

The Penguin waddled as fast as he could through the sewers of Gotham, fear driving him forward. He thought everything would go well, with the Batman and his team busy with the Joker. He thought he could carry out his plans without any problems whatsoever and so it had seemed until she showed up. That being the famous superheroine known as Wonder Woman. As predicted, she beat the shit out of his henchman and then destroyed his giant Penguin robots as if they were nothing but tin foil. And now, the Penguin found himself in the sewers moving as fast as he could, the echo of high heels coming up behind him drove the criminal. However, the Penguin still had one card left up his sleeve and was willing to bet everything on it. With a smile he sped up as much as he could, a glimmer of hope in his being.

Wonder Woman climbed through the man hole and found herself within the large penguin enclosure of the Gotham City Zoo. It was a brand new building, one of its kind that was over a football fields length long and just as wide. The interior was made to replicate the living conditions of the artic, of the cold environment the feathered creatures lived in. However, for some odd reason, the Zoo did not the responsibility of taking care of real penguins. Of course there was also the talk of the animals attracting the criminal who went by the same name and the Zoo didn't want that. Thus, using cutting edge technology and robotics with the aide of Japan, they filled the enclosure with robotic, life like penguins that moved and acted like the real deal. They could even "eat" fish like the real ones albeit, the fish eaten was just a fake fish that was stored within the robot's stomach.

"Of course he came through here," smirked Wonder Woman as she stood tall in the enclosure, not bothered one bit by the coldness, the fake falling snow or the robotic penguins glancing up at her as they waddled by. She was dressed in her signature outfit with her golden lasso affixed to her hip. Her long black hair cascaded down her back like a waterfall and her outfit hugged her exotic body in all the right places, even accentuating her large breasts.

"You should expect nothing less of me," came the Penguin's voice from behind, to which she calmly turned around and found the criminal standing several feet away, a snowball in his hand. There was a pile of different sized snowballs on the ground next to him, within reach of his short height, but it didn't bother Wonder Woman at all.

"Come now Penguin, you should know by now you are no match for me. Your men were not so what makes you think you even have a chance against someone like me?" chided the superheroine as she calmly approached him.

The Penguin only grinned at that before chucking the snowball at her with all his strength only for it to be batted out of the air with a backhand. The Penguin cursed at that before picking up a large snowball, one that was larger than a basketball, and once more with all his strength, rolled it towards her like a bowling ball. Wonder Woman watched this and let out sigh as she brought her left foot back to kick the snowball. She expected it to explode into little snowflakes, but the unexpected happened. Her entire left foot was suddenly buried inside the large snowball, snuck in place.

"What? What sorcery is this!?" she exclaimed in shock at finding something resisting her strength as she attempted to kick it off. After several tries of nothing happening, she stood in place and tried to kick at the snowball with her right foot. This only resulted in her right foot becoming trapped just as much as her left.

"Penguin! What is this?!" she growled trying to shake her feet lose of their bondage. She then resorted to using her hands by attempting to remove her boots, but to her horror, she discovered that she could not pull her feet out of the boots. "Damn you Penguin!"

Penguin only smiled at the sight of the superheroine lying on the ground, struggling with his trump card: a snowball that he had created for capture heroes. He never had a chance to test it until now. He smirked in response to watching Wonder Woman resort to using her fists, only for the superheroine to now find her right fist now trapped in the snowball. A moment later saw her left hand joining the rest of her limbs. A sense of relief flowed through him as he picked up a snowball and calmly walked towards the struggling superheroine.

"You bastard! How dar-MMngh!" Wonder Woman's words were cut off when the Penguin shoved the snowball into her mouth, enjoying the shock upon her face at finding her mouth now sealed by a snowball that resisted her jaws and teeth. That resisted her strength. She screamed into the snowball gag, yelling muffled threats at the Penguin, threats that fell upon deaf ears.

"Haha!" cackled the Penguin. "Your arrogance has led you into this Wonder Woman. Now that I have some time, I think its time I made you more comfortable."

Wonder Woman's eyes went wide at seeing the evil in his eyes and the dark smile upon his lips as he reached for her.

"There. Much better," said the Penguin as he took a step back to admire his handiwork. He was now standing inside one of the small fake igloos in the far corner of the fake igloo village that was located in the penguin enclosure. Said village was set on the far right of the building, away from the main attraction of the penguins and was only there for looks and served no other person. Because of his short height, the Penguin did not have crouch much within the fake igloo. However, for the famed Wonder Woman, it was a different story. Her limbs were still trapped within the snowball but now her clothes were gone, exposing her entire body to her captor. She was now laying face first on the ground, her body balancing on the snowball with out any trouble as it seemed to keep her in place. Said snowball was now within a hollow depression in the ground, bringing her body closer to the ground, even more so with her elbows and knees folded.

Encircling her throat was a black tight fitting collar that was connected to the ground with a short length of chain that kept her from lifting her head up at all while also forcing her to control her breathing as it was now limited. On top of that, the collar bore a name tag with the words: "Penguin's Bitch". As for her gag, the Penguin had packed more of the snowballs into her mouth, causing her cheeks to bulge out while her entire mouth was filled up. Thanks in part to the chemical formula of his creation, Wonder Woman's muffled voice was effectively silenced, meaning no one would hear her if they were even standing inches away from the igloo. She glared angrily up at him and the way her body shook told him that she was yelling at him.

"Now now Bitch. Can't have you interrupting my escape and I think this will keep Batman and his team occupied searching for you long enough for me to build upon my creation," said with glee. "Of course I'm not such a bad criminal that I wouldn't leave you without any entertainment."

Wonder Woman paused her struggles to watch as he pulled a remote of out of his pocket and pressed a button on it. Because of the way she was bound and laying face down, Wonder Woman realized that her pussy and ass were facing the entrance of the igloo. Because of that, she couldn't see what was coming but her hearing did hear the sound of several robotic penguins approaching, making her wonder what he had planned for her. A moment later he moved to her other side, allowing one of the robotic penguins to come to a halt before her. Wonder Woman's eyes went wide upon seeing that the robot was now holding a large, girthy vibrating dildo that was buzzing away in its hands.

"I modified the programming of a hundred of these robots so they will keep you occupied while I'm gone. Have fun," said the Penguin as he began to walk out, catching sight of the superheroine's body shaking in fear as the first robot approached the makeshift ramp behind the bound superheroine.

"Oh before I forget Wonder Woman," he said, causing the robot to pause while Wonder Woman attempted to look back. "My specially created snowballs have magic casted upon them that will suspend your body's need for sleep, food or the need to go to the bathroom. At the same time, it will preserve your body and keep your mind from breaking. If you're still here in a few weeks, I'll come get you. Have fun."

The Penguin waddled away, a dark smile upon his face as he imagined Wonder Woman screaming at him. In his hand he held a snowball, tossing it up and down while his mind wondered what else he could do to his creation.

