

Despite loving each other since they began dating in high school, a young couple was finding that spark of attraction they once felt to be diminishing. Fearing they might lose interest in each other, they resolved to revitalize that wanton desire with a specialized concoction that would improve each other's physical appearance. Together they drank the elixir with the mutual hope to regain that which was slipping away from their relationship.

That night, all they had to do was dream of their ideal appearance for the other. The potion would then take effect and, if all went correctly, they would awake with the bodies of their partner's fantasy – reigniting the flame between them.

To their shock, they woke up the next morning to find the elixir had not affected them as planned. Instead of waking with the physiques of their partner's dreams, they found themselves in the bodies of their own! Genders reversed, they knew not what to do.

Until they could determine how to restore themselves to normal, the couple tried to make do with their current situation. In the meantime, they went about their daily activities the best they could. It took some getting used to, and often they found their relational dynamics reversed in just the littlest of instances.

As the days continued, emotions began to emerge; feelings most unexpected that were stirring ever deeper within them. Though they attempted to suppress these sensations, there were times growing ever more frequent where their unbridled arousal was starting to become too much to handle.

These primal emotions grew to inform much of their behavior toward each other. They interacted with a certain coquettish provocation; flaunting and flirting, each secretly hoping to force the other to give in to the tension building in them both.

The pressure became too much for the pair. They had to provide release for the burning desires that had grown as uncontrollable as they were. They undressed in a frenzy and finally embraced in each other's beautiful flesh. It was almost carnal in the way they ultimately let loose their inhibitions and found an echelon of love-making they had not before reached.

It turned out that their coitus was the final requirement to complete the effects of the elixir. They awoke the next morning back to their original gender and with the ideal physique of their partner's fantasies. Having learned many new dynamics to their relationship over the past few days, the couple lovingly embraced knowing that they were and would forever be perfect for each other.