Boys in Tights

For decades, even centuries, many boys have worn tights for a wide variety of reasons ranging from dress up costumes to shame clothing, as a form of punishment and even as ordinary daily wear (especially in hand-me-down families) as well as being prized by sissy boy types who want to wear them because they are a girlish garment.

While many people consider 'tights' and 'pantyhose' one and the same, in our publications, we use the term tights referring to items that tend to be made of a heavier or thicker material than that typically used for nylon stockings. Sometimes tights are ribbed or otherwise textured and very colorful, striped, patterned, or decorated with a motif. We use the term pantyhose for the thinner and more delicate materials of women's stockings and colors usually limited to beige, black and white.

Some women and girls' stockings are of the thigh-high stay-up variety but classic nylon stockings are usually held up with garters, a garter belt or straps attached to a corset or girdle, while pantyhose, like tights, are a waist-high all-in-one garments that stay up on their own, but some tights, especially those of bygone days were held up by garters or the infamous pantywaists. Gartered stocking-like tights were especially popular in Europe, particularly in Germany and other Eastern European countries during the first half of the 20th century and remained very popular almost to the present day in a few countries, like Russia.

Tights as Part of a Costume

One of the most common ways a boy finds himself in tights is in a costume, generally put together by a mother or sister because colorful tights lend themselves to so many play costumes, even or the superhero variety. Even Superman wears tights, yet most people still consider tights to be a girlish form of stockings. One of the easiest ways to get a boy into tights -- even if they think of them a sissy -- is to incorporate them into a Halloween or other type of play costume.
