6 DEPORTMENT - Just doing the housework is only one aspect of being a good little servant. Proper deportment, obedience, and respectful behavior are also critical.

27 REPORT FROM THE ACADEMY - Sissy Bobbi's letter from Peekskill. School is tough for sissies in training -- but fun, too. There's a lot to learn, and a lot to accept. Bobbi tells us how he's doing.

There's a Lot More to Sissy Maids Than HOUSEWORK

Many women have the mistaken impression that sissy maids are good only for performing mundane housework and laundry chores. But this is not true. A properly trained sissy can provide his employer with many services that extend well beyond scrubbing floors, washing dishes, and doing the ironing. (as great as those services are!)

Perhaps the most obvious category of duty one can assign a sissy maid that is beyond basic housework is errand running.

As we all know, it is quite disturbing to have to run out to get something you forgot at the grocery store or pharmacy. How many times have all of us suddenly discovered, once we're all settled in for the evening, that we need a pair of pantyhose, some vital cosmetic item, or a box of tampons? Well, what was once a real drag is no longer so bad. Just snap your fingers and send little "Sissy Pants" out to get it for you!

Just snap your fingers and send little "Sissy Pants" out to get it for you!

Running an errand like those listed above is a very valuable service. Instead of you getting dressed, heading out in the rain at night, driving somewhere, finding parking, dashing into a store, and waiting at the checkout counter while some suburban woman's baby cries and screams; all this can be (and should be) endured by your sissy maid. (Except he'll wait for and take the bus of course -- public transportation is perfectly adequate for sissies.)

A side benefit to having your sissy run errands is that a few experiences like the above will teach him to develop very detailed shopping lists, so you don't run out of things you need in the first place.

Errand running, in the end result, is simply a service you should fully expect your sissy to perform for you.

Eventually, your sissy servant will become well known to the clerks and other people he frequently runs into while out running errands for you. These days, a sissy out and about is no longer such a remarkable sight in larger cities. And many a sissy already is teased by salesgirls who find it

... many a sissy already gets lightly teased by salesgirls who find it amusing to see a sissy in his proper place, out "fetching" something for his mistress.

amusing to see a sissy in his proper place, out fetching something for his mistress.

This public service also encourages a sissy to come to terms with his social position and his true job. It becomes obvious to all who deal with him regularly that he is a servant, and is to be treated as such.

---

It becomes obvious to all who deal with him regularly that he is a servant. . .

---

This doesn't mean he is necessarily mistreated in any way. But it does mean that the normal respect and consideration shown to adult, sexually active males and to women need not be shown to a sissy whose "career" is simply that of a household servant.

Most people realize that a sissy maid's time is not worth as much as other people's time. If a sissy has to wait in lines, wait to be helped in a store, or is otherwise inconvenienced, most people see this as fair and correct.

The reason for this seeming "unfairness" is simple: sissies in full-time domestic service do not have to deal with the responsibilities and stresses regular males and women deal with daily. Sissy maids live secure lives that are devoid of harsh competition, (sexual, social, financial, and otherwise.) They are at the "bottom of the ladder" in these venues, and it is simply their place to stay at the bottom of the ladder.

While this may seem slightly harsh, remember that it is at least easy to stay at the bottom. And, since this is exactly what most sissies really choose to do, why shouldn't they expect to be treated as servants?

Besides running errands (as important as this task is) a sissy maid can also be assigned many other useful little "duties."

---

Besides running errands (as important as this task is) a sissy maid can also be assigned many other useful little "duties." For instance, the last issue of "SMQ" discussed the ways in which a sissy can easily be trained for and used as a personal "lady's maid."

But a sissy maid can also become one's diligent little "social secretary" as well. Consider having your sissy write out invitations, call friends and associates, answer correspondence, and keep your "home office" operating smoothly and efficiently.

There's really no need for a busy young professional woman to have to waste her time opening junk mail, filling out those annoying "sweepstakes" forms, dealing with bureaucratic government agencies and insurance companies, and answering routine correspondence. These are tasks that can (with minimal training and supervision) be easily handled by your sissy maid.

Because of his many housework and laundry duties, a sissy maid may have to perform his secretarial work in the evenings. But that is fine, and he may work in the Maid's Room if no other suitable location is available. (Many women outfit their Maid's Room with a small desk, and perhaps a typewriter, for just such a purpose.)

Of course, unlike many of today's modern, professional female secretaries, your sissy secretary's job description will definitely include "getting the coffee!"

Another rather obvious duty for a sissy maid to perform is "house sitting" and "pet sitting." Just the fact that you have a live-in sissy means that you no longer really have to worry leaving your home unattended while you are out of town. Nor do you have to take time off from work to "be there" when some repairman is expected to call. Since your sissy is going to be home all day, every day anyway, it should be fully expected that he take care of these mundane matters.

Perhaps related to the above task is pet care and pet sitting. It is nice to be able to have the companionship and fun of a cat or dog or other pet without the bother of having to always be home to walk them, or the mess of cleaning up after them. In short, the "litter box detail" should be immediately and permanently assigned to your servant. Remember, it is just these kinds of messy, undesirable jobs that sissy maids are good for.

After all, why have a servant if you still have to do domestic tasks you don't like?

After all, why have a servant if you still have to do domestic tasks you don't like? It is just these kinds of duties that servants are for.

Remember the fact that your maid happens to be a sissy, and just happens to wear a gaff under his panties, shouldn't alter his overall usefulness in your household.

Cleaning and cooking and washing and ironing and serving are fine. But sissy servants can (and should) be used for more than just these "traditional" maid's jobs.

So girls, just order "Sissy Pants" to get his cute little pantied rear in gear!

This Miami Girl's Sissy Maid is Her Friend and Confidant, as Well as Her Servant

Servants are very nice to have. But a good friend is a treasure, too. Miss Nicole Manning of Miami is lucky enough to have both all wrapped up in one person!

Miss Nicole's sissy maid Billie is not only her full-time servant, he is her "girl" friend as well. While their relationship certainly began on a more or less professional level, it has grown into something more close and personal.

While their relationship certainly began on a more or less professional level, it has grown into something more close and personal.

Nicole was without a steady boyfriend when she first met and hired Billie. And perhaps this little fact had something to do with the start of their "friendly" relationship. Nicole spent a lot of time at home with her new maid, and they got to know each other.

Fortunately, Billie is one of those slightly-built sissies who looks so at home in his effeminate clothing that it is easy for him to appear in public. After only a few months of employment, Nicole was having Billie come along with her on shopping excursions to help in the fitting rooms and carry her packages for her.

. . . Billie is one of those fortunate sissies who looks so at home in his effeminate clothing that it is easy for him to appear in public.

Some people (from a distance) easily see Billie as a girl. And those who view him from a closer perspective just see him as what he is: a cute little sissy servant out helping his mistress shop.

. . . a cute little sissy servant out helping his mistress shop.

More than a few women have noted to Nicole that they think it's cute to see Billie struggling to keep up (with long-legged Nicole!) and balancing her packages in his skinny arms. He's often dressed in something pastel and overtly "sissy", like a tiny little fuzzy sweater top and tight satin short-shorts.

All the shopping together and being out and about together have also helped to bring Nicole and "sissy Billie" closer together than most women and their servants. They even lunch together on occasion while they are out.

Of course at home Billie is definitely Nicole's servant, as well as her "little friend." Like most sissy maids, he does all the housework and laundry, and waits on his employer whenever she is home. He is expected to be respectful and obedient, though perhaps he does not have to be as formal as many other sissy maids. (Nicole only has him curtsy to her when others are present, for instance.)

He is expected to be respectful and obedient . . .

In part due to their close relationship, (and Billie's utter sissiness) Nicole uses her sissy servant as her personal "lady's" maid. He helps her bathe and dress, and often sees her in nothing more than a tiny pair of silk panties.

According to Nicole, there really is no "tension" present, even when her little maid is helping her bathe or dress.

"He's such a sissy I don't think he's even all that interested in girls -- at least in any physical sense," Nicole told us. "He's probably more interested in my clothes than in my body!"

"He's such a sissy I don't think he's even all that interested in girls -- at least in any physical sense . . ."

For his part, Billie seems to know and accept that his employer in no way views him as a "male".

"I guess some people would think it frustrating, but Miss Nicole and I are really sort of like "girlfriends" -- we talk and kid each other. I mean, I get jealous when she talks about her dates and men and all. But mostly it's O.K." Nicole's surprisingly effeminate maid told us. "And I love going shopping with her and helping her try on all those gorgeous clothes!" he added breathlessly.

Most of the salesgirls in the pricey boutiques Nicole frequents know Billie now. Sometimes he is even sent by his employer to these shops to pick up a particular style of pantyhose or a sweater top in a different color. And he is also often sent to return items "Miss Nicole" has decided against after getting them home.

. . . Billie enjoys talking about his two favorite subjects -- Miss Nicole and fashion!

---

While running these little errands is not always fun, Billie enjoys his few minutes talking to the shop girls about his two favorite subjects -- Miss Nicole and fashion!

Billie told us a little about his duties. While he is a "friend", there is quite a lot of work involved in his life, too. Nicole wants things done her way, and is demanding in the way many well-off, spoiled girls are. She keeps her sissy maid hopping at home with lots and lots of domestic chores.

Miss Nicole, Billie's beautiful and glamorous friend -- and boss! Billie often helps his mistress get ready for dates, (as shown on this issue's cover.) While the sissy is sometimes jealous of the men she dates, Billie truly enjoys helping Miss Nicole dress. Like many sissies, he is intensely interested in all aspects of fashion.

Not every "mistress/maid" relationship is the same. But many single young women are finding that it is fun and calming to have a "little friend" at home in the form of a sissy maid. And what better "friend" to have than one who also does all the housework and all the laundry and ironing and so forth for you?

Miss Nicole and Billie seem well suited to each other. The only worry Nicole has now is what exactly will happen when she falls in love with someone and brings him home to stay the night. But she shouldn't worry -- her little "friend" will understand. ◆

Proper Deportment

There's More to being a Good Maid than just Doing your Housework!

---

Proper deportment is a very important aspect of a sissy maid's demeanor.

After all, correct behavior and proper deportment are as much components of a servant's job as doing the housework or knowing how to properly iron clothes.

Waiting on people and serving them should be much more than some sort of "slinging hash" operation. Etiquette demands that nearly every service a sissy maid provides be performed in a specific (and respectful) fashion.

However, since many employers of sissy maids haven't had much prior experience with servants in their households, they often lack confidence in this area. And questions naturally arise: Just how respectful should a sissy maid be towards his mistress? Should he be required to curtsy? How, precisely, should a servant obey requests from guests?

Hopefully this brief article will answer these questions and help employers of sissy maids feel more confident and self-assured.

Although a sissy maid's main responsibilities are quite concrete -- he is there primarily to wait on his employer solicitously

Having a live-in maid should add an air of luxury to your household . . .

and free her of all housework concerns -- a servant's presence in the household can also contribute less tangible rewards. Having a live-in maid should add an air of luxury to your household, as well as eliminate any concern about housework or other tedious, menial tasks.

Just the appearance of a nicely-uniformed servant quietly going about his appointed duties generally adds to the overall atmosphere of leisure and ease. For this reason, sissy maids should always be perfectly groomed and made-up and dressed in well-fitting, crisply pressed uniforms and aprons.

Sissy maids should always be perfectly groomed and made-up and dressed in well-fitting, crisply pressed uniforms and aprons.

But what about his behavior? Aren't his deportment and demeanor just as important to his "appearance" as his uniforms and skill with housework are?

Of course, doing all the housework is a sissy maid's most beneficial duty. But being very respectful, submissive and obedient towards you and your guests are qualities that shouldn't be overlooked. In fact, they should be encouraged and rewarded. And, if your rules are not followed to the letter, the maid should expect punishment.

GENERAL RULES OF ETIQUETTE FOR SERVANTS

Sissy maids should be required to strictly adhere to the following etiquette guidelines. First, your sissy should address you as "Miss" (or, if you're married, as "Ma'am.") A maid should never be permitted to address his superiors by their first names alone -- using first names exhibits a casual familiarity that is simply not proper for servants. Your maid may address any guests as "Miss" or "Mister" followed by surname if they are not known to the servant. He may use "Miss" or "Mister" followed by their first names if they are frequent guests. Of course, "Yes, Miss" (or "Ma'am") and "Yes, Sir" is a sissy servant's only proper reply to any orders he may be given.

First, your sissy should address you as "Miss" . . .

It is both proper and cute to have your sissy maid curtsy as a show of respect. He should always curtsy whenever he is dismissed, of course. And many employers think it's nice to have their maids bob a little curtsy to acknowledge individual orders. In more formal households, maids are sometimes required to also curtsy whenever their mistress enters or leaves a room.

. . . many employer's think it's nice to have their maids bob a little curtsy to acknowledge individual orders.

Having your maid curtsy to you may seem old fashioned, but this simple act helps set up the proper social hierarchy in the household. With a snappy "Yes, Miss" or "Yes, Sir" and a graceful curtsy your maid exhibits to everyone that he knows his place. (And perhaps just as important, that you know your place!)

With a snappy "Yes, Miss" or "Yes, Sir" and a graceful curtsy your maid exhibits to everyone that he knows his place.

In plain housework uniforms and in more casual situations, your maid's curtsy may simply be a quick bend of the knees and a bow of the head. In a formal, petticoated uniform, the sissy may grasp the hem of his dress and lift it slightly as he drops into a low, respectful curtsy. The more formal curtsy not only shows respect; when properly executed it can actually be rather pretty and add to the sophisticated, festive atmosphere of an evening cocktail party or dinner.

It's important to remember that you shouldn't in any way feel uncomfortable when

. . . you shouldn't in any way feel uncomfortable when your maid addresses you respectfully and curtseys to you.

your maid addresses you respectfully and curtseys to you. These actions are simply your due as his employer and social superior. You should learn to expect this respect and be so casual about it as to almost ignore it, (unless your maid forgets , that is!)

Any guests you invite to your home are to be treated by your maid with the same respect and consideration as you are. Girls will be addressed as "Miss" if they are single, and as "Mrs. ____" if they are married. Males, of course, will be addressed as "Sir." Your maid should even address teenaged girls and boys as "Miss" or "Sir," since a sissy maid is basically everyone's social inferior.

When guests are present, your sissy maid's job will be to make their stay as pleasant and leisurely as possible. Although his presence should be quiet and unobtrusive, he should be available to wait on everyone hand and foot. When guests drop by casually during the day, your maid may continue his normal housework and laundry duties. However, since the comfort and convenience of your guests takes precedence, the servant should be prepared to be interrupted frequently to fetch fresh drinks or run little errands.

times and drop everything to wait on them. He should be pleasant and obedient at all times -- even, for example, when serving unexpected guests might mean he'll have to stay up late finishing your ironing.

contribute to an overall impression of meekness, effeminacy, and ineffectual "gender neutral" sexuality. There is simply no need for a sissy maid to ever be argumentative or prideful. His "place" in the household is to be clearly defined -- and he should not overstep his position!

These are all obvious rules which help contribute to the overall elegance and ease in the mistress' household.

CONCLUSION

All these rules of etiquette are easily adhered to. There is nothing here that places any undo

In Fashion . . .

Classic dressing returns with a vengeance. You'll look like a real servant again this season; trim dress, white apron, and (sometimes) even a maid's cap!

Sissy fashion follows closely on the heels of women's fashion. And this year's classic, wearable styles for young women are having a direct impact on a sissy's wardrobe choices. For sissy maids especially, this return to the classic has had a dramatic impact. Black and white (always "in" for servants, of course) is one of the hottest "color" combinations. Where color is used, however, it is used thoughtfully and in more "pure" tones than in the recent past, (however, pastels are still used for sissies' clothes.)

The tailoring of this season's sissy fashions is strict while still being appropriately effeminate. Sleek, slim-waisted dresses team with pristine white aprons for an almost architectural look. Many uniforms for evening (and even a few for day) have full skirts that cry out for the support and fullness of crinoline petticoats. Surprisingly, short-shorts retain their popularity even in the face of cold weather by being transformed into the basis for indoor serving uniforms. These "short" uniforms are generally black and show off a sissy's shaved-smooth legs to best advantage, (not to mention his girlish little rear!)

What's not news is the continuing popularity of the romper. These overtly effeminate garments are "all the rage" among savvy employers, who are snapping them up in droves for their sissy servants to wear. Rompers now must be considered one of a sissy's most "basic" wardrobe selections -- they have essentially become one-piece, back-zip

"jumpsuits for the sissy set" - appropriate (in all their various styles) for housework, daytime serving, and even outside errand-running.

This season's evening uniforms for sissy maids are traditional without being old-fashioned. There is a "fashion forward" flair to today's designs that takes them away from purely "retro" appeal and solidly places them in the realm of "modern classics."

Grooming, hair, make-up, and accessories are matched and detailed almost to the point of prissiness now. Perfectly coiffed, manicured, petticoated, aproned, waist-cinched and accessorized sissy maids will be serving and curtsying at all of this season's best little dinner parties. And the "fashion police" will be punishing even the slightest signs of sloppiness or leftover "grunge" styling!

Make-up is more defined -- and more effeminate -- than ever. Lipstick (and lip gloss) tend toward richer pinks and almost "womanly" reds -- and nail color follows suit. For evening, faces are powdered and cheeks are brushed with blush. Hair is a little longer, and (for the sake of style) many sissies are frequently spending near-sleepless nights with their hair in curlers.

Sissy fashion is truly coming into its own. While still reflecting the latest styles for women, the best sissy clothes have their own "feel" and cut. Effeminate males (and especially effeminate male servants) now have clothing choices that are uniquely their own.

Here's some of the best . . . . .

The fashion forward look of a turned-up collar and low wrap neckline is matched with the traditional look of a classic maid's dress. Long sleeves are slightly puffed at the shoulders, ending in simple, trim white cuffs. The slim waist and fitted bodice are in keeping with all of today's trends. Adding evening drama is the jet black matte taffeta this dress is fashioned of.

The uniform's skirt is full and short -- just perfect for wearing over a nice crinoline petticoat! And the apron is scalloped white nylon taffeta, tied tightly about this sissy's cinched waist. Trim shoulder straps add detail and help frame the face.

Worn here with soft grey leather "booties" with short, lace-trimmed white anklets and a charcoal grey matte satin hair ribbon.

Come on -- Strike a pose! (Before humbly serving your mistress and her boyfriend their evening cocktails.)

Fashion Notes: Black taffeta surplice-top maid's dress and scalloped serving apron, both by "At Your Service." Maid's pink crinoline petticoat from "Sissy's Secret." Soft leather booties from Manillo Ballio. Matte hair ribbon from "The Finishing Touch." Powernet waist cincher from "In-Formed" foundations.

"These boots were made for walkin' . . ." and cleanin' and scrubbin' and runnin' errands, too! This season's fashion flashback to the mid-'60s is reflected in this mod little maid's dress teamed up with high white vinyl go-go boots.

Deep grey cotton/poly dress has a squared collar, short sleeves, and tight, mini-length skirt. Collar and cuffs are made of "space-age" shiny white vinyl -- to match the mess-proof white vinyl apron! Go-go boots have 2" high chunky heels and small side zippers.

This is just the uniform to wear while doing housework and listening to an "oldies" station on the stereo. Unfortunately, scrubbing floors and doing laundry is no more glamorous in 1995 than it was in 1965. But sissy maids have to make the best of it. At least in this uniform it might be a little bit fun.

Fashion Notes: Grey cotton/poly maid's dress with white vinyl collar and cuffs and matching white vinyl apron, both by "Domestic Designs." Vinyl go-go boots from "Step Lightly" footwear for sissies. Pink rubber housework gloves from "In the Pink." Maid's bucket from "Scrub Maid." UnderFashions: A pink nylon half-slip with scalloped hem from "Top Drawer", and pink nylon-lace bra and matching panties from "Sissy Pants" lingerie. Bra inserts and latex gaff, both from "Sissy's Secret."

For daytime housework, here's a uniform choice that is as practical as it is cute. Capri pants and crop top allow freedom of movement, and are comfortable to wear, even when doing hours and hours of housework. This little ensemble is also perfect for running errands in.

Pink knit/Lycra top has tiny cap sleeves and crew neck. (It also carries our logo!) The matching pants have a high waist with no waistband and capri-length legs. And they have the back-zipper closure that almost all sissy fashions have today. Can be worn with an apron, or (when mistress is away, at least) may be worn "as is."

Fashion Notes: Pink Lycra-blend crop top and matching rayon Capri pants, both from "Back-Zip" fashions for sissies. Patent leather slipper-shoes by "Sissy Sox." Sissy's gaff by Fashion Fantasy.

Cissie's Duties

EDITOR'S NOTE: A sissy maid's duties are never precisely the same from household to household. This is because every employer has her own particular needs and desires. And it is the employer's responsibility to make sure her unique wishes are known to the help right up front.

Niki Velocette, a friend of SMQ's Editor, kindly offered to allow us to tape a discussion she recently had with her new sissy maid where she outlined his duties and responsibilities. Her openness offered us the perfect opportunity to examine just what duties are expected of one of today's live-in sissy domestics.

The meeting took place in Mrs. Velocette's kitchen about two weeks after Cissie began his full-time employment. It is hoped this transcript may serve as an informal guide to other young women with newly-hired domestic help.

Cissie, come into the kitchen now. It's time for our meeting."

Mrs. V. "I thought I'd let you just work with us here for a week or two and settle in a bit before I explained your duties more specifically. But it's time now to fill you in on the details.

"It's good that you remembered your little book, Cissie, since you'll need to take notes. I'd like for you to get a good start and not forget any of the things I tell you this morning.

"First, I think you already know how I want you to address my husband and me. But I'll review it just to make sure.

"Of course, if you're speaking to Juan directly and answering his orders, you should always address him as 'Sir'."

---

"If you're referring to Juan in conversation with me, you'll call him "Mister Juan." And if you're speaking to friends we have in or a workman, "Mister Velocette" is good. Of course, if you're speaking to Juan directly and answering his orders, you should always address him as "Sir".

"You're to address me as "Ma'am". Or "Mrs. Velocette" if you are referring to me to my husband or to others. You're never to use "Niki", since a servant does not refer to his married employer by her first name.

"Any guests we have in are to be addressed respectfully as "Miss", "Ma'am", or "Sir"; or by their last names. An example of this is you might come to me and say, "Mr. and Mrs. Smith wish to see you in the living room, Ma'am."

"Is that all clear, Cissie?"

Cissie: "Yes, Ma'am."

Mrs. V. "Good."

"Now, as far as curtseying is concerned, we don't want to overdo it. But you should curtsey to us whenever we issue a specific order. In part your curtsey shows respect. But it will also serve as your acknowledgement of our order, letting us know you understand what it is we wish done.

---

"An example might be when Juan or I order you to go attend to the dishes or something."

---

"An example might be when Juan or I order you to go attend to the dishes or something. You should bob a nice, quick curtsey and say "Yes, Sir" or "Yes, Ma'am" in response to our order.

"We're kind of casual here, so you needn't curtsey when my husband or I simply enter a room you are in -- Okay?"

Cissie: "Yes, Ma'am -- I understand."

Mrs. V. "Oh -- one more thing about curtseying. You should curtsey to any guests we have over when greeting them at the door. It will help immediately set the social order between you and guests, and let them know you are at their service while they are in our home.

"All right. Now on to your duties. And after that I'll speak to you a little about what types of uniforms I'd like for you to wear -- and your days off and so forth. O.K.?"

Cissie: "Yes, Ma'am. I'm getting it all down so far."

Mrs. V. "Good. Let's get into your duties now.

"In general, you are here to do all our housework, all our laundry, and all of the serving. You'll also be cooking most of our meals, though my husband and I will cook ourselves when we're in the mood. You'll be cleaning up the kitchen all the time, however, even when we do our own cooking. Doing the dishes and scrubbing the pots and pans will be your job, regardless of who cooks.

You'll be cleaning up the kitchen all the time, however . .

"We mostly eat vegetarian things. I have some favorite recipes you'll have to learn. And a few vegetarian cookbooks you'll have to study.

"As far as your own meals, they will be your responsibility. You'll eat in the kitchen at times that are convenient for Juan and me. For instance, you'll have your breakfast on weekdays in mid-morning, after Juan and I have left for work. On the weekends you can have your breakfast early, before we get up. Lunch during the week will be no problem. But your dinner time should be early, so you can make sure you're done and have everything cleaned up before my husband or I arrive home.

"Any questions, Cissie?"

Cissie: "No, Ma'am"

Mrs. V. "Good. Let's move on to your duties now.

"First I'll tell you our schedules. Juan leaves for his studio most days about 8:30. But sometimes he might be working in his studio here, so he'll be in all day. I usually don't leave until about 10:00. And I stay at home on Fridays and just call into the office.

"On weekday mornings you must get up early and make sure our coffee is ready. This is very important, Cissie. If I hear Juan has to wait for his coffee, you'll have to answer to me! And if I get up and there's not a fresh, hot cup of coffee ready for me, you'll be in real trouble.

"We drink some unusual coffees, imported -- espresso; not just the standard stuff. You'll learn how we like each type brewed, of course.

"Besides our coffee, you'll also have to be prepared to make my husband breakfast if I don't decide to get up myself.

"Juan is pretty low-key, as you already know. So just stay out of his way. But if he needs your assistance, you're to do anything he wants done. Understand?"

Cissie: "Yes, Ma'am."

Mrs. V. "As for me, I usually get up a little later -- about 9:00. I'll call for you when I'm up, so you can come in the Master Bedroom. I'll let you know what to lay out for me to wear so you can get everything ready while I shower. And while I'm in the bathroom, you can make our bed too.

"I'll be dressing myself, but I don't want to have to search for things."

"I'll be dressing myself, but I don't want to have to search for things. You'll have to get everything ready for me and have it all laid out. Then you'll leave and get busy in the kitchen while I dress.

"The only time I'll want your help in dressing is if I'm going to be wearing something tight or complex. Mostly, that's only at night, though some of my day things might require a bit of your help sometimes.

"As far as housework, I think you know the routine there. I'm pretty particular, so you'll have to do a good job. The kitchen should be spotless at all times. And our bathroom, too, of course. You'll have to dust and vacuum every day. And remember that Tiny and Cutie (Ed. Note: The Velocette's two cats) make a mess with their shedding, so you'll have extra work to do.

"Any questions about the general housework, Cissie?"

. . . I'm really glad that you'll be the one on his knees hand buffing those long hallways from now on!

Cissie: "Yes, Ma'am. Will you want me to do the floors once a week -- or twice?"

Mrs. V. "Good question, Cissie. Because of the tile, you'll need to keep them clean. If anything is left on them too long, the tiles can stain. I used to do them myself, so I'm really glad that you'll be the one on his knees hand buffing those long hallways from now on! It's going to be great having you do all that kind of stuff for me.

"Anyway, Cissie, you'll get to know how I like the housework done. I can't cover all the details right now. But there is one important thing to remember. If you're doing anything messy or noisy or disruptive, you'll do it when we're out. I don't want to be annoyed by whining vacuums or wet floors or half-cleaned bathrooms. Or if it's something quiet like scrubbing the kitchen floor, you can get up early in the morning and attend to it while we're still in bed."

"That kind of heavy domestic work is something for servants to worry about . . ."

Cissie: "Yes, Ma'am. I understand. Miss Beth (Ed. Note: Cissie's former employer) had me do messy things while she was out."

Mrs. V. "Well, it just makes sense. That kind of heavy domestic work is something for servants to worry about, not someone like me!

"Now lets talk about the little animals a bit, Cissie. Tiny and Cutie are sort of like our kids, so I don't want you disturbing them. If they're napping, you be quiet and let them be. And if they want something to eat or need water or milk, you should stop your work and get it for them.

"Of course, there's the litter box to worry about. You should check it and clean it about three times a day -- in the morning, in the early afternoon, and again in the evening.

"And there's also Tiny's shedding problem. The only way to get the hair off the sofa and chairs is to take wide pieces of tape and go over everything with it. It will take you at least a half hour every day to do it, so leave time for it. And it has to be done every day, Cissie, so don't forget!"

Cissie: "That's sounds pretty tedious, Ma'am. Is there perhaps another way?"

"If doing these things was fun, we wouldn't be paying you to do them for us, would we?"

Mrs. V. "No, Cissie, there isn't. If doing these things was fun, we wouldn't be paying you to do them for us, would we?"

Cissie: "No, Ma'am --I guess not. I'm sorry."

Mrs. V. "Well, Cissie, working here isn't going to be a vacation. You're our maid, and being a maid isn't supposed to be glamorous. Cleaning up cat hair and running errands and doing menial things is what maids and servants are for, after all.

"Now if you don't mind, Cissie, let's get back on track here.

"As far as laundry goes, there's nothing really all that unusual about it. I have a lot of clothes -- and so does Juan. So you'll be spending a lot of your time in the laundry room.

understood, Cissie?"

Cissie: "Yes, Ma'am. I'll try to be neat."

"If I find our clothing put away sloppily, I will throw it all on the floor and make you do it over!"

---

Mrs. V. "Do more than try, Cissie -- just do it!"

"In addition to your housework chores, you'll also be serving as our informal secretary as well. You be organizing and preparing our bills for payment, opening any non-personal mail, and typing or writing out our correspondence for us. For letters, we'll either dictate directly to you or dictate to you on tape. You should study shorthand in your spare time, Cissie, so we can dictate to you rapidly. I'll see about getting you a book to learn from."

". . . you'll also be serving as our informal secretary as well."

---

"As part of your secretarial work, you'll be making sure all our magazine subscriptions are renewed on time, and at the lowest rate."

Cissie: "Yes, Ma'am."

Mrs. V. "O.K., Cissie. I feel like we're making some progress now."

"Outside errands will be another part of your duties. Both Juan and I are busy and don't need to be bothered running out to get little items or pick up dry-cleaning and things like that. You'll also be doing the grocery shopping, of course."

"Mostly, you'll shop for our groceries at Dean & DeLuca, but we have a few other special places where we'll send you for coffees and so forth."

"I'll give you a list of things we need all the time, Cissie. But just a few examples are things like stockings and personal items for me, razors and art supplies for Juan, and cigarettes and Johnny Walker Black for both of us. If we run out of any of these kinds of "stock" things, it's your fault, and you'll be sent out to get them -- no matter the hour or weather. Understand?"

Cissie: "Yes, Ma'am. I'll keep a list and check each morning to make sure it's all here for you."

Mrs. V. "Good. Oh -- and you'll also have to go and get out videos, and return them and get our videos, and return them for us too. I hate standing in line at that place. In fact, anytime we need something that requires standing in a long line -- like to get tickets or take care of some problem with the City -- you'll be standing in line for us. So, you better get some comfy shoes, Cissie!"

". . . anytime we need something that requires standing in a long line . . . you'll be standing in line for us."

---

Cissie: "Yes, Ma'am. My white tennis shoes are quite comfortable."

Mrs. V. "Now, Cissie, as far as more personal services, I have a few ideas now. And I'm sure more things will come up as we go along."

"First, I think you know that I like having a lot of candles lit around the place. I want you to tend to them for me -- put them out, light them, take care of them, clean up the wax drips and everything. I like a few lit as soon as I get home -- or even before I get home if you know I'm coming. And I like a bunch of them lit in the Master Bath, of course."

"I'll be doing my own hair and makeup. Though maybe some time in the future, if you get some training, you'll be helping me sometimes. But you will be doing my nails for me, Cissie. So if you need to practice your nail polishing, you should start practicing on your own nails right now so you won't mess mine up!"

Cissie: "I polished Miss Beth's nails for her, Ma'am, so I have some practice with it."

Mrs. V. "Good, Cissie. Maybe this evening I'll have you give me a pedicure after dinner and we'll see how it goes.

"I'll also need for you to clean and polish my jewelry -- especially my silver and gold things. I'll show you how to do it, and show you how to use the special brush I have to get bits of polish out of the little crevasses.

"Once the household is running smoothly and everything else is taken care of, I may teach you to rub my neck and give me an upper back massage now and then, since I get stiff necks now and then.

"You getting this all down, Cissie?"

Cissie: "Yes, Ma'am, I am. It sounds like I'll be pretty busy."

"As far as doing things for Juan, he'll let you know.

Mrs. V. "Yes, Cissie, you will be. Serving as our maid is going to take up a lot of time. You won't have much time for yourself, except for those times when Juan and I are away for a few days or something.

"As far as doing things for Juan, he'll let you know. But it will probably be things like getting art supplies and acting as sort of his little "assistant."

Cissie: "I'll try to help Mister Juan however I'm able to, Ma'am."

Mrs. V. "That's the right attitude, Cissie. And I like how you remembered the proper form of address."

---

"After all, I have better things to occupy my mind than all the little domestic details servants get involved with!"

"Anyway, Cissie, that's about it as far as the basics are concerned. I'm sure you'll have questions. And you can come to me in the evening and ask me about anything you're having trouble with. But try to figure simple things out on your own. After all, I have better things to occupy my mind than all the little domestic details servants get involved with!

"And don't ever ask Juan any silly domestic questions, Cissie. He needs to concentrate and relax while he's here -- not be bothered by the help!"

Cissie: "Yes, Ma'am. I understand."

Mrs. V. "I hope so, Cissie. I really do want us to get off to a good start. Beth gave you a very good recommendation, so I hope you can live up to it."

Cissie: "Yes, Ma'am"

Niki Velocette and her husband Juan. Now that Cissie works full time for them, their lives are easier. Menial household tasks are a "thing of the past" for this young couple. Having a maid gives them more time for career and artistic pursuits, as well as for enjoying each other.

Mrs. V. "Oh -- entertaining! I almost forgot! You'll be serving at our parties and helping us entertain, of course. and besides all the regular duties of a maid -- preparation, serving, and cleaning up -- I want you to take pictures and keep a record of our parties. Sometimes in the past we took picture where someone was not included since they had to be with the camera. But that shouldn't be a problem now, since you can be our little "camera girl."

But that shouldn't be a problem now, since you can be our little "camera girl."

---

"Do you know how to work a camera and take good pictures, Cissie?"

Cissie: "Yes, Ma'am. I have some experience in photography. I'll do my best."

Mrs. V. "Good! I know it sounds like a little thing, but we enjoy having people over and going a little crazy. And it's fun to have a record of it later.

"Now, let's talk a bit about your uniforms and days off and so forth, Cissie.

"As far as uniforms are concerned, the ones you have from your previous position will do for now. But we'll need to go shopping for a few new things sometime soon.

"Basically, just make sure you always in something proper for a servant.. And when you're on duty, Cissie, I want you to always have an apron on."

" . . . when you're on duty, Cissie, I want you to always have an apron on."

---

Cissie: "I pretty much always wore one at Miss Beth's, Ma'am -- so I'm used to them."

Mrs. V. "Good! I think it is only right that a servant wear a uniform and an apron. I don't really like that "California" thing, where people's servants go around the house in a T-shirt and jeans.

"Anyway, I do have a few ideas for nice serving uniforms, and some different things it would be fun to have you in.

"Basically, I will be deciding what you wear most days, Cissie; at least when I have time. You will always be dressed in clothing appropriate for a sissy, of course, since that's simply what you are. And you'll always be in something fitting for a servant, too, since you're one of those to!

"The rompers so many sissies are wearing now are cute, I think. And they seem to be practical for housework, too. Maybe some pink gingham ones.

And I think a nice little pair of pink satin short-shorts would be good. You'll have to get used to pulling your zipper up in back, Cissie -- that is, if you aren't already used to wearing back-zippered things!

"You'll have to get used to pulling your zipper up in back, Cissie . . ."

---

Cissie: "I had one pair of back-zipped pants at Miss Beth's, Miss -- though they weren't short-shorts."

Mrs. V. "Well, I'm sure you'll manage. Sissies seem to adapt well to effeminate clothing, as far as I can see."

"We'll have fun with it, Cissie. Maybe I'll even get you a nice, sleek little swimsuit for summer.

"Besides uniforms, I also have to mention the issue of privacy. Of course you know not to gossip or eavesdrop. And I'm sure you realize that my husband and I will need our privacy in the bedroom.

"But we'll get into all that later. Come help me get ready, Cissie. And then you really should get busy with your housework. You have a lot to do today before you start our dinner. Right now, I'm meeting Juan for lunch, and I don't want to be late.

Cissie: "Yes, Ma'am."

(Sound of chairs being pushed back as Mrs. Velocette and her new maid conclude their meeting and leave the kitchen.)

Harem Scarem! Need a maid to grant your every wish? Well, here's a fun way to dress a little sissy "Genie". This is a unique (and daring) "uniform" for the sissy (or sissies) in your personal "harem." Sheer chiffon harem pants with drawstring waist and tight elastic ankle bands barely covers bare legs and cute satin panties. Bra top and various baubles and bells finish this exotic look. (Sheer chiffon apron is included with ensemble -- removed here to show detail of pants.)

Have your maid dress in this unusual uniform for a little daytime dusting and straightening up. Or perhaps your girlfriends would think it fun to have a cute little "slavegirl" serve them tea on Sunday afternoon?

Fashion Notes: Sheer chiffon blue-tint harem pants (with matching chiffon apron) from "A Sissy's Work." Smooth satin baby-blue bikini panty and satin bra top, both from "Sissy Pants" lingerie. Sissy's gaff from "UnderGear". Chain necklace and metallic "slave" bracelets, by David Roberts for The Hardware Store, Santa Monica. Tiny metallic "bell" earrings by "Accessories R Us."

"Before you get back to your dusting, peel me a grape, sissy!"

Housework is still what occupies most of a sissy maid's time -- hours and hours of housework, day after day. This routine is only broken up by hours of laundry and ironing. Of course, there is cooking and serving and errand-running thrown in, but during the day at least, it's housework, housework, and more housework!

With this being the case, it's important for you to have comfortable, practical uniforms to wear while doing all that housework. And here is an excellent example of what is becoming a "standard" day uniform for sissy maids -- a cotton-Poly dress with short, semi-puffed sleeves. White notched collar and banded cuffs firmly tag it as "maid's wear", while the moderately short skirt adds a bit of fun and lots of freedom of movement.

This is the kind of uniform you'll wear day in and day out, with the only real variation being color. Here, it is shown in Navy, but this same uniform is available in black, charcoal, sky grey, "hospital" green, and pastel pink. This style is also offered with long sleeves, though only in Navy and black.

You should have at least six of this style "day" uniform in your closet; if you don't, have a talk with your employer!

Just by switching from a white nylon apron (as shown here) to a starched linen pinafore to a full-cut rubber "bib" apron, this uniform can take you from dusting and straightening up to baking in the kitchen to scrubbing floors and cleaning the Master Bath.

Isn't versatility wonderful?

Fashion Notes: Cotton/Poly button-front maid's dress with notch collar, designed by D. Rose for Domestic Designs. Scalloped edge white nylon apron, also by Domestic Designs. Pastel pink rubber housework gloves from "ScrubMaid." Navy sateen hair ribbon by "Sissy's Solutions, Inc."

Everyone hates ironing; it's hot, it's tedious, and it's boring. But that's precisely why so many employers just love turning this dull chore over to their sissy maids!

This sissy is toiling over his mistress' pink silk blouse. It has to be "just right" for a luncheon she's attending tomorrow. But at least our little dear is nicely dressed in an elegant black taffeta evening uniform.

You see, he served his mistress and her boyfriend dinner earlier this evening. They're asleep, (or whatever!) in the Master Bedroom now. But busy little sissy maids often have to stay up late and finish their work!

The romper has quickly become one of a sissy maid's most worn and most versatile wardrobe choices. Rompers began appearing on the runway at the ready-to-wear sissy's fashion shows only a year or two ago. But already it would be hard to find a sissy who doesn't have a romper (or two) hanging in the Maid's Room closet. In fact, rompers have become so identified with sissy fashion that rompers styled for young women have almost completely disappeared, (which is a shame, really.)

For sissy maids, however, it is hard to beat these one-piece wonders for practicality and day-to-day style. Rompers generally zip or button up in back -- just step in, pull them up over your panties and bra, slip your arms through the sleeves, and reach back and zip (or button) up! No slip, no petticoats, and (usually) no waist cincher is needed. Many sissies opt to wear their rompers over bare legs, so even the bother of pantyhose is dispensed with! And while sissies are always gaffed anyway, many rompers' "bloomer" bottoms are so voluminous that such "little tricks" are hardly needed.

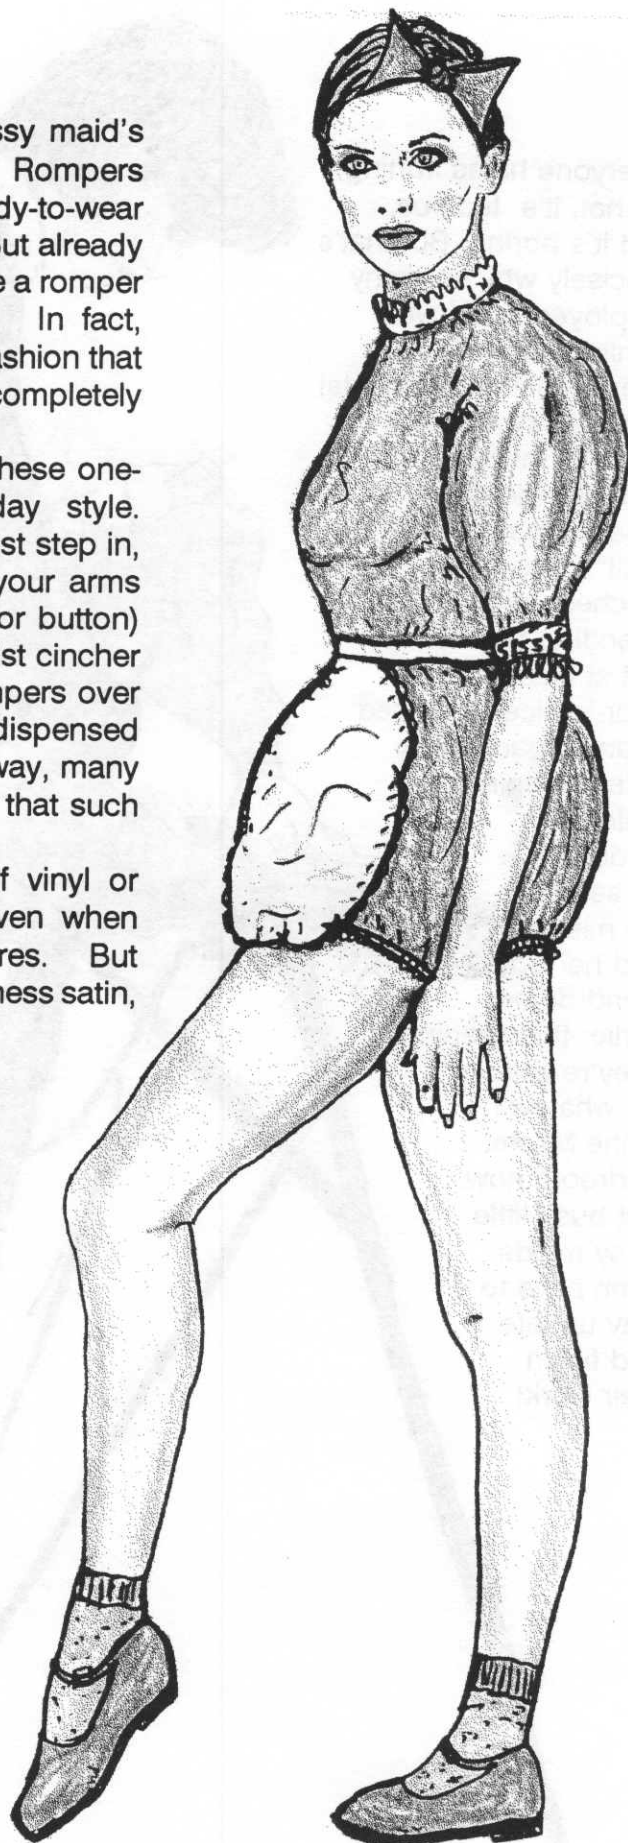

Most of today's sissy rompers are made of vinyl or rubber, and offer "sponge-off" convenience even when dealing with the messiest of household chores. But "dressier" versions are now being tailored of duchess satin, stiff rayon taffeta, and pleated linen.

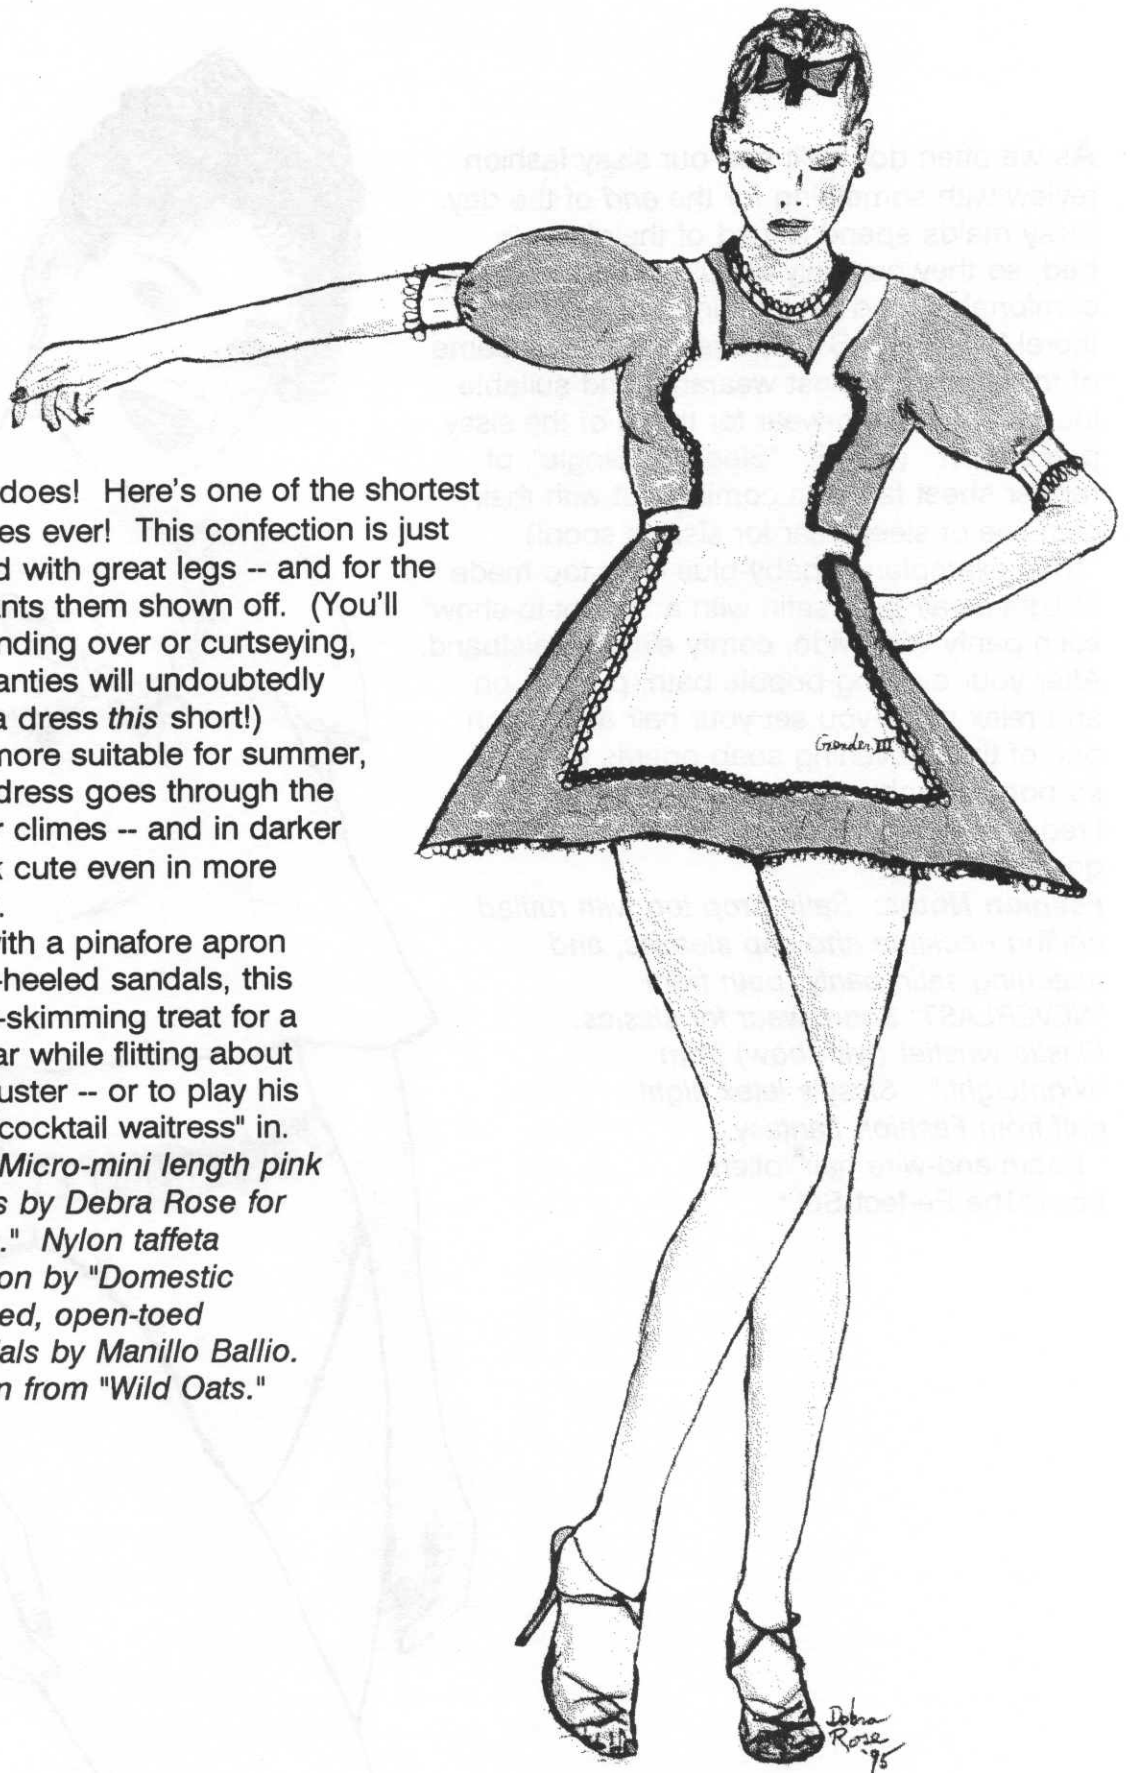

Some employers are even beginning to send their sissy maids out on errands dressed in plainer styles of rompers in rubberized cotton/Poly blends. For such forays in public, the elastic waist defines the waist in place of an apron.

Here's one of the better romper styles for this season -- eminently practical for housework and suitably (and amusingly) effeminate and juvenile in style for serving at casual tea parties or luncheons.

Fashion Notes: Bloomer-bottom pink rubber rompers, with balloon sleeves, high stiff vinyl collar and back-zip closure, from "Maid to Order." Frosted vinyl work apron from "A Sissy's Work." Pink "patent" (actually plastic) hair bow custom designed by D. Rose for the SMQ Photo Dept.

Short is as short does! Here's one of the shortest little maid's dresses ever! This confection is just made for the maid with great legs -- and for the employer who wants them shown off. (You'll have to watch bending over or curtsying, however. Your panties will undoubtedly be on display in a dress this short!)

While perhaps more suitable for summer, this little uniform dress goes through the season in warmer climes -- and in darker colors would look cute even in more northern latitudes.

Matched here with a pinafore apron and strappy high-heeled sandals, this is a breezy, thigh-skimming treat for a sissy maid to wear while flitting about with his feather duster -- or to play his recurring role of "cocktail waitress" in.

As we often do, we'll end our sissy fashion review with something for the end of the day. Sissy maids spend a third of their lives in bed, so they certainly should have some fun, comfortable, and pretty things to wear while there! "NEVERLAST" Sportswear makes some of this season's most wearable and suitable lounge- and sleep-wear for those of the sissy persuasion. (NOTE: "Sleeping Single", of rubber sheet fame, is coming out with their own line of sleepwear for sissies soon!)

This example: A baby-blue crop top made of light-as-air poly satin with a "meant-to-show" satin panty with wide, comfy elastic waistband. After your evening bubble bath, put this on and relax while you set your hair and watch one of those evening soap operas that are so popular right now. Then slide your tired self between your rubber sheets and get some sleep!

Report from The Academy

BY SISSY BOBBI

Sissy Bobbi corresponds with us from The Academy. His first-hand accounts of what it is like to be at "Sissy School" should be of interest to Academy alumni and non-alumni alike. Every year, more and more sissy males are being sent off to learn to be good servants and maids, so the SMQ editorial staff decided it would be a good idea to have something written by someone who's "on site" at one of the top schools.

Here's Sissy Bobbi's report -- uncensored by us.

I am a bit of a celebrity here at school now, due to the fact that most of the students read my first installment of "Report from The Academy" in the last issue of Sissy Maid Quarterly. We all read the magazine here, since it is still the only publication that really deals with our lives as sissies and as prospective maids.

Some of my friends here kid me. Sometimes I'll walk into the dorm TV room and all of them will suddenly stop talking and say, "Shhhhh. The columnist is here!" But they're mostly just kidding, and still include me in their conversations, (at least I think they do!)

I am writing this report in the spring, though you will likely be reading this in the summer. I am mostly through my first year here. While some my classmates will be graduating in June, I will be staying on for "post-graduate" work next year. Miss Marie, my employer, wants me to be what she terms "the perfect servant." I don't know if I'll ever be perfect, though. That's a tall order to fulfill.

Continuing courses of hormones, figure training, beauty treatments, and just being here with all the other students have all turned me into quite the little sissy. But I have begun to accept that I now outwardly appear and act as I guess I've always felt inside. In some ways I m nervous about the changes, and unhappy they have happened. But most of the time I am probably happier

---

... I have begun to accept that I now appear and act as I guess I've always felt inside.

than I was trying to fool everyone (including myself) by acting boyish.

The clothes are fun, actually. Though I would have had a hard time saying that so openly in the past. Our uniforms are now wool grey plaid jumpers with pleated skirts instead of the jumpers with cuffed shorts we started out with. The blouses are similar, though we fortunately had sweaters and Navy blazers to wear this past winter.

Thank God for opaque tights! They are the only thing that saved my legs from icy blasts of wind as I'd walked to classes last winter! Tights (with a skirt) is still colder on the legs than pants; but long pants are simply not an option for us, obviously.

... but long pants are simply not an option for us, obviously.

I got a new pair of short-shorts from Miss Marie in the mail a few weeks ago. She put in a note that simply said, "Think Spring!"

The short-shorts are a stretchy pink satiny material, and are very short. And, like most of my other clothes, they zip up in back, instead of in the front.

. . . like most of my other clothes, they zip up in back, instead of in the front.

It took a bit of getting used to twisting around and pulling up the zipper, especially since the shorts are pretty tight. But now I can do it in a wink without even looking!

Hard to believe, but the back-zipper design really does seem to make more sense for sissies. After all, we don't use a "fly" for anything, of course.

Hard to believe, but the back-zipper design really does seem to make more sense for sissies.

I've been thinking about it, and have come up with several reasons why the back zipper is preferable, beyond the obvious fashion advantage of providing the shorts with a clean-looking, smooth and uncluttered front. First, it is actually easier (once you're in practice) to dress in shorts with a back zipper. This is because the zipper is shorter than a front one and the unzipped shorts stay on your hips until you reach back and zip them up. And second, it makes considerably more sense in the powder room to have back zippered shorts (or skirts) on. Since the front of the shorts isn't "unzipped", they drape across your thighs better when you are sitting. Shorts that have some big, long zipper in the front can hang down so far they drag the bathroom floor!

Of course, men would find a back zipper quite impractical. It is obviously a design that is geared for those who sit instead of stand. And there is nothing very "macho" about reaching back and unzipping the rear of your short-shorts, (or getting your panty-bottoms caught in the zipper, which I have done!) After all, it is admittedly a very girlish (or sissyish?) thing to do.

There is nothing very "Macho" about reaching back and unzipping the rear of your short-shorts . . .

So, these are the "big issues" I think about when not studying or going to class or working on my figure. Not only have I turned into a sissy -- I guess I've become an "airhead", too! Soon, I'll be writing long dissertations on "Barbie's Great Fashion Sense" or something like that!

As for classes, I guess I should at least make an attempt to tell you about them. The first thing you should know is that they are difficult. I know that might surprise you, but it's true. Our cooking class is like learning to be a chef, (though a personal one instead of a commercial one.) Our laundry class is so technical sometimes I wish I had a chemistry degree! And the tiny, weird little details of Etiquette drive me nuts sometimes.

. . . the tiny, weird little details of Etiquette drive me nuts sometimes.

But while I find the classes difficult, I like the challenge of them. It would be boring to sit there in class in those little desks and learn nothing new, or nothing difficult.

It really sunk in about halfway through last semester that The Academy is really, truly, going to teach us to be maids! For some odd reason I took all the "maid and servant" part of my new life casually, while the "sissy" part seemed very important.

. . . the real goal for them is to teach us to be good little maids and servants.

---

But it is obvious that The Academy (and our employers, perhaps) see the "sissy" part as a done deal. So the real goal for them is to teach us to be good little maids and servants.

I have learned more about fabric care and laundry than I thought existed. I've practiced ironing until I'm sick of it. And I've cooked meals and pretend-served them under the watchful eye of my "Kitchen Skills" instructor.

I've practiced ironing until I'm sick of it.

I've also cleaned a bathroom so it passed the very demanding inspection of my "Basic Housework" instructor.

It is my guess, however, that being Miss Marie's maid will not be as difficult as what I am doing here at The Academy. But that is the point. We will be able to handle whatever our employers throw at us when we leave here because we have faced most of it already.

While I like most of my classes, it can still get a little boring and tedious sitting in a little desk all day. With our new skirted uniforms, I sometimes find myself cooling my bottom on the smooth wood of my desk by strategically swishing up the back of my skirt.

This means my bottom, clad only in thin Lycra tights and the tiny satin bikini panties I wear, is directly on the cool wood.

This means my bottom, clad only in thin Lycra tights and the tiny satin bikini panties I wear, is directly on the cool wood. After sitting on the sometimes itchy, overly-warm wool of my jumper skirt, it is refreshing. I wonder if girls do this to?

Wearing a skirt all the time makes one very conscious of your actions. You must worry about sudden breezes blowing your skirt so high your panties show. And you have to be careful how you walk and sit. It is a bother sometimes. But other times it is an interesting distraction.

Like the other students here, I have learned to take smaller, less ambitious steps. And while I used to be known for taking two steps at a time, I now carefully take only one at a time.

With the 3" high-heeled "Mary Janes" we now must wear, my walk has changed in other ways, too. There is a certain "wobble" to my hips and bottom that I can feel. And this wobble makes my skirt swing back and forth.

There is a certain "wobble" to my hips and bottom that I can feel.

An Academy student puts his hair up in curlers before going to bed. In the dorms, a lot of students now dress in little outfits like this sissy's cute abbreviated top, panties, and anklets, all in baby blue. Dorm room bedsheets by Rubber-Tex.

I guess you might call my walk "mincing", if you wanted to play up the sissy aspect. But even without any exaggeration I must admit that it is effeminate to say the least.

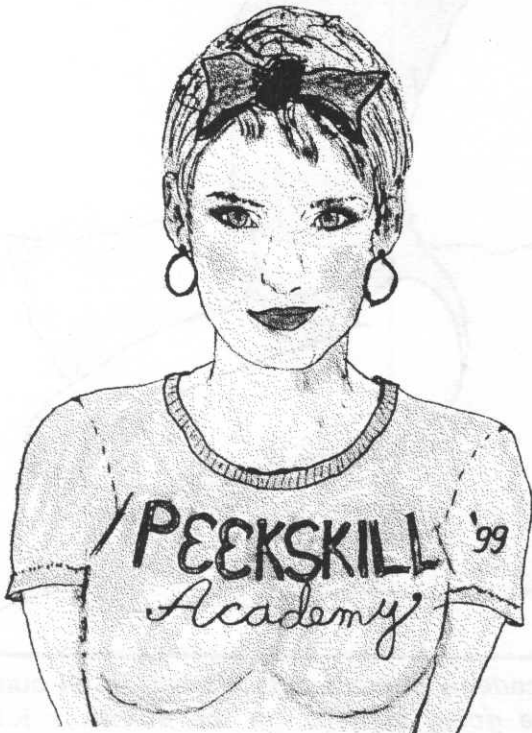

But I'm used to it -- and somehow think I look "cute", rather than feeling humiliated about it in any way. Likely, part of the reason I am not bothered by all this is that I now live

. . . I now live in an unusual world, where every "male" I see . . . is as "sissy" as I am!

in an unusual world, where every "male" I see (other than a few maintenance guys and the instructor's visiting boyfriends) is as "sissy" as I am!

Being in a whole "pack" of sissies is an unusual experience. I never knew there were that many of "us", frankly. But here at The Academy there are hundreds of sissies, all being openly trained to be domestic servants and maids. There are hundreds of single beds

A sissy models one of The Academy's cute T-shirts, available for sale in the bookstore. Of course the only color choice is pastel pink!

---

. . . here at The Academy there are hundreds of sissies, all being openly trained . . .

outfitted with rubber sheets, hundreds of dresser drawers filled with sissy's panties, training bras, and gaffs, and dozens of sit-down stalls in the rest rooms -- with not a urinal in sight.

Day to day, there are really only two genders here at school -- the female instructors who teach us, and the sissy students. There really aren't any males here, (until someone comes to pick up his date, at least) and that makes it strange. Sort of like being at a girl's school, I guess.

As I have mentioned before, there is a total lack of sexual tension between us students and the young women who teach us. And most of us are pretty used to that now. For instance, while I still may glance at a pretty instructor's legs in a short skirt or appreciate my swimming instructor's figure in her sleek swimsuit, it's not "sexual" really.

I guess part of the reason for this is the fact that I (like most other students) now accept that it is impossible I will ever be physically involved with any of these young women. And the instructors, of course, are in no way "attracted" to us -- or indeed feel "threatened" in any way by us.

. . . I (like most other students) now accept the fact that it is impossible I will ever be physically involved with any of these young women.

While the doses of hormones I take have not (so far) made me completely impotent, it is as if I am totally impotent in the eyes of the young women who instruct me. If one of us ever tried to make a "pass" at an instructor, she would just think it was the silliest thing on earth. I don't even think the response would be outrage -- rather, it would be uncontrollable laughter and complete puzzlement. It is very clear now that we are simply not seen as sexual beings by the instructors. Oh, they know we "play with ourselves" at night in our little beds, (hence the rubber sheets, of course.) But we are seen as being harmless and, at best, mildly "cute."

In light of all this, I have just been trying recently to concentrate of my studies. There is more to being a good maid than I thought. But (other than those few tricky technicalities concerning laundry) it is not all that complex. Mostly it is just endless details.

An Academy student experiences a bit of frustration as he attempts to dress for a nice Spring morning. The zipper of his tight short-shorts has gotten caught in the waistband of his lace panties!

I now feel some pride when I have pressed some complicated piece of clothing to my instructor's satisfaction -- or successfully baked a nice cake. In a sense I am slowly being turned into "Suzy Homemaker", which I guess is the point of all this.

I pay attention in class, and do not misbehave. I received a number of spankings last Fall semester -- and a few this past winter. But I only get a rare spanking now, because I have "learned my lesson." I shut up in class, and I always do as I'm told. There is little sense in questioning our instructors or disobeying them. They are in control here (as our employer's will be in control when we are back home) and it is silly to pretend otherwise.

The hormones I take might account for part of my increasingly meek and obedient nature. But I think it is more than just chemical -- it is social, too. When it is made clear that every time to talk in class, act disrespectful, or don't obey you are quickly spanked and punished, you eventually learn to "take the easy way" and just do as you're told.

. . . you eventually learn to "take the easy way" and just do as you're told.

And speaking of hormones, they have changed me in subtle and not-so-subtle ways over the past few months. The Academy only believes in giving us light doses, so it all takes time. But day after day, week after week they have an effect. My skin is softer, my breasts are fleshy mounds, my hips seem a touch fuller and curvier, and my voice is higher.

It is hard to determine what changes are entirely due to the hormones and what are due to bubble baths, lotions, the special exercises we do in Phys. Ed., and all the rest.

Well, that's it 'till next time. Good luck with your housework! Sissy Bobbi ✕

A Miss Susan Thomas sent us a letter a few months ago that we found interesting. Miss Thomas told us how her sissy maid, Bobbie, had felt sad about not dating.

"Bobbie was helping me get ready for a date on a Saturday evening, and looking over my shoulder as I put on my make-up. He suddenly looked a little sad as I glanced at him in the mirror. I asked him what was wrong, and he said, "I wish I had a date sometime, Miss."

"Well, it was all I could do to not laugh. After all, who's going to be interested in dating a sissy -- and especially one who is just a servant. I smiled and said, 'I have a date for you, Bobbie.' He looked puzzled for a second. Then I said 'a date doing my laundry, that is!'"

Well, Miss Thomas' letter gave us an idea. What, exactly, do most sissy maids do on Friday and Saturday nights? They stay at home, of course, and do their employer's housework or laundry -- or perhaps run a few errands for her while she's out on her own date!

---

What, exactly, do sissy maids do on Friday and Saturday nights?

Sissy maids are "homebodies" -- even on weekend nights. Being a homebody makes a sissy maid more useful to his mistress -- he's always there when she needs him to do something for her.

We wondered just what a typical sissy maid's weekend nights would look like. So, we conducted an informal survey and found out just what several busy little sissies do while the rest of the world dates. From this survey, we compiled the following "Sissy Maid's Datebook" for an entire month of weekend evenings.

FRIDAY NIGHT, JUNE 1:

While his employer is out at a business cocktail party, maid's "date" includes shampooing the living room carpet, cleaning the Maid's Room, and ironing his employer's pleated tennis skirt. Then he goes to bed early, after a tough week of housework.

SATURDAY NIGHT, JUNE 2:

After getting his employer ready for her date, the sissy puts a coat of wax on the kitchen floor, cleans out the refrigerator, changes his employer's bedsheets, and spends an hour or two hand-laundering his mistress' lingerie, swimwear, pantyhose, and other delicacies.

FRIDAY NIGHT, JUNE 9:

Serves a casual dinner to his employer, then helps her get dressed for a "night on the town". After she leaves, he attends to the dishes, sews a button on one of his employer's silk blouses, and bakes a cake. (His employer needs a home-baked cake to take to a Saturday afternoon housewarming.) The sissy "caps off" his exciting evening by cleaning the Master Bath!

SATURDAY NIGHT, JUNE 10:

A sissy's nightmare: his employer's boyfriend has been invited for dinner! (And the boyfriend will be having an all-night "dessert" later in the Master Bedroom!) The maid spends his evening cooking, serving, clearing the table, and standing at the kitchen sink washing and scrubbing the dishes, and the mountains of greasy pots and pans he used to cook the couple's gourmet dinner.

The little servant is interrupted to wait on the increasingly-amorous couple. After he has turned down his employer's bed and laid out something sexy for her to wear, he is dismissed and sent to the Maid's Room early so he'll be "out of the way", and won't be an annoying little pest!

... he is dismissed and sent to the Maid's Room early so he'll be "out of the way" ...

FRIDAY NIGHT, JUNE 16:

A wealthy young woman's sissy maid spends his evening waiting on his employer and her friends at a "girl's only" get-together. He's in his nicest black taffeta uniform, and is on his best behavior. Even so, he drops a tray full of drinks in the kitchen, causing an awful racket. For his misdeed, he is soundly spanked. His employer's friends are amused at seeing the meek servant get his "just desserts." After his spanking, the servant apologizes to the guests, cleans up the mess he's made, and spends the rest of the evening waiting on his mistress and her girlfriends, (albeit with a sore bottom!)

SATURDAY NIGHT, JUNE 17:

A sissy maid stays at home with his employer, who is not feeling well. He waits on her, and is sent out to run several errands. The clerks at the local drugstore, video place, and grocery store all know he is a servant, and ask about his employer's health.

FRIDAY NIGHT, JUNE 23:

Laundry, laundry, and more laundry! A busy maid spends his Friday evening in the laundry room, catching up on chores he's been too busy for during the week. His employer is out at a reception with her latest "squeeze," and probably won't be home 'til quite late.

The maid puts in load after load of carefully-sorted laundry, and carefully folds everything as it emerges from the dryer. While the machines run, the servant rinses out his employer's delicate lingerie and sleepwear by hand. Finally it's all done, and our busy maid falls into his little rubber-sheeted single bed, exhausted by 11:00!

SATURDAY NIGHT, JUNE 24:

A young model spends a rare quiet evening at home with her often-traveling boyfriend. Her sissy maid attends to any and all menial tasks -- cooking and serving their dinner, washing the dishes, and running little errands for them throughout the evening.

The sissy, dressed in pink satin back-zip short-shorts, a tiny pink knit top, little sandals, and a white organza apron, flits about quietly. The boyfriend comments that he's never seen anyone so "sissy" in his life. The model has selected her servant's "uniform" specifically to show off his innate sissiness.

FRIDAY NIGHT, JUNE 30:

While the couple he works for is out for dinner and to see the latest "blockbuster" movie, a quiet sissy maid spends yet another evening at home. His girlish hair up in curlers, the sissy mends his mistress' silk suit jacket while he watches TV in the Maid's Room. Before calling it a night, he turns down the bed in the Master Bedroom.

Our little servant then dresses in a white satin sleepshirt and matching polka-dotted panties. Like many sissy maids do on lonely weekend nights, he plays with himself quickly in his single bed, and then blissfully falls asleep after a long day of housework. Of course, the pink rubber sheets on his little bed prevent any spotting problems -- which is good, since he has enough laundry to do already!

Special Uniforms

This issue we're going delve into the fun and the frivolous -- we're going to take a quick look at special uniform designs. Specialized maid's wear can be fun for the sissy maid, as well as his mistress, and will add flair and fashion to the daily grind of housework, laundry, and serving.

Out-of-the-ordinary maid's uniforms can be designed to complement the specific occasion the maid is serving at. In addition, uniforms with a different look help relieve the boredom many sissies feel at having to wear the same style uniform day after day. In addition, many special uniform designs are imminently practical, and most sissy maids have almost as much fun wearing them as their employers have thinking them up!

Of course, a sissy maid serves his employer in many ways and in many situations. And the standard dark colored day uniforms and black linen evening uniforms, as tried and true as they are, simply won't do for certain situations. Therefore, the possibilities for designing special maid's uniforms are as endless as the services a maid is expected to provide. This article will attempt to outline just a few of the possibilities. But don't let your own creativity be stifled. Feel free to come up with your very own designs -- it's fun!

A "pool maid" dressed in his uniform of a sleek, high-cut Lycra maillot and small nylon serving apron. White satin bows at shoulders and at one wrist add delightful detail.

Pool Service

If you're lucky enough to have a maid and a private pool, a darling uniform can be worn by your servant as he serves at pool parties or those marathon tanning sessions you have your girlfriends over for. He simply wears a very tight-fitting black maillot with a low, rounded neckline and a low, scooped back. A small, rounded scalloped nylon apron is tied firmly about his waist, of course. (These little aprons are sometimes referred to as "cocktail" aprons.)

For shoes, he'll wear high-heeled white leather pumps with spike heels. A white satin ribbon, tied in a cute bow on one wrist makes an adorable accent.

For this charming "uniform", it helps if your maid has long, shapely legs that are tanned and oiled. It's precious to have your sissy wear a suit that's so high-cut and skimpy that he has to constantly pull down the rear with his fingers so it doesn't ride up. It's surprising to see how quickly sissies pick up this girlish maneuver -- and it's fun for women to see a male maid have to struggle with a problem girls have had for years with tight, high-cut swimwear!

Old Fashioned, But Fun

Another special uniform that can be cute is the long, sleek "hobble" dress. This is a very tight uniform designed like a sexy sheath. It's longer length and constricted hem effectively restrict a maid's gait to a tiny, mincing step. But such a mincing gait is entirely appropriate for a sissy, and forces him to wiggle his hips back and forth in a distinctly non-masculine "swishy" fashion.

BELOW: A sissy maid all dressed up in his long, snug "hobble dress" uniform. While somewhat old-fashioned, such uniforms add a definite elegance to casual service -- and are the perfect thing for having your maid serve tea in.

A squared taffeta or satin apron is worn, often with the charming variation of having shoulder straps without a bib.

While somewhat old-fashioned, a hobble dress can be the perfect uniform for serving tea to mistress and her girlfriends.

While somewhat old-fashioned, a hobble dress can be the perfect uniform for serving tea to mistress and her girlfriends. It adds a touch of elegance and charm a standard day uniform lacks. Of course, due to the very restrictive long skirt, it isn't the most practical outfit for housework.

The sheath-like hobble dress hugs the bottom like a second skin, making panty lines a concern. Sheer-to-the-waist pantyhose easily solves this problem, but since many women think visible panty lines are kind of cute on sissies, they often don't bother. Many employers even have their sissies wear small bikini panties with tight, obvious elastic under their bottom-hugging sheaths. As the maid serves cocktails in his hobble dress, mistress' girlfriends get a kick out of teasing the little sissy about his very visible panty lines. Women who have ever been embarrassed by this problem seem to enjoy a little "pay back!"

. . . mistress' girlfriends get a kick out of teasing the little sissy about his very visible panty-lines!

It's Bath Time!

For helping in your bath or performing any excessively wet task, a rubber rompers or a little rubber maid's dress are a very nice idea. Not only is a glossy little rubber outfit practical, it's fashionable as well. After all, latex minis and bustiers are now worn by hip young women to late-night clubs from coast to coast.

While pastel pink is probably the most versatile color choice, powder blue or white are other possible choices. Imagine your little sissy in a cute pink rubber uniform and apron helping you in your bath. You can splash him and have fun without having to worry about getting him wet -- your bubble bath will just roll right off his practical rubber rompers!

And what could be more perfect for such wet, messy jobs as scrubbing floors or cleaning the bathrooms? You maid can really get into such unpleasant tasks and not have to think about keeping his uniform clean. Even if something happens, a rubber uniform can usually be sponged clean without even taking it off!

. . . what could be more perfect for such wet, messy jobs as scrubbing floors and cleaning the bathrooms?

Rubber uniforms are really just an extension of the rubber and vinyl aprons maids have donned for years. A lot of a sissy's domestic assignments are messy and wet, and waterproof, stainproof clothing is both practical and suitable for such busy little servants.

A few sissies might think such overtly "domestic" and practical clothing is demeaning to them -- but it really isn't. After all, they're servants, and it should be expected that they are properly and practically dressed for their domestic responsibilities, as menial as they may be.

While breezy rubber dresses were the "rage" a few years ago, most employers prefer the look and practicality of one-piece, back-zippered rompers now. Cute pink rubber rompers, with bloomer-style bottoms, have a very "sissy" style. And rompers have a gender-neutral, asexual ambiance that is perfectly fitting for sissies.

. . . gives new meaning to the name "Rubbermaid", doesn't it?

So for bath time, or anytime, get your sissy servant a rubber uniform or two. Kind of gives new meaning to the name "Rubbermaid," doesn't it?

Rubber rompers like those above are practical for sissies with lots of messy, wet housework to do, (or when helping their mistress at bath time!) With their elastic-legged, bloomer bottoms and puffed sleeves, back-zip rubber rompers like these are the epitome of gender-neutral fashion -- and are about as "sissy" as it gets!

Harem Scare'm

Another "special" uniform option that has become popular recently (see this issue's "In Fashion" section, Page 21) is the "harem" outfit. Just like in that old TV sitcom, sissy maids are here to grant us domestic wishes and wait on us hand and foot. So why shouldn't the little dears occasionally be "dressed the part?"

These middle-eastern-inspired uniforms consist of filmy, see-through "harem pants" with drawstring waists and ankles, worn over sleek satin bikini panties. A bra top, which matches the panties, is worn by itself or with the addition of a small "bed jacket" or bolero.

No apron is usually worn with these uniforms, as it would ruin the look, and would also help hide the sissy's cute panties, which are intended to show in this case. Of course, the sissy should be tightly gaffed under his panties in such a "revealing" outfit.

This "harem girl" look is fun for casual parties or even for light housework. The addition of accessories such as metallic "slave" bracelets and other baubles adds to the exotic appeal of the "harem" uniform. Of course, your little sissy has duties more like that of a "errand girl" than that of a harem girl!

Conclusion

Although the classic "collared and cuffed" look is great most of the time, don't be afraid to experiment with your sissy maid's uniforming. After all, it's up to you r whether his uniform of the day is oh-so-practical or oh-so-amusing.

If a new maid's uniform seems practical for a specific task -- or is fun to wear or cute to look at, try it! Use the suggestions here as a spring-board. If you have any good ideas yourself, please write me, in care of Sissy Maid Quarterly. Debra # the Employer's Side...

From time to time, SMQ interviews employers to get their side of the story. This issue we have a brief discussion with Miss Katherine Pantone, a young woman of means who believes sissy servants are the "servants of the future."

Miss Katherine Pantone is a young woman who means what she says. She has a forthright manner and confident ease that makes one pay attention to her words -- and her predictions. And one of this pretty girl's predictions is that sissy servants are just now coming into their own.

Katherine believes that sissies out running errands or serving at home with an apron tied about their slim little waist will be a "very common sight" relatively soon.

We spoke with her in her luxurious Minneapolis apartment. Her maid (a sissy male, of course) attended to us, though he was obviously also very busy with all his daily housework and laundry chores.

SMQ: "Thanks for speaking with us. SMQ readers like to hear what others have to say about sissy-male-based domestic service."

MISS K: "Well, Jamie (Katherine's sissy maid) reads every issue cover to cover. I buy SMQ for him, since it is the only "professional journal" for sissies in domestic service. And I read it too."

SMQ: "Quite a few employers read SMQ, and tons of sissies do, of course. They like to compare someone else's boss to their own, we think."

"Anyway, Katherine, we'd like your thoughts on the future of sissy-male-based domestic service. You've already told us that you think sissies are the "servants of the future". What exactly did you mean by that?"

MISS K: "Well, I really think there will be more and more women who hire sissies to be their servants. There are both social and economic reasons for this. First, I think everyone accepts that there are such things as "sissies." Obviously, as every girl of dating age or older knows, there are quite a few accepting, effeminate males out there. Many of us had some meek guy as a friend when we were in high school -- sexually uninteresting, but usually very helpful and compliant.

"Also, with our changing economy, there is a wider gap between the professional class and most other people. And young women are now well represented in the professional class. So there are going to be more and more young women who can afford to hire someone to do their housework for them. And more and more sissies will be in need of any kind of job -- even if it is something they might have considered "beneath them" in the past."

SMQ: "You say that most every high school girl knew someone in school who was a "sissy". Can you elaborate on that a little?"

MISS K: "Sure --although some girls might not really be aware of sissies until they go to college.

"You know how girls will have a "guy friend" who they go to movies with or go shopping with but don't really "date"? He's sort of like a "girlfriend", really. And no one thinks it's strange that he's not dating anyone else, because he just isn't the "datable" type.

"Most girls tend to treat these "guy friends" rather shabbily. But it doesn't matter, since they are the type that comes back no matter how a girl treats them.

"We might not have thought of them as "sissies", unless they were gay or something. But they weren't exactly the most masculine guys -- and everyone knew a girl would never be interested in them romantically. Well, a whole lot of these same guys now have an apron tied tightly around their waist and do housework and say "Yes, Miss" for a living!"

SMQ: "We've heard a lot of women with sissy maids say that they can always tell a sissy immediately -- is that what you mean?"

MISS K: "Yes, exactly. There are guys you date and are attracted to -- and guys you go shopping with and who help you clean up and run errands for you and things."

SMQ: "How long have you had Jamie? And what kinds of things does he do for you?"

MISS K: "I hired him about 2 years ago, but I had him live out for six months until we knew each other better. But he lives-in now, since it's so much more convenient to have him handy in case I need anything done.

"He does all the housework, of course -- and all my laundry and ironing and everything. Not counting waiting on me in the evenings, he works about 10 hours a day -- and he gets every other Sunday off.

"One good thing about sissy maids is that they don't need much time off. They really have no social life or outside interests to speak of. When Jamie's off he either goes clothes shopping, or relaxes in his little room reading my fashion magazines."

SMQ: "Can you tell us more about your vision of the future? Do you really think sissy maids will be even more commonplace than they've already become?"

MISS K: "Sure. I think in ten years almost any girl making an upper-middle-class salary will have some domestic help -- either full time or part time. And couples will have maids too, especially if both of them work full time.

"And while I don't think as many young bachelors will have live-in help, I think sissies could be trained to be very helpful little "houseboys" and keep a man's place clean for him and do his laundry and everything."

SMQ: "I'd look forward to being able to go over to my boyfriend's place and have it be really clean and well-ordered. Men certainly don't seem to be very good at that sort of thing themselves."

MISS K: "Don't I know it -- men suck at housework! But actually women aren't that good at domestic things anymore, either. That's why your magazine's slogan, "Helping Woman's Work truly become Sissy's Work", is so right-on. It's a change who's time has come!"

SMQ: "Thank you for your "look to the future" Katherine. We only hope SMQ is helping bring about the future you speak of."

MISS K: "I think SMQ is helping. It makes sissy maids feel more comfortable with their positions. It's nice for them to know they aren't the only one stuck at home on a Friday night with a giant pile of their boss' ironing to do while she's out on a date!"

Miss Katherine -- forthright and honest. And with a refreshingly optimistic look at the future!

Top Drawer

Most sissies, (like most girls) keep their panties and other lingerie in the top drawers of their dressers. "Top Drawer" offers timely information and advice to sissy maids and their employers on lingerie and foundation garments. This issue "Top Drawer" covers Sleepwear, which is one of a sissy's favorite and most comforting fashion categories.

Sissy maids are busy and "on duty" during the day -- and often long into the evening. And for these times, most of what they wear is decided upon by their employers and by the specific requirements of the duties they are engaged in. But at night, in the Maid's Room, a sissy's fashion choices are a bit more easy and free. For the most part what a sissy wears to bed is his business, and few employers much care what their little servant wears while sleeping in his little single bed.

Many sissies buy their own "night things", though sometimes employers may contribute to their maid's bedtime wardrobe.

. . . few employers much care what their little servant wears while sleeping in his little single bed.

Some maids wear somewhat boyish designs, like satin "boxer" shorts and a matching top -- or pastel linen pajamas. But most sissies opt for more effeminate styles, such as tap pants and chemise sets, "baby doll" nighties, and matching top-and-panty sets. And often a sissy's true nature and effeminate tendencies are reflected in his choice of nightwear. Some especially girlish sissies even wear "sexy", dramatically high-cut teddies, to bed, though these require special and very tight gaffing.

ABOVE: Bedlinens aren't the only place where rubber comes in to play for sissies these days. This sleek, long-sleeved sleep top and matching panty are just the thing for today's "stretching" and yawning set! This is a modern alternative to frilly nighties, while still being cute and effeminate. Rubber sleep top and matching panty from "Rubber Miss". Latex night gaff from Fashion Fantasy.

One important thing about sleepwear to remember -- for sissies, sleepwear should be fun. Sissy maids work hard and have few pleasures in life. Snuggling into their little beds at night after a long day of often repetitive and tedious assignments is about as fun as it gets for the little dears. They might as well be dressed in something comfy, cute, and fun as they sleep away the night.

They might as well be dressed in something comfy, cute, and fun as they sleep away the night.

Oh-so-short baby doll nighties made of sheer, ruffled chiffon, little satin chemises, "sexy" teddies, and comfy cotton sleepshirts worn over a pair of silky panties are some of the standard choices. But the variations are almost as numerous as the personalities of sissies themselves.

A few new ideas include tiny terry cloth cropped T-shirt tops with matching terry cloth panties or pull-on short-shorts, taffeta "bed jackets" with matching shorts, and little puffed-sleeve tops with tight cotton/Lycra "bike" shorts.

Sissies are gaffed at night -- just as they are during the day. This practice opens up a full range of nightwear for them, since with a proper gaff they can wear all styles as sleekly and smoothly as a girl might. Anyway, most sissies in domestic service quickly become used to being gaffed 24 hours a day -- it just becomes part of their overall "look."

Night gaffs are available from the same suppliers that make daytime gaffs. The only real difference is that a night gaff is generally a bit smaller and tighter than a sissy's day gaff. And some models are made of a stretchy, almost-sheer rubber material.

Sometimes a sissy maid will have to get up early and get a few things done before he dresses for the day. In this case, his sleepwear becomes an impromptu uniform. In most cases his employer will not see him as he scuffs into the kitchen at 6:00 AM in a little baby doll nightie and fuzzy pink slippers to get the coffee started. Perhaps his hair will still be up in curlers!

This is all O.K. as long as his employer is still asleep (as she most likely will be.) But if he is expected to do something in the Master Bedroom -- or will be serving breakfast, the sissy should be dressed for work in a proper uniform and apron.

Night things for sissies should be at least a little practical, but most of all they should meet two criteria: they should be effeminate, and fun! ◆

A few minutes of luxurious contemplation before going to sleep under the covers. This sissy wears a darling little pink chiffon "baby doll" nightie. Matching chiffon panties are adorned with lace ruffles all around, from the waistband down to the seat. And it's a good thing, too, since this nightie's so short the panties will always show!

There's only one word for such a bed-time outfit. . . CUTE! Baby doll nightie and panty from "Sissy Pants."

Uniform Gallery

A photo gallery illustrating some of today's most popular uniforms and fashions for sissy maids

ABOVE: An example of the tight satin short-shorts that are so popular with sissies today. They snugly zip up in the back, of course. Pink, white, and other pastels are the favored colors.

ABOVE: A front view of the same little short-shorts. Note the effectiveness of this sissy's tight gaffing.

BELOW: Black taffeta dress and a white ruffled apron make up a traditional evening service uniform for the domestic sissy. Voluminous petticoats puff out the maid's full skirt, and sleek opaque black pantyhose define his legs. Patent leather "maid's pumps" have dramatic 4-inch high-heels. And note the white linen serving gloves - a nice finishing touch.

Uniforms like this are perfect for serving mistress and her boyfriend a night cap in the Master Bedroom! And they are eminently suitable for curtsying in, too!

ABOVE: Another view of a maid's sissy pants, worn here to "dress up" a seal-sleek Lycra unitard uniform. High heels and apron complete things.

ABOVE: This is the type of "work-a-day" uniform that is the keystone of many sissy maid's working wardrobes. Short skirt is slightly flared and long-sleeved top is comfortable and practical. Here it's worn with a little pink rubber apron and rubber gloves -- both of which are just the thing for cleaning up little messes.

Under his short skirt, this maid wears sheer pantyhose on his shaved-smooth legs. And of course he is gaffed and pantied, as well. High-heeled black patent pumps add a bit of elegance.

This maid has finished the dishes, and is now preparing to clean up the kitchen by wiping down all the counters and appliances. He's a busy servant, but at least he's dressed for it!

ABOVE: Cleaning bathrooms is not anyone's favorite job. But sissy maids, of course, have to do as they're told -- unpleasant or not. Here a sissy scrubs the toilet while dressed in a black cotton uniform dress, substantial pantyhose, a full-cut rubber pinafore, and pink rubber gloves. Kneepads are almost essential for servants who spend so much time on their knees.

ABOVE: A tight, shiny black rubber mini-skirt is both fashionable and practical. Here a sissy struggles to pull down his tight little skirt. (Apron removed to show skirt detail.)

ABOVE: Time for bed! A sissy lays out his selected nightwear on the rubber sheets of his bed. Ruffled "sissy pants" and tiny, cropped T-shirt are representative of a sissy's night things.
