, began to construct a mental image of the man. Middle aged, shock of white hair, slightly absent-minded...

"My name is Matheson... Uh, Donald, Donald Matheson. Dr. Matheson to be precise." The voice at the other end said, rambling. "I'm a... uh,... well, 'inventor' I guess. Or, perhaps 'research scientist'."

Immediately, Nick's face went from devilish to fiendish as he realized he'd pegged the guy as the stereotypical 'absent-minded professor' type in one go. "Well, Dr. Matheson, what can I do for you today?"

Matheson paused. "I, um, have been working on several different, um... products, I guess you would say. Then, ah, a few weeks ago I came across several advertisements for products that, um,... seemed to be what I was working on. I ordered these products. To see if I, that is, to find out if my work should still go ahead."

Nick idly twirled a pen in his fingers. "I see." He prompted, not really seeing what the 'good doctor' was going.

"Well, I received the, uh, products and... Well, quite simply, they didn't do what the advertisements said. At first I was, ah, quite relieved, you understand - because my work is still viable, you see - but then I realized I had just spent quite a bit of money on, ahem, fraudulent products."

Nick realized where Matheson was heading - and if that was the case, what sort of 'research' Matheson must be doing, which brought another smile to Nick's face. "Sir, you should be taking this up with whatever company you purchased the items from."

"Well, you see, I, um, purchased many different items from many different companies. However, the point is, it was the advertisements that caused me to purchase them - and all the advertisements were done by your firm, um, sir." Matheson said, and Nick was actually amazed to find the man could work up some indignation in his mild voice.

"I'm sorry sir, but Lyman, Stone and Denbrough isn't responsible for any of the firms we have as clients." Nick said.

"You mean to tell me that you - that is, your firm - is lying to the public, and you don't accept any, um, responsibility for it?" Matheson said, sounding outraged.

Now Nick knew the man wasn't a potential client - and worse, a pain in the ass - he didn't bother with what he called his 'corporate voice' any longer. "Nope, no responsibility at all."

"Well, I shall certainly, um, have to hold you and the firm, um, responsible for the money I spent, as well as the mental anguish I suffered at the thought of my work being wasted." Matheson said. "I assure you, you shall be hearing more from me." And before Nick could reply, the 'good doctor' had actually hung up on him.

Chuckling, Nick hung up the phone, then stood and stretched, actually having enjoyed the confrontation. It was ironic that Nick's name came last in the company name - in actual fact, Nick was the company.

Gary Lyman and Mark Stone were more 'accomplices' than partners. As a matter of fact, they were Nick's roommates in the swanky apartment that also served as his offices, and their names were part of the company because they had fronted him some money, and co-signed the lease to allow him to get this apartment. They were also his best friends, since their collage days.

Nick's small office consisted mostly of a top-of-the-line- computer, with scanner, 2400 dpi color and direct-to-film laser printer, and all the latest gadgets. An expensive set-up - but worth it.

Nick's clients consisted of the 'fringe' business who couldn't afford - and wouldn't be accepted - by the big Ad firms. Mostly 'instant cures' and sex related products, they paid handsomely for the work Nick did, which of course included extravagant - and quite often, totally invented - claims and 'testimonials'. But it was legal - sort of - and it was a good living.

And the best laugh of the morning was the fact that the 'oh-so-irate' Dr. Matheson's research had to be in those gray realms of quack nostrums, sexual aids and 'not-exactly-brand-name' clothing that Nick did the advertising for.

Shaking his head with a grin, Nick regarded the poster he'd been critiquing, decided it was good enough, and instructed the computer to print it as a four color-separated plates, then picked up his empty coffee mug and headed to the kitchen for a refill.

As he passed through the living-room, he raised a hand to Mark and Gary who, as usual, were reclining in front of the big-screen TV that dominated one wall.

It was actually odd that the three of them had managed to become friends in college. In fact, if it hadn't been for the fact that the random vagaries of Dorm selection had thrown them together, they may not have been. But having been tossed into the mix together, their disparate personalities had somehow meshed.

Mark was almost the prototypical nerd. Short, slender and pale, he lacked the big horned-rimmed glasses, but had the somewhat long, slightly greasy head of dark black hair surrounding a pale, thoughtful face that seemed to be made up mostly of his introspective hazel eyes.

Yet that narrow facade hid the fact that he was a certifiable genius with words, which was his lot in life. Even now, half-watching the TV, he was typing away on his lap-top, doing yet another one of his columns for the local paper. A tri-weekly feature, (Mondays, Thursdays and Saturdays) the column paid handsomely, allowing Mark to pay his portion of the rent on their luxurious, four-bedroom apartment high above the city.

That same nerdish facade also hid the fact that Mark was an born practical joker. He actually considered his geek-like appearance a bonus - all through the furor caused by the unending string of ingenious practical jokes that occurred during his four-year stay, no-one had even considered that it could be Mark who was the culprit.

Nick himself would make up the 'middle-man' of their trio. Although not the genius Mark was, Nick had a certain street cunning, and was quite the con-man - which probably led to his current profession. Nick was taller than Mark, with a slender-yet-rangy body, like a runner, and a face that appeared slightly demonic due to his narrow, slightly pointed chin, high cheek-bones, and dark, sly eyes below a short thatch of reddish-brown hair.

And Gary...

Gary was the tallest of the three, with broad shoulders and a slender waist from his days as an athlete - baseball, rather than the more- popular football - at college. But he was easy-going, likable - and had a flair for restoring things mechanical. In specific, antique cars. The sandy-blond man had to work the least to meet his portion of the rent. He worked about one month out of every three, doing amazing work on expensive antique cars, bringing them to better-than-new condition - and getting paid upwards - sometimes considerably 'upward' - of twenty thousand per job. (He charged on a simple basis - fifteen percent of the restored cars appraisal value.) At an annual income of just slightly over ninety-five thousand, he was not rich, but what Nick's mother used to call 'comfortable'.

All in all, the three of them got along well. So, as Nick got a refill on his caffeine supplement, he related the call he'd received to his friends, sharing a good laugh.

None of the three had the slightest inkling of what was waiting for them in the future.

* * * * *

It was three days later, just after noon on a Friday, when Nick received the package from Fed-Ex. A large cardboard box, it was surprisingly weighty for it's size, and addressed, not just to 'Lyman, Stone and Denbrough', but included all three of their first names, as well.

"Hey guys..." Nick said, lugging the box into the living room where Gary and Mark were in their usual places. "We got a package." "From whom?" Mark asked, closing MS-Word and laying aside his lap-top.

Nick shrugged. "Don't know. No return address."

"Well, open that bad boy up and see what's inside." Gary suggested, and Nick placed the large box on the sturdy oak coffee-table and followed his friends instruction.

Inside was a VHS videocassette - and a largish lock-box, with a six-digit combination lock built into the lid. A note taped to the videocassette was written in block letter.

"What the...?" Nick asked, confused. Picking up the note, he read it aloud to his friends.

Dear Messrs. Lyman, Stone and Denbrough. Please watch this together. It contains a sort of puzzle, which will probably take all three of you to solve, which will reveal the combination to the lock-box. Inside, you will find a prize.

Enjoy.

There was no signature.

"Anyone have any idea who sent this?" Nick asked, passing the note around. Then a thought struck him, and he shot a look at Mark.

Mark caught the look, and held up his slender hands. "No, Nick, this is not a 'gag' I'm running." He grinned boyishly. "Although I wish it were. Whomever our mystery guest may be, you must admit he has a certain flair for the enigmatic."

"Yeah." Gary said, picking up the cassette. "Well, I say we watch it."

There was general agreement to the point, and Nick slid the cassette into the VCR, and sat down on the sofa, flanked by Gary sprawled on the love-seat to his left, and Mark in the armchair on his right. Raptly all three stared at the screen, waiting for well, whatever it was.

What it turned out to be was a brief 'blip' of static - then a screen full of multicolored blocks, dozens of them, that seemed to be moving randomly around the screen and changing colors in time to a strange, atonal music.

"What the fuck...?" Gary blurted.

Mark picked up the remote and rewound it to the 'blip', then paused it, a thoughtful look on his face. "It's probably part of the puzzle. We're supposed to figure out what the patterns mean. I suggest that we pay close attention to the patterns, and see if any of us can catch the pattern. It might be a diagram of a football tactic, for instance. Or, perhaps... well, I'm not sure. But it must be something."

"Yeah." Nick said, slightly sour. "Unless someone's pulling our legs." He sighed. "All right, I'll bight. Come on guys, concentrate."

Mark restarted the tape, and all three concentrated all their attentions on the shifting patterns and odd music. The colorful, soothing patterns and the flowing, oddly relaxing music. The hypnotically flowing patterns and music...

With a few seconds, all three were deep, deep in a hypnotic trance, their conscious minds deep asleep while their subconscious minds were enraptured by what was on the screen.

After several more minutes, the hypnotic patterns became slightly subdued, as subliminal messages began to appear on the screen...

* * * * *

Nick blinked blearily, and sat up with a jerk. He massaged his eyes, which felt slightly gritty, and looked at his friends, who were doing likewise.

"What happened?" Nick said, confused. "I was concentrating on the patterns, and then. " Then what? He simply couldn't remember anything after that.

"I'm going to take another look at that tape." Mark said, and went to rewind the cassette - to find that, not only was it already rewound, but erased, taped over on a blank screen.

But even more confusing was the time index in the top-right corner that appeared when he used the remote. "Hey!" Gary exclaimed. "That can't be right!"

Nick quickly checked his watch, verifying the on-screen time. Somehow, all of them had lost track of nearly three hours.

"This is all very perplexing..." Mark said with a frown. "The pattern must have been some sort of hypnotic inducer - although I've never even heard of one working so quickly or effectively "

"Well, I don't know anything about hypnotic stuff." Gary said, angrily. "But how are we going to find out what's in there?" He gestured at the lock-box. "We didn't even get the..."

Suddenly, his face went slack and he looked around at his friends, who also looked stunned. Almost in the same instant, they all spoke the exact same six digits.

"Nine-seven-one-three-three-four-eight!"

Breaking the incredulous shared look, Nick bent over the lock-box in front of him, and set the combination to those numbers...

...and the lid promptly popped open.

Sharing another look, the three friends crowded over the top of the open lock-box, which turned out to contain three smaller boxes. Each of the three had one of their names printed on the top.

As if in a daze, without conscious thought, Nick lifted the boxes out, and handed them to the appropriate person.

Mark was the first to open his - and inside was a small bottle of pills, and a page ripped out of a magazine. It was a page that Nick recognized well - it was one of the ads he designed himself a few months before.

'Miracle Muscle - Body-building in a pill.' Mark read, somewhat numbly. 'Get the muscle-mass you've always wanted, quickly and easily.'

Sure enough, the bottle of pills was 'Miracle Muscle'.

Gary opened his next. Like Mark's, the first thing was a page ripped from a magazine. And, like Mark's, it was one of Nick's ad layouts. 'Insta-Tan. The miracle tanning pill.' Gary read, and looked down at the small bottle of pills in the box, also clearly marked 'Insta-Tan'.

Nick then opened the box with his name, and wasn't at all surprised when a page fluttered out, with a familiar-looking ad layout on it.

'Hair-Magic. Fast, painless and permanent hair-removal cream.' Nick read in a hollow voice, then hefted the identically marked bottle of lotion.

The three of them all felt the exact same - as if they were in a daze. The world seemed to gray out for each of them, and they found themselves moving. Not precisely against their will - it was as if they had no will of their own at all.

Numbly, Nick found himself walking towards the bathroom. He tried to stop himself, realizing that something strange was happening, but wasn't able to. Yet, somehow, it didn't seem to matter.

Reaching the bathroom, he undressed, rather mechanically, and sat on the edge of the tub, feet inside. The cold porcelain pressed against his naked buttocks as he began to methodically apply the lotion to his legs. From there, he spread the cool, creamy lotion higher, coating his body with it until he was completely covered from just below his eye-brows to his toes.

Mindlessly dropping the now-empty bottle in the garbage, Nick turned on the shower to a pleasant temperature and stood underneath the warm spray. Immediately, the lotion began to sluice off his skin...

...and with it, all his body hair. Within minutes, he was clean, dry - and completely hairless aside from his scalp and his eyebrows. In that instant, the strange daze faded away, and Nick started.

"What the fuck!?" Nick exclaimed, staring down at his newly denuded body. His skin was left smooth and silky, almost unnaturally so. "What the hell's going on here?" He asked himself in confused horror. Aside from the strange daze that had caused his actions, he knew that this should be possible - that cream didn't really work...

...the way he'd stated in the ad. Yet, this bottle had done exactly what his ad had boasted it would.

Feeling a shiver of fear, Nick quickly dressed, wincing at the odd - but not unpleasant - sensations caused by the fabric on his smooth skin, and hurried back to the living-room.

Entering the room, he almost literally screeched to a halt.

Gary and Mark were acting perfectly normal, as if nothing at all odd had occurred. Perfectly normal, that is, if you ignored two things. The first being the way that, every now and then, one of them would pop a pill into their mouths and swallow.

And the second being that, despite their perfectly normal motions and vocal inflections, their eyes were blank and empty, as if they were drugged.

"Guys!" Nick exclaimed, feeling a shudder of revulsion at his friends empty, mindless gazes, despite their friendly smiles. "Hey, Nick." Gary said. "That stuff do the job?"

"Wha...?" Nick stammered. "Yeah, it did... What the hell's wrong with you guys?"

Gary and Mark shared a mindless gaze. "Wrong?" Mark asked. "I haven't the slightest idea what you mean, Nick. Everything's perfect."

One more look at those blank eyes told Nick that arguing wouldn't produce any results. Ignoring his friends, he turned to the phone, planning to call someone - he wasn't exactly sure who - for help...

...and found himself completely unable to pick up the phone. Instead, he found his feet - his traitorous feet - carrying him over to the couch, where he flopped down beside his two friends and found himself unwillingly watching TV with them, as if nothing strange had - and still was - happening. He even found his mouth opening and himself making a perfectly normal wise-crack about the show. It was as if it were a normal, average day.

But Nick had the sinking sensation that if he looked in a mirror, he'd see eyes that were perfectly blank and empty.

All of which explained why, as the day wore on, he was completely unable to express any surprise at all at the fact that Gary's skin tone was slowly, but surely, darkening, and Mark's slim body was beginning to slowly bulk out.

At the end of the day, he mindlessly bid goodnight to his equally mindless friends, then went into his bedroom, stripped naked, and slipped between the covers, where he finally regained some measure of control over his own body.

He huddled under the sheets, shivering in fear, hate and confusion. "Why?!" he asked the darkened ceiling of his room. "Why is this happening?"

But there was no response to Nick's anguished question as he slowly slid into a fitful sleep.

* * * * *

The next morning, Nick awoke, and his first thought was 'Geez, I never realized just how good these silk sheets feel'.

Then he suddenly realized that the reason they felt so nice was the fact that they were sliding across skin that was as silky smooth as the sheets, and the events of the day before came rushing back to him, causing him to sit bolt upright, heart pounding, as he threw off the covers, hoping it had all been a dream.

He was quickly disabused of that notion at the sight of his soft, smooth skin that looked so perfect, so creamy, so...
...feminine.

The thought came to him unbidden, and disturbed him greatly. He tried to shove it away, but it continued to circle in the back of his mind like a mosquito that you couldn't shoo away, waiting until you weren't paying attention so it could once more settle on you.

His next thought on the whole situation seemed like the best possible one.

He wasn't going to leave his room. As long as he was alone, Nick seemed all right, free of that strange lack of control. So, he was staying right here.

And that decision lasted almost half an hour.

That's when the door-bell rang. Nick sat in his bed, silk sheets pulled up to his hairless chest, and listened to the muffled sounds through his bedroom door.

Then a few seconds later, Mark's voice called out.

"Nick, your packages are here!" Mark called, apparently enthusiastically - and Nick helplessly found himself rising from his bed. He fought against the inexplicable actions of his body, but was completely unable to control himself at all.

He walked, naked over to his dresser, pulled it open - and was shocked to find that the top drawer contained, not his silk boxers, but nothing but women's underclothes. Piles and piles of them. And not the plain-Jane stuff, either, but frilly and/or sexy, feminine undergarments in red, white, black and beige.

That mosquito that had been buzzing around in his head came to roost. And it weighed a ton.

Although Nick was surprised - shocked - at what he found in the drawer, not one iota of it showed as his body picked out a pair of frilly white lace briefs and pulled them on. They were the correct size for his hips and waist, but fit poorly, not having been designed for the bulge - the rather large bulge, if you asked Nick - of his cock and balls.

His traitorous body then opened the closet. Nick had a brief glimpse inside, which was full of feminine clothing, before his body pulled out a salmon-colored pink robe and slipped it on, loosely belting it at the waist.

Nick was beginning to have an inkling what had occurred during those missing hours the day before. But he had no time to ponder this insight as his body carried him out of his bedroom and down the hall to the living-room.

Two men were all but fawning over a large pile of boxes with the Fed-Ex logo plastered over them. It wasn't until his mouth opened and wished a good morning to them by name that Nick truly comprehended that these two men were his long-time friends and roommates.

Mark was the same height he'd always been, and still possessed the same dark thatch of hair. But the body under that black mop was completely different.

He was nearly as broad as he was tall with wide, thick shoulders. Massive muscles rippled under the torn-off T-shirt he wore, and his jeans were as taut as sausage casings over legs that were like pistons. The moving muscle mass that Mark had become looked like it could go head-on with a Sherman tank - and win.

Gary had also changed. He, too, still had the same hair color as the night before. But now his sandy-blond hair looked incongruous above a body whose skin was as ebony as a moonless night, almost to the point that it seemed to absorb light. Gary was now, quite simply, the blackest black man Nick had ever seen.

"Did everything come?" Nick found himself helplessly asking, not even knowing - consciously, at least - what 'everything' consisted of. "Sure did, Nicki." The extraordinarily dark-skinned Gary replied with a smile. "Everything we need, babe."

And he fondled Nick's ass.

Nick wanted to scream, to jump away, to do anything to display his disgust at having a man touch him like that.

Instead, he leaned forward and gave Gary a long, hard, passionate kiss, tongue intertwining with his in a sort of dance. Inside, Nick felt like he wanted to throw up. Instead, he found himself saying "Well, let's get this done, shall we?"

So they did.

Gary and Mark - or, at least, they guys who had started out as Gary and Mark - began opening boxes while Nick watched helplessly, mind churning.

One of the things his mind was churning over was a fact that scared him silly. He'd gotten a real good look at Gary's eyes when they kissed - and they were no longer the dead-blank eyes of somebody who was drugged or hypnotized.

Gary had enjoyed it.

Thoroughly.

While Nick was still internally shuddering at the implications of that, the two altered men had gotten everything unpacked, and were ready to start. And Nick found himself obediently doing what they said.

No - not obediently. In his own mind, he was raging, fighting against their suggestions, which had all the force of an iron-bound commandment from God Himself.

Outwardly he went along willingly, cheerfully and even enthusiastically, bantering with the two men as he did so.

He 'eagerly' stepped into the ankle-to-waist long pair of black stretch pants which - according to the ad layout he'd done - were made of 'a space-age polymer that will quickly and easily give you the long, shapely legs and firm, shapely derriere that will drive men mad'.

Nick's cock was tucked between his legs to remove any 'unsightly' bulges - a task that Mark performed, apparently with relish, as he fondled the cock a bit, making it tough to slide the semi-rigid cock between Nick's smooth, soft thighs inside the panties that Nick's ad layout had boasted would make 'the vagina and clitoris more sexually responsive!'

After that, Nick 'willingly' slipped on the knee-high black suede boots with their six-inch tall spike heels. The same boots that Nick's ad claimed would 'help you develop that certain sensual walk'.

After that, Mark strapped a black leather corset in place around Nick's waist and, using all of his not-inconsiderable strength - drew it so tight that Nick could barely breath. But Nick was certain that it wouldn't stay that tight as it lived up to it's ad's promise to 'decrease your waist measurement by at least four inches - permanently!'

Then Gary assisted Nick with the odd-looking padded bra. It was a B-cup. One that wouldn't remain an illusion, if the slogan 'The all- natural extracts in the padding will increase bust size!' came true. Over that went a black, long sleeve spandex shirt that had fine, almost invisible white lines in it that were oddly distorted to 'enhance the bust and slim the shoulders and waist!'

Then came the make-up. The lipstick ' to give you full, sensual lips!', the mascara that 'makes lashes fuller and thicker!', the blush that 'hides blemishes and draws out beauty!'

Nick inanely found himself thinking that he used too many damned exclamation points in his ads.

Then there was the hair-gel that 'makes hair thicker, softer and shinier!', the long, bright-red press-on nails that were 'indistinguishable from the real thing!', the black-and-faux-gold choker that 'makes your neck look longer and slimmer'.

The final item was a small red aerosol container containing a breath-freshener that would also 'give you a sexy bedroom voice.'

Finally, they finished and Mark and Gary stepped back as Nick - or, as the guys kept calling him, Nicki, walked to a full-length mirror and took a look. Nick wasn't really too surprised to find that he moved easily - if not terribly seductively - in the high-heels.

The person who looked back was a slightly muscular, tough looking - woman. Her face wasn't beautiful, her hair was too short, and her trim figure wasn't all that curvaceous, but it definitely looked feminine.

Nick wanted to cry.

Instead, 'she' brightly suggested that the three of them go out for awhile. When Mark and Gary agreed eagerly, 'she' slipped on a jean jacket and left the apartment...

...with one arm around each of the guy's waists.

* * * * *

The first place the trio went was for a bite to eat at the local diner. Helplessly, Nicki found that she couldn't keep her hands off the guys, and vice versa. They were always lightly touching, fondling or kissing one another. And the most disgusting thing about it was - it was starting to feel good. Nick's mind hated being touched and kissed by 'other' men - but Nicki's body just knew that the gentle caresses and light but passionate kisses felt good, regardless of who was providing them.

Nicki was also shocked to discover that the changes her body were undergoing created mixed emotions, when she'd thought they'd only create one. Sure, the disgust she'd expected was there - but, unexpectedly, so was pleasure, and pride. By the time they'd had lunch and were leaving the diner, her ass was fuller, firmer - sexier. Her legs were shapelier, and she was walking with sexy stride, one that caused her now D-cup tits to jiggle with each step, a sensual, enjoyable sensation. Some of the men in the dinner, wondering why they hadn't noticed how hot she was when she came in, watched her leave, and the knowledge that she was turning them on was turning her on. She was becoming sexier - and hornier.

And, disgustingly, she was beginning to think about satisfying that lust she was feeling.

Next, the trio went to see a matinee. They settled into the dark theater, her between the two men. She couldn't have told you what the movie had been - she was too caught up in her mixture of emotions as the two guys kissed and fondled her incessantly, their hands often straying to her slowly swelling tits under her shirt.

And her hands often slid to fondle the amazing large bulges in their pants. And the hell of that was, not all of the fondles were driven by the strange daze she was in. Some of them were... voluntary.

The movie ended and the lights came up - and she received some very startled looks as she got up and left with the guys.

Many a man in the theater watched her go, and wondered how they could have missed seeing a woman with such enormous breasts.

Nicki's now EEE-cup tits were straining tightly against her shirt, and her amazingly sexy ass was doing the same against her pants. She was now walking with an incredibly provocative sway - partially due to the shoes, but also because there was no longer anything between her silken thighs to get in the way.

Nick was close to panic, although it didn't show. He couldn't understand why he wasn't more disgusted by what was happening. In fact, all his disgust was quickly fading. Instead, images - lewd images - were beginning to run through her mind.

She wanted sex.

With Mark and Gary.

Right now.

As soon as the thought ran through her mind, she was shocked and aroused to find that she was telling Mark and Gary that. And they were responding eagerly.

In almost no time, the three of them were back in their apartment. In Gary's bedroom. And Nicki was slowly stripping.

She smiled sensuously as she pulled off her shirt, revealing her huge, firm GGG-cup tits straining at their bra. Seductively, she unclasped this and let it fall to the floor. She gently caressed her own, massive tits for a moment, then moved on. She removed her boots and slid off her pants, revealing long, sexy legs, wide womanly hips and a fantastic ass.

Then, with a nervous smile, she slid her panties down, revealing her new, fully functional cunt. She looked at her altered friends, who were also disrobing - and gasped.

Mark's cock was big. Long and thick and hard, it was throbbing and ready.

But Gary's cock was massive. It was half as long again as Mark's, but more than twice as thick. And it too was hard and throbbing.

Nicki had no idea how to do what she wanted, never having experienced it from this point of view. But Gary and Mark were extremely helpful.

It started with Gary, who guided her to the bed. She stared, enraptured, at his gigantic cock - then, regretfully, said "I... I think you're too big for me..."

Gary smile. "No prob, babe. Until you feel comfortable taking my meat, I'll settle for a nice tit-fuckin'."

Taking a bottle of baby oil, Gary slowly, sensuously oiled up her huge mounds, causing her to writhe in pleasure. Then, pushing her huge tits together, he slid his huge, thick cock into the massive cleavage and began to pump.

The sensation was new, pleasant and enjoyable, but hardly overwhelming. She was enjoying it, though...

..and didn't notice Mark positioning himself between her legs.

Suddenly, Nicki screamed out in please as Mark entered her, his large cock filling her completely. She began to writhe on the bed, head rolling back and forth, as Mark began fucking her with long, even strokes.

The two men riding her matched paces on her bucking body, and she begged for it. Sensation like she'd never felt rolled unchecked through her body, more intense than any she'd ever felt.

Then her orgasm hit, and she screamed, a primal, feminine sound as her ecstasy took her. Hot cum gushed over her chest, face and hair, while more shot deep into her sensitive new womanhood.

And it felt wonderful.

* * * * *

The trio never left the apartment for the rest of the weekend. Every possible combination, position and location were tried, and all of them brought incredible pleasure to the gorgeous, huge breasted woman the two hugely endowed men were fucking.

They finally fell asleep late Sunday night, the three of the sharing a bed. The might have slept most of the next day, if not for the phone...

* * * * *

The phone on the bed-table shrilled, once, twice...

Yawning, Nicki rolled her massively-endowed body over the half-awake Gary and, without looking, easily snatched the receiver from it's cradle, bringing it up beside her head as she tried to figure out why she felt so... odd this morning.

"Lyman, Stone and Denbrough residence." Nicki said - then sat up suddenly with the realization that she was completely under her own control again. No force was motivating her. Not the hypnosis - or the, (as she now knew) induced hormonal nymphomania that had controlled her all weekend.

"Well, Nicki, I take it that my little , um , complaint has registered?" A voice said - and Nicki recognized it as belonging to the Professor guy who'd called to complain.

"You... You're the one who did this?" She asked, her mind still churning.

"Yes. I did tell you I was working on similar products as those advertised. However, mine actually work." The voice paused. "If you've learned your lesson, I can send the antidotes over anytime now."

Nicki looked over at the two huge-penis'd men who provided her the most intense sex she'd ever felt, then down at the two massive, sensitive tits hanging from her chest. With a low, throaty laugh, she said into the phone. "Antidotes? Not a chance, Doc. But if you want to come over, I'd be more than happy to thank you personally."

Then she dropped the phone in it's cradle and began to wake Gary - by giving him a blow-job.

* * * * *

In his lab, Don stared blankly at the phone, replaying the conversation in his mind. Had she - HE - really thanked him? And told him that she wanted to stay female? Did she really say that she'd 'thank' him if he came over?

Dropping the phone, he sprinted to his car....

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: Now a complete slut, one women learns the truth about her change from her latest sexual conquest.

Truth, Justice, And The American Lay

By Gunslinger

Hips swaying and shoulders rocking in time to the heavy, driving beat of the music from the club downstairs, she paused just inside the door of her apartment to check herself out in one of the many conveniently placed mirrors in her apartment.

Still moving in time to the rhythm of the music, she 'struck a pose', one leg slightly advanced, toe tapping with the music as she cocked her hips and threw her shoulders back. Tossing her head, she looked over the figure revealed in the full-length mirror's reflection.

She loved what she saw.

Six foot eight in bare feet, her slim, supple body was raised another eight inches by the black platform pumps she wore, so that her reflection filled the mirror from top to bottom. The two-inch platforms and eight-inch stiletto heels of her black patent-leather rounded-toe pumps put a delightful strain on her long, shapely legs, enhancing the smooth, sensual curves of her calves and thighs. Those delightful curves were further highlighted by the contrasting effect of the black nylons that encased her seemingly endless legs, vanishing under the hem of the black leather mini-skirt she wore, its highly-polished surface molded tightly to her womanly hips and her incredibly firm, fully-packed ass, also enhanced by the heels she balanced so easily and sensually atop.

Her waist, kept to a wonderfully dainty nineteen inches by diet, exercise, and nightly tight-lacing of a corset, was well-displayed between the skirt and the white silk blouse she wore tied in a knot just below her breasts. With her smooth, lightly-tanned skin gleaming with the light sheen of baby oil she applied, both slender waist and flat, firm stomach were a tempting center-point that would catch any man's eye and leave him wondering whether to let his eyes drift downwards to her pneumatic hips and spectacular legs - or upwards, to the spectacular breasts packed tightly into the tied-off short-sleeve silk blouse.

Only barely supported by the white lace demi-bra she wore beneath the lace-trimmed fabric of her buttonless blouse, her breasts were more than merely 'remarkable', both in size and firmness. Each silky-smooth, lightly-oiled breast was the size of a blue-ribbon, prize-winning pumpkin, though each firm, spherical, unashamedly displayed breast was much more softly firm and delightfully supple than any mere gourd could ever be. Obviously surgically enhanced, her massive breasts needed little support as they thrust firmly and proudly from the ribcage which she'd had the bottom-most set of ribs surgically removed from to further enhance her supple hourglass figure.

Above that deep chasm of cleavage lay her slender, well-rounded shoulders, from which her swan-like neck rose in a smooth column, framed by the curled masses of her silky black mane of hair, which in turn framed the smooth, sculpted lines of her face.

Her lips, full and enticing, were a deep, gloss red that matched the polish on her long, carefully manicured nails. Her nose, finely upturned, was flanked by eyes so dark brown as to appear black, themselves framed by long, luscious lashes that helped provide the sultry, 'come hither' gaze she customarily wore.

"Lynette Moorhead, you're utterly irresistible," She told her reflection in her smoky, cock-hardening voice. She smiled, winked, and blew herself a kiss. "As always."

Then again, she thought with a slow smile, perhaps she wasn't 'irresistible' - no man had ever bothered to try... So, perhaps not 'irresistible' - but, certainly, 'insatiable'.

Lynn was, after all, a bona fide nymphomaniac, a woman who constantly craved sex, and could, literally, never get enough...

...and she loved every second of it.

Turning from the mirror, Lynn opened the door to her apartment, letting the music from the club spill over the threshold and fill the air. No longer blocked by the thick door, the heavy bassline resolved itself into Whigfield's 'Saturday Night'.

Moving with the rhythm, swaying gracefully atop her slender heels, Lynn stepped out of her apartment and closed the door behind her. With a smoothly sensual stride that set her hips to both swaying and swiveling, she headed towards the stairs, swaying her head and rocking her shoulders in time with the music, her full, ripe lips moving as she sang along with the music.

As always, her descent down the stairs was more than just a 'stroll' - it was an entrance, a much eagerly awaited one for the regulars of 'Club Inferno'.

One of the cities hippest, hottest night clubs, Inferno had already been a major attraction when she'd moved into the upstairs apartment three years ago. At the time, there'd been no staircase making for easy access from the apartments to the club. Inferno jealously guarded every entrance, ensuring only the creme de la creme of the urban populous made it inside.

The management of the building had been more than happy to install the staircase, however. In fact, the staircase was now the only access to her apartment, separated from the other upstairs accommodations by a new wall. After all, when you had a woman like Lynn Moorhead around, a certifiable nymphomaniac who preferred men but also occasionally dallied with a willing woman, a sex maniac who never asked for anything but sex from her lovers - well, from a business standpoint, leaving easy access for her was the soundest business decision the club had ever made.

As her appearance was noted by the as-always capacity crowd, her name ran through the group in a wave, loud enough to overcome the heavy dance music that rocked the club.

Lynn shivered in pure, primal delight, feeling her lacy white panties become damp from the sound of over two hundred men - and not a few women - trying to catch her attention.

Just as she'd caught theirs.

The very fact that she was, right now, turning on that many men was nearly enough to make her orgasm. The knowledge that the men - and women - were devouring her with their eyes, making love to her long, luscious legs with their gazes, fondling her massive, wonderful tits with their minds... It was the most wonderful, orgasmic sensation. She was all woman, and she knew it - and what was a woman for, if not for sex? This, here and now, was verification of her life, of her purpose, a personal affirmation on a grand scale.

How could any woman not love the sensation that came with knowing that hundreds of people were, at that very instant, dreaming of having sex with her...?

It was nearly overwhelming. In fact, when she'd first moved in above the club, it had been overwhelming. Between the sensation, and the fact that no sexual act, no matter how wonderful, could satisfy her for more than a few minutes, she'd gone hog-wild for the first couple of weeks, sleeping perhaps six or seven hours out of every seventy-two as she indulged an endless stream of men...

It had been pretty good - but since she was never satisfied, sexually, it hadn't actually been any better than her current rhythm of a half-dozen lovers a day or so. In fact, she'd given up that frantic pace because it had begun to take a toll on her looks as exhaustion and poor diet began to show. She couldn't have that - no, she had a perfect body, and she had to take care of it.

Besides, the 'open for everyone' routine had denied her something else she truly enjoyed - the thrill of the chase. The wonderful sexual tension in both herself and her potential lovers as she took the time to pick and choose the next lucky soul.

"Hey, Darien..." Lynn said, sensuously, as she slinked up to the bar... while, around, the rest of the madding crowd had to struggle to and from the long, gleaming bar, fighting the packed room.

Lynn, as ever, simply walked through the crowd as it opened up in front of her. Even the newest visitor to Inferno knew the ground rules - and everybody knew that the best way to get Lynn's attention - and affections - was to make her happy. Though she didn't mind the occasional 'accidental' brush as some happy, lucky individual understandably took a polite chance to cop a feel of her luscious body, she wasn't interested in being jostled and passed around like a cheap party favor.

Darien, the head bartender, smiled incandescently at her - as well he should, since he was the only staff member she'd ever slept with. She made it a firm rule not to play with any of the staff - but she hadn't known who was staff that first night, and Darien had been the first lover in that 'cast of thousands' during the first two weeks in her new apartment.

"Hey, honey-buns." Darien said, winking. "What'll it be...?"

A ripple ran through the closest people as they jockeyed for position, falling silent in the full knowledge of what was about to happen:

She let them wait. Slowly, sensuously, she swiveled on one heel, leaning back against the bar. She tilted her head back, looking over her shoulder at Darien - while pushing her spectacular rack even further outward, her magnificent mounds threatening to burst free from their confinement as she slowly drew one leg up and hooked it in the brass rail around the bottom of the bar, exposing the lace-trimmed top of a nylon and even more smooth, silky thigh.

"Oh, gee, Darien, I just realized I forgot my purse..." She said, one of her standard variations. "I guess I'll just have to wait and hope that some kind gentleman will see fit to buy a lady a drink...!"

Then she threw her head back and laughed in delight as the pandemonium began.

Though no man was impertinent enough to crowd her, the 'clear space' around her narrowed considerably as a stampede to the bar began, men frantically ordering whatever drink they thought she wanted. Money literally flew as men threw cash towards the bar in a desperate attempt to be recognized as the one man allowed to buy each particular beverage.

Working as fast as possible, the bar staff began preparing the drinks that were ordered, loudly pointing out each man - in a few cases, the woman - who had ordered each particular drink, which were, in turn, lined up on the bar in front of where Lynn had turned to survey the growing array of glassware.

Finally, silence once again fell as it became clear that every conceivable drink had finally been ordered. The area of the bar she'd leaned against was now crammed with glasses, bottle, and shots, as the crowd surrounding her leaned forward in anticipation, knowing full well how the routine worked: Lynn would pick the drink she wanted, and the lucky buyer would find a very 'grateful' Lynn at least giving him a chance to make his case, while the rest of the drinks were left up for grabs, consolation prizes for whoever hadn't made the cut.

Now, loving the attention riveted on her, she began to look over the array, wondering what she felt like having. Even the music had been shut off for this momentous moment, Lynn's first choice of the evening...

..and, for the first time in memory, a voice dared intrude into that expectant silence. "I'll have a God's Blessing, please".

Like a tennis match, nearly every eye swiveled to take in the speaker - who stood, boldly, in the otherwise clear space around Lynn's delectable figure.

Even as four of the clubs bouncers closed in on the man, Lynn size him up. Well dressed in slacks and a black collarless shirt, he was strikingly handsome, with loosely styled brown hair hanging over a rugged, tanned face whose startlingly green eyes were crinkled in a carefree smile. He was tall, nearly as tall as she was without the heels, and athletically built - a runner's build, though, rather than a weight-lifter's.

That was okay - runners had endurance, and Lynn liked that in a man... but Lynn had her rules, and this little scam had been tried more then once. As always, she had to discourage any 'cheaters' - even ones as damnable handsome as this one.

"I've never heard of a God's Blessing before." She said, apologetically. She tilted her head slightly towards the bar. "Darien, how about you...?"

The response, however, came as a complete surprise: "Uh.. yeah, I have, actually..."

There was a collective intake of breath from the eager crowd at the thought they might have misses a drink. "It's another name for an Irish Coffee." Darien explained.

"That's right." The man agreed, his eyes never leaving Lynn's face - which, in itself, was remarkable, since most men took the time to enjoy a look at her body. She found herself both intrigued and piqued by the man's cool study of her face; she liked having her body admired.

"One for me... and one for the lady, if she cares to join me." The man said, calmly. "We don't serve Irish Coffee" Darien said, shortly.

"You have coffee, you have Irish whiskey, and I see whipped cream on top of the Jell-O shooters." The man pointed out, still not looking at the bartender. He changed the pitch of his voice, speaking directly to Lynn for the first time in a confiding tone: "I find that the mix of alcohol to lower inhibition and caffeine for extra energy is quite a... stimulating mix - don't you?"

Slowly, she smiled back at him, impressed at his poise and his panache. She nodded, once, slowly.

"The coffee's for the staff - We don't serve hot beverages here." Darien explained, smugly. "Too much jostling and drunks - we don't need a lawsuit from somebody getting burned."

Lynn heard the relived sighs from the men around her - and realized, with a start, that she wasn't the least bit interested in having sex with anybody...

...Anybody but this mysterious, intriguing man who was so calmly meeting her eyes, a friendly smile on his face. Though his interest in her manifest in his methods, there was none of the 'me, me, me!' eagerness she'd become so used to in people who looked at her.

In fact, his interest almost seemed... non-sexual.

Impossible, of course. Men and women always wanted to have sex with her. She'd had men admit to her that she wasn't the type that usually aroused them, and yet she did. She didn't mean just the 'I'm not into large breasted women, usually' type, though she'd had hundreds of those; she meant the fact that even gay men got hot for her. Same with straight women, though not as reliably as with men of any stripe...

..and yet, here was this man, obviously interested and yet, somehow, not mindlessly, instantly aroused by her. Though, around, her, men were sporting a hard-on at just being in her very presence, this man was barely at half mast...

...and what a half-mast that was. She could remember very few times she'd ever had a lover so obviously well endowed.

She could not remember ever having a man she'd actually had to do something to - or with - to bring him to full arousal. Even died-in- the-wool homosexuals had been hard as a rock and ready to roll when she'd chosen them.

Startled, Lynn realized why she'd lost interest in any of the other men crowded around her, eager to get into her pants. Until this very moment, she'd never had anything to contrast it against, and so hadn't known what she was missing.

They were all too easy.

This man was handsome - but no more then some of the other Adonis' she'd had in the past. He was fantastically well endowed - but so had a few others. Even the fact that no one man had been both wasn't the sole reason for her sudden, nearly overwhelming desire for one man in particular - something that was a novelty to her.

This man, this stud... might actually be a challenge! Well - she wasn't going to pass it up...

All this ran through her mind in a split second - and then her smile widened, and though she kept her eyes locked on this stranger, this enigma, this challenge, her words were to Darien:

"Well, then..." She said, huskily. "I guess this gentleman and I will have to take those God's Blessings somewhere more... private." An angry, disappointed mutter ran through the crowd - but nobody argued.

What Lynn wanted, Lynn got - and she didn't mean just the two mugs of Irish Coffee that soon appeared on the bar.

"Why don't you follow me...?" She suggested, loudly, to the stranger as the music began playing again. She winked, slowly. "I'm sure you'll enjoy the view..."

With that, she walked away from the bar, letting the supple sway of her body and the swivel of her hips do their usual, mind-boggling routine, making her firm, tight ass sway and rotate invitingly.

She was surprised to feel the urge to look over her shoulder to see if the man was following. Any other time, it would have been a given - and yet, for the first time, she found herself wondering, actually wondering, if a man she'd invited to follow her luscious, jaw-dropping form might not have accepted the invitation.

It was unnerving... and, yet, also exciting in a way she'd never experienced. Every sensation, every sound seemed magnified as she fought the urge to look, instead straining to listen, to extend her senses and somehow intuit his presence behind her without showing anything but complete confidence in the assumption he would be close behind, eyes firmly fixed on her delightful derriere.

Reaching the bottom of the stairs, it became a physical test of will not to turn around and ensure that the mystery man - now driving her nearly to distraction with desire - was still behind her. Instead, she forced herself to take the first steps with her usual sensual stride, every second seeming to draw out into an eternity...

...before she felt the faint, off-beat vibration in the steps that came from the man's weight.

In front of him, she had no concerns about her casual appearance as she let a victorious smile cross her full, delectable lips.

Reaching the top of the stairs, she put a little more 'oomph' in her walk, visibly 'working it' as she traveled the short distance down to her door - and there she did pause, opening the door slightly with one hand while she glanced seductively over her shoulder, lids lowered.

Sure enough, her mystery man was just yanking his gaze up from where it had been focused on her prime posterior - but, interestingly, he was blushing slightly, with a somewhat guilty look on his face, as if a naughty boy caught with his hand in the cookie jar.

Surprising - considering that she was just about to give him the whole damned candy store. "Like what you see...?" She asked, throatily, her lips curved in an approving smile. "Actually... yes..." He mumbled.

She was surprised. This was the cool, calm customer she'd invited up to her place? He sounded... surprised. As if admitting that her ass was utterly, mouth-wateringly spectacular came as a surprise to him, rather than for the given it obviously was...

A strange - and highly pleasing - warmth swept through her as Lynn realized his awkward, embarrassed agreement indicated, somehow, that her spectacular ass was so fine, so firm, so fully packed that...

...that...

...that he was getting aroused in spite of himself?

It was not only an intriguing notion - it was so damned erotic it almost made Lynn orgasm right then and there.

Getting any man hot for her was child's play - until this one. The challenge was interesting enough, actually having to 'work' to excite somebody - but to realize that, for some insane reason, he was actually trying to fight that arousal was stunning...

...and she was winning!

Of course. Still, the extra degree of difficulty that came from his active resistance made the foregone victory all the sweeter. Leading him into her apartment, Lynn put her coffee down on a table near the door and turned to smile at him, lifting one hand. "By the way - I'm Lynn. " She said, slowly moving closer to him.

As expected - as social training practically dictated - he lifted his own hand, saying "Uh, 'Lynn', I'm Robert Graves, and. "

That's as far as he got in whatever he was going to say - because Lynn performed a move that was, in it's own erotic way, pure poetry in motion.

As she took the last step to close the distance between them, she bent her knees, lowering her body considerably while pushing it forward - and, in the same instant, with exquisite timing and perfection of precision, she gave her upper body a slight twist...

...which caused Robert's outstretched hand to slid into her blouse, undoing the lightly tied knot holding it closed and filling his hand with a huge, round, delectable firm breast...

...while her own outstretched hand completed the motion, coming to lightly, yet firmly, cradle his semi-rigid cock through his pants. "Mmmm..." Lynn said, smiling wickedly up at his stunned face. "I am so pleased to meet you, Robert..."

Robert's reaction to her clever - and cleverly executed - maneuver, however, was completely unexpected: He recoiled.

Recoiled - as if her touch, her firm, perfect breast, her very being was... repulsive. Stunned, Lynn stared at him, her full, ripe lips moving in shock and dismay...

...which quickly began to turn to anger.

"Look, you don't understand..." Robert said, thoroughly flustered, as he lifted his hands defensively. "I understand you got me alone under false pretenses..." Lynn retorted, hotly.

The accusation made Robert blink. From any other woman, that particular accusation would have meant the exact opposite of what it did here, and that realization visible threw him for a second.

That left an opening that Lynn took advantage of. Despite her anger at his reaction, she still very much wanted to prove that no man could resist her charms, so she forced her voice to become honey-smooth as she gestured at his crotch.

"Besides..." She said, silkily. "Part of you obviously wants the same thing I do..."

She began to close on him - and he retreated, as if her perfect form and the idea of long, passionate, incredible sex with her was some sort of threat.

"You're not who you think you are...!" Robert said, quickly, eyes widening.. and, she noted with fierce delight, almost helplessly fixating on her firm, slightly swaying breasts. He closed his eyes and tried to get a grip on his runaway libido. "You're a man...!"

"Oh, you think so, do you.../" Lynn said - and, again taking advantage of his hesitancy, she quickly closed the distance, pressing her toned, supple body firmly against him. "Does anything you feel seem the least bit... masculine.. to you?"

He gulped - but he didn't try to pull away. The look on his face was that of somebody indulging in a guilty pleasure as he opened his eyes and looked up into her face.

"No, it doesn't - and that's what's making this so hard.. I mean difficult - despite the anti-pheromone drugs I've taken." She blinked, taken aback. "Anti-pheromone drugs?"

"Yes..." Robert said, uncomfortable - or, rather, in discomfort from the fact he was comfortable having her press her 'male' body against his. "When you were.. made into the woman you are now... your pheromone production was also greatly enhanced, the better to allow you the lifestyle you were, forgive me... 'programmed' to wish to lead."

She smiled, slowly and sensuously.

"Oh...?" She asked in erotic sarcasm. "You mean I only think I want to wrap my full, incredibly talented lips around your big, thick cock and give you the most mind-blowing blow job you've ever had?"

Practically whimpering, Robert flushed deeply and nodded. "Yes..." Lynn blinked, taken aback by his obvious belief in what he was saying...

..and excited by the fact that, despite that obvious belief, he was nevertheless incapable of resisting her. "Why don't you tell me all about it...?" She asked, licking her lips...

...as she slowly sank to her knees in front of him and began undoing his pants.

"Please... don't..." Robert said, with as little conviction in his voice as in his half-heart attempts to foil her hands.

"This is the deal, Robert..." She said, looking up from her kneeling position. "We both know what I wanted you up here for. Obviously, you have your own reasons. We're going to handle both reasons at the same time. I'm going to suck your cock, and you've got at least until orgasm to make your crazy story make sense..."

Turning her attention back to the task at hand, she finished extracting his large, thick, and now fully erect cock from his pants- and, with a soft sigh of satisfaction, leaned forward and enveloped his throbbing purple head with her warm, talented mouth.

"Oh, God..." Robert moaned - and equal amount of prayer and pleasure. "Look, 'Lynn' - you used to be a man named Lucas Westmoreland..."

Annoyed by the way Robert was continuing to cling to this absurd - impossible! - fantasy he'd concocted, Lynn threw herself into two tasks: Getting him off as quick as possible, so as to get rid of him - and to do it with such intense pleasure that he couldn't keep babbling this ridiculous story.

To that end, she began to lick and suck the end of his cock while her right hand began short, rhythmic strokes at the base of it...

...and, with her left hand, she lightly drew one fingernail back and forth over the vein running down the underside of the penis, something she knew would drive him wild.

Judging from the way he began to twitch and moan, it did - yet, somehow, despite the mind-boggling pleasure she was inflicting on him, he managed to continue tell his insane story:

"You.. worked.. in the FBI... with me..." Robert gasped. "You were... investigating... a shady... biochemical company..."

Annoyed, Lynn increased the pace, using every technique she knew. Her tongue was running circles over the head of his cock as she varied the suction she applied to the head, her lips alternately tightening and softening, all without losing that 'air-tight seal'. While the one hand continued to pump the base of his thick, throbbing shaft, she used the other one now to fondle his balls, occasionally tightening her grip to a point just barely shy of pain.

"You... Oh, god... found out that... Mmmm... James Burdette, the owner of the... oh!... company had invented... a compound... that could alter... a person's brain... and body..."

Somehow, Robert's insane belief that he was really getting a blow-job from a 'man' was allowing him to hold out longer than any man had any right to. Eager to get this done, Lynn used her body to force him backwards, until his calves hit her bed...

whereupon she swiftly, skillfully, and without missing a beat, stripped off his clothes and her own skirt.

Still without breaking rhythm, she forced him back onto the bed - while swinging her own body around into the classic '69' position.

Now she was deep-throating him, head bobbing furiously - while, with each thrust, she ground her crotch into his face, making it even hard for him to continue telling the infuriating story.

"We arrested ...mmmph!... Burdette, but... unnnngh...! he had already... gasp ...found out about you... mumble ...and had used his compound on you. We didn't know... mmph... what exactly he'd done to... mumble,mumble ...you or where you were until we made a deal and released him yesterday.... oh, oh, ohhhh, not yet.. not yet..."

It was obvious he was about to come. Throwing herself into sucking like she'd never sucked before, she gave up on the pussy- grinding as she entered the home stretch - and Robert used the opportunity to blurt out the rest of the story in a rush:

"I've brought the compound with me and you can be a man again because it'll break the programming if you only say your own name, your real name, and oh dear GOD!"

The rush of words stopped as another rush started - and Lynn blissfully gulped the thick, warm spray of delicious, wonderful cum that he pumped down her throat.

Licking her lips, she pulled herself off of his cock, turning to look down at him.

"If I'm really a man, how come you find me so sexy, then?" She challenged, his story making her angry- infuriated, in fact. "It didn't stop you from letting me suck your cock, did it?"

"They programmed you.. to get even more horny...if somebody brought the truth up..." Robert gasped. "Even though I'm immune to your pheromones, you.. you are incredibly sexy, and... I couldn't help myself, not with you so eager... But, if you just say 'Lucas Westmoreland', you'll know who you really are, and..."

"...and what...?" She demanded, infuriated. "You think I say that stupid name and I won't love sex anymore? Mister, you don't know a damned thing about me...and I'll prove it, by fucking your brains out!"

Grabbing his slowly wilting cock, she began to use hands and lips on it once more, playing it as skillfully as the world's most virtuoso flautist might.

"Please..." Robert gasped, his face drawn with the energy his previous orgasm had torn from his body. Otherwise limp on the bed, his cock had once again returned to full rigidity under her unbelievably skilled ministrations, it throbbing thickness filling her hands. "Please, Lynn... No more..."

"Why? Aren't you enjoying it?" She asked, as surprised at the bitter tone in her voice as by the strange rage that flowed through her. She couldn't stop, though. She just couldn't - not until she'd driven all these hateful thoughts he'd given her from her head. "Sure, I'm really a man, and your best friend, and what we're doing is practically raping each other... but isn't it still the best sex you've ever had? Isn't it?"

Gasped, exhausted, flushed, Robert stared at her - and the answer was torn from his throat, almost unwillingly: "Yes..."

Swinging one long, perfect - and damn it, ultimately, incredible, spectacularly feminine - leg over his prone body, she rose up over his towering manhood, staring down at him with a wild-eyed expression she would never have recognized in a mirror.

"And do you know why that is, Robert?" She screamed, madly. "Do you! It's because... I am... a slut!"

She drove herself downward, impaling herself on his manhood with a scream of victorious pleasure. Her sopping wet cunt encased his massive cock, filling itself to the limit, more snug and wonderfully fulfilling than any cock she'd ever had in her life.

"I'm a cock sucker!" She told him, intently, as she began flexing the long, shapely muscles in her leg, riding his cock in gleeful rage as he gasped for breath. "I'm a hard fucker! I am a cum-hungry, sex-crazed nymphomaniac slut! That is who and what I am. and I love it!"

She picked up the rhythm, punishing them both with the growing waves of pleasure that thundered through them as she drove herself atop him.

Harder. Faster. Deeper.

"I love fucking cock!" She told him, shrilly, as she reached out, grabbed his hands, and hauled them up to her massive, bouncing mounds of perfect breast-flesh. "I love having huge, firm tits, and I love having them ogled, fondled, licked, sucked and fucked! I love them because they are huge and sensitive and sexy - and they're perfect. Aren't they, Robert? You love my huge, perfect tits, don't you?"

"Yes.. " Robert gasped, in ecstatic agony. "God help me, I love your tits..."

"You bet you do!" She laughed, insanely, her rhythm never slowing as she rode him. "I'm a fucking nympho slut, Robert - and I love it. I loved sucking your huge, thick, cum filled cock - and you loved having me do it, didn't you? Didn't you?"

"Yes..." Robert moaned.

Sliding his hands down her body, she pressed them against the firm, flexing muscles of her spectacular ass. "What about my ass, Robert? Is it a man's ass, flat an unattractive? Tell me Robert - how's my ass...?"

"...spectacular.." Robert gasped, twitching and thrashing under her wildly driving body.

"You bet it is!" She laughed. "I'm the sexiest woman you've ever seen, Robert - and I love it! I love being sexy, having sex, giving sex... I love everything about my life as a big-boobed cum-hungry nympho slut! And you love it too, don't you? You love my body, and my skill, and the way I fuck and suck you, don't you?"

Robert didn't answer, thrashing beneath her as she built them both towards the onrushing orgasm.

"You do, Robert, I know you do!" Lynn screamed, a part of her wondering why this madman's insane accusations had affected her this way - but unable to control the way she feeling, the way she was acting.

Their orgasm hit. Like a tidal wave, it washed over them both, their thrashing bodies shuddering in it's grip...

...and Lynn's fierce, overwhelming need to deny his words was so incredibly powerful that, even as she was being rocked by orgasm, she shouted out her last defiance: "I... am Lynn Moorhead... the fuck-hungry cum-slut! I am not... Lucas Westmoreland...!"

...and memory flooded back.

All of it.

Atop her best friend, her mind trapped in the body of a sex-crazed nymphomaniac, female orgasm ripping through her hyper- sensitive, sexually-obsessed body, Lucas Westmoreland's suppressed mind was finally free...

...to face what she'd been up to the last three years.

All the sex. All the eager, willing, exciting, intensely pleasurable sex...

...which, even without the mental constraints of 'Lynette' imposed on her mind, she craved - because her altered body found more pure, physical pleasure in a life as an unknowing nymphomaniac than she'd ever experienced as a man.

Her life, as a woman, was pure pleasure, with no worries, no doubts, no self-consideration. Idyllic. Paradise...

...and Robert, her so-called friend, now laying unconscious beneath her from the force of the last, wonderful orgasm he'd given her, had stolen that from her.

Ignorance truly was bliss - and Robert had come here and cruelly ripped that ignorance - and bliss - from her...

In the few seconds it took her mind to pass through that chain of thought, Lucas - or, perhaps, by that point, Lynette - came to a single, horrifying, and utterly inescapable conclusion:

She could never live life as Lynette anymore...

...but neither could she ever be Lucas.

Following close on the heels of that horrifying realization came another thought, equally inescapable: There was only one thing she could possibly do...

* * * * *

Robert blinked slowly, the fog of sleep slowly fading from his mind...

...and the he sat bolt upright in shock as he realized he was in his own bedroom, in his own bed. "What the...?" He gasped, wondering if... last night...? had all been some sort of bizarre nightmare.

Shaking his head to clear it, he leaned forward and sighed, letting that wishful thought go even as he tried to figure out how he ended up here...

...and he saw the envelope. The one on the comfortable. With his name on it.

In Luke's handwriting.

Eyes widening, Robert picked up the envelope and, with a hand that hadn't trembled when facing down armed men, but which trembled now, pulled the letter out of the envelope and read it.

Hey, Rob,

Best buddy. Buddy ol' pal. Pal-o-mine. You lousy, well-intentioned, rat-fink bastard.

I don't know if you remember or not, but I - or, perhaps Lynn - did it. We said my name - and, once everything came flooding back, realized why you'd pussy-footed around the whole thing. You're right - I didn't like the truth. In fact, I found out that I liked being a woman more than a man - and I just loved the way sex is for a woman, at least one like Lynette was...

...and you ruined it for me. Knowing what I now know, how I could ever again enjoy the feel of air over nylon-clad skin? The wonderful jiggle and sway of full, firm breasts. The wonderful, uncaring joy of pleasing a man with hands, or lips, or...?

You get the idea.

In any case, I'm neither fish nor fowl. Since I can't be either of what I was, I'll have to be something new - and so, after I'm done writing this letter, I'm going to willingly and eagerly 'erase' both Lynette and Lucas, and put a new persona in place - and while I'm at it, I'm going to make a few, uh... 'improvements', with the serum you left for me.

My new name is going to be 'Lucy'...

...and remember, you brought this on yourself, you wonderful, caring, completely dependable son-of-a-bitch. Love,

Lynette/Luke/Lucy PS - Coffee's on...

Blinking, Robert read through the letter a second time, more slowly...

...then, hesitantly, lifted the covers and slipped out of bed.

Wrapping a robe around his body, Robert padded out of the bedroom, still unused to the way his enlarged cock bounced and jiggled between his legs as he walked, causing his to get a half-way hard-on as he hesitantly walked towards the kitchen...

...which was redolent with the fragrance of fresh-brewed coffee.

Hesitating for a long moment in the living room, Robert took a deep breath and finished the journey, stepping into the kitchen...

...and stopping dead to stare at the woman reading the newspaper at the counter. It was Lynette... only different.

Lucy was Lynette - brought back into the realm of 'normality'. The same luscious figure... toned down.

She was shorter - barely five eight, and with most of her other proportions scaled down to match. Beneath the white robe she wore, her breasts, once impossibly huge and artificially firm, were now 'merely' big and firm, perhaps ripe, 'naturally' firm DDD-cups.

The legs showing beneath the hem of the short robe were still toned and long and sexy - but 'possibly' long and sexy, instead of 'impossibly'.

Lucy, in fact, looked like Lynette's 'less sexy' sister.

Younger sister, as it happened, because Lucy looked to be all of twenty-one.

"Morning, honey..." Lucy said, brightly, coming over to claim a rather stunned kiss from him. "Uh..." He stammered, as she broke the kiss.

"Honey? Something wrong...?" She asked, frowning slightly as she looked up at him in concern. "Just... a little groggy, still..." He mumbled, wondering what, exactly, was going on here...

...because Lucy wasn't the only thing that had changed.

His apartment had been lightly redecorated with what was obviously a woman's touch.

"You...live with me...?" Robert asked the slender, cutely-sexy young woman looking at him with a thoroughly concerned look on her face.

Lucy rolled her eyes and sighed.

"Stop worrying, honey..." She told him with a slow, warm smile as she stepped closer. "Nobody is going to find out that the 'mystery woman' you're engaged to used to have another name - and a job in a certain Nevada bordello..."

Her robe had, somehow, come open - as had his...

"Even though that woman's gone, though..." She said, slowly sinking to her knees. "The woman she's become still has all the skills necessary to show how truly grateful she is to a certain FBI agent who 'fudged' the Witness Relocation Program files to allow the poor, misguided ex-prostitute a life full of love, laughter, and happiness..."

Then she stopped talking - because she was putting her oh-so-talented mouth to other uses.

Irreverently, the last coherent thought to flash through Robert's mind was that, as happy as he was going to be with the way things worked out, he felt sorry for the habitués of Club Inferno...

...but, then again, Robert had no way of knowing that, before creating Lucy, Luke had gone through his files...

* * * * *

Hips helplessly swaying and shoulders uncontrollably rocking in time to the heavy, driving beat of the music from the club downstairs, she unwillingly paused just inside the door of her apartment to check herself out in one of the many conveniently placed mirrors in her apartment.

Still moving in time to the rhythm of the music, she was unable to keep herself from 'striking a pose', one leg slightly advanced as she cocked her hips. Against her will, she threw her shoulders back and looked over the figure revealed in the full-length mirror's reflection.

She hated what she saw.

Six foot eight in bare feet, her slim, supple body was raised another ten inches by the white leather 'ballet shoes' she wore, so that her reflection filled the mirror from top to bottom. The fetish-styled put a constant, mildly-painful strain on her long, shapely legs, enhancing the smooth, sensual curves of her calves and thighs. Those curves were bare from the top of her lace-trimmed pink socks to the hem of the matching hot-pink spandex mini-skirt she unwillingly wore, it's stretchy surface molded tightly to her womanly hips and her incredibly firm, fully-packed ass, also enhanced by the heels she disgustedly found herself balanced so easily and sensually atop.

Her waist, was painfully constricted to a wasp-waisted fifteen inches by the heavy-duty white leather corset that was well-displayed between the skirt and the hot-pink spandex crop-top she wore, forming a tempting center-point that would catch any man's eye and leave him wondering whether to let his eyes drift downwards to her pneumatic hips and spectacular legs - or upwards, to the spectacular breasts packed tightly into the tiny crop-top.

'Recently enlarged', as she was unwillingly forced to claim, her breasts were more than merely 'remarkable', both in size and firmness. Each silky-smooth, lightly-oiled breast was the size of a medicine ball. Although obviously surgically enhanced, her massive breasts 'boasted' equally outsized nipples that were clearly visible in the tiny top she wore - something she helplessly credited as yet another example of the plastic surgeon's art, the same as the bottom-most set of ribs 'she' had had 'surgically removed' to further enhance her supple hourglass figure.

Above that deep chasm of cleavage lay her slender, well-rounded shoulders, from which her swan-like neck rose in a smooth column, framed by the curled masses of her obviously-bleached mane of platinum-blond hair, which in turn framed the smooth, sculpted lines of her face.

Her lips, full and enticing, were a rich, hot pink that matched the polish on her long, carefully manicured nails. Her nose, finely upturned, was flanked by eyes covered with tinted contact lenses that turned them such a bright, arresting blue as to appear mindlessly empty, matching the vapid expression unwillingly plastered to her face.

"Lovette Moorhead..." James Burdette helplessly told her altered self with a mindless giggle, "...I'm so happy you've finally decided to embrace the fact that you're just a cum-crazed nymphomaniac bimbo!"

With yet another helpless giggle, the new woman turned and, enveloped in the constant cloud of hyper-strength pheromones that surrounded her, helplessly wiggled and jiggled off to have sex...

...sex...

...and more sex.

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: Buying a computer from an auction, a strange program starts to transform one man from male to bimbo.

Type Of Girl

By Gunslinger

Plugging the last power-cord into the surge-protected power bar, Kevin scooted out from under the desk. Standing up, he idly brushed the dust from his firm, well-muscled body, and looked at the... think on his desk.

"Probably going to explode..." Kevin muttered to himself, shaking his raven-haired head as he stared at his new 'computer'. "Well... there's only one way to find out..."

The big, broad-shouldered young man reached one blunt, thick finger towards the red toggle-switch on the side... then paused, uncertain.

He'd bought the computer just that day, at a police auction, where they were selling off various items from the evidence lock-up whose usefulness had passed. Having just moved into a new apartment, Kevin was a little tight on cash, and had been hoping to pick up a few items for his new place at a reasonable price, but hadn't fared to well - the auction had been well publicized, and strong competitive bidding had pushed most items out of his current price-range.

Then this computer had been brought up to the stage... and Kevin had been the only one to bid on it, allowing him to grab the computer for a mere twenty bucks.

However, there was a good reason why nobody else had bid on it. The auction sold items 'as is' - if it didn't work, tough luck. From the looks of things, that was probably the situation Kevin was going to find himself in - because the computer was obviously a 'home-built' piece of equipment. The box itself was large, chunky, and a dull bluish-gray, having come from an early-eighties computer. Shoehorned into that was a motherboard that purported to be a Pentium II MMX - if you could believe the hand-written tag on the front of the casing.

The rest of the computer had the same 'jury-rigged' feel to it. For example, the CD-ROM wasn't a CD-ROM at all, really - it was a heavily modified car stereo CD player, installed in a custom-cut slot in the front of the CPU box, and wired up six ways from Sunday in the back to (supposedly) allow it to function as a CD-ROM. The 'monitor' was a large color LCD display from a lap-top computer. In fact, the only piece of the computer that looked 'normal' was the mouse - even the keyboard was 'customized', apparently having started life as a Commodore 64.

Now, Kevin was beginning just how stupid he was to have shelled out perfectly good money for the mismatched conglomerate of components. Sure, Kevin - who'd just barely graduated college on an athletic scholarship - wasn't exactly known to be a genius, but this purchase was even more bone-headed than usual.

Taking a deep breath, Kevin reached out and switched the big red toggle switch into the up position.

The machine instantly began to hum and chatter loudly, the hard-drive inside whirling to reassuring life as the thin LCD display screen flared into life, a strange and confusing screen of characters and numbers sliding by too quickly to read.

"So far, so good..." Kevin muttered. The scrolling screen of gibberish didn't look all that promising - but at least the computer hadn't exploded or shorted anything out, and it was making typical - if rather loud - 'boot up' sounds.

The screen continued to scroll for a second longer - then blinked to black...

...then flashed back into brightly-colored life as the 'Windows 98' start-up screen filled the monitor. A few seconds later, it finished loading, and popped into what seemed to be perfectly functioning Windows.

"Well, I'll be damned..." Kevin said with a smile. Having stood far back while the computer booted, he now stepped closer and slid into the cheap chair in front of the desk...

...and almost had a heart attack as a strange, high-pitched screeching sound filled the room. He leapt up from the chair and backed away from the computer, eyes wide...

...then began to laugh at himself, shaking his head, as the 'connecting to server' registered.

Sitting back in front of the computer, he reached for the mouse, intending to click on the 'cancel' button - after all, he didn't have an Internet account.

Then the hissing and chattering noise stopped, and the dial-up window changed to a 'connected' window.

"Holy crap!" Kevin said, startled - apparently, the account whoever had this computer before had set up was still active. For a minute, the pointer of the mouse hovered over the 'cancel' button - then he moved it and clicked on the button that minimized the window.

'Can't hurt to fool around a bit'. Kevin persuaded himself, opening the browser. While the 'Loading' screen for the browser popped up, a little flashing icon in the bottom corner of the screen drew his eye, and he stared at the flashing 'flower' for a second before (hesitantly) clicking on it.

An ICQ message window popped up. Kevin had used computers before, and recognized it for what it was, even as he read the short message in the little box.

'What does 'IN2FS' mean?'

'How the hell should I know?' Kevin thought, confused - then an idea struck him, and he opened the main ICQ window. The first thing he found was that there were no names whatsoever in the 'contact' list.

"Wow. Whoever owned this computer before must have been really popular." He muttered, sarcastically, as he opened the menu and searched through it until he found what he wanted - the user information. He pulled open the window.

No first and last name were entered, and no location - but, sure enough, in the box labeled 'Nickname', it said 'IN2FS', all uppercase. The only other information filled in was the 'age' and 'gender' spots, indicating that the previous owner of the computer was (probably) a twenty-six year old woman.

Kevin started to close the message window - then stopped, considering. He was just playing around, after all, with nothing her really wanted to do beside 'surf' the 'net. Shrugging, he figured he might as well have some fun...

He went to the browser window and popped into a search engine and started it 'searching', then went back to the ICQ message window and clicked the 'reply' tab. He thought for a second - then grinned as a thought popped into his head.

"Why not screw with him a bit?" Kevin asked himself, wickedly - then leaned forward and typed a reply. 'It stands for 'I Need to Feel Sexy.'

Grinning to himself, Kevin clicked on one of the links listed in the browser window, then went into the kitchen to grab a beer while the page loaded. He'd heard of guys who pretended to be women on-line, and had thought it sort of weird. Now that he'd kind of blundered into the role, he saw the attraction - the person at the other end had no idea who he was really talking to, and it was fun to 'con' the other guy, at least for awhile. Kevin thought this would be good for a laugh, to see how much stuff the other guy would 'swallow' before he began to doubt IN2FS's story.

As he surfed the 'net, Kevin kept his 'fantasy' dialogue going with the guy on the other end of ICQ. As he drank more beers, his answers continued to grow less and less thought out - Kevin started with a fairly plausible explanation for 'her' nickname by saying 'she' had been the daughter of a single father, and had three brothers, all of whom treated her like a boy. 'She' also claimed home-schooling, with almost no friends or other acquaintances outside of the home, until she'd moved out at the age of eighteen.

By the time Kevin finally said goodbye and logged off the Internet, he was roaring drunk, and he barely remembered the answers he'd typed in response to the other guy's questions.

With one eye closed - to help him focus - Kevin closed the browser, but left ICQ open, wanting to re-read the log of the 'conversation', figuring it would be good for a laugh.

Peering at the two-toned log of the conversation, Kevin blinked.

"What the hell...?" He slurred out, not realizing that the default setting of the log showed the messages in reverse order - the most recent message at the top, running to the first question at the bottom.

Waving a hand in irritation, Kevin - definitely not thinking clearly - decided to 'throw away' the log, grabbing the icon and dragging it to the 'recycle bin'.

Except that the icon he dropped it on wasn't the recycle bin. When he released the mouse button, a new box popped up in the center of the screen:

UNIVERSAL PROBABILITY EQUATION EDITOR

Processing - 0% done.

Estimated Time for Complete Processing: 09:12 (Local).

Estimated Time for Complete Implementation: 11:22 (Local).

"Huh?" Kevin asked the computer, drunkenly. "Whassha doin'?"

The computer, however, refused to be any more informative about the mysterious operation it was performing. Kevin tried clicking on the 'X' icon in the corner to close the window - nothing happened.

Next he tried good old 'CTRL-ALT-DELETE'. Still nothing.

"Aw, th'hell wiff ya." Kevin muttered, waving a hand angrily at the computer. Pushing his chair back, he rose from in front of the computer...

...and wavered, slamming hard against the wall. Shaking his head to clear it, Kevin staggered and wove his way towards the couch, leaving the computer running. Collapsing onto the cheap couch he'd bought from Goodwill, he picked up the remote to the older, fake- wood-grained-cabinet TV he'd bought and turned it on. Flipping through the channels, he found a (in his current state) absolutely hilarious comedy movie on. Flopping back on the couch, he fought to keep the TV picture in focus.

Twenty minutes later, the remote dropped from his nerveless fingers as he snored thickly in his beer-induced slumber.

* * * * *

Maybe 'King Cotton' no longer ruled the south - but it felt as if the King had taken up permanent residence in Kevin's mouth when he awoke the next morning.

He groaned, feeling aches and pains in every joint in his body, and a rhythmic banging on the inside of his skull - apparently, king Cotton wanted out, and using a sledge hammer against the back of his skull was the preferred method of egress.

"Never again..." Kevin promised himself as he painfully levered himself into a sitting position, glad that his basement apartment only had one small window that was shaded by the bulk of the window - from the way even the dim lighting speared right through his eyeballs and into his brain, a full-fledge glare would be fatal.

Due to his low funds, he'd cheeped out and bought high-potency, low-cost 'beer' 0 actually a type of malt liquor. Now he was regretting every ounce of it as he wiped a ribbon of slobber off his chin and fumbled for the remote. The channel the TV was still tuned to from last night was showing it's morning show, and it's hosts were much, much to chipper.

Groaning, Kevin creakily forced himself from the couch, not sure whether it was the old couch or his body making all the squeaking and groaning noises. Head sagging, he headed for the bathroom...

...and caught the motion out of the corner of his eyes. Frowning, he turned - and saw the standard 'Star Field' screen-saver on his new computer.

"Oh, yeah..." he mumbled, continuing his trek towards the bathroom. He remembered buying the computer yesterday, and finding that it worked... but everything else after that was a blur.

Stripping out of his rather ripe clothes, Kevin stepped under the lukewarm spray of the shower and simply stood there for a good five minutes before he even began to wash. After cleaning himself thoroughly, he took a deep breath...

...then turned the water all the way over to 'Cold'.

Letting out an agonized groan, he shivered and endured the icy deluge, until his body began to go numb. Shutting off the water, he towed off quickly, beginning to feel more like a real human being - or at least a reasonable hand-drawn facsimile thereof.

Pulling on a fresh pair of underwear from the pile he kept in the bathroom closet, he padded to his bedroom and pulled on a clean pair of jeans, a dark navy-blue T-shirt, and a pair of socks. What he needed now was coffee and orange juice, and maybe a few hundred calories.

The problem was - his cupboard was bare. He hadn't done his shopping yet.

Recalling the 'Mom and Pop' diner on the corner had a breakfast special, he decided that the walk was worth the results. Slipping his feet into a pair of rather tattered Nikes, he slipped his keys and wallet into pockets, put on his sunglasses, and left his apartment.

Two things hadn't even occurred to him. One was the fact that his face was as smooth as if he were clean-shaven - yet he hadn't shaved in more than twenty-four hours. In fact, his face was not only smoother than it had been when he'd fallen asleep - it was smoother than it had been just after he'd shaved.

It also never occurred to him to check what time it was - the fact that the sun was up was enough to let him know it was 'morning', which was as close as he figured he needed to know.

If he had checked the clock, he would have found that he left the apartment at nine-fourteen in the morning...

* * * * *

The woman behind the counter was one of those middle-aged 'motherly' types who was somewhat overweight, but carried the extra pounds very well - it would have been difficult to imagine her being slimmer, as a matter of fact. She was busy pouring one of the five other customers a cup of coffee when Kevin walked in and slumped into a stool four spots away.

"What can I getcha, honey?" She called, while finishing refilling the man's mug. Kevin winced behind his sunglasses. "Coffee, to start."

The waitress wandered over with the pot, grabbing a fresh mug from under the counter and filling it. "Feeling a little.. tender this morning, are ya?"

Kevin smiled weakly - she'd obviously been working long enough to spot the hang-over victims. "Yeah."

She smiled. "Tell you what - we have a breakfast special that's just perfect for the morning after a bender. Two-ninety-nine, and you get eggs, toast, home fries and a bowl of oatmeal. Comes with a large oh-jay, and a bottomless cup of

joe. Sound good?"

"Perfect." Kevin had to admit - none of those foods sounded like they'd disagree with his stomach the way some things - like bacon or sausage, for example - would.

"Coming right up." She said, with a smile. "By the way, if you don't mind me asking - do girls still go for that long-haired look?" Kevin blinked. "Huh?"

The waitress gestured with the coffeepot. "The long hair."

Frowning, Kevin leaned forward and to the side, allowing him to see past the waitress to the mirror-like stainless-steel strip that ran behind the counter. Even though it wasn't quite a perfect mirror, he could see enough to tell that his hair was hanging down to his shoulders.

"Geez - I didn't realize it had gotten that long..."

The waitress looked surprised. "You mean that you didn't have it cut that way?"

Kevin shook his head, now noticing the feel of the hair brushing over his neck and the fabric covering his shoulders. "No."

"Huh." She said, nonplused. "Thing is - it looks like it's fresh-cut to that style. Guess you just have hair that doesn't get split ends - lucky you."

"Yeah..." Kevin agreed, still frowning slightly in confusion., Sighing, he decided it wasn't worth worrying about at the moment, and began to sip at his coffee.

About half-way through his breakfast - and starting to feel more 'up to speed' - Kevin began to squirm slightly in his seat. His underwear was riding up something fierce, tugging up into his crack and pulling tightly across his 'equipment'. Since a little bit of wiggling didn't help all that much, Kevin decided a quick trip to the restroom was in order.

Trying not to look as if his underwear was riding up painfully, Kevin headed to the men's room, finding the two-stall room to be empty. Stepping into the nearest stall, he locked the door and lowered his pants...

"What the fuck...?"

Kevin stared down with a complete and utter lack of comprehension.

In place of his regular Hanes briefs was a pair of women's panties. They were the same color - white - but they were a lacy v-shape pair of briefs that was completely unlike anything he'd ever worn.

He'd never even seen a pair of panties like these, outside of the magazines or movies.

"Whoa - talk about being out of it..." Kevin said, shaking his head - he figured that when he'd done his laundry at the Laundromat down the street, these all-too-feminine panties had been left in the dryer, and since he didn't fold his underwear, just balling them up into a pile, he hadn't noticed them when he'd brought them home. Then, this morning, he must have pulled the on without thinking about it - though he felt he should have noticed pulling on a lacy pair of women's panties.

That was a moot point, though - he must have done it, as he was wearing them now - panties didn't just magically appear on somebody. What he had to do now was figure out how to handle the situation....

After a minute, the truth dawned on him - he'd just have to put up with the frilly underwear until he went home. Since he didn't want to run out halfway through breakfast, he'd just have to put up with them...

Sighing and shaking his head, he pulled his pants back up and went back to finish his breakfast.

Paying his bill - and thanking the waitress both verbally and with as hefty a tip as his budget could allow - he headed home, walking sort of bowlegged to relieve the pressure on his balls and the crack of his ass, feeling like a cut-rate John Wayne.

Closing the door of his apartment behind him, Kevin sat down on the couch and started to take off his shoes...

...and stopped dead, because they weren't his shoes.

"What the hell?" Kevin asked, in confusion - his sneakers were a tattered pair of Nikes, with fabric-and-mesh uppers, pretty grimy and with holes where his the nails of his big-toes had poked through after wearing them all summer without socks.

These shoes, however looked to be brand new, with leather uppers. They were a light shade of gray, and of an unusual design, one that he couldn't recall ever having seen before.

More than that, though - inside the shoes were socks - but they weren't the white athletic socks he seemed to recall putting on that morning. these socks were of a finer material, almost like dress socks - and they went almost to his knees.

"This is really fucking weird." Kevin told himself, unlacing the shoes and pulling them off. Heading into the bedroom, he stripped quickly, dropping both the feminine panties and the long, sheer socks into a pile on the end of the bed, intending to return them to the Laundromat's lost and found. Naked, he trotted into his bathroom...

"What the fucks going on?" He demanded loudly to thin air, staring at the pile of underwear in the closet. Hesitantly, he picked up the two top pairs, one in each hand, and stared at the lacy, frilly, and utterly feminine undergarments. The entire pile of underwear was like that - frilly, lacy women's undergarments.

More than that, the pile was considerably larger than it had been this morning, despite the skimpy nature of the undergarments. Part of that came from the fact that there were a lot more of them - but another factor in the new size of the pile was the selection of frilly training bras mixed in with the panties.

Frowning thunderously, Kevin dropped the panties back into the pile headed back to his bedroom, mentally vowing revenge on whatever wise-ass was playing this practical joke on him.

As he stomped to his bedroom, he began to compose a mental list of suspects. Since he'd locked the door, he figured that either the superintendent, or maybe the previous owner of the apartment, had to be in on the p[rank - but it didn't make much sense that either one of them would decide to play a prank on him without provocation, so probably one of his so-called friends was the mastermind behind this stupid little...

Kevin stopped dead, jaw dropping and eyes widening in pure shock.

He'd dropped the underwear and socks on the end of his bed before going into the bathroom. Now, resting in the same place as those two items was a pair of panties of a similar design - but in pale pink. On top of the panties, where he'd left the cocks, was a white pair of pantyhose.

Slowly, Kevin's look of shock changed to one of anger - and a little fear. The bathroom was only a few feet away from the bedroom, and he'd only spent a few minutes in there.

Whoever was doing this had to still be in the apartment - maybe they hadn't managed to finish the switch before he got home, and had hidden in a closet or in the kitchen. In either case, they were probably still here, and he could catch them 'red handed'.

However, Kevin was all-to-aware of the fact that he was still buck naked.

Deciding to forego underwear - since his own was missing - he picked up his T-shirt and jeans from beside the bed...

...then cursed and tossed the pair of women's jeans and the medium-blue T-shirt with lacy neck-line back into the pile. Lips compressed into a thin line, he sidle up to the closet, balled his right hand into a fist, and threw the door open with his left hand.

There was nobody inside. Kevin let out his pent-up breath and began to relax...

...then stiffened again as he realized what he was looking at.

Somebody seemed to have replaced every item in his closet with the feminine equivalent. All the jeans were now women's jeans in a size that was nowhere near to his own, and all his button-down cotton work-shirts had been replaced with various types of blouses. However, there was even more clothes in here than he'd own, including a few dresses.

Teeth grinding together, he reached out and grabbed the blush white bathrobe that had replaced his tattered plaid one, and pulled it on. At least nominally clothed, he turned and headed out of the bedroom.

The first thing he did was throw the bolt on the front door with a loud 'snap'. If whoever it was had escaped, a key wouldn't get them back in - and if they were still here, they couldn't escape without Kevin hearing them.

Angrily, he stalked into the kitchen to begin his search of his apartment...

...and came screeching to a halt, eyes opening wide in surprise.

"Wha...?" He stammered, walking slowly into the center of the room and slowly turning full circle, staring in utter shock.

When he'd last been in his kitchen, it had been rather sparsely - and definitely cheaply - furnished. Now, he barely recognized it as the same room.

The old, noisy Kenmore was replaced with a brand-spanking-new double-door fridge clad in stainless steel. A matching stove replaced the avocado-green one that had been here when he moved in, with a large, expensive-looking microwave mounted in a custom-made cabinet above it. In fact, all the worn cabinetry and scratched Formica counter-tops were gone, replaced with expensive 'Golden Oak' cabinets and a marble-pattern counter-top. The fading wallpaper between the upper and lower cabinets had been replaced by gleaming black-and-white tile.

The mismatched dinette set he'd had in the center of the kitchen was gone, and now a glass-on-wrought-iron round table rested there, with four gleaming black metal 'modern' chairs with white fabric backs and seats positioned around it.

Sitting on the counter was an expensive-looking coffee-maker, with a full pot of freshly-brewed coffee ready to drink. Stunned, Kevin walked slowly over to the counter and ran his fingers over the surface in disbelief.

"This... this just isn't possible..." He stammered, out loud, staring around the kitchen. A job like this would take a major renovation, and it would have been done in the time he was out getting breakfast - with the walking time included, just under an hour. It couldn't have been done...

...yet, somehow, it was. There was no denying that this wasn't an illusion. He was standing in a kitchen completely different then it had been before.

With a slow, stunned stride, he turned from the counter and left the kitchen...

"No! this is just too.. fuckin... much!" Kevin protested in a voice wheezy from shock.

He'd walked through the living room no more then five minutes before, and it had been 'normal'. Now, however, it was changed. Not nearly as much as the kitchen had been - it still looked like the same room, right down to the dingy beige paint - but enough that it was definite.

Like the new, white-fabric covered sofa that replaced the worn couch. Or the new, black-lacquered entertainment system that held his old TV and equally antiquated stereo. The computer and the desk it sat on were unchanged, but an expensive leather chair sat on a brand-new plastic pad in front of the desk.

There were now black venetian blinds in the high basement window.

Kevin shook his head, walking unsteadily to the sofa and slumping down on it, shoulders bowing forward. "What's going on?" he asked empty air, plaintively. "Am... am I going insane? Or is this really happening?" He wasn't sure which answer scared him more.

He needed to get out of this impossible apartment. Then he needed to call each of his friends and ask if there was some sort of prank being played on him - if all of them claimed there wasn't and he believed them...

...then he'd go see a shrink. In any case, his first move was to get out of the apartment.

Walking into the bedroom almost made him faint. Like the living room, his bedroom was lightly changed, the most obvious being the big Queen-sized bed that had replaced the single he'd had just a little while ago. Forcing himself to ignore the changes, he began to gather some clothing...

...what he could from the selection presented.

He chose a pair of not-too-offensive black jeans. They looked like they'd fit, even if they'd be too tight around the waist and too loose around the hips. However, the thought of his cock rubbing against the inside of the zipper was daunting, and it made wearing underwear a necessity - even the feminine underwear that he had to choose from.

Grimacing, he chose a pair of pale pink panties. Though less-than-enthusiastic about the color, they were the least frilly and skimpy of the selection. With disgusted look on his face, he pulled the panties on, trying - and failing - to find a comfortable position for them.

Next he pulled on a pair of socks. They were also a pale shade of pink, but - aside from the white lace trim at the top - they were the most like a pair of 'dress socks'. The other choice was nylons or pantyhose, and that was out of the question.

He then pulled on the jeans. He wasn't fat by any stretch of the imagination, having a near-perfect six-pack abs, but it was a struggle to get the button done up. The fact that they were loose around the hips didn't help the tautness of the crotch area - it hugged painfully close to his panty-squashed cock and balls.

Then he pulled on a white... Well, it was almost like a man's sleeveless T-shirt, sometimes known as a 'wife-beater' shirt, but it just seemed somehow more feminine. Over that went the least offensive blouse in the closet, a white shirt that would almost have passed as a dress shirt if it wasn't for the fact that the collar came to an unusually sharp, flat point at each end rather than encircling the neck completely and buttoning up...

...and the buttons were 'backwards', the shirt folding over the opposite way that he was used to, which threw him off slightly as he buttoned it.

The last thing was shoes - he couldn't find the sneakers he'd walked in before, as the living room was now 'tidy', with everything put away. So, he chose a pair of dark brown loafers from the closet.

A quick look in the mirror confirmed his fear - the clothes looked pretty 'sissy' on him, and his long, thick hair made the impression worse.

Still... it beat being naked.

Sighing, Kevin grabbed his wallet and keys... and found that putting them in his pockets was nearly impossible due to the fit of the pants. Grumbling, he held them in his hand as he left the apartment.

Walking with that that bow-legged stance, he headed down to the opposite end of the street from where the diner was. There was a small neighborhood bar that he had been in before, and he knew it opened fairly early, mostly for its pool tables and darts. It also had a couple of private pay-phone booths.

It was also pretty dimly lit, trying to mimic the feel of an old English pub, and he wanted to spend as much time as possible out of the bright, revealing sunlight, knowing how stupid he looked in these clothes.

Entering the dimly lit, smoke filled bar, he found it already lightly populated, mostly with guys his own age playing pool. Trying to look as inconspicuous as possible - and annoying the occasional raised brow at his attire - he made his way to the corner of the room, where two wooden booths sat. They were the old-fashioned style telephone booths, with solid-wood walls on three sides, a folding 'accordion' style door with tinted, semi-transparent glass, and even a low, leather-covered bench inside. Stepping into the booth, he drew the door closed then picked up the phone and dialed the number of the most likely candidate for a prank - even if Kevin still didn't understand how a prank like this could be played.

After three rings, and unfamiliar female voice at the other end said 'Hello?'

"Hi. Is Josh there?" Kevin asked, with a wry smile on his lips - even when the world was going to hell, Josh and his 'Girl du Jour' was a certainty.

"He's in the middle of something right now." The girl's voice said. "Did you want me to give him a message?" "Tell him it's Kevin." Kevin said. "And tell him I really need to ask him something."

"Hang on." Kevin heard the mild clatter as she put the phone down, then a couple of minutes of silence. "Hi." The girl's voice came back. "Uh - Josh wants to know 'Kevin who?'."

Kevin blinked in surprise. "Huh? His friend Kevin - Kevin Dubchzek."

"Hang on a sec..." He heard her repeat his name, obviously having lowered the phone then shouted to Josh, wherever he was. "Sorry - Josh says he doesn't know any Kevin Doobcheck." The woman said. "Are you sure you have the right number?"

"Of course I..." Kevin started to say - then stopped, comprehension flooding his face. "Oh, wait - I see. Look, uh..." "Linda." The woman at the other end supplied, warily.

"Look, Linda - Josh and I are friends, known each other for ages. He's playing some sort of prank on me, and that's what I called him about. Obviously, he doesn't want to talk to me, so he told you he doesn't know me. Well, you tell him that I'm going to come over, and he'd better give me back my stuff - but he can leave my apartment the way it is, if he wants."

"Uh..." The girl at the other end said, sounding uncertain. "I'll give him the message. I... I really think you might be mistaken, though. I've been with him since last night at dinner, and I don't think he's playing any pranks."

Kevin was grinning in relief now that he'd figured it out. "Well, if he's not playing it, then he at least knows about it - which means it must be our friend Steve Laughrin who's actually doing the dirty work. Tell Josh I'm not letting him off the hook, though."

"Steve Laughrin?" Linda said - and now her voice wasn't nearly as wary as it had been. "Uh... when I met Josh for dinner last night, he was talking to a guy he introduced as Steve Laughrin, who left right after I met him. I'll pass the message on for you." She paused, then

- in a lower voice. "What... what sort of prank?"

"It's complicated." Kevin explained. "Worm it out of Josh - once I hang up, he'll probably get a good laugh out of explaining it to you." "Okay - I'll do that."

Linda and Kevin exchanged good-byes, then Kevin hung up. Dropping another quarter into the phone, he began to dial Steve's number.

* * * * *

"Okay..." Linda said, cattily, as she entered the bathroom. She sat on the side of the tub, where Josh was lounging in warm water and recuperating from the game of tennis they'd played earlier that morning - Linda had 'forgotten' to mention that she'd been the city champion for two years running. "So who is this Kevin Doobcheck, and what prank are you playing on him?"

Josh looked surprised. "Huh? Look, Linda, I'm telling you - I don't know anybody named Kevin anything. I have no idea what you're talking about."

He sounded utterly sincere, and Linda blinked in confusion. "Are you sure...?"

"Completely." Josh said. "If somebody's playing a prank on anyone, it's one of my friends playing one on me - or, rather, you." "Oh."

* * * * *

Steve wasn't in - which made it all the more likely that he was the one pulling the prank, as he would have been at Kevin's apartment to do what was done, even if Kevin still didn't know how they'd done it. When the machine finished its message and beeped, Kevin began to record a cheerful warning, idly reaching down to scratch his ankle...

Kevin's face went slack in surprise, and he very slowly tilted his head down to gape at his foot.

The pants had once run down to his ankle - now, the bottom of the jeans sat several inches higher, and were flared out slightly - like mildly bell-bottomed pedal-pushers.

The pants had also changed color slightly, becoming a very deep, almost black, purple.

The sock revealed by the raised hem was of a finer material than before, and of a deeper shade of pink, now tending slightly towards violet. It was also higher, the lace trim at the top mid-way up his calf.

The socks disappeared into a shoe that was also subtly different, the leather having taken on a slightly reddish tint to its brown, with the shape of it altered slightly. The short heel had grown slightly, and seemed to taper a bit on its short length.

The entire shoe also looked both smaller and narrower, though it didn't seem to fit his foot any tighter than it had before. Numbly, still staring at his ankle and foot, Kevin hung up the phone, never finishing the message.

"But..." He stammered to himself. "That.. that's impossible..."

Stunned - and now beginning to become very afraid - Kevin reached for his wallet and keys, which he'd set on the small shelf above the phone...

...then stopped and stared incredulously at the small black purse that now sat there...

...and at the long, painted nails that now tipped his thick, masculine fingers. The nails were long and oval, and painted a pale shade of purple.

"eep..."

With shaking - and long-nailed - hands, Kevin gingerly picked up the small clutch-purse and opened it slowly, looking inside.

There was a tube of lipstick, a compact, some Kleenex, a woman's wallet - and his ring of keys. Hesitantly, Kevin fished out the woman's wallet and opened it.

Inside was the exactly twice as much money as he'd been carrying, the exact same types of credit cards he had, even the same video- store card and library card he had, as well as a driver's license and a social insurance card.

The driver's licensee even had a photo of him on it - but with hair as long as his was now, and a necklace he'd never seen before in his life around his neck.

The name on all the items in the purse was 'Karin Dubenet.'

"Uhh, uh, uh..." Kevin made an odd choking sound as he shook his head. This wasn't possible. Just barely conceivable was somebody changing his apartment swiftly and silently while he was out of the room - but to actually change the clothes he was wearing, and replacing his wallet with a purse in a closed phone-booth? It.. couldn't happen.

But it was.

Shaking, Kevin slid the door to the booth open, and started to slide out...

..and caught sight of the two people now playing pool at the table nearest the door. They were two of his coworkers at the warehouse a block or so away, and who were killing the hour or so before their shift started, since the bus-stop nearest the warehouse was the one right outside the bar.

With a squeak, Kevin darted across the narrow aisle between the phone-booths and the small, high-backed booths on the other side, forming the 'funnel' to the hallway where the bathrooms were. Sliding behind the little round table in the small, private booth, Kevin felt his heart racing.

He had no idea what was going on, or how it was happening - but he didn't want the two guys to catch him looking like this. He'd never live it down at work, once the story had spread.

Swallowing, Kevin tried to force his mind to spit out a 'logical' answer to the mystery of what was going on - but his brain just spun in random circles, and...

"What can I get you?"

Kevin nearly had a heart attack - he hadn't noticed the waitress approaching. At least the table hid the flared Capri pants and lavender hosiery he was wearing, even though the sheer white wing-collar blouse he was wearing was still clearly exposed...

"Uh... I'll have a beer, please. Whatever you have on tap." Kevin said, trying to sound casual.

"Sure thing." The waitress said, professional demeanor keeping her from revealing what she thought of Kevin's attire.

It wasn't until she was walking away that it suddenly dawned on Kevin that he'd suddenly found names for the clothing he was wearing...

He twitched in surprise, gasping. "How the hell...?"

His already confused mind spun even more usefully as it tried to assemble these impossible facts in some sort of logical explanation. His mind was still trying - and failing - when the waitress returned with his beer.

He reached for the purse beside him...

...and stopped when he saw that, impossibly, the little clutch-purse was now somewhat larger, and more expensive-looking.

Trying to keep his shock from showing - and to keep the waitress from seeing his was digging into a purse - Kevin opened the new bag, fumbled past the odd, cylindrical paper-wrapped object and the cell-phone, and got the money out of the wallet and paid.

"Keep the change..." Kevin said, quickly, as he noticed the waitress eyeing the long, painted nails, a blush running up his face. He quickly yanked his hand out of sight.

After the waitress left, Kevin took a long drink of the beer to help steady his nerves, then went back to the purse, pulling out the cell- phone and looking it over in his apparently now-permanent state of shock.

It was a middle-of-road phone, they type you got free with certain cellular packages - but he'd never been able to afford a cell-phone before, though he'd looked into getting one.

Now, he numbly turned it on and went through the little menu. There was only two numbers in the directory: HOME and DAD.

Not particularly wanting to talk to his parents, he turned off the phone - then stopped. Turning the small device back on, he pressed menu button to highlight HOME, and had it dial.

There was three rings at the other end - then a 'click'.

'Hi!' His recorded voice said in a chipper tone through the phone. 'This is Karin. I'm not in right now, but feel free to leave a message at the tone.'

A beep followed, but Kevin didn't record a message.

In fact, he sat stock-still for several second, eyes looking off into infinity a he tried to deal with hearing a recording he'd never even made

- he didn't have an answering machine, digital or otherwise. And the voice that sounded just like his had called itself 'Karin'.

Picking up the beer, Kevin drained the rest in one long drought. Placing the glass on the table, he leaned sidewise, used his right hand to push his watch higher up on his arm to keep it from 'jiggling' on it's narrow leather band, then waved a hand in the air to get the waitress' attention.

When she arrived, Kevin smiled sickly. "Gin and tonic, please - and make it a triple."

The waitress' eyebrow went up, but she didn't say anything as she took the empty beer glass and headed off to get the drink.

Still shaking slightly, Kevin opened the purse and fished past the cell phone, tampon and compact to get the pack of cigarette and lighter from where they'd migrated to the bottom. Pulling out one of the slender cylinders, he placed it between his lips, then pulled the ashtray from the center of the table before flicking the lighter into life and applying the flame to the end of the cigarette.

Closing his eyes and leaning his head back, Kevin forced his mind to go blank as he took a long, deep, satisfying drag on the cigarette, feeling the smoke seep down into his lungs and begin to exert it's calming influence...

then his eyes popped open.

He'd never smoked a cigarette before in his life - he thought it was a disgusting habit. Yet, here he was, smoking as easily as if he'd done it for years.

Hand shaking, he extracted the long, slender cigarette from his lips and held it in front of him...

...and his brain tried to shut down.

It wasn't from the sight of the slender 'feminine' cigarette. It wasn't even from the faint-but-definite lipstick-mark around the filter, though that was definitely part of the problem. The major reason his brain wanted to come screeching to a halt was the sight of the slender- fingered, dainty hand holding the cigarette.

The oh-so-feminine hand - attached to a slender wrist that led to his arm.

He might have sat that way forever, staring stupidly at the feminine hand he now possessed, if the waitress hadn't come back with his drink.

Numbly, he placed the cigarette in the ashtray and paid the woman, not coherent enough to even think about hiding the purse he got the money from, or for asking for his change. Instead, he took a quick gulp of the liquid, feeling it's heat run down his throat.

Then, without thinking about it, he picked up the cigarette again and took another long drag of it, blowing the smoke gently out his lipstick-clad lips. Idly, he crossed his legs at the ankle, reaching down and smoothing the skirt over his knees...

...then stopped dead.

Butting the cigarette out, he took another quick drink of the gin and tonic, then - without looking down - slid out from the booth in a very deliberate manner.

Accompanied by a sharp staccato clicking noise, Kevin walked quickly down the hall to the bathrooms. Unlike most bars, which had two multi-person bathrooms, one for each gender, this 'pub' had four single-person, non-gender-specific bathrooms, sort of like on airplanes. Opening the door to one of the three unoccupied ones, Kevin stepped inside, purposefully side-stepping in, facing the back wall.

Very deliberately closing and locking the door, Kevin took a deep breath - then turned around to look in the mirror mounted over the sink.

He felt like somebody had punched him in the gut.

His entire body was changed. His face was definitely more feminine, though not so much so that you couldn't see his 'real' face in it - he was definitely still a far cry from 'pretty', despite the smaller nose, more rounded jaw, and fuller, lipstick-covered lips.

His neck was slimmer - and now boasted a fine gold chain around it, matching nicely the small gold stud earrings in his smaller lobes.

His shoulders were less broad, his chest not as deep - and through the light cloth of the blouse, the lacy white training bra his undershirt had become was visible.

His waist was considerably slimmer, marking the zone where the changes started being more dramatic - like the wider hips and significantly fuller caboose that lurked beneath the dark purple, knee-length skirt - which was straining over the bulge his genitalia made.

Beneath the hem of that skirt was a pair of utterly feminine - and quite attractive - legs, totally devoid of any hair and encased in a pair of fuchsia nylons, which in turn disappeared into a pair of burgundy suede pumps with a four-inch heel and an ankle-strap, which enclosed a smaller, slimmer, and most daintily feminine foot.

"Oh... my... God..." Kevin breathed, in shock - and, as bad as the changes were, he thought the worst part was that he hadn't even noticed them as they'd occurred.

They seemed to be integrating themselves right into his personality, like the way he'd started smoking so casually - or the way he'd walked easily and naturally in the high-heeled shoes. Until something had brought them directly to his attention, he hadn't even noticed the change.

He was quickly slipping over from 'afraid' to 'panicked'.

Unlocking the door with one unsteady, feminine hand, Kevin let himself out of the bathroom, fear stamped on his altered face as he tried to decide who he should go see - a doctor or a psychiatrist. Considering the question, he headed for the booth to grab the damned purse, which had all the money in it.

Reaching the booth, Kevin slid onto the seat, body thrumming with the nervous energy he'd built up from the worry about the way he looked. He looked like a freak, like some weird cross-gender breed, and it was more than setting her on edge - it was nearly enough to drive her crazy.

Digging out another cigarette, she quickly lit it and inhaled the rich smoke, letting it out in one, long sigh, then taking a sip at her gin and tonic while she continued to debate the question. A psychiatrist, to help her stop worrying about how she looked, to help her learn to live with her unattractive body? Or a plastic surgeon, to get her body as close to what her own mental image of it should be?

Kevin frowned - it was a tough question without an easy answer. After all, he didn't think anyone had ever been in such a situation, and so there wasn't really any 'expert' in the field, and he...

He stared at the cigarette he was smoking, then down at the drink he held, his brow furrowing in confusion. Why had he sat back down? He knew that he'd been trying to think of who to go for help, and hadn't been paying any real attention to what he was actually doing - but why hadn't he just grabbed his purse and left, like he'd planned?

The drink, he decided - lost in thought, he'd fallen back on 'habit' - never letting alcohol go to waste. So, he'd just finish his drink, then she'd go see if she could find somebody to help her. Panicking and running to somebody - anybody - screaming and ranting wouldn't help - she had to force himself to stay calm enough that whoever he saw would take her seriously. That was the ticket.

Trying to get comfortable, Kevin turned sidewise in the seat, so that her legs actually protruded out of the booth. She left one rounded-toe suede platform shoe with its six-inch spike heel firmly on the floor, while drawing her other leg up and crossing it over the knee, the table still hiding the way her purple leather mini-skirt bulged over his cock... and notice with dismay that there'd been further change. His legs, rather than being merely attractive, were now stunning, with just the right amount of toned muscle beneath just the right amount of feminine padding to make them absolutely stunning.

"Shit..." She muttered under her breath... then winced as it emerged in a husky, gender-unspecified tone. She had to finish his drink quickly and get out of here before anything worse happened...

"Excuse me...?"

Kevin's head snapped around - he'd been so engrossed in surveying her utterly perfect new legs that she hadn't heard the man approach the booth. Now, she looked at the handsome, friendly-looking man who stood nervously beside the table, teeth bared in a friendly grin.

"Yes?" Kevin responded - and had to keep from making a face at the even higher, more feminine voice that emerged.

"I was wondering... if I could buy you a drink..." The man said, nervously.

He was about to refuse - then decided that another drink was just what she needed to calm her nerves before heading out.

"Why not." He said, gesturing at the other side of the table. Unconsciously, he swept his long, silky mane of black hair of her shoulder, feeling her long, pendant earring brush over the back of her hand.

"Thanks." The sandy-haired man said, slipping into the booth. "My name's Mark. Mark Linquist."

"Karin Dubchzek" He responded instinctively - then had to keep from wincing at how odd 'Kevin' might sound with his current appearance.

"Oh - is that Polish?" Mark asked, politely.

Kevin blinked, but figured she should play along, if it kept Mark from wondering what a man like her had a name like 'Karin'. "Yes, actually - it is."

The waitress came around, and mark ordered Gin and Tonics for both of them.

"So..." Mark said, with a weak smile. "I don't want this to sound like a line, but I really am interested. I don't think I've seen you around here before."

Kevin smiled slightly. "I just moved in down the street, actually."

"Oh, really?" Mark asked with a raised eyebrow. "I live just around the corner myself, actually."

"Oh, that's nice." She said, trying to feign polite interest. She didn't know whether it was the alcohol she'd had, on top of the hangover from last night, but she had a low, dull ache behind her temples - more annoying then painful. Plus, of course, there was the fact that her body, clothing and apartment were in an inexplicable state of flux. Perhaps that was enough to give anyone a headache.

Their drinks arrived, and she reached out to pick hers up...

...and discovered that he shirt had metamorphosed into white latex that hugged her body like a second skin.

It must have happened while she was talking to Mark. The fact that he hadn't noticed anything was intriguing - but the fact that she'd missed it worried her. She resolved to pay more attention to herself and her clothes to make sure she caught any more changes that might occur, the second they happened - she couldn't let her mind wander and miss anything important...

A sudden moment of panic struck, but a quick, discreet brush of her fingers over her dark-purple mini-skirt assured her that her cock and balls were still intact beneath the lacy pink g-string she was wearing. Sighing unobtrusively in relief, she turned part of her mind back to Mark, while keeping tabs on her body and clothing.

"So - what do you do for a living, Karin?"

Kevin was startled by Mark's use of the feminine name... but managed to keep it from showing. Whatever was happening to her, it was obviously affecting the people around her, as well - the waitress didn't seem to notice her customer's changes at all.

Since she thought claiming to work at a warehouse would seem odd, Kevin searched for a more feminine occupation to name, like 'Secretary' or 'Hairdresser', or...

"I'm a stripper." She said with a smile. one that she barely managed to keep in place as what she'd said registered. Why in God's name had she picked that?

"Really?" Mark said, interested. "Well, I hope you won't. "

Kevin struggled to keep track of what Mark was saying. while also paying attention to what she was feeling.

An odd, tingling sensation in her chest.

"...take it the wrong way " Mark continued, blithely.

As, with a creaking sound, the latex shirt covering her torso began to push out at the front, driven by two swelling mounds of flesh. Kevin's eyes widened and she dropped her elfin chin to stare, wide-eyed, at her chest, as the blouse molded itself nearly skin-tight around the bra-encase mounds that were pushing out, creating a 'shelf' from her chest.

"...if I were to say " mark said, not noticing anything out of the ordinary as Kevin's chest continued to expand.

And expand it did. The mounds (covered by a bra that seemed to be matching their expansion as well as the latex blouse did) continued to swell outwards, until the creaking sound stopped and a pair of decidedly feminine breasts in the upper 'D'-cup range filled out the blouse.

". you certainly have the legs for it." Mark finished.

"Gee, thanks." Kevin said - and winced as they came out as sarcastically as she felt. "Oh, I'm sorry Karin!" Mark said, flushing. "I wasn't trying.. that is, I think the rest of you. "

She waved a hand. "Oh, it's okay." She said, feeling generous over the fact that he'd gone back to using her real name. "I don't mind, really. Honestly, it doesn't take any particular beauty to be a stripper." She shrugged. wincing at the feel of the latex compressing over her hew tits at the motion. "It's more about 'sexy' then 'pretty', actually."

"Well, then - you are most definitely both." Mark said, trying his most winning smile on for size.

Disturbed greatly by the sudden - and utterly feminine - expansion of her chest, Karin decided it was time to go, before things got any worse - if she could 'chat' with Mark, she was calm enough to discuss her unique problem with a doctor.

Finishing her drink, she forced a rueful smile to her even fuller, softer lips. "Excuse me, Mark - but I need to head home. I really enjoyed meeting you, but..."

"Oh, of course." Mark said, awkwardly, as Karin gathered her purse and purple leather jacket from the seat and rose - carefully keeping the jacket draped over her arm 'in the way' of her crotch, to hide the raging hard-on that was straining against her skirt. "Uh, look... I didn't mean..."

"Oh, no - it's not that. I really do have to head home, Mark." Karin consoled him...

...to far. Before she knew what she was doing, she was saying. "To prove there's no hard feeling, why don't you walk me home?" "I'd be honored." Mark said, grin resurfacing as he rose from the table.

Mentally cursing herself, Karin decided there was no graceful way to deter Mark. She'd just let him walk her home, give him a couple of minutes to 'get lost', then call a cab.

"This way." She said, taking the lead slightly and heading to the door. She could feel mark's eyes on her firm, round, mind-boggling ass and long, luscious legs as she swayed and swiveled atop her eight-inch-high stiletto heels, and she felt a warm, deep, pleasurable thrill of disgust at having a man ogle - and enjoy ogling - her ass.

As she stepped outside, Karin slipped her jacket on, then pulled her futuristically-styled sunglasses out of the pocket and put them on before slinging her large shoulder-bag. She gestured in the direction they were to go, sunlight glinting of the gold rings that adorned her slender fingers, and they set out, walking side by side.

Desperately trying to ignore the sensations walking created as the leather skirt slid back and forth over her thick, hard cock, Karin searched for more 'small talk' to distract herself - and decided to merely continue the conversation from the bar rather than try to find a new topic - she was too busy staying mentally alert for any more changes.

"So, honestly - what's your impartial experience with strip-clubs and strippers. Can you honestly evaluate my degree of 'sexy'?"

Mark smiled wryly. "Well, I feel kind of silly admitting it - but I spend quite a bit of time in strip clubs. Now, beauty-wise, I have no trouble evaluating you. you're absolutely gorgeous. As for 'sexy'... well, do you really want an honest, Mark-biased opinion?"

Barely paying attention, she nodded automatically. "Yes, sure."

Mark looked her up-and-down, critically. "Well, let's see. As I said inside, you're absolutely spectacular, leg-wise, and your ass is mind- boggling - especially since you know how to walk with that incredibly sexy stride."

That warm, delightful rush of disgust rose again, and she forced herself to ignore it.

"As for your hips and crotch..." Mark started to say... then frowned, as if something were nagging at the back of his mind, something out- of-place that he couldn't quite name...

...and Karin had to might her lower lip to keep from screaming, crying or passing out as an incredibly odd sensation gripped her crotch - and she felt her throbbing, almost painfully erect cock sliding back into her body, sucking her balls in behind it and leaving her with a perfectly formed cunt.

"...well, dressed, I couldn't be fully positive..." Mark continued, thoughtfully. "But they look equally as good."

Reaching out, he pulled the sides of her jacket open to get a better look - and even as the leather separated, Karin felt her waist pinching inwards.

"A very, very slender wasp-waist - absolutely perfect." Mark declared. "And..."

"This is my building." Karin said, a bit quickly, glad to stop this very dangerous conversation. "I've got a basement apartment." "basement?" Mark said. "isn't that kind of... grundgy?"

"Oh, no - it's cool, quiet, and very, very nice." Karin said. "Come on, I'll show you..."

'Oh, damn!' She thought to herself, angrily, even as she led mark to the door of her apartment and opened it...

...into a room she didn't recognize, aside from the computer in the corner and the sofa along the wall. The living room had undergone a complete transformation, like the kitchen, becoming clean, tasteful, and well-furnished, with a decor that showed a definite 'woman's touch'.

"make yourself comfortable." Karin said, without thinking - the shock of seeing the altered room had her mind running on auto-pilot. "Would you like something to drink?"

"A beer would be nice." Mark said, walking over to the sofa.

Karin blinked - his 'request' for a beer seemed to come out of the blue, and she had to mentally 'rewind' to realize what she'd said, and offered. Cursing herself again (mentally) she forced her lips to stay in a smile while she went into the kitchen.

"Hey - would you mind if I quickly checked my e-mail while I'm here?" Mark called.

"No - go right ahead!" Karin called back, fighting to keep naked relief out of her voice - anything to keep Mark distracted was a god- send.

* * * * *

Walking over to the computer, Mark sat down in the comfortable chair and 'waggled' the mouse, clearing the screen saver. The screen cleared - revealing a box in the middle of the screen that read:

UNIVERSAL PROBABILITY EQUATION EDITOR

Processing - 96% done.

Estimated Time for Complete Processing: COMPLETE Estimated Time for Complete Implementation: T-00:21 (11:22 Local)

"Uh... Karin?" Mark called. "You're running a program - what should I do?"

"Am I?" Karin called back, sounding startled - and, for some reason, almost frantic. "It... it's not important. Just close it or minimize it, and go right ahead. No hurry."

Shrugging, Mark clicked on the 'minimize' icon... and nothing happened.

He stared at the screen for a second, then shrugged and tried just opening the browser.

It popped up immediately and automatically dialed. A minute later, it was connected and he was on-line...

...except that he couldn't seem to get the mail program to admit there was any connection. He frowned, and tried another tactic, with as little success... and then noticed the blinking ICQ icon.

"Hey, Karin?" He called. "There's problem with getting my e-mail here. You've also got an ICQ flag on. Should I just leave it up?"

"No!" Karin called back from the kitchen, and Mark wondered what was taking her so long. "Uh... why don't you go ahead and chat with him for a bit?"

Mark shrugged. "Okay - if you say so." He opened the message window.

BILL-721: Hey, Karin - how's it going!

Leaning forward, Mark typed quickly and accurately.

IN2FS: Bill-721, this is Karin's friend, Mark. She's busy, and said I should chat with you until she's done. BILL-721: Oh, okay Mark - and call me 'Bill' - there's no need to be formal. (Grin). So - you her boyfriend?

IN2FS: No, no - just a friend. Just met her, actually - we're at her place, discussing what's 'sexy'. What do you think? BILL-721: Me? Well, personally, I'm a bit of a fetish freak. You ever been to this site: www.bearchive.com ?

IN2FS: No, but hang on - I'll pop on over while we chat...

Mark brought the browser to front, then entered in the URL. After a few seconds of negotiating through a disclaimer page and an index, he found himself in a 'User Gallery'...

IN2FS: Holy crap, Bill - those are BIG tits!

BILL-721: What do you expect from the Breast Expansion Archive? Now, THAT'S my idea of a sexy woman...

* * * * *

Karin listened to the rapid 'clickety-clack' of Mark's typing, and was wondering about her chances of sneaking out while he was distracted...

...when she began to feel an even more powerful tingling in her chest. Then her tits began to expand.

Gasping, she leaned over and grabbed the edge of the counter for support as her chest practically exploded outwards, gaining mass and size at an astonishing rate, the blouse making all sorts of creaking noises as it swelled to accommodate her enlarging tits. They shot through the alphabet of cup size, as if racing her mind's ability to comprehend what was happening. they shot right past the size of small melons, into 'volleyball' range - then right through into 'basketballs', practically leaping past 'medicine balls' before the growth began to taper off.

With a jerk, Karin pulled herself upright, staring downward at the huge white mounds that obscured her downwards view, glossy white latex stretched taut over a bra-encased pair of tits the size, shape and apparent weight as a water-filled pair of 'small' beach-balls.

"Holy.. shit.." Karin gasped, hyperventilating in horrified panic at the massive tits she'd so rapidly acquired, the weight seeming to drag her straight down into the deepest pits of despair.

* * * * *

IN2FS: Well, you might not believe this - but Karin would fit right in at the BEA. She's huge! BILL-721: You're shitting me!

IN2FS: No, swear to god - she's got the biggest set of silicone-inflated tits I've ever seen. I've never seen tits that big... and I'm finding it kind of sexy, myself. But she'd more then 'huge-breasted', she's also gorgeous. Is 'big tits' your only idea of 'sexy'?

BILL-721: Nope - just part of it. Do you want to hear my... well, kind of 'fantasy' idea of sexy? IN2FS: Sure - go right ahead.

* * * * *

"Out..." Karen muttered to herself, in a state of shock. "I.. I have to get out of here.." Turning, she began to stride towards the living room, and the door to the apartment...

* * * * *

BILL-721: Okay, here goes. One thing that I see in my mind for a sexy woman is clothes that show off her oh-so-hot bod...

* * * * *

Karin had just reached the doorway of the kitchen when she had to stop - because her clothes had suddenly began to 'crawl' over her body.

Her mini-skirt rose just a little higher, molding itself impossibly tight to her ass and hips as it became a 'second skin' micro-mini skirt. Her latex blouse writhed and seemed to melt in on itself, rapidly reshaping into a latex crop-top that was just barely street-legal on her suddenly-braless tits, giving Karin a suddenly clear view of her enormous, creamy new mounds and her deep, yawning chasm of cleavage. At the same time, her skirt, nylons and shoes all turned black...

* * * * *

IN2FS: Good start - but, for some reason, I've always liked women in boots...

* * * * *

...and the strap on her platform shoes began to expand, sliding downward to merge with the shoe itself, while the top edge rose upwards, rapidly sliding over her spectacular, nylon-encased legs until she was wearing a pair of knee-high, glossy black leather boots with two inch platforms and eight-inch spike heels.

* * * * *

BILL-721: Sure, that's good too. But she has to act like she's eager to dress this way, like she loves having a super-sexy body and is eager to flaunt it for men.

IN2FS: Yeah, I know what you mean... "Having fun, Mark?"

Mark turned away from the computer at the sound of Karin's husky, suggestive voice. He watched as she slowly, sensuously approached him, a seductive smile flitting over her lips as she jiggled and swayed towards him, huge tits threatening to burst free of her skimpy crop-top.

"Yeah, actually - I am." Mark said, eyeing her appreciatively.

She was holding his beer in her hand - which was sitting at the crotch of her tiny shirt, and she was making shallow, slow sliding motions with the bottle, as if considering another use for it... Licking her lips seductively, she leaned forward and handed him the beer... while providing an awe-inspiring view of her huge, firm tits.

"Here you go, handsome." She purred, wiggling her torso slightly. As he took the beer, she straightened. "I'm just going to go... freshen up."

Putting a hell of a lot of 'oomph' in her swaying, sexy stride, she headed towards the bathroom. Watching her go, Mark shifted in his chair to ease his erection, then turned back to the computer.

* * * * *

"What the hell's happening to me?" Karin seductively demanded of her reflection in the mirror, as she helplessly slid her hands sensuously over her massive, latex-encased tits. "I.. I can't control myself. What's going on? Why is this happening to me?"

Her reflection had no answer for the horrified, disgusted ex-man who was unable to stop looking and acting sexy with her hugely over-endowed new body.

* * * * *

BILL-721: Now, while this woman will come on to any man above the age of puberty - even average joes like us -, there's also some really flimsy excuse that allows her to meet guys who... well, go to www.hooters.dk, then go to Chili's archive and click on 'PE Palace'...

Mark didn't as instructed, then blinked. IN2FS: Whoa... suddenly, I feel insecure.

BILL-721: Yeah, I know - but that's the type of guy this type of woman 'just happens' to meet...

* * * * *

Hiding out in the bathroom, helplessly feeling up her new, outrageously-proportioned body, Karin heard a knock at the front door...

...and helplessly found herself wiggling and jiggling out to the living room.

"I'll get it.." She helplessly found herself cooing to Mark - who didn't seem to hear her. As if in a daze, he was typing on-handed at the computer, while his other hand was slowly and almost mindlessly rubbing his crotch.

Reaching the front door, Karin pulled it open...

Standing in the doorway was two well-dressed, fairly clean-cut young men - with incredibly fit, toned bodies...

...and almost obscenely large bulges at their crotches.

"Hi, miss - we're here to represent Amway. May we come in?" the one on the right said.

"Ummm. " Karin helplessly cooed, her eyes locked mindlessly on his crotch while, deep inside, she was screaming at her new body to stop, to run away. "...please do, handsome. "

The two nearly-identical men stepped inside, and she closed the door in a way that made her whole body ripple, her huge tits bouncing and jiggling.

* * * * *

Mark heard sounds behind him, but for some reason they weren't enough to distract him from the computer, where Bill was continuing to explain his own mental image of what defined 'sex'.

BILL-721: this fantasy woman then practically throws herself at these guys, finding some easy, maybe even stupid way of coming on to them...

* * * * *

"Mmmm... so what have you got that would.. interest me?" Karin found her out-of-control voice asking in an almost overpoweringly seductive tone.

"Well, Amway guarantees we have the right product for any situation. " the one on the left said.

"Really?" Karin helplessly asked - then very sensually peeled the crop-top from her massive, spherical tits, setting them free. They jiggled and swayed from the motion. "Do you have something that will make my tits feel even softer and more. enjoyable to play with?"

"I don't know " The other salesman said, in apparent seriousness. "How soft and sexy are they now?"

"You tell me. " Karin suggested - while screaming helplessly inside.

The two men reached out, each taking one huge breast - and began to fondle and squeeze her tits, causing her to shudder in a mixture of (shown) pleasure and (hidden) revulsion. She moaned low in the back of her throat as each man, continuing to fondle, leaned forward and began licking, nibbling, kissing and sucking her now-swollen nipples.

Helplessly, she wrapped on dainty hand around each man's head and urged them to continue, while the male ego trapped inside struggled for control of the body that held it prisoner...

* * * * *

BILL-721:which of course leads to...

* * * * *

The two men stopped fondling and sucking and shared a look.

"Gee, miss - we're so embarrassed - I guess we don't have anything to offer you, after all." "No..." Karin helplessly said. "You do..."

Kneeling in front of the first man, she reached out and slowly unzipped his pants while he pulled off his jacket and shirt. In seconds he was naked, his enormous, throbbing cock out-thrust in front of him.

Screaming and gibbering deep inside, Karin smiled - and began to lick the huge organ, making satisfied cooing noises.

When it was good and wet, she smiled up at him - then wrapped his throbbing cock in the soft mounds of her huge tit-flesh, her awesome cleavage swallowing the massive member.

"I know what makes my tits more enjoyable.." She said. "A nice coating of jizz..."

the man smiled down at her - and he began to buck his hips as she began to pogo up and down, his huge, thick cock sliding back and forth in the chasm of her massive tits, which she held to keep them tightly wrapped around it.

the same helpless, insipid smile stayed on her lips as he tit-fucked her, with her 'eager' assistance, her body betraying the inner self that was trapped and helpless to do anything but absorb the physically pleasurable and emotionally disgusting sensation of her first tits-fuck.

It didn't take all that long before he stiffened..

..and she helplessly bent her head down and opened her mouth wide....

...and he came like a fire-hose, spewing what seemed gallons of thick, gooey, off-white cum up over her face and into her mouth, thick streamers of it running down her massive, round boobs.

Helplessly, Karin found herself swallowing the mouthful of warm, salty cum she'd taken, while her hands massaged the glossy, warm liquid into her huge mounds.

"oh, yes.." She said thickly, helplessly, "that's good.. almost as good as getting fucked by a huge, hard cock. "

Standing up, she lifted her skirt up around her slender waist and tore off the tiny, lacy scrap of fabric that served as her panties, then bent over and braced her arms on the coffee-table, looking back over her shoulder at the other 'salesman', who was now also naked.

"Whatever the customer wants..." he said with a grin. Walking up behind her, he placed his hands on her hips...

...and bucked his hips forward, driving his huge, thick cock deep into her sopping wet cunt. She screamed, sounding as if she were experiencing intense pleasure... which she was.

But no hint of the emotional and mental anguish showed in that primal sound as the huge cock filled her sopping cunt completely.

Her huge tits began to jiggle and sway as the man began to fuck her, hard and fast, his huge cock plunging in and out of her cunt and causing her body to shiver with the intense (physical) pleasure of it.

then she looked up - and found, impossibly, that the first salesman was standing in front of her, his cock once more rock-hard...

...and her moans became decidedly muted as she opened her mouth as wide as possible and let the huge, purple head of his thickly-veined cock slide between her lips. Helplessly, she began to suck at the cock while he wrapped on hand around it and began to jack off, his body shaking slightly from the force of the deep, hard fucking his partner was giving her.

She began to moan, low in the back of her throat, as the pleasure began to build. It was like nothing she'd ever felt - and nothing she'd ever wanted to feel. She was helpless, her body obeying some other controlled then her own mind as she was fucked from behind, her full lips wrapped around a huge cock that filled her mouth, huge, cum-covered tits bounding and swaying.

Impossible, the man she was sucking came first - and even more then last time. She struggled to keep up with the flow of cum that gushed down her throat, swallowing the thick, warm liquid frantically, taking what seemed to be a gallon of it down her throat...

...when he pulled back, his cock popping out of her mouth with a wet slurping sound, the still-spewing jet of cum splattering over her face, hair and shoulders...

...and leaving her mouth free for the screams of purest ecstasy as she came, her body shaking from the force of the orgasm that took her as the second man dumped cum into her cunt, streamers of it running down her nylon-clad legs...

* * * * *

IN2FS: Geez, Bill - it sounds like you're describing a perfect porn-star in a typical porno film...

* * * * * "...aaaaand.... cut!"

The second man had already pulled out, coating her legs and ass with the last of his cum, when the shout reverberated around her.

Dripping with the two men's warm semen, Karin straightened... and looked around in surprise, though it didn't show on her face.

She was on a cheaply-constructed set, bright lights glaring down on the trio while three cameras focused on them. Karin was shocked to see Mark behind one of the cameras - but couldn't even speak to him, as she found herself turning to face an unfamiliar man sitting in a director's chair.

"Hey, Bill - how'd I do?" She helplessly found herself asked, her hands massaging the new layer of cum into her huge tits.

"Fabulous, Kerri - fabulous!" the man said, enthusiastically. "You're incredible, baby - you're taking the adult film industry by storm, You stick with me, and you'll be the biggest adult star in history - in more ways then one."

Kerri helplessly giggled, hefting her huge tits...

...and saying, "Yeah - 'specially after my next enlargement."

"You bet, babe." Bill said. "I love you, Kerri - you don't have any lines you won't cross."

She found herself throwing him a wink. "Kerri Kleavage does anything - as long as my viewers find it sexy..."

Helplessly screaming inside, the industry's newest star headed for her changing room to get cleaned up for the next scene...

* * * * *

"It comes fully furnished." The super told Debbie, gesturing. "The previous tenant just left everything - including the computer."

The scrawny, withdrawn-looking woman in baggy, ill-fitting clothes looked around nervously, her large, thick glasses magnifying the bruise around her right eye.

"I.. I don't know.. if I can afford this..." She said, looking around the apartment in awe - it was beautifully decorated, the odd-looking 'computer' the only jarring note.

The super looked down at the poor woman sympathetically. "Hey, rent-control tells me how much I can charge, regardless of how much renovating the last tenant did, or what was left behind. Personally, I was planning to keep a lot of this stuff for myself - but I can see you don't have a whole lot to your name. So - it's all yours, for three-twenty a month." He paused, then shrugged. "I'll even let you go without first-and-last. Just the straight monthly."

She smiled weakly and uncertainly at the super, obviously wanting desperately to trust him. "Well..."

Reading a lot of her past in her face and stance, the super gestured at the door. "Did you notice the Yale dead-bolt? Lock that from the inside, and nobody can get in - you can't even unlock it from the outside, if you throw the latch."

Debbie nervously licked her lips, then nodded. "I'll take it..."

BACK TO FUN ZONE

© 1997 - 2016 TGstories.

Stories on the "Public Access" pages may be Copyright by individual authors.

Home | Membership | Terms & Conditions | Privacy Policy | Contact

SUMMARY: Three hard core convicts are given injectons which start to work on them just as they have managed to escape. Finding themselves turned into females, the convicts reluctantly take jobs as strippers.

Ultimate Justice

By Gunslinger

Excerpt from the Garland, Kentucky Register, Oct. 1st, 1998 CON CONSTRUCTION

'...Biosyntech, a corporation based out of La Jolla, California, has begun construction on a new facility a few miles south of Garland, bringing new life to our town...

...in a surprise move, the company has reached an agreement with the Board of Corrections to have much of the hard labor done by convicts. The chairman of the Board, Dr. Richard Klein, hastened to assure residents of the town that they have nothing to fear...'

* * * * *

"David Witherspoon!"

The line of men standing in the half-built compound of Biosyntech shuffled their feet, then finally, a lone figure - dressed, like the others, in a bright orange jump-suit - stepped forward and walked up to the table where the man waited impatiently.

The man at the desk looked up, taking in the tall, slender man with a prison-barbered crew-cut of pale blond hair. The youngish man was shivering in the chill mountain air, despite the prison-issue long-johns under the orange jumpsuit.

"Don't worry, prisoner." One of the bulls said indifferently, shouldering his shot-gun. "You'll warm up just fine when you're lugging cement blocks."

David ignored the guard as the man at the table checked a list.

"David Witherspoon...ah, here we are... 8 counts of voyeurism, two of rape." The man turned to the doctor, waiting patiently over a forest of vials and needles. "Give him one of 22a, and one - no, two of 15c."

The shivering convict made no move of rebellion as the doctor injected two separate serums of some sort into his blood stream. That finished, he was ordered to wait to one side, under the watchful eyes of the guards, until he was assigned a work partner.

David rubbed his arms to stay warm, trying to avoid the tender spot where he'd been injected. The prisoners had been told that the injections were some sort of prisoner control method to prevent escape. Supposedly, any prisoner leaving the compound would also leave the special Electro-magnetic field around the compound that forced the...whatever that had been injected from going 'live'.

Leaving the E-M field would allow the injections to go live, and they were warned rather vaguely that the 'consequences would be unpleasant.'

The official at the desk ran his finger down the list, then called out the next name. "Gary Enthwaite."

The disturbance in the group of cons was more pronounced as people moved aside for the man stalking through their midst.

A shaggy mop of sandy-blond hair hung limply over a brutish, scarred face, whose ice-blue eyes regarded his surroundings coolly. He moved surprisingly lightly for a man weighing nearly two-hundred and twenty pounds - of solid, densely packed muscle.

The man at the table checked his list. "Ah... My, we have ourselves a very bad boy here. Three counts of kidnapping, two counts of assault and battery, five counts of Living on the Avails of prostitution, eight counts of rape, six counts of possessing drugs with intent to sell, two counts of resisting arrest..." He looked up with a sarcastic grin. "What, no murder?"

Gary's voice seemed to come from his size-12 boots. "Yeah - as soon as you try to stick me with one of those needles, asshole."

The response was swift as the bull smashed the stock of his shotgun against the back of Gary's head. Most men would have dropped, instantly unconscious. Gary only stumbled forward a step, knocked off balance. It was enough - two other guards tackled him and held him down as two others rushed in. Once the four burly guards had him pinned, the doctor administered a veritable smorgasbord of needles to the muscular convict's up-thrust posterior. The bulls released Gary and jumped back, guns and clubs at the ready.

Gary slowly rose to his feet and eyed the armed guards, idly spitting away blood from his split lip. Slowly, he grinned viciously.

"Another time, boys - when you ain't got your friends around." The hugely muscled man distastefully eyed the six other guards on the walls - all of whom had their M-16 rifles, loaded with 'rubber' bullets, aimed unflinchingly at him.

With a snarl, Gary stalked over to David, looking the thinner man up and down. "Fuck, you're gonna be useless."

David wasn't about to argue with somebody who was twice his weight. Noncommittally, he shrugged, not meeting Gary's eyes. Gary nodded. "Good boy. You keep your mouth shut and stay outta my way, we're gonna get along just fine."

* * * * *

"Get up, shit-head."

David blinked blearily up at the unlovely sight of Gary leaning over his bunk. Behind him stood another man, whose name David couldn't remember. He did recall the guy was in for murder, though.

"What's up?" asked David in the same low tone. "Were busting out - the three of us. Come on."

David grunted and rolled out of his bunk, his muscles aching from the day's work in the cold October air.

Silently, the three men flitted from the room set aside on the Biosyntech compound as a bunk-house for the convicts. Staying to the shadows, they slipped up to the outer fence and quickly cut their way through with a pair of cutters 'liberated' by Gary earlier that afternoon.

The decision to include David hadn't been a moment of selfishness on the part of Gary. Instead, it was simple logic - if the cops had to search for three of them, the odds were better that at least one would get away.

The trio had just entered the forest line when the murderer suddenly spasmed and collapsed. David paused, looking back at the man's huddled mass.

"Forget it - he's dead." Gary said brusquely. "Those injections musta kicked in." "Then, why are we..."

"Luck - it must not always work. Forget it, and let's go. Or would you rather be dead?"

David couldn't argue with that. He followed after Gary's fleeting shadow, and they vanished into the depths of the woods.

David realized that Gary was heading for the access road. The facility was located in a box canyon, with the mountains rising on three sides, and an open bottle-neck of the road. David realized that the road was too obvious, too easy to get caught on.

"Hold on - we can't go this way." David panted. Gary halted. "What?"

"The road's the obvious escape route, and they can drive down it faster than we can run. We have to go over - they'd have to search the entire mountain that way, on foot."

Gary grumbled, but when David took off up hill, Gary followed.

The two men panted, their breath coming in bursts of white vapor, as they dodged and weaved through the forest, keeping themselves warm by exertions as they climbed the heavily forested mountain, legs straining.

Finally, David couldn't take it any longer. He dropped to the ground, inhaling great gasping lung filling draughts of the painfully cold mountain air. Almost immediately, his sweat-soaked body was wracked by shivers in the freezing night air.

"I don't feel so good." David wheezed.

"Wimp" Gary snorted, hiding his own discomfort. He felt like his insides were on fire, and odd sensations ran through his body like little bolts of fire. "Get up - we ain't on no picnic, you know."

Painfully, David struggled to his feet, and forced himself to follow his muscular companion upwards, as his body was wracked by sensations unlike he'd ever felt.

As he struggled to keep up, he paused, frowning. Something wasn't quite right about the way Gary looked. It took him a few seconds to realize what it was.

His hair was too long. Reaching up, the escaped con quickly established a similar amount of growth on himself. "Hey, Gary." David gasped, slowing. "Do you notice anything odd about me?"

Gary frowned angrily. "What the fuck do you mean, odd. . ." he began, then his eyes widened. "What the hell happened with your hair?"

"Our hair, you mean." David replied. "Both of us have longer hair." David slid one hand across his face, and added "at least, on our heads."

Gary found the whole thing too weird to deal with at the moment. "Fuck it. We'll worry about it later. Come on, we gotta keep going."

They kept going, trying to move quickly. Not only for speed - but to help themselves keep warm. Still, they took a break two hours later, to take stock of the inexplicable changes that were taking place.

"What the fuck is happening to us?" Gary growled, looking at himself. Both men's bodies were now completely hairless from the nose down. Their skin had softened as well, become silky smooth. Their hair had continued to grow, now laying in a tangled mass around their slimming shoulders.

But the most worrisome part was their chests - where each man now bore two firm, pointed breasts of roughly A-cup measurements.

"I think you know just what the fuck is happening." David said in a horrified voice, his hands touching, then shying away from, his shrunken manhood. "You just don't want to admit it."

Gary's hands- which were becoming more slender, and whose nails were longer - were lightly touching the domes that rode incongruously on his chest.

"Fuck man...no. I mean, it's impossible."

David laughed without humor. "Fine. Keep telling yourself that. Personally, I'm going to face the facts - after an injection from a Bio- Genetic company...we're turning into women."

Gary shook his head stubbornly. "No, man... It can't be." Then he sighed. "Fuck. You're right. What the fuck do we do?" David grunted. "Keep walking."

Without waiting for a response, the slimmer con turned and continued to climb. Gary followed after a moment. Inside, rage and confusion broiled, and the muscular man was more than tempted to turn back, find the guy who had done this to him, and beat the guy to death.

Despite the fact that they crested the mountain and were going down-hill, the two men had harder and harder going, due to the changes creeping over their bodies. As they became more feminine, their clothing fit more and more poorly. The worst was their boots - they began to rub their shrinking feet raw, making every step an agony. If there was any advantage to the pain, it was the fact that it distracted the men from the chill slowly seeping into their bones, despite the fact that dawn had broken, and the day was beginning to warm. They'd been in the cold too long, and it was sapping their strength.

Then, stumbling, they were shocked when they emerged from a stand of trees and undergrowth - and found themselves behind a silent building. Stunned, the two men realized that they'd stumbled on a town in the hills.

Looking around the two men made sure that they weren't observed as Gary snapped the cheap lock on the door to the building. The door - bearing a sign saying 'Garland Second-Hand Shop' - swung open, and the two men entered.

Since today was Sunday, the two men felt reasonably safe. The store would be closed all day.

On unspoken agreement, the two...men? curled up, and fell into a deep sleep while their frigid bodies slowly warmed - and changed.

* * * * *

Gary awoke to one of the most erotic sights of his life.

Moving around the store, completely naked, was a stunningly sexy blonde woman. Her slender figure moved with grace as she picked through items, her long, golden hair streaming down her smooth skin to hang to her firm, sexy ass.

And thrust proudly from her slender chest were two huge, firm, mouth-watering tits.

It was the sort of thing guaranteed to give Gary an erection - except he didn't have a cock any more.

With a gasp of horror, Gary looked down at the new cunt laying between his sensuously muscled - and very feminine - legs. It was hard to see - because of the two fir, double D breasts thrust from his own chest.

"Holy fuckin' shit!" Gary said - in a feminine voice. He looked up, stunned, as it dawned on him who the other woman was. "Yeah. That's what I thought." David said wryly in a sexy voice, dropping a pile of clothing at Gary's transformed feet.

Gary looked distastefully at the clothing, his full, sexy lips curling into a sneer. "You gotta be shitting me."

David looked at the pile with equal distaste, but also a more phlegmatic view. "Would you rather be naked and freezing?" he asked, reasonably.

Gary glared at David and indicated his transformed body with one slender, feminine hand. "Hell yeah, I'd rather be dead than a cunt. What, you think this is some kinda fucking vacation?"

David's eyes narrowed. On top of all that had happened, he'd finally hit his 'shit limit', and he let Gary know it. "Look, asshole, it happened to me too. Now, I'm not happy about it either - but I'm not ready to give up. If you want to curl up and die, go right ahead - meanwhile, I'm getting dressed - I'm freezing here."

With that, David began to pull on the pile of clothing garnered from the second hand shop.

Needless to say, there had been no bra even close to being big enough to contain David's mountainous new endowments. However, there were simple white cotton briefs for him to pull on. It felt odd - both physically and emotionally, to pull the soft, feminine undergarment up his smooth, shapely legs, and settling it in place over his now-smooth crotch and full, sexy ass.

Over these feminine panties went a pair of black jeans. That is, they'd once been black. Now the tough fabric had faded to a dark gray. The pants were a little small, and he had to wrestle them into place. Once fastened, they fit his trim new hips, sexy ass and long legs like a second skin.

The best David could do, shirt wise, was a gray athletic tank-top. The only garment large enough without hanging like a tent, David had to wrestle to get it over his huge tits, shuddering at the sensation of the fabric across his cold-engorged nipples. The thin garment also molded to his huge tits like a second skin, and left his altered arms, shoulders and slender waist bare. Next, David slid his feet into the footwear in his size - knee-high black suede boots with a two-inch block heel.

The final item was a coat. Since none of the parkas would zip closed of his huge - and very, very sensitive - new breasts, David was stuck with a black suede jacket from the seventies, with fringe along the arms and the bottom. The front was held closed by laces, which he could adjust to fit his over-exaggerated figure, hugging tightly at the waist before flaring dramatically over his imposing - nay, stunning - bust.

Gary looked at the pile of gathered clothes that would fit his new feminine figure, and swore. Grimacing, he picked up the bra and panty set - both black and lacy. With a grunt, he pulled the thong panties into place, then struggled to put on the DD-cup bra. Having had plenty of experience at removing them, but none at putting them on, it took him some time to enclose his firm, round new tits in the lacy black fabric.

Since there was no pants in his size, he was forced to do something else to keep his legs warm. That something was a pair of thigh-high black leather boots that he pulled on his sexy new legs, and awkwardly laced up the back. A black leather skirt that laced up the sides covered the gap between the boots and his waist - and clung enticingly to his full, womanly hips and firm, full ass.

A simple black T-shirt went over the bra, thankfully hiding his actual tits from view, though he could still see the bulge of them - and feel the weight of his (!) bra-straps digging in from supporting his firm new tits. At least they were smaller than David's massive new tits, Gary thought - and wondered why that didn't make him feel better.

The final touch was the black faux leather 'biker' jacket, adorned with chrome buckles.

"So, now what?" Gary asked, surveying both of them in a mirror. In the back of his mind, he was thinking how hot and fuckable these two babes were. Only, they were the two babes.

"Now we find a way to get some cash. We're broke, remember?" "Yeah, how do we do that?" Gary grumped.

"I don't know." David admitted. "But we can't just stay here. Let's go."

The two transformed men walked from the store, finding that, for some reason, they were able to move easily, despite their altered bodies and high-heels. It felt extremely odd to both men to be out in public dressed in women's clothing. But the few men who were out in this sleepy town didn't find it odd - they were eyeing the two sexy blonde 'woman', and obviously liking what they saw. David felt a blush slowly rising up his neck and into his face.

Suddenly, David grabbed Gary's arm and pointed. "Look."

Gary looked - then scowled. "No fucking way, man. I ain't working in no strip club."

David shrugged. "Fine. Then go where you want. I'm going to work for a week, then take the money and head south. Hell, if we're stuck as women, at least we can use it to our advantage - you know how much strippers make in a night?"

David headed into the building. After a moment, Gary sighed and followed. Soon they were talking to Frank, the manager, and they'd procured jobs. David as a stripper, and Gary, who refused to do that, as a waitress. They'd introduced themselves as Gina and Debbie, and Frank didn't seem to be interested in resumes or I.D. as he stared at the two sexy 'women'. He had one of his staff lead 'Debbie' off to the dressing room, while he handed 'Gina' the kinky 'nurses uniform' the waitresses wore.

Gary sighed and slipped into the 'nurses uniform'. First, the skimpy white lace bra and matching panties. Then, the long, silky white nylons, held in place by white lace garters. Over this went a white dress that barely existed, it was cut so low at the neck and so high at the hem. With a grimace, Gary stepped into the six-inch spiked heels white platforms. The final touch was the little white cap with the red cross on it.

"Looking good, Gina." Frank complimented 'her', eyeing the outfit. "You're going to do well tonight." Gary decided to ignore the comment. Bracing himself, he jiggled and swayed out of the room.

He began to serve the drinks to the patrons. The job itself was no big deal - it was the tips. Club policy stated that the tip had to be five bucks - but the customer got to put the bill anywhere he wanted, and cop a quick feel while doing it. When the first guy slid the bill into the back of his panties, caressing his ass, Gary had to exert a great force of will not to hit the guy.

Even worse - it felt good.

Gary knew he wasn't gay, and didn't enjoy a man touching him. Emotionally.

Physically, the sensation was pleasurable. As were the ones created when patrons slipped bills into his bra, garters, and the front of his panties, copping a feel each time. Each time, Gary was shocked and disgusted to find, not only did it feel good - but the constant stream of attention was causing his body to become aroused. Even worse - that arousal felt good, too.

Then, one of the more ingenious patrons pulled a fast one - he slipped the bill between Gary's gloss red lips - and leaned forward for a kiss.

Gary started to recoil, his hand coming up for a slap - when he noticed Frank, a few feet away, looking at Gary with a very loud expression. Jaw clenched, Gary leaned forward for the kiss.

Gary meant to make it quick and uninvolved - but the patron had other ideas. Their lips met, and the other man's tongue darted into Gary's mouth.

It was one of the most intensely incredible kisses Gary had ever experience, full of pleasure and promise. He was so stunned, he couldn't act as the man completed the most intensely erotic kiss in Gary's life.

Gary, bemused, was still trying to deal with the fact that one of the most arousing, pleasurable experiences of his life had been a kiss from another man, when his attention was pulled to the stage by the voice of the DJ.

* * * * *

"Gentleman, give a big hand to our newest dancer - Debbie Dynamite!"

The music came up, a heavy, pounding beat, and David took a deep breath and headed out on stage.

He vamped up his walk, letting his sexy figure sway enticingly - not hard to do in the ridiculously high heels. He strutted out to the center and began to sway, letting his hands, with their long, blood-red nails, rise up to his huge, firm bust. He began to caress his huge, fabric encased tits while the men whistled and applauded. David, again, was shocked by how good it all felt as he massaged his massive tits, and found himself getting unwillingly aroused by the sensations it created.

He let his body move to the driving bass rhythm, shaking his ass sensuously as he turned to let the audience see his perfect ass and long, nylon encased legs. Nobody noticed the slight stumble he made in the high heels.

David had seen his share of strippers perform, and now he dredged every detail up and incorporated it in his act. Every fondle, sway, bounce and caress he'd ever seen he used. It worked - the crowd of beer-swilling men were applauding wildly.

The applause redoubled when, after bracing himself, David slowly, theatrically unzipped the tight leather mini-skirt and slowly, sensuously slid it down his smooth, sexy legs, bending at the waist to emphasized his firm, sexy ass. He was grateful for the dark lighting - nobody could see the fierce blush rising as he revealed the lacy black 'butt-floss' thong panties.

Throwing the skirt aside, David continued to 'strut his stuff', even working up enough nerve to approach the men lining the stage. Steeling himself, he picked a guy at random, and rested his leg on the man's shoulder, his fabric-covered crotch inches away from the salivating man's face. David was rewarded with a bill stuck into the top of his black panties by the drooling man. Another bill was also slid into her garters by the man next to the lucky patron, and David repeated the routine for him, receiving yet a third 'tip'.

Swaying back from the edge of the stage, he slowly peeled off the skin-tight spandex top, revealing the massive black bra that strained mightily to contain his massive, round globes. Swirling the shirt on one finger for a few seconds, she tossed it aside as the men gaped at the bra-encased endowments thrust 'proudly' from 'her' chest.

David was embarrassed by the attention, the way men looked at his sexy, feminine figure with barely disguised lust. And he was horrified to find that the shear lust created by his body was arousing him.

Even as he continued his routine, he found himself intensely aware of the effect his body was having on these men, and the desires his hugely-endowed female form engendered in them. What shocked David to the core was the way he was reacting to this. It was a form of power - all these men were lusting after his body, and were willing to pay just to see it naked. David was sure that he could ask any of these men for almost anything, and get it, in return for just gazing upon the undeniably feminine body he now possessed - and that sense of sheer power - sheer sexual power - was making David almost painfully aroused - his nipples were like rocks, and he was highly aware of the growing warmth and dampness of his new womanhood.

He wiggled his way back to the edge of the stage and bent down, letting one of the men unclasp the bra. To do so, he had to reach behind David - which pushed his face right into her huge, firm, bra encased tits.

The man was in pure heaven as he unclasped the bra. So was David - and he was also in hell.

Both emotions - pure pleasure and pure disgust - came from having this man's face pressed into his massive bosom. Physically, it felt unbelievably good, the sensations rippling through David's overly feminine body.

Emotionally, David was sickened and disgusted. Not only because he was touching another men in a sexual way - but because he was enjoying it so intensely.

The man took his time undoing the clasps, but finally David could pull away, with mixed feelings. Standing, he slowly peeled the bra from his huge tits, and threw it aside as the men applauded and whistled at the sight of her huge, firm mounds of creamy, desirable flesh.

David finished off the rest of his routine in a dazed fog of mixed emotions. Arousal, disgust, physical pleasure, emotional pain, self hate and self lust.

He had to force himself to accept the bills the men held between their teeth by wrapping his huge tits around the bill. Then, it took the same intense effort to pull back away from the extremely pleasurable contact. A tremendous effort of will to give the tipping patron the customary quick 'thank-you' kiss, and a terrible struggle to pull his firm, full, feminine lips away from the other man's.

And David was shocked, horrified and disgusted to find that every time it was getting easier and easier to lean in - and harder and harder to pull away.

When he finished his routine, David all but fled the stage, mind whirling as he gathered up his discarded clothing and ducked into the provided dressing room, slumping on the chair in a welter of confused emotions. Slowly, mechanically, he pulled the clothes back on. He barely even registered the presence of Gary, equally confused and stunned by his own, similar, experiences.

The phone on the dressing table rang, a shrill buzzing sound. David just stared at it for three rings, then picked it up. "Yes?"

Frank's voice came over the line, sharp and clear. "Hey, gorgeous, great set. The guys went nuts. Listen, is Gina there?" "Yeah."

"Great, great. Both of you come to my office, will ya? I have something to discuss with both her and you, Debbie."

Mumbling and agreement, David hung up the phone and informed Gary. The two transformed men rose to their feet - actually, their six- inch spike heels - and headed over to Frank's office.

They got maybe a second's warning, as the door swung open and they saw the four prison guards. Before they could react, the guards fired, the tranquilizer darts hitting David and Gary, and sending them into darkness.

Frank looked on with interest. "Escaped prisoners, huh? I figured them for hookers."

The head guard smiled cryptically. "That's not what these two were sent away for." Frank let that pass. "So, what happens to them now?"

The guard's response was even more cryptic. "We give 'rehabilitated' a whole new meaning..."

* * * * *

The reclining figure blinked as consciousness returned. Slowly, the blonde rose to a sitting position.

Frank was sitting beside the couch - which was located in his office. The manager smiled and leaned closer. "Well, good morning Gina. How do you feel today?"

Gina blinked, brow furrowing. For some reason, something seemed wrong with being called 'Gina'. But, that was her name, wasn't it? The last thing she remembered was being in the club, and the guards...

Now, she was in the office with Frank. She was dressed in her waitress uniform - yet for some reason, she was no longer embarrassed to be wearing it. For some reason, she felt - comfortable in the sexy clothing, proud of the way it made her look. Which is how she should feel, wasn't it...?

"What's going on?" Gina asked, trying to figure out why she felt so odd. Sure, having been a man transformed into a woman was part of it - but something was bothering her, like something she couldn't quite remember, or something.

"You're going to work for me now, full time, and forever."

Gina frowned angrily. "Yeah, right. Since the guards didn't haul me away, I'm free to do what I want..." Suddenly, she stopped talking as it dawned on her that she did indeed want to be a waitress. Searching her mind, she found all the skills that she needed, all the training. When had she learned that? It was all so confusing.

"What the hell's going on? Why am I so confused? How do I know how to be a waitress?" Gina demanded of Frank. She was positive that she hadn't wanted to be a waitress before - now something seemed to be calling her to that profession.

The man smiled. "Simple. You've been 'rehabilitated'. A new technique the lab has invented makes some alterations to a persons memories and thought patterns."

Gina gasped. "You mean I've been brainwashed?" Horror flooded her at the thought that her mind had been tampered with.

Frank smiled wickedly. "Let's find out, shall we?" he asked. "Aside from working for me - you're also my girlfriend." He stood up and unzipped his pants, revealing a large, hard cock.

Horror exploded in Gina at the sight of the large, hard cock. Horror, because she was filled with a sudden, overwhelming need to suck on that glorious cock - in fact, she was filled with a sudden, overpowering need to do anything at all that would please the man she was now helplessly, unwillingly, madly in love with.

Disgust flooded her as she helplessly dropped to her nylon-encased knees before Jack. She couldn't help herself. No matter how disgusted, how sickened, how angry she was - she had to suck his cock. Implanted skills came to life as she used her soft, sexy lips, long, supple tongue and slender, skilled hands to give Frank an expert, erotic blowjob. Like a seasoned professional, her mouth enclosed his hard shaft and began to bob back and forth, as her tongue danced over the swollen head. Her hands fondled his hairy balls with 'pleasure', and stroked the hard shaft skillfully. In no time, she was gulping 'eagerly' at the flood of cum from her 'boyfriends' engorged cock, 'happily' swallowing it all, while deep inside she wanted to vomit.

Instead, she licked the last of the cum from her gloss-red lips, smiled lovingly at the man whom she'd do literally anything for, and rose to her feet and swayed seductively towards the door.

Helplessly, she turned and said in a sexy, smoky voice. "I gotta get to work, lover-boy. But I can't wait to fuck your brains out when we get home." Horrified, she found this to be true - she was desperate for sex, she needed it - even if she didn't want it.

Frank smiled. "You will get home early enough to clean up, and cook me a nice dinner, won't you?"

"Of course, Frank" Gina agreed helplessly. Then, with a helpless smile that masked her horror and disgust, she went through the door - and almost bumped into Debbie, her 'best friend', heading towards the stage, dressed in a sexy pink spangled outfit.

"Gary!" She said quickly, as she continued her sexy sway towards the stage. "You have to help me!" "Gary? No, Gina." Gina said, slightly confused. "What's wrong David?"

The huge-breasted blonde blinked. "David? Who the hell is David? It's me - Debbie." She shook her head. "Never mind - look, I don't know why, but I just lap-danced a guy - and I fucked him while doing it! He paid me fifty buck for a quickie - and I fucked him!" Debbie gulped loudly. "And...I liked it!"

"Uh... I don't know how to tell you this - but we've been brainwashed." Debbie's jaw dropped. "You mean - I'm a hooker now?"

Gina shrugged indifferently. She couldn't care less - she had her own problems to deal with.

Debbie, horrified, helplessly climbed up on the stage - it was time for her routine. She had been 'programmed' to enjoy dancing - and turning on all the men as she did so.

It made it easier to talk them into sex...

BACK TO FUN ZONE

© 1997 - 2016 TGstories.

Stories on the "Public Access" pages may be Copyright by individual authors.

Home | Membership | Terms & Conditons | Privacy Policy | Contact

SUMMARY: After he is given a night of wishes, one guy mistakenly changes himself into a stripper while in the middle of role playing games with his two friends

Unaccountable

By Gunslinger

James Douglas McGrath was standing with his eyes wide and his mouth hanging open.

It was a particular pose/expression he'd been getting a hell of a lot of use out of in the past twenty minutes.

Slowly pulling his mouth closed, the slender young man licked his narrow lips, hazel eyes slowly returning to something closer to their usual diameter.

His recovery was getting much faster with practice, it seemed - either that, or his shock circuits were slowly burning out...

"Let me see if I've got this right..." He said, slowly. "I now have the power to make any wish I want - but it only lasts until midnight..." "Right." His diminutive 'guest said', obviously annoyed.

The dark-haired twenty-one year old pressed on, despite the annoyed tone. "...and it can only affect me or my personal belongings..."

"Because, like I explained, there are rules against using powers on unsuspecting mortals." The tiny, scarlet-hued creature said, impatiently summarizing the much longer explanation he'd already given.

"..I can't create any sort of 'new' wealth..."

"Geez, no - there's too much damned trouble that way..."

Jim ignored the interruption, his voice rising in both pitch and volume as he finished his recitation: "...and not only can't I do anything to anybody else, nobody but me will even notice anything has changed?"

"Yeah, I know it's a bitch." The imp said, studying its talon-like nails. "Again, it's in the rules. Us Mysticals have basically gone underground in the last few centuries, so we're supposed to avoid drawing attention to the fact that we really do exist. I mean, the average leprechaun couldn't even go out for a 'wee drop of the creature' without some dumb mortal trying to grab him for either the wishes or the pot of gold. Even when we started 'twisting wishes', it didn't discourage you Mortals - you all seem to think you can outsmart us or something..."

"Well, if you're so damned smart, what the hell were you doing in my beer can?" Jim bellowed with every ounce of volume his slender, five-foot-eight body could muster.

The two-inch tall Imp drew himself up. "Hey, I didn't say I was better than Mortals - just not any dumber. As for the beer, well, we Mystical go to the plant to get it. We can't exactly walk into the local convenience store and buy a six-pack, now can we? Well..." He shrugged, "...except in LA. There, they don't even bat an eye - but who wants to put up with the smog?"

As Jim ran one slim hand through his short, usually carefully combed mop of dark brown hair in frustration, he wasn't sure what was more unbelievable - popping open a Coors to find a wish-granting Imp inside, or the conversation that had resulted.

"Anyway..." The Imp said, glancing towards the door. "...you got company coming, so I gotta split. Too bad you start drinking so late in the day - you've only got about four hours of wishing left. Enjoy it while you can..."

The imp began to spin, rapidly, becoming a tiny little red blur.

"Hey, wait!" Jim shouted, as the red blur began to fade away. "I'm not done with you yet, you little son of a..." The red blur was gone - and there came a knock on the door to Jim's house.

Staring for a moment at where the Imp had sat, Jim muttered a few choice insults, then headed off to answer the door. "Hey, Jim - what was all the shouting about...?" Barry asked, as Jim opened the door.

"Huh...? Oh, uh - my computer crashed..." Jim told his short, pudgy blond friend as he crossed the threshold.

"Yeah, that can be a bitch." Grant agreed, as he followed Barry across the threshold. Somewhere between his two friends in both height and weight, Grant Takai was one-quarter Japanese, one quarter American Indian, and the rest of him was Scottish - leading for an intriguing individual with almond-shaped eyes, bronze skin, and a shock of unlikely carrot-'red' hair to top it all off. "Hope you weren't in the middle of printing off tonight's adventure when it died."

"No, no - it's all ready to go..." Jim mumbled, mind still on the Imp's appearance, and very-limited wishes. Momentarily, Jim thought of asking his friends to leave - but he didn't exactly have an abundant supply of friends and their Thursday-night role-playing sessions were a long-held tradition, going back nearly eight years now.

Jim didn't even have to tell the other two to make themselves at home. With the cheerful banter of long-time friends, Barry and Grant headed into the bungalow's small, 'bachelor'-furnished living room and collapsed on mismatched couches. Though quite well accustomed to Jim's usual temperament, they didn't notice anything unusual about his thoughtful, somewhat withdrawn mood tonight, as it was the usual for the nights where he was playing the role of DM - Dungeon Master - in their weekly game of Advanced Dungeon & Dragons, when his mind was going over all the last-minute details and plans for the upcoming adventure.

Shaking his head, Jim decided to simply pretend that the whole Imp thing had never happened. Though his life wasn't exactly Utopian, his only real complaint was about money - and he simply couldn't wish for that, so he might as well forget it.

Sitting down in the over-stuffed armchair, in front of which rested all his DM paraphernalia, Jim decided to get the game started. "You guys ready...?" Jim asked.

"Whoops, hold on..." Barry said, with a grin - as he and Grant both bent over, grabbed a still-cold beer from the case Jim had brought from the fridge, and quickly popped the tops and drained half the cans.

"Ready!" The two young men chorused.

Smothering a grin, Jim dropped his voice an octave and began telling the 'back story' - "You, the mighty warrior Elnar, and the powerful Mage Singmet, are sitting in the darkened back corner of a smoky tavern, sheltering from the pounding storm outside..."

Soon, the three men were immersed in the game, all-but-living the adventure that Jim narrated and directed, getting into the spirit - and the characters - of the adventure.

"Hey!" Barry/Singmet exclaimed, outraged. "You can't do that!" Jim blinked and looked up. "Excuse me?"

"The bar wench. She wouldn't do that!" Barry said, waving hand. "I mean, come on - we've been 'drinking' there for hours, and the mighty lady-killer Elnar here has been tipping her generously the whole time. She wouldn't go blab out conversation about them to the sleazy, rude guys at the table near the fire!"

"Hey, remember, they said they were Prince Moreland's men, and that the was a reward for..."

"I have to agree with Barry - excuse me, Singmet..." Grant said, apologetically. "I mean, we've been nice to her, they've been rude to her, and there's nothing but their claim that they're the Prince's men - and beside, our conversation was all about the fact that we think they're really Warlock Tunega's men, so, why would she believe what they said?"

"Well, she's also more afraid of them than she is of you." Jim tried to explain. "She's a defenseless woman, working in a tavern in Prince Moreland's domain, while you're just passing strangers..."

"Oh, come off it." Barry snorted.

"Sorry, Oh great and wise Dungeon Master..." Grant said, with a smirk. "Unless you happen to be able to produce a woman who can back up your hypothesis, I say we should get to random-roll the chances of her blabbing - and I get to factor in my Charisma..."

'Maybe I should 'wish up' a woman to back me up, just to see the look on your faces...' Jim though in good-natured annoyance with his friend's quite-usual nit-picking. 'Of course, I can't 'wish up' a woman - the closest I could get would be wishing myself into a woman, and even then you guys wouldn't even notice...'

"Uh... Jim...?" Grant said, waving a hand tentatively in Jim's direction. "You still with us there, buddy?" "Yeah.. I'm just.. thinking.." Jim said, in a distracted tone, his mind going over the thought again.

He could turn himself into a woman - and Barry and Grant wouldn't 'notice'...

..and, when he turned him - her? - self back at the end of the evening, the guys wouldn't notice that either. 'Geez..' Jim thought, a little stunned. 'Am I that desperate to win a stupid argument...?'

Only - it wasn't the argument, exactly - though that was part of it.

It was the thought of winning the argument by something as 'spectacular' as changing gender, right under his friend's noses, cheating in the most outrageous way possible...

...with no chance of ever getting caught!

A leaden knot in his stomach, Jim wondered if he was nuts - but he didn't dwell on the question, afraid that he'd 'talk' himself out of it. After all, he reassured himself, it was only temporary...

"I wish that I was female..." He muttered under his breath...

...then gasped, hazel eyes flying wide, at the sensations that thrummed through his altered body. No.

Through her body.

The instant the last word of the wish had been uttered, he had instantly become a she. No Hollywood 'morphing' effect, no warp and twist of body. Just blink - and she was sitting there with a stunned look on her face, feeling the same-yet-different sensations that a 'natural' woman never consciously noticed, anymore then Jim had paid attention to the second-by-second sensations of the familiar male body he'd had just a second ago.

"Earth to Jamie..." Grant said, blissfully unaware of any change as he continued waving his hand. "You there...?"

"Uh.. just gimme a minute, okay...?" Jim - Jamie? - said, both surprised and expectant to hear it emerge in a higher, softer tone then any 'Jim' had ever used before. Not that it was completely unlike her male voice - but it was definitely the feminine version of it... "Five minute break, 'kay?"

"Sure..." Barry agreed, easily, Grant echoing the agreement, both as calm and as 'normal' as they'd been before Jim's

'unnoticed' transformation into Jamie.

Hoping her unaware buddies didn't notice the slight trembling in her hands, Jamie faked a smile as she rose - and then, by force of will alone, made herself walk to the bathroom and calmly shut the door.

Once alone in the sanctity of the white-tiled room, however, she let her expression of stunned amazement surface, and she gaped at herself in the mirror.

It was 'herself' - because 'Jamie' saw 'Jim' - only female.

She was shorter - but by the same token, she was now as 'average' in height, for a girl, as she had been for a man. The same mop of dark brown hair surmounted a face that was the feminine version of her male one, and as unremarkable as it had been as a male, neither notably attractive or unattractive.

Though the bone structure was finer, the hips a little wider and the shoulders a little narrower, the slender build was basically the same, giving the short-haired new girl she'd become a definite 'tomboy' look to her...

..especially since, like 'Jim', Jamie wore a pair of jeans and a black T-shirt, with no make-up.

Hesitantly, the new woman used her somewhat slimmer, daintier hands to unzip the fly of her now-female-cut 'unisex' jeans... Where a pair of plain 'tighty-whities' had been were now a pair of equally unremarkable white cotton panties.

Unremarkable, of course except for the fact that she was wearing them, with the pale, smooth skin of her thighs below, a somewhat slimmer waist above - and a perfectly flat, feminine crotch underneath them.

Slowly, biting her thin lower lip, the new woman ran one hand across the smooth crotch...

...then flush and yanked her hand away at the markedly different sensations generated by the pressure on her new - and unmistakable

- vagina.

Licking her lips nervously, Jaime lifted up her shirt.

Like 'Jim', Jamie wasn't wearing a bra - and like 'Jim', she didn't need one, her small, conical mounds barely an A-cup, though her dark nipples were definitely larger than her old ones had been - especially standing erect in the cool air of the bathroom, which they quickly did.

"Holy shit, I really turned myself into a girl..." She whispered, not sure what generated the most disbelief - the fact that she'd actually wished this, or that it had actually happened.

The wish to become male again hovered on her lips - but remained unspoken.

After all - it's not like anybody knew she'd done this. As far as the world was concerned, this was completely 'normal'. Whether she changed back now, an hour from now, or ten minutes to midnight - nobody would ever know.

Except her...

...and so, why waste the opportunity?

Stuffing her shirt back into her jeans and doing them up, she surveyed her feminine body again in the mirror, surprised to find that it didn't feel as different as she'd expected it to. There was no doubt that she was now fully female, but aside from a few.. intriguing.. net sensations, it felt much the same as being male did.

On a whim, pulled open her medicine cabinet, wondering just how 'detailed' this wish had been. Where a can of shaving cream had sat, there was now a box of tampons.

A box, that like the can of shaving cream, had been used.

Blushing, Jamie slammed the cabinet shut, glad that it didn't appear to be 'her time of the month'.

Flush still riding on her cheeks, Jamie left the bathroom and headed back to the living-room, smaller, slimmer feet making no sound in the finer-weave socks hers had become.

"...never really thought about it, for some reason." Barry was saying in a low voice to Grant. "no that you mention it, though, I think maybe you're right.

Hesitating at the end of the hallway, still out of sight, Jaime cocked her ear, wondering at the conspiratorial tone her friend was using.

"It is kinda weird we never even thought about it before..." Grant said. "I mean, it's sort of obvious, now that you look at it - Jamie's a lesbian..."

Jaime's jaw dropped.

As a guy, 'Jim' was a bit shy, and what female friends he thought of him as 'A nice guy', the type you had strictly platonic relationships with... so, generally speaking, Jim had the exact same relationship with women as he did with guys.

It had never occurred to her, however, that there was a different set of standards for women then there were for men. For a guy to be 'seriously' rumored to be gay, he'd have to give some impression of flirting or hitting on other guys. For a woman to be a lesbian, however, all she had to do was not flirt with guys.

Subconsciously, she'd even known this. After all, it was an assumption in most men's mind that women were more likely to 'go lesbo' then guys were to 'go gay' - but she'd never really considered it applying to her.

Then again - until ten minutes ago, she'd never expected to be female, either.

Maybe it was a latent form of homophobia, but the thought that her friends considered her a lesbian bothered her. Sure, technically she guessed she was, because she did like 'other' women - but still, the thought of being labeled a lesbian made her squirm for some reason.

It wasn't a thought she wanted to deal with...

...and so, she wouldn't.

A simple whispered wish and Jim strode back into the living room, a grin on his face. "So, where were we...?" He asked, settling down behind his DM equipment.

"Uh.. in the tavern, with the wench blabbing to the guys," Grant said...

..uncomfortably.

In fact - both of his friends looked somewhat uncomfortable, no longer care-free as they avoided Jim's eyes. "Something wrong, guys?" Jim asked, confused.

"Oh, uh - no, of course not." Barry said, awkwardly. "Hey, you know what? I know we play every Thursday, it's a tradition, but maybe we should try doing something else for a change."

Grant shot Barry a startled look - and Barry gave a very meaningful look back, still speaking. "I dunno, maybe something a little more.. adult..." Barry continued.

Grant blinked - then slowly nodded.

"Hey, maybe that's not a bad idea..." He said with obviously forced excitement. "You know, now that I think of it, the three of us never hit a strip club together. Lotsa guys do that, and it's a blast - get liquored up, lose our inhibitions, and shout what we're really thinking at the naked ladies on stage - and then try to pretend it never happened the next day. Real 'guy' sorta stuff, you know...?"

'Oh, shit...' Jim thought, an icy ball of lead forming in his stomach. He'd made a big mistake.

The wishes might have gone 'unnoticed' - but they didn't erase history, just altered it to match as closely as possible.

The two guys obvious still remembered coming to the 'lesbian' conclusion about Jamie - but now, in their minds, it was 'obvious' that Jim was gay...

Jim wondered what the hell he was going to do.

Obviously, this whole 'strip club' idea was some sort of spur-of-the-moment 'gay' test. They wanted to get Jim to club, get him drunk, and see what happened, wanting to know for sure whether their 'good buddy' was straight or not.

Jim, however, wasn't comfortable in strip clubs. The problem was, Jim was pretty sure that 'shy' just wouldn't cut it, not with the suspicions Barry and Grant now had...

"You're awfully quiet, Jim..." Grant said to Barry, with another of those meaningful looks. "Not really into naked ladies, or something...?"

Oh, shit - how to get himself out of this one...?

Nearly panicked at the thought of losing the two real, close friends he had, Jim decided that if a wish got him into this, maybe it could get him out of this, as well - since, of course, the 'suspicions' were somewhat gender biased...

A whisper...

"Not really..." Jamie said, blushing brightly. "I mean, if you guys want to go and stare at some naked ladies, I understand.. but it's not really my thing, if you know what I mean..."

"Oh, look.." Barry said, blushing in embarrassment. "I didn't mean anything by it..."

As simple as that, the situation was 'reversed' - because the 'attempt' had been to verify that she was a lesbian, and her reaction - which was the same one she would have given as a man served to make 'her' straight, while it would have confirmed 'him' as being gay.

Problem solved...

..right?

The why were the two guys still sharing that same, damned, meaningful look...? As the icy ball returned to her stomach, Jamie knew why.

They had been 'sure' Jamie was a lesbian, which she 'was', sort of, while they'd only been very suspicious of Jim's sexuality.

Had Jim refused such a 'guy' thing, they would have been 'sure' he was gay - but Jamie refusing such a thing just changed certainty to doubt, as there could be lots of reasons for her demurring, not the least of which was to hide the fact that 'naked ladies' were really her thing, after all - and she just didn't want anybody to know.

"I'm.. just going to go see if my computer's working again..." She said, remembering at the last second about her earlier 'white lie'. "I'm waiting for an e-mail..."

She hurried off to her room, where computer was located...

..and paused for half a second, somewhat bemused by the pile of feminine panties replacing the masculine ones 'Jim' had left piled on the dresser after doing laundry earlier.

A pile of briefs sitting out on the open didn't seem to bother 'Jim' - but the sight of feminine panties did, for some reason. Booting her computer up, Jamie hurriedly tucked the panties in a drawer.

"I wish.." She said, quietly, sitting in front of the computer. "That my microphone had a much longer cord - and it was wired up through the ceiling, and hidden in the lamp near the two couches.

Swallowing nervously, she picked up the big, 'monitor'-style earphones she had on her computer for listening to download MP3's, and slipped it on over her smaller ears.

'...not sure what to think.' Barry was saying. 'I mean, she looked embarrassed - but that could have been because she realized she might know about her being a lesbian.'

'If she is one...' Grant said - in a pro-forma voice. 'I mean, is it possible we're just assuming because she looks kinda, well 'boyish'?' '...and never wear's 'girls' clothes...'

'...or makeup...' Grant added.

'..and has a haircut like a guy...?' Barry finished. 'Of course, there's also the fact that she seems to, you know, look at women 'that way' sometimes...?'

That, of course, had been completely natural for 'Jim' - but for 'Jamie', those occasional long glances were damning. Damn - they were working their way back up to 'conviction'...

Taking off the headphones, Jamie bit back an 'unladylike' curse, realizing the mess she'd gotten herself into. Of course, the realization didn't help much. She had to figure a way out of it.

However, having been 'Jim' her entire life, she didn't know how to make 'Jim' look more manly, in terms of 'persona'. Sure, she could wish herself into a hyper- masculine body - one that she'd never wanted, since Jim had always cordially despised 'muscle-bound morons', and never felt the urge to become one, even before the power. So, how did 'Jim' stop being so shy and - given certain suspicions now in her friend's minds - 'gay' about the lack of courage when it came to women?

Jim, after all, was certainly not a ladies man. While that had never been a big deal, before, now that the suspicions were planted in Grant and Barry's minds, Jim's lack of sexual activity and dates looked damning.

She couldn't come up with an answer...

..and then, like a burst of light, she wondered if she was asking the right question.

After all, this whole thing had started because they'd thought 'Jamie' was a lesbian. If she could convince them that 'she' was straight, then - by default - 'Jim' would be considered straight, too, when she changed back.

Wouldn't he?

Well, maybe there was a way to do this that would make absolutely sure of it. Maybe there was a way to make a wish that didn't directly alter anything else but 'her' own life, and yet would leave 'Jim' as being seen as perfectly straight...

...and then, blushing furiously, Jaime realized that there was, indeed, a way - one that could even improve 'his' standing in the eyes of Barry and Grant.

The question was - could she bring herself to do it?

Then again - could she refuse to do it, and perhaps have Grant and Barry abandon 'Jim' out of homophobic tendencies...? Swallowing thickly, Jamie decided to risk it all...

* * * * *

"Oh, shit...!" Jim said, rushing out into the living room while pulling on his jacket. "What's going on...?" Barry asked, looking at Grant - who shrugged back.

"That e-mail I was waiting for...?" Jim said, feigning a frantic attitude. "I came like, five seconds after my computer crashed. Oh, damn, but she's gonna kill me..."

"Uh.. she...?" Grant said, confused.

Jim had no trouble bringing up an embarrassed blush. After all, considering what he was planning, it had been hard to keep one from his face until now. "Uh.. You guys know how awkward I am with girls, face to face. Well, there's a girl I met on the Internet. She travels around a lot, and, well, she mentioned she might be passing through the area tonight - and, turns out, she wants to visit.

Thing is, she knows sort of where I live, but not my last name or my phone number - at least, I don't think she does. I'm gonna run down to where she asked me to meet her and hope she's still there... but can I ask a huge favor of you guys? Can you hang around, just in case she calls? I'd really appreciate it."

"yeah, sure..." the two stunned men said - and, both suspicious and embarrassed by those suspicions, hesitated, giving time for Jim to ruin for the door...

"Hey!" Barry shouted. "What's her name...?"

Thankfully, Jim was mostly out the door, and could pretend he didn't hear as he slammed it behind him and ran for his car.

He hadn't had time to work out any of the details. He was going to use the 'reasonable interval' between 'his' departure and 'her' arrival to come up with them. After all, he had to get everything just right. Since he wouldn't be present, he could 'change' without Barry and Grant 'forgetting' him - and then use the mystical woman to 'back up' his story, thereby finally quashing any doubts about his interest in women.

Except, ten minutes later, he was still sitting in the darkened parking lot of a local park, trying to come up with the 'infallible' scenario. What type of woman, and what 'story', would it take to make even the slightest doubts vanish?

Suddenly Jim realized that he didn't actually have to know - because he could just 'wish' for it to be so. Still nervous, Jim took a deep breath and blurted out the wish before he could chicken out:

"I wish I would become exactly the type of woman that I believe Grant and Barry could unquestionably accept as being somebody having a mutual sexual attraction with 'Jim McGrath'. "

...and, in the instant after the wish was voiced, everything changed.

* * * * *

"I'm still not sure what we were thinking. " Barry said, embarrassed. "I mean, sure Jim hasn't had lots of dates - but we aren't exactly studs ourselves, right?"

"What's this 'we', paleface...?" Grant asked, straight-faced. "In fact, my Indian name is 'Biggum Dickus', which, in English, means. "

The sound of the doorbell interrupted. The two men shared a look. "You think. ?" Barry asked.

"Only one why to find out. " Grant pointed out, rising from the couch.

With Barry close at his heels, Grant walked to the front door and pulled it open...

...then simply stood, slack-jawed and bug-eyed. "Unngh.. ugga bubba..." He said.

"Ubba tugga..." Barry added, helpfully.

'Jim' couldn't help but bathe in the reaction.

Quite literally couldn't, no matter how much the 'continuous-memory-of-the-person-who-was-once-Jim' might have wished to - though, with the way things were, she wasn't even exactly positive as to what 'he' would have wanted.

After all, she wasn't exactly sure just how different 'she' and 'Jim' were, in terms of their minds. That there was some differences was unmistakable, and she fully realized that - but the thoughts and reactions she was having, now, felt as 'real' and 'normal' to her as Jim's had to him, back when she'd been him...

"Hi, boys." She said, her voice throaty and richly, sensuously feminine. "My name's Tamara. I'm looking for Jim..."

"Umm.. Jim's not here..." Grant said, eyes never leaving her body - which was both just fine and annoying, because, even though it made her feel very good being so openly and obviously appreciated, part of her knew damned well that these were her friends, and the sexual interest she was feeling - and receiving - should be 'wrong'.

"He's out looking for you, actually..." Barry said, his inbred courtesy helping break the hormonal hold her presence had created over his tongue. "Uh.. would you like to come in and wait."

"Why yes..." She said, feeling her lips curve up into a warm, sensual smile that matched the pleasure she felt at being shown such 'interested' courtesy. "Thank you very much..."

"Oh - I'm Barry, and this is Grant..."

"A.. pleasure.. to meet both of you..." Tamara said, somewhat regretting the extra emphasis she'd put on 'pleasure' - but not all that much.

She entered the/'his' house, both very aware of the physical interest of two obviously polite, intelligent young men - and of the fact that 'he'/she was getting this pleasure from 'his'/Jim's good friends.

The knowledge was from the mind of 'Jim' - but it was the woman she currently was that was feeling all the emotions. Even though she 'knew' she should feel either embarrassed or sickened by the reciprocal excitement going on here, she didn't feel that way.

Just as she knew that the wish had been terribly, terribly misspoken - but felt like it had been utterly perfect.

After all, it's was Jim's 'intellectual regret' over having wished to actually become said woman that 'bothered' her, but she - herself - felt utterly happy being remade completely into Tamara Lee Steeves.

Reaching the living room, she sat down on the couch, her body moving with a smooth sensuality that felt perfectly natural to her, despite what her old, male memories thought about her unconsciously enticing way of moving, especially in front of Grant and Barry.

Grant and Barry, however, ate it all up with eager eyes, eyes that couldn't seem to leave her body for more than scant seconds as they awkwardly lowered themselves on the other couch.

"So, Tamara.. what do you do for a living?" Grant asked. Tamara hesitated. "Actually... I'd prefer not to say..." "Oh.. all right.." Grant said, blinking.

Actually Tamara had no problem admitting her 'line of work' - it was the Jim-Memory bothered by telling them. "Could I use your washroom...?" Tamara asked, politely.

The two young men practically feel over themselves pointing out the facilities, and she smiled warmly at them as she walked off, sure that their eyes were as firmly fixed on the long, shapely legs and firm, spectacular ass her skintight black latex body-suit encased as they had been on the wonderful view of dusky cleavage her lowered zipper revealed.

Closing the door behind her, she spoke in a low, sensual whisper: "I wish this room was completely soundproof from the outside..." That done, she turned and faced her reflection in the mirror.

Jim's approval of what 'he' saw mirrored her own pride at her appearance.

A broad, sensual face framed by long, wavy black hair, boasting dark, long-lashed eyes over high, well-defined cheekbones, was dominated by her full, mobile lips, coated in a glossy, dark-red lipstick that went well with her dusky skin. The same dusky skin, midway between Mediterranean 'olive' and Arabic 'bronze' added an even more enticingly exotic aspect to the cleavage of her firm, 'natural' DDD-cup breasts, packed tightly into the second-skin outfit she wore.

An outfit that, especially in the brightly-lit bathroom, shot back sharp highlights that emphasized her toned, womanly figure, with it's large breasts and womanly waist balanced by the slender hips and long, well-toned legs.

God, but did she love having such a sexy, overtly female body...!

...but, of course, it's former owner might not agree. That's why she was standing here. After all, the sexual interest she felt in Barry and Grant were a 'side effect' to them being so much like Jim, who'd she'd been 'created' having a sexual interest in.

Hating herself for doing this, but knowing it was only 'right', she faced the mirror and said: "I wish I could talk to Jim in the mirror."

She braced herself for the demand for another wish that was sure to come, the demand that would surely send 'Tamara' back into the oblivion from which she'd sprung...

"Holy shit...!" She heard her voice said, watching her lips move unbidden in the mirror. "How the hell can you keep from ripping your clothes off and finishing it! We've been on the edge of orgasm since the instant we changed!"

Surprised, the gorgeous woman blinked. "That.. wasn't exactly what I expected to hear from you..."

"Oh, god, but are we ever turned on..." She'd said - then, more to the point: "You don't know who you are, do you? I mean, why you are the way you are...?"

"No - I don't really have full access to 'you', you know. If I didn't, we wouldn't need this 'conversation'." Tamara pointed out.

"Well, you're modeled on a character out of a story I once read on the Internet." Jim said, their shared voice sounding embarrassed. "I guess it most immediately came to mind because.. well.. It's about a guy who gets turned into a woman after a car crash."

"Really..?" Tamara asked, surprised.

"Yeah.." Jim admitted. "See, the thing is, I sort of like those stories because, well - it's almost as if I think that the best way I could get laid is if those stories were true, we're my 'competition' instead ends up as sexy women so horny they'll have sex with even guys like me."

"Oh.. so when you specified that I be a woman who could be sexually attracted to you, I became this 'fantasy slut'...?" Tamara asked, one finally arched eyebrow raising.

"It's not that, exactly. See, the character in this story - and you - have a hyper-sensitive body.. especially to pleasure." Jim explained. "You, not having experienced anything else, have no idea just how much more utterly pleasurable simply.. existing is, for you. God, but even standing here feels so.. good!"

"So.. what do we do...?" Tamara asked her alter ego.

"Well, if you'd ever read any of this author's story, you'd know the answer is almost inevitable..." Jim replied...

* * * * *

With the 'chunk' of the master switch in the kitchen fuse-box being thrown, all the lights went out.

What the...?" Grant exclaimed, bolting to his feet. In the darkness, he heard Barry, having moved to the other couch, do the same. "I'll find the fusebox..."

"Shh..." A low voice said from the darkness, throaty and sensual. "Don't move..."

In the darkness, Grant frowned and opened his mouth to ask a question...

...then stopped dead as the sound of a zipper being lowered came from the darkness. A zipper much too long to be Barry's fly.

The type of zipper, in fact, that sounded like it was on a latex body-suit.

The type of latex bodysuit that, if it were to be taken off, might make that rustling sound he'd just heard. Despite the fact that he remained perfectly still, parts of Grant were continuing to move in an upward direction. "Marco..." That voice said with a soft chuckle in the darkness.

"Uh.. Polo..." Barry replied, a half-beat ahead of a more assertive version from Grant.

With another soft chuckle of anticipatory pleasure, Tamara began moving on cat-like feet through the darkness, trusting her/Jim's memory of the room as she called out again, softly, "Marco..."

"Again, the overlapping responses sounded, and she moved quietly in that direction.

Jim, alert and more than just memory engrams, rode 'shotgun' inside her body, awake and aware - but letting a considerably less nervous/guilty Tamara handle the actual 'work'.

"Marco..." She whimpered, guessing herself to be only inches away from where one of the guys must be standing near the couch. "Pol..umph!"

Shifting slightly higher, Tamara got her lips firmly affixed on Grant's, and began kissing him, tongue slipping easily into the man's mouth...

...as Jim squirmed in her mind, obviously still bothered by the fact that 'he'/she was kissing Grant, even with his proviso that he not have to see it, at least not the 'first time', depending on how things worked out.

However, Jim also didn't 'veto' the kiss, which he could have done. Though uncomfortable, he was obviously enjoying the sensations it created - and, as she pressed her warm, naked body more firmly against Grant, her sensitive breasts hard against his chest, the 'squirming' began to subside.

Gently ending the kiss, she gently grabbed Grant's head, bringing his warm mouth down to meet her fully swollen nipple. As he began licking and nibbling the offering, hands caressing her full, firm breasts, she gasped slightly - then whispered "Polo..."

A second later, Barry's outstretched hand met her flesh, and she quickly found his face, giving him a kiss to rival that which she'd shared with Grant.

Barely a quiver this time.

She began unbuttoning each man's shirt with one hand - a futile attempt, but the guys got the point almost immediately.

"Stay standing, handsome.." She whispered to Barry - then, gently, keeping one hand on Barry's now-bare flesh for guidance, eased Grant down onto the floor in the proper position.

She gently straddled Grant's prone figure, her full, firm buttocks lightly caressing the throbbing head of Grant's cock, her hand wrapped firmly around the base of Barry's cock...

...and she waited.

Waited for the rolling welter of Jim's emotions to settle enough for the man sharing her body to make a decision. He did. It came in the form of a whisper to quite for even the men to hear, a faint whisper of a wish...

...a wish, unlike the last one, so utterly well spoken, that Tamara knew, one way or another, Jim was going to deserve getting the 'majority' control when this test-run was over.

After all, wishing that 'they' would enjoy it even more than they'd hoped was pure genius...

..and with that, Tamara and her passenger plunged their wet, ready cunt down onto Grant's hard, ready cock, even as her full lips closed around Barry's own throbbing shaft.

Pleasure, completely different in type, but equally in intensity, flooded forth from both points of contact.

With that pleasure, the last of Jim's resistance faded, and they - together - began to rock in a specific motion, each thrust forward filling her eager mouth with more throbbing cock to suck and lick, while rising higher on the cock filling her oh-so-sensitive cunt...

...and then backwards, reversing the motion and impaling herself fully on Grant's wonderful organ, while letting her lick and kiss the hard cock her hands were fondling.

It was.. fantastic.

Especially with the two separate-yet-linked minds in her brain, capable of accepting each of the two forms of pleasure without loss, seamlessly sharing the wonderful pleasure as they cycled back and forth between the two wonderful points of pleasurable contact with delicious, impaling, mouthwatering, cunt-filling cock.

Not to mention the additional pleasure from her tits, as Grant's hands slid up her body to begin fondling the wonderfully bouncing, rocking mounds as she thrust back and forth in ever-growing pleasure...

..and then Barry leaned over, and he was just able to fill his hands with the firm curve of her ass, matching her rhythm as she rocked back and forth.

It was the most perfect pleasure she'd ever felt. Ecstasy from mouth and cunt, each a warm, wet orifice she forevermore wanted filled. Additional, supplementary pleasure of another sort, provided by warm hands of firmly rounded flesh. Front and back, top and bottom - pleasure from all directions, all of it wonderful, provided by wonderful men, and oh God she loved this all and she never wanted it to stop...

...and it was probably a damned good thing her mouth was full of wonderful cock at the time, or she might have made an inadvertent wish to the effect.

As it was, the pleasure was definitely ending towards an end - but the 'right' type of finish, not with a whimper but a bang, as the waves of overlapping pleasure began to grow, and intermix.

In/out, out/in, the contrast and the continuation, creating a synergy more powerful than either alone ever would have created, and somewhere in the back of her/his mind, one of them was wryly noting that no single man would ever be able to satisfy her like this, and no woman, either - but who cared?

Not them.

Not now.

Not having already exceeded any level of pleasure they'd ever so much as imagined, much less felt - and the pleasure was still growing, and endless stream that she just barely managed to stay afloat in, the twitches in her muscles both interfering with, yet demanding, the continuation of her wonderful, pleasure-inducing rocking...

Then, desperately, she increased the pumping action of the hand wrapped around Barry's cock, time having suddenly become a very pressing issue...

...and her increased pace made Barry gasp, his hands stilling on her ass as he twitched and pumped a full load of oh-God-it-tastes-so-wonderful cum down her oh-so-eager throat...

...allowing her just enough time to regretfully release the wonderful cock from her mouth and scream out in mindless ecstasy as her first female orgasm slammed into, turning the darkened room into an infinite plane of white light as every nerve ending in both minds overloaded with the purest form of pleasure that had ever existed...

As it had to, the intense burst of pleasure began to fade, leaving Tamara to find herself laying on the floor, the two men gently fondling her sweat-slicked body and whispering soft words of thanks, some directed at her, and some to their deity of choice.

In that instant, Jim and Tamara came to a final decision...

To the complete and utter confusion of both guys, they heard Tamara's voice ring out in the darkness: "I wish..."

* * * *

"So - what do you think it'll be tonight?" Grant asked, as he and Barry walked up to the door of their friend's house. "Hey, that's the thing about role-playing..." Barry replied, with a grin. "You just never know..."

Reaching out, he knocked on the door...

...and both men smiled as it swung wide open, to reveal the slender figure of Jamie Tamara McGrath, clad in a very tight, revealing version of the classic 'French Maid' outfit, one whose six-inch spike-heel pumps showed off her long, fishnet-stockings-clad legs, and whose low bodice showed off much of her massive, creamy breasts.

"Welcome 'ome, mon cheri..." She said in a surprisingly good French accent, her full lips curving. "I am so very 'appy to see you both!"

"It's 'Yvette'..." Grant said in delight. "Oh, I just love when we do the Naughty French Maid..."

"I beg your pardon...?" 'Yvette' asked - and Grant, knowing the conditions their good friend - and exotic dancer - set for the Thursday night she kept open for their role-playing, immediately dropped into character, as he and Barry stepped inside...

they could discuss the 'naughty French maid', or any other of Jamie's 'alter egos' any other day of the week. On Thursdays, it was 'in character' only, and she practically became a different person then...

...though, of course, no less eager to please her best friends, the two men who had known her even before she'd become an exotic dancer and gotten the progressively larger breast enhancements.

Of course, neither the new job nor the enlargements changed the fact that the once-tomboyish girl they'd always hung out with, who'd been the girl who'd inducted them into manhood, was just as sexy - and sexual - as she'd always been, the time spent earning tons of cash as a stripper notwithstanding.

As far as Barry and Grant were concerned, it was inexplicable. They had no way of accounting for the fact that this eager, cheerful, so utterly sexual woman could possibly be so sexually excited by nerds like them...

...but she seemed happy enough with it all, and they certainly didn't try to argue whenever she grinned and said that it was all like 'a wish come true'...

BACK TO FUN ZONE

© 1997 - 2016 TGstories.

Stories on the "Public Access" pages may be Copyright by individual authors.

Home | Membership | Terms & Conditions | Privacy Policy | Contact

SUMMARY: One man rescues a lifestyle designer from near death and is rewarded by receiving a re-design at no charge.

Unaware

By Gunslinger

Bob happened to be walking through Landmark Textiles when he found himself a 'punctual savior, both gallant and... mmm... strong...'

At least, that's what the... person... told him. For himself, Bob was more bemused than usual by the apparition who's life he'd saved - and since Bob's usual state of mind was 'amicably befuddled', that took some doing.

When Bob had seen the large roll of cheetah-print fabric begin to teeter, he hadn't stopped to take a good look at the person underneath it. Instead, he'd gone from his slow, slouching amble to a shambling run that ate up ground at an amazing rate. His heavy, muscular body had wedged between the descending roll and the back of the unsuspecting customer - and then, with a mighty heave of his massively-muscled arms, the tow-headed man pushed the roll back in place.

While the individual thanked Bob - at great length - the shambling, moon-faced young man studied the person he'd rescued.

Bob couldn't figure out if it was a 'he' or a 'she'. A slender black individual dressed in baggy, purple-silk pants and a garish yellow jacket with over-padded shoulders. The curly, greasy hair was about collar length, and was topped by a huge, bright-yellow fuzzy-felt fedora, with purple satin band. The person wore dark sunglasses, lots of flashy gold jewelry, and bright-red cowboy boots.

Finally, Bob figured the person must be a guy, because he was constantly referring to himself in the third person, as 'The World- Famous Leonardo!'

Never just 'Leonardo'. The whole thing. Every time.

Which would have bugged the hell out of most guys, but Bob just grinned and nodded. He did that a lot - grinned and nodded. At six- foot-eight-inches, Robert William Mason was a shambling mass of musculature. Not the carefully-molded living sculpture of a professional body-build, but simple masses of huge, rippling muscles overlapping each other until he looked more like a shaved Grizzly than a human being.

Most bears didn't wear a bright-red hockey-jersey, custom-made to be baggy even on his massive frame, and a pair of custom-tailored jean overalls, also baggy. A huge pair of old work-boots completed the image, with his round, mildly cheerful face smiling down from above this, all topped with his crew-cut wheat-blond stubble.

Bob's incredible physique was due to a hormonal balance that had kicked in during puberty. A big, strapping boy already, Bob had been doing well in school, reasonably intelligent, if a bit prone to violence if frustrated.

Then, his hormones went wild. He couldn't stop eating as he was wracked with constant, dull growing pains, all over his body. He had incredibly amounts of energy, as if on a constant caffeine kick - and he put on pound after pound of rippling, powerful muscles.

However, there'd also been some problems with his thinking processes. Even after the incredible growth-spurt had ended, Bob had been... different.

Not stupid, really - though not quite as bright as he used to be, he was still intelligent enough to be considered 'legally mature', able to live his own life. He was just very... calm. Amicable. Happy...

...and a tad slow to switch topics. He focused on one thing at a time when he was thinking, and on that one topic, he thought quick and well - but, until that set of thoughts were done, the end of the world around him wouldn't have broken his concentration.

So, it was fairly lucky that Bob had been looking directly at the roll when it started to fall. As he quite often did, Bob had strolled from his small bungalow to the nearby mall, just strolling along and looking in the stores, grabbing a snack from the food-court when he felt like it. He'd wandered into the fabric shop, lured by all the bright colors and patterns. He had been looking at the pattern on the 'cheetah-skin' roll, admiring it - and, with his attention focused on the rug, he was able to react in time.

Even better - Leonardo's fondness for the sound of his own voice allowed him to 'switch topics', and determine what was going on with the oddly-dressed, prissy-acting man.

"Um.... 'scuse me..." Bob said, politely. Bob was always very polite. He knew he wasn't as swift as he'd used to be, and didn't want to accidentally get anyone angry by unintentionally insulting them. It had happened a few times, soon after puberty. If somebody started fighting him, it took Bob several second to even realize what was happening, just standing there while the guy beat on him - then, when his focused shifted, Bob would fight back. Focused, then, on fighting, Bob was simply unable to stop fighting until the opponent was on the ground, unmoving...

...so, more or less by police insistence, Bob was very polite. When his first, hesitant, attempt to interrupt the black man's monologue failed, he waited several second before trying again. "Umm... The World-Famous Leonardo?"

The black man loved the sound of his name, so that got his attention. He smiled, his teeth so startlingly white in his dark face that it almost seemed like somebody had turned up the lights. "Yes, my dear, dear lad?"

The twenty-nine-year-old man smiled. "What is it you're World Famous for?"

"Oh, where are my manners?" Leonardo said, slapping his own wrist in 'punishment'. "I sometimes forget that my esoteric-yet-exotic choice of venue means that some poor unfortunates have yet to hear of my work. Well, lad, I'll exchange you my card for you current self-identifier, whether bestowed or chosen."

Bob blinked and stared directly at Leonardo, whose high-wattage smile dimmed a bit as Bob made no move to take the card from Leonardo's extended hand.

Then, suddenly, animation flowed back into the momentarily still young man, and he took the card while smiling benignly at Leonardo. "I'm Bob. It's very, very nice to meet you, Mr. Leonardo, sir."

While he spoke, he looked down at the card, whose gold-on-cream simplicity was surprise, considering it's origin. It read:

Leonardo

~~~~~

Designer

Los Angeles * New York * Paris * London * Milan

"It's a very, very..." Bob paused, thoughtfully. "...very-very nice card, World Famous Leonardo."

This time, it was Leonardo who blinked. "Oh, no need to be formal, handsome. Seeing as how you just saved my life, I think you can call me 'Leo'. Now - the question that remains before me is how to adequately repay you."

"Oh, you don't have to..." Bob started to say, after a momentary pause to work out how to respond.

"Nonsense." Leo said, shaking his head. "I insist. Now, let's see - what would be the perfect new 'look' for you. ?"

Giving Bob a long, searching look, the garishly clad individual turned and began to sort through the rolls of fabric, Bob watching with an apprehensive eye and ready to catch any more rolls that the man's motions might dislodge.

"Ah..." Leo muttered to himself, picking up the edge to a roll of gold-colored silk. "Yes, this will do nicely for the.. oh - and that. "

Still muttering, he turned suddenly and grabbed the edge of another role, this one also silk, but of a pastel pink-beige sort of color. As Bob watched, a little confused and a bit curious, the strangely-attired man whipped out a big pair of fabric shears from under his bright yellow jacket, pausing to mentally measure Bob again before he began snipping a good sized square from the golden fabric, followed by an even larger swatch of the pinkish-beige fabric...

...followed by a some of the cheetah-patterned fabric that had started the whole mess...

...and then some of the similar-patterned fabric just down the aisle, this time printed onto a crushed velvet material...

Still muttering, almost unaware of his surroundings, the garishly-clad black man wandered around, snipping sections of fabric from the oddest collection of rolls - everything from silk and velvet to heavy vinyl 'leather' and even smoother, glossier red pleather.

Bob just sort of followed him around, his moon-like face mildly apprehensive as he let the slender black man load him down with a wide variety of fabrics, in a wide variety of sizes.

"What.. What's that for..?" He asked, confused.

"You'll see, my dear boy - and I'm sure you'll like the results..." The flamboyant man said, grinning. "Come, let us pay for these - and then retire to your place for the dénouement of..." He stopped dead, seeing the blank look on Bob's friendly, open face, then dropped the 'Little Lord Fauntleroy' act with a sigh. "Let's pay for this and go to your place."

That Bob understood - after a second. "Uh.. Okay..."

* * * * *

Bob's kitchen looked like it had exploded.

Which wasn't surprising, considering that what Leo had done in there seemed to be equal parts cooking, chemistry and alchemy. He'd soaked some fabrics in solutions ranging from vinegar-and-cider to lemon-juice and a dollop of spaghetti sauce. Others he'd simmered in various mixtures. Some he'd used to strain other liquids through. Others he'd actually grated and added a dash or two to another pot, cup, bowl or pan.

Through it all, he'd kept extracting what seemed to be an unlimited supply of tiny little bags from the pockets of his garish outfit, adding a dash of this or a jot of that to this container or that, always giving Bob a thoughtful look before deciding how much of whatever it was he had in those bags to whatever mixture he was working on.

After about two hours of busy preparation, he'd finally had the final product - a muddy brown 'cocktail' that came out of the blender with a thick, wet slurp, filling the galls he'd chosen with the muddy contents...

...and he'd just handed the glass to Bob with an expansive "Drink up, my dear boy, drink up..."

Hesitantly, Bob eyed the concoction Leo had whipped up - and then the creator, who was grinning toothily at him, no sign of guile or evil intentions on his face.

"Okay..." Bob said, doubtfully...

...and before he could change his mind, he downed the contents of the glass in one, big, gulp.

For a second, he was sure he was going to wretch - the contents of that galls was the foulest thing he'd ever tasted - not because it was bitter, as he'd expected, but because it was...

..it was...

Well, quite frankly, it tasted an awful lot like the way perfume smelled.

With a grimace, Bob plopped the glass down on the counter, his face contorting even further as he struggled not to up-chuck...

...and then, with a ringing belch, the mass seemed to make up it's mind to stay put in his stomach.

"Gee, uh, thanks..." Bob muttered, unsure what the point of all this had been - unless Leo was some sort of strange 'Drink Designer', a bar-tender extraordinaire - because the concoction was producing a sort of warmth that was similar to the few times Bob had tried drinking - which he'd stopped doing once he realized that he really couldn't afford the negative mental effects associated with alcohol consumption.

However, if that was the case, this one was a failure - because, while it might be intoxicating, it'd never sell. Even now, his stomach was doing lazy twirls and loops, the warmth spreading in time with the strange, watery sensation of nausea that brought back sharp memories of the time he'd had a really bad case of the flu - the weak-kneed listlessness and unstable, watery feeling, combined with nausea and a cold sweat that washed over him like a wave.

"I.." Bob started to say...

..and then he collapsed to the floor, twitching helplessly, feeling as if every fiber of his body had suddenly decided to get as far away as possible from every other fiber of his body, a strange ripping sensation that wasn't actually painful, so much as severely disconcerting.

"Don't worry, my dear lad - the discomfort will soon pass..." Leo said, soothingly. "It's a necessary evil, I'm afraid - an inevitable part of the transmutation process..."

Bob, however, barely heard the reassuring patter the Leo kept up, too busy with the strange sensations that were coming from his body. Well.. perhaps not all of them were 'strange', except in context. For instance, he'd been naked often enough to recognize the sensation

- he'd just never had it occur due to his clothes quite simply turning to mist and wafting off his body, dissipating into the air with the faintest mixed odor of sweat and laundry detergent.

However, many of the sensations he was feeling were completely new to him...

Like the strange sensation in his buttocks, laying on the floor, twitching, he rolled back and forth across his ass several times - and each time it felt.. 'puffier'. Not less sensitive, as if padded, but as if swollen - like giant bee-sting, sort of, but without any pain.

A similar sensation was occurring in his chest as well - but it's wasn't quite the same, since it wasn't as firm a swelling sensation, though it was still not 'watery' - excepting, of course, the watery feeling that was continuing to run over his body.

However, it was a sensation that was nearly lost among the others. Like the 'tight hug around the waist' sensation - that being the closest he could come, in his own mind, to describe what was going on.

Even stranger was the fact that a similar-but-different sensation seemed to be occurring in his neck. Not, 'his neck felt the same way' - in his neck, actually under the skin.

The sensation coming from the neck's outer layers was completely different, a sort of stretchy-slidey sensation that he had no referents for, nothing to compare it too - he'd never felt anything close to it, ever.

Yet, despite the strangeness of the sensation, it couldn't hold his entire attention - anymore than any single one of the sensations could be his sole focus, not with so much happening at once. It was a whole-body experience of mingled sensation, a cacophony of physical experiences that blended into one massive, out-of-sync sensation symphony...

...which was like a symphony orchestra doing it's tuning - because, before long,. The sensations began to even out, to mellow, changing from 'disconcerting' to just 'different' - and remaining steady in their new arrangement, seeming to indicate that the 'transmutation' process was at an end...

...or, nearly so, since the final wave of sensations came a second later - and these ones were 'exterior' sensations, ones created as a whole new set of clothes formed around his body. It wasn't a 'reversal' of the mist routine that had taken his clothes, however, but something stranger - it actually felt like he sweated the clothing out, as if it were a liquid that exuded from his pores and then solidified into it's new form.

Actually, that's exactly what it was - but Bob didn't know that.

"Well, there you are..." Leo said, stretching out hand. "Why don't you take a look...?" Bob, instinctively, reached out towards Leo's outstretched hand...

..and then he stopped dead, blinking several times to make sure he wasn't seeing anything.

The hand Bob was holding out towards Leo was a perfectly formed hand, flawless and impeccable...

...for a woman's hand.

It was dainty, with slender fingers that boasted smaller knuckles that smoothly blended in with the slender contours of his new digits, unlike his old, burly knuckles. Tipping each of the fingers was a perfectly normal nail - perfectly normal in context of the hand, since each was long, ovoid, and painted a gloss red shade, with little cubic-zirconia 'diamonds' on the pointer finger's nail.

"What..." Bob said, stunned...

...and was further stunned to hear the inquiry come out in a feminine tone.

Taking Bob's hand, Leo pulled the stunned, unresisting... man...? off the floor with an ease that revealed a change in Bob's physical mass, hauling Bob's new form upright and giving it a little turn so that Bob was facing the full-length mirror Leo had insisted he have the drink in front of, making the muscular man dismount the reflective surface from the back of the bathroom door and carry it out to the kitchen.

What the mirror showed now, however, was anything but a muscular man.

What it showed was an extremely well-endowed woman, dressed in extremely sexy clothing.

The woman who gaped at the mirror was a blonde - and the hair that hung in gentle waves past her new face was the same golden shade as the swatch of fabric Leo had chosen, only now converted into that silky-smooth mane of hair, framing a face whose skin tone was a rich, smooth and remarkable even shade, well within the range of normal coloration for a human being, but remarkably flawless and smooth - any woman would have killed for skin that perfect...

...and Bob had it, covering every inch of her new body, as far as she could tell.

Her face was... amazing. A smooth, unlined forehead with a well-defined brow that boasted tow high-arched, finely curved blonde eyebrows, riding above a pair of rich blue eyes, which in turn were framed by long, dark lashes. Her nose was well-formed, with a smoothly sloping bridge and a slight upturn of it's pert little end. Beneath that perfect nose was full, firm set of bow-like lips, the same glossy shade of red as her nails - and, come to think of it, the leather that Leo had chosen.

Her shoulders were bare - and perfect, neither too narrow nor too broad, and with well-shaped contours that were smooth and symmetrical, leading the eye easily to her bare arms, whose layer of golden body hair was so fine as to be nearly invisible.

She was wearing a cheetah-print 'Bodice'-style winged crop-top, edged in black lace... and the new woman was a bit bemused to realize that she knew not only the style of top, but the exact size of the built-in cups.

Her new breasts were triple-E's.

They were remarkably firm - but not so firm as to be undeniably 'fake'. In fact, the slightly 'teardrop' shape of her new breasts was on the exact borderline of each possibility, equally likely to be believed as being natural or implanted - especially since the nipples that showed faintly through the fairly light materials were either slightly small for natural breasts, or somewhat large for enhanced ones.

Actually, Bob could tell - with very little problem - that even men who didn't care much for big breasts could quite easily become intrigued by the new endowments she possessed, wondering whether or not they were, in fact, natural.

Of course, answering a direct inquiry as to their origin would have been extremely inadvisable, since it would probably get her locked up in a little rubber room. She, herself, was living through the experience - and was wondering if she'd gone crazy.

After all, how else did you explain that fact that she was now the proud possessor of a trim waist and flat stomach, shown to great effect by the inverted 'V' hem of her top, the back long enough to not only keep a chill from running across the small of her back, but to actually hang slightly past the waist-band of the just-above-knee-length black leather skirt she wore, which clung tightly to the womanly curve of her new hips and the firm contours of her jaw-dropping new ass, tapering slightly as it followed the line of her thighs, but not hugging them completely, leaving a nominal eight-of-an-inch clearance on each side, with the small slit on either side at the very hem allowing for a bit more freedom if needed - even if that 'freedom' would cause the slits to spread wider, revealing the lacy top of her black, back-seamed nylons, which not only enclosed her long, shapely new legs, but enhanced them.

Something that was further intensified by the open-toed black leather pumps she wore, each shoe encasing her smaller, daintier feet and lifting her heel five-and-a-quarter inches higher than her toes.

Bob stared into the mirror for several long seconds, her gorgeous new face a mask of surprise as she eyed what Leo's concoction had done to him...

...and then she smiled.

"How..." She asked, eyes alight with delight. "How did you know I've always wanted to be a woman?"

"Designing lifestyles is my job, madam..." Leo replied in a stiff, 'offended' voice that was marred by the smile and the glint in his dark eyes - and then he laughed. "I could see how uncomfortable you were with your life, and it's pretty common knowledge that people really don't expect huge-breasted, blue-eyed blondes in tight sexy clothes to be all that smart. That would only make it the ideal form for somebody like you."

"Yeah..." She said, happily, her long-nailed new hands roaming over the clothes she now wore - and the body that lay beneath. "Ever since I was younger, I always envied girls, always so popular - not 'even' if they weren't smart, but 'especially'. Now I can finally be happy.. and..."

She trailed off, her new face flushing...

"..and finally have all the sex you've missed over the years?" Leo filled in for her, and she nodded, still flushing brightly. "Well, - would you like me to 'get you started', so to speak...?" Leo asked, slyly.

The new woman stared at the wonderful, wonderful man who'd made her secret fantasy become real, a tremor of anticipated pleasure and more-than-somewhat nervous excitement running through her new body as she slowly ran her long, supple new tongue over her lips, feeling and tasting the sensation of lipstick coating their smooth curves.

She smiled, a bit nervously.

"That depends..." She said, pausing a second to bite her lower lip, once, in a new instinct as powerful-yet-comfortable as those that allowed her to balance atop her new heels. "What.. what will everybody think? I mean - I want to be a woman, but..."

Leo smiled, holding up a hand to calm the new woman's worries.

"As far as everybody remembers, Robert Mason moved away a week ago - after selling his house to a lovely lady from California name Barbara Williams."

The new woman's lips slowly spread into a warm smile as she tried her new name on for size. "Barbara Williams. Barbi... I like it." "I'm glad to hear it..." Leo said. "So, would you like me to introduce you to some of the joys of being female... Barbi?"

Her grin widened even more - and now most of the nervousness was gone from it.

"Oh, yes..." She said, finding her voice breathier, slightly rougher. "I'd like it very much..."

Smiling, Leo took a step forward, his hands coming up and sliding easily around her delightfully slender waist...

...and she shivered in pleasure at the touch of another human being, something she hadn't felt for far too long - and, in a sexual context, never - for she'd never been attracted to women, partly out of a fear that her old body would inadvertently hurt a less bulky woman, and partly from a sense of shame at her old, muddled life.

That was all in the past, however - and when Leo tilted his head slightly, she tilted her own eagerly, pressing her new lips against his in an eager, excited kiss that quickly deepened, their tongues exploring each other's mouth with rising passion.

The feel of Leo's cock hardening against her thigh, even through the layers of cloth that separated their flesh, was one of the most wonderfully exciting sensations she'd ever felt.

Literally exciting, in the physical sense - as in, causing her low, simmering arousal to flare rapidly.

She put her arms around him, as well, drawing their bodies even more tightly together, her impressive new endowments pressing firmly against his slender chest... and she sighed in pleasure, not only from the wonderful, oft-dreamt-of sensation of having breasts to press firmly against a man's chest, but because Leo responded by sliding his hands downwards, first cupping, the fondling, her leather- covered ass.

Still fondling her firm, taut ass, Leo gently removed his lips from hers.. then slid slowly downwards, until his face was pressing against the slight 'dip' in the fabric between her breasts...

...and his teeth found the end of the string that held the two halves of the garment together, tugging lightly on the little bow, and causing the garment to simply peel away, fluttering down to the ground as he began to lightly lick and nuzzle her new breasts, paying special attention to her now-engorged nipples.

Shivering in pleasure, she closed her eyes and let her head roll back, indulging both the physical pleasure and the deeply intense emotional satisfaction that this wonderful man was providing her, his expert touch doing fantastic, sensual things to the perfect, wonderful body he'd give her.

"Oh, Leo.." She moaned, low and sensual. "Oh, that feels so wonderful..."

In response, Leo gave her a little nudge, pressing his body against hers to the point that she began to wonder if he was trying to knock her off her heels...

...and then she made the connection, a smile of sweet anticipation crossing her lips as he let herself be walked backwards, through the door of the kitchen and towards the living-room couch.

While they were walking, Leo continued to nuzzle her breasts - while his dark fingers went to work on the zipper centered at the back of her skirt.

She slid her own hands around to his front - and by the time they reached the couch, they had to break their embrace long enough to slip out of their clothes, a pause necessary because, new-life instincts or not, Barbi lacked the experience to do it without letting go.

The instant the last of their clothes came off, however, they embraced once again - and this time his hard, throbbing cock pressed with delightful warmth against the bare skin of her thigh.

Then, with one supple move, Leo eased her onto the cock - in a position that easily guided the head of his cock between her eagerly spread legs, allowing him to penetrate her new womanhood for the first time.

She gasped, then bit her full lower lip, eyes wide in amazement at the incredible pleasure that came from having her wet and ready cunt filled with Leo's cock.

"Oh... - make me a real woman, Leo..' She moaned, sliding her hands to his hips and shifting position slightly to make things easier for both of them, his cock buried to the hilt in her cunt and creating intriguing and intensely pleasurable new sensations with the simple motion. "Now, Leo - I want you to do it now..."

The slender, supple black man - with a body that was firmer and more muscled than she would have thought - wasn't about to argue.

Smiling down at her, he leaned forward slightly, and she lifted her head to meet his...

...and he drew his hips back as their lips touched - then pressed forward with tongue and cock in the same instant, creating a wonderful sensation that almost lost him the tip of his tongue as she barely managed to keep from clamping her jaw at the wave of pleasure that shuddered through her body, making her moan in the back of her throat in ecstasy.

It felt fantastic...

...and it only got better.

The new woman's breaths began to shorten and quicken, her body-rhythms increasing even as the pleasure did, wave after wave of rising ecstasy matching the thrust of his hips that caused that wonderful member of his to slide with delightful friction inside of her, a sensation unlike anything she'd ever felt before - the sensation of being filled, and fulfilled, emotionally and physically, all to the rising tempo of pure physical pleasure.

She began to tremble uncontrollably, her body wracked with pleasure so intense that she was gradually losing fine motor control - but she couldn't have cared less, because their combined thrashing, though beginning to interrupt the steady rhythm of Leo's hips, was creating waves of pleasure all their own...

..and, besides she was so close to the edge that there was little chance of it 'slipping away' on her. However... even that was a risk she didn't want to take.

"harder.. "She gasped in a husky voice, eyes closed as her body trembled with pleasure. "Now.. make me.. come.. now..." His rhythm deepened and speeded up - and she came.

Like a thunderclap from a clear blue sky, it rocked her with unexpected pleasure, not just an increase in pleasure, but an exponential increase - going from mere ecstasy to pure, orgasmic pleasure, short-circuiting control to her body for a moment , leaving her writhing and bouncing beneath him like a woman in the middle of a spasmodic attack, her nerves busy transmitting the intense, and intensely satisfying, sensation of a female orgasm, while she screamed out his name in a drawn-out howl of pleasure that was nearly incomprehensible - and was matched by the shorter, sharper, explosive gasp of her new name that he gave out as he, to, reached climax...

...and it was as if their screams were representative of the variation in male-and-female orgasms, hers longer and smoother than his quick, intense convulsion as he did exactly what she'd asked, making her 'a real woman' as he gave her the first female orgasm of her new life...

...and then, suddenly, his weight was gone, and her hands collapsed inwards...

...to land on the 'balls' of the big, black plastic dildo that filled her cunt.

Startled - and yet still in the sharp after-glow of orgasm, so not really able to be 'worried', especially since her hands were slowly moving the dildo in leisurely inch-long strokes, - Barbi opened her eyes...

...and looked at the same room she'd always known, only now, redecorated in a way that was in keeping with her new identity...

...including the small, framed cross-stitched quote that hung on the wall at the end of the corner-positioned couch, it's words readable from her position.

Slowly, the startled purse to her lips changed into a slow, warm smile of gratitude. "Thank you..." She whispered, softly, reverently...

...and as she began to move the dildo in longer, faster strokes, her eyes slid closed, the biblical quote on her new 'sampler' still imprinted in her mind's eye:

Be not forgetful to entertain strangers; for thereby some have entertained angels unawares.

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

---

© 1997 - 2016 TGstories.

Stories on the "Public Access" pages may be Copyright by individual authors.

Home | Membership | Terms & Conditions | Privacy Policy | Contact

SUMMARY: A girlfriend plots revenge on her boyfriend to get him back for his big-busted lusting but she receives a well-received reaction to his surprise plastic surgery.

Unexpected

---

Part I

By Gunslinger

Ah, sleep.

That which knits up the ravell'd sleeve of care. The suppression of pain and sorrows and thoughts. The Stygian darkness into one might descend, and thus throw off the cares of travails of waking life...

...and which, eventually, ends.

Robert Joseph Cutler snorted twice, only consciously aware of the second one as he twitched and stirred from the depths of an unusually deep and insensate slumber. His body process slowly began to increase rhythm, sliding from nocturnal to diurnal mode as he blearily sat up in his bed, the morning light streaming in through the bedroom window and laying a golden-white rectangle across the rumpled and tossed sheets of the big King-size bed.

Sheets that Julie had picked out, a floral pattern that Bob actually cordially detested, but put up with for her sake. As always, his girlfriend was already up and out of bed, her side cool and empty.

Julie and Bob got along well enough for a couple of long-time lovers and friends, he supposed - but she was a morning person, wide awake as soon as the dawn crested the sky...

...whereas Bob would have been shocked to learn that there was actually a six o'clock in the morning as well.

Bob, as it might have been guessed, was not a morning person. He woke up slowly, his body heavy and dull just out of bed - which went well with a mind that wasn't exactly razor-sharp first thing in the morning, either. Bob, at his best, wasn't exactly a genius, but he was only a shambling, vapid wreck for the first fifteen or twenty minutes of each day.

So, Bob wasn't really awake as he stumbled bleary-eyed from his bed. Not asleep, that was for sure, but not quite awake, either.

Almost every person awakening 'naturally' goes through that period where they're sleep-bemused, not quite sure what's going on around them as their brain teetered on the fine line between wakefulness and resumed sleep. For most people, this lasted for a few minutes, at most. For Julie, it lasted bare second.

For Bob, it lasted quite awhile - and if he didn't teach his half-somnolent body to start it's daily toilet as soon as it's eyes popped open, he'd be likely to just slide back to sleep for 'just five more minutes'.

Stumbling, muttering and blinking, all of them in a rather vague manner, Bob made his way from his bed to the bathroom, his size-nine feet simply following in the footsteps of a hundred other mornings.

Just like a hundred other mornings, he stumbled into the bathroom, the most conscious thought his brain was capable of having concerning whether or not he had to piss.

Since he didn't, he screwed off the top of the toothpaste tube and dabbed a sloppy drip of paste across the top of the toothbrush bristles, a big, broad-shouldered man dressed only in BVDs, his eyes three-quarters closed and his brain about the same. It was habit, not thought, that drove him as he began to brush his teeth, slowly opening eyes staring rather blankly at the mirror over the sink...

Something was wrong. His brain wasn't quite awake enough for him to determine what it was, but it was still able to indicate to him that something wasn't quite right. Not that he was in any sort of pain, of course, since ancient instincts would have triggered an adrenaline rush that would have cleared his sleep-bemused brain. No, he felt fine...

...but, somehow, off.

His usual brushing slowed, his eyes slowly sliding wider as his brain grabbed onto that sense of wrongness, using it like a free-ascent climber might use a jutting spur of rock to haul himself upwards. Using the leverage of that strange feeling, his brain woke up just a little...

...bit...

...more.

Bob screamed.

Foamy spittle sprayed the mirror as his voice echoed in the tile-walled room, the clatter of the toothbrush in the wash-basin almost lost in that startled, hoarse scream of shock and disbelief...

...as his hands came up to hesitantly touch the massive, round breasts thrust smoothly and roundly from his ribcage.

They were most definitely real. He felt the warm, smooth curve of the massive breast through his hand - and his hand through the smooth, distended flesh of the massive, round globe, as well.

Now that he was more awake, he was also consciously aware of the heft and bounce of the breasts, the way they jiggled ever-so-slightly with each breath he took...

"Something wrong, dear...?" Julie asked, blandly, causing Bob to whirl and almost stumble.

"I.. I've got..." Bob stammered at her, staring in wide-eyed shock at her as she leaned causally in the doorway sipping coffee, her lean, supple frame wrapped in a warm, thick, canary-yellow bathrobe, with a matching towel wrapped turban-style around her long, wet mane of chestnut hair. As he stammered at her, one finely arched eyebrow lifted in mild amusement, matching the slight curve of her lips.

"Tits?" She finished, casually, eyeing him. "Yes, I can see that. It would be kind of hard not to, as a matter of fact - even if you were dressed. Still, since they're freakishly huge, ridiculously round, and obviously fake, I don't see what you're so upset about. I mean - they are the perfect breasts, aren't they?"

As previously stated, Bob wasn't exactly a genius, and certainly not first thing in the morning...

...but when your girlfriend is taking your sudden growth of big, basket-ball-sized breasts casually, and she 'just happens' to be a plastic surgeon... well, some conclusions are easier to leap to than others.

"You.. You gave me tits!" Bob stammered, finding it hard to believe he was making the accusation of the woman he'd trusted - but finding it even harder to come up with a plausible alternative.

There wasn't one.

"Why, yes I did." She said, calmly. "You can thank me at your leisure." "Thank you...?" Bob said, eyes bulging. "Thank you? Why, I..."

Bob stopped dead, his mouth hanging open, eyes bulging, one thick finger thrust angrily outward as the other hand still lightly touched one firm, implanted globe.

Julie blinked, her mostly-feigned confidence and calmness cracking. She'd struggled long and hard with what she was going to do, and she'd tried to predict how Bob would take this - but this blank 'statue' routine hadn't been one of the considered possibilities.

Her heart-beat increased even more, and she began cursing herself for a dozen types of fool, realizing now just what her anger and frustration had led her into. What she'd done to the man she'd claimed to care about. How she'd broken her oath, stepped outside of her moral bounds, and drugged her boyfriend into unconsciousness so she could force a huge, round pair of tits onto him - not to mention the long, blonde wig she'd glued to his head with surgical adhesive, after shaving his scalp smooth.

She'd gone too far. Now, Bob was liable to rip her apart with his bare hands...

...and the worst thing was the sickening surety that it was nothing less than she deserved.

"Oh." Bob said, blinking, his voice mild, his expression now one of remarkably mild - and somewhat bemused - surprise.

Julie blinked again.

Bob blinked back at her, owlishly, then looked down at the massive, round tits thrust incongruously from his broad ribcage, looking less out-of-place than one might assume - mainly because Julie had shaved off the thick mat of dirty-blond hair that usually graced his chest.

Julie stared at him, wondering if she'd broken her boyfriend, wondering if she'd pushed him right over the edge and into insanity..

"I.. I'm sorry, Bob..." Julie said, A proud, attractive woman who wasn't used to apologizing, she was now amazed to find her voice thick and muffled as her eyes began to well with tears of shame and self-disgust.

Unable to stand looking at what she'd done to a man she cared about, what her own foolish pride and anger had led her to do, she started to turn away...

...and his hand lightly fell on her shoulder.

"Hey, no - don't cry..." He said - and damn him, he was using that startled, confused voice he always used when she was upset, the one that showed he meant no harm and that his more-then-occasional 'slip' was, as always, unintentional. That 'Hey, now, whatever I did to make you sad, I'm sorry' tone of voice - and given the situation, it only made the shame and humiliation she was feeling over what she'd done that much worse.

HIS hands slipped slowly around her neck as he almost automatically held her the way he always did after they'd fought, his arms draped over her shoulders and crossing just at the top slope of her firm, B-cup mounds...

...only now, it was accompanied by the feeling of enormous, round breasts pressing into her back.

Oddly enough, even though she jumped and flushed, her coffee falling to the tile floor, it was a reaction of surprise, not of disgust...

Actually, having a big pair of warm, firm tits pressed into your upper back felt quite nice. What the hell had she done...?

She wanted to do something horrible to herself for having done this. She wanted to mutilate herself, shame herself, debase herself - whatever it took to make things right with Bob. He might have his faults, but he was a good man, a caring man, and she had no right to do this to him. She'd do anything to make it up to him - but first, of course, she'd get take him back to the office she had on the ground floor of the house, and take the implants out right away...

"So, what's the deal?" Bob asked, calmly enough, snapping her out of her self-hating reverie. "You'll get normal-sized implants if I'm willing to put up with these monsters for a certain set time? Or is this a straight 'see how you'd like' it deal?... in which case you're gonna blast me for even assuming it was some sort of quid-pro-quo."

Julie had considered many of the possible reactions her boyfriend might have, and it had never occurred to her to consider this one:

He understood!

"You...." She stammered, hesitantly - another thing she hadn't done since she was about twelve. "You're not mad?"

Bob smiled at her, gently, the expression looking oddly angelic on a square-jawed face now surrounded by long, loose curls of golden-blond hair.

"Honey, we both know I have a thing for well-endowed women." He said, gently - then glanced down at himself, and spoke in a wry tone. "Not this well-endowed, of course "

Smiling gamely, he looked at her again. "Julie, you're a bright, intelligent, wonderful woman. I wasn't willing to pass such a wonderful woman by, just because she didn't meet some strange 'standard' whose origins I can't explain, but whose effects I can't ignore, no matter how hard I try."

He sighed, shrugging his shoulders - and then blinked, both at the odd sensation the move caused, and at the odd expression that Julie's face took on at the movement. He pushed on, trying not to let his new rack distract him. "Julie, I know my 'big boob' thing drives you nuts, and I try really hard not to bother you with my admittedly-completely-illogical obsession - but I also now that, what with a lot of your business being breast enlargements, sometimes things come out the wrong way, or sometimes I just can't help looking at the wrong place or person. What I hadn't realized was just how crazy it was driving you... but now I think I know just how far you've been pushed "

He stopped, looked ruefully down at the massive globes thrust from his chest, and shook his head ruefully...

...and, for Julie, it was as if that simple act made the whole thing finally come together, her mind 'snapping' back up to normal speed as she realized that, in his own way, Bob was telling her something monumentally important.

He couldn't help the fact that he was attracted to busty women - yet he cared so much about her as a person that he'd not only stayed for more than a year with her despite her 'shortcomings'...

...but he cared so deeply about her that she was also willing to forgive her this!

No. No, it was even more than that. He wasn't just 'forgiving' - he was accepting. He was willing to 'wear' those massive, ridiculous mounds on his body, at least for awhile, if that's what she needed him to do to make herself feel good!

The sheer enormity of his simple surrender rocked Julie to the foundation of her soul, her own mental image of Bob just 'stringing her along' until his 'big-titted fantasy bimbo' came along shattering into a thousand pieces as she finally understood the true depth of his commitment to her.

On some level, she'd always thought that his 'big-tit' thing was somehow voluntary - almost as if he'd woken up one morning and decided that he wanted women to have big tits, just to please him.

Somehow, it had never really struck her that he had absolutely no control over what got him sexually aroused...

She wasn't even aware of the fact that she'd taken two stunned steps closer, almost pressing her body against his newly-top-heavy one as she gazed up at his face in stunned, rapt awe and worship.

It was a look he'd never gotten from his usually self-confident girlfriend, nor was it one he'd ever expected to get.

Uncomfortable with her adoring gaze, he cleared his throat awkwardly.

"The, uh, wig was a nice touch, too..'" He said, more out of a need to generate some sort of response from her than anything else.

It wasn't what he said that generated the response, however - it was the way he said it. Julie realized that she was making him uncomfortable.

She was making the most wonderful, caring, self-sacrificing man on the face of the planet uncomfortable.

Julie stepped back, her face still reflecting her own personal revelation about Bob.

"Come on, Bob..." She said, her voice calmly joyous. "Let's go down to my office and get you set right again."

Bob, however, was looking back at the mirror, watching his partially-turned reflection as he lightly ran his fingers over his massive new globes, his strong fingers making light, uncertain passes over the smooth flesh.

"Well, I don't know if there's any rush..." He said in an odd tone of voice, his slow fondling gaining authority as he continued to play with the massive chest-melons thrust from his ribcage.

Julie's eyes widened. "You're not serious!"

Bob grinned. "Hell, why not? Since I have them anyway, why not have a little bit of fun before we get rid of them?"

Julie hesitated. She wasn't attracted to other women, so the fact that Bob could now probably pass for one didn't 'do anything' for her.

Oh, sure, Bob wouldn't win any beauty pageants. He was broad-shouldered and masculine... but not so much so as to put him outside the range of 'average' women. Most of his masculinity came from the way he carried himself, creating the mental image that he was actually bigger and huskier than he really was. Oh, he made a 'sturdy' woman, raw-boned and with feet and hands too large in comparison - but Julie had seen lots of real women who were comparable...

...and the fact that he had huge breasts and long blonde hair made 'woman' leap to mind, rather than 'man', especially with his somewhat undersized cock and balls hidden beneath his underwear. A hairy, unattractive 'woman', but 'woman' was what came to mind, and she wasn't interested in women.

Bob seemed eager to 'fool around' with the new look for a while, though, and all things considered, could she really turn him down...?

"What did you have in mind...?" She asked, cautiously. Bob blushed. "Well, uh..."

Julie's eyebrow slowly rose, prompting him to go on, now intrigued in spite of herself.

"Since we seem to, uh..." Bob stammered, his face bright red. "...um... seem to have started a, uh... a trend..."

He tapered off, mumbling, leaving Julie frowning for a second...

...until she got it.

Her jaw dropped open. "You want to make you look like a woman?"

"Well... Just for the fun of it..." Bob explained, his flush fading. "I mean, we're going to fix this, after. It just seems to me that, since it happened, we might as well... go with it."

Julie bit her lower lip, her face wreathed in a doubtful expression - but considering she was the one who'd give him the breasts and the wig, she could hardly refuse, could she? "Well.. okay..."

Bob grinned. "good girl. Okay - so... What do you think the first thing a 'woman' like me should do?" He paused, and threw her a wink. "You wanna sit around doing our make-up and talking about the cute boys we know...?"

Janice had to laugh - because he'd used the 'Bobbi-Jo' voice.

'Bobbi-Jo' had been born at a small mixer party she'd taken Bob to. They'd been standing around in the middle of a stuffy group of older doctors and medical company reps, making the usual sort of small-talk that went on at functions like that, plastic smiles firmly in place to hide the boredom while Larry Lentz, a plastic surgeon from the coast, had droned on about how smart Janice was to run her clinic out of her own home, avoiding the trials and tribulations that came from working in supposedly 'Professional' buildings. In specific, he'd been going on endlessly about this Dental Assistant, who - according to Lentz, at least - was about as bright as your average rock, and for some reason had (also according to Lentz) formed a crush on him, forever finding the smallest excuse to drop by and blather on in a Southern accent that he found utterly nauseating.

Completely unlike his own, clipped Oxfordian tones, of course...

It was right about here that Bob had chimed in with: "You Yankees just don't appreciate plain-talk when y'all hear it is all."

In a amazingly good imitation of some southern belle, not only nailing an accent that practically evoked the odor of Georgia Peach Pie, but in a more-then-just-passable feminine voice.

It had stopped Lentz dead in his track, making the rest of the relived and very grateful listeners laugh as the flustered doctor had gracelessly yielded the floor to a marginally more entertaining raconteur.

Later, when they'd laughed about it during the cab-ride home, Bob had admitted he'd done it on a whim - and had surprised himself at just how perfectly it had worked.

Since then, 'Bobbi-Jo' had made occasional appearances, always in the perfect spot to lighten the mood or break the ice, and so Julie had nothing but good memories associated with Bob's use of that voice - and it made her a lot easier to accept what was going on. After all, she was now just giving form to a voice she already knew well enough...

"Geez, 'Bobbi-Jo'..." Julie quipped, eyeing her boyfriend theatrically. "You're one hairy broad, aren't you?"

"It's called the 'Continental Look'..." Bob replied - or, rather, 'Bobbi-Jo' did, the voice carrying just the right amount of haughty scorn, made all the more ludicrous by the thick accent that dripped over every word.

"Well, you're in the Land of the Free, now." Julie shot back, quickly - while part of her wondered why she was finding this awkward and - objectively - very strange situation so...

...exciting?

Yes. She was finding this all sort of uncomfortably arousing. She didn't want to admit it, even to herself, but...

'But' was more than enough, for now. She didn't want to track that thought all the way down to its conclusion - not so much because she didn't know what the final conclusion would be, but because she wasn't quite sure how she should feel about that conclusion.

"Let's go get you shaved..." She told 'Bobbi-Jo', trying to keep her mixed emotions of her face as she took his hand and guided him towards the tub. "Start some warm water running in the shower and I'll get the rest of the stuff we need... Bobbi-Jo."

Obviously, her... 'girlfriend' was feeling the same strange, kinky excitement she was feeling - she could tell that by the way his shorts were starting to bulge as he turned on the water and waited for the hot-water pipes to bring a steady flow so he could accurately adjust the temperature.

She couldn't really call him a 'pervert' for it, since she found herself becoming aroused as well as she gathered up all the razors she could get her hands on. Thankfully, Bob had always had a sort of fetish for keeping an ample supply on hand, despite the fact that he wasn't all that hirsute to begin with, and with fine, light-colored hair to boot.

Still, having all those razors about had come in handy many a time before, when she'd needed to shave her legs and found herself without her own razors - and now it was just a similar situation, albeit for 'Bobbi-Jo', rather than herself.

As she carried the razors back to the tub, Julie didn't even realize that she felt more comfortable thinking of the person sitting on the porcelain rim as 'Bobbi-Jo', rather than Bob.

"Here we are..." She said, holding up her prizes. "Hop on in, Bobbi-Jo, and let's get you all smooth and soft like a woman should be..."

Why had she felt a frisson of excitement when she'd said that? Why, judging from physical indicators, did 'Bobbi-Jo' feel the same way? Was there something wrong with them?

If there was, it was damned lucky that they were together then...

Stripping out of her bathrobe and 'turban', Julie joined her 'girlfriend' in the tub, finding that even the good-sized cock now jutting rock-hard from 'her' crotch didn't alter the strange, exciting 'lesbian' flavor of the encounter - and now Julie, who'd been too strait-laced to try it, understood the whole 'college- lesbian-experiments' many of her dorm-mates had gone through when she was younger.

Julie had already shaved Bob's chest for the implants she'd given him - and since they were adjustable saline implants with fill valves under the armpits, she'd shaved there too, finding it a hell of a lot easier to shave somebody else's armpits than her own.

"So..." Bob said, uncertainly. "What do we do...?"

"You don't do anything but stand there..." Julie told 'her', with a smile. "I'll take it from here."

She started at 'her' feet, slowly working her way up and around 'her' legs as she went, switching razors as she needed to...

...and finding her sense of guilty pleasure rising and rising as she worked to denude her boyfriend of hair, playing out this strange little scenario with growing emotional acceptance of intellectual discomfort.

Bobbi-Jo helped - by doing absolutely nothing, letting her work at her own pace and with her own style, watching with eyes that were a mystery to her.

"There we are..." Julie finally said, tossing the last razor into a basket on the edge of the tub and looking at 'Bobbi-Jo' with a critical eye. "All nice and smooth..."

Without thinking about it, Janice reached out and ran a finger across the smooth, wet skin of Bobbi-Jo's shoulder...

...and then found her hand moving down to caress one of the huge, firm, surprisingly weighty breasts she, herself, had given 'her'.

Bobbi-Jo moaned, softly - a sound that Janice knew, having made it herself on many an occasion...

there was a strange sort of sensation in the pit of her stomach, but Julie didn't stop caressing the huge, round orb of breast-flesh. In fact, she stepped up her touching and exploring, her nervous interest taking up where experience left off, leaving her feeling a sort of 'sneaking an underage drink' excitement that made her feel years young, and very dirty...

...in a very nice way.

"I never realized..." Bobbi-Jo murmured, softly, the tone in 'her' voice revealing how good the sensations from her new chest felt. 'Her' eyes fluttered open, 'her' eyes a mystery as 'she' licked 'her' lips, nervously...

...then leaned forward and kissed her.

Julie had a second's warning, the look in Bobbi-Jo's eyes and the uncertainty on 'her' face having let her know what 'she' was thinking - and giving her that second to decide, once and for all, how to handle the strange sensations and thoughts that were generated by this situation.

So - when 'her' lips met hers, Julie let her eyes slide close, and she kissed him - and truth be told, she kissed him with more hungry passion that she had in far too long, the hot, excited kiss that had been one of the hallmarks of their early relationship, the 'new things to discover about each other' excitement that added the extra dash of spice to a relationship - and here it was again, as she let herself melt against a body that was strangely unfamiliar and yet comfortably recognizable, all at the same time.

It felt... good. Damned good.

As good as all the other things she was experiencing, things she thought would be wrong, but were somehow turning out to be very right. Things she would never have experienced if her lover hadn't been so considerate, so understanding, to accept what she'd done to 'her' - more than just accept, as a matter of fact...

Julie smiled at Bobbi-Jo as they broke the kiss, each of them blushing faintly.

"I, uh... Enjoyed that..." Bob admitted. "I mean - not just the kiss, but... the thought that you were kissing 'Bobbi-Jo', if you know what I mean..."

Julie glanced away - but her smile never wavered as she admitted. "Me, too..." Bobbi-Jo hesitated, then: "I mean.. I really enjoyed it..."

Hesitantly. Nervously. As if afraid of her reaction...

...much as she had been of his, when this whole thing had started. Well, today just seemed to be chock-full of surprises for everyone...

...so she might as well give Bobbi-Jo another one.

Keeping eye contact for a long moment, Julie nervously licked her lips.

"Did it feel good enough to make you want more...?" She asked, her voice husky. Bobbi-Jo looked embarrassed, ashamed...

...aroused and intrigued.

"What..." She said - then had to pause, licking her lips and forcing her voice back into the feminine registers it had so temporarily slipped from. "What did you have in mind?"

Julie's heart thundered as she opened her lips, afraid of the possibilities that might come from suggesting such a bold thing: "Do you think Bobbi-Jo would like to go to that luncheon today?"

Bobbi-Jo's eyes widened, and for a second Julie was sure she'd screwed up, let herself get too caught up in the excitement that she still felt 'dirty' about feeling, much less acting on. Since she'd done this to Bob, she knew that - deep down, on some level she didn't like to look at - the idea of making Bob more feminine was hers, not his, and she was pushing him...

"I.. I don't know if I can... can go out in public like this..." Bob said, in his own voice, his eyes downcast...

...then, in Bobbi-Jo's voice: "But a girl can go ahead and get ready in case she decides to go after all, can't she?"

Julie smiled as a rush of pleasure ran through her. Releasing Bobbi-Jo, she reached past 'her' to shut off the water.

"Let's go get you dressed..." She said in a husky voice, eyes alight with pleasure and excitement...

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

© 1997 - 2016 TGstories.

Stories on the "Public Access" pages may be Copyright by individual authors.

Home | Membership | Terms & Conditions | Privacy Policy | Contact

SUMMARY: A girlfriend plots revenge on her boyfriend to get him back for his big-busted lusting but she receives a well-received reaction to his surprise plastic surgery.

Part II

"Dammit!"

With frustration, Julie tossed aside yet another garment, pausing to run one dainty hand through her hair in frustration...

...and then she realized that maybe she was over-reacting - perhaps even to the extent that 'Bobbi-Jo' would be pissed.

Blushing at the thought of how worked up she was getting of the fact that's he couldn't find any of her old clothes that would fit the feminized boyfriend she'd created, Julie turned around to apologize...

...then burst out laughing.

"What's so funny..." Bobbi-Jo demanded in that thick southern drawl...

...while teetering and swaying unsteadily atop a pair of strappy-style shoes from Julie's closet, 'her' too-large feet literally straining the leather straps of the shoes as she struggle d- barely successful - to maintain her balance on the relatively short two-and-a-half-inch heels. The whole thing was made even more ludicrous by the fact that the red lace panties she wore not only were too tight around the waist and too loose around the hips and ass, but were struggling to contain a very hard, noticeable cock - a task they were patently not designed to do.

Laughing at the image her... boyfriend? ...girlfriend? ...presented, Julie was simply unable to answer...

...and, right then, the weight of her new boobs finally defeated Bobbi-Jo's attempts to remain upright, and with her arms pin wheeling, she promptly keeled over on her hard ass.

Blinking in surprise, she stared ruefully up at her girlfriend, who was bent over and laughing hysterically - and then Bobbi-Jo joined in, laughing as she set about getting the ludicrously ill-fitting clothes off her smoothly-shaven body.

"This... This isn't going.. to work.." Julie gasped amidst diminishing giggles. "none of my stuff is going to fit you."

Bobbi-Jo paused in the act of stripping off the right shoe, looking uncertain, and Julie sobered up quickly, still aware of how.. freakish? ...perverted? ...this situation was, and deathly afraid of screwing it up - because she was precisely at the cusp between loving 'Bob' for who he 'really' was, and loving 'Bobbi-Jo' for what she wasn't, quite.

Bobbi-Jo, however, proceeded to stun the hell out of her with a very hesitantly spoken suggestion.

"Maybe.. Maybe we should, uh.. go shopping..." She suggested, her voice barely above a whisper, eyes mysterious ,almost liquid...

...and Julie suddenly understood that Bobbi-Jo was afraid of freaking her out by wanting to continue this intriguing little 'experiment'.

Julie was feeling rather conflicted herself., She was still finding it hard to believe that her feminized boyfriend was arousing her more than 'she'; ever had as a man - something she wasn't eager to admit to Bobbi-Jo, but something she couldn't possibly lie to herself about.

For several long seconds, Julie remained silent, face slowly going a deep shade of red as she debated what to say. There were two obvious, simple answers to that question - and one that was sort of a spin-off from that question, and the answer that she very much wanted to give, but was deathly afraid of the reaction it would receive.

Finally, however, she went with the 'dangerous' question - because the look in Bobbi-Jo's eyes seemed to say that, no matter what 'her' response to the question was, she'd not hold the question against her.

Taking a deep breath, Julie held it for a second longer - and then took the plunge.

"This.. This might be easier if I, uh, made your figure a little more, uh.. feminine..." She said, awkward, barely aware of the defensive way she crossed her arms over her own bust - smaller than her boyfriend's own implanted rack, a situation n she'd never thought she'd find herself in - much less enjoying, albeit guiltily.

Bobbi-Jo's jaw dropped, her eyes widened...

...and she stunned Julie yet again with: "Really? I ,mean - you can do that? "

Julie slowly let out the rest of her [pent-up breath, and hesitantly smiled. "Well, if you're willing, I could. I mean, my office and OR are in the back and always ready to go> We could, uh.. well, do some quick liposuction for a slimmer waist.. maybe some collagen injects in your, um, behind, and, uh, lips..." She trailed off, afraid to suggest too much...

Bobbi-Jo, to her credit, didn't respond immediately, instead adopting an introspective expression as she considered all the implications of her girlfriend's suggestion.

"Uh.. What, uh, final effects would there be if I, uh, kinda let you go ahead and do whatever you could to, uh, 'enhance' my new look? " She asked, obviously feeling decidedly 'perverted' to be asking, but forging ahead anyway - and with a question that showed he wasn't 'temporarily insane' or otherwise caught up in the 'rush' of a new situation, instead considering all the implications of the future. "I mean, after we decide we've had enough and I want to, you know, look male again..."

Biting her lower lip, Julie gave the question the consideration it deserved, mentally reviewing the 'outpatient' procedures she could use to make her 'girlfriend' even more 'girlish'...

"Well, there's be some minor scaring.." She said - then sighed and shook her. "We just don't have the time to get it done and make it to the luncheon."

Bobbi-Jo cleared her throat - a deeper, masculine sound, since she'd never 'practiced' making that particular noise in a feminine voice. "Um, well, like I said, I wasn't sure I could work up the nerve to go to that - but, if I looked more female, and if we waited after dark, and chose a place that wasn't particularly well lit - well, then, I'd be willing to go out and, uh 'play around' with my new form, uh, if you know what I mean "

Julie did indeed - and it made a damp warmth begin to grow in her crotch. Slowly, she began to smile...

...and Bobbi-Jo smiled back in just the same way.

"Come in " Julie said, not even bothering to look back to see if Bobbi-Jo was following as she began to walk towards the clinic at the back of the house...

...except she was walking awfully fast...

...in fact, you could probably describe what she was doing as a flat-out sprint, a big goofy smile on her face...

...which only grew bigger as Bobbi-Jo, now naked, whipped past her at an approximate hundred miles an hour or so.

Give or take a mile per hour...

Laughing, Bobbi-Jo leapt over the sill of the doorway that separated Julie's clinic from the rest of the house only to realize that, given the speed she was traveling, there simply wasn't enough room to come to a complete stop.

This time, it was Julie who laughed - as Bobbi-Jo 'slammed on the brakes', did a near-perfect cartwheel in the air from her new, top-heavy design, and landed but a few degrees off true on the large, padded operating couch that took up the room.

"Wow - you really are eager " Julie laughed - and she felt a burst of guilty pride and pleasure when Bobbi-Jo laughed back in agreement.

Both of them felt as giddy as.. well, as the proverbial schoolgirl, the excitement of the strange situation in which they found themselves enough to add that exotic element to what had become a rather mundane boyfriend-girlfriend situation. Julie, slowing well in advance of the door to her clinic, chuckled at the thought that all of this had come about because of...

Julie stopped dead in the center of the doorway and quickly wiped the wicked grin off her face.

"Okay, since we know exactly what we're doing, why don't we get you sedated." She said, in her best professional voice.

Actually, she almost never used sedation in plastic surgery, keeping the more powerful anesthetics in her clinic simply because she was socially conscious enough to have registered her clinic with FEMA, the Federal Emergency Management Agency - in times of an emergency, such as flood or disaster, she was available for emergency medical procedures, for which she got a small stipend from FEMA each month, and twice-a-year 'refresher' courses in emergency trauma medicine.

Bobbi-Jo actually knew all of this, or at least, had been informed of it at various points in their relationship - but, as almost could be expected, he hadn't bothered to memorize any of the technical details, simply condensing the information down to the fact that Julie spent two weeks a year at a special training facility in Stoville, Vermont, and she was going to be very busy if there was ever an emergency in the town or, in event of a big enough catastrophe, the county.

The rest of it just sort of.. slipped through the cracks.

So, Bobbi-Jo didn't even think to object as Julie prepared the anesthetic, had Bobbi-Jo lay back, and take 'deep, even breaths' until the world went dark...

* * * * *

"Uh... Bobbi-Jo..." Julie's voice came hesitantly through the darkness that enclosed him. "Uh.. Wake up..."

'Why does Julie sound so worried...? ' Bob wondered, groggily, as he rose through the layers of darkness. "...and why is she calling me...? '

Then it all came flooding back - along with the sensations of 'her' body, including the bloated-sensitive sensations coming from various parts of her body.

"Is.. Are we done...? " She asked groggily, the first word in the male voice, the rest of it in a 45- played-at-33 version of Bobbi-Jo's voice.

"Uh, yeah, I guess..." Julie said, sounding even more hesitant, even more.. guilty...? ...then before. "Unless, you know, you want to undo anything, or anything..."

Mind coming back up to speed, Bobbi-Jo frowned slightly as she pushed herself upright, swung her smoothly-shaven legs over the edge of the bed...

...and stared for a second in silence at the image reflected in the mirror Julie had but beside the bed.

"Oh.. My.. God..." Bobbi-Jo breathed, staring - and then her lips pulled back in a huge grin. "Julie, you're amazing..."

Julie breathed a sigh of relief - and guilty gratitude - as Bobby-Jo rose to her feet and gave herself a long, hard look in the mirror.

Her face was carefully made up. Knowing Bobbi-Jo wouldn't know how to do make-up, Julie had simplified things by working on Bobbi-Jo's inert face while she was under, not only performing a few 'simple' modifications, but applying the best make-up for her new face.

It was a feminine-looking face. Oh, it was still somewhat hard-edged, especially about the jaw - but carefully-located collagen had not only made Bobbi-Jo's cheeks look wider and more smoothly rounded, but had also been used to ease the line of her jaw and 'pad' her nose so that it looked wider, but of a more dainty construction...

...which would have made it look out-of-place on her face, if it wasn't for the fact that her complexion was now a rich shade of chocolately brown, thanks to a painstaking dye-job Julie had performed while Bobbi-Jo was out.

Which also meant that her highly-inflated new lips didn't look out of place on the 'Negro' woman staring in awe at the mirror, lightly running the long, gloss-red Lee Press-On Nails now glued to her fingers across full, somewhat sensitive lips that were done nearly the same color.

More 'padding' had been added to her ass - a lot more, in fact, filling it out to incredible dimensions - and providing an incredibly firm, round shape, 'fully packed' being a literal description.

Her waist was killing her - but she barely noticed the pain, willing to accept it in exchange for what it represented:

A black-leather corset tied tightly around a waist already reduced by liposuction, hauling it inward to a very respectable 18 inches, especially on such a strapping woman.

Even more injections had been judiciously used on arms and legs, providing a smoother contour to the appendages, and making the hands and feet look smaller - nearly dainty - in comparison.

The black leather corset was a style that included 'built in panties', tight, glossy black leather covering the cock that had been pulled back between her legs and taped into place with surgical tape, leaving behind a contour that matched the feminine appearance of the rest of her body.

Julie had even 'done' Bobbi-Jo's 'hair'...

...which is to say, she'd used the surgical adhesive dissolvent to remove the big blonde wig, and replace it with an even bigger, heavier wig that was a huge, long mass of glossy, wavy-black hair that felt in massive waves past, around, and over the new Bobbi-Jo's shoulders - which helped disguise how wide her shoulders were, and made her neck look even slimmer.

In fact, with the one-piece body-suit-style corset and the massive wig, with the collagen injections and the dye job, Bobby-Jo looked like a real woman - an a hell of a lot of woman at that...

...including her massive, medicine-ball-sized breasts, almost painfully taut over the over-inflated implants beneath the skin that stood unrealistically huge, round and firm from her chest, the built-in bra-cups that the leather garment once boasted having been cut away to make room for the massive new boobs.

"You're.. not upset...? " Julie asked, making sure.

"No, no.." Bobbi-Jo said, staring at the image. "I.. I don't look anything like.. like 'me', if you know what I mean. In fact - I look like an honest-to-god woman. there's no way anybody will be able to tell..."

Bobbi-Jo's voice trailed off for a second - and then she laughed. "Besides - I was nervous about having to go shopping for clothes looking like I did before, even 'slightly' enhanced. Somehow, though I have the feeling that the corset and the wig aren't the only things you bought while you were out.. while I was out, for that matter..."

Julie grinned, more at the perceptiveness of Bobbi-Jo then at the horrid pun. "That's right. Why don't we get you dressed...? "

With a lot of feminine-sounding giggling, more than a few false starts, and plenty of unnecessary 'help' that seemed an awful lot like not-so-surreptitious fondling, the managed to get the new woman dressed in the clothing Julie had very carefully picked out for the new woman's persona.

Crisp new dark-blue jeans, ones that fit skin-tight over her incredibly firm, full new ass - and skin-tight over her 'merely passable' legs, thanks to the series of ties that ran down the side of each leg, allowing the pants to be strapped tightly down every inch of her new legs.

The crotch of the jeans fit tightly - actually, almost painfully so - over the unmistakably feminine smoothness that the leather corset below allowed.

The top was also denim, this time a black denim vest with big brass buttons - and more ties up the side. the original lacing had been cut away, however, and once the buttoned halves of the garment were in place, Julie carefully used a small black string to connect each grommet on the front with the grommet on the back of the vest - and as she worked her way upwards, the length of the stringer got longer, to allow for Bobbi-Jo's massive new bust.

By the time the garment was fully in place, the corset was hidden - unlike her new rack, of which the narrowing strips of fabric barely covered a third, denote only a ton of flawless chocolate cleavage being exposed, but the outer sides of the breast visible past the thin strings that actually caused just- less-than-painful indentations in the skin.

A wide, black-leather collar with black leather tassels in a western motive around it went around her neck - and quite neatly guaranteed that there was no sign of an Adam's Apple.

The final touch in the outfit was the boots - and there Julie had a stroke of pure genius.

They were just slightly less than knee-high, made of supple black suede with wide black leather strap- and-buckle closures running down the outside of each...

...and they were Western-style boots, with a two-and-three-quarter-inch heel that was wide and blocky, allowing Bobbi-Jo to balance in them as easily as the cowboy boots she'd worn many a time before - and yet they looked completely feminine on her tall, incredibly endowed new body.

Bobbi-Jo looked like a big strapping black woman with 'passable' features everywhere - and more than passable ass, lips, and outrageously over-sized breasts.

There was no way on earth that even the most suspicious transsexualphobe would be able to 'make' Bobbi-Jo. She was tall, broad-shouldered and athletically built - but no longer so much so as to pass outside the range of 'normal'.

Her bust line, however, was another story - and that was good, because even the last, lingering doubt in anybody's mind would be laid to rest at the sight of the enormous bust straining to burst free of it's denim confinement.

"So...? " Julie asked, mouth dry. "Ready to hit the town...? "

Bobbi-Jo smiled at her, full lips curving wickedly as she asked an unexpected question in reply: "Say, honey-chil' - jus' how kinky y'all willin' to get, heah...? "

* * * * *

"...takes one look at my package, and passes out cold." Gino finished his ribald account of 'Linda meets the Monster One Eyed Snake' with a crude grasp of the sizable bulge at his crotch.

Danny laughed coarsely, his acne-scarred face almost ghost-like beneath his shock of carrot-orange hair. Next to his shorter, broader, and darker-complexioned companion, Danny looked like the ghost of a scalped man, especially in the relative darkness of the 'bad side of town', the streetlights not only few and far between, but many of them smashed or otherwise defunct. Gino, in black jeans, black t- shirt black leather jacket and black 'shit-kickers' almost disappeared completely - except for the startling white of his big, easy grin, brighter even than the white denim pants that Danny wore with his beloved Celtics jacket.

"I tell you somethin' man, we gotta have the biggest damn dicks in the whole damn town." Danny laughed...

"Y'all wanna prove that, boys? " A voice said out of the darkness of the alley to the right of them.

Neither of the young men showed any sign of alarm or fear at the sudden voice. Part of it was their on-the-street upbringing, ingraining the 'cool and casual' attitude so deeply into them that they'd rather die than look scared.

The other part of it was the thick, sexy, syrupy-slow southern drawl it was spoken in - and the undeniably feminine nature of that drawl.

"Now, that depends on who's askin'..." Gino said, grinning in the direction of the shadowy figure in the alley-way. Some light from the over-store apartments across the street trickled into the alley on an angle, just barely lighting some of the dark-skinned woman's face and what appeared to an unbelievable massive head of dark, curly hair - but it was hard to tell in the poor lighting. From what little the guys could see of her face, she could be 'okay' or just below 'okay' - and there was no way of knowing what the rest of her looked like, not with dark skin and clothes lost in the shadows...

...but then she took two steps forward, the light falling square across her and allowing the boys a good look at the woman who'd spoken.

"Holy shit..." Gino whispered, eyes going wide as she took in the whole of the tall, dark woman standing with a sexy, one-hand-on-the-hip pose just outside the mouth of the alley.

"Saints preserve us..." Danny whispered in agreement - and his eyes were riveted the same place as his companion's.

On the enormous, dusky orbs straining mightily against the denim vest that just barely enclosed them, most of the huge breasts exposed to their rapacious eyes as they all-but-drooled over the tall black woman smiling seductively at them.

"I'm lookin' for some boys who be as well endowed down there as I am up here..." She said, gesturing at her massive knockers. "Two huge tits deserve two huge dick, ain't that right, boys? So, y'all just bulshittin' 'bout what you got hidin' down there, or you real, and lookin' to have some fun with what we got heah? "

Gino swallowed, heavily. "How.. How much we talkin' here...? "

The huge-breasted black woman laughed, actually as tall as Danny and several inches taller than Gino as she looked down at them from the added two inches from her heels.

"Why, honey-chil', what a thing to say." She said, grinning widely. "I ain't looking to make no money, honey - I'm just lookin' for some real down-home fun. Jus' down this heah alley ways there's a little turn into a little dead-end that's got privacy. You boy's interested...? "

It could very easily be a set-up. Huge-Boobs could have a big, burly friend or two waiting in that nice, private spot, just waiting to see what they could take off the two young men...

...but even that wasn't enough to deter them> this was, after all, a one in a life-time chance.

"Sure thing..." Gino agreed for both of them, and the woman graced them with one, last smile before she turned away...

...presenting them with a fine view of full, firm ass nicely packaged in denim as she moved with somewhat of a mannish stride into the darkness of the alley.

After the slightest of hesitations, the two men followed her taut, swaying ass into the darkness, struggling to maintain the customary mask of cool indifference as their hearts raced...

...but the increase in pulse-rate had very little to do with fear.

Eagerly, the two men hurried along, finding the corner of the little cul-de-sac mainly because it was well-lit by the second-story windows that framed all three sides of the little space, with blank walls below two of the windows, the third wall boasting an old metal fire-door that looked like it's take about a hundred pounds of blasting gel to get open.

The huge-breasted woman strutted into the center of the well-lit area, her boobs so massive that they were even visible from directly behind - but much more visible as she slowly turned and presented them front-on...

...especially since she'd unbuttoned the vest she wore, letting it hang open so that her massive, obviously surgically inflated boobs thrust huge, round and proud into the cool night air.

"Well, boys...? " She asked in a smoky, teasing voice, doing a little hip-sway that caused the massive endowments to jiggle and sway enticingly. "Aintcha gonna get started? "

It was literally an offer the boys couldn't refuse. With an incredulous glance shared between them, they eagerly stepped forward, literally butting heads for a second before they decided that Danny got the right one, while Gino got it's starboard mate.

"Oh - gently, boys, gently.." She admonished as they eagerly gripped her boobs - and, a second later, when their fondling was still to rough: "Gently - or I pack 'em up and take 'em home..."

That was enough reason for the boys to lighten their touch, their movements more awkward as they tried to do something that they'd never considered in connection with sexual contact with a woman before: Be gentle.

"Hey, now - the one of you who makes my big ol' boobies feel the nicest gets hisself a hell of a blow- job, while the other jus' gets to tit-fuck these sweet babies..." She said in a voice roughened almost to masculine registers by the pleasure she was feeling from their now feather-light caresses.

Sharing another, more competitive glance, the two friends set about trying to outdo the other in pleasuring this woman's massive, dark breast-flesh, their touch light and gentle as they glided hands over dark, smooth flesh and remarkably tiny nipples...

...which Danny began to lightly lick and suck on his side...

...which caused Gino to duplicate the action on her other nipple, using his lips and tongue in unison to create soft, damply warm touches across not just the dark nipple, but working his way around the breast in an outward spiral.

"Oh, no - that's nice.." The woman sighed, her own hands coming up to begin lightly stroking two rapidly enlarging bulges in two crotches. "C'mere carrot-top, an give Bobbi-Jo your best kiss..."

Hands never leaving the massive orb of flesh that was temporarily in his custody, any straightened and tilted his head...

...and her full, firm lips came down on his, and he began kissing her, passionately.

He was surprised to feel her hesitate - and was even more surprise to realize that what he'd taken for light shivering in the chill night air was actually some sort of unease or nervousness - but then those thoughts slipped from his head as she began to kiss back.

Gino, meanwhile, was continuing to lightly nuzzle on a massive mound...

...while his hands slid downwards and around, until they were filled with incredibly firm derrière packed into skin-tight denim. he began to massage and squeeze her full, firm ass as he continued to lick and suck her breast, while Danny kissed her passionately while fondling the other ebony mound. She really seemed to enjoy it.

All of it.

For several minutes, this little routine went on - and then, for several minutes more, it continued with Gino now kissing her incredible lips, while Danny fondled her ass.

"Cock-sucker lips..." Gino thought, eagerly - and he softened his kiss, making it deeper and less frantic, verging on downright loving - in fact, the most tender, pleasurable kiss he had ever given, not out of love or affection, but because he wanted the full, firm lips that were now pressing against his to be wrapped around his admittedly big cock.

Finally, they broke the kiss, and she gently disengaged from the two men...

"Damn, you boys are both the bomb..." She said, huskily, her voice sounding oddly quivery. "Why.. Why don't I say that the bigger of you two get's that there tit-fuck, since feelin' those packages o' yours, I don't think I could get the bigger one in my sweet ol' mouth..."

Danny and Gino shared a look. For all their bragging, they'd never 'compared' size to see who was the biggest - and now, each was secretly wishing that the others'; was the larger...

Hesitantly, both young men stripped out of their pants and underwear, individual cocks already rock- hard and ready.

Bobbi-Jo gasped, eyes widening at the sight.

Danny, taller and slimmer, had a pale cock that was a good twelve inches long, and just above average girth, all sprouting from a tiny patch of rusty pubic hair.

Gino, however, boasted an ever longer endowment, one that tipped in at a good sixteen inches in length - and it was easily twice the circumference of his companion's organ.

"Well, now - that answers that..." The huge-breasted woman said, slowly sinking to her denim-clad knees in front of Danny, full lips parting as she stared, mesmerized, at the huge cock dangling in front of her face...

...and then she shook her head, and backed away a few inches, eyes lowering. "Sorry.. I.. I thought I was ready to.. But I can't, and..." She said, voice muffled. Danny felt disappointment and anger mix inside him and begin to surge....

...until another feminine voice sounded out of the darkness.

"I thought you might chicken out, honey " The slender, sexy brunette said, stepping out of the shadows. there was an odd look on her face, an almost greedy look. "Uh Maybe, um, you might, uh.. I mean, since they're so big, and he's so big, while I, uh, take care of the promise and "

The huge-breasted woman was staring at the woman in shock/. "You.. Are you suggesting that I let big-boy here tit-fuck me while you suck his friend off? "

The brunette flushed - but nodded.

Danny, eyeing her trim form, decided that it would be a fair trade, even if her lips weren't nearly as 'dickable' as the black woman's - but she was still hot...

The black woman's grin slowly resurfaced, as wicked as that of her friend.

"Yeah. Yeah - Let's do it.. "S he said, slowly reclining on her back after first folding up her vest and sliding it behind her, buttons carefully kept out of the way. She smiled up at Gino...

...while the other woman knelt before Danny, hesitated a split second, then leaned forward.

Gino, however, wasn't watching his friend - he was dropping down onto the black woman's stomach, his huge, hard cock sliding into her cleavage.

"Okay, baby, spit..." He said in a husky voice, matching action to word as he began to spit on his hot, throbbing cock - and after a second's hesitation, she followed his example, until the entire length of his massive organ was covered in their mixed saliva...

...and then, with a look of pure bliss on his face, he put a hand to he outside of each breast and pushed them together, encasing his warm, wet cock in firm, warm breast-flesh.

He began to pump.

She needed to do nothing but help hold her massive boobs in position as he tit-fucked her, hips bucking eagerly as the sound of a long, wet, slurping blow-job came from his right.

"She's a better cock-sucker than me, anyway." The black woman told him in an odd tone of voice - like that of somebody who knows a joke you don't, actually. "This woulda bin my first, 'cept I didn't have the guts."

Well, maybe she didn't have guts - but she had tits, and a whole lot of that, so Gino was completely happy as he pumped frantically into her cleavage, cock throbbing as he drew closer and closer to orgasm...

...and right over, his cock become hypersensitive enough to cause him to gasp loudly in mixed pleasure/pain as he pumped a load of hot cum all over the upper slope of her massive tits, over her chin...

...and right into the mouth she'd opened at the last second, choosing to let his cum splatter into her mouth for a quick taste. She closed her mouth as Gino stopped pumping and slumped slightly, her lips compressing in hesitation a second before she swallowed...

...and then she licked her lips, slowly and sensuously cleaning them of cum.

"Damn..." Gino said, spent, as he climbed off the strange, huge breasted woman. "You're..." He never got the chance to finish the sentence. Instead, he was summarily dismissed.

"Thanks for the cumshot, honey." The brunette said, a trickle of cum running from her lips as she pushed Gino aside. "I'll take it from here..."

Both men watched, wide eyed, as the Caucasian woman began slowly and sensuously licking the cum from her ebony friend's massive tits, leaving the darker woman shuddering in pleasure.

"What the fuck...? " Gino said, hardly believing his eyes.

The Caucasian woman paused long enough for a quick explanation. "She's lez, I'm bi. I've been trying to talk her into bi, but she ain't ready - so you guys can take off now..."

...and then she lowered her face back into the woman's massive cleavage.

the two men stared a moment longer, then turned and walked away as they zipped up their pants - and wondering how they hell they were going to get anybody to believe this story.

Since Julie had wisely covered the little red 'Recording' light on the camcorder with a strip of electrical tape, neither man noticed the video camera set up in the shadows - and so they had no idea that there story was going to be easily believed, since in less than twelve hours the video would be on the internet.

They'd be less than pleased by what they'd see at the end of the video clip, however...

* * * * *

"I can't believe we did that..." Bobbi-Jo said, working her mouth at the sour tang that filled it from her instinctive taste-taste - and vowing that she'd never, ever let a man cum in her mouth ever again.

All things considered, it was an odd thought - but, all things considered, it was also the most normal thought she'd had in a while - depending on how you looked at it, of course.

"You didn't mind me, uh.. 'cheating'? " Julie asked.

"What's good for the goose..." Bobbi-Jo replied... then, as Julie began to slide downward, asked in a puzzled tone. "What are you...? "

There was no need to finish the question - since Julie yanked down Bobbi-Jo's jeans, then used a pocket knife to part the heavy leather beneath, then - more carefully - the tape...

...allowing Bob's good-sized cock to spring up from between Bobbi-Jo's legs.

With the tape still rolling, Julie set about giving her huge-breasted she-male lover an even better blow- job than the one she'd given copper-top...

* * * * *

Over the next six years, eighteen sequels to the infamous tape showed up on the internet.

By the last one, Bobbi-Jo was downright gorgeous - and no longer 'pre-op'. Even the trademark breasts were brought down to 'mere' basket-ball-sized by the last one...

...which was okay, since they exactly matched Julie's in size and shape.

The funniest thing was that nobody except the two of them could share in the joke: After all his begging and pleading, Julie finally got 'bigger' tits...

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

---

© 1997 - 2016 TGstories.

Stories on the "Public Access" pages may be Copyright by individual authors.

Home | Membership | Terms & Conditions | Privacy Policy | Contact

SUMMARY: While using a magic amulet to change himself into a woman, he is surprised when his roommate comes home who has different ideas about what type of woman he is to become.

Unexpected Opportunities

---

By Gunslinger

Naked in the center of the ring of candles placed on the hardwood floor of the living room, his body glistening with the sweat raised by uncertainty and doubt, Gary tightly gripped the amulet that had cost him so much in money and effort, closed his eyes, and stated his wish in a loud, trembling voice.

"I wish..." He said. His heart was pounding with ridiculous hope that this might actually work, as he lay one hand on the computer-generated image he'd created using Curious Labs' Poser program. "...to become, physically, a real-life, living woman as close as possible to this representation, and with all the skill and abilities such a woman might have accrued during twenty-one years of life in an average American town during the Twentieth century."

"What?!"

Shock rapidly turning to horror, Gary spun around - and stared wide-eyed at the short, well-muscled man standing in the doorway, suitcase dangling from one ham hock-sized fist.

"You want to be a... a girl?" The mobile fireplug of a man said, his close-cropped goatee seeming to bristle as he gaped at his roommate in amazement.

"Al!" Gary said, squeaked, in horror, starting to climb to his feet as he sought for something - anything - to say. "You... You were supposed to be in Vegas for the weekend..."

Halfway through the word 'weekend', Gary's hesitant alto began to climb sharply upwards - as a powerful trembling seized him, accompanied by a strange tingling sensation. Unable to control his body, he slumped back down to the floor, the long-sought amulet slipping from nerveless fingers and skittering across the high-gloss floors as his body began to change.

"Holy... shit..." Al gasped, his slab-sided muscles suddenly not up to the task of holding his broad, squat frame upright as he watched his roommate writhing on the floor, body changing. He slumped heavily against the doorframe, unconsciously shaking his head in disbelief.

The only sound during the next two minutes and thirty-six seconds was the involuntary grunting and whispery skin-against-wood sounds of Gary writhing on the floor, punctuated by the sound of Al's suitcase dropping to the floor as the dark-haired man continued gaping at his transforming roommate.

"Guh... Gary...?" Al said, usually deep voice several octaves higher than usual as the person laying on the floor finally finished writhing. "You... You... You..."

With a low, almost sexual moan, the slim, supple individual in the ring of candles slowly rose to unsteady feet.

"You're a woman!" Al finally managed to get out, eyes bulging as he took in the new form his now-female roommate wore. The exceedingly shapely feminine form.

If an exceedingly talented geneticist had been able to cross the DNA of Helen Hunt with that of Paris Hilton, garnished with a touch of Dolly Parton, you might end up with the woman Gary had become.

She was 'petite', both in height and build. Topping out at a bare five-four, she had the same exceedingly fine, delicate bone structure boasted by Paris Hilton - but layered with well-toned, mildly athletic musculature that added a smooth 'Helen Hunt' vibrancy to the trim-hipped, well-defined body...

...that boasted a pair of firm, round Partonesque breasts. A good double-D cup, those breasts were firm in a 'natural' way, not the artificial spherical roundness of surgically enhanced breasts, and tipped with large, dark, frank nipples atop domed areola.

The face atop the slender neck was heart-shaped and almost impossible 'cute', in a sexy sort of way. It boasted full lips below a small, up-turned nose that was, in turn, flanked by large, hazel eyes that seemed to be smiling constantly. In many ways, the face below the pixie-ish mop of straw-blond hair resembled that of Jennifer Lien, the woman who played 'Kes' on Star Trek: Voyager, except with fuller lips and longer, lusher lashes.

"You... turned yourself... into a chick?" Al squeaked, not sure whether what Gary had changed into, or the very fact of the transformation happening at all, startled him the most. On weak-feeling legs, he staggered over to where the amulet lay and picked it up, his stunned gaze switching from the amulet to the new woman, and back.

"Al, be careful with that..." Gary said in her sweet new soprano, glorious hazel eyes wide in fear that overrode the humiliation and shock of the situation.

"You used this..." Al said, hefting the amulet, "...to turn yourself... into a woman?"

The new woman flushed at the mixture of shock and derision in her roommate's voice.

"Al, look, just put down the amulet and let me explain..." Gary said, taking an unconsciously graceful step forward atop her dainty new feet...

...and Al recoiled back from her, as if her 'perversion' was somehow catching. "Stay back, you... you sissified freak!" He said, nearly hysterical.

The new woman's slender jaw clenched. She'd specifically waited until Al was supposed to be away for the weekend to attempt the transformation, knowing the rather narrow-minded man fate had forced on her as a roommate wouldn't understand her desire to spend a weekend experiencing femininity.

"Look, Al..." She tried again, realizing - to late - that she should have fought back her impatience, and used her first wish to establish a new lifestyle that would have allowed her to afford to live alone. "Just give me a chance to explain."

She took another step forward...

"I just wish you'd do exactly what I tell you to!" Al shouted, right on the very edge of homophobic hysteria...

...until both of them felt the tingling shudder that ran through them. Al blinked... then slowly began to grin.

"I... just made a wish, didn't I?" He asked, looking down at the amulet he still held. "You... have to obey me now, don't you?" "Al - just give me the amulet..." She said, shuddering at the thought of what had just happened.

"You have to obey me, don't you?" Al demanded. "Answer me - truthfully!" "Yes, I do." She helplessly found herself assuring him.

A grin began to form on Al's acne-scared face. An unpleasant grin.

"Well, now..." He muttered to himself, thoughtfully. "That puts a whole new spin on things..." "Al - don't..." Gary said, suddenly feeling her stomach tighten in fear.

Smiling, Al lay the amulet down on the end-table...

...while giving her instructions.

"You will not touch this." He said. "You will not attempt to use it, gain possession of it, or have somebody else use it on your behalf. Do you understand?"

"Yes." Gary replied, half sigh and half whimper. Al was a narrow-minded, chauvinistic, muscle-bound young man with a streak of petty cruelty and a very lewd, crude and rude sense of humor - but he wasn't stupid, more the pity. His wish was well thought-out, denying her any chance of avoiding whatever evil thought had caused that unpleasant smile.

"Al, just stop and think a minute." She said, hesitantly, taking a step backwards. "Don't do anything rash..." "Moi?" Al asked, an image of hurt innocent. "Why, sweet-cheeks, I'm just going to help you out."

"Oh?" She asked, warily, not buying the act for an instant. "How's that?"

"Why, by not letting my unexpected presence make you back out of something you so desperately want." Al said, grinning. "You obviously aren't happy as a guy, and want to be a chick, so I'm going to help you do that, Gary."

"No, I don't..." She tried to dissuade him.

He, however, ignored him, striking a thoughtful pose. "Hmm... 'Gary' doesn't really fit that body of yours now, does it? Perhaps we should have something more... suitable."

Gary's gut churned, and she tried to head him off: "Well, since you brought it up, I thought I'd use 'Jeri' - you know, like Jeri Ryan...?" "Hmm... you really did think about your girlie little new life, didn't you...?" Al said, a hard edge to the teasing tone of his voice.

Gary shivered. Obviously, Al couldn't even begin to comprehend why any straight, red-blooded American male might want to try a female life, temporarily.

"Well, 'Jeri' still doesn't quite capture the... the essence of the new you." Al said. "From now on, you will use and answer only to the name of 'Cheri Pye', or a variation of it." He said with undeniable satisfaction, spelling her stripperesque new name for her.

"Oh, Al - please don't do this..." The newly-christened Cheri said, wincing at the artificiality of her new moniker.

"Oh, no, 'Cheri'..." Al said, smirking. "I fully intend to help you experience every little bit of being female. To which end, we should probably get you dressed..."

Since she was busy wincing at the tone of his voice, Cheri missed the conflicted look in her roommate's eyes as she looked at her new form, finding it a very attractive, feminine one - and finding that attraction uncomfortable because she was 'really' a man...

...and that psuedo-homosexual discomfort was expressed as anger at the source of it, something that would have explained a hell of a lot to Cheri, perhaps even provided a method for dealing with it, had she noticed.

She hadn't, however, and by the time she did look at Al, the golden moment had passed.

"You get yourself some clothes for that new body of yours?" Al asked with an exaggerated disgust whose intensity she didn't comprehend.

"Yes." She replied, curtly, determined not to add any fuel to the fire of his disgust for her 'perversion'.

"Well, bring it out here. Let's see what we've got to work with..." Al commanded - and thanks to his wish, she had no choice but to comply, going into her room and unlocking the old sea-chest she'd bought at a garage sale for the specific purpose of having a good place to hide the evidence of the 'perversion' she been planning - hoping, wishing - for all this time.

Now, that source of happiness and excitement had become sour ashes in her mouth as she carried the clothes she'd spent so much time secretly - and happily - shopping for out to be scrutinized by the architect of her unhappiness.

"Oh, no, no, no!" Al said in mock horror. "This isn't nearly feminine enough...!"

Perhaps, for some of the more 'casual' clothes, that might be true. After all, there was nothing obviously feminine about the unisex jeans, sweaters and shorts. The other clothes, though, the stuff she'd looked forward to wearing - how could it not be feminine? Long, flowing dresses, elegant gowns, lots of lace and silk and satin...

"Not one mini skirt!" Al said, still in that mock tone of horror. "No spandex at all! An look at these shoes! Not a single pair with high heels!"

Well, three-inch heels did count as high - but not to Al.

Al, who was unconsciously making things worse as he projected his own ideas of 'femininity' on the situation. After all, it was the very fact that he found the woman-who-had-been-male attractive that was making him so uncomfortable - but despite being intelligent enough to realize that, he couldn't quite make the leap to the fact that his 'preferences' about how a woman who looked like Cheri should dress and act would only exacerbate the situation.

Nevertheless, it never quite occurred to Al that he should question his assumptions about how anybody who looked the way Cheri did now should dress - because that might have forced him to confront the very fact that, deep down, he knew his view of femininity was skewed.

Al was no more eager to admit, even to himself, that he was wrong than the average guy - and, unfortunately, the situation he found himself gave him an 'easy' target for the unwanted, unacknowledged guilt and self-doubt that the situation stirred up.

"It look like we need to go shopping." Al said, gesturing at the most 'feminine' clothing, according to his narrow, two-dimensional views. "Go ahead, put those on."

Cheri, of course, couldn't refuse. She could, however, argue...

"Al, please - let's just slow down and talk about this..." She said, struggling to clasp the bra that went with the lace-trimmed panties she'd pulled on around her trim hips.

"I don't want to slow down!" He shouted, 'inexplicably' angry - because he didn't want to face the reasons why he didn't want a chance to review this logically.

Cheri, however, didn't understand that. She was, quite understandably, too focused on her own situation to psychoanalyze Al's reasons for what he was doing.

Which was caused her to do the worst thing she could possible do in the situation - continued arguing, hence continuing to exaggerate the very guilt that he didn't want to be feeling.

"Come on, all - I'm sure you've sometimes wondered what it would feel like to be somebody else." She said, tucking the scoop-necked white blouse into the knee-length a-line skirt that it didn't really go with. "maybe you've never thought about - wondered about

- what it would like to be female, but surely you can understand the urge I felt..."

"No, I can't!" Al shouted, trying more to convince himself rather than her. "I've never wanted to have a body that would make other men want to have sex with me! That's just sick!"

"Being female just isn't about having sex with men!" She shot back - wrongly.

If she'd quite honestly pointed out that she hadn't been planning to have any sex with men, it might have been different. Although she had purchased a dildo in order to 'experiment', she didn't have any plans to have sex with men, finding the idea, if not repugnant, at least uncomfortable.

However, her phrasing almost directly attacked Al's narrow view of the world, in which women were just that: Sexual objects, existing solely to please men.

Well, to please Al - who couldn't care less about other men's pleasure...

..and who, to defend his own view of the world had to start treating Cheri as the 'two dimensional' person who really served only to provide him with sexual pleasure, theoretically...

...and by assuming that, and treating her that way, only reinforced the fact that finding a feminized man sexy was 'wrong'.

"Until I tell you otherwise, I want you to act perpetually happy, excited, and interested." Al instructed her. "Whatever it is you are doing at any given time, I want you to act as if it is something you want to do, something you are enjoying doing, and something you are eager to do again. Do you understand...?"

"Of course I do, Al!" She said, brightly, smiling - which was the least thing she felt like doing, but she hadn't been give a choice in the matter.

"Good." Al said, shortly. "Let's go."

Thanks to the orders Al had given her, Cheri had no choice by to obey, 'happily'. She remained 'happy' through the entire ordeal - worse, excited and interested, to any outside viewer.

Helplessly, Cheri followed Al to the mall - and right into a store called 'Naughty but Nice'. It was a store supposedly for 'spicing up' romance - which, as expected, meant 'sex, sex, sex.'

This was the store Al took her to - and it was from this store that she 'eagerly' and 'happily' purchased her new wardrobe.

Including the skimpy, revealing little 'French Maid' outfit that she wore right out of the store, after telling the clerk that she 'loved' the way it showed off her sexy body.

Inside, she wasn't sure if she was more disgusted, humiliated, or angry - but none of that showed on her face as she flounced, bounced and giggled her way through the mall, Al trailing behind her with the bags full of merchandise that, on his orders, she'd happily maxed out most of her credit cards buying.

Which meant that Al had to be considerate enough to pay for all the make-up she purchased from the cosmetics department from the national chain department store - where she was forced to 'cheerfully' undergo a makeover, practically begging the woman at the small in-store salon to 'make her even sexier'.

Given the way she was dressed, she drew a lot of attention - which made Al on smile broader as her watched her happily being made-up, knowing how much she was squirming around inside, and enjoying teaching the man she'd been a lesson about the 'dangers' of femininity...

...and, all the while, becoming steadily more attracted to the increasingly sexualized woman Gary had become - and made all the more internally uncomfortable by his growing arousal.

Which was the direct and immediately catalyst for what happened - what he did to himself - later that evening. After all, it was that discomfort that caused him, after they got back home, to start drinking fairly heavily.

The reasons for the Maid Outfit he'd had her buy was obvious, as he had her do the 'feminine' thing, and start cleaning the house - and the sight of her scantily clad, attractive figure puttering around, bending over, reaching up, and all the other movements necessary for the cleaning she was doing only aroused him further.

So, he ordered her to bring him a beer...

...and another...

...and another...

...and so on, until he was well and truly squiffed.

Which was what brought him to drunkenly pick up the amulet and begin berating her for what she'd done.

"You... you made yourself into a woman!" HE declared in drunken disbelief. "I mean, you now want to.. to have sex with men, just like any other woman. Don't you?"

"Oh, I sure do!" She agreed, brightly - even as she shuddered at the sudden wrenching sensation in her mind as her sexuality was reversed, making her sexually attracted to men - and sexually attractive, as well.

"You like dressing like a woman, walking like a woman, acting like a woman!" He shouted, still not realizing that, as he said it, it became true.

"You sick bastard... I mean, bitch..." He said, shaking the amulet in the air. "What sort of homo pervert would make himself into a woman?"

"I like being a sexy woman!" She replied, brightly - as per his previous orders.

"I know, you freaky weirdo." He agreed, taking her cheerfulness at face value, to drunk to realize why she was so 'happy' about her situation. "I mean, a real man woulda used this to get himself a huge cock, or something..."

He snorted, shaking the amulet in the air.

"You'd never hear a real man like me doing something stupid like saying 'I wish I were a huge-breasted, cock-crazy blonde bimbo like you...'"

Of course, because of AI's earlier orders, Cheri was able to stand by with a big smile, thoroughly enjoying the sight as AI was, indeed, transformed into a 'huge-breasted blonde bimbo' who was quite a bit like Cheri - but with some major differences...

* * * * *

ONE MONTH LATER

"Now, now..." Cheri said, with a smile. "Don't get too frisky on me, Jack."

She said it with a smile, enjoying taking her time with the strong, broad-shouldered young man whose lap she was sitting on.

"I know..." Jack said, slipping his hand off her thigh - and back onto her knee. "Hey, if all I was looking for was meaningless sex..."

With a chuckle, he jerked his head in the direction of the sliding door leading from the porch into the living room, and Cheri chuckled with him.

"Right." She agreed, uncoiling herself with a feminine grace from his lap. "You want another beer?"

"Sure - sounds grate." Her boyfriend agreed, not without some regret at letting the supple young woman leave his lap.

"Back in flash." She told him, flashing him a smile - that, unlike a lot of the ones she was forced to give, was actually heartfelt. As she padded towards the kitchen, she had to shake her head as she considered the outcome of the whole situation.

All in all, she was doing pretty well for herself. Aside from the fact that she always appeared happy, even when she wasn't, she was otherwise living exactly the life she'd been interested in exploring - that of a normal woman. Though, of course, this wasn't quite as a temporary thing as she'd expected, it was nevertheless quite acceptable, not being inherently better or worse than life as a man...

...for her.

Her sister, however, might have disagreed - had it been possible for her to do so.

With a grin, she glanced over at where the young man who's name she hadn't caught sat on the chair, head back and a look of bliss on his face as Cheri's 'sister', April Pye, eagerly and happily slurped away on his cock, her unrealistically firm, round, basketball-sized breasts swaying and bouncing with her energetic, skillful movements.

Aside from longer, curlier, bleach-blond hair, her tremendous sexual appetite, and her huge breasts, April was identical to her twin sister. She had the same always-cheerful persona, the same taste in sexy clothing, the same 'cleaning and serving' feminine urges...

...and the same inability to touch the amulet and so put an end to her feminine existence.

The amulet lay where April had dropped it during the writhing and twitching of her transformation, just under the couch. As the two sisters took turns cleaning, they cleaner right around it, unable to touch it or use it in any way, and half-hoping, half-afraid one of the men in their lives might find it.

If Jack found it, things would probably work out all right for everyone, though it was unlikely that April would become the man she longed to be again - or that Cheri would meet the same, now-unwanted fate.

However, the results of any one of the endless stream of men April entertained finding the amulet, and making a wish...

Well, Cheri thought philosophically as she got a couple of beers and headed back out to where a warm, kind, considerate man awaited her, they'd just have to wait and see what happened.

After all, having discovered just how good life as woman could be through a 'horrible accident', Cheri had learned the truth: Any new situation was either good or bad, depending on what you made of the unexpected opportunity...

Walking past where April was helplessly slurping on a cock with eager abandon, Cheri decided it was time to finally let Jack into a more... physical... relationship.

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

---

© 1997 - 2016 TGstories.

Stories on the "Public Access" pages may be Copyright by individual authors.

Home | Membership | Terms & Conditions | Privacy Policy | Contact

SUMMARY: When a thief breaks into a house on New Year's Eve, he discovers that the owner home and has some magic up his sleeve to turn the would be burglar into a blond party going bimbo.

Uninvited Guest

---

By Gunslinger

It took Billy exactly six seconds to pick the brightly-polished Schlage.

Less then four seconds after the soft 'snick' that signaled his success, the twenty-six year old burglar had rolled his lock-picks away in their leather case and slipped into the house, closing the heavy dark-oak door behind him with nary a sound.

Crouched just inside the door, his slender, agile body clad all in black, Billy Frankel was little more then a shadow in the darkened foyer - six foot, three inches of hard-packed muscles as solid as rock, yet made apparently insubstantial by the cloak of shadows that hid him.

Straightening, Billy pulled the black 'ski mask' up, leaving it covering his thatch of dark hair, but uncovering a face that only the faint pockmarks of acne kept from near movie-star perfection - the acne marks, and the hard, cynical cast to what have been mobile, expressive lips.

Silent, almost eerily graceful atop the crepe soles of his black sneakers, Billy moved across the marble floor of the mansion's foyer towards the first door on his right. A hard, bitter smile crossed his face at the sight of such expensive decor in the foyer, and he was already mentally adding up his share of the take from Willie the Weasel's little tip. With the numbers continuing to mount in his head, the limber thief reached out and pushed down on the brass lever-style door-handle, slipping into the room beyond...

...and the mathematical gymnastics he was performing robbed him of the razor-sharp instincts and edge that might have made a difference. Instead, he was already a good half-dozen steps into the small, well-appointed study before it began to register on him that it was wrong - all wrong.

The house was supposed to be empty, it's old-but-wealthy owner away on a New Year's Eve honeymoon with his young-and-sexy new bride... but here, ensconced in a high-backed leather armchair, was a handsome middle-aged man, eyeing him speculatively over the balloon snifter of brandy he held.

One foot lifted for a step he didn't take, Billy stopped dead and stared incredulously at the man, both face strange and nearly mystical in the flickering gold-orange light of the fire that was the room's sole source of illumination.

"What fortune..." The man said in a dryly amused voice. A slender, dapper man dressed in a dark-colored smoking jacket, he lifted one eyebrow ironically as he continued speaking to himself. "Here I was, thinking to myself how truly boring this New Year's Eve is compared to that of my younger days - and then, by providence, an uninvited guest drops in to enliven my evening."

Turning his attention directly to Billy, the dapper, handsome man smiled thinly. "Well, my young friend, welcome to Seventeen-Sixty- Three East Oaks Lane."

Even as the momentary shock that had held him immobile wore off, Billy cursed himself roundly - for the address of the house he was supposed to have broken into was Sixteen-Seventy-Three East Oaks Lane.

Well, it was obvious that he wouldn't be breaking into any other house on East Oaks Lane, nor it's vicinity - assuming he even managed to get out of this predicament with his freedom still secure. With that highly self-serving thought in mind, Billy made full use of his lightning-fast speed and remarkable agility to spin rapidly and dart out of the room.

So caught up was he in the mental exercises of his escape, it took a good two seconds for it to register on his racing mind that he hadn't budged so much as an inch, moved so much as a muscle - he was still standing, perfectly still, his one foot still lifted precipitously.

"What the fuck- ?" Billy blurted out, belligerence overriding either confusion or fear, at least for the moment.

"Tut, tut...!" The man said, lowering the glass and waving a finger. "Such language! As for what is going on here - well, you happened to try and burgle a house belonging to a man who, on any other evening but this, would have been a decidedly second- rate mage."

Now it was confusion that took the forefront: "Huh...?"

"Mage, my dear boy - a wielder of magic. A sorcerer. A wizard - and, unfortunately for you, New Year's Eve is one of those mystical times, a boundary-point, where anything and everything can change. Oh - and any magic user's power increases tenfold. Enough so that I can simply will things to happen, and they do. Thusly:"

Suddenly, Billy found himself moving again - but without volition. It was as if he were merely a puppet, with an unseen controller pulling the strings. Against his will, the limber thief found himself walking to stand directly in front of the dapper, older man.

Fear had definitely made itself known in the tangled mix of emotions running through Billy at that moment...

"What the hell are you doing?" Billy cried, hating the high-pitched tinge of panic threaded through his voice, but unable to stop it. "How the fuck are you-?"

The man waved his hand - and Billy's voice vanished, mid-sentence. Billy's mouth kept working - but not a single sound escaped, as if he were a TV that had suddenly been muted.

"Vulgar, and repetitive. How... common." The self-proclaimed mage sniffed, disdainfully. "Well, my young acquaintance, usually I'd never think of using my powers on a person without their permission - but when that person is engaged in the burglary of my home, well... then the rules change, my dear boy. Oh yes, indeed they do."

Billy had no control over his body. This man controlled his movements, overriding all the hard-packed muscle in Billy's frame with a twitch of the finger, and silencing him with the wave of a hand...

...and he was obviously not only incredibly powerful - but vindictive, as well.

If he had been allowed to, Billy would have started pleading frantically to be spared whatever 'fate worse than death' the man held in mind.

The man slowly began to smile - and there was absolutely nothing pleasant in that wolfish grin.

"New Year's Eve - a night where one year become the next, where the present becomes the past, and the future the present. A night of change, I would say - and so, I think a change is in order for you, too, my boy."

The man chuckled, without mirth, but in dreadful anticipation.

"Since it is quite obvious that you've made it your life's pursuit to take, without recompense..." The man said, leaning forward and fixing the immobile thief with a mirthless smile, "...then I feel that, for the coming year, you shall be dedicated to a life of giving - without recompense. Tell me - do you think that fair?"

Suddenly, the restriction of speech lifted from Billy - and he immediately put his re-found voice to good use: "I'm so sorry and I didn't mean to rob you and please don't hurt me, I'll try and be good, just don't hurt me, please, don't hurt me, don't hurt me, don't hurt me..."

Annoyed as Billy's frantic babbling settled into incoherent pleas for mercy, the man waved his hand again, restoring silence.

"Not only a thief, but a coward as well - and one so concerned with pain..." The man snorted - then suddenly brightened. "Oh, I say! Yes! My dear boy, believe me, you have no need to worry about pain. No - I assure you, the new life you'll find yourself in will be concerned with pleasure..."

Billy most certainly didn't like the tone the man put into that last word, nor the evil chuckle that came after. Though still mute, Billy's lips were now forming an endless repetition of the motions for the words, 'please, no'.

"Pleasure. Yes," the man continued, "and since you are so obviously crave and without honor as to be undeserving of being called a man - it will be as a woman of pleasure you will start the new year."

Now Billy's soundless lips formed the plea 'just kill me' - but soundless pleas didn't even have to fall on deaf ears to be ignored.

"Though I hardly believe that you agree, I am a fair man..." The owner of the house said, shrugging slightly. "Therefore, I am going to be fair, and let your own thoughts and views on women define what your new life is going to be like."

Billy wasn't quite sure which urge was stronger - that which wanted him to kill the mage, or that which wanted him to kill himself. At this point, either would have been preferable.

Rising, the mage began to walk towards the door. Though the older man's shoulders were hunched, his head lowered as he walked with the slow, vague step of a man deep in thought, his distraction didn't weaken his hold over Billy. Helplessly, horribly, the rangy thief found himself following the mage, pacing his mystical new master without any volition of his own.

As the mage walked through the previously darkened mansion in which he resided, lights turned themselves on as he approached. With Billy helplessly following behind, the mage walked up the wide, sweeping stairway to the second floor, and began walking down a hallway lined with bedrooms.

At one of the doors, Billy watched as the door swung itself open and a full-length mirror, in a brass frame, floated out of the room and took up position behind him. A few yards further along, another door swung open and a second mirror joined their little procession.

Reaching the end of the hallway, the mage twitched a finger to open the door, then went in the room. The room was a large, well-furnished bedroom, and hanging on the wall opposite the door was a large, gilt-framed mirror that went from the floor nearly to the ceiling. As Billy helplessly found himself approaching the mirror and standing before it, the two other mirrors following him flanked the one on the wall, forming a sort of three-way mirror that gave him a view of his body.

A complete view of his body, in fact - for, as Billy helplessly came to a halt in front of the mirror, all his clothes simply vanished.

"Very well..." The mage said, tapping his fingers together meditatively. "Now, the spell I am going to cast on you to... inspire you to your new lifestyle is, in theory, quite simple. You will become a 'pleasure empath'. That is to say, whatever pleasure you cause to be felt by any other person, whether it be physical, emotional, or intellectual, you will also feel. As I'm sure you can see, this means you will have a very 'selfish' reason for causing people pleasure - and yet, from an external viewpoint, it won't seem that way, since all the motivation is internal. To an observer, it will seem as if you are giving pleasure for it's own sake - which I wager is a far cry from anything you have ever done before. Now, there remains only the new form you will wear while performing this service for the world, a form which you, yourself, shall choose."

Gesturing at the mirror, the mage gave the final, fateful instructions to the burglar: "Since you now know what your fate is to be, and how it is to function, I want you to image the most ideal feminine form suited for accomplishing this task - the female body you, yourself, believe would be most capable of creating pleasure of any form in other people. When you have created this image of the 'ideal woman' - you will find yourself compelled to have me make you that very woman."

Hearing these words, Billy immediately tried to blank his mind, to think of nothing at all - but it was an impossible task.

Not necessarily because of any magical influence, for there was none on his imagination itself. No, it was simply that, having had it called to mind, he was incapable of banishing the thought of what his 'perfect pleasure-inducing woman' would be like. He couldn't help but think of it - and when he did, that was when the magic kicked in, overriding free will and forcing him to reveal this mental image to the mage.

No - not just 'reveal' - for the magic was much more humiliating than that.

Billy found himself compelled to ask to be turned into this woman, found his voice restored for the humiliating, horrifying task of requesting to be made a woman...

"Shorter..." He found himself saying, even as he fought with every ounce of will at his disposal to keep the silence that had been imposed on him - in vain. "I need to be a good foot shorter..."

Helplessly, Billy could only watch in the mirror as he rapidly lost stature. It was like watching some sort of reverse time-lapse of his own history, as he regressed in size back to a height he had surpassed in high-school.

However, he didn't become younger, just shorter - maintaining the same basic build, merely scaled down, with the same age apparent on the simply smaller features of his face.

He was still male - but a diminutive male, and that alone was enough to curdle his guts with horrified self-disgust. It was only going to worse...

"I need to be slimmer." He helplessly 'asked' of the mage. 'You know, not so... heavily built. Athletic, but slender...' "Ask, and ye shall receive..." the mage muttered, grinning - as he waved his hand, and brought it about.

Helplessly, Billy could only watch as his bone structure became considerably finer. Wrists and ankles narrowed considerably in proportion, as did the width - but not the length - of feet and hands that became downright dainty. At the same time, his waist narrowed sharply, while hips and shoulders followed suit, albeit to a lesser degree.

As horrifying as that was, it was worse for Billy to watch his face change. Though the 'delicate' body was bad enough, it was manifestly male despite it's 'effeminate' new bone structure, still hairy and with male genitalia.

The face however... Once the bones had lightened and sharper, the features becoming finer and better defined, he could have almost passed for a woman in a head-shot photo - indeed, with some make-up, his new face would have looked completely feminine.

Which merely meant that his new, fine-boned feminine facial structure was merely 'leading the trend'.

"Get rid of the body hair..." Billy helplessly requested, continuing to describe his own 'fantasy woman' - and his worst nightmare, applied as it was to him. "...and more of my height should be from my legs..."

As 'easy' as saying it, it happened. He could only watch through captive eyes as his body hair faded away, leaving his skin smooth and supple and feminine - especially the tautly-smooth skin of legs that grew proportionally longer to a body that became even smaller and fine-boned to maintain the same height despite the lengthening of now quite attractive legs.

Now, despite the lack of breasts and the male genitalia, Bobby was looking definitely 'girlish' - and he was just getting 'warmed up' to the image helplessly created in his mind.

"My hips need to be just a little bit wider, and my waist a little bit narrower," Bobby named the 'minor' changes, then moved on to a more major alteration: "but my ass has to be a lot bigger, rounder, and firmer..."

With that, he felt his spine curve outward a bit more at the back as his masculine pelvis widened and tilted, providing a set of trim-yet- feminine hips below a slimmer waist - a pair of hips to support the absolutely mind-boggling heart-shaped ass that quickly swelled into existence from what had been previously flat masculine buttocks.

"I need long, wavy, blonde hair..." He said - and, as his hair pilled down around his shoulders, he requested - and got - a different shade and a few other alterations to style and shade, until his feminine face was surrounded by a wavy mane of brassy golden blonde hair.

By this point, it was obvious as to the 'type' of woman being formed from his old body. Bobby was rapidly becoming one of those toned, cute/sexy women who were so incredibly perky and vibrant that, consequently, people couldn't help but like them.

However, there were still a few 'minor' points of change to be made...

"Breasts..." He said, already wanting to simply curl up and die - and, knowing what was about to happen, wanting it to happen fast. "Nice big, round, firm tits."

His previously male chest began to bulge outwards. At first, it was simply small, conical shapes rising from beneath slowly swelling nipples, but with shocking speed the growing mounds gained mass and definition. From pert cones they swelled out into firm domes, pushing further and further out from the slender new ribcage in a display of feminine endowment, until the taut domes of firmly soft breast-flesh rode like half-cantaloupes from his chest, a good triple 'D'-cup in size...

...but it wasn't enough.

"Bigger..." Billy helplessly breathed. "With bigger nipples..."

After the brief pause, the breasts resumed their rapid growth, this time abandoning domes for spheres as they swelled a good four cups sizes larger, now looking like whole cantaloupes hung from his chest - but more mouth watering and delectable than any fruit could ever be. the melon-sized breasts rode high and firm on her athletically slender body, and each was tipped by a large, thick, and prominent pink nipple.

"Perfect." Billy said, and had those breasts been on anybody else then himself, he would have agreed with his helpless comment without reservation - but seeing the 'chest melons' on the new form he wore was another matter.

"Now I need a tight new cunt and a high, perky female voice, and I'll be done." Billy said...

...and it was the last words he spoke as a man, as the deed was done, leaving Bobby completely female.

"Not quite done yet, though:" The mage said. "You'll need clothing. What would the woman you now are wear...?"

In a high, bright-sounding new soprano, the new woman had no choice but to recite a suitable ensemble for her new form and lifestyle - and with each item described, it came to be, until her new form was not only completely dressed, but accessorized and made-up, as well.

The new woman she'd help-less had the mage make her over into was dressed in a mid-thigh length faded denim skirt that wasn't terribly tight - and, as a consequence, rode up easily if she bent over, to reveal the plain white panties that 'innocently' encased her mouthwatering ass.

Also in the 'inadvertently sexy girl-next-door' vein was the white cotton shirt she wore, which should have been pretty basic - but it was perfectly sized for her trim new frame, which made it skin-tight across the curves of her huge, firm new tits, quite of bit of which were on display not only in the form of a mouth-watering canyon of cleavage displayed by the open top buttons, but by the straining gaps between the buttons that were fastened over her full new bust.

Keeping in with the oh-so-approachable theme of her new look, she forewent high heels in favor of a pair of powder-blue and white sneakers with pale blue 'bobby-socks' - but with her proportionally long, toned legs and spectacular ass, heels would have been almost redundant anyway.

Her hair had been pulled back into a simple ponytail with a blue 'scrunchie', and the hot-pink plastic 'exclamation mark' earring dangling from each lobe of her dainty new ears went well with the gloss-pink lipstick and pastel pink eyeshadow that was all the make-up her fresh-faced new look required.

She was the perfect image of the 'All American Girl', perpetually perky, and particularly approachable - the type of girl who was, by turns, either some lucky guy's lover, and every other guy's 'female friend', tomboyish enough to be fun to hang out with even when you weren't having sex with her.

In short - exactly the type of girl that Bobby thought the most likely to bring the most pleasure to the most people.

Or, rather, that Bobbi thought - since her new denim purse also contained new identification for Roberta Shaw, aged twenty-one.

"There we are..." The mage said, with a smile. "All finished. All that's left is for your debut - and, since this started with you being an unwelcome guest at my new year's Eve vigil, I think it only fitting that it end with you being a most welcome guest at somebody else's New year's Eve party. As I am quite sure you must have noticed on the way in, the house two doors down is in the middle of holding such a party - hosted by the son of the owners, a handsome and rather popular young man of about your own age. I'm sure he'd be very happy to have a young woman such as your self show up at his door, uninvited or not. So, toddle of young lady..."

"Please, don't make me do this..." Bobbi begged sweetly in her new soprano, even as her body turned and headed out of the room, walking with a cute/sexy bouncy stride. The mage, having no interest in being 'pleased' by the woman that had been a man, had exempted himself from the magic, so she was still able to speak her 'real' emotions, at least when it was just the two of them - even if she had to do it in a cute, sweet voice. "Please, I'm so sorry I tried to rob you, but don't make me live like this..."

"Oh, this is hardly the worst punishment I could have handed you." The mage pointed out, reasonably. "By it's very definition, it's a fate that will bring you as much pleasure as you bring other people, which I think is eminently fair. Trust me, my dear girl - it could have been much, much worse..."

With that vague threat left hanging in the air, he followed her as her body helplessly carried her down the stairs and towards the front door.

With every step she took, her new gender was only reinforced by all her senses. With every bouncy, perky step she took, her huge new bust jiggled and swayed within the tight confines of her shirt. With every stride, her feminine hips swiveled and swayed, and the smooth muscles of her shapely new legs flexed and contracted in a smoothly sensual rhythm.

As the door opened for her, the chill December air swept in, stirring the hair of her long, golden mane, and bringing her large new nipples to a nearly painful level of erection - a new and not entirely unpleasant sensation that was nevertheless excruciatingly humiliating for the transformed individual forced to endure it.

Helplessly, Bobbi strode out into that chill night, her dainty new feet turning her towards the house that was lit up and lined in front by cars of the party guests.

For the second time that New Year's Eve, she headed towards a house on East Oaks Lane to be an 'uninvited guest' - but this time it was her who was the one going to suffer for it, while the owner of the house would benefit, as would all his guests...

...and as she crossed the threshold of the mage's house and went out into the world, even the ability to scream or beg was lost, her full, pink-glossed lips helplessly forming into a chipper smile as she headed over to the house, lifted one dainty hand, and knocked on the door.

After a short pause, the door was opened by the party's host, who was indeed a fairly handsome man about her own age, with a mop of auburn hair and an engaging smile - a smile that widened in pleasure at the sight of the cute, buxom blonde standing on his doorstep.

She knew the smile was one of pleasure - because she felt the pleasure. It thrummed through her body, especially as the young man's gaze focused on her bulging chest - and, helpless to stop herself, she found herself taking a deep breath and pulling her shoulders back, thrusting her already expansive chest even further outwards.

'Helpless', not in the sense of the mental control the mage had exercised over her body to make her move, but 'helpless' in the sense that she did it almost instinctively, to increase the pleasure she was feeling - and by the time she realized what she'd done, the extra amount of pleasure made her uncertain, hesitate to take it back, almost forcing her to hold that 'look-at-me!' position as she tried to convince herself that the pleasure wasn't worth the humiliation she felt at being ogled as a sexual object by a man...

...and long before she could let her shame and disgust force her to lessen her own pleasure by trying to slump and 'de-emphasize' her new endowments, the smiling young man was inviting her to 'join the party', introducing himself as Ted Leahy.

She wasn't under direct mental control. She wasn't being 'puppeteered' into walking into the house. Knowing that, she hesitated, planning to turn down the offer, planning to run away and try and find the least humiliating version of her new life that she could handle...

...and experienced the flip-side of her new curse.

As she hesitated, he - correctly - though she wasn't going to accept, and so felt disappointment.

She found herself feeling that disappointment as her own. That sinking feeling in her gut, the unhappy tightening of the muscles of her jaw - all were caused by his reaction to her unresponsive pause - and so, in a very real way, was caused by her, herself...

...and she found herself quickly reacting to get rid of that feeling and returning to the 'humiliating' state of euphoria she'd just been in.,

"Gee, thanks!" She said, brightly, feeling the words bubble out past her lips practically unbidden, babbling out the first things that came to mind to release that knot of unhappy tension and replace it with that horribly addictive sense of euphoria. "Gee, I didn't know you'd be so cute!"

A new wave of increased pleasure washed over them, and she found herself introducing herself with her new name as she jiggle- bounced into the house, hating how... happy she felt over all she was doing.

That didn't make the emotional pleasure she was feeling any less real, any less powerful - or any less addictive.

When stepping into the house, her body seemed to move with a mind all its own, slipping sidewise to slip past him as if the entranceway was actually much tighter than it really was - and 'coincidentally' dragging her breasts, lightly but noticeably, across Ted's body.

The sensation was electrifying. Not only did she feel the physical pleasure of her sensitive nipples lightly compacted under the pressure - but she felt both Ted's physical and emotional pleasure from the brief contact.

Compared to those three sources of pleasure, her emotional disgust and horror stood no chance of gaining the upper hand.

Like some drug addict, she was 'aching for a fix', everything about her new body attuned to wanting - needing - that pleasure - and, unlike drugs, she was able to supply herself with unlimited amounts of the 'stuff'.

Just like most drug addicts, she knew that she shouldn't 'shoot up' with pleasure, knew it was wrong, was bad, was something she should stop - but, like most addicts, she, quite simply, couldn't resist the wonder feelings of pleasure.

In short, she was an addict with an unlimited supply of her drug of choice - and she promptly, horrifyingly set out to 'overdose'.

"Mmm..." She found her full lips saying, curving into a full smile as a natural response to the pleasure she was creating in him, and getting back in a sort of empathic bio-feedback. "Cute - and firm-bodied, too. I like you, Ted..."

She found herself licking her lips provocatively...

'I'm acting like some sort of little nympho slut...!' She thought to herself in horror, as she bounced-jiggled down the hall, the action making her skirt flutter around her incredible ass, giving the following man enticing, arousing glimpses of her ass, creating even more pleasure - and forcing her to take the thought to the logical conclusion: '...and loving it!'

Everything she was doing felt so wonderful that she couldn't bring herself to stop. Far from it - she was unwillingly/willingly try to increase the wonderful pleasure she was feeling...

...and succeeding.

"Oh, lotsa people at the party..."S he said, brightly, peering into the living room from the protective shadow of the hallway, well short of the thronging, noisy room of festive young men and women. She turned to Ted, feeling his pleasure at the sight and sound of her feminine new body rolling off him in waves, to be absorbed and experienced by her unwillingly receptive mind. "I don't think I'm quite ready for that, yet. Is there someplace you and I can go that would be more.. private...?"

As she found herself asking that leading question, she also found herself lightly sliding one finger of the exposed cleavage of her massive chest, while her other hand was lightly caressing the denim covering her feminine new crotch - all while she was staring fixedly at Ted's now-bulging crotch, and topped off with her licking her lips suggestively.

She couldn't stop herself. it wasn't that she'd 'decided' to try and seduce Ted to increase her pleasure - it was the fact that Ted, all on his lonesome, had found her arousing - and the more aroused he became, the more aroused she became, which led to her making him even more aroused...

It was practically pre-ordained. If any man was the type of guy who would find her sexy, she'd helplessly find herself finding him equally arousing, in direct proportion - and she wasn't the one with any sort of control.

Ted, of course, wasn't one to start exercising any sort of control either, not with 'Little Ted' firmly in control of his body, responding to the hot, busty little blonde's blatant advances.

"Sure - we can go up to my room..." Ted said, huskily.

"That'd be great..." She bubbled, cheerfully - the hand against her crotch now kneading firmly against her sopping cunt beneath the denim, her own traitorous new body experiencing the unwanted - and incredibly powerful - sensation of feminine arousal.

Deep inside, the 'original Bobby' was screaming, struggling in vain to stop herself from what was obviously going to become a sexual encounter - but her entire body was trembling with not only emotional and physical pleasure, but with sexual desire as well...

...and it wasn't only as powerful as Ted's, but more powerful - for in addition to what he was feeling, her body was producing pleasurable sensations all its own, from the wonderful liquid warmth thrumming through her lower torso to the sharp, tight points of pleasure from her diamond-hard nipples.

She was now a full-fledge 'pleasure junkie' - and nothing in the world could have stopped her from getting her ultimate fix.

Hot, horny - and humiliated - she followed the handsome young man up the stairs, her entire body crying out for sexual release, while only a small part of her mind was able to silently scream out in horror at what she had become.

It wasn't nearly enough to stop her, and she gave every outward sign of being a totally willing participant as she followed Ted into his bedroom and shut the door.

She needed sex. She couldn't help herself - Ted was horny, and so she was, too - and the 'bleed' arousal from him had created 'true' arousal in her, however unwanted the feminine sexual desire she might have felt might be.

Worse - she wasn't just horny. If she was, she might've been capable of wanting - finding - a woman to help satisfy these desires. Thanks to her empathy, however, she was turned on by the exact.. same.. things as Ted.

Obviously, Ted's sexual desires were focused on what he believed to be a perfectly heterosexual pairing,. Him and her - and so that's the 'homosexual' arousal she was feeling, as well...

"Do you like my body, Ted...?" Bobbi asked, her hands going to the buttons on her straining blouse. "Do you like my big, round boobies, Ted?"

"Yeah - oh yeah..." Ted agreed, hungrily, as she pulled the blouse off to expose her massive new bust.

"Then touch them, Ted - play with my big, firm tits..." She said, huskily - and it wasn't the type of offer Ted was going to refuse.

As his hands came up to meet her massive breasts, she moaned in unbridled pleasure, the wonderful sensations he was feeling mixing in with the wonderful sensations she was feeling, increasing the pleasure to nearly inhuman levels. Even as her dainty new fingers worked at stripping Ted's shirt off, she was nuzzling his neck and caressing his chest and arms in a helpless effort to spread and increase the pleasure she couldn't stop trying to make him - and hence, herself - feel.

As he continued to caress and fondle her sensitive, pleasure-inducing new tits, she managed to strip off his pants - and then, with regret, she pulled slightly away from Ted, feeling the drop in pleasure - and forced to move right along, to reestablish the new level of pleasure that she hated herself for so badly wanting.

"To you like my ass?" She asked, slipping out of her skirt. "Do you want to fondle my ass, Ted...?"

This time, she didn't wait for a response - she knew damned well that he did, and she responded on that level, literally throwing herself into his arms, letting him lift and hold her by cradling - and squeezing - her amazing new ass as they staggered backwards towards the bed. Somehow, he managed to kick off his shoes without dropping her or falling over, and soon they were sprawled on the bed, his hands working at lowering her plain cotton panties even as her hungry fingers all-but-tore his pants off him, so that he'd be capable of meeting her next request: "Fuck me, Ted! Fuck me good and hard!"

Her entire body was crying out for just that, her nerve ending tingling with excitement, her new cunt wet and ready - both a direct result of, as well as the originating cause of, the rampant erection the now-naked young man sported.

Rolling over onto her back, the now naked new woman spread her long legs invitingly, waves of desire and need overwhelming the self-disgusted scream of her male self buried beneath all that pleasure.

"Fuck me, Ted - fuck me now!" She cried - and the most humiliating, most sickening part of the demand was that she really, really meant it.

Ted didn't disappoint her. As eager as she was to fulfill the demand, he rose up and positioned himself in the open vee of her smooth leg - and filled her tight wetness with his full hardness.

He thrust into her, hard and fast - but not without some measure of control, vigorous rather than brutal. He was consciously attempting to modulate his rampant lust, to live up to his own self-image as a wonderful lover...

...and because she was receiving her pleasure directly from his own, it was as self-fulfilling prophecy. Even as he continued to fuck her, hard and fast, the intellect fading in the face of all that pleasure was stunned to realize the curse-and-blessing of her new fate:

Whether she wanted to or not, she was going to enjoy being a[pleasure addict. She was incapable of experiencing 'bad sex' - because as long as the man fucking her enjoyed it, whatever his 'style' or lack thereof, he'd be a wonderful lover to her...

"Yes, oh yes..!" She cried in abashed pleasure, the wonderful ecstasy building past what should have been humanly bearable levels. "God, you're fantastic, Ted, you're wonderful! You're fucking me like I've never been fucked before!"

True enough, all things considered...

Even above their own moans and cries, even above the rhythmic squeaking and banging of the bed, even through the heavy door of the bedroom, the sound of the chanting voices from the floor below became audible as they began the count down to the new year - and, unintentionally, the countdown to Bobbi's first female orgasm:

TEN!

"Yes!" She screamed, body quivering in exquisite ecstasy as her cunt held Ted's cock in a silken embrace. NINE!

"God Yes!" She screamed, her own hands working the softly taut surface of her own breasts as the pleasure built and throbbed in wondrous waves.

EIGHT!

"Harder.. harder.." She begged, bucking her womanly new hips to increase the depth - and pleasure - of penetration. SEVEN!

"Harder.." She slurred, voice fading as 'thinking' gave way to 'feeling'. SIX!

"Hurur.." She moaned-gasped sharply, her body trembling and beginning to flail in unbelievable pleasure. FIVE!

"I'm... FOUR!

...just... THREE!

...about... TWO!

...to cum!" ONE!

The orgasm exploded through her, ripping through thought and consciousness in a blaze of cold white fire, burning through every neural pathway and every synapse, shoving the whole world away in a place of pure, unadulterated pleasure.

In that single, orgasmic instant, Bobbi knew the final truth of tonight's lesson.

Whether or not she wanted to, especially in her new form and function, she was most certainly going to have a... HAPPY NEW YEAR!

BACK TO FUN ZONE

Home | Membership | Terms & Conditions | Privacy Policy | Contact

SUMMARY: A nerd creates a fictional girlfriend to impress the guys, but soon finds that he is quickly turning into his mythical creation.

Unmythical

---

By Gunslinger

The cool autumn wind gusted suddenly across the wide, grassy park, stirring the few remaining leaves on the trees. The unexpected gust snatched at a Day-Glo orange Frisbee, deflecting it from its intended trajectory. The small plastic disk curved over the pedestrian path - and impacted on the back of the slim, short young man walking down the path, head lowered.

As he felt the impact, Greg jumped in surprise, dropping the books he carried under one arm. The short, slender young man with the dark hair and thick, horn-rimmed glasses spun around, fearing an attack.

Instead, he saw Jack Thompson, one of the Frisbee players, jogging in his direction. Looking down at the garish plastic disk, Greg figured out what had happened. Reassured he wasn't about to be bullied about, as had happened many a time during this freshman year at college, he knelt and began collecting his scattered books.

"Hey, sorry 'bout that, Nerdy." Jack said as he picked up his Frisbee. The muscular, disgustingly handsome jock smiled down at the diminutive bookworm.

Greg straightened. "That's 'Hurdy', Jack - and you know it."

Jack laughed. "Yeah, whatever. Hey, Greg, congrats on finding yourself an off-campus place. How's life in your own bachelor pad? Needed all that privacy for your girl, right?" He laughed again. "Especially while you inflate her."

Greg's jaw tightened as Jack laughed at his own wit. Greg had moved into a cramped, over-priced bungalow out in the middle of nowhere because of all the pranks and pratfalls the Jack - his ex-roommate in the dorm - had pulled on him.

It was probably all his bottled-up anger and his deep-seated urge to wipe that smug look off Jack's face that caused him to say what he did.

"Actually," Greg said, feigning a casually sincere attitude, "I did get my own place because I wanted some privacy with my new girlfriend."

Jack blinked in surprise, then laughed. "What - Wendy, that girl from the computer club?"

"No," Greg lied airily. "Her name's Colleen. She'd an exchange student from Ireland. Quite the babe, too." "Oh, really?" Jack said, skeptically.

"Yup." Greg said serenely, then walked off, leaving Jack staring after him indecisively.

And as he walked away, his heart pounded, and his blood felt like it had turned to ice in his veins. What the hell had he been thinking? Now Jack would set out to prove that the mythical girlfriend was just that - mythically. The scorn and humiliation was only sure to get worse when Jack proved that there was no 'Colleen'.

Then Greg slowed, becoming thoughtful. Jack was a jerk, a jock and a jack-ass. But he wasn't a genius. Wasn't Greg smarter than Jack would ever be?

Of course he was. A smile began to form on Greg's lips. Suddenly, it sounded like fun - Greg was sure he could outsmart the stupid jock. And the rewards! Not only would Greg have the private enjoyment of knowing that he could fool Jack any time he wanted, but the longer he could maintain the myth, the higher Greg would rise in the estimation of other students. They'd stop seeing him as a nerd if they thought he had a gorgeous girlfriend. All Greg had to do was find a way to create the hoax. He could make it last a few weeks - maybe as long as a month - and then have 'Colleen' go back to Ireland.

Walking down the street, Greg laughed in delight. It was just too perfect, and he couldn't believe he'd never thought of it before. He'd show them all. He'd create the perfect hoax.

He walked the rest of the way home in a way that, for him, was very uncharacteristic. Head held high, a slight grin on his face, and a spring in his step.

* * * * *

As soon as he arrived home, Greg started to prepare for the inevitable assault on 'Colleen' that was soon to come. His first step was to boot up his computer and log on to the internet.

He had decided that any red-blooded American boy with a drop-dead gorgeous girlfriend would have at least one photo of her in his wallet. To that end, he began to cruise the net, mostly the many sex-related pay sites he subscribed to. He decided that, since he was dating a fantasy woman, he might as well make her a fantasy face. So, he picked six different models, and downloaded every photo of them he could find, ending up with nearly two dozen pictures of each woman.

Logging off, he opened Adobe PhotoShop. He winnowed through the photos, looking for shots that matched in terms of angles and sizes. Winnowing down the files, he then began to use his skills to create a composite of the best features.

From one model, he took the shape of her face, with its high cheekbones, rounded chin, and straight nose ending in a pert, upturned way.

From a second, he took the full, ripe red lips and edited them in place. Another model supplied the startling green eyes with long, dark lashes.

Yet another provided the ears, perfectly sized and shaped, and the earrings that went with them.

The final model supplied the thick, luxurious mane of flame-red hair. Not the coppery-orange color so common in red-heads, yet not the brassy, false red of a dye job. Greg was lucky enough to have found a model with the rare, but glorious, shade of deep, glossy red.

When he was done, he had a stunningly sexy woman whose picture looked utterly authentic. He printed this out on thick, glossy paper stock at the correct size, thankful for his high resolution true-color laser printer. He'd paid the extra expense of it so he could print out his favorite sex photos. Now, it produced a wallet-sized photo showing 'Colleen' from the shoulders up.

Greg then took the time to create two more composites with different backgrounds and different angles, both head-and-shoulder shots like the first.

And for the final touch, the last photo had a 'photo-booth' background - and he'd edited himself in the picture beside 'her', even lowering the picture quality so it looked like a perfect photo-booth shot of the two of them.

Carefully he mildly 'aged' the photos by fondling them for several minutes each, then put the photos in his wallet with a smile. Satisfied, he shut the computer down. The first step was complete.

* * * * *

"Hey, Nerdy - How's the 'girlfriend'? Re-inflated her recently?"

A coarse bout of laughter followed - and Greg had to repress a smile. He'd been waiting for this all day, and was starting to worry it wouldn't come.

"Colleen? Actually, she's doing fine." Greg said, turning to face Jack and his usual group of cronies. "She's enjoying America just fine so far."

"Yeah, sure." Jack scoffed. "So, what's this mystery woman look like - light and plastic?" "No," Greg said, digging his wallet out, "more like this." He handed the pictures over.

Jack gaped at the absolutely stunning red-head in the photos. His eyeballs almost popped from their sockets at the sight of her with Greg in a photo booth. He handed around the photos to his buddies, who had much the same reaction.

Being jocks, and not all that bright, the thought that they could be faked on a computer never occurred to them. But another thought did.

"Hey, Greg," Brad, one of the other jocks, said sarcastically "How much did you have to pay the stripper to get the photo? No way a babe like this would be dating a geek like you."

The jocks nudged each other in the ribs, guffawing.

Although Greg didn't fish, he understood the theory behind it. If you gave one good yank, you'd lose the fish. You had to play it in carefully...

"Actually, you're partially right. I'm not the only guy she's seeing - hell, no one guy could satisfy Colleen - she's insatiable. But, while she say guys like you are fun for a fast, hard fuck, only guys like me take the time to really please a woman - that's why she'd staying with me."

This, to the jocks, was a little more believable. "Nympho, huh? Shit, you're one lucky bastard."

"Yup. Sure am." Greg agreed, polishing his glasses. Collecting the pictures back, he walked away with a smile, the envious and half- convinced jocks staring after him.

* * * * *

Greg already knew that he'd need a 'topper' to put the hoax over the edge. As soon as he was done his last class, he raced from the school and climbed into his Pinto. He didn't drive it much, preferring to save the gas money - that, and the fact that every time he drove the worn old Ford something fell off.

This, however, was important enough for him to drive the little car. Putting it in gear - which was no easy task - he pulled out of the lot and headed downtown to do some shopping for 'Colleen'.

He didn't need much - just a few items to 'prove' there was a woman staying at his house. As he'd driven down, he'd worked it out in his head. Now, all he had to do was find stores that sold the items he needed.

The first item on the list was easy - perfume. There was nothing like the odor of perfume in a house to help create the illusion that a woman was present, or had just been. Not knowing much about women's fragrances - and not caring, for that matter, - Greg bought an inexpensive bottle of scent called 'Aphrodisia', figuring that it would be good enough for his purposes.

The next item on his list was shoes. A couple of pairs of women's shoes sitting inside the front hall would be a good detail for the charade. But not new shoes - not only would that cost more, but it would detract from the illusion. He wanted shoes that looked like somebody was using them.

So, he stepped into a phone booth, and located a second-hand shop not too far away. Leaving his car parked in the lot of the first store, he walked the two blocks to the second-hand store, which was located down one of the lesser side-streets, dingy and poorly maintained.

He frowned when he walked in the shop. He was faced with a profusion of cheap clothing, half of which looked like it had been sold by the local hookers when they'd needed a fast buck. But it was all really, really cheap, and Greg wasn't about to go off on a wild goose chase looking for used shoes. He began to go through the huge, poorly lit bin of footwear, looking for a couple of pairs in the same size.

Finally he had separated out three pairs of footwear that he thought were acceptable - the price tag sure was.

What he'd picked was an interesting selection, but his major concern had been that they all be the same size, and had almost ignored the actual style of the shoe itself.

One pair was actually boots. Thigh high boots, in white faux leather, and five inch stiletto heels. One of the two actual pairs of shoes was a red platform shoe with ankle straps and seven inch spiked heels. The last pair of footwear was also shoes - in this case, black pumps with a six-inch heel and pointed toe.

Since he was here anyway - and the shoes were so damned cheap - Greg decided to look around for other items that might add to the verisimilitude of his little charade. He was looking for articles of clothing that 'Colleen' could 'accidentally' leave lying around, for anyone to see.

He was looking for something cheap, just something for 'atmosphere' - and then he spotted the suitcase. It made him smile - a suitcase would be a perfect addition to the hoax. If Colleen had just come from Ireland, she must have a bag, right...?

He went over and picked up the large, soft-sided suitcase - and grunted in surprise. It was unusually heavy - indicating it wasn't empty. The female salesclerk caught the surprised look, and giggled in a slightly dreamy, stoned way.

"Oh, that's kinda like a grab bag, you know. We take any item that hasn't sold after a year and stuff it in there. For ten bucks, you get the case, and everything in it."

Greg's smile widened. Perfect!

Happily, he paid for everything and hurried back to his car. Eagerly, he headed home.

As soon as he arrived, he placed the shoes in the hall near the door. He quickly spritz some of the perfume into the air for 'that certain something', then carried the suitcase into the living room. Eagerly, he opened it...

...and his face fell. He should have known better. The girl had said 'anything that doesn't sell after a year...' - and if they couldn't sell it, there must be a reason.

The first item he pulled out was a set of nylons. They were incredibly sexy nylons, to boot. Black, with lace covering the elastic at the top, and a seam running down the back that was actually - if you looked closely - sewn as tiny words that repeated the phrase 'The word of the day is 'legs'. Spread the word...', over and over again.

The only problem was, the original owner obviously bought them at a 'Tall Girl' shop, as they were remarkably long for woman's wear. The original owner must have been taller than most men, even barefoot.

Greg could also see why the store hadn't been able to sell the next item. It was a 'natural' leather corset, with whale-bone ribbing and heavy black lacing at the sides. With such corsets so rare - leather was expensive, and whale-bone ribbing hadn't been used since the ban in the seventies - such a garment was worth a small fortune...

...if it wasn't for the fact that at the largest it went it was too small for most women, except for the extremely slender petite.

The original owner of this, if she wore it fully laced, would to have had a waist so slender as to defy imagination.

The rest of the clothing was no better. Some of it was unsellable because of unusual sizes that your average - or even your modestly unaverage - woman could possibly use. Others were unable to sell because they were just too kinky, fetish items more useful as props in a porno movie than a day-to-day - or even let's-turn-the-boyfriend-on - garment. There was junk jewelry of every description, cheap cosmetics, a couple of fake-leather purses... all cheap junk.

Frustrated, Greg stared into the now-empty suitcase. The contents lay strewn about over the couch, floor, and end tables. The odder the garment, the further he'd tossed it in his frustration. Now, he started to gather them back up, grabbing the closest items and stuffing them in the suitcase.

He was about three-quarters done when the door-bell rang. Suppressing a curse, Greg slammed the suitcase shut and went to answer the door.

He opened the front door - and found himself face-to-face with Jack. Shocked, Greg took a step back, and Jack took that as an invitation to enter, closing the door behind him.

"Hey, I was just thinking " Jack started - then stopped, sniffing the air.

"Hey! I recognize that! Colleen wears 'Aphrodisia', right?"

"Um, I guess." Greg said, regaining his mental equilibrium. "I've never really asked."

But Jack wasn't paying attention. He had picked up a pair of panties laying on the coffee table, and was fingering them with amazement.

"Holy shit. She wears these?" He asked.

Greg eyed the underwear. They were black leather high-cut briefs with matching crushed velvet lining, and Velcro 'pull-away' tabs on the side to make them easy access. But it was inconceivable to deny they belonged to 'Colleen' - what was he going to say: they were his?

"Yeah. She wears stuff like that." Greg said, then changed the subject quickly while Jack continued to eye some of the remaining garments. "What are you doing here?"

"Oh..." Jack said, distractedly. "Me and some of the guys are having a party tomorrow, and thought we'd invite you and Colleen..."

Greg began to hustle Jack out. "Wow, that's great. Colleen's out bar-hopping tonight, but I'll ask her when she gets back." He all but shoved Jack out the door, grabbing the kinky underwear from his hands. "Bye."

Slamming the door, Greg slumped against it. What a fiasco. Now, Jack thought that Colleen was really, really kinky - and if he'd gotten a good look at some of the odd sizes of the other clothes, a freak to boot.

Deciding to leave bad enough alone, Greg shut off the lights and went to bed.

* * * * *

In the middle of the night, Greg began to twitch. Although he wouldn't remember in the morning, he began to have - for him, at any rate

- very odd, bizarre dreams, the subject matter complete different than the usual fare. He began to make oddly pitched moaning sounds, his body writhing on the sweat-soaked bedding.

At the exact instant the dreams had started, the digital clock beside his bed had registered midnight...

* * * * *

He awoke the next morning - a Saturday - and the first thing he did before coming fully awake was the same thing he'd done for every day of his life since he was seven - reach for his glasses.

From the years of experience, he was able to find them on his bed-table and slip them on as he sat up, even in his groggy condition. He opened his eyes...

..and frowned. Everything was horribly out of focus, fuzzy and distorted. He must have grimed up the lenses of his glasses some how. He took them off and began to polish them on the edge of the sheet....

...then slowly stopped, his jaw dropping.

He could see his bed clearly. Without his glasses, it should have been fuzzy, yet he could see every fold and wrinkle crystal clear. Stunned, he raised his eyes and looked around, finding everything in his room viable with the same, stunning clarity.

Stunned, he set his glasses aside and got up, walking to the window in a daze. He stared outside, amazed to find that everything was as crystal clear as far as he could see. Somehow, his vision had become perfect 20/20 eyesight while he slept. It was impossible - yet, undeniable.

"Holy shit!" he breathed, shocked - and overwhelmingly happy. However it had happened, he could see! Clearly and perfectly, without glasses. It was wonderful.

Amazed and overjoyed, he pulled on his robe and headed for the bathroom. He quickly urinated and brushed his teeth, then prepared to shave...

...only he didn't need to shave. There was no stubble at all on his face. In fact, it was smoother than it had ever been, like a baby's bottom.

He was staring at his face in disbelief when the one major fact finally registered.

His eyes - the ones now providing him with perfect 20/20 vision - were a deep, stunning emerald green.

"What the hell...?" Greg gasped, shocked. He couldn't believe what he was seeing. Not needing a shave was weird - but different color eyes...? It just wasn't possible. Not at all.

Greg was an intelligent young man, used to figuring things out for himself. But something like this was much too strange for him to feel comfortable trying to make his own decisions. Something like this required expert help.

Having come to that conclusion, he quickly finished his morning absolutions and dressed. He trotted out to his car and slid behind the wheel.

After fifteen minutes he kicked the tire on the Pinto angrily. No amount of coaxing, pleading or grinding the starter would bring the rusting hunk of junk to life. Finally, he gave it up as a lost cause, and set out on foot for the nearest bus stop - 'nearest' being a relative term, thanks to the remote location of his house.

Finally he reached the bus stop, and was forced to wait even longer, until one of the rumbling diesel beasts finally arrived. Muttering under his breath, Greg climbed aboard, paid his fare, and sat in one of the seats at the back, glad to be on his way - and off his feet.

Back the bus stop, completely unnoticed, the freshening breeze blew away the smile pile of body hair that lay in a fine pile where Greg had stood...

* * * * *

Greg's destination was at the other end of town, which meant that he had to transfer at the downtown terminal. As usual, he'd just missed the connecting bus, meaning a forty minute wait before the next one. Sighing, Greg entered the terminal and rode the escalator up to the second floor, where the public bathrooms were located. He went into a stall and dropped his pants before settling down on the toilet seat.

That's when he noticed that he was complete hairless. He'd never exactly been hirsute - but now not a single hair remained on his body. His legs were complete smooth, as was his pubic region.

"What the...?" Greg muttered, staring down at his denuded legs. This was getting just too weird for him to accept. Then it got a whole lot weirder.

There was a sudden tugging sensation from his scalp - and an odd weight fell down his neck and back, a silky substance brushing his shoulders and neck. Stunned, Greg reached up and pulled down several strands of fiery red hair, staring at them in disbelief.

"This just isn't possible!" he whispered, trying to deny what his senses were showing him. He must be hallucinating or something - eyes changing color, hair growing instantly while it, too, altered shade... It couldn't happen.

Quickly he finished using the bathroom and flushed the toilet. He went up to the sinks and stared at his reflection - his face, with it's eerie green eyes, framed by a massive mane of luxurious red hair.

"My God.... I.... I'm becoming..." He couldn't finish the obvious. It was just too impossible - but it was happening.

He left the terminal, garnering more than just a few odd looks, people staring at the slender young man with the massive mane of fiery hair. He ignored them all as he ducked into a phone booth, and found the location of a nearby barber. He hurried over to the address shown, striving to maintain his calm in the face of the impossible.

The barber's eyes practically popped out of his face as Greg walked in, his long, glorious hair flowing behind him. "Hi." Greg said curtly, in no mood to be his usual polite self. "I need a haircut."

"Um, yes... I see..." the barber said, eyeing Greg's amazingly full head of hair. "Um, if you don't mind me asking..."

Greg thought fast for a plausible explanation - and found one. "As you can see, I have a rare natural hair color. I was growing it out to sell to a wig-maker. But it's just too much of a hassle."

The barber's answer surprised Greg. "If I can give you a crew-cut and keep the hair, I'll pay you a hundred, cash, right now." That was good enough for Greg. "Sure." He hopped into the chair, and the barber set to work.

Twenty minutes later, Greg left the shop, a hundred dollars richer, and a hell of a lot of hair poorer. A very short stubble of deep red coated his skull, looking odd against the pale skin of his scalp. Greg didn't care.

He'd missed his connecting bus again, but he didn't care - his close-cropped hair received a hell of a lot less stares than that huge mane had. And it didn't feel as weird, either.

Finally the bus he wanted arrived. His transfer had expired, so he had to pay the fare, but having the extra hundred in his pocket took away the sting of that. He settled into a seat and staring blankly out the window as the bus traveled.

He was almost at his destination when he felt a very sudden constriction in his abdomen. For an instant, it was as if a huge steel band had been drawn tight around his waist - then vanished. Even that instant had been enough to rob Greg of his breath, and he sucked in a lung full of air, garnering an odd look from one of the three other passengers on the bus.

Unobtrusively, Greg felt around his waist, and was horrified, but not really surprised, to find that his waist was now so unbelievably slender that he could encircle it with his hands. At least it wasn't a terribly visible change, being beneath his clothes. But he was having a very hard time holding onto his demeanor, riding the ragged edge of panic. Anxious and worried, he slumped forward and ran his hands through his hair...

...and sat bolt upright, turning to stare at the window. Focusing his eyes just right, the glass acted as a very poor, but serviceable, mirror.

His hair was about three inches long, and deep, glorious red. Somehow, his hair was growing back at an unbelievable rate.

Greg might have lost it, right then and there on the bus, if it wasn't for the fact that at that moment the bus pulled up to the stop he wanted. Mind spinning, Greg all but bolted from the vehicle, heading for the three-story brownstone that housed doctor's offices.

The receptionist looked up as Greg entered and smiled. "Good morning sir. May I " An odd look crossed her face. "Mr. Hurdy?"

Greg had been in for his annual check-up only a few days ago, and the receptionist also knew him from the other times that he'd been in. But it had taken her a second to recognize him.

"Yes. Look, I have to see Doctor MacHindle - right now."

The receptionist blinked. "If it's some sort of emergency, maybe I should have you taken to County General "

Greg shook his head angrily. "No. It has to be my physician - another doctor would never believe me."

The receptionist gave him an odd look, but excused herself and went into the office. She came out a minute later and waved him in, closing the door and leaving him alone with the doctor.

"What seems to be the problem, Greg?" Dr. MacHindle asked, eyeing Greg's now longer mane of red hair/ "Trying a new look, are we. Contacts, hair dye - you're kind of young for a mid-life crisis, aren't you?"

Greg was in no mood for bad humor. "No. Look, it's not contacts or hair dye. Somehow, my eyes have become perfect, and changed color. Same with my hair - and you won't believe how fast it's growing."

The doctor looked startled at Greg's outburst. "Look, Greg, I don't know what you're trying to say, but there's no need to "

That was the limit to Greg's patience. "No need to panic? Look at this!" And he lifted up his shirt, revealing the slimmest waist that the doctor had ever seen - and one that hadn't been that small only a few day ago, during the physical.

"My, that's incredible." The doctor said with his face neutral. "I'm just going to get some of my instruments for a physical. Just wait right here, all right?"

The doctor stepped out the door, closing it behind him. Something about his demeanor worried Greg, and he stepped up to the closed door and opened it a crack.

"...no way to lose that much circumference that fast unless he's performed self-mutilation." The doctor was saying to the receptionist. " I want you to get a hold of the psychiatric unit and..."

That was all Greg needed to hear. He was having a hard enough time believing what was happening - and he was the one that it was happening to. The doctor merely thought Greg was crazy.

Thankfully, the doctor's office was on the first floor, and Greg simply opened the window and slipped out, running around the building and cutting through two backyards until he was a safe distance away from the doctor. The last thing he needed now was to be locked up in some psycho ward.

It occurred to Greg that if he did let himself be placed under psychiatric observation, they'd see something change and have to believe that it was happening.

But Greg now doubted that there was anything they could do to help him - and he'd just end up as some sort of guinea pig, poked and prodded. He decided that he'd rather find a solution himself. Somehow something was changing him into 'Colleen', the mythical girlfriend he'd created. All he had to do was figure out what, how and why, and then find a way to reverse it. And to do that, he had to be free, not locked up in some nuthouse.

Which meant he had to get back to where the whole thing had started - home.

He hurried to the nearest bus stop and - speaking of the impossible - a buss was just pulling up. Greg hurried aboard, his long mane of hair billowing out behind him and earning some double takes - especially from one of the passengers who had seen him board the other bus at the terminal, with a close-cropped stubble.

Greg's mind churned over the scant facts he had as he sat down, trying to figure out how the hell this could be happening. But nothing presented itself, leaving him frustrated, worried, and near panicked at the thought that the changes might be irreversible.

The bus had only gone a few blocks when the next change occurred. He felt an odd sensation in his hands and when he looked down, he watched with a mixture of emotions as his hands narrowed and became positively dainty, even as the nail lengthened. Within seconds feminine hands graced the ends of arms that had also become decidedly feminine. At least the arms couldn't be seen under the sleeves of his shirt - but his hands looked decidedly odd. Greg quickly tucked his hands out of sight by crossing his arms across his chest, hands below the arms. He looked around to see if anybody had noticed the inexplicable change, but nobody had been paying attention.

He was just beginning to relax when there was a tightness at his hips and ass, while his ass felt as if he was being pushed further down in the seat.

A casual glance down showed what caused the sensations. His previously slightly baggy slacks were now stretched taut over his suddenly wider hips and significantly fuller ass. The tight material clearly outlined his limp cock, and the taut fabric was what was squeezing his scrotum uncomfortably.

Greg wanted to curse - this change had occurred much too close to the last one. There seemed to be no rhyme or reason as to how often they occurred, or which changes happened. He looked around, and found a discarded newspaper laying on the seat next to him. With a little bit of fiddling, he managed to arrange it that he could hold the paper folded over most of his hands, hiding them from sight, while using the paper to hide his clearly outlined cock in his taut pants. Finally, the bus reached the terminal, and he hurried off.

And immediately found that his wider hips wanted to move differently than he was used to. With a wider center of gravity, they tended to swivel and sway. Trying to minimized the motion, Greg set off down the street, aware how odd he must look with a pair of pants that fit his crotch and ass like a second skin, and his hips wriggling and swaying as he walked, like a bad parody of a woman's stride.

He found the best way to minimize the motion was to walk slower and focus on a more manly stride. It wasn't perfect, and tended to crush his balls with every step, but it was better.

Meanwhile, all this shilly-shallying around in public was becoming worrisome. Sooner or later, somebody was going to see something that would have unpleasant consequences for Greg - especially now that it was afternoon, and the weekend crowd was picking up. He had to find some way of getting home in a less public manner.

He considered calling a cab- then quickly dismissed the notion with one look at the lines of people waiting to use the terminal's pay phones. He could call a cab - but not from here. He had to get away from the rising tide of people before another change got him noticed.

Quietly and swiftly, Greg faded away into one of the many dark alleys that the downtown core boasted, and began making his way along it, hoping it would open onto a less crowded street where he could find a phone and call a cab.

The biggest problem was the fact that his crotch was killing him, and it only got worse if he tried to walk faster. So he was moving along slowly, and every step felt like some sadist was squeezing his scrotum. He didn't know how much of this he could take - and this long dark alley was a ver long alley indeed, the far exit a small rectangle of light almost two blocks away.

Greg took a ten minute break. He found an even more shadowed doorway with a door that looked like it hadn't been opened in decades. Sitting in the deepest shadow, he unzipped his pants, immediately sighing at the pressure on his balls was relieved.

After the ten minutes, he reluctantly zipped his pants back up, and set out for the far end of the alley with his slow, awkward stride. He was about three-quarters along the alley when the next change happened.

Greg stumbled and almost fell as his shoes suddenly became much too large for his feet - or, rather, his feet suddenly became too small for his shoes. At the same time, his perspective altered as he suddenly rose several inches in height, all provided by legs which were now suddenly out of proportion to the rest of him. His pants now fit like a bad joke - so skin tight everywhere that he could barely move, and only extending down to mid-calf. A very shapely calf, at that, Greg noticed sourly.

Greg simply abandoned his shoes, as bending down to pick them up in these pants was an impossible task. His speed was further reduced as he moved - the taut pants limited him to the tiniest motions, and he couldn't bend his knees more than a fraction, making him lurch around in tiny steps, as the pants barely bent at the thighs, as well.

Then he suddenly lurched to a stop, his eye caught by a box laying on the top of a garbage can. Material was viable through the half- open top, and he looked inside, and sighed with relief.

Quickly he stripped off his clothes, stopping for a second to stare at the impossibly long, sexy legs that led from his full hips and firm, sexy ass. Then, turning his eyes away, he began to dress in the discarded clothing.

The first item was a pair of black spandex pants. They were a trifle too small, and had a large tear in the ass, but neither mattered. The style of pants had the stirrups in the legs, and he slipped them on, where they clung to every shapely new curve of his legs like a second skin.

Over these went a short black denim skirt with a broken snap at the waist. This was solved with his belt, which required him to poke a new hole through it to fit his amazingly diminished waist.

Next came the sweater, a baggy black turtleneck. He pulled it on, rolling the neck up over the bottom half of his face.

He stepped into the ugly black sandals, with their blocky inch-high heels, and took a few experimental steps in them. They were slightly large, a problem he solved by tightening the straps on them.

Finally he took the pair of sunglasses. They were dark black lenses, one of which was so scratched on the inside as to make that sight severely fogged. But the scratches didn't show on the outside, and Greg slipped them on.

Perfect. He headed back down the alley, walking easily, and letting his hips move the way they wanted to. Anybody who looked at him would see what appeared to be a young woman with a huge mane of fiery red hair and her collar pulled up around her face - in other words, nothing in the least unusual.

Blithely Greg boarded the bus again, and rode the rest of the way in blessed anonymity, nobody sparing him a second glance. He got off the bus at the stop closest to his house and headed home.

He was just going through the park when the next change occurred at a particularly bad time.

Greg was walking down the pedestrian path through a copse of threes. The only other person around was a jogger, who was obviously just cooling down after a run, sweat glistening on his face. Catching sight of Greg, he moved to intercept.

"Excuse me, miss, but do you know what time it..."

Then the man's voice died and his eyes bulged as he stared at Greg's chest in amazement. Because the bulky sweater was beginning to swell outwards.

Greg could feel his chest swelling outward, the extra mass becoming heavier as it increased. His nipples, brushing across the sweater fabric by the motion of the growth, were becoming large and more sensitive as his tits swelled, creating entirely new experiences.

And still they continued to swell. The enlarging masses of flesh passed C cup, moving into the D and DD range quickly, the weight quickly accumulating as they continued to inflate the front of the steadily less baggy sweater.

Practically pushing the stunned jogger aside, Greg hurried on, feeling his still swelling tits sway, bounce and jiggle annoyingly/pleasurably. He was starting to panic - they were already bigger than any tits he'd ever seen outside of porn mags and internet sites, and they were still swelling.

Soon he had to slow his pace as his expanding bust passed the point where he could run easily with them, their shifting weight screwing up his balance. The sweater, originally baggy, was now stretched taut over enormous tits whose nipples were clearly visible. There was very little room left in the fabric, and Greg was afraid that it might burst apart.

Greg all but burst through the door of his house, glad to be safely inside. Just in time, too - because seconds after he slammed the door shut behind him, the over-strained fabric of the sweater groaned once in warning - the burst apart, displaying Greg's enormous new tits, which had stopped growing a trifle to late.

They were absolutely enormous, round and firm. They defied both gravity and the imagination, their large, pink nipples standing out from the areola. Stunning, Greg gently hefted his enormous tits, amazed at the shear weight of them, as well as their silky smooth texture and resilient firmness.

Shrugging out of the tattered remnants of the sweater, Greg began to gather together everything from his hoax of 'Colleen', hoping to find some clue as to what happened to him, and piling it all in the suitcase.

Suddenly he stopped, staring at the item he'd just picked up.

It was a front-closing bra. Black, with frilly lace at the top, but strong, heavy material in the bottom half of the cups, braced by underwire supports.

The bra was absolutely enormous. The small tag on the inside, giving the name of the company that had custom made the garment, indicated the size of the foundation garment as being Thirty-eight triple M.

As if in a daze, Greg carefully positioned the massive brassiere around his slenderized torso, sliding his slender, feminine arms in the shoulder straps. Numbly, he fastened the heavy-duty hook-and-eye clasps in the front, closing the massive cups over his massive mounds of tit flesh.

The bra fit perfectly, like a second skin. It wasn't the slightest bit tight or loose, but fit everywhere with absolute precision.

"The Saint's preserve us..." Greg breathed. Jack had been here, and had seen this bra laying around, and some other items of clothing, and had thought them to be Colleen's...

...and so, now they were. Whatever force was at work her had molded Greg's body to match the imagined figure of the mythical woman.

Then it struck Greg what he'd just heard from his own lips - a richly feminine voice with a distinctive Irish lilt.

"Holy Jaysus! I sound like a bloomin' Irishwoman!" Greg exclaimed. Although it was, in essence, what he meant to say, the 'Irishism' came out on it's own.

To prove his theory, Greg began to root through the pile of assorted clothing items, finding those which had defined his new body.

The first, of course, were the panties that Jack had actually picked up. Unlike the bra, they did not fit perfectly - because they were designed with a cock in mind. Tucking his cock between his legs minimized the problem, but they still didn't fit perfectly - yet.

The incredibly slim corset did, however. Done up to it's tightest lacing it fit Greg's altered torso with only the slightest of squeezes, almost sensual in nature.

The long nylons with their bawdy slogan fit his amazingly long, sexy legs perfectly, making them even more sexy.

The red platform shoes, with their seven inch spiked heels, fit his feet so comfortably that it was as if he wasn't wearing anything at all. He was also not terribly surprised to find that he could walk in the extremely high heels easily and expertly, as if he'd been doing so his entire life.

Looking over the rest of the clothes, Greg had no trouble picking out the other items that Jack had designated as being Colleen's.

The skirt was a red leather micro-mini, with black fish-net section running up either side, and molded itself to his sexy new ass perfectly, highlighting every sensuous curve of it's tear-drop shape.

There was quite obviously no blouse or sweater that would fit over his gigantic new endowments, but there was the jacket that matched the skirt. It was a wide-lapel, with chrome buckles at the waist. Putting it on and buckling it up, Greg found that it clung to his deliciously tiny waist, while displaying a mouth-watering view of his bra-encased tits and cavernous cleavage, without ever quite crossing the boundary of what would be legal in public.

Looking at the reflection in the mirror, Greg discovered that at some point his facial features had changed to match his computer-generated woman. The reflection showed a stunningly sexy woman with a huge, glorious mane of red hair and enormous tits dressed in an outfit that displayed her every sensuous curve and seductive contour.

Greg shook his head in disbelief, and prepared to change out of the ridiculously sexy outfit, when he heard vehicles pull up outside his house. Curious, he looked out the window.

"Faith and Beggorrah!" He exclaimed in his lilting new voice. He stared in shock at the sight of a police cruiser and an ambulance. Dr. MacHindle was climbing from the passenger side of the cruiser, and Greg realized that he was in a bad position, no matter how you looked at it.

Turning, Greg fled to the back of the house and out the back door, stopping only long enough to shove his wallet into a purse and bring it with him. In minutes, he was in the park, and safely away from the house.

Almost immediately he became aware of the looks he was receiving from the people he passed. He tried to ignore it, while trying to decide what the hell he was going to do now. He had no place to go, no money other than the hundred odd dollars with him, and nobody to contact for help.

Then, as he left the park and began walking aimlessly down the street, he spotted a familiar car. In a split second, Greg reached a decision, and began frantically flagging it down - not a difficult task, as the driver had already been staring. The car pulled over, and the driver leaned over and opened the door.

"Hi there. You must be Colleen!" Jack said with a wolf's smile.

"That's right. And ye must be Jack - Greg described ye pairfectly." Greg responded, sliding into the car, much to Jack's surprise. "Oh... Uh, do you need a lift to Greg's place?" Jack asked. "I was just heading over to see if you and him were coming to the party."

Greg tossed his head disdainfully, having already found an excuse to avoid the house, and it's welcoming committee. "Oh, he and I have broken up. He was gettin' too possessive for me. So I left. But I'd be more than happy to come along to your party, if ye'd like." That, at least, would take care of a place to go, for now, and there was a good chance of getting some food out of the deal - his stomach was growling.

Needless to say, Jack had no objections, and pointed the car towards the campus, and the Frat house.

About halfway there, Greg felt a pulling sensation in his crotch - and all of the sudden the panties fit her perfectly. Jack caught the grimace and looked over. "Something wrong, gorgeous?"

Greg briefly considered berating Jack for the 'gorgeous', but since she was relying on him right now, decided to let it slip. "No, just gettin' comfortable, 'tis all."

"Sure thing, babe." Jack replied, and Greg let that go as well.

They arrived at the frat, and Jack led Greg inside with a smile, leading her into the living room, where fifteen guys sat around, six of them with girlfriends beside them. All eyes turned at her entrance, the guys lewdly eyeing her unbelievable figure and sexy features, the women look envious, upset or thoughtful. Mentally, Greg winced - she'd never expected that she'd walk into a room - and be the sexiest woman there. It was discomfiting.

"Guys, girls, meet Colleen, the girl Greg was dating. They just broke up." Jack introduced her to the guests, who she already knew, of course. All of the guys were rapidly developing hard-ons - and at least two of the girls were eyeing her thoughtfully.

"Holy shit!" Brad exclaimed. "The little nerd was telling the truth!"

Greg - hold it, she thought mentally. For now, she'd better get used to 'Colleen'. Until she figured out how to reverse this, she would have to get used to be called that, and it would be easiest if she thought of herself that way.

Colleen retorted indignantly. "O' course he was telling the truth. Greg may have been many things, - such as a spectacular lover - but he was nae a liar!" She'd decided it wouldn't hurt to inflate Greg's reputation.

"Well, make yourself at home." Jack offered. "Here, let me take your jacket."

Colleen hesitated, then took it off and handed it to him. She settled onto a worn couch, every guy's eyes riveted to her enormous, bra- encased tits. She demurely tucked her long, sexy, nylon-clad legs under her and tried to ignore the staring men.

Somebody turned on some music, and beer and hard alcohol appeared in quantity. The hoped for snacks appeared, and Colleen began to nibble on the chips and pretzels, trying not to wolf them down.

"Hey...Colleen, is it?" One of the other girls, a cute brunette, said. "This is for you."

Colleen took the proffered object before she realized it was a large joint. She was about to refuse - but reconsidered. She'd tried grass a few times before, and right now it seemed like it would help her relax.

"Who's got a light?" she asked, and the three nearest guys fought for the opportunity to stare down her magnificent cleavage as she leaned forward to light the joint. She inhaled deeply, holding the smoke deep in her lungs before letting it trickle out slowly.

Slowly, she began to relax over the next hour or so. The guys leered at her, and made crude, lewd comments - but they behaved themselves otherwise, and although the situation was extremely embarrassing to her - guys hitting on her wasn't something she was prepared for - she could handle it.

He first inkling that something wasn't right came from the girl who'd passed her the first joint. She'd been shifting uncomfortably for the past half-hour or so, and now stood up and pulled off her sweater, to the cat-calls and whistles of the guys.

"My damned bra is too tight." She said, peeling the offending garment off and tossing it aside. "It's bugging the hell outta me." Rather than lowering the sweater, she finished removing it and sat on her boyfriend's lap. "Massage the pain away, will you?" she asked coyly

- and didn't need to ask again.

Colleen eyed the other woman's C-cup breasts, then looked down at the B-cup bra she'd tossed aside. She could swear that the girl's tits hadn't been that big when she'd come in.

Carefully, Colleen looked around - and felt her stomach clenching. Something was wrong, even if no one else had caught it yet. Everyone was sexier than they'd been.

It wasn't anything startling obvious at first glance. All the girl's tits seemed to have increased one cup size - but since the brunette was the only one wearing a bra, other than Colleen, nobody had noticed.

Also, all the girl's skin was smoother, their hair finer, their features a little sexier, and not all of it was subtle.

The guys were a little more muscular, a little leaner. And Colleen could swear the bulges in their pants were larger than before as well.

Something very wrong was going on here, and Colleen had no idea how whatever force had changed her could be acting on the others too.

Yet none of them seemed to notice anything at all odd about anything. Colleen needed to think about this, try to figure out what was going on. The music was distracting, and she decided to go into the kitchen. Getting up, she headed for the kitchen in her sexy sway.

"Where you off to, gorgeous." Jack asked casually.

Colleen hesitated. "I... uh, though I'd call Greg. Invite him to the party after all." Jack looked thoughtful. "Greg who?"

Colleen's stomach clenched tighter. "Greg Hurdy."

Jack considered that for a second. "Don't think I know him. Anyone?"

A general chorus of 'no' arose, and Colleen became really worried. She went into the kitchen and quickly punched in her telephone number.

"Hello, Pirate's Pizza - best Pepperoni Pizza in the city!"

Colleen hung up, then carefully redialed, making sure it was right. The phone rang at the other end... "Hi! Pirate's Piz..."

"Look," Colleen interrupted in her sexy Irish lilt. "I'm trying to reach somebody, and this is the number they gave me." The voice at the other end was polite. "Sorry, he must have made a mistake. We've had this number for five years."

Numbly, Colleen hung up the phone and went back into the living room, trying to deal with the fact that Greg Hurdy had been wiped completely out of existence. She slumped on the couch, next to a blowsy-looking blonde cheerleader, who was looking at one of the porno mags that had been left negligently around by the guys.

"Hey, get a load of these cool boots!" she said, nudging Colleen. "I wish I had a pair..."

Colleen's eyes widened in shock. The other girl's shoes, a pair of black shoes with a three-inch block heel, were changing. The sides slid upwards and softened into a black suede while the heel narrowed and lengthened. In no time at all, they had become mid-calf high suede boots with a row of small silver buckles, and a six-inch spiked heel.

"...just like them only last week." The girl finished, obviously not having noticed the slightest thing odd. "Isn't that a weird coincidence?" "Yeah..." Colleen managed to reply. No-one in the entire room had found anything unusual at all about what had just happened.

The brunette was now locked in passionate lip-lock with her boyfriend, whose hands were fondling her jean-encased ass. Her own hands were between his legs, moving, softly, rhythmically.

One by one, the other girlfriends began to pay more attention to their boyfriends, apparently unembarrassed by the public displays they were making.

The blonde next to Colleen turned to her and smiled. "Hey, you ever experiment with a girl?" Colleen was taken aback, not exactly sure how to handle that question. "Uh, no..." she finally said.

"Me neither." The blonde - Mandy - said, smiling. "Let's give it a go." Mandy leaned forward, sliding her arms around Colleen and pressing her lips - which were firmer and sexier than they'd been before - against Colleen's own full, red lips.

Unwillingly, Colleen found herself responding. She'd had absolutely no intention of doing so, but helplessly found her self returning the kiss passionately, her tongue entwining with Mandy's in an erotic dance.

One of Mandy's hands slid down and caressed Colleen's firm, shapely ass before she broke from the embrace with a smile.

"Not bad" Mandy said, rising and heading towards her boyfriend, "But not as much fun as a guy." She settled into her date's lap and began kissing him teasingly as she unbuttoned her blouse.

Inexplicably, Colleen found herself rising as well, and crossing the room towards Brad. She tried to stop herself, horrified by her sensuous, erotic sway and seductive smile. But she couldn't control herself as she settled on his lap, feeling his hard, thick cock pressing into her thigh through his pants.

"Hi there, Brad" she cooed, sickened by her own actions.

"I was hoping you'd come over" Brad replied huskily, then kissed her. Like before, she returned the kiss, hungrily.

Helplessly, her slender hands rose of their own accord to her massive bar and unclasped it, shrugging it off and revealing her massive, firm globes in all their glory. Brad's hands went to her massive mounds and began to caress them softly, then broke the kiss to lower his mouth to her swollen nipples.

Colleen's head lolled back and she moaned as the powerful, pleasurable sensations flooded from her tits. It felt wonderful - and she hated herself for enjoying it. But she couldn't stop, couldn't resist in the slightest.

Hearing a wet sort of sound, Colleen turned her head and saw that the brunette was on her knees in front of her boyfriend, her head in his lap, bobbing slowly up and down.

Even as she watched, all the other girls suddenly seemed to decide that it was a good idea, sliding off laps to kneel before the guys.

And to her horror, Colleen discovered herself emulating them, sliding off Brad's lap with a smile as her slender fingers unzipped his fly.

Although he'd arrived at the frat with an average sized endowment, the cock the Colleen helplessly pulled from his pants was a massive, throbbing tool, thick and hard, warm in her hands.

Helplessly, she slid her lips over the massive, hard shaft and slid her head down, and down, and down...

Somehow, she fit the massive cock all the way in, deep throating the huge cock to the hilt. Wrapping her hands around Brad's huge balls, she began to suck him off, her hands, lips and tongue working in concert as if she were an expert at it, instead of it being her first. She was horrified to find that she loved the hot, throbbing tool shoved down her throat, filling it completely.

Brad leaned back and rested his hands on her bobbing head, entwining his hands in her glorious fiery mane. He suddenly tensed up, and his huge tool began to throb as a thick stream of cum began to spurt down her throat.

Helplessly, she pulled back until just the head of his enormous dick filled her mouth, allowing her to taste the wonderful salty flavor of his hot cum, gulping hungrily at the thick liquid, savoring every drop.

He seemed to cum forever, a never-ending flow of cum gushing down her unwillingly willing throat until he finally spent. Helplessly, Colleen licked his tool clean and smiled up at him thankfully.

She rose from her position in front of Brad and turned - to find herself face-to-face with a naked Jack.

She had thought that Brad's cock was huge - but it was insignificant compared to the monstrosity thrust from Jack's crotch. His was about the same thickness as Brad's enormous cock, but easily longer by half again.

Jack reached out and pulled her to him, her huge bare tits mashed against his firm, golden chest. His hands went to her skirt and began to slide it down as her hands helplessly squeezed his rock-hard ass, feeling his hot, throbbing cock against her soft, silken thigh.

With the skirt out of the way, Jack tore off her Velcro panties, revealing her hot, wet cunt. He smiled and lay down on the floor.

Helplessly, Colleen approached him, stood over where he lay - and lowered her hot, 'eager' cunt over his gigantic cock, gasping in pleasure as it entered her, filling every inch of her lubricated cunt without being too large.

With powerful movements of her glorious legs, she began to ride his massive cock, tossing her head in ecstasy and fondling her own massive tits as she rhythmically rode up and down on his magnificent tool.

Sensations like never she had ever felt began to build, synapses closing and firing as the incredible sensations built and built. Her gasps turned to moans, and her moans to screams as wave after wave of pure, unaltered ecstasy came faster and faster on top of each another.

Then she climaxed.

The orgasm hit her like no experience she'd ever felt, blowing her mind and stopping coherent thought completely as she screamed, her cunt tightening on his massive tool, and pushing him over the edge, filling her cunt with his seed as she rode the waves of multiple orgasms. Finally, spent, she collapsed beside him, her incredible body soaked with sweat, her massive tits rising and falling as she panted.

"aaaaannndddd CUT!" a voice shouted.

Colleen looked up, and discovered that sometime during her fucking, the room had become nothing more than a set. One end was open, revealing cameras, lights, and sound equipment. Slowly, she stood up.

"Great work, Colleen. Take a fifteen minute break, then we'll do the orgy scene, where you take three at a time." "Sure thing, Mister Collins" She found herself helplessly answering.

Somewhere deep inside that incredible body, Greg screamed and screamed as Colleen Cupps, porn star extraordinaire, jiggled and swayed off to her dressing room, already looking forward to the next scene.

* * * * *

"Doctor, I've said before that you should get rid of those damn things!"

Dr. MacHindle looked up from the text he was studying. "What are you talking about, Angela?"

His receptionist frowned angrily. "Your damned voodoo knick-knacks, that's what! I just came from Exam Three and well, come on, all show you."

The doctor shrugged and followed along.

The walls of Exam Three were hung with various voodoo talisman's and art, the doctor's own personal taste in decor. Angela pointed angrily at one in particular, an oddly shaped gourd traced with intricate designs.

The doctor looked at it - and was surprised to find it was cracked. Whatever liquid that had been inside had leaked out onto the exam bed, it's colorless stain almost invisible. It was dried, indicating that it had been there for some time.

Dr. MacHindle looked up. "Well, I have no idea what the hell was in there. Thank god we haven't done any physicals in over a week. There's no telling what that liquid might do if somebody got it on themselves "

BACK TO FUN ZONE

---

© 1997 - 2016 TGstories.

Stories on the "Public Access" pages may be Copyright by individual authors.

Home | Membership | Terms & Conditons | Privacy Policy | Contact

SUMMARY: A guy discovers how to transform himself into a female and is then disappointed that his two male roommates don't seem interested in his new form.

Unstable

---

By Gunslinger

"Hey, Nick - what's up?"

The reaction of the young man being addressed was interesting. Since he recognized the voice quite well, knowing it belonged to a good and trusted friend, his reaction seemed all out of proportion.

First, he jerked sharply upright - which, considering he was crouched down in a small access port in the flank of the jury-rigged machine he was working on, was a cosmically bad idea. Even as he began to curse loudly and rub at the point on his head that he'd just smacked firmly into an unforgiving metal cross-brace, his face was a bright, almost glowing red. The blush, already burning brightly, seemed excessive for the embarrassment of having just 'klonked' himself on a support - even if he should have known the machine 'like the back of his hand', since he'd conceived, designed and built the odd-looking contraption from scratch. Even the obviously nervous demeanor the yellow-haired young man evinced as he awkwardly crawled out from the machine was out of keeping with being in the presence of his two best friends, standing near the door to his garage-slash-workshop and looking at him with bemused expressions.

"Oh, uh... Hi, guys." Nick said, awkwardly, his smile nervous and strained. "I, uh... thought you were going camping for the weekend..."

"We were..." Bill said slowly, one eyebrow rising. "...until the news, all over the TV and radio, about how the biggest storm in years is rolling into the area. Look, Nick - what's going on with you? You're acting kinda hinkey."

"Yeah..." Gary drawled, his Texas upbringing evident in both his accent and his choice of colloquialisms. "You're as nervous as a long-tailed cat in a room full o' rocking chairs. What's the story, partner?"

Nick shuffled nervously, the combination of his demeanor and his looks making him seem more like a little boy than a twenty-seven year old young man of formidable intellect.

"Well, you see, I..." He stammered - then, with a sigh, threw up his hands in surrender. "Okay, if you want to know - I was planning to spend the weekend as a woman."

"Oh, well, that explains it." Gary said, with the air of a person waiting for the punch-line to a joke. Bill, however, looked carefully at Nick's still-flushed face - and his eyes slowly widened.

"My god - you're serious!" The lean, dark-haired young man blurted out.

"You got to be shittin' me!" The lanky Texan said, his own voice displaying disbelief. "You mean this-here thingamajig y'all been working on is some sort of..."

As the Texan halted, groping for the right word, Nick slowly nodded.

"Yeah. It came to me one day that it would be possible to 'destabilize' the genetic code, allowing you to remake yourself. It has to do with the correct frequency of..."

"You can stop right there, partner." Gary said, holding up a hand. "You know me and Bill don't understand all that science gobbledygook - and it don't matter no-how. If you say you've built a machine that can change you into something else, we'll take you at your word. But. why'in hell would you make yourself into a girl?"

"Haven't you ever wondered why it's like to be female?" Nick shot back, his blush flaring back to full intensity.

This time, it was his friends who shuffled nervously, looking everywhere but at him, their own faces tinged with red. "I thought so." Nick said with satisfaction.

"Yeah, but 'wondering' doesn't mean we were ever going to do anything about it!" Bill pointed out.

"Could you do anything about it?" Nick asked, pointing at his creation to underscore his own unique position. "Oh, um... yeah, I see what you mean..." Bill agreed, grudgingly. "Still, I mean... it all seems a bit. weird."

"I knew you guys would feel that way - which is why I waited for a weekend I thought you'd be away, and wouldn't have to deal with this." Nick replied, with a sigh. "Look, I understand you're uncomfortable with this, so, it's okay. You guys just sort of pretend I'm not here this weekend, stay away - and once I'm a guy again on Monday, we'll just pretend this never happened. "

"Hell, no!" Gary said, firmly. "Nick, you and us is buddies. You wanna try being a chick for the weekend, well, then Bill and I are behind you. Ain't we, Bill?"

Bill's hesitation was barely perceptible before he nodded, firmly. "Gary's right, buddy. We've always been there for each other, and that's not going to change, no matter what. You go ahead and see what it's like to be a girl - and Gary and I will be right there with you, asking you damn-fool questions and wondering for ourselves."

Nick blinked, and then grinned, amazed at his friends' response - and touched.

"Okay, guys. Why don't you go inside, grab yourself a couple of beers. It's going to take me about half an hour or so... and the next time you see me, you won't be seeing the 'me' you've been used to seeing."

"Well, we could wait right here." Gary said awkwardly, obviously still less-than-sanguine, but determined not to let a 'little' thing like his friend transforming into a woman throw their long-time friendship. "We don't mind."

"I do." Nick said, blushing. "I mean, I have to be naked when I use this thing, and while we've all seen each other naked now and then, the idea of you seeing me naked, when I'm female, is, uh..."

"Yeah." Bill agreed, hastily, blushing brightly. "We'll see you inside when you're, uh.. decent." "Right." Gary agreed, equally as fervent.

Two blushing young men beat a hasty retreat - and the third blushing young man turned back to his 'contraption', nearly shaking with nervous, excited energy.

* * * * *

"Weather's moving in." Bill noted. "Yup." Gary agreed.

Silence once more descended as the two men, sitting across the room from each other, continued staring out the big picture window fronting the living room, watching the dark clouds laden with moisture further darken the twilight skies.

"Gonna be a doozie." Gary suggested, a few minutes later. "Looks like it." Bill agreed.

Once more, they lapsed into silence, listening to the rising wind outside the window.

For the past half hour, the routine had been exactly the same. Uncomfortable, still trying to sort out the feelings they were having in this strange new situation, the spoke only with the uncomfortable silence became excruciating - and then, only about something inconsequential.

Bill was just wracking his brain for another nothing comment to make, when the soft sound of the garage door opening and closing pulled them out of their seats as if it had been the shot from a starter's pistol. Nervously, seemingly uncertain as what to do with their hands, they stared at the opening to the living room, unconsciously holding their breaths.

If the wait had been too long, they might well have passed out before remembering to breath - but only a few seconds passed before a extremely nervous young woman hesitantly stepped through the doorway, her eyes darting about and her hands clasped so tightly in front of her that the knuckles had gone completely white.

"Uh.. Hi..." She muttered, not quite meeting either of the men's eye. "Nick?" Gary said, hesitantly. "Is... Is that really you?"

It was, in fact, a phenomenally stupid question. The hesitant young woman standing in the doorway was so obviously 'Nick' that it was almost scary.

Oh, she was certainly female now - and not in a 'Nick in drag' sort of way, but in a completely natural appearance. It was simply that every possible adjective you could have used to describe Nick, as a male, still applied to her as a female, as long as you took into consideration the variation in gender.

Nick, as a man, had been slightly on the short and slender side, though not remarkably - and, likewise, this new woman was slightly short and slender for a girl, making her considerably shorter and slimmer than Nick had been. Her hair, though longer than before and falling loose around her ears, was the same wheat-blond as before, and the face it framed, though softer and with a finer bone structure, was slightly oval, as male Nick's face had been, and completely average, as had been the male version she'd so recently boasted.

Indeed, though one hundred percent female, the girl was everything the male Nick had been, but under the feminine definition. Even the clothes she wore, picked up at a second hand store in preparation for this, were the female garments directly equivalent to the ones the male Nick would have been wearing at the moment - a pair of blue-jeans and a slightly baggy long-sleeve shirt.

In just about every way you could think of, the new woman standing awkwardly in the doorway was about as completely average as you could get. Certainly not unattractive, but not notably 'pretty', either. Just as women didn't tend to give the male Nick a second glance, the female she'd become wouldn't have been worthy of even a few seconds of polite leering...

..if not for the fact that the one attribute most 'noticeable' about the new woman was the exact same attribute that her two friends were focused on, taking in the rest of her only peripherally.

Her bust.

Her rack.

Her knockers, hooters, chest-melons, boobs, breasts, tits.

"Well, I will be damned..." Gary said, his voice almost conversational, despite the look on his face. "I do mean that literally, too. I'm sure I was a'going to hell, anyway, for the way I used to sneak peeks at your momma - but unable to stop staring at my best friend's tits gotta be even worse."

Gary, in perfect keeping with who he was, didn't even tear his eyes away from where the pale gray shirt was straining across his feminine friend's new bust. Bill, at least, had the good manners to flush brightly, turn his head away, and only sneak glances at Nick's busty new form from the corner of his eye.

Nick's mother was, indeed, extremely well endowed. It was hardly a secret that many of his friends, when younger, had occasionally stared longer at his mom's chest than good manners would allow.

With his machine having turned him into the exact feminine equivalent of his male self by basically doubling his X chromosome to replace the Y, he'd activated the genetic inheritance of his mother's bust.

Those big breasts his mother sported, however, were merely 'large' on her more bulky frame. Not that his mother was fat, mind you, merely 'voluptuous'. Nick, however, had inherited the slimmer, rangier build from his father's side of the family - which might have also genetically helped 'minimize' his breasts, if not for the fact that Grandma herself was a natural DDD-cup.

With that genetic inheritance behind him, the size of Nick's new bust-line wasn't really all that far out of line with his family history - the biggest difference, however, was the fact that he'd acquired these new endowments instantaneously. Gravity had not yet had time to affect them.

So, the newly female Nick not only boasted breasts that were smack-dab in the middle of the bra sizes of DDD-cup Grandma and GGG-cup mom, but ones that were infinitely firmer and more perfectly rounded than any either relative had ever boasted. Nick's new breasts pressed so firmly outwards in the otherwise baggy shirt she wore, it almost looked like she was trying to smuggle a prize-winning pair of cantaloupes somewhere.

Given their almost preternatural firmness, a bra was not only completely unnecessary, but almost an insult to their gravity-defying perfection - which, at least, meant that the new woman didn't have to choose between a slightly too-small EEE cup or a slightly oversized FFF-cup.

Not that any of this made it easier for her to be standing there, blushing a bright red, while her two best friends in the whole world tried hard not to stare at her eye-catching bustline - and, to various degrees, failing. Gary, in fact, didn't even make more than the slightest token gesture of remorse, his own proclivity for big busts obvious in the way he eyed her bulging new bust.

In fact, knowing Gary as well as she did, not the least from having gone to strip-clubs with her friends, the new woman wouldn't be the least bit surprised had Gary continued to stare at her new bust for as long as it was available to be ogled...

...and she had just enough time to begin to wonder about the strange, but highly pleasant, 'warm, tingly' emotional sensation that knowledge caused when the house literally shook in a cannonade of thunder, the world going strobe-white with the crashing lightening - and then the world was plunged into darkness.

"Shit!" Bill shouted, striving to make himself heard in the follow-up crashes and echoes of thunder, as lightening flashed and fired. "Power's out!"

"No shit, Sherlock..." Gary said, laconically, as the newly-arrived storm continued to rage outside the window. "What do we do now?"

"The study." Nick suggested, a bit vaguely, as she tried to find the root of that strange, and oh-so-pleasurable emotion she was feeling.

Groping in the dark, the two friends followed the new woman towards her 'study'.

The house was a two-bedroom bungalow with attached garage - but Nick had never found the need for a second bedroom, so he'd set his own bedroom up in the smaller room, turning the master bedroom into his study. Not only did it provide more space for his computer equipment and wide selection of books, but it boasted the small home's one 'luxury' - a fireplace.

For decorative reasons, Nick always kept the fireplace laid out and ready to go, so it took the simple act of lighting it to begin filling the room with a golden glow. As the storm continued to shake the small frame house, the new woman made her way over to the futon couch against the wall...

...and suddenly became aware of her friends watching her intently as she prepared to sit down.

She hesitated, confused by their hesitant, watchful gazes - and then, blushing anew, were waiting to see where she sat on the couch before the arranged themselves around her choice.

It was a new and awkward situation. When they had all been male, they'd basically plunked down where they'd felt like, not caring. Now that she was female, her friends were suddenly hesitant, not sure whether it was still 'okay' to simply cram themselves onto the couch with her the way they would have if she'd still been male.

That thought caused another odd emotional trill, this one less then enjoyable, and after a second's hesitation, she sat smack-dab in the center of the couch, patting the surface on either side of her with her hands.

"Come on, sit down." She said - and, again, their obvious hesitation caused another one of those unpleasant emotional chills...

...and when Gary finally sat beside her, stiffly, but Bill didn't make any move to flank her on the other side, the unpleasant sensation strengthened.

"Aren't you going to sit down?" Nick asked him, finding she had to work to keep a catch or a whine out of her softer, higher new voice. "I.. don't think so." Bill said, slowly. "Sorry, but this situation's getting a little weird for me."

"I understand..." She assured him, truthfully...

...which was why she was just as surprised by either of the guys to follow up her statement by bursting into tears.

"Nick!" Gary said, swiveling sharply in his seat and starting to reach out for her - before suddenly bringing himself up short. When he continued speaking, it was a bit more awkwardly. "Uh.. What's wrong?"

He patted her hesitantly on the back, his motions every bit as awkward as his voice...

...and that only made her wail all the harder, even as she gasped out words between the body-shaking sobs. "I don't know!" She sobbed tearfully. "All of the sudden.. sniff ...I just feel really, really sad...!"

"About what?" Bill asked, taking a few weak steps closer to her.

"I.. I.. I..." She stammered, heart twisting in her chest. "You guys hate me now that I'm a girl!" "What?" Both men chimed, shocked.

"I.. I don't know why I said that!" She admitted, tearfully. "It.. just sort of popped out! I.. I think it's my new hormones. I.. I think I'm having a 'mood swing'..."

"Well, I hope you know we don't hate you!" Bill said, quickly.

"I know you don't - but I 'feel' you do!" Nick said, fighting the horrible cold feeling running through her. "It's not intellectual, it's emotional. When you guys act all.. nervous and hesitant and uncomfortable around me, it makes me feel really, really bad, like you hate me or something. I know it's not true... but that doesn't change how I feel."

"Yup." Gary said, a slow smile coming to his face. "You're definitely 'really' a woman now." She blinked at him - and, though still leaking tears, laughed shortly.

"I guess so." She said, dabbing at her eyes with the hem of her shirt...

...then stopping dead as she realized the habit-driven use of the hem of her shirt had caused her to pull it up, exposing her big, round new breasts to her friend's stunned gazes.

"Oh..." She said, weakly.

"Uh, Nick...?" Bill said, suddenly finding the ceiling damned interesting. "Maybe you should, you know, pull your shirt down." "Okay." She said - on the edge of tears. "If.. If you think I'm so freakish that you don't want to look at me..."

"No!" Gary said, quickly. "You're not freakish!"

"Yeah!" Bill agreed, just as quickly. "You're.. kinda pretty."

"I... I know, it's just..." Nick said, struggling to control her unbelievably powerful new emotions. "You... You look away from my tits, and it.. it hurts. Gary stares, and.. well, it.. it feels good. I know it's really weird, and you're disgusted with me, but I can't help it. When you say or do something that shows you like me - or any part of me - it feels really good, and anything negative feels really bad. There's no 'middle ground'. I... I'm sorry..."

"It's not your fault." Gary hastened to assure her.

"Yeah - and it's not like I don't think your tits aren't fantastic." Bill blurted out, without thinking. "I just thought you wouldn't want me staring at them like Gary does..."

His voice trailing off as he realized what he'd just said, Bill blushed.

"Sorry, Nicky." He apologized, abjectly - then winced, and apologized a second time, for having used Nick's much-hated nick-name from high school.

Nick, however, had cocked her head to the side.

"I.. don't mind if you call me 'Nikki'." She said. "I think it kinda fits, right now... but, Bill, did you mean it? Do you really think my tits look fantastic?"

Bill swallowed nervously, and nodded jerkily. "Uh, yeah..."

Nikki shivered. "Oh - hearing you say that makes me feel so good." She blinked - then pouted.

"Sorry." She said, sighing. "Look, because I was a guy, I know how weird this is for you, me being a girl who was a guy. If I could stop myself from feeling this way, I would - but that machine won't work, so I'm 'stuck' being female..."

She tried, with little success, to suppress a sob.

"Even though it means you guys can't treat me like your 'old friend Nick' anymore." She finished, deep misery in her voice. "Even though it means you won't look at me, won't touch me, and act all stiff and strange... I'm sorry."

"No, no!" Bill protested, sitting down beside her - and forcing himself not to hesitate as he took her hand and held it in his. "It's not your fault! Not only didn't you know you were going to be... emotional unstable, but you did know we wouldn't react all that well, and tried to do this when we wouldn't be here. Instead, we assure you it's all right, that you're our friend, and nothing will ever change that

- and yet, here you are a woman, and what do we do? Act like typical, uncaring, insensitive male assholes. We're the ones who are sorry, Nikki - isn't that right, Gary?"

"It sure is." Gary agreed, firmly. "You need to give us a good, swift kick in the pants, Nikki. We ain't no friends if we get all weirded out jus' cause you happen to be a girl now. You're still the same person we've known for years, and we won't lit you down."

"You mean it?" Nikki asked, even her hope as incredibly powerful as her happiness and sadness had been. "do you really, really mean it?"

Bill and Gary agreed, firmly - and she shivered and lowered her head, blushing. "What?" The two men asked, concerned.

"Nothing." She tried to tell them, an odd tone in her voice. "No, come on - tell us!" Bill insisted.

She blushed.

"Well, all of the sudden, I just felt incredibly happy, incredibly lucky, to have you two as friends, and I..." She hesitated, then plunged ahead, the words tumbling out of her mouth in a sudden rush. "I suddenly got this very, very, VERY strong urge to kiss you guys, I'm sorry, I know that's, like, really perverted, and I'm trying to fight it down, I couldn't help it, I'm sorry..."

The two men shared a startled look at each other over her lowered head.

"Well..." Gary said, slowly. "If a cute, busty babe, who also happens to be a best friend of mine, wants to give me a kiss, I ain't dumb enough to say no."

Nikki's head snapped upright. "Really?" She asked, breathlessly. "Sure." Gary said, with a shrug.

"Oh, Gary, you gorgeous man!" She said, voice throbbing with intense, soul-deep happiness. "You sweet, sweet man!"

Then, with a joyous, trilling laugh, she wrapped her arms around Gary's neck, pulled herself tight to his body, and proceeded to kiss the living hell out of him.

Even as she was doing it, she was aware of how 'strange' it was for somebody who had recently been a heterosexual male to be throwing herself so passionately, so eagerly, so happily into kissing her friend - but that intellectual knowledge was a weak reed next to the intense emotional pleasure she was feeling from 'rewarding' both herself and her friend for being so.. well, so 'kind' as to let a recently ex-male kiss him, which was an odd horse-before-the-cart situation if there ever was one.

It was all making her so incredibly, unbelievably.. well, not so much 'happy', though she was, but 'content'. It felt as if everything were right with the world, as if nothing could possibly be wrong, leaving her in a state of bliss...

...bliss that became utterly complete as Bill hesitantly cleared his throat, tapped her on the shoulder, and said: "Hey, lady - I think it's my turn..."

Not that the situation wasn't decidedly odd for the two young men. What it really boiled down to, however, was that they did, indeed, want to make their good friend Nick, whether currently female or not, happy - and, if what seemed to make her happy also gave them some physical pleasure, despite the emotional turmoil it might have created in them, well, that was just 'icing on the cake', now wasn't it...?

* * * * *

Still bathed in a warm, post-orgasmic glow, Nikki carefully slipped out from under her lover's tanned, muscular arm and wiggled off the bed. When he mumbled in his sleep and rolled over, she hesitated until she was sure he wasn't going to wake up, then retrieved her white silk robe from the floor and slipped it on. Tying it so that it covered the crotch it was barely long enough to conceal, she almost thoughtlessly tugged the lapels into position so that it displayed a perfect view of her deep, creamy cleavage.

Padding silently to the door, she quickly picked up her shoes, then slipped outside and carefully eased the door shut. Once it was closed, she sighed and stood upright, making no special effort to be quiet as she dropped her shoes to the floor and stepped into them.

Moving with a smooth, graceful stride atop the slender, four-inch heels of the open-toe pumps, she headed towards the living room of the large cabin, her shoulders held back to further emphasize the firm, full breasts that swayed enticingly from the extra little 'dip-and- sway' she put into her walk.

In the large, wood-floored living room of the cabin, she found one of her friends already curled on the couch, paging through a magazine.

"Hey, buddy..." Nikki said, warmly. Leaning forward, she claimed a long, deep kiss, shivering in delight as a hand parted the folds of her robe to lightly caress one softly-firm breast.

As the kiss slowly tapered off, Nikki sat down and lightly began tracing one hand over the smooth, incredibly shapely leg exposed by the other woman's pastel pink bra-and-panty ensemble.

"God, Billie..." Nikki said, enviously. "You've got great legs."

"A saving grace." Billie said, stretching luxurious in pleasure at her friend's touch. "The rest of me looks like a fourteen year old boy."

"Oh, it's not that bad..." Nikki assured the slim-hipped woman. Though she did, indeed, have a 'tomboy' look, she was definitely female, from the cute face under the thatch of short, tousled hair to the perky 'B'-cup breasts filling out her girlish bra. "Where's Sheri?"

"Where do you think?" Billie asked, archly. Opening her mouth, she moved a fisted hand back and forth in front of it, while pushing her tongue against the inside of her cheek to make it bulge out in a matching rhythm.

"Oh, be nice!" Nikki said, lightly slapping her friend on one smooth thigh with a laugh. "It's not like you and I don't occasionally 'lick-a- dick' ourselves, you know."

"Sure." Billie agreed, easily. "With Sheri, though... She's like, obsessed with it. That girl just can't get enough of it..."

"Sure I can." Sheri argued, stepping into the light with a grin. "In fact, the very thing you complain about is that I make sure I do get enough!"

"Cock-sucker!" Billie accused the gorgeously tall, toned woman with the sweet, southern-accented voice.

"...and proud of it!" Sheri retorted, loudly. Since sound-proofing had been installed in all the bedrooms in the cabin during their 'shamed' phase, they didn't have to worry about waking their respective dates for the weekend. "At least I've got myself a pair of breasts, boy!"

Naked aside from the skin-tight jean shorts she wore, the stunningly beautiful woman reached up and cupped her dome-like D-cups, the full lips on her fashion-model's face curving into a smirk.

"Yeah, well you'll be sneering out the other side of your face when you see the ones I'm getting next month!" Billie retorted, hotly. "Saline implants nearly as big as Nikki's knockers!"

Her friends went dead silent, staring wide-eyed at the slender young woman. "Oh..." Billie said, realizing what she'd just said. "Um..."

"Implants?" Nikki demanded. "You know you can't do something like that! Think how you'd look when you changed back for work on Monday!"

"Actually..." Billie said, slowly, "I'm quitting my job. I wasn't sure just how to tell you guys this, but... I'm going to be living as Billie full-time."

"What?" Nikki gasped. "But... But..."

"But what?" Billie demanded. "Hey, in a way, it's your fault. If you hadn't gone on about how 'utterly content' you could feel like as a woman, Gary and I wouldn't have tried it - and if we hadn't, we wouldn't have known you were right. So, you can't blame me for deciding I like being more happy as a woman."

"Well, no, but..." Nikki said, tapering off.

It wasn't like she hadn't considered it herself. Every week, she waited breathlessly for the weekend to be 'Nikki', and each Sunday she dreaded the moment she had to go back to being male... but to live full-time as a woman?

"I mean, look at me." Billie said. "Just like you two, I look like my male self, just female. You've already proven that even our fingerprints still match. I'm just going to move to a new state, then apply for a name and gender change on my ID, saying I had sexual reassignment surgery. I don't think it'll be a problem."

"You're moving?" Sheri asked, stunned.

Billie sighed, then nodded. "Living as a woman is one thing. Having to face everybody I know as that woman is another. I think a clean break is for the best."

"Even with us...?" Nikki asked, feeling tears begin to well up.

"No." Billie said. "We'll work something out for us. I mean, we already keep each other's secret - and that's in the face of some very determined guys trying to figure out where their 'hot dates' for the weekends go during the rest of the week. That's another reason why I need a clean break."

The three friends remained silent for a moment longer... "I'm in." Sheri announced, suddenly, her face calm. "Huh?" Billie blurted.

"You're right. Being female is much more enjoyable than being a man ever was. We're just holding on to our old, male identities.. well, out of habit. It's the ones we are familiar with. Well, I'm coming with you, and we'll both live life as women."

"All three of us." Nikki corrected. "All for one, and one for all - right?"

Slowly, Billie began to smile, her one fear - the diminution of their friendship - now alleviated.

"Hell, it'll be worth it if flat-girl hear can finally get herself some tits!" Sheri needled her friend. "Besides - it'll be nice to be able to let out hair and nails grow out, get out ears pierced, and all that good stuff without having to worry about the effect on our 'male' side."

"Hell, yeah!" Billie agreed, tousling her own short mop of hair, which she'd been afraid to grow out. "Uh, just one thing..." She turned her attention to Nikki, her voice low and serious.

"You have to destroy your machine." She said. Nikki blinked.

"Why? So we won't ever be tempted to turn back?" She asked.

"Hell, no!" Billie said, grinning. "Because being female is so addictive! If word got out, soon all the guys would be turning themselves into women - and then who would we have to fuck?"

Laughing, the three women embraced each other - much as they'd embraced the joys of their new shared gender, and everything that went along with it.

More than anything, though, their joy stemmed from the fact that, in an unstable world where anything, even their gender, could change, their friendship was still the one rock-solid certainty on which they could count.

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

© 1997 - 2016 TGstories.

Stories on the "Public Access" pages may be Copyright by individual authors.

Home | Membership | Terms & Conditons | Privacy Policy | Contact

SUMMARY: A twisted tale of self-humiliation and emotional pain all wrapped-up in one crossdresser's hallucination.

(Author's Note: This story is darker and somewhat more gruesome than my usual fare. You've been duly warned: Read at your own risk.)

Urgency

---

By Gunslinger

The room lay in deep, patterned shadows, the full moon's silver-blue light further diffused by the simple white drapes that billowed back and forth in the faint summer draft coming in through the opened windows. From the yard below the second story window, a cricket played erratic counterpoint to the deep, even rumbles issuing from the shape that lay beneath the bed's rumpled sheets, the rhythmic, even snores of a man in a deep, dreamless sleep...

...which was why it was odd for the big, rawboned man to suddenly sit bolt upright with a gasp, his dark eyes snapping open to stare at the opposite wall in uncomprehending shock.

"Whuddahell...?" Rudy muttered, his shocked expression fading into one of puzzlement, without losing one iota of the incomprehension. He shook his head slightly, hoping to clear it with the sharp movement, but the deep sleep he'd just snapped out of was reluctant to give up its grip on his brain.

With a soft groan, the broad-shouldered young man ran his broad, calloused hands over his face, then flipped an errant lock of sleep-tousled hair out of his hands, idly running his fingers through his shock of wheat-blond hair as he stared sightlessly down at the rumpled sheets, trying to figure out what he was doing sitting bolt upright in bed in the small, still hours of the morning. Letting his hand drop limply, he turned his head and squinted wearily at the glowing green numerals of the clock on the bedside table, his sleep-bemused brain taking a second to work out the meaning of the floating, wavering digits.

"Two fuckin' thirty in the morning..." He grumbled to himself in the rough voice of a heavy smoker. "Goddammit - even the fuckin' birds aren't up at two thirty in the fuckin' morning..."

Idly scratching at the stubble along his heavy jaw, Rudy first wondered what the hell had woken him up so damned suddenly - then dropped the half-formed question for a more important one: why the hell was he sitting here wondering what had woken him up when he could be laying back down and going back to sleep?

Since he couldn't think of a good answer for that one, he let himself fall backwards, yanking up the sheet even as his head hit the pillow...

...and his heart-rat shot through the roof as he snapped bolt-upright in a sudden panic, driven by a desperate - and inexplicable - need to get out of bed.

He had no idea where the thought had come from. It wasn't even a fully formed 'thought', more of an emergency reaction, the type you might have if you woke up in the middle of the night and smelled smoke.

Well, there wasn't any smoke, nor any other obvious sign of trouble or impending danger - yet, still, that desperate urgency to get out of bed was pumping adrenaline into his system, yanking his body into a much higher state of wakefulness than his still logy brain.

For a few seconds, Rudy tried to ignore the unnamed urgency - more out of pure pig-headed stubbornness than anything else, since it was pretty damned obvious that he wasn't going to be able to fall back asleep anytime soon...

...but the heart-pumping urgency just kept growing, finally reaching the point where it overcame even the incredibly deep reserves of 'mulishness' Rudy had at his disposal. Cursing loudly, he thrust his adrenaline-swamped body out of bed, fumbling for his jeans on the dark floor with mildly trembling fingers.

Yanking the stiff, grimy denim on, he ignored socks and the work-shirt still laying somewhere in the shadows, hastily tucking the hem of his singlet-style undershirt into the jeans as he stumbled towards the door, his feet responding more to a sudden need to get out of the room than any real conscious decision. Buttoning and zipping the fly, he reached out and began to fumble for the door-knob, his pulse racing and his heartbeat pounding wildly in his ears in response to his blindly unreasoning - and completely unreasonable - panic.

Finally, his big knuckles slammed painfully against the cool metal of the knob, and he all-but-ripped the door open, stumbling anxiously out of his bedroom as anxiety sweat ran cold down his body.

He stumbled across the hall and leaned against the wall for support, looking back at the door to his room with confused, angry eyes. The darkness of the room beyond seemed to loom impossibly deep and large, like some hideous grave about to spew forth some unimaginable horror, deadly and undying, ready to devour him in the most painfully agonizing...

Hands trembling despite his near-desperate attempt to steady them, he took what seemed and impossibly huge risk in order to reach back into that yawning, terrifying darkness to grab the knob and slam the door shut...

...at which point his heart-rate began to slow, his body shivering uncontrollably as the flecks of red and black began to fade from his eyes, pulling him back from the edge of an honest-to-god fright-induced heart-attack.

"What the fuck is wrong with me...?" Rudy asked the air around him, slumping back against the wall on legs that suddenly felt rubbery. Yanking the hem of his undershirt out of his pants, he folded dingy white the material upwards to wipe the cold sweat from his face.

"What the fucking hell is going on here?" Rudy angrily demanded of the fabric - an anger marred by a nervous quivering in his voice that bothered him enormously.

For several seconds, Rudy simply stood there, wiping the already sodden fabric over his heavy brow, ignoring the chills that came from air moving across the hard, sweat-slicked muscles of his abdomen.

Finally letting the shirt drop into place again, Rudy took a deep breath, squared his heavy, muscular shoulders, and began to reach for the door to his room...

...then pretended that the sharp, sudden shiver he felt was from the sweat covering his body rather than fear.

"Fuck it." He mumbled, turning away from the door as if he didn't really want to go in anyway. "I need some coffee..."

Feeling disturbingly weak as the adrenaline rush subsided, Rudy trailed one hand along the wall as he made his way down the stairs to the main floor, flicking on the lights as he moved through the barely-furnished living- and dining-rooms. When Shannon had divorced him after less than a year of marriage, she'd claimed the usual wear-and-tear of marriage had actually been some sort of physical and emotional abuse, and had made off with better than half of his hard-earned money, even though the lazy bitch hadn't earned a damned cent while they'd been married.

Only the fact that the house had been inherited from his parents had allowed him to keep it - though she'd practically stripped the place before leaving.

Actually, Rudy didn't care all that much about her taking the furniture - she'd thrown out most of his perfectly good, comfortable furniture when they'd married, replacing it with stiffly uncomfortable, overly ornate shit. He was just as happy to have it gone. A few more over- time shifts at the mill, and he'd be able to put some good, sturdy furniture back in the house...

His long-standing anger at his ex-wife was a lot more comfortable to focus on than his strange and 'unmanly' panic-attack, so he focused on that instead, drawing on the anger and disgust the thought of Shannon still managed to arouse, even after more than two years since the divorce. With that anger supplementing his energy, Rudy started the small, second-hand coffee-maker he'd purchased to burbling, the rich smell of the coffee also helping to pull his brain all the way to full function.

Leaning back against the counter, Rudy waited for the coffee to brew...

...when a thought came out of nowhere and slapped itself into his brain:

Something in the attic was burning.

There was no really basis for the thought. He hadn't smelled smoke upstairs, and he still didn't - but, nevertheless, the thought grew in urgency and conviction, completely unsupported by any rationale.

Brow furrowing, Rudy lifted his face and stared upwards, as if he could see right through the intervening floors. There was no reason to believe that the sudden thought was based on fact...

...yet, despite that, he found himself moving towards the door.

By the time he reached the bottom of the stairs, he was moving at a dead run, unreasonably convinced that there was something smoldering in the attic, about to burst into a blazing inferno that would incinerate the house and everything he owned...

...and with his money problems since the divorce, he'd let his homeowner's insurance slip.

As he dashed ungainly up the stairs, almost losing his balance, Rudy found himself actually hoping to smell smoke or see flames - at least then he'd know that he wasn't slipping his cams.

There was no visible sign of a conflagration, however, not even after he'd leapt up to grab the pull-cord and yank the attic stairs down from the second-floor hallway's ceiling. He scrabbled up the narrow, steep 'stairs', barely remembering to crouch before he slammed his head into one of the low exposed beams of the roof.

Yanking the pull-chain to ignite the bare bulb that was the wood-floored room's sole source of illumination, Rudy looked around the cluttered, dusty attic, eyes flicking from object to object in search of any sign of fire...

...and found his eyes being drawn to the old luggage in the corner.

Awkwardly bent in the cramped, triangular-shaped space, Rudy shuffled as quickly as he could to the trunk, his bare feet stirring up the hick layer of dust covering the floorboards as he moved.

Reaching the pile of luggage, he flipped through the various suitcases and bags until his hand closed around the worn Lucite handle of an old Samsonite suitcase, somehow convinced that whatever was inside was just about to reach combustion. Fingers feeling stiff and awkward, he flipped open the latches and yanked the case open...

...to reveal an inoffensive array of clothing, harmless and undamaged other than being somewhat musty from long confinement.

It was a bunch of his mother's old clothing. Rudy had practically forgotten it was up here, having stuffed everything she'd owned into the luggage and tossing it up here almost immediately after getting back from her funeral. She'd been another one of the world's apparently endless supply of useless woman, a big woman of sturdy Minnesota stock who'd been a good enough cook and housekeeper, but a lousy role model. She'd constantly - no, continuously - babbled about 'God', 'Jesus', and other equally ridiculous crap, and Rudy's father had needed to use a firm hand to keep her from filling the boy's head with such useless prattle.

A beefy farm-girl type, Rudy's mother had almost always worn something floral, and the suitcase was full of such ridiculously taking clothing, disgustingly 'girlish' flowers spattered all over the clothing as if somebody had spilled a garden into the suitcase. Though somewhat musty, the clothing was in good shape, showing no sign of moth-holes, deterioration - or imminent combustion.

Just to be sure, Rudy pawed quickly through the clothing...

...and then stopped dead, staring down at a shirt.

It was much like any of the other clothing in the suitcase, a floral nightmare of pastel pink and blue roses cheaply printed onto the white fabric of the tank top. Aside from some differences in color and pattern, it was practically identical to at least a half-dozen other tank- style shirts in the suitcase...

...yet, for some reason, Rudy found himself unable to put the damned thing down.

In fact, he found himself being filled with a growing conviction that he should put the shirt on.

"Hell no...!" Rudy snorted, wondering what the hell was wrong with his mind as he dropped the shirt and turned away, heading for the ladder. He was going to go downstairs and drink some coffee, then he was going to call the night-shift foreman at the mill and tell him that he was taking the day off to see a doctor about something. In the meantime, he'd just ignore any strange thoughts that slipped into his mind...

...except it was damned hard to ignore. In fact, he was sweating as heavily as if he were dragging an enormous weight along with him - which it practically felt like, each step as painfully slow and difficult as if he had lead weights attached to his legs.

"Goddamnit!" Rudy growled between tightly clenched teeth, sweat streaming down his face as he forced himself to take each progressively more difficult step, feeling as if he were trying to wade through molasses as he approached the top of the ladder...

...and then he recoiled from the ladder as his heart seemed to momentarily turn into a block of ice in his chest and an unreasoning panic swept through his body with such force that he didn't even feel it as his instinctive movement caused him to slam the back of his head into a rafter.

The horrible monster that had been in his bedroom had escaped, and it was in the hallway below. It was some hideously evil creature, and it was moving with slow, ponderous steps, dragging itself towards the ladder to the attic. It was coming, and it would rend limb from limb any living creature it found not wearing a pastel-pink-and-blue tank top...

"This is crazy...!" Rudy wheezed, his chest feeling as if he were in a giant vise that was slowly being closed. "There's nothing down there!"

He tried to force himself to take another step forward and look down, proving to his emotions what his logical mind knew had to be true...

...but instead, found himself taking a quivering step back, struggling to get breath into lungs that simply couldn't expand. His heart was going like a hyperactive jack-hammer, and gray was forming at the edges of his vision even as gold and black specks danced in eerie, synchronic patterns across his vision...

Gasping desperately, he collapsed to his hands and knees, his strength rapidly draining from his body as he dragged himself helplessly back from the suddenly huge, yawning pit of the attic access-way, moving further and further back...

...until he realized he could go no further. He was huddled in the corner of the attic, his eyes barely able to make out anything against the encroaching blackness as his limbs helplessly shivered and quivered...

His shirt seemed to weigh a ton, but his panicked attempt to rip it off succeeded, and he desperately struggled into the floral tank-top...

Immediately, the crushing pressure on his chest eased, and he slumped back among the suitcases and drew in a deep, wracking breath of air, holding it for a second to savor the head-rush from the oxygen before he let it out and panted in several more in rapid succession.

Laying limp on the pile of suitcase, he shivered and twitched helplessly, shame burning through him as he waited for some of his strength to return.

Finally, faint energy began to seep back into his body - and his first move was to reach down and grab the hem of the stupid, musty- smelling tank-top, preparatory to yanking it off...

the blast of panic almost knocked him unconscious, and he yanked his hands away from the garment as if they'd been burned. "What.. the fuck.. is.. happening.. to me...?" Rudy panted - and was ashamed to hear the plaintive - almost wining - tone of his voice.

He simply lay there for a good ten minutes, feeling his strength slowly return to his brawny limbs, replacing the horrible, embarrassing watery feeling that had seemed through his body after the last panic attack. When he felt sure he could make it, Rudy pulled himself stiffly upright, glancing with disgust down at the stupid top he wore - but making no move to take it off.

Wearing a woman's top was bad enough. Having another 'womanly' panic attack would be worse.

Rudy found that he no longer had any fear - or even any thought - of a 'monster' lurking at the bottom of the ladder, descending easily and confidently down the narrow staircase...

...but he was humiliated and disgusted to find that he could little more than glance quickly - and, sickeningly, fearfully - at the still-closed door to his bedroom.

Muttering under his breath, Rudy slowly made his way back down to the kitchen, feeling like a complete idiot - worse, like a wimpy idiot. He was a man, damn it - and not merely a 'male' like some of those pansies and faggots out there, but a real man, goddamnit, big and strong and confident...

...so what the hell was wrong with him?

As he poured himself a cup of strong, black coffee, Rudy glanced at the phone on the wall - but it was too early in the morning to even try calling Doc Brown, the 'Family Doctor' he very rarely saw. Big, strong and healthy as horse, Rudy was proud of the fact that he almost never went to see the sawbones...

...which was why the fact that he was actually anxious to go in and see the doctor was especially galling to him.

"To hell with it..." Rudy muttered, darkly - and then he had a stroke of 'genius'.

Since he was up anyway, he'd just go out to the living room and toss in a movie. That was sure to get his mind off tonight's weirdness and make him feel more manly.

Carrying his steaming mug of thick, dark coffee - ('If you wanted coffee, why the fuck did you ask for cream and sugar', as his old man always used to say) - Rudy walked out to his living room.

Putting the mug down on the discarded cable-spool he was using as a coffee table (which was right in keeping with the 'decor' of the rest of the 'living room suite', which was a pair of battered, over-stuffed vinyl armchairs bought forth-hand from an old hotel), Rudy walked over to one of the few things he hadn't let Shannon get rid of when she'd moved in - and one of the even fewer things she hadn't even tried to take with her when she'd left.

His collection of porno films.

It was quite extensive. He'd gotten the very first tape in his collection from his father on his sixteenth birthday. ('Debbie Does Dallas', in Beta format no less, kept around in about the only sentimentality Rudy allowed himself - though his defense, even to himself, was that you just didn't throw out perfectly good porn.) In the eleven years since, he'd expanded his collection enormously, using the 'rent to own' method - or at least his own version of it, where he'd rent videos from the local store, then, if he liked it, wait for it to be tossed in the 'bargain bin', where he could pick it up on the cheap.

If there was anything better than god porn, it was good, cheap porn.

He started to reach for a tape and random, since they were what he considered the 'cream of the crop' anyway...

..then paused, struck by a feeling that he should be a little more choosy tonight. That he should pick one of his 'special' favorites, something special to help offset the weirdness of the night.

He quickly panned the almost-memorized collection, looking for something that looked more enticing than usual - and finally settled on one of his all-time favorite movies - 'Bigger and Better'.

Actually, it was the 'oddball' tape in Rudy's collection and not as often watched as a result of the fact - but he'd still bought it, and occasionally watched it, for a couple of reasons. One of which was that every time he watched the damned thing, he couldn't help but recall the way Jessica, the stupid cow he'd been dating at the time he'd rented it, had reacted to the sight of the ridiculously over-inflated women on the tape. The other reason was that, though the women on the tape weren't as hot as the women in other movies, and they all sported surgically-enhanced boobs that ranged from simply big to downright ludicrous, the women were all damned near perfect examples of what women should be, even their utterly ridiculous plastic boobs showing their desperate need to be what they thought men wanted.

Some of the tension leaching from his shoulders, Rudy smiled as he grabbed the movie from the shelf, slipped it out of its brightly colored and lewdly illustrated box, and popped it into the high-end VCR atop his big-screen Toshiba.

Walking over to his favorite of the two chairs, Rudy felt better already as he dropped heavily into it.

Part of the fact was that even he thought of watching some porn was making his cock stir, even before he'd turned the damned thing on.

With quick, efficient movements that bespoke long familiarity, Rudy peeled open his jeans and undid the fly of his old-style boxer shorts, allowing his already hardening cock to pop free of it's confinement and rise to half-mast. Built on the same ruggedly manly scale as the rest of him, his cock swelled to it's full length of twelve inches, thick and heavily veined even for it's length.

Lightly wrapping one hand around his cock in preparation, Rudy used the other to grab the remote, turning on both the TV and the stereo, the hitting 'play' on the VCR.

The blue-screen on the TV flickered and vanished...

...to be replaced with unrelieved blackness. Rudy frowned.

The tape, like many porn movies, was low-budget, and the beginning was right at the front of the tape - in fact, the initial studio screen was actually cut off by the useless 'leader' at the beginning of the tape. As soon as he'd pressed play, an image should have popped up. Instead, there was only a black screen - which meant that the tape must be playing, because if it had been jammed or broken or otherwise unplayable, the blue-screen would have either stayed up, or popped right back into place as soon as the machine realized it couldn't play it.

Before Rudy had time to get truly pissed, much less reach for the remote, he felt a strange shudder run through his body - and he slumped back in the chair, feeling suddenly weak, as if his insides had turned to water.

"What the fuck...?" He said in a thick, wavering voice - and, strangely, his voice actually rose in pitch with each word, as if somebody were spraying a blast of helium into his face or something...

Confused, stunned and a little afraid, Rudy pulled his hand off his cock...

...or, at least, that's what he meant to do. Instead, something else happened.

His grip simply refused to release, his hand remaining wrapped around the base of his huge cock as he pulled upwards - and, with a wet, slurping sound, his cock popped free.

It was utterly painless, and for a second Rudy's brain refused to register the sight of his massive cock being held in front of him, hairy ball-sack still attached, smooth unbroken flesh covering the part that should have joined to his crotch.

His mind still not quite accepting what he was seeing, he flicked his eyes down to his crotch...

Nestled in his patch of curly, wheat-colored pubic hairs was a very familiar shape - except that 'familiar' didn't really apply to this particular situation, since he'd never actually seen a cunt on himself before.

"I'm dreaming." He said, stating the obvious reason to find that his cock had gone numb and painlessly separated from his body to leave behind a tight new cunt...

...except that it didn't seem like a dream, everything as crisp and real as anything could be...

...even the voice that came from 'his' mouth, the high-pitched tones in perfect keeping with the feminine nature of 'his' crotch.

So stunned was Rudy that he didn't even notice his hand going limp, letting the warm, thick cock drop, to bounce once on a denim-clad knee before landing on the chair.

"This.. is not... happening..." He gasped out in shock, that high-pitched and damnably undeniable feminine voice grating across auditory nerve-endings that felt as if they'd been scraped raw with industrial sandpaper. "I.. I can't have a... a... a... cunt. Only women have... uhn!"

Rudy's nearly instinctive - and useless - denial was gut short by a surprised grunt as his chest... twitched. The rose-covered top he was wearing actually jumped, as if there were as small animal underneath who'd suddenly kicked out.

Instinctively, Rudy's hand's shot towards his chest - and then stopped a few inches shy, his eyes widening under lashes that he didn't even notice growing longer and thicker. He was too busy staring at his fingernails...

...which were growing longer. Growing longer - and slowly gaining color, a pale pink sufficing the translucent material of his nails, rapidly becoming brighter and deeper, running through 'pink' and into 'red'...

...as his fingers became thinner and more finely built...

...on hand that was becoming narrower and more delicate...

...to match the steadily slimming wrist...

...attached to an arm that was rapidly losing muscle mass and definition...

...as his body hair was sucked back into his skin with a strange pulling sensation...

...that was joined by an every stranger sensation as the skin itself became smoother, less tanned and work-roughened.

His chest twitched again, yanking his dazed attention from his arm and back to his chest, his jaw hanging open as his gaze switched focus like a heavily doped tennis spectator.

The shirt jumped a third time - then tore clean down the middle, falling away from his body...

...to reveal his unattached cock, which had slid, unnoticed in his stunned daze, under the shirt...

...only it wasn't really his cock anymore.

It was even bigger than before, a good sixteen inches long, with a now hairless ball-sac even more enlarged in proportion to the rest of the organ.

The skin had gone a unnatural shade of deep greenish-black, and the thicker, gnarled veins running up and down its length were more pronounced, and they were pulsing with the flow of the eerie, phosphorescent liquid inside, which was a particularly bilious shade of green.

The shocked screamed that was ripped from Rudy's throat was almost the perfect illustration of the 'feminine panic scream' made famous from countless B-grade movies, so utterly feminine as to almost define the word. Though the massive, throbbing cock had once been his pride and joy, he instinctively batted it away from his now smooth, hairless chest, flinging it off his less-defined pectoral muscles...

...and just as his now smooth, feminine arms stretched outwards, launching the cock towards the TV, the cock shot out a pair of small, black tentacles that wrapped themselves around the cuffs of his jeans. His pants were ripped unceremoniously from his body, dragging his underwear off as well - which only served to reveal legs that were still fairly firm and well-toned, but in an undeniably feminine manner.

The cock dropped to the floor, the tentacles disappearing as if they'd never existed, leaving it laying on top of the jeans, pulsating slightly.

Still stunned, Rudy remained frozen for a moment in the last position, his now fully female hands stretched out in front of him...

...when there was a soft 'plop-plop' as an object dropped into each outstretched palm. He stared uncomprehendingly at what he now held, a pair of deflated-looking almost-clear sacs, each of which had a little spout or tube attached at one point...

Rudy screamed again - this time in mingled pain and shock as his nipples suddenly.. opened - like toothless mouths, eager to feed, stretching impossibly wide...

...wide enough for his newly feminine hand to suddenly and shockingly shove those sacs into his chest, pushing aside some muscle in a painful shove that left the deflated sacs specifically positioned under the skin, forming small lumps beneath the nipples - which snapped closed as soon as her now long-nailed fingers were clear.

Rudy was reduced to wordless noises that sounded almost like a choking diner as his traitorous hands, having shoved the sacs into his chest, now stretched outwards again...

...to grab the two clear, plastic, metal-needle-tipped tubes that had dropped from the ceiling. For a second, his new hands simply held the IV-style tubes with their gleaming metal ends...

...which gave him time enough to glance upward in shock.

His lips - now fuller and colored a bright gloss red - formed a pouty 'O' of stunned realization, his fine, arched eyebrows rising in horror above his bulging eyes, staring past the long, thick lashes that framed them...

...to read the word 'Saline' printed in bold 'Stencil' letters on the side of the tank the tubes were attached to.

Then his hand whipped inward, a needle puncturing the skin just inside each opposing armpit, unerringly finding the implanted spout of the empty implants.

A hum started from above as the thickened 'salt-water' began to pump through the tube - and into the implants in his chest.

"No...!" He - no, she - screamed in horror, struggling to yank the tubes from her armpit as her chest began to bulge outwards rapidly, the implants within filling quickly with the body-temperature liquid. Flashes of pain accompanied the increasingly 'bloated' feeling from her chest as her bulging mounds swelled steadily outwards, weight quickly accumulating as the flesh stretched impossibly well - yet remaining taut and firmly resilient, forming unrealistically perfect globes even in the 'C'-cup range...

...yet rapidly swelling past that size, soon looking like a pair of flesh-colored oranges on her chest...

...grapefruit...

...honey-dew melons...

...pumpkins...

"No...!" She screamed, helplessly, as her chest continued to swell, the weight mounting as the saline was pumped in a steady flow into her chest, pressing it ever outwards. "No...!"

The machinery - and her body - ignored her hysterical pleas, doing nothing to stop the rapid expansion of the tits she'd never wanted, now each as big as a basketball, and still growing. The 'bloated' feeling was even worse, the weight of the new breast unable to pull the unnatural round breasts down very much against the 'support' supplied by the taut, stretching flesh that covered them.

"Help...!" She tried to scream, her voice breathless and almost choked-sounding. "Somebody...! Help me...!"

Nobody responded to her sob-torn begging - not even her radically altered, disobedient body. She squirmed, unable to dislodge the saline IV's as her tits reached the size of medicine balls, and still continued to swell.

"Help me.." She whispered in a hitching sob - yet her eyes remained dry, even the cold comfort of tears denied her as her breasts finally stopped growing.

They were enormous. Utterly, ridiculously, impossibly enormous, not 'rivaling' the surgically-enhanced chests in the movie, but surpassing even the most 'ambitious' of them by a margin of several inches. Each breast was bigger than her head - either her new feminine one, crowned by a long mane of platinum-blond hair in a massive, thick wave, or her larger original one.

With a pair of nearly simultaneous muffled pops, the IV's were yanked out of her armpits as the tubes retracted back up to the tank.

She stared in inexpressible horror down at the freakishly huge, obviously 'fake' tits thrust from her altered ribcage, mind wanting desperately to escape into the welcoming arms of blissful insanity, but unable to slip the bonds of sanity.

Without warning, the horrified new woman found herself yanked upright onto her feet...

...which were now clad in bright red strappy-style pumps with a sloped eight-inch platform and tapering sixteen inch heels, her new feet forced into what should have been an utterly impossible arch - but 'impossible' no longer seemed to hold any meaning anymore, which made the fact that she could stand in the impossible shoes, even against the drag of her massive, heavy tits, as likely as anything else.

There was an odd, slurping sound - and the carpet beside her and behind her rippled, as if liquid, and a complicated apparatus rose from the floor as if surfacing, the carpet actually running and dripping off of the gleaming chrome and black lacquer paint as it slid upwards...

...and she could do nothing as the central 'pillar' of the device rose smoothly upwards to insert itself into her ass, the bulbous end shoving up the unlubricated canal painfully, making her gasp in pain.

A sidewise pressure began deep within her body, making the gasp turn into a long, low moan as her hips began to spread outwards...

...even as tubes rose as if alive, darting like clear snakes to shove their needle-like ends into her body at four points, symmetrically matched on either side of her waist and in her buttocks.

A pump began to whirl, and a thick pinkish-red slurry flowed through the tubes, her waist shrinking inwards as her buttocks expanded.

When the machine finished, she 'boasted' an outrageous caricature of an hourglass figure, a incredible wasp waist barely there to separate her widely rounded hip and almost freakishly full ass from her enormous new bust.

As the machine retracted back into the ground as smoothly as it had arisen, the new woman's eyes were fixed in horrified shock on the reflection provided by the blank screen of the television.

She looked like Marilyn Monroe - or rather, a cartoonishly caricatured version of the famous 50's sex symbol, shoved so far deeper into the 'feminine' side of the spectrum as to be unrealistic, a fantastic version of the woman exaggerated to the ultimate limit, from her incredibly full bee-stung lips to her massive mane of platinum blonde hair. About the only things that were a dead-on match for the original were the breathy voice and the small mole.

The new 'Marilyn' whimpered at the sight of herself....

"Well - what have we here...?" A voice said, deeper and crueller than 'Marilyn' remembered, yet nevertheless familiar...

...which was a good thing, as otherwise Marilyn might not have recognized the woman standing the living-room doorway. When Shannon had stormed away two years ago, she'd been a tall, dark-haired woman with a slender, lithe build.

Not now.

Now her tall body was a rippling mass of thick muscle, incredibly well defined and yet still feminine. It was easy enough to see this, since she was completely naked.

In her hand she held Marilyn's old cock. As the new woman watched with unbelieving eyes, Shannon grinned cruelly - and pressed the base of the enormous ball-sac against her crotch.

When she let go, it remained where it was - and the dead-black color of the cock began to expand outward through her skin, spreading rapidly from the crotch until she was the same coloration all over, with the thickly cabled veins of her massive musculature thrumming with the same unhealthy green phosphoresce at the massive, thick cock she now boasted.

"No..." Marilyn whimpered, horrified - even as she began to walk towards her hugely endowed she-male ex, using a stride that was as outrageously over-exaggerated as her new body. Helpless to stop herself she walked right up to the new she-male, whose eyes were now the same sickly glowing grin as the 'blood' pumping through her veins.

"Nice tits..." Shannon laughed. She reached out and very lightly ran one finger across the smooth surface of an artificially huge tit... Marilyn cried out in shock - and pleasure. Bolts of intense pleasure rose from her freakish ex-wife's touch...

...and as the brief blast of pleasure faded, it was replaced with a deep yearning, an instantaneous urge to feel that sensation again.

Stunned, Marilyn lifted her own hands upwards, being carefully of the ridiculously long nails each finger sported as she touched her own, massive breasts...

...then yanked her hands away as if she'd been burned - which it felt like she had, a sharp hot pain lancing through both her hands and her new tits. The pain throbbed through nerve endings for an instant...

...then faded back into that soul-rending urge to feel the pleasure that had thrummed through her body a minute ago. Shannon laughed at the tortured look on the new woman's face.

"You can never pleasure yourself in any way. Any attempt to touch yourself in a pleasurable way will cause intense pain..." She taunted. "Anybody with a cock who touches you will give you a burst of pleasure in the part they touch - but also leave you craving that level of pleasure again. The more they touch you, though, the more your body will 'become used' to their touch, slowly lessening the sensation - until you're forced to find another cock-carrying person to provide for your humiliating new addictions."

Marilyn lowered her new face and sobbed - dry eyed.

"Well, now that I've got your cock and explained your fate to you, I'll be going..." Shannon said in an artificially casual tone, turning with muscular power and starting to walk away...

Shame and humiliation burned deep within the new woman as she watched Shannon start to leave...

...as did desire, increasing the burning emotional pain and self-hatred as she watched Shannon get ever closer to the front door... "Please fondle my tits..." Marilyn whispered in a broken voice.

Shannon paused and looked back with a cruelly questioning smile, her tone mocking. "I'm sorry, I couldn't hear that very well - we're you begging for something, bitch?"

Marilyn's incredibly plump new lips worked soundlessly, her breath coming in short pants of intense emotional distress...
...and Shannon began to turn away again...

"Please, oh please, come fondle my tits..." Marilyn begged in a broken voice, hating herself for giving into the disgusting, desperate desire running through her body, but unable to bear it.

Shannon stopped and turned again, her smile even more cruel.

"Why should I bitch?" She asked, reaching up to lightly fondle her own pectoral-dwarfed breasts with an exaggerated shudder of pleasure. "I've got my own tits to play with..."

Marilyn felt as if she were being twisted apart inside, one set of urges directly contradicting the other... "I.. I.. I..."

Shannon started to turn...

"I'll fuck you...!" Marilyn screamed, completely broken. "Anything, Shannon..."

"Damn right, 'anything' you stupid bitch." She laughed, standing there and enjoying Marilyn's torment. "that's just the point. You'll do absolutely anything at all to fulfill your addictions, no matter how disgusting and humiliating you find them. Now, why don't you beg me to come over and fondle those tits of yours, the ones you love to hate and hate to love?"

The new woman desperately wished she had the release of tears, no matter how 'unmanly' they would be - that humiliation would be a welcome relief compared to what she was going through as she said: "Please, Shannon, come play with my freakishly huge tits. Come squeeze and fondle these massive monsters, and make me even more addicted to having them touched by anybody with a cock.

Please come fondle my huge new boobs, and I'll fuck you anyway you want..."

Shannon laughed - but she came back over. Still laughing cruelly, she began to fondle and squeeze Marilyn's enormous, heavy globes, working her way across them in every dimension to touch every square inch of their taut flesh, driving the addiction home...

...as the new woman thrashed and moaned in horrifyingly pleasurable disgust, unable to forgive herself for begging for this even as she was unable to stop herself. Her moans of pleasure were mingled with whimpers of humiliation, and she was as unable to suppress either sound as she was to suppress either response to the touch, emotional or physical.

Sharply and without warning, Shannon yanked her hands from Marilyn's new tits - and laughed again as the words popped unbidden from Marilyn's mouth: "Please, don't stop!"

"But, darling...!" She said in a sickly syrupy tone, her eyes widening in a grotesque parody of innocence. "I want a little kiss from my honey-bunny - unless you have any objects to becoming addicted to kissing, that is?"

Marilyn whimpered. "No, Shannon, I'd love to have you kiss me and get me addicted to kissing."

She smiled - but there was nothing humorous about the expression. Leaning forward, she roughly grabbed Marilyn's face between her hands and pressed her lips against Marilyn's, hard...

...and it felt fantastic, and Marilyn hated herself for kissing back after only the barest hesitation, her lips moving against her radically- changed ex-wife's, hesitantly and almost unwillingly parting to allow Shannon's tongue to slip inside and increase the pleasure she was feeling...

...only something about Shannon's tongue felt strange...

...probably because it wasn't a tongue at all, but a huge, thick cock that got almost instantly hard as it filled her mouth, shoved deep inside...

...and it felt wonderful, and before she consciously registered what was happening, Marilyn was 'eagerly sucking on it, lips and tongue dancing in new patterns...

...which she couldn't stop even as she knew what she was condemning herself to...

About the same instant, she realized she was sucking on a cock - and loving it - Marilyn's ex-wife twisted and bucked - and slammed the huge cock she now sported deep into Marilyn's incredibly flexible new cunt...

...causing incredible waves of pleasure to thunder through her new body - which only served to deepen her humiliation and emotional agony, that fact that she loved fucking and sucking cocks worse ten the acts themselves.

Shannon used the leverage of her massive musculature to fuck the new woman with an odd, undulating body-movement that alternated which cock was plunging painfully hard and fast into which opening - and yet the act was painful, it was also causing intense pleasure that made Marilyn horribly disgusted to find made the pain an 'acceptable' situation, so that she'd be willing to absorb almost any physical discomfort in order to meet her new addiction, adding 'pain' to the list of humiliation and degradation she'd suffer from her still- unexplained fate.

Shannon continued to pump into the new woman over and over, driving a huge cock into her new cunt with deep, hard stokes at the same instant she withdrew her cock from the depths of her mouth - and then reversing the rhythm, causing the peak of pleasure to bounce back and forth from crotch to mouth in a mind-crushing series of rising pleasure-peaks...

It was perfectly timed. Marilyn had just enough time to have her mouth flooded with hot, thick, disgustingly salty cum that she was disgusted to find caused enough pleasure for her to gulp it all down eagerly, permanently imbedding cum-slurping in her new list of 'basic needs'...

...and then Marilyn hit orgasm at the same instant Shannon pumped hot cum deep into her new cunt. The orgasm was the most intense wash of pure ecstasy Marilyn had ever felt...

...and it was enough to overload her brain, and for several seconds her mind went completely and utterly blank... Rudy blinked, wondering why he'd snapped awake...

...and why he was standing up...

...and why he was standing in the living room...

...and why he was facing a grotesque, muscular creature that looked sort of female but boasted a huge, thick cock...

...and why he found himself desperately, horrifyingly, wanting to suck or fuck that cock while somebody fondled or squeezed or even tortured his freakishly huge tits...

...and then the entire humiliation of everything that had happened so far came slamming back to her mind, compressed down to an instant of emotional pain and humiliation and horrifying desire so deep and broad that she screamed in total agony of the soul for twelve long second, her new voice seeming to fill the entire universe with the depths of her despair...

...before it trailed off and she helplessly dropped to her new knees, causing her massive new tits to jiggle and bounce painfully as she began to beg Shannon to do anything she wanted to, as long as it would fulfill at least one of her rampant, raging new desires, especially the one for an orgasm intense enough to make her forget for an instant what had happened, so that she'd be forced to 'relive' the humiliations and pain over and over again, each new 'super-orgasm' more humiliating than the last as each new fuck, suck or other addictive torture was added into the instantaneous memory-flood that would come...

In her pleasure/pain swamped new psyche, there was no room for Marilyn to ponder how any of this could even be happening... "Well...?"

Doctor Emanuel Brown zipped the rubberized black bag shut - much to Sheriff Johnson's relief - and rose to his feet, brushing dust from the knees of his pants.

"No doubt about it." Brown said, heavily, shaking his head. In the strobing glare of the various emergency-vehicles, the doctor - and County Medical Examiner - looked much older than his forty-nine years. "Smoke inhalation. Being such a heavy smoker, his lungs were used to a certain amount of smoke, and he didn't even wake up before he died. I bet we'll find that it was his smoking that killed him, too

- a butt probably flared up."

"Heard that story a hundred times..." The sheriff sighed, looking at the smoldering remains of Rudy's house - more to take his eyes off the body-bag and the horribly burned remains now hidden behind its walls than out of any interest in what remained of the house. "What's your official call on TOD?"

Brown squinted slightly. "I'm going to call Time of Death to have been at two-thirty in the morning. That's got to be pretty damned close."

"Damned..." The sheriff mused, thinking about all the trouble Rudy - and his father before him - had caused over the years. "Yeah, Doc, I think that's just the word..."

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

---

© 1997 - 2016 TGstories.

Stories on the "Public Access" pages may be Copyright by individual authors.

Home | Membership | Terms & Conditons | Privacy Policy | Contact

SUMMARY: An aging gentleman agrees to a mysterious surprise vacaton where he will be transformed into an unknown form; to his surprise he ends up a big busted bimbo and likes it!

The Vacation

---

By Gunslinger

Richardson leaned forward, his hushed voice full of sincerity as his neatly manicured hands gestured imploringly. "Think about it, Mr. Lonnigan - it's the ultimate vacation. A week away - not just away from your work, or your surroundings, or your pressures... but from yourself!"

Patrick Lonnigan folded his broad hands over his trim stomach and eyed the... salesman? Patrick's worn hazel eyes narrowed slightly in puzzlement as he realized that Mr. Richardson didn't give off the 'vibes' of a salesman. His manner was more of that of a... well, a convert, spreading 'the Good Word' to the uneducated masses, and believing every word he spoke.

Patrick lifted himself from the overstuffed leather chair in Richardson's office and slowly walked over to the wet bar, pouring a finger's worth of Glenlivet into the bottom of his glass before turning back to the sandy-haired man regarding him from behind the desk.

"If your... services..." Patrick began, slowly, "...had been suggested to me by anyone other then my oldest and most trustworthy friend, I would have left by now, you know. What you're suggesting... well, quite frankly, it sounds absolutely insane. Impossible."

The meticulously well-groomed representative of the extremely secretive and uninformatively named 'Adventurer's Club' looked over the prospective client carefully. At sixty-two, Patrick Doyle Lonnigan was still hale and hearty, his big frame carrying almost no extra weight, and the sharp look in his eyes belying his short, carefully styled mane of silvery hair. A millionaire many times over, Patrick Lonnigan was nobody's fool - and Richardson wasn't surprised at Lonnigan's hesitancy to accept the offer's apparent impossibility.

"Mr. Lonnigan." Richardson said, slowly. "I understand your doubts - from a layman's stand point, the suggestion that we could give you a whole new body, identity and life to spend a week away seems... ludicrous. But you, yourself, have never heard of us until you friend - and one of our previous clients - brought us to your attention. That is because we keep our procedures and offers held very close to the vest. The government does not know about our work, and only the most trusted - and, to be brutally honest, wealthy - people in America have ever even heard our name whispered. Our services are not for the masses, sir - no, they are for a very select few, who can afford our prices - and whom we can trust to keep our secrets."

Lonnigan looked at Richardson a long moment, searching for a sign - and seeing only sincerity. Lonnigan had always prided himself on his ability to judge character - and Billy Winthorp himself had suggested he come here, dammit! He would trust William Winthorp with 'his wife, his life and his money' - not that he was married, mind you. But the principle in the old saying still held true - he trusted Billy implicitly, and Billy had suggested that this was the place to come to get the vacation of a lifetime.

Slowly, the older man nodded to himself. "You say that my money is fully refundable if I am not satisfied?"

Richardson grimaced slightly. "Not exactly, sir - as I stated earlier, if you are not satisfied with a specific scenario that you, yourself, have chosen, we refund twenty percent of your payment." He held up a hand, forestalling a reply. "This may seem chincy to you - but we find that many of our clients don't really want what they think they want. When we supply them with exactly what they asked for, they find that that it wasn't what they expected, after all. Now, if you could prove that we actually failed to supply exactly what you asked for, that would be another matter - but if you get what you wanted, and find you didn't enjoy it, that's not our fault in the least."

Lonnigan nodded - it was reasonable. Richardson continued.

"However, if you give us a rough outline of what you want, then take a battery of special tests to 'refine' your proposed vacation, then we offer a fifty-percent return of payment if you are unsatisfied. Finally, if you don't specify anything at all, but allow us to test you and develop what our experts think would be their best 'vacation' - then, if you are unsatisfied, we will refund double your payment." He smiled. "We are that sure of ourselves, sir - and we have yet to pay out anything on our 'surprise' packages yet."

Lonnigan's lips compressed - then he nodded. "Very well - I'll take your... 'surprise package' then."

Richardson smiled. "Very good, Mr. Lonnigan. Now, if you'll just fill out a wavier and a method-of-payment form, I'll arrange the personality and psychoanalysis tests..."

* * * * *

Winthorp had to admire their attention to detail - though naked, the 'table' he was recline on was covered with comfortable padding that was electrically heated, and the room temperature itself was maintained at a comfortable level. Around the table, technicians and what he assumed were Doctors of some sort bustled around, preparing for the 'exchange'.

"Mr. Lonnigan? Can you hear me, sir?"

Patrick frowned slightly at the young man leaning over him, only his youthful eyes visible in the mask-and-cap he wore.

"Of course I can hear you." Lonnigan said irritable, his mood not helped by being naked in a room full of strangers - who, apparently, thought that as soon as a man's hair turned gray, his ears, brain and bladder stopped functioning.

"The clone we started the day after you started has been 'maturing' for the past month..." the man started, and Lonnigan rolled his eyes at the repetition of information he already knew. He had no idea of what the temporary body he was going to wear for a week looked like, but the procedure of how they created a 'brain-dead' body through genetic manipulation and forced in vitro growth had been carefully detailed. "...and has just reached the selected age. They're setting it up in the 'receiver room' as we speak - so it's time to get you hooked up."

"Then lets get on with it." Lonnigan growled, then closed his eyes and tried to relax as the technicians began placing electrodes on his head, having shaved barely noticeable dime-sized spots on his scalp in a few placed for the procedure.

"You're lucky." The technician commented. "The first dozen patients had to have their entire hair shaven for the procedure." Lonnigan grunted.

"Okay - you're hooked up to 'Mama MIA'." The technician said, referring to the Mental Induction Assembly - a specialized supercomputer that Patrick had already been hooked up to a few days before, spending eight hours watching TV and reading while the machine recorded his mental patterns. Now, on the day of transfer, it would bring those recordings up-to-date - and down load them into the newly grown body, while 'suppressing' the mental activity at this end. After the week was up, they'd 'simply' cut-and-past that week's worth of memories and return them to his normal body - then destroy the clone body.

"Okay - we have good telemetry." A technician said. "Put him under and prepare for transference." "Have fun." The technician said - then there was a prick in his arm as a needle went home.

Suddenly, Lonnigan had second thoughts. He tried to say that he'd changed his mind - he wanted to think about it some more...

...but his mouth wouldn't work. Nothing worked, and the world slowly slid away, sucked away in a whirlpool of black that rose to engulf him...

* * * * *

Patrick grunted softly and opened his eyes.

He was staring up at a ceiling. A 'stucco' ceiling, slightly faded from its once Egg-Shell White hue, with a combination fan and light in the center of the room. A border traced around the edges of the room's ceiling, bearing a colorful pastel floral pattern. Daylight was streaming in from a window that must be somewhere to his left, and the muted sounds of traffic came through the unseen glass.

Patrick didn't move so much as an inch, laying perfectly still as he let himself take in what his senses were reporting. He let his eyes rove over the roughened plain of the ceiling as he concentrated on placing himself in the temporary new 'life' of the unknown clone body he was - presumably - now occupying.

It seemed that that must indeed be the case, as he could feel... well, no so much strange sensations, as different sensations - some subtle, some not.

He was definitely laying in a bed - he could feel the sheets and the mattress underneath him, a sensation that he recognized. But it was subtly... off - it felt like the mattress was oddly curved, pushing up against his ass. Also, the sheets felt slightly different against his skin, more... there, almost. He could feel the texture of them in a way he'd never really felt them before. The same thing with the sheet that covered his body - along the length of his new form, the sensations were stronger than he was used to, more vibrant.

His head was laying on a pillow - but there was something else there too, something that itched his shoulders and upper back.

His crotch felt funny - not 'ha-ha' funny, but different, both internally and externally, although he couldn't exactly define how. But he could define what felt odd about his upper torso - it was like he had a weight laying on his chest, as if somebody had piled soft bags of feathers atop him while he slept.

Deciding he'd mentally explored the surroundings enough, Patrick decided it was time to begin his week's worth of a new life. He slid his arms sideways until they cleared the sheet and blanket that covered his new body, then lifted them towards his chest...

...then gasped as they came in contact with the weight that was pressing down. He gasped because he could not only feel the heavy mounds, covered by the blankets - but because he felt the touch of his hands on the masses, transmitted through his body...

...through his...

...tits?

Stunned, Patrick merely lay there, his hands resting atop the covered mounds, absorbing the thought. His hands didn't even come close to encompassing the massive masses of what were obvious feminine flesh, meaning that the breasts had to be... huge. And there was no denying that breasts they must be - despite never have experienced the sensations before, he could feel the touch of his hands through the masses on his chest, he could feel a heightened sensitivity and a slight tingling at the apex of each mound that could only be nipples brushing against the inside of the blanket - and he recognized the feel of the masses under his hands, even if he'd never touched breasts quite this big, or in these circumstances.

"Testing, testing..." Patrick said aloud to the empty room - and was both shocked and unsurprised to hear a rich contralto that was undeniably feminine.

"My God..." Patrick said, stunned. "They've made me a woman!"

He lay there, accepting the fact and turning it over in his mind. In all the idle contemplating he'd done about what he week-long body might be like, it had somehow never occurred to him that it might be anything but male. The realization that he was in a female body was somewhat unnerving and annoying...

...but...

It was also intriguing. Though he hadn't considered the idea, and would never have thought to suggest it, the realization that he was 'stuck' in a female form for a week didn't make him go insane from the 'horror' of it all. In fact, he found himself in a state of bemused curiosity - and began to understand what the battery of tests had been for. Though it would never have occurred to him, now that he was in the situation, he found it opening all sorts of interesting avenues to explore. Although it still felt 'wrong', somehow, it was also exciting

- in a queasy sort of way. He...

No, he corrected himself mentally. She. She had better get used to thinking of herself in the feminine tense, at least for the next week. One thing that had been made absolutely clear was the fact that there was no 'escape clause' - she was in this for the duration.

So.

She found that her heart was pounding, and her stomach was doing strange things. It brought back - sharply - the memory of when he was twelve, and had snuck into his parents' liquor cabinet to get a bottle of vodka for the party in his backyard. The same guilty/queasy/excited/exhilarated feeling he'd felt then was what she was feeling now. The knowledge that the situation was wrong - yet, somehow, also right.

It was a feeling she hadn't felt in a long, long time - and she began to realize how little excitement her life had held for the past few years. How few new vistas there'd been to explore. Now, for the next week, a whole new world was open to her, to explore and examine.

But she still felt uneasy and scared as well - and a dozen other emotions.

It left him... her feeling confused and uncertain - and unsure of how she should feel about the situation, which redoubled the whole mess. Should she be excited? But 'everybody knew' that only queers and sissies would be excited about being a woman. So she should be ashamed... but that wasn't right, because this wasn't something she'd sought out, but and ‘unexpected opportunity’. But it was an opportunity that was ‘wrong’ - or ‘right’, depending on how you looked at it...

Unable to sort out his emotions, feelings, and intellectual views on the situation, Patrick decided to deal with it by not dealing with it. She shoved it all aside - as best she could - and ignored it in favor of a more immediate, non-philosophical concern.

Her bladder was signaling that it was full. Despite being a slightly different sensation than the one she was used to, there was no mistaking the sensation for anything else.

Drawing her elbows under her, she used them for leverage to push herself upwards against the weight and drag of her massive new endowments. She let her eyes drop as the sheet fell away from them, and shook her head at the sight of the massive, firm globes of flesh that thrust proudly from her chest. The size of basketballs, they were incredibly firm and round, tipped with large, dark nipples that were rapidly stirring in the cool air.

Leaving off the inspection of her huge new tits, Patrick swung her legs over the side of the bed. She looked at them with interest as she did so - they were quite shapely, if somewhat more muscular than Patrick’s ideal. They were long and toned, with a nice tan and sleek muscles, and she was amazed at the ease and power with which she was moving - she hadn’t felt this way in decades.

Well - she’d never felt quite this way, ever. But the power and agility of the body she was in was obviously that of a woman many years the junior of her ‘real’ body. For a second, she admired her naked, toned form, then shook her head in mingled disbelief and confusion and got on with living her week as a woman.

Pushing herself from the bed, Patrick instinctively tensed, to prepare to fight for her balance...

...and almost fell over. Not due to lack of balance - but because she’d fought against the perfect balance she had.

“Whoa...” Patrick breathed, blinking. Then she smiled slightly and headed across the bedroom towards the door, finding herself moving easily and gracefully. “They did seem to think of everything.”

The fact that her body seemed able to balance itself and move easily in a feminine manner in no way lessened the impact of the strange sensations created while walking in her new body, of course - the gentle swaying shift of her new breasts, the way her hips dipped and swiveled with every step, the odd emptiness in her crotch - that somehow didn’t feel ‘empty’, as if something was missing. For this body, everything was right where it was supposed to be.

And that was the oddest feeling of all.

Opening the bedroom door, she found herself looking down a short hallway. To the right, a door opened onto what was obviously a second, smaller bedroom - and the door on the left led into the white-tiled sanctuary of a bathroom.

With that same unnervingly easy grace, the newly made woman walked into the bathroom - and stopped dead at the sight of herself in the mirror over the sink.

Patrick stared for a long moment at the image that was reflected back at her. The person staring in the mirror was a tall, athletically built woman, with wider shoulders and strong facial features. Although this kept her from achieving beauty, it didn't make her unattractive - indeed, she was quite pretty, in addition to being remarkable fit. Oh - aside from her large, firm tits, she'd never be singled out in a crowd. But that went both way - she'd never be particularly noticed because she was neither attractive or unattractive enough to cause comment. In fact, if it wasn't for the bust-line the strawberry-blonde woman boasted, she could vanish into a crowd, nobody remembering her passage moments later. She was so generic-looking in her features that there was nothing for the mind to hold onto - aside from that tremendous rack of hers, of course.

Patrick wasn't sure how to take the news that she'd be spending a week as 'a walking, talking pair of tits' - as it was obvious that anybody bothering to remember her or try to describe her would start with "Well, she's got these really big tits..."

Shaking her head again, Patrick pulled herself away from her new reflection to take care of the business at hand. Walking over to the toilet, she eyed it the way one of Caesar's legionary's might have looked at Hannibal's approaching elephants - with great misgivings and a tingle of fear, but confidence in the ability to overcome the obstacle.

Then again - look what happened to the legions...

Lowering the seat, Patrick turned around and lowered herself onto the cool white seat, shivering as it touched her firm, full ass.

For several seconds, she just sat there, her lips set as she tried to force the urine out her new plumbing - but the situation was so new and she was so tense, nothing happened. Then, finally, she sighed and relaxed as the stream began to spurt out, feeling decidedly strange to the new woman, both similar and different from what she was used to.

Rising, Patrick carefully wiped herself, shivering at the sensations the action caused. Flushing the toilet, she walked back into the bedroom, trying to get used to the feel of her new body as she moved.

Looking around, she spotted a purse laying on the bureau, and went over to it. opening it revealed a clutter of stuff, which she guessed was normal for a woman's purse. In the zippered side pocket of the purse was a green leather wallet. She opened it, finding a fair-sized wad of cash, some credit cards, and 'her' ID.

She looked at the ID with interest. A grainy photo showed her new face, and she learned that in this form she was going to be known as Denise Patricia Ryan, aged twenty eight.

It was also a New York State license, and she assumed that she'd been relocated there, although that was tentative assumption she'd have to prove later.

Patrick... No, she told herself, shaking her head. She'd better get used to calling herself by her new name for the duration of the week. It wouldn't do to offer the wrong name... although making her middle name Patricia was a nice touch, so if she did make that mistake she could say she used her middle name.

So - Denise put everything back in the wallet and looked around, wondering what she should do to start her week-long vacation from herself. It still felt incredibly strange to be in a female body, and she wasn't quite sure what she should do. She decided that it was best to do the simple things first, and decided to get some breakfast. A bathrobe hung on the back of the bedroom door, and she pulled it on and padded out to the kitchen...

It didn't take long for Denise to figure out that the cupboards were as bare as they could possibly get. There was cookware, china, silverware - but no food, nothing to drink, nothing...

...except a short note, sitting inside the empty fridge. Don't be a homebody. Get out a bit.

Denise smiled a bit, realizing that they had, indeed, thought of everything. She was nervous about going out in public in her new body - but this forced her to face her fears and overcome them. If she didn't go out, she was going to end up really, really hungry by the time the week was over.

Shaking her head at the none-to-gentle shove out of the nest, Denise went back to the bedroom and opened the closet to survey the available choice of clothes.

The large, walk-in closet was full of an assortment of women's clothing that she assumed would fit her new form, but she definitely didn't feel adventurous enough to try some of the more obviously feminine outfits. Instead - feeling delightfully naughty, and exhilarating sensation - she picked out a pair of jeans and a black T-shirt that were nevertheless made obviously female by their styling. The jeans were tailored, designed to fit tightly to the body, with small zippers at the bottom of each leg to allow them to be that form-fitting. They also had white-leather trim at the pockets and the waist, as well as running down the inside and outside seam of the pants. The shirt was pretty basic in its design - it was hard to get very fancy with a T-shirt - but it was fairly low-cut at the neck and bore silver lettering on the front that spelled out the words 'What are You looking at?', right at the level where her breasts would sit one it was on. It was daring and flirtatious - as well as mildly reproving. The perfect mix for a transformed man nervously trying to enjoy being turned into a hugely endowed woman.

Putting the two items on the bed, she went over to the dresser and opened the drawers until she found the underwear. After a couple of minutes consideration, she giggled, startling herself - but the thought that had struck her was so deliciously unlike her normal thoughts that it just pulled the laugh out of her feminine throat.

Blushing furiously, she picked out the items that had triggered the thought and carried them over to the bed. Sitting on the edge of the bed, blushing furiously, she began to dress.

First came the panties. The red panties. The red lace panties that were so skimpy as to be barely there. Denise slid them on, sliding them up her well-contoured legs and standing to settle the whip[s] of fabric around her new hips, feeling the back of the thong panties slide up the crevice between her full, firm cheeks and snuggled them in place so that the small triangle of wispy fabric was taut over the small, neatly trimmed patch of pubic hair that surrounded her new womanhood.

She was blushing almost as bright a red as her panties - and the matching lace bra that she put on next, finding that - like walking - the ability to do this easily and naturally had already been 'programmed' into her new body. the bra did very little to support her massive new tits, which were so incredibly firm that they didn't need much help anyway. Instead, the lacy garment only served to draw attention to her massive mounds, the strapless demi-cup barely covering her nipples, which were still visible through the translucent material.

Then she pulled on the nylons. The bright red nylons with the black elasticized bows attached to the tops to hold them in place. the nylons that also had black letters stitched into the material just below those bows. Letters that spelled out the words 'sex goddess' around her thighs as she pulled the smooth, sheer fabric up her legs, feeling the new sensation of having her legs encased in the light fabric.

She giggled again, amazed at her own audacity, and had to trot to the bathroom to look at herself in the mirror. She looked like the centerfold of a porn magazine.

She headed back to the bedroom, grinning. She'd seen the set in the drawer and had realized that yes, she could wear such sexy, feminine things. Her new body would look fabulous in them, and was designed for just that sort of clothing - and nobody but her would ever know. She knew that she'd feel a sort of delightfully guilty pleasure all day long, knowing that under her otherwise 'semi- conservative' clothing she was wearing the sexiest little wisps of nothing she'd ever seen, but that was all right - because that's what the whole thing was sort of about, wasn't it?

She slipped on the jeans over her nylon-encased legs, having to struggle a bit to get them on - they hugged her ass and hips like a second skin, creating a unique pressure on her more sensitive anatomy that was actually quite pleasant. They were so tight that she had a bit of trouble bending her knees to get the zippers at the bottom done up.

Then she pulled on the T-shirt, hiding the sexy bra that she'd probably die from embarrassment if anybody knew she was wearing. She knew that nobody would find somebody who looked like her wearing clothes like that unusual - but she was still male at 'heart', and the thought of being seen in lacy lingerie made her picture her old male body in that outfit, and imagine the shame if she'd been caught like that. But the super-feminine underwear was safely hidden from sight under the mildly feminine outerwear, and she was having a high old time. The fact that she was nervous didn't detract from that at all, only adding a delightfully 'forbidden' aspect to the excitement and - yes, and pleasure she was feeling.

Not too long ago she'd awakened in this 'strange' body and been shocked to find herself female - now she was having a fantastic time, feeling daring and adventuresome while also being nervous and shy. It was a wonderfully confused emotional state that was more than she'd felt in years, and she had to give the authors of this little subconscious fantasy their due - they did, indeed, know what they were doing. She could see now why they never had to pay out that refund - although she would never have thought of this herself, the very fact that she'd bypassed a taboo that had kept her from consciously coming up with this scenario added just the right dash of... excitement.

Just like there were 'danger' junkies out there, who got a thrill from risking their lives, Denise was learning that it was possible to get a 'high' from getting around a societal law. Some men got that high by dressing as women, or even having an operation to become pseudo-females - but had to pay the price, facing the reaction of a society ingrained with the belief that that was 'wrong' and 'perverted'. She, on the other hand, got all the thrill of seeing what life was like on the other side of the gender fence, without there being any fear of being 'caught' at it. It was... exhilarating.

Speaking of which...

Denise's fading blush bloomed anew at the thought that occurred to her, but she figured 'what the hell' and went back to the closet to fetch some shoes...

...or, in this case, boots. She'd spotted them while getting her clothes, but hadn't really considered wearing them. Now, she decided it couldn't hurt, and hauled them out of the closet, amazed at her own audacity.

Sitting on the bed, she awkwardly forced her feet into the knee-high boots, her long, slender fingers smoothing the white leather surface over her legs as she got them into place. They were real pieces of work - not only were they knee-high white leather boots, but they sported five-inch high stiletto heels and had gold-toned chains that ran from the top of the heel on one side, over the bridge of the boot, and to the top of the heel on the other side.

Since she was going 'all out' on the first day, Denise shrugged and - still blushing furiously - decided to go whole hog. She headed towards the bathroom again, finding - as anticipated - that she had no problems at all walking in the high slender heels the boots sported.

Reaching the bathroom, she gathered the items she thought she'd need, and found that she seemed to know everything she needed. It took no time at all to put on a basic make-up scheme - although it definitely felt strange to apply a gloss pink lipstick to her full, soft lips, to add a touch of blush to the smooth flesh over her well-defined cheekbones, to roll out her eyelashes with mascara and add a hint of eye-shadow above her dark brown eyes. The distinctive fragrance of cosmetics - a decidedly 'feminine' odor, to her way of thinking - hung around her when she'd finished, and she could feel and taste the lipstick coating her lips.

Looking at her reflection in the mirror, Denise considered the look, the male part of her mind able to appreciate how good it looked, even as it felt that forbidden thrill at what she was doing. But the overall look - while appealing - wasn't quite right, and it took Denise a minute to realize what was 'missing'.

A pair of small gold-and-tiger's-eye earrings, a slender lady's watch and a slim gold necklace took care of that.

Smiling at the reflection that greeted her when she finally looked again, Denise slung the purse over her shoulder and headed towards the bungalow's front door, her heart pounding at the prospect of going out in public like this. With a sexy, feminine sway mandated by her programmed ability to walk in heels, she reached the front door and paused, taking several deep breathes. Then she opened the door and - for the first time - stepped out in public as a woman.

'Public', in this case, consisted of a car that was just disappearing down the end of the residential street on which 'her' house resided. Looking around, Denise found that her week-long residence was in a fairly nice subdivision, nothing at all remarkable about it in any way. Sitting in the driveway of the bungalow was a late model Ford sedan, with its white paint covered with a light coating of road dust and looking like any one of millions of such cars on America's roadways and highways.

It was becoming very obvious to Denise that - aside from her massive bust line - her whole 'life' had been set up to be as unremarkable as possible. From the outside, that was - from her point of view, absolutely everything was remarkable, seen through a completely new set of eyes and with a new - feminine - point of view.

Climbing behind the wheel of the car, Denise found the right key and brought the sedan to life - and only then realized that she had no idea where the supermarket was. Hell - she didn't even know what city she was in.

Biting her lower lip in thought - and tasting lipstick, which derailed her train of thought for a bemused, amused second - she shrugged and backed out of the driveway, picking a direction at random and pulling away from the house - after carefully memorizing its appearance and number. At the corner, she noted and memorized the name of the street on which she lived, then turned right. Her plan was simple - alternating turns left on right on main streets would get her somewhere, eventually, and it would make it fairly easy to retrace her steps. But she planned to buy a map while she was out, and study the layout of the main streets and the route to her temporary residence. It just wouldn't do to end up lost. Sure, if she spun a 'just moved in story', she was sure she could get help - but she didn't think she had the guts to do that, not in this body. Just driving in 'her' car on public street was making her heart beat faster and her palms sweat.

Her plan had at least part of the desired effect - before long, she found herself driving down what was obviously one of the more commercial arteries, no longer in the depths of residential suburbia. She didn't spot a supermarket down the strip on which she was driving, but she did spot a restaurant that was advertising a breakfast special, and she decided that the old adage about never shopping on an empty stomach might as well be followed - it might take her awhile just to find a supermarket, to say nothing about actually shopping and getting the groceries home. She might as well grab breakfast first.

Pulling into the parking-lot of the diner - a retro-fifties style place, right down to the chrome 'boxcar' design with its broad windows that curved at the corners and a huge neon 'fin' above the door - she locked up her car and - noting another similar vehicle nearby - committed the license plate to memory, adding it to the new facts about 'her' life that were starting to crowd her head.

Pulling open the door to the diner, she walked in and took an appreciative sniff of the aromatic air inside, looking around.

The place was only lightly patronized, and she had a wide choice of places to sit, but she mentally shrugged and decided to have breakfast at the wide counter running down one side and fronting the kitchen, with round stools every five feet along its Formica-topped length.

Lowering her firm ass onto a stool, Denise had to fight down a rising blush as she realized she was the center of some surreptitious attention - a couple of the men in the booths around her and with a view-line to see her were eyeing her. Denise positioned herself so that she wouldn't have to notice the occasional glances that she - or her tits - garnered, and asked the waitress for the breakfast special. The woman took the order and poured Denise a coffee, then wandered away to serve another customer.

Denise added sugar to the steaming coffee and began stirring it, focus her attention on the simple act as a way to keep from the almost instinctive movement of looking around. Doing so would only serve to remind her that she was now an item of interest for some men - and that just felt to weird to deal with right now. Instead, she stirred her coffee and kept her eyes aimed in that direction, not letting herself wander from the simple action.

So, it took a second for her to realize that somebody had come in and sat down beside her. A man, she could tell from the faint odor and the.. well, the 'vibrations' from him, she guessed. Even though she didn't look up, Denise was receiving information from peripheral vision and sound, and somehow - without looking - she put the clues together to equal 'male'.

After another moment, she became aware - through peripheral clues - that the man on the next stool was much closer...

...instinctively, she glanced up, heart speeding up as she twisted at the waist to face the man...

...to find a handsome, casually dressed young man leaning over the counter, staring at her coffee with an artfully intense look.

"Uh... excuse me." Denise said, feeling incredibly awkward and embarrassed to be talking to somebody while 'wearing' this female body. "What are you doing...?"

The young man... No, Denise realized suddenly. A man pushing thirty would only be young to 'Patrick' - to 'Denise', he was a man about the same age.

The man looked up with an exaggerated innocent expression. "Well, you've been staring at that coffee and stirring it for a good three minutes now. I was waiting to see what happened before I risked ordering my own coffee."

What happened next shocked the hell out of Denise.

She giggled. She didn't expect it, and as the 'silly' sound erupted from her throat, she clapped a hand over her mouth, eyes widening in shock at what she'd done - and the man's chuckle at her actions and shocked look yanked another giggle through the muffler her hand formed. She blushed bright red at that, fighting down another bout of giggles that wanted to erupt. She looked away from the man, feeling mortified at her reaction...

"The most spectacular pair of breasts it has ever been my pleasure to see." The man spoke the words clearly and distinctly, but it still took a second for them to register on Denise's mind, so unexpected they were.

"What?" Denise gasped, her head whipping back around.

The man's smile was wider and devilish. He shrugged, gesturing towards her chest. "Sorry - I didn't realize it was a rhetorical question." Denise just gaped at the man for a second - then remembered what was written on the front of her shirt...

...and another bout of giggles grabbed her before she could stop them... then intensified at the man's over-obvious look of intent interest at what the giggling caused her tits to do... which lead her to turn away to get control of herself as the man's sudden burst of laughter at her embarrassed reaction made her flush even brighter.

"I'm sorry..." the man said, still chuckling. "You were just sitting there so seriously ignoring the world around you that I just had to get a reaction out of you."

Still blushing, Denise turned back... and found her mind flashing back to when she had been this age the first time around, as Patrick. A responsible adult - but with those teenage tendencies not too deeply buried, erupting now and then when a certain situation practically demanded it.

Denise laughed at herself and shook her head. "It's all right." She was amused at the irony of it - her solemn attempt to not deal with anyone had provoked somebody into forcing her to deal with them. Which was okay, she realized suddenly. It was like getting into a cold pool - she'd been nervous and still was, but now that she was 'in', she didn't feel the need to immediately jump back 'out'. She held out a hand. "I'm Denise Ryan."

"Rick McLaughlin." He introduced himself, his boyish brown eyes reflecting his smile as he causally flipped an errant lock of dark hair off his forehead. "Please, let me apologize again. There's just something in me that can't leave well enough alone. I didn't mean anything by it."

Denise's mind immediately jumped to a rejoinder - and she blushed, amazed that her mind had come up with it. It was ridiculous, she couldn't possibly....

...but the temptation to feed Rick a little bit of his own medicine - a touch of friendly revenge - was just too good to pass up. In an instant, a million emotions ran through her, a thousand second-guesses, but she found herself blurting it out with almost no appreciable pause.

"What? You don't think these are the most spectacular tits you've ever seen in your life?" Denise asked in an archly hurt voice. Rick spluttered on the sip of his own coffee he'd just taken - and fell off his stool.

Denise burst out laughing and nearly fell off her own stool. Although she was shocked at herself for actually using that come-back - the 'come-on' factor of her, in her situation, uttering it to 'another' man was just too weird - the reaction made it worth it.

"I, uh..." Rick stammered, getting off the floor with his face now matching her own blush. He was obviously floundering in a 'do you still beat your wife' dilemma - what was the correct response to her question? He closed his eyes and took a deep breath, then opened them again and shrugged. "Honestly, Denise? You have an absolutely spectacular body, and I mean the whole thing, not just you admittedly awe-inspiring bust. But that's just to answer your question - I'm not trying to hit on you, okay?"

It was a gallant answer, and Denise - still shocked at her own audacity - was tempted to just leave it - but that newly awakened part of her, the rejuvenated spirit she hadn't felt in ages, couldn't resist - Rick had just left too good an opening.

"Bullshit." She said with a smile, her flush building again. "You're just saying that because you think if you admit you are hitting on me, you'll blow it." She knew it was true - because she'd been there and done that, from the male point of view. If you were single at that age, everything was a bit of an act when it came to women - old enough to be confident in your skills around women, not yet old enough to be comfortable 'being yourself', with all your flaws and human traits on display from the get-go. It was that odd, youthful self-doubt that made guys try to act more macho/cool/smooth than they really were, thinking no woman would be interested in the 'real' them.

Rick looked floored - then grinned engagingly. "Okay - you caught me. I am hitting on you. I started because your an absolutely stunning woman - but now I'm intrigued because you're also obviously smart and funny. So - here's the whole hog. How would you feel about some dinner and dancing with me tonight?"

She had to hand him points for a quick recovery - not that it mattered, of course. She had no interest in going out with him, or any man. Still... she'd let him down easy. "Well, I'm not sure tonight's a good night." She told him, repeating a line she'd heard from the other side more then once. "Why don't you give me your phone number, and I'll give you a call later and let you know?"

Either he didn't catch the hint, or he was persistent. He grabbed napkin and stole the waitress' pen, jotting down his name and number and handing it to her. Denise mentally shrugged and thanked him with a brief, unfelt smile and tucked the napkin in her purse for show.

She didn't give him the cold shoulder as they ate their respective breakfasts, but she kept the conversation light and 'safe', feeling steadily more uncomfortable with his continued interest in her. She wasn't ready to simply 'brush off' a guy yet - hell, she was having a hard enough time just handling polite conversation without blushing - but she definitely didn't feel comfortable chatting with a man who obviously found her attractive. After all, the situation was largely her fault - she'd 'flirted' with him by giving in to her urge to 'top' his style, a juvenile act that was satisfying at the time, but had repercussions. Her decision not to just blurt out her lack of interest was sort of a 'macho' thing, in a way - she realized that women had to put up with this sort of thing every day and managed to deal with it, and if she was going to spend a week as a woman she'd have to learn how to deal with it too. This was just the acid test for her polite suffering of unwanted attention until she could escape - which she did as politely as possible, paying her check and bidding Rick a cool good-bye before heading out to the car and continuing her search for a supermarket.

* * * * *

"Dammit - stop it!" Denise told her reflection angrily as she stared at herself in the bathroom mirror.

It was a little after two o'clock in the afternoon on her first day of being a woman - and she was bored. There was no denying the fact. She'd arrived home about ten-thirty and put away the groceries, then sat down and watched a little TV, really channel surfing more than anything, as there wasn't an awful lot on. She'd made and eaten a light lunch, then again tried to find something worth watching on TV - with no luck. For the past half hour she'd wandered around the bungalow, looking for something to do.

Something to do that didn't involve going out, that was - her foray in public this morning had taken her day's worth of nerve, and she wasn't ready to face that again. It was her first day, and getting used to this body and living in it was going to take a day or two longer. So - she didn't want to go out and look for diversions in public.

So why couldn't she get Rick's offer of dinner and dancing out of her head? Not only was it a public activity - it was a date! With a man! She'd die of sheer embarrassment in the first five minutes, much less how she'd feel in a crowded nightclub with dozens of guys seeing her, lusting after her, hitting on her - there was no way she could handle that. Maybe not anytime during the week - but definitely not tonight, her first night. It was impossible.

So why wouldn't the thought get out of her head? Ever since she'd met him, her mind had seemed to want to return to the thought of Rick, the memory of the way he looked, the way he moved...

...and she was feeling a strange sensation when she thought about him, now. She'd realized at the time that he was handsome, in a charmingly boyish way. But it had been an intellectual realization, and that was all. Yet, now, when she found her mind returning - unbidden - to the memory of him, she was feeling a strange, liquid warmth in her gut and a strange tingling in her over-sized nipples.

Despite never having felt that particular sensation before, she had a pretty good idea what it was...

...she was getting turned on by the thought of a man.

That was disturbing enough to make her decision not to go anywhere with him final - and it made her queasy. She was getting aroused by a man! But she didn't let herself dwell on the fact, having rationalized it with the knowledge that the body she wore was genetically female. Denise knew that there was chemistry involved in male/female relations, and figured that the pheromones between her and Rick were 'just right' to trigger this reaction. It was her body getting aroused by a handsome, 'suitable' man, a completely natural reaction for a female body and in no way a reflection of what her mind was thinking. It was the reason why people ended up in 'physical' relationships with people they didn't particularly like, after all, and it happened all the time. But she wasn't up to dealing with the 'simple' physical reaction that caused her to become aroused at the mere thought of a man she didn't even know.

"I'm going to put a stop to this right now." She told her reflection - her male brain speaking to her female body, both of which had completely different reactions to Rick. Her body was attracted to him physically, and she was bored - a bad combination, as it might - in a moment of weakness - make her agree to go out with him just for something to do.

So, she was going to make a preemptive strike.

Walking out to the living room, Denise dug around in her purse until she found the napkin with Rick's number on it. She found her heart was pounding a mile a minute as she picked up the phone and dialed his number, and her throat seemed dry, all the liquid being used to produce the sweat on her hands.

One ring. Two. Three...

"Y'ello?"

"Rick?" She said, trying - and failing - to calm herself. The sound of his voice not only ramped up the nervous sensation she was feeling, but - very disturbingly - revved up that unwanted hormonal reaction.

She was getting horny just talking to him. "It's me - Denise." She continued.

“Denise!” His voice carried genuine happiness at hearing her voice - which definitely didn’t help matters. “You know - I really wasn’t expecting you to call.”

‘If I wasn’t so damned tempted - physically - to take you up on your offer, I wouldn’t have.’ She thought to herself, the notion thoroughly disturbing. Out loud, she made herself sound hurt. “Hey - if I said I would call you, then that’s what I’ll do - although, in this case, I’m just calling to let you know that I really, really don’t feel like going out this evening. I just wasn’t to stay in - I can’t handle being out in public tonight.”

Why did that turn-down of Rick cause such a powerful pang in her gut? She should be overjoyed at ‘saving’ herself from going out on a date.

She shouldn’t be having these sensations in the first place - her male mind wasn’t ready to deal with female hormones. Even now, she was practically wiggling on the couch due to the warm, damp sensation in her crotch that was disturbingly pleasant in an excited, frustrating way.

“...too bad, but I understand.” Rick was saying, and Denise felt a burst of unwanted affection for Rick, who was taking the rejection so sympathetically. “You were obviously uncomfortable at the diner this morning, so I can’t say that I’m surprised to learn you’re not a real ‘public’ person. If you think staying at home tonight is what you need, then I won’t argue.”

“Thanks, Rick.” Denise said, making her good-byes and hanging up the phone. She’d just ‘locked away’ the possibility of that date by making a firm ‘non’ decision and acting on it...

...so, why didn’t she feel the relief she’d expected? Why did she feel frustrated, annoyed and somehow cheated, instead? The excitement and awe she’d felt this morning at spending a week in the body of a woman had faded to be replaced by the confusion and doubt that the reality of it engendered....

“So - get back to that happy feeling you had this morning, dumb-ass.” She told herself out loud, disgusted at the way she was acting. She was dwelling on the wrong things, that was all. She should be enjoying the differences that this vacation gave her a chance to experience, ‘playing’ with her new role as a female, pushing it as far as she felt comfortable with and seeing what life was like, not sitting beside some phone feeling like she’d made a terrible mistake after doing what was obviously the right thing.

So... how to regain that breathless, excited, only slightly naughty feeling of adventure she’d felt this morning? She considered it - and the answer was so blindingly obvious that she began to flush a brilliant scarlet.

No matter how it had come about - or how unwanted - she was horny. That’s what driven her to even consider going out tonight. So - how did anybody, man or woman, take care of a little excess arousal if they didn’t want to deal with another person. ?

Another unexpected giggle surfaced from Denise’s feminine throat at the deliciously naughty thoughts she was having - but, like the sexy underwear she was wearing under her more conservative clothes - or the male brain hidden beneath a female body, for that matter

- it was a 'private' naughtiness, a secret that only she'd know about.

Still flushing, but breathless with an excitement, Dense pulled off her boots and shimmied out of her pants. She pulled off her shirt and lay back on the large, wide couch, dressed only in the naughty red underwear, staring up at the ceiling as she thought about what she was about to do.

Closing her eyes, she let her hands move on a sort of auto-pilot, not really thinking so much as feeling, letting herself respond naturally to the arousal her female body was feeling.

Her hands started at her legs, sliding over the sheer fabric that enclosed them, and she found the sensation pleasurable on two levels - the smooth, nylon-encased expanse of her legs felt good under her hands, and the pressure of her hands felt good through her shapely new legs.

Then her hands drifted upwards, sliding past her crotch without doing more than applying a little light pressure on the inner thighs. They moved over her smooth, bare stomach, forearms crossing over each other as she moved her arms into an 'x' by the time they reached her bountiful chest, gliding her slender hands over the smooth fabric covering her globes and smiling at the decidedly pleasant sensation it created.

Pushing her elbows out, she began to fondle and massage a tit with each hand, letting her head loll to the side in pleasure as she felt what it was like to have full, firm breasts fondled and squeezed. Pushing herself up on one elbow, she used her other hand to release the catches on the back of the bra, then lay back down and slowly, teasingly pulled the garment away to expose her breasts and their rapidly swelling nipples to the air - and to her hands, which returned to their job of fondling and massaging.

Denise was surprised at just how much pleasure could be had from the round, firm mounds, and understood why women were so interested in foreplay - she hadn't even touched the center of her new sexual construction, and she was already thoroughly enjoying herself, even if she did feel like a strange sort of voyeur.

Moaning softly in relaxed pleasure, she let her hands glide downwards toward her panties. She slid her left hand into the lacy fabric and lifted to make room for her right hand...

...and the skimpy fabric tore away. Giggling slightly, Denise tossed the torn panties - which were quite damp - aside, baring her new cunt to her touch.

She began to stroke the fingers of her hand over the small mound at her crotch in a rocking motion, drawing in breath at the sensation it created. Slowly - oh-so-slowly - she began to extend her middle finger downward, applying more and more pressure on her clit as her hand glided back and forth over the outer lips of her new cunt, rapidly gathering speed.

She was moaning now, a smile on her full lips at the sensations she was creating in her new body, both similar and different from those her old body had felt during masturbation. It was too much for her to continue teasing herself - she wanted something more pretty quickly, having been growing steadily more aroused for the past few hours and lacking the patience to tease herself to the highest conceivable limits.

Gasping sharply, she slid on finger in her cunt to the hilt, felling for the first time the strange sensation of being penetrated. Moving her hips in instinctive rhythm, Denise began to drive her finger in and out of her now-sopping cunt, searching for - and finding - the position and pressure that provided the most pleasure as she finger-fucked herself.

When it came, the orgasm wasn't terribly powerful - but that, of course, is a relative term. It was still a burst of pleasure that emanated from the center of her womanhood and spread rapidly through her altered form, causing a loud gasping moan to be yanked from her throat.

She slowed her finger as she absorbed the sensation, applying a light, gently motion as she rode the quick, relatively weak sensation down. It was her first female orgasm, and she was amazed at how... comprehensive it was. A male orgasm was centered in an appendage that hung outside the rest of the body attached to the exterior of the crotch. This had been inside her body, a warm bursts of pleasure surround on all sides by firm flesh capable of receiving those signals of orgasm in a radiating sphere that left her whole body with a warm glow...

...and, incredibly, still aroused, if no longer so frantically. Unlike the hydraulic pressure of a man's orgasm, this one had taken the edge off the need, not removed the ability or desire to experience another.

Flushing at the naughty sensation that masturbating for the first time as a female had produced, she rose from the couch, noticing the wet spot on the cushion - which only caused her blush to heighten. Fleetinglly she found herself thinking that being female - so far - consisted mainly of getting used to her tits, blushing and giggling.

Which led to another giggle.

Denise flipped the sofa cushion over to hide the wet spot - although the odor of feminine musk remained strong and clear in the room - and, picking up her torn panties and discarded clothing, padded to her bedroom dressed only in a naughty pair of red stockings.

Dropping everything but the panties into the hamper, she used the dry part of the panties to wipe her wet - and sensitive - crotch and tossed them into a garbage can before sitting down on the bed and removing her nylons, adding them to the hamper. She then pulled on the bathrobe, deciding a shower was in order.

She headed into the bathroom and started the water in the tub running to allow it to reach the right temperature before stepping in and switching on the shower head. While she waited, she looked to make sure all the necessities were there for her shower.

The first item she found, under the sink, wasn't a necessity - but made her stop and think. It was a container of scented bubble bath.

Cocking her head, she grinned and - again - giggled. Reaching into the tub, she pushed the stopper into place and added a dollop of the bubble bath to the water, watching it froth and foam as it began to fill. As a man, a bubble bath would have seemed a trifle 'sissy', but he might have done it anyway. In the body of a woman, however, it would have taken an army to stop her once she'd had the idea - it fit perfectly in the excited guilty emotion she'd rekindled.

She quickly found shampoo, soap, towels...

...and a dildo, hidden behind the women's brand of conditioner where a guest wouldn't be likely to find it unless extremely nosy.

The sight of the plastic phallus made her blush all over again - but she was still rather revved up in the sexuality department, even if she didn't want to think about how she'd gotten that way.

When she climbed into the tub, it was with the medium-sized, 'flesh' colored plastic cock in hand.

Luxuriating in the warm, foamy water, Denise closed her eyes and began to let her free hand roam over the wet, slightly slick surface of her breasts, half in and half out of the foamy water.

Letting her mind wander and 'feel' whatever it wanted, she was shocked at the thought that came into her mind...

...but it didn't stop her from acting on it. Slowly, she brought the hand that held the dildo up to her mouth, pressing the tip of it against her full lips. She hesitated a second, then slid the dildo into her mouth, her full lips closing around it.

The heat in her belly exploded into an inferno as she began to give the plastic dick a 'blow-job', finding the skills she needed already in her mind as she licked and sucked the dildo energetically, stunned by the sheer sexual arousal the act caused. Under her other hand, her nipples went hard as rocks as she fondled and squeezed her tits passionately, moaning around the dildo she was pistoning in and out of her mouth.

She could take it any longer - in one swift movement, she swept the dildo from her mouth with a lurid sound and plunged it into the tub... and into her cunt.

She bit back a scream as the dildo filled her hot, wet cunt, and she began to masturbate furiously, her highly sensitized flesh sending waves of pleasure through her as her body writhed and bucked in the up, sending water splashing everywhere as she fucked her brains out with the dildo.

She was shocked and horrified by the force of her need - but she couldn't have stopped if her life depended on it. It was as if she was possessed, another mind in control of the body, and she fucked herself hard with the dildo, not wanting to but needing to.

"Oh... God..." She moaning in intensely guilty pleasure as she fucked herself. She knew she was horny - but she'd never realized that she'd lose control like this if she gave into that lust. Even as she creamed as a powerful orgasm ripped through her body, she found herself not caring about it - she was alone and horny and she could fuck herself if she wanted to.

Gasping, she slumped in the tub, withdrawing the dildo from her now satiated cunt. She was blushing brightly at what she'd done - so vigorously and energetically - but she also felt wonderful, physically and emotionally. It was only her intellect that was having problems accepting it, and at this point she didn't care. She was in a female body for a week, a healthy female body with female hormones and desires. Since she wasn't going to have any 'real' sex, she'd have to get used to pleasuring herself. After all - this body was just reaching its sexual peak, and she could remember how often she'd jacked off her male body when it was at it's peak in her late teens. She should have seen this.

It also explained her reactions to Rick. After all, when she'd been eighteen in her male body, almost anything turned her on. That's all it was now, and she'd need the release that masturbation would bring or she'd probably explode.

Laying the dildo aside, Denise washed herself thoroughly and climbed from the tub. Drying herself off, she hid the dildo as she let the water empty from the tub, then towed off and rapped the bathrobe about her body and headed to the bedroom.

Having accepted the nature of the feminine body she was going to be wearing for a week, Denise felt utterly fantastic in all ways. She didn't feel guilty about anything anymore, because the truth had finally hit home, and registered intellectually.

She'd been promised a vacation from herself, and when she'd thought that meant from her body. Awakening, she'd adjusted her thinking to mean that it was from her body and gender. But now she understood that it was a vacation from her life - and all the responsibilities that 'Patrick' kept in mind. If she had any urges or ideas, she could act on them freely, and not feel guilty. She could be as odd or strange or unusual as she wanted to be and not worry about what society thought about her actions - because she would only exist as Denise for a week, and wouldn't accrue any long-term consequences. She could dress in anything at all, and not have to worry about how people saw her - she could turn men down flat and not worry about it, as she didn't have to maintain her 'reputation' or 'persona'. Denise was a non-person, existing for one week only. She had no constraints at all on her, other than the loose boundaries of the law, and even that could be circumvented if she wanted. Although she really had no urge to do so, she could imagine all sorts of ways she could break the law for kicks, with no chance of her paying the price - because by the time it was figured out who'd done it, Denise wouldn't exist.

Humming to herself, feeling utterly wonderful, Denise walked into her bedroom and threw open her closet. She wasn't going out anywhere and even if had been, it wouldn't have mattered, as she couldn't care less what people thought of 'Denise' anymore. So she looked through her collection of clothing, giving into the urge to try on the sexiest, most 'taboo' outfit she could put together. It might be 'taboo' for 'Patrick' - but for Denise, nothing was out-of-the-question, as long as she felt comfortable doing it.

Having realized that, Denise felt extremely comfortable picking out a sexy little number to wear in the privacy of her own home, so she could not only feel the thrill of the previously 'forbidden' act, but so that she could enjoy the sight of a big-titted babe in a sexy outfit - even if that 'babe' was here. Her male mind wouldn't care - it's be able to appreciate the reflection in the mirror as if it were her own private porno channel, with a woman who" do whatever he wanted her to. She'd already decided that sometime during the week she'd have to buy a mirror to mount over her bed so she could watch a sexy woman with huge tits fuck herself with a dildo - a real turn on for both her male mind and female body.

With a wicked smile, Denise dressed in the outfit she'd picked.

First to go on was a pair of nylons. They were similar in style to the red ones, but with the colors reversed - black nylons with red elastic bows at the top.

Then she pulled on the black lace garter belt and attached it to the nylons, feeling a thrill as she skipped the panties all together - she was going to be home alone tonight, and if the sight of her sexy body got her hot and bothered, there was no reason to ruin another frilly pair of panties.

She then pulled on a black bra - but this one was a little more substantial than the one of earlier that day, not only supporting her breasts, but lifting them and pushing them together, creating an awesome sight as her already firm, round tits became perfectly spherical and pressed together for maximum cleavage effect.

She then pulled on the skirt she'd chosen. It was something else - made of black leather with spandex inserts on the side, it hugged her body incredibly tight but stretched amazing far when she moved - she could spread her legs and get easy access to a cunt that was already beginning to dampen, or keep her legs together and it hid all, molding itself to her body.

A silver spandex crop-top covered the bra she wore while displaying both her fantastic cleavage and flat belly. But she was just getting started.

She did her make-up, this time with a heavy hand. Gloss red lips outlined with a darker shade. Silver-blue eye-shadow, eyeliner, mascara, blush - the works.

Likewise, her choice of jewelry was anything but subdued. Huge silver hoop earrings. A silver-and-black choker necklace. Silver bangles and bracelets one each wrist. A silver belt that matched the jewelry went onto the skirt.

Then came the item she'd found in the closet in a box on the shelf - a huge, flowing wig of hair that was black for most of the length but fading to silver at the tips - the item that had helped her choose her outfit. It was kind of 'punk', the hair flowing down her back at various lengths, with the hair at the crown shorter and sticking up. It was so 'eighties' it was almost painful - and Denise loved it.

Then came the final touch. Despite the fact that she was straying in, shoes were a necessity to complete the outfit, and she had the perfect pair.

They were platform shoes. The three-and-a-half inch platform was clear plastic, as was the ten-inch heel that wasn't quite a stiletto - a heel that thin would have snapped. But it was as slim as it could be and still bear the load, and the upper half of the shoes consisted of three silver-colored leather straps, all adjustable with silver buckles. The first sat over the bridge of the foot, the second over the back of the heel, and the third around the ankle. They were completely impractical - and perfect for the look.

One look at the reflection in the mirror - and she giggled, the sound turning into a full-fledged laugh. But it was a good laugh, a fun laugh

- it was like every Halloween she'd ever had rolled up in one, as she dressed up in the most outrageous outfit she'd ever seen, showing off a body that sported a huge, firm pair of tits.

With an exaggerated stride, Denise wiggled and swayed out of the bedroom, getting a kick out of the routine and glad she'd finally caught on - she was having more fun than she ever thought possible, and no matter how 'perverted' she decided to get, nobody but her would ever know that it was 'Patrick Lonnigan' doing it - as long as she could live with the memory, it was okay - and this was definitely more than okay. It was a full-fledged riot.

In that get-up - and aware of being dressed like that - absolutely everything became an adventure. Making a light meal, watching TV, going to the bathroom - everything was new and exciting, colored by the outrageousness of the situation. Before long, Denise found herself working her way through a bottle of wine as she went about her routine, getting a kick out of absolutely everything, but especially in catching her reflection when she walked past any shiny surface or mirror.

About seven o'clock, she was sitting on the couch, legs up and spread as she watched TV, one hand idly rubbing her tits through the shirt and bra while the other gently stroked her crotch - not masturbating, just feeling good. She had a middling buzz on from the bottle of wine, and she was more relaxed and happy than she could recall being in a while.

Then the doorbell rang, and she yanked her hand away from her crotch with a guilty expression - then laughed at herself. The drapes were closed, and nobody could see what she'd been doing.

She wondered who was at the door as she rose, the skirt automatically pulling itself closet over her bare cunt as her legs came together.

Then she giggled, a naughty look coming into her eyes as she headed towards the front door. "Oh - I hope it's Jehovah's Witnesses..." She giggled again, reaching the front door and throwing it open, cocking her body into a come-hither pose...

...then screamed and slammed the door shut on a very confused looking Rick. She slumped against the door, her eyes wide as she crossed her hands over her body.

There was a short pause, then a very, very hesitant knock on the door. Flushing furiously, Denise opened the door a crack, keeping her body behind the barrier and just showing her face through the opening.

"Uh... maybe this was a bad idea..." Rick said, hesitantly. He was casually dressy, wearing jeans and a beige cotton shirt with a sport jacket and loafers, and in one hand he carried a bottle of champagne, with a bouquet of flowers in the other.

"What are you doing here?" Denise asked, mortified at being seen by somebody she 'knew' while dressed like this. Shocking the hell out of a complete stranger was one thing, but she already had met Rick, and she found herself terminally embarrassed.

Rick flushed, lowering his head. "When you called, I noted your phone number on Caller ID and back-tracked the address. I thought I'd surprise you... and I guess I did. I'm sorry - I should have called or something. He was blushing to, as he turned to walk away..."

Denise felt a rush of relief as he started down the steps - she could be alone with her embarrassment at being caught like this. Then something registered, and she glanced up and down the street.

No car in the driveway, or parked on the road...

“Uh... Rick?” She called through the crack in the door. “How’d you get here?” Rick looked up. “Cab. My car’s in the shop.”

Denise closed her eyes and counted back from ten. She considered running to grab the bathrobe to throw over her outfit - but the damage had already been done, hadn’t it? “Rick - come on in.”

“Maybe I shouldn’t - it was a dumb idea...”

“No, no - I insist.” Denise said, hesitantly opening the door wide enough to admit the flustered man, while keeping most of her body behind it’s protective barrier. Rick hesitantly entered the bungalow, and Denise shut and locked the door, feeling awkward and uncomfortable.

“I, uh...” She said, looking down at her outfit, trying to find words to explain the outrageous way she was dressed. When you caught somebody at home unexpectedly, you expected ‘grungies’, maybe - they’d be in their sweatpants, no make-up, wearing silly bunny slippers - that sort of thing. Not done up like some Hollywood version of an Eighties hooker.

Rick grinned a lop-sided smile. “Hey - you don’t need to explain/. You weren’t planning to go out and you weren’t expecting company. You just thought you’d play a little dress-up. Wear something at home that you’d never consider wearing out on the street - have a little fun.”

Denise blinked, amazed at the perceptive comment. “Yeah... yeah, that’s it exactly. How on earth did you know?”

Rick blushed. “Uh... I’ve been known to do something similar now and then...” He looked her up and down, slowly. “Not quite the same, but I have this pair of leather pants and this white ‘puffy’ shirt. Sometimes, when I’m home alone - well, In my own head, I’m buckle a swash better than Errol Flynn ever dreamed.”

That made Denise giggle, despite her current embarrassment, and she relaxed slightly - but not too much.

Rick continued. “I’m sorry - I shouldn’t have just dropped by. But I noticed how uncomfortable you were this morning at the diner, and you said that you didn’t want to go out tonight. Not that you were busy, not that you were ill - just that you didn’t want to go out. So, I thought...” He shrugged. “...you might enjoy some company in the comfort and privacy of your own home. Sort of ‘going out’ without actually having to leave.”

“That was awfully nice of you, Rick.” Denise said, smile wryly - it was thoughtful, and if she hadn’t been dressed like ‘Super-Hooker’, she might be a little more appreciative of the kind gesture. “But... I think I’m about as embarrassed as it’s possible to be and not actually die from it. I... really can’t think of anything at all that would... ‘break the tension’, as it were. I wouldn’t be good company for you tonight - I couldn’t look at you without feeling embarrassed all over again, even if I were to change into the most shapeless, ultra-conservative clothes I owned. I’d still know you’d seen me like this, and that would do it. I’m sorry.”

“I understand.” Rick nodded. “Look - can I use your bathroom for a couple of minutes?”

“Sure - it’s right down that hall.” Denise gestured in the direction of the bathroom, and Rick trotted down the hallway while she dropped to the couch, one hand covering her eyes in a gesture of embarrassment that matched her inner emotions at the situation. She felt like a complete and utter fool.

She sat there for a while, soaking up the shame at being caught like this. For an everyday woman, it would have been bad enough, and that's what Rick thought it was - he had no way of knowing that it was more, Denise feeling the shame of a man getting caught like this. Her moods were direct polar opposites - though she knew, intellectually, that she was 'free and clear', it was only in private that she was secure enough to get that incredible feeling of freedom. No matter how much she tried to argue herself otherwise, as soon as 'public' appeared, that feeling evaporated and left her feeling ashamed and confused. It was like she couldn't make up her mind - confident and fun loving and daring when alone, shy and ultra-conservative in public. And she'd been caught by 'public' while in her 'private' persona. It was as if she were two different people, a split personality - and she couldn't force herself to integrate the two, no matter how easy it seemed when she was alone and in the arms of that ecstatic feeling.

It began to dawn on her that Rick seemed to be taking an awful longtime in the bathroom, and she frowned slightly. "Rick?"

"Coming..." He called back, and her frown deepened - his usually chipper tone had become awkward and nervous. She rose from the couch, wondering what was going on...

...and Rick walked out of the hallway, and Denise's eyes went wide as she fought between shock and laughter. "What are you doing?" She spluttered, gaping at Rick.

He hadn't gone into the bathroom - he'd gone into her closet.

He was blushing furiously and standing with an awkwardness that bespoke his shame - which was understandable, considering how he was dressed. He'd put on a pair of her nylons and a floral print dress that looked utterly ludicrous on him - but nearly as ludicrous as the big blonde wig that topped his masculine face. He'd even jammed his feet into a pair of low-heeled shoes that must be a couple of sizes too small for his feet, and his ankles trembled as he struggled with balance issues.

"So..." he said, swallowing thickly. "How 'bout a movie, or dancing?"

"What?" She couldn't help the giggles that were welling up in her throat at the sight of him in the ridiculous, poorly-fitting outfit.

"Well... you pointed out that you wouldn't be good company tonight because every time you looked at me you'd remember being embarrassed. I realized that would apply to more than tonight, though - from now on, you'd always think of that. So..." He gestured down at himself. "Uh - I thought I'd balance the scales."

Her eyebrow shot up at that. "You let me see you in one of my dresses, then think I'd say 'hell yes, we're even - let's go get changed and go to a movie.'?"

"Not... exactly..." He said, hesitantly, his blush deepening - if that was possible. "I thought you'd get changed into something more comfortable - then we'd go."

Denise blinked. "With you dressed in that?"

He shrugged, looking down at the floor. "Well - it would definitely make you forget your embarrassment, wouldn't it?"

She started to retort that she'd be even more embarrassed to be seen with a 'date' dressed like that - then stopped, realizing that that was probably what he was expecting. The way off the hook.

Again, the urge took her, and she couldn't resist. "Tell you what - why don't we go as we are right now?" She suggested, gesturing to the front door. "Just go out and do some dancing. Have some fun and not worry what anybody else thinks?"

Rick looked at her - and, amazingly, managed a small grin. "Sure. Sounds great."

Shaking her head at his gall in trying to bluff through, she continued her own bluff. "Okay - I'm ready. Let's go."

He began to walk towards the door, tottering atop the three inch heels. She followed behind him, waiting for him to break and admit that he hadn't meant it...

..and waited...

...and waited.

Rick opened the door and tottered down the stairs. Denise hesitated on the steps, not wanting to leave the house like this - then realized that would be his excuse for stopping. She knew he was going to stop if she didn't supply him with an excuse, so she gritted her teeth and lived with the embarrassment of walking out the door and towards the car as if she really meant to go through with this.

She unlocked the doors to her car, and he slid into the passenger seat while she slid behind the wheel...

...and she realized that he was going to tough it out as long as she was. Probably a macho thing - couldn't be the first to give in.

She sighed to herself, figuring that she'd tortured the poor guy enough, and they were more than even. She decided to let him off the hook.

"I can't go out like this - I just can't." She said. "I can't even stay at home like this. I need to get changed."

He closed his eyes and took a deep breath. "Well - my heels are killing me. So, if you don't mind, I'll just wait here while you change."

That's when Denise finally got it through her head.

He wasn't bluffing. He was actually going to go through with this. To get a date with her, he was willing to put himself through abject humiliation - just to spend some time with her.

“Get back inside the damned house, Rick.” Denise ordered him, shaking her head in sheer amazement. “I swear, if I was seen with somebody like you right now, I’d be totally embarrassed, no matter what I was wearing. Just get inside, okay?”

Rick moved with a clarity, and soon the two ‘embarrassingly’ dressed people were safely inside the house, their humiliation viewed only by any neighbor who might have glanced out their windows at the right(wrong) moment.

“I swear - I don’t know what it is with you.” Denise told Rick, shaking her head. “Mama McLaughlin’s boy is just plain crazy, you know that?”

Rick blushed. “I’m sorry - but there’s just something about you that... drive me to it.”

Denise felt a blush rising in her, but refused to let Rick know that there was something about him that affected her, too.

She was, literally, saved by the bell. The phone trilled, and although there was an extension right there, she used it as a pretext to excuse herself and go into the kitchen where she could regain her composure.

“Hello?” She asked, picking up the phone.

“Mr. Lonnigan? Thank God you haven’t done something impulsive.” The voice at the other end said, shocking her. “I am so, so very sorry - I just discovered it, or I would have called immediately. I’m so sorry - this has never happened before, and I don’t know what...”

“Richardson?” Denise said, connecting the voice with it’s owner. “What the hell are you babbling on about.”

There was a short pause, then - in a surprised voice - “Mr. Lonnigan? You’re... not upset? At waking up in a woman’s body?” Denise’s heart skipped a beat. “hold on - you’re telling me that this was a mistake? That I’m in the wrong body?”

“you... you mean you thought that was the body we’d picked for you?” Richardson asked, sounding startled. “You.. you’re not... surprised?”

Denise had to stifle a grin. “I was shocked as hell when I woke up - but since I thought this was the body the battery of test picked, I gave it a try... and it’s not that bad. Confusing and embarrassing at times, but... I can’t honestly say that it’s enough to get me upset by. It’s definitely a vacation from myself, no matter how it came about.” She was bemused at the thought it was a mistake - she’d been ‘enjoying’ portions of being female on the assumption that, deep down in her mind, that’s what she’d wanted. Well, in a way, she guessed that she did - only the tests hadn’t shown it after all. It had taken a mistake to show her that spending time as a woman could have it’s own virtues, even if it was awkward.

Richardson sighed. “Thank God, Mr. Lonnigan. I only hope that the person who was supposed to get that body is as forgiving - we haven’t been able to reach her yet. She’d probably still trying to cope with wearing the body we meant to give you - a male one, of course.”

“That could be it.” Denise agreed, still bemused. “So - this was some woman’s fantasy - to have tits the size of beach-balls? I mean - otherwise, this body isn’t anything spectacular.”

Richardson cleared his throat. "Actually, she didn't specify the body at all. She was - is - rather sexually repressed by her upbringing, and wanted to experience a week of something sexual." There was a long pause, then... "Actually - I guess I should tell you that the body you're wearing was actually designed to be attractive to you."

Denise blinked. It certainly was, but if it wasn't supposed to be hers, then why... "What?"

"Umm... Well, see, we couldn't really guarantee a sexual week with a 'normal' person - so we cheated. We didn't think you'd mind, and we couldn't tell you because it would screw up things if you knew about it - we wanted 'natural' reactions. All we did was put both of you in the same general location, then 'tinker' with your respective body chemistries to produce an incredibly strong attraction to one another, if and when you met. We figured that you'd both enjoy it, without ever knowing that the other was another changee."

"You were going to turn me into the stud muffin for a complete stranger?" Denise asked, amazed - but not upset. If things had worked out, then he would have been in a male body and would have enjoyed meeting by 'chance' a woman he found incredibly attractive and who would find him equally so. It would have been... interesting.

Richardson cleared his throat. "Actually - you aren't exactly strangers... it was the coincidence of it that kind of decided us to go this way."

"What coincidence?" Denise asked, frowning in confusion.

"Well... when you announced to your staff that you were taking some time off and that they could go on vacation, your executive secretary ended up in our offices. She'd be the one who wanted 'something sexual', as she couldn't really bring herself to do anything in her 'real' life."

Denise giggled at the thought that she was wearing the body that was designed for Miss Denholme. His executive secretary was an extraordinarily efficient woman about his own age, and the definitive old maid. A stick-like body, flat as a board. Gray hair in a tight bun, thick glasses, ultra-conservative clothes, prim-and-proper British upbringing - no wonder why Rhianna Denholme wanted to...

Denise's eyes went wide. "No.. it couldn't be..." She whispered. "Excuse me?" Richardson asked over the phone, not quite catching it.

"What... what name did you pick for my new body - the one I was supposed to get?" Denise asked, her throat dry. "Rick McLaughlin." Richardson replied.

Denise stared at the far wall in shock.. then began to giggle. The giggle quickly moved into a full-fledged laugh. "Mr. Lonnigan?" Richardson asked, confused.

"Don't worry about contacting Miss Denholme." Denise said into the phone, still giggling. "She doesn't realize there's a mistake either, and seems to be enjoying the gender swap. Telling her would only ruin it."

"How..?" Richardson started - then realized that they'd set up the situation so the two transformed people would meet.

Richardson had assumed that they'd spent the day inside their respective homes, in shock - but if they'd accepted the change...

"You met her?" Richardson said in amazement.

"Met her?" Denise giggled. "She'd in the living room right now - she'd been hitting on me all day." "You're kidding!"

"Nope - and I gotta go. Can't keep my guest waiting." Denise said with a smile, hanging up the phone before Richardson could reply. She felt the urge to laugh gleefully well up again.

She'd spent all day worried about her inexplicable attraction to a man, fearing it meant there as something 'wrong' with her. But, it not only turned out that that intense physical attraction was artificial (the emotional one was real enough) - but it was an attraction to a person who was a man as much as she was a woman - in other words, the exact opposite gender as her - and 'he' had no idea what was going on. No wonder why Rick was pursuing her so strongly - he thought that this was his sexual fantasy, and was doing his damndest to live it out.

It also explained why he'd been willing to go out in women's clothing - it hadn't been nearly as embarrassing as Denise thought it was. Sure, it was pretty bad, as Rick knew he no longer had the body to wear such clothing, but...

But...

With a wicked grin on her face, Denise left the kitchen, letting herself sway sensuously atop her heels.

Rick had taken off the dress and accessories and was wearing her bathrobe as he held his pile of clothing. He'd gotten changed in the bathroom, and his pants and shirt were wet from the water that had sloshed out of the tub during her masturbation. As she stepped out of the kitchen, he was looking at the floor, obviously still upset at having seen her in an 'embarrassing' situation and not being able to set it right.

"Look, Denise - if I can steal your dryer and you patience long enough to get my clothes dry, I'll get out of you hair..." He said in a sad tone.

"Oh, no - you're not getting away that easy. You still owe me, big time."

The tone of voice she used - dripping sensuality - snapped Rick's head up in shock, and he stared at Denise, who was standing in a seductive, easy pose - he was seeing her completely comfortable for the first time since meeting her. More then comfortable, actually.

"Huh?" He stammered, stunned and confused.

She smiled naughtily. "You're not leaving this house until I tell you to. Now sit down and open the champagne, handsome - I think a drink is in order."

Stunned, Rick did as she instructed, while she glided sensuously over to the couch and sat down beside him, smiling at him.

Learning that Rick was actually a woman in man's body had completely and utterly changed Denise's viewpoint. There was now no 'pervasion' involved, as everything matched, gender wise - male mid attracted to a female body, male body attracted to a female mind, and vice versa. But there was even more than that - it was related to the urge that had caused her to pull the stunts she'd already pulled on Rick. She now knew - for a fact - that he was extremely uncomfortable with these sexual urges, but pushing ahead anyway - not knowing how it was going to turn out. He had no way of knowing, of course, that the 'woman' he was pursuing understood exactly the situation he was in - and determined to have some fun with him.

Quite a lot of fun, actually.

Denise sipped at the champagne while giving Rick a smoldering look that caused him to wriggle nervously in place, wondering what had gotten into her. She now understood that one of the reasons he'd pursued her - aside from the implanted lust, of course - was that she'd been obviously non-aggressive about being female, making it easier for him to deal with. This, however - this was something else, and Rick was obviously as nervous as a virgin. Which, technically, he was, never having 'done it' with a woman before.

She set aside the glass with a wicked smile. "That's pretty good - but it's not quite what I wanted."

"Oh?" Rick asked, innocently - his eyes widened as Denise's fingers stroked against the fabric over his crotch, tracing the outlines of his rigid - and quite large cock.

"This... is what I want." Denise said in a husky voice, sliding off the couch and to her knees in front of him, pulling open the robe to expose his large, thick cock.

"I..." Rick said, blushing. But that was as far as he got as Denise smiled, bent her head and enveloped his cock with her gloss-red lips.

She felt no shame or embarrassment as she began to suck on the head of the cock filling her mouth as her hand worked the shaft. What she was doing was no worse than what she'd done in the tub - in fact, it was kind of a dual masturbation, as this was the cock she was supposed to have had., there was nothing wrong with her using her new skills to give it an incredible blow-job, and there was definitely nothing wrong with the raging furnace it lit in her belly as she slurped away at the throbbing organ, one hand rubbing the shaft while the other played with his balls.

In short order, Rick gasped and moaned as he came for the first time as the result of getting blown, and Denise eagerly gulped down the thick, warm liquid that gushed from his cock in a seemingly never-ending stream, enjoying the rich, salty taste of the cum as if flooded her mouth. She knew that her enjoyment of the taste was because her body had been designed to find it fantastic - but that in no way diminished the actual pleasure she received from sucking off a hard, thick cock. Her body had been built for it, after all - she was a sucking and fucking machine who would receive intense pleasure from any sexual act, and she was determined to get that pleasure - revel in it, as a matter of fact. Especially since the body she was using as a foil to her own was the male counterpart of hers, designed to also receive incredible pleasure from sexual contact, especially with her.

Rising, she licked her lips and smiled down at a stunned Rick.

“You said something earlier about dancing? She asked in a voice that was hungry, her cunt already hot and wet from the ‘foreplay’ of the blowjob. With a sexy glide, she walked over to the stereo and brought it to life, finding a station that provided a song with a driving beat.

Then she began to strip for Rick.

Swaying with the music, she began to walk around the room as if it were center stage at a strip club, and she was putting on a private show. She slowly peeled off her top, exposing her bra-clad tits, and she fondled them through the fabric as she smiled at Rick, then let her hands slide down her body and fondle some other parts of her before returning to her huge, sensitive mounds.

Walking up to Rick, she leaned forward.

“Help out a girl with a problem?” She asked in a sexy/innocent voice, wiggling her torso so that her tits jiggled in front of his face. Stunned, Rick reached up and unclasped her bra, letting it drop free to expose her huge mounds...

...which she promptly ground against his face, enjoying the sensation, She then slid downward and kissed him passionately as she slid her skirt off, revealing her cunt, which was literally dripping. She knew that she could have teased him longer - but she wanted satisfaction, and what she’d done was enough to get him hard again.

Swinging her nylon-clad legs around to straddle him, she lifted herself to her knees on the couch, facing him, and impaled herself on his hard, throbbing cock.

They moaned in unison as she drove herself atop of him, pounding out a rhythm for pleasure as she tossed her head at the incredible sensations running through her body. the wig fell from her head, but she didn’t even notice as she rode Rick, who had gotten over being stunned and was cooperating fully with her fuck-fest.

Because she’d just sucked him off, it took him longer to cum - and it was perfect, because she wanted to orgasm herself and this made it possible. In fact, it made it much more than possible..

She screamed as she came, finding the initial blast of pure ecstasy followed by two more almost as strong before the began to taper off, her whole body shuddering with her first multiple orgasm, The orgasm caused her cunt muscles to contract around his cock, and that was enough to push him - screaming - over the edge, and he gushed his seed into her.

Smiling, she remained impaled on his slowly softening cock and brought his hands up to fondle her tits as she leaned forward and kissed him passionately. She enjoyed it thoroughly - but looked forward to spending the next week experimenting with him to find out the most pleasurable way of...

..of doing everything.

She also found herself wondering when she was going to let him in on her little secret...

* * * * *

The man Patrick had known as Richardson sat in the office, a big grin on his face. It had taken everything he had- but his plan had finally come to fruition.

William Winthorp was about to make it to the big times.

He still couldn't believe his good fortune. He'd spent years toadying up to that damned asshole Lonnigan, playing the close friend while scheming endlessly to get a piece of the pie for himself. Sure, he'd had a good chunk of money himself, but it had been nothing next to Patrick's fortune, and he'd wanted it all. But it had seemed out of his reach...

...until a half-crazed scientist had come to his door, begging money for his project. Billy had listened with disbelief, but the scientist had been able to prove the theory behind it - he just needed the money to make it a reality.

Billy hadn't had anything close to the amount needed for the project - but as soon as he'd seen it, he'd understood what could be done with it, and had managed to get the money. He didn't actually own the device and procedure - not yet - and needed to come up with the money to cover the loans in less than sixty days, or it would revert to the lenders, who had been kept in the dark about its true design. Once they had it, though, they'd realize what it was and they'd make the fortune off its patents and sales, not him.

But that would never happen - because, in a few minutes, he'd finally get his hands on more than enough money to cover the debt - and he'd add to that fortune when he was the one to exploit this revolutionary new technology.

It had been a stroke of genius, his plan. It was perfect. Right now, old Patrick and Rhianna were probably frantic, trying to track down Richardson to end their 'vacation, not realizing that they were trapped in their new bodies for life. At least they were young and healthy, but Billy figured that would be small consolation to them, though.

It probably wouldn't take them long to find out that their 'real' identities were now six feet under. Billy had grinned when he'd taken their 'old' bodies - technically brain dead at the time - and positioned them in a cheap hotel room as if in the throes of passion. The M.E. had come to the 'obvious' conclusion that they'd suffered near simultaneous strokes while making love, and they'd been buried a few feet apart in Westlawn cemetery.

With the death of Patrick, his personal fortune reverted to Billy - which was good. But even better was the fact that with his executive secretary gone, his corporate holdings also went to Billy - which was better.

But the best part of it was the fact that 'Billy Winthorp' had died a day later - and he'd left everything to his 'secret' illegitimate son, William Richardson.

So - he had youth, health and now fortune. Life was very, very good - and that dumb ass probably would never figure out the truth, spending the rest of 'her' life trying to figure out how she'd ended up trapped in the body of a woman. It was deliciously perfect.

Billy's head turned as the door to the office opened and the accountant entered the room, bringing with him the final tally of his new fortune. Savoring the moment, Billy stretched out and put his feet up on the desk.

“So - just how rich am I?” He asked, waiting for the answer with a serene smile...

* * * * *

The men on the beach watched with open mouthed stares as the water along the surf-line broke apart, and a goddess rose from the waves.

Water streamed down her firm, athletic body, tanned a glorious golden hue and hardly hidden by the tiny yellow bikini she wore. Her huge tits swayed as she walked from the water with a sensual grace, crossing the sand with a smile, and the men watched with envy as she sank down on a towel beside a handsome, equally tanned man soaking up the sun.

“Mmmm.. the water’s great.” Denise said, stealing a kiss from her new husband. “This is the perfect place for a honeymoon - two months in the Bahamas. I love it.” She giggled. “I still can’t believe it, though.”

“What?” Rick asked, propping himself up on an elbow and running a hand over his new wife’s smooth, taut thigh. “That you’re a woman and married?”

“That too...” She agreed with a grin. “But I was actually talking about your little scam, stud. I don’t believe that I’m actually grateful that you decided to rip me off, and stole my corporate and personal fortunes and funneled them to Swiss bank accounts!”

Rick laughed. “I couldn’t believe I was doing it, myself. But when I found out that I was getting a new body - and, remember, I thought it was going to be a young female body - it seemed like the perfect idea. Steal a fortune, get a disguise that no-one would ever break, and get a chance to live my life over again. The only part I regretted was that I was stealing from you - but now, even that’s gone. Everything I own is your... again.”

Denise smiled. “Yeah. Having our old bodies found dead just helps clean up the loose ends - although I wish I knew how that came about.”

“Oh, I have a pretty good idea.” Rick said with an answering grin. “I never did trust Billy Winthorp - and some well-paid private investigators bore out my suspicions. Especially since he ‘died’ a day after ‘us’ - leaving it all to a certain Mr. Richardson.”

Denise giggled. “God - I wish I could see his face when he finds out that he ended up with absolutely nothing - just the hollow shell of the business.”

Rick pulled an exaggerated expression. “Actually, I wouldn’t say I left him with nothing.”

“Oh?”

Rick smiled wickedly. “Well, I didn’t know about the Richardson-Winthorp connection at the time, but I did know that Winthorp was up-to- his-ears in debt to some very unsavory people. So, I made an arrangement with the machine’s creator before I left. If he wants to avoid getting killed - and they’ll kill Richardson as the heir as easily as they would have done Winthorp

- he can get one body-swap. I started a clone growing for him that should be just about ready - but if he doesn't act fast, he'll lose it when the lab is repossessed."

Denise frowned. "I don't get it."

Rick smiled. "Simple - he can choose. A short, frightened life with some hitmen on the trail - or he can take the body I left for him. the female body. The one that makes you look flat-chested and has the hyper-hormonal system to qualify as a true nymphomaniac."

Denise broke out in laughter at the sheer poetic justice of it all, and wondered which Billy would pick.

* * * * *

The crowd filling the Las Vegas auditorium was raucous as the emcee stepped back up to the mike, looking at the figure he held in his hand.

"And the Adult Movie Award for best new performer of two-thousand and one goes to.... Billi Bodacious, the Blonde Bombshell. !"

BACK TO FUN ZONE

© 1997 - 2016 TGstories.

Stories on the "Public Access" pages may be Copyright by individual authors.

Home | Membership | Terms & Conditons | Privacy Policy | Contact

SUMMARY: A former male wakes up to discover that he has gone through MTF surgery and has been given his fondest wish for Valentine's Day.

Valentine's Day Gift

By Gunslinger

It was the rich, aromatic scent of coffee that finally pierced the final veil of sleep and hauled Jason the rest of the way to full wakefulness.

With a yawn, Jason let his eyes flutter open - and then he blinked in confusion at the sight of his best friend, David, standing at the edge of the bed, holding a tray in his broad, tanned hands.

"Morning, sleepy-head." Dave said, grinning easily. "Happy Valentine's day! Here - I brought you breakfast in bed."

To say Jason was thoroughly confused would be a massive understatement. Though he and Dave were the best of friends, it was hardly the type of friendship that would call for a Valentine's day breakfast in bed - especially when it wasn't Valentine's day.

"What the heck is going on...?" Jason asked, fuzzily, even as he instinctively reached for the steaming mug giving off that enticing scent...

...and then he stopped dead, all sleep chased away as his eyes widened in horrified realization of what his eyes and ears were reporting.

The sight of long, pink-painted nails tipping each finger of a hand whose wrist disappeared under the ruffled cuff of a salmon-colored silk nightgown.

The sound of a slightly husky but undeniably feminine voice emerging unbidden from his throat.

"Oh, shit!" Jason gasped - and was stunned to hear that the 'en femme' voice emerged again, even though he wasn't consciously trying to use it.

"I.. I can explain..." Jason stammered, trying desperately to deepen his traitorous voice as he scrambled up in the bed. "This isn't what it looks like...!"

"Oh, yes it is..." Dave said, chuckling, as Jason scrambled to cover his femininely-clad body, and the figure-faking padding underneath...

...except that prosthetic foam and latex padding wasn't supposed to feel like what Jason was feeling.

"Relax, Jasmine." Dave said, putting the breakfast tray down on the bed-side table. "I know things seem a little... strange. I can explain everything."

Jason stared at his friend in horror at hearing the 'en femme' name, part of the deepest, most closely held secret in his life, emerging from Dave's mouth.

"How... What...?" Jason gasped, hands roaming over the silk covering a body much more sensitive than it should have been. "What's going on! Why... Why do I have... tits!"

"Because you spent a good chunk of money on the hormones and implants, that's why." Dave said, with a chuckle.

"What?" Jason said, shaking his head. "No... I, I wouldn't... I mean, that's... perverted..."

"Calm down, Jasmine - it's all okay." Dave said, making 'settle down' motions with his hands. "You don't remember - but you're all woman now. You've 'come out', had the operation... almost a year ago."

"But... but... but..." Jason - Jasmine - stuttered... and then fell into a wide-eyed silence, not knowing what to say.

Dave chuckled again at the expression on his best friend's face.

"Relax, Jazz - it's all part of your Valentine's Day gift." He explained. "A gift from a friend who, after a leee-tle bit of trouble dealing with the fact that his best friend was really a woman trapped in a man's body, finally managed to get his head on straight."

"Gift...?" Jasmine said, stunned.

"Yup." Dave agreed, nodding. "We spent several hours last night with a hypno-therapist, arranging to have your conscious memory of the past two years suppressed - just for today, so that you can experience today as if it were your first day as a woman... without any of the discomfort that comes during recovering from Sexual Reassignment Surgery."

Jasmine couldn't think of a damned thing to say to that. All she could do was stare. Now Dave began to blush.

"You've, um... been expressing a certain, um... interest in me over the past year or so." Dave said, his color deepening. "I... let it interfere with our friendship. Well, for today at least, you won't remember those awkward times... and, uh, I've decided that, um..."

His blush was now a neon shade of red - but he met her eyes steadily, one eyebrow raised in wordless completion of his offer.

She blushed back.

"Well, um..." Dave said, reaching for the tray. "I made you breakfast in bed, and..."

"Oh, no you don't." Jasmine blurted out, shocking herself with her forwardness - but unable to stop herself, not after 'suddenly' finding her long-time dreams come true. "You don't make an offer like that, and then offer me breakfast."

Dave blinked - and his fading blush returned full force. "You mean " He stammered. "Now?"

Throwing the covers aside, she reached out and grabbed his hand, all-but-yanking him down on the bed beside her.

"Here." She said, firmly. "Now."

He swallowed nervously - then, slowly, began to smile, his eyes drifting to take in the all-feminine figure beneath the silken coverings.

She glanced down as well - seeing a sight that was both familiar and strange.

Her legs were smooth shaven, as they'd been back in the days when she'd only worn long pants to hide the fact that she was 'femming it up' when nobody could see it. Now, however, they weren't the shaved legs of a man who liked to pretend he was female, but of a woman who was as feminine as modern medical science could make her - right down to the firm breasts pushing out the fabric of her nightgown, a pair of ripe DD-cuppers that were firm and round.

Breasts that were no longer foam padding in a bra, but real, and sensitive. Breasts that she wanted Dave's hands to touch freely, to caress and squeeze.

Breasts that she wanted Dave to treat the way he'd treat any woman's breasts - just as she wanted him to treat her as he'd treat any other woman.

"I am all woman now, Dave..." Jasmine said, her voice huskier than usual as she slid closer to him on the bed. "All woman... and all yours, if you'll have me..."

Dave hesitated - then, hand trembling, gently reached over and lay it atop one knee.

"Yes, David..." She urged him, leaning to press her body against his. "Don't stop, David - touch me. Caress me..."

Slowly, Dave slid his hand higher up on her leg, feeling the silky-smooth flesh glide under his questing hand as he caressed her taut thighs, moving his hand back and forth, but each stroking repetition getting closer to the hem of her silk nightgown.

"Yes..." She moaned, feeling his warm body, his warm touch. Eagerly, aggressively, she reached over and grabbed his other hand, guiding it to press firmly against the thin fabric covering her firm breasts. "Touch me, Dave - make me feel like a real woman..."

Dave's hand momentarily tightened over her ripe, full breast - and then he let go of both her breast and her leg, and she felt a momentary pang of despair...

...and then it turned into excitement as he used those hands to grip the hem of her nightgown and - with a moment of assistance from Jasmine as she lifted her full buttocks and raised her arms - pulled it up and off her body.

"Oh yeah..." Dave said, grinning as he eyed her smooth, soft flesh. "You are definitely all woman, Jazz..."

"Yes..." She said, in a sort of awed wonder as she let her hands caress the softly firm flesh of her new breasts... and then she slid down to the smooth flesh surrounding the womanhood nestled between her silken thighs. "Yes, I am..."

Then she smiled brightly - and let her eyes wander over the firmly muscled figure of her best friend - and long and secretly lusted over dream-man.

"I'm all woman..." She said, reaching over and beginning to unbutton Dave's pants. "...and you're all man. Doesn't that sort of suggest something...?"

"It sure does..." He agreed, hurriedly pulling off his t-shirt as she finished undoing his pants and slid them, and the underwear underneath, down, revealing his lean, hard body.

With a smile, he put his hands to good use, reaching over to slide them over the smooth and feminine flesh of his best friend, reveling in the softly feminine curves that unrolled under his questing hands - while she reveled in the questing hands that roamed over her feminine curves.

"Yes, Dave - yes...!" She said, feeling her body tremble with desire. "Make love to me, Dave - make me feel like a woman. Make me feel like your woman."

"Oh, well..." Dave said, a husky tone belying the mockingly thoughtful voice he was trying for. "If I have to..."

She grinned - and pulled away from him.

"Not yet..." She whispered, huskily. "This is our first time. Let's do it right..."

Grinning wickedly, she slipped away from him - while he stared at her, his erection looking slightly ludicrous considering the bemused expression on his face.

"Just wait..." She said, walking over to the closet. "It'll be worth it - I promise..."

Her closet was a walk-in - and she turned on the light and slipped inside, closing the door behind her.

Alone in the bedroom, unobserved, Dave relaxed slightly - well, most of him did, anyway. Another part of him remained quite rigid as he grinned to himself, thoroughly enjoying the little game he was playing, and wondering how, exactly, Jasmine was going to react to the end of this naughty little game he'd rigged.

Quickly, he glanced around, glad that his memory hadn't failed him - the bedroom looked exactly as it should for the story he'd concocted - or, at least, close enough that Jasmine hadn't noticed anything unusual.

Well - it wasn't as if he'd given her much chance to ogle the décor - exactly as he'd planned.

As he metaphorically patted himself on the back for his meticulous planning and flawless execution of this little surprise, the door to the walk-in closet swung open again...

...and David rose, a certain part of his anatomy doing so faster than the rest of him.

The look Jasmine had gone for was pure 'cheap slut' - and she pulled it off with aplomb.

"I see you like it..." She said, openly ogling his erection as she struck 'the oldest pose' - her weight on one leg, the other slightly advance and bent slightly at the knee, her hands planted on her canted hips and her chest thrown out to emphasize the firm domes of her breasts.

It wasn't just the pose, however - but her eclectic choice of clothing. All in bright red.

A bright-red lace corselet that left her breasts bare - but by following the double-curve of her firm bust, emphasizing them more than if she'd been completely naked.

A matching garter belt held up the fire-engine-red nylon stockings that emphasized the curves of her smooth legs - and left the neatly trimmed patch of hair surrounding her womanhood bare, the triangle of red lace from the belt and garters creating a 'look-at-me!' effect that drew the eye from the out-thrust breasts to the bare womanhood...

...only to have the eye drawn to the red-clad legs that were further enhanced by the extreme sky- scraper heels of the red platform pumps she wore.

All of which perfectly matched the flame-red curls of her long, wavy hair, setting off the pale, milky flesh of her smoothly feminine body.

"Do I look smutty enough, my hung stud...?" She said, walking closer to him - with a wild bit of hip- action, swinging, swaying, wiggle-jiggle that, objectively, was over-done to the point of being caricature...

...but was good enough for Dave, who wasn't in the frame of mind to be critical.

"Of course..." She said in a wicked tone that matched her smile. "There's something else I could do to enhance my 'slut' look..."

...and then, as she came to a stop in front of him, she slowly and sensuously slid down, her hand reaching out and gripping his knees. As she gently spread them apart, she slid smoothly down into place between his muscular legs, the wicked smile on her blood-red lips growing wider as she assumed a position that left absolutely no doubt as to her intentions.

"Oh!" Dave said - and then, as her slender hands reached out, one encircling the base of his cock, the other gently cupping his balls, "Oh..."

Licking her lips lasciviously, Jasmine gave him a salacious wink - and then opened her lips wide, and eagerly engulfed his hard, throbbing cock with her warm, wet, willing mouth.

"Oh, god !" Dave gasped, as her tongue slid in a smooth swirl over his highly sensitive head, while the hand caressing his balls tightened and loosened rhythmically. As she began to bob her head, her lips gliding over his vein-ridged shaft, her other hand picked up the opposing rhythm, matching the pace and pressure of her mouth as she displayed an amazing skill at sucking cock.

"Oh, baby, yeah " Dave gasped, his original wide-eyed expression fading into a closed-eye look of bliss as she lapped, sucked and licked at his rigid tool, hands and mouth working in willing cooperation. "Ohhhh... yeaahhhh "

Jasmine slurped and sucked all the harder - fulfilling a long-held dream, one that had existed when this particular act was the only one she would have been capable of performing on Dave, if he would have permitted it.

Well, he certainly had no objections now...

...just an erection, one that filled her mouth with it's warm, throbbing length and it's salty, musky favor, while what couldn't fit in her eagerly bobbing mouth filled her hands.

Though it was physical versus emotional, it would have been a toss-up as to who was enjoying the blow-job more.

Caught up in the emotional satisfaction of what she was doing, it never occurred to Jasmine to wonder just when or how she'd become such an expert cock-sucker...

...or on who.

Indeed, if she'd been paying a little less attention to what she was doing, and a little more on the effect it was causing, she might have noticed the fact that her exquisite skills didn't seem to come as the least bit of a surprise to Dave - but she didn't, and so he enjoyed the phenomenal blow-job with uninhibited pleasure.

She worked on with skills she shouldn't have had - to a conclusion that was inevitable.

"Oh, oh... I'm cumming...!" Dave gasped, his body twitching in pleasure - and then one, hard spasm as he pumped his load deep down her eager, waiting throat.

She let the thick, salty load gush down without so much as missing a beat - and continued lapping, sucking and slurping a way.

Gasping and writhing, Dave jittered and swayed at the incredible sensations coming from his post- orgasmically sensitive head as she continued her work.

His cock barely even had time to begin to soften before her eager, skillful ministrations caused it to go as rigid as rock again.

"There.." She said, wickedly, as she licked the end of his cock one last time before pulling her mouth free for good. "That should make you last a nice, long time..."

She not-to-gently shoved on his shoulders, urging him to lay back on the bed.

"I'm on top..." She said, eyes sparkling, "and I'm gonna love you loong time, sailor."

Dave didn't even think of resisting. Instead, he lay back eagerly and let her slide up on the bed above him, her legs straddling as she grinned down at him, a light sheen of sweat covering her body and creating new highlights across the curved of her breasts and waist.

"Let's do it, baby..." She said, huskily. Reaching down, she grabbed the base of his hard cock as she shimmied herself into position above him - and then plunged herself down onto his hard, throbbing cock.

"Oh, god - yes!" She screamed, eyes going wide as felt the sensation of being filled for the first time

- or, at least, what seemed to be the first time, at least to her retarded memory. "Oh, god - that feels spectacular!"

It felt as good, emotionally, as it had to suck his cock - but it felt much more pleasurable, physically, then it had to simply lick-a-dick.

It felt spectacular. It felt wonderful. It felt...

...fulfilling.

That was just the initial surge of pleasure she felt as her moist, surgically-created walls slid down over his hard cock.

It didn't even hold a candle to what it felt like as she began to thrust herself up and down, her leg muscles contracting and relaxing as she rode atop his throbbing cock.

"Yes, oh yes...!" She screamed. "I'm a woman! A real woman! Oh, yes - fuck yes...!"

Grunting in a sort of pleasurable pain as his highly sensitized cock was wonderfully mauled by the tightness of Jasmine's cock, Dave reached up and began fondling and squeezing the surgically perfect breasts that bounced and jiggled in front of his face as she added a back-and-forth rocking motion to her initial up-and-down thrusting, searching for the perfect pattern to give her the most exquisitely wonderful - exquisitely feminine - pleasure.

All things considered, it didn't occur to her that she fell into that 'perfect groove' so easily, so quickly.

After all - when one was busy experiencing the most wonderful physical and emotional pleasure she'd ever felt, you usually didn't bother to stop and question it.

"Oh, yes, more..." She moaned, tossing her head in pleasure as she increased the rhythm and power of her thrusts, riding him hard...

...and long.

Thanks to the blow-job she'd given him, Dave wasn't even close to coming - while she was getting steadily closer with each eager, skillful thrust.

"Oh, yes - I love this...!" She moaned, thrashing atop him - without breaking the rhythmic thrusting of her hips. "I love being a woman!"

Somehow, incredibly, she managed to pick up the speed and power of her thrusting - even as the wonderfully tortured nerve-endings in her new vagina twitched, jerked and sizzled themselves right into her 'first' orgasm.

She completely abandoned any trace of coherence, and went into wordless - nearly mindless - orgasmic screaming, her body thrashing and flopping atop the hard cock that filled her tight cunt.

The cock that still wasn't ready to come yet.

The cock she continued to thrust herself upon even as the first orgasm began to fade...

...and build towards her second orgasm.

"Unnnngghhh!!!" She gave out a full-voice groaning moan, her body thrashing even more vibrantly, even more athletically, then it had during her first orgasm...

...and it was at that moment that Dave decided it was time, and amidst the pleasure thrumming through his body, gasped out a single word:

"Rosebud."

Even as Jasmine jerked and jiggled atop him in orgasmic ecstasy, a flood-gate opened in her mind, and the repressed memories were set forth by the post-hypnotic command word.

Memories of David finding out about her transgendered lifestyle...

...and supporting her, uncompromising and unquestioning. Memories of David supporting her choices.

Memories of Dave helping her.

Memories of Dave paying the bulk of the money for her surgery...

...and memories of Dave...

"We're married!" Jasmine gasped...

...as her husband thrashed and moaned beneath her, pumping his load deep into his wife's wonderful womanhood on the one-year anniversary of their marriage.

"Yeah... we're married..." He gasped, as he slumped under her. "One wonderful year of marriage."

She blinked as the memories settled themselves into a full and coherent pattern - and she giggled as she slapped him on the shoulder.

"You rat!" She said, remembering now the entire plan - the one Dave had thought up and executed, erasing her memories and then 'lying' to her about the missing years so that she could have the joy of 'the first time' all over again - when it had never happened this way the first time around, since he'd been fully supportive of her even before she was made 'all woman'.

Laughing, she slid herself down to lay entangled in her husband's arm, his softening cock still in her cunt as she kissed him soundly.

"Thank you..." She whispered, as she nibbled at his ear. "Thank you for the most wonderful present, Dave."

"Your welcome." He whispered back, holding her familiar, wonderful body tight to his sweaty form. "And... thank you."

She grinned with satisfaction, nuzzling his cheek... then giggled. "So - what did you make me for breakfast, anyway...?"

"Eggs Benedict." He said, shrugging. "I think they've gone cold, though..."

"Well then..." She said, slipping herself off his manhood - and reaching down to lightly begin stroking his damp cock. "I guess there's no hurry to eat it, is there..."

As Dave gasped, and his cock slowly began to stir anew, almost despite itself, his wife leaned over and whispered in his ear:

"Happy Valentine's Day..." THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

© 1997 - 2016 TGstories.

Stories on the "Public Access" pages may be Copyright by individual authors.

Home | Membership | Terms & Conditions | Privacy Policy | Contact

SUMMARY: Failing to heed his warning, a curse transforms a macho twenty-one year on his birthday into a sweet sexy young woman looking for her man.

A Very Mary Christmas

By Gunslinger

Head down and wide, rugged shoulders scrunched inwards against the cold Chicago wind that beat against the broad back of his jacket, Gary Donnelley was hurrying through the darkened alleyway when the first pain hit.

Not many would have taken the risks inherent in such a short-cut. Night came fast and hard in December, and no light seeped into the narrow roadway between the two-story tall brick walls that flanked it. Gary, however, couldn't have cared less if the alley held a mugger in it's dim depths - indeed, part of him almost hoped it did. At a very well-muscled six-foot-four, the twenty-one year old was one of those who kept the stereotype of a 'fiery red-head' alive, always right on the edge of letting his fury explode on the smallest of excuses.

The single greatest factor in his 'lone wolf' lifestyle wasn't the extremely short fuse of his volcanic temper - it was how incredibly willing he was to supply that spark of ignition himself. Even hunched against the cold winter wind, Gary moved with that same, arrogantly powerful stride that announced his willingness to do battle with anyone, anywhere, at any time.

For all that, Gary wasn't ready for the burst of pain that assaulted him. It came out of nowhere and hit him like a two-by-four in the guts - one minute, he was walking along in a fulminating stew a little more volatile than normal, and then next, it felt as if somebody had snapped up his intestines in a vise-grip, and was slowly drawing them tighter.

With a grunt of hard-exhaled air, Gary stumbled and went down to his knees - hard.

His fourth thought, quite a deliberately formed one, was that the 'lousy' bar food from the local pub had finally gotten to him - though, he'd never had any problem with the food before.

The three thoughts that preceded it were, in order: That it was December twenty-second, his birthday: that it was his twenty-first such birthday, and; that it would be just about midnight in Greenwich, England.

It was to these three thoughts that he'd forced himself to think the fourth, and he was holding firmly in the fore-front of his consciousness like a shield - and then the second bolt of pain hit him in his groin and dragging him forward onto his hands and knees.

"God... damn... it...!" Gary gasped, the twin pain in gut and nuts worse than anything he'd felt in the hundreds of fights he'd been in - mostly at his own insistence. "I.. do not... believe in... curses!"

As if triggered by his defiant words, the pain suddenly 'flash burned' throughout his entire body, searing each and every nerve ending in his body in a single second...

...and then vanished.

Gasping, shivering in the grip of the chill running through his sweat-slicked body, Gary staggered upright and slumped against the rough brick wall for support.

"See...?" He snorted at the universe at large. "There's no such thing as a 'curse'. It's all a load of bullshit!"

Scorn laced his voice even more than the Irish accent he'd tried so assiduously to erase, attempting to escape his Irish heritage, mentally, as completely as he'd escaped physically to America.

Shaking his head, the broad-shouldered red-head took a single step forward...

...and then gasped, throwing out a hand to brace himself against the wall again as a strange, wrenching sensation occurred in his lower back - and he found his ass thrusting outwards and upwards in spite of his attempt to keep his now-curved spine straight.

"This isn't happening." He announced, angrily, to an uncaring universe. He stumbled a few steps further down the alley-way, his own usually-proud stride thrown off by the unwanted reconfiguration of his now-tilted pelvis.

He suddenly leaned towards the wall - not because he wanted to, but because his shoulders suddenly 'collapsed' inwards, the cuff of his coat pilling up around his wrists as his shoulders narrowed considerably.

"It's not possible!" He insisted, taking a few more trembling steps - steps that he couldn't quite convince himself were trembling because of the cold.

The chill, gusting wind funneled down the brick-walled alley had been playing with his carelessly-cropped mass of rich red hair - but now it had considerably more to play with as, with a faint pulling sensation, it sprouted ever-longer from his scalp, spilling down over his slimmer shoulders and down his back in flowing waves.

"Shit like this doesn't happen in real life!" He screamed, staggering his way towards the end of the alley with single-minded purpose. There was more than a mere edge of hysteria to his voice, and that frightened him as much as the inexplicable events occurring to him, and he struggled to contain his growing fear.

His waist pinched in on itself, its diameter shrinking from its toned, accustomed size to one considerably smaller.

"There's no fucking thing as 'magic'!" He screamed - and the voice now fully hysterical crackled and warbled in a way that had nothing to do with his emotions - and everything to do with the cause of those emotions.

"It just... doesn't.. happen!" He shrieked in a voice that both rose steadily in pitch and grew thicker with the now softer-sounding accent of his youth.

Ranting and raving against the impossible, he staggered and shuffled onwards, the strange sensations accompanying the even strange alterations to his once-manly figuring coming faster now.

His pants suddenly pulled rum-head tight across his hips - as those hips grew wider. The only thing that kept them from drawing to tight to contain his more voluminous hips was the fact that the pants - and the rest of his clothes - were growing looser as his point-of-view slid downwards, extra cloth pooling at wrist and ankle as he lost height.

Muscles shifted and reshaped themselves under his skin, the taught, well-defined musculature giving way to smoother, more softly flowing line - under skin that was itself becoming softer and smoother.

Beneath the traitorous flesh, bones reshaped themselves with the same ridiculous ease, becoming finer and more delicate. His face writhed and shifted, and the lips now mouthing shrieked obscenities at the world filled out.

The now-diminutive feet slipped easily out of the once tight-laced boots, and the ever-changing figure stumbled onwards in stocking feet, the cold unnoticed as now-slender hands pawed frantically at the bulging front of the parka in a thoroughly vain attempt to hold back the rapidly expanding masses of softly firm flesh forming increasingly large - and highly distinctive - shapes on the shrinking ribcage...

...and then, as the now-reshaped form reached the end of the alley and exhausted obscenities gave way to humiliating, helpless sobs that couldn't be contained, the final changes occurred at his crotch, and the individual who had once been Gary Donnelley, too arrogant and sure of his primacy as a member of the male gender to pay heed to a warning and a 'curse' from some 'dumb Irish cunt', stumbled to a stop.

"I'm sorry..." She sobbed in her sweet, accented voice, hoping somehow the woman who had laid this curse upon her could hear her contrition. "I... I'll.. be good, I've learned my lesson, I swear. Please, please, change me back..."

Gary, however, had already been granted far more leniency than he'd deserved. The curse, laid upon him at sixteen, had given him a full five years to mend his way - a full five years he'd squandered away.

Now, last of his grace period gone, the final effect of the curse rammed home - and even her humiliated, hopeless sobs were cut short as she was flooded with the effects of the curse's entirety.

The woman who'd laid the curse on him had been most explicit in defining what a 'reversal of fortune' meant, in the sense of the curse. She'd told him every detail of what would happen if he didn't mend his ways - and so, the new woman understood exactly what it was she was experiencing, even as the experience itself almost overwhelmed her.

It was, emotionally, the equivalent of what the curse had done to her, physically - reversal.

Masculinity had become femininity. Brute power had become graceful delicacy. Arrogance, elegance - and danger, beauty...

...but most of all, willing insensitivity became unwilling sensitivity, and the world swam before her eyes and snapped into new focus.

Christmas decorations, nothing more to her eyes the splashes of color and light until then, suddenly came into sharp focus, and acquired meaning. She could tell, at a glance, which of them had been put up out of habit or civic duty, and which had been put up with loving attention or with joyful exuberance.

The uncaring indifference behind each piece of litter on the snow-dusted sidewalk slapped her in the face, and the hope inherent in the hard-won traces of flowers and shrubs planted in this unforgiving concrete jungle unwillingly touched her heart.

The few lovingly cared for older cars parked on the street practically shouted with their owner's pride, while a rusting hulk cried soft tones of sad destitution next to a brand-new import that snarled with its owner's egotism.

The world suddenly opened up before the unwillingly female person who had once been so callously uncaring - and she cried out in shock with the layer upon layer of emotion that filled every nook and cranny of the city - and in the welter of new information that touched her heart and soul and mind with such unwanted power as she slumped against the wall, the sudden concern rushing out in waves from the man somewhere behind her went almost unnoticed.

* * * * *

When the person had lurched out of the mouth of the darkened alley, Paul's initial response - though he was well short of the alley at the moment - had been an instinctive 'flight or flight' reaction.

The heavily bundled-up young brunet had gotten a handle on the adrenaline-pumping surge almost immediately. Of barely average height, with a slender build and an intellectual's disposition, he was used to the undercurrent of fear that came from the recognition of his own mortality - and the ease with which he handled the instinctive response allowed him to immediately turn his fine eye for detail on the person he was observing.

Though the badly over-sized clothing helped obscure the lines of the figure beneath, Paul almost immediately pegged the figure as a 'her' - and not solely because of the thick, rich fall of wavy crimson hair spilling most of the way down her back. There was just a general air about her, jerky and awkward as her movements were, that suggested femininity.

Paul's nimble mind quickly began noting some strange discrepancies. There was, of course, the fact that her clothes were too large for her diminutive figure - and, at that, they were so poorly fitting that it was difficult to imagine anyone functioning in them for any length of time.

Especially since she seemed to be staggering through the frozen night with nothing more than a sodden, over-sized pair of socks on her feet.

Paul had never even seen a street person in such poorly-fitting clothing - and, though badly sized for the figure in contained, this clothing was in reasonably good condition, and quite clean. Hardly defining characteristics of your average 'bum'...

...and then the woman had cried out and slumped against the wall, and Paul - who, though slowing, had continued moving forward - threw all other considerations aside, pulse racing even faster than his slender body as he hurried towards the origin of the soft, high-pitched cry.

She seemed barely able to keep her feet, and as Paul reached the trembling, gasping woman's side, he instinctively - but not unthinkingly - reached a hand out to hold steady her...

...and she jerked away from him with another low cry, spinning around to face him as she did so.

In that initial instant as she turned, time seemed to slow and his brain's 'clock rate' increase as his eyes struggled to memorize, in an instant, every detail of what he was seeing.

She was gorgeous.

She wore no make-up, and her thick mane of hair was in disarray. Her eyes were rimmed in red from the tears that still trickled down her cheeks, and she was practically swimming in badly over-sized clothes.

Yet, for all of that, she was still the most incredibly beautiful woman Paul had ever seen.

Hardly a giant of a man, Paul nevertheless had to direct his gaze slightly downwards to meet the wide-open eyes of the startled woman - eyes that were the richest shade of emerald green he'd ever seen.

Her face was... perfect.

Her complexion was utterly flawless - a smooth, milky perfection heightened, rather than marred, but the redness brought to her high, well defined cheeks by the chill wind. Her nose, fine-boned as it was, rose proudly and perfectly above her full, shapely lips. Her jaw, though strong and well defined, was also delicate in proportion - like that of Kathy Ireland, perhaps.

From this close, even the baggiest of clothes couldn't completely obscure what most certainly must be a lean, lithe, delicately constructed body - one that was nevertheless well curved in perfect proportion, or so Paul's mind insisted on assuming, despite the scant evidence supplied from the perfect proportions of her slender, delicate hands and her perfect face, the only exposed parts of her body...

...and then she all-but-recoiled from him and, in a accented voice of near hysteria, shouted: "Don't touch me!"

* * * * *

'Instinctively' disgusted by the touch of a man on her unwanted new feminine form even more then she was startled by it, the now- female Gary shouted her loathing as she pulled away from the touch...

...and was hit over the head by a two-by-four.

Well, the emotional equivalent of it, anyway - as every emotion the man felt were painfully obvious to her in every detail of his expression and body language.

In the single instance before she'd shouted, she'd known more about the young man then she'd really wanted to know. His gentle shyness had been plain to read on his face, and his awkwardness in dealing with members of the fairer sex implicit in the hesitant tension in his body. His thoughtful concern for her, even before the realization of her 'stunning beauty' wrote itself in his eyes, came across strongly, as did his quiet determination to help a person in distress even through the struggle to overcome his own doubts and hesitation that couldn't been ignored in his stance.

Then the unbidden shout of loathing, disgust and fear burst from her lips - and his head snapped back as if he'd been struck, his own self-flagellation at having the temerity at laying hands on a woman without her explicit permission almost as strong as his own deep, despairing disgust at having 'screwed up' yet again with a woman - even though his own belief that it was inevitable, especially since she was much 'too beautiful' for someone like him, was also plain in the chagrin printed on his face.

All his emotions - his self-doubt, his quiet despair, his deep loneliness and insecurity - were what slammed into her like that proverbial two-by-four, causing her a deep and obscure pain she'd always managed to insulate herself from in her male life.

The pain that came from the consequences of her own, unthinking actions.

No matter how desperately she wished to ignore it, no matter how strongly she tried to fight it, the curse that had created both empathy and sympathy in a person who'd lacked either attribute before made it impossible.

She had just unthinkingly, needlessly done something to cause another person pain. Though she, herself, was highly aware of her new gender and, so, even more highly uncomfortable with the thought of being touched by a man, there were literally hundreds of different ways she could have reacted, most of which wouldn't have engender this sudden emotional pain she'd uncaringly inflicted on the young man...

...and, thanks to her new, unwanted state of heightened sensitivity, on herself as well.

Even if she didn't really care the least about easing his pain- and, in truth, she didn't - self preservation, even in the depths of the horrific, humiliating nightmare in which she found herself helplessly entwined, demanded that she do something to lessen her own pain.

"I'm sorry." She apologized, quickly - hating herself for needing to do so, even as she recognized the need itself. "You... startled me."

He loosened up somewhat, though not completely - and she was disgusted to feel his relief - and hope - as if it were her own. The last thing she wanted to do was encourage in him any idea that she might... 'like' him, and yet she couldn't brutally crush any hope he held, as he initial instinct demanded. Indeed, it was only by the slimmest of margins that she managed to keep herself at snarling at the young man - and the realization that it was necessary to harness her instinctive reaction was all the more humiliating for the fact that it only drove home the fact that she'd completely refused to do so during the male life she'd forfeited in her unthinking, arrogant cruelty.

"Uh.. My name's Paul. Paul Smith." He said, awkwardly offering a hand. She thought quickly.

"Gary Donnelley" She introduced herself - to spare herself the confusion and concern he'd feel is she gave a male name. "Are you... all right?" Paul asked, carefully. "I mean, you seem upset.. and you have to be freezing in just your stocking feet..."

His concern was literally washing over her - and 'Mary' was disgusted with herself at how warm and comforting that concern was.

Of course, there was no way she could explain what the 'real' problem was. She knew, instinctively, that it would increase his concern

- and that scared her, since his current level of concern felt disturbingly pleasant as it was. Worse, he would feel confusion and fear - fear for her. She already knew that level of emotions would be difficult to handle - but she also couldn't quite face up to simply telling him to get lost.

She was struggling to deal with her own emotions - and they were plentiful, and strong. She'd just unwillingly been turned into a gorgeously beautiful woman - and if that wasn't bad enough, the uncaring reality of her past was now still hitting her like a hammer blow. She was forced to see and understand what a total shit-head she'd been as a male, and no matter how much she wished she could deny it, her new empathy to the human condition didn't allow it.

She had been cruel and arrogant. She had used her then-male physical strength to intimidate people into giving her what she'd wanted. She'd been mean, and violent, and brutish...

...and it all added up into a huge wad of self disgust, loathing and hatred that was very difficult to swallow, indeed.

She just couldn't handle the additional self-disgust that would come from being unnecessarily mean to Paul, as well - no matter how humiliated and uncomfortable she felt at having to deal with somebody as a woman...

...even though, nagging at her ceaselessly, was the fact that she no longer had any real choice, since she was cursed to spend the rest of her life as a woman, and was going to have to deal with it no matter how much she wished she didn't have.

So she 'copped out'.

"I'd really prefer not to talk about it." She said, not unkindly - though the truth was, if she had her choice, she also wouldn't have to think about, deal with, or - especially - live with her 'problem'. "I just want to... forget everything that happened to me up to this moment and just sort of... start over."

It was almost wistfully true - because a part of her was, in fact, wishing something would come along and whack her with a good dose of amnesia right about then. Part of it was because, in a way, it would be easier to deal with being female if she didn't remember ever being male - but even more so because, no matter how she wished it was otherwise, the simple truth was...

...she was really beginning to hate herself.

Every memory of her life up until this moment - her male life - was now 'changed'. Oh, the memories themselves were still the same - but now they were viewed through the filter of her empathy.

The smug satisfaction of the 'great deal' he'd gotten on her apartment was now lost in the welter of self-disgust at the way he'd basically threatened that landlord, leaving him living in a mild state of fear because of the 'madman' in apartment 216. His pride at bagging that hot stewardess lost in the humiliation of the way he'd lied to her, making her think he cared about her as a person when all he wanted was the 'bragging rights' of having banged her. His satisfaction over the reputation that had made him so damned efficient at his job as a loan shark's 'enforcer' - now pure pain as every agony he'd ever caused came back as his own.

Gary had been a grade-A pure asshole - and the newly-christened Mary was sickened over just how much she hated 'herself'.

"Well, in that case..." Paul said, breaking in to her bitter reverie, "Why don't you let me help you get started right? The least I can do is pay for some clothes - and shoes - a little more suitable for the weather."

The slender young man gestured towards the end of the street, where a row of shops, still bustling with Christmas shoppers, could be seen...

...and Mary, looking at him, tasted his emotions.

He was completely willing to spend money on her. He wanted to spend money on her...

...but he wasn't doing it in hopes of 'winning favor' from her. In fact, he was dismally certain that she wasn't even noticing him as a male, as something she'd seriously consider as a friend, much less as a potential lover. He was completely expecting her to take full advantage of his largess, to milk every cent out of him that she could - and then walk away from him without so much as a backward glance...

...and he was quite willing to accept this, because he felt that it was about the 'best' possible 'relationship' he could very expect to have with a woman as beautiful as herself.

She tried to demur - and he insisted.

Her attempted refusal made him happy, because it meant that she wasn't just out to get his money - and yet his instance came from the fact that he really, honestly wanted to do this for her.

She was nearly overcome by yet another warm wave of his emotions.

Emotions that greatly disturbed her, because it was 'wrong' for her - who was 'really' a man - to be enjoying a man paying that kind of attention to her...

...so she vaguely surprised herself when, on his third instance, she gave in. It surprised her, most of all - because it wasn't for her sake.

It was for his.

She was, in fact, enjoying the pleasurable emotions that came from doing this for him - but that wouldn't have motivated her, for those emotions - and the ones they struck in her - scared the living daylights out of her. She didn't want to feel this way towards a man...

...but, then again, that was part of the reason why she accepted his offer.

Her first thought, after being made female, was that she hadn't deserved this fate - and now that thought was stronger than ever. In the other direction.

The more time she had to dwell on the male past, the more she felt that 'simply' being turned into a woman wasn't nearly punishment enough.

In a sort of self-punishment, she 'forced' - or, 'let', depending on how you looked at it - herself give in. Even though the even greater pleasure of his emotions made her feel even more unworthy.

It was a... confusing situation.

It didn't get any better.

First there was the hammer-blow of emotions as she joined the thronging shoppers on the busier main street - and almost unthinkingly pressed herself closer to Paul's side, only her 'naturally' milky complexion hiding her sudden pallor.

It was the emotions of the other people around her that did it.

Many of them - for her, who had always assumed the worse about society as a man, a surprisingly large majority of them - were good and decent, with unavoidable but bearable levels of greed and selfishness. There were a few, however, whose emotions seemed to beat at her, making her feel as if she'd been submerged in slime.

People who were, for the most part,. The type of person she'd been as 'Gary'...

Her gasp, discomfort, and instinctive move closer to the nominal 'protection' of Paul, however, had an interesting side-effect she hadn't foreseen.

Seeing her 'shyness', an 'endearing flaw' in her perfection, Paul began to have the faintest hope that Mary wasn't as far out of his league as he'd thought - and that disturbingly pleasurable emotion only further confused and - damn it! - pleased her.

Of course, things hardly got 'better' when they actually started shopping - and Mary had to find herself, for the first time, looking at shopping from the feminine experience...

...and in her confusion and uncertainty and, quite frankly, lack of skill, she felt a burst of gratitude as Paul took up her whole 'new life' line and spun it, thankfully, into something bigger and better. She knew, of course, that it was nervousness that made him do so, a near-desperate attempt to look 'suave' and 'witty' by grabbing onto that idea the way a drowning man would a life-line that was his motivation - but since it saved her so much trouble, it was worth it...

...even if she was growing more and more convinced that she didn't deserve this kindness. She should be confused and lost and hopeless, horrified by the idea of being a woman, dressing in female clothes, and all that.

She certainly didn't deserve to enjoy any of it!

Which, nevertheless, she found herself doing - 'guiltily', and for two very distinct - and widely separated - reasons.

One of which was that, as a 'man', she shouldn't be enjoying shopping for 'pretty' clothes - and the other, that she didn't deserve to feel so happy when her entire life she'd been a disgusting, evil man...

...but Paul enjoyed seeing her pretty and feminine, and as much as she felt she deserved to suffer, and as much as she felt she shouldn't enjoy feminine things because she was 'really' an evil, terrible, horrible 'man', she was still only human - and she found herself drawn more and more to the pleasure that quite literally emanated from her new companion.

Which was how it came to be that she found herself, a massive welter of highly contradictory emotions, stepping out of a dressing room, every inch a feminine ideal.

Paul had 'explained' to the female staff of the full-service (and expensive) boutique he'd brought her into that she was 'starting a new life'. That she'd wanted to 'completely forget' her old one - and so they should treat her as if she'd just been born that very instant, with no 'taste' in clothes, jewelry, etc. He told the staff to, in effect, completely 'remake' her - on his platinum credit-card, which washed away the last questions about Mary's unusual behavior or lack of 'basic' feminine knowledge that might have come up.

Instead, the staff had thrown themselves into the work with a will - and, almost numbly, Mary had gone along with it, overwhelmed by the intense, undeserved pleasure she was receiving from Paul at being able to give her this gift.

Indeed, so powerful was the emotion she was getting from Paul, that her own instinctive 'heterosexual' dismay and shock at one make-up artist's comment about what a great 'boyfriend' she had went mostly unnoticed.

All of which culminated in the moment when she stepped out of the dressing room in her 'going home' outfit, to stand before where Paul stood surrounded by the bags, boxes and parcels of other clothing and accessories he'd insisted on buying for her.

"What... What do you think?" Mary asked. Her hesitation could have been taken for nervous anticipation of Paul's reaction - but, of course, she'd known from the instant she'd stepped out of the changing room what he 'felt' about her ensemble.

Her hesitancy came from still trying to get a handle on a situation that refused to be handled.

She wasn't just dressed in female clothing - she was dressed in determinedly feminine clothing. Her hair had been styled, and make-up had been applied to her face. She wore jewelry, and perfume, and even high-heeled shoes... and she was, quite consciously, moving in a graceful, feminine way.

All of which was anathema to everything she knew and believed in. Everything that was telling her she was sick, perverted, disgusting. A 'faggot' for acting this way. A sissy. Something utterly contemptible...

...all based on a male background that now disgusted and humiliated her - but that yet still held enough sway over her to make her feel disgusted by what she was doing...

...which also meant that it was just about what she deserved in punishment for the way she now felt about that same, now-humiliating male background.

Paul, however, had no such welter of emotions as he looked at the stunning red-head he'd happened upon in the street. He was utterly, completely, helplessly smitten.

Not that any part of a thoroughly confused Mary could blame him - not after one look at herself in the changing-room's mirror. She was... gorgeous.

The deep, rich dark green crushed velvet dress - now, gown - was trimmed in old-gold piping, and its shoulder-baring neckline revealed the faintest, demure hint of the cleavage the D-cup demi-cup bra gave her firm new breasts. It clung tightly to her slender waist before flaring out into a full skirt that dropped to her ankles, merely showing hints of her calf-high black leather boots with their simple, three-inch shaped heels.

It was a very elegant, beautiful gown - and it just barely did justice to such an elegant, beautiful woman. Along with the light make-up that brought faint hints of color to her pale, perfect face, the few select pieces of gold jewelry only served to accentuate the fact that she needed none of these frills to be beautiful...

...and the fact that this was true was what stole Paul's breath away.

That, and that such a stunning woman was bothering to spend any time at all with HIM, regardless of the reason - and the joy he felt over this, Mary also felt.

She just couldn't help it - and no matter how much she told herself that she should force herself to 'walk away' from enjoyment of his enjoyment of her, for a multitude of reasons, she just couldn't bring herself to do it.

As she stood there, taking in the pleasure Paul threw off in waves, the thing she felt most was 'guilty' - and what she felt guilty about was that fact that she didn't feel nearly as guilty about 'being Mary' as she felt she should have...

...and yet, somehow, she just couldn't quite work up the interest to care.

* * * * *

Happily humming 'Joy to the World' to himself, Paul headed home.

That last two days had been the happiest days of his life, and even the inevitable knowledge that it couldn't possibly last couldn't steal his happiness from him.

He had an angel living with him.

He didn't know what had driven Mary to be on that street, and he didn't care. Maybe she was a murderer on the run from the cops - he didn't want to know about it, which was good, because Mary wasn't talking. All he knew was that, for whatever reason, she'd stayed with him at his house, and he got to bask in her presence.

She was not only stunningly beautiful, but - impossibly - Paul believed she really did like him. In fact, once she'd gotten over the obvious 'shyness' of that first night, she was even quite affectionate towards him.

Oh, not PHYSICALLY, of course - it would have been utterly ridiculous of him to even think something like that, no matter how much he might have helplessly fantasized about it. A nerd like him with a gorgeous creature like her? How could he ever hope to satisfy a woman like her? She deserved - and probably had had - the finest lovers in the world, and he was just 'good company' until another man up to her standards came along.

Until then, however, he was hopelessly, helplessly, happily in love with this angel of a woman, and he'd be quite happy to do anything for her.

Which, he thought with a smile as he bounded up the steps to his house, explained why he'd gone out on Christmas Eve, looking for a store that was both open, and still had Egg Nog in stock. If that's what his Mary wanted, that was what she was going to get.

"Mary!" He called, shucking off his coat and boots, then heading into the house itself. "I got you that eg..."

He stopped dead, and the carton of egg-nog he'd had to go to four different stores to find slipped from his suddenly nervously fingers as he stopped and stared, gaping, at the vision standing in the doorway of the living room.

She was dressed in layer over layer of green lace, and balanced sensuously atop a pair of high-heeled shoes of the same emerald color. Even the ribbons in her hair were a rich shade of green...

...and against all that green that both covered - and hinted at - the supple, shapely figure beneath, the big red bow that held it all closed stood out brightly.

As did the tag hanging from that bow - a large gift tag that clearly said 'To Paul'.

Paul made a series of strangled sounds that could have meant anything - or nothing. They cut off sharply, however, when she gestured at something above his head. Instinctively, despite his desire never to stop staring at the vision before him, he looked up - and found himself staring at a piece of mistletoe taped to the ceiling just above his head.

When he lowered his gaze again, it was just in time to see Mary's perfect face as she flowed into his arms. She kissed him.

She KISSED him.

She kissed HIM...!

...and, after a couple of seconds, when he managed to finally convince himself that this was really happening, he actually managed to get around to kissing her back.

Then, after an eternity, she broke the kiss, stepped back slightly, and lifted her hands in a graceful 'tada' motion.

"Well?" She asked, archly - but with just the faintest hint of trembling nervousness. "Aren't you going to open your present...?"

He hesitated - but that hint of trembling nervousness, that sign that she wasn't sure he'd accept the gift, was enough to let him do just that - and when he tugged, lightly, on the bow, the cunningly inter-woven clothing slid from her body, leaving her gloriously nude except for her high heels...

...and then, even as her fingers reached for the fastenings of his own clothes, her mouth opened and gave him the greatest gift of all: "I love you..." She whispered.

* * * * *

As she moaned and gasped at Paul's gentle-yet-firm and oh-so-loving technique, Mary gave one, last fleeting thought of Gary. The last thought of him she'd ever give:

'Good riddance to bad rubbish.'

Then, as she let her first, wonderful female orgasm wash over her, she gave herself unreservedly over to the pure, joyful contentment of just letting herself be exactly the woman Paul wanted her to be, in every way possible, finally knowing that never again would she be a person she would find herself ashamed to be, not with such a fine, kind, wonderful person unknowingly guiding her with his emotions.

It turned out to be a very merry Christmas indeed - and a Happy New Year, to boot.

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

---

© 1997 - 2016 TGstories.

Stories on the "Public Access" pages may be Copyright by individual authors.

Home | Membership | Terms & Conditons | Privacy Policy | Contact

SUMMARY: A macho constructon worker type of guy goes into the new Voodoo Video store and finds that he has rented a tape that changes him into a female porn start actng in a film.

Video Games

---

By Gunslinger

With a hiss of brakes and a belch of diesel exhaust, the bus rumbled and snorted to a stop at the curb. The little green light over the rear doors of the public transport flashed on, and Jimmy pushed through and out into a cool, night breeze that ruffled his lank, mud- colored mass of shoulder-length hair.

As the bus trundled off into the night, the twenty-seven year old stretched his arms up over his head, working the kinks out of muscles that had tightened while he'd sat on uncomfortable vinyl seats for the nearly hour-long bus ride. Not exactly career orientated, Jimmy made what he laughingly called a living by dropping in to the local labor hall once or twice a week, picking up about fifty bucks each time, doing temp 'joe jobs'. The irregular schedule - which was determined solely by when he 'spent up' his last labor's windfall - meant that his body never quite managed to 'get used' to the long, relatively hard days of physical labor that punctuated his otherwise completely self-gratifying existence.

Muttering to himself about the unfairness of it all, Jimmy lowered his arms and headed towards the corner, a few yards away.

This time of night, the subdivision near the edge of town was almost deathly quite. In the time it took Jimmy to reach and cross the nearly-deserted parking-lot lit by the spill of fluorescent light coming from the convenience store that anchored one end of the six-unit mini-mall, not even a single car went by on either of the streets the establishment fronted.

A perennial bachelor, it didn't take Jimmy long to pick out his usual 'supplies' for the next week or so - a package of hot-dogs and buns, some canned goods like stew and beans, a loaf of bread... and four six-packs of beer. Laying his purchases on the counter, he dug into the pocket of his battered black leather jacket for the day's wages, and grudgingly paid out. Collecting his change and the plastic bags containing his purchases, he headed out of the store...

...and stopped dead just outside the exit, registering something he'd missed when going in. The video store that anchored the other end of the 'L'-shaped mini-mall was open.

Jimmy's thick eyebrows rose as he regarded the neon-lit name of the establishment and the unmistakable red 'Open' sign hung in its plate-glass door. A month or so before, the video store that had been there had closed down, unable to compete with the chain establishment that had opened a couple of blocks away. Now, apparently, somebody had taken over both the location and stock of the old store, for about the only difference Jimmy could see was the change of the sign that had used to identify the store.

With a thoughtful shrug, the lean, slightly pot-bellied young man decided to go in. After all, all his 'entertainment electronics' had been purchased second- or third-hand, and the new chain video rental place didn't have all that great of a selection of VHS tapes, trending mostly towards the DVD crowd.

Slinging all three plastic bags to his left hand, Jimmy walked over to the door of the video store and pushed his way through. He liked what he saw.

Oh - 'Voodoo Video' was utterly identical to the 'VidFlix' it had used to be, in decor and content... but Jimmy most certainly approved of the change in management.

Behind the exact same cash-register on the exact-same counter where old Mr. Billings had held court over his grungy, dimly-lit domain stood a much more attractive employee. As Jimmy came through the door, the dark-haired young woman looked up and flashed a brief, purely professional smile at her prospective customer.

"Welcome to Voodoo Video." She said, warmly enough. "I'm Tamara, the new owner. Is there anything in specific you're looking for?"

Perhaps she was a couple of inches shorter than Jimmy's own height of six-one, but if so, she must have been wearing heels that made up the distance, for her sea-green eyes were at the same level as Jimmy's hazel ones. Nevertheless, his gaze remained angled downwards - for, lovely as the slightly dusky-skinned woman's face might have been, Jimmy was much more interested in the large, firm breasts tantalizingly hinted at by the neckline of her black T-shirt.

Making no effort to downplay his actions, Jimmy took two steps closer to the counter, stood on tip-toe, and leaned to his right, getting an eyeful of the trim hips and firm fundament that filled out Tamara's tight black jeans.

Looking elsewhere, Jimmy missed the brief tightening of her lips and hardening of her glorious green eyes. When he finally did deign to look at her face, those port-red lips had opened in a warm smile, and her eyes danced with amusement.

"Well, Tammy..." Jimmy said, with a 'knowing grin' that struck everybody else who saw it as a 'sick leer', "I'm sure I'll have no problems finding something I like in here."

Tamara winced slightly at the 'nick name' Jimmy presumptuously used... but when she spoke, her voice was warm, and slightly husky.

"Hmmm... A man who knows what he likes, and isn't afraid to say so." She said, pink tongue briefly appearing to lick at her full lips.

"Damn straight." Jimmy agreed. Fond of what he called 'the direct approach', (which most women subjected to it merely called 'offensive'), He let his eyes slowly travel down her trim, taut figure and then back up to the well-defined bone structure of her face.

It never even occurred to Jimmy that a woman might choose to dress in all black to minimize some of the curves of her body, and after taking in the face that Tamara was happy enough to display the fine attributes of, went back to eyeing the double-dees she was trying to downplay under her shirt - which, in itself, was a concession to the stuffy warmth of the shop.

Still, though Jimmy's lascivious gaze made her feel somehow unclean, Tamara showed no sign of her discomfort as she smiled at him.

"Let me guess..." She said, quite purposefully leaning forward to give him a better view of the coffee-with-double-cream cleavage he was eyeing hungrily. "You like women with... a little 'more up top', hmmm?"

"Hey, babe..." Jimmy said, with a wicked grin. "Bigger is better, if you know what I mean."

"Oh - I think I do." She agreed, her slightly husky voice showing now sign that she wanted to slap him across the face.

Instead, she held up a single finger in a 'wait a minute' gesture - and then walked slowly and seductively towards the beaded curtain covering the doorway near the end of the counter, looking back over her shoulder as she shamelessly swung her hips in a wide, sensual sway.

"Wait right there - I think I've got the perfect video for you..." She said, lightly licking her lips again - and resisting the urge to laugh at the truth lurking behind her comment.

She had reached the edge of the counter, and held on to the wall near the curtained-off doorway. She flashed another brief, seductive smile at him, then slipped into the doorway below the sign marked 'Adults Only'.

Listening to make sure Jimmy wasn't coming in behind her, Tamara let the faked smile slip from her face, green eyes glittering with malicious amusement as she hurried down past the rows of adult video to the small door at the back of the room.

Thought it was locked, she didn't bother with a key. Touching one long-nailed finger to the lock in the center of the knob, she whispered a word under her breath. There was a short blue glow under her finger - and then the door swung open, almost of its own accord.

Sitting with her feet up, sipping at a cardboard cup of coffee, Tamara's identical twin sister Tania looked up at her and grinned wickedly.

Tania gestured at the televisions sitting on the desk against the wall. Despite the fact that the store boasted no surveillance cameras, the screens showed Jimmy standing at the front counter from four different angles.

None of the televisions were even plugged in.

"Our first customer, huh?" Tania commented, the wicked grin turning downright evil. Though they had rented videos to several people since opening the store that morning, it had all been what the sisters referred to as 'cover work', even those adult videos they'd rented out.

Neither of them had any real problem with the men who rented porn, as long as they were 'regular perverts', as the twin called them. It was the 'other kind' of men they took offense to - and who were the real purpose behind their little enterprise.

"I think this will do the trick nicely..." Tania continued, reaching out to a row of shelves and pulling out a video. The cardboard sleeve that encased the VHS tape was completely blank white - but by the time she passed it over to her sister, the sleeve was clad in the garish - and lurid - imagery common to adult videos.

"This is exciting." Tamara confided with a naughty chuckle, taking the tape.

"It's easier holding your temper when you know what's going to happen, huh?" Tania asked, leaning back and taking another sip of her coffee.

"Yeah." Her sister admitted, heading for the doorway. She threw a smile over her shoulder as she stopped in the opening. "This 'delayed revenge' isn't only safer... it's a hell of a lot more fun, too!"

Her sister's low chuckle following her, Tamara left the room, closed the door behind her, and hurried back to the front desk.

"Here you are..." She said, sliding the video across the counter towards Jimmy. "I think you'll find this one will really.. get to you." In her head, Tamara actually heard her sister moan over the punnishly disguised 'warning'.

Jimmy picked up the video - and, above his blade-like nose, his eyebrows rose as he took in the cover. It was decidedly less graphic than many adult video box covers - but no less evocative.

The graphic showed the edge of a bed, the covers draping it in obvious disarray. Scattered across the floor in front of the bed was various articles of clothing - including a pair of high-heeled shoes.

Hanging over the edge of the bed was a decidedly feminine forearm and hand, in the act of dropping an oversized brassiere to the floor...

...and below that, the title read: Jimmy's Big-Tit Adventure. "But... Jimmy's my name!" He exclaimed.

"Really?" Tamara said, substituting a wide-eyed look of feigned amazement for a wicked laugh. "What a coincidence!"

Grinning, Jimmy paid for the video - and his grin widened when, peering up at him from lowered eyelids framed with long, dark lashes, Tamara wrote a phone number on his customer receipt.

"I really want to know your reactions to the movie." She said - truthfully.

Taking the receipt and the video, Jimmy gave her one, last leer and headed for the door.

Tamara watched him leave, then forced herself to wait patiently behind the counter for a couple of minutes. Only when she was sure Jimmy was out of sight did she hurry to the front door, turning the sign in the window around to show the 'Closed' side.

Turning off the lights in the main area of the store, she hurried through the adult section to the employee lounge at the back of the store. Taking the cup of coffee from Tania, Tamara drew up a chair and sat down, eyes going hungrily to the four unplugged televisions that were showing Jimmy as he headed home, walking through the cool...

* * *

...night air, switching the bags to his right hand to give his left arm a rest.

A half-smile rode on his face as he thought about the hot chick at the video store. The receipt with her phone number was tucked into the chest pocket of the faded blue denim work-shirt he wore, and the crotch of his equally faded denim jeans was bulging slightly over the thoughts running through his mind.

Which, after all, was a good prelude to watching some porn, he thought to himself as he turned and began climbing the hill, taking the short-cut from the road to the apartment complex where he lived. Originally, he'd planned to down a couple of beers and hit the sack, but now he thought some good, old-fashioned whacking off to porn would be a fine way to end the day.

Pushing through the resting chain-link fence that had been pulled back at the edge of the back lot, he ducked through the last few trees and shrubs lining the complex grounds and struck off across the parking lot towards the nearest of the three four-story buildings. Unlocking the heavy steel door, he pulled it open, then clattered down the stairs to the basement of the building.

Above him, fluorescent lights buzzed and hummed as he walked down the hall, passing the laundry room and garbage room on one side, and the mechanical room on the other. There were only two apartments in the basement, and the other one was currently vacant, since neither of the below-ground apartments boasted windows. Still, they were cheap, and Jimmy couldn't have cared less for a 'view' - not to mention the fact that the coolness of the basement meant that the lack of air-conditioning in the summer wasn't to bad.

Letting himself into the small apartment, he closed and locked the door behind him. Pausing only long enough to pull a beer from one of the six-packs, he tossed his groceries into the fridge, bags and all, then made his way through the dirty clothes and empty beer cans to the much-patched recliner in front of the old, 'wood'-cabinet floor-model TV.

Comfort being paramount to Jimmy, he'd hooked up his VCR on the low, battered table beside his single chair, ignoring the cables strung out from the back of the VCR to the TV and various outlets. Tossing his jacket on a pile of clothing, he sat down and unlaced his muddy work-boots, kicking them to one side once they were off.

Leaning back in the recliner, he popped the top on his beer before sliding the tape in the VCR. His old TV had a bad habit of losing its color hold if it was turned off, so he left it on 24/7, set to channel 3 so that when he had it set to 'VCR' with no tape playing, there was just a black screen.

"Okay..." Jimmy said, reaching for the 'play' button as the tape sank into the top-loading machine. "Here..."

* * *

"...we go!" Tamara said, her words overriding the perfect-fidelity rendition of Jimmy's own words through the TV. "Shhh!" Her sister admonished, not tearing her eyes away from the screen as she waved a hand in Tamara's direction.

On the television screen, four synchronized versions of Jimmy tugged the tail of his shirt out of his pants and unzipped his fly before settling back into his chair, a beer in one hand and the other down the front of his open jeans.

Both sister's eyes went to the screen that was showing a view just behind Jimmy's head, showing practically what he saw as he looked towards his own television, which...

* * *

...flickered as the tape began to spool past the worn magnetic heads of the old VCR.

The first thing to show on the screen was the production credits. Had he bothered to read the screen, Jimmy would have discovered the name of the production company that had produced the video - but he was taking a long drink of his beer, and so completely missed the screen that read:

A VODOO

VENGEANCE PRODUCTION

Jimmy lowered the beer in time to catch the title screen of the video, however - and then was a bit surprised when no additional credits rolled before it jumped right into the movie itself.

Not that he cared, mind you - instead, his hand began slowly working inside his pants as the screen 'faded in' on a pair of white leather pumps with six-inch heels.

Slowly, teasingly, the camera began to both rise and pull back, gradually revealing that the high-heel encased feet were attached to a pair of 'nude' nylon-encased legs that were agreeably shapely. Those legs moved slowly in a sort of slow, sensuous 'dance in place', all the better to show off the curves and hollows of those legs, right up until the bottom edge of the translucent lace that edged the top of the nylons came into view - only to vanish under the hem of a garishly bright hot-pink spandex skirt.

Now a pair of hands could be seen, originally resting on either well-rounded hip at the hem-line. As the camera continued moving upwards and outwards, the hands matched it's upwards journey, sensuously sliding to the crotch of the dress, then heading outwards toward the sides as they slid sensuously up over a trim, flat stomach...

...and Jimmy's hand began to rub faster as the camera panned into sight of the bust filling out the skintight pink spandex dress.

* * *

"Enjoy it while you can, Jimmy boy..." Tania chuckled, watching the increased rhythm of the hand down the front of his pants. This time, it was Tamara's turn to hiss for silence.

* * *

The breasts the hands on screen were cupping were more than just 'big'. Even smoothed and 'joined' by the taut spandex covering them, they were huge, each at least as big as a halved cantaloupe - if not bigger.

'Mmm...' A voice moaned in pleasure from the tinny speaker, as the hands squeezed the spandex-enclosed breasts. "They're so big and firm..."

No longer moving upwards, the camera continued pulling out, until it finally framed the woman on screen so that her breasts, hands lovingly caressing them, were centered on screen, while displaying her from about mid-hip up to the top of her face which was framed by long, wavy bottle-blonde hair.

Nobody would ever call the woman 'pretty', much less beautiful. Indeed, the adjectives that sprang immediately to mind were 'cheap' and/or 'slutty' - but she was most definitely female, and not particularly ugly, and that made her sexy enough for Jimmy.

"Umm..." She moaned, licking her garishly red-coated lips as she eyed the camera suggestively. "Do you like my big, round tits, Jimmy?"

He was a bit surprised when the title character neither responded, nor walked 'past' the camera to appear on-screen - but he didn't really care as the big-breasted woman continued squeezing her most obvious attributes.

"Would you like to see my big, firm bobbies, Jimmy?" She asked the camera - even as her hands were rising up to the straps of the spandex dress.

Slowly, she hooked the thumb of each hand under the strap of the dress on that side - and then teasingly pulled them away from her body, then swung her hands downward. Perforce, the dress peeled down her body...

...and revealed the lace-trimmed white bra encasing her melon-like breasts.

"Oh - I can see you like that." She teased the camera. Slowly, she peeled the dress further downwards - then leaned forward to finish stepping out of it, giving a great view of her deep cleavage as she leaned forward.

When she straightened, it was to reveal she wore a matching pair of panties - but Jimmy had eyes only for the firm, obviously surgically enhanced tits that filled out her bra - especially since she'd moistened one finger in a highly suggestive sucking motion, and was now tracing it over the exposed upper swell of her massive breasts.

"Why don't you take my bra off, Jimmy?" She offered, shaking her torso. "I know you'd like to get your hands on these, wouldn't you?"

Again, Jimmy expected the title character to appear, or at least respond - and again he was surprised when it didn't happen. Instead, the slutty, top-heavy blonde began walking towards the camera.

Jimmy waited with bated breath, expecting that any second there'd either be a fade-out, or the camera would swing around to show the 'Jimmy' character.

Instead, she continued coming right up to the camera, her tits seeming to grow to life size on the screen as she crowded it...

...and Jimmy's jaw dropped when the tits reached the camera... and seemed to keep on coming.

It was... almost like they were pushing through the screen. In fact, it was eerily life-like, looking damned near three dimensional, as if they'd reached where the screen/camera would be, and the screen of Jimmy's TV was bulging outwards over where her breasts continued to push forward, the show they cast on Jimmy's carpet...

An inarticulate sound escaped Jimmy's throat, and he rocked backwards in his recliner - then sat bolt-upright.

"Come on, Jimmy - put down the beer, let go of your cock, and come free these puppies!" The woman's voice said, hungrily. With a burst of foam, the beer can dropped from Jimmy's nerveless fingers and skittered across the floor.

"You can clean that up later." The 'disembodied' pair of tits bulging from his TV screen told him. "Come feel my tits, Jimmy!"

Feeling decidedly numb, he tumbled forward off the chair, landing hard on all fours. Ignoring the brief burst of pain from outraged knees, he scuttled diagonally across the floor until he was near the TV, looking at it from an angle.

Another sound was torn from his throat as his eyes confirmed what his brain was insisting couldn't be.

It was as if that TV screen was something like Saran wrap - and it was straining at each corner as the middle bulged out over the huge, bra-encased life-sized tits of the woman 'in' the faux wood case of the TV.

"It.. isn't possible!" Jimmy gasped.

* * *

"Oh, you're going to gain a whole new appreciation for what is and isn't possible tonight, Jimmy boy!" Tania told the TV screen - and rather than shush her, Tamara chuckled in wicked agreement.

* * *

"Come on, Jimmy - take my bra off." The sensual voice cooed from the speaker. "I want to set these gorgeous gazongas free!" With a shaking hand, Jimmy hesitantly reached out and touched her starboard mammary...

...then gasped and yanked his hand back.

It felt... exactly how you might expect a tit to feel, if it was somehow pushing through a thin, somehow suddenly pliable layer of glass.

"Oh, don't tease me!" The woman's voice admonished - in a tone that implied 'teasing' was what she liked. "Just do it, baby - do it now!"

Another small, wordless sound escaped Jimmy's throat - and then, hands shaking worse than ever, reached out for the hooks of the front-closing bra.

It popped open - and, being slightly small for the huge tits it encased, 'snapped' back into the TV, leaving the artificially firm globes of tit-flesh thrust bare through his TV.

"You wanna play with my bobbies, baby?" Her voice urged him. "Go ahead, give 'em a squeeze."

Swallowing heavily, Jimmy obeyed, reaching out to fondle the smooth, slick 'thin-glass-layered' tits, feeling their give and flex under his hands...

...and then he heard himself say a breathless denial as she pulled back, and his questing hands ended up splayed across the once-more solid glass of the TV screen.

She laughed - and her hand, distending the screen behind it, reached out and chucked his chin.

With a cry, Jimmy threw himself backwards, ending up on his backside with his legs splayed out in front of him, supporting his weight on the arms thrust out behind him.

"Oh..." The blonde murmured, looking at where Jimmy's cock distended the briefs visible through his open fly. "My, my..."

Then, even as Jimmy's whirling brain was trying to cope with what had already happened, the blonde stepped back from the screen, and made a 'come hither' motion with her finger.

"Well...?" She asked, seductively. "Are you just going to sit there all night, or are you going to come in...?"

Jimmy gaped at her - and watched as she turned from the camera and swayed to the other end of the room, looking back over her shoulder - as she slowly slid her panties down, revealing her tautly rounded ass cheeks. Letting the panties fall to her feet, she stepped out of them with one foot - then swirled and kicked, sending her panties towards the screen...

...which they passed right through, landing neatly in Jimmy's lap.

"Well?" She asked, lightly running one finger along the moist cleft of her womanhood. Jimmy gasped...

...then dove for the TV screen.

Part of him flinched, expecting the sharp shattering of glass - but he passed right through the screen, with a strange tingling running through his body as he slid through. He landed in a sprawl on the floor of the room on the other side, then hurriedly pushed himself up onto his knees, smiling at the mostly-naked woman who was smiling down at him, one hand playing with her huge tits, the other slipping into the warmly moist embrace of her...

"Cut!" A voice called from somewhere behind him, electronically amplified. "CUT!"

Instantly, the smile vanished from the blonde's face and her hands fell to her side. A harried-looking woman rushed by from somewhere behind Jimmy, carrying a somewhat tattered bathrobe which she wrapped around the busty blonde.

The skinny, harried-looking red-head was also smoking a cigarette, and the big-breasted woman took this as well, taking a drag on it as she rolled her eyes and stalked away, the harried red-head trailing after her.

"This just isn't working at all!" The voice that had yelled 'cut' complained, no longer amplified, and a very stunned Jimmy rose to his feet and turned around...

...to confront a working set full of people.

Bright spotlights glared down on the set on which Jimmy found himself - a room that boasted only two complete walls, and half a third. The rest of it was open, revealing that large, dimly-lit area that boasted three cameras, their operators, and various other members of a film production crew. The man sitting in the director's chair was shaking his head in disgust. He glanced up - and caught Jimmy staring at him.

"What are you waiting for?" He growled, irritably. "An engraved invitation?" "I..." Jimmy stammered, more confused than ever.

The director ignored him.

"Linnnn-da..." The director bellowed - and, as if it were a magical incantation, it caused the harried red-head to appear at Jimmy's side.

"Come on, come on..." She said, taking Jimmy's hand. Head spinning, he was too confused to resist, and let himself be led off stage.

"We're behind schedule and over budget - and now a re-write." The almost painfully skinny red-head said fretfully, as she guided him back-stage, past various people. Some of them were women in various states of dress - or undress. All of them boasted breasts that, whether natural or, as seemed more common, surgically enhanced, ranged from merely 'big' to 'huge'.

Jimmy, overloaded with input, simply gaped as the women either ignored him or threw him a half-hearted wave, as their natures dictated.

"Just wait here." She said, pushing him down in a lumpy old chair against the wall. Unresisting, he let himself be seated, then looked around as Linda ran off.

To his right was obviously the make-up area, where some women were getting their hair or faces done. Directly in front of him was an open door leading into a room filled with a strange assortment of objects - its door, with a frosted glass insert, let him read the inverse letting that identified it as the 'Property Room'.

Inset in the wall just to his left was another frosted-glass door, this one closed, so the letters that identified it as 'Wardrobe' were the right way round, though he had to lean far forward in his chair to read it.

"I'm... a porn star?" Jimmy muttered to himself, shocked.

"I don't know if you should style yourself a 'star' yet, handsome." A somewhat hefty - but still sexy - black woman told him, as she pushed a hand against his head to get him to sit up - he'd been blocking the hallway.

He did so - which put him face-to-face with her large, somewhat sagging boobs, with equally large, dark nipples.

"Let's just hope he doesn't get rid of the scene where you and I get in on, white meat." She said, grinning, as she tugged her black lace garter belt higher around her broad hips. Throwing him a wink, she continued on her way, swaying atop her platform shoes.

Slowly, Jimmy's stunned expression melted into a smile.

This could be... interesting, he thought to himself as he took a longer look at the buxom women moving around the backstage area.

"Okay, strike this set and get the next one ready!" The director's voice echoed, once more amplified by his bullhorn. "Linda! Find that Jimmy guy and get him ready for the new scene!"

Sure enough, a second later the red-head appeared, hurrying atop her sensible shoes.

"Come on, come on..." She urged, grabbing his arm and pulling him with surprising strength towards the door marked 'Wardrobe'. She threw it open and hustled him inside.

"He doesn't want to take the time to get a script typed." She told Jimmy, pushing him towards an older woman standing near a three-fold mirror, cigarette dangling from her plump lips. "He wants to go as soon as the set is up - so we have to hurry. Now get undressed."

"But..." Jimmy began to protest - and then, blushing, began undressing as, with impersonal efficiency, the plump woman, who was wearing a pair of black stretch pants and a canary-yellow top that did absolutely nothing for either her figure or Jimmy's libido, began to undress him. As she worked on his shirt, he awkwardly pulled off his pants.

"What am I doing?" He asked Linda, plaintively, as he fought to ignore the fact that the pudgy woman was peeling off his underwear.

"Okay, here's the scene." Linda rapped out in a fast, staccato rhythm. "It's in a all-girl collage. You'll be in drag, trying to sneak in to a slumber party. You'll get caught, the women won't be angry, and instead they'll fuck your brains out. Think you can ad-lib that?"

Jimmy blinked - then grinned.

"Hell, yeah!" He agreed, enthusiastically.

"Good." Linda said, running a distracted hand through her coppery hair. "When Marge is done with you here, get over to make-up, then haul ass to the set."

"Got it." Jimmy agreed - and then the red-head was gone.

"Here, put this on..." Marge said in a voice made raspy by decades of cigarettes.

The fact that 'this' was a costume of women's clothing was enough to dim his ardor somewhat - but not enough to stop him from letting her help him into it.

Hell! - Everything about this entire situation was utterly and completely impossible to begin with. Though he might be almost painfully heterosexual, and hold a dim view of any 'perverted freak' who would willingly dress in women's clothes, the reason he was now doing so was most definitely in the interest of his strictly heterosexual lifestyle - and, unlikely as he might have ever considered himself dressing in drag, for any reason, the entire situation itself was much more unlikely than even that.

After all - he might feel both disgusted and humiliated to be putting on women's clothing, but knowing that it would soon be stripped off by a bevy of buxom beauties who were then going to 'fuck his brains out' made it rather more palatable.

Shortly, he was in full costume - and squirming slightly from the humiliation.

The clothing - feminine clothing - covered him from the neck down. The shirt and jacket weren't too bad - it was a crisp white dress shirt under a dark blue 'school' blazer, and only the lace trim on the blouse and the silly wide plaid bow in place of a tie were overtly feminine - aside from the bra he wore, and that was the worst part of the upper ensemble, even if it couldn't be seen. It certainly could be felt, the bands digging into his back and shoulders, the foam padded 'A'-cups soft against his chest, and that was bad enough.

The skirt was worse - blue-and-gray plaid, it fell just below the top of the white, opaque knee-socks that finished covering his legs down to the black leather 'Mary Janes' pumps he wore. The shoes, though humiliating, had a heel hardly higher than men's dress shoes, so at least he didn't have any problem walking in them...

...and walk he did, right over to make-up, where they put tissues in the high-buttoned collar of the shirt, then put on a base-layer of 'pancake' make-up before going on to lipstick, eye-shadow, and mascara.

By now, Jimmy was beginning to wonder if this was worth all the discomfort he was feeling at having himself 'made up' - and having his hair more feminine styled, to boot!

Then he remembered why he was doing it - and 'Little Jimmy' decided it was worthwhile, after all...

Rising uncomfortably from the chair where his make-up had been applied, Jimmy thought about the incongruity of the hard-on that lurked under the skirt as he headed towards the stage...

...only to be 'cut off at the pass' by Linda, who - if possible - looked even more harried than ever. "Slight change in script." She said, quickly - and Jimmy's heart (and cock) began to sink.

"The girls know it's you, but play along for awhile..." Linda informed him, "...and then they fuck your brains out." "Oh!" Jimmy said, grin resurfacing. "Sure, that's fine..."

"Good." Linda said, dragging him to a door leading on to the rearranged stage. "On 'action', you knock, then enter without waiting for a reply, and introduce yourself as Jenny, Tara's cousin from Idaho' - got it?"

"Uh..." Jimmy said - but he was talking to Linda's back as she ran off. "...aaaaaand - ACTION!" The director's voice shouted.

Startled, Jimmy jerked - then reached out and knocked on the door. Heart in his throat, he opened it and stepped through, standing awkwardly just inside the set.

"Uh, hi..." He said, eyes bulging out of their sockets at the sight of three sexy, buxom women scantily clad in nighties and camisoles... "CUT!" The director shouted.

Jimmy looked in that direction, startled.

"For god's sake, do something about that voice!" The director shouted - at Linda, not Jimmy. "...and this time, make sure he remembers to shut the door behind him after he comes in!"

"Oh - I've got an idea..." Linda said, snapping her fingers...

...which was why, a few minutes later, he found himself back behind the door of the dorm-room set, a tank of what was clearly marked as 'Helium' beside him. With a hand-held camera running, tight on him so that only the door served as a backdrop, he took a hit of the helium, then knocked on the door, stepped through, and closed it quickly behind him.

"Hi!" He said - chirped, really, thanks to the artificially soprano voice the helium provided. "I'm, Jenny - Tara's sister from Idaho."

"Hi, Jenny!" The buxom blonde he'd first seen on the TV screen said, now with her hair done up in pigtails, wearing pink-trimmed panties and a matching camisole top with a teddy-bear stitched on the fabric straining over her huge tits. "I'm Barbie, and this is Brandi and Sherri. Come on over and make yourself comfortable..."

She patted the huge bed, next to her, and Jimmy - 'Jenny' wasted no time in taking her up on the offer, despite feeling highly conscious of the cameras whirring away in the background. He crawled up on the huge bed and sat, legs crossed under his big skirt, completing the circle.

"So - what should we do, since it's 'just us girls'?" The tawny-haired woman who'd been introduced as 'Brandi' asked, with a certain tone of voice and a broad wink at the other two 'real' girls. Jimmy, in character, decided he was supposed to miss that blatantly obvious hint.

"I know!" Sherri said - and, unlike Linda's coppery hair, this red-head's deep coloring was as obviously fake as her over-sized (but, to Jimmy's mind, delectable) bust-line. She was sitting directly across from 'Jenny', leaving 'her' flanked by blondes, light and dark. "Why don't I do my hypnosis on Jenny!"

The other 'girls' squealed in delight and agreed - and Sherri pulled off her necklace, which sported a big crystal pendant at it's end.

"Just relax and watch the crystal, 'Jenny'..." Sherri said, throwing a broad wink at the other girls as she began swinging the crystal on it's chain. Obediently, Jimmy followed it with his eyes, snorting inwardly.

Only in cheesy movies like this would anybody buy the idea that you could... possibly.... hypnotize.....

Barbie, beside him, laughed - but her voice seemed oddly distorted and far away. He fuzzily wondered what was so funny, but it just seemed too much of an effort to turn his head to look - too much of an effort to do anything but sit perfectly still, continuing to stare into the space where the crystal had swung before Sherri had lowered it, as a matter of fact.

"Let's have some fun with him before we let him know we weren't fooled at all!" Barbie said. "What should we do to him?" Brandi asked.

"Well, if he wants to pretend he's a girl. " Sherri said, wickedly, getting a laugh.

Jimmy heard everything they said, and it registered - it just didn't seem at all important. At least, not until Sherri leaned forward, putting her face right in the spot in space he was still looking at.

"You said your name is 'Jenny' - didn't you?" She asked him.

He stared at her face, dimly surprised he wasn't taking the chance to look down her top - but, again, it seemed like too much trouble. It also seemed suddenly important to answer Sherri's question.

"Yes." Jimmy replied, not even stopping to wonder what the right 'line' was - it just seemed to get dragged out of him in that ridiculous helium-driven soprano.

"Your name is Jenny, then." Sherri said, firmly - which, for some reason that would have taken entirely too much effort to work out, made the other two girls laugh. "You said your name is Jenny, and so your name must be Jenny. You're Jenny. You're.. what's your name?"

He blinked, very slowly, the question slowly working it's way through his mind.

"My name is Jenny." He finally told them - and vaguely wondered why it produced another bout of inexplicable laughter. "What are you wearing, Jenny?" Sherri asked, after she'd stopped laughing.

Jenny frowned slightly.

"A... a skirt - and blouse." She said, slowly. "Knee-socks and Mary Jane shoes..."

"Those are girl's clothes, aren't they?" Sherri asked. "You're dressed like a girl, aren't you, Jenny?" Jenny considered the question.

"Yes." She said, frowning slightly.

"Jenny's a girl's name, isn't it?" Sherri asked, to titters and giggles from the other two. "You've got a girl's name, and you're wearing girl's clothes - and your in the girls' dorm. You must be a girl... right Jenny? You're a girl. Right?"

"Yeee-eeess..." Jenny finally answered, very slowly. Something about the question didn't seem right... but she did have a girl's name, and she was wearing girl's clothes...

"Cut!" A voice called, startling her. She blinked and looked around, feeling confused... It wasn't a real room.

She was on a movie set.

She suddenly remembered she was acting in a porn movie - and shook her head, feeling thick-witted. How could she possibly have forgotten? She was so looking forward to fucking the other women with her now rock-hard cock, and...

She frowned. Something about that thought seemed off - but before she could chase it down, Linda was there, getting her to stand up while Marge from Wardrobe and Debbie from Make-up were there, fussing over her while Linda talked.

"Change of scene." Linda barked. "Instead, we're doing the old 'prude' routine. You come in all prudish like, uptight, you know - and the girls talking you into letting Sherri hypnotize you..."

As Linda spied it out, Jenny nodded - and then it was time to shoot, and a pair of zero-prescription glasses were shoved onto her face, and she was propelled towards the door of the set.

Standing at the door leading into the set, she paused, a frown creasing her face as she caught sight of a few strands that had escaped from Debbie's attempt to pull it all into a tight bun.

The hair was blonde - bright, golden blonde.

Jenny's frown deepened, and she wondered how the hell they'd changed the color of her hair so fast... and then the director was calling 'Action', and she entered the room, walking with a priggish stride atop the three inch heels of her classic-style black pumps.

Three inch heels? When had they changed her shoes...

...or, for that matter, swapped out the knee-high socks for black stockings?

Jenny didn't have time to puzzle it out, though - she was busy ad-libbing with the other actresses, as she let herself be 'talked into' sitting down in a chair and letting Sherri do that tired old bit where she waved a crystal.. in... front.. of.....

Well, now that Sherri asked, Jenny guessed she didn't need to wear her glasses all the time. She might as well take them off. For that matter, she was probably right about letting her hair down. though, when she let her golden mass of curls spill down around her face, there was something about the color that seemed important for her to think about...

...but Sherri was talking, and Jenny felt so thick-witted that she had to concentrate very hard on the unbelievably important things Sherri was saying - and, yes, she was right again, Jenny definitely would feel more comfortable if she undid the uncomfortably tight neck of her blouse, and a few more buttons besides. After all, there was nothing wrong with letting her breasts show. Like Sherri said, Jenny had nice tits, and it was okay to wear her shirt to show them off, and...

Wait a second.

Something just didn't seem quite right about the sight of her firm, DD-cups, encased in their no-nonsense full-cup black bra. The sight of them displayed by her opened shirt seemed somehow disquieting - as did the nylon clad-legs showing from beneath the hem of her severe gray skirt, for that matter.

Jenny tried to tell this to Sherri - but Sherri interrupted her...

...and yes, Jenny guessed Sherri was right, she should be proud of her nice tits. After all, they were quite nice, weren't they? She certainly couldn't argue there. Also, her legs were nice, like Sherri was saying - so, she guessed that it was a good idea, like Sherri said, if she wore heels that showed them off better, like the pumps with the six-inch heels Brandi was right now putting on Jenny's feet, and...

"CUT!"

Jenny looked around in confusion. What was going on?

There was no wall on one side - instead, there was bright lights, and people, and.. and... She knew what those things were called, didn't she?

She felt so confused.

So... dreamy.

She giggled nervously in her high-pitched soprano as a red-head girl with tiny boobies came up to her.

"What's going on?" Jenny asked in her high-pitched girly voice, trying to get her scattered thoughts in some sort of order. "Where am I?"

"You're making a movie, Jenny." The red-head... Lisa? No - Linda! Jenny giggled happily at remembering the red-head's name. "A movie?" Jenny asked, with another giggle.

"Yes - a porn movie." Linda said.

"Oh, right!" Jenny said, remembering - sort of. She was looking forward to this, wasn't she? Yes, she thought she remembered...

...but Linda was talking.

"Do you know what type of porn movie it is, Jenny?" Linda asked.

Jenny pouted prettily as she worked over the question - then smiled brightly as memory responded.

"It's a big-booby movie!" She said, jumping up and down and clapping her hands in excitement at answering correctly. "That's right." Linda confirmed. "That's why the director's upset at you, Jenny. Look..."

Jenny stared at Linda's pointing finger for a moment - then finally understood the significance of the extended digit, and lowered her gaze to her own chest...

Her tits sat, exposed by the half-opened blouse, encased in the black bra.

She'd been thinking about them a couple of minutes ago, hadn't she? She'd thought...

"There's... something wrong with my boobies?" Jenny said, slowly. The thought felt right, somehow, but she felt so scatter-brained that she couldn't figure out what...

"Look at the other girls, Jenny." Linda said patiently, and Jenny did...

"My boobies aren't as big as theirs!" She said, blue eyes going even wider than her usual vapid gaze.

"That's right - and don't you think the star of a big-booby movie should have big boobies?" Linda asked. "Maybe even the biggest boobies of all?"

Jenny frowned.

"Gee, that makes sense... I think." She agreed, cautiously.

"Well, then - what do we need to do before we can make the film?" Linda prompted. That was a toughie. Jenny pouted and thought, and thought, and thought...

"You need to make my boobies bigger!" She finally cried, happily.

"That's right, Jenny..." Linda said, taking her hand and leading her off-stage. "That's right..."

* * * * *

Her face expressionless, her huge, blue eyes focused on nothingness, the huge-breasted blonde woman didn't even move as the handsome young man finished peeling her bra off and discarded it, then reached out and began squeezing and fondling massive, artificially round breasts each easily the size of a basketball.

"You like having your huge tits played with, don't you Jenny?" The man asked in a husky voice. "You love getting them squeezed and touched by men, don't you?"

Still staring off into space, the woman answered in a thick, slow - but high-pitched and slightly lisping - voice.

"Yes. I love having men play with my big titties." She said in a sweet monotone.

"You love it because it gets men horny." The man said, continuing to squeeze and caress her massive, fake tits. "You love making men horny."

"I love making men horny." She parroted back in that slow, dazed voice.

"You love getting men horny because it makes their cocks hard..." The man said - gasped, really. "You love hard, throbbing cocks." "I love hard, throbbing cocks." She agreed, again.

"You love hard, throbbing cocks - because then you can suck and fuck them, Jenny." The man gasped, the source of his distress - the oversized cock straining the boxers that were the only clothing he wore - quite obvious. "You love fucking and sucking cock. You can't get enough cock. You want to get men horny with your body and huge, round tits so that you can fuck and suck more cock - right Jenny, right?"

"Yes." She replied, flatly. "I love getting men horny so they will let me fuck and suck their big, hard cocks." "God..." The man whimpered - and then snapped his fingers near her ear.

The huge-breasted woman blinked, shook her head - and then a huge smile appeared on her full, gloss-pink lips.

"Gee, Tommy - I guess I musta fell asleep!" She said - then giggled brainlessly, perfectly in keeping with her looks. She looked at his hands on her huge tits - then down at the erection straining his underwear.

"Mmmm - is that for me?" She asked, brightly.

"You bet, baby." Tommy said. "You gave me the hard on - so now you can take care of it!"

"Oh, Goodie!" She exclaimed, leaping to her feet and happily clapping her hands as she jumped up and down - making her massive tits bound and jiggle and sway. "I just soooo love cock! I love to fuck them and suck them! Can I fuck your big, hard cock, Tommy?"

"Sure..." Tommy said, smiling. "If you do a good job, I'll even let you suck it later!"

"Oh, boy!" She exclaimed, happily. Grabbing his hand, she pulled him over to the nearby bed, where she quickly took off his briefs, as well as her own skirt and panties. They spent a couple of minutes kissing and fondling - and then she climbed up atop him and sank her sopping cunt onto his hard, throbbing cock, gasping and moaning in pleasure.

"I love your cock, Tommy!" She cried, flexing those long, sexy legs of hers, driving herself up and down atop his manhood. One hand rested on his flat stomach, with the other hand played with her massive tits.

She fucked him long, hard and energetically, pausing only once - long enough to end up on her hands and knees, so that her huge tits could sway back and forth as Tommy took her from behind. He fucked her for a while longer. Finally, she began screaming in pleasure - and yanked herself off his cock to flop onto the bed, face up...

...while Tommy quickly put himself on the bed, straddling her, hand working his cock.

He came - ejaculating an incredible amount of cum in long, thick jets that sprayed all over her huge tits and into her open, eager mouth...

...and then, in the middle of a gushing jet of cum splattering across her lips, everything just - stopped.

"There you are, ladies and gentleman!" A voice cried as the lights came up. "Our NewCummer of the Year - Miss Jenny Juggs!"

Applause rang through the auditorium hosting the Adult Movie Awards, and silicone-stuffed actress herself wiggled and jiggled out onto stage from the wings, smiling brainlessly and waving at the crowd - looking a bit befuddled, truth be told.

"To present the award, the producers of Jenny Juggs Big Adventure, co-owners of their own studio and label - and quite hot babes in their own right - Tamara and Tania LaRue!"

The applause redoubled as a pair of svelte, dark-haired women came out on stage from the opposite wings, carrying the rather cheesy plastic award statue between them. The met the clearly befuddled Jenny at center stage and presented her with the award - and, to the delight of the audience, comprehension dawned when she accepted it, and she cried out: "I got this for fucking and sucking real good!"

It called for a good laugh - and the LaRue sisters laughed even harder than the crowd as they assured their big box-office draw that she had, indeed, won it for that.

Laughing and giggling, Jenny Juggs happily waved the statue at the audience - which, since it made her huge, barely-covered tits jiggle and bounce, was quite entertaining.

"Now, before you go..." The MC said to the LaRue sisters, through his microphone. "Maybe we can convince you to answer the question on everybody's lips. Having come out of nowhere with not only a brand-new production company, but a brand-new star... when are you coming out with your second film?"

"Well..." Tania-or-Tamara said - none of the suddenly silent, intent audience could tell the two identical, dark-clad women apart. "I don't want to give anything away... but so many men have approached us with their 'good ideas' since our arrival, you can be sure we'll be turning out some films so tailored to their own fetishes it'll just... pull them right in."

Then, Tamara-or-Tania winced - almost, some noted later in mild confusion, as if somebody had just given her a good, hard poke in the ribs...

...but then Jenny cried out, 'Gee, do I get to do more fucking and sucking, too?' - and brought down the house.

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

---

© 1997 - 2016 TGstories.

Stories on the "Public Access" pages may be Copyright by individual authors.

Home | Membership | Terms & Conditons | Privacy Policy | Contact

SUMMARY: When two roommates butt heads over who is going to clean up, one of them becomes the victim of a magic trinket and is transformed into the maid..

Wanted

---

By Gunslinger

With a loud, reverberating belch, Kevin negligently tossed the emptied can of beer off to the side. With a metallic clatter, the can rolled down the side of the small pyramid of similar containers, before coming to rest in a drift of fast-food wrappings that lay at the base of the small mountain of refuse.

Looking up from his work, Jeff frowned at the sight of the mess, then switched his low, flat gaze to his raven-haired roommate. "You're a slob, Kevin - did you know that?" Jeff asked, pointedly.

"Yup, sure do..." Kevin replied with an impish grin. Stretching mightily, the broad-shouldered young man leaned forward, pulling himself out of his comfortable semi-reclined position and bracing his weight on one heavily-muscled arm. "Known it for years, bud - and I would have figured a brain like you woulda figured it out long before this. Hell, we've been roommates for, what, a month now? Surely the fact that I haven't cleaned up one damned thing in that entire time musta given you a clue..."

Blinking, Jeff slowly removed his reading glasses and raised one slender, pale eyebrow. "You sound like you're proud of the fact."

Kevin shrugged. "Not proud, not ashamed. It's just the way I am, buddy-boy. The mess doesn't bother me at all, so I really don't have any urge to clean it up, that's all."

"Oh, I see - and my distaste for mess doesn't matter." Jeff said, acerbically.

"If it bothers you, then you clean it up." Kevin said, with another shrug. Levering himself up off the couch, he stretched again, his thick, slab-sided muscles stiff after spending nearly four hours on the couch, watching a pair of mid-afternoon 'T&A' flicks on network TV. "Same as with the cooking - I tried handling that, but you didn't like my cooking, so now you do it. No biggie."

"Oh, is that what you call 'cooking'?" Jeff asked, also rising and stretching - though it looked a lot less impressive on his slender, pale frame than it did on Kevin's heavily built one. "Dumping Spaghetti-O's in a bowl and nuking it is cooking?"

"Hey, I happen to like canned food." Kevin said, easily. "Like I said - if you don't like a way I do, or don't do, something, then do it yourself. I figure it's the only fair way, right?"

Jeff sighed and ground his teeth together.

It wasn't that Kevin was a bad guy, really. Certainly, he was friendly enough, the narrow, acne-scarred face usually carrying an easy grin. He wasn't even lazy, exactly - when they'd moved into the two-bedroom cinder-block cottage on the edge of town that neither could have afforded alone, the muscular young man had actually insisted on doing all the working lifting and carrying, letting Jeff do the sorting and arranging - each doing what they did best, in other words.

The problem was, Kevin had no concept of 'fair division of labor'. He simply figured that whoever did a particular task best should be the one to do it - and it seemed that Kevin had absolutely no 'housekeeping' skills, and so the tasks fell on Jeff.

"Well, I've been teased enough..." Kevin said, heading towards the door, grabbing a jean jacket to pull over his sweatshirt-and-jean ensemble to ward off the autumn chill. "I'm goin' into town to pick up a porno or two - need anything."

Still annoyed and frustrated at his too easy-going new roommates disregard for cleanliness, Jeff pointedly turned his back on him and went back to work carefully polishing the small brass 'trinket' he'd purchased at a garage sale, removing decades of green tarnish from its surface.

With a sigh, Kevin walked over and plucked the little brass Celtic cross from Jeff's hand.

"Oy, me boyo..." Kevin said, faking a thick Irish lilt - badly. "I swear on my soul and Saint Paddy his'self, anythin' you be wanting, I'll be takin' care of."

Angrily, disdaining to answer a roommate who's unflagging good-nature denied him a target for his pent-up frustration, Jeff yanked the small Irish charm from Kevin's fingers. Intently leaning forward and resuming polishing it, he presented Kevin with a view of his crew-cut blond hair.

Rolling his eyes, Kevin shrugged and turned away. Jangling his keys in his hand, he headed out of the house, honestly not understanding why Jeff was so upset about something that seemed so self-evident to him.

Hearing the door slam shut behind his roommate, the slim blond gripped the cross tightly in his fist. "Yeah, Kevin, I need something..." He muttered to the air. "I need a maid..."

* * * * *

Almost to his car, Kevin suddenly gasped, his pock-marked face going pale as he trembled. It as if a giant foam-rubber hammer had just hit him between the eyes.

It wasn't just the 'realization' of how Jeff felt - it was much deeper and stronger then that, something closer to the sort of soul-searing epiphany that some felt upon discovering religion.

Except that there was no 'lead in' to the sudden convictions - and consequences - that had just flooded over him. It was like a tidal- wave of unquestionable truths coming out of nowhere and sweeping him away in it's unstoppable current.

Though his own thoughts and opinions on the whole situation remained unchanged, Kevin had just been hit with an overwhelming conviction that he was doing something horribly, terribly, inhumanly wrong. Even as his watery legs managed to get him to his car, he was struggling to stay afloat in the unwanted and unprompted flood of self-disgust, shame and self-recriminations that battered at his mind, insisting that he needed to so something to make right what he'd done wrong...

...and not just any 'something', but something specific.

"No..." Kevin moaned to himself, clasping his hands to the side of his head. "What... what's happening to me...?" The unwanted urge - needs - he was feeling didn't come with a user's manual that included the answers he sough. He needed to be a maid for Jeff.

Though out of nowhere, the thought was fully formed and specific. It wasn't that he had to go back in the house and clean up his mess - it was that he needed to be Jeff's maid.

It was ridiculous and humiliating, the thought of being a 'maid', right down to all the emotional and mental attachments that Kevin connected to that specific concept - yet it wasn't something he could ignore, not with it battering at him. The need to do this might be strange and horrifyingly powerful, but it was also as real as a drowning man's need for air...

...and just as a drowning man will sooner or later open his mouth and attempt to 'breathe' water due to his need, so was the overpowering need to strong for Kevin to resist for long. Even as he begged the thin air for answers - and relief - he was sliding into the driver's seat of the car, fingers fumbling the key into the ignition as he found himself obeying the overwhelming, inexplicable need to make himself into Jeff's maid.

Starting the car, he struggled for a moment against this unwanted need, horrified at the thought of what he was helplessly contemplating - but the pause was only momentary, and he found himself driven by the emotions and thoughts washing over him in an unending wave darker and more horrifying then the ones conjured up at the contemplation.

Putting the car into 'drive', he aimed it towards the road leading into town.

"Please... no..." Kevin whimpered as he headed into town, struggling to turn aside the flood of emotions that threatened to overwhelm him. Though his intellect still insisted that there was nothing wrong with the way he'd been viewing the whole 'mess situation', his emotions were acting as if he'd just brutally murdered his best friend in cold blood. His brain scrambled to hold onto it's sanity in the face of such bleak, self-hating emotions - and the only life-line it could find was the inexplicable promise of redemption if only he'd 'make up' for his 'wrongs' by being Jeff's maid.

Helplessly driven by these needs, he pulled the car to a stop in front of a store in town that sold a wide variety of novelty items and costumes.

Practically throwing himself from the car in a desperate need to do this thing he didn't want to do, he hurried into the store even as he desperately wished to be going somewhere - anywhere - else.

The man behind the counter looked up as Kevin slammed into the store in a rush, his eyebrows rising at the sight of the muscular young man with a look of desperation on his pinched features.

"Can I help you, sir...?" The cashier asked, politely enough, as his fingers lightly rested on the silent alarm button under the edge of the counter.

"A maid's costume." The man gasped, tears actually standing in his dark eyes as he hauled a wad of money out of his pocket and stood, literally bouncing with tension. "Please... I need to buy a maid's costume."

The cashier blinked. "Oh, uh... certainly, sir. Um... will this be for yourself, sir...?"

"Yes, yes..." Kevin said, urgently, hating what he was doing - but needing to do it, nonetheless. "Please, I need a maid's costume." "Uh... well, we'll have to see what we have in your size..." The cashier said, hesitantly, looking at Kevin's physique.

The cashier hesitated a second longer - but the sight of that money was the final straw, and he edged out from behind the desk and headed down an aisle, Kevin following practically on his heels.

"Here we are..." The cashier said, gesturing at a section of free-standing racks that held a variety of costumes. "English maids, several types of French maid outfits..."

Looking at the wide range of ultimately feminine clothing, Kevin winced at the thought of dressing up in such a thing - but worse than the shame and humiliation of such a thing was the dark, bleak emotions thrumming through him. Though the thought of wearing one of the outfits was distasteful, it was nevertheless bearable - while as the self-hatred and disgust he was feeling right now wasn't.

Hurriedly, Kevin began pawing through the racks, looking desperately for the correct sizes for his heavily muscled frame, draping the garments over his arm as he found them. Even the sight of the silk and lace laying against his muscular, hirsute arm was enough to make him shudder - but wasn't enough to allow even a pause, his desperate need threatening to pull him under.

"Shoes..." He gasped at the clerk, even as he continued picking out clothing and accessories that his own mental image of a maid demanded he get. "Size eleven, anything at all - and make-up, I need make-up..."

It took the clerk a second to decipher the words 'make-up' - since they were said in a near whimper. "Uh... You do realize that buying this, rather than renting, is going to be quite expensive..."

"Fine, anything - shoes and makeup..." Kevin said, quite literally unable to consider the financial aspects in his driven need to rid himself of negative emotions that were now quickly nearing suicidal levels.

"Yes sir..." The cashier said, briskly, already adding up a running total as he headed off to acceded to the strange, obviously insane man's demands.

The cashier couldn't have cared less if the dark-haired man thought he was Napoleon - or, more likely, Josephine. As long as he had the cash to pay for this stuff, the cashier would sell it to him...

When the entire ensemble had finally been accumulated, Kevin paid for the goods making them his - and then let out a small sob of relief as the pressure of his emotions eased somewhat at having halfway completed his 'redemption'.

Eased - but not vanished. He now owned a complete 'maid' outfit - but he had to go much further than that. The sob or relief leading into a small whimper of embarrassment, he headed out of the store.

After a short stop at a store to pick up the last few items he quite literally needed, then headed for home.

As he drove, he pleaded with the unknown outside force that must be responsible for these strange and inexplicable feelings he had. The main thrust of his pleas weren't about the 'maid' routine, though it was definitely a secondary matter.

More important than not having to play 'maid', however, was begging to get rid of the feelings that were driving him to do it. Indeed, if it came down to it, he would happily saunter through Times Square at high noon in nothing but a pink tutu and a pair of high heels - if it meant that he could erase the emotional damage that came from having even had the feelings that still tortured him.

Ten minutes later, Kevin arrived home, the unwanted emotions and self-hate tearing him up inside. Still muttering pleas to the unseen force hovering about him, the broad-shoulder brunet gathered up the bags containing his unwanted purchases and went into the house.

It was immediately obvious that Jeff wasn't there - something not totally unexpected, and quite relieving.

Jeff was, by nature, a non-confrontational man. A genuine book-worm, and somewhat shy to boot, Jeff's usual method for handling anger or despair was to take a long walk to cool down.

Until whatever it was that was happening to Kevin had happened, the muscular man would have said that Jeff was the more emotional of the pair, more sensitive to his own feelings and those of others. Kevin, himself, knew he was 'insensitive' - not in the usual meaning of 'intentionally rude', but in the sense that he quite literally didn't sense others or his own emotions. Indeed, he went through life substituting physical comfort and pleasure for happiness, and physical pain or discomfort for 'fear' and 'sadness'...

...until now.

Until now, he'd always thought that he was somehow superior to those people ruled by their emotions, people like Jeff who let themselves get 'worked up' about things, instead of just taking life as it came.

Now, however, feeling real emotions batter at him, he finally understood how somebody could be driven to do something by 'mere emotion', and in a way it was a revelation that made the emotional pain tearing through him somewhat worth-while, in the 'silver lining' meaning.

Still, as he headed for the bathroom, Kevin wished he could have gone his entire life in ignorance - for ignorance really was bliss.

Well, at least he had a temporary reprieve before he had to reveal his new emotional side to his roommate, Kevin thought with a twisted grin.

Entering the bathroom, he dug into one of the plastic bags, emerging with a plastic container that resembled a shampoo bottle.

Holding it, Kevin simply stood and considered not using it - and the wave of renewed emotions told him that he couldn't 'wimp out' on any part of this.

With another expression somewhere between pain and resignation, Kevin flipped the bottle over and began rereading the instructions on how to use Neet...

* * * * *

Hands jammed deep in the pockets of jacket, Jeff headed towards the house, his eyes fixed on the ground in front of him.

The anger ad spent itself as he'd walked, the heat of his frustration seeming to bleed off into the cool autumn air, leaving behind the bitter after-taste of resignation. Kevin was who he was, and there was obviously no emotional involvement in the situation - which meant that neither guilt nor shame would be eating away at him.

In other words, there was no incentive to change.

Shaking his head, and wishing he'd screen the cheerful, apparently so helpful prospective roommate more carefully, Jeff opened the door and stepped inside...

...and stopped dead, jaw dropping.

"Oh, uh... hi..." Kevin said, in a voice as weak as the grin pasted on his lips. On his lipstick clad lips.

Jeff didn't answer the weakly-offered greeting, instead continuing to stare, wide-eyed, at the bizarre image that his roommate presented.

Balanced awkwardly atop the relatively short, wide heels of the 'Mary-Jane' style pumps with their two-and-a-half inch heels, Kevin was bent over, caught in the act of dusting the coffee-table - a position that only served to emphasize the thick, slab-like musculature of the smooth legs encased in the fine-mesh black fishnet stockings.

In the position Kevin was in, it was easy to see the tops of those stocks, and the garters that connected them to the hidden garter belt under the puffy, white-petticoat-lined black silk skirt - a skirt trimmed in white lace.

As was the top of the classic 'French Maid' uniform, the bodice-style top with the puffy short sleeves overlaid with a lace-trimmed white apron that also matched the little black-and-white lace maid's cap perched incongruously atop the once-shaggy mane of raven's hair that had been painfully styled into a tight-curled mass by an obviously inexperienced hand.

Framed by that sloppily-feminine style was Kevin's square-jawed masculine face, carefully made up, right down to the long false eyelashes that edged the blue eye-shadowed lids.

The sight of Kevin, looking ludicrous in the feminine finery, was fighting to be more utterly unexpected than the sight of the living room itself...

...which was more spotlessly clean than it had been since the men had moved in, not only tidied up, but vacuumed, polished and dusted.

"What...?" Jeff started to ask about the room's cleanliness - then the outfit won out: "Why are you wearing a maid's uniform...?"

As the not-unexpected question registered on Kevin's brain, he was opening his mouth to explain that he had to, but didn't know why...

...and then gaped stupidly back at Jeff, the flush of embarrassment on his face giving way to the pale white of shocked realization as the answer flooded into his mind.

"...because you wanted it..."

Jeff blinked at Kevin's breathlessly whispered answer. "Huh...?"

"The charm..." Kevin said, a little more strongly. "I promised, on my soul and on Saint Patrick, that anything you wanted, I take care of. You wanted me to clean up, and so I had to... but, on some level, you also wanted me to, uh, be 'punished' - humiliated."

Slowly, Jeff began shaking his head in negation of the charge.

"Yes." Kevin said, straightening, his face a mask of conflicting emotions. "You don't want to admit it out loud, but in your mind it's what you want. I know this the same way I knew the answer as soon as you asked the question - because you wanted to know the answer. It doesn't matter if it's actually anything you'd ask for, out loud, and desire you'd ever express - somehow, by the promise I made, I know whatever it is you want... and have to supply it..."

Jeff shook his head again - but thus time, to clear it, unable to argue the charges leveled at him. Taking a deep breath, he tried to wrap his mind around what he would have otherwise assumed as an utterly impossible situation.

"If that's true..." He said, slowly, "...then I want you to get out of that ridiculous outfit."

A torn expression took up residence on Kevin's face.

"No, you don't..." He said, sadly. "You don't want to be responsible for this - and you aren't, since I, unknowingly, did this to myself - but, though you hate to admit it even to yourself, part of you is enjoying having this sort of control over me, and you want it to continue - and, so, regardless of what I want, and regardless of what you say, I have to continue doing what, deep down, you really want... which, right now, is dinner."

Face screwing itself into a painfully wry smile, Kevin shrugged and headed for the kitchen.

"Wait, no..." Jeff said, still trying to accept this was really happening. "Kevin, I don't want to do this to you, I don't want to..."

With the wave of one hand tipped with press-on nails, Kevin stopped him. "You feel guilty about your role in this, but you do want it - and it's nothing you can control."

With a sigh, Kevin had to push back the disgust and humiliation, and tell the hard truth: "It's not your fault, Jeff. You didn't somehow plan this, you aren't giving me orders to do this stuff. You're just... being you, and I have no choice but to obey the unspoken desires deep inside you, ones that your compassion and your intellect would never let see the light of day, but ones that exist. It's not your fault, Jeff. If it's anyone's fault, it's mine - for not even trying to understand your feelings before this forced me to more or less experience them."

Jeff had no response to that, and so he simply stared as Kevin turned away, and headed for the kitchen.

* * * * *

"Thanks, that was, uh..."

"Wonderful?" Kevin supplied, looking down at his own scraped-clean plate. "Yeah, it was really weird. I mean... I've never bothered to learn how to cook, but, somehow... I just knew what to do. I guess... because you wanted a tasty meal, and not the usual dreck I make..."

Jeff shook his head for the hundredth time that afternoon, still trying to cope with everything going on. Finding Kevin dressed up in a maid's outfit, every inch of skin below the eyebrows smooth as a baby's bottom thanks to the unwanted use of depilatory, was just the beginning. Less visible but more stunning was the new skills the muscular, cross-dressed man found himself with, as whatever incredible force that was working upon him provided him with whatever was necessary to allow him to carry out Jeff's unspoken desires.

Waiting a second, Kevin prepared for the 'emotional blackmail' that would fore him to do the dishes...

...and was mildly amazed when Jeff got up and began to clear away the dishes, without that urge arising. "I'll handle the dishes." Jeff said, with a shrug. "It only seems fair, after the cleaning and cooking you did..."

Kevin blinked, amazed to discover that it wasn't just polite noises, but an actual belief in fairness - because if Jeff had felt otherwise, fairly or not, Kevin would have been compelled to do the dishes anyway.

Kevin felt a strange emotion curling in his breast - not one that was imposed from outside, but one that was completely internal.

He'd not so much misjudged Jeff, as not bothered to judge him in the first place. Only now, with an unwanted insight into Jeff's inner soul, did he understand what his new roommate thought and believed.

As much as he hated what was happening to him, Kevin simply couldn't bring himself to hate Jeff. Jeff's part in this was as much unwilling as his own, and it was obvious that Jeff was feeling remorse for what his unstated desires were causing Kevin to do...

...when Kevin knew damned well that, had the positions been reverse, he wouldn't have felt that remorse. It was one of the principal differences between them. Jeff, more emotional, agonized over what he did, while Kevin based his life around a purely physical morality, doing what caused himself pleasure, and shunning that which caused him pain.

Only now did he realize that Jeff did the same thing - but where Kevin's decisions were based on physical pleasure and pain, Jeff's were based on emotional pleasure and pain.

"Well..." Kevin said, hesitantly, testing the words. "...I guess I'll go... get changed..."

There was no emotional back-lash from the suggestion, and Kevin sighed as he realized that he was now 'allowed' to go change back into his own clothes.

Twenty minutes later, they met back in the living room, Kevin once more dressed in his normal clothing and feeling much relieved to be so. They settled onto the couch and Kevin picked up the remote...

...then sighed as he turned on 'CSI'. It was a show he could either take or leave, but Jeff really enjoyed it - and since he wanted to watch it, that was what they were going to watch...

...except there was more to it than that.

"Weird..." Kevin said during a commercial, shaking his head in amazement. "What's that...?" Jeff asked.

"I.. I'm enjoying it." Kevin said, still amazed. "You must want to be able to share watching the show with somebody who enjoys it as much as you do - and, so, I enjoy it. More than that, though - one reason why you've always enjoyed it more than me is because you're more intellectual, while a lot of what's going on goes over my head. Only, tonight - I get what's going on. I mean, just like I knew how to cook and clean, I also know everything they're talking about, all the implications and meanings and stuff. Like, geez, Jeff

- I'm smarter then I was before this started..."

It was an amazing 'side-effect' - and Jeff found some of his attention stolen from the show as he tried to contemplate just how powerful this strange force was...

After the show was over, Jeff yawned and stretched, "Well - I'm going to head off to bed."

"Okay.' Kevin said. "I'm not really tired, but trust me - I won't make any more noise then you want me too..." The two roommates shared a wry grin, then Jeff headed off to bed.

It was nearly an hour after Jeff had fallen asleep, and his subconscious mind had begun 'playing around' in the unlimited scope of the dream world, that Kevin felt a new compulsion taking form...

* * * * *

Yawning, Jeff followed the rich odor of coffee into the kitchen... "Oh, shit..."

Kevin smiled in response, 'striking a pose' and speaking in a forced falsetto. "Morning, sleepy-head." Jeff just slowly shook his head, staring at Kevin's muscular form, once more draped in feminine clothing.

It wasn't the maid's outfit, though Kevin was once again wearing the shoes and fishnets. Over this, however, was a dark blue dress of a very 'June Cleaver' style, one that went with the hair that had been re-worked into a better version of his poor first attempt at a elegantly curled mass.

"Like the dress...?" Kevin asked, dropping the falsetto as he poured a mug of coffee for Jeff. "I was up all night making it, and it came out pretty damned good - but I'm kinda pissed about loosing my best set of sheets for the material."

Jeff blinked. "You're... taking this rather calmly..."

Kevin smirked. "You shoulda heard my curses last night, when the need first came over me. Of course, I only muttered them, so as not to wake you - but some of the ones I aimed at you were so nasty, I was almost surprised that you didn't just burst into flame from them. Since then... well, I've had plenty of time to think while my hands were busy, and I realized that there's not only no permanent damage, but there's some 'fringe benefits'."

Jeff's eyebrows rose at the admission. Personally, he wouldn't have found increased intelligent and new skills a fair trade for being forced to dress in women's clothing but, then again, he wasn't Kevin. If Kevin found it bearable, that was just so much less guilt that he had to...

"Wait a second..." Jeff said, suspiciously. "You're not being forced to act this way just because I don't want to feel guilt about what's happening to you, are you?"

Kevin blinked, then looked thoughtful. "I... don't think so. But... how would I know? I mean - are you even sure you want to know the truth...?"

Jeff opened his mouth to answer - then shut it again, a look of surprised confusion on his own face as he realized he didn't know for sure...

More than that - perhaps Kevin's answer was 'driven' by Jeff subconsciously wanting to be convinced that Kevin wasn't been driven by a subconscious desire, whereas an immediate denial that it was the case might have made Jeff to wonder if he'd been forced to issue that denial - except that now he was wondering just that very thing...

"I think this whole thing is giving me a headache..." Jeff said, realizing that, in a way, he was wondering if whether or not he was trying to outsmart himself with Kevin being the conduit.

"Oh, hey..." Kevin said, snapping fingers once more tipped with press-on nails. "Look, I'm not 'your obedient slave'. I can fight the urges, but I don't because it hurts so much - but that means that we'd both notice the struggle if it was an 'enforced' thought."

"I.. guess so. I hope so, at least..." Jeff said, moderately reassured by the thought - but, then again, how could he be sure that it wasn't simply a reassurance he'd wanted Kevin to give him...?

No, Jeff decided with a slight grin. That was overthinking the whole problem - especially since the situation wasn't driven by conscious thought, but unconscious desire. If he needed any more proof of that, one look at Kevin would cure him of it. After all, Kevin looked utterly ridiculous, his muscular and almost overly masculine frame looking ludicrous in the feminine outfit he was forced to wear. There was no way Jeff's conscious mind would have done anything to willingly create such an ugly picture. If it was up to him...

"Ugn...!" Kevin gasped, eyes flying wide as his body twitched.

The grunt drew Jeff's eye to his cross-dressing roommate - and for a second, he couldn't fathom what he was seeing as Kevin writhed in place, his entire body feeling as if it had 'been asleep' and had just come back to tingling life.

Then it registered...

"I didn't mean it...!" Jeff screamed, eyes going painfully wide as he staggered back, spilling his coffee as he slammed into the wall behind him. He threw his hands up in a defensive supplication. "No, stop, I take it back..."

"What's... happening.. to me..." Kevin gasped - because he had an idea what was happening, and was praying that some other answer - and other answer - would come back, one not nearly as horrifying as what he thought was happening.

Unfortunately, though, Kevin's assumption was right on the money. Gasping and still trying to beg off from the thought that had formed, unbidden, in his mind, Jeff could only stared slack-jawed as his roommate's massively muscled frame writhed and reshaped itself, the muscles melting away like butter left out in the hot summer sun, to be replaced with smoother, more aesthetically pleasing curves...

"Oh, shit - I'm a woman..." Kevin screamed, the unwilling admission of the horrifying fate emerging in a clear, feminine contralto trilled with near panic as the new woman threw her hands wide and stared down at her transformed body, fuller lips in a perfect 'O' of shocked horror.

It was a statement of the obvious, for the person standing near the coffee-maker was not only female, but emphatically so. In the space of a few seconds, the one tall, broad, and massively muscled body Kevin had once possessed had reshaped itself into a slender, feminine hour-glass, the carefully-sewn dress somehow undergoing its own transformation to fit the much daintier form as well as it had fit the masculine one it had so recently enclosed.

The way it fit the new body was much more pleasing to Jeff's eye, though. After all, what man wouldn't enjoy looking at a tall, slender woman with a deliciously slender waist separating the womanly curve of her hips from the fabric tented over the conical breasts above?

She was a stunning beauty, looking like a cross between Jane Russell and Angelina Jolie - tall and lithe, with classically beautiful features and fill, inviting lips. Her figure, so supple and graceful, was not only enclosed in a dress reminiscent of the Forties, but the nylon mesh stockings had become 'nude' stockings with seams up the back, and the shoes classic black pumps with a slender four- and-a-half inch heel that the new woman stood with unwanted grace atop.

Unbeknownst to Jeff, but well known to the new woman by the feel of them, even her undergarments had changed to match - including the 'out-and-up' Forties and Fifties style bra that created that distinctive 'poke and eye out' profile from her full, D-cup endowments.

She was stunning - and Jeff couldn't help but appreciate the fact, even as he begged the unseen force to change Kevin back. Pleas that fell on deaf ears - for, in truth, he wanted a stunningly lovely female roommate rather than a big muscular lump of one.

Staring down at the reformed body Jeff had unwillingly cursed her with, the woman let out another shriek of dismay, then turned and ran.

All-too-aware of the easy grace with which she moved atop her higher, slimmer heels, she burst through the back door of the cottage and fled towards the tree-line at the edge of the lot.

With every step she took, the fabric of the dress swirled around her calves, rustling with a softly feminine sound. The very air over the few inches of tantalizingly exposed calf and ankle felt undeniably different and feminine, attenuated as it was by the nylons she so helplessly wore.

Her full new hips swiveled in a style a man could mock but never match - yet she performed the womanly movement without thought, her new body built for it, and with every step the fabric of her 'plain-Jane' old-style panties tightened and slid over a crotch that was undeniably smooth and feminine.

In the confines of the tight, conical-cupped bra, her new bust couldn't move much - but the very flesh of the breast itself shifted in the grip of gravity and centrifugal force, creating new sensations that only a woman could feel, since even the finest implants could never mimic the sensation created as the moisture in each and every cell shifted in time with the bouncing and jostling as she ran.

Bouncing and jostling that caused her longer, more elegantly styled hair to shift and swirl around a face much daintier and better defined than ever before.

Bouncing and jostling that required her to keep her balance by spreading arms also daintier and more feminine than they'd ever been.

Bouncing and jostling that only served to remind her, in every way, shape and form, that she was no longer male, that her very manhood had been stolen from her, leaving her one of the 'weaker sex'.

She ran for the nebulous concealment of the forest, as if she could hide from her very self...

...and then she quite literally skidded to a stop as a new and horrifying urge swelled within her. "No..." She gasped, eyes widening in horror. "No, Jeff - don't do this..."

The emotions continued to rise - and then, on its own, her right hand suddenly clenched tight.

Not into a fist - but into a tight hold onto the butt of the Webley .380 pistol that had appeared unbidden in her grip.

She stared down in horror at the weapon, willing herself to drop the gun... but her fingers barely loosened on the butt of the pistol before tightening again, and she found herself helplessly driven to turn and start back towards the house.

The other emotions she'd felt, the ones that had driven her to do what she had so far, and been horrible enough to 'blackmail' her into obeying them - but this one was actually compelling her to do what she was doing.

Even as her shapely new nylon-clad legs bore her with a gracefully purposeful stride towards the house, she could feel what Jeff was going through, what had created this situation.

The fact that he'd changed her into a woman was bad enough - but the knowledge that he was completely incapable of changing her back was worse.

It had been a wayward thought that had turned her into a woman - but the consequence of that had been the inescapable realization that he then had a person, now biologically female, who would be compelled to fulfill his every desire.

It was definitely something any man, on a certain level, might desire - and Jeff was literally torn by the realization that he was such a man. He'd always considered himself a reasonable, intelligent, fundamentally kind man - yet, when presented with the chance to turn Kevin into a woman who must obey his desires, he'd found that there was no matching desire for 'fairness' and 'justice' to cancel out the desire, and the very fact that Kevin had not changed back once Jeff had realized what he'd done had proven that.

Upon finding out that he was less than he'd always believed himself to be, Jeff had, quite literally, wanted to die...

...and now the new woman pulled open the door, coming to fulfill that very want.

Numbly, with eyes full of despair, Jeff looked at the woman he'd turned Kevin into, making absolutely no effort to run from the weapon-wielding vision of vengeance.

"I'm so sorry, Kevin..." Jeff said in a flat, dead voice. "... I couldn't - can't - stop myself. I can't change you back... not while I'm alive..."

Helplessly, Kevin found her slender new arm beginning to rise from her side, her thumb going to the ridged metal of the gun's hammer.

"You'll change back once I'm dead..." Jeff said, spreading his arms and waiting. "Since I don't want you to be blamed for the murder, you most probably won't be - the fingerprints on the gun won't match the ones you'll have when you change back, and any trace evidence will also be..."

"Stop it...!" Kevin gasped past her unwillingly tightened full lips, trying - and failing - to cock the hammer of the pistol, the metallic 'click-snick' seeming to echo through the room. "Jeff, don't do this.. Don't make me do this...!"

"It's the only way..." Jeff said, sadly, watching the muzzle of the gun slowly near his chest, even as Kevin fought to stop its slow rise.

The fact that Jeff was still alive was a testament to the enormous will that Kevin was bringing to bear, slowing - if not halting - the murder. It took so much will that Kevin couldn't spare enough of it to argue effectively with Jeff.

If she could have, she would have told Jeff how kind and caring a man he was - for Kevin, or at least the Kevin he'd been before this had all started, would have accepted a feminized, enslaved Jeff with only token protest, not this soul-rending pain that was enough to make him Jeff wish for 'death due to dishonor'. She would have told Jeff that she fully understood both the urge and the result - and more than that, she forgave him both, for as horrifying as this transformation was to her, it wasn't life or sanity threatening, though it was obviously both to Jeff.

She would have bent every ounce of her recently increased intellect to make sure Jeff understood that this very situation, by its existence, didn't negate all that Jeff wished to belief was good and pure in himself, but reaffirmed it. Now, unlike ever before, Kevin had the intellect and the emotion to understand and articulate the fact that every human being had these base emotions and desires within, and true goodness came not from a lack of them, but from the will and desire to fight them.

She had the intellect and the understanding...

...but she didn't have the time. Not with her finger starting to tighten on the trigger.

The slender, beautiful woman who had so recently been a muscular, insensitive man did the only thing she could think of to save Jeff's life.

"Don't you want to kiss me...?" She asked, fighting to get the words out of a mouth that Jeff wanted to revile him, as he believed he deserved.

Jeff blinked - and the gun wavered. "...what...?"

"Wouldn't you rather have a lovely woman kiss you, rather than kill you...?" She asked, finding it less of an effort. "Instead of a bullet in the heart, a warm, supple tongue in your mouth...?"

"What.. why...?" Jeff stammered, as the gun began to fall away.

"You want it, don't you?" She pressed. "You want to kiss me. Even if you still feel you need to die for what you've done, later, you want to kiss me, to feel my warm, shapely body pressed firmly against your own..."

Jeff gasped at her - and she managed to force the gun lower as she took a small step forward.

"I want you to want to live..." She said, through an unbelievably confused mix of emotions. "I know you want to die - but, through what's happened, you've opened a whole new vista to me, a new view of life and people, and I don't want you to die because of it. I want... I want to show you that what's happened to me is not all bad - and I want to let you see that giving into some of your desires won't cause me unbearable pain. Jeff, if you kiss me, it won't kill either of us, or drive us mad. The worst that will happen is that it will feel so awkward and embarrassing that neither of us will ever want to do it again..."

That's what she was hoping would happen - that she'd 'defuse' any desires in that direction. Still, she'd rather find that he enjoyed it so much that she was compelled to do it every ten minutes on the dot then to kill him.

Blessing or curse, her new emotions and intellect wouldn't let her find her lost manhood anywhere close to the same value as this poor man's life. Perhaps, if he'd done this to her maliciously, she would have been able to let Jeff go through with it - but not this way.

No matter what discomfort or distaste she felt at the prospect, she was willing to do almost anything, if it meant saving Jeff's life...

...and so she'd picked something she didn't think he could refuse. Knowing how shy he was around women, knowing how an 'enslaved woman' had tickled his desires, she knew that what she presented was a pearl without price, something that even this strange force couldn't provide:

Willingness.

She could be forced to do things by the promise she'd made - but nothing could compel what she now freely offered - willing, if not actually eager, participation.

Jeff gaped at her, wordless - but she didn't need words to verify his decision, the ability to drop the gun to the floor being all the acknowledgment of the agreement she needed.

Taking a deep breath, she screwed up all her courage, fighting to keep at bay the disgust, distaste and uncertainty she felt as she puckered her lips and stepped closer to him, arms spreading invitingly...

...and Jeff lifted his hands in a halting motion.

"You... don't need to kiss me, uh, Kevin..." He said, turning his face away.

The new woman, however, winced, and spoke in a strained voice: "Uh, actually... I do..."

Jeff's head whipped back around - and his own face screwed up as he realized that he was now 'broadcasting' again. "Oh, no..."

"I wouldn't have said it if I wasn't willing to do it, so don't blame yourself..." She said, as the urge to kiss Jeff continued to thrum through her. "Come on, let's get this over with..."

Feeling guilty about 'taking advantage' of the beauty Kevin had become - and hating himself for it not being enough to make his desire to kiss her fade - Jeff closed his eyes and tried very hard not to enjoy it as the supple new woman slid smoothly into his arm, her full lips seeking out and finding his own.

It was an attempt in vain - for there was simply no way, and under no circumstances, that he could avoid enjoying the feeling of a warm, supple body pressing itself firmly against his, of warm and softly firm lips pressing against his own as a long, supple tongue slid forth to enter the warm confines of his mouth in a deepening and thoroughly pleasurable kiss.

After an immeasurable interval, their lips finally parted...

"Damn..." She whispered, burying her face into his shoulder. "You wanted me to enjoy it..." Jeff winced.

Taking a deep breath, she managed to peel herself away from him, her face reflecting the effort it took. "Do.. you think.. you could think... about baseball or something...?" She gasped, eyes averted.

Blushing furiously, Jeff struggled to avert his mind from thoughts that naturally arose at have a warm and 'unwillingly willing' woman pressed firmly against him.

Slowly, the urges in her lessened a bit, and she managed to look at him again, her own face bright red. "Thanks. It's.. bearable..." She said, her voice carrying a strange tone.

As well it should. Shame and desire, humiliation and heat mixed freely within her as part of her felt a desire to fulfill Jeff's own desires, while another part of her was horrified and disgusted...

...not at Jeff, who was feeling the very desires that she, herself, would have felt if the situation were reversed, but at the fact that part of her not being influenced by Jeff was wondering what it would feel like to fulfill those desires, especially if Jeff wanted her to enjoy them...

"I'll get us some breakfast..." She said, briskly - not because Jeff was thinking of food, but because she wanted him thinking about anything other than the desires that were on his mind.

"I'll get a shower while you do that..." Jeff volunteered quickly.

"Yes. Please." She agreed, fervently, feeling the unwanted desires in her own body urging her to either do likewise - or surrender herself to the arousal that was only half imposed.

Instead, she left Jeff to his shower as she quickly scooped up the gun and stuck it on top of a cabinet, then turned to the task of making breakfast, trying to blank out the unbidden, feminine desires thrumming through her body and mind with the simple domestic task that, yesterday, she'd at first been so upset to find herself compelled to do.

Finding yourself unwillingly turned into a woman and then subsequently beset with matching sexual desires sure put things into perspective...

* * * * *

Leaning against the wall, his body battered by the ice-cold spray from the shower, Jeff tried to get his whirling mind to settle down.

Les then twenty-four hours ago, his roommate had been a great mass of masculine muscle, insensitive and uncaring. Now, through an unbelievable series of events and some desires that Jeff wished had never seen the light of day, Kevin was a gorgeous, thoughtful, sensitive woman - and all that meant that he wanted her, desperately, and not just in a physical way. Not entirely by coincidence, Kevin was sliding slowly but surely towards exactly the type of woman Jeff wanted...

"God..." Jeff whispered. "I just want..."

Blinking, Jeff shook his head, wondering why the water had gone so freezing cold. With a slight frown of confusion, he tried to clear the strange 'fog' in his mind as he reset the water to a more comfortable temperature, and began to wash...

* * * * *

Kevin gasped as the world was ripped apart

With a gasp, she tried to bear up under the flood-tide of changes as the very fabric of reality rippled around her, the unbelievable power of what her promise had brought finally revealed as history itself was altered, solely for the purpose of letting her keep her promise to Jeff.

Even as it was happening, even as the history she'd been born into was ripped away, the woman who knew what exactly what was going on. In that instant, even as the knowledge of what Jeff had done filled her mind, she also truly understood the entirety of what was happening.

The change that was happening would in no way negatively impact any person on the face of the planet, save for maybe herself. Indeed, the purpose of the change was to allow Jeff to live more easily with himself, for he would no longer remember all that had occurred.

All of this was not happening for Jeff's sake, however...

...it was for hers.

In that instant, as her old history faded, she saw what the inevitable future that would have gone with it. With an increased intellect momentarily given a glimpse of an unimaginable flood of data to work with, she saw what the person she had been would have done.

The outwardly friendly person with no real emotions, who really lived only for his own pleasure - and who had slowly be spending down the inheritance left to him by the death of his parents. Having already 'economized' by moving in with Jeff so as to be able to spend more of his steadily declining cash on his own personal pleasure, he would have eventually reached a point where his 'emotionless intellect', such as it was, would have made it an obvious choice to turn to what he would have found an easy source of money...

Now, with horror, she watched in her mind's eye as the man she had used to be started out by using his natural charm and lack of emotional involvement to set up a 'dating service' - one that would have quickly and surely denigrated into an out-and-out prostitution ring - one that, providing him with not only the money, but the sex, he would have wanted, would have led him into drugging women into subservience - and 'training' them up right himself.

Pimp. Rapist. Drug dealer...

...and, inevitably, when Jeff finally found out what he was doing, when the basically good person he was drove him to try and help the women Kevin had enslaved; Murderer.

In that single instant when he'd held the pendant and half-jokingly made an promise, more out of a desire to avoid the physical awkwardness of a unhappy 'domestic' situation than anything, he'd been more humane and genuinely right then he'd ever been in his life until then - and as sad a statement that it might have made about the unthinking, uncaring, and basically selfish man Kevin had been, it had been just enough.

Just enough - to buy him a second chance...

All this passed through her mind in the timeless instant it took for Jeff's desire took to form. The mere instant, during which the universe obediently rearranged itself to make Jeff's want a reality.

'God...' Jeff had said, 'I just want to keep from hurting Kevin...'

It had been a true and honest desire, straight from the heart - and the fact that it failed to erase all the other desires that he might have - and that Kevin had promised to take care of - didn't matter one whit. What matter was, despite everything he still desired, Jeff honestly didn't want to be the cause of any emotional pain for Kevin...

...and so, in that instant between realities, Kevin knew and understood all of this, the entire truth revealed unto him...

...so that he could make an informed and honest decision, of his own free will.

He could, if he wished, take back his promise, and all that came with it. Go back to that instant and time, with no memory of what had happened - and have nothing supernatural happen, and go on with the life he'd foreseen.

Otherwise, he could choose from the innumerable number of alternate lives. Lives that spread across the spectrum of possibilities, but that had four things in common:

Regardless of which life he might pick, he would retain the memories of his 'real' past, in addition to the new ones for that life; Regardless of the life he chose, he would be physically incapable of committing rape;

In any of these lives, he would either physically or emotionally be incapable of murdering Jeff, and; In any life he choose, Jeff would be in some way better off then he was.

One of the possibilities, for instance, was a history where Kevin had been in a car accident that left him paralyzed from the neck down, where Jeff would benefit from the money he'd get as Kevin's 'keeper'.

There were literally millions of such possible fates, all sharing only those for necessities - but, in the timeless eternity Kevin was caught in as the world waited for him to decide, he could survey the entire spectrum of possibilities and, in the end, choose the one he found the least unpalatable...

* * * * *

Her heart was pounding a mile a minute as conflicting emotion raced through her, part of her excited, part of her afraid...
...but she sighed softly as the warm hand slid hesitantly over one firm, shapely leg.

Leaning forward, she pressed her lips against his, her tongue giving voiceless encouragement as he kissed him, letting the physical pleasure of his kiss and his gentle-yet-eager touch carry her through her doubts and her hesitation.

Deep down, she knew that this wasn't wrong, that she needn't let her certain level of discomfort stop her - and so, despite the faint slick of anxiety-induced sweat lining her palms, she cupped a hand and gently slid it over the growing bulge in his pants as she deepened the kiss.

His hand tightened briefly on her thigh, then drifted upwards, sliding up and over the fabric of the denim skirt that fit snug to her womanly hips before moving upwards, past her slender, bare waist - to hesitantly reach the fabric of the white shirt tied over her breasts.

More certain then uncertain, more eager then anxious, and with rapidly growing arousal boosting her positive emotions, she squeezed his crotch again, urging him to continue as she let her full lips glide down to where she could nibble encouragingly at the chest-hairs displayed by the shirt she'd begun to unbutton as the 'opening bid' to set this in motion.

Gently, his hand slid into the fabric of her shirt - and cupped a fraction of the smoothly firm flesh of her massive, surgically-enhanced breast.

She gasped, both in genuine pleasure at the touch, and as encouragement, as his hand slid briefly from the enormous breast to the 'bow-tie' knot holding the cotton shirt closed. A moment later, the knot was freed, allowing the shirt to slip open and expose the massive spherical expanse of her MMM-cup breasts.

"Yes..." She sighed, her own hands working to undo his pants, eager for the throbbing hardness that lay within. "Oh, yes..."

His hand found the warm, taut flesh of her breast again, joined a moment later by the eager warmth of his lips as he began fondling and kissing her expansive, expensive endowments.

Despite urges rapidly moving towards needs, she let him dwell on her huge tits, his other hand alternating between the wasp-like curve of her waist and the full, firm flesh of her buttocks. Though her body would be his, time and again, in the future, this was the first time for the both of them, and she was determined to let him set that pace, now that she'd gotten him going.

It wasn't long before his own, 'hydraulically driven' needs pushed him in the direction she knew he must eventually move, and she parted from him for the briefest possible interval, shedding her skirt and the panties below as he shimmied out of his own clothes.

"Now..." She whispered with hoarse urgency, as she lay back on the futon, her long and shapely dancer's legs spreading invitingly to display the dewy folds of her moist, ready vagina. "Take me now..."

He didn't argue.

As she tossed her long, silky hair back from her face, he positioned himself over her supple body - and then she bit her full lower lip lightly as he gently placed the throbbing head of his cock against the folds of her sopping cunt - and pushed.

"Oh, yes...!" She screamed out in joy as he entered her. "Oh, God - yes...!"

Her screams of joy only increased, pleasure pushing out the last vestiges of doubt and guilt over the 'wrongness' of what she was doing as she bounced and squirmed beneath his body, reveling in the sensations as he fucked her with a gentle ferocity.

Sometime later, after the incredible rush of orgasm had faded away, after he'd fallen into a deep sleep, she kissed him lightly on one cheek and carefully slid from beneath him. Silently, she rose from the bed, enjoying the bounce and shimmy of her massive breasts as she padded quietly out of the room and headed for the kitchen...

"Enjoy yourself...?" Karen asked with a grin, leaning against the counter and sipping a glass of white wine.

Aside from the platinum-blond hair 'nature' had given her having been dyed a rich, vibrant shade of red, the woman that nobody knew had once been a man was the exact mirror image of her twin sister, right down to the massive saline implants that thrust so roundly and proudly from her chest - massively rounded breasts covered in a sheen of sweat from her own, recently completed sexual exercises.

"Oh, god, yes - Your Steve's a tiger" Jessica exclaimed, brightly, then giggled. "I still can't believe you agreed to a 'last fling' trade-off of fiancés the night before our weddings. I thought I was the wild girl of 'Fire and Ice'!"

Looking at her sister and co-star of a very lucrative exotic dance team, Karen let the strange smile she sometimes wore surface on her full, sensual lips as she considered the fame and fortune that the altered history brought to an unresisting once-lonely virginal 'nerd' and a somewhat conflicted but even more appreciative ex-uncaring bastard.

"Anything you want, Jess..." She said, in a loving whisper. "Anything you want..." THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

© 1997 - 2016 TGstories.

Stories on the "Public Access" pages may be Copyright by individual authors.

Home | Membership | Terms & Condi | Privacy Policy | Contact

SUMMARY: When self obsessed thug steals a woman's watch from an open windowsill, it leads to a transformation so that the watch fits better.

Watch Out!

A Cautionary Tale

By Gunslinger

If he hadn't stopped for a smoke, he would never have seen it.

It was just a little after eight o'clock, one of those perfect early summer nights, where the breeze was cool without being chilling, and still redolent with the rich profusion of scents from plants reveling in the blossoming of the departing spring.

Not that Tony Amporelli was one to notice such things. To the muscular young man with the muscular body and the acne-scarred face, the 'perfect temperature' of the evening meant that he could wear his familiar ensemble of leather jacket over faded blue jeans and a skintight black T-shirt without sweating his ass off. It was his chosen outfit for doing almost anything, but anybody who knew Tony could have told that he was cutting through the quiet little suburban street on his way to one of the sleazier local night-clubs to do some 'pussy hunting' - not only was his thick mane of black hair slicked back with a fresh coat of gel, but he fairly reeked of the heavy musk scent that was only slightly better than the stale odor of sweat that it masked.

The street itself was one of those residential side-streets near downtown, lined with old red- and brown-brick homes in what had been a mid-scale section of town about a century ago, and had evolved into a near-core 'starts and ends' street, housing mostly young would-be professionals and retired couples. Ever image-conscious, in the off-chance that some hot babe might just happen to notice him at that particular moment, the twenty-three year old man had waited until he'd reached the concrete light pole halfway down the street before he'd paused to light up. Standing in the circle of the yellow-orange sodium light above, he could lean back against the pole, one booted foot lifted to press the sole against the lamp-post - which not only caused the heavy, slab-sided musculature of his leg to cause the denim to tighten across that dense musculature, but also caused it to tighten over the large bulge in the crotch of the too-tight jeans.

Properly displayed, the swarthy young 'stud' pulled out a pack of Camels, slipping one from the half-empty pack and expertly flipping it from his hand into his mouth before reaching for his lighter...

...and that's when he'd seen the mellow, unmistakable gleam of gold in the window of the house nearest him.

The first-floor window was open to catch the rich, fragrant breeze, and whoever had been standing at the window to enjoy the scent when they'd opened it had apparently removed their watch - and forgot they'd left it sitting on the wide wooden sill of the window.

Even from this distance, Tony could see that it was a high-quality lady's watch, probably worth quite a few bucks.

So, his actions were almost predetermined. After all, in the circumscribed little world of Tony Amporelli, any bitch dumb enough to leave something like that laying out in the open deserved to have it stolen.

In fact, Tony reasoned as he pushed away from the lamp-post, a good object lesson would teach the broad never to do something so stupid again - so he was really only performing a public service.

Grinning narrowly, Tony stepped into the lee of the house, tucking one shoulder as if using the house as protection from the light breeze while lighting his cigarette. Flicking his trusty Zippo lighter into use, he quickly puffed the cigarette into glowing red life, then whipped his hand out in a showy, flamboyant motion that snapped the lid shut on the lighter...

...which would have also distracted the eye of anybody watching as his other hand lashed out whip-crack fast and snatched the watch from the window ledge. In the very same motion, he reached over, ostensibly to hold his jacket pocket open as he slipped the lighter inside - but as he did so, he passed his hand through the expanding metal links of the watch's bracelet, letting it snap in place over his wrist as he extracted his hand.

Nonchalant, he straightened his jacket and continued strolling down the street.

With the cunning of a born swindler, thief and liar, Tony waited a bare six paces before lifting his wrist to 'check the time'.

Had anybody been watching him do so, they wouldn't see a man checking out a stolen item. The motion was smooth and natural, and at a distance nobody would be able to tell that the flash gold watch was a little too slender to be a man's.

So, under the protective, every-day guise of a guy checking the time, he quickly eyed the watch and considered its value.

He frowned slightly as he got his first good look at his new 'prize'. It wasn't quite as upscale as he'd thought at first look... which was exactly the point, actually.

It was one of those 'almost knock-offs' of a very expensive watch. Not exactly a near-clone, it was actually somewhat gaudier and flashier than a real Cartier or Rolex watch would be - and with lesser purity gold and semi-precious gemstones rather than diamonds and 24 Karat casing.

It was exactly the type of 'flashy' watch a up-and-coming business woman might buy to tide her over until the Rolex rolled in... but it could also be the gaudy watch of a cheap tart trying - and probably failing - to look classy.

Well, regardless of what type of chick had owned it before, it was Tony's now - and while it wasn't 'big bucks', like he first thought, it still wasn't completely useless. While its real value was fairly low, and so trying to sell it or pawn it on the cheap wouldn't net him very much, it was still impressive enough to make a hell of a gift - and used on the right girl, at the right time, might end getting him laid tonight.

Grinning at the thought, he let the leather sleeve of his jacket fall back over the watch as he lowered his arm. He was coming up on the end of the street, and he figured he'd wait until he'd rounded the front of the convenience store on the corner before he slipped the watch off - just in case anybody was watching.

Crossing the store's parking lot, he cut close to the big plate-glass windows fronting the diagonal-facing store front. Back-lit by the bright fluorescent lights inside the store, he was little more than an indistinct black shape to anybody watching from the street side, while the same lights and dark night would create a mirror effect on the inside of the windows for anybody watching from the inside.

Satisfied with his sly cunning, Tony began to reach for the tight bracelet-band of the watch...

...and then nearly jumped out of his skin as a sharp trilling ring sounded practically right beside his head.

Heart pounding in his broad chest, Tony turned and glared at the pay-phone mounted on the wall of the store, surrounded by a tiny Plexiglas housing.

The phone rang again - and, looking around and finding nobody lounging around waiting for a phone call, Tony shrugged his broad shoulders, reached out, and picked up the phone.

Leaning into the scant shielding of the high-tensile plastic 'booth' around the phone, Tony cradled the receiver between ear and shoulder as he used the position to shield himself even more effectively as he reached for the watch-band.

"Yo..." Tony said, distractedly, slipping a finger under the over-stretched links of the watch designed to fit a much slimmer wrist. 'I think you have something that doesn't belong to you...'

Startled by the accusation in the woman's hard, dry alto coming over the phone line, Tony yanked his finger out from under the watch band and grabbed for the phone, which had almost slipped from his shoulder in shock.

"I don't know what you're talking about." Tony said, almost instinctively, while his brain spun. Could it be that the woman had somehow noticed him stealing her watch - and then, by some amazing faculty, figured out that he would be passing this phone at this precise moment...?

'So - that watch you're wearing must be yours, then.' The woman's voice said, sardonically.

Resisting the urge to simply slam down the phone, Tony forced a confused tone into his voice: "Huh? Lady, I have no idea what you're talking about. I was expecting a call from a friend of mine, and I thought this was it. The only watch I have is the one I'm wearing - and that's my watch."

"Oh, is it really?" The unknown woman asked. "Well, then - I guess the name inscribed on the back must be your name, too. Hmmm. that would make you 'Candace Smith', now wouldn't it?"

"Huh?" Tony said, honestly confused. Surreptitiously, glancing around to see if anybody was watching him, he slid one finger under the back of the watch, feeling something that could, indeed, be writing inscribed into the cover.

'No, no - 'Candice' sounds to stuffy, to formal, like the name of somebody who might occasionally be called a 'bitch' by guys who can't get into her pants. No, you must go by a nick-name... like Candi. Is that right?' The voice took on an amused, hectoring tone. 'Come on, don't keep me in suspense - tell me your name, sweetie...'

Annoyed, Tony opened his mouth to tell this woman that his name wasn't any of her business, pissed off at such a transparent ploy to get his name...

...and then slammed the phone down in the cradle with a shaking hand as what had emerged from his mouth, instead, registered on his mind.

"What the fuck was that...?" Tony asked himself, stunned. "Did I just... no, no I couldn't..." Swallowing nervously, Tony licked his lips, and then spoke: "My name is... Candi Smith"

Eyes wide, Tony slapped both his hands over his traitorous mouth, his brain spinning in disbelief.

Not only had that name emerged from his mouth again - just like before, that name had emerged in a high, sweet, clear, feminine tones.

When he'd spoken that name... he'd sounded just like a chick. "This..." Tony said, slowly lowering his hands, "...is not happening."

Shaking his head, Tony decided that a cheap watch just wasn't worth this weirdness. Reaching down, he tried to pull the watch off his wrist...

...and not only wouldn't his finger slide under the watch or band at all, but a couple of minutes of concerted tugging didn't so much as budge it.

He was still wrestling with the watch when the phone began to trill again.

Looking down at the watch that seemed to be welded to his arm, Tony looked up at the ringing phone, then hesitantly reached out to pick it up.

'Hello, Candi.' The woman's dry tone said, laced with amusement. 'We seem to have gotten disconnected...' "What the fuck is going on, bitch?" Tony demanded, angrily. "What the hell's wrong with my voice?"

'Tsk, tsk...' The woman said, sounding not at all sad as she continued: 'A shame - if you had answered the phone, promising to return the watch and begging for forgiveness, I might have granted it - but now it's too late. A man like you must be made an example of.'

"What the fuck are you talking about?" Tony demanded. "Cut the crap, bitch, and tell me what's going on!" 'My, my...' The woman chuckled, without any humor. 'You should try and sound more ladylike, my dear Candi.' "Stop calling me by that..." Tony's arrogant, angry demand skidded to a stop in mid-shout...

...because the shout was being made in the same sweet, feminine voice with which he'd earlier pronounced that cursed name. Tony slammed the phone back in the cradle.

"No...." He tried to deny - in a sweet, trilling soprano. "Hell, no..."

Slowly, Tony backed away from the phone, hand coming up to squeeze his throat in numb disbelief as he stared fixedly at the phone, as if it were a pit viper coiled to strike.

When he was a good dozen paces away from the phone, he turned and began walking rapidly away from the parking lot.

"This... isn't possible..." He tried to convince himself in those damned, feminine tones. "It's... some sort of hallucination, or hypnosis, or something..."

He had to get home. If he could just get home, maybe get drunk and get some sleep, everything would be fine in the morning. Yes, that was it...

...but there was no way he walking back along that street, passing that house where the impossible bitch couldn't really be living - but might be.

Looking around, Tony spotted a run-down 'pool hall' a little way up the street. Really a small neighborhood bar that had once been 'cozy' in it's day, it was now sort of a biker hang-out, to scummy even for his tastes.

It would have a phone, though - a phone he could use to call a cab. He sure as hell wasn't going to use that phone back at the store...

Taking a deep breath, Tony hurried over to the pool hall. Pulling open the red-pained outer door, he stepped into the rather rank 'lobby', a small space paneled in cheap, peeling wood veneer.

Tony didn't care about the decor, though - because in one corner, beside a cracked and dusty full-length mirror, was one of those direct-line phones to a cab company.

With a sigh of relief, he strode over and picked up the handset of the dialess phone, hearing it click as it made it's one connection. "Hi - I need a cab at Jack's Pool Parlor..." Tony said into the phone, cursing the female voice it emerged in...

...and then went rigid in shock and dismay as he heard a dry, feminine voice respond.

'I'm sorry - all our cars are busy at the moment, Candi.' The woman said. 'I'm afraid you'll have to find a way to entertain yourself there until we can get one out to you...'

Mouth dry, Tony tried to slam the receiver down - but it was as if it were glued to his ear.

'What kind of amusements would somebody like you go for, I wonder...?' The woman's voice said in a reflective tone. 'Well, I guess that would depend on what kind of woman you are, wouldn't it Candi?...'

As the voice on the phone said 'woman', Tony felt a strange pulling sensation in his crotch - and he stared down, leaning forward to stare at his pants...

...pants that lay perfectly flat over a crotch they'd previously bulged tightly over.

'With a name like Candi, wearing cheep, gaudy jewelry like that watch, I bet you're the type of woman who wears really high heels all the time, aren't you?' the voice continued.

Tony whimpered in the back of his throat as he felt himself rise up into the air - rising atop the slender spikes of the six-inch heels boasted by the new black patent pumps that enclosed smaller, slimmer feet.

'Heels like that would definitely indicate a tight skirt and nylons, wouldn't they?' The woman's voice taunted...

...and, as his pants suddenly shrank up into a black leather mini-skirt while his socks shot upwards, thinning and softening into a pair of black nylons, Tony - Candi - found that even the feminine voice had failed her, her attempts to beg or cry stifled before they started.

'Of course, with such a tiny skirt covering your wide hips and full ass, you must be the type of woman who never wears panties or other undergarments...' The woman continued, implacably...

...while Candi's hips grew suddenly wider, the better to support the full, round ass she now sported.

'Yes - you definitely sound like the type of slutty, horny woman who'd have massive, fake tits and collagen-inflated cock-sucker lips.' The woman said. 'Candi the Cock-Craving Cum-Sucker - and that tells me exactly how a woman like you would amuse yourself.'

You crave cock. You want to fuck and suck cock, to have sex as many times, with as many men, in as many ways as possible. You're nothing more than a sex-obsessed slut, eager for the next cock to come your way."

Helplessly, Candi shuddered as her chest ballooned outwards, forming a pair of immense, round breasts - even as, deep inside her now-resaped skull, even more fundamental changes went on in her mind.

'Well - don't let me keep you from your entertainment, Candi.' The woman chuckled. 'Go ahead - go fuck and suck yourself silly...' As if in a daze, Candi slowly hung up the phone.

Her mind befogged, feeling as if she'd entered a dream - or a nightmare - from which there was no escape, the new woman slowly turned and confronted the image reflected back at her by the mirror.

She looked at the long legs, encased in black nylons and emphasized by the height of the heels on her platform pumps. Legs so smooth and sexy and feminine, disappearing under a tight little black leather skirt that just-barely hid from view a tight, wet cunt, so perfect for being filled with big, throbbing cocks.

She let her eyes glide over the womanly swell of her hip to the slender waist, encased in it's tight black T-shirt - a T-shirt, that despite it's color, couldn't do anything to minimize the size of the enormous, round tits that strained within, practically leaping out past the lapels of the black leather jacket she wore, the stretched neck-line displaying a deep chasm of milky cleavage.

From that canyonesque view, her eyes slid up to her face - her face, with it's almost ridiculously full, gloss-red lips, so perfect for wrapping around thick cocks and working them to pump her mouth full of hot, delicious cum.

Her eyes, so dark and seductive, famed by long lashes the same glossy black as her long, thick head of hair - hair that spilled down all the way her back, all the way to her full, firm, taut ass.

The type of ass that men would drool over the thought of fucking. There was no denying it any longer.

She was Candi Smith.

She was huge breasted.

She was a slut.

Blinking, Candi shook her head lightly - then her full, cock-sucker lips curved faintly in a smile - a smile only slightly marred by the expressionless depth of her haunted-yet-sensual eyes.

"I'm made to fuck and suck men..." She told the mirror, hungrily. "That's all I'm good for - a living sex-toy to fuck me. I crave sex. I need sex..."

Slowly, she turned away from the reflection, still speaking: "I'm going to get sex..."

Wrapping a slender, feminine hand around the tarnished brass handle of the door, she pulled it open - and, with the sexiest, sluttiest, most 'come-fuck-me' stride she could manage, she swayed into the bar, ignoring the little voice that seemed to be screaming endlessly in the back of what little mind she had.

"Hi, boys..." She said to the half-dozen or so men currently occupying the dank, smoke-filled room of the ersatz pool-hall. Slowly, she walked to the center of the room with a seductive sway of her hips atop her six-inch stiletto heels, already the center of attention.

"My, such... manly looking men..." She said, eyeing the collection of smelly, beer-guzzling guys staring back at her.

That strange-yet-familiar voice in the back of her head seemed to be screaming louder - but that meant she had to concentrate all the harder on being the cum-crazed sex-slut she was supposed to be. Taking another step into the slowly gathering circle of men, she slipped out of her leather jacket.

"Men like you make me so horny..." She said, her voice growing husky and needful. "Men like you make my nipples go as hard as rocks..."

Reaching down, she grasped the hem of shirt with crossed hands and, in one smooth motion, yanked it up over her head, exposing her massive, gravity-defying new boobs to their view.

"See...?" She said, proudly - while she found herself momentarily confused by the adjective 'new' she'd tacked on to the mental description of her huge tits.

Hadn't she always had boobs...?

Some sort of answer screamed at her from the back of her mind, but she was too busy being a horny cum-slut to pay attention to it, no matter the sudden shudder of revulsion that ran through her.

"Men like you get me so hot and wet..." She said, masking another strange shudder for arousal, which it both was and wasn't.

Again, she proved her claim - but unzipping her tight leather skirt and sliding it off, revealing not only the tight, wet cunt, but her full, rounded ass.

Dressed only in her nylons and heels, she slowly swayed her way over to a man standing near the pool table, her stomach roiling and surging strangely even as she smiled hungrily at him in her need.

Reaching out, she pressed on hand against the man's chest - and even as he obeyed the gesture, slipping his ass onto the pool table and sitting up on it, her returned the gesture - with interest.

She let him fondle and squeeze her massive new boobs for a moment, wondering why the sensation, so pleasurable, seemed so... strange.. and uncomfortable - but then it was time to pull her massive tits away from his grasping hands.

Reaching down, she quickly unzipped the man's pants and set his cock free.

She wrapped on hand around the base of his throbbing cock, and momentarily wondered why the sensation felt so strange, new and... almost disgusting to a woman who was such a total slut as herself - but she was too busy shuffling her legs back to give the question any attention, and soon she stood, bent at the waist, with her legs spread and her firm ass thrust invitingly in the air.

"Isn't one of you going to fuck my cunt or ass while I such this guy's cock...?" She asked, ingenuously...

...and didn't bother to wait for a verbal answer to the rhetorical question as she graced the man with a smile - then leaned the last little bit forward and put her full, glossy cock-sucking lips to the use they were intended for.

As her lips closed around the man's throbbing cock, she waited for all her cock-sucking skills to kick in - and yet, strangely, she felt almost as if she were doing this for the first time, which obviously wasn't even remotely conceivable, not for such a sucking-and- fucking living sex-machine as herself. Still waiting for the well-honed cock-sucking skills she must have to kick in, she temporized by working her lips slightly back and forth on the man's shaft while making longer, deeper stroking motions with her hand while she swirled her tongue around the head of the man's hard dick.

Then her tenuous concentration was nearly shattered as an equally hard cock slammed deep and hard into her tight, wet cunt. She was stunned by the sensation - not only at the rough pleasure in it, but by the fact that the sensation itself took her by surprise.

Indeed, it seemed strange that she wasn't expecting it to feel like this as some unseen, unnamed man began pounding hard and fast in her tight cunt, setting her huge tits to shaking and bouncing - but she had to focus her attention on what she was doing with the cock she was licking and sucking at like some sort of novice dick-slut, her skills still mysteriously absent.

Filled at both ends, her huge tits bouncing and shaking as she tried to set up some sort of rhythm between the hard fucking she was getting and the cock-sucking she was doing, she managed to push all other thoughts out of her head. Soon she had a rhythm going, her head bobbing and thrusting on the man's cock as she basically face-fucked herself to the hard thrusts of the man pounding away at her pussy.

Finally, the man she was licking and sucking on came in her throat, and she let his cum gush, almost-but-not-quite untasted into her stomach so that she could lift her face free of the man's cock and simulate an orgasm as the man fucking her from behind grunted and pumped a load of cum deep into a cunt surprisingly tight for such a cock-slut as herself.

It was all confusing, and strangely worrisome - but she certainly didn't have time to dwell on it as she smiled at the man who'd so graciously let her sock his cock, complimented the rough-fucking man for the 'wonderful orgasm' he'd given her, then turned and smiled at the waiting men, ready to let them use her body in any and every way they might see fit.

It was what she was, after all.

She was Candi, the Cock-Craving Cum-Sucker, and this is what she lived for.

She just wished that annoying sobbing sound in the back of her mind would go away...

* * * * *

A TOP-SECRET GOVERNMENT RESEARCH LAB

Deep under a supposed air base in the Nevada desert.

"Well...?" Dr. Linda Treville asked as she walked into the glassed-in monitoring station high above the main lab. "How's our little guinea pig doing today?"

The lead technician looked up from his console, smiling brightly at the slender, elegant-looking team leader.

"Just great, Dr. Treville." The technician said. "Six long months of work are paying off. That scenario you've had us replaying in his head while we worked on his... excuse me, her body is now so ingrained that our busty little sex doll Candi will accept it as being reality when she awakes. With the heightened sex-drive and the lowered intelligence the synthetic hormones have produced, the minor differences between her 'memory' body and the one our surgical and bio-genetic techniques have given her will go unnoticed."

"...as will the six months of missing time." Dr. Treville said, satisfaction evident in her dry, precise tones. "I doubt very much that our Candi is going to care about time-type dates anymore - she's going to be too busy focusing on the picking-up-guys-to-fuck kind of 'dates'."

A general chuckle ran around the room.

"I still can't believe how well your little 'bait-and-bag' tactic works." The lead technician - more than just a bit of a brown-noser - said with admiration. "Leave a flashy piece of jewelry with a made-up female name laying somewhere, and wait until some scuz steals it... then two steps before the nerve-agent coating the item kicks in and, BAM!, they're down for the count... and you've also got a ready-made chink in their mental armor to use as a starting place for the transformation scenario."

"Yes..." Treville said, with some satisfaction. "Guilt - especially repressed guilt - over a wrongful act is always a powerful start-point for the hypnotic program. The subject is willing to believe that it is happening because, deep down, they believe they deserve to be punished for their crimes."

Smiling, Treville walked over to the lead technician and gently lay a hand on the nape of his neck. The man looked up at her with fawning eyes...

...right up until the second that the nerve agent coating the ring she wore hit him, and he went limp.

"Crimes... like attempting to sell Nation Security secrets off." Treville said, loudly. Turning, she eyed the suddenly very nervous- looking men in the control booth.

"Take our newest subject down to the prep room..." Treville said, firmly - then she slowly began to smile. "I'm truly interested in seeing whether or not our mental programming works as effectively on a subject who knows it exists..."

Still smiling, she watched as four men jumped up to obey her bidding, quickly hustling the lead technician's limp body from the room. Behind her smile, Treville's eyes glittered brightly.

If the procedure worked well on the man she'd just trumped-up a charge of espionage on, then in six months she could introduce a knock-out gas that would put out every male member of the facility...

...leaving her and her female compatriots finally free to put into action the plan formed so long ago over a 'bitch session' over how they, though obviously smarter and emotionally stronger, were being treated in a male-dominated scientific community.

Yes - the future was shaping up to look quite... interesting. Very interesting, indeed...

Still smiling, the woman who was both the chief scientist of the project and the National Science Advisor to the President of the United States walked slowly and gracefully from the room, eyes fixed on a glorious vision for the future.

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

© 1997 - 2016 TGstories.

Stories on the "Public Access" pages may be Copyright by individual authors.

Home | Membership | Terms & Conditions | Privacy Policy | Contact

SUMMARY: When a cowboy and his wood-be girl friend help an old Indian who is being a acked, they are rewarded with the power to exchange each other's bodies and find that they like it.

A Wee Giftie

By Gunslinger

The warm Texas slipstream roared over the nominal protection provided by the windshield of the 'B&B Express' as the vintage Mustang's performance tires rolled over the gleaming black hardtop of the highway, Eastbound past Sweetwater.

"I think I'm finally starting to relax..." Brenda Caldwell said, stretching her long, shapely legs out in the leather passenger's seat. Her long mane of wavy, platinum blonde hair whipped in the air spilling over the convertibles windshield. "I can't tell you how much I needed this, Billy."

The driver, his massive frame leaving no room to stretch, even with the seat all the way back on it's rails, flushed slightly. "Well, I was... and..." he mumbled in a voice so deep it seemed to come up from his size 13 cowboy boots and rattle around in his massive chest, gaining strength, before emerging. Billy McClintock's 'mutter' was more powerful - and more intimidating - than a lot of men's shouts.

The buxom blonde looked over at her companion, her startlingly bright blue eyes twinkling with mild amusement. "You know, Billy - some day you're going to be able to say something to me without blushing - and the world's going to come to an end." She laughed, a sweet, clear sound. "I remember when we met three years ago - you couldn't even get one coherent word out."

The tall, massively muscled driver looked over at Brenda, and grinned shyly. "That's not true..." He protested - mildly. "I managed to say 'Hi'."

Brenda laughed again, then purposefully rested on slender, finely-shaped hand on Billy's massively muscled arm, just to see him blush. As always, the knowledge that she'd done it on purpose just to get that reaction prodded Billy into laughing along with her.

Billy and Brenda were heading towards Dallas, where Billy had been born and raised. His family had passed away, leaving him the sprawling estate just outside of Texas, and Billy had invited Brenda along, to get away from the usual spring-break crowds. It wasn't all that unusual - the two of them were hardly ever seen apart, which was one of the reason that Billy's fire-engine red Mustang was called the 'B&B Express'.

Of course, the other meaning of the initials was 'Beauty and the Beast'.

Billy was more than an imposing figure of a man. At six-seven, he had a body that was naturally broad-shouldered, and massively muscled from growing up on a working cattle ranch. Beneath his short mop of black hair, his tanned face was craggy and intimidating, with dark, inscrutable eyes and a 'heroic' square jaw.

It was this massively masculine physique - which included other parts of his anatomy as well - that most people based their impressions of Billy from.

Very few people new the 'True' Billy. Most people assumed that Billy was fairly dumb, to go along with his slightly Neanderthal appearance, an assumption bolstered by his quiet demeanor. In truth, Billy was incredibly intelligent. His silence came not from stupidity - but an extremely shy nature.

Especially around women.

Likewise, nobody would have guessed that Billy was incredibly gentle, and enjoyed reading, painting, and listening to Classic Rock while cooking gourmet dinners.

Nobody, that was, except Brenda.

Brenda Caldwell was one of the most stunningly beautiful - and sexy - women that anyone on campus had ever had the pleasure of seeing. Extremely full-breasted, she was tall, and slender, with a wasp-waist and long, sexy legs that seemed to go on for ever.

Surrounded by a mane of white-blond hair, her face was heart-stoppingly gorgeous, with full, sensual lips, a pert, upturned nose, and huge, baby-blue eyes.

And like Billy, her incredible body hid an amazingly sharp mind. Yet, with her spectacular beauty and sensuality, finding anyone, male or female, who would take her seriously was nearly impossible. No matter how much she tried, guys only seemed interested in bedding her - and assuming that she wanted to be bedded. And other women were either jealous or unbelieving.

Then, by chance, the two had met. Well, not exactly by chance - more like fate.

Both Billy and Brenda were devotees of chess - both were Master-class players. So it had been inevitable that they would have run up against one another online, under the assumed aliases they'd chosen - 'The Knight Errant', or Knight, for Billy, and 'Einstein's Sister' for Brenda.

The first game they'd played against each other had come to a draw. As had the next one - and the one after that.

As a matter of fact, every single game they played for the next two months had resulted in draws, each one as equally skilled as the other. It was this that had brought the two to meet in real life - and started a platonic friendship that had remained strong ever since, each one understanding what the other was going through, and overjoyed at finding somebody of the opposite gender who wouldn't take them at face value. While each had occasion felt the urge to push the relationship into something more romantic, neither wanted to be the first to bring up the touchy subject, not knowing that the other felt the same way.

Now, the two love-shy friends had pushed their relationship slightly further - by agreeing to spend the week together at Billy's ranch. There had been no hint of possible romance from either of them (separate rooms, and all) but each, secretly, wished that something might - just might... happen.

"So... The ranch isn't actually a functioning ranch anymore, right?" Brenda asked. She really knew the answer to that one - it hadn't been in use since his parents death - but was trying, obliquely, to make sure that there wouldn't be any caretakers or the like hanging around.

"Uh huh. It's been empty since. " Billy started - then frowned and squinted slightly as he slowed the classic car. "What's this?"

'This' was a sun-faded pickup that had once been brown, pulled over to the side of the road. Where Billy's meticulously maintained car was a 'classic', the mid-seventies Dodge pick-up was just old.

Pulling over to the side, behind the truck, Billy looked around for any sign of the driver. Then, faintly, he heard the sound of voices over the moan of the wind.

"Um... maybe you should, uh. " Billy began, feeling awkward about telling Brenda to stay. Part of him was worried, and wanted her here, safe - the other, shy, part wanted her to be along in case they needed to talk to anyone.

Brenda made the decision for him. "No - I'd better come, too." She said, grabbing her purse - which contained a first aid kit. Brenda was fully trained in first aid. So was Billy for that matter - but Billy had an severe case of the 'clumsies' around new people, so....

"Okay." Billy nodded, then hopped out of the car and walked towards the oddly muted voices.

Sliding down the embankment, Billy discovered the reason for the strange acoustics - the voices were coming from a large corrugated steel drainpipe running under the road. Dry and dusty, the huge opening was a flash-flood measure. Now, inside, two men were leaning threateningly over a third. Past them, parked in the pipe, were two low-slung motorcycles.

As Billy entered the pipe, his bulk cut off much of the light, causing the two leather-clad thugs to look up. The man they were leaning over - an older, white-haired man of North American Indian extraction - scuttled back slightly.

"Hey - I don't know who the hell you are, but you just turn and walk away." The mean-looking man nearest Billy said. "This ain't none of your business."

Even speaking softly, Billy's voice rumbled threateningly. "Maybe. But I can't just walk away. Why don't you two gentleman leave, and we can all go our separate ways?" Billy suggested, feeling awkward.

The second man sneered. "Yeah, right - we ain't quite done here with the old guy. Why don't you step outside for ten minutes or so, and let us finish."

Billy sighed, regretfully. "I... I don't want to fight you guys. Really. But I can't just walk away."

The guy in the lead grinned humorlessly. "Too fuckin' bad, amigo." With a soft 'snick' a switchblade appeared in his hand.

Gently, Billy helped the old Indian to his feet as the two leather-clad bikers approached. Gently, Billy pushed the older man behind him....

...and the biker's eyes, following the motion, locked onto something behind Billy.

"Whooooeeee! Now that's some fine looking ass. Maybe when we're done with you, we'll have our fun with the bitch." For a second, Billy didn't realize they were looking at Brenda - then it registered.

And something happened that had never happened before.

Billy, a gentle giant with a heart the size of Texas, began to get angry.

"Hey. You watch your mouths." Billy said, not even noticing the unusually strong, confident way it emerged. "I think you owe the lady an apology."

"Lady?" the leader scoffed, now only a few feet away from Billy. "Look at the tits and ass on her - look at her. She ain't nothing but a cheap little slut. I bet she gives great blow URK!"

The second man scuttled back a few steps, string wide-eyed. But not as wide eyed as his friend.

Neither had ever seen anybody move so fast. In a lightning move, the usually clumsy Billy became pure lethal grace as he snapped the blade of the knife with one hand while wrapping his other massive hand around the man's throat - and lifted him clear off the floor.

"WHAT DID YOU SAY?!"

The enraged shout made the metal tube hum with vibrations - it sounded like the trumpet announcing judgment day. The man in Billy's grasp, however, didn't repeat the words - even if he'd wanted to, he lacked the air with which to speak.

With no apparent effort, Billy shook the man like a rag-doll. "Don't ever speak to her that way!" He bellowed, anger throbbing through his veins. "She's beautiful, and kind, and smart... and.. and. " In his anger, Billy's usually sharp mind was dulled, and he ran out of adjectives.

"Billy!" Brenda called, frantically. When the shout didn't register, she shouted again, at last gaining his vague attention.

"Huh? Brenda?"

Speaking slowly and distinctively, Brenda, her face pale, said. "Billy - let him down."

"I..." Billy said. The anger was beginning to drain, leaving him confused, and scared of his own anger. With self-disgust, Billy opened his hand quickly, dumping the man to the ground.

Instantly, gasping for breath, he began to back-pedal out of the reach of Billy, his friend grabbing him and half dragging him away. Gaping at the massive man who'd so displayed such lethal grace and strength, they jumped at the chance to leap onto their motorcycles.

As the two men roared away on their motorcycles, Billy slumped to a seated position, staring down at his own hands. "I... I don't know what came over me." He whispered, horrified at how easily, how quickly he'd done violence. "He... said those things.. and it was like. "

"I know... it's okay..." Brenda said, softly, putting a hand on Billy's shoulder...

...and she gaped, in shock, as Billy pulled back from her hand. She stared at her closest friend in the whole world, who now refused to meet her eyes.

"Billy ?"

"I..." The huge man swallowed. "Brenda - People always assume that I'm this huge brute that can crush a man without any effort. But I always knew they were wrong - I wasn't that kind of a man. At least...." He paused, and swallowed again. "At least, I wasn't that kind of man."

"Billy, you were just trying to protect me." Brenda said, softly. "In fact, I'm. a little awed - and honored - that you feel so strongly about me that you'd go that far to protect me and my honor." She paused, hesitant - the, feeling flushed and fainted, decided to just blurt out the truth about how she felt. "In fact, I can tell you care about me, and I. "

"Yes, I care about you." Billy said, miserably, interrupting her rush to declare her feelings. "That's just it - what if I. I got mad, or if I lost control at the wrong time. Brenda, I almost killed that man, and I wasn't even trying!"

Brenda shook her head. "Billy - we both know you wouldn't hurt me. "

"I 'knew' that I wouldn't hurt anybody!" Billy replied. "And look what I did to that man. Maybe. maybe everybody is right about me.

Maybe I am a beast - a powerful, awful beast. I thought I could control myself - but I was just fooling myself." He looked at her, anguish in his eyes. "Brenda - I.. I can't risk hurting you. Not ever. I... I think, maybe... well, it would be best if we didn't ever try to." He bogged down, lowering his head in shame and sorrow. Brenda was shocked. "Billy - what are you trying to tell me?"

Billy looked up, his face flushed. "I... I.. find you very attractive, Brenda - but, I... If we ever.. you know..." He cleared his throat. "I.. I could hurt you without meaning to. I know that now. So - well..."

Brenda felt a flush of anger mixed with her other emotions. "Wait a second, Billy - I care about you too. I mean.. really care about you. Are you saying that you care about me that way, too - and now you're saying that, despite the fact we find each other physically and emotionally attractive, we should never.. never.. make love?" She blushed as she finally said what she'd been trying to for a long time now, but she got it out.

"Believe me..." Billy said, miserably. "It's not that I don't want to... because, God knows, I do. But... It just wouldn't be safe."

Brenda didn't know whether to laugh or cry. "For God's sake, Billy - I'm not a delicate little show-piece. You don't know how strong and flexible I am - and God knows I'm willing to risk a bruise or too for this. You're not going to hurt me."

"I might!" Billy said. "Oh, Brenda - I just can't risk it. I know you can see how big and muscular I am - but you have no idea just how easy that strength comes to me."

"I don't believe I'm having this conversation!" Brenda said, running her hands through her long, glorious mane of platinum-blond hair. "Let me make sure I've got this right - all this time, it turns out that we love each other. We've been afraid to say anything, because we didn't know how each other felt, and we were afraid of screwing up the good thing we had. Now, we finally get around to telling each other that we love each other and want each other - and you're saying that we shouldn't do a damned thing about it!"

"I.. I'm sorry." Billy said. "I know.. I know it doesn't seem fair. But, I just can't risk..." Brenda felt like screaming.

Then a cracked, tired old voice that nevertheless held a hint of the vitality and youth it had once possessed spoke up, and the two lover's heads spun as they turned to look at the momentarily forgotten Indian.

"Perhaps I could offer something in return for your help." He spoke with a certain quiet dignity.

Billy looked at the old, white-haired Indian. His face was like weathered leather, cracked and seemed, and his hair was white and thin across his scalp, but the dark eyes that looked at them were steady and intelligent. "Oh?" Billy asked, a bit bitterly.

“You have some way to fix our dilemma?”

“Perhaps.” The Indian’s arthritic fingers were steady as they reached up to untie a leather cord from around his neck. Lifting, he removed the cord from his shirt, and at the end of that cord was a small leather pouch. “I am what the white people would call a Medicine Man - or perhaps a Shaman.”

Billy and Brenda shared an incredulous look.

The old man smiled at that. “I know you do not believe. These days, even the young men of my race do not believe in the old ways any more. But I tell you that it is true, and that there might be more in this world than that which you know.” He held out the leather pouch.

“Inside, you will find a powder - I use it when I wish to Dreamwalk, so that I might see the land through the eyes of the Wolf or the Eagle.”

Gingerly, Brenda took the bag. “I don’t understand.”

The man pointed at the bag. “When you take the powder, your spirit may walk abroad, and enter into the body of a lesser creature - or of another person who, themselves, are dreamwalking. If it should be that you wish to see each other through the other’s eyes, take the powder at the same time, then you may take each others body for as long as you need.”

Billy looked openly skeptical. “Let me see if I’ve got this right.” He said, slowly. “We each take some of this powder at the same time - and we can switch bodies. I’ll be in Brenda’s body, and she’ll be in mine?”

The Indian nodded. “That is how it works - although you should no that it is only a transfer of consciousness, not of minds. The body will retain it’s own habits, motor skills, tastes and learned skills. This is why when I am an Eagle, I am able to fly - it is my consciousness directing the body, but the Eagle’s physical skill and motor skill interpret what I want to do, with those skill deciding how to do it.”

“Oh - of course.” Billy said, sarcastically - then he flushed. “Sorry - I didn’t mean...”

The Indian smiled and nodded. “Of course - you find it hard to believe. No matter - try it or not, as you wish. In any case, it is my thanks to you for what you have done for me this day.” The Indian nodded politely at Brenda, then turned and slowly made his way out of the culvert.

“Brenda...” Billy said, hesitantly. “I’m sorry that this thing turned out this way. I want you to know, though - I do love you.” “I love you too, Billy.” Brenda said, embracing the massively muscled Texan...

...and almost weeping as she felt him go rigid under her touch, his arms remaining by his side rather than encircling her to return the embrace.

“We... we should get going if we want to get to the ranch before dark.” Billy said, awkwardly. Rising, he negligently tossed the pouch aside and started towards the car, his huge shoulders slumped dejectedly.

Watching him go, Brenda's face took on a sadly speculative look. Stooping, she retrieved the leather pouch, slipping it around her own slender neck and letting it hang in the valley of her lush, firm GGG-cup breasts as she hurried after the broad, retreating back of her friend.

* * * * *

"Geez, Brenda - I can't believe you picked it up."

Billy turned the leather pouch over in his thick fingers, then pushed aside the plate on the table in front of him and placed the pouch on the table and slipped the drawstring, his nose wrinkling at the slightly musty odor that rose from inside.

"Billy - I know that it seems impossible, and I don't truly believe it myself..." Brenda said, holding her hands out imploringly. "But just think - what if it is real?"

"If it is real?" Billy asked. "What if it is - how is us switching bodies going to make everything better?"

They were sitting in the peasant style combined kitchen/dinning room of the ranch. Billy had prepared a delicious meal in awkward silence, while Brenda had sat at the table, sipping at wine and making attempts at small talk which Billy had answered with grunts or monosyllable responses. They both felt awkward and uncomfortable, more distant than they'd ever been in their friendship. It was after an extremely awkward meal that Brenda had produced the pouch from the peasant-style blouse she was wearing after changing before dinner. Truth be told, Billy realized that the leather strap of the pouch had been clearly visible the whole time, and so had the small but noticeable bulge of the bag hanging between her firm, spherical breasts. He'd just been too busy being miserable and self-demeaning to notice.

Now, Brenda leaned forward with intensity in her voice. "Well, it sure can't make things any worse, Billy. For God's sake - look at us!" She shook her head. "You don't want to hurt me - but do you have any idea how your rejection of me makes me feel, damn it?"

"I.. I didn't mean.." Billy said, hanging his head and damning himself all over again. "I'm sorry - but I just can't... I'd hurt you if I even hugged you..."

"You might hurt me." Brenda said. "Isn't it worth the risk to find out?" "I... I can't."

Brenda pointed to the little pouch. "That's why I grabbed that. Just think about it for a minute, Billy. If it really works, we could find out - and you wouldn't have to worry about hurting me, because I'd be in that big, strong body of yours."

He looked up. "But... I could, I mean.. you could still hurt your body that way."

Brenda sighed, rolling her eyes. She knew that there was no way of getting the soft-hearted Billy to understand that she was willing to risk injuries in this case. His gentle soul was one reason she loved him so deeply - but right now it was driving her nuts. "So - then you can stay in my body for the couple of days it takes the bruises to heal." She said in exasperation. "Then when I get it back, it'll be as good as new and you wouldn't have hurt me."

Billy blinked. "Well, yeah - I guess that would work." He nudged the bag with one blunt finger. "Assuming - and this is a big assumption

- that this stuff really worked> Which it doesn't."

Brenda blinked. She'd just said the first thing that had popped into her mind - and he'd agreed with it - in theory. Now, she pushed her advantage, changing the tone of her voice, softening it and looking into his eyes as she spoke.

"Maybe it won't - but will you try?" She asked. "For me?" Billy blushed - then nodded. "For you. But it won't work."

"There's one sure way to find out..." Brenda said, opening the bag and spilling a small amount of the greenish-black powder into the palm of her dainty hand. She pushed the bag back in his direction, and Billy hesitantly took the same amount in the palm of his massive hand.

"On three." Brenda said, her eyes boring into his. "One... two... three.."

Simultaneously, they both lifted their hands to their mouths and sucked in the powder, swallowing quickly. Billy grimaced a bit at the mildly unpleasant taste, then looked at Brenda. "Okay - now what?"

She shrugged her slender shoulders. "I guess we wait."

They didn't have long to wait. Within a few moment, Billy began to feel light-headed, and his eyes felt heavy. He struggled against the lethargic feeling creeping over him, and fought uselessly against it. Within a few minutes, he'd drifted off into a deep sleep.

'I'm dreaming...' Billy thought to himself a moment later - because he found himself hovering in mid-air over his slumbering body, looking down at it. Looking towards where 'he' should be according to his sense of consciousness, he saw nothing at all, yet he could see and hear as well as if his body was with his consciousness, rather than leaning back in the chair, eyes closed and arms hanging limply by it's side.

Changing his focus of attention, Billy looked down at Brenda's gorgeous body, slumped forward on the table with her head laying on her bare arms. Her legs were splayed at an angle that only the sleeping or unconscious could achieve, displaying much of the smooth, milky flesh under the hem of the ruffled red-and-black skirt.

With the mental equivalent of a shrug - he had no shoulders to perform the actual movement at the moment - Billy, deciding that this was some sort of drug-induced hallucination, decided to 'play along'. He found that he could move his consciousness, and he did that now, arrowing over to Brenda's inert body. Mentally configuring his non-existent limbs into the same posture as Brenda's limp form, he willed himself into the same place occupied by her body...

...and felt an odd, wrenching sensation as all his senses flared with different sensations and feelings as darkness closed in. Startled, Billy instinctively jerked upright, eyes flying open...

...to stare, wide eyed, across the table at his body. Even as the sight of himself sitting across the table registered, so did a million other things - like the strange sensation of huge, firm tits on his - her - chest bouncing after the sudden movement, the sensation of air moving across her bare legs, the feel of her long, blonde hair training down her neck - all feeling utterly real, and not in the least bit dream-like.

He was in Brenda's body.

Then his massively muscled form - her old form - shuddered and sat upright, eyes flying open. With a shocked look, one hand dipped out of view below the table, while the other rose before his disbelieving eyes.

"It... It worked..." The massive man - looking even bigger than it always had in the mirror - said in a tone of awe, the voice sounding strange to Billy's new ears. The new 'Billy' - Brenda in the 'real' Billy's old body - gaped at the new Brenda.

"Billy?" He asked, hesitantly, his new voice rumbling as he continued to touch himself experimentally.

"I.. I guess so." The new Brenda said, looking down at the mouth-watering amount of cleavage that was displayed. He'd never seen any woman's breasts from quite this angle before. Hesitantly, she lifted her slender new hands and lightly squeezed her massive, firm new tits, making a small sound of pleasure at the sensation.

"Yeah - I know." Billy said, shifting his massive bulk and smiling at the new woman. "Fells pretty good, huh."

"Uh.. yeah." Brenda said, yanking her hands away from her tits and flushing brightly, even as her large, thick nipple stirred and poked impudently into the cotton of the sleeveless blouse. "Is.. is this really happening?"

"It doesn't feel like a dream to me..." The new Billy replied. "... I think it really happened, just like the old man said. I think we've switched bodies." He cocked his head. "Why don't you stand up and let me have a look at you... I mean, at 'me', how I look to 'you'."

Billy, still amazed, almost laughed at the confusion over the correct pronoun. She rose from the table, feeling the way the body she was now in moved so utterly unlike the old male body she'd been born with. For one thing, she moved with Brenda's grace and poise, and had no problem standing and moving atop the four-inch semi-cylindrical heels on the sandals Brenda had been wearing - or, rather, that Brenda's body was wearing, and she was now in. It felt strange to move so confidently and gracefully in the female body, as if she'd been born in it rather than a newcomer.

"This is... weird..." Brenda said, slowly spinning her new figure to let the original owner survey it in a way that had never been possible before.

"Damn - I am gorgeous." Billy said, shaking his new head. "I never realized just how good I look to a man..." He trailed off, his eyes widening as one hand flew to his mouth in a decidedly un-Billy-like move. "Oh, good God..."

"What..." Brenda started to ask - then paled as it hit her.

"She was looking at Billy - and she was getting aroused. In fact, she'd been getting aroused since the very beginning, but in the mix of odd things she was feeling, she hadn't noticed the growing warmth in her belly or odd, tingling engorgement of her new nipples as being out-of-place. It was only now, watching the huge cock that used to be hers tenting out the crotch of Billy's jeans that she realized what was happening.

"Holy Shit..." Brenda - who, as Billy, hadn't liked to use profanity - swore. "I uh... I don't think I'm ready to deal with this..."

The shared a look, remembering what the old Indian had said. Just like they had the right motor skills and habits of the body they were currently inhabiting, they also had that bodies sexual interests. Since each of them had found the other sexy, they still did - but now, from the opposite point of view.

"Whoa..." Billy said, flushing as his hands flew down to cover his crotch in embarrassment - then jerking his hands away from the massive, thick cock clearly out-lined in the jeans.

"Geez - I never knew you were that big down there." Billy said, the flush flaring brighter - then a thought struck him. "Wait a second - how come I never did see you with an erection. I mean, I know how sexy you find that body... (An understatement - the new Billy was now experiencing exactly the same sexual attraction for his old body as the original Billy had) ...so, how come I never saw your pants bulging like this?"

Brenda flushed. "Actually - you have no idea how hard it was to concentrate on non-sexual thoughts like baseball or chess when I was around you and saw you in certain poses or clothes."

Billy shook his new head in disbelief. "I find it amazing that you can actually 'turn off' your arousal. In that body, it just stays, no matter what 'cold' thoughts you try to think."

"I know." Brenda said, wryly. "I've been thinking about hockey, and I still keep noticing how you look, the erection you have - and can't stop thinking about..." She blushed, furiously. "You know."

Blushing as well, Billy nodded, knowing what was going through the new woman's mind right now. "Now you know how I felt around you."

"Geez - no wonder you got so upset when I yanked away the chance we might... you know." She shook her head. "How do you stand this all the time? It's driving me crazy - it's.... almost like a craving for something. Just this maddening need to do something."

Billy blushed even brighter. "Uh... well, that's the reason dildos were invented..."

"Oh.... right. " Brenda agreed, flushing to match Billy. They looked at each other, standing awkwardly, blushing while they fought to control the lust of the body they were occupying...

...and they burst out laughing.

"Aren't we the sorriest pair of lovers?" Brenda asked, laughing. "God - we're a couple of first-class morons."

Billy nodded. "Geez - first we're too afraid of screwing up our friendship to admit that we love each other and find each other incredibly attractive. Then, when we do admit it, you're too afraid that this..." He tapped his chest, "...monster of a body will hurt 'little old me'."

He pointed to the body he used to inhabit, "...so we still don't do anything. Then, by some miracle, we're given a chance to see what the other is feeling and how they are living - and we stand around, even more awkward about talking about sex than when we were ourselves and 'just friends'."

Brenda's laughter redoubled, and she almost fell over onto the floor in mirth.

"What..?" Billy gasped out, the sides of his muscular new abdomen beginning to hurt from the laughter.

Brenda slid a hand down the front of her skirt and lifted upwards. "I... I've always wanted..." She gasped out between peals of laughter as she lifted the skirt and ran one slender hand over the white cotton panties. "...to get...into...your panties."

Billy cracked up, actually toppling over with a resounding 'thud' as his huge body hit the floorboards. "Please - stop..." He begged.

Brenda slid to the floor near him, holding her sides. They lay like that for a few minutes as their laughing jag wound down, with a couple of resurgent spurts of giggles as they looked at each other. Finally, Billy pulled himself upright and gathered Brenda into an embrace, realizing why the original Billy had been afraid as he felt the easy power of his new body - yet knowing, as the new Brenda was just discovering, that the female body Brenda had was supple and resilient enough to take it.

Brenda still couldn't believe how good it felt not to have to worry about 'being careful', like she had to in her old body. This new body was more agile and flexible, but the curse she'd lived with her whole male life - of having a monstrously strong body - was gone, and the relief, the easy movements and gentle power of this new body were almost as incredulous as the new sensations this body was sending to her brain. Likewise, Billy was amazed at the easy power of his new body - as well as the release from having to be 'feminine' all the time to match her body. She'd always worn 'feminine' clothing and done her make-up and hair carefully out of a feeling of 'obligation' - she had shuddered whenever she'd let such a gorgeous body 'go to waste', a mind-set instilled into her by society. Now, in this male body, he could just throw on some clothes, and - hey! - he was ready.

"Soooo..." Billy said with a smile, looking down into the eyes that used to be hers. "You were afraid you'd hurt me if you'd done this..." She squeezed Brenda into a tighter embrace, both of them enjoying the way their old body felt in the tight embrace of their new one. "Well then - you must have been afraid to do this too."

And he leaned down and placed his lips on Brenda's full, soft lips. She kissed back - passionately.

If it had been any other man doing this, Brenda would have been disgusted - but it wasn't, it was the person she loved kissing her. It was a male mind kissing a female mind, and a male body kissing a female body - and never mind that they were reversed, because it was somehow still all right.

In fact - a hell of a lot better than 'all right'. The kiss deepened and lengthened, as each applied the skills of their new bodies to provide the sensation that their old bodies liked best. Each one knew exactly what the other liked, and as the kiss went on longer and longer, it was the most incredible kiss either had ever experienced - and, with the sensations of their new bodies, there were a few extra 'thrills' thrown in as they felt new feelings and sensations they'd never felt before. For Brenda, it was the sensation of her huge new tits pressed firmly against her old chest as they kissed, and for Billy, it was the pleasurable pressure of his huge, thick cock straining in his pants.

When they finally broke the long, deep kiss, they looked deep into each other's eyes, gauging what they saw there, seeing if the other was as ready as they were to go ahead and take the plunge.

It was Billy's massive hands that slid the top of Brenda's blouse down, revealing her perfect, spherical tits with their large, engorged nipples. But the movement of those hands was done with the gentle grace of the feminine mind controlling the massive male body - and when Billy began to fondle and caress the large, perfect tits, it was with the knowledge of what felt the best, what was the most incredibly pleasurable motions and manner in which to fondle - and then suck - the huge tits and the massive, swollen nipples. Brenda definitely appreciated the expertise, throwing her head back and moaning in animal pleasure as Billy's lips, tongue and fingers combined to create the maximum amount of pleasure possible.

"Oh... god..." Brenda moaned, her hands slowly unbuttoning Billy's cotton shirt. "I never... knew... just how.. horny.. women got..."

"Yeah, well..." Billy returned, sliding off the panties he'd put on Brenda's body that morning, not knowing that he'd be peeling them off her in Billy's body that night. "Male arousal is pretty damned... urgent."

"I have a solution for that..." Brenda giggled, unzipping Billy's jeans and pulling them down. Although her old body outweighed her new one by almost twice as much, she pushed it easily down to the floor, getting no resistance. The massive, thick cock she used to have was thrust, throbbing, into the air, and she never thought she'd feel so eager to impale herself on a huge, hard cock like she did right now.

But that didn't make her hesitate in the least.

Positioning herself over Billy's supine body, she placed the warm, sopping wet tip of her new cunt against the massive, almost purple head of her old cock and flexed her long, shapely new legs, lowering herself slowly...

"Holy shit..." She gasped, feeling new and powerful erotic sensations course through her as her cunt was stretched over the throbbing, veined shaft of the cock. "I never realized I was this huge..."

"Oh.. god.. I.. I mean you... are so tight..." Billy gasped back, feeling the new sensation of being 'enclosed', his new member transmitting sensation and pleasure through his entire body - yet oddly focused, in a way that sex as a woman had never been.

It took nearly five minutes of slow motion, and her legs were beginning to ache from the strain, but Brenda finally sat fully impaled on the massive cock she'd once owned, a stunned expression on her gorgeous new face at the feeling of being completely and utterly filled.

Then she began to flex those long, sexy legs, lifting her body upwards, her wet, fully-lubricated cunt sliding easily over the massive cock that filled her - then dropping back down, throwing her head back and moaning at the incredible sensation that came from the erotic friction. Instinctively, letting the body's own skills regulate the speed and length of the stroke, she began to piston up and down on the massive cock, moans being forced out of her as her thrust came faster and harder with each repetition.

"Yes,... yes... yes..." She moaned as she bounced up and down on the massive cock, Billy's thick hands rising to fondle her tits as he, too, added his own sounds of intense pleasure to hers. "Oh, God.. yes..."

Then he began to move his hips in small circular motions as she continued to piston up and down, and the intense pleasure doubled, then redoubled, thrumming through her body like nothing else she'd ever felt.

"Ohhh! Ohh.. yess!" her voice was no longer moans, but short, panting little screams of pleasure as intense ecstasy rocked her to the core. She was sweating freely at the amount of energy spent in the effort, and Billy thought the sight of his old body - glistening with sweat, hair flying around her head, huge tits bouncing with every thrust - was one of the most erotic things he'd seen.

"Oh.. YESSSSSS!!!!" The sibilant scream ripped from her throat at top volume as Brenda experienced her first female orgasm. It cut all conscious control of her body as all nerve paths were used for the transmission of pure orgasmic pleasure, and she writhed and flopped in a spasm of pure ecstasy atop Billy's body as the tremendous wave of pleasure swept her body. Her cunt muscles tightened around the massive organ, pushing Billy over the edge as well, and his hoarse bass shouts played erotic counterpart to her soprano screams of orgasmic pleasure as the came, Billy pumping what seemed to be gallons of warm, sweet cum deep into the wet cunt he's once owned.

As the sensations wound down, Brenda collapsed atop her former body, panting - still impaled on the now softening cock. "Oh... my... God..." She whispered, stunned. "I never knew... it's so much better for you women..."

"Bullshit." Billy declared emphatically. "God - you don't know how good you have it as a man - all the pleasures.. concentrated. In that body, it's incredibly strong, but kinda... spread out, you know. With a cock, it's all right there."

"Yeah, well - I guess it's a case of 'the grass is always greener...'" Brenda said, rolling off Billy's now deflated cock and looking down at herself. She was covered in sweat, and a mixture of male and female cum was sliding down her leg. "I guess we could use showers, huh?"

Billy nodded. "Yup - seems like it."

Brenda cocked her head. "Is it okay if I go first."

Smiling, Billy picked her up, ignoring her giggling protests. "Who said a damned thing about taking turns?"

In the end, they did take turns - sort of. They showered at the same time, but Billy washed - shuddering with pleasure - as Brenda knelt at the bottom of the stall, enthusiastically, if not terribly skillfully, slurping her way through a blow-job. Then Billy showed her how good getting eaten out could feel...

* * * * *

A week later, the powerful sports car tooled east, heading back to collage.

Brenda - once more the original mind and body united - leaned against Billy's massive arms, still trying to settle back into her body, having only switched back that morning. She smiled up at Billy, he bent down for a quick kiss.

"God - what a week." Billy rumbled with a smile. "And to think - I was worried about hurting you!" He theatrically rolled his massive shoulders, which bore the marks of Brenda's nails.

Brenda giggled. "I'd say 'Sorry' - but it's literally your own damned fault."

Billy laughed with her. "Yeah - still, you realize that we're the only couple on earth who knows exactly what our lover likes in bed? We're... like sex Gods or something."

"Speak for yourself." Brenda laughed. "I'm a sex Goddess - and, as much fun as being you was, I'm glad to be back in my own body."

"Me too - but I wouldn't have traded the experience for the world." Billy said, rubbing her long, slender leg just the way he'd enjoyed while her. Then he sighed. "What do we do about the rest of that powder, though?"

Brenda frowned. "I don't know. We probably won't use it again - and there's just enough for two people to switch twice." She cocked her head. "You don't happen to know another couple who could use that experience, do you?"

Billy looked down at her again. "Hmmm... not really. Besides, it would be kinda hard to explain, wouldn't it?"

"Yeah - I guess so." Brenda admitted. "Actually, I wish we could give it back to that old Indian - I wouldn't mind a chance to thank him. To do something in return for what he did for us."

"Well, I think..."

"Pull over!" Brenda interrupted loudly.

Startled, Billy looked to where Brenda was pointing - then smiled and slowed the car, turning off into the parking lot of a run-down hotel sitting in the middle of nowhere, dust stirring around the dilapidated gas pumps outside the office. He guided the car to a stop beside the two motorcycles sitting in the dirt upon their kick-stands, and he and Brenda climbed from the car.

"Oh, shit!" One of the bikers said, hands going into his jacket to pull out the switch-blade knife he'd recently purchased to replace his old one, now lying in two pieces in a culvert in the badlands.

Take it easy, buddy - there's no hard feelings on my part." Billy said, looking back and forth between the two obviously frightened bikers, one with scraggly dark hair, the other with shorter, greasy blond. "I'm not gonna start anything if you don't."

Nervously, the dark-haired one - 'Snake', as he was known to his ostensible friends - licked his lips and eyed the massively muscled man smiling down at him. "What do you want, man?"

Brenda pointed to the two women cowering behind the men. "These your girlfriends?"

Hicks - the blond - looked over his shoulder at the almost painfully thin woman behind him, dressed in a short leather miniskirt, torn fishnets, and a black leather jacket over a tiny red tube-top that was stretched to the limit - and beyond - by her massive, obviously surgically enhanced tits, easily twice as big as Brenda's own, natural endowments. His eyes then flicked from his 'suicide blonde' girl to Snake's, a shorter, more muscular red-head with equally ludicrous implants clearly visible through the mesh shirt she wore above tight black jeans.

"Yeah, they're our bitches - what's it to you."

Brenda ignored the question, speaking directly to the ridiculously outsized red-head. "What are you doing with these guys?"

The woman - who had weary, resigned green eyes - spoke in a flat voice. "What else we s'posed to do, lady? Ain't all of us as pretty as you. Some of us gotta make a livin' in strip clubs, and we ain't gonna do any better than these boys here. Sure, all they wanna do all the time is party and fuck - but hey, before they came along, we got molested by every swingin' dick alive. Least now, we only gotta fuck them, not five or six d'frent guys a day, y'know?"

The blonde nodded. "Yeah - it ain't much, but Snake and Hicks is clean, at least - and they know where to get some really good smack an' stuff, se we have fun too."

Judging from the appearance of the two bikers, Brenda was pretty sure the blonde meant 'clean' as in 'no AIDS or other VD'. She repressed a grimace, and shared a look with Billy, knowing that this was almost to perfect. "So - you guys like to party, huh?"

"Sure - what's it to you?" Snake replied, still nervous. If these two were narcs, he was gonna kill Leanne for spouting off at the mouth. If Hicks complained, he'd just give him 'Blaze' to shut him up.

"Well - here's something that I guarantee will give you a sexual experience like nothing you've ever had." Brenda said, holding up a small leather pouch. "All you have to do is share it equally among yourselves. You swallow it, then think as hard as you can about your lover - girls, think of your guy, and vice versa."

Hicks looked wary. "This some kinda a joke?"

Billy smiled sincerely. "Oh, no - trust my, I swear that it'll let you have sex like you never even dreamed of before."

Brenda tossed the pouch to Snake, who caught it. She and Billy then turned and climbed back into the car, waving as they pulled away and disappeared down the highway.

"Waddya think?" Hicks asked as Snake relaxed and put away the knife. Opening the pouch, he took a whiff of the contents - and his eyes widened.

"Man - smells a lot like peyote. Maybe some other shit, to - maybe exxtacy or sumthin'." The dark-haired biker replied - he had an almost encyclopedic knowledge of the appearance, smell and taste of drugs, as well as street value and effects.

"Give it a try?" Hicks asked.

"You bet - let's live on the edge." Snake replied. Grabbing Blaze, he led her to the hotel room the four of them shared, Hicks close behind.

Sitting on one of the double beds, Snake carefully measured the greenish-black powder inside the pouch into four piles. Into two of the piles, he mixed another, slightly pink powder, almost tripling the volume.

"Aw, shit Snake. De we hafta?" Blaze asked wearily. "You know that shit makes me so horny I fuck both of ya all day long, then can't barely move tomorrow!"

"Tough shit." Snake grunted, passing her the slip of paper her pile of powder was on, and the other pink-powder-mixed pile to Leanne. "Down the hatch."

The four of them downed the powder, then closed their eyes and concentrated as hard as they could on their 'lover'. Having lots of experience with drugs, all four knew that 'Exxtacy' and its derivatives didn't necessarily enhance sexual desire - it only enhanced whatever the person was thinking about when they took it. Of course, most people took it and were thinking of sex, but once in a while somebody took it while inadvertently thinking of the wrong thing, and that led to problems. So, all of them put all they could into thinking about the person they were going to have sex with as the strange lethargy swept over them, followed by a weird, wrenching sensation that caused their eyes to pop open.

For a second, Snake just stared, confused, at the sight of his own body staring back at him, wondering how the hell he'd ended up in front of a mirror. Then a host of strange sensations caused him to look down, and he found himself gapping at Blaze's massive MMM- cup monster tits hanging from her chest - only, he seemed to be in her body.

It took nearly five minutes for the four of them to work out who was who - but the new men quickly realized they were in the stronger bodies of their old male 'lovers', with raging hard-ons, and in the presence of two 'women' whose bodies were currently over-run with massive amounts of hormones thanks to the pink powder they'd ingested.

Smiling at each other, the two 'men' dropped their pants...

Oh, would some Pow'r the giftie give us, to see oursel's as others see us!

Robert Burns

BACK TO FUN ZONE

SUMMARY: Two young men find a magic ring and whoever wears it can answer any questions asked of him, for instance, "What if ?"

What If?

---

By Gunslinger

"C'mon, already !"

"I'm... trying..." Doug panted, annoyed, yanking futilely at the ring on his finger. "The.. damned thing... won't come... uh.. off. !"

Frustrated, the portly young man stopped tugged, angrily flipping an errant lock of long, dark-brown hair out of his florid face.

"No offense, Doug - but I think you have fat fingers." Tom commented, tactlessly - but that was the muscular, sandy-haired young man's forte. That was to say, being 'tactless' was the best of his qualities - or, at least, the least worst. Sometimes, Doug wondered why the hell he hung out with the big, egotistical ex-Jock...

...and then the twenty-nine-year old video-store clerk would remember that Tom liked to blow his money on his friends, and remembered. Though it came from completely selfish motivations, Tom was very 'generous' - and Doug wasn't above taking that generosity.

Right now, however, Tom was starting to 'cloud up', his blue-gray eyes looking like a North Atlantic storm brewing up.

'Patience' wasn't one of tom's long suits, either - usually any waiting was solved by injudicious use of physical force - Doug didn't want the tanned, muscular man taking a try at 'yanking' the ring from his finger.

"Let's take a second and get a better look at the problem..." Doug suggested hastily, gesturing at the brighter light at the kitchen table with his left hand - while not-so-surreptitiously slipping his right hand - and the ring - into the pocket of his baggy black jean overalls.

Grudgingly, Tom followed, his size thirteen work boots sounding strangely threatening on the wooden floorboards of the cabin. Then again, perhaps it was just a reminder of how they'd gotten into this situation. After all, it had been the six-foot-eight young man's weight that had come crashing through the step outside his Uncle's old lakeside cabin.

It had been looking through that hole that they'd seen the ring. As they'd come into the cabin, Doug had idly slid the ring on, to see if it fit...

...and now he couldn't get it off. Since this was Tom's uncle's cabin, Tom rightfully assumed the ring was his, too - and while his own 'self-image' made sure he was generous, he wasn't ready to give up the ring because of Doug's stupidity.

Reluctantly, the shorter, more rotund man pulled his hand out of his pocket and stretched it out on the wood table, under the brightest light in the cabin - the hundred-what bulb strung from the ceiling above the table, barely shaded by a cheap tin cone. Under the bright, close light, the gold ring shot back painfully bright highlights...

...which clearly defined the lettering inscribed on it's outer surface, unnoticed by either man.

"Hey, there's writing here!" Doug exclaimed. He sounded out the letters engraved on the side of the ring: "Quién lleva este anillo contestará a todos. Huh - sounds Spanish..."

"What's it mean...?" Tom asked, leaning closer.

Doug was all prepared to snap back that he didn't speak Spanish, thank you very much - when, to his surprise, he found himself saying: "Who takes this ring will answer all."

"Oh." Tom said, missing the stunned look on his companions face. "What's that got to do with you not being able to get the ring off?"

Again, Doug found himself speaking, without knowing what he was going to say until he heard it: "The ring is magical. Once worn, it cannot be removed - and the one who wears it will be able to answer any question asked of him... Holy Shit!"

"Yeah, that would be cool..." Tom mused. 'Perceptive' wouldn't usually be applied to him, either, and he still hadn't figured out something strange was going on. "But, man, what if it was worn by somebody who couldn't talk or write, you know? How would they answer questions then?"

Doug tried to say something to Tom, explain that the ring really was magical and would answer questions...

...and nothing came out. Horrified, Doug grabbed his neck with one hand, mouth working soundlessly as he batted at Tom with the other. The more muscular man looked over - and frowned in confusion and annoyance while Doug, wide eyed, gestured at his throat and worked his mouth soundlessly, occasionally pointing at the ring.

"What the fuck is your problem...?" Tom asked, annoyed...

...and Doug suddenly felt compelled to be calm and composed. Still under that compulsion, he pointed to Tom, then made 'talking' gestures with one hand. Then, slowly, he drew a big question-mark in the air, pointed emphatically at the ring, twice, then at his own face, while he moved his lips silently.

Tom stared for a second later - then gasped. "Hey - the ring is really magic, and you're answering my question about how somebody who can't talk or write can answer questions!"

Doug nodded in relief - the ring had taken Tom's 'what the fuck is going on?' as a valid question, and had made the mute Doug act out the situation in the best way for Tom to understand!

That was a hell of a magical ability. Despite the 'bad scare' his sudden muting had given him, Doug was beginning to see a lot of possibilities in having become an Oracle...

"Wow, that's really cool...!" Tom said, grinning. "Hey - let's see what else we can do with it...!" Tightening his lips and frowning, Doug tapped Tom on the shoulder, hard, then pointed to his throat.

"Yeah, yeah - in a minute..." Tom said, grinning. "Actually, I wanna see how you answer other questions without being able to talk or write. C'mon over here..."

Doug ground his teeth - but there was nothing he could do. If Tom wanted to play charades for a while, Doug would have to play along.

Angrily, Doug stomped over to where Tom had dropped into a slightly dusty couch, laying down and taking up it's entire length, his arms behind his head. Standing a few feet in front of the couch, Doug made a 'get on with it' gesture.

"Hmmm..." Tom said, thoughtfully. "What would be an extremely tough question for somebody who can't talk or write be...?" With an exaggerated motion, Doug crossed his arms and tapped his foot.

"Okay - I got one..." Tom said, grinning wickedly. "What would it feel like if I had a huge, thick cock and massive balls, was able to get hard again incredibly quickly, and could pump out amazing amounts of cum?"

Doug mimed making an 'ewww...' sound while screwing up his face in disgust...

...when he was suddenly rocked by a strange 'vomiting' sensation. Not that he actually threw up - but it felt like his body had just 'expelled' something invisible, leaving him shaken and feeling weak-kneed...

...which was quite enough to distract him from Tom's gasp. Staggering slightly, Doug lifted his suddenly-heavy head - and stared as Tom unzipped his pants to extract his suddenly enlarged cock. It was limp - and even limp it was a good six inches long, and amazingly thick. It rode atop a hairy ball-sac that contained testicles that were each slightly larger than a billiard ball.

In passing, Doug noted that Tom's pants had also been altered, to fit his new equipment - but since that little detail was the least amazing thing that happened, Doug barely gave it another thought...

This power was amazing! Doug hadn't realized that the inadvertent muting that had been forced upon him would serve as a conduit for an incredible amount of power. The 'easiest' way to answer certain questions without voice or literature was to make it happen. The possibilities were endless...

"Hmmm..." Tom said, lightly stroking his now rock-hard member. Doug shuddered and quickly glanced away from the massive cock, trying to erase the image of the fourteen-inch long monster cock from his mind. "What... What if you'd been born mute, hopelessly dyslexic... and female...?"

Doug, stunned, didn't first grasp the fullness of the question - because he didn't want to. It wasn't until he felt his body shudder and... ripple.. that he opened his mouth in a soundless scream...

...as he changed. Completely and utterly.

His view-point shifted upwards a few inches as his black leather 'Docs' writhed and shrunk in on feet that were becoming smaller and narrower. The tough black leather of the shoe stretched and reshaped itself, becoming black leather 'Granny' boots with a squared three-inch wooden heel.

The extra height from his boots was quickly lost as he shrunk down a few inches - even as he felt the change rushing up his legs, leaving them with pudgy-but-feminine contours as his body-hair became lighter and finer. The heavy black denim covering those legs remained the same - but the cut of the cloth changed considerably, becoming tighter-fitting black jeans - which continued to mold themselves to his body even as the changes continued. He felt a dully painful wrenching sensation in his hips as they suddenly widened considerably, supporting an over-full ass that had grown to meet his new lower dimensions, even as the change continued...

...causing his cock to shrink in on itself, folding itself backwards into his body and leaving a perfectly formed pussy between her now- smoothly-shaved thighs, hidden beneath plain-Jane white cotton undies.

Her waist became slimmer, though it remained fairly pudgy - but that was hard to see, given the loose nature of the once-plaid- workshirt, now turned into a white, lace-embroidered silk shirt, buttoned high to the neck. The collar was tighter than the rest of the loose, soft garment - but it wasn't any more inherently uncomfortable than the plain white bra that clung tight over her chubby C-cup breasts.

Even as her arms became more feminine, her hands shrinking and wrists narrowing, her face was also altering, becoming softer and more feminine - while his hair became longer, a lusterless chestnut mane hanging down past her meaty shoulders...

...even as she felt herself slump slightly, not quite able to look at Tom, feeling incredibly...

...shy?

Yes. Yes, she felt shy. Because 'Debbie' would feel shy.

Debbie being her, since she now felt exactly what a mute, dyslexic girl would feel - lonely and ashamed, never having been able to make any real 'connection' with anybody...

The thing was - she knew she was really a guy. She remembered every detail of her male life, yet none of the life 'Debbie' was supposed to have led. She knew it was all 'fictional'... but the emotions she felt seemed as real as any other, and she couldn't turn them off. She was 'reacting' the way the fictional 'Debbie' would, even though it was her regular, male thought-patterns that were still in control.

Right now, she wish she had a voice to curse tom with - even though she still couldn't force herself to look directly at him. "Hmm..." Tom said, thoughtfully. "You know, you're kinda cute as a girl... but, you know, chubby."

Though she couldn't bring herself to look directly at Tom, she could almost feel the wicked grin by the tone of his voice when he spoke again: "What if... you felt the only way anybody would ever pay attention to you is if you looked as lovely as you possibly could...?"

That strange sensation shuddered through her altered body - but, despite the weakness it left behind, she found herself straightening herself and heading for the mirror near the front door, even as her hand dipped downward into a purse.. that hadn't been there before.

As she walked, her jeans grew even tighter on her body - a body that was changing itself, trading fat for considerably less muscle-mass, as if she'd been conscientiously observing a diet-and-exercise regimen for years...

...which gave her walk a little more 'pep' - which did interesting things to her full (and now, firm) ass, especially given the slender five- inch heels on the knee-high black leather boots that she now wore.

She reached the mirror - and, under a compulsion she couldn't fight, pulled out some make-up and began skillfully applying it to a thinner face. This was her first chance to see her new face, and it was a perfectly ordinary female face. The 'family resemblance' between this body and her old male one was obvious, and she'd never be a real stunner - but she certainly tried her best, applying an expert coat of make-up that simultaneously disgusted and excited her, the two conflicting emotions hitting her whirling, staggering brain with equal force.

Her hair, on it's own, drew itself up into a lustrous chestnut fall of curls and waves, a thick, carefully-maintained mane of laboriously- styled hair.

Her shirt remained basically the same, but drew tighter over her flat, toned stomach and perky A-cup breasts. Even at the top button undid itself to display the smooth skin of a woman who'd used all sorts of 'skin care' products and techniques on a daily basis.

Gold jewelry appeared on her, all of them of Spanish design, so as to go with the ring she wore - bracelets, etched with words, appeared on each wrist, while small gold hoop earrings appeared in each of her unremarkably feminine lobes. A necklace, made of little gold rings, wound itself around her neck, spun from thin air.

A moment ago, before 'making herself beautiful', Debbie was ashamed to look at Tom - now, perfectly coifed and made-up, she turned her attention to him, not even noticing that she carried herself very carefully, very daintily, as she looked eagerly at him for approval, knowing that she was disgusted by wanting that approval of her feminine form - but helpless to stop herself from seeking it...

...or feeling a terrible bolt of depression slam through her as tom said "Boy, those are small tits..."

She didn't want to feel depressed and ashamed that her tits were so small - but she did. So, part of her was gratified, not horrified, to here Tom continue on with: "What if you were terribly ashamed of being so flat chested. What if, in fact, you have always wanted bigger tits - the bigger, the better. What if you've fantasized, wished for, hoped for, huge breasts. What if you want, more then anything else in the world, to have huge tits - and what if you now grew those huge, round, impossibly firm tits. ?"

Debbie wished she could cry out. Cry out in mingled horror and joy, as her breasts began to swell outwards.

Horror and dismay, because she was really a man, being changed into a woman - a woman with huge breasts. That part of her was still there - but there was also the joy and giddiness, the extreme pleasure she felt as her pitifully small breasts swelled outwards,. She didn't want to feel happy that her tits were now bigger then basketballs, and still growing - but she couldn't help herself. In fact, she was downright ecstatic as her breasts slowed and finally stopped growing, now each the size of a beach-ball, incredibly huge and round and firm, tipped with a large pink nipple that poked impudently into the thin fabric of that self-same shirt - only now it was carefully tailored, open half-way down the front to show a jaw-dropping amount of cleavage before closing up to cling tightly to her waist.

She now looked at Tom - and saw approval that made her shudder in mixed disgust and pleasure. More pleasure then disgust, she was horrified to realize - while still feeling an almost inhuman level of gratitude to tom for giving her these wonderfully huge breasts. Now she wasn't ashamed any more...

Disgusted, yes - but not ashamed. Most of her really did love her massive new boobs - enough of her, in fact, that she really didn't even try to stop herself from slowly fondling her massive tits through the thin fabric, shivering at how wonderfully heavy and full her massive new boobs were...

"Much better..." Tom said, grinning. ". but, what if, having gotten the huge tits you longed for, you now feel you're good enough to have sex with men. What if, in fact, you've been brain-washed since birth to think that all you're good for is pleasing men, and you've dedicated yourself to becoming the most perfect girlfriend in the world, a perfect fuck-slut who can't even talk? What if that was your life until now, until I gave you those huge breasts - which is because I'm the man you've chosen to be your boyfriend. ?"

God, she hated him for doing this to her! God, she loved him for doing this to her...

A war was being fought inside her altered body - even as the now-familiar weak-kneed feeling ran through her, leaving her body alone, but working on the clothes. Part of her was happy for what it was doing to her, because she wanted to be so sexy, so she could please tom, who gave her these wonderful boobs...

...but she also didn't want too, because Tom was the asshole who'd turned her into a woman. Into a woman who desperately wanted to please Tom...

Her hands were still fondling her wonderful new tits - but now they were fondling them through the half-cups built into the bustier-style corset she was wearing, made of white lace and canvas, and pinching her waist down to a delightful nineteen inches. The built in cups covered just high enough to hide her huge, swollen nipples, but lifted her breasts and left a mouth-watering display of wonderful, softly- firm breast-flesh.

Her jeans had become a tiny black denim skirt, laced up each side with black laces. It was so short that it barely covered her bare crotch, much less the top of the black seemed nylons she was wearing, the stitching at the back perfectly straight from her creamy thighs down past her curvaceous calves, and right down to the tip of her dainty toes, well displayed by the three-strap style black leather platform pumps she wore, the eight-inch heels lifting her past even her original height.

Feeling wonderfully, horrifyingly sexy, Debbie stared at Tom with mixed longing and hatred in her eyes as she continued fondling her spectacular new tits.

"If all that was true, would you come fuck me...?" Tommy asked, smiling wolfishly.

Debbie's eyes sank closed, and her body shivered as if overcome with a terrible fever, her face flushing as her shoulders bowed... but she shook her head, twice, sharply, compelled to answer: No.

Tom's grin faltered - then returned. "What if..."

Debbie shuddered, as if being battered by an invisible assailant. "...you were incredibly horny..."

She scampered backwards as fast as she could atop her high heels, struggling to shut Tom's voice out - even as she felt her new womanhood grow warm and damp...

"...and knew, because it was true, that any sort of sexual contact you have with me will be incredibly pleasurable for you." Tom finished, still smiling at where she was shivering against the wall she'd backed into, huge breasts jiggling delightfully. "Then would you fuck me...?"

Helplessly, against her will, the new woman nodded...

...and took a step forward.

Horrified by the new and desires she was feeling, disgusted by her slavish attraction to Tom, nauseated by her own, feminine lusts, she nevertheless took another step, as silky-smooth and hip-swinging sensuous as the first. And then another...

...because, despite all that, she wanted it, more than she hated it. Her lust was greater than her disgust. She.. She had to have sex with Tom...

...after all, hadn't she answered 'yes'? the ring was magic, it could change her in any way it felt necessary - so if it said she was going to have sex with Tom, then it was a given.

There was no use fighting that power - it was too great. She might as well just give up...

...and enjoy it.

Relaxing to the inevitable, she shivered with delight as she smiled eagerly at Tom and wiggled-swayed towards him 'working it' for all it was worth - and gratified to see that wonderful cock of his go rock-solid right away. She lowered herself next to him on the edge of the couch, perching on one wonderfully feminine hip to lean over, pressing her massive, barely-encased breasts into his chest as she kissed him, long, deep and lovingly.

Breaking the kiss, she pulled back - which was no mean feat, given the weight of her wonderfully massive tits. She did it anyway, bracing herself on one wonderfully feminine arm so that she could point at her throat with one slender finger, tipped by a long, gloss- pink nail.

Tom stared at her for a long second, indecisive. He licked his lips, remembering that incredible kiss...

"What..." He said, then paused, his voice hoarse. "What if you suddenly found you could talk, in a warm, sexy voice...?" "Why then..." She said, easily and eagerly, pausing to lick her gloss-pink lips. "...I'd have to say 'thank you'..."

With one smooth, easy movement, she used her free hand to yank at the bow toping one side lace - and the skirt just fell off, sliding to the ground even as she swung her weight around and over, poising herself above him, her sopping wet cunt only a quarter-inch above his hard, throbbing cock.

"...So..." Debbie said, throatily, grinning. "Thank you!"

As she shouted out the words, she slammed herself down on Tom, filling her cunt with his huge, thick cock. Tom grunted and jerked in response.

"Oh, God, yes... this feels wonderful...!" Debbie cried out, bouncing energetically atop Tom's outstretched form. Reaching behind her, she undid the straps for her corset, moving with an expertise provided to her by all those 'fictional' years of practice, making the motion easy and familiar.

The corset-top went flying, joining the shorts on the floor as Debbie writhed and bounced atop Tom's massive cock. She grabbed Tom's hand and hauled them to her huge, bouncing tits, holding them against her massive mounds as his very touch brought her pleasure.

"D.. Doug..." Tom gasped, not knowing the woman's new woman. "This.. isn't..." "You know..." She smiled down on him. "What if you couldn't speak...?"

Tom's eyes widened - and then he began to buck frantically under her in a way that had nothing to do with sex, his mouth working frantically - and soundlessly.

"Oh.." She gasped, enjoying the extra writhing. "And.. what if... you knew exactly how to maximize the pleasure I was feeling... and you had no choice but to do so..."

Her question trailed off into a sharp moan - as tom's rhythm became a perfect counterpart to her own, increasing her pleasure even as his hands helplessly began to massage and fondle her wonderfully massive new tits, doubling the already increased pleasure.

"Oh, yes... yes..." She moaned bouncing and swaying atop his body, loving every sensation she was feeling. "This feels... more wonderful.. then anything.. I.. oh!... felt as a... mmmm... man..."

She began to thrust faster - and he relaxed into his helplessly-timed thrusts, a smiling forming on his mute lips as the huge-breasted woman heaving atop him gasped out: "Thank you, Tom.. thank you..."

She began to buck harder, her gratitude becoming a litany that became higher and higher pitched as she thrashed atop him, huge breasts jiggling and flying.

Her litany became a wordless scream of sheer pleasure as she stiffened, her body rocked by orgasms so fierce that they pushed Tom over the edge, causing him to arch his back as an incredible load of thick, warm cum was pumped into Debbie's wonderfully tight, supple womanhood.

"Thank you..." Debbie gasped as her orgasms finally trailed off. She lifted herself off his cock, coming away with a wet slurping 'pop', thick trailers of his cum running down each of her thighs. She kissed him, passionately. "Thank you for turning me into a huge breasted woman and pumping me full of you cum, Tom. I just love getting fucked as a woman. Thank you..."

She kissed him again - and ripped open his shirt as she did so. She then, slowly and teasingly, kissed her way down to his crotch...

...then, pausing only to smile wickedly at him, she licked her lips, grasped the base of his huge, ready cock, and proceeded to suck the hell out of him.

It was the longest, most incredible blow-job of his life. Her hands, tongue and lips did things he hadn't even known were possibly, bringing him right to the brink - and then back down again. Over and over, each one teasingly close, so close that he actually struggled to push himself over the edge...

...but she wouldn't let him. Not until she was ready. It seemed to take forever, his balls actually aching from the need for release - and then, and only then, did she push him over the edge...

He came like a fire-hose. His cum gushed out in a thick stream, not only gushing down her open throat, but splattering all over her face and dripping in thick stream down her chin, dripping into her vast cleavage.

"Thank you..." She breasted, licking her lips hungrily, her voice thick. "Thank you for letting me suck your cock, Tom - I love sucking cocks and drinking cum. Now.. why don't you come tit-fuck me, stud...?"

She lay back on the floor, running her fingers up and down her vast cleavage to spread the cum that resided in there into an even layer of lubricant.

No matter if he wanted to or not, Tom found himself straddling Debbie's prone figure, laying his massive cock between her equally massive tits...

She pressed them firmly together, enclosing his cock in a warm, slick, resilient tunnel - and he helplessly began to tit-fuck her.

"Oh, yes - I love this too..." Debbie moaned, tossing her head back and forth. "Splatter me with your wonderful cum, baby - I love being splattered with cum..."

Arching his back, Tom did exactly as instructed. Magical as his cock might be, this flood was no where near the equal of the previous two - but still, remarkable amounts of gum gushed from his cock, splattering her face and slicking her hair.

"Mmmm... that was wonderful..." Debbie said, rising to her feet and looking down at Tom, who grinned up, a little pissed at losing his voice and having to perform an 'unwilling' tit-fuck - but happy enough with the way this had turned out.

"Say - what if I were suddenly all cleaned up, dressed in a sexy new outfit of clothes, and had a complete set of valid ID for me new body, not to mention a bank account bulging with loads of money?" She asked, brightly - and tom blinked as she was suddenly clean and dressed, her huge breasts packed into a leather crop-top custom tailored for her massive bust, a tight red leather skirt equally tailored to her ass and hips. She was balanced atop a pair of rounded-toe 'Fuck me' pumps with a six inch stiletto heels, and a matching purse hung over her shoulder.

"Hey - and what if I could get as much pleasure from any man I sleep with - but, since they weren't my 'boyfriend', I wouldn't feel the need to do anything I do want to do with them?"

Tom frowned, even though there was no visible result - he knew that it happened, nevertheless. He stared, angrily, up at Debbie, who smiled at him.

"Don't worry, silly." She told him. "I'm so very, very grateful that you gave me this wonderful body and the urge to fuck and suck men. Even though I know I never wanted this, and that I'm practically physically sick just from giving into all those wonderful urges, I love my new body and my new life, and I'm so grateful to you, tom, the man who gave me all of this."

Tom, relived, let himself relax. He ran his eyes over the smiling woman's overly-endowed body, thinking that there might be a hell of a lot more to get out of this 'gag' than he'd originally hoped. He'd originally planned to humiliate, then 'forcibly' fuck, Doug - then wonder what it would be like if 'she' was back to normal, with no memory of what had happened. He would have gotten to have all the fun, yet have none of the problems.

He hadn't expected Debbie's surprising, whole-hearted acceptance of the situation... well, okay, not 'whole hearted', since there was still apart of her that obviously hated him - yet there was no doubting the sincerity in her voice and eyes when she gushed on about how sincere she was about being grateful...

"Oh, yes - I'm so grateful...!" Debbie gushed. "In fact, I'm so grateful - that I'm going to give you the same, wondrous gift!"

Tom stared at her, eyes bulging. Holding up one hand, he tried to scuttle backwards, mouth working frantically as the still-smiling woman advanced on him, her eyes bright and unthreatening.

"I know, I know..." She said, still smiling. "I hated and feared it at first, too - but, believe me, when you're as huge-breasted, super- horny, and eager to fuck as I am, then you're really going to enjoy it. Trust me..."

Horrified, Tom realized there was nothing he could do. Even if he'd been able to talk, he couldn't have talked her out of this...

...because, somewhere deep inside, the old Doug still remained - and 'he' had managed to convince the new 'Debbie' persona that they were, indeed, very grateful - and since they enjoyed it so much, the most wonderful gift they could give Tom was the exact... same... thing...

Tom's mouth opened wide, and he desperately wished he could scream as Debbie smiled, licked her lips, and said: "What if...?"

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

© 1997 - 2016 TGstories.

Stories on the "Public Access" pages may be Copyright by individual authors.

Home | Membership | Terms & Conditons | Privacy Policy | Contact

SUMMARY: After encountering an old black woman who puts a curse on him, one man wakes up to find himself in the body of a beautiful black hooker.

What Makes A Man?

By Gunslinger

David was walking out of the court room when the old, black woman spit on him.

David blinked and looked curiously at his dark-gray double-breasted suit, where the glob of spittle sat just below the left shoulder.

"Dat fo' what you doin' to me, white boy." The old black woman said, angrily. Despite the fact that David, at six-four and 31 years of age, was much younger, taller and stronger than her, the old woman seemed ready to attack him.

David sighed. "Look, Miss Ternack, I've already told you - This whole suit was ridiculous. You COULDN'T win it. I'm surprised you even found a lawyer willing to take it on."

Susannah Ternack glared at the sandy-haired business man and snorted contemptuously. "No, I know de truth, white boy. You don't like us nigger women. You think we's no good little ho's, dontcha. Dat's why I get kicked outta yo' building, right Mister White-Boy Landlord? And when I go to get some justice, yo' white boy friends back you up."

David shook his head. "Look, Miss Ternack, we've been over this - I evicted you because your apartment was a health hazard, and the other tenants were complaining. For heaven's sake, you had dead animals in there."

The old black woman's eyes narrowed. "Oh, so dat's it. Yo' 'fraid of the black lady's voodoo. Well, you should be, white boy. I'se gonna show you what a voodoo lady does to white boys like you."

David laughed. "Miss Ternack, I don't even BELIEVE in voodoo." Chuckling, he turned away from the furious old woman and headed for his car.

"You will, white boy" The old woman's piercing voice shrieked after him. "I'se gonna fuck you but good!"

* * * * *

David sighed as he climbed into the sanctity of his car. Truthfully, he didn't actually hate Miss Ternack - if anything, he pitied her. She was obviously not playing with a full deck. Old, and probably senile, she was absolutely paranoid, positive that all white people were out to get her.

But he'd told the truth when he said he'd had to evict her. Only a few days after she'd moved in, a terrible stench had invaded the apartment building. When the superintendent had called him, he'd come over and tried to speak with her about it. She'd refused to even open the door. Finally, it had taken a call to the police and health officials, who'd secured a warrant to enter the apartment.

The apartment had been almost unrecognizable. All the windows had been boarded up, the only light coming from the hundreds of black wax candles burning all over the apartment. The smoke detector had been ripped from the ceiling.

And then there was the carcasses.

Several were chickens, and there was even a goat - all of which had been killed, and their blood drained into bowls. Foul-smelling concoctions bubbled on the small Coleman stove she used, and various patterns had been carved into the hard-wood floors. After having her evicted, David had called in a contractor, who'd quoted him a high figure to renovate the place to a livable condition again.

That had been all the evidence he'd needed today when, to his surprise, he'd been called into court. The old woman had filed a lawsuit against him, claiming racial discrimination. It had only taken the testimony of one of the officers, describing what the apartment had looked - and smelled - like, to have the case thrown out of court.

Getting home, David pulled off his jacket and tie, dropping them in a heap near the door. Detouring through the kitchen, he grabbed a beer from the fridge, and dropped into the couch in front of his TV. Relaxing, he kicked off his shoes and leaned back, taking a long drag on his beer. Flipping around the stations, he found an interesting show on WW II warplanes.

Half an hour later, still on the couch, he gently fell asleep.

* * * * *

Even as he slowly made the transition from sleep to wakefulness, David knew something wasn't right. His mind, half asleep as it was, began cataloging information as it impinged on his stirring consciousness, and every single sense reported something amiss.

His body felt...wrong. Awkward and strangely unbalanced. Sensations, subtly different from what he should have felt, flooded his mind from every part of his body, from head to toe.

Sound. The sounds reaching his ears were all wrong. The flow of traffic outside was too heavy, the sound of a busy main street, not the dull, early morning suburban hum that should have been.

Smell. The odors floating around were all off. Not just the strange odors themselves - the slight smell of mildew, the stink of vehicle exhaust, the slight hint of meals cooked long ago - but the way he smelled them was different. Certain odors seemed too sharp, other's were less distinct than the should have been. Even his own body odor was missing, replaced with a different one.

Then he opened his eyes.

He was staring up at a ceiling that had once been white, but had faded to a off beige. He blinked twice, in surprise, but the unfamiliar image remained. He lifted his hand to rub his eyes, and suddenly stiffened.

It wasn't his hand.

Slender and dainty, the hand's long, slender fingers were tipped with long, red-coated nails that matched the feminine appendage perfectly. The decidedly womanly hand was joined to a slender, shapely wrist that led upwards to a smoothly muscled female arm.

The skin a rich, even shade of brown-black, like coffee without cream.

He raised his other hand and it, too, was the same lovely feminine extremity. He rubbed the hands across each other, feeling the smooth, satiny texture of them, and marveling at the lighter shade of skin on the palms.

"Well, I'll...be...damned." He said slowly, shocked, but somehow not surprised, to hear the voice saying the words was a rich, lovely contralto. Slowly, he sat up, his mind working overtime to keep track of the ripple of new sensations the common-place movement caused.

As the sheet fell from his body, a strange, not unpleasant tingle emanated from his chest. David looked down, and found a pair of small, pert breasts, the same rich, dark tone, bulging fetchingly from his feminine ribcage. The sensation was from the cold air on his dark, thick nipples, which were slowly swelling.

"This...this isn't happening." David muttered numbly, staring at the foreign body, "It CAN'T be."

David forced his mind from the strange body in which he found himself, concentrating on his surroundings first. It wasn't that he was uncurious, or unafraid, of his new form - far from it -, but he had to assure himself that, whatever he looked like now, he wasn't in any immediate danger from an external threat.

He was sitting in a rumpled, sagging bed in a small, dingy bedroom. The room was furnished in what David liked to refer as 'Early American Tacky', a decor he was well familiar with. Clothing of a decidedly feminine bent was strewn around haphazardly, and everything in the room carried the certain miasma of 'cheap.'

He was alone, which relieved him to no end.

With his mind still hovering somewhere between disbelief and amazement, David slowly swung his legs - long, shapely ones - over the side of the bed. Although the sensation was subtly different in many ways, the feeling of a full bladder was still unmistakable, and his movement only emphasized the need.

David stood up, finding the shift in viewpoint disconcerting. This body must be considerably shorter than his own, as everything looked off kilter, seen from a lower perspective than his mind expected. Turning towards the door, David began to walk forward.

And barely got his new arms out in time to break his fall.

"Damn." He muttered as he carefully climbed to his smaller feet. Balancing carefully, he concentrated on walking to the door.

He realized this could be a major problem. Since learning to walk, the mind had performed the simple, repetitive act of walking so much, that it had become an ingrained habit. Unfortunately, that ingrained habit was for his larger, male body, not for this female body with a considerably different center of balance. If he let his mind perform the simple act of walking without concentrating on each step, he'd end up doing another face plant.

By concentrating, he managed to move awkwardly to the door. Thankfully, the opening the bedroom door showed him a short hallway, across which was an open door revealing the washroom. Moving with the same exaggerated care, David carefully made it to the bathroom, closing the door behind him.

Looking at the toilet, David glanced down at his crotch. Nestled in the small, trimmed bush of pubic hair was the pink rimmed slit he'd expected to see between the shapely thighs. With a sigh, he turned around and lowered himself onto the toilet, then released the sphincter and felt the urine flow.

It felt decidedly odd. The stream - coming from a totally different location than he was used - came out in spurts rather than a steady stream, and wasn't exactly aimed. But it did the job of draining his bladder, and he carefully wiped himself with toilet paper - trying to ignore the sensations THAT created - and flushed the toilet. Carefully, he stood - and came face-to face with a full-length mirror hanging from the back of the door.

He... No. There was no way the figure reflected in the mirror would ever be seen as a 'he'. SHE was as feminine as a person could get, a definite specimen of womanhood, if one ever existed.

She was short and slender. Long, coffee-colored legs, shapely and smooth, supported a frame possessing trim hips below a remarkably slender waist. Like many black women, her derriere was full and firm, the bathroom's light reflecting from the smooth, sensuously rounded tear-drop shape. Her breasts were small, but well formed, with perky, definitively feminine nipples rising from dark, sharply defined areolas.

Her face was rounded, with flawless complexion. Her lips were remarkably full and soft, below a pert nose. Her eyes, dark brown and languid, were framed with long, dark lashes, and above them two finely shaped, arching eyebrows enhanced her glorious eyes. Her hair, mussed from sleep, was a long mane of curly black hair hanging almost to her shapely buttocks.

She was, quite simply, stunning.

Well, nearly so. A few small details marred the image. The faint lines around her eyes and full lips. The slightly roughened skin on the hands, and the calluses on the soles of the feet, all attested to a less than idyllic life. But these few small things vanished at a distance of more than a few inches.

"Un-dirty word - believable" David muttered, staring at her body. His long-held disbelief in voodoo did a quick 180 at the undeniable proof staring back at him in the mirror.

Despite the incredible transformation, the unbelievable situation she was in, probably the most amazing thing about it was how she was handling it. Most men, on awakening in a strange room in a female body, would be in a panic, gripped in shock and horror.

These same emotions swirled in David, but they were tightly controlled, unable to reduce him to the gibbering wreck that most men would have become. It was due, oddly enough, to the U.S. Army.

Or rather, Sergeant Major William 'Willie' King, the meanest, toughest, blackest drill sergeant this side of hell.

It was unusual for someone of David's financial status to join the Army Reserve. David had done it out of a rare, vanishing motive - true patriotic love of his country. And Sgt. Major King had been his DI during basic training. And one of the things he'd drilled into his cadets heads was how to face panic down. In combat, giving into fear got people killed.

So, in spite of the emotions lurking just below the surface, David's mind was working methodically and intelligently despite the circumstances.

Walking awkwardly back to the bedroom, she set about the first task she'd assigned herself. It took some digging, but she finally located a purse under a pile of dirty clothes, and quickly found the I.D.

The name of the body she now wore was Angel Kathau. Aged twenty-one, and residing in... "New Orleans?" She read aloud. "Damn, I'm halfway across the country!"

The contents of the purse immediately revealed the second problem facing 'Angel' - lack of money. There was a grand total of perhaps ten dollars, if you included the loose change.

David cursed softly. Right now, she had two major goals - locate her own body, presumably occupied by Angel, and find the old lady. The problem was, both were in New York City, and she had to find a way to get there.

She shoved that aside for the moment. The Army had taught her something else - solve the problems in order. So, the first thing she should do was get dressed. Getting from New Orleans to New York would be extremely difficult.

"But, I bet hitchhiking would be a snap" she murmured in a rare flash of humor.

It didn't take long for her to look through the meager wardrobe, and quickly discovered that the word 'demure' didn't seem to be in Angel's vocabulary.

Frowning, she set about picking the least provocative outfit from the clothes supplied.

In underwear, she had the choice of black lace French-cut briefs - or white lace French cut briefs. She went with the black. Thankfully, she didn't have to deal with learning how to put on a bra - Angel didn't own any.

Over the panties, she pulled on the only pair of pants in the wardrobe - a tight pair of black leather pants. They were so form fitting, she had to fight to pull them on, the leather resisting. When she finally did get them pulled into place and done up, the pants fit snugly to every curve, outlining her full, firm ass. Light glistened and shone along the curves of her shapely new legs.

The next piece of clothing was a tight, short-sleeve, leopard print spandex top that hugged tightly to her torso.

Which left only shoes, and that made her pause for a few seconds. Every single pair of footwear was high-heeled, the shortest heel being four inches. Unfortunately, the pair of shoes with a four inch heel was also tight, pinching her toes mercilessly. Since she was going to be travelling for some time, such discomforting footwear was out of the question.

With a small sigh, she pulled on a pair of black leather boots that rose to her shapely calves. Lacing up the sides of the tight-fitting footwear, she carefully rose upon the six inch spiked heels...and discovered something startling.

It was easier for her to walk in the heels, than it was to walk barefoot.

When she walked barefoot, her old, male habit of walking had tried to kick in, making it difficult to stay upright. But, as a female, she'd never walked in high heels, and had no habit for it. But the body she now wore had ample experience in the high spiked heels, and the body's reflexes meant that she walked easily, albeit with a provocative strut, in the high heels.

"Well, that's one less problem to worry about." She said, surprised, as she moves around the room, her womanly hips swaying seductively. It was decidedly odd to feel so comfortable in the high heels, to hear the sound of the spiked heels hitting the ground directly beneath herself. Then again, almost EVERYTHING in this situation was a new experience for her.

Picking up the black leather purse, David headed for the door, trying to ignore the way her body moved in an overtly feminine manner.

Before she reached the door of the apartment, a thought occurred to her, and she turned back. Re-entering the bedroom, she made a pile on the bed of every piece of jewelry she could find, then began to sort through it.

Most of it was cheap junk, but a few pieces had a little value. She might be able to sell those items for a bit of money.

There was a watch, which she slipped on her dainty new wrist. On the other arm went a pair of bangles that looked like they might fetch a few dollars. A thin, 14k gold necklace went around her swan-like neck. With awkward movements, a pair of decorative silver earrings was placed in her pierced lobes. Satisfied that those were the only pieces worth anything, she once more headed for the door.

Slinging her purse over her shoulder, David reached for the door - and stood, stunned, as the handle turned, admitting a tall, muscular black man, dressed garishly.

"Hey, Angel baby, where you headin'?" The man asked in a surprisingly deep baritone. "Dressed like dat, it ain't to be turning no tricks. Hell, yo' hairs a mess, ain't you ain't got no makeup on."

'Turning tricks?' Well, that explained a lot. A tight knot of anger wrapper around the fear and confusion she was keeping tight rein on. That old black bitch had stuck her in the body of a young, sexy black WHORE!

She pushed it from her mind. She had more immediate troubles to worry about. In her male body, she might have been able to simply force him out of the way - but this female body was smaller and weaker. She'd have to use her brain, not her brawn.

"Actually, I WAS about to go turn some tricks." She improvised. "I was just, uh, going to do my hair an makeup first."

The black man - her pimp, apparently - frowned. "Girl, why you talking like some white cunt? And if y'all going to work, why them clothes? What's going on?"

'Uh oh, think fast...' David's mind spun, and she improvised. "Actually, I thought I'd try something new. Work the high-class, uh, johns. So, I have to dress and talk differently, right? Be more classy, you know."

Slowly, a smile formed on the tall man's face. "Yeah. Dat's good idea, babe. You go do yo' makeup and shit, then get your ripe little ass outta here - I'm gonna crash for awhile."

"Uh,...sure thing." David even managed to fake a slight smile. "I'll just be a second."

Retreating to the bathroom, she shut the door and slumped against it for a second. Her improvised story seemed to have gotten her out of the bind - except for the fact that she'd have to do 'her' makeup - not exactly something she had a lot of practice at.

She delayed the inevitable by starting with her hair. With the use of a spray bottle of water and a brush, she began to make her sleep-tousled mane of long, curly black hair more presentable. Soon it fell in a gorgeous sweep down to the small of her back, its soft strands shifting across the nape of her neck.

With a sigh, she opened her purse and pulled out the makeup that was inside. Most of the stuff she had no idea how to use properly, so she did the best she could. With exaggerated care, she applied a coat of glossy burgundy lipstick to her full, soft lips, feeling extremely self-conscious as she did so. At least - according to the reflection in the mirror - the end result looked good, emphasizing her already sensual lips.

Next, she read the directions on the side and carefully applied mascara to her full, dark lashes, making them look even longer and fuller. David was surprised at just how much it emphasized her glorious, dark eyes.

As the final touch, she carefully applied a coat of dark-red polish to her long, curved nail. Thankfully, Angel used the new polish, which was a one coat applique, and dried in just one minute.

The whole experience was awkward. The smell, for instance. The smell of makeup and nail polish had always evoked memories of the coiled anticipation she'd felt waiting for various girlfriends to finish getting ready. Now, those same odors wafted around her, because they CAME from her.

Finished, she opened the bathroom door. Across the hallway, she could see 'her' pimp stretched out on the bed, snoring softly. Quietly, she tip-toed - in such high heels, every step was a tip-toe, really - to the front door, and quietly let herself out. Moving as fast as the six inch spikes allowed, she was down the stairs and outside the front door. She began to walk away from the building, picking a direction at random.

David Cudahy, New York landlord, was in a strange city, without money, in the body of a gorgeous black prostitute. For the first time, the true depths of the situation crashed down on her, and she began to tremble as the emotions she'd repressed welled up to the surface, threatening to overwhelm her. The anger, horror, disbelief - they seemed to crash down on her in waves.

Spotting a small, dingy coffee shop, she turned in. She needed to sit down for a couple of minutes and regain her composure. The older woman behind the counter smiled as David slid on to a stool.

"Hey, Angel. Looking good, honey. You finally take my advice, and tell that piece of shit pimp that you're taking a day off?" As she spoke, she poured a mug of coffee, and slid it in front of David.

"Uh, not exactly. It's a little complicated." David murmured as she sipped the hot, caffeine laced beverage. He usually took his with cream and sugar, but this cup was black. Surprisingly, she enjoyed it. It might be 'his' mind inside, but it was Angel's taste buds. She wondered idly what other surprises lay in store for her.

The older woman was frowning slightly. "Jeez girl, you don't even SOUND like you." She looked thoughtfully at David. "I like it though. You sound - like a real person. I know you're tired of me telling you to give up your lifestyle and get a good job. But, I knew your mother, God rest her soul, and it hurts to see you like this."

That threw a bit of a jolt into David. Somewhere along the line, he'd begun to see Angel as a two-dimensional figure, a stereotype instead of a real person. Slowly, she looked up. On the front of the older woman's blouse was pinned a name tag.

"Look, Louise, here's the truth. I'm getting out of here. That 'piece of shit' doesn't know it, but I've quit, as of this morning, and I'm running off to New York, where he'll never find me."

Louise looked shocked, then a huge grin spread across her face. "Angel, you've just made me happier than I been in years. Living in this shithole, watching my friends lives go down the shitter...I never thought anybody wold escape from this place."

The woman's eyes were glistening with tears of joy, and David resolved then and there that when she traded back bodies, he'd make sure that Angel kept the promise she was about to make.

"Louise, when I get to New York and get a job, I'll write you and let you know. I AM going to make it out of here."

Sniffling, the woman threw her arms around David and gave her a quick hug. She returned the gesture, finding herself having to hold back tears as well.

"Hold on a sec, honey." Louise said, pulling a purse out from under the counter. She removed fifty dollars, and held it out to David. "This should help."

"I can't..." David started, then saw the look on the other woman's face. Slowly, she accepted the money, tucking it into her purse. "Thank you."

She had to leave quickly, before she began to cry, and ruined her mascara. She barely made it.

* * * * *

Three and a half hours later, as darkness closed in around her, David walked across a parking lot, cursing the spike-heeled boots that clacked across the pavement.

She'd decided to walk out to a truck stop and try to hitch a ride with a long-haul trucker. What she hadn't counted on was the hour-long walk along the shoulder of the highway to reach the truck stop. Her high-heeled boots simply were not designed for walking on gravel, and her ankles and heels were killing her.

With a grateful sighed, she opened the door to the diner and stepped inside. The cool, air conditioned air was laden with the smell of greasy food and stale cigarettes, but at least she was able to sit down.

Besides, she was starving.

With little in the way of funds, she ordered the cheapest thing on the menu, and ate it quickly. It was meatloaf, and somewhat dry, but it was filling, quieting the hungry rumble in her stomach. Having taken the edge off her hunger, she paid the bill, rose to her tired feet, and stepped just outside the door.

Several minutes later a husky trucker, dressed in blue jeans and a T-shirt, stepped out of the door, picking his teeth with a toothpick. "Excuse me." David said quietly, stepping from where she was leaning against the wall.

The beefy Caucasian raised his eyebrow, and spat out the toothpick. "Yeah?"

"Perhaps you can help me. I need, very desperately, to get to New York. You wouldn't happen to be heading in that direction, and willing to give me a lift part of the way?"

The trucker slowly looked her up and down, his gaze lingering on her shapely, dusky body. David felt a flush in her face as she realized that he was 'checking her out'.

"Well," he drawled, still eyeing her figure. "It just so happens that I'm hauling a load up to New York myself. I 'spose it wouldn't hurt to give such a lovely young lady a lift."

David smiled. She'd struck gold on the first try. "Thanks. I really appreciate this. My name's Angel." She held out her hand.

The trucker shook it perfunctorily. "Name's Duncan, but you can call me Red." Well, considering his close-cropped head of carrot hair, that made sense. "My rig's this way."

David nodded and followed the trucker to his white Kenworth, attached to a silver tank trailer. Red opened the door and 'helped' her into the truck by putting a large hand square on her firm, full ass and boosting her up into the cab.

Red climbed up behind the wheel, and turned the big Detroit Diesel over with a roar. Minutes later, they were out on the interstate, slowly closing the miles towards the Big Apple.

Red looked over at her. "Now, the best way to work this is to keep the same schedule." He told her. "Otherwise, you'll be sitting here, awake, while I sleep, and probably get bored to death. We'll have to share the bunk."

As distasteful as the prospect of sleeping in the same bed was, David had to agree. The thought of sitting quietly in the truck's cab, with nothing to do, while Red slept, was pretty unattractive.

Red turned on the radio and lapsed into silence. For the next four hours, they rolled along, each keeping to themselves, until Red wheeled the big rig into a rest area to turn in for the night.

Sighing, David slipped off the high-heeled boots and left the purse in the passenger's seat. Wordlessly, she crawled into the back. The bunk was fairly small, and she was forced to lay snugly against Red, facing away from him. She was extremely aware of his body pressed firmly against hers, his crotch pressed tight to her voluptuously rounded ass. It was in that position that they slowly drifted off to sleep.

* * * * *

David came awake slowly the next morning.

Her min still sluggish, not fully awake, the first thing she became aware of was an odd warmth in her body. The second sensation was of a pleasant sensation emanating from her crotch.

As she became more aware, she realized, with a start, what was causing the sensations.

As they'd slept, her and Red's bodies had become intertwined. Now, as Red continued to sleep, his legs were wound around hers, and one arm was caressing her breasts. That was the source of the enjoyable warmth and pleasure, their bodies pressed tightly against each other.

The source of the other sensation was simple. Her own hand was gently massaging her leather-clad crotch. Half-asleep, her body was responding to one, simple fact.

She was unbelievably turned on.

Flushing deeply, she pulled her own long-nailed hand away from her crotch and gently disengaged herself from Red. Quietly, she slipped on her boots, gathered up her purse, and opened the door.

The chill morning air struck her as she moved towards the bathroom. Her engorged nipples tingled with the chill, and it felt so good...

Arriving at the bathroom, she almost walked into the Men's room out of sheer habit. Grimacing, she turned and went into the ladies room. The small room was the 'one person at a time' kind of bathroom, and she locked the door behind her. The musky smell of her hot, wet cunt filled the room.

Stripping naked, she quickly used the toilet, then walked awkwardly - sans heels - to the sink, and began to give herself a sponge bath with paper towels.

David tried to ignore her highly aroused body while she washed, but it was impossible. Her nerve endings screamed, begging for attention, and when her hands reached her firm, full C-cup tits, she...

'D-cup?!'

There was no doubt about it. Overnight, her breasts had swollen from small, perky cones to round, form spheres. Her nipples had also grown, and they were...

"Fuck it." David said quietly, and gave in to her body.

Having decided, she now let herself go. Eagerly, her hands rose to her mysteriously enlarged tits. With soft squeezes, she began to caress her own soft, smooth mounds, holding back moans as her dainty hands manipulated her engorged nipples.

It wasn't long before one slender hand moved downwards, past a flat abdomen, to her silky thighs - and what lay between them.

Slowly, rhythmically, she used the flat of her hand to rub across her hot wet cunt. Then, with a gasp, she slid her finger into her cunt and began to masturbate furiously.

Her knees almost buckled as indescribable pleasure flooded her body. Breathing in short, gasping pants, she single-mindedly worked at bringing herself to her first female orgasm. Bolts of pleasure wracked her body from her cunt, echoed by the ones from her firm new tits. Still, she frantically worked her finger, everything else in the world fading out as she became nothing more than her sexual need to reach fulfillment.

She succeeded.

Screaming out once, sharply, she spasmed and collapsed to the floor as her orgasm took her.

Finally, her heartbeat began to slow. Gasping, she stood, shocked and amazed at her actions. And the fact that she'd enjoyed it more than anything she'd ever done.

Slowly, her mind spinning, she finished washing up. She dressed, pulling the spandex shirt down over her swollen, round tits, which it clung to enticingly. With a slightly unsteady step, David made her way back to the truck, sexy ass swaying. Her new tits bounced and swayed provocatively with every step.

Still shocked but what she'd done - and how much she'd enjoyed it - David climbed into the cab of the truck, finding it empty. Red must be up and using the facilities himself, she reasoned. Sure enough, ten minute later, the taciturn trucked reappeared, and once more they were rolling down the interstate.

The rest of the trip took two day, during which the trucker said maybe two dozen words the entire time. Oddly enough, his actual behavior was at odds with his sullen nature - he insisted on buying her meals, and even went so far as to open doors for her everywhere they stopped. Almost against her will, she found such attention flattering.

Finally, they dropped of his load at a depot just outside the outskirts of the sprawling metropolis. After the silver trailer had been disconnected, Red drove towards the center of the city, pulling the rig into a barking lot beside the city bus depot.

David sighed, glad to be back in the city. Now, the opportunity to regain her life beckoned, once she could locate the old black woman who had done this to her, and force her to set things right. She moved to open the door.

"Hold on a second, Angel", red said, gently laying a hand on her arm. Curious, she closed the door and turned to face him.

He seemed - uncomfortable. Awkwardly, he cleared his throat and spoke again/ "It's, uh, obvious you don't remember me. I, uh, was a client of yours on a run a couple of weeks back."

David stiffened slightly. It was obvious now why he'd been willing to help a complete stranger - she wasn't a complete stranger to him. Or rather, Angel wasn't.

"I figure you must be running away from New Orleans for a reason." He said, stumbling over his own words. "It ain't none of my business. I was just wondering if we might...before you go, we could..." He trailed off, flushing.

David was stunned. She knew what he was asking, but that wasn't what stunned her. She was actually considering it.

It was a combination of many things. The first was, quite simply, she did owe Red for all his help. Also, it was the way he was asking. It was...kind of sweet. He wasn't taking it for granted despite the fact that he knew - or thought he knew- she was a hooker. He was asking, not demanding.

And partly, it was her own curiosity. The memory of her own frantic orgasm in the restroom, plus the fact that this was an opportunity that to most never came. A chance to experience sex from the other point of view, to truly find out what a woman experienced...

Slowly, she nodded her head, hardly believing what she was about to do. Before she could change her mind, she pulled her spandex T- shirt off, leaving her dusky breast free.

Red gaped. "Uh, you got, Uh, implants, huh?" he asked, staring at her fuller, round breasts.

David was afraid that if she spoke, she'd back out of her decision. Wordlessly, she moved back to the bunk and removed the rest of her clothing. Taking the hint, Red quickly stripped and followed.

Trembling slightly with mixed emotions, David leaned forward and lightly kissed Red. Her full, soft lips pressed firmly against his, and the kiss quickly became much more passionate. Soon, Red's hands were on her full tits, caressing and fondling them.

Caught up in her own rapidly developing lust,. David lay on the bunk, and spread her legs. Red eagerly rose above her, hesitated a brief second - then penetrated her womanhood.

She gasped as his hard cock entered her wet, ready cunt. Her gasps soon changed to moans as he began to fuck her with smooth, even strokes, his cock in her cunt causing a delicious feeling of being filled, one she'd never experienced before. Almost instinctively, she began to move her womanly hips, maximizing the sensations that roared through her body as he drove into her.

It was all over fairly quickly. With little warning, the orgasm swept through David, and she threw her head back and screamed. Her vaginal muscled clenched around Red's cock, pushing him over the edge as well. He shot his load of cum deep into her waiting pussy and, spent, rolled off of her.

She barely noticed. Instead, she rode the afterglow of the orgasm down, her eyes wide in disbelief. She new dreamed anything could feel so good as what she'd just experienced. It had been - indescribable.

Two hours later he dropped her off at the house that, as David, she lived in. As the rig bulled away, diesel engine growling, she gave one final wave and slowly made her way up the walk.

Hesitantly, she rang the doorbell, holding her breath. After what seemed an eternity, but was only a few minutes, the door slowly swung open.

Although she'd expected it, it was a terrible shock to see her own male body looking back at her. The same shock was mirrored in the eyes of that body, as Angel, trapped inside of it, gazed at what had been her own body.

David broke the paralysis of surprise first. Gently, she pushed her male body back into the house and stepped inside, swinging the door shut behind her.

"Look, it's going to be all right" she said quickly. "I know who did this to us, and we just have to find her and..." "She's dead."

David stopped cold, more at the flat, dead tone the words came out in than the words themselves. Then the meaning registered, and she paled.

"What...what did you say?" she gasped.

"Dat ole' black bitch is dead. Came over and tol' me what happened. Den she cackled, and told me it ain't ever gonna be changed - she was dyin' anyway. Den yesterday, de hopital call me - call you, I guess. She died. Some sickness I cain't p'nounce. But she dead."

The sound of Angel's mangled English coming out in his voice was disconcerting, and for several seconds, David held to the hope that she just must have understood...

Slowly, David sank to the couch as the truth settled in. The old woman was dead, and they were both trapped in these bodies for the rest of their lives.

Then, her face tightened as a determined look came back into her eyes.

"Listen up Angel." She said, and the tone of command caused Angel to snap out of his daze. "I refuse to let that bitch get the last laugh, dead or alive. If I'm going to be you for the rest of my life - by God, I can handle that."

"But..." Angel stammered. "You're a woman now. How...?"

A thin, sharp smile curled David's full lips. "No. I'm a man in the BODY of a woman. And if a woman can handle being female, than I damned well can..."

* * * * *

Louise dabbed her eyes with a Kleenex and snorted. "Angel honey, that was a beautiful ceremony."

David - or, Angel, as she now forced herself to accept, smiled sweetly at the older woman. "Thanks Louise. I told you I was going to make something of myself, didn't I?"

That night, when she'd learned her fate, only three months ago, now seemed like a lifetime away. Since then, she'd thrown herself into her new life with a breathless determination.

The first part had been to convince Angel - who she insisted on calling David - that life was still worth living. It had been tough going - until she'd sucked his cock and given him an idea of what life could still hold for him.

Since then, she'd taught him how to BE David - in-between frequent, energetic bouts of fucking, which they participated in eagerly. Soon, to those people around them, 'David' once more seemed to become his normal self, and they all contributed it to the new woman in his life.

It didn't take long before the two of them had come to the agreement to get married. It seemed perfectly natural, and the new Angel, finally accepting her full status as a woman, had dedicated herself to her new husband with the same devotion. And now, with the marriage ceremony finally performed, she was content to spend the rest of her life as Angel Cudahy, devoted wife - and someday, mother.

* * * * *

Across the table, 'David' watched his new wife chat with Louise, a secret smile on his strong, masculine face. "I told you I'd fuck you but good, white boy" he murmured to himself, and laughed quietly.

BACK TO FUN ZONE

© 1997 - 2016 TGstories.

Stories on the "Public Access" pages may be Copyright by individual authors.

Home | Membership | Terms & Conditions | Privacy Policy | Contact

SUMMARY: After bumping a crazy old woman who put a 'curse' on him, his friend plays along with the story only to find out that it is true and his friend is now changing.

What You See

---

By Gunslinger

Running a towel through his short, medium-brown hair, Josh Robbinette padded towards the apartment door, the hem of the short, pewter-colored silk lounging gown flapping around his thighs.

"Oh, hey Tim." Josh said as he opened the door to reveal the smiling face of the freckled, rusty-haired fire-plug of a young man standing in the hallway. "C'mon in."

"Thanks, man." Tim O'Leary said, walking - strutting - into the apartment, his broad, barrel-chested body moving with that inherent confidence that his taller, slimmer friend could only envy.

"What's up, buddy?" Josh asked, wrapping the robe over his t-shirt and boxer short and loosely tying the sash.

"Oh, same old, same old." Tim allowed, strolling over to the easy chair and dropping his heavily-muscled body into it with a deep sigh of satisfaction. "How's it with you?"

"Oh, well..." Josh said, chuckling, as he pushed the door closed. "Well, I got cursed today." "Oh, really?" Tim asked, heavy red eyebrow rising.

"Yeah." Josh said, heading over to the couch. "I was just, you know, clowning around on the street corner, and I bumped into this really weird old black woman. She started shouting at me, really freaking out. She had a really thick accent, so I didn't catch it all, but I got the part about that whole old saw about 'if you keep making that face, it'll get stuck like that' - and then she laid some sort of curse on me."

"Well, I've always said that your gags and jokes would get you into trouble some day." Tim said, shaking his head in amusement. "I just never thought it'd get you cursed, is all..."

"Oh, come on..." Josh said, smirking. "You know you get a kick out of it."

"Well, um..." Tim said, hesitantly.

The truth was, Josh was hopeless. Perhaps it was because he was so... bland. Though a couple of inches taller than the short, squat redhead, Josh was still a couple of inches shorter than average, and with a somewhat slimmer build. In a crowd, he just seemed to vanish...

...or would have, if he wasn't always 'on'. Josh was forever pulling pranks, jokes and gags to keep himself as the center of attention. Truth be told, it sometimes drove Tim to distraction - but he also knew that Tim couldn't help himself, and so he'd long ago given up counseling any sort of moderation.

"Oh, you don't...?" Josh asked, eyebrows raising. "Well, why don't we just see, hmm...?"

"Oh, Josh, don't..." Tim said with a sigh, as Josh headed over to the huge old trunk in the corner of his living room - the trunk where he stored his wide and eclectic collection of 'props', for any gag or routine that might strike his fashion.

"We'll just see..." Josh repeated, tying a knot into the bottom of his once-white 'wife beater' undershirt as he rummaged around in the trunk.

Closing his eyes and lowering his face to his hand, Tim moaned softly.

"Okay, Tim - tell me that you don't find my 'clowning around' funny..." Josh said, straightening up and turning around...
...and Tim bit down on his lower lip.

A ratty old blonde wig now sat atop Josh's head - and the face framed by the tangled mane of false hair boasted a pair of incredibly long, thick stick-on lashes and a cheap, gloss-red lipstick artificially creating 'bee-stung' lips.

The overly made-up face and massive, thick mane weren't the only over-exaggerated female features that Josh was sporting - because the gown was straining to remain tied close over the tied-off top now containing a huge pair of water-balloons doing duty as ersatz 'boobs'.

"Hey, big boy..." Josh hammed outrageously in a high falsetto, one hand on wiggling hips, the other primping the tangled mass of the wig. As Tim watched, chuckling against his will, Josh turned the hip-wiggle into an ever more overly-theatrical shimmy, causing the huge water balloons stuffed in the front of the robe to slosh and bounce within the make-shift 'bra'. "I'm Lulubelle Luverly, your cheap and horny little love-doll. You looking for a good time?"

Then, as Josh batted his long, black fake eyelashes and made 'kissy-kissy' motions with his heavily-clad red lips, Tim lost it, and broke out into honest laughter.

"See, I told you..." Josh started to say, triumphantly - and then he let out a startled shriek and flailed backwards, ending up on the couch, arched backwards over his own leg, folded under him on the sofa.

"Josh?" Tim said, shooting up out of the chair. "What happened, man...?" "I just felt really weird all the sudden, and of balance, and... and... and..." Josh's voice died off as he straightened up...

...because it wasn't his voice.

It was a high-yet-husky, whiskey-and-smoke roughened female voice.

Exactly the type of voice you might expect to come from the throat of the sleazy, huge-breasted, cheap-looking woman Tim was staring at, a stunned expression on her blowsy, too-heavily-made-up face as she stared back at him, over-plump lips gaping open in shock.

"Josh, dude..." Tim gasped in a choked voice. "You're a chick!"

"No..." The cheap/sexy, extremely slutty-looking woman standing right where a costumed young man had been said, shaking her head. "No, this... this can't be happening...!"

Her voice was rising in pitch - in horror, as her slim new hands, now tipped with long, glossy nails the same shade as the over-bright red lipstick covering her over-exaggerated lips, reached up and began futilely tugging at the wild, tangled mane of what was now undeniably real hair, her eyes glistening with incipient hysteria as she began to make little sobbing sounds.

Tim started towards his newly-feminine friend - then stopped dead, eyes inexorably drawn towards what was revealed as her frantic motions loosened the sash holding the robe closed, letting it fall open.

Gone was the tied-off wife-beater undershirt. It had been replaced by a massive white-lace brassiere that had to be custom-made to contain the massive breasts the half-cup bra only barely contained. The huge, thick nipples were actually visible above the edge lacing the cups that held her huge breasts, each basketball-sized mammary quite firm, but without the artificial roundness of implants.

Lurking in the shadow of the massive, firm-yet-sagging, massive-nippled heavy breasts was a slender waist - slender in the taut- muscled, rib-showing manner of a woman who was trying to compensate for nature's failings by over-exercising and under-eating to get such a slim waist.

The slim waist looked even slimmer above the wide flare of the child-bearing hips - hips enclosed in a lacy wisp of panties matching the bra she wore, covering the big ass that only plenty of exercise had tautened and shaped into being just slightly less than 'too much of a good thing'.

Likewise, it was only the toned, shaped muscles of legs that looked like thousands of hours had been spent to make them look that way pushed them past the 'all right' they would have otherwise been - and effect heightened by the high, slender seven-inch heels of the somewhat cheep-looking black pumps encasing her feet...

"You weren't wearing shoes..." Tim said in a stunned, vague tone of voice...

...and then he snapped out of his half-stunned, half-(guiltily)lustful daze as he realized that the new woman was reaching for her face with the long, sharp nails of her slim new hands, obviously about to tear gouges in her over-rouged cheeks in an ill-advised attempt to tear away her new femininity.

"Josh, don't!" Tim cried, leaping forward to grab her slim new wrists before she could start gouging her face...

He succeeded in grabbing her wrists - but haste and concern added a bit more 'oomph' than was necessary, and they tumbled back onto the couch, Tim on top of the new woman's over-endowed new form, her huge, firm-soft tits pressing into his sweatshirt-covered chest.

Stunned, the new woman stiffened under the warm, wiggling weight pressed so firmly against her overly-lush new body...

...the weight that made her even more overly-aware of the body it was pressing against, from the full, taut ass pressed hard into the seat-cushions beneath the warm weight of Tim's crotch, to the feel of her huge, weighty new breasts being firmly compressed by Tim's chest, her thick, highly sensitive new nipples pressing into the soft fabric of his sweatshirt.

All the sensations that told her that she was a woman...

...a woman suddenly overwhelmed with the thought that the weight was that of a man - a man who she could do all sorts of things to, for, and with.

Wonderful things.

Pleasurable things.

Womanly things...

Thinks that only a cheap little slut like her could give her man.

She moaned at the sudden rush of pleasure and anticipation that ran through her body at the incredibly intense sexual thoughts and images flooding her mind...

...and a split-second later, her thinking mind caught up with what her 'reactive' mind had been doing with the hot/wet sensation that had suddenly thundered through her, and she shrieked and shoved hard against the man she had just horrifyingly realized she was suddenly, incredibly horny for.

Suddenly, the physical transformation, so horrifying and disgusting a moment before, became small potatoes compared to what she was finding herself wanting to do with that new body.

"Oh, God - no!" She gasped, body shivering in unwanted desire as she shimmied out from under Tim, babbling rapidly as she tried to deal with the lustful needs thundering through mind and body. "God, no, I don't want to be horny for your hot, hard body. I don't want to wrap my full, soft, cock-sucking lips around your big, hard cock, or feel it filling my hot, wet cunt..."

"Wha... What?" Tim gasped, stiffening...

...some parts of him more rapidly than others.

Wrapped up in the unwanted images flooding her mind and the unwanted hormones flooding her body, the new woman didn't notice the sudden gleam in her friend's eyes, nor the steadily growing bulge in his pants.

"I... I'm having these thoughts..." She gabbled. "Sexual thoughts, about you - about all the ways I can please you. Please you like only your cheap little love-slut Lulubelle can..."

She stopped dead, eyes flying wide open in renewed horror as she suddenly realized what name had popped out of her mouth, almost 'naturally', instead of her real name of...

...of...

"Oh, shit, Tim!" She gasped in her husky new voice. "I... I can't remember my real name! Whenever I try to think of it, it's like a voice shouting out 'Lulubelle' too loud for me to hear my own thoughts!"

Tim licked his lips nervously.

On one hand, this was a friend of his, one going through a horrible experience, and one that had been male only a few scant minutes ago, to boot.

On the other hand, she was most certainly female now, and from the sounds of it, barely able to restrain herself from doing just about anything - or everything - to pleasure him...

Tim had never been what you'd call a really 'deep' person.

"You're having... sexual thoughts about me?" Tim asked, hoarsely, sitting down on the couch next to the huge-breasted, slutty- looking woman his best friend had become. "Thoughts you can't help having?"

"Yes.." Lulubelle whimpered, missing the tone in her friend's voice. Tim hesitated, clearing his throat...

...then swung into action.

"So... thoughts like, maybe, having me touch you...?" Tim asked - while reaching out and laying one trembling hand on her silk- enclosed shoulder.

She shivered, his words and touch meeting the requirements of some of the tamer thoughts running through her head at that very second.

"Tim... Don't..." She gasped - and then her face worked in shock as she planned to move her shoulder out from under his hand, only to discover herself unable to do so.

She was locked in stasis, the unwanted needs exactly balancing her own, 'real' desires - and leaving her without enough willpower to go either way.

"Or maybe you were thinking you'd like me to touch you in a more... intimate way?" Tim 'suggested', when no resistance was met.

Ever so slowly, he traced a hand down her shoulder, slipping it between the folds of her loose-hanging robe, until his warm hand was sliding over warm, smooth skin - to come to rest cupping one massive, bra-encased breast, his spread fingers not even coming close to encompassing the whole of the fleshy globe.

She shivered - and was eternally ashamed to hear an unwanted moan of real physical pleasure pulled from her throat at his touch.

"Tim - stop this..." She gasped in a hoarse voice that revealed her unwanted lust - as she remained completely unable to provide any physical resistance, simply sitting there in a stew of lust and disgust as he lightly squeezed her huge new breast. "Please, just stop this."

"What?" Tim asked with badly-acted surprise. "You mean, stop fulfilling your desires... like this?"

With a quick, smooth movement, his hand slipped to the clasp on the massive, front-closing support garment, and popped it open, to let her breasts sag slightly, heaving heavily and naturally from her ribcage.

She gasped and moaned - then bit down on her over-full lower lip, hating the way her body was responding to something that was utterly disgusting to the remnants of her male self buried beneath the avalanche of sexual thoughts flooding her mind.

"Why... are you... doing this... to me?" She gasped out, fighting the rising surge of sexual desire as she struggled, still in vain, to make some sort of move to stop him as his hands pushed the robe open and came up to grasp her massive breasts, kneading the softly firm flesh in a strong, eager motion.

"Why, Lulubelle!" Tim said, feigning shock as he luxuriated in the feel of her huge, fully lust-engorged nipples against the palms of his sweaty hands. "What a question for a man to hear from his cheap and horny little love-doll."

Not exactly gently, he began to ease her back on the couch, his hands sliding all the way down her body to grip her slim new feminine ankles as he all-but-hauled her full-length onto the couch.

"I'm just giving you what you want." Tim said, grinning. "This is what you want - isn't it?"

His warm hands on her flesh, desire thundering through her as he made his intentions oh-so-obvious, she found an answer popping from her mouth, unplanned and unwanted: "Oh, yes...!"

A second later, long-lashed eyes widening in horror, she contradicted herself in a horrified voice: "No!"

Even as she said it, her 'good friend' was busy lifting her hips, sliding eager fingers into the waistband of her panties, then sliding them down her long, dancer-muscle legs in a fast, lace-tearing sound.

"Please, I don't want to.. to be treated like a woman..." She gasped - even as her body and imagination belied her denial - as Tim grasped her ankles again and spread her legs, pushing one up onto the back of the couch, and the other down to the floor, leaving her traitorous new cunt, moist and eager, exposed to his lascivious gaze.

"Oh, you don't...?" Tim asked, fumbling with his own clothes. "It didn't sound that way to me, my luscious little Lulubelle."

"I... You..." She gasped, shaking her head and trying to clear the unwanted sexual desires thundering through her mind and body, still locked into inaction despite her horror at what she knew the now nearly-naked Tim was about to do. "Please, don't do this..."

"What?" Tim asked, climbing up onto the couch. "You mean, this...?"

Then he slammed his erect cock deep and hard into the warm, moist embrace of her new womanhood, wringing an unwanted cry of pleasure from her throat as his warm manhood gilled her completely, the muscles and nerves lining the inside of her new cunt twitching in pleasure at the new and damnably enjoyable - not to mention definably feminine - sensation.

"Oh, God, yeah..." Tim moaned, pumping his hips, any residual self-disgust at what he was doing fading away in the bliss of the 'easiest' lay he'd ever had. "You're so tight, baby."

With horror, Lulubelle found her hips beginning to move, almost as if on their own volition, to increase the amount of pleasure being generated.

Not her pleasure - his.

Just the way his cheap, horny little slut should.

Despite the fact that her new body and mind were geared towards pleasing him, rather than herself, that didn't mean she wasn't physically enjoying the sensations that came from her first female sexual experience - and the fact that she couldn't help but enjoy the pleasure firing through her nervous system made the whole thing all the more humiliating, because she wasn't only doing this because she had too because of the changes to her body and mind, but because some traitorous part of her wanted to continue feeling this sexual pleasure.

The sort of pleasure that was wringing the hated moans and gasps of an aroused, pleased woman.

Yeah, baby..." Tim gasped, pumping away. "You like it like this, don't you?"

"Yeah, baby..." She heard her smoky new voice say, hating it but unable to stop it. "I like getting fucked fast and hard, stud."

Overwhelmed by sensation, by the question of how (and why) Tim could do this to her - or rather, to 'him', since that's how she still thought of herself, all physical evidence to the contrary.

From Tim's point of view, however, there was no doubt that the person beneath him was female. In fact, he'd more or less stopped thinking of her as his friend, Josh, and more as the huge-breasted slut she looked and, mostly, acted like. For Tim, shallow as he was, he dealt with whatever he came up against just as it was, not bothering to think too much about it. There were tits and a cunt, so the woman beneath him was, indeed, female, despite what he knew of her history.

Female - and an easy lay, at that.

Moaning and gasping, her huge tits bouncing and shimmying as her traitorous body eagerly matched the pace and rhythm of Tim's hard, eager thrusts, Lulubelle thrashed her way towards her first female orgasm...

...but Tim beat her to it.

Face scrunching up into an expression that would have drawn laughs at any other time than this, Tim shimmied and shook as he pumped his load deep into her new cunt - then, with a sigh of relieved pleasure, pulled out of her and climbed off of her...

...leaving her to discover an even more horrifying humiliation:

"Don't stop!" She found herself begging, her hands flying to her crotch and frantically working to continue the stimulation. "Keep fucking me, stud - make me cum...!"

She hated to do it, but she was just so close...

"Sorry, babe." Tim said, unapologetically, as he tugged on his underwear. "I'm done."

Biting her lip, hating herself for not being able to stop, Lulubelle worked her hand until she finally reached her first, disappointing, female orgasm...

...and then, as her immediate physical craving faded, the whole situation came crashing down on her.

"Oh, my God..." She sobbed, swinging her taut new legs over and sitting up on the couch, wrapping the robe tightly around her over-endowed body, feeling violated in a way that she'd never known a person could ever experience. "How... How could you do this to me? To me?"

"C'mon, babe." Tim said, dropping into the easy chair across from her. "Don't pull that on me. We both know you wanted it."

"No, I didn't!" She shrieked at him, thrusting herself up from the couch, barely noticing her robe falling open to expose her naked, sweat-slicked body as she shook a finger in his direction. "I didn't want... this!"

She gestured angrily at her new body, her huge tits shaking from that gesture...

...and he chuckled at her.

"Oh, yeah, right." He said, shaking his head. "You chose to do that whole little sex-pot act - and now you are one, so why are you surprised I'm treating you like one."

"What?" She shrieked at him, her face going red in anger as he caught her eyeing her naked body appreciatively.

"Just look at yourself." Tim said, waving a hand in her direction, now completely at ease with his decision. "Huge tits, high heels, lots of make-up - you're a cheep slut, and you were even telling me how much you wanted to have sex with me."

"But... But I couldn't help myself!" She protested.

"So?" Tim said, shrugging. "That's part of the definition of a slut, isn't it? A woman who just can't help herself?" "Yes, but... I mean, no, it isn't..." She tried to explain, tripping over her own, rather shallow views.

"See what I mean?" Tim said. "You can't even argue the point." "But... It isn't fair!" She whined.

"Tough shit." He replied with a shrug, rising and stretching. "I'm going to the bathroom. Maybe when I get back, we'll discuss your first blow job..."

Chuckling to himself, Tim headed down the hall.

Sobbing, the new woman threw herself across the room, collapsing on the floor near her trunk, resting her head on the cradled arms resting on the edge of the open trunk.

"Why? She sobbed. "Why did that bitch do this to me? For bumping into her?" She sobbed again, huge tits swaying with the hitching breath.

"Why didn't I choose another outfit?" She asked herself, lifting her head and looking down in the box. "Even another female outfit - and other female outfit - would have been better than this..."

The heavy mascara of her long lashes running down her face, she reached down and plucked a garment out of the pile, holding it up for her inspection.

"Even this would have been better..." She sobbed, fingering the 'leather' of the corset with its 'mere' built-in DD-cups.

"I should have chosen this one..." She said to herself in a thick, sobbing voice, wrapping the garment around her body, barely able to get it in place as it was held open by her huge tits pressing against the undersized leather cups built in to the fetishistic garment.

"This would have been better..." She told herself, holding the garment in place and idly buckling the lowest stainless-steel buckle, the only one capable of closing...

...and then, with a sucking sound, the garment began buckling itself up, her body changing as the garment fitted her body to itself.

Eyes wide in shock, her mind flooding with new thoughts as her hands came up to cup the firm, domed breasts filling out the leather cups of the now perfectly-fitting garment...

...and then she began to smile.

* * * * *

Shaking his hands in the sink, Tim shut off the water and reached for the towel...

...and in the quiet that followed the rushing water, he heard the click-clack of high heels on the linoleum floor of the hallway. "Well, well..." Tim chuckled, reaching for the door-knob. "Just couldn't wait for that blow..."

Tim's voice and smile died as he gaped at the woman standing just outside the door. The tall woman.

The very tall woman.

The very tall, muscular woman, riding the fine edge of sexy and muscular.

The tall, muscular, sexy woman - dressed in a pair of black leather thigh-high boots with stainless-steel six inch stiletto heels. Dressed in a steel-trimmed corset-style garment.

Dressed in opera-length leather gloves with steel studs around the wrists that matched the studs around the leather collar she wore below a hard-edged but sexy face encased in a leather dominatrix mask.

A black leather mask that left a long tail of raven's hair hanging down her back, braided tightly...

...much like the braiding in the black leather bull-whip she held in one hand.

"Hey there, big boy..." She said in a husky, sarcastic voice. "I believe there's a little matter of an orgasm you failed to give me."

"Lulubelle...?" Tim said, his voice suddenly very high-pitched. "I.. I don't..." She snapped the whip, the sudden crack seeming to bite the air.

"Shouldn't you be kneeling and begging to lick my cunt right about now, you pathetic worm?" She asked, 'politely'. "You... You can't be..." Tim stammered... although he did it as he slowly, numbly sank to his knees.

"Oh, but if I look like a dominating bitch-slut, then I must be one... right?" She asked, luxuriating in the feeling of power running through her. "Now, on your knees, and beg your mistress for the right to pleasure her, slave, or I'll give you the flogging of you life."

He gaped up at her from his position on his knees, still shaking his head in disbelief.

"But... how..?" He asked, weakly, as her free hand reached down, grabbed his head, and began drawing it towards her bared crotch. "Why - what you see is what you get, worm." She informed him, cryptically...

...then smiled in more than just physical pleasure as she considered the possibilities in the double-edged sword of the 'curse' that condemned her to remain female, because it was the first form she'd chosen - but let her alter her body and mind in just about any conceivable way within that context.

One thing was for damned sure, she thought to herself as she verbally whipped Tim into a more enthusiastic effort: She'd have no problem being the center of attention from now on...

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

© 1997 - 2016 TGstories.

Stories on the "Public Access" pages may be Copyright by individual authors.

Home | Membership | Terms & Conditions | Privacy Policy | Contact

SUMMARY: One man goes to the doctor for help in explaining strange "changes."

What's Up, Doc?

By Gunslinger

The door to the office slammed open.

The edge of the wooden door slammed into the black-vinyl-topped stool sitting near it, sending the over-flowing cardboard box atop it tumbling to the ground. The muffled sound of shattering glass came from within the box, mingled with the susurrations of sliding paper and the rattle of loose metallic objects. A pen, a name-plate, and several paper clips slid out of the box and across the clean black-and-white 'marble' linoleum floor.

The room's original occupant was in the process of removing a variety of bottles and containers from the stainless-steel cabinet in the corner, and the sound of the door being slammed open caused him to whirl around, his white coat swirling around his fit frame as an expression of confused surprise covered his blandly handsome face. His shaggy eyebrows rose so high above his dark eyes that they seemed to all-but-vanish into his wheat-colored hair, then slowly slid back down into their normal position as he pulled himself back under control.

"Is there something I can help you with, miss?" He asked, his words polite, but his tone carrying a mixture of annoyance and resignation.

"Doctor Bidwell, you have to help me!" The woman in the doorway said, her voice high-pitched and raw-edged.

Steven Bidwell blinked, opened his mouth. Then, rather than explain that 'Doctor' was no longer applicable because his license had been pulled for 'Unethical Behavior', asked mildly: "What seemed to be the problem?"

The woman gaped at him - then gestured at herself with sharp, awkward movements. "Just look at me!"

Since she'd suggested it - downright demanded it, as a matter of fact - Steve complied, letting his eyes trace over the figure of the woman who stood in his doorway.

'Female, Caucasian, roughly thirty years of age, five-six or -seven, about ten pounds on the heavy side...' he thought to himself, somewhat less than clinically. 'She carries the weight well, though...'

She did, too. Despite the fact that her waist was somewhat thicker than he would have liked, she was still quite the looker, most of the extra weight riding on a frame that was just broad enough to carry it without looking less feminine for it. She certainly wasn't 'Movie Star' gorgeous, but she was certainly attractive enough in her 'Midwestern Housewife' sort of way, with skin that was not only unblemished, but smooth and apparently bare of body-hair. Her face was broad and open beneath her mussed, unstyled mane of mud-brown hair, and her lips were full and firm, the best feature on her face even without any lipstick.

Aside from being a bit thick in the waist, she was a good-looking woman - but she had atrocious taste in clothing. She was dressed in a pair of battered and apparently somewhat over-sized sneakers and a frayed denim work-shirt that was so big and baggy that it almost completely covered the tight jean shorts she wore.

She wore no jewelry or make-up, and wasn't carrying a purse.

In other words, 'Trailer Trash Casual', a look he'd seen plenty of times since he'd moved to Iowa the year before, hoping to make a go of his own practice. In many ways, this woman could have been described as the 'Statistically Averaged' version of most of the woman he'd seen in his office over the past year, dirt-poor and desperate. The type of woman for whom buying brand-new clothes from K-Mart was 'treating herself', and who hoped the doctor would discover that whatever pain, twinge or feeling she was experiencing at the moment was 'nothing much', since she couldn't really afford any serious medical expenses. The type of woman who usually had a long list of ex-boyfriends who were all 'Mister Wrong'. The type of woman with the type of life he'd seen in a hundred different variations over the past year.

Perhaps that was the reason she looked oddly familiar to him, even though he was pretty sure he'd never seen her before, in or out of his office.

"I'm sorry - I don't see anything wrong..." Steve said, frowning slightly.

"I'm a fuckin' chick, doc!" The woman screamed at him, taking a couple of angry, upset steps into the office. Behind her, the door slowly swung shut.

"I... see..." Steve said, slowly, eyeing her. "This is a problem...?"

"Doc, it's me..." The woman said, anxiously, instinctively jabbing a thumb at her chest - then wincing as it dug into the firm flesh of one of the full breasts that lurked behind the faded denim. "Tom. Tom Kreyborg."

"Oh..." Steve said, nodding. "Of course, Tom. I'm sorry - my mind was somewhere else. Now I recognize you - and you have to admit, the fact that you were a man when you came in yesterday is apt to throw me. I take it that you didn't plan to become a woman?"

The woman blinked, then took a deep breath, apparently slightly calmed by Steve's politely professional manner, the one he used when 'consulting' with a potential patient.

"Of course not..." She said, her voice still edged with raw emotions, but no longer extraordinary high and ragged. "I.. I think it was those pills you gave me..."

"Really...?" Steve asked in a politely startled voice. "Hyposodimium-B usually doesn't have that effect. Well, why don't you sit down on the table, here, and we'll see what's going on..."

The woman gave him a long, doubtful look - then, finally, almost grudgingly, padded over to the black-vinyl-topped examination table near the north wall of the room.

Steve kept his pleasant, 'professional' face in place...

...while wondering what the hell he should do.

Tom Kreyborg was, indeed, a patient of Steve's - but Tom was a sixty-three-year-old nut-case who believed himself to be 'under observation' by some shadowy group or another. 'Old Crazy Tom' was what just about everybody in town called him, and Steve only put up with the paranoid hypochondriac's visits because Tom was a fairly well-off paranoid hypochondriac, one of the few patients that actually turned a profit for Steve. He'd last been in the day before yesterday, complaining of a whole range of strange and obviously purely imaginary 'symptoms', which he claimed were caused by somebody having 'drugged' him while he'd slept - and he had the 'needle-mark' to prove it...

Tox screens had shown nothing, and the 'needle-mark' had looked suspiciously like a bee-sting... and Tom had seemed quite happy with the 'Hyposodium-B' Steve had given him - that being his 'Trade-name' for the placebos he occasionally handed out.

This young, attractive woman sitting on his examination table was obviously not Tom Kreyborg, of course, and Steve hadn't even considered for a second that it might be - but as soon as he'd heard 'Kreyborg', everything had finally fallen into place, since it had sparked the memory of himself trying very, very hard not to laugh after Tom had 'confided' to him that he'd had one daughter, who now lived out in California, and was - in Tom's own words 'Nuttier than a jar of peanut-butter'.

The family resemblance was obvious, explaining that 'recognition' he'd felt, and clearing everything up - the woman on his examination table was Tom's daughter, Tammy, who was even more nuts than her father and obviously convinced that she was, in fact, her father, somehow transformed into an attractive young woman.

The thing to do, of course, would be to play along for a bit, until he could call a psychiatrist...

...but Tammy/'Tom' was really quite attractive - and attractive women were the root of once-Doctor Bidwell's problems. He hesitated a split second longer...

...then pasted his 'Professional' smile onto his face.

"Well, Miss.. ter Kreyborg, why don't we see what we can do to fix you up..." Steve said, warmly.

"You damned well better!" Tammy said, sharply, sounding so much like her old man that it was scary.

"Why don't we start with the obvious first step..." Steve said smoothly, his heart accelerating as he walked over to the cabinet he'd been emptying. "I'll inject you with the antidote to Hyposodium-B, and see if that solves the problem."

"Okay..." Tammy grumped.

Steve had to consciously force his hands to remain steady as he slipped a syringe through the rubber stopper at the end of a medicinal vial, slowly pulling back the plunger to fill the needle with Pentobarbital Sodium.

"This should do the trick..." He said, brightly, hoping Kreyborg's daughter wouldn't notice the sweat beading on his brow as he walked over with the syringe full of the Sodium Pentathol derivative, a much more advanced and wide-ranging composite chemical than the infamous 'Truth Serum' of old.

She barely even quivered as he slid the needle easily into her arm and smoothly injected the hypnotic agent into her bloodstream.

"Well - why don't we give that a few minutes to work, and see what happens..." Steve said, resisting an urge to shoot a glance at the clock. Inspectors from the Ministry were due to arrive later today, to collect the medicines and opiates he was no longer allowed to possess. If they walked in here and found him 'doping up' a female patient, they'd jump to the obvious conclusion that he was using the hypnotic to allow him to 'rape' his patient...

...just like the rumors claimed he did. The rumors that had been enough to get his license pulled, if not to get him formally charged. The rumors that were, in fact, true.

The only reason he wasn't in prison was the fact that he'd been both skilled and careful, not only making his patients 'want' to have sex with him, but carefully 'cleaning' their memories so as to hide his tracks. Usually, he made damned sure everything was safe and ready before he gave into the helpless obsession for 'submissive women' that plagued him - but, this being his last chance, he was working it 'on the fly', so to speak, and it scared the living shit out of him...

...while arousing him much more than any of his previous 'brainwashing rapes' had. Steve had to position himself by the table very carefully, so that the erection that strained the crotch of his dark-gray slacks couldn't be seen.

Steve waited as calmly as he possibly could, glancing occasionally at his 'patient', until the blank, glazed look on her face indicated the hypnotic agent had taken full effect.

Despite the rampant arousal he was feeling, he forced himself to step as carefully as usual, not wanting this one, last 'fling' to blow up in his face.

"Well, that didn't do the trick..." He said, making himself sound concerned. "Perhaps it wasn't the Hyposode after all. I guess you'd better undress so I can give you a full physical..."

He waited, breathlessly, as a slow, slightly puzzled frown formed on her face...

...and then she nodded, and slowly began to disrobe, her movements the slow, oddly graceful movements of somebody deep in a hypnotic trance.

Steve watched with an avid eye as she undressed, revealing a lightly tanned body that featured good muscle tone under a slightly thicker-than-usual layer of fat - which only served to 'round out' her features, making her somewhat 'bulky' frame agreeable feminine, despite her genetic background.

Her breasts were especially pleasing to Steve - full, firm D-cup mounds, rising like melon halves from her chest, each tipped by a dark and frankly feminine nipple. Eyeing her lush figure and firm breasts, Steve nervously licked his lips and moved on with the next part of his usual 'script'.

"Okay, that's fine..." HE said, resisting the urge to smile at the many meanings of that simple statement. "Now, I'd usually do a full hands-on physical for a patient, but you're a woman..." Remembering her delusion, he altered his script a bit "...at least for now..." then went right on with the standard: "...and since there's no female nurse handy, I can't do that... so I'm afraid I can do absolutely nothing to make you feel any better."

She stared at him rapidly for several seconds, his words slowly percolating through the layers of haze that the drug set up in certain parts of her brain. Steve waited to see what would happen, this being one of the 'touchier' parts of the program, something that had to exist for the rest to be built on, like a foundation - but Tammy had to build that foundation all by herself...

"Please, Doctor..." She said, thickly. "You can touch me. Please, touch me, so I can feel better..."

Steve had to fight to keep the triumphant smile from his lips. "You want me to touch you and make you feel good, Tammy?"

The instant her name slipped from his lips, he cursed himself for not playing along with the delusion... but his patient accepted the moniker without question.

"Yes, Doctor, I want you to touch me and make me feel good." Steve smiled at her response.

"Good, good..." He all but cooed, delighted with how easily she was following the 'script' for this little 'game' that he so loved to play. "You came to me to make you feel good, didn't you Tammy?"

Again, his answer was slow and a bit vague. "Yes..."

"You came to me for help because I know things that you don't, isn't that right?" He prodded, carefully, and again she agreed with him.

"So, since I know more than you do, you should just let me work on you, right?" He asked, hopping and praying that it would be that easy - it very rarely was, but...

"Yes..." She agreed, blankly. "I should just let you do whatever you need to do..."

"Without question..." he prompted her again, and she repeated it back to him, making his already straining erection actually becoming mildly painful with arousal at her completely, utterly submissive state.

"Oh, you're a very good girl..." He murmured, without thinking... "I'm a good girl..." She replied, blankly.

"...for letting me do anything to you, without you objecting or resisting in any way." He added, quickly, and she numbly parroted the whole thing back to him.

Wiping the sweat from his brow, Steve looked at his 'patient', sitting perfectly still, her full, round breasts rising and falling in a calm, steady rhythm.

She was still deep under his trance - and completely submissive and obedient in every way.

The mere thought was nearly enough to make him cum - but there was no way he was going to waste this opportunity.

"I'm going to start by examining your breasts..." He told her - more out of eager excitement rather than informative purposes. He was more excited than he could remember being, and knew he was walking the fine line between disaster and mere dishonorable conduct - or, perhaps, it was because he knew that fact that it was more exciting than usual. In either case, he knew he was being 'chatty' - and just couldn't help it.

Not that it mattered. She just sat there, blank faced, waiting for him to do exactly what he'd said he'd do - and she'd be willing to accept just about anything as a 'breast exam' at this stage...

...so she didn't object at all when Steve's trembling hands reached out and lightly squeezed her left breast, pushing the firmly soft material between his palms, feeling the weight and give of the smooth, warm flesh.

He shivered in pleasure.

Spreading his hands, he began to massage her firm, round breasts, slowly at first, then with growing speed and pressure, watching her face carefully as he increased the pressure with which his hands were fondling her breasts - to the point where the line between 'fondling' and 'mauling' were pretty damned close.

She didn't so much as flinch, though her eyes momentarily gained a bit of sharpness, a hint of self-awareness...

..which faded the instant Steve eased up a bit, having discovered just how far he could push her open psyche. It was pretty damned far...

"Lay back, Tammy..." he commanded, not hearing the hoarse, eager tone in his own voice as he stared at her lithe, slumped body.

She hesitated for perhaps three seconds - a near eternity trop Steve, who was now literally bouncing from foot to foot, his cock straining his pants in a way that was almost comical, given the naughty-but-eager-boy jig' he was doing, his eyes almost as wide and thoughtless as Tammy's, but much colder and crueler.

Slowly, with that odd entranced grace, Tammy slid backwards, laying on the examination bed without any protest.

While she was laying herself down, Steve's shaking fingers were eagerly removing his clothes, a fumbling, awkward routine since he refused to tear his gaze from the entranced woman laying on the examination table, legs spread in that loose way that a man almost never saw from a woman who was aware of being in 'mixed company'. Even most of his patients had followed that instinctive habit, drugged or not.

"Spread your legs." Steve commanded, reaching out and guiding her unresisting legs into position, his fingers remaining on her warm, supple flesh for several seconds longer than was necessary, allowing himself to savor the moment.

Finally, the low throbbing in his now freed cock told him he couldn't 'savor' much more or he'd burst. His cock was as hard as it had ever been before, and the pulse that caused his organ to pulsate slightly seemed to thrum in rich timpani syncopation in his ears. His body feeling quivery and awkward, Steve climbed up onto the exam table, his eyes still feasting on the barely-aware woman's voluptuous form.

"Oh, Tammy - you're gonna love this..." He said, unaware he was even speaking as he very slowly and teasingly positioned himself, his cock dipping towards her crotch, then away. "You're gonna love getting fucked while you just lay there and take it."

Then he couldn't hold himself anymore, and he plunged forward, a well-practiced thrust of his hips shoving his throbbing manhood into her warm, only faintly lubricated pussy.

She made an odd breathless sound, blank eyes widening slightly and taking on a lightly puzzled aspect as she twitched involuntarily at the mixed pain and pleasure of the mostly dry penetration, her cunt as tight as a virgin's despite her age.

Slowly and methodically, Steve began to work back and froth, fighting the urge to go faster as he bit his lower lip and concentrated on not reaching the 'point of no return' before he got some of her lubrication going...

The flesh that held and squeezed his raging hard-on was becoming steadily warmer and damper, as if a slow leak of just-above-body- temperature water was taking place in her womanhood, and each stroke became progressively easier - and more inherently pleasurable

- then the last, causing more twitches from Tammy - and from Steve, whose eyes were closed as he struggled not to cum to soon.

As the flow of juices in her womanhood increased, so did his rhythm and power, his breath shorting into gasps that matched the heavy thrust of his body against her almost limp form, now racked constantly with shivers and tremors that were much more severe than those of any other woman he'd drug-raped in the past.

It didn't bother him in the least, her twitching and gyrations actually making the experience much more physically enjoyable than he'd expected, forcing him to pick up his pace and power to levels he'd never imagined himself capable of, sweat flying from his quickly- saturated hair as he drove into her with hard, almost machine-like strokes.

The sound of his gasps and the meaty thudding of his body against hers was joined by a new sound, one that he'd never heard before - a high-pitched keening, so faint and high as to almost pass outside his range of hearing, hovering on the very edge of his consciousness like the distant screeching of nails across a blackboard.

It took him a second to realize that Tammy was making he sound.

He couldn't have cared lest what sound she was making. Beneath his rapidly driving body, she was writhing and twitching erratically, as if in the grip of some great fever or torment, and he happily let the gyrations of her body increase the pleasure he felt as he drove into her with a single-minded intensity that he'd never known he could attain...

...until he slipped past the brink, and found himself groaning in a breathless voice as he pumped his seed deep into her cunt, having been so excited to forget even the most minimal precautions, something he realized almost the instant he finished coming...

Even the concerns of something as important as leaving an easily matched body fluid in one of his victims flew out of his mind, however, when Tammy began to scream.

It was a steady, high-pitched shriek of pure, mind-warping horror, and it didn't vary in volume or pitch until she ran out of the breath to sustain it, causing it to just peter out into a lung-crushing wheeze, followed by a deep whopping sound as she desperately sucked air back into her collapsed lungs...

...so that she could scream again, with the same power and horrified passion as before.

"Stop it!" Steve shouted at her - but his voice, confused and stunned, couldn't compete with her caterwauling. When she ran out of breath a second time, he gave her the same command, sure she would hear it...

...but her mind was no longer capable of processing the information, and she just screamed again...

...and again...

..and again...

"Shut up, bitch!" Steve screamed at her, clapping his hands over his ears as he pulled off and out of her, driven back by the sheer intensity of her mindless screams of pure horror and disgust.

He didn't understand. This had never happened before. He'd always fucked the women, then instructed them to forget the whole thing

- and they had, at least consciously, though some of the women's subconscious had been so traumatized by the rape that they'd suffered emotional and mental problems, which had been enough to get his license pulled.

Not one of them, however, had gone downright insane just from the rape itself.

Being raped had been so bad for Tammy that her mind had literally shattered. Perhaps, with plenty of therapy, she might be able to function again - but right now, all she could do was scream...

...and she was doing it very well.

"Shut up! Shut up!" Steve screamed in panic, trying to cram himself into his pants, despite the fact that he hadn't bothered to turn the left leg right-side out first. He wasn't capable of thinking logically, not under the circumstances. "Shut up, damn it - somebody will hear you...!"

* * * *

As a matter of fact, somebody had heard everything that had gone on, right from the very instant the woman had slammed into Steve's office.

"Damn..." 'Smith' swore, turning away from the TV screen.

"We could never have predicted this." 'Jones' said in commiseration, standing up and stretching - at least, as best as he could in the closed confines of the surveillance van, painted up in the colors of a local cable service. Hidden cameras and microphones allowed them to monitor everything that had happened in the office.

"She's completely fried." Smith sighed, shutting off the audio. "She's useless. All that work, and Subject 'B' runs to the worst possible person for help. We'll never be able to get accurate data now that she'd been screwed with. We'll have to start all over again - and where the hell are we going to find another single male with no close relatives, friends, or other entanglements?"

"Yeah, well..." Jones started to reply, settling back into his chair...

...and then he stopped dead, an odd look coming into his eyes.

"What is it?" His partner asked. He and 'Jones' had worked together before, the super-secret organization they were part of encouraging such teaming, and he knew the look.

Jones slowly began to smile. "The doctor there just got his license pulled, didn't he? He's planning to leave town later today." Smith stared at Jones - then slowly began to smile himself...

* * * * *

Tammy's strength was surprising, almost that of a man her age instead of a woman. Try as he might, the fairly lightly-built Steve couldn't quite get her to remain still enough for him to inject the sedative-counteragent into her bloodstream.

"Shit..." Steve swore, dropping the needle on the floor without caring about how he'd explain it - and its contents - to the federal inspectors. As Tammy continued to thrash and scream, he turned towards the meds cabinet, reaching for the bottle of Ether and an applicator mask, hoping it would be easier than trying to inject her with something...

...when his door opened, and two men steeped inside.

They were... average. In every way. They were the exact same height, five-eleven, and aside from a couple of minor facial differences and the color of their hair, the two suit-clad men could have been clones, their cheap suits and coolly polite manner marking them as Government Clones of some kind...

"I.. Uh..." Steve stammered, wide eyed, his clothes in complete disarray, his shirt actually on inside out. Tammy writhed, naked, on the exam table, mixed fluids puddling below her thrashing hips as she screamed in horror.

All things considered, he couldn't think of any damned way to finish the sentence he'd started.

"Don't worry, Mr. Bidwell..." the clone on the left said, an odd smile on his face. "I guarantee you'll never be convicted of committing rape."

"What...?" Steve asked...

...but he would never get to hear an answer, since Smith's comment had really only been a distraction, so that Steve didn't even notice the dart-gun that Jones lifted and fired in one smooth, practiced motion.

The sedative included in the nanoprobe-serum put Steve's lights out in an instant, and he never knew what hit him as darkness closed in and he slammed to the floor.

Coolly, Jones reloaded the dart gun with a different formulation and shot the writhing woman on the table. She collapsed just as quickly, and Jones jerked a head towards Steve, and his partner nodded.

As they went to gather up 'Subject B', the two agents passed the now-quiescent woman on the exam table. Casually, Jones reached out and grasped the dart in her arm, knowing that the serum he'd just given her would erase any physical evidence, leaving authorities with nothing but a 'Jane Doe' with a shattered mind.

Confident, Jones pulled the dart free and pocketed it...

...leaving behind a small mark that looked suspiciously like a bee-sting...

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

© 1997 - 2016 TGstories.

Stories on the "Public Access" pages may be Copyright by individual authors.

Home | Membership | Terms & Conditons | Privacy Policy | Contact

SUMMARY: Coming home from a bar, his girlfriend surprises him with her willing to try new things, like change him into a girl.

Wish Come True...

---

Story and Illustrations By Gunslinger

"Girl troubles, huh...?"

Startled, Jack blinked and looked up from his deep contemplation of the oily amber liquid in the glass before him.

Lost in his own thoughts, Jack had noticed neither the stranger's approach, nor his taking a seat beside Jack at the bar. Now, blinking, the lean, rangy young man peered out at the handsome, dusky-skinned stranger. Flipping back an ever-errant lock of his ebony hair, Jack cocked his head.

"Excuse me...?" Jack asked, a bit befuddled.

The stranger, startling handsome and wearing an impeccably tailored deep red silk suit that nearly matched the shade of his neatly-trimmed auburn hair and pointed goatee, smiled back at Jack, revealing teeth white and even enough to be in a toothpaste commercial.

"The sigh...." The stranger replied, with a friendly, conspiratorial grin of commiseration. "Women are the only cause for any man to sigh like you just did."

"Yeah, well..." Jack allowed, uncomfortably. "I mean, don't get me wrong, Stacy - my girlfriend - is wonderful. She's gorgeous and cheerful and loving... but, uh..."

"...there's something 'not quite right' when it comes to the bedroom?" The stranger suggested, one eyebrow rising.

From any other person, at any other time, that question would probably prompted Jack to take a swing at the man. Somehow, though, this complete stranger, in tone and body-language, managed to make a delicate question seem... perfectly natural. No only inoffensive, but practically expected - and very solicitous.

Jack hesitated - then, with a shrug, downed his glass of rye and answered.

"It's fine, as far as it goes...I but Stacy's a straight-up, pure-vanilla girl in the bedroom. I just wish that sometimes we could do something different, something unexpected - maybe even something... kinky, y'know? Something to bring some diversity to my sex life, that's all I want. That's not too much to ask for, is it?"

"Not to my way of thinking." The auburn-haired stranger agreed, easily.

Jack went to put his glass back down on the bar - and, in the course of the movement, caught sight of his watch.

"Christ!" He swore, bolting up from the chair. "Speaking of Stacy - she's probably wondering where the hell I am. We should have sat down to dinner an hour ago!"

"Well, then, by all means - go." The stranger said, as Jack tossed some cash on the bar and grabbed his coat. "And, Jack - don't lose hope. You might just get your wish..."

It wasn't until he was already out in the parking lot that Jack realized he couldn't remember introducing himself to the stranger...

* * * * *

"Sorry I'm late..." Jack said, sincerely apologetic as he leaned in to give Stacy a quick kiss on the lips. "Mmm... Tastes like a rye-inspired delay." The perky blonde said, licking her full lips and grinning.

Jack's eyebrows rose slightly. When he'd walked in the door and found his slender, curvaceous blonde girlfriend lounging on the couch in nothing but her comfortably white terry-cloth dressing gown, he'd assumed he was 'in the doghouse'. Usually, no matter how late he was for dinner, it would still be on the table - the fact that she'd eaten without him, the 'gotten comfortable', should have been a sign that she'd 'given up' on him. Not that Stacy was a screamer, nor did she throw tantrums - but her own way could be almost more painful, her sad, disappointed little routine that unerringly plucked at his heart-strings.

So, Jack could honestly say he was a little surprised by how cheerful she seemed - and doubly so after she'd tasted the reason for his delay on his breath, for, though hardly a temperance worker, she didn't believe in drinking anything heavier than the occasional glass of wine or beer, and that in moderation, usually with a meal.

It was going to be quite a night for surprises....

"So..." Stacy said, smiling mysteriously, looking up at him through coquettishly lowered lashes. Reaching out, she unbuttoned the top three buttons of Jack's faded red plaid shirt, and began teasingly tracing a finger over his chest in languid swirls. "Want to do something a little. different tonight?"

Jack heart began to pound, and his mouth went dry.

"Like what?" He asked, trying - and failing - to sound casual, just in case this wasn't what he thought it was. After all, it couldn't be... could it?

"Well, what if you had to do absolutely everything I say, all night long - from now to dawn. How's that sound?" She asked, her voice lower and huskier than usual.

"Well, uh - sure..." Jack said, still feeling that he must be misinterpreting it, despite all the indications. What were the odds that tonight, of all nights, she'd decided to become the sexual aggressor...?

...or, then again, maybe it was what he thought it was. Maybe this one last time of staying out late had gotten her to wondering what she might be doing wrong, and this was her response. It was possible, right?

"You'll do whatever I say? Absolutely anything, no matter what?" She asked, undoing the rest of the buttons on his shirt. "Anything at all, no matter what..." He agreed, reaching out to caress her silken fall of golden hair.

"Swear it upon everything you hold holy?" She teased, leaning forward so that the soft, white cloth covering her large, firm breasts pressed enticingly against his chest.

"I swear." He answered, fervently.

"Good..." She said, with a naughty little chuckle - and then stepped back out of his embrace. Her smile turned just a little bit wicked - and she let her robe slide off to puddle on the floor. She posed for a second, showing off a body she was justifiably proud of, and then she turned and began walking across the floor of the open-concept converted warehouse apartment they shared. She paused, halfway to the corner designated the bedroom, and looked over one nicely-rounded shoulder.

"Well, then..." She said, with a teasing chuckle. "Get undressed and meet me at the bed..." Jack's grin widened - and his fingers fumbled frantically at his clothes...

In no time, he had stripped off his clothes, and was padding naked towards where Stacy perched expectantly on the edge of the bed. "That's it, Jack - come to me." She cooed.

He, of course, obeyed.

"Mmmm..." She said, eyes sparkling as he neared the bedside. Her gaze dropped, and she licked her lips lasciviously. "Get hard for me, lover."

It was the situation and the blatantly sexual tone of her voice, of course - yet, for all that, Jack had to restrain a chuckle as his cock rapidly swelled to full erection.

He tried to escape. "Just doing what the lady ordered..."

But he hardly had time to dwell on it, as she continued speaking: "Now, tell me, have you ever pleased a woman in your life?"

He was trying.

There was something Jack was ready, willing and eager to do. Smile wide on his face, and spread her legs, an anticipatory smile on her lips.

He followed her orders to the letter. Maybe it was the excitement of the moment, the new challenge of being the aggressor tonight - but, whatever it was, he was at the top of his game, remembering having sex with her before. As good as it was for him, however, it was a long time of at least four orgasms before, finally, he reached his own climax. He knew that, once done, he felt completely and utterly drained as he

"Wow..." He gasped, shaking his head in amazement.

"Wow, indeed..." Stacy all-but-purred, rolling over and gently running her hand up and down the inside of his thigh. "No, no - don't get up. Just lay there until I tell you otherwise..."

Jack, exhausted by the incredibly bout of sex, hadn't been planning to get up, anyway, so he simply continued to lay there. Despite the gentle caress of Stacy's slender hand, his manhood refused to respond, as hard-used as the rest of him.

"Sorry, honey - I don't think Little Jack will be able to come out and play for awhile now..." He chuckled, wearily. "Ah - but what if I told you to get hard again...?" She teased. "You have to do whatever I say, remember?"

"I wish I could, but... 'the spirit is willing, but the flesh is weak'. Order away - I can't do it." Jack chuckled.

"You still don't get it, do you...?" She asked, grinning up at him. "Well, then again, you never were the brightest bulb in the box..." "Huh...?" Jack blurted out, frowning down at her.

"You'll do anything I say - anything at all." She told him, still smiling. "No matter what." "Honey..." Jack said in his 'you are being unreasonable' tone of voice.

"Oh - don't believe me?" She asked, archly. "Let's prove it. Jack, honey, sweet-ums - get rid of that nasty old cock of yours and replace it with a nice, tight, wet little cunt..."

"What are you..." Jack started, annoyed - and then his voice dried up as his eyebrows climbed skyward. There was a strange... tightening sensation in his crotch.

He tried to sit up - and was shocked to find that he couldn't. the best he could do was raise his head.....

Jack screamed. Loudly.

Shrilly.

"Oh, shhh. " Stacy said, in a voice of amused annoyance.

After that, Jack could only whimper helplessly as he watched his manhood vanish.

It was like watching something in a big-budget Hollywood movie. His cock, already limp, didn't just shrink, but seemed to fold in on itself, changing shape as it was pulled inwards towards his crotch - but it didn't stop at just ending up flush. The strangeness of the sensations only continued to increase as his crotch went from smooth to dimpled, a cleft forming and growing - until, within a minute after it started, where his cock and balls once rose now lay what was indubitably a moist womanhood.

A ' nice, tight, wet little cunt'...

"No!" Jack gasped, wanting to scream, and the very fact that he couldn't only serving to reinforce the reality of the impossible situation. "Stacy, what... how...? oh, no. "

"Oh, yes..." She cooed. She lightly stroked a hand over the soft, dewy folds of Jack's new womanhood. "Stacy, please..." Jack begged - quietly. "Please, change me back. "

"Oh, I don't think so..." She said, with a smile. "Now - lay back, and enjoy "

Then she lowered her head to his crotch.

As her tongue began teasingly tracing the form of his moist new cunt. Jack couldn't help but shiver in unwanted please. Shed' told him to enjoy, so he literally had no choice but to do just that as she began to explore and tease his new cleft. As she lapped slowly and skillfully, Jack felt a burning, unwanted pleasure. Slender fingers delving deep into the silken confines of his new clit, she drove him steadily towards climax...

...and then, at the penultimate moment, stopped - leaving him helplessly burning in his altered crotch.

Oh - and, against his will, enjoying the intense new sensation, as w

"It's going to be a long night." Stacy said, pulling her head away w coffee. "

Jack got a sudden, fluttery feeling in the pit of his stomach. Stacy's tone of voice boded no good...

His premonition was bang-on.

"Reach under the bed, take out the hot-pink box you'll find, and put on what's inside." Stacy said, eyes gleaming wickedly.

Jack struggled against whatever impossible force was driving him to live up to the thoughtless oath he'd taken - but it was no use. The impossible but somehow nevertheless quite real force that could turn his once-proud manhood into a moist and obviously fully- functional womanhood would not be balked.

Likewise, as he found himself helplessly doing as he was told, a small part of his mind wondered if there'd even been a box under the bed until she'd told him to get it. Not that it mattered - for, there or not a minute ago, it was there now, and Jack couldn't stop himself from pulling out, opening it up, and putting on what he found inside.

"Please, Stacy - please don't make me do this!" He begged, quietly, as his fingers drew the fine-mesh 'fishnet' stockings up his legs, tugging them into place to allow the wide, elasticized top to hold them up.

"Oh, but they look so lovely!" Stacy chortled. "Make sure the seems are perfectly aligned against the smooth, hairless skin of your legs."

Helplessly, his hands straightened the stocking seams - even as he mewled softly at the sensation of his body hair withdrawing back into his pores, leaving his skin smooth and soft. and feminine.

As every bit as feminine as the rest of the 'outfit' he put on.

Pink 'chandelier' earrings that slipped easily into the piercings that appeared in his ears. White lace gloves.

A white, lace-trimmed little apron.

A white-lace maid's 'head-dress', held in place by it's hot-pink little band...

...and a pair of silver high-heel strap-style sandals with what had to be five-inch heels.

"Stacy, please - I won't even be able to walk in these..." He tried to reason with her, even as his glove-encased hands buckled the last trap on the shoes, holding them in place on his feet.

"On the contrary..." She chuckled. "You're going to walk not only easily in them, but with a sexy little hip-swinging stride - as you go make a pot of coffee."

Whimpering softly, Jack did, indeed, rise from the bed - and, with a mincing, hip-swaying walk, sashayed across the

he was doing, or the way he was doing it.

While Jack stood helplessly in the kitchen, waiting for the coffee to brew. "I'm turning myself blonde..."

Gasping, Jack reached down to grab a tablespoon that was laying on the counter. As he did so, it struck him with more force than ever the predicament he was in - for he wasn't a 'mindless puppet', able only to obey. He had to obey what Stacy said, no matter how impossible - but his other actions were his own. Somehow, that made the situation worse than if he was simply trapped in it, with no input of his own...

Then the thought was swept away as, peering into the distorted reflection of the spoon, he saw his hair fade to a bright, brassy shad of blonde.

"No, no - lighter." Stacy commanded. "Platinum blonde!"

Jack watched as his hair lightened further, to a silvery shade of gold... and, again, was struck by the fact that he had some input into this, for otherwise, the hair would have automatically gone the shade she'd wanted, right off the bat. Somehow, and he wasn't sure how, he was involved in this - Stacy wasn't doing this to him, directly. He, as promised, was doing it at her behest.

It took three tries to get it the exact, nearly-white shade Stacy wanted - and then, with the coloration change, she thought a few other changes needed to be made in his outfit to make them more suitable. Humiliated, he stood in the kitchen while the coffee brewed, cut and color of the skimpy outfit altering this way and that, until finally Stacy was satisfied with the silver-and-white diamond-checked nylons and elbow-length white lace gloves, as well as the smaller and now pink-lace-trimmed apron to match Jack's headdress.

Then of course, there had to be make-up to go with the new outfit, and at least some of Jack's thoughts were confirmed when he opened the exact same drawer he'd opened moments before, only now to find hot-pink lipstick, mascara, and eyeliner that hadn't been there a second before.

With coffee brewed, and himself 'improved', Jack helplessly sashayed a cup over to Stacy, who giggled, took one token sip of the coffee, and lay it aside.

"Why are you doing this to me, Stacy?" Jack asked plaintively. "What did I do to deserve this?"

"You know, that's a very good question." She replied with mock thoughtfulness. "I think you should ask me again - but in the husky, sexy female voice you're going to use until I tell you otherwise."

Jack winced - and helpless repeated the question in a new voice that a female phone-sex operator would have died for. Stacy scooted down to the end of the bed and patted a place on the cover beside her.

"Take off that apron and sit yourself down here, and I'll explain it to you..." Jack, of course, had no choice in the matter.

"Now, Jacqueline - you won't mind answering to 'Jacqueline', of course - it's like this..." Stacy said, taking on a scholarly air that was highly feigned... and at great odds with her actions, for as she spoke, she slid one hand between Jack's smooth thighs.

"I'm not who you think I am." She explained - while her slender hand began gently stroking the smooth mound of his new womanhood. "In fact... I'm not even your girlfriend."

"What...?" Jack gasped in his throaty new voice - while struggling not to enjoy Stacy's touch... and failing. Her command to 'enjoy' was still in force, and when she'd left him hanging last time, it made this new caress something part of him, the part not even affected by the strange 'magic'. actually want this.

"There is a secret culture out there, one that I'm part of - one with g into the moist cavern of his new cunt. He moaned and wiggled at her skill month - but you didn't notice me. You bought food for two, cooked all my had the bed... and, through it all, you noticed nothing unusual about each done it as soon as you were finished. That's the way my people are, you s through society."

Gasping, sweat streaming down his face, Jack struggled to follow h vigorously at his crotch.

"You don't remember, because I altered your memories so you thir watching you, you've gone through three different girls - and it was the sa explained, hand working faster, fingers plunging deeper. "You cam with them the first time, would ask them to move on to something a 'little r blow-job, but it went on from there... until, with each girl, you found their 'b you'd ridicule them for a prude and dump them. Oh, by the way - tell me h nice, big dildo in your cunt..."

"Oh, god!" Jack gasped, as the finger suddenly seemed to swell - but it wasn't Stacy's finger anymore, but a smooth, plastic phallus plunging rhythmically into Jack's new cunt. "That... Oh! ...feels so... good.... even though I don't want it to..."

Stacy laughed as Jack, squirming and wiggling, gasped and moaned with the unwanted pleasure from the large, hot-pink dildo now filling her sopping cunt - and then, for the second time, as Jack trembled on the edge of orgasm, Stacy quite simply... stopped.

"Here - this belongs to you." She said, chuckling, as she handed him the smooth plastic dildo, dripping with his own fluids.

Numbly, he took the dildo, chest heaving as the ragged edge of orgasms receded, leaving him filled with some sort of nameless need...

...and then he plunged the dildo back into his cunt and, of his own volition, desperately began thrusting away.

Laughing, Stacy watched him as he jerked and wiggled, moaning and gasping even as humiliation thundered through him, he hated himself for this, hated his weakness - but twice now he'd been denied, and he was so close, and he needed it....

"Men can't have a woman's orgasm." Stacy whispered maliciously in his ear. "You won't be able to make your pussy reach orgasm..."

unless you turn yourself all the way into a woman."

Gasping and moaning, thrashing and writhing, Jack continued desperately driving the dildo into his cunt... but though he reached the very brink of orgasm, he simply hovered there, unable to achieve the release he so desperately needed.

"Do it, then!" He finally gasped in his breathy voice, hating himself but unable to stop. "You're going to do it anyway, so, damn you - go ahead and get it over with! Turn me into a woman!"

"Oh, no..." Stacy chuckled. "That's not what this is about, Jacqueline. This is about retribution, about forcing you to find your own breaking point..."

Though he now knew he'd never reach orgasm, not like this, Jack just couldn't stop fucking himself with the dildo. Bad as hovering on the brink of an unreachable orgasm might be, as humiliated as he might feel, he knew he couldn't face the desperate sense of something vital denied he'd feel if he stopped.

"What... do you... want!" He moaned, thrashing impotently on the plastic rod filling what had seemed to become the center of his nightmare-like universe. "What do you want me to do?"

"Why, that's completely up to you!" Stacy said, in mock surprise. "You can stay a 'pussy man' until sunrise, never reaching orgasm... and then be a full male again at dawn. You can bring yourself off, then. Or... you can willingly make yourself female. You have that power, now, and can do it any time you want - and reach that orgasm you're hovering on the brink of."

Desperate for relief, Jack struggled to clamp down on the urge to get it over with. Immediate need, as painfully strong as it was, didn't

- quite - override self-preservation.

"Then what... I'll be stuck as a woman for the rest of my life?" He gasped, thrashing on the bed.

"That would all depend on you, actually." Stacy said, with a wicked chuckle. "That's the crux of the matter, the personal test you'd have to go through. You see, if you choose, willingly, to become female, you get more than just a female body. In that instant, everybody's memories will change, reality itself will change, as if you'd been born female, and lived female. You, however, wouldn't get a whole new personality and history, but just a feminized one."

"What... do... you... mean?" Jack gasped, actually sobbing with the force of his sexual need.

"In your current version of history, you've been a very sexually active, sexually aggressive man. Become a woman, and you'll be just as sexually active, just as sexually aggressive. In the 'real' past, every time you talked a woman into giving you a blow-job, revised history will have you talking a man into letting you give them one. All your urges will be just as strong as they ever were - but inverted, making you crave doing the things as a woman that, as a man, you wanted women to do to you. The only major difference will be that, while everybody else will remember your feminine history, and you'll have the feminine urges, desires and habits to match, you'll retain your old, male memories, your masculine intellect coupled with feminine emotions.

"...'and?'..." Jack prompted in a gasp.

"It'll all depend on your 'resistance', then." She said, wickedly. "You've enjoyed finding a woman's 'breaking point'. That's all I'm doing. If you choose to become a woman, I get to see whether or not you then have the strength of will to become male again. If you do... then it means that you could have stopped yourself from acting on those urges all your life, and we'll both know that what you've done to women you've done willingly, making you a real rat bastard... but one that gets off scott-free. On the other hand, if you go ahead and finish your make-over into not just a full woman, but your own ideal woman in light of what you believe, we'll know that you're actually helpless in the face your desires, no matter how twisted or perverted."

Thoughts swimming upstream against the hormones flooding his body, Jack had to take a minute to realize the obvious: "That's not fair!"

"Actually, it is..." Stacy said, with a shrug. "You see, if it's free will, then punishment should - and, eventually will, I would think - come from the results of your own actions. Just as if you decided to rob a liquor store, you have to live with consequences that can arise. If, however, it's involuntary, uncontrollable... well, then you'll no longer be a threat to anybody, at least not the way you were. It's all up to you, of course - you don't even have to risk it. Just stay like you are until dawn..."

Sweating, gasping, thrashing, Jack struggled to think about it logically, rationally...

...and, almost before he was aware of making a decision, was hit by a thunderous orgasm that tore through him.

No - that tore through her, for the person who screamed out in the wordless ecstasy or release might not have been a beauty- pageant contestant, but she was undeniably female.

For a moment, she simply lay on the bed, bathing in the golden afterglow of the throat-tearing orgasm... and then realization slowly began to seep into her awareness.

"Oh, my god!" She gasped, jerking upright. She rose and took a few hesitant steps away from the bed, staring in horror down at the body her hands were hesitantly touching. "What have I done...?"

Her eyes beheld her new figure, her hands touched the firm, conical mounds of her breasts... and her mind shuddered in revulsion even as her emotions sparkled with contentment.

"What.. what happens now...?" She pleaded, struggling to integrate diametrically opposed thoughts and feelings.

"Now we see what you're really made of..." A masculine voice said, and she looked up to stare at the handsome stranger from the bar.

Her mind roiled with confusion.

Not from unexpectedly finding him in the apartment - it, like the fact that Stacy was now fully dressed in a tight-fitting red leather cat suit and standing beside him - was 'small potatoes' compared to all the impossibilities that had already passed. No, the confusion came from the way her emotions responded to the sight of his handsome form. When she'd first met him, at the bar, she'd intellectually known he was handsome - but it hadn't really meant anything - now his masculine attractiveness was hitting her with

ed. hrug. Gone was the false sweetness of Jack's implanted memories, but evening. Now there was honest, open curiosity in her face, mirrored by made a little half-bow. "He's agreed to help with this little science for new, feminine emotions are finding him exactly as attractive, to the s current, 'unwanted' reaction to Richard was identical in strength, if having for Stacy.

ur emotions..." Richard explained, "...you'll turn back into a man. You go back to trying to work your wiles on your 'girlfriend' Stacy - who, I love on, like always... until, hopefully, events play out so you eventually it entails."

otions are so strong that your intellect can't control them, you'll become completely female. By that, I mean not just your body, but your clothes, your life-style.. all will change to become as close to the female 'ideal' as everything about you was the masculine 'ideal' you held as a man. Identical to the tiniest degree, just in the opposite direction - and then, you'll be free to try your new wiles on Richard, here."

She shrugged, with a chuckle. "I won't even try and predict what his response to that will be."

Jack, shivering, looked back and forth between them, mind pulling one way, emotions the other. She remembered her old, male life, and thought she wanted it back - but her emotions left her feeling like she'd want to continue life as a feeling.

As the skinny, horse-faced blonde struggled with the two diametrically opposed options, time slowly ticked past. One minute, then two... five, then ten... finally twenty minutes passed in silence.

Stacy and Richard shared matching looks. This was much, much longer than they'd possibly considered. They thought the struggle would last a few seconds, and then 'the truth' would win out. After all, it had been Richard who'd put his faith in the belief that maybe Jack 'just couldn't help himself'... which Stacy had derided with a snort, claiming Jack was just a typically arrogant male asshole, willingly giving in to his desires, no matter how hurtful or perverted. Now, at the moment of truth, they realized they had overlooked something.

"This is wrong." Richard finally said. "With misjudged something, missed something..."

"Something important, I'd say." Stacy said, with a sigh. Reaching out with her power, she 'turned off' Jack's emotions completely, then waited for his empowered intellect to change him back into a man...

...but, other then slumping as the conflict ended, Jack remained the same woman he'd become.

"But..." Stacy blurted, confused. She looked up at Richard. "I wasn't cheating - honest! I really did give him the power to change back!"

"I believe you..." Richard assured her - not revealing that, when the spell had been cast, he'd subtly probed at it to determine that she had, indeed, given Jack a 'fair chance', that regaining his manhood had been a real and valid test.

Gasping, propped up by slender hands on her nylon-clad knees, Jack looked up.

"I'm... fighting... the... change..." She wheezed, sweat standing out on her broad brow. "What?" Stacy and Richard blurted, in unison. "Why...?"

"Because... I'd just be... the same old... asshole..." Jack gasped.

A smug, complacent sense of superiority that was very much a large part of the two powerful people in the room suddenly vanished like a soap bubble popping. Only now, in true understanding, did they realize how poorly they had misjudged Jack, how their infinite power hadn't been tied to a superior intellect as they'd always believed.

Yes, Jack had been an 'asshole', a user and abuser of women... but it hadn't been the 'either/or' of emotion versus intellect. Who and what he had been hadn't been driven solely by wanton desire nor willful choice. It had been the result of a never-ending battle, a balance between being as 'evil' as he felt he could be, and as 'good' as he'd known he should be.

The premise that he was 'helplessly' driven by his emotional reaction to hurting women was shown to be ludicrous, for had Jack been solely driven by emotion, he would have raped and physically tortured women, not 'merely' cajoled, shamed, and emotionally battered them. Likewise the assumption that his treatment towards women had been solely of conscious intent, for it was the way his intellect wanted to treat women that was the sole bulwark against what he would have been if driven by just his desires...

...and, as final and absolute proof of the true goodness, honesty, and integrity behind that intellect, Jack looked up, sincerity and commitment shining in his eyes, as he said: "For God's sake, let me take the other option! You have no idea what it's like, feeling the urge to do whatever I want to a woman, to simply grab and rape any woman I find attractive... to fight back the urge, never knowing if this is the time I fail to control myself... to hate finding myself proud of the fact that I'm 'only' crushing a woman's sense of self-worth instead of doing what I 'really' want to do... and being afraid that one of these times, I'll just let go and do it..."

Richard and Stacy stared at Jack, at her pleading eyes - and then, in growing horror, they looked at each other in realization.

The spell had already been cast. They couldn't just 'undo' it. That's why Stacy had turned Jack's emotions off, rather than just change them back to his old, male ones. The changed emotions were part of the spell, contingent on him becoming male again. She could turn them off or on... but until the spell ran its course, she couldn't change it.

"I can't..." Stacy said.

"No, but we could..." Richard broke in, knowing the score, mind racing ahead of verbal communication.

"...except that..." She countered, mind as equally adept. Now knowing they weren't half as smart as they thought they were, they were still twice as smart as an 'average person', their minds working with speed and precision despite the effects of the shock that had hit them.

"...better than the alternative." Richard summed up - and, still looking at each other, they nodded in agreement. Together, they reached out, 'tweaking' the edges of the spell, unable to reach the core of what they'd already set in motion, but doing what they could to mitigate their mistake.

Jack shivered, shuddered - and changed.

"What...?" The new woman said, blinking. "Who...? How...?"

Face framed by a thick mass of artificially pink hair, the woman's head tilted back. Stacy moved quickly, forcing her lips into a warm smile as she went to the new woman.

"There, there, honey... I'm here..." Stacy cooed.

"So am I..." Richard quickly added, coming over and making it a three-way hug. The new woman's lush body in its dark, glossy fetish-inspire latex outfit.

Almost unconsciously, the new woman snuggled deeper into the embrace. She knew the difference between the old and new knowledge, began stroking two different thighs, one masculine and one feminine. She felt the difference in her firm, full new breasts.

"I.. feel kinda confused..." The new woman admitted in a breathy whisper.

It was the understatement of the year.

First of all, she didn't really 'feel' anything - her emotions were now just memories. It wasn't that the old emotions were gone, it was the memories of emotions but what should have been pale ghosts were simply because there were so many of them...

There were the remembered emotions of Jack, who liked to dominate and belittle women - but there was also the remembered emotions of Johnny, the scrawny and painfully self-conscious guy who would fall all over himself, pathetically eager to do anything to please a woman. At the same time, she remembered the emotions of Jacqueline, the quiet, somewhat horse-faced woman who assumed no man could find her attractive, and gave her heart away to any man who showed the slightest interest in her - unlike Joni, bold and brassy, taking what she wanted from men and leaving everything else behind. John and Jackie, despite being male and female respectively, had nearly identical views on both sex and the opposite sex, strictly 'middle of the road', take it when you could get it, cope with it when you couldn't...

The new woman was having the thoughts of all six people, with the remembered emotions of all six people - but she wasn't all six people. She had only one, coherent set of actual memories, those of Jack. She couldn't have told you when Jacqueline's first sexual experience had been... but, at this instant, among the welter of thoughts filling the new woman's head, one of them was exactly what Jacqueline would have been thinking about being held like this - and that came along with how Jacqueline would have remembered feeling in the same situation.

Of course, the was also just as true for the thoughts of Johnny, Jackie, Joni and John as it was for Jack and Jacqueline... and all these thoughts were rattling around in the head of a female body and it's clothing that was a mix of what Johnny, Jack and John liked in a woman, and what Joni, Jackie and Jacqueline wanted as a woman.

All in all, a little confusion was perfectly natural, given the circumstances...

...and, exactly as Richard and Stacy had planned, resulted in a woman too entirely mixed up to be able to reach any of her own conclusions. She had thoughts of being both dominating and submissive, and could conceivably be either one or the other at any given time - but, held in perfect balance against each other, was completely unable to go in either direction of her own volition.

Indeed, so perfectly balanced in a half-dozen direction was every single thought she had, she would have been completely incapable of doing anything...

...except that she still had just the one set of memories. The 'final nudge' that would push her mind in one direction, allow her to function - but, with the welter of conflicting thoughts, it would always be a 'weak' process. Not that she was 'sow' or 'stupid', for neither Stacy nor Richard could do that to her - indeed, her brain was working faster than ever before, which was necessary, since even after Jack's memories 'nudged' her in direction, she had second thoughts...

...and thirds, and fourths and fifths and sixths.

Only then could the new woman act on the thought, and never with deep, unshakable conviction, always tentative, always questioning... always safe.

It was that thought - coming to a person burdened with the memory of guilt Jack carried - that caused the new woman to slow, and by new nature, somewhat hesitantly, to smile.

"Thank you..." The person who, tentatively, considered herself as 'Jan', said softly, but with fairly determined gratitude. Come what may, she remembered the decision to be female, the last, clear, single thought she would ever have - and the reasons for it. "Thank you so much..."

She turned her head in one direction - and paused, position offering Stacy a kiss, but hesitancy keeping her from pushing it on the other woman. Stacy hesitated - and then kissed Jan, warmly and deeply.

When Richard's turn came, he hesitated not at all, doing his best to make Jan's first kiss from a male as memorable as possible. He did one hell of a job, and Jan certainly enjoyed the effort he put into it...

...at least, she thought she did....

THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

© 1997 - 2016 TGstories.

Stories on the "Public Access" pages may be Copyright by individual authors.

Home | Membership | Terms & Conditions | Privacy Policy | Contact

SUMMARY: Discovering a magic ring that lets you change shape, one man uses the ring to turn himself into a female in the hopes of becoming friends with a girl that he has the "hots" for, but when she discovers who he really is, the fun begins.

With This Ring...

By Gunslinger

Part One

On the radio, Don Maclean was describing how he felt the day the music died, and Matt Smith let him, making the chisel in his bony fingers keep time with the early rock beat. As the dust from the crumbling mortar fell around his lanky legs and knobby knees, exposed by his baggy cut-off jean shorts, Matt unconsciously bounced the sole of his tattered left high-top sneaker against the concrete in time with the music as well, lost in the mindless work of de-bricking the west wall of the basement, and in the nostalgic feel of the music - which was actually enhanced, rather than degraded, by the somewhat tinny sound quality of the 'K-Mart Special' boom-box, sounding as if it could have been a live broadcast of the song's debut over the AM-band radios of the time.

The too-skinny young man was only twenty-two, and the music was actually before his time - but his foster parents had played music like this while he was growing up, and it had always seemed to reach him more than the music of 'his' era, the too-bright or too-heavy rhythms of the Eighties, which was a decade best forgotten in almost any genre of the 'arts'.

Finishing the task of removing the decaying mortar from the row of bricks that formed the west wall of the basement, Matt took a break, tossing the chisel towards the toolbox on the floor (and missing), as he turned away from the work to walk over to the noisy old refrigerator in the corner. Pulling down on the curved, arrow-shaped handle of the rounded appliance, he swung the thick, surprisingly heavy door open and bent over to peer into the darkened interior. Grabbing one of the few remaining beers from the wire-rack shelf, he turned and put the sole of his shoe against the door, pushing off of it with a hard thrust, swinging the door shut and propelling himself towards the sagging couch near the tool bench, dropping into it with a heavy thump...

...which caused a thick cloud of mortar-dust to billow up, leaving the sandy-haired youth coughing and spitting. Quickly, he fumbled atop the workbench, finger's seeking the 'church-key' bottle opener, and finally finding it's cool, familiar contours. With a practiced motion, he popped the top off the Corona and sent the distorted golden disk of metal towards a waste-basket - missing, again - and gulped a long draught of the bitter Mexican beer to clear his throat.

With a sigh of pleasure, Matt turned his dark eyes to survey the wall he'd been working on all after noon.

"Is an extra fifteen square feet worth it?" He asked himself, shaking his head. He shrugged, then answered himself. "Yeah, I guess it is..."

The basement wasn't all that big to begin with, being slightly smaller than the other two floors of the small Victorian-aged home that Matt was renting-to-own on a oak-shaded side-street off of the downtown core. It wasn't much, but, in four years, two months and three days

- no, four, don't forget the leap year - it would be Matt's own home. An orphan, raised in an foster home and never quite secure in his status as a 'second-hand' child, Matt found the prospect of owning this cramped cracker-box of a home as exciting as some might find the thought of owning a mansion, and he was working hard to put the place in to the best order he could, on what money he could spare after his monthly payments to the landlord who owned the house.

To that end, he was in the basement today, busily knocking down the west wall of the basement. When the house was originally built, the walled-off west end of the room had been the cistern - the water reservoir that held a certain amount of water that would be warmed by the furnace in here, and available even during the coldest winter. However, since municipal water had supplanted the pump, the cistern had been dry and empty, and Matt saw no reason to let that space go to waste.

He hadn't realized that - to keep it from leaking - the cistern had been triple-bricked in a complex alternating pattern. Quite simply, it had turned out to be three times as much work as he'd expected.

Well - he was on the final layer now, and soon he'd have more space down here - which meant he could move the washer and dryer down here, instead of having them cluttering up the back hall, where they were most definitely in the way...

Finishing his beer, Matt rose from the aging sofa and returned to mount a renewed offensive on the aging bricks of the cistern wall, buoyed along by Roy Orbison's pleas to a Pretty Woman.

With the mortar crushed out with the chisel, the work consisted mainly of removing the bricks and adding them to the growing pile. Before very long, a dark, roughly oval opening was gaping in the wall, and Matt found himself beckoned by the darkness beyond, practically begging him to come in and imagining that there might, possibly, be enough room to fit a pool-table down here, too...

Going to the work bench, Matt grabbed a wire-cage-protected work-light and plugged the cord into the socket above the bench, carrying the lamp towards the dark opening. The heat from the lamp's wire-protected bulb splashed across his hand as it spilled it's glow forward, and Matt felt a little bit like Indiana Jones about to step into a darkened tomb, flickering torch in hand. Beneath his narrow ribcage, Matt's heart began to pound harder in vicarious excitement as he stepped through the opening...

...into a tiny space just barely big enough for a washer/dryer. The hopes of expanding the basement into a rec-room died as the skinny youth stared at the plain brick walls and sand-covered floor.

"Aw, well... I can't afford a pool table anyway..." Matt muttered to himself, trying to dim the sudden surge of disappointment he'd felt - irrational as it was, since this was exactly what he'd expected to find, anyway.

Shaking his head, Matt started to turn away - and the movement of the light in his hand swept across something that drew a small, almost painfully bright highlight from the bright work-light.

"What the...?" Matt muttered as he knelt, looking down at the glittering object.

"Well, I'll be damned...!" Matt muttered, eyes going wide in surprise as he reached out and picked up the brightly shining object.

It was a heavy, ornately-carved man's ring, set with a square-cut, blood-red stone. Judging from the intricate carving and heavy weight of the ring, Matt was willing to believe that it was a real Ruby, set into a ring of solid gold.

"Holy shit - bet whoever lost you was pissed as hell!" Matt said to the ring with a grin forming on his face. He glanced up at the over-head pipe that led to where the cistern-pump had once rested in the kitchen, and figured that the original owner of the house had probably lost it. Though old, shabby and small by today's standards, the house was quite upscale when it was built, and the heavy golden ring Matt held had the sort of decadent opulence you might expect of men's jewelry of the period.

"I wonder...?" He asked himself, turning the ring over in his hands. It was a large, heavy ring, and it looked like it would hang off of one of his slender fingers. Maybe it would fit his thumb, if he was lucky.

But hope springs eternal, especially in a closet romantic and a voracious reader of books by men like Eddings, Heinlein and Brooks. Shrugging, Matt slid the ring onto his ring-finger...

...and blinked in surprise when it fit as snugly and perfectly as if it had been made for his finger.

"Well, damn..." Matt said, staring at it in wonder - and mild annoyance. When he'd assumed it was too large for him to ever wear, the thought of selling it for it's obvious value was easy to bear. Now, however...

"What the hell - it looks good there, and adds a touch of class..." Matt convinced himself. Tugging the ring off, he carefully wiped it to a shining flow on his shirt, then tucked it into his pocket.

Rising, he left the cistern and snapped off the work-light, hanging it back on it's peg to cool as he turned back to the remaining wall. "Well, hoss..." Matt drawled to the wall. "This basement ain't big enough for the both of us. Y'all better be gone before sunset."

Laughing to himself, Matt turned up the radio and walked over to the wall, beginning the now-easy task of removing the loose bricks and adding them to the pile. In less then an hour, the wall was demolished.

Looking at the space, then over at the bricks, Matt decided he'd done enough for one day. He'd cart the sand and bricks away tomorrow, then see if he couldn't dig up some help in getting the dryer and washer down here the day after, once he'd run the hoses and electricity over from the other corner of the room, where everything entered the basement.

Dusting his hands, Matt shut off the old-fashioned chain-pull light that lit the basement and headed upstairs. He was dirty and pretty rank from the 'honest sweat' of hard work, and he was going to grab a bath - right after he had a couple of beers to kill the dust in his throat.

Grabbing one of the steadily diminishing supply of domestic beer from the upstairs fridge, Matt debated silently with himself, then decided to head into the living room. He knew he was filthy and should really get a bath before sitting on any of the furniture - but the stuff was all second-hand stuff, only slightly better off then the stuff in the basement, and he figured that a little dust wasn't going to make them depreciate any more then they already had.

Putting the beer down on the end-table beside the old couch, he walked over and flicked on the old Color TV in the cheaply-ornate wood cabinet. One of the old rotary-switch style TV's, he might have had to flick it on manually, but his newer VCR had a remote and he used that as the 'converter; for his one luxury, the cable. Grabbing the VCR remote, he walked over and dropped into the couch...

"Oh, shit...!" Matt winced and straightened his legs, digging into his pocket. The action of sitting had drawn his long shorts tight, and the ring had dug into his bony thigh.

Looking at the ring, he turned it over and over, admiring it's ornate workmanship anew in the brighter light in the living room. The ring was definitely valuable, and again he felt the urge to sell it - but, then again, it just fit so nice...

Slipping it onto his finger, Matt admired it again for a moment longer, then used that hand to pick up his beer and take a sip from the condensation-soaked bottle while he began flipping through the channels, looking for something worth watching as the sun slowly sank outside 'his' house.

There wasn't a whole lot to be had. Cable TV was about the only 'luxury' he afforded himself, yet with all the channels there were, most of the stuff was... well, crap. Which was why Matt usually preferred a good book over TV - but sometimes, like now, he liked a little mindless entertainment, something with lots of movement and shine and slick dialogue, something that was amusing and entertaining without being annoying or insipid.

He finally found the perfect thing - Xena. It and it's brethren from Studios USA were fast and snappy, without requiring any real thought to enjoy what passed for a 'plot'. Settling back in the sofa, Matt took a longer pull at the beer, enjoying the action on the screen as Xena and Gabrielle were put through their paces against a bunch of dark-clad bandits... in short, just about the same story-line as any other episode, though he'd never seen this particular one before.

'Hmmm...' Matt thought to himself, idly. 'Definitely not my type.. but there's just something about a fit woman in leather that's so... erotic...'

He felt a mild stirring in his loins as Xena did one of her patent moves - straddling a man to perform that 'artery-block' move, and the sight of those legs on either side of the guy, the leather clad warrior princess over his supine form just did something...

Only, this time, the 'something' was more than Matt had ever experienced before - or had ever expected to experience, ever.

He jerked forward off the couch, his body trembling, as it felt as if a high tornado wind was ripping through the room - but, aside from him, it didn't seem to affect anything.

Matt cried out incoherently as his body trembled, his head thrown back as the wordless sound was torn from a throat that jumped and twitched on it's own...

...and then he began to change. There was nothing Matt had ever experienced in his life that was like what he felt as his body moved of it's own accord - without budging from where he stood.

His feet felt as if he were curling his toes - yet the sensation was omni-directional, evenly on all sides as if his feet were curling in on themselves. Even as they seemed to fold back on themselves, muscles and bones moving inward, the canvas of his shoes writhed and moved with it's own inner life... and he could feel the already hi-top sneakers begin to climb upwards, over ankles that were rotating and twisting into new shapes, over calf-muscles that felt as if he'd just run a marathon and had tightened them up in a heel-push.

Higher up, it felt as if he'd been sitting on cold metal for an hour or so, then went in and sat near the fire - a warm, swelling sensation as his ass 'rebounded' from the frozen-in flattened shape... only it hadn't been flattened out, yet it still felt like it was bulging outwards. But it wasn't just his ass, though - the sensation seemed to wrap three-quarters of the way around, to include his hips... but not his crotch, where it felt as if an unseen hand was steadily and firmly pushing inwards.

Over all this, his shorts seemed to be twisting and changing, becoming heavier and smoother against his skin even as they seemed to flare out a bit at the bottom and tighten a bit at the top... which was nothing compared to the way his shirt was tightening around his torso, as if shrinking in the wash - but a wash full of starch as it became stiffer, cooler... heavier.

It seemed to be shrinking unevenly, pulling tighter and tighter at waist and chest - yet growing so baggy at the shoulders that he couldn't even feel it anymore. He could feel something at his shoulders, though, something that felt like the finest silk, spilling lightly over the tops of his shoulders.

The sensations ran through his arms and hands, to, his hands feeling as if somebody was squeezing each of them in a firm, tight grip, while his arms felt as if he'd lifted a hundred reps of light weight, tense and tight and slick.

His face felt as if his foster-mother's warnings about making faces was coming true - it felt like his face was trying to twist into ever funny face he'd ever made in his life, every muscle jumping and shifting uncontrollably as he cried out again - in a voice that sounded strange to his own ears, wrong and not like his own voice at all.

Then, as suddenly as it had arrived, the unseen whirlwind swept away, and Matt collapsed to his knees, panting...

...only, when his eyes focused, it would seem that it wasn't his knees that he'd collapsed to, after all, but somebody else's... with him inside them.

Matt stared down in confusion, his mind trying to make sense of what it was seeing. His senses told him that he was bracing himself against the carpeted floor - but in his line of view there was pair of strong-yet-feminine hands braced against the carpet, the wrists leading upwards from them clad in black leather braces laced up the inside. Closer to the point-of-view was a gold-toned double-curve backed by black leather... and behind that, a view of what was most undoubtedly cleavage. Lightly tanned, firm cleavage, crammed into black leather... whose warmly cool, stiffly supple compression was transmitted through the nervous system that Matt was currently using.

The only part of this picture that jibed in any way with Matt's expected vista was the gold ring resting on the woman's hand...

"Great Hera...!" Matt swore in surprise, jerking backwards - and feeling the supple flex of toned legs in the motion, a grace and supple strength unlike any he'd ever felt as the female body effortlessly leapt backwards and landed, perfectly balanced, atop the couch, in a low crouch with hands spread wide...

"Great Hera...?" Matt questioned himself in that strange voice.. except it was only strange to hear it coming at his command, because he recognized it's low, smooth tones.

"Sweet Aphrodite - I'm Xena!" Matt gasped in shock as she let the toned, exquisitely agile body she was in straighten up. Stepping down off the couch, Matt felt the body she was in move at her command, relaying it's sensations to Matt's brain, providing it's sense of supple grace, easy balance and constrained power. Stunned, Matt absorbed all the sensations as she strode through the house towards the bathroom. Reaching the room, she stared at the dark opening and reached for the... the.. the 'not-ivory-but-like-it- mechanical/lightning-torch-flint.'

Matt knew that, before, she had known what it was called and where, exactly, it was located, so that she had, as Matt, flipped it in pure habit. Now, she had to consciously locate the off-white little lever and push it from down to up, flooding the bathroom with light.

Stepping through the doorway, Matt stared at the reflection that gazed back at her with cool, blue eyes. The familiar face she'd seen dozen's of times on the.. the... the 'noisy moving paintings box'.

She frowned - on her face, a decidedly threatening look. She knew that she used to know the word for what she was trying to describe, mentally - yet, the best she could do was describe it in terms that Xena would know. Except.. except that Xena wasn't real, so what she would or wouldn't know was a moot point...

...except, obviously, it wasn't.

"What?" She asked her reflection, sarcastically. "You're right in the middle of some sort of magical, mystical event... and you're hoping for internally logical structure...?"

It was as if... as if it was Matt's memories and personality, inside of Xena's body and brain. Like the cat-like way she moved, without really trying - not Matt's physical agility or motor skills, that was for sure. No, somehow, the fictional Xena was as real as she'd ever be - in the new form that Matt wore.

"The ring..." She told herself, looking down at the ring adorning her finger. It was the only thing that hadn't changed. Her clothes had become Xena's clothes in the same way her body had become Xena's - yet, there was the ring, actually looking more at home on her new finger than it had on her old, male one.

"Well..." She said, and carefully grabbed the enchanted object and pulled it from her finger.

Nothing happened. She waited several long seconds to be sure, then slid it back on her finger thoughtfully.

"Well, the good news is, if I am stuck like this, I could always make a living as a.. as a second Xena for the picture box." She told her reflection with a smooth grin. Somehow, the idea of being trapped in this body wasn't as utterly devastating as her memories and personality told her it should be - this body, despite being new to her persona, felt comfortable and familiar, probably because of what was 'carried over' from 'Xena', replacing some of that which had been Matt. Matt realized that some things in her life's outlook had changed, but those changes also kept her from panicking.

Xena, after all, was cool under pressure, sure of her ability to solve a problem. So, for as long as Matt was Xena, so would she...

"I wonder..." She asked herself - and her hand flew to her shoulder as she spun out of the bathroom with cat-like grace. Launching herself from a standing start, she did a full spin in the air, feeling herself move with unreal power and grace as the sword leapt into her hand and she landed perfectly, ducking one shoulder as she ducked into the living room...

...and stopped, laughing with sheer delight at the easy, smooth flow and flex of her new body. There would definitely be other advantages to this body, though the thought of them still greatly disturbed her mind - altered or not, Matt wasn't able to face the fact with equanimity that her new body was probably superlative in bed...

"Great in bed...!" Matt said to herself, realizing what she'd been thinking at the instant when the change had begun. She'd been watching... herself.. on the box, and had been paying attention to her moving-painting version's body and clothing...

Tossing the sword aside, Matt closed her eyes and forced herself to slow her breathing and try to concentrate. With as much will as she could muster, she formed the image of her male body, trying to recall all the details.. if maybe not all utterly accurate...

Seconds later, she cried out as the whirlwind returned, washing over her new body...

As the feeling retreated, Matt yanked the ring off his finger and scuttled back from it before he could inadvertently think of anything else. Then slowly, he rose and turned his attention to his body...

...which was easy to do, since he had neglected to think about clothing, as he had when thinking about Xena. He was standing stark naked in the middle of his living room.

He was also male again - if not exactly the same as before. He'd tried to get all the details right, but there had been some.. stray thoughts.

Not that he was complaining, mind you - he could hardly be terribly upset by the fuller, firmer muscles, or of the considerably large, thicker cock that hung between his legs...

"Holy shit...!" Matt said, staring at the ring where it lay on the carpet, gleaming innocently without giving any sign of its incredible powers.

"Well, well, well..." Matt muttered to himself, slowly slumping down to the couch...

...then yelping as his bare butt touched cold metal. He straightened and turned...

...and stared down at Xena's sword, still laying on the couch where he/she had thrown it without thinking.

Just as he'd neglected to imagine clothes on his male body, he hadn't consciously considered the sword. It appeared that anything not in direct contact with his body at the time of change... didn't.

Which made all the possibilities suddenly double and redouble, when he suddenly realized that he could, basically, create things out of thin air. As long as he imagined himself with it while wearing the ring, he could put it aside.. and it would remain when he returned to his old form.

"Well, I'll.. be.. damned..." Matt breathed, stunned, as he turned to look at the ring again. Slowly, he knelt and reverently picked it up, eyes shining in amazement.

He knew that he should be wary of anything this powerful, that he should be upset that its first use turned him female... but there was no permanent damage done, and - being an avid Sci-fi and fantasy reader - he thought he could avoid some of the 'hidden' problems. After all, enough authors had written stories like this where the 'greedy' discoverer of such an artifact did something stupid without realizing it - like changing themselves into something so stupid that they were unable to re-activate the ring. However, knowing this, Matt thought he had a pretty good shot at using this incredible discovery without much in the way of any adverse effect. Hell - on the first, accidental, use of it, he'd come out ahead - his was fitter and stronger, and considerably better endowed. If this was the sort of 'side-effect' that using the ring was going to have, he could get used to it...

"Now, don't go jumping into anything, Matt. No impulse stuff - think everything through thoroughly before you do it..." Matt told himself.. then shivered. "But first - get dressed, boy!"

As he padded off towards the bedroom for some clothes, Matt realized another benefit - since he hadn't bothered to imagine himself all dusty, like before, he no longer needed the bath...

"Wait a second...!" Matt said, coming to a dead stop as his brain began to catch up with all the implications of the enormous power he held in the form of a golden ring. "I never have to 'get dressed' ever again, if I don't want to! All I have to do is put the ring on and imagine an outfit of clothes - and they can be nice ones, too."

He paused, then grinned. "But why just change my outfit, when I can change my whole body? Seems almost a waste - what, when there's a load of bricks downstairs to be moved."

Still naked, Matt walked back to the TV - or, more specifically, to the cheap bookcase beside it, where he kept his small collection of video bought second hand. He began to search through them until he found one of the Conan movies - 'Red Sonja', to be exact. He slipped it into the VCR and switched to the video feed, then hit 'FF', letting the tape run at high-speed for a few seconds, the TV screen black. Then he hit 'Play' to see where he was.

Perfect - 'Conan' and 'Sonja' were in the middle of their sword-fight routine. Hitting pause, Matt stepped back and eyed the Barbarian's form for a minute, then closed his eyes and concentrated.

A minute later, he shook his head, feeling his long hair whip out behind him as he flexed his muscular body with joy. "This should make easy work..." He said in a thick Austrian accent, flexing his broadly muscled arms with a grin.

Turning, he headed downstairs. By now, it was dark outside and he didn't think it was likely that anybody would notice the new body he possessed as he made fairly short work of the load of bricks, carrying loads much larger than he would have been able to in his own body, as he quickly moved the stack of bricks outside into the back yard.

Finished, he returned to the living room, his face split in a wide grin at the unlimited possibilities offered by the chance to change his body in any way he might desire.

Closing his eyes, Matt prepared to change back - then paused with a thought.

"Might as well have a collection..." He rumbled in his current 'Conan' voice, as he slipped his barbaric sword from its leather sheath and dropped it onto the couch on top of the Xena sword. He grinned at the thought of how much two 'authentic reproduction' swords might fetch...

Closing his eyes, Matt concentrated on the more-muscular and better-endowed version of his body... Nothing happened. The easy grin slid from his face after a minute as he realized that he wasn't changing.

"This... could be bad..." Matt told himself, a frown of worry crossing his broad new brow at the thought that he might be stuck in this body.

Maybe it was because this body was even more muscular than the one he was trying to form - maybe part of him didn't want to be the less fit and athletic Matt. The problem was, 'Conan' hadn't exactly been renowned for brilliance, mentally, so Matt's own thought processes were slower and thicker, and it made puzzling out this frightening turn of events even more difficult.

Well, 'Xena' had been pretty good at remaining cool and calm while she thought. Maybe he should slip back into her body, see if he could figure it out...

Closing his eyes again, Matt formed the mental image of the Warrior Princess... Once again, absolutely nothing happened.

Now, Matt was really beginning to worry. Opening his eyes, he looked around in mild fear at the thought that he might really be trapped in a body whose brain was ill-equipped with dealing with modern life. Hell, he couldn't even remember exactly how to use the magic picture box, and...

Matt's eye settled on the motionless picture on the magic box.. and he eyed the other form sharing the screen with the image of the one he was currently wearing. Studying it for a second, he closed his eyes and concentrated...

...and felt a burst of welcome relief as the whirlwind returned.

A moment later, she straightened and flexed her arms, looking down at her tall, toned - and feminine - form. A form that was an exact duplicate of 'Sonja'.

"Well.. the ring's not broken. The magic still works." She told herself, striding across the room with panther-like grace and power to sit on the chair in the corner. "Yet I was not able to return to my other forms..."

Then it hit her. For some reason, the ring wouldn't allow the user to 'revisit' a form they'd already held...

Though Sonja wasn't, technically, 'real', she was supposedly from a culture steeped in magic and lore, and her mind was more admirably suited for looking at the otherwise illogical 'rules' of magic than Matt's own brain was. It might have taken her even longer to figure it out in any other form, but here and now it all came together - whatever magic the ring held, it only allowed each form to be held once. The only reason she had been able to become Matt again at all was because it wasn't quite the same Matt she'd been originally - technically, it was a different form...

She would have to be more careful using the ring than she'd thought. The more often she switched forms, the more she 'wasted' potential bodies she might want to use at a later date. At least she knew that she could go back to being 'Matt', though, so she would do that.

Sliding her sword from its sheath, she added it to the small pile of weapons on the couch and prepared to change into a slightly different form of Matt...

She paused as another thought occurred to her.

The 'Matt' forms were the one she'd have to be the most careful about going into. After all, she wanted to be able to use the only valid ID she had, and that was for the original Matt. There were only so many variations on that Matt that could be used that wouldn't draw attention to her. If she suddenly became a lot taller, shorter, or in any other way remarkably different, people were going to notice.

"Maybe I should wait..." She mused, looking around. "I do not need to be Matt right now, so I should not waste a change to that body." It made sense. She could just change into another body...

She paused as she realized that was hardly any better. After all, she'd really already wasted 'Conan'. Imagine that someday somebody attacked her while she was Matt. Some big, muscular guy with a knife. It would have been great to suddenly turn into Conan, broadsword in hand... but that chance was now gone, wasted. Any body that she might use later shouldn't be 'wasted' as a placeholder.

Frowning, she considered her situation. The first priority was to keep as many 'Close to original Matt' bodies available, so that she would be able to return to her 'real' life. The next priority was not to 'throw away' all the potentially useful bodies...

Which meant that the placeholder bodies should be ones that she would never use, otherwise. In fact, the less likely it was that she'd ever want to wear the body seriously meant it was that much better suited to just housing her mind without wasting a change.

"So - I guess this body is as good as any, for now." Matt said, looking around. "It is very weird to be a woman. But, I would never go outside as a woman, I think, so this is not wasting this body. Yes - this is a good body for now."

Matt felt really weird to be 'voluntarily' remaining female - but it was the most sensible thing to do. After all.. why waste perfectly good male bodies when she didn't need to?

Besides - she was tired. She'd been working hard all day, and it was getting late. Whatever magic held in the ring, it didn't dispel her weariness. Sure, this body was more fit and had longer endurance, and she could probably push it much farther than she ever could her original one - but that didn't stop her from feeling the exhaustion. So, she was just going to go to bed - and any body was as good as another for sleeping in, wasn't it?

Looking around, Matt realized that this wasn't exactly the ideal body - she had no idea how to make everything in the room go dark and quiet. She could spend two hours in here figuring out all the odd artifacts of the 'modern' world.

The semi-good news was that Matt's memories let her know that nothing terribly untoward would happen if she just left everything the way it was and went to bed. Shrugging her broad, muscular shoulders, she padded off towards the bedroom.

The room was dark, and she didn't bother trying to figure out how to make it light - this body had the night-vision of a cat, it seemed. Quickly, she stripped out of what scanty clothing she wore, feeling her slick, taut muscles sliding under her hands as she undressed... and finding the sensation new and different, though definitely not physically unpleasant.

Sliding into the bed was an interesting experience. Matt's memories insisted that she'd been here dozens of times - yet, to her body, it felt softer and more comfortable than any body had a right to expect.

Her mind remembered sleeping on beds her whole life - her body remembered pallets at inns, or the ground beside the fire...

Forcing her smoothly rounded muscles to relax, she closed her eyes and sighed at the luxury of the bed beneath her. It was an unexpected bonus, the chance to re-experience the simple pleasure of sleeping on a soft bed.. and she felt so warm and comfortable...

Laying there, she had a thought. It was a thought that was half her new body's instincts, and half inquisitiveness of her male mind.. but the two halves formed a single thought, and she hesitantly shifted in the bed.

In the dark, she felt her smoothly muscled arms pressed warmly against her sides, and she let them lift and slid upwards, strongly feminine hands moving over a taut, smooth stomach as she slid her palms onto her taut abdomen.

Slowly, her left hand slid upwards in the dark, crossing slick, tautly muscled flesh as it rose upwards.. and slid across the smooth, firm form of one taut, firm mound. She shivered slightly at the sensation as her fingers grazed her new breast, feeling it's warm, round shape beneath her palm.

As a male, she'd had some - if not a terribly lot - of experience in touching a woman's breast, and the mind remembered the feel and enjoyed the experience, externally - but now she experienced it internally as well, not only feeling the good-sized, firm breast in her hand, but feeling that hand through the softly firm flesh of her new endowment. Slowly, with graceful movements, she began to massage the flesh of her breast, making a low, peculiarly cat-like, sound in the back of her throat at the pleasant feeling of caressing her new, feminine chest.

As if the purring moan was a signal, her right hand began to trace downwards. Her questing fingers lightly slid through the small, neatly trimmed patch of pubic hair that surrounded her dark cleft, while her other hand continued to massage her breast, swirling round as it closed in on her nipple.

Just as the fingers of her left hand met her now-engorged nipple, her right hand slid a finger into the warm embrace of her new womanhood...

She gasped, shivering with pleasure as she was penetrated... and more than just a hint of shame. Some part of her male mind insisted that this was wrong on a very fundamental level - but that voice was overridden by both her female body's own instincts, and the part of her male brain that was excited and intrigued.

It was as if one of the great secrets of the universe lay beneath her hands. No other man got to discover what she was about to find, the true sensations felt by women.. and it would be a very pleasant experiment, from all the indications....

Slowly at first, she began to move her finger in and out of her tight, damp new cunt, her body showing her how to apply pleasure in a certain direction to maximize the pleasure as her finger slid back and forth over very sensitive nerve-bundles. Some of her attention was drawn away from her breast as she paid more and more interest in her new womanhood - but her hand continued to massage her breasts, teasing and squeezing them of its own accord as she made another, louder, sound of pleasure, finger increasing in rhythm and force as she began to seriously explore the feminine experience she'd started.

She tossed her head to either side and moaned sharply as her finger's manipulations caused the pleasure begin to mount steadily. Brushing again and again over her new clit was causing a logarithmic rising of pleasure, the sensitive form the last stroke not fading before the next one increased it. It was as if she were looking at a horse on the horizon, glancing away every few seconds. Every time she looked back, the horse was that much closer...

Except that horse was named 'Orgasm', and it was her hand that was moving, not her eyes. Eagerly, her hand increased its pace, urging the horse onward, going to a full gallop as her hips began to buck, driving her new, soaking-wet cunt up onto her finger, which suddenly seemed much too small and insignificant for the task.

A second finger slid in to redouble the feeling, and her hips bucked and writhed, muscular buttocks thrusting her upwards as she tried to force fingers too short for the task to reach all the way in and become enclosed in the eager walls of her womanhood. Her breath was a series of gasps that matched the frantic pace of her hand and hips as she screamed out for the horse to run, run as hard and fast as it could. Orgasm closed on her as she bucked and writhed on the bed, desperately trying to increase the pleasure she was feeling, trying to redouble the ecstasy thrumming through her new form...

She cried out, a long, wordless cry of mixed pleasure and frustration as her body when absolutely rigid, cunt clamping down over her fingers as the female orgasm shook her body - and then released her, leaving her to collapse limply on the bed, taut body slicked with a sheen of sweat.

"Damn..." She muttered. "Not a horse.. just a damned pony "

Then she realized, with a start, that she was complaining about the relative lack of intensity of her 'first' female orgasm. It had been.. different then male orgasm felt, and about as pleasurable as masturbating as a man had been - yet her female body knew something her male mind didn't, and seemed to regard the sharp, quick burst of pleasure as being... second rate.

Feeling somewhat guilty, Matt withdrew her fingers from her crotch, the sharp tang of her feminine juices filling the room as she blushed mightily at what she'd just done... and how good it had felt.

As she rolled over and let herself slide towards sleep, however, part of her female body continued to insist there was something that felt much, much better...

* * * * *

An unimaginable beast gave forth a shrill battle-cry only inches from where she lay. She awoke suddenly, hand dashing for a sword that wasn't there. Twisting, moving out of instinct rather than thought, she lashed out sharply to give the beast pause as she regrouped and found a more formidable weapon...

...and the screaming sound went silent as something crunched under her hand.

Blinking the last vestiges of sleep from her eyes, Matt stared down at the small black box that lay in pieces beneath her fist.

"Damn..." She sighed, rolling smoothly out of bed as her heart slowed back to its normal rhythm. She looked back over at the crushed 'magic rooster box'... and had to laugh, wryly. Obviously, another general problem with this body was its rather martial instincts...

She yawned and stretched, finding the easy flex and power of her muscular form pleasant, if not just a bit strange. To feel so comfortable in a female body...

Then she blushed anew at the memory of just how 'comfortable' she'd gotten the night before.

Shaking her head, she padded out of the bedroom towards the bathroom... then paused, realizing that she wasn't quite positive how one used the wondrous outhouse in the building, much less took care of the other morning routines she'd need to accomplish.

She'd had no immediate plans for changing bodies, not wanting to 'waste' a new form - especially a 'Matt' one - when she didn't have to work today and wasn't planning to go out into public immediately.

Now, she realized that this - or any other 'past' body - might not be the best idea for a place-holder, unless she was out camping in the woods. There, this body would be right at home.

Stretching again, she padded back into the bedroom and retrieved the magic ring. She didn't want to just simply wear it, despite the fact that it appeared to magically change size to always fit her finger. There was too much likelihood of an errant thought causing a change - and while that might not be 'embarrassing' when she was ensconced in the privacy of the house, it would still 'waste' a body.

Since she was going to change shortly, she didn't bother putting any clothes on. Oh, sure, she might put on the 'Sonja' clothes, just to get rid of them when she changed... but why bother? Maybe she could sell them as a costume.

Padding out to the kitchen, she eyed the white-and-glass object on the counter ruefully. She knew that it was used for making some wondrous, somewhat magical concoction known as 'coffee', but its use was beyond her current skills and knowledge, unless she wanted to take all the time to puzzle it out. It was literally centuries ahead of where her mind was, regardless of what her memories knew.

Sitting at the table, she considered what she had planned for today. Before all of this started, today she was going to do some cleaning, something she hardly looked forward to. Still, it needed to be done - and this identity was as ill-suited for it as possible, even less likely to get the place clean than Matt's usual half-hearted effort.

"What I need is a maid..." She muttered to herself - then paused, a smile slowly blossoming. "No..." She muttered, slipping the ring on her finger. "Not a maid..."

She let her eyes slide shut as she stood up and pushed the chair back out of the way, as the 'wind' began to ripple across her body...

When the change finished, she gracefully glided over to the small mirror mounted above the stove and lightly patted her hair to make sure that every strand was perfectly in place, then lightly smoothed her powder-blue dress over her shapely figure, smiling at her reflection.

"Looking good, Mrs. Cleaver..." she told herself, cocking her head as she looked at herself. It seemed odd to see the Beaver's mother in living color, with her porcelain skin suffused with the healthy glow of life and her golden blonde hair rich and colorful - it almost made her look like a completely different woman than the one she remembered from the black and white TV image. The dress, the white pumps and the pearl necklace were all familiar, though.

"I wonder if these are real pearls...?" She asked herself in the warm contralto of June Cleaver. "I'll have to remember to take off my jewelry and put it aside before I change again..."

Turning away from the mirror, Matt - as June - began to clean up, moving with easy graceful movements that bespoke long habit and little apathy. Somehow, in this body, Matt felt almost... content as she went around the house, cleaning and tidying, do a more thorough job than ever before without having to think about it. In fact, she fell into a sort of daze, a faint smile on her lips as she cleaned and washed with actions more habit than consciously directed.

Humming to herself, Matt straightened out the living room, then stepped back to take a better look. A faint frown touched her lightly lipstick-clad lips, and she gracefully walked to the back door and opened it, stepping lightly and gracefully onto the back step, where she carefully knelt, unconsciously making sure her dress hem wasn't soiled as she carefully picked a small bouquet of the wild-flowers around the back step.

Straightening, she turned to go into the house.. and caught sight of a couple of young men a few doors down, sitting on their back deck drinking what appeared to be beer, directly from the bottle.

Matt sighed and grimaced at the youth of today, then let her lips spread in an easy, warm smile as she lifted on slender hand. "Morning, boys!" She called, warmly.

"Uh, morning, uh.. Ma'am..." One of them replied, awkwardly, while the other just gaped. Rolling her baby-blue eyes, Matt stepped into the house...

...then stopped dead.

"What did I just do...?" She asked herself in surprise. She'd been so.. comfortable in the role she was playing that it hadn't occurred to her until just now that she shouldn't have stepped outside where she could be seen - much less said 'Good Morning' to a couple of the potheads from down the street!

Shaking her head at her own actions, Matt picked up the ring from the kitchen counter and hurried back into the living room, where she deposited the flowers into an until-now unused vase.

"Gee, Mrs. Cleaver, you do a wonderful job keeping house..." Matt muttered to herself. "But you're too friendly and not nearly suspicious enough. You nearly got me into trouble..."

That was the one major flaw, so far. The new bodies had the skills and habits of the person they were supposed to be - and sometimes those could trip up Matt's mind. He hadn't been paying much attention, letting her body do its job without much conscious direction...

Well, now the house was more spic-and-span than it had ever been since he'd moved in, and June had served her purpose. It was time to pick a body a little more... well, 'paranoid', really.

Quickly, Matt removed all the jewelry she was wearing, piling it neatly on top of the end table as she tried to choose an appropriate person to become... while not 'wasting' a good body. After all, she still wasn't planning to go anywhere, so no sense wasting a 'Matt' body...

Just then, the phone rang, spurring Matt's brain into full gear. Quickly, she slid the ring onto her finger, preparing to become a close replica to her original body...

...then realized it wasn't necessary to look very much like Matt. She just had to sound like him... The phone was on its sixth ring when Matt grabbed it up and said "Hello?".

"Hey, Matt - thought maybe you'd gone out or something." Becky's voice said, brightly - leaving Matt to blink in surprise as he lowered his much shorter version of his body onto the couch. Becky was one of the girls who worked at the video store with Matt. She was a beautiful, bubbly blonde who was cheerful and friendly to everybody - to a degree. She was definitely outside of Matt's league, and he'd barely spoken to her outside of work.. and he hadn't realized that she even knew his phone number.

"No - just doing some cleaning..." Matt said with a grin at the 'truth'. He shifted his tiny, compact frame on the couch, feeling weird now that his feet wouldn't reach the floor from the couch. "I certainly was expecting to hear from you today... or any day, really. To what do I owe the honor?"

The usually chipper, upbeat Becky sounded incredibly embarrassed. "I, uh, really, really hate to ask, and... no, never mind. Just forget it..."

"No, no - go ahead." Matt urged, wondering what could get her so embarrassed.

There was a long pause - and then she laughed at herself. "Well, I was wondering if, I.. uh.. could kick you out of your own house for a night."

Whatever Matt might have expected, that wasn't it. "Huh?"

She laughed again, the wry laugh that was so unlike her. "I'm sorry - I shouldn't have even asked. I feel so ashamed. It's... it's just that the two girls I was roommates with in college dropped by. They figured we would stay at my place, sort of a slumber party... but, somehow, I never explained that I've got this tiny little apartment, and now that they're here..."

"...without enough money to spring for a big hotel room..." Matt added, with a grin. "And I've been telling everybody at work about the whole house I've got to myself..."

"Yeah, well... Never mind. It was stupid for me to even bother you." Becky said, obviously mortified that she'd even let herself call to ask such a big favor from a co-worker she barely knew. "I mean, I have no right to ask you to loan your house to three girls, two of whom you don't even know. Especially since we'd be kicking you out... It was supposed to be a 'girl only' thing, and having a guy around that they don't know.. not that we think you'd.. that is..."

She was getting bogged down in her own embarrassment - and Matt already knew he was going to let her have the house. Not only was he a soft touch for a girl, especially one so embarrassed - but it would put him in her good books. Too bad he couldn't hang around though...

Then a thought occurred to him. All of this ran through his mind in the space of a few seconds, including the incredible, embarrassing, wild thought.. which he went ahead and blurted out before he could change his mind.

"Hey, actually - that's perfect!" He said, brightly. "You and your friends are welcome to spend the night here!" Becky sounded amazed. "Really?"

"You bet!" Matt said, struggling to maintain the 'chipper' voice - as he blushed in mortification, barely able to believe he was doing this. "With one condition..."

"Oh...?" Becky asked, cheerfully wary.

"Well, an old acquaintance of mine is spending the night here. Somebody I know from high-school.. but we were never that close. Truth is, the only reason she's here is because her car broke down while she was passing through town, and between the unexpected bill of repairs and her own funds.. she was desperate for a place to spend the night. She's not all that.. comfortable spending the night in the same house as an almost-stranger, either, but she felt even worse about staying here alone when I suggested I would go to a hotel for the night. Let her stay, and you've got a deal!"

Matt could barely believe he'd just committed himself to spending the night as a woman - in front of other women. Still, it would be a fantastic chance to find out things about Becky - and to 'talk up' how great a guy Matt was to her.

"Uh..." Becky hesitated, surprising Matt anew - he would have thought she would have jumped at the chance. "I.. I'm not sure I can, uh, agree to that..."

"Is there a problem?" Matt asked, confused.

He could practically hear the blush over the phone as Becky answered. "Well, I was.. sort of wild in college... mainly because of these two. They're really wild girls.. uh, downright.. raunchy. Not very... subtle or sedate. I mean, it took me awhile to, uh, get used to how, um... uninhibited they are. The way they talk, uh, is sort of... well, 'raunchy'. And we were sort of planning to uh, get, uh..."

"Smashed?" Matt laughed, understanding. He'd heard stories from other people about how 'crazy' some people let themselves get at college, away from their normal friends and family... though he hadn't thought Becky was one of those. "Trust me, that's not a problem."

"You sure that.. uh..." Becky paused... and Matt had to think fast again, to come up with a good name for his 'friend'. It couldn't be anything close to his own...

"Lori." He supplied.

"You don't think Lori would mind?" Becky asked.

Since 'Lori' could be anybody Matt wanted her to be, he was damned sure of it. "Oh, no... Lori's not exactly.. uh... 'Ladylike' herself." "Then that would be perfect!" Becky gushed - and Matt knew he was racking up the points already.

"Great!" Matt said, grinning. "I'll clear out fast, and Lori will be here to let you in whenever you and your friends want to come over." Giving her the address of his place, Matt hung up the phone - then stared at it for a long moment.

"I don't believe I just did that!" He told himself, amazed at what he'd done - but this was just too good an opportunity to pass up. Here was a real chance to make major points with Becky.. and he really had a thing for her.

Which meant... all he had to do was 'invent' Lori before Becky and her friends showed up.

Going into the kitchen, Matt put the ring down on the table, then placed a pad of note-paper down next to it, along with a pen. Grabbing a beer from the fridge, he sat down to think - he needed to work out 'Lori' perfectly, and play with the abilities of the ring - he might as well combine several things into one, since he wanted everything to be ready for tonight, and he wasn't exactly rolling in the dough.

Sure, he had a few items he might be able to sell for cash, like the swords - but that would take time, and he was sort of in a hurry.

Laying the pad of paper in front of him, he began with the basics - 'Lori'. He needed to come up with her - her personality, her background, her body. It was 'easy' to change into a 'character' from TV - after all, the body was there to look at, and he already had a pre-determined 'image' of their personality, which the magic used to create his new form. Now, however, he couldn't use anybody even semi-famous, in case one of the girls recognized 'her' - and that could get messy. He figured he'd leave the actual 'body' for last, since that was secondary at the moment - he wasn't trying to impress anybody with his looks, after all. What he had to make sure was that 'Lori' would be able to pass as a woman, so he'd have to make sure that the persona would have a history that would have allowed her to learn everything she'd need to know.

Matt also wanted to see if he couldn't have 'Lori' 'bring' some things with her, so to speak...

Matt wrote on the paper, crossed things out, scribbled new things in. Loosing track of time, he worked away at defining the woman he was going to play tonight. His minor obsession was understandable, of course - this was going to be his 'debut' in front of an audience. The two guys up the street who had seen 'June' didn't really count, of course.

First of all, he didn't want to do anything that might ruin the evening. Becky had worried that 'Lori' might be offended by some of the things her friends said or did - so Matt noted that Lori shouldn't be offended or embarrassed or upset by anything. Hell. Lori should be as easy-going and 'raunchy' as the others, to fit in - so she should feel free to say or do anything without worrying about it.

Lori would need to be from New York, where Matt grew up. That would explain how she was a high-school acquaintance, and why she was passing through town. She should also be the same age as Becky and her friends. Matt didn't know how old her friends were, but Becky was twenty-seven, so Lori should be.. Twenty eight...

An hour later, Matt felt ready. Closing his eyes, he slipped the ring on his finger and concentrated on the mental image of the person he'd created...

Again, that strange still wind swept through his body, rocking him back and forth. and when it departed, she had changed.

Opening her eyes, she looked down at herself, putting down the bags full of booze and smokes she'd imagined herself carrying.

Everything seemed.. all right. She was dressed, as she'd imagined, in a somewhat baggy black T-shirt and a pair of faded black jeans, plus black cowboy boots. Her body seemed to be the tomboyish sort of figure he'd imagined, a little on the short side and athletic-yet- feminine.

Tucking the ring into the pocket of her jeans, Lori strolled towards the bathroom to get the whole picture, while trying to probe her mind for any signs that the personality plans she'd made had gone awry. The first good sign was that she felt calm, even confident - cocky, actually, which was reflected in her stride. She'd imagined a New York girl - a smoker and a drinker, cool and a little arrogant, unable to be offended by 'raunchy' people, as she wasn't exactly an angel herself. In short, a pretty average New York girl, tough and matter-of- fact, as if growing up in the street of New York and making it proved everything that ever needed to be proved.

Looking in the mirror showed that the body had come out right, too - not that it would have been a problem if there were a few glitches. After all, her new persona couldn't be embarrassed, surprised or upset. Lori had made sure to specify that she was relaxed and unflappable, completely comfortable in any given situation. It was a guarantee that she wouldn't be nervous tonight, despite the fact that she was 'playing' a woman in front of an audience.

She was slightly shorter than average, with a strong-yet-attractive face beneath a short mop of dark black hair. Her features were stamped with the faintest look of a 'know-it-all', and every gesture she moved was cocky and confident - just as she'd expected.

"This night's gonna be a fuckin' breeze.." She told her reflection with an easy smile. "You did good, Matt. I feel..."

She paused. She was going to say 'great' - but that wasn't quite true. What she really felt was... nothing. No worried, no concerns, no hint of the need to watch herself. She was safe, she was perfect - she'd covered all the bases and everything was fine. If anything did go wrong, she'd be able to handle it, no problem.

Winking confidently at her reflection, she strolled back to the kitchen. Picking up the bags, she put them on the counter and pulled the bottles of booze and mixers from the bags and either putting them on the counter or in the fridge, depending. When she reached the carton of smokes, she tore it open and extracted a pack.

Though she'd never smoked, as Matt, Lori lit one up and inhaled a deep drag of smoke confidently and easy. It felt completely natural and comfortable, and was as part of her new persona as was her somewhat boyish body.

Grabbing one of the beers she'd just materialized with her new body, Lori walked out into the living room. Grabbing an empty planter to use as an ashtray, she flicked on the TV and sat back to await Becky and her friends.

They arrived around four in the afternoon, after Lori had already had several beers and a light snack of some pizza pockets.

Lori congratulated herself on having defined her blasé attitude into her new persona - otherwise, she might have down something to give away the surprise she would have felt at seeing Becky, who she'd supposedly never met before. Instead, she didn't even feel surprise at the unusual sight that greeted her when she let Becky and her friends into the house.

Becky was a short, slender blonde with a tiny waist and perky tits, and an even perkier attitude... usually. Now, she was obviously somewhat uncomfortable, yet excited. Which wasn't surprising. Usually dressing like the All American girl, she was definitely 'out of character' in a just-above-the-knees leather skirt and tight, bright-yellow T-shirt. Obviously, this was a throwback to the 'wild' times of her college days, when she'd fallen into a bad crowd - her friends Donna and Jan.

Donna was a tall, leggy brunette, dressed in a short, tight black spandex mini-skirt and a black crop-top that did wonders for her long legs and tight ass, but didn't really help her small bust. She was sort-of pretty, and the deficiencies of her face were further obscured by her long, curly brown hair and bright make-up.

Jan, on the other hand, was shorter than Becky, but not as slender. She wore the most 'sedate' outfit of the three, a pair of faded black jeans and a dark-gray sweater... but that was all she needed, since the sweater was tight, and quite clearly revealed the large tits that lurked beneath. About a triple 'D'-cup, they were big and firm on a short, somewhat stout body, and drew all the attention away from her face, which looked like a grinning leprechaun beneath her shortish thatch of copper hair. She was obviously as easy-going as Donna was aloof.

Lori introduced herself and invited them in, saying that Matt had already left. She pointed them causally in the direction of the booze in the kitchen, then dropped back on the couch, tossing her pack of smokes to Donna when the leggy brunette asked for one.

Lori didn't feel happy or angry or sad about either of the girls - or Becky herself, for that matter. Instead, she continued in that same, basically uncaring mood, and she felt superior to the others knowing she was smart enough to pick a personality that would keep her from disliking any of the girls, which might have caused problems.

All the girls got themselves drinks, and sat around the living room and began to 'shoot the shit', discussing this and that, basically blathering on. Lori found the talk neither interesting or boring, making occasional - mostly sarcastic - comments as she listened, rarely saying anything important or starting any new topics as the girls slowly but steadily got more and more tipsy.

Lori had allowed herself an attitude that kept her from disliking the other girls - but as the afternoon faded into evening, it was becoming obvious that Donna was getting more and more annoyed with the 'Smart-Mouth' New Yorker. Finally, about seven o'clock, she sighed and stared daggers at Lori.

"What the hell is it with you, anyway?" She demanded, angrily. "This was supposed to be a fun night for us, and you're fucking it all up. Can't you just fucking loosen up and act like a real human being?"

"Hey, I could be anything I wanted to be." Lori replied, unaffected by the outburst. "I just choose this, was all." "Oh, I see - you choose to be this smart-mouthed bitch..." Donna retorted.

"Hey, now..." Becky tried to intervene.

"Yeah, I did." Lori replied, evenly. Digging into her pocket, she pulled out the ring and held it up for all to see. "See this? It's a magic ring that allows a person to become anybody they imagine, body and personality. I'm really Becky's friend Matt, and I used this to change myself into Lori so I wouldn't have to get kicked out for the night."

"Oh, yeah.. right..!" Donna snorted.

None of this bothered Lori. Even telling about the ring didn't worry her - she felt as confident as ever as she tossed it over to a startled Donna, who just barely managed to catch it.

"Go ahead - give it a try." Lori shrugged, uncaring.

"Yeah, okay, I'll do that." Donna snorted, putting the ring on. "Since I'm a little flat-cheated, I'll just imagine that I've got bigger tits..."

Almost as the words left her mouth, the unseen whirlwind rushed in...

..running over Lori's body. She gasped in shock as the mental changes faded as her body writhed and reshaped itself...

In the space of a minute, Lori had disappeared to be replaced with an exact clone of Donna, clothes and all.. except the crop-top was now nicely filled by a perfect pair of double-D's.

"What the fuck...?" Four voices - two of them identical - echoed in the same instant.

"Holy shit! It really is a magic ring!" Jan said, falling off her chair as her gaze numbly switched between the unevenly-endowed clones.

"Hey - how come you're me,... with the bigger tits!" Donna cried, staring down at her own chest and then - angrily/longingly - at Lori/Donna's.

"Oh, shit - if this is real.. then you really are.. or were.. Matt!" Becky said, gazing at the bustier clone wide-eyed.

With the mental 'coolness' gone, Matt/Donna was able to think 'normally' again - and she swore, hands jumping to cradle her enlarged shit.

"What the hell was that!" She said, staring around.. and then blushing furiously. "Oh, shit...!" "Matt...?" Becky said, hesitantly - and the flush deepened.

"Uh.. yeah..." Matt admitted in shame. "Uh, sorry... I didn't mean to, uh, upset anybody. I just kinda wanted.."

"To spy on us...?" Donna finished, now glaring at Matt's fuller breasts. "What the hell's going on - and how come you got the tits I wanted? How do I get those tits?"

"I.. I don't know..." Matt stammered, thinking rapidly as he stared down at his new cleavage. "I, uh.. I don't think you can."

"You said that this was a magic fucking ring! It turned you from a guy into a girl, and then into the way I want to look...!" Donna said, angrily.

"yeah.. I guess it's, like, tuned to me now..." Matt said, trying to figure it out for himself. "I guess it can only change me, now. Uh.. here, you'd better give it back. It can't do anything for you now, I guess..."

Donna slipped the ring off her finger and looked down at it.. then looked up at Matt. "Wait a second.. this things for real. You really are a guy! So what the fuck are you doing as a woman."

Matt's blush brightened.. and , shame-faced, he outlined what had happened, from the first accidental change to Xena to his... sneaky plot.

"I'm sorry..." He finished, miserably. "I didn't mean anything by it."

The three girls were sitting together on the couch now, looking at him strangely.

"You turned yourself into a girl to score points with me...?" Becky asked, eyebrow climbing. "that's.. twisted. Funny.. but twisted..." She giggled.

Donna shared a look with Jan - and they laughed, too, not quite as girlishly.

"Man.. that is pretty desperate. You actually turned yourself into a girl.. so maybe, later, you could get laid as a guy."

"It's not quite like that!" Matt protested, face burning up. "I mean, I'll be honest, the thought crossed my mind... but I wasn't trying to be nasty or cruel or dishonest. Just.. well, sort of 'experimenting' with the ring."

The girls looked at each other again - and grinned.

"He wants to experiment with the ring..." Donna parroted.

"The ring we have..." Becky said, grinning wickedly at a suddenly nervous Matt.

"The ring that can turn him into anything we imagine.. and make his personality anything we imagine..." Jan finished, with a chuckle. "Hey!" Matt said, holding up his hands. "Hey, you wouldn't...!"

Donna grinned at the other girls, getting tacit agreement from whatever they were all thinking - and then she turned to Matt. "Oh, don't freak out, Matt." She said. "We aren't going to hurt you. In fact, we understand."

Matt blinked warily. "You do...?"

"Sure..." Donna assured her. "After all.. now that we have the ring and know what it can do.. we want to experiment too. On you." "Hey..." Matt said, eyes widening.

"Oh, we're not going to just change you." Donna assured him. "that wouldn't be right. You may have done something pretty sneaky and twisted, but you didn't mean any harm to anybody. At worst, you were just hoping to improve your chances of getting laid." She grinned. "Well.. how would you like a guarantee that each of us with fuck you like you've never been fucked before?"

Matt had read enough stories to avoid that one. "What - meaning you're going to get a bunch of big strap on..." "No!" Donna said, genuinely offended.. then she giggled. "It never crossed my mind, but now that you mention it.." "Never mind." Matt said shortly, using Donna's own tone of voice against her.

"Okay, okay." Donna allowed. "I was being sincere. We will each have sex with you, after you go back to being male... If you let us each change you and 'play' with you for..." She glanced up at the clock. "It's eight o'clock now. How about each of us gets four hours, and then at eight in the morning you get the ring back."

Matt's eyes narrowed in a very Donna-esque way. "Just to make sure we're clear on this... What are you offering...?"

Donna grinned. "Hey, we're fair. You allow us to play with you, magically, for four hours - and, after some sleep, you get four hours with each of us, during which we'll do anything you ask, as long as it doesn't cause any severe physical pain or lasting damage."

Matt's eyes widened.. and she mirrored Donna's own grin back at her at the thought. However, the cost of it could be.. quite high...

"Well... What if I put an escape clause in?" Matt said, not sure if she wanted to take the risk. "What do you mean?" donna asked.

Matt grinned. "We do this on a per-person basis. Whoever goes first is a guaranteed one, and I am guaranteed to get my time with her... but if whatever happened was too upsetting to me, I can back out from the other two. Or, if after the second one..."

The girls looked at each other, then shook their heads.

"No. We don't want a big argument about who goes first, since you might back out." Jan explained. "It's all or nothing."

Matt pondered. After all, they could have forced this on her - they held the ring. But they were being fair...

Matt simply had no idea of what each girl's idea of 'fun' was. "Well..." Matt hesitated.. then closed her eyes. "Okay."

"Great!" Donna cried, happily. "Now - nobody can back out. It's official. Matt, do you have something we can draw to pick the order randomly?"

Matt was having serious second thoughts.. but she didn't back down. Instead, she nervously rose and went into the kitchen, returning a few minutes later with a bunch of lengths of drinking straw in her new fist.

"Hey - there's like a dozen of them in there!" Donna said. "There's only three of us!"

"this is to make it more fair." Matt said, nervously. "They're all different lengths, and you girls go longest to shortest. That way it's a fair draw, and no-one gets 'stuck; with the last straw."

"Gee.. she.. I mean he.. uh, really is being a good sport about this." Jan said, surprised.

Becky smiled. "Oh, I'm not surprised... Matt's actually a really nice guy, when he's not busy playing around with the new-found power of a magic ring. You have no idea how many times I wished he'd just ask me out..."

Matt gaped at her, weak-kneed, as she slowly and seriously winked at him, still grinning - and he knew that, no matter how this night went, it had worked out for the best. Definitely....

The three girls drew, and it ended up that Jan got the longest straw, and Becky the shortest. Jan smiled incandescently, looking at Donna-body up and down slowly.

"Well, well, well..." She said, grinning wickedly as she held out her hand and Donna dropped the ring into it. "Anything I want, huh. ?"

Matt swallowed, nervously, fighting the urge to turn and run like hell....

BACK TO FUN ZONE

---

© 1997 - 2016 TGstories.

Stories on the "Public Access" pages may be Copyright by individual authors.

Home | Membership | Terms & Conditons | Privacy Policy | Contact

SUMMARY: As the story continues, our new female finds herself and her huge tits going on display in a wet t-shirt contest.

Part Two

During the evening, Matt - then Lori - had brought his little boom-box up from the basement, and now it sat in the corner of the room, quietly playing a Top 40 radio station.

Matt could barely hear the music above the rushing of blood in her ears as she shifted her weight from one leg to the other, her Donna- like body stiff and nervous as she eyed Jan's wickedly cheerful grin.

"Well, the first thing we need to do..." Jan said, closing her eyes and concentrating. "Is a little 'prep' work..."

Once again, the familiar feeling of a stiff wind in the still room whirled and danced around Matt's feminine body as Jan invoked the power of the magic ring she'd found yesterday morning. She shivered as she felt her body and clothing writhing, shifting from the Buxom Donna form into something different...

Then it was over... and Matt hesitantly looked down at the new body that she wore.

Only - it had barely changed. The breasts were smaller, splitting the difference between the enlarged ones of a moment before and Donna's own, small breasts. In fact, the only major change was in what she had with her... and she groaned as she leaned to the side and let the heavy case she was holding drop on the floor, then repeated the action for the big suitcase in the other hand.

"Gently, gently...!" Jan chided with a smile, pointing to the black Ballistic Nylon case that the new Matt/Donna had just put down. "That's a very expensive telescope!"

Aside from Matt herself, it was perky, blonde Becky who was having the hardest time wrapping her brain around all the sudden revelations of the evening. She raised an eyebrow questioningly. "A telescope?"

Jan grinned. "Yup. It's not terribly high-magnification, but it has a very large field of view." She turned to Matt, the smile brightening. "Part of being a girl is having to deal with more than just other girls. You planned on just having to be a girl for us tonight. Well, 'real'; girls have to deal with being seen by guys. Even 'peeping toms'."

Matt blushed as she remembered a time, when she was sixteen, that her and a friend had snuck... Never mind.

"So... I noticed a couple of guys live in the house across the street. Their front window should have a perfect view of the master bedroom upstairs..."

"Oh.. no..." Matt groaned, knowing what Jan meant. Whatever else she was planning to do, she was going to let somebody else - some guys - watch Matt's humiliation. They wouldn't know it was Matt they were watching, of course.. but Matt would know that she was being watched.

"Oh, yes!" Jan laughed. "The fact that there's a camera attached to it as well will give them some lasting memories. I bet they take a couple of rolls of 'snapshots' from tonight..."

Matt slumped her - Donna's - body onto the couch as Jan went off across the street to deliver the camera. Matt wondered what Jan was going to tell the boys...

Jan returned a bit later, flushed and grinning.

"Uh.. Jan...?" Becky said, blushing. "Uh, this means that they'll be watching us, too.. right?" Jan and Donna shared a look - and laughed. "Yeah, Becky. Just don't worry about it." Becky's blush deepened, but she shrugged.

"Okay, now it's time to get you ready for your debut." Jan told Matt. "Come on, into the kitchen. Donna, Becky - why don't you take the suitcase upstairs. We'll be up in a bit."

The other two girls nodded and left with the suitcase, while Matt nervously followed Jan into the kitchen for the 'real' change.

"Now.. part of what I'm going to do is make you unable to act as if you know you're being watched." Jan told Matt, grinning. "After all, we're just four girls having a slumber party in the house 'Matt' so kindly let us borrow. Of course, Me and Becky are the only ones who knows that the agreement really was that I get the guys across the street to photograph everything and give him copies..."

"You didn't...!" Matt gasped in Donna's voice - and Jan's smug grin told Matt that she had, indeed. Not only was everything going to end up on film - Matt was going to have 'souvenirs' of the evening.

"Well... let's get to it, shall we...?" Jan asked, with a grin, turning the gold ring around on her finger as she closed her eyes and concentrated.

Once more, that strange whirlwind rippled through the still air and around Matt's body. She gasped as she felt her body writhe and reshape itself yet again, her clothes altering as well as she shuddered and shook in the grip of the change...

...and then it was over.

"Well... Looking good, Loni." Jan said, giving the newly formed woman her name. "thanks..." Loni said, a bit sourly, as she lowered her head to see what she could see. The first thing she saw was... cleavage. And lots of it.

The new woman was wearing a pale-gray bandeau top, and it's design displayed an amazing amount of milky cleavage - not surprising, since the breasts that were barely packed into the top were huge, bigger even than Jan's impressive rack. Loni's new bust was staggering, each breast slightly smaller than a volley-ball, and Loni found her new identity was 'complete' enough to know that the half-displayed tits were a nice, firm FFF (or GG) cup.

"Uh.. little big, aren't they, Jan?" Loni asked, raising her head from the view of her massive, heavy new chest. Jan winked. "Runs in the family... sis."

"What...?" Loni asked, surprised? At Jan's gesture, Loni walked over to survey some more of herself in the mirror over the stove.

Sure enough, there was a similarity between Jan and her own new body. She was taller than Jan was, and apparently a year or so older

- but the faces were similar, and Loni's shoulder-length mane of hair was the same rich shade of coppery red. Dressed in the bandeau top and the black jeans she was wearing, it was as if she were a 'stretched' version of Jan, taller and leaner with longer hair and nails.. and a bigger pair of round, firm tits.

"Okay, sis - time to join the other girls...!" Jan said, and Lori turned and smiled. Her memory told her that there was guys watching the upstairs window from across the street, but thanks to Jan she was unable to show it. Instead, she seemed completely at ease as she followed her 'sister' to the stairs and up to the bedroom where Donna and Becky were waiting.

"Okay, everybody - Loni's here...!" Jan announced with a grin, informing the others of Matt's new name. "You all remember my sister, right?"

"Sister...?" Donna giggled, eyeing Loni's buxom figure. "You certainly didn't wear her hand-me-downs, Jan..."

"Whoa... nice tits, ma... Loni..." Becky laughed. She'd been nervous when Loni had first come into the room, obviously aware of the invited 'peepers' across the street - but seeing Loni made her relax a bit. No matter what was going to happen, no matter what the guys across the street got photos of, the person they'd remember most vividly was Loni - between her big bust and her long, coppery hair, she was a startling, eye-catching figure of a woman.

"Well, girls - what say we have a little fun?" Jan said. "This being a slumber party, I figured we'd do all the standard things. How about we fool around and see how we look in some of the clothes Loni brought with her...?" She gestured towards the suitcase, which was lying on the bed, open. The lid blocked Loni's view of what was inside, but she doubted it was sedate, baggy clothing.

"oh, that sounds like fun." Donna grinned, looking Lori up and down. "Sort of our own private Barbie doll, huh? Let's dress her up..."

"Well, I..." Loni tried to protest... but she couldn't come up with a 'good' reason. Of course, there were several - but she was incapable of saying them or acting on them... Thanks to Jan's careful planning. She sighed, then grinned wryly. "Okay..."

"Ohhh!" Becky said, pulling a lacy little 'merry widow' ensemble out of the suitcase. "Let's see what you look like in this, Loni!"

Having no choice, Loni found her fingers going to the clothing she already wore. As she kicked off the black leather pumps she wore and peeled off her tight jeans, she did so without any sign of the embarrassment she was feeling, knowing she was actually performing a strip-tease for the guys across the street.

Next she removed the bandeau top, unzipping it and letting it fall to the floor, exposing her huge, firm tits to the cool air of the bedroom, making her large, thick nipples become fully erect. With a sigh, she reached up and began to rub her massive new tits.

"Oh, it feels good to get them out of there..." She said, finding that it was true even as she said the words. She continued to massage her breasts for a minute, ostentatiously to comfort them, after having crammed them into the bandeau top for 'so long' - but the truth it, it felt very good to feel her hands on her full breasts, and to feel the huge, volley-ball-sized tits filling her smaller, long-nailed hands.

"here you are." Becky said, handing over the lacy red lingerie - and Loni actually felt a burst of regret as she released her firm mounds to take the lingerie.

With a lot of hooting and ribbing from the 'other' girls, Loni slowly dressed in the ensemble.

She started with the red lace panties, pulling them up her smooth, nicely shaped legs and tight against her crotch, with it's heart-shaped patch of fiery pubic hair. It was an odd sensation to feel the feminine finery slip into place - though she'd been female several times now, this was her first time dressing in a feminine manner, having come fully clothed every other time.

Next she put on the lacy corsetlette, slipping it around her torso and having Jan help her lace it into place - the size and weight of her breasts made it awkward for her to do it herself.

Unsurprisingly, Jan took the opportunity to get the lacing 'just so', so that it clung tightly to her trim waist and huge, round tits,. The built- in cups of the garment fit her massive mounds perfectly, it's semi transparent material actually enhancing the view of her tits, rather than hiding them.

Sitting on the edge of the bed, Loni pulled on the matching red stockings that came with the outfit. She slid each of them up her smooth, feminine new legs and clipped them to the four garters that ran from the bottom of the corsetlette on each side.

"Wow.. you look great." Jan grinned. "But you need some shoes to go with that outfit..."

"How about these...?" Donna 'suggested' with a grin, holding up a pair of bright-red shoes with a three-inch platform and an eight-inch heel. "You'd look great in these..."

"Uh, they're a little high..." Loni said, finding a 'valid' excuse that wasn't based on the shame of being watched.

"Hey, you've worn shoes like this before. You have no problem in them." Jan informed her with a wicked grin. "go ahead - put them on and walk around a bit..."

With a sigh, Loni complied, slipping her smaller feet into the shoes and doing up the little ankle-straps that helped hold them in place. Once they were on, she stood up and found that she could, indeed, balance easily atop the slender heels.

With a sexy, hip-swaying wiggle, she walked around the room atop the high-heels, the other girls hooting as she swayed and jiggled around.

"Hot stuff comin' through!" Donna cried, laughing. "C'mon, baby - shake that money maker...!"

Lori began to caress her own body through the lacy garments as she over-exaggerated her walk and stance, play-acting like a stripper, as a woman in the circumstances she was in might... if they didn't know they were being watched. Loni simply wasn't allowed to factor that part in as she 'played' with her friends in the 'privacy' of the bedroom.

"Wow, Loni - you really know the moves!" Becky laughed. "Yeah - but the look's not quite right!" Donna said.

Jan snapped her fingers. "I know what you mean. Loni here needs some make-up... and jewelry..." "Well, we've got all that..." Becky said, digging into the suitcase...

Loni couldn't even blush in shame - since, for her persona, there was nothing shameful in what she was doing as she spent the next two and a half hours trying on different outfits, make-up schemes, hairstyles and jewelry. Inwardly, she burned at the ever-so-feminine actions she was performing. It was strange, but 'doing' feminine was somehow more convincing than just 'being' feminine...

What got really weird was... about halfway through, she actually began to enjoy herself. Part of her was constantly aware of being under observation... but there was nothing inherently 'harmful' in what she was doing, and while the girls were having a little fun at her expense, they weren't actually vengeful.. and they were more relaxed with her, as Loni, than they could ever be with her as Matt.

Lori had just finished modeling a new outfit and hairstyle - sort of a 40's movie 'vamp' sort of outfit, a long silk housecoat over silk lingerie that was provocative but fully covering, her hair done up in a sort of elaborate bun. She struck an exaggerated 'Betty Grable' pose.. and laughed.

"You girls don't seriously act like this when you have a slumber party, do you?" Loni asked, laughing. "I mean.. come on!"

The girls shared a look and burst out laughing. "Not usually. Oh, when we were younger, like fifteen, this was more like what our slumber parties are like... but we haven't done stuff like this in ten years..." Donna admitted.

"Actually... I'm having a blast." Becky giggled. "I know it's childish... but this is more fun than getting smashed and talking about how lousy our lovers have been recently."

Jan blinked in surprise. "You know - you're right. I'm having a ton of fun... and not all of it is just because we get to play with Loni here..." Loni laughed. "Well, since I think I can trust you gals to keep the secret... I'm having a ball, too."

The girls gaped at her in shock, and she had to laugh again.

"Really!" Loni assured them. "Oh, it was really embarrassing at first, and still is a little bit... but this is fun."

"Well... that wasn't exactly what I had in mind when this whole thing started.." Jan admitted - then grinned. "But, what the hell - I'm having fun, too. So, why not just go with the flow."

"Well, since this managed to slip from 'embarrass the new girl' into a real party, won't don't we bring some booze back in?" Jan suggested. "I was getting a bit of a buzz earlier, but Lori/Matt/Loni's little shocker sorta sobered us all up, huh?"

"Yeah." Donna agreed, looking around for a clock. "Must be almost time for my turn... Hey, what happened to your alarm clock."

"Uh..." Lori said - and this time, she was allowed to blush as she explained what had happened - which sent the other girls into gales of laughter that Loni had to admit were well earned.

"Okay, now - everybody wave to the guys..." Jan said, with a grin, setting the precedent by doing so, herself. Donna and Becky followed suit...

...which pulled the 'trigger' in Jan's little set-up. Now that the other girls were acknowledging that they were being watched...

Loni screamed, yanking the filmy housecoat around her body as she dashed from the room, leaving the other three girls to fall on the floor, rolling in laughter.

Face burning, Loni headed down the stairs... then began to chuckle herself as she went into the kitchen and mixed herself a drink, shaking her head.

Two days ago, anybody who told her what she would be doing tonight would have sounded utterly insane. Yet, here she was, a buxom red-head at a 'slumber party' with three other girls.. and enjoying herself.

Still chuckling, the other girls came into the room - and Loni flushed even brighter, making them laugh anew. "Well..." Donna said, poring herself a drink. "Now it's my turn to have some fun..."

Jan rather reluctantly handed over the ring, obviously wondering what else she could have - should have - done with her time with the ring. As Matt had already learned, the power of the ring could be... addictive.

"Okay..." Donna said, grinning. "Well, 'Lori' and I didn't exactly hit it off earlier. I think it's time to brink her back... with one or two 'minor' changes to make us more.. compatible..."

Loni/Matt rolled her eyes and groaned, as Donna grinned. Then the tall brunette closed her eyes and concentrated... and the magic once more shook Matt's body...

A second later, it was gone... and Lori blinked - then grinned brightly.

"Whoa... I feel... great!" She said, her body seeming to tremble with excitement and well-being. She felt utterly fantastic... better then she could ever remember feeling.

Donna was grinning at her - but the other two were staring at Lori's new body, eyes wide. "Holy shit...!" Jan breathed, stunned. "They're... huge!"

Lori already knew what Jan was referring to - there was no missing the heavy weight pulling on her chest. She looked down - and grinned at the sight of the black, low-cut T-shirt straining over a pair of tits, each of them easily the size of a medicine ball.

"they are a little... ostentatious, aren't they...?" Lori asked with a grin, reaching up to heft the massive tits and feel the sheer weight of the gigantic globes of tit-flesh. "Geez.. they weigh a ton, Donna. Couldn't you have at least given me a bra for these monsters...?"

"Aw.. that would have spoiled the look..." Donna laughed. "Go ahead - take a gander at yourself..."

Grinning, Lori swayed atop the high, spike-heeled boots she turned out to be wearing and walked to the bathroom for a good look at her new body.

It was Lori... mostly. She was still a little on the short side, with a 'boyish' figure... except for the massive pair of gigantic tits thrust from her chest straining the T-shirt to maximum capacity. Her boyish figure and short, dark hair all served to direct the eye to the most outstanding part of her figure.. her massive chest.

There was also a couple of other little changes. Her face was no longer set in an arrogant coolness, but was obviously cheerful and energetic.

As well as the T-shirt, she was wearing a pair of skin-tight leather pants that tucked into the calf-high black leather boots she wore, which had a two-inch platform and eight-inch high heels, making her about as tall as the average woman was... and bringing her chest that much closer to the average man's eye-level. She doubted it mattered, though - she could have been well below eye-level, and guys would have contorted as necessary to stare at her massive chest.

The thought didn't bother her though... because she just couldn't feel bothered about anything at the moment. She'd never felt so utterly cheerful and happy in her life. It wasn't some sort of weird euphoria - but a sense of well-being that was given magically to her by Donna's directions to the ring that she should always look on the bright side of things. She wasn't 'hopelessly' cheerful - it was just that it would have to be something pretty bad for the negative to outweigh the positive, and just having the most massive pair of breasts she'd ever seen thrust from her chest, at least temporarily, wasn't enough to get her down.

"Donna...!" Lori called as she started back towards the kitchen. "You are one twisted girl, you know that...?" "Hell, that's not news..." Donna replied with a laugh. "So, how do you like being slim and stacked, girl...?"

Lori groaned theatrically... and slowly began to tip forward at the waist. In her best 'Kirk' voice, she over-acted badly as she spoke. "Not.. enough.. power..." She groaned. "Gravity... dragging them.. down..."

Becky giggled. "Scotty... beam them up!"

Jan made a warbling tone by fluttering her hand in front of her mouth, then - in a truly atrocious Scottish brogue - said "I canna do it, sair! There's not enough power in th' whole ship to move those...!"

the all laughed as Lori straightened.. finding that it did take a lot of 'oomph' for her slender frame to pull herself erect against the drag gravity gave her massive, firm globes.

"So... what's the deal...?" She asked Donna. "We spend the next four hours making bad jokes about my new tits?" "Nope..." Donna grinned. "We're going for a little walk..."

"What...?" Becky said, blushing. "But... I didn't brink any other clothes...!"

Usually rather 'conventional' in her choice of wardrobe, Becky was dressed in skimpy, brightly-colored clothing totally unlike her usual outfit. The original idea of the evening, before they'd found out about the ring, had been for the girls to stay in the house all night, never going out in public dressed as they were. Not that the thought bothered Donna or Jan, who were more free-spirited than Becky.

Now, Lori laughed and gestured at the tits that stuck a foot out from her ribcage. "Becky, do you really think anybody's going to be staring at you...?"

Becky grinned, and giggled. "Oh.. Right. Okay..."

"Hank on... just let my grab my keys and. " Lori stopped dead. "Where the hell am I going to put them? No pockets in these pants, and I don't have a purse."

"I've got a purse. " Becky said, making a face. "It's a big, ugly sucker though. I wasn't really planning to go out anywhere tonight."

It turned out that other girls didn't have a purse either, for the same reason. The only pair of pockets among them was in Jan's jeans... which were so tight that the pockets were useless for anything thicker than a dime. The keys dug into her thigh when she gave it a try.

"Oh, wait... I've got it..." Jan said, holding the keys in her hand and ruefully rubbing her thigh through the denim. Kneeling, she tucked the keys into the top of Lori's right boot. The boot was designed so that it flared a little at the top before becoming tighter, and keys fit in easily and weren't a major annoyance.

"Say.. can you even see me down here...?" Jan asked, looking up at the underside of Lori's massive breasts.

"Somebody's down there...?" Lori said, feigning astonishment. "Somebody's going to have to get those for me later - I don't think I could reach them if my life depended on it!"

"Hey..." Donna said, tapping the still kneeling Jan on the shoulder. "Might as well put the ring in the other boot - we don't want to risk losing it."

"Right." Jan said, taking the magical gold hoop and sliding it into the left boot.

"Well then, I guess we're ready to face the world." Donna said with a grin. "We're gonna knock the eyes of any guy we pass right out of their sockets."

"Now that's entertainment...!" Lori laughed. "I almost wish I could turn the tables and be one of the guys the four of us pass. I'd just love to stop dead and gape at four girls like us."

"Come on - let's go give the male population a treat.." Jan said. Grabbing a pack of cigarettes and a lighter, Lori nodded, and the girls headed out.

Lighting up a cigarette for herself and handing one to Donna, Lori rolled the pack up in the sleeve of her T-shirt, using the other sleeve for the lighter.

"I guess I'm the 'pack mule' for the night." She quipped, then hefted her massive tits again. "Boy, am I carrying a lot of weight..!"

Giggling, the foursome headed down the street, not really heading anywhere in particular. They figured they would head down to the variety store, swing around the back of the block, and around the other side of the street one over. It was Lori's suggestion, since she knew the area the best - it would take them along a stretch of road that, this time of night, would probably have a bunch of guys heading between the two nightclubs that were a couple of blocks apart on that street.

The walked along, giggling and joking - especially about Lori's new rack - and Lori was amazed by just how much fun being female could be, around other women.

She'd never really been a social guy to begin with, but he'd never given much thought to the 'why' of it... until now. Now, she realized something amazing... guys were jerks.

Oh, not really. It wasn't like she was suddenly embracing her new-found feminine side at the cost of her masculine history. She'd been happy as Matt, and she most certainly wanted to go back to being Matt... but she was discovering all sorts of things as a woman that she'd never really understood before. Like how open and free women were with other women. For guys, there was a sort of distance between even the best of friends, a certain part of themselves held back, only shared in the direst of tragedies or the worst of situations

- and then they tried to forget it had ever happened.

As a guy, she'd never really observed how open and sharing women were with each other because they were more.. wary around guys. It was only when a group of girls got together, alone, that it manifested itself - and without the ring, Lori would never have been able to discover this amazing fact, among others. As much as she was satisfied to live as a male, she wasn't shunning this chance to be female, to see life from the female perspective, even if it was forced upon her. If everything had gone to her original plan, when she'd first understood the power of the ring, she would have only used female bodies as placeholders, never exposing them to anybody else... and she was now very glad indeed that her plans had gone awry...

Lori glanced at the three girls she was walking with, and had to admit that some of this new-found respect for womankind had to do with the women she was with. She knew that there was more 'range' in women, that the nice ones were nicer and the cruel ones crueler than men could ever be. Angels of mercy or the Woman Scorned, which Hell hath no fury like, women were...

"Oh, god... it's a sign from heaven!" Donna said, breaking into Lori's reverie as she laughed and pointed. Jan, having already seen whatever it was, actually fell down on the sidewalk, laughing and holding her gut as Lori shook her head and looked up...

They'd reached and passed the variety store, heading down the short leg of the 'triangle' they were planning on walking. One leg had been Lori's own street, which was nearly deserted this time of night. The third leg was going to be the more central street that Lori's street ran off of at the other end. This section was a semi-commercial side-street off the main drag, housing the variety store, a couple of now-closed businesses...

...and CJ's, a less-than-elegant local bar, which was what Donna was pointing at. Or, more accurately, at the cheap banner strung out over the front door of CJ's, which read:

WET T-SHIRT CONTEST TONITE!!!! $500 IN PRIZES!!!

Lori stared up at the banner... then looked at Donna, eyes going wide.

"You're not thinking what I think you're thinking..." Lori said, taking a few slow steps backwards, a slow grin spreading over her face. "I mean... come on...!"

"Hey - you know you'd win!" Donna said, as Becky helped the still-chuckling Jan to her feet. The red-head nodded her agreement, cupping her own chest.

"Sure - you take first, I'll take second... and we'll let Donna and Becky battle it out for third." Becky flushed. "Hell, no - Donna can take third. I'm not interested."

"I don't think I'm qualified..." Donna said, looking down at her small chest. In kind of a logarithmic scale, Donna was nearly flat-chested, Becky had a nice pair of C-cups, Jan sported DDD's...

...and Lori was bigger than all three girls combined.

"I don't think either Donna or I are in the running..." Becky said, still blushing. "You two, though..." Jan was grinning as she looked over at Lori. "Well, how about it? Want to earn some easy money...?"

Lori opened her mouth... then considered it seriously, and began to chuckle. "Hell... why not? Yeah - yeah, let's do it..." Becky gasped. "You're really going to do it...?"

Lori laughed. "Sure. Like Jan said, it's easy money." She winked at the short red-head. "Come on, let's go cash in on our... assets..."

Laughing, the girls headed into the building - and as the door swung shut behind her small, tight ass, Lori began having second thoughts, as she saw the raucous crowd of men filling the smoky interior of the building, some of whom had turned to ogle her as soon as she entered.

"holy shit, get a load of those hooters!" one of the called, drawing even more attention to Lori...

...and making her feel better about what she was about to do. From the murmurs and shouted catcalls, she realized that they weren't really seeing her at all - they were seeing a walking pair of tits. They might be able to describe her as the 'skinny girl with the short black hair and huge tits' if pressed later, but doubt they would be able to pick her out of a line-up, if it was just her portrait.

"Girls, girls...!" An amplified voice from the stage drew their attention to the front of the building, where the Emcee was standing beside a line-up of women with various-sized chests, none of whom approached Lori's staggering measurements. "You're a little late... but come on over here and we'll sign you up and get you on stage..."

"Hell no - they're too late!" One of the girls on the stage shouted, the white T-shirt with the CJ's logo on the back stretched over a pair of obviously surgically-enhanced DD's said, looking daggers at Lori and Jan. Skinny as a rail, horse-faced and with stringy bottle-blond hair, the girl obviously thrived on the attention she got because of her breasts, and had a running chance at winning - or she had, at least. From the way the guys were reacting, it was pretty obvious where most of the votes were going to go.

"What's your name, lady?" one of the men closest to Lori asked in a eager voice. Lori, startled, just stared at him blankly for a second. "Huh?"

"Your name - what's your name?" He asked, urgently. "Uh... Lori..." She stammered.

Standing, the guy turned to face the rest of the room - and bellowed at the top of his lungs. "Hey, guys! This is Lori!" Then, he began to bang his fist on the table and chant. "Low-ree! Low-ree! Low-ree..!"

A second man joined in... then a third.. and then it was an avalanche of voices, all shouting her name, over and over. Lori was stunned - she certainly hadn't expected anything like this!

Then again, when she'd woken up this morning, she hadn't expected to be a huge-breasted woman trying to enter a wet T-shirt contest, either. Life's funny that way...

"Well, I think it's plain to see what the crowd wants..." the Emcee announced - receiving a rousing cheer from the crowd of men.

"It's not fair!" The bottle-blond on stage shouted, shriller, her objection mirrored by a couple of the other girls... but this wasn't any sort of 'real' contest. It was an excuse to get some eye-candy into the bar so that more guys would buy more drinks. The Emcee waved at Lori, gesturing her towards the stage.

"Come on, Jan..." Lori said, beginning to thread her way through the throng of men, the red-head in tow as a cheer followed them to the stage.

"Well, we all know your name..." the Emcee said to Lori, evoking a laugh from the guys in the bar. "Who's carrot-top here?"

That would have earned an angry glare from Jan - except for the fact that the Emcee was a skinny guy with hair that everybody calls 'red' but isn't, that orangeish shade that was as carrot-y as Jan's was fiery. She just grinned and gave her name.

"Okay, guys - hang on a sec while Jan and Lori change, and then we'll be ready to roll."

With the guys applauding, Lori and Jan were led offstage by a waitress, and to the women's bathroom, where there was two boxes of white T-shirts with the CJ's logos on them.

"So, what size do you want?" The waitress asked, grinning. "Some girls like to go a size smaller, to show them off from the get-go, and some like them baggy to make getting 'em wet more spectacular."

"If you can find 'baggy' for these..." Lori grinned, waving at her chest, "...then I'd be shocked. I'll take what I can get."

The waitress laughed and handed her an XXX-L. A bit self-consciously, Lori peeled off her own black T-shirt, making her huge, round tits jiggle and sway for a second before they steadied down.

"Wow... I thought you were wearing a bra under there!" the waitress said, one eyebrow rising. "Those suckers are firm, ain't they?"

Lori laughed as she tugged on the shirt, which fit like a tent on her slender shoulders and arms. The back hung down below her ass.. while the front hung several inches out from her waist, held there by the size of her tits, which filled the shirt just to capacity, her dark nipples clearly visible through the white fabric.

"Okay - you're ready." the waitress said, leading them back to the stage, where the guys hooted and cat-called as they got into the line- up of contestants. The bottle-blond was shooting Lori a look that could have killed.

"Gentleman...!" the Emcee shouted into the mike. "CJ's is proud to give you our own, special take on wet T-shirt contests... where you not only vote on which girl wins, but on what we use to make the T-shirt wet!"

As the audience applauded and hooted, a couple of waitresses wheeled out a couple of serving carts, on which rested plastic jugs, some of which were water, others beer, and the rest milk.

"Okay, we'll start with Nancy!" The emcee said, starting at the far end of the line. "What do we want to see her use? Water...?" The crowd shouted and hooted, registering their 'vote' by volume as he went through the choices...

As the other girls went through the soaking, one at a time, Lori found her attention evenly split between the girls - and the audience. It certainly was a new perspective to see them from this point of view, and she wondered if she looked like such a slobbering idiot at the chance of seeing tits through wet cloth, at least when she was a man. Right now, all she needed for that was a jug of water and a mirror...

"Good luck.." Lori whispered as the emcee called Jan's name. The red-head flashed her a grin - then strode out into the center of the stage as the guys shouted approval in various amounts for the different liquids.

It turned out that Jan was getting the 'beer' treatment. Pulling back her shoulders to make her breasts stand even further out from her chest, Jan began to squeeze and fondle her tits through the fabric as the 'assistants' poured the golden liquid over her chest, soaking the fabric and turning it translucent as the guys hooted and cheered.

Sopping wet with beer, Jan began to prance around the end of the stage, giving everybody a good look as she jiggled and bounced, tits swaying and bouncing under the semi-transparent cloth.

"Last, but certainly not 'least' in any imaginable use of the word.." the emcee said, getting a brief laugh from the crowd. "Let's hear it for.. Lori!"

The guys went wild as Lori started to sway out to the front of the stage... and then stopped dead as a thought occurred to her. Grinning, she hurried over to the emcee and whispered in his ear.

He blinked, eyebrow rising... and then he grinned, and whispered back. "You're gonna make us a fortune, gorgeous. Sure." Grinning, Lori walked back to the point of the stage, getting closer to the audience than the other girls had.

"Now, at Lori's suggestion, you guys aren't going to get to vote on what Lori here gets soaked with." The emcee announced... and a groan went up from the audience.

"Instead, she's getting interactive!" The emcee trumped, grinning broadly. "We're not gonna soak her - you guys are! You got a drink? Then throw it! She's gonna get as wet as you guys want her to - so fire away!"

There was a pregnant pause.. which was broken by the emcee and his assistants scrambling to get out of the line of fire. Behind her, Lori heard Jan break out in laughter at the realization....

...as one of the guys near the stage started it, standing up and crowing laughter as he tossed the contents of his cup at the stage, catching Lori across the right thigh, not even touching the T-shirt.

That didn't last long - as it sunk in, and the audience got the idea. Slowly at first, but with rising mania, the audience began to toss their drinks at the stage, until nearly every man in the room was trying to get the contents of their cups onto the huge-breasted woman standing proudly at the apex of the stage. Liquids of every sort flew in every direction, splashing over the audience, the stage, and even the girls already soaked down.. but only a small fraction of the liquid splashed across Lori, and even less of that hit her shirt, slowly painting wet streaks that tantalized and titillated...

..as an incredible rush on the bar started, every guy eager to buy a drink for a second shot... and a third...

Most of them chose water or cola for the second and third - and forth - rounds, with a few variations.. and thus the bar made even more profit. More and more liquid was thrown at the stage, a good-natured near-riot in progress as the effort to soak Lori's shirt completely continued.

Lori was standing there, hands on her hips. and laughing, head thrown back. This had come to her on a whim - a whim that might not have occurred to any other female contestant, because it was based on what she, as a guy, would have liked to see if she were in the audience. You could say she had a certain sense of what guys wanted...

Strutting back and forth across the very end of the stage, Lori had to grin. Even guys who weren't necessarily into 'big boobs', much less huge ones, were still going wild because of the erotic, once-in-a-lifetime fantasy quality of what she was doing. Of course, in their fantasies she would have been eager to jump off the stage and screw every one of them. They had no way of knowing that, from their point of view, she was pure 'lesbian', without the slightest interest in any of them.

Pausing at the far end of the stage, she paused to twirl around. then stumbled slightly, grimacing, as she felt something push against the top of her left foot inside the boot.

The ring. With all the movements she'd been doing, it had fallen down in the boot. Her keys were big enough that they were staying where they were, but the ring had migrated downwards and was sitting on top of her toes in the end of her boot. It was annoying and mildly painful - but there was nothing she could do about it at the moment.

By now, the crowd had 'reloaded' several time, laughing and cheering as they continued to fire at the 'moving target', who was splattered here and there, but not soaked down like the other girls. This could go on for quite a while...

...or, maybe not.

"Everybody clear the way - the artillery has arrived!" The shout was a perfect chorus by three muscular young men with crew-cut hair... Army or Marines, out on the town. Now, they came running up to the stage, carrying with them a keg of beer... with a hose attached to the nozzle.

"Eeep!" Lori screamed/giggled - as the three guys stood ramrod straight while the crowd went into convulsions. "Ready..." One of them called as another grabbed the nozzle on the end of the hose. "Aim. !"

At the same time, the entire audience - including Donna and Becky, still standing at the back of the club - screamed out the same word. "FIRE!"

Driven by the pressure in the keg, the foamy stream shot out, arcing up onto the stage - and hitting Lori in the face. It quickly moved down to her shirt, and in second she was sopping wet - and they still continued to fire, the beer running down her body in streams, mostly to the right side as her body was three-quarters turned on them, her left leg partially hidden from the stream.

Finally, as a cheer went up, the soldiers ceased fire and everybody applaud the sight of a dripping wet Lori, her huge tits clearly visible through the sopping wet shirt.

She looked down at herself and sighed. "Well...! She announced, loudly. "I guess there's only one thing to do. !"

Flushing in both excitement and embarrassment at what she could barely believe she was doing at all, Lori reached down.. and in one smooth, quick motion (before she could change her mind) she yanked the beer-soaked shirt off over her head, tilted her head back, and twisted the shirt to squeeze the beer out.

She wasn't really drinking it of course - she was letting it run down her already beer-soaked body on the side away from the audience. It didn't matter though - almost nobody was looking that high up.

"I hate letting good beer go to waste.." Lori announced, flushing brightly as she stood there, topless, her huge, gleaming, sopping wet tits clearly visible to one and all - which caused the applause to become thunderous.

"Disqualified. !" the bottle blonde trumpeted shrilly. "If you take you shirt off, you're disqualified! She can't win anymore! She's disquali. "

"Oh, shut up you damned bitch." Jan announced, loudly - tearing off her own white T-shirt and jamming it in the bottle-blond's mouth. "There - now you'll probably win."

The bottle blonde, furious, ripped the shirt from her mouth -as the audience clapped and hooted and cheered Jan's action. The red- head, defiantly topless, took a long, low bow.

"Let's get out of here.." She stage-whispered to Lori out of the side of her mouth. "I think they're just about to riot."

"Right!" Lori agreed. Standing on tip-toe she stared at Becky and Donna to make sure she had their attention - then jerked a thumb over her shoulder, hoping they'd catch on. Apparently, they did - they slipped out the front door.

"Okay guys, that was fun!" Lori yelled, feeling a little guilty about lying to them. "We're just going to put on some dry clothes, and we'll be right back. Oh - and when I get back, you guys better be willing to pay for a couple of drinks for me and my friend. After all.. the last three rounds were on me!"

As the guys laughed, Lori and Jan slipped off the stage and into the women's room, where they paused only long enough to slip on their shirts.. and then they were out the back door, where Donna and Becky were waiting. Before any of the over-exuberant guys could come looking for them, the foursome hurried off down the alley and onto Lori's street trying to blend into the shadows.

"God, that was an awful parting shot." Jan chided Lori with a giggle.

"It was the best I could come up with on short notice.." Lori replied. "Hey, hang on a second, okay - the ring slipped down into my boot and it's a damned pain to walk on..."

"Leave it tell you get home - We're just a house down from yours." Donna suggested. "We should get inside before one of the guys from the bar finds us and calls in reinforcements. I don't feel like fending off a hundred drunken, excited men. You really got their hormones raging there, Lori."

"Yeah - I noticed. In fact, I was just thinking about how disappointed they'd be to find out that I'm not interested in men. I bet..." Lori said, then paused for a second. She kicked her boot against the curb, working the ring forward into the point of the boot so it wouldn't be nearly as annoying. In a second, it dropped into the space at the front, and Lori took a couple of steps on towards her house as she continued. "...bet I know exactly the type of woman they were hoping for..." She grinned at the mental image of what the guys were probably fantasizing about...

Then gasped... as the familiar sensation of a whirlwind engulfed her. When it slid away, a new woman stood where Lori had been.

She was tall, very tall, and her body was tautly muscled without being masculine in any sense of the word. Toned and tight and sensual to the extreme.

Her hair was jet-black, and fell in elegant, expensively styled waves around her face and down her back. Her face.. her face was a vision of cool sensuality and unbidden desires. Surrounded by long lashed, her eyes were dark and heavy-lidded, looking booth challenging and begging all at the same time.

Her nose was proud an patrician, slender and finely shaped, ending with a haughty-looking upturn above a mouth that was incredibly full and sensual. Those lips, covered in a dark shade of gloss-red lipstick, stood in stark contrast to her pale skin and dark mascara and eyeliner.

Her body was slender, especially in the waist, but full-hipped and supporting a tight, stunning ass...

...and a pair of enormous breasts only slightly smaller then Lori's had been, each one about as large as a basket-ball.

She wore clothes that were obviously terribly expensive - yet elegantly sensual at the same time. A dark burgundy velvet jacket over a ruffled-collared white silk shirt did nothing to hide the sheer size of that enormous bust, especially with the top buttons of the blouse undone to reveal a massive chasm of milky-white cleavage. Black leather gloves disappeared into the sleeves of the jacket, and she was almost literally dripping with a fortune in jewelry, from the gold-ebony-ivory cameo around her slender neck to the diamond earrings, to the bejeweled clips in her massive main of hair. Even the 'plain' black purse slung over her shoulder had gold accents and diamond clasp.

She wore a long, black leather 'pencil' skirt that clung from waist to ankles like a second skin. It seemed barely possible for her to move her legs at all, and she looked likely to trip if she did so - especially considering the elegant-yet-sexy black open-toe pumps she wore, with a seven-inch stiletto heel lifting from the flat sole.

She was stunningly elegant, looking every inch the regal rich-bitch who just happened to have enormous tits.

But more then that - every curve, every angle in her body spoke of pure pleasure. Of somebody who fulfilled all her desires the instant they occurred, financially, egotistically... and sexually. This was a fantasy woman, a woman who was everything any 'average' man could dream about. Tall. Elegant. Powerful. Sexy. Rich... and completely willing to let anybody, male or female, give her pleasure.

"Mmm..." The new woman said in a sensual moan, looking down at her self and lightly running one bejeweled hand over her massive bust. "I feel so... hungry..."

She spoke in a slightly accented voice that was rich, perfectly modulated... and so sexy it would stiffen cocks within a five mile radius. Her every move seemed to be choreographed, incredibly graceful and sensuous, never actually seeming to start or stop, but to be a continuous, sinuous series of fluid motion.

"Holy shit...!" Donna, standing next to the newly formed woman, gasped in shock, partly from the transformation and partly from where and when it had occurred.

Slowly, gracefully, the new woman's sensual, haughty face turned to face Donna...

...and before Donna knew what was happening the tall, firm-bodied woman was draping an arm over her shoulder and pulling her closer, their lips meeting as the new woman slowly and sensuously kissed her with more pure, pleasure-inducing skill than any kiss Donna had ever had...

It took a force of will to keep from giving in, much less pull away from that incredible kiss.. but Donna somehow managed the feat. "What the hell are you doing?" Donna gasped, still tasting the kiss on her lips.

Matt blinked at the question... and finally became aware of what had happened and what she'd just done. The mental power of the new persona of this body was more incredible than any she'd felt before, defined by its wanton pursuit of pleasures without any thought to consequences. It was this 'dismissal' of thought that made it so difficult from Matt to maintain her self-control... just as Xena's body hadn't had the words to express certain concepts that Matt's mind knew, this body didn't have the... the 'hesitation' or 'inhibitions' of Matt's own mind, and she had to exercise an enormous amount of self-control to keep the persona of this fantasy woman from going ahead with her desire for pure, unthinking pleasures of body and soul.

"I... I'm having a hard time... controlling myself..." She said in that incredibly sensual voice, shaking her head ever so slightly. She took a step back from Donna, to distance herself from the desires she was feeling...

...and the motion dislodged the ring, which had become monetarily lodged encircling then-Lori's big toe, allowing the magic to take place. Now, it dropped out the hole in the toe of the shoe, and Jan quickly knelt and scooped it up.

"Come on - let's get inside. Quickly!" Donna urged, and they headed for the house - Matt's new body moving with an incredibly sensual stride that had her legs scissoring back and forth in an almost perfectly straight line inside the tight skirt, her body held erect but her hips swaying and swiveling elegantly and gracefully.

The front door was locked... and the keys had gone the way of the rest of Lori's clothing. Donna, praying that they hadn't locked the back door, hurried around the side of the house.

"Mmmmmm." Matt moaned again, hands once more roaming her lush, taut new body. "Becky, I feel so... so.. So content... yet I know I shouldn't. I feel like I should satisfy my every whim... and I have to fight that. I have to force myself to think before I just give in to the desires to do anything pleasurable... to touch you... to kiss you..." She licked her full new lips sensuously, taking a step closer to the petite blonde, who found herself gazing at the very embodiment of sensuality with glazed eyes as...

..Donna opened the front door from the inside. "Come on - get in here!"

The three women on the porch filed in, Matt struggling to keep her new hands from reaching out to caress Jan's so enticingly full breasts... by giving them her own breasts to 'play' with, moaning low in the back of her throat at the pleasure it caused.

Donna pushed the door shut and locked it, shaking her head at the sight of the new woman Matt had become fondling her own huge, firm tits through the jacket and blouse.

"Yet another senseless Magical-related accidental transformation..." She said... then grinned.

"Jan, have you got the ring?" Becky asked, turning to the flame-haired girl. "I think it's my turn with it - and I know what I want to do."

"Sure..." Jan said, handing it over. Becky took the ornate gold circlet and rubbed it on what little of her skirt there was, wiping it clean from the beer that had spilled on it.

"What are you going to do?" Donna asked as the petite blonde slid the ring onto her finger.

Becky grinned. "Well, you guys wasted the chance- I'm going to make Matt male again, and a hell of a man at that. I'm going to make sure he's fully versed in sexual skills...and give him a compulsion not to be changed in any way for at least four hours."

"Hey!" Donna exclaimed. "That's wasting it! We've already agreed that we'll have sex with him, tomorrow." "That's for him..." Becky chuckled. "This one's for me..."

Closing her eyes, Becky concentrated...

...and had just enough time to gasp in shock as the whirlwind rippled over her body, twisting and reshaping it. She experienced the sensation that had become familiar to Matt as her body writhed and reshaped itself... and a minute later, the place where she had stood was occupied by a look-alike Matt...

Well, not quite. The new man Becky had become was similar to Matt's original form... but more muscular, and definitely better endowed. It was easy to see this... since Becky had neglected to imagine any clothing, so intent had she been on focusing on the new skill and the 'limitation' she'd wanted for Matt. Now, the naked, remarkably well-endowed man gasped and looked down at himself in shock.

"What the hell...?" He stammered. "Why.. Why did I change?"

"I don't know..." The female Matt said, eyeing Becky's most definitely masculine new body. "...but I like it..."

"Stop that!" The new man commanded, seeing the unthinking desire in the sexy woman's eyes.. and finding himself responding to it, unwillingly. "This isn't what I wanted..."

She paused.. then her face twisted in frustration. "Dammit - I can't change myself!"

"Give me the ring, Becky - I'll change you back." Donna suggested, though she was eyeing Becky's new body with a thoughtful look of her own.

The new man's lips twisted again. "i.. I can't. I.. I need to stay like this.. dammit!"

"Well, let's not waste it..." Matt said, seductively, slowly and sensuously approaching Becky with a sensual gleam in her eyes.

"Matt! Stop it!" Becky commanded.. but it was weakly said, and her large, thick cock was rapidly hardening as her altered sexual outlook caused her to feel a wave of desire for the woman.

"Don't call me Matt..." She breathed, huskily, lost in the mindless desires of her new body with a naked man so close, and so obviously aroused. "You're 'Matt'. I'm Melissa... and I want you..."

"No..." Becky/Matt protested, weakly, as Matt/Melissa slid one glove-encased arm up his muscular new arm. "This.. This is all wrong..."

then she stopped arguing - because Melissa's full, soft lips had covered her, and she was kissing him passionately.

His newly created skills kicked in - and he kissed back, with as much incredible skill as she possessed, the two of them experiencing the most incredible, passionate, pleasurable kiss they'd ever experienced, tongues writhing in a dance of pure pleasure..."

"Uh, I think I.. Uh, Donna and I are going to, uh..." Jan said, blushing, as she jerked a hand in the direction of the stairs. The two entwined lovers didn't notice - nor did Donna, who was staring at the gender-switched couple with a silly grin. Jan grabbed the taller woman's arm and all-but-dragged her toward the stairs, until Donna's trance broke and she followed Jan upstairs.

The two people in the living room noticed none of this... or, rather, the four people in the living room didn't, as that was the truth of the situation. In a very real sense, the 'real' Matt and Becky were passengers in their own bodies, the wished-for sexual desires and changes (in both cases, accidentally), now ruled their bodies, running them autonomously... while the original persona's did nothing but experience the incredible, skilled pleasure as their bodies moved slowly and in perfect sync towards the couch, the kiss lingering on hungrily as they both stripped off the clothing that covered Melissa's lush new body.

By the time they reached the couch, only a few feet away, her body was completely bare and gleaming in the light spilling in from the hall, nobody having bothered to turn on the lamp in the room when they'd come in. Still moving as if in psychic contact with each other's libido, the sank down onto the couch, hands roaming over each other's idealized body.

"Mmm... yes..." Melissa moaned, in pleasure, as Matt's lips found her nipples and suckled on the large, engorged pink nubs. "Um... don't stop..."

His hand's were massaging her ass at the same time, her laying on top of him - and her breasts were large enough that, with a little careful positioning, she could shift herself up and over, her hands going to his crotch and grasping the base of his huge, throbbing cock. She paused, his lips still on her nipple, his hands suddenly still on her ass...

As both inner persona's managed to reach out and grasp control of their rampant bodies, the hesitation enough to give them a sudden burst of will.

"I... I don't want to..." Melissa gasped, struggling for control of her body's nearly overpowering urge to thrust itself on the cock whose head was lightly nudging her wet new opening. "...don't want to.. stop. I.. I want to... Feel you..."

Matt gasped. "Me... too..."

The hesitated for an instant longer, each trying to determine whether it was the 'real; person in the other body giving permission...

Then Melissa smiled broadly -and thrust herself downward, impaling herself willingly, eagerly, on the thick organ, crying out in pleasure as it filled her fully but not painfully.

"Yes, oh yes...!" she cried, and began to flex her long, tautly-muscle legs, driving herself atop Matt as he matched his body to her rhythm expertly, each increasing the pleasure of the other as they cried out in mingled ecstasy...

Then, after what seemed an eternity - yet too soon - they reached the peaks of their own pleasure at the same instant, and muscles tensed and bunched beneath glistening sweat-sheathed skin as their backs arched and they screamed together in pure, orgasmic ecstasy, the 'magic' that made their bodies writhe now more mundane in nature than that of the ring... but no less powerful, for all that.

* * * * *

The screams of exquisite pleasure could be heard quite clearly in the bedroom upstairs...

...but the room's occupants didn't notice, Jan's fiery head moving busily at Donna's crotch, while the brunette was returning the favor. Because of their disparate heights, it took a bit of contorting... but the two girls had quite a bit of experience, and the practice definitely paid off...

* * * * *

"Let me look..." Jack said, anxiously, to Mark, who was gazing in the lens of the camera, finger almost obsessively slamming down on the button over and over, the drive-motor of the large film-cartridge whirring as he recorded the two girls on film for 'posterity'.

He didn't even hear his friend's pleas, his free hand slipping down to his crotch as he watched the crystal-clear and up-close view the camera/scope provided...

*_*_*_*_*_*_*_*_*_*_*_*

"Mmmmm...." Donna said, helping her friend and lover towel off after a very... stimulating morning shower. "That's a hell of a lot better an eye-opener than any cup of coffee will ever be."

"Yeah... but two many guys serve up 'instant' these days." Jan giggled. "I think maybe Becky had a good idea with what she planned to do last night with Matt. Maybe we should ask 'Melissa' how it was..."

"I think they kept going all night." Donna said, as they helped each other dress, hands occasionally straying from strict 'assistance' to something a little more... 'friendly'. As Jan slipped into her high-heeled shoes, she was suddenly a lot closer to Donna's height - so the brunette took advantage of the fact, pausing for a long, slow kiss before slipping on her own shoes.

"To bad we have to head back for work." Jan said, as they headed for the stairs. "I would have liked to fulfill our little deal with Matt..." Donna giggled. "That's assuming he's back to being male, honey."

"Oh, I'm sure he is. Becky would have turned him male again after the four hours was up and she could be..." Jan stopped, a worried look coming over her face. "Oh, God - what if she couldn't? What if Matt's stuck in that body?"

Donna's eyes widened at the thought, and they shared a look of apprehension as they rushed down the stairs and into the kitchen...

"Hey... what's the rush?" Becky asked, turning from the stove, where bacon and eggs were busily frying up in pans. Dressed in a borrowed bathrobe, the petite looked indecently clean and fresh-faced, the magic of the ring as good - or better - than a shower.

"Maybe they're in hurry to get out before... uh, I bring up the matter of last night's agreement." Matt said from where he sat at the table, coffee in hand. He grinned wickedly at the girls.

"Whew..." Donna sighed. "Jan and I were worried that you might be stuck as Melissa." Becky and Matt shared a look - and laughed.

"Oh, I don't think it would have been as calamitous as you make it sound." Matt said, with a grin. "I can honestly say that I acquired a new... appreciation for the opposite gender last night."

"Well - It's still good that the ring changed you both back." Jan said. "What happened, anyway?"

Becky grinned. "Well, it was in the cistern, right? And it stopped changing M..att when it got wet with beer, right...?" Donna blinked - and grinned. "So - getting it wet is like, uh..."

"A reset button!" Jan supplied, snapping her fingers.

"Yup." Becky agreed. "It even gets rid of the 'no duplicate' rule - you can change back into the same body as before after getting it wet. The way we figure it, the original owner must have been wetting it and it slipped down the pipe... luckily for us. This has been a blast."

"No kidding..." Jan grinned. "We're kinda pissed that we've got to head back. It's be a blast to play around some more."

"Oh, no problem..." Matt said, digging into a pocket. There was a metallic 'tink' as he flipped his thumb... and Donna barely managed to catch the ring as it sailed towards her.

"What...?" Donna asked, surprised.

Becky grinned. "Well, we figure we'll share the ring. How's the first weekend of each moth sound?" Jan blinked. "What do you mean... we can take the ring?"

"Sure." Matt agreed, smiling. "You girls use it for a month. Make sure that the right weekend is free, and come on down. We'll spend the weekend having some fun, then we'll keep the ring for the next month... and we'll keep doing it for as long as all four of us are having fun."

"You just have to promise to keep it our little secret." Becky said, serving Matt his breakfast and sitting down with her own. "I'm insulted you even had to say it." Donna said in mock indignation. "You know us better than that, Becky."

"This is great..." Jan said, nudging her bisexual friend and making a suggestive movement of her hand at her crotch. "We might never date anybody else again..."

Donna laughed. "Well, we'd love to stay and thank you properly, but we have to go - we've got a long drive ahead of us, and we work tomorrow."

"No problem. Keep in touch..." Becky said, as they all said good-bye. Matt and Becky walked to the back door and saw them off, waving as the car pulled out and headed off.

They turned to grin at each other.

"Think we should have told them?" 'Matt' asked, slipping a hand around the woman's slender waist.

"Hell no." 'Becky' replied, with a wicked grin. "If we want to spend the next month as each other, it's none of their damned business." Turning, they stepped back into the house, closing the door behind them...

BACK TO FUN ZONE

© 1997 - 2016 TGstories.

Stories on the "Public Access" pages may be Copyright by individual authors.

Home | Membership | Terms & Conditions | Privacy Policy | Contact

SUMMARY: Mistaking her boyfriend dressed for costume party as someone he is having an affair with, one woman puts a curse on him making him change into the bimbo that his image presents.

A Woman Scorned

---

By Gunslinger

'Hey, beanpole - just calling to make sure you haven't broken a leg or died, or something.'

Mark laughed and eased his gangly frame into the aging office chair that sat in front of the small desk the held his phone. Pulling his bathrobe a little closer around his tall, narrow body to conserve what little warmth remained from the hot shower he'd just taken, he considered which greeting was just right for the circumstances...

"Hey yourself, Andy. You busy boffing your dog, or can you talk a bit?"

Mark could see his muscular, dark-haired Italian friend rocking back in his chair as his laughter crackled over the line. 'Hey - Rover's a better lay then any of your ex-girls, man - trust me, I know.'

And that's one for Andy, Mark thought to himself with a wry grin. The old 'dog boffing' line was standard, and Antonio DeMarco ('Andy' was his nick-name, short for Neanderthal) had zinged back a good one - because his 'dog' was a giant, bright red stuffed doll that sat in the corner of his room.

'Just thought I'd make sure you were still making the big bash tonight, buddy.' Andy said. 'Still looks like it's gonna be the biggest party this year.'

"Wouldn't miss it for the world." Mark assured his friend. "Leaving in about two hours, as a matter of fact."

'Good, good.' Andy replied in a tone of voice that indicated there was another reason he was calling. A second later: 'Uh... just wondering what you got.'

Mark blinked. "Got?"

A sigh. 'Right, I know we're not supposed to tell each other what costumes we're wearing - it'd screw up the prizes. But, I mean, we're best friends and all...'

Mark's stomach clenched. "Costume?"

Missing the startled confusion in his friend's voice, Andy answered with good-humored resignation. 'Okay - I always knew you were too honest for your own good, anyway. Doesn't matter - my little outfit's gonna blow yours outta the water, so you ain't even in the running. Sorry, buddy.'

"Uh..." Mark replied, his mind busy running back over what he'd been told about the party when Lisa - the girl throwing it - had rattled off the info over the phone when she'd semi-reluctantly invited him, because he was Andy's friend. His stomach began to clench tighter when he began to vaguely remember her saying something....

Mistaking his friend's silence, Andy continued talking in a pacifying tone. 'Hey, at least your costume get's you in the gate - and that's really all that counts, right?'

"Oh, shit." Mark whispered as it clicked. Tonight - Friday - women could 'come as they were' - but guys had to be in costume, or 'no admittance'.

'You say something?' Andy asked, not catching the whispered comment.

"Uh." Mark's mind raced. "That was Carrie at the door to say good-bye - I gotta go. See you tonight, 'kay?"

'Sure th..' Andy's reply was cut short as Mark slammed the phone down, heart pounding.

"shit, Shit, SHIT, SHIT, SHIT!" Mark bellowed angrily to the uncaring ceiling, his face going red beneath his brush-cut blond hair. "How could I forget it's a god DAMN costume party?"

Taking a deep breath to calm himself as best as possible, the skinny young man removed his horn-rimmed glasses and idly polished them with the fuzzy hem of his robe, doing more damage then good as his mind struggled with a way to make things right. With two hours before he had to leave - and no 'ready' cash - he had to find a costume or he'd miss the biggest party of the year.

Bare feet slapping on the floor, Mark began to pace as he slid the glass back onto his nose, his angry redness slowly fading to his usual pallor. He muttered to himself, his long, narrow fingers through the scrub of hair that barely covered his scalp. (When he was young, the length and slenderness of those fingers had prompted his mother to enroll him in piano lessons, sure that such fingers were a 'sign from God'. Mrs. Garland kept the lessons up long after it was obvious that her son had no talent for piano, unwilling to believe that such fingers couldn't 'tickle the ivories'. It wasn't until years later that she finally learned that those same fingers were exceedingly skilled at using the keyboard of the computer - small consolation.)

"What the hell am I gonna do?" Mark asked himself, shaking his head. Then he stopped pacing suddenly, so distracted that he didn't even notice the fact that he was standing with his right foot hovering in mid-air, still prepared to take the next stride - which didn't come.

"Of course!" Mark said to himself, snapping his fingers. He headed for the door of his basement apartment...

...then, blushing, hurried into the bedroom of the tiny apartment and changed quickly into jeans and a T-shirt. Slipping bare feet into a pair of loafers, the tall, skinny youth left his apartment and looked carefully up and down the hallway, seeing no-one - as expected. He was the only one inhabiting any of the four apartments that lined the south-side of the dimly lit basement level of the five-story apartment building.

On the north side were various doors - extra storage for tenants and the building's super, who also stored items left behind by previous tenants for the specified three months in the off chance that the prior owners would wish to claim them.

The doors themselves were standard interior doors with simple locks on them - much like keyed bathroom doors, for example. Fairly easy to get into, if somebody with a simple toolkit and a bit of basic knowledge really wanted too.

Mark really wanted to.

But, as Andy had pointed out, Mark was a basically honest person - he couldn't even consider breaking into the assigned storage for current tenants. But the larger room in the center, where stuff was held - now that was another story. Legally, after three months, any abandoned property became the property of the building's owner. In actual fact, the super cleaned the room out every six months or so, throwing out anything older than three months. So, Mark was able to convince himself that finding and taking anything in boxes destined to be thrown away really didn't constitute theft. He even managed to convince himself - as he jimmied the lock - that he wasn't 'breaking and entering', since he was a tenant in the building, and legally allowed access to 'public' locations - he simply stretched the definition of 'public' to mean - not actually rented by somebody.'

Flicking on the overhead light, Mark closed the door behind him and locked it, then walked to the back of the room. He knew that the super stored the oldest boxes at the back, so that's where he'd start. Picking the box at the back right corner, he pulled it off the second box on which it rested and carried it to the somewhat unsteady kitchenette table that was in the middle of the room. Seating himself on the scarred and ripped chair at the table, he quickly went through the items in the box, hoping to find something that could be the basis of a costume - any sort of costume. He had no idea what he was looking for, really - he was hoping inspiration would strike. Maybe he'd find some outlandish clothes close to his size, or maybe something that could make a kind of 'hippie' outfit - he was desperate enough for almost anything.

The first box was cheap, useless kitchen ware. Returning the box, he traded it for another and continued his search.

Box by box, he worked his way through the discarded items left by previous tenants - and discovered why they'd been discarded. It was a pitiful collection of things that were not in bad enough condition to qualify as immediate garbage that nobody would ever come back for - but there was also nothing of any real value, either. Slowly, a pitifully small pile of objects that might be useful began to accumulate at his elbow as he weeded through the refuse of people he'd never met, hoping against hope that the next box would hold something better.

Then, eventually, there was no 'next box' - and Mark eyed the collection of items he'd managed to gather with a sigh. About half-way through his search, a pattern had begun to form as to what had been available, and what he could do with it - but he'd delayed seeing the obvious until he had no choice to face it. From what he had to work with, there was really only one 'costume' that could be made from what he had to work with.

Mark would have to go in drag.

"Well..." he repeated philosophically, "...at least it'll get me in the gate."

Shaking his head, he went through the pile again, this time picking the items that he would need for the specific costume - the majority of what he'd found.

He considered for a moment, thinking about bringing it back to his apartment to put together - but there was more stuff here than he could carry, and he didn't know what would fit and what wouldn't. he didn't want to keep running back and forth to his apartment with loads of 'pilfered' items - especially since the store-room door locked automatically, meaning he'd have to 'pick' the lock each time he came back. Now, he made sure that the door was locked and - heart going a mile a minute and blushing furiously - Mark quickly undressed and began to put on his 'costume'.

The first part of it was an odd piece of... 'clothing', he guessed. It was a pair of 'pantyhose' that he guessed were medical or something, as they were latex rather than nylon. Kind of like surgical gloves, but for the legs. They were that unrealistic color known as 'flesh', but close enough for what he had in mind.

It took quite a bit of work to get the tight-fitting, elastic leggings into place, as they had to be worked carefully up his legs to keep from breaking or snapping back painfully. Finally, though, he managed to get them all the way up to his waist, leaving him with a lower half that looked like an enlarged Barbie-Doll - shiny and somewhat unrealistically colored, and anatomically incorrect.

There was also a few items of cheap furniture in the room, and one of them was a scratched full-length mirror in a cheap plastic 'brass' frame. A critical look showed that the effect was as bad as he'd feared - and worse, from another point of view.

"Okay - well, time to set that right." Mark said, somewhat sarcastically - he really didn't want to. But the lure of the party was greater than the embarrassment of doing his 'best' to look female, so he moved on to the next step.

The next step destroyed many illusions about some of the women who walked the streets. Now he would no longer be quite sure if he could believe what he was seeing - because the item that came next cast it all into doubt.

The tattered box that held it called it a 'Power-shaper' - which was probably a brand-name, Mark thought, rather than an actual name for the item. The item inside was an odd garment, designed to fit the body from halfway up the chest to just above the knees, sort of an extra-high-waisted pair of shorts. But what the garment actually was intended for was different than any shorts.

Because there was padding at the hips, thighs and ass, and the upper part - that went over the waist - had heavy-duty lacing in its canvas construction. It was a garment designed to fool the eye into thinking the body was better than it really was.

Which, in Mark's case, was even more illusionary.

The tight crotch of the garment required Mark to grimace and tuck his cock and balls between his legs before he could fully position the garment in place. It looked odd on him, the padding on the ass, thighs and hips too obvious. Another grimace accompanied the act of lacing the upper half as tightly as possible, constricting his waist and making him feel short of breath. The mirror showed that - this time

- the effect was slightly better, if just as patently artificial. A fact that would be hidden by the feminine pair of tapered slacks that he slid on...

...or tried to. They were too small - both in length and in girth. When he'd read the side of the waist and hips, he figured he could get by pretending that they were 'pedal-pushers' - but he'd neglected to consider the extra padding the power-shaper gave, and there was now no way that they'd fit.

The only other choice was a skirt - a blue denim skirt that was - in his opinion - 'way too short'. The thought that - if it had been on a woman - he would have thought it was just fine never really occurred to him.

However, it was Hobson's choice. The slacks were out, unless he lost the padding. He considered that option quite seriously for a few minutes - then sighted gustily and undid the body shaper, slid it off - and pulled off the leggings.

Then he pulled the body shaper back on, grimacing again as he repositioned his manhood. He left the top undone to make it marginally easier to get the leggings back on, then sucked in his skinny waist and did the cincher up as tight as he could get it, the leggings now hiding the bottom half of the body shaper and producing an 'agreeably' feminine shape that Mark felt distinctly uncomfortable about.

Which made him re-adjust his plans slightly. He hadn't planned on wearing the pair of black nylons he'd found - but, due to the artificial sheen of the latex, and the 'off' color, he sucked it up and slid the nylons on, one at a time. They were black, with a seam running up the outside of each one that was a floral sort of thing between borders, interspersed with the words 'Sweet Thang' in a feminine script, and were held in place high on his re-shaped thighs by built in elastic strips under sewn-on hot-pink ribbons with little bows at the back. He grimaced as he pulled them up and carefully smoothed the seams straight, having used the simple expedient of treating them as 'very long socks' as he put them on, balling them up and slowly working them up the slick surface of the latex covering his legs, which also assisted in keeping them 'run-free'.

Next he looked for his 'tits'. He didn't have much to choose from, as the couple of bras he found were of a band-and-strap size that made them useless. After a couple of minutes thought, he worked out a compromise. He stuffed a large beach towel of the same size into each of a pair of frayed pillow cases he'd found. He then tied the open ends together and pushed the towels inside into mounds before tying the other ends into knots. Using some string he'd found, he formed back and shoulder straps for the make-shift 'padded bra' - and had to laugh at the sight of a pair of stuffed, floral-print pillowcases hanging on his chest.

He then pulled on the denim skirt, which fit tolerably well on his padded-and-crimped figure. That too-dark blue that had been out of style for a couple of years now, the denim skirt was a type that had a brass zipper that ran right up the front, from waistband to hem, with the zipper head hanging at the bottom when it was fully closed. For his upper half, he pulled on the full-length, emerald-green cable-knit turtle-neck sweater he'd found, hiding the bulk of his body under the garment, which rose convincingly over the large mounds of his 'tits'.

"Gee - bigger than a triple-'D', I'd say." Mark said, eyeing the result in the mirror. He didn't know much about women's bra-sizes, but the mounds on his chest were bigger than the largest size he'd seen outside of a men's mag. Himself, he was a firm believer in the 'more than a handful is a waste' theory - but the 'oversized' breasts were okay for the costume look he was going for.

Then came the 'fiddling' work. He started with the cheap make-up kit he'd found, designed as a teen-aged girl's 'starter' set - complete with rudimentary instructions. It also came with such things as fake eyelashes and press-on nails.

He started with the make-up itself, referring often to the sketchy instructions. He carefully applied a gloss pink lipstick, using it to make his lips look fuller than they really were. He then applied eyeshadow in a pale bluish color - too much, actually, but he didn't realize that. Then came some foundation and blush, applied with an awkward, embarrassed hand.

Then he carefully applied the long, thick fake lashes, fluttering his eyes at the reflection in the mirror. His original hesitation and embarrassment had faded to lower - but still present - levels, as he started to get a 'kick' out of the whole routine - which in itself was embarrassing. But, Hell - lots of guys went in drag for costume parties, some time in their life. He'd get ribbed for it - but it would get him into the party...

He then rummaged through the small pile of cheap plastic jewelry he'd found, picking a pair of gaudy 'gold' hoop earrings that he clipped to his lobes, hissing slightly as they 'bit'. He also pulled on an equally gaudy 'gold' bracelet and two cheap rings.

With a sigh, he regarded the three pairs of shoes he'd found, then shrugged. Picking the pair of sneakers, he quickly verified his first assumption - they were way too small. The second pair of shoes, strappy sandals, also fit too painfully to wear, even though he could force his feet into them.

Which left him no choice. With a deep sigh, he pulled on the black 'leather' boots. They came to his knees, flaring at the front and dropping at the back. The worst part of that particular footwear, however, was the fact that they were platforms, with seven inch stiletto heels.

Shaking his head, he walked to the mirror, and looked again. Now the 'illusion' was even more pronounced - he looked like a tall, slender woman with a mannish face, black horn-rimmed glasses and really short blonde hair - a butch. But, from the neck down, the figure was feminine enough, especially with the padding and cinching of the body-shaper, and the over-sized bust. The padding under the nylon-clad latex leggings made his thighs look shapely enough, and the knee-high, gloss-black boots hid the shape of his lower legs.

The fact that he could stand and move fairly easily in the extremely high heels was an even bigger embarrassment than simply having to wear them. It was a secret he kept closely held that his mother had forced him to take two years of ballet after seeing some Russian dancer being interviewed on TV. He'd named the figure he earned for what he did - and poor Mark went to ballet. Now those classes made it only mildly difficult to move in the heels, and quite easy to stand still.

Next, Mark carefully applied the gloss-pink press-on nails from the kit, working slowly and carefully. After that, the only remaining step was to pick up the item that had started the whole line of thought in his head in the first place.

It was a wig. Long, black hair that hung to mid-back, cut shorter and straight across the forehead and long on the sides. He set it carefully in place and eyed his reflection through his glasses, deciding that it was good enough.

Leaving aside the black 'leather' purse he'd found, he opened the nearest boxes and began stuffing the unused items into them. Just as he was finishing, he hissed in pain as something sharp in the box sliced a small cut into the flesh on the side of his left hand. Shaking his hand in pain, he eyed the slowly oozing cut, which was little more than a short paper cut - painful, but that was all.

He finished stuffing the rejected items into boxes, then picked up the purse. Dropping his glasses into them, he headed for the now- blurry outline of the door....

* * * * *

Carrie hummed to herself as she headed home from work. She was in a fairly good mood, all told - but she was slightly disappointed that her boyfriend, Mark, was going to be out-of-town for the weekend at some big party. One that she hadn't been invited to go too. Knowing that Mark had gotten the invitation reluctantly as it was, she didn't press him to try and get her one, too - and Mark rarely got a chance to visit Antonio anymore, as they lived a five hour drive apart. The party was taking place about midway between where the two cities, and lasted all weekend - and Carrie figured she could spare her man that long.

As she passed Mark's apartment building - as she did every day after work, due to the route she took home - she instinctively glanced at the parking lot - and did a double-take to see Mark's aging Corolla still in the lot. Glancing at the dashboard clock, she assured herself that he should have left a good twenty minutes ago.

Worried that he might be having car trouble, Carrie did a U-turn and pulled into the parking lot of the building. Climbing from her car, she pulled open the door to the building and went down the flight of steps just inside, her sneaker-clad shoes almost silent on the metal risers...

Two steps from the bottom, Carrie stopped dead and watched in shock. A tall, busty woman was just reaching Mark's door. Dressed in cheap - slutty, Carrie thought - clothing and make-up, the big-titted bitch opened the door to her boyfriend's apartment and walked in as if she owned the apartment and had every right to just walk in.

Stunned, and telling herself that this couldn't possibly be what she thought it was, she crept slowly down the hall...

* * * * *

In his apartment, Mark made his way to the bathroom and picked up a small box.

He didn't often wear contacts, because he didn't like how they felt. And he'd never worn these ones, which had come free with the pair he'd bought - but now he slipped them carefully in place.

Not only did the world snap back into focus, but his watery blue eyes now looked to be a rich emerald green. Heading out to the main room, he caught sight of himself in the full-length mirror on the back of the door.

Stopping just in front of it, he struck an exaggerated pose, felling embarrassed, giddy, excited, naughty - and a million other things.

"Oh, baby - you're hot." He told the reflection with a smile. He reached up and hefted the fake tits through the sweater. "And I just love your big, firm tits - I'm a real tit-hound, you know..."

* * * * *

Eyes wide and face dark with anger, Carrie yanked her ear away from the door as she heard her boy... ex-boyfriend's comments to the hussy who'd just walked in.

She was fuming. To think - all the times he'd seemed sincere when she'd agonized over her smallish bust, he was secretly wishing they were silicone-stuffed orbs like some... some...

She was just about to bang angrily on the door and give Mark a piece of her mind when she spotted a droplet of fresh blood on the door-knob, and recalled the way the woman he jerked her left hand when she'd opened the door - the blood had to be hers, as the drop hadn't even finished its slide down the curved surface to fall to the ground.

Slowly, an unpleasant smile surfaced on Carrie's face. From her pants she pulled a crumpled but clean tissue and carefully collected the drop of blood.

"Oh... just you wait..." She whispered in a vengeful tone, tuning and storming out to her car, eyes burning.

* * * * *

Shaking his bewigged head at the image in the mirror, Mark turned away...

...and caught sight of the clock.

"Oh - shit!" He swore vehemently. Quickly he gathered up his wallet, watch, keys, etc. and dumped them into 'his' purse. Then he grabbed the bag of clothing he was taking with him and hurried out to his car.

He didn't see Carrie's car as it just pulled onto the street and headed away, and she - fuming - didn't notice him/'her' sliding behind the wheel and sighing in relief as the car started on the first try. Seconds later, he also pulled out onto the street, heading in the opposite direction.

* * * * *

Three hours - and one very awkward rest-stop - later, Mark pulled up to the gate that barred access to the remote family cabin Lisa was using for the party.

Mark felt utterly ridiculous - and scared. His heart was pumping quickly at the thought of getting to the party and having to go around like this until midnight - nearly five hours. He'd already experienced the feeling, in a sort of 'preview', when he'd had to take a piss - and realized what sort of sight he'd make. He'd finally opted to stop at a little picnic area off the highway, and had sat in the car and stewed while making sure the coast was clear. Then - red faced - he'd hurried to the foul-smelling men's toilet - where he'd quickly discovered a problem with the arrangement he was wearing. It had taken him (seemingly) forever to get most of the outfit off so he could free his cock and piss, then get everything back.

But that hadn't been half as bad as exiting the Men's room to find a guy waiting to use the 'one holer'. The guy had done a startled double take when 'she' had come out - then watched 'her' with a wary eye as she returned - blushing - to the car and pulled away. Mark didn't know whether or not the man's inability to decided whether it had been a woman using the Men's room or a guy in drag was good or not, under the circumstances.

The rest of the drive - even without having to deal with 'The Public' was bad enough in and of itself. The outfit he was wearing wasn't terribly comfortable - physically or emotionally - and he was constantly aware of the way he was dressed from such 'subtle' hints as the pain in his feet from the high-heels, the way the belt across his chest felt through the padding of his bust, and the strange - and uncomfortable - way he sat with the padded ass he was wearing. He'd driven with uncommon courtesy and respect for the rules of the road, deathly afraid of being pulled over by a cop while in this get-up. Sure, there was a legitimate reason for him to be going around in drag - but that didn't make him feel and more comfortable about it.

And, a few moments from now, he'd be in the public eye once more - and that fact was making him sweat.

The 'guard' at the gate had obviously passed through most of the people who were coming, and was 'kicking back' while waiting for any straggles. Leaning back in a chaise lounge, a bottle of Colt .45 beer between his legs, he was watching one of those tiny, hand-held TV's, complete with a little ear-bud headphone in his ear. When Mark pulled up to the gate, he didn't even look up from the tiny LCD screen, merely holding out one hand and grunting "Invitation".

Wordlessly, Mark handed over the slip of paper. The guard flicked a glance at it and - without ever having looked at Mark - kicked the counter-weight that caused the gate to swing open. Mark quickly drove through before the gate hit the end of it's run and began to swung back, then slowed as the car squeaked and squealed over the rough road that led down to the large, somewhat run-down cabin owned by Lisa's family. Well before he was within sight of the lodge-like building, the roadway opened into a large field, where a good two dozen cars were parked, and Mark slipped his car into an empty space. Taking a deep breath for courage, he shut off the ignition, grabbed his small bag, and stepped out of the car.

He headed down the path as twilight settled in over the lake and surrounding area. He walked slowly and carefully, scared of turning an ankle in the high-heeled boots on a rough path -= and in no hurry to reach the clearing at the edge of the lake that held the lodge and it's yard. Music drifted on the cooling breeze, as well as the conversations of thirty or forty party-goers, some of them already fairly deep in their cups. The closer he drew to the sound - and the flickering lights of the bamboo torches that illuminated the area - the more nervous and embarrassed Mark became, wondering whatever had possessed him to lower himself to this...

Then he stopped and took a deep breath, reminding himself. It was only for a few hours - and in exchange, he was spending a weekend at a party paid for entirely by one wealthy - and, in his opinion, spoiled - young woman who was supplying everything. A little humiliation was a fair price for more of a social life then he'd had in a while, he figured. Basically shy and quiet, the only sort of social life he'd had in the past couple of years was his girlfriend, Carrie - who, herself, was a bit 'off', if a fairly good date.

Heart rate slowing - but never reaching 'normal' - Mark squared his shoulders under the thick fabric of the sweater and continued onward.

* * * * *

Flames flickered in the black candles that marked the edges of the pentagram, sending a dancing golden glow over her nude skin as Carrie lowered herself to the center of the design on the floor of her apartment.

It had taken quite awhile to get everything right for what she was about to do - but the fact that she worked at an Occult Shop made obtaining the correct materials easier than for most, saving her a bit of time.

Looking over everything spread around her, she fingered a few of the rather arcane items, and then lifted the Kleenex that held the drop of blood.

“Cheat on me, will you?” She hissed, her anger still burning hot. “Well, you’ll get yours - and that bimbo you’re with will get hers, too.”

Satisfied with her preparation, she closed her eyes as she sat cross-legged in the circular design, and began to chant in a rolling, sonorous voice...

* * * * *

Reaching the edge of the clearing, Mark looked out at the crowd of people dancing, drinking and talking in the glow of the torches spread out around the cabin and reaching down to the wide, sandy beach, where a blazing bonfire was just being lit to combat the chill that was coming with the deepening dark of night.

Mark’s hands felt like they were a Niagara Falls of sweat, and all that water seemed to be coming from his mouth, which was as dry as a bone. Gritting his teeth, he began to head towards the lodge, skirting around the outside of the circle of torches and avoiding the main mass of partying guys and girls, his small bag feeling like it weighed a ton.

“Hey - now that’s a whole lotta woman...”

Mark’s head whipped around to his right, a flush rising in his face as he turned to confront the person making the sarcastic remark - when something registered that surprised him.

It wasn’t sarcastic.

The speaker was emerging from the foliage outside the circle of light, obviously having answered the call of nature. He was swaying slightly as he peered at Mark, and held a bottle of beer in one thick hand. It was also obvious that he hadn’t clued in on the fact that Mark was a guy in drag, and the first emotional response Mark felt was disgust at being ‘too’ realistic...

...then the second one was a surge of hope as a thought occurred to him.

He was going to get a lot of ribbing about being dressed as a woman - but from what he’d seen, there were a few other guys who’d used the ‘drag’ dodge when they hadn’t been able to come up with a better costume. He’d already noted at least four others in the crowd, and the costumes they wore were pretty pathetic - basically a dress, and that was it.

In fact, there were a good many guys in cheesy costumes of all sorts, drag or not. Despite the fact it was embarrassing to be able to go ‘en femme’ so realistically, Mark had a bombshell drop on him as he realized that he could severely limit the jokes and joshing he was going to take.

If he was careful, he could get through until midnight without being spotted as a guy - he could 'pass'. Stick to the dimly lit areas, don't talk much... it could work.

Considering the mostly cheep, pathetic costumes most guys had come up with - there was even a good chance that he could be in the running for one of the prizes at the midnight unmasking. Especially if he 'passed' until then. Go unnoticed for five hours, then unmask himself - it'd prove that his costume was good enough.

And... If he won a prize, anytime somebody started ragging on him over the weekend, he could just smile smugly and retort that he, at least, had won one of the prizes that was up for grabs. That'd probably shut them down pretty fast. Better still - as embarrassing and awkward as 'passing' would be, it would limit the ribbing he got - he'd expected it to start the instant he met another guest at the party. But, if nobody caught him, he could delay the start of the ribbing until his unmasking at midnight...

All this passed through Mark's mind in an instant as it burst on him like a blinding light of hope. With only a slight hesitation after the guy's comment, he forced his gloss-pink lips into a semblance of a smile.

"More then you can handle." He replied, struggling to speak in a quiet, feminine voice. Between the lack of volume and his struggle in pitch, what emerged was close enough to a husky, smoky feminine voice.

"Don't bet on it, honey." The guy said, his bleary eyes focused on the bulging sweater. That was all Mark needed to know - there was actually a chance he could pull this off.

Certainly not intending to flirt with the guy, Mark used that feminine tone to curtly excuse himself, then headed on towards the lodge - but this time, he made a conscious effort to move in what he thought was a feminine way, swaying his hips and swiveling them with each step, moving his torso and 'breasts' in a sort of rolling, circular motion, head up and arms swaying.

Of course, he didn't realize that he'd immediately fallen into the usual routine of first-time 'actors' - overacting. Whereas a woman's walk was a series of more subtle motions, Mark's looked blatant - 'she' was, as the saying went 'working it'. Blissfully, Mark didn't realize that he was walking like a hooker on the prowl - his face was flushed from the thought that he was forcing himself to move the way a woman 'normally' did as it was.

Climbing the steps to the lodge was an adventure in and of itself. The first step - his usual stride - nearly 'exposed' him, as the short skirt slid upwards as he lifted his boot-clad leg the way he always had. Hastily - sweating and blushing furiously - he lowered his leg and straightened the thick denim material, glancing around with a guilty, embarrassed look. Thankfully, nobody had seen his faux pas, and he took the stairs more slowly and 'daintily', sort of swinging each foot onto the next step then bring the back foot up to that step as well - not on to the next one, as he'd always done before. It seemed to take forever to make it up the six steps, and then he was striding to the door of the large, log-sided structure, high-heels 'climp'ing on the boards of the deck.

Going inside, he found himself in a large living room, decked out in 'frontier' fashion, right down to the moose head on the wall and crossed 'muskets' over the huge stone fireplace. A wooden staircase led to the 'balcony' on the second level, where a dozen doors led to bedrooms, and there were another dozen doors below them, on the ground floor, leading to smaller rooms.

There were a few people lounging in the furniture that dotted the large room, and Mark was grateful that - for 'atmosphere' - the lodge was lit only by the firelight and a few kerosene-filled hurricane lamps, keeping illumination to a bare minimum.

Picking the closest person - a slender brunette in a deep armchair, chatting with a taller redhead on the couch - Mark walked over, heart pounding behind the padding of his fake tits.

"Excuse me." He said quietly to the brunette, using the same husky 'female' voice. "Do you know where I can drop my bag?"

The girl barely glanced up. "I think most of the rooms have been claimed - but the big bedroom at the far right of the upper hall is the 'girls dorm' - see if there's an empty cot up there."

"Thanks." Mark said softly, heart beginning to slow as the girl didn't show any sign of thinking he was anything other than the tall, buxom woman he seemed to be...

...then it sped up rapidly as the girl looked upward, peering in the dim light in a futile effort to make out more detail in the dancing, flickering dimness. "By the way - something wrong with your voice?"

Forcing himself to remain calm, Mark essayed a smile. "Touch of laryngitis." Despite fear and embarrassment, he forced himself to go on the offensive, so to speak. "By the way - I'm Marcie."

The brunette tapped her chest where the T-shirt stretched over pert breasts. "Kara. And the quiet red-head's Colleen." "Nice to meet ya." Mark replied in the same soft, husky tone, hoping that it was enough. He turned away...

"Marcie!"

He turned back - and barely managed to catch the small, rectangular object that Colleen had hurled. He stared down at a package of Halls lozenges.

"Had laryngitis once - it bites." The redhead said, sympathetically. "Hope it clears up quickly."

"Thanks." Mark said - but the two girls were back in conversation with one another, waving at 'her' absently.

He'd gotten away with it. And it was a better 'defense' than his wildest dreams could have imagined. Mark had to keep a smile from spreading across his face as he climbed to stair and walked to the end of the hall - after all, even if he didn't win a prize, getting invited to spend the night in the girl's dorm was a coup in itself. Not that it would last - but the tale would be enough to earn him a kind of fame that would buffer the rest of the weekend.

Dropping his bag just inside the door of the currently empty 'dorm', Mark turned and headed back towards the stairs, slipping a Halls into his mouth for effect.

Unknowingly using the same, over-exaggerated 'feminine' walk - and garnering more than a few looks that he didn't noticed ('intrigued' from the guys, mildly amused and/or disgusted from the girls), Mark made his way through the less crowded parts of the party towards the bar at the far end, near the beach.

The vaguely handsome guy playing bartender looked up as 'she' approached - but the gaze slid over the 'hooker' boots that so matched 'her' sexy 'come hither' sway, over the short skirt, to the large 'breasts' - and there it stopped.

"What can I get ya, gorgeous?" The man asked, a faint smile playing on the edges of his lips.

Catching the direction of the gaze, Mark felt a mixture of embarrassment and relief. "A screwdriver..." He said - then his mouth dropped open and one hand flew to the high collar of the sweater as his eyes bulged.

The man blinked and glanced up at the startled-looking 'woman', dimly seen in the light of the torches. "Something wrong?"

"My voice!" Mark said - and it emerged in the same rich, undeniably feminine tones that had come out when he'd named his choice of poison. With no effort, the tone was a definite, feminine contralto.

"Yeah...?" The bartender asked, his gaze flicking back and forth between 'her' poorly-lit face and the dancing shadows across 'her' bust line.

"Uh..." Mark stammered, mind whirling in confusion. "I... I had laryngitis - then somebody gave me a package of Halls - and one lozenge later, my voice is fine.." Mark managed the 'face saving' lie, still trying to deal with the feminine voice that slipped, unbidden, between his lips.

"Damn." The bartender said, taking the comment at face value. "You should do a commercial for them - that's incredible." He quickly mixed 'her' screwdriver, handing it to the stunned Mark.

He took the drink numbly, then faded back through the crowd, working his way to the darkened tree-line.

"Testing, testing..." He said quietly, his voice continuing to emerge in the same richly feminine tones. "What the fuck's going on here?" No matter how hard he tried, the voice was stuck in the same register and tones.

Then he rolled his eyes as the 'answer' came to him.

"Ha. Ha." He said wryly - in the female voice. He shook his head at the 'practical joke' that the red-head in the lodge had played on him - not unreasonably, he'd come to the erroneous conclusion that the 'lozenge' had done this. Some sort of trick or gag, that - on a 'real' woman - would have resulted in a voice like a helium-induced squeak.

Then he stopped - and began to grin. Maybe it would have been a great joke on anyone else - but for him, it was amazing luck. As bad as going in drag tonight was, he seemed to be getting all the breaks - because these 'gag' lozenges would help him keep his disguise intact.

Shaking his head, Mark dropped the rest of the pack of suspect lozenges into his purse, hoping that they'd last until midnight.

* * * * *

Taking a deep breath, Carrie relaxed a bit, wondering if this occult stuff really worked. Personally, she kept an open mind, neither really believing or disbelieving in it, but curious about it.

A faint, humorless smile touched her lips. If this 'magic' really did work, then right about now Mark and his bimbo were trying to deal with the fact that she was now speaking in a voice fit for a bimbo. Carrie didn't know how high-pitched the bitch's voice had been to begin with - but it would be higher and sexier now, if the spell worked.

Then a thought increased the width of that cruel smile - maybe the bitch had been a soprano to begin with - in which case her voice was probably so high now that only dogs could hear it.

Shaking her head, Carrie took a short break before continuing...

* * * * *

Mark weaved his way around the periphery of the party, trying to avoid direct patches of light that might reveal his features to those he passed.

A group of men clad in a variety of costumes was 'holding court' at the edge of the crowd of people, obviously deep in their cups. Still - Mark didn't want to push his way through the knot of men, for fear that one of them might make a pass at 'her' - although he felt reasonably safe around women, he didn't want to have his disguise disastrously broken.

There was no choice but to fade back into the woods a bit and detour around the knot of men - which Mark promptly did, moving through the darkened woods with the foliage brushing across his body with every step.

With the distracting sensation of the foliage touching his body, he never noticed the slight sensation that ran through his body as every single follicle of body hair lower than his eyelashes fell out, drifting unnoticed to the forest floor as his skin became smooth and soft and hairless. Completely unaware of the change, he threaded his way back into the clearing, staying on the edge of the party as he continued circulating, afraid of remaining in any one place too long.

Finishing the drink he held, Mark walked to one of the three other 'bars' and grabbed another screwdriver, risking a bit more exposure for the sake of another glass of 'Dutch Courage'. Then he once more faded away, trying to remain as inconspicuous as a tall, 'buxom', 'woman' could around groups of half-potted men.

Mark was halfway through the second screwdriver when Carrie's next little 'present' came into effect - and he almost dropped the glass as a strange itching sensation ran through his face. Placing the glass on a handy rock, he rubbed his face with a tired motion, not even noticing the altered contours below his fingers - because who expected to feel a face that had become undeniable feminine, with a pert nose, full lips, and large eyes surrounded by long lashes? The odd contours of his face and the swollen sensation of his lips he assumed were part of the effect of the alcohol hitting his system - after all, a couple of drinks always caused him to feel a little disconnected, his body seemed unlike its normal self - that was part of what being drunk was. So, instead of thinking about his face at all, he downed the rest of his drink and went back for a refill.

The bartender took the glass and began to fill it - and a gust of wind caused the torches to flare, exposing the woman's face more clearly. The bartender was gratified to see that the earlier half-light had been misleading - although she was a big woman, she definitely wasn't masculine looking in the face - she was actually quite sexy, with full lips that he immediately began to image sealed around his cock.

"So - I'm just doing this bartender routine for the hell of it." He said with a grin. "Bartender volunteers don't have to wear a costume."

"So I notice." Mark replied rather vaguely, not having caught the tone of the guy's voice - never having had the tone directed at himself before.

"So - after midnight, when it's safe for me to walk away from the bar, what say we... do something?"

It took a second for Mark to catch on - and he was glad that the briefly flaring torches had subsided, because the darkness hid a rising blush. "Maybe - I've had a couple of other offers." Mark lied, grateful for the 'convincingly female' voice that the 'lozenges' had given him. "Check back with me later."

Mark wandered away, mentally reminding himself to not only avoid that bar for the rest of the evening, but that guy for the rest of the weekend - after the midnight unveiling, he was sure to be pissed that a guy had let him hit on 'her'.

Deciding to lay low for a bit, Mark made his way to one of the bars he had not yet visited, hanging back from the torches as he asked for a screwdriver and two beers, making as if he was fetching drinks for 'herself' and a couple of guys - which also kept 'her' from getting hit on. Taking the three drinks, she faded back into the woods a bit, picking a spot on the edge of the beach and away from either the party of the people near the big bonfire on the beach near the lodge. He sipped at the beer, leaning back against the trunk of a tree and killing time by letting his mind wander.

That's when a strange sensation began to come from his chest.

Frowning, Mark sat up, hands going to the dark material of the sweater, and feeling the padding beneath it. His first thought had been that something was causing a reaction - maybe from the towels being musty. But the feeling wasn't exactly an itch, so much as a strange sensation of pressure...

Looking around, Mark made sure he was alone, then pulled the sweater up and undid the twine that held his 'tits' in place, laying them to the side as he stared at his chest. It didn't help much - it was just a lighter-colored blur in the darkness.

He put his hands against his chest - and barely managed to stifle a startled, horrified scream.

His nipples were distended - atop two small domes of flesh, about the size and shape of half golf-balls. But they weren't remaining that way, swelling steadily outwards against the palms of his hands as - numbly - he tried to push the swelling, sensitive lumps of flesh back into his chest, his mind spinning in confusion and disbelief.

* * * * *

“Like having big tits, bitch?” Carrie grunted as she focused her mind on what she was doing. “Well, take this - another fifteen cup sizes, with nipples to match. You’ll be so big you won’t be able to stand up...”

She shut up her monologue taunts as she concentrated harder, then chuckled. “I’d like to see Mark’s face as his slut’s tits swell like balloons...”

* * * * *

Mark’s face was locked in a rictus of horrified confusion as the flesh of his chest continued to swell outwards, forming what could only be breasts. They were already bigger than his girlfriend Carrie’s modest mounds - they must be at least a double-‘D’ by now, and will still swelling, the nipples tipping them keeping pace as they also grew.

“Stop...! Oh, God, no...!” Mark moaned softly in his newly feminine voice - the one that he was starting to doubt was the effect of a gag lozenge. No gag could cause what was happening now, and he was sure that the two events were connected.

Unsteadily, Mark pushed himself to his feet, cursing the heels he wore as he began to slowly make his way back towards the lodge, the flesh under his hands now the size of small melons, and still growing. The thick, sensitive nipples were engorged in the cool air, sticking out between the splayed fingers of hands that could no longer come close to containing the swelling mounds.

By the time he neared the tree-line, he was nearly in a full-blown panic, his steps awkward and short, his balance thrown off by the massive, heavy tits that now thrust proudly from his chest, the size and shape of medicine balls, tipped by enormous, thick, sensitive nipples. It was impossible - but it had happened, nevertheless. He’d grown huge, firm, sensitive tits.

Before breaking into the circle of light around the party, Mark paused and managed to regroup his thoughts a bit - enough to realize that he couldn’t wander around with the freakish masses of tit-flesh hanging out in full view. With considerable effort, he managed to get them stuffed under a sweater that was strained to the limit to hold them. He shuddered at the sensation created by the fabric moving over the engorged nipples as he pulled the sweater down, and even the quickest of glances would reveal the massive nipples poking impudent dents into the cable-knit surface.

Face looked in a stunned expression, barely able to keep his balance atop the heels against the top-heavy drag of the massive, firm boobs, Mark began to make his way around the edge of the party, being even more circumspect as he tried to make for his car.

If he thought he might have been rather conspicuous before, his attempt to slip unnoticed through the half-squiffed party-goers was doomed to failure from the very start. A swaying, staggering woman taller than most of the men, balanced atop high stiletto heels and sporting massive tits with obviously ‘excited’ nipples proudly displayed simply could not pass unnoticed. Her weaving and unsteady stance - as well as the look on her face - were immediately attributed to drunkenness - which immediately set men’s minds to thinking. Starting at a point nearest her and spreading through the crowd, heads turned in her direction, and raucous comments and cat-calls began to float through the air.

“Wow - look at the set...”

“.....love to bury my face in those...” “...Grand Canyon has nothing on you...” “Got Milk?”

“...baby, what say you and I...”

Faced with running a gauntlet of horny men, many of them leering at ‘her’ and gravitating in ‘her’ direction, Mark’s nerve broke - on top of everything else, this was just too much. Instead, he took the path of least resistance, altering his target and staggering towards the nearby lodge, dodging men who were leaning forward in the hopes of a quick grab.

Ducking through the doors, Mark ignored the looks shot in her direction and staggered across the length of the room, heels stuttering against the wooden floor. Reaching one of the two ground floor bathroom, he practically hauled aside the startled man just emerging from the small room and bolted inside, locking the door and slumping to a seat atop the great white throne, mind spinning in horror and confusion.

“What the hells happening to me?” He whispered to himself, winding at the sound of his feminized voice. He slumped forward, arms crossing under his massive new additions, increasing the strain on the sweater...

...which was just too much for the aging and worn garment. A tired, weakened thread, stretched to far, gave way with a muffled ‘pop’ that made mark sit up in surprise, unthinking taking a gasping intake of breath...

...which was the final straw.

Stunned, Mark could do nothing but stare down at his massively swollen chest as the aging sweater gave way under the stress, a muffled tearing sound accompanying the swelling hole that started in the space between his massive, sensitive new nipples and rapidly spreading outwards, exposing those accursed boobs to the cool air of the bathroom as he gaped down at the smooth, milky flesh of the unwanted globes.

“Oh, shit...” mark said in his feminine voice, hands flying up to the massive mounds and trying vainly to cover them.

“He was horrified to find himself near panicked tears, and new that if he lost control, he’d probably go insane. Closing his eyes, he took several deep breaths, trying to ignore the... ‘interesting’ sensations that created as he struggled to calm himself and find a way to deal with the inexplicable, impossible situation he found himself in the middle of.

Refusing to acknowledge his massive, heavy attributes for the minute, he instead concentrated on calming himself, his eyes wandering...

“What the...?” He gasped, then began to strip, in short order ending up naked in front of the mirror, staring at the soft, hairless skin that extended over every inch of his body, aside from a patch of pubic hair.

“What the hell’s happening?” He asked himself in a hoarse voice, stunned by the sight of his feminine-looking skin. He looked up to meet his tortured eyes in the mirror..

Part of the scream managed to escape from his throat before he could clamp down on it - but it was a weak, pathetic sound that couldn’t be heard outside the bathroom door over the music from outside. Mark’s heart skipped a good three beats before resuming it's pumping, at three times it's previous rate as he gaped in horror at the completely unfamiliar - and feminine - face staring back at him in the mirror.

"No... No, this can't be happening..." mark whispered, trying for denial - and failing miserable, as there was just too much objective proof that this was, indeed, really happening to him.

* * * * *

Carrie was on a roll. With practice, the intense concentration needed for what she was doing was getting easier - and now that she'd started to vent her anger, it was feeding on itself, rising higher and higher, into a towering inferno of rage and desire for revenge. 'Hell hath no fury like a woman scored' was an old and well known adage - and Carrie truly believed she'd been scorned. Thrown over, betrayed, by Mark.

But it wasn't entirely Mark's fault - nor even mostly. Not to Carrie's way of thinking. She knew of Mark's lack of social life, and the way she saw it, he'd been helpless to resist the blatant advances of the unknown hussy she'd seen. Sure, she was angry at him, and would get around to making him pay for what he did - but, right now, all her attention was focused on making that slut pay for her crimes, and in her mind's eye she'd 'recreated' what 'must' be going on - Mark and this woman in his bedroom, now trying to deal with the fact that her tits must be the size of bean-bag chairs, her voice so high as to crack glass, and her face a ridiculous parody of sensuality.

And she was just getting warmed up. "Let's see how you deal with this, bitch..."

* * * * *

Standing, stunned, in front of the mirror, Mark felt a strange rippling through his body, and gave a muffled groan as he suddenly bent over, terrible cramps assaulting his gut even as painful pressures and tugging occurred elsewhere on his body.

By the time he was able to straighten, he knew that something else had happened, and it was in a numb state that was nearly resigned acceptance, he stunned at his wide, womanly hips and firm ass below a tiny waist. Whatever was happening to him was an ongoing process, and it wasn't over yet - and, with all the 'hints' he'd had so far to determine the pattern, he saw the direction it was going.

Somehow, the universe was conspiring to make the 'costume' he wore a reality - and then some.

"I don't want to be a woman!" He whispered, ashamed to feel tears tricking from the corner of his eyes - or rather, the eyes of a feminine face that wasn't his, but now hung on the front of his skull, for all to see.

Angrily, he reached up and tore the wig from his head and tossed it atop the pile of clothes, revealing his own close-cropped hair and helping to dispel that disturbing attractiveness of his altered face a bit - not nearly enough, but at least it was a token protest of the inexplicable events that were rolling down on him like a curse from a vengeful God.

Then a sudden banging on the door almost put him into cardiac arrest. "Come on - you can't hog that bathroom all night!"

Wincing at the slurred, masculine voice, Mark fought for control. "I... I'll just be a couple of minutes." He called through the door. Then he slumped to the toilet and tried to figure out what the hell he should do now...

* * * * *

Carrie was sweating, her naked body glistening in the flickering light of the candles as a manic grin rose on her lips. Her eyes were lit with an inner fire as she worked one spell after another, barely pausing to recover from the drain it took on her to create the magic.

* * * * *

Mark grunted and his head jerked as long, dark hair spilled in front of his eyes. He reached up and fingered the long, silky strands, finding that the hair mimicked the color and style of the wig, not knowing that the intention had been to add that length to 'her' hair - as Carrie believed the wig to be - which would have left the hair nearly to the floor at the back, and hanging to her chin at the front. As it was, it was still thicker and 'nicer' than the wig had been - and it was anchored firmly to his head by incongruously blonde roots that only enhanced the 'real' look of the hair, as if she was a natural blonde who'd dyed her hair dark for whatever reason.

"I... I can't handle this..." mark said to himself - but even as the words emerged in that undeniable feminine voice, he was formulating a plan that would get him to his car. In his confused state, he latched onto that single thought with no logic to back it up - that if he could get away from the party, this would all end.

Rising from the toilet, he considered his options. There weren't many, so he was forced to do what he could in the few minutes he had.

He started by shoving the sweater, padded body-shaper, latex leggings, and wig into the cabinet under the sink, among the cleaning supplies that rested there. Hurriedly, he pulled on the nylons, underwear and skirt, then started to pull on the boots...

In his hurry, he hauled on the too-tight footwear's fake-leather upper half - which tore cleanly from the sole, leaving him staring at the ruined boot in frustrated anger. Quickly tossing the boots in with the rest of the stuff, he looked around frantically.

The bathroom was large, and quite a bit of it was taken up with space for changing into swim wear and the like. Despite the cool weather, a few hardy people were braving the lake tonight, and Mark looked at the small array of clothing left behind.

Ignoring the pain, he forced his feet into a too-small pair of black platform pumps with a seven inch stiletto heel, then looked for a top. None came close to fitting his massive tits.

The banging on the door came again, and Mark found himself become nearly frantic. Angrily, he grabbed a string-stile bikini top, and with a bit of work managed to get the skimpy blue fabric on - but the triangles of fabric barely covered his massive new nipples, and did nothing to disguise them while leaving most of the massive, firm globes freely visible.

Ignoring that for the moment, Mark looked at himself in the mirror quickly - he only needed to get to his car, and this should.,...

...wait. His hands...

Angrily, he considered what to do about the masculine looking hands gracing his smooth, hairless arms. He considered ignoring it - but the last thing he wanted was anything to hold him up on his escape. A quick search of the bathroom revealed a pair of opera-length black satin gloves in a bin of odds-and-ends of clothing, such as boas and wraps. He pulled the gloves on, the black hue hiding the exact shape of his hands.

Unlocking the door, feet screaming in pain at being jammed in the small shoes. Mark stepped past a stunned man who gaped at the huge-breasted 'woman' who strode past, almost falling over on the first step...

* * * * *

...Carrie segued into her next spell...

* * * * *

Then catching her balance easily and moving towards the lodge's back door with an incredibly sexy, seductive stride, huge tits swaying enticingly as her firm, sexy ass worked under the tight denim skirt.

Mark was taken by surprise by the way his body was now moving easily and sensuously in a female manner, but couldn't take the time to think about it, any more then he could spend time considering that fact that the shoes now fit his feet perfectly - and he was pretty damned sure the shoes hadn't grown. Instead, each change made him more eager to escape and put an end to this horror.

* * * * *

A cruel smile rode on Carrie's face at the thought of that bitch trying to stand under the double handicap of massive tits and what must now be almost infinitesimal feet. Especially since she'd altered the curve of those feet...

Hell - why stop there. Why not over-exaggerated her legs, too...

* * * * *

Mark felt the writhing sensation in his legs as he stepped through the door, but didn't try to see what had happened. Instead, he glanced around, ensuring that nobody was lounging around the rarely-used back door of the lodge.

Turning, he began to head towards the tree-line, looking forward to reaching his...

* * * * *

"Deal with this, bitch - how do you like being in bed with a complete stranger...?"

* * * * *

Her mind blanked, and she stopped dead, mind spinning as she tried to remember what she was doing.

Realization set in, and she slumped to the stoop, staring blindly into the woods as her face was locked in an expression of horror.

She could remember everything that had happened this evening - except for anything relating directly to her old life. She knew this wasn't her real appearance or gender, knew that she'd been a guy - but couldn't remember her name, where she lived, what car she drove - anything. It was all a blank - every detail of her life wiped from her mind as easily as somebody would erase words from a chalkboard.

What was she going to do? She didn't even know who she was - she just knew that she wasn't who she now appeared to be, locked into a horrific situation with no clear-cut exit.

Rising to her feet, she decided to retreat to the safety of a bathroom to plan her next steps - when a man in a 'Super-man' costume walked around the corner. He stopped dead at the sight of the gorgeous woman staring blankly at him.

"Who - hi there gorgeous." He said, obviously pretty far gone. His eyes seemed riveted to the expansive display of tit-flesh as he slowly closed the distance between them.

She opened her mouth to tell him off...

"Hi there, handsome.." She was horrified to hear herself purr in a sensuous voice, helplessly taking a few steps to close the distance.

Then, horrified, she found herself throwing her glove-clad arms over his shoulders and burying her face against his, her lips locking onto his as she slipped her tongue between them. The man wasted no time in responding to the 'passionate' kiss she was giving him, even as she struggled in horror for control of her renegade body, which ignored her instructions and continued kissing the stranger.

Finally, she pulled away from the man - but didn't run screaming into the night, as she wished she could. Instead, she found herself cupping her huge tits.

"Like what you see, stud?" She purred helplessly - and when the man nodded blankly, mumbling a reply, she found herself reaching behind her neck and undoing the band of the bikini, tossing the scrap of clothing aside and revealing her massive tits in all their glory.

"Well?" She asked sensuously, helplessly wiggling her torso enticingly.

Like a staved man falling on some food, the man leaned forward and began to fondle and suck her tits, paying special attention to her massive, engorged nipples.

She helplessly moaned in pleasure that was completely faked. No matter how disgusted she was by this, she found that - physically - it did feel wonderful, and the fact that she was enjoying any part of this only disgusted her further.

But that disgust was nothing compared to what she felt as her body continued to betray her. Slowly, she slid downwards, dragging her huge tits across the thin tights that covered his body as she sank to her recently re-shaped knees. Mentally screaming and struggling to stop herself, she found herself slowly, teasingly lowering his pants and underwear, revealing an average sized cock tat was already as hard as a rock, throbbing slightly in time with his pulse.

Then she positioned herself so that the cock was between her huge tits. Smiling, she found herself 'drooling' a ribbon of spit into that monumental cleavage - then using her legs and ass muscles to move herself up and down, his cock surrounded by warm, slipper tit- flesh as she helplessly tit-fucked him with a smile that his her true feelings - the urge to vomit.

It didn't take too long at all to get the man off - in short order he stiffened and cum gushed from the tip of his cock as he moaned in pleasure, the spray of thick liquid shooting up her cleavage and raining down on the upper slope of her huge, round boobs. Smiling sensuously, she slowly and sexily massaged the cum into her huge endowments, shuddering internally at what she was helplessly doing as she gave her huge tits a glossy sheen of cum before putting that tiny scrap of a bikini back on.

"I just love the feel of cum on my body..." She helplessly cooed to the dopishly smiling man, turning away with a coquettish look over her shoulder as she climbed the steps and re-entered the lodge.

Once out of view of the man, the strange force that had control of her vanished, and she dropped to her knees and dry-heaved at what she'd just done, realizing that things were getting much, much worse.

Rising, she walked down the short hall, accompanied by the staccato clicking of her high heels as she searched for safe sanctuary.

She didn't find it. Exiting the end of the hall, she literally bumped into another man, a muscular 'jock'; type unimaginatively arrayed in a football uniform.

Immediately, she once more lost control of her body, smiling at the muscular man with a sensual look in her eyes. She struggled to break away, retreat from the encounter where she was pressed up against the man...

..instead, she found one now feminine hand tracing the rapidly rising bulge at his crotch. "Mmmm..." She moaned in a voice that would get a corpse hard. "You're a big boy, aren't out." "Uh... and you're a big girl..." He stammered, eyeing her huge, gleaming mounds.

"Then we're perfectly matched, huh?" She helplessly said, dragging him in to hallway without any trouble - he didn't resist. In fact, the only resistance was in her screaming, gibbering mind, which was completely unable to affect what her body was doing as she once again knelt and lowered the man's pants, revealing a good-sized cock that was rapidly hardening.

But there the routine changed - because she'd didn't free her massive tits. Instead, with a sensuous smile, she leaned forward and enveloped the man's cock with her 'eager' lips.

Deep inside she screamed, cried and begged at the horror and indignity of sucking a man's cock - but her body showed none of that, displaying expertise in the field as she used hands, tongue, lips and head movements in expert coordination, slowly bringing him towards the edge... then backing down.

Bringing him to the edge... then backing down.

Bringing him to the edge... and pushing him over, moaning in 'pleasure' in the back of her throat, a sound that matched his own as he shot his load into her 'eager' mouth. Helplessly, she swallowed every drop of the disgustingly salty, musty goo, acting as if it was the pure ambrosia of the Gods. She even licked his cock clean before tucking it away.

"Oh, god - that was fantastic..." the man said, and she desperately willed him to leave so she'd regain control as she helplessly replied with: "Well - practice makes perfect. You'd be amazed at what else I can do."

"No - I wouldn't." He said. "My name's John, by the way." "Anita." She found herself introducing herself. "Anita Lottacum" John blinked. "You're shitting me."

"No - that's my legal name." She found herself telling him, rubbing her over-endowed body against his. "I changed it to that. It saves time..."

"Saves time...?"

Screaming internally, Anita 'revealed' the 'truth' - "I'm a cum-hungry slut who can't get enough. I want to spend every minute of every day with men touching me, fucking me, giving me pleasure - I'm a true, honest-to-god nymphomaniac."

John's jaw dropped - and Anita was horrified by the revelation of what her controlling alter-ego 'enjoyed' in life. It wasn't the slightest bit unclear or indefinite - she was made for sex, only sex, and all types of sex.

"Why don't we head down to the beach...?" She found herself suggesting with a helplessly suggestive grin, and John agreed eagerly...

* * * * *

Carrie's face was etched in lines of exhaustion as she pushed the last of her spells out of a horse throat, finishing her plans for the bitch. Now that she was obsessed with being someone else, and didn't remember Mark at all, she would be out of the way - and Carrie hoped she'd 'enjoy' being a ridiculous caricature of a slut. Considering what she had looked like originally - or what Carrie thought she'd looked like - she must be an utter freak of exaggerated femininity now, and would probably have a hard time fulfilling her incredible cravings - after all, there can't be that many men around who'd want a woman with tits so huge she can barely stand, hair down to the floor, ridiculously tiny waist over unbelievable swollen hips and ass, tiny hands and feet, and - the finishing touch - a cunt that would probably be as huge and loose as the Grand Canyon and as wet as Niagara falls, assuming that her original cunt was anything close to 'normal'.

Finishing the last spell - the one with the few little 'extras' thrown in - Carrie slumped forward and painfully blew out the remaining nubs of the candles, completely exhausted by satisfied with her night's work. She needed to rest, though, to regain her energy...

...so that she could start Mark's punishment tomorrow. She wasn't quite sure what it would be, yet - but she'd probably dream up something appropriate while she slept.

Smiling cruelly at the thought of the extras she'd come up with at the last minute to torment her adversary, she dragged herself off to bed, wondering who the woman was - or rather, who she'd been, as she was now 'Anita Lottacum, super-slut'...

* * * * *

Walking arm-in-arm with John down to the cluster of people on the beach, Anita felt something run through her body. She couldn't react to it at all, visibly - but inside, she wanted to scream as she felt a pulling sensation at her crotch that could only mean one thing.

But that was only part of what the odd sensation was - but because it all happened simultaneously, and she had focused on the loss of the last of her manhood, she missed the import of the rest of it, not knowing what else had been done to her.

She reached the beach and strutted across the sand, immediately drawing the eyes of the half-dozen men that John was leading her towards. Once they were all looking at her, she stopped with an artfully contrived 'annoyed' expression on her face.

"Heels are soooo sexy - but no good for walking on a beach." She said, slowly sinking until she was sitting on the beach, legs spread in front of her. "Can two of you handsome studs take my shoes off for me?"

"Whoa.. who's the babe?" One of the stunned men asked John, eyeing the hugely endowed woman on the ground. "I'm Anita Lottacum - and that's my name and philosophy. Now - who's going to help me?"

There was a minor skirmish before two men came out 'on top' claiming the privilege of removing a high-heeled pump each.

"While you're sown there.. why not help me with my stockings?" She suggested, running her hands suggestively on the inside of her thighs, helplessly to stop what she was doing. The men, of course, couldn't detect her inner pleas to them to go away, and eagerly removed the nylons - and, at her suggestion, continued upwards, the original two replaced by two more who took off her skirt and bikini top, then another who had the final privilege of removing her panties - now soaked with pussy juices, and it no way indicating that a definitely male cock had resided in them until very recently.

By now, most of the party-goers were gathered at the edge of the beach, watching this spectacle with drunken good cheer, throwing comments and suggestions in the direction of the half-dozen men surrounding the incredibly proportioned woman reclined naked in the sand.

Obedying her explicit instructions, a quartet of men stripped down, flushing at the cat-calls of the onlookers. But the idea apparently caught on - some of the men and women watching paired off, some of them brazen enough to pick a spot in the open, others returning to the lodge.

Meanwhile, Anita was helplessly screaming in the caverns of her mind as the men followed her instructions. One positioned himself at her crotch, while another straddled her chest. The other two knelt, one on either side of her face as she took their rapidly hardening cocks in hand...

She screamed in 'pleasure' as the first man's cock entered her hot, wet cunt. That scream was quickly muffled as she closed her mouth over the cock of one of the men beside her, both hands stroking both shafts as she alternated from one man to the other with her mouth, struggling on the timing while 'distracted' by the man pounding into her cunt while another rose her torso, driving his cock in her magnificent cleavage.

Shame, horror, disgust, pleasure - all of these warred in her mind, but she couldn't provide an outlet for any of them as she performed her magic, timing things so that...

All four men came at the same time. The one between her legs stiffened and moaned as he pumped his load deep into her cunt, even as the one straddling her gushed cum over her tits. Her face had finished in the straight up position, so that she could aim the two gushing cock into her open mouth, gulping at the spray of cum that jetted down her 'eager' throat.

Then she rolled from under the two men atop her, raising herself to her hands and knees.

"Now serving..." She said in a voice thick from the cum she'd just swallowed. "...an ass-fuck and a blow-job - who's next...?"

There was no shortage of volunteers - but the ones who didn't move fast enough weren't disappointed - they just had to wait their turns.....

* * * * *

Anita woke sharply as the alarm directly beside her ear sounded.

She moaned in emotionally agony, the taste of cum still heavy in her throat as she pushed herself off the bed and looked around the small room. She'd had less than an hour's sleep after she'd finished a fucking marathon of what must have been every man at the party last night - but that was all over. Because - after a long shower, she'd been allowed a room to herself to recuperate and - after vomiting for a long time out the window - she'd set the alarm clock, knowing that the men she'd fucked last night would be asleep as the dawn broke over the exhausted lodge.

Rolling from the bed, Anita pulled on her 'clothes' and opened the door, peering out to ensure that the lodge was silent. She began to yip-toe towards the door, finally seeing her way clear to escape. She may not know who she was - but she knew she had to get away before another man appeared and she fell into that mindless slut-mode. She had to escape. Maybe to a convent - anywhere where there was no men to trigger her cum cravings and loss of control.

* * * * *

Carrie smiled as she got ready to cast the spell. She'd come up with the perfect punishment for that two-timing Mark - and it wouldn't even be that difficult of a spell, as it would only affect a few parts of him. She would leave most of his body exactly as they were now, not even mentioning them in the spell - but she'd make a few changes to other parts of his body, as well as his mind and wardrobe...

* * * * *

Anita was almost to the door when she suddenly stopped, her body gripped with a strange tingling sensation.

She gasped as she felt herself changing - and even watched in the reflection of the glass in the door, able to see the ghostly image of herself as she began to change.

Her breast began to shrink, losing mass as they grew smaller, and she felt a burst of hope - but it was quickly dashed as they stabilized at an amazingly firm, round DDD cup, thrust perkily from her frame...

...which shrunk in height, becoming about average for a woman - but most of that height was made up in her legs, which barely changed at all.

Her hair suddenly pulled upwards and lightened in color, becoming a mass of blonde curls around a face that changes somewhat, becoming more 'innocent' looking, almost pixie-ish.

Then her clothing writhed and began to change. Within seconds, she stood dressed in a sexy/innocent outfit that drew the eye to all the right places.

A pair of shoes with clear plastic platforms and eight inch heels topped by four hot-pink straps that held them to her feet. White ankle socks, trimmed in lace. A short, ruffled skirt in hot pink that barely covered her white cotton panties. A white spandex crop-top that barely covered her tits, with a pink denim jacket edged with white lace over that. A big pink-and-white polka-dot bow in her mass of blonde curls. A vision of pseudo-innocent sexuality.

"No..." She moaned in a higher, perkier voice, and took a step closer towards the door and freedom...

"Who.. Who are you...?"

Helplessly, inches away from escape, the newly re-shaped woman turned to face the bleary-looking man standing at the top of the stairs, dressed only in boxer shorts that were quickly tenting.

"Hi!" She helplessly answered in a chipper voice, a smile curving her full, red lips. "I'm Sissy the Slut Slave! I want to make men happy allll the time." She giggled mindlessly. "What's your name?"

"Uh... Anton.. I mean, Andy."

"Hi, Andy!" She giggled. "Why don't I make you breakfast - and after you're done eating, I'll suck your cock. I just looove having sweet, delicious cum for breakfast. "

* * * * *

Relaxing at the effort, Carrie closed her eyes and tried to imagine how Mark must look - a man with tits and a semi-feminine face, dressed in sissy-ish clothes and offering to serve any man he met. It was a fitting revenge.

Besides - it was only temporary. After all - she'd specified that the changes would last exactly seventy-two hours. That should be enough humiliation.

Then the spell would collapse.

And he's go back to exactly the way he'd been just before the 'Sissy' spell took effect....

BACK TO FUN ZONE

© 1997 - 2016 TGstories.

Stories on the "Public Access" pages may be Copyright by individual authors.

Home | Membership | Terms & Conditions | Privacy Policy | Contact

SUMMARY: After trying to steal company secrets from his bio-tech firm, one man is blackmailed into letting himself be feminized rather than go to jail.

Working Gal

By Gunslinger

The glow of the setting sun reflected off the twelve stories of chrome, steel and polarized glass the fronted the determinedly high-tech building behind the tall security fence, making the entire building seem as if it were bathed in blood. The same rays of the fading sun glinted hungrily on the small, almost unobtrusive brass lettering that identified the building as the Synthetic Biological/Genetics Corporation of Palo Alto, California.

Inside the building, staff and scientists, in offices and labs, were preparing for the evening shift change. The scientists, wrapped up in whatever scientific research they were engaged in, did so with mild reluctance, the office staff moving with much more enthusiasm.

With one notable exception....

"Hey, Rick - you coming, or what? Geez - your last day, I'd of thought you would have ducked out early."

The person being addressed looked up from his work. Tall, slender and blandly handsome, the athletic, auburn haired man waved a hand. "Naw - I wanted to tie up a few loose ends before I pack up and leave. Hey, being down-sized out of a job isn't any reason to be sloppy, right?"

The inquirer shrugged in incomprehension, then turned and headed off for the parking lot, looking forward to the weekend.

Richard Sterling swallowed nervously, wondering if the drone from Accounting had heard the false tone of his voice. Wiping his sweaty palms on his pants, Rick turned his attention back to his 'work' - useless files whose sole purpose was to hide the fact that he was waiting for the lab opposite his cubical to empty. His heart was thundering a million beats a minute - this was his only shot at this.

The soon-to-be-ex-employee of SynBioGen had been approached by a rival corporation - quietly, of course - and been made an offer. Nothing on paper, no guaranties but should, by some strange chance, samples of anything SynBioGen was developing should show up at a certain Bus Station locker by a certain time, there just might happen to be a large suitcase full of small, unmarked bills in the same place the next day...

But Rick could feel the opportunity slipping through his finger. In a recent string of bad breaks, with Fate turned against him, this was just one more blow. The lab's head scientist, Dr. Vetterly, was still in the lab, puttering around and showing no signs of leaving - in fact, he looked like he was waiting for the second-shift personnel who'd show up any minute.

His single hope fading, Rick sighed - he just wasn't cut out to be a criminal, it appeared. Wearily, the broad-shouldered man stood and pulled on his blazer, then picked up his box of person items - a few useless mementos he didn't even know why he kept - and headed for the stairs...

...and the door to the lab swung open, and Dr. Vetterly called. "Wait a second - take this one down too."

Before Rick could even think of saying anything, the preoccupied scientist loaded another box atop Rick's, then reentered his lab and shut the door.

Stunned, Rick stared at the box in his arms. Resting atop it was a red-bordered 'disposal' form.

Then it suddenly became clear. Rick's blazer was only a shade or two darker than that worn by the company's 'gophers' - and the box containing his personal effects was a standard SynBioGen transport box. The doctor, thinking he was taking a load to the Disposal room, had simply handed Rick his future.

Twenty minutes later, Rick - grinning like a loon - pointed his aging Chevy towards home. In the back seat rested the box of... whatever, unopened and unquestioned by the guards who - knowing he'd been laid off - assumed it was his personal effects.

* * * * *

Rick came awake the next morning, his thoughts already turning to the moment when - slightly after noon - he was to drop off the box of samples taken from SynBioGen. Already he was thinking of how he was going to spend his money.

Those thoughts vanished instantly when he opened his eyes. For a long second, Rick merely stared at the end of the bed.

Sitting in a chair, waiting patiently, was John Rickerts, Head of Security for SynBioGen. He was flanked by two uniformed guards, one of whom held the damning box of evidence.

"Good morning, Rick." John said, with a slight smile. "I hate to bother you so early in the morning, but there has been a little problem. You see, when the techs were emptying the boxes into the disposal incinerator, one of them noticed that the contents of a certain box were... unusual. Personal effects, apparently - including your two awards. The ones you had in you office?" He gestured towards the box the guard was holding. "Then - we find this."

"I... You..." Rick stammered, horrified. "There's been a mistake!"

John nodded. "Of course there had, Rick. That's the only explanation. I'm sure the Judge will agree."

"Judge?" Rick replied, his heart sinking.

John blinked, feigning surprise. "Of course - the one that's going to preside at you trial for Grand Theft, Transportation of hazardous Materials - and treason."

"Treason?" Rick gasped.

"Oh, you mean you didn't know?" John asked, picking at a piece of lint on his dark suit. "Since April, SynBioGen has held status as a defense contractor for the United States Government - theft of these 'Top Secret' samples constitutes a treasonous act, under Article 3219.3 of the Federal Penal Code. But you must remember - it was on that Non-Disclosure agreement you signed after your security check in April."

Rick did, indeed, recall all the nuisance of the security check, and the legal form he'd had to sign. He suddenly realized he was in deep, deep shit.

"I do believe that the treason charge calls for life-time imprisonment with no chance of parole." John remarked.

"Lifetime?" Rick gasped, feeling like a damned parrot.

Now John smiled a tight, hungry grin. "Of course, all this goes away if you come back to work. then it merely becomes a case of an employee bringing work home, against regs." He sat back. "I need a new secretary - lower pay than your previous job, but..."

Rick was flabbergasted. He was getting a job? Not prison? It was a no-brainer. "Of course! Anything!"

John smiled. "I'm glad you put it that way - because there's a couple of other little requirements, as well " He trailed off and stood up. "But we'll discuss those in the office. Why don't you get dressed, Rick? You wouldn't want to be late for your first day back at work."

* * * * *

Rick nervously sat down at the desk outside of John's office. His finger reached out and pushed the button that sent the computer into boot-up. That was about the only part of his new job that he was actually experienced at.

He couldn't believe he was going to be stuck doing a secretarial job. But he really had no choice - it was this, or face a lifetime sentence. Now there was no chance of evading that sentence - part of his agreement to avoid prosecution was to sign, willingly, a complete confession. Rick knew that if he tried anything foolish, like running, it would be used against him.

He stared at the screen as it booted up, and hesitantly entered the word-processing program. He was vaguely familiar with it, but would have to learn it inside out if he was going to...

"Ricki?"

Grimacing, Rick turned to face John. It turned out that the samples he'd stolen had been bio- cosmetics, and John had started referring him to him in the feminine version of his name. The first time, Rick had objected - and been slapped down hard.

"Yes, sir?" Rick replied, contritely. He knew that he had to play the obedient servant to John - one screw up, and he could be in San Quentin for a long, long time.

Or a very short one. For somebody who wasn't a hardened criminal, 'life' in a prison could be a very, very short sentence.

"Just what do you think you're doing, Miss Sterling?" John demanded.

Hiding his distaste at the appellation, Rick thought rapidly, but had no idea what his new task-master was talking about. "Sir?"

John dropped a book on top of the desk. "Section 15 - read it." He demanded.

Rick picked up the 'Employee's Manual' for SynBioGen and flipped to the section named. Clearing his throat, he began to read aloud. "All secretarial staff will wear make up in accordance with the regulations outlined in sub-section 12B. Failure to meet Professional Appearance Standards, as outlined, is just cause for reassignment or dismissal..." He came to an incredulous halt as what he was reading sunk in.

"But... You can't..." Rick protested. This was ludicrous.

John smiled tightly, obviously enjoying this. "Something wrong, Ricki? Would you prefer to be let go?" Rick swallowed nervously at the threat. "Uh... no sir."

John nodded. "Good. Than I can expect to see you properly... made up when you show up for work tomorrow?"

Rick's jaw tightened and he swallowed. John held his fate in the palm of his hand, and was obviously planning to milk it for all it was worth. To be humiliated - to wear make-up to work, for God's sake! But the only other option involved a six-by-eight cell....

"Yes, sir." Rick said, tightly, feeling anger and shame warring deep within.

John smiled nastily. "Good. Now - here's four letters I need typed up. Get right on them, Ricki." "Yes, Sir."

* * * * *

Rick walked into the salon, face burning with shame. The driver/guard assigned to him trailed at a discreet distance, a faint smirk on his face as Rick approached the woman behind the desk.

Rick had purposefully picked a time when nobody else was in the salon, shortly before closing. He knew nobody else was going to be here because he'd sat in the car for nearly two hours, waiting for the window of time when he'd be able to keep his humiliation to the least number of spectators.

The slender young woman behind the desk looked up with a smile. "Good evening sir, how can I help you? Setting up an appointment for you girlfriend?"

Rick swallowed loudly, wondering if his throat would even let the traitorous, humiliating words come out. It did, barely.

"No - I... um need a make over."

The woman's smile slipped a notch. "Excuse me, sir?"

Rick just wanted to curl up and die from embarrassment. "I need a complete make-over - and I need the products, and skills, so that I can make myself up from now on."

The woman's eyes narrowed. "Is this some sort of joke?"

Rick shook his head, his ears burning. "No. Please, just get it over with."

The woman eyed him for a minute longer, then shrugged. "Well, as long as you pay for it, I don't mind. Come on." She grinned somewhat unkindly at him, and it took a tremendous effort of will to force himself to follow her to the seat.

The woman, having seen his shame and disgust - and his resolution - had picked up on the fact that this wasn't exactly a willing make-over, but one he had to do. She was wrong in the particulars - she guessed that he'd made some sort of unthinking remark about his girlfriends make-up, and she'd given him an ultimatum - but right on the button in regards to his unwilling necessity.

Now, she wasn't really a cruel person, but if the guy's girlfriend wanted him humiliated to deflate his male ego, there's no reason she shouldn't have a little fun...

"Well, miss, there's several things we can do with the make-up..." She said smiling at the way Rick winced. "But I think our first step should be a new hair-style... something dyed - black perhaps "

Closing his eyes in humiliated emotional pain, Rick gave in to the 'expert' opinion. "Whatever you think is best."

* * * * *

"Well, Miss Sterling - I'm glad to see you're looking more professional this morning." John said, eyeing Rick's new haircut and his made-up face.

Rick winced. He was all too aware of what he looked like - he'd gotten a good look during the hour it took to get the make-up 'just right' this morning, and he was reminded by the faint but undeniable feminine odor of the make-up he wore, and the faint taste of the lipstick on his lips.

"But I'm afraid that it's still not acceptable." John continued - and Rick's heart dropped.

"Sir?" He asked, forcing himself to say it politely, not scream it in horrified anger like he wanted too.

"You're wearing too much make-up - you look like a cheap floozy. Also - didn't you read the section on secretarial staff's body hair regulations?"

Rick gaped at John for a second. "Sir I was told that this much make-up was necessary to hide the flaws of my facial structure. And that regulation refers to clothing that would show the body hair - skirts and such "

John pointed at Rick's leg. "Oh? And what's that?"

Rick looked down - and saw that the position that John had just happened to catch him sitting in, with one ankle pulled up to rest on the other knee, expose a half-inch or so of his hairy leg between sock and pant cuff.

"Now - if you're having a problem of some sort, we do have products and methods that can fix some of you facial flaws, as well as remove that body hair."

Rick's eyes widened, and he gasped. He knew exactly what John was talking about - one of the samples he'd stolen was a depilatory, and another one could be used...

"No!" Rick said, standing up angrily. Instantly, two burly guards flanked him. "I won't let you make me look like a woman! I won't!"

John's eyes narrowed. "Now, now, Miss Sterling - you are a woman, aren't you? I mean, if you're not Ricki, my secretary - then you'd have to be Richard the prison inmate."

Rick's lips tightened as he saw the truth of the punishment laid out for him. He'd signed that confession, in exchange for working two years for John, after which he'd be free to go. Rick had thought he was getting off lightly - but now the truth was clear. He wasn't an employee, he was a plaything for John. It was probably the samples that had given John the idea - he was going to make Rick use every one of the samples he'd stolen, thus 'disposing of the evidence'.

Even though he wasn't a scientist, and didn't know the particulars, Rick had a pretty good idea what most of those samples would do to him. It was ridiculous - he couldn't just stand here and give in, let John make him over like... like... like some pansy.

But if he fought... In jail, he'd most likely end up as somebody's 'wife' - and it would be a life sentence.

If he gave in, the longest it could last was two years. Two years of utter humiliation at John's hands... Then, afterwards, he could undo what had been done to him, and would be free and clear. With quite a bit of money, too - this job actually paid pretty well.

Closing his eyes, feeling like he was going to vomit, Rick lowered his head. "I'm sorry sir - thank you sir." He replied, through clenched teeth.

John smiled nastily. "Good to hear it, Ricki - now why don't you go down and see Dr. McMasters? He's expecting you."

Fists balled in rage, burning with hate, anger and humiliation, Rick turned and forced his legs to start carrying him towards his latest humiliation. The two guards - obviously under orders to have him arrested and thrown in prison if Rick failed to go through with the 'torture', flanked him every step of the way.

* * * * *

Taking a deep breath Rick - Ricki - stopped in front of the long mirror outside the office and took a long look at herself, feeling helplessness and rage fighting with her shame.

Reflected back was, to the quick glance, a skinny, flat-chested young woman with a cute face beneath a short - but womanly styled - mop of black hair. Her make-up was flawlessly applied, accenting her full lips, pointed chin and pert nose.

Her clothing was mannish, and meticulously arranged. Nothing was out of place.

The clothing felt strange on his body. He now lacked body hair of any kind, and with his newly feminized face it had caused him to start when he'd seen his reflection this morning after his shower. Wearing his customary short bathrobe, he'd looked in the mirror - and saw, to all purposes, a young woman. Ricki was disgusted to discover that his legs, now smooth and silky, were actually fairly attractive - not long and sexy, but most definitely 'cute'.

Rick had already figured out the 'rules' of this horrid game - every time John found the slightest flaw in him, Rick would undergo another round of humiliation. So, he'd spent the entire night studying the handbook, and was determined to be as perfect as humanly possible. His only hope lay in not giving an excuse for John to latch onto.

Satisfied that there wasn't the slightest think out of place, Ricki opened the door and stepped into the office.

"Good morning, Miss Sterling - you look lovely this morning. Much better than yesterday."

"Thank you, sir." Ricki replied, forcing himself to keep his tone level - and sign of disobedience, no matter how small, was also likely to bring on something else.

"Oh, dear - you must be getting laryngitis, Ricki - your voice sounds terrible. I can't have you answering the phone like this

- you'd better go see doctor McMasters."

Ricki grimaced, cursing himself for missing that important detail - it was obvious that John wanted him to pretend to be completely female, yet he hadn't even attempted to fake a falsetto - now, he'd have no choice.

"Yes, sir." Ricki replied, jaw-muscles clenching.

"Good - you'd better hurry, you have a lot of work to do."

Swallowing his pride, Ricki turned and headed down to where John's scientist crony would undoubtedly be ready for him.

* * * * *

"Good morning, John" Ricki said, forcing cheerfulness. "Beautiful day, isn't it?" His voice was a warm, entirely feminine contralto.

She'd taken pre-emptive action this morning. It was obvious that John was enjoying feminizing him - but his techniques were bio-genetic, and wouldn't be easily rectified. So Rick had outwitted him - by 'willingly' becoming more feminine first, in clothing and actions. These were easily corrected when he was released - and John wouldn't be able to find fault with it.

It was Monday morning, and Ricki was dressed in a mildly feminine outfit. A long skirt hung over his smooth, soft legs, and he walked easily atop the shoe's he'd spent the weekend practicing on - pumps with a one-and-a-half inch heel. A white short-sleeve blouse with lace around the collar completed the outfit.

Catching the startled look John gave, Rick felt a burst of triumph - take that you bastard, he thought - I can beat you by outsmarting you.

The John spoke, and Ricki's heart plummeted. "Why Ricki - don't tell me you're not wearing a bra. Regulations, dear girl - with a white blouse " He shook his head. "Are you trying to insult this company by flaunting that fact that you're under-endowed? With an attitude like that, I might just have to let you go "

Rick chock back a snarled curse. For a long moment, he merely glared at Jon, fists clenched in rage - then, slowly, relaxed. "Could you talk to doctor McMasters again, sir?" He said, capitulating."

"Of course " John said. His expression was cold. "But I don't know that it would help. There's a few things about you that simply don't meet standards "

Rick cursed himself angrily - by trying to outsmart John, he'd only succeeded in angering his tormentor. "Whatever you think is necessary, sir.." He said through a clogged throat, visions of the even worse hell prison would be, especially now that he looked so feminine. He'd be very, very popular in San Quentin...

* * * * *

Ricki's newly slender fingers flew over the keyboard with near-panicked haste. With every movement, her new tits moved, reminding her of their weight and heightened sensitivity. Every time the computer 'bleeped' and error at her, she glance fearfully towards the closed door of her boss' - Master's - office, praying that it stay shut. With all that had been done to her already, Ricki didn't think she could handle, mentally, what might come next.

The thought had barely made it's way through her mind when her worst fear came true - the mahogany door swung open, and John sauntered out.

Ricki's hands trembled at the sight of the monster who'd done this to her. She tried to pay attention to her now all-important clerical work - but his presence was now so fear-inspiring that she became a nervous wreck. Her gloss-red fingernails skittered uselessly across the keys, and Ricki gave up, hanging her feminized face in shame, and feeling the large silver earrings bang across her slender shoulders, reinforcing her new status as a helplessly submissive she-male slave.

"What's wrong, Ricki?" John asked, sitting on the edge of the desk. With one hand, he grasped Ricki's re-shaped jaw and drew her face up so she now looked directly at him. His face settled into a cruel grin of satisfaction at the sight of her wholly feminine face and the ample display of cleavage that her tight, low-cut top displayed. After a second's worth of leering at the C-cup tit's he'd forced upon her, he met Ricki's fearful eyes again. "So, you should be working right now and you're not."

Ricki swallowed. "Sir..." She stammered. "I'm so sorry... I... it's just "

John's grin grew crueler. "What - you can't work cause that cock of yours is distracting you? Well, I can fix that with a single call "

Ricki's heart stopped. She'd already been forced to acquire the figure, voice and outward mannerisms of a woman - but to lose that last, most important sign of manhood...

"Unless, of course," John continued. "You can give me one viable reason why you've stopped working - in the next three seconds."

With John's hand hovering over the phone, with a no-time deadline, with her mind clouded by sheer panic, Ricki blurted out the first - the only - thought to pop into her head.

"I suck at my job." She blurted - the her eyes widened as what she said, and her gaze flew in horror to the phone as she waited for him to lift the receiver...

But he didn't. Instead, he smiled. "Well - that's a great reason. Hell - with a reason like that, I'd keep you on full time, and never expect any work out of you aside from looking pretty and bringing me the occasional cup of coffee."

Ricki gaped at John, not believing her ears. It was impossible - yet, it almost seemed that he was being sincere. Then John slowly stood from the edge of the desk, and it was hard to miss the enormous bulge in his pants, because it was directly at Ricki's eye level.

"That's assuming you're any good, of course." John continued. "Of course, even so-so would do - it's so hard to find a girl who will suck at her job. Of course, with lips like yours, and your special viewpoint on what a great cock-sucking is like from the guys point of view, you should be great."

Ricki went ice-cold as the double-meaning of her blurted comment sunk in. She was faced with two choices - become John's champion cock-sucking 'trophy' secretary - or have her cock cut off, and continue as John's slave secretary, doing every scut job in the company.

It all went through Ricki's mind in a flash, and it almost paralyzed her. Two choices, both of them utterly unappealing to her but there was really no choice to make. One was permanent - the other was not, and offered, however slim, a hope that in the future she might find a way to undo what had been done to her. But for that to even have a chance, she'd have to do more than just give a blow- job - she'd have to do the most incredible - and disgusting - acting job. She had to earn herself that chance.

If that's what it's take to escape this living hell...

Mustering up every ounce of willpower, courage and acting ability in her altered body, Ricki forced a sensual smile to her fuller, glossy lips. She rose from the chair slowly, hiding her hesitation and distaste by make the movement graceful, feminine, sensual - buying herself time to screw up the courage to do what she needed.

Coming around the desk, she slowly sank to her knees in front of John, her heart thudding behind her surgically-implanted tits. She forced herself to reach out and unzip his pants, slowly lowering them and his underwear around his ankles, letting his hard, throbbing cock spring free.

"MM... it's so big " she said in a low, husky voice - and hating herself for saying it. But she had to stall - she couldn't actually do the act, not yet. "It looks sooooo good "

Reaching out, she forced herself to wrap her dainty hands around the throbbing shaft, looking up at John with a sly smile to his the disgust she was feeling at the act.

But, she found, not the touch. She'd somehow expected the feel of a cock in her hand to be physically disgusting - but it wasn't. Not really.

"Ho " She said. "I want to feel your huge cock on my body." She needed more time, and this was the only way she could gain it. Leaning forward and rising slightly, she used one hand to pull her shirt up, exposing her firm, round new tits. She wrapped her large, firm tits around the cock, rubbing its had shaft in her cleavage, then it's purplish head across her rounded mounds and large nipples.

To her surprise, it felt quite good, physically - enough, in fact, that her own cock, in the too-tight bikini briefs, was now rock hard.

"I love your cock, john - it's so big and hard " She lied - sort of. To her surprise, her sexy act was so damned effective, she was turning herself on - her own cock was rock-hard and throbbing. Finally, having built up enough nerve, she forced herself to get on with it.

Moaning with 'pleasure', she wrapped her hands around the base of his throbbing shaft, opened her soft, firm lips - and took his cock into her warm, wet mouth.

Again, she was amazed to find it wasn't physically disgusting - in fact, it actually felt kind of nice?

Not wanting to admit it, even to herself, she closed her lips tightly around the shaft and forced herself to let her tongue roam over the warm crown filling her mouth as she sucked lightly.

Making moaning sounds in the back of her throat, she began to piston her head up and down on his thick cock, her hands working in sync - one on the shaft, the other playing with his large balls.

It felt good. She was surprised and disgusted - but there was no way to deny that, on some level, she was enjoying this. Her movement, her actions - all were turning her on. As she slurped away on his manhood, she was shocked to discover herself getting into the blow-job.

In fact - she was really, really enjoying it.

Her moans of enjoyment were no longer feigned - the warmth filling her mouth, the slight tang of his cock tickling her taste buds, the warm shaft and balls under her fingers - it did feel good. Her own cock was throbbing almost painfully as she sucked - as much as she hated to admit it - eagerly at the cock filling her mouth.

Then, with a slight warning from the way his cock twitched, he began to spew a stream of thick, warm cum into her mouth.

Ricki felt a second's disgust - then the warm, salty flavor registered - and she found herself gulping eagerly at the flow of delicious cum - as her own cock suddenly began to gush, wracking her body with a sympathetic orgasm.

"Whoa..." John breathed, looking down at Ricki, who was busy lapping the last of the cum from his cock. "Man- I had no idea you were so skilled at cock-sucking. Great job." He tucked his cock away in his pants.

Suddenly, it came crashing down on Ricki. She'd just sucked a cock! And loved it! Horror and despair flooded over her - was she some sort of faggot? How could she have...

Before she could work herself into a complete breakdown, John spoke again - and by now, it was ingrained in Ricki to listen attentively while he spoke.

"Ricki - I'm glad to see you're finally coming to accept your new position in life." He smiled down at her. "So - no more Clerical work - you're my Executive Assistant, as of now. So, get cleaned up..."

"Excuse me, sir..." A voice said - and Ricki glanced over at Gary, the omnipresent guard, a muscular brute of a man.

"Yes, Gary?"

"Sir - having an affair with an employee is grounds for dismissal. I'm afraid you're going to have to fire Miss Sterling if you want to keep your job."

Ricki's heart stopped as she realized she'd been set up. She was going to prison after all - as a sexy she-male. She shuddered, knowing what would happen.

"Hmm.. you're right." John agree, appearing to mull it over. "But... that's only if you reported it. And you couldn't report it if you were also taking advantage of Ricki's favors..."

That was it - she was to be used by both of them, to be a cock-sucking toy for them. It was horrible, it was disgusting - but it was better than the alternative.

But...

"Sorry sir - but she'd not my type." Gary said, with eyes narrowing cruelly. "I happen to be a real T- and-A man, myself, and neither her tit or ass meet my preferences."

Ricki closed her eyes, feeling like she was going to cry. "Dr. McMasters could solve that in no time..." She forced the words from her gloss-red lips.

The guard smiled. "Oh?"

* * * * *

"Ricki? Could you come in here for a moment?" John said over the intercom, then grinned up at Gary as he flicked it off.

There was a short pause - then the office door swung open.

The woman who enter bore almost no resemblance to the Rick Sterling who'd stolen the sample three months previous.

She jiggled and swayed into the room, perched atop black platform pumps with seven inch spiked heels. The heels made her absolutely incredible ass doing amazing things under the tight black skirt she wore. The outline of her cock was barely visible, tucked away as it was between her smooth, soft thighs. The black jacket over a white blouse was straining to contain her firm, round DDE-cup tits, whose cleavage could be seen through the two open top buttons.

"Yes, sir?" Ricki asked with a smile. She always smiled, now - she did everything cheerfully and 'willingly' - as each slight slip meant another cup-size added to her endowments.

"I do believe I could use a blow job, Ricki - and Gary say he wants another round or two of that sexy, tight ass of yours."

"Oh, do you mean it sirs? Thank you!" She gushed with apparent enthusiasm - she'd gotten the act down perfectly out of necessity.

"Yes - but we're not quite ready yet..." And that was signal she knew.

Ricki let her body begin it's routine. As she turned on the CD player and began to strip, her long- nailed hands caressing her almost completely feminine body, her mind became detached, her body trained enough to do her sexy act by rote.

This was her new lot in life - a cock-sucking, ass fucking sex toy for these two men - and any of their friends they wished to 'share' her with.

But even as she finished stripping and bent over John's lap, her ass easily available, Ricki didn't completely surrender. Because she knew, despite everything, she wasn't beaten, not by a long shot.

She was stuck in this body - that was a given, as she'd learned that there was really no way to undo what had been done to her. But that was all right - she could figure out a way to deal with living life in this body.

Because John had made a terrible, terrible mistake. At the rate she was going, Ricki might go up a few more cup sizes before she managed to escape - and when she did, she'd have it made. A body like this was a small price to pay to live a life of luxury, with more money than she could possibly spend.

Because, carried within her bloodstream, moving with every beat of her heart, was the genetically created coding that had made her like this. Once she could manage to slip the guard - which, if she continued to play 'submissive' wouldn't be too hard, they were already growing lax - all she had to do was walk to the company that had offered money for the stolen samples. If they'd been willing to pay that much for unproven samples, then they'd pay much, much more for what was in her blood - because she was living proof of its effectiveness.

And John's biggest mistake was feminizing her so quickly - and effectively.

Because the threat he'd had all a long - prison - had vanished, and John didn't even realize the fact. John had been so careful, hiding what he was doing to avoid legal trouble for himself, that he didn't realize it was actually to Ricki's benefit.

Because the person that he could put behind bars was Rick Sterling - and not her.

So it was with a cat-like smile, unseen by either man, that she gulped down John's sweet, delicious cum and let her mind go back to her favorite past-time - contemplating the future.

Because she was going to have a bio-tech company - with the same feminizing secrets that had been used on her - that would owe her a favor or two. And money - lots of money. Enough money that she could hire somebody to do a kidnapping - or two...

Half-faking orgasmic enjoyment of the ass-fucking, Ricki wondered how Gary would look as a blonde with tits the size of beach-balls....

THE END...

WALK TO FUN ZONE

Home | Membership | Terms & Conditions | Privacy Policy | Contact

A word about this story...

SUMMARY: Gunslinger (a contributing author) had a story contest in July, 1998. Steve Zink (another author) won 2nd place, but was given the 1st place award of a personalized story by that prolific writer, Gunslinger himself! Since Steve is such a fan of Catwoman stories and a prolific writer himself of stories involving Catwoman, he is going to be finding out directly what being Catwoman is like. Read Gunslinger's tale, THE WORST TRAGEDY!

The Worst Tragedy...

---

By Gunslinger

As the computer hummed softly, Steve lifted his hand from where it rested on the mouse and brought it up to his face. Pushing his glasses up, he absently rubbed the bridge of his nose where they rested, then let them drop back into place as he returned his attention to his browser.

Outside, the world lay wrapped in the blanket of night as Steve once more bent over his computer. He shifted his husky frame into a more comfortable position in the chair, and peered at the monitor, its pale light flickering across his face in abstract patterns. He frowned as the site he'd gone to spawned three more popup windows, bogging the main page down as each of the windows loaded their own information - in this case, advertisements of some sort. Sighing angrily, Steve moved to close the annoying windows.

Then stopped, one eyebrow slowly climbing, as one of the window's contents caught his eye. FOR THE LADIES

Want to spice up your fantasy life? EROTOY, Inc., is proud to introduce its new line of VR suits for home use. Each suit comes with a special 'Fantasy' CD-ROM, containing an erotic scenario to be used with the suit. Currently, our line consists of: 'The French Maid' 'Damsel in De' Dress' 'The Cat Woman' And, for the first one responses, we have a special introductory price - only $99.99, a savings of more than $400!

Steve slowly leaned back in the chair, which creaked softly. He closed his eyes and considered. One of Steve's interests - some would say 'obsessions' - was the DC Comics character 'Catwoman', made famous by the resurgence of interest with the Batman movies. He's already written many stories on the Internet starring variations of the feline criminal, and had many pictures on hard-drive featuring the different incarnations of her.

The offer of the 'Cat Woman' on the screen intrigued him. Of course, due to copyright, it wouldn't be THE Catwoman, but still...

Opening his eyes, Steve hesitated for a second longer - then leaned forward and clicked on the link, typing in his first initial and last name before entering a credit-card number.

* * * * *

In the year of our lord nineteen-hundred and thirty-nine, a German mathematician and scientist by the name of Albert Einstein published a paper, in which he stunned the scientific community by proving, among other things, that time was NOT a constant, but was relative to outside forces - thus, under the correct stimuli, duration of an event could be expanded.

Steve discovered the truth of this mathematical anomaly during the next '4 to 6 weeks'. Although, intellectually, he KNEW the package wouldn't arrive early, his emotions HOPED that it would. As he went about his life, the anticipation tinged every experience as his thoughts kept circling in anticipation.

So, on that particular Saturday morning when he answered the doorbell and saw a UPS delivery man, his body was suddenly flooded with adrenaline. His hands shook with repressed excitement as he signed for the bulky package, and accepted it from the delivery man. Hurriedly closing the door, he carried the package over to his computer and, dropping into the chair, began to open it with eager hands. If his parents had of been present, they would have remarked on how reminiscent the scene was to many Christmas' when Steve was young.

Removing the 'plain brown wrapping', Steve tossed it negligently aside and pulled open the side of the garishly decorated box. Upending it, he emptied the contents onto the floor and looked them over.

First, he picked up the shrink-wrapped CD-ROM case and placed it on the desk, along with the instruction booklet. Next, he picked up the VR suits and carefully laid it out, untangling the wires and the 'auxiliary CPU' box that were attached to it.

Finally, he picked up the last item - a complementary 'souvenir' Cat Woman suit. Carefully, he looked this item over.

Designed as a bonus giveaway, it was made to the specifications of the fiction woman that the player/user was playing the role of, and as such, was most definitely unrealistic. Steve doubted that any real woman would wear such an outfit, so erotically outrageous.

Made of a combination of leather and latex, the suit was all black. Because it was never designed to actually be worn, the designers could ignore comfort or ease. There was no simple zipper, as a 'real' suit would have - instead, each closure was black leather strings through black metal grommets. Likewise, the actual 'figure' of the suit was unrealistic, the proportions idealized from the norm. Even the black mask, with it's 'cat ears' would be difficult for most women to get on. And the 7 inch spike heel boots difficult to walk in.

It also came with 'accessories' - the long, leather whip with a decidedly phallic handle, a tight, black belt containing 'her' tools, and a set of 'retractable claws' for the suit's built-in gloves.

Steve's lips quirked up in a grin. Even if the VR was useless, the price he'd paid was made up for by owning this suit. Carefully, he arranged it on a hanger and placed it in his closet. Then, returning to the computer, he began to look over the VR suit.

Of course, the term 'suit' was misleading. It was more or less a bewildering array of wires, pads, goggles and other devices, mounted on adjustable straps and attached to an 'auxiliary CPU'. The most recognizable pieces were the helmet and the gloves.

Picking up the instructions, Steve began to follow the step-by-step instructions - the first being to shut down the computer and hook the suit up to an I/O port. This was followed by rebooting and installing the software, followed by a second reboot. Only now was he ready to start pulling on the suit.

Carefully following the diagrams and instructions, Steve began pulling everything in place - with a few necessary modifications, since the suit was designed for a woman. Finally, everything was in place - including the helmet. Two tiny camera's on the 'face' of the helmet allowed him to work in the 'real' world without having to take the bulky headgear off. Making sure not to tangle the myriad wires, Steve lowered himself into his chair, and carefully clicked on the icon to play...

...and was rewarded with an error message. He cursed softly as the program ran a self-diagnostic and, unable to find the problem, suggested that he try their website. With a sigh, Steve slipped into the browser and typed in the URL.

Only, thanks to the bulky, awkward gloves, he didn't quite type in the correct location. Steve failed to notice that, instead of: www.redline.org/play/secure.shtml he'd entered:

www.medlink.org/cray/secure.shtml

Failing to notice his mistype, when the user prompt came up asking for his name and user number, provided with the suit, he entered it. And in a billion to one chance, what he entered - with the three mistypes he entered in the info - accessed the site.

* * * * *

A thousand miles away, in a large, meticulously clean room, a tall, pale blue quartet of towers hummed to life as the powerful Mk. II Cray computer received Steve's password. A medical research computer, the massive supercomputer awaited instructions. What it received, however, was the automatic link with the CD-ROM, coupled with the information from the VR suit.

The Cray, mechanically accepting the information as valid medical data, compared the readings from the VR suit to the 'parameters' from the CD-ROM. Being a computer, it had no way of knowing that the information on the CD-ROM was a fantasy character from a game - it took it as actual data.

And it compared it to the information from the VR suit and found thousands of discrepancies. Almost immediately, even the massive processing power of the supercomputer bogged down from the sheer differences between the data.

Even a year ago, such a result would have ended in a temporary 'hold', until a human technician would look it over. And the technician would have realized what was happening, shut down the connection, and that would have been it.

But the Meddling Cray had recently been hooked up to the 'UltraWeb', a high-speed connection between many other major world systems.

So, after considering this data for nearly two full seconds - an eternity to the Cray - it 'debated' it's options. And, faced with this insoluble dilemma, the Cray 'cried for help'.

* * * * *

At the National Security Agency, a technician, waiting for a code-breaking program, working on Iraqi military transmission, to finish it's run, frowned as an error message popped up.

"What the Hell?" she blurted. For the first time in her life, a Cray computer was flashing this particular message at her. 'ALL AVAILABLE RESOURCES BUSY'

* * * * *

"Doctor Patience!"

The Russian physicist sighed. "What is it, Serge?"

"The Tumansky Supercomputer is giving me an error message!"

The physicist chuckled. "So, what else is new, my young apprentice. It IS a RUSSIAN machine after all - God knows we get enough error messages."

His younger colleague jabbed a finger at the screen. "But, Comrade Professor...LOOK!" The bearded doctor leaned over - then turned to stare at Serge.

"Why in Marx' name is the error message in ENGLISH?"

* * * * *

In a factory in Tokyo, a University in Berlin and a secure military installation in Israel (which, ironically, had been performing the same duty as the one at the NSA), three other users were asking the same question.

* * * * *

In the space of a few mere seconds, more than a dozen supercomputers, across the globe, linked together, more computing power than had ever been assembled before in the history of mankind. For several seconds, the massed might of the linked computers examined the data, accesses reference files (including many top-secret government and military ones), and 'debated' the 'problem'.

And found a solution...

* * * * *

For Steve, there was merely a fifteen-point-one-seven-five second delay after entering his code. Just long enough for him to begin to move one hand toward the mouse to see if anything had locked up.

Then the massed might of the linked computer's came screaming through his modem line and began to reprogram the 'incorrect data' - which just happened to be his DNA.

Steve's first thought as the voltage slammed into him was that he was having a heart attack. His muscles locked as the current flooded his body - but unlike normal electricity, this was a signal, containing commands to directly alter his DNA in ways never conceived.

Steve shuddered - and screamed incoherently in shock as his body began to alter.

His body hair tumbled from rapidly shrinking pores to a fine pile on the floor as his skin texture began to change. At the same time, the supercomputers began to alter his 'inefficient' musculature, reshaping the muscle-masses as they did so.

Steve had a bare second to notice the way the contours of his legs and arms were changing before an intense pulling sensation at his waist drew his gaze down to where his normally thirty-four-inch waist was compressing in on itself. It was passing the thirty-inch mark when the sudden sensations on his chest demanded his attention. He gasped in shock as he watched mounds of flesh began to form behind rapidly swelling nipples, forming definite breasts.

At this point, his cock began to shrivel and pull inwards, underlining what exactly what was happening to his body. At that point, Steve did what any sane human being would do, faced with such a situation.

He fainted.

* * * *

For the first few seconds after regaining consciousness, Steve was sure that what had happened had all been some confused, weird dream.

And then he moved.

With a grace and agility he'd never possessed, he came upright in one smooth, fluid motion, almost seeming to levitate off the floor with

- well, catlike agility. Stunned, he slowly, approached a full-length mirror, moving unconsciously with a smooth, graceful - and sexy - stride, to stand before the silver-backed glass to confront...

...a goddess.

He - no, most definitely SHE - was about the same height as before. But that was the only similarity.

She was slender, with idealized proportions that, while human-looking, were outside the realm of human contours. Small, dainty feet led from the floor to impossibly sexy legs that seemed to rise forever before meeting the smooth swelling of feminine hips. Nestled between her perfect thighs, framed by a small, even patch of raven hair, was her new womanhood.

Above this, her waist narrowed to an impossible twenty-one inches before swelling to a ribcage that supported a pair of immense, almost perfectly spherical breasts. Refusing to sag in the slightest, the creamy mounds were surmounted by large, pink nipples that were frankly feminine.

Above these magnificent breasts were strong yet feminine shoulders that supported a graceful neck. Her face was a study in contrasts

- angelically beautiful with enough of the demon to project power and sensuality. A halo of glorious black hair framed the face, with it's pert yet strong nose between the full, seductive lips and the smoldering dark eyes.

Her entire body was almost too perfect. Her skin tone was so fine, it was almost like living silk, with a faint, glossy sheen not unlike her perfect hair. Not a blemish, mark or scar marred it's perfect surface. Idly, she notice that she even lacked finger prints.

"My God..." She whispered, stunned, in her rich new contralto. For all her obsession with Catwoman, her writing of fiction, her daydreaming... NOTHING had prepared her for it ACTUALLY happening. She was, quite simply, stunned.

Slowly, a smile curled her full, ripe lips. Steve - no, she decided, Selina - realized her secret fantasy had somehow come to living, breathing reality. Slowly, she stretched, feeling the liquid, agile power of her new body.

"I'm going to have some fun..." she whispered smugly, moving towards the closet, and taking out the black catsuit. Gracefully, she began to dress. She quickly pulled on the black bodysuit, her inhuman dexterity allowing her to tie the otherwise impossible fastenings. Next, she pulled on the extremely high-heeled boots, finding she balanced easily on the spike heels. The belt was next, to which she clipped the whip. The final item was the mask, which fit over her gorgeous face. Designed for the fictional body she now possessed, the outfit fit perfectly, emphasizing her spectacular figure. Smiling at the stunning figure in the mirror, she moved with catlike grace, leaving the building - via a back window. She was amazed at how easily she could balance, climb and jump, with amazing agility and almost no effort.

Three blocks away, she was slinking, unseen, from shadow to shadow, when she found herself staring at a car parked in a dark driveway - an Italian built sports car, the Panterra.

Suddenly, to her shock, she was moving towards it. Before she fully comprehended what she was doing, she'd used her long, retractable claws to pop the lock, climb in, and hot-wire the sports car. It was only as the powerful engine roared to life did she realize what she was doing.

"What the fuck?" she gasped. She'd performed the actions without thought - or will.

He moment of shock was broken by lights coming on in the house. That decided her - with supple ease, she slipped the car into gear and stepped on the accelerator, throwing the car out of the driveway and screaming onto the deserted, late-night street. She sped off, picking a direction at random, to busy getting away to ponder her inexplicable actions in stealing the glossy-black car.

Finally, sure that there was no immediate pursuit, Selina pulled the car over to the curb - and indulged in a long bout of shakes, unable to believe that she'd just - UNWILLINGLY - committed Grand Theft Auto.

"What the hell's happening to me?" she asked the universe - and received no response. Shaken, she stepped out of the car, and walked away from it quickly, disappearing into the deep, shadowed recess of an alley.

A few dozen steps in, she realized the alley dead-ended at a brick wall. She stopped with a sigh, and turned to walk back - when the alley was dimly lit by the strobe of an unseen police-car's dome lights as it pulled up behind the stolen Panterra.

What she did next was instinct. Shocked, as if watching somebody else, she found herself leaping straight up a full story, automatically pulling out her whip and using it to catch the fire-escape above her head. With inhuman agility, she scale silently up the rusting iron structure to the roof, crouching upon the graveled surface. Slowly, she straightened and peered down the four-story drop that she'd scaled in a matter of seconds. She couldn't help it - it had to be said.

"Cool."

Looking around, she spotted the exit from the roof. The door was both locked and tripped for an alarm, but she effortlessly bypassed both security measures with skills she didn't even know she possessed. In seconds, she was creeping silently down the staircase, and opening the door to the third floor...

... where her mind seemed to shut down at the sight of the all the jewelry spread out before her in an incredible display of wealth. By circumstance, she'd sought refuge in a Jeweler's shop.

Again, her actions seemed to be that of someone else. Steve, a basically honest person with a few fantasies that he'd never try to live out, would never have contemplated robbing the store. Selina, however, did it automatically, as if...programmed.

A helpless observer, trapped in her own transformed body, she could only watch as her long, graceful hands easily plundered the store of it's finest goods. Diamonds, emeralds and rubies created a glittering sparkle as they were poured into a pouch on her belt.

The display of gorgeous, glittering wealth was hypnotic. So hypnotic, in fact, she didn't notice the two cops until the came through the door, revolver's drawn.

"Freeze. Don't..." The first started, then his jaw dropped as his mind registered the unbelievably sexy woman standing in the middle of the room. His partner was as equally stunned by the huge-breasted, slim woman dressed in skintight clothing.

In that frozen instant, Selina's hand rose to where her whip hung, and with two lightning-fast moves, neatly removed the men's weapons from their grips.

That was the last controlled act that Selina performed.

The disk used to create her had, after all, been a porno game. And at the sight of two handsome, muscular men, cops or not, her own reasoning, intelligent brain shut down as her 'sexual subroutines' took complete and utter control.

"Fuck Me" She begged with a smile, her inhumanly supple hands effortlessly stripping away her clothes. The open bag scatter a glittering shower of gems across the floor.

The two cops shared a brief, incredulous glance - then hastily tore their clothing away, looking almost comical as they stripped frantically. Selina found nothing comical about it, as her trapped mind surveyed their naked bodies. The first cop had an almost godlike physique with a massive, twelve inch cock to match. Eagerly, he moved forward and pulled Selina to him, her huge, taut tits pressed against his chest as she 'eagerly' returned his hungry kiss. She could feel his rock-hard cock pressing against her thigh.

The second cop, almost drooling, pushed his partner out of the way, and lowered Selina to the floor. She had no choice but to take up the 69 position and ignored the few gems pressing into her back as the dark-haired cock began to lap at her pussy. Shuddering in mixed pleasure and disgust, she helplessly began to lick the cop's entire shaft and move her tongue around the dribbling end of his cock before the whole length disappeared between her full, soft lips. Selina helplessly began to give her first blow job as he lapped at her clitoris with his tongue, sending her into spasms of never-before felt ecstasy.

Helplessly, she found herself 'eager' to taste his hot cum -- and so was momentarily 'disappointed' as he removed his cock from her sucking mouth and moved into a position to fuck her. She grabbed his enormous dick, her hands small in comparison, and helplessly guided it to her cunt. Then, in one swift movement, he drove it powerfully up her to the hilt. He began to thrust in and out of her most violently. Selina was practically screaming with pleasure and wrapped her glorious legs around his back.

The second cop wasn't waiting. While his partner continued to fuck Selina, the second cop moved beside Selina's glistening body, losing no time on fondling Selina's huge tits. He sucked on her gorgeous, massive tits, sucking her huge, firm nipples.

"Hey, John, lean back a bit." He told the cop fucking her, and he complied. The second cop moved closer. Rubbing her nipples with the tip of his penis, he told her to hold her breasts together so he could tit fuck her. Helplessly, she complied, her hands dwarfed by her huge tits as she compressed her awesome cleavage into a tunnel that the cop took good advantage of.

The two men came simultaneously. She would have screamed in shear ecstasy from her first female orgasm - but she was too busy helplessly, 'hungrily', gulping down cum. The two cops, spent, slid from her cum-coated body.

"What are we going to do with you?" the first cop asked, rhetorically.

And driven by her programming, Selina replied. "Anything you want, masters. I obey." The two cops shared a look, and tossed her the catsuit.

"Get dressed."

* * * * *

For personal reasons, four police officers recently retired from the force, well shy of their twenty years. For some reason, all four decided to retire to Bolivia and room together, sharing an expensive condo with a drop-dead gorgeous woman with tit's like melons.

Oddly enough, at the same time, a string of cat burglaries began to occur in surrounding areas...

BACK TO PUBLIC DOMAIN STORIES

© 1997 - 2016 TGstories.

Stories on the "Public Access" pages may be Copyright by individual authors.

Home | Membership | Terms & Conditons | Privacy Policy | Contact

SUMMARY: Finding a magic parchment, one guy decides to turn himself into a woman, but his plans take a turn when his roommate arrives and starts to control the new girl.

WYSIWYG

By Gunslinger

Grimacing, Tommy paused and ran a hand over the smooth - and slightly sore - flesh over his shin-bone.

Shaking his head and sighing, he turned the pink-handled electric shaver back on, and returned to the task, working it up his lean, well-toned legs with awkward motions that displayed his lack of experience with this particular task.

The maker of this particular model of electric razor (the 'Ladyshave', to be precise) boasted it had a 48-minute capacity when fully charged - which, apparently, was the reason for the relatively hefty price-tag. By the time he was finished removing all the hair from not only his legs, but arms and chest as well, it was at the extreme edge of it's limit.

Finished, Tommy sighed and shut the razor of - and then chuckled with wry amusement.

He'd just caught himself, for perhaps the first time in his twenty-eight years of life, being grateful for the fact that he wasn't particularly hirsute.

As odd as the thought was, it was accurate. Not only could he get away without having to shave his flat, taut stomach - or, worse, his own back - but the hair he did have (or had) wasn't particularly thick or profuse, making the task somewhat less painful than it could quite well have been.

Still more than a little bemused by the utterly remarkable situation he'd somehow found himself in the middle of, Tommy felt as if he were operating in a sort of a daze as his intellect and emotions struggled to 'catch up' to reality. Still, despite everything, what the lean-bodied brunet felt more than anything at the moment was the same, deliciously guilty feeling he'd been building steadily ever since he'd 'called in sick' this morning.

Of course, he wasn't the first person at his work who'd connived to give himself a long weekend - but Tommy highly doubted any of the other people who took a spare Friday off now and then did it for the reason he'd done it today.

The thought suddenly brought to mind, fully-formed, a mental image of Mort, from accounting, (all two hundred and sixty unlovely pounds of him), doing the same things Tommy, himself, had done today - and Tommy had to laugh, despite the bright flush that suffused his face at the remembered self-conscious embarrassment of his little 'shopping trip' through the women's department of a large chain department store.

A little shopping spree, he thought now with a frown, that had gone over-budget. In fact, mid-spree, he'd nearly decided to 'pare down' to the bare essentials once he'd realized how pricey a woman's wardrobe was compared to a man's...

...but, on second reflection, he'd thought 'damn the cost' and gone ahead and gotten everything he'd planned for. After all - how often did a chance like this come along?

Not even 'once in a lifetime', not as Tommy figured it.

Hell, all things considered, it couldn't even be 'once in a generation'.

All of which was part of the reason why, though his stomach still did the occasion, queasy flip-flop, Tommy was damned well going to do it.

With that thought, he began to dress.

He started with the padded seat briefs. Basically a pair of beige 'panties' made out of stretch nylon-spandex, they had soft foam pads in the 'buttocks' of the panties.

The pads were designed to be removable - and that was exactly what he'd done with the pads from the second pair of briefs, and then forced them into the other pair, 'doubling up'. Now, as he grunted his way into the extremely tight-fitting garment, those pads pressed firmly against his own flat, rather hard gluteus.

Reaching down the front of the briefs, he pushed his 'package' as far back as it would go - then grunted again as he pulled the briefs up as high and tight as they would go.

Next, he sat down on the edge of the tub and carefully pulled on a pair of pantyhose over his newly-denuded legs.

Black, the hose was actually nearly opaque, almost like a footed, skin-tight pair of pants than what he'd normally think of a 'hose'. However, they weren't quite opaque, hinting at the bare legs beneath - and the dull shine of the material diffused the light and shadows playing over his legs, working with the color to create the illusion of longer, less starkly muscled legs.

In now-literally 'stocking feet', he walked over to the counter and, standing in front of the mirror, painstakingly began applying make-up, following instructions he'd download from the Internet. With foundation and concealer and blush, he worked to soften and smooth the lines and tone of his face - and then, with lipstick and eyeshadow and eyeliner, to enhance certain other features of his face.

Next, he picked up his own, jury-rigged 'padded bra'...

...and cursed quite loudly as he struggled to get it on.

The straps, back and arm, were from a 'full figure' bra he'd cut apart - but the cups were his own creation, hastily cut and sewn semi-spheres of cloth with hastily tack-stitched lace matching that of the original brassiere.

It didn't look like it should hold together - and, in fact, it wouldn't have, if not for the fact that the straps and 'cups' were, at point of contact, all super-glued to the flesh-tone painted basketballs serving as his chosen 'falsies'.

It had taken him nearly two hours to finally go with his first instinct on that matter - but, then again, he's always been a 'tit man'...

After that task was done, he pulled on the lightweight burgundy turtleneck sweater and tight black-spandex miniskirt. That left only the task of pulling on the style golden-blonde wig before he finally had to face the task he most dreaded...

The shoes.

Not because of the four-inch heel the open-toe 'T'-strap shoes boasted. After all, he'd been 'prancing around' his house on tip-toe for two days now, practicing his balance. No, he dreaded wearing them because he'd bought size 7's, and had to cram his feet into them.

Painfully.

Finally, he was ready, and walking very carefully atop the heels of his shoes, Tommy made his way out to the living room.

There, laying in the center of the floor, was the three-foot square of parchment he'd found in the bottom of an old trunk he'd bought the week before at an estate sale. It was covered in an intricate circular design, around which scrolled old-English letters that spelled out its purpose - the 'instructions'.

Tommy, balancing precariously atop his four-inch heels, stood in the center of the design on the ancient square of parchment, and began to chant:

"Let that which seems, be that which is.

Let me become, this becoming miss. As it looks, so shall it be.

To serve and wait,
on the word of..." "Tommy...?"

Tommy's bewigged head whipped around at the incredulous voice - and he stared, wide-eyed, at the tall, stocky black man standing at the threshold of the back door, empty sugar bowl held loose in a stunned gaze as he stared in stunned disbelief.

"Lee!" Tommy gasped in shocked, humiliated surprise...

...and only after the ancient parchment suddenly flared to life, sending a column of lavender-scented purple flames billowing to the roof, did it occur to Tommy - too late! - that his neighbor's name was an acceptable rhyme to complete the spell as the intended 'me'.

Lee cried out as the flames rose in a thick column, obscuring his neighbor within the oddly-colored flames - but then, a second later, the flames subsided, leaving no heat nor damage to either the surroundings, nor the individual standing where the now-consumed paper had been.

A figure that, Lee's brain reported after a second's shocked delay, was similar, but not quite the same, as the one that had been standing there a moment before.

Then what he was seeing finally registered - and the sugar-bowl fell from limp fingers to land, thankfully, on a thick rug just inside the door.

"Tommy...?" Lee said, hearing his own, horse voice as if from a great distance away. "But... But... But, you're a... a... a... a WOMAN!"

The tall, athletically lean blonde looked up from her inspection of the massive bust-line filling out her sweater, and spoke in a warm contralto dripping with resigned amusement.

"Thank you, Captain Obvious." She said, putting her hands on her skirted hips and spreading the feet in the now perfectly-fitting shoes slightly wider - to better counter-balance the forward drag of her suddenly weighty breasts.

"I thought we had the whole 'knock before entering' speech." She told him, quite deliberately keeping her tone conversational despite the own roiling mix of emotions she was going through - she needed to 'jolly' him through the shock and disbelief as quickly and painlessly as possible. "Your timing could also use some work."

"But... but... how?" Less stammered, almost plaintively, as he took a couple of staggering steps deeper into the house, side stepped shakily, and dropped heavily into a chair. He stared across the room at her - and thought of a better question: "Why?"

"Well, it's like this..." She said, still holding tight to her hard-won state of emotional control as she continued the illusion of normalcy by walking over to close the door Lee had left standing wide open.

As she passed him, he flinched - recoiled, actually, as if femininity might be catching.

"You know that piece of paper I was standing on when you came in - the one that burned up?" She asked - drolly, since he could hardly forget such a thing, especially so quickly. "Well, you see, it was magic..."

"Magic?" Lee repeated, beginning to doubt her sanity - and then, thinking about what his own eyes had reported to him, and still were, decided to begin doubting his own, instead.

"Yes, magic." She confirmed, walking over to sit on the couch catty-corner to him - trying, not entirely successfully, to ignore the whole host of new sensations from her transformed body.

Sensations she'd originally planned to luxuriate in, but now she was forced to try and put aside while she dealt with this disaster.

"It's an old spell, designed to help a woman 'catch' a man." She explained, slowly and clearly. "It changes 'appearance' into 'fact', so she can stuff her bra, or whatever she thought would catch the man's eye - and it also 'attunes' her to the man whose name she speaks. In any case, the final result of the spell is female, which explains the 'why', sort of - it was either try being female, or not use the spell at all."

Lee had a very strong opinion on what he would have done in that situation - but kept his still-stunned silence. Meanwhile, he also continued staring wide-eyed at the lean, lithe, incredibly buxom woman across from him.

He wish he could convince himself it was a trick or something, that the woman wasn't really Tommy - but the truth was, she still looked like Tommy... but not like Tommy in drag. More like... well, the way Tommy would look, if he were a woman.

Which he - she - was.

Most emphatically was.

The new woman winced as she saw Lee stare at her, eyes tracing her top-heavy - and most definitely feminine - new figure.

"Anyway..." She said, drawing his attention. "I didn't plan for this to happen, and now I can't 'undo' the spell, as I originally planned. Since I inadvertently said your name and made myself 'attuned' to you, you have to refuse me for me to be able to turn back. So , all you have to do is turn me down when I say..."

She took a deep breath before continuing:

"May I serve you, my beloved?"

Lee jerked, recoiling deeper into his chair at her endearment, and she raised her delicate new eyebrows and made a 'go on' gesture with her hands, impatient to end this humiliation and go back to being a male - even if it meant cutting short her one and only chance at experiencing life from the other side of the gender barrier.

He gaped at her...

...and then, slowly, a thoughtful expression settled over his face. One she didn't like.

Not... at... all!

"Wait a second..." He said, his eyes sliding up and down her body, slowly. "Wait just as a second." She swallowed - nervously.

"Aside from not being able to change back without my say-so..." He said, licking his lips. "What else does it mean for you to be 'attuned' to me...?"

She would have liked very much to lie to him - but part of the problem was the fact that, being attuned to him, she couldn't. "I... sort of.. have to...." She said, the words practically being ripped from her throat. "...kinda.. well... satisfy you."

"Oh...?" He said in a whole new tone of voice, eyebrows rising. "What, exactly, does that mean...?" She licked her own lips, finding her mouth suddenly dry - and palms suddenly damp.

"I, uh... I feel a strong compulsion to do things to make you happy." She said, starting to sweat nervously. "I don't have to obey what you say... but if you give me any indication that there's something you'd enjoy, I feel a very strong, um... need to satisfy that desire." "Well, now..." Lee said, pursing his lips. "That's.. interesting. Very interesting indeed... wouldn't you agree - Tammy?"

The new woman winced.

"Calling somebody so feminine as you 'Tommy' is.. uncomfortable." Lee said, eyeing her. "I'd much rather you accept being called - and calling yourself - Tammy. Is that okay with you?"

"Not really." She said, shortly...

...and Lee laughed.

"But will you do it?" He asked, eyes twinkling.

"Yes." She gasped, after a momentary pause. The sweat now beaded on her forehead came from the - futile - effort to fight the sudden, almost painfully desperate need that had ripped through her.

Lee leaned back, stretching out his long legs and smiling beatifically at her.

"You know..." He said, almost conversationally - if not for the wicked twinkle in his eyes. "I came over to get some sugar for my coffee.. but now that I think about it, what I'd really like is a beer."

"I.. don't have any beer." She said, as she began to tremble in the grip of sudden need to get him exactly what he wanted. "Well.. I'm sure the store does." He remarked, 'casually'.

Her jaw clenched, and she fought against the sudden urges and needs rising in her...

...and she sobbed slightly as she said: "I'll go get you some beer."

Helpless to resist these new needs, she rose and, with only slight difficulty, navigated atop her high heels towards the front door. She was going outside.

In public.

AS A WOMAN.

Even when she'd considered the 'once in a lifetime' even, she hadn't thought about having to deal with anybody while female. She'd intended to stay home and just experience it, see what it was like to be female - and, she admitted to herself, to fondle, touch, and yes, masturbate her new body, intrigued to see what it felt like.

At no time had she honestly considered going out and having to cope with people dealing with her as the huge-breasted blonde woman she now appeared to be.

Thanks to Lee, however, she now had no choice, and she burned with humiliation and shame as she headed down to the nearest corner store to pick up some beer.

The five minute walk down to the store was nerve-racking, though the street was practically empty. She felt as if a thousand pairs of eye were watching her from every window, and every time a car passed her on the street, she was sure the occupants were staring at her and pointing - and not just because she was a tall, athletically-built woman with tits exactly the size of basketballs, but because they somehow knew she was 'really' a man, and they were both disgusted and amused by this 'freak' walking among them.

Knowing that they couldn't possibly deduce the truth of her background did nothing to lessen the feelings. Emotions were not the province of logic.

The store itself was infinitely worse - because, beside the man working the counter, she saw a total of three other people while she was there.

There was no doubt they saw her. She saw them looking at her, one even staring quite openly at her huge - and heavy - new rack, and she wished she could curse them out and tell them all to go to hell.. but she couldn't work up the nerve to do that, instead peering past her own massive bust as she contemplated the toes of her high-heeled shoes and paid for and escaped with the beer as soon as humanly possible...

...for yet another nearly-paranoid walk back to the house, where her new 'master' waited for her.

She got back to find out he'd made himself eminently comfortable. Having 'stolen' a bathrobe, he was sitting comfortably on the couch... and lightly stroking a surprisingly large cock outlined through the thin fabric as he watched a porn movie on DVD.

"Here's your beer." She said, ungraciously, quickly glancing away from his obvious erection as she shoved a beer into his hand. She started to move away...

"Why don't you come sit down here...?" He asked, patting the spot next to him on the couch.

"I'd really rather not." She said, through clenched teeth, unable to quite make herself continue moving away. "I'd really like to have a hot babe like yourself sitting beside me while I watch this movie." He 'hinted'...

...and, helplessly, she sat down beside him.

Grinning, he reached over - and lightly began running a hand up and down her leg. She tensed - but he was enjoying himself, and she couldn't bring herself to pull away.

He grunted thoughtfully, then looked from his beer to the hand stroking her leg - and then, pointedly, at his crotch.

"Too few hands." He sighed, a merry twinkle in his eyes. "What's a man to do? I enjoy fondling your hot body, and drinking my beer..." "Oh, God, you can't..." She gasped, once again sweating. "You wouldn't...!"

"I sure would like it if I could also feel a soft, slow stroking of my cock while I watched this movie, drank my beer, and felt you up." He said, pointedly.

"You... sick... bastard." She ground out between clenched teeth - even as, against her will, she reached over, wrapped her slender new hand around his cock, and lightly began working his cock.

"Nice and slow..." He said, sighing. "Take your time..."

"How.. can you... do this... to me?" She asked. It came out in a tight voice, not because she was fighting back the urge to simply rip his manhood out by it's roots, but because she was vainly fighting to do just that through her 'need' to go soft and slow.

"Hey, I didn't turn you into no babe with huge tits - you did that to yourself." Lee protested, white teeth against black skin as he bared a lazy grin. His eyes wandered. "Speaking of which..."

His hand stole up from her leg to where her massive bust strained her sweater, and slid lightly across the fabric.

"Man, I'd really like to get my hands on those." He said, grinning as he met her steaming eyes. "In fact - I'd like to fondle and squeeze 'em to my hearts content."

She bared her own teeth at him, but it wasn't in any sort of a grin. "Shift around here a bit..." Lee 'suggested'...

...and she had no choice but to comply as he took her from 'bad' to 'worse'. Much, much worse.

He helped her peel off her tight-fitting sweater, and then his nimble fingers undid her bra, spilling her huge, round tits out into the open - but that wasn't anywhere near enough for the lazily grinning black man, and she didn't reel how far he was taking it until he had her slowly work her skirt down her legs - and peel off her pantyhose...

"No!" She gasped, wide-eyed, realizing what he was planning - even as desperate need helplessly drove her hands to continue removing her clothing, baring more and more soft, smooth feminine flesh to his grinning gaze. "You can't... you wouldn't...!"

He could. He would. He did.

"Go.. no!" She begged - but he ignored her, flipping open the robe as he pulled her towards him.

She fought, desperately, to ignore the urges she was feeling to 'satisfy' his slightest whim - and achieved nothing but making her movements slow and awkward as she found herself facing him on the cock, the knees of her long, toned legs on either side of him as she lifted herself up...

...and then, as he continued squeezing and fondling her huge tits, while a lest, ignored plea burst from her horrified throat, she lowered her moist new womanhood onto the hard, throbbing shaft of his oversized cock.

She filled herself with his hard, black manhood - and whimpered in horrified disgust at the pleasure as her wet new womanhood was stretched gently around the unwanted, undeniably enjoyable intrusion.

"Oh, yeah.. that's it." Lee sighed, enjoying it without any of the detrimental emotions thundering through the new woman. She wondered how he could justify doing this with somebody who was 'really' a man - but the fact that his cock now filled a tight, wet cunt, there was no doubt he was dealing with her as the woman she now 'really' was.

She was helpless to stop him - and helpless to stop herself.

That need drove her - but once she began to rise and fall top him, her herky-jerky movements smoothed out as the pleasure itself became it's own inducement. As much as she was disgusted by what she was doing, there was steadily rising physical pleasure to augment her helpless need to satisfy him, and he motions became smoother, more supple...

...almost voluntary. She couldn't help it.

Fucking his huge, thick cock while he licked, fondles, squeezed and sucked her huge tits felt.. good. Really good.

Good enough that humiliating moans of pleasure replaced her pleas to stop. Good enough that her resistance melted into unwilling excitement.

None of this was the worst, though.

No, the absolutely worst part of it, the most humiliating part of the sex she had with him, was the fact that she actually managed to override her need to obey him...

...in order to fuck him harder and faster!

She, a man's mind in a woman's body, had fought not to have sex with Lee at all - and failed completely in the face of her need to satisfy him.

Yet, though that need hadn't slackened at all, the needs of her own new body were strong enough, for a few moments, to drive her to the orgasm that had begun to build, overriding his need and letting her 'disobey' Lee - not to stop, but to go harder and faster, until, finally, she threw back her head and scream out in horrified ecstasy as she trembled in the grip of an orgasm...

...and then slumped against lee, once more slave to his will, unable to consciously dredge up the same strength to disobey her laughing, taunting master.

The humiliation and horror had just begun.

It didn't register at first. Not during the first time she had sex with him, nor afterwards, when she'd followed his will and gone to do her 'womanly duty', cleaning up the place and doing the dishes. It was all stuff she would have had to do, if none of this had happened - and yet, somehow, doing it at his command, as 'his woman', made the simple tasks a torment of feminine humiliation.

It wasn't until sometime later, during the first blow-job she helplessly 'needed' to give him, that it struck home. It was almost as if the realization poured into her along with the cum he pumped into her waiting and 'willing' mouth, information somehow swallowed along with the heavy load of thick, salty man-juice.

Lee 'got off' on humiliating people.

She'd never really liked her neighbor, though - until now - she hadn't truly hated him, either. She just hadn't cared much, one way or the other - which is why she'd never seen his wide streak of cruelty for what it was.

As the weekend wore on and he forced her to humiliate herself more and more by playing the obedient woman for his satisfaction, she couldn't help but understand - he was enjoying tormenting her, knowing she couldn't stop herself from satisfying him however he pleased.

She fucked him - and as much as he enjoyed it, physically, he enjoyed it even more knowing she hated doing it.

When, eventually, he realized she was enjoying it almost as much, physically, he tended more often to demand blow-jobs - which, lacking the same physical pleasure as straight-up sex, allowed him more enjoyment of her misery.

The sex, though, was just the beginning.

All weekend long, he never left the house - he kept sending her out, letting her cope with dealing with the world as this huge-breasted woman...

...and, when that began to 'wear thin', he had her by steadily skimpier, 'sluttier' clothing, to keep the fine edge of humiliation honed to a razor that cut her to the bone.

The more she begged him to stop, the more he enjoyed himself - until she finally managed to override her emotional responses, still feeling the humiliation and shame and disgust, but keeping herself from revealing to him. By Sunday morning, she was practically stoic about it, accepting his commands wordlessly, obeying his will without expression. She simply did what he wanted, without fighting or fussing, trying to deny him any emotional pleasure as she fought to get through until he got bored and finally changed her back.

She'd hoped it would be Sunday night - but that was much too simple. He knew 'Tommy' was supposed to go to work Monday - and so he knew, even if she didn't show it, that keeping her female as the weekend rolled over into the work-week was something else he could 'torture' her with. He taunted and teased her as Tuesday rolled around, and the calls from work became more insistent - and yet there was no 'Tommy' to respond to them, and so she could do nothing but listen in hard-won silence, refusing to reveal her emotions as the voice from the answering machine became less polite and more demanding.

Wednesday, 'Tommy' was fired. 'Tammy' lost it.

She yelled.

She screamed.

She stomped and threatened and threw things. She accused him of being every type of monster in the book, and she howled out her hatred of him...

...and he loved every minute of it, especially as - her hate not yet cooled, he forced her right back into pampering him, her own bank account steadily being depleted as he had her shop not only for anything he wanted for himself, but for continuously more degrading clothing for herself...

...and of course, he had her fuck him 'extra hard' that night, laughing as that same desperate need overcame her and the incredibly slow, teasing rhythm he'd had her set finally broke down and she 'eagerly' fucked him to her orgasm.

Friday, almost one week to the hour since the start of her humiliations, brought about a new tactic she'd belatedly come up with. It wasn't something that could be too obvious, so she had to go slow - and she hated herself for doing it at all.

She began to pretend to enjoy it.

She'd already stopped showing her revulsion. Now, over the next week, she slowly began to work toward faking excitement and interest, until she was finally asking him to let her fuck him or suck him, telling him how glad she was to be female, hoping the reverse psychology would make him 'humiliate' her by stealing away the things she was claiming to enjoy.

It backfired.

If she was enjoying it so much, he finally declared, with a shark's grin he showed he hadn't been fooled for a minute, then by all means he should supply her with all she could ever want.

That night, slightly over two weeks into her feminine fate, she became a whore. Tommy's bank balance had run down to zero - but now Tammy's slowly began to grow.

Very slowly - as, aside from taking his fifty-percent cut as her 'pimp', Lee also insisted she support him still, though they'd abandoned Tommy's house already.

He arranged everything, finding her 'Johns' - and he made sure to find the men he knew would most horrify or humiliate her, though she refused to reveal her emotions to him. Indeed, she kept up the pretense of enjoying it...

...but only because he 'wanted' her to.

It helped her rake in the cash as she let men do damned near anything they wanted to with, to, or by her. She might have been a whore - but she was anything but 'cheap' or 'common'.

Oh, no - with Lee calling the shots, Tammy was a very special whore. So it went for the next three months...

* * * * *

Heart pounding behind her mountainous breasts, Tammy swung her long, toned legs out and pulled herself upright on her bed.

The motion was done smoothly, quickly and quietly - she now moved as smoothly and easily with her 'new' center of gravity as she ever had with her old male one. That helped, actually, letting her move with a quiet confidence and smooth grace that was nearly silent as she crept around in the darkened bedroom that were both her living quarters and 'place of business'.

It was a room in Lee's house, of course. 'Tommy' was four months missing, and she couldn't imagine herself trying to explain what happened to the police investigating his disappearance...

...especially since the plastic surgery she'd 'needed' on her face had removed that original close resemblance to her old male self.

Moving quickly and silently, she dressed - not her 'working' clothes, if you could call the various skimpy costumes that, but her 'day- to-day' stuff.. except that most of this stuff she hadn't worn since she'd begun 'working'.

Which explained why it didn't quite fit as well as when she'd first bought it.

The jean mini-skirt fit well enough, though she had to reef it in a bit tighter on the slimmer waist Lee's regimen of diet and exercise had left her. Thankfully, she'd been allowed to by a new bra that fit her somewhat larger tits - she needed it now, thanks to the herbal supplement she'd been taking that had plumped out her already massive tits another two cup sizes. It had achieved Lee's purpose, though, since her tits no longer sat so unbelievably high and round on her chest, now having a slightly more natural appearance - except, of course, when she pulled on the heavy canvas-cotton-and-lace bra that lifted them higher on her chest and pushed them together, giving her a deep, rounded cleavage well displayed by the belly-baring white crop-top she pulled on.

Slipping her feet into a pair of calf-high white leather boots with a five-inch heel, she walked skillfully and soundlessly over to a dresser, where she grabbed her purse. It was already full of her make-up and assorted other item, but now she crammed the best of her jewelry into it - and added the pitifully small amount of money from under her mattress.

Then, walking on tip-toe to keep her heels from clacking on the wooden floors, she made her way to the den.

Lee had never bothered concealing the combination of the safe from her. Indeed, he'd given it to her himself, trusting the fact that 'stealing' the money she was earning for him would have displeased him.

Now, with no hesitation or trouble, she emptied out the stacks of cash in the safe into her handbag, then headed silently to the front door.

She shrugged into a long, white vinyl coat, then opened the front door and stepped out into the cool night air, drawing it closed behind her, careful not to make a sound.

She didn't bother bringing the keys Lee had given her, and when she heard the lock engage behind her, she actually smiled.

Hips moving with the wide sway she was barely aware of anymore, Tammy began walking down the street, feeling the now familiar shift and sway of her huge tits with every step, despite the support of the massive foundation garment cradling them.

As she walked away from the house, heels tapping on the sidewalk, the huge-breasted, long-legged EX-hooker considered the situation that was still leaving her feeling a bit stunned.

Lee had finally screwed up.

In retrospect, it took an amazingly long time for it to happen. Given the situation, and the fact that Lee didn't really 'like' her, it was surprising that it had gone this long before she'd offered to do something for him - and been rejected.

In fact, sunk so deep in her own misery, Tammy herself hadn't, at first, realized what had happened. She'd continued obeying him out of habit... until it had dawned on her that she no longer had to.

He'd refused her.

The 'attunement' was broken. She was free.

Well - almost. All things considered, she'd thought it best to keep it a secret instead of revealing the truth and defying him openly. The enjoyment of doing so would have been considerably less than some of the more direct, physical responses he just might have made upon realizing he couldn't control her anymore.

Somehow, she'd managed to finish out the working day without letting anybody know what was going on - which was what allowed her this 'head start'.

Lee would have no idea that she'd slipped her invisible bonds until he came to wake her, about six hours from now - by which time she'd be long gone.

At least, geographically speaking...

...which was one of the things that was confusing her. Why wasn't she breaking the spell?

She could, she knew. Even as she turned the corner at the end of the street, heading towards the down-town core and the bus station, she could almost feel the 'trigger' in her mind, the ability to just turn herself back into a man.

Not quite the old male self she'd been, though.

No, the plastic surgery and the extra couple of cup sizes would remain, at least until she had surgery to correct the further feminizing of her face and the expansion to her bust line...

...but it wasn't the state of 'freakhood' that was stopping her. She wasn't sure what was stopping her.

All she knew was... she couldn't quite bring herself to turn back into a man.

She'd been female long enough to feel as comfortable in a female body - even one as top heavy as hers - as she ever had as a man. Though she had hated being 'forced' to do the things she had, sheer repetition had worn away most of the horror and disgust over the acts themselves.

In fact... her 'enjoyment' of some of them wasn't nearly the act Lee thought them to be. Not anymore.

Oh, dear God above help her... but the truth was, she liked being a woman.

She enjoyed having sex.. at least, if it was good sex, not necessarily something she got as a whore, when she was forced to be more worried about satisfying men than herself...

...but, God help her, she'd even come to like giving blow-jobs.

THAT still made her shake her head in wonder - because she didn't quite understand it. It wasn't the physical sensations, that was for damned sure... but, on the other hand, it wasn't physically painful, either.

No, physically it was about a wash... but why on earth did she find herself enjoying the fact that she was so good at it?

That's what it was, really - after so much experience, she was a world-class cock-sucker... when she gave a man a blow-job better than any he'd ever gotten before she felt... proud?

Well.. yes.

Just like she was 'proud' of her huge tits, which some men focused so intently on, going on about how wonderfully huge they were, how amazingly firm.

It was undoubtedly sick and perverted... but nonetheless true.

As a man, she'd been 'nothing much' - but as a woman, she was 'something special', at least to some men...

...and that was why she couldn't seem to quite bring herself to take that one, last, oh-so-easy step back to masculinity.

Even if a certain part of her very much wanted to do so.

...and that part was held off by the knowledge that she could turn back to a man. Sometime.

Eventually... THE END

BACK TO FUN ZONE

---

© 1997 - 2016 TGstories.

Stories on the "Public Access" pages may be Copyright by individual authors.

Home | Membership | Terms & Conditons | Privacy Policy | Contact