MEN TAMED TO SUBMISSION BY TAME-AZONS

Portia and Potentia, partners in the exclusive firm trading as Tame-Azons, Inc., received a very mysterious request for their extremely unique services, to subdue and vanquish a big mouth male braggard. Their unknown employer, who did not wish his identity to be divulged at present, had heard of the Tame-Azons' prowess in taming and subjugating men who were considered obnoxious and annoying, for an agreed fee with results guaranteed or the refunding of the fee if the customer who hired them was not entirely satisfied.

Along with the customary fee in advance was an invitation to a big party being thrown by Dan Marlo, a well-known star of television, who specialized in he-man roles and was always boasting how good an actor he was.

Dan's bragging and boasting made those who served him, such as his TV show producer, the sponsor and even his own business agent and manager very irritated, for he repeated how good he was over and over again at the slightest opportunity. This soon became most annoying. Behind his back, the people in Dan's show agreed that Dan was a big ham and needed taking down a peg or two by someone.

However, nearly everyone was afraid to speak up to Dan for fear of his firing them right then and there. Dan had the power to hire and fire anyone in his show according to his contract. Thus everybody connected with his show always agreed with Dan's opinions and statements, even though they might have disagreed with him privately behind his back.

Because of his retinue of "yes" men, Dan often became insulting and arrogant in his dealings with his cast, making enemies galore. This was the man that the Tame-Azons, Portia and Potentia, were instructed by their unknown sponsor to overpower, humiliate and degrade publicly if possible. The mysterious employer of the Tame-Azons promised to pay an additional large fee if they could reform Dan Marlo into becoming a quiet, modest and pleasant person, instead of the loud-mouthed overbearing braggard that he presently was.

The incentive of obtaining a larger fee made Potentia and Portia all the more anxious to change the character of their intended victim but at present they had to find a way to be introduced to Dan and then find a chance to either lure or kidnap him away from his own party.

At the party Dan made it easy for Portia and Potentia by his excessive drinking and making a general nuisance of himself by clowning around with the guests. When Dan Marlo went into a side room to lie on the bed awhile to sleep off part of his drunken stupor, this gave the Tame-Azon girls the chance to spirit Dan away, without his guests realizing that he was being kidnapped.

Potentia and Portia, who were both strong and husky women, had little trouble overpowering Dan in his drunken state, but merely as a precaution, Potentia slipped some chloroform on a piece of cloth. Using the gag as part of a fun costume, she knotted the drugged cloth around Dan's mouth and nostrils.

This put Dan into a quiet sleep, while as part of the Tame-Azons' plan to get Dan away from the party without arousing suspicion, Potentia began binding Dan's left leg to her right leg. Portia linked her left leg to Dan's right leg on the other side, so that now all three were bound together.

The Tame-Azons' plan was to walk the unconscious Dan out of the party as a joke that Dan was supposedly playing to enliven up the party.

Then the two girls propped Dan up with his arms around each girl's shoulder, so that Dan's weight was supported by the two husky women. They moved the strainer gag onto Dan's head on a crooked angle and began to walk slowly out of the room.

Portia picked up a party horn while Potentia took hold of a champagne bottle to make believe that all three were very drunk. Portia began blowing her horn loudly so as to attract the crowds' attention to the funny goings on, but after a slight laugh or two, nobody paid any attention to the three supposedly drunken members of the party.

Everyone was busy trying to have a good time and so no heed was taken of the fact that the two girls were taking away the non-sober host of the party. The chloroform had taken effect on Dan so that he was out completely and did not even know what was taking place!

Slowly but surely the Tame-Azons edged towards Dan's front door with no one having the slightest suspicion that their host was being taken away from the party, not of his own free will. Portia and Potentia, being powerfully built, handled the weight of their 200-pound victim as if he were a baby.

In fact, Dan was so sound asleep that if he awakened, he would have laughed at the joke being played on himself. Reaching the door, the two girls waved goodbye to the crowd and yelled that they were going out to take a breath of fresh air.

The only person paying any notice was Dan's agent and personal manager, Stuart Arthur, who thought that some fresh air might sober up his client. Little did Dan's manager realize that his precious meal ticket was being kidnapped right under his nose!

However, Stuart Arthur was too busy with Dan's guests to be able to follow the Tame-Azons as they shoved Dan into their auto and rode away from Dan's house. Portia and Potentia took Dan to the Tame-Azon quarters, which was amply filled with all types of equipment and gadgets necessary to tame and humiliate unruly people.

Portia bound their still sleeping victim to the posts of an old-fashioned brass bed to hold him until he woke up. Black-haired Potentia lifted up one of Dan's eyelids to see if he was really sleeping or just faking unconsciousness, just to make sure.

Dan was in a deep stupor and dead to the world and would be in this condition for some time to come. This gave the Tame-Azons a chance to change their party dresses to regulation Tame-Azon regalia in which they could move about and work in a great deal more comfortably.

Potentia slipped into a slit dress and high heel shoes, while Portia donned a pair of grey leather boots which came to a little above her knees. Potentia also wore her nipped-in wide leather belt which made her waist seem smaller than it actually was. The belt accentuated her powerful body and seemed to emphasize her great strength.

Potentia could give a very good account of herself should her intended victim get loose and try to vanquish her in a knock-down drag-out fight.

The Tame-Azons studied the instructions that came with their fee from their anonymous employer to follow out the suggestions given to them in the letter which had been delivered by messenger. The instructions were very explicit, in that since Dan Marlo was always bragging about his masculinity, and the fact that he was usually selected for he-man roles, that the Tame-Azons humiliate and degrade him by dressing up Dan in feminine clothes and forcing him to act as a female instead of a stalwart male.

As the Tame-Azons had plenty of experience in this line and liked to subdue and subjugate men whom they hated, this seemed to be a very pleasant chore, which would also pay them well if they succeeded in subjugating and humiliating Dan.

They had some very devilish and definite plans on how they were going to degrade and humiliate this conceited braggart. If their hapless and helpless intended victim knew what was in store for him at the hands of the Tame-Azons, he might have wished never to regain consciousness.

Dan became conscious again and began struggling with the ropes which bound him to a set of wooden posts bolted to the floor. His arms had been sheathed into a pair of elbow-length kid leather gloves and then bound spread-eagled to the posts. His expensive trousers had been cut to pieces and hung in tatters to his thighs.

On his manly chest was a tight-fitting constricting long line corset, at the ends of which dangled a set of straps. Portia gave the gagged captive a hard slap in the face to awaken him out of his daze, so that he could realize what was taking place.

The hard blow delivered with considerable force to Dan's face served to shock Dan into wakefulness. When the full realization of what was happening to him struck him, Dan began to struggle futilely against the bondage in a vain attempt to wrest himself free.

He soon gave up trying to get out of the bondage and tried to speak to Portia. However, the gag in his mouth prevented him from speaking and it would not have done him much good for Portia was in no mood to listen to protests right now.

If the unfortunate victim of Portia's ire could have been allowed to speak up, he could have told the Tame-Azons that he actually was their anonymous employer. He would have told them that he had heard about the Tame-Azons from a former client of theirs and had dreamed up the whole scheme as a big publicity stunt for himself.

Dan would have told the girls that he had deliberately let himself be kidnapped and planned the whole thing so that he could eventually emerge out of the affair as a hero to bolster up his slipping TV ratings.

Dan had not realized what he had let himself in for when he had set up the scheme to have his public image and character changed from boastful loudmouth to a quiet virile hero! At the last moment, as a joke, he had included in his written instructions about dressing him up in female attire, purely as a form of contrast to his former manly roles.

He had counted on having a great storm of publicity about his disappearance, which he hoped would help revive sagging interest in his television appearances. Dan had planned on telling the press how he had been kidnapped by two strong-armed women, who had tried to render him helpless, but who had failed because of his great physical attainments.

He had brought in the stunt of being dressed up in female clothing as he figured that it would fit in with his scheme that he had grappled with his kidnappers and in the struggle his clothes had been torn off so he had to use their female clothes to escape from them.

Now he was regretting that he had thought up the whole idea, especially regarding the wearing of women's clothing. Dan was always quite proud of his enormous strength, yet he was now rendered helpless by the expert tying of Portia and Potentia.

While Dan was being removed from the wooden posts, he tried to catch the Tame-Azons off guard and best them, for he thought a great deal of his own muscular superiority which could overpower both girls. Dan received a distinct surprise which deflated his ego, for Portia demonstrated in the next few minutes that she was more than a match for him, just by herself and without the aid of Portia.

Potentia picked up the surprised captive and holding him almost helpless in her brawny arms, she set him down hard! Dan's nerves became taut with tension from anger and frustration at the easy manner in which he was being tossed about by the Tame-Azon girl.

Fear and humiliation began to show on his strained face as Potentia began slamming him around. His will to get even and fight back made him throw caution to the winds, for his pride was hurt and he was unwilling to admit that a woman could overpower and subdue him!

MEN TAMED TO SUBMISSION BY TAME-AZONS

His unwillingness to admit defeat made him wrestle with Potentia all the harder, for he could not let it get out publicly that a woman had overcome Dan Marlo, the well-known star of many a he-man television story.

The gag in his mouth prevented him from telling Potentia that he was the person who had hired her and Portia, but Potentia never gave to remove the gag as Dan was kept too busy defending himself. It certainly was most humiliating to Dan to have the big woman manhandle and beat him up, especially when he was responsible for hiring her.

It was all over almost before he knew it and his pants were torn and tattered up to his thighs. Dan had to submit silently to Potentia as she held him down, while Portia bound his gloved hands behind his back.

On Dan's legs Potentia laced on a pair of thigh-length laced boots which fit so snugly that they pinched and bit in deeply into the fleshy part of his thighs. Next Potentia strapped slotted rods along the side of Dan's booted legs, making his legs stay straight and rigid like a ramrod. Cringing with terror at the hazardous plight that his desire for publicity had brought him, Dan wracked his brain for a solution to his problem.

MEN TAMED TO SUBMISSION BY TAME-AZONS

The tight padded corset laced to Dan's chest constricted his breathing and made it difficult for him to sit straight on the wooden table on which he had been made to sit, while Potentia was putting the leather boots on his legs. The rough edges of the table made it uncomfortable to sit on.

Dan's face showed a vivid tone of red, not only from the hard slaps on his face, but also with shame and frustration as Potentia demonstrated her superiority over him. He had not counted on being forced to wear a constricting corset and being pushed around by a female who proved to be much stronger than he was.

Dan began to grow more tense with frustration as Portia removed his cloth gag and before he could utter a word, she had slipped into his mouth a horse bridle bit which indented into the corners of his mouth.

Portia, the high-heeled Tame-Azon, buckled the bit so tightly around his face that Dan thought it would cut his handsome features and ruin his television career. He could not say a word and neither could he lift his hands to tear the tight gag away from his mouth and this made him very mad.

A leather neck collar which was stiff and unyielding was buckled onto the corset, making Dan's head point upwards for fear of irritating his neck and chin against the rough collar. Just then the telephone began to ring and Potentia answered it, while Portia was busy putting the finishing touches to Dan's female attire.

The phone call was from Dan's business manager and agent, Stuart Arthur, who had become worried about Dan's mysterious disappearance and had started an investigation to find out what had happened to Dan. In searching through Dan's effects for some clue, the agent had come across a carbon copy of Dan's letter of instructions to the Tame-Azons.

Greatly puzzled over the contents of this letter and wondering just what Dan had in his mind, Stuart Arthur decided not to call in the police until he found out more details.

Greatly alarmed at Potentia's evasive answers to his questions about whether the Tame-Azons had kidnapped or harmed his client, Stuart Arthur thought it best to investigate further by himself, instead of getting help. Dan's agent was afraid that bad publicity might arise if word leaked that Dan himself was responsible for his own disappearance!

MEN TAMED TO SUBMISSION BY TAME-AZONS

Once the hoax was revealed by the press, the public might not like being held in suspense over the fake kidnapping of the television star. In the meantime, Portia had turned over to Potentia the delightful task of putting Dan into a more arduous bondage position to add to his harrassment.

This time Potentia was determined to break down Dan's will by binding his gloved hands underneath his thighs. Placing her sturdy legs around Dan's back, Potentia pushed Dan's head down between his booted knees while she tied a rope through slots in the rods that had been attached to his boots. This put a great deal of strain and stress on Dan's bowed head.

The stringent subjugating methods used by the Tame-Azons were far more exhausting and strenuous than that which Dan had in mind when he prepared the letter of instructions for his publicity scheme. These instructions were now boomeranging right back at him, much to his dismay!

The tedious bent-over position in which he was now placed caused his body to ache all over but there was no relief in sight for him from Potentia, who was intent in subduing him.

MEN TAMED TO SUBMISSION BY TAME-AZONS

Dan's back felt as if it was breaking in two as Potentia tightened up the ropes affixed to the rods on his boots, as the flexible rods compressed his head between his knees. The corset stays made his spine bend and this caused him much misery and discomfort.

Dan was finding out the hard way that his planned hoax was not turning out in the grand manner in which he had expected it to do and was instead causing him untold woe and pain. He had never dreamed that the Tame-Azons would take their business so seriously and that they would do their best to dominate and break his spirit.

Dan began to feel faint from staying so long in this crouched-up uncomfortable position, as the strain and stress began to tell on him. It was a lucky thing that his great physical stamina enabled him to endure it for such a long period of time.

A much weaker person would have blacked out much sooner if he had been placed in this similar position that Potentia had placed Dan into. Dan was in a mighty bad way and wished that there was some way he could convey his distress to the Tame-Azons.

MEN TAMED TO SUBMISSION BY TAME-AZONS

The hapless Dan also had no way of knowing that his manager and agent had found his letter of instructions to the Tame-Azons and had phoned the Tame-Azons to enquire about Dan. Dan's manager, Stuart Arthur, arranged to come to the office of the Tame-Azons, using the ruse that he was the one who had employed them.

When Portia asked Stuart Arthur if they should carry out in full the instructions contained in the letter, Stuart, not thinking that the Tame-Azons were so stringent, told them to go right ahead.

While Stuart Arthur was riding in his car to the Tame-Azon's office to keep his appointment, the Tame-Azons were quite busy transforming Dan into a female, per the letter's instructions.

Over Dan's tightly laced corset, Portia and Potentia placed a short black French maid's cap which made his appearance look incongruous. In fact, Portia and Potentia could barely keep from laughing out loud in their victim's face because he looked so masculine instead of effeminate in the maid's costume. Both girls took great pains to make Dan look more feminine, making him slip on a gay pink colored nylon tri-cot half-slip, with ruffled trim along the edges to match his ruffled maid's cap. Then, with a pair of tweezers, they began to pluck out some of the hairs on Dan's bushy eyebrows in order to make him look less masculine.

Dan writhed and squirmed while the muscular girls worked on his eyebrows, but his efforts were of no avail as the Tame-Azons took their jobs seriously and intended to carry out all the instructions exactly as Dan had outlined in his letter of instructions to them.

Dan never received a chance to talk, for his gag was never removed while the Tame-Azons were applying cosmetics to his face. Dan heard Potentia say in a tone of utter surprise, "You know, Portia, I think that Dan will make a very beautiful maid when we are finished with him."

Potentia continued, "The corset nips in his figure very nicely as it squeezes in his bulging midriff and even shapes his hips beautifully. The long leather kid gloves hide his hard muscles and once we encase his feet in pretty high heel shoes, he will make a very nice looking girl."

Dan winced with shame and pain at Potentia's words, for he realized that the determined Tame-Azons were slowly but surely forcing him into subjection by their dominant manner of doing things.

MEN TAMED TO SUBMISSION BY TAME-AZONS

It would not be long before he would be transformed into a woman and eventually be forced to assume female duties, he thought. The feminine clothes that Dan was being forced to wear were gradually taking effect on him, as he felt a tingle of excitement run up his spine at being dominated by a husky woman.

While Dan had no intentions of submitting meekly to the Tame-Azons, his inner glow of joy at being handled so roughly made him desire to have the two girls manhandle him further! He could tell from the firm and stern tone of her voice that Potentia enjoyed her work of dominating men and that she would relish handing him a thorough beating and then make him serve her in the cute maid's outfit, while he was bound hand and foot.

No doubt Potentia would force him to wait on her and make him her personal slave to groom her long-flowing black hair and perform other personal services. Potentia then picked up the two-hundred pound captive maid as if he were a child and carried him over to a couch where she laid him down, after re-arranging Dan's bondage so that he could lie on the couch. He admired her strength, never expecting such a thing.
