Lexxi: BoobZilla

Lexxi had never exactly been much for going out. She hated being stared at, and she was always getting stared at. People with her size and proportions, after all, had a hard time avoiding attention.

Lexxi stood just under six and a half feet tall, which on its own would be enough to make her stand out. And she wasn't exactly rail-thin, which didn't help matters, nor did her having an ass that was more than big enough to qualify as a full-fledged booty. But the thing that really got people's attention was her breasts. They were enormous, massive, titanic things. They would have been somewhere in the 54 ZZZ range, if the sizes went that high or the stores carried bras her size. (Which of course they didn't, and so Lexxi had to have her bras specially made, to the detriment of her parents' paychecks.) Lexxi could barely get her arms all the way around her massive breasts, and they weighed a whopping twenty pounds. Each. (That's a whopping 9 kg, for those outside the states.)

Some girls would've relished that kind of attention, but not Lexxi. She'd always been the quiet, reserved type, the kind of girl who hated any kind of attention, let alone the kind she tended to get. For every guy who leered at her—which she tried, and failed, to take as a compliment—there would be a snicker, a sneer, a barbed comment tossed her way.

For the next few semesters, Lexxi secluded herself in her dorm room. She took all her classes online, keeping herself busy with her books and movies and computer games. She earned a solid GPA, and even made some friends playing League of Legends. She would get her food delivered to her room, and was lucky enough to get a dorm room with its own personal shower. Pretty soon, she'd figured out how to live her life without ever leaving her room. And so she went, all but avoiding human contact for over a year.

For a while, Lexxi was happy enough. She had everything she needed, or so she thought. But as time went on, she started to get more and more restless. Then, one night, Lexxi made a decision. She decided that she couldn't live like this anymore. She needed to go out, needed to be around other people, no matter how much the thought terrified her. But where would she go?

And then she looked out her window, peeking through the blinds, and saw the student athletic center. It was barely more than half a block away. That was it: she'd go for a swim. After all, she loved swimming when she was younger, and when was the last time she'd gone swimming? All she needed to do was go down there, take a shower, and put on her custom-made swimsuit (she hoped it still fit.) The thought of doing all this terrified her, but she had made up her mind. What's the worse that could happen? They could make fun of her?

But there was something else Lexxi was afraid of. Something she knew was crazy, but feared anyway. Lexxi was terrified of growing. She often had nightmares where people would laugh at her, and her embarrassment, somehow, would make her grow. Her body would grow uncontrollably, until she was enormous, with breasts as big as her body. A freak.

But she pushed the crazy fear to the back of her head. After all, she needed to get out.

Lexxi managed to make it all the way to the Gym. She even had the courage to strip down in the locker room, around a bunch of other girls. She was nervous, of course, but she did it anyway. She went into the sauna, dressed only in a towel, and for a moment she even enjoyed herself. But that was enough for one day, and so she headed back to her lockerk, to get dressed and retreat back to her room.
